Durham rule. Criminal law. A test for the insanity defense, holding that a defendant is not criminally responsible for an act that was the product of mental disease or defect (Durham v. United States, 214 F.2d 862 (D.C. Cir. 1954)). • Formerly used in New Hampshire and the District of Columbia, the Durham rule has been criticized as being too broad and is no longer accepted in any American jurisdiction. — Also termed product test. See INSANITY DEFENSE. [Cases: Criminal Law 48.]

DURRETT RULE

Durrett rule. Bankruptcy. The principle that a transfer of property in exchange for less than 70% of the property's value should be invalidated as a preferential transfer. Durrett v. Washington Nat'l Ins. Co., 621 F.2d 201 (5th Cir. 1980); 11 USCA § 548. • This rule has been applied most frequently to foreclosure sales. But it has essentially been overruled by the U.S. Supreme Court, which has held that, at least for mortgage foreclosure sales, the price received at a regularly conducted, noncollusive sale represents a reasonably equivalent value of the property, and the transfer is presumed valid. BFP v. Resolution Trust Corp., 511 U.S. 531, 114 S.Ct. 1757 (1994). [Cases: Bankruptcy 2650. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 156.]

DUTIABLE

dutiable (d[y]oo-tee-<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l), adj. Subject to a duty <dutiable goods>.

DUTY

duty. 1. A legal obligation that is owed or due to another and that needs to be satisfied; an obligation for which somebody else has a corresponding right.

“There is a duty if the court says there is a duty; the law, like the Constitution, is what we make it. Duty is only a word with which we state our conclusion that there is or is not to be liability; it necessarily begs the essential question... [M]any factors interplay: the hand of history, our ideas of morals and justice, the convenience of administration of the rule, and our social ideas as to where loss should fall.” William L. Prosser, Palsgraf Revisited, 52 Mich. L. Rev. 1, 15 (1953).

“While courts frequently say that establishing ‘duty’ is the first prerequisite in an individual tort case, courts commonly go on to say that there is a ‘general duty’ to ‘exercise reasonable care,’ to avoid subjecting others to ‘an unreasonable risk of harm,’ or to comply with the ‘legal standard of reasonable conduct.’ Though cast in the language of duty, these formulations merely give the expression to the point that negligence is the standard of liability.” Restatement (Third) of Torts § 6 cmt. a (Discussion Draft 1999).

absolute duty. 1. A duty to which no corresponding right attaches. • According to John Austin's legal philosophy, there are four kinds of absolute duties: (1) duties not regarding persons (such as those owed to God and to lower animals), (2) duties owed to persons indefinitely (i.e., to the community as a whole), (3) self-regarding duties (such as the duty not to commit suicide), and (4) duties owed to the sovereign. 1 John Austin, The Providence of Jurisprudence Determined 400 (Sarah Austin ed., 2d ed. 1861). 2. A duty as to which nothing but lapse of time remains necessary to make immediate performance by the promisor obligatory.

active duty. See positive duty.

affirmative duty. A duty to take a positive step to do something.

conditional duty. A duty that is conditioned on the occurrence of an event other than the lapse of time.

contractual duty. 1. A duty arising under a particular contract. [Cases: Contracts 1. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 2–3, 9, 12.] 2. A duty imposed by the law of contracts.

delegable duty. A duty that may be transferred to another to perform. See ASSIGNMENT.

duty to act. A duty to take some action to prevent harm to another, and for the failure of which one may be liable depending on the relationship of the parties and the circumstances. [Cases: Negligence 210. C.J.S. Negligence §§ 32–33, 36, 39–40, 60, 79.]

duty to defend. Insurance. The obligation of an insurer to provide an insured with a legal defense against claims of liability, within the terms of the policy. • The duty to defend applies if the terms of the policy and the facts of the claim allow an ambiguity about whether the insurer will have a duty to indemnify the insured. It does not apply if no such ambiguity exists.

duty to indemnify. An obligation to compensate another for the other's loss. • The duty arises under the terms of an agreement, which governs the extent of the duty. An insurance policy is fundamentally an indemnification agreement, but the duty is often made a part of other contracts as well.

duty to settle. Insurance. The obligation of an insurer to negotiate and settle third-party claims against an insured in good faith.

duty to speak. A requirement (not strictly a duty) to say something to correct another's false impression. • For example, a duty to speak may arise when a person has, during the course of negotiations, said something that was true at the time but that has ceased to be true before the contract is signed. [Cases: Fraud 17.]

equitable duty. A duty enforceable in a court of chancery or in a court having the powers of a court in chancery.

imperfect duty. 1. A duty that, though recognized by law, is not enforceable against the person who owes it. 2. A duty that is not fit for enforcement but should be left to the discretion and conscience of the person whose duty it is.

implied duty of cooperation. A duty existing in every contract, obligating each party to cooperate with, or at least not to wrongfully hinder, the other party's performance. • Breach of this implied duty excuses performance. [Cases: Contracts 168. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 346–347.]

legal duty. A duty arising by contract or by operation of law; an obligation the breach of which would give a legal remedy <the legal duty of parents to support their children>.

moral duty. A duty the breach of which would be a moral wrong. — Also termed natural duty.

negative duty. A duty that forbids someone to do something; a duty that requires someone to abstain from something. — Also termed passive duty.

noncontractual duty. A duty that arises independently of any contract.

nondelegable duty (non-del-~~<<schwa>>-g<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l~~). 1. Contracts. A duty that cannot be delegated by a contracting party to a third party. • If a contracting party purports to delegate the duty, the other party can rightfully refuse to accept performance by the third party. [Cases: Assignments 19; Principal and Agent 27. C.J.S. Agency § 49; Assignments §§ 32–33.] 2. Torts. A duty that may be delegated to an independent contractor by a principal, who retains primary (as opposed to vicarious) responsibility if the duty is not properly performed. • For example, a landlord's duty to maintain common areas, though delegated to a service contractor, remains the landlord's responsibility if someone is injured by improper maintenance. [Cases: Master and Servant 315; Negligence 1204. C.J.S. Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 231–235, 242, 244–246, 248, 251–252, 254–255; Negligence §§ 532–535.] perfect duty. A duty that is not merely recognized by the law but is actually enforceable.

positive duty. A duty that requires a person either to do some definite action or to engage in a continued course of action. — Also termed active duty.

preexisting duty. A duty that one is already legally bound to perform. See PREEXISTING-DUTY RULE.

quasi-judicial duty. A discretionary judicial duty that a nonjudicial officer may perform under some circumstances.

2. Any action, performance, task, or observance owed by a person in an official or fiduciary capacity.

discretionary duty. A duty that allows a person to exercise judgment and choose to perform or not perform. Cf. ministerial duty.

duty of candor (kan-d<<schwa>>r). A duty to disclose material facts; esp., a duty of a director seeking shareholder approval of a transaction to disclose to the shareholders all known material facts about the transaction. [Cases: Corporations 307, 312(5). C.J.S. Corporations §§ 476–479, 500–501, 503, 524.]

duty of candor and good faith. Patents. A patent applicant's responsibility to disclose to the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office all known information relevant to the invention's patentability, esp. prior art, novelty, and embodiment. • If an applicant fails to be candid in disclosing all relevant information, the PTO may reject the application. If the patent issues and undisclosed but relevant information is discovered later, the patent may be invalidated, and the applicant charged with fraud on the PTO, even if the undisclosed information might not have barred the patent's issuance. [Cases: Patents 97. C.J.S. Patents §§ 135–138, 145, 178.]

duty of fair representation.A labor union's duty to represent its member employees fairly, honestly, and in good faith. [Cases: Labor Relations 219. C.J.S. Labor Relations § 213.]

duty of good faith and fair dealing.A duty that is implied in some contractual relationships, requiring the parties to deal with each other fairly, so that neither prohibits the other from realizing the agreement's benefits. See GOOD FAITH; BAD FAITH. [Cases: Contracts 168, 189. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 341–342, 346–347.]

duty of loyalty.A person's duty not to engage in self-dealing or otherwise use his or her position to further personal interests rather than those of the beneficiary. • For example, directors have a duty not to engage in self-dealing to further their own personal interests rather than the interests of the corporation.

fiduciary duty (fi-d[y]oo-shee-er-ee). A duty of utmost good faith, trust, confidence, and candor owed by a fiduciary (such as a lawyer or corporate officer) to the beneficiary (such as a lawyer's client or a shareholder); a duty to act with the highest degree of honesty and loyalty toward another person and in the best interests of the other person (such as the duty that one partner owes to another). See FIDUCIARY; fiduciary relationship under RELATIONSHIP. [Cases: Fraud 7.]

ministerial duty.A duty that requires neither the exercise of official discretion nor judgment. Cf. discretionary duty.

proprietary duty.A duty owed by a governmental entity while engaged in a proprietary, rather than governmental, activity. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 725. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations § 664.]

3.Torts. A legal relationship arising from a standard of care, the violation of which subjects the actor to liability. — Also termed duty of care. [Cases: Negligence 210. C.J.S. Negligence §§ 32–33, 36, 39–40, 60, 79.] 4. A tax imposed on a commodity or transaction, esp. on imports; IMPOST. • A duty in this sense is imposed on things, not persons.

account duty.An inheritance tax payable by a decedent's beneficiary.

ad valorem duty.A tax calculated as a percentage of an imported product's value. Cf. compound duty; specific duty.

compound duty.A tax based on a combination of imported goods' weight, volume, or item count, plus a percentage of their value. Cf. ad valorem duty; specific duty.

countervailing duty.A tax imposed on manufacturers of imported goods to protect domestic industry by offsetting subsidies given by foreign governments to those manufacturers. [Cases: Customs Duties 21.5. C.J.S. Customs Duties §§ 135–152.]

customs duty.A tax levied on an imported or exported commodity; esp., the federal tax levied on goods shipped into the United States.

death duty.An estate tax or inheritance tax. — Also termed estate duty.

duty of detraction.A tax on property acquired by succession or will and then removed from one state to another.

estate duty.Hist. English law. A tax imposed on the principal value of all property that passed on death. • Estate duties were first imposed in 1889. A capital transfer tax replaced it in 1975. Since 1986, an inheritance tax has applied instead, with exceptions for certain transactions entered into before then. See death duty.

import duty.A tax on the importation of a product. — Also termed duty on import.

legacy duty.See legacy tax under TAX.

probate duty.A tax assessed by the government either on every will admitted to probate or on the gross value of the decedent's personal property.

specific duty.A tax calculated on an import's weight, volume, or item count. Cf. ad valorem duty; compound duty.

succession duty.A tax payable by the successor to real property, esp. when the successor has not purchased the property for value but has succeeded to the property in some other way.

tonnage duty.A charge imposed on a commercial vessel for entering, remaining in, or leaving a port, usu. assessed on the basis of the ship's weight. • U.S. Const. art. I, § 10, cl. 3 prohibits the states from levying tonnage duties. — Also termed tonnage tax; tonnage. [Cases: Commerce 78; Shipping 7. C.J.S. Commerce § 120; Shipping §§ 18–20.]

unascertained duty.A preliminary, estimated payment to a customs collector of the duty that will be due on final accounting. • An importer pays this duty to receive permission to land and sell the goods.

DUTY-BOUND

duty-bound,adj. Required by legal or moral obligation to do something <Jones is duty-bound to deliver the goods by Friday>.

DUTY-FREE

duty-free,adj. Of or relating to products of foreign origin that are not subject to import or export taxes.

DWELLING HOUSE

dwelling house. 1. The house or other structure in which a person lives; a residence or abode. 2. Real estate. The house and all buildings attached to or connected with the house. 3. Criminal law. A building, a part of a building, a tent, a mobile home, or another enclosed space that is used or intended for use as a human habitation. • The term has referred to connected buildings in the same curtilage but now typically includes only the structures connected either directly with the house or by an enclosed passageway. — Often shortened to dwelling. — Also termed (archaically) mansion house; (more broadly) dwelling place. [Cases: Burglary 4.C.J.S. Burglary §§ 27–28, 30–37.]

“A ‘dwelling house’ or ‘dwelling’ has been defined in connection with the crime of arson as any house intended to be occupied as a residence, or an enclosed space, permanent or temporary, in which human beings usually stay, lodge, or reside. If a building is not used exclusively as a dwelling, it is characterized as a dwelling if there is internal communication between the two parts of the building. Dwellings include mobile homes and a boat, if the person resides on it.” 5 Am. Jur. 2d Arson and Related Offenses § 13, at 789 (1995).

EARL

earl. A title of nobility, formerly the highest in England but now the third highest, ranking between a marquis and a viscount. • This title corresponds with the French comte and the German graf. Originating with the Saxons, this title is the most ancient of the English peerage. William the Conqueror first made the title hereditary, giving it in fee to his nobles. No territorial, private, or judicial rights now accompany the title; it merely confers nobility and a hereditary seat in the House of Lords.

EARLDOM

earldom. The dignity or jurisdiction of an earl. • Only the dignity remains now, the jurisdiction having been given over to the sheriff. See DIGNITY.

EARLES-PENNY

EARL MARSHAL OF ENGLAND

Earl Marshal of England.A great officer of state, who historically had jurisdiction over several courts, including the court of chivalry and the court of honor. • Under this office is the herald's office, or college of arms. The Earl Marshal was also a judge of the Marshalsea court, now abolished. This office is quite ancient. Since 1672, it has been hereditary in the family of Howards, Dukes of Norfolk. — Often shortened to Earl Marshal.

EARL'S PENNY

earl's penny. See EARLES-PENNY.

EARMARK

earmark, n. 1. Originally, a mark upon the ear — a mode of marking sheep and other animals. [Cases: Animals 5. C.J.S. Animals § 15.]

“When now-a-days we say that ‘money has no ear-mark,’ we are alluding to a practice which in all probability played a large part in ancient law. Cattle were ear-marked or branded, and this enabled their owner to swear that they were his in whosoever hands he might find them. The legal supposition is, not that one ox is indistinguishable from another ox, but that all oxen, or all oxen of a certain large class, are equivalent. The possibility of using them as money has rested on this supposition.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 151–52 (2d ed. 1899).

2. A mark put on something (such as a coin) to distinguish it from another.

earmark, vb. 1. To mark with an earmark. 2. To set aside for a specific purpose or recipient.

EARMARKING DOCTRINE

earmarking doctrine. Bankruptcy. An equitable principle that when a new lender makes a loan to enable a debtor to pay off a specified creditor, the funds are specifically set aside for that creditor so that, if the debtor lacks control over the disposition of the funds, they do not become part of the debtor's estate and thus subject to a preference. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2610. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 136.]

EARN

earn, vb. 1. To acquire by labor, service, or performance. 2. To do something that entitles one to a reward or result, whether it is received or not.

EARNED INCOME

earned income. See INCOME.

EARNED-INCOME CREDIT

earned-income credit. See TAX CREDIT.

EARNED LAND

earned land. See LAND.

EARNED PREMIUM

earned premium. See PREMIUM(1).

EARNED SURPLUS

earned surplus. See retained earnings under EARNINGS.

EARNED TIME

earned time. See TIME.

EARNER

earner. 1. One who produces income through personal efforts or property or both. 2. Property or an asset that produces income for its owner.

EARNEST

earnest, n. 1. A nominal payment or token act that serves as a pledge or a sign of good faith, esp. as the partial purchase price of property. • Though not legally necessary, an earnest may help the parties come to an agreement. 2. EARNEST MONEY.

EARNEST MONEY

earnest money. A deposit paid (often in escrow) by a prospective buyer (esp. of real estate) to show a good-faith intention to complete the transaction, and ordinarily forfeited if the buyer defaults. • Although earnest money has traditionally been a nominal sum (such as a nickel or a dollar) used in the sale of goods, it is not a mere token in the real-estate context: it may amount to many thousands of dollars. — Also termed earnest; bargain money; caution money; hand money. Cf. BINDER(2); down payment under PAYMENT. [Cases: Vendor and Purchaser 69.1, 182. C.J.S. Vendor and Purchaser §§ 135, 137–138, 425.]

“The amount of earnest money deposited rarely exceeds 10 percent of the purchase price, and its primary purpose is to serve as a source of payment of damages should the buyer default. Earnest money is not essential to make a purchase agreement binding if the buyer's and seller's exchange of mutual promises of performance (that is, the buyer's promise to purchase and the seller's promise to sell at a specified price and terms) constitutes the consideration for the contract.” John W. Reilly, The Language of Real Estate 131 (4th ed. 1993).

EARNEST-PENNY

earnest-penny. See GOD'S PENNY.

EARNING ASSET

earning asset. See ASSET.

EARNING CAPACITY

earning capacity. A person's ability or power to earn money, given the person's talent, skills, training, and experience. • Earning capacity is one element considered when measuring the damages recoverable in a personal-injury lawsuit. And in family law, earning capacity is considered when awarding child support and spousal maintenance (or alimony) and in dividing property between spouses upon divorce. — Also termed earning power. See LOST EARNING CAPACITY.

EARNINGS

earnings. Revenue gained from labor or services, from the investment of capital, or from assets. See INCOME.

appropriated retained earnings. Retained earnings that a company's board designates for a distinct use, and that are therefore unavailable to pay dividends or for other uses. — Also termed appropriated surplus; surplus revenue; suspense reserve.

future earnings. See lost earnings.

gross earnings. See gross income under INCOME.

lost earnings. Wages, salary, or other income that a person could have earned if he or she had not lost a job, suffered a disabling injury, or died. • Lost earnings are typically awarded as damages in personal-injury and wrongful-termination cases. There can be past lost earnings and future lost earnings. Both are subsets of this category, though legal writers sometimes loosely use future earnings as a synonym for lost earnings. Cf. LOST EARNING CAPACITY. [Cases: Damages 37. C.J.S. Damages §§ 54–55.]

net earnings. See net income under INCOME.

ongoing earnings. See operating earnings.

operating earnings. Business income calculated in violation of generally accepted accounting principles by including income items and excluding various business expenses. • Many companies use operating earnings to favorably skew their price-earnings (P/E) ratios. Because the rationales for the underlying calculations vary from company to company, and from period to period within a company, operating earnings are almost always artificially inflated and unreliable. The term operating earnings is meaningless under generally accepted accounting principles. — Also termed pro forma earnings; economic earnings; core earnings; ongoing earnings; earnings excluding special items. See PRICE-EARNINGS RATIO.

pretax earnings. Net earnings before income taxes.

pro forma earnings. See operating earnings.

real earnings. Earnings that are adjusted for inflation so that they reflect actual purchasing power.

retained earnings. A corporation's accumulated income after dividends have been distributed. — Also termed earned surplus; undistributed profit. [Cases: Corporations 151. C.J.S. Corporations § 293.]

surplus earnings. The excess of corporate assets over liabilities within a given period, usu. a year. [Cases: Corporations 152. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 295–299.]

EARNINGS AND PROFITS

earnings and profits. Corporations. In corporate taxation, the measure of a corporation's economic capacity to make a shareholder distribution that is not a return of capital. • The distribution will be dividend income to the shareholders to the extent of the corporation's current and accumulated earnings and profits. Cf. accumulated-earnings tax under TAX; accumulated taxable income under INCOME. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3830.1–3845. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 381–382.]

EARNINGS EXCLUDING SPECIAL ITEMS

earnings excluding special items. See operating earnings under EARNINGS.

EARNINGS PER SHARE

earnings per share. Corporations. A measure of corporate value by which the corporation's net income is divided by the number of outstanding shares of common stock. • Investors benefit from calculating a corporation's earnings per share, because it helps the investor determine the fair market value of the corporation's stock. — Abbr. EPS.

fully diluted earnings per share. A corporation's net income — assuming that all convertible securities had been transferred to common equity and all stock options had been exercised — divided by the number of shares of the corporation's outstanding common stock.

EARNINGS-PRICE RATIO

earnings-price ratio. See earnings yield under YIELD.

EARNINGS REPORT

earnings report. See INCOME STATEMENT.

EARNINGS YIELD

earnings yield. See YIELD.

EARNOUT AGREEMENT

earnout agreement. An agreement for the sale of a business whereby the buyer first pays an agreed amount up front, leaving the final purchase price to be determined by the business's future profits. • The seller usu. helps manage the business for a period after the sale. — Sometimes shortened to earnout.

EARWITNESS

earwitness. A witness who testifies about something that he or she heard but did not see. Cf. EYEWITNESS.

EASEMENT

easement (eez-m<<schwa>>nt). An interest in land owned by another person, consisting in the right to use or control the land, or an area above or below it, for a specific limited purpose (such as to cross it for access to a public road). • The land benefiting from an easement is called the dominant estate; the land burdened by an easement is called the servient estate. Unlike a lease or license, an easement may last forever, but it does not give the holder the right to possess, take from, improve, or sell the land. The primary recognized easements are (1) a right-of-way, (2) a right of entry for any purpose relating to the dominant estate, (3) a right to the support of land and buildings, (4) a right of light and air, (5) a right to water, (6) a right to do some act that would otherwise amount to a nuisance, and (7) a right to place or keep something on the servient estate. See SERVITUDE(1). Cf. PROFIT à PRENDRE. — Also termed private right-of-way. [Cases: Easements 1. C.J.S. Easements §§ 2–8, 13–14, 21–22, 24, 53–55, 57–58, 89.]

access easement.An easement allowing one or more persons to travel across another's land to get to a nearby location, such as a road. • The access easement is a common type of easement by necessity. — Also termed easement of access; easement of way; easement of passage.

adverse easement.See prescriptive easement.

affirmative easement.An easement that forces the servient-estate owner to permit certain actions by the easement holder, such as discharging water onto the servient estate. — Also termed positive easement. Cf. negative easement.

“Positive easements give rights of entry upon the land of another, not amounting to profits, to enable something to be done on that land. Some are commonplace, examples being rights of way across the land of another and rights to discharge water on to the land of another. Others are more rare, such as the right to occupy a pew in a church, the right to use a kitchen situated on the land of another for the purpose of washing and drying clothes, and the right to use a toilet situated on the land of another.” Peter Butt, Land Law 305 (2d ed. 1988).

apparent easement.A visually evident easement, such as a paved trail or a sidewalk. [Cases: Easements 22. C.J.S. Easements §§ 113–115.]

appendant easement.See easement appurtenant.

appurtenant easement.See easement appurtenant.

avigational easement.An easement permitting unimpeded aircraft flights over the servient estate. — Also termed avigation easement; aviation easement; flight easement; navigation easement. [Cases: Aviation 3. C.J.S. Aeronautics and Aerospace §§ 7–9.]

common easement.An easement allowing the servient landowner to share in the benefit of the easement. — Also termed nonexclusive easement. [Cases: Easements 38. C.J.S. Easements §§ 57, 143–144, 146–147, 165–167.]

continuous easement.An easement that may be enjoyed without a deliberate act by the party claiming it, such as an easement for drains, sewer pipes, lateral support of a wall, or light and air. — Also termed (in Louisiana) continuous servitude. Cf. discontinuous easement. [Cases: Easements 38. C.J.S. Easements §§ 57, 143–144, 146–147, 165–167.]

determinable easement.An easement that terminates on the happening of a specific event.

discontinuous easement.An easement that can be enjoyed only if the party claiming it deliberately acts in some way with regard to the servient estate. • Examples are a right-of-way and the right to draw water. — Also termed discontinuing easement; noncontinuous easement; nonapparent easement; (in Louisiana) discontinuous servitude. Cf. continuous easement. [Cases: Easements 38. C.J.S. Easements §§ 57, 143–144, 146–147, 165–167.]

easement appurtenant. An easement created to benefit another tract of land, the use of easement being incident to the ownership of that other tract. — Also termed appurtenant easement; appendant easement; pure easement; easement proper. Cf. easement in gross. [Cases: Easements 3. C.J.S. Easements §§ 4, 10–11, 20.]

easement by estoppel. A court-ordered easement created from a voluntary servitude after a person, mistakenly believing the servitude to be permanent, acted in reasonable reliance on the mistaken belief. [Cases: Estoppel 82. C.J.S. Estoppel § 90.]

easement by implication. See implied easement.

easement by necessity. An easement created by operation of law because the easement is indispensable to the reasonable use of nearby property, such as an easement connecting a parcel of land to a road. — Also termed easement of necessity; necessary way. [Cases: Easements 18. C.J.S. Easements §§ 63, 69, 75–77, 91–97, 99–101, 103–109.]

easement by prescription. See prescriptive easement.

easement in gross. An easement benefiting a particular person and not a particular piece of land. • The beneficiary need not, and usu. does not, own any land adjoining the servient estate. Cf. easement appurtenant. [Cases: Easements 3. C.J.S. Easements §§ 4, 10–11, 20.]

easement of access. See access easement.

easement of convenience. An easement that increases the facility, comfort, or convenience of enjoying the dominant estate or some right connected with it.

easement of natural support. See lateral support under SUPPORT(3).

easement of necessity. See easement by necessity.

easement of passage. See access easement.

easement of way. See access easement.

easement proper. See easement appurtenant.

equitable easement. 1. An implied easement created by equity when adjacent lands have been created out of a larger tract. • Such an easement is usu. created to allow implied privileges to continue. [Cases: Easements 16. C.J.S. Easements §§ 3, 61–65, 68–71, 74, 79–81, 88.] 2. See restrictive covenant (1) under COVENANT(4).

exclusive easement. An easement that the holder has the sole right to use. Cf. common easement. [Cases: Easements 52. C.J.S. Easements §§ 164–167.]

flight easement. See avigational easement.

floating easement. An easement that, when created, is not limited to any specific part of the servient estate. [Cases: Easements 46. C.J.S. Easements § 152.]

flowage easement. A common-law easement that gives the dominant-estate owner the right to flood a servient estate, as when land near a dam is flooded to maintain the dam or to control the water level in a reservoir. [Cases: Waters and Water Courses 165. C.J.S. Waters §§ 38–42.]

implied easement. An easement created by law after an owner of two parcels of land uses one parcel to benefit the other to such a degree that, upon the sale of the benefited parcel, the purchaser could reasonably expect the use to be included in the sale. — Also termed easement by implication; way of necessity. [Cases: Easements 15–19. C.J.S. Easements §§ 3, 13, 61–88, 90–109, 149.]

intermittent easement. An easement that is usable or used only from time to time, not regularly or continuously.

light-and-air easement. A negative easement preventing an adjoining landowner from constructing a building that would prevent light or air from reaching the dominant estate. See negative easement. Cf. solar easement. [Cases: Easements 11, 19, 45. C.J.S. Easements §§ 51–52, 85–87, 151.]

mineral easement. An easement that permits the holder to enter the property to remove minerals from it. [Cases: Mines and Minerals 55(6). C.J.S. Mines and Minerals §§ 177, 180, 182–185, 428, 434–435.]

navigation easement. 1. An easement giving the federal government the right to regulate navigable waters, even when the regulation interferes with private water rights. [Cases: Navigable Waters 16. C.J.S. Navigable Waters §§ 40–44, 46.] 2. See avigational easement.

negative easement. An easement that prohibits the servient-estate owner from doing something, such as building an obstruction. Cf. affirmative easement. [Cases: Covenants 20; Easements 13. C.J.S. Easements § 59.]

“Negative easements ... confer no right of entry, but consist essentially of the right to prevent something being done; examples are the right to the flow of air through defined aperture, the right to receive light for a building, the right to the support of a building, and (possibly) the right to require a neighbouring landowner to repair fences.” Peter Butt, Land Law 305 (2d ed. 1988).

nonapparent easement. See discontinuous easement.

noncontinuous easement. See discontinuous easement.

nonexclusive easement. See common easement.

positive easement. See affirmative easement.

prescriptive easement. An easement created from an open, adverse, and continuous use over a statutory period. — Also termed easement by prescription; adverse easement. See ADVERSE POSSESSION. [Cases: Easements 5–11. C.J.S. Easements §§ 13–51.]

private easement. An easement whose enjoyment is restricted to one specific person or a few specific people. [Cases: Easements 52. C.J.S. Easements §§ 164–167.]

public easement. An easement for the benefit of an entire community, such as the right to travel down a street or a sidewalk.

pure easement. See easement appurtenant.

quasi-easement. 1. An easement-like right occurring when both tracts of land are owned by the same person. • A quasi-easement may become a true easement if the landowner sells one of the tracts. 2. An obligation or license that relates to land but that is not a true easement — for example, a landowner's obligation to maintain the fence between the landowner's tract and someone else's tract.

reciprocal negative easement. An easement created when a landowner sells part of the land and restricts the buyer's use of that part, and, in turn, that same restriction is placed on the part kept by the landowner. • Such an easement usu. arises when the original landowner creates a common scheme of development for smaller tracts that are carved out of the original tract. [Cases: Covenants 20; Easements 13. C.J.S. Easements § 59.]

reserved easement. An easement created by the grantor of real property to benefit the grantor's retained property and to burden the granted property. [Cases: Easements 14. C.J.S. Easements § 60.]

secondary easement. An easement that is appurtenant to the primary or actual easement; the right to do things that are necessary to fully enjoy the easement itself. [Cases: Easements 38. C.J.S. Easements §§ 57, 143–144, 146–147, 165–167.]

solar easement. An easement created to protect the dominant estate's exposure to the direct rays of the sun. • A solar easement is often created to prevent the servient-estate owner from constructing any building that would cause shadows on the dominant estate, thus interfering with the use of a solar-energy system. Cf. light-and-air easement. [Cases: Easements 11, 19, 45. C.J.S. Easements §§ 51–52, 85–87, 151.]

“Solar easements ... remain difficult to describe because of the relationship of the sun to the earth. Shadow variables include land slope, terrain, solar orientation, latitude, time of day, and height of potential obstructions. Lawyers, engineers, land planners, title companies and others have expressed concern over the complexity required to write a solar easement containing highly detailed, technical information often included in these easements.” Sandy F. Kraemer, Solar Law 42 (1978).

timber easement. An easement that permits the holder to cut and remove timber from another's property. — Also termed timber rights. [Cases: Logs and Logging 3. C.J.S. Logs and Logging §§ 9, 20.]

EASTER-OFFERINGS

Easter-offerings. Eccles. law. Small sums of money paid as personal tithes to the parochial clergy by the parishioners at Easter. • Under the Recovery of Small Tithes Act (1695), Easter-offerings were recoverable before justices of the peace. St. 7 & 8 Will. 3, ch. 6. — Also termed Easter-dues.

ECONOMIC LIFE

economic life. The duration of an asset's profitability, usu. shorter than its physical life.

ECONOMIC LOSS

economic loss. A monetary loss such as lost wages or lost profits. • The term usu. refers to a type of damages recoverable in a lawsuit. For example, in a products-liability suit, economic loss includes the cost of repair or replacement of defective property, as well as commercial loss for the property's inadequate value and consequent loss of profits or use. [Cases: Damages 36, 40(1). C.J.S. Damages §§ 53, 58, 61; Torts § 26.]

consequential economic loss. Economic loss that proximately results from a defective product and that is beyond direct economic loss. • Examples include lost profits and loss of goodwill or business reputation. [Cases: Damages 36; Products Liability 17.1. C.J.S. Damages § 53; Torts § 26.]

direct economic loss. Economic loss flowing directly from insufficient product quality. • The most common type is loss-of-bargain damages — the difference between the actual value of goods accepted and the value they would have had if they had been delivered as promised or warranted. [Cases: Products Liability 17.1; Torts 5. C.J.S. Torts §§ 24–26.]

ECONOMIC-LOSS RULE

economic-loss rule. Torts. The principle that a plaintiff cannot sue in tort to recover for purely monetary loss — as opposed to physical injury or property damage — caused by the defendant. • Many states recognize an exception to this rule when the defendant commits fraud or negligent misrepresentation, or when a special relationship exists between the parties (such as an attorney–client relationship). — Also termed economic-harm rule; economic-loss doctrine.

“One way the courts have attempted to draw a line between tort and warranty is to bar recovery for ‘economic loss’ in tort. In some states this common law doctrine has achieved the status of the ‘economic loss doctrine,’ meaning that once loss is defined as ‘economic’ it cannot be recovered at least in negligence or strict tort and perhaps not in fraud or misrepresentation.” 1 James J. White & Robert S. Summers, Uniform Commercial Code § 10-5, at 581 (4th ed. 1995).

ECONOMIC OBSOLESCENCE

economic obsolescence. See OBSOLESCENCE.

EDICTUM

edictum (ee-dik-t<<schwa>>m), n.[Latin] Roman law.1. In imperial Rome, an edict or mandate; an ordinance or law proclaimed by the emperor. • An edict was a constitution of the emperor acting on his own initiative, differing from a rescript in not being returned in the way of answer; from a decree in not being given in judgment; and from both in not being founded upon solicitation. As an imperial constitution, it had the force of law. 2. A declaration by a magistrate relevant to his jurisdiction or area of competence; esp., the pronouncement of a magistrate of the principles by which he proposed to act in office. See edictum annuum; FORMULA(1). Pl. edicta.

edictum aedilicium (ee-d<<schwa>>-lish-ee-<<schwa>>m). A curule aedile's edict regarding sales in the public market; esp., an edict giving remedies for sales of defective goods, animals, or slaves. • An aedile could, for instance, declare that sellers would be strictly liable for latent defects in goods, and dictate how dogs and wild animals for sale should be confined to protect the public. — Also written aedilitium edictum. Pl. edicta aedilicia.

edictum annuum (an-yoo-<<schwa>>m). An edict issued by a praetor at the beginning of the one-year term of office. Pl. edicta annua.

edictum perpetuum (p<<schwa>>r-pech-oo-<<schwa>>m). The urban praetor's edict in its permanent form, edited by Julian in A.D. 131 and given legislative force. • This term originally had the narrower sense of the praetors' general edicts as opposed to edicts issued in specific cases.

— Also termed perpetual edict. Pl. edicta perpetua.

edictum praetoris (pri-tor-<<schwa>>s). The proclamation issued by a praetor at the start of the year's term, explaining the grounds on which a formula would be granted. — Also termed praetorian edict. See edictum annum; FORMULA (1).

edictum provinciale (pr*<<schwa>>*-vin-shee-ay-lee). An edict or system of rules for the administration of justice, modeled on edictum praetoris, issued by the provincial governors in the Roman Empire. Pl. edicta provincialia.

edictum repentinum (rep-*<<schwa>>n-ti-n<<schwa>>*m). [Latin] Roman law. A supplementary edict issued to deal with some emergency. • This term was contrasted with edictum perpetuum. Pl. edicta repentina.

Edictum Theodorici (thee-<<schwa>>-d*<<schwa>>*-ri-sI). A collection of laws applicable to both Romans and Goths, issued by Theodoric, king of the Ostrogoths, at Rome about A.D. 500, or perhaps by Theodoric III, king of the Visigoths in Gaul about A.D. 460.

edictum tralatitium (tral-<<schwa>>-tish-ee-*<<schwa>>m). A praetor's edict that retained all or a principal part of the predecessor's edict, with only such additions as appeared necessary to adapt it to changing social conditions or juristic ideas. • This had become standard practice by the end of the Republic. — Also spelled edictum tralacticium (tral-<<schwa>>k-tish-ee-<<schwa>>*m). Pl. edicta tralatitia.

EIGHT-CORNERS RULE

eight-corners rule. Insurance. The principle that a liability insurer's duty to defend its insured — generally triggered if the plaintiff's claims against the insured are within the policy's coverage — is assessed by reviewing the claims asserted in the plaintiff's complaint, without reference to matters outside the four corners of the complaint plus the four corners of the policy. — Also termed allegations-of-the-complaint rule. Cf. FOUR-CORNERS RULE . [Cases: Insurance 2914, 2915. C.J.S. Insurance § 1150.]

EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT

Eighteenth Amendment. The constitutional amendment — ratified in 1919 and repealed by the 21st Amendment in 1933 — that prohibited the manufacture, sale, transportation, and possession of alcoholic beverages in the United States. See PROHIBITION(3). [Cases: Intoxicating Liquors 17. C.J.S. Intoxicating Liquors § 35.]

EIGHTH AMENDMENT

Eighth Amendment. The constitutional amendment, ratified as part of the Bill of Rights in 1791, prohibiting excessive bail, excessive fines, and cruel and unusual punishment.

EIGHT-HOUR LAW

eight-hour law. A law that sets eight hours as the standard workday for some jobs and that usually requires a higher pay rate for work beyond eight hours. • One example is the federal Fair Labor Standards Act. See WAGE-AND-HOUR LAW.

8-K

8-K. An SEC form that a registered corporation must file if a material event affecting its financial condition occurs between the due dates for regular SEC filings. — Also termed Form 8-K. Cf. 10-K.

EIGNE

eigne (ayn), adj. [Law French] Hist. 1. (Of a child) eldest; first-born. 2. (Of title) superior; prior. 3. (Of an estate) entailed. See ENTAILED. • This adjective traditionally follows the noun it modifies in sense 1 <bastard eigne> but precedes the noun in senses 2 & 3 <eigne title>. — Also spelled eygne; aisne. — Also termed (in Law Latin) einetius.

EIGNESSE

eignesse (ay-nes), n. [French] See ESNECY.

EINECIA

einecia (I-nee-shee-<<schwa>>), n.[Law Latin fr. French einé “being born before”] Eldership. See ESNECY.

EINETIA

EITHER-OR ORDER

either-or order.See alternative order under ORDER(8).

EIUSDEM GENERIS

eiusdem generis.See EJUSDEM GENERIS.

EJECT

eject,vb.1. To cast or throw out. 2. To oust or dispossess; to put or turn out of possession. 3. To expel or thrust out forcibly (e.g., disorderly patrons). — ejector,vb.

EJECTION

ejection,n.1. An expulsion by action of law or by actual or threatened physical force. See OUSTER. 2.EJECTMENT(2).

EJECTIONE CUSTODIAE

ejectione custodiae.See DE EJECTIONE CUSTODIAE.

EJECTIONE FIRMAE

ejectione firmae.See DE EJECTIONE FIRMAE.

EJECTMENT

ejectment.1. The ejection of an owner or occupier from property. 2. A legal action by which a person wrongfully ejected from property seeks to recover possession, damages, and costs. 3. The writ by which such an action is begun. • The essential allegations in an action for ejectment are that (1) the plaintiff has title to the land, (2) the plaintiff has been wrongfully dispossessed or ousted, and (3) the plaintiff has suffered damages. — Also termed action of ejectment; action for the recovery of land; ejection. See FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER. Cf. EVICTION; OUSTER. [Cases: Ejectment 1. C.J.S. Ejectment §§ 2–3, 5.]

“Any person wrongfully dispossessed of land may sue for the specific restitution of it in an action of ejectment. Originally this action was a special variety of trespass and available only to leaseholders. But in time and by the aid of the most elaborate fictions it came to be used by freeholders also. All these fictions have now been swept away; in theory even the term ejectment has been replaced by the term action for the recovery of land. The older term is, however, replaced in practice.” R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 41 (17th ed. 1977).

equitable ejectment.A proceeding brought to enforce specific performance of a contract for the sale of land and for other purposes. • Though in the form of an ejectment action, this proceeding is in reality a substitute for a bill in equity. [Cases: Ejectment 156.]

justice ejectment.A statutory proceeding to evict a tenant who has held over after termination of the lease or breach of its conditions.

EJECTMENT BILL

ejectment bill.Equity practice. A bill in equity brought to recover real property and an accounting of rents and profits, without setting out a distinct ground of equity jurisdiction (and thus demurrable). [Cases: Ejectment 62. C.J.S. Ejectment § 59.]

EJECTMENT DE GARDE

ejectment de garde. See DE EJECTIONE CUSTODIAE.

EJECTOR

ejector, n. One who ejects, puts out, or dispossesses another.

casual ejector. The nominal defendant in an ejectment action who, under a legal fiction, is supposed to come casually or by accident upon the premises and to eject the lawful possessor. [Cases: Ejectment 46.]

EJECTUM

ejectum (i-jek-t<<schwa>>m), n. Something that is cast out, esp. by the sea. See FLOTSAM. Cf. JETSAM; LAGAN(1) WAVESON.

EJECTUS

ejectus (ee-jek-t<<schwa>>s), n. [Latin] Hist. A whoremonger; a pimp.

EJERCITORIA

ejercitoria (ay-hair-see-tor-ee-<<schwa>>), n. [Spanish] Spanish law. An action lying against a ship's owner upon the contracts or obligations made by the master for repairs or supplies. • This action corresponds to the actio exercitoria of Roman law. See actio exercitoria under ACTIO.

EJIDO

ejido (ay-hee-doh), n. [fr. Latin exitus “a going out”] Spanish law. Common land or pasture; esp., land used in common by inhabitants of a city, pueblo, or town for such things as pasture, wood, and threshing-ground; commons. — Also termed exidos; exedos. See COMMON(2).

EJURATION

ejuration (ej-<<schwa>>-ray-sh<<schwa>>n). The renouncing or resigning of one's place.

EJUSDEM GENERIS

eiusdem generis (ee-j<<schwa>>s-d<<schwa>>m jen-<<schwa>>-ris also ee-joos- or ee-yoos-). [Latin “of the same kind or class”] A canon of construction that when a general word or phrase follows a list of specifics, the general word or phrase will be interpreted to include only items of the same type as those listed. • For example, in the phrase horses, cattle, sheep, pigs, goats, or any other farm animal, the general language or any other farm animal — despite its seeming breadth — would probably be held to include only four-legged, hooved mammals typically found on farms, and thus would exclude chickens. — Also spelled eiusdem generis. — Also termed eiusdem generis rule; Lord Tenterden's rule. Cf. EXPRESSIO UNIUS EST EXCLUSIO ALTERIUS; NOSCITUR A SOCIIS; RULE OF RANK. [Cases: Contracts 156;

Statutes 194. C.J.S. Contracts § 328; Statutes § 329.]

EJUSDEM NEGOTII

ELECTED DOMICILE

elected domicile.See DOMICILE.

ELECTEE

electee.1. A person chosen or elected. 2. A person to whom the law gives a choice about status.

ELECTIO EST CREDITORIS

electio est creditoris (i-lek-shee-oh est kred-i-tor-is). [Law Latin] Scots law. The creditor has the election or choice. • The phrase appeared in reference to the creditor's right to apply payments to one debt or another. Cf. ELECTIO EST DEBITORIS.

“Electio est creditoris.... This has reference to a creditor's right to apply indefinite payments, made by his debtor, to that debt or obligation which is least secured; but where the debtor at the time of payment appropriates the sum paid, towards extinction of a particular debt, it must be so applied.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 184 (4th ed. 1894).

ELECTIO EST DEBITORIS

electio est debitoris (i-lek-shee-oh est deb-i-tor-is). [Law Latin] Scots law. The debtor has the election or choice. • If the law provided alternative methods of fulfilling an obligation, the debtor could choose the method of payment. Cf. ELECTIO EST CREDITORIS.

ELECTION

election,n.1. The exercise of a choice; esp., the act of choosing from several possible rights or remedies in a way that precludes the use of other rights or remedies <the taxpayers' election to file jointly instead of separately>. See ELECTION OF REMEDIES. 2. The doctrine by which a person is compelled to choose between accepting a benefit under a legal instrument and retaining some property right to which the person is already entitled; an obligation imposed on a party to choose between alternative rights or claims, so that the party is entitled to enjoy only one <the prevailing plaintiff was put to an election between out-of-pocket damages and lost profits>. — Also termed equitable election. See RIGHT OF ELECTION. [Cases: Election of Remedies 1. C.J.S. Election of Remedies §§ 2–3.] 3. The process of selecting a person to occupy an office (usu. a public office), membership, award, or other title or status <the 2004 congressional election>. [Cases: Elections 1. C.J.S. Elections §§ 1(1, 10), , 2.] — elect,vb. — elective,adj.

by-election. An election specially held to fill a vacant post. — Also spelled bye-election. Cf. general election.

election at large.An election in which a public official is selected from a major election district rather than from a subdivision of the larger unit. — Also termed at-large election. [Cases: Elections 12(7).]

free election.An election in which the political system and processes guarantee that each voter will be allowed to vote according to conscience.

general election. 1. An election that occurs at a regular interval of time. — Also termed regular election. 2. An election for all seats, as contrasted with a by-election. Cf. by-election. [Cases: Elections 215.]

municipal election.The election of municipal officers. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 129. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 350, 353, 367.]

off-year election.An election conducted at a time other than the presidential election year.

popular election.An election by people as a whole, rather than by a select group.

primary election.A preliminary election in which a political party's registered voters nominate the candidate who will run in the general election. — Often shortened to primary. [Cases: Elections 126. C.J.S. Elections § 111(1).]

recall election. An election in which voters have the opportunity to remove a public official from office.

regular election. See general election.

representation election. An election held by the National Labor Relations Board to decide whether a certain union will represent employees in a bargaining unit. See BARGAINING UNIT. [Cases: Labor Relations 210. C.J.S. Labor Relations §§ 191–192, 195–197, 203, 207–209.]

runoff election. An election held after a general election, in which the two candidates who received the most votes — neither of whom received a majority — run against each other so that the winner can be determined. Cf. two-round voting under VOTING.

special election. An election that occurs in an interim between general elections, usu. to fill a sudden vacancy in office. Cf. by-election.

4. Patents. A patent applicant's choice of a single invention to continue prosecuting under the original application, after an examiner has required a restriction. See RESTRICTION(4).

election of species. A patent applicant's choice of one alternative over others after an examiner determines that a generic claim is not allowable.

ELECTION, DOCTRINE OF

election, doctrine of. See DOCTRINE OF ELECTION.

ELECTION, ESTOPPEL BY

election, estoppel by. See estoppel by election under ESTOPPEL.

ELECTION BOARD

election board. 1. A board of inspectors or commissioners appointed for each election precinct to determine voter qualification, to supervise the polling, and often to ascertain and report the results. 2. A local agency charged with the conduct of elections. [Cases: Elections 49–58. C.J.S. Elections §§ 55–56, 59–60, 63–65.]

ELECTION BY SPOUSE

election by spouse. See RIGHT OF ELECTION.

ELECTION CONTEST

election contest. A challenge by an election's loser against the winner, calling for an analysis of the election returns, which may include reviewing voter qualifications or re-counting the ballots. [Cases: Elections 148, 269–306. C.J.S. Elections §§ 1(10), 120, 139, 219, 245–267, 269–270, 272–277, 279, 281, 283–284, 288–292, 295–296, 298–301, 305–306, 308, 310, 312, 314, 317–318.]

election district.See DISTRICT.

ELECTION DOWER

election dower.See DOWER.

ELECTION FRAUD

election fraud.Illegal conduct committed in an election, usu. in the form of fraudulent voting.

- Examples include voting twice, voting under another person's name (usu. a deceased person), and voting while ineligible. [Cases: Elections 318. C.J.S. Elections § 331.]

ELECTION JUDGE

election judge.1. A person appointed to supervise an election at the precinct level; a local representative of an election board. [Cases: Elections 49. C.J.S. Elections § 56.] 2.English law. One of two puisne judges of the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court selected to try election petitions.

ELECTION OF REMEDIES

election of remedies.1. A claimant's act of choosing between two or more concurrent but inconsistent remedies based on a single set of facts. [Cases: Election of Remedies 1. C.J.S. Election of Remedies §§ 2–3.] 2. The affirmative defense barring a litigant from pursuing a remedy inconsistent with another remedy already pursued, when that other remedy has given the litigant an advantage over, or has damaged, the opposing party. • This doctrine has largely fallen into disrepute and is now rarely applied. 3. The affirmative defense that a claimant cannot simultaneously recover damages based on two different liability findings if the injury is the same for both claims, thus creating a double recovery. Cf. alternative relief under RELIEF.

ELECTION OF SPECIES

election of species.See ELECTION(4).

ELECTION PETITION

election petition.English law. A petition for inquiry into the validity of a Parliament member's election, when the member's return is allegedly invalid for bribery or other reason.

ELECTION RETURNS

election returns.The report made to the board of canvassers or the election board, by those charged with tallying votes, of the number of votes cast for a particular candidate or proposition. [Cases: Elections 126(7), 246. C.J.S. Elections § 119(1).]

ELECTIVE FRANCHISE

elective franchise.See FRANCHISE(1).

ELECTIVE OFFICE

elective office. An office that is filled by popular election rather than by appointment.

ELECTIVE SHARE

elective share. Wills & estates. The percentage of a deceased spouse's estate, set by statute, that a surviving spouse (or sometimes a child) may choose to receive instead of taking under a will or in the event of being unjustifiably disinherited. — Also termed forced share; statutory share; statutory forced share. See RIGHT OF ELECTION. [Cases: Wills 778–803. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1841–1879.]

“In many states today, common-law dower and curtesy have been wholly replaced by statutes that make the surviving spouse an ‘heir’ of the deceased spouse and fix a minimum percentage of the decedent's estate (real and personal) to which the survivor will be entitled regardless of efforts of the deceased spouse to prevent it by will. This statutory minimum — called the statutory forced share — is typically an estate in fee simple, not merely a life estate. A serious disadvantage to the surviving spouse under many of these statutes, however, is that the minimum percentage applies only to property owned by the decedent at death. Both husbands and wives can, under such statutes, defeat their spouses' forced shares by inter vivos transfer.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 37–38 (2d ed. 1984).

ELECTOR

elector. 1. A member of the electoral college chosen to elect the President and Vice President. — Also termed presidential elector. [Cases: United States 25. C.J.S. United States § 46.] 2. A voter. [Cases: Elections 59. C.J.S. Elections § 16.]

qualified elector. A legal voter; a person who meets the voting requirements for age, residency, and registration and who has the present right to vote in an election. See VOTER. [Cases: Elections 59–87. C.J.S. Elections §§ 15–19, 26, 28–29, 32.]

3. A person who chooses between alternative rights or claims. 4. Hist. The title of certain German princes who had a voice in electing the Holy Roman Emperors. • This office sometimes became hereditary and was connected with territorial possessions.

ELECTORAL COLLEGE

ELEGIT

elegit (⟨schwa⟩-lee-jit). [Latin “he has chosen”] Hist. A writ of execution (first given by 13 Edw., ch. 18) either upon a judgment for a debt or damages or upon the forfeiture of a recognizance taken in the king's court. • Under it, the defendant's goods and chattels were appraised and, except for plow beasts, delivered to the plaintiff to satisfy the debt. If the goods were not sufficient to pay the debt, then the moiety of the defendant's freehold lands held at the time of judgment was also delivered to the plaintiff, to hold until the debt was satisfied out of rents and profits or until the defendant's interest expired. During this period the plaintiff was called tenant by elegit, and the estate an estate by elegit. The writ was abolished in England in 1956, and it is no longer used anywhere in the United States.

ELEMENT

element.1. A constituent part of a claim that must be proved for the claim to succeed <Burke failed to prove the element of proximate cause in prosecuting his negligence claim>.2.Patents. A discretely claimed component of a patent claim. • For a prior-art reference to anticipate a claim, it must teach each and every claim element. To recover for patent infringement, the plaintiff must prove that the accused product infringes every element of at least one claim, either literally or under the doctrine of equivalents. — Also termed (in sense 2) limitation. See DOCTRINE OF EQUIVALENTS. [Cases: Patents 101(1). C.J.S. Patents §§ 140–142.]

ELEMENTAL FACT

elemental fact.See ultimate fact under FACT.

ELEMENTS OF CRIME

EMBARGO

embargo,n.1. A government's wartime or peacetime detention of an offending nation's private ships found in the ports of the aggrieved nation <the President called off the embargo of Iraq's ships after the war ended>. — Also spelled imbargo. — Also termed hostile embargo. [Cases: War and National Emergency 12. C.J.S. War and National Defense §§ 8, 13, 16–22, 84–85.]

“A hostile embargo is a kind of reprisal by one nation upon vessels within its ports belonging to another nation with which a difference exists, for the purpose of forcing it to do justice. If this measure should be followed by war, the vessels are regarded as captured, if by peace, they are restored.” Theodore D. Woolsey, Introduction to the Study of International Law § 118, at 187 (5th ed. 1878).

2. A nation's detention of all ships in its own ports, including its own, to promote safety and to preclude transportation to an offending nation <the embargo of all U.S. ships traveling to Iraq remained in effect until hostilities subsided>. — Also termed civil embargo.“A civil embargo may be laid for the purpose of national welfare or safety, as for the protection of commercial vessels against the rules of belligerent powers which would expose them to capture. Such was the measure adopted by the United States in December 1807, which detained in port all vessels except those which had a public commission, and those that were already laden or should sail in ballast. The right to adopt such a measure of temporary non-intercourse is undoubted.” Theodore D. Woolsey, Introduction to the Study of International Law § 118, at 187 (5th ed. 1878).

A body of diplomatic representatives headed by an ambassador; a diplomatic mission on the ambassadorial level. 3. The mission, business, and function of an ambassador. Cf. LEGATION. [Cases: Ambassadors and Consuls 3. C.J.S. Ambassadors and Consuls §§ 15–23.]

EMBER DAYS

Ember Days.Eccles. law. The days — which the ancient church fathers called quatuor tempora jejunii — that are observed on the Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday following (1) Quadragesima Sunday (the first Sunday in Lent), (2) Whitsuntide, or Holyrood Day, in September, and (3) St. Lucy's day, about the middle of December. • Almanacs refer to the weeks in which these days fall as Ember Weeks; they are now chiefly noticed because, by tradition, the Sundays following Ember Days are used to ordain priests and deacons, although the canon law allows bishops to ordain on any Sunday or holiday.

EMBEZZLEMENT

embezzlement,n. The fraudulent taking of personal property with which one has been entrusted, esp. as a fiduciary. • The criminal intent for embezzlement — unlike larceny and false pretenses — arises after taking possession (not before or during the taking). — Also termed defalcation; peculation. See LARCENY; FALSE PRETENSES. [Cases: Embezzlement 1.C.J.S. Embezzlement §§ 2–3, 5.] — embezzle,vb. — embezzler,n.

“Embezzlement is not a common-law crime. It is the result of legislative efforts to make provision for an unreasonable gap which appeared in the law of larceny as it developed. Under the early English statute embezzlement was made a misdemeanor, but under most modern American statutes it is either a felony or a misdemeanor depending upon the value of the property converted.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 351 (3d ed. 1982).

“Embezzlement can be defined as the fraudulent conversion of the property of another by one who has lawful possession of the property and whose fraudulent conversion has been made punishable by the statute.” Arnold H. Loewy, Criminal Law in a Nutshell 94 (2d ed. 1987).

EMBLEM

emblem.1. A flag, armorial bearing, or other symbol of a country, organization, or movement. 2. Loosely, something that is used to symbolize something else.

EMBLEMATA TRIBONIANI emblemata Triboniani (em-blee-m<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>> tr<<schwa>>-boh-nee-ay-n I). [Latin] Roman law. Alterations, modifications, and additions to the writings of the older jurists that were combined to form the Digest or Pandects, and generally termed interpolations. •

Justinian appointed a commission over which Tribonian presided to harmonize contradictions, delete obsolete matter, and bring the law up to date. This term is considered old-fashioned by modern Romanists. See INTERPOLATION(2).

EMBLEMENTS

emblems (em-bl<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>nts).1. The growing crop annually produced by labor, as opposed to a crop occurring naturally. • Emblems are considered personal property that the executor or administrator of a deceased tenant may harvest and take regardless of who may have since occupied the land. — Also termed fructus industriales. [Cases: Crops 1. C.J.S. Crops §§ 1–5, 9.] 2. The tenant's right to harvest and take away such crops after the tenancy has ended. [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 139(2). C.J.S. Landlord and Tenant § 349.]

“At common law those products of the earth which are annual, and are raised by yearly manurance and labor, and essentially owe their annual existence to the cultivation by man, [are] termed ‘emblems’ and sometimes ‘fructus industriales.’ ” Sparrow v. Pond, 52 N.W. 36, 36 (Minn. 1892).

“The law of emblems has its origin and matrix, in the privilege, recognized at least as early as the fifteenth century, of the tenant for an uncertain term, to harvest and remove, even after the tenancy had terminated, the annual crop, which he had planted and nurtured.” Ray Andrews Brown, The Law of Personal Property § 159, at 806 (2d ed. 1955).

EMBLERS DE GENTZ

emblers de gentz (em-bl<<schwa>>rz d<<schwa>> jents). [Law French] A theft from the people. • The phrase occurs in the old English rolls of Parliament — for example, “Whereas divers murders, emblers de gentz, and robberies are committed...”

EMBODIED TECHNOLOGY

EMBODIMENT

embodiment. Patents. 1. The tangible manifestation of an invention. [Cases: Patents 99. C.J.S. Patents § 139.] 2. The method for using this tangible form. 3. The part of a patent application or patent that describes a concrete manifestation of the invention. • Embodiments are less common in software or process patents than in manufacturing-related patents.

EMBOSSSED SEAL

embossed seal. See NOTARY SEAL.

EMBRACE

embrace, vb. To attempt to influence (a judge or juror) by corruption, or to behave in a way that might have a corrupting influence on a judge or juror; to engage in embracery.

EMBRACEE

embracee (em-bray-see). The bribe-taker in the offense of embracery.

EMBRACER

embracer (im-brays-<<schwa>>r). [fr. Old French embraseor “one who kindles or instigates,” fr. embraser “to set fire to”] The bribe-giver in the offense of embracery; one who attempts to influence a judge or a juror by means of corruption. — Also spelled embraceor.

EMBRACERY

embracery (im-brays-<<schwa>>-ree), n. The attempt to corrupt or wrongfully influence a judge or juror, esp. by threats or bribery. — Also spelled imbracery. — Also termed jury-tampering; laboring a jury. Cf. JURY-FIXING; JURY-PACKING. [Cases: Criminal Law 45.35.]

“The word ‘embracery’ ... has tended to disappear. It is included in some of the codes but the tendency has been to divide this common-law offense into two parts, placing that which is appropriate thereto in sections on bribery and the remainder in provisions dealing with obstruction of justice.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 552 (3d ed. 1982).

EMBRYO

embryo (em-bree-oh). A developing but unborn or unhatched animal; esp., an unborn human from conception until the development of organs (i.e., until about the eighth week of pregnancy). Cf. FETUS; ZYGOTE.

embryo formatus (for-may-t<<schwa>>s).Eccles. law. A human embryo organized into human shape and endowed with a soul. • Though rejected in the early doctrine of the Christian church, the distinction between the embryo formatus and informatus was accepted by Gratian (regarded as the founder of canon law) in his Decretum (ca. 1140), in which he said that abortion is not murder if the fetus has not yet been infused with a soul. Though he did not specify the time of formation or animation, by the 16th century canonists accepted that the time of formation and animation was the 40th day after conception for the male fetus and the 80th day for the female. — Also termed embryo animatus.

embryo informatus (in-for-may-t<<schwa>>s).Eccles. law. A human embryo before it has been endowed with a soul. — Also termed embryo inanimatus.

EMBRYO ADOPTION

embryo adoption. See ADOPTION.

EMERGENCY COURT OF APPEALS

Emergency Court of Appeals.Hist. A temporary court, established during World War II, whose purpose was to review wage- and price-control matters. • The court was created in 1942 and abolished in 1962. Cf. TEMPORARY EMERGENCY COURT OF APPEALS . [Cases: War and National Emergency 108, 206.]

EMERGENCY DOCTRINE

emergency doctrine.1. A legal principle exempting a person from the ordinary standard of reasonable care if that person acted instinctively to meet a sudden and urgent need for aid. — Also termed imminent-peril doctrine; sudden-emergency doctrine; sudden-peril doctrine. [Cases: Negligence 291. C.J.S. Negligence §§ 69–73.] 2. A legal principle by which consent to medical treatment in a dire situation is inferred when neither the patient nor a responsible party can consent but a reasonable person would do so. — Also termed (in sense 2) emergency-treatment doctrine. Cf. GOOD SAMARITAN DOCTRINE ; RESCUE DOCTRINE. [Cases: Health 909.] 3. The principle that a police officer may conduct a search without a warrant if the officer has probable cause and reasonably believes that immediate action is needed to protect life or property. — Also termed emergency exception. See exigent circumstances under CIRCUMSTANCE.

EMERGENCY-EMPLOYMENT DOCTRINE

EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS AND RESPONSE DIRECTORATE

Emergency Preparedness and Response Directorate. The division of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security responsible for coordinating relief and recovery efforts and for developing and coordinating plans to prevent terrorism and to minimize risks of danger from natural disasters. • The Directorate includes the Federal Emergency Management Agency and also coordinates efforts with the Strategic National Stockpile and the National Disaster Medical System from the Department of Health and Human Services, the Nuclear Incident Response Team from the Department of Energy, the Domestic Emergency Support Teams from the Department of Justice, the National Domestic Preparedness Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and state and local emergency responders. — Abbr. EPR.

EMERGENCY PROTECTIVE ORDER

emergency protective order. See PROTECTIVE ORDER.

EMERGENCY SEARCH

emergency search. See SEARCH.

EMERGENCY-TREATMENT DOCTRINE

emergency-treatment doctrine. See EMERGENCY DOCTRINE(2).

EMERITA

emerita. See EMERITUS.

EMERITUS

emeritus. An honorary title conferred on a former officer who has honorably retired, usu. after serving for an extended period well beyond the norm. • The term is loosely used as an adjective meaning “honored,” but it is not a synonym for “former,” “retired,” or “immediate past” (as in “immediate past president”). Pl. emeriti. Fem. emerita. Fem. pl. emeritae. See HONORARY.

EMIGRANT

emigrant (em-⟨schwa⟩-gr⟨schwa⟩nt), n. One who leaves his or her country for any reason with the intent to establish a permanent residence elsewhere. Cf. IMMIGRANT.

EMIGRANT AGENT

emigrant agent. See AGENT(2).

EMIGRATION

emigration (em-<<schwa>>-gray-sh<<schwa>>n), n. The act of leaving a country with the intent not to return and to reside elsewhere. Cf. IMMIGRATION. — emigrate, vb.

“Emigration is usually defined as the voluntary removal of an individual from his home State with the intention of residing abroad. However, not all emigration is voluntary; there sometimes exists forced emigration, even mass emigration. Emigration may also be due to flight for political reasons or expulsion. One then speaks of refugees or exiles.” Paul Weis, “Emigration,” in 2 Encyclopedia of Public International Law 76 (1995).

EMIGRÉ

émigré (em-<<schwa>>-gray or em-<<schwa>>-gray), n. [French] One who is forced to leave his or her country for political reasons. — Also spelled émigré.

EMINENCE

eminence (em-<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>nts). (usu. cap.) Eccles. law. An honorary title given to cardinals of the Catholic Church. • Until the pontificate of Urban VIII, cardinals were called illustrissimi and reverendissimi.

EMINENT DOMAIN

eminent domain. The inherent power of a governmental entity to take privately owned property, esp. land, and convert it to public use, subject to reasonable compensation for the taking. — Also (rarely) termed compulsory purchase; (in Scots law) compulsory surrender. See CONDEMNATION(2); EXPROPRIATION; TAKING(2). [Cases: Eminent Domain 1, 69. C.J.S. Eminent Domain §§ 2–3, 71–72, 198–199.]

“The term ‘eminent domain’ is said to have originated with Grotius, the seventeenth century legal scholar. Grotius believed that the state possessed the power to take or destroy property for the benefit of the social unit, but he believed that when the state so acted, it was obligated to compensate the injured property owner for his losses. Blackstone, too, believed that society had no general power to take the private property of landowners, except on the payment of a reasonable price. The just compensation clause of the fifth amendment to the Constitution was built upon this concept of a moral obligation to pay for governmental interference with private property.... No provision for the power of eminent domain appears in the federal Constitution. The Supreme Court, however, has said that the power of eminent domain is an incident of federal sovereignty and an ‘offspring of political necessity.’ The Court has also noted that the fifth amendment’s limitation on taking private property is a tacit recognition that the power to take private property exists.” John E. Nowak & Ronald D. Rotunda, Constitutional Law § 11.11, at 424–25 (4th ed. 1991) (quoting Bauman v. Ross, 167 U.S. 548, 574, 17 S.Ct. 966, 976 (1897)).

EMINENT DOMAIN CLAUSE

Eminent Domain Clause. The Fifth Amendment provision providing that private property cannot be taken for public use without just compensation. See TAKINGS CLAUSE. [Cases: Eminent Domain 70. C.J.S. Eminent Domain § 72.]

EMISSARY

EMIT

emit,vb. 1. To give off or discharge into the air <emit light>.2. To issue with authority <emit a new series of currency>. — emission,n.

EMOLUMENT

emolument (i-mol-y<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>nt), n. (usu. pl.) Any advantage, profit, or gain received as a result of one's employment or one's holding of office. [Cases: Officers and Public Employees 94. C.J.S. Officers and Public Employees §§ 130, 270–274, 286, 313–320.]

EMOLUMENT CLAUSE

Emolument Clause.The clause of the U.S. Constitution prohibiting titles of nobility and the acceptance of a gift, title, or other benefit from a foreign power. U.S. Const. art. I, § 9, cl. 8.

E-MONEY

EMOTIONAL ABUSE

emotional abuse.See ABUSE.

EMOTIONAL DISTRESS

emotional distress.A highly unpleasant mental reaction (such as anguish, grief, fright, humiliation, or fury) that results from another person's conduct; emotional pain and suffering. • Emotional distress, when severe enough, can form a basis for the recovery of tort damages. — Also termed emotional harm; mental anguish; mental distress; mental suffering. See INTENTIONAL INFLICTION OF EMOTIONAL DISTRESS; NEGLIGENT INFLICTION OF EMOTIONAL DISTRESS . Cf. mental cruelty under CRUELTY. [Cases: Damages 48–56.20. C.J.S. Damages §§ 94–104; Parent and Child § 344; Torts §§ 66–83.]

“Emotional distress passes under various names, such as mental suffering, mental anguish, mental or nervous shock, or the like. It includes all highly unpleasant mental reactions, such as fright, horror, grief, shame, humiliation, embarrassment, anger, chagrin, disappointment, worry, and nausea. It is only where it is extreme that the liability arises. Complete emotional tranquility is seldom attainable in this world, and some degree of transient and trivial emotional distress is a part of the price of living among people. The law intervenes only where the distress inflicted is so severe that no reasonable man could be expected to endure it. The intensity and the duration of the distress are factors to be considered in determining its severity. Severe distress must be proved; but in many cases the extreme and outrageous character of the defendant's conduct is in itself important evidence that the distress has existed.” Restatement (Second) of Torts § 46 cmt. j (1965).

EMOTIONAL HARM

emotional harm. See EMOTIONAL DISTRESS.

EMOTIONAL INCAPACITY

emotional incapacity. 1. The inability to control one's emotions or express appropriate emotions because of a mental disorder. 2. Hist. Evidence. (Of a witness) hostility or partiality rooted in bias, corruption, or interest. • At common law, an interested witness was not competent to testify on grounds of emotional incapacity. See State v. Craft, 41 So. 550, 551 (La. 1906).

EMOTIONAL INSANITY

emotional insanity. See INSANITY.

EMPANEL

empanel, vb. To swear in (a jury) to try an issue or case. — Also spelled impanel. [Cases: Jury 146. C.J.S. Juries §§ 492–493.] — empanelment, empaneling, n.

EMPANELED JURY

empaneled jury. See JURY.

EMPARNOURS

emparnours (em-pahr-n<<schwa>>rz), n. pl. [French] Hist. Persons who undertook lawsuits on behalf of others.

EMPEROR

emperor. 1. The title of the sovereign ruler of an empire. 2. The chief of a confederation of states of which kings are members. • The rulers of the Roman world adopted the designation emperor after the fall of the republic. The title was later assumed by those — including Napoleon — who claimed to be their successors in the Holy Roman Empire. The sovereigns of Japan and Morocco are often called emperors, as were, in Western speech, the former sovereigns of Turkey and China. The title denotes a power and dignity superior to that of a king. It appears to be the appropriate style of the executive head of a federal government constructed on the monarchial principle and comprising several distinct kingdoms or other quasi-sovereign states, as with the German empire from 1871 to 1918.

EMPHASIS ADDED

emphasis added. A citation signal indicating that the writer quoting another's words has italicized or otherwise emphasized some of them. — Also termed emphasis supplied.

EMPHYTEUSIS

emphyteusis (em-fi-t[y]oo-sis), n.[Greek "implanting"] Greek, Roman & civil law. A contract by which one person delivered to another (the emphyteuta) a tract of land, either in perpetuity or for a long period of time, in exchange for the obligation to cultivate the land and to pay annual rental. • In Roman law, the land was state-owned (ager vectigalis). In the 5th century, emphyteusis was officially recognized as distinct from ownership or a lease. The land's lessee or tenant, called an emphyteuta, had to bear any burdens imposed on the land. Although the emphyteusis was alienable, the owner had to consent to the sale. (Cf. SUPERFICIARIUS.) Unlike a usufruct, emphyteusis did not terminate with the death of the emphyteuta. Perpetual emphyteusis was abolished in the 18th century.

EMPHYTEUTA

emphyteuta (em-fi-t[y]oo-t<<schwa>>), n.[Latin] Roman & civil law. The person to whom an emphyteusis is granted; the lessee or tenant under a contract of emphyteusis. See FEE FARM.

EMPHYTEUTIC

emphyteutic (em-fi-t[y]oo-tik), adj.[Latin] Civil law. Founded on, growing out of, or having the character of an emphyteusis; held under an emphyteusis.

EMPIRE

empire. The dominion or jurisdiction of an emperor; the region over which an emperor's dominion extends.

EMPIRICAL

empirical (em-pir-i-k<<schwa>>l), adj. Of, relating to, or based on experience, experiment, or observation <the expert's theory was not supported by empirical data>. — Also termed empiric.

EMPLAZAMIENTO

emplazamiento (em-plah-zah-myen-toh), n.[Spanish] Spanish law. A summons; esp., a court-issued citation requiring the addressee to appear at a designated time and place.

EMPLOI

emploi (om-plwah), n.[French] French law. Equitable conversion. • When property covered by the régime dotal is sold, the purchaser must ensure that the sale proceeds are reinvested for the wife's benefit. See régime dotal under REGIME.

EMPLOY

employ,vb. 1. To make use of. 2. To hire. 3. To use as an agent or substitute in transacting business. 4. To commission and entrust with the performance of certain acts or functions or with the management of one's affairs.

EMPLOYEE

employee. A person who works in the service of another person (the employer) under an express or implied contract of hire, under which the employer has the right to control the details of work performance. — Also spelled employe. Cf. AGENT(1); INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR. [Cases: Master and Servant 1. C.J.S. Apprentices §§ 2, 11; Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 2–3, 6–12.]

borrowed employee. An employee whose services are, with the employee's consent, lent to another employer who temporarily assumes control over the employee's work. • Under the doctrine of respondeat superior, the borrowing employer is vicariously liable for the employee's acts. But the employer may also be entitled to assert immunity under workers'-compensation laws. — Also termed borrowed servant; loaned employee; loaned servant; employee pro hac vice; special employee. See RESPONDEAT SUPERIOR. [Cases: Master and Servant 301(4); Workers' Compensation 202. C.J.S. Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 197–200; Workmen's Compensation § 122.] probationary employee. A recently hired employee whose ability and performance are being evaluated during a trial period of employment.

statutory employee. Workers' compensation. An employee who is covered, or required to be covered, by the employer's workers'-compensation insurance and who therefore has no independent tort claim against the employer for unintentional injuries suffered on the job. See statutory employer under EMPLOYER. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 187. C.J.S. Workmen's Compensation §§ 121, 132.]

EMPLOYEE BENEFIT PLAN

defined-benefit plan. A plan established and maintained by an employer primarily to provide systematically for the payment of definitely determinable benefits to employees over a period of years, usu. for life, after retirement; any pension plan that is not a defined-contribution plan. • Retirement benefits under a defined-benefit plan are generally based on a formula that included such factors as years of service and compensation. If the trust funding the plan lacks sufficient assets to pay the promised benefits, ERISA requires the employer to cover the shortfall. 29 USCA § 1002(35). Cf. defined-contribution plan. [Cases: Pensions 28. C.J.S. Pensions and Retirement Plans and Benefits §§ 11–15.]

defined-contribution plan. Under ERISA, an employee retirement plan in which each participant has a separate account — funded by the employee's contributions and the employer's contributions (usu. in a preset amount) — and each participant's benefits are based solely on what has accumulated in the participant's account. 29 USCA § 1002(34). — Also termed defined-contribution pension plan; individual account plan. Cf. defined-benefit plan. [Cases: Pensions 28. C.J.S. Pensions and Retirement Plans and Benefits §§ 11–15.]

disability retirement plan. 1. A plan that is invoked when a covered person is disabled from working to normal retirement age. 2. A plan that provides increased benefits if a person retires because of a disability. [Cases: Pensions 28. C.J.S. Pensions and Retirement Plans and Benefits §§ 11–15.]

employee-stock-ownership plan. A type of profit-sharing plan that invests primarily in the employer's stock. • Employee-stock-ownership plans receive special tax benefits and can borrow money to fund employee stock purchases, which makes them a useful corporate finance tool. IRC (26 USCA) § 4975(e)(7). — Abbr. ESOP. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3578, 4297. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 294–295, 302–304.]

excess-benefit plan. An employee benefit plan maintained by an employer solely for the purpose of providing benefits for certain employees in excess of limitations on contributions and benefits imposed by the Internal Revenue Code. 29 USCA § 1002(36). [Cases: Pensions 28. C.J.S. Pensions and Retirement Plans and Benefits §§ 11–15.]

401(k) plan. A retirement and savings plan that allows an employee to elect to have a portion of his or her pretax salary contributed to a defined contribution plan. • Employers often match all or part of the employee's contributions. Employees usu. can choose investments from a list of options. IRC (26 USCA) § 401(k). [Cases: Internal Revenue 3575. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 160, 291, 299, 306, 327.]

403(b) plan. A retirement plan for employees of public educational systems and certain tax-exempt organizations that is funded by pretax employee contributions much like a 401(k) plan, but may also provide for employer contributions. IRC (26 USCA) § 403(b). — Also termed tax-sheltered annuity; tax-deferred annuity. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3587. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 313.]

457 plan. A type of deferred-compensation plan for employees of state and local governments and tax-exempt organizations that operates much like a 401(k) plan, but (except for governmental plans) is unfunded. IRC (26 USCA) § 457.

governmental plan. Under ERISA, an employee benefit plan established or maintained for its employees by the federal government, state or local governments, or their agencies or instrumentalities. 29 USCA § 1002(32). • If a collective-bargaining agreement between a labor union and a governmental entity includes a benefit plan, that plan may be a governmental plan if it is funded by and covers only employees of the governmental entity. — Also termed governmental employee benefit plan; government plan.

individual account plan. See defined-contribution plan.

Keogh plan. See KEOGH PLAN.

money-purchase plan. A defined-contribution plan that provides for mandatory employer contributions without regard to employer profits. • Contributions are frequently stated as a percentage of employee compensation. [Cases: Pensions 28. C.J.S. Pensions and Retirement Plans and Benefits §§ 11–15.]

nonqualified deferred-compensation plan. An unfunded compensation arrangement, frequently offered to executives, that defers compensation and the recognition of its accompanying taxable income to a later date. • It is termed “nonqualified” because it does not qualify for favorable tax treatment under IRC (26 USCA) § 401(a). The plan avoids the restrictions on qualified plans, esp. the limits on contributions and benefits and rules against discrimination in favor of highly compensated employees. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3596.]

pension plan. See PENSION PLAN.

profit-sharing plan. See PROFIT-SHARING PLAN.

qualified plan. 1. See qualified pension plan under PENSION PLAN. 2. See qualified profit-sharing plan under PROFIT-SHARING PLAN.

retirement plan. An employee benefit plan — such as a pension plan or Keogh plan — provided by an employer (or a self-employed person) for an employee's retirement. [Cases: Pensions 28. C.J.S. Pensions and Retirement Plans and Benefits §§ 11–15.]

SIMPLE plan. An arrangement under which an individual retirement account or annuity is established for each eligible employee and funded by elective pretax employee contributions, much as with a 401(k) plan, and certain matching or minimum employer contributions. • The plan can be attractive to employers because it is easier to administer than a 401(k) plan. The name is a loose acronym for “Savings Incentive Match Plan for Employees.” IRC (26 USCA) § 408(p).

simplified employee pension plan. An arrangement under which an individual retirement account or annuity is established for each eligible employee and funded by discretionary employer contributions. IRC (26 USCA) § 408(k). • A simplified employee pension plan operates much like a 401(k) plan, in that the employee contributions can be made by deferred compensation and the employer can contribute. But the plan is attractive to small employers because it is much easier to administer than a 401(k) plan and gives the employer complete discretion on whether to make an annual contribution. IRC (26 USCA) § 408(k). — Abbr. SEP or SEP-IRA. [Cases: Pensions 28. C.J.S. Pensions and Retirement Plans and Benefits §§ 11–15.] split-funded plan. A retirement plan combining elements of both life-insurance and investment plans.

target benefit plan. A money-purchase plan that sets a “target” benefit for each participant and mandates employer contributions determined by an actuarial cost method designed to fund the target benefit.

welfare plan. Under ERISA, any plan, fund, or program established or maintained by an employer or an employee organization for the purpose of providing to participants or their beneficiaries any number of potential benefits: medical, surgical, or hospital care or benefits; benefits in the event of sickness, accident, disability, death, or unemployment; vacation benefits; apprenticeship or other training programs; daycare centers; scholarship funds; prepaid legal services; or holiday and severance benefits. 29 USCA § 1002(1).

EMPLOYEE GIVEBACKS

employee givebacks. See CONCESSION BARGAINING.

EMPLOYEE-LIABILITY EXCLUSION

employee-liability exclusion. See EXCLUSION(3).

EMPLOYEE PRO HAC VICE

employee pro hac vice. See borrowed employee under EMPLOYEE.

EMPLOYEE RETIREMENT INCOME SECURITY ACT

Employee Retirement Income Security Act. A federal statute that regulates private pension plans and employee benefit plans and that established the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation. 29 USCA §§ 1001 et seq. — Abbr. ERISA. [Cases: Pensions 21–23. C.J.S. Insurance § 34; Pensions and Retirement Plans and Benefits §§ 7–10.]

“ERISA was adopted in 1974 in response to highly publicized instances of fraud and mismanagement in employee pension funds, which had resulted in thousands of workers losing retirement benefits accumulated over a lifetime of work. ERISA was intended primarily as an instrument for regulating pensions, as its title suggests, and most of its substantive provisions address protection of retirement benefits. ERISA also, however, applies to employee welfare benefit plans, and thus covers employer provided health insurance, the dominant vehicle for private finance of health care in the United States.” Barry R. Furrow et al., Health Law § 2–9, at 48 (2d ed. 2000).

EMPLOYEE STOCK OPTION

employee stock option. See STOCK OPTION(2).

EMPLOYEE-STOCK-OWNERSHIP PLAN

employee-stock-ownership plan. See EMPLOYEE BENEFIT PLAN.

EMPLOYEE'S WITHHOLDING ALLOWANCE CERTIFICATE

Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate. See W-4 FORM.

EMPLOYER

employer. A person who controls and directs a worker under an express or implied contract of hire and who pays the worker's salary or wages. Cf. PRINCIPAL(1). [Cases: Master and Servant

 1. C.J.S. Apprentices §§ 2, 11; Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 2–3, 6–12.]

equal-opportunity employer. An employer who agrees not to discriminate against any job applicant or employee on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, natural origin, age, or disability. — Abbr. EOE. [Cases: Civil Rights 1101. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 22, 26–27, 30–31, 33–34, 37, 41–42, 67.]

general employer. An employer who transfers an employee to another employer for a limited period. See borrowed employee under EMPLOYEE.

special employer. An employer who has borrowed an employee for a limited period and has temporary responsibility for and control over the employee's work.

statutory employer. Workers' compensation. One who employs a statutory employee. See statutory employee under EMPLOYEE. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 187. C.J.S. Workmen's Compensation §§ 121, 132.]

EMPLOYER–EMPLOYEE RELATIONSHIP

employer–employee relationship. See RELATIONSHIP.

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY

employers' liability. See WORKERS' COMPENSATION.

EMPLOYERS'-LIABILITY INSURANCE

employers'-liability insurance. See INSURANCE.

EMPLOYMENT

employment. 1. The relationship between master and servant. See MASTER AND SERVANT . 2. The act of employing. 3. The state of being employed. 4. Work for which one has been hired and is being paid by an employer.

casual employment. Work that is occasional, irregular, or for a short time.

employment at will. Employment that is usu. undertaken without a contract and that may be terminated at any time, by either the employer or the employee, without cause. — Also termed at-will employment; hiring at will. [Cases: Master and Servant 20. C.J.S. Apprentices § 10; Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 40, 42–43.]

“Surprisingly, the employment at will doctrine is not an ancient one. On the contrary, it dates only from the period in the mid-nineteenth century that saw the transformation of the employment relation from one of status to one of contract. The relentless logic of the contract approach dictated the rule that the employee had only such rights as were expressly agreed to in his contract of employment — no more and no less. This meant that there was no implication that an indefinite hiring would last for a year or any other presumed period, since if the parties had wanted a particular term they would have expressly agreed to it.” 1 Lex K. Larson, Unjust Dismissal § 1.01, at 1–3 (1992).

“The doctrine of employment at will prescribed that an employee without a contract for a fixed term could be hired or fired for any reason or no reason at all.... [The] rule provided that employees categorized as ‘at will’ had no legal interest in continuing job security. Whereas early American masters had some responsibility to the public as well as to their servants when they turned dependent servants out on the world, under [this] formulation, masters could simply fire employees who had no contracts.” Mark A. Rothstein et al., Employment Law § 1.4, at 9–10 (1994).

gainful employment. Work that a person can pursue and perform for money.

hazardous employment. High-risk work; work involving extra peril. • In the context of workers' compensation, hazardous employment often requires an employer to carry workers'-compensation coverage or its equivalent, regardless of the number of employees.

joint employment. A job in which the essential terms and conditions of the employee's work are controlled by two or more entities, as when a company hires a contractor to perform a task and retains control over the contractor's employees in matters such as hiring, firing, discipline, conditions of employment, promulgation of work rules, assignment of day-to-day job duties, and issuance of operating instructions.

permanent employment. Work that, under a contract, is to continue indefinitely until either party wishes to terminate it for some legitimate reason.

seasonal employment. An occupation possible only during limited parts of the year, such as a summer-camp counselor, a baseball-park vendor, or a shopping-mall Santa.

EMPLOYMENT AGENCY

employment agency. A business that procures, for a fee, employment for others and employees for employers. • Whether the employer or the employee pays the fee depends on the terms of the agreement. See FINDER(1). [Cases: Labor Relations 17. C.J.S. Kidnapping § 25; Labor Relations § 19.]

EMPLOYMENT AND TRAINING ADMINISTRATION

Employment and Training Administration. A unit in the U.S. Department of Labor responsible for developing plans for training dislocated and unemployed workers, including young people and those who are disabled; and for interpreting federal workforce-security laws as they apply to the states.

EMPLOYMENT CONTRACT

employment contract. See CONTRACT.

EMPLOYMENT-PRACTICES-LIABILITY INSURANCE

employment-practices-liability insurance. See INSURANCE.

EMPLOYMENT-RELATED-PRACTICES EXCLUSION

employment-related-practices exclusion. See EXCLUSION(3).

EMPLOYMENT STANDARDS ADMINISTRATION

Employment Standards Administration. A unit in the U.S. Department of Labor responsible for administering various laws and programs pertaining to minimum-wage and overtime standards, registration of farm-labor contractors, wage rates to be paid and the nondiscrimination and affirmative-action programs to be followed by government contractors and subcontractors, workers'-compensation programs for federal and certain private employers, financial integrity and the internal organizational practices of labor unions, and certification of employee protection for federally sponsored transportation programs. • The Administration operates through four divisions that have regional offices or administrators in various cities: the Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs, the Wage and Hour Division, the Office of Labor-Management Standards, and the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs. — Abbr. ESA.

EMPORIUM

emporium (em-por-ee-*<<schwa>>*m), n.1. A place for wholesale trade in commodities carried by sea. • The term is sometimes applied to a seaport town, but properly signifies only a particular place in such a town. 2. An important marketplace. 3. A large retail store that sells a wide variety of goods.

EMPRESARIO

empresario (em-pre-sahr-ee-oh), n.[Spanish] 1.Spanish law. A businessperson; one who invests in or manages a business; esp., a land developer. 2.Hist. A person receiving extensive land grants as consideration for bringing people into Mexico (esp. into what would become Texas) and settling them on the land for the purpose of increasing the population, developing the country's resources, and controlling the aboriginal peoples.

EMPTIO

emptio (emp-shee-oh), n.[Latin "purchase"] Roman & civil law. The act of buying; a purchase. — Also spelled emtio. Pl. emptiones.

emptio bonorum (b*<<schwa>>-nor-<<schwa>>*m). [Latin "purchase of goods"] A type of forced assignment for the benefit of creditors, involving a public sale of an insolvent debtor's estate whereby the purchaser succeeded to all the debtor's property, rights, and claims, and became responsible for the debtor's debts and liabilities to an extent fixed before the transfer.

emptio et venditio (et ven-dish-ee-oh). [Latin "purchase and sale"] A contract of sale. • The double name reflects that both the buyer and seller had duties and rights in the transaction. In Roman law, agreement on the thing to be sold and its price were essential. The buyer could enforce the contract by actio empti, and the seller could enforce by actio venditi. — Also termed emptio venditio. See VENDITIO.

emptio rei facta a pluribus ementibus (ree-Ifak-t*<<schwa>>* ay pluur-<<schwa>>-b*<<schwa>>s i-men-t<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>*s). [Latin] Hist. A purchase made by many buyers. La. Civ. Code art. 2450. • An emptio rei facta a pluribus ementibus did not automatically create a partnership among the purchasers.

emptio rei speratae (ree-I sp<<schwa>>-ray-tee). [Latin “purchase of a hoped-for thing”] The purchase of a thing not yet in existence or not yet in the seller's possession; e.g., a future crop. La. Civ. Code art. 2451. • The price of such a purchase typically depended on the actual yield and thus could fluctuate.

emptio spei (spee-I). [Latin “purchase of a hope”] An emptio rei speratae in which the price is fixed, regardless of actual gain. • Even if the future event, such as the casting of a net, produced nothing, the buyer had to pay.

emptio venditio. See emptio et venditio.

EMPTOR

emptor (emp-tor or -t<<schwa>>r), n. [Latin] Civil law. A buyer; purchaser. — Also spelled emtor. Pl. emptores. See caveat emptor under CAVEAT.

EMPTOR FAMILIAE emptor familiae. See FAMILIAE EMPTOR.

EMPTRIX

emptrix (em[p]-tr<<schwa>>ks), n. [Latin] Civil law. A female buyer. — Also spelled emtrix. Pl. emptrices.

EMPTY-CHAIR DEFENSE

empty-chair defense. A trial tactic in a multiparty case whereby one defendant attempts to put all the fault on a defendant who plea-bargained or settled before trial or on a person who was neither charged nor named as a party.

EMPTY-CHAIR DOCTRINE

empty-chair doctrine. See ADVERSE-INTEREST RULE.

EMTIO

emtio. See EMPTIO.

EMTOR

emtor. See EMPTOR.

EMTRIX

emtrix. See EMPTRIX.

ENABLE

enable, vb. To give power to do something; to make able.

enablement.Patents. The disclosure in a patent application; specif., the description of the subject matter clear and complete enough to teach a person with ordinary skill in the art how to make and use the invention. • If the artisan would still be unable to work the invention without undue experimentation after reading the description — in light of the information known in the art as of the filing date of the patent application — the patent application will be rejected for lack of enablement. 35 USCA § 112. Cf. NONENABLEMENT. [Cases: Patents 99. C.J.S. Patents § 139.]

ENABLEMENT BY DEPOSIT

enablement by deposit.See DEPOSIT(6).

ENABLEMENT REQUIREMENT

enablement requirement.Patents. The rule that the specification of a patent application must describe the invention so that a person with ordinary skill in the art could make and use the invention without undue experimentation. • A specification that meets this requirement is referred to as enabling. Cf. ENABLING SOURCE. [Cases: Patents 99. C.J.S. Patents § 139.]

ENCROACHMENT

encroachment, n. 1. An infringement of another's rights. 2. An interference with or intrusion onto another's property <the court remedied the encroachment by ordering the defendant to cut down the tree limb hanging over the plaintiff's yard>. — Formerly also spelled incroachment. See TRESPASS. [Cases: Trespass 12. C.J.S. Trespass § 13.]

encumbrance, n. A claim or liability that is attached to property or some other right and that may lessen its value, such as a lien or mortgage; any property right that is not an ownership interest. • An encumbrance cannot defeat the transfer of possession, but it remains after the property or right is transferred. — Also spelled incumbrance. [Cases: Mortgages 1; Secured Transactions 1. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 2–6; Secured Transactions §§ 3, 7–9, 23, 37.] — encumber, vb.

“Encumbrances are not confined to the law of property, but pertain to the law of obligations also. Choses in action may be mortgaged, settled in trust, or otherwise made the subject-matter of jura in re aliena, no less than land and chattels.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 435–36 n.(k) (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

“ ‘Encumbrance’ means a right, other than an ownership interest, in real property. The term includes a mortgage or other lien on real property.” UCC § 9-102(a)(32).

mesne encumbrance (meen). An intermediate encumbrance; an encumbrance that first occurred both earlier and later than other encumbrances.

entitle, vb. 1. To grant a legal right to or qualify for. 2. Eccles. law. To ordain as a minister. — Formerly also spelled intitle.

ENTITLEMENT

entitlement. An absolute right to a (usu. monetary) benefit, such as social security, granted immediately upon meeting a legal requirement. [Cases: Social Security and Public Welfare 4.10. C.J.S. Social Security and Public Welfare §§ 11, 18.]

ENTITY

entity. An organization (such as a business or a governmental unit) that has a legal identity apart from its members.

corporate entity. A corporation's status as an organization existing independently of its shareholders. • As a separate entity, a corporation can, in its own name, sue and be sued, lend and borrow money, and buy, sell, lease, and mortgage property. [Cases: Corporations 1.3. C.J.S. Corporations § 8.]

public entity. A governmental entity, such as a state government or one of its political subdivisions.

ENTITY ASSUMPTION

entity assumption. The presumption that a business is a unit separate from its owners and from other firms. [Cases: Corporations 1.3. C.J.S. Corporations § 8.]

ENTITY THEORY OF PARTNERSHIP

entity theory of partnership. The theory that a partnership is an entity with a legal existence apart from the partners who make it up. • Under the Uniform Partnership Act, “[a] partnership is an entity distinct from its partners.” UPA § 201 (1994). Cf. AGGREGATE THEORY OF PARTNERSHIP. [Cases: Partnership 63. C.J.S. Partnership § 68.]

ENTRAPMENT

entrapment, n. 1. A law-enforcement officer's or government agent's inducement of a person to commit a crime, by means of fraud or undue persuasion, in an attempt to later bring a criminal prosecution against that person. [Cases: Criminal Law 37. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 58.] 2. The affirmative defense of having been so induced. • To establish entrapment (in most states), the defendant must show that he or she would not have committed the crime but for the fraud or undue persuasion. — entrap, vb.

derivative entrapment. Entrapment in which the government uses a private person, acting either as an agent of the government or as an unwitting participant, to induce the subject of the entrapment to commit a crime. [Cases: Criminal Law 37(5). C.J.S. Criminal Law § 61.]

objective entrapment. Entrapment as judged by focusing on egregious law-enforcement conduct, not on the defendant's predisposition.

sentencing entrapment. Entrapment of a defendant who is predisposed to commit a lesser offense but who is unlawfully induced to commit a more serious offense that carries a more severe sentence. — Also termed sentence-factor manipulation.

ENTREBAT

entreat (on-tr<<schwa>>-ba), n. [Law French] An intruder or interloper.

ENTRY ON THE ROLL

entry on the roll. Hist. 1. A clerk's notation on a parchment roll of the proceedings and issues in a particular case. • Before parties began submitting written pleadings, they would appear (in person or through counsel) in open court and state their respective contentions orally until they settled on the issue or precise point in dispute. During the progress of these oral statements, an appointed officer of the court would make minutes of the various proceedings on a parchment roll that then became the official record of the suit. Even after the practice of oral pleadings had fallen into disuse, proceedings continued to be entered “on the roll.” This practice was abolished early in the 19th century. 2. A future interest created in a transferor who conveys an estate on condition subsequent.

ENUMERATE

enumerate (i-n[y]oo-m<<schwa>>-rayt), vb. To count off or designate one by one; to list. — enumeration, n.

enure. See INURE.

EN VENTRE SA MERE

en ventre sa mere (oni voin-tr<<schwa>> sa mair). [Law French “in utero”] (Of a fetus) in the mother's womb <child en ventre sa mere>. • This phrase refers to an unborn child, usu. in the context of a discussion of that child's rights. If the child is en ventre sa mere at the time of a decedent's death and is subsequently born alive, the child is treated as having been in existence at the time of the decedent's death for purposes of inheritance. — Also spelled in ventre sa mere. See VENTER.

“An infant in ventre sa mere, or in the mother's womb, is supposed in law to be born for many purposes.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 126 (1765).

EN VIE

en vie (onvee). [Law French “in life”] Alive.

ENVIRONMENTAL AUDIT

environmental audit. See AUDIT.

ENVIRONMENTAL CRIME

environmental crime. A statutory offense involving harm to the environment, such as a violation of the criminal provisions in the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1970, the Federal Water Pollution Control Act of 1972 (commonly called the Clean Water Act), or the Endangered Species Act of 1973. • Although the most significant environmental-crime statutes were passed in the 1970s, they date back to the late 19th century, with statutes such as the Pure Food and Drug Act of 1896 and the assorted statutes that ultimately became the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1899. — Also termed crime against the environment.

ENVIRONMENTAL CRIMINOLOGY

environmental criminology. See CRIMINOLOGY.

ENVIRONMENTAL EFFECT

environmental effect.Environmental law. A natural or artificial disturbance of the physical, chemical, or biological components that make up the environment.

ENVIRONMENTAL-IMPACT STATEMENT

environmental-impact statement.Environmental law. A document that the National Environmental Policy Act (42 USCA § 4332(2)(c)) requires a federal agency to produce for a major project or legislative proposal so that better decisions can be made about the positive and negative environmental effects of an undertaking. — Abbr. EIS. — Also termed environmental-impact report (EIR). [Cases: Environmental Law 571–615.]

ENVIRONMENTAL LAW

environmental law.The field of law dealing with the maintenance and protection of the environment, including preventive measures such as the requirements of environmental-impact statements, as well as measures to assign liability and provide cleanup for incidents that harm the environment. • Because most environmental litigation involves disputes with governmental agencies, environmental law is heavily intertwined with administrative law. [Cases: Environmental Law 1.]

ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY

Environmental Protection Agency.An independent federal agency in the executive branch responsible for setting pollution-control standards in the areas of air, water, solid waste, pesticides, radiation, and toxic materials; enforcing laws enacted to protect the environment; and coordinating the antipollution efforts of state and local governments. • The commission was created by Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1970. — Abbr. EPA. [Cases: Environmental Law 15.]

EQUAL ACCESS ACT OF 1984

Equal Access Act of 1984.A federal law that prohibits school districts receiving federal funds and allowing extracurricular activities to be held in its facilities from denying secondary-school students the right to meet for religious and other purposes in public-school facilities. 20 USCA § 4071. • The constitutionality of the Act was upheld in Board of Education of Westside Community Schools v. Mergens, 496 U.S. 226, 110 S.Ct. 2356 (1990).

EQUAL-ACCESS RULE

equal-access rule.Criminal law. The doctrine that contraband found on a defendant's premises will not support a conviction if other persons have the same access to the premises as the defendant. • To invoke this defense successfully, the defendant must show that other persons did in fact have equal access to the premises; speculative evidence that trespassers might have come onto the premises will not bar a conviction. [Cases: Controlled Substances 30.]

EQUAL ACCESS TO JUSTICE ACT

Equal Access to Justice Act. A 1980 federal statute that allows a prevailing party in certain actions against the government to recover attorney's fees and expert-witness fees. Pub. L. No. 96-481, title II, 94 Stat. 2325 (codified as amended in scattered sections of 5, 15, and 28 USCA). — Abbr. EAJA. [Cases: United States 147. C.J.S. United States §§ 193, 268–269.]

EQUAL AND UNIFORM TAXATION

equal and uniform taxation. See TAXATION.

EQUAL CREDIT OPPORTUNITY ACT

Equal Credit Opportunity Act. A federal statute that prohibits creditors from discriminating against credit applicants on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, age, sex, or marital status with respect to any aspect of a credit transaction. 15 USCA §§ 1691 et seq. — Abbr. ECOA. [Cases: Consumer Credit 31. C.J.S. Interest and Usury; Consumer Credit §§ 345–347.]

EQUAL DEGREE

equal degree. See DEGREE.

EQUAL-DIGNITIES RULE

equal-dignities rule. Agency. The doctrine that an agent can perform all acts requiring a writing signed by the principal only if the agent's authority is set forth in a writing. • This rule is an adjunct to the statute of frauds and applies when one or more of the signatories to a contract acted through an agent. [Cases: Principal and Agent 12. C.J.S. Agency § 43.]

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY COMMISSION

Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. An independent federal commission that investigates claims of employment discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, or age and enforces antidiscrimination statutes through lawsuits. • It was created by Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The EEOC encourages mediation and other nonlitigious means of resolving employment disputes. A claimant must file a charge of discrimination with the EEOC before pursuing a claim under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act and certain other employment-related statutes. — Abbr. EEOC. [Cases: Civil Rights 1503. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 159, 165.]

EQUAL-FOOTING DOCTRINE

equal-footing doctrine. The principle that a state admitted to the Union after 1789 enters with the same rights, sovereignty, and jurisdiction within its borders as did the original 13 states.

EQUALITY

equality. The quality or state of being equal; esp., likeness in power or political status. See EQUAL PROTECTION.

“We need not repeat the burning irony of Anatole France: ‘The law in its majesty draws no distinction but forbids rich and poor alike from begging in the streets or from sleeping in the public parks.’ Equality is meaningless under unequal conditions.” Morris R. Cohen, Reason and Law 101 (1961).

political equality. The sharing of governmental decisions in such a way that, in the setting of governmental policies, the preference of each citizen is assigned an equal value.

EQUALITY BEFORE THE LAW

equality before the law. The status or condition of being treated fairly according to regularly established norms of justice; esp., in British constitutional law, the notion that all persons are subject to the ordinary law of the land administered by the ordinary law courts, that officials and others are not exempt from the general duty of obedience to the law, that discretionary governmental powers must not be abused, and that the task of superintending the operation of law rests with an impartial, independent judiciary.

“A number of distinct meanings are normally given to the provision that there should be equality before the law. One meaning is that equality before the law only connotes the equal subjection of all to a common system of law, whatever its content.... A second theory asserts that equality before the law is basically a procedural concept, pertaining to the application and enforcement of laws and the operation of the legal system.... A third meaning normally borne by declarations that all are equal before the law, perhaps no more than a variant of the second, is that State and individual before the law should be equal.” Polyvios G. Polyviou, The Equal Protection of the Laws 1–2 (1980).

EQUALITY OF STATES

equality of states. Int'l law. The doctrine that all fully independent nations are equal under international law. • This doctrine does not, of course, mean that all nations are equal in power or influence, but merely that, as nations, they all have the same legal rights.

EQUALIZATION

equalization, n. 1. The raising or lowering of assessed values to achieve conformity. 2. Tax. The adjustment of an assessment or tax to create a rate uniform with another. — Also termed equalization of taxes; fair and proper legal assessment. [Cases: Taxation 446.5–450. C.J.S. Taxation §§ 621–641, 643, 724–725.]

EQUALIZATION BOARD

equalization board. A local governmental agency responsible for adjusting the tax rates in different districts to ensure an equitable distribution of the tax burden. — Also termed board of equalization. [Cases: Taxation 446.5–450. C.J.S. Taxation §§ 621–641, 643, 724–725.]

EQUALIZATION OF TAXES

equalization of taxes. See EQUALIZATION(2).

equalize,vb. To make equal; to cause to correspond or be the same in amount or degree.

EQUALLY DIVIDED

equally divided.1. (Of property) apportioned per capita — not per stirpes — among heirs on the testator's death. • A provision in a will calling for property to be divided “share and share alike” has the same effect. [Cases: Wills 530. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1015–1016.] 2. (Of a court, legislature, or other group) having the same number of votes on each side of an issue or dispute.

EQUAL-MANAGEMENT RULE

equal-management rule.The doctrine that each spouse alone may manage community property unless the law provides otherwise. Cf. HEAD-AND-MASTER RULE.

EQUAL-OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

equal-opportunity employer.See EMPLOYER.

EQUAL PAY ACT

Equal Pay Act.A federal law mandating that all who perform substantially the same work must be paid equally. 29 USCA § 206. [Cases: Labor Relations 1333. C.J.S. Labor Relations § 1184.]

equal protection.The 14th Amendment guarantee that the government must treat a person or class of persons the same as it treats other persons or classes in like circumstances. • In today's constitutional jurisprudence, equal protection means that legislation that discriminates must have a rational basis for doing so. And if the legislation affects a fundamental right (such as the right to vote) or involves a suspect classification (such as race), it is unconstitutional unless it can withstand strict scrutiny. — Also termed equal protection of the laws; equal protection under the law. See RATIONAL-BASIS TEST T; STRICT SCRUTINY. [Cases: Constitutional Law 209–250.5.C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 700–773, 775–912, 916–917, 919–944; Zoning and Land Planning § 23.]

“Equal protection does not require that all persons be dealt with identically, but it does require that a distinction made have some relevance to the purpose for which the classification is made.” Baxstrom v. Herold, 383 U.S. 107, 111, 86 S.Ct. 760, 763 (1966).

“As in all equal protection cases, ... the crucial question is whether there is an appropriate governmental interest suitably furthered by the differential treatment.” Police Dep't v. Mosley, 408 U.S. 92, 95, 92 S.Ct. 2286, 2290 (1972).

“[T]he equal protection principle is exclusively associated with written Constitutions and embodies guarantees of equal treatment normally applied not only to the procedural enforcement of laws but also to the substantive content of their provisions. In other words, the equal protection of the laws is invariably treated as a substantive constitutional principle which demands that laws will only be legitimate if they can be described as just and equal.” Polyvios G. Polyviou, The Equal Protection of the Laws 4 (1980).

EQUAL PROTECTION CLAUSE

Equal Protection Clause. The 14th Amendment provision requiring the states to give similarly situated persons or classes similar treatment under the law. Cf. DUE PROCESS CLAUSE. [Cases: Constitutional Law 209–250.5.C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 700–773, 775–912, 916–917, 919–944; Zoning and Land Planning § 23.]

EQUAL PROTECTION OF THE LAWS

equal protection of the laws. See EQUAL PROTECTION.

EQUAL PROTECTION UNDER THE LAW

equal protection under the law. See EQUAL PROTECTION.

EQUAL RIGHTS AMENDMENT

Equal Rights Amendment. A failed constitutional amendment that, had it been ratified, would have constitutionally prohibited sex-based discrimination. • Congress passed the Amendment in 1972, but it failed in 1982, having been ratified by only 35 of the required 38 states. — Abbr. ERA.

EQUAL-SHARES CLAUSE

equal-shares clause. Insurance. A clause requiring an insurer to pay its proportionate share of a claimed loss.

EQUAL TIME ACT

Equal Time Act. A federal law requiring that a broadcasting-facility licensee who permits a legally qualified candidate for public office to use the facility for broadcasting must afford an equal opportunity to all other candidates for the office. 47 USCA § 315. [Cases: Telecommunications 435. C.J.S. Telegraphs, Telephones, Radio, and Television §§ 178–179, 183–187.]

equitable disseisin.See DISSEISIN.

EQUITABLE DISTRIBUTION

equitable distribution.Family law. The division of marital property by a court in a divorce proceeding, under statutory guidelines that provide for a fair, but not necessarily equal, allocation of the property between the spouses. • With equitable distribution, when a marriage ends in divorce, property acquired during the marriage is divided equitably between the spouses regardless of who holds title to the property. The courts consider many factors in awarding property, including a spouse's monetary contributions, nonmonetary assistance to a spouse's career or earning potential, the efforts of each spouse during the marriage, and the length of the marriage. The court may take into account the relative earning capacity of the spouses and the fault of either spouse. Equitable distribution is applied in 47 states (i.e., all the states except California, Louisiana, and New Mexico, which are “equal division” community-property states). — Also termed equitable division; assignment of property. Cf. TITLE DIVISION; COMMUNITY PROPERTY. [Cases: Divorce 248. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 508–511, 580–582.]

EQUITABLE PARENT

equitable parent. See PARENT.

EQUITABLE-PARENT DOCTRINE

equitable-parent doctrine. Family law. The principle that a spouse who is not the biological parent of a child born or conceived during the marriage may, in a divorce action, be considered the child's natural father or mother if (1) the other spouse and the child both acknowledge a parent–child relationship, esp. when that other spouse has cooperated in the development of this relationship before the divorce action, (2) the nonbiologically related spouse wants parental rights, and (3) he or she is willing to take on the responsibility of paying support. • The doctrine sometimes applies to nonspousal partners as well. Very few jurisdictions apply the doctrine. See Carolee Kvorik Lezuch, Michigan's Doctrine of Equitable Parenthood, 45 Wayne L. Rev. 1529 (1999). — Also termed equitable-parenthood doctrine.

EQUITABLE RECOUPMENT

equitable recoupment. 1. Tax. A doctrine allowing a taxpayer to offset previously overpaid taxes against current taxes due, even though the taxpayer is time-barred from claiming a refund on the previous taxes. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4829.10. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 728, 738.]

2. Tax. A doctrine allowing the government to offset taxes previously uncollected from a taxpayer against the taxpayer's current claim for a refund, even though the government is time-barred from collecting the previous taxes. • In both senses, this type of recoupment can be asserted only if the statute of limitations has created an inequitable result. See RECOUPMENT(2). [Cases: Internal Revenue 4845. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 738.] 3. A principle that diminishes a party's right to recover a debt to the extent that the party holds money or property of the debtor to which the party has no right. • This doctrine is ordinarily a defensive remedy going only to mitigation of damages. The doctrine is sometimes applied so that a claim for a tax refund that is barred by limitations may nonetheless be recouped against a tax claim of the government. — Also termed equitable-recoupment doctrine. See SETOFF(2); RECOUPMENT(3). [Cases: Set-off and Counterclaim 6. C.J.S. Set-off and Counterclaim §§ 2, 11.]

EQUITABLE SUBROGATION

equitable subrogation. See legal subrogation under SUBROGATION.

EQUITABLE TITLE

equitable title. See TITLE(2).

EQUITABLE TOLLING

equitable tolling. 1. The doctrine that the statute of limitations will not bar a claim if the plaintiff, despite diligent efforts, did not discover the injury until after the limitations period had expired. • Equitable tolling does not require misconduct by the defendant. [Cases: Limitation of Actions 104.5. C.J.S. Limitations of Actions §§ 85–86, 121.] 2. The doctrine that if a plaintiff files a suit first in one court and then refiles in another, the statute of limitations does not run while the litigation is pending in the first court if various requirements are met. • Among those requirements are (1) timely notice to the defendant; (2) no prejudice to the defendant; and (3) reasonable and good-faith conduct on the part of the plaintiff.

EQUITABLE WASTE

equitable waste. See WASTE(1).

EQUITY

equity, n. 1. Fairness; impartiality; evenhanded dealing <the company's policies require managers to use equity in dealing with subordinate employees>. 2. The body of principles constituting what is fair and right; natural law <the concept of “inalienable rights” reflects the influence of equity on the Declaration of Independence>.

“In its popular sense it [equity] is practically equivalent to natural justice. But it would be a mistake to suppose that equity, as administered by the Courts, embraces a jurisdiction as wide and extensive as that which would result from carrying into operation all the principles of natural justice. There are many matters of natural justice wholly unprovided for, from the difficulty of framing any general rules to meet them, and from the doubtful wisdom of a policy of attempting to give a legal sanction to duties of imperfect obligation, such as charity, gratitude and kindness. A large proportion of natural justice in its widest sense is thus not judicially enforced, but is left to the conscience of each individual.” R.E. Megarry, Snell's Principles of Equity 1 (23d ed. 1947).

3. The recourse to principles of justice to correct or supplement the law as applied to particular circumstances <the judge decided the case by equity because the statute did not fully address the issue>. — Also termed natural equity. [Cases: Equity 1. C.J.S. Equity §§ 2–5, 7–8, 10.] 4. The system of law or body of principles originating in the English Court of Chancery and superseding the common and statute law (together called “law” in the narrower sense) when the two conflict <in appealing to the equity of the court, she was appealing to the “king's conscience”>; CHANCERY(2). “Equity is that system of justice which was developed in and administered by the High Court of Chancery in England in the exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction. This definition is rather suggestive than precise; and invites inquiry rather than answers it. This must necessarily be so. Equity, in its technical and scientific legal sense, means neither natural justice nor even all that portion of natural justice which is susceptible of being judicially enforced. It has, when employed in the language of English law, a precise, definite and limited signification, and is used to denote a system of justice which was administered in a particular court — the nature and extent of which system cannot be defined in a single sentence, but can be understood and explained only by studying the history of that court, and the principles upon which it acts. In order to begin to understand what equity is, it is necessary to understand what the English High Court of Chancery was, and how it came to exercise what is known as its extraordinary jurisdiction. Every true definition of equity must, therefore, be, to a greater or less extent, a history.” George T. Bispham, The Principles of Equity 1–2 (Joseph D. McCoy ed., 11th ed. 1931).

“In its technical sense, equity may ... be defined as a portion of natural justice which, although of a nature more suitable for judicial enforcement, was for historical reasons not enforced by the Common Law Courts, an omission which was supplied by the Court of Chancery. In short, the whole distinction between equity and law is not so much a matter of substance or principle as of form and history.” R.E. Megarry, Snell's Principles of Equity 2 (23d ed. 1947).

“The term ‘equity’ is an illustration of Mr. Towkington's proposition that some words have a legal meaning very unlike their ordinary one. In ordinary language ‘equity’ means natural justice; but the beginner must get that idea out of his head when dealing with the system that the lawyers call equity. Originally, indeed, this system was inspired by ideas of natural justice, and that is why it acquired its name; but nowadays equity is no more (and no less) natural justice than the common law, and it is in fact nothing else than a particular branch of the law of England. Equity, therefore, is law. The student should not allow himself to be confused by the lawyer's habit of contrasting ‘law’ and ‘equity,’ for in this context ‘law’ is simply an abbreviation for the common law. Equity is law in the sense that it is part of the law of England; it is not law only in the sense that it is not part of the common law.” Glanville Williams, Learning the Law 25–26 (11th ed. 1982).

5. A right, interest, or remedy recognizable by a court of equity <there was no formal contract formation, so they sued for breach in equity>. [Cases: Equity 1. C.J.S. Equity §§ 2–5, 7–8, 10.]

contravening equity (kon-tr<<schwa>>-veen-ing). A right or interest that is inconsistent with or contrary to a right sought to be enforced.

countervailing equity (kown-t<<schwa>>r-vayl-ing). A contrary and balancing equity, equally deserving of consideration.

latent equity (lay-t<<schwa>>nt). An equitable claim or right known only by the parties for and against whom it exists, or that has been concealed from one who is interested in the subject matter. — Also termed secret equity.

perfect equity. An equitable title or right that, to be a legal title, lacks only the formal conveyance or other investiture that would make it cognizable at law; esp., the equity of a real-estate purchaser who has paid the full amount due but has not yet received a deed.

secret equity. See latent equity.

6. The right to decide matters in equity; equity jurisdiction <the court decided that the wrong was egregious enough to ignore the statute of limitations and decide the case in equity>. [Cases: Equity 1. C.J.S. Equity §§ 2–5, 7–8, 10.] 7. The amount by which the value of or an interest in property exceeds secured claims or liens; the difference between the value of the property and all encumbrances upon it <thanks to the real-estate boom, the mortgaged house still had high equity>. — Also termed cushion. 8. An ownership interest in property, esp. in a business <the founders gave her equity in the business in return for all her help>. See OWNERS' EQUITY; BOOK EQUITY; MARKET EQUITY. 9. A share in a publicly traded company <he did not want to cash in his equity>.

EQUITY JURISPRUDENCE

equity jurisprudence. See JURISPRUDENCE.

EQUITY KICKER

equity kicker. See EQUITY PARTICIPATION.

EQUITY LOAN

equity loan. See home equity loan under LOAN.

EQUITY OF EXONERATION

equity of exoneration (eg-zon-<<schwa>>-ray-sh<<schwa>>n). The right of a person who is secondarily liable on a debt to make the primarily liable party discharge the debt or reimburse any payment that the secondarily liable person has made. • One example is the right of a surety to call on the principal for reimbursement after the surety has paid the debt. Unlike contribution, which exists when the parties are equally liable, the equity of exoneration exists when parties are successively liable. — Also termed right of exoneration. See EXONERATION.

EQUITY OF PARTNERS

equity of partners. The right of each partner to have the firm's property applied to the firm's debts. [Cases: Partnership 179. C.J.S. Partnership § 176.]

EQUITY OF REDEMPTION

equity of redemption. Real estate. The right of a mortgagor in default to recover property before a foreclosure sale by paying the principal, interest, and other costs that are due. • A defaulting mortgagor with an equity of redemption has the right, until the foreclosure sale, to reimburse the mortgagee and cure the default. In many jurisdictions, the mortgagor also has a statutory right to redeem within six months after the foreclosure sale, and the mortgagor becomes entitled to any surplus from the sale proceeds above the amount of the outstanding mortgage. — Also termed right of redemption. See CLOG ON THE EQUITY OF REDEMPTION; REDEMPTION(4); STATUTORY RIGHT OF REDEMPTION . [Cases: Mortgages 591, 600. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 57, 991, 993, 995, 998–999, 1005, 1040–1043, 1045–1046, 1065, 1068.]

“A mortgage is technically a conveyance of title to property as security for a debt. The law courts, with typical technicality, early adopted the rule that if the debt was not paid on the very day it was due, the debtor lost his land. The equity courts, however, with more liberality, and with more of a recognition of the real purpose of the transaction, recognized the fact that the securing of the debt, rather than the act of conveyance of title was the principal thing giving character to the transaction. Accordingly they alleviated the severity of the legal rule by, in effect, giving the land back to the debtor if he would pay the debt, even though it had not been paid on time. This equitable right to redeem, even after default in paying the debt when it was due, was called the ‘equity of redemption.’ ” Charles Herman Kinnane, A First Book on Anglo-American Law 309 (2d ed. 1952).

EQUITY OF SUBROGATION

equity of subrogation. The right of a person who is secondarily liable on a debt, and who pays the debt, to personally enforce any right that the original creditor could have pursued against the debtor, including the right to foreclose on any security held by the creditor and any right that the creditor may have to contribution from others who are liable for the debt. — Also termed right of subrogation; (in Scots law) right of relief. See SUBROGATION. [Cases: Subrogation 1. C.J.S. Subrogation §§ 2–15, 19, 91.]

EQUITY-OF-THE-STATUTE RULE

equity-of-the-statute rule. In statutory construction, the principle that a statute should be interpreted according to the legislators' purpose and intent, even if this interpretation goes beyond the literal meaning of the text. • Under this little-used rule, for example, if a statute defines jury-tampering to include a party's "giving a juror food or drink," the giving of cigars to a juror would also fall within that definition. Cf. GOLDEN RULE; MISCHIEF RULE; PLAIN-MEANING RULE. [Cases: Statutes 189. C.J.S. Statutes § 324.]

EQUITY PARTICIPATION

equity participation. The inclusion of a lender in the equity ownership of a project as a condition of the lender's granting a loan. — Also termed equity kicker.

EQUITY PLEADING

equity pleading. See PLEADING(2).

EQUITY PRAETER LEGEM

equity praeter legem (pree-t<<schwa>>r lee-j<<schwa>>m). The use of equity to fill a gap in the law. — Sometimes shortened to praeter legem.

EQUITY RATIO

equity ratio. 1. The percentage relationship between a purchaser's equity value (esp. the amount of a down payment) and the property value. 2. The measure of a shareholder's equity divided by total equity.

EQUITY SECURITY

equity security. See SECURITY.

EQUITY STOCK

EQUITY TO A SETTLEMENT

equity to a settlement. A wife's equitable right, arising when her husband sues in equity for the reduction of her equitable estate to his own possession, to have all or part of that estate settled upon herself and her children. — Also termed wife's equity; wife's settlement. [Cases: Husband and Wife 12.]

EQUIVALENCE OF ADVANTAGES

equivalence of advantages. See RECIPROCITY(2).

EQUIVALENT

equivalent, adj. 1. Equal in value, force, amount, effect, or significance. 2. Corresponding in effect or function; nearly equal; virtually identical.

equivalent, n. Patents. An element that (1) existed before another element; (2) can perform the same function as the other element; and (3) is recognizable as a substitute for the other element. • For instance, mechanical devices are equivalents when one skilled in the art would have recognized that each device would produce the same result. If the equivalent is known at the time an invention is conceived, the invention's patentability may be questioned. See ANALOG. [Cases: Patents 237. C.J.S. Patents §§ 425–426.]

“If a given substitute is an equivalent under certain circumstances or in certain settings, and is not an equivalent under certain other circumstances or in certain other settings, then the substitution is patentable, provided the claim contains express limitations to the circumstances or settings in which the substitution is nonequivalent.” Roger Sherman Hoar, Patent Tactics and the Law 43 (3d ed. 1950).

ERRONICE

erronice (i-roh-n<<schwa>>-see), adv.[Law Latin] Erroneously; through error or mistake.

ERROR

error,n.1. An assertion or belief that does not conform to objective reality; a belief that what is false is true or that what is true is false; MISTAKE.

error in corpore (kor-p<<schwa>>-ree). A mistake involving the identity of a particular object, as when a party buys a horse believing it to be the one that the party had already examined and ridden, when in fact it is a different horse.

error in negotio (ni-goh-shee-oh). A mistake about the type of contract that the parties actually wanted to enter.

error in qualitate (kwah-l<<schwa>>-tay-tee). A mistake affecting the quality of the contractual object. [Cases: Sales 36. C.J.S. Sales §§ 45–47.]

error in quantitate (kwahn-t<<schwa>>-tay-tee). A mistake affecting the amount of the contractual object. [Cases: Sales 36. C.J.S. Sales §§ 45–47.]

reissuable error.See REISSUABLE ERROR.

2. A mistake of law or of fact in a tribunal's judgment, opinion, or order. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2653; Judgment 355–356. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 314–315.]

assigned error.An alleged error that occurred in a lower court and is pointed out in an appellate brief as grounds for reversal <appellants' two assigned errors appeared to the court to be harmless errors>. See ASSIGNMENT OF ERROR.

