causa cognita (kaw-z<<schwa>> kog-ni-t<<schwa>>). [Latin] Hist. After investigation; the cause (or facts) having been ascertained. Cf. POST CAUSAM COGNITAM .

“Formerly, inhibitions were not granted except causa cognita (although a different rule now prevails), because they imposed a restraint on the full exercise of the rights of property; and in our own time decrees of divorce or judicial separation are not granted, except on inquiry into the facts, and cause shown warranting such orders.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 71–72 (4th ed. 1894).

CAUSA DATA CAUSA NON SECUTA

causa data causa non secuta (kaw-z<<schwa>> day-t<<schwa>> kaw-z<<schwa>> non si-kyoo-t<<schwa>>). [Latin] Roman law. The consideration having been given but the counterpart not having followed. • The phrase appeared in reference to consideration promised for an act that never took place — e.g., an advance payment for work not done, or a gift given in contemplation of marriage before the wedding was called off. See CONDICTIO.

CAUSA DEBENDI

causa debendi (kaw-z<<schwa>> di-ben-dI). [Latin] Hist. The grounds of debt.

CAUSA ET MODUS TRANSFERENDI DOMINII causa et modus transferendi dominii (kaw-z<<schwa>> et moh-d<<schwa>>s trans-f<<schwa>>r-en-dI d<<schwa>>-min-ee-I). [Law Latin] Hist. The title and the manner of transferring property. — Also (erroneously) spelled causa et modus transferendi dominii.

CAUSA FALSA

causa falsa. See falsa causa under CAUSA(2).

CAUSA JACTITATIONIS MARITAGII

causa jactitationis maritagii (kaw-z<<schwa>> jak-ti-tay-shee-oh-nis mar-<<schwa>>-tay-jee-I). [Latin “cause of assertion of marriage”] See JACTITATION OF MARRIAGE .

CAUSAL

causal (kaw-z<<schwa>>l), adj. 1. Of, relating to, or involving causation . 2. Arising from a cause . Cf. CAUSATIVE.

CAUSAL CHALLENGE

causal challenge. See challenge for cause under CHALLENGE(2).

CAUSALITY

causality (kaw-zal-⟨schwa⟩-tee), n. The principle of causal relationship; the relation between cause and effect <the foreseeability test is one of duty and of causality>. — Also termed causation. — causal, adj.

CAUSA LUCRATIVA

causa lucrativa. See LUCRATIVA CAUSA.

CAUSA MATRIMONII PRAELOCUTI

causa matrimonii praelocuti. See CAUSA(1).

CAUSAM NOBIS SIGNIFICES QUARE

causam nobis significes quare (kaw-z⟨schwa⟩m noh-bis sig-nif-⟨schwa⟩-seez kwair-ee). [Latin “that you signify to us the cause why”] Hist. A writ ordering a town's mayor to give seisin of land to a grantee of the king.

CAUSA MORTIS

causa mortis (kaw-z⟨schwa⟩ mor-tis), adj. Done or made in contemplation of one's own death. See gift causa mortis under GIFT.

CAUSA NON SECUTA

causa non secuta. See CAUSA(2).

CAUSA PROMISSIONIS

causa promissionis (kaw-z⟨schwa⟩ pr⟨schwa⟩-mish-ee-oh-nis). Eccles. law. The doctrine that an informal undertaking does not oblige if it lacks a good cause.

CAUSA PROXIMA

causa proxima. See CAUSA(1).

CAUSARE

causare (kaw-zair-ee), vb. [Law Latin fr. Latin causari “to litigate”] To litigate; to show cause against.

CAUSA REMOTA

causa remota. See CAUSA(1).

CAUSA SCIENTIAE

causa scientiae (kaw-z⟨schwa⟩ sI-en-shee-ee). [Law Latin] Scots law. Cause of knowledge. • The phrase typically referred to a witness's basis for drawing a particular conclusion, esp. in a case involving scientific expertise.

CAUSA SINE QUA NON

causa sine qua non. See CAUSA(1).

CAUSATION

causation (kaw-zay-sh<<schwa>>n). 1. The causing or producing of an effect <the plaintiff must prove causa-tion>. 2. CAUSALITY.

“Here is the key to the juridical treatment of the problems of causation. We pick out the cause which in our judgment ought to be treated as the dominant one with reference, not merely to the event itself, but to the jural consequences that ought to attach to the event.” Benjamin Cardozo, The Paradoxes of Legal Science 83 (1928).

negative causation. Securities. The defense that part of the plaintiff's damages were caused by factors other than the depreciation in value of the securities resulting from registration-statement defects. • If negative causation is proved, the plaintiff's damages should be reduced. 15 USCA § 77k(e). [Cases: Securities Regulation 25.21(5). C.J.S. Securities Regulation § 89.]

transaction causation. Securities. The fact that an investor would not have engaged in a given transaction if the other party had made truthful statements at the required time. [Cases: Securities Regulation 60.47. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 208–210, 215.]

CAUSATIVE

causative (kaw-z<<schwa>>-tiv), adj. 1. Effective as a cause or producing a result <causative factor of the ac-cident>. 2. Expressive of causation <the causative relationship between drinking and assault>. Cf. CAUSAL.

CAUSATOR

causator (kaw-zay-t<<schwa>>r), n. [Latin “promoter of litigation”] Hist. 1. A litigant. 2. A person who manages or litigates a cause for another.

CAUSE

cause, n. 1. Something that produces an effect or result <the cause of the accident>.

“It has been said that an act which in no way contributed to the result in question cannot be a cause of it; but this, of course, does not mean that an event which might have happened in the same way though the defendant's act or omission had not occurred, is not a result of it. The question is not what would have happened, but what did happen.” Joseph H. Beale, The Proximate Consequences of an Act, 33 Harv. L. Rev. 633, 638 (1920).

but-for cause. The cause without which the event could not have occurred. — Also termed actual cause; cause in fact; factual cause.

concurrent cause. One of two or more causes that simultaneously produce a result.

contributing cause. A factor that — though not the primary cause — plays a part in producing a result.

cooperative cause. Archaic. A person who is contributorily or comparatively negligent.

direct and proximate cause. See proximate cause.

direct cause. See proximate cause.

efficient adequate cause. See proximate cause.

efficient cause. See proximate cause.

efficient intervening cause. See intervening cause.

efficient proximate cause. See proximate cause.

factual cause. See but-for cause.

first cause. See proximate cause.

immediate cause. The last event in a chain of events, though not necessarily the proximate cause of what follows. — Also termed effective cause.

initial cause. See proximate cause.

intervening cause. An event that comes between the initial event in a sequence and the end result, thereby altering the natural course of events that might have connected a wrongful act to an injury. • If the intervening cause is strong enough to relieve the wrongdoer of any liability, it becomes a superseding cause. A dependent intervening cause is one that is not an act and is never a superseding cause. An independent intervening cause is one that operates on a condition produced by an antecedent cause but in no way resulted from that cause. — Also termed intervening act; intervening agency; intervening force; independent intervening cause; efficient intervening cause; supervening cause; novus actus interveniens; nova causa interveniens. See superseding cause. [Cases: Negligence 430. C.J.S. Negligence §§ 202–205.]

jural cause. See proximate cause.

legal cause. See proximate cause.

primary cause. See proximate cause.

procuring cause. 1. See proximate cause (2). 2. Real estate. The efforts of the agent or broker who effects the sale of realty and who is therefore entitled to a commission. [Cases: Brokers 53. C.J.S. Brokers §§ 166–169.]

proximate cause. 1. A cause that is legally sufficient to result in liability; an act or omission that is considered in law to result in a consequence, so that liability can be imposed on the actor. [Cases: Negligence 375.] 2. A cause that directly produces an event and without which the event would not have occurred. [Cases: Negligence 379, 385. C.J.S. Negligence § 197.] — Also termed (in both senses) direct cause; direct and proximate cause; efficient proximate cause; efficient cause; efficient adequate cause; initial cause; first cause; legal cause; pro-curing cause; producing cause; primary cause; jural cause. Cf. (in sense 2) remote cause.

“The four ‘tests’ or ‘clues’ of proximate cause in a criminal case are (1) expediency, (2) isolation, (3) foreseeability and (4) intention.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 823 (3d ed. 1982).

“ ‘Proximate cause’ — in itself an unfortunate term — is merely the limitation which the courts have placed upon the actor's responsibility for the consequences of the actor's conduct. In a philosophical sense, the consequences of an act go forward to eternity, and the causes of an event go back to the dawn of human events, and beyond. But any attempt to impose responsibility upon such a basis would result in infinite liability for all wrongful acts, and would ‘set society on edge and fill the courts with endless litigation.’ [North v. Johnson, 58 Minn. 242, 59 N.W. 1012 (1894).] As a practical matter, legal responsibility must be limited to those causes which are so closely connected with the result and of such significance that the law is justified in imposing liability. Some boundary must be set to liability for the consequences of any act, upon the basis of some social idea of justice or policy.” W. Page Keeton et al., Prosser and Keeton on the Law of Torts § 41, at 264 (5th ed. 1984).

remote cause. A cause that does not necessarily or immediately produce an event or injury. Cf. proximate cause (2). [Cases: Negligence 383.]

sole cause. The only cause that, from a legal viewpoint, produces an event or injury. • If it comes between a defendant's action and the event or injury at issue, it is treated as a superseding cause. [Cases: Negligence 431. C.J.S. Negligence §§ 202, 315.]

“When this one dominant cause is found it is treated as the ‘sole cause’ for the purposes of the particular case, even if it might not be so treated in a different kind of cause of action. A ‘sole cause’ which intervenes between defendant's act and the result in question is spoken of as a ‘superseding cause.’ ... The phrase ‘sole cause,’ meaning the only cause which will receive juridical recognition for the purposes of the particular case, is convenient to give emphasis to three points: (1) If defendant's act was the sole cause of the death or other socially-harmful occurrence, it is by definition a proximate cause thereof; (2) if something other than his act was the sole cause of the harm there need be no further inquiry so far as he is concerned; (3) it is not necessary that defendant's act should have been the sole cause of the harm, — which is merely another form of stating that a contributory cause is sufficient.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 781–82 (3d ed. 1982).

superseding cause. An intervening act or force that the law considers sufficient to override the cause for which the original tortfeasor was responsible, thereby exonerating that tortfeasor from liability. — Also termed sole cause. Cf. intervening cause. [Cases: Negligence 431. C.J.S. Negligence §§ 202, 315.]

supervening cause. See intervening cause.

unavoidable cause. A cause that a reasonably prudent person would not anticipate or be expected to avoid.

2. A ground for legal action <the plaintiff does not have cause to file suit>.

good cause. A legally sufficient reason. • Good cause is often the burden placed on a litigant (usu. by court rule or order) to show why a request should be granted or an action excused. The term is often used in employment-termination cases. — Also termed good cause shown; just cause; lawful cause; sufficient cause.

“Issues of ‘just cause,’ or ‘good cause,’ or simply ‘cause’ arise when an employee claims breach of the terms of an employment contract providing that discharge will be only for just cause. Thus, just cause is a creature of contract. By operation of law, an employment contract for a definite term may not be terminated without cause before the expiration of the term, unless the contract provides otherwise.” Mark A. Rothstein et al., Employment Law § 9.7, at 539 (1994).

probable cause. See PROBABLE CAUSE.

3. A lawsuit; a case <the court has 50 causes on the motion docket>.

preferred cause. A case that a court may for good reason accelerate and try ahead of other cases. — Also termed preference case; preference cause.

short cause. A case that requires little time to try, usu. half a day or less. — Also termed short-cause trial.

4. CAUSA(2).

cause, vb. To bring about or effect <dry conditions caused the fire>.

CAUSE-AND-PREJUDICE RULE

cause-and-prejudice rule. Criminal law. The doctrine that a prisoner petitioning for a federal writ of habeas corpus on the basis of a constitutional challenge must first show that the claim rests on either a new rule of constitutional law (one that was unavailable while the case was heard in the state courts) or a fact that could not have been uncovered earlier despite due diligence, and then show by clear and convincing evidence that if the constitutional error had not occurred, the prisoner would not have been convicted. 28 USCA § 2254(e)(2). • This is an exception to the procedural-default doctrine. Before 1996, the cause-and-prejudice rule allowed federal courts to grant relief on the basis of a constitutional challenge that was not presented to the trial if the prisoner showed good cause for failing to make the challenge at trial, and also showed that the trial court's error actually prejudiced the prisoner. [Cases: Criminal Law 1438; Habeas Corpus 404–409.]

CAUSE CÉLÈBRE

cause célèbre (kawz s<<schwa>>-leborkawz say-leb-r<<schwa>>). [French “celebrated case”] A trial or decision in which the subject matter or the characters are unusual or sensational <the O.J. Simpson trial was a cause célèbre in the 1990s>.

CAUSE IN FACT

cause in fact. See but-for cause under CAUSE(1).

CAUSE LIST

CAUSE OF ACTION 1

cause of action. 1. A group of operative facts giving rise to one or more bases for suing; a factual situation that entitles one person to obtain a remedy in court from another person; CLAIM(4) <after the crash, Aronson had a cause of action>. [Cases: Action 1, 2. C.J.S. Actions §§ 2–9, 11, 17, 21, 26, 31–33, 36.]

“What is a cause of action? Jurists have found it difficult to give a proper definition. It may be defined generally to be a situation or state of facts that entitles a party to maintain an action in a judicial tribunal. This state of facts may be — (a) a primary right of the plaintiff actually violated by the defendant; or (b) the threatened violation of such right, which violation the plaintiff is entitled to restrain or prevent, as in case of actions or suits for injunction; or (c) it may be that there are doubts as to some duty or right, or the right beclouded by some apparent adverse right or claim, which the plaintiff is entitled to have cleared up, that he may safely perform his duty, or enjoy his property.” Edwin E. Bryant, The Law of Pleading Under the Codes of Civil Procedure 170 (2d ed. 1899).

2. A legal theory of a lawsuit . Cf. RIGHT OF ACTION. — Also termed (in senses 1 & 2) ground of action.

new cause of action. A claim not arising out of or relating to the conduct, occurrence, or transaction contained in the original pleading. • An amended pleading often relates back to the date when the original pleading was filed. Thus, a plaintiff may add claims to a suit without facing a statute-of-limitations bar, as long as the original pleading was filed in time to satisfy the statute. But if the amended pleading adds a claim that arises out of a different transaction or occurrence, or out of different alleged conduct, the amendment does not relate back to the date when the original pleading was filed. Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(c).

3. Loosely, a lawsuit <there are four defendants in the pending cause of action>.

CAUSE-OF-ACTION ESTOPPEL

cause-of-action estoppel. See COLLATERAL ESTOPPEL.

CAUSIDICUS

causidicus (kaw-zid-<<schwa>>-k<<schwa>>s), n. [Latin “pleader”] Roman law. A speaker or pleader who pleaded cases orally for others. Cf. ADVOCATUS.

CAUTIO

cautio (kaw-shee-oh), n. [Latin “security”] Roman & civil law. 1. Security usu. given to ensure the performance of an obligation. See BAIL(1); BOND(2). 2. A surety. Pl. cautiones (kaw-shee-oh-nee-z). cautio fidejussoria (kaw-shee-oh fi-dee-y<<schwa>>-sor-ee-<<schwa>>). [Latin] Security given by a third party in a contract of fidejussio. See FIDEJUSSION.

cautio judicatum solvi (kaw-shee-oh joo-di-kay-t<<schwa>>m sol-vI). [Latin] A plaintiff's security for court costs. — Also spelled cautio judicatum solvi. [Cases: Costs 105. C.J.S. Costs §§ 59, 63.]

cautio Muciana (kaw-shee-oh myoo-shee-ay-n<<schwa>>). [Latin “security introduced by Mucius Scaevola”] Security given by an heir or legatee to obtain immediate possession of a conditional inheritance. • The condition in the will usu. required an heir to refrain from doing some act, such as marriage or overseas travel.

cautio pignoratitia (kaw-shee-oh pig-n<<schwa>>r<<schwa>>-tish-[ee]-<< schwa>>). [Latin “security by pledge”] Security given by pledging goods. — Also spelled cautio pignoratitia; cautio pignoratitia. Cf. actio pignoratitia under ACTIO.

cautio pro expensis (kaw-shee-oh proh ek-spen-sis). [Latin “security for costs”] Security for court costs. [Cases: Costs 105. C.J.S. Costs §§ 59, 63.]

cautio usufructuaria (kaw-shee-oh yooz-y<<schwa>>-fr<<schwa>>k-choo-air-ee-<<schwa>>). [Latin “tenant's security”] Security given by a usufructuary or tenant for life or a term of years against waste of the enjoyed property. See USUFRUCT. [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 184(1); Life Estates 6. C.J.S. Estates § 54.]

CAUTION

caution (kay-sh<<schwa>>n). Civil & Scots law. 1. Security given to ensure performance of some obligation. See JURATORY CAUTION(2). 2. The person who gives the security; a cautioner. See BAIL(4).

CAUTIONARY INSTRUCTION

cautionary instruction. See JURY INSTRUCTION.

CAUTIONE ADMITTENDA

cautione admittenda. See DE CAUTIONE ADMITTENDA.

CAUTIONER

cautioner (kaw-sh<<schwa>>n<<schwa>>r or [in senses 2 & 3] kay-sh<<schwa>>n-<<schwa>>r). 1. A person who cautions or warns. 2. Civil & Scots law. A person who puts up security to ensure the performance of some obligation. 2. Scots law. A personal security.

CAUTION MONEY

CAUTIONRY

cautionry (kay-sh<<schwa>>n-ree), n. Scots law. The obligation to act as surety for another.

CAVEAT

caveat (kav-ee-aht orkay-vee-at orkav-ee-at). [Latin “let him or her beware”] 1. A warning or proviso <he sold the car to his friend with the caveat that the brakes might need repairs>.

caveat actor (kay-vee-at ak-tor). [Latin] Let the doer, or actor, beware.

caveat emptor (kay-vee-at emp-tor). [Latin “let the buyer beware”] A doctrine holding that purchasers buy at their own risk. • Modern statutes and cases have greatly limited the importance of this doctrine. [Cases: Sales 41, 269; Vendor and Purchaser 37(1). C.J.S. Sales §§ 52, 271; Vendor and Purchaser §§ 49, 51–63, 67–69, 79.]

“It [caveat emptor] is one of that tribe of anonymous Latin maxims that infest our law .... [T]hey fill the ear and sound like sense, and to the eye look like learning; while their main use is to supply the place of either or both.” Gulian C. Verplanck, An Essay on the Doctrine of Contracts 218 (1825).

“Caveat emptor is the ordinary rule in contract. A vendor is under no duty to communicate the existence even of latent defects in his wares unless by act or implication he represents such defects not to exist.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 245 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

“This action of unfair competition is the embodiment in law of the rule of the playground — ‘Play fair!’ For generations the law has enforced justice.... The maxim caveat emptor is founded on justice; the more modern rule that compels the use of truth in selling goods is founded on fairness. It conflicts with the rule of caveat emptor.” Harry D. Nims, The Law of Unfair Competition and Trade-Marks 25 (1929).

caveat venditor (kay-vee-at ven-di-tor). [Latin] Let the seller beware. [Cases: Sales 269. C.J.S. Sales § 271.]

caveat viator (kay-vee-at vI-ay-tor). [Latin “let the traveler beware”] The duty of a traveler on a highway to use due care to detect and avoid defects in the way.

2. A formal notice or warning given by a party to a court or court officer requesting a suspension of proceedings <the decedent's daughter filed a caveat stating the facts on which her will contest is based>.3. Under the Torrens system of land titles, a formal notice of an unregistered interest in land. • Once lodged with the register of deeds, this notice prevents the register from recording any dealing affecting the estate or the interest claimed. See TORRENS SYSTEM. [Cases: Records 9(13.1).] — caveat,vb.

CAVEATABLE

caveatable (kay-vee-at-<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l), adj. Of or relating to a legal or equitable interest that is protectable by a caveat. See CAVEAT(2), (3).

The rule that, in choice-of-law questions, the law of the jurisdiction with the most significant relationship to the transaction or event applies. — Also termed significant-relationship theory; grouping-of-contacts theory. [Cases: Action 17. C.J.S. Actions §§ 18–20; Conflict of Laws §§ 2–3, 12, 15, 20, 23, 27–32, 34–40, 42–48, 50–65, 96–97, 100, 102, 105–107.]

CENTERS FOR DISEASE CONTROL AND PREVENTION

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.An agency in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services responsible for conducting medical research and for responding to public-health emergencies. • It was established by Department reorganization in 1999. — Abbr. CDC.

CENTESIMA

centesima (sen-tes-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>), n. & adj. [Latin “one-hundredth”] Roman law. The hundredth part; 1%. See USURAE CENTESIMAE.

CENTRAL AMERICAN COURT OF JUSTICE

Central American Court of Justice.A court created by a 1908 convention between Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua, to guarantee the rights of the various republics to maintain peace and harmony in their relations and to prevent recourse to the use of force. • The convention expired after ten years, and the court ceased to exist in 1918.

CENTRAL CLEARING SYSTEM

central clearing system.A method of facilitating securities transactions in which an agent or subsidiary of an exchange acts as a clearinghouse for member brokerage firms by clearing their checks, settling their accounts, and delivering their payments. • Most transactions are reflected solely by computerized book entries, and clearing-house statements are submitted showing the net balance to be paid to reconcile the member firm's accounts.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT

Central Criminal Court.The Crown Court sitting in London, formerly known as the Old Bailey. • The Central Criminal Court, created in 1834, has jurisdiction to try all indictable offenses committed in London. See CROWN COURT .

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT ACT

CIA. See NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL.

CENTRAL OFFICE

Central Office.The primary office for most of England's courts. • The Central Office was established in 1879 to consolidate the masters and associates of the common-law courts, and the clerical functions of the Crown Office of the Queen's Bench Division, the Report and Enrollment offices of the Chancery Division, and several other offices.

CENTUMVIRI

centumviri (sen-t<<schwa>>m-v<<schwa>>-rI), n. pl.[Latin “hundred men”] Roman law. A court with jurisdiction to hear important cases, esp. those relating to inheritances and disputed wills. • The court originally consisted of 105 judges — 3 from each of the 35 tribes.

CEO

CEO.abbr.CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER.

CEORL

ceorl (chorl).Hist. A Saxon freeman who either possessed no landed property or held land of a thane by paying rent or providing services. • After the Norman Conquest, ceorls were reduced to the status of unfree villeins. Under Norman rule, the variant form of the word, churl, became associated with a base peasant, and soon acquired the connotation of a surly, coarse person (hence the modern meaning). — Also termed churl; cirlicus.

CEPI

cepi (see-pl). [Latin] Hist. I have taken. • Cepi was often used in a capias return by an arresting sheriff, as in cepi corpus et est in custodia (“I have taken the defendant [or body] and he is in custody”).

“But for injuries committed with force to the person, property, or possession, of the plaintiff, the law, to punish the breach of the peace, and prevent its disturbance in the future, provided also a process against the defendant's person.... This process was called a capias ad respondendum, which at once authorised the sheriff to take the defendant, and imprison him till the return-day, and then produce him in court.... If by this process the defendant was arrested, the sheriff returned it with cepi corpus indorsed. But notwithstanding this writ commanded the sheriff to take and secure him till the return-day, he might, at his own peril, have let the defendant continue at large; though he was liable, in case of his non appearance in court, to make amends to the plaintiff in an action for an escape, or to be amerced by the court for the contempt, in not producing the body pursuant to the return he had made on the writ." George Crompton, Practice Common-Placed: Rules and Cases of Practice in the Courts of King's Bench and Common Pleas xlii–xliii (3d ed. 1787).

cepi corpus et bail (see-pIkor-p<<schwa>>s et bayl). I have arrested and then released the defendant on a bail bond.

cepi corpus et committitur (see-pIkor-p<<schwa>>s et k<<schwa>>-mit-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>r). I have arrested and committed the defendant (to prison).

cepi corpus et est languidus (see-pIkor-p<<schwa>>s et est lang-gw<<schwa>>-d<<schwa>>s). I have arrested the defendant and he is sick. • This notation in a sheriff's return indicated that the defendant was too sick to be moved safely from the place of arrest.

cepi corpus et paratum habeo (see-pIkor-p<<schwa>>s et p<<schwa>>-ray-t<<schwa>>m hay-bee-oh). I have made an arrest and am ready to produce the defendant.

CEPIT

cepit (see-pit). [Latin] Hist. He took. • This was the main verb in a declaration in an action for trespass or replevin.

CEPIT ET ABDUXIT

cepit et abduxit (see-pit et ab-duk-sit). [Latin] Hist. He took and led away. • This declaration appeared in either a writ of trespass or a larceny indictment for theft of an animal.

CEPIT ET ASPORTAVIT

cepit et asportavit (see-pit et as-por-tay-vit). [Latin] Hist. He took and carried away. • This declaration appeared in either a writ of trespass or a larceny indictment for a defendant's wrongfully carrying away goods.

CEPIT IN ALIO LOCO

cepit in alio loco (see-pit in ay-lee-oh loh-koh). [Latin] Hist. He took in another place. • This phrase appeared in a replevin-action pleading in which a defendant asserted that the property had been taken at a place other than that named in the plaintiff's declaration.

CEQ

CEQ.abbr. COUNCIL ON ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY.

CERAGE

cerage (seer-ij). See WAX SCOT.

---

cera impressa (seer-<<schwa>> im-pres-<<schwa>>). [Latin “impressed wax”] Hist. An impressed seal. • Cera impressa originally referred only to wax seals, but later came to include any impressed seal, regardless of the substance impressed. See SEAL.

CERATIUM

ceratium (si-ray-shee-<<schwa>>m). See WAX SCOT.

CERCLA

CERCLA (s<<schwa>>r-kl<<schwa>>).abbr. Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980. • This statute holds responsible parties liable for the cost of cleaning up hazardous-waste sites.<sup>42</sup> USCA §§ 9601 et seq. See SUPERFUND. [Cases: Environmental Law 436.]

“CERCLA is probably the most controversial environmental law ever enacted. Supporters praise it as a vital program to safeguard human health and the environment from the toxic consequences of decades of irresponsible waste handling. Citing cost estimates ranging up to $750 billion, critics deride it as an extraordinarily expensive measure which imposes crippling liability on innocent parties to fund clean-ups which are either unnecessary or largely ineffective.” John G. Sprankling & Gregory S. Weber, The Law of Hazardous Wastes and Toxic Substances in a Nutshell 256 (1997).

CEREMONIAL MARRIAGE

ceremonial marriage.See MARRIAGE(3).

CERT

CERTIFICATE OF APPEALABILITY

certificate of appealability. In an appeal from the denial of federal habeas corpus relief, a document issued by a United States circuit judge certifying that the prisoner showed that a constitutional right may have been denied. 28 USCA § 2253(c)(2). • The prisoner does not have to show that the case would succeed on the merits, only that reasonable jurists would find the claim at least debatable. Miller-El v. Cockrell, 537 U.S. 322, 336, 123 S.Ct. 1029, 1039 (2003). If the certificate is not issued, no appeal is possible. 28 USCA § 2253(c)(1); Fed. R. App. P. 22(b). — Also termed (before 1996) certificate of probable cause; certificate of reasonable doubt; writ of probable cause. — Abbr. COA.

CERTIFICATE OF ASSIZE

certificate of assize. Hist. In England, a writ granting a retrial. • The certificate of assize has been replaced by a court order granting a new trial.

CERTIFICATE OF AUTHORITY

certificate of authority. 1. A document authenticating a notarized document that is being sent to another jurisdiction. • The certificate assures the out-of-state or foreign recipient that the notary public has a valid commission. — Also termed certificate of capacity; certificate of official character; certificate of authentication; certificate of prothonotary; certificate of magistracy; apostille; verification. 2. A document issued by a state agency, usu. the secretary of state, granting an out-of-state corporation the right to do business in the state. [Cases: Corporations 648. C.J.S. Corporations § 903.]

CERTIFICATE OF BAD FAITH

certificate of bad faith. In a case in which a party has been allowed to proceed in a United States district court in forma pauperis, a document issued by the court attesting that an appeal by that party would be frivolous and therefore should not be allowed unless the party pays the ordinary filing fees and costs. 28 USCA § 1915(a)(3). Cf. CERTIFICATE OF GOOD FAITH.

CERTIFICATE OF CAPACITY

certificate of capacity. See CERTIFICATE OF AUTHORITY(1).

CERTIFICATE OF CONFERENCE

certificate of conference. A section of a pleading or motion filed with the court, usu. contained separately on a page near the end of the document, whereby the party filing the pleading or motion certifies to the court that the parties have attempted to resolve the matter, but that a judicial determination is needed because an agreement could not be reached. • Courts require some motions to have a certificate of conference attached to them. This compels the parties to try to resolve the issue themselves, without burdening the court unless necessary. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(c), 37.

CERTIFICATE OF CONVENIENCE AND NECESSITY

certificate of convenience and necessity. A certificate issued by an administrative agency granting operating authority to a utility or transportation company. — Also termed certificate of public convenience and necessity. [Cases: Automobiles 77; Carriers 8; Public Utilities 113. C.J.S. Aeronautics and Aerospace § 189; Carriers §§ 356–366, 373–376, 378–381, 383–384; Motor Vehicles §§ 174, 179–183; Public Utilities §§ 4, 69, 71.]

CERTIFICATE OF CONVICTION

certificate of conviction. A signed and certified warrant authorizing a person's imprisonment after an adjudication of guilt.

CERTIFICATE OF CORRECTION

certificate of correction. 1. A document that corrects an error in an official document, such as a certificate of incorporation. 2. Patents. A document issued by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office after a patentee or assignee rectifies a minor error unrelated to either questions of ownership or else defects in a patent application's specifications or drawings. • The certificate can correct only three types of errors: (1) mistakes made by the PTO, (2) minor clerical or typographical errors, and (3) the omission or misidentification of an inventor's name. 35 USCA §§ 254–256. Cf. reissue patent under PATENT(3). [Cases: Patents 126. C.J.S. Patents §§ 215–216.]

CERTIFICATE OF DEPOSIT

certificate of deposit. 1. A banker's certificate acknowledging the receipt of money and promising to repay the depositor. 2. A bank document showing the existence of a time deposit, usu. one that pays interest. — Abbr. CD. [Cases: Banks and Banking 152. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 294–300, 370.]

negotiable certificate of deposit. A security issued by a financial institution as a short-term source of funds, usu. with a fixed interest rate and maturity of one year or less. [Cases: Banks and Banking 152. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 294–300, 370.]

CERTIFICATE OF DISCHARGE

CERTIFICATE OF ELECTION

certificate of election. A document issued by a governor, board of elections, or other competent authority certifying that the named person has been duly elected. [Cases: Elections 126(7), 265. C.J.S. Elections § 119(1).]

certificate of good faith. In a case in which a party has been allowed to proceed in a United States District Court in forma pauperis, a document issued by the court attesting that an appeal by the party would not be frivolous, so the party should not be required to pay costs or security. • District judges occasionally issue certificates of good faith even though they are never required: a party is allowed to appeal in forma pauperis unless the court issues a certificate of bad faith. 28 USCA § 1915(a)(3). Cf. CERTIFICATE OF BAD FAITH.

CERTIFICATE OF HOLDER OF ATTACHED PROPERTY

certificate of holder of attached property. A certificate given by a person who holds — but does not own — property attached by a sheriff; the certificate sets forth the holder's interest in the property. [Cases: Attachment 187. C.J.S. Attachment §§ 239–241.]

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION

certificate of incorporation. 1. A document issued by a state authority (usu. the secretary of state) granting a corporation its legal existence and the right to function as a corporation. — Also termed charter; corporate charter. 2. ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION. [Cases: Corporations 18. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 26, 33–35, 41, 559.]

CERTIFICATE OF INDEBTEDNESS

certificate of indebtedness. 1. DEBENTURE. 2. TREASURY BILL. 3. CERTIFICATE OF DEPOSIT .

CERTIFICATE OF INSURANCE

certificate of insurance. A document acknowledging that an insurance policy has been written, and setting forth in general terms what the policy covers. [Cases: Insurance 1710.]

CERTIFICATE OF INTEREST

certificate of interest. Oil & gas. A document evidencing a fractional or percentage ownership in oil-and-gas production.

CERTIFICATE OF MAGISTRACY

certificate of magistracy. See CERTIFICATE OF AUTHORITY(1).

CERTIFICATE OF MARRIAGE

certificate of marriage. See MARRIAGE CERTIFICATE.

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT

certificate of merit. A certificate, signed by the plaintiff's attorney and filed with the complaint in a civil suit, declaring that the plaintiff's attorney has conferred with at least one competent expert and afterward concluded that the suit has merit. • Many states have a law mandating certificates of merit in certain types of cases, such as professional malpractice. The law's purpose is to weed out frivolous claims as early as possible. In those states, if a certificate is not filed with the complaint, the action is usu. dismissed. If the law requires the certificate to be signed under oath or penalty of perjury, it is sometimes called an affidavit of merit.

CERTIFICATE OF OCCUPANCY

certificate of occupancy. A document indicating that a building complies with zoning and building ordinances. • A certificate of occupancy is often required before title can be transferred and the building occupied. [Cases: Health 392; Zoning and Planning 371. C.J.S. Zoning and Land Planning §§ 191, 199, 203.]

CERTIFICATE OF OFFICIAL CHARACTER

certificate of official character. See CERTIFICATE OF AUTHORITY(1).

CERTIFICATE OF PROBABLE CAUSE

certificate of probable cause. See CERTIFICATE OF APPEALABILITY. — Abbr. CPC.

CERTIFICATE OF PROOF

certificate of proof. See PROOF OF ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

CERTIFICATE OF PROTEST

certificate of protest. See NOTICE OF DISHONOR.

CERTIFICATE OF REGISTRATION

certificate of registration. 1. Copyright. A U.S. Copyright Office document approving a copyright application and stating the approved work's registration date and copyright registration number. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 50.25. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 39, 96.] 2. Trademarks. A document affirming that the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office has allowed and recorded a trademark or servicemark. • The certificate identifies (1) the registered mark, (2) the date of first use, (3) the type of product or service that the mark applies to, (4) the registration number and date, (5) the registration's term, (6) the original application date, and (7) any conditions or limitations on registration. [Cases: Trade Regulation 251. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 149, 199–201.]

CERTIFICATE OF REGISTRY

certificate of registry. Maritime law. A document certifying that a ship has been registered as required by law. See REGISTRY(2). [Cases: Shipping 5. C.J.S. Shipping § 16.]

CERTIFICATE OF REHABILITATION

certificate of rehabilitation. 1. A document issued in some states by a court or other authorized governmental agency, such as a parole board, as evidence that a convicted offender is entitled to recover at least some of the rights and privileges of citizenship. • The terms and conditions under which certificates of rehabilitation are issued vary widely among the states that use them. Some states, such as New York, issue different kinds of rehabilitation certificates based on the number or type of convictions. 2. A document issued by a (usu. local) government on the renovation, restoration, preservation, or rehabilitation of a historic building. • The certificate usu. entitles the property owner to favorable tax treatment. 3. A document attesting that substandard housing has been satisfactorily renovated and meets housing-code standards.

CERTIFICATE OF SALE

certificate of sale. See CERTIFICATE OF PURCHASE.

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

certificate of service. A section of a pleading or motion filed with the court, usu. contained separately on the last page, in which the filing party certifies to the court that a copy has been mailed to or otherwise served on all other parties. • A certificate of service is usu. not included with the initial pleading that the plaintiff files to begin a suit, because that pleading is usu. filed before it is served (although the plaintiff may be required to file proof of service). Other pleadings and motions are usu. required to have a certificate of service. Fed. R. Civ. P. 5(d). — Also termed proof of service. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 665; Pleading 336; Process 132. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 577, 579–583; Process §§ 79–80.]

CERTIFICATE OF STOCK

certificate of stock. See STOCK CERTIFICATE.

CERTIFICATE OF TITLE

certificate of title.A document indicating ownership of real or personal property. UCC § 9-102(a)(10). • This document usu. identifies any liens or other encumbrances. [Cases: Property 9. C.J.S. Property §§ 35–37.]

CERTIFICATION

certification,n.1. The act of attesting. 2. The state of having been attested. 3. An attested statement. 4. The writing on the face of a check by which it is certified. 5. A procedure by which a federal appellate court asks the U.S. Supreme Court or the highest state court to review a question of law arising in a case pending before the appellate court and on which it needs guidance. • Certification is commonly used with state courts, but the U.S. Supreme Court has steadily restricted the number of cases it reviews by certification. See 28 USCA § 1254(2). Cf. CER-TIORARI. [Cases: Federal Courts 392, 463.]

CERTIFICATION AUTHORITY

certification authority.An organization that issues digital certificates and maintains a database of certificates available on the Internet. • Many states have licensing laws for certification authorities. — Abbr. CA. — Also termed certifying authority.

(Of a court) to issue an order allowing a class of litigants to maintain a class action; to create (a class) for purposes of a class action. Cf. DECERTIFY. See CERTIFICATION. — certified, adj.

CERTIFYING AUTHORITY

certifying authority. See CERTIFICATION AUTHORITY.

CERTIORARI

certiorari (s<<schwa>>r-shee-<<schwa>>-rair-lor -rair-ee or -rah-ree). [Law Latin “to be more fully informed”] An extraordinary writ issued by an appellate court, at its discretion, directing a lower court to deliver the record in the case for review. • The writ evolved from one of the prerogative writs of the English Court of King's Bench, and in the United States it became a general appellate remedy. The U.S. Supreme Court uses certiorari to review most of the cases that it decides to hear. — Abbr. cert. — Also termed writ of certiorari. Cf. CERTIFICATION(5).

[Cases: Certiorari 1. C.J.S. Certiorari §§ 2–4, 6, 8, 33.]

“The established method by which the Court of King's Bench from the earliest times exercised superintendence over the due observance of their limitations by inferior courts, checked the usurpation of jurisdiction, and main-tained the supremacy of the royal courts, was by writs of prohibition and certiorari. A proceeding by writ of certiorari (cause to be certified) is a special proceeding by which a superior court requires some inferior tribunal, board, or judicial officer to transmit the record of its proceedings for review, for excess of jurisdiction. It is similar to a writ of error, in that it is a proceeding in a higher court to superintend and review judicial acts, but it only lies in cases not appealable by writ of error or otherwise.” Benjamin J. Shipman, Handbook of Common-Law Pleading § 340, at 541 (Henry Winthrop Ballantine ed., 3d ed. 1923).

“The discretionary writ of certiorari has come to control access to almost all branches of Supreme Court juris-diction. Appeal jurisdiction has been narrowly limited, and certification of questions from federal courts of ap-peals has fallen into almost complete desuetude. Certiorari control over the cases that come before the Court enables the Court to define its own institutional role.” Charles Alan Wright et al., Federal Practice and Procedure § 4004, at 22 (2d ed. 1996).

certiorari facias (s<<schwa>>r-shee-<<schwa>>-rair-Ifay-shee-<<schwa>>s). [Latin “cause to be certified”] The command of a writ of certiorari, referring to certification of the court record for review.

CERTIORARI PETITION

certiorari petition.See PETITION.

CERT POOL

cert pool.A group of clerks in the U.S. Supreme Court who read petitions for certiorari and write memorandums for the justices with a synopsis of the facts and issues and often a recommendation of whether a grant of certiorari is warranted.

“The cert pool is not without its critics. Some commentators have contended that inexperienced clerks in the cert pool give short shrift to cases of practical importance in favor of cases presenting esoteric legal questions.... Other critics have contended that the cert pool does little to advance its stated goal of efficiency.... Pool clerks frequently must take the time to formally summarize petitions that would occasion only a brief, candid recommendation to ‘deny’ from their own Justices.” Robert L. Stern et al., Supreme Court Practice 291 (8th ed. 2002).

CERTUM AN ET QUANTUM DEBEATUR?

certum an et quantum debeatur? (s<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>m an et kwon-t<<schwa>>m dee-bee-ay-t<<schwa>>r). [Law Latin] Hist. Certain whether there is a debt due at all, and how much is owed? • These were the two questions that had to be resolved before a defendant could make a plea in compensation.

CESSATION-OF-PRODUCTION CLAUSE

cessation-of-production clause.Oil & gas. A lease provision that specifies what the lessee must do to maintain the lease if production stops. • The purpose of the clause is to avoid the uncertainties of the tempo-rary-cessation-of-production doctrine. Cf. TEMPORARY-CESSATION-OF-PRODUCTION DOCTRINE . [Cases: Mines and Minerals 78.1(9). C.J.S. Mines and Minerals §§ 260–263.]

“Many oil and gas leases contain provisions intended to give lessees more certainty than is given by the temporary cessation of production doctrine. Usually, such provision takes the form of a temporary cessation of production clause, a provision in the lease that states that the lease will be maintained so long as production does not cease for more than an agreed period of time, usually sixty to ninety days.... So long as sixty days does not elapse without operations on the property, the lease will not terminate even though there is no production.” John S. Lowe, Oil and Gas Law in a Nutshell 258 (3d ed. 1995).

CESSAVIT PER BIENNIUM

cessavit per biennium (se-say-vit p<<schwa>>r bI-en-ee-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “he ceased for two years”] Hist. A writ of right available to a landlord to recover land from a tenant who has failed to pay rent or provide prescribed services for a two-year period. • The writ could also be used to recover land donated to a religious order if the order has failed to perform certain spiritual services. — Also termed cessavit.

CESSE

cesse. See CESS.

CESSER

cesser (ses-<<schwa>>r).1.Hist. A tenant whose failure to pay rent or perform prescribed services gives the landowner the right to recover possession of the land. — Also spelled cessor; cessure. 2. The termination of a right or interest.

“A proviso of cesser is usually annexed to long terms, raised by mortgage, marriage settlement, or annuity, whereby the term is declared to be determinable on the happening of a certain event; and until the event provided for in the declaration of cesser has occurred, the term continues.” 4 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law *90 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

“The cesser of a term, annuity or the like takes place when it determines or comes to an end. The expression was formerly chiefly used with reference to long terms of years created by a settlement for the purpose of securing portions, etc., given to the objects of the settlement. In such cases, it was usual to introduce a proviso that the term should cease when the trusts thereof were satisfied (as, for example, on the death of the annuitant where the term was created to secure an annuity). This was called a proviso for cesser.” Jowitt's Dictionary of English Law 308 (John Burke ed., 2d ed. 1977).

CESSET EXECUTIO

cesset executio (ses-<<schwa>>t ek-s<<schwa>>-kyoo-shee-oh). [Latin “let execution stay”] An order directing a stay of execution.

CESSET PROCESSUS

cesset processus (ses-<<schwa>>t proh-ses-<<schwa>>s). [Latin “let process stay”] An order entered on the record directing a stay of a legal proceeding.

CESSIO

cessio (sesh-ee-oh). [Latin “cession”] A relinquishment or assignment; CESSION.

CESSIO ACTIONUM

cessio actionum (sesh-ee-oh ak-shee-oh-n*<<schwa>>m*). [Latin] Roman law. The assignment of an obligation by allowing a third party to (1) sue on the obligation in the name of the party entitled to it, and (2) retain the proceeds.

CESSIO BONORUM

cessio bonorum (sesh-ee-oh b*<<schwa>>-nor-<<schwa>>m*). [Latin “cession of goods”] Roman law. An assignment of a debtor's property to creditors. [Cases: Debtor and Creditor 1, 12. C.J.S. Assignments for Benefit of Creditors §§ 2, 4, 27; Creditor and Debtor §§ 2–3, 106–109.]

“It was the Roman equivalent of modern bankruptcy.... [O]ne who thus made cessio bonorum would not become infamis, was never liable in future beyond his means, for the old debts, and was not liable to personal seizure thereafter in respect of them.” W.W. Buckland, A Manual of Roman Private Law 388 (2d ed. 1939).

CESSIO FORI

cessio fori (sesh-ee-oh for-I). [Latin] Hist. The giving up of business; the act of becoming bankrupt.

CESSIO IN JURE

cessio in jure (sesh-ee-oh in joor-ee). [Latin “transfer in law”] Roman law. A fictitious action brought to convey property, whereby the claimant demanded certain property, the owner did not contest the claim, and a magistrate awarded the property to the claimant.

CESSION

cession (sesh-<<schwa>>n). 1. The act of relinquishing property rights. 2. Int'l law. The relinquishment or transfer of land from one nation to another, esp. after a war, as part of the price of peace. [Cases: Indians 11.C.J.S. Indians § 71.] 3. The land so relinquished or transferred.

CESSIONARY BANKRUPT

cessionary bankrupt. See BANKRUPT.

CESSMENT

cessment (ses-m<<schwa>>nt). Hist. An assessment or tax.

CESSOR

cessor. See CESSER.

CESSURE

cessure. See CESSER.

CESTUI

cestui (set-ee orses-twee). [French “he who”] A beneficiary. — Also spelled cestuy.

CESTUI QUE TRUST

cestui que trust (set-ee [orses-twee] kee [or k<<schwa>>] tr<<schwa>>st). [Law French] Archaic. One who possesses equitable rights in property, usu. receiving the rents, issues, and profits from it; BENEFICIARY. — Also termed fide-commissary; fidei-commissarius. Pl. cestuis que trust or (erroneously) cestuis que trustent. [Cases: Trusts 139. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion § 251.]

“[A]n alternative name for the beneficiary is ‘cestui que trust,’ an elliptical phrase meaning ‘he [for]= whose [benefit the] trust [was created].’ In this phrase cestui is pronounced ‘settee’ (with the accent on the first syllable), que is pronounced ‘kee,’ and trust as in English. Grammatically the plural should be cestuis que trust (pronounced like the singular); but by an understandable mistake it is sometimes written cestuis que trustent, as if trust were a verb.” Glanville Williams, Learning the Law 10 (11th ed. 1982).

CESTUI QUE USE

cestui que use (set-ee [orses-twee] kee [or k<<schwa>>] yoos). Archaic. The person for whose use and benefit property is being held by another, who holds the legal title to the property. Pl. cestuis que use or (erroneously) cestuis que usent. [Cases: Trusts 131. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion § 241.]

“The basis of this institution was the transfer of property to a trusted friend, who was to hold it not for personal benefit but for the purpose of carrying out the transferor's instructions. The person to whom the land was conveyed for this purpose was the ‘feoffee to uses’; the person for whose benefit the land was conveyed — the beneficiary — was the ‘cestui que use’ ... , from the law French ‘cestui a que use le feoffment fuit fait.’ ” Peter Butt, Land Law § 702, at 97 (3d ed. 1996).

CESTUI QUE VIE

cestui que vie (set-ee [orses-twee] kee [or k<<schwa>>] vee). The person whose life measures the duration of a trust, gift, estate, or insurance contract. Cf. MEASURING LIFE. [Cases: Life Estates 1. C.J.S. Estates §§ 28–29, 31, 34.]

“[L]et us assume that A instead transfers ‘to E for the life of A.’ Since A has used his own life as the measuring life of E's estate, A has given away all that he had. Because E's estate is measured by the life of someone other than himself, his estate is called an estate pur autre vie. A, whose life is the measuring life, is called the cestui que vie.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 36 (2d ed. 1984).

CETERIS PARIBUS

ceteris paribus (set-<<schwa>>-ris par-<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Other things being equal. — Also spelled caeteris paribus.

CETERIS TACENTIBUS

ceteris tacentibus (set-<<schwa>>-ris ta-sen-t<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Hist. The others being silent. • This phrase appeared in serially printed law reports after an opinion by one judge. It referred to the judges who did not vote or express an opinion. — Also spelled caeteris tacentibus. See SERIATIM.

CF.

cf.abbr.[Latin confer] Compare. • As a citation signal, cf. directs the reader's attention to another authority or section of the work in which contrasting, analogous, or explanatory statements may be found.

CHACE ACT

Chace Act.Hist. Copyright. An 1891 statute giving U.S. copyright protection to the citizens of other nations that in turn gave a similar degree of reciprocal protection to U.S. citizens. • The Act was invoked by presidential order or by treaty, primarily with European countries. Under the Act's manufacturing clause, English-language books and other printed matter had to be produced in the U.S. or Canada in order to qualify for domestic protection. — Also termed 1891 Copyright Amendment Act.

chad. The small bit of precut paper that is attached to a punch-card ballot by several points and punched out by a voter to cast a vote. • Because most punch-card ballots are machine-read, the chad must be completely separated from the ballot for the vote to be counted. The results of the closely contested 2000 presidential election were delayed for several weeks because more than 40,000 ballots with partially attached chads had to be hand-counted.

dimpled chad.A chad that is bulging but not pierced, with all its points attached to the ballot. — Sometimes termed pregnant chad.

hanging chad.A chad that is attached to the ballot by a single point.

pregnant chad.See dimpled chad.

swinging-door chad. A chad that is attached to the ballot by two points.

tri-chad. A chad that is attached to the ballot by three points.

CHAFEWAX

chafewax (chayf-waks). Hist. A chancery officer who heated (or chafed) wax to seal writs, commissions, and other instruments. • The office was abolished in 1852. — Also spelled chaffwax.

CHAFFER

chaffer (chaf-⟨schwa⟩r), vb. To bargain; negotiate; haggle; dicker. For offer to chaffer, see INVITATION TO NEGOTIATE.

CHAIN-CERTIFICATE METHOD

chain-certificate method. The procedure for authenticating a foreign official record by the party seeking to admit the record as evidence at trial. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 44. [Cases: Evidence 341. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 879–880, 893, 895; Patents § 179.]

CHAIN CONSPIRACY

chain conspiracy. See CONSPIRACY.

CHAIN GANG

chain gang. A group of prisoners chained together to prevent their escape while working outside a prison.

CHAIN OF CAUSATION

chain of causation. 1. A series of events each caused by the previous one. 2. The causal connection between a cause and its effects. Cf. CAUSATION. [Cases: Negligence 432. C.J.S. Negligence §§ 203–208.]

CHAIN-OF-CAUSATION RULE

chain-of-causation rule. Workers' compensation. The principle that an employee's suicide is compensable under workers'-compensation statutes if the employee suffered an earlier work-related injury that led to a mental disorder resulting in the suicide. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 546, 603, 799. C.J.S. Workmen's Compensation §§ 313, 361, 482–483.]

CHAIN OF CUSTODY

chain of custody. 1. The movement and location of real evidence, and the history of those persons who had it in their custody, from the time it is obtained to the time it is presented in court. [Cases: Criminal Law 404.30; Evidence 188. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 846; Evidence §§ 789–791, 794, 796.]