Caldwell error.The constitutionally impermissible error of resting a death sentence on a determination made by a sentencer who has been led to believe that the responsibility for determining the appropriateness of the defendant's death sentence lies elsewhere. Caldwell v. Mississippi, 472 U.S. 320, 105 S.Ct. 2633 (1985). • The error most often occurs when the prosecutor or the judge tells the jury that the death sentence, if inappropriate, may be overturned on appeal.

clear error. A trial judge's decision or action that appears to a reviewing court to have been unquestionably erroneous. • Even though a clear error occurred, it may not warrant reversal. [Cases: Appeal and Error 999(1), 1008.1(5). C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 784, 805, 810.]

clerical error. An error resulting from a minor mistake or inadvertence, esp. in writing or copying something on the record, and not from judicial reasoning or determination. • Among the boundless examples of clerical errors are omitting an appendix from a document; typing an incorrect number; mistranscribing a word; and failing to log a call. A court can correct a clerical error at any time, even after judgment has been entered. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a); Fed. R. Crim. P. 36. — Also termed scrivener's error; vitium clerici. See VITIUM SCRIPTORIS. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2653; Judgment 306. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 280–281.]

cross-error. An error brought by the party responding to a writ of error.

cumulative error. The prejudicial effect of two or more trial errors that may have been harmless individually. • The cumulative effect of multiple harmless errors may amount to reversible error. See CUMULATIVE-ERROR ANALYSIS.

error apparent of record. See plain error.

fatal error. See reversible error.

harmful error. See reversible error.

harmless error. An error that does not affect a party's substantive rights or the case's outcome. • A harmless error is not grounds for reversal. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 61; Fed. R. Crim. P. 52. — Also termed technical error; error in vacuo. Cf. substantial error. [Cases: Administrative Law and Procedure 764; Appeal and Error 1025–1074. C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 825–830; Juries §§ 421–422; Justices of the Peace § 240; Public Administrative Law and Procedure § 225.]

invited error. An error that a party cannot complain of on appeal because the party, through conduct, encouraged or prompted the trial court to make the erroneous ruling. [Cases: Administrative Law and Procedure 742; Appeal and Error 882; Criminal Law 1137. C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 745–747; Public Administrative Law and Procedure § 214.]

manifest constitutional error. An error by the trial court that has an identifiably negative impact on the trial to such a degree that the constitutional rights of a party are compromised. • A manifest constitutional error can be reviewed by a court of appeals even if the appellant did not object at trial.

manifest error. An error that is plain and indisputable, and that amounts to a complete disregard of the controlling law or the credible evidence in the record. [Cases: Appeal and Error 999(1), 1008.1(7). C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 784, 805, 810.]

obvious error. See OBVIOUS ERROR.

plain error. An error that is so obvious and prejudicial that an appellate court should address it despite the parties' failure to raise a proper objection. • A plain error is often said to be so obvious and substantial that failure to correct it would infringe a party's due-process rights and damage the integrity of the judicial process. See Fed. R. Evid. 103(d). — Also termed fundamental error; error apparent of record. [Cases: Appeal and Error 181; Criminal Law 1030. C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 202, 207; Criminal Law § 1682.]

reversible error. An error that affects a party's substantive rights or the case's outcome, and thus is grounds for reversal if the party properly objected. — Also termed harmful error; prejudicial error; fatal error. [Cases: Administrative Law and Procedure 764; Appeal and Error 1025–1074; Criminal Law 1162. C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 825–830; Criminal Law §§ 1713–1715; Juries §§ 421–422; Justices of the Peace § 240; Public Administrative Law and Procedure § 225.]

substantial error. An error that affects a party's substantive rights or the outcome of the case. • A substantial error may require reversal on appeal. Cf. harmless error.

ESCALATION CLAUSE

escalation clause. See ESCALATOR CLAUSE.

ESCALATOR CLAUSE

escalator clause. 1. A contractual provision that makes pricing flexible by increasing or decreasing the contract price according to changing market conditions, such as higher or lower taxes or operating costs. [Cases: Contracts 229, 231. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 378, 385, 387–391, 393–398.] 2. A provision in a divorce decree or divorce agreement providing for the automatic increase of alimony payments upon the occurrence of any of various triggering events, such as cost-of-living increases or an increase in the obligor's salary. • Escalation clauses for child support are often unenforceable. 3. Oil & gas. A provision in a long-term gas contract allowing the base price of the gas to be adjusted as the market changes. • The actual adjustment may be up or down. — Also termed escalation clause; fluctuating clause.

ESCAMBIUM

escambium. See CAMBIUM(2).

ESCAPE

escape, n. 1. The act or an instance of breaking free from confinement, restraint, or an obligation. 2. An unlawful departure from legal custody without the use of force. — Also termed actual escape. Cf. PRISON BREACH. [Cases: Escape 1. C.J.S. Escape §§ 2–3, 5–10, 12, 27, 44.]

“In the technical sense an ‘escape’ is an unauthorized departure from legal custody; in a loose sense the word is used to indicate either such an unlawful departure or an avoidance of capture. And while the word is regularly used by the layman in the broader sense it usually is limited to the narrower meaning when used in the law, — although this is not always so.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 559 (3d ed. 1982).

constructive escape. A prisoner's obtaining more liberty than the law allows, while not fully regaining freedom.

3. At common law, a criminal offense committed by a peace officer who allows a prisoner to depart unlawfully from legal custody. — Also termed voluntary escape. [Cases: Escape 3. C.J.S. Escape §§ 3, 5–6.] — escape, vb.

negligent escape. The offense committed by a peace officer who negligently allows a prisoner to depart from legal custody.

“Escapes are either voluntary, or negligent. Voluntary are such as are by the express consent of the keeper, after which he never can retake his prisoner again, (though the plaintiff may retake him at any time) but the sheriff must answer for the debt. Negligent escapes are where the prisoner escapes without his keeper's knowledge or consent; and then upon fresh pursuit the defendant may be retaken, and the sheriff shall be excused, if he has him again before any action brought against himself for the escape.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 415–16 (1768).

ESCAPE CLAUSE

escape clause. A contractual provision that allows a party to avoid performance under specified conditions; specif., an insurance-policy provision — usu. contained in the “other insurance” section of the policy — requiring the insurer to provide coverage only if no other coverage is available. Cf. EXCESS CLAUSE; PRO RATA CLAUSE.

ESCAPEE

escapee. A prisoner or other inmate who has escaped from lawful custody. [Cases: Escape 1. C.J.S. Escape §§ 2–3, 5–10, 12, 27, 44.]

“The word ‘escapee’ is employed at times by those who are not careful in the use of language. They probably think this word is comparable to ‘arrestee’ or ‘employee.’ But the arrestee did not do the arresting and the employee did not do the employing. The employee does the work but that makes him a worker, not a workee.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 560 (3d ed. 1982).

ESCAPE PERIOD

escape period. Labor law. A time agreed upon in some union contracts during which workers may withdraw from the union near the end of one term covered by the contract and before the start of the next.

ESCAPE WARRANT

ESCHEAT

escheat (es-cheet), n. 1. Hist. The reversion of land ownership back to the lord when the immediate tenant dies without heirs. See WRIT OF ESCHEAT. 2. Reversion of property (esp. real property) to the state upon the death of an owner who has neither a will nor any legal heirs. [Cases: Escheat 1–8. C.J.S. Escheat §§ 2–23.] 3. Property that has so reverted. See heirless estate under ESTATE(3). — escheat, vb.

“All escheats, under the English law, are declared to be strictly feudal, and to import the extinction of tenure.... The rule [was] that if lands were held in trust and the cestui que trust without heirs, the lands did not escheat to the crown, but the trustee, being in esse and in the legal seisin of the land, took the land discharged of the trust, and bound as owner for the feudal services. But as the feudal tenures do not exist in this country, there are no private persons who succeed to the inheritance by escheat; and the state steps in the place of the feudal lord, by virtue of its sovereignty, as the original and ultimate proprietor of all the lands within its jurisdiction.” 4 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law *423–24 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

ESCHEAT GRANT

escheat grant. See GRANT.

ESCHEATOR

escheator (es-cheet-<<schwa>>r). Hist. A royal officer appointed to assess the value of property escheating to the Crown. • Corrupt officers led many to associate the escheator with fraudulent conduct, giving rise to the word cheat as used in the modern sense. — Also termed cheater.

ESCROW

escrow (es-kroh), n.1. A legal document or property delivered by a promisor to a third party to be held by the third party for a given amount of time or until the occurrence of a condition, at which time the third party is to hand over the document or property to the promisee <the agent received the escrow two weeks before the closing date>. [Cases: Deposits and Escrows 11–26. C.J.S. Depositories §§ 4–5, 8–10, 13–25, 27; Escrows §§ 2–15.] 2. An account held in trust or as security <the earnest money is in escrow>. — Also termed escrow account; impound account; reserve account. See escrow account under ACCOUNT. [Cases: Deposits and Escrows 11. C.J.S. Depositories §§ 4–5, 8–9; Escrows §§ 2–3, 6.] 3. The holder of such a document, property, or deposit <the attorney performed the function of escrow>. — Also termed escrow agent. [Cases: Deposits and Escrows 13. C.J.S. Depositories §§ 15–17; Escrows §§ 8–10.] 4. The general arrangement under which a legal document or property is delivered to a third person until the occurrence of a condition < creating an escrow>. — escrow,vb.

“Like ‘scroll’ and ‘scrawl,’ the word ‘escrow’ is derived from the Norman-French word for a writing or a written instrument. It has come in practice to refer to a security device: one or both parties to a transaction deposit property or an instrument with a third party until some condition has occurred. The property or instrument may be referred to as ‘the escrow’; the delivery is said to be ‘in escrow.’ ” Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 103 cmt. a (1979).

ESSOIN

essoin (e-soyn), n. [fr. Old French essoï(g)ne “excuse”] Hist. 1. An excuse for not appearing in court on an appointed day in obedience to a summons. 2. The offering or presentation of such an excuse. — Also spelled essoign.

essoin, vb. [fr. Old French essoï(g)nier “to excuse”] Hist. To present an excuse for not appearing in court as ordered.

ESSOIN DAY

essoin day. Hist. English law. The first general return day of the term, when the courts sat to receive essoins. • By the Law Terms Act (1830), essoin days were eliminated as a part of the term. St. 11 Geo. 4; 1 Will. 4, ch. 70, § 6.

ESSOINDE MALO VILLAE

essoin de malo villae (dee mal-oh vil-ee). Hist. A procedure by which a defendant, who was in court the first day but was then taken ill without pleading, would send two essoiners to state in court that the defendant was detained by sickness in a particular village and thus unable to attend. • This essoin would be accepted unless the plaintiff could show its falsity.

ESSOINER

ESTADIA

estadia (es-tah-dee-ah), n.[Spanish] Spanish law. 1. A delay in a voyage, or in the delivery of cargo, caused by the charterer or consignee, who becomes liable for demurrage. 2. The time for which the party who has chartered a vessel, or is bound to receive the cargo, must pay demurrage because of a delay in performing the contract. — Also termed sobrestadía (soh-bray-stah-dee-ah).

ESTANDARD

estandard (<<schwa>>-stan-d<<schwa>>rd), n.[Law French] A standard of weights and measures.

EST A SCAVOIR

est a scavoir (ay ah skah-vwahr). [Law French, prob. fr. Latin est sciendum “it is to be known”] It is to be understood or known; to wit. • This expression is common in Sir Thomas de Littleton's 15th-century Treatise on Tenures, written in Law French. See SCIENDUM EST.

ESTATE

estate. 1. The amount, degree, nature, and quality of a person's interest in land or other property; esp., a real-estate interest that may become possessory, the ownership being measured in terms of duration. See periodic tenancy under TENANCY.

“The word ‘estate’ was probably adopted because in early days it was possible to ascertain a man's status or position in life by discovering the particular kind of tenure by which he held his lands. The quality of his tenure gave a clue to his status. The baron for example ought in theory to be the holder of a barony; he has the status of a baron because he has the estate of a baron.... [O]ne of the distinguishing marks of [the] freehold estates was the uncertainty of their duration. They were invariably held either for life, or for some other space of time dependent upon an event which might not happen within a lifetime, and thus a freehold estate came to be regarded as one which involved the performance of free services only, but as one which endured for an uncertain time. In this way, the word ‘estate’ came to denote the quantity of a man's interest in land.” G.C. Cheshire, Modern Law of Real Property 26 (3d ed. 1933).

absolute estate. A full and complete estate that cannot be defeated.

“The epithet absolute is used to distinguish an estate extended to any given time, without any condition to defeat or collateral limitation to determine [i.e., terminate] the estate in the mean time, from an estate subject to a condition or collateral limitation. The term absolute is of the same signification with the word pure or simple, a word which expresses that the estate is not determinable by any event besides the event marked by the clause of limitation.” G.C. Cheshire, Modern Law of Real Property 54 (3d ed. 1933).

ancestral estate. An estate that is acquired by descent or by operation of law with no other consideration than that of blood.

bankruptcy estate. See BANKRUPTCY ESTATE.

base estate. Hist. An estate held at the will of the lord, as distinguished from a freehold.

concurrent estate. Ownership or possession of property by two or more persons at the same time. • In modern practice, there are three types of concurrent estates: tenancy in common, joint tenancy, and tenancy by the entirety. — Also termed concurrent interest.

“A concurrent estate is simply an estate — whether present or future, defeasible or non-defeasible, in fee simple, in tail, for life, or for years — that is owned by two or more persons at the same time. O transfers ‘to A and B and their heirs.’ A and B own a present concurrent estate in fee simple absolute.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 53 (2d ed. 1984).

conditional estate. See estate on condition.

contingent estate. An estate that vests only if a certain event does or does not happen. Cf. estate on condition.

defeasible estate. An estate that may come to an end before its maximum duration has run because of the operation of a special limitation, a condition subsequent, or an executory limitation. • If an estate is defeasible by operation of a special limitation, it is called a determinable estate.

derivative estate. A particular interest that has been carved out of another, larger estate. Cf. original estate.

determinable estate. An estate that is defeasible by operation of a special limitation. — Also termed determinable freehold.

equitable estate. An estate recognized in equity, such as a trust beneficiary's interest. See EQUITY.

“[A] legal estate was a right in rem, an equitable estate a right in personam, that is to say, the former conferred a right enforceable against the whole world, the latter one which could be enforced only against a limited number of persons.” G.C. Cheshire, Modern Law of Real Property 54 (3d ed. 1933).

estate ad remanentiam (ad rem-<<schwa>>-nen-shee-*<<schwa>>*m). An estate in fee simple.

estate at sufferance. See tenancy at sufferance under TENANCY.

estate at will. See tenancy at will under TENANCY.

estate by curtesy. An estate owned by a wife, to which the husband is entitled upon her death. See CURTESY.

estate by elegit. An estate held by a judgment creditor, entitling the creditor to the rents and profits from land owned by the debtor until the debt is paid. See ELEGIT.

estate by entirety. A common-law estate in which each spouse is seized of the whole of the property. • An estate by entirety is based on the legal fiction that a husband and wife are a single unit. The estate consists of five unities: time, title, interest, possession, and marriage. The last of these unities distinguishes the estate by entirety from the joint tenancy. A joint tenancy can exist with any number of persons, while an estate by entirety can be held only by a husband and wife and is not available to any other persons. And it can be acquired only during the marriage. This estate has a right of survivorship, but upon the death of one spouse, the surviving spouse retains the entire interest rather than acquiring the decedent's interest. Most jurisdictions have abolished this estate. — Also termed estate by the entirety; estate by entireties; estate by the entireties; tenancy by the entirety; tenancy by the entireties. Cf. joint tenancy and tenancy in common under TENANCY.

estate by purchase. An estate acquired in any manner other than by descent. See PURCHASE.

estate by statute staple. An estate in a defendant's land held by a creditor under the statute staple until the debt was paid. See STATUTE STAPLE.

estate by the curtesy of England. See CURTESY.

estate for a term. See tenancy for a term under TENANCY.

estate for life. See life estate.

estate for years. See tenancy for a term under TENANCY.

estate in common. See tenancy in common under TENANCY.

estate in fee simple. See FEE SIMPLE.

estate in fee tail.See FEE TAIL.

estate in gage.An estate that has been pledged as security for a debt. See MORTGAGE.

estate in partnership.A joint estate that is vested in the members of a partnership when real estate is purchased with partnership funds and for partnership purposes. [Cases: Partnership 76. C.J.S. Partnership §§ 86–87.]

estate in possession.An estate in which a present interest passes to the tenant; an estate in which the tenant is entitled to receive the rents and other profits arising from the estate. [Cases: Estates in Property 1. C.J.S. Estates §§ 2–5, 8, 15–21, 116–128, 137, 243.]

estate in reversion.See REVERSION.

estate in severalty (sev-<<schwa>>-r<<schwa>>l-tee). An estate held by a tenant separately, without any other person being joined or connected in interest.

estate in tail.See FEE TAIL.

estate in vadio (in vad-ee-oh). An estate in gage or pledge. See MORTGAGE.

estate less than freehold.An estate for years, an estate at will, or an estate at sufferance.

estate of inheritance.An estate that may descend to heirs.

estate on condition.An estate that vests, is modified, or is defeated upon the occurrence or nonoccurrence of some specified event. • While an estate on limitation can revert without any action by the grantor or the grantor's heirs, an estate on condition requires the entry of the grantor or the grantor's heirs to end the estate whenever the condition occurs. — Also termed estate on conditional limitation; conditional estate.

estate on conditional limitation.See estate on condition.

estate on condition expressed.A contingent estate in which the condition upon which the estate will fail is stated explicitly in the granting instrument.

estate on condition implied.A contingent estate having some condition that is so inseparable from the estate's essence that it need not be expressed in words.

estate on limitation.An estate that automatically reverts back to the grantor according to a provision, usu. regarding the passage of a determined time period, designated by words such as “during,” “while,” and “as long as.” See fee simple determinable under FEE SIMPLE.

estate pur autre vie.See life estate pur autre vie.

estate tail.See FEE TAIL.

estate tail quasi.An estate granted by a life tenant, who, despite using language of conveyance that is otherwise sufficient to create an estate tail, is unable to grant in perpetuity.

executed estate.See REMAINDER(1).

expectant estate. See FUTURE INTEREST.

freehold estate. See FREEHOLD.

future estate. See FUTURE INTEREST.

joint estate. Any of the following five types of estates: (1) a joint tenancy, (2) a tenancy in common, (3) an estate in coparcenary (a common-law estate in which coheirs hold as tenants in common), (4) a tenancy by the entirety, or (5) an estate in partnership. [Cases: Husband and Wife 14.2–14.7; Joint Tenancy 1; Tenancy in Common 1. C.J.S. Estates § 19; Joint Tenancy §§ 2, 4, 7–9; Tenancy in Common §§ 2–5.]

landed estate. An interest in real property, esp. suburban or rural land, as distinguished from real estate situated in a city. — Also termed landed property.

leasehold estate. See LEASEHOLD.

legal estate. An interest enforced in law rather than in equity.

legal life estate. See life estate.

life estate. An estate held only for the duration of a specified person's life, usu. the possessor's. • Most life estates — created, for example, by a grant “to Jane for life” — are beneficial interests under trusts, the corpus often being personal property, not real property. — Also termed estate for life; legal life estate; life tenancy. See LIFE TENANT. [Cases: Life Estates 1. C.J.S. Estates §§ 28–29, 31, 34.]

life estate pur autre vie (p<<schwa>>r oh-tr<<schwa>> vee). A life estate for which the measuring life — the life whose duration determines the duration of the estate — is someone other than the possessor's. — Also spelled life estate per autre vie. [Cases: Life Estates 1. C.J.S. Estates §§ 28–29, 31, 34.]

minor's estate. A minor's property that must be administered by a court-appointed fiduciary. [Cases: Guardian and Ward 36.]

next eventual estate. An estate taking effect upon an event that terminates the accumulation of undisposed rents and profits; an estate taking effect when the existing estate terminates.

nonancestral estate. An estate from any source other than the owner's ancestors. — Also termed nonancestral property.

nonfreehold estate. Any estate in real property without seisin, such as an estate for years, from period to period, at will, or at sufferance; any estate except a fee simple, fee tail, or life estate.

original estate. An estate that is the first of one or more derivative estates, bearing to each other the relation of a particular estate and a reversion.

particular estate. An estate or interest less than a fee simple, such as a fee tail, a life estate, or a term for years. • It is so called because the estate is a mere part (particula) of the fee simple.

periodic estate. See periodic tenancy under TENANCY.

possessory estate. An estate giving the holder the right to possess the property, with or without an ownership interest in the property.

present estate. An estate in immediate possession; one vested at the present time, as distinguished from a future estate. See present interest under INTEREST(2).

qualified estate. Any estate that is not absolute and unconditional; a limited or conditional estate.

reversionary estate. See REVERSION.

settled estate. An estate created or limited under a settlement; an estate in which the powers of alienation, devising, and transmission according to the ordinary rules of descent are restrained by the settlement's terms.

stipendiary estate (stĪ-pen-dee-er-ee). Hist. An estate granted in return for services, usu. of a military kind.

vested estate. An estate with a present right of enjoyment or a present fixed right of future enjoyment.

2. All that a person or entity owns, including both real and personal property. 3. The property that one leaves after death; the collective assets and liabilities of a dead person. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 38–73. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators §§ 2, 121–127, 129–162.]

adjusted gross estate. 1. The total value of a decedent's property after subtracting administration expenses, funeral expenses, creditors' claims, and casualty losses. • The value of the adjusted gross estate is used in computing the federal estate tax. Cf. net probate estate under PROBATE ESTATE. 2. See gross estate (1).

augmented estate. A refinement of the elective share to which a surviving spouse is entitled, whereby the “fair share” is identified as something other than the traditional one-third of the probate estate. • The current version of the Uniform Probate Code uses a sliding scale that increases with each year of marriage. Under the UPC, a surviving spouse has accrued full marital-property rights after 15 years of marriage. This percentage of spousal entitlement is applied to a reconceptualization of the decedent's estate to take into account more than just the assets remaining in the probate estate at death. Also added into the calculation are the value of certain inter vivos transfers that the decedent made to others in a way that depleted the probate estate; the value of similar transfers made to others by the spouse as well as the value of the marital property owned by the spouse at the decedent's death; and the value of inter vivos transfers of property made by the decedent to the spouse. The Uniform Probate Code adopted this version of the augmented-estate concept in an attempt to equalize the treatment of surviving spouses in non-community-property states vis-à-vis community-property states. Unif. Probate Code § 2-202. See ELECTIVE SHARE. [Cases: Wills 778–803. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1841–1879.]

decedent's estate. The real and personal property that a person possesses at the time of death and that passes to the heirs or testamentary beneficiaries. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 38–73. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators §§ 2, 121–127, 129–162.]

gross estate. 1. The total value of a decedent's property without any deductions. 2. Loosely, adjusted gross estate.

heirless estate. The property of a person who dies intestate and without heirs. See ESCHEAT.

marital estate. See marital property under PROPERTY.

separate estate. The individual property of one of two persons who stand in a marital or business relationship. See SEPARATE PROPERTY. [Cases: Husband and Wife 110–202.]

net estate. See net probate estate under PROBATE ESTATE.

net probate estate. See PROBATE ESTATE.

probate estate. See PROBATE ESTATE.

receivership estate. See RECEIVERSHIP ESTATE.

residuary estate. The part of a decedent's estate remaining after payment of all debts, expenses, statutory claims, taxes, and testamentary gifts (special, general, and demonstrative) have been made. — Also termed residual estate; residue; residuary; residuum. [Cases: Wills 586. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1176–1179, 1184.]

taxable estate. A decedent's gross estate reduced by allowable deductions (such as administration costs and ESOP deductions). IRC (26 USCA) § 2051. • The taxable estate is the amount that is subject to the federal unified transfer tax at death. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4168–4182.30. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 500, 512, 525–538, 541–546.]

4. A tract of land, esp. one affected by an easement. “The old definitions of this word [estate] generally confine it to lands or realty. Thus, according to Lord Coke, ‘state or estate signifieth such inheritance, freehold, term for years, & c., as any man hath in lands or tenements.’ Co.Litt. 345a. So Cowell defines it to be ‘that title or interest which a man hath in lands or tenements,’ and the same definition is given in the Termes de la Ley. And this limited sense of the word has been relied on, in argument, in some cases .... But, according to the settled modern doctrine, the term estate is of much more extensive import and application, being indeed genus generalissimum, and clearly comprehending things personal as well as real; person as well as real estate.” 1 Alexander M. Burrill, A Law Dictionary and Glossary 561 (2d ed. 1867).

dominant estate. An estate that benefits from an easement. — Also termed dominant tenement; dominant property; upper estate. Cf. servient estate. [Cases: Easements 1, 38. C.J.S. Easements §§ 2–8, 13–14, 21–22, 24, 53–55, 57–58, 89, 143–144, 146–147, 165–167.]

real estate. See real property under PROPERTY.

servient estate (s<<schwa>>r-vee-<<schwa>>nt). An estate burdened by an easement. — Also termed servient tenement; servient property; lower estate. Cf. dominant estate. [Cases: Easements 1, 38. C.J.S. Easements §§ 2–8, 13–14, 21–22, 24, 53–55, 57–58, 89, 143–144, 146–147, 165–167.]

upper estate. See dominant estate.

ESTATE DUTY

estate duty. See DUTY(4).

ESTATE FREEZE

estate freeze. An estate-planning maneuver whereby an owner of a closely held business exchanges common stock for dividend-paying preferred stock and gives the common stock to his or her children, thus seeking to guarantee an income in retirement and to avoid estate tax on future appreciation in the business's value.

ESTATE FROM PERIOD TO PERIOD

estate from period to period. See periodic tenancy under TENANCY.

ESTATE IN EXPECTANCY

estate in expectancy. See FUTURE INTEREST.

ESTATE IN FREEHOLD

estate in freehold. See FREEHOLD.

ESTATE IN LANDS

estate in lands. 1. Property that one has in lands, tenements, or hereditaments. [Cases: Estates in Property 1. C.J.S. Estates §§ 2–5, 8, 15–21, 116–128, 137, 243.] 2. The conditions or circumstances under which a tenant stands in relation to the leased property.

ESTATE IN REMAINDER

estate in remainder. See REMAINDER(1).

ESTATE PLANNING

estate planning. 1. The preparation for the distribution and management of a person's estate at death through the use of wills, trusts, insurance policies, and other arrangements, esp. to reduce administration costs and transfer-tax liability. [Cases: Wills 1–20. C.J.S. Conflict of Laws § 72; Wills §§ 1–3, 53–87, 93–95, 97–98, 103–104, 106–132, 172, 174, 381.] 2. A branch of law that involves the arrangement of a person's estate, taking into account the laws of wills, taxes, insurance, property, and trusts.

ESTATES OF THE REALM

estates of the realm. 1. The lords spiritual, the lords temporal, and the commons of Great Britain. — Also termed the three estates. 2. In feudal Europe, the clergy, nobles, and commons. • Because the lords spiritual had no separate assembly or negative in their political capacity, some authorities reduce the estates in Great Britain to two, the lords and commons. In England (until about the 14th century), the three estates of the realm were the clergy, barons, and knights. In legal practice, the lords spiritual and lords temporal are usu. collectively designated simply as lords.

ESTATE'S PROPERTY

estate's property. See PROPERTY OF THE ESTATE.

ESTATE TAX

estate tax. See TAX.

ESTATE TRUST

estate trust. See TRUST.

ESTER IN JUDGMENT

ester in judgment (es-t<<schwa>>r). [Law French] To appear before a tribunal, as either plaintiff or defendant.

ESTIMATED DAMAGES

estimated damages. See liquidated damages under DAMAGES.

ESTIMATED TAX

estimated tax. See TAX.

ESTOP

estop (e-stop), vb. To bar or prevent by estoppel.

ESTOPPAGE

estoppage (e-stop-ij), n. The state or condition of being estopped.

ESTOPPEL

estoppel (e-stop-<<schwa>>l), n.1. A bar that prevents one from asserting a claim or right that contradicts what one has said or done before or what has been legally established as true. [Cases: Estoppel 52–59. C.J.S. Estoppel §§ 2–4, 58–64, 66–81, 83–89, 120–121, 153–155, 157, 159–160, 167.] 2. A bar that prevents the relitigation of issues. 3. An affirmative defense alleging good-faith reliance on a misleading representation and an injury or detrimental change in position resulting from that reliance. Cf. WAIVER(1). [Cases: Estoppel 83–87. C.J.S. Estoppel §§ 90–95.] — estop, vb.

“In using the term ‘estoppel,’ one is of course aware of its kaleidoscopic varieties. One reads of estoppel by conduct, by deed, by laches, by misrepresentation, by negligence, by silence, and so on. There is also an estoppel by judgment and by verdict; these, however, obviously involve procedure. The first-named varieties have certain aspects in common. But these aspects are not always interpreted by the same rules in all courts. The institution seems to be flexible.” John H. Wigmore, “The Scientific Role of Consideration in Contract,” in Legal Essays in Tribute to Orrin Kip McMurray 641, 643 (1935).

administrative collateral estoppel. See COLLATERAL ESTOPPEL.

assignor estoppel. Patents. Estoppel barring someone who has assigned the rights to a patent from later attacking the patent's validity. Westinghouse Elec. & Mfg. Co. v. Formica Insulation Co., 266 U.S. 342, 45 S.Ct. 117 (1924). • The doctrine was narrowed by Diamond Scientific Co. v. Ambico, Inc., 848 F.2d 1220 (Fed. Cir. 1988), in which the court held that in some circumstances equity may outweigh the public-policy reasons behind the estoppel doctrine. [Cases: Patents 129(2). C.J.S. Patents § 227.]

equitable estoppel. 1. A defensive doctrine preventing one party from taking unfair advantage of another when, through false language or conduct, the person to be estopped has induced another person to act in a certain way, with the result that the other person has been injured in some way. • This doctrine is founded on principles of fraud. The five essential elements of this type of estoppel are that (1) there was a false representation or concealment of material facts, (2) the representation was known to be false by the party making it, or the party was negligent in not knowing its falsity, (3) it was believed to be true by the person to whom it was made, (4) the party making the representation intended that it be acted on, or the person acting on it was justified in assuming this intent, and (5) the party asserting estoppel acted on the representation in a way that will result in substantial prejudice unless the claim of estoppel succeeds. — Also termed estoppel by conduct; estoppel in pais. [Cases: Estoppel 52–96. C.J.S. Estoppel §§ 2–4, 55–155, 157, 159–160, 165, 167–200.] 2. See promissory estoppel.

estoppel by conduct. See equitable estoppel.

estoppel by contract. A bar that prevents a person from denying a term, fact, or performance arising from a contract that the person has entered into.

estoppel by deed. Estoppel that prevents a party to a deed from denying anything recited in that deed if the party has induced another to accept or act under the deed; esp., estoppel that prevents a grantor of a warranty deed, who does not have title at the time of the conveyance but who later acquires title, from denying that he or she had title at the time of the transfer. — Also termed estoppel by warranty. See AFTER-ACQUIRED-TITLE DOCTRINE. [Cases: Estoppel 12–51. C.J.S. Estoppel §§ 3, 10–54, 201–204, 206–208, 210–211.]

“The apparent odiousness of some classes of estoppel, chiefly estoppels by deed, seems to result not so much from the nature of an estoppel, as from the highly technical rules of real property law upon which it operated, and with which it was associated. Estoppels by record, indeed, stand upon a considerably higher footing than estoppels by deed ....” Lancelot Feilding estoppel by election.The intentional exercise of a choice between inconsistent alternatives that bars the person making the choice from the benefits of the one not selected.

estoppel by inaction.See estoppel by silence.

estoppel by judgment.See COLLATERAL ESTOPPEL.

estoppel by laches.An equitable doctrine by which some courts deny relief to a claimant who has unreasonably delayed or been negligent in asserting a claim. [Cases: Equity 67. C.J.S. Equity §§ 128–132.]

estoppel by misrepresentation.An estoppel that arises when one makes a false statement that induces another person to believe something and that results in that person's reasonable and detrimental reliance on the belief. [Cases: Estoppel 82–87. C.J.S. Estoppel §§ 90–95.]

estoppel by negligence.An estoppel arising when a negligent person induces someone to believe certain facts, and then the other person reasonably and detrimentally relies on that belief. [Cases: Estoppel 96. C.J.S. Estoppel §§ 68, 114.]

estoppel by record.See COLLATERAL ESTOPPEL.

estoppel by representation.An estoppel that arises when one makes a statement or admission that induces another person to believe something and that results in that person's reasonable and detrimental reliance on the belief; esp., equitable estoppel. [Cases: Estoppel 82–87. C.J.S. Estoppel §§ 90–95.]

estoppel by silence.Estoppel that arises when a party is under a duty to speak but fails to do so. — Also termed estoppel by standing by; estoppel by inaction. [Cases: Estoppel 95. C.J.S. Estoppel § 99.]

estoppel by standing by. See estoppel by silence.

estoppel by verdict.See COLLATERAL ESTOPPEL.

estoppel by warranty.See estoppel by deed.

estoppel in pais.See equitable estoppel.

estoppel on the record.See prosecution-history estoppel.

file-wrapper estoppel.See prosecution-history estoppel.

judicial estoppel.Estoppel that prevents a party from contradicting previous declarations made during the same or an earlier proceeding if the change in position would adversely affect the proceeding or constitute a fraud on the court. — Also termed doctrine of preclusion of inconsistent positions; doctrine of the conclusiveness of the judgment. [Cases: Estoppel 68. C.J.S. Estoppel §§ 138–141, 143–144.]

legal estoppel.Estoppel recognized in law (as distinguished from equitable estoppel or estoppel in pais), such as an estoppel resulting from a recital or other statement in a deed or official record, and precluding any denial or assertion concerning a fact. [Cases: Estoppel 1–51. C.J.S. Estoppel §§ 3, 5–54, 201–204, 206–208, 210–211.]

marking estoppel. Patents. Estoppel that prevents a party from asserting that a product is not covered by a patent if that party has marked the product with a patent number. • This type of estoppel has been questioned in recent years, and has been sharply limited by some courts. [Cases: Patents 222. C.J.S. Patents §§ 394–395.]

promissory estoppel. The principle that a promise made without consideration may nonetheless be enforced to prevent injustice if the promisor should have reasonably expected the promisee to rely on the promise and if the promisee did actually rely on the promise to his or her detriment. — Also termed (inaccurately) equitable estoppel. [Cases: Estoppel 85. C.J.S. Estoppel §§ 92–93.]

prosecution-history estoppel. Patents. The doctrine limiting a patentee's invocation of the doctrine of equivalents by eliminating from the claims those elements that the holder surrendered or abandoned during the prosecution of the patent. — Also termed estoppel on the record; file-wrapper estoppel. See DOCTRINE OF EQUIVALENTS. [Cases: Patents 168(2.1). C.J.S. Patents § 296.]

quasi-estoppel. An equitable doctrine preventing one from repudiating an act or assertion if it would harm another who reasonably relied on the act or assertion.

technical estoppel. 1. An estoppel arising from a matter of record or from a deed made by the party who is claimed to be estopped. • Estoppels by deed or by record are called “technical” because the rules of estoppel apply with certainty in appropriate cases. 2. COLLATERAL ESTOPPEL. See estoppel by deed.

ESTOPPEL CERTIFICATE

estoppel certificate. 1. A signed statement by a party (such as a tenant or a mortgagee) certifying for another's benefit that certain facts are correct, as that a lease exists, that there are no defaults, and that rent is paid to a certain date. • A party's delivery of this statement estops that party from later claiming a different state of facts. 2. WAIVER OF DEFENSES.

ESTOPPEL PER REM JUDICATAM

estoppel per rem judicatam (p<<schwa>>r rem joo-di-kay-t<<schwa>>m). See COLLATERAL ESTOPPEL.

estover (e-stoh-v<<schwa>>r). (usu. pl.) 1. Wood that a tenant is allowed to take for fuel, the manufacture or repair of agricultural instruments, and the erection and maintenance of fences and hedges; necessary supplies. See common of estovers under COMMON. — Also termed botes. See BOTE(1).2. The tenant's right to obtain that wood. 3.ALIMONY.

ESTOVERIIS HABENDIS

estoveriis habendis (es-t<<schwa>>-veer-ee-is h<<schwa>>-ben-dis). [Latin] Hist. See DE ESTOVERIIS HABENDIS.

ESTRAY

estray (e-stray), n.1. A valuable tame animal found wandering and ownerless; an animal that has escaped from its owner and wanders about. • At common law, an estray belonged to the Crown or to the lord of the manor, but today the general rule is that it passes to the state in trust for the true owner, who may regain it by proving ownership. An animal cannot be an estray when on the range where it was raised and where its owner permits it to run, and esp. when the owner is known to the party who takes the animal. [Cases: Animals 58. C.J.S. Animals § 123.] 2.FLOTSAM.

estreat (e-street), n.1. A copy or duplicate of some original writing or record, esp. of a fine or amercement imposed by a court, extracted from the record, and certified to one who is authorized and required to collect it. — Also termed (in Scots law) extract. 2. GREEN WAX.

estreat,vb. To take out a forfeited recognizance from the recordings of a court and return it to the court to be prosecuted.

ESTREPE

estrep (e-streep), vb.1. To strip; to despoil; to commit waste upon an estate, as by cutting down trees or removing buildings. 2. To injure the value of a reversionary interest by stripping or spoiling the estate. See WASTE(1).

ESTREPEMENT

estrepement (e-streep-m<<schwa>>nt), n. A species of aggravated waste, by stripping or devastating land to the injury of the reversioner, esp. pending a suit for possession. See DE ESTREPAMENTO. [Cases: Waste 16.C.J.S. Waste § 23.]

ET

et,conj.[Latin] And. • This conjunction was the introductory word of several Latin and Law French phrases that were once common.

ET ADJOURNATUR

et adjournatur (et aj-<<schwa>>r-nay-t<<schwa>>r). [Latin] Hist. And it is adjourned. • This phrase was used in the old reports, when argument of a case was adjourned to another day, or where a second argument was had.

ET AL.

et al. (et alorahl).abbr.1.[Latin et alii or et alia] And other persons < the office of Thomas Webb et al.>.2. [Latin et alibi] And elsewhere.

ET ALII E CONTRA

et alii e contra (et ay-lee-I ee kon-tr<<schwa>>). [Latin “and others on the other side”] Hist. A phrase often used in the Year Books, describing a joinder in issue.

ET ALIUS

et alius (et ay-lee-<<schwa>>s). [Latin] And another.

ET ALLOCATUR

et allocatur (et al-<<schwa>>-kay-t<<schwa>>r). [Latin] And it is allowed.

ETC.

etc.abbr.ET CETERA.

ET CETERA

et cetera (et set-<<schwa>>r-<<schwa>>). [Latin “and others”] And other things. • The term usu. indicates additional, unspecified items in a series. — Abbr. etc.

ET DE CEO SE METTENT EN LE PAYS

et de ceo se mettent en le pays (ay d<<schwa>> say-oh s<<schwa>> me-tawni oin l<<schwa>> pay). [Law French] Hist. And of this they put themselves upon the country. See CONCLUSION TO THE COUNTRY; GOING TO THE COUNTRY.

ET DE HOC PONIT SE SUPER PATRIAM

et de hoc ponit se super patriam (et dee hok poh-nit see s[y]oo-p<<schwa>>r pay-tree-<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Hist. And of this he puts himself upon the country. • This was the formal conclusion of a common-law plea in bar by way of traverse.

ET EI LEGITUR IN HAEC VERBA

et ei legitur in haec verba (et ee-Ilee-j<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>r in heekv<<schwa>>r-b<<schwa>>). [Latin] Hist. And it is read to him in these words. • This phrase was formerly used in entering the prayer of oyer on the record.

ETERNAL LAW

eternal law. See NATURAL LAW.

ET HABEAS IBI TUNC HOC BREVE

et habeas ibi tunc hoc breve (et hay-bee-<<schwa>>s ib-I t<<schwa>>ngk hok bree-vee). [Latin] Hist. And that you have then and there this writ. • These were the formal words directing the return of a writ. The literal translation was retained in the later form of a considerable number of writs.

ET HABUIT

et habuit (et hab-yoo-it). [Latin “and he had [it]”] Hist. A common phrase in the Year Books, indicating that a party's application or demand was granted.

ETHICAL

ethical, adj. 1. Of or relating to moral obligations that one person owes another; esp., in law, of or relating to legal ethics <the ethical rules regarding confidences>. See LEGAL ETHICS. 2. In conformity with moral norms or standards of professional conduct <the judge's recusal was a perfectly ethical act>.

ETHICAL ABSOLUTISM

ethical absolutism. See MORAL ABSOLUTISM.

ETHICAL CONSIDERATION

ethical consideration. (often cap.) An aspirational goal or principle intended to guide a lawyer's professional conduct. • A lawyer's violation of these considerations (which are contained in the Model Code of Professional Responsibility) does not necessarily subject the lawyer to discipline. — Abbr. EC. Cf. DISCIPLINARY RULE. [Cases: Attorney and Client 32.C.J.S. Attorney and Client §§ 6, 43–58, 86.]

ETHICAL DRUG

ethical drug. See DRUG.

ETHICAL JURISPRUDENCE

ethical jurisprudence. See JURISPRUDENCE.

ETHICAL RELATIVISM

ethical relativism. See MORAL RELATIVISM.

ETHICAL WALL

ethical wall. A screening mechanism that protects a client from a conflict of interest by preventing one or more lawyers within an organization from participating in any matter involving that client. • This mechanism is designed to allow a lawyer to move to a new job without the fear of vicariously disqualifying the new employer from representing certain clients. Creating an ethical wall generally entails (1) prohibiting certain lawyers and paralegals from having any connection with the matter; (2) banning discussions with or the transfer of documents to those individuals; (3) restricting access to files; and (4) educating all members of the firm, corporation, or entity about the separation of the lawyers and paralegals (both organizationally and physically) from the pending matter. — Also termed Chinese wall; screening mechanism. [Cases: Attorney and Client 21.15. C.J.S. Attorney and Client § 164.]

ETHICS

ethics. See LEGAL ETHICS.

ETHNIC CLEANSING

ethnic cleansing. The officially sanctioned forcible and systematic diminution or elimination of targeted ethnic minorities from a geographic area, usu. by confiscating real and personal property, ordering or condoning mass murders and mass rapes, and expelling the survivors. • In theory, the purpose of ethnic cleansing is to drive all members of the victimized group out of a territory. In practice, ethnic cleansing is nearly synonymous with genocide because mass murder is a characteristic of both. Ethnic cleansing additionally includes mass rapes for two cultural reasons: (1) the victims are often put to death by their relatives or commit suicide, and (2) any children born are regarded as belonging to the father's ethnic group, not the mother's. Both acts — murder and rape — are intended to diminish or extinguish the victimized minority. Cf. GENOCIDE.

ETHNIC PROFILING

ethnic profiling. See RACIAL PROFILING.

ET HOC PARATUS EST VERIFICARE

et hoc paratus est verificare (et hok p<<schwa>>-ray-t<<schwa>>s est ver-<<schwa>>-fi-kair-ee). [Latin] And this he is prepared to verify. • This phrase traditionally concluded a plea in confession and avoidance, or any pleading that contained new affirmative matter. A pleading containing this phrase was technically said to “conclude with a verification,” as opposed to a simple denial.

ET HOC PETIT QUOD INQUIRATUR PER PATRIAM

et hoc petit quod inquiratur per patriam (et hok pet-it kwod in-kw<<schwa>>-ray-t<<schwa>>r p<<schwa>>r pay-tree-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “and this he prays may be inquired of by the country”] Archaic. The conclusion of a plaintiff's pleading that tendered an issue to the country. See CONCLUSION TO THE COUNTRY .

ETIAM CAUSA NON COGNITA

etiam causa non cognita (ee-shee-<<schwa>>m kaw-z<<schwa>> non kog-ni-t<<schwa>>). [Latin] Hist. Even where the cause is not known; absent an investigation. • Some decrees could be issued without a full factual inquiry or trial.

ETIAM IN ARTICULO MORTIS

etiam in articulo mortis (ee-shee-<<schwa>>m in ahr-tik-y<<schwa>>-loh mor-tis). [Latin]

Scots law. Even at the point of death. • The phrase appeared in reference to a circumstance under which one could revoke a will.

ETIAM IN LECTO

etiam in lecto (ee-shee-*<<schwa>>*m in lek-toh). [Law Latin] Hist. Even upon deathbed.

ET INDE PETIT JUDICIUM

et inde petit judicium (et in-dee pet-it joo-dish-ee-*<<schwa>>*m). [Latin “and thereupon he prays judgment”] Archaic. A clause found at the end of a pleading, requesting judgment in that party's favor.

ETIQUETTE OF THE PROFESSION

etiquette of the profession. See LEGAL ETHICS(1).

ET MODO AD HUNC DIEM

et modo ad hunc diem (et moh-doh ad h*<<schwa>>ngk d<<schwa>>*m). [Latin “and now at this day”] Archaic. The formal beginning of an entry of appearance or of a continuance.

ET NON

et non (et non). [Latin “and not”] Archaic. A phrase formerly used in pleading to introduce the negative averments of a special traverse. See ABSQUE HOC.

ET SEQ

et seq. (et sek). abbr. [Latin et sequens “and the following one,” et sequentes (masc.) “and the following ones,” or et sequentia (neuter) “and the following ones”] And those (pages or sections) that follow <11 USCA §§ 101 et seq.>.

ET SIC

et sic (et sik). [Latin “and so”] Archaic. The introductory words of a special conclusion to a plea in bar, intending to render the plea positive and not argumentative.

ET SIC AD JUDICIUM

et sic ad judicium (et sik ad joo-dish-ee-*<<schwa>>*m). [Latin] Archaic. And so to judgment.

ET SIC AD PATRIAM

et sic ad patriam (et sik ad pay-tree-*<<schwa>>*m). [Latin] Hist. And so to the country. • This phrase was used in the Year Books to record an issue to the country.

ET SIC DE ANNO IN ANNUM QUAMDIU AMBOBUS PARTIBUS PLACUERIT

et sic de anno in annum quamdiu ambobus partibus placuerit (et sik dee an-oh in an-*<<schwa>>m kwam-dee-yoo am-b<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>s pahr-t<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>*s plak-yoo-air-it). Hist. And so, from year to year, so long as both parties please, or are agreed. • The phrase appeared in reference to tacit relocation. See TACIT RELOCATION.

et sic fecit (et sik fee-sit). [Latin] Archaic. And he did so.

ET SIC PENDET

et sic pendet (et sik pen-dit). [Latin] Hist. And so it hangs. • This phrase was used in the old reports to signify that a point was left undetermined.

ET SIC ULTERIUS

et sic ulterius (et sik <<schwa>>l-teer-ee-<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Archaic. And so on; and so further; and so forth.

ET UXOR

et uxor (et <<schwa>>k-sor). [Latin] Archaic. And wife. • This phrase was formerly common in case names and legal documents (esp. abstracts of title) involving a husband and wife jointly. It usu. appears in its abbreviated form, et ux. <conveyed the land to Donald Baird et ux.>. See UXOR.

ET VIR

et vir (et veer). [Latin] Archaic. And husband. See VIR.

EU

EU.abbr.EUROPEAN UNION.

EUCLIDEAN ZONING

Euclidean zoning.See ZONING.

EUNDO ET REDEUNDO

eundo et redeundo (ee-<<schwa>>n-doh et red-ee-<<schwa>>n-doh). [Latin] Hist. Going and returning. • This phrase was once used to describe vessels in transit.

EUNDO, MORANDO, ET REDEUNDO

eundo, morando, et redeundo (ee-<<schwa>>n-doh, m<<schwa>>-ran-doh, et red-ee-<<schwa>>n-doh). [Latin] Hist. Going, remaining, and returning. • This phrase was once used to describe a person (for example, a witness or legislator) who is privileged from arrest while traveling to the place where assigned duties are to be performed, while remaining there, and while returning.

EUNOMY

eunomy (yoo-n<<schwa>>-mee), n. A system of good laws that lead to civil order and justice. — Also termed eunomia. Cf. DYSNOMY. — eunomic,adj.

EURATOM

Euratom. A European Union organization that coordinates the development and use of nuclear energy in Europe. • It was created in 1958 and merged with the European Economic Community in 1967. It is governed by the Council of the European Union.

EUREKA MODEL

eureka model. Patents. The view that the inventive process is the product of a stroke of luck rather than labor. • The notion is used to counter labor-based theories justifying intellectual-property rights, since no labor is involved in a “eureka” discovery. Cf. LABOR-DESERT MODEL; LABOR MODEL.

EUREKA MOMENT

eureka moment. Slang. The instant when an inventor realizes the answer to a question or the significance of a discovery. — Also termed flash of genius.

EURIBOR

Euribor. abbr. EURO INTERBANK OFFERED RATE.

EURO

euro (yuur-oh). The official currency of most countries in the European Union. • On January 1, 1999, the euro became the single currency of the participating countries. The present participants are Austria, Belgium, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Portugal, and Spain. Euro notes and coins were issued on January 1, 2002.

EURODOLLAR

Eurodollar. United States currency held in a bank outside the U.S., usu. in Europe, and used to settle international transactions.

EURO INTERBANK OFFERED RATE

Euro Interbank Offered Rate. A measure of what major international banks charge each other for large-volume, short-term loans of euros, based on interest-rate data provided daily by a panel of representative banks across Europe. — Abbr. Euribor. Cf. LONDON INTERBANK OFFERED RATE.

EUROPEAN COMMISSION FOR HUMAN RIGHTS

European Commission for Human Rights. A body of the Council of Europe charged with overseeing the operation of the European Convention on Human Rights. • The commission is based in Strasbourg.

EUROPEAN COMMUNITY

European Community. See EUROPEAN UNION.

EUROPEAN CONVENTION ON HUMAN RIGHTS

European Convention on Human Rights. A 1950 international agreement to protect human rights. • The European Commission for Human Rights and the European Court for Human Rights were created under the convention's terms.

EUROPEAN COPYRIGHT DIRECTIVE

European Copyright Directive. An official instruction of the European Union designed to promote uniformity in certain aspects of copyright law and related rights, esp. on the Internet. • Officially titled Directive 2001/29 on the Harmonisation of Certain Aspects of Copyright and Related Rights in the Information Society, this is the European Union equivalent of the Digital Millennium Copyright Act. Among other provisions, the directive provides broad exclusive rights of reproduction and distribution to copyright holders, and requires EU member nations to prohibit the circumvention of technical measures and devices intended to prevent the alteration or reproduction of copyrighted works.

EUROPEAN COURT OF HUMAN RIGHTS

European Court of Human Rights. The judicial body of the Council of Europe. • The court was set up in 1959 and was substantially changed in 1994–1998. As of 2003, the court had 41 judges, each elected by the Council of Europe's Parliamentary Assembly. The court adjudicates alleged violations of the civil and political rights enumerated in the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms.

EUROPEAN CURRENCY UNIT

European Currency Unit. A monetary unit that was the precursor of the euro. • Created in 1979, it was an artificial currency used by the members of the European Union as their internal accounting unit. It ceased to exist in January 1999, when it was replaced by the euro. — Abbr. ECU; ecu.

EUROPEAN ECONOMIC COMMUNITY

European Economic Community. See EUROPEAN UNION.

EUROPEAN LAW

European law. 1. The law of the European Union. 2. More broadly, the law of the European Union, together with the conventions of the Council of Europe, including the European Convention on Human Rights. 3. More broadly still, all the law current in Europe, including the law of European organizations, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and all the bilateral and multilateral conventions in effect, as well as European customary law.

EUROPEAN OPTION

European option. See OPTION.

EUROPEAN PATENT CONVENTION

European Patent Convention. A 1973 treaty allowing a patent applicant to obtain patent protection in all signatory nations, mostly European Union members, through a single blanket filing and examination procedure. • The Community patent is valid in any member nation in which it is registered. The procedure is administered through the European Patent Office in Munich, Germany, and The Hague, Netherlands. — Abbr. EPC. — Also termed Convention on the Grant of European Patent.

EUROPEAN PATENT OFFICE

European Patent Office. The office that receives filings, conducts examinations, and issues Community patents applied for under the European Patent Convention. • The office is located in Munich, Germany, and The Hague, Netherlands. — Abbr. EPO.

EUROPEAN PATENT ORGANIZATION

European Patent Organization. A centralized patent-grant system, established in 1978, comprising a legislative body (the Administrative Council) and an executive body (the European Patent Office).

EUROPEAN-STYLE OPTION

European-style option. See European option under OPTION.

EUROPEAN UNION

European Union. An association of European nations whose purpose is to achieve full economic unity (and eventual political union) by agreeing to eliminate barriers to the free movement of capital, goods, and labor among the member-nations. • The European Union was formed as the European Economic Community (EEC) by the Treaty of Rome in 1957, and later renamed the European Community (EC). The European Community became the European Union when the Maastricht Treaty on European Union took effect in November 1993. — Abbr. EU.

EUTHANASIA

euthanasia (yoo-th<<schwa>>-nay-zh<<schwa>>), n. The act or practice of killing or bringing about the death of a person who suffers from an incurable disease or condition, esp. a painful one, for reasons of mercy. • Euthanasia is sometimes regarded by the law as second-degree murder, manslaughter, or criminally negligent homicide. In 2001, the Netherlands became the first nation to legalize euthanasia. — Also termed mercy killing. See LIVING WILL; ADVANCE DIRECTIVE. Cf. assisted suicide under SUICIDE; DYATHANASIA. [Cases: Homicide 765.] — euthanasic (yoo-th<<schwa>>-nay-zik), adj.

active euthanasia. Euthanasia performed by a facilitator (such as a healthcare practitioner) who not only provides the means of death but also carries out the final death-causing act.

involuntary euthanasia.Euthanasia of a competent, nonconsenting person.

nonvoluntary euthanasia.Euthanasia of an incompetent, and therefore nonconsenting, person.

passive euthanasia.The act of allowing a terminally ill person to die by either withholding or withdrawing life-sustaining support such as a respirator or feeding tube.

voluntary euthanasia.Euthanasia performed with the terminally ill person's consent. [Cases: Health 913.]

EUTHANIZE

euthanize (yoo-th<<schwa>>-nIz), vb. To put to death by euthanasia. • This term is used chiefly in reference to animals. — Also termed euthanatize.

EVALUATIVE FACT

evaluative fact.See FACT.

EVARTS ACT

Evarts Act (ev-<<schwa>>rts). An 1891 federal statute that established the circuit courts of appeals (now U.S. courts of appeals) and fixed the contemporary method of federal appellate review.

EVASION

evasion. See TAX EVASION.

EVASIVE

evasive,adj. Tending or seeking to evade; elusive; shifting. • If a pleading requiring a response is evasive, the responding party may move for a more definite statement. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(e).

EVASIVE ANSWER

evasive answer.See ANSWER.

EVEN DATE

even date.The same date. • This jargonistic phrase is sometimes used in one instrument to refer to another instrument with the same date, esp. when both relate to the same transaction (as a deed and a mortgage).

EVENINGS

evenings.Hist. The delivery at evening or night to a customary tenant of a gratuity in the form of a portion of the grass, corn, or other crop that the tenant cuts, mows, or reaps for the lord.

EVEN LOT

even lot.See round lot under LOT(3).

EVENT-DRIVEN AUDIT

event-driven audit. See AUDIT.

EVERGREEN CONTRACT

evergreen contract. See CONTRACT.

EVICT

evict, vb. 1. To expel (a person, esp. a tenant) from real property, usu. by legal process. — Also termed put out. 2. Archaic. To recover (property or title) from a person by legal process. [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 171(1). C.J.S. Landlord and Tenant § 445.] — evictor, n.

EVICION

eviction. The act or process of legally dispossessing a person of land or rental property. See FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER. Cf. EJECTMENT. [Cases: Forcible Entry and Detainer 6; Landlord and Tenant 287.]

actual eviction. A physical expulsion of a person from land or rental property. [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 171(1). C.J.S. Landlord and Tenant § 445.]

constructive eviction. 1. A landlord's act of making premises unfit for occupancy, often with the result that the tenant is compelled to leave. [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 172. C.J.S. Landlord and Tenant §§ 447, 450–451, 453, 455–456, 458.] 2. The inability of a land purchaser to obtain possession because of paramount outstanding title. • Such an eviction usu. constitutes a breach of the covenants of warranty and quiet enjoyment.

eviction by paramount title. An eviction by judicially establishing title superior to that under which the possessor claims. — Also termed eviction by title paramount.

eviction by title paramount. See eviction by paramount title.

partial eviction. An eviction, either constructive or actual, from a portion of a tenant's premises. [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 171(1). C.J.S. Landlord and Tenant § 445.]

retaliatory eviction. An eviction — nearly always illegal — commenced in response to a tenant's complaints or involvement in activities with which the landlord does not agree. [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 171(1). C.J.S. Landlord and Tenant § 445.]

summary eviction. An eviction accomplished through a simplified legal procedure, without the formalities of a full trial. [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 293.]

total eviction. An eviction that wholly deprives the tenant of any right in the premises. [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 171(1). C.J.S. Landlord and Tenant § 445.]

evidence, n. 1. Something (including testimony, documents, and tangible objects) that tends to prove or disprove the existence of an alleged fact < the bloody glove is the key piece of evidence for the prosecution>. [Cases: Criminal Law 661; Federal Civil Procedure 2011; Trial 43. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 656, 751, 1202; Trial § 162.] 2. See fact in evidence under FACT. 3. The collective mass of things, esp. testimony and exhibits, presented before a tribunal in a given dispute <the evidence will show that the defendant breached the contract>. 4. The body of law regulating the admissibility of what is offered as proof into the record of a legal proceeding <under the rules of evidence, the witness's statement is inadmissible hearsay that is not subject to any exception>. — Also termed (in sense 4) rules of evidence. [Cases: Criminal Law 661; Federal Civil Procedure 2011; Trial 43. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 656, 751, 1202; Trial § 162.] — evidence,vb.

“Evidence is any matter of fact which is furnished to a legal tribunal, otherwise than by reasoning or a reference to what is noticed without proof, as the basis of inference in ascertaining some other matter of fact.” James B. Thayer, Presumptions and the Law of Evidence, 3 Harv. L. Rev. 141, 142 (1889).

“Evidence, broadly defined, is the means from which an inference may logically be drawn as to the existence of a fact; that which makes evident or plain. Evidence is the demonstration of a fact; it signifies that which demonstrates, makes clear, or ascertains the truth of the very fact or point in issue, either on the one side or on the other. In legal acceptance, the term ‘evidence’ includes all the means by which any alleged matter of fact, the truth of which is submitted to investigation, is established or disproved. ‘Evidence’ has also been defined to mean any species of proof legally presented at the trial of an issue, by the act of the parties and through the medium of witnesses, records, documents, concrete objects, and the like.” 31A C.J.S. Evidence § 3, at 67–68 (1996).

adminicular evidence. Rare. Corroborating or auxiliary evidence presented for the purpose of explaining or completing other evidence.

admissible evidence. Evidence that is relevant and is of such a character (e.g., not unfairly prejudicial, based on hearsay, or privileged) that the court should receive it. — Also termed competent evidence; proper evidence; legal evidence. [Cases: Criminal Law 661; Federal Civil Procedure 2011; Trial 43. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 656, 751, 1202; Trial § 162.]

autoptic evidence. See demonstrative evidence.

best evidence. Evidence of the highest quality available, as measured by the nature of the case rather than the thing being offered as evidence. • The term is usu. applied to writings and recordings. If the original is available, it must be offered rather than a copy or oral rendition. Fed. R. Evid. 1002. — Also termed primary evidence; original evidence. See BEST-EVIDENCE RULE. Cf. secondary evidence. [Cases: Criminal Law 398–403; Evidence 157–187. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 833–845; Evidence §§ 1054–1131.]

“In some circumstances, ‘best evidence’ may mean that evidence which is more specific and definite as opposed to that which is merely general and indefinite or descriptive. However, ‘best evidence’ or ‘primary evidence’ is variously defined as that particular means of proof which is indicated by the nature of the fact under investigation as the most natural and satisfactory, or as that kind of proof which under any possible circumstances affords the greatest certainty of the fact in question; or as evidence which carries on its face no indication that better remains behind.” 32A C.J.S. Evidence § 1054, at 417 (1996).

character evidence. Evidence regarding someone's general personality traits or propensities, of a praiseworthy or blameworthy nature; evidence of a person's moral standing in a community. Fed. R. Evid. 404, 405, 608. • Character evidence is usu., but not always, prohibited if offered to show that the person acted in conformity with that character. [Cases: Criminal Law 375; Evidence 106; Witnesses 333–362. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 816–818; Evidence §§ 495–497, 499–502, 504–506; Witnesses §§ 566, 585–617.]

circumstantial evidence. 1. Evidence based on inference and not on personal knowledge or observation. — Also termed indirect evidence; oblique evidence. Cf. direct evidence (1). [Cases: Criminal Law 338(2), 552; Evidence 100, 587. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 718, 1103; Evidence §§ 3, 205, 245, 1330.] 2. All evidence that is not given by eyewitness testimony.

“Some circumstantial evidence is very strong, as when you find a trout in the milk.” Henry David Thoreau, Journal, 11 Nov. 1850, in 2 Journal of Henry D. Thoreau 94 (Bradford Torrey & Francis H. Allen eds., 1962).

“Indirect evidence (called by the civilians, oblique, and more commonly known as circumstantial evidence) is that which is applied to the principal fact, indirectly, or through the medium of other facts, by establishing certain circumstances or minor facts, already described as evidentiary, from which the principal fact is extracted and gathered by a process of special inference ....” Alexander M. Burrill, A Treatise on the Nature, Principles and Rules of Circumstantial Evidence 4 (1868).

“Testimonial evidence readily defines itself by its name; it is any assertion by a human being, offered to evidence the truth of the matter asserted. Circumstantial evidence is any and all other evidence. Scientifically the term ‘circumstantial’ is indefensible, for it does not correlate with ‘testimonial’; a more correct equivalent would be ‘nontestimonial.’ But no one has yet invented an acceptable substitute for ‘circumstantial.’ ” John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 38 (1935).

clear and convincing evidence. Evidence indicating that the thing to be proved is highly probable or reasonably certain. • This is a greater burden than preponderance of the evidence, the standard applied in most civil trials, but less than evidence beyond a reasonable doubt, the norm for criminal trials. — Also termed clear and convincing proof. See REASONABLE DOUBT. Cf. PREPONDERANCE OF THE EVIDENCE. [Cases: Evidence 596(1). C.J.S. Evidence §§ 1299, 1304–1306, 1308, 1310–1311, 1315–1317.]

competent evidence. 1. See admissible evidence. 2. See relevant evidence.

conclusive evidence. 1. Evidence so strong as to overbear any other evidence to the contrary. — Also termed conclusive proof. [Cases: Criminal Law 549; Evidence 584(1). C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 655, 1094–1095, 1097, 1102; Evidence §§ 226, 729, 1300–1305, 1320, 1324, 1326–1327, 1342, 1345.] 2. Evidence that so preponderates as to oblige a fact-finder to come to a certain conclusion.

concomitant evidence. Evidence that, at the time of the act, the alleged doer of the act was present and actually did it.

conflicting evidence. Evidence that comes from different sources and is often irreconcilable.

corroborating evidence. Evidence that differs from but strengthens or confirms what other evidence shows (esp. that which needs support). — Also termed corroborative evidence. Cf. cumulative evidence.

credible evidence. Evidence that is worthy of belief; trustworthy evidence.

critical evidence. Evidence strong enough that its presence could tilt a juror's mind. • Under the Due Process Clause, an indigent criminal defendant is usu. entitled to an expert opinion of the merits of critical evidence. — Also termed crucial evidence.

crucial evidence. See critical evidence.

cumulative evidence. Additional evidence that supports a fact established by the existing evidence (esp. that which does not need further support). Cf. corroborating evidence. [Cases: Criminal Law 675; Federal Civil Procedure 2011; Trial 56. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 1212; Trial § 183.]

demeanor evidence. The behavior and appearance of a witness on the witness stand, to be considered by the fact-finder on the issue of credibility. [Cases: Criminal Law 553; Evidence 588. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 1099, 1101–1102; Evidence §§ 1318–1320, 1322, 1329.]

demonstrative evidence (di-mon-str<<schwa>>-tiv). Physical evidence that one can see and inspect (i.e., an explanatory aid, such as a chart, map, and some computer simulations) and that, while of probative value and usu. offered to clarify testimony, does not play a direct part in the incident in question. • This term sometimes overlaps with and is used as a synonym of real evidence. — Also termed illustrative evidence; autoptic evidence; autoptic proference; real evidence; tangible evidence. See nonverbal testimony under TESTIMONY. Cf. real evidence; testimonial evidence. [Cases: Criminal Law 404.5–404.85; Evidence 188–198. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 846–855; Evidence §§ 789–802.]

“There remains a source of proof, distinct from either circumstantial or testimonial evidence, viz., what the tribunal sees or hears by its own senses. Whether this should be termed ‘evidence’ or not is a question of words, open to difference of view. But it is universally conceded to be an available source of proof. Bentham's term for it, ‘real evidence,’ came into wide vogue, but is ambiguous. The term ‘autoptic proference’ (etymologically meaning ‘showing to the tribunal's own vision') is preferable." John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 39 (1935).

derivative evidence. Evidence that is discovered as a result of illegally obtained evidence and is therefore inadmissible because of the primary taint. See EXCLUSIONARY RULE; FRUIT-OF-THE-POISONOUS-TREE DOCTRINE. [Cases: Criminal Law 394.1(3). C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 771, 773–775.]

direct evidence. 1. Evidence that is based on personal knowledge or observation and that, if true, proves a fact without inference or presumption. — Also termed positive evidence. Cf. circumstantial evidence; negative evidence. [Cases: Criminal Law 549; Evidence 587. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 655, 1094–1095, 1097, 1102; Evidence § 1330.] 2. See original evidence (1).

"A little reflection shows that no disputed case will ordinarily be proved solely by circumstantial or solely by testimonial evidence. Ordinarily there is evidence of both kinds. The matter has been obscured by the use of the term 'direct evidence,' — a term sometimes used to mean testimonial evidence in general, but sometimes also limited to apply only to testimony directly asserting the fact-in-issue.... The term 'direct' evidence has no utility." John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 40 (1935).

documentary evidence. Evidence supplied by a writing or other document, which must be authenticated before the evidence is admissible. [Cases: Criminal Law 429–446; Evidence 325–383. C.J.S. Attachment § 145; Criminal Law §§ 1025–1049; Evidence §§ 813–815, 818–822, 824–1036, 1065; Patents § 179.]

downright evidence. See DOWNRIGHT EVIDENCE.

evidence aliunde. See extrinsic evidence (1).

evidence-in-chief. Evidence used by a party in making its case-in-chief. [Cases: Criminal Law 682; Federal Civil Procedure 2015; Trial 61. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 1218; Trial §§ 193–194.]

exclusive evidence. The only facts that have, or are allowed by law to have, any probative force at all on a particular matter in issue.

"[T]here is an important class of rules declaring certain facts to be exclusive evidence, none other being admissible. The execution of a document which requires attestation can be proved in no other way than by the testimony of an attesting witness, unless owing to the death or some other circumstance his testimony is unavailable. A written contract can generally be proved in no other way than by the production of the writing itself, whenever its production is possible." John Salmond, Jurisprudence 485 (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

exculpatory evidence (ek-sk<<schwa>>l-p<<schwa>>-tor-ee). Evidence tending to establish a criminal defendant's innocence. Fed. R. Crim. P. 16. • The prosecution has a duty to disclose exculpatory evidence in its possession or control when the evidence may be material to the outcome of the case. See BRADY MATERIAL. [Cases: Criminal Law 359, 700(2.1). C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 728–729.]

expert evidence. Evidence about a scientific, technical, professional, or other specialized issue given by a person qualified to testify because of familiarity with the subject or special training in the field. — Also termed expert testimony. Fed. R. Evid. 702–705. See DAUBERT TEST. [Cases: Criminal Law 469–494; Evidence 505–574. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 853, 1059–1072, 1076–1088; Evidence §§ 223, 510, 513–514, 521, 523–527, 597–632, 634–660, 662–668, 670–671, 673–688, 691–709, 713–759, 800–812.]

extrajudicial evidence. Evidence that does not come directly under judicial cognizance but nevertheless constitutes an intermediate link between judicial evidence and the fact requiring proof. • It includes all facts that are known to the tribunal only by way of inference from some form of judicial evidence. See JUDICIAL NOTICE. Cf. judicial evidence.

extrinsic evidence. 1. Evidence relating to a contract but not appearing on the face of the contract because it comes from other sources, such as statements between the parties or the circumstances surrounding the agreement. • Extrinsic evidence is usu. not admissible to contradict or add to the terms of an unambiguous document. — Also termed extraneous evidence; parol evidence; evidence aliunde. [Cases: Evidence 384–469. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 1132–1186, 1188–1298.] 2. Evidence that is not legitimately before the court. Cf. intrinsic evidence. 3. Evidence that is calculated to impeach a witness's credibility, adduced by means other than cross-examination of the witness. • The means may include evidence in documents and recordings and the testimony of other witnesses. See Fed. R. Evid. 608(b) & note.

“Under [Federal Rule of Evidence] 608(b), if the witness denies engaging in untruthful misconduct, the cross-examiner must ‘take the witness’ answer,’ meaning the questioner may not introduce extrinsic evidence to contradict the witness’ denial through other witness testimony or the introduction of impeaching documents, or indeed any other evidence than the cross-examination, even if the questioner waits until it is his turn to put on evidence.” Paul F. Rothstein, The Federal Rules of Evidence 312 (3d ed. 2003).

fabricated evidence. False or deceitful evidence that is unlawfully created, usu. after the relevant event, in an attempt to achieve or avoid liability or conviction. — Also termed fabricated fact.

false evidence. See false testimony under TESTIMONY.

forensic evidence. Evidence used in court; esp., evidence arrived at by scientific or technical means, such as ballistic or medical evidence. [Cases: Evidence 150. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 216–226.]

foundational evidence. Evidence that determines the admissibility of other evidence.

habit evidence. Evidence of one's regular response to a repeated specific situation. Fed. R. Evid. 406. [Cases: Evidence 138. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 763–765, 768–769, 785.]

hearsay evidence. See HEARSAY.

illegally obtained evidence. Evidence obtained by violating a statute or a person's constitutional or other right, esp. the Fourth Amendment guarantee against unreasonable searches, the Fifth Amendment right to remain silent, or the Sixth Amendment right to counsel. [Cases: Criminal Law 394.1–394.6; Evidence 154. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 770–797; Evidence §§ 252–258.]

illustrative evidence. See demonstrative evidence.

immaterial evidence. 1. Evidence lacking in probative value. 2. Evidence offered to prove a matter that is not in issue. [Cases: Criminal Law 382; Evidence 143. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 749; Evidence §§ 197, 201–204.]

impeachment evidence. Evidence used to undermine a witness's credibility. Fed. R. Evid. 607–610. [Cases: Witnesses 311–409. C.J.S. Witnesses §§ 559–775.]

impertinent evidence. See irrelevant evidence.

incompetent evidence. Evidence that is for any reason inadmissible. [Cases: Criminal Law 385; Evidence 148. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 656, 753; Evidence §§ 3–5, 197, 246–247.]

incriminating evidence. Evidence tending to establish guilt or from which a fact-trier can infer guilt.

inculpatory evidence (in-k<<schwa>>l-p<<schwa>>-tor-ee). Evidence showing or tending to show one's involvement in a crime or wrong.

indirect evidence. See circumstantial evidence (1).

indispensable evidence. Evidence without which a particular fact cannot be proved.

insufficient evidence. Evidence that is inadequate to prove or support a finding of something. • This term usu. describes a case that is not strong enough to even get to the fact-finder. [Cases: Evidence 584–601. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 226, 339, 729, 1299–1343, 1345.]

intrinsic evidence. 1. Evidence brought out by the examination of the witness testifying. 2. Evidence existing within a writing. Cf. extrinsic evidence (2).

irrelevant evidence. Evidence not tending to prove or disprove a matter in issue. Fed. R. Evid. 401–403. — Also termed impertinent evidence. See IRRELEVANT. [Cases: Criminal Law 338; Evidence 99. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 710, 730; Evidence §§ 2–5, 197–199, 204, 206.]

judicial evidence. Evidence produced in court, consisting of all facts brought to the attention of or admitted into evidence before the tribunal. Cf. extrajudicial evidence.

legal evidence. 1. See admissible evidence. 2. All admissible evidence, both oral and documentary, of such a character that it reasonably and substantially proves the point rather than merely raising suspicion or conjecture.

material evidence. Evidence having some logical connection with the facts of consequence or the issues. Cf. relevant evidence; immaterial evidence. [Cases: Criminal Law 382; Evidence 143. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 749; Evidence §§ 197, 201–204.]

mathematical evidence. 1. Loosely, evidence that establishes its conclusions with absolute certainty. 2. Evidence pertaining to mathematical or statistical matters, or probabilities.

mediate evidence. See secondary evidence.

medical evidence. Evidence furnished by a doctor, nurse, or other qualified medical person testifying in a professional capacity as an expert, or by a standard treatise on medicine or surgery. [Cases: Evidence 555.10. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 639–643.]

moral evidence. Loosely, evidence that depends on a belief, rather than complete and absolute proof. • Generally, moral evidence is testimonial.

multiple evidence. Evidence with probative or other value on more than one issue but usually admitted into evidence for one specific purpose. • Impeachment evidence, for example, may not be probative on a particular issue but may nonetheless affect the jury's perceptions of several issues.

negative evidence. Evidence suggesting that an alleged fact does not exist, such as a witness's testifying that he or she did not see an event occur. • Negative evidence is generally regarded as weaker than positive evidence because a positive assertion that a witness saw an event is a stronger statement than an assertion that a witness did not see it. But a negative assertion will sometimes be considered positive evidence, depending on the witness's opportunity to see the event. For instance, testimony that the witness watched the entire game and saw no riot in the stands is stronger than testimony stating only that the witness did not see a riot. — Also termed negative testimony. Cf. direct evidence (1). [Cases: Criminal Law 387; Evidence 147, 586. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 752, 819; Evidence §§ 3, 209, 339, 508, 1309, 1328.]

newly discovered evidence. Evidence existing at the time of a motion or trial but then unknown to a party, who, upon later discovering it, may assert it as grounds for reconsideration or a new trial. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b). [Cases: Criminal Law 938; Federal Civil Procedure 2350, 2655; New Trial 99. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 1447; New Trial §§ 130, 259.]

no evidence. See NO EVIDENCE.

oblique evidence. See circumstantial evidence (1).

opinion evidence. A witness's belief, thought, inference, or conclusion concerning a fact or facts. Fed. R. Evid. 701–705. See OPINION(3); OPINION RULE. [Cases: Criminal Law 448; Evidence 470–574. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 1050; Evidence §§ 223, 509–759, 800–812; Executions § 435.]

“In a sense all testimony to matter of fact is opinion evidence; i.e. it is a conclusion formed from phenomena and mental impressions.” James B. Thayer, A Preliminary Treatise on Evidence at the Common Law 524 (1898).

oral evidence. See testimonial evidence.

original evidence. 1. A witness's statement that he or she perceived a fact in issue by one of the five senses, or that the witness was in a particular physical or mental state. — Also termed direct evidence. Cf. HEARSAY. 2. See best evidence.

parol evidence (p<<schwa>>-rohlorpar-<<schwa>>l).1. Evidence of oral statements. [Cases: Criminal Law 447; Witnesses 228. C.J.S. Witnesses §§ 396–398, 404–405.] 2. See extrinsic evidence (1). See PAROL-EVIDENCE RULE.

partial evidence.Evidence that establishes one of a series of facts.

personal evidence.See TESTIMONY.

positive evidence.See direct evidence (1). preappointed evidence.Evidence prescribed in advance (as by statute) for the proof of certain facts.

preliminary evidence.Evidence that is necessary to begin a hearing or trial and that may be received conditionally in anticipation of other evidence linking it to issues in the case. Fed. R. Evid. 104. [Cases: Evidence 117; Federal Civil Procedure 2014. C.J.S. Evidence § 208.]

presumptive evidence. 1. Evidence deemed sufficient to establish another fact unless discredited by other evidence. [Cases: Evidence 53–89. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 2, 130–196, 1341.] 2.Archaic.Circumstantial evidence as distinct from testimonial evidence. — Also termed probable evidence.

prima facie evidence (prI-m<<schwa>> fay-sh<<schwa>>). Evidence that will establish a fact or sustain a judgment unless contradictory evidence is produced. [Cases: Evidence 584(1). C.J.S. Evidence §§ 226, 729, 1300–1305, 1320, 1324, 1326–1327, 1342, 1345.]

“The legislative branch may create an evidential presumption, or a rule of ‘prima facie’ evidence, i.e., a rule which does not shut out evidence, but merely declares that certain conduct shall suffice as evidence until the opponent produces contrary evidence.” John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 237 (1935).

primary evidence.See best evidence.

privileged evidence.Evidence that is exempt from production to an opposing party or tribunal (with certain limited exceptions) because it is covered by one or more statutory or common-law protections, such as the attorney–client privilege. See privileged communication under COMMUNICATION. [Cases: Witnesses 184–223. C.J.S. Witnesses §§ 297–389.]

probable evidence.See presumptive evidence.

probative evidence (proh-b<<schwa>>-tiv). Evidence that tends to prove or disprove a point in issue. [Cases: Evidence 99. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 2–5, 197–199, 204, 206.]

proffered evidence (prof-<<schwa>>rd).1. Evidence that is offered to the court to obtain a ruling on its admissibility. 2. Evidence whose admissibility depends on the existence or nonexistence of a preliminary fact. [Cases: Evidence 117; Federal Civil Procedure 2011. C.J.S. Evidence § 208.]

proper evidence.See admissible evidence.

prospectant evidence (pr<<schwa>>-spek-t<<schwa>>nt). Evidence that, before someone does an act, suggests that the person might or might not do the act. • This evidence typically falls into any of five categories: (1) moral character or disposition, (2) physical and mental capacity, (3) habit or custom, (4) emotion or motive, and (5) plan, design, or intention.

Queen's evidence.English law. Testimony provided by one criminal defendant, usu. under a promise of pardon, against another criminal defendant. — Also termed (when a king reigns) King's evidence. See state's evidence.

real evidence. 1. Physical evidence (such as clothing or a knife wound) that itself plays a direct part in the incident in question. — Also termed physical evidence. [Cases: Criminal Law 405; Evidence 188. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 877; Evidence §§ 789–791, 794, 796.] 2. See demonstrative evidence.

“Anything which is believed for any other reason than that someone has said so, is believed on real evidence.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 480 (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

rebuttal evidence.Evidence offered to disprove or contradict the evidence presented by an opposing party. • Rebuttal evidence is introduced in the rebutting party's answering case; it is not adduced, e.g., through cross-examination during the case-in-chief of the party to be rebutted. — Also termed rebutting evidence. [Cases: Criminal Law 683; Federal Civil Procedure 2015; Trial 62. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 1219; Trial § 195.]

relevant evidence.Evidence tending to prove or disprove a matter in issue. • Relevant evidence is both probative and material and is admissible unless excluded by a specific statute or rule. Fed. R. Evid. 401–403. — Also termed competent evidence. Cf. material evidence. [Cases: Criminal Law 338; Evidence 99. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 710, 730; Evidence §§ 2–5, 197–199, 204, 206.]

reputation evidence.Evidence of what one is thought by others to be. • Reputation evidence may be introduced as proof of character when character is in issue or is used circumstantially. Fed. R. Evid. 405(a). — Also termed reputational evidence. [Cases: Criminal Law 375; Evidence 106; Witnesses 333–362. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 816–818; Evidence §§ 495–497, 499–502, 504–506; Witnesses §§ 566, 585–617.]

retrospectant evidence (re-tr<<schwa>>-spek-t<<schwa>>nt). Evidence that, although it occurs after an act has been done, suggests that the alleged doer of the act actually did it <when goods have been stolen, and the thief is sought, a person's later possession of those goods amounts to retrospectant evidence that this person took them>. — Also termed traces.

satisfactory evidence.Evidence that is sufficient to satisfy an unprejudiced mind seeking the truth. — Also termed sufficient evidence; satisfactory proof. [Cases: Evidence 584(1). C.J.S. Evidence §§ 226, 729, 1300–1305, 1320, 1324, 1326–1327, 1342, 1345.]

scientific evidence.Fact or opinion evidence that purports to draw on specialized knowledge of a science or to rely on scientific principles for its evidentiary value. See DAUBERT TEST. [Cases: Criminal Law 388; Evidence 150, 505–574. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 761; Evidence §§ secondary evidence.Evidence that is inferior to the primary or best evidence and that becomes admissible when the primary or best evidence is lost or inaccessible. • Examples include a copy of a lost instrument and testimony regarding a lost instrument's contents. — Also termed mediate evidence; mediate testimony; substitutionary evidence. See Fed. R. Evid. 1004. Cf. best evidence. [Cases: Evidence 157–187. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 1054–1131.]

secret evidence.Classified information that may be used against a defendant in an immigration proceeding but withheld from the defendant, the defendant's lawyer, and the public on national-security grounds. • The use of secret evidence was made easier under the Anti-Terrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996.

signature evidence.Highly distinctive evidence of a person's prior bad acts. • While ordinarily inadmissible, signature evidence will be admitted if it shows, for example, that two crimes were committed through the same planning, design, scheme, or modus operandi, and in such a way that the prior act and the current act are uniquely identifiable as those of the defendant. See Fed. R. Evid. 404(b). [Cases: Criminal Law 369.15; Evidence 129(5), 133. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 827; Evidence §§ 764–766.]

slight evidence.A small quantity of evidence; esp., the small amount of evidence sufficient to remove a presumption from a case or for a rational fact-finder to conclude that something essential has not been established beyond a reasonable doubt. See SLIGHT-EVIDENCE RULE.

state's evidence.Testimony provided by one criminal defendant — under a promise of immunity or reduced sentence — against another criminal defendant. See TURN STATE'S EVIDENCE.

substantial evidence. 1. Evidence that a reasonable mind could accept as adequate to support a conclusion; evidence beyond a scintilla. See SUBSTANTIAL-EVIDENCE RULEE. [Cases: Administrative Law and Procedure 791; Evidence 597. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 1301, 1304, 1306, 1339; Public Administrative Law and Procedure §§ 213, 237–238.] 2. The product of adequately controlled investigations, including clinical studies, carried out by qualified experts that establish the effectiveness of a drug under FSA regulations. 21USCA § 355(e).

substantive evidence (s<<schwa>>b-st<<schwa>>n-tiv). Evidence offered to help establish a fact in issue, as opposed to evidence directed to impeach or to support a witness's credibility. [Cases: Evidence 226. C.J.S. Evidence § 415.]

substitutionary evidence.See secondary evidence.

sufficient evidence.See satisfactory evidence.

tainted evidence.Evidence that is inadmissible because it was directly or indirectly obtained by illegal means. See FRUIT-OF-THE-POISONOUS-TREE DOCTRINE. [Cases: Criminal Law tangible evidence. Physical evidence that is either real or demonstrative. See demonstrative evidence; real evidence.

394; Evidence 154. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 770; Evidence §§ 252–258.]

testimonial evidence. A person's testimony offered to prove the truth of the matter asserted; esp., evidence elicited from a witness. — Also termed communicative evidence; oral evidence. Cf. demonstrative evidence. [Cases: Trial 43. C.J.S. Trial § 162.]

“An assertion is testimonial evidence whether made out of court or in court, if it is offered with a view to persuading the tribunal of the matter asserted.” John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 120 (1935).

traditionary evidence. Evidence derived from a deceased person's former statements or reputation. • Traditionary evidence is admissible to prove ancestry, ancient boundaries, or similar facts, usu. when no living witnesses are available to testify. [Cases: Boundaries 35(2); Evidence 274, 302. C.J.S. Boundaries § 120; Evidence §§ 306, 322.]

unwritten evidence. Evidence given orally, in court or by deposition.

EVIDENCE BY INSPECTION

evidence by inspection. See demonstrative evidence under EVIDENCE.

EVIDENCE CODE

evidence code. A relatively comprehensive set of statutory provisions or rules governing the admissibility of evidence at hearings and trials.

EVIDENCE OF DEBT

evidence of debt. See SECURITY(4).

EVIDENCE OF INDEBTEDNESS

evidence of indebtedness. See SECURITY(4).

EVIDENCE OF INSURABILITY

evidence of insurability. Information — such as medical records or a medical examination — that an insurer may require to establish a potential insured's qualification for a particular insurance policy. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1973; Trial 127. C.J.S. Trial §§ 136–139, 262, 317.]

EVIDENCE OF TITLE

evidence of title. The means by which the ownership of land is satisfactorily demonstrated within a given jurisdiction. See DEED. [Cases: Property 9. C.J.S. Property §§ 35–37.]

“There are four kinds of evidence of title: abstract and opinion, certificate of title, title insurance and Torrens certificate. The certificate of title is used extensively in the Eastern states, and some Southern states. In urban centers in a great many sections of the country, title insurance occupies a dominant position in real estate transactions. In farm areas the abstract and opinion method is common. To a great extent, the acceptability of a particular kind of evidence of title depends on the local custom.” Robert Kratovil, Real Estate Law 170 (6th ed. 1974).

EVIDENCE RULES

evidence rules. See EVIDENCE(4).

EVIDENCING FEATURE

evidencing feature. Evidence. A group of circumstances that, when taken as a whole, form a composite feature that can be reliably associated with a single object. • This term appears more frequently in criminal cases than in civil. In criminal cases, it usu. refers to evidence that establishes a perpetrator's identity, but in civil cases it often refers to evidence that an event did or did not occur. — Also termed evidencing mark; evidential mark.

EVIDENCING MARK

evidencing mark. See EVIDENCING FEATURE.

EVIDENTIA

evidentia (ev-i-den-shee-<<schwa>>), n. [Law Latin] Evidence.

EVIDENTIAL

evidential, adj. Of, relating to, relying on, or constituting evidence; EVIDENTIARY(1).

EVIDENTIAL FACT

evidential fact. See evidentiary fact (2) under FACT.

EVIDENTIAL MARK

evidential mark. See EVIDENCING FEATURE.

EVIDENTIARY

evidentiary (ev-i-den-sh*<<schwa>>*-ree), adj. 1. Having the quality of evidence; constituting evidence; evidencing. 2. Pertaining to the rules of evidence or the evidence in a particular case.

EVIDENTIARY FACT

evidentiary fact. See FACT.

EVIDENTIARY HEARING

evidentiary hearing. See HEARING.

EVINCE

evince, vb. To show, indicate, or reveal <in abstaining from the vote, Hariden evinced misgivings about the nomination>.

EVOCATION

evocation (ev-<<schwa>>-kay-sh<<schwa>>n). French law. The act of withdrawing a case from an inferior court and bringing it before a superior court.

EVOCATIVE TRADEMARK

evocative trademark. See suggestive trademark under TRADEMARK.

EVOLUTION STATUTE

evolution statute. See ANTI-EVOLUTION STATUTE.

EWAGE

ewage (yoo-ij), n. [Law French] Hist. A toll paid for water passage.

EX

ex. 1. Former <ex-wife>. 2. Without <ex rights>. 3. From <ex cathedra>. 4. (usu. cap.) abbr. Exhibit <Ex. 4>. 5. abbr. Example <this is but one ex. of several that might be cited>. 6. (cap.) abbr. EXCHEQUER.

EX ABUNDANTI

ex abundanti (eks ab-<<schwa>>n-dan-tI). [Latin "out of abundance"] Archaic. Abundantly; superfluously.

EX ABUNDANTI CAUTELA

ex abundanti cautela (eks ab-<<schwa>>n-dan-tI kaw-tee-l<<schwa>>). [Latin] Archaic. Out of abundant caution; to be on the safe side.

EXACTA DILIGENTIA

exacta diligentia. See DILIGENTIA.

EXACTION

exaction, n. 1. The act of demanding more money than is due; extortion. 2. A fee, reward, or other compensation arbitrarily or wrongfully demanded. [Cases: Extortion and Threats 7, 25.1. C.J.S. Threats and Unlawful Communications §§ 2–20.] — exact, vb.

EXACTOR

exactor. 1. Civil law. A tax collector; a gatherer or receiver of money. 2. Hist. A collector of public funds; a tax collector.

EX ADVERSO

ex adverso (eks ad-v-<<schwa>>r-soh). [Latin] On the other side. • This term is sometimes applied to opposing counsel.

EX AEQUITATE

ex aequitate (eks ee-kw-<<schwa>>-tay-tee). [Latin] According to equity; in equity. [Cases:

Equity 3.]

EX AEQUO ET BONO

ex aequo et bono (eks ee-kwoh et boh-noh). [Latin] According to what is equitable and good.
 • A decision-maker (esp. in international law) who is authorized to decide ex aequo et bono is not bound by legal rules and may instead follow equitable principles. For example, article 38(2) of the Statute of the International Court of Justice provides that the Court may “decide a case ex aequo et bono if the parties agree thereto.” 37 ILM 999. [Cases: Equity 54.]

EX ALTERA PARTE

ex altera parte (eks al-t<<schwa>>r-<<schwa>> [orawl-] pahr-tee). [Latin] Of the other part.

EXAMEN

examen (eg-zay-m<<schwa>>n), n.[Law Latin] A trial; investigation.

EXAMEN COMPUTI

examen computi (eg-zay-m<<schwa>>n k<<schwa>>m-pyoo-ti). [Latin] The balance of an account.

EXAMINATION

examination.1. The questioning of a witness under oath. See DIRECT EXAMINATION ; CROSS-EXAMINATION. [Cases: Witnesses 224–228. C.J.S. Witnesses §§ 390–394, 396–398, 404–405.] 2.Bankruptcy. The questioning of a debtor, esp. at the first meeting of creditors, concerning such matters as the bankrupt's debts and assets. [Cases: Bankruptcy 3040. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 204.] 3. An inquiry made at the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, upon application for a patent, into the alleged invention's novelty and utility, and whether it interferes with any other pending application or in-force patent. [Cases: Patents 104. C.J.S. Patents §§ 145–147, 149–151, 173–175.]

preliminary examination.Patents. A patent office's initial review of an application, usu. to see whether the specification is properly set out and to prepare a search report. [Cases: Patents 104. C.J.S. Patents §§ 145–147, 149–151, 173–175.]

4.PRELIMINARY HEARING. 5. A test, such as a bar examination.

EXAMINATION BEFORE TRIAL

examination before trial.See DEPOSITION(1).

EXAMINATION-IN-CHIEF

examination-in-chief. See DIRECT EXAMINATION.

EXAMINATION ON THE VOIR DIRE

examination on the voir dire.See VOIR DIRE.

EXAMINATIONPRO INTERESSE SUO

examination pro interesse suo (proh in-t<<schwa>>r-es-ee s[y]oo-oh). [Latin “according to his interest”] A judicial inquiry into the merits of a person's claim to sequestered property. [Cases: Sequestration 18. C.J.S. Sequestration §§ 31–32.]

“In practice, an examination pro interesse suo is an inquiry described as follows: When any person claims to be entitled to an estate or other property sequestered, whether by mortgage or judgment, lease or otherwise, or has a title paramount to the sequestration, he should apply to the court to direct an inquiry whether the applicant has any and what interest in the property sequestered.” 79A C.J.S. Sequestration § 31, at 589 (1995).

EXAMINATION SYSTEM

examination system.Patents. A patent system in which an invention is subjected to official scrutiny to determine whether it qualifies for patent protection. Cf. REGISTRATION SYSTEM.

EXAMINED COPY

examined copy.See COPY.

EXAMINER

examiner.1. One authorized to conduct an examination; esp., a person appointed by the court, esp. a court of equity, to administer an oath and take testimony. See MASTER(2). — Also formerly termed examiner in chancery. 2. A patent officer responsible for determining the patentability of an invention submitted to the patent office. [Cases: Patents 104. C.J.S. Patents §§ 145–147, 149–151, 173–175.] 3.MEDICAL EXAMINER.

EXAMINER IN CHANCERY

examiner in chancery.See EXAMINER(1).

EXAMINER-IN-CHIEF

examiner-in-chief.Hist. Patents. 1. A member of the quasi-judicial body in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office that formerly heard appeals of interference decisions and patent-application rejections. 2. (pl. cap.) The body comprising those members; the predecessor of the Board of Appeals, the Board of Patent Interferences, and the present-day Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences.

EXAMINER'S AMENDMENT

examiner's amendment.Patents & trademarks. Minor changes in the form of a patent or trademark application, made by the examiner rather than the applicant. • For example, the examiner may correct spelling and grammar rather than wait for the applicant to respond. A patent examiner may also amend or cancel claims if authorized by the applicant.

EXAMINER'S ANSWER

examiner's answer.Patents. The brief filed by a patent examiner with the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences to rebut the arguments in an appeal brief and to defend the examiner's decision to reject the application. Cf. appeal brief under BRIEF. [Cases: Patents 111. C.J.S. Patents §§ 180–183.]

EXAMINING AUTHORITY

examining authority. See AUTHORITY(3).

EXAMINING BOARD

examining board. An appointed group of public officials responsible for conducting the tests required by those applying for occupational and professional licenses. — Also termed board of examiners. [Cases: Licenses 21. C.J.S. Agriculture §§ 4.5; Architects § 4; Licenses §§ 37–38.]

EXAMINING COURT

examining court. See COURT.

EXAMINING GROUP

examining group. Patents. A committee of patent examiners that specializes in a particular area of technology.

EXAMINING TRIAL

examining trial. See PRELIMINARY HEARING.

EXAMPLE

example. Patents. A detailed description of an invention's embodiment. — Also termed specific example; working example.

EXANNUAL ROLL

exannual roll (eks-an-yoo-<<schwa>>l). Hist. In England, a roll into which illeivable fines and desperate debts were transcribed and that was annually read to the sheriff upon his accounting to see what might be gotten.

EX ANTE<TT>

ex ante (eks an-tee), adj. & adv. [Latin “from before”] Based on assumption and prediction, on how things appeared beforehand, rather than in hindsight; subjective; prospective <from an ex ante perspective>. Cf. EX POST.

EX ARBITRIO JUDICIS

ex arbitrio judicis (eks ahr-bi-tree-oh joo-di-sis). [Latin] Civil law. At, from, or upon the discretion of the judge.

EX ASSENSU CURIAE

EXCAMBIUM

excambium (eks-kam-bee-<<schwa>>m), n.[Latin] 1. An exchange; a place where merchants meet to transact their business. — Also termed (in Scots law) excambion. 2. An equivalent in recompense; a recompense in lieu of dower ad ostium ecclesiae.

EX CAPITE

ex capite (eks kap-i-tee). [Latin] On the ground of; by reason of. See LIEGE POUSTIE .

EX CAPITE DOLI

ex capite doli (eks kap-i-tee doh-II). [Law Latin] Hist. On the ground of dole; for the reason of fraud. — Also termed ex capite fraudis.

EX CAPITE INHIBITIONIS

ex capite inhibitionis (eks kap-i-tee in-hi-bish-ee-oh-nis). [Law Latin] Scots law. On the ground of inhibition. See INHIBITION(4).

EX CAPITE INTERDICTIONIS

ex capite interdictionis (eks kap-i-tee in-t<<schwa>>r-dik-shee-oh-nis). [Law Latin] Hist. On the ground of interdiction. See INTERDICTION.

EX CAPITE LECTI

ex capite lecti (eks kap-i-tee lek-tI). [Law Latin] Scots law. On the ground of deathbed. • Under some circumstances, a legal heir could overturn a deed that a grantor made to the heir's detriment if the deed were made within 60 days before the grantor's death.

EX CAPITE METUS

ex capite metus (eks kap-i-tee mee-t<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] Scots law. On the ground of fear. • A transaction could be rescinded if it were induced by serious threats.

EX CAPITE MINORENNITATIS ET LAESIONIS

ex capite minorennitatis et laesionis (eks kap-i-tee min-or-en-i-tay-tis et lee-z[h]ee-oh-nis). [Law Latin] Scots law. On the ground of minority and lesion. • The phrase appeared in reference to a ground upon which a minor could be restored against deeds granted by him during his minority. The phrase also referred to a basis upon which a minor could set aside a deed (on the ground of lesion) if the deed were substantially onerous.

EX CATHEDRA

ex cathedra (eks k<<schwa>>-thee-dr<<schwa>> orkath-<<schwa>>-dr<<schwa>>), adv. & adj.[Latin "from the chair"] By virtue of one's high office or position; with authority <ex cathedra pronouncements>.

EX CAUSA MANDATI

ex causa mandati (eks kaw-z<<schwa>> man-day-tI). [Latin] Scots law. On account of the mandate; because of the mandate.

"A mandatory is entitled to claim from the mandant reimbursement of all moneys disbursed, as well as relief from all obligations incurred, ex causa mandati — i.e., on account of the matter which the mandate authorised to be done or performed." John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 195 (4th ed. 1894).

EX CAUSA POTESTATIS

ex causa potestatis (eks kaw-z<<schwa>> poh-tes-tay-tis). Roman law. Because of his position of authority. • Certain men could not marry women who were subject to their guardianship or control, and the reason was said to be ex causa potestatis.

EXCELLENCY

excellency. (usu. cap.) A title of honor given to certain high officials or dignitaries, such as governors, ambassadors, and Roman Catholic bishops or archbishops.

EXCEPTIO

exceptio (ek-sep-shee-oh), n.[Latin] Hist. 1. An exception, plea, or objection. 2. Roman & civil law. A defendant's plea admitting the claim in principle but alleging facts or legal provisions that negate it in this instance. 3. A defense to a claim that is justly brought but that unjustly accuses the particular defendant named. Pl. exceptiones (ek-sep-shee-oh-nee-z).

exceptio dilatoria (dil-<<schwa>>-tor-ee-<<schwa>>). A dilatory exception; an exception that defeated the action for a time and created a delay, such as an agreement not to sue within a certain time.

exceptio doli mali (doh-lmal-I). An exception, defense, or plea of fraud. — Sometimes shortened to exceptio doli.

exceptio dominii (d<<schwa>>-min-ee-I). A claim of ownership by the defendant in an action to recover property.

exceptio dotis cautae non numeratae (doh-tis kaw-tee non n[y]oo-m<<schwa>>-ray-tee). A defense to an action for the restitution of dowry, asserting that, although promised, dowry was never paid.

exceptio in factum (in fak-t<<schwa>>m). An exception on the facts; an exception or plea founded on the peculiar circumstances of a case.

exceptio in personam (in p<<schwa>>r-soh-n<<schwa>>m). A plea or defense of a personal nature that only the person to whom it is granted by law may assert.

exceptio in rem (in rem). A plea or defense that is not of a personal nature but is connected with the legal circumstances on which the suit is founded, and that may therefore be alleged by any party in interest, such as an heir or surety of the proper or original debtor.

exceptio jurisjurandi (joor-is-juu-ran-dI). An exception of oath; an exception or plea that the matter had been sworn to. • This kind of exception was allowed if a debtor, at a creditor's instance, had sworn that nothing was due the creditor, but the creditor sued anyway.

exceptio metus (met-<<schwa>>s). An exception, defense, or plea of fear or compulsion.

exceptio non adimpleti contractus (non ad-im-plee-tI k<<schwa>>n-trak-t<< schwa>>s). An exception in a contract action involving mutual duties or obligations, to the effect that the plaintiff may not sue if the plaintiff's own obligations have not been performed.

exceptio non numeratae pecuniae (ek-sep-shee-oh non n[y]oo-m<<schwa>>-ray-tee pi-kyoo-nee-ee). [Latin] Roman law. An exception or defense that money was not paid.

“This was one of the Roman law exceptions, founded on the obligatio literarum of the Romans. The obligatio literarum was constituted by a writing, the granter of which acknowledged receipt from the creditor of a certain sum of money. But as the obligation was sometimes granted before the money was advanced, spe numerandae pecuniae, by the Roman law, the obligation, until the lapse of two years after its date and delivery, did not prove the receipt of the money; and the debtor against whom, within that time, a demand for repayment was made, might plead the exceptio non numeratae pecuniae; that is, that the money of which repayment was demanded, was truly never advanced. The exception was sufficient to elide the demand, unless the creditor proved that he had advanced the money.” William Bell, Bell's Dictionary and Digest of the Law of Scotland 426 (George Watson ed., 7th ed. 1890).

exceptio non solutae pecuniae (non s<<schwa>>-loo-tee pi-kyoo-nee-ee). A plea that the debt at issue in the suit had not been discharged by payment (as the adverse party alleged), notwithstanding the existence of a receipt or acquittance reflecting payment. Cf. exceptio pecuniae non numeratae.

exceptio pacti conventi (pak-tI-k<<schwa>>n-ven-tI). An exception of compact; a defense or plea that the plaintiff had agreed not to sue.

exceptio pecuniae non numeratae (pi-kyoo-nee-ee non n[y]oo-m<<schwa>>-ray-tee). An exception or plea of money not paid; a defense by a party who was sued on a promise to repay money that was never received from the plaintiff. Cf. exceptio non solutae pecuniae; PECUNIA NON NUMERATA.

exceptio peremptoria (p<<schwa>>r-emp-tor-ee-<<schwa>>). A peremptory exception that forever destroyed the subject matter or ground of the action, such as the exceptio doli mali and the exceptio metus. — Also termed exceptio perpetua.

exceptio plurium concubentium (ploor-ee-<<schwa>>m kon-kyoo-ben-shee-<< schwa>>m). The plea or defense in a paternity action that the plaintiff had several lovers.

exceptio rei judicatae (ree-I joo-d<<schwa>>-kay-tee). An exception or plea of matter adjudged; a plea that the subject matter of the action had been determined in a previous action.

exceptio rei venditae et traditae (ree-Iven-d<<schwa>>-tee et trad-<< schwa>>-tee). An exception or plea of the sale and delivery [of a thing]. • This exception presumes a valid sale but, because no one can transfer a right greater than what is possessed, no valid transfer of property occurred, yet the real owner is nonetheless estopped from contesting the sale.

exceptio senatusconsulti Macedoniani (s<<schwa>>-nay-t<<schwa>>s-k<<schwa>>n-s<<schwa>>l-tI mas-<<schwa>>-doh-nee-ay-nI). A defense to an action for the recovery of money loaned, on the ground that the loan was made to a person who was under another person's paternal power. • This defense is so named from the decree of the senate that forbade the recovery of such loans.

exceptio senatusconsulti Velleiani (s<<schwa>>-nay-t<<schwa>>s-k<<schwa>>n-s<<schwa>>l-tI vel-ee-ay-nI). A defense to an action on a contract of suretyship, on the ground that the surety was a woman and thus incapable of becoming bound for another. • This defense is so named from the decree of the senate forbidding such sureties.

exceptio temporis (tem-p<<schwa>>-ris). An exception or plea that the time prescribed by law for bringing a particular action has expired.

EXCEPTION

exception, n.1. A formal objection to a court's ruling by a party who wants to preserve an overruled objection or rejected proffer for appeal <the prosecutor stated her exception to the court's ruling disallowing the witness's testimony>. • To make an exception or objection, attorneys sometimes say, "I except" or "I object." Exception properly refers only to an objection made after an initial objection or proffer is made and overruled. In most courts, an exception is no longer required to preserve the initial objection. [Cases: Criminal Law 1048–1060; Pleading 228–228.23. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 230–233, 236, 238, 240–242, 256–264, 268, 270–271, 289–291, 307, 317–322.]

The following quotation reflects former practice: "The exception must be distinguished from the objection. Many counsel are heard carelessly saying 'I except' when the thing they are doing is 'I object.' The exception serves an entirely distinct purpose from the objection, — a double purpose, in fact. It warns the judge and the other party that the excepter is not satisfied with the ruling and takes issue with a view to appeal; and it sums up and preserves the precise terms of the ruling. The proponent of the evidence is the excepter if the ruling excludes the evidence; but if it admits the evidence, the opponent of the evidence is the excepter. Thus the excepter and the objector are not necessarily the same parties." John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 421 (1935).

declinatory exception (di-klIn-<<schwa>>-tor-ee). An exception to a court's jurisdiction. • Grounds for refusing to submit to a court's jurisdiction include lack of personal jurisdiction and insufficient service of process.

dilatory exception (dil-<<schwa>>-tor-ee). An exception intended to delay but not dismiss an action. [Cases: Pleading 228.6, 228.7. C.J.S. Pleading § 271.]

general exception. 1. An objection pointing out a substantive defect in an opponent's pleading, such as the insufficiency of the claim or the court's lack of subject-matter jurisdiction; an objection to a pleading for want of substance. — Also termed general demurrer. Cf. SPECIAL EXCEPTION(1). [Cases: Pleading 228.13. C.J.S. Pleading § 232.] 2. An objection in which the excepting party does not specify the grounds of the objection.

peremptory exception. A defensive pleading asserting that no legal remedy exists for the plaintiff's alleged injury, that res judicata or prescription bars the claim, or that an indispensable party has not been included in the litigation. [Cases: Pleading 228.8.]

special exception. See SPECIAL EXCEPTION.

2. Something that is excluded from a rule's operation <employers with fewer than five employees are an exception to the rule>.

statutory exception. A provision in a statute exempting certain persons or conduct from the statute's operation. [Cases: Statutes 228. C.J.S. Statutes §§ 370–372.]

3. The retention of an existing right or interest, by and for the grantor, in real property being granted to another. Cf. RESERVATION(1). [Cases: Deeds 137. C.J.S. Deeds §§ 275, 279–282.] — except, vb.

exclusion. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3110; Taxation 979. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 59–60.]

annual exclusion. The amount (currently as much as $10,000) allowed as nontaxable gift income during the calendar year. • The purpose of the annual exclusion is both to serve as an estate-planning mechanism (so that gifts made during the donor's lifetime remain nontestamentary and nontaxable) and to eliminate the administrative inconvenience of taxing relatively small gifts. For an individual, the first $10,000 in gifts can be excluded; for married persons, the exclusion is $20,000 per donee for joint gifts, regardless of which spouse supplied the donated property. IRC (26 USCA) § 2503. — Also termed annual gift-tax exclusion. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4206.10. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 566–568.]

2. Evidence. A trial judge's determination that an item offered as evidence may not be presented to the trier of fact (esp. the jury). 3. Insurance. An insurance-policy provision that excepts certain events or conditions from coverage. [Cases: Insurance 2098.] — exclude, vb. — exclusionary, adj.

automobile exclusion. A provision in some commercial general liability policies, excluding coverage for damages arising from the use (including loading and unloading) of an automobile, aircraft, or other motor vehicle owned, operated, rented, or borrowed by the insured. [Cases: Insurance 2278(13). C.J.S. Insurance § 938.]

business-risk exclusion. An exclusion in some commercial general liability policies, excluding coverage for common risks of doing business, including harm to the insured's product or work, damages arising from a product recall, damages arising from the insured's failure to perform under a contract, or damages arising from a failure of the insured's product to perform as intended. [Cases: Insurance 2278(20).]

design-defect exclusion. A provision in some umbrella policies and some older commercial general liability policies, excluding coverage for bodily injury arising from the failure of the insured's product to perform its intended function because of a defect or deficiency in its design, formula, specifications, instructions, or advertising materials. [Cases: Insurance 2278(21).]

employee-liability exclusion. A provision in some commercial general liability policies, excluding coverage for injury to an employee (or a member of the employee's family), arising from and in the course of employment with the insured. • This exclusion is generally intended to exclude from coverage all injuries covered by the workers'-compensation laws. [Cases: Insurance 2278(11–12).]

employment-related-practices exclusion. A provision in some commercial general liability policies, excluding coverage for damages arising from an insured's employment practices, including any policy, action, or omission — such as coercion, demotion, evaluation, reassignment, discipline, defamation, harassment, humiliation, or discrimination — that is directed at the person injured. [Cases: Insurance 2278(11).]

expected/intended exclusion. A provision in some commercial general liability policies, excluding coverage for property damage or bodily injury that is expected or intended by the insured, except any harm arising from the use of reasonable force to protect a person or property. •

This exclusion is sometimes referred to as “exclusion a” because it is the first exclusion listed on most policies. — Also termed exclusion a; intentional-injury exclusion. [Cases: Insurance 2278(3).]

failure-to-perform exclusion.A provision in some commercial general liability policies, excluding coverage for (1) the loss of use of undamaged property resulting from the insured's delay or failure in performing an obligation, or (2) a design defect or failure in the insured's product. — Also termed loss-of-use exclusion. [Cases: Insurance 2278(21).]

knowledge-of-falsity exclusion.A provision in some commercial general liability policies, excluding coverage for damages arising from an oral or written communication made by the insured with knowledge that it is false. [Cases: Insurance 2303(2), 2313(2).]

named-insured exclusion.An exclusion limiting liability-insurance coverage to a named insured whose injuries were caused by another named insured under the same insurance policy. [Cases: Insurance 2278(1), 2745–2747.]

owned-property exclusion.Insurance. A provision in a comprehensive general liability insurance policy allowing only third parties who are injured on or by the insured's property to make liability claims against the insurer. • The provision ordinarily excludes coverage for (1) property owned, rented, occupied, sold, given away, or abandoned by the insured, (2) personal property in the care, custody, or control of the insured, and (3) property located where the insured and its employees work. [Cases: Insurance 2278(25). C.J.S. Insurance § 947.]

own-product exclusion.A provision in some commercial general liability policies, excluding coverage for property damage to a product that is manufactured, sold, handled, distributed, or disposed of by the insured. [Cases: Insurance 2278(21).]

own-work exclusion.A provision in some commercial general liability policies, excluding coverage for damage to the work or services performed by the insured. [Cases: Insurance 2278(21).]

pollution exclusion.A provision in some commercial general liability policies, excluding coverage for bodily injury or property damages arising from the discharge, dispersal, release, or escape of chemicals, waste, acid, and other pollutants. • Pollution-exclusion clauses may take one of two forms: (1) sudden and accidental, and (2) absolute. The sudden-and-accidental clause, usually limited to policies issued before 1985, contains an exception under which the damages are covered (i.e., exempted from the exclusion) if the discharge or other release was sudden and accidental. The absolute pollution exclusion, in most policies issued since 1985, does not contain this exception. [Cases: Insurance 2278(17). C.J.S. Insurance §§ 954, 1127.]

sistership exclusion.A provision in some commercial general liability policies, excluding coverage for damages arising from the withdrawal, inspection, repair, replacement, or loss of use of the insured's product or work, to the extent that the product or work is withdrawn or recalled from the market because of a known or suspected defect or deficiency. — Also termed recall exclusion. [Cases: Insurance 2278(24).]

exclusionary rule. 1. Evidence. Any rule that excludes or suppresses evidence < despite many exceptions, hearsay has long been inadmissible under an exclusionary rule>. — Also termed exclusionary evidence rule. [Cases: Evidence 154. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 252–258.] 2. Criminal procedure. A rule that excludes or suppresses evidence obtained in violation of an accused person's constitutional rights <in accordance with the exclusionary rule, the court did not admit the drugs into evidence because they had been obtained during a warrantless search of the defendant's home>. See FRUIT-OF-THE-POISONOUS-TREE DOCTRINE; GOOD-FAITH EXCEPTION. [Cases: Criminal Law 394. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 770.]

“In the simplest of exclusionary rule cases, the challenged evidence is quite clearly ‘direct’ or ‘primary’ in its relationship to the prior arrest, search, interrogation, lineup or other identification procedure. Such is the case when that evidence is an identification occurring at the confrontation between suspect and victim or witness, a confession or admission made in response to questioning, or physical evidence obtained by search or arrest. Not infrequently, however, challenged evidence is ‘secondary’ or ‘derivative’ in character. This occurs when, for example, a confession is obtained after an illegal arrest, physical evidence is located after an illegally obtained confession, or an in-court identification is made following an illegally conducted pretrial identification. In these situations, it is necessary to determine whether the derivative evidence is ‘tainted’ by the prior constitutional or other violation.” Id. § 9.3, at 471.

EXCOMMUNICATION

excommunication, n. Eccles. law. A sentence of censure pronounced by a spiritual court for an offense falling under ecclesiastical cognizance; expulsion from religious society or community. • In England, an excommunicated person was formerly subject to various civil disabilities, such as an inability to be a juror, to be a witness in any court, or to sue to recover lands or money due. These penalties were abolished by the Ecclesiastical Courts Act (1813). St. 53 Geo. 3, ch. 127. —

Also termed excommengement. — excommunicate,vb.

“Closely allied to outlawry is excommunication; it is in fact an ecclesiastical outlawry, and, like temporal outlawry, though once it was the law's last and most terrible weapon against the obstinate offender, it is now regarded as a normal process for compelling the appearance in court of those who are accused. Indeed as regards the laity, since the spiritual courts can not direct a seizure of the body, lands, or goods, those courts must, if mere citations fail to produce an appearance, at once have recourse to their last weapon. Then, as ordained by William the Conqueror, the lay power comes to their aid. If the excommunicate does not seek absolution within forty days (this period seems to be fixed already in the twelfth century), the ordinary will signify this to the kind; a writ for the arrest of the offender will be issued, and he will be kept in prison until he makes his submission.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic William Maitland, History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 500 (2d ed. 1899).

EXCOMMUNICATO CAPIENDO

excommunicato capiendo (eks-k<<schwa>>-myoo-ni-kay-toh kap-ee-en-doh). [Latin] Hist. #### EXCULPATORY CLAUSE exculpatory clause. A contractual provision relieving a party from liability resulting from a negligent or wrongful act. • A will or a trust may contain an exculpatory clause purporting to immunize a fiduciary from a breach of duty; the clause may reduce the degree of care and prudence required of the fiduciary. But courts generally find that if an exculpatory clause in a will or trust seeks to confer absolute immunity, it is void as being against public policy. See EXEMPTION CLAUSE. [Cases: Contracts 114. C.J.S. Contracts § 271.]

EXCULPATORY EVIDENCE

exculpatory evidence. See EVIDENCE.

EXCULPATORY-NO DOCTRINE

exculpatory-no doctrine. Criminal law. The principle that a person cannot be charged with making a false statement for falsely denying guilt in response to an investigator's question. • This doctrine is based on the Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination. But the U.S. Supreme Court has overruled this doctrine in federal law. Brogan v. United States, 522 U.S. 398, 118 S.Ct. 805 (1998). [Cases: Fraud 68.10(1).]

“Formerly all writs which passed the signet were procured by presentation of a bill (or petition) for such writ. The bill was perused and considered by the Lord Ordinary on the Bills, and if he was satisfied, the bill was passed and the writ issued: the latter bearing the words ex deliberatione Dominorum Concilii to signify that the bill had been considered. These words are still appended to almost all writs which pass the signet, but they are now only words of style, since the writs are now passed periculo petentis without being submitted to the Lords.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 196–97 (4th ed. 1894).

EX DELICTO

ex delicto (eks d<<schwa>>-lik-toh), adj. & adv.[Latin “from a wrong”] 1. Arising from a crime or tort <action ex delicto>. • Although ex delicto refers most commonly to a tort in modern usage, it referred historically to both torts and crimes. Cf. IN DELICTO; EX CONTRACTU. 2.Int'l law. Rare. As a consequence of a crime or tort <because they were counterfeit, the goods were seized and condemned ex delicto>.

Validation of a written instrument, such as a contract or will, by fulfilling the necessary legal requirements <delivery of the goods completed the contract's execution>. [Cases: Contracts 34; Sales 61; Vendor and Purchaser 23; Wills 108–129.] 3. Judicial enforcement of a money judgment, usu. by seizing and selling the judgment debtor's property <even if the plaintiff receives a judgment against the foreign debtor, execution is unlikely>. — Also termed (in Scots law) diligence. [Cases: Execution 1; Federal Civil Procedure 2691.C.J.S. Executions §§ 2, 15.] 4. A court order directing a sheriff or other officer to enforce a judgment, usu. by seizing and selling the judgment debtor's property <the court issued the execution authorizing seizure of the car>. — Also termed writ of execution; judgment execution; general execution. [Cases: Execution 74; Federal Civil Procedure 2691.C.J.S. Executions § 63.]

executor a lege constitutus (ay [or ah] lee-jee kon-sti-t[y]oo-t<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] Eccles. law. One authorized by law to be an executor; the ordinary of the diocese.

executor a testatore constitutus (ay [or ah] tes-t<<schwa>>-tor-ee kon-sti-t[y]oo-t<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] Eccles. law. An executor appointed by a testator. — Also termed executor testamentarius.

executor dative. See DATIVE(1).

executor dativus. See executor ab episcopo constitutus.

executor de son tort (d<<schwa>> sawn [or son] tor[t]). [Law French “executor of his own wrong”] A person who, without legal authority, takes on the responsibility to act as an executor or administrator of a decedent's property, usu. to the detriment of the estate's beneficiaries or creditors. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 538–544.]

“Executor de son tort — or, executor of his own wrong. Is he that takes upon him the office of an executor by intrusion, not being so constituted by the testator.” The Pocket Lawyer and Family Conveyancer 98 (3d ed. 1833).

executor lucratus (loo-kray-t<<schwa>>s). An executor who has assets of the testator, the latter having become liable by wrongfully interfering with another's property.

executor testamentarius. See executor a testatore constitutus.

executor to the tenor. Eccles. law. A person who is not named executor in the will but who performs duties similar to those of an executor.

general executor. An executor who has the power to administer a decedent's entire estate until its final settlement.

independent executor. An executor who, unlike an ordinary executor, can administer the estate with very little supervision by the probate court. • Only a few states — mostly in the West and Southwest — allow testators to designate independent executors. But lawyers routinely write wills that relieve a trusted executor from obtaining appraisals, from providing inventories and surety bonds, and from obtaining court approval “to the maximum extent permitted by law.” The Uniform Probate Code endorses independent administration, and it is the usual process unless a party demands court-supervised administration. — Also termed nonintervention executor.

joint executor. One of two or more persons named in a will as executor of an estate. — Also termed coexecutor. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 123. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators § 961.] limited executor. An executor whose appointment is restricted in some way, such as time, place, or subject matter.

literary executor. Copyright. A limited-purpose executor appointed to manage copyrighted materials in an estate.

nonintervention executor. See independent executor.

special executor. An executor whose power is limited to a portion of the decedent's estate. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 22. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators §§ 951–952, 954–956.]

substituted executor. An executor appointed to act in the place of an executor who cannot or will not perform the required duties. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 37. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators §§ 935–936, 946.]

temporary executor. See acting executor.

EXECUTORY INTEREST

executory interest. A future interest, held by a third person, that either cuts off another's interest or begins after the natural termination of a preceding estate. Cf. REMAINDER. [Cases: Estates in Property 1. C.J.S. Estates §§ 2–5, 8, 15–21, 116–128, 137, 243.]