“Chain of custody requires testimony of continuous possession by each individual having possession, together with testimony by each that the object remained in substantially the same condition during its presence in his possession. All possibility of alteration, substitution or change of condition need not be eliminated. For example, normally an object may be placed in a safe to which more than one person had access without each such person being produced. However the more authentication is genuinely in issue, the greater the need to negate the possibility of alteration or substitution.” Michael H. Graham, Federal Rules of Evidence in a Nutshell 402 (3d ed. 1992).

2. The history of a chattel's possession. — Also termed chain of possession.

CHAIN OF TITLE

chain of title. 1. The ownership history of a piece of land, from its first owner to the present one. — Also termed line of title; string of title. 2. The ownership history of commercial paper, traceable through the indorsements. • For the holder to have good title, every prior negotiation must have been proper. If a necessary indorsement is missing or forged, the chain of title is broken and no later transferee can become a holder.

CHAIN-REFERRAL SCHEME

chain-referral scheme. See PYRAMID SCHEME.

CHAIR

chair. Parliamentary law. 1. A deliberative assembly's presiding officer <the chair calls for order>. See PRESIDE. 2. The presiding officer's seat <take the chair>. 3. The officer who heads an organization <the treasurer reports directly to the chair>. — Also termed chairman (of a male chair, in senses 1 & 3); chairwoman (of a female chair, in senses 1 & 3); chairperson (in senses 1 & 3); moderator (in sense 1); president (in senses 1 & 3); presiding officer (in sense 1); speaker (in sense 1). — chair, vb.

“The term the chair refers to the person in a meeting who is actually presiding at the time, whether that person is the regular presiding officer or not. The same term also applies to the presiding officer's station in the hall from which he or she presides, which should not be permitted to be used by other members as a place from which to make reports or speak in debate during a meeting...” Henry M. Robert, Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised § 47, at 433 (10th ed. 2000).

chair by decree. A chair appointed by an outside authority rather than elected by the deliberative assembly being presided over.

chair pro tempore. A chair elected or appointed during or in anticipation of the regular presiding officer's (or officers') absence from the chair, and whose service ends when a regular presiding officer resumes the chair. — Often shortened to chair pro tem. See PRO TEMPORE.

CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEES OF THE WHOLE HOUSE

Chairman of Committees of the Whole House. The member of Parliament who presides over the House of Commons when it is sitting in committee.

CHAIRPERSON

chairperson. See CHAIR.

CHAIRWOMAN

chairwoman. See CHAIR.

CHALLENGE

challenge, n.1. An act or instance of formally questioning the legality or legal qualifications of a person, action, or thing .

as-applied challenge. A claim that a law or governmental policy, though constitutional on its face, is unconstitutional as applied, usu. because of a discriminatory effect; a claim that a statute is unconstitutional on the facts of a particular case or in its application to a particular party.

Batson challenge. Procedure. An objection that an opposing party has used a peremptory challenge to exclude a potential juror on the basis of race, ethnicity, or sex. • It is named for Batson v. Kentucky, 476 U.S. 79, 106 S.Ct. 1712 (1986), a criminal case in which the prosecution struck potential jurors on the basis of race. The principle of Batson was extended in later Supreme Court cases to civil litigants (Edmonson v. Leesville Concrete Co., 500 U.S. 614, 111 S.Ct. 2077 (1991)) and to criminal defense attorneys (Georgia v. McCollum, 505 U.S. 42, 112 S.Ct. 2348 (1992)). The Court also applied it to peremptory challenges based on a juror's sex (J.E.B. v. Alabama, 511 U.S. 127, 114 S.Ct. 1419 (1994)). See Fed. R. Civ. P. 47(b). [Cases: Constitutional Law 221(4); Jury 33(5.15). C.J.S. Juries §§ 443, 445–446, 450–456, 460.]

constitutional challenge. A claim that a law or governmental action is unconstitutional.

facial challenge. A claim that a statute is unconstitutional on its face — that is, that it always operates unconstitutionally.

2. A party's request that a judge disqualify a potential juror or an entire jury panel <the personal-injury plaintiff used his last challenge to disqualify a neurosurgeon>. — Also termed jury challenge.

causal challenge. See challenge for cause.

challenge for cause. A party's challenge supported by a specified reason, such as bias or prejudice, that would disqualify that potential juror. — Also termed for-cause; causal challenge; general challenge; challenge to the poll. [Cases: Jury 83–108, 124. C.J.S. Juries §§ 225, 248, 367, 369–409, 415, 417–418, 420, 446.]

challenge propter affectum (prop-t<<schwa>>r <<schwa>>-fek-t<<schwa>>m). A challenge because some circumstance, such as kinship with a party, renders the potential juror incompetent to serve in the particular case.

challenge propter defectum (prop-t<<schwa>>r d<<schwa>>-fek-t<<schwa>>m). A challenge based on a claim that the juror is incompetent to serve on any jury for a reason such as alienage, infancy, or nonresidency.

challenge propter delictum (prop-t<<schwa>>r d<<schwa>>-lik-t<<schwa>>m). A challenge based on a claim that the potential juror has lost citizenship rights, as by being convicted of an infamous crime. See civil death (1) under DEATH.

challenge to the array.A legal challenge to the manner in which the entire jury panel was selected, usu. for a failure to follow prescribed procedures designed to produce impartial juries drawn from a fair cross-section of the community. • Such a challenge is either a principal challenge (if some defect renders the jury prima facie in-competent, as where the officer selecting veniremembers is related to the prosecutor or defendant) or a challenge for favor (as where the defect does not amount to grounds for a principal challenge, but there is a probability of partiality). — Also termed challenge to the jury array. [Cases: Jury 114. C.J.S. Juries §§ 355, 359, 443–444.]

challenge to the favor.A challenge for cause that arises when facts and circumstances tend to show that a juror is biased but do not warrant the juror's automatic disqualification. See challenge for cause.

challenge to the poll.See challenge for cause.

general challenge.See challenge for cause.

peremptory challenge.One of a party's limited number of challenges that do not need to be supported by a reason unless the opposing party makes a prima facie showing that the challenge was used to discriminate on the basis of race, ethnicity, or sex. • At one time, a peremptory challenge could not be attacked and did not have to be explained. But today if discrimination is charged, the party making the peremptory challenge must give a nondiscriminatory reason for striking the juror. The court must consider several factors in deciding whether the proffered reason is merely a screen for illegal discrimination. Batson v. Kentucky, 476 U.S. 79, 106 S.Ct. 1712 (1986). — Often shortened to peremptory. — Also termed peremptory strike. See STRIKE(2); Batson challenge under CHALLENGE(1). [Cases: Jury 33(5.15), 134. C.J.S. Juries §§ 344, 421, 423–424, 439, 442–443, 445–446, 450–456, 460.]

principal challenge.A for-cause challenge that arises when facts and circumstances support a conclusive pre-sumption of a juror's bias, resulting in automatic disqualification. See challenge for cause.

3.Military law. An objection to a member of the court serving in a court-martial case. • A military judge can be challenged only for cause. [Cases: Armed Services 47(4); Military Justice 884, 889. C.J.S. Armed Services § 178; Military Justice §§ 138–139, 151–152, 154–155, 345, 347.]

challenge,vb.1. To dispute or call into question <the columnist challenged the wisdom of the court's ruling>.

challenge the vote.See DIVIDE THE ASSEMBLY.

2. To formally object to the legality or legal qualifications of <the defendant challenged the person's eligibility for jury service>.

CHAMBER

chamber, n. 1. A room or compartment <gas chamber>. 2. A legislative or judicial body or other deliberative assembly <chamber of commerce>. 3. The hall or room where such a body conducts business <the senate chamber>. — chamber, adj.

judge's chamber. (usu. pl.) 1. The private room or office of a judge. 2. Any place where a judge transacts official business when not holding a session of the court. See IN CAMERA. [Cases: Judges 27. C.J.S. Judges § 58.]

lower chamber. In a bicameral legislature, the larger of the two legislative bodies, such as the House of Representatives or the House of Commons. [Cases: States 26. C.J.S. States § 40.]

upper chamber. In a bicameral legislature, the smaller of the two legislative bodies, such as the Senate or the House of Lords.

chamber, vb. Slang. (Of a judge) to sit in one's chambers at a given location < Chief Judge Kaye chambers sometimes in New York City and sometimes in Albany>.

CHAMBER BUSINESS

chamber business. Official judicial business conducted outside the courtroom. [Cases: Judges 27. C.J.S. Judges § 58.]

CHAMBERLAIN

chamberlain (chaym-b<<schwa>>r-lin). A treasurer; originally, the keeper of the royal treasure chamber. • The term has been used for several high offices in England, such as the Lord Great Chamberlain, Lord Chamberlain of the Household, and Chamberlain of the Exchequer.

CHAMBERLARIA

chamberlaria (chaym-b<<schwa>>r-lair-ee-<<schwa>>). [Law Latin] Chamberlainship; the office of chamberlain.

CHAMBER OF ACCOUNTS

chamber of accounts. French law. A court responsible for adjudicating disputes concerning public-revenue collection. Cf. COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

chamber of commerce. An association of merchants and other business leaders who organize to promote the commercial interests in a given area and whose group is generally affiliated with the national organization of the same name.

CHAMPERTOR

champertor (cham-p<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>r), n. A person who engages in champerty; one who supports and promotes another person's lawsuit for pecuniary gain. — Also termed (archaically) campiparticeps.

CHAMPERTOUS

champertous (cham-p<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>s), adj. Of, relating to, or characterized by champerty; consti-tuting champerty .

“In England and many other countries, the contingent fee is prohibited as a form of champerty because it permits a client to carry on litigation in exchange for a promise to the lawyer of a share in the recovery. Although most states in the United States prohibit a lawyer from accepting an assignment of a percentage of the client's cause of action as a legal fee, they do not similarly condemn, as champertous, contingent fees whereby the lawyer receives a percentage of the recovery as a fee and no fee at all if there is no recovery.” Robert H. Aronson & Donald T. Weckstein, Professional Responsibility in a Nutshell 271–72 (2d ed. 1991).

CHAMPERTY

champerty (cham-p<<schwa>>r-tee), n.[fr. French champs parti “split field”] 1. An agreement between an officious intermeddler in a lawsuit and a litigant by which the intermeddler helps pursue the litigant's claim as consideration for receiving part of any judgment proceeds; specif., an agreement to divide litigation proceeds between the owner of the litigated claim and a party unrelated to the lawsuit who supports or helps enforce the claim. — Also termed (archaically) campipartia. Cf. BARRATRY; MAINTENANCE(6). [Cases: Champerty and Maintenance 14. C.J.S. Champerty and Maintenance, Barratry and Related Matters §§ 2, 5.]

“The rule as to champerty has been generally relaxed under modern decisions and a majority of courts now recognize that an agreement by which the attorney is to receive a contingent fee, i.e., a certain part of the avails of a suit or an amount fixed with reference to the amount recovered, is valid as long as the attorney does not agree to pay the expenses and costs of the action.” Walter Wheeler Cook, “Quasi-Contracts,” in 1 American Law and Procedure 129 (1952).

2.Hist. A writ available to the party who is the target of a champertous action. “Champerty is a writ that lies where two men are impleading, and one gives the half or part of a thing in plea to a stranger, to maintain him against the other; then the party grieved shall have this writ against the stranger.” William Rastell, Termes de la Ley 76 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

champion.Hist. A person chosen to represent a defendant in trial by combat. • If the champion lost, the defendant was adjudged guilty. A champion who survived was fined for intentionally or ignorantly defending an unjust cause; one who died was buried in unhallowed ground. See TRIAL BY COMBAT.

CHANCE

chance,n.1. A hazard or risk. 2. The unforeseen, uncontrollable, or unintended consequences of an act. 3. An accident. 4. Opportunity; hope.

CHANCE BARGAIN

chance bargain.Contracts. A transaction in which the parties mutually agree to accept the risk that facts and circumstances assumed by the parties at the time of contracting may not actually be what the parties believe they are. • If no fraud or misrepresentation is involved, a court will uphold a chance bargain. For instance, in a chance bargain involving a land swap, each deed may describe a tract as containing a number of acres "more or less." If the tract is actually larger than described, the seller can't demand more money for the excess. And if the tract is actually smaller, the disappointed buyer cannot ask for a reduced price to make up for the deficiency.

CHANCELLOR

chancellor,n.1. A judge serving on a court of chancery. 2. A university president or CEO of an institution of higher education. 3. In the U.S., a judge in some courts of chancery or equity. 4.Scots law. The presiding juror. 5.Eccles. law. A law officer who presides over the bishop's court. • The chancellor advises and assists the bishop in all matters of canon law, both juridical and administrative. — chancellorship,n.

CHANCELLOR, LORD

Chancellor, Lord.See LORD CHANCELLOR.

CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER

Chancellor of the Exchequer.In England, a government minister who controls revenue and expenditures. • Formerly, the Chancellor sat in the Court of Exchequer.

CHANCELLOR'S FOOT

chancellor's foot.A symbol of the variability of equitable justice. • John Selden, the 17th-century jurist, is thought to have coined the phrase in this passage, from his best-known book: "Equity is a roguish thing. For law we have a measure, know what to trust to: equity is according to the conscience of him that is Chancellor, and as that is larger or narrower, so is equity. 'Tis all one as if they should make the standard for the measure the Chancellor's foot. What an uncertain measure would this be! One Chancellor has a long foot, another a short foot, a third an indifferent foot; 'tis the same thing in the Chancellor's conscience." Table Talk (1689).

CHANCE-MEDLEY

chance-medley. [fr. Anglo-Norman chance medlee “chance scuffle”] A spontaneous fight during which one participant kills another in self-defense. — Also termed chaud-medley; casual affray. Cf. MEDLEY.

“But the self-defence, which we are now speaking of, is that whereby a man may protect himself from an assault, or the like, in the course of a sudden brawl or quarrel, by killing him who assaults him. And this is what the law expresses by the word chance-medley, or (as some rather choose to write it) chaud-medley; the former of which in its etymology signifies a casual affray, the latter an affray in the heat of blood or passion: both of them of pretty much the same import; but the former is in common speech too often erroneously applied to any manner of homicide by misadventure; whereas it appears ... that it is properly applied to such killing, as happens in self-defence upon a sudden rencounter.” 4 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 184 (1769).

CHANCE-OF-SURVIVAL DOCTRINE

chance-of-survival doctrine. The principle that a wrongful-death plaintiff need only prove that the defendant's conduct was a substantial factor in causing the death — that is, that the victim might have survived but for the defendant's conduct. [Cases: Death 17. C.J.S. Death §§ 41–42.]

CHANCER

chancer (chan-s<<schwa>>r), vb. To adjust according to equitable principles, as a court of chancery would. • The practice arose in parts of New England when the courts had no equity jurisdiction, and were compelled to act on equitable principles.

“The practice of ‘chancering’ is a very old one. A forfeiture could be ‘chancered’ under a law of 1699.... Adjudged cases in 1630–1692 may be found in the Records of the Court of Assistants of Massachusetts Bay Colony. The early laws of Massachusetts provided for ‘chancering’ the forfeiture of any penal bond.... In Rhode Island an act of 1746 provided for ‘chancering’ the forfeiture ‘where any penalty is forfeited, or conditional estate recovered, or equity of redemption sued for, whether judgment is confessed or otherwise obtained.’ ” 1 John Bouvier, Bouvier's Law Dictionary 456–57 (8th ed. 1914).

CHANCERY

chancery (chan-s<<schwa>>r-ee). 1. A court of equity; collectively, the courts of equity. • The term is derived from the court of the Lord Chancellor, the original English court of equity. — Also termed court of chancery; chancery court.

A chapel or part of a church so endowed. — Also spelled chauntry.

CHAPTER

chapter (chap-⟨schwa⟩-t⟨schwa⟩r). [Law French] Hist. A list of matters drawn up by the king to be pre-sented before the justices in eyre, justices of assise, or justices of the peace. — Also spelled chapitre. Cf. AR-TICLES OF THE EYRE .

CHAPTER 7

Chapter 7. 1. The chapter of the United States Bankruptcy Code allowing a trustee to collect and liquidate a debtor's nonexempt property, either voluntarily or by court order, to satisfy creditors. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2251. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 50.] 2. A bankruptcy case filed under this chapter. • An individual debtor who undergoes this type of liquidation (the most common type of bankruptcy) usu. gets a fresh financial start by receiving a discharge of all debts. — Also termed (in sense 2) straight bankruptcy; liquidation bankruptcy.

“A Chapter 7 case has five stages: (1) getting the debtor into bankruptcy court; (2) collecting the debtor's property; (3) selling this property; (4) distributing the proceeds of the sale to creditors; and (5) determining whether the debtor is discharged from further liability to these creditors.” David G. Epstein et al., Bankruptcy § 1–7, at 9 (1993).

CHAPTER 9

Chapter 9. 1. The chapter of the United States Bankruptcy Code governing the adjustment of a municipality's debts. [Cases: Bankruptcy 3481.C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 361–367.] 2. A bankruptcy case filed under this chapter.

CHAPTER 11

Chapter 11. 1. The chapter of the United States Bankruptcy Code allowing an insolvent business, or one that is threatened with insolvency, to reorganize its capital structure under court supervision (and subject to creditor approval) while continuing its normal operations. • Although the Code permits individual nonbusiness debtors to use Chapter 11, the vast majority of Chapter 11 cases involve business debtors. [Cases: Bankruptcy 3501.C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 368.] 2. A business reorganization conducted under this chapter; REORGANIZATION(1).

CHAPTER 12

Chapter 12. 1. The chapter of the United States Bankruptcy Code providing for a court-approved debt-payment relief plan for family farmers with a regular income, allowing a farmer's net income to be collected by a trustee and paid to creditors. [Cases: Bankruptcy 3671. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 416.] 2. A bankruptcy case filed under this chapter. — Also termed (in sense 2) family-farmer bankruptcy; farmer bankruptcy.

CHAPTER 13

Chapter 13. 1. The chapter of the United States Bankruptcy Code allowing a person's earnings to be collected by a trustee and paid to creditors by means of a court-approved debt-repayment plan if the person has a regular income. • A plan filed under Chapter 13 is sometimes called a wage-earner's plan, a wage-earner plan, or an income-based plan. Chapter 13 allows the debtor to propose a plan of rehabilitation to extend or reduce the balance of any obligations and to receive a discharge from unsecured debts upon completion of the payments under the plan. A plan made in good faith will be confirmed if the creditors receive what they would have received under Chapter 7, and if the plan pledges all of the debtor's disposable income for three years. [Cases: Bankruptcy 3701. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 433.] 2. A bankruptcy case filed under this chapter.

characterization. 1.Conflict of laws. The classification, qualification, and interpretation of laws that apply to the case. — Also termed qualification; classification; interpretation. [Cases: Action 17. C.J.S. Actions §§ 18–20; Conflict of Laws §§ 2–3, 12, 15, 20, 23, 27–32, 34–40, 42–48, 50–65, 96–97, 100, 102, 105–107.]

“In a conflict-of-laws situation, a court must determine at the outset whether the problem presented to it for solution relates to torts, contracts, property, or some other field, or to a matter of substance or procedure, in order to refer to the appropriate law. In other words, the court must initially, whether consciously or not, go through the process of determining the nature of the problem; otherwise, the court will not know which choice-of-law rule to apply to the case. This process is generally called ‘characterization,’ and sometimes ‘classification,’ ‘qualification,’ or ‘interpretation.’ ” 16 Am. Jur. 2d Conflict of Laws § 3, at 12 (1998).

2.Family law. The process of classifying property accumulated by spouses as either separate or marital property (or community property).

CHARLATAN

charlatan (shahr-l<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>n), n. A person who pretends to have more knowledge or skill than he or she actually has; a quack or faker. — charlatanism, charlatanry, n.

CHARTA

charta (kahr-t<<schwa>>). [Law Latin] Hist. 1. A charter or deed. 2. A token by which an estate is held. 3. A royal grant of privileges or liberties.

CHARTA DE FORESTA

Charta de Foresta. Hist. A charter that defined the extent of the Crown's rights and privileges in the royal forests, granted the common people some rights to use the forests, and reduced the penalties for crimes such as poaching. • The charter was first promulgated in 1217 and revised in 1225. — Also termed Carta de Foresta; Carta Forestae.

CHARTAE LIBERTATUM

chartae libertatum (kahr-tee lib-<<schwa>>r-tay-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Charters of liberties. • This term refers to the two great sources of English liberties: Magna Carta and the Charta de Foresta.

CHARTEL

chartel. See CARTEL.

CHARTER

charter, n. 1. An instrument that establishes a body politic or other organization, or that grants rights, liberties, or powers to its citizens or members <Charter of the United Nations>. 2. An instrument by which a municipality is incorporated, specifying its organizational structure and its highest laws; specif., a written document making the persons residing within a fixed boundary, along with their successors, a corporation and body politic for and within that boundary, and prescribing the powers, privileges, and duties of the corporation. • A city charter trumps all conflicting ordinances. — Also termed municipal charter. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 8. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 14, 17–18.]

“Municipal Charters. — The charter issued to a municipality is in the nature of a constitution to it, being superior to all ordinances enacted by that municipality, though inferior in rank to all State laws of every kind.” Frank Hall Childs, Where and How to Find the Law 8 (1922).

home-rule charter. A local government's organizational plan or framework, analogous to a constitution, drawn by the municipality itself and adopted by popular vote of the citizenry. See

HOME RULE. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 65. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 122, 140–141, 143.]

3. A governmental act that creates a business or defines a corporate franchise; also, the document evidencing this act.

bank charter. A document issued by a governmental authority permitting a bank to conduct business. [Cases: Banks and Banking 5–6. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 8, 15–18.]

corporate charter. 1. CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION(1). 2. A document that one files with the secretary of state upon incorporating a business. • The corporate charter is often the articles of incorporation. [Cases: Corporations 18. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 26, 33–35, 41, 559.]

special charter. Hist. A legislative act creating a private corporation as opposed to a public, charitable, or educational corporation. • Special charters were common until the 19th century, when legislatures enacted general incorporation laws that allowed private corporations to be formed without legislative action.

4. The organic law of an organization; loosely, the highest law of any entity. Cf. ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION. 5. A governing document granting authority or recognition from a parent organization to a subordinate or constituent organization, such as a local affiliate or chapter, organized under the first organization's authority; or the instrument granting such authority or recognition. See governing document under DOCUMENT(1). 6. Hist. The writing that accompanies a livery of seisin. • Rather than being an operative element of transfer, the writing was merely evidence of it. 7. The leasing or hiring of an airplane, ship, or other vessel. [Cases: Shipping 34–58. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 74–146, 148, 379.] 8. CHARTER PARTY.

bareboat charter. A charter under which the shipowner surrenders possession and control of the vessel to the charterer, who then succeeds to many of the shipowner's rights and obligations. • The charterer, who provides the personnel, insurance, and other materials necessary to operate the vessel, is known either as a demise charterer or as an owner pro hac vice. — Also termed demise charter. [Cases: Shipping 41. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 92–101.]

demise charter. See bareboat charter.

gross charter. A charter under which the shipowner provides all personnel and pays all expenses.

slot charter. A charter for one or more slots on a container vessel. • Each slot accommodates a 20-foot container. A slot charter is a form of vessel-sharing agreement. Cf. space charter.

“Slot charters (and vessel-sharing agreements) have become increasingly popular in the container trades, as they enable two or more carriers to combine their capacities and offer more frequent service on their routes. If three carriers all serve the New York to Rotterdam route, for example, and each devotes one vessel to the route every three weeks, they can implicitly (with slot charters) join forces and each offer weekly service.” David W. Robertson, Steven F. Friedell & Michael F. Sturley, Admiralty and Maritime Law in the United States 377 (2001).

space charter.A charter for a part of a vessel's capacity, such as a specified hold or deck or a specified part of the vessel's carrying capacity. • A space charter is a form of vessel-sharing agreement. Cf. slot charter.

time charter.A charter for a specified period, rather than for a specific task or voyage; a charter under which the shipowner continues to manage and control the vessel, but the charterer designates the ports of call and the cargo carried. • Each party bears the expenses related to its functions and for any damage it causes. Cf. voyage charter. [Cases: Shipping 40. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 92–101.]

voyage charter.A charter under which the shipowner provides a ship and crew, and places them at the disposal of the charterer for the carriage of cargo to a designated port. • The voyage charterer may lease the entire vessel for a voyage or series of voyages — or may (by “space charter”) lease only part of the vessel. Cf. time charter. [Cases: Shipping 41. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 92–101.]

“The fundamental difference between voyage and time charters is how the freight or ‘charter hire’ is calculated. A voyage charter party specifies the amount due for carrying a specified cargo on a specific voyage (or series of voyages), regardless of how long a particular voyage takes. A time charter party specifies the amount due for each day that the vessel is ‘on hire,’ regardless of how many voyages are completed.” David W. Robertson, Steven F. Friedell & Michael F. Sturley, Admiralty and Maritime Law in the United States 377 (2001).

CHARTERPARTY

charterparty. A contract by which a ship, or a principal part of it, is leased by the owner, esp. to a merchant for the conveyance of goods on a predetermined voyage to one or more places or for a specified period of time; a special contract between the shipowner and charterer, esp. for the carriage of goods at sea. — Often shortened to charter. — Also written charter-party; charter party. — Also termed charter agreement. [Cases: Shipping 37. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 76–77.]

“Charter partie (charta partita) is nothing but that which we call a paire of indentures, containing the covenants and agreements made between merchants, or sea faring men touching their marine affaires.” John Cowell, The Interpreter (1607).

“The instrument by which a vessel is leased is a charter party. The term is derived from charta partita, i.e., a deed of writing divided; in earlier times the charta partita, like the indenture agreement, was prepared in two parts, the ship owner retaining one part and the charterer the other... While a charter party need not be in writing, most charters today are detailed written documents drawn to accommodate the particular needs of shipper and carrier in a certain type of trade or commerce.” Frank L. Maraist, Admiralty in a Nutshell 44–45 (3d ed. 1996).

CHARTIS REDDENDIS

chartis reddendis (kahr-tis ri-den-dis). [Latin “for returning charters”] Hist. A writ seeking the return of a charter of feoffment from a person who has been entrusted with the charter but who has refused to deliver it as instructed. See FEOFFMENT.

common chase. A chase in which everyone is entitled to hunt.

CHATTEL

chattel (chat-<<schwa>>l). (usu. pl.) Movable or transferable property; personal property; esp., a physical object capable of manual delivery and not the subject matter of real property.

“That Money is not to be accounted Goods or Chattels, because it is not of it self valuable .... Chattels are either personal or real. Personal, may be so called in two respects: One, because they belong immediately to the person of a Man, as a Bow, Horse, etc. The other, for that being any way injuriously withheld from us, we have no means to recover them, but Personal Actions. Chattels real, are such as either appertain not immediately to the person, but to some other thing, by way of dependency, as a Box with Charters of Land, Apples upon a Tree, or a Tree it self growing on the Ground.... [O]r else such as are issuing out of some immoveable thing to a person, as a Lease or Rent for the term of years.” Thomas Blount, Nomo-Lexicon: A Law-Dictionary (1670).

chattel personal. A tangible good or an intangible right (such as a patent). — Also termed personal chattel. [Cases: Property 4. C.J.S. Property §§ 14–21, 23.]

chattel real. A real-property interest that is less than a freehold or fee, such as a leasehold estate. • The most important chattel real is an estate for years in land, which is considered a chattel because it lacks the indefiniteness of time essential to real property. — Also termed real chattel. [Cases: Property 4. C.J.S. Property §§ 14–21, 23.]

chattel vegetable. A movable article of a vegetable origin, such as timber, undergrowth, corn, or fruit.

local chattel. Personal property that is affixed to land; FIXTURE.

personal chattel. See chattel personal.

real chattel. See chattel real.

CHATTEL PAPER

chattel paper. A writing that shows both a monetary obligation and a security interest in or a lease of specific goods. UCC § 9-102(a)(11). • Chattel paper is generally used in a consumer transaction when the consumer buys goods on credit. The consumer typically promises to pay for the goods by executing a promissory note, and the seller retains a security interest in the goods. See SECURITY AGREEMENT. [Cases: Secured Transactions 88, 142. C.J.S. Secured Transactions §§ 59, 90.]

“ ‘Chattel paper’ means a record or records that evidence both a monetary obligation and a security interest in or a lease of specific goods or of specific goods and software used in the goods.

The term does not include a charter or other contract involving the use or hire of a vessel. If a transaction is evidenced both by a security agreement or lease and by an instrument or series of instruments, the group of records taken together constitutes chattel paper.” UCC § 9-102(a)(8).

electronic chattel paper.Chattel paper evidenced by a record or records consisting of information stored in an electronic medium and retrievable in perceivable form. UCC § 9-102(a)(31).

tangible chattel paper.Chattel paper evidenced by a record or records consisting of information that is inscribed on a tangible medium. UCC § 9-102(a)(78).

CHECK

check,n. A draft signed by the maker or drawer, drawn on a bank, payable on demand, and unlimited in nego-tiability. • Under UCC § 3-104(f), an instrument may be a check even though it is described on its face by another term, such as “money order.” — Also spelled cheque. See DRAFT. [Cases: Banks and Banking 137; Bills and Notes 15, 149. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 328, 330; Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 6, 9, 18, 133.]

bad check.A check that is not honored because the account either contains insufficient funds or does not exist. — Also termed hot check; worthless check; rubber check; bounced check; cold check; bogus check; false check; dry check.

blank check.A check signed by the drawer but left blank as to the payee or the amount, or both.

bogus check.See bad check.

bounced check.See bad check.

canceled check.A check bearing a notation that it has been paid by the bank on which it was drawn. • A canceled check is often used as evidence of payment. — Also spelled cancelled check.

cashier's check.A check drawn by a bank on itself, payable to another person, and evidencing the payee's au-thorization to receive from the bank the amount of money represented by the check; a draft for which the drawer and drawee are the same bank, or different branches of the same bank. [Cases: Banks and Banking 189. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 452–458.]

certified check.A depositor's check drawn on a bank that guarantees the availability of funds for the check. • The guarantee may be by the drawee's signed agreement to pay the draft or by a notation on the check that it is certified. [Cases: Banks and Banking 145. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 364–368.]

crossed check.A check that has lines drawn across its face and writing that specifies the bank to which the check must be presented for payment. • The same effect is achieved by stamping the bank's name on the check. The negotiability of the check at that bank is unaffected, but no other bank can honor it. Cf. open check.

depository-transfer check.An unsigned, nonnegotiable check that is used by a bank to transfer funds from its branch to the collection bank.

dry check.See bad check.

e-check. A paper check that is supplied by a consumer to a payee (usu. a merchant) who uses the check to make an electronic funds transfer. • The payee electronically scans the check's magnetic-ink character-recognition coding to obtain the bank-routing, account, and serial numbers, then enters the amount of the check. This is usu., but not always, done at a point-of-sale terminal.

Cf. e-money under MONEY.

false check.See bad check.

hot check.See bad check.

memorandum check.A check that a borrower gives to a lender for the amount of a short-term loan, with the understanding that it is not to be presented for payment but will be redeemed by the borrower when the loan falls due.

open check.A check that may be cashed by any bank. Cf. crossed check.

personal check.A check drawn on a person's own account.

postdated check.A check that bears a date after the date of its issue and is payable on or after the stated date.

raised check.A check whose face amount has been increased, usu. without the knowledge of the issuer — an act that under the UCC is considered an alteration. UCC § 3-407. See RAISING AN INSTRUMENT.

registered check.A check purchased at a bank and drawn on bank funds that have been set aside to pay that check.

rubber check.See bad check.

stale check.A check that has been outstanding for an unreasonable time — more than six months under the UCC. • Banks in jurisdictions adopting the UCC may choose not to honor such a check. UCC § 4-404. [Cases: Banks and Banking 137; Bills and Notes 404. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 328, 330; Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 208.]

teller's check.A draft drawn by a bank on another bank or payable at or through a bank. [Cases: Banks and Banking 189. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 452–458.]

traveler's check.A cashier's check that must be signed by the purchaser at the time of purchase and countersigned when cashed; an instrument that (1) is payable on demand, (2) is drawn on or payable at or through a bank, (3) is designated by the term “traveler's check” or by a substantially similar term, and (4) requires, as a condition to payment, a countersignature by a person whose specimen signature appears on the instrument. UCC § 3-104(i). • Traveler's checks, which are available in various denominations, are typically purchased from a bank or financing company. [Cases: Banks and Banking 189. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 452–458.]

check,vb.1. To control or restrain <handcuffs checked the defendant's movement>.2. To verify or audit <an accountant checked the invoices>.3. To investigate <the police checked up on the suspect>. • In this sense, check is typically used with up, on, or out. 4. To leave for safekeeping with an attendant <the diner checked her coat at the door>.

check-kiting. The illegal practice of writing a check against a bank account with insufficient funds to cover the check, in the hope that the funds from a previously deposited check will reach the account before the bank debits the amount of the outstanding check. — Also termed kiting; check-flashing. [Cases: Banks and Banking 150. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 349–352, 358.]

“Check kiting consists of drawing checks on an account in one bank and depositing them in an account in a second bank when neither account has sufficient funds to cover the amounts drawn. Just before the checks are returned for payment to the first bank, the kiter covers them by depositing checks drawn on the account in the second bank.” United States v. Stone, 954 F.2d 1187, 1188 n.1 (6th Cir. 1992).

CHECK-OFF SYSTEM

check-off system. The procedure by which an employer deducts union dues directly from the employees' wages and remits those dues to the union.

CHECKPOINT SEARCH

checkpoint search. See SEARCH.

CHECKS AND BALANCES

checks and balances. The theory of governmental power and functions whereby each branch of government has the ability to counter the actions of any other branch, so that no single branch can control the entire government. • For example, the executive branch can check the legislature by exercising its veto power, but the legislature can, by a sufficient majority, override any veto. See SEPARATION OF POWERS.

abused child.A child who has been subjected to physical or mental neglect or harm. See child abuse under ABUSE.

adopted child.A child who has become the son or daughter of a parent or parents by virtue of legal or equitable adoption; ADOPTEE. See ADOPTION.

afterborn child.A child born after execution of a will or after the time in which a class gift closes. — Also spelled after-born child. See afterborn heir under HEIR. Cf. posthumous child. [Cases: Wills 524. C.J.S. Wills §§ 980–989, 991–993, 995–1004.]

battered child.A child upon whom physical or sexual abuse has been inflicted, usu. by a relative, caregiver, or close family friend. See child abuse under ABUSE; domestic violence under VIOLENCE; BATTERED-CHILD SYNDROME.

biological child.See natural child.

child in need of supervision.A child who has committed an offense that only children can commit, such as being ungovernable and disobedient to parents, running away from home, violating a curfew, being habitually truant from school, violating age restrictions on the purchase or possession of liquor or tobacco, or the like. — Also termed person in need of supervision; minor in need of supervision. — Abbr. CHINS.

child out of wedlock.See illegitimate child.

child with disabilities.Under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, a child who needs special-education or related services because of (1) mental retardation, (2) a hearing, language, or visual impairment, (3) a serious emotional disturbance, or (4) another health impairment or specific learning disability. See INDIVIDUALS WITH DISABILITIES EDUCATION ACT.

delinquent child.A child who has committed an offense that would be a crime if committed by an adult. • A delinquent child may not be subject to the jurisdiction of the juvenile court if the child is under a statutory age. Cf. child in need of supervision. Cf. JUVENILE DELINQUENT. [Cases: Infants 153. C.J.S. Infants §§ 33–35, 41–42, 64, 67.]

dependent child.A needy child who has been deprived of parental support or care because of the parent's or other responsible person's death, absence from the home, physical or mental incapacity, or (in some cases) unemployment. • This definition was formerly found in Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), 42 USCA § 606(a). When that program was replaced with Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF), the definition was eliminated although sections of TANF refer to it (see, e.g., 42 USCA § 672(h)).

disobedient child. See incorrigible child.

foster child. A child whose care and upbringing are entrusted to an adult other than the child's natural or adoptive parents, usu. by an agency. • A foster child may receive informal, voluntary care by someone (often a grandparent, other relative, or neighbor) who enters into an agreement with the parent or who simply substitutes for the parent as necessary to ensure the child's protection. More formally, the child may be part of the federal–state foster-care program that identifies, trains, and pays caregivers who will provide family care for children who lack parents or cannot safely remain with their biological parents. — Also termed (archaically) fosterling. See foster parent under PARENT. [Cases: Infants 226. C.J.S. Adoption of Persons §§ 10–12.]

handicapped child. A child who is mentally retarded, deaf or hearing-impaired, speech-impaired, blind or visually disabled, seriously emotionally disturbed, or orthopedically impaired, or who because of specific learning disabilities requires special education.

illegitimate child. A child who was not conceived or born in lawful wedlock, nor later legitimated. • At common law, such a child was considered the child of nobody (nullius filius) and had no name except one that was gained by reputation. Being no one's child, an illegitimate child could not inherit, even from the mother, but all states now allow maternal inheritance. In cases such as Levy v. Louisiana, 391 U.S. 68, 88 S.Ct. 1509 (1968), and Glonn v. American Guar. & Liab. Ins. Co., 391 U.S. 73, 88 S.Ct. 1515 (1968), the Supreme Court held that limitations on a child's right to inherit from his or her mother were unconstitutional. As a result, states changed their laws to permit full maternal inheritance. Full paternal inheritance is permitted if the child can prove paternity in accordance with state law (the proof varies from state to state). This burden of proof, uniquely imposed on an illegitimate child, is constitutionally permissible. Lalli v. Lalli, 439 U.S. 259, 99 S.Ct. 518 (1978). — Also termed bastard; child out of wedlock; nonmarital child; (archaically) natural child. Cf. BASTARD. [Cases: Children Out-of-Wedlock 1. C.J.S. Children Out-of-Wedlock §§ 2–11.]

incorrigible child. A child who refuses to obey his or her parents or guardians. — Also termed disobedient child.

intended child. The child who is intended to result from a surrogacy contract. See surrogate parent under PARENT; surrogate mother under MOTHER; intentional parent under PARENT; legal father under FATHER; SURROGACY CONTRACT.

legitimate child. 1. At common law, a child conceived or born in lawful wedlock. 2. Modernly, a child conceived or born in lawful wedlock, or legitimated either by the parents' later marriage or by a declaration or judgment of legitimation. [Cases: Children Out-of-Wedlock 1. C.J.S. Children Out-of-Wedlock §§ 2–11.]

mantle child. Hist. A child born out of wedlock and later legitimated when the parents are married, traditionally by standing under a cloak with the parents during the marriage ceremony.

“Our law ... has no need to distinguish between various sorts of illegitimate children. A child is either a legitimate child or a bastard.... In the sharp controversy over this principle ... the champion of what we may call the high-church party alleged that old English custom was in accord with the law of the church as defined by Alexander III. Probably there was some truth in this assertion. It is not unlikely that old custom, though it would not have held that the marriage in itself had any retroactive effect, allowed the parents on the occasion of their marriage to legitimate the already existing offspring of their union. The children were placed under the cloak which was spread over their parents during the marriage ceremony, and became ‘mantle children.’ We hear of this practice in Germany and France and Normandy; but we have here rather an act of adoption than a true legitimation ... and it would not have fully satisfied the church.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 397–98 (2d ed. 1899).

natural child. 1. A child by birth, as distinguished from an adopted child. — Also termed biological child; genetic child. 2. A child that is genetically related to the mother and father as opposed to a child conceived by donor insemination or by egg donation. 3. Archaic. An illegitimate child acknowledged by the father. 4. Archaic. An illegitimate child.

neglected child. 1. A child whose parents or legal custodians are unfit to care for him or her because of cruelty, immorality, or incapacity. [Cases: Infants 156.] 2. A child whose parents or legal custodians refuse to provide the necessary care and medical services for the child. Cf. deprived child.

nonmarital child. See illegitimate child.

posthumous child. A child born after a parent's death. • Ordinarily, the phrase posthumous child suggests one born after the father's death. But in at least one case, a legally dead pregnant woman was kept on life-support machines until the child could be safely delivered; so it is possible for a mother's posthumous child to be born. Cf. afterborn child.

quasi-posthumous child. Civil law. A child who becomes a direct heir of a grandfather or other male ascendant because of the death of the child's father.

special-needs child. 1. A child with medical problems or with a physical or emotional handicap. 2. A child that is likely to be unadoptable because of medical problems or physical or emotional handicaps, or by reason of age or ethnic background. See ADOPTION ASSISTANCE AND CHILD WELFARE ACT.

stepchild. The child of one's spouse by a previous marriage. • A stepchild is generally not entitled to the same legal rights as a natural or adopted child. For example, a stepchild has no right to a share of an intestate stepparent's property. [Cases: Parent and Child 14. C.J.S. Parent and Child §§ 351–356.]

unborn child. A child not yet born, esp. at the happening of some event.

CHILD ABUSE

child abuse. See ABUSE.

CHILD-ABUSE AND -NEGLECT REPORTING STATUTE

child-abuse and -neglect reporting statute.Family law. A state law requiring certain persons, among them healthcare providers, teachers, and child-care workers, to report suspected child abuse. • By 1967, every state had adopted some form of reporting statute. In the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (42 USCA §§ 5101–5157), Congress provided federal funding for all states that implement federal standards in their reporting statutes and defined child maltreatment broadly. See CHILD ABUSE PREVENTION AND TREATMENT ACT .

CHILD ABUSE PREVENTION AND TREATMENT ACT

Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act.Family law. A federal statute that provides limited funding to states for preventing, identifying, and treating child abuse and neglect. • Enacted in 1974, the Act was amended in 1996 to reinforce an emphasis on child safety. The Act established the National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect in the Department of Health and Human Services. Its function is to study child abuse, conduct research into its causes, and make grants to agencies for the study, prevention, and treatment of child abuse. 42 USCA §§ 5101–5157. — Abbr. CAPTA. See CHILD-ABUSE AND -NEGLECT REPORTING STATUTE .

child destruction.1.FETICIDE. 2.INFANTICIDE(1).

CHILD ENDANGERMENT

child endangerment.The placing of a child in a place or position that exposes him or her to danger to life or health. — Also termed endangering the welfare of a child. [Cases: Infants 13, 156. C.J.S. Infants §§ 5, 92–93, 95–98.]

physical child endangerment.Reckless behavior toward a child that has caused or could cause serious physical injury. — Sometimes shortened to physical endangerment.

CHILD IN NEED OF SUPERVISION

child in need of supervision.See CHILD.

CHILD-KIDNAPPING

child-kidnapping. See KIDNAPPING.

CHILD LABOR

child labor.The employment of workers under the age of majority. • This term typically focuses on abusive practices such as exploitative factory work; slavery, sale, and trafficking in children; forced or compulsory labor such as debt bondage and serfdom; and the use of children in prostitution, pornography, drug-trafficking, or anything else that might jeopardize their health, safety, or morals. Some writers restrict the term to activities forbidden by the International Labor Organization's minimum-age conventions. See ILO Minimum Age Convention ch. 138 (1973). See FAIR LABOR STANDARDS ACT. Cf. CHILD WORK.

oppressive child labor.Under the Fair Labor Standards Act, the employment of workers under the age of 16 in any occupation, or the employment of those 16 to 18 years old in particularly hazardous occupations. 29 USCA § 203(l); 29 CFR § 570.1(b). The Secretary of Labor may assess civil penalties of up to $10,000 per violation. 29 USCA § 216(e). — Also termed harmful child labor.

CHILD-LABOR LAW

child-labor law.A state or federal statute that protects children by prescribing the necessary working conditions for children in a workplace. See FAIR LABOR STANDARDS ACT. [Cases: Infants 14. C.J.S. Infants § 99.]

childnapping. See child-kidnapping under KIDNAPPING.

child neglect. See NEGLECT.

CHILD ONLINE PROTECTION ACT

Child Online Protection Act. A 1998 federal statute designed to control child pornography on the Internet by prohibiting Internet speech that is "harmful to minors." • Unlike the Communications Decency Act, COPA does not apply to e-mail or chat-room communications. Among other things, COPA applies to sexually explicit material that appears to depict minors, even if the people are actually over 18 or the images are computer-generated and do not depict living people. The Supreme Court struck down portions of the Act in Ashcroft v. American Civil Liberties Union, 535 U.S. 564, 122 S.Ct. 1700 (2002). — Abbr. COPA.

CHILD OUT OF WEDLOCK

child out of wedlock. See illegitimate child under CHILD.

CHILD PORNOGRAPHY

child pornography. See PORNOGRAPHY.

CHILD PROTECTIVE SERVICES

Child Protective Services. A governmental agency with responsibility for investigating allegations of child abuse and neglect, providing family services to the parent or guardian of a child who has been abused or neglected, and administering the foster-care program. — Abbr. CPS. — Also termed (in some states) Department of Social Services.

CHILD-REARING

child-rearing. Family law. The practices and customs followed in the upbringing of children, whether in a particular family or in society generally. — Sometimes written childrearing.

CHILDREN'S COURT

children's court. See juvenile court under COURT.

CHILD'S ATTORNEY

child's attorney. See attorney ad litem under ATTORNEY.

CHILD-SEXUAL-ABUSE ACCOMMODATION SYNDROME

child-sexual-abuse accommodation syndrome. The supposed medical and psychological condition of a child who has suffered repeated instances of sexual abuse, usu. from a relative or family friend. • This so-called "syndrome" has been repudiated by the scientific community. It cannot be validated and thus cannot discriminate between abuse and nonabuse cases. — Abbr. CSAAS. — Also termed child-sexual-abuse syndrome. [Cases: Criminal Law 474.4(4).]

CHILD'S INCOME TAX

child's income tax. See kiddie tax under TAX.

CHILD-SLAYING

child-slaying. See INFANTICIDE.

CHILD'S PART

child's part. An inheritance that, by statute in some states, a widow may claim in lieu of dower or what she would receive under her husband's will. • The amount is calculated by counting the widow as a child of the decedent, sharing equally any entitlement with any other child. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 52–67. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 60–67.]

CHILD-STEALING

child-stealing. See child-kidnapping under KIDNAPPING.

CHILD SUPPORT

child support. Family law. 1. A parent's legal obligation to contribute to the economic maintenance and education of a child until the age of majority, the child's emancipation before reaching majority, or the child's completion of secondary education. • The obligation is enforceable both civilly and criminally. [Cases: Child Support 22.] 2. In a custody or divorce action, the money legally owed by one parent to the other for the expenses incurred for children of the marriage. • The right to child support is the child's right and cannot be waived, and any di-vorce-decree provision waiving child support is void. Cf. ALIMONY. [Cases: Child Support 1–669. C.J.S. Parent and Child §§ 156–191, 193–256, 359–377.]

decretal child support. Child support provided for in a divorce decree or modification order.

CHILD-SUPPORT-ENFORCEMENT AGENCY

child-support-enforcement agency. Family law. A governmental agency that helps custodial parents collect child support. • Under Title IV(D) of the Social Security Act (42 USCA § 654), states are required to establish child-support-enforcement agencies to collect support for obligee parents. Although the agencies are governed by a set of federal standards, each state has its own central registry. The CSE agency may operate through the state's Department of Human Services, its Department of Justice, its tax agency, or its Attorney General's office. The agency can help locate a missing parent and establish paternity. The agency works to establish support orders and to enforce those orders. — Abbr. CSE agency. — Also termed IV-D agency. See OFFICE OF CHILD-SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT.

CHILD-SUPPORT GUIDELINES

child-support guidelines. Family law. Statutory provisions that govern the amount of child support that an obligor parent must pay. • Child-support guidelines have been developed in every state in response to the creation of the Temporary Assistance to Needy Families program. 42 USCA §§ 601–603a.

CHILD SUPPORT RECOVERY ACT OF 1994

Child Support Recovery Act of 1994. A statute that made it a federal offense for a person to willfully fail to pay past-due child support for a child who lived in another state. • This Act has been replaced by the Deadbeat Parents Punishment Act. 42 USCA § 228. See DEADBEAT PARENTS PUNISHMENT ACT.

CHILDWIT

childwit. Hist. A fine levied by a master on a servant who became pregnant without the master's consent.

CHILD WITH DISABILITIES

child with disabilities. See CHILD.

CHILD WORK

child work. A minor's salutary employment, esp. within the family. • This term is sometimes used in contrast to child labor, the idea being that child work within the family unit can be a positive experience. Some scholars and courts note that child work can facilitate vocational skills and social adaptation, and is often viewed as an ex-expression of family solidarity. Cf. CHILD LABOR.

CHILL

chill, vb. To inhibit or discourage <chill one's free-speech rights>.

CHILLING A SALE

chilling a sale. The act of bidders or others who combine or conspire to discourage others from attempting to buy an item so that they might buy the item themselves for a lower price.

CHILLING EFFECT

chilling effect. 1. Constitutional law. The result of a law or practice that seriously discourages the exercise of a constitutional right, such as the right to appeal or the right of free speech. 2. Broadly, the result when any practice is discouraged. — Also termed chilling bidding; chilling the bidding.

CHIROGRAPH

chirograph (kI-r<<schwa>>-graf), n.1.Civil law. A handwritten instrument. 2. A written deed, subscribed and witnessed. — Also termed cyrographum. 3. Such a deed in two parts from a single original document separated by an indented line through the word chirographum, each party retaining one part. 4.Hist. FOOT OF THE FINE. — Also termed (in sense 4) cyrographarius. — chirographic,adj.

“Formerly, when deeds were more concise than at present, it was usual to write both parts on the same piece of parchment, with some word or letters of the alphabet written between them; through which the parchment was cut, either in a straight or indented line, in such a manner as to leave half the word on one part and half on the other. Deeds thus made were denominated syngrapha by the canonists; and with us chirographa, or hand-writings.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 295–96 (1766).

CHIROGRAPHER OF FINES

chirographer of fines (kI-rogr-r<<schwa>>-f<<schwa>>r) Hist. A Court of Common Pleas officer who engrossed court-ordered fines and delivered indentures of the fines to the parties. See INDENTURE OF A FINE.

“Chirographer of fynes... signifieth in our common lawe, him in the common bench office, that ingrosseth fines in that court acknowledged, into a perpetuall record, after they be acknowledged, and fully passed by those officers, by whome they are formerly examined; and that writeth and delivereth the indentures of them unto the party. This officer also maketh two indentures, one for the buier, another for the seller; and maketh one other indented peece, containing also the effect of the fine, which he delivereth over to the custos brevium, that is called the foote of the fine.” John Cowell, The Interpreter (1607).