“What is an executory interest? Here is a pretty good definition: An executory interest is any future interest created in a person other than the transferor that is not a remainder. Here are five classic examples of executory interest: (1) O transfers ‘to A for life; then, one day after A's death, to the heirs of A.’ The transfer creates a springing executory interest in those who will be A's heirs. (2) O transfers ‘to A for 200 years if he shall so long live, then to the heirs of A.’ This transfer also creates a springing executory interest in A's prospective heirs. (3) O transfers ‘to A and his heirs five years from the date of this deed.’ A owns a springing executory interest. (4) O, when B is fifteen, transfers ‘to A for life; then no sooner than one day after A's death, to B and his heirs if B ever reaches 21.’ B owns a springing executory interest. (5) O transfers ‘to A and his heirs; but if A marries X, to B and his heirs.’ B owns a shifting executory interest.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 80 (2d ed. 1984).

dependency exemption. A tax exemption granted to an individual taxpayer for each dependent whose gross income is less than the exemption amount and for each child who is younger than 19 or, if a student, younger than 24. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3294; Taxation 1031.1, 1048. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 330, 335; Taxation §§ 1736–1739.]

personal exemption. An amount allowed as a deduction from an individual taxpayer's adjusted gross income. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3295; Taxation 1031.1, 1048. C.J.S. Taxation §§ 1736–1739.]

EXEMPTION CLAUSE

exemption clause. A contractual provision providing that a party will not be liable for damages for which that party would otherwise have ordinarily been liable. Cf. EXCEPTION CLAUSE; EXCULPATORY CLAUSE; INDEMNITY CLAUSE. [Cases: Contracts 114. C.J.S. Contracts § 271.]

“An exemption clause may take many forms, but all such clauses have one thing in common in that they exempt a party from a liability which he would have borne had it not been for the clause. In some cases an exemption clause merely relieves a party from certain purely contractual obligations, for example, the duties of a seller in a contract of sale regarding the quality and fitness of the goods. In other cases exemption clauses go further and protect the party not merely from contractual liability but even from liability which would otherwise have arisen in tort. For example, a shipping company's ticket may exempt the company from liability to the passenger for any injuries, however caused. Now if the passenger is injured as a result of the negligence of the company's employees, that would, in the normal way, give rise to an action in tort for negligence, quite apart from the contract.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 167 (3d ed. 1981).

EXEMPTION EQUIVALENT

exemption equivalent. The maximum value of assets that one can transfer to another before incurring a federal gift and estate tax.

EXEMPT ORGANIZATION

exempt organization. An organization that is either partially or completely exempt from federal income taxation. See CHARITABLE ORGANIZATION. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4045–4071. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 327, 462–474, 670, 798.]

EXEMPT PROPERTY

exempt property. 1. A debtor's holdings and possessions that, by law, a creditor cannot attach to satisfy a debt. • All the property that creditors may lawfully reach is known as nonexempt property. Many states provide a homestead exemption that excludes a person's house and household items, up to a certain amount, from the liens of most creditors. The purpose of the exemption is to prevent debtors from becoming destitute. See HOMESTEAD. Cf. NONEXEMPT PROPERTY. [Cases: Exemptions 1; Homestead 1.] 2. Personal property that a surviving spouse is automatically entitled to receive from the decedent's estate. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 53. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators § 124.]

exhaustion of remedies. The doctrine that, if an administrative remedy is provided by statute, a claimant must seek relief first from the administrative body before judicial relief is available. • The doctrine's purpose is to maintain comity between the courts and administrative agencies and to ensure that courts will not be burdened by cases in which judicial relief is unnecessary. — Also termed exhaustion of administrative remedies. [Cases: Administrative Law and Procedure 229. C.J.S. Public Administrative Law and Procedure §§ 38–42.]

vicarious exhaustion of remedies. The rule that if one member of a class satisfies a requirement to exhaust administrative remedies, that is enough for all others similarly situated to be considered as having exhausted the remedies. — Often shortened to vicarious exhaustion. [Cases: Administrative Law 229.]

EXHAUSTION-OF-RIGHTS DOCTRINE

exhaustion-of-rights doctrine. Int'l law. The principle that once the owner of an intellectual-property right has placed a product covered by that right into the marketplace, the right to control how the product is resold within that internal market is lost. • Within a common market, such as the European Union, the doctrine also applies to the import and export of the goods between member nations. Cf. PATENT-EXHAUSTION DOCTRINE.

EXHAUSTION OF STATE REMEDIES

exhaustion of state remedies. The doctrine that an available state remedy must be exhausted in certain types of cases before a party can gain access to a federal court. • For example, a state prisoner must exhaust all state remedies before a federal court will hear a petition for habeas corpus. [Cases: Habeas Corpus 319–352.]

EX LEGE

ex lege (eks lee-jee orlay-gay). [Latin] By virtue of law; as a matter of law <property forfeited ex lege>.

“Antecedent rights ‘in personam’ ... either arise or do not arise out of a contract.... In the latter case, since they arise from facts of various kinds to which it pleases the Law to affix similar results, we shall describe them as rights ‘ex lege’; and it will be convenient to consider the rights which arise thus variously before treating of those which arise solely from contract.... The rights which we describe as arising ‘ex lege’ were described by the Roman lawyers as arising ‘quasi ex contractu,’ and more simply, ‘ex variis causarum figuris.’ ” Thomas E. Holland, The Elements of Jurisprudence 246–47 (13th ed. 1924).

EX LEGIBUS

ex legibus (eks lee-j<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>s). [Latin “according to the laws”] Hist. To be interpreted according to both the letter and the spirit of the law.

EX NOBILI OFFICIO

ex nobili officio (eks nob-i-II <<schwa>>-fish-ee-oh). [Latin “by virtue of its noble office”] Scots law. (Of a judicial act) done as a matter of equity. See NOBILI OFFICIUM.

EX OFFICIO

ex officio (eks <<schwa>>-fish-ee-oh), adv. & adj. [Latin] By virtue or because of an office; by virtue of the authority implied by office. • The term is often misused as a synonym for “nonvoting.” Some meetings mistakenly label their regularly invited guests as “ex officio members” when in fact they are not members at all; others mistakenly refer to the nonvoting members as “ex officio members” even though some nonvoting members are present only in an individual capacity and not by virtue of office, or even though some voting members also serve ex officio. But an ex officio member is a voting member unless the applicable governing document provides otherwise.

“Frequently boards include ex-officio members — that is, persons who are members of the board by virtue of an office or committee chairmanship held in the society, or in the parent state or national society or federation or some allied group; or — sometimes in boards outside of organized societies — by virtue of a public office. In the executive board of a society, if the ex-officio member of the board is under the authority of the society (that is, if he is a member, officer, or employee of the society), there is no distinction between him and the other board members. If the ex-officio member is not under the authority of the society, he has all the privileges of board membership, including the right to make motions and to vote, but none of the obligations — just as in a case, for example, where the governor of a state is ex officio a trustee of a private academy.” Henry M. Robert, Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised § 49, at 466 (10th ed. 2000).

EX OFFICIO INFORMATION

ex officio information. English law. A criminal information filed by the attorney general ex officio on behalf of the Crown, in the Court of King's Bench, for offenses more immediately affecting the government, as distinguished from informations in which the Crown is the nominal prosecutor.

EX OFFICIO JUSTICE

EXONERATE

exonerate (eg-zon-<<schwa>>-rayt), vb. 1. To free from responsibility < exonerate from the payment of the debt>. Cf. EXCULPATE. 2. To free from encumbrances < exonerate the property from the mortgage lien>. — exonerative (eg-zon-<<schwa>>-ray-tiv or -<<schwa>>-tiv), adj.

EXONERATION

exoneration (eg-zon-<<schwa>>-ray-sh<<schwa>>n). 1. The removal of a burden, charge, responsibility, or duty. 2. The right to be reimbursed by reason of having paid money that another person should have paid. 3. The equitable right of a surety — confirmed by statute in many states — to proceed to compel the principal debtor to satisfy the obligation, as when, even though the surety would have a right of reimbursement, it would be inequitable for the surety to be compelled to perform if the principal debtor can satisfy the obligation. • When a testator leaves a gift of property encumbered by a mortgage or lien, the doctrine of exoneration operates to satisfy the encumbrance from the general assets of the estate. Many states have abandoned the common-law rule in favor of exoneration. See EQUITY OF EXONERATION; QUIA TIMET. [Cases: Principal and Surety 179. C.J.S. Principal and Surety § 227.]

EXONERATION, SUIT FOR

EXPRESSIO UNIUS EST EXCLUSIO ALTERIUS

expressio unius est exclusio alterius (ek-spres[h]-ee-oh yoo-nI-<<schwa>>s est eks-kloo-zhee-oh al-t<<schwa>>-rI-<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] A canon of construction holding that to express or include one thing implies the exclusion of the other, or of the alternative. • For example, the rule that “each citizen is entitled to vote” implies that noncitizens are not entitled to vote. — Also termed inclusio unius est exclusio alterius; expressum facit cessare tacitum. Cf. EJUSDEM GENERIS; NOSCITUR A SOCIIS; RULE OF RANK. [Cases: Contracts 152; Statutes 195. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 307, 318–322, 327, 331; Statutes § 323.]

“The canon expressio unius est exclusio alterius is ... based on the assumption of legislative omniscience, because it would make sense only if all omissions in legislative drafting were deliberate. Although this canon seemed dead for a while, it has been resurrected by the Supreme Court to provide a basis for refusing to create private remedies for certain statutory violations. Its recent disparagement by a unanimous Court [in Herman & MacLean v. Huddleston, 459 U.S. 375, 386 n.23, 103 S.Ct. 683, 690 n. 23 (1983)] puts its future in some doubt but more likely confirms that judicial use of canons of construction is opportunistic.” Richard A. Posner, The Federal Courts: Crisis and Reform 282 (1985).

“Where it is desired not only to rescind an action but to express very strong disapproval, legislative bodies have voted to rescind the objectionable action and expunge it from the record. When a record has been expunged, the chief legislative officer should cross out the words or draw a line around them in the original minutes and write across them the words, ‘Expunged by order of the senate (or house),’ giving the date of the order. This statement should be signed by the chief legislative officer. The word ‘expunged’ must not be so blotted as not to be readable, as otherwise it would be impossible to determine whether more was expunged than ordered. When the minutes are printed or published, the expunged portion is omitted.” National Conference of State Legislatures, Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure § 444, at 296–97 (2000).

EXTORTION

extortion,n.1. The offense committed by a public official who illegally obtains property under the color of office; esp., an official's collection of an unlawful fee. — Also termed common-law extortion. [Cases: Extortion and Threats 1.]

“The dividing line between bribery and extortion is shadowy. If one other than the officer corruptly takes the initiative and offers what he knows is not an authorized fee, it is bribery and not extortion. On the other hand, if the officer corruptly makes an unlawful demand which is paid by one who does not realize it is not the fee authorized for the service rendered, it is extortion and not bribery. In theory it would seem possible for an officer to extort a bribe under such circumstances that he would be guilty of either offense whereas the outraged citizen would be excused.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 538 (3d ed. 1982).

extrinsic fraud. See FRAUD.

EX TURPI CAUSA

ex turpi causa (eks t<<schwa>>r-plkaw-z<<schwa>>). [Latin] From an immoral consideration. • This phrase, a shortened form of the maxim ex turpi causa non oritur actio (“from an immoral consideration an action does not arise”), expresses the principle that a party does not have a right to enforce performance of an agreement founded on a consideration that is contrary to the public interest. [Cases: Action 4; Contracts 138(1). C.J.S. Actions §§ 29–30; Contracts §§ 280–281, 283–284, 290, 292, 300.]

“The doctrine ex turpi causa has made its way into the law as an extension of a moral principle. If it is misused, the principle suffers. Moreover, its misuse is a symptom of a disease of thought that debilitates the law and morals. This is the failure to recognize that there is a fundamental difference between the law that expresses a moral principle and the law that is only a social regulation. If only in the growth of English law that distinction had been maintained, much of the arbitrariness and the absurdities in the cases I have cited would have been avoided. There is a dictum of Lord Wright's which may some day be used as a foundation for a change of heart. Speaking of the maxim ex turpi causa, he said: ‘In these days there are many statutory offences which are the subject of the criminal law and in that sense are crimes, but which would, it seems, afford no moral justification for a court to apply the maxim’. Beresford v. Royal Insurance (1937), 2 KB. at 220.” Patrick Devlin, The Enforcement of Morals 60 (1968).

EXUERE PATRIAM

exuere patriam (eg-z[y]oo<<schwa>>-ree pay-tree<<schwa>>m), vb. [Latin] To renounce eygne (ayn), n. See EIGNE.

EYRE

eyre (air). [Old French eire “journey, march”] Hist. A system of royal courts sent out into the counties by the Crown to investigate allegations of wrongdoing, to try cases, and to raise revenue for the Crown through the levy of fines. • The eyre system was abolished in the 14th century. See ARTICLES OF THE EYRE ; JUSTICE IN EYRE.

“In 1176 the itinerant justices were organised into six circuits.... The justices assigned to these circuits, who numbered as many as twenty or thirty at a time in the 1180s, were known as justiciae errantes (later justiciarii in itinere, justices in eyre); and the French word ‘eyre’ became the name of one of the most prominent forms of royal justice until the time of Edward III. Every so often a ‘general eyre’ would visit a county, bringing the king’s government with it.... The general eyres were not merely law courts; they were a way of supervising local government through itinerant central government.” J.H. Baker, An Introduction to English Legal History 19 (3d ed. 1990).

EYRER

eyrer (air-⟨schwa⟩r), vb. [Law French] Hist. To travel or journey; to go about.

FACILITATE

facilitate, vb. Criminal law. To make the commission of a crime easier. • Property (such as a vehicle or home) that facilitates the commission of certain offenses may be forfeited. — facilitator, n.

FACILITATED NEGOTIATION

facilitated negotiation. See MEDIATION.

FACILITATION

facilitation, n. 1. The act or an instance of aiding or helping; esp., in criminal law, the act of making it easier for another person to commit a crime. 2. CONCILIATION.

FACILITY AND CIRCUMVENTION

facility and circumvention. Scots law. Conduct intended to persuade a person vulnerable to outside influence to act against his or her own interest. • Any contract brought under conditions of facility and circumvention would be void. — Sometimes shortened to facility.

FACILITY-OF-PAYMENT CLAUSE

facility-of-payment clause. 1. Insurance. An insurance-policy provision allowing the appointment of a person to receive payment from the insurer on the beneficiary's behalf. [Cases: Insurance 3468.] 2. Trusts. A trust provision that allows anyone who owes money to an incapacitated trust beneficiary to discharge the debt by paying the money owed to the custodial trustee.

FACIO UT DES

facio ut des (fay-shee-oh <<schwa>>t deez). [Latin “I do so that you give”] Civil law. 1. An innominate contract in which a person agrees to do something for recompense. See innominate contract under CONTRACT. 2. The consideration in such a contract.

FACIO UT FACIAS

facio ut facias (fay-shee-oh <<schwa>>t fay-shee-<<schwa>>s). [Latin “I do that you may do”] Civil law. 1. An innominate contract in which a person agrees to do something for another person who agrees to do something in return, such as an agreement to marry. 2. The consideration in such a contract. See innominate contract under CONTRACT.

FACSIMILE

FACT

fact. 1. Something that actually exists; an aspect of reality <it is a fact that all people are mortal>. • Facts include not just tangible things, actual occurrences, and relationships, but also states of mind such as intentions and opinions. 2. An actual or alleged event or circumstance, as distinguished from its legal effect, consequence, or interpretation <the jury made a finding of fact>.3. An evil deed; a crime <an accessory after the fact>.

“A fact is any act or condition of things, assumed (for the moment) as happening or existing.”
John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 7 (1935).

ablative fact.See divestitive fact.

adjudicative fact (<<schwa>>-joo-di-kay-tiv or -k<<schwa>>-tiv). A controlling or operative fact, rather than a background fact; a fact that concerns the parties to a judicial or administrative proceeding and that helps the court or agency determine how the law applies to those parties. • For example, adjudicative facts include those that the jury weighs. Cf. legislative fact. [Cases: Administrative Law and Procedure 442. C.J.S. Public Administrative Law and Procedure § 115.]

alienative fact (ay-lee-<<schwa>>-nay-tiv or ay-lee-<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>-tiv). A fact that divests a person of a right by transferring it to another.

ancient fact.A fact about a person, thing, or event that existed or occurred a very long time ago, and about which no living person has firsthand knowledge. — Also termed fact in pais.

collateral fact.A fact not directly connected to the issue in dispute, esp. because it involves a different transaction from the one at issue. [Cases: Evidence 99. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 2–5, 197–199, 204, 206.]

collative fact.See investitive fact.

denotative fact (dee-noh-tay-tiv or di-noh-t<<schwa>>-tiv). A fact relevant to the use of a nonlegal term in a legal rule.

destitutive fact.See divestitive fact.

dispositive fact (dis-poz-<<schwa>>-tiv).1. A fact that confers rights or causes the loss of rights. • A dispositive fact may be either an investitive or a divestitive fact. — Also termed vestitive fact (ves-t<<schwa>>-tiv).2. A fact that is decisive of a legal matter; evidence that definitively resolves a legal issue or controversy. See DISPOSITION.

divestitive fact (di-ves-t<<schwa>>-tiv or dI-). A fact that causes the loss of rights; an act or event modifying or extinguishing a legal relation. — Also termed extinctive fact; destitutive fact; ablative fact.

elemental fact.See ultimate fact.

evaluative fact.A fact used to assess an action as being reasonable or negligent.

evidentiary fact (ev-i-den-sh<<schwa>>-ree).1. A fact that is necessary for or leads to the determination of an ultimate fact. — Also termed predicate fact. 2. A fact that furnishes evidence of the existence of some other fact. — Also termed evidential fact. 3. See fact in evidence.

exonerative fact (eg-zon-<<schwa>>-<<schwa>>-tiv or -ay-tiv). A divestitive fact that extinguishes a duty.

extinctive fact. See divestitive fact.

fact in evidence. A fact that a tribunal considers in reaching a conclusion; a fact that has been admitted into evidence in a trial or hearing. — Also written fact-in-evidence. — Also termed evidentiary fact.

“A fact-in-evidence, or, briefly, evidence, signifies any facts considered by the tribunal as data to persuade them to reach a reasoned belief upon a probandum. This process of thought by which the tribunal reasons from fact to probandum is termed inference.” John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 7 (1935).

fact in issue. (usu. pl.) 1. Hist. A fact that one party alleges and that the other controverts. 2. A fact to be determined by a fact-trier; PROBANDUM. — Also written fact-in-issue. — Also termed principal fact.

“A fact-in-issue is a fact as to the correctness of which the tribunal, under the law of the case, must be persuaded; the term ‘probandum’ (thing to be proved) will here be used as the convenient single word.” John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 7 (1935).

fact in pais. See ancient fact.

fact material to risk. Insurance. A fact that may increase the risk and that, if disclosed, might induce the insurer either to decline to insure or to require a higher premium. [Cases: Insurance 2958, 2963. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 549, 565, 580, 582, 586, 760.]

foundational fact. See predicate fact.

immaterial fact. A fact that is not relevant to a matter in issue.

impositive fact. An investitive fact that imposes duties.

inferential fact. A fact established by conclusions drawn from other evidence rather than from direct testimony or evidence; a fact derived logically from other facts. [Cases: Evidence 595. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 1300, 1341.]

investitive fact (in-ves-t*<<schwa>>-tiv). A fact that confers rights. — Also termed collative fact (k<<schwa>>*-lay-tiv).

judicial fact. A fact that the court accepts as proved without hearing evidence. See JUDICIAL NOTICE. [Cases: Criminal Law 304; Evidence 1. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 657; Evidence §§ 8–11, 106.]

jurisdictional fact. (usu. pl.) A fact that must exist for a court to properly exercise its jurisdiction over a case, party, or thing. See JURISDICTIONAL-FACT DOCTRINE.

legal fact.A fact that triggers a particular legal consequence.

legislative fact.A fact that explains a particular law's rationality and that helps a court or agency determine the law's content and application. • Legislative facts are not ordinarily specific to the parties in a proceeding. Cf. adjudicative fact.

“[L]egislative fact includes matters needed to construe statutes or regulations, and factual assumptions a court makes when called upon to ‘legislate.’ Examples of the latter might include the fact that spouses will communicate less if they are not granted a privilege covering their confidences, or that marital harmony will be strained if spouses can be compelled to testify against each other — facts which might be useful in helping a court decide whether to create or continue a common-law marital privilege .... Obviously, legislative facts of this nature do not and cannot meet the indisputability criterion of the Rule [Fed. R. Evid. 201], nor are they required to.” Paul F. Rothstein, The Federal Rules of Evidence 35–36 (3d ed. 2003).

material fact.A fact that is significant or essential to the issue or matter at hand. [Cases: Evidence 143; Federal Civil Procedure 2470.1; Judgment 181(2). C.J.S. Evidence §§ 197, 201–204.]

minor fact.A subordinate fact or circumstance.

operative fact. 1. A fact that affects an existing legal relation, esp. a legal claim. • When applying the hearsay rule, this term distinguishes between out-of-court statements that are operative facts (e.g., a party's saying “I agree to reimburse you” in a case for breach of oral contract), and hearsay, out-of-court statements that only relate to operative facts (e.g., “Joel told me Mike said he would reimburse me”).2. A fact that constitutes the transaction or event on which a claim or defense is based.

physical fact.A fact having a physical existence, such as a fingerprint left at a crime scene.

predicate fact (pred-<<schwa>>-kit).1. A fact from which a presumption or inference arises. 2. A fact necessary to the operation of an evidentiary rule. • For example, there must actually be a conspiracy for the co-conspirator exception to the hearsay rule to apply. — Also termed foundational fact; evidentiary fact. [Cases: Evidence 53. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 2, 130–132, 134, 1341.]

primary fact.A fact that can be established by direct testimony and from which inferences are made leading to ultimate facts. See ultimate fact.

principal fact.See fact in issue, ultimate fact.

private fact.A fact that has not been made public. • Whether a fact is private often arises in invasion-of-privacy claims. Cf. public fact.

probative fact (proh-b<<schwa>>-tiv). A fact in evidence used to prove an ultimate fact, such as skid marks used to show speed as a predicate to a finding of negligence.

psychological fact.A fact that is related to mental state, such as motive or knowledge.

public fact. For the purpose of an invasion-of-privacy claim, a fact that is in a public record or in the public domain. Cf. private fact. [Cases: Torts 8.5(7). C.J.S. Right of Privacy and Publicity §§ 6, 12–14, 16, 22–24, 26–27, 29, 31, 39, 42.]

relative fact. A fact incidental to another fact; a minor fact.

simulated fact. A fabricated fact intended to mislead; a lie.

translative fact (trans- or tranz-lay-tiv). A fact by means of which a right is transferred from one person to another; a fact that fulfills the double function of terminating one person's right to an object and of originating another's right to it.

transvestitive fact. A fact that is simultaneously investitive and divestitive.

“When a person transfers the rights he has to another, the transfer divests him of the potestas, and invests that other with it. This is quite distinct from the creation or extinction of the potestas. A new descriptive term is wanted, and after the analogy of the other words, ‘transvestitive’ has been coined for the purpose.” W.A. Hunter, A Systematic and Historical Exposition of Roman Law 141 (4th ed. 1902).

ultimate fact. A fact essential to the claim or the defense. — Also termed elemental fact; principal fact.

undisputed fact. An uncontested or admitted fact.

vestitive fact. See dispositive fact (1).

FACTA

facta (fak-t<<schwa>>). [Latin] pl. FACTUM.

FACT-FINDER

fact-finder. One or more persons — such as jurors in a trial or administrative-law judges in a hearing — who hear testimony and review evidence to rule on a factual issue. — Also termed finder of fact; fact-trier or trier of fact (in a judicial proceeding); fact-finding board (for a group or committee). See FINDING OF FACT.

FACT-FINDING

fact-finding. 1. The process of taking evidence to determine the truth about a disputed point of fact. 2. Int'l law. The gathering of information for purposes of international relations, including the peaceful settlement of disputes and the supervision of international agreements. • Examples of fact-finding include legislative tours and the acquisition of information required for making decisions at an international level. — Also termed inquiry.

“[F]act-finding must be as impartial and as fair to the parties as procedural and evidentiary rules can render it without making the inquiry's task impossible, not merely for ethical reasons, but in order to maximize the credibility and impact of the facts found. To this end, fact-finders must develop procedures that sharply distinguish them from those bodies that assemble prosecutorial evidence.” Thomas M. Franck & H. Scott Fairley, Procedural Due Process in Human Rights Fact-Finding by International Agencies, 74 Am. J. Int'l L. 308, 310 (1980).

3. A method of alternative dispute resolution in which an impartial third party determines and studies the facts and positions of disputing parties that have reached an impasse, with a view toward clarifying the issues and helping the parties work through their dispute. [Cases: Arbitration 1. C.J.S. Arbitration §§ 2–3.]

FACT-FINDING BOARD

fact-finding board. See FACT-FINDER.

FACTION

faction. A number of citizens, whether a majority or a minority, who are united and motivated by a common impulse or interest that is adverse to the rights of others or to the permanent or aggregate interests of the community. • This definition is adapted from The Federalist, No. 10.

FACTIO TESTAMENTI

factio testamenti (fak-shee-oh tes-t<<schwa>>-men-tl). See TESTAMENTI FACTIO.

FACT ISSUE

fact issue. See issue of fact under ISSUE(1).

FACTO

facto (fak-toh), adj. In or by the fact. See DE FACTO; IPSO FACTO.

FACTO ET ANIMO

facto et animo (fak-toh et an-<<schwa>>-moh). [Latin] In fact and intent < taking possession facto et animo>.

FACTOR

factor, n. 1. An agent or cause that contributes to a particular result < punishment was a factor in the court's decision>. 2. An agent who is employed to sell property for the principal and who possesses or controls the property; a person who receives and sells goods for a commission < a factor was employed to sell goods for the company>. • A factor differs from a broker because the factor possesses or controls the property. — Also termed commission merchant; del credere bailiff. Cf. BROKER. [Cases: Factors 1. C.J.S. Agriculture §§ 163, 165, 178.]

“A factor by the rules of common law and of mercantile usage is an agent to whom goods are consigned for the purpose of sale, and he has possession of the goods, power to sell them in his own name, and a general discretion as to their sale. He may sell them on the usual terms of credit, may receive the price, and give a good discharge to the buyer.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 523 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

3. One who buys accounts receivable at a discount < the company sold its receivables to a factor at only 5% of their stated value>.4. A garnishee <the factor held $400 of the debtor's property when the writ of garnishment was served>. [Cases: Garnishment 13–24.] 5. A person in charge of managing property, esp. real property.

judicial factor.Scots law. An administrator or factor specially appointed by the Court of Session to manage an estate.

FACTORAGE

factorage. 1. The compensation paid to a factor for his or her services. [Cases: Factors 44. C.J.S. Agriculture §§ 171–173, 176–177.] 2. The business of a factor. [Cases: Factors 1, 5.C.J.S. Agriculture §§ 163, 165, 178.]

FACTORING

factoring,n. The buying of accounts receivable at a discount. • The price is discounted because the factor (who buys them) assumes the risk of delay in collection and loss on the accounts receivable. [Cases: Factors 1, 5, 10. C.J.S. Agriculture §§ 163, 165, 178.]

FACTORIZE

factorize (fak-t<<schwa>>-rIz), vb.1.GARNISH(2).2.GARNISH(3).

FACTORIZING PROCESS

factorizing process.A procedure or legal process by which a third party, rather than the creditor, attaches a debtor's property; GARNISHMENT. — Also termed trustee process; process by foreign attachment. [Cases: Garnishment 1.]

“In Vermont and Connecticut, the [garnishee] is also sometimes called the factor, and the process [of garnishing], factorizing process.” Charles D. Drake, A Treatise on the Law of Suits by Attachment in the United States § 451, at 386 (7th ed. 1891).

FACTOR'S ACT

factor's act.A statute protecting one who buys goods from a factor or agent by creating the presumption that the agent was acting on the owner's behalf and with the owner's approval. [Cases: Factors 58.]

FACTOR'S LIEN

factor's lien.See LIEN.

FACTORY ACT

factory act.A statute that regulates workers' hours, health, and safety. See FAIR LABOR STANDARDS ACT.

FACT PLEADING

fact pleading.See code pleading under PLEADING(2).

FACT QUESTION

fact question. See QUESTION OF FACT.

FACT-TRIER

fact-trier. See FACT-FINDER.

FACTUAL CAUSE

factual cause. See but-for cause under CAUSE(1).

FACTUAL IMPOSSIBILITY factual impossibility. See IMPOSSIBILITY.

FACTUAL PRESUMPTION factual presumption. See presumption of fact under PRESUMPTION.

FACTUM

factum (fak-t<<schwa>>m), n. [Latin] 1. A fact, such as a person's physical presence in a new domicile. 2. An act or deed, such as the due execution of a will. • Over time, factum in this sense came to mean “charter” — that is, the act or deed of conveying land, reduced to written form. See fraud in the factum under FRAUD.

“[I]t is only a short step to holding as a matter of law that a ‘deed’ — and by a deed (fet, factum) men are beginning to mean a sealed piece of parchment — has an operative force of its own which intentions expressed, never so plainly, in other ways have not. The sealing and delivering of the parchment is the contractual act. Further, what is done by ‘deed’ can only be undone by ‘deed.’ ” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 220 (2d ed. 1899).

factum imprestabile (fak-t<<schwa>>m im-pres-tay-b<<schwa>>-lee). [Law Latin] Hist. An act that cannot be performed; an impossibility.

factum juridicum (fak-t<<schwa>>m juu-rid-i-k<<schwa>>m). [Latin] A juridical fact.

factum probandum (fak-t<<schwa>>m pr<<schwa>>-ban-d<<schwa>>m). [Latin] A fact to be proved.

factum probans (fak-t<<schwa>>m proh-banz). [Latin] A probative or evidentiary fact; a subsidiary fact tending to prove a principal fact in issue.

factum proprium et recens (fak-t<<schwa>>m proh-pree-<<schwa>>m et ree-senz). [Law Latin] Hist. One's own act recently performed.

3. A statement of facts. 4. BRIEF(1). Pl. facta.

FACTUM OF A WILL

factum of a will. The formal ceremony of making a will; a will's execution by the testator and attestation by the witnesses.

FACT WORK PRODUCT

fact work product. See WORK PRODUCT.

FACULTATIVE CERTIFICATE

facultative certificate (fak-<<schwa>>l-tay-tiv). Insurance. A contract of reinsurance separately negotiated to cover risks under a single insurance policy. • Facultative reinsurance allows the reinsurer the "faculty" of assessing and possibly rejecting a particular risk (esp. if underwriting information is inadequate). [Cases: Insurance 3605. C.J.S. Insurance § 1504.]

FACULTATIVE REINSURANCE

facultative reinsurance. See REINSURANCE.

FACULTIES

faculties. Hist. Eccles. law. 1. An authorization granted to a person to do what otherwise would not be allowed. 2. The extent of a husband's estate; esp., the ability to pay alimony. See ALLEGATION OF FACULTIES.

FACULTIES, COURT OF

Faculties, Court of. See COURT OF FACULTIES.

FACULTIES, MASTER OF THE Faculties, Master of the. See MASTER OF THE FACULTIES.

FACULTY OF ADVOCATES

Faculty of Advocates. Scots law. The society comprising the members of the Scottish bar. • Unlike the English bar, the advocates do not have chambers, but all share the facilities of Advocates' Library in Parliament House.

FADERFIUM

faderfium (fah-th<<schwa>>r-fee-<<schwa>>m). Hist. A marriage gift to the bride from her father or brother.

FAEDER-FEOH

faeder-feoh (fah-th<<schwa>>r-fee).Hist. Property brought by a wife to her husband at marriage. • If the husband died, the property reverted to the widow if the heir of the deceased husband refused consent to her second marriage. The property reverted to the widow's family if she returned to them.

FAGGOT

faggot.Hist. 1. A piece of firewood used to burn a heretic alive. 2. An embroidered figure of a faggot, required to be worn by heretics who had recanted.

FAIL

fail,n. A transaction between securities brokers in which delivery and payment do not occur at the prescribed time, usu. on the settlement date. — Also termed fail contract.

fail to deliver.The nondelivery of securities from a selling broker to a buying broker by the settlement date.

fail to receive.The failure of a buying broker to receive delivery of securities from the selling broker by the settlement date.

fail,vb. 1. To be deficient or unsuccessful; to fall short <they failed to settle the dispute>.2. To become insolvent or bankrupt <two banks failed last week>.3. To lapse <the bequest failed as a result of ademption>.

FAILED DEVISE

failed devise.See lapsed devise under DEVISE.

FAILED GIFT

failed gift.1. See lapsed devise under DEVISE. 2. See lapsed legacy under LEGACY.

FAILED LEGACY

failed legacy.See lapsed legacy under LEGACY.

FAILING CIRCUMSTANCES

failing circumstances.See INSOLVENCY.

FAILING-COMPANY DOCTRINE

failing-company doctrine.Antitrust. The rule that allows an otherwise proscribed merger or acquisition between competitors when one is bankrupt or near failure. 15 USCA §§ 12–27. — Also termed failing-firm defense. [Cases: Monopolies 20(1). C.J.S. Monopolies §§ 106–111, 115–116, 125.]

“The 1992 guidelines provide a limited defense for failing firms and failing divisions of firms. The defense is available if impending failure would cause the assets of one party to leave the market if the merger does not occur. Thus to establish a failing firm defense, the parties must show that the failing firm cannot (1) meet its financial obligations, (2) reorganize in bankruptcy, and (3) find another buyer whose purchase of the firm would pose lesser anticompetitive risks. The parties must further show that (4) without the merger, the failing firm's assets will exit the market." Ernest Gellhorn & William E. Kovacic, Antitrust Law and Economics in a Nutshell 398–99 (4th ed. 1994).

FAIL POSITION

fail position. A situation existing when, after all transactions in a security have been netted out, a broker owes another broker more securities than it has coming in from other firms.

FAILURE

failure. 1. Deficiency; lack; want. 2. An omission of an expected action, occurrence, or performance. See LAPSE(2).

failure of a condition. The nonoccurrence of an event that has been made a condition of the contract. • The usual result is that one or both of the parties do not have to perform because of the failure of the condition.

failure of consideration. See FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION.

failure of good behavior. A civil servant's act that is ground for removal. [Cases: Officers and Public Employees 69.7. C.J.S. Officers and Public Employees §§ 133, 164–166.]

failure of issue. See FAILURE OF ISSUE.

failure of justice. See MISCARRIAGE OF JUSTICE.

failure of proof. A party's not having produced evidence establishing a fact essential to a claim or defense.

failure of title. A seller's inability to establish a good claim to the property contracted for sale. Cf. clear title under TITLE(2). [Cases: Vendor and Purchaser 129(1). C.J.S. Vendor and Purchaser §§ 314–319, 321–322.]

failure of trust. The invalidity of a trust because the instrument creating it has a defect or because of its illegality or other legal impediment. [Cases: Trusts 68. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion §§ 129, 137.]

failure of will. The invalidity of a will that was not executed with necessary statutory formalities.

failure otherwise than on the merits. The defeat of a plaintiff's claim by a procedural device without a decision on the existence of the claim's elements.

failure to bargain collectively. An employer's refusal to discuss labor issues with a union. [Cases: Labor Relations 388. C.J.S. Labor Relations §§ 153–154, 159–160, 391–395, 397.]

failure to claim. Patents. A finding by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office or by a court that a patent applicant or patentee has forfeited the right to broader protection by not seeking protection for some disclosed subject matter. • Any art outside the explicit claims, including foreseeable alteration of the claimed structure, is considered dedicated to the public domain.

failure to make delivery. Nondelivery or misdelivery.

failure to meet obligations. 1. BANKRUPTCY(4). 2. INSOLVENCY.

failure to perform. A party's not meeting its obligations under a contract. See CONTRACT(4). [Cases: Contracts 261(1), 312(1), 315. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 467, 470, 472, 480, 561.]

failure to state a cause of action. A plaintiff's not having alleged facts in the complaint sufficient to maintain a claim. • This failure warrants dismissal of the complaint. [Cases: Pleading 48. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 116–124, 132–133.]

failure to testify. A party's — esp. a criminal defendant's — decision not to testify. • Under the Fifth Amendment, the prosecutor and the judge cannot comment to the jury on a criminal defendant's failure to testify. But comments on the failure are usu. permissible in a civil case. [Cases: Criminal Law 317; Evidence 76; Witnesses 88. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 641–644, 705–706; Evidence §§ 174–175.]

FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION

failure of consideration. A seriously deficient contractual performance that causes a contract's basis or inducement to cease to exist or to become worthless. • Scholars disapprove of this term as misleading, since failure of performance is more accurate. Unlike consideration, the phrase failure of consideration relates not to the formation of a contract but to its performance. See CONSIDERATION(1). Cf. WANT OF CONSIDERATION. [Cases: Contracts 83, 260, 309(1). C.J.S. Contracts §§ 133, 466, 520–522, 524.]

“An illustration will help indicate how the term is used. If C promises to build a structure for O and O promises to make payment when the work is completed, it is clear that there is consideration on both sides of this contract and that therefore a contract was formed upon the exchange of promises. If C fails to perform, the result is sometimes described as a ‘failure of consideration.’ ‘Failure of consideration’ simply means a failure to perform and as used covers both a material breach of constructive conditions and a failure to perform an express condition. The use of the term ‘failure of consideration’ in this sense appears to be an unnecessary invitation to confusion because the word consideration is being used in two different senses. Fortunately, the use of this phrase has gradually fallen into disuse. It is, however, still sufficiently widespread to be mentioned here. This volume nowhere utilizes ‘failure of consideration’ as an operative concept.” John D. Calamari & Joseph M. Perillo, The Law of Contracts § 11-21, at 474–75 (3d ed. 1987).

partial failure of consideration. A party's incomplete performance of a contract with multiple, severable performances, so that if some of the performances are not accomplished, the appropriate part of the agreement can be apportioned to whatever has been completed. [Cases: Contracts 86, 260. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 84, 133, 135, 466.]

total failure of consideration. A situation in which the contract is indivisible so that a complete lack of consideration voids the contract. [Cases: Contracts 85, 260. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 134–135, 466.]

FAILURE OF GOOD BEHAVIOR

failure of good behavior. See FAILURE.

FAILURE OF ISSUE

failure of issue. The fact of a person's dying when the person has no surviving children or other descendants who are eligible to inherit the person's estate. — Also termed dying without issue; definite failure of issue; default of issue. See ISSUE(3). [Cases: Descent and Distribution 14–16. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 14–15, 20–21.]

“There has been considerable litigation during the past several centuries over the meaning of a gift to ‘A and his heirs, but if A shall die without issue, to B and his heirs.’ First of all, what does ‘die without issue’ mean? The answer appears simple — you look to the time of A's death to determine whether or not he has any children or grandchildren. But that is not the way the English courts originally construed this language. The English adopted the so-called ‘indefinite failure of issue’ construction — if at any time in the future A's line of descent should come to an end, then there was a gift over to B and his heirs. The effect of this was a fee tail in A and a remainder in B. This seems a distortion of the language, and particularly unsuited to American circumstances since the fee tail never found a real home here. Most of our jurisdictions, by judicial decision or statute, adopted the so-called ‘definite failure of issue’ construction — you look to the date of A's death to determine whether he has issue, and to that time alone. If A has issue at that time, then the gift over to B fails. This seems to be the literal meaning of the words, and it is the only sensible conclusion in a system where the fee tail is virtually a dead letter. The English also struck down the constructional preference for indefinite failure by statute in the nineteenth century.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 236–37 (2d ed. 1984).

indefinite failure of issue. A failure of issue whenever it happens, without any certain period within which it must happen. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 14, 57, 58. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 14–15, 63.]

FAILURE OF JUSTICE

FAILURE OF PROOF

failure of proof. See FAILURE.

FAILURE-OF-PROOF DEFENSE

failure-of-proof defense. The defense that a party's proof does not establish a fact essential to a claim or defense.

FAILURE OF RECORD

failure of record. Hist. In a trial by record, a party's inability to produce the record and thereby prove a pleading; an absence of proof to support a party's pleading. • The other party was entitled to summary judgment. See trial by record under TRIAL.

FAILURE OF TITLE

failure of title. See FAILURE.

FAILURE OF TRUST

failure of trust. See FAILURE.

FAILURE OF WILL

failure of will. See FAILURE.

FAILURE OTHERWISE THAN ON THE MERITS

failure otherwise than on the merits. See FAILURE.

FAILURE TO BARGAIN COLLECTIVELY

failure to bargain collectively. See FAILURE.

FAILURE TO CLAIM

failure to claim. See FAILURE.

FAILURE-TO-DISCLOSE-BEST-MODE REJECTION

failure-to-disclose-best-mode rejection. See REJECTION.

FAILURE TO MAKE DELIVERY

failure to make delivery. See FAILURE.

FAILURE TO MEET OBLIGATIONS

FAILURE TO PERFORM

failure to perform. See FAILURE.

FAILURE-TO-PERFORM EXCLUSION

failure-to-perform exclusion. See EXCLUSION(3).

FAILURE TO PROTECT

failure to protect. Family law. The refusal or inability of a parent or guardian to prevent abuse of a child under his or her care.

FAILURE TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION

failure to state a cause of action. See FAILURE.

FAILURE-TO-SUPERVISE STATUTE

failure-to-supervise statute. See PARENTAL-LIABILITY STATUTE.

FAILURE TO TESTIFY

failure to testify.See FAILURE.

FAILURE TO THRIVE

failure to thrive.Family law. 1. A medical and psychological condition in which a child's height, weight, and motor development fall significantly below average growth rates. • Failure to thrive is sometimes asserted as a ground for alleging abuse or neglect by a parent or caregiver. 2. A condition, occurring during the first three years of a child's life, in which the child suffers marked retardation or ceases to grow. — Abbr. FTT.

FAINT ACTION

faint action.See FEIGNED ACTION.

FAINT PLEADER

faint pleader.A false, fraudulent, or collusive manner of pleading.

FAIR

fair,adj.1. Impartial; just; equitable; disinterested <everyone thought that Judge Jones was fair>.2. Free of bias or prejudice <in jury selection, the lawyers tried to select a fair and impartial jury>.

fair,n. Hist. A privileged market for the buying and selling of goods. • A fair was an incorporeal hereditament granted to a town by royal patent or franchise or established by prescription. The franchise to hold a fair conferred important privileges, and a fair, as a legally recognized institution, possessed distinctive legal characteristics, most of which are now obsolete. Cf. market overt under MARKET.

FAIR-AND-EQUITABLE REQUIREMENT

fair-and-equitable requirement.Bankruptcy. A Bankruptcy Code standard requiring a forced, nonconsensual Chapter 11 plan (a “cramdown” plan) to provide adequately for each class of interests that has not accepted the plan. • In determining whether a cramdown plan is fair and equitable and thus can be confirmed, a bankruptcy court must apply the Code's detailed statutory criteria, consider the plan as a whole, and weigh all the circumstances surrounding the treatment of each impaired class of interests. In addition to the fair-and-equitable requirement, the Chapter 11 cramdown plan must (1) be accepted by at least one impaired class of claims, and (2) not discriminate unfairly among impaired classes that have not accepted the plan. 11 USCA § 1129(b). See CRAMDOWN. [Cases: Bankruptcy 3563. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 396.]

FAIR AND IMPARTIAL JURY

fair and impartial jury.See impartial jury under JURY.

FAIR AND IMPARTIAL TRIAL

fair and impartial trial.See FAIR TRIAL.

FAIR AND PROPER LEGAL ASSESSMENT

fair and proper legal assessment. See EQUALIZATION(2).

FAIR AND REASONABLE VALUE

fair and reasonable value. See fair market value under VALUE(2).

FAIR AND VALUABLE CONSIDERATION

fair and valuable consideration. See fair consideration under CONSIDERATION (1).

FAIR AVERAGING

fair averaging. The process of assessing taxes by using the average of the amount and price of goods acquired over a 12-month period rather than the amount and price at a particular time of the year.

FAIR CASH MARKET VALUE

fair cash market value. See fair market value under VALUE(2).

FAIR CASH VALUE

fair cash value. See fair market value under VALUE(2).

FAIR COMMENT

fair comment. A statement based on the writer's or speaker's honest opinion about a matter of public concern. • Fair comment is a defense to libel or slander. [Cases: Libel and Slander 48(1). C.J.S. Libel and Slander; Injurious Falsehood §§ 91–92, 96, 98, 102–104.]

FAIR COMPETITION

fair competition. See COMPETITION.

FAIR CONSIDERATION

fair consideration. See CONSIDERATION(1).

FAIR CREDIT BILLING ACT

Fair Credit Billing Act. A federal law that facilitates the correction of billing errors by credit-card companies and makes those companies more responsible for the quality of goods purchased by cardholders. 15 USCA §§ 1666–1666j. [Cases: Consumer Credit 30. C.J.S. Interest and Usury; Consumer Credit §§ 317–318.]

FAIR-CREDIT-REPORTING ACT

fair-credit-reporting act. A federal or state law that regulates the keeping of credit reports and ensures the right of consumers to get and correct their credit reports. • The federal Fair Credit Reporting Act was enacted in 1970. 15 USCA §§ 1681–1681u. [Cases: Credit Reporting Agencies 1–4. C.J.S. Credit Reporting Agencies; Consumer Protection §§ 2–22.]

fair-cross-section requirement. Constitutional law. The principle that a person's right to an impartial jury, guaranteed by the Sixth Amendment, includes a requirement that the pool of potential jurors fairly represent the composition of the jurisdiction's population. • The pool of potential jurors need not precisely match the composition of the jurisdiction. But the representation of each group must be fair — no group should be systematically excluded or underrepresented. A minimal disparity in a particular group's representation, such as an absolute disparity of 10%, will not ordinarily violate this principle unless some aggravating factor exists. See DUREN TEST; ABSOLUTE DISPARITY; COMPARATIVE DISPARITY; STATISTICAL-DECISION THEORY Y. [Cases: Jury 33(1.1). C.J.S. Juries §§ 269–273, 279, 306.]

FAIR DEALING

fair dealing.n.1. The conduct of business with full disclosure, usu. by a corporate officer with the corporation. [Cases: Corporations 314, 316. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 507, 510.] 2. A fiduciary's transacting of business so that, although the fiduciary might derive a personal benefit, all interested persons are fully apprised of that potential and of all other material information about the transaction. Cf. SELF-DEALING. 3. Canadian law. FAIR USE.

FAIR HEARING

fair hearing. See HEARING.

FAIR LABOR STANDARDS ACT

Fair Labor Standards Act. A federal law, enacted in 1938, that regulates minimum wages, overtime pay, and the employment of minors. 29 USCA §§ 201–219. — Abbr. FLSA. [Cases: Labor Relations 1102. C.J.S. Labor Relations § 1018.]

FAIRLY-DEBATABLE RULE

fairly-debatable rule. 1. Insurance. In some states, a test that requires an insurer to have a plausible basis for denying a claim to avoid bad-faith liability. [Cases: Insurance 3336. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1163, 1342, 1576, 1578–1581.] 2. Zoning. A doctrine that bars a court from interfering with a zoning decision that is supported by substantial evidence, although it is one on which reasonable minds can differ. • A court will not interfere with a decision supported by substantial evidence. [Cases: Zoning and Planning 602, 605, 703. C.J.S. Zoning and Land Planning § 273.]

FAIR MARKET PRICE

fair market price. See fair market value under VALUE(2).

FAIR MARKET VALUE

fair market value. See VALUE(2).

FAIRNESS DOCTRINE

fairness doctrine. A former FCC rule that required the broadcast media to furnish a reasonable opportunity for discussion of conflicting views on issues of public importance. • The FCC abandoned the fairness doctrine in 1987. Cf. EQUAL-TIME DOCTRINE. [Cases: Telecommunications 435.C.J.S. Telegraphs, Telephones, Radio, and Television §§ 178–179, 183–187.]

FAIR TRADE

fair trade, n. Commerce conducted under a fair-trade agreement.

FAIR-TRADE AGREEMENT

fair-trade agreement. A commercial agreement that a seller will sell all of a producer's goods at or above a specified minimum price. • Fair-trade agreements were valid until 1975, when the Consumer Goods Pricing Act made them illegal. 15 USCA §§ 1, 45.

FAIR-TRADE LAW

fair-trade law. A state statute that protects and enforces fair-trade agreements. • At one time, many states had fair-trade laws. But when applied to interstate commerce, the laws may violate the Sherman Antitrust Act, so most states have repealed them.

FAIR TRIAL

fair trial. A trial by an impartial and disinterested tribunal in accordance with regular procedures; esp., a criminal trial in which the defendant's constitutional and legal rights are respected. — Also termed fair and impartial trial.

FAIR USE

fair use. Copyright. A reasonable and limited use of a copyrighted work without the author's permission, such as quoting from a book in a book review or using parts of it in a parody. • Fair use is a defense to an infringement claim, depending on the following statutory factors: (1) the purpose and character of the use, (2) the nature of the copyrighted work, (3) the amount of the work used, and (4) the economic impact of the use. 17 USCA § 107. — Also termed private-use exception; (in Canadian law) fair dealing. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 53.2. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 45–46, 48–50.]

“[Fair use is] the most troublesome [problem] in the whole law of copyright.” Dellar v. Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., 104 F.2d 661, 662 (2d Cir. 1939)(per curiam).

“Fair use is a judicial safety valve, empowering courts to excuse certain quotations or copies of copyrighted material even though the literal terms of the Copyright Act prohibit them.” Paul Goldstein, Copyright's Highway 84 (1994).

FAIR VALUE

fair value. See fair market value under VALUE(2).

---

FAIR-VALUE ACCOUNTING METHOD

fair-value accounting method. See ACCOUNTING METHOD.

FAIR-VALUE LAW

fair-value law. A statute allowing a credit against a deficiency for the amount that the fair market value of land exceeds the price at foreclosure. — Also termed fair-value legislation. [Cases: Mortgages 559(7), 561.7. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 938, 943, 956.]

FAIR WARNING

fair warning. Criminal law. The requirement that a criminal statute define an offense with enough precision so that a reasonable person can know what conduct is prohibited and so that a reasonably skilled lawyer can predict what conduct falls within the statute's scope. — Also termed fair notice. [Cases: Criminal Law 13.1(1). C.J.S. Criminal Law § 26.]

FAIR WEAR AND TEAR

fair wear and tear. See WEAR AND TEAR.

FAIT

fait (fay or fe). [Law French fr. Latin factum] Anything done; an act or deed. • The term fait accompli (fay or fe t<<schwa>>-kom-plee), meaning “a deed accomplished,” which is not merely legal, is related to this word.

FAIT ENROLLE

fait enrolle (fay or fe ton-rohl). [Law French] Hist. An enrolled deed of a sale of a freehold estate.

FAITH AND TRUST

faith and trust. See FLIM FLAM.

FAITHFULLY EXECUTED CLAUSE

Faithfully Executed Clause. The clause of the U.S. Constitution providing that the President must take care that the laws are carried out faithfully. U.S. Const. art. II, § 3. [Cases: United States 26. C.J.S. United States §§ 45–47.]

FAITH-HEALING EXEMPTION

faith-healing exemption. Family law. In a child-abuse or child-neglect statute, a provision that a parent who provides a child with faith healing (in place of standard medical treatment) will not, for that reason alone, be charged with abuse or neglect. • Nearly all states have enacted some form of faith-healing exemption. But the statutes differ greatly. For example, they differ on whether the exemption is available as a defense to manslaughter or murder charges brought against a parent whose child dies as a result of the parent's having refused to consent to medical treatment. — Also termed religious-exemption statute; spiritual-treatment exemption. Cf. medical neglect under NEGLECT.

FAKE

fake, n. Something that is not what it purports to be. See FORGERY (2); IMPOSTOR.

fake, vb. To make or construct falsely. See COUNTERFEIT.

FALCIDIAN LAW

Falcidian law (fal-sid-ee-<<schwa>>n). Roman law. A law prescribing that one could give no more than three-fourths of one's property in legacies and that the heirs should receive at least one-fourth (the Falcidian portion). • If the testator violated this law, the heir had the right to deduct proportionally from each legatee as necessary. The law, proposed by the Roman tribune Falcidius, was enacted in 40 B.C. — Also termed lex Falcidia. See LEGITIME.

“A large number of small legacies might [either] leave nothing for the heir ... [or] make his part so small as to seem valueless in his eyes. But a Falcidian law, passed in the year 40 B.C., put an end to the whole difficulty. This law secured to the heir a quarter of the net value of the estate; the legatees could obtain only three-quarters: if the legatees named in the will amounted to more than this, they were diminished by proportional reductions.... Few measures have accomplished their purpose more satisfactorily than the Falcidian law, which remained in force through the history of the empire, and holds an important place in the system of Justinian.” James Hadley, Introduction to Roman Law 321–22 (1881).

FALCIDIAN PORTION

Falcidian portion. Roman law. The one-fourth part of an estate that one or more instituted heirs are entitled to retain. La. Civ. Code art. 1494. — Also termed quarta Falcidiana. See forced heir under HEIR; LEGITIME. Cf. QUARTA TREBELLIANICA .

FALCONER ERROR

Falconer error. A trial court's failure to instruct the jury that a guilty finding on a manslaughter charge requires acquittal on a murder charge. Falconer v. Lane, 905 F.2d 1129 (7th Cir. 1990).

FALDAGE

faldage (fahl-dij), n. Hist. 1. A landowner's right to require tenants to graze their sheep in designated temporary folds so that the manure will fertilize the field. — Also termed foldage; fold soc. 2. A sum of money paid to the landowner by a sheep-owning tenant in lieu of keeping the animals in the landowner's temporary fold. — Also termed faldfee.

FALDFEE

faldfee (fahld-fee), n. Hist. See FALDAGE(2).

FALDWORTH

faldworth (fahld-w<<schwa>>rth), n. Hist. A person who resides in a rural community where everyone above a certain age is responsible for the good conduct of all other members of the community and who has reached that age of responsibility. • This was part of the frankpledge system. See DECENARY; FRANKPLEDGE.

FALLO

fallo (fahl-yoh), n. Spanish law. The mandate in a court's judgment; the dispositive sentence in a judicial pronouncement.

FALL OF THE HAMMER

fall of the hammer. An auctioneer's closing of bidding <the bureau will be sold at the fall of the hammer>. • Traditionally, an auctioneer bangs a hammer, gavel, or other object when bidding is closed. In some circumstances, such as online auctions, a verbal announcement that bidding is closed substitutes.

FALSA CAUSA

falsa causa. See CAUSA(2).

FALSA DEMONSTRATIO

falsa demonstratio (fal-s<<schwa>> orfawl-s<<schwa>> dem-<<schwa>>n-stray-shee-oh). Roman law. A false designation; an erroneous description of a person or thing in a legal instrument. • Generally, a simple error in description, grammar, or spelling will not void an instrument or even a single provision in it (such as a bequest by will). — Also termed false demonstration.

FALSA MONETA

falsa moneta (fal-s<<schwa>> orfawl-s<<schwa>> m<<schwa>>-nee-t<<schwa>>). Roman law. Counterfeit money.

FALSARE

falsare (fal-sair-ee or fawl-), vb. [Law Latin] Hist. To counterfeit; to falsify.

FALSARIUS

falsarius (fal-sair-ee-<<schwa>>s or fawl-). [Law Latin] Hist. A counterfeiter. — Also spelled falcarious. — Also termed falsonarius.

FALSE

false, vb. 1. Scots law. To make or prove false. 2. Archaic. FALSIFY(1).

FALSE ACTION

false action. See FEIGNED ACTION.

FALSE ADVERTISING

false advertising, n. 1. The tortious and sometimes criminal act of distributing an advertisement that is untrue, deceptive, or misleading; esp., under the Lanham Trademark Act, an advertising statement that tends to mislead consumers about the characteristics, quality, or geographic origin of one's own or someone else's goods, services, or commercial activity. • Under § 43(a) of the Lanham Act, false advertising is actionable by anyone who reasonably believes that he or she has been or is likely to be damaged by the statement. An exaggerated opinion ("puffing") is an immaterial statement and therefore not actionable. [Cases: Consumer Protection 7; Fraud 1; Trade Regulation 870. C.J.S. Credit Reporting Agencies; Consumer Protection § 59.] 2. At common law, a statement in a defendant's advertising about its own goods or services intended to deceive or confuse customers into buying those goods or services instead of the plaintiff's, and causing actual damage to the plaintiff, esp. the loss of sales. — Also termed (in both senses) deceptive advertising.

FALSE ANSWER

false answer. See ANSWER(1).

FALSE ARREST

false arrest. See ARREST.

FALSE-ASSOCIATION CLAIM

false-association claim. Intellectual property. A claim based on the wrongful use of a distinctive name, mark, trade dress, or other device to misrepresent sponsorship, origin of goods or services, or affiliation. • The power to assert a false-association claim is not limited to trademark registrants. Any person who claims an injury caused by deceptive use of a trademark or its equivalent may have standing to bring suit. See 15 USCA § 1125(a)(1)(A).

FALSE CHARACTER

false character. Hist. The crime of impersonating a servant's master or mistress. See IMPOSTOR.

FALSE CHECK

false check. See bad check under CHECK.

FALSE CLAIM

false claim. An assertion or statement that is untrue; esp., overbilling.

FALSE CLAIMS ACT

False Claims Act. A federal statute establishing civil and criminal penalties against persons who bill the government falsely, deliver less to the government than represented, or use a fake record to decrease an obligation to the government. 18 USCA §§ 286–287; 31 USCA §§

3729–3733. • The Act may be enforced either by the attorney general or by a private person in a qui tam action. See QUI TAM ACTION. [Cases: United States 120.C.J.S. United States §§ 205, 242, 272.]

FALSE CONFLICT OF LAWS

FALSEHOOD

falsehood. A lie. See LIE; PERJURY.

FALSE IMPERSONATION

false impersonation. See IMPERSONATION.

FALSE-IMPLICATION LIBEL

false-implication libel. See LIBEL.

FALSE IMPRISONMENT

false imprisonment. A restraint of a person in a bounded area without justification or consent. • False imprisonment is a common-law misdemeanor and a tort. It applies to private as well as governmental detention. Cf. false arrest under ARREST. [Cases: False Imprisonment 2.]

“[In the phrase false imprisonment,] false is ... used not in the ordinary sense of mendacious or fallacious, but in the less common though well-established sense of erroneous or wrong; as in the phrases false quantity, false step, false taste, etc.” R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 123 n.38 (17th ed. 1977).

“False imprisonment was a misdemeanor at common law and is recognized by some states today. It differs from kidnapping in that asportation is not required. If the imprisonment is secret, some jurisdictions treat it as kidnapping.” Arnold H. Loewy, Criminal Law in a Nutshell 65 (2d ed. 1987).

“Some courts have described false arrest and false imprisonment as causes of action which are distinguishable only in terminology. The two have been called virtually indistinguishable, and identical. However, the difference between them lies in the manner in which they arise. In order to commit false imprisonment, it is not necessary either to intend to make an arrest or actually to make an arrest. By contrast, a person who is falsely arrested is at the same time falsely imprisoned.” 32 Am. Jur. 2d False Imprisonment § 3 (1995).

FALSE JUDGMENT

false judgment.Hist. A writ filed to obtain review of a judgment of a court not of record.

“After judgment given, a writ also of false judgment lies to the courts at Westminster to rehear and review the cause, and not a writ of error; for this is not a court of record ....” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 34 (1768).

FALSE LIGHT

false light. 1.Torts. In an invasion-of-privacy action, a plaintiff's allegation that the defendant attributed to the plaintiff views that he or she does not hold and placed the plaintiff before the public in a highly offensive and untrue manner. • If the matter involves the public interest, the plaintiff must prove the defendant's malice. See invasion of privacy by false light under INVASION OF PRIVACY. [Cases: Torts 8.5. C.J.S. Right of Privacy and Publicity § 2.] 2. (usu. pl.) Maritime law. A signal displayed intentionally to lure a vessel into danger. 18 USCA § 1658(b). — Also termed false light or signal.

FALSE MAKING

false making.See FORGERY(1).

FALSE-MEMORY SYNDROME

false-memory syndrome.The supposed recovery of memories of traumatic or stressful episodes that did not actually occur, often in session with a mental-health therapist. • This term is most frequently applied to claims by adult children that repressed memories of prolonged and repeated child sexual abuse, usu. by parents, have surfaced, even though there is no independent evidence to substantiate the claims. Cf. REPRESSED-MEMORY SYNDROME.

FALSE MEMORY SYNDROME FOUNDATION

False Memory Syndrome Foundation.An organization of parents who claim that their adult children have falsely accused them of childhood sexual abuse. • The organization was formed for the purpose of aiding persons who claim to have been wrongly accused as a result of the recovery of repressed memories. — Abbr. FMSF. Cf. VICTIMS OF CHILD ABUSE LAWS.

FALSE MISREPRESENTATION

false misrepresentation.See MISREPRESENTATION. • This phrase is redundant, since misrepresentation includes the idea of falsity.

FALSE NEWS

false news.Hist. The misdemeanor of spreading false information that causes discord between the monarch and the people or between important people in the realm.<sup>3</sup> Edw. 1, ch. 34.

FALSE PRETENSES

false pretenses. The crime of knowingly obtaining title to another's personal property by misrepresenting a fact with the intent to defraud. • Although unknown to English common law, false pretenses became a misdemeanor under a statute old enough to make it common law in the United States. Modern American statutes make it either a felony or a misdemeanor, depending on how valuable the property is. — Also termed obtaining property by false pretenses; fraudulent pretenses. Cf. larceny by trick under LARCENY; EMBEZZLEMENT. [Cases: False Pretenses 1.]

FALSE PROMISE

false promise. See PROMISE.

FALSE REPORT

false report. Criminal law. The criminal offense of informing law enforcement about a crime that did not occur. [Cases: Obstructing Justice 7.C.J.S. Obstructing Justice or Governmental Administration §§ 4, 10, 12–29, 31–32, 38.]

FALSE REPRESENTATION

false representation. See MISREPRESENTATION.

FALSE RETURN

false return. 1. A process server's or other court official's recorded misrepresentation that process was served, that some other action was taken, or that something is true. See RETURN(2). [Cases: Process 132–144, 153, 160. C.J.S. Process §§ 79–85, 87–91, 94, 96–97.] 2. A tax return on which taxable income is incorrectly reported or the tax is incorrectly computed. See TAX RETURN. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4480. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 635.]

FALSUS IN UNO DOCTRINE

falsus in uno doctrine (fal-s<<schwa>>s [or fawl-s<<schwa>>s] in yoo-noh). [fr. Latin falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus “false in one thing, false in all”] The principle that if the jury believes that a witness's testimony on a material issue is intentionally deceitful, the jury may disregard all of that witness's testimony. [Cases: Trial 187, 210; Witnesses 317. C.J.S. Trial §§ 505, 571; Witnesses § 570.]

“[T]here is an old maxim ‘falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus’ (false in one thing, false in all), which is often much overemphasized by counsel, though it is recognized by many courts in their charges to the jury. But this is only primitive psychology, and should be completely discarded.” John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 181 (1935).

FALTERING-COMPANY EXCEPTION

faltering-company exception. A provision in the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act exempting an employer from giving the required 60-day notice for a plant shutdown if (1) at the time notice was due, the employer was seeking capital or resources that would have allowed the employer to avoid a shutdown, and (2) the employer reasonably believed that providing the notice would have precluded the employer from obtaining the necessary capital or other resources. 29 USCA § 2102(b)(1). See WORKER ADJUSTMENT AND RETRAINING NOTIFICATION ACT .

FAMA PUBLICA

fama publica (fay-m<<schwa>> p<<schwa>>b-li-k<<schwa>>). [Latin “public repute”] Hist. A person's reputation in the community. • A person's fama publica could be used against him or her in a criminal proceeding. Cf. ILL FAME .

“Now in the thirteenth century we find in the sheriff's turn a procedure by way of double presentment, and we may see it often, though not always, when a coroner is holding an inquest over the body of a dead man. The fama publica is twice distilled. The representatives of the villis make presentments to a jury of twelve freeholders which represents the hundred, and then such of these presentments as the twelve jurors are willing to ‘avow,’ or make their own, are presented by them to the sheriff.... From the very first the legal forefathers of our grand jurors are not in the majority of cases supposed to be reporting crimes that they have witnessed, or even to be the originators of the fama publica. We should be guilty of an anachronism if we spoke of them as ‘endorsing a bill’ that is ‘preferred’ to them; but still they are handing on and ‘avowing’ as their own a rumour that has been reported to them by others.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 643 (2d ed. 1899).

FAMILIA

familia (f<<schwa>>-mil-ee-<<schwa>>), n. [Latin] Roman law. 1. All persons, free and slave, in the power of a paterfamilias. See PATERFAMILIAS. 2. One's legal relations through and with one's family, including all property, ancestral privileges, and duties.

“The testator conveyed to him outright his whole ‘familia,’ that is, all the rights he enjoyed over and through the family; his property, his slaves, and all his ancestral privileges, together, on the other hand, with all his duties and obligations.” Henry S. Maine, Ancient Law 170 (17th ed. 1901).

3. A family, including household servants. “Familia.... A family or household, including servants, that is, hired persons (mercenarii or conductitii,) as well as bondsmen, and all who were under the authority of one master, (dominus.) Bracton uses the word in the original sense, as denoting servants or domestics.” 1 Alexander M. Burrill, A Law Dictionary and Glossary 603–04 (2d ed. 1867).

FAMILIAE EMPTOR

familiae emptor (f<<schwa>>-mil-ee-ee emp-tor). [Latin “estate purchaser”] Roman law. A trustee who received an inheritance by a fictitious purchase and distributed it as the testator instructed. — Also termed emptor familiae. See mancipatory will under WILL.

“At some date, probably long before the XII Tables, men on the point of death, unable to make a true will because there was no imminent sitting of the Comitia, adopted the practice of conveying all their property ... to a person who is described as the familiae emptor, and who is said by Gaius to be in loco heredis. Instructions were no doubt given to him as to the disposal of the property or part of it, but it is not clear that these were enforceable ....” W.W. Buckland, A Manual of Roman Private Law 175 (2d ed. 1953).

FAMILIAE ERCISCUNDAE

FAMILY-PURPOSE RULE

family-purpose rule. Torts. The principle that a vehicle's owner is liable for injuries or damage caused by a family member's negligent driving. • Many states have abolished this rule. — Also termed family-purpose doctrine; family-automobile doctrine; family-car doctrine. Cf. GUEST STATUTE. [Cases: Automobiles 195(5). C.J.S. Motor Vehicles § 843.]

“A number of jurisdictions have adopted the so-called ‘family purpose’ doctrine, under which the owner of a motor vehicle purchased or maintained for the pleasure of his family is liable for injuries inflicted by the negligent operation of the vehicle while it is being used by members of the family for their own pleasure, on the theory that the vehicle is being used for the purpose or business for which it was kept, and that the person operating it is therefore acting as the owner's agent or servant in using it." 8 Am. Jur. 2d Automobiles and Highway Traffic § 715, at 296 (1997).

FARMINOR

farminor. See FARMOUTOR.

FARM LET

farm let, vb. Hist. To lease; to let land for rent. • To farm let is a phrasal verb that commonly appeared in real-property leases; it corresponds with its Latin root, ad firmam tradidi.

“A lease is properly a conveyance of any lands or tenements, (usually in consideration of rent or other annual recompense) made for life, for years, or at will, but always for a less time than the lessor hath in the premises: for if it be for the whole interest, it is more properly an assignment than a lease. The usual words of operation in it are, ‘demise, grant, and to farm let; dimisi, concessi, et ad firmam tradidi.’ ” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 317–18 (1766).

FARMOR

farmor. See FARMOUTOR.

FARM OUT

farm out, vb. 1. To turn over something (such as an oil-and-gas lease) for performance by another. • The term evolved from the Roman practice of transferring the right to collect taxes to a third party for a fee. It was later practiced in England, Scotland, and France but has been long abolished. 2. Hist. To lease for a term. 3. To exhaust farmland, esp. by continuously raising a single crop.

FARMOUT AGREEMENT

farmout agreement.Oil & gas. An agreement by which one who owns an oil-and-gas lease (the farmoutor or farmor) agrees to assign to another (the farmoutee or farmee) an interest in the lease in return for drilling and testing operations on the lease. • For the farmor, the agreement either (1) maintains the lease by securing production or complying with the implied covenant to develop or offset, or (2) obtains an interest in production without costs. For the farmee, the agreement obtains acreage that is not otherwise available or at lower cost than would otherwise be possible. A farmout agreement may also serve as a device to keep people and equipment gainfully employed. — Often shortened to farmout. — Also written farm out agreement; farm-out agreement. See ASSIGNMENT. [Cases: Mines and Minerals 74(8). C.J.S. Mines and Minerals §§ 318–319.]

FARMOUTEE

farmoutee (fahr-ow-tee). An oil-and-gas sublessee to whom the lease is assigned for purposes of drilling a well. — Also termed farmee; farminee. [Cases: Mines and Minerals 74(8). C.J.S. Mines and Minerals §§ 318–319.]

FARMOUTOR

farmoutor (fahr-ow-tor or -t<<schwa>>r). An oil-and-gas lessee who assigns the lease to another, who agrees to drill a well. — Also spelled farmouter. — Also termed farmor; farminor. [Cases: Mines and Minerals 74(8).C.J.S. Mines and Minerals §§ 318–319.]

FARM PRODUCTS

FAS

FAS.abbr.1.FREE ALONGSIDE SHIP. 2.FETAL ALCOHOL SYNDROME. 3.FOREIGN AGRICULTURAL SERVICE .

fas (fas), n.[Latin] Roman law. 1. Moral law of divine origin; divine law. • Jus, by contrast, is created by man. See JUS. 2. What is right, proper, lawful, and permitted. Cf. NEFAS.

“The first element to be noted in the Roman composite existing in primitive times, when religion and law were not distinguished, is fas — the will of the gods, embodied in rules that regulated not only ceremonials but the conduct of all men as such.” Hannis Taylor, The Science of Jurisprudence 65 (1908).

“It is true that the two spheres of ius and fas overlapped.... All this, however, concerned merely the question of where to draw the line between ius and fas; it did not blur the distinction between the two. From the standpoint of the history of Roman law, this distinction, consciously made from very early times, was of great importance, since it enabled the Romans to delimit the scope and the contents of strictly legal rules. This attitude may occasionally have caused a certain cold aloofness from purely human problems, but it undoubtedly contributed to the clarity of the legal system.” Hans Julius Wolff, Roman Law: An Historical Introduction 51–52 (1951).

FASB

legal father.The man recognized by law as the male parent of a child. • A man is the legal father of a child if he was married to the child's natural mother when the child was born, if he has recognized or acknowledged the child, or if he has been declared the child's natural father in a paternity action. If a man consents to the artificial insemination of his wife, he is the legal father of the child that is born as a result of the artificial insemination even though he may not be the genetic father of the child. [Cases: Children Out-of-Wedlock 12, 68; Parent and Child 1. C.J.S. Children Out-of-Wedlock §§ 25–26, 126–127; Parent and Child §§ 1–12, 201.] natural father. See biological father.

presumed father. The man presumed to be the father of a child for any of several reasons: (1) because he was married to the child's natural mother when the child was conceived or born (even though the marriage may have been invalid), (2) because the man married the mother after the child's birth and agreed either to have his name on the birth certificate or to support the child, or (3) because the man welcomed the child into his home and held out the child as his own. • This term represents a complicated category, and state laws vary in their requirements. See PRESUMPTION OF PATERNITY. [Cases: Children Out-of-Wedlock 43. C.J.S. Children Out-of-Wedlock § 100.] psychological father. See psychological parent under PARENT.

FEAL

feal (fee-<<schwa>>l), adj. Archaic. Faithful; truthful. — Also termed fele.

FEALTY

fealty (feel-tee orfee-<<schwa>>l-tee).Hist. In feudal law, the allegiance that a tenant or vassal owes to a lord. — Also termed feodality.

“There was the possibility that if the entire top layer of the structure revolted, the king might be deprived of all support. To meet this possibility, the king also bound directly to himself all the important men in the lower strata of the [feudal] structure by an oath of loyalty. This was particularly effective for in medieval times the oath of fealty had all the sanction of the church, and in addition due to the necessity for feudal organization in times of disorder, had also a popular sanction in public opinion so that the man who broke his oath to his lord was one of the most execrable men to be found in the whole social organization.” Charles Herman Kinnane, A First

FEDERAL KIDNAPPING ACT

Federal Kidnapping Act.A federal law punishing kidnapping for ransom or reward when the victim is transported interstate or internationally. • The law presumes that a victim has been transported in violation of the law if the victim is not released within 24 hours. The Federal Kidnapping Act, by express provision, does not apply to the kidnapping of a minor by either parent. 18 USCA § 1201. — Also termed Lindbergh Act. Cf. PARENTAL KIDNAPPING PREVENTION ACT . [Cases: Kidnapping 1. C.J.S. Kidnapping §§ 1–2.]

“The Federal Kidnapping Act was passed in 1932 to close a dangerous loophole between state and federal law. At that time, marauding bands of kidnapers were preying upon the wealthy with ruthless abandon, seizing their victims for ransom while operating outside the reach of existing state laws. Knowing that authorities in the victim's home state were powerless once a hostage was transported across state lines, the criminals would kidnap their target in one state, then move quickly to the next. In response, Congress made kidnapping a federal crime when the victim was moved from one state to another, and comprehensive language was used to cover every possible variety of kidnapping followed by interstate transportation.” 1 Am. Jur. 2d Abduction and Kidnapping § 14, at 185 (1994).

FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM

Federal Reserve System. The central bank that sets credit and monetary policy by fixing the reserves to be maintained by depository institutions, determining the discount rate charged by Federal Reserve Banks, and regulating the amount of credit that may be extended on any security. • The Federal Reserve System was established by the Federal Reserve Act of 1913. 12 USCA § 221. It comprises 12 central banks supervised by a Board of Governors whose members are appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. — Abbr. FRS; Fed. [Cases: Banks and Banking 351–359. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 650–662, 676–678, 682–687, 746.]

“The Federal Reserve System of 1913 evolved out of a search for consensus among bankers, politicians, and some academic experts. It was a move toward ‘central bank’ regulation in the European sense .... [The System] seemed to resolve the outstanding problems in money and banking. Federal Reserve banknotes could grow with expanding commercial paper and economic prosperity, and assure a more adequate, reliable monetary growth.” William A. Lovett, Banking and Financial Institutions Law in a Nutshell 14–15 (1997).

FEDERAL RETIREMENT THRIFT INVESTMENT BOARD

FEDERAL RULES OF BANKRUPTCY PROCEDURE

Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure. The rules governing proceedings instituted under the Bankruptcy Code. — Abbr. Fed. R. Bankr. P. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2129. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 6.]

FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE

Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The rules governing civil actions in the U.S. district courts. — Abbr. Fed. R. Civ. P.; FRCP. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 31–44. C.J.S. Evidence § 7.]

“Chief Justice Hughes in 1935 appointed fourteen lawyers and law teachers as the Advisory Committee for the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, with William D. Mitchell, former Attorney General, as chairman, and Charles E. Clark, then dean of the Yale Law School, as reporter, to recommend a draft of rules uniting law and equity. The committee proposed a system of rules that was approved by the Court with certain changes. In accordance with the Enabling Act, the rules were submitted to Congress for its acquiescence and, Congress having taken no exception to them, they became effective September 16, 1938.

“The rules thus produced bear the unmistakable imprint of the reporter, Charles E. Clark, and represent the largest single accomplishment in American civil procedure since the Field Code of 1848. Although they were not perfect and have been amended many times, experience with them has on the whole been satisfactory, and more than half of the states have adopted them in their entirety or in large part.” Fleming James, Geoffrey C. Hazard Jr. & John Leubsdorf, Civil Procedure § 1.8, at 24–25 (5th ed. 2001).

FEDERAL RULES OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE

FEDERAL TORT CLAIMS ACT

Federal Tort Claims Act.A statute that limits federal sovereign immunity and allows recovery in federal court for tort damages caused by federal employees, but only if the law of the state where the injury occurred would hold a private person liable for the injury. 28 USCA §§ 2671–2680. — Abbr. FTCA. See sovereign immunity under IMMUNITY(1). [Cases: United States 78. C.J.S. United States §§ 149–151, 179.]

“Although it has been suggested that the maxim, ‘the King can do no wrong’ never had an existence in the United States, it has also been declared that in enacting the Federal Tort Claims Act, Congress recognized the manifold injustice that springs from the delimiting effect of the rule represented by that maxim. And it is said that in passing the Act, Congress intended to compensate the victims of negligence in the conduct of governmental activities in circumstances in which a private person would be liable, rather than leave just treatment to the caprice and legislative burden of individual private laws, and to eliminate the burden on Congress of investigating and passing on private bills seeking individual relief.” 35 Am. Jur. 2d Federal Tort Claims Act § 1, at fee. 1. A charge for labor or services, esp. professional services.

FEE

attorney's fees.See ATTORNEY'S FEES.

contingent fee.See CONTINGENT FEE.

docket fee.A fee charged by a court for filing a claim.

expert-witness fee.A fee paid for the professional services of an expert witness. [Cases: Costs 187. C.J.S. Costs § 116.]

fixed fee. 1. A flat charge for a service; a charge that does not vary with the amount of time or effort required to complete the service. 2. In a construction contract, a predetermined amount that is added to costs for calculating payments due under the contract. [Cases: Contracts 231(1).]

franchise fee. 1. A fee paid by a franchisee to a franchisor for franchise rights. • Franchise fees are regulated by state laws. 2. A fee paid to the government for a government grant of a franchise, such as the one required for operating a radio or television station. [Cases: Telecommunications 86, 401. C.J.S. Telegraphs, Telephones, Radio, and Television §§ 30, 153.]

jury fee.A fee, usu. a minimal one, that a party to a civil suit must pay the court clerk to be entitled to a jury trial. [Cases: Jury 26. C.J.S. Juries §§ 180–181.]

maintenance fee.See MAINTENANCE FEE.

management fee.A fee charged by an investment manager for supervisory services.

origination fee. A fee charged by a lender for preparing and processing a loan. [Cases: Usury 53. C.J.S. Interest and Usury; Consumer Credit §§ 162, 165–168.]

probate fee. Compensation paid with a probate court's approval to an attorney who performs probate-related services to the estate.

witness fee. 1. A statutory fee that must be tendered with a subpoena for the subpoena to be binding. [Cases: Witnesses 23. C.J.S. Witnesses §§ 70–71.] 2. A fee paid by a party to a witness as reimbursement for reasonable expenses (such as travel, meals, lodging, and loss of time) incurred as a result of the witness's having to attend and testify at a deposition or trial. • Any other payment to a nonexpert witness is considered unethical. — Also termed (in English law) conduct money. Cf. expert-witness fee.

2. A heritable interest in land; esp., a fee simple absolute. — Also termed fee estate; feod; feodum; feud; feodum; fief. See FEE SIMPLE. Cf. FEU. [Cases: Estates in Property 5–7. C.J.S. Estates §§ 11–14, 20–21.] “To enfeoff someone was to transfer to him an interest in land called a fief — or, if you prefer, a feoff, feod, or feud. Our modern word fee, a direct lineal descendant of fief, implies the characteristic of potentially infinite duration when used to describe an interest in land today; but in the earliest part of the feudal period, a fief might have been as small as a life interest. We shall see later that feoffment was not used to transfer interests ‘smaller’ than life interests — e.g., so-called terms for years — but for our purposes now we may simply note that transfers of interests for life or ‘larger’ were accomplished by livery of seisin.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 11 (2d ed. 1984).

arriere fee (ar-ee-air or ar-ee-*<<schwa>>*r). Hist. A fee dependent on a superior one; a subfief. — Also termed arriere fief.

base fee. A fee that has some qualification connected to it and that terminates whenever the qualification terminates. • An example of the words creating a base fee are “to A and his heirs, tenants of the manor of Tinsleydale,” which would terminate when A or his heirs are no longer tenants of the manor of Tinsleydale. Among the base fees at common law are the fee simple subject to a condition subsequent and the conditional fee. — Also termed determinable fee; qualified fee; limited fee. See fee simple determinable under FEE SIMPLE.

“A base fee is a particular kind of determinable fee. The two essentials of a base fee are (a) it continues only so long as the original grantor or any heirs of his body are alive; and (b) there is a remainder or reversion after it.... In effect a base fee was a fee simple which endured for as long as the entail would have continued if it had not been barred, and determined when the entail would have ended.” Robert E. Megarry & M.P. Thompson, A Manual of the Law of Real Property 38–40 (6th ed. 1993).

determinable fee. See base fee.

fee expectant. Rare. A fee tail created when land is given to a man and wife and the heirs of their bodies. See FRANKMARRIAGE.

FEE ESTATE

fee estate.See FEE(2).

FEE FARM

fee farm.Hist. A species of tenure in which land is held in perpetuity at a yearly rent (fee-farm rent), without fealty, homage, or other services than those in the feoffment. — Also termed feodi firma; firma feodi. See EMPHYTEUSIS.

“Now to all appearance the term socage, a term not found in Normandy, has been extending itself upwards; a name appropriate to a class of cultivating peasants has begun to include the baron or prelate who holds land at a rent but is not burdened with military service.... He is sometimes said to have feodum censuale; far more commonly he is said to hold ‘in fee farm.’ This term has difficulties of its own, for it appears in many different guises; a feoffee is to hold in feofirma, in feufirmam, in fedfirmam, in feudo firmam, in feudo firma, ad firmam feodalem, but most commonly, in feodi firma. The Old English language had both of the words of which this term is compounded, both feoh (property) and feorm (rent); but so had the language of France, and in Norman documents the term may be found in various shapes, firmam fedium, feudifirmam. But, whatever may be the precise history of the phrase, to hold in fee farm means to hold heritably, perpetually, at a rent; the fee, the inheritance, is let to farm.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 293 (2d ed. 1899).

FEE-SHARING

fee-sharing. See FEE-SPLITTING.

FEE SIMPLE

fee simple.An interest in land that, being the broadest property interest allowed by law, endures until the current holder dies without heirs; esp., a fee simple absolute. — Often shortened to fee. — Also termed estate in fee simple; tenancy in fee; exclusive ownership; fee-simple title; feudum simplex. [Cases: Estates in Property 5–7. C.J.S. Estates §§ 11–14, 20–21.]

“[Fee simple] is a term not likely to be found in modern conversation between laymen, who would in all probability find it quite unintelligible. Yet to a layman of the 14th century the term would have been perfectly intelligible, for it refers to the elementary social relationship of feudalism with which he was fully familiar: the words ‘fee’ and ‘feudal’ are closely related.... The estate in fee simple is the largest estate known to the law, ownership of such an estate being the nearest approach to ownership of the land itself which is consonant with the feudal principle of tenure. It is ‘the most comprehensive estate in land which the law recognises’; it is the ‘most extensive in quantum, and the most absolute in respect to the rights which it confers, of all estates known to the law’. Traditionally, the fee simple has two distinguishing features: first, the owner (‘tenant’ in fee simple) has the power to dispose of the fee simple, either inter vivos or by will; second, on intestacy the fee simple descends, in the absence of lineal heirs, to collateral heirs — to a brother, for example, if there is no issue.” Peter Butt, Land Law 35 (2d ed. 1988).

“Fee simple.Originally this was an estate which endured for as long as the original tenant or any of his heirs survived. ‘Heirs’ comprised any blood relations, although originally ancestors were excluded; not until the Inheritance Act 1833 could a person be the heir of one of his descendants. Thus at first a fee simple would terminate if the original tenant died without leaving any descendants or collateral blood relations (e.g., brothers or cousins), even if before his death the land had been conveyed to another tenant who was still alive. But by 1306 it was settled that where a tenant in fee simple alienated the land, the fee simple would continue as long as there were heirs of the new tenant and so on, irrespective of any failure of the original tenant's heirs. Thenceforward a fee simple was virtually eternal.” Robert E. Megarry & M.P. Thompson, A Manual of the Law of Real Property 24–25 (6th ed. 1993).

fee simple absolute. An estate of indefinite or potentially infinite duration (e.g., “to Albert and his heirs”). — Often shortened to fee simple or fee. — Also termed fee simple absolute in possession. [Cases: Estates in Property 5. C.J.S. Estates §§ 11–12.]

“Although it is probably good practice to use the word ‘absolute’ whenever one is referring to an estate in fee simple that is free of special limitation, condition subsequent, or executory limitation, lawyers frequently refer to such an estate as a ‘fee simple’ or even as a ‘fee.’ ” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 24 (2d ed. 1984).

fee simple conditional. An estate restricted to some specified heirs, exclusive of others (e.g., “to Albert and his female heirs”). • The fee simple conditional is obsolete except in Iowa, Oregon, and South Carolina. — Also termed general fee conditional; conditional fee. [Cases: Estates in Property 7. C.J.S. Estates §§ 13–14, 20–21.]

“The reader should be careful not to confuse this estate with estates having similar labels, such as the ‘estate in fee simple subject to a condition subsequent’ ....” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 29 n.19 (2d ed. 1984).

fee simple defeasible (di-fee-z<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l). An estate that ends either because there are no more heirs of the person to whom it is granted or because a special limitation, condition subsequent, or executory limitation takes effect before the line of heirs runs out. — Also termed qualified fee. [Cases: Estates in Property 6. C.J.S. Estates §§ 13–14.]

fee simple determinable. An estate that will automatically end and revert to the grantor if some specified event occurs (e.g., “to Albert and his heirs while the property is used for charitable purposes”); an estate in fee simple subject to a special limitation. • The future interest retained by the grantor is called a possibility of reverter. — Also termed determinable fee; qualified fee; fee simple subject to common-law limitation; fee simple subject to special limitation; fee simple subject to special interest; base fee; estate on limitation. [Cases: Estates in Property 6. C.J.S. Estates §§ 13–14.]

“In theory, it should be easy to determine whether an instrument creates a fee simple determinable or a fee simple subject to a condition subsequent. If the instrument includes a special limitation (introduced by words such as ‘so long as’ or ‘until’) it creates a fee simple determinable, whether or not it also includes an express reverter clause. If the instrument includes an express condition or proviso (‘on condition that’ or ‘provided that’) and an express right to re-enter for breach of the stated condition, it creates a fee simple subject to a condition subsequent. But deeds and wills often fail to employ the appropriate words to create one of the two types of defeasible estate or the others. Instead deeds and wills often contain a confusing mixture of words appropriate for creation of both types of defeasible estate.” William B. Stoebuck & Dale A. Whitman, The Law of Property 43 (3d ed. 2000).

fee simple subject to a condition subsequent. An estate subject to the grantor's power to end the estate if some specified event happens (e.g., “to Albert and his heirs, upon condition that no alcohol is sold on the premises”). • The future interest retained by the grantor is called a power of termination (or a right of entry). — Also termed fee simple on a condition subsequent; fee simple subject to a power of termination; fee simple upon condition. [Cases: Estates in Property 7. C.J.S. Estates §§ 13–14, 20–21.]

fee simple subject to an executory limitation. A fee simple defeasible that is subject to divestment in favor of someone other than the grantor if a specified event happens (e.g., “to Albert and his heirs, but if the property is ever used as a parking lot, then to Bob”). — Also termed fee simple subject to an executory interest. [Cases: Estates in Property 6. C.J.S. Estates §§ 13–14.] fee simple subject to a power of termination. See fee simple subject to a condition subsequent.

fee simple subject to common-law limitation. See fee simple determinable.

fee simple subject to special interest. See fee simple determinable.

fee simple subject to special limitation. See fee simple determinable.

fee simple upon condition. See fee simple subject to a condition subsequent.

FEE-SIMPLE TITLE

fee-simple title. See FEE SIMPLE.

FEE-SPLITTING

fee-splitting. 1. The division of attorney's fees between two or more lawyers, esp. between the lawyer who handled a matter and the lawyer who referred the matter. • Some states consider this practice unethical. 2. The division of attorney's fees between two or more lawyers who represent a client jointly but are not in the same firm. • Under most states' ethics rules, an attorney is prohibited from splitting a fee with a nonlawyer. — Also termed fee-sharing. [Cases: Attorney and Client 151. C.J.S. Attorney and Client §§ 294, 309–310.]

FEE STATEMENT

fee statement. A lawyer's bill for services either already rendered or to be rendered, usu. including itemized expenses.

FEE TAIL

fee tail. An estate that is heritable only by specified descendants of the original grantee, and that endures until its current holder dies without issue (e.g., “to Albert and the heirs of his body”). • Most jurisdictions — except Delaware, Maine, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island — have abolished the fee tail. — Also termed entailed estate; estate tail; estate in tail; estate in fee tail; tenancy in tail; entail; feodum talliatum. See ENTAIL; TAIL. [Cases: Estates in Property 12. C.J.S. Estates §§ 22–27.]

“The old legal estate tail was throughout its history invariably associated with family settlements, and in particular with marriage settlements.... Medieval landowners sought to achieve [familial continuity and status] by perfecting a single estate which in itself would conform to three requirements: (1) While it should be an estate of inheritance it should devolve on lineal heirs only, and not on collaterals — in other words that it should descend only to the heirs of the body of the first grantee. (2) As a corollary, the estate should be such that if at any time the first grantee's issue should fail the estate itself should come to an end and the land revert to the original settlor or his heirs. (3) No owner of the estate for the time being should have power to dispose of the land in such a way as to prevent it descending on his death to the next heir of the body of the original grantee. All this was attempted by limiting land, not to 'A and his heirs,' which would give A a fee simple, but to 'A and the heirs of his body.' ” 1 Stephen's Commentaries on the Laws of England 150 (L. Crispin Warmington ed., 21st ed. 1950).

“If we cannot resist the temptation to say that De Donis permitted the creation of tailor-made estates, we can at least argue that it is not a pun. Our word ‘tailor’ and the word ‘tail,’ as used in ‘fee tail,’ come from the same source — the French tailler, to cut. The word ‘tail’ in ‘fee tail’ has nothing to do with that which wags the dog. The estate in fee tail was a cut estate — either cut in the sense that the collateral heirs were cut out, or cut in the sense that the estate was carved into a series of discrete life-possession periods to be enjoyed successively by A and his lineal heirs.... We know of no state in the United States that recognizes the estate in fee tail in its strict 1285–1472 form. Wherever it is recognized, the tenant in tail in possession may disentail it by simple deed.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 30, 32 (2d ed. 1984).

fee tail general.A fee tail that is heritable by all of the property owner's issue by any spouse. • Formerly, a grant “to A and the heirs of his body” created a fee tail general.

fee tail special.A fee tail that restricts the eligibility of claimants by requiring a claimant to prove direct descent from the grantee and meet the special condition in the grant. • For example, the words “to A and the heirs of his body begotten on his wife Mary” meant that only descendants of A and Mary could inherit; A's children by any other wife were excluded. An estate tail special could also be restricted to only male or only female descendants, as in “to A and the heirs male of his body.”

FEIGNED ACTION

feigned action.Hist. An action brought for an illegal purpose on a pretended right. — Also termed faint action; false action.

FEIGNED ISSUE

feigned issue.Hist. A proceeding in which the parties, by consent, have an issue tried by a jury without actually bringing a formal action. • The proceeding was done when a court either lacked jurisdiction or was unwilling to decide the issue. — Also termed fictitious issue.

“The chancellor's decree is either interlocutory or final. It very seldom happens that the first decree can be final, or conclude the cause; for, if any matter of fact is strongly controverted, this court is so sensible of the deficiency of trial by written depositions, that it will not bind the parties thereby, but usually directs the matter to be tried by jury .... But, as no jury can be summoned to attend this court, the fact is usually directed to be tried at the bar of the court of king's bench or at the assises, upon a feigned issue. For, (in order to bring it there, and have the point in dispute, and that only, put in issue) an action is feigned to be brought, wherein the pretended plaintiff declares that he laid a wager of 5l. with the defendant that A was heir at law to B; and then avers that he is so; and therefore demands the 5l. The defendant allows the wager, but avers that A is not the heir to B; and thereupon the issue is joined .... These feigned issues seem borrowed from the sponsio judicialis of the Romans: and are also frequently used in the courts of law, by consent of the parties, to determine some disputed rights without the formality of pleading ....” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 452 (1768).

superior fellow servant. A worker that has the power of control or direction over a coworker. — Also termed superior servant.

FELLOW-SERVANT RULE

fellow-servant rule. A common-law doctrine holding that an employer is not liable for an employee's injuries caused by a negligent coworker. • This doctrine has generally been abrogated by workers'-compensation statutes. In some jurisdictions, employees were considered fellow servants when they were working with one aim or result in view. In others, the relation of fellow servant was tested by the "superior servant rule" or the "doctrine of vice principal," meaning that an employer is liable for injuries to an employee if they result from the negligence of another employee who is given power of control or direction over the injured employee. — Also termed common-employment doctrine. Cf. DIFFERENT-DEPARTMENT RULE. [Cases: Employers' Liability 100. C.J.S. Employers' Liability for Injuries to Employees §§ 167–169, 172.]

FELO-DE-SE

felo-de-se (fee-loh orfel-oh dee see), n. See SUICIDE(2).

“ ‘Felo de se,’ or felon of himself is freely spoken of by the early writers as self-murder. Hence one who killed himself before he arrived at the age of discretion or while he was non compos mentis, was not a felo de se, or suicide... [B]y the early common law suicide was a felony and was punished by ignominious burial and forfeiture of goods and chattels to the king.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 120 (3d ed. 1982).

FELON

felon, n. A person who has been convicted of a felony. — Also termed (redundantly) convicted felon.

FELON-DE-SE

felon-de-se. See SUICIDE(2).

FELONIA

felonia (f<<schwa>>-loh-nee-<<schwa>>). [Latin “felony”] Hist. An offense that results in a vassal's forfeiting his fee.

“The attempt to derive felonia from fel ‘poison’ is merely a folk etymology which came into vogue when ‘felony’ meant a serious crime, and differed from treason. The word was well established in Feudal Law as the characteristic offense against the Feudal relationship. It will hardly do, therefore, to try to determine its meaning merely by reference to English usage ....” Max Radin, Handbook of Anglo-American Legal History 148 n.7 (1936).

FELONIOUS

felonious (f<<schwa>>-loh-nee-<<schwa>>s), adj.1. Of, relating to, or involving a felony. 2. Constituting or having the character of a felony. 3. Proceeding from an evil heart or purpose; malicious; villainous. 4. Wrongful; (of an act) done without excuse or color of right.

FELONIOUS RESTRAINT

felonious restraint. 1. The offense of knowingly and unlawfully restraining a person under circumstances that expose the person to serious bodily harm. Model Penal Code § 212.2(a). 2. The offense of holding a person in involuntary servitude. Model Penal Code § 212.2(b).

FELON OF ONESELF

felon of oneself. See SUICIDE(2).

FELONY

felony, n. 1. A serious crime usu. punishable by imprisonment for more than one year or by death. • Examples include burglary, arson, rape, and murder. — Also termed major crime; serious crime. Cf. MISDEMEANOR. [Cases: Criminal Law 27. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 9–12.]

“Felony, in the general acceptance of our English law, comprizes every species of crime, which occasioned at common law the forfeiture of lands or goods.” 4 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 94 (1769).

“Amongst indictable crimes, the common law singled out some as being so conspicuously heinous that a man adjudged guilty of any of them incurred — not as any express part of his sentence but as a consequence that necessarily ensued upon it — a forfeiture of property, whether of his lands or of his goods or of both (in the case of treason). Such crimes came to be called ‘felonies.’ The other, and lesser, crimes were known as ‘transgressions’ or ‘trespasses,’ and did not obtain their present name of misdemeanours until a much later date. A felony is, therefore, a crime which either involved by common law such a forfeiture, or else has been placed by statute on the footing of those crimes which did involve it.” J.W. Cecil Turner, Kenny's Outlines of Criminal Law 93 (16th ed. 1952).

atrocious felony. A serious, usu. cruel felony involving personal violence. • This term is now used less frequently than the specific type of crime alleged (e.g., first-degree murder or aggravated sexual assault).

serious felony. A major felony, such as burglary of a residence or an assault that causes great bodily injury. • In many jurisdictions, a defendant's prior serious-felony convictions can be used to enhance another criminal charge.

substantive felony. See substantive offense under OFFENSE(1).

treason felony. See TREASON FELONY.

violent felony. See violent offense under OFFENSE(1).

2.Hist. At common law, an offense for which conviction results in forfeiture of the defendant's lands or goods (or both) to the Crown, regardless of whether any capital or other punishment is mandated. • At early common law, the term felony included any offense for which a defendant who fled before trial could be summarily convicted, attainted, and outlawed, or that carried a right of appeal after conviction. Although treason carried the same penalties as a common-law felony, it was usu. defined as a separate class of crime. 3.Hist. Feudal law. A grave act that resulted in the forfeiture of land granted by a superior.

FELONY-DE-SE

felony-de-se. See SUICIDE(1).

FELONY INJURY TO A CHILD

felony injury to a child. The act of causing or allowing a child to suffer in circumstances likely to produce great bodily harm or death, or inflicting unjustifiable pain or mental suffering in those circumstances.

FELONY MURDER

felony murder. See MURDER.

FELONY-MURDER RULE

felony-murder rule. The doctrine holding that any death resulting from the commission or attempted commission of a felony is murder. • Most states restrict this rule to inherently dangerous felonies such as rape, arson, robbery, and burglary. Cf. MISDEMEANOR-MANSLAUGHTER RULE. [Cases: Homicide 575.]

“[I]t seems fair to suggest that the future of felony murder is uncertain. England, where the doctrine originated, has abolished it. The Model Penal Code recommends its abolition except for the purpose of creating a rebuttable presumption of malice for killings perpetrated during the course of a felony. Although most states have not yet adopted this position, many of the judicial limitations on felony murder discussed above seem to insure that in many states it will be an unusual case in which one is convicted of felony murder, who absent this doctrine, would not have been convicted of murder.” Arnold H. Loewy, Criminal Law in a Nutshell 46 (2d ed. 1987).

FEMALE GENITAL MUTILATION

female genital mutilation. 1. Female circumcision. 2. The act of cutting, or cutting off, one or more female sexual organs. • Female genital mutilation is practiced primarily among certain tribes in Africa, but it also occurs among some immigrant populations in the United States and in other Western nations. There are three commonly identified types: sunna, in which the hood of the clitoris is cut off; excision, in which the entire clitoris is cut off; and infibulation, in which the clitoris, the labia minora, and much of the labia majora are cut off. In the United States, Congress has outlawed female genital mutilation, specifically prohibiting the use of a cultural defense for persons accused of performing the act. 18 USCA § 16. — Abbr. FGM. See CULTURAL DEFENSE.

FENCE

fence,n.1. A person who receives stolen goods. — Also termed (historically) intaker. [Cases: Receiving Stolen Goods 4. C.J.S. Receiving or Transferring Stolen Goods and Related Offenses §§ 4, 6–7, 12.]

“The receivers of stolen goods almost never ‘know’ that they have been stolen, in the sense that they could testify to it in a courtroom. The business could not be so conducted, for those who sell the goods — the ‘fences’ — must keep up a more respectable front than is generally possible for the thieves.” United States v. Werner, 160 F.2d 438, 441–42 (2d Cir. 1947).

“The typical ‘fence’ takes over the stolen property and pays the thief a price. He purports to ‘buy’ the goods from the thief.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 395 (3d ed. 1982).

2. A place where stolen goods are sold. See RECEIVING STOLEN PROPERTY. 3.LAWFUL FENCE. 4.Scots law. The formal warning to not interrupt or obstruct judicial or legislative proceedings. 5.Scots law. A penalty of forfeiture prescribed in a statute or a contract.

fence,vb. 1. To sell (stolen property) to a fence. 2.Scots law. To open (a legislative or judicial sitting) by warning persons against obstructing or interrupting the legislature or court. 3.Scots law. ## FEOFFEE feoffee (fef-eeor feef-ee). The transferee of an estate in fee simple; the recipient of a fief.

feoffee to uses.Hist. A person to whom land is conveyed for the use of a third party (called a cestui que use); one who holds legal title to land for the benefit of another. See CESTUI QUE USE; GRANT TO USES. Cf. TRUSTEE(1).

FEOFFMENT

feoffment (fef-m<<schwa>>nt orfeef-m<<schwa>>nt).Hist. 1. The act of conveying a freehold estate; a grant of land in fee simple. — Also termed feoffment with livery of seisin. 2. The land so granted. 3. The charter that transfers the land. — Also written enfeoffment. — Also termed deed of feoffment. [Cases: Deeds 21. C.J.S. Deeds §§ 12–13.]

feoffment to uses. An enfeoffment of land to one person for the use of a third party. • The feoffee was bound in conscience to hold the land according to the prescribed use and could derive no benefit from the holding.

“Conveyances of freehold land could originally be made only by a feoffment with livery of seisin. This was a solemn ceremony carried out by the parties entering on the land, and the feoffor, in the presence of witnesses, delivering the seisin to the feoffee either by some symbolic act, such as handing him a twig or sod of earth, or by uttering some words such as ‘Enter into this land and God give you joy’ and leaving him in possession of the land.” Robert E. Megarry & H.W.R. Wade, The Law of Real Property 47 (5th ed. 1984).

FEOFFMENT WITH LIVERY OF SEISIN

ferry,vb. To carry persons or property, usu. across water, for a fee.

FERRY FRANCHISE

ferry franchise.See FERRY(4).

FERTILE-OCTOGENARIAN RULE

fertile-octogenarian rule.The legal fiction, assumed under the rule against perpetuities, that a woman can become pregnant as long as she is alive. • The case that gave rise to this fiction was Jee v. Audley, 1 Cox 324, 29 Eng. Rep. 1186 (ch. 1787). See W. Barton Leach, Perpetuities: New Hampshire Defertilizes Octogenarians, 77 Harv. L. Rev. 729 (1963). — Also termed presumption-of-fertility rule.

“Suppose testator bequeaths in trust to pay the income to A for her life, then to pay the income to the children of A for their lives, and upon the death of the survivor of such children, to pay the principal to the grandchildren of A. At the time of the testator's death A is 79 years old, and she has two children. Believe it or not, it has been held that the remainder to the grandchildren of A is violative of the rule against perpetuities and invalid. The law adopted the conclusive presumption that every person is capable of having children until the day he or she dies, as far as the rule against perpetuities is concerned. Consequently, A could have an additional child who would not be a life in being at the testator's death, and that child could have a child who would be born beyond the permissible period. The result of this hypothesis is to invalidate the remainder to the grandchildren. This situation is sometimes referred to as the case of the ‘fertile octogenarian.’ Remember that the class gift is invalid if it is possible that the interest of any one member of the class can violate the rule.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 188 (2d ed. 1984).

FESTING-MAN

festing-man.Hist. A bondsman; a surety. See FRANKPLEDGE.

FESTING-PENNY

festing-penny.Hist. Earnest, or payment, given to a servant when hired.

FESTINUM REMEDIUM

festinum remedium (fes-tĭ-n<<schwa>>m ri-mee-dee-<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Hist. A speedy remedy. • It was used in cases, such as actions for dower or assize, where the redress of injury was given without unnecessary delay.

FESTO<TT> DOCTRINE

Festo doctrine.Patents. The rule that the voluntary narrowing of a patent claim may give rise to prosecution-history estoppel. Festo Corp. v. Shoketsu Kinzoku Kogyo Kabushiki Co., 304 F.3d 1289 (Fed. Cir. 2003). [Cases: Patents 168(2.2). C.J.S. Patents § 297.]

FESTUCA

festuca (fes-tyoo-k<<schwa>>).Hist. A rod, staff, or stick used as a pledge (or gage) of good faith by a party to a contract or as a token of conveyance of land. • In Roman law, a festuca was a symbol of ownership. — Also termed fistuca; vindicta. See LIVERY OF SEISIN.

“The wed or gage, however, was capable of becoming a symbol; an object which intrinsically was of trifling value might be given and might serve to bind a contract. Among the Franks, whom we must regard as being for many purposes our ancestors in law, it took the shape of the festuca. Whether this transition from the ‘real’ to the ‘formal’ can be accomplished without the intervention of sacral ceremonies seems doubtful. There are some who regard the festuca as a stout staff which has taken the place of a spear and is a symbol of physical power. Others see in it a little bit of stick on which imprecatory runes have been cut. It is hard to decide such questions, for, especially under the influence of a new religion, symbols lose their old meanings and are mixed up. Popular etymology confounds confusion.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 186 (2d ed. 1899).

FESTUM

festum (fes-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin] A feast-day, holiday, or festival.

FETAL ALCOHOL SYNDROME

fetal alcohol syndrome.A variety of birth defects caused by the mother's alcohol consumption during pregnancy. • The birth defects include facial abnormalities, mental retardation, and growth deficiencies. — Abbr. FAS.

FETIALES

fetiales (fee-shee-ay-leez), n. pl. Roman law. The order of priests whose duties concerned international relations and treaties, including the declaration of war and peace. — Also spelled feciales.

“Feciales [were] ... priests among the Romans, Etruscans, and other ancient nations of Italy, who acted as heralds of peace and war. Their persons were sacred from injury when engaged on any mission to a hostile state, as the persons of ambassadors, and messengers, under a flag of truce, are inviolate in the present time. Their duties in some few particulars resembled those of the heralds of the Middle Ages. The Roman feciales ... formed a kind of college of heralds, instituted by Numa Pompilius, the second king of Rome, about 710 B.C.” Beeton's Illustrated Dictionary of Religion, Philosophy, Politics, and Law 240 (ca. 1880).

FETIAL LAW

fetial law (fee-sh<<schwa>>l). Roman law. A branch of law concerned with matters (such as treaties, embassies, and war declarations) affecting relations between peoples or nations. — Also spelled feacial law. — Also termed jus fetiale.

FETICIDE

feticide (fee-t<<schwa>>-sId). 1. The act or an instance of killing a fetus, usu. by assaulting and battering the mother; esp., the act of unlawfully causing the death of a fetus. 2. An intentionally induced miscarriage. — Also spelled foeticide. — Also termed child destruction. Cf. INFANTICIDE (1). — feticial,adj.

FETTER

fetter,n. (usu. pl.) A chain or shackle for the feet. — fetter,vb.

FETTERING OF PROPERTY

fettering of property.The act of making the disposition or ownership of property more complex so that those with separate interests must cooperate if they are to handle their interests reasonably. • Fettering of property occurs whenever ownership is split into two or more interests, as when present and future interests are divided or when a tenancy in common is created.

FETUS

fetus. A developing but unborn mammal, esp. in the latter stages of development. — Also spelled foetus. Cf. EMBRYO; ZYGOTE.

FEU

feu (fyoo), n.[fr. Law Latin feudum “a fee”] 1. A right to land given to a person in exchange for service to be performed. 2.Scots law. Land held by a vassal in return for an annual payment in money, crops, or services (called feu duty). • This type of tenure was abolished in Scotland in 2000. 3.Scots law. A perpetual grant of land to be held in exchange for grain or money. 4. A perpetual lease for a fixed rent. 5. A piece of land held under a perpetual lease for a fixed rent. — Also spelled few. See FEE(2). — feu,vb. — feu,adj.

“Feu; in Latin feudum, was used to denote the feudal-holding, where the service was purely military; but the term has been used in Scotland in contradistinction to ward-holding, the military tenure of this country ... for, even in the purest ages of the military system, innumerable instances are to be found of grants of land in the feudal form, where the vassal annually delivered victual, or performed agricultural services to his superior.” William Bell, Bell's Dictionary and Digest of the Law of Scotland 456 (George Watson ed., 7th ed. 1890).

feu,vb. Scots law. To grant (land) by feu.

FEU ANNUAL

feu annual.Scots law. The yearly return generated by a feu.

FEUAR

feuar (fyoo-<<schwa>>r), n. Scots law. One who holds a feu. Cf. FEU; VASSAL.

FEU CHARTER

feu charter.Scots law. The charter creating a feu tenure.

FEUD

feud,n. Hist. 1.A heritable estate in land conveyed from a feudal superior to a grantee or tenant, held on the condition of rendering services to the superior.

impartible feud.An indivisible feud; a feud not subject to partition. See feudum individuum under FEUD.

improper feud.A nonmilitary feud; a feud that is base or servile in nature.

“These were the principal, and very simple, qualities of the genuine or original feuds; being then all of a military nature, and in the hands of military persons: though the feudatories, being under frequent incapacities of cultivating and manuring their own lands, soon found it necessary to commit part of them to inferior tenants .... But this at the same time demolished the ancient simplicity of feuds; and an inroad being once made upon their constitution, it subjected them, in a course of time, to great varieties and innovations. Feuds came to be bought and sold, and deviations were made from the old fundamental rules of tenure and succession; which were held no longer sacred, when the feuds themselves no longer continued to be purely military. Hence these tenures began now to be divided into feoda propria et impropria, proper and improper feuds ....” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 57–58 (1766).

proper feud. A feud based on military service.

2. The interest of the tenant in the land conveyed. 3. The land itself conveyed. — Also termed (in senses 1, 2 & 3) fee; fief; feod; feude; feudum. 4. An enmity or private war existing between families or clans, esp. as a result of a murder. “Where wrong done to an individual is not regarded as an injury to the entire tribe, the wrongdoer is out of the peace only as regards the wronged party and his kin. The situation created by such wrongful deed is feud (Anglo Saxon foeht, Latin faida). The root meaning of the word is ‘hatred.’ Feud is legally sanctioned hostility. The recognition of feud by the law is found in the fact that revenge taken in lawful feud is not a breach of the peace. It is not a wrongful deed. It furnishes no basis for any claim for fine or punishment. The man slain in lawful feud is not to be avenged nor has compensation to be paid for his slaying.” Munroe Smith, The Development of European Law 29 (1928).

blood feud. A state of hostility between families in which one family seeks to avenge the killing of one of its members by killing a member of the other family. See VENDETTA.

“Anglo-Saxon polity preserved, even down to the Norman Conquest, many traces of a time when kinship was the strongest of all bonds. Such a stage of society, we hardly need add, is not confined to any one region of the world or any one race of men... When it puts on the face of strife between hostile kindreds, it is shown in the war of tribal factions, and more specifically in the blood-feud. A man's kindred are his avengers; and, as it is their right and honour to avenge him, so it is their duty to make amends for his misdeeds, or else maintain his cause in fight. Step by step, as the power of the State waxes, the self-centred and self-helping autonomy of the kindred wanes. Private feud is controlled, regulated, put, one may say, into legal harness; the avenging and the protecting clan on the slain and the slayer are made pledges and auxiliaries of public justice.” 1 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 31 (2d ed. 1898).

FEUDAL

feudal, adj. 1. Of, relating to, or growing out of feudalism <feudal law>. 2. Of or relating to a feud <feudal tenure>. — Also spelled (archaically) feodal. Cf. ALLODIAL.

FEUDAL ACTION

feudal action. Hist. A real action; an action that concerned only real property.

FEUDALISM

feudalism (fyood-l-iz-m). 1. A landholding system, particularly applying to medieval Europe, in which all are bound by their status in a hierarchy of reciprocal obligations of service and defense. • The lord was obligated to give the vassal (1) some land, (2) protection, and (3) justice. The lord guaranteed the quiet occupation of the land by the vassal and guaranteed to do right if the vassal became involved in a dispute. In return, the vassal owed the lord some type of service, called “tenure” (literally “means of holding”), because the different types of service were the methods by which the vassals held the property. 2. The social, political, and economic system of medieval Europe. — Also termed feudal system; feodal system. —

Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 46 (1766).

FEUDE

feude. See FEUD.

FEUDEE

feudee (fyoo-dee), n. Hist. The grantee of a feud; a feudal tenant.

FEUDIST

feudist. A writer on feuds (for example, Cujacius, Spelman, Craig).

FEUDORUM LIBRI

Feudorum Libri (fyoo-dor-<<schwa>>m li-brI). [Latin “the books of the feuds”] Hist. The Books of Feuds, a five-book compilation of Lombardic feudal law published in Milan around 1152, during the reign of Henry III. • This unofficial compilation was the main source of tenure law among the nations in Europe. It was widely used in medieval law schools and courts in Italy, France, and Germany. The Feudorum Libri were probably known in England but had little effect other than influencing English lawyers to study their own tenure system more critically. — Also termed Consuetudines Feudorum; Usus Feudorum.

FEUDUM

feudum (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] A fief or feud; a feudum. — Also termed feodum; feum. Pl. feuda (fyoo-d<<schwa>>). See FEUD(1); FIEF; FEE(2).

“The Latin equivalent of feodum or feudum is the root of the words ‘feudal’ and ‘subinfeudation’. The French form fief is favoured by some English historians, but it was not used in law-French.” J.H. Baker, An Introduction to English Legal History 256 n.4 (3d ed. 1990).

feudum antiquum (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m an-tI-kw<<schwa>>m), n. [Law Latin “ancient feud”] Hist. 1. A feud that passed to a vassal from an intestate ancestor. 2. A feud that ancestors had possessed for more than four generations. 3. An ancient feud. — Also termed feodum antiquum (fee-<<schwa>>-d<<schwa>>m or fyoo-d<<schwa>>m). See FEUD(1). Pl. feuda antiqua (fyoo-d<<schwa>> an-tI-kw<<schwa>>).

feudum apertum (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m <<schwa>>-p<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>m). Hist. A feud that reverted to the lord because of a tenant's failure of issue, a crime by the tenant, or some other legal cause. — Also termed feodum apertum.

feudum burgale (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m b<<schwa>>r-gay-lee). [Law Latin] Hist. Land held feudally by burgage tenure — that is, tenure given in exchange for a tenant's watching and warding in a burgh. See WATCH AND WARD.

feudum ex camera aut caverna (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m eks kam-<<schwa>>r-<<schwa>>awt k<<schwa>>-v<<schwa>>r-n<<schwa>>). [Law Latin “feu from a room or hole”] Hist. An annual gift of money, grain, or other items to a deserving person, esp. a soldier.

feodum francum (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m frangk-<<schwa>>m).Hist. A free feud; a feud or fee that was noble and free from talliage and subsidies that vulgar feuds (plebeia feuda) were subject to.

feodum hauberticum (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m haw-b<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>-k<<schwa>>m).Hist. A feud that was held on the military service of appearing fully armed when summoned by the lord. See ARRIÈRE-BAN.

feodum improprium (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m im-proh-pree-<<schwa>>m).Hist. A feud that was improper.

feodum individuum (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m in-d<<schwa>>-vij-oo-<<schwa>>m).Hist. A feud that was indivisible and descendible only to the eldest son.

feodum laicum (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m lay-<<schwa>>-k<<schwa>>m).Hist. A lay feud. — Also termed feodum laicum.

feodum ligium (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m lij-ee-<<schwa>>m).Hist. 1. A liege feud; a feud held immediately of the sovereign. 2. A feud for which the vassal owed fealty to his lord against all other persons.

feodum maternum (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m m<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>r-n<<schwa>>m).Hist. A feud that descended to the feudatory from the maternal side.

feodum militare (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m mil-<<schwa>>-tair-ee).Hist. A knight's feud. • It was held by knight-service and esteemed the most honorable species of tenure. — Also termed feodum militis; (in Norman law) fief d'haubert or fief d'hauberk.

feodum nobile (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m noh-b<<schwa>>-lee).Hist. A feud for which the tenant did guard and owed fealty and homage. — Also termed feodum nobile.

feodum novum (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m noh-v<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] Hist. A new fee; a fee that began with the person of the feudatory, and that was not acquired by succession. — Also spelled feodum novum.

“For if the feud, of which the son died seised, was really feodum antiquum, or one descended to him from his ancestors, the father could not possibly succeed to it, because it must have passed him in the course of descent, before it could come to the son .... And if it were feodum novum, or one newly acquired by the son, then only the descendants from the body of the feudatory himself could succeed, by the known maxim of the early feudal constitutions ... which was founded as well upon the personal merit of the vassal, which might be transmitted to his children but could not ascend to his progenitors ....” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 211–12 (1766).

feodum novum ut antiquum (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m noh-v<<schwa>>m <<schwa>>t an-tI-kw<<schwa>>m).Hist. A new feud held with the qualities of an ancient feud.

feodum paternum (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m p<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>r-n<<schwa>>m).Hist. 1. A feud that the tenant's paternal ancestors had held for four generations. 2. A feud descendible only to the heirs on the paternal side. 3. A feud that could be held only by males.

feudum proprium (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m proh-pree-<<schwa>>m).Hist. An original feud that is military in nature and held by military service.

feudum rectum (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m rek-t<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] Hist. Lands held by military tenure.

feudum simplex (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m sim-pleks). [Law Latin] Hist. FEE SIMPLE.

feudum talliatum (fyoo-d<<schwa>>m tal-ee-ay-t<<schwa>>m). See FEE TAIL.

FEU DUTY

FICA

FICA (fī-k<<schwa>>).abbr.FEDERAL INSURANCE CONTRIBUTIONS ACT.

FICKLE-FIDUCIARY RULE

fickle-fiduciary rule. A rule that requires a partner or employee to forfeit all compensation, bonuses, and other benefits received after breaching a fiduciary duty to the employer or partnership, for as long as the breach continues. • The rule usu. applies to people who are preparing to resign or have resigned to set up a competing business or work for a competitor. Mitigating factors, including an absence of harm to the employer or partnership, are usu. not considered. But a few courts have found that if a strict application of the rule would produce unjustly harsh results, mitigating factors must be taken into account.

FICTA TRADITIO

ficta traditio (fik-t<<schwa>> tr<<schwa>>-dish-ee-oh). [Latin] Scots law. A fictitious delivery. • The phrase invoked the rule that if the parties so intended, an item could be treated as having been delivered to a buyer in possession of it without the need for physical transfer. — Also termed fictio brevis manus.

FICTIO

fictio (fik-shee-oh), n. [Latin fr. ingere “to feign”] Roman law. A legal fiction; a legal assumption or supposition (such as that the plaintiff was a citizen) necessary to achieve certain legal results that otherwise would not be obtained. • Legal fictions allowed Roman magistrates (praetors) to expand the law beyond what was strictly allowed by the jus civile. This practice also occurred in English law — for example, the action of common recovery, which allowed a landowner to convey land that by law could not be alienated (such as land held in fee tail). Pl. fictiones (fik-shee-oh-nee-z).

FICTITIOUS SEISIN

fictitious seisin. See seisin in law under SEISIN.

FIDE-COMMITTEE

fide-committee. A beneficiary; CESTUI QUE TRUST. — Also termed fidei-commissarius.

“In a particular case, a cestuy que trust is called by the Roman law, fideicommissarius. In imitation of this, I have seen him somewhere or other called in English a fide-committee. This term, however, seems not very expressive. A fide-committee, or, as it should have been, a fidei-committee, seems, literally speaking, to mean one who is committed to the good faith of another.” Jeremy Bentham, An Introduction to the Principles of Morals and Legislation 226 n.1 (1823).

FIDEICOMISO

fideicomiso (fee-day-koh-mee-soh). Mexican law. A trust; esp., a trust that is established for the purpose of acquiring property in Mexico with a Mexican bank as trustee and a non-Mexican (who may be the settlor) as beneficiary. • The property is held in the name of the trust, but the beneficiary has all the rights and obligations of direct ownership, including the power to lease, sell, or devise the property. A Mexican fideicomiso usu. lasts 50 years and can be renewed for 50 more. Cf. FIDEICOMMISSUM.

FIDEI-COMMISSARIUS

fidei-commissarius. See CESTUI QUE TRUST.

FIDEI-COMMISSARY

FIDEICOMMISSARY HEIR

fideicommissary heir. See HEIR.

FIDEICOMMISSARY SUBSTITUTION

fideicommissary substitution. 1. SUBSTITUTION(6). 2. SUBSTITUTION(7).

FIDEICOMMISSUM

fideicommissum (fī-dee-I-k*<<schwa>>-mis-<<schwa>>*m). [Latin]. 1. Roman law. A direction to an heir asking the heir as a matter of good faith to give some part of the inheritance, such as a particular object, or all the inheritance, to a third party. • A fideicommissum was a device to overcome some of the technicalities of the Roman will. Originally it created a mere moral obligation, but Augustus made it enforceable by legal process. 2. Roman & civil law. An arrangement similar to a trust by which a testator gave property to a person for the benefit of another who could not, by law, inherit property. • Over time, this device was used to tie up property for generations, and most civil jurisdictions now prohibit or limit it. For example, in Louisiana, an arrangement in which one person bequeaths property to a second with a charge to preserve it and, at death, to restore it to a third person is a prohibited fideicommissum. — Sometimes spelled fidei-commissum. Pl. fideicommissa.

“The many formalities with regard to the institution of heirs and the bequest of legacies, coupled with the fact that many persons, e.g. peregrini, were incapable of being instituted heirs, or of being given a legacy, led, in the late Republic, to testators leaving directions to their heirs in favour of given individuals, which, though not binding at law, they hoped their heirs would, in honour, feel bound to carry out. The beginning of fideicommissa, therefore, was very like the early practice with regard to trusts in English law, and, as in the case of trusts, a time came when trusts were made binding legally as well as morally.... For brevity, the fideicommissum will here be called ‘the trust’, the person upon whom it was imposed (fiduciarius) ‘the trustee’, and the person in whose favour it was imposed (fideicommissarius) ‘the beneficiary’.” R.W. Leage, Roman Private Law 252 (C.H. Ziegler ed., 2d ed. 1930).

FIDEJUBERE

fidejubere (fI-dee-y<<schwa>>-beer-ee), vb. [Latin] Roman law. To become a surety. • Forms of this word were spoken by the parties to a stipulatio that bound one party to become a surety for the other; the first party asked, “Do you pledge yourself?” (“fidejubesne?”), and the second responded, “I do pledge myself” (“fidejubeo”). See STIPULATIO.

FIDEJUSSION

fidejussion (fI-di-j<<schwa>>sh-<<schwa>>n). [fr. Latin fidejussio] Roman law. An act by which a person becomes an additional security for another. • The act does not remove the principal's liability but only adds to the surety's security. Fidejussion was one of the three types of adpromission, and the only type remaining in Justinian's law. — Also spelled fidejussio; fideiussio. See ADPROMISSION(1). — fidejussionary,adj.

FIDEJUSSOR

fidejussor (fI-dee-j<<schwa>>s-or or -j<<schwa>>s-<<schwa>>r).1.Roman law. (ital.) A guarantor; a person who binds himself to pay another's debt. 2.Hist. Maritime law. A person who acts as bail for a defendant in the Court of Admiralty. — Also spelled fideiussor. Cf. ADPROMISSOR. — fidejussory,adj.

“The proceedings of the court of admiralty bear much resemblance to those of the civil law, but are not entirely founded thereon; and they likewise adopt and make use of other laws, as occasion requires; such as the Rhodian law, and the laws of Oleron. For the law of England, as has frequently been observed, doth not acknowledge or pay any deference to the civil law considered as such; but merely permits its use in such cases where it judged its determinations equitable, and therefore blends it, in the present instance, with other marine laws .... The first process in these courts is frequently by arrest of the defendant's person; and they also take recognizances or stipulation of certain fidejussors in the nature of bail, and in case of default may imprison both them and their principal.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 108–09

FIDELITAS

fidelitas (fi-del-<<schwa>>-tas). [Latin “fidelity”] See FEALTY.

FIDELITATIS SACRAMENTUM

fidelitatis sacramentum (fi-del-i-tay-tis sak-r*<<schwa>>-men-t<<schwa>>*m). [Law Latin] Hist. The oath of fealty that a vassal owed to a lord.

FIDEM FACERE JUDICI

fidem facere judici (fi-d*<<schwa>>m fay-s<<schwa>>*-ree joo-di-sI). [Latin] Hist. To convince the judge. • The phrase appeared in reference to the introduction of evidence to prove a case.

FIDEM MENTIRI

fidem mentiri (fi-d*<<schwa>>*m men-tI-rI). [Latin] Hist. To betray faith or fealty. • The term refers to a feudal tenant who did not keep the fealty sworn to the lord.

FIDEPROMISSION

fidepromission (fi-dee-proh-mish-*<<schwa>>*n), n. [Latin “faith-promise”] Roman law. A contract of guaranty by stipulation. • Fidepromission was one of the three types of adpromission. See ADPROMISSION (1); STIPULATION(3). — fidepromissor, n.

FIDES

fides (fi-deez). [Latin] Faith.

FIDES FACTA

fides facta (fi-deez fak-t*<<schwa>>*). [Latin] Hist. Faith-making; faith-pledging. • Among the Franks and Lombards, certain transactions were guaranteed by symbolic, formal acts — making one's faith — such as the giving of a rod when property was transferred. See FESTUCA.

FIDUCIA

fiducia (fi-d[y]oo-shee-<<schwa>>), n. [Latin “an entrusting”] Roman law. An early form of transfer of title by way of mortgage, deposit, etc., with a provision for reconveyance upon payment of the debt, termination of the deposit, etc.

“The Roman mortgage (fiducia) fell wholly out of use before the time of Justinian, having been displaced by the superior simplicity and convenience of the hypotheca; and in this respect modern Continental law has followed the Roman.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 443 (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

FIDUCIAL

fiducial,adj. Of, relating to, or characterized by confidence in and reliance on another person or thing <there must be a fiducial bond between a patient and a doctor>.

FIDUCIAL RELATIONSHIP

FIDUCIARIUS HERES

fiduciarius heres (fi-d[y]oo-shee-air-ee-*<<schwa>>*s heer-eez). [Latin “fiduciary heir”] Roman law. A person formally named an heir in a testament, but in a fiduciary capacity, and charged to deliver the succession to the person designated by the testament.

FIDUCIARIUS TUTOR

fiduciarius tutor (fi-d[y]oo-shee-air-ee-*<<schwa>>s t[y]oo-t<<schwa>>*r). Roman law. A fiduciary guardian; a person who by fulfilling a trust to free someone in power became his or her guardian.

FIDUCIARY

fiduciary (fi-d[y]oo-shee-er-ee), n.1. A person who is required to act for the benefit of another person on all matters within the scope of their relationship; one who owes to another the duties of good faith, trust, confidence, and candor <the corporate officer is a fiduciary to the corporation>.2. One who must exercise a high standard of care in managing another's money or property <the beneficiary sued the fiduciary for investing in speculative securities>. — fiduciary,adj.

“ ‘Fiduciary’ is a vague term, and it has been pressed into service for a number of ends.... My view is that the term ‘fiduciary’ is so vague that plaintiffs have been able to claim that fiduciary obligations have been breached when in fact the particular defendant was not a fiduciary stricto sensu but simply had withheld property from the plaintiff in an unconscionable manner.” D.W.M. Waters, The Constructive Trust 4 (1964).

dilatory fiduciary (dil-<<schwa>>-tor-ee). A trustee or other fiduciary who is unreasonably slow in administering an estate.

successor fiduciary. A fiduciary who is appointed to succeed or replace a prior one.

temporary fiduciary. An interim fiduciary appointed by the court until a regular fiduciary can be appointed.

FIDUCIARY BOND

FIELD-WAREHOUSE FINANCING AGREEMENT

field-warehouse financing agreement. The loan agreement in a field-warehousing arrangement.

FIELD WAREHOUSING

field warehousing. An inventory-financing method by which a merchant pledges its inventory, which is in the possession of a third person (a warehouse). • This is a method of financing an inventory that cannot economically be delivered to the creditor or third party. The borrower segregates part of the inventory and places it under the nominal control of a lender or third party, so that the lender has a possessory interest. Cf. floor-plan financing under FINANCING; PLEDGE.

“Field warehousing is a way of bringing about the security relationship of a pledge. It is an arrangement for allowing the pledgor a more convenient access to the pledged goods, while the goods are actually in the custody and control of a third person on the pledgor's premises.” Business Factors, Inc. v. Taylor-Edwards Warehouse & Transfer Co., 585 P.2d 825, 828 (Wash. Ct. App. 1978).

“Field warehousing is ... an arrangement whereby a wholesaler, manufacturer, or merchant finances his business through the pledge of goods remaining on his premises. The arrangement is valid and effective where there is an actual delivery to the warehouseman by the bailor who has hired the warehouseman and given him exclusive possession of the warehouse goods.” In re Covington Grain Co., 638 F.2d 1362, 1365 (5th Cir. 1981).

FIERI FACIAS

fieri facias (fI-<<schwa>>-rIfay-shee-<<schwa>>s). [Latin “that you cause to be done”] A writ of execution that directs a marshal or sheriff to seize and sell a defendant's property to satisfy a money judgment. — Abbr. fi. fa.; Fi. Fa. Cf. LEVARI FACIAS. [Cases: Execution 1, 15. C.J.S. Executions §§ 2, 15, 18.]

“It receives its name from the Latin words in the writ (quod fieri facias de bonis et catallis, that you cause to be made of the goods and chattels). It is the form of execution in common use in levying upon the judgment-debtor's personal property.” John Bouvier, Bouvier's Law Dictionary (8th ed. 1914).

“The writ of ‘fieri facias’ (commonly called a writ of ‘fi fa’), which commanded literally ‘that you cause to be made,’ was an early common-law means of enforcing payment on a judgment; it was, in effect, an order to the sheriff of the court to enforce a judgment against the debtor by levy, seizure, and sale of his personalty to the extent needed to satisfy a judgment.” 30 Am. Jur. 2d Executions and Enforcement of Judgments § 14, at 50–51 (1994).

fieri facias de bonis ecclesiasticis (fI-<<schwa>>-rIfay-shee-<<schwa>>s dee boh-nis e-klee-z[h]ee-as-t<<schwa>>-sis). [Latin “that you cause to be made of the ecclesiastical goods”] Hist. A writ of execution — used when the defendant was a beneficed clerk who had no lay fee — that commanded the bishop to satisfy the judgment from the ecclesiastical goods and chattels of the defendant within the diocese. • This was accomplished by issuing a sequestration to levy the debt out of the defendant's benefice. This writ was issued after a fieri facias had been returned nulla bona.

fieri facias de bonis propriis (fī-⟨schwa⟩-rIfay-shee-⟨schwa⟩s dee boh-nis proh-pree-is). [Latin “that you cause to be made of his own goods”] Hist. A writ that executes on an executor's property when a writ fieri facias de bonis testatoris is returned by the sheriff nulla bona or devastavit (a wasting of the testator's goods by the executor).

fieri facias de bonis testatoris (fī-⟨schwa⟩-rIfay-shee-⟨schwa⟩s dee boh-nis tes-t⟨schwa⟩-tor-is). [Latin “that you cause to be made of the testator's goods”] Hist. A writ of execution served on an executor for a debt incurred by the testator.

FIERI FECI

fieri feci (fī-⟨schwa⟩-rIfee-sI). [Latin “I have caused to be made”] Hist. A sheriff's return on a fieri facias where the sheriff has collected, in whole or in part, the sum to be levied on. • The return is usu. expressed by the word “satisfied.”

FILIATION

filiation (fil-ee-ay-sh<<schwa>>n).1. The fact or condition of being a son or daughter; relationship of a child to a parent. • Despite Bentham's protest (see below), filiation is usual in this sense. — Also termed filiality.

“In English we have no word that will serve to express with propriety the person who bears the relation opposed to that of parent. The word child is ambiguous, being employed in another sense, perhaps more frequently than in this: more frequently in opposition to a person of full age, an adult, than in correlation to a parent. For the condition itself we have no other word than filiation: an ill-contrived term, not analogous to paternity and maternity: the proper term would have been filiality: the word filiation is as frequently, perhaps, and more consistently, put for the act of establishing a person in the possession of the condition of filiality.” Jeremy Bentham, An Introduction to the Principles of Morals and Legislation 276 n.2 (1823).

2. Judicial determination of paternity. See PATERNITY; filiated father under FATHER. [Cases: Children Out-of-Wedlock 30–75. C.J.S. Children Out-of-Wedlock §§ 41, 46–52, 67, 70–141.]

FILIATION ORDER

FILIUSFAMILIAS

filiusfamilias (fil-ee-<<schwa>>s-f<<schwa>>-mil-ee-as), n. [Latin “the son of a family”] Roman law. An unemancipated son or daughter, grandson or granddaughter. — Also termed homo alieni juris.

“Every Roman citizen is either a paterfamilias or a filiusfamilias, according as he is free from paternal power (homo sui juris) or not (homo alieni juris). Paterfamilias is the generic name for a homo sui juris, whether child or adult, married or unmarried. Filiusfamilias is the generic name for a homo alieni juris, whether son or daughter, grandson or granddaughter, and so on.” Rudolph Sohm, The Institutes: A Textbook of the History and System of Roman Private Law 177 (James Crawford Ledlie trans., 3d ed. 1907).

See FACT-FINDER. Cf. CONCLUSION OF FACT; CONCLUSION OF LAW.

concurrent finding.(usu. pl.) Identical factual findings by two different tribunals on a specific issue of fact.

essential finding.Military law. A military tribunal's determination of a collateral pretrial motion.

general finding.An undifferentiated finding in favor of one party.

special finding. 1. (usu. pl.) A finding of the necessary and ultimate facts to support a judgment in favor of one party. 2.Military law. A military tribunal's finding that directly relates to the determination of guilt or innocence.

FINE

fine,n.1. An amicable final agreement or compromise of a fictitious or actual suit to determine the true possessor of land. • The fine was formerly used as a form of conveyance to disentail an estate. — Also termed final concord; finalis concordia. See FOOT OF THE FINE.

“A peculiar and persistent use of the writ [of covenant] was in levying a fine. A fine — finalis concordia — was the compromise of a suit, settled upon terms approved by the court. The dispute, while it might be a reality, was more often fictitious, and was chiefly used as a means of conveying land... Soon after [Glanvill's] book was written, an innovation was made in the procedure which endured until 1833. The terms of the compromise, agreed by the parties and approved by the judges, were entered upon a threefold indenture, one of the parts being given to each of the litigants and the third — the ‘foot’ or bottom of the document — being kept among the records of the court. The parties thus obtained incontestable evidence and abundant security, and either could sue the other if the agreement were not implemented.” C.H.S. Fifoot, History and Sources of the Common Law: Tort and Contract 256 (1949).

“Unlike the recovery, which was a real action, the fine was a compromised fictitious personal action, originally designed as a method of ensuring security in conveyancing and only later being employed for the purpose of barring estates tail. In outline, it operated in the following manner. The intending purchaser brought an action, begun by writ of covenant, against the intending vendor. The parties then applied to the court to compromise the action; by the terms of the compromise (finis) the intending vendor admitted that the land belonged to the intending purchaser because he had given it to him, and the terms of the compromise were recorded in the court records. The fine owed its popularity as a means of conveyancing to two factors, neither of which was present in the standard method of conveyance by means of feoffment. First, the enrolling in the court records provided evidence of the transaction which was both permanent and free from the danger of forgery. Secondly, the effect of the fine was to set running a short period of limitation at the expiration of which all claims to the land were barred. It was this second aspect which made the device attractive as a means of ‘barring’ fees tail.” Peter Butt, Land Law 102–03 (2d ed. 1988).

executed fine.Hist. A fine made on acknowledgment of the right of the grantee to land given to him as a gift from the grantor. • This was abolished in England in 1833. 3 & 4 Will. 4, ch. 74.

2.FINE FOR ALIENATION. 3. A fee paid by a tenant to the landlord at the commencement of the tenancy to reduce the rent payments. 4.Hist. A money payment from a tenant to the tenant's lord.

common fine.A sum of money due from a tenant to a lord to defray the cost of a court leet or to allow the litigants to try the action closer to home. — Also termed head-silver.

5. A pecuniary criminal punishment or civil penalty payable to the public treasury. [Cases: Fines 1.5.] — fine,vb.

day fine.A fine payable over time, usu. as a percentage of the defendant's earnings on a weekly or monthly basis.

excessive fine. 1. Criminal law. A fine that is unreasonably high and disproportionate to the offense committed. • The Eighth Amendment proscribes excessive fines. An example of an excessive fine is a civil forfeiture in which the property was not an instrumentality of the crime and the worth of the property was not proportional to the owner's culpability. [Cases: Fines 1.3.]
2. A fine or penalty that seriously impairs one's earning capacity, esp. from a business.

fresh fine. Hist. A fine levied within the past year.

FINEABLE

fineable. See FINABLE.

FINE AND RECOVERY ACT

Fine and Recovery Act. Hist. An English statute, enacted in 1833, that abolished the use of fines as a method of conveying title to land. 3 & 4 Will. 4, ch. 74. See FINE (1).

FINEANNULLANDO

fine annullando levato de tenemento quod fuit de antiquo dominico (a-n<<schwa>>-lan-doh l<<schwa>>-vay-to dee ten-<<schwa>>-men-toh kwod fyoo-it dee an-tl-kwoh d<<schwa>>-min-<<schwa>>-koh). [Latin “a fine to be annulled levied from a tenement which was of ancient demesne”] Hist. A writ for disannulling a conveyance of land in ancient demesne to the lord's prejudice.

FINECAPIENDO PRO TERRIS

fine capiendo pro terris (kap-ee-en-doh proh ter-is). [Latin “a fine to be taken for lands”] Hist. A writ that an imprisoned felon could use in some circumstances to obtain release from jail and to recover lands and goods taken during imprisonment.

FINE FOR ALIENATION

fine for alienation. Hist. A fee paid by a tenant to the lord upon the alienation of a feudal estate and substitution of a new tenant. • It was payable by all tenants holding by knight's service or tenants in capite by socage tenure. — Often shortened to fine.

FINE FOR ENDOWMENT

fine for endowment. Hist. A fee paid by a widow of a tenant to the tenant's lord. • If it was not paid, the widow could not be endowed of her husband's land.

FINEM FACERE

finem facere (fl-n<<schwa>>m fay-s<<schwa>>-ree). [Latin] Hist. 1. To make a composition or compromise; to relinquish a claim in exchange for consideration.

“In the thirteenth century the king's justices wield a wide and a ‘common law’ power of ordering that an offender be kept in custody. They have an equally wide power of discharging him upon his ‘making fine with the king.’ We must observe the language of the time. In strictness they have no power to ‘impose a fine.’ No tribunal of this period, unless we are mistaken, is ever said to impose a fine. To order the offender to pay so much money to the king — this the judge may not do. If he did it, he would be breaking or evading the Great Charter, for an amercement should be affeered, not by royal justices, but by neighbours of the wrong-doer. What the judges can do is this: — they can pronounce a sentence of imprisonment and then allow the culprit to ‘make fine,’ that is to make an end (finem facere) of the matter by paying or finding security for a certain sum of money. In theory the fine is a bilateral transaction, a bargain; it is not ‘imposed,’ it is ‘made.’” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 517 (2d ed. 1899).

2. To make a settlement of a penalty. • Magna Carta (ch. 55) specifically limited “[a]ll fines which were made with us unjustly and contrary to the law of the land ...” (Omnes fines qui injuste et contra legem terrae facti sunt nobiscum).

FINENON CAPIENDO PRO PULCHRE PLACITANDO

fine non capiendo pro pulchre placitando (non kap-ee-en-doh proh p<<schwa>>l-kree plas-<<schwa>>-tan-doh). [Latin “a fine not to be taken for pleading fairly”] Hist. A writ prohibiting court officers from taking fines for fair pleading (i.e., beaupleader).

FINE PRINT

FINEPRO REDISSEISINA CAPIENDO

fine pro redisseisina capiendo (proh re-dis-see-zin-<<schwa>> kap-ee-en-doh). [Law Latin “a fine to be taken for again disseising”] Hist. A writ that entitled a person imprisoned for twice dispossessing someone (redisseisin) to release upon payment of a reasonable fine.

FINESLE ROY

fines le roy (fInz l<<schwa>> roy). [Law French] Hist. The king's fines. • A fine or fee that was paid to the monarch for an offense or contempt.

FINESUR COGNIZANCE DE DROIT COME CEO QUE IL AD DE SON DONE

fine sur cognizance de droit, come ceo que il ad de son done (fIn s<<schwa>>r kon-<<schwa>>-z<<schwa>>nts d<<schwa>> droyt, kom say-oh kweel ad d<<schwa>>sawni dawin). [Law French “a fine upon acknowledgment of the right, as that which he has of his gift”] Hist. The most common fine of conveyance, by which the defendant (also called the deforciant) acknowledged in court that he had already conveyed the property to the cognizee. • This form of conveyance took the place of an actual livery of seisin. See FINE(1).

“But, in general, the first species of fine, ‘sur cognizance de droit come ceo, etc.,’ is the most used, as it conveys a clean and absolute freehold, and gives the cognizee a seisin in law, without an actual livery; and is therefore called a fine executed, whereas the others are but executory.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 353 (1766).

FINESUR COGNIZANCE DE DROIT TANTUM

fine sur cognizance de droit tantum (fIn s<<schwa>>r kon-<<schwa>>-z<<schwa>>nts d<<schwa>> droyt tan-t<<schwa>>m). [Law French “fine upon acknowledgment of the right merely”] Hist. A fine of conveyance that does not acknowledge a prior conveyance of land. • This type of fine was used to convey reversionary interests — that is, interests that did not require acknowledgment of an earlier livery of seisin. See FINE(1).

FINESUR CONCESSIT

fine sur concessit (fIn s<<schwa>>r k<<schwa>>n-ses-it). [Law French] Hist. A species of conveyance in which the cognizor does not acknowledge the cognizee's preceding right in land but grants the cognizee an estate de novo, usu. for life or a term of years, by way of supposed composition. See FINE (1).

FINESUR DONE GRANT ET RENDER

fine sur done, grant et render (fIn s<<schwa>>r dawn, grant ay ren-d<<schwa>>r). [Law French “fine upon gift, grant and render”] Hist. A double conveyance, consisting of a fine sur cognizance de droit, come ceo que il ad de son done and a fine sur concessit, used to convey particular limitations of estates. • For example, after acknowledgment of the cognizee's right in the land, the cognizee would grant back to the cognizor or a third party some other estate in the land. See FINE(1).

FIRST REFUSAL, RIGHT OF

first refusal, right of. See RIGHT OF FIRST REFUSAL.

FIRST-SALE DOCTRINE

first-sale doctrine. 1. Copyright. The rule that the purchaser of a physical copy of a copyrighted work, such as a book or CD, may give or sell that copy to someone else without infringing the copyright owner's exclusive distribution rights. • With regard to that physical copy, the copyright owner's distribution right is said to be exhausted. 17 USCA § 109(a). [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 38.5. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 47, 97.] 2. Patents. The principle that the buyer of a patented article has the right to use, repair, and resell the article without interference from the patentee. • The patentee may still retain control of the article through terms in the license or sale contract. See PATENT-EXHAUSTION DOCTRINE.

FIRST TAKER

first taker. See TAKER.

FIRST-TO-FILE RULE

first-to-file rule. Civil procedure. 1. The principle that, when two suits are brought by the same parties, regarding the same issues, in two courts of proper jurisdiction, the court that first acquires jurisdiction usu. retains the suit, to the exclusion of the other court. • The court with the second-filed suit ordinarily stays proceedings or abstains. But an exception exists if the first-filed suit is brought merely in anticipation of the true plaintiff's suit and amounts to an improper attempt at forum-shopping. See ANTICIPATORY FILING. [Cases: Courts 475, 493, 514; Federal Courts 1145. C.J.S. Courts §§ 188, 211, 224.] 2. The doctrine allowing a party to a previously filed lawsuit to enjoin another from pursuing a later-filed action. — Also termed first-filing rule; first-filed rule; priority-jurisdiction rule. [Cases: Injunction 26(3). C.J.S. Injunctions §§ 43–44, 47–48, 54.]

FIRST-TO-FILE SYSTEM

first-to-file system. Patents. The practice of granting priority to the first person to file a patent application. • Most of the world uses a first-to-file patent system; the only major exception is the United States, which grants priority to the first inventor. Cf. FIRST-TO-INVENT SYSTEM. [Cases: Patents 90(1). C.J.S. Patents §§ 120–122.]

FIRST-TO-INVENT SYSTEM

first-to-invent system. Patents. The practice of awarding a patent to the first person to create an invention, rather than the first to file a patent application. • Because the first inventor is not necessarily the first person to file for a patent, an interference hearing is held to decide who is entitled to the patent. This system is used only in the United States. See CONCEPTION OF

INVENTION; priority of invention under PRIORITY. Cf. FIRST-TO-FILE SYSTEM M. [Cases: Patents 90(1). C.J.S. Patents §§ 120–122.]

FIXTURE

fixture. Personal property that is attached to land or a building and that is regarded as an irremovable part of the real property, such as a fireplace built into a home. See UCC § 9-102(a)(41). • Historically, personal property becomes a fixture when it is physically fastened to or connected with the land or building and the fastening or connection was done to enhance the utility of the land or building. If personal property has been attached to the land or building and enhances only the chattel's utility, it is not a fixture. For example, if bricks are purposely stacked to form a wall, a fixture results. But if the bricks are merely stacked for convenience until used for some purpose, they do not form a fixture. — Also termed permanent fixture; immovable fixture. Cf. IMPROVEMENT. [Cases: Fixtures 1.]

"A fixture can best be defined as a thing which, although originally a movable chattel, is by reason of its annexation to, or association in use with land, regarded as a part of the land.... The law of fixtures concerns those situations where the chattel annexed still retains a separate identity in spite of annexation, for example a furnace or a light fixture. Where the chattel annexed loses such identity, as in the case of nails, boards, etc., the problem becomes one of accession." Ray Andrews Brown, The Law of Personal Property § 137, at 698 & n.1 (2d ed. 1955).

"Broadly, goods can be classified for the purposes of [UCC §] 9-313 into three categories: those that remain 'pure goods,' those so substantially integrated into real estate as to become real estate themselves, 'pure realty,' and those in the gray area that would pass in a deed to the real estate but that retain separate status as personal property. These last are fixtures." 4 James J. White tenant's fixture. Removable personal property that a tenant affixes to the leased property but that the tenant can detach and take away. — Also termed movable fixture. [Cases: Fixtures 13.]

trade fixture. Removable personal property that a tenant attaches to leased land for business purposes, such as a display counter. • Despite its name, a trade fixture is not usu. treated as a fixture — that is, as irremovable. [Cases: Fixtures 15.]

FIXTURE FILING

fixture filing. The act or an instance of recording, in public real-estate records, a security interest in personal property that is intended to become a fixture. See UCC § 9-102(a)(40). • The creditor files a financing statement in the real-property records of the county where a mortgage on the real estate would be filed. A fixture-filing financing statement must contain a description of the real estate. [Cases: Secured Transactions 85, 94. C.J.S. Secured Transactions §§ 54, 68–70.]

FJC

FLAG

flag, n. 1. A usu. rectangular piece of cloth, bunting, or other material decorated with a distinctive design and used as a symbol or signal. 2. Something symbolized by the display of a flag, such as a ship or nationality. See DUTY OF THE FLAG; LAW OF THE FLAG.

flag of convenience. Int'l law. A national flag flown by a ship not because the ship or its crew has an affiliation with the nation, but because the lax controls and modest fees and taxes imposed by that nation have attracted the owner to register it there. • After World War II, shipowners began registering their ships in countries such as Panama, Liberia, and Honduras to avoid expensive and restrictive national regulation of labor, safety, and other matters. Since the late 1950s, there has been increasing international pressure to require a “genuine link” between a ship and its flag state, but this reform has been slow in coming. — Abbr. FOC. [Cases: Shipping 2. C.J.S. Shipping § 1.]

flag of truce. Int'l law. A white flag used as a signal when one belligerent wishes to communicate with the other in the field. • The bearers of such a flag may not be fired on, injured, or taken prisoner, as long as they carry out their mission in good faith.

FLAG DESECRATION

flag desecration. The act of mutilating, defacing, burning, or flagrantly misusing a flag. • Flag desecration is constitutionally protected as a form of free speech. United States v. Eichman, 496 U.S. 310, 110 S.Ct. 2404 (1990). [Cases: United States 5.5.]

FOLIO

folio (foh-lee-oh). [fr. Latin folium “leaf”] 1.Hist. A leaf of a paper or parchment, numbered only on the front. • A folio includes both sides of the leaf, or two pages, with the letters “a” and “b” (or “r” and “v,” signifying recto and verso) added to show which of the two pages was intended. 2.Hist. A certain number of words in a legal document, used as a method of measurement. • In England, 72 or 90 words formed a folio; in the United States, 100 words. — folio,vb.

“Folio ... [a] certain number of words; in conveyances, etc., and proceedings in the High Court amounting to seventy-two, and in parliamentary proceedings to ninety.” Ivan Horniman, Wharton's Law Lexicon 368 (13th ed. 1925).

3. A page number on a printed book. 4. A large book the pages of which are formed by folding a sheet of paper only once in the binding to form two leaves, making available four pages (both sides of each leaf).

FOLKLAND

folkland.Hist. Land held by customary law, without written title. — Also spelled folcland. Cf. BOOKLAND.

FOLK LAWS

folk laws.See LEGES BARBARORUM.

FOLLOW

follow,vb. To conform to or comply with; to accept as authority <the lawyer assumed that the Supreme Court would follow its own precedent>.

FOLLOWING-FORM POLICY

FOLLOW-THE-FORTUNES DOCTRINE

follow-the-fortunes doctrine. Insurance. The principle that a reinsurer must reimburse the reinsured for its payment of settled claims as long as the reinsured's payments were reasonable and in good faith. • This rule prevents a reinsurer from second-guessing a reinsured's good-faith decision to pay a claim arguably not covered under the original insurance policy. — Often shortened to follow the fortunes. [Cases: Insurance 3615.]

FOLLOW-THE-SETTLEMENTS DOCTRINE

follow-the-settlements doctrine. Insurance. The principle that an indemnitor must accede to the actions of the indemnitee in adjusting and settling claims; esp., the principle that a reinsurer must follow the actions of the reinsured. [Cases: Insurance 3615.]

FOOT-FRONTAGE RULE

foot-frontage rule. Tax. A method of property-tax assessment — used esp. to pay for improvements such as sidewalks and sewers — that considers only the lot's actual frontage on the line of improvement and ignores the depth of the lot and the number and character of other improvements or their value.

FOOTGELD

footgeld (fuut-geld). Hist. In forest law, a fine imposed for not making a dog incapable of hunting by either cutting out the ball of its paw or cutting off its claws. • The cutting was known as "expeditating" the dog. To be "free" or "quit" of footgeld was to be relieved of the duty to expeditate one's dog.

FOOT OF THE FINE

foot of the fine. Hist. At common law, the fifth and last part of a fine of conveyance. • This part included the entire matter, reciting the names of the parties and the date, place, and before whom it was acknowledged or levied. — Also termed chirograph. See FINE(1).

FOOTPRINT

footprint. 1. Evidence. The impression made on a surface of soil, snow, etc., by a human foot or a shoe, boot, or any other foot covering. [Cases: Criminal Law 475.6.] 2. Real estate. The shape of a building's base.

FORCE

force,n. Power, violence, or pressure directed against a person or thing.

actual force.Force consisting in a physical act, esp. a violent act directed against a robbery victim. — Also termed physical force. [Cases: Robbery 6. C.J.S. Robbery §§ 13–23.]

constructive force. Threats and intimidation to gain control or prevent resistance; esp., threatening words or gestures directed against a robbery victim. [Cases: Robbery 6. C.J.S. Robbery §§ 13–23.]

deadly force. Violent action known to create a substantial risk of causing death or serious bodily harm. • A person may use deadly force in self-defense only if retaliating against another's deadly force. — Also termed extreme force. Cf. nondeadly force.

“Under the common law the use of deadly force is never permitted for the sole purpose of stopping one fleeing from arrest on a misdemeanor charge ....” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 1098 (3d ed. 1982).

excessive force. Unreasonable or unnecessary force under the circumstances.

extreme force. See deadly force.

independent force. Force not stimulated by a situation created by the actor's conduct.

intervening force. Force that actively produces harm to another after the actor's negligent act or omission has been committed.

irresistible force. Force that cannot be foreseen or controlled, esp. that which prevents the performance of a contractual obligation; FORCE MAJEURE. [Cases: Contracts 309(1). C.J.S. Contracts §§ 520–522, 524.]

legal force. See reasonable force.

nondeadly force. 1. Force that is neither intended nor likely to cause death or serious bodily harm; force intended to cause only minor bodily harm. 2. A threat of deadly force, such as displaying a knife. — Also termed moderate force. Cf. deadly force.

physical force. See actual force.

reasonable force. Force that is not excessive and that is appropriate for protecting oneself or one's property. • The use of reasonable force will not render a person criminally or tortiously liable. — Also termed legal force.

“One does not use jeweller's scales to measure reasonable force.” Reed v. Wastie, [1972] Crim. L.R. 221 (per Lane, J.) (as quoted in Glanville Williams, Textbook of Criminal Law 451 (1978)).

unlawful force. Force that is directed against a person without that person's consent, and that is a criminal offense or an actionable tort. Model Penal Code § 3.11. [Cases: Assault and Battery 2. C.J.S. Assault and Battery §§ 2–4, 6–8.]

force, vb. To compel by physical means or by legal requirement <Barnes used a gun to force Jillian to use her ATM card> <under the malpractice policy, the insurance company was forced to defend the doctor>.

FORCE MAJEURE

force majeure (fors ma-zh<<schwa>>r). [Law French “a superior force”] An event or effect that can be neither anticipated nor controlled. • The term includes both acts of nature (e.g., floods and hurricanes) and acts of people (e.g., riots, strikes, and wars). — Also termed force majesture; vis major; superior force. Cf. ACT OF GOD; VIS MAJOR.

FORCE-MAJEURE CLAUSE

force-majeure clause.A contractual provision allocating the risk if performance becomes impossible or impracticable, esp. as a result of an event or effect that the parties could not have anticipated or controlled. [Cases: Contracts 309(1). C.J.S. Contracts §§ 520–522, 524.]

FORCIBLE

forcible,adj. Effected by force or threat of force against opposition or resistance.

“[In the law of trespass, the] term ‘forcible’ is used in a wide and somewhat unnatural sense to include any act of physical interference with the person or property of another. To lay one's finger on another person without lawful justification is as much a forcible injury in the eye of the law, and therefore a trespass, as to beat him with a stick. To walk peacefully across another man's land is a forcible injury and a trespass, no less than to break into his house vi et armis. So also it is probably a trespass deliberately to put matter where natural forces will take it on to the plaintiff's land.” R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 5 (17th ed. 1977).

FORCIBLE DETAINER

forcible detainer. 1. The wrongful retention of possession of property by one originally in lawful possession, often with threats or actual use of violence. 2.FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER(2).

FORCIBLE ENTRY

forcible entry. 1. The act or an instance of violently and unlawfully taking possession of lands and tenements against the will of those in lawful possession. 2. The act of entering land in another's possession by the use of force against another or by breaking into the premises.

FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER

forcible entry and detainer. 1. The act of violently taking and keeping possession of lands and tenements without legal authority. [Cases: Forcible Entry and Detainer 4.]

“To walk across another's land, or to enter his building, without privilege, is a trespass, but this in itself, while a civil wrong, is not a crime. However, if an entry upon real estate is accomplished by violence or intimidation, or if such methods are employed for detention after a peaceable entry, there is a crime according to English law, known as forcible entry and detainer. This was a common-law offense in England, although supplemented by English statutes that are old enough to be common law in this country.... It has sometimes been said that there are two separate offenses — (1) forcible entry and (2) forcible detainer. This may be true under the peculiar wording of some particular statute, but in general it seems to be one offense which may be committed in two different ways.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 487–88 (3d ed. 1982).

2. A quick and simple legal proceeding for regaining possession of real property from someone who has wrongfully taken, or refused to surrender, possession. — Also termed forcible detainer. See EVICTION; EJECTMENT. [Cases: Forcible Entry and Detainer 6; Landlord and Tenant 287.]“Forcible entry and detainer is a remedy given by statute for the recovery of possession of land and of damages for its detention. It is entirely regulated by statute, and the statutes vary materially in the different states.” Benjamin J. Shipman, Handbook of Common-Law Pleading § 74, at 188 (Henry Winthrop Ballantine ed., 3d ed. 1923).

FORECLOSE

foreclose,vb. To terminate a mortgagor's interest in property; to subject (property) to foreclosure proceedings. [Cases: Mortgages 320.C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 490–491, 495, 559, 568.]

“Should the mortgagor default in his obligations under the mortgage, the mortgagee will seek to ‘foreclose’, — i.e., ‘end’ or ‘close’ the mortgagor's rights in the security. After taking the appropriate statutory steps, the mortgagee will sell the mortgaged property. If the sale is to someone other than the mortgagor or the mortgagee (a ‘third party’ sale) the proceeds will go: first, to pay the costs of the foreclosure proceedings; second, to pay off the principal indebtedness and accrued interest; third, if there is anything left over (i.e., any ‘equity’ existed) this is paid to the mortgagor.” Edward H. Rabin, Fundamentals of Modern Real Property Law 1087 (1974).

FORECLOSURE

foreclosure (for-kloh-zh<<schwa>>r). A legal proceeding to terminate a mortgagor's interest in property, instituted by the lender (the mortgagee) either to gain title or to force a sale in order to satisfy the unpaid debt secured by the property. Cf. REPOSSESSION. [Cases: Mortgages 380.C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 490–491, 495, 690–691, 695, 697.]

equitable foreclosure.A foreclosure method in which the court orders the property sold, and the proceeds are applied first to pay the costs of the suit and sale and then to the mortgage debt. • Any surplus is paid to the mortgagor. [Cases: Mortgages 386. C.J.S. Mortgages § 693.]

judicial foreclosure.A costly and time-consuming foreclosure method by which the mortgaged property is sold through a court proceeding requiring many standard legal steps such as the filing of a complaint, service of process, notice, and a hearing. • Judicial foreclosure is available in all jurisdictions and is the exclusive or most common method of foreclosure in at least 20 states. [Cases: Mortgages 380. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 490–491, 495, 690–691, 695, 697.]

mortgage foreclosure.A foreclosure of the mortgaged property upon the mortgagor's default.

[Cases: Mortgages 380, 394. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 490–491, 495, 504, 521, 690–691, 695, 697.]

nonjudicial foreclosure. 1. See power-of-sale foreclosure. 2. A foreclosure method that does not require court involvement. [Cases: Mortgages 329. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 490–491, 495, 575, 621.]

power-of-sale foreclosure. A foreclosure process by which, according to the mortgage instrument and a state statute, the mortgaged property is sold at a nonjudicial public sale by a public official, the mortgagee, or a trustee, without the stringent notice requirements, procedural burdens, or delays of a judicial foreclosure. • Power-of-sale foreclosure is authorized and used in more than half the states. — Also termed nonjudicial foreclosure; statutory foreclosure. [Cases: Mortgages 329. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 490–491, 495, 575, 621.]

strict foreclosure. A rare procedure that gives the mortgagee title to the mortgaged property — without first conducting a sale — after a defaulting mortgagor fails to pay the mortgage debt within a court-specified period. • The use of strict foreclosure is limited to special situations except in those few states that permit this remedy generally. [Cases: Mortgages 384. C.J.S. Mortgages § 694.]

tax foreclosure. A public authority's seizure and sale of property for nonpayment of taxes. [Cases: Taxation 635. C.J.S. Taxation § 1133.]

FORECLOSURE DECREE

FOREIGN SOVEREIGN IMMUNITIES ACT

Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act. A federal statute providing individuals with a right of action against foreign governments, under certain circumstances, to the extent the claim arises from the private, as opposed to the public, acts of the foreign state. 28 USCA §§ 1602–1611. — Abbr. FSIA. See RESTRICTIVE PRINCIPLE OF SOVEREIGN IMMUNITY. [Cases: International Law 10.31–10.39. C.J.S. International Law §§ 46–52, 54–55.]

“The Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (FSIA) of 1976 was designed to provide a set of comprehensive regulations governing access to federal and state courts in this country for plaintiffs asserting claims against foreign states and instrumentalities thereof. The enactment of this legislation responded to the reality that increased contacts between American citizens and companies on the one hand, and foreign states and entities owned by foreign states on the other, as well as a constantly expanding range of government activities, had created the need for judicial fora in this country to resolve disputes arising out of these activities.” 14A Charles Alan Wright et al., Federal Practice and Procedure § 3662, at 160–61 (2d ed. 1998).

FORESTALL

forestall (for-stawl), vb. 1. To prevent (an event, result, etc.).2.Hist. To intercept or obstruct (as a person on a royal highway).3.Hist. To prevent (a tenant) from coming on the premises. 4.Hist. To intercept (as a deer reentering a forest).5.Hist. To buy (goods) for the purpose of reselling at a higher price. • At common law, this was an indictable offense. — Also spelled forstall. See FORESTALLING THE MARKET.

“[A] growing town in England might have placed a higher value on grain than a neighboring town with a static population, yet traditional patterns of business might continue to send the same amount of grain to both towns. A forestaller would bid against the traditional buyer in the smaller town, obtain the grain, and resell it where it could command a higher price in the larger town. Forestalling did not harm allocative efficiency. Indeed, it was a highly effective means of reallocating scarce goods to their most highly valued uses — the very definition of efficiency. Rather, forestalling was objectionable, and thus prohibited as a restraint of trade, because the bidding process necessarily resulted in higher grain prices in many parts of the country.” Stephen F. Ross, Principles of Antitrust Law 12 (1993).

FORESTALLER

forestaller,n.1. A person who forestalls. 2.Hist. One guilty of the offense of forestalling. See FORESTALL(5).

FORGERY

forger, n. 1. The act of fraudulently making a false document or altering a real one to be used as if genuine <the contract was void because of the seller's forgery>. — Also termed false making. • Though forgery was a misdemeanor at common law, modern statutes typically make it a felony. [Cases: Forgery 1.] 2. A false or altered document made to look genuine by someone with the intent to deceive <he was not the true property owner because the deed was a forgery>. — Also termed fake. 3. Under the Model Penal Code, the act of fraudulently altering, authenticating, issuing, or transferring a writing without appropriate authorization. • Under the explicit terms of the Code, writing can include items such as coins and credit cards. Model Penal Code § 224.1(1). — forge, vb. — forger, n.

“While it is true that there is a distinction between fraud and forgery, and forgery contains some elements that are not included in fraud, forgeries are a species of fraud. In essence, the crime of forgery involves the making, altering, or completing of an instrument by someone other than the ostensible maker or drawer or an agent of the ostensible maker or drawer.” 37 C.J.S. Forgery § 2, at 66 (1997).

double forgery. A draft having a forged payor signature and a forged indorsement.

FORINSEC SERVICE

forinsec service (f<<schwa>>-rin-sik). Hist. The feudal services owed by a mesne (i.e., intermediate) lord, esp. those of a military nature. — Also termed foreign service; forinsecum servitium. Cf. INTRINSEC SERVICE.

“The terminology of Bracton's day and of yet earlier times neatly expresses the distinction between the service which the tenant owes to his immediate lord by reason of the bargain which exists between them, and the service which was incumbent on the tenement whilst it was in the lord's hand. The former is intrinsec service, the latter forinsec service; the former is the service which is created by, which (as it were) arises within, the bargain between the two persons, A and B, whose rights and duties we are discussing; the latter arises outside that bargain, is ‘foreign’ to that bargain .... [T]he term is a relative one; what is ‘intrinsec’ between A and B is ‘forinsec’ as regards C.” 1 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 238, 239 n.2 (2d ed. 1898).

FORINSECUS

forinsecus (f<<schwa>>-rin-s<<schwa>>-k<<schwa>>s), adv. [fr. Latin foris “without”] Hist. On the outside.

FORISFAMILIATED

forisfiliated (for-is-f<<schwa>>-mil-ee-ay-tid), adj. Hist. (Of a son) emancipated from paternal authority and in possession of a portion of family land in lieu of inheritance.

“If our English law at any time knew an enduring patria potestas which could be likened to the Roman, that time had passed away long before the days of Bracton.... Bracton, it is true, has copied about this matter some sentences from the Institutes which he ought not to have copied; but he soon forgets them, and we easily see that they belong to an alien system. Our law knows no such thing as ‘emancipation,’ it merely knows an attainment of full age.... In old times a forisfiliated son, that is, one whom his father had enfeoffed, was excluded from the inheritance. This is already antiquated, yet Bracton can find nothing else to serve instead of an emancipatio.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 438, 438 n.3 (2d ed. 1899).

FORISFAMILIATION

FORM OF ACTION

form of action. The common-law legal and procedural device associated with a particular writ, each of which had specific forms of process, pleading, trial, and judgment. • The 11 common-law forms of action were trespass, trespass on the case, trover, ejectment, detinue, replevin, debt, covenant, account, special assumpsit, and general assumpsit. [Cases: Action 29; Federal Civil Procedure 71. C.J.S. Actions §§ 74–77.]

“Forms of action are usually regarded as different methods of procedure adapted to cases of different kinds, but in fact the choice between forms of action is primarily a choice between different theories of substantive liability, and the scope of the actions measures the existence and extent of liability at common law.... The development and extension of the different forms of action is the history of the recognition of rights and liability in the law of torts, contracts, and property, and the essentials of rights of action.” Benjamin J. Shipman, Handbook of Common-Law Pleading §§ 27, 30, at 54, 60 (Henry Winthrop Ballantine ed., 3d ed. 1923).

FORM S-1

formula. [Latin “set form of words”] 1. Roman law. A written document, prepared by a praetor and forwarded to a judex, identifying the issue to be tried and the judgment to be given by the judex. • It was based on model pleas formulated by the praetor in his edict and adapted by him or other magistrates in civil suits for the benefit of the judex who had to try the issue. These pleas were adapted to the circumstances of the case. The usual parts of a formula were (1) the demonstratio, in which the plaintiff stated the facts of the claim; (2) the intentio, in which the plaintiff specified the relief sought against the defendant; and (3) the condemnatio, in which the judex condemned (usu. to pay the plaintiff a sum) or acquitted the defendant. Pl. formulae (for-my<<schwa>>-lee). — Also termed verba concepta (v<<schwa>>r-b<<schwa>>k<<schwa>>n-sep-t<<schwa>>).

“The Roman judges were not, as with us, the presiding officers in the administration of law and justice. This was the position of the magistrate, the praetor. When a suit at law was commenced, the parties appeared before the praetor, who made a preliminary examination, not to ascertain the merits of the case, but to find the precise points in controversy. He heard the statements of the plaintiff and the counter-statements of the defendant, and from the two he constructed a formula (as it was called), a brief technical expression of the disputed issues. He then appointed a judex... instructing him to investigate the matter, and if he found the facts to be so and so, as recited in the formula, then to condemn the accused party, but, if he did not find them so, to acquit him.” James Hadley, Introduction to Roman Law 59–60 (1881). [This quotation describes only the period of formulary procedure, ca. 150 B.C.–A.D. 300. — Ed.]

2. Common-law pleading. A set form of words (such as those appearing in writs) used in judicial proceedings.

FORUM CONSCIENTIAE

forum conscientiae (for-*<<schwa>>*m kon-shee-en-shee-ee). [Latin “the forum of conscience”] Hist. The tribunal or court of conscience. • This court was usu. a court of equity. See COURT OF CONSCIENCE.

FORUM CONTENTIOSUM

forum contentiosum (for-*<<schwa>>m k<<schwa>>n-ten-shee-oh-s<<schwa>>*m). [Latin “the forum of contention”] Hist. A court of justice; a place for litigation.

FORUM CONTRACTUS

forum contractus (for-*<<schwa>>m k<<schwa>>n-trak-t<<schwa>>*s). [Latin “the forum of the contract”] Hist. 1. The place where a contract was made, and thus the place of jurisdiction. 2. The court of the place where a contract was made.

FORUM CONVENIENS

forum conveniens (for-<<schwa>>m k<<schwa>>n-vee-nee-enz). [Latin “a suitable forum”] The court in which an action is most appropriately brought, considering the best interests and convenience of the parties and witnesses. Cf. FORUM NON CONVENIENS.

FORUM DOMESTICUM

forum domesticum (for-<<schwa>>m d<<schwa>>-mes-ti-k<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Hist. A domestic court. • This type of court decides matters (such as professional discipline) arising within the organization that created it.

FORUM DOMICILII

forum domicilii (for-<<schwa>>m dom-<<schwa>>-sil-ee-I). [Latin] Hist. The forum or court of the domicile, usu. of the defendant.

FORUM ECCLESIASTICUM

forum ecclesiasticum (for-<<schwa>>m e-klee-z[h]ee-as-ti-k<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Hist. An ecclesiastical court. — Also termed judicium ecclesiasticum.

FORUM EXTERNUM

forum externum (for-<<schwa>>m ek-st<<schwa>>r-n<<schwa>>m), n.[Latin “external tribunal”] Eccles. law. A court dealing with legal cases pertaining to or affecting the corporate life of the church. [Cases: Religious Societies 14. C.J.S. Religious Societies §§ 85–86, 88–92.]

FORUM INCONVENIENS

forum inconviens. See FORUM NON CONVENIENS.

FORUM INTERNUM

forum internum (for-<<schwa>>m in-t<<schwa>>r-n<<schwa>>m), n.[Latin “internal tribunal”] Eccles. law. A court of conscience; a court for matters of conscience or the confessional.

FORUM LIGEANTIAE REI

forum ligeantiae rei (for-<<schwa>>m lij-ee-an-shee-ee ree-I). [Latin] Hist. The forum of the defendant's allegiance; the court or jurisdiction of the country to which the defendant owes allegiance.

FORUM NON COMPETENS

forum non competens (for-<<schwa>>m non kom-p<<schwa>>-tenz). [Latin] Hist. An inappropriate court; a court that lacks jurisdiction over a case.

FORUM NON CONVENIENS

forum non conveniens (for-<<schwa>>m non k<<schwa>>n-vee-nee-enz). [Latin “an unsuitable court”] Civil procedure. The doctrine that an appropriate forum — even though competent under the law — may divest itself of jurisdiction if, for the convenience of the litigants and the witnesses, it appears that the action should proceed in another forum in which the action might also have been properly brought in the first place. — Also termed forum inconueniens. [Cases: Courts 28; Federal Courts 45. C.J.S. Courts §§ 68–69.]

“Forum non conueniens allows a court to exercise its discretion to avoid the oppression or vexation that might result from automatically honoring plaintiff's forum choice. However, dismissal on the basis of forum non conueniens also requires that there be an alternative forum in which the suit can be prosecuted. It must appear that jurisdiction over all parties can be secured and that complete relief can be obtained in the supposedly more convenient court. Further, in at least some states, it has been held that the doctrine cannot be successfully invoked when the plaintiff is resident of the forum state since, effectively, one of the functions of the state courts is to provide a tribunal in which their residents can obtain an adjudication of their grievances. But in most instances a balancing of the convenience to all the parties will be considered and no one factor will preclude a forum non conueniens dismissal, as long as another forum is available.” Jack H. Friedenthal et al., Civil Procedure §§ 2.17, at 87–88 (2d ed. 1993).

FORUM ORIGINIS

forum originis (for-*schwa*m schwa-rij-schwa-nis). [Latin] Hist. The forum or place of a person's birth, considered as a place of jurisdiction.

FORUM REGIUM

forum regium (for-*schwa*m ree-jee-*schwa*m). [Latin] Hist. The king's court.

FORUM REI

forum rei (for-*schwa*m ree-I). [Latin] Hist. 1. The forum of the defendant, i.e., the place where the defendant is domiciled or resides. 2.FORUM REI SITAE.

FORUM REI GESTAE

forum rei gestae (for-*schwa*m ree-Ijes-tee). [Latin] Hist. The forum or court of a res gesta (thing done); the place where an act was done, considered as a place of jurisdiction.

FORUM REI SITAE

forum rei sitae (for-*schwa*m ree-IsI-tee). [Latin] Hist. The court where the thing or subject-matter in controversy is situated, considered as a place of jurisdiction. — Often shortened to forum rei.

FORUM SECULARE

forum seculare (for-*schwa*m sek-y-schwa-lair-ee). [Latin] Hist. A secular court. — Also spelled forum saeculare.

FORUM-SELECTION CLAUSE

forum-selection clause. A contractual provision in which the parties establish the place (such as the country, state, or type of court) for specified litigation between them. — Also termed choice-of-exclusive-forum clause. Cf. CHOICE-OF-LAW CLAUSE. [Cases: Contracts 127(4).

FOSSAGE

fossage (fos-ij), n. Hist. A duty paid to maintain a moat around a fortification.

FOSTER

foster,adj.1. (Of a relationship) involving parental care given by someone not related by blood or legal adoption <foster home>.2. (Of a person) giving or receiving parental care to or from someone not related by blood or legal adoption <foster parent> <foster child>.

foster,vb. To give care to (something or someone); esp., to give parental care to (a child who is not one's natural or legally adopted child).

FOSTERAGE

fosterage,n.1. The act of caring for another's child. 2. The entrusting of a child to another. 3. The condition of being in the care of another. 4. The act of encouraging or promoting.

FOSTER CARE

foster care. 1. A federally funded child-welfare program providing substitute care for abused and neglected children who have been removed by court order from their parents' or guardians' care or for children voluntarily placed by their parents in the temporary care of the state because of a family crisis. 42 USCA §§ 670–679a. • The state welfare agency selects, trains, supervises, and pays those who serve as foster parents. [Cases: Infants 226. C.J.S. Adoption of Persons §§ 10–12.]

long-term foster care.The placing of a child in foster care for extended periods, perhaps even for the child's entire minority, in lieu of family reunification, termination and adoption, or guardianship. • Although most courts do not generally find this arrangement to be in a child's best interests, sometimes it is the only possibility, as when the child, because of age or disability, is unlikely to be adopted or when, although the parent cannot be permanently reunited with the child, limited contact with the parent would serve the child's best interests. Under the Adoption and Safe Families Act, long-term foster care is the permanent placement of last resort.

2. The area of social services concerned with meeting the needs of children who participate in these types of programs. [Cases: Infants 17.C.J.S. Infants §§ 8–9.]

FOSTER-CARE DRIFT

foster-care drift.The phenomenon that occurs when children placed in foster care remain in that system, in legal limbo, for too many years of their developmental life before they are reunited with their parents or freed for adoption and placed in permanent homes. • The Adoption and Safe Families Act was passed in 1997 to help rectify this problem. See ADOPTION AND SAFE FAMILIES ACT .

FOSTER-CARE PLACEMENT

foster-care placement.The (usu. temporary) act of placing a child in a home with a person or persons who provide parental care for the child. Cf. OUT-OF-HOME PLACEMENT T. [Cases:

Infants 226. C.J.S. Adoption of Persons §§ 10–12.]

FOSTER-CARE REVIEW BOARD

foster-care review board. A panel of screened and trained volunteers who routinely review cases of children placed in foster care, examine efforts at permanency planning, and report to the court. [Cases: Infants 17, 226. C.J.S. Adoption of Persons §§ 10–12; Infants §§ 8–9.]

FOSTER CHILD

foster child. See CHILD.

FOSTER FATHER

FOSTER HOME

foster home. A household in which foster care is provided to a child who has been removed from his or her birth or adoptive parents, usu. for abuse or neglect. • A foster home is usu. an individual home, but it can also be a group home. [Cases: Infants 226. C.J.S. Adoption of Persons §§ 10–12.]

FOUNDLING HOSPITAL

foundling hospital. A charitable institution, found esp. in Europe, the purpose of which is to care for abandoned children.

FOUR, RULE OF

four, rule of. See RULE OF FOUR.

FOUR CORNERS

four corners. The face of a written instrument. • The phrase derives from the ancient custom of putting all instruments (such as contracts) on a single sheet of parchment, as opposed to multiple pages, no matter how long the sheet might be. At common law, this custom prevented people from fraudulently inserting materials into a fully signed agreement. The requirement was that every contract could have only four corners. [Cases: Contracts 143(1), 147(2); Evidence 397, 448. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 302–303, 309–313; Evidence §§ 1159, 1165, 1189, 1214–1215, 1217, 1220–1221, 1228, 1286–1288, 1291.]

FOUR-CORNERS RULE

four-corners rule. 1. The principle that a document's meaning is to be gathered from the entire document and not from its isolated parts. [Cases: Contracts 143.5; Evidence 448. C.J.S. Contracts § 314.] 2. The principle that no extraneous evidence should be used to interpret an unambiguous document. Cf. PAROL-EVIDENCE RULE. [Cases: Evidence 448.C.J.S. Evidence §§ 1214–1215, 1217, 1220–1221, 1228, 1286–1288, 1291.]

FOUR-FOLDING

four-folding.Hist. The quadrupling of a property's taxable value for purposes of penalizing a person who falsely underreported the property's true taxable value.

“In the State of Connecticut a number of men are chosen annually by each town, to receive from each inhabitant a list of the taxable property in his possession. This list is required by law; and is made up by the proprietor. The men, who receive it, are from their employment called Listers. If the proprietor gives in a false list, he is punished by having the falsified article increased on the list four-fold.... We therefore style this punishment four-folding.” 4 Timothy Dwight, Travels in New-England and New-York 284 (1822).

FOURTEENTH AMENDMENT

Fourteenth Amendment.The constitutional amendment, ratified in 1868, whose primary provisions effectively apply the Bill of Rights to the states by prohibiting states from denying due process and equal protection and from abridging the privileges and immunities of U.S. citizenship. • The amendment also gave Congress the power to enforce these provisions, leading to legislation such as the civil-rights acts. [Cases: Constitutional Law 206, 209–250.5, 251–320.5. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 455, 461–467, 470, 501, 503, 513, 518, 540, 557, 576–581, 585, 587, 596, 612, 614–618, 649, 700–773, 775–912, 916–917, 919–1348, 1350–1396, 1399–1401, 1405–1427; Right to Die § 2; Zoning and Land Planning § 23.]

FOURTH AMENDMENT

Fourth Amendment.The constitutional amendment, ratified with the Bill of Rights in 1791, prohibiting unreasonable searches and seizures and the issuance of warrants without probable cause. See PROBABLE CAUSE. [Cases: Searches and Seizures 23. C.J.S. Searches and Seizures §§ 3, 5, 9–12, 14–15, 24, 29–30, 32, 34, 47–48, 102.]

FOURTH ESTATE

fourth estate.The journalistic profession; the news media. • The term comes from the British Parliament's reporters' gallery, whose influence was said to equal Parliament's three traditional estates: the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal, and the Commons. (In France, the three estates were the clergy, the nobility, and the commons.)

FOURTH-SENTENCE REMAND

fourth-sentence remand. See REMAND.

FOUR UNITIES

four unities. The four qualities needed to create a joint tenancy at common law — interest, possession, time, and title. See UNITY(2). [Cases: Joint Tenancy 1. C.J.S. Estates § 19; Joint Tenancy §§ 2, 4, 7–9.]

To favor a similar case. • A judge who is disqualified for having a personal interest in a case may also be disqualified in a later case if the ruling in the former case could affect the ruling in the latter.

FOX'S LIBEL ACT

Fox's Libel Act. Hist. A 1792 statute that gave the jury in a libel prosecution the right of rendering a guilty or not-guilty verdict on the whole matter in issue. • The jury was no longer bound to find the defendant guilty if it found that the defendant had in fact published the allegedly libelous statement. The Act empowered juries to decide whether the defendant's statement conformed to the legal standard for libel.

FOY

foy (foy or fwah). [Law French] Faith; allegiance.

FPA

FPA.abbr. Free from particular average.

“F.P.A. means Free from Particular Average; that is to say, the insured can recover only where the loss is total or is due to a general average sacrifice. The claims under the Sue and Labour clause are not affected by this stipulation.” 2 E.W. Chance, Principles of Mercantile Law 128 (P.W. French ed., 10th ed. 1951).

FRANCBORDUS

francbordus. See FREE-BORD.

FRANCHISE

franchise (fran-chIz), n.1. The right to vote. — Also termed elective franchise. [Cases: Elections 1. C.J.S. Elections §§ 1(1, 10), 2.] 2. The right conferred by the government to engage in a specific business or to exercise corporate powers. — Also termed corporate franchise; general franchise. [Cases: Franchises 1.]

“When referring to government grants (other than patents, trademarks, and copyrights), the term ‘franchise’ is often used to connote more substantial rights, whereas the term ‘license’ connotes lesser rights. Thus, the rights necessary for public utility companies to carry on their operations are generally designated as franchise rights. On the other hand, the rights to construct or to repair, the rights to practice certain professions, and the rights to use or to operate automobiles are generally referred to as licenses.” 1 Eckstrom's Licensing in Foreign and Domestic Operations § 1.02 [3], at 1-10 to 1-11 (David M. Epstein ed., 1998).

“In a violent conceptual collision, some franchisors maintain that a franchise is merely an embellished license and therefore revocable at will. Franchisees contend that a franchise is a license coupled with an interest, not subject to unlimited control by franchisors. As a result of this disagreement, legislative draftsmen have had difficulty defining ‘franchise.’ ” 1 Harold Brown, Franchising Realities and Remedies § 1.03 [1], at 1-17 (1998).

franchise appurtenant to land. Rare. A franchise that is used in connection with real property and thus is sometimes characterized as real property.

general franchise. A corporation's charter.

special franchise. A right conferred by the government, esp. to a public utility, to use property for a public use but for private profit. [Cases: Franchises 1.]

3. The sole right granted by the owner of a trademark or tradename to engage in business or to sell a good or service in a certain area. 4. The business or territory controlled by the person or entity that has been granted such a right.

commercial franchise. A franchise using local capital and management by contracting with third parties to operate a facility identified as offering a particular brand of goods or services.

sports franchise. 1. A franchise granted by a professional sports league to field a team in that league. 2. The team itself.

trial franchise. A franchise having an initial term of limited duration, such as one year.

franchise, vb. To grant (to another) the sole right of engaging in a certain business or in a business using a particular trademark in a certain area.

FRANCHISE AGREEMENT

franchise agreement. The contract between a franchisor and franchisee establishing the terms and conditions of the franchise relationship. • State and federal laws regulate franchise agreements.

FRANCHISE APPURTENANT TO LAND

franchise appurtenant to land. See FRANCHISE(2).

FRANCHISE CLAUSE

franchise clause. Insurance. A provision in a casualty insurance policy stating that the insurer will pay a claim only if it is more than a stated amount, and that the insured is responsible for all damages if the claim is under that amount. • Unlike a deductible, which the insured always has to pay, with a franchise clause, once the claim exceeds the stated amount, the insurer pays the entire claim.

FRANCHISE COURT

franchise court.Hist. A privately held court that (usu.) exists by virtue of a royal grant, with jurisdiction over a variety of matters, depending on the grant and whatever powers the court acquires over time. • In 1274, Edward I abolished many of these feudal courts by forcing the nobility to demonstrate by what authority (quo warranto) they held court. If a lord could not produce a charter reflecting the franchise, the court was abolished. — Also termed courts of the franchise.

“Dispensing justice was profitable. Much revenue could come from the fees and dues, fines and amercements. This explains the growth of the second class of feudal courts, the Franchise Courts. They too were private courts held by feudal lords. Sometimes their claim to jurisdiction was based on old pre-Conquest grants .... But many of them were, in reality, only wrongful usurpations of private jurisdiction by powerful lords. These were put down after the famous Quo Warranto enquiry in the reign of Edward I.” W.J.V. Windeyer, Lectures on Legal History 56–57 (2d ed. 1949).

FRANCHISEE

franchisee. One who is granted a franchise.

FRANK

frank, adj. [Law French] Hist. Free. — Also spelled fraunc; fraunche; fraunke.

frank, n. 1. (cap.) A member of the Germanic people who conquered Gaul in the 6th century. • France received its name from the Franks. 2. A signature, stamp, or mark affixed to mail as a substitute for postage. [Cases: Postal Service 15. C.J.S. Postal Service and Offenses Against Postal Laws §§ 18–19.] 3. The privilege of sending certain mail free of charge, accorded to certain government officials, such as members of Congress and federal courts. — Also termed (in sense 3) franking privilege. [Cases: United States 12. C.J.S. United States §§ 27–28.] — frank, vb.

FRANKALMOIN

frankalmoin (frangk-al-moyn). [Law French “free alms”] Hist. A spiritual tenure by which a religious institution held land, usu. with a general duty to pray for the donor. • This tenure differed from the tenure by divine service, which required specific church services, such as a certain number of masses or alms distributions. — Also spelled frankalmoign; frankalmoigne. — Also termed almoign; almoin; free alms; libera eleemosyna. See spiritual tenure under TENURE.

“Frankalmoin, or free alms, was a survival of Anglo-Saxon law, and implied simply an indefinite promise to pray for the soul of the donor; but since it was deemed a tenure by which the land was held, the general doctrine of ‘services’ was applied. On the other hand, in the case of Divine Service, which was much less frequently met with, the tenant promised a definite number of prayers, a duty which might be enforced in the King's courts.” A.K.R. Kiralfy, Potter's Outlines of English Legal History 210 (5th ed. 1958).

FRANK BANK

frank bank. See FREE BENCH.

FRANK-LAW

frank-law.Hist. The rights and privileges of a citizen or freeman; specif., the condition of being legally capable of giving an oath (esp. as a juror or witness). See LEGALIS HOMO.

“Frank law ... may be understood from Bracton's description of the consequences of losing it, among which the principal one was, that the parties incurred perpetual infamy, so that they were never afterwards to be admitted to oath, because they were not deemed to be othesworth, (that is, not worthy of making oath,) nor allowed to give testimony.” 1 Alexander M. Burrill, A Law Dictionary and Glossary 657–58 (2d ed. 1867).

FRANKLIN

franklin (frangk-lin).Hist. A freeman; a freeholder; a gentleman. — Also spelled francling; frankleyn; frankleyne.

FRANKMARRIAGE

frankmarriage.Hist. An entailed estate in which the donor retains control of the land by refusing to accept feudal services from the donee (usu. the donor's daughter) for three generations. • If the donee's issue fail in that time, the land returns to the donor. A donor who accepted homage (and the corresponding services arising from it) from the donee risked losing control of the land to a collateral heir. After three generations — a time considered sufficient to demonstrate that the line was well established — the donee's heir could insist on paying homage; doing so transformed the estate into a fee simple. — Also termed liberum maritagium. See MARITAGIUM.

“Only when homage has been done are we to apply the rule which excludes the lord from the inheritance. This is at the bottom of one of the peculiarities of the ‘estate in frankmarriage.’ When a father makes a provision for a daughter, he intends that if the daughter has no issue or if her issue fails — at all events if this failure occurs in the course of a few generations — the land shall come back to him or to his heir. Therefore no homage is done for the estate in frankmarriage until the daughter's third heir has entered, for were homage once done, there would be a danger that the land would never come back to the father or to his heir.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 291 (2d ed. 1899).

FRANKPLEDGE

frankpledge.Hist. A promise given to the sovereign by a group of ten freeholders (a tithing) ensuring the group's good conduct. • The frankpledge was of Saxon origin, but continued after the Norman Conquest. The members of the group were not liable for an injury caused by an offending member, but they did act as bail to ensure that the culprit would appear in court. They were bound to produce a wrongdoer for trial. — Also termed borrow; laughe. See VIEW OF FRANKPLEDGE. Cf. DECENARY.

“Since there was no elaborate group of royal officials, the policing of the country had to be arranged for in a special way. The commonest way was to hold each household responsible for the offenses of any member of it. A further step was taken when, in the time of Cnut, a group of ten men was formed who were responsible for each other, in the sense that every one was security, borh, for the good behavior of the others. This group was called fri-borh, frankpledge, and remained for a long time one of the chief police methods of England.” Max Radin, Handbook of Anglo-American Legal History 33–34 (1936).

FRANKS<TT> HEARING

Franks hearing. A hearing to determine whether a police officer's affidavit used to obtain a search warrant that yields incriminating evidence was based on false statements by the police officer. Franks v. Delaware, 438 U.S. 154, 98 S.Ct. 2674 (1978).

FRANK-TENANT

FRAP

FRAP (frap).abbr.FEDERAL RULES OF APPELLATE PROCEDURE.

FRATER

frater (fray-t<<schwa>>r), n. [Latin] Roman law. A brother.

frater consanguineus (fray-t<<schwa>>r kon-sang-gwin-ee-<<schwa>>s). A brother or half-brother having the same father.

frater germanus (fray-t<<schwa>>r j<<schwa>>r-may-n<<schwa>>s). A brother having both parents in common.

frater nutricius (fray-t<<schwa>>r n[y]oo-trish-ee-<<schwa>>s). A foster brother who was suckled by the same wet nurse.

frater uterinus (fray-t<<schwa>>r yoo-t<<schwa>>-rI-n<<schwa>>s). A brother or half-brother having the same mother.

FRATERNAL

fraternal,adj.1. Of or relating to the relationship of brothers. 2. Of or relating to a fraternity or a fraternal benefit association.

FRATERNAL BENEFIT ASSOCIATION

fraternal benefit association. A voluntary organization or society created for its members' mutual aid and benefit rather than for profit, and whose members have a common and worthy cause, objective, or interest. • These associations usu. have a lodge system, a governing body, rituals, and a benefits system for their members. — Also termed fraternal benefit society; fraternity; fraternal lodge; fraternal order. Cf. FRIENDLY SOCIETY. [Cases: Beneficial Associations 1. C.J.S. Beneficial Associations §§ 2–3.]

FRATERNAL INSURANCE

FRATRIAGE

fratriage (fra-tree-ij orfray-). Hist. 1. A younger brother's portion of his father's estate, received as an inheritance. • Under feudal law, even though the land was from the father's estate, the younger brother was bound to pay homage to the older brother. 2. A portion of an inheritance given to coheirs. — Also termed fratriagium.

FRATRICIDE

fratricide (fra-tr<<schwa>>-sId orfray-). 1. The killing of one's brother or sister. 2. One who has killed one's brother or sister. Cf. SORORICIDE. — fratricidal,adj.

FRAUD

fraud,n.1. A knowing misrepresentation of the truth or concealment of a material fact to induce another to act to his or her detriment. • Fraud is usu. a tort, but in some cases (esp. when the conduct is willful) it may be a crime. — Also termed intentional fraud. [Cases: Fraud 1, 3, 16.] 2. A misrepresentation made recklessly without belief in its truth to induce another person to act. [Cases: Fraud 31.] 3. A tort arising from a knowing misrepresentation, concealment of material fact, or reckless misrepresentation made to induce another to act to his or her detriment. [Cases: Fraud 13(3).] 4. Unconscionable dealing; esp., in contract law, the unfair use of the power arising out of the parties' relative positions and resulting in an unconscionable bargain. [Cases: Contracts 1. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 2–3, 9, 12.] — fraudulent,adj.

“[T]he use of the term fraud has been wider and less precise in the chancery than in the common-law courts. This followed necessarily from the remedies which they respectively administered. Common law gave damages for a wrong, and was compelled to define with care the wrong which furnished a cause of action. Equity refused specific performance of a contract, or set aside a transaction, or gave compensation where one party had acted unfairly by the other. Thus ‘fraud’ at common law is a false statement ... : fraud in equity has often been used as meaning unconscientious dealing — ‘although, I think, unfortunately,’ a great equity lawyer has said.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 263 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

actual fraud.A concealment or false representation through a statement or conduct that injures another who relies on it in acting. — Also termed fraud in fact; positive fraud; moral fraud. [Cases: Fraud 3.]

bank fraud.The criminal offense of knowingly executing, or attempting to execute, a scheme or artifice to defraud a financial institution, or to obtain property owned by or under the control of a financial institution, by means of false or fraudulent pretenses, representations, or promises. 18 USCA § 1344. [Cases: Banks and Banking 509.10, 509.25. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 687, 746, 749–754, 756–757, 769–783.]

bankruptcy fraud.A fraudulent act connected to a bankruptcy case; esp., any of several proscribed acts performed knowingly and fraudulently in a bankruptcy case, such as concealing assets or destroying, withholding, or falsifying documents in an effort to defeat bankruptcy-code provisions. See 18 USCA § 152. — Also termed criminal bankruptcy; bankruptcy crime.

civil fraud. 1.FRAUD(3).2.Tax. An intentional — but not willful — evasion of taxes. • The distinction between an intentional (i.e., civil) and willful (i.e., criminal) fraud is not always clear, but civil fraud carries only a monetary, noncriminal penalty. Cf. criminal fraud; TAX EVASION. [Cases: Internal Revenue 5218; Taxation 1103. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 825; Taxation § 1782.]

common-law fraud.See promissory fraud.

constructive fraud. 1. Unintentional deception or misrepresentation that causes injury to another. — Also termed legal fraud; fraud in contemplation of law; equitable fraud; fraud in equity. 2. See fraud in law. [Cases: Fraud 5.]

criminal fraud. Fraud that has been made illegal by statute and that subjects the offender to criminal penalties such as fines and imprisonment. • An example is the willful evasion of taxes accomplished by filing a fraudulent tax return. Cf. civil fraud; larceny by trick under LARCENY. [Cases: Internal Revenue 5263.20; Taxation 1103. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 851–852; Taxation § 1782.]

election fraud. See ELECTION FRAUD.

equitable fraud. See constructive fraud (1).

extrinsic fraud. 1. Deception that is collateral to the issues being considered in the case; intentional misrepresentation or deceptive behavior outside the transaction itself (whether a contract or a lawsuit), depriving one party of informed consent or full participation. • For example, a person might engage in extrinsic fraud by convincing a litigant not to hire counsel or answer by dishonestly saying the matter will not be pursued. — Also termed collateral fraud. 2. Deception that prevents a person from knowing about or asserting certain rights. [Cases: Judgment 375, 443(1). C.J.S. Judgments § 309.]

fraud in contemplation of law. See constructive fraud (1).

fraud in equity. See constructive fraud (1).

fraud in fact. See actual fraud.

fraud in law. Fraud that is presumed under the circumstances, as when a debtor transfers assets and thereby impairs creditors' efforts to collect sums due. — Also termed constructive fraud.

fraud in the execution. See fraud in the factum.

fraud in the factum. Fraud occurring when a legal instrument as actually executed differs from the one intended for execution by the person who executes it, or when the instrument may have had no legal existence. • Compared to fraud in the inducement, fraud in the factum occurs only rarely, as when a blind person signs a mortgage when misleadingly told that it is just a letter. — Also termed fraud in the execution; fraud in the making. Cf. fraud in the inducement. [Cases: Contracts 94(1). C.J.S. Contracts §§ 136, 139–140, 156–160, 170–171, 173–174.]

fraud in the inducement. Fraud occurring when a misrepresentation leads another to enter into a transaction with a false impression of the risks, duties, or obligations involved; an intentional misrepresentation of a material risk or duty reasonably relied on, thereby injuring the other party without vitiating the contract itself, esp. about a fact relating to value. — Also termed fraud in the procurement. Cf. fraud in the factum. [Cases: Contracts 94(1); Fraud 3, 24. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 136, 139–140, 156–160, 170–171, 173–174.]

fraud in the making. See fraud in the factum.

fraud in the procurement. See fraud in the inducement.

fraud on the community. Family law. In a community-property state, the deliberate hiding or fraudulent transfer of community assets before a divorce or death for the purpose of preventing the other spouse from claiming a half-interest ownership in the property.

fraud on the court. In a judicial proceeding, a lawyer's or party's misconduct so serious that it undermines or is intended to undermine the integrity of the proceeding. • Examples are bribery of a juror and introduction of fabricated evidence. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2654; Judgment 372, 440. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 309, 319, 331, 465.]

fraud on the market. 1. Fraud occurring when an issuer of securities gives out misinformation that affects the market price of stock, the result being that people who buy or sell are effectively misled even though they did not rely on the statement itself or anything derived from it other than the market price. [Cases: Securities Regulation 60.25. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 214, 226–227.] 2. The securities-law claim based on such fraud. See FRAUD-ON-THE-MARKET PRINCIPLE.

fraud on the Patent Office. Patents. A defense in a patent-infringement action, attacking the validity of the patent on the grounds that the patentee gave the examiner false or misleading information or withheld relevant information that the examiner would have considered important in considering patentability. • The scope of prohibited acts is wider than that covered by common-law fraud, and today the defense is generally called “inequitable conduct before the PTO.” If the defense is established, the entire patent is rendered unenforceable. See defense of inequitable conduct under DEFENSE(1). [Cases: Patents 97. C.J.S. Patents §§ 135–138, 145, 178.]

hidden fraud. See fraudulent concealment under CONCEALMENT.

insurance fraud. Fraud committed against an insurer, as when an insured lies on a policy application or fabricates a claim.

intrinsic fraud. Deception that pertains to an issue involved in an original action. • Examples include the use of fabricated evidence, a false return of service, perjured testimony, and false receipts or other commercial documents. [Cases: Judgment 373, 441. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 319, 331, 465, 471.]

legal fraud. See constructive fraud (1).

long-firm fraud. The act of obtaining goods or money on credit by falsely posing as an established business and having no intent to pay for the goods or repay the loan.

mail fraud. An act of fraud using the U.S. Postal Service, as in making false representations through the mail to obtain an economic advantage. 18 USCA §§ 1341–1347. [Cases: Postal Service 35. C.J.S. Postal Service and Offenses Against Postal Laws § 23.]

moral fraud. See actual fraud.

positive fraud. See actual fraud.

promissory fraud. A promise to perform made when the promisor had no intention of performing the promise. — Also termed common-law fraud. [Cases: Fraud 12.]

tax fraud. See TAX EVASION.

wire fraud. An act of fraud using electronic communications, as by making false representations on the telephone to obtain money. • The federal Wire Fraud Act provides that any artifice to defraud by means of wire or other electronic communications (such as radio or television) in foreign or interstate commerce is a crime. 18 USCA § 1343. [Cases: Telecommunications 362.]

fraud on creditors. See FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE(1).

FRAUD ON THE COMMUNITY

fraud on the community. See FRAUD.

FRAUD-ON-THE-MARKET PRINCIPLE

fraud-on-the-market principle. Securities. The doctrine that, in a claim under the antifraud provisions of the federal securities laws, a plaintiff may presumptively establish reliance on a misstatement about a security's value — without proving actual knowledge of the fraudulent statement — if the stock is purchased in an open and developed securities market. • This doctrine recognizes that the market price of an issuer's stock reflects all available public information. The presumption is rebuttable. — Also termed fraud-on-the-market theory. See fraud on the market under FRAUD. [Cases: Securities Regulation 60.25. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 214, 226–227.]

FRAUDS, STATUTE OF #### FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE

fraudulent conveyance. 1. A transfer of property for little or no consideration, made for the purpose of hindering or delaying a creditor by putting the property beyond the creditor's reach; a transaction by which the owner of real or personal property seeks to place the property beyond the reach of creditors. — Also termed fraud on creditors. [Cases: Fraudulent Conveyances 1.]

“With respect to the general power which is exercisable by deed, it seems that the principle that the donee's creditors can reach the property subject to the exercised general power will have application only to the so-called fraudulent conveyance. That is to say, if the owned assets of the donee after the donative inter vivos exercise are sufficient to satisfy the creditors, then the exercise of the power will not subject the appointive property to the claims of the creditors; if, on the other hand, the owned assets of the donee are inadequate to satisfy creditors' claims after the exercise of the power, then the transfer resulting from the exercise is likely to fall into the category of the fraudulent conveyance and the creditors will be able to reach the appointive property in the hands of the appointee.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 173 (2d ed. 1984).

2.Bankruptcy. A prebankruptcy transfer or obligation made or incurred by a debtor for little or no consideration or with the actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud a creditor. • A bankruptcy trustee may recover such a conveyance from the transferee if the requirements of 11 USCA § 548 are met. — Also termed fraudulent transfer. Cf. PREFERENTIAL TRANSFER. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2641–2651. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 152–157, 159.]

FREE BENCH

free bench.Hist. A widow's (and occasionally a widower's) interest in the deceased spouse's estate. • Free bench gave the surviving spouse a half interest in the estate until death or remarriage. — Also termed francus bancus; frank bank; liber bancus.

“The bench in question was, we may guess ... a bench at the fireside. The surviving spouse has in time past been allowed to remain in the house along with the children. In the days when families kept together, the right of the widower or widow to remain at the fireside may have borne a somewhat indefinite character.... By way of ‘free bench’ the surviving spouse now has the enjoyment of one-half of the land until death or second marriage, whether there has ever been a child of the marriage or no.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 419 (2d ed. 1899).

FREE-BORD

free-bord.Hist. 1. A small strip of land (usu. 2 1/2 feet wide and lying just outside a fence) that the owner of the fenced property was allowed to claim and use. 2. The right of claiming that Freedom of Access to Clinic Entrances Act. A 1994 federal statute that provides for criminal sanctions, private civil causes of action, and civil action by the U.S. Attorney General against a person who uses force, threat of force, or physical obstruction to injure, intimidate, or interfere with a provider or patient of reproductive services or who damages a reproductive-services facility. — Abbr. FACE.

FREEDOM OF ASSEMBLY

freedom of assembly. See RIGHT OF ASSEMBLY.

freedom of association. The right to join with others in a common undertaking that would be lawful if pursued individually. • This right is protected by the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The government may not prohibit outsiders from joining an association, but the insiders do not necessarily have a right to exclude others. Cf. RIGHT OF ASSEMBLY. [Cases: Constitutional Law 91. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 461–462, 466, 612–629.]

freedom of expressive association. The constitutional right of an individual to associate with others, without undue government interference, for the purpose of engaging in activities protected by the First Amendment, such as speech, assembly, and the exercise of religion.

freedom of intimate association. The constitutional right of privacy to form and preserve certain intimate human relationships without intrusion by the state because the relationships safeguard individual freedom. • The group relationships protected by the right to freedom of intimate association are familial in nature and are characterized by deep attachments, a high degree of commitment, and the sharing of distinctly personal aspects of life. The exclusion of others is an essential characteristic of these relationships.

FREEDOM OF CHOICE

freedom of choice. 1. The liberty embodied in the exercise of one's rights. 2. The parents' opportunity to select a school for their child in a unitary, integrated school system that is devoid of de jure segregation. 3. The liberty to exercise one's right of privacy, esp. the right to have an abortion. — Also termed right to choose; choice. [Cases: Abortion and Birth Control 0.5.]

FREEDOM OF CONTRACT

freedom of contract. The doctrine that people have the right to bind themselves legally; a judicial concept that contracts are based on mutual agreement and free choice, and thus should not be hampered by external control such as governmental interference. • This is the principle that people are able to fashion their relations by private agreements, esp. as opposed to the assigned roles of the feudal system. As Maine famously said, “[T]he movement of progressive societies has been a movement from Status to Contract.” Henry Sumner Maine, Ancient Law 165 (1864). — Also termed liberty of contract; autonomy of the parties. [Cases: Constitutional Law 89. C.J.S. Constitutional Law § 491.]

“Like most shibboleths, that of ‘freedom of contract’ rarely, if ever, received the close examination which its importance deserved, and even today it is by no means easy to say what exactly the nineteenth-century judges meant when they used this phrase. At least it may be said that the idea of freedom of contract embraced two closely connected, but none the less distinct, concepts. In the first place it indicated that contracts were based on mutual agreement, while in the second place it emphasized that the creation of a contract was the result of a free choice unhampered by external control such as government or legislative interference.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 5 (3d ed. 1981).

FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

freedom of expression. The freedom of speech, press, assembly, or religion as guaranteed by the First Amendment; the prohibition of governmental interference with those freedoms. Cf. FREEDOM OF SPEECH. [Cases: Constitutional Law 84, 90, 91. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 461–462, 466, 513–517, 539, 542, 612–629.]

FREEDOM OF INFORMATION ACT

Freedom of Information Act. The federal statute that establishes guidelines for public disclosure of documents and materials created and held by federal agencies. 5 USCA § 552. • The basic purpose of the statute, or of a state statute modeled after it, is to give the public access to official information so that the public will be better informed and the government will be more accountable for its actions. — Abbr. FOIA. [Cases: Records 50–68. C.J.S. Records §§ 93–131.]

FREEDOM OF INTIMATE ASSOCIATION

freedom of intimate association. See FREEDOM OF ASSOCIATION.

FREEDOM OF PETITION

freedom of petition. See RIGHT TO PETITION.

FREEDOM OF RELIGION

freedom of religion. The right to adhere to any form of religion or none, to practice or abstain from practicing religious beliefs, and to be free from governmental interference with or promotion of religion, as guaranteed by the First Amendment and Article VI, § 3 of the U.S. Constitution. [Cases: Constitutional Law 84. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 513–517.]

FREEDOM OF SPEECH

freedom of speech. The right to express one's thoughts and opinions without governmental restriction, as guaranteed by the First Amendment. — Also termed liberty of speech. Cf. FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION. [Cases: Constitutional Law 90. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 539, 542.]

FREEDOM OF SPEECH CLAUSE

Freedom of Speech Clause. See SPEECH CLAUSE.

FREEDOM OF THE CITY

freedom of the city. Hist. An immunity or privilege from some burden, esp. from county jurisdiction and its privilege of municipal taxation and self-government, held under a royal charter.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

freedom of the press. The right to print and publish materials without governmental intervention, as guaranteed by the First Amendment. — Also termed liberty of the press. [Cases: Constitutional Law 90.1(8). C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 552, 554, 562–565, 597–598, 603–604.]

“ ‘Freedom of the press' has less significance than meets the eye. It is true, of course, that the First Amendment specifically guarantees freedom of the press as well as free speech, and the media often ascribe the freedom they enjoy to the Press Clause. Even the Supreme Court occasionally emits rhetoric that implies as much. But as a matter of positive law, the Press Clause actually plays a rather minor role in protecting the freedom of the press. Most of the freedoms the press receives from the First Amendment are no different from the freedoms everyone enjoys under the Speech Clause. The press is protected from most government censorship, libel judgments, and prior restraints not because it is the press but because the Speech Clause protects all of us from those threats.” David A. Anderson, Freedom of the Press, 80 Tex. L. Rev. 429, 430 (2002).

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS CLAUSE

Freedom of the Press Clause. See PRESS CLAUSE.

FREEDOM OF THE SEAS

freedom of the seas. Int'l law. The principle that the seas beyond territorial waters are not subject to any country's control. • Ships on the high seas are subject only to the jurisdiction of the country whose flag they fly, except in cases of piracy, hijacking, hot pursuit from territorial waters, slave trading, and certain rights of approach by warships. — Also termed mare liberum. [Cases: International Law 7. C.J.S. International Law §§ 23–24.]

FREEDOM-TO-CREATE STATUTE

freedom-to-create statute. Patents. A law restricting an employer's ability to require employees to assign to the employer all rights to their inventions, even those independently developed. [Cases: Master and Servant 62. C.J.S. Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 115, 117–122.]

FREEDOM-TO-OPERATE SEARCH

freedom-to-operate search. See INFRINGEMENT SEARCH.

FREE ELECTION

free election. See ELECTION(3).

FREE ENTERPRISE

free enterprise. A private and consensual system of production and distribution, usu. conducted for a profit in a competitive environment that is relatively free of governmental interference. See CAPITALISM.

FREE ENTRY, EGRESS, AND REGRESS

free entry, egress, and regress (ee-gres / ree-gres). Hist. A person's right to go on land as often as reasonably necessary. • A tenant could go on land to gather crops still growing after the tenancy expired.

FREE EXERCISE CLAUSE

Free Exercise Clause.The constitutional provision (U.S. Const. amend. I) prohibiting the government from interfering in people's religious practices or forms of worship. — Also termed Exercise Clause. Cf. ESTABLISHMENT CLAUSE . [Cases: Constitutional Law 84. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 513–517.]

FREE FISHERY

free fishery.See FISHERY(1).

FREE-GAS CLAUSE

free-gas clause.Oil & gas. A provision in an oil-and-gas lease entitling the lessor or the surface owner to use gas produced from the leased property without charge. • Used commonly in colder states, free-gas clauses usu. limit how the gas may be used (e.g., domestic heating and light), how much gas may be used (e.g., not more than 300 MCF per year), or both.

FREEHOLD

freehold,n.1. An estate in land held in fee simple, in fee tail, or for term of life; any real-property interest that is or may become possessory. • At common law, these estates were all created by enfeoffment with livery of seisin. [Cases: Estates in Property 4–7, 12. C.J.S. Estates §§ 10–14, 20–27.] 2. The tenure by which such an estate is held. — Also termed freehold estate; estate in freehold; freehold interest; franktenement; liberum tenementum. Cf. LEASEHOLD.

determinable freehold.See determinable estate under ESTATE(1).

movable freehold.The land a seashore owner acquires or loses as water recedes or approaches. [Cases: Navigable Waters 44. C.J.S. Navigable Waters § 94.]

perpetual freehold.An estate given to a grantee for life, and then successively to the grantee's heirs for life. • The effect of this type of freehold was to keep land within a family in perpetuity, much like a fee tail.

“It took the form of a grant ‘to A for life, remainder to A's son for life, remainder to that son's son for life’, and so on ad infinitum. Such a limitation, if valid, would have been an effective substitute for the fee tail. The courts, however, set their face against this ‘perpetual freehold’ (as it was sometimes termed), and in Lovelace v. Lovelace (1585) it was held that remainders which did not vest before the determination of the first life estate would fail ex post facto. Subsequently a number of other, not entirely convincing, reasons were found for invalidating perpetual freeholds, ultimately culminating in what is sometimes termed the ‘old’ rule against perpetuities, but, more commonly, the rule in Whitby v. Mitchell, taking its name from the case which marked its emphatic reiteration.” Peter Butt, Land Law 136 (2d ed. 1988).

FREEHOLDER

freeholder.Hist. One who possesses a freehold.

FREEHOLDER'S COURT BARON

freeholder's court baron.See COURT BARON.

FREEHOLD ESTATE

freehold estate. See FREEHOLD.

FREEHOLD INTEREST

freehold interest. See FREEHOLD.

FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY

freehold land society. (usu. pl.) Hist. A society in England created to enable mechanics, artisans, and other workers to buy at the lowest possible price freehold land with a sufficient yearly value to entitle the owner to the right to vote in the county in which the land was located.

FREE ICE

free ice. Hist. Ice in navigable streams that does not belong to the adjacent riparian owner or to another with the right to appropriate it, but that belongs to the person who first appropriates it.

FREE LAW

free law. Hist. The civil rights enjoyed by a freeman (as opposed to a serf). • Free law could be forfeited if the freeman was convicted of treason or an infamous crime.

FREEMAN

freeman. 1. A person who possesses and enjoys all the civil and political rights belonging to the people under a free government. 2. A person who is not a slave. 3. Hist. A member of a municipal corporation (a city or borough) who possesses full civic rights, esp. the right to vote. 4. Hist. A freeholder. Cf. VILLEIN. 5. Hist. An allodial landowner. Cf. VASSAL. — Also spelled free man.

FREEMAN–WALTER–ABELE TEST

Freeman–Walter–Abele test. Patents. An outmoded two-step judicial test for determining whether a claimed invention is an unpatentable mathematical algorithm. • The test looks first to whether an algorithm is explicit or inherent in the claim, and second to whether a patent would wholly preempt others from using the algorithm. In re Freeman, 573 F.2d 1237 (CCPA 1978); In re Walter, 618 F.2d 758 (CCPA 1980); In re Abele, 684 F.2d 902 (CCPA 1982). The Federal Circuit has said that the test has “little, if any, applicability” after State St. Bank & Trust Co. v. Signature Fin. Group, 149 F.3d 1368 (Fed. Cir. 1998).

FREE MARKET

free market. See open market under MARKET.

FREE OF ALL AVERAGE

free of all average. Maritime law. Insurance that covers a total loss only. — Abbr. FAA.

FREE ON BOARD

free on board.A mercantile-contract term allocating the rights and duties of the buyer and the seller of goods with respect to delivery, payment, and risk of loss, whereby the seller must clear the goods for export, and the buyer must arrange for transportation. • The seller's delivery is complete (and the risk of loss passes to the buyer) when the goods pass the transporter's rail. The buyer is responsible for all costs of carriage. UCC § 2-319. — Abbr. FOB; F.O.B. Cf. FREE ALONGSIDE SHIP; DELIVERED EX SHIP. [Cases: Sales 77(2). C.J.S. Sales §§ 96–98.]

“In an F.O.B. (‘free on board’) contract, the goods must be delivered on board by the seller, free of expense to the purchaser, and they are not at the latter's risk until actually delivered on board, when the property in them passes to him. The seller must also give the buyer sufficient notice to enable him to insure against loss during the sea transit. The buyer, on the other hand, must name a ship or authorize the seller to select one. The seller cannot sue for the price until the goods are loaded, and if his inability to load was caused by the buyer's failure to name an effective ship, his only remedy lies in damages. Similarly, F.O.R. means ‘free on rail.’ ” 2 E.W. Chance, Principles of Mercantile Law 86–87 (P.W. French ed., 10th ed. 1951).

FOB destination.A mercantile term denoting that the seller is required to pay the freight charges as far as the buyer's named destination. [Cases: Sales 79. C.J.S. Sales § 168.]

FOB shipping.A mercantile term denoting that the seller is required to bear the risk of placing the goods on a carrier. [Cases: Sales 201(4). C.J.S. Sales §§ 224–227.]

FREE PORT

free port.See PORT.

FREE RIDE

free ride.A benefit obtained without paying a fair price. • For example, a competitor who used aerial photographs of a plant-construction site to discover secret manufacturing techniques was judicially criticized for getting a free ride, in contrast to others who might spend time and effort legally reverse-engineering the same techniques.

FREE RIDER

free rider.One who obtains an economic benefit at another's expense without contributing to it. — Also spelled freerider.

FREE SEAS

free seas.See SEA.

FREE SOCAGE

free socage.See SOCAGE.

FREESTONE RIDER

Freestone rider.See PUGH CLAUSE.

FREE TRADE

free trade,n. The open and unrestricted import and export of goods without barriers, such as quotas or tariffs, other than those charged only as a revenue source, as opposed to those designed to protect domestic businesses. Cf. protective tariff under TARIFF(2).

FREE-TRADE ZONE

free-trade zone.A duty-free area within a country to promote commerce, esp. transshipment and processing, without entering into the country's market. — Also termed foreign trade zone; free port.

FREEWARE

freeware. Software, esp. open-source code, that is made generally available with express or implicit permission for anyone to use, copy, modify, and distribute for any purpose, including financial gain. • The term “free” refers to usage rights rather than price — a distinction important in two respects. First, a user may purchase the initial copy of freeware. Second, software available at no cost may not include permission for the software's user to copy, modify, or give away the software. — Also termed free software. Cf. PROPRIETARY SOFTWARE; SEMI-FREE SOFTWARE; SHAREWARE.

FREE WARREN

free warren.See WARREN.

FREEZE

freeze,n.1. A period when the government restricts or immobilizes certain commercial activity.

credit freeze.A period when the government restricts bank-lending.

wage-and-price freeze.A period when the government forbids the increase of wages and prices.

2. A recapitalization of a closed corporation so that the value of its existing capital is concentrated primarily in preferred stock rather than in common stock. • By freezing capital, the owner can transfer the common stock to heirs without taxation while continuing to enjoy preferred-stock income during the owner's lifetime, while the common stock grows.

freeze,vb. 1. To cause to become fixed and unable to increase <to freeze interest rates> <to freeze prices>.2. To make immobile by government mandate or banking action <to freeze assets>.3. To cease physical movement, esp. when ordered by a law enforcement officer <the police officer shouted at the suspect to freeze>.

FREEZEE

freezee,n. A person or entity subjected to a freeze-out.

FREEZE-OUT

freeze-out,n. Corporations. The process, usu. in a closely held corporation, by which the majority shareholders or the board of directors oppresses minority shareholders in an effort to compel them to liquidate their investment on terms favorable to the controlling shareholders. Cf. SQUEEZE-OUT T. [Cases: Corporations 182.3, 584; Securities Regulation 60.21. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 344, 799–801; Securities Regulation § 190.]

“A ‘freeze-out’ is usually accomplished by the merger of a corporation into its parent corporation, where the parent corporation owns a large percentage of the shares of the subsidiary, and the minority shareholders are entitled to minimal distributions of cash or securities. A ‘freeze-out’ may also be used to connote the situation where so large a number of equity shares are issued to the acquiring corporation that the public shareholders own less than 10 percent of the outstanding equity securities and, therefore, have no control over the corporation or any of its decisions. In such event, a short-form merger could later be used to eliminate the minority shareholders.” 69A Am. Jur. 2d Securities Regulation — State § 245, at 971 n.60 (1993).

FREEZE OUT

freeze out,vb. 1. To subject one to a freeze-out. 2. To exclude a business competitor <freezing out the competition>.

FREEZE-OUT MERGER

FRONT-RUNNING

front-running, n. Securities. A broker's or analyst's use of nonpublic information to acquire securities or enter into options or futures contracts for his or her own benefit, knowing that when the information becomes public, the price of the securities will change in a predictable manner. • This practice is illegal. Front-running can occur in many ways. For example, a broker or analyst who works for a brokerage firm may buy shares in a company that the firm is about to recommend as a strong buy or in which the firm is planning to buy a large block of shares. See INSIDER TRADING.

FRONT WAGES

front wages. See WAGE.

FRTIB

FRTIB. abbr. FEDERAL RETIREMENT THRIFT INVESTMENT BOARD.

FRUCTUARIUS

fructuarius (fr<<schwa>>k-choo-air-ee-<<schwa>>s). [Latin “(one) entitled to fruits”] 1. Roman & civil law. One having the usufruct of a thing (as of land and animals); a usufructuary. See USUFRUCTUARY. 2. Hist. A lessee. Pl. fructuarii.

FRUCTUS

fructus (fr<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>s). [Latin “fruits”] 1. Roman & civil law. The natural produce of land and animals; the profit or increase from land and animals. • The owner of the land or animals acquired ownership by separatio, the separation of the fruit from the parent body. A bona fide possessor or an emphyteuta also acquired ownership by separatio, which allowed a nonowner to claim title from a thief. But in Justinian's law, a bona fide possessor had to account to a successful claimant for ownership for the principal thing and any unconsumed fruits. A tenant or usufructuary acquired title only by perceptio, and cannot claim title from a thief. See PERCEPTION(2). Cf. FRUCTUS CIVILES. 2. USUFRUCT. Pl. fructus.

FRUCTUS CIVILES

fructus civiles (fr<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>s s<<schwa>>-vI-leez). [Latin “civil fruits”] Roman & civil law. Income (such as rent or interest) that one receives from another for the use or enjoyment of a thing, esp. real property or loaned money. • In Roman law, fructus civiles included both minerals and the earnings of slaves.

FRUCTUS FUNDI

fructus fundi (fr<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>s f<<schwa>>n-dI). [Latin "land fruits"] The fruits or produce of land.

FRUCTUS INDUSTRIALES

FRUCTUS LEGIS

fructus legis (fr<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>s lee-jis). [Latin "fruits of the law"] The proceeds of judgment or execution. [Cases: Execution 322.C.J.S. Executions § 258.]

FRUCTUS NATURALES

fructus naturales (fr<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>s nach-<<schwa>>-ray-leez). [Latin "natural fruits"] The natural produce of land or plants and the offspring of animals. • Fructus naturales are considered part of the real property.

FRUCTUS PECUDUM

fructus pecudum (fr<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>s pek-y<<schwa>>-d<<schwa>>m). [Latin "fruits of the herd"] The produce or increase of flocks or herds.

FRUCTUS PENDENTES

fructus pendentes (fr<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>s pen-den-teez). [Latin "hanging fruits"] Fruits not yet severed or gathered; fruits united with that which produces them.

FRUCTUS PERCEPTI

fructus percepti (fr<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>s p<<schwa>>r-sep-tI). [Latin "gathered fruits"] Roman & civil law. Fruits that have been gathered.

FRUCTUS REI ALIENAE

fructus rei alienae (fr<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>s ree-I ay-lee-ee-nee or al-ee-). [Latin "fruits of another's property"] The fruits of another's property; fruits taken from another's estate.

FRUCTUS SEPARATI

fructus separati (fr<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>s sep-<<schwa>>-ray-tI). [Latin "separated fruits"] Roman & civil law. The produce of a thing after being separated from it, and so becoming in law "fruits."

FRUCTUS STANTES

fructus stantes (fr<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>s stan-teez). [Latin "standing fruits"] Fruits that have not yet been severed from the stalk or stem.

FRUCTUUM PERCEPTIO

fructuum perceptio (fr<<schwa>>k-choo-<<schwa>>m p<<schwa>>r-sep-shee-oh). [Latin]

Roman & civil law. The rightful taking of the produce of property by a person who does not own the property.

FRUGES

fruges (froo-jeez). [Latin “fruits” or “crops”] Roman & civil law. Edible produce or crops; esculents.

FRUGI AUT BONAE FAMAE

frugi aut bonae famae (froo-jī awt boh-nee fay-mee). [Latin] Hist. Frugal or of good reputation.

FRUIT

fruit. 1. The produce or product of something (as of land or property). 2. Civil law. Income or goods derived or produced from property without a diminution of the property's inherent value.

civil fruit. Civil law. Revenue derived from a thing by operation of law or by reason of a juridical act, such as lease or interest payments, or certain corporate distributions. La. Civ. Code art. 551. See FRUCTUS CIVILES.

natural fruit. Civil law. A product of the land or of animals. • Examples are crops and eggs. La. Civ. Code art. 2317. See FRUCTUS NATURALES.

3. Something (such as evidence) obtained during an activity or operation <the fruit of the officer's search>. See FRUIT-OF-THE-POISONOUS-TREE DOCTRINE.

FRUIT-AND-THE-TREE DOCTRINE

fruit-and-the-tree doctrine. Tax. The rule that an individual who earns income cannot assign that income to another person to avoid taxation.

FRUIT-OF-THE-POISONOUS-TREE DOCTRINE

fruit-of-the-poisonous-tree doctrine. Criminal procedure. The rule that evidence derived from an illegal search, arrest, or interrogation is inadmissible because the evidence (the “fruit”) was tainted by the illegality (the “poisonous tree”). • Under this doctrine, for example, a murder weapon is inadmissible if the map showing its location and used to find it was seized during an illegal search. — Also termed fruits doctrine. See EXCLUSIONARY RULE; ATTENUATION DOCTRINE; INDEPENDENT-SOURCE RULE; INEVITABLE-DISCOVERY RULE. [Cases: Criminal Law 394.1(3). C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 771, 773–775.]

FRUITS OF A CRIME

fruits of a crime. The proceeds acquired through criminal acts. [Cases: Criminal Law 1221. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 1733.]

FRUSTRA

frustra (fr<<schwa>>s-tr<<schwa>>). [Latin] Hist. In vain; to no purpose.

FRUSTRATION

frustration, n.1. The prevention or hindering of the attainment of a goal, such as contractual performance.

commercial frustration. An excuse for a party's nonperformance because of some unforeseeable and uncontrollable circumstance. — Also termed economic frustration. [Cases: Contracts 309(1). C.J.S. Contracts §§ 520–522, 524.]

self-induced frustration. A breach of contract caused by one party's action that prevents the performance. • The phrase is something of a misnomer, since self-induced frustration is not really a type of frustration at all but is instead a breach of contract.

temporary frustration. An occurrence that prevents performance and legally suspends the duty to perform for the duration of the event. • If the burden or circumstance is substantially different after the event, then the duty may be discharged.

2. Contracts. The doctrine that if a party's principal purpose is substantially frustrated by unanticipated changed circumstances, that party's duties are discharged and the contract is considered terminated. — Also termed frustration of purpose. Cf. IMPOSSIBILITY(4); IMPRACTICABILITY; MISTAKE. [Cases: Contracts 309. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 520–522, 524.] — frustrate, vb.

FRUSTRUM TERRAE

frustrum terrae (fr<<schwa>>s-tr<<schwa>>m ter-ee). [Latin] Hist. A piece of land. • This usu. referred to a fragment of land remaining after a survey.

FRYE TEST

Frye test. The defunct federal common-law rule of evidence on the admissibility of scientific evidence. • It required that the tests or procedures must have gained general acceptance in their particular field. In Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharms., Inc., 509 U.S. 579, 113 S.Ct. 2786 (1993), the Supreme Court held that scientific evidence must meet the requirements of the Federal Rules of Evidence, not the Frye test, to be admissible. Frye v. United States, 293 F. 1013 (D.C. Cir. 1923). See DAUBERT TEST. [Cases: Criminal Law 388.1–388.4; Evidence 555. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 597–598, 601, 649, 652, 713.]

FUNCTIONAL FEATURE

functional feature. Trademarks. A design element that is either physically necessary to construct an article or commercially necessary to manufacture and sell it; a product's attribute that is essential to its use, necessary for its proper and successful operation, and utilitarian rather than ornamental in every detail. • A functional feature is not eligible for trademark protection. [Cases: Trade Regulation 43. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 49–50.]

FUNCTIONALITY

functionality. Trademarks. The quality of having a shape, configuration, design, or color that is so superior to available alternatives that giving the first user exclusive trademark rights would hinder competition. [Cases: Trade Regulation 43. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 49–50.]

aesthetic functionality. A doctrine that denies protection to the design of a product or its container when the design is necessary to enable the product to function as intended.

FUNCTIONAL LIMITATION

functional limitation. Patents. In a patent application, the definition of an invention by what it does rather than what it is. • A functional limitation is not inherently invalid, but it is examined closely because it tends to be too broad, claiming every possible way of doing the same thing. MPEP 2173.05(g). See functional rejection under REJECTION. [Cases: Patents 101(3).]

FUNCTIONAL OBSOLESCENCE

functional obsolescence. See OBSOLESCENCE.

FUNCTIONAL REJECTION

[Latin “having performed his or her office”] (Of an officer or official body) without further authority or legal competence because the duties and functions of the original commission have been fully accomplished. • The term is sometimes abbreviated to functus <the court was functus>. [Cases: Officers and Public Employees 44. C.J.S. Officers and Public Employees §§ 339, 345.]

FUND

fund, n. 1. A sum of money or other liquid assets established for a specific purpose .

blended fund.A fund created by income from more than one source, usu. from the sale of a testator's real and personal property.

changing fund.A fund, esp. a trust fund, that changes its form periodically as it is invested and reinvested.

client-security fund.A fund established usu. by a state or a state bar association to compensate persons for losses that they suffered because of their attorneys' misappropriation of funds or other misconduct. [Cases: Attorney and Client 129.5. C.J.S. Attorney and Client § 279.]

contingent fund. 1. A fund created by a municipality for expenses that will necessarily arise during the year but that cannot be appropriately classified under any of the specific purposes for which taxes are collected. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 886. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations § 1627.] 2. A fund segregated by a business to pay unknown costs that may arise in the future. — Also termed contingency reserve.

executor fund.A fund established for an executor to pay an estate's final expenses.

fund in court. 1. Contested money deposited with the court. See INTERPLEADER. [Cases: Deposits in Court 1. C.J.S. Deposits in Court §§ 1, 4–7.] 2. Money deposited to pay a contingent liability.

general fund. 1. A government's primary operating fund; a state's assets furnishing the means for the support of government and for defraying the legislature's discretionary appropriations. • A general fund is distinguished from assets of a special character, such as trust, escrow, and special-purpose funds. [Cases: States 126. C.J.S. States § 228.] 2. A nonprofit entity's assets that are not earmarked for a specific purpose.

general revenue fund.The fund out of which a municipality pays its ordinary and incidental expenses. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 886. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations § 1627.]

guaranty fund.A private deposit-insurance fund, raised primarily by assessments on banks, and used to pay the depositors of an insolvent bank. • Guaranty funds preceded the FDIC's federal-deposit insurance, which began in 1933, though many funds continued until the savings-and-loan crisis in the 1980s. Massachusetts has a guaranty fund for uninsured deposits (deposits above $100,000) that are not covered by federal-deposit insurance. [Cases: Banks and Banking 15, 504–506. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 24–26, 673, 676–679, 682–694, 696, 699–706, 708–717.]

imprest fund (im-prest). A fund used by a business for small, routine expenses.

joint-welfare fund.A fund that is established in collective bargaining to provide health and welfare benefits to union employees. • The fund is jointly managed by labor and management representatives. — Also termed Taft–Hartley fund.

paid-in fund.A reserve cash fund established by a mutual insurance company to pay unforeseen losses. • The fund is in lieu of a capital stock account.

public fund.(usu. pl.) 1. The revenue or money of a governmental body. • The term includes not only coins and paper but also bank deposits and instruments representing investments of public money. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 880. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations § 1623.] 2. The securities of a state or national government. [Cases: States 122. C.J.S. States § 224.]

revolving fund.A fund whose moneys are continually expended and then replenished, such as a petty-cash fund.

sinking fund.A fund consisting of regular deposits that are accumulated with interest to pay off a long-term corporate or public debt. — Abbr. SF. [Cases: Corporations 486; Municipal Corporations 951. C.J.S. Corporations § 671; Municipal Corporations §§ 1704–1705.]

strike fund.See STRIKE FUND.

Taft–Hartley fund.See joint-welfare fund.

trust fund.See TRUST FUND.

unsatisfied-judgment fund.A fund established by a state to compensate persons for losses stemming from an automobile accident caused by an uninsured or underinsured motorist. [Cases: Automobiles 251.1. C.J.S. Motor Vehicles §§ 1285, 1290–1294.]

2. (usu. pl.) Money or other assets, such as stocks, bonds, or working capital, available to pay debts, expenses, and the like <Sue invested her funds in her sister's business>.

current funds.Assets that can be readily converted into cash.

3. A pool of investments owned in common and managed for a fee; MUTUAL FUND < a diverse portfolio of funds>.

fund,vb. 1. To furnish money to (an individual, entity, or venture), esp. to finance a particular project. 2. To use resources in a manner that produces interest. 3. To convert (a debt, esp. an open account) into a long-term debt that bears interest at a fixed rate.

FUNDAMENTAL ERROR

fundamental error.See plain error under ERROR(2).

FUNDAMENTAL-FAIRNESS DOCTRINE

FUNDAMENTAL INTEREST

fundamental interest.See FUNDAMENTAL RIGHT.

FUNDAMENTAL LAW

fundamental law.The organic law that establishes the governing principles of a nation or state; esp., CONSTITUTIONAL LAW. — Also termed organic law; ground-law. Cf. NATURAL LAW.

FUNDAMENTAL-MISCARRIAGE-OF-JUSTICE EXCEPTION

fundamental-miscarriage-of-justice exception. The doctrine allowing a federal court in a habeas corpus proceeding to address a claim of constitutional error that, although ordinarily unreviewable, is subject to review because of a state-court procedural default that rendered the proceedings basically unfair. • For the exception to apply, among other things, the petitioner must show by a preponderance of the evidence that constitutional error resulted in the conviction of one who is actually innocent. If the defaulted claim applies only to sentencing, the exception permits review of the claim if the petitioner shows by clear and convincing evidence that, but for the constitutional error, no reasonable judge or jury would have imposed the sentence that the petitioner received. [Cases: Habeas Corpus 401.]

FUNDAMENTAL RIGHT

fundamental right. 1. A right derived from natural or fundamental law. 2. Constitutional law. A significant component of liberty, encroachments of which are rigorously tested by courts to ascertain the soundness of purported governmental justifications. • A fundamental right triggers strict scrutiny to determine whether the law violates the Due Process Clause or the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment. As enunciated by the Supreme Court, fundamental rights include voting, interstate travel, and various aspects of privacy (such as marriage and contraception rights). — Also termed fundamental interest. See STRICT SCRUTINY. Cf. SUSPECT CLASSIFICATION. [Cases: Constitutional Law 252.5. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 953, 966–967, 980.]

Mortgages §§ 154–156.] 2. Equity practice. The agreed conversion of arrears of interest on a mortgage security into principal.

FURTHER ASSURANCE

further assurance. See ASSURANCE.

FURTHER-EXPLORATION COVENANT

further-exploration covenant. Oil & gas. In an oil-and-gas lease, an implied promise that once production has been obtained from the leased property, the lessee will continue to explore other parts of the property and other formations under it. • Some jurisdictions hold that the covenant for further exploration does not exist independently of the covenant for reasonable development. See also REASONABLE-DEVELOPMENT COVENANT; REASONABLY-PRUDENT-OPERATOR STANDARD D.

FURTHER INSTRUCTION

further instruction. See additional instruction under JURY INSTRUCTION.

FURTUM

furtum (f<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>m), n. [Latin "theft"] Roman law. 1. The offense of stealing movable property. • Under Roman law, furtum included not only the taking of another's property, but any handling of the property done with the intent of profiting by it. Furtum was not only a private wrong (delictum) prosecuted by the person suffering the loss. Cf. PECULATUS. 2. The thing stolen.

furtum conceptum (f<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>m k<<schwa>>n-sep-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Roman law. A theft in which someone is discovered in possession of stolen property after a search with witnesses. • The possessor was liable to pay the owner three times the value of the stolen property. The possessor could bring an action against the thief and recover triple damages.

furtum grave (f<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>m gray-vee orgrah-vay).Hist. Scots law. An aggravated degree of theft that, in ancient times, was punishable by death.

furtum manifestum (f<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>m man-<<schwa>>-fes-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin "open theft"] Roman law. A theft in which the thief is caught in the act. • A theft was "manifest" if the thief was caught on the day of the theft with the stolen property before reaching the place where he intended to take it. Fourfold damages were available by means of actio furti. (See actio furti under ACTIO.) A theft other than this type was known as furtum nec manifestum.

furtum oblatum (f<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>m <<schwa>>-blay-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin "offered theft"] Roman law. 1. A theft in which the thief offers stolen property to a person who is then found with the goods. • The person found in possession of the stolen goods could bring an action against the true thief. 2. The planting of stolen goods.

furtum possessionis (f<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>m p<<schwa>>-zes[h]-ee-oh-nis). [Latin "theft of possession"] Roman law. The owner's dishonest removal of a thing from the control of a pledgee, a bona fide possessor, a commodatary with a lien, or a usufructuary.

furtum rei (f<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>m ree-I). [Latin "theft of a thing"] Roman law. Ordinary theft, involving the dishonest taking of something to which the taker had no right.

furtum usus (f<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>m yoo-s<<schwa>>s oryoo-z<<schwa>>s). [Latin "theft of the use of a thing"] Roman law. 1. A bailee's dishonest use of the thing bailed or lent. 2. A creditor's dishonest use of a pledge (pignus) without contractual authority.

FUTURE-ACQUIRED PROPERTY

future-acquired property. See AFTER-ACQUIRED PROPERTY(1).

FUTURE ADVANCE

future advance. Money secured by an original security agreement even though it is lent after the security interest has attached. [Cases: Secured Transactions 20, 114. C.J.S. Secured Transactions §§ 18, 83.]

FUTURE-ADVANCE CLAUSE

future-advance clause. A contractual term in a security agreement covering additional loaned amounts on present collateral or collateral to be acquired in the future, regardless of whether the secured party is obliged to make the advances; esp., a provision in an open-end mortgage or deed of trust allowing the borrower to borrow additional sums in the future, secured under the same instrument and by the same security. • This type of clause makes a new security agreement unnecessary when the secured creditor makes a future loan to the debtor. [Cases: Mortgages 16, 116; Secured Transactions 20, 114. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 154–156; Secured Transactions §§ 18, 83.]

FUTURE INTEREST

future interest. A property interest in which the privilege of possession or of other enjoyment is future and not present. • A future interest can exist in either the grantor (as with a reversion) or the grantee (as with a remainder or executory interest). Today, most future interests are equitable interests in stocks and debt securities, with power of sale in a trustee. — Also termed future estate; expectant estate; estate in expectancy; nonpossessory estate. Cf. present interest under INTEREST(2). [Cases: Estates in Property 1. C.J.S. Estates §§ 2–5, 8, 15–21, 116–128, 137, 243.]

“To own a future interest now means not only to be entitled now to judicial protection of one's possible future possession, but also (in most cases) to be able to make transfers now of that right of possible future possession.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 56 (2d ed. 1984). “When O transfers today ‘to A for five years,’ we can say either that O has a future interest or that he has a ‘present’ estate subject to a term for years in A. Similarly, when O transfers today his entire estate in fee simple absolute by a conveyance ‘to A for five years, then to B and his heirs,’ we can say either that B has a future interest or that he has a ‘present’ estate subject to a term for years in A. Unhappily, the fact that we have two locutions available to us can be a source of confusion ....” Id. at 42.

FUTURE PERFORMANCE

future performance. See PERFORMANCE.

FUTURES

futures, n. 1. Standardized assets (such as commodities, stocks, or foreign currencies) bought or sold for future acceptance or delivery. — Also termed financial futures. 2. FUTURES CONTRACT. 3. Future claimants, esp. those who would become members of a class of persons injured by a defendant and thus included in a class action.

FUTURES-COMMISSION MERCHANT

futures-commission merchant. An individual or firm that executes orders to buy and sell futures or futures options.

GAGE

gage (gayj), n. A pledge, pawn, or other thing deposited as security for performance. • An archaic use of this word corresponded to the way wage was formerly used in legal contexts: a gager del ley, for example, was an earlier form of wager of law, while gager de deliverance had the same meaning as wager of deliverance.

“A single root has sent out many branches which overshadow large fields of law. Gage, engagement, wage, wages, wager, wed, wedding, the Scottish wadset, all spring from one root. In particular we must notice that the word ‘gage,’ in Latin vadium, is applied indiscriminately to movables and immovables, to transactions in which a gage is given and to those in which a gage is taken. When a lord has seized his tenant's goods in distress they are in his hands a gage for the payment of the rent that is in arrear, and the sheriff is always taking gages from those who have no mind to give them. The notion expressed by the word seems to be that expressed by our ‘security’ ....” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 117–18 (2d ed. 1899).

gage,vb. To pawn or pledge; to give as security for. • Gage is an older form of wage, and often appeared as a phrase, gager deliverance. Cf. WAGE(2).

“Though the word Gage be retained, as it is a Substantive, yet as it is a verb, use hath turned the Gage into Wage so as it is oftener written Wage; as to Wage Deliverance, to give security, that a thing shall be delivered: For, if he that distrained, being sued, have not delivered the Cattle that were distrained, then he shall not onely avow the Distress, but Gager Deliverance, put in surety, that he will deliver them." Thomas Blount, Nomo-Lexicon: A Law-Dictionary (1670).

GAGER

gager (gay-j<<schwa>>r), n. The giving of security; the transaction in which one gives a gage. See GAGE.

GAGER DEL LEY

gager del ley. See WAGER OF LAW.