CHIROGRAPHUM

chirographum (kI-rogr-r<<schwa>>-f<<schwa>>m). [Latin fr. Greek] Roman law. A handwritten document, usu. an undertaking or acknowledgment of debt written in the debtor's own hand. Cf. TYPOGRAPHUM. Pl. chiro-grapha.

CHIT

CHIVALRY

chivalry (shiv-<<schwa>>l-ree).Hist. Tenure held by knight-service; tenure in which a person held land in ex-change for military service of the highest order. See KNIGHT-SERVICE.

“Chivalry is a tenure of land by knight's service: for the better understanding whereof it is to be known, that there is no land but is held mediately or immediately of the crown by some service or other; and therefore all our free-holds that are to us and our heirs are called fees, as proceeding from the bounty of the king for some small yearly rent, and the performance of such services as originally were imposed upon the land at the giving thereof.... And these services are all by Littleton divided into two sorts, chivalry and soccage: the one martial and military; the other clownish and rustical.” Termes de la Ley 83–84 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

CHOREPISCOPI

chorepiscopi. See SUFFRAGAN.

CHOSE

chose (shohz), n. [French] A thing, whether tangible or intangible; a personal article; a chattel. See THING.

chose in action. 1. A proprietary right in personam, such as a debt owed by another person, a share in a joint-stock company, or a claim for damages in tort. [Cases: Property 5.5. C.J.S. Property § 22; Trading Stamps and Coupons § 2.] 2. The right to bring an action to recover a debt, money, or thing. 3. Personal property that one person owns but another person possesses, the owner being able to regain possession through a lawsuit. — Also termed thing in action.

“Chose, or, thing in action is, when a man hath cause, or may bring an action for some duty due to him; as an action of debt ... and because they are things whereof a man is not possessed, but for recovery of them is driven to his action, they are called things in action.” Termes de la Ley 85 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

“The term chose in action has been in common use for a long time, but some doubts have been recently raised as to its precise meaning. (See Law Quarterly Review for 1893, 1894, 1895.) A Divisional Court, however, has now given us the following definition: ‘“chose in action” is a known legal expression used to describe all personal rights of property which can only be claimed or enforced by action, and not by taking physical possession.’ Torkington v. Magee, [1902] 2 K.B. p. 430. The phrase ‘rights of property’ does not seem a very happy one, but it is quite clear that the court meant to include under the term chose in action rights under a contract and rights of action arising from breach of contract.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 362 n.(b) (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

chose in possession. Personal property for which title and possession unite in the same person. — Also termed thing in possession.

chose local. A fixed chattel.

chose transitory. A movable chattel.

churl (ch<<schwa>>rl). See CEORL.

CHURN, BURN, AND BURY

churn, burn, and bury, vb. (Of a stockbroker) to make numerous risky trades in (an account) and, as a result, squander the customer's money. • The term denotes the action involved in particularly reckless churning.

CHURNING

churning, n. 1. Securities. A stockbroker's excessive trading of a customer's account to earn more commissions rather than to further the customer's interests; an abuse of a customer's confidence for personal gain by frequent and numerous transactions, disproportionate to the size and nature of the customer's account. • Under securities laws, the practice is illegal — a violation of § 10(b) of the Exchange Act (15 USCA § 78j(b)). But because the fraud is the activity as a whole and there is no communication between the broker and the customer about a specific sale of securities, there is not normally a right of action for fraud based on churning. [Cases: Brokers 21; Securities Regulation 60.32(3). C.J.S. Brokers § 52; Securities Regulation §§ 164, 197–198, 217, 222.] 2. Tax. A transfer of property that does not result in a significant change of ownership or use of the property, usu. to make the property eligible for amortization or a more favorable method of depreciation. ## CINQUE PORTS

Cinque Ports (singk ports). [Fr. "five ports"] The five English ports — Hastings, Romney, Hythe, Dover, and Sandwich — that were important defenses against French invasion. • They received special privileges and were obliged to furnish a certain number of ships for use in war. See COURT OF SHEPWAY.

“Cinque ports ... are those special havens that lie towards France, and therefore have been thought by our kings to be such as ought most vigilantly to be preserved [sic] against invasion. In which respect they have a special Governor or Keeper, called by his office, Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports.” Thomas Blount, Nomo-Lexicon: A Law-Dictionary [n.p.] (1670).

“[M]ost of the seaport towns, or at least the more important ones, had local, as distinguished from national or centrally controlled, courts with jurisdiction over the administration of the local sea law. Among these ports was one group which was particularly notable, called the Cinque Ports, or Five Ports — ‘cinque’ being the French word for five. These five ports were of particular importance as naval bases because of their nearness to the continent. In exchange for special naval assistance to the king in time of war, they were not only permitted to acquire but also to keep a position of special importance in the field of maritime law, and with it a considerable measure of local, independent jurisdiction, which served as a reminder in later centuries of the original local character of English admiralty jurisdiction.” Charles Herman Kinnane, A First Book on Anglo-American Law 362 (2d ed. 1952).

CIRCUIT JUSTICE

circuit justice. See JUSTICE(2).

CIRCUIT MEDIATOR

circuit mediator. An attorney-employee of a U.S. court of appeals who mediates civil cases, usu. before oral argument. — Also termed preargument-conference attorney; settlement counsel.

CIRCUIT-RIDING

circuit-riding, n. The practice of judges' traveling within a legislatively defined circuit to hear cases in one place for a time, then another, and so on. • The American practice of circuit-riding was based on the English eyre system, in which justices rode between the shire towns to hold assizes.

“The Judiciary Act of 1789 required that the justices of the Supreme Court serve also as judges of the circuit courts. The justices complained that circuit riding caused serious physical hardships and diverted them from more important duties in the nation's capital.... Congress in 1801 abolished circuit riding on grounds of efficiency, but a year later a new Jeffersonian Republican majority restored the practice, obliging each justice to hold circuit court along with a district judge. Gradually, however, improved communications, increasing business in the nation's capital, and the strengthening of American nationhood following the Civil War rendered circuit riding anachro-nistic. Congress in the Judiciary Act of 1869 established a separate circuit court judiciary, although the justices retained nominal circuit riding duties until the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of 1891. Congress officially ended the practice in 1911." The Oxford Companion to the Supreme Court of the United States 145 (Kermit L. Hall ed., 1992).

CIRCUIT-RIDING JUSTICE

circuit-riding justice. See JUSTICE(2).

CIRCUITY OF ACTION

circuitry of action. A procedure allowing duplicative lawsuits, leading to unnecessarily lengthy and indirect liti-gation, as when a defendant fails to bring a counterclaim, but later brings a separate action to recover what could have been awarded in the original lawsuit. • Civil-procedure rules have eliminated many problems associated with circuitry of action. [Cases: Equity 52. C.J.S. Equity § 42.]

"Circuitry of action is, when an action is rightfully brought for a duty, but yet about the bush, as it were, for that it might as well have been otherwise answered and determined, and the suit saved: and because the same action was more than needful, it is called circuitry of action." Termes de la Ley 87 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

CIRCUMDUCTION OF THE TERM

circumduction of the term. Scots law. A judicial declaration that the time allowed for the parties to present evidence has expired.

CIRCUM SACRA

circum sacra (s<<schwa>>r-k<<schwa>>m say-kr<<schwa>>). [Law Latin] Hist. Eccles. law. Concerning sacred things. • The phrase appeared in reference to the church's supreme jurisdiction over questions of doctrine, as distinguished from a civil court's jurisdiction over other ecclesiastical matters.

CIRCUMSPECTE AGATIS

Circumspecte agatis (s<<schwa>>r-k<<schwa>>m-spek-tee <<schwa>>-gay-tis). [Latin “that you act cir-cumspectly”] Hist. A directive from the king to his justices detailing the boundaries of ecclesiastical jurisdiction. • The directive, issued circa 1285, was originally in the form of a writ, but over time acquired statutory authority. The title Circumspecte agatis derives from the first few words of the writ: “Rex talibus iudicibus salutem; Cir-cumspecte agatis....”

CIRCUMSTANCE

circumstance, n. (often pl.) An accompanying or accessory fact, event, or condition, such as a piece of evidence that indicates the probability of an event. — circumstantial, adj.

aggravating circumstance. 1. A fact or situation that increases the degree of liability or culpability for a criminal act. 2. A fact or situation that relates to a criminal offense or defendant and that is considered by the court in imposing punishment (esp. a death sentence). • Aggravating circumstances in death-penalty cases are usu. pre-scribed by statute. For a list of aggravating circumstances in a capital-murder case, see Model Penal Code § 210.6(3). — Also termed aggravating element; aggravating factor; aggravator. Cf. mitigating circumstance; MITIGATOR. [Cases: Sentencing and Punishment 53, 589, 1652. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 1460, 1465, 1472, 1479, 1492–1493, 1495, 1524, 1526, 1530–1532, 1534–1538, 1541–1543.]

attendant circumstance. A fact that is situationally relevant to a particular event or occurrence. • A fact-finder often reviews the attendant circumstances of a crime to learn, for example, the perpetrator's motive or intent.

exigent circumstances. 1. A situation that demands unusual or immediate action and that may allow people to circumvent usual procedures, as when a neighbor breaks through a window of a burning house to save someone inside. 2. A situation in which a police officer must take immediate action to effectively make an arrest, search, or seizure for which probable cause exists, and thus may do so without first obtaining a warrant. • Exigent cir-cumstances may exist if (1) a person's life or safety is threatened, (2) a suspect's escape is imminent, or (3) evidence is about to be removed or destroyed. — Also termed emergency circumstances; special circumstances.

extenuating circumstance. See mitigating circumstance.

extraordinary circumstances. A highly unusual set of facts that are not commonly associated with a particular thing or event.

incriminating circumstance. A fact or situation showing either that a crime was committed or that a particular person committed it.

mitigating circumstance. 1. A fact or situation that does not justify or excuse a wrongful act or offense but that reduces the degree of culpability and thus may reduce the damages (in a civil case) or the punishment (in a criminal case). [Cases: Damages 59; Sentencing and Punishment 54, 590, 1653. C.J.S. Damages §§ 167, 169–170, 172, 174.] 2. A fact or situation that does not bear on the question of a defendant's guilt but that is considered by the court in imposing punishment and esp. in lessening the severity of a sentence. A court's or jury's power to consider mitigating circumstances cannot be limited by statute. See Lockett v. Ohio, 438 U.S. 586, 606, 98

S.Ct. 2954, 2965 (1978). For a list of mitigating circumstances in a capital-murder case, see Model Penal Code § 210.6(4). [Cases: Sentencing and Punishment 54, 590, 1653.] 3.Contracts. An unusual or unpredictable event that prevents performance, such as a labor strike. — Also termed extenuating circumstance. Cf. aggravating circumstance.

CIRCUMVENTION 1

circumvention. 1.Copyright. The act of bypassing, avoiding, removing, deactivating, or impairing a technological measure or device that controls access to a work protected by U.S. copyright law. • Circumvention of technology that effectively controls access to a work protected by a U.S. copyright is prohibited under 17 USCA § 1201. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 67.3. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 41, 45, 55, 97.] 2.Scots law. FACILITY AND CIRCUMVENTION .

CIRLISCUS

cirliscus (s<<schwa>>r-lis-k<<schwa>>s). See CEORL.

CITABLE

citable,adj. Authorized by a court to be used as legal precedent. • In general, published opinions are citable, but unpublished ones are not. — Also written citeable. Cf. NONCITABLE.

CITATIO AD REASSUMENDAM CAUSAM

citatio ad reassumendam causam (sI-tay-shee-oh ad ree-as-yoo-men-d<<schwa>>m kaw-z<<schwa>>m). [Latin “citation to take up a cause again”] Civil law. A citation issued to revive an action that was abated upon one party's death. • The citation issues against the deceased party's heir. Cf. bill of revivor under BILL(2).

CITATION

citation,n.1. A court-issued writ that commands a person to appear at a certain time and place to do something demanded in the writ, or to show cause for not doing so. 2. A police-issued order to appear before a judge on a given date to defend against a stated charge, such as a traffic violation. — Also termed appearance ticket. [Cases: Automobiles 351.1. C.J.S. Motor Vehicles §§ 1344, 1365–1371, 1397–1400, 1443, 1473, 1486–1487, 1496, 1508, 1518, 1526, 1532, 1543–1544, 1546–1547, 1550.] 3. A reference to a legal precedent or authority, such as a case, statute, or treatise, that either substantiates or contradicts a given position. — Often shortened to (in sense 3) cite.

parallel citation.An additional reference to a case that has been reported in more than one reporter. • For example, whereas a Bluebook citation reads “Morgan v. United States, 304 U.S. 1 (1938),” the same reference including parallel citations reads “Morgan v. United States, 304 U.S. 1, 58 S.Ct. 773, 82 L.Ed. 1129 (1938),” in which the main citation is to the U.S. Reports and the

pinpoint citation. The page on which a quotation or relevant passage appears, as opposed to the page on which a case or article begins. • For example, the number 217 is the pinpoint citation in Baker v. Carr, 369 U.S. 186, 217 (1962). — Also termed jump citation; dictum page; pincite.

4. A reference to another document in support of an argument, as in a patent prosecution in which a party trying to defeat a claim of patentability refers to a previous patent or a publication to show that the invention lacks novelty or nonobviousness. See REFERENCE(4).

front-page citation. Patents. A citation of prior art listed on the front page of a patent application and disclosing a patent or publication that is material to the patentability of any of the application's claims.

textual citation. Patents. A reference to a work containing prior art listed in a patent application's body.

CITATIONAL

citational, adj. Of or relating to a citation (esp. a reference citation) < citational analysis >.

CITATION ORDER

citation order. The appropriate ranking of the various authorities marshaled in support of a legal proposition.

CITATIONS, LAW OF

Citations, Law of. Roman law. An A.D. 426 decree of Emperor Valentinian III listing Papinian, Paul, Gaius, Ulpian, and Modestinus as juristic writers who could be cited authoritatively in court. • If a majority of the writers agreed on an issue, the judge was bound to follow the majority view. The Law of Citations allowed the judge to use discretion only if the writers were equally divided and Papinian (whose view prevailed in a tie) was silent on the issue.

“In 426 came the famous lex de responsis prudentium — the Law of Citations.... This law lessened the difficulties of the courts in dealing with juristic literature. It excluded a huge mass of conflicting doctrine, the relative value of which had not been determined, and which yet had to be used by the judges as a source of principle on which to base their decisions.” W.W. Buckland, A Text-Book of Roman Law from Augustus to Justinian 33 (Peter Stein ed., 3d ed. 1963).

CITATION SIGNAL

citation signal. See SIGNAL(2).

CITATOR

citator (sI-tay-t<<schwa>>r). A catalogued list of cases, statutes, and other legal sources showing the subsequent history and current precedential value of those sources. • Citators allow researchers to verify the authority of a precedent and to find additional sources relating to a given subject. Citators were originally printed on gummed paper and pasted next to the report of a cited case. Today, citators are published in volumes and are also available online; the two most popular are Shepard's and KeyCite.

“A citator is a compilation showing where certain cases have been cited in other cases, and whether the provisions of constitutions and statutes have been repealed, amended, or otherwise affected, or have been judicially construed, or have been cited.” Frank Hall Childs, Where and How to Find the Law 61 (1922).

CITIZENSHIP

citizenship, n. 1. The status of being a citizen. 2. The quality of a person's conduct as a member of a community.

corporate citizenship. See CORPORATE CITIZENSHIP.

dual citizenship. See DUAL CITIZENSHIP.

CITIZENSHIP CLAUSE

Citizenship Clause. The clause of the U.S. Constitution providing that all persons born or naturalized in the United States are citizens of the United States and the state they reside in. U.S. Const. amend. XIV, § 1, cl. 1. [Cases: Citizens 1–11. C.J.S. Aliens § 281; Citizens §§ 2–13, 19, 21–22, 24–29.]

CITIZEN SUIT

citizen suit. An action under a statute giving citizens the right to sue violators of the law (esp. environmental law) and to seek injunctive relief and penalties. • In the 1970s, during the heyday of antipollution statutes such as the Clean Water Act and the Clean Air Act, legislators believed that regulators sometimes become too close to the industries they oversee and, as a result, lack the aggressiveness that individual citizens bring to litigation. The statutes therefore authorize, among other things, “private attorneys general” (citizens) to protect the environment. This includes not only injunctions to stop pollution but also penalties to be paid to the U.S. Treasury. A federal plaintiff must sue under a statutory citizen-suit provision and also satisfy constitutional-standing requirements. See STANDING. [Cases: Environmental Law 20.]

CITOLOGY

citology. See LEGAL CITOLOGY.

CITRA CAUSAE COGNITIONEM

citra causae cognitionem (sit-r<<schwa>> kaw-zee kog-nish-ee-oh-n<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Hist. Without investigating the cause; absent a judicial investigation.

“Citra causae cognitionem.... Formerly all interdiction was judicial, and proceeded upon an investigation of the facts and on its necessity or expediency being made out to the satisfaction of the Court. No other kind of interdiction was allowed, but voluntary interdiction, without such investigation, was afterwards admitted.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 78 (4th ed. 1894).

CITY

city. 1. A municipal corporation, usu. headed by a mayor and governed by a city council. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 1.1. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 2–7.] 2. The territory within a city's corporate limits. 3. Collectively, the people who live within this territory. Cf. TOWN.

CITY ATTORNEY

city attorney. An attorney employed by a city to advise it and represent it in legal matters. —

Also termed mu-nicipal attorney; city counsel; corporation counsel; city solicitor. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 214(3).]

“There may have been a time in this country when the function of the City Attorney of the average city consisted mainly of advising the Council, preparing an occasional ordinance or handling an infrequent lawsuit. The legal business of the average city is no longer so simple, so infrequent and so nonconsuming of the time of the City Attorney. Every action of the City must be justified by its legal powers, and the City Attorney is the municipal officer whose responsibility it is to decide whether any act or action is within the city's legal powers. The demands of citizens for augmented municipal services, and the resulting diversification of city operations have increased the volume of work to the point where the City Attorney, in many cities, has become a central consultant of the city officers and employees on a day-to-day, hour-to-hour basis.” Allen Grimes, The City Attorney: A Practice Manual 6 (1978).

CITY CLERK

city clerk. See CLERK(1).

CITY COUNCIL

city council. A city's legislative body, usu. responsible for passing ordinances, levying taxes, appropriating funds, and generally administering city government. — Also termed (in some states) board of aldermen. [Cases: Mu-nicipal Corporations 80. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 208–210, 213–219.]

CITY COUNSEL

city counsel. See CITY ATTORNEY.

CITY COURT

city court. See municipal court under COURT.

CITY JUDGE

city judge. See municipal judge under JUDGE.

CITY SOLICITOR

city solicitor. See CITY ATTORNEY.

CIV. CT.

Civ. Ct. See civil court under COURT.

CIVIC

civic, adj. 1. Of or relating to citizenship or a particular citizen <civic responsibilities>. 2. Of or relating to a city <civic center>.

CIVIL

civil,adj.1. Of or relating to the state or its citizenry <civil rights>.2. Of or relating to private rights and remedies that are sought by action or suit, as distinct from criminal proceedings <civil litigation>. [Cases: Action 18. C.J.S. Actions § 68.] 3. Of or relating to any of the modern legal systems derived from Roman law <Louisiana is a civil-law jurisdiction>.

CIVIL ACTION

civil action.See ACTION(4).

CIVIL ARREST

civil arrest.See ARREST.

CIVIL ASSAULT

civil assault.See ASSAULT.

CIVIL-AUTHORITY CLAUSE

civil-authority clause.Insurance. A clause, esp. in a fire-insurance policy, insuring against damages caused by firefighters, police, or other civil authority. [Cases: Insurance 2157, 2163. C.J.S. Insurance § 1074.]

CIVIL BAIL

civil bail.See BAIL(1).

CIVIL CODE

civil code. 1. A comprehensive and systematic legislative pronouncement of the whole private, noncommercial law in a legal system of the continental civil-law tradition. 2. (cap.) The code that embodies the law of France, from which a great part of the Louisiana civil code is derived. — Abbr. CC. — Also termed Code Civil. See NAPOLEONIC CODE. 3. A codification of noncriminal statutes.

CIVIL COGNATION

civil cognation.See COGNATION.

CIVIL COMMITMENT

civil commitment. 1. A commitment of a person who is ill, incompetent, drug-addicted, or the like, as contrasted with a criminal sentence. [Cases: Chemical Dependents 10; Mental Health 31. C.J.S. Chemical De-pendents §§ 10–11; Insane Persons §§ 45, 47, 53.] 2. A public demonstration by two people of their intent to be bound together in a marriage-like relationship. • The demonstration is usu. in the form of a ceremony, often identical to a wedding, but the relationship is usu. not legally recognized and can be dissolved without legal formalities. See CIVIL UNION .

CIVIL-COMMITMENT STATUTE

civil-commitment statute.A law that provides for the confinement of a person who is mentally ill, incompetent, drug-addicted, or the like, often a sexually violent predator. • Unlike criminal incarceration, civil commitment is for an indefinite period.

CIVIL COMMOTION

civil commotion. A public uprising by a large number of people who, acting together, cause harm to people or property. • A civil commotion usu. involves many more people than a riot. — Sometimes shortened to commotion. Cf. RIOT. [Cases: Riot 1. C.J.S. Riot; Insurrection §§ 2–10.]

CIVIL CONSPIRACY

civil conspiracy. See CONSPIRACY.

CIVIL CONTEMPT

civil contempt. See CONTEMPT.

CIVIL CORPORATION

civil corporation. See CORPORATION.

CIVIL COURT

civil court. See COURT.

CIVIL-DAMAGE LAW

civil-damage law. See DRAM-SHOP ACT.

CIVIL DAY

civil day. See artificial day under DAY.

CIVIL DEATH

civil death. See DEATH.

CIVIL DEFENSE

civil defense. 1. The practice of protecting civilians from dangers caused by hostilities or disasters and helping them recover from the immediate effects of such events. 2. The policies that underlie this practice.

CIVIL DISABILITY

civil disability. See DISABILITY(3).

CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE

civil disobedience. A deliberate but nonviolent act of lawbreaking to call attention to a particular law or set of laws believed by the actor to be of questionable legitimacy or morality.

“Social protest and even civil disobedience serve the law's need for growth. Ideally, reform would come according to reason and justice without self-help and disturbing, almost violent, forms of protest.... Still, candor compels one here again to acknowledge the gap between the ideal and the reality. Short of the millennium, sharp changes in the law depend partly upon the stimulus of protest." Archibald Cox, Civil Rights, the Constitution, and the Courts, 40 N.Y. State B.J. 161, 169 (1968).

CIVIL DISORDER

civil disorder. A public disturbance involving three or more people who commit violent acts that cause immediate danger or injury to people or property. See RIOT. [Cases: Riot 1. C.J.S. Riot; Insurrection §§ 2–10.]

CIVIL EMBARGO

civil embargo. See EMBARGO(2).

CIVIL FORFEITURE

civil forfeiture. See FORFEITURE.

CIVIL FRAUD

civil fraud. See FRAUD.

CIVIL FRUIT

civil fruit. See FRUIT.

CIVILIAN

civilian, n. 1. A person not serving in the military. 2. A lawyer practicing in a civil-law jurisdiction. — Also termed civilista. 3. A scholar in civil or Roman law. — civilian, adj.

CIVIL IMPEDIMENT

civil impediment. See IMPEDIMENT.

CIVIL IMPRISONMENT

civil imprisonment. Hist. See IMPRISONMENT FOR DEBT.

CIVIL INFRACTION

civil infraction. See INFRACTION.

CIVIL INJURY

civil injury. See INJURY.

CIVIL INVESTIGATIVE DEMAND

civil investigative demand. 1. A request for information served by the U.S. Attorney General on any person who may have documents or information relevant to a civil antitrust investigation or to an investigation authorized by § 3 of the International Antitrust Enforcement Assistance Act (15 USCA § 6202). • A civil investigative demand can be issued before a civil or criminal action is begun, and can be served on anyone — not just potential defendants — thought to possess information pertinent to the investigation. If the Attorney General begins a civil or criminal action, this demand may not be served on persons within the scope of the proceeding. 2. A similar request for information served by a different governmental entity, esp. a state attorney general. — Abbr. CID.

CIVILIS

civilis (s<<schwa>>-vI-lis), adj.[Latin] Of or according to civil law.

CIVILISTA

civilista (siv-<<schwa>>-lis-t<<schwa>>). [Latin] Hist. See CIVILIAN(2).

CIVILITER

civiliter (s<<schwa>>-vil-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>r), adv.[Latin “civilly”] 1. By a civil, as distinguished from a criminal, proceeding. Cf. CRIMINALITER. 2. Civilly; as a citizen.

civiliter mortuus (s<<schwa>>-vil-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>r mor-choo-<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Civilly dead <the wife of a man civiliter mortuus had similar rights>. See civil death (1) under DEATH.

CIVILIZATION

civilization. The transformation of a criminal matter to a civil one by law or judgment. Cf. CRIMINALIZATION(1).

CIVIL JUSTICE

civil justice. The methods by which a society redresses civil wrongs. Cf. CRIMINAL JUSTICE(1).

CIVIL LAW

civil law. 1. (usu. cap.) One of the two prominent legal systems in the Western World, originally administered in the Roman Empire and still influential in continental Europe, Latin America, Scotland, and Louisiana, among other parts of the world; ROMAN LAW. • In reference to Romans, civil law (commonly referred to as jus civile) denotes the whole body of Roman law, from whatever source derived. But it is also used to denote that part of Roman law peculiar to the Romans, as opposed to the common law of all peoples (jus gentium). — Also termed jus civile; Roman law; Romanesque law. Cf. COMMON LAW(2). 2. The body of law imposed by the state, as opposed to moral law. 3. The law of civil or private rights, as opposed to criminal law or administrative law. — Abbr. CL.

“The difference between civil law ... and criminal law turns on the difference between two different objects which the law seeks to pursue — redress or punishment. The object of civil law is the redress of wrongs by compelling compensation or restitution: the wrongdoer is not punished, he only suffers so much harm as is necessary to make good the wrong he has done. The person who has suffered gets a definite benefit from the law, or at least he avoids a loss. On the other hand, in the case of crimes, the main object of the law is to punish the wrongdoer; to give him and others a strong inducement not to commit the same or similar crimes, to reform him if possible, and perhaps to satisfy the public sense that wrongdoing ought to meet with retribution." William Geldart, Introduction to English Law 146 (D.C.M. Yardley ed., 9th ed. 1984).

CIVIL LIABILITY

civil liability. See LIABILITY.

CIVIL-LIABILITY ACT

civil-liability act. See DRAM-SHOP ACT.

CIVIL LIBERTY

civil liberty. (usu. pl.) Freedom from undue governmental interference or restraint. • This term usu. refers to freedom of speech or religion. In American law, early civil liberties were promulgated in the Laws and Libertyes of Massachusetts (1648) and the Bill of Rights (1791). In English law, examples are found in Magna Carta (1215), the Petition of Right (1628), and the Bill of Rights (1689). — Also termed civil right. [Cases: Civil Rights 1027. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 4–5, 8, 13.]

CIVIL LIST

civil list. An annual sum granted by Parliament for the expenses of the royal household.

CIVIL MARRIAGE

civil marriage. See MARRIAGE(3).

CIVIL MONTH

civil month. See MONTH(1).

CIVIL OBLIGATION

civil obligation. See conventional obligation under OBLIGATION.

CIVIL OFFENSE

civil offense. See public tort under TORT.

CIVIL POWER

civil power. See POLITICAL POWER.

CIVIL PROCEDURE 1

civil procedure. 1. The body of law — usu. rules enacted by the legislature or courts — governing the methods and practices used in civil litigation. • An example is the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. 2. A particular method or practice used in carrying on civil litigation.

CIVIL PROCESS

civil process. See PROCESS.

CIVIL REMEDY

civil remedy. See REMEDY(1).

CIVIL RIGHT

civil right. (usu. pl.) 1. The individual rights of personal liberty guaranteed by the Bill of Rights and by the 13th, 14th, 15th, and 19th Amendments, as well as by legislation such as the Voting Rights Act. • Civil rights include esp. the right to vote, the right of due process, and the right of equal protection under the law. [Cases: Civil Rights 1027. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 4–5, 8, 13.] 2. CIVIL LIBERTY.

“At common law a person convicted of a felony became an outlaw. He lost all of his civil rights and all of his property became forfeited. This harsh rule no longer prevails. Under modern jurisprudence the civil rights of a person convicted of a crime, be it a felony or misdemeanor, are in nowise affected or diminished except insofar as express statutory provisions so prescribe.” Alexander Holtzoff, “Civil Rights of Criminals,” in Encyclopedia of Criminology 55 (Vernon C. Branham & Samuel B. Kutash eds., 1949).

CIVIL-RIGHTS ACT

civil-rights act. One of several federal statutes enacted after the Civil War (1861–1865) and, much later, during and after the civil-rights movement of the 1950s and 1960s, for the purpose of implementing and giving further force to the basic rights guaranteed by the Constitution, and esp. prohibiting discrimination in employment and education on the basis of race, sex, religion, color, or age. [Cases: Civil Rights 1002, 1102. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 2–5, 7–9, 11–13, 18, 22, 26–27, 30–31, 33–34, 37, 41–42, 44, 67.]

CIVIL-RIGHTS REMOVAL

civil-rights removal. See REMOVAL.

CIVIL SERVICE

civil service, n. 1. The administrative branches of a government. [Cases: Officers and Public Employees 11. C.J.S. Officers and Public Employees §§ 63–65, 71–74.] 2. The group of people employed by these branches. — civil servant, n.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

Civil Service Commission.A former independent federal agency that supervised the government's personnel system. • The agency was created in 1883 and abolished by Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1978. Its functions were transferred to the Merit Systems Protection Board and the Office of Personnel Management. See MERIT SYSTEMS PROTECTION BOARD; OFFICE OF PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT . [Cases: Officers and Public Employees 72.20. C.J.S. Officers and Public Employees §§ 143, 195.]

CIVIL-SERVICE REFORM

civil-service reform.The use of business principles and methods instead of the spoils system in the conduct of the civil service, esp. in awarding contracts and appointing officials.

CIVIL SOCIETY

civil society.See SOCIETY.

CIVIL TERM

civil term.See TERM(5).

CIVIL UNION

civil union.Family law. A marriage-like relationship, often between members of the same sex, recognized by civil authorities within a jurisdiction. • Vermont was the first state to recognize civil unions. In December 1999, the Vermont Supreme Court ruled that denying gay couples the benefits of marriage amounted to unconstitutional discrimination. Baker v. State, 744 A.2d 864 (Vt. 1999). Several months later the legislature passed a civil-unions law, which took effect on July 1, 2000. — Also termed civil partnership. Cf. DOMESTIC PARTNERSHIP; same-sex marriage under MARRIAGE(1).

CIVIL WAR

civil war.See WAR.

CIVIL WRONG

civil wrong.1.WRONG. 2.TORT. 3.DELICT.

CIVIS

civis (siv-is). [Latin] Roman law. A Roman citizen; a person entitled to the public and private rights associated with Roman citizenship. • Female citizens had only private rights. — Also termed civis Romanus; civis Romana.

CIVITAS

civitas (siv-<<schwa>>-tas), n. [Latin] Roman law. 1. A state. 2. An organized community; a territorial unit.

CIVITATIS AMISSIO

civitatis amissio (siv-i-tay-tis <<schwa>>-mish-ee-oh). [Latin] Hist. Loss of citizenship.

CLAFLIN TRUST

Clafin trust.See indestructible trust under TRUST.

CLAFLIN<TT>-TRUST PRINCIPLE

Clafin-trust principle.The doctrine that a trust cannot be terminated by the beneficiaries if the termination would defeat one of the settlor's material purposes in establishing the trust, even if all the beneficiaries seek its termination. • The Clafin rule, which derives from Clafin v. Clafin, 20 N.E. 454 (Mass. 1889), is often cited as the purest illustration of “deadhand control,” in which the wishes of the now-dead settlor prevail over the wishes and needs of living beneficiaries. If the settlor is alive and consents to the modification or termination of the trust, the trust may usu. be terminated, unless it is irrevocable. Trusts in the Clafin category are spendthrift trusts, support trusts, trusts in which the trustee has discretion to make distributions, and trusts in which the beneficiary is entitled to income until a certain age, at which point the beneficiary will receive the principal.

CLAIM

claim,n.1. The aggregate of operative facts giving rise to a right enforceable by a court <the plaintiff's short, plain statement about the crash established the claim>. — Also termed claim for relief. 2. The assertion of an existing right; any right to payment or to an equitable remedy, even if contingent or provisional <the spouse's claim to half the lottery winnings>.3. A demand for money, property, or a legal remedy to which one asserts a right; esp., the part of a complaint in a civil action specifying what relief the plaintiff asks for. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 680; Pleading 72. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 110–115.] donation claim.Property law. A claim for ownership of land under a donation act or

honest claim. A claim made by someone who believes, however unreasonably, that he or she has a right to something or that there is a chance that such a right exists.

liquidated claim. 1. A claim for an amount previously agreed on by the parties or that can be precisely determined by operation of law or by the terms of the parties' agreement. 2. A claim that was determined in a judicial proceeding. — Also termed liquidated demand. [Cases: Accord and Satisfaction 10; Interest 39(2.15). C.J.S. Accord and Satisfaction §§ 44–45.]

matured claim. A claim based on a debt that is due for payment.

stale claim. A claim that is barred by the statute of limitations or the defense of laches. — Also termed stale demand. [Cases: Equity 67; Limitation of Actions 1, 165. C.J.S. Equity §§ 128–132; Limitations of Actions §§ 2–4, 10–11.]

unliquidated claim. A claim in which the amount owed has not been determined. [Cases: Accord and Satisfaction 10; Interest 39(2.15). C.J.S. Accord and Satisfaction §§ 44–45.]

4. An interest or remedy recognized at law; the means by which a person can obtain a privilege, possession, or enjoyment of a right or thing; CAUSE OF ACTION(1) <claim against the employer for wrongful termination>.

ancillary claim. A claim that is collateral to, dependent on, or auxiliary to another claim, such as a state-law claim that is sufficiently related to a federal claim to permit federal jurisdiction over it. • The concept of ancillary federal jurisdiction is now contained in the supplemental-jurisdiction statute, 28 USCA § 1367. See ancillary jurisdiction and supplemental jurisdiction under JURISDICTION. [Cases: Federal Courts 14, 20.]

colorable claim. 1. A claim that is legitimate and that may reasonably be asserted, given the facts presented and the current law (or a reasonable and logical extension or modification of the current law). 2. A claim in which the debtor and property holder are, as a matter of law, not adverse. • One example of a colorable claim is one made by a person holding property as an agent or bailee of the bankrupt.

contingent claim. A claim that has not yet accrued and is dependent on some future event that may never happen.

counterclaim. See COUNTERCLAIM.

cross-claim. See CROSS-CLAIM.

frivolous claim. A claim that has no legal basis or merit, esp. one brought for an unreasonable purpose such as harassment. Fed. R. Civ. P. 11(b). supplemental claim. A claim for further relief based on events occurring after the original claim was made.

5. Bankruptcy. A right to payment or to an equitable remedy for breach of performance if the breach gives rise to a right to payment. • It does not matter whether the right has been reduced to judgment or whether it is liquidated or unliquidated, fixed or contingent, matured or unmatured, disputed or undisputed, or secured or unsecured.

creditor's claim.Bankruptcy. A claim that a creditor has against a debtor. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2825.]

involuntary gap claim.Bankruptcy. A claim that accrues in the ordinary course of business after an involuntary bankruptcy petition has been filed but before the order for relief or the appointment of a trustee. • The Bankruptcy Code gives priority to creditors with claims of this type to encourage creditors to continue dealing with a debtor until the debtor has a chance to challenge the involuntary petition. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2833. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 240.]

priority claim.Bankruptcy. An unsecured claim that, under bankruptcy law, must be paid before other unsecured claims. • The Bankruptcy Code sets forth nine classes of claims, to be paid in order of priority: (1) administrative expenses of the bankruptcy estate, (2) involuntary gap claims, (3) wage claims, (4) contributions to employee benefit plans, (5) claims of grain farmers and fishermen, (6) consumer deposits, (7) alimony, maintenance, and child-support claims, (8) tax claims, and (9) capital requirements of an insured depository institution. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2951–2972. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 201–202, 255–267, 287, 351, 353, 259.]

secured claim.A claim held by a creditor who has a lien or a right of setoff against the debtor's property. [Cases: Secured Transactions 1. C.J.S. Secured Transactions §§ 3, 7–9, 23, 37.] unsecured claim. 1. A claim by a creditor who does not have a lien or a right of setoff against the debtor's property. 2. A claim by a creditor to the extent that its lien on or right of setoff against the debtor's property is worth less than the amount of the debt.

6.Patents. PATENT CLAIM.

CLAIM AND DELIVERY

claim and delivery.A claim for the recovery of specific personal property wrongfully taken or detained, as well as for any damages caused by the taking or detention. • This claim derives from the common-law action of replevin. See REPLEVIN. — Sometimes written claim-and-delivery. [Cases: Replevin 1. C.J.S. Replevin §§ 2–7.]

CLAIMANT

claimant,n. One who asserts a right or demand, esp. formally; esp., one who asserts a property interest in land, chattels, or tangible things.

occupying claimant.See OCCUPYING CLAIMANT.

CLAIM CHECK

claim check.A receipt obtained for bailed or checked property and surrendered by the holder when the bailee returns the property.

CLAIM DIFFERENTIATION

claim differentiation. Patents. A canon of construction presuming that each claim in a patent is different in scope and meaning from all other claims; the presumption that different terms in separate claims must have different meanings if one of the claims would otherwise be rendered superfluous. • The doctrine cannot be used by the patentee to broaden claims, and a court will ignore it when convinced that its interpretation of the claims is correct. The presumption is strongest when a different interpretation would be the only way to make a dependent claim more limiting than the independent claim it refers to. — Also termed doctrine of claim differentiation. [Cases: Patents 165(5). C.J.S. Patents §§ 283, 287, 290, 293.]

CLAIM DILUTION

claim dilution. Bankruptcy. The reduction in the likelihood that a debtor's claimants will be fully repaid, including considerations of the time value of money.

CLAIM FOR RELIEF

claim for relief. See CLAIM(1).

CLAIM IN EQUITY

claim in equity. Hist. A summary proceeding created to eliminate protracted pleading procedure in simple cases. • The claim in equity was established in England in 1850 and abolished in 1860.

CLAIM-JUMPING

claim-jumping. 1. The extension of the borders of a mining claim to infringe on other areas or claims. [Cases: Mines and Minerals 26. C.J.S. Mines and Minerals §§ 101–107.] 2. The filing of a duplicate claim to take advantage of a flaw in the original claim.

CLAIM LIMITATION

claim limitation. Patents. In a patent application, a statement that describes the means for performing a specified function without reciting the structure, materials, or acts that support that function. • Claim limitations define the invention by distinguishing it from prior art. [Cases: Patents 101(3).]

CLAIM OF APPEAL

claim of appeal. See NOTICE OF APPEAL.

CLAIM OF COGNIZANCE

claim of cognizance. Hist. An intervention seeking the return of a case to the claimant's own court. • Cognizance may be claimed by a person, city, or public corporation granted the right to hold court. — Also termed claim of conusance. See COGNIZANCE; CONUSANCE.

CLAIM OF CONUSANCE

claim of conusance. See CLAIM OF COGNIZANCE.

CLAIM OF LIBERTY

claim of liberty.Hist. A petition to the Crown, filed in the Court of Exchequer, seeking the Attorney General's confirmation of liberties and franchises.

CLAIM OF OWNERSHIP

claim of ownership. 1. The possession of a piece of property with the intention of claiming it in hostility to the true owner. [Cases: Adverse Possession 68. C.J.S. Adverse Possession §§ 61–63, 65, 67–69.] 2. A party's manifest intention to take over land, regardless of title or right. — Also termed claim of right; claim of title.

CLAIM OF PRIORITY

claim of priority.See BENEFIT OF AN EARLIER FILING DATE.

CLAIM OF RIGHT

claim of right. 1.Hist. A criminal plea, usu. to a theft charge, by a defendant asserting that the property was taken under the honest (but mistaken) belief that the defendant had a superior right to the property. • The claim of right could also be raised in defense against bigamy if a defendant honestly believed that an earlier marriage had been legally dissolved. It has been superseded by a defense of honesty. 2.Hist. An owner's action to recover unjustly taken land in fee simple by employing a writ of course. See WRIT OF COURSE. 3.CLAIM OF OWNERSHIP.

CLAIM-OF-RIGHT DOCTRINE claim-of-right doctrine.Tax. The rule that any income constructively received must be reported as income, whether or not the taxpayer has an unrestricted claim to it. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3086, 3118. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 53–54, 63.]

CLAIM OF TITLE

claim of title.See CLAIM OF OWNERSHIP.

CLAIM PRECLUSION

claim preclusion.See RES JUDICATA.

“[T]he principal distinction between claim preclusion and issue preclusion is ... that the former forecloses litigation of matters that have never been litigated. This makes it important to know the dimensions of the ‘claim’ that is foreclosed by bringing the first action, but unfortunately no precise definition is possible.” Charles Alan Wright, The Law of Federal Courts § 100A, at 723 (5th ed. 1994).

CLAIM THE FLOOR

claim the floor. Parliamentary law. To address the chair for the purpose of being recognized as entitled to speak. See FLOOR(1).

CLAM

clam (klam), adv. [Latin] Roman & civil law. Secretly; covertly. • Under Roman law, an act (such as occupying or altering the condition of someone else's property) was committed clam when it was done with the intent to conceal it in an effort to avoid liability. See INTERDICTUM QUOD VI AUT CLAM.

CLAMEA ADMITTENDA IN ITINERE PER ATTORNATUM

clamea admittenda in itinere per attornatum (klay-mee-<<schwa>> ad-m<<schwa>>-ten-d<<schwa>> in I-tin-<<schwa>>-ree p<<schwa>>r <<schwa>>-tor-nay-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin "claim to be admitted at the eyre by an attorney"] Hist. A writ from the king commanding the justices in eyre to permit by attorney the claim of a person employed in the king's service who cannot attend court in person.

CLAMEUR DE HARO

clameur de haro (klay-m<<schwa>>r dah-roh). [French] An outcry recognized in the Channel Islands as a protest against trespass to land. • The clameur de haro is a legal remnant of when the Duchy of Normandy held the islands before England took control in the 13th century. The victim's cry of haro (repeated 3 times) is popularly supposed to be an abbreviation of Ha Rollo, the first Duke of Normandy. The full cry, Haro, Haro, Haro, a l'aide, mon prince, on me fait tort, when registered at the local records office, enjoins the offender from possessing the land. See HARROW; HUE AND CRY; GRAND COUTUMIER DE PAYS ET DUCHÉ DE NORMANDIE .

clamor. 1.Hist. A lawsuit; a claim. 2.HUE AND CRY(1).3.Civil law. A claimant. 4.Civil law. The thing claimed from another.

CLANDESTINE

clandestine (klan-des-tin), adj. Secret or concealed, esp. for illegal or unauthorized purposes.

CLANDESTINE MARRIAGE

clandestine marriage.See MARRIAGE(1).

CLARE CONSTAT

clare constat (klair-ee kon-stat). [Law Latin] Scots law. It clearly appears. • The phrase appeared in reference to a precept, later a writ, for the grant of seisin to a vassal's heir, so called because the opening lines in the declaration stated that it clearly appeared that the grantee was the proper heir.

“A Precept of Clare Constat is a deed executed by a subject-superior, for the purpose of completing the title of his vassal's heir to the lands held by the deceased vassal, under the granter of the precept.... The precept of clare constat proceeded on any evidence, whether judicial or not, which satisfies the superior that the person claiming the entry is heir of the last vassal.” William Bell, Bell's Dictionary and Digest of the Law of Scotland 185 (George Watson ed., 7th ed. 1890).

CLARITY

Clarity. An international association of lawyers and other professionals who advocate plain language in legal and official documents. • Founded in 1983, it has members in more than 25 countries and a system of country representatives. It publishes a journal called Clarity.

CLASS

class,n.1. A group of people, things, qualities, or activities that have common characteristics or attributes  <the upper-middle class>.

protected class.A class of people who benefit from protection by statute, such as Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which prohibits discrimination based on race, sex, national origin, or religion. [Cases: Civil Rights 1007, 1107, 1152, 1165. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 2–5, 7–9, 11–13, 18, 22, 26–27, 30–31, 33–37, 41–42, 44, 67, 88.]

2. The order or rank that people or things are arranged in <she flew first class to Chicago>.3. A group of people, uncertain in number .

testamentary class (tes-t<<schwa>>-men-t<<schwa>>-ree or -tree). A group of beneficiaries who are uncertain in number but whose number will be ascertainable in the future, when each will take an equal or other proportionate share of the gift. [Cases: Wills 521. C.J.S. Wills § 967.]

4.Civil procedure. A group of people who have a common legal position, so that all their claims can be efficiently adjudicated in a single proceeding . [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 161–189; Parties 35.1. C.J.S. Parties § 28.]

opt-out class. A plaintiff class, certified under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(b)(3), from which class members may choose to exclude themselves if they do not want to be bound by the decisions or settlements reached in the case. • Rule 23(e) permits courts to dismiss class members who request exclusion. Class members may wait until the settlement's terms are announced before choosing to opt out.

settlement class. Numerous similarly situated people for whom a claimant's representative and an adversary propose a contract specifying the payment terms for the class members' claims in exchange for the release of all claims against the adversary. • During the 1980s and 1990s, mass-tort defendants began using settlement classes as a means of foreclosing claims by some unknown number of existing and future claimants. See, e.g., Amchem Prods., Inc. v. Windsor, 521 U.S. 591, 117 S.Ct. 2231 (1997).

CLASS ACTION

class action. A lawsuit in which the court authorizes a single person or a small group of people to represent the interests of a larger group; specif., a lawsuit in which the convenience either of the public or of the interested parties requires that the case be settled through litigation by or against only a part of the group of similarly situated persons and in which a person whose interests are or may be affected does not have an opportunity to protect his or her interests by appearing personally or through a personally selected representative, or through a person specially appointed to act as a trustee or guardian. • Federal procedure has several prerequisites for maintaining a class action: (1) the class must be so large that individual suits would be impracticable, (2) there must be legal or factual questions common to the class, (3) the claims or defenses of the representative parties must be typical of those of the class, and (4) the representative parties must adequately protect the interests of the class. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23. — Also termed class suit; representative action. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 161–189; Parties 35.1–35.89. C.J.S. Parties §§ 28–38, 40, 55.]

“The class action was an invention of equity ... mothered by the practical necessity of providing a procedural device so that mere numbers would not disable large groups of individuals, united in interest, from enforcing their equitable rights nor grant them immunity from their equitable wrongs.... By rule 23 the Supreme Court has ex-tended the use of the class action device to the entire field of federal civil litigation by making it applicable to all civil actions.” Montgomery Ward & Co. v. Langer, 168 F.2d 182, 187 (8th Cir. 1948).

hybrid class action. Hist. A type of action in which the rights to be enforced were several and varied, but the object was to adjudicate claims that affected or might have affected the specific property in the action. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 166; Parties 35. C.J.S. Parties § 73.]

spurious class action. Hist. A former category of class action in which the interests of class members are several, not interdependent, and joinder is allowed to avoid multiplicity of suits. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 166; Parties 35. C.J.S. Parties § 73.]

clausa rebus sic stantibus (klawz-<<schwa>> ree-b<<schwa>>s sik stan-t<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] Int'l law. 1. A treaty provision stating that the treaty is binding only as long as the circumstances in existence when the treaty was signed remain substantially the same. 2. A doctrine by which the law supplies such a provision to a treaty that does not expressly contain one; REBUS SIC STANTIBUS. • The doctrine may be invoked when a fundamental change in circumstances (1) alters the essential basis for the parties' consent to be bound by the treaty, and (2) radically transforms the extent of the parties' performances under the treaty. But the doctrine does not apply to treaties establishing boundaries. Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties art. 62 (1155 U.N.T.S. 331, 8 I.L.M. 679 (1969)). — Often shortened to clausa. — Also termed clausula rebus sic stantibus; clausula.

clause, n. 1. A distinct section or provision of a legal document or instrument. 2. ITEM(3). — clausal, adj.

enacting clause. The part of a statute stating the legislative authority by which it is made and often the date when it will take effect. • A typical enacting clause begins with the words “Be it enacted that....” The enacting clause of a federal statute is, “Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.” Some state constitutions specify the enacting clause for legislation, without which the legislation is void. In codifications of statutes, enacting clauses generally appear not in the text of the statutes but in historical or legislative notes. [Cases: Statutes 210.]

operative clause. A provision under an enacting or resolving clause; a provision that is not a mere recital or preamble. See resolving clause.

resolving clause. The clause that introduces a resolution's operative text, usu. beginning with “Resolved, That....” • A resolving clause is comparable to a statute's enacting clause. — Also termed operative clause. See enacting clause; RESOLUTION(1). Cf. PREAMBLE(1).

CLEAN-HANDS DOCTRINE

clean-hands doctrine.The principle that a party cannot seek equitable relief or assert an equitable defense if that party has violated an equitable principle, such as good faith. • Such a party is described as having “unclean hands.” For example, § 8 of the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act contains an unclean-hands provision that forbids a court from exercising jurisdiction in a child-custody suit in certain situations, as when one party has wrongfully removed a child from another state, has improperly retained custody of a child after visitation, or has wrongfully removed a child from the person with custody. The clean-hands doctrine evolved from the discretionary nature of equitable relief in English courts of equity, such as Chancery. — Also termed unclean-hands doctrine. [Cases: Equity 65.C.J.S. Equity § 102.]

CLEAN HOUSE

CLEAR-AND-PRESENT-DANGER TEST

clear-and-present-danger test. Constitutional law. The doctrine allowing the government to restrict the First Amendment freedoms of speech and press if necessary to prevent immediate and severe danger to interests that the government may lawfully protect. • This test was formulated by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes in Schenck v. United States, 249 U.S. 47, 39 S.Ct. 247 (1919). — Also termed clear-and-present-danger doctrine. [Cases: Constitutional Law 90(3). C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 502, 542, 546–550.]

“The ‘clear and present danger’ doctrine is concerned with distinguishing protected advocacy from unprotected incitement of violent or illegal conduct.... The conventional wisdom of the day was that speech was punishable as an attempt if the natural and reasonable tendency of what was said would be to bring about a forbidden effect. In addition, the criminal defendant must have used the words with an intent to bring about that effect, although such specific intent could be inferred from the tendency of the words on the presumption that one intends the consequences of one's speech. The formula announced by Justice Holmes easily fits within this framework. ‘The question in every case is whether the words used are used in circumstances and are of such a nature as to create a clear and present danger that they will bring about the substantive evils that Congress has a right to prevent.’ ” Laurence H. Tribe, American Constitutional Law 608 (1978) (quoting Schenck v. United States, 249 U.S. 47, 52, 39 S.Ct. 247, 249 (1919)).

See INTERN. [Cases: Courts 55. C.J.S. Courts §§ 107–109.] 5. A lawyer who assists a judge with research, writing, and case management. — Also termed briefing attorney; research attorney; staff attorney. [Cases: Courts 55. C.J.S. Courts §§ 107–109.] “[M]odern American judging in all courts of national significance — the federal courts and the more prominent state appellate courts — staggers along despite the burden of bloated caseloads and the shortcomings of distinctly human judges only by the delegation of a great deal of the labor of judging to law clerks: subordinate, anonymous, but often quite powerful lawyers who function as the noncommissioned officers in the army of the judiciary.” John Bilyeu Oakley & Robert S. Thompson, Law Clerks and the Judicial Process 2 (1980).

6.Hist. A cleric.“Eventually the rule was established that ‘clerks’ of all kinds, who committed any of the serious crimes termed felonies, could be tried only in an ecclesiastical court, and therefore were only amenable to such punishments as that court could inflict. Any clerk accused of such crime was accordingly passed over to the bishop’s court. He was there tried before a jury of clerks by the oaths of twelve compurgators; a mode of trial which usually ensured him an acquittal.” J.W. Cecil Turner, Kenny’s Outlines of Criminal Law 75 (16th ed. 1952).

CLOSE DEBATE

close debate. Parliamentary law. To pass a motion that ends debate and amendment of a pending question or series of questions. • The synonymous shorthand “previous question,” a somewhat archaic and misleading term that several parliamentary manuals still use for this motion, has evolved over time. Two centuries ago, the motion was invented for suppressing an undesirable debate: if the original form — “Shall the main question be put?” — passed in the negative, then the body immediately stopped considering the pending question. The motion's form later became “that the main question shall now be put,” which if passed in the affirmative brought the pending question to an immediate vote, and if passed in the negative had no effect. — Also termed vote immediately. See CLOTURE. Cf. EXTEND DEBATE; LIMIT DEBATE.

COASE THEOREM

Coase Theorem (kōhs). An economic proposition describing the relationship between legal rules about entitlements and economic efficiency. • The theorem, innovated by Ronald Coase, holds that if there are no transaction costs — such as the costs of bargaining or acquiring information — then any legal rule will produce an efficient result. Coase's seminal article was The Problem of Social Cost, 3 J. Law & Econ. 1 (1960).

“Nothing is more central to the study of law and economics nor more responsible for its growth than the Coase Theorem. What the Coase Theorem says, in effect, is that in many instances, the assignment of rights by courts or legal authorities may have little to do with who eventually possesses those rights. In the words of Mark Kelman, ‘the market, like an untameable river, will knock out attempts to alter its mighty course.’ ” Jeffrey L. Harrison, Law and Economics in a Nutshell 56 (1995).

CO-ASSIGNEE

co-assignee. A person who, along with one or more others, is an assignee of the same subject matter. [Cases: Assignments 32. C.J.S. Assignments § 44.]

COASTAL-STATE CONTROL

COBRA

COBRA (koh-br<<schwa>>). abbr. CONSOLIDATED OMNIBUS BUDGET RECONCILIATION ACT OF 1985.

COCONSPIRATOR

coconspirator. A person who engages in a criminal conspiracy with another; a fellow conspirator. — Also spelled co-conspirator. See CONSPIRATOR. [Cases: Conspiracy 1.1, 23.1, 39. C.J.S. Conspiracy §§ 2–3, 8, 14–17, 98, 100–103, 110, 134, 137.]

unindicted coconspirator. A person who has been identified by law enforcement as a member of a conspiracy, but who has not been named in the fellow conspirator's indictment. • Prosecutors typically name someone an unindicted coconspirator because any statement that the unindicted coconspirator has made in the course and furtherance of the conspiracy is admissible against the indicted defendants. — Also termed unindicted conspirator.

COCONSPIRATOR'S EXCEPTION

coconspirator's exception. An exception to the hearsay rule whereby one conspirator's acts and statements, if made during and in furtherance of the conspiracy, are admissible against a defendant even if the statements are made in the defendant's absence. See Fed. R. Evid. 801(d)(2)(E). — Also termed coconspirator's rule. See HEARSAY. [Cases: Criminal Law 422–428; Evidence 253. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 972–977, 979–997; Evidence § 452.]

C.O.D.

C.O.D. abbr. 1. Cash on delivery; collect on delivery. • By consenting to this delivery term, the buyer agrees to pay simultaneously with delivery and appoints the carrier as the buyer's agent to receive and transmit the payment to the seller. With C.O.D. contracts, the practice of carriers has traditionally been to disallow inspection before payment. [Cases: Sales 82(3).] 2. Costs on delivery. 3. Cash on demand. — Sometimes written c.o.d.

CODA

CODA.abbr.CASH OR DEFERRED ARRANGEMENT.

CODE

code. 1. A complete system of positive law, carefully arranged and officially promulgated; a systematic collection or revision of laws, rules, or regulations <the Uniform Commercial Code>. • Strictly, a code is a compilation not just of existing statutes, but also of much of the unwritten law on a subject, which is newly enacted as a complete system of law. — Also termed consolidated laws. See CODIFICATION.

“A code is not only a collection of the existing statutory law, but also of much of the unwritten law on any subject, and is composed partly of such materials as might be at hand from all sources — from statutes, cases, and from customs — supplemented by such amendments, alterations, and additions as are deemed by the codifiers necessary to harmonize and perfect the existing system. In fact, in making a code, new laws may be added and old laws repealed in order to constitute a complete system.” William M. Lile et al., Brief Making and the Use of Law Books 18–19 (3d ed. 1914).

2. (usu. cap.) The collection of laws and constitutions made by order of the Roman Emperor Justinian and first authoritatively published in A.D. 529 (with a second edition in 534). • Contained in 12 books, the Code is one of four works that make up what is now called the Corpus Juris Civilis. — Also termed (in sense 2) Legal Code. See CODEX; CORPUS JURIS CIVILIS.

CODE CIVIL

Code Civil.The code embodying the civil law of France, dating from 1804. • It was first known as the Code civil des français to distinguish it from the other four codes promoted by Napoleon. From 1807 to 1816 it was called Code Napoléon, a title that was restored by a decree of Louis Napoleon. Since 1870, French statutes have consistently referred simply to the code civil. Cf. NAPOLEONIC CODE. See CIVIL CODE(1).

CODED COMMUNICATIONS

coded communications.Messages that are encoded or enciphered by some method of transposition or substitution so that they become unintelligible to anyone who does not have the key to the code or cipher.

CODE DE COMMERCE

Code de commerce (kohd d<<schwa>> kaw-mairs). A codification of French commercial law, enacted in 1807, dealing with commercial transactions, bankruptcy, and the jurisdiction and procedure of the courts handling these subjects. • This code supplemented the Code Napoléon. See NAPOLEONIC CODE.

CODE DE PROCÉDURE CIVIL

Code de procédure civil (kohd d<<schwa>> praw-se-door see-veel). A French civil-procedure code, enacted in 1806 and appended to the Code Napoléon. See NAPOLEONIC CODE.

CODE D'INSTRUCTION CRIMINELLE

CODEFENDANT

codefendant. One of two or more defendants sued in the same litigation or charged with the same crime. — Also termed joint defendant. Cf. COMPLAINTIFF.

CODE NAPOLÉON

Code Napoléon (kohd na-poh-lay-awn). See NAPOLEONIC CODE.

CODE NOIR

Code Noir (kohd nwahr). [French “black code”] Hist. A body of laws issued by Louis XIV and applied in French colonies. • The Code regulated slavery and banned Jews and non-Catholic religious practices from the colonies.

CODE OF CONDUCT

code of conduct. A written set of rules governing the behavior of a specified group, such as lawyers, government employees, or corporate employees. [Cases: Attorney and Client 32(2); Officers and Public Employees 110. C.J.S. Attorney and Client § 44; Officers and Public Employees §§ 234–245.]

CODE OF FEDERAL REGULATIONS

Code of Federal Regulations. The annual collection of executive-agency regulations published in the daily Federal Register, combined with previously issued regulations that are still in effect. — Abbr. CFR. [Cases: Administrative Law and Procedure 407. C.J.S. Public Administrative Law and Procedure § 113.]

CODE OF HAMMURABI

Code of Hammurabi (hah-m<<schwa>>-rah-bee or ham-<<schwa>>-). The oldest known written legal code, produced in Mesopotamia during the rule of Hammurabi (who reigned from 1792 to 1750 B.C.). • The code consisted of nearly 300 provisions, arranged under headings such as family, trade, real property, personal property, and labor.

CODE OF JUDICIAL CONDUCT

Code of Judicial Conduct. The body of standards governing the professional ethics and behavior of judges. • The American Bar Association drafted a Model Code of Judicial Conduct and formally adopted it in 1972. In 1973, the U.S. Judicial Conference used the code as the basis for the Code of Conduct for United States Judges. Portions of the code are also found in federal law (see, e.g., 28 USCA § 455). The 1972 ABA Code has been superseded by the 1990 ABA Model Code of Judicial Conduct. Each state has a code of judicial conduct, based on the 1972 or 1990 model code or a blend of both. A state's highest court is responsible for drafting and enacting the code. — Abbr. CJC.

CODE OF JUSTINIAN

Code of Justinian.See JUSTINIAN CODE.

CODE OF MILITARY JUSTICE

Code of Military Justice.The collection of substantive and procedural rules governing the discipline of members of the armed forces.10 USCA §§ 801 et seq. — Also termed Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ). [Cases: Armed Services 42.1; Military Justice 502. C.J.S. Military Justice § 3.]

CODE OF PROFESSIONAL RESPONSIBILITY

Code of Professional Responsibility.See MODEL CODE OF PROFESSIONAL RESPONSIBILITY .

CODE OF WAR

code of war.Legal rules that regulate international armed conflict. • A code of war may arise from many sources, including custom, treaties, scholarly writings, and domestic legislation. One of the earliest known treatises on rules governing the conduct of war was written by Sun Tzu in the 4th century B.C.

CODE PÉNAL

Code pénal (kohd pay-nal). The fourth of five codes promoted by Napoleon, enacted in 1810, setting forth the penal code of France. See NAPOLEONIC CODE.

CODE PLEADING

code pleading.See PLEADING(2).

CODE STATE

code state.Hist. A state that, at a given time, had already procedurally merged law and equity, so that equity was no longer administered as a separate system; a state in which there is only one form of civil action. • This term was current primarily in the early to mid-20th century. Cf. NONCODE STATE .

CODEX

codex (koh-deks). [Latin] Archaic. 1. A code, esp. the Justinian Code. 2. A book written on paper or parchment; esp., a volume of an ancient text.

CODEX GREGORIANUS

Codex Gregorianus (koh-deks gri-gor-ee-ay-n<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Roman law. A collection of imperial con-stitutions compiled by the Roman jurist Gregorius and published in A.D. 291. — Also termed Gregorian Code.

“The imperial enactments, rapidly increasing in number, covering, at hazard, the whole range of law, and, by reason of difficulties of communication and imperfect methods of promulgation, not always readily ascertainable, created a burden for the practitioner almost as great as that of the unmanageable juristic literature. Something was done to help him by two collections published privately about the end of the third century, the Codex Gregorianus and Codex Hermogenianus. These collections do not now exist: what is known of them is from citations in later literature....” W.W. Buckland, A Manual of Roman Private Law 20–21 (2d ed. 1939).

CODEX HERMOGENIANUS

Codex Hermogenianus (koh-deks h<<schwa>>r-m<<schwa>>-jee-nee-ay-n<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Roman law. A collection of imperial constitutions compiled by the Roman jurist Hermogenianus and published in A.D. 295. • The Codex Hermogenianus supplemented the Codex Gregorianus. — Also termed Hermogenian Code.

CODEX JUSTINIANUS

Codex Justinianus. See JUSTINIAN CODE.

CODEX REPETITAE PRAELECTIONIS

Codex Repetitae Praelectionis (koh-deks rep-<<schwa>>-tl-tee pri-lek-shee-oh-nis). [Latin “code of the resumed reading”] Roman law. See JUSTINIAN CODE.

“By the time when the Digest and Institutes had been completed it was obvious that the Codex, published little more than four years earlier, was incomplete, since in the interval Justinian ... had promulgated other new con-stitutions. Tribonian, therefore, was appointed to revise the Code, so as to bring it fully up to date, and at the end of the year A.D. 534 this new Code, known as the Codex Repetitae Praelectionis, was promulgated, and is the only Code which survives to the present day. Justinian seems to have laboured under the erroneous impression that the system he had framed would be adequate for all time. But as there is nothing static about law, further legislative enactments, termed Novellae Constitutiones, were issued during his reign.... In modern times Justinian's various compilations came to be called collectively the Corpus Juris Civilis: the Corpus being regarded as a single work, made up of the Institutes, the Digest, the Codex Repetitae Praelectionis, and the Novels.” R.W. Leage, Roman Private Law 44 (C.H. Ziegler ed., 2d ed. 1930).

CODEX THEODOSIANUS

Codex Theodosianus (koh-deks thee-<<schwa>>-doh-shee-ay-n<<schwa>>s). [Latin] See THEODOSIAN CODE.

CODICIL

codicil (kod-<<schwa>>-s<<schwa>>l or -sil). A supplement or addition to a will, not necessarily disposing of the entire estate but modifying, explaining, or otherwise qualifying the will in some way. • When admitted to probate, the codicil becomes a part of the will. [Cases: Wills 99.C.J.S. Wills § 214.]

“A Schedule or supplement to a Will, or some other writing; some Writers, conferring a Testament, and a Codicil together, call a Testament a great Will, and a Codicil a little one; and compare a Testament to a Ship, and the Codicil to the Boat tied to the Ship.” Thomas Blount, Nomo-Lexicon: A Law-Dictionary (1670).

“A codicil, from codicillus, a small codex, a little book or writing, may be defined as a writing by the testator intended as a supplement or addition to his will, the effect of which may be either to enlarge or restrict it, or to annul or revoke it altogether. It may add to or subtract from provisions of the will, may explain or alter, confirm or revoke them wholly or in part; or, when the will itself is invalid, may by a valid re-execution and republication revive and renew the will.” 1 H.C. Underhill, A Treatise on the Law of Wills § 7, at 11 (1900).

CODICILLARY

codicillary (kod-<<schwa>>-sil<<schwa>>-ree), adj. Of or relating to a codicil.

CODICILLUS

codicillus (kod-<<schwa>>-sil<<schwa>>s), n. [Latin “little document”] Roman law. 1. An informal document instructing an heir to carry out a certain performance, usu. the payment of money or the transfer of property to a third person. • During the reign of Augustus (27 B.C.–A.D. 14), directives (fideicommissa) contained in codicilli became legally binding. See FIDEICOMMISSUM. 2. An imperially granted appointment or special privilege.

CODIFICATION

codification (kod-<<schwa>>-fi-kay-sh<<schwa>>n), n.1. The process of compiling, arranging, and systema-tizing the laws of a given jurisdiction, or of a discrete branch of the law, into an ordered code. 2. The code that results from this process. [Cases: Statutes 144–148, 231. C.J.S. Statutes §§ 266–275, 374–375.] — codify (kod-<<schwa>>-fl), vb. — codifier (kod-<<schwa>>-fl<<schwa>>r), n.

CODIFYING STATUTE

codifying statute. See STATUTE.

COEFFICIENT CLAUSE

Coefficient Clause. See NECESSARY AND PROPER CLAUSE.

COEMPTIO

coemptio (koh-emp-shee-oh), n. [Latin] Roman law. A form of civil marriage in which the husband “purchased” from a woman's father — by fictitious sale — the right to exercise marital power (manus) over the woman. • The father conveyed his daughter to her husband through the technical procedure of a sale of res mancipi. The imaginary sale took place in the presence of five adult Roman citizens and a balance-holder (libripens). The husband or fictitious purchaser was termed the coemptor or coemptor. The importance of coemptio as a method of civil marriage had faded by the end of the Republic period. Pl. coemptiones (koh-emp-shee-oh-nee-z). Cf. CONFARREATIO; USUS(3).

COEMPTION

coemption (koh-emp-sh<<schwa>>n), n.1. The act of purchasing the entire quantity of any commodity. 2.COEMPTIO. — coemptional, coemptive,adj.

COERCE

coerce (koh-<<schwa>>rs), vb. To compel by force or threat <coerce a confession>.

COERCED CONFESSION

coerced confession.See CONFESSION.

COERCION

coercion (koh-<<schwa>>r-zh<<schwa>>n), n.1. Compulsion by physical force or threat of physical force. • An act such as signing a will is not legally valid if done under coercion. And since a valid marriage requires voluntary consent, coercion or duress is grounds for invalidating a marriage.

criminal coercion.Coercion intended to restrict another's freedom of action by: (1) threatening to commit a criminal act against that person; (2) threatening to accuse that person of having committed a criminal act; (3) threatening to expose a secret that either would subject the victim to hatred, contempt, or ridicule or would impair the victim's credit or goodwill; or (4) taking or withholding official action or causing an official to take or withhold action. [Cases: Extortion and Threats 1, 25.1. C.J.S. Threats and Unlawful Communications §§ 2–20.]

moral coercion.See UNDUE INFLUENCE(1).

2. Conduct that constitutes the improper use of economic power to compel another to submit to the wishes of one who wields it. — Also termed economic coercion. 3.Hist. A husband's actual or supposed control or influence over his wife's actions. • Under the common-law doctrine of coercion, a wife who committed a crime in her husband's presence was presumed to have been coerced by him and thus had a complete defense. Courts have abolished this doctrine. — Also termed doctrine of coercion. — coercive,adj. — coercer,n.“Although as an abstract statement any action or restraint imposed upon one by another may be spoken of as coercion, there has been a tendency in the criminal law to employ the word ‘compulsion’ for the general field and to reserve the word ‘coercion’ to indicate the exercise of such influence (actual or presumed) over a married woman by her husband. And since the latter is not merely a specific instance of the former, but is something which differs from it in kind so far as common-law consequences are concerned, there are important reasons for retaining this difference in the meaning to be assigned to these terms.”

COGNATE

cognate, adj. See COGNATIC.

cognate, n. One who is kin to another. • In Roman law, the term means a blood relationship and implies that the kinship derives from a lawful marriage. In Scots and later civil law, the term implies kinship from the mother's side. Cf. AGNATE.

COGNATE NUISANCE

cognate nuisance. See NUISANCE.

COGNATE OFFENSE

cognate offense. See OFFENSE(1).

COGNATI

cognati. See COGNATUS.

COGNATIC

cognatic (kog-nat-ik), adj. (Of a relationship) existing between cognates. — Also termed cognate.

COGNATIO

cognatio (kog-nay-shee-oh), n. [Latin] Roman law. The relationship between people having a common ancestor; a blood relationship; cognates. Cf. AGNATIO.

COGNATION

cognition (kog-nay-sh<<schwa>>n), n.1. Relationship by blood rather than by marriage; relationship arising through common descent from the same man and woman, whether the descent is traced through males or females.

“ ‘Cognition’ is ... a relative term, and the degree of connexion in blood which it indicates depends on the particular marriage which is selected as the commencement of the calculation.” Henry S. Maine, Ancient Law 122 (17th ed. 1901).

2.Civil law. A relationship existing between two people by blood, by family, or by both.

civil cognition.A relationship arising by law, such as that created by adoption.

mixed cognition.A relationship that combines the ties of blood and family, such as that existing between brothers who are born of the same marriage.

natural cognition.A blood relationship, usu. arising from an illicit connection.

3. Relationship between persons or things of the same or similar nature; likeness.

COGNATUS

cognatus (kog-nay-t<<schwa>>s), n. & adj.[Latin] Roman law. A cognatic relative; a person related to another by a common ancestor. — Also termed cognate. Cf. AGNATUS. Pl. cognati.

COGNITIO

cognitio (kog-nish-ee-oh), n. [fr. Latin cognoscere “to know”] 1.Hist. The acknowledgment of a fine, or the certificate of such an acknowledgment. 2.Roman law. See COGNITIO EXTRAORDINARIA. Pl. cognitiones (kog-nish-ee-oh-nee-z).

COGNITIO EXTRAORDINARIA

cognitio extraordinaria (kog-nish-ee-oh ek-stror-di-nair-ee-<<schwa>> or ek-str<<schwa>>-or-). [Latin] Roman law. A type of legal proceeding, arising at the beginning of the Empire, in which a government official controlled the conduct of a trial from beginning to end, as opposed to the earlier formulary system in which a magistrate shaped the issues and then turned the issues of fact and law over to a lay judge (a judex). — Sometimes shortened to cognitio. — Also termed cognitio extra ordinem (kog-nish-ee-oh ek-str<<schwa>> or-d<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>m).

“The cognitio extra ordinem or cognitio extraordinaria is a collective name for all those legal procedures in which the trial consists of one stage only and in which judgment is given by the emperor or by an imperial official acting on behalf of the emperor. The disputes that were settled by means of the cognition procedure could be of very different kinds: not only could they be about matters concerning private law and criminal law, but they could also be disputes between citizens and government officials.” Olga Tellegen-Couperus, A Short History of Roman Law 90 (1993).

COGNITIONIBUS MITTENDIS

cognitionibus mittendis (kog-nish-ee-oh-n<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>s mi-ten-dis). [Latin “cognizance of pleas to be released”] Hist. A writ ordering a justice of the Common Pleas to certify a fine that the justice had imposed but refused to certify.

COGNITIONIS CAUSA TANTUM

cognitionis causa tantum (kog-nish-ee-oh-nis kaw-z<<schwa>> tan-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin “for the purpose of ascertaining a debt against the estate”] Scots law. A creditor's action against a deceased debtor's estate to ascertain the amount of the debt.

COGNITIVE TEST

cognitive test. Criminal law. A test of the defendant's ability to know certain things, specif., the nature of his or her conduct and whether the conduct was right or wrong. • This test is used in assessing whether a defendant may rely on an insanity defense. [Cases: Criminal Law 48.]

COGNITOR

cognitor (kog-ni-tor), n. Roman law. A person formally appointed to represent another in a civil trial. Cf. PROCURATOR(1).

COGNIZABLE

cognizable (kog-ni- or kog-nI-z<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l), adj. 1. Capable of being known or recognized <for purposes of establishing standing, a plaintiff must allege a judicially cognizable injury>. 2. Capable of being identified as a group because of a common characteristic or interest that cannot be represented by others <American Indians qualify as a cognizable group for jury-selection purposes>. 3. Capable of being judicially tried or examined before a designated tribunal; within the court's jurisdiction <the tort claims are not cognizable under the consumer-protection statute>.

COGNIZANCE

cognizance (kog-ni-z<<schwa>>ns), n. 1. A court's right and power to try and to determine cases; JURISDICTION. [Cases: Courts 2. C.J.S. Courts § 16–17.] 2. The taking of judicial or authoritative notice. [Cases: Evidence 1. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 8–11, 106.] 3. Acknowledgment or admission of an alleged fact; esp. (hist.), acknowledgment of a fine. See FINE(1); FINE SUR COGNIZANCE DE DROIT. 4. Common-law pleading. In a replevin action, a plea by the defendant that the goods are held in bailment for another. Cf. AVOWRY. [Cases: Replevin 64.]

COGNIZEE

cognizee (kog-ni-zee). Hist. The grantee of land in a conveyance by fine. — Also termed conusee; conuzee. See FINE(1).

COGNIZOR

cognizor (kog-ni-z<<schwa>>r or -zor). Hist. The grantor of land in a conveyance by fine. — Also termed conusor; conuzor. See FINE(1).

“Next comes the concord, or agreement itself, after leave obtained from the court; which is usually an acknowledgment ... that the lands in question are the right of the complainant. And from this acknowledgment, or recognition of right, the party levying the fine is called the cognizor, and he to whom it is levied the cognizee.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 350–51 (1766).

COGNOVIT

cognovit (kog-noh-vit). [Latin “he has conceded (a debt or an action)”] An acknowledgment of debt or liability in the form of a confessed judgment. • Formerly, credit contracts often included a cognovit clause in which the consumer relinquished, in advance, any right to be notified of court hearings in any suit for nonpayment — but such clauses are now generally illegal. See CONFESSION OF JUDGMENT. Cf. WARRANT OF ATTORNEY. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2396; Judgment 54. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 140, 143–144, 170.]

“A cognovit is an instrument signed by a defendant in an action actually commenced confessing the plaintiff's demand to be just, and empowering the plaintiff to sign judgment against him in default of his paying the plaintiff the sum due to him within the time mentioned in the cognovit.” John Indermaur, Principles of the Common Law 8 (Edmund H. Bennett ed., 1st Am. ed. 1878).

COGNOVIT ACTIONEM

cognovit actionem (kog-noh-vit ak-shee-oh-n<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin “he has confessed the action”] A de-fendant's written acknowledgment of the plaintiff's claim, authorizing the plaintiff to take a judgment for a named sum; a cognovit.

COGNOVIT CLAUSE

cognovit clause.A contractual provision by which a debtor agrees to jurisdiction in certain courts, waives notice requirements, and authorizes the entry of an adverse judgment in the event of a default or breach. • Cognovit clauses are outlawed or restricted in most states. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2396; Judgment 54. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 140, 143–144, 170.]

COGNOVIT JUDGMENT

cognovit judgment.See JUDGMENT.

COGNOVIT NOTE

cognovit note.A promissory note containing a cognovit clause. — Also termed judgment note. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2396; Judgment 54. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 140, 143–144, 170.]

COGSA

COGSA. 1.abbr.CARRIAGE OF GOODS BY SEA ACT. 2.Maritime law. A country's enactment of the inter-national convention popularly known as the Hague Rules. • The acronym is used even when the country's statute has a different title; for example, the Canadian Carriage of Goods by Water Act is referred to as the “Canadian COGSA.”

COHABITATION

cohabitation (koh-hab-<<schwa>>-tay-sh<<schwa>>n), n. The fact or state of living together, esp. as partners in life, usu. with the suggestion of sexual relations. [Cases: Marriage 13, 22. C.J.S. Marriage §§ 10, 19–20, 24–25.] — cohabit (koh-hab-it), vb. — cohabitative (koh-hab-<<schwa>>-tay-tiv), adj. — cohabitant (koh-hab-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>nt), cohabitor (koh-hab-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>r), n.

illicit cohabitation. 1. The offense committed by an unmarried man and woman who live together as husband and wife and engage in sexual intercourse. • This offense, where it still exists, is seldom prosecuted. 2. The condition of a man and a woman who are not married to one another and live together in circumstances that make the arrangement questionable on grounds of social propriety, though not necessarily illegal. — Also termed lascivious cohabitation; lewd and lascivious cohabitation. Cf. FORNICATION. [Cases: Criminal Law 45.40; Lewd-ness 1. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 7.10; Lewdness §§ 2–9.]

matrimonial cohabitation. The living together of husband and wife.

notorious cohabitation. Archaic. Illicit cohabitation in which the parties make no attempt to hide their living arrangements. — Also termed open and notorious cohabitation. See illicit cohabitation. [Cases: Lewdness 1. C.J.S. Lewdness §§ 2–9.]

COHABITATION AGREEMENT

COLLATERAL MORTGAGE

collateral mortgage. See MORTGAGE.

COLLATERAL NEGLIGENCE

collateral negligence. See NEGLIGENCE.

COLLATERAL-NEGLIGENCE DOCTRINE

collateral-negligence doctrine. The rule holding that one who engages an independent contractor is not liable for physical harm that the contractor causes if (1) the contractor's negligence consists solely of the improper manner in which the contractor's work is performed, (2) the risk of harm created is not normal to the work, and (3) the employer had no reason to contemplate the contractor's negligence when the contract was made. [Cases: Master and Servant 315, 319. C.J.S. Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 231–236, 239–240, 242, 244–246, 248, 251–252, 254–255.]

COLLATERAL NOTE

collateral note. See secured note under NOTE(1).

COLLATERAL OBLIGATION

collateral obligation. A liability undertaken by a person who becomes bound for another's debt. — Also termed accessory obligation.

COLLATERAL-ORDER DOCTRINE

collateral-order doctrine. A doctrine allowing appeal from an interlocutory order that conclusively determines an issue wholly separate from the merits of the action and effectively unreviewable on appeal from a final judgment. — Also termed Cohen doctrine (fr. Cohen v. Beneficial Indus. Loan Corp., 337 U.S. 541, 69 S.Ct. 1221 (1949)). See appealable decision under DECISION. [Cases: Appeal and Error 72; Federal Courts 572.1. C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 89, 109, 113.]

COLLATERAL USE

collateral use. See USE(1).

COLLATERAL WARRANTY

collateral warranty. See WARRANTY(1).

COLLATIO BONORUM

collatio bonorum (k<<schwa>>-lay-shee-oh b<<schwa>>-nor-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “collation of goods”] Civil law. The bringing into hotchpot of goods or money advanced by a parent to a child, so that the parent's personal estate will be equally distributed among the parent's children. Pl. collationes bonorum. See HOTCHPOT.

collation (k<<schwa>>-lay-sh<<schwa>>n), n.1. The comparison of a copy with its original to ascertain its correctness; the report of the officer who made the comparison. 2. The taking into account of the value of ad-vancements made by an intestate to his or her children so that the estate may be divided in accordance with the intestacy statute. Cf. HOTCHPOT. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 93–118. C.J.S. Descent and Distribu-tion §§ 69, 95–111, 116.] 3.Eccles. law. The act (by a bishop) of conferring a benefice in which the bishop holds the right of advowson, thus combining the acts of presentation and institution. — Also termed collation to a benefice. See advowson collative under ADVOWSON. — collate (k<<schwa>>-layt), vb. — collator (k<<schwa>>-lay-t<<schwa>>r), n.

COLLATIONE FACTA UNI POST MORTEM ALTERIUS

collatione facta uni post mortem alterius (k<<schwa>>-lay-shee-oh-nee fak-t<< schwa>>yoo-nI pohst mor-t<<schwa>>m al-teer-ee-<<schwa>>s [or awl-]). [Law Latin “by collation to a benefice made to one after the death of the other”] Hist. A writ directed to the Court of Common Pleas, requesting that the court order a bishop to appoint a clerk in place of another who had died pending appointment.

collatio signorum (k<<schwa>>-lay-shee-oh sig-nor-<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin “comparison of signs”] Hist. A method of testing a seal's genuineness by comparing it with another known to be genuine.

COLLATIVE FACT

collative fact.See investitive fact under FACT.

COLLECTABILITY

collectability. The ability of a judgment creditor to make a judgment debtor pay the amount of the judgment; the degree to which a judgment can be satisfied through collection efforts against the defendant.

COLLECTING BANK

collecting bank.See BANK.

COLLECTION

collection.Banking. The process through which an item (such as a check) passes in a payor bank. See payor bank under BANK(1). [Cases: Banks and Banking 156–175. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 317, 319, 322–325, 327, 372–374, 379, 382–400, 402–412, 414, 416, 419–428, 430–432, 434, 437–438.]

COLLECTION INDORSEMENT

collection indorsement. See restrictive indorsement under INDORSEMENT.

COLLECTION ITEM

collection item. An item (such as a documentary draft) taken by a bank for a customer's account, but not credited until payment for the item has actually been received. See documentary draft under DRAFT(1). [Cases: Banks and Banking 158, 161(1). C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 317, 319, 322, 327, 383, 385–386, 388–392, 395–397, 399, 402, 404, 407, 409–410, 414.]

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

collective bargaining. Negotiations between an employer and the representatives of organized employees to determine the conditions of employment, such as wages, hours, discipline, and fringe benefits. See CONCESSION BARGAINING. [Cases: Labor Relations 171. C.J.S. Labor Relations § 148.]

“Collective bargaining means the joint determination by employees and employers of the problems of the employment relationship. Such problems include wage rates and wage systems, hours and overtime, vacations, discipline, work loads, classification of employees, layoffs, and worker retirement. The advent of collective bargaining does not give rise to these problems. Rather they are germane to the industrial relations environment, and exist with or without unionization.” Benjamin J. Taylor & Fred Whitney, Labor Relations Law 3 (1971).

COLLECTIVE-BARGAINING AGREEMENT

collective-bargaining agreement. Labor law. A contract between an employer and a labor union regulating employment conditions, wages, benefits, and grievances. — Abbr. CBA. — Also termed labor agreement; labor contract; union contract; collective-labor agreement; trade agreement. [Cases: Labor Relations 241. C.J.S. Labor Relations § 217.]

COLLOBIUM

collobium (k<<schwa>>-loh-bee-<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] Hist. A hood or covering for the shoulders, formerly worn by serjeants-at-law.

COLLOQUIUM

colloquium (k<<schwa>>-loh-kwee-<<schwa>>m). 1. The offer of extrinsic evidence to show that an allegedly defamatory statement referred to the plaintiff even though it did not explicitly mention the plaintiff. [Cases: Libel and Slander 82. C.J.S. Libel and Slander; Injurious Falsehood §§ 4, 129, 137.] 2. The introductory averments in a plaintiff's pleading setting out all the special circumstances that make the challenged words defamatory. [Cases: Libel and Slander 82. C.J.S. Libel and Slander; Injurious Falsehood §§ 4, 129, 137.] Pl. colloquiums, colloquia. Cf. INDUCEMENT(4); INNUENDO(2).

COLLOQUY

colloquy (kol-<<schwa>>-kwee). Any formal discussion, such as an oral exchange between a judge, the prosecutor, the defense counsel, and a criminal defendant in which the judge ascertains the defendant's understanding of the proceedings and of the defendant's rights.

COLLUSION

collusion (k<<schwa>>-loo-zh<<schwa>>n), n.1. An agreement to defraud another or to do or obtain something forbidden by law. [Cases: Fraud 30.] 2. As a defense to divorce, an agreement between a husband and wife to commit or to appear to commit an act that is grounds for divorce. • For example, before the advent of no-fault divorce, a husband and wife might agree to make it appear that one of them had committed adultery. Cf. CONNIVANCE(2); CONDONATION(2); RECRIMINATION(1). — collude, vb. — collusive, adj. — colluder, n.

tacit collusion. Antitrust. See CONSCIOUS PARALLELISM.

COLLUSIVE ACTION

collusive action. See ACTION.

COLLUSIVE JOINDER

collusive joinder. See JOINDER.

COLLYER&lt;TT&gt; DOCTRINE

Collyer doctrine (kol-y<<schwa>>r). Labor law. The principle under which the National Labor Relations Board will refer an issue brought before it to arbitration if the issue is arbitrable under the collective-bargaining agreement. Collyer Insulated Wire, 192 NLRB 837 (1971). Cf. SPIELBERG DOCTRINE . [Cases: Labor Relations 509. C.J.S. Labor Relations §§ 510, 515–516.]

COLONIAL LAW

colonial law. 1. Law governing a colony or colonies. 2. The body of law in force in the 13 original U.S. colonies before the Declaration of Independence.

COLON–SEMICOLON FORM

colon–semicolon form. Patents. A style of writing patent claims that uses a colon after the preamble and semi-colons between every two elements. Cf. OUTLINE FORM; SINGLE-PARAGRAPH FORM; SUBPARAGRAPH FORM.

COLONUS PARTIARIUS

colonus partiarius (k<<schwa>>-loh-n<<schwa>>s pahr-shee-air-ee-<<schwa>>s). [Latin “tenant farmer sharing produce” or “a sharing landholder”] Roman law. A farmer who gave a fixed portion of the farm's produce as payment (instead of money) to the landlord. Cf. SHARECROPPING.

COLONY

colony, n. Int'l law. 1. A dependent territorial entity subject to the sovereignty of an independent country, but considered part of that country for purposes of relations with third countries. 2. A group of people who live in a new territory but retain ties with their parent country. 3. The territory inhabited by such a group. Cf. MOTHER COUNTRY. — colonize, vb. — colonial, adj.

COLOR

color, n. 1. Appearance, guise, or semblance; esp., the appearance of a legal claim to a right, authority, or office <color of title> <under color of state law>. 2. Common-law pleading. An apparent, but legally insufficient, right or ground of action, admitted in a defendant's pleading to exist for the plaintiff; esp., a plaintiff's apparent (and usu. false) right or title to property, the existence of which is pleaded by the defendant and then attacked as defective, as part of a confession and avoidance to remove the case from the jury by turning the issue from one of fact to one of law. See GIVE COLOR. [Cases: Pleading 133.]

“It is a rule of pleading, that no man be allowed to plead specially such a plea as amounts only to the general issue, or a total denial of the charge; but in such case he shall be driven to plead the general issue in terms, whereby the whole question is referred to a jury. But if the defendant, in an assise or action of trespass, be desirous to refer the validity of his title to the court rather than the jury, he may state his title specially, and at the same time give colour to the plaintiff, or suppose him to have an appearance or colour of title, bad indeed in point of law, but of which the jury are not competent judges. As if his own true title be, that he claims by feoffment with livery from A, by force of which he entered on the lands in question, he cannot plead this by itself, as it amounts to no more than the general issue ...not guilty in an action of trespass. But he may allege this specially, provided he goes farther and says, that the plaintiff claiming by colour of a prior deed of feoffment, without livery, entered; upon whom he entered; and may then refer himself to the judgment of the court which of these two titles is the best in point of law.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 309 (1768).

express color. Hist. A defendant's admission that the plaintiff has an apparent right to something coupled with an assertion that the plaintiff's right is legally inferior to the defendant's right to the same thing. • This pleading was typically used in cases of trespass to land by making fictitious allegations that put the plaintiff's ownership of the land in question. For instance, the defendant would admit that the plaintiff had shown apparent ownership of the land by possessing it but then claim that the plaintiff's title was somehow defective, so that the plaintiff did not actually own the land. This pleading was abolished by the Common-Law Procedure Act of 1852, 15 & 16 Vict., ch. 76, § 64.

implied color. 1. A defendant's tacit admission of a plaintiff's prima facie case by failing to deny it. 2. An apparent ground of action that arises from the nature of the defense, as when the defense consists of a confession and avoidance in which the defendant admits the facts but denies their legal sufficiency. • This is a quality inherent in all pleadings in confession and avoidance.

COLORABLE

colorable,adj.1. (Of a claim or action) appearing to be true, valid, or right <the pleading did not state a colorable claim>.2. Intended to deceive; counterfeit <the court found the conveyance of exempt property to be a colorable transfer, and so set it aside>.

COLORABLE ALTERATION

colorable alteration.Intellectual property. A modification that effects no real or substantial change, but is made only to distinguish an invention or work from an existing patent or copyright; a small change made in a product or process solely to avoid literal infringement of an earlier patent's claim. — Also termed colorable deviation. [Cases: Patents 174; Copyrights and Intellectual Property 53(1). C.J.S. Patents § 308.]

COLORABLE CLAIM

colorable claim.See CLAIM(4).

COLORABLE DEVIATION

colorable deviation.See COLORABLE ALTERATION.

COLORABLE IMITATION

colorable imitation.Trademarks. Any mark, whether or not created with an intent to deceive, whose resemblance to a registered mark is likely to cause confusion or mistake. See SIMILARITY. [Cases: Trade Regulation 181.C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 169, 172.]

COLORABLE-IMITATION TEST

colorable-imitation test.Trademarks. A test for a trademark violation in which a court determines whether an ordinary person who is not allowed to compare the two items side by side could recognize the difference between the two. [Cases: Trade Regulation 340.1. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 89, 91.]

COLORABLE TRANSACTION

colorable transaction.See TRANSACTION.

COLORABLE TRANSFER

colorable transfer.See TRANSFER.

COLORADO RIVER ABSTENTION

Colorado River abstention.See ABSTENTION.

COLOR BOOK

color book. Archaic. Int'l law. An official compilation of diplomatic documents and internal papers and reports of a government, the purpose of which is to inform the legislature and the public about foreign policy, esp. during foreign crises. • Color books reached their height of popularity in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. They are now little used in most countries.

COLORE OFFICII

colore officii (k<<schwa>>-lor-ee <<schwa>>-fish-ee-I). [Latin "by color of office"] See COLOR OF OFFICE.

COLOR OF APPARENT ORGANIZATION

color of apparent organization. The appearance of corporate authority, including the assumption and exercise of corporate functions in good faith, even though the corporation's organizers did not fully or substantially comply with the terms of the corporate charter or the statutory requirements for incorporation. See de facto corporation under CORPORATION.

COLOR OF AUTHORITY

color of authority. The appearance or presumption of authority sanctioning a public officer's actions. • The authority derives from the officer's apparent title to the office or from a writ or other apparently valid process the officer bears. [Cases: Officers and Public Employees 41. C.J.S. Officers and Public Employees §§ 11, 342.]

COLOR OF LAW

color of law. The appearance or semblance, without the substance, of a legal right. • The term usu. implies a misuse of power made possible because the wrongdoer is clothed with the authority of the state. State action is synonymous with color of [state] law in the context of federal civil-rights statutes or criminal law. See STATE ACTION. [Cases: Civil Rights 1323. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 92–94.]

COLOR OF OFFICE

color of office. The authority or power that is inherent in an office, esp. a public office. • Acts taken under the color of an office are vested with, or appear to be vested with, the authority entrusted to that office. [Cases: Officers and Public Employees 121. C.J.S. Officers and Public Employees §§ 329–334.]

“The starting point in the law of bribery seems to have been when a judge, for doing his office or acting under color of his office, took a reward or fee from some person who had occasion to come before him, — and apparently guilt attached only to the judge himself and not to the bribe-giver.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 527 (3d ed. 1982).

COLOR OF PROCESS

color of process. The appearance of validity and sufficiency surrounding a legal proceeding that is later found to be invalid.

---

color of title. A written instrument or other evidence that appears to establish title but does not in fact do so. — Also termed apparent title.

COM

com.abbr.COMPANY.

COMAKER

comaker. One who participates jointly in borrowing money on a promissory note; esp., one who acts as surety under a note if the maker defaults. — Also termed cosigner. Cf. MAKER. [Cases: Bills and Notes 48, 118. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 23, 80–82.]

combatant (k<<schwa>>m-bat-<<schwa>>nt or kom-b<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>nt). Int'l law. A person who participates directly in hostilities. • “Legitimate” combatants are members of the armed forces or uniformed members of a militia or volunteer corps, under military command and subject to the laws of war. Cf. NON-COMBATANT.

enemy combatant (k<<schwa>>m-bat-<<schwa>>nt). A combatant captured and detained while serving in a hostile force during open warfare. • In general, the separation-of-powers doctrine prevents a U.S. civilian court from interfering with the military's handling of enemy combatants, at least as long as the hostilities continue. An enemy combatant may be detained without charge and does not have the right to legal representation. United States citizenship does not prevent a person from being designated an enemy combatant.

COMBINATION

combination. 1. An alliance of individuals or corporations working together to accomplish a common (usu. economic) goal. See COMBINATION IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE . 2. CONSPIRACY. 3. STRADDLE. 4. Patents. A union of old and new elements in an invention. • The term encompasses not only a combination of mechanical elements but also a combination of substances in a composition claim or steps in a process claim. Cf. AGGREGATION. [Cases: Patents 26. C.J.S. Patents §§ 83–84.] 5. Patents. An invention that uses two or more patented inventions to make a distinct and useful third product. • In the past, an inventor seeking a combination patent had to show “synergism,” a surprising result from the combination. But the Federal Circuit ruled that the term “combination” has no legal effect because most inventions combine and build on existing technology. Today there are no special rules for combination patents. 6. Patents. A union of elements in an invention that work together cooperatively to perform a useful function; the opposite of an aggregation. Cf. AGGREGATION.

exhausted combination. See old combination.

old combination. A combination in which an element works in a different way but performs the same function as the corresponding element in a previously patented combination. • The new element may be patentable, but the combination may not be. — Also termed exhausted combination.

COMBINATION IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE

combination in restraint of trade. Antitrust. An express or tacit agreement between two or more persons or entities designed to raise prices, reduce output, or create a monopoly. — Also termed combine. [Cases: Monopolies 12(1.3). C.J.S. Monopolies §§ 28–37, 52, 64–66.]

COMBINATION PATENT

combination patent. See PATENT(3).

COMBINE

combine (kom-bIn), n. See COMBINATION IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE.

COMBINED APPLICATION

combined application. See TRADEMARK APPLICATION.

COMBINED § 8 AND § 15 AFFIDAVIT

combined § 8 and § 15 affidavit. Trademarks. A sworn statement that satisfies the requirements of both § 8 and § 15 of the Lanham Act. — Sometimes shortened to § 8 and § 15 affidavit. — Also termed combined § 8 and § 15 declaration. See DECLARATION OF INCONTESTABILITY; DECLARATION OF USE.

COMBUSTIO DOMORUM

combustio domorum (k<<schwa>>m-bus-tee-oh d<<schwa>>-mor-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “houses burning”] Hist. See HOUSEBURNING.

COMES

comes (koh-meez). [Latin] Hist. 1. A count or earl. 2. A person who is part of a high government official's retinue. Pl. comites. See COMITATUS.

COMES AND DEFENDS

comes and defends. Archaic. Traditionally, the standard commencement of a defendant's plea or demurrer. • The phrase, now rarely used, announces the defendant's appearance in court and intent to defend against the action.

COMES NOW

comes now. Archaic. Traditionally, the standard commencement in pleadings < Comes now the plaintiff, Gilbert Lewis, by and through his attorneys of record, and would show unto the court the following>. • For a plural subject, the phrase is come now <Come now the plaintiffs, Bob and Louise Smith>. — Sometimes shortened to comes <Comes the State of Tennessee>. — Also termed now comes.

COMFORT LETTER

comfort letter. 1. Securities. A letter from a certified public accountant certifying that no false or misleading information has been used in preparing a financial statement accompanying a securities offering. • Such a letter usu. has limited effect because the CPA ordinarily attests to certain representations and warranties that the issuer has authorized the CPA to rely on. — Also termed cold-comfort letter. 2. Corporations. A letter, esp. from a parent corporation on behalf of a subsidiary, stating its support (but short of a guarantee) for the activities and commitments of another corporation. — Also termed letter of comfort.

COMFORT OPINION

comfort opinion. See OPINION(2).

COMINGLE

comingle, vb. See COMMINGLE.

COMING-TO-REST DOCTRINE

coming-to-rest doctrine. Insurance. The principle that coverage of shipped goods ends when the goods are unloaded and any cables or other links to the transporting vehicle have been disconnected. • The coming-to-rest doctrine covers only the movement of goods from the shipping vehicle to a place of rest outside the vehicle, in contrast to the broader coverage of the complete-operation rule. Cf. COMPLETE-OPERATION RULE. [Cases: Insurance 2681. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1060, 1609.]

COMITAS

comitas (kom-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>s). [Latin “courtesy”] See COMITY.

COMITAS GENTIUM

comitas gentium. See COMITY.

COMITAS LEGUM

comitas legum (kom-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>s lee-g<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] Hist. Comity of laws. See COMITY.

COMITATU COMMISSO

comitatu commissio (kom-<<schwa>>-tay-t[y]oo k<<schwa>>-mis-oh). [Latin “county commission”] Hist. A writ or commission authorizing a sheriff to take charge of a county.

COMITATU ET CASTRO COMMISSO

comitatu et castro commissio (kom-<<schwa>>-tay-t[y]oo et kas-troh k<<schwa>>-mis-oh). [Latin “county and castle commission”] Hist. A writ authorizing a sheriff to take charge of a county and a castle.

COMITATUS

comitatus (kom-<<schwa>>-tay-t<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Hist. 1. A county or shire. See POSSE COMITATUS. 2. The territorial jurisdiction of a count or earl. 3. A county court. 4. The retinue accompanying a prince or high government official.

COMITES

comites (kom-<<schwa>>-teez). See COMES.

COMITES PALEYS

comites paleys (kom-<<schwa>>-teez pa-lays). [Law French] Hist. Counts or earls palatine; those who exercise royal privileges in a county palatine. See COUNTY PALATINE.

COMITIA

comitia (k*<<schwa>>-mish-ee-<<schwa>>*), n. [Latin “assembly”] Roman law. An assembly of the Roman people, gathered together for legislative or judicial purposes. • Women were excluded from participation.

comitia centuriata (k*<<schwa>>-mish-ee-<<schwa>> sen-tyoor-ee-ay-t<< schwa>>*). (often cap.) An assembly of the entire populace, voting by centuries (that is, military units) empowered to elect magistrates and to act as a court of appeal in a capital matter.

“The Comitia Centuriata, said to have been originated by the sixth King, Servius Tullius, included the whole Roman people arranged in classes according to their wealth, so as to give the preponderating power to the richest. During the regal period it was a military organisation on the basis of property: under the Republic it became a legislative body, ousting the Comitia Curiata.” William A. Hunter, Introduction to Roman Law 16 (F.H. Lawson ed., 9th ed. 1934).

comitia curiata (k*<<schwa>>-mish-ee-<<schwa>> kyoor-ee-ay-t<<schwa>>*). (often cap.) An assembly of (originally) patricians whose chief function was to authorize private acts of citizens, such as declaring wills and adoptions. • The comitia curiata engaged in little legislative activity.

“The oldest [of the four assemblies of the Roman people] was the Comitia Curiata. In the regal period this as-sembly consisted of the Populus Romanus in its thirty curies (or family groups): it could meet only by summons of the King; it merely accepted or rejected the proposals submitted by him, without the right of discussion or amendment; nor was any decision by it valid without the authorisation of the Senate. Under the Republic it rapidly fell into the background, though it formally existed, represented by thirty lictors, down into Imperial times: for the private law its main importance lay in its meetings under pontifical presidency to deal with matters of religious significance, such as adrogations and wills.” William A. Hunter, Introduction to Roman Law 15–16 (F.H. Lawson ed., 9th ed. 1934).

comitia tributa (k*<<schwa>>-mish-ee-<<schwa>> tri-byoo-t<<schwa>>*). (often cap.) An assembly of tribes convened to elect lower-ranking officials. • The comitia tributa undertook a great deal of legislative activity in the later Roman republic. Cf. CONCILIUM PLEBIS.