GAG ORDER

gag order. 1. A judge's order directing parties, attorneys, witnesses, or journalists to refrain from publicly discussing the facts of a case. • When directed to the press, such an order is generally unconstitutional under the First Amendment. [Cases: Criminal Law 633(1); Federal Civil Procedure 1951; Trial 18, 20. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 564, 1134, 1140, 1145–1149, 1191; Trial §§ 91–92, 97.] 2. A judge's order that an unruly defendant be bound and gagged during trial to prevent further interruptions. [Cases: Criminal Law 637. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 1168–1172.]

GAIN

gain, n. 1. An increase in amount, degree, or value.

pecuniary gain. 1. A gain of money or of something having monetary value. 2. Criminal law. Any monetary or economic gain that serves as an impetus for the commission of an offense. • In most states, an offense and its punishment are aggravated if the offense was committed for pecuniary gain. Murder, for example, is often aggravated to capital murder if the murderer is paid to commit the crime. See SOLICITATION(2).

2. Excess of receipts over expenditures or of sale price over cost. See PROFIT(1). 3. Tax. The excess of the amount realized from a sale or other disposition of property over the property's adjusted value. IRC (26 USCA) § 1001. — Also termed realized gain; net gain. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3178–3216. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 107–108, 110–126, 132–134, 136, 283.]

capital gain. See CAPITAL GAIN.

extraordinary gain. A gain that is both unusual and infrequent, such as the gain realized from selling a large segment of a business.

ordinary gain. A gain from the sale or exchange of a noncapital asset. Cf. CAPITAL GAIN.

recognized gain. The portion of a gain that is subject to income taxation. IRC (26 USCA) § 1001(c). See BOOT(1). [Cases: Internal Revenue 3178–3216. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 107–108, 110–126, 132–134, 136, 283.]

game, n. 1. Wild animals and birds considered as objects of pursuit, for food or sport; esp., animals for which one must have a license to hunt. [Cases: Game 2.] 2. A contest, for amusement or for a prize, whose outcome depends on the skill, strength, or luck of the players. [Cases: Gaming 6.]

game of chance. A game whose outcome is determined by luck rather than skill. Cf. GAMBLING DEVICE.

“Games of chance do not cease to be such merely because they call for the exercise of skill by the players, nor do games of skill cease to be so because at times ... their result is determined by some unforeseen accident, usually called ‘luck.’ According to some cases, the test of the character of the game is not whether it contains an element of chance or an element of skill, but which of these is the dominating element that determines the result of the game.... And it has been said that ‘it is the character of the game, and not the skill or want of skill of the player,’ which determines whether a game is one of chance or skill.” 38 Am. Jur. 2d Gambling § 4, at 109–10 (1968).

game of skill. A game in which the outcome is determined by a player's superior knowledge or ability, not chance.

percentage game. A game of chance from which the house collects an amount calculated as a percentage of the wagers made or the sums won. • Percentage games are illegal in many states.

game, vb. To gamble; to play for a stake.

GAME LAW

game law. A federal or state law that regulates the hunting of game, esp. one that forbids the capturing or killing of specified game either entirely or seasonally, describes the means for killing or capturing game in season, or restricts the number and type of game animals that may be killed or captured in season. 16 USCA §§ 661–667; 18 USCA §§ 41–47. [Cases: Game 4.]

GAMETE INTRAFALLOPIAN TRANSFER

gamete intrafallopian transfer. A procedure in which mature eggs are implanted in a woman's fallopian tubes and fertilized with semen. — Abbr. GIFT. — Also termed gamete intrafallopian-tube transfer. Cf. ZYGOTE INTRAFALLOPIAN TRANSFER ; ARTIFICIAL INSEMINATION; IN VITRO FERTILIZATION.

gap. See GAP PERIOD.

GAP CREDITOR

gap creditor.See CREDITOR.

GAP-FILLER

gap-filler. A rule that supplies a contractual term that the parties failed to include in the contract. • For example, if the contract does not contain a sales price, UCC § 2-305(1) establishes the price as being a reasonable one at the time of delivery. Cf. default rule under RULE(1). [Cases: Sales 22(4), 23(4). C.J.S. Sales §§ 38–40, 223.]

“Contracts often have gaps in them, intentional or inadvertent. Gaps arise, too, out of the ‘battle of the forms’ under sections 2–204 and 2–207. Some gaps are more or less complete, others only partial. Article 2 of the Code includes numerous gap filler provisions which taken together constitute a kind of standardized statutory contract.” 1 James J. White & Robert S. Summers, Uniform Commercial Code § 3-4 (4th ed. 1995).

GAP FINANCING

gap financing. See FINANCING.

GAP PERIOD

gap period. Bankruptcy. The duration of time between the filing of an involuntary bankruptcy petition and the entry of the order for relief. — Often shortened to gap. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2281. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 56.]

GAP REPORT

gap report. In the making of federal court rules, a report that explains any changes made by an advisory committee in the language of a proposed amendment to a procedural rule after its publication for comment. • Before advisory committees began issuing gap reports in the early 1980s, there were complaints that the public record did not show why changes were made after the public-comment period. The five advisory committees — for appellate, bankruptcy, civil, criminal, and evidence rules — therefore began filing the reports to fill in the “gaps” in the record. Although the phrase is sometimes written in capital letters (GAP report), it is not an acronym.

GAP THEORY

gap theory. Insurance. The principle that a tortfeasor will be considered underinsured if his or her liability-insurance coverage — although legally adequate — is less than the injured party’s underinsured-motorist coverage. • This principle allows an injured party to invoke underinsured-motorist coverage. Cf. EXCESS THEORY. [Cases: Insurance 2787. C.J.S. Insurance § 1657.]

GARAUNTOR

garauntor (gar-<<schwa>>n-t<<schwa>>r). [Law French] Hist. A warrantor of land. • A garauntor was obligated to defend the title and seisin of the alienee. If the alienee was evicted, the garauntor had to provide the alienee with other land of equal value.

GARCIA<TT> HEARING

Garcia hearing (gahr-see-<<schwa>>).Criminal procedure. A hearing held to ensure that a defendant who is one of two or more defendants represented by the same attorney understands (1) the risk of a conflict of interest inherent in this type of representation, and (2) that he or she is entitled to the services of an attorney who does not represent anyone else in the defendant's case. United States v. Garcia, 517 F.2d 272 (5th Cir. 1975). See CON-FLICT OF INTEREST(2). [Cases: Criminal Law 641.5(5). C.J.S. Criminal Law § 319.]

GARD

gard (gahrd). [Law French] Hist. 1.Wardship or custody (of a person).2. A precinct (or ward) of a city. — Also spelled garde; gardia.

GARDE

garde (gahrd). [French] Civil law. A relationship that gives rise to liability for a person when an injury is caused by a thing, whether animate or inanimate, that is considered by law to be that person's responsibility or to be in that person's custody.

GARDEIN

gardein (gahr-deen). [Law French] Hist. A guardian or keeper. — Also spelled gardian; gardien; gardeyn.

GARNER<TT> DOCTRINE

Garner doctrine. The rule that allows shareholder plaintiffs in a corporate derivative action to discover confidential communications between a corporate officer and the corporation's attorney.

• The Garner doctrine does not apply to attorney work product, and the movant must show good cause. Garner v. Wolfinbarger, 430 F.2d 1093 (5th Cir. 1970). See DERIVATIVE ACTION(1). [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1600; Witnesses 197. C.J.S. Witnesses §§ 316–340.]

GARNISH

garnish, n. Hist. Money exacted from a new prisoner by other prisoners or as a jailer's fee. • This practice was banned in England in 1815.

garnish, vb. [Old French garnir “to warn”; “to prepare”] 1. Hist. To serve an heir with notice (i.e., to warn) of certain debts that must be paid before the person is entitled to receive property as an heir. 2. To subject (property) to garnishment; to attach (property held by a third party) in order to satisfy a debt. 3. To notify (a person, bank, etc.) that a garnishment proceeding has been undertaken and that the one receiving notice may be liable as stakeholder or custodian of the defendant's property. — Also termed garnishee; (in senses 2 & 3) factorize. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 601; Garnishment 1.] — garnishable, adj.

GARNISHEE

garnishee (gahr-ni-shee), n. A person or institution (such as a bank) that is indebted to or is bailee for another whose property has been subjected to garnishment. — Also termed garnishee-defendant (as opposed to the “principal defendant,” i.e., the primary debtor). [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 601; Garnishment 13–24.]

garnishee (gahr-ni-shee), vb. See GARNISH.

GARNISHER

garnisher. A creditor who initiates a garnishment action to reach the debtor's property that is thought to be held or owed by a third party (the garnishee). — Also spelled garnishor. [Cases: Garnishment 11.]

GARNISHMENT

garnishment, n. 1. A judicial proceeding in which a creditor (or potential creditor) asks the court to order a third party who is indebted to or is bailee for the debtor to turn over to the creditor any of the debtor's property (such as wages or bank accounts) held by that third party. • A plaintiff initiates a garnishment action as a means of either prejudgment seizure or postjudgment collection. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 601; Garnishment 64, 118.]

wrongful garnishment. 1. An improper or tortious garnishment. [Cases: Garnishment 122, 248.] 2. A cause of action against a garnisher for improperly or tortiously filing a garnishment proceeding. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 601; Garnishment 174.]

2. The judicial order by which such a turnover is effected. Cf. ATTACHMENT (1); SEQUESTRATION(1).

GARNISHMENT LIEN

garnishment lien. See LIEN.

GARNISHOR

garnishor. See GARNISHER.

GARRITY<TT> STATEMENT

Garrity statement (gar-<<schwa>>-tee). A public employee's oral or written report (as of an incident) obtained under a threat of termination of employment. • A public employee usu. makes a Garrity statement in the course of an internal investigation (as by a police department). Because a Garrity statement is coerced, the statement and any evidence obtained as a result of it cannot be used in a later criminal prosecution against the public employee. The statement and evidence may be used only to evaluate the employee's performance. Garrity v. New Jersey, 385 U.S. 493, 87 S.Ct. 616 (1967).

GAS-BALANCING AGREEMENT

gas-balancing agreement. Oil & gas. A contract among owners of the production of a gas well to balance production if one owner sells more of the gas stream than the other owners do.

“Gas balancing agreements address the problem of imbalances in production from a gas well or field. Co-owners frequently sell their share of production to different purchasers .... Even when co-owners sell to the same purchaser, their contracts are likely to be signed at different times and to have different price and take provisions. Thus, imbalances are inevitable.” John S. Lowe, Oil and Gas Law in a Nutshell 385 (3d ed. 1995).

GAS CHAMBER

gas chamber. A small, sealed room in which a capital punishment is carried out by strapping the prisoner into a chair and releasing poisonous fumes.

GAS CONTRACT

gas contract. Oil & gas. An agreement for the sale of natural gas.

GAS SOLD

gas sold. Oil & gas. Natural gas that is actually sold but not necessarily all that a well produces. • The term is used in natural-gas leases.

GAS USED

gas used.Oil & gas. Natural gas that is consumed while a well is in operation but that is not necessarily sold.

GAVELHERTE

gavelherte (gav-<<schwa>>l-h<<schwa>>rt).Hist. A service of plowing performed by a customary tenant.

GAVELING MAN

gaveling man (gav-<<schwa>>l-ing man or m<<schwa>>n).Hist. See GAVELMAN.

GAVELKIND

gavelkind (gav-<<schwa>>l-kInd).Hist. 1. A species of socage tenure arising in land that has descended equally to the decedent's sons. • It was widespread before 1066, when it was mainly superseded by primogeniture. This property-division technique was then largely limited to Kent. The person holding land in this manner enjoyed several advantages not available under the common law: the land could be disposed of by will, did not escheat for felony other than treason or for want of heirs, and was alienable by an heir at age 15. Gavelkind was abolished in 1925. Although the etymology of this term was much debated in the 19th century, the explanation given in the first quotation below appears to be the true one. 2. Land that yields gavel service.

“[G]afol, or gavel, was a word of frequent use before the Norman Conquest, and signified not only a tribute, tax, or custom, but also rent in general; and ... under this term were comprehended all socage services whatsoever which lay in render or feissance, the word being often compounded with and applied to the particulars wherein the payment or performance of the service consisted; as corn-gavel, or gavel-corn, was a corn-rent, and gavel-earth was a service of ‘earing’ or ploughing.... The tenant from whom such services were due was called a gavel-man; and ‘gavelkind’ being taken as a compound of this word ‘gavel’ and ‘gekynde,’ which is nature, kind, quality (usually appearing under the form ‘gafolcund’ in the most ancient records), the proper signification of the term will be land of the kind or nature which yielded rent, or ‘censual land,’ which may be compared to rent-service land as distinguished from knight-service land, which being held by free military service yielded no ‘cens’ or rent in money, provision, or works: so that the lands held by the old English tenure are known in Kent as gavelkind which in other parts of the country are distinguished by the name of socage.” Charles I. Elton & Herbert J.H. Mackay, Robinson on Gavelkind 5–6 (5th ed. 1897).

“The term ‘gavelkind’ has by the modern usage acquired [a] signification more confined as to the properties contained under it, yet more extensive in point of place: since at this day it is generally used to denote the partibility of the land, exclusive of all other customary qualities; nor is the word ‘gavelkind’ in common parlance confined to Kentish lands, but is equally and indifferently applied to all partible lands wherever they lie.” Id. at 9.

“Archbishop Hubert Walter, who presided in the king's court ... obtained from King John a charter empowering him and his successors to convert into military fees the tenements that were holden of their church in gavelkind. The archbishop's main object may have been to get money in the form of rents and scutages, instead of provender and boonworks, ‘gavel-corn’ and ‘gavel-swine,’ ‘gavel-erth’ and ‘gavel-rip’ ....” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 273 (2d ed. 1899).

GAVELMAN

gavelman (gav-⟨schwa⟩l-m⟨schwa⟩n).Hist. A tenant who is liable for money rent in addition to a customary service to the lord. • A gavelman was formerly a villein who had been released from villenage in consideration of money rent. — Also termed gaveling man.

GAVELMED

gavelmed (gav-⟨schwa⟩l-meed).Hist. A tenant's customary service of mowing the lord's meadowland or grass for hay. — Also spelled gavelmead.

GAVELREP

gavelrep (gav-⟨schwa⟩l-reep).Hist. A tenant's duty to reap the lord's fields at the lord's command; bederepe. — Also spelled gavelrip.

GAVEL THROUGH

gavel through.Parliamentary law. To put (a question) to a vote before any member can obtain the floor. • The practice of “gaveling through” a motion is improper under parliamentary law.

“It should be noted that, under legitimate parliamentary procedure, there is no such thing as ‘gaveling through’ a measure. The right of members to debate or introduce secondary motions cannot be cut off by the chair’s at-tempting to put a question to vote so quickly that no member can get the floor — either when the chair first states the question or when he believes debate is ended. Debate is not closed by the presiding officer’s rising to put the question.” Henry M. Robert, Robert’s Rules of Order Newly Revised § 43, at 374 (10th ed. 2000).

GENERAL MARITIME LAW

general maritime law. The body of U.S. legal precedents and doctrines developed through caselaw in maritime and admiralty litigation. • General maritime law is a branch of federal common law. It is distinguished from statutory law. Cf. MARITIME LAW; LAW OF THE SEA.

“The general maritime law is characterized by the expansive and dominant role played by federal courts in fashioning and applying its precepts to new situations. Large areas of maritime tort law have not been touched by legislation; these are left to the federal courts to define and fill. In areas preempted by legislation, federal courts may not establish principles in derogation of the congressional mandate. However, in the framework of admiralty jurisdiction, federal courts may still play an active role in interpreting statutes, filling gaps, and coordinating legislation with the general maritime law.” Thomas J. Schoenbaum, Admiralty and Maritime Law 122 (1987).

GENERAL PRINCIPLE OF LAW

general principle of law. 1. A principle widely recognized by peoples whose legal order has attained a certain level of sophistication. 2. Int'l law. A principle that gives rise to international legal obligations.

"[T]he adjective 'general' does not refer to several or many orders [i.e., legal systems] as do the general principles of national law, but indicates principles which are applied generally in all cases of the same kind which arise in international law (e.g. the principle of nonintervention)." Hermann Mosler, "General Principles of Law," in 2 Encyclopedia of Public International Law 512, 512 (1995).

3. A principle recognized in all kinds of legal relations, regardless of the legal system to which it belongs (state law, federal law, international law, etc.). — Also termed general legal principle.

GENERIC DRUG

generic drug. See DRUG.

GENERIC-DRUG LAW

generic-drug law. A statute that allows pharmacists to substitute a generic drug for a brand-name drug under specified conditions. • Most states have enacted generic-drug laws to ensure that less-expensive generic drugs are available to consumers.

GENERICIDE

genericide (j<<schwa>>-ner-<<schwa>>-sId). Trademarks. The loss or cancellation of a trademark that no longer distinguishes the owner's product from others' products. • Genericide occurs when a trademark becomes such a household name that the consuming public begins to think of the mark not as a brand name but as a synonym for the product itself. Examples of trademarks that have been “killed” by genericide include aspirin and escalator. [Cases: Trade Regulation 77. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 225.]

GENERICISM

genericism (j<<schwa>>-ner-<<schwa>>-siz-<<schwa>>m). See GENERICNESS.

GENERIC NAME

generic name. Trademarks. A term that describes something generally without designating the thing's source or creator, such as the word “car” or “sink.” • A generic name cannot be protected as a trademark for the thing it denotes; e.g., “Apple” can be a trademark for computers but not for apples. — Also termed generic term; generic mark; common descriptive name. [Cases: Trade Regulation 23. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 43.]

GENERICNESS

genericness, n. The state or condition of being generic <an affirmative defense of genericness in a trademark suit>. — Also termed generalness; genericism.

GENETIC-MARKER TEST

genetic-marker test. A medical method of testing tissue samples used in paternity and illegitimacy cases to determine whether a particular man could be the father of a child. • This test represents a medical advance over blood-grouping tests. It analyzes DNA and is much more precise in assessing the probability of paternity. — Abbr. GMT. See PATERNITY TEST. Cf. BLOOD-GROUPING TEST; HUMAN-LEUKOCYTE ANTIGEN TEST.

GENETIC MOTHER

genetic mother. See biological mother under MOTHER.

GENETIC PARENT

genetic parent. See biological parent under PARENT.

GENEVA CONVENTIONS OF 1949

Geneva Conventions of 1949 (j<<schwa>>-nee-v<<schwa>>). Four international agreements dealing with the protection of wounded members of the armed forces, the treatment of prisoners of war, and the protection of civilians during international armed conflicts. • Common Article 3 of the Conventions proclaims certain minimum standards of treatment that are applicable to noninternational armed conflicts. The humanitarian-law protection established in these four agreements was amplified in 1977 by the two Protocols Additional to the Geneva Conventions. In common parlance, people refer to the Geneva Convention as if there were just one agreement. [Cases: Treaties 8. C.J.S. Treaties § 6.]

GENEVA PHONOGRAMS CONVENTION

Geneva Phonograms Convention. A 1971 treaty requiring signatories to protect phonorecord producers against piracy and the importation of pirated copies, by copyright protection, unfair-competition law, or criminal sanctions. • The treaty was drafted by representatives from WIPO and UNESCO to correct weaknesses in the Rome Convention. — Also termed Convention for the Protection of Producers of Phonograms Against Unauthorized Duplication of Their Phonograms; Phonograms Convention.

GENOCIDE

genocide (jen-<<schwa>>-sId).Int'l law. An international crime involving acts causing serious physical and mental harm with the intent to destroy, partially or entirely, a national, ethnic, racial, or religious group. • The widely ratified Genocide Convention of 1948 defines the crime. The International Criminal Court has jurisdiction to try those accused of genocide. Many nations also have criminal laws providing punishment for individuals convicted of genocide. Cf. ETHNIC CLEANSING. [Cases: International Law 10.11.]

“The ... draft Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide was adopted by the General Assembly on December 9, 1948 and unanimously recommended for adherence to the members of the United Nations. It came into force in October, 1950 .... The term ‘genocide’ was first proposed by Dr. Lemkin in the course of the war and incorporated on his suggestion into the Indictment of the Major German War Criminals. The [U.N. General] Assembly Resolution on Genocide of December 11, 1946, and the Convention of 1948, are also the result of a remarkable one-man campaign.” Georg Schwarzenberger, Power Politics: A Study of International Society 634 (2d ed. 1951).

GENOESE LOTTERY

Genoese lottery (jen-oh-eezor -ees). See LOTTERY.

GENOTYPE

genotype.Patents. The genetic makeup of a living organism. • A patent on living matter must disclose its genotype rather than just describe its physical characteristics (phenotype) or behavior. Cf. PHENOTYPE. — genotypic,adj.

GENS

gens (jenz), n.[Latin] Roman law. A clan or group of families who share the same name and (supposedly) a common ancestor; extended family. • Members of a gens are freeborn and possess full civic rights. Pl. gentes.

“A wider group still is the gens, of great importance in early law though its importance was gone in classical times. This consisted of all who bore the same nomen, the gentile name.” W.W. Buckland, A Manual of Roman Private Law 61 (2d ed. 1953).

GENTES

gentes (jen-teez), n. [Latin] Roman law. The peoples or nations of the world, particularly the civilized peoples.

GENTILE

gentile (jen-tII). [fr. Latin gentilis] Roman law. A member of a gens. See GENS.

GENTIUM PRIVATUM

gentium privatum.See private international law under INTERNATIONAL LAW.

GENTLEMAN

gentleman.Hist. 1. A man of noble or gentle birth or rank; a man above the rank of yeoman. 2. A man belonging to the landed gentry. • Today the term has no precise legal meaning.

GENTLEMAN'S AGREEMENT

gentleman's agreement.See GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT.

GENTLEMAN USHER OF THE BLACK ROD

Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod.An officer of the House of Lords who has various ceremonial duties, including the summoning of the members of the House of Commons to the House of Lords when a bill is to receive royal approval. • The office dates from the 14th century.

GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT

gentlemen's agreement.An unwritten agreement that, while not legally enforceable, is secured by the good faith and honor of the parties. — Also spelled gentleman's agreement. [Cases: Contracts 1. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 2–3, 9, 12.]

GENTRIFICATION

gentrification,n. The restoration and upgrading of a deteriorated or aging urban neighborhood by middle-class or affluent persons, resulting in increased property values and often in displacement of lower-income residents. — gentrify,vb.

GENUINE

genuine,adj.1. (Of a thing) authentic or real; something that has the quality of what it is purported to be or to have <the plaintiff failed to question whether the exhibits were genuine>.2. (Of an instrument) free of forgery or counterfeiting <the bank teller could not determine whether the signature on the check was genuine>. UCC § 1-201(b)(19).

GENUINE ISSUE OF MATERIAL FACT

genuine issue of material fact.Civil procedure. In the law of summary judgments, a triable, substantial, or real question of fact supported by substantial evidence. • An issue of this kind precludes entry of summary judgment. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2470, 2470.1; Judgment 181(2), 185(6). C.J.S. Judgments § 260.]

GENUS

genus (jee-n<<schwa>>s orjen-<<schwa>>s). A general class comprising several species or divisions. • In legal usage, the terms genus and (sometimes) species invoke the taxonomic classification of life forms in biological science. For example, patent law is a species within the genus of intellectual property; burglary is a species within the genus of crime. In the law of sales, genus referred to fungibles, while species referred to specific, individual items. Cf. SPECIES(2).

GENUS CLAIM

genus claim. See generic claim under PATENT CLAIM.

GENUS NUNQUAM PERIT

genus nunquam perit (jee-n<<schwa>>s n<<schwa>>n[g]-kwam per-it). [Latin] Hist. The class never perishes. • The phrase appeared in reference to a quantity of contracted-for goods of a certain class (rather than a single item), the destruction of which did not discharge the seller's obligation.

GEODETTIC-SURVEY SYSTEM

geodetic-survey system (jee-<<schwa>>-det-ik). A federally created land-description method consisting of nationwide marks (or benches) made at longitude and latitude points. • The geodetic-survey system integrates most of the real property in the United States into one unified form of measurement.

brother-german. See BROTHER.

cousin-german. See COUSIN.

sister-german. See SISTER.

GERMANE

germane (j<<schwa>>r-mayn), adj. Relevant; pertinent <the caselaw cited in the brief was not germane to the legal issue pending before the court>. • Under parliamentary law, debate and amendments are in order only if they are germane to the motion under consideration.

GERMANUS

germanus (j<<schwa>>r-may-n<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Roman law. 1.adj. Having the same father and mother. See frater germanus under FRATER. 2.n. A whole brother; a child of both of one's own parents.

GERRYMANDERING

gerrymandering (jer-ee-man-d<<schwa>>r-ing orger-ee-), n.1. The practice of dividing a geographical area into electoral districts, often of highly irregular shape, to give one political party an unfair advantage by diluting the opposition's voting strength. • When Massachusetts Governor Elbridge Gerry ran for reelection in 1812, members of his political party, the Anti-Federalists, altered the state's voting districts to benefit the party. One newly created district resembled a salamander, inspiring a critic to coin the word gerrymander by combining the governor's name, Gerry, with the ending of salamander. Gerry was not reelected governor, but was elected as James Madison's vice president. — Also termed political gerrymandering. [Cases: Constitutional Law 215.3, 225.3(5); Elections 12(6).C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 717, 720, 819.] 2. #### GIFT

GIFT. abbr. GAMETE INTRAFALLOPIAN TRANSFER.

gift, n. 1. The voluntary transfer of property to another without compensation. [Cases: Gifts 1.] 2. A thing so transferred. — gift, vb.

absolute gift. See inter vivos gift.

anatomical gift. A testamentary donation of a bodily organ or organs, esp. for transplant or for medical research. • The procedures for making an anatomical gift are set forth in the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act, which has been adopted in every state. [Cases: Dead Bodies 1. C.J.S. Dead Bodies §§ 1–3.]

antenuptial gift. See prenuptial gift.

charitable gift. An inter vivos or testamentary donation to a nonprofit organization for the relief of poverty, the advancement of education, the advancement of religion, the promotion of health, governmental, or municipal purposes, and other purposes the accomplishment of which is beneficial to the community. Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 368 (1959). • When the beneficiary is a religious organization or the gift is intended for a religious purpose, it is sometimes also termed a pious gift.

class gift. A gift to a group of persons, uncertain in number at the time of the gift but to be ascertained at a future time, who are all to take in definite proportions, the share of each being dependent on the ultimate number in the group.

"The typical class gift is to 'children,' 'issue,' 'heirs,' 'brothers and sisters,' 'nieces and nephews,' 'grandchildren.' A class gift is one in which the donor intends to benefit a group or a class of persons, as distinguished from specific individuals; the class gift donor is said to be 'group-minded.' The class gift is one in which the donor intends that the number of donees, from the time of the delivery of the instrument of gift in the case of the inter vivos gift, or from the time of the execution of the will in the case of the testamentary gift, is subject to fluctuation by way of increase or decrease, or by way of increase only, or by way of decrease only, depending on the circumstances of the gift." Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 136 (2d ed. 1984).

completed gift. A gift that is no longer in the donor's possession and control. • Only a completed gift is taxable under the gift tax.

gift causa mortis (kaw-z<<schwa>> mor-tis). A gift made in contemplation of the donor's imminent death. • The three essentials are that (1) the gift must be made with a view to the donor's present illness or peril, (2) the donor must actually die from that illness or peril, without ever recovering, and (3) there must be a delivery. Even though causa mortis is the more usual word order in modern law, the correct Latin phrasing is mortis causa — hence gift mortis causa. — Also termed donatio causa mortis; donatio mortis causa; gift in contemplation of death; transfer in contemplation of death. See CONTEMPLATION OF DEATH. [Cases: Gifts 53–68.]

"[Gifts causa mortis] are conditional, like legacies; and it is essential to them that the donor make them in his last illness, or in contemplation and expectation of death; and with reference to their effect after his death, they are good, notwithstanding a previous will; and if he recovers, the gift becomes void." 2 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law *444 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

"A 'gift causa mortis' ... is testamentary, and it is similar to testamentary disposition in the respect that there remains with the donor the power to revoke the gift until his death. In some respects, a gift causa mortis may be said to resemble a contract, for mutual consent and the concurrent will of both parties are necessary to the validity of the transfer." 38A C.J.S. Gifts § 85, at 276–77 (1996).

gift in contemplation of death. See gift causa mortis.

gift inter vivos. See inter vivos gift.

gift in trust. A gift of legal title to property to someone who will act as trustee for the benefit of a beneficiary.

gift over. A property gift (esp. by will) that takes effect after the expiration of a preceding estate in the property (such as a life estate or fee simple determinable) <to Sarah for life, with gift over to Don in fee>. [Cases: Wills 614(2, 3). C.J.S. Wills §§ 1278, 1284–1285.]

gift splitting. See split gift.

gratuitous gift. A gift made without consideration, as most gifts are. • Strictly speaking, the term looks redundant, but it answers to the donum gratuitum of Roman law.

inter vivos gift (in-t<<schwa>>r vI-vohs orvee-vohs). A gift of personal property made during the donor's lifetime and delivered to the donee with the intention of irrevocably surrendering control over the property. — Also termed gift inter vivos; lifetime gift; absolute gift; DONATIO INTER VIVOS. [Cases: Gifts 1–33.]

lifetime gift. See inter vivos gift.

manual gift. Civil law. A gift of movable, tangible property, made by delivery without any formalities. La. Civ. Code art. 1539.

onerous gift (ohn-<<schwa>>-r<<schwa>>s oron-<<schwa>>-r<<schwa>>s). A gift made subject to certain conditions imposed on the recipient.

pious gift. See charitable gift.

prenuptial gift (pree-n<<schwa>>p-sh<<schwa>>l). A gift of property from one spouse to another before marriage. • In community-property states, prenuptial gifts are often made to preserve the property's classification as separate property. — Also termed antenuptial gift. [Cases: Husband and Wife 250.]

split gift. Tax. A gift that is made by one spouse to a third person and that, for gift-tax purposes, both spouses treat as being made one-half by each spouse; a gift in which the spouses combine their annual gift-tax exclusions. • A split gift, for example, is eligible for two annual exclusions of $10,000 each, or a total of $20,000 for one gift. — Also termed gift-splitting; gift-splitting election. See annual exclusion under EXCLUSION. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4206.10. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 566–568.]

substitute gift. A testamentary gift to one person in place of another who is unable to take under the will for some reason. — Also termed substitutional gift.

taxable gift. A gift that, after adjusting for the annual exclusion and applicable deductions, is subject to the federal unified transfer tax. IRC (26 USCA) § 2503. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4203.10, 4206.10. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 559, 566–568.]

testamentary gift (tes-t<<schwa>>-men-t<<schwa>>-ree or -tree). A gift made in a will.

vested gift. An absolute gift, being neither conditional nor contingent, though its use or enjoyment might not occur until sometime in the future.

GIFT DEED

gift deed. See DEED.

GIFT ENTERPRISE

gift enterprise. 1. A scheme for the distribution of items by chance among those who have purchased shares in the scheme. [Cases: Lotteries 3. C.J.S. Lotteries §§ 2–7, 11.] 2. A merchant's scheme to increase sales without lowering prices by giving buyers tickets that carry a chance to win a prize. • Gift enterprises are regulated by state law. See LOTTERY.

GIFTING CIRCLE

gifting circle. See GIFTING CLUB.

GIFTING CLUB

gifting club. A type of pyramid scheme or Ponzi scheme in which recruits make “gifts” of money to other club members with the expectation that future recruits will make “gifts” to the present recruits. • Many gifting clubs limit membership to women. Club leaders usu. try to evade income-tax laws by claiming that the money paid in by a recruit is a tax-free “gift” to a club member and warning new recruits not to expect “gifts” in the future. Some states forbid gifting clubs as illegal pyramid schemes. Other states hold that the clubs are illegal lotteries. — Also termed gifting circle; sisterhood; birthday club. See PONZI SCHEME.

GIFT INTER VIVOS

GODPARENT

godparent.Eccles. law. A person, usu. a close family friend or relative, who accepts a parent's invitation to assume part of the responsibility for the religious education of a newly baptized child. • Often, too, there is an un-derstanding that the godparent would help support and rear the child if the parents were to die or become inca-pacitated. The spiritual parent-child relationship creates a canonical impediment to marriage. — Also termed (more specifically) godmother; godfather; (in eccles. law) sponsor.

GOD'S PENNY

God's penny.Hist. Earnest money; a small sum paid on the striking of a bargain. — Also termed denarius Dei; earnest-penny; godpenny. See ARRA.

“It is among the merchants that the giving of earnest first ... becomes a form which binds both buyer and seller in a contract of sale. To all appearances this change was not accomplished without the intermediation of a religious idea. All over western Europe the earnest becomes known as the God's penny or Holy Ghost's penny (denarius Dei) ...” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 208 (2d ed. 1899).

GO FORWARD

go forward,vb. To commence or carry on with the presentation of a case in court <after the lunch recess, the judge instructed the plaintiff to go forward with its case>.

GO HENCE WITHOUT DAY

go hence without day.(Of a defendant to a lawsuit) to be finished with legal proceedings without any further settings on the court's calendar. • Thus, a defendant who “goes hence without day” succeeds in getting a case finally resolved, usu. by dismissal. The phrase derives from the Law French phrase aller sans jour, and over time defendants came to use it to request that the case against them be dismissed without the necessity of a day in court. — Sometimes shortened to go without day; without day. See SINE DIE.

GOING-AND-COMING RULE

going-and-coming rule. 1. The principle that torts committed by an employee while commuting to or from work are generally outside the scope of employment. [Cases: Master and Servant 302.] 2. The principle that denies workers'-compensation benefits to an employee injured while commuting to or from work. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 719–755. C.J.S. Workmen's Compensation §§ 431–432, 435–447.]

GOLD CLAUSE

gold clause.A provision calling for payment in gold. • Gold clauses, which are now void, were once used in contracts, bonds, and mortgages.

GOLDEN HANDCUFFS

golden handcuffs. Remuneration set at such a high level that the employee earning it cannot leave the firm or company and receive commensurate pay elsewhere. • As a result, the employee often stays in the position even if it is otherwise unrewarding or unpleasant.

GOLDEN HANDSHAKE

golden handshake. A generous compensation package offered to an employee, usu. as an inducement to retire or upon dismissal.

GOLDEN PARACHUTE

golden parachute. An employment-contract provision that grants an upper-level executive lucrative severance benefits — including long-term salary guarantees or bonuses — if control of the company changes hands (as by a merger). Cf. TIN PARACHUTE. [Cases: Corporations 308(3). C.J.S. Corporations §§ 532–533, 536.]

GOLDEN RULE

golden rule. The principle that, in construing written instruments, a court should adhere to the grammatical and ordinary sense of the words unless that adherence would lead to some manifest absurdity; esp., in statutory construction, the principle that if a statute's literal meaning would lead to an absurd or unjust result, or even to an inconsistency within the statute itself, the statute should be interpreted in a way that avoids such a result or inconsistency. — Also termed Baron Parke's rule. Cf. ABSURDITY; MISCHIEF RULE ; PLAIN-MEANING RULE; EQUITY-OF-THE-STATUTE RULE. [Cases: Statutes 181(2), 189. C.J.S. Statutes §§ 318, 324.]

“[T]he ‘golden’ rule ... allows for a departure from the literal rule when the application of the statutory words in the ordinary sense would be repugnant to or inconsistent with some other provision in the statute or even when it would lead to what the court considers to be an absurdity. The usual consequence of applying the golden rule is that words which are in the statute are ignored or words which are not there are read in. The scope of the golden rule is debatable, particularly so far as the meaning of an ‘absurdity’ is concerned.” Rupert Cross, Statutory Interpretation 14 (1976).

GOLDEN-RULE ARGUMENT

golden-rule argument. A jury argument in which a lawyer asks the jurors to reach a verdict by imagining themselves or someone they care about in the place of the injured plaintiff or crime victim. • Because golden-rule arguments ask the jurors to become advocates for the plaintiff or victim and to ignore their obligation to exercise calm and reasonable judgment, these arguments are widely condemned and are considered improper in most states. [Cases: Trial 125(1). C.J.S. Trial §§ 320, 323.]

GOLDSMITHS' NOTES

goldsmiths' notes.Hist. Bankers' cash notes; promissory notes given by bankers to customers as acknowledgments of the receipt of money. • This term derives from the London banking business, which originally was transacted by goldsmiths.

A state of mind consisting in (1) honesty in belief or purpose, (2) faithfulness to one's duty or obligation, (3) observance of reasonable commercial standards of fair dealing in a given trade or business, or (4) absence of intent to defraud or to seek unconscionable advantage. — Also termed bona fides. Cf. BAD FAITH. — good-faith, adj.

“The phrase ‘good faith’ is used in a variety of contexts, and its meaning varies somewhat with the context. Good faith performance or enforcement of a contract emphasizes faithfulness to an agreed common purpose and consistency with the justified expectations of the other party; it excludes a variety of types of conduct characterized as involving ‘bad faith’ because they violate community standards of decency, fairness or reasonableness. The appropriate remedy for a breach of the duty of good faith also varies with the circumstances.” Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 205 cmt. a (1979).

“[G]ood faith is an elusive idea, taking on different meanings and emphases as we move from one context to another — whether the particular context is supplied by the type of legal system (e.g., common law, civilian, or hybrid), the type of contract (e.g., commercial or consumer), or the nature of the subject matter of the contract (e.g., insurance, employment, sale of goods, financial services, and so on).” Roger Brownsword et al., “Good Faith in Contract,” in Good Faith in Contract: Concept and Context 1, 3 (Roger Brownsword ed., 1999).

GOOD-FAITH BARGAINING

good-faith bargaining. Labor law. Negotiations between an employer and a representative of employees, usu. a union, in which both parties meet and confer at reasonable times with open minds and with a view to reaching an agreement. • The National Labor Relations Act requires good-faith bargaining, and failure to bargain in good faith is considered an unfair labor practice. 29 USCA §§ 151–169. See UNFAIR LABOR PRACTICE. [Cases: Labor Relations 388.2.]

GOOD-FAITH EXCEPTION

good-faith exception. Criminal procedure. An exception to the exclusionary rule whereby evidence obtained under a warrant later found to be invalid (esp. because it is not supported by probable cause) is nonetheless admissible if the police reasonably relied on the notion that the warrant was valid. • The good-faith exception was adopted by the Supreme Court in United States v. Leon, 468 U.S. 897, 104 S.Ct. 3405 (1984). [Cases: Criminal Law 394.4(6). C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 782–785.]

GOOD-FAITH IMPROVER

good-faith improver. A person who makes improvements to real property while actually and reasonably believing himself or herself to be the owner or lawful occupant. • The improver may be entitled to recover the value of the improvements from the true owner or to remove them. See IMPROVEMENT.

GOOD-FAITH MARGIN

good-faith margin. See MARGIN.

GOOD-FAITH PURCHASER

good-faith purchaser. See bona fide purchaser under PURCHASER(1).

GOOD HEALTH

good health. Insurance. A state of reasonable healthiness; a state of health free from serious disease. • Good health, a phrase often appearing in life-insurance policies, does not mean perfect health. — Also termed sound health. [Cases: Insurance 1758, 3003(8). C.J.S. Insurance § 314.]

“As used in policies of insurance, there is no material difference between the terms ‘sound health’ and ‘good health,’ and generally it appears that the two terms are considered to be synonymous. Such expressions are comparative terms, and the rule followed generally is that the term ‘good health’ or ‘sound health,’ when used in an insurance contract, means that the applicant has no grave, important, or serious disease, and is free from any ailment that seriously affects the general soundness or healthfulness of his system.” 43 Am. Jur. 2d Insurance § 1061, at 1069 (1982).

GOOD JURY

good jury. See special jury under JURY.

GOOD MORAL CHARACTER

good moral character, n.1. A pattern of behavior that is consistent with the community's current ethical standards and that shows an absence of deceit or morally reprehensible conduct. • An alien seeking to be naturalized must show good moral character in the five years preceding the petition for naturalization. [Cases: Aliens 62(5). C.J.S. Aliens §§ 287–292.] 2. A pattern of behavior conforming to a profession's ethical standards and showing an absence of moral turpitude. • Good moral character is usu. a requirement of persons applying to practice a profession such as law or medicine. [Cases: Licenses 20. C.J.S. Architects §§ 4, 7; Licenses §§ 39–41.]

GOOD OFFICES

good offices.Int'l law. The involvement of one or more countries or an international organization in a dispute between other countries with the aim of contributing to its settlement or at least easing relations between the disputing countries.

GOOD OF THE ORDER

good of the order.Parliamentary law. A time scheduled, usu. late in a meeting, for informal announcements, comments, and suggestions that do not seek the meeting's immediate action. — Also termed general good and welfare; open forum; open microphone.

GOODRIGHT

Goodright.Hist. A name sometimes used as a fictitious plaintiff in an ejectment action. • “John Doe” was used more frequently. — Also termed Goodtitle. Cf. JOHN DOE.

GOODS

goods. 1. Tangible or movable personal property other than money; esp., articles of trade or items of merchandise <goods and services>. • The sale of goods is governed by Article 2 of the UCC. [Cases: Sales 10. C.J.S. Sales §§ 12–16.] 2. Things that have value, whether tangible or not <the importance of social goods varies from society to society>.

“ ‘Goods' means all things (including specially manufactured goods) which are movable at the time of identification to the contract for sale other than the money in which the price is to be paid, investment securities (Article 8) and things in action. ‘Goods' also includes the unborn young of animals and growing crops and other identified things attached to realty as described in the section on goods to be severed from realty (Section 2-107).” UCC § 2-105(1).

bulky goods.Goods that are obviously difficult to move because of their nature, their number, or their location.

capital goods.Goods (such as equipment and machinery) used for the production of other goods or services. — Also termed industrial goods.

consumer goods.Goods bought or used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, and not for resale or for producing other goods. UCC § 9-102(a)(23). [Cases: Secured Transactions 15. C.J.S. Secured Transactions § 14.]

customers' goods.Insurance. Goods belonging to the customers of a casualty-insurance policyholder; goods held by a policyholder as a bailee.

distressed goods.Goods sold at unusually low prices or at a loss.

durable goods.Consumer goods that are designed to be used repeatedly over a long period, such as automobiles and personal computers. — Also termed durables; hard goods.

fungible goods (f<<schwa>>n-j<<schwa>>b<<schwa>>l). Goods that are interchangeable with one another; goods that, by nature or trade usage, are the equivalent of any other like unit, such as coffee or grain. UCC § 1-201(b)(18).

future goods.Goods that will come into being, such as those yet to be manufactured; goods that are not both existing and identified. • A purported present sale of future goods or any interest in them operates as a contract to sell. UCC § 2-105(2).

gray-market goods.See PARALLEL IMPORTS.

hard goods.See durable goods.

household goods.Goods that are used in connection with a home. • This term usu. arises when a warehouse claims a lien on what he or she asserts are “household” goods. According to the UCC, a warehouse may claim a lien on a depositor's furniture, furnishings, and personal effects that are used in a dwelling. UCC § 7-209(3)(b).

industrial goods.See capital goods.

mobile goods.Goods that are normally used in more than one jurisdiction (such as shipping containers and road-construction machinery) and that are held by the debtor as equipment or leased by the debtor to others. • Under previous drafts of the Uniform Commercial Code, the procedure for perfecting a security interest in mobile goods was generally defined by the law of the state where the debtor is located. The current UCC does not distinguish mobile goods.

nonconforming goods.Goods that fail to meet contractual specifications, allowing the buyer to reject the tender of the goods or to revoke their acceptance. UCC §§ 2-601, 2-608. See PERFECT-TENDER RULE. [Cases: Sales 119, 166(1). C.J.S. Sales §§ 176, 182, 194, 199–202.]

ordinary goods.Goods that are anything other than mobile goods, minerals, or goods covered by a certificate of title. • The current UCC does not distinguish between ordinary and mobile goods. [Cases: Secured Transactions 14. C.J.S. Secured Transactions § 13.]

prize goods.Goods captured at sea during wartime.

soft goods.Consumer goods (such as clothing) that are not durable goods.

GOOD SAMARITAN DOCTRINE

Good Samaritan doctrine (s<<schwa>>-mar-i-t<<schwa>>n).Torts. The principle that a person who is injured while attempting to aid another in imminent danger, and who then sues the one whose negligence created the danger, will not be charged with contributory negligence unless the rescue attempt is an unreasonable one or the rescuer acts unreasonably in performing the attempted rescue. Cf. EMERGENCY DOCTRINE; RESCUE DOCTRINE; LOST-CHANCE DOCTRINE. [Cases: Negligence 510(3). C.J.S. Negligence §§ 240, 317.]

GOOD-SAMARITAN LAW

good-samaritan law.A statute that exempts from liability a person (such as an off-duty physician) who voluntarily renders aid to another in imminent danger but negligently causes injury while rendering the aid. • Some form of good-samaritan legislation has been enacted in all 50 states and in the District of Columbia. — Also written Good Samaritan law. — Also termed good-samaritan statute. Cf. GOOD SAMARITAN DOCTRINE. [Cases: Health 769; Negligence 284. C.J.S. Negligence § 87.]

“The so-called ‘Good Samaritan Statutes’ ... do not require aid to be given. They merely encourage doctors to stop and give aid to strangers in emergency situations by providing that no physician who in good faith renders such aid shall be liable in civil damages as a result of acts or omissions in rendering such aid. Some states have enacted statutes that require a person who is able to do so with no danger or peril to himself to come to the aid of another who is exposed to grave physical harm.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 661 (3d ed. 1982).

GOODS AND CHATTELS

goods and chattels (chat-<<schwa>>lz), n. Loosely, personal property of any kind; occasionally, tangible personal property only. — Also termed goods and effects; goods and merchandise.

GOOD-SOLDIER DEFENSE

good-soldier defense. An excuse theory based on the assertion that a defendant was following orders, esp. of a military or corporate superior. • The term is a derisive label rather than a valid defense. Following an order does not relieve a defendant of responsibility for wrongful acts unless there are circumstances that would amount to coercion.

GOOD TIME

good time. See TIME.

GOOD TITLE

good title. See TITLE(2).

GOODWILL

goodwill. A business's reputation, patronage, and other intangible assets that are considered when appraising the business, esp. for purchase; the ability to earn income in excess of the income that would be expected from the business viewed as a mere collection of assets. • Because an established business's trademark or servicemark is a symbol of goodwill, trademark infringement is a form of theft of goodwill. By the same token, when a trademark is assigned, the goodwill that it carries is also assigned. — Also written good will. Cf. going-concern value under VALUE(2). [Cases: Good Will 1–2.]

“[Goodwill] is only another name for reputation, credit, honesty, fair name, reliability.” Harry D. Nims, The Law of Unfair Competition and Trade-Marks 36 (1929).

“Good will is to be distinguished from that element of value referred to variously as going-concern value, going value, or going business. Although some courts have stated that the difference is merely technical and that it is unimportant to attempt to separate these intangibles, it is generally held that going-concern value is that which inheres in a plant of an established business.” 38 Am. Jur. 2d Good Will § 2, at 913 (1968).

GOVERNING DOCUMENT

governing document. See DOCUMENT.

GOVERNMENT

government. 1. The structure of principles and rules determining how a state or organization is regulated. 2. The sovereign power in a nation or state. 3. An organization through which a body of people exercises political authority; the machinery by which sovereign power is expressed <the Canadian government>. • In this sense, the term refers collectively to the political organs of a country regardless of their function or level, and regardless of the subject matter they deal with. Cf. NATION; STATE.

central government. See federal government (1).

de facto government (di fak-toh). 1. A government that has taken over the regular government and exercises sovereignty over a nation. 2. An independent government established and exercised by a group of a country's inhabitants who have separated themselves from the parent state. — Also termed government de facto.

de jure government. A functioning government that is legally established. — Also termed government de jure.

federal government. 1. A national government that exercises some degree of control over smaller political units that have surrendered some degree of power in exchange for the right to participate in national political matters. — Also termed (in federal states) central government. 2. The U.S. government. — Also termed national government. [Cases: United States 1. C.J.S. United States §§ 2–3.]

government de facto. See de facto government.

government de jure. See de jure government.

local government. The government of a particular locality, such as a city or county; a governing body at a lower level than the state government. • The term includes a school district, fire district, transportation authority, and any other special-purpose district or authority. — Also termed municipal government. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 6. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations § 12.]

mixed government. A government containing a blend of forms, as in democracy and monarchy.

municipal government. See local government.

national government. 1. NATIONAL GOVERNMENT. 2. See federal government(2).

provisional government. A government temporarily established to govern until a permanent one is organized to replace it.

republican government. A government in the republican form; specif., a government by representatives chosen by the people.

state government. The government of a state of the United States. [Cases: States 1. C.J.S. States §§ 2, 16.]

4. The executive branch of the U.S. government. 5. The prosecutors in a given criminal case <the government has objected to the introduction of that evidence>. 6. An academic course devoted to the study of government; political science <Bridges is enrolled in Government 101>.

GOVERNMENT AGENCY

government agency. See AGENCY(3).

GOVERNMENT-AGENCY DEFENSE

government-agency defense. Torts. An affirmative defense that immunizes a contractor from liability upon proof that the contractor acted on the government's behalf as an agent or as a government officer. • This defense is extremely limited because of the difficulty of establishing the government-agent relationship. See Yearsley v. W.A. Ross Constr. Co., 309 U.S. 18, 20–22, 60 S.Ct. 413, 414–15 (1940). Cf. GOVERNMENT-CONTRACTOR DEFENSE; CONTRACT-SPECIFICATION DEFENSE.

GOVERNMENTAL ENTERPRISE

governmental enterprise. See ENTERPRISE.

GOVERNMENTAL FUNCTION

governmental function. Torts. A government agency's conduct that is expressly or impliedly mandated or authorized by constitution, statute, or other law and that is carried out for the benefit of the general public. • Generally, a governmental entity is immune from tort liability for governmental acts. — Also termed governmental act; governmental activity. See PUBLIC-FUNCTION TEST. Cf. PROPRIETARY FUNCTION. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 724.C.J.S. Municipal Corporations § 664.]

“[A]ctivities of police or firefighters, though tortious, are usually considered governmental in the sense that they involve the kind of power expected of the government, even if its exercise in the specific case is wrongful. The city is immune as to such activities for this reason. On the other hand, if the city operates a local electric or water company for which fees are charged, this looks very much like private enterprise and is usually considered pro-prietary.... The difficult distinction between governmental and proprietary functions is even more troubling where the city's conduct combines both kinds of function at once. For example, operation of a sanitary sewer may be deemed governmental, but operation of a storm sewer may be deemed proprietary.” W. Page Keeton et al., Prosser and Keeton on the Law of Torts § 131, at 1053–54 (5th ed. 1984).

GOVERNMENTAL-FUNCTION THEORY

governmental-function theory. Constitutional law. A principle by which private conduct is characterized as state action, esp. for due-process and equal-protection purposes, when a private party is exercising a public function. • Under this theory, for example, a political party (which is a private entity) cannot exclude voters from primary elections on the basis of race. — Also termed public-function rationale. [Cases: Civil Rights 1326(4, 7); Constitutional Law 213(4), 254(4). C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 92–94; Constitutional Law §§ 705, 719, 954–958.]

GOVERNMENTAL IMMUNITY

governmental immunity. See sovereign immunity under IMMUNITY(1).

GOVERNMENTAL INSTRUMENTALITY

GOVERNMENT BOND

government bond. See savings bond under BOND(3); government security under SECURITY.

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT

government contract. See CONTRACT.

GOVERNMENT-CONTRACTOR DEFENSE

government-contractor defense. An affirmative defense that immunizes a government contractor from civil liability under state law when the contractor complies with government specifications. • Immunization is extended when two conditions are satisfied: (1) the supplier warned the government about any dangers presented by the goods about which the supplier had knowledge but the government did not, and (2) the government itself is immune from liability under the Feres doctrine. Essentially, this federal common-law defense, which has been applied in cases of negligence, strict liability, and breach of warranty, extends sovereign immunity over the contractor. The leading case on this defense is Boyle v. United Techs. Corp., 487 U.S. 500, 108 S.Ct. 2510 (1988). — Also termed Boyle defense; government-contract defense; government-contract-specification defense; (in military context) military-contract defense. See FERES DOCTRINE. Cf. GOVERNMENT-AGENCY DEFENSE. [Cases: Aviation 13; Products Liability 26. C.J.S. Aeronautics and Aerospace §§ 125–135; Products Liability §§ 44, 48.]

GRACE PERIOD

grace period. 1. A period of extra time allowed for taking some required action (such as making payment) without incurring the usual penalty for being late. • Insurance policies typically provide for a grace period of 30 days beyond the premium's due date, during which the premium may be paid without the policy being canceled. And Article 9 of the UCC provides for a ten-day grace period, after the collateral is received, during which a purchase-money security interest must be perfected to have priority over any conflicting security interests. — Also termed days of grace; grace days. 2. Patents. The one-year interval allowed by the U.S. Patent Act between the time an invention is used in public, sold, offered for sale, or disclosed in a publication and the time the inventor applies for a patent. • Most countries follow the doctrine of absolute priority and do not allow a grace period. — Sometimes shortened to grace. Cf. STATUTORY BAR; absolute novelty under NOVELTY.

GRADATIM

gradatim (gr<<schwa>>-day-t<<schwa>>m), adv.[Latin] Roman law. Gradually; by successive degrees of relationship. • Gradatim refers to the step-by-step admission of successors when there is no heir next in line. See GRADUS(1).

A provision that creates an exemption from the law's effect for something that existed before the law's effective date; specif., a statutory or regulatory clause that exempts a class of persons or transactions because of circumstances existing before the new rule or regulation takes effect. [Cases: Statutes 228. C.J.S. Statutes §§ 370–372.] 3. In a government contract, a provision that immunizes the contractor against any changes in federal law that would otherwise adversely affect the contract. • For example, the government may promise to cover any increased costs that arise from a change in the law, even though the contractor would bear them for any other reason. 4. In a construction contract, a general and inclusive provision that makes a party responsible for dealing with risks, whether expected or unexpected.

GRAND INQUEST

grand inquest. See INQUEST.

GRAND JUROR

grand juror. See JUROR.

GRAND JURY

grand jury. A body of (often 23) people who are chosen to sit permanently for at least a month — and sometimes a year — and who, in ex parte proceedings, decide whether to issue indictments. See Fed. R. Crim. P. 6. • If the grand jury decides that evidence is strong enough to hold a suspect for trial, it returns a bill of indictment (a true bill) charging the suspect with a specific crime. — Also termed accusing jury; presenting jury; jury of indictment. Cf. petit jury under JURY. [Cases: Grand Jury 1.]

“The grand jury serves — or may serve — two distinct functions. One is a screening function; the grand jury evaluates evidence supporting possible charges and returns an indictment only in those cases in which the evidence amounts to at least probable cause. The other is an investigational function; the grand jury sometimes develops information that is of value in determining whether grounds for a charge exist and — perhaps incidentally — in proving that charge at the defendant's later criminal trial.” Frank W. Miller et al., Cases and Materials on Criminal Justice Administration 546 (3d ed. 1986).

additional grand jury. See special grand jury.

investigative grand jury. A grand jury whose primary function is to examine possible crimes and develop evidence not currently available to the prosecution. — Also termed investigatory grand jury.

runaway grand jury. A grand jury that acts essentially in opposition to the prosecution, as by perversely failing to return an indictment that the prosecution has requested.

screening grand jury. A grand jury whose primary function is to decide whether to issue an indictment.

special grand jury. A grand jury specially summoned, usu. when the regular grand jury either has already been discharged or has not been drawn; a grand jury with limited authority. — Also termed additional grand jury; extraordinary grand jury. [Cases: Grand Jury 10.]

GRAND JURY CLAUSE

Grand Jury Clause. The clause of the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution requiring an indictment by a grand jury before a person can be tried for serious offenses.

GRAND LARCENY

grand larceny. See LARCENY.

GRANDPARENT APPLICATION

grandparent application. See PATENT APPLICATION.

GRANDPARENT RIGHTS

grandparent rights. A grandfather's or grandmother's rights in seeking visitation with a grandchild. • By statute in most states, in certain circumstances a grandparent may seek court-ordered visitation with a grandchild. Typically these circumstances include the death of the grandparents' child (the child's parent) and the divorce of the child's parents. But the United States Supreme Court has held that the primary, constitutionally protected right of decision-making regarding association with a child lies with the child's parents. As a general rule, if the parent is a fit and proper guardian and objects to visitation, the parent's will prevails. Troxel v. Granville, 530 U.S. 57, 120 S.Ct. 2054 (2000).

GRANDPARENT VISITATION

grandparent visitation. See VISITATION.

GRAND REMONSTRANCE

Grand Remonstrance (ri-mon-str<<schwa>>nts). Hist. A protest document issued by the House of Commons in 1641, setting forth numerous political grievances against Charles I. • The document demanded three primary remedial measures: (1) improvements in the administration of justice, (2) appointment of trustworthy ministers, and (3) enforcement of the laws against Roman Catholics. It was the first major split between the Royalist and Parliamentary parties, and it led Charles to seek the arrest of the five members who pushed the document through Commons.

GRAND SERJEANTY

grand serjeanty. See SERJEANTY.

GRAND SURVEY

Grand Survey. See grand inquest (2) under INQUEST.

GRANGE

grange (graynj). 1. Hist. A farm furnished with all the necessities for husbandry, such as a barn, granary, and stables; esp., an outlying farm that belonged to a religious establishment or a feudal lord. 2. (cap.) A social, educational, and political organization, formally called the National Grange of the Patrons of Husbandry, that informs its members about agriculture-related legislation and proposals, and represents farm interests in lobbying government. • The Grange was formed in 1867 and soon became the foundation of the Granger Movement, a 19th-century political force that protested economic abuses that increased farmers' costs while forcing down prices for agricultural products. Movement followers (called Grangers) controlled several Midwest state legislatures and passed Granger laws that set maximum rates for railroads, warehouses, and elevators. Railroads and other interested parties challenged the constitutionality of these laws in what have become known as the Granger Cases.

GRANGER CASES

Granger Cases (grayn-j<<schwa>>r). Six U.S. Supreme Court decisions that affirmed the government's right to regulate fees charged by common carriers, warehouses, and grain elevators. • The cases, decided in 1876, arose out of grangers' (i.e., farmers') frustration with the inflated prices they were paying to store and transport their agricultural products. Several state legislatures passed statutes regulating the rates. The affected businesses sued to have the statutes overturned on grounds that they violated the Commerce Clause and the Due Process Clause of the 14th Amendment. The Court rejected these claims, holding that the activities involved affected the public interest and were therefore subject to the government's regulatory authority. See GRANGE(2).

GRANT

grant,n.1. An agreement that creates a right of any description other than the one held by the grantor. • Examples include leases, easements, charges, patents, franchises, powers, and licenses. 2. The formal transfer of real prop-erty. [Cases: Deeds 3. C.J.S. Deeds §§ 1–8.] 3. The document by which a transfer is effected; esp., DEED. 4. The property or property right so transferred.

community grant.A grant of real property made by a government (or sometimes by an individual) for communal use, to be held in common with no right to sell. • A community grant may set out specific, communal uses for the property, such as for grazing animals or a playground. Cf. private grant.

escheat grant.A government's grant of escheated land to a new owner. — Also termed escheat patent.

imperfect grant. 1. A grant that requires the grantor to do something before the title passes to another. Cf. perfect grant. 2. A grant that does not convey all rights and complete title against both private persons and government, so that the granting person or political authority may later disavow the grant. See Paschal v. Perex, 7 Tex. 368 (1851).

inclusive grant.A deed or grant that describes the boundaries of the land conveyed and excepts certain parcels within those boundaries from the conveyance, usu. because those parcels of land are owned or claimed by others. — Also termed inclusive deed.

office grant.A grant made by a legal officer because the owner is either unwilling or unable to execute a deed to pass title, as in the case of a tax deed. See tax deed under DEED.

perfect grant.A grant for which the grantor has done everything required to pass a complete title, and the grantee has done everything required to receive and enjoy the property in fee. Cf. imperfect grant (1).

private grant. A grant of real property made to an individual for his or her private use, including the right to sell it. • Private grants made by a government are often found in the chains of title for land outside the original 13 states, esp. in former Spanish and Mexican possessions. Cf. community grant.

5.Int'l law. SUBSIDY(1).

grant, vb. 1. To give or confer (something), with or without compensation <the parents granted the car to their daughter on her 16th birthday>. 2. To formally transfer (real property) by deed or other writing <the Lewisons granted the townhouse to the Bufords>. [Cases: Deeds 3. C.J.S. Deeds §§ 1–8.] 3. To permit or agree to <the press secretary granted the reporter access to the Oval Office>. 4. To approve, warrant, or order (a request, motion, etc.) <the court granted the continuance>. 5.Int'l law. SUBSIDY(1).

GRANTBACK

grantback, n. A license-agreement provision requiring the licensee to assign or license back to the licensor any improvements that the licensee might make to a patent or other proprietary right. [Cases: Patents 213. C.J.S. Patents § 351.]

GRANT DEED

GRANT-IN-AID

grant-in-aid. 1. A sum of money given by a governmental agency to a person or institution for a specific purpose; esp., federal funding for a state public program. [Cases: United States 82(2).] 2.Hist. AID(1).

GRANTING CLAUSE

granting clause. The words that transfer an interest in a deed or other instrument, esp. an oil-and-gas lease. • In an oil-and-gas lease, the granting clause typically specifies the rights transferred, the uses permitted, and the substances covered by the lease. [Cases: Deeds 28–37; Mines and Minerals 73, 73.1. C.J.S. Deeds §§ 19, 34–38, 40–42, 44–53; Mines and Minerals §§ 233, 238, 240–246, 265, 291, 442.]

GRANT OF RIGHTS

grant of rights. Copyright. A copyright owner's prepublication assignment to the publisher of all rights in exchange for an advance on royalties or other payment.

GRANT TO USES

grant to uses.Hist. A conveyance of legal title to real property to one person for the benefit of another. • If, for example, A conveyed land to B and his heirs to the use of C and his heirs, B — the feoffee to uses — acquired seisin in and had possession of the land and was considered the legal owner. C — the cestui que use — was considered the equitable owner of the land and was entitled to the land's rents, profits, and benefits. Because the cestui que use did not have seisin in the land, he was not subject to feudal payments. From the 13th century forward, the grant to uses was an increasingly popular mode of conveyance. See CESTUI QUE USE; STATUTE OF USES; USE(4).

GRASS HEARTH

grass hearth.Hist. A tenant's customary service, consisting of the tenant's bringing his plow to the lord's land and plowing it for one day.

GRASSUM

grassum (gras-<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] Scots law. 1. An additional lease payment made in anticipation of or in addition to rent. Pl. grassums.2.GRESSUME.

“Grassum; an anticipation of rent in a gross or lump sum .... In questions with singular successors there is no limitation of the power to take grassums, only the rent must not be thereby diminished so as to be altogether elusory. In regard, however, to lands under entail, the heir in possession must administer the estate secundum bonum et aequum, taking no more of the annually accruing rents and profits than he leaves to descend to his successors. Hence, grassums, as being, in effect, anticipations of the future rents, to the prejudice of succeeding heirs, are held to be struck at by the prohibition against alienation." William Bell, Bell's Dictionary and Digest of the Laws of Scotland 492 (George Watson ed., 7th ed. 1890).

gratia mandatarii (gray-shee-<<schwa>> man-d<<schwa>>-tair-ee-I). [Latin] Hist. For the sake of the mandatory. • The phrase appeared in reference to the irrevocability of a mandate given solely for the mandatory's benefit.

"Gratia mandatarii .... In the general case, a mandate, being for the benefit of the mandant, may be recalled by him at pleasure. Mandates, however, which are granted solely for the sake (or advantage) of the mandatory, such as the mandate contained in the registration clause of a deed, whereby the granter gives authority for its registration, are not revocable." John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 237 (4th ed. 1894).

GREAT LAKES RULE

Great Lakes rule. Maritime law. The statutory provision that an admiralty litigant is entitled to a jury trial in a contract or tort action if the lawsuit arises from the operation of a commercial vessel on the Great Lakes or the navigable waters connecting them. See 28 USCA § 1873. [Cases: Admiralty 80. C.J.S. Admiralty §§ 216–218.]

“The most important distinction between the law and admiralty ‘sides’ of federal court is that trial by jury is guaranteed for law claims through the Seventh Amendment, but where the case is maintained as an admiralty claim the litigant has neither constitutional nor statutory right to a jury trial. The one exception is the 'Great Lakes Rule' ...." Frank L. Maraist, Admiralty in a Nutshell 338 (2d ed. 1988).

GUARANTEE

guarantee (gar-<<schwa>>n-tee), n.1. The assurance that a contract or legal act will be duly carried out. 2.GUARANTY(1).

“In practice, guarantee, n., is the usual term, seen often, for example, in the context of consumer warranties or other assurances of quality or performance. Guaranty, in contrast, is now used primarily in financial and banking contexts in the sense ”a promise to answer for the debt of another. “ Guaranty is now rarely seen in nonlegal writing, whether in G.B. or in the U.S.” Bryan A. Garner, A Dictionary of Modern Legal Usage 394 (2d ed. 1995).

3. Something given or existing as security, such as to fulfill a future engagement or a condition subsequent. [Cases: Guaranty 29.] 4. One to whom a guaranty is made. — Also spelled guaranty.

guarantee,vb.1. To assume a suretyship obligation; to agree to answer for a debt or default. 2. To promise that a contract or legal act will be duly carried out. 3. To give security to.

GUARANTEE CLAUSE

guarantee clause. 1. A provision in a contract, deed, or mortgage by which one person promises to pay the obligation of another. [Cases: Mortgages 111. C.J.S. Mortgages § 74.] 2. (cap.) U.S. Const. art. IV, § 4, under which the federal government ensures for the states both a republican form of government and protection from invasion or internal insurrection.

GUARANTEED ANNUAL WAGE PLAN

guaranteed annual wage plan.Labor law. A wage-payment method in which the employer agrees either to pay employees a predetermined minimum sum each year or to provide a minimum number of hours of employment each year. • A wide variety of guaranteed annual wage plans are used. For example, an employer may agree to pay employees wages for each week in the year, even though work may not be available at certain times of the year. The purpose of such a plan is to provide a stable labor force year-round.

GUARANTOR

guarantor. One who makes a guaranty or gives security for a debt. • While a surety's liability begins with that of the principal, a guarantor's liability does not begin until the principal debtor is in default. Cf. SURETY. [Cases: Guaranty 29, 33.]

“A guarantor either guarantees payment or collection, depending on the words used. ‘Payment guaranteed’ or equivalent words added to a signature mean the signer will pay the instrument if it is not paid when due without a need for the holder to resort to another party. ‘Collection guaranteed’ means resort must first be had to others.” Fred H. Miller & Alvin C. Harrell, The Law of Modern Payment Systems § 5.02, at 195 (2003).

guarantor of collectibility. One who guarantees a debtor's solvency and is under a duty to pay only if the creditor is unable to collect from the principal debtor after exhausting all legal remedies, including demand, suit, judgment, and any supplementary proceedings. [Cases: Guaranty 33, 45, 77(2).]

guarantor of payment. One who guarantees payment of a negotiable instrument when it is due without the holder first seeking payment from another party. • A guarantor of payment is liable only if “payment guaranteed” or equivalent words are added to the guarantor's indorsement. [Cases: Guaranty 35, 45, 77.]

GUARANTOR TRUST

guaranty (gar-*<<schwa>>*n-tee), n.1. A promise to answer for the payment of some debt, or the performance of some duty, in case of the failure of another who is liable in the first instance. • The term is most common in finance and banking contexts. While a warranty relates to things (not persons), is not collateral, and need not be in writing, a guaranty is an undertaking that a person will pay or do some act, is collateral to the duty of the primary obligor, and must be in writing. On the spelling of guaranty vs. guarantee, see the quotation at GUARANTEE(2). — Also termed guaranty contract. [Cases: Guaranty 1.]

“Both guaranty and warranty are undertakings by one party to another to indemnify the party assured against some possible default or defect. But a guaranty relates to the future, as a collateral promise designed to protect the promisee from loss in case another fails to perform his duty. A warranty relates to the present or past, and is an independent promise designed to protect the promisee from loss in the event that the facts warranted are not as the promisor states them to be when the contract is made. A warranty is broken as soon as it is made if the facts are not as represented, and is enforceable though oral; whereas a guaranty is not breached until a future default occurs, and is unenforceable unless in writing.” Laurence P. Simpson, Handbook on the Law of Suretyship 23 (1950).

“A transaction of guaranty involves at least three parties: a promisor, a creditor (the person to whom the promise is made), and a debtor — although at the time the promise is made, the person denominated the ‘creditor’ need not have extended the credit to the person denominated as the ‘debtor.’ The usual guaranty situation arises when the promisor makes a promise to the creditor either as to the solvency of the debtor or as to the payment of the debt.” 38 Am. Jur. 2d Guaranty § 1, at 996 (1968).

absolute guaranty. 1. An unqualified promise that the principal will pay or perform. 2. A guarantor’s contractual promise to perform some act for the creditor — such as paying money or delivering property — if the principal debtor defaults.

conditional guaranty.A guaranty that requires the performance of some condition by the creditor before the guarantor will become liable. [Cases: Guaranty 42.]

contingent guaranty.A guaranty in which the guarantor will not be liable unless a specified event occurs.

continuing guaranty.A guaranty that governs a course of dealing for an indefinite time or by a succession of credits. — Also termed open guaranty. [Cases: Guaranty 38.]

general guaranty. 1. A guaranty addressed to no specific person, so that anyone who acts on it can enforce it. 2. A guaranty for the principal’s default on obligations that the principal undertakes with anyone.

guaranty of collection.A guaranty that is conditioned on the creditor’s having first exhausted legal remedies against the principal debtor before suing the guarantor. See guarantor of collectibility under GUARANTOR.

guaranty of payment.A guaranty that is not conditioned on the creditor’s exhausting legal remedies against the principal debtor before suing the guarantor. See guarantor of payment under GUARANTOR.

irrevocable guaranty (i-rev-schwa-k*schwa*-b*schwa*l). A guaranty that cannot be terminated unless the other parties consent. [Cases: Guaranty 24.]

limited guaranty.An agreement to answer for a debt arising from a single transaction. — Also termed noncon-tinuing guaranty.

revocable guaranty. A guaranty that the guarantor may terminate without any other party's consent. [Cases: Guaranty 24.]

special guaranty. 1. A guaranty addressed to a particular person or group of persons, who are the only ones who can enforce it. [Cases: Guaranty 29, 32.] 2. A guaranty that names a definite person as obligee and that can be accepted only by the person named.

specific guaranty. A guaranty of a single debt or obligation.

GUARDIAN

guardian,n.1. One who has the legal authority and duty to care for another's person or property, esp. because of the other's infancy, incapacity, or disability. • A guardian may be appointed either for all purposes or for a specific purpose. — Abbr. gdn. — Also termed custodian. See CONSERVATOR. Cf. WARD(1). [Cases: Guardian and Ward 1; Mental Health 101. C.J.S. Insane Persons §§ 108, 110, 143.]

chancery guardian (chan-s<<schwa>>r-ee). A guardian appointed by a court of chancery to manage both the person and the estate of the ward. [Cases: Guardian and Ward 10, 17, 36.]

domestic guardian.A guardian appointed in the state in which the ward is domiciled.

foreign guardian.A guardian appointed by a court in a state other than the one in which the ward is domiciled. • A foreign guardian cares for the ward's property that is located in the state of appointment. [Cases: Guardian and Ward 166; Mental Health 194.]

general guardian.A guardian who has general care and control of the ward's person and estate. [Cases: Guardian and Ward 29, 36; Mental Health 495. C.J.S. Insane Persons §§ 271–273.]

guardian ad litem (ad II-tem or- t<<schwa>>m). A guardian, usu. a lawyer, appointed by the court to appear in a lawsuit on behalf of an incompetent or minor party. — Abbr. GAL. — Also termed special advocate; special guardian; law guardian. Cf. NEXT FRIEND; attorney ad litem under ATTORNEY. [Cases: Infants 76, 205; Mental Health 485. C.J.S. Infants §§ 51–52, 62, 64–67, 222; Insane Persons § 264.]

“[I]t is necessary to determine whether the lawyer has been appointed as a guardian ad litem (GAL) charged with representing the child's best interests, or as an advocate, serving as counsel to the child .... From the distinction between guardian and advocate flow a series of important consequences, including such matters as whether the attorney may file motions and examine witnesses, whether the attorney may file a report with the court, and whether the attorney may testify. Moreover, in most jurisdictions a GAL has an absolute quasi-judicial immunity for lawsuits for negligence .... Although a non-lawyer cannot serve as counsel to the child, such an individual might be a GAL or ‘special advocate’ in some states. Courts have struggled to clarify these roles, and define how children's representatives may participate in different types of proceedings.” Homer H. Clark Jr. & Ann Laquer Estin, Domestic Relations: Cases and Problems 1078 (6th ed. 2000).

guardian by custom.Hist. A person who, under local custom, had the right to act as a minor's guardian.

guardian by election.A guardian chosen by a ward who would otherwise be without one. [Cases: Guardian and Ward 19.]

guardian by estoppel.See quasi-guardian.

guardian by nature.Hist. The parental guardian of an heir apparent who has not yet reached the age of 21. • Although the common law made the father the guardian by nature and the mother only after the father's death, most states have given both parents equal rights of guardianship over their children (see, e.g., N.Y. Dom. Rel. Law § 81). — Also termed natural guardian. [Cases:

Guardian and Ward 4.]

guardian by nurture.Hist. The parental guardian of a child who is not the heir apparent, lasting until the child reaches the age of 14. — Also termed guardian for nurture.

“There are also guardians for nurture, which are, of course, the father or mother, till the infant attains the age of fourteen years and, in default of father or mother, the ordinary usually assigns some discreet persons to take care of the infant's personal estate, and to provide for his maintenance and education.” 1 William Blackstone, Com-mentaries on the Laws of England 449 (1765).

guardian by statute.See statutory guardian.

guardian de son tort (d<<schwa>> sawn [or son] tor[t]). See quasi-guardian.

guardian for nurture.See guardian by nurture.

guardian in chivalry.Hist. A guardian who, by virtue of knight's service, had custody of the body and lands of a male heir under 21 or a female heir under 14. • This type of guardian had no accountability for profits.

guardian in socage.New York law. A guardian for a child who has acquired lands by descent. • A guardian is usu. a relative who could not possibly inherit from the child. This type of guardianship applies to both the person and the property of the child and, historically, lasted only until the child was 14, when the child was allowed to select a guardian; now it lasts until the child reaches age 18 or is emancipated.

guardian of property.See guardian of the estate.

guardian of the estate.A guardian responsible for taking care of the property of someone who is incapable of caring for his or her own property because of infancy, incapacity, or disability. — Also termed guardian of property.

guardian of the person.A guardian responsible for taking care of someone who is incapable of caring for himself or herself because of infancy, incapacity, or disability.

law guardian.See guardian ad litem.

natural guardian. 1.Hist. The eldest son's father, until the son turned 21. 2. In the absence of statute, the father of a legitimate child until the child reaches the age of 21. • A father of illegitimate children may be appointed as their guardian upon the mother's death. 3. Most commonly and by statute, either the father or the mother of a minor child — each bearing the title simultaneously. • If one parent dies, the other is the natural guardian. [Cases: Parent and Child 1. C.J.S. Parent and Child §§ 1–12, 201.]

partial guardian.A guardian whose rights, duties, and powers are strictly limited to those specified in a court order.

quasi-guardian. A guardian who assumes that role without any authority. • Such a person may be made to account as guardian. — Also termed guardian by estoppel; guardian de son tort. [Cases:

---

special guardian. 1. A guardian who has special or limited powers over the ward's person or estate. • Examples are guardians who have custody of the estate but not of the person, those who have custody of the person but not of the estate, and guardians ad litem. — Also termed (in civil law) curator ad hoc. See CURATOR(2).2. See guardian ad litem. [Cases: Mental Health 495. C.J.S. Insane Persons §§ 271–273.]

standby guardian.A parent-designated guardian who is appointed to assume responsibility for a child at a future date if the child's parent becomes incapable of caring for the child but who does not divest the parent of custodial rights. • Several states have enacted statutes providing for a standby guardian in the case of a terminally ill single parent. A standby guardian assumes responsibility for a child during periods of the parent's incapacity and upon the parent's death.

statutory guardian.A guardian appointed by a court having special statutory jurisdiction. — Also termed guardian by statute.

successor guardian.An alternate guardian named in a parent's will against the possibility that the first nominee cannot or will not serve as guardian.

testamentary guardian.A guardian nominated by a parent's will for the person and property of a child until the latter reaches the age of majority.

2.Hist. A mesne lord who was entitled to treat an infant heir's lands for all practical purposes as the lord's own, enjoying fully their use and whatever profits they yielded. • At the end of the guardianship, when the heir reached majority, no accounting was owed by the mesne lord.

GUARDIAN OF THE POOR

guardian of the poor.Hist. A person in charge of the relief and maintenance of the poor in a parish. • Guardians of the poor administered poor-relief funds raised under the Poor Relief Act of 1601. • The function is now performed by local authorities.

GUARDIAN OF THE SPIRITUALITIES

guardian of the spiritualities.Eccles. law. A person who exercises the spiritual and ecclesiastical jurisdiction of a diocese during a vacancy in the see or the absence of the bishop.

GUARDIAN OF THE TEMPORALITIES

guardian of the temporalities.Eccles. law. The person to whom custody of the secular possessions of a vacant see or abbey is committed by the Crown. • Temporalities (secular possessions) are the land, revenue, and tene-ments that archbishops and bishops have had annexed to their sees.

GUARDIANSHIP

guardianship. 1. The fiduciary relationship between a guardian and a ward or other incapacitated person, whereby the guardian assumes the power to make decisions about the ward's person or property. • A guardianship is almost always an involuntary procedure imposed by the state on the ward. Cf. CONSERVATOR; INTERDICTION(2). 2. The duties and responsibilities of a guardian. — Also termed GUARDAGE.

ancillary guardianship. A subservient and subsidiary guardianship in a state other than that in which guardianship is originally granted.

guardianship of the estate. A guardianship in which the guardian can make decisions only about matters regarding the ward's assets and property.

guardianship of the person. A guardianship in which the guardian is authorized to make all significant decisions affecting the ward's well-being, including the ward's physical custody, education, health, activities, personal relationships, and general welfare.

plenary guardianship. A guardianship in which the guardian can make decisions about both the ward's estate and the ward's person.

standby guardianship. A guardianship in which a parent designates a guardian to assume responsibility for a child at a future date, if the child's parent becomes incapable of caring for the child, but without divesting the parent of custodial rights.

HABEAS CORPORA JURATORUM

habeas corpora juratorum (hay-bee-*<<schwa>>s kor-p<<schwa>>r-<<schwa>>* juur-<<schwa>>-tor-*<<schwa>>*m). [Law Latin “that you have the bodies of the jurors”] Hist. A writ commanding the sheriff to bring in jurors and, if necessary, to take their lands and goods as security to ensure their attendance in court for a trial setting. • This writ issued from the Court of Common Pleas and served the same purpose as a distringas juratores in the King's Bench. The writ was abolished in 1852.

HABEAS CORPUS

habeas corpus (hay-bee-*<<schwa>>s kor-p<<schwa>>*s). [Law Latin “that you have the body”] A writ employed to bring a person before a court, most frequently to ensure that the party's imprisonment or detention is not illegal (habeas corpus ad subjiciendum). • In addition to being used to test the legality of an arrest or commitment, the writ may be used to obtain review of (1) the regularity of the extradition process, (2) the right to or amount of bail, or (3) the jurisdiction of a court that has imposed a criminal sentence. — Abbr. H.C. — Sometimes shortened to habeas. — Also termed writ of habeas corpus; Great Writ. [Cases: Habeas Corpus 201.]

“The writ of habeas corpus, by which the legal authority under which a person may be detained can be challenged, is of immemorial antiquity. After a checkered career in which it was involved in the struggles between the common-law courts and the Courts of Chancery and the Star Chamber, as well as in the conflicts between Parliament and the crown, the protection of the writ was firmly written into English law by the Habeas Corpus Act of 1679. Today it is said to be ‘perhaps the most important writ known to the constitutional law of England ....’ ” Charles Alan Wright, The Law of Federal Courts § 53, at 350 (5th ed. 1994) (quoting Secretary of State for Home Affairs v. O'Brien, [1923] A.C. 603, 609).

habeas corpus ad deliberandum et recipiendum (hay-bee-*<<schwa>>s kor-p<<schwa>>s ad di-lib-<<schwa>>-ran-d<<schwa>>m et ri-sip-ee-en-d<<schwa>>*m). [Law Latin “that you have the body to consider and receive”] Hist. A writ used to remove a person for trial from one county to the county where the person allegedly committed the offense. Cf. EXTRADITION.

A writ used in civil cases to remove the case, and also the body of the defendant, from an inferior court to a superior court. — Also termed habeas corpus cum causa. See CERTIORARI.

habeas corpus ad prosequendum (hay-bee-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s kor-p⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s ad prahs-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-kwen-d⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m). [Law Latin “that you have the body to prosecute”] Hist. A writ used in criminal cases to bring before a court a prisoner to be tried on charges other than those for which the prisoner is currently being confined.

habeas corpus ad respondendum (hay-bee-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s kor-p⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s ad ree-spon-den-d⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m). [Law Latin “that you have the body to respond”] Hist. A writ used in civil cases to remove a person from one court's custody into that of another court, in which the person may then be sued.

habeas corpus ad satisfaciendum (hay-bee-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s kor-p⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s ad sat-is-fay-shee-en-d⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m). [Law Latin “that you have the body to make amends”] In England, a writ used to bring a prisoner against whom a judgment has been entered to some superior court so that the plaintiff can proceed to execute that judgment.

habeas corpus ad subjiciendum (hay-bee-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s kor-p⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s ad s⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-b-jis-ee-en-d⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m). [Law Latin “that you have the body to submit to”] A writ directed to someone detaining another person and commanding that the detainee be brought to court. — Usu. shortened to habeas corpus. [Cases: Habeas Corpus 201.]

habeas corpus ad testificandum (hay-bee-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s kor-p⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s ad tes-ti-fi-kan-d⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m). [Law Latin “that you have the body to testify”] Hist. A writ used in civil and criminal cases to bring a prisoner to court to testify. [Cases: Witnesses 18. C.J.S. Witnesses §§ 65–66.]

habeas corpus cum causa. See habeas corpus ad faciendum et recipiendum.

HABEAS CORPUS ACT

Habeas Corpus Act. 1. One of the four great charters of English liberty (31 Car. 2 (1679)), securing to English subjects speedy relief from all unlawful imprisonments. • The other three great charters are Magna Carta, the Petition of Right (3 Car. 1 (1628)), and the Bill of Rights (1 Wm. & M. (1689)). The Habeas Corpus Act does not apply in Scotland; the corresponding statute is the Criminal Procedure Act of 1701, ch. 6. 2. A statute deriving ultimately from the English statute and enacted in the United States as a constitutional guarantee of personal liberty. [Cases: Habeas Corpus 201–913.]

HABENDUM CLAUSE

habendum clause (h⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-ben-d⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m). 1. The part of an instrument, such as a deed or will, that defines the extent of the interest being granted and any conditions affecting the grant. • The introductory words to the clause are ordinarily to have and to hold. — Also termed to-have-and-to-hold clause. [Cases: Deeds 120. C.J.S. Deeds §§ 36, 231–236, 253–260, 262, 268, 270–274, 276–278.] 2.Oil & gas. The provision in an oil-and-gas lease defining how long the interest granted to the lessee will extend. • Modern oil-and-gas leases typically provide for a primary term — a fixed number of years during which the lessee has no obligation to develop the premises — and a secondary term (for “so long thereafter as oil and gas produced”) once development takes place. Most jurisdictions require production of paying quantities to keep the lease in effect. — Also termed term clause. [Cases: Mines and Minerals 73.5. C.J.S. Mines and Minerals §§ 241, 247, 253–254.] — Often shortened to habendum.

“This part of the deed was originally used to determine the interest granted, or to lessen, enlarge, explain or qualify the premises. But it cannot perform the office of divesting the estate already vested by the deed; for it is void if it be repugnant to the estate granted. It has degenerated into a mere useless form; and the premises now contain the specification of the estate granted, and the deed becomes effectual without any habendum. If, however, the premises should be merely descriptive, and no estate mentioned, then the habendum becomes efficient to declare the intention; and it will rebut any implication arising from the silence of the premises.” 4 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law *468 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

HABENDUM ET TENENDUM

habendum et tenendum (h<<schwa>>-ben-d<<schwa>>m et t<<schwa>>-nen-d<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] Hist. To have and to hold. • This formal phrase appeared in land deeds and defined the estate or interest being transferred. See HABENDUM CLAUSE ; TENENDUM.

HABENTES HOMINES

HADLEY V. BAXENDALE RULE

Hadley v. Baxendale rule.Contracts. The principle that consequential damages will be awarded for breach of contract only if it was foreseeable at the time of contracting that this type of damage would result from the breach.Hadley v. Baxendale, 9 Exch. 341 (1854). • Hadley v. Baxendale is best known for its impact on a nonbreaching party's ability to recover consequential damages, but the case also confirmed the principle that the nonbreaching party may recover damages that arise naturally from the breach. See foreseeable damages under DAMAGES. [Cases: Damages 23. C.J.S. Damages §§ 28–33.]

“The rationale of the decision appears in Baron Alderson's noted statement of what came to be known as the two rules of Hadley v. Baxendale. The first rule was that the injured party may recover damages for loss that ‘may fairly and reasonably be considered [as] arising naturally, i.e., according to the usual course of things, from such breach of contract itself.’ ... The second and more significant rule went to recovery of damages for loss other than that ‘arising naturally’ — to recovery of what have come to be known as ‘consequential’ damages.... By introducing this requirement of ‘contemplation’ for the recovery of consequential damages, the court imposed an important new limitation on the scope of recovery that juries could allow for breach of contract. The result was to impose a more severe limitation on the recovery of damages for breach of contract than that applicable to actions in tort or for breach of warranty, in which substantial or proximate cause is the test.” E. Allan Farnsworth, Contracts § 12.14, at 822–23 (3d ed. 1999).

HAGUE TRIBUNAL

Hague Tribunal. Int'l law. A permanent court of arbitration established by the Hague Peace Conference of 1899 to facilitate immediate recourse to arbitration to settle international differences. • The court was given jurisdiction over all arbitration cases, unless the parties agreed to institute a special tribunal. An international bureau was likewise established to serve as a registry for the court and to issue communications about the court's meetings. The court is “permanent” only in the sense that there is a permanent list of members from whom arbitrators in a given case are selected. Apart from making minor changes in the court, the Second Hague Conference of 1907 provided that, of the two arbitrators appointed by each party, only one should be a national of the appointing state. [Cases: International Law 10.45. C.J.S. International Law §§ 59–65.]

HAND FORMULA

Hand formula.A balancing test for determining whether conduct has created an unreasonable risk of harm, first formulated by Judge Learned Hand in United States v. Carroll Towing Co., 159 F.2d 169 (2d Cir. 1947). • Under this test, an actor is negligent if the burden of taking adequate precautions against the harm is outweighed by the probable gravity of the harm multiplied by the probability that the harm will occur. [Cases: Negligence 215.C.J.S. Negligence §§ 32–33, 195–196.]

“The legal standard applicable to most unintentional tort cases is that of negligence, defined by Judge Learned Hand as follows: the defendant is guilty of negligence if the loss caused by the accident, multiplied by the probability of the accident's occurring, exceeds the burden of the precautions that the defendant might have taken to avert it. This is an economic test.... Although the Hand formula is of relatively recent origin, the method that it capsulizes has been the basic one used to determine negligence ever since negligence was first adopted as the standard to govern accident cases.” Richard A. Posner, Economic Analysis of Law § 6.2, at 122–23 (2d ed. 1977).

possible loss of children into foster care or — in extreme cases — the termination of parental rights. [Cases: Infants 203. C.J.S. Infants §§ 51–52, 62, 64–67.]

omnibus hearing.Criminal procedure. A hearing designed to bring judicial oversight over criminal cases at an early stage to make certain that the cases are being handled expeditiously and properly. • At an omnibus hearing, the court is primarily interested in ensuring that discovery is being conducted properly, that any necessary evidentiary hearings have been scheduled, and that all issues ripe for decision have been decided.

permanency hearing.Family law. Under the Adoption and Safe Families Act, a judicial proceeding to determine the future, permanent status of a child in foster care. • Under the Act, the term permanency hearing replaces the term disposition hearing. The permanency hearing must occur within 12 months of a child's being placed in foster care. The purpose of the hearing is to determine the final direction of the case, whether that means going forward with termination proceedings or continuing plans for family reunification. — Also termed permanency-planning hearing.

preliminary hearing.See PRELIMINARY HEARING.

preliminary protective hearing.See shelter hearing.

presentence hearing.See PRESENTENCE HEARING.

pretrial hearing.See PRETRIAL CONFERENCE.

probable-cause hearing.See shelter hearing.

public hearing.A hearing that, within reasonable limits, is open to anyone who wishes to observe. • Such a hearing is often characterized by the right to appear and present evidence in a case before an impartial tribunal. [Cases: Administrative Law and Procedure 473. C.J.S. Public Administrative Law and Procedure §§ 136, 138–139.]

reaffirmation hearing.See REAFFIRMATION HEARING.

review hearing.Family law. After a finding of child abuse or neglect, a hearing to assess the progress in the case plan. See CASE PLAN.

revocation hearing.Criminal procedure. A hearing held to determine whether a parolee should be returned to prison for violating the terms of parole. [Cases: Pardon and Parole 85. C.J.S. Pardon and Parole §§ 75, 79–80.]

sentencing hearing.See PRESENTENCE HEARING.

shelter hearing.Family law. A hearing shortly after the state's removal of a child for suspected abuse or neglect. • The hearing is generally held within 24 to 72 hours after the removal. The purpose of the hearing is to determine whether the state has adequate cause to maintain the children in protective care. — Also termed shelter-care hearing; continued-custody hearing; preliminary protective hearing; probable-cause hearing; detention hearing; dependency hearing.

suppression hearing.Criminal procedure. A pretrial hearing in which a criminal defendant seeks to prevent the introduction of evidence alleged to have been seized illegally. [Cases: Criminal Law 394.6. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 794.]

termination-of-parental-rights hearing.Family law. A trial or court proceeding, usu. initiated by a state agency, that seeks to sever the legal ties between a parent and child, usu. so that the child can be adopted. • The standard of proof in a termination-of-parental-rights hearing is clear and convincing evidence. Santosky v. Kramer, 455 U.S. 745, 102 S.Ct. 1388 (1982). — Often shortened to termination hearing. [Cases: Infants 203. C.J.S. Infants §§ 51–52, 62, 64–67.]

transfer hearing.Criminal procedure. In a juvenile-court case, a hearing to determine whether the case should be transferred to adult criminal court where the juvenile will be tried as an adult. • Every state, as well as the District of Columbia, has a transfer statute. The United States Supreme Court defined the due-process requirements for transfer hearings in Kent v. United States, 383 U.S. 541, 86 S.Ct. 1045 (1966). — Also termed certification hearing; waiver hearing; fitness hearing. See TRANSFER STATUTE; MANDATORY WAIVER; STATUTORY EXCLUSION.

trial-type hearing.See ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEEDING.

uncontested hearing.A hearing in which either (1) the parties are in agreement as to all matters before the court, or (2) one of the parties has failed to answer the lawsuit.

unfair hearing.A hearing that is not conducted in accordance with due process, as when the defendant is denied the opportunity to prepare or consult with counsel. [Cases: Constitutional Law 251.6. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 968, 1165–1166, 1168–1169.]

Wade hearing.See WADE HEARING.

waiver hearing.See transfer hearing.

HEARING EXAMINER

hearing examiner.See ADMINISTRATIVE-LAW JUDGE.

HEARING OFFICER

hearing officer. 1.ADMINISTRATIVE-LAW JUDGE. 2. See judicial officer (3) under OFFICER.

HEARSAY

hearsay. 1. Traditionally, testimony that is given by a witness who relates not what he or she knows personally, but what others have said, and that is therefore dependent on the credibility of someone other than the witness. • Such testimony is generally inadmissible under the rules of evidence. 2. In federal law, a statement (either a verbal assertion or nonverbal assertive conduct), other than one made by the declarant while testifying at the trial or hearing, offered in evidence to prove the truth of the matter asserted.Fed. R. Evid. 801(c). — Also termed hearsay evidence; secondhand evidence. Cf. original evidence under EVIDENCE. [Cases: Criminal Law 419; Evidence 314–324. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 856; Evidence §§ 227–228, 234, 259–266, 268–284, 319, 505–506.]

double hearsay.A hearsay statement that contains further hearsay statements within it, none of which is admissible unless exceptions to the rule against hearsay can be applied to each level <the double hearsay was the investigation's report stating that Amy admitted to running the red light>.Fed. R. Evid. 805. — Also termed multiple hearsay; hearsay within hearsay. [Cases: Criminal Law 419(13); Evidence 314–324.]

HEARSAY EXCEPTION

hearsay exception.Any of several deviations from the hearsay rule, allowing the admission of otherwise inadmissible statements because the circumstances surrounding the statements provide a basis for considering the statements reliable.

tender-years hearsay exception.A hearsay exception for an out-of-court statement by a child ten years of age or younger, usu. describing an act of physical or sexual abuse, when the child is unavailable to testify and the court determines that the time, content, and circumstances of the statement make it reliable.

HEARSAY RULE

hearsay rule.The rule that no assertion offered as testimony can be received unless it is or has been open to test by cross-examination or an opportunity for cross-examination, except as provided otherwise by the rules of evidence, by court rules, or by statute. • The chief reasons for the rule are that out-of-court statements amounting to hearsay are not made under oath and are not subject to cross-examination. Fed. R. Evid. 802. Rule 803 provides 23 explicit exceptions to the hearsay rule, regardless of whether the out-of-court declarant is available to testify, and Rule 804 provides five more exceptions for situations in which the declarant is unavailable to testify. [Cases: Criminal Law 419; Evidence 314–324. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 856; Evidence §§ 227–228, 234, 259–266, 268–284, 319, 505–506.]

“[T]he great hearsay rule ... is a fundamental rule of safety, but one overenforced and abused, — the spoiled child of the family, — proudest scion of our jury-trial rules of evidence, but so petted and indulged that it has become a nuisance and an obstruction to speedy and efficient trials.” John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 238 (1935).

HEARSAY WITHIN HEARSAY

hearsay within hearsay.See double hearsay under HEARSAY.

HEARTBALM STATUTE

heartbalm statute.A state law that abolishes the rights of action for monetary damages as solace for the emotional trauma occasioned by a loss of love and relationship. • The abolished rights of action include alienation of affections, breach of promise to marry, criminal conversation, and seduction of a person over the legal age of consent. Many states today have enacted heartbalm statutes primarily because of the highly speculative nature of the injury and the potential for abusive prosecution, as well as the difficulties of determining the cause of a loss. The terminology in this field is somewhat confusing, since a heartbalm statute abolishes lawsuits that were known as heartbalm suits; some scholars therefore call the abolitionary statutes anti-heartbalm statutes.

But the prevailing term is heartbalm statute. — Also written heart-balm statute. — Also termed heartbalm act; anti-heartbalm statute; anti-heartbalm act. [Cases: Breach of Marriage Promise 14; Husband and Wife 323, 341; Seduction 3. C.J.S. Breach of Marriage Promise §§ 2, 12, 14.]

“Under the English common law, a broken engagement might be followed by a lawsuit for breach of promise to marry .... [T]he action came to look more like a tort action, in which damages might be given for the injury to the plaintiff's feelings, health and reputation and for expenses such as costs incurred in preparing for a wedding. Widespread criticism of the suit for breach of promise to marry (as well as related tort actions including seduction and alienation of affections) led to the passage of ‘heart balm’ statutes abolishing these claims in many jurisdictions in the United States beginning in the 1930's.” Homer H. Clark Jr. & Ann Laquer Estin, Domestic Relations: Cases and Problems 47 (6th ed. 2000).

HEARTH MONEY

hearth money.Hist.1.A tax of two shillings levied on every fireplace in England (14 Car. 2, ch. 10). • This extremely unpopular tax was enacted in 1662 during the reign of Charles II and abolished in 1688. — Also termed chimney money. 2.PETER-PENCE.

HEAT OF PASSION

heat of passion.Rage, terror, or furious hatred suddenly aroused by some immediate provocation, usu. another person's words or actions. • At common law, the heat of passion could serve as a mitigating circumstance that would reduce a murder charge to manslaughter. — Also termed sudden heat of passion; sudden heat; sudden passion; hot blood; sudden heat and passion; furor brevis. Cf. COLD BLOOD; COOL BLOOD. [Cases: Homicide 666, 828.]

“To constitute the heat of passion included in this requirement it is not necessary for the passion to be so extreme that the slayer does not know what he is doing at the time; but it must be so extreme that for the moment his action is being directed by passion rather than by reason.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 99 (3d ed. 1982).

HEAVY WORK

heavy work.See WORK(1).

HEBOTE

hebote. See HEREBOTE.

HEDAGIUM

hedagium (h<<schwa>>-day-jee-<<schwa>>m), n.[Law Latin] Hist. A toll or custom due at a wharf for landing goods. • The Crown exempted particular persons and societies from this toll.

HEDGE

hedge,vb. To use two compensating or offsetting transactions to ensure a position of breaking even; to make advance arrangements to safeguard oneself from loss on an investment, speculation, or bet, as when a buyer of commodities insures against unfavorable price changes by buying in advance at a fixed rate for later delivery. [Cases: Commodity Futures Trading Regulation 10. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 455, 470.] — hedging,n.

HEDGEBOTE

hedgebote. See HAYBOTE.

HEDGE FUND

HEINOUS

heinous (hay-n<<schwa>>s), adj. (Of a crime or its perpetrator) shockingly atrocious or odious. [Cases: Sentencing and Punishment 1684.] — heinousness, n.

HEIR

heir (air).1. A person who, under the laws of intestacy, is entitled to receive an intestate decedent's property. Cf. ANCESTOR. — Also termed legal heir; heir at law; lawful heir; heir general; legitimate heir. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 20–43; Wills 505. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 23–49; Wills § 947.]

“Laymen — and sometimes first-year law students taking exams — wrongly assume that one who receives real property by will is an heir. Technically, the word ‘heir’ is reserved for one who receives real property by action of the laws of intestacy, which operate today only in the absence of a valid will.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 14 n.32 (2d ed. 1984).

2. Loosely (in common-law jurisdictions), a person who inherits real or personal property, whether by will or by intestate succession. 3. Popularly, a person who has inherited or is in line to inherit great wealth. 4. Civil law. A person who succeeds to the rights and occupies the place of, or is entitled to succeed to the estate of, a decedent, whether by an act of the decedent or by operation of law. • The term heir under the civil law has a more expanded meaning than under the common law.

afterborn heir. One born after the death of an intestate from whom the heir is entitled to inherit. See afterborn child under CHILD. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 7.]

and his heirs. A term of art formerly required to transfer complete title (a fee simple absolute) to real estate <A conveys Blackacre to B and his heirs>. • This phrasing originated in the translation of a Law French phrase used in medieval grants (a lui et a ses heritiers pour toujours “to him and his heirs forever”). See FEE SIMPLE.

“The development reached its culmination when the words ‘and his heirs’ in a transfer were thought to give full durational ownership to the immediate transferee and no ownership whatever to his heirs. This notion was expressed in the statement that the words ‘and his heirs’ are words of limitation and not words of purchase. They indicate the durational character of an estate, not its taker.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 93–94 (2d ed. 1984).

apparent heir. See heir apparent.

beneficiary heir (ben-<<schwa>>-fish-ee-er-ee). Civil law. An heir who accepts an inheritance but whose liability for estate debts is limited to the value of the inheritance. — Also termed heir beneficiary. See BENEFIT OF INVENTORY. Cf. unconditional heir. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 119(2). C.J.S. Descent and Distribution § 116.]

bodily heir. See heir of the body.

coheir (koh-air). One of two or more persons to whom an inheritance descends.

collateral heir.One who is neither a direct descendant nor an ancestor of the decedent, but whose kinship is through a collateral line, such as a brother, sister, uncle, aunt, nephew, niece, or cousin. Cf. lineal heir. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 32, 37. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 40–41, 44–49.]

expectant heir.An heir who has a reversionary or future interest in property, or a chance of succeeding to it. — Also termed heir expectant. See REVERSION(1); REMAINDER(1). Cf. prospective heir. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 68. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution § 68.]

“The reader should be aware that one never has an ‘heir’ until one is dead; one merely has an ‘heir expectant’ .... Thus, to say that an heir ‘owns’ anything is conceptually difficult. But ... some unborn heirs may be entitled to the protection of the courts, and thus be said to have estates.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 26 n.13 (2d ed. 1984).

fideicommissary heir (fi-dee-I-kom-i-sair-ee).Roman & civil law.A beneficiary of property who succeeds the direct (original) heir. See FIDEICOMMISSUM.

fiduciary heir.Roman & civil law.An heir who takes property as a trustee on behalf of a person who is not eligible to receive the property immediately. See FIDEICOMMISSUM.

forced heir.Civil law. A person whom the testator or donor cannot disinherit because the law reserves part of the estate for that person. • In Louisiana, only descendants are forced heirs. La. Civ. Code art. 1493. See LEGITIME. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 23. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 30–31.]

heir apparent.An heir who is certain to inherit unless he or she dies first or is excluded by a valid will. — Also termed apparent heir. Cf. heir presumptive. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 68. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution § 68.]

“Heirs apparent are such, whose right of inheritance is indefeasible, provided they outlive the ancestor; as the eldest son or his issue, who must by the course of the common law be heirs to the father whenever he happens to die.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 208 (1766).

heir beneficiary.See beneficiary heir.

heir by adoption.A person who has been adopted by (and thus has become an heir to) the deceased. • By statute in most jurisdictions, an adopted child has the same right of succession to intestate property as a biological child unless the deceased clearly expresses a contrary intention. Jurisdictions differ on whether an adopted child may in addition inherit from his or her biological parents or family. The clear majority view, however, is that upon adoption, a complete severance of rights and obligations occurs and the child forfeits inheritance from all biological relatives.

heir by custom.Hist. In England, a person whose right of inheritance depends on a particular and local custom, such as gavelkind and borough English. See GAVELKIND; BOROUGH ENGLISH.

heir by devise. One to whom lands are given by will.

heir conventional. Civil law. One who takes a succession because of a contract or settlement entitling him or her to it.

heir expectant. See expectant heir.

heir in tail. See heir special.

heir male. Hist. The nearest male blood-relation of a decedent.

heir of the blood. An heir who succeeds to an estate because of consanguinity with the decedent, in either the ascending or descending line.

heir of the body. Archaic. A lineal descendant of the decedent, excluding a surviving spouse, adopted children, and collateral relations. • The term of art heirs of the body was formerly used to create a fee tail <A conveys Blackacre to B and the heirs of his body>. — Also termed bodily heir. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 25. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution § 32.]

heir presumptive. An heir who will inherit if the potential intestate dies immediately, but who may be excluded if another, more closely related heir is born. — Also termed presumptive heir. Cf. heir apparent. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 68. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution § 68.]

heirs and assigns. A term of art formerly required to create a fee simple <A conveys Blackacre to B and his heirs and assigns>.

heir special. Hist. An heir who receives property according to the nature of the estate held in fee tail. • Heirs special were said to receive property per formam doni (“by the form of the gift”). — Also termed heir in tail. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 29.]

joint heir. 1. A coheir. 2. A person who is or will be an heir to both of two designated persons at the death of the survivor of them, the word joint being here applied to the ancestors rather than the heirs.

known heir. An heir who is present to claim an inheritance, the extent of which depends on there being no closer relative.

laughing heir. Slang. An heir distant enough to feel no grief when a relative dies and leaves an inheritance (generally viewed as a windfall) to the heir.

lineal heir. A person who is either an ancestor or a descendant of the decedent, such as a parent or a child. Cf. collateral heir. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 25, 30. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 32, 37.]

natural heir. An heir by consanguinity as distinguished from an heir by adoption, or a statutory heir (such as a person's spouse). [Cases: Descent and Distribution 25. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution § 32.]

presumptive heir. See heir presumptive.

pretermitted heir (pree-t<<schwa>>r-mit-id). A child or spouse who has been omitted from a will, as when a testator makes a will naming his or her two children and then, sometime later, has two more children who are not mentioned in the will. — Also termed (more specif.) pretermitted child; pretermitted spouse. See PRETERMITTED-HEIR STATUTE. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 47. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 51–54.]

prospective heir. An heir who may inherit but may be excluded; an heir apparent or an heir presumptive. Cf. expectant heir. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 68. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution § 68.]

right heir. 1. Hist. The preferred heir to an estate tail, as distinguished from a general heir. • An estate tail would pass to a general heir only on the failure of the preferred heir and his line. 2. HEIR(1).

testamentary heir (tes-t<<schwa>>-men-t<<schwa>>-ree or -tree). Civil law. A person who is appointed heir in the decedent's will.

unconditional heir. Civil law. A person who chooses — expressly or tacitly — to inherit without any reservation or without making an inventory. Cf. beneficiary heir.

HEIRDOM

heirdom. The state of being an heir; succession by inheritance. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 20–43. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 23–49.]

heir general. See HEIR(1).

HEIR-HUNTER

heir-hunter. A person whose business is to track down missing heirs.

HEIRLESS ESTATE

heirless estate. See ESTATE(3).

HEIRLOOM

heirloom. 1. An item of personal property that by local custom, contrary to the usual legal rule, descends to the heir along with the inheritance, instead of passing to the executor or administrator of the last owner. • Traditional examples are an ancestor's suit of armor, family portraits, title deeds, and keys. Blackstone gave a false etymology that many have copied: “The termination, loom, is of Saxon origin; in which language it signifies a limb or member; so that an heirloom is nothing else, but a limb or member of the inheritance.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Law of England 427 (1766). In fact, loom derives from Old English geloma “utensil,” and loom meant “implement, tool.” 2. Popularly, a treasured possession of great sentimental value passed down through generations within a family.

“Heir-looms, strictly so called, are now very seldom to be met with. They may be defined to be such personal chattels as go, by force of a special custom, to the heir, along with the inheritance, and not to the executor or administrator of the last owner. The owner of an heir-loom cannot by his will bequeath the heir-loom, if he leave the land to descend to his heir; for in such a case the force of custom will prevail over the bequest, which, not coming into operation until after the decease of the owner, is too late to supersede the custom.... In popular language the term ‘heir-loom’ is generally applied to plate, pictures or articles of property which have been assigned by deed of settlement or bequeathed by will to trustees, in trust to permit the same to be used and enjoyed by the persons for the time being in possession, under the settlement or will, of the mansion-house in which the articles may be placed.” Joshua Williams, Principles of the Law of Personal Property 13–14 (11th ed. 1881).

HEIR PORTIONER

heir portioner. See PORTIONER.

HEIRSHIP

heirship. 1. The quality or condition of being an heir. 2. The relation between an ancestor and an heir. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 20–41. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 23–26, 29–49.]

HELL-OR-HIGH-WATER CLAUSE

hell-or-high-water clause. A clause in a personal-property lease requiring the lessee to continue to make full rent payments to the lessor even if the thing leased is unsuitable, defective, or destroyed. [Cases: Bailment 20. C.J.S. Bailments §§ 76–78.]

HELL-OR-HIGH-WATER RULE

hell-or-high-water rule. 1. The principle that a personal-property lessee must pay the full rent due, regardless of any claim against the lessor, unless the lessee proves unequal bargaining power or unconscionability. [Cases: Bailment 20. C.J.S. Bailments §§ 76–78.] 2. Insurance. The principle that an insured's automobile-liability policy will cover the insured while using a vehicle owned by another if the insured uses the vehicle in a manner within the scope of the permission granted. [Cases: Insurance 2662. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 928, 1049, 1673.]

hereditament (her-<<schwa>>-dit-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>nt or h<<schwa>>-red-i-t<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>nt).1. Any property that can be inherited; anything that passes by intestacy. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 8. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 9–12; Right of Privacy and Publicity§ 42.] 2. Real property; land. [Cases: Property 4. C.J.S. Property §§ 14–21, 23.]

corporeal hereditament (kor-por-ee-<<schwa>>l). A tangible item of property, such as land, a building, or a fixture. [Cases: Fixtures 1; Property 4. C.J.S. Property §§ 14–21, 23.]

incorporeal hereditament (in-kor-por-ee-<<schwa>>l). An intangible right in land, such as an easement. • The various types at common law were advowsons, annuities, commons, dignities, franchises, offices, pensions, rents, tithes, and ways.

“There are two quite distinct classes of incorporeal hereditaments: 1. Those which may ripen into corporeal hereditaments. Thus a grant to A for life with remainder to B in fee simple gave B an incorporeal hereditament which becomes corporeal after A's death. 2. Those which can never become corporeal hereditaments but are merely rights over the land of another, e.g., rentcharges.” Robert E. Megarry & M.P. Thompson, A Manual of the Law of Real Property 361 (6th ed. 1993).

HEREDITARY

hereditary,adj. Of or relating to inheritance; that descends from an ancestor to an heir.

HEREDITARY SUCCESSION

hereditary succession.See intestate succession under SUCCESSION(2).

HEREDITAS

hereditas (h<<schwa>>-red-i-tas), n.[Latin] 1.Roman law. An inheritance by universal succession to a decedent. • This succession applied whether the decedent died testate or intestate, and whether in trust (ex fideicommisso) for another or not. The comparable right under Praetorian law was bonorum possessio, possession of an inheritance that could be the basis of a right to succeed. 2.Hist. An estate transmissible by descent; an inheritance. — Also spelled haereditas.

hereditas damnosa (h<<schwa>>-red-i-tas dam-noh-s<<schwa>>). A burdensome inheritance; an inheritance whose debts exceed its assets.

hereditas jacens (h<<schwa>>-red-i-tas jay-senz). [Latin iaceo “to lie”] 1. Property belonging to an estate before an heir accepts it. • This term had a similar meaning at common law. See ABEYANCE(2).

“Hereditas jacens is the term applied to an inheritance which has not yet vested, an inheritance, that is to say, which has been ‘delata’ to a heres extraneus (i.e. voluntarius), but has not yet been acquired by him.” Rudolph Sohm, The Institutes: A Textbook of the History and System of Roman Private Law 512 (James Crawford Ledlie trans., 3d ed. 1907).

2.Hist. A decedent's estate that has no heir or legatee to take it; an escheated estate. — Also termed caduca. See ESCHEAT. 3.Hist. An inheritance without legal owner and thus open to the first occupant.

hereditas legitima (h<<schwa>>-red-i-tas l<<schwa>>-jit-i-m<<schwa>>). A succession or inheritance devolving by operation of law rather than by will. See INTESTACY.

hereditas luctuosa (h<<schwa>>-red-i-tas l<<schwa>>k-choo-oh-s<<schwa>>). A sad or mournful inheritance; one that disturbs the natural order of mortality (turbato ordine mortalitatis), as that of a parent inheriting a child's estate. • This term is more literary than legal. — Also termed tristis successio.

hereditas paterna (h<<schwa>>-red-i-tas p<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>-r-n<<schwa>>). [Latin] Hist. A succession that descends through the father.

hereditas testamentaria (h<<schwa>>-red-i-tas tes-t<<schwa>>-men-tair-ee-<< schwa>>). Testamentary inheritance; succession to an estate under a decedent's will.

HEREDITY

heredity. 1.Archaic. Intestate succession; the taking of an inheritance by common-law succession. 2. The genetic transmission of characteristics from a parent to a child; the biological law by which characteristics of a living being tend to repeat themselves in the being's descendants.

HEREOF

hereof,adv. Of this thing (such as a provision or document) <the conditions hereof are stated in section 3>.

HERES

heres (heer-eez), n.[Latin] Roman law. A successor to the rights and liabilities of a deceased person; an heir. • Because the heres succeeded to both the rights and the debts of the decedent, the office combined that of a modern executor with that of an heir at law. The institution of the heres was the essential characteristic of a testament; if this was not done, the instrument was called a codicillus. — Also spelled (in Law Latin) haeres. Pl. heredes (h<<schwa>>-ree-deez) or (for haeres) haeredes.

heres actu (ak-t[y]oo). [Law Latin] Hist. Heir by appointment.

heres astrarius (as-trair-ee-<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin “heir of the hearth”] An heir who has received, by conveyance, an ancestor's estate during the ancestor's lifetime.

heres de facto (di fak-toh). [Law Latin “heir from fact”] Hist.1.An heir whose status arises from the disseisin or other wrongful act of the heir's ancestor. See DISSEISIN. 2. An heir in fact, as distinguished from an heir by law (de jure).

heres ex asse (as-ee). [Latin “sole heir”] Roman law. An heir to the whole estate.

heres ex testamento (eks tes-t<<schwa>>-men-to). See heres factus.

heres extraneus (ek-stray-nee-<<schwa>>s). [Latin “extraneous heir”] Roman law. An external heir; one who had not been subject to the testator's power (potestas) and hence not bound to accept the inheritance. Pl. heredes extranei (h<<schwa>>-ree-deez ek-stray-nee-I).

heres factus (fak-t<<schwa>>s). [Latin “made heir”] An heir appointed by will; a testamentary heir. — Also termed heres ex testamento; heres institutus. Cf. heres natus.

heres fideicommissarius (fi-dee-I-kom-<<schwa>>-sair-ee-<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Roman law. The person for whose benefit an estate was given by will to a fiduciary heir. • This office corresponds loosely to the cestui que trust of the common law. Cf. heres fiduciarius.

heres fiduciarius (fi-d[y]oo-shee-air-ee-<<schwa>>s). [Latin “fiduciary heir”] Roman law. A person made heir by will, in trust for the benefit of another; an heir subject to a trust. Cf. heres fideicommissarius.

heres in mobilibus (heer-eez in moh-bil-i-b<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] Hist. Heir in movables.

heres institutus (in-sti-t[y]oo-t<<schwa>>s). See heres factus.

heres legitimus (l<<schwa>>-jit-i-m<<schwa>>s). [Latin "lawful heir"] Roman law. An heir entitled to succeed (on intestacy) by the laws of the Twelve Tables.

heres natus (nay-t<<schwa>>s). [Latin "heir by birth"] An heir by reason of birth; an heir at law or by intestacy. Cf. heres factus.

heres necessarius (nes-<<schwa>>-sair-ee-<<schwa>>s). [Latin "necessary heir"] Roman law. A slave freed on the testator's death and thus compelled to accept the inheritance.

heres rectus (rek-t<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] Hist. A right or proper heir.

heres suus (s[y]oo-<<schwa>>s). [Latin "one's own heir"] 1. A decedent's proper or natural heir; a lineal descendant of the deceased. 2. Roman law. A free person who was subject to the testator's power (potestas) but who could exercise full legal rights upon the testator's death.

heres suus et necessarius (s[y]oo-<<schwa>>s et nes-<<schwa>>-sair-ee-<<schwa>>s). [Latin "one's own and necessary heir"] A free person subject to the decedent's potestas. • These heirs were called necessary because they became heirs by law, not by the decedent's choice. But since this was also true of slaves, when named heirs in a will, the former class was designated suus et necessarius by way of distinction, the word suus denoting that the necessity arose from the relationship to the decedent.

ultimus heres (<<schwa>>l-ti-m<<schwa>>s). The last or remote heir; the lord.

HERESY

heresy (her-<<schwa>>-see), n.1. Opinion or doctrine contrary to (usu. Catholic) church dogma. [Cases: Religious Societies 28.] 2. Hist. In England, an offense against religion, consisting not in totally denying Christianity, but in publicly denying some of its essential doctrines; an opinion on divine subjects devised solely by human reason, openly taught, and obstinately maintained. • This offense is now subject only to ecclesiastical correction and is no longer punishable by the secular law.

HERIOT

heriot (her-ee-<<schwa>>t), n.[fr. Old English here “army” + geatwa “trappings”] Hist. A customary tribute of goods and chattels, payable to the lord of the fee on the tenant's death. • Heriot derives from an earlier feudal service consisting of military equipment returned to the lord on the tenant's death; over time it came to refer only to the chattel payment due at the tenant's death.

“We are told that the ancient heriot (heregeatu, military apparel) had at one time consisted of the horses and arms lent by the lord to his man which on the man's death were returned to the lord.... Turning to manorial surveys, we find it among the commonest of customs that when a tenant in villeinage dies, the lord shall have the best beast; sometimes a similar due is taken from the goods of the dead freeholder, and it is to these customary dues that the name ‘heriot’ permanently attaches itself.” 1 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 312, 317 (2d ed. 1898).

heriot custom.A heriot due by custom. • This term is used primarily to distinguish a heriot service from an ordinary heriot.

heriot service.A tribute arising from special reservation in a grant or lease of lands, and thus amounting to little more than rent.

High Court. 1. See HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE. 2. See HIGH COURT OF JUSTICIARY.

HIGH COURT OF ADMIRALTY

High Court of Admiralty. In England, a court exercising jurisdiction in matters relating to shipping, collision, and salvage cases. • The court dates from the 14th century, and much of its early history concerns prize and piracy cases. Its jurisdiction varied through the centuries, sometimes extending into criminal matters and other areas of law not related directly to maritime issues. The Judicature Acts of 1873–1875 merged the Court into the High Court as part of the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division. The Administration of Justice Act of 1970 established a new Admiralty Court as part of the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court. It is regulated by the Supreme Court Act of 1981. — Also termed Court of the Lord High Admiral; Court of Admiralty. Cf. ADMIRALTY(1).

“To the office of the Lord High Admiral (originally a naval official concerned with the command of the fleet and the suppression of piracy and wrecking) there was annexed a court which acquired a jurisdiction over civil cases of a maritime nature. Just how and when this happened is too cloudy and controversial for simple or even accurate summary, but by the time of Richard II (1377–1400) the admiral and vice-admiral were transacting enough judicial business to move Parliament to limit their jurisdiction by statute to ‘a thing done upon the sea,’ and in Tudor times the court was well established as a court of record, doing a large civil business. It slowly but surely took away most of their business from the local maritime courts in the port towns, and attracted the easily aroused jealousy of the common law courts, as well as the dislike of those who feared it as a prerogative court .... These factors resulted in the rather anticlimactic eclipse of the court for almost two centuries.” Grant Gilmore & Charles L. Black Jr., The Law of Admiralty § 1-4, at 9–10 (2d ed. 1975).

HIGH COURT OF CHIVALRY

High Court of Chivalry. Hist. A court of honor having jurisdiction over matters relating to deeds of arms and war, armorial insignia, and precedence. — Also termed Court of Chivalry; Court of Earl Marshal. See COURT OF HONOR.

“This Curia Marescalli, or High Court of Chivalry, was revived by James I as a court of honour, which not only tried the right to distinctions of honour and coat armour but also redressed affronts to honour such as slander. The slander jurisdiction was later denied, leaving it with a jurisdiction probably confined to disputes over armorial bearings, which are determined according to the law of arms. The court, which has only sat once since 1737, is the last English court to use the procedure of the civil law.” J.H. Baker, An Introduction to English Legal History 142 (3d ed. 1990).