“The Comitia Tributa was the assembly of the whole Roman people in their tribes — a regional classification. In this assembly the influence of numbers predominated.” William A.

Hunter, Introduction to Roman Law 16 (F.H. Lawson ed., 9th ed. 1934).

COMITY

comity (kom-<<schwa>>-tee).1. A practice among political entities (as nations, states, or courts of different jurisdictions), involving esp. mutual recognition of legislative, executive, and judicial acts. — Also termed comitas gentium; courtoisie internationale. See FEDERAL-COMITY DOCTRINE; JUDICIAL COMITY. Cf. AB-STENTION.

“ ‘Comity,’ in the legal sense, is neither a matter of absolute obligation, on the one hand, nor of mere courtesy and good will, upon the other. But it is the recognition which one nation allows within its territory to the legislative, executive, or judicial acts of another nation, having due regard both to international duty and convenience, and to the rights of its own citizens, or of other persons who are under the protection of its laws.” Hilton v. Guyot, 159 U.S. 113, 163–64, 16 S.Ct. 139, 143 (1895).

2.INTERNATIONAL LAW. • This sense is considered a misusage: “[I]n Anglo-American jurisprudence, ... the term is also misleadingly found to be used as a synonym for international law.” Peter Macalister-Smith, “Comity,” in 1 Encyclopedia of Public International Law 672 (1992).

COMITY CLAUSE

Comity Clause.The clause of the U.S. Constitution giving citizens of one state the right to all privileges and immunities enjoyed by citizens of the other states. U.S. Const. art. IV, § 2, cl. 1. #### COMMISSION OF ASSIZE commission of assize. Hist. A royal authorization empowering a person to hold court and try cases arising while the justices in eyre held court elsewhere. Cf. EYRE.

COMMISSION OF CHARITABLE USES

commission of charitable uses. Hist. An authorization issuing out of the Court of Chancery to a bishop or other person authorizing the appointee to investigate allegations of fraud or other disputed matters concerning charitable land grants.

conference committee. A joint meeting of two legislative committees, one from each house of a bicameral legislature, usu. charged with adjusting differences in a bill passed by both houses in different versions. — Also termed committee on conference. See CONFERENCE(2). [Cases: States 34. C.J.S. States §§ 55–58.]

“A committee on conference from each of the two houses meeting together is not a joint committee but a joint meeting of two committees. The quorum of a committee on conference is a majority of the members of each committee. In voting in a conference committee, the committee of each house votes separately. The committee on conference from each house submits its report to the house from which it was appointed. The report, upon being received, may be treated like other reports, except that the report of a conference committee is usually given a higher precedence. Under no condition, including suspension of the rules, may the house alter or amend the report of the committee, but must adopt or refuse to adopt the report in the form submitted." National Conference of State Legislatures, Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure § 770, at 558–59 (2000).

congressional committee.A committee of the House of Representatives, a committee of the Senate, or a joint committee. [Cases: United States 23. C.J.S. United States § 39.]

credentials committee.A committee charged with preparing a roster of delegates entitled to be seated, examining contested claims to such entitlement, and preparing and issuing credentials to the delegates who appear so entitled. See CREDENTIAL.

executive committee.The committee of principal officers and directors who directly manage an organization's affairs between board meetings. [Cases: Corporations 299.]

joint committee.A legislative committee composed of members of both houses of a legislature.

legislative committee.A group of legislators appointed to help a legislature conduct its business, esp. by providing careful consideration of proposals for new legislation within a particular field so that the entire body can handle its work efficiently without wasting time and effort on unmeritorious submissions. [Cases: States 34. C.J.S. States §§ 55–58.]

membership committee.A committee charged with recruiting and keeping members and getting them involved.

nominating committee.A committee charged with identifying (and perhaps recruiting) and recommending a suitable candidate or candidates for election by a deliberative assembly. — Also termed screening committee.

ordinary committee.A committee other than a committee of the whole.

parent committee.A committee that refers business to a subcommittee. • The parent committee is so called only when considered in relation to the subcommittee. See subcommittee.

permanent committee.See standing committee.

platform committee.A committee charged with developing a comprehensive statement of an organization's, usu. a political party's, public policies and principles.

program committee.The committee that plans a convention's program, usu. including both its formal business and its educational and social events.

quasi committee of the whole.A committee of the whole over which the deliberative assembly's regular chair presides.

reference committee. See resolutions committee.

resolutions committee. A committee charged with screening the original main motions offered for a convention's consideration. — Also termed reference committee; screening committee.

rules committee. A committee charged with drafting rules and an agenda for the orderly conduct of a deliberative assembly's business, particularly that of a legislative body or a convention.

search committee. A committee charged with finding a suitable choice from several options, such as candidates for employment or places for a meeting.

screening committee. 1. See nominating committee. 2. See resolutions committee.

select committee. See special committee.

special committee. A committee established for a particular purpose or a limited time. • A legislature will ordinarily establish a special committee for a nonlegislative purpose, such as writing memorials, procuring chaplains, determining the qualifications of members, and settling election disputes. — Also termed ad hoc committee; select committee; temporary committee. [Cases: States 34. C.J.S. States §§ 55–58.]

standing committee. A committee that is established for ongoing business, that continues to exist from session to session, and that is usu. charged with considering business of a certain recurring kind. • A legislature will ordinarily establish a standing committee concerned with a specific field of legislation. A legislative standing committee usu. considers basic questions of legislative policy, holds hearings on legislation, eliminates unwanted bills, and prepares favored measures for passage. — Also termed permanent committee. [Cases: United States 23. C.J.S. United States § 39.]

subcommittee. A group within a committee to which the committee may refer business, standing in the same relation to its parent committee as the committee stands to the deliberative assembly. See parent committee.

tellers committee. A committee that helps the chair administer an election or other vote by handing out and picking up ballots if necessary, counting the votes or canvassing the ballots, and reporting the result to the chair for an-ouncement. See CANVASS(2).

temporary committee. See special committee.

2. (k<<schwa>>m-i-tee) A person who is civilly committed, usu. to a psychiatric hospital <the board determined that the committee was dangerous and should not be released>. [Cases: Mental Health 36. C.J.S. Insane Persons §§ 49–52.] 3. (k<<schwa>>m-i-tee) The guardian for the person so committed <the patient's lawyer objected to the appointment of the committee>. [Cases: Mental Health 116. C.J.S. Insane Persons §§ 123–125, 129.]

commodator (kom-<<schwa>>-day-t<<schwa>>r), n. Roman & civil law. A lender or bailor.

COMMODATUM

commodatum (kom-<<schwa>>-day-t<<schwa>>m), n. [Latin commodare “to lend”] Roman & civil law. The gratuitous lending of goods to be used by the borrower and then returned undamaged to the lender. • This arrangement is for the sole benefit of the borrower. It is one of three types of contracts for permissive use, the other two being locatio conductio and mutuum. — Also termed accommodatum; commodate. Pl. commodata.

COMMODITY

commodity. 1. An article of trade or commerce. • The term embraces only tangible goods, such as products or merchandise, as distinguished from services. 2. An economic good, esp. a raw material or an agricultural product. [Cases: Commodity Futures Trading Regulation 7.]

COMMODITY-BACKED BOND

commodity-backed bond. See BOND(3).

COMMODITY CREDIT CORPORATION

Commodity Credit Corporation. A federally chartered corporation responsible for extending credit in order to stabilize farm income and prices. • Incorporated in Delaware in 1933 and operated in affiliation with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, it was transferred to the U.S. Department of Agriculture in 1939 and chartered in 1948 as a federal corporation. 15 USCA § 714. — Abbr. CCC. [Cases: Agriculture 3.5(1).]

COMMODITY FUTURES TRADING COMMISSION

Commodity Futures Trading Commission. A five-member federal commission that regulates trading in futures and options contracts and monitors the activities of commodity-exchange members, brokerage houses, commission-registered salespeople, and others associated with the industry. • The commission began operating in April 1975. 7 USCA § 2(a)(2). — Abbr. CFTC. [Cases: Commodity Futures Trading Regulation 51–61. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 469–478.]

COMMON

common, n.1. A legal right to use another person's property, such as an easement. See PROFIT à PRENDRE.

common appendant (<<schwa>>-pen-d<<schwa>>nt). Hist. A tenant's right to graze animals on the landowner's land as a result of long-standing practice. See profit appendant under PROFIT(2).

“The ... common appendant is founded on prescription, and is regularly annexed to arable land.... The tenant was limited to such beasts as were levant and couchant on his estate, because such cattle only were wanting to plough and manure his land. It was deemed an incident to a grant of land, as of common right, and to enable the tenant to use his plough land.” 3 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law *404 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

common appurtenant (<<schwa>>-p<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>nt). Hist. A landowner's right to graze animals on another's land as a result of a written grant relating to the ownership or occupancy of land. See profit appurtenant under PROFIT(2).

“Common appurtenant may be affixed to any kind of land .... It allowed the owner to put in other beasts than such as plough or manure the land; and, not being founded on necessity, like the other rights, ... was not favored in the law.” 3 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law *404 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

common in gross. Hist. A right to graze animals on another's land as a result of a written grant unrelated to ownership or occupancy of land. — Also termed common at large. See profit in gross under PROFIT(2).

common in the soil. Hist. The right to dig and take away earth from another's land. — Also termed common of digging.

common of estovers (e-stoh-v<<schwa>>rz). Hist. A tenant's right to take necessary supplies, esp. wood, from the lord's estate; the right to estovers. See ESTOVER(1). common of fishery. See common of piscary.

common of pasture. Hist. A right to pasture one's cattle on another's land. • The common of pasture may be appendant, appurtenant, or in gross.

common of piscary (pis-k<<schwa>>-ree). Hist. A right to fish in waters on another's land. — Often shortened to piscary. — Also termed common of fishery.

common of shack. Hist. The right of people occupying land in a common field to release their cattle to graze after harvest.

common of turbary (t<<schwa>>-r-b<<schwa>>-ree). Hist. The right to dig turf (for use as fuel in a house) from another's land.

common bar. See BLANK BAR.

COMMON BENCH

Common Bench. Hist. The former name of the English Court of Common Pleas. • The court was so called because it was the forum for the common people, that is, for cases between two or more subjects when the Crown had no interest. — Abbr. C.B.

COMMON-BOND DOCTRINE

common-bond doctrine. The rule that prospective members of a credit union must share some connection (such as common employment) other than a desire to create a credit union. [Cases: Building and Loan Associations 6.C.J.S. Building and Loan Associations, Savings and Loan Associations, and Credit Unions §§ 31–32, 45.]

COMMON BUSINESS PURPOSE

common business purpose. Related activity by two or more associated businesses. • If one of the businesses comes within the jurisdiction of the Fair Labor Standards Act, then another business that shares a common business purpose will also.

COMMON CALLING

common calling. 1. An ordinary occupation that a citizen has a right to pursue under the Privileges and Immunities Clause. [Cases: Constitutional Law 207(2). C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 667, 670.] 2. A commercial enterprise that offers services to the general public, with a legal duty to serve anyone who requests the services. • For example, an innkeeper or a common carrier engages in a common calling.

“It was only in a very few cases indeed that a person was under a legal obligation to enter into a contract; virtually the only example of such an obligation in fact was the person exercising a ‘common calling’ such as the innkeeper and the common carrier who were (subject to certain safeguards) legally bound to contract with any member of the public who required their services.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 8 (3d ed. 1981).

COMMON CARRIER

common carrier. See CARRIER.

COMMON CAUSE

common cause. See common plea under PLEA(3).

COMMON-CHARACTER REQUIREMENT

common-character requirement. The rule that for a group of persons to qualify as a class in a class-action lawsuit, the appointment of the class must achieve economies of time, effort, and expense, and must promote uniformity of decision for persons similarly situated, in addition to sharing common questions of fact and law. Cf. COMMONALITY TEST. [Cases: Parties 35.17. C.J.S. Parties §§ 31, 34.]

COMMON COST

common cost. See indirect cost under COST(1).

COMMON DESIGN

common design. 1. The intention by two or more people to join in committing an unlawful act. [Cases: Criminal Law 59(4). C.J.S. Criminal Law § 134.] 2. An intention to commit more than one crime. 3. The general design or layout of plots of land surrounding a particular tract. — Also termed common scheme; common plan. See ZONING.

COMMON DILIGENCE

common diligence.1. See due diligence (1) under DILIGENCE(2).2. See ordinary diligence under DILIGENCE(2).

COMMON DISASTER

common disaster.An event that causes two or more persons with related property interests (such as an insured and the beneficiary) to die at very nearly the same time, with no way of determining who died first. See UNIFORM SIMULTANEOUS DEATH ACT ; COMMORIENTES. [Cases: Death 5; Insurance 3485. C.J.S. Death §§ 6, 15; Insurance § 1428.]

COMMON-DISASTER CLAUSE

common-disaster clause.A provision in a dispositive instrument, such as an insurance policy or a will, that seeks to cover the situation in which the transferor and transferee die in a common disaster. [Cases: Insurance 3485; Wills 543. C.J.S. Insurance § 1428; Wills § 1034.]

COMMON DUTY OF CARE

common duty of care.A landowner's obligation to take reasonable care under the circumstances to see that a lawful visitor will be reasonably safe in using the premises for the purposes for which the visitor is permitted to be there.

COMMON EASEMENT

common easement.See EASEMENT.

COMMON ELEMENTS

common elements.See COMMON AREA(2).

COMMON-EMPLOYMENT DOCTRINE

common-employment doctrine.See FELLOW-SERVANT RULE.

COMMON-ENEMY DOCTRINE

common-enemy doctrine.Property. The rule that a landowner may repel surface waters as necessary (as during a flood), without having to consider the consequences to other landowners. • The doctrine takes its name from the idea that the floodwater is every landowner's common enemy. [Cases: Waters and Water Courses 116–119. C.J.S. Waters §§ 255, 259–264, 277–279.]

COMMON ENTERPRISE

common enterprise.See JOINT ENTERPRISE.

COMMON-KNOWLEDGE EXCEPTION

common-knowledge exception. The principle that lay testimony concerning routine or simple medical procedures is admissible to establish negligence in a medical-malpractice action. • This is a narrow exception in some jurisdictions to the rule that a medical-malpractice plaintiff must present expert testimony to establish negligence. [Cases: Health 821(4).]

COMMON LAW

common law, n. [fr. Law French commen ley “common law”] 1. The body of law derived from judicial decisions, rather than from statutes or constitutions; CASELAW <federal common law>. Cf. STATUTORY LAW. [Cases: Common Law 1. C.J.S. Common Law §§ 1–4, 21.]

federal common law. The body of decisional law derived from federal courts when adjudicating federal questions and other matters of federal concern, such as disputes between the states and foreign relations, but excluding all cases governed by state law. • An example is the nonstatutory law applying to interstate streams of commerce. [Cases: Federal Courts 374.]

general federal common law. Hist. In the period before Erie v. Tompkins (304 U.S. 64, 58 S.Ct. 817 (1938)), the judge-made law developed by federal courts in deciding disputes in diversity-of-citizenship cases. • Since Erie, a federal court has been bound to apply the substantive law of the state in which it sits. So even though there is a “federal common law,” there is no longer a general federal common law applicable to all disputes heard in federal court.

2. The body of law based on the English legal system, as distinct from a civil-law system; the general An-glo-American system of legal concepts, together with the techniques of applying them, that form the basis of the law in jurisdictions where the system applies <all states except Louisiana have the common law as their legal system>. Cf. CIVIL LAW(1).

American common law. 1. The body of English law that was adopted as the law of the American colonies and supplemented with local enactments and judgments. 2. The body of judge-made law that developed during and after the United States' colonial period, esp. since independence. — Also termed Anglo-American common law.

3. General law common to the country as a whole, as opposed to special law that has only local application <the issue is whether the common law trumps our jurisdiction's local rules>. — Also termed jus commune. “In its historical origin the term common law (jus commune) was identical in meaning with the term general law .... The jus commune was the general law of the land — the lex terrae — as opposed to jus speciale. By a process of historical development, however, the common law has now become, not the entire general law, but only the residue of that law after deducting equity and statute law. It is no longer possible, therefore, to use the expression common law and general law as synonymous.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 97 (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

“[I]t is necessary to dispose briefly of a problem of nomenclature. European equivalents of the expression ‘common law’ have been used, especially in Germany, to describe an emergent system of national law, based on the Roman model, that came into existence before national parliaments undertook to enact laws for the nation as a whole. In this use, ‘the common law’ (gemeines Recht) was used to distinguish the commonly shared tradition of Roman law from local statutes and customs.” Lon L. Fuller, Anatomy of the Law 133 (1968).

4. The body of law deriving from law courts as opposed to those sitting in equity . • The common law of England was one of the three main historical sources of English law. The other two were legislation and equity. The common law evolved from custom and was the body of law created by and administered by the king's courts. Equity developed to overcome the occasional rigidity and unfairness of the common law. Originally the king himself granted or denied petitions in equity; later the task fell to the chancellor, and later still to the Court of Chancery.

COMMON RECOVERY

common recovery. Hist. An elaborate proceeding, full of legal fictions, by which a tenant in tail disentailed a fee-tail estate. • The action facilitated land transfer by allowing a potential transferee who was barred by law from receiving land to “recover” the land by suing the actual owner. Common recoveries, which were abolished early in the 19th century, were originally concocted by the clergy as a way to avoid the land-conveyance restrictions imposed by mortmain acts. — Also termed feigned recovery. See MORTMAIN STATUTE. Cf. CESSIO IN JURE; praecipe quod reddat under PRAECIPE.

“Here's how [the common recovery] worked. B, with the connivance of A, would bring a real action against A claiming falsely that he, B, owned the land and demanding recovery of it. A responded by claiming, just as falsely, that he had acquired the land from C and that C had warranted title to the land. When A demanded of C, also an accomplice of A, that he defend the title, C admitted falsely that he had, indeed, warranted the title. C allowed B to take a default judgment against A for the recovery of the land, and allowed A to obtain a default judgment against himself, C, for the recovery of land of equal value. The result of this fancy feudal footwork was to leave B with title to the land in fee simple and to leave A with his judgment against C. The judgment against C was viewed by the court as an adequate substitute for the entailed land. But when it came time for O or A's lineal heirs to enforce the judgment, it would transpire that C had been selected by A because he had no land at all! (Why else would C have played along?) Did the court have any suspicion that A, B, and C were colluding? Of course they did — but how else, in the face of De Donis, could they unshackle land from the chains of the fee tail?” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 31–32 (2d ed. 1984).

COMMON-RETURN DAYS

common-return days. See dies communes in banco under DIES.

COMPARABLE WORTH

comparable worth. 1. The analogous value that two or more employees bring to a business through their work. 2. The idea that employees who perform identical work should receive identical pay, regardless of their sex; the doctrine that men and women who perform work of equal value should receive comparable pay. [Cases: Civil Rights 1175; Labor Relations 1333. C.J.S. Civil Rights § 43; Labor Relations § 1184.]

COMPARATIO LITERARUM

comparatio literarum (kom-p<<schwa>>-ray-shee-oh lit-<<schwa>>-rair-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “comparison of writings”] Hist. The act of comparing writings to ascertain authorship. • Even under Roman law, handwriting experts (comparatores) sometimes testified about a document's authenticity.

COMPARATIST

comparatist. A comparative-law scholar.

COMPARATIVE ADVERTISING

comparative advertising. See ADVERTISING.

COMPARATIVE CRIMINOLOGY

comparative criminology. See CRIMINOLOGY.

COMPARATIVE DISPARITY

comparative disparity. Constitutional law. The percentage of underrepresentation of a particular group among potential jurors on a venire, in comparison with the group's percentage of the general population. • Comparative disparity is calculated by subtracting a group's percentage of representation on the venire from the group's percentage of the population — that is, calculating the group's absolute-disparity representation — then dividing that percentage by the group's percentage-representation in the population, and multiplying the result by 100. For example, if African-Americans make up 12% of a county's population, and 8% of the potential jurors on the venire, the absolute disparity of African-Americans is 4%. And the comparative disparity is 33%, because 4 divided by 12 is .33, or 33%. Many courts criticize the comparative-disparity analysis, and favor an absolute-disparity analysis, because the comparative-disparity analysis is said to exaggerate the deviation. The reason for calculating the disparity is to analyze a claim that the jury was not impartial because it was not selected from a pool of jurors that fairly represented the makeup of the jurisdiction. See DUREN TEST; FAIR-CROSS-SECTION REQUIREMENT; STATISTICAL-DECISION THEORY Y. Cf. ABSOLUTE DISPARITY. [Cases: Jury 33(1.1). C.J.S. Juries §§ 269–273, 279, 306.]

COMPARATIVE FAULT

comparative fault. See comparative negligence under NEGLIGENCE.

COMPARATIVE HISTORY OF LAW

comparative history of law. See descriptive comparative law under COMPARATIVE LAW .

COMPARATIVE-IMPAIRMENT TEST

comparative-impairment test. Conflict of laws. A test that asks which of two or more forums would have its policies most impaired by not having its law applied in the case. [Cases: Action 17. C.J.S. Actions §§ 18–20; Conflict of Laws §§ 2–3, 12, 15, 20, 23, 27–32, 34–40, 42–48, 50–65, 96–97, 100, 102, 105–107.]

COMPARATIVE INTERPRETATION

comparative interpretation. See INTERPRETATION.

COMPARATIVE JURISPRUDENCE

comparative jurisprudence. See COMPARATIVE LAW.

COMPARATIVE LAW

comparative law. The scholarly study of the similarities and differences between the legal systems of different jurisdictions, such as between civil-law and common-law countries. — Also termed comparative jurisprudence. See INTERNATIONAL LAW.

“What is known as comparative jurisprudence — namely, the study of the resemblances and differences between different legal systems — is not a separate branch of jurisprudence co-ordinate with the analytical, historical, and ethical, but is merely a particular method of that science in all its branches. We compare English law with Roman law either for the purpose of analytical jurisprudence, in order the better to comprehend the conceptions and principles of each of those systems; or for the purpose of historical jurisprudence, in order that we may better understand the course of development of each system; or for the purpose of ethical jurisprudence, in order that we may better judge the practical merits and demerits of each of them. Apart from such purposes the comparative study of law would be merely futile." John Salmond, Jurisprudence 7–8 n.(c) (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

descriptive comparative law. The inventory of legal systems (past and present) as a whole, as well as of individual rules that these systems establish for several categories of legal relations. • Descriptive comparative law is sometimes considered one of three subsets of comparative law, the other two being comparative legislation and comparative history of law. See COMPARATIVE LEGISLATION; COMPARATIVE LEGAL HISTORY.

COMPARATIVE LEGAL HISTORY

comparative legal history. A species of comparative law seeking to establish a universal history of law, so that the succession of social phenomena influencing the evolution of the legal world might be better understood. • This field is closely allied to ethnological jurisprudence, folklore, legal sociology, and jurisprudence. — Also termed comparative history of law. Cf. descriptive comparative law under COMPARATIVE LAW; COMPARATIVE LEGISLATION.

COMPARATIVE LEGISLATION

comparative legislation. A species of comparative law seeking to define the common link for modern statutory doctrines, concerned with the development of legal study as a social science and with awakening an international legal consciousness. Cf. descriptive comparative law under COMPARATIVE LAW; COMPARATIVE LEGAL HISTORY.

COMPARATIVE NEGLIGENCE

comparative negligence. See NEGLIGENCE.

COMPARATIVE-NEGLIGENCE DOCTRINE

comparative-negligence doctrine. Torts. The principle that reduces a plaintiff's recovery proportionally to the plaintiff's degree of fault in causing the damage, rather than barring recovery completely. • Most states have statutorily adopted the comparative-negligence doctrine. See NEGLIGENCE. Cf. CONTRIBUTORY-NEGLIGENCE DOCTRINE. [Cases: Negligence 549.C.J.S. Negligence §§ 262–264.]

COMPARATIVE NOMOGENETICS

comparative nomogenetics. The study of the development of the world's legal ideas and systems. • This term, like comparative nomoscopy and comparative nomothetics, was devised by John Henry Wigmore. See John Henry Wigmore, A Panorama of the World's Legal Systems 1121 (libr. ed. 1936).

COMPARATIVE NOMOSCOPY

comparative nomoscopy. The description of the world's legal systems.

COMPARATIVE NOMOTHETICS

comparative nomothetics. The analysis of the merits of legal systems.

COMPARATIVE RECTITUDE

comparative rectitude. Family law. Archaic. The degree to which one spouse is less culpable than the other in damaging the marriage, so that even though both spouses are at fault, the less culpable spouse may successfully petition for a separation or divorce. • Comparative rectitude tempers the doctrine of recrimination by making a divorce possible even though both parties are at fault. Comparative rectitude is now virtually obsolete because of the prevalence of no-fault divorce. See RECRIMINATION(1). [Cases: Divorce 53.]

COMPARATIVE-SALES APPROACH

comparative-sales approach. See MARKET APPROACH.

COMPARATOR

comparator (k<<schwa>>m-par-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>r or kom-p<<schwa>>-ray-t<<schwa>>r). Something with which something else is compared <the female plaintiffs alleged illegal wage discrimination and contrasted their pay with that of male comparators>.

COMPARUIT AD DIEM

comparuit ad diem (k<<schwa>>m-pair-oo-wit ad dī-<<schwa>>m), n. [Latin “he appeared to the day”] Hist. A plea averring that the defendant appeared in court as required and did not forfeit the bail bond.

COMPASSING

compassing (k<<schwa>>m-p<<schwa>>-sing). Hist. The act of contriving or plotting, esp. of something un-derhanded. • The Treason Act of 1351 criminalized the act of compassing the sovereign's death. — Also termed imagining.

COMPEL

compel, vb. 1. To cause or bring about by force, threats, or overwhelming pressure . 2. (Of a legislative mandate or judicial precedent) to convince (a court) that there is only one possible resolution of a legal dispute <the wording of the statute compels us to affirm>.

COMPELLABLE

compellable, adj. Capable of or subject to being compelled, esp. to testify <an accused person's spouse is not a compellable witness for the prosecution>.

COMPELLATIVUS

compellativus (k<<schwa>>m-pel-<<schwa>>-tī-v<<schwa>>s). [fr. Latin compellare “to accuse”] Hist. An adversary or accuser.

COMPELLING-STATE-INTEREST TEST

compelling-state-interest test. Constitutional law. A method for determining the constitutional validity of a law, whereby the government's interest in the law and its purpose is balanced against an individual's constitutional right that is affected by the law. • Only if the government's interest is strong enough will the law be upheld. The compelling-state-interest test is used, e.g., in equal-protection analysis when the disputed law requires strict scrutiny. See STRICT SCRUTINY. [Cases: Constitutional Law 213.1(2). C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 714, 716, 718.]

COMPENSABLE

compensable (k<<schwa>>m-pen-s<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l), adj. Able or entitled to be compensated for . — Also termed recompensable.

COMPENSABLE DEATH

compensable death. See DEATH.

COMPENSABLE INJURY

compensable injury. See INJURY.

COMPENSATE

compensate (kom-p<<schwa>>n-sayt), vb. 1. To pay (another) for services rendered <the lawyer was fairly compensated for her time and effort>. 2. To make an amendatory payment to; to recompense (for an injury) <the court ordered the defendant to compensate the injured plaintiff>.

COMPENSATED SURETY

compensated surety. See SURETY.

COMPENSATING BALANCE

compensating balance. The amount of money that a borrower from a bank is required to keep on deposit as a condition for a loan or a line of credit.

COMPENSATIO

compensatio (kom-pen-say-shee-oh), n. [Latin “weighing; balancing”] Roman law. A defendant's claim to have the plaintiff's demand reduced by the amount that the plaintiff owes the defendant. See SETOFF(2).

COMPENSATIO CRIMINIS

compensatio criminis (kom-pen-say-shee-oh krim-<<schwa>>-nis). [Latin] Eccles. law. A defendant's plea in a divorce action, alleging that the complainant is guilty of the same conduct that the defendant is charged with, esp. adultery. See RECRIMINATION(1).

“The compensatio criminis is the standard canon law of England in questions of divorce, and it is founded on the principle that a man cannot be permitted to complain of the breach of a contract which he had first violated; and the same principle, it is to be presumed, prevails in the United States. So, if the injured party, subsequently to the adultery, cohabits with the other, or is otherwise reconciled to the other, after just grounds of belief in the fact, it is, in judgment of law, a remission of the offense, and a bar to the divorce.” 4 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law *100–01 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

COMPENSATIO INJURIARUM

compensatio injuriarum (kom-pen-say-shee-oh in-juur-ee-air-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “the compensation of wrongs”] Scots law. The setoff in a defamation action.

COMPENSATION

compensation (kom-p*<<schwa>>n*-say-sh*<<schwa>>n*), n.1. Remuneration and other benefits received in return for services rendered; esp., salary or wages. [Cases: Master and Servant 68–72.5. C.J.S. Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 132–133, 138–153, 155–156, 163–172, 174–176.]

“Compensation consists of wages and benefits in return for services. It is payment for work. If the work contracted for is not done, there is no obligation to pay. [Compensation] includes wages, stock option plans, profit-sharing, commissions, bonuses, golden parachutes, vacation, sick pay, medical benefits, disability, leaves of absence, and expense reimbursement.” Kurt H. Decker & H. Thomas Felix II, Drafting and Revising Employment Contracts § 3.17, at 68 (1991).

2. Payment of damages, or any other act that a court orders to be done by a person who has caused injury to another. • In theory, compensation makes the injured person whole. [Cases: Damages 15. C.J.S. Damages §§ 21–22.] 3.SETOFF(2). — compensatory, (k*<<schwa>>m*-pen-s*<<schwa>>-tor*-ee), compensational (kom-p*<<schwa>>n*-say-sh*<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>l*), adj.

accrued compensation. Remuneration that has been earned but not yet paid.

adequate compensation. See just compensation.

deferred compensation. 1. Payment for work performed, to be paid in the future or when some future event occurs. [Cases: Master and Servant 72. C.J.S. Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 146–152, 155, 175.] 2. An employee's earnings that are taxed when received or distributed rather than when earned, such as contributions to a qualified pension or profit-sharing plan.

just compensation. Under the Fifth Amendment, a payment by the government for property it has taken under eminent domain — usu. the property's fair market value, so that the owner is theoretically no worse off after the taking. — Also termed adequate compensation; due compensation; land damages. [Cases: Eminent Domain 122–150. C.J.S. Eminent Domain §§ 71–72, 86, 116–141, 144–146, 148, 151, 153, 155–156, 159–170, 172–177.]

unemployment compensation. Compensation paid at regular intervals by a state agency to an unemployed person, esp. one who has been laid off. [Cases: Social Security and Public Welfare 251. C.J.S. Social Security and Public Welfare §§ 146–150, 211.]

unreasonable compensation. Tax. Compensation that is not deductible as a business expense because the compensation is out of proportion to the services actually rendered or because it is in excess of statutorily defined limits. IRC (26 USCA) § 162. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3323. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 162.]

COMPENSATION CLAUSE

Compensation Clause. The clause of the U.S. Constitution providing for federal judges to be paid. U.S. Const. art. III, § 1, cl. 2.

COMPENSATION PERIOD

compensation period. The time fixed by unemployment or workers'-compensation law during which an unemployed or injured worker is entitled to receive compensation. [Cases: Social Security and Public Welfare 728; Workers' Compensation 836–868. C.J.S. Social Security and Public Welfare § 292; Workmen's Compensation §§ 545–574, 582.]

COMPENSATORY DAMAGES

compensatory damages. See DAMAGES.

COMPENSATORY PAYMENT

compensatory payment. Family law. A postmarital spousal payment made by the richer ex-spouse to the poorer one and treated as an entitlement rather than as a discretionary award. • Compensatory payments are set by statute and are based on a formula using the length of the marriage, differences in postdivorce income, role as primary caregiver, and other factors. The purpose is to compensate somewhat for disparate income levels after a failed marriage. Cf. ALIMONY.

COMPENSATORY TIME

compensatory time. See COMP TIME.

COMPERENDINATIO

comperendinatio (kom-p<<schwa>>r-en-d<<schwa>>-nay-shee-oh), n. [Latin “to remand to the next day but one”] Roman law. An adjournment of an action, particularly one of the actiones legis, to hear the parties or their advocates a second time; a second hearing of the parties to a case. • The judge (judex) would decide the case at the conclusion of the second hearing. See LEGIS ACTIO.

COMPETENCE

competence, n. 1. A basic or minimal ability to do something; qualification, esp. to testify <competence of a witness>. [Cases: Witnesses 35. C.J.S. Witnesses §§ 87–88, 90, 92.] 2. The capacity of an official body to do something <the court's competence to enter a valid judgment>. 3. Authenticity <the documents were supported by a business-records affidavit, leaving their competence as evidence beyond doubt>. [Cases: Evidence 369. C.J.S. Evidence § 819.] Cf. COMPETENCY. — competent, adj.

---

competency,n.1. The mental ability to understand problems and make decisions. [Cases: Mental Health 3. C.J.S. Insane Persons §§ 2, 6.] 2. A criminal defendant's ability to stand trial, measured by the capacity to understand the proceedings, to consult meaningfully with counsel, and to assist in the defense. — Also termed competency to stand trial. [Cases: Mental Health 432. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 549–554.] Cf. COMPETENCE. — competent,adj.

COMPETENCY HEARING

competency hearing.See PATE HEARING.

COMPETENCY PROCEEDING

competency proceeding.See PROCEEDING.

COMPETENCY TO STAND TRIAL

competency to stand trial.See COMPETENCY.

COMPETENT CONTRACTOR

competent contractor.See CONTRACTOR.

COMPETENT COURT

competent court.See court of competent jurisdiction under COURT.

COMPETENT EVIDENCE

competent evidence.See EVIDENCE.

COMPETENT JURISDICTION

competent jurisdiction.See JURISDICTION(2).

COMPETENT WITNESS

competent witness.See WITNESS.

COMPETITION

competition. The struggle for commercial advantage; the effort or action of two or more commercial interests to obtain the same business from third parties.

fair competition.Open, equitable, and just competition between business competitors.

horizontal competition.Competition between a seller and its competitors. • The Sherman Act prohibits unrea-sonable restraints on horizontal competition, such as price-fixing agreements between competitors. — Also termed primary-line competition.

perfect competition.A completely efficient market situation characterized by numerous buyers and sellers, a homogeneous product, perfect information for all parties, and complete freedom to move in and out of the market. • Perfect competition rarely if ever exists, but antitrust scholars often use the theory as a standard for measuring market performance.

primary-line competition. See horizontal competition.

vertical competition. Competition between participants at different levels of distribution, such as manufacturer and distributor. — Also termed secondary-line competition.

COMPETITIVE ADVANTAGE

competitive advantage. The potential benefit from information, ideas, or devices that, if kept secret by a business, might be economically exploited to improve the business's market share or to increase its income.

COMPETITIVE ADVERTISING

competitive advertising. See ADVERTISING.

COMPETITIVE BID

competitive bid. See BID(2).

COMPETITIVE CIVIL-SERVICE EXAMINATION

competitive civil-service examination. A test designed to evaluate a person's qualifications for a civil-service position. • This type of examination may be open to all those seeking civil-service employment, or it may be restricted to those civil servants seeking a promotion. See CIVIL SERVICE. [Cases: Officers and Public Employees 11.3. C.J.S. Officers and Public Employees §§ 80–85, 125, 128–129.]

COMPETITIVE INJURY

competitive injury. A wrongful economic loss at the hands of a commercial rival, such as the loss of sales due to unfair competition; a disadvantage in a plaintiff's ability to compete with a defendant, caused by the defendant's unfair competition. • Most courts require the plaintiff to show a competitive injury as an element of a misappropriation action, or to have standing to prosecute a false-advertising action under 15 USCA § 1125(a)(1)(B). — Also termed competitive harm. [Cases: Trade Regulation 409. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 110.]

COMPILATION

compilation (kom-p<<schwa>>-lay-sh<<schwa>>n), n. 1. Copyright. A collection of literary works arranged in an original way; esp., a work formed by collecting and assembling preexisting materials or data that are selected, coordinated, or arranged in such a way that the resulting product constitutes an original work of authorship. • An author who creates a compilation owns the copyright of the compilation but not of the component parts. See 17 USCA § 101. Cf. collective work, derivative work under WORK(2). [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 12(3).] 2. A collection of statutes, updated and arranged to facilitate their use. — Also termed compiled statutes. [Cases: Statutes 144. C.J.S. Statutes §§ 266–267, 272.] 3. A financial statement that does not have an accountant's assurance of conformity with generally accepted accounting principles. • In preparing a compilation, an accountant does not gather evidence or verify the accuracy of the information provided by the client; rather, the accountant reviews the compiled reports to ensure that they are in the appropriate form and are free of obvious errors. — compile,vb.

COMPILED STATUTES

compiled statutes.1.COMPILED(2).2.STATUTE.

COMPLAINANT

complainant (k<<schwa>>m-playn-<<schwa>>nt).1. The party who brings a legal complaint against another; esp., the plaintiff in a court of equity or, more modernly, a civil suit.

“A suit in equity, under the procedure of the English Court of Chancery, which was generally adopted in the American States prior to the code, is instituted by the plaintiff filing a bill of complaint. The plaintiff is usually called the complainant, in the Federal courts the complainant or plaintiff indifferently. The bill is in substance a petition to the chancellor, or judge of the court of equity, setting forth at large the grounds of the suit, and praying the process of the court, its subpoena, to bring the defendant into court and compel him to answer the plaintiff's bill, and, also, for such relief by decree or interlocutory remedy, by way of injunction, etc., as the plaintiff supposes himself entitled to.” Edwin E. Bryant, The Law of Pleading Under the Codes of Civil Procedure 55 (2d ed. 1899).

2. A person who, under oath, signs a statement (called a “complaint”) establishing reasonable grounds to believe that some named person has committed a crime. — Also termed affiant. [Cases: Criminal Law 210. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 326.]

COMPLAINANTLESS CRIME

complainantless crime.See victimless crime under CRIME.

COMPLAINT

complaint. 1. The initial pleading that starts a civil action and states the basis for the court's jurisdiction, the basis for the plaintiff's claim, and the demand for relief. • In some states, this pleading is called a petition. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 671; Pleading 38.5. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 94–95.] 2.Criminal law. A formal charge accusing a person of an offense. Fed. R. Crim. P. 3. Cf. INDICTMENT; INFORMATION. [Cases: Indictment and Information 54. C.J.S. Indictments and Informations §§ 68–69.]

amended complaint.A complaint that modifies and replaces the original complaint by adding relevant matters that occurred before or at the time the action began. Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(d). • In some circumstances, a party must obtain the court's permission to amend its complaint. Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(a). — Also termed substituted complaint. Cf. supplemental complaint. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 839; Pleading 233, 242. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 332, 334, 355–358.]

complaint for modification.See motion to modify under MOTION.

fresh complaint. See FRESH COMPLAINT.

preliminary complaint. A complaint issued by a court to obtain jurisdiction over a criminal suspect for a hearing on probable cause or on whether to bind the suspect over for trial. [Cases: Criminal Law 208. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 324, 327.]

substituted complaint. See amended complaint.

supplemental complaint. An additional complaint that either corrects a defect in the original complaint or adds relevant matters that occurred after the action began. • Generally, a party must obtain the court's permission to file a supplemental complaint. Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(d). Cf. amended complaint. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 864; Pleading 279. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 461, 463–464, 466.]

third-party complaint. A complaint filed by the defendant against a third party, alleging that the third party may be liable for some or all of the damages that the plaintiff is trying to recover from the defendant. Fed. R. Civ. P. 14. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 281; Parties 49; Pleading 149. C.J.S. Parties § 127; Pleading § 203.]

well-pleaded complaint. An original or initial pleading that sufficiently sets forth a claim for relief — by including the grounds for the court's jurisdiction, the basis for the relief claimed, and a demand for judgment — so that a defendant may draft an answer that is responsive to the issues presented. • In federal court, a well-pleaded complaint must raise a controlling issue of federal law, or else the court will not have federal-question jurisdiction over the lawsuit. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 673; Pleading 48. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 116–124, 132–133.]

COMPLEMENTARY GOODS

complementary goods. Trademarks. Products that are typically used together, such as pancake syrup and pancake mix, or motion-picture projectors and film. • Trademark law may prevent the use of a similar mark on complementary goods because consumers may be confused into thinking that the goods come from a common source. The patent-misuse doctrine may provide a defense in an infringement suit if the plaintiff has used its patent rights to gain market control over unpatented complementary goods. — Also termed complementary products. See AUNT JEMIMA DOCTRINE; PATENT-MISUSE DOCTRINE. [Cases: Trade Regulation 182.1. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 170, 172, 185.] complete interdiction. See full interdiction under INTERDICTION(3).

COMPLETE JURISDICTION

complete jurisdiction. See JURISDICTION.

COMPLETELY INTEGRATED CONTRACT

completely integrated contract. See INTEGRATED CONTRACT.

COMPLETENESS DOCTRINE

completeness doctrine. See RULE OF OPTIONAL COMPLETENESS.

COMPLETE-OPERATION RULE

complete-operation rule. Insurance. The principle that goods are covered against damage at any time during the shipping process, including the loading and unloading of the goods. See WAREHOUSE-TO-WAREHOUSE COVER. Cf. COMING-TO-REST DOCTRINE E. [Cases: Insurance 2681. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1060, 1609.]

COMPLETE OWNERSHIP

complete ownership. See perfect ownership under OWNERSHIP.

COMPLETE-PREEMPTION DOCTRINE

complete-preemption doctrine. The rule that a federal statute's preemptive force may be so extraordinary and all-encompassing that it converts an ordinary state-common-law complaint into one stating a federal claim for purposes of the well-pleaded-complaint rule. See well-pleaded complaint under COMPLAINT. [Cases: Federal Courts 241.]

COMPLETE PROPERTY

complete property. See PROPERTY.

COMPLETE VOLUNTARY TRUST

complete voluntary trust. See executed trust under TRUST.

composite mark. See composite trademark under TRADEMARK.

COMPOSITE STATE

composite state. See STATE.

COMPOSITE TRADEMARK composite trademark. See TRADEMARK.

COMPOSITE WORK

composite work. See WORK(2).

COMPOSITION

composition, n. 1. An agreement between a debtor and two or more creditors for the adjustment or discharge of an obligation for some lesser amount; an agreement among the debtor and two or more creditors that the debtor will pay the creditors less than their full claims in full satisfaction of their claims. • The preexisting-duty rule is not a defense to this type of agreement because consideration arises from the agreement by each creditor with each other to take less than full payment. Through the performance of this agreement, the debtor is discharged in full for the debts of the participating creditors. — Also termed composition with creditors; creditors' composition; at-termoiement. [Cases: Bankruptcy 3662.100–3662.115; Debtor and Creditor 10. C.J.S. Assignments for Benefit of Creditors § 26; Creditor and Debtor §§ 84–94.] 2. The compensation paid as part of such an agreement. 3.Hist. A payment of money or chattels as satisfaction for an injury. • In Anglo-Saxon and other early societies, a composition with the injured party was recognized as a way to deter acts of revenge by the injured party. — compose,vb.

COMPOSITION DEED

composition deed.See DEED.

COMPOSITION OF MATTER

composition of matter.Patents. One of the five types of patentable statutory subject matter, consisting of combinations of natural elements whether resulting from chemical union or from mechanical mixture, and whether the substances are gases, fluids, powders, or solids. • This classification includes chemical compounds such as drugs and fuels, physical products such as plastics and particleboard, and new life forms made by genetic engineering. Its subject matter is always the substance itself, rather than the form or shape. — Often shortened to composition. [Cases: Patents 14. C.J.S. Patents § 22.]

“[A] composition of matter describes what most people imagine to be the goal of the typical laboratory inventor, since it is usually a new chemical invention, although it can be any composition of materials, not limited solely to chemicals.” Arthur R. Miller & Michael H. Davis, Intellectual Property in a Nutshell 21 (2d ed. 1990).

COMPOSITION WITH CREDITORS

composition with creditors.See COMPOSITION(1).

COMPOS MENTIS

COMPRINT

comprint. (kom-print). Copyright. Hist. The surreptitious and supposedly illegal printing of another bookseller's copy of a work. • Despite the word's appearance as a legal term in dictionaries since 1706, no such offense ever existed. The term, which is properly a verb meaning "to share in printing (a book)," was first given this erroneous definition by John Kersey when he produced a new edition of Edward Phillips's New World of English Words. It has occasionally been copied by legal lexicographers ever since.

COMPRISING

comprising, adj. Patents. (In the transition between the preamble and the body of a patent claim) including; having. • This term does not limit the claim to the specified elements, so a later patent applicant's product or process cannot avoid infringement by merely adding another claim element. See closed-ended claim under PA-TENT CLAIM.

COMPROMIS

compromis (kom-pr<<schwa>>-mee). [French] Int'l law. An agreement between two or more countries to submit an existing dispute to the jurisdiction of an arbitrator, an arbitral tribunal, or an international court. See compro-missory arbitration under ARBITRATION.

COMPULSION

compulsion, n. 1. The act of compelling; the state of being compelled.

2. An uncontrollable inclination to do something. 3. Objective necessity; duress. — compel, vb.

compulsory unitization. See UNITIZATION.

COMPURGATION

compurgation (kom-p<<schwa>>r-gay-sh<<schwa>>n), n. [Latin con- “together” + purgare “to clear or purge”] Hist. A trial by which a defendant could have supporters (called compurgators), frequently 11 in number, testify that they believed the defendant was telling the truth. — Also termed wager of law; trial by oath. — compur-gatory, adj.

COMPURGATOR

compurgator (kom-p<<schwa>>r-gay-t<<schwa>>r).Hist. A person who appeared in court and made an oath in support of a civil or criminal defendant. — Also termed oath-helper. See COMPURGATION.

CONCEPTION OF INVENTION

conception of invention.Patents. The formation in the inventor's mind of a definite and permanent idea of a complete invention that is thereafter applied in practice. • Courts usu. consider conception when determining priority of invention. [Cases: Patents 90(1). C.J.S. Patents §§ 120–122.]

CONCEPTUM

conceptum (k<<schwa>>n-sep-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin “seized”] Civil law. A theft in which the stolen item was searched for and found in someone's possession and in the presence of witnesses. See furtum conceptum under FURTUM.

CONCERTED ACTION

concerted action.An action that has been planned, arranged, and agreed on by parties acting together to further some scheme or cause, so that all involved are liable for the actions of one another. — Also termed concert of action. [Cases: Conspiracy 2, 24(1). C.J.S. Conspiracy §§ 9–15, 17, 113–116.]

CONCERTED ACTIVITY

concerted activity. Labor law. Action by employees concerning wages or working conditions. • Concerted activity is protected by the National Labor Relations Act and cannot be used as a basis for disciplining or discharging an employee. [Cases: Labor Relations 281. C.J.S. Labor Relations §§ 263–264.]

“Typical protected concerted activity involves union organizing, the discussion of unionization among employees, or the attempt by one employee to solicit union support from another employee. But concerted activity need not involve a union. Activities by groups of employees unaffiliated with a union to improve their lot at their work place are deemed protected concerted activities.” Douglas L. Leslie, Labor Law in a Nutshell 84 (3d ed. 1992).

CONCERTED REFUSAL TO DEAL

concerted refusal to deal. Antitrust. An agreement between two or more persons or firms to not do business with a third party. • The parties to the agreement may or may not be competitors. Concerted refusals to deal may violate § 1 of the Sherman Act and are analyzed under either the per se rule or the rule of reason, depending on the nature of the agreement. See BOYCOTT; PER SE RULE; RULE OF REASON.

CONCERT OF ACTION

concert of action. See CONCERTED ACTION.

CONCERT-OF-ACTION RULE

concert-of-action rule. See WHARTON'S RULE.

CONCESSI

concessi (k<<schwa>>n-ses-I). [Latin] Hist. I have granted. • Concessi creates a covenant in a lease for years; it does not warrant title. Concessi often appeared in the phrase demisi, concessi, et ad firmam tradidi (“demised, granted, and let to farm”). Cf. DEDI.

“Concessi (a word much used in Conveyances). In Law it creates a Covenant, as Dedi does a Warranty.” Thomas Blount, Nomo-Lexicon: A Law-Dictionary (1670).

CONCESSIMUS

concessimus (k<<schwa>>n-ses-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Hist. We have granted. • Concessimus is a term of conveyance that creates a joint covenant on the part of the grantors.

CONCESSIO

concessio (k<<schwa>>n-sesh-ee-oh). [Latin] Hist. A grant. • This is a term of conveyance used to convey in-corporeal property. Pl. concessiones.

“Grants, concessiones; the regular method by the common law of transferring the property of incorporeal here-ditaments, or, such things whereof no livery can be had. For which reason all corporeal hereditaments, as lands and houses, are said to lie in livery; and the others, as advowsons, commons, rents, reversions, etc., to lie in grant.... These therefore pass merely by the delivery of the deed.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 317 (1766).

CONCESSION

concession, n. 1. A government grant for specific privileges. 2. The voluntary yielding to a demand for the sake of a settlement. 3. A rebate or abatement. 4. Int'l law. A contract in which a country transfers some rights to a foreign enterprise, which then engages in an activity (such as mining) contingent on state approval and subject to the terms of the contract. [Cases: Treaties 8. C.J.S. Treaties § 6.] — concede, vb. — concessive, adj.

CONCESSION BARGAINING

concession bargaining. Labor law. A type of collective bargaining in which the parties negotiate the employees' giving back previously gained improvements in wages, benefits, or working conditions in exchange for some form of job security, such as protection against layoffs. — Also termed employee givebacks; union givebacks. See COLLECTIVE BARGAINING.

CONCESSIT SOLVERE

concessit solvere (k<<schwa>>n-ses-it sol-v<<schwa>>-ree). [Latin “he agreed to pay”] Hist. A form of debt action on a simple contract. • The plaintiff alleged that the defendant had granted and agreed to pay to the plaintiff the sum sued for, but had not done so. The defendant responded with a plea of nunquam indebitatus (“never indebted”). See indebitatus assumpsit under ASSUMPSIT; NUNQUAM INDEBITATUS; common count under COUNT.