HILARY RULES

Hilary Rules.Hist. A collection of English pleading rules designed to ease the strict pleading requirements of the special-pleading system, esp. by limiting the scope of the general issue in the formed actions and by forcing the defendant to set up affirmatively all matters other than a denial of the breach of duty or of the wrongful act. • Promulgated in England in the 1834 Hilary Term, these rules followed an 1828 initiative to examine procedural laws and other subjects and to report to Parliament changes that might be enacted. The rules had the unintended effect of extending the reach of strict-pleading requirements into new areas of law. Widespread dissatisfaction with the Hilary Rules led to the liberalization of the pleading system under the 1873–1875 Judicature Acts. — Formerly also termed New Rules.

“The failure of the Hilary Rules ... lay in their insistence on special pleading as it was understood late in the eighteenth century. That parties should plead precisely, and clarify as far as possible the issue between them, is one thing; that their endeavours to do so should be judged by the extremely artificial standards of the old system, was quite another.” Theodore F.T. Plucknett, A Concise History of the Common Law 416 (5th ed. 1956).

HILARY SITTINGS

Hilary sittings.In England, a term of court beginning on January 11 of each year and ending on the Wednesday before Easter. • The Hilary sittings were known as Hilary term until 1875. Cf. EASTER SITTINGS; MICHAELMAS SITTINGS; TRINITY SITTINGS.

Atlantic Refining Co.*, 327 F.2d 217 (5th Cir. 1964). [Cases: Mines and Minerals 78.7(2).]

HIMALAYA CLAUSE

Himalaya clause.Maritime law. A provision in a bill of lading extending the carrier's defenses and limitations under the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act to third parties, typically employees, agents, and independent contractors. • The Supreme Court has held that this type of clause must be strictly construed. Robert C. Herd & Co. v. Krawill Machinery Corp., 359 U.S. 297, 79 S.Ct. 766 (1959). See CARRIAGE OF GOODS BY SEA ACT. [Cases: Shipping 140(1). C.J.S. Shipping §§ 300–311.]

“The plaintiff was injured while a passenger on the cruise ship The Himalaya. She sued the master and the boatswain for their negligence because the carrier was contractually exempt from all liability. Because the contract did not have a ‘Himalaya clause,’ she succeeded. The carrier, having indemnified its employees, ultimately paid the damages. It thus lost its contractual exemption indirectly.” Michael J. Sturley, International Uniform Law in National Courts, 27 Va. J. Int'l L. 729, 740 n.101 (1987).

HOLDBACK

holdback,n. An amount withheld from the full payment of a contract pending the other party's completion of some obligation, esp. to ensure that a contractor finishes the work agreed on beforehand. • The terms of a holdback are typically expressed in the contract. The device gives the contractor an incentive to finish the work, and the other party security that the work will be finished. — hold back,vb.

HOLDER

holder. 1. A person who has legal possession of a negotiable instrument and is entitled to receive payment on it. [Cases: Bills and Notes 427(1).] 2. A person with legal possession of a document of title or an investment security. 3. A person who possesses or uses property.

HOLDER FOR VALUE

holder for value.A person who has given value in exchange for a negotiable instrument. • Under the UCC, examples of “giving value” include acquiring a security interest in the instrument and accepting the instrument in payment of an antecedent claim. UCC § 3-303(a). — Also termed bona fide holder for value. [Cases: Bills and Notes 352. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 185.]

HOLDER IN DUE COURSE

holder in due course.A person who in good faith has given value for a negotiable instrument that is complete and regular on its face, is not overdue, and, to the possessor's knowledge, has not been dishonored. • Under UCC § 3-302, a holder in due course takes the instrument free of all claims and personal defenses, but subject to real defenses. — Abbr. HDC; HIDC. — Also termed due-course holder. [Cases: Bills and Notes 327–384. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 4, 24, 28, 30, 33, 65, 142–147, 149–153, 157, 159, 169–201.]

HOLOGRAPH

holograph (hol-<<schwa>>-graf), n. A document (such as a will or deed) that is handwritten by its author. • The majority rule is that a holographic will need not be entirely handwritten — only the “material provisions” — to take into account the popular use of fill-in-the-blank will forms. This is also the position of the Uniform Probate Code. — Also termed olograph; autograph. Cf. ONOMASTIC; SYMBOLIC. [Cases: Wills 130–135. C.J.S. Wills §§ 317–327, 339, 341.] — holographic,adj.

HOLOGRAPHIC WILL

holographic will.See WILL.

HOLYMOTE

holymote. See HALLMOTE(4).

HOMAGE

homage (hom-ij). In feudal times, a ceremony that a new tenant performed for the lord to acknowledge the tenure. • This was the most honorable service that a free tenant might do for a lord. In the ceremony, kneeling before the lord, the tenant placed his hands between the lord's hands while saying, "I become your man from this day forward, of life and limb and earthly honor, and to you will be faithful and loyal, and bear you faith, for the tenements that I claim to hold of you, saving the faith that I owe unto our sovereign lord the king, so help me God."

"Homage is an oath of fidelity, acknowledging himself to be the lord's man: wherein the tenant must be ungirt, uncovered, kneel upon both knees, and hold both his hands together between the lord's hands sitting before him. This is to be done only to the lord himself." Sir Henry Finch, Law, or a Discourse Thereof 143 (1759).

homage ancestral (hom-ij an-ses-tr<<schwa>>l). [Law French] A type of homage in which a tenant and the tenant's ancestors have held immemorially of another by the service of homage. • This long-standing relationship bound the lord to warrant the title and to hold the tenant clear of all services to superior lords. — Also spelled homage auncestral (aw-mahzh on-se-stral).

homage liege (hom-ij leej). Homage due the sovereign alone as supreme lord, done without any saving or exception of the rights of other lords. — Also termed homagium ligium (h<<schwa>>-may-jee-<<schwa>>m II-jee-<<schwa>>m).

HOMAGE JURY

homage jury.See JURY.

HOMAGIO RESPECTUANDO

homagio respectuando (h<<schwa>>-may-jee-oh ri-spek-choo-an-doh), n.[Law Latin "homage to the respected"] Hist. A writ to the escheator commanding the delivery of seisin of lands to the heir of the king's tenant, even though the heir had not performed homage.

HOMAGIUM

homagium (h<<schwa>>-may-jee-<<schwa>>m), n.[Law Latin] A formal ceremony in which a feudal tenant acknowledged the tenure granted by a lord; HOMAGE.

homagium ligium.See homage liege under HOMAGE.

homagium planum (play-n<<schwa>>m), n.[Law Latin "plain homage"] Hist. A type of homage binding the homager to nothing more than fidelity, without obligation either of military service or of attendance in the superior's courts.

homagium reddere (red-<<schwa>>-ree), n.[Law Latin “to renounce homage”] Hist. The process, prescribed in feudal law by a set form and method, by which a vassal disowns and defies the lord.

homagium simplex (sim-pleks), n.[Law Latin “simple homage”] Hist. A type of homage that acknowledges tenure, while reserving the rights of other lords.

HOME OWNERS WARRANTY

Home Owners Warranty. A warranty and insurance program that, among other coverage, insures a new home for ten years against major structural defects. • The program was developed by the Home Owners Warranty Corporation, a subsidiary of the National Association of Home Builders. Builders often provide this type of coverage, and many states provide similar warranty protection by statute. — Abbr. HOW. — Also spelled Home Owners' Warranty. [Cases: Consumer Protection 8. C.J.S. Credit Reporting Agencies; Consumer Protection §§ 40–51, 64.]

HOME PORT

home port. See PORT.

HOME-PORT DOCTRINE

home-port doctrine. Maritime law. The rule mandating that a vessel engaged in interstate and foreign commerce is taxable only at its home port, usu. where the vessel is registered. [Cases: Taxation 98. C.J.S. Taxation §§ 153–157, 160, 283.]

HOME RULE

home rule. A state legislative provision or action allocating a measure of autonomy to a local government, conditional on its acceptance of certain terms. Cf. LOCAL OPTION. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 65. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 122, 140–141, 143.]

“Home rule in the United States was sometimes envisioned in its early days as giving the cities to whom such rule was granted full-fledged sovereignty over local affairs, thus bringing about dual state and local sovereignty along the national plan of federal and state governments. But such local sovereignty has never developed, nor have any clear-cut distinctions between state and local power.” Osborne M. Reynolds Jr., Handbook of Local Government Law § 35, at 96 (1982).

HOME-RULE CHARTER

home-rule charter. See CHARTER(2).

HOMESTALL

HOME STATE

home state.Family law. In an interstate child-custody dispute governed by the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, the state where a child has lived with a parent or a person acting as a parent for at least six consecutive months immediately before the proceeding. See home-state jurisdiction under JURISDICTION.

HOME-STATE JURISDICTION

home-state jurisdiction.See JURISDICTION.

HOMESTEAD

homestead. 1. The house, outbuildings, and adjoining land owned and occupied by a person or family as a residence. • As long as the homestead does not exceed in area or value the limits fixed by law, in most states it is exempt from forced sale for collection of a debt. — Also termed homestead estate. See HOMESTEAD LAW. [Cases: Homestead 58–89.]

business homestead.The premises on which a family's business is located. • In some states, business homesteads are exempt from execution or judicial sale for most kinds of debt. [Cases: Homestead 36.]

constitutional homestead.A homestead, along with its exemption from forced sale, conferred on the head of a household by a state constitution. — Also termed statutory homestead; pony homestead. [Cases: Homestead 3, 30.]

pony homestead.See constitutional homestead.

probate homestead.A homestead created by a probate court from a decedent's estate for the benefit of the decedent's surviving spouse and minor children. • Under most statutes providing for the creation of a probate homestead, it is exempt from forced sale for the collection of decedent's debts. The family can remain in the home at least until the youngest child reaches the age of majority. Many states allow the surviving spouse to live in the home for life. In a few states, such as Texas, the right to a probate homestead is constitutional. See family allowance, spousal allowance under ALLOWANCE; HOMESTEAD LAW. Cf. life estate under ESTATE(1). [Cases: Homestead 134–153.]

statutory homestead.See constitutional homestead.

2. A surviving spouse's right of occupying the family home for life. • In some states, the right is extended to other dependents of a decedent.

HOMESTEADER

homesteader. One who acquires or occupies a homestead. [Cases: Homestead 16–29; Public Lands 35. C.J.S. Public Lands § 43.]

HOMESTEAD ESTATE

homestead estate. See HOMESTEAD.

HOMESTEAD EXEMPTION

homestead exemption. See HOMESTEAD LAW.

HOMESTEAD-EXEMPTION STATUTE

homestead-exemption statute. See HOMESTEAD LAW.

HOMESTEAD LAW

homestead law. A statute exempting a homestead from execution or judicial sale for debt, unless all owners, usu. a husband and wife, have jointly mortgaged the property or otherwise subjected it to creditors' claims. — Also termed homestead exemption; homestead-exemption statute; homestead right. [Cases: Homestead 1, 118.]

“Almost all states also have legislative provisions, commonly referred to as homestead laws, designed to protect the family home from the reach of certain classes of creditors.... The protection afforded by an exemption statute is not absolute. A federal tax claim may be satisfied from ‘exempt property.’ A number of states make similar exceptions for state taxes, claims for alimony and child support, materialmen and mechanics' liens. By statute in most states, case law in others, purchase money mortgages and security interests are generally not affected by an exemption statute.” David G. Epstein & Steve H. Nickles, Consumer Law in a Nutshell 384–85 (2d ed. 1981).

HOMESTEAD RIGHT

homestead right. See HOMESTEAD LAW.

HOME-STUDY REPORT

home-study report. Family law. A summary of an investigation into a child's home, family environment, and background, usu. prepared by a social worker when a child has been removed from his or her home because of abuse or neglect, but also prepared after a similar investigation of the home of potential adoptive parents. — Often shortened to home study. — Also termed custody evaluation; social study.

HOME-STYLE EXEMPTION

home-style exemption. Copyright. A provision in the U.S. Copyright Act allowing for the public airing of radio and television broadcasts in public-accommodation establishments, such as bars and restaurants, with impunity from liability for infringement. • The exemption is so named because the equipment used for the airing must be a single receiver of the type typically found in homes. 17 USCA § 110(5). [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 67.1. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 51–52, 54.]

HOMICIDE

homicide (hom-*<<schwa>>-s*Id), n.1. The killing of one person by another. [Cases: Homicide 520.] 2. A person who kills another. — homicidal, adj.

“The legal term for killing a man, whether lawfully or unlawfully, is ‘homicide.’ There is no crime of ‘homicide.’ Unlawful homicide at common law comprises the two crimes of murder and manslaughter. Other forms of unlawful homicide have been created by statute: certain new forms of manslaughter (homicide with diminished responsibility, and suicide pacts), infanticide, and causing death by dangerous driving.” Glanville Williams, Textbook of Criminal Law 204 (1978).

criminal homicide. 1. Homicide prohibited and punishable by law, such as murder or manslaughter. [Cases: Homicide 525, 656.] 2. The act of purposely, knowingly, recklessly, or negligently causing the death of another human being. Model Penal Code § 210.1.

“Criminal homicide is everywhere divided into categories that reflect the historical distinction in English law between murder and manslaughter. American statutory formations have varied the terminology and the precise classifications; many statutes create more than two forms of criminal homicide, for purposes of definition and/or punishment. These variations notwithstanding, it is usually possible to discern a category that corresponds to the common-law crime of murder, the paradigm of which is a deliberate killing without legal justification or excuse, and a category that corresponds to the common-law crime of manslaughter and comprises killings that either are committed in circumstances which substantially mitigate their intentional aspect or are not intentional. In common speech as well as in the law, murder refers to the most serious criminal homicides, and manslaughter to those that may be serious crimes for which a substantial penalty is imposed but lack the special gravity of murder.” Lloyd L. Weinreb, “Homicide: Legal Aspects,” in 2 Encyclopedia of Crime and Justice 855, 857 (Sanford H. Kadish ed., 1983).

criminally negligent homicide. See negligent homicide.

culpable homicide. Scots law. A wrongful act that results in a person's death but does not amount to murder. Cf. MANSLAUGHTER.

excusable homicide. 1. Homicide resulting from a person's lawful act, committed without intention to harm another. [Cases: Homicide 750.] 2. See justifiable homicide (1).

felonious homicide. Homicide committed unlawfully, without legal justification or excuse. • This is the category into which murder and manslaughter fall.

homicide by abuse. Homicide in which the perpetrator, under circumstances showing an extreme indifference to human life, causes the death of the perpetrator's dependent — usu. a child or mentally retarded person.

homicide by misadventure. See ACCIDENTAL KILLING.

homicide per infortunium (p<<schwa>>r in-for-t[y]oo-nee-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “homicide by misfortune”] The unintentional killing of another while engaged in a lawful act; ACCIDENTAL KILLING. See PER INFORTUNIUM. [Cases: Homicide 762.]

innocent homicide. Homicide that does not involve criminal guilt.

justifiable homicide. 1. The killing of another in self-defense when faced with the danger of death or serious bodily injury. — Also termed excusable homicide. See SELF-DEFENSE(1). 2. A killing mandated or permitted by the law, such as execution for a capital crime or killing to prevent a crime or a criminal's escape. [Cases: Homicide 752–756.]

“It should be noted that a justifiable homicide is not criminal, since it is a killing which the law has either commanded or permitted: the actus in such a case is not legally punishable, and therefore we may perhaps say that it is an actus of killing which is not reus. As we shall see in most cases of justifiable homicide the killing is intentional, and therefore the mental element of criminal responsibility is clearly present: but there is no crime committed since there is no actus reus.” J.W. Cecil Turner, Kenny's Outlines of Criminal Law 109 (16th ed. 1952).

“English lawyers once distinguished between ‘excusable’ homicide (e.g. accidental non-negligent killing) and ‘justifiable’ homicide (e.g. killing in self-defence or in the arrest of a felon) and different legal consequences once attached to these two forms of homicide. To the modern lawyer this distinction has no longer any legal importance: he would simply consider both kinds of homicide to be cases where some element, negative or positive, required in the full definition of criminal homicide (murder or manslaughter) was lacking. But the distinction between these two different ways in which actions may fail to constitute a criminal offence is still of great moral importance. Killing in self-defence is an exception to a general rule making killing punishable; it is admitted because the policy or aims which in general justify the punishment of killing (e.g. protection of human life) do not include cases such as this. In the case of ‘justification’ what is done is regarded as something which the law does not condemn, or even welcomes.” H.L.A. Hart, “Prolegomenon to the Principles of Punishment,” in Punishment and Responsibility 1, 13 (1968).

negligent homicide. Homicide resulting from the careless performance of a legal or illegal act in which the danger of death is apparent; the killing of a human being by criminal negligence. — Also termed criminally negligent homicide. See criminal negligence under NEGLIGENCE. [Cases: Homicide 708.]

“There is no common-law offense known as ‘negligent homicide.’ As a matter of the common law of crimes any killing below the grade of manslaughter is innocent homicide. Some of the new penal codes have a classification scheme which (omitting degrees or other variations) divides criminal homicide into murder, manslaughter and criminally negligent homicide — or simply negligent homicide. For the most part, however, this has been achieved by removing from manslaughter the offense of homicide by criminal negligence and using this to constitute the newly named offense. Thus, though there are a few exceptions, most states will have no homicide offense which would be below common-law manslaughter.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 116–17 (3d ed. 1982).

nonfelonious homicide. A killing that is legally either excusable or justifiable. See excusable homicide; justifiable homicide.

reckless homicide. The unlawful killing of another person with conscious indifference toward that person's life. Cf. MANSLAUGHTER. [Cases: Homicide 709.]

vehicular homicide. The killing of another person by one's unlawful or negligent operation of a motor vehicle. — Also termed automobile homicide. [Cases: Automobiles 342.1. C.J.S. Motor Vehicles §§ 1456–1458, 1460–1466, 1468–1469, 1471–1476, 1478–1485.]

victim-precipitated homicide. 1. See suicide-by-cop under SUICIDE. 2. A killing provoked by the victim who consciously intended to die at the hands of another person. • This term applies loosely to any assisted suicide. Unlike most types of homicide, the victim bears some of the responsibility for causing his or her own death.

willful homicide. The act of intentionally causing a person's death, with or without legal justification.

HOMICIDIUM

homicidium (hom-<<schwa>>-sI-dee-<<schwa>>m), n. [Latin “felling of a person”] Homicide.

homicidium ex casu (eks kay-s[y]oo). Homicide by accident. See ACCIDENTAL KILLING.

homicidium ex justitia (eks j*<<schwa>>s-tish-ee-*<<schwa>>). Homicide in the administration of justice, or in the carrying out of a legal sentence. See justifiable homicide (2) under HOMICIDE.

homicidium ex necessitate (eks n*<<schwa>>-ses-i-tay-tee*). Homicide from inevitable necessity, such as for the protection of one's person or property. See justifiable homicide (1) under HOMICIDE.

homicidium ex voluntate (eks vol-<<schwa>>n-tay-tee). Voluntary or willful homicide. See criminal homicide under HOMICIDE.

homicidium in rixa (in rik-s*<<schwa>>*). [Law Latin] Scots law. Homicide committed in the course of a brawl.

“Homicidium in rixa .... Such crime amounts only to culpable homicide, and the punishment being in the discretion of the judge, varies according to the particular circumstances of each case. It is not punished capitally, because this crime lacks the previous malice essential to the crime of murder.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 244 (4th ed. 1894).

HOTCHPOT

hotchpot (hoch-pot), n.1. The blending of items of property to secure equality of division, esp. as practiced either in cases of divorce or in cases in which advancements of an intestate's property must be made up to the estate by a contribution or by an accounting. — Also termed hotchpotch; hotchpot rule. Cf. RAPPORT à SUCCESSION. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 108; Wills 757, 762. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution § 106; Wills §§ 1774–1776, 1789.]

“[T]he distribution of the property among the children is subject to what is called the hotchpot rule, the purpose of which is to ensure that the shares of all the children shall be equal. The rule is that any money or property which the intestate has paid to, or settled on, or covenanted to settle on a child, either by way of advancement or in view of marriage, shall be brought into account and deducted from the share which is payable to that child under the intestacy." G.C. Cheshire, Modern Law of Real Property 783–84 (3d ed. 1933).

HOUSEBREAKING

housebreaking. The crime of breaking into a dwelling or other secured building, with the intent to commit a felony inside; BURGLARY. • Burglary is now used more frequently than housebreaking. In England, for example, housebreaking was replaced in 1968 with statutory burglary, though the term is still used in Scots law. In some jurisdictions, housebreaking includes “breaking out” of a house that was entered without a breaking. [Cases: Burglary 1.C.J.S. Burglary §§ 2–5.]

“The oldest term for this purpose [i.e., of distinguishing between common-law burglary and its statutory enlargements], still encountered at times, is ‘housebreaking’; a more recent suggestion is ‘breaking and entering,’ and peace officers sometimes speak of a ‘breakin.’ ” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 270 (3d ed. 1982).

constructive housebreaking. A breaking made out by construction of law, as when a burglar gains entry by threat or fraud. — Also termed constructive breaking into a house. [Cases: Burglary 9. C.J.S. Burglary §§ 11–12, 16, 21–22.]

HOVERING ACT

hovering act. Int'l law. A statute applying to a coastal country's criminal jurisdiction over ships, and persons aboard those ships, when the ships are outside the country's territory.

“The notion of hovering acts evolved long before that of a belt of uniform width in the form of territorial waters. Great Britain's first anti-smuggling legislation to operate at a stated distance seaward was in 1719, applying to the master of any ship ‘found at anchor or hovering within two leagues from the shore.’ Later enactments extended this limit to three, then four, then eight leagues. A statute of 1794 gave power to seize and confiscate customable goods in vessels ‘found at anchor, or hovering’ inside specific straight lines drawn between lines on the British coasts, thus resembling the ‘King's Chambers’ of the Stuart era. In 1805 the British Parliament extended the seizure limit to 100 leagues (300 miles) from the coasts of Great Britain and Ireland in respect of vessels ‘belonging wholly or in part to His Majesty's subjects, or whereof one-half of the persons on board shall be subjects of His Majesty.’ Foreign-flag vessels could have fallen within this category. In the case of Le Louis (1817) 165 E.R. 1464, the British Admiralty judge Lord Stowell described these statutes as being permitted by ‘the common courtesy of nations for their convenience.’ ” Geoffrey Marston, “Hovering Acts,” in 2 Encyclopedia of Public International Law 884–85 (1995).

HUE AND CRY

hue and cry. Hist. 1. The public uproar that, at common law, a citizen was expected to initiate after discovering a crime. — Also termed vociferatio.

“Hue and Cry is the old Common Law mode of pursuing, ‘with horn and voice,’ persons suspected of felony, or having inflicted a wound from which death is likely to ensue.” 1 Joseph Chitty, A Practical Treatise on the Criminal Law 26 (2d ed. 1826).

“All were obliged to pursue the criminal when the hue and cry was raised. Neglect of these duties entailed an amercement of the individual, the township or the hundred. The sheriffs and the constables were under special obligations, as conservatores pacis, to fulfil these duties.” 1 William Holdsworth, A History of English Law 294 (7th ed. 1956).

2. The pursuit of a felon accompanying such an uproar. 3. A written proclamation for the capture of a felon.

landlord's hypothec. Scots law. The lessor's right of security for rent in articles, furniture, and equipment (other than tools of the tenant's trade) that the tenant brought onto the leased premises. • Unlike the English remedy of distress, the right of security is effected only by the lessor's application to the court for a decree of sequestration. Until 1880, a landlord could assert the lien against a tenant's crops and stock as well as personal property. See SEQUESTRATION FOR RENT.

mariner's hypothec. 1. A lien that a seaman, freighter, or repairer can assert against a ship for payment of wages or other sums due. 2. A shipowner's lien against the ship's cargo for the freight costs.

solicitor's hypothec. A legal agent's lien for costs in excess of the costs recovered from an opposing party. • The lien may also apply to the retention of some documents, such as title deeds, as security for a client's outstanding account.

hypotheca (hI-p<<schwa>>-thee-k<<schwa>> or hip-<<schwa>>-), n. [Latin fr. Greek] Roman law. A mortgage of property in which the debtor was allowed to keep, but not alienate, the property.

“Yet another mode of creating a security is possible, by which not merely the ownership of a thing but its possession also remains with the debtor. This is called by the Roman lawyers and their modern followers 'hypotheca.' Hypothecs may arise by the direct application of a rule of law, by judicial decision, or by agreement." Thomas E. Holland, The Elements of Jurisprudence 235 (13th ed. 1924).

HYPOTHECARIA ACTIO

IDEA–EXPRESSION DICHOTOMY

idea–expression dichotomy.Copyright. The fundamental rule that copyright law protects only specific expressions of an idea, not the idea itself. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 4.5. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property § 10.]

IDEM PER IDEM

idem per idem (I-dem p<<schwa>>r I-dem). [Latin] The same for the same. • This phrase refers to an illustration that adds nothing to a matter under consideration.

IDEM SONANS

idem sonans (I-dem soh-nanz), adj.[Latin] (Of words or names) sounding the same, regardless of spelling <the names Gene and Jean are idem sonans>. • In trademark law, the term designates a name that sounds close enough to a registered trademark to create confusion among consumers and infringe that mark, so the Steinway company was able to prevent a competitor from registering “Steinberg” for the name of its pianos.

“The names of parties should be correctly spelled, but misspelling which does not change the sound works no harm; it matters not how incorrectly names are spelled, if they are idem sonans (the same sound).” Edwin E. Bryant, The Law of Pleading Under the Codes of Civil Procedure 186 (2d ed. 1899).

idem sonans (I-dem soh-nanz), n.[Latin] A legal doctrine preventing a variant spelling of a name in a document from voiding the document if the misspelling is pronounced the same way as the true spelling. [Cases: Names 16.C.J.S. Names § 4.]

IDENTIFICATION OF GOODS

identification of goods.A process that enables a buyer to obtain an identifiable (and therefore insurable) interest in goods before taking possession from the seller. • The goods are identified in any manner agreed to by the parties. identify, vb. 1. To prove the identity of (a person or thing) <the witness identified the weapon>. 2. To look upon as being associated (with) <the plaintiff was identified with the environmental movement>. 3. To specify (certain goods) as the object of a contract <identify the appliances to the contract>. See IDENTIFICATION OF GOODS. [Cases: Sales 199, 208. C.J.S. Sales §§ 214–215, 217, 223–224.]

IDENTIFYING MATERIAL

identifying material. Copyright. A portion or representation of an entire work deposited with the U.S. Copyright Office. • A copyright registrant is required to deposit at least one complete copy of the work, and often two. If a trade secret would be disclosed by a deposit or if the work's nature (e.g., a holograph) makes deposit difficult, a substitution is acceptable. Common forms of identifying material are drawings, photocopies, and selected pages of computer-software programs and databases. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 50.10. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 38–39.]

IDENTIKIT

identikit. A collection of pictures of facial features, used by police to create a composite image of a suspect from witnesses' descriptions. • In Great Britain, the resulting image is called a photofit.

IDENTITATE NOMINIS

identitate nominis (I-den-ti-tay-tee nom-<<schwa>>-nis). See DE IDENTITATE NOMINIS .

IDENTITY

identity. 1. The identical nature of two or more things; esp., in patent law, the sameness in two devices of the function performed, the way it is performed, and the result achieved. • Under the doctrine of equivalents, infringement may be found even if the accused device is not identical to the claimed invention. See DOCTRINE OF EQUIVALENTS. [Cases: Patents 234–237. C.J.S. Patents §§ 414–415, 417–418, 425–426.] 2. Evidence. The authenticity of a person or thing. [Cases: Evidence 102. C.J.S. Evidence § 211.]

IDENTITY OF INTERESTS

identity of interests. Civil procedure. A relationship between two parties who are so close that suing one serves as notice to the other, so that the other may be joined in the suit. Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(c)(3). [Cases: Limitation of Actions 127. C.J.S. Limitations of Actions § 235.]

IDENTITY OF PARTIES

identity of parties. Civil procedure. A relationship between two parties who are so close that a judgment against one prevents later action against the other because of res judicata. [Cases: Judgment 624–631, 665–678.C.J.S. Judgments §§ 697, 706, 828–833, 835, 837–840, 842–861, 912.]

IDEO CONSIDERATUM EST

ideo consideratum est (I-dee-oh k<<schwa>>n-sid-<<schwa>>-ray-t<<schwa>>m est). [Latin] Hist. Therefore it is considered. • These words often prefaced a judgment at common law, and came to refer to the judgment itself. Cf. CONSIDERATUM EST PER CURIAM.

IDEOLOGICAL AGGRESSION

ideological aggression. 1. See hostile propaganda under PROPAGANDA. 2. See subversive propaganda under PROPAGANDA.

IDES

ides (Idz), n. [fr. Latin idus] (pl.) Roman law. In the Roman calendar, the ninth day after the Nones, being the 15th of March, May, July, and October, and the 13th of the other months. • In the calculation of the day, Nones is the first day counted. Cf. CALENDIS; NONES.

IDIOCHIRA

idiochira (id-ee-oh-kI-r<<schwa>>). [Greek “one's own hand”] Hist. An instrument executed privately, rather than before a public officer; esp., a deed written in one's own hand.

IDIOCY

idiocy. Archaic. The condition of a person who, from birth, has never had any glimmering of reasoning or intellectual faculties. — Also termed idiopathic insanity.

IDIOT

idiot. A person afflicted with profound mental retardation. • This term has largely fallen out of use in modern legal and medical contexts. Cf. IMBECILE.

IDIOTA

idiota (id-ee-oh-t<<schwa>>). [Latin] Civil law. 1. An unlearned, simple person. 2. A private person; one not in public office.

IDIOTA INQUIRENDO

ID NON AGEBATUR

id non agebatur (id non aj-⟨schwa⟩-bay-t⟨schwa⟩r). [Law Latin] Scots law. That was not done.

“The meaning of the words as they occur here is this: the deceased, when he valued the subjects, did not intend to depreciate their value for the purpose of benefiting the executor, — this was not in his consideration at all — this was not what he did (id non agebatur) by the valuation; therefore, the executor is bound for the true value of the subjects.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 245 (4th ed. 1894).

IDONEIS ARGUMENTIS

idoneis argumentis (I-doh-nee-is ahr-gyoo-men-tis). [Law Latin] Hist. By suitable arguments.

IDONEITAS

idoneitas (I-doh-nee-⟨schwa⟩-tas). [fr. Latin idoneus “suitable”] Hist. A person's ability or fitness. — Also termed idoneity.

IDONEUM SE FACERE; IDONEARE SE

idoneum se facere; idoneare se (I-doh-nee-⟨schwa⟩m see fay-s⟨schwa⟩-ree; I-doh-nee-air-ee see). [Law Latin “to make oneself sufficient; to clear oneself”] Hist. To purge oneself, by oath, of a crime that one is accused of committing.

IDONEUS

idoneus (I-doh-nee-⟨schwa⟩s), adj.[Latin] Roman law. (Of a person or thing) appropriate or suitable. • A responsible or solvent man, for example, was known as an idoneus homo, while a pledge of sufficient security was termed idonea cautio. — Also spelled (in English) idoneous.

IDP

IGNIS JUDICIUM

ignis judicium (ig-nis joo-dish-ee-*<<schwa>>*m). [Latin] Hist. Trial by fire. See ordeal by fire under ORDEAL.

IGNOMINY

ignominy (ig-n*<<schwa>>*-min-ee). Public disgrace or dishonor. — ignominious,adj.

IGNORAMUS

ignoramus (ig-n*<<schwa>>-ray-m<<schwa>>*s). [Law Latin] Hist. We do not know. • This notation, when written on a bill of indictment, indicated the grand jury's rejection of the bill. See NOT FOUND; NO BILL. Cf. TRUE BILL.

“When the grand jury have heard the evidence, if they think it a groundless accusation, they used formerly to endorse on the back of the bill, ‘ignoramus;’ or, we know nothing of it; intimating, that, though the facts might possibly be true, that truth did not appear to them: but now they assert in English, more absolutely, ‘not a true bill’; and then the party is discharged without farther answer.” 4 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 301 (1769).

IGNORANTIA

ignorantia (ig-n*<<schwa>>-ran-shee-<<schwa>>*). [Latin] Ignorance; esp., ignorance of the law.

“Ignorantia.... Divided in the civil law, into ignorantia facti (ignorance of fact) and ignorantia juris (ignorance of law). Lord Coke accepts this division....” 2 Alexander M. Burrill, A Law Dictionary and Glossary 40 (2d ed. 1867).

IGNORANTIA FACTI

ignorantia facti (ig-n*<<schwa>>-ran-shee-<<schwa>>* fak-tI). [Latin] Ignorance of fact.

IGNORANTIA FACTI EXCUSAT

ignorantia facti excusat (ig-n*<<schwa>>-ran-shee-<<schwa>>* fak-tI ek-skyoo-sat or -zat). [Latin] Ignorance of fact is an excuse; whatever is done under a mistaken impression of a material fact is excused or provides grounds for relief. • This maxim refers to the principle that acts done and contracts made under mistake or ignorance of a material fact are voidable. [Cases: Criminal Law 33. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 93.]

“ ‘Ignorantia facti excusat,’ however, is obviously too sweeping even for a general statement of law, because it is clear (to mention only one point for the moment) that if a certain deed would constitute exactly the same crime under either of two factual situations, it will be no excuse that one was mistaken for the other.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 1044 (3d ed. 1982).

IGNORANTIA JURIS

ignorantia juris (ig-n*<<schwa>>-ran-shee-<<schwa>>* joor-is). [Latin] Ignorance of law. • Under Roman law, this type of ignorance was less likely than ignorantia facti to excuse mistaken conduct, except in the case of minors and people, such as women, under some legal disability.

IGNORANTIA JURIS NON EXCUSAT

ignorantia juris non excusat (ig-n<<schwa>>-ran-shee-<<schwa>> joor-is non ek-skyoo-sat or -zat). [Latin] Lack of knowledge about a legal requirement or prohibition is never an excuse to a criminal charge. • In English, the idea is commonly rendered ignorance of the law is no excuse. — Often shortened to ignorantia juris. — Also termed ignorantia juris neminem excusat (ignorance of the law excuses no one); ignorantia legis non excusat; ignorantia juris haud excusat. [Cases: Criminal Law 32. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 56, 94.]

“Almost the only knowledge of law possessed by many people is that ignorance of it is no excuse (ignorantia juris non excusat). This maxim was originally formulated at a time when the list of crimes, broadly speaking, represented current morality (mala in se), but we now have many other crimes that are the result of administrative or social regulation (mala prohibita), which are equally governed by the maxim. The rule is, then, that whereas ignorance of fact can excuse, to the extent that it negatives mens rea or fault, ignorance of the law generally does not.” Glanville Williams, Textbook of Criminal Law 405 (1978).

IGNORATIO ELENCHI

ignoratio elenchi (ig-n<<schwa>>-ray-shee-oh e-leng-ki or ig-n<<schwa>>-rah-tee-oh i-leng-kee). [Law Latin “ignorance of the conclusion to be proved”] An advocate's misunderstanding of an opponent's position, manifested by an argument that fails to address the opponent's point; the overlooking of an opponent's counterargument. • This fallacy of logic often involves an advocate's trying to prove something that is immaterial to the point to be decided.

IGNORE

ignore, vb. 1. To refuse to notice, recognize, or consider. 2. (Of a grand jury) to reject (an indictment) as groundless; to no-bill (a charge).

IGNORING

ignoring, n. Family law. A parent's or caregiver's pattern of depriving a child of essential intellectual or emotional stimulation or of otherwise stifling emotional growth and intellectual development, essentially by being unavailable. Cf. ISOLATING; REJECTING.

ILLEGAL CONTRACT

illegal contract.See CONTRACT.

ILLEGAL ENTRY

illegal entry. 1.Criminal law. The unlawful act of going into a building with the intent to commit a crime. • In some jurisdictions, illegal entry is a lesser included offense of burglary. [Cases: Burglary 9. C.J.S. Burglary §§ 11–12, 16, 21–22.] 2.Immigration. The unauthorized entrance of an alien into the United States by arriving at the wrong time or place, by evading inspection, or by fraud.

ILLEGAL INTEREST

illegal interest.See USURY.

ILLEGALITY

illegality,n.1. An act that is not authorized by law. 2. The state of not being legally authorized.

“A contract made ultra vires is void; but not [strictly speaking] on the ground of illegality. Lord Cairns ... takes exception to the use of the term ‘illegality,’ pointing out that it is not the object of the contracting parties, but the incapacity of one of them, that avoids the contract.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 190 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

“It must not be thought that illegality in the law of contract is co-terminous with illegality in the criminal law, for a contract may be illegal without involving any breach of the criminal law at all.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 257 (3d ed. 1981).

3. The state or condition of being unlawful. • The affirmative defense of illegality must be expressly set forth in the response to the opponent's pleading. Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(c).

ILLUSORY PROMISE

illusory promise. See PROMISE.

ILLUSORY TENANT

illusory tenant. See TENANT.

ILLUSORY-TRANSFER DOCTRINE

illusory-transfer doctrine. The rule that the law disregards an inter vivos gift over which the donor retains so much control that there is no good-faith intent to relinquish the transferred property. • The illusory-transfer doctrine is usu. applied to inter vivos trusts in which the settlor retains an excessive control or an interest — for instance, one in which the settlor retains the income for life, the power to revoke, and substantial managerial powers. The leading case on this doctrine is Newman v. Dore, 9 N.E.2d 966 (N.Y. 1937). See colorable transfer under TRANSFER.

IMF

IMF. abbr. INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND.

IMITATION

imitation. Trademarks. An item that so resembles a trademarked item as to be likely to induce the belief that it is genuine. See SIMILARITY. [Cases: Trade Regulation 339. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 84, 86.]

“The law of trade marks is of recent origin, and may be comprehended in the proposition that a dealer ‘has a property in his trade mark.’ The ownership is allowed to him, that he may have the exclusive benefit of the reputation which his skill has given to articles made by him, and that no other person may be able to sell to the public, as his, that which is not his. An imitation of his mark, with partial differences such as the public would not observe, does him the same harm as an entire counterfeit. If the wholesale buyer, who is most conversant with the marks, is not misled, but the small retailer or the consumer is, the injury is the same in law, and differs only in degree.” Clark v. Clark, 25 Barb. 76 (N.Y. 1857).

“It is no excuse that one using the trade-marks of another informs his dealers of the imitation, for succeeding sellers may not make similar disclosures.” James Kent, 2 Commentaries on American Law *372 n.8 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

IMLS

IMLS.abbr.INSTITUTE OF MUSEUM AND LIBRARY SERVICES.

IMMATERIAL

immaterial,adj. (Of evidence) tending to prove some fact that is not properly at issue; lacking any logical connection with the consequential facts. Cf. IRRELEVANT. [Cases: Evidence 143. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 197, 201–204.] — immateriality,n.

“The rules of substantive law and of pleading are what determine immateriality; and if the probandum is immaterial, of course no evidence to prove it is wanted.” John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 37 (1935).

IMMEDIATE CONTROL

immediate control.Criminal procedure. 1. The area within an arrestee's reach. • A police officer may conduct a warrantless search of this area to ensure the officer's safety and to prevent the arrestee from destroying evidence. [Cases: Arrest 71.1(5); Automobiles 349.5(10). C.J.S. Arrest §§ 70–71.] 2. Vehicular control that is close enough to allow the driver to instantly govern the vehicle's movements. • A driver's failure to maintain immediate control over the vehicle could be evidence of negligence.

IMMEDIATE DEATH

immediate death.See DEATH.

IMMEDIATE DESCENT

immediate descent.See DESCENT.

IMMEDIATE FAMILY

immediate family.See FAMILY.

IMMEDIATE INTENT

immediate intent.See INTENT(1).

IMMEDIATELY-APPARENT REQUIREMENT

immediately-apparent requirement.Criminal procedure. The principle that a police officer must have probable cause to believe that an item is contraband before seizing it. • This plain-view exception to the warrant requirement was first announced in Coolidge v. New Hampshire, 403 U.S. 443, 91 S.Ct. 2022 (1971).

“An object may not be seized from a car merely because the police plain view of it was lawfully acquired; there must be probable cause that the object is a fruit, instrumentality or evidence of crime. And under the ‘immediately apparent’ requirement of Coolidge v. New Hampshire, this probable cause must be determined without examination of the object other than is justified by the purpose underlying police entry of the vehicle.” Wayne R. LaFave & Jerold H. Israel, Criminal Procedure § 3.7, at 201 (2d ed. 1992).

IMMEDIATELY HARMFUL BEHAVIOR

immediately harmful behavior. See HARMFUL BEHAVIOR.

IMMISCERE

immiscere (i-mis-<<schwa>>-ree), vb.[Latin] Roman law. To mix or mingle with; to meddle with. • This term took on the figurative sense of meddling in another's affairs (e.g., acting as if one were an heir), for which a person could be held accountable.

IMMOBILIA

immobilia (im-<<schwa>>-bil-ee-<<schwa>>). Immovables. — Also termed res immobiles (reez i-moh-b-<<schwa>>-leez).

IMMOBILIA SITUM SEQUUNTUR

immobilia situm sequuntur (im-<<schwa>>-bil-ee-<<schwa>>* sI-t-<<schwa>>m s-<<schwa>>-kw-<<schwa>>n-t-<<schwa>>r*). [Latin] Immovable things follow their site. • This* principle means that immovables are governed by the law of the place where they are fixed. — Sometimes shortened to immobilia situm.

IMMOBILIS

immobilis, (i-moh-b<<schwa>>-lis, )adj.[Latin] Immovable.

IMMOBILIZE

immobilize,vb. To make immobile; esp., to turn (movable property) into immovable property or to turn (circulating capital) into fixed capital.

IMMORAL CONSIDERATION

immoral consideration.See CONSIDERATION(1).

IMMORAL CONTRACT

immoral contract.See CONTRACT.

IMMORAL SUBJECT MATTER

immoral subject matter. 1.Patents. Inventions that do not have a socially beneficial use. • In the past, patents were denied for some categories of inventions, such as gambling devices and fraudulent products, esp. medicines. The doctrine is rarely used today. [Cases: Patents 46. C.J.S. Patents § 59.] 2.Trademarks. SCANDALOUS SUBJECT MATTER.

IMMOVABLE

immovable,n. (usu. pl.) Property that cannot be moved; an object so firmly attached to land that it is regarded as part of the land. — Also termed immovable thing. See FIXTURE. Cf. MOVABLE. [Cases: Fixtures 1; Property 4. C.J.S. Property §§ 14–21, 23.] — immovable,adj.

“Considered in its legal aspect, an immovable, that is to say, a piece of land, includes the following elements: — 1. A determinate portion of the earth's surface. 2. The ground beneath the surface down to the centre of the world. All the pieces of land in England meet together in one terminable point at the earth's centre. 3. Possibly the column of space above the surface ad infinitum.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 428 (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

IMMOVABLE FIXTURE

immovable fixture.See FIXTURE.

IMMUNE

immune,adj. Having immunity; exempt from a duty or liability.

IMMUNITY

immunity. 1. Any exemption from a duty, liability, or service of process; esp., such an exemption granted to a public official.

“An immunity is a defense to tort liability which is conferred upon an entire group or class of persons or entities under circumstances where considerations of public policy are thought to require special protection for the person, activity or entity in question at the expense of those injured by its tortious act. Historically, tort litigation against units of government, public officers, and charities, and between spouses, parents and children, has been limited or prohibited on this basis.” Edward J. Kionka, Torts in a Nutshell 341 (2d ed. 1992).

absolute immunity.A complete exemption from civil liability, usu. afforded to officials while performing particularly important functions, such as a representative enacting legislation and a judge presiding over a lawsuit. Cf. qualified immunity. [Cases: Officers and Public Employees 114. C.J.S. Officers and Public Employees §§ 247–248, 251–258.]

congressional immunity.Either of two special immunities given to members of Congress: (1) the exemption from arrest while attending a session of the body to which the member belongs, excluding an arrest for treason, breach of the peace, or a felony, or (2) the exemption from arrest or questioning for any speech or debate entered into during a legislative session. U.S. Const. art. I, § 6, cl. 1. See SPEECH AND DEBATE CLAUSE. [Cases: United States 12. C.J.S. United States §§ 27–28.]

constitutional immunity.Immunity created by a constitution.

diplomatic immunity.The general exemption of diplomatic ministers from the operation of local law, the exception being that a minister who is plotting against the security of the host nation may be arrested and sent out of the country. • A minister's family shares in diplomatic immunity to a great, though ill-defined, degree. [Cases: Ambassadors and Consuls 3. C.J.S. Ambassadors and Consuls §§ 15–23.]

discretionary immunity.A qualified immunity for a public official's acts, granted when the act in question required the exercise of judgment in carrying out official duties (such as planning and policy-making).<sup>28</sup> USCA § 2680(a). [Cases: Municipal Corporations 728. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations § 665.]

“Probably no one test will control the decision on discretionary immunity. Although the fact that the government has omitted to act is not in itself a defense, the discretionary immunity is frequently emphasized in nonfeasance cases. On the other hand, where the government's activity is affirmative, specific, and in violation of a statute, regulation, or constitutional provision imposing a duty upon government, courts are often willing to say there is no room for discretion.” Prosser and Keeton on the Law of Torts § 131, at 1041–42 (W. Page Keeton ed., 5th ed. 1984).

executive immunity. 1. The absolute immunity of the U.S. President or a state governor from civil damages for actions that are within the scope of official responsibilities. [Cases: United States 26. C.J.S. United States §§ 45–47.] 2. The qualified immunity from civil claims against lesser executive officials, who are liable only if their conduct violates clearly established constitutional or statutory rights. • Executive immunity generally protects an official while carrying out clearly established responsibilities about which a reasonable person would know. Cf. executive privilege under PRIVILEGE(3).

foreign immunity.The immunity of a foreign sovereign, its agents, and its instrumentalities from litigation in U.S. courts. [Cases: International Law 10.31–10.39. C.J.S. International Law §§ 46–52, 54–55.]

---

government immunity. See sovereign immunity.

intergovernmental immunity. The immunity between the federal and state governments based on their independent sovereignty. See INTERGOVERNMENTAL-IMMUNITY DOCTRINE.

judicial immunity. The immunity of a judge from civil liability arising from the performance of judicial duties. [Cases: Judges 36. C.J.S. Judges §§ 86–92, 94–96.]

legislative immunity. The immunity of a legislator from civil liability arising from the performance of legislative duties. See congressional immunity.

prosecutorial immunity. The absolute immunity of a prosecutor from civil liability for decisions made and actions taken in a criminal prosecution.

qualified immunity. Immunity from civil liability for a public official who is performing a discretionary function, as long as the conduct does not violate clearly established constitutional or statutory rights. — Also termed prima facie privilege. Cf. absolute immunity. [Cases: Civil Rights 1376; Officers and Public Employees 114. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 143–144, 146, 157, 160; Officers and Public Employees §§ 247–248, 251–258.]

sovereign immunity. 1. A government's immunity from being sued in its own courts without its consent. • Congress has waived most of the federal government's sovereign immunity. See FEDERAL TORT CLAIMS ACT. 2. A state's immunity from being sued in federal court by the state's own citizens. — Also termed government immunity; governmental immunity.

work-product immunity. See WORK-PRODUCT RULE.

2. Torts. A doctrine providing a complete defense to a tort action. • Unlike a privilege, immunity does not negate the tort, and it must be raised affirmatively or it will be waived. Cf. PRIVILEGE(2).

charitable immunity. The immunity of a charitable organization from tort liability. • This immunity has been eliminated or restricted in most states. — Also termed eleemosynary defense. [Cases: Charities 45(2). C.J.S. Charities §§ 66–67.]

corporate immunity. A corporate officer's immunity from personal liability for a tortious act committed while acting in good faith and within the course of corporate duties. [Cases: Corporations 306, 336. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 537–540, 544–545, 547, 549.]

husband–wife immunity. The immunity of one spouse from a tort action by the other spouse for personal injury. • As of 1992, 38 states and the District of Columbia had abolished interspousal tort immunity either by judicial opinion or by statute. Nine states had abolished the rule only in specific instances such as intentional or vehicular torts. — Also termed interspousal immunity; interspousal tort immunity; marital immunity. [Cases: Husband and Wife 205(2).]

interspousal immunity. See husband–wife immunity.

judgmental immunity. See ERROR-OF-JUDGMENT RULE.

marital immunity. See husband–wife immunity.

parental immunity. 1. The principle that children cannot sue their parents, and that parents cannot sue their children, for tort claims. • This tort immunity did not exist at English common law; it was created by American courts, first appearing in Hewellette v. George, 9 So. 885 (Miss. 1891). Many courts have abolished the doctrine for some purposes, such as actions by unemancipated minors against parents to recover for injuries sustained in motor-vehicle accidents. See, e.g., Merrick v. Sutterlin, 610 P.2d 891 (Wash. 1980) (en banc). Nor does the immunity apply when an injury is inflicted by the parent or child through willful, wanton, or criminal conduct. See, e.g., Schenk v. Schenk, 241 N.E.2d 12 (Ill. App. Ct. 1968). — Also termed parent–child immunity; parental-immunity doctrine. [Cases: Parent and Child 11. C.J.S. Parent and Child §§ 260, 299–300, 316–320.] 2. The principle that parents are not liable for damages caused by the ordinary negligence of their minor child. Cf. PARENTAL-LIABILITY STATUTE. [Cases: Parent and Child 13.5(2). C.J.S. Parent and Child § 191.]

3. Criminal law. Freedom from prosecution granted by the government in exchange for the person's testimony. • By granting immunity, the government can compel testimony — despite the Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination — because that testimony can no longer incriminate the witness. [Cases: Criminal Law 42. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 78–86.]

pocket immunity. Immunity that results from the prosecutor's decision not to prosecute, instead of from a formal grant of immunity. — Also termed informal immunity. [Cases: Criminal Law 42. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 78–86.]

testimonial immunity. Immunity from the use of the compelled testimony against the witness. • Any information derived from that testimony, however, is generally admissible against the witness. [Cases: Criminal Law 42; Witnesses 304. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 78–86; Witnesses § 555.]

“Testimonial immunity is a logical corollary to a person's fifth amendment right not to ‘be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself.’ It provides that when a witness is compelled to testify for any reason, his testimony cannot be used against him in a subsequent criminal proceeding. It also follows that the immunity is not available where the witness testifies voluntarily, and that the protection applies only in a subsequent criminal prosecution in which the witness is subject to prosecution for an offense related to his earlier testimony.” 2 Paul H. Robinson, Criminal Law Defenses § 205, at 482–83 (1984).

transactional immunity. Immunity from prosecution for any event or transaction described in the compelled testimony. • This is the broadest form of immunity. [Cases: Criminal Law 42. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 78–86.]

use immunity. Immunity from the use of the compelled testimony (or any information derived from that testimony) in a future prosecution against the witness. • After granting use immunity, the government can still prosecute if it shows that its evidence comes from a legitimate independent source. — Also termed use/derivative-use immunity. [Cases: Criminal Law 42. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 78–86.]

4. Freedom of a person against having a given legal relation altered by someone else's act or omission.

IMMUNIZE

immunize,vb. To grant immunity to <the new legislation immunized the police officers from liability>.

IMPACTED AREA

impacted area.A region that is affected by some event; esp., a region in which the school population increases due to an influx of federal employees who are working on a federal project or activity, but the tax revenue declines due to the U.S. government's immunity from local taxes.

IMPACT RULE

impact rule.Torts. The common-law requirement that physical contact must have occurred to allow damages for negligent infliction of emotional distress. • This rule has been abandoned in most jurisdictions. — Also termed physical-impact rule. [Cases: Damages 50. C.J.S. Damages § 96; Torts §§ 74, 80–81, 83.]

IMPAIR

impair,vb. To diminish the value of (property or a property right). • This term is commonly used in reference to diminishing the value of a contractual obligation to the point that the contract becomes invalid or a party loses the benefit of the contract. See CONTRACTS CLAUSE.

IMPAIRED CAPITAL

impaired capital.See CAPITAL.

IMPAIRING THE MORALS OF A MINOR

impairing the morals of a minor.The offense of an adult's engaging in sex-related acts, short of intercourse, with a minor. • Examples of this conduct are fondling, taking obscene photographs, and showing pornographic materials. — Also termed unlawful sexual conduct with a minor; corrupting; corruption of a minor. Cf. CONTRIBUTING TO THE DELINQUENCY OF A MINOR. [Cases: Infants 13. C.J.S. Infants §§ 5, 92–93, 95–98.]

IMPARLANCE

imparlance (im-pahr-l<<schwa>>nts).Hist. 1. A continuance granted for the purpose of giving the requesting party (usu. the defendant) further time to answer the adversary's last pleading (esp. the plaintiff's writ, bill, or count), often so that the parties will have time to settle the dispute. • Imparlanes were abolished in England in 1853. 2. A petition for such a continuance. 3. The permission granting such a continuance. — Formerly also spelled emparlance. — Also termed licentia loquendi.

“After defence made, the defendant must put in his plea. But, before he pleads, he is entitled to demand one imparlance, or licentia loquendi, and may have more granted by consent of the plaintiff; to see if he can end the matter amicably without farther suit, by talking with the plaintiff ....” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 298 (1768).

“An imparlance is the time allowed by the court to either party, upon request, to answer the pleading of his opponent. Imparlance, from the French ‘parler’ — to speak — in its most common signification, means time to plead. Formerly the parties, in the course of oral pleadings, were allowed time to speak or confer with one another, so that they might endeavor to settle the matters in dispute, and later, when the pleadings came to be in writing, the court permitted a certain time for each to plead to or answer the pleading of his opponent. In modern practice the term is rarely used ....” Benjamin J. Shipman, Handbook of Common-Law Pleading § 234, at 405 (Henry Winthrop Ballantine ed., 3d ed. 1923).

general imparlance.The allowance of time until the court's next term, without reserving to the defendant the benefit of any exception. • With this type of imparlance, the requesting defendant cannot later object to the jurisdiction of the court or plead any matter in abatement.

general special imparlance.The allowance of time with a saving of all exceptions, so that a defendant might later plead not only in abatement but also to the jurisdiction.

special imparlance.The allowance of time with a saving only of exceptions to the writ, bill, or count, but not to the court's jurisdiction.

IMPARTIAL

impartial,adj. Unbiased; disinterested.

IMPARTIAL CHAIR

impartial chair. 1.ARBITRATOR. 2.MEDIATOR. — Also termed impartial chairman.

IMPARTIAL EXPERT

impartial expert.See EXPERT.

IMPARTIAL JURY

impartial jury.See JURY.

IMPARTIBLE

impartible (im-pahr-t<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l), adj. Indivisible <an impartible estate>.

IMPARTIBLE FEUD

impartible feud.See FEUD(1).

IMPASSE

impasse (im-pas). A point in labor negotiations at which agreement cannot be reached. • A neutral third party (such as a mediator) is often called in to help resolve an impasse.

“Not only is the employer free after impasse to implement changes already offered to the union, but either party is free after impasse to decline to negotiate further. Since impasse signifies that the parties have exhausted (at least temporarily) the avenues of bargaining, termination of bargaining at that point cannot be thought to demonstrate a cast of mind against reaching agreement.” Robert A. Gorman, Basic Text on Labor Law: Unionization and Collective Bargaining 447 (1976).

IMPEACH

impeach,vb.1. To charge with a crime or misconduct; esp., to formally charge (a public official) with a violation of the public trust <President Nixon resigned from office to avoid being impeached>. • Impeaching a federal official, such as the President, the Vice President, or a judge, requires that a majority of the U.S. House of Representatives vote to return at least one article of impeachment to the U.S. Senate, itemizing the charges and explaining their factual grounds. Even if an official is impeached, removal from office does not occur unless two-thirds of the senators vote for conviction. 2. To discredit the veracity of (a witness) <the lawyer hoped that her star witness wouldn't be impeached on cross-examination>. [Cases: Witnesses 311–409. C.J.S. Witnesses §§ 559–775.] 3. To challenge the accuracy or authenticity of (a document) <the handwriting expert impeached the holographic will>.

IMPEACHABLE OFFENSE

impeachable offense.An offense for which a public official may legally be impeached, during the first step in a two-step process that may, depending on the vote in the U.S. Senate, lead to the official's removal from office. • The U.S. Constitution states that “[t]he President, Vice President and all civil Officers of the United States, shall be removed from Office on Impeachment for, and Conviction of, Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors.” The meaning of this language was much debated during the impeachment and trial of President Bill Clinton, against whom two articles of impeachment were returned by the House of Representatives. The question arose what type of misdemeanor will suffice, and whether the high in high crimes modifies misdemeanors as well. No definitive answer resulted from the proceedings.

IMPEACHMENT

impeachment. 1. The act (by a legislature) of calling for the removal from office of a public official, accomplished by presenting a written charge of the official's alleged misconduct; esp., the initiation of a proceeding in the U.S. House of Representatives against a federal official, such as the President or a judge. • Congress's authority to remove a federal official stems from art. II, § 4 of the Constitution, which authorizes the removal of an official for “Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors.” The grounds upon which an official can be removed do not, however, have to be criminal in nature. They usu. involve some type of abuse of power or breach of the public trust. Articles of impeachment — which can be approved by a simple majority in the House — serve as the charging instrument for the later trial in the Senate. If the President is impeached, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court presides over the Senate trial. The defendant can be removed from office by a two-thirds majority of the senators who are present. In the United Kingdom, impeachment is by the House of Commons and trial by the House of Lords. But no case has arisen there since 1801, and many British scholars consider impeachment obsolete. [Cases: United States 35.C.J.S. United States §§ 23, 53, 56–57.] 2. The act of discrediting a witness, as by catching the witness in a lie or by demonstrating that the witness has been convicted of a criminal offense. [Cases: Witnesses 311–409. C.J.S. Witnesses §§ 559–775.] 3. The act of challenging the accuracy or authenticity of evidence.

IMPEACHMENT COURT

impeachment court. See COURT FOR THE TRIALS OF IMPEACHMENT.

IMPEACHMENT EVIDENCE

impeachment evidence. See EVIDENCE.

IMPEACHMENT OF VERDICT

impeachment of verdict. A party's attack on a verdict, alleging impropriety by a member of the jury. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2371.]

IMPEACHMENT OF WASTE

impeachment of waste. Hist. An action for waste against the tenant of the harmed property.

“[F]or above five hundred years past, all tenants for life or for any less estate, have been punishable or liable to be impeached for waste, both voluntary and permissive; unless their leases be made, as sometimes they are, without impeachment of waste ....” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 283 (1766).

IMPECHIARE

impechiare (im-pee-chee-air-ee), vb.[fr. Law French empescher “to impeach”] Hist. To impeach; to accuse.

IMPEDIENS

impediens (im-pee-dee-enz). [Law Latin] Hist. A person who hinders. • The defendant (or deforciant) in a fine of conveyance was sometimes so called. See FINE(1).

IMPEDIMENT

impediment (im-ped-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>nt). A hindrance or obstruction; esp., some fact (such as legal minority) that bars a marriage if known beforehand and, if discovered after the ceremony, renders the marriage void or voidable.

canonical impediment.A ground for annulment recognized by canon law and developed by the ecclesiastical courts of the Roman Catholic Church. • Canonical impediments include affinity, impotence, disparity of worship, and previous religious profession.

civil impediment.A ground for annulment recognized by civil law of contracts, such as minority, unsoundness of mind, fraud, and duress. • The defects of fraud and duress may be waived, and the parties may confirm the marriage.

diriment impediment (dir-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>nt im-ped-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>nt), n.[fr. Latin dirimens impedimentum “nullifying impediment”] A fact that raises an absolute bar to marriage and renders a contracted marriage void. • Diriment impediments include consanguinity within a prohibited degree and prior undissolved marriage. — Also termed impedimenta dirimentia.

IMPEDIMENTA DIRIMENTIA

impedimenta dirimentia.See diriment impediment under IMPEDIMENT.

IMPEDIMENTUM REBUS AGENDIS

impedimentum rebus agendis (im-ped-<<schwa>>-men-t<<schwa>>m ree-b-<<schwa>>s <<schwa>>-jen-dis). [Law Latin] Hist. A hindrance to the transaction of business.

IMPEDITOR

impeditor (im-ped-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>r). [Law Latin] Hist. A person who interferes with a patron's right of advowson, i.e., the right to appoint a clerk to a benefice. — Also termed disturber. See DE CLERICO ADMITTENDO.

IMPENSAE

impensae (im-pen-see), n. pl.[Latin] Roman law. Expenditures made on a thing.

impensae necessariae (im-pen-see nes-<<schwa>>-sair-ee-ee). Expenditures necessary to prevent deterioration, destruction, or loss of a thing — such as money expended for building repair or maintenance.

impensae utiles (im-pen-see yoo-t<<schwa>>-leez). Useful expenditures that improve something and increase its selling value.

impensae voluptariae (im-pen-see vol-<<schwa>>p-tair-ee-ee). Expenditures made on a thing for ornamental purposes only.

IMPERATIVE AUTHORITY

imperative authority. See AUTHORITY(4).

IMPERATIVE LAW

imperative law. See LAW.

IMPERATIVE THEORY OF LAW

imperative theory of law. The theory that law consists of the general commands issued by a country or other political community to its subjects and enforced by courts with the sanction of physical force. • Imperative theorists believe that if there are rules predating or independent of the country, those rules may closely resemble law or even substitute for it, but they are not law. See POSITIVE LAW. Cf. NATURAL LAW.

IMPERIAL STATE

imperial state. See STATE.

IMPERITIA

imperitia (im-p<<schwa>>-rish-ee-<<schwa>>), n. [Latin] Roman law. Lack of skill or competence; inexperience. • The Romans considered imperitia to be a type of culpa that gave rise to liability in tort or liability under a contract calling for the rendering of services (such as a locatio conductio operis). Imperitus could denote a person, such as a judge who was incompetent in what he undertook.

IMPERIUM

imperium (im-peer-ee-<<schwa>>m), n. [Latin] Roman law. Power or dominion; esp., the legal authority wielded by superior magistrates under the Republic, and later by the emperor under the Empire. • Imperium implied the right of military command, and the powers of corporal punishment, and of life and death over citizens. It was symbolized by the lictors who carried the fasces and an ax, which symbolized those powers. Imperium was also used less technically; it applied to lesser types of authority under Roman law, and thus had different meanings. For example, imperium domesticum described the power of the head of a household.

imperium merum (im-peer-ee-<<schwa>>m meer-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “bare power” or “absolute executive power”] Roman law. A higher magistrate's power to use force to repress crime.

imperium mixtum (im-peer-ee-<<schwa>>m miks-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin “mixed power”] Roman law. A magistrate's authority to make and enforce decisions in civil and criminal matters.

impersonal. See IN REM.

IMPERSONATION

impersonation. The act of impersonating someone. — Also termed personation.

false impersonation. The crime of falsely representing oneself as another person, usu. a law-enforcement officer, for the purpose of deceiving someone. See 18 USCA §§ 912–917. — Also termed false personation. [Cases: False Personation 1.]

IMPERTINENT

impertinent, adj. See IRRELEVANT.

IMPERTINENT EVIDENCE

impertinent evidence. See EVIDENCE.

IMPERTINENT MATTER

impertinent matter. Procedure. In pleading, matter that is not relevant to the action or defense. • A federal court may strike any impertinent matter from a pleading. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(f). Cf. SCANDALOUS MATTER. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1127; Pleading 364(4). C.J.S. Pleading § 683.]

“The court will not strike out the matter unless its impertinence clearly appears; for if erroneously stricken out, the error is irremediable; if left to stand, the court may set the matter right in taxing the costs. Matter which is scandalous is also impertinent.” William C. Anderson, A Dictionary of Law 526 (1889).

IMPESCARE

impescare (im-p<<schwa>>-skair-ee), vb. [fr. Law French empescher “to impeach”] Hist. To impeach; to accuse.

IMPETRARE

impetrare (im-p<<schwa>>-trair-ee), vb. [Latin] Roman law. To obtain by request. • This word often appeared in petitions requesting a formula for an action from a praetor. It performed a similar function under English law for those seeking a writ from Chancery. The English word impetrate derives from this Latinism. Cf. FORMULA (1).

IMPETRATION

impetration (im-p<<schwa>>-tray-sh<<schwa>>n). 1. Hist. The act of petitioning for a writ.

2.Hist. Eccles. law. The act of obtaining a papal benefice for bestowal by the king or other lay patron. — impetrate,vb.

IMPLY

imply, vb. 1. To express or involve indirectly; to suggest <the opinion implies that the court has adopted a stricter standard for upholding punitive-damages awards>. Cf. INFER. 2. (Of a court) to impute or impose on equitable or legal grounds <the court implied a contract between the parties>. 3. To read into (a document) <citing grounds of fairness, the court implied a condition that the parties had not expressed>. See implied term under TERM(2). — implication, n.

“Anglo-American judges, who continually evaluate facts, often use the phrase by implication (= by what is implied, though not formally expressed, by natural inference), along with its various cognates. Judges (by implication) draw ‘natural inferences’ and thereby decide that something or other was, in the circumstances, ‘implied.’ Through the process of hypallage — a semantic shift by which the attributes of the true subject are transferred to another subject — the word imply has come to be used in reference to what the judges do, as opposed to the circumstances. This specialized use of imply runs counter to popular lay use and is not adequately treated in English-language dictionaries.

“The lawyer's imply has directly encroached on the word infer. Whereas nonlawyers frequently use infer for imply, lawyers and judges conflate the two in the opposite direction, by using imply for infer. In analyzing the facts of a case, judges will imply one fact from certain others. (From is a telling preposition.) Nonlawyers believe they must be inferring an additional fact from those already known; if contractual terms are implied, they must surely be implied by the words or circumstances of the contract and not by the judges.” Bryan A. Garner, A Dictionary of Modern Legal Usage 423, 424 (2d ed. 1995).

IMPORT

import,n.1. A product brought into a country from a foreign country where it originated <imports declined in the third quarter>. See PARALLEL IMPORTS. 2. The process of bringing foreign goods into a country <the import of products affects the domestic economy in significant ways>. Cf. EXPORT. 3. The meaning; esp., the implied meaning <the court must decide the import of that obscure provision>.4. Importance; significance <time will tell the relative import of Judge Posner's decisions in American law>.

IMPORTATION

importation. The bringing of goods into a country from another country.

IMPORT DUTY

import duty. See DUTY(4).

IMPORTED LITIGATION

imported litigation. One or more lawsuits brought in a state that has no interest in the dispute.

IMPORTER

importer. A person or entity that brings goods into a country from a foreign country and pays customs duties.

IMPORT-EXPORT CLAUSE

Import-Export Clause. U.S. Const. art. I, § 10, cl. 2, which prohibits states from taxing imports or exports. • The Supreme Court has liberally interpreted this clause, allowing states to tax imports as long as the tax does not discriminate in favor of domestic goods. — Also termed Export Clause. [Cases: Customs Duties 1–2. C.J.S. Customs Duties §§ 1–4, 6, 10–12.]

IMPORT LETTER OF CREDIT

import letter of credit. See LETTER OF CREDIT.

IMPORT QUOTA

import quota. See QUOTA.

IMPORT RECORDING

import recording. See BOOTLEG RECORDING(1).

IMPORTUNE

importune (im-por-t[y]oon), vb. To solicit forcefully; to request persistently, and sometimes irksomely.

IMPOSE

impose,vb. To levy or exact (a tax or duty).

IMPOSITION

imposition. An impost or tax.

IMPOSITIVE FACT

impositive fact.See FACT.

IMPOSSIBILITY

impossibility. 1. The fact or condition of not being able to occur, exist, or be done. 2. A fact or circumstance that cannot occur, exist, or be done. 3.Contracts. A fact or circumstance that excuses performance because (1) the subject or means of performance has deteriorated, has been destroyed, or is no longer available, (2) the method of delivery or payment has failed, (3) a law now prevents performance, or (4) death or illness prevents performance. • Increased or unexpected difficulty and expense do not usu. qualify as an impossibility and thus do not excuse performance. — Also termed impossibility of performance. [Cases: Contracts 309. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 520–522, 524.] 4. The doctrine by which such a fact or circumstance excuses contractual performance. Cf. FRUSTRATION(2); IMPRACTICABILITY. [Cases: Contracts 309. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 520–522, 524.] 5.Criminal law. A fact or circumstance preventing the commission of a crime. [Cases: Criminal Law 31, 44. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 15, 46–49, 88, 93–94, 114–123.]

factual impossibility.Impossibility due to the fact that the illegal act cannot physically be accomplished, such as trying to pick an empty pocket. • Factual impossibility is not a defense to the crime of attempt. — Also termed physical impossibility; impossibility of fact.

legal impossibility. 1. Impossibility due to the fact that what the defendant intended to do is not illegal even though the defendant might have believed that he or she was committing a crime. • A legal impossibility might occur, for example, if a person goes hunting while erroneously believing that it is not hunting season. This type of legal impossibility is a defense to the crimes of attempt, conspiracy, and solicitation. — Also termed impossibility of law; true legal impossibility. 2. Impossibility due to the fact that an element required for an attempt has not been satisfied. • This type of legal impossibility might occur, for example, if a person fires an unloaded gun at another when the crime of attempt requires that the gun be loaded. This is a defense to the crime of attempt.

objective impossibility.Impossibility due to the nature of the performance and not to the inability of the individual promisor.

subjective impossibility.Impossibility due wholly to the inability of the individual promisor and not to the nature of the performance.

supervening impossibility.Impossibility arising after the formation of a contract but before the time when the promisor's performance is due, and arising because of facts that the promisor had no reason to anticipate and did not contribute to the occurrence of.

“Contracting parties constantly take a voluntary risk, and it would make the whole basis of contract insecure if they were allowed to plead every and any kind of supervening impossibility. Moreover, a man need not undertake this kind of risk unless he chooses. He can deliberately exclude it by stipulations in his contract, if the other party is willing to contract with him on those terms.” 2 Stephen's Commentaries on the Laws of England 82–83 (L. Crispin Warmington ed., 21st ed. 1950).

IMPOSSIBILITY-OF-PERFORMANCE DOCTRINE

impossibility-of-performance doctrine. The principle that a party may be released from a contract on the ground that uncontrollable circumstances have rendered performance impossible. Cf. FRUSTRATION(2); IMPRACTICABILITY. [Cases: Contracts 309(1). C.J.S. Contracts §§ 520–522, 524.]

IMPOSSIBLE CONSIDERATION

impossible consideration. See CONSIDERATION(1).

IMPOSSIBLE CONTRACT

impossible contract. See CONTRACT.

IMPOST

impost (im-pohst). A tax or duty, esp. a customs duty <the impost was assessed when the ship reached the mainland>. See DUTY(4).

IMPOSTOR

impostor (im-pos-t<<schwa>>r). One who pretends to be someone else to deceive others, esp. to receive the benefits of a negotiable instrument. — Also spelled imposter. [Cases: Banks and Banking 147; Bills and Notes 201, 279. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 415–416; Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 29, 150–151.]

IMPOSTOR RULE

impostor rule. Commercial law. The principle that an impostor's indorsement of a negotiable instrument is not a forgery, and that the drawer or maker who issues the instrument to the impostor is negligent and therefore liable to the holder for payment. • If a drawer or maker issues an instrument to an impostor, any resulting forgery of the payee's name will be effective in favor of a person paying on the instrument in good faith or taking it for value or collection. UCC § 3-404. [Cases: Banks and Banking 147; Bills and Notes 201, 279. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 415–416; Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 29, 150–151.]

IMPOTENCE

impotence (im-p<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>nts). A man's inability to achieve an erection and therefore to have sexual intercourse. • Because an impotent husband cannot consummate a marriage, impotence has often been cited as a ground for annulment. — Also termed impotency; physical incapacity; erectile dysfunction.

IMPOUND

impound,vb.1. To place (something, such as a car or other personal property) in the custody of the police or the court, often with the understanding that it will be returned intact at the end of the proceeding. 2. To take and retain possession of (something, such as a forged document to be produced as evidence) in preparation for a criminal prosecution.

IMPOUND ACCOUNT

impound account.See ACCOUNT.

IMPOUNDMENT

impoundment. 1. The action of impounding; the state of being impounded. See IMPOUND. 2.Constitutional law. The President's refusal to spend funds appropriated by Congress. • Although not authorized by the Constitution and seldom used, the impoundment power effectively gives the executive branch a line-item veto over legislative spending. [Cases: United States 82(1). C.J.S. United States §§ 155, 158.]

IMPRACTICABILITY

impracticability (im-prak-ti-k<<schwa>>-bil-<<schwa>>-tee).Contracts. 1. A fact or circumstance that excuses a party from performing an act, esp. a contractual duty, because (though possible) it would cause extreme and unreasonable difficulty. • For performance to be truly impracticable, the duty must become much more difficult or much more expensive to perform, and this difficulty or expense must have been unanticipated. [Cases: Contracts 309(1). C.J.S. Contracts §§ 520–522, 524.] 2. The doctrine by which such a fact or circumstance excuses performance. Cf. FRUSTRATION(2); IMPOSSIBILITY(4).

commercial impracticability.The occurrence of a contingency whose nonoccurrence was an assumption in the contract, as a result of which one party cannot perform. [Cases: Contracts 309(1). C.J.S. Contracts §§ 520–522, 524.]

“The doctrines of Impossibility, Commercial Impracticability or as the Uniform Commercial Code knows it, Excuse by Failure of Presupposed Conditions, comprise unclimbed peaks of contract doctrine. Clearly, all of the famous early and mid-twentieth century mountaineers, Corbin, Williston, Farnsworth and many lesser men have made attempts on this topic but none has succeeded in conquering the very summit.... In spite of attempts by all of the contract buffs and even in the face of eloquent and persuasive general statements, it remains impossible to predict with accuracy how the law will apply to a variety of relatively common cases. Both the cases and the Code commentary are full of weasel words such as ‘severe’ shortage, ‘marked’ increase, ‘basic’ assumptions, and ‘force majeure.’ ” James J. White & Robert S. Summers, Uniform Commercial Code § 3-9, at 155 (3d ed. 1988).

IMPRESCRIPTIBLE

imprescriptible (im-pr<<schwa>>-skrip-t<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l), adj. Not subject to prescription; not capable of being acquired by prescription.

IMPREScriptible RIGHT

imprescriptible right. See RIGHT.

IMPRESSMENT

impressment (im-pres-m<<schwa>>nt), n. 1. The act of forcibly taking (something) for public service. 2. A court's imposition of a constructive trust on equitable grounds. See constructive trust under TRUST. 3. Archaic. The method by which armed forces were formerly expanded, when so-called press-gangs seized men off the streets and forced them to join the army or navy. Cf. CRIMPING. — impress, vb.

imprisonment, n. 1. The act of confining a person, esp. in a prison <the imprisonment of Jackson was entirely justified>. 2. The state of being confined; a period of confinement <Jackson's imprisonment lasted 14 years>. See FALSE IMPRISONMENT.

“Imprisonment, by whatever name it is called, is a harsh thing, and the discipline that must be exercised over human beings in close confinement can never be wholly agreeable to those subject to it. When an attempt is made to hide the harsh realities of criminal justice behind euphemistic descriptions, a corrupting irony may be introduced into ordinary speech that is fully as frightening as Orwell's ‘Newspeak.’ ” Lon L. Fuller, Anatomy of the Law 57 (1968).

IMPRISONMENT FOR DEBT

imprisonment for debt. Hist. Detention of a debtor by court order to force the debtor to pay certain civil obligations. • The remedy was usu. available only when the debt arose from nonpayment of taxes or fines owed to the Crown, or from the debtor's failure to pay court-ordered support or alimony, or from the debtor's failure to obey a decree ad factum praestandum. — Also termed civil imprisonment. See decree ad factum praestandum under DECREE.

IMPUTE

impute (im-pyoot), vb. To ascribe or attribute; to regard (usu. something undesirable) as being done, caused, or possessed by <the court imputed malice to the defamatory statement>. — imputation,n. — imputable,adj.

“The word ‘impute’ comes from im (in) and putare (reckon). It means to bring into the reckoning, to attribute or to ascribe. It is sometimes used to attribute vicariously, — to ascribe as derived from another. This is included properly within the general import of the term but it is not its primary meaning. It may be used in many senses. Thus we may impute (ascribe) intent, knowledge, guilt, and so forth. Here it is used in the basic sense of imputing (ascribing) the fact itself. Harm has been done. Did the defendant do it? Usually such an inquiry is purely factual. What really happened? At times, however, when all the facts are known we have to ask: Will the law impute (attribute or ascribe) what happened to the defendant? That is what is meant here by ‘imputability.’ ” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 605 (3d ed. 1982).

IMPUTED DISQUALIFICATION

incest, n. 1. Sexual relations between family members or close relatives, including children related by adoption. • Incest was not a crime under English common law but was punished as an ecclesiastical offense. Modern statutes make it a felony.

“Although incest under both English and American law is a distinct crime, its commission may involve any of eight different offenses: illegal marriage, consensual cohabitation by unmarried persons, fornication (consensual intercourse), forcible rape, statutory rape, child abuse, and juvenile delinquency (sexual relations between minor siblings or cousins).... The choice of crime charged is generally one of prosecutorial discretion. Unless one of the participants is a minor and the other an adult, both parties may be prosecuted for incest.” Lois G. Forer, “Incest,” in 3 Encyclopedia of Crime and Justice 880, 880 (Sanford H. Kadish ed., 1983).

2. Intermarriage between persons related in any degree of consanguinity or affinity within which marriage is prohibited — for example, through the uncle–niece or aunt–nephew relationship. [Cases: Incest 1–8.5. C.J.S. Incest §§ 2–7.] — incestuous, adj.

INCHMAREE CLAUSE

Inchmaree clause (inch-m<<schwa>>-ree). Maritime law. An insurance-policy provision that protects against risks not caused by nature, such as a sailor's negligence or a latent defect in machinery. • This term is taken from a British ship, the Inchmaree, whose sinking in 1884 gave rise to litigation that led to the clause bearing its name. — Also termed additional-perils clause. [Cases: Insurance 2228, 2231. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 997, 1011–1012.]

“The most celebrated decision of recent times under the ‘general’ clause was doubtless Thames & Mersey Marine Ins. Co. v. Hamilton, Fraser & Co., 12 App.Cas. 484 (1887). A pump, insured as part of the machinery of a vessel, clogged through valve failure and was damaged. The House of Lords held this accident arose neither through a ‘peril of the sea’ nor through a cause ejusdem generis with the enumerated perils.... This was a disquieting decision, for it more than suggested that many costly accidents that might be suffered by the expensive machinery on steam vessels were not covered by the standard marine policy. The result was the inclusion of the celebrated ‘Inchmaree’ clause in hull policies, extending special coverage not only to machinery breakage but to many other classes of loss not covered by the standard perils clause as restrictively construed.” Grant Gilmore & Charles L. Black Jr., The Law of Admiralty § 4-8, at 74 n.90 (2d ed. 1975).

INCHOATE

inchoate (in-koh-it), adj. Partially completed or imperfectly formed; just begun. Cf. CHOATE. — inchoateness, n.

“The word ‘inchoate,’ not much used in ordinary discourse, means ‘just begun,’ ‘undeveloped.’ The common law has given birth to three general offences which are usually termed ‘inchoate’ or ‘preliminary’ crimes — attempt, conspiracy, and incitement. A principal feature of these crimes is that they are committed even though the substantive offence is not successfully consummated. An attempt fails, a conspiracy comes to nothing, words of incitement are ignored — in all these instances, there may be liability for the inchoate crime.” Andrew Ashworth, Principles of Criminal Law 395 (1991).

INCHOATE CRIME

inchoate crime. See inchoate offense under OFFENSE(1).

INCHOATE DOWER

inchoate dower. See DOWER.

INCHOATE INSTRUMENT

inchoate instrument. See INSTRUMENT(3).

INCHOATE INTEREST

inchoate interest. See INTEREST(2).

INCHOATE LIEN

inchoate lien. See LIEN.

INCHOATE OFFENSE

inchoate offense. See OFFENSE(1).

INCHOATE RIGHT

inchoate right. 1. A right that has not fully developed, matured, or vested. 2. Patents. An inventor's right that has not yet vested into a property right because the patent application is pending. [Cases: Patents 182.]

INCIDENT

incident, adj. Dependent upon, subordinate to, arising out of, or otherwise connected with (something else, usu. of greater importance) <the utility easement is incident to the ownership of the tract>. — incident, n.

incident, n. 1. A discrete occurrence or happening <an incident of copyright infringement>. 2. A dependent, subordinate, or consequential part (of something else) <child support is a typical incident of divorce>.

INCIDENTAL

incidental, adj. Subordinate to something of greater importance; having a minor role <the FAA determined that the wind played only an incidental part in the plane crash>.

INCIDENTAL ADMISSION

incidental admission. See ADMISSION(1).

INCIDENTAL AUTHORITY

incidental authority. See AUTHORITY(1).

INCIDENTAL BENEFICIARY

incidental beneficiary. See BENEFICIARY.

INCIDENTAL DAMAGES

incidental damages. See DAMAGES.

INCIDENTAL DEMAND

incidental demand. See DEMAND(1).

INCIDENTAL MAIN MOTION

incidental main motion. See MOTION(2).

INCIDENTAL MOTION

incidental motion. See MOTION(2).

INCIDENTAL POWER

incidental power. See incident power under POWER(3).

INCIDENTAL USE

incidental use. See USE(1).

INCIDENTER

incidenter (in-si-den-t<<schwa>>r). [Latin] Hist. Incidentally.

INCIDENT OF OWNERSHIP

incident of ownership. (usu. pl.) Any right of control that may be exercised over a transferred life-insurance policy so that the policy's proceeds will be included in a decedent's gross estate for estate-tax purposes <because Douglas still retained the incidents of ownership after giving his life-insurance policy to his daughter, the policy proceeds were taxed against his estate>. • The incidents of ownership include the rights to change the policy's beneficiaries and to borrow against, assign, and cancel the policy. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4155. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 510.]

INCIDENT POWER

incident power. See POWER(3).

INCIDENT TO EMPLOYMENT

incident to employment. Workers' compensation. A risk that is related to or connected with a worker's job duties. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 610–611. C.J.S. Workmen's Compensation §§ 376, 378.]

INCIDERE

incidere (in-sid-<<schwa>>-ree), vb.[Latin “fall into or on”] Roman law. To come within the scope of a law or to fall into a legal category; esp. to become involved in a situation that entangles a person in a legal action. • This term had a similar meaning under English law. For example, a person might become liable to (or “fall into”) amercement (incidere in misericordiam). See AMERCEMENT.

INCIPITUR

incipitur (in-sip-i-t<<schwa>>r). [Law Latin] Hist. It is begun. • This refers to the practice of entering the commencement of a pleading on the court roll.

INCITE

incite,vb. To provoke or stir up (someone to commit a criminal act, or the criminal act itself). Cf. ABET.

INCITEE

incitee. A person who has been incited, esp. to commit a crime.

INCITEFUL

inciteful,adj. Tending to incite <inciteful speech>.

INCITEMENT

incitement,n.1. The act or an instance of provoking, urging on, or stirring up. 2.Criminal law. The act of persuading another person to commit a crime; SOLICITATION(2). [Cases: Criminal Law 45. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 115, 124–126.] — inciteful,adj.

“An inciter is one who counsels, commands or advises the commission of a crime. It will be observed that this definition is much the same as that of an accessory before the fact. What, then, is the difference between the two? It is that in incitement the crime has not (or has not necessarily) been committed, whereas a party cannot be an accessory in crime unless the crime has been committed. An accessory before the fact is party to consummated mischief; an inciter is guilty only of an inchoate crime.” Glanville Williams, Criminal Law 612 (2d ed. 1961).

“Emphasis upon the theory of one offense with guilt attaching to several is quite appropriate because it is still part of the groundwork of our legal philosophy, so far as perpetrators, abettors and inciters are concerned, despite the fact that some of the statutes require lipservice to the notion of a separate substantive offense, in the effort to avoid certain procedural difficulties. It explains how one may be guilty of a crime he could not perpetrate, by having caused or procured it as a result of his abetment or incitement.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 732–33 (3d ed. 1982).

INCITER

inciter. A person who incites another to commit a crime; an aider or abettor.

INCITING REVOLT

inciting revolt. See MUTINY.

INCIVILE

incivile (in-siv-<<schwa>>-lee), adj. [Law Latin] Irregular; out of the due course of law.

INCIVISM

incivism (in-si-viz-*<<schwa>>*m). Unfriendliness toward one's own country or its government; lack of good citizenship.

INCLAUSA

inclausa (in-klaw-z*<<schwa>>*). [Law Latin] Hist. An enclosure near a house; a home close. See CLOSE(1).

IN CLIENTELA

in clientela (in kli-*<<schwa>>n-tee-l<<schwa>>*). [Latin] Hist. In the relation between client and patron.

INCLOSE

inclose, vb. See ENCLOSE.

INCLOSURE

inclosure. See ENCLOSURE.

INCLUDE

include, vb. To contain as a part of something. • The participle including typically indicates a partial list <the plaintiff asserted five tort claims, including slander and libel>. But some drafters use phrases such as including without limitation and including but not limited to — which mean the same thing. See NAMELY.

INCLUDED OFFENSE

included offense. See lesser included offense under OFFENSE(1).

INCLUSIONARY-APPROACH RULE

inclusionary-approach rule. The principle that evidence of a prior crime, wrong, or act is admissible for any purpose other than to show a defendant's criminal propensity as long as it is relevant to some disputed issue and its probative value outweighs its prejudicial effect. [Cases: Criminal Law 369.2(1). C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 825–826.]

INCLUSIO UNIUS EST EXCLUSIO ALTERIUS

inclusio unius est exclusio alterius. See EXPRESSIO UNIUS EST EXCLUSIO ALTERIUS .

INCLUSIVE DEED

inclusive deed. See inclusive grant under GRANT.

---

INCLUSIVE GRANT

inclusive grant. See GRANT.

INCLUSIVE SURVEY

inclusive survey. See SURVEY.

INCOGNITO

incognito (in-kog-nee-toh or in-kog-ni-toh), adj. Without making one's name or identity known <Binkley flew incognito to France>.

INCOLA

incola (in-k<<schwa>>-l<<schwa>>), n. [Latin "an inhabitant"] Roman law. A foreign resident without full civil rights; the inhabitant of a foreign colony. • The term is used particularly for provincial residents who were not Roman citizens. — Also termed (in English) incolant. Cf. PEREGRINUS.

INCOME

income. The money or other form of payment that one receives, usu. periodically, from employment, business, investments, royalties, gifts, and the like. See EARNINGS. Cf. PROFIT.

accrued income. Money earned but not yet received.

accumulated income. Income that is retained in an account; esp., income that a trust has generated, but that has not yet been reinvested or distributed by the trustee. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4008. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 446.]

accumulated taxable income. The income of a corporation as adjusted for certain items (such as excess charitable contributions), less the dividends-paid deduction and the accumulated-earnings credit. • It serves as the base upon which the accumulated-earnings tax is imposed. See accumulated-earnings tax under TAX. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3833.]

active income. 1. Wages; salary. 2. Income from a trade or business.

adjusted gross income. Gross income minus allowable deductions specified in the tax code. — Abbr. AGI. [Cases: Taxation 979.]

adjusted ordinary gross income. A corporation's gross income less capital gains and certain expenses. • The IRS uses this calculation to determine whether a corporation is a personal holding company. If 60% or more of a corporation's AOGI consists of certain passive investment income, the company has met the test for personal-holding-company classification. IRC (26 USCA) § 543(b). — Abbr. AOGI. See personal holding company under COMPANY. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3853–3858. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 383–385.] aggregate income. The combined income of a husband and wife who file a joint tax return. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3566.1, 4481. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 335, 366, 637.]

blocked income. Money earned by a foreign taxpayer but not subject to U.S. taxation because the foreign country prohibits changing the income into dollars.

current income. Income that is due within the present accounting period. — Also termed current revenue.

deferred income. Money received at a time later than when it was earned, such as a check received in January for commissions earned in November.

disposable income. Income that may be spent or invested after payment of taxes and other primary obligations. — Also termed disposable earnings.

distributable net income. The amount of distributions from estates and trusts that the beneficiaries will have to include in income. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3173, 4018. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 66, 95, 439, 443–444, 452.]

dividend income. The income resulting from a dividend distribution and subject to tax. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3743–3774; Taxation 988. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 72, 389–391, 395; Taxation § 1728.]

earned income. Money derived from one's own labor or active participation; earnings from services. Cf. unearned income (2).

exempt income. Income that is not subject to income tax. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4045–4071; Taxation 1048. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 327, 462–474, 670, 798; Taxation § 1736–1737.]

fixed income. Money received at a constant rate, such as a payment from a pension or annuity.

gross income. Total income from all sources before deductions, exemptions, or other tax reductions. IRC (26 USCA) § 61. — Also termed gross earnings. [Cases: Taxation 979.]

imputed income. The benefit one receives from the use of one's own property, the performance of one's services, or the consumption of self-produced goods and services.

income in respect of a decedent. Income earned by a person, but not collected before death. • This income is included in the decedent's gross estate for estate-tax purposes. For income-tax purposes, it is taxed to the estate or, if the estate does not collect the income, it is taxed to the eventual recipient. — Abbr. IRD. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4035–4039; Taxation 1024. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 435–439, 457–461; Taxation §§ 1710–1712.]

“If a decedent has earned income that he or she had not received before death and was not entitled to receive before death, such income is known — for Federal Income Tax purposes — as ‘income in respect of a decedent’ (I.R.D.). For example, if the decedent earned fees or salary or wages for work done before death but not payable until later, and if decedent was a cash method taxpayer (versus an accrual method taxpayer), that earned but unpaid income would not properly be shown on the final income tax return filed for the decedent, for that taxable period ends with the date of death. Rather it is I.R.D. that becomes taxable to the estate of the decedent.” John K. McNulty, Federal Estate and Gift Taxation in a Nutshell 89 (5th ed. 1994).

investment income. See unearned income.

net income. Total income from all sources minus deductions, exemptions, and other tax reductions. • Income tax is computed on net income. — Also termed net earnings. [Cases: Taxation 980. C.J.S. Taxation §§ 1715–1716.]

net operating income. Income derived from operating a business, after subtracting operating costs.

nonoperating income. Business income derived from investments rather than operations.

operating income. See ordinary income (1).

ordinary income. 1. For business-tax purposes, earnings from the normal operations or activities of a business. — Also termed operating income. 2. For individual income-tax purposes, income that is derived from sources such as wages, commissions, and interest (as opposed to income from capital gains). [Cases: Internal Revenue 3230.1–3257; Taxation 986, 996. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 128–129, 131–145, 490–491; Taxation §§ 1724, 1732–1733.]

other income. Income not derived from an entity's principal business, such as earnings from dividends and interest.

passive income. Income derived from a business, rental, or other income-producing activity that the earner does not directly participate in or has no immediate control over. See PASSIVE ACTIVITY. Cf. portfolio income.

passive investment income. Investment income that does not involve or require active participation, such as gross receipts from royalties, rental income, dividends, interest, annuities, and gains from the sale or exchange of securities. IRC (26 USCA) § 1362(d). [Cases: Internal Revenue 3892.]

personal income. The total income received by an individual from all sources.

portfolio income. Income not derived in the ordinary course of a trade or business, such as interest earned on savings, dividends, royalties, capital gains, or other investment sources. • For tax purposes, losses on passive activities cannot be used to offset net portfolio income. Cf. passive income.

prepaid income. Income received but not yet earned. — Also termed deferred revenue.

previously taxed income. An S corporation's undistributed taxable income taxed to the shareholders as of the last day of the corporation's tax year. • This income could usu. be withdrawn later by the shareholders without tax consequences. PTI has been replaced by the accumulated adjustments account. — Abbr. PTI.

real income. Income adjusted to allow for inflation or deflation so that it reflects true purchasing power.

regular income. Income that is received at fixed or specified intervals.

split income. An equal division between spouses of earnings reported on a joint tax return, allowing for equal tax treatment in community-property and common-law states.

taxable income. Gross income minus all allowable deductions and exemptions. • Taxable income is multiplied by the applicable tax rate to compute one's tax liability. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4529; Taxation 980. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 644–645; Taxation §§ 1715–1716.]

unearned income. 1. Earnings from investments rather than labor. — Also termed investment income. 2. Income received but not yet earned; money paid in advance. Cf. earned income.

unrelated-business income. Tax. Gross income earned by a nonprofit corporation from activities unrelated to its nonprofit functions. • A nonprofit corporation's income is tax-exempt only to the extent that it is produced by activities directly related to its nonprofit purpose. — Also termed unrelated-business taxable income. IRC (26 USCA) § 512(a)(3)(A). [Cases: Internal Revenue 4068. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 473–474.]

“The [Internal Revenue] Service has justified the unrelated business income tax as a means of preventing unfair competition between tax-exempt and for-profit providers. Thus, part of the analysis of whether income from a business venture is unrelated business taxable income focuses on the impact of the activity on competitors by inquiring whether the activity at issue is one generally offered by commercial enterprise. The categorization of a business activity of an exempt organization as related or unrelated to the exempt purpose of the organization follows very few bright-line rules. Approaches to the question of exempt purposes within the context of unrelated business income differ substantially from those used in the context of the qualification of an entity for exempt status itself.” Barry R. Furrow et al., Health Law § 8-1, at 419 (2d ed. 2000).

INCOME-AND-EXPENSE DECLARATION

income-and-expense declaration. Family law. In child-support litigation, a document that contains information on a parent's income, assets, expenses, and liabilities. — Also termed financial statement.

INCOME APPROACH

income approach. A method of appraising real property based on capitalization of the income that the property is expected to generate. Cf. MARKET APPROACH; COST APPROACH . [Cases: Taxation 348(5).]

INCOME AVERAGING

income averaging. Tax. A method of computing tax by averaging a person's current income with that of preceding years. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3092. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 334.]

“A distinct departure from the strict annual system of taxing income is the concept of averaging income, allowed until repeal by the 1986 T.R.A.... [T]he rate at which the item was taxed was made to depend not only on the rates and level of income for that year, but upon the taxpayer's experience over the past four years. The item was (sometimes) taxed as if it had been received over a four-year period. Especially for authors, actors, athletes, and other taxpayers who have fluctuating or bunched income and face graduated tax rates that apply on an annual basis, income averaging was most important.” John K. McNulty, Federal Income Taxation of Individuals in a Nutshell 353 (5th ed. 1995).

INCOME-BASED PLAN

income-based plan. See CHAPTER 13.

INCOME-BASIS METHOD

income-basis method. A method of computing the rate of return on a security using the interest and price paid rather than the face value.

INCOME BENEFICIARY

IN CONTEMPLATION OF DEATH

in contemplation of death. See CONTEMPLATION OF DEATH.

INCONTESTABILITY CLAUSE

incontestability clause. Insurance. An insurance-policy provision (esp. found in a life-insurance policy) that prevents the insurer, after a specified period (usu. one or two years), from disputing the policy's validity on the basis of fraud or mistake; a clause that bars all defenses except those reserved (usu. conditions and the payment of premiums). • Most states require that a life-insurance policy contain a clause making the policy incontestable after it has been in effect for a specified period, unless the insured does not pay premiums or violates policy conditions relating to military service. Some states also require similar provisions in accident and sickness policies. — Also termed noncontestability clause; incontestable clause; uncontestable clause. Cf. CONTESTABILITY CLAUSE. [Cases: Insurance 3121. C.J.S. Insurance § 1636.]

INCONTESTABILITY STATUS

incontestability status. Trademarks. A classification of a trademark that meets certain criteria — including commercial use for five years after being placed on the Principal Register — as immune from legal challenge. • Although incontestability does not confer absolute immunity, it makes a challenge much more difficult. 37 USCA § 1065. Cf. DECLARATION OF USE. [Cases: Trade Regulation 252. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 199.]

INCONTESTABLE POLICY

incontestable policy. See INSURANCE POLICY.

INCONTINENTI

incontinenti (in-kon-ti-nen-ti), adv. [Law Latin] Immediately; without any interval or intermission. — Also spelled in continenti.

INCONTROVERTIBLE-PHYSICAL-FACTS DOCTRINE

incontrovertible-physical-facts doctrine. See PHYSICAL-FACTS RULE.

INCONVENIENCE

inconvenience. See RULE OF INCONVENIENCE.

INCONVENIENT FORUM

inconvenient forum. See FORUM NON CONVENIENS.

INCORPORAMUS

incorporamus (in-kor-p<<schwa>>-ray-m<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] Hist. We incorporate. • This word indicated an intent to incorporate.

“All the other methods therefore whereby corporations exist, by common law, by prescription, and by act of parliament, are for the most part reducible to this of the king's letters patent, or charter of incorporation. The king's creation may be performed by the words ‘creamus, erigimus, fundamus, incorporamus,’ or the like.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 461 (1765).

INCORPORATE

incorporate, vb. 1. To form a legal corporation <she incorporated the family business>. [Cases: Corporations 1. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 2, 4.] 2. To combine with something else <incorporate the exhibits into the agreement>. 3. To make the terms of another (esp. earlier) document part of a document by specific reference <the codicil incorporated the terms of the will>; esp., to apply the provisions of the Bill of Rights to the states by interpreting the 14th Amendment's Due Process Clause as encompassing those provisions.

INCORPORATION

incorporation, n. 1. The formation of a legal corporation. See ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION. [Cases: Corporations 1. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 2, 4.] 2. Constitutional law. The process of applying the provisions of the Bill of Rights to the states by interpreting the 14th Amendment's Due Process Clause as encompassing those provisions. • In a variety of opinions since 1897, the Supreme Court has incorporated the First, Fourth, Sixth, and Ninth Amendments into the Fourteenth Amendment's Due Process Clause. [Cases: Constitutional Law 254.2. C.J.S. Constitutional Law § 951.] selective incorporation. Incorporation of certain provisions of the Bill of Rights. • Justice Benjamin Cardozo, who served from 1932 to 1938, first advocated this approach. [Cases: Constitutional Law 254.2. C.J.S. Constitutional Law § 951.]

total incorporation. Incorporation of all of the Bill of Rights. • Justice Hugo Black, who served on the U.S. Supreme Court from 1937 to 1971, first advocated this approach. [Cases: Constitutional Law 254.2. C.J.S. Constitutional Law § 951.]

3. INCORPORATION BY REFERENCE. — incorporate, vb.

INCORPORATION BY REFERENCE

incorporation by reference. 1. A method of making a secondary document part of a primary document by including in the primary document a statement that the secondary document should be treated as if it were contained within the primary one. • With a contract, the document to be incorporated must be referred to and described in the contract in such a way that the document's identity is clear beyond doubt. With a will, the rule applies only to clearly identified writings that existed when the testator signed the will. Unif. Probate Code § 2-510. Not all jurisdictions follow this rule for either contracts or wills. — Often shortened to incorporation. — Also termed adoption by reference. 2. Patents. The explicit inclusion in one patent application of information already contained in another document, such as another patent or patent application. • Generally, the reference must be to a U.S. patent or application if the information is essential (i.e., the description, enabling disclosure, or best mode), but otherwise it may be to a foreign patent or a nonpatent publication. Incorporation by reference is often used in a continuing application to cite the disclosure contained in a parent application. Cf. CROSS-REFERENCE. [Cases: Patents 99. C.J.S. Patents § 139.] 3. Patents. The inclusion in a patent claim of information from an external drawing or table. • Incorporation by reference is a necessity doctrine, available when there is no other practical way to convey the information in words, and when it is more concise and clear to refer the examiner to the graphic element.

INCORPORATOR

incorporator. A person who takes part in the formation of a corporation, usu. by executing the articles of incorporation. — Also termed corporator.

“An ‘incorporator’ must be sharply distinguished from a ‘subscriber.’ The latter agrees to buy shares in the corporation; in other words, a subscriber is an investor and participant in the venture. An ‘incorporator’ on the other hand serves the largely ceremonial or ministerial functions described in this section. At one time many states required that an incorporator also be a subscriber of shares; however, such requirement appears to have disappeared in all states.” Robert W. Hamilton, The Law of Corporations in a Nutshell 34 (3d ed. 1991).

IN CORPORE

in corpore (in kor-p<<schwa>>-ree). [Latin] In body or substance; in a material thing or object.

IN CURSU REBELLIONIS

in cursu rebellionis (in k<<schwa>>r-s[y]oo ri-bel-ee-oh-nis). [Law Latin] Hist. In the course of rebellion.

“In cursu rebellionis .... All persons were formerly regarded as in rebellion against the Crown who had been put to the horn for non-fulfilment of a civil obligation; their whole moveable estate fell to the Crown as escheat; they might be put to death with impunity; and lost all their legal privileges. If the denunciation remained unrelaxed for year and day (which was the time known as the cursus rebellionis), the rebel was esteemed civiliter mortuus, and his heritage reverted to the superior .... Denunciation for civil obligation and its consequences were in effect abolished by the Act 20 Geo. II. c. 50.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 257 (4th ed. 1894).

IN CUSTODIA LEGIS

in custodia legis (in k<<schwa>>-stoh-dee-<<schwa>> lee-jis). [Latin] In the custody of the law <the debtor's automobile was in custodia legis after being seized by the sheriff>. • The phrase is traditionally used in reference to property taken into the court's charge during pending litigation over it. — Also termed in legal custody. [Cases: Attachment 64; Execution 55; Garnishment 58. C.J.S. Attachment § 60; Executions § 56.]

INDEBITATUS

indebitatus (in-deb-i-tay-t<<schwa>>s), p.pl.[Law Latin] Indebted. See NUNQUAM

INDEBITATUS .

INDEBITATUS ASSUMPSIT

indebitatus assumpsit (in-deb-i-tay-t<<schwa>>s <<schwa>>-s<<schwa>>m[p]-sit). See ASSUMPSIT.

INDEBITI SOLUTIO

indebiti solutio (in-deb-i-tī s<<schwa>>-l[y]oo-shee-oh). [Latin] Roman & Scots law. Payment of what is not owed. • Money paid under the mistaken belief that it was owed could be recovered by condictio indebiti. See condictio indebiti under CONDICTIO.

“Indebiti Solutio — When a person has paid in error what he was not bound to pay the law lays upon the person who has received payment a duty of restitution.... Payment (solutio) includes any performance whereby one person has been enriched at the expense of another. Usually it will be the handing over of money or of some other thing, but it may also consist in undertaking a new liability or in discharging an existing liability.” R.W. Lee, The Elements of Roman Law 373–74 (4th ed. 1956).

INDEBITUM

indebitum (in-deb-i-t<<schwa>>m), n. & adj. Roman law. A debt that in fact is not owed. • Money paid for a nonexistent debt could be recovered by the action condictio indebiti. Cf. DEBITUM.

“A conditional debt if paid could be recovered as an indebitum, so long as the condition was outstanding.” W.W. Buckland, A Manual of Roman Private Law 255 (2d ed. 1939).

INDEBTEDNESS

indebtedness (in-det-id-nis).1. The condition or state of owing money. 2. Something owed; a debt.

INDECENCY

indecency,n. The state or condition of being outrageously offensive, esp. in a vulgar or sexual way. • Unlike obscene material, indecent speech is protected under the First Amendment. Cf. OBSCENITY. [Cases: Obscenity 1.C.J.S. Obscenity §§ 1–8.] — indecent,adj.

“Obscenity is that which is offensive to chastity. Indecency is often used with the same meaning, but may also include anything which is outrageously disgusting. These were not the names of common-law crimes, but were words used in describing or identifying certain deeds which were.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 471 (3d ed. 1982).

INDECENT ADVERTISING

indecent advertising. 1. Signs, broadcasts, or other forms of communication that use grossly objectionable words, symbols, pictures, or the like to sell or promote goods, services, events, etc. 2.Archaic. In some jurisdictions, the statutory offense of advertising the sale of abortifacients and (formerly) contraceptives.

INDECENT EXHIBITION

indecent exhibition. The act of publicly displaying or offering for sale something (such as a photograph or book) that is outrageously offensive, esp. in a vulgar or sexual way. [Cases: Obscenity 6–7. C.J.S. Obscenity §§ 1–8, 12–16.]

INDECENT EXPOSURE

indecent exposure. An offensive display of one's body in public, esp. of the genitals. — Also termed exposure of person. Cf. LEWDNESS; OBSCENITY. [Cases: Obscenity 3. C.J.S. Obscenity §§ 9–10.]

“Indecent exposure of the person to public view is also a common-law misdemeanor. Blackstone did not deal with it separately. ‘The last offense which I shall mention,’ he said, ‘more immediately against religion and morality, and cognizable by the temporal courts, is that of open and notorious lewdness; either by frequenting houses of ill fame, which is an indictable offense; or by some grossly scandalous and public indecency, for which the punishment is by fine and imprisonment.’ In other words private indecency was exclusively under the jurisdiction of the ecclesiastical court but public indecency of an extreme nature was indictable.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 473 (3d ed. 1982) (quoting 4 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 64 (1769)).

INDECENT LIBERTIES

indecent liberties. Improper behavior, usu. toward a child, esp. of a sexual nature. [Cases: Infants 13. C.J.S. Infants §§ 5, 92–93, 95–98.]

INDECIMABLE

indecimable (in-des-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l), adj. Hist. Not titheable; not liable for tithes.

INDEFEASIBLE

indefeasible (in-d<<schwa>>-feez-<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l), adj. (Of a claim or right) not vulnerable to being defeated, revoked, or lost <an indefeasible estate>.

INDEFEASIBLE REMAINDER

indefeasible remainder. See REMAINDER.

INDEFINITE SENTENCE

indefinite sentence. See indeterminate sentence under SENTENCE.

INDEFINITE SENTENCING

indefinite sentencing. See INDETERMINATE SENTENCING.

IN DEI NOMINE

in Dei nomine (in dee-Inahm-<<schwa>>-nee). [Latin] Hist. In the name of God. • This was the opening phrase of certain writs.

IN DELICTO

in delicto (in d<<schwa>>-lik-toh). [Latin] In fault. See IN PARI DELICTO. Cf. EX DELICTO(1).

INDEMNIFICATION

indemnification (in-dem-n<<schwa>>-fi-kay-sh<<schwa>>n), n.1. The action of compensating for loss or damage sustained. 2. The compensation so made. [Cases: Indemnity 20.] — indemnificatory, adj.

INDEMNIFIER

indemnifier. See INDEMNITOR.

INDEMNIFY

indemnify (in-dem-n<<schwa>>-fi), vb.1. To reimburse (another) for a loss suffered because of a third party's or one's own act or default. [Cases: Indemnity 20–84.] 2. To promise to reimburse (another) for such a loss. [Cases: Indemnity 25.] 3. To give (another) security against such a loss. — indemnifiable, adj.

---

indemnis (in-dem-nis), adj.[Latin] Hist. Free from loss or damage; harmless.

INDEMNITEE

indemnatee (in-dem-n<<schwa>>-tee). One who receives indemnity from another. [Cases: Indemnity 31(3), 33, 63.]

INDEMNITOR

indemnitor (in-dem-n<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>r or -tor). One who indemnifies another. — Also termed indemnifier. [Cases: Indemnity 31(3), 33, 63.]

INDEMNITY

indemnity (in-dem-n<<schwa>>-tee), n.1. A duty to make good any loss, damage, or liability incurred by another. [Cases: Indemnity 20, 25, 50–61.] 2. The right of an injured party to claim reimbursement for its loss, damage, or liability from a person who has such a duty. 3. Reimbursement or compensation for loss, damage, or liability in tort; esp., the right of a party who is secondarily liable to recover from the party who is primarily liable for reimbursement of expenditures paid to a third party for injuries resulting from a violation of a common-law duty. Cf. CONTRIBUTION. — indemnitory,adj.

double indemnity.The payment of twice the basic benefit in the event of a specified loss, esp. as in an insurance contract requiring the insurer to pay twice the policy's face amount in the case of accidental death. [Cases: Insurance 2599. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1094, 1096, 1170–1171.]

indemnity against liability.A right to indemnity that arises on the indemnitor's default, regardless of whether the indemnitee has suffered a loss. [Cases: Indemnity 31(4), 42.]

“Indemnity against Liability — Where the indemnity is against liability, the cause of action is complete and the indemnitee may recover on the contract as soon as his liability has become fixed and established, even though he has sustained no actual loss or damage at the time he seeks to recover. Thus, under such a contract, a cause of action accrues to the indemnitee on the recovery of a judgment against him, and he may recover from the indemnitor without proof of payment of the judgment.” 42 C.J.S. Indemnity § 22 (1991).

INDEMNITY BOND

indemnity bond.See BOND(2).

INDEMNITY CLAUSE

indemnity clause.A contractual provision in which one party agrees to answer for any specified or unspecified liability or harm that the other party might incur. — Also termed hold-harmless clause; save-harmless clause. Cf. EXEMPTION CLAUSE. [Cases: Indemnity 25, 31(4).]

INDEMNITY CONTRACT

indemnity contract. See CONTRACT.

INDEMNITY INSURANCE

indemnity insurance. See first-party insurance under INSURANCE.

INDEMNITY LAND

indemnity land. 1. Public land granted to a railroad company to help defray the cost of constructing a right-of-way. • This land indemnifies a railroad company for land given in a previous grant but since rendered unavailable for railroad use by a disposition or reservation made after the original grant. [Cases: Public Lands 70. C.J.S. Public Lands §§ 119, 123, 128.] 2. Federally owned land granted to a state to replace previously granted land that has since been rendered unavailable for the state's use. — Also termed place land.

INDEMNITY MORTGAGE

indemnity mortgage. See deed of trust under DEED.

INDEMNITY PRINCIPLE

indemnity principle. Insurance. The doctrine that an insurance policy should not confer a benefit greater in value than the loss suffered by the insured. [Cases: Insurance 2104.]

INDENIZATION

indenization (in-den-i-zay-sh<<schwa>>n), n. See DENIZATION.

INDENT

indent, n. 1. Hist. An indented certificate of indebtedness issued by the U.S. government or a state government in the late 18th or early 19th century. 2. A contract or deed in writing.

indent (in-dent), vb. Hist. 1. To cut in a serrated or wavy line; esp., to sever (an instrument) along a serrated line to create multiple copies, each fitting into the angles of the other. See CHIROGRAPH; INDENTURE(1).

“If a deed be made by more parties than one, there ought to be regularly as many copies of it as there are parties, and each should be cut or indented (formerly in acute angles instar dentium, but at present in a waving line) on the top or side, to tally or correspond with the other; which deed, so made, is called an indenture.... Deeds thus made were denominated syngrapha by the canonists; and with us chirographa, or hand-writings; the word cirographum or cyrographum being usually that which is divided in making the indenture ....” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 295–96 (1766).

2. To agree by contract; to bind oneself. 3. To bind (a person) by contract.

INDENTED DEED

indented deed. See INDENTURE(1).

INDENTURE

indenture (in-den-ch<<schwa>>r), n.1. A formal written instrument made by two or more parties with different interests, traditionally having the edges serrated, or indented, in a zigzag fashion to reduce the possibility of forgery and to distinguish it from a deed poll. — Also termed indented deed. Cf. deed poll under DEED. [Cases: Deeds 3. C.J.S. Deeds §§ 1–8.] 2. A deed or elaborate contract signed by two or more parties.

“The distinction between a deed poll and an indenture is no longer important since 8 & 9 Vict. c. 106, § 5. Formerly a deed made by one party had a polled or smooth-cut edge, a deed made between two or more parties was copied for each on the same parchment, and the copies cut apart with indented edges, so as to enable them to be identified by fitting the parts together. Such deeds were called indentures. An indented edge is not now necessary to give the effect of an indenture to a deed purporting to be such.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 84 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

“An indenture was a deed with the top of the parchment indented, i.e., having an irregular edge. The deed was written out twice on a single sheet of parchment, which was then severed by cutting it with an irregular edge; the two halves of the parchment thus formed two separate deeds which could be fitted together to show their genuineness. This contrasted with a ‘deed poll,’ a deed to which there was only one party, which at the top had been polled, or shaved even.” Robert E. Megarry & M.P. Thompson, A Manual of the Law of Real Property 129 (6th ed. 1993).

corporate indenture. A document containing the terms and conditions governing the issuance of debt securities, such as bonds or debentures. [Cases: Corporations 471. C.J.S. Corporations § 667.]

debenture indenture. See DEBENTURE INDENTURE.

trust indenture. 1. A document containing the terms and conditions governing a trustee's conduct and the trust beneficiaries' rights. — Also termed indenture of trust. [Cases: Trusts 19–29. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion §§ 16, 35–50, 69.] 2. See deed of trust under DEED.

3.Hist. A contract by which an apprentice or other person, such as a servant, is bound to a master, usu. for a term of years or other limited period. — indentured, adj.

INDENTURED SERVANT

indentured servant. See SERVANT.

INDENTURE OF A FINE

indenture of a fine. Hist. A document engrossed by the chirographer of fines to reflect penalties assessed by the court. • The chirographer prepared indentures in duplicate on the same piece of parchment, then split the parchment along an indented line through a word, sentence, or drawing placed on the parchment to help ensure its authenticity. See CHIROGRAPHER OF FINES.

INDENTURE OF TRUST

indenture of trust. See trust indenture under INDENTURE.

---

INDENTURE TRUSTEE

indenture trustee. See TRUSTEE(1).

INDEPENDENCE

independence, n. The state or quality of being independent; esp., a country's freedom to manage all its affairs, whether external or internal, without control by other countries.

INDEPENDENT

independent, adj. 1. Not subject to the control or influence of another < independent investigation>. 2. Not associated with another (often larger) entity <an independent subsidiary>. 3. Not dependent or contingent on something else <an independent person>.

INDEPENDENT ADJUSTER

independent adjuster. See ADJUSTER.

INDEPENDENT ADOPTION

independent adoption. See private adoption under ADOPTION.

INDEPENDENT ADVICE

independent advice. Counsel that is impartial and not given to further the interests of the person giving it. • Whether a testator or donor received independent advice before making a disposition is often an important issue in an undue-influence challenge to the property disposition. — Also termed proper independent advice.

INDEPENDENT AGENCY

independent agency. See AGENCY(3).

INDEPENDENT AGENT

independent agent. See AGENT(2).

INDEPENDENT AUDIT

independent audit. See AUDIT.

INDEPENDENT CLAIM

independent claim. See PATENT CLAIM.

INDEPENDENT CONCEPTION

independent conception. See INDEPENDENT DEVELOPMENT.

INDEPENDENT CONTRACT

independent contract. See CONTRACT.

INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR

independent contractor. One who is entrusted to undertake a specific project but who is left free to do the assigned work and to choose the method for accomplishing it. • It does not matter whether the work is done for pay or gratuitously. Unlike an employee, an independent contractor who commits a wrong while carrying out the work does not create liability for the one who did the hiring. — Also termed contract labor. Cf. EMPLOYEE. [Cases: Master and Servant 5. C.J.S. Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 13–20, 34.]

INDEPENDENT COUNSEL

independent counsel. See COUNSEL.

INDEPENDENT COVENANT

independent covenant. See COVENANT(1).

INDEPENDENT CREATION

independent creation. Copyright. A defense asserting that a later work is not a derivative of an allegedly infringed work, but is a product of coincidentally parallel labor. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 75. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 43–44, 62.]

INDEPENDENT DEVELOPMENT

independent development. Intellectual property. A defense against an industrial-espionage charge wherein the user shows that the property was independently discovered or conceived. • Trademarks, symbols, inventions, and other types of intellectual property are all subject to independent development. — Also termed independent conception.

INDEPENDENT EXECUTOR

independent executor. See EXECUTOR.

INDEPENDENT FORCE

independent force. See FORCE.

INDEPENDENT INTERVENING CAUSE

independent intervening cause. See intervening cause under CAUSE(1).

INDEPENDENT INVENTION

independent invention. See INVENTION.

INDEPENDENT INVESTIGATION COMMITTEE

independent investigation committee. See SPECIAL LITIGATION COMMITTEE.

INDEPENDENT-LIVING PROGRAM

independent-living program. Family law. A training course designed to enable foster children who are near the age of majority to leave the foster-care system and manage their own affairs as adults. • Independent living programs provide education, training, and financial and employment counseling. They also help many foster youth in locating suitable post-foster-care housing. Permanency planning orders or case plans can — but are not required to — provide for independent living as a goal for a child in long-term foster care and describe how it is to be accomplished. See AGING-OUT; PERMANENCY PLAN.

INDEPENDENT MEDICAL EXAMINATION

independent medical examination. An assessment of a person's physical condition and health that is made by an impartial healthcare professional, usu. a physician. — Abbr. IME.

INDEPENDENT MENTAL EVALUATION

independent mental evaluation. An assessment of a person's mental and emotional condition that is made by an impartial mental-health professional, such as a psychologist or psychiatrist. — Abbr. IME. Cf. PSYCHIATRIC EXAMINATION.

INDEPENDENT PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE

independent personal representative. See personal representative under REPRESENTATIVE.

INDEPENDENT PROBATE

independent probate. See informal probate under PROBATE.

INDEPENDENT PROMISE

independent promise. See unconditional promise under PROMISE.

INDEPENDENT REGULATORY AGENCY

independent regulatory agency. See independent agency under AGENCY(3).

INDEPENDENT REGULATORY COMMISSION

independent regulatory commission. See independent agency under AGENCY(3).

INDEPENDENT-SIGNIFICANCE DOCTRINE

independent-significance doctrine. Wills & estates. The principle that effect will be given to a testator's disposition that is not done solely to avoid the requirements of a will. • An example is a will provision that gives the contents of the testator's safe-deposit box to his niece. Because the safe-deposit box has utility (“significance”) independent of the will, the gift of its contents at the testator's death is valid.

INDEPENDENT-SOURCE RULE

independent-source rule. Criminal procedure. The rule providing — as an exception to the fruit-of-the-poisonous-tree doctrine — that evidence obtained by illegal means may nonetheless be admissible if that evidence is also obtained by legal means unrelated to the original illegal conduct. See FRUIT-OF-THE-POISONOUS-TREE DOCTRINE. Cf. INEVITABLE-DISCOVERY RULE. [Cases: Criminal Law 394.1(3). C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 771, 773–775.]

INDEPENDENT STATE

independent state. See SOVEREIGN STATE.

INDEPENDENT UNION

independent union. See UNION.

INDESTRUCTIBLE TRUST

indestructible trust. See TRUST.

INDETERMINATE

indeterminate, adj. Not definite; not distinct or precise.

INDETERMINATE BOND

indeterminate bond. See BOND(3).

INDETERMINATE CONDITIONAL RELEASE

indeterminate conditional release. A release from prison granted once the prisoner fulfills certain conditions. • The release can be revoked if the prisoner breaches other conditions. [Cases: Prisons 15(6). C.J.S. Prisons and Rights of Prisoners § 154.]

INDETERMINATE DAMAGES

indeterminate damages. See discretionary damages under DAMAGES.

INDETERMINATE OBLIGATION

indeterminate obligation. See OBLIGATION.

INDETERMINATE SENTENCE

indeterminate sentence. See SENTENCE.

INDETERMINATE SENTENCING

indeterminate sentencing. The practice of not imposing a definite term of confinement, but instead prescribing a range for the minimum and maximum term, leaving the precise term to be fixed in some other way, usu. based on the prisoner's conduct and apparent rehabilitation while incarcerated. — Also termed indefinite sentencing. See indeterminate sentence under SENTENCE. [Cases: Sentencing and Punishment 1124.]

IN DETRIMENTUM ANIMI

in detrimentum animi (in de-tr<<schwa>>-men-t<<schwa>>m an-<<schwa>>-mI). [Latin] Hist. To the injury of the soul. • The phrase appeared in reference to the ground upon which a person was prohibited from questioning a legal document that the person had sworn to never question.

INDEX

index,n.1. An alphabetized listing of the topics or other items included in a single book or document, or in a series of volumes, usu. found at the end of the book, document, or series <index of authorities>.

grantee–grantor index.An index, usu. kept in the county recorder's office, alphabetically listing by grantee the volume and page number of the grantee's recorded property transactions. • In some jurisdictions, the grantee–grantor index is combined with the grantor–grantee index. [Cases: Records 8. C.J.S. Records §§ 15–16.]

grantor–grantee index.An index, usu. kept in the county recorder's office, alphabetically listing by grantor the volume and page number of the grantor's recorded property transactions. [Cases: Records 8; Vendor and Purchaser 231. C.J.S. Records §§ 15–16; Vendor and Purchaser § 496.]

tract index.An index, usu. kept in the county recorder's office, listing, by location of each parcel of land, the volume and page number of the recorded property transactions affecting the parcel. [Cases: Records 8; Vendor and Purchaser 231. C.J.S. Records §§ 15–16; Vendor and Purchaser § 496.]

2. A number, usu. expressed in the form of a percentage or ratio, that indicates or measures a series of observations, esp. those involving a market or the economy <cost-of-living index> <stock index>.

advance-decline index.A stock-market indicator showing the cumulative net difference between stock-price advances and declines.

INDEX ANIMI SERMO

index animi sermo (in-deks an-<<schwa>>-mIs<<schwa>>r-moh). [Latin] Speech is the index of the mind. • This maxim supports the concept that the language of a statute or instrument is the best guide to the drafter's intent.

INDEXATION

indexation. See INDEXING.

INDIAN CHILD

Indian child.Under the Indian Child Welfare Act, any unmarried person under the age of 18 who either is a member of an Indian tribe or is both eligible for membership in an Indian tribe and the biological child of a member of an Indian tribe. See INDIAN CHILD WELFARE ACT.

INDIAN CHILD WELFARE ACT

Indian Child Welfare Act.A federal act that governs child-custody proceedings — including foster-care placement, preadoptive placement, adoptive placement, and termination of parental rights — in cases involving a child of American Indian descent.25 USCA §§ 1911 et seq. • Congress enacted the Act to help protect the best interests of Indian children, to promote the stability and security of Indian tribes and families, and to counteract the disproportionate foster-care placement and adoption of Indian children by non-Indians. The Act provides minimum federal standards for removing Indian children from their families and for placing them in foster or adoptive homes that will provide an environment reflecting the values of the Indian culture. The Act has an important jurisdictional feature: in a custody dispute involving an Indian child who resides in or is domiciled within an Indian reservation, the tribe and its tribal courts have exclusive jurisdiction. And in a custody dispute involving an Indian child who lives off a reservation, upon petition, any state court should usu. defer and transfer the case to the tribal court unless a party demonstrates good cause to the contrary. — Abbr. ICWA.

---

INDIAN CLAIMS COMMISSION

Indian Claims Commission. A federal agency — dissolved in 1978 — that adjudicated claims brought by American Indians, a tribe, or another identifiable group of Indians against the United States. • The U.S. Court of Federal Claims currently hears these claims.

INDIAN COUNTRY

Indian country. 1. The land within the borders of all Indian reservations, the land occupied by an Indian community (whether or not located within a recognized reservation), and any land held in trust by the United States but beneficially owned by an Indian or tribe. See INDIAN LAND. 2. Hist. Any region (esp. during the U.S. westward migration) where a person was likely to encounter Indians.

INDIAN GAMBLING

Indian gambling. See GAMBLING.

INDIAN LAND

Indian land. Land owned by the United States but held in trust for and used by American Indians. — Also termed Indian tribal property. Cf. TRIBAL LAND. [Cases: Indians 9. C.J.S. Indians § 67.]

INDIAN LAW

Indian law. See NATIVE AMERICAN LAW.

INDIAN RESERVATION

Indian reservation. An area that the federal government has designated for use by an American Indian tribe, where the tribe generally settles and establishes a tribal government. [Cases: Indians 12. C.J.S. Indians §§ 72–74, 79–80.]

INDIAN TERRITORY

Indian Territory. A former U.S. territory — now a part of the state of Oklahoma — to which the Cherokee, Choctaw, Chickasaw, Creek, and Seminole tribes were forcibly moved between 1830 and 1843. • In the late 19th century, most of this territory was ceded to the United States, and in 1907 the greater part of it became the State of Oklahoma.

INDIAN TITLE

Indian title. A right of occupancy that the federal government grants to an American Indian tribe based on the tribe's immemorial possession of the area. • Congress does not recognize tribal ownership of the land, only possession. A tribe or nation must actually, exclusively, and continuously use the property to establish that it is the ancestral home. An individual may claim Indian title by showing that the individual or his or her lineal ancestors continuously occupied a parcel of land, as individuals, before the land was closed to settlers. — Also termed aboriginal title; right of occupancy. Cf. aboriginal title (1) under TITLE(2).

---

INDIAN TRIBAL PROPERTY

Indian tribal property. See INDIAN LAND.

INDIAN TRIBE

Indian tribe. A group, band, nation, or other organized group of indigenous American people, including any Alaskan native village, that is recognized as eligible for the special programs and services provided by the U.S. government because of Indian status (42 USCA § 9601(36)); esp., any such group having a federally recognized governing body that carries out substantial governmental duties and powers over an area (42 USCA § 300f(14); 40 CFR § 146.3). • A tribe may be identified in various ways, esp. by past dealings with other tribes or with the federal, state, or local government, or by recognition in historical records. [Cases: Indians 1–2. C.J.S. Indians §§ 2–4, 23–29, 38–39, 94, 130, 156.]

“The Indian tribe is the fundamental unit of Indian Law; in its absence there is no occasion for the law to operate. Yet there is no all-purpose definition of an Indian tribe. A group of Indians may qualify as a tribe for the purpose of one statute or federal program, but fail to qualify for others. Definitions must accordingly be used with extreme caution.” William C. Canby Jr., American Indian Law in a Nutshell 3–4 (2d ed. 1988).

INDICARE

indicare (in-di-kair-ee), vb. [Latin] 1. Roman law. To accuse (someone) of a crime; to provide evidence against someone. 2. Civil law. To show or discover. 3. Civil law. To fix or tell the price of a thing. See INDICIUM.

INDICATOR

indicator. Securities. An average or index that shows enough of a correlation to market trends or economic conditions that it can help analyze market performance.

coincident indicator. An economic or market-activity index or indicator that shows changing trends near the same time that overall conditions begin to change.

economic indicator. See ECONOMIC INDICATOR.

lagging indicator. 1. An index that indicates a major stock-market change sometime after the change occurs. 2. See lagging economic indicator under ECONOMIC INDICATOR.

leading indicator. 1. A quantifiable index that predicts a major stock-market change. 2. See leading economic indicator under ECONOMIC INDICATOR.

INDICAVIT

indicavit (in-di-kay-vit). [Law Latin “he has indicated”] Hist. A writ of prohibition by which a church patron removes to a common-law court an ecclesiastical-court action between two clerics who dispute each other's right to a benefice. • The writ was long available — nominally up to the 20th century — under the 1306 statute De Conjunctim Feoffatis (34 Edw. I). Actions concerning clerics' rights to a benefice were usu. tried in ecclesiastical courts, but they could be removed to a common-law court if the action involved a church patron in some way, as when one cleric was appointed by a certain patron and the other cleric was appointed by another patron. Cf. ADVOWSON.

INDICIA

indicia (in-dish-ee-<<schwa>>), n. pl. 1. Roman law. Evidence. 2. (pl.) Signs; indications <the purchase receipts are indicia of ownership>.

INDICIA OF TITLE

INDICIUM

indicium (in-dish-ee-*<<schwa>>*m), n. [Latin] Roman law. 1. The act of providing evidence against an accused. 2. The act of promising recompense for a certain service. 3. A sign or mark; esp., something used as a type of proof. See INDICARE.

INDICT

indict (in-dIt), vb. To charge (a person) with a crime by formal legal process, esp. by grand-jury presentation. — Also formerly spelled endite; indite.

INDICTABLE MISDEMEANOR

indictable misdemeanor. See serious misdemeanor under MISDEMEANOR.

INDICTABLE OFFENSE

indictable offense. See OFFENSE(1).

INDICTEE

indictee (in-dI-tee). A person who has been indicted; one officially charged with a crime.

INDICTIO

indictio (in-dik-shee-oh), n. [Latin] 1. Roman law. An imperial proclamation establishing a 15-year period for the reassessment of property values for tax purposes. • Indictio also referred to the 15-year cycle itself. 2. A declaration or proclamation, such as a declaration of war (indictio belli). 3. An indictment. Pl. indictiones (in-dik-shee-oh-neeZ).

INDICTMENT

indictment (in-dIt-m*<<schwa>>*nt), n. 1. The formal written accusation of a crime, made by a grand jury and presented to a court for prosecution against the accused person. See Fed. R. Crim. P. 7. [Cases: Indictment and Information 17. C.J.S. Indictments and Informations § 28.] 2. The act or process of preparing or bringing forward such a formal written accusation. Cf. INFORMATION; PRESENTMENT(2).

barebones indictment. An indictment that cites only the language of the statute allegedly violated; an indictment that does not provide a factual statement.

“What has been called ‘a bare bones indictment using only statutory language’ is quite common, and entirely permissible so long as the statute sets forth fully, directly, and expressly all essential elements of the crime intended to be punished.” 1 Charles Alan Wright, Federal Practice and Procedure § 125, at 558–59 (3d ed. 1999).

duplicitous indictment (d[y]oo-plis-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>s). 1. An indictment containing two or more offenses in the same count. [Cases: Indictment and Information 125. C.J.S. Indictments and Informations §§ 146–148.] 2. An indictment charging the same offense in more than one count.

in diem addictio. See ADDICTIO IN DIEM.

INDIFFERENCE

indifference. A lack of interest in or concern about something; apathy.

deliberate indifference. Criminal law. The careful preservation of one's ignorance despite awareness of circumstances that would put a reasonable person on notice of a fact essential to a crime. See JEWELL INSTRUCTION.

INDIGENA

indigena (in-dij-<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>). [Latin “native”] Hist. A subject born within the English realm or naturalized by act of Parliament. Cf. ALIENIGENA.

INDIGENCY

indigency, n. The state or condition of a person who lacks the means of subsistence; extreme hardship or neediness; poverty. • For purposes of the Sixth Amendment right to appointed counsel, indigency refers to a defendant's inability to afford an attorney. — Also termed indigence. — indigent, adj. & n.

“Supreme Court opinions speak generally of the rights of an ‘indigent defendant’ without offering any specific definition of ‘indigency.’ ... The appellate courts agree that indigency is not a synonym for ‘destitute.’ ... Among the factors to be considered in evaluating the individual's financial capacity are: (1) income from employment and such governmental programs as social security and unemployment compensation; (2) real and personal property; (3) number of dependents; (4) outstanding debts; (5) seriousness of the charge (which suggests the likely fee of a retained attorney); and (6) other legal expenses (such as bail bond).” Wayne R. LaFave & Jerold H. Israel, Criminal Procedure § 11.3(g), at 544 (2d ed. 1992).

INDIGENT

indigent (in-di-j<<schwa>>nt), n. 1. A poor person. 2. A person who is found to be financially unable to pay filing fees and court costs and so is allowed to proceed in forma pauperis. • The Supreme Court has recognized an indigent petitioner's right to have certain fees and costs waived in divorce and termination-of-parental-rights cases. Boddie v. Connecticut, 401 U.S. 371, 91 S.Ct. 780 (1971); M.L.B. v. S.L.J., 519 U.S. 102, 117 S.Ct. 555 (1996). See PAUPER; IN FORMA PAUPERIS. — indigent,adj.

INDIGENT DEFENDANT

indigent defendant.A person who is too poor to hire a lawyer and who, upon indictment, becomes eligible to receive aid from a court-appointed attorney and a waiver of court costs. See IN FORMA PAUPERIS. Cf. PAUPER. [Cases: Costs 301.1; Criminal Law 641.6(3). C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 279–280, 298–299, 301, 303.]

INDIGNITY

indignity (in-dig-ni-tee), n. Family law. A ground for divorce consisting in one spouse's pattern of behavior calculated to humiliate the other. — Also termed personal indignity. Cf. CRUELTY. [Cases: Divorce 29. C.J.S. Divorce § 53.]

INDIRECT NOTICE

indirect notice. See implied notice under NOTICE.

INDIRECT POSSESSION

indirect possession. See mediate possession under POSSESSION.

INDIRECT-PURCHASER DOCTRINE

indirect-purchaser doctrine. Antitrust. The principle that in litigation for price discrimination, the court will ignore sham middle parties in determining whether different prices were paid by different customers for the same goods. • This doctrine gives standing to bring an antitrust action to a party who is not an immediate purchaser of a product. Thus, if a manufacturer sells a product to a retailer, but dictates the terms by which the retailer must sell the product to a consumer, a court will ignore the retailer and treat the consumer as the direct purchaser of the product.

INDIRECT TAX

indirect tax. See TAX.

INDISCRIMINATE ATTACK

indiscriminate attack. Int'l law. An aggressive act that (1) is not carried out for a specific military objective, (2) employs a means of combat not directed at a specific military objective, or (3) employs a means of combat the effects of which cannot be limited in accordance with an international protocol such as the Geneva Conventions of 1949 and their protocols or the Hague Conventions of 1899 and 1907.

INDISPENSABLE-ELEMENT TEST

indispensable-element test. Criminal law. A common-law test for the crime of attempt, based on whether the defendant acquires control over any thing that is essential to the crime. • Under this test, for example, a person commits a crime by buying the explosives with which to detonate a bomb. See ATTEMPT (2). [Cases: Criminal Law 44. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 114–123.]

INDISPENSABLE EVIDENCE

INDIVIDUAL PROPRIETORSHIP

individual proprietorship.See SOLE PROPRIETORSHIP.

INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNT

individual retirement account.A savings or brokerage account to which a person may contribute up to a specified amount of earned income each year. • The contributions, along with any interest earned in the account, are not taxed until the money is withdrawn after a participant reaches 59 1/2 (or before then, if a 10% penalty is paid). — Abbr. IRA. Cf. KEOGH PLAN. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3594. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 206–208, 319–326.]

education individual retirement account.An individual retirement account from which withdrawals may be made tax-free if the withdrawn funds are used for education costs. • Before 2002, annual contributions were limited to $500. In 2002, the contribution limit increased to $2,000 per year for families with incomes under $190,000.

Roth IRA. An IRA in which contributions are nondeductible when they are made. • No further taxes are assessed on the contributions (or accrued interest) when the money is withdrawn (if all applicable rules are followed). This term takes its name from Senator William Roth, who sponsored the legislation creating this type of IRA.

INDIVIDUALS WITH DISABILITIES EDUCATION ACT

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. A federal statute that governs the public education of children with physical or mental handicaps and attempts to ensure that these children receive a free public education that meets their unique needs. • The Education of All Handicapped Children Act (enacted in 1975) was renamed the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act in 1990, and this Act was substantially amended in 1997. All states currently participate in this joint federal–state initiative. 20 USCA §§ 1400–1485. — Abbr. IDEA.

INDORSE

indorse, vb. To sign (a negotiable instrument), usu. on the back, either to accept responsibility for paying an obligation memorialized by the instrument or to make the instrument payable to someone other than the payee. — Also spelled endorse.

INDORSEE

indorsee (in-dor-see). A person to whom a negotiable instrument is transferred by indorsement. — Also spelled endorsee.

indorsee in due course. An indorsee who, in the ordinary course of business, acquires a negotiable instrument in good faith for value, before its maturity, and without knowledge of its dishonor.

INDORSEMENT

indorsement, n. 1. The placing of a signature, sometimes with an additional notation, on the back of a negotiable instrument to transfer or guarantee the instrument or to acknowledge payment. 2. The signature or notation itself. — Also spelled endorsement. — indorse, vb.

“The clever indorser can subscribe his or her name under a variety of magic phrases. The Code specifies the legal effect of some of these phrases. Qualified indorsements (‘without recourse’) limit the liability of the indorser if the instrument is dishonored. Restrictive indorsements such as ‘for deposit only,’ ‘pay any bank,’ and the like set the terms for further negotiation of the instrument. Their main purpose is to prevent thieves and embezzlers from cashing checks.” 2 James J. White & Robert S. Summers, Uniform Commercial Code § 16-7, at 92–93 (4th ed. 1995).

accommodation indorsement. An indorsement to an instrument by a third party who acts as surety for another party who remains primarily liable. See ACCOMMODATION PAPER. [Cases: Bills and Notes 236. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 63.]

anomalous indorsement. See irregular indorsement.

blank indorsement. An indorsement that names no specific payee, thus making the instrument payable to the bearer and negotiable by delivery only. UCC § 3-205(b). — Also termed indorsement in blank; general indorsement. [Cases: Bills and Notes 188, 288. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 153.]

collection indorsement. See restrictive indorsement.

conditional indorsement. An indorsement that restricts the instrument in some way, as by limiting how the instrument can be paid or transferred; an indorsement giving possession of the instrument to the indorsee, but retaining title until the occurrence of some condition named in the indorsement. • Wordings that indicate this type of indorsement are “Pay to Brad Jones when he becomes 18 years of age” and “Pay to Brigitte Turner, or order, unless before payment I give you notice to the contrary.” — Also termed restricted indorsement; restrictive indorsement. Cf. special indorsement. [Cases: Bills and Notes 190, 199, 290. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 154–155.]

full indorsement. See irregular indorsement, special indorsement.

general indorsement. See blank indorsement.

indorsement in blank. See blank indorsement.

indorsement in full. See special indorsement.

indorsement without recourse. See qualified indorsement.

irregular indorsement. An indorsement by a person who signs outside the chain of title and who therefore is neither a holder nor a transferor of the instrument. • An irregular indorser is generally treated as an accommodation party. UCC § 3-205(c). — Also termed anomalous indorsement; full indorsement. See ACCOMMODATION PARTY. [Cases: Bills and Notes 191, 294. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 24, 156.]

qualified indorsement. An indorsement that passes title to the instrument but limits the indorser's liability to later holders if the instrument is later dishonored. • Typically, a qualified indorsement is made by writing “without recourse” or “sans recourse” over the signature. — Also termed indorsement without recourse. UCC § 3-415(b). See WITHOUT RECOURSE. [Cases: Bills and Notes 293. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 160.]

restricted indorsement. See conditional indorsement.

restrictive indorsement. An indorsement that includes a condition (e.g., “pay Josefina Cardoza only if she has worked 8 full hours on April 13”) or any other language restricting further negotiation (e.g., “for deposit only”). — Also termed collection indorsement. See conditional indorsement. [Cases: Bills and Notes 190, 199, 290. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 154–155.]

special indorsement. An indorsement that specifies the person to receive payment or to whom the goods named by the document must be delivered. UCC § 3-205(a). — Also termed indorsement in full; full indorsement. Cf. conditional indorsement. [Cases: Bills and Notes 189, 289. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 152.]

trust indorsement. An indorsement stating that the payee becomes a trustee for a third person (e.g., “pay Erin Ray in trust for Kaitlin Ray”); a restrictive indorsement that limits the instrument to the use of the indorser or another person.

unauthorized indorsement. An indorsement made without authority, such as a forged indorsement. [Cases: Bills and Notes 239, 279. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 29, 150–151.]

unqualified indorsement. An indorsement that does not limit the indorser's liability on the paper. • It does not, for example, include the phrase “without recourse.” [Cases: Bills and Notes 281, 287, 293. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 147, 160.]

unrestrictive indorsement. An indorsement that includes no condition or language restricting negotiation. — Also termed unrestricted indorsement. [Cases: Bills and Notes 190, 199, 290. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 154–155.]

INDORSER

indorser. A person who transfers a negotiable instrument by indorsement; specif., one who signs a negotiable instrument other than as maker, drawer, or acceptor. — Also spelled endorser.

accommodation indorser. An indorser who acts as surety for another person.

IN DOTE AESTIMATA

in dote aestimata (in doh-tee es-ti-may-t<<schwa>>). [Latin] Roman & civil law. When the dowry was valued. • When the dowry had been valued, the husband owed a sum of money representing the value and could dispose of the specific items of which the dowry was composed.

IN DUBIO

in dubio (in d[y]oo-bee-oh), adv. & adj. [Latin] In doubt.

INDUCED ABORTION

induced abortion. See ABORTION.

INDUCEMENT

inducement, n. 1. The act or process of enticing or persuading another person to take a certain course of action. See fraud in the inducement under FRAUD.

active inducement. The act of intentionally causing a third party to infringe a valid patent. • Active inducement requires proof of (1) an actual intent to cause the patent infringement and (2) knowledge of the patent. [Cases: Patents 259(1). C.J.S. Patents § 427.]

2. Contracts. The benefit or advantage that causes a promisor to enter into a contract. 3. Criminal law. An enticement or urging of another person to commit a crime. 4. The preliminary statement in a pleading; esp., in an action for defamation, the plaintiff's allegation that extrinsic facts gave a defamatory meaning to a statement that is not defamatory on its face, or, in a criminal indictment, a statement of preliminary facts necessary to show the criminal character of the alleged offense. Cf. INNUENDO(2); COLLOQUIUM. [Cases: Libel and Slander 81. C.J.S. Libel and Slander; Injurious Falsehood §§ 4, 129–130.] — induce, vb.

INDUCEMENT OF BREACH OF CONTRACT

INDUCT

induct, vb. 1. To put into possession of (something, such as an office or benefice). 2. To admit as a member. 3. To enroll (a person) for military service. [Cases: Armed Services 20.10(2). C.J.S. Armed Services § 67.]

INDUCTIO

inductio (in-d<<schwa>>k-shee-oh), n. [Latin] Roman law. The act of erasing a writing or part of it, as when a testator struck a legacy from a will. Pl. inductiones (in-d<<schwa>>k-shee-oh-nee-z).

INDUCTION

induction. 1. The act or process of initiating <the induction of three new members into the legal fraternity>. 2. The act or process of reasoning from specific instances to general propositions <after looking at several examples, the group reasoned by induction that it is a very poor practice to begin a new paragraph by abruptly bringing up a new case>. Cf. DEDUCTION(4).

indult (in-d<<schwa>>lt).Eccles. law. A dispensation granted by the Pope to do or obtain something contrary to canon law. • Historically, indults were often used for political ends. An indult granted to a sovereign empowered the recipient to present an ecclesiastical benefice, usu. without papal interference. Less exalted bodies, such as the parliament of Paris and the college of cardinals, were sometimes granted similar privileges. — Also termed indulto.

INDULTO

INFRA HOSPITIUM&lt;TT&gt;

infra hospitium (in-fr<<schwa>> hah-spish-ee-<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin “within the inn”] The doctrine that an innkeeper is liable for goods deposited by a guest. [Cases: Innkeepers 11. C.J.S. Inns, Hotels and Eating Places §§ 36–37.]

INFRA JURISDICTIONEM&lt;TT&gt;

infra jurisdictionem (in-fr<<schwa>> joor-is-dik-shee-oh-n<<schwa>>m), adv. & adj.[Law Latin] Within the jurisdiction.

INFRA PRAESIDIA&lt;TT&gt;

infra praesidia (in-fr<<schwa>> pr<<schwa>>-sid-ee-<<schwa>>). [Latin “within the defenses”] Hist. The international-law doctrine that someone who captures goods will be considered the owner of the goods if they are brought completely within the captor's power. • This term is a corruption of the Roman-law term intra praesidia, which referred to goods or persons taken by an enemy during war. Under the principle of postliminium, the captured person's rights or goods were restored to prewar status when the captured person returned. See POSTLIMINIUM.

“In war, when those who are our enemies have captured someone on our side and have taken him into their own lines [intra praesidia]; for if during the same war he returns he has postliminium, that is, all his rights are restored to him just as if he had not been captured by the enemy.” Digest of Justinian 49.15.5.1 (Pomponius, Quintus Mucius 37).

INFRASTRUCTURE

infrastructure. The underlying framework of a system; esp., public services and facilities (such as highways, schools, bridges, sewers, and water systems) needed to support commerce as well as economic and residential development.

IN FRAUDEM CREDITORUM

in fraudem creditorum (in fraw-d<<schwa>>m kre-di-tor-<<schwa>>m), adv.[Latin] In fraud of creditors.

IN FRAUDEM LEGIS

in fraudem legis (in fraw-d<<schwa>>m lee-jis), adv.[Latin] In fraud of the law. • With an intent to evade the law.

INFRINGEMENT

infringement,n. Intellectual property. An act that interferes with one of the exclusive rights of a patent, copyright, or trademark owner. See INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY . Cf. PLAGIARISM. — infringe,vb. contributory infringement. 1. The act of participating in, or contributing to, the infringing acts of another person. • The law imposes vicarious liability for contributory infringement. 2.Patents. The act of aiding or abetting another person's patent infringement by knowingly selling a nonstaple item that has no substantial noninfringing use and is esp. adapted for use in a patented combination or process. • In the patent context, contributory infringement is statutorily defined in the Patent Act. 35 USCA § 271(c). [Cases: Patents 259. C.J.S. Patents § 427.] 3.Copyright. The act of either (1) actively inducing, causing, or materially contributing to the infringing conduct of another person, or (2) providing the goods or means necessary to help another person infringe (as by making facilities available for an infringing performance). • In the copyright context, contributory infringement is a common-law doctrine. 4.Trademarks. A manufacturer's or distributor's conduct in knowingly supplying, for resale, goods bearing an infringing mark. [Cases: Trade Regulation 374. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 85.]

copyright infringement.The act of violating any of a copyright owner's exclusive rights granted by the federal Copyright Act, 17 USCA §§ 106, 602. • A copyright owner has several exclusive rights in copyrighted works, including the rights (1) to reproduce the work; (2) to prepare derivative works based on the work; (3) to distribute copies of the work; (4) for certain kinds of works, to perform the work publicly; (5) for certain kinds of works, to display the work publicly; (6) for sound recordings, to perform the work publicly; and (7) to import into the United States copies acquired elsewhere. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 53. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 10, 41, 61, 73.]

criminal infringement.The statutory criminal offense of either (1) willfully infringing a copyright to obtain a commercial advantage or financial gain (17 USCA § 506; 18 USCA § 2319), or (2) trafficking in goods or services that bear a counterfeit mark (18 USCA § 2320). • Under the second category, the law imposes criminal penalties if the counterfeit mark is (1) identical with, or substantially indistinguishable from, a mark registered on the Principal Register of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, and (2) likely to confuse or deceive the public. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 70; Trade Regulation 311–312. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 84–85; Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 151.]

direct infringement. 1.Patents. The act of making, using, selling, offering for sale, or importing into the United States, without the patentee's permission, a product that is covered by the claims of a valid patent. 35USCA § 271(a). [Cases: Patents 226. C.J.S. Patents §§ 400, 404, 406–407.] 2.Trademarks. The use of a mark in trade when that use causes a likelihood of confusion about the source of goods or services already identified by a similar mark. 3.Copyright. The unauthorized copying, distributing, or displaying of — or the adapting of a derivative work from — a copyrighted work. Cf. contributory infringement; infringement in the inducement.

domain-name infringement.Infringement of another's trademark or servicemark by the use of a confusingly similar Internet domain name. [Cases: Trade Regulation 350.1. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 119.] infringement in the inducement.Patents. The act of actively and knowingly aiding and abetting direct infringement by another person. • Although sometimes used in copyright and trademark law to mean contributory infringement, the term is usu. reserved for the patent context. — Also termed inducing infringement. Cf. direct infringement. [Cases: Patents 259. C.J.S. Patents § 427.]

innocent infringement.The act of violating an intellectual-property right without knowledge or awareness that the act constitutes infringement. • An innocent infringer may, in limited circumstances, escape liability for some or all of the damages. In the copyright context, damages may be limited if (1) the infringer was misled by the lack of a copyright notice on an authorized copy of the copyrighted work, distributed under the owner's authority before March 1989 (the effective date of the Berne Convention Implementation Act of 1988), and (2) the infringing act occurred before the infringer received actual notice of the copyright. 17 USCA § 405(b). In the trademark context, publishers and distributors of paid advertisements who innocently infringe a mark have no liability for damages. 15 USCA § 1114. In both contexts, the innocent infringer is immunized only from an award of monetary damages, not from injunctive relief. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 52. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 43–44.]

literal infringement.Patents. Infringement in which every element and every limitation of a patent claim is present, exactly, in the accused product or process. Cf. DOCTRINE OF EQUIVALENTS. [Cases: Patents 226. C.J.S. Patents §§ 400, 404, 406–407.]

nonliteral infringement.See DOCTRINE OF EQUIVALENTS.

patent infringement.The unauthorized making, using, offering to sell, selling, or importing into the United States any patented invention. 35 USCA § 271(a). [Cases: Patents 226. C.J.S. Patents §§ 400, 404, 406–407.]

“In determining whether an accused device or composition infringes a valid patent, resort must be had in the first instance to the words of the claim. If accused matter falls clearly within the claim, infringement is made out and that is the end of it.” Graver Tank & Mfg. Co. v. Linde Air Prods. Co., 339 U.S. 605, 607, 70 S.Ct. 854, 855 (1950)(Jackson, J.).

trademark infringement. The unauthorized use of a trademark — or of a confusingly similar name, word, symbol, or any combination of these — in connection with the same or related goods or services and in a manner that is likely to cause confusion, deception, or mistake about the source of the goods or services. See LIKELIHOOD-OF-CONFUSION TEST. [Cases: Trade Regulation 332. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 72.]

vicarious infringement. A person's liability for an infringing act of someone else, even though the person has not directly committed an act of infringement. • For example, a concert theater can be vicariously liable for an infringing performance of a hired band. [Cases: Patents 287(2).]

willful infringement. An intentional and deliberate infringement of another person's intellectual property. [Cases: Patents 227. C.J.S. Patents § 403.]

INFRINGEMENT OPINION

infringement opinion. See OPINION(2).

INFRINGEMENT SEARCH

infringement search. Patents. A patent search aimed at discovering whether a product or method infringes any in-force patent. • An infringement search is usu. limited to the political territory where the patent is to be relied on. — Also termed clear-to-use search; freedom-to-operate search; FTO search. Cf. PATENTABILITY SEARCH; VALIDITY SEARCH.

INFRINGEMENT TEST

infringement test. Patents. A means of determining whether a patent claim is dependent by asking whether the claim would always be infringed if the independent claim on which it rests were infringed. • Since a dependent claim must incorporate all the elements of the independent claim, an infringement of the independent claim must also be an infringement of the dependent claim. [Cases: Patents 165(5). C.J.S. Patents §§ 283, 287, 290, 293.]

INFRINGER

infringer. A person who interferes with one of the exclusive rights of a patent, copyright, or trademark owner. See INFRINGEMENT. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 77; Patents 287(1); Trade Regulation 374. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 64–65; Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 85.]

IN FRUCTU

in fructu (in fr<<schwa>>k-t[y]oo). [Latin] Hist. Among the fruit. • A bona fide possessor owned the fruits of the subject possessed but not the subject itself because the subject was not in fructu. For example, a person who possessed but did not own a goat was entitled to the goat's milk, wool, and offspring, but not the goat's meat.

IN FULL

in full. Constituting the whole or complete amount <payment in full>.

IN FULL LIFE

in full life. (Of a person) alive in fact and in law; neither naturally nor civilly dead.

IN FUTURO

in futuro (in fy<<schwa>>-tyoor-oh), adv. [Latin] In the future. Cf. IN PRAESENTI .

IN GENERALI PASSAGIO

in generali passagio (in jen-<<schwa>>-ray-II p<<schwa>>-say-jee-oh), adv. [Law Latin] Hist. In the general passage (to the holy land with a company of Crusaders). • This type of pilgrimage excused an absence from court during the Crusades. Cf. SIMPLEX PASSAGIUM.

IN GENERE

in genere (in jen-<<schwa>>-r-ee). [Latin “in kind”] Belonging to the same class, but not identical.

INGENUITAS

ingenuitas (in-j<<schwa>>-n[y]oo-<<schwa>>-tas), n. [Latin] Roman law. The condition or status of a free-born person.

INGENUITAS REGNI

ingenuitas regni (in-j<<schwa>>-n[y]oo-<<schwa>>-tas reg-nI). [Law Latin] Hist. The freemen, yeomanry, or commonalty of the kingdom. • This term was occasionally applied to the nobility.

INGENUUS

ingenuus (in-jen-yoo-<<schwa>>s), n. [Latin] Roman law. A free-born person. • This term, denoting freeborn persons, was commonly opposed to libertini (people born into slavery and later emancipated). Cf. LATINI JUNIANI; SERVUS.

IN GLOBO

in globo (in gloh-boh), adv. [Latin “in a mass”] As an undivided whole rather than separately <settlement paid in globo to the three defendants>.

INGRATITUDE

ingratitude, n. Civil law. Lack of appreciation for a generous or kind act, esp. for a gift received. • Under Louisiana law, a gift may be reclaimed on grounds of ingratitude if the recipient mistreats the giver by, for example, attempting to murder the giver or refusing to provide the giver with needed food. La. Civ. Code art. 1560. [Cases: Gifts 41.]

INGRATUS

ingratus (in-gray-t<<schwa>>s), adj. [Latin] Roman law. (Of a person) ungrateful; (of conduct) marked by ingratitude. • Ungrateful acts or words (such as spiteful comments from a freedman toward a former master) could form the basis for a return to a prior inferior status.

IN GREMIO JURIS

in gremio juris (in gree-mee-oh joor-is), adv. & adj.[Law Latin] Civil & Scots law. In the bosom of the right. • This phrase describes a clause formerly inserted in an instrument to bind holders to its terms.

IN GREMIO LEGIS

in gremio legis (in gree-mee-oh lee-jis), adv. & adj.[Law Latin] In the bosom of the law. • This is a figurative expression for something that is under the protection of the law, such as a land title that is in abeyance.

INGRESS

ingress (in-gres).1. The act of entering. 2. The right or ability to enter; access. Cf. EGRESS.

INGRESS, EGRESS, AND REGRESS

ingress, egress, and regress.The right of a lessee to enter, leave, and reenter the land in question.

INGRESSUS

ingressus (in-gres-<<schwa>>s). [Latin “ingress, entry”] Hist. The fee paid by an heir to a feudal lord to enter the estate of a decedent.

IN GROSS

in gross.Undivided; still in one large mass. — Also termed en gros; en grosse. See easement in gross under EASEMENT.

INGROSS

ingross,vb. See ENGROSS.

INGROSSATOR

ingrossator (in-groh-say-t<<schwa>>r). [Law Latin] Hist. An engrosser; a clerk who writes records or instruments on parchment. • The Engrosser of the Great Roll, for example, was known as the Ingrossator Magni Rotuli. See CLERK OF THE PIPE .

INHABIT

inhabit,vb. To dwell in; to occupy permanently or habitually as a residence.

IN HAC PARTE

in hac parte (in hak pahr-tee). [Latin] On this part or side.

IN HAEC VERBA

in haec verba (in heek v<<schwa>>r-b<<schwa>>). [Latin] In these same words; verbatim.

IN HAEREDITATE JACENTE

in haereditate jacente (in h<<schwa>>-red-i-tay-tee j<<schwa>>-sen-tee). [Latin] Hist. In the estate of a person deceased.

INHAERERE JURISDICTIONI

inhaerere jurisdictioni (in-hi-reer-ee juur-is-dik-shee-oh-nI). [Latin] Civil law. To be necessarily connected with jurisdiction. • The phrase typically referred to a judge's inherent powers, such as the power to inflict punishment or to enforce a judgment.

INHERE

inhere (in-heer), vb. To exist as a permanent, inseparable, or essential attribute or quality of a thing; to be intrinsic to something.

INHERENCY DOCTRINE

inherency doctrine.Patents. The rule that anticipation can be inferred despite a missing element in a prior-art reference if the missing element is either necessarily present in or a natural result of the product or process and a person of ordinary skill in the art would know it. • On one hand, the doctrine precludes patenting an existing invention by merely claiming an inherent element. On the other hand, it allows the later patentability of a substance, usu. a chemical compound, that was inadvertently created but not recognized or appreciated. See INHERENT ANTICIPATION. [Cases: Patents 65. C.J.S. Patents § 49.]

INHERENT ANTICIPATION

inherent anticipation.Patents. An invention's lack of novelty arising from the existence of prior-art products or processes that necessarily possess the same characteristics. • Inherency differs from obviousness in that a lack of novelty must be based on fact, not mere possibility or probability. See INHERENCY DOCTRINE.

INHERENT AUTHORITY

inherent authority.See AUTHORITY(1).

INHERENT CONDITION

inherent condition.See CONDITION(2).

INHERENT COVENANT

inherent covenant.See COVENANT(1). inherent defect.See hidden defect under DEFECT.

INHERENTLY DANGEROUS

inherently dangerous.See DANGEROUS.

INHERENTLY DANGEROUS ACTIVITY

inherently dangerous activity.An activity that can be carried out only by the exercise of special skill and care and that involves a grave risk of serious harm if done unskillfully or carelessly.

INHERENTLY DANGEROUS WORK

inherently dangerous work.See WORK(1).

INHERENT POWER

inherent power.See POWER(3).

INHERENT-POWERS DOCTRINE

inherent-powers doctrine.The principle that allows courts to deal with diverse matters over which they are thought to have intrinsic authority, such as (1) procedural rulemaking, (2) internal budgeting of the courts, (3) regulating the practice of law; and (4) general judicial housekeeping. • The power is based on interpretations of art. I, § 8, cl. 18 of the Constitution.

INHERENT RIGHT

inherent right.See inalienable right under RIGHT.

INHERIT

inherit,vb.1. To receive (property) from an ancestor under the laws of intestate succession upon the ancestor's death. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 1. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 1–5.] 2. To receive (property) as a bequest or devise.

INHERITABLE

inheritable,adj. See HERITABLE.

INHERITABLE BLOOD

inheritable blood.See heritable blood under BLOOD.

INHERITABLE OBLIGATION

inheritable obligation.See heritable obligation under OBLIGATION.

INHERITABLE SECURITY

inheritable security.See heritable security under SECURITY.

INHERITANCE

inheritance. 1. Property received from an ancestor under the laws of intestacy. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 1, 8. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 1–5, 9–12; Right of Privacy and Publicity§ 42.] 2. Property that a person receives by bequest or devise.

dual inheritance. An adopted child's intestate inheritance through both his adopted family and his natural parent. • The problem of dual inheritance occurs only if a relative of the birth parent adopts the child. For instance, if a child's mother dies and the maternal grandparents adopt the grandchild, and if a grandparent then dies intestate, the child qualifies for two separate shares — one as a child and the other as a grandchild. In some jurisdictions, by statute, such a child is allowed to inherit only the adopted child's share. Under the Uniform Probate Code, the child takes the larger of the two shares.

several inheritance. An inheritance that descends to two persons severally, as by moieties.

shifting inheritance. Under intestacy laws, an inheritance that is transferred from an heir who was living when the intestate died to an afterborn heir who is more closely related to the intestate.

universal inheritance. A system by which an intestate's estate escheats to the state only if the decedent leaves no surviving relatives, no matter how distant. • Universal inheritance has been abandoned in almost all Anglo-American jurisdictions. See UNIVERSAL-INHERITANCE RULE.

INHERITANCE TAX

inheritance tax. See TAX.

INHERITOR

inheritor (in-hair-i-t<<schwa>>r), n. A person who inherits; HEIR.

INHERITRIX

inheritrix (in-hair-i-triks), n. Archaic. A female heir; HEIRESS.

INHIBITION

inhibition (in-hi-bish-<<schwa>>n), n. 1. Eccles. law. A writ issued by a superior ecclesiastical court, forbidding a judge from proceeding in a pending case. 2. Eccles. law. An order issuing from an ecclesiastical court, prohibiting a member of the clergy from taking office or performing an unlawful action. 3. Hist. A writ of prohibition. See PROHIBITION(2). 4. Scots law. An order issued by the Court of Session to prohibit a debtor from encumbering or alienating the debtor's heritable property to the prejudice of a creditor. See PROHIBITION(2); EX CAPITE INHIBITIONIS.

IN HOC

in hoc (in hok), adv. [Latin] In this; in respect to this.

IN HOC STATU

in hoc statu (in hok stay-t[y]oo). [Latin] Hist. In this position.

INHONESTUS

inhonestus (in-h<<schwa>>-nes-t<<schwa>>s), adj. [Latin] Roman law. 1. (Of a person) of ill repute. 2. (Of conduct) morally shameful.

INITIALIA TESTIMONII

initialia testimonii (i-nish-ee-ay-lee-<<schwa>> tes-t<<schwa>>-moh-nee-I). [Law Latin “initial parts of testimony”] Scots law. The preliminary examination of a witness in order to determine the witness's competence to testify. Cf. IN INITIALIBUS.

INITIAL MARGIN REQUIREMENT

initial margin requirement. See MARGIN REQUIREMENT.

INITIAL PROTEST

initial protest. See PROTEST(2).

INITIAL PUBLIC OFFERING

initial public offering. See OFFERING.

INITIAL SURPLUS

initial surplus. See SURPLUS.

INITIATION OF CHARGES

initiation of charges. Military law. The first report to the proper military authority of an alleged commission of an offense by a person subject to the Uniform Code of Military Justice. Cf. PREFERRING OF CHARGES. [Cases: Armed Services 47(2); Military Justice 950. C.J.S.

Armed Services § 164; Military Justice § 180.]

INITIATIVE

initiative (i-nish-ee-<<schwa>>-tiv or i-nish-<<schwa>>-tiv). An electoral process by which a percentage of voters can propose legislation and compel a vote on it by the legislature or by the full electorate. • Recognized in some state constitutions, the initiative is one of the few methods of direct democracy in an otherwise representative system. Cf. REFERENDUM. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 108; Statutes 301–327. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 311–313, 315, 325–326; Statutes §§ 108–114, 116–136, 139–144.]

IN ITINERE

in itinere (in I-tin-<<schwa>>r-ee), adv.[Latin] Hist. On a journey; on the way. • This term referred to the justices in eyre (justices in itinere) and to goods en route to a buyer. See EYRE; IN TRANSITU.

INITIUM POSSESSIONIS

initium possessionis (i-nish-ee-<<schwa>>m p<<schwa>>-zes[h]-ee-oh-nis). [Latin “the beginning of the possession”] Hist. The right by which possession was first held.

INJOIN

injoin,vb. Archaic. See ENJOIN.

IN JUDICIO

in judicio (in joo-dish-ee-oh), adv. & adj.[Latin] Before the judge. • The phrase is still sometimes used. Originally, in Roman law, in judicio referred to the second stage of a Roman formulary trial, held before a private judge known as a judex. — Also termed apud judicem. See FORMULA(1). Cf. IN JURE (2).

IN JUDICIO POSSESSORIO

in judicio possessorio (in joo-dish-ee-oh pah-ses-sor-ee-oh). [Law Latin] Hist. In a possessory action.

INJUNCTION

injunction (in-j<<schwa>>ngk-sh<<schwa>>n), n. A court order commanding or preventing an action. • To get an injunction, the complainant must show that there is no plain, adequate, and complete remedy at law and that an irreparable injury will result unless the relief is granted. — Also termed writ of injunction. See IRREPARABLE-INJURY RULE. [Cases: Injunction 1. C.J.S. Injunctions §§ 2–4, 12, 14, 22, 24, 166.]

“In a general sense, every order of a court which commands or forbids is an injunction; but in its accepted legal sense, an injunction is a judicial process or mandate operating in personam by which, upon certain established principles of equity, a party is required to do or refrain from doing a particular thing. An injunction has also been defined as a writ framed according to the circumstances of the case, commanding an act which the court regards as essential to justice, or restraining an act which it esteems contrary to equity and good conscience; as a remedial writ which courts issue for the purpose of enforcing their equity jurisdiction; and as a writ issuing by the order and under the seal of a court of equity.” 1 Howard C. Joyce, A Treatise on the Law Relating to Injunctions § 1, at 2–3 (1909).

affirmative injunction. See mandatory injunction.

ex parte injunction. A preliminary injunction issued after the court has heard from only the moving party. — Also termed temporary restraining order.

final injunction. See permanent injunction.

head-start injunction. Trade secrets. An injunction prohibiting the defendant from using a trade secret for a period equal to the time between the date of the secret's theft and the date when the secret became public. • So named since that period is the “head start” that the defendant unfairly gained over the rest of the industry. [Cases: Injunction 189. C.J.S. Injunctions §§ 6, 235–236.]

injunction pendente lite. See preliminary injunction.

interlocutory injunction. See preliminary injunction.

mandatory injunction. An injunction that orders an affirmative act or mandates a specified course of conduct. — Also termed affirmative injunction. Cf. prohibitory injunction. [Cases: Injunction 5, 133. C.J.S. Injunctions §§ 3, 8–9, 81.]

permanent injunction. An injunction granted after a final hearing on the merits. • Despite its name, a permanent injunction does not necessarily last forever. — Also termed perpetual injunction; final injunction. [Cases: Injunction 1. C.J.S. Injunctions §§ 2–4, 12, 14, 22, 24, 166.]

perpetual injunction. See permanent injunction.

preliminary injunction. A temporary injunction issued before or during trial to prevent an irreparable injury from occurring before the court has a chance to decide the case. • A preliminary injunction will be issued only after the defendant receives notice and an opportunity to be heard. — Also termed interlocutory injunction; temporary injunction; provisional injunction; injunction pendente lite. Cf. ex parte injunction; TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER. [Cases: Injunction 132. C.J.S. Injunctions §§ 4–5, 17, 166.]

preventive injunction. An injunction designed to prevent a loss or injury in the future. Cf. reparative injunction.

prohibitory injunction. An injunction that forbids or restrains an act. • This is the most common type of injunction. Cf. mandatory injunction.

provisional injunction. See preliminary injunction.

quia-timet injunction (kwI-<<schwa>> tI-m*<<schwa>>t orkwee-<<schwa>>* tim-et). [Latin “because he fears”] An injunction granted to prevent an action that has been threatened but has not yet violated the plaintiff's rights. See QUIA TIMET.

reparative injunction (ri-par-<<schwa>>-tiv). An injunction requiring the defendant to restore the plaintiff to the position that the plaintiff occupied before the defendant committed a wrong. Cf. preventive injunction.

special injunction.Hist. An injunction in which the prohibition of an act is the only relief ultimately sought, as in prevention of waste or nuisance.

temporary injunction.See preliminary injunction.

INJUNCTION BOND

injunction bond.See BOND(2).

INJUNCTIVE

injunctive,adj. That has the quality of directing or ordering; of or relating to an injunction. — Also termed injunctional.

IN JURE

in jure (in joor-ee). [Latin “in law”] 1. According to the law. 2.Roman law. Before the praetor or other magistrate. • In jure referred to the first stage of a Roman formulary trial, held before the praetor or other judicial magistrate for the purpose of establishing the legal issues and their competence. Evidence was taken in the second stage, which was held before a judex. See FORMULA(1). Cf. IN JUDICIO.

IN JURE ALTERIUS

in jure alterius (in joor-ee al-teer-ee-<<schwa>>s), adv.[Latin] In another's right.

IN JURE CESSIO

in jure cessio (in joor-ee sesh-ee-oh). [Latin “a surrender in law”] Roman law. A fictitious trial held to transfer ownership of property; a collusive claim to formally convey property, esp. incorporeal property, by a court's assignment of ownership. • At trial, the transferee appeared before a praetor and asserted ownership of the property. The actual owner also appeared, but did not contest the assertion, and so allowed the transfer of the property to the plaintiff. In jure cessio was most often used to convey incorporeal property. — Also spelled in iure cessio.

IN JURE PROPRIO

in jure proprio (in joor-ee proh-pree-oh), adv.[Latin] In one's own right.

INJURIA

injuria (in-joor-ee-<<schwa>>), n. [Latin] Roman law. 1. See WRONG. Cf. DAMNUM INJURIA DATUM ; actio injuriarum under ACTIO. 2. An assault on a person's reputation or body. Pl. injuriae (in-joor-ee-ee).

“By injuria (or outrage), as the fourth ground of delict obligation, is meant some affronting wrong, calculated to wound the self-respect and touch the honor of the person injured, to humiliate or degrade him in the view of others.” James Hadley, Introduction to Roman Law 243 (1881).

“The term injuria [is best] used in its original and proper sense of wrong (in jus, contrary to law). The modern use of ‘injury’ as a synonym for damage is unfortunate but inveterate.” R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 13 nn.51–52 (17th ed. 1977).

INJURIA ABSQUE DAMNO

injuria absque damno (in-joor-ee-<<schwa>> abs-kwee dam-noh). [Latin “injury without damage”] A legal wrong that will not sustain a lawsuit because no harm resulted from it. — Also termed injuria sine damno. Cf. DAMNUM SINE INJURIA .

“Just as there are cases in which damage is not actionable as a tort (damnum sine injuria), so conversely there are cases in which behaviour is actionable as a tort, although it has been the cause of no damage at all (injuria sine damno). Torts are of two kinds — namely, those which are actionable per se, and those which are actionable only on proof of actual damage resulting from them. Thus the act of trespassing upon another's land is actionable even though it has done the plaintiff not the slightest harm. Similarly, a libel is actionable per se, while slander (that is to say, oral as opposed to written defamation) is in most cases not actionable without proof of actual damage.” R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 14 (17th ed. 1977).

INJURIOUS

injurious,adj. Harmful; tending to injure.

INJURIOUS EXPOSURE

injurious exposure. Workers' compensation. Contact with a substance that would cause injury if the person were repeatedly exposed to it over time. • An employer may be found liable for harm resulting from injurious exposure. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 517, 521–551. C.J.S. Workmen's Compensation §§ 296–297, 305–324, 338, 350, 355.]

INJURIOUS FALSEHOOD

injurious falsehood. 1.DISPARAGEMENT(3).2.TRADE DISPARAGEMENT.

INJURIOUS WORDS

injurious words.Louisiana law. Slanderous or libelous language. See SLANDER; LIBEL(1), (2).

INJURY

injury,n.1. The violation of another's legal right, for which the law provides a remedy; a wrong or injustice. See WRONG. 2.Scots law. Anything said or done in breach of a duty not to do it, if harm results to another in person, character, or property. • Injuries are divided into real injuries (such as wounding) and verbal injuries (such as slander). They may be criminal wrongs (as with assault) or civil wrongs (as with defamation).3. Any harm or damage. • Some authorities distinguish harm from injury, holding that while harm denotes any personal loss or detriment, injury involves an actionable invasion of a legally protected interest. See Restatement (Second) of Torts § 7 cmt. a (1965). — injure, vb. — injurious, adj.

accidental injury. An injury resulting from external, violent, and unanticipated causes; esp., a bodily injury caused by some external force or agency operating contrary to a person's intentions, unexpectedly, and not according to the usual order of events. [Cases: Insurance 2590. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 864, 1170.]

advertising injury. Harm resulting from (1) oral or written speech that slanders or libels a person, or disparages a person's goods, products, or services; (2) oral or written speech that violates a person's right of privacy; (3) misappropriation of advertising ideas or style of doing business; or (4) infringement of copyright, esp. in a name or slogan.

bodily injury. Physical damage to a person's body. — Also termed physical injury. See serious bodily injury. [Cases: Damages 30, 32; Insurance 2276. C.J.S. Damages §§ 53, 89–93; Insurance §§ 941, 943, 1132–1133.]

civil injury. Physical harm or property damage caused by breach of a contract or by a criminal offense redressable through a civil action.

compensable injury (k<<schwa>>m-pen-s<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l). Workers' compensation. An injury caused by an accident arising from the employment and in the course of the employee's work, and for which the employee is statutorily entitled to receive compensation. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 511–770. C.J.S. Workmen's Compensation §§ 288–470, 475.]

consequential injury. See consequential loss under LOSS.

continual injury. An injury that recurs at repeated intervals. — Also termed (but improperly) continuous injury.

continuing injury. An injury that is still in the process of being committed. • An example is the constant smoke or noise of a factory. — Also termed continuing harm. [Cases: Damages 110. C.J.S. Damages §§ 135–136.]

direct injury. 1. An injury resulting directly from violation of a legal right. 2. An injury resulting directly from a particular cause, without any intervening causes. [Cases: Damages 16. C.J.S. Damages §§ 23–24.]

injury in fact. An actual or imminent invasion of a legally protected interest, in contrast to an invasion that is conjectural or hypothetical. • An injury in fact gives the victim standing to bring an action for damages. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 103.2.]

irreparable injury (i-rep-<<schwa>>r-<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l). An injury that cannot be adequately measured or compensated by money and is therefore often considered remediable by injunction. — Also termed irreparable harm; nonpecuniary injury. See IRREPARABLE-INJURY RULE. [Cases: Injunction 14, 138.6. C.J.S. Injunctions §§ 24, 27–28.]

“The term ‘irreparable injury,’ however, is not to be taken in its strict literal sense. The rule does not require that the threatened injury should be one not physically capable of being repaired.

If the threatened injury would be substantial and serious — one not easily to be estimated, or repaired by money — and if the loss or inconvenience to the plaintiff if the injunction should be refused (his title proving good) would be much greater than any which can be suffered by the defendant through the granting of the injunction, although his title ultimately prevails, the case is one of such probable great or ‘irreparable’ damage as will justify a preliminary injunction.” Elias Merwin, Principles of Equity and Equity Pleading 426–27 (H.C. Merwin ed., 1896).

legal injury. Violation of a legal right.

malicious injury. 1. An injury resulting from a willful act committed with knowledge that it is likely to injure another or with reckless disregard of the consequences. 2. MALICIOUS MISCHIEF.

nonpecuniary injury. See irreparable injury.

pecuniary injury. An injury that can be adequately measured or compensated by money.

permanent injury. 1. A completed wrong whose consequences cannot be remedied for an indefinite period. 2. An injury to land the consequences of which will endure until the reversioner takes possession, as a result of which the reversioner has a present right of possession.

personal injury. Torts. 1. In a negligence action, any harm caused to a person, such as a broken bone, a cut, or a bruise; bodily injury. 2. Any invasion of a personal right, including mental suffering and false imprisonment. — Also termed private injury. [Cases: Insurance 2306.] 3. For purposes of workers' compensation, any harm (including a worsened preexisting condition) that arises in the scope of employment. — Abbr. PI. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 552–566, 604–770. C.J.S. Workmen's Compensation §§ 325–337, 365–470, 475.] physical injury. See bodily injury.

private injury. See personal injury (2).

public injury. A loss or an injury stemming from a breach of a duty or violation of a right that affects the community as a whole.

reparable injury (rep-r-b). An injury that can be adequately compensated by money.

scheduled injury. A partially disabling injury for which a predetermined amount of compensation is allowed under a workers'-compensation statute. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 869–902. C.J.S. Workmen's Compensation §§ 575–591.]

serious bodily injury. Serious physical impairment of the human body; esp., bodily injury that creates a substantial risk of death or that causes serious, permanent disfigurement or protracted loss or impairment of the function of any body part or organ. Model Penal Code § 210.0(3). • Typically, the fact-finder must decide in any given case whether the injury meets this general standard. Generally, an injury meets this standard if it creates a substantial risk of fatal consequences or, when inflicted, constitutes mayhem. Cf. MAYHEM(1). — Also termed serious bodily harm; grievous bodily harm; great bodily injury. [Cases: Homicide 530.]

temporary injury. An injury that may be abated or discontinued at any time by either the injured party or the wrongdoer.

willful and malicious injury. Bankruptcy. Under the statutory exception to discharge, damage to another entity (such as a creditor) caused by a debtor intentionally performing a wrongful act — without just cause or excuse — that the debtor knew was certain or substantially certain to cause injury. 11 USCA § 523(a)(6). [Cases: Bankruptcy 3355. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 332.]

INJURY-IN-FACT TRIGGER

in law. Existing in law or by force of law; in the contemplation of the law. Cf. IN FACT.

IN-LAW

in-law, n. A relative by marriage.

INLAW

inlaw, vb. Archaic. To place (an offender) under the protection of the law. Cf. OUTLAW(1).

“The outlaw's life is insecure.... If the king inlaws him, he comes back into the world like a new-born babe, quasi modo genius, capable indeed of acquiring new rights, but unable to assert any of those that he had before his outlawry. An annihilation of the outlawry would have a different operation, but the inlawed outlaw is not the old person restored to legal life; he is a new person.” 1 Frederick Pollock & Frederic William Maitland, History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 477 (2d ed. 1898).

INLAWRY

inlawry. The restoration of an outlawed person's rights and protections under the law. See INLAGATION.

IN LECTO AEGRITUDINIS

IN LIBERAM BARONIAM

in liberam baroniam (in lib-⟨schwa⟩r-⟨schwa⟩m b⟨schwa⟩-roh-nee-⟨schwa⟩m). [Law Latin] Hist. Into a free barony.

“In former times, many persons holding certain feudal rights from the Crown were called barons, but in the strict legal sense, the title was only due to him whose lands had been erected or confirmed by the king in liberam baroniam. The advantages conferred by the right of barony were considerable. Such a right conferred on the baron both civil and criminal jurisdiction within his barony; and under the clause of union contained in his charter, he was enabled to take infefment in the whole lands and rights of the barony in, what was at that time, an easy and inexpensive mode.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 264 (4th ed. 1894).

IN LIBERAM ELEMOSINAM

in liberam elemosinam (in lib-⟨schwa⟩r-⟨schwa⟩m el-⟨schwa⟩-m⟨schwa⟩-si-n⟨schwa⟩m). [Latin “in free alms”] Hist. Land given away for a charitable purpose; land given away to be held in frankalmoin. — Also spelled in liberam eleemosinam. — Also termed in libera elemosina. See FRANKALMOIN.

IN LIBERAM REGALITATEM

in liberam regalitatem (in lib-⟨schwa⟩r-⟨schwa⟩m ri-gal-⟨schwa⟩-tay-t⟨schwa⟩m). [Law Latin] Hist. Into a free regality. • The phrase appeared in reference to feudal land grants that were made by the Crown and that gave the grantees jurisdiction over criminal and civil matters in their territory equivalent to that of the Crown.

IN LIBERO SOCHAGIO

in libero sochagio (in lib-⟨schwa⟩r-oh s⟨schwa⟩-kay-jee-oh), adv.[Law Latin] In free socage. See SOCAGE.

IN LIEU OF

inmate. 1. A person confined in a prison, hospital, or other institution. [Cases: Convicts 1. C.J.S. Convicts §§ 2–3.] 2. Archaic. A person living inside a place; one who lives with others in a dwelling.

IN MEDIAS RES

in medias res (in mee-dee-*<<schwa>>*s reezor in me-dee-ahs rays), adv.[Latin] Into the middle of things; without preface or introduction.

IN MEDIO

in medio (in mee-dee-oh). [Law Latin] Scots law. In the middle; intermediate. • The phrase appeared in reference to a fund in controversy.

IN MEDITATIONE FUGAE

in meditatione fugae (in med-i-tay-shee-oh-nee f[y]oo-jee). [Law Latin] Scots law. Meditating flight; contemplating leaving the country. • Formerly, a debtor could be detained under a fugae warrant if the debtor had sufficient debt to warrant imprisonment, and if the debtor was attempting to leave the country. This type of warrant became obsolete when imprisonment for debt was abolished.

IN MERCY

in mercy, adv. At a judge's discretion concerning punishment. • A judgment formerly noted (by the Law Latin phrase in misericordia) which litigant lost by stating that the unsuccessful party was in the court's mercy. A plaintiff held in mercy for a false claim, for example, was said to be in misericordia pro falso clamore suo.

IN MISERICORDIA

in misericordia (in miz-<<schwa>>-ri-kor-dee-<<schwa>>). [Law Latin] See IN MERCY .

IN MITIORI SENSU

in mitiori sensu (in mish-ee-or-Isens-[y]oo), adv.[Law Latin] In a milder or more favorable sense. • This phrase appeared as part of the former rule applied in slander actions. A word capable of two meanings would be given the one more favorable to the defendant. Cf. INNOCENT-CONSTRUCTION RULE. [Cases: Libel and Slander 19. C.J.S. Libel and Slander; Injurious Falsehood §§ 13–14.]

“Within half a century of its first appearance, the action for words had become part of the everyday business of the common-law courts, in particular the King's Bench. In the early days there were often more slander cases in the rolls than assumpsit.... The judges apparently came to regret this aspect of their increased jurisdiction, especially since juries frequently awarded sums of money quite disproportionate to the harm and to the ability of the wrongdoer to pay .... [T]he principal effect of the judicial reaction was that a spirit of repression began to manifest itself .... The ... most effective attack was launched in the 1570s, when the courts began the policy of construing ambiguous or doubtful words in the milder sense (in mitiori sensu) so that they would not be actionable.” J.H. Baker, An Introduction to English Legal History 500–01 (3d ed. 1990).

IN MODUM ADMINICULI

in modum adminiculi (in moh-d*<<schwa>>m ad-mi-nik-y<<schwa>>*-li). [Law Latin] Hist. As corroborating evidence.

INNING

inning. (pl.) Land reclaimed from the sea.

INNKEEPER

innkeeper. A person who, for compensation, keeps open a public house for the lodging and entertainment of travelers. • A keeper of a boarding house is usu. not considered an innkeeper. — Also termed hotelkeeper. [Cases: Innkeepers 3. C.J.S. Inns, Hotels and Eating Places §§ 2–4.]

“The innkeeper is the person who on his own account carries on the business of an inn. In other words, he is the proprietor of the establishment. The person actually employed as manager, though he has the whole direction of the enterprise, is not an innkeeper if he is acting on behalf of someone else. Thus the salaried manager of a hotel owned or operated by a corporation is not held responsible as an innkeeper; the corporation is the innkeeper.” John H. Sherry, The Laws of Innkeepers § 2.6, at 15 (rev. ed. 1981).

INNKEEPER'S LIEN

innkeeper's lien. See hotelkeeper's lien under LIEN.

INNOCENCE

innocence, n. The absence of guilt; esp., freedom from guilt for a particular offense. Cf. GUILT.

actual innocence. Criminal law. The absence of facts that are prerequisites for the sentence given to a defendant. • In death-penalty cases, actual innocence is an exception to the cause-and-prejudice rule, and can result in a successful challenge to the death sentence on the basis of a defense that was not presented to the trial court. The prisoner must show by clear and convincing evidence that, but for constitutional error in the trial court, no reasonable judge or juror would find the defendant eligible for the death penalty. See Sawyer v. Whitley, 505 U.S. 333, 112 S.Ct. 2514 (1992). Cf. CAUSE-AND-PREJUDICE RULE. [Cases: Habeas Corpus 401, 462.]

legal innocence. Criminal law. The absence of one or more procedural or legal bases to support the sentence given to a defendant. • In the context of a petition for writ of habeas corpus or other attack on the sentence, legal innocence is often contrasted with actual innocence. Actual innocence, which focuses on the facts underlying the sentence, can sometimes be used to obtain relief from the death penalty based on trial-court errors that were not objected to at trial, even if the petitioner cannot meet the elements of the cause-and-prejudice rule. But legal innocence, which focuses on the applicable law and procedure, is not as readily available. Inadvertence or a poor trial strategy resulting in the defendant's failure to assert an established legal principle will not ordinarily be sufficient to satisfy the cause-and-prejudice rule or to establish the right to an exception from that rule. See CAUSE-AND-PREJUDICE RULE. [Cases: Habeas Corpus 401, 462.]

INNOCENT

innocent, adj. Free from guilt; free from legal fault. See NOT GUILTY(2).

INNOCENT AGENT

---

innocent agent. See AGENT(2).

INNOCENT-CONSTRUCTION RULE

innocent-construction rule. The doctrine that an allegedly libelous statement will be given an innocuous interpretation if the statement is either ambiguous or harmless. Cf. IN MITIORI SENSU. [Cases: Libel and Slander 19. C.J.S. Libel and Slander; Injurious Falsehood §§ 13–14.]

INNOCENT CONVERTER

innocent converter. See CONVERTER.

INNOCENT CONVEYANCE

innocent conveyance. See CONVEYANCE.

INNOCENT HOMICIDE

innocent homicide. See HOMICIDE.

INNOCENT INFRINGEMENT

innocent infringement. See INFRINGEMENT.

INNOCENT JUNIOR USER

innocent junior user. Trademarks. A person who, without any actual or constructive knowledge, uses a trademark that has been previously used in a geographically distant market, and who may continue to use the trademark in a limited geographic area as long as the senior user does not use the mark there. See JUNIOR USER. [Cases: Trade Regulation 375.1.]

INNOCENT MISREPRESENTATION

innocent misrepresentation. See MISREPRESENTATION.

INNOCENT-OWNER DEFENSE

innocent-owner defense. See DEFENSE(1).

INNOCENT PARTY

innocent party. See PARTY(2).

INNOCENT PASSAGE

innocent passage. Int'l law. The right of a foreign ship to pass through a country's territorial waters; the right of a foreign vessel to travel through a country's maritime belt without paying a toll. • The right of innocent passage is guaranteed in Article 17 of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea. Passage is considered innocent as long as it is not prejudicial to the peace, good order, and security of the coastal country. — Also termed right of innocent passage. Cf. TRANSIT PASSAGE. [Cases: International Law 5. C.J.S. International Law §§ 14–20.]

“The term ‘innocent passage’ accurately denotes the nature of the right as well as its limitations. In the first place it is a right of 'passage,' that is to say, a right to use the waters as a thoroughfare between two points outside them; a ship proceeding through the maritime belt to a port of the coastal state would not be exercising a right of passage. In the second place the passage must be 'innocent'; a ship exercising the right must respect the local regulations as to navigation, pilotage, and the like, and, of course, it must not do any act which might disturb the tranquillity of the coastal state." J.L. Brierly, The Law of Nations 188–89 (5th ed. 1955).

INNOCENT PURCHASER

innocent purchaser. See bona fide purchaser under PURCHASER(1).

INNOCENT PURCHASER FOR VALUE

innocent purchaser for value. See bona fide purchaser under PURCHASER(1).

INNOCENT SPOUSE

innocent spouse. See SPOUSE.

INNOCENT TRESPASS

innocent trespass. See TRESPASS.

INNOCENT TRESPASSER

innocent trespasser. See TRESPASSER.

INNOCUAE UTILITATIS

innocuae utilitatis (i-nok-yoo-[w]ee yoo-til-<<schwa>>-tay-tis). [Latin "useful without harming"] Hist. An act that is beneficial to one person and harmful to no one.

INN OF CHANCERY

Inn of Chancery. Hist. Any of nine collegiate houses where students studied either to gain entry into an Inn of Court or to learn how to frame writs in order to serve in the chancery courts. • Over time, the Inns — Clement's, Clifford's, Lyon's, Furnival's, Thavies', Symond's, Barnard's, Staples', and the New Inn — became little more than dining clubs, and never exercised control over their members as the Inns of Court did. The Inns of Chancery were all dissolved in the 19th century. Cf. INN OF COURT.

INN OF COURT

Inn of Court. 1. Any of four autonomous institutions, one or more of which English barristers must join to receive their training and of which they remain members for life: The Honourable Societies of Lincoln's Inn, the Middle Temple, the Inner Temple, and Gray's Inn. • These powerful bodies examine candidates for the Bar, "call" them to the Bar, and award the degree of barrister.

"It is impossible to fix with certainty the period when the professors and students of the common law first began to associate themselves together as a society, and form themselves into collegiate order; or to assign an exact date to the foundation of the Inns of Court, the original institution of which nowhere precisely appears.... After the fixing of the Court of Common Pleas by Magna Charta, the practitioners of the municipal law took up their residence in houses between the king's courts at Westminster and the city of London — forming then one community; and before the end of the reign of Edward II, they appear to have divided themselves into separate inns or colleges, at Temple Bar, Lincoln's Inn, and Gray's Inn.” Robert H. Pearce, A Guide to the Inns of Court and Chancery 1–2 (1855).

2. (pl.) In the United States, an organization (formally named the American Inns of Court Foundation) with more than 100 local chapters, whose members include judges, practicing attorneys, law professors, and law students. • Through monthly meetings, the chapters emphasize practice skills, professionalism, and ethics, and provide mentors to train students and young lawyers in the finer points of good legal practice.

INNOMINATE

innominate (i-nom-<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>t), adj. Civil law. Unclassified; having no special name or designation. See innominate contract under CONTRACT.

INNOMINATE ACTION

innominate action. See ACTION(4).

INNOMINATE CONTRACT

innominate contract. See CONTRACT.

INNOMINATE OBLIGATIONS

innominate obligations. Obligations having no specific classification or name because they are not strictly contractual, delictual, or quasi-contractual. • An example is the obligation of a trustee to a beneficiary. — Also termed obligationes innominati.

INNOMINATE REAL CONTRACT

innominate real contract. See innominate contract under CONTRACT.

IN NOMINE DEI, AMEN

in nomine Dei, Amen (in nahm-<<schwa>>-nee dee-I, ay-men). [Latin] Hist. In the name of God, Amen. • This phrase formerly appeared at the beginning of a will or other instrument.

INNOTESCIMUS

innotescimus (in-oh-tes-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin “we make known”] Hist. A certification, in the form of letters patent, of a charter of feoffment or other instrument not filed of record. • This term derives from the word of emphasis appearing at the end of the document. Cf. EXEMPLIFICATION.

INNOVATA LITE DEPENDENTE

innovata lite dependente (in-oh-vay-t<<schwa>> II-tee dee-pen-den-tee). [Law Latin] Hist.

Innovations during the pendency of a suit. • The phrase appeared in reference to the interference with something that is the subject of a lawsuit. See PENDENTE LITE.

INNOVATION

innovation.Scots law. See NOVATION.

INNOXIARE

innoxiare (i-nok-shee-air-ee), vb.[Law Latin] Hist. To purge (a person) of fault.

IN NUBIBUS

in nubibus (in n[y]oo-bi-b<<schwa>>s), adv. & adj.[Law Latin] In the clouds. • An expression for something that is under the protection of the law.

IN NUDIS FINIBUS CONTRACTUS

in nudis finibus contractus (in n[y]oo-dis fin-<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>s k<<schwa>>n-trak-t<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] Hist. In the bare terms of a contract.

IN NUDIS TERMINIS

in nudis terminis (in n[y]oo-dis t<<schwa>>r-m<<schwa>>-nis). [Law Latin “with bare limits”] Hist. In its bare terms. • The phrase appeared in reference to the simple terms of an instrument. See NUDUM PACTUM.

INNUENDO

innuendo (in-yoo-en-doh). [Latin “by hinting”] 1. An oblique remark or indirect suggestion, usu. of a derogatory nature. 2. An explanatory word or passage inserted parenthetically into a legal document. • In criminal law, an innuendo is a statement in an indictment showing the application or meaning of matter previously expressed, the meaning of which would not otherwise be clear. In the law of defamation, an innuendo is the plaintiff's explanation of a statement's defamatory meaning when that meaning is not apparent from the statement's face. For example, the innuendo of the statement “David burned down his house” can be shown by pleading that the statement was understood to mean that David was defrauding his insurance company (the fact that he had insured his house is pleaded and proved by inducement). Cf. INDUCEMENT(4); COLLOQUIUM. [Cases: Libel and Slander 86. C.J.S. Libel and Slander; Injurious Falsehood§§ 4, 129.]

“It is not a true innuendo to repeat the obvious meaning of defamatory words in other language, or in an embroidered or exaggerated way. Otherwise an ingenious pleader could perplex the judge and jury and harry the defendant by ringing the changes on the same words, creating numerous different causes of action, each requiring a separate verdict. A true innuendo relies on a conjunction of the words used and some extrinsic fact. Thus it is defamatory in itself to say that a man's affairs are being investigated by the Fraud Squad: but the statement does not support the innuendo that those affairs are being carried on fraudulently. Conversely, the statement 'X is a good advertiser' is innocent in itself, but carries a libellous innuendo if published to persons who know the extrinsic fact that X is an eminent member of the Bar." R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 149 (17th ed. 1977). [The example about lawyers' advertising no longer has relevance to American law. — Eds.]

IN NULLIUS BONIS

in nullius bonis (in n<<schwa>>-li-<<schwa>>s boh-nis). See NULLIUS IN BONIS.

IN NULLO EST ERRATUM

in nullo est erratum (in n<<schwa>>l-oh est i-ray-t<<schwa>>m), adj.[Law Latin "in nothing is there error"] Hist. Of or relating to a demurrer that denies any error and at once refers a question of law to the court.

IN OBLIGATIONE

in obligatione (in ob-li-gay-shee-oh-nee). [Latin] Hist. Under an obligation.

IN ODIUM

in odium (in oh-dee-<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Hist. In detestation. • For example, a gift made to a woman who was later divorced for committing adultery was revoked in odium of her guilt.

IN ODIUM CORRUMPENTIS

in odium corruptentis (in oh-dee-<<schwa>>m kor-<<schwa>>m-pen-tis). [Latin] Hist. In detestation of the person corrupting.

INOFFICIOSUS

inofficiosus (in-<<schwa>>-fish-ee-oh-s<<schwa>>s), adj.[Latin "inofficious"] Roman law. Contrary to a natural duty of affection, used esp. of a will that unjustly disinherits a child or close relative. See QUERELA INOFFICIOSI TESTAMENTI .

INOFFICIOUS TESTAMENT

inofficious testament.See TESTAMENT.

INOFFICIOUS WILL

inofficious will.See inofficious testament under TESTAMENT.

IN OMNIBUS

in omnibus (in ahm-ni-b<<schwa>>s). [Latin] In all things; on all points .

INOPERABLE MODE

inoperable mode. Patents. In a patent application, a disclosed way of working an invention that is not the best mode. • The term usu. designates a mode that is intended to misrepresent or deliberately conceal the best mode. That misrepresentation or concealment is inequitable conduct that will bar patentability or render an issued patent unenforceable. [Cases: Patents 98. C.J.S. Patents §§ 137–139.]

INOPERATIVE

inoperative, adj. 1. Having no force or effect; not operative <an inoperative statute>. 2. Patents. (Of an invention), the condition of not being capable of functioning as described in the patent application.

“An invention is inoperative if an exemplification, built exactly as described in the patent, won't operate, or if further experiment and invention are required to make it operate.” Roger Sherman Hoar, Patent Tactics and the Law 37 (3d ed. 1950).

INOPS CONSILII

inops consilii (in-ahps k<<schwa>>n-sil-ee-I), adj. [Latin] Destitute of counsel; without legal counsel. • This term described actions taken without benefit of legal advice, as when a testator drafts a will without the help of an attorney.

“[T]hat in devises by last will and testament, (which, being often drawn up when the party is inops consilii, and are always more favoured in construction than formal deeds, which are presumed to be made with great caution, fore-thought, and advice) in these devises, I say, remainders may be created in some measure contrary to the rules before laid down ....” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 172 (1766).

IN ORDER

in order. 1. Ready for business <the meeting is in order>. 2. Available and appropriate for consideration under the applicable rules <the motion is in order>. Cf. OUT OF ORDER(1).

INORDINATUS

inordinatus (in-or-d<<schwa>>-nay-t<<schwa>>s), n. [Latin “disorderly; unordained”] Hist. See INTESTATE.

IN PACATO SOLO

in pacato solo (in p<<schwa>>-kay-toh soh-loh), adv. [Latin] In a country that is at peace.

IN PACE DEI ET REGIS

in pace Dei et regis (in pay-see dee-I et ree-jis), adv. [Law Latin] Hist. In the peace of God and the king. • This phrase was used in an appeal from a murder conviction.

IN PAIS

in pais (in payorpays). [Law French “in the country”] Outside court or legal proceedings. See equitable estoppel under ESTOPPEL.

IN PAPER

in paper.Hist. Of a proceeding that is within the jurisdiction of the trial court; that is, before the record is prepared for an appeal.

“Formerly, the suitors were much perplexed by writs of error brought upon very slight and trivial grounds, as misspellings and other mistakes of the clerks, all which might be amended at the common law, while all the proceedings were in paper, for they were then considered in fieri, and therefore subject to the control of the courts.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 407 (1768).

IN PARI CAUSA

in pari causa (in par-Ikaw-z<<schwa>>), adv.[Latin “in an equal case”] In a case affecting two parties equally or in which they have equal rights <in pari causa, the possessor ordinarily defeats the nonpossessory claimant>.

IN PARI DELICTO

in pari delicto (in par-I d<<schwa>>-lik-toh), adv.[Latin “in equal fault”] Equally at fault <the court denied relief because both parties stood in pari delicto>. Cf. PARTICEPS CRIMINIS(2). [Cases: Equity 65. C.J.S. Equity § 102.]

IN PARI DELICTO DOCTRINE

in pari delicto doctrine,n.[Latin] The principle that a plaintiff who has participated in wrongdoing may not recover damages resulting from the wrongdoing. [Cases: Action 4; Contracts 139; Equity 65.C.J.S. Actions §§ 29–30; Contracts §§ 282–283, 286, 299; Equity § 102.]

IN PARI MATERIA

in pari materia (in par-I m<<schwa>>-teer-ee-<<schwa>>). [Latin “in the same matter”] 1.adj. On the same subject; relating to the same matter. • It is a canon of construction that statutes that are in pari materia may be construed together, so that inconsistencies in one statute may be resolved by looking at another statute on the same subject. [Cases: Statutes 223.2(1)–223.2(35).]

“[I]t seems that the present position is that, when an earlier statute is in pari materia with a later one, it is simply part of its context to be considered by the judge in deciding whether the meaning of a provision in the later statute is plain.” Rupert Cross, Statutory Interpretation 128 (1976).

2.adv. Loosely, in conjunction with <the Maryland constitutional provision is construed in pari materia with the Fourth Amendment>.

IN PATIENDO

in patiendo (in pash-ee-en-doh), adv. & adj.[fr. Latin patior “suffer”] In suffering or permitting.

IN PATRIA POTESTATE

IN PERPETUAM COMMENDAM

in perpetuam commendam (in p<<schwa>>r-pech-oo-<<schwa>>m k<<schwa>>-men-d<< schwa>>m). [Law Latin] Hist. In perpetual trust. • Something given in perpetuam commendam was equivalent to a gift.

IN PERPETUAM REI MEMORIAM

in perpetuam rei memoriam (in p<<schwa>>r-pech-oo-<<schwa>>m [or p<<schwa>>r-pe-tyoo-<<schwa>>m] ree-I m<<schwa>>-mor-ee-<<schwa>>m), adv.[Latin] In perpetual memory of a matter. • This phrase refers to a deposition taken to preserve the deponent's testimony. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1291; Pretrial Procedure 61. C.J.S. Pretrial Procedure §§ 1, 3–4, 9.]

IN PERPETUITY

in perpetuity (in p<<schwa>>r-p<<schwa>>-t[y]oo-<<schwa>>-tee). Forever. See PERPETUITY.

IN PERPETUUM

in perpetuum (in p<<schwa>>r-pech-oo-<<schwa>>m or p<<schwa>>r-pe-tyoo-<<schwa>>m), adv.[Latin] Forever; perpetually. — Sometimes spelled imperpetuum.

IN PERPETUUM REI TESTIMONIUM

in perpetuum rei testimonium (in p<<schwa>>r-pech-oo-<<schwa>>m [or p<<schwa>>r-pe-tyoo-<<schwa>>m] ree-I tes-ti-moh-nee-<<schwa>>m), adv.[Law Latin] In perpetual testimony of a matter. • This phrase refers to a statute that confirms existing common law.

“Statutes also are either declaratory of the common law, or remedial of some defects therein. Declaratory, where the old custom of the kingdom is almost fallen into disuse, or become disputable; in which case the parliament has thought proper, in perpetuum rei testimonium, and for avoiding all doubts and difficulties, to declare what the common law is and ever hath been.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 86 (1765).

IN PERSONAM

in personam (in p<<schwa>>r-soh-n<<schwa>>m), adj.[Latin “against a person”] 1. Involving or determining the personal rights and obligations of the parties. 2. (Of a legal action) brought against a person rather than property. — Also termed personal. See action in personam under ACTION(4). Cf. IN REM. [Cases: Courts 10. C.J.S. Courts §§ 39–40.] — in personam,adv.

“An action is said to be in personam when its object is to determine the rights and interests of the parties themselves in the subject-matter of the action, however the action may arise, and the effect of a judgment in such an action is merely to bind the parties to it. A normal action brought by one person against another for breach of contract is a common example of an action in personam.” R.H. Graveson, Conflict of Laws 98 (7th ed. 1974).

IN PERSONAM JUDGMENT

in personam judgment.See personal judgment under JUDGMENT.

IN PERSONAM JURISDICTION

In presence of the lords. • The phrase was added to the presiding judge's signature to indicate that the remaining judges did not have to sign the document because the presiding judge had signed the writing in their presence. — Abbr. IPD.

IN PRENDER

in prender (in pren-d<<schwa>>r), adj.[Law French “in taking”] Hist. (Of a right) consisting in property taken to fulfill a claim to it, such as an incorporeal hereditament (as a heriot custom) that a lord had to seize in order to exercise the right to it. Cf. IN RENDER.

IN-PRESENCE RULE

in-presence rule.The principle that a police officer may make a warrantless arrest of a person who commits a misdemeanor offense not only in the officer's actual presence but also within the officer's immediate vicinity.

“The common law rule with respect to misdemeanors was quite different; a warrant was required except when a breach of the peace occurred in the presence of the arresting officer.... Though the ‘in presence’ rule might be construed as requiring that the misdemeanor in fact have occurred in the officer's presence, the modern view is that the officer may arrest if he has probable cause to believe the offense is being committed in his presence.” Wayne R. LaFave & Jerold H. Israel, Criminal Procedure § 3.5, at 169–70 (2d ed. 1992).

IN PRIMIS

in primis (in prI-mis). See IMPRIMIS.

IN PRINCIPIO

INSANE

insane,adj. Mentally deranged; suffering from one or more delusions or false beliefs that (1) have no foundation in reason or reality, (2) are not credible to any reasonable person of sound mind, and (3) cannot be overcome in a sufferer's mind by any amount of evidence or argument. See INSANITY. [Cases: Mental Health 3. C.J.S. Insane Persons §§ 2, 6.]

INSANE ASYLUM

insane asylum.See ASYLUM(3).

INSANE DELUSION

insane delusion.An irrational, persistent belief in an imaginary state of facts resulting in a lack of capacity to undertake acts of legal consequence, such as making a will. See CAPACITY(2). [Cases: Criminal Law 49.]

INSANITY

insanity,n. Any mental disorder severe enough that it prevents a person from having legal capacity and excuses the person from criminal or civil responsibility. • Insanity is a legal, not a medical, standard. — Also termed legal insanity; lunacy. Cf. diminished capacity under CAPACITY; SANITY. [Cases: Criminal Law 47; Homicide 817; Mental Health 3. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 99–108; Insane Persons §§ 2, 6.]

“The lawyers refer to ‘insanity.’ This is a legal term only, and one that is not used by the psychiatrist; the latter prefers to speak of mental disorder, mental illness, or of psychosis or neurosis.” Winfred Overholser, Psychiatry and the Law, 38 Mental Hygiene 243, 244 (1954).

“The word ‘insanity’ is commonly used in discussions of this problem although some other term would seem to be preferable such as ‘mental disease or defect,’ — which may be shortened to ‘mental disorder’ in general discussions if this is clearly understood to include disease of the mind, congenital lack, and damage resulting from traumatic injury, but to exclude excitement or stupefaction resulting from liquor or drugs. Apart from its uses in the law ‘insanity’ is usually employed to indicate mental disorder resulting from deterioration or damage as distinguished from congenital deficiency. Criminal incapacity may result as readily from one as from the other, but while the earlier authorities spoke of the ‘idiot’ and the ‘madman,’ ... the more recent tendency in the law has been to include both under the ‘insanity’ label.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 952 (3d ed. 1982).

“Another objection to the word ‘insanity’ is the unwarranted assumption that it refers to a very definite mental condition, seldom put into words but apparent in many discussions of the problem.” Id.

emotional insanity.Insanity produced by a violent excitement of the emotions or passions, although reasoning faculties may remain unimpaired; a passion that for a period creates complete derangement of intellect. • Emotional insanity is sometimes described as an irresistible impulse to do an act. See IRRESISTIBLE-IMPULSE TESTT. [Cases: Criminal Law 51. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 99–108.]

temporary insanity.Insanity that exists only at the time of a criminal act.

INSANITY DEFENSE

insanity defense.Criminal law. An affirmative defense alleging that a mental disorder caused the accused to commit the crime. See 18 USCA § 17; Fed. R. Crim. P. 12.2. • Unlike other defenses, a successful insanity defense may not result in acquittal but instead in a special verdict (“not guilty by reason of insanity”) that usu. leads to the defendant's commitment to a mental institution. — Also termed insanity plea. See MCNAGHTEN RULES; SUBSTANTIAL-CAPACITY TEST; IRRESISTIBLE-IMPULSE TEST; DURHAM RULE; APPRECIATION TEST. [Cases: Criminal Law 47; Homicide 817.C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 99–108.]

INSIDER INFORMATION

insider information. See INSIDE INFORMATION.

INSIDER PREFERENCE

insider preference. See PREFERENCE.

INSIDER REPORT

insider report. See REPORT(1).

INSIDER TRADING

“ ‘What is insider trading?’ The term is probably best defined, to the extent any definition is adequate, as ‘the purchase or sale of securities on the basis of material, non-public information.’ What counts as ‘non-public information’? What non-public information can be deemed ‘material’? When is a trader who is in possession of material, non-public information trading ‘on the basis of’ that information? Must the information be about the company whose securities are being purchased or sold? What characteristics establish ‘insider’ status sufficient to warrant legal proscriptions of trading? These are all questions that are derived from the definition of insider trading just offered ....” C. Edward Fletcher, Materials on the Law of Insider Trading 3 (1991).

amounting to three times the profit gained or loss avoided.” Marc I. Steinberg, Understanding Securities Law 277–78 (2d ed. 1996).

INSIST

insist, vb. (Of a house in a bicameral legislature) to reaffirm (an amendment) that the other house has considered but in which it has not concurred, or to reaffirm nonconcurrence in an amendment from which the other house has not receded. • An insistence often results in a request for a conference. See CONCUR(3); CONFERENCE(2); RECEDE. — insistence, n.

“When one house refuses to recede from its amendments, the bill is not thereby lost, because the house may vote to insist upon its amendments. A message is sent to the other house stating that the house has insisted upon its amendments and is usually accompanied by a request for conference. When one house insists upon its amendments, the other house may then insist upon its nonconcurrence in the amendments and request a conference or recede from its nonconcurrence and concur in the amendments, which would constitute a final passage of the bill with the amendments.” National Conference of State Legislatures, Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure § 768, at 556–57 (2000).

IN SOLIDO

in solido (in sol-<<schwa>>-doh). [Latin “as a whole”] (Of an obligation) creating joint and several liability. • The term is used in most civil-law jurisdictions, but no longer in Louisiana. — Also termed in solidum. See SOLIDARY.

INSTITUTIONALIZE

institutionalize, vb. 1. To place (a person) in an institution. 2. To give (a rule or practice) official sanction.

INSTITUTIONAL LENDER

institutional lender. A business, esp. a bank, that routinely makes loans to the general public.

INSTITUTIONAL LITIGANT

“Our second observation relates to what has been called the ‘institutional litigant.’ There are organized groups, such as labour unions or trade associations, that have a continuing interest in the development of the common law. A group of this sort may take a case to litigation, not so much for the sake of a determination of the case itself, but for the purpose of bringing about a change in the law or of defending an existing rule against a change sought by some other group. When such groups are involved, the usual arguments against prospective changes in the law through judicial decisions lose much of their force. Indeed, when the litigants have this sort of long-term interest, a judicial proceeding may take on, with the assent of all involved, something of the nature of a legislative hearing.” Lon L. Fuller, Anatomy of the Law 163 (1968).

INSTITUTIONAL MARKET

institutional market. See MARKET.

INSTITUTIONES

institutiones (in-sti-t[y]oo-shee-oh-nee), n. [Latin] Roman law. Elementary works of law; institutes. See INSTITUTE.

IN SUO ORDINE

in suo ordine (in s[y]oo-oh or-d<<schwa>>-nee). [Latin] Hist. In his order.

“In suo ordine .... A cautioner who is entitled to the benefit of discussion can only be called upon, for fulfilment of the obligation which he guaranteed, in his order — that is, after the principal creditor has been discussed. So, also, an heir can only be made liable for the moveable debts of his ancestor, after the executor who succeeded to the moveable estate has been discussed, and where the moveable estate has proved insufficient to meet those debts.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 277 (4th ed. 1894).

INSURABLE

insurable,adj. Able to be insured <an insurable risk>. — insurability,n.

INSURABLE INTEREST

insurable interest.See INTEREST(2).

INSURABLE VALUE

insurable value.The worth of the subject of an insurance contract, usu. expressed as a monetary amount. [Cases: Insurance 2171. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1108–1109, 1204.]

INSURANCE

insurance. 1. A contract by which one party (the insurer) undertakes to indemnify another party (the insured) against risk of loss, damage, or liability arising from the occurrence of some specified contingency, and usu. to defend the insured or to pay for a defense regardless of whether the insured is ultimately found liable. • An insured party usu. pays a premium to the insurer in exchange for the insurer's assumption of the insured's risk. Although indemnification provisions are most common in insurance policies, parties to any type of contract may agree on indemnification arrangements. [Cases: Insurance 1001. C.J.S. Insurance § 2.] 2. The amount for which someone or something is covered by such an agreement. — insure,vb.

“Insurance, or as it is sometimes called, assurance, is a contract by which one party, for a consideration, which is usually paid in money either in one sum or at different times during the continuance of the risk, promises to make a certain payment of money upon the destruction or injury of something in which the other party has an interest. In fire insurance and in marine insurance the thing insured is property; in life or accident insurance it is the life or health of the person.” 1 George J. Couch, Couch on Insurance § 1.2, at 4–5 (2d ed. 1984).

accident and health insurance. See health insurance.

accident-based insurance. See occurrence-based liability insurance.

accident insurance. Insurance that indemnifies against bodily injury caused by an accident. • Covered losses may include expenses, time, suffering, or death. Cf. casualty insurance. [Cases: Insurance 1012. C.J.S. Insurance § 4.]

accounts-receivable insurance. 1. Insurance against losses resulting from the insured's inability to collect outstanding accounts receivable because of damage to or destruction of records. 2. See credit insurance.

additional insurance. Insurance added to an existing policy.

all-risk insurance. Insurance that covers every kind of insurable loss except what is specifically excluded.

annuity insurance. An agreement to pay the insured (or annuitant) for a stated period or for life. [Cases: Annuities 1. C.J.S. Annuities §§ 2–4, 6–9, 21.]

assessable insurance. 1. Insurance in which the insured is liable for additional premiums if a loss is unusually large. 2. See assessable policy (1) under INSURANCE POLICY.

assessment insurance. A type of mutual insurance in which the policyholders are assessed as losses are incurred; a policy in which payments to an insured are not unalterably fixed, but are dependent on the collection of assessments necessary to pay the amount insured.

automobile insurance. An agreement to indemnify against one or more kinds of loss associated with the use of an automobile, including damage to a vehicle and liability for personal injury. [Cases: Insurance 1015. C.J.S. Insurance § 16.]

aviation insurance. Insurance that protects the insured against a loss connected with the use of an aircraft. • This type of insurance can be written to cover a variety of risks, including bodily injury, property damage, and hangarkeepers' liability. [Cases: Insurance 2329.]

broad-form insurance. Comprehensive insurance. • This type of insurance usu. takes the form of an endorsement to a liability or property policy, broadening the coverage that is typically available.

bumbershoot insurance. 1. Marine insurance that provides broad coverage for ocean marine risks. 2. See umbrella insurance. • This term derives from the British slang term for umbrella. The term applies esp. to a policy insured through the London insurance market. See umbrella policy under INSURANCE POLICY.

burial insurance. Insurance that pays for the holder's burial and funeral expenses.

business-interruption insurance. An agreement to protect against one or more kinds of loss from the interruption of an ongoing business, such as a loss of profits while the business is shut down to repair fire damage. [Cases: Insurance 2163, 2179. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1074, 1114.]

business-partner insurance. See partnership insurance.

captive insurance. 1. Insurance that provides coverage for the group or business that established it. [Cases: Insurance 1192.] 2. Insurance that a subsidiary provides to its parent company, usu. so that the parent company can deduct the premiums set aside as loss reserves.

cargo insurance. An agreement to pay for damage to freight damaged in transit. [Cases: Insurance 2137(3), 2217. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 403–404, 419.]

casualty insurance. An agreement to indemnify against loss resulting from a broad group of causes such as legal liability, theft, accident, property damage, and workers' compensation. • The meaning of casualty insurance has become blurred because of the rapid increase in different types of insurance coverage. Cf. accident insurance. [Cases: Insurance 1008; Workers' Compensation 1061. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 4–5, 7, 15, 17–18; Workmen's Compensation § 663.]

coinsurance. 1. Insurance provided jointly by two or more insurers. 2. Insurance under which the insurer and insured jointly bear responsibility. • An example is commercial insurance under which only a portion of a property's value is covered, and the property owner assumes liability for any loss in excess of the policy limits. [Cases: Insurance 2170. C.J.S. Insurance § 1110.]

collision insurance. Automobile insurance that covers damage to the insured's vehicle resulting from a rollover or collision with any object, but does not cover a personal injury or damage to other property. [Cases: Insurance 2704. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1020–1025.]

commercial insurance. 1. An indemnity agreement in the form of a deed or bond to protect against a loss caused by a party's breach of contract. 2. A form of coverage that allows an insurer to adjust the premium rates at will, and does not require the insured to accept the premium or renew the coverage from period to period.

“Commercial insurance is a popular and very elastic term, having reference to indemnity agreements issued in the form of an insurance bond or policy, whereby parties to commercial contracts are, to a designated extent, guaranteed against loss by reason of a breach of contractual obligations on the part of the other contracting party. To this class belong policies of ‘contract,’ ‘credit,’ and ‘title’ insurances.” Thomas Gold Frost, A Treatise on Guaranty Insurance § 3, at 14 (2d ed. 1909).

comprehensive general-liability insurance. Insurance that broadly covers an insured's liability exposure, including product liability, contractual liability, and premises liability. — Abbr. CGL insurance.

comprehensive insurance. Insurance that combines coverage against many kinds of losses that may also be insured separately. • This is commonly used, for example, in an automobile-insurance policy.

compulsory insurance. Statutorily required insurance; esp., motor-vehicle liability insurance that a state requires as a condition to registration of the vehicle. [Cases: Automobiles 43. C.J.S. Motor Vehicles §§ 223–224.]

convertible collision insurance. Collision insurance that carries a low premium until a claim is made against the policy.

convertible insurance. Insurance that can be changed to another form without further evidence of insurability, usu. referring to a term-life-insurance policy that can be changed to permanent insurance without a medical examination. [Cases: Insurance 1908–1911.]

credit insurance. An agreement to indemnify against loss that may result from the death, disability, or insolvency of someone to whom credit is extended. • A debtor typically purchases this type of insurance to ensure the repayment of the loan. — Also termed accounts-receivable insurance.

credit life insurance. See LIFE INSURANCE.

crime insurance. Insurance covering losses occasioned by a crime committed by someone other than the insured.

crop insurance. Insurance that protects against loss to growing crops from natural perils such as hail and fire. [Cases: Insurance 2203–2208. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 60, 413, 1076.]

decreasing term insurance. Insurance that declines in value during the term; esp., life insurance that lessens in value to zero by the end of the term.

deposit insurance. A federally sponsored indemnification program to protect depositors against the loss of their money, up to a specified maximum, if the bank or savings-and-loan association fails or defaults. [Cases: Banks and Banking 506. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 688, 706.]

directors and officers' liability insurance. An agreement to indemnify corporate directors and officers against judgments, settlements, and fines arising from negligence suits, shareholder actions, and other business-related suits. — Often shortened to D & O liability insurance; D & O insurance. [Cases: Insurance 2377.]

disability insurance. Coverage purchased to protect a person from a loss of income during a period of incapacity for work. See general-disability insurance; occupational-disability insurance. [Cases: Insurance 1012, 2534–2579. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 4, 1088–1095, 1097, 1102, 1126, 1187–1192.]

double insurance. Insurance coverage by more than one insurer for the same interest and for the same insured. • Except with life insurance, the insured is entitled to only a single indemnity from a loss, and to recover this, the insured may either (1) sue each insurer for its share of the loss, or (2) sue one or more of the insurers for the entire amount, leaving any paying insurers to recover from the others their respective shares of the loss.

dread-disease insurance. Health insurance that covers medical expenses arising from the treatment of any of several specified diseases.

e-commerce insurance. Insurance that covers a business's computer-related damages and losses caused by computer hackers and Internet viruses. • Covered damages usu. include physical destruction of or harm to computer circuitry, loss of access, loss of use, loss of functionality, and business interruption.

employers'-liability insurance. 1. An agreement to indemnify an employer against an employee's claim not covered under the workers'-compensation system. 2. An agreement to indemnify against liability imposed on an employer for an employee's negligence that injures a third party. [Cases: Insurance 2317.]

employment-practices liability insurance. Insurance that provides coverage for claims arising from an insured's injury-causing employment practice, such as discrimination, defamation, or sexual harassment. — Abbr. EPL insurance.

endowment insurance. A type of life insurance that is payable either to the insured at the end of the policy period or to the insured's beneficiary if the insured dies before the period ends. See endowment life insurance under LIFE INSURANCE.

errors-and-omissions insurance. An agreement to indemnify for loss sustained because of a mistake or oversight by the insured — though not for loss due to the insured's intentional wrongdoing. • For example, lawyers often carry this insurance as part of their malpractice coverage to protect them in suits for damages resulting from inadvertent mistakes (such as missing a procedural deadline). While this insurance does not cover the insured's intentional wrongdoing, it may cover an employee's intentional, but unauthorized, wrongdoing. — Often shortened to E & O insurance. [Cases: Insurance 2383.]

excess insurance. An agreement to indemnify against any loss that exceeds the amount of coverage under another policy. — Also termed excess policy. Cf. primary insurance. See EXCESS CLAUSE. [Cases: Insurance 2110, 2394.]

excess-lines insurance. See surplus-lines insurance.

extended insurance. Insurance that continues in force beyond the date that the last premium was paid by drawing on its cash value.

extended-term insurance. Insurance that remains in effect after a default in paying premiums, as long as the policy has cash value to pay premiums. • Many life-insurance policies provide this feature to protect against forfeiture of the policy if the insured falls behind in premium payments.

family-income insurance. An agreement to pay benefits for a stated period following the death of the insured. • At the end of the payment period, the face value is paid to the designated beneficiary.

fidelity insurance. An agreement to indemnify an employer against a loss arising from the lack of integrity or honesty of an employee or of a person holding a position of trust, such as a loss from embezzlement. — Also termed fidelity guaranty insurance; fidelity and guaranty insurance; surety and fidelity insurance. [Cases: Insurance 1014. C.J.S. Insurance § 8.]

fire insurance. An agreement to indemnify against property damage caused by fire, wind, rain, or other similar disaster. [Cases: Insurance 1009. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 5, 7.]

first-party insurance. A policy that applies to an insured or the insured's own property, such as life insurance, health insurance, disability insurance, and fire insurance. — Also termed indemnity insurance; self-insurance.

fleet insurance. Insurance that covers a number of vehicles owned by the same entity.

floater insurance. An agreement to indemnify against a loss sustained to movable property, wherever its location within the territorial limit set by the policy.

flood insurance. Insurance that indemnifies against a loss caused by a flood. • This type of insurance is often sold privately but subsidized by the federal government. [Cases: Insurance 2209–2213. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 60, 1077.]

fraternal insurance. Life or health insurance issued by a fraternal benefit society to its members.

general-disability insurance. Disability insurance that provides benefits to a person who cannot perform any job that the person is qualified for. — Also termed total-disability insurance. Cf. occupational-disability insurance. [Cases: Insurance 2561. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1089, 1187, 1189.]

government insurance. Life insurance underwritten by the federal government to military personnel, veterans, and government employees.

group insurance. A form of insurance offered to a member of a group, such as the employees of a business, as long as that person remains a member of the group. • Group insurance is typically health or life (usu. term life) insurance issued under a master policy between the insurer and the employer, who usu. pays all or part of the premium for the insured person. Other groups, such as unions and associations, often offer group insurance to their members.

“ ‘Group Insurance’ refers to a method of marketing standard forms of insurance, such as life insurance, whereby a master policy is issued to the party negotiating the contract with the insurer (frequently an employer), and certificates of participation are issued to the individual insured members of the group (frequently employees).” John F. Dobbyn, Insurance Law in a Nutshell 13 (2d ed. 1989).

guaranty insurance (gar-<<schwa>>n-tee). An agreement to cover a loss resulting from another's default, insolvency, or specified misconduct. — Also termed surety insurance. [Cases: Insurance 1014. C.J.S. Insurance § 8.]

“The term ‘guaranty insurance’ is generic in its scope and signification, and embraces within it those subsidiary species of insurance contracts known as ‘fidelity,’ ‘commercial,’ and ‘judicial’ insurances .... In legal acceptance guaranty insurance is an agreement whereby one party (called the ‘insurer’) for a valuable consideration (termed the ‘premium’) agrees to indemnify another (called the ‘insured’) in a stipulated amount against loss or damage arising through dishonesty, fraud, unfaithful performance of duty or breach of contract on the part of a third person ... sustaining a contractual relationship to the party thus indemnified.” Thomas Gold Frost, A Treatise on Guaranty Insurance § 1, at 11 (2d ed. 1909).

health insurance. Insurance covering medical expenses resulting from sickness or injury. — Also termed accident and health insurance; sickness and accident insurance. [Cases: Insurance 1012. C.J.S. Insurance § 4.]

homeowner's insurance. Insurance that covers both damage to the insured's residence and liability claims made against the insured (esp. those arising from the insured's negligence).

indemnity insurance. See first-party insurance.

inland marine insurance. An agreement to indemnify against losses arising from the transport of goods on domestic waters (i.e., rivers, canals, and lakes). Cf. ocean marine insurance.

insurance of the person. Insurance intended to protect the person, such as life, accident, and disability insurance.

interinsurance. See reciprocal insurance.

joint life insurance. See LIFE INSURANCE.

judicial insurance. Insurance intended to protect litigants and others involved in the court system.

“By judicial insurance reference is had to insurance bonds or policies issued, in connection with the regular course of judicial or administrative procedure, for the purpose of securing the faithful performance of duty on the part of court appointees, to guarantee due compliance with the terms of undertakings entered into by parties litigant before the courts, and to secure proper administration of statute law.” Thomas Gold Frost, A Treatise on Guaranty Insurance § 3, at 14 (2d ed. 1909).

key-employee insurance. See key-employee life insurance under LIFE INSURANCE.

last-survivor insurance. See last-survivor life insurance under LIFE INSURANCE.

lease insurance. An agreement to indemnify a leaseholder for the loss of a favorable lease terminated by damage to the property from a peril covered by the policy. • The amount payable is the difference between the rent and the actual rental value of the property, multiplied by the remaining term of the lease.

level-premium insurance. Insurance whose premiums remain constant throughout the life of the agreement. • Most whole life policies are set up this way.

liability insurance. An agreement to cover a loss resulting from the insured's liability to a third party, such as a loss incurred by a driver who injures a pedestrian. • The insured's claim under the policy arises once the insured's liability to a third party has been asserted. — Also termed third-party insurance; public-liability insurance. [Cases: Insurance 1010. C.J.S. Insurance § 9.]

life insurance. See LIFE INSURANCE.

limited-policy insurance. Insurance that covers only specified perils; esp., health insurance that covers a specific type of illness (such as dread-disease insurance) or a risk relating to a stated activity (such as travel-accident insurance).

Lloyd's insurance. Insurance provided by insurers as individuals, rather than as a corporation.

- The insurers' liability is several but not joint. Most states either prohibit or strictly regulate this type of insurance. See LLOYD'S OF LONDON. [Cases: Insurance 1220. C.J.S. Insurance § 1709.]

loss insurance. Insurance purchased by a person who may suffer a loss at the hands of another.

- This is the converse of liability insurance, which is purchased by potential defendants.

malpractice insurance (mal-prak-tis). An agreement to indemnify a professional person, such as a doctor or lawyer, against negligence claims. See errors-and-omissions insurance. [Cases: Insurance 2389.]

“Most contemporary lawyers regard malpractice insurance as an expensive, but essential, part of law practice. Its cost, along with other costs of the lawyer's trade, is ultimately borne by the consumer, the client who pays the lawyer's fees.... Neither the ABA Code nor the ABA Model Rules impose an ethical obligation to carry adequate malpractice insurance. But contemporary lawyers have found it prudent to do so, both to protect their personal assets and to promote their public image as reliable professionals who are financially responsible.” Mortimer D. Schwartz & Richard C. Wydick, Problems in Legal Ethics 127–28 (2d ed. 1988).

manual-rating insurance. A type of insurance whereby the premium is set using a book that classifies certain risks on a general basis, rather than evaluating each individual case.

marine insurance. An agreement to indemnify against injury to a ship, cargo, or profits involved in a certain voyage or for a specific vessel during a fixed period, or to protect other marine interests. [Cases: Insurance 2214–2256. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 394, 400–409, 434, 996–1014, 1195–1229.]

medigap insurance. See MEDIGAP INSURANCE.

mortgage insurance. 1. An agreement to pay off a mortgage if the insured dies or becomes disabled. [Cases: Mortgages 201. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 311–314.] 2. An agreement to provide money to the lender if the mortgagor defaults on the mortgage payments. — Also termed private mortgage insurance (abbr. PMI).

mutual insurance. A system of insurance (esp. life insurance) whereby the policyholders become members of the insurance company, each paying premiums into a common fund from which each can draw in the event of a loss.

national-service life insurance. See LIFE INSURANCE.

no-fault auto insurance. An agreement to indemnify for a loss due to personal injury or property damage arising from the use of an automobile, regardless of who caused the accident. [Cases: Insurance 2817–2856. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 928–929, 1587–1589, 1591–1595, 1601–1602, 1609, 1612–1623, 1645–1646.]

nonassessable insurance. Insurance in which the premium is set and the insurer is barred from demanding additional payments from the insured.

occupational-disability insurance. Disability insurance that provides benefits to a person who cannot perform his or her regular job. [Cases: Insurance 2561(2). C.J.S. Insurance § 1188.]

occurrence-based liability insurance. Insurance that covers bodily injuries or property damage suffered during the policy period. • Each instance of injury or damage is an “occurrence” that may trigger an insured's entitlement to benefits. The terms of occurrence-based liability insurance policies are usu. broad, limited only by specific exclusions. — Also termed accident-based insurance.

ocean marine insurance. Insurance that covers risks arising from the transport of goods by sea. Cf. inland marine insurance. [Cases: Insurance 2214–2256. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 394, 400–409, 434, 996–1014, 1195–1229.]

old-age and survivors' insurance. See OLD-AGE AND SURVIVORS' INSURANCE.

ordinary insurance. See ordinary life insurance under LIFE INSURANCE.

ordinary life insurance. See LIFE INSURANCE.

overinsurance. See OVERINSURANCE.

paid-up insurance. Insurance that remains in effect even though no more premiums are due.

participating insurance. A type of insurance that allows a policyholder to receive dividends. • This insurance is invariably issued by a mutual company.

partnership insurance. 1. Life insurance on the life of a partner, purchased to ensure the remaining partners' ability to buy out a deceased partner's interest. — Also termed partnership life insurance. 2. Health insurance for a partner, payable to the partnership to allow it to continue to operate while the partner is unable to work due to illness or injury. — Also termed (in both senses) business-partner insurance.

patent insurance (pat-*<<schwa>>*nt). 1. Insurance against loss from an infringement of the insured's patent. 2. Insurance against a claim that the insured has infringed another's patent. 3. Insurance that funds a claim against a third party for infringing the insured's patent.

port-risk insurance. Insurance on a vessel lying in port. Cf. time insurance; voyage insurance.

primary insurance. Insurance that attaches immediately on the happening of a loss; insurance that is not contingent on the exhaustion of an underlying policy. Cf. excess insurance. [Cases: Insurance 2110.]

private mortgage insurance. See mortgage insurance.

products-liability insurance. An agreement to indemnify a manufacturer, supplier, or retailer for a loss arising from the insured's liability to a user who is harmed by any product manufactured or sold by the insured. [Cases: Insurance 2359.]

profit insurance. Insurance that reimburses the insured for profits lost because of a specified peril.

property insurance. An agreement to indemnify against property damage or destruction. — Also termed property-damage insurance. [Cases: Insurance 1009. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 5, 7.]

public-liability insurance. See liability insurance.

reciprocal insurance. A system whereby several individuals or businesses act through an agent to underwrite one another's risks, making each insured an insurer of the other members of the group. — Also termed interinsurance. [Cases: Insurance 1204. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1712, 1720.]

reinsurance. See REINSURANCE.

renewable term insurance. Insurance that the insured may continue at the end of a term, but generally at a higher premium. • The insured usu. has the right to renew for additional terms without a medical examination.

replacement insurance. Insurance under which the value of the loss is measured by the current cost of replacing the insured property. See replacement cost under COST(1). [Cases: Insurance 2184. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1107, 1238, 1240, 1242–1243.]

retirement-income insurance. An agreement whereby the insurance company agrees to pay an annuity beginning at a certain age if the insured survives beyond that age, or the value of the policy if the insured dies before reaching that age.

self-insurance. A plan under which a business maintains its own special fund to cover any loss. • Unlike other forms of insurance, there is no contract with an insurance company. — Also termed first-party insurance. [Cases: Insurance 1004. C.J.S. Insurance § 2.]

sickness and accident insurance. See health insurance.

single-premium insurance. See single-premium life insurance under LIFE INSURANCE.

social insurance. Insurance provided by a government to persons facing particular perils (such as unemployment or disability) or to persons who have a certain status (such as the elderly or the blind). • Social insurance — such as that created by the Social Security Act of 1935 — is usu. part of a government's broader social policy. See WELFARE STATE. [Cases: Social Security and Public Welfare 121–149.5, 251–751. C.J.S. Social Security and Public Welfare §§ 4–5, 18–32, 34–84, 146–191, 209–297.]

split-dollar insurance. See split-dollar life insurance under LIFE INSURANCE.

step-rate-premium insurance. Insurance whose premiums increase at times specified in the policy.

stop-loss insurance. Insurance that protects a self-insured employer from catastrophic losses or unusually large health costs of covered employees. • Stop-loss insurance essentially provides excess coverage for a self-insured employer. The employer and the insurance carrier agree to the amount the employer will cover, and the stop-loss insurance will cover claims exceeding that amount. [Cases: Insurance 2523, 2525(1). C.J.S. Insurance § 930.]

straight life insurance. See whole life insurance under LIFE INSURANCE.

surety and fidelity insurance. See fidelity insurance.

surety insurance. See guaranty insurance.

surplus-lines insurance. Insurance with an insurer that is not licensed to transact business within the state where the risk is located. — Also termed excess-lines insurance. [Cases: Insurance 1331.]

term life insurance. See LIFE INSURANCE.

terrorism insurance. Insurance that indemnifies against losses sustained because of an act of terrorism. • Terrorism insurance has been available since the 1970s; it was (and is) required for U.S. airports of almost all sizes. In the mid-1980s, terrorism insurance was offered to individuals, originally as a form of travel insurance that provided compensation for terrorism-related cancellations or changes in itinerary when traveling to or in certain countries. See TERRORISM.

third-party insurance. See liability insurance.

time insurance. Marine insurance. Insurance covering the insured for a specified period. Cf. voyage insurance.

title insurance. An agreement to indemnify against loss arising from a defect in title to real property, usu. issued to the buyer of the property by the title company that conducted the title search. [Cases: Insurance 1013. C.J.S. Insurance § 19.]

“Title insurance is normally written by specialized companies that maintain tract indexes: companies involved in writing life or casualty usually are not involved in title insurance. Title insurance is an unusual type of insurance in a few respects. For one thing, it is not a recurring policy: There is only a single premium, and a title insurance policy written on behalf of an owner theoretically remains outstanding forever to protect him or her from claims asserted by others. It is more similar to an indemnification agreement than to an insurance policy. For another, title insurance companies generally do not take risks that they know about. If the title search shows that a risk exists, the company will exclude that risk from the coverage of the policy.” Robert W. Hamilton, Fundamentals of Modern Business 84 (1989).

total-disability insurance. See general-disability insurance.

travel-accident insurance. Health insurance limited to injuries sustained while traveling.

umbrella insurance. Insurance that is supplemental, providing coverage that exceeds the basic or usual limits of liability. — Also termed bumbershoot insurance. [Cases: Insurance 2110, 2394.]

underinsurance. See UNDERINSURANCE.

unemployment insurance. A type of social insurance that pays money to workers who are unemployed for reasons unrelated to job performance. • Individual states administer unemployment insurance, which is funded by payroll taxes. — Also termed unemployment compensation. [Cases: Social Security and Public Welfare 251–751. C.J.S. Social Security and Public Welfare §§ 146–191, 209–297.]

universal life insurance. See LIFE INSURANCE.

variable life insurance. See LIFE INSURANCE.

voyage insurance. Marine insurance. Insurance covering the insured between destinations. Cf. time insurance.

war-risk insurance. 1. Insurance covering damage caused by war. • Ocean marine policies are often written to cover this type of risk. [Cases: Insurance 2159, 2223. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 916, 1084.] 2. Life and accident insurance provided by the federal government to members of the armed forces. • This type of insurance is offered because the hazardous nature of military service often prevents military personnel from obtaining private insurance. [Cases: Armed Services 55. C.J.S. Armed Services § 192.] whole life insurance. See LIFE INSURANCE.

INSURANCE ADJUSTER

insurance adjuster. A person who determines the value of a loss to the insured and settles the claim against the insurer. See ADJUSTER. [Cases: Insurance 3222. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1343–1344.]

INSURANCE AGENT

insurance agent. A person authorized by an insurance company to sell its insurance policies. — Also termed producer; (in property insurance) recording agent; record agent. [Cases: Insurance 1604. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 178, 180.]

general agent. An agent with the general power of making insurance contracts on behalf of an insurer. [Cases: Insurance 1634(2). C.J.S. Insurance §§ 193–194.]

special agent. An agent whose powers are usu. confined to soliciting applications for insurance, taking initial premiums, and delivering policies when issued. — Also termed local agent; solicitor. [Cases: Insurance 1634(2). C.J.S. Insurance §§ 193–194.]

INSURANCE BROKER

insurance broker. See BROKER.

INSURANCE CERTIFICATE

insurance certificate. 1. A document issued by an insurer as evidence of insurance or membership in an insurance or pension plan. 2. A document issued by an insurer to a shipper as evidence that a shipment of goods is covered by a marine insurance policy.

INSURANCE COMMISSIONER

insurance commissioner. A public official who supervises the insurance business conducted in a state. [Cases: Insurance 1029.]

INSURANCE COMPANY

insurance company. A corporation or association that issues insurance policies. [Cases: Insurance 1003. C.J.S. Insurance § 32.]

captive insurance company. A company that insures the liabilities of its owner. • The insured is usu. the sole shareholder and the only customer of the company. — Also termed captive insurer. [Cases: Insurance 1192.]

mixed insurance company. An insurance company having characteristics of both stock and mutual companies in that it distributes part of the profits to stockholders and also makes distributions to the insureds.

mutual insurance company. An insurance company whose policyholders are both insurers and insureds because they pay premiums into a common fund, from which claims are paid; an insurer whose policyholders are its owners, as opposed to a stock insurance company owned by outside shareholders. Cf. stock insurance company. [Cases: Insurance 1121. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 99, 109.]

“Mutual insurance companies are organized by a number of persons for the purpose of transacting some particular insurance business .... A company is a mutual one when the persons constituting the company contribute either cash or assessable premium notes, or both, to a common fund, out of which each is entitled to indemnity in case of loss. The distinguishing feature is mutuality, evidenced by the co-operation of members, uniting for that purpose, each taking a proportionate part in the management of its affairs and being at once insurer and insured, contributing to a fund from which all losses are paid .... Democratic ownership and control is a fundamental characteristic of a mutual insurance company.” 18 John Alan Appleman, Insurance Law and Practice § 10041, at 79–80 (1945).

stock insurance company. An insurance company operated as a private corporation and owned by stockholders who share in the company's profits and losses.

stock life-insurance company. A stock insurance company that does life-insurance business.

INSURANCE FRAUD

insurance fraud. See FRAUD.

INSURANCE OF THE PERSON

insurance of the person. See INSURANCE.