CONCESSOR

concessor (k<<schwa>>n-ses-<<schwa>>r). Hist. A grantor. Cf. CONCESSUS.

CONCESSUM

concessum (k<<schwa>>n-ses-<<schwa>>m), p.pl.[fr. Latin concedere “to grant”] Hist. Granted. • Judges used this term to signify their assent to a point made in argument; for example, a court might state that a particular proposition was concessum per totam curiam (“granted by the whole court”).

CONCESSUS

concessus (k<<schwa>>n-ses-<<schwa>>s). Hist. A grantee. Cf. CONCESSOR.

CONCILIATION

conciliation, n. 1. A settlement of a dispute in an agreeable manner. 2. A process in which a neutral person meets with the parties to a dispute and explores how the dispute might be resolved; esp., a relatively unstructured method of dispute resolution in which a third party facilitates communication between parties in an attempt to help them settle their differences. • Some jurisdictions, such as California, have Family Conciliation Courts to help resolve problems within the family. — Also termed (in sense 2) facilitation; conciliation procedure. Cf. MEDIATION; ARBITRATION. — conciliate, vb. — conciliative, conciliatory, adj. — conciliator, n.

CONCILIATION COURT

conciliation court. See small-claims court under COURT.

CONCILIATION PROCEDURE

concilium (k<<schwa>>n-sil-ee-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “council”] 1.Hist. The sitting of a court to hear argument in a case; a motion requesting a day to present an argument. 2.CONCILIIUM PLEBIS.

CONCILIIUM PLEBIS

concilium plebis (k<<schwa>>n-sil-ee-<<schwa>>m plee-bis). [Latin “assembly of the people”] Roman law. An assembly of the plebs gathered together to enact legislation. — Often shortened to concilium. See PLEBISCITUM. Cf. comitia tributa under COMITIA.

“Legislation was carried on to some extent by the Comitia Tributa and in an increasing degree by the assembly of the plebs alone, concilium plebis, which, in historical times, was also based on the tribunal organisation. This assembly, presided over by a tribune of the plebs, was active from early times and there was early legislation on constitutional questions, enacted by that body and approved by the Senate, which was regarded as binding on the whole community. Its enactments, plebiscita, were often called, as binding the whole community, leges ....” W.W. Buckland, A Text-Book of Roman Law from Augustus to Justinian 4 (Peter Stein ed., 3d ed. 1963).

“The pressure of plebeian agitation had led to the creation of tribunes of the plebs (494 B.C.) for the protection of individual citizens from oppression, with the right to hold meetings of an assembly called the Concilium Plebis, which eventually became identical with the Comitia Tributa, except that it comprised only the plebeian members of the Roman people, without the patricians. The resolutions of this assembly (plebiscita) at first bound the plebeians only, but by an obscure development culminating in the passing of the Lex Hortensia of 287 B.C., they came to be binding as laws on the whole people, patricians and plebeians alike.” William A. Hunter, Introduction to Roman Law 16 (F.H. Lawson ed., 9th ed. 1934).

CONCILIIUM REGIS

concilium regis (k<<schwa>>n-sil-ee-<<schwa>>m ree-jis). [Latin “assembly of the king”] Hist. A tribunal that, during the reigns of Edward I and Edward II, heard cases of extraordinary difficulty.

CONCLUDE

conclude, vb. 1. To ratify or formalize (a treaty, convention, or contract) <it can be difficult to amend a contract that the parties have already concluded>. 2. To bind; estop <the admissions concluded the party as a matter of law>. 3. Scots law. To sign (a contract, letter, etc.) for the sale of real property. • This term most commonly appears in the phrase conclude missives.

---

CONCLUSION

conclusion,n.1. The final part of a speech or writing (such as a jury argument or a pleading).2. A judgment arrived at by reasoning; an inferential statement. 3. The closing, settling, or final arranging of a treaty, contract, deal, etc. See OPINION(2).4.Archaic.An act by which one estops oneself from doing anything inconsistent with the act.

“Conclusion is, when a man by his own act upon record hath charged himself with a duty or other thing .... So if the sheriff, upon a capias to him directed, returns that he hath taken the body, and yet hath not the body in court at the day of the return, he shall be amerced ....” Termes de la Ley 102–03 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

CONCORD

concord (kon-kord or kong-), n. 1. An amicable arrangement between parties, esp. between peoples or nations; a compact or treaty. 2. Archaic. An agreement to compromise and settle an action in trespass.

“Concord is an Agreement made between two or more, upon a Trespass committed; and is divided into Concord executory, and Concord executed... ; one binds not, as being imperfect, but the other is absolute, and ties the Party.” Giles Jacob, A New Law-Dictionary (8th ed. 1762).

3. Archaic. An in-court agreement in which a person who acquired land by force acknowledges that the land in question belongs to the complainant. See DEFORCE. “Next comes the concord, or agreement itself, after leave obtained from the court; which is usually an acknowledgment from the deforcians (or those who keep the other out of possession) that the lands in question are the right of the complainant.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 350 (1766).

4. Hist. The settlement of a dispute.

final concord. A written agreement between the parties to an action by which they settle the action in court, with the court's permission. — Also termed finalis concordia; final peace.

CONCORDAT

concordat (kon- or k<<schwa>>n-kor-dat). 1. An agreement between a government and a church, esp. the Roman Catholic Church. [Cases: Religious Societies 29. C.J.S. Religious Societies §§ 36–37.]

“The qualification of a treaty as a concordat depends only upon its object and purpose, not upon the name or outward form chosen by the parties. Although the term originally was also used for treaties between States, it has increasingly become restricted to only those treaties concluded with the Holy See.” Heribert Franz Köck, “Con-cordats,” in 1 Encyclopedia of Public International Law 164 (1992).

2.Hist. Eccles. law. An agreement between ecclesiastical persons concerning a benefice, such as a resignation or promotion. See BENEFICE. 3. An agreement between secular persons or entities.

CONCORDATORY

concordatory (k<<schwa>>n-kor-d<<schwa>>-tor-ee), adj. Of or relating to a concordat, esp. one between church and state in France.

CONCORDIA DISCORDANTIUM CANONUM

Concordia discordantium canonum (kon-kor-dee-<<schwa>> dis-kor-dan-shee-<<schwa>>m k<<schwa>>-nohn-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “the harmony of the discordant canons”] Hist. A collection of eccle-siastical authorities compiled by Gratian, an Italian monk, ca. 1140. • Gratian analyzed questions of law by drawing conclusions from side-by-side comparisons of a variety of texts. Later canonist scholarship usu. pro-ceeded from Gratian's work. — Also termed Decretum Gratiani; Decretum.

“Another body of jurisprudence was coming into being. From humble beginnings the canon law had grown into a mighty system. Already it asserted its right to stand beside or above the civil law. The civil law might be the law of earth, ius soli; here was the law of heaven, ius poli.... Many men had been endeavouring to state that law, but the fame of earlier labourers was eclipsed by that of Gratian. A monk of Bologna, that city which was the centre of the new secular jurisprudence, he published ... a book which he called Concordia discordantium canonum, but which was soon to become for all mankind simply the Decretum Gratiani, or yet more simply the Decretum. It is a great law-book. The spirit which animated its author was not that of a theologian, not that of an ecclesiastical ruler, but that of a lawyer.... The Decretum soon became an authoritative text-book and the canonist seldom went behind it.... The canonist had for it rather that reverence which English lawyers have paid to Coke upon Littleton ....” 1 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 112–13 (2d ed. 1898).

CONCOURSE

concourse (kon-kors orkong-).Scots law. 1. The simultaneous existence of two actions based on the same facts, esp. a civil action and a criminal action; the concurrence of a public prosecutor in a private prosecution. 2. The concurrence of the public prosecutor to a criminal prosecution by a private person.

“A private party may prosecute for the punishment of an offence perpetrated against himself, and for which the public prosecutor may refuse to prosecute at the public expense; but the concurrence of the public prosecutor is necessary, and it cannot be refused; or if refused, the case may proceed at the instance of the private party. Concourse is distinguished from Instance. In the former case the public prosecutor merely concurs or consents, whilst in the latter case he is also a principal party prosecuting for the public interest.” Hugh Barclay, A Digest of the Law of Scotland 162 (3d ed. 1865).

3. A conflict among creditors or claimants. See CONCURSUS(1).

CONCUBINAGE

concubinage (kon-kyoo-b<<schwa>>-nij), n.1. The relationship of a man and woman who cohabit without the benefit of marriage. [Cases: Marriage 22. C.J.S. Marriage §§ 24–25.] 2. The state of being a concubine. 3.Hist. A plea in a dower action made by a defendant who asserts that the plaintiff is the defendant's concubine rather than wife.

“Concubinage, in common Acceptation is the Keeping of a Whore or Concubine: But in a legal Sense, it is used as an Exception against her that sueth for Dower, alledging thereby that she was not a Wife lawfully married to the Party, in whose Lands she seeks to be endowed, but his Concubine.” Giles Jacob, A New Law-Dictionary (8th ed. 1762).

CONCUBINATUS

concubinatus (kon-kyoo-bi-nay-t<<schwa>>s), n. [Latin “concubinage”] Roman law. A permanent, mono-gamous union of a man and a woman who are not legally married. • Concubinatus was not prohibited by law, but carried fewer benefits than a legal marriage. Cf. JUSTAE NUPTIAE.

CONCUBINE

concubine (kong-ky<<schwa>>-bIn).1.Archaic. A woman who cohabits with a man to whom she is not married. • A concubine is often considered a wife without title. A concubine's status arises from the permanent cohabitation of a man and a woman as husband and wife although without the benefit of marriage. Cf. common-law wife under WIFE; COURTESAN. [Cases: Marriage 54. C.J.S. Marriage §§ 43–44.] 2.Hist. Eccles. law. A secondary or inferior wife, usu. in a polygamous marriage, who lacks the full rights and privileges of the first wife. • Although a concubine was expected to serve all the functions of a legitimate wife, she had no authority in the family or household, and was denied certain legal protections. For instance, her husband could easily disown her, she had no dower rights, and her children could not inherit from their father if he had children by his first wife. A concubine was also barred from certain spiritual comforts, such as churching after the birth of a child.

CONCUBITOR

concubitor (k<<schwa>>n-kyoo-bi-tohr), n. One who keeps a concubine.

CONCUR

concur (k<<schwa>>n-k<<schwa>>r), vb.1. To agree; to consent. 2. In a judicial opinion, to agree with the judgment in the case (usu. as expressed in the opinion of another judge), or the opinion of another judge, but often for different reasons or through a different line of reasoning. 3. (Of a house in a bicameral legislature) to accept an amendment passed by the other house.

“When a bill has been amended in the second house and passed with the amendment, it is returned by that house to the house of its origin with a message stating the facts and requesting the house where the bill originated to concur in the amendment.” National Conference of State Legislatures, Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure § 766, at 553 (2000).

4.Civil law. To join with other claimants in presenting a demand against an insolvent estate.

CONCURATOR

concurator (kon- or k<<schwa>>n-kyuur-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>r).Civil law. A joint guardian or co-curator. See CURATOR.

CONCURRENCE

concurrence. 1. Agreement; assent. 2. A vote cast by a judge in favor of the judgment reached, often on grounds differing from those expressed in the opinion or opinions explaining the judgment. 3. A separate written opinion explaining such a vote. — Also termed (in sense 3) concurring opinion. [Cases: Courts 108. C.J.S. Courts § 175.] 4. Acceptance by one house in a bicameral legislature of an amendment passed by the other house.

CONCURRENCY

concurrency,n.1.Archaic. The quality or fact of being concurrent in jurisdiction; joint right or authority. 2.Criminal procedure. An identical duration for two or more criminal sentences assessed against the same de-fendant.

CONCURRENT

concurrent,adj.1. Operating at the same time; covering the same matters < concurrent interests>.2. Having au-thority on the same matters <concurrent jurisdiction>. [Cases: Courts 472, 489, 510; Federal Courts 1131. C.J.S. Courts §§ 186, 203, 222, 225.]

concurso (kon- or k<<schwa>>n-k<<schwa>>r-soh), n. [Latin lit. "to run hither and thither"] Civil law. An action in which a creditor seeks to enforce a claim against an insolvent debtor.

CONCURSUS

concursum (kon- or k<<schwa>>n-k<<schwa>>r-s<<schwa>>s). [Latin "a running together"] 1. Civil & Scots law. A proceeding in which two or more creditors claim, usu. adversely to each other, an interest in a fund or estate so that they can sort out and adjudicate all the claims on the fund. See CONCOURSE (3). 2. Civil law. INTER-PLEADER. 3. Eccles. law. An examination to determine a person's fitness for parochial office.

CONCURSUS DEBITI ET CREDITI

concursum debiti et crediti (k<<schwa>>n-k<<schwa>>r-s<<schwa>>s deb-i-ti et cred-i-ti). [Law Latin] Scots law. A running together of debt and credit. • The phrase appears in reference to requirements for supporting a plea of compensation.

"Concursum debiti et crediti .... This is necessary to found a plea of compensation, for the parties must be debtor and creditor, each in his own right and at the same time. Thus, if A sue B for payment of a debt due by him, B may plead in compensation a debt due to him by A, and here there is the necessary concurrence. But, if the firm of which A is a partner suing B for a debt due by him to them, be met by the plea of compensation by B, on the ground of a private debt due by A, the plea will not be sustained, for there is no concursus; a company being regarded by the law as a separate person." John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 88–89 (4th ed. 1894).

concurus in delicto (kon- or k<<schwa>>n-k<<schwa>>r-s<<schwa>>s in d<<schwa>>-lik-toh). [Latin] Cooperation in crime.

CONCUSSIO

concussio (k<<schwa>>n-k<<schwa>>sh-ee-oh), n. [Latin] Roman law. The offense of extorting money or gifts by threat of violence. • In modern civil-law contexts, the term is often anglicized to concussion. — concuss,vb.

CONCUSSIONARY

concussionary.Archaic. A person who extorts from others under guise of authority; one who practices concussion.

CONDEDIT

condedit (k<<schwa>>n-dee-dit or -ded-it). [Latin “he made (a will)”] Eccles. law. A defensive plea filed by a party in response to an ecclesiastical-court libel (i.e., complaint) questioning the veracity of a will. — Also spelled condidit.

CONDEMN

condemn,vb.1. To judicially pronounce (someone) guilty. 2. To determine and declare (property) to be assigned to public use. See EMINENT DOMAIN. 3. To adjudge (a building) as being unfit for habitation. 4. To adjudge (food or drink) as being unfit for human consumption. 5.Maritime law. To declare (a vessel) to be forfeited to the government, to be a prize, or to be unfit for service.

CONDEMNATION

condemnation (kon-dem-nay-sh<<schwa>>n), n.1. The act of judicially pronouncing someone guilty; conviction. 2. The determination and declaration that certain property (esp. land) is assigned to public use, subject to reasonable compensation; the exercise of eminent domain by a governmental entity. See EMINENT DOMAIN.

excess condemnation.A taking of land in excess of the boundaries of the public project as designed by the con-demnor. [Cases: Eminent Domain 58. C.J.S. Eminent Domain §§ 68–69.]

inverse condemnation.An action brought by a property owner for compensation from a governmental entity that has taken the owner's property without bringing formal condemnation proceedings. — Also termed constructive condemnation; reverse condemnation. [Cases: Eminent Domain 266. C.J.S. Eminent Domain §§ 375, 377, 381.]

quick condemnation.The immediate taking of possession of private property for public use, whereby the esti-mated compensation is deposited in court or paid to the condemnee until the actual amount of compensation can be established. — Also termed quick-take. [Cases: Eminent Domain 187, 188. C.J.S. Eminent Domain §§ 210–212, 221.]

3. An official pronouncement that a building is unfit for habitation; the act of making such a pronouncement. 4. The official pronouncement that a thing (such as food or drink) is unfit for use or consumption; the act of making such a pronouncement. [Cases: Health 392. C.J.S. Limitations of Actions § 88.] 5. Maritime law. The declaration that a vessel is forfeited to the government, is a prize, or is unfit for service.

CONDEMNATION BLIGHT

condemnation blight. 1. The reduction in value that the property targeted for condemnation suffers in anticipation of the taking. 2. The physical deterioration of property targeted for condemnation in anticipation of the taking.

CONDEMNATION MONEY

condemnation money. 1. Damages that a losing party in a lawsuit is condemned to pay. 2. Compensation paid by an expropriator of land to the landowner for taking the property.

CONDEMNATORY

condemnatory (k<<schwa>>n-dem-n<<schwa>>-tor-ee), adj. 1. Condemning; expressing condemnation or censure. 2. Of or relating to the use of eminent domain or expropriation.

CONDEMNEE

condemnee (kon-dem-nee). One whose property is expropriated for public use or taken by a public-works project.

CONDEMNOR

condemnor (kon-dem-noror k<<schwa>>n-dem-n<<schwa>>r). A person or entity that expropriates property for public use. — Also spelled condemner (k<<schwa>>n-dem-n<<schwa>>r).

CONDENSATE

condensate. See DISTILLATE(1).

CONDESCENDENCE

condescendence (kon-di-sen-d<<schwa>>nts), n. Scots law. A statement of facts in a civil pleading, set out in consecutively numbered paragraphs, that the claimant relies on to justify the claim.

CONDICTIO

condictio (k<<schwa>>n-dik-shee-oh), n. [fr. Latin condicere “to demand back”] Roman & civil law. A personal action in the nature of demanding something back; an action of debt. • In the sense here used, debt must be understood broadly to cover not only contractual but also quasi-contractual or tort claims. Condictio is usu. founded on an obligation to give or do a certain thing or service. — In English termed condiction; action of debt. Pl. condictiones (k<<schwa>>n-dik-shee-oh-neeZ). — condictitious, condictious, adj.

“Condition was a form of legal procedure ... first applied to the recovery of a loan of a definite sum of money, and afterwards applied to a loan of other things ('fungibles') where the return of the loan was required in quantity and quality, but not the identical things; in fact, where the borrower undertook to repay not this, but so much of the article and quality received. When condition was applied to such things, it was said to be called triticaria ('relating to wheat') from one of the most important subjects, but this action (condictio triticaria) was afterwards extended so as to include all cases where things certain, other than coined money, were redemanded. In practice the term triticaria was not used, or Justinian has cut it out." 2 Henry John Roby, Roman Private Law 76 (1902).

"The principal actio stricti juris was the condictio, a general term with many applications. It might be brought for a certain sum of money (condictio certae pecuniae), or for some other certain thing (condictio triticaria), or to assert an illiquid claim (condictio incerti). The various forms of condictio were also distinguished according to the cause which gave rise to them, as condictio furtiva, condictio indebiti, and others ...." R.W. Lee, The Elements of Roman Law 435 (4th ed. 1956).

condictio causa data, causa non secuta (k<<schwa>>n-dik-shee-oh kaw-z<< schwa>> day-t<<schwa>>, kaw-z<<schwa>> non si-kyoo-t<<schwa>>). [Latin "claim for recovery, consideration having been given but consideration not having followed"] Roman & civil law. An action for recovery of money paid when the consideration for the payment has not been furnished.

- The classic case in Scotland concerned an advance payment for ship's engines: war broke out, the engines were requisitioned but never supplied, and the payment was held to be recoverable. Pl. conditiones causa data, causa non secuta.

condictio certi (k<<schwa>>n-dik-shee-oh s<<schwa>>r-tI). [Latin "claim for recovery of a certain sum or thing"] An action based on a promise to do a thing, where the promise is certain.

condictio ex causa furtiva (k<<schwa>>n-dik-shee-oh eks kaw-z<<schwa>> f<<schwa>>r-tI-v<<schwa>>). See condictio rei furtivae.

condictio ex lege (k<<schwa>>n-dik-shee-oh eks lee-jee). [Latin "claim for recovery under a statute"] An action arising where a statute creates an obligation but provides no remedy.

condictio furtiva (k<<schwa>>n-dik-shee-oh f<<schwa>>r-tI-v<<schwa>>). See condictio rei furtivae.

condictio incerti (k<<schwa>>n-dik-shee-oh in-s<<schwa>>r-tI). [Latin "claim for recovery of an uncertain amount"] An action to recover an uncertain amount.

condictio indebiti (k<<schwa>>n-dik-shee-oh in-deb-<<schwa>>-tI). [Latin "claim for recovery of something not due"] An action to prevent the unjust enrichment of a defendant who had received money or property from the plaintiff by mistake. — Also termed actio condictio indebiti (though strictly speaking this is a solecism).

condictio ob rem dati, re non secuta (k<<schwa>>n-dik-shee-oh ahb rem day-tI, ree non si-kyoo-t<<schwa>>). [Latin "personal claim based on a transfer made for a purpose that has failed"] Roman law. A condition for something handed over for a purpose that has failed, as for the settlement of a lawsuit when in fact the lawsuit has nevertheless continued.

condictio ob turpem vel injustam causam (k<<schwa>>n-dik-shee-oh ahb t<<schwa>>r-p<<schwa>>m vel in-j<<schwa>>s-t<<schwa>>m kaw-z<<schwa>>m). [Latin "personal claim based on an immoral or illegal cause"] Roman law. A personal claim by an innocent party to recover money or property paid for an immoral or illegal purpose. — Sometimes shortened to condictio ob turpem causam.

"The condictio ob turpem vel iniustam causam lay where the payment or conveyance had been made for an immoral or illegal purpose (e.g. to induce the recipient not to commit a crime, or to return what he had borrowed and was wrongfully refusing to return). But the plaintiff must not be equally tainted by the 'turpitude,' as he would be, for example, if the payment had been made to induce the recipient to commit a crime." Barry Nicholas, An Introduction to Roman Law 230 (1962).

condictio rei furtivae (k<<schwa>>n-dik-shee-oh ree-I f<<schwa>>r-tI-vee). [Latin "claim for recovery of a stolen thing"] An action to recover a stolen thing or its value if the thing could not be returned. • A condictio rei furtivae could be brought by an owner or pledgee against the thief or the thief's heirs. — Also termed condictio furtiva; condictio ex causa furtiva.

condictio sine causa (k<<schwa>>n-dik-shee-oh sI-nee kaw-z<<schwa>>). [Latin "claim for recovery of money or a thing given without consideration"] An action for the recovery of property transferred without consideration and in contemplation of a specific event that did not occur, such as a dowry made in view of a marriage that does not take place.

condictio triticaria (k<<schwa>>n-dik-shee-oh trI-ti-kair-ee-<<schwa>>). [Latin "claim for recovery of wheat"] An action for the recovery of a specified quantity of a named commodity.

CONDITIO

conditio (k<<schwa>>n-dish-ee-oh). [Latin] A condition.

CONDITIO SINE QUA NON

conditio sine qua non. See SINE QUA NON.

CONDITIO SI SINE LIBERIS DECESSERIT

conditio si sine liberis decesserit (k<<schwa>>n-dish-ee-oh sIsI-nee lib-<<schwa>>r-is di-ses-<<schwa>>r-it). [Latin "the condition if he should have died childless"] Roman law. An express or implied clause in a will providing that if the heir or legatee dies childless, the property is to go to another person, such as the testator's own descendants.

CONDITION

condition, n.1. A future and uncertain event on which the existence or extent of an obligation or liability depends; an uncertain act or event that triggers or negates a duty to render a promised performance. • For example, if Jones promises to pay Smith $500 for repairing a car, Smith's failure to repair the car (an implied or constructive condition) relieves Jones of the promise to pay.

“ ‘Condition’ is used in this Restatement to denote an event which qualifies a duty under a contract. It is recognized that ‘condition’ is used with a wide variety of other meanings in legal discourse. Sometimes it is used to denote an event that limits or qualifies a transfer of property. In the law of trusts, for example, it is used to denote an event such as the death of the settlor that qualifies his disposition of property in trust. Sometimes it is used to refer to a term in an agreement that makes an event a condition, or more broadly to refer to any term in an agreement (e.g., ‘standard conditions of sale’). For the sake of precision, ‘condition’ is not used here in these other senses.” Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 224 cmt. a (1981).

2. A stipulation or prerequisite in a contract, will, or other instrument, constituting the essence of the instrument. • If a court construes a contractual term to be a condition, then its untruth or breach will entitle the party to whom it is made to be discharged from all liabilities under the contract. [Cases: Contracts 218–227; Wills 639–668. C.J.S. Architects § 16; Contracts §§ 355–358, 362, 444–445, 450, 557–560; Wills §§ 1380–1424.]

affirmative condition. See positive condition.

casual condition. Civil law. A condition that depends on chance; one that is not within the power of either party to an agreement.

collateral condition. A condition that requires the performance of an act having no relation to an agreement's main purpose.

compulsory condition. A condition expressly requiring that a thing be done, such as a tenant's paying rent on a certain day.

concurrent condition. A condition that must occur or be performed at the same time as another condition, the performance by each party separately operating as a condition precedent; a condition that is mutually dependent on another, arising when the parties to a contract agree to exchange performances simultaneously. — Also termed condition concurrent. [Cases: Contracts 225. C.J.S. Contracts § 362.]

“Conditions concurrent are acts that the parties to a contract are under duties of performing concurrently, the act of each party being separately operative as a condition precedent. The act is not concurrent with the legal relation affected, but only with the act of the other party.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 412–13 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

condition implied by law. See constructive condition.

condition implied in law. See constructive condition.

condition precedent (pre-schwa-see-schwa-nt also pres-schwa-d-schwa-nt). An act or event, other than a lapse of time, that must exist or occur before a duty to perform something promised arises. • If the condition does not occur and is not excused, the promised performance need not be rendered. The most common condition contemplated by this phrase is the immediate or unconditional duty of performance by a promisor. [Cases: Contracts 221. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 356, 444–445, 450.]

condition subsequent. A condition that, if it occurs, will bring something else to an end; an event the existence of which, by agreement of the parties, discharges a duty of performance that has arisen. [Cases: Contracts 226. C.J.S. Architects § 16; Contracts § 357.]

constructive condition. A condition contained in an essential contractual term that, though omitted by the parties from their agreement, a court has supplied as being reasonable in the circumstances; a condition imposed by law to do justice. • The cooperation of the parties to a contract, for example, is a constructive condition. — Also termed implied-in-law condition; condition implied by law; condition implied in law. Cf. implied-in-fact condition. [Cases: Contracts 220. C.J.S. Contracts § 355.]

“[C]onstructive conditions are imposed by law to do justice.... The dividing line between an express condition ... and constructive conditions is often quite indistinct. Yet, the distinction is often of crucial importance. The general rule governing an express condition is that it must be strictly performed. The general rule as to constructive conditions is that substantial compliance is sufficient.” John D. Calamari & Joseph M. Perillo, The Law of Contracts § 11.8, at 402 (4th ed. 1998).

copulative condition (kop-y<<schwa>>-l<<schwa>>-tiv or -lay-tiv). A condition requiring the performance of more than one act. Cf. disjunctive condition; single condition.

dependent condition. A mutual covenant that goes to the consideration on both sides of a contract.

disjunctive condition. A condition requiring the performance of one of several acts. Cf. copulative condition; single condition.

dissolving condition. See resolutive condition.

express condition. 1. A condition that is the manifested intention of the parties. [Cases: Contracts 219.]

“[E]xpress conditions ... are conditions created through the agreement of the parties. This is so whether the intention to have the duty subject to a condition be manifested in words, or through any other conduct or type of utterance.” John Edward Murray Jr., Murray on Contracts § 143, at 290 (2d ed. 1974).

2. A condition that is explicitly stated in an instrument; esp., a contractual condition that the parties have reduced to writing.

implied condition. A condition that is not expressly mentioned, but is imputed by law from the nature of the transaction or the conduct of the parties to have been tacitly understood between them as a part of the agreement. See constructive condition; implied-in-fact condition. [Cases: Contracts 220. C.J.S. Contracts § 355.]

implied-in-fact condition. A contractual condition that the parties have implicitly agreed to by their conduct or by the nature of the transaction. Cf. constructive condition. [Cases: Contracts 220. C.J.S. Contracts § 355.]

implied-in-law condition. See constructive condition.

inherent condition. A condition that is an intrinsic part of an agreement; a condition that is not newly imposed but is already present in an agreement.

lawful condition. A condition that can be fulfilled without violating the law.

mixed condition. Civil law. A condition that depends either on the will of one party and the will of a third person, or on the will of one party and the happening of a causal event.

negative condition. A condition forbidding a party from doing a certain thing, such as prohibiting a tenant from subletting leased property; a promise not to do something, usu. as part of a larger agreement. — Also termed restrictive condition. See negative easement under EASEMENT.

positive condition. A condition that requires some act, such as paying rent. — Also termed affirmative condition.

potestative condition (poh-tes-t<<schwa>>-tiv). Civil law. A condition that will be fulfilled only if the obligated party chooses to do so. • Louisiana no longer uses this term, instead providing that this type of condition will render the obligation null. La. Civ. Code art. 1770. Cf. suspensive condition; resolutive condition. [Cases: Contracts 10. C.J.S. Contracts § 108.]

preexisting condition. Insurance. A physical or mental condition evident during the period before the effective date of a medical-insurance policy. • Typically, coverage for later treatment for such a condition is excluded if symptoms of the condition were present during the period before the policy was effective. [Cases: Insurance 2475.]

promissory condition. A condition that is also a promise.

“The distinction between a condition which is also a promise, and a condition which is not the subject of a promise, is often one of great difficulty and importance, especially where the term is implied and not expressed, and it is unfortunate that legal usage has sanctioned the word ‘condition’ for two such different concepts. It would at least be desirable if lawyers could be persuaded to refer to conditions which are the subject of a promise as ‘promissory conditions’, a usage which it is proposed to adopt here.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 147 (3d ed. 1981).

resolutive condition (r<<schwa>>-zol-y<<schwa>>-tor-ee). Civil law. A condition that upon fulfillment terminates an already enforceable obligation and entitles the parties to be restored to their original positions. — Also termed resolutive condition; dissolving condition. Cf. potestative condition.

restrictive condition. See negative condition.

single condition. A condition requiring the performance of a specified thing. Cf. copulative condition; disjunctive condition.

suspensive condition. Civil law. A condition that makes an obligation mandatory only if a specified but uncertain event occurs. Cf. potestative condition. [Cases: Contracts 222. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 356–357.]

testamentary condition. A condition that must be satisfied before a gift made in a will becomes effective.

triggering condition. A circumstance that must exist before a legal doctrine applies; esp., in criminal law, a circumstance that must exist before an actor will be entitled to a justification defense.

unlawful condition. A condition that cannot be fulfilled without violating the law.

3. Loosely, a term, provision, or clause in a contract. [Cases: Sales 85(1); Vendor and Purchaser 79. C.J.S. Sales §§ 99–101, 154; Vendor and Purchaser §§ 125, 141.] “This term condition is generally used to describe any fact, subsequent to the formation of a contract, which operates to make the duty of a promisor immediately active and compelling. Such a fact may be described as such in a term of the contract or it may not. In either event, the term of the contract should not itself be called the condition.... It is not uncommon, popularly, to speak of a condition of the contract as synonymous with term or provision of the contract. This should be avoided.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 226 n.1 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

“The word ‘condition’ is used in the law of property as well as in the law of contract and it is sometimes used in a very loose sense as synonymous with ‘term,’ ‘provision,’ or ‘clause.’ In such a sense it performs no useful service.” Id. at 409.

4. A qualification attached to the conveyance of property providing that if a particular event does or does not take place, the estate will be created, enlarged, defeated, or transferred. 5. A state of being; an essential quality or status. — condition,vb.

artificial condition.A physical characteristic of real property, brought about by a person's affirmative act instead of by natural forces.

dangerous condition. 1. A property defect creating a substantial risk of injury when the property is used in a reasonably foreseeable manner. • A dangerous condition may result in waiver of sovereign immunity. [Cases: Automobiles 258; Municipal Corporations 847; Negligence 1086. C.J.S. Motor Vehicles §§ 443, 448–449, 451, 463–464, 467; Municipal Corporations §§ 805–807; Negligence §§ 469–470, 573–574, 580.] 2. A property risk that children, because of their immaturity, cannot appreciate or avoid. [Cases: Negligence 1016, 1067. C.J.S. Negligence §§ 472–495, 513.]

CONDITION SUBSEQUENT

condition subsequent. See CONDITION(2).

CONDOMINIA

condominia (kon-d<<schwa>>-min-ee-<<schwa>>). Civil law. Coownerships or limited ownerships. • Condo-minia are considered part of the dominium of the property, and thus are more than mere rights in the property (i.e., jure in re aliena); examples of condominiums include emphyteusis, superficies, pignus, hypotheca, usufructus, usus, and habitatio.

CONDOMINIUM

condominium (kon-d<<schwa>>-min-ee-<<schwa>>m). 1. Ownership in common with others. 2. A single real-estate unit in a multi-unit development in which a person has both separate ownership of a unit and a common interest, along with the development's other owners, in the common areas. Pl. (for sense 2) condominiums. Cf. COOPERATIVE(2). [Cases: Condominium 1. C.J.S. Estates §§ 193–195, 200, 203.]

“The condominium concept is not new, despite its relatively recent introduction in the United States. Ownership of individual units in buildings can be traced back to ancient Babylon; it was quite common in ancient Rome and in medieval Europe. The earliest condominium statute is Article 664 of the Code Napoleon of 1804, a very brief provision which was later substantially expanded. Condominium statutes were adopted in most nations in Europe, and in Central and South America, before any were adopted in the United States.” Roger A. Cunningham et al., The Law of Property § 2.2, at 34 n.26 (2d ed. 1993).

3. Joint sovereignty by two or more nations. 4. A politically dependent territory under such sovereignty. Pl. condominiumia (senses 3 & 4).

CONDONATION

condonation (kon-d<<schwa>>-nay-sh<<schwa>>n), n. 1. A victim's express or (esp.) implied forgiveness of an offense, esp. by treating the offender as if there had been no offense. • Condonation is not usu. a valid defense to a crime. 2. One spouse's express or implied forgiveness of a marital offense by resuming marital life and sexual intimacy. • For example, one spouse might impliedly forgive the other spouse's infidelity by continuing to live with him or her. If adultery is charged as a ground for divorce and condonation is proved, the forgiving spouse is barred from proof of that offense. Cf. COLLUSION(2); CONNIVANCE(2); RECRIMINATION(1); RECONCILIATION. [Cases: Divorce 47. C.J.S. Divorce § 80.]

CONDONE

condone (k<<schwa>>n-dohn), vb. To voluntarily pardon or overlook (esp. an act of adultery). — condonable (k<<schwa>>n-dohn-<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l), adj.

CONDOCERE ALIQUID FACIENDUM

conducere aliquid faciendum (k<<schwa>>n-d[y]oo-s<<schwa>>-ree al-i-kwid fay-shee-en-d<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Roman law. To bind oneself to perform work for pay. Cf. LOCARE ALIQUID FACIENDUM.

CONDOCERE ALIQUID UTENDUM

conducere aliquid utendum (k<<schwa>>n-d[y]oo-s<<schwa>>-ree al-i-kwid yoo-ten-d<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Roman law. To pay for the use of an object; to hire. Cf. LOCARE ALIQUID UTENDUM.

CONDUCT

conduct, n. Personal behavior, whether by action or inaction; the manner in which a person behaves. • Conduct does not include the actor's natural death or a death that results from behavior consciously engaged in but not reasonably expected to have this result. — conduct, vb.

“The word ‘conduct’ ... covers both acts and omissions.... In cases in which a man is able to show that his conduct, whether in the form of action or of inaction, was involuntary, he must not be held liable for any harmful result produced by it ....” J.W. Cecil Turner, Kenny's Outlines of Criminal Law 13 n.2, 24 (16th ed. 1952).

active conduct. Behavior that involves a person doing something by exerting will on the external world. Cf. passive conduct.

assertive conduct. Evidence. Nonverbal behavior that is intended to be a statement, such as pointing one's finger to identify a suspect in a police lineup. • Assertive conduct is a statement under the hearsay rule, and thus it is not admissible unless a hearsay exception applies. Fed. R. Evid. 801(a)(2). — Also termed implied assertion. [Cases: Criminal Law 419(2.10); Evidence 314(1). C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 869, 871–876; Evidence §§ 259–266, 268, 270–272, 279–280, 283–284, 319.]

contumacious conduct (kon-t[y]oo-may-sh<<schwa>>s). A willful disobedience of a court order. See CON-TUMACY. [Cases: Contempt 20. C.J.S. Contempt §§ 14, 17.]

disorderly conduct. Behavior that tends to disturb the public peace, offend public morals, or undermine public safety. See BREACH OF THE PEACE. [Cases: Disorderly Conduct 1. C.J.S. Disorderly Conduct §§ 2–5.]

“At common law there was no offense known as disorderly conduct, although the offense of breaching the peace made many public disturbances criminal. In addition, this offense could be based on behavior that might cause another to respond in a violent manner even though the party guilty of the breach of the peace acted quietly or secretly, as when a person challenged someone to a duel. The enactment of statutes making disorderly conduct punishable went beyond the common-law notion of a breach of the peace by including behavior that merely tended to disturb the safety, health, or morals of others or that was intended only to annoy another. Further definitions were added later.” Francis Barry McCarthy, “Vagrancy and Disorderly Conduct,” in 4 Encyclopedia of Crime and Justice 1589, 1589 (Sanford H. Kadish ed., 1983).

disruptive conduct.Disorderly conduct in the context of a governmental proceeding. See CONTEMPT.

nonassertive conduct.Evidence. Nonverbal behavior that is not intended to be a statement, such as fainting while being questioned as a suspect by a police officer. • Nonassertive conduct is not a statement under the hearsay rule, and thus it is admissible. Fed. R. Evid. 801. [Cases: Criminal Law 419(2.10); Evidence 314(1). C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 869, 871–876; Evidence §§ 259–266, 268, 270–272, 279–280, 283–284, 319.]

outrageous conduct.Conduct so extreme that it exceeds all reasonable bounds of human decency. See EMO-TIONAL DISTRESS. [Cases: Damages 50.10. C.J.S. Damages §§ 95, 98–104; Torts §§ 67–75, 78.]

passive conduct.Behavior that does not involve exerting will on the external world. Cf. active conduct.

tortious conduct.An act or omission that subjects the actor to liability under the principles of tort law.

unprofessional conduct.Behavior that is immoral, unethical, or dishonorable, esp. when judged by the standards of the actor's profession.

unreasonably dangerous conduct.Conduct that involves undue risk under the circumstances. — Sometimes shortened to dangerous conduct. — Also termed unduly dangerous conduct.

wrongful conduct.An act taken in violation of a legal duty; an act that unjustly infringes on another's rights. — Also termed wrongful act. [Cases: Torts 10(3), 12. C.J.S. Torts §§ 53–54, 59–65.]

CONDUCTIO

conductio (k<<schwa>>n-d<<schwa>>k-shee-oh), n. [Latin “a hiring”] Roman law. The hiring or leasing of services or property. Pl. conductiones (k<<schwa>>n-d<<schwa>>k-shee-oh-nee-z). See locatio conductio under LOCATIO.

CONDUCT MONEY

conduct money.See witness fee under FEE(1).

CONDUCTOR

conductor (k<<schwa>>n-d<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>r or -tor), n. [Latin “one who hires”] Roman law. 1. A lessee or a person who hires the services of another; a hirer. 2. A person hired to make a specific work; a contractor. • A contractor, esp. for the provision of public services, was also called manceps or redemptor. See MANCEPS; LOCATOR(1).

CONDUCTOR OPERARUM

conductor operarum (k<<schwa>>n-d<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>r [or -tor] op-<<schwa>>-rair-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “a hirer of labor”] Roman law. A person who hires another's labor, esp. manual labor, at a stated price; an employer.

CONDUCTUS

conductus (k<<schwa>>n-d<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>s), n. [fr. Latin conducere “to hire”] Roman law. A person or thing hired by a conductor.

CONDUIT TAXATION

conduit taxation. See pass-through taxation under TAXATION.

CONFARREATIO

confarreatio (k<<schwa>>n-far-ee-ay-shee-oh), n. [Latin] Roman law. A religious ceremony used to wed members of the Patrician class in ancient Rome. • By this ceremony, the wife was brought into the husband's family and placed under the husband's protection (manus). Pl. confarreationes (k<<schwa>>n-far-ee-ay-shee-oh-nee). See MANUS(1). Cf. COEMPTIO; USUS(3).

“Anciently, there were three modes in which marriage might be contracted according to Roman usage, one in-volving a religious solemnity, the other two the observance of certain secular formalities. By the religious marriage of Confarreation; by the higher form of civil marriage, which was called Coemption; and by the lower form, which was termed Usus, the Husband acquired a number of rights over the person and property of his wife, which were on the whole in excess of such as are conferred on him in any system of modern jurisprudence. But in what capacity did he acquire them? Not as Husband, but as Father. By the Confarreation, Coemption, and Usus, the woman passed in manum viri, that is, in law she became the Daughter of her husband. She was included in his Patria Potestas.... These three ancient forms of marriage fell, however, gradually into disuse, so that, at the most splendid period of Roman greatness, they had almost entirely given place to a fashion of wedlock — old appar-ently, but not hitherto considered reputable — which was founded on a modification of the lower form of civil marriage.” Henry S. Maine, Ancient Law 149 (10th ed. 1884).

“Confarreatio was a religious ceremony performed in the house of the bridegroom, to which the bride had been conveyed in the state, in the presence of at least ten witnesses and the Pontifex Maximus, or one of the higher priests. A set form of words (carmen — verba concepta) was repeated, and a sacred cake made of Far (farreus panis) — whence the term Confarreatio — was either tasted by or broken over the parties who sat during the performance of various rites, side by side, on a wooden seat made of an ox-yoke covered with the skin of the sheep which had previously been offered in sacrifice.” William Ramsay, A Manual of Roman Antiquities 295 (Rodolfo Lanciani ed., 15th ed. 1894).

CONFECTIO

confectio (k<<schwa>>n-fek-shee-oh), n. [Latin “a completing”] Hist. The act of making or executing a written instrument. Pl. confectiones (k<<schwa>>n-fek-shee-oh-neeZ).

CONFEDERACY

confederacy, n. 1. A league of states or countries that have joined for mutual support or joint action; an alliance. 2. An association of two or more persons, usu. for unlawful purposes; CONSPIRACY. [Cases: Conspiracy 1.1, 2, 23.1, 24. C.J.S. Conspiracy §§ 2–3, 8–17, 98, 100–103, 110, 113–122, 204.] 3. The fact or condition of being allied or associated.

CONFEDERACY CLAUSE

confederacy clause. Archaic. A clause in a complaint charging that the defendant or defendants have combined with others (who may yet be named as defendants) to defraud or deprive the plaintiff of personal rights.

CONFEDERATE

confederate, n. An ally; esp., a coconspirator or accomplice. [Cases: Conspiracy 39; Criminal Law 59. C.J.S. Conspiracy §§ 134, 137; Criminal Law §§ 127, 998.]

CONFEDERATION

confederation. 1. A league or union of states or nations, each of which retains its sovereignty but also delegates some rights and powers to a central authority. • The United States, for example, was first organized under the Articles of Confederation. Cf. FEDERATION.

“A confederation is a union, more or less complete, of two or more states which before were independent. It aims to secure a common good, external, as mutual protection against powerful neighbors, or internal, as commerce and community of justice by means of common institutions.” Theodore D. Woolsey, Introduction to the Study of International Law § 108, at 173 (5th ed. 1878).

confederation of states. A confederation involving a central government that exists and exercises certain powers but does not control all the external relations of the member states. • For international purposes there exists not one but a number of states. Cf. federal state under STATE.

2. An alliance; esp., in a negative sense, a conspiracy.

CONFEREE

conferee (kon-f<<schwa>>r-ee). See MANAGER(2).

CONFERENCE

conference. 1. CONVENTION(3). 2. A meeting between the two houses of a bicameral legislature. See conference committee under COMMITTEE.

“It is proper for either house to request a conference with the other on any matter of difference or dispute between them. When a conference is requested, the subject of the conference should always be stated. One house may request a conference to inquire or protest concerning an offense or default on the part of a member or officer of the other house. When there is a question concerning procedure, or when an unparliamentary message has been sent, instead of replying directly, a conference should be requested. When there are questions as to procedure between the two houses, the proper procedure is to discuss the matter by a conference committee; also, where one house desires to formally present a question to the other, the question should be submitted through a conference committee." National Conference of State Legislatures, Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure § 764, at 551 (2000).

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE

conference committee. See COMMITTEE.

CONFERENCE OF CHIEF JUSTICES

Conference of Chief Justices. An organization consisting of the highest judicial officers of all the states in the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and the territories of American Samoa, Guam, and the Virgin Islands. • Established in 1949, the organization seeks to improve the administration of justice in various ways, as by supporting adequate judicial funding, promoting the independence and effectiveness of state judicial systems, and advancing professionalism and lawyer competence. Since 1983, the organization has operated as a nonprofit corporation. Abbr. CCJ.

CONFESS

confess, vb. To admit (an allegation) as true; to make a confession. — confessor, n.

CONFESSED JUDGMENT

confessed judgment. See CONFESSIO IN JUDICIO.

CONFESSING ERROR

confessing error. A plea admitting to an assignment of error. See ASSIGNMENT OF ERROR .

CONFESSIO IN JUDICIO

confessio in iudicio (k<<schwa>>n-fesh-ee-oh in joo-dish-ee-oh). [Latin "confession in court"] Hist. An in-court confession.

CONFESSION

confession, n. A criminal suspect's oral or written acknowledgment of guilt, often including details about the crime. Cf. ADMISSION; STATEMENT(3). [Cases: Criminal Law 516. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 878.]

"A confession is an acknowledgment in express words, by the accused in a criminal case, of the truth of the main fact charged or of some essential part of it." 3 John H. Wigmore, Evidence in Trials at Common Law § 821, at 308 (James H. Chadbourn ed., 4th rev. ed. 1970).

“The distinction between admissions in criminal cases and confessions by the accused is the distinction in effect between admissions of fact from which the guilt of the accused may be inferred by the jury and the express admission of guilt itself.” William P. Richardson, The Law of Evidence § 394, at 268 (3d ed. 1928).

coerced confession.A confession that is obtained by threats or force. [Cases: Criminal Law 519, 522. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 893, 908.]

direct confession.A statement in which an accused person acknowledges having committed the crime.

extrajudicial confession.A confession made out of court, and not as a part of a judicial examination or investigation. • Such a confession must be corroborated by some other proof of the corpus delicti, or else it is insufficient to warrant a conviction. Cf. judicial confession.

implied confession.A confession in which the person does not plead guilty but invokes the mercy of the court and asks for a light sentence.

indirect confession.A confession that is inferred from the defendant's conduct.

interlocking confessions.Confessions by two or more suspects whose statements are substantially the same and consistent concerning the elements of the crime. • Such confessions are admissible in a joint trial. [Cases: Criminal Law 528. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 983, 988–990.]

involuntary confession.A confession induced by the police or other law-enforcement authorities who make promises to, coerce, or deceive the suspect. [Cases: Criminal Law 519–526. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 882, 893–897, 901, 903, 906–912, 929–931.]

judicial confession.A plea of guilty or some other direct manifestation of guilt in court or in a judicial proceeding. Cf. extrajudicial confession.

naked confession.A confession unsupported by any evidence that a crime has been committed, and therefore usu. highly suspect. [Cases: Criminal Law 535. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 942.]

oral confession.A confession that is not made in writing. • Oral confessions are admissible, though as a practical matter police interrogators prefer to take written or recorded confessions since juries typically view these as being more reliable.

plenary confession (plee-n<<schwa>>-ree or plen-<<schwa>>-). A complete confession; one that is believed to be conclusive against the person who made it.

relative confession.Hist. A confession of guilt coupled with an accusation against another person as a participant in the crime. • If the accusation against the other person was proved, the accusing defendant was pardoned. If not, the defendant was convicted on the confession. See State v. Willis, 41 A. 820, 825 (Conn. 1898). See AP-PROVER(1).

threshold confession.A spontaneous confession made promptly after arrest and without interrogation by the police. • The issue whether the defendant's statement is a threshold confession usu. arises when the defendant challenges the admissibility of the confession on grounds that he or she suffered an impermissibly long delay before being brought before a magistrate. Courts generally admit this type of confession into evidence if the confession was given before the delay occurred.

voluntary confession. A confession given freely, without any benefit or punishment promised, threatened, or expected.

CONFESSION AND AVOIDANCE

confession and avoidance. A plea in which a defendant admits allegations but pleads additional facts that deprive the admitted facts of an adverse legal effect. • For example, a plea of contributory negligence (before the advent of comparative negligence) was a confession and avoidance. — Also termed avoidance; plea in confession and avoidance; plea of confession and avoidance. [Cases: Pleading 130. C.J.S. Pleading § 197.]

CONFESSION OF JUDGMENT

confession of judgment. 1. A person's agreeing to the entry of judgment upon the occurrence or nonoccurrence of an event, such as making a payment. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2396; Judgment 29. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 138, 152–153, 169.] 2. A judgment taken against a debtor by the creditor, based on the debtor's written consent. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2396; Judgment 29–70. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 138–181, 363–369.] 3. The paper on which the person so agrees, before it is entered. — Also termed confessed judgment; cognovit judgment; statement of confession; warrant of confession; judgment by confession. See COGNOVIT. Cf. WARRANT OF ATTORNEY.

CONFIDENCE

confidence. 1. Assured expectation; firm trust; faith <the partner has confidence in the associate's work>. 2. Reliance on another's discretion; a relation of trust <she took her coworker into her confidence>. 3. A communication made in trust and not intended for public disclosure; specif., a communication protected by the attorney–client or similar privilege <the confidences between lawyer and client>. • Under the ABA Code of Professional Responsibility, a lawyer cannot reveal a client's confidence unless the client consents after full disclosure. DR 4–101. Cf. SECRET(2). [Cases: Witnesses 189–223. C.J.S. Witnesses §§ 302–312, 314–389.] — confide, vb.

CONFIDENCE GAME

confidence game. A means of obtaining money or property whereby a person intentionally misrepresents facts to gain the victim's trust so that the victim will transfer money or property to the person. — Also termed con game; con. Cf. BUNCO. [Cases: False Pretenses 16.]

CONFIDENCE MAN

confidence man. One who defrauds a victim by first gaining the victim's confidence and then, through trickery, obtaining money or property; a swindler. • The equivalent term confidence woman is exceptionally rare, even though women are often involved in confidence games. — Often shortened to con man. See CONFIDENCE GAME. Cf. BUNCO-STEERER.

CONFIDENTIAL

confidential,adj.1. (Of information) meant to be kept secret <confidential settlement terms>.2. (Of a relationship) characterized by trust and a willingness to confide in the other .

CONFIDENTIAL ADOPTION

confidential adoption.See closed adoption under ADOPTION.

CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATION

confidential communication.See COMMUNICATION.

CONFIDENTIALITY

confidentiality,n.1. Secrecy; the state of having the dissemination of certain information restricted. 2. The relation between lawyer and client or guardian and ward, or between spouses, with regard to the trust that is placed in the one by the other. [Cases: Witnesses 184–223. C.J.S. Witnesses §§ 297–389.]

CONFIDENTIALITY AGREEMENT

confidentiality agreement.See NONDISCLOSURE AGREEMENT.

CONFIDENTIALITY STATUTE

confidentiality statute.A law that seals adoption records and prevents an adopted child from learning the identity of his or her biological parent and prevents the biological parent from learning the identity of the adoptive parents. — Also termed sealed-record statute.

CONFIDENTIAL MARRIAGE

confidential marriage.See MARRIAGE(1).

CONFIDENTIAL RELATIONSHIP

confidential relationship.See RELATIONSHIP.

CONFIDENTIAL SOURCE

confidential source.A person who provides information to a law-enforcement agency or to a journalist on the express or implied guarantee of anonymity. • Confidentiality is protected both under the Federal Freedom of Information Act (for disclosures to law enforcement) and under the First Amendment (for disclosures to jour-nalists). [Cases: Witnesses 196.1, 216(4).C.J.S. Witnesses §§ 358, 365.]

CONFINEE

confinee. A person held in confinement.

confirmatio crescens (kon-f<<schwa>>r-may-shee-oh kres-enz). [Latin “growing confirmation”] A confirmation that enlarges an estate.

confirmatio diminuens (kon-f<<schwa>>r-may-shee-oh di-min-yoo-enz). [Latin “diminishing confirmation”] A confirmation that decreases the services that a tenant must perform.

confirmatio perficiens (kon-f<<schwa>>r-may-shee-oh p<<schwa>>r-fish-ee-enz). [Latin “perfecting confirmation”] A confirmation that ratifies a wrongful and defeasible title, or makes a conditional estate absolute.

CONFIRMATIO AD OMISSA VEL MALE APPRETIATA

confirmatio ad omissa vel male appretiata (kon-f<<schwa>>r-may-shee-oh ad oh-mis-<<schwa>> vel mal-ee <<schwa>>-pree-shee-ay-t<<schwa>>). [Law Latin] Scots law. Confirmation (by an executor) of subjects omitted or wrongly valued in a previously provided inventory.

CONFIRMATIO CHARTARUM

Confirmatio Chartarum (kon-f<<schwa>>r-may-shee-oh kahr-tair-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “confirmation of the charters”] Hist. A declaration first made by Henry III in 1225 confirming the guarantees of Magna Carta and the Charter of the Forest. • It was not enrolled until 1297, when, during the reign of Edward I, it was enacted, thus introducing these charters into the common law. — Also spelled Confirmatio Cartarum.

“For lawyers, the really important date is neither 1215 nor 1225, when Henry's Charter took its final form, but 1297, when Edward I, in his Inspeximus, confirmed the Charter of 1225 and the Forest Charter, which was issued at the same time (Confirmatio Chartarum). The important element in the Confirmatio is the statement that the Charter might be pleaded in every royal court, either to support a claim or a defense. The Charter becomes in this way part of the law — the Common Law — which, in 1297, was already a definite concept although it was not yet quite the equivalent of the law of England. Until then, the political aspects of the Charter had been much the more important.” Max Radin, Handbook of Anglo-American Legal History 156 (1936).

CONFIRMATION

confirmation, n. 1. The act of giving formal approval <Senate confirmation hearings>. [Cases: United States 35. C.J.S. United States §§ 23, 53, 56–57.] 2. The act of verifying or corroborating; a statement that verifies or corroborates <the journalist sought confirmation of the district attorney's remarks>. 3. The act of ratifying a voidable estate; a type of conveyance in which a voidable estate is made certain or a particular estate is increased <deed of confirmation>. [Cases: Deeds 51. C.J.S. Deeds § 71.] 4. Civil law. A declaration that corrects a null provision of an obligation in order to make the provision enforceable. 5. Commercial law. A bank's agreement to honor a letter of credit issued by another bank. [Cases: Banks and Banking 191. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 341–366, 368–370, 372–376.] Cf. RATIFICATION. — confirmatory (k<<schwa>>n-f<<schwa>>r-m<<schwa>>-tor-ee), adj.

silent confirmation. A bank's confirmation based on the request of the beneficiary of the credit rather than the issuing bank. [Cases: Banks and Banking 191. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 341–366, 368–370, 372–376.]

CONFIRMATION OF SALE

confirmation of sale. A court's approval — usu. in the form of a docket entry or order — of the terms of a court-ordered sale. [Cases: Judicial Sales 31. C.J.S. Judicial Sales §§ 29–30.]

CONFIRMATION SLIP

CONFLICT

conflict. See CONFLICT OF LAWS.

CONFLICTING EVIDENCE

conflicting evidence.See EVIDENCE.

CONFLICTING PRESUMPTION

conflicting presumption.See PRESUMPTION.

CONFLICT OF AUTHORITY

conflict of authority. 1. A disagreement between two or more courts, often courts of coordinate jurisdiction, on a point of law. 2. A disagreement between two or more treatise authors or other scholars, esp. in an area in which scholarly authority is paramount, such as public or private international law.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST

conflict of interest. 1. A real or seeming incompatibility between one's private interests and one's public or fiduciary duties. 2. A real or seeming incompatibility between the interests of two of a lawyer's clients, such that the lawyer is disqualified from representing both clients if the dual representation adversely affects either client or if the clients do not consent. See Model Rules of Prof'l Conduct 1.7(a). [Cases: Attorney and Client 20.1.]

CONFLICT OF LAWS

conflict of laws. 1. A difference between the laws of different states or countries in a case in which a transaction or occurrence central to the case has a connection to two or more jurisdictions. — Often shortened to conflict. Cf. CHOICE OF LAW. [Cases: Action 17. C.J.S. Actions §§ 18–20; Conflict of Laws §§ 2–3, 12, 15, 20, 23, 27–32, 34–40, 42–48, 50–65, 96–97, 100, 102, 105–107.]

false conflict of laws. 1. A situation resembling but not embodying an actual conflict because the potentially applicable laws do not differ, because the laws' underlying policies have the same objective, or because one of the laws is not meant to apply to the case before the court. 2. The situation in which, although a case has a territorial connection to two or more states whose laws conflict with one another, there is no real conflict because one state has a dominant interest in having its law chosen to govern the case — hence there is no real conflict. 3. The situation in which the laws of all states that are relevant to the facts in dispute either are the same or would produce the same decision in the case. — Often shortened to false conflict.

CONFLICT OUT

conflict out, vb. To disqualify (a lawyer or judge) on the basis of a conflict of interest <the judge was conflicted out of the case by his earlier representation of one of the litigants>. [Cases: Attorney and Client 20.1; Judges 39. C.J.S. Judges §§ 62, 98, 100–102, 107.]

CONFLICT PREEMPTION

conflict preemption. See obstacle preemption under PREEMPTION.

CONFLICTS

conformed copy.See COPY.

CONFORMING

conforming,adj. Being in accordance with contractual obligations <conforming goods> <conforming conduct>. UCC § 2-106(2). [Cases: Sales 153, 166(1). C.J.S. Sales §§ 161–162, 164, 176, 182.]

CONFORMING USE

conforming use.See USE(1).

CONFORMITY ACT

Conformity Act.Hist. An 1872 federal statute providing that the practice and procedure in federal district courts (other than in equity and admiralty matters) must conform to the practice and procedure used by the state courts for like cases. • The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (effective in 1938) superseded the Conformity Act.

“[E]ven where there was conformity, it was to be ‘as near as may be,’ and this was understood by the Court to make the Conformity Act ‘to some extent only directory and advisory’ and to permit the federal judge to disregard a state practice that would, in his view, ‘unwisely encumber the administration of the law, or tend to defeat the ends of justice.’ With all these exceptions to conformity, and with the judge left somewhat at large to decide when he would conform, it is hardly surprising that the result was, in the view of a distinguished commentator, ‘a mixture of conflicting decisions, which have served to cloud the whole subject in hideous confusion and shifting certainty.’ ” Charles Alan Wright, The Law of Federal Courts § 61, at 425–26 (5th ed. 1994) (quoting Indianapolis & St. Louis Ry. Co. v. Horst, 93 U.S. 291, 300–01 (1876)).

CONFORMITY HEARING

conformity hearing. 1. A court-ordered hearing to determine whether the judgment or decree prepared by the prevailing party conforms to the decision of the court. 2. A hearing before a federal agency or department to determine whether a state-submitted plan complies with the requirements of federal law. • This type of hearing is common in cases involving social services.

CONFRONTATION CLAUSE

Confrontation Clause.The Sixth Amendment provision generally guaranteeing a criminal defendant's right to confront an accusing witness face-to-face and to cross-examine that witness. • This right may be overridden if the witness is esp. vulnerable, as with a child who is an alleged victim of sexual abuse. Even then, the defendant's attorney must have an opportunity to examine the witness while the defendant observes by means of closed-circuit television or the like. See Maryland v. Craig, 497 U.S. 836, 110 S.Ct. 3157 (1990). [Cases: Criminal Law 662.1–662.80. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 1115–1133.]

CONFUSIO

confusio (k<<schwa>>n-fyoo-zhee-oh), n. [fr. Latin confundere “to pour together”] 1. Roman law. An inseparable mixture of liquid property belonging to different owners. Cf. COMMIXTIO. 2. Roman law. The extinction of a right or duty that occurs when the roles of creditor and debtor become united in one person. 3. Scots law. A doctrine whereby a lesser right is absorbed into a greater right and is thus extinguished. • For example, if a debtor acquired the rights of a creditor, the debt would become meaningless.

“When the rights of both creditor and debtor come to be vested in the one person, in the same legal capacity, as by succession, gift or purchase, the obligation is extinguished, unless the creditor has an interest to maintain the obligation in being or the intention appears that confusio was not to operate. Obligations are not necessarily extinguished confusione where there is a legal relationship, independent of the pecuniary interests thereof, capable of revival by a subsequent separation of interests, as in the case of superior and vassal, and dominant and serient tenements in relation to servitude.” 2 David M. Walker, Principles of Scottish Private Law: Law of Obligations 170 (1988).

CONFUSIO BONORUM

confusio bonorum (k<<schwa>>n-fyoo-zhee-oh b<<schwa>>-nor-<<schwa>>m). See CONFUSION OF GOODS.

CONFUSION

confusion. 1. CONFUSION OF GOODS. 2. MERGER(9).

“Confusion is the intermingling of two or more pieces of personal property so that the property rights in each can no longer be distinguished. Thereafter, no specific identification or separation of the formerly separate chattel is possible. Such an intermingling occurs most often with fungible goods like gas, oil, grain, mineral ore, or unmarked timber.” Barlow Burke, Personal Property in a Nutshell 379 (2d ed. 1993).

3. Trademarks. A consumer's mistaken belief about the origin of goods or services. See LIKELIH-OOD-OF-CONFUSION TEST.

direct confusion. See forward confusion.

forward confusion. Confusion occurring when consumers are likely to believe mistakenly that the infringing company's products are from the same source as the trademark owner's. • In forward-confusion cases, the in-fringing company is usu. smaller than the owner. Thus, consumers may believe the infringer to be an affiliate of the owner. — Also termed direct confusion.

reverse confusion. Confusion occurring when consumers are likely to believe mistakenly — usu. through wide-spread advertising and promotion by the infringing company — that the trademark owner's products are actually those of the infringer. • Reverse confusion often injures the owner's reputation and goodwill. In an action for reverse confusion, the trademark owner is typically the smaller company.

CONFUSION OF BOUNDARIES

confusion of boundaries. The branch of equity that deals with the settlement of disputed or uncertain real-property boundaries. [Cases: Boundaries 26. C.J.S. Boundaries §§ 106, 109.]

CONFUSION OF DEBTS

confusion of debts. See MERGER(9).

CONFUSION OF GOODS

confusion of goods. The mixture of things of the same nature but belonging to different owners so that the identification of the things is no longer possible. • If this occurs by common consent of the owners, they are owners in common, but if the mixture is done willfully by one person alone, that person loses all right in the property unless (1) the goods can be distinguished and separated among owners, or (2) the mixing person's goods are equal in value to the goods with which they were intermingled. Confusion of goods combines the civil-law concepts of confusio (a mixture of liquids) and commixtio (a mixture of dry items). — Also termed intermixture of goods; confusio bonorum. [Cases: Confusion of Goods 1–5. C.J.S. Confusion of Goods §§ 1–7, 13.]

CONFUSION OF RIGHTS

confusion of rights. See MERGER(9).

CONFUSION OF TITLES

confusion of titles. Civil law. The merger of two titles to the same land in the same person. Cf. MERGER(9).

CONJURATIO

conjuratio (kon-juu-ray-shee-oh). [Latin] CONJURATION.

CONJURATION

conjuration (kon-j<<schwa>>-ray-sh<<schwa>>n). Hist. 1. A plot or compact made by persons who swear to each other to do something that will result in public harm. 2. The offense of attempting a conference with evil spirits to discover some secret or effect some purpose; witchcraft; sorcery.

CONJURATOR

conjurator (kon-j<<schwa>>-ray-t<<schwa>>r). Hist. A person who swears an oath with others; a coconspirator.

CON MAN

con man. See CONFIDENCE MAN.

CONNECTING FACTOR

connecting factor. Conflict of laws. A factual or legal circumstance that helps determine the choice of law by linking an action or individual with a state or jurisdiction. • An example of a connecting factor is a party's domicile within a state. See POINT OF ATTACHMENT. [Cases: Action 17. C.J.S. Actions §§ 18–20; Conflict of Laws §§ 2–3, 12,15, 20, 23, 27–32, 34–40, 42–48, 50–65, 96–97, 100, 102, 105–107.]

CONNECTING-UP DOCTRINE

connecting-up doctrine. The rule allowing evidence to be conditionally admitted if the offering party promises to show relevance by adducing other evidence. [Cases: Criminal Law 672; Federal Civil Procedure 2014; Trial 51. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 1217; Trial § 177.]

CONNEXITY

connexity (k<<schwa>>-nek-s<<schwa>>-tee). Connectedness; the quality of being connected. • In some states, connexity expresses the relationship that must exist between a foreign party (such as a corporation) and the state for a plaintiff to maintain personal jurisdiction over the party; generally, the claim must arise from a transaction connected with the activities of the party in the state.

CONNIVANCE

connivance (k<<schwa>>-nI-v<<schwa>>-nts), n. 1. The act of indulging or ignoring another's wrongdoing, esp. when action should be taken to prevent it. 2. Family law. As a defense to divorce, one spouse's corrupt consent, express or implied, to have the other commit adultery or some other act of sexual misconduct. • Consent is an essential element of connivance. The complaining spouse must have consented to the act complained of. [Cases: Divorce 45. C.J.S. Divorce § 85.] Cf. COLLUSION(2); CONDONATION (2); RECRIMINATION. — connive (k<<schwa>>-nIv), vb.

CONNIVE

connive (k<<schwa>>-nIv), vb. 1. To knowingly overlook another's wrongdoing. 2. Loosely, to conspire.

CONQUEROR

conqueror, n. [fr. Law French conquerir “to acquire”] Hist. 1. One who acquires territory by force during war with the intention of exercising sovereignty. See CONQUEST(1). 2. The first person who acquired land by purchase; one who first brought an estate into a family. See CONQUEST(2); PURCHASE(2).

conqueror, vb. [Latin] To complain. • Conqueror served as a declaratory statement in petitions, often by introducing the complaint: Conqueror quod.... (“I complain that ....”).

CONQUEST

conquest. 1.Int'l law. An act of force by which, during a war, a belligerent occupies territory within an enemy country with the intention of extending its sovereignty over that territory. • That intention is usu. explained in a proclamation or some other legal act. 2.Hist. The acquisition of land by any method other than descent, esp. by purchase. 3.Hist. The land so acquired. Cf. PURCHASE(2).

“What we call purchase, perquisitio, the feudists called conquest, conquaestus, or conquisitio: both denoting any means of acquiring an estate out of the common course of inheritance. And this is still the proper phrase in the law of Scotland: as it was, among the Norman jurists, who stiled the first purchaser (that is, he who first brought the estate into the family which at present owns it) the conqueror or conquereur. Which seems to be all that was meant by the appellation which was given to William the Norman, when his manner of ascending the throne of England was, in his own and his successors' charters, and by the historians of the times, entitled conquaestus, and himself conquaestor or conquisitor; signifying, that he was the first of his family who acquired the crown of England, and from whom therefore all future claims by descent must be derived: though now, from our disuse of the feudal sense of the word, together with the reflection on his forcible method of acquisition, we are apt to annex the idea of victory to this name of conquest or conquisition; a title which, however just with regard to the crown, the conqueror never pretended with regard to the realm of England; nor, in fact, ever had.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 242–43 (1766).

CONQUET

conquet. See ACQUET(1).

CONQUISITIO

related to another by blood; a consanguineous relative.

CONSANGUINEUS FRATER

consanguineus frater (kon-sang-gwin-ee-<<schwa>>s fray-t<<schwa>>r). [Latin “blood brother”] Hist. A half-brother by the same father.

CONSANGUINEUS UTERINUS

consanguineus uterinus (kon-sang-gwin-ee-<<schwa>>s yoo-t<<schwa>>-rI-n<< schwa>>s). [Latin “blood relative by the uterus”] Hist. A half-sibling by the same mother.

CONSANGUINITAS

consanguinitas (kon-sang-gwin-<<schwa>>-tas), n. [Latin “relationship by blood”] Roman law. The relationship between siblings who have the same father.

CONSANGUINITY

consanguinity (kon-sang-gwin-<<schwa>>-tee), n. The relationship of persons of the same blood or origin. See prohibited degree under DEGREE. Cf. AFFINITY; AFFINITAS AFFINITATIS. [Cases: Incest 5; Marriage 10. C.J.S. Incest § 4; Marriage § 17.] — consanguineous,adj.

“In the mode of computing the degrees of consanguinity, the civil law ... begins with the intestate, and descends from that ancestor to the next heir, reckoning for each person, as well in the ascending as descending lines. According to this rule of computation, the father of the intestate stands in the first degree, his brother in the second, and his brother's children in the third. Or, the grandfather stands in the second degree, the uncle in the third, the cousins in the fourth, and so on in a series of genealogical order. In the canon law, which is also the rule of the common law, in tracing title by descent, the common ancestor is the terminus a quo. The several degrees of kinship are deduced from him. By this method, the brother of A is related to him in the first degree instead of being in the second ... for he is but one degree removed from the common ancestor. The uncle is related to A in the second degree, for though the uncle be but one degree from the common ancestor, yet A is removed two degrees from the grandfather, who is the common ancestor.” 4 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law *412–13 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

collateral consanguinity.The relationship between persons who have the same ancestor but do not descend or ascend from one another (for example, uncle and nephew, cousins, etc.).

lineal consanguinity.The relationship between persons who are directly descended or ascended from one another (for example, mother and daughter, great-grandfather and grandson, etc.).

CONSCIENCE

conscience. 1. The moral sense of right or wrong; esp., a moral sense applied to one's own judgment and actions. 2. In law, the moral rule that requires justice and honest dealings between people.

CONSCIENCE CLAUSE

conscience clause. A legislative provision that allows a person to claim an exemption from compliance, usu. on religious-freedom grounds.

CONSCIENCE OF THE COURT

conscience of the court. 1. The court's equitable power to decide issues based on notions of fairness and justice. See EQUITY(4). 2. A standard applied by the court in deciding whether a party or a jury has acted within acceptable limits. • Thus, in some cases, a jury's award of damages is upset because it is said to “shock the conscience of the court.” See SHOCK THE CONSCIENCE.

CONSCIENTIA ILLAESA

conscientia illaesa (kon-s[h]ee-en-shee-<<schwa>> i-lee-s<<schwa>> or -z<< schwa>>). [Latin] Hist. An un-violated conscience; good faith.

CONSCIENTIA REI ALIENAE

conscientia rei alienae (kon-s[h]ee-en-shee-<<schwa>> ree-I ay-lee-ee-nee or al-ee-). [Law Latin] Scots law. The knowledge that property held by one person actually belongs to another.

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTOR

conscientious objector. A person who for moral or religious reasons is opposed to participating in any war, and who may be excused from military conscription but remains subject to serving in civil work for the nation's health, safety, or interest. See 50 USCA § 456. Cf. PACIFIST. [Cases: Armed Services 20.6(3). C.J.S. Armed Services §§ 56–59.]

CONSCIONABLE

conscionable (kon-sh<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l), adj. Conforming with good conscience; just and reasonable . Cf. UNCONSCIONABLE. — conscionableness, conscionability, n.

CONSCIOUSLY PARALLEL

consciously parallel. Antitrust. Of, relating to, or characterizing the conduct of a party who has knowledge of a competitor's action (such as raising prices) and who makes an independent decision to take the same action. • In some cases this is viewed as evidence of a conspiracy.

CONSCIOUS PARALLELISM

conscious parallelism. Antitrust. An act of two or more businesses in a concentrated market intentionally en-gaging in monopolistic conduct. — Also termed tacit collusion; oligopolistic price coordination.

CONSCIOUS-PRESENCE TEST

conscious-presence test. A method for judging whether a testator is in the presence of a witness to a will, whereby if the testator can sense the presence of the witness — even if the witness cannot be seen — the witness is present. Restatement (Third) of Property: Wills and Other Donative Transfers § 3.1 (1999). — Also termed conscious presence. See PRESENCE-OF-THE-TESTATOR RULE E.

CONSCIUS FRAUDIS

consciis fraudis (kon-s[h]ee-*<<schwa>>*s fraw-dis). [Latin] See PARTICEPS FRAUDIS .

CONSCRIPTION

conscription. See DRAFT(2).

CONSECRATIO CAPITIS

consecratio capitis (kon-s*<<schwa>>*-kray-shee-oh kap-i-tis). [Latin “consecrating the body”] Roman law. The act of declaring a wrongdoer an outlaw who could be killed on sight; the punishing of criminal behavior by re-legating an offender to the gods, i.e., leaving the person outside divine and human protection. See SACER; OUTLAWRY.

CONSECUTIVE SENTENCES

consecutive sentences. See SENTENCE.

CONSECUTIVE TORTFEASORS

consecutive tortfeasors. See TORTFEASOR.

CONSENSUAL

consensual (k*<<schwa>>n-sen-shoo-<<schwa>>*l), adj. 1. Having, expressing, or occurring with full consent <consensual relations>. 2. Created or existing by mutual consent without formalities such as a written document or ceremony < consensual marriage>. — Also termed consentaneous; consentient.

CONSENSUAL CONTRACT

consensual contract. See CONTRACT.

CONSENSUAL CRIME

consensual crime. See victimless crime under CRIME.

CONSENSUAL MARRIAGE

consensual marriage. See MARRIAGE(1).

CONSENSUAL SEARCH

consensual search. See consent search under SEARCH.

CONSENSUS

consensus. A general agreement; collective opinion. See general consent under CONSENT(2).

“The regular method for the chair to use is to ask the members, ‘Is it the consensus of this meeting that ... is agreed to?’ or, ‘Is it the will of the assembly that ... is agreed to?’ or, ‘Is there an objection?’ Consensus has been used successfully throughout the years by Quakers, Indians, New England town meetings, and others as a decision-making procedure. It permits compromise. In small groups where less formality is required, it is a simple method for making decisions.

“General consent is an equivalent to consensus, when done without objection. Otherwise, a formal vote must be taken.” Floyd M. Riddick & Miriam H. Butcher, Riddick's Rules of Procedure 56 (1985).

CONSENSUS AD IDEM

consensus ad idem (k<<schwa>>n-sen-s<<schwa>>s ad I-dem). [Latin] An agreement of parties to the same thing; a meeting of minds. — Also termed consensus in idem; consensus in idem, placitum et conventio.

“Agreement between the parties or consensus in idem is the basis of contractual obligation ....” 2 David M. Walker, Principles of Scottish Private Law 11 (4th ed. 1988).

CONSENT

consent, n.1. Agreement, approval, or permission as to some act or purpose, esp. given voluntarily by a competent person; legally effective assent. • Consent is an affirmative defense to assault, battery, and related torts, as well as such torts as defamation, invasion of privacy, conversion, and trespass. Consent may be a defense to a crime if the victim has the capacity to consent and if the consent negates an element of the crime or thwarts the harm that the law seeks to prevent. See Model Penal Code § 2.11.

blank consent. See BLANK CONSENT.

express consent. Consent that is clearly and unmistakably stated.

implied consent. 1. Consent inferred from one's conduct rather than from one's direct expression. — Also termed implied permission. 2. Consent imputed as a result of circumstances that arise, as when a surgeon removing a gallbladder discovers and removes colon cancer.

informed consent. 1. A person's agreement to allow something to happen, made with full knowledge of the risks involved and the alternatives. • For the legal profession, informed consent is defined in Model Rule of Professional Conduct 1.0(e).2. A patient's knowing choice about a medical treatment or procedure, made after a physician or other healthcare provider discloses whatever information a reasonably prudent provider in the medical community would give to a patient regarding the risks involved in the proposed treatment or procedure. — Also termed knowing consent. [Cases: Health 906.]

knowing consent. See informed consent.

voluntary consent. Consent that is given freely and that has not been coerced.

2. Parliamentary law. ADOPTION(5). — consent, vb. — consensual, adj.

general consent. 1. Adoption without objection, regardless of whether every voter affirmatively approves. 2. See unanimous consent (1).

unanimous consent. 1. Adoption with every voter's approval. 2. See general consent (1). • The terms “general consent” and “unanimous consent” have distinct but interchangeable meanings. Some parliamentary manuals treat them as synonymous; others distinguish them; and still others distinguish them, but in exactly the opposite way.

“ ‘Unanimous consent’ does not necessarily imply that every member is in favor of the proposed action; it may only mean that the opposition, feeling that it is useless to oppose or discuss the matter, simply acquiesces.” Henry M. Robert, Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised § 4, at 52 (10th ed. 2001).

CONSENT AGENDA

CONSENTANEOUS

consentaneous, adj. See CONSENSUAL.

CONSENT CALENDAR

consent calendar. 1. Family law. A schedule of informal hearings involving a child, usu. arranged when it appears that the child's best interests will be served if the case is heard informally. • The child and all interested parties must first consent before the case goes on the consent calendar. [Cases: Infants 203. C.J.S. Infants §§ 51–52, 62, 64–67.] 2. CALENDAR(4).

CONSENT CLAUSE

consent clause.See AUTHORIZATION CLAUSE.

CONSENT DECREE

consent decree.See DECREE.

CONSENT DIVIDEND

consent dividend.See DIVIDEND.

CONSENTIENT

consentient,adj. See CONSENSUAL.

CONSENT JUDGMENT

consent judgment.See agreed judgment under JUDGMENT.

CONSENT JURISDICTION

consent jurisdiction.See JURISDICTION.

CONSENT ORDER

consent order.See consent decree under DECREE.

CONSENT SEARCH

consent search.See SEARCH.

CONSENT TO BE SUED

consent to be sued.Agreement in advance to be sued in a particular forum. See COGNOVIT CLAUSE. [Cases: Corporations 662; States 191; United States 125. C.J.S. Corporations § 941; States §§ 196–197, 202, 297–307, 314; United States §§ 217–226, 228–230, 234–239, 247.]

CONSENT TO NOTICE

consent to notice.A provision stating that notice required by a document may be given beforehand or to a designated person.

CONSEQUENTIAL CONTEMPT

consequential contempt.See CONTEMPT.

CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES

consequential damages.See DAMAGES.

CONSEQUENTIAL ECONOMIC LOSS

consequential economic loss.See ECONOMIC LOSS.

CONSEQUENTIAL INJURY

consequential injury.See consequential loss under LOSS.

CONSEQUENTIALISM

consequentialism.Ethics. An ethical theory that judges the rightness or wrongness of actions according to their consequences. • One of the best-known types of consequentialism is utilitarianism. See UTILITARIANISM. Cf. VIRTUE ETHICS .

CONSEQUENTIAL LOSS

consequential loss.See LOSS.

CONSERVATION

conservation.Environmental law. The supervision, management, and maintenance of natural resources; the protection, improvement, and use of natural resources in a way that ensures the highest social as well as economic benefits. [Cases: Environmental Law 31–51.]

conservator (k<<schwa>>n-s<<schwa>>r-v<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>r orkon-s<<schwa>>r-vay-t<<schwa>>r), n. A guardian, protector, or preserver. • Conservator is the modern equivalent of the common-law guardian. Judicial appointment and supervision are still required, but a conservator has far more flexible authority than a guardian, including the same investment powers that a trustee enjoys. The Uniform Probate Code uses the term conservator, and Article 5 is representative of modern conservatorship laws. — conservatorship,n.

managing conservator. 1. A person appointed by a court to manage the estate or affairs of someone who is legally incapable of doing so; GUARDIAN(1). [Cases: Guardian and Ward 1.] 2. In the child-custody laws of some states, the parent who has primary custody of a child, with the right to establish the child's primary domicile. See CUSTODY. [Cases: Child Custody 28.]

possessory conservator.See noncustodial parent under PARENT.

CONSERVATOR OF THE PEACE

conservator of the peace.See PEACE OFFICER.

CONSERVE

conserve,vb.1. To take care of; to care for. 2. To protect from change, destruction, or depletion. 3. To reduce or minimize the use of.

CONSIDERATION

consideration,n.1. Something (such as an act, a forbearance, or a return promise) bargained for and received by a promisor from a promisee; that which motivates a person to do something, esp. to engage in a legal act. • Consideration, or a substitute such as promissory estoppel, is necessary for an agreement to be enforceable. See Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 81 (1979). [Cases: Contracts 49. C.J.S. Contracts § 87.]

by the plaintiff, however small the detriment or inconvenience may be, if such act is performed, or inconvenience suffered by the plaintiff with the assent, express or implied, of the defendant, or, in the language of pleading, at the special instance and request of the defendant.' ” Thomas E. Holland, The Elements of Jurisprudence 286 (13th ed. 1924).

“A consideration in its widest sense is the reason, motive, or inducement, by which a man is moved to bind himself by an agreement. It is not for nothing that he consents to impose an obligation upon himself, or to abandon or transfer a right. It is in consideration of such and such a fact that he agrees to bear new burdens or to forgo the benefits which the law already allows him.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 359 (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

“The word ‘consideration’ has been around for a long time, so it is tempting to think we have had a theory of consideration for a long time. In fact until the nineteenth century the word never acquired any particular meaning or stood for any theory.” Grant Gilmore, The Death of Contract 18 (1974).

“In the late fifteenth and early sixteenth centuries the word ‘consideration’ was very familiar to lawyers, and although it had not yet acquired a special legal meaning (and indeed was not to do so during the period under discussion) it had already begun to develop legal associations. Most commonly it was used in statutes.... In the statutes of Henry VI it became quite common for the draftsman, after he had rehearsed the circumstances to introduce the enacting part with a clause in the following (or similar) form: ‘The King, considering the premisses, of the Assent and Request aforesaid, hath ordained and established ....’ In the course of time the matters which were considered, and to which consideration was given, came themselves to be called ‘the considerations.’ [By the late 15th century] the considerations were the matters considered; they were the factors which Parliament or the King was supposed to have had in mind in legislating, and which moved or motivated the enactment. Loosely the word could be treated as synonymous with ‘cause,’ and both in statutes and elsewhere causes and considerations were often mentioned in the same breath. But ‘cause’ does not mean exactly the same thing as ‘consideration’; it lacks the suggestion of what was in the mind, what was considered, what motivated.” A.W.B. Simpson, Legal Theory and Legal History 332 (1987).

adequate consideration. Consideration that is fair and reasonable under the circumstances of the agreement. Cf. sufficient consideration. [Cases: Contracts 53–54. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 87, 131–132.]

“It is helpful to observe precision in use of vocabulary when analyzing consideration issues. Distinguish carefully between ‘adequate’ consideration and ‘sufficient’ consideration. ‘Adequacy’ refers to whether there was a fair bargain involving an exchange of equal values. ‘Sufficiency’ refers to whether the consideration is legally sufficient to enforce a promise, and this requires only that there be some legal detriment incurred as a bargained exchange for the other party’s promise.” Claude Rohwer & Gordon D. Schaber, Contracts in a Nutshell 83 (4th ed. 1997).

“Although courts have not lost the habit of speaking of an ‘adequate,’ a ‘sufficient,’ or a ‘valuable’ consideration, the bargain test as epitomized in the Restatement imposes no such additional requirement.” E. Allan Farnsworth, Contracts § 2.11, at 69–70 (3d ed. 1999).

and other good and valuable consideration. See other consideration.

concurrent consideration. Consideration arising at the same time as other consideration, or where the promises are simultaneous. [Cases: Contracts 56. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 105–106.]

continuing consideration. An act or performance extending over time.

due consideration. See sufficient consideration.

executed consideration. A consideration that has been wholly given; past consideration as opposed to present or future consideration. [Cases: Contracts 78. C.J.S. Contracts § 92.]

executory consideration (eg-zek-y<<schwa>>-tor-ee). A consideration that is to be given only after formation of the contract; present or future consideration as opposed to past consideration.

express consideration. Consideration that is specifically stated in an instrument.

fair consideration. 1. Consideration that is roughly equal in value to the thing being exchanged; consideration given for property or for an obligation in either of the following circumstances: (1) when given in good faith as an exchange for the property or obligation, or (2) when the property or obligation is received in good faith to secure a present advance or prior debt in an amount not disproportionately small as compared with the value of the property or obligation obtained. — Also termed fair and valuable consideration. 2. Consideration that is honest, reasonable, and free from suspicion, but not strictly adequate or full.

future consideration. 1. Consideration to be given in the future; esp., consideration that is due after the other party's performance. 2. Consideration that is a series of performances, some of which will occur after the other party's performance. 3. Consideration the specifics of which have not been agreed on between the parties. Cf. past consideration.

good and valuable consideration. See valuable consideration.

good consideration. 1. Consideration based on natural love or affection or on moral duty <good consideration, being based purely on affection, does not amount to valuable consideration>. • Such consideration is usu. not valid for the enforcement of a contract. — Also termed meritorious consideration; moral consideration. [Cases: Contracts 76–77. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 102–103, 127, 130.]

“Stated simply, good or meritorious consideration is nothing more than motive or moral obligation.” 3 Richard A. Lord, Williston on Contracts § 7:16, at 325–26 (4th ed. 1992).

2. Loosely, valuable consideration; consideration that is adequate to support the bargained-for exchange between the parties <his agreement to pay the offering price was good consideration for the sale>. [Cases: Contracts 49. C.J.S. Contracts § 87.]

gratuitous consideration (gr<<schwa>>-t[y]oo-i-t<<schwa>>s). Consideration that, not being founded on any detriment to the party who gives it, will not support a contract; a performance for which a party was already obligated.

grossly inadequate consideration. Consideration whose value is so much less than the fair value of the object acquired that it may not support finding that the transaction is a valid exchange. • Depending on the surrounding circumstances, the transaction may actually be fraud, a gift, or something else other than a sale and purchase.

illegal consideration. Consideration that is contrary to the law or public policy, or prejudicial to the public interest. • Such consideration does not support a contract. [Cases: Contracts 103. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 195–200, 213–214.]

immoral consideration. A consideration that so offends societal norms as to be invalid. • A contract supported by immoral consideration is usu. voidable or unenforceable. — Also termed turpis causa. [Cases: Contracts 112. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 275–276.]

implied consideration. Consideration that is inferred by law from the parties' actions.

impossible consideration. Consideration stemming from a promise or performance that cannot be fulfilled. [Cases: Contracts 80. C.J.S. Contracts § 106.]

inadequate consideration. Consideration that is not fair or reasonable under the circumstances of the agreement. Cf. adequate consideration. [Cases: Contracts 53–54. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 87, 131–132.]

invented consideration. Fictional consideration created by a court to prevent the invalidation of a contract that lacks consideration.

legally sufficient consideration. See sufficient consideration.

meritorious consideration. See good consideration.

moral consideration. See good consideration.

nominal consideration. Consideration that is so insignificant as to bear no relationship to the value of what is being exchanged (e.g., $10 for a piece of real estate). • Such consideration can be valid, since courts do not ordinarily examine the adequacy of consideration (although they do often inquire into such issues as fraud and duress). — Also termed peppercorn. [Cases: Contracts 53–54. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 87, 131–132.]

involving much larger sums. But gross disproportion between the payment and the value of the option commonly indicates that the payment was not in fact bargained for but was a mere formality or pretense. In such a case there is no consideration .... Nevertheless, such a nominal consideration is regularly held sufficient to support a short-time option proposing an exchange on fair terms. The fact that the option is an appropriate preliminary step in the conclusion of a socially useful transaction provides a sufficient substantive basis for enforcement, and a signed writing taking a form appropriate to a bargain satisfies the desiderata of form. In the absence of statute, however, the bargaining form is essential: a payment of one dollar by each party to the other is so obviously not a bargaining transaction that it does not provide even the form of an exchange." Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 87 cmt. b (1979).

other consideration. Additional things of value to be provided under the terms of a contract, usu. unspecified in the contract, deed, or bill of sale, because they are too numerous to conveniently list, or to avoid public knowledge of the total amount of consideration. — Also termed other good and valuable consideration.

past consideration. An act done or a promise given by a promisee before making a promise sought to be enforced. • Past consideration is not consideration for the new promise because it has not been given in exchange for this promise (although exceptions exist for new promises to pay debts barred by limitations or debts discharged in bankruptcy). See PREEXISTING-DUTY RULE. Cf. future consideration. [Cases: Contracts 79. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 125–126, 128–130.]

“A past consideration is, in effect, no consideration at all; that is to say, it confers no benefit on the promisor, and involves no detriment to the promisee in respect of his promise. It is some act or forbearance in time past by which a man has benefited without thereby incurring any legal liability.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 149 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

sufficient consideration. Enough consideration as a matter of law to support a contract. — Also termed due consideration; legally sufficient consideration. Cf. adequate consideration. [Cases: Contracts 54. C.J.S. Contracts § 87.]

valuable consideration. Consideration that is valid under the law; consideration that either confers a pecuniarily measurable benefit on one party or imposes a pecuniarily measurable detriment on the other. — Also termed good and valuable consideration; legal consideration. [Cases: Contracts 49. C.J.S. Contracts § 87.]

“By a valuable consideration is meant something of value given or promised by one party in exchange for the promise of the other.... The thing thus given by way of consideration must be of some value. That is to say, it must be material to the interests of one or the other or both of the parties. It must either involve some gain or benefit to the promisor by way of recompense for the burden of his promise, or it must involve some loss or disadvantage to the promisee for which the benefit of the promise is a recompense." John Salmond, Jurisprudence 360 (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

2.Parliamentary law. The process by which a deliberative assembly disposes of a motion; DELIBERATION. • Consideration begins with a member making a motion and the chair stating the question on the motion; it ends with the chair putting the question on the motion (or on a subsidiary motion that disposes of the first motion). It also includes debate and may also include (among other things) amendment and referral to a committee.

consideration by paragraph.See consideration seriatim.

consideration seriatim.Consideration serially, whereby a deliberative assembly considers a long or complex motion in a series of readily divisible parts before voting on the entire motion. — Also termed consideration by paragraph (in which case a "paragraph" means not a literary paragraph but any readily divisible part of a motion, which may include more than one literary paragraph); serial consideration.

"When a proposition, motion or resolution has many parts (paragraphs, sections, or clauses), or many articles (as a set of bylaws which is up for revision or amendment), it is best and most prudent that no vote be taken on each separate part. Instead, a single vote covering all its parts should be taken after each of them has been duly con-sidered, amended, and perfected. Seriatim (Lat.) literally means 'serially,' and when applied to several or more parts of a parliamentary proposal or question it means consideration paragraph by paragraph or part by part.

"Hence, under the doctrine of consideration by paragraph, or seriatim, each part is discussed and may be amended and perfected to suit; then, without putting it to a vote for final adoption, the next part or paragraph is similarly open to discussion and amendment, but is not voted on for final adoption yet; and, in like manner, each additional part is perfected in turn until all the parts of a proposal have been considered." George Demeter, Demeter's Manual of Parliamentary Law and Procedure 146 (1969).informal consideration.Consideration without limit on how often a member may speak to the same question. • Informal consideration is substantially equivalent to consideration in committee of the whole or quasi-committee of the whole, without the fiction of the assembly resolving itself into a committee. See committee of the whole under COMMITTEE.

serial consideration.See consideration seriatim.

3.Hist. A court's judgment. — Also termed (in Roman law) consideratio.

CONSIDERATION, FAILURE OF

CONSIDERATUM EST PER CURIAM

consideratum est per curiam (k<<schwa>>n-sid-<<schwa>>-ray-t<<schwa>>m est p<<schwa>>r kyoor-ee-<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Hist. It is considered by the court. • This was the formal language preceding the judgment of a common-law court. — Sometimes shortened to consideratum est. Cf. IDEO CONSIDERATUM EST.

“A judgment is the decision or sentence of the law, given by a court of justice, as the result of proceedings instituted therein for the redress of an injury. The language of the judgment is not, therefore, that ‘it is decreed,’ or ‘resolved,’ by the court, but that ‘it is considered by the court,’ consideratum est per curiam, that the plaintiff recover his debt, etc. In the early writers, considerare, consideratio always means the judgment of a court.” 1 John Bouvier, Bouvier's Law-Dictionary 619 (8th ed. 1914).

CONSIGN

consign (k<<schwa>>n-sIn), vb.1. To transfer to another's custody or charge. 2. To give (goods) to a carrier for delivery to a designated recipient. 3. To give (merchandise or the like) to another to sell, usu. with the understanding that the seller will pay the owner for the goods from the proceeds.

CONSIGNATION

consignation (kon-sig-nay-sh<<schwa>>n), n.1. A debtor's delivery of money to an authorized third party after the creditor refuses to accept the payment. • Unlike a tender, a valid consignation discharges the debtor. Cf. TENDER(1).2.CONSIGNMENT(1).

CONSIGNATOR

consignator (k<<schwa>>n-sig-n<<schwa>>-tor), n. A person authorized to accept delivery of money from a debtor if a creditor refuses to accept it. See CONSIGNATION.

CONSIGNEE

consignee (kon-sI-neeor k<<schwa>>n-). One to whom goods are consigned.

CONSIGNMENT

consignment (k<<schwa>>n-sIn-m<<schwa>>nt).1. The act of consigning goods for custody or sale. — Also termed (archaically) consignation. [Cases: Factors 5.] 2. A quantity of goods delivered by this act, esp. in a single shipment. 3. Under the UCC, a transaction in which a person delivers goods to a merchant for the purpose of sale, and (1) the merchant deals in goods of that kind under a name other than the name of the person making delivery, is not an auctioneer, and is not generally known by its creditor to be substantially engaged in selling others' goods, (2) with respect to each delivery, the aggregate value of the goods is $1,000 or more at the time of delivery, (3) the goods are not consumer goods immediately before delivery, and (4) the transaction does not create a security interest that secures an obligation. UCC § 9-102(a)(20).4. See bailment for sale under BAILMENT.

CONSIGNMENT SALE

consignment sale. See SALE.

CONSIGNOR

consignor (k<<schwa>>n-sI-n<<schwa>>r or kon-sI-nor). One who dispatches goods to another on consignment.

CONSILIARIUS

consiliarius (k<<schwa>>n-sil-ee-air-ee-<<schwa>>s), n. [fr. Latin consilium “advice”]
1. Roman law. A person who advises a magistrate; one who sits with the judge and assists in deciding cases. See CONCILIUM(1). 2. Hist. A counselor learned in law. See APOCRISARIUS.

CONSIMILI CASU

consimili casu. See CASU CONSIMILI.

CONSISTORIAL COURT

consistorial court. See CONSISTORY COURT.

CONSISTORIUM

consistorium (kon-sis-tor-ee-<<schwa>>m), n. [Latin] Roman law. In the later Empire, the emperor's privy council that functioned both as a general council of state and as a supreme court of law.

CONSISTORY COURT

consistory court (k<<schwa>>n-sis-t<<schwa>>r-ee). Eccles. law. In England, a diocesan court exercising jurisdiction over the clergy and church property, such as a cemetery, and other ecclesiastical matters. • Consistory courts are presided over by the bishop's chancellor or the chancellor's commissary. — Also termed consistorial court. Cf. BISHOP'S COURT.

CONSOBRINI

consobrini (kon-s<<schwa>>-brI-nI), n. pl. [Latin] Roman law. First cousins; children of brothers and sisters, or, more precisely, of two sisters.

CONSOL

consol (kon-sol or k<<schwa>>n-sol). See annuity bond under BOND(3).

CONSOLATO DEL MARE

Consolato del Mare (kawn-soh-lah-toh del mah-ray). [Italian “consulate of the sea”] Hist. Maritime law. An influential collection of European maritime customs, referred to by commercial judges (consuls) in ports of the kingdom of Aragon and other Mediterranean maritime towns. • The Consolato del Mare was compiled in the 14th century and soon became one of the leading maritime codes of Europe. It is widely believed to be a Spanish work, but some historians suggest that its origin is actually Italian. — Also written Consolat de Mar.

---

CONSOLIDATE

consolidate, vb. 1. To combine or unify into one mass or body. 2. Civil procedure. To combine, through court order, two or more actions involving the same parties or issues into a single action ending in a single judgment or, sometimes, in separate judgments. [Cases: Action 54–59; Federal Civil Procedure 8. C.J.S. Actions §§ 204–219.] 3. Corporations. To unite (two or more corporations or other organizations) to create one new corporation or other organization. [Cases: Corporations 581. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 792–797.]

CONSOLIDATED OMNIBUS BUDGET RECONCILIATION ACT OF 1985

Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985. A federal statute requiring employers that offer group health coverage to their employees to continue to do so for a prescribed period (usu. 18 to 36 months) after employment has terminated so that the former employee can continue to benefit from group-health rates until becoming a member of another health-insurance plan. • The statute temporarily continues group coverage for a person no longer entitled to receive it, such as a terminated employee or an overage dependent. One of the “qualifying events” justifying the continuation of group-health-insurance benefits is divorce or legal separation. So COBRA often provides critical transitional coverage until a divorced spouse and children can arrange for new health insurance. The period of transitional coverage is up to 36 months, and an applicant spouse of the employee must make written application to the employer within 60 days of the separation or divorce. — Abbr. COBRA. [Cases: Pensions 21, 127.1. C.J.S. Pensions and Retirement Plans and Benefits § 7.]

states .... Thus, COBRA was designed to fill this void, by providing a statutorily mandated mechanism for enabling terminated employees (and their eligible family members) to continue to have access to group health coverage at group rates until they can get another job or otherwise arrange for replacement coverage.” I.M. Golub et al., COBRA Handbook § 1.1, at 1–2 (1994).

CONSOLIDATION

consolidation, n. 1. The act or process of uniting; the state of being united. 2. Legislation. The combination into a single statutory measure of various legislative provisions that have previously been scattered in different statutes. 3. Civil procedure. The court-ordered unification of two or more actions, involving the same parties and issues, into a single action resulting in a single judgment or, sometimes, in separate judgments. Fed. R. Civ. P. 42(a). — Also termed consolidation of actions. Cf. JOINDER; SEVERANCE(2). [Cases: Action 54–59; Federal Civil Procedure 8. C.J.S. Actions §§ 204–219.]

substantive consolidation. Bankruptcy. The merger of two or more bankruptcy cases, usually pending against the same debtor or related debtors, into one estate for purposes of distributing the assets, usually resulting in the two estates sharing assets and liabilities, and in the extinguishment of duplicate claims and claims between the debtors. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2084.]

consortium (k<<schwa>>n-sor-shee-<<schwa>>m). 1. The benefits that one person, esp. a spouse, is entitled to receive from another, including companionship, cooperation, affection, aid, financial support, and (between spouses) sexual relations . See LOSS OF CONSORTIUM; CONJUGAL RIGHTS .

filial consortium (fil-ee-<<schwa>>l). A child's society, affection, and companionship given to a parent. [Cases: Parent and Child 7. C.J.S. Parent and Child § 329.]

parental consortium. A parent's society, affection, and companionship given to a child. [Cases: Parent and Child 7.5.]

spousal consortium. A spouse's society, affection, and companionship given to the other spouse. [Cases: Husband and Wife 209(3, 4).]

2. Hist. The services of a wife or daughter, the loss of which gives rise to a cause of action. • A husband could, for example, bring an action against a person who had injured his wife, “whereby he lost the help or companionship (of his wife)” (per quod consortium amisit). 3. A group of companies that join or associate in an enterprise <several high-tech businesses formed a consortium to create a new supercomputer>. 4. Roman law. A community of undivided goods existing among coheirs after the death of the head of their family (paterfamilias). Pl. consor-tiums, consortia.

CONSORTIUM VITAE

consortium vitae (k<<schwa>>n-sor-shee-<<schwa>>m vI-tee). [Law Latin] Hist. Cohabitation; the agreement between two parties to live together.

CONSORTSHIP

consortship (kon-sort-ship).Maritime law. An agreement by which salvors agree to work together to salvage wrecks, the recovery being apportioned among the salvors. • Consortships reduce interference among competing salvors and help prevent collisions at sea between operators attempting to salvage the same wreck.

CONSPICUOUS

conspicuous,adj. (Of a term or clause) clearly visible or obvious. • Whether a printed clause is conspicuous as a matter of law usu. depends on the size and style of the typeface. Under the UCC, a term or clause is conspicuous if it is written in a way that a reasonable person against whom it is to operate ought to notice it. UCC § 1-201(b)(10). See FINE PRINT. [Cases: Sales 267. C.J.S. Sales §§ 238, 263–270.]

CONSPICUOUS PLACE

conspicuous place.For purposes of posting notices, a location that is reasonably likely to be seen.