INSURANCE POLICY

insurance policy. 1. A contract of insurance. 2. A document detailing such a contract. — Often shortened to policy. — Also termed policy of insurance; contract of insurance.

accident policy.A type of business or personal policy that insures against loss resulting directly from accidental bodily injuries sustained during the policy term. [Cases: Insurance 1012, 1716. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 4, 254.]

assessable policy. 1. A policy under which a policyholder may be held liable for losses of the insurance company beyond its reserves. — Also termed assessable insurance. 2. See assessable insurance (1) under INSURANCE.

bailee policy.A floating policy that covers goods in a bailee's possession but does not particularly describe the covered goods.

basic-form policy.A policy that offers limited coverage against loss. • A basic-form policy generally covers damages from fire, windstorm, explosion, riot, aircraft, vehicles, theft, or vandalism. — Also termed limited policy; specific policy.

blanket policy.An agreement to indemnify all property, regardless of location. — Also termed compound policy.

block policy.An all-risk policy that covers groups of property (such as property held in bailment or a business's merchandise) against most perils. See all-risk insurance under INSURANCE.

broad-form policy.A policy that offers broad protection with few limitations. • This policy offers greater coverage than a basic-form policy, but less than an open-perils policy.

claims-made policy.An agreement to indemnify against all claims made during a specified period, regardless of when the incidents that gave rise to the claims occurred. — Also termed discovery policy. [Cases: Insurance 2266. C.J.S. Insurance § 430.]

closed policy.An insurance policy whose terms cannot be changed. • A fraternal benefit society is not permitted to write closed policies. — Also termed closed insurance contract.

commercial general-liability policy.A comprehensive policy that covers most commercial risks, liabilities, and causes of loss. • This type of policy covers both business losses and situations in which a business is liable to a third party for personal injury or property damage. First introduced in 1986, this policy has largely replaced comprehensive general-liability policies. — Abbr. CGL policy. Cf. comprehensive general-liability policy.

completed-operations policy.A policy usu. purchased by a building contractor to cover accidents arising out of a job or an operation that the contractor has completed. [Cases: Insurance 2296. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 431, 950, 952–953, 971–972, 974–976, 985.]

compound policy.See blanket policy.

comprehensive general-liability policy.A broad-coverage commercial insurance policy covering a variety of general risks, esp. bodily injury and property damage to a third party for which the business entity is liable. • This policy was first offered in 1940. It has largely been replaced by the commercial-general liability policy. — Also termed CGL policy; general-liability policy. Cf. commercial general-liability policy.

concurrent policy. One of two or more insurance policies that cover the same risk. • Concurrent insurance policies are stated in almost identical terms so that liability can be apportioned between the insurers. [Cases: Insurance 2107.]

continuous policy. See perpetual policy.

corrected policy. A policy issued after a redetermination of risk to correct a misstatement in the original policy.

deferred-dividend insurance policy. Hist. A life insurance policy that accumulated a fixed percentage of the insurer's surplus profits, payable as a lump sum on a certain date or at the insured's death, whichever came first.

discovery policy. See claims-made policy.

drummer floater policy. Hist. A policy that covered the goods carried by a commercial salesperson while traveling.

endowment policy. A life-insurance policy payable at the end of a specified period, if the insured survives that period, or upon the insured's death if death occurs before the end of the period.

excess policy. See excess insurance under INSURANCE.

extended policy. A policy that remains in effect beyond the time when premiums are no longer paid.

flier policy. Hist. A policy issued at a very low rate near the end of the year for the purpose of swelling the insurance agent's annual-sales figures. — Also spelled flyer policy.

floating policy. An insurance policy covering property that frequently changes in quantity or location, such as jewelry. — Also termed running policy; blanket policy.

following-form policy. An insurance policy that adopts the terms and conditions of another insurance policy. [Cases: Insurance 3615(1).]

gambling policy. See wager policy.

graveyard insurance. See wager policy.

group policy. See master policy.

homeowner's policy. A multiperil policy providing coverage for a variety of risks, including loss by fire, water, burglary, and the homeowner's negligent conduct.

incontestable policy. A policy containing a provision that prohibits the insurer from contesting or canceling the policy on the basis of statements made in the application. [Cases: Insurance 3121. C.J.S. Insurance § 1636.]

interest policy. A policy whose terms indicate that the insured has an interest in the subject matter of the insurance. Cf. wager policy.

joint life policy. A life-insurance policy that matures and becomes due upon the death of any of those jointly insured.

lapsed policy. 1. An insurance policy on which there has been a default in premium payments. [Cases: Insurance 2039.] 2. An insurance policy that, because of statutory provisions, remains in force after a default in premium payments. • Statutes normally provide a 30- or 31-day grace period after nonpayment of premiums. [Cases: Insurance 2018.]

level-rate legal-reserve policy. A policy that seeks to build a reserve equal to the policy's face value by the end of the insured's life.

life policy. A life-insurance policy that requires lifetime annual fixed premiums and that becomes payable only on the death of the insured. — Also termed regular life policy. [Cases: Insurance 1011, 1716. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 10–14, 254.]

limited policy. 1. An insurance policy that specifically excludes certain classes or types of loss. 2. See basic-form policy.

manuscript policy. An insurance policy containing nonstandard provisions that have been negotiated between the insurer and the insured.

master policy. An insurance policy that covers multiple insureds under a group-insurance plan. — Also termed group policy. See group insurance under INSURANCE.

mixed policy. Marine insurance. A policy combining aspects of both a voyage policy and a time policy.

multiperil policy. An insurance policy that covers several types of losses, such as a homeowner's policy that covers losses from fire, theft, and personal injury. — Also termed named-perils policy.

nonmedical policy. An insurance policy issued without a prior medical examination of the applicant.

occurrence policy. An agreement to indemnify for any loss from an event that occurs within the policy period, regardless of when the claim is made. [Cases: Insurance 2264. C.J.S. Insurance § 429.]

open-perils policy. A property insurance policy covering all risks against loss except those specifically excluded from coverage.

open policy. See unvalued policy.

package policy. An insurance policy providing protection against multiple perils and losses of both the insured and third parties. • A homeowner's policy is usu. a package policy.

paid-up policy. A policy that remains in effect after premiums are no longer due.

participating policy. A policy that allows the holder a right to dividends or rebates from future premiums. • This type of policy is issued by a mutual company.

permanent policy. A renewable policy that is effective for a specified period and is terminable by either the insurer or the insured after giving express notice.

perpetual policy. An insurance policy that remains effective without renewal until one of the parties terminates it according to its terms. — Also termed continuous policy.

regular life policy. See life policy.

running policy. See floating policy.

specific policy. See basic-form policy.

standard policy. 1. An insurance policy providing insurance that is recommended or required by state law, usu. regulated by a state agency. [Cases: Insurance 1775. C.J.S. Insurance § 297.] 2. An insurance policy that contains standard terms used for similar insurance policies nationwide, usu. drafted by an insurance industrial association such as Insurance Services Office.

survivorship policy. A joint life policy that is payable after all the insureds have died.

term policy. A life-insurance policy that gives protection for a specified period, but that does not have a cash value or reserve value.

time policy. An insurance policy that is effective only during a specified period.

tontine policy (tahn-teen or tahn-teen). An insurance policy in which a group of participants share advantages so that upon the default or death of any participant, his or her advantages are distributed among the remaining participants until only one remains, whereupon the whole goes to that sole participant. • Under the tontine plan of insurance, no accumulation or earnings are credited to the policy unless it remains in force for the tontine period of a specified number of years. Thus, those who survive the period and keep their policies in force share in the accumulated funds, and those who die or permit their policies to lapse during the period do not. This type of policy takes its name from Lorenzo Tonti, an Italian who invented it in the 17th century. Today, newer and more ingenious forms of insurance have largely made tontine policies defunct. See TONTINE. [Cases: Insurance 2441.]

umbrella policy. An insurance policy covering losses that exceed the basic or usual limits of liability provided by other policies. See umbrella insurance under INSURANCE. [Cases: Insurance 2110, 2394.]

unvalued policy. A policy that does not state a value of the insured property but that, upon loss, requires proof of the property's worth. — Also termed open policy.

valued policy. An insurance policy in which the sum to be paid when a loss occurs is fixed by the terms of the contract. • The value agreed on is conclusive for a total loss and provides a basis for determining recovery in cases of partial loss. This value is in the nature of liquidated damages. [Cases: Insurance 2171. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1108–1109, 1204.]

voyage policy. A marine-insurance policy that insures a vessel or its cargo during a specified voyage.

wager policy. An insurance policy issued to a person who is shown to have no insurable interest in the person or property covered by the policy. • Wager policies are illegal in most states. — Also termed gambling policy; graveyard insurance. See insurable interest under INTEREST(2). Cf. interest policy; viatical settlement under SETTLEMENT(3). [Cases: Insurance 1784.]

INSURANCE POOL

insurance pool. A group of several insurers that, to spread the risk, combine and share premiums and losses.

INSURANCE PREMIUM

insurance premium. See PREMIUM(1).

INSURANCE RATING

insurance rating. The process by which an insurer arrives at a policy premium for a particular risk. — Often shortened to rating. [Cases: Insurance 1541. C.J.S. Insurance § 68.]

INSURANCE SERVICES OFFICE

Insurance Services Office. A nonprofit organization that provides analytical and decision-support services and tools to the insurance industry, including statistical, actuarial, underwriting, and claims data, and drafts of model insurance policy forms and coverage provisions. • The organization is composed of member insurers. It provides data and information to its members and also to nonmember subscribers, such as risk managers, insurance regulators, and self-insureds. — Abbr. ISO.

INSURANCE TRUST

insurance trust. See TRUST.

INSURANCE UNDERWRITER

insurance underwriter. See UNDERWRITER.

INSURANT

insurant, n. A person who obtains insurance or to whom an insurance policy is issued. • This term is much less common than the attributive noun insured.

INSURE

insure, vb. 1. To secure, by payment of a premium, the payment of a sum of money in the event of a loss. [Cases: Insurance 1001. C.J.S. Insurance § 2.] 2. To issue or procure an insurance policy on or for (someone or something).

INSURED

insured, n. A person who is covered or protected by an insurance policy. — Also termed assured. [Cases: Insurance 2100. C.J.S. Insurance § 389.]

additional insured. A person who is covered by an insurance policy but who is not the primary insured. • An additional insured may, or may not, be specifically named in the policy. If the person is named, then the term is sometimes named additional insured. — Also termed secondary insured. [Cases: Insurance 2100. C.J.S. Insurance § 389.]

class-one insured. In a motor-vehicle policy, the named insured and any relative residing with the named insured. [Cases: Insurance 2660–2661. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 928, 1044–1047, 1054, 1596, 1599, 1672–1673.]

class-two insured. In a motor-vehicle policy, a person lawfully occupying a vehicle at the time of an accident. [Cases: Insurance 2660. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 928, 1044–1045, 1047, 1054, 1596, 1599, 1672.]

first-named insured. See primary insured.

named insured. A person designated in an insurance policy as the one covered by the policy. [Cases: Insurance 2100. C.J.S. Insurance § 389.]

primary insured. The individual or entity whose name appears first in the declarations of an insurance policy. — Also termed first-named insured.

INSURER

insurer. One who agrees, by contract, to assume the risk of another's loss and to compensate for that loss. — Also termed underwriter; insurance underwriter; carrier; assurer (for life insurance). [Cases: Insurance 1002. C.J.S. Insurance § 32.]

excess insurer. An insurer who is liable for settling any part of a claim not covered by an insured's primary insurer. — Also termed secondary insurer. See primary insurer.

primary insurer. An insurer who is contractually committed to settling a claim up to the applicable policy limit before any other insurer becomes liable for any part of the same claim. See excess insurer.

quasi-insurer. A service provider who is held to strict liability in the provision of services, such as an innkeeper or a common carrier.

secondary insurer. See excess insurer.

INSURGENT

insurgent, n. A person who, for political purposes, engages in armed hostility against an established government. — insurgent, adj. — insurgency, n.

INSURING AGREEMENT

insuring agreement. See INSURING CLAUSE.

INSURING CLAUSE

insuring clause. A provision in an insurance policy or bond reciting the risk assumed by the insurer or establishing the scope of the coverage. — Also termed insuring agreement. [Cases: Insurance 2097. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 282–283, 395, 860.]

INSURRECTION

insurrection. A violent revolt against an oppressive authority, usu. a government.

“Insurrection is distinguished from rout, riot, and offense connected with mob violence by the fact that in insurrection there is an organized and armed uprising against authority or operations of government, while crimes growing out of mob violence, however serious they may be and however numerous the participants, are simply unlawful acts in disturbance of the peace which do not threaten the stability of the government or the existence of political society.” 77 C.J.S. Riot; Insurrection § 29, at 579 (1994).

INTACT FAMILY

intact family. See FAMILY.

---

INTEGRATED CONTRACT

integrated contract. One or more writings constituting a final expression of one or more terms of an agreement. — Also termed integrated agreement; integrated writing. See INTEGRATION(2). [Cases: Contracts 245; Evidence 397(2). C.J.S. Contracts § 416; Evidence §§ 1159–1160, 1278–1280.]

completely integrated contract. An integrated agreement adopted by the parties as a full and exclusive statement of the terms of the agreement. • The parties are therefore prohibited from varying or supplementing the contractual terms through parol (extrinsic) evidence. [Cases: Evidence 397(2). C.J.S. Evidence §§ 1159–1160, 1278–1280.]

partially integrated contract. An agreement in which some, but not all, of the terms are integrated; any agreement other than a completely integrated agreement. [Cases: Evidence 397(2). C.J.S. Evidence §§ 1159–1160, 1278–1280.]

INTEGRATED PROPERTY SETTLEMENT

integrated property settlement. See PROPERTY SETTLEMENT(2).

INTEGRATED WRITING

integrated writing. See integrated contract under CONTRACT.

INTEGRATION

integration. 1. The process of making whole or combining into one. 2. Contracts. The full expression of the parties' agreement, so that all earlier agreements are superseded, the effect being that neither party may later contradict or add to the contractual terms. — Also termed merger. See PAROL-EVIDENCE RULE E. [Cases: Contracts 245; Evidence 397(2). C.J.S. Contracts § 416; Evidence §§ 1159–1160, 1278–1280.]

complete integration. The fact or state of fully expressing the intent of the parties. • Parol evidence is therefore inadmissible. [Cases: Evidence 397(2). C.J.S. Evidence §§ 1159–1160, 1278–1280.]

partial integration. The fact or state of not fully expressing the parties' intent. • Parol (extrinsic) evidence is admissible to clear up ambiguities with respect to the terms that are not integrated. [Cases: Evidence 397(2). C.J.S. Evidence §§ 1159–1160, 1278–1280.]

3. Wills & estates. The combining of more than one writing into a single document to form the testator's last will and testament. • The other writing must be present at the time of execution and intended to be included in the will. The issue of integration is more complicated when it concerns a holographic will, which may be composed of more than one document written at different times. 4. The incorporation of different races into existing institutions (such as public schools) for the purpose of reversing the historical effects of racial discrimination. Cf. DESEGREGATION. [Cases: Schools 13(4). C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 111–114, 120, 128–129.] 5. Antitrust. A firm's performance of a function that it could have obtained on the open market. • A firm can achieve integration by entering a new market on its own, by acquiring a firm that operates in a secondary market, or by entering into a contract with a firm that operates in a secondary market. — Also termed vertical integration. See vertical merger under MERGER.

backward integration.A firm's acquisition of ownership of facilities that produce raw materials or parts for the firm's products.

6.Securities. The requirement that all security offerings over a given period are to be considered a single offering for purposes of determining an exemption from registration. • The Securities and Exchange Commission and the courts apply five criteria to determine whether two or more transactions are part of the same offering of securities: (1) whether the offerings are part of a single plan of financing, (2) whether the offerings involve issuance of the same class of securities, (3) whether the offerings are made at or about the same time, (4) whether the same type of consideration is received, and (5) whether the offerings are made for the same general purpose. 17 CFR § 230.502. [Cases: Securities Regulation 18.14. C.J.S. Securities Regulation § 64.]

INTEGRATION CLAUSE

integration clause.A contractual provision stating that the contract represents the parties' complete and final agreement and supersedes all informal understandings and oral agreements relating to the subject matter of the contract. — Also termed merger clause; entire-agreement clause. See INTEGRATION(2); PAROL-EVIDENCE RULE. [Cases: Contracts 245; Evidence 397(2). C.J.S. Contracts § 416; Evidence §§ 1159–1160, 1278–1280.]

INTEGRATION RULE

integration rule.The rule that if the parties to a contract have embodied their agreement in a final document, any other action or statement is without effect and is immaterial in determining the terms of the contract. See PAROL EVIDENCE RULE . [Cases: Contracts 245; Evidence 397(2).C.J.S. Contracts § 416; Evidence §§ 1159–1160, 1278–1280.]

INTEGRITY RIGHT

integrity right.Copyright. The right of authors and artists to insist that their creative works not be changed without their authorization. • Integrity is one of the moral rights of artists recognized in civil-law countries, including much of Europe, but largely unavailable in the United States. Cf. MORAL RIGHT; ATTRIBUTION RIGHT.

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY

intellectual property. 1. A category of intangible rights protecting commercially valuable products of the human intellect. • The category comprises primarily trademark, copyright, and patent rights, but also includes trade-secret rights, publicity rights, moral rights, and rights against unfair competition. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 1. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 2, 4–5.] 2. A commercially valuable product of the human intellect, in a concrete or abstract form, such as a copyrightable work, a protectable trademark, a patentable invention, or a trade secret. — Abbr. IP.

“While there is a close relationship between intangible property and the tangible objects in which they are embodied, intellectual property rights are distinct and separate from property rights in tangible goods. For example, when a person posts a letter to someone, the personal property in the ink and parchment is transferred to the recipient.... [T]he sender (as author) retains intellectual property rights in the letter.” Lionel Bently & Brad Sherman, Intellectual Property Law 1–2 (2001).

INTEMPERANCE

intemperance. A lack of moderation or temperance; esp., habitual or excessive drinking of alcoholic beverages. [Cases: Chemical Dependents 1.C.J.S. Chemical Dependents §§ 2–3.]

IN TEMPUS INDEBITUM

in tempus indebitum (in tem-p<<schwa>>s in-deb-i-t<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] Hist. At an undue time.

INTEND

intend,vb.1. To have in mind a fixed purpose to reach a desired objective; to have as one's purpose <Daniel intended to become a lawyer>.2. To contemplate that the usual consequences of one's act will probably or necessarily follow from the act, whether or not those consequences are desired for their own sake <although he activated the theater's fire alarm only on a dare, the jury found that Wilbur intended to cause a panic>.3. To signify or mean <the parties intended for the writing to supersede their earlier handshake deal>.

INTENDANT

intendant (in-ten-d<<schwa>>nt). A director of a government agency, esp. (as used in 17th- and 18th-century France) a royal official charged with the administration of justice or finance.

INTENDED BENEFICIARY

intended beneficiary.See BENEFICIARY.

INTENDED CHILD

intended child.See CHILD.

INTENDED PARENT

intended parent.See intentional parent under PARENT.

INTENDED TO BE RECORDED

intended to be recorded.(Of a deed or other instrument) not yet filed with a public registry, but forming a link in a chain of title. [Cases: Deeds 88; Records 19. C.J.S. Deeds § 157; Records § 30.]

INTENDED-USE DOCTRINE

intended-use doctrine.Products liability. The rule imposing a duty on a manufacturer to develop a product so that it is reasonably safe for its intended or foreseeable users. • In determining the scope of responsibility, the court considers the defendant's marketing scheme and the foreseeability of the harm. [Cases: Products Liability 15. C.J.S. Products Liability §§ 30–31.]

INTENDMENT

intendment (in-tend-m<<schwa>>nt).1. The sense in which the law understands something <the intendment of a contract is that the contract is legally enforceable>. — Also termed intendment of law. 2. A decision-maker's inference about the true meaning or intention of a legal instrument <there is no need for intendment, the court reasoned, when the text of the statute is clear>. — Formerly also spelled entendment.

common intendment.The natural or common meaning in legal interpretation.

3. A person's expectations when interacting with others within the legal sphere.“Our institutions and our formalized interactions with one another are accompanied by certain interlocking expectations that may be called intendments, even though there is seldom occasion to bring these underlying expectations across the threshold of consciousness. In a very real sense when I cast my vote in an election my conduct is directed and conditioned by an anticipation that my ballot will be counted in favor of the candidate I actually vote for. This is true even though the possibility that my ballot will be thrown in the wastebasket, or counted for the wrong man, may never enter my mind as an object of conscious attention. In this sense the institution of elections may be said to contain an intendment that the votes cast will be faithfully tallied, though I might hesitate to say, except in a mood of rhetoric, that the election authorities had entered a contract with me to count my vote as I had cast it.” Lon L. Fuller, The Morality of Law 217 (rev. ed. 1969).

INTENT

intent. 1. The state of mind accompanying an act, esp. a forbidden act. • While motive is the inducement to do some act, intent is the mental resolution or determination to do it. When the intent to do an act that violates the law exists, motive becomes immaterial. Cf. MOTIVE; SCIENTER.

“The phrase ‘with intent to,’ or its equivalents, may mean any one of at least four different things: — (1) That the intent referred to must be the sole or exclusive intent; (2) that it is sufficient if it is one of several concurrent intents; (3) that it must be the chief or dominant intent, any others being subordinate or incidental; (4) that it must be a determining intent, that is to say, an intent in the absence of which the act would not have been done, the remaining purposes being insufficient motives by themselves. It is a question of construction which of those meanings is the true one in the particular case.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 383–84 (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

constructive intent.A legal principle that actual intent will be presumed when an act leading to the result could have been reasonably expected to cause that result.

“Constructive intent is a fiction which permits lip service to the notion that intention is essential to criminality, while recognizing that unintended consequences of an act may sometimes be sufficient for guilt of some offenses.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 835 (3d ed. 1982).

criminal intent. 1.MENS REA. 2. An intent to commit an actus reus without any justification, excuse, or other defense. — Also termed felonious intent. See specific intent. [Cases: Criminal Law 20. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 31–33, 35–39; Negligence § 913.]

“The phrase ‘criminal intent’ is one that has been bandied about with various meanings not carefully distinguished. At times it has been used in the sense of the ‘intent to do wrong’ (the outline of the mental pattern which is necessary for crime in general), — as, for example, in the phrase ‘the mental element commonly called criminal intent.’ At times it has been used in the sense of mens rea as the mental element requisite for guilt of the very offense charged, ‘a varying state of mind which is the contrary of an innocent state of mind, whatever may be pointed out by the nature of the crime as an innocent state of mind.’ Often it is used to include criminal negligence as well as an actual intent to do the harmful deed, although at other times such negligence is referred to as a substitute, so to speak, for criminal intent in connection with certain offenses. Occasionally it is found in the sense of an intent to violate the law, — implying a knowledge of the law violated. On the other hand, as such knowledge is a factor not ordinarily required for conviction it has been pointed out that to establish ignorance of the law does not disprove criminal intent. Thus it has been said (assuming the absence of any circumstance of exculpation) ‘whenever an act is criminal, the party doing the act is chargeable with criminal intent.’ ... This suggests a helpful guide for the use of the phrase ‘criminal intent.’ Some other term such as mens rea or guilty mind should be employed for more general purposes, and ‘criminal intent’ be restricted to those situations in which there is (1) an intent to do the actus reus, and (2) no circumstance of exculpation.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 832–34 (3d ed. 1982).

donative intent.The intent to surrender dominion and control over the gift that is being made.

felonious intent.See criminal intent.

general intent.The intent to perform an act even though the actor does not desire the consequences that result. • This is the state of mind required for the commission of certain common-law crimes not requiring a specific intent or not imposing strict liability. General intent usu. takes the form of recklessness (involving actual awareness of a risk and the culpable taking of that risk) or negligence (involving blameworthy inadvertence). — Also termed general criminal intent; general mens rea. [Cases: Criminal Law 20, 23. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 31–33, 35–39; Negligence §§ 913–914.]

immediate intent.The intent relating to a wrongful act; the part of the total intent coincident with the wrongful act itself.

implied intent.A person's state of mind that can be inferred from speech or conduct, or from language used in an instrument to which the person is a party.

intent to kill.An intent to cause the death of another; esp., a state of mind that, if found to exist during an assault, can serve as the basis for an aggravated-assault charge. [Cases: Assault and Battery 49; Homicide 526. C.J.S. Assault and Battery §§ 67, 71.]

larcenous intent. A state of mind existing when a person (1) knowingly takes away the goods of another without any claim or pretense of a right to do so, and (2) intends to permanently deprive the owner of them or to convert the goods to personal use. See LARCENY. [Cases: Larceny 3. C.J.S. Larceny §§ 25–29.]

manifest intent. Intent that is apparent or obvious based on the available circumstantial evidence, even if direct evidence of intent is not available. • For example, some fidelity bonds cover an employer's losses caused by an employee's dishonest or fraudulent acts committed with a manifest intent to cause a loss to the employer and to obtain a benefit for the employee. Establishing manifest intent sufficient to trigger coverage does not require direct evidence that the employee intended the employer's loss. Even if the employee did not actively want that result, but the result was substantially certain to follow from the employee's conduct, the requisite intent will be inferred.

predatory intent. Antitrust. A business's intent to injure a competitor by unfair means, esp. by sacrificing revenues to drive a competitor out of business. [Cases: Monopolies 12(1.6). C.J.S. Monopolies §§ 32, 40–42, 48, 52, 54, 65, 69, 72–73.]

specific intent. The intent to accomplish the precise criminal act that one is later charged with. • At common law, the specific-intent crimes were robbery, assault, larceny, burglary, forgery, false pretenses, embezzlement, attempt, solicitation, and conspiracy. — Also termed criminal intent. See SPECIFIC-INTENT DEFENSE. [Cases: Criminal Law 20. Criminal Law §§ 31–33, 35–39; Negligence § 913.]

testamentary intent. A testator's intent that a particular instrument function as his or her last will and testament. • Testamentary intent is required for a will to be valid. [Cases: Wills 438. C.J.S. Wills § 831.]

transferred intent. Intent that has been shifted from the originally intended wrongful act to the wrongful act actually committed. • For example, if a person intends to kill one person but kills another, the intent may be transferred to the actual act. See TRANSFERRED-INTENT DOCTRINE. [Cases: Criminal Law 25; Homicide 555, 702, 731. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 43.]

ulterior intent. The intent that passes beyond a wrongful act and relates to the objective for the sake of which the act is done; MOTIVE. • For example, a thief's immediate intent may be to steal another's money, but the ulterior intent may be to buy food with that money.

2. A lawmaker's state of mind and purpose in drafting or voting for a measure. [Cases: Statutes 181(1), 184. C.J.S. Statutes §§ 315–316.]

legislative intent. See LEGISLATIVE INTENT.

original intent. The mental state of the drafters or enactors of the U.S. Constitution, a statute, or another document.

INTENTIO

intentio (in-ten-shee-oh), n. [Latin] 1. Roman law. The part of a formula in which the plaintiff's claim against the defendant is stated. See FORMULA(1).2.Hist. A count or declaration in a real action. • Intention was an earlier name for narratio. See NARRATIO. Pl. intentiones (in-ten-shee-oh-nee-z).

INTENTION

intention,n. The willingness to bring about something planned or foreseen; the state of being set to do something. — intentional,adj.

“Intention is the purpose or design with which an act is done. It is the foreknowledge of the act, coupled with the desire of it, such foreknowledge and desire being the cause of the act, inasmuch as they fulfil themselves through the operation of the will. An act is intentional if, and in so far as, it exists in idea before it exists in fact, the idea realising itself in the fact because of the desire by which it is accompanied.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 378 (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

“Intention. — This signifies full advertence in the mind of the defendant to his conduct, which is in question, and to its consequences, together with a desire for those consequences.” P.H. Winfield, A Textbook of the Law of Tort § 10, at 19 (5th ed. 1950).

INTENTIONAL

intentional,adj. Done with the aim of carrying out the act.

INTENTIONAL ACT

intentional act.See ACT.

INTENTIONAL FATHER

intentional father.See intentional parent under PARENT.

INTENTIONAL FRAUD

intentional fraud.See FRAUD(1).

INTENTIONAL INFLICTION OF EMOTIONAL DISTRESS

intentional infliction of emotional distress.The tort of intentionally or recklessly causing another person severe emotional distress through one's extreme or outrageous acts. • In a few jurisdictions, a physical manifestation of the mental suffering is required for the plaintiff to recover. — Also termed (in some states) outrage. See EMOTIONAL DISTRESS. Cf. NEGLIGENT INFLICTION OF EMOTIONAL DISTRESS. — Abbr. IIED. [Cases: Damages 50.10. C.J.S. Damages §§ 95, 98–104; Torts §§ 67–75, 78.]

INTENTIONAL-INJURY EXCLUSION

intentional-injury exclusion.See expected/intended exclusion under EXCLUSION (3).

INTENTIONAL INVASION

intentional invasion.See INVASION.

inter (in-t<<schwa>>r), prep. [Latin] Among.

INTER ALIA

inter alia (in-t<<schwa>>r ay-lee-<<schwa>> orah-lee-<<schwa>>), adv. [Latin] Among other things.

INTER ALIOS

inter alios (in-t<<schwa>>r ay-lee-<<schwa>>s orah-lee-<<schwa>>s), adv.[Latin] Among other persons.

INTER-AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

Inter-American Bar Association. An organization of lawyers from North America, Central America, and South America whose purpose is to promote education, cooperation, and professional exchanges among lawyers from different American countries. — Abbr. IABA.

INTER-AMERICAN FOUNDATION

Inter-American Foundation. An independent federal foundation that supports social and economic development in Latin America and the Caribbean by making grants to private, indigenous organizations that carry out self-help projects benefiting poor people. • The agency is governed by a nine-member board — six from the private sector and three from the government. It was created in 1969 as an experimental foreign-assistance program. 22 USCA § 290f. — Abbr. IAF.

INTER APICES JURIS

inter apices juris (in-t<<schwa>>r ay-p<<schwa>>-seez [orap-<<schwa>>-seez] joor-is), adv.[Law Latin] Among the subtleties of the law. See APEX JURIS.

INTERCALARE

intercalare (in-t<<schwa>>r-k<<schwa>>-lair-ee), vb.[Latin] Civil law. To introduce or insert among others; esp., to introduce a day or month into the calendar. • From this Latin term derives the rare English word intercalate, roughly synonymous with interpolate.

INTERCEDERE

intercedere (in-t<<schwa>>r-see-d<<schwa>>-ree), vb.[Latin] Roman law. To assume another's debt; esp., to act as surety for another.

INTERCEPT

intercept, n. Family law. A mechanism by which a portion of an obligor's unemployment benefits, disability income, income-tax refund, or lottery winnings is automatically diverted to a child-support-enforcement agency to satisfy past-due support obligations.

intercept, vb. 1. To divert (money) from a payee to satisfy a financial obligation of the payee. 2. To covertly receive or listen to (a communication). • The term usu. refers to covert reception by a law-enforcement agency. See WIRETAPPING. [Cases: Telecommunications 494.C.J.S. Telegraphs, Telephones, Radio, and Television §§ 247–249, 254, 264–265.]

INTERCHANGEABLE BOND

interchangeable bond. See BOND(3).

INTERCOMMON

intercommon,vb.1. To share in the rights to a common. 2.Hist. Scots law. To communicate or deal with (criminals or others).3.Hist. Scots law. To prohibit (a person) from communicating or dealing with a criminal.

INTER CONJUGES

inter conjuges (in-t<<schwa>>r kahn-j<<schwa>>-geez), adv. & adj.[Law Latin] Between husband and wife.

INTER CONJUNCTAS PERSONAS

inter conjunctas personas (in-t<<schwa>>r k<<schwa>>n-j<<schwa>>ngk-t<<schwa>>s p<<schwa>>r-soh-n<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Hist. Between conjunct persons. • Generally, conveyances between certain family members were void if designed to defraud.

INTERCOUNTRY ADOPTION

intercountry adoption.See international adoption under ADOPTION.

INTERCOURSE

intercourse. 1. Dealings or communications, esp. between businesses, governmental entities, or the like. 2. Physical sexual contact, esp. involving the penetration of the vagina by the penis.

INTERDEPENDENCE

interdependence.Int'l law. The reliance of countries on each other to ensure their mutual subsistence and advancement.

INTERDICT

interdict (in-t<<schwa>>r-dikt), n. Roman & civil law. 1. An injunction or other prohibitory, exhibitory, or restitutory decree. [Cases: Injunction 1. C.J.S. Injunctions §§ 2–4, 12, 14, 22, 24, 166.]

decretal interdict (di-kreet-<<schwa>>l). An interdict that signified the praetor's order or decree by applying the remedy in a pending case.

edictal interdict (ee-dik-t<<schwa>>l). An interdict that declared the praetor's intention to give a remedy in certain cases, usu. in a way that preserves or restores possession.

exhibitory interdict.An interdict by which a praetor compelled a person or thing to be produced.

possessory interdict.An interdict that protected a person whose possession was disturbed without due process. • A possessor in bad faith could obtain a possessory interdict because the interdict did not depend on title. It would, however, establish whether the possessor would be the defendant or the plaintiff in any subsequent claim. See INTERDICTUM. [Cases: Injunction 39. C.J.S. Injunctions § 68.]

prohibitory interdict.An interdict by which a praetor forbade something to be done.

restitutory interdict (ri-stich-<<schwa>>-tor-ee or res-ti-t[i]oo-t*<<schwa>>*-ree). An interdict by which a praetor directed something to be restored to someone who had been dispossessed of it.

2.Civil law. A person who has been interdicted; a natural person who, because of an infirmity, cannot make reasoned decisions about personal care or property or communicate those decisions; a person deprived of the capacity to make juridical acts. La. Civ. Code arts. 389, 390, 394.

limited interdict.A person whose right to care for himself or herself is restricted by a court decision because of mental incapacity; a person subject to limited interdiction. La. Civ. Code art. 390. [Cases: Mental Health 36. C.J.S. Insane Persons §§ 49–52.]

interdict (in-t*<<schwa>>*-r-dikt), vb.1. To forbid or restrain. 2. To intercept and seize (contraband, etc.).3.Civil law. To remove a person's right to handle personal affairs because of mental incapacity. [Cases: Mental Health 36. C.J.S. Insane Persons §§ 49–52.]

INTERDICTION

interdiction. 1. The act of forbidding or restraining.

interdiction of commercial intercourse.Int'l law. A governmental prohibition of commercial trade.

2. The interception and seizure of something, esp. contraband. 3.Civil law. The act of depriving a person of the right to handle his or her own affairs because of mental incapacity. See EX CAPITE INTERDICTIONIS. Cf. GUARDIANSHIP (1); CURATORSHIP; CURATOR(2).“Interdiction, now scarcely known in practice, was a means formerly adopted for the protection of those who were weak, facile, and easily imposed upon, and also for the protection of those who, being reckless and profuse, were unable to manage their estate with care and prudence. Interdiction was either judicial or voluntary: and in whichever of these modes the interdiction was effected and imposed, any disposition of heritage thereafter by the interdicted, without the consent of his interdictors, was liable to reduction on the ground of interdiction, except where the conveyances were onerous and rational.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 193 (4th ed. 1894).

complete interdiction.See full interdiction.

full interdiction.The complete removal of one's right to care for oneself and one's affairs or estate because of mental incapacity. La. Civ. Code art. 389. — Also termed complete interdiction. [Cases: Mental Health 36. C.J.S. Insane Persons §§ 49–52.]

limited interdiction.See partial interdiction.

partial interdiction.The partial removal of one's right to care for oneself and one's affairs or estate because of mental incapacity. — Also termed limited interdiction. [Cases: Mental Health 36. C.J.S. Insane Persons §§ 49–52.]

INTERDICTORY

interdictory (in-t*<<schwa>>-r-dik-t<<schwa>>*-r-ee), adj.1. Of or relating to an interdiction. 2.

Having the power to interdict. — Also termed interdictive.

INTERDICTUM

interdictum (in-t<<schwa>>r-dik-t<<schwa>>m), n. [Latin] Roman law. A summary order to secure the applicant's rights by preventing something from being done (prohibitory interdict) or requiring property to be produced (exhibitory interdict) or restored (restitutory interdict). • A party might apply for an interdictum when some wrong had been done, or was likely to be done, and it was necessary either to redress or to prevent the wrong at once, without waiting for the ordinary legal processes; often it was a preliminary to an ordinary action (e.g., by settling which party was entitled to be defendant in the action). Pl. interdicta.

INTERDICTUM QUOD VI AUT CLAM

interdictum quod vi aut clam (in-t<<schwa>>r-dik-t<<schwa>>m kwod vI awt klam). [Latin “interdict because of force or stealth”] Roman law. An interdict issued against a person who forcibly (vi) or secretly (clam) altered or occupied the claimant's property. • The interdict required the defendant to restore the property to its previous condition. Cf. actio vi bonorum raptorum under ACTIO.

INTER EOSDEM

inter eosdem (in-t<<schwa>>r ee-ahs-d<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Hist. Between the same persons.

INTERESSE

interesse (in-t<<schwa>>r-es-ee). [Latin] 1. Monetary interest. 2. A legal interest in property.

INTERESSEE

interessee (in-t<<schwa>>-re-see). See real party in interest under PARTY(2).

INTERESSE TERMINI

interesse termini (in-t<<schwa>>r-es-ee t<<schwa>>r-m<<schwa>>-nI). [Latin “interest of term or end”] Archaic. A lessee's right of entry onto the leased property; esp., a lessee's interest in real property before taking possession. • An interesse termini is not an estate; it is an interest for the term. It gives the lessee a claim against any person who prevents the lessee from entering or accepting delivery of the property.

“There was a troublesome doctrine of the common law which established, in the case of a lease not operating under the Statute of Uses, that the lessee acquired no estate in the land until he actually entered into possession. Until that time he was said to have a mere right to take possession, and this right was called an interesse termini. This requisite of entry to perfect a lease has, however, been swept away by the Law of Property Act, 1925, and all terms of years absolute, whether created before or after the commencement of the Act, can take effect from the date fixed for the commencement of the term without actual entry." G.C. Cheshire, Modern Law of Real Property 128–29 (3d ed. 1933).

INTEREST

interest, n. 1. The object of any human desire; esp., advantage or profit of a financial nature <conflict of interest>. 2. A legal share in something; all or part of a legal or equitable claim to or right in property <right, title, and interest>. • Collectively, the word includes any aggregation of rights, privileges, powers, and immunities; distributively, it refers to any one right, privilege, power, or immunity.

absolute interest. An interest that is not subject to any condition.

beneficial interest. A right or expectancy in something (such as a trust or an estate), as opposed to legal title to that thing. • For example, a person with a beneficial interest in a trust receives income from the trust but does not hold legal title to the trust property. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 68–81; Trusts 1. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 68–71, 73–77, 82–88, 116; Trover and Conversion §§ 1–9, 14–18.]

concurrent interest. See concurrent estate under ESTATE(1).

contingent interest. An interest that the holder may enjoy only upon the occurrence of a condition precedent.

controlling interest. Sufficient ownership of stock in a company to control policy and management; esp., a greater-than-50% ownership interest in an enterprise. [Cases: Corporations 180. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 327–330.]

defeasible interest. An interest that the holder may enjoy until the occurrence of a condition.

direct interest. A certain, absolute interest <the juror was disqualified because she had a direct interest in the lawsuit>.

entailed interest. An interest that devolves through lineal descendants only as a result of a fee tail.

entire interest. A whole interest or right, without diminution. See FEE SIMPLE.

equitable interest. An interest held by virtue of an equitable title or claimed on equitable grounds, such as the interest held by a trust beneficiary. [Cases: Trusts 139. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion § 251.]

executory interest. See EXECUTORY INTEREST.

expectation interest. The interest of a nonbreaching party in being put in the position that would have resulted if the contract had been performed. See expectation damages under DAMAGES; BENEFIT-OF-THE-BARGAIN RULE. [Cases: Damages 117; Fraud 59(2).]

financial interest. An interest involving money or its equivalent; esp., an interest in the nature of an investment. — Also termed pecuniary interest.

future interest. See FUTURE INTEREST.

inalienable interest. An interest that cannot be sold or traded.

inchoate interest. A property interest that has not yet vested. [Cases: Dower and Curtesy 29–53. C.J.S. Dower §§ 41–63, 141, 153–162.]

insurable interest. A legal interest in another person's life or health or in the protection of property from injury, loss, destruction, or pecuniary damage. • To take out an insurance policy, the purchaser or the potential insured's beneficiary must have an insurable interest. If a policy does not have an insurable interest as its basis, it will usu. be considered a form of wagering and thus be held unenforceable. See wager policy under INSURANCE POLICY. [Cases: Insurance 1779–1795. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 218–231, 233–252.]

interest in the use and enjoyment of land. The pleasure, comfort, and advantage that a person may derive from the occupancy of land. • The term includes not only the interests that a person may have for residential, agricultural, commercial, industrial, and other purposes, but also interests in having the present-use value of the land unimpaired by changes in its physical condition.

joint interest. An interest that is acquired at the same time and by the same title as another person's. See joint tenancy under TENANCY.

junior interest. An interest that is subordinate to a senior interest.

legal interest. 1. An interest that has its origin in the principles, standards, and rules developed by courts of law as opposed to courts of chancery. 2. An interest recognized by law, such as legal title.

legally protected interest. A property interest that the law will protect against impairment or destruction, whether in law or in equity.

liberty interest. An interest protected by the due-process clauses of state and federal constitutions. See FUNDAMENTAL RIGHT(2). [Cases: Constitutional Law 254.1. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 977–978, 980, 1418; Right to Die § 2.]

multiple interest. A property interest that is good against an indefinitely large number of people.

pecuniary interest. See financial interest.

possessory interest. See POSSESSORY INTEREST.

present interest. 1. A property interest in which the privilege of possession or enjoyment is present and not merely future; an interest entitling the holder to immediate possession. — Also termed present estate. Cf. FUTURE INTEREST. [Cases: Estates in Property 1. C.J.S. Estates §§ 2–5, 8, 15–21, 116–128, 137, 243.] 2. A trust interest in which the beneficiary has the immediate beneficial enjoyment of the trust's proceeds. 3. A trust interest in which the trustee has the immediate right to control and manage the property in trust.

proprietary interest. The interest held by a property owner together with all appurtenant rights, such as a stockholder's right to vote the shares. [Cases: Corporations 63.1.]

reliance interest. The interest of a nonbreaching party in being put in the position that would have resulted if the contract had not been made, including out-of-pocket costs. [Cases: Damages 117.]

restitution interest. A nonbreaching party's interest in preventing the breaching party from retaining a benefit received under the contract and thus being unjustly enriched. • The benefit may have been received from the nonbreaching party or from a third party.

reversionary interest. A future interest left in the transferor or successor in interest. See REVERSION.

senior interest. An interest that takes precedence over others; esp., a debt security or preferred share that has a higher claim on a corporation's assets and earnings than that of a junior obligation or common share.

terminable interest. An interest that may be terminated upon the lapse of time or upon the occurrence of some condition.

undivided interest. An interest held under the same title by two or more persons, whether their rights are equal or unequal in value or quantity. — Also termed undivided right; undivided title. See joint tenancy; tenancy in common under TENANCY. [Cases: Joint Tenancy 1; Tenancy in Common 1. C.J.S. Estates § 19; Joint Tenancy §§ 2, 4, 7–9; Tenancy in Common §§ 2–5.]

vested interest. An interest the right to the enjoyment of which, either present or future, is not subject to the happening of a condition precedent.

working interest. See WORKING INTEREST.

3. The compensation fixed by agreement or allowed by law for the use or detention of money, or for the loss of money by one who is entitled to its use; esp., the amount owed to a lender in return for the use of borrowed money. — Also termed finance charge. See USURY. [Cases: Interest 1, 8. C.J.S. Interest and Usury; Consumer Credit §§ 2–3, 5–6, 12.]

accrued interest. Interest that is earned but not yet paid, such as interest that accrues on real estate and that will be paid when the property is sold if, in the meantime, the rental income does not cover the mortgage payments.

add-on interest. Interest that is computed on the original face amount of a loan and that remains the same even as the principal declines. • A $10,000 loan with add-on interest at 8% payable over three years would require equal annual interest payments of $800 for three years, regardless of the unpaid principal amount. With add-on interest, the effective rate of interest is typically about twice the stated add-on interest rate. In the example just cited, then, the effective rate of interest would be about 16%. — Also termed block interest. See add-on loan under LOAN.

Boston interest. Interest computed by using a 30-day month rather than the exact number of days in the month. — Also termed New York interest.

compound interest. Interest paid on both the principal and the previously accumulated interest. Cf. simple interest. [Cases: Interest 60; Usury 49. C.J.S. Interest and Usury; Consumer Credit §§ 6, 71, 156.]

conventional interest. Interest at a rate agreed to by the parties themselves, as distinguished from that prescribed by law. Cf. interest as damages. [Cases: Interest 4, 32. C.J.S. Interest and Usury; Consumer Credit § 9, 38.]

discount interest. The interest that accrues on a discounted investment instrument (such as a government bond) as it matures. • The investor receives the interest when the instrument is redeemed. [Cases: United States 91. C.J.S. United States §§ 164, 167.]

gross interest. A borrower's interest payment that includes administrative, service, and insurance charges.

imputed interest. Interest income that the IRS attributes to a lender regardless of whether the lender actually receives interest from the borrower. • This is common esp. in loans between family members. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3132.20. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 75.]

interest as damages. Interest allowed by law in the absence of a promise to pay it, as compensation for a delay in paying a fixed sum or a delay in assessing and paying damages. Cf. conventional interest.

lawful interest. 1. A rate of interest that is less than or equal to the statutory maximum. 2. See legal interest.

legal interest. 1. Interest at a rate usu. prescribed by statute. • Courts often order monetary judgments to accumulate legal interest until paid. Cf. legal rate under INTEREST RATE. 2. See lawful interest.

moratory interest. See prejudgment interest.

New York interest. See Boston interest.

prejudgment interest. Statutorily prescribed interest accrued either from the date of the loss or from the date when the complaint was filed up to the date the final judgment is entered. • Prejudgment interest is usu. calculated only for liquidated sums. Depending on the statute, it may or may not be an element of damages. — Also termed moratory interest.

prepaid interest. Interest paid before it is earned. [Cases: Usury 44. C.J.S. Interest and Usury; Consumer Credit §§ 135, 142, 147–150.]

qualified residence interest. Tax. Interest paid on debt that is secured by one's home and that was incurred to purchase, build, improve, or refinance the home. • This type of interest is deductible from adjusted gross income. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3282. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 286.]

simple interest. Interest paid on the principal only and not on accumulated interest. • Interest accrues only on the principal balance regardless of how often interest is paid. — Also termed straight-line interest. Cf. compound interest. [Cases: Interest 60. C.J.S. Interest and Usury; Consumer Credit §§ 6, 71.]

straight-line interest. See simple interest.

unearned interest. Interest received by a financial institution before it is earned.

unlawful interest. See USURY.

INTEREST-ANALYSIS TECHNIQUE

interest-analysis technique. Conflict of laws. A method of resolving choice-of-law questions by reviewing a state's laws and the state's interests in enforcing those laws to determine whether that state's laws or those of another state should apply. — Also termed governmental-interest-analysis technique. [Cases: Action 17. C.J.S. Actions §§ 18–20; Conflict of Laws §§ 2–3, 12, 15, 20, 23, 27–32, 34–40, 42–48, 50–65, 96–97, 100, 102, 105–107.]

“Professor Brainerd Currie gets the major credit for developing the interest analysis, or governmental interest analysis, technique. Interest analysis requires an examination into competing laws to determine their underlying policies and the strength of the relative interests the competing sovereigns have in the application of their respective laws in the particular situation. The facts will vary and the strength of the relevant policies will wax and wane accordingly.” David D. Siegel, Conflicts in a Nutshell 237 (2d ed. 1994).

INTEREST RATE

interest rate. The percentage that a borrower of money must pay to the lender in return for the use of the money, usu. expressed as a percentage of the principal payable for a one-year period. — Often shortened to rate. — Also termed rate of interest. [Cases: Interest 27–38. C.J.S. Admiralty § 281; Interest and Usury; Consumer Credit §§ 34–41; Mortgages § 166.]

annual percentage rate. The actual cost of borrowing money, expressed in the form of an annualized interest rate. — Abbr. APR.

bank rate. The rate of interest at which the Federal Reserve lends funds to member banks.

contract rate. The interest rate printed on the face of a bond certificate.

coupon rate. The specific interest rate for a coupon bond. — Also termed coupon interest rate. See coupon bond under BOND(3).

discount rate. 1. The interest rate at which a member bank may borrow money from the Federal Reserve. • This rate controls the supply of money available to banks for lending. Cf. rediscount rate. 2. The percentage of a commercial paper's face value paid by an issuer who sells the instrument to a financial institution. 3. The interest rate used in calculating present value.

effective rate. The actual annual interest rate, which incorporates compounding when calculating interest, rather than the stated rate or coupon rate.

face rate. See nominal rate.

floating rate. A varying interest rate that is tied to a financial index such as the prime rate.

illegal rate. An interest rate higher than the rate allowed by law. See USURY. [Cases: Usury 42. C.J.S. Interest and Usury; Consumer Credit §§ 135–141, 143, 146, 152, 157.]

legal rate. 1. The interest rate imposed as a matter of law when none is provided by contract. [Cases: Interest 31. C.J.S. Interest and Usury; Consumer Credit § 37.] 2. The maximum interest rate, set by statute, that may be charged on a loan. See legal interest under INTEREST(3). Cf. USURY. [Cases: Usury 42. C.J.S. Interest and Usury; Consumer Credit §§ 135–141, 143, 146, 152, 157.]

lock rate. A mortgage-application interest rate that is established and guaranteed for a specified period. — Also termed locked-in rate.

nominal rate. The interest rate stated in a loan agreement or on a bond, with no adjustment made for inflation. — Also termed coupon rate; face rate; stated rate; stated interest rate.

prime rate. The interest rate that a commercial bank holds out as its lowest rate for a short-term loan to its most creditworthy borrowers, usu. large corporations. • This rate, which can vary slightly from bank to bank, often dictates other interest rates for various personal and commercial loans. — Often shortened to prime. — Also termed prime lending rate.

real rate. An interest rate that has been adjusted for inflation over time.

rediscount rate. The interest rate at which a member bank may borrow from the Federal Reserve on a loan secured by commercial paper that has already been resold by the bank.

stated rate. See nominal rate.

variable rate. An interest rate that varies at preset intervals in relation to the current market rate (usu. the prime rate).

INTEREST-RATE SWAP

interest-rate swap. An agreement to exchange interest receipts or interest-payment obligations, usu. to adjust one's risk exposure, to speculate on interest-rate changes, or to convert an instrument or obligation from a fixed to a floating rate — or from a floating to a fixed rate. • The parties to such an agreement are termed “counterparties.”

generic swap. See plain-vanilla swap.

plain-vanilla swap. A typical interest-rate swap that involves one counterparty's paying a fixed interest rate while the other assumes a floating interest rate based on the amount of the principal of the underlying debt. • The underlying debt, called the “notional” amount of the swap, does not change hands — only the interest payments are exchanged. — Also termed generic swap.

INTEREST UNITY

interest unity. See unity of interest under UNITY.

INTEREST WARRANT

interest warrant. See WARRANT(2).

INTERFERANT

interferant. 1. Something that interferes with the proper function of a chemical analysis; specif., a chemical contaminant that renders the results of a blood, breath, or urine test unreliable. 2. Patents. A party to an interference proceeding in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. • This term declined in use after the 1960s; today the PTO and courts use the term “contestant.” — Also termed (in sense 2) contestant. See CONTESTANT(3).

INTERFERENCE

interference, n. 1. The act of meddling in another's affairs. 2. An obstruction or hindrance. 3. Patents. An administrative proceeding in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office to determine who is entitled to the patent when two or more applicants claim the same invention, or when an application interferes with an existing patent. • This proceeding occurs when the same invention is claimed (1) in two pending applications, or (2) in one pending application and a patent issued within a year of the pending application's filing date. — Also termed priority contest. [Cases: Patents 106. C.J.S. Patents §§ 159–162, 165.] 4. Trademarks. An administrative proceeding in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office to determine whether a mark that one party wants to register will cause confusion among consumers with another party's mark. • An administrative hearing may be held to determine whose mark prevails, but applicants usu. withdraw their applications and devise new marks instead. [Cases: Trade Regulation 215. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 179, 181.] — interfere, vb.

INTERNAL ACT

internal act.See ACT.

INTERNAL-AFFAIRS DOCTRINE

internal-affairs doctrine.Conflict of laws. The rule that in disputes involving a corporation and its relationships with its shareholders, directors, officers, or agents, the law to be applied is the law of the state of incorporation. • This doctrine applies in the majority of states. In a few states, notably California and New York, foreign corporations must meet state-law requirements in specified circumstances. [Cases: Corporations 640. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 893, 900.]

“Broadly speaking, ‘corporate internal affairs’ refers to the powers and obligations of a corporation’s manager vis-a-vis the corporation and its shareholders, and the rights and duties of the corporation’s shareholders vis-a-vis the corporation, its management and the other shareholders. Put differently, corporate internal affairs pretty much encompass the subject matter of those state laws typically referred to as corporate law. In dealing with a corporation’s internal affairs, courts ... have looked to the law of the state of incorporation for the governing rule. Courts often refer to this choice of law principle as the ‘internal affairs doctrine.’ ” Franklin A. Gevurtz, Corporation Law 36 (2000).

INTERNAL AFFAIRS OF A FOREIGN CORPORATION

internal affairs of a foreign corporation.Conflict of laws. Matters that involve only the inner workings of a corporation, such as dividend declarations and the selection of officers. [Cases: Corporations 640.C.J.S. Corporations §§ 893, 900.]

“The old statement that a court will not hear cases involving the internal affairs of a foreign corporation has been practically dropped from the law today, and the result when appropriate is achieved under the forum non conveniens rule. Modern courts recognize their jurisdiction to entertain such suits, and insist only upon a discretionary power to refuse to exercise the existent jurisdiction when the facts make it both feasible and more desirable for the case to be heard by a court of the state of incorporation.” Robert A. Leflar, American Conflicts Law § 255, at 512–13 (3d ed. 1977).

An organization created by the United Nations Convention on the Settlement of Investment Disputes between States and the Nationals of Other States to help mediate and arbitrate disputes between member states and individuals who are citizens of other member states in an effort to promote continued private international investment, esp. in developing countries. — Abbr. ICSID.

INTERNATIONAL COMMERCE

international commerce. See COMMERCE.

INTERNATIONAL CONTROL

international control. Int'l law. The supervision over countries and their subdivisions for the purpose of ensuring the conformity of their conduct with international law.

“[S]upervision is exercised increasingly not only over the conduct of governmental and intergovernmental institutions, but also over the acts and omissions of individuals to establish their conformity with requirements of public international law. Yet even where supranational entities, notably the European Communities, exercise international control over the conduct of individuals and corporate bodies, generally the supervision is destined to verify or secure conformity of governmental measures with relevant rules of law.” Hugo J. Hahn, “International Controls,” in 2 Encyclopedia of Public International Law 1079–80 (1995).

INTERNATIONAL CONVENTION FOR THE PROTECTION OF PERFORMERS, PRODUCERS OF PHONOGRAMS

International Convention for the Protection of Performers, Producers of Phonograms and Broadcasting Organizations. See ROME CONVENTION ON RELATED RIGHTS .

INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE

International Court of Justice. The 15-member permanent tribunal that is the principal judicial organ of the United Nations. • The Court sits in The Hague, Netherlands. It has jurisdiction to decide disputes submitted to it by nations, and to render advisory opinions requested by the United Nations and its specialized agencies. The U.N. Security Council has the express power to enforce the Court's judgments. — Abbr. ICJ. — Also termed World Court. [Cases: International Law 10.45. C.J.S. International Law §§ 59–65.]

INTERNATIONAL CRIME

international crime.Int'l law. A grave breach of international law, such as genocide and crimes against humanity, made punishable offenses by treaties and applicable rules of customary international law. • An international crime occurs when three conditions are satisfied: (1) the criminal norm must derive either from a treaty concluded under international law or from customary international law, and must have direct binding force on individuals without intermediate provisions of municipal law, (2) the provision must be made for the prosecution of acts penalized by international law in accordance with the principle of universal jurisdiction, so that the international character of the crime might show in the mode of prosecution itself (e.g., before the International Criminal Court), and (3) a treaty establishing liability for the act must bind the great majority of countries. — Also termed international offense. [Cases: International Law 1–2. C.J.S. International Law §§ 2–5.]

INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL COURT

International Criminal Court.A court established by a treaty known as the Statute of the International Criminal Court (effective 2002), with jurisdiction over genocides, crimes against humanity, war crimes, and aggression. • It sits in The Hague, Netherlands. — Abbr. ICC. [Cases: International Law 10.45. C.J.S. International Law §§ 59–65.]

INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL POLICE ORGANIZATION

International Criminal Police Organization.An international law-enforcement group founded in 1923 and headquartered in Lyons, France. • The organization gathers and shares information on transnational criminals for more than 180 member nations. — Also termed Interpol.

“Interpol is something of a legal curiosity: it engages in intergovernmental activities and yet is not based on any treaty, convention, or other similar instrument. Its founding document is a constitution, drawn up by a group of police officers, that has neither been submitted for diplomatic signatures nor ratified by governments. Nevertheless, the organization received de facto recognition from the outset.... Interpol was formally granted the status of an ‘intergovernmental agency’ by the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations in 1971, and this is regarded as a form of de jure legitimization.” Michael Fooner, “Interpol,” in 3 Encyclopedia of Crime and Justice 910, 910 (Sanford H. Kadish ed., 1983).

INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC LAW

international filing date. See PCT FILING DATE.

INTERNATIONAL FUND

international fund. See MUTUAL FUND.

INTERNATIONALIZATION

internationalization. The act or process of bringing a territory of one country under the protection or control of another or of several countries.

“[T]he concept of internationalization is characterized by three elements: the abolition or limitation of the sovereignty of a specific State; the serving of community interests or at least the interests of a group of States; and the establishment of an international institutional framework, not necessarily involving an international organization.” Rüdiger Wolfrum, “Internationalization,” in 2 Encyclopedia of Public International Law 1395 (1995).

INTERNATIONAL JURISDICTION

international jurisdiction. See JURISDICTION.

INTERNATIONAL LAW

international law. The legal system governing the relationships between nations; more modernly, the law of international relations, embracing not only nations but also such participants as international organizations and individuals (such as those who invoke their human rights or commit war crimes). — Also termed public international law; law of nations; law of nature and nations; jus gentium; jus gentium publicum; jus inter gentes; foreign-relations law; interstate law; law between states (the word state, in the latter two phrases, being equivalent to nation or country). Cf. TRANSNATIONAL LAW. [Cases: International Law 1–13. C.J.S. International Law §§ 2–65.]

“[I]nternational law or the law of nations must be defined as law applicable to states in their mutual relations and to individuals in their relations with states. International law may also, under this hypothesis, be applicable to certain interrelationships of individuals themselves, where such interrelationships involve matters of international concern.” Philip C. Jessup, A Modern Law of Nations 17 (1949).

customary international law. International law that derives from the practice of states and is accepted by them as legally binding. • This is one of the principal sources or building blocks of the international legal system.

private international law. International conflict of laws. • Legal scholars frequently lament the name “private international law” because it misleadingly suggests a body of law somehow parallel to public international law, when in fact it is merely a part of each legal system's private law. — Also termed international private law; jus gentium privatum; intermunicipal law; comity; extraterritorial recognition of rights. See CONFLICT OF LAWS(2).

“[A] word must be said about the name or title of the subject. No name commands universal approval. The expression ‘Private International Law,’ coined by Story in 1834 [Joseph Story, Commentaries on the Conflict of Laws § 9 (1834)], and used on the Continent by [Jean Jacques Gaspard] Foelix in 1838, has been adopted by Westlake and Foote and most French authors. The chief criticism directed against its use is its tendency to confuse private international law with the law of nations or public international law, as it is usually called. There are obvious differences between the two. The latter primarily governs the relations between sovereign states and it may perhaps be regarded as the common law of mankind in an early state of development; the former is designed to regulate disputes of a private nature, notwithstanding that one of the parties may be a private state. There is, at any rate in theory, one common system of public international law ... ; but ... there are as many systems of private international law as there are systems of municipal law.” G.C. Cheshire, Private International Law 15 (6th ed. 1961).

INTERNATIONAL LAW COMMISSION

International Law Commission. A body created in 1947 by the United Nations for the purpose of encouraging the progressive development and codification of international law. • The Commission is composed of experts in international law. It has drafted many important treaties that have become binding treaty law, including the Vienna Convention on the Law on Treaties.

INTERNATIONAL LEGAL COMMUNITY

international legal community. 1. The collective body of countries whose mutual legal relations are based on sovereign equality. 2. More broadly, all organized entities having the capacity to take part in international legal relations. 3. An integrated organization on which a group of countries, by international treaty, confer part of their powers for amalgamated enterprise. • In this sense, the European Union is a prime example.

INTERNATIONAL LEGISLATION

international legislation. Int'l law. 1. Law-making among countries or intergovernmental organizations, displaying structural and procedural characteristics that are the same as national legislation. 2. The product of any concerted effort to change international law by statute. 3. The process of trying to change international law by statute. 4. Loosely, the adoption by international bodies of binding decisions, other than judicial and arbitral decisions, concerning specific situations or disputes.

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND

The interruption of a process, e.g., of the acquisition of title by possession. 3. The institution of a legal process or appeal. Pl. interpellationes (in-t<<schwa>>r-p<<schwa>>-lay-shee-oh-nee-z).

INTERPLEA

interplea. A pleading by which a stakeholder places the disputed property into the court's registry; the plea made by an interpleader. See INTERPLEADER.

INTERPLEAD

interplead,vb.1. (Of a claimant) to assert one's own claim regarding property or an issue already before the court. 2. (Of a stakeholder) to institute an interpleader action, usu. by depositing disputed property into the court's registry to abide the court's decision about who is entitled to the property. Cf. IMPLEAD. [Cases: Interpleader 1. C.J.S. Interpleader §§ 2–4, 7, 9.]

INTERPLEADER

interpleader,n.1. A suit to determine a right to property held by a usu. disinterested third party (called a stakeholder) who is in doubt about ownership and who therefore deposits the property with the court to permit interested parties to litigate ownership. • Typically, a stakeholder initiates an interpleader both to determine who should receive the property and to avoid multiple liability.

Fed. R. Civ. P. 22. See STAKEHOLDER(1). Cf. IMPLAIDER; INTERVENTION(1). [Cases: Interpleader 1. C.J.S. Interpleader §§ 2-4, 7, 9.] 2. Loosely, a party who interpleads. — Also termed (in civil law) concursus.

“Interpleader is a form of joinder open to one who does not know to which of several claimants he or she is liable, if liable at all. It permits him or her to bring the claimants into a single action, and to require them to litigate among themselves to determine which, if any, has a valid claim. Although the earliest records of a procedure similar to interpleader were at common law, it soon became an equitable rather than a legal procedure.” Charles Alan Wright, The Law of Federal Courts § 74, at 531 (5th ed. 1994).

INTERPOL

Interpol (in-t<<schwa>>r-pohl). See INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL POLICE ORGANIZATION.

INTERPOLATION

Cf. INTERLINEATION. 2. (often pl.) Roman law. An editorial change made by one of the compilers of the Digests and the Justinian Code. • The compilers made insertions, deletions, and juxtapositions in the texts, but made few real changes to the substantive law. — interpolate,vb. — interpolative,adj. — interpolator,n.

INTERPOSITION

interposition,n.1. The act of submitting something (such as a pleading or motion) as a defense to an opponent's claim. 2.Archaic. The action of a state, while exercising its sovereignty, in rejecting a federal mandate that it believes is unconstitutional or overreaching. • The Supreme Court has declared that interposition is an illegal defiance of constitutional authority. — interpose,vb.

INTERPRETATIO

interpretatio (in-t<<schwa>>r-pri-tay-shee-oh), n. [Latin] Roman law. An opinion of a Roman jurist (an interpreter of the law, not an advocate) who did not usu. appear in court. • Such an opinion was not originally binding, but by the Law of Citations (A.D. 426), the opinions of five jurists acquired binding force. See CITATIONS, LAW OF. Pl. interpretations (in-t<<schwa>>r-pri-tay-shee-oh-nee-z).

INTERPRETATIO LIMITATA

interpretatio limitata.See restrictive interpretation under INTERPRETATION.

INTERPRETATION

interpretation,n.1. The process of determining what something, esp. the law or a legal document, means; the ascertainment of meaning to be given to words or other manifestations of intention. [Cases: Contracts 143. C.J.S. Contracts § 302.]

---

“Interpretation, as applied to written law, is the art or process of discovering and expounding the intended signification of the language used, that is, the meaning which the authors of the law designed it to convey to others.” Henry Campbell Black, Handbook on the Construction and Interpretation of the Laws 1 (1896).

“There is more to interpretation in general than the discovery of the meaning attached by the author to his words. Even if, in a particular case, that meaning is discoverable with a high degree of certitude from external sources, the question whether it has been adequately expressed remains.” Rupert Cross, Statutory Interpretation 149 (1976).

administrative interpretation. An interpretation given to a law or regulation by an administrative agency. [Cases: Administrative Law and Procedure 413; Statutes 219. C.J.S. Public Administrative Law and Procedure § 95; Statutes § 344.]

authentic interpretation. Interpretation arrived at by asking the drafter or drafting body what the intended meaning was.

“The procedure of referring the doubtful statute to its author has acquired a name in the literature of jurisprudence. It is called ‘authentic interpretation.’ ... [Although] this device has been tried in ... recent times in certain European countries, ... [it] has always failed, and no thoughtful adviser would recommend it to any government today.” Lon L. Fuller, Anatomy of the Law 29–30 (1968).

comparative interpretation. A method of statutory construction by which parts of the statute are compared to each other, and the statute as a whole is compared to other documents from the same source on a similar subject.

customary interpretation. Interpretation based on earlier rulings on the same subject. [Cases: Customs and Usages 15. C.J.S. Customs and Usages §§ 21–23.]

extensive interpretation. A liberal interpretation that applies a statutory provision to a case not falling within its literal words.

grammatical interpretation. Interpretation that is based exclusively on the words themselves. [Cases: Statutes 189. C.J.S. Statutes § 324.]

liberal interpretation. Interpretation according to what the reader believes the author reasonably intended, even if, through inadvertence, the author failed to think of it. — Also termed mixed interpretation. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 656; Statutes 235. C.J.S. Statutes § 376.]

limited interpretation. See restrictive interpretation.

logical interpretation. Interpretation that departs from the literal words on the ground that there may be other, more satisfactory evidence of the author's true intention. — Also termed rational interpretation.

mixed interpretation. See liberal interpretation.

practical interpretation. See contemporaneous construction under CONSTRUCTION.

rational interpretation. See logical interpretation.

restrictive interpretation. An interpretation that is bound by a principle or principles existing outside the interpreted text. — Also termed restricted interpretation; limited interpretation; interpretatio limitata. Cf. unrestrictive interpretation.

statutory interpretation. See STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.

strict interpretation. Interpretation according to what the reader believes the author must have been thinking at the time of the writing, and no more. • Typically, this type of reading gives a text a narrow meaning. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 656; Statutes 235. C.J.S. Statutes § 376.]

unrestrictive interpretation. Interpretation in good faith, without reference to any specific principle. Cf. restrictive interpretation.

2. The understanding one has about the meaning of something. [Cases: Statutes 174–278. C.J.S. Statutes §§ 306–431.] 3. A translation, esp. oral, from one language to another. 4. CHARACTERIZATION(1). See CONSTRUCTION(2). — interpret, vb. — interpretative, interpretive, adj.

INTERPRETATION CLAUSE

interpretation clause. A legislative or contractual provision giving the meaning of words frequently used or explaining how the document as a whole is to be construed. [Cases: Statutes 179. C.J.S. Statutes § 309.]

INTERPRETATIO VIPERINA

interpretatio viperina (in-t<<schwa>>r-pri-tay-shee-oh vI-p<<schwa>>-rI-n<< schwa>>). [Law Latin “a viper's interpretation”] Hist. A disapproved method of construction, by which ambiguous documents are interpreted in a way that destroys their effectiveness.

INTERPRETATIVE RULE

interpretative rule. Administrative law. 1. The requirement that an administrative agency explain the statutes under which it operates. 2. An administrative rule explaining an agency's interpretation of a statute. — Also termed interpretive rule. Cf. LEGISLATIVE RULE. [Cases: Administrative Law and Procedure 382.1.]

INTERPRETED TESTIMONY

interpreted testimony. See TESTIMONY.

INTERPRETER

interpreter. A person who translates, esp. orally, from one language to another; esp., a person who is sworn at a trial to accurately translate the testimony of a witness who is deaf or who speaks a foreign language. [Cases: Criminal Law 642; Trial 22; Witnesses 230. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 1152; Trial § 95; Witnesses § 399.]

INTERPRETIVE RULE

interpretive rule. See INTERPRETATIVE RULE.

INTERPRETIVISM

interpretivism. A doctrine of constitutional interpretation holding that judges must follow norms or values expressly stated or implied in the language of the Constitution. Cf. NONINTERPRETIVISM; ORIGINALISM.

“A long-standing dispute in constitutional theory has gone under different names at different times, but today's terminology seems as helpful as any. Today we are likely to call the contending sides ‘interpretivism’ and ‘noninterpretivism’ — the former indicating that judges deciding constitutional issues should confine themselves to enforcing norms that are stated or clearly implicit in the written Constitution, the latter the contrary view that courts should go beyond that set of references and enforce norms that cannot be discovered within the four corners of the instrument.” John Hart Ely, Democracy and Distrust 1 (1980).

INTER QUATTUOR PARIETES

inter quattuor parietes (in-t<<schwa>>r kwah-too-<<schwa>>r p<<schwa>>-rI-<<schwa>>-teez), adv. & adj. [Law Latin] Within the four walls.

INTERROGATEE

interrogatee (in-ter-<<schwa>>-g<<schwa>>-tee). A person who is interrogated. — Also termed interrogee (in-ter-<<schwa>>-gee).

INTERROGATION

interrogation, n. The formal or systematic questioning of a person; esp., intensive questioning by the police, usu. of a person arrested for or suspected of committing a crime. • The Supreme Court has held that, for purposes of the Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination, interrogation includes not only express questioning but also words or actions that the police should know are reasonably likely to elicit an incriminating response. Rhode Island v. Innis, 446 U.S. 291, 100 S.Ct. 1682 (1980). — interrogate, vb. — interrogative, adj.

custodial interrogation. Police questioning of a detained person about the crime that he or she is suspected of having committed. • Miranda warnings must be given before a custodial interrogation. [Cases: Criminal Law 412.1(4). C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 897–898, 900, 904.]

investigatory interrogation. Routine, nonaccusatory questioning by the police of a person who is not in custody.

noncustodial interrogation. Police questioning of a suspect who has not been detained and can leave at will. • Miranda warnings are usu. not given before a noncustodial interrogation.

INTERROGATIVE QUESTION

interrogative question. Civil law. In a criminal trial, a question asked of a witness to elicit inadmissible evidence relating to the crime at issue in the case. Cf. ASSERTIVE QUESTION.

INTERROGATOR

interrogator (in-ter-<<schwa>>-gay-t<<schwa>>r). One who poses questions to another.

INTERROGATORY

interrogatory (in-t<<schwa>>-rog-<<schwa>>-tor-ee), n. A written question (usu. in a set of questions) submitted to an opposing party in a lawsuit as part of discovery. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 33. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1471–1542; Pretrial Procedure 241–248. C.J.S. Discovery §§ 4, 8–11, 14–24, 32, 55–61; Pretrial Procedure § 57.]

cross-interrogatory. An interrogatory from a party who has received a set of interrogatories. [Cases: Pretrial Procedure 241–248. C.J.S. Discovery §§ 4, 8–11, 14–24, 32, 55–61; Pretrial Procedure § 57.]

special interrogatory. A written jury question whose answer is required to supplement a general verdict. • This term is not properly used in federal practice, which authorizes interrogatories and special verdicts, but not special interrogatories. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49. The term is properly used, however, in the courts of some states. — Also termed special issue. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2211–2220; Trial 346–366. C.J.S. Trial §§ 818, 820, 824–825, 928–1017.]

INTERSTATE AGREEMENT ON DETAINERS ACT

Interstate Agreement on Detainers Act.A law, originally enacted in 1956, in which the federal government, certain states, and the District of Columbia agree that a state may obtain custody of a prisoner for trial even though the prisoner is already incarcerated in another state. • Under the Act, if a prisoner makes a written request for disposition of the charges in the second state, the second state must try the prisoner within 180 days of the request. 18 USCA App. arts. I–IX. See UNIFORM MANDATORY DISPOSITION OF DETAINERS ACT .

INTERSTATE COMMERCE

interstate commerce.See COMMERCE.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

Interstate Commerce Commission.The now-defunct federal agency established by the Interstate Commerce Act in 1887 to regulate surface transportation between states by certifying carriers and pipelines and by monitoring quality and pricing. • In December 1995, when Congress eliminated this agency, the Surface Transportation Board (STB) — a three-member board that is a division of the Department of Transportation — assumed most of the agency's duties. — Abbr.

ICC. See SURFACE TRANSPORTATION BOARD. [Cases: Commerce 83. C.J.S. Carriers §§ 6–10.]

INTERSTATE COMPACT

interstate compact. See COMPACT.

INTERSTATE COMPACT ON THE PLACEMENT OF CHILDREN

Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children. An agreement whose purpose is to ensure that when states are involved in the placement or adoption of children across state lines, the states cooperate with each other to facilitate the process and to protect the children. • This compact is intended to secure states' cooperation in investigating the suitability of proposed adoptive homes in an interstate adoption and also to alleviate conflicts that often occur when the agencies and courts of more than one state are involved. The compact has been enacted in almost identical form in all 50 states as well as in the District of Columbia and the Virgin Islands. — Abbr. ICPC. — Often shortened to Interstate Compact.

INTERSTATE EXTRADITION

interstate extradition. See EXTRADITION.

INTERSTATE INCOME-WITHHOLDING ORDER

INTERVENING RIGHTS

intervening rights. Patents. An infringement defense based on the right of a person who practiced a patent's broadened claims to continue practicing, even though a patent is later reissued with broader claims because of inadvertent claim errors in the original patent. — Also termed doctrine of intervening rights. 35 USCA § 252, ¶ 2. [Cases: Patents 138(2). C.J.S. Patents §§ 243–244.]

INTERVENOR

intervenor. One who voluntarily enters a pending lawsuit because of a personal stake in it. — Also spelled intervener. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 311; Parties 37. C.J.S. Parties §§ 91–93.]

INTERVENTION

intervention, n. 1. The entry into a lawsuit by a third party who, despite not being named a party to the action, has a personal stake in the outcome. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 24. • The intervenor sometimes joins the plaintiff in claiming what is sought, sometimes joins the defendant in resisting what is sought, and sometimes takes a position adverse to both the plaintiff and the defendant. Cf. IMPLAIDER; INTERPLEADER. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 311; Parties 37. C.J.S. Parties §§ 91–93.] 2. The legal procedure by which such a third party is allowed to become a party to the litigation. — Formerly also termed (in senses 1 & 2) trial of right of property. 3. Int'l law. One nation's interference by force, or threat of force, in another nation's internal affairs or in questions arising between other nations. — intervene, vb. — interventionary, adj.

“Intervention may or may not involve the use of force. It is frequently possible for a powerful state to impair the political independence of another weaker state without actually utilizing its armed forces. This result may be accomplished by lending open approval, as by the relaxation of an arms embargo, to a revolutionary group headed by individuals ready to accept the political or economic dominance of the intervening state. It may be accomplished by the withholding of recognition of a new government, combined with various forms of economic and financial pressure until the will of the stronger state prevails through the resignation or overthrow of the government disapproved.” Philip C. Jessup, A Modern Law of Nations 172–73 (1949).

humanitarian intervention. An intervention by the international community to curb abuses of human rights within a country, even if the intervention infringes the country's sovereignty.

INTERVENTION DUTY

intervention duty. Maritime law. A shipowner's obligation to remedy hazardous working conditions for longshore workers, even though the shipowner did not create the condition, when the shipowner knows of a nonobvious condition arising in an area that cannot be avoided by the longshore workers in performing their duties. Cf. ACTIVE-OPERATIONS DUTY; TURNOVER DUTY. [Cases: Shipping 84(3).]

pathological intoxication.An extremely exaggerated response to an intoxicant. • This may be treated as involuntary intoxication if it is unforeseeable.

public intoxication.The appearance of a person who is under the influence of drugs or alcohol in a place open to the general public. • In most American jurisdictions, public intoxication is considered a misdemeanor, and in some states, alcoholism is a defense if the offender agrees to attend a treatment program. [Cases: Chemical Dependents 4.1.]

self-induced intoxication.See voluntary intoxication.

voluntary intoxication.A willing ingestion of alcohol or drugs to the point of impairment done with the knowledge that one's physical and mental capabilities would be impaired. • Voluntary intoxication is not a defense to a general-intent crime, but may be admitted to refute the existence of a particular state of mind for a specific-intent crime. — Also termed culpable intoxication; self-induced intoxication.

INVENTIO

inventio (in-ven-shee-oh), n. [Latin] Roman law. A thing found; a finding. • Beginning in the reign of Hadrian, the finder of treasure either acquired title to the property or shared it with the landowner on whose land it was found. See TREASURE TROVE; THESAURI INVENTIO. Pl. inventiones (in-ven-shee-oh-nee-z).

INVENTION

invention, n. Patents. 1. A patentable device or process created through independent effort and characterized by an extraordinary degree of skill or ingenuity; a newly discovered art or operation. • Invention embraces the concept of nonobviousness. [Cases: Patents 16(1). C.J.S. Patents § 68.] 2. The act or process of creating such a device or process. 3. Generally, anything that is created or devised. — invent, vb.

“The truth is, the word cannot be defined in such manner as to afford any substantial aid in determining whether a particular device involves an exercise of the inventive faculty or not. In a given case we may be able to say that there is present invention of a very high order. In another we can see that there is lacking that palpable something that distinguishes invention from simple mechanical skill. Courts, adopting fixed principles as a guide, have by a process of exclusion determined that certain variations in old devices do or do not involve invention; but whether the variation relied upon in a particular case is anything more than ordinary mechanical skill is a question which cannot be answered by applying the test of any general definition.” McClain v. Ortmyer, 141 U.S. 419, 427, 12 S.Ct. 76, 78 (1891).

“An ‘invention’ is any art, machine, manufacture, design, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, or any variety of plant, which is or may be patentable under the patent laws. [37 CFR § 501.3(d).]” 60 Am. Jur. 2d Patents § 894, at 601 n.98 (1987).

abandoned invention. An invention that an inventor has either deliberately stopped trying to exploit, or else acted in a way that precludes claiming the invention in a later patent. • Under § 102(c) of the Patent Act, abandonment bars a patent on that invention. But abandonment of an imperfect form of an invention does not bar a patent on a later-perfected form. Unless publicly known, an abandoned invention is not prior art to a later inventor. Under § 102(g) of the Patent Act, abandonment of the same invention by a first inventor also prevents the first inventor from blocking the second inventor's patent application in an interference. Cf. ABANDONED APPLICATION.

distinct invention. One part of an invention that can be used on its own, and the absence of which will not prevent the remainder of the invention from working. • When the subject matter of a patent application is found to be multiple distinct inventions, the examiner requires the inventor to restrict the application to a single invention. See RESTRICTION(4). Cf. independent invention.

improvement invention. A nontrivial and nonobvious betterment of an existing device or process. • The improvement may be patented, but the protection applies only to the improvement, not to the invention improved on.

independent invention. An invention that bears no relation to another invention, esp. to another invention covered in the same patent application. • A single patent may not cover multiple independent inventions; the applicant must elect one and drop any others from the application. See RESTRICTION(4). Cf. distinct invention.

new-use invention. Discovery of a new use for an existing invention. • As long as the new use is nonobvious — and actually useful — it may be patented. 35 USCA §§ 101–102.

small invention. See UTILITY MODEL.

software-based invention. A device or machine that uses innovative software to achieve results. • A software-based invention, process, or method may qualify for a patent, but the physical components and the underlying software are usu. not separately patentable.

INVENTIVELY NEW

inventively new, adj. Patents. Original in any way. • The phrase is sometimes used to distinguish “new” in the usual sense from the term of art in patent law.

INVENTORY

inventory, n. 1. A detailed list of assets; esp., an executor's or administrator's detailed list of the probate-estate assets <make an inventory of the estate>. • The term also sometimes denotes a divorcing spouse's detailed list of all his or her marital and separate assets and liabilities. — Also termed inventory and appraisal. See PROBATE ESTATE; ACCOUNTING. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 62–73. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators §§ 152–162.] 2. Accounting. The portion of a financial statement reflecting the value of a business's raw materials, works-in-progress, and finished products <the company's reported inventory was suspiciously low>. 3. Raw materials or goods in stock <the dealership held a sale to clear out its October inventory>. 4. Bankruptcy. Personal property leased or furnished, held for sale or lease, or to be furnished under a contract for service; raw materials, work in process, or materials used or consumed in a business, including farm products such as crops or livestock <the debtor was found to have inventory that was valued at $300,000>. — inventory, vb.

“Section 547 itself defines ‘inventory’ and ‘receivable.’ Do not use the U.C.C. definitions of these terms, or the definitions of them learned in business law classes. It is especially important to note that, for purposes of section 547, ‘inventory’ includes ‘farm products such as crops or livestock’ ....” David G. Epstein et al., Bankruptcy § 6-35, at 351 (1993).

2. The asset acquired or the sum invested. 3. INVESTITURE(1). 4. LIVERY OF SEISIN.

INVESTMENT ADVISER

investment adviser. A person who, for pay, advises others, either directly or through publications or writings, about the value of securities or the advisability of investing in, purchasing, or selling securities, or who is in the business of issuing reports on securities. • The term generally excludes an employee of an investment adviser; a depository institution, such as a bank; lawyers, accountants, engineers, and teachers whose investment advice is solely incidental to the practice of their profession; a broker-dealer whose advice is incidental to the conduct of business and who receives no special compensation for that advice; and publishers of bona fide newspapers, newsmagazines, or business or financial publications of general, regular, or paid circulation. [Cases: Securities Regulation 223–224. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 360–365.]

INVESTMENT ADVISORS ACT

Investment Advisors Act. A federal statute — administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission — that regulates investment advisers. 15 USCA §§ 80b-1 et seq. [Cases: Securities Regulation 223–224. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 360–365.]

INVESTMENT BANK

investment bank. See BANK.

INVESTMENT BANKER

investment banker. A person or institution that underwrites, sells, or assists in raising capital for businesses, esp. for new issues of stocks or bonds; a trader at an investment bank. See investment bank under BANK.

INVESTMENT BANKING

investment banking. The business of underwriting or selling securities; esp., the marketing of new stocks or bonds.

“The term ‘investment banking’ can be used to encompass [underwriting, and acting as a dealer, broker, and market maker], and any person in a firm performing any of those functions could be called an investment banker. By convention, however, those terms are used less broadly.

In large securities firms, for example, there are a number of departments. The one most visible to the public handles trades for individuals. The technical term for the persons working with customers in that department is 'registered representative,' but those persons are often called brokers or stockbrokers. Insiders would not call them investment bankers. A department almost invisible to the public handles underwritings and performs a wide range of services primarily for client companies. Among those are: (1) assisting companies in the sale of securities, almost always in large amounts, to such private purchasers as insurance companies; (2) finding acquisition partners for companies that wish to acquire or be acquired by others; and (3) giving financial advice of various sorts to client companies. That department is likely to be called the investment banking department. In any case, its functions are at the heart of the insiders' conception of investment banking." Larry D. Soderquist & Theresa A. Gabaldon, Securities Law 30 (1998).

INVESTMENT BILL

investment bill. See BILL(6).

INVESTMENT COMPANY

investment company. See COMPANY.

INVESTMENT COMPANY ACT

A 1940 federal statute enacted to curb financial malpractices and abuses by regulating investment-company activities and transactions — specifically, by requiring registration of investment companies and prohibiting transactions by unregistered companies; by making certain persons ineligible as affiliated persons or underwriters; by regulating affiliations of directors, officers, and employees; by barring changes in investment policy without shareholder approval; and by regulating contracts of advisers and underwriters. 15 USCA §§ 80a-1 et seq. [Cases: Securities Regulation 211–222. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 332–359.]

INVESTMENT CONTRACT

investment contract. 1. A contract in which money is invested in a common enterprise with profits to come solely from the efforts of others; an agreement or transaction in which a party invests money in expectation of profits derived from the efforts of a promoter or other third party. 2. A transaction in which an investor furnishes initial value or risk capital to an enterprise, a portion of that amount being subjected to the risks of the enterprise. • In such an arrangement, the investor typically does not receive the right to exercise control over the managerial decisions of the enterprise. [Cases: Securities Regulation 5.10, 252. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 3, 9–10, 33, 381–382, 384–386, 392.]

"[A]n investment contract for purposes of the Securities Act means a contract, transaction or scheme whereby a person invests his money in a common enterprise and is led to expect profits solely from the efforts of the promoter or a third party.... It embodies a flexible rather than a static principle, one that is capable of adaptation to meet the countless and variable schemes devised by those who seek the use of the money of others on the promise of profits." SEC v. Howey Co., 328 U.S. 293, 298–99, 66 S.Ct. 1100, 1103 (1946).

guaranteed investment contract. An investment contract under which an institutional investor invests a lump sum (such as a pension fund) with an insurer that promises to return the principal (the lump sum) and a certain amount of interest at the contract's end. — Abbr. GIC.

INVESTMENT-DIRECTION AGREEMENT

IN VINCULIS

in vinculis (in ving-ky<<schwa>>-lis). [Latin "in chains"] In actual custody.

"The engagement of a magistrate to an accomplice, that if he will give his evidence, he will experience favor, is merely in the nature of a recommendation to mercy, for no authority is given to a justice of the peace to pardon an offender, and to tell him that he shall be a witness against others. He is not therefore assured of his pardon, but gives his evidence in vinculis, in custody; and it depends on his behaviour, whether he shall or shall not be admitted to mercy." 1 Joseph Chitty, A Practical Treatise on the Criminal Law 82–83 (2d ed. 1826).

IRREPARABLE INJURY

irreparable injury.See INJURY.

IRREPARABLE-INJURY RULE

irreparable-injury rule (i-rep-<<schwa>>-r<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l). The principle that equitable relief (such as an injunction) is available only when no adequate legal remedy (such as monetary damages) exists. • Although this rule is one that courts continue to cite, the courts do not usu. follow it literally in practice. — Also termed adequacy test. [Cases: Injunction 14, 138.6. C.J.S. Injunctions §§ 24, 27–28.]

“The irreparable injury rule has received considerable scholarly attention. In 1978, Owen Fiss examined the possible reasons for the rule and found them wanting. A vigorous debate over the economic wisdom of applying the rule to specific performance of contracts began about the same time, and soon came to center on the transaction costs of administering the two remedies. Both Fiss and Dan Dobbs have noted that the rule does not seem to be taken very seriously, and in a review of Fiss's book, I argued that the definition of adequacy pulls most of the rule's teeth. The Restatement (Second) of Torts dropped the rule from the blackletter and condemned it as misleading, but replaced it only with a long and unstructured list of factors to be considered.... [M]any sophisticated lawyers believe that the rule continues to reflect a serious preference for legal over equitable remedies.” Douglas Laycock, The Death of the Irreparable Injury Rule 9 (1991).

IRREPLEVIABLE

irrepleviable (i-r<<schwa>>-plev-ee-<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l), adj. (Of property) not capable of being replevied. — Formerly also spelled irreplevisable. Cf. REPLEVIABLE.

IRRESISTIBLE FORCE

irresistible force. See FORCE.

IRRESISTIBLE-IMPULSE TEST

irresistible-impulse test. Criminal law. A test for insanity, holding that a person is not criminally responsible for an act if mental disease prevented that person from controlling potentially criminal conduct. • The few jurisdictions that have adopted this test have combined it with the McNaghten rules. — Also termed control test; volitional test. See INSANITY DEFENSE; MCNAGHTEN RULES. [Cases: Criminal Law 50.]

“The first reaction of the legal profession to the irresistible impulse defense, when it was introduced to the law many years ago, was inclined to be favorable. Then a change set in and for many years the prevailing view was strongly against its recognition. Present indications are that the tide is changing again. There seems to be a growing belief to the effect that ignoring the possibility of such a defense fails to give full recognition to the fundamental concept of mens rea.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 975 (3d ed. 1982).

IRRESISTIBLE SUPERHUMAN CAUSE irresistible superhuman cause. See ACT OF GOD.

IRRESISTIBLE VIOLENCE

ISSUE

issue,n.1. A point in dispute between two or more parties.

“In federal civil procedure, an issue is a single, certain, and material point arising out of the allegations and contentions of the parties; it is matter affirmed on one side and denied on the other, and when a fact is alleged in the complaint and denied in the answer, the matter is then put in issue between the parties.” 35A C.J.S. Federal Civil Procedure § 357, at 541 (1960).

collateral issue. A question or issue not directly connected with the matter in dispute. [Cases: Evidence 99; Witnesses 405. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 2–5, 197–199, 204, 206; Witnesses § 770.]

deep issue. The fundamental issue to be decided by a court in ruling on a point of law. • A deep issue is usu. briefly phrased in separate sentences, with facts interwoven (in chronological order) to show precisely what problem is to be addressed. Cf. surface issue.

“Essentially, a deep issue is the ultimate, concrete question that a court needs to answer to decide a point your way. Deep refers to the deep structure of the case — not to deep thinking. The deep issue is the final question you pose when you can no longer usefully ask the follow-up question, ‘And what does that turn on?’ ” Bryan A. Garner, The Winning Brief 56 (2d ed. 2004).

fact issue. See issue of fact.

general issue. 1. A plea (often a general denial) by which a party denies the truth of every material allegation in an opposing party's pleading. 2. The issue arising from such a plea. [Cases: Pleading 115. C.J.S. Pleading § 185.]

“The general issue is a denial of the legal conclusion sought to be drawn from the declaration. It denies by a general form of expression the defendant's liability, and enables the defendant to contest, without specific averments of the defense to be asserted, most of the allegations which the plaintiff may be required to prove to sustain his action, and in some actions to raise also various affirmative defenses. It fails to perform the functions of pleading, either in giving notice or in reducing the case to specific issues.” Benjamin J. Shipman, Handbook of Common-Law Pleading § 169, at 304 (Henry Winthrop Ballantine ed., 3d ed. 1923).

immaterial issue. An issue not necessary to decide the point of law. Cf. material issue.

informal issue. Rare. An issue that arises when a defendant does not properly or fully plead in answer to a material allegation.

issue of fact. A point supported by one party's evidence and controverted by another's. — Also termed fact issue.

issue of law. A point on which the evidence is undisputed, the outcome depending on the court's interpretation of the law. — Also termed legal issue.

legal issue. 1. A legal question, usu. at the foundation of a case and requiring a court's decision. 2. See issue of law.

material issue. An issue that must be decided in order to resolve a controversy. • The existence of a material issue of disputed fact precludes summary judgment. Cf. immaterial issue.

multifarious issue. An issue that inquires about several different points (esp. facts) when each one should be inquired about in a separate issue.

special issue. 1. At common law, an issue arising from a specific allegation in a pleading. • Special issues are no longer used in most jurisdictions. 2. See special interrogatory under INTERROGATORY.

surface issue. A superficially stated issue phrased in a single sentence, without many facts, and usu. beginning with the word whether. Cf. deep issue.

ultimate issue. A not-yet-decided point that is sufficient either in itself or in connection with other points to resolve the entire case. — Also termed ultimate question.

2. A class or series of securities that are simultaneously offered for sale. — Also termed bond issue; stock issue. See OFFERING.

hot issue. A security that, after an initial or secondary offering, is traded in the open market at a substantially higher price. — Also termed hot stock.

new issue. A stock or bond sold by a corporation for the first time, often to raise working capital. See BLUE-SKY LAW.

original issue. The first issue of securities of a particular type or series.

shelf issue. An issue of securities that were previously registered but not released at the time of registration.

3. Wills & estates. Lineal descendants; offspring.

issue female. 1. Female descendants. 2. A female whose descent from a specified ancestor is traceable through the direct female line. See tail female under TAIL.

issue male. 1. Male descendants. 2. A male whose descent from a specified ancestor is traceable through the direct male line. See tail male under TAIL.

lawful issue. Descendants, including descendants more remote than children. • At common law, the term included only those who were children of legally recognized subsisting marriages. See DESCENDANT; HEIR. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 25. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution § 32.]

4. Commercial law. The first delivery of a negotiable instrument by its maker or holder.

issue, vb. 1. To accrue <rents issuing from land>. 2. To be put forth officially <without probable cause, the search warrant will not issue>. 3. To send out or distribute officially <issue process> <issue stock>. — issuance, n.

ITA LEX SCRIPTA EST

ita lex scripta est (I-t<<schwa>> leks skrip-t<<schwa>> est). [Latin] So the law is written. • This expression means that the law must be obeyed despite the apparent rigor of its application. The idea is that we must be content with the law as it stands, without inquiring into its reasons. — Sometimes shortened to ita scripta est [“so it is written”].

“If practice be the whole he is taught, practice must also be the whole he will ever know: if he be uninstructed in the elements and first principles upon which the rule of practice is founded, the least variation from established precedents will totally distract and bewilder him: ita lex scripta est is the utmost his knowledge will arrive at; he must never aspire to form, and seldom expect to comprehend, any arguments drawn a priori, from the spirit of the laws and the natural foundations of justice.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 32 (1765).

ITA TE DEUS ADJUVET

ita te Deus adjuvet (I-t<<schwa>> tee dee-<<schwa>>s aj-<<schwa>>-vet). [Latin] So help you God. • An old form of administering an oath in England, usu. in connection with other words, such as: Ita te Deus adjuvet, et sacrosancta Dei Evangelia (“So help you God, and God's holy gospels”), and Ita te Deus adjuvet et omnes sancti (“So help you God and all the saints”).

ITC

ITC. See investment tax credit under TAX CREDIT.

ITEM

item. 1. A piece of a whole, not necessarily separated. 2. Commercial law. A negotiable instrument or a promise or order to pay money handled by a bank for collection or payment. • The term does not include a payment order governed by division 11 of the UCC or a credit- or debit-card slip. UCC 4-104(a)(9). [Cases: Banks and Banking 137, 158–168. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 317, 319, 322, 327–328, 330, 382–400, 402, 404–407, 409–410, 414, 420, 422–424.]

par item. An item that a drawee bank will remit to another bank without charge.

3. In drafting, a subpart of text that is the next smaller unit than a subparagraph. • In federal drafting, for example, “(4)” is the item in the following citation: Rule 19(a)(1)(B)(4). — Also termed (in sense 3) clause.

JACKSON–DENNO HEARING

Jackson–Denno hearing.A court proceeding held outside the jury's presence, to determine whether the defen-dant's confession was voluntary and therefore admissible as evidence. Jackson v. Denno, 378 U.S. 368, 84 S.Ct. 1774 (1964). — Also termed Jackson v. Denno hearing. [Cases: Criminal Law 531–532. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 932, 938–939, 941.]

JACKSON<TT> STANDARD

Jackson standard.Criminal law. The principle that the standard of review on appeal — when a criminal defen-dant claims that there is insufficient evidence to support the conviction — is to determine whether, after consi-dering the evidence in the light most favorable to the prosecution, any rational trier of fact could have found the essential elements of the crime beyond a reasonable doubt. Jackson v. Virginia, 443 U.S. 307, 99 S.Ct. 2781 (1979). [Cases: Criminal Law 1144.13(3), 1159.2(7).]

JACTITATION OF MARRIAGE

jactitation of marriage.Hist. 1.False and actionable boasting or claiming that one is married to another. 2. An action against a person who falsely boasts of being married to the complainant.

“Jactitation of marriage is a cause of action which arises when a person falsely alleges that he or she is married to the petitioner, and the remedy sought is a perpetual injunction against the respondent to cease making such allegations. The cause is now uncommon in English municipal law and almost unknown in the conflict of laws.” R.H. Graveson, Conflict of Laws 349 (7th ed. 1974).

JACTITATION OF TITLE

jactitation of title. See SLANDER OF TITLE.

JACTURA

jactura (jak-t[y]oor-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩), n. [Latin] Civil law. 1. A throwing of goods overboard to lighten or save a vessel; JETTISON. 2. A loss incurred from this; general average. See general average under AVERAGE. — Also termed jactus.

JACTUS LAPILLI

jactus lapilli (jak-t⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s l⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-pil-I). [Latin “the throwing down of a stone”] Roman law. A landowner's throwing of a small stone onto a neighbor's land to symbolically protest construction that could threaten the thrower's interest. Cf. NOVI OPERIS NUNTIATIO.

JAILHOUSE LAWYER

jailhouse lawyer. A prison inmate who seeks release through legal procedures or who gives legal advice to other inmates. — Also termed guardhouse lawyer.

JAIL LIBERTIES

jail liberties. Bounds within which a jail or prison lies and throughout which certain prisoners are allowed to move freely, usu. after giving bond for the liberties. • The bounds are considered an extension of the prison walls. Historically, jail liberties were given in England to those imprisoned for debt. The prisoners were allowed to move freely within the city in which the prison was located. — Also spelled (esp. in BrE) gaol liberties. — Also termed jail limits.

“[S]tatutes were from time to time passed enlarging the gaol liberties, in order to mitigate the hardships of imprisonment: thus, the whole city of Boston was held the ‘gaol liberties’ of its county gaol. And so with a large part of New York City.... The prisoner, while within the limits, is considered as within the walls of the prison.” 1 John Bouvier, Bouvier's Law Dictionary 1333–34 (8th ed. 1914).

JAMAICAN SWITCH

Jamaican switch. An illegal scheme whereby one conspirator convinces the victim of a need for help in handling a large sum of money, usu. by claiming to have found the money or by claiming to be an unsophisticated foreigner, and promises to share part of the money with the victim or asks the victim for help in finding a suitable charity to donate to, at which time the other conspirator appears and promises to assist if both the victim and first conspirator provide good-faith money, the intent being for the two conspirators to leave with all the money, including the victim's. • The name given to this scheme is likely to be considered offensive by some. — Also termed pigeon drop. [Cases: False Pretenses 16.]

JAMES<TT> HEARING

James hearing. A court proceeding held to determine whether the out-of-court statements of a coconspirator should be admitted into evidence, by analyzing whether there was a conspiracy, whether the declarant and the defendant were part of the conspiracy, and whether the statement was made in furtherance of the conspiracy. United States v. James, 590 F.2d 575 (5th Cir. 1979); Fed. R. Evid. 801(d)(2)(E). [Cases: Criminal Law 427. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 972.]

jettison (jet-<<schwa>>-s<<schwa>>n), n. Maritime law. 1. The act of voluntarily throwing cargo overboard to lighten or stabilize a ship that is in immediate danger. — Also termed equitable jettison; jactura; jactus mercium navis levandae causa. See general average under AVERAGE. 2. JETSAM. — jettison, vb.

“The goods must not be swept away by the violence of the waves, for then the loss falls entirely upon the merchant or his insurer, but they must be intentionally sacrificed by the mind and agency of man, for the safety of the ship and the residue of the cargo. The jettison must be made for sufficient cause, and not from groundless timidity. It must be made in a case of extremity, when the ship is in danger of perishing by the fury of a storm, or is laboring upon rocks or shallows, or is closely pursued by pirates or enemies; and then if the ship and the residue of the cargo be saved by means of the sacrifice, nothing can be more reasonable than that the property saved should bear its proportion of the loss.” 3 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law *232–33 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

JEUX DE BOURSE

jeux de bourse (zhoo d<<schwa>> b<<schwa>>rs), n. [French “games of the stock exchange”] Speculation in stocks or bonds, as by dealing in options or futures.

JEWELL<TT> INSTRUCTION

Jewell instruction (joo-w<<schwa>>l). Criminal procedure. A court's instruction to the jury that the defendant can be found to have the requisite criminal mental state despite being deliberately ignorant of some of the facts surrounding the crime. • If a defendant claims ignorance of some fact essential to the crime, such as not knowing that a particular bag contained drugs, but the surrounding circumstances would put a reasonable person on notice that there was a high probability of illegality, as when the defendant has taken the bag from a known drug-dealer and has noticed the smell of marijuana coming from the bag, then the court may instruct the jury that it is entitled to infer the defendant's guilty knowledge if the defendant deliberately avoided knowledge of the critical facts. United States v. Jewell, 532 F.2d 697 (9th Cir. 1976). — Also termed deliberate-indifference instruction. [Cases: Criminal Law 772(5). C.J.S. Criminal Law § 1312.]

JOB-TARGETING PROGRAM

job-targeting program. An initiative by a labor union to maintain or improve its share of the labor in a particular market by financing or backing contractors who bid on targeted projects. — Also termed market-recovery program.

JOCUS PARTITUS

jocus partitus (joh-k<<schwa>>s pahr-tI-t<<schwa>>s), n. [Law Latin “divided game”] Hist. A gambling arrangement made by the parties on a lawsuit's outcome.

JOHN-A-NOKES

John-a-Nokes. Archaic. A fictitious name for an unknown party to a legal proceeding, esp. the first party. • The name is short for “John who dwells at the oak.” — Abbr. J.N. — Also spelled John-a-Noakes.

JOHN-A-STILES

John-a-Stiles. Archaic. A fictitious name for an unknown party to a legal proceeding, esp. the second party. • The name is short for “John who dwells at the stile.” — Abbr. J.S. — Also spelled John-a-Styles.

JOHN DOE

John Doe. A fictitious name used in a legal proceeding to designate a person whose identity is unknown, to protect a person's known identity, or to indicate that a true defendant does not exist. Cf. JANE DOE; RICHARD ROE. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 101; Parties 67, 73. C.J.S. Parties §§ 170, 172.]

“Sheriffs in time growing remiss in their duty, allowed of any persons as pledges, sometimes returning the names of fictitious persons as pledges, at others, neglecting to require or return any at all.... And the legislature, to supply the want of real persons as pledges, and recompense the defendant where he has been unjustly or vexatiously sued, has by various statutes, either given him the costs he has incurred in making his defence; or else deprived the plaintiff of recovering those costs he is entitled to by law, in cases of obtaining a verdict, by leaving it to the judge at the trial to certify on the record, that he had little or no cause of action. Since these statutes for allowing the defendant his costs, where the plaintiff fails, or is nonsuited, the writ to the coroner to affect the pledges has fallen into disuse, and two good-natured personages, John Doe and Richard Roe, from their universal acquaintance and peculiar longevity, have become the ready and common pledges of every suitor.” 1 George Crompton, Rules and Cases of Practice in the Courts of King's Bench and Common Pleas xlvii (3d ed. 1787).

“The fictitious names John Doe and Richard Roe regularly appeared in actions of ejectment ... at common law. Doe was the nominal plaintiff, who by a fiction was said to have entered land under a valid lease; Roe was said to have ejected Doe, and the lawsuit took the title Doe v. Roe. These fictional allegations disappeared upon the enactment of the Common Law Procedure Act of 1852.... Beyond actions of ejectment, and esp. in the U.S., John Doe, Jane Doe, Richard Roe, Jane Roe, and Peter Poe have come to identify a party to a lawsuit whose true name is either unknown or purposely shielded.” Bryan A. Garner, A Dictionary of Modern Legal Usage 290–91 (2d ed. 1995).

JOINDER

joinder, n. The uniting of parties or claims in a single lawsuit. Cf. CONSOLIDATION(3). [Cases: Action 39–52; Federal Civil Procedure 81, 201–267; Parties 49. C.J.S. Actions §§ 143–176; Insurance §§ 1407, 1409–1410, 1567; Parties § 127.] — join, vb.

collusive joinder. Joinder of a defendant, usu. a nonresident, in order to have a case removed to federal court. See manufactured diversity under DIVERSITY OF CITIZENSHIP. [Cases: Removal of Cases 36. C.J.S. Removal of Causes § 115.]

compulsory joinder. The necessary joinder of a party if either of the following is true: (1) in that party's absence, those already involved in the lawsuit cannot receive complete relief; or (2) the absence of such a party, claiming an interest in the subject of an action, might either impair the protection of that interest or leave some other party subject to multiple or inconsistent obligations. Fed. R. Civ. P. 19(a). — Also termed mandatory joinder. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 201.]

fraudulent joinder. The bad-faith joinder of a party, usu. a resident of the state, to prevent removal of a case to federal court. [Cases: Removal of Cases 36. C.J.S. Removal of Causes § 115.]

joinder in demurrer. Common-law pleading. A set form of words by which either party accepts or joins in a legal issue; esp., the plaintiff's acceptance of the defendant's issue of law.

joinder in issue. See joinder of issue.

joinder in pleading. Common-law pleading. One party's acceptance of the opposing party's proposed issue and mode of trial.

joinder of error. A written denial of the errors alleged in an assignment of errors in a criminal case.

joinder of issue. 1. The submission of an issue jointly for decision. 2. The acceptance or adoption of a disputed point as the basis of argument in a controversy. — Also termed joinder in issue; similitur. 3. The taking up of the opposite side of a case, or of the contrary view on a question.

joinder of offenses. The charging of an accused with two or more crimes as multiple counts in a single indictment or information. • Unless later severed, joined offenses are tried together at a single trial. Fed. R. Crim. P. 8(a). [Cases: Indictment and Information 125. C.J.S. Indictments and Informations §§ 146–148.]

joinder of remedies. The joinder of alternative claims, such as breach of contract and quantum meruit, or of one claim with another prospective claim, such as a creditor's claim against a debtor to recover on a loan and the creditor's claim against a third party to set aside the transfer of the loan's collateral. [Cases: Action 43; Federal Civil Procedure 81. C.J.S. Actions §§ 154, 156.]

mandatory joinder. See compulsory joinder.

misjoinder. See MISJOINDER.

nonjoinder. See NONJOINDER.

permissive joinder. The optional joinder of parties if (1) their claims or the claims asserted against them are asserted jointly, severally, or in respect of the same transaction or occurrence, and (2) any legal or factual question common to all of them will arise. Fed. R. Civ. P. 20. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 241.]

pretensive joinder. Joinder of defendants solely to obtain venue in a jurisdiction in which the action could not otherwise be tried.

JOINT-CHECK RULE

joint-check rule.The principle that, when an owner or general contractor issues a check that is made jointly payable to a subcontractor and the subcontractor's materialman, the materialman's indorsement on the check certifies that it has been paid all amounts due to it, up to the amount of the check. • This rule protects the owner or general contractor from lien foreclosure by a materialman who was not paid by the subcontractor. By issuing a joint check, the owner or general contractor is not left merely to hope that the subcontractor pays all the materialmen. And the materialman is protected because it can refuse to indorse the check until it is satisfied that the subcontractor will pay it the appropriate amount. [Cases: Mechanics' Liens 240. C.J.S. Mechanics' Liens §§ 277, 286–287.]

The notary public's sequential record of notarial transactions, usu. a bound book listing the date, time, and type of each official act, the type of instrument acknowledged or verified before the notary, the signature of each person whose signature is notarized, the type of information used to verify the identity of parties whose signatures are notarized, and the fee charged. • This journal, required by law in many states, provides a record that may be used as evidence in court. — Also termed notarial record; notarial register; notary record book; sequential journal.

JOURNEYS ACCOUNTS

journeys accounts. Hist. The number of days (usu. 15) after the abatement of a writ within which a new writ could be obtained. • This number was based on how many days it took for the plaintiff to travel (or journey) to the court.

JOYRIDING

joyriding, n. The illegal driving of someone else's automobile without permission, but with no intent to deprive the owner of it permanently. • Under the Model Penal Code, the offender's reasonable belief that the owner would have consented is an affirmative defense. See Model Penal Code § 223.9. — Also termed unauthorized use of a vehicle. [Cases: Automobiles 339. C.J.S. Motor Vehicles §§ 1511–1523.] — joyride, vb. — joyrider, n.

“When the automobile began to appear and was limited to the possession of a few of the more fortunate members of the community, many persons who ordinarily respected the property rights of others, yielded to the temptation to drive one of these new contrivances without the consent of the owner. This became so common that the term ‘joyrider’ was coined to refer to the person who indulged in such unpermitted use of another's car. For the most part it was a relatively harmless type of trespass ....” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 333 (3d ed. 1982).

special judge. A judge appointed or selected to sit, usu. in a specific case, in the absence or disqualification of the regular judge or otherwise as provided by statute. [Cases: Judges 13–19, 25. C.J.S. Judges §§ 161–183, 185.]

“Many, if not all, jurisdictions have made provision for the selection of a substitute or special judge to serve in place of the regular judge in the event of disqualification, voluntary recusal, disability, or other absence of the regular judge. The circumstances under which a special or substitute judge may act in place of the regular judge, and the manner in which such a judge may be chosen, are matters of purely local regulation, entirely dependent on local constitutions and statutes.” 46 Am. Jur. 2d Judges § 248, at 331 (1994).

temporary judge. See visiting judge.

trial judge. The judge before whom a case is tried. • This term is used most commonly on appeal from the judge's rulings.

United States Magistrate Judge. See UNITED STATES MAGISTRATE JUDGE.

visiting judge. A judge appointed by the presiding judge of an administrative region to sit temporarily on a given court, usu. in the regular judge's absence. — Also termed temporary judge;

JUDGE TRIAL

judge trial. See bench trial under TRIAL.

JUDGMENT

judgment. 1. A court's final determination of the rights and obligations of the parties in a case.

• The term judgment includes an equitable decree and any order from which an appeal lies. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54. — Abbr. J. — Also spelled (esp. in BrE) judgement. — Also termed (historically) judgment ex cathedra. Cf. RULING(1); OPINION(1). [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2391–2628; Judgment 1. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 2–3, 6, 8, 13.] 2.English law. An opinion delivered by a member of the appellate committee of the House of Lords; a Law Lord's judicial opinion. — Also termed (in sense 2) speech.

“An action is instituted for the enforcement of a right or the redress of an injury. Hence a judgment, as the culmination of the action declares the existence of the right, recognizes the commission of the injury, or negatives the allegation of one or the other. But as no right can exist without a correlative duty, nor any invasion of it without a corresponding obligation to make amends, the judgment necessarily affirms, or else denies, that such a duty or such a liability rests upon the person against whom the aid of the law is invoked.” 1 Henry Campbell Black, A Treatise on the Law of Judgments § 1, at 2 (2d ed. 1902).

accumulative judgment.A second or additional judgment against a person who has already been convicted, the execution of which is postponed until the completion of any prior sentence.

agreed judgment.A settlement that becomes a court judgment when the judge sanctions it. • In effect, an agreed judgment is merely a contract acknowledged in open court and ordered to be recorded, but it binds the parties as fully as other judgments. — Also termed consent judgment; stipulated judgment; judgment by consent. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2397; Judgment 71–91. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 182–194, 370–374.]

alternative judgment.A determination that gives the losing party options for satisfying that party's duties.

cognovit judgment (kog-noh-vit). A debtor's confession of judgment; judgment entered in accordance with a cognovit. See CONFESSION OF JUDGMENT; COGNOVIT. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2396; Judgment 54. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 140, 143–144, 170.]

conditional judgment.A judgment whose force depends on the performance of certain acts to be done in the future by one of the parties. • For example, a conditional judgment may order the sale of mortgaged property in a foreclosure proceeding unless the mortgagor pays the amount decreed within the time specified. — Also termed common order.

confession of judgment.See CONFESSION OF JUDGMENT.

consent judgment.See agreed judgment.

contradictory judgment.Civil law. A judgment that has been given after the court has heard the parties make their claims and defenses. • In Louisiana, this term is opposed to default judgment. Cf. contradictory motion under MOTION.

declaratory judgment.A binding adjudication that establishes the rights and other legal relations of the parties without providing for or ordering enforcement. • Declaratory judgments are often sought, for example, by insurance companies in determining whether a policy covers a given insured or peril. — Also termed declaratory decree; declaration. [Cases: Declaratory Judgment 1.

C.J.S. Declaratory Judgments § 1.]

default judgment. See DEFAULT JUDGMENT.

deferred judgment. A judgment placing a convicted defendant on probation, the successful completion of which will prevent entry of the underlying judgment of conviction. • This type of probation is common with minor traffic offenses. — Also termed deferred adjudication; deferred-adjudication probation; deferred prosecution; probation before judgment; probation without judgment; pretrial intervention; adjudication withheld. [Cases: Sentencing and Punishment 2050.]

deficiency judgment. A judgment against a debtor for the unpaid balance of the debt if a foreclosure sale or a sale of repossessed personal property fails to yield the full amount of the debt due. — Also termed deficiency decree. [Cases: Mortgages 375, 559; Secured Transactions 240. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 674–676, 933; Secured Transactions §§ 164–166, 168–169, 172, 174–175, 180–183.]

definitive judgment. See final judgment.

determinative judgment. See final judgment.

domestic judgment. A judgment rendered by the courts of the state or country where the judgment or its effect is at issue.

dormant judgment. A judgment that has not been executed or enforced within the statutory time limit. • As a result, any judgment lien may have been lost and execution cannot be issued unless the judgment creditor first revives the judgment. See REVIVAL(1).

erroneous judgment. A judgment issued by a court with jurisdiction to issue it, but containing an improper application of law. • This type of judgment is not void, but can be corrected by a trial court while the court retains plenary jurisdiction, or in a direct appeal. — Also termed judgment in error. See ERROR(2).

excess judgment. Insurance. A judgment that exceeds all of the defendant's insurance coverage. [Cases: Insurance 2934(3), 3346, 3374.]

executory judgment (eg-zek-y<<schwa>>-tor-ee). A judgment that has not been carried out, such as a yet-to-be-fulfilled order for the defendant to pay the plaintiff.

final appealable judgment. See final judgment.

final judgment. A court's last action that settles the rights of the parties and disposes of all issues in controversy, except for the award of costs (and, sometimes, attorney's fees) and enforcement of the judgment. — Also termed final appealable judgment; final decision; final decree; definitive judgment; determinative judgment; final appealable order. See FINAL-JUDGMENT RULE. [Cases: Appeal and Error 76(1); Federal Civil Procedure 2579. C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 82–83.]

foreign judgment. A judgment rendered by a court of a state or country different from that where the judgment or its effect is at issue. [Cases: Judgment 813–832. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 965–1038, 1053.]

in personam judgment. See personal judgment.

in rem judgment. See judgment in rem.

interlocutory judgment (in-t<<schwa>>r-lok-[y]<<schwa>>-tor-ee). An intermediate judgment that determines a preliminary or subordinate point or plea but does not finally decide the case. • A judgment or order given on a provisional or accessory claim or contention is generally interlocutory. — Also termed interlocutory decree. [Cases: Appeal and Error 68; Federal Civil Procedure 2578. C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 82–84.]

irregular judgment. A judgment that may be set aside because of some irregularity in the way it was rendered, such as a clerk's failure to send a defendant notice that a default judgment has been rendered.

judgment as a matter of law. A judgment rendered during a jury trial — either before or after the jury's verdict — against a party on a given issue when there is no legally sufficient basis for a jury to find for that party on that issue. • In federal practice, the term judgment as a matter of law has replaced both the directed verdict and the judgment notwithstanding the verdict. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50. Cf. SUMMARY JUDGMENT. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2111, 2601; Judgment 199; Trial 167. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 62–68, 70; Trial §§ 432–433, 437–438.]

judgment of cassetur breve. See CASSETUR BREVE.

judgment of conviction. 1. The written record of a criminal judgment, consisting of the plea, the verdict or findings, the adjudication, and the sentence. Fed. R. Crim. P. 32(d)(1). 2. A sentence in a criminal case. See SENTENCE. [Cases: Criminal Law 990.1.]

judgment of discontinuance. 1. A judgment dismissing a plaintiff's action based on interruption in the proceedings occasioned by the plaintiff's failure to continue the suit at the appointed time or times. 2. NONSUIT(1). — Often shortened to discontinuance. See DISCONTINUANCE.

judgment of dismissal. A final determination of a case (against the plaintiff in a civil action or the government in a criminal action) without a trial on its merits. See DISMISSAL. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1837; Pretrial Procedure 694. C.J.S. Dismissal and Nonsuit §§ 48, 80.]

judgment of nolle prosequi (nahl-ee prahs-<<schwa>>-kwI). A judgment entered against a plaintiff who, after appearance but before judgment on the merits, has decided to abandon prosecution of the lawsuit. See NOLLE PROSEQUI.

judgment of nonsuit. 1.Hist. The judgment given against a plaintiff who fails to be present in court to hear the jury render its verdict or who, after issue is joined, fails to bring the issue to be tried in due time. • This judgment does not prevent the plaintiff from filing the same case again. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2116.] 2.NONSUIT(2).

judgment of repleader.See REPLEADER.

judgment of retraxit (ri-trak-sit).Hist. A judgment against a plaintiff who has voluntarily retracted the claim. • Such a judgment bars the plaintiff from relitigating the claim. — Also termed judgment in retraxit. See RETRAXIT.

judgment on the merits.A judgment based on the evidence rather than on technical or procedural grounds. — Also termed decision on the merits.

judgment on the pleadings.A judgment based solely on the allegations and information contained in the pleadings, and not on any outside matters. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(c). Cf. SUMMARY JUDGMENT. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1041–1068; Pleading 342. C.J.S. Pleading § 594.]

judgment on the verdict.A judgment for the party receiving a favorable jury verdict.

judgment quasi in rem (kway-sI [or -zI] in rem). A judgment based on the court's jurisdiction over the defendant's interest in property rather than on its jurisdiction over the defendant or the property. • Such a judgment affects only particular persons' interests in a thing — that is, only the persons who are named or described in the proceeding. [Cases: Judgment 805. C.J.S. Judgments § 1059.]

judgment quod billa cassetur (kwod bil-<<schwa>> k<<schwa>>-see-t<<schwa>>r). Judgment that the bill be quashed. • This is a judgment for the defendant.

judgment quod breve cassetur (kwod breevorbree-vee k<<schwa>>-see-t<< schwa>>r). Judgment that the writ be quashed. • This is a judgment for the defendant.

junior judgment.A judgment rendered or entered after the rendition or entry of another judgment, on a different claim, against the same defendant.

money judgment.A judgment for damages subject to immediate execution, as distinguished from equitable or injunctive relief. — Also termed judgment for money.

nunc pro tunc judgment (n<<schwa>>ngk proh t<<schwa>>ngk). A procedural device by which the record of a judgment is amended to accord with what the judge actually said and did, so that the record will be accurate. • This device is often used to correct defects in real-estate titles. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2625; Judgment 273, 326. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 123–125, 299.]

personal judgment. 1. A judgment that imposes personal liability on a defendant and that may therefore be satisfied out of any of the defendant's property within judicial reach. 2. A judgment resulting from an action in which a court has personal jurisdiction over the parties. 3. A judgment against a person as distinguished from a judgment against a thing, right, or status. — Also termed judgment in personam (in p<<schwa>>r-soh-n<<schwa>>m); in personam judgment; judgment inter partes (in-t<<schwa>>r pahr-teez).

simulated judgment.Civil law. A judgment that, although founded on an actual debt and intended for collection by the usual legal processes, is actually entered into by the parties to give one of them an undeserving advantage or to defraud third parties.

stipulated judgment.See agreed judgment.

summary judgment.See SUMMARY JUDGMENT.

suspension of judgment.See STAY.

take-nothing judgment.A judgment for the defendant providing that the plaintiff recover nothing in damages or other relief. — Also termed (in some states) no cause of action.

valid judgment. 1. A judgment that will be recognized by common-law states as long as it is in force in the state where the judgment was rendered. 2. A judicial act rendered by a court having jurisdiction over the parties and over the subject matter in a proceeding in which the parties have had a reasonable opportunity to be heard.

voidable judgment.A judgment that, although seemingly valid, is defective in some material way; esp., a judgment that, although rendered by a court having jurisdiction, is irregular or erroneous. [Cases: Judgment 27, 353, 501. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 308, 526, 546, 549.]

void judgment.A judgment that has no legal force or effect, the invalidity of which may be asserted by any party whose rights are affected at any time and any place, whether directly or collaterally. • From its inception, a void judgment continues to be absolutely null. It is incapable of being confirmed, ratified, or enforced in any manner or to any degree. One source of a void judgment is the lack of subject-matter jurisdiction. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2392; Judgment 5–27, 346, 486. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 4–5, 13–28, 30, 43–46, 48, 73, 75, 82, 201, 203–205, 207, 307, 403, 499, 512, 546, 548–549.]