CONSPIRACY

conspiracy,n. An agreement by two or more persons to commit an unlawful act, coupled with an intent to achieve the agreement's objective, and (in most states) action or conduct that furthers the agreement; a combination for an unlawful purpose. 18 USCA § 371. • Conspiracy is a separate offense from the crime that is the object of the conspiracy. A conspiracy ends when the unlawful act has been committed or (in some states) when the agreement has been abandoned. A conspiracy does not automatically end if the conspiracy's object is defeated. See Model Penal Code § 5.03(7); United States v. Jimenez Recio, 537 U.S. 270, 123 S.Ct. 819 (2003). — Also termed criminal conspiracy. Cf. ATTEMPT(2); SOLICITATION(2). [Cases: Conspiracy 1.1, 23.1. C.J.S. Conspiracy §§ 2–3, 8, 14–17, 98, 100–103, 110.] — conspiratorial,adj.

“Conspiracie (conspiratio) though both in Latine and French it be used for an agreement of men, to doe any thing either good or bad: yet in our lawyers bookes, it is alway taken in the evill part.” John Cowell, The Interpreter (1607).

“[Conspiracy is an] elastic, sprawling and pervasive offense, ... so vague that it almost defies definition. Despite certain elementary and essential elements, it also, chameleon-like, takes on a special coloration from each of the many independent offenses on which it may be overlaid. It is always ‘predominantly mental in composition’ because it consists primarily of a meeting of minds and an intent.” Krulewitch v. United States, 336 U.S. 440, 445–48, 69 S.Ct. 716, 719–20 (1949)(Jackson, J., concurring).

“When two or more persons combine for the purpose of inflicting upon another person an injury which is unlawful in itself, or which is rendered unlawful by the mode in which it is inflicted, and in either case the other person suffers damage, they commit the tort of conspiracy.” P.H. Winfield, A Textbook of the Law of Tort § 128, at 434 (5th ed. 1950).

bathtub conspiracy. See intra-enterprise conspiracy.

chain conspiracy. A single conspiracy in which each person is responsible for a distinct act within the overall plan, such as an agreement to produce, import, and distribute narcotics in which each person performs only one function. • All participants are interested in the overall scheme and liable for all other participants' acts in furtherance of that scheme. [Cases: Conspiracy 24(3). C.J.S. Conspiracy §§ 117–118.]

“In a ‘chain’ conspiracy, the court looks to whether the parties serve as links in a chain. In Blumenthal v. United States (1947), the Supreme Court found that the parties had agreed to sell liquor at prices exceeding the ceiling set by regulations of the Office of Price Administration. The Court found that the agreements were steps in the formulation of one larger general conspiracy. By reason of all having knowledge of the plan's general scope and common end, the disposing of whiskey, they could be drawn together in a single conspiracy.” Ellen S. Podgor & Jerold H. Israel, White Collar Crime in a Nutshell 52 (2d ed. 1997).

circle conspiracy. See wheel conspiracy.

civil conspiracy. An agreement between two or more persons to commit an unlawful act that causes damage to a person or property. [Cases: Conspiracy 1.1. C.J.S. Conspiracy §§ 2–3, 8, 14–17.]

conspiracy in restraint of trade. See RESTRAINT OF TRADE.

conspiracy to infringe. Intellectual property. An agreement by two or more persons to commit an act that would interfere with the exclusive rights of a patent, copyright, or trademark owner. • This action is commonly recognized in trademark law. The Copyright Act does not provide a basis for alleging a conspiracy to infringe, but an action is recognized by some states. The Patent Act provides no basis for an action asserting conspiracy to infringe because patent law covers only acts, not threats of acts.

conspiracy to monopolize. Antitrust. A conspiracy to take exclusive control of a commercial market. • Under § 2 of the Sherman Act, a conspiracy to monopolize exists if there is a conspiracy or concerted action directed at a substantial part of interstate commerce with the intent to acquire monopoly power.

hub-and-spoke conspiracy. See wheel conspiracy.

intracorporate conspiracy. A conspiracy existing between a corporation and its own officers, agents, or employees. • To be prosecutable under federal law, the conspiracy must involve at least two persons (i.e., not just the corporation and one person). 18 USCA § 371.

intra-enterprise conspiracy. Antitrust. A conspiracy existing between two subsidiaries, divisions, or other parts of the same firm. — Also termed bathtub conspiracy.

sedition conspiracy. A criminal conspiracy to forcibly (1) overthrow or destroy the U.S. government, (2) oppose its authority, (3) prevent the execution of its laws, or (4) seize or possess its property. 18 USCA § 2384. [Cases: Conspiracy 28(3). C.J.S. Conspiracy §§ 209, 215–225, wheel conspiracy. A conspiracy in which a single member or group (the “hub”) separately agrees with two or more other members or groups (the “spokes”). • The person or group at the hub is the only party liable for all the conspiracies. — Also termed circle conspiracy; hub-and-spoke conspiracy. [Cases: Conspiracy 24(3). C.J.S. Conspiracy §§ 117–118.]

CONSTITUENT

constituent, adj. 1. (Of a component) that helps make up or complete a unit or a whole . 2. (Of an assembly) able to frame or amend a constitution .

constituent, n. 1. A person who gives another the authority to act as a representative; a principal who appoints an agent. 2. Someone who is represented by a legislator or other elected official. 3. One part of something that makes up a whole; an element. — constituency, n.

CONSTITUENT ELEMENT

constituent element. An essential component of a crime or cause of action.

CONSTITUERE

constituere (kon-sti-tyoo-<<schwa>>-ree), vb. [Latin “to appoint”] Hist. To appoint (someone). • Constituere was used principally in powers of attorney: attornavi et in loco meo constitui (“I have attorned and put in my place”).

CONSTITUTED ANNUITY constituted annuity. See ANNUITY.

CONSTITUTED AUTHORITY

constituted authority. See AUTHORITY(3).

CONSTITUTIO

constitutio (kon-sti-t[y]oo-shee-oh), n. [Latin “a decree”] 1. Roman law. An imperial decree; a law issued by the emperor; later, in the plural form constitutiones, a collection of laws. • The constitutiones took various forms, including orationes (laws submitted to the Senate), edicta (laws — usu. of a general character — put forth by the emperor), mandata (administrative directives to imperial officials), decreta (decisions by the emperor in legal cases), and rescripta (the emperor's responses to questions posed by litigants or imperial officials). Over time, the rapidly increasing number of constitutiones prompted their arrangement into collections such as the Theodosian Code and the Code of Justinian. They were the sole form of legislation after the third century A.D. Pl. constitu-tiones (kon-sti-t[y]oo-shee-oh-neeZ). — Also termed (collectively) constitutiones principum. See CODEX THEODOSIANUS; JUSTINIAN CODE.

“The name constitutiones, applied to the law-making utterances of the Roman emperors, had a very different meaning from our word ‘constitution,’ used to denote the fundamental, organic law of the state. Every official public document issuing from the emperor, and creating, declaring, or modifying law, was a constitutio.... [A]nd it is hardly necessary to say that, although professing to come from the person of the emperor, they were actually composed by jurists, and usually by those who stood first in their profession.” James Hadley, Introduction to Roman Law 6–7 (1881).

2.Civil law. A settlement achieved without a trial; the sum paid according to the settlement.
3.Hist. In England, a statute; a provision of a statute. Pl. constitutiones (kon-sti-t[y]oo-shee-oh-neeZ).

CONSTITUTION

constitution. 1. The fundamental and organic law of a nation or state that establishes the institutions and apparatus of government, defines the scope of governmental sovereign powers, and guarantees individual civil rights and civil liberties. [Cases: Constitutional Law 1.1.] 2. The written instrument embodying this fundamental law, together with any formal amendments.

flexible constitution.A constitution that has few or no special amending procedures. • The British Constitution is an example. Parliament can alter constitutional principles and define new baselines for government action through ordinary legislative processes. The Canadian Constitution also grants its legislature some limited ability to amend the Constitution by legislation.

rigid constitution.A constitution whose terms cannot be altered by ordinary forms of legislation, only by special amending procedures. • The U.S. Constitution is an example. It cannot be changed without the consent of three-fourths of the state legislatures or through a constitutional convention. U.S. Const. art. V.

unwritten constitution. 1. The customs and values, some of which are expressed in statutes, that provide the organic and fundamental law of a state or country that does not have a single written document functioning as a constitution. • In British constitutional law, the constitution is a collection of historical documents, statutes, decrees, conventions, traditions, and royal prerogatives. Documents and statutes include Magna Carta (1215), the Bill of Rights (1689), and the European Communities Act (1972).2. The implied parts of a written constitution, encompassing the rights, freedoms, and processes considered to be essential, but not explicitly defined in the written document. • Many aspects of an unwritten constitution are based on custom and precedent. The U.S. Constitution does not, for example, give the Supreme Court the power to declare laws unconstitutional, but the Court does so without question. Nor does the Constitution expressly guarantee a right of privacy, but the Supreme Court has declared that the right exists and is protected. See PENUMBRA; RIGHT OF PRIVACY.

3. A nation's history of government and institutional development. • This was the standard definition before the United States produced the first written constitution. It remains current in Great Britain and other nations that have unwritten constitutions. 4.Parliamentary law. A governing document adopted by an organization for its internal governance and its external dealings. • The constitution may be an organization's most authoritative governing document, but if the organization has also received a charter or adopted articles of incorporation or association, then the constitution is subordinate to them. If the organization has also adopted bylaws, then the bylaws are subordinate to (and usu. more easily amended than) the constitution. The constitution and bylaws are sometimes contained in a single document. See governing document under DOCUMENT. Cf. BYLAW(1).

CONSTITUTIONAL

constitutional,adj.1. Of or relating to a constitution <constitutional rights>.2. Proper and valid under a constitution <constitutional actions>.

CONSTITUTIONAL CHALLENGE

constitutional challenge.See CHALLENGE(1).

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

constitutional convention.See CONVENTION(2).

CONSTITUTIONAL COURT

constitutional court.See COURT.

CONSTITUTIONAL-FACT DOCTRINE

constitutional-fact doctrine. 1. The rule that federal courts are not bound by an administrative agency's findings of fact when the facts involve whether the agency has exceeded constitutional limitations on its power, esp. regarding personal rights. • The courts reviewed the facts de novo to afford protection of constitutional rights. Although it has not been overruled or wholly discredited, this rule has fallen out of favor. [Cases: Administrative Law and Procedure 783, 784.1. C.J.S. Public Administrative Law and Procedure § 229.] 2. The rule that a federal appellate court is not bound by a trial court's findings of fact when constitutional rights are implicated, specif. in citizenship-determination and First Amendment cases. See, e.g., Bose Corp. v. Consumers Union, 466 U.S. 485, 104 S.Ct. 1949 (1984). Cf. JURISDICTIONAL-FACT DOCTRINE. [Cases: Federal Courts 870.1.]

CONSTITUTIONAL FREEDOM

CONSTITUTIONS OF CLARENDON

Constitutions of Clarendon. Hist. A 12th-century statement of customary law, produced during the reign of Henry II, intended to limit the jurisdiction of the ecclesiastical courts and narrow the clergy's exemption from secular justice.

“During the first half of the twelfth century the claims of the church were growing, and the duty of asserting them passed into the hands of men who were not mere theologians but expert lawyers. Then, as all know, came the quarrel between Henry and Becket. In the Constitutions of Clarendon (1164) the king offered to the prelates a written treaty, a treaty which, so he said, embodied the ‘customs’ of his ancestors, more especially of his grand-father. Becket, after some hesitation, rejected the constitutions. The dispute waxed hot; certain of the customs were condemned by the pope. The murder followed ... [F]rom [Henry's] time onwards the lay courts, rather than the spiritual, are the aggressors and the victors in almost every contest.” 1 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law 124–25 (2d ed. 1898).

CONSTITUTOR

constitutor (kon-st<<schwa>>-t[y]oo-t<<schwa>>r), n. [Latin “an orderer, arranger”] Roman law. A person who, by agreement, becomes responsible for the payment of another's debt.

CONSTITUTUM

constitutum (kon-sti-t[y]oo-t<<schwa>>m), n. [Latin “agreed arrangement”] Roman law. 1. An agreement to pay an existing debt, either one's own or another's, on a fixed day. • A constitutum was not a novation; the creditor could still sue the original debtor. It differed from a stipulation because it had to be for an existing debt. If the promise was to pay one's own debt, it was called constitutum debiti proprii. If it was to pay another's debt, then it was constitutum debiti alieni. 2. The fixing of a day for the repayment of money owed.

CONSTITUTUM DEBITI

constitutum debiti (kon-sti-t[y]oo-t<<schwa>>m deb-<<schwa>>-tI). [Latin “debt agreement”] Roman law. See CONSTITUTUM(1).

constitutum debiti alieni (kon-sti-t[y]oo-t<<schwa>>m deb-<<schwa>>-tIay-lee-<<schwa>>-nI). [Latin “debt agreement”] Roman law. See CONSTITUTUM(1).

CONSTITUTUM DEBITI PROPRII

constitutum debiti proprii (kon-sti-t[y]oo-t<<schwa>>m deb-<<schwa>>-tIproh-ree-I). [Latin “debt agree-ment”] Roman law. See CONSTITUTUM(1).

CONSTITUTUM POSSESSORIUM

constitutum possessorium (kon-sti-t[y]oo-t<<schwa>>m pah-ses-sor-ee-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “possessory agreement”] Roman law. 1. A type of constructive delivery in which mediate possession is transferred while the immediate control or custody remains in the transferor. 2. The agreement by which this transfer is brought about. • In the context of a security interest, the pledged property may remain in the possession of the debtor, but as bailee of the creditor. For the other two types of constructive delivery, see ATTORNMENT; BREVI MANU. — Also termed traditio longa manu (tr<<schwa>>-dish-ee-oh long-g<<schwa>> man-yoo).

CONSTRUCTION

construction, n.1. The act of building by combining or arranging parts or elements; the thing so built. 2. The act or process of interpreting or explaining the sense or intention of a writing (usu. a constitution, statute, or instrument); the ascertainment of a document's meaning in accordance with judicial standards. [Cases: Contracts 143; Statutes 174–278.C.J.S. Contracts § 302; Statutes §§ 306–431.] — construct (for sense 1), vb. — construe (for sense 2), vb.

“Some authors have attempted to introduce a distinction between ‘interpretation’ and ‘construction.’ Etymologically there is, perhaps, such a distinction; but it has not been accepted by the profession. For practical purposes any such distinction may be ignored, in view of the real object of both interpretation and construction, which is merely to ascertain the meaning and will of the lawmaking body, in order that it may be enforced.” William M. Lile et al., Brief Making and the Use of Law Books 337 (3d ed. 1914).

“There is no explanation of the distinction between interpretation and construction [in Blackstone], nor can it be inferred from the matters dealt with under each head. The distinction is drawn in some modern works, but it is not taken in this book because it lacks an agreed basis. Some writers treat interpretation as something which is only called for when there is a dispute about the meaning of statutory words, while speaking of construction as a process to which all statutes, like all other writings, are necessarily subject when read by anyone. Others treat interpretation as something which is mainly concerned with the meaning of statutory words, while regarding construction as a process which mainly relates to the ascertainment of the intention of the legislature.” Rupert Cross, Statutory Interpretation 18 (1976).

construction ut res magis valeat quam pereat (k<<schwa>>n-str<<schwa>>k-sh<< schwa>>n<<schwa>>t rays [or reez or rez] may-jis vay-lee-at kwam peer-ee-at). [Latin “a construction that gives effect to the matter rather than having it fail”] A construction arrived at when alternative readings are possible, one of which (usu. the broader reading) would achieve the manifest purpose of the document and one of which (usu. the narrower reading) would reduce it to futility or absurdity, whereby the interpreter chooses the one that gives effect to the document's purpose.

contemporaneous construction. An interpretation given at or near the time when a writing was prepared, usu. by one or more persons involved in its preparation. — Also termed practical construction; practical interpretation; contemporaneous and practical interpretation. See CONTEMPORANEOUS-CONSTRUCTION DOCTRINE. [Cases: Contracts 170; Statutes 218, 219(2). C.J.S. Contracts § 340; Statutes §§ 342, 344.]

liberal construction. An interpretation that applies a writing in light of the situation presented and that tends to effectuate the spirit and purpose of the writing. — Also termed equitable construction; loose construction; broad interpretation. [Cases: Contracts 143. C.J.S. Contracts § 302.]

literal construction. See strict construction.

practical construction. See contemporaneous construction.

purposive construction (p<<schwa>>r-p<<schwa>>-siv). An interpretation that looks to the “evil” that the statute is trying to correct (i.e., the statute's purpose). — Also termed teleological interpretation. See liberal construction.

statutory construction. See STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.

strict construction. 1. An interpretation that considers only the literal words of a writing. — Also termed literal construction; literal interpretation. See STRICT CONSTRUCTIONISM. [Cases: Contracts 143. C.J.S. Contracts § 302.] 2. A construction that considers words narrowly, usu. in their historical context. • This type of construction treats statutory and contractual words with highly restrictive readings. — Also termed strict interpretation. 3. The philosophy underlying strict interpretation of statutes; STRICT CONSTRUCTIONISM.

“Strict interpretation is an equivocal expression, for it means either literal or narrow. When a provision is ambiguous, one of its meanings may be wider than the other, and the strict (i.e., narrow) sense is not necessarily the strict (i.e., literal) sense.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 171 n. (t) (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

CONSUL

consul (kon-s<<schwa>>l), n. 1. A governmental representative living in a foreign country to oversee commercial and other matters involving the representative's home country and its citizens in that foreign country. • Consuls are not diplomatic agents, so, unless a treaty provides otherwise, they do not enjoy diplomatic privileges and immunities. But consuls are entitled to consular immunities, which protect them from local law and jurisdiction in the exercise of their consular functions. [Cases: Ambassadors and Consuls 1–8. C.J.S. Ambassadors and Consuls §§ 2–32.] — consular (kon-s<<schwa>>-l<<schwa>>r), adj. — consulship (kon-s<<schwa>>l-ship), n.

“The commercial agents of a government, residing in foreign parts, and charged with the duty of promoting the commercial interests of the state, and especially of its individual citizens or subjects, are called consuls. These, under the regulations of some countries, are of different grades, being either consuls-general, consuls, or vice-consuls, from whom consular agents differ little.” Theodore D. Woolsey, Introduction to the Study of International Law § 99, at 159 (5th ed. 1878).

“The usual criterion used for the distinction between diplomats and consuls is the representative character of the former of which the latter are devoid. However, this distinction is not altogether correct. Undoubtedly diplomatic agents have a general representative character since in all matters and relations they represent their country in the state to which they are accredited. Consuls, on the other hand, as state organs, also represent their country in another state, but only in matters within their competence. Thus, the representative character of consuls is, like their competence, specific, and secondary to that of diplomatic agents.” Constantin Economidès, “Consuls,” in 1 Encyclopedia of Public International Law 770 (1992).

consul general. A high-ranking consul appointed to a strategically important region and often having supervisory powers over other regions or other consuls.

2. Roman law. One of two chief magistrates elected annually during the Republic to exercise supreme authority. • Under the Empire, the consulship was reduced to a sinecure, held by appointees of the emperor or the emperor himself. “The principal inheritors of the royal authority and dignity were the two consuls elected by the comitia centuriata. They enjoyed equal powers. In the calendar the year was distinguished by their names. They convoked and initiated legislation in either comitia. In special emergencies, particularly in times of grave crisis, either consul might appoint a dictator who exercised supreme authority, but not beyond six months, unless re-appointed.... It was abolished by Justinian in A.D. 541, though later emperors continued to assume the title.” R.W. Lee, The Elements of Roman Law 14 (4th ed. 1956).

CONSUMMATE

consummate (k<<schwa>>n-s<<schwa>>m-it orkahn-s<<schwa>>-mit), adj. Completed; fully accomplished. • Consummate was often used at common law to describe the status of a contract or an estate, such as the transformation of a husband's interest in his wife's inheritance from that of a tenant by the curtesy initiate to a tenant by curtesy consummate upon the wife's death (assuming that a child had been born during the marriage). See curtesy consummate under CURTESY. — consummation, n.

consummate (kon-s<<schwa>>-mayt), vb. 1. To bring to completion; esp., to make (a marriage) complete by sexual intercourse. 2. To achieve; to fulfill. 3. To perfect; to carry to the highest degree.

CONSUMMATE DOWER

consummate dower. See DOWER.

CONSUMMATE LIEN

consummate lien. See LIEN.

CONSUMMATION OF MARRIAGE

consummation of marriage. Family law. The first postmarital act of sexual intercourse between a husband and wife. • Under canon law, a refusal to consummate the marriage may be grounds for an annulment or for divorce. But this is not so at common law or under modern state law.

CONSUMPTION

consumption. The act of destroying a thing by using it; the use of a thing in a way that thereby exhausts it.

CONSUMPTION TAX

consumption tax. See TAX.

CONTAGION

contagion. Int'l law. A discredited doctrine holding that revolution or abhorrent practices in a neighboring state justify its invasion and the overthrow of its government on the grounds of national security. • The doctrine was employed by the Holy Alliance (1815–1848) in Europe to invade countries where revolutions were brewing. — Also termed doctrine of contagion.

CONTAINING BY ESTIMATE

containing by estimate. Archaic. More or less. • This phrase usu. appears in deeds where measurements are made by metes and bounds. It is redundant when the phrase “more or less” is used.

CONTAINMENT

containment. Int'l law. The policy of restricting the ideological and territorial expansion of one's enemy. • This was the basic philosophy of the United States during the Cold War.

CONTANGO

contango (k<<schwa>>n-tang-goh). Securities. 1. A market in which long-term futures or options contracts sell at a premium over short-term contracts. — Also termed normal market. 2. The premium so paid. • The premium paid for securities with longer maturities reflects the cost of holding the commodity for future delivery.

CONTEMN

contemn (k<<schwa>>n-tem), vb. To treat (as laws or court orders) with contemptuous disregard. See CON-TEMPT.

CONTEMNOR

contemnor (k<<schwa>>n-tem-<<schwa>>r or -n<<schwa>>r or -nor). A person who is guilty of contempt before an instrumentality of government, such as a court or legislature. — Also spelled contemner.

CONTEMPLATION OF BANKRUPTCY

contemplation of bankruptcy. The thought of declaring bankruptcy because of the inability to continue current financial operations, often coupled with action designed to thwart the distribution of assets in a bankruptcy proceeding. — Also termed contemplation of insolvency.

CONTEMPLATION OF DEATH

contemplation of death. The thought of dying, not necessarily from imminent danger, but as the compelling reason to transfer property to another. See gift causa mortis under GIFT. [Cases: Gifts 59; Internal Revenue 4159(2). C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 514.]

CONTEMPLATION OF INSOLVENCY

contemplation of insolvency. See CONTEMPLATION OF BANKRUPTCY.

CONTEMPORANEA EXPOSITIO

contemporanea expositio (k<<schwa>>n-tem-p<<schwa>>-ray-nee-<<schwa>> eks-p<<schwa>>-zish-ee-oh). [Latin “contemporaneous exposition”] The doctrine that the best meaning of a statute or document is the one given by those who enacted it or signed it, and that the meaning publicly given by contemporary or long professional usage is presumed to be the correct one, even if the language may have a popular or an etymological meaning that is very different.

CONTEMPORANEOUS AND PRACTICAL INTERPRETATION

contemporaneous and practical interpretation. See contemporaneous construction under CONSTRUCTION.

CONTEMPORANEOUS CONSTRUCTION

contemporaneous construction. See CONSTRUCTION.

CONTEMPORANEOUS-CONSTRUCTION DOCTRINE

contemporaneous-construction doctrine. The rule that the initial interpretation of an ambiguous statute by an administrative agency or lower court is entitled to great deference if the interpretation has been used over a long period. [Cases: Statutes 218, 219(2). C.J.S. Statutes §§ 342, 344.]

CONTEMPORANEOUS-OBJECTION RULE

contemporaneous-objection rule. The doctrine that a timely and proper objection to the admission of evidence must be made at trial for the issue of admissibility to be considered on appeal. • An objection is timely if it is made as soon as practicable and is proper if made formally on the record. These requirements afford the trial court an opportunity to correct the alleged error, and they preserve the issue for appeal. [Cases: Appeal and Error 204; Criminal Law 1036.1.]

CONTEMPORARY COMMUNITY STANDARDS

contemporary community standards. The gauge by which a fact-finder decides whether material is obscene, judging by its patent offensiveness and its prurience in the locale at a given time. See OBSCENITY(1). [Cases: Obscenity 1. C.J.S. Obscenity §§ 1–8.]

“Both pruriency and patent offensiveness are determined by ‘contemporary community standards.’ But what is the relevant community? In Miller [v. California], the Court rejected the contention that only a national community standard, free of local biases, would provide adequate First Amendment protection and allowed lower courts to use local standards in defining what is obscene. Subsequent cases have made it clear that the state may choose to omit reference to any particular geographic community, state or local, although it may do so. If a geographic reference is omitted, each jury is free to ascertain the contemporary community standard.” Jerome A. Barron & C. Thomas Dienes, Constitutional Law in a Nutshell 396 (3d ed. 1995).

CONTEMPT

contempt, n. 1. The act or state of despising; the condition of being despised. 2. Conduct that defies the authority or dignity of a court or legislature. • Because such conduct interferes with the administration of justice, it is punishable, usu. by fine or imprisonment. Fed. R. Civ. P. 45(e); Fed. R. Crim. P. 42; 18 USCA § 401. — Also termed contempt of court; judicial contempt. See CONTUMACY. [Cases: Contempt 1–26; States 40. C.J.S. Contempt §§ 2–33, 37; States § 60.] — contemptuous, adj.

“Contempt is a disregard of, or disobedience to, the rules or orders of a legislative or judicial body, or an inter-ruption of its proceedings by disorderly behavior or insolent language, in its presence or so near thereto as to disturb the proceedings or to impair the respect due to such a body.” Edward M. Dangel, Contempt § 1, at 2 (1939).

civil contempt. The failure to obey a court order that was issued for another party's benefit. • A civil-contempt proceeding is coercive or remedial in nature. The usual sanction is to confine the contemnor until he or she complies with the court order. The act (or failure to act) complained of must be within the defendant's power to perform, and the contempt order must state how the contempt may be purged. Imprisonment for civil contempt is indefinite and for a term that lasts until the defendant complies with the decree. [Cases: Contempt 4, 20. C.J.S. Contempt §§ 9, 14, 17.]

common-law contempt. See criminal contempt.

consequential contempt. 1. Contempt that, although not amounting to gross insolence or direct opposition, tends to create a universal disregard of the power and authority of courts and judges. 2. See indirect contempt.

constructive contempt. See indirect contempt.

contempt of Congress. Deliberate interference with the duties and powers of Congress, such as a witness's refusal to answer a question from a congressional committee. • Contempt of Congress is a criminal offense. 2 USCA § 192. [Cases: United States 23(9).]

contempt of sovereignty. Int'l law. The minor diplomatic offense of interference in domestic affairs by a foreign representative, esp. by making a public statement about an issue currently being debated in the legislature.

criminal contempt. An act that obstructs justice or attacks the integrity of the court. • A criminal-contempt proceeding is punitive in nature. The purpose of criminal-contempt proceedings is to punish repeated or aggravated failure to comply with a court order. All the protections of criminal law and procedure apply, and the commitment must be for a definite period. — Also termed common-law contempt. [Cases: Contempt 3. C.J.S. Contempt §§ 7–8.]

“Criminal contempt is a crime in the ordinary sense; it is a violation of the law, a public wrong which is punishable by fine or imprisonment or both.” Bloom v. Illinois, 391 U.S. 194, 201, 88 S.Ct. 1477, 1481 (1968).

direct contempt. A contempt (such as an assault of a testifying witness) committed in the immediate vicinity of a court; esp., a contempt committed in a judge's presence. • A direct contempt is usu. immediately punishable when the transgression occurs. [Cases: Contempt 2. C.J.S. Contempt §§ 2–6, 11.]

indirect contempt. Contempt that is committed outside of court, as when a party disobeys a court order. • Indirect contempt is punishable only after proper notice to the contemnor and a hearing. — Also termed constructive contempt; consequential contempt. [Cases: Contempt 2. C.J.S. Contempt §§ 2–6, 11.]

CONTEMPT OF COURT

contempt of court. See CONTEMPT(2).

CONTEMPT POWER

contempt power. The power of a public institution (as Congress or a court) to punish someone who shows con-tempt for the process, orders, or proceedings of that institution.

CONTEMPT PROCEEDING

contempt proceeding. See PROCEEDING.

CONTEMPTUOUS DAMAGES

contemptuous damages. See nominal damages under DAMAGES.

CONTENEMENT

contenement (k<<schwa>>n-ten-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>nt). Hist. 1. Freehold land held by a feudal tenant, esp. land used to support the tenant. • Magna Carta exempted this property from seizure.

2. A person's reputation or standing in the community. • Though contenement as used in this sense is also rooted in the ownership of land, it may stem from the Law French contenance (“countenance”) rather than the Law Latin contenementum (“with tenement”), as used in sense (1). “Contenement signifies his Countenance, Credit, or Reputation, which he hath, together with, and by reason of his Freehold; and in this sense does the Statute of 1 Edw. 3 and Old Nat. Br. use it, where Countenance is used for Contenement: The Armor of a Soldier is his Countenance; the Books of a Schollar, his Countenance; and the like.” Thomas Blount, Nomo-Lexicon: A Law-Dictionary (1670).

CONTENT-BASED DISCRIMINATION

content-based discrimination. See DISCRIMINATION.

CONTENT-BASED RESTRICTION

content-based restriction. Constitutional law. A restraint on the substance of a particular type of speech. • This type of restriction are presumptively invalid but can survive a constitutional challenge if it is based on a compelling state interest and its measures are narrowly drawn to accomplish that end. Boos v. Barry, 485 U.S. 312, 108 S.Ct. 1157 (1988). See SPEECH (1). [Cases: Constitutional Law 90(3). C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 502, 542, 546–550.]

CONTENTIOUS JURISDICTION

contentious jurisdiction. See JURISDICTION.

CONTENTIOUS POSSESSION

contentious possession. See hostile possession under POSSESSION.

CONTENTS UNKNOWN

contents unknown. A statement placed on a bill of lading to show that the carrier does not know what is inside shipped containers. • Carriers use this phrase in an attempt to limit their liability for damage to the goods shipped. Shipper's load and count is also used. [Cases: Carriers 50; Shipping 106(3). C.J.S. Shipping §§ 260–263, 265.]

CONTENT-VALID TEST

content-valid test. A job-applicant examination that bears a close relationship to the skills required by the job. • Content-validation studies are often performed in employment-discrimination cases that contest the validity of an examination. [Cases: Civil Rights 1142, 1546. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 29, 144, 170.]

“The simplest form of test validation is where the test replicates major portions of the job, as for example, where a test measuring typing or computer literacy is used to select a secretarial support person .... A content valid test must measure or replicate a ‘representative sample’ of the job's duties. It is not valid if it measures only a small portion of those duties. For example, fire fighters may need to write reports, but a grammar test is too narrow to be content valid.” Mack A. Player, Federal Law of Employment Discrimination in a Nutshell 101 (3d ed. 1992).

CONTERMINOUS

conterminous,adj.1. Sharing a common boundary <the surveyor set a new line between the conterminous counties>. — Also termed coterminous. 2. Enclosed within a common boundary <all 48 conterminous states of this country>.

CONTEST

contest (k<<schwa>>n-test), vb.1. To strive to win or hold; contend <he chose to contest for the prize>.2. To litigate or call into question; challenge < they want to contest the will>.3. To deny an adverse claim or assert a defense to it in a court proceeding <she contests that charge>. — contest (kon-test), n.

CONTESTABILITY CLAUSE

contestability clause (k<<schwa>>n-tes-t<<schwa>>-bil-<<schwa>>-tee).Insurance. A policy provision setting forth when and under what conditions the insurer may contest a claim or void the policy based on a representation or omission made when the policy was issued. • Contestability clauses usu. lapse after two years. — Also termed contestable clause. Cf. INCONTESTABILITY CLAUSE. [Cases: Insurance 2950, 3121. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 536, 1636.]

CONTESTANT

contestant. 1. One who contests the validity of a will, trust, or other legal instrument. — Also termed objectant; caveator. 2.Trademarks. One who challenges the placement of a trademark on the Principal Register. • The term refers to a challenger in (1) an interference proceeding, (2) an opposition proceeding before a mark is placed on the Principal Register, or (3) a cancellation proceeding after the mark is placed on the Principal Register. [Cases: Trade Regulation 217. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 179, 183.] 3.Patents. A party to an interference proceeding in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. — Also termed (in sense 3) interferant. [Cases: Patents 106(1). C.J.S. Patents §§ 159–162, 165.]

CONTESTATIO LITIS

contestatio litis (kon-tes-tay-shee-oh II-tis). [Latin “contestation of suit”] See LITIS CONTESTATIO.

CONTESTATION OF SUIT

contestation of suit (kon-tes-tay-sh<<schwa>>n).Eccles. law. The point in an action when the defendant answers the plaintiff's libel (i.e., complaint); the plea and joinder of an issue. — Also termed litis contestatio.

CONTESTED DIVORCE

contested divorce.See DIVORCE.

CONTESTED HEARING

contested hearing.See HEARING.

CONTEXT

context, n. 1. The surrounding text of a word or passage, used to determine the meaning of that word or passage <his remarks were taken out of context>. 2. Setting or environment <in the context of foreign relations>. — contextual, adj.

CONTEXTUAL ZONING

contextual zoning. See ZONING.

CONTIGUITY

contiguity (kon-ti-gyoo-<<schwa>>-tee), n. The state or condition of being contiguous <contiguity existed between the two adjoining tracts of land>.

CONTIGUOUS

contiguous (k<<schwa>>n-tig-yoo-<<schwa>>s), adj. 1. Touching at a point or along a boundary; ADJOINING <Texas and Oklahoma are contiguous>. 2. Near in time or sequence; successive <contiguous thunder and lightning>.

CONTIGUOUS ZONE

contiguous zone. Int'l law. An area abutting and extending beyond the territorial sea, in which countries have limited powers to enforce customs as well as fiscal, sanitary, and immigration laws. [Cases: International Law 7. C.J.S. International Law §§ 23–24.]

CONTINENTAL CONGRESS

Continental Congress. The first national governmental assembly in the United States, formed in 1774 to protest British treatment of the colonies. • The Second Continental Congress, commencing in 1775, adopted the Declaration of Independence and served as the national government until the Articles of Confederation were ratified in 1781.

CONTINGENCY

contingency (k<<schwa>>n-tin-j<<schwa>>n-see). 1. An event that may or may not occur; a possibility. 2. The condition of being dependent on chance; uncertainty. 3. CONTINGENT FEE.

CONTINGENCY BENEFICIARY

contingency beneficiary. See contingent beneficiary (1) under BENEFICIARY.

CONTINGENCY FEE

contingency fee. See CONTINGENT FEE.

CONTINGENCY RESERVE

contingency reserve. See contingent fund under FUND.

CONTINGENCY WITH A DOUBLE ASPECT

contingency with a double aspect. A contingent remainder existing along with a second remainder, the latter taking the remainder only if the first fails. • In the following example, this type of remainder would arise if A never has children: “to A for life, and if A has children, then to the children and their heirs forever; and if A dies without children, then to B and B's heirs forever.” See contingent remainder under REMAINDER. [Cases: Remainders 1. C.J.S. Estates §§ 70–71, 77, 79, 81–82.]

CONTINGENT

contingent (k<<schwa>>n-tin-j<<schwa>>nt), adj. 1. Possible; uncertain; unpredictable <the trust was contingent, and the contingency never occurred>. 2. Dependent on something else; conditional <her acceptance of the position was contingent upon the firm's agreeing to guarantee her husband a position as well>.

CONTINGENT ANNUITY

contingent annuity. See ANNUITY.

contingent beneficiary. See BENEFICIARY.

CONTINGENT CLAIM

contingent claim. See CLAIM(4).

CONTINGENT DEBT

contingent debt. See DEBT.

CONTINGENT DEMAND

contingent demand. See DEMAND(1).

CONTINGENT ESTATE

contingent estate. See ESTATE(1).

CONTINGENT FEE

contingent fee. A fee charged for a lawyer's services only if the lawsuit is successful or is favorably settled out of court. • Contingent fees are usu. calculated as a percentage of the client's net recovery (such as 25% of the recovery if the case is settled, and 33% if the case is won at trial). — Also termed contingency fee; contingency; conditional fee. [Cases: Attorney and Client 146. C.J.S. Attorney and Client §§ 313, 319.]

reverse contingent fee. A fee in which a defense lawyer's compensation depends in whole or in part on how much money the lawyer saves the client, given the client's potential liability — so that the lower the settlement or judgment, the higher the lawyer's fee. • For example, if a client might be liable for up to $2 million, and agrees to pay the lawyer 40% of the difference between $1 million and the amount of the settlement or judgment, then a settlement of $800,000 would result in a fee of $80,000 (40% of the $200,000 under the threshold amount of $1 million). — Also termed negative contingent fee; defense contingent fee; reverse bonus. [Cases: Attorney and Client 146. C.J.S. Attorney and Client §§ 313, 319.]

CONTINGENT FUND

contingent fund. See FUND(1).

CONTINGENT GUARANTY

contingent guaranty. See GUARANTY.

CONTINGENT INTEREST

contingent interest. See INTEREST(2).

CONTINGENT-INTEREST MORTGAGE

contingent-interest mortgage. See MORTGAGE.

CONTINGENT LEGACY

contingent legacy. See LEGACY.

CONTINGENT LIABILITY

contingent liability. See LIABILITY.

CONTINGENT OWNERSHIP

contingent ownership. See OWNERSHIP.

CONTINGENT REMAINDER

contingent remainder. See REMAINDER.

CONTINGENT TRUST

contingent trust. See TRUST.

CONTINGENT USE

contingent use. See USE(4).

CONTINGENT WILL

contingent will. See WILL.

CONTINUAL CLAIM

continual claim. Hist. A formal claim to a tract of land made by an out-of-possession owner who is deterred from taking possession by a menace of some type. • The claim — called continual because it had to be renewed annually — preserved the claimant's right to the land. The owner had to make the claim as near to the land as could be done safely. This procedure gave the disseised person the same benefits (such as the right to devise the land) as a legal entry. The continual claim was abolished early in the 19th century.

“Continual claim is, where a man hath right to enter into certain lands whereof another is seised in fee, or fee tail, and dares not enter for fear of death or beating, but approaches as nigh as he dares, and makes claim thereto within the year and day before the death of him that hath the lands ....” Termes de la Ley 114 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

CONTINUAL INJURY

continual injury. See INJURY.

CONTINUANCE

continuance, n. 1. The act of keeping up, maintaining, or prolonging <continuance of the formal tradition>. 2. Duration; time of continuing <the senator's continuance in office>. 3. Procedure. The adjournment or postponement of a trial or other proceeding to a future date <motion for continuance>. Cf. RECESS(1). — continue, vb.

CONTINUANDO

continuando (k<<schwa>>n-tin-yoo-an-doh). [Law Latin “by continuing”] Hist. An allegation charging that the trespass or other wrongful act complained of constitutes a continuing tort against the plaintiff's property.

“In trespasses of a permanent nature, where the injury is continually renewed, (as by spoiling or consuming the herbage with the defendant's cattle) the declaration may allege the injury to have been committed by continuation from one given day to another, (which is called laying the action with a continuando) and the plaintiff shall not be compelled to bring separate actions for every day's separate offence.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 212 (1768).

CONTINUATION

continuation. Patents. A patent application that is based on the same disclosure and that claims the same invention as a rejected parent application but contains some change in the scope of the claims. • A continuation application maintains the original filing date for prior-art and interference purposes, as long as it is filed while the parent application is still pending, has at least one inventor in common with the parent application, and refers to the parent application. — Also termed continuation application; continuation-in-whole application; continuing application; file-wrapper continuation application. Cf. CONTINUATION-IN-PART, continued-prosecution application under PATENT APPLICATION; REQUEST FOR CONTINUED EXAMINATION . [Cases: Patents 110. C.J.S. Patents § 156.]

CONTINUATION AGREEMENT

continuation agreement. Partnership. An agreement among the partners that, in the event of dissolution, the business of the partnership can be continued without the necessity of liquidation. Cf. BUY-SELL AGREEMENT(1). [Cases: Partnership 277. C.J.S. Partnership §§ 318–320.]

“Normally, a continuation agreement would have some type of provision for purchasing the interest of a deceased or expelled partner. However, such a provision is not necessary. Courts have enforced agreements that give the estate of the deceased partner nothing.” Harold Gill Reuschlein & William A. Gregory, The Law of Agency and Partnership § 269, at 461 (2d ed. 1990).

CONTINUATION APPLICATION

continuation application.1.CONTINUATION. 2.CONTINUATION-IN-PART.

CONTINUATION-APPLICATION LACHES DOCTRINE

continuation-application laches doctrine.Patents. An equitable defense to patent infringement, based on an assertion that the patentee deliberately delayed the issuance of the patent-in-suit by filing multiple continuing applications that added new patent claims to cover products marketed or processes used after the original application was filed. — Also termed prosecution-laches doctrine. See SUBMARINE PATENT.

CONTINUATION-IN-PART

continuation-in-part.Patents. A patent application filed during the pendency of an earlier application by the same applicant, repeating a substantial part of the earlier application but adding to or subtracting from the claims. 35 USCA § 120. • This type of application contains new technical descriptions from the inventor or reflects im-provements made since the parent application was filed. A claim in a continuation-in-part application is entitled to the benefit of the parent application's filing date if the claimed subject matter is the same, but new matter takes the filing date of the continuation-in-part application. Continuation-in-part applications are usu. filed to describe and claim later-discovered improvements to an invention, or to distinguish the invention from some prior-art reference. — Abbr. CIP. — Also termed continuation-in-part application; continuation application; continuing application; file-wrapper continuation application. Cf. CONTINUATION. [Cases: Patents 110. C.J.S. Patents § 156.]

CONTINUING JUDICIAL EDUCATION

continuing judicial education. Continuing legal education for judges, usu. organized and sponsored by a go-vernmentally subsidized body and often involving topics such as judicial writing, efficient decision-making, caseload management, and the like. — Abbr. CJE.

CONTINUING JURISDICTION

continuing jurisdiction. See JURISDICTION.

CONTINUING-JURISDICTION DOCTRINE

continuing-jurisdiction doctrine. 1. The rule that a court retains power to enter and enforce a judgment over a party even though that party is no longer subject to a new action. [Cases: Courts 30. C.J.S. Courts §§ 71–73.] 2. Family law. The rule that once a court has acquired jurisdiction over a child-custody or support case, that court continues to have jurisdiction to modify orders, even if the child or a parent moves to another state. [Cases: Child Custody 745; Child Support 507. C.J.S. Parent and Child §§ 205, 246, 251–253.]

CONTINUING LEGAL EDUCATION

continuing legal education. 1. The process or system through which lawyers extend their learning beyond their law-school studies, usu. by attending seminars designed to sharpen lawyering skills or to provide updates on legal developments within particular practice areas. • In some jurisdictions, lawyers have annual or biennial requirements to devote a given number of hours (usu. 12–15) to continuing legal education. [Cases: Attorney and Client 9. C.J.S. Attorney and Client §§ 24–25.] 2. The enhanced skills or knowledge derived from this process. 3. The business field in which educational providers supply the demand for legal seminars, books, audiotapes, and videotapes designed to further the education of lawyers. — Abbr. CLE.

CONTINUING NUISANCE

continuing nuisance. See NUISANCE.

CONTINUING OBJECTION

continuing objection. See OBJECTION.

CONTINUING OFFENSE

continuing offense. See OFFENSE(1).

CONTINUING PART-TIME JUDGE

continuing part-time judge. See JUDGE.

CONTINUING THREAT OF HARM

continuing threat of harm. A condition or situation that presents a high risk of injury at intervals or over an extended period, whether or not an injury has actually occurred. • The condition or situation can be a behavior that is subject to repetition, as with unfair-competition practices or stalking, or an enduring state, such as environmental contamination. — Also termed threat of continuing harm; continuing threat of injury; threat of continuing injury. Cf. continuing injury under INJURY.

CONTINUING TRESPASS

continuing trespass. See TRESPASS.

CONTINUING-VIOLATION DOCTRINE

continuing-violation doctrine. Employment law. The judge-made rule that if an employer's discriminatory acts are of an ongoing nature, the statute of limitations will be extended to allow the plaintiff to recover even when a claim based on those acts would otherwise be time-barred.

CONTINUING WARRANTY

continuing warranty. See promissory warranty under WARRANTY(3).

CONTINUING WRONG

continuing wrong. See WRONG.

CONTINUITY

continuity (kon-ti-n[y]oo-<<schwa>>-tee). 1. Int'l law. The principle that upheavals and revolutions within a country — as well as changes in governmental forms, the extent of a country's territory, and measures taken during a military occupation — do not affect the existence of the country and therefore cannot lead to its extinction. 2. Patents. The rule that a continuation or divisional patent application carries the effective filing date of its parent application if (1) the parent application fully discloses the same invention, (2) there is at least one common inventor, and (3) the parent application was still pending when the latter application was filed. • A continuation-in-part application carries the effective filing date for everything disclosed in the parent application, but not for new material. 35 USCA § 120. — Also termed doctrine of continuity. Cf. HIATUS. [Cases: Patents 110. C.J.S. Patents § 156.]

CONTINUITY OF BUSINESS ENTERPRISE

continuity of business enterprise. A doctrine covering acquisitive reorganizations whereby the acquiring corporation must continue the target corporation's historical business or must use a significant portion of the target's business assets in a new business to qualify the exchange as a tax-deferred transaction. [Cases: Corporations 445.1. C.J.S. Corporations § 657.]

CONTINUITY-OF-ENTERPRISE DOCTRINE

continuity-of-enterprise doctrine. See SUBSTANTIAL-CONTINUITY DOCTRINE.

CONTINUITY-OF-ENTITY DOCTRINE

continuity-of-entity doctrine. See MERE-CONTINUATION DOCTRINE.

CONTINUITY OF EXISTENCE

continuity of existence. See CONTINUITY-OF-LIFE DOCTRINE.

CONTINUITY OF INTEREST

continuity of interest. 1. A doctrine covering acquisitive reorganizations whereby a target corporation's shareholders must retain a share in the acquiring corporation to qualify the exchange as a tax-deferred transaction. 2. A judicial requirement for divisive reorganizations whereby a target corporation's shareholders must retain an interest in both the distributing and the controlled corporations to qualify the exchange as a tax-deferred transaction. [Cases: Internal

Revenue 3677.]

CONTINUITY-OF-LIFE DOCTRINE

continuity-of-life doctrine. The principle that the withdrawal, incapacity, bankruptcy, or death of the owner of an entity (esp. a corporation) does not end the entity's existence. — Also termed continuity of existence. [Cases: Corporations 36. C.J.S. Corporations § 52.]

CONTINUOUS-ADVERSE-USE PRINCIPLE

continuous-adverse-use principle. The rule that the uninterrupted use of land — along with the other elements of adverse possession — will result in a successful claim for adverse possession. — Also termed uninter-rupted-adverse-use principle. See ADVERSE POSSESSION. [Cases: Adverse Possession 44. C.J.S. Adverse Possession §§ 149–150, 332.]

CONTINUOUS CRIME

continuous crime. See CRIME.

CONTINUOUS EASEMENT

continuous easement. See EASEMENT.

CONTINUOUS INJURY

continuous injury. See continual injury under INJURY.

CONTINUOUS-OPERATIONS CLAUSE

continuous-operations clause. Oil & gas. A provision in an oil-and-gas lease giving the lessee the right to continue any drilling well that was begun before the lease expired and to begin drilling more wells. See OPERATIONS CLAUSE .

CONTINUOUS POLICY

continuous policy. See INSURANCE POLICY.

CONTINUOUS-REPRESENTATION DOCTRINE

continuous-representation doctrine. The principle that the limitations period for bringing a legal-malpractice action is tolled as long as the lawyer continues the representation that is related to the negligent act or omission. [Cases: Limitation of Actions 55(3). C.J.S. Limitations of Actions §§ 159, 166, 171–175; Physicians, Surgeons, and Other Health-Care Providers § 108.]

CONTINUOUS SERVITUDE

continuous servitude. See continuous easement under EASEMENT.

CONTINUOUS-TREATMENT DOCTRINE

continuous-treatment doctrine. The principle that the limitations period for bringing a medical-malpractice action is tolled while the patient continues treatment that is related to the negligent act or omission. [Cases: Limitation of Actions 55(3). C.J.S. Limitations of Actions §§

159, 166, 171–175; Physicians, Surgeons, and other Health–Care Providers § 108.]

CONTINUOUS TRIGGER

continuous trigger. See TRIPLE TRIGGER.

CONTIO

contio (kon-shee-oh), n. [Latin] Roman law. 1. A public meeting to which participants have been summoned by a magistrate. 2. A speech delivered at a public meeting. — Also spelled concio. Pl. contiones (kon-shee-oh-nee-z).

CONTORT

contort (kon-tort), n.1. (usu. pl.) The overlapping domain of contract law and tort law.

“I have occasionally suggested to my students that a desirable reform in legal education would be to merge the first-year courses in Contracts and Torts into a single course which we could call Contorts.” Grant Gilmore, The Death of Contract 90 (1974).

2. A specific wrong that falls within that domain. 3. Informal. A constitutional tort. See constitutional tort under TORT.

CONTRA

contra (kon-tr<<schwa>>), prep. Against or contrary to. • As a citation signal, contra denotes that the cited authority supports a contrary view. In old law reports, contra often identifies the defendant's attorney (pro que-rente refers to the plaintiff's).

“Observe in the note citing cases in support of a proposition mentioned in the text whether any of the cases follow the word contra, which means that a contrary rule has been laid down in them.” Frank Hall Childs, Where and How to Find the Law 78–79 (1922).

CONTRA ACCOUNT

contra account. See ACCOUNT.

CONTRABAND

contraband (kon-tr<<schwa>>-band), n.1. Illegal or prohibited trade; smuggling. 2. Goods that are unlawful to import, export, or possess. — contraband, adj.

absolute contraband. Goods used primarily for war, such as arms and ammunition, as well as clothing and equipment of a military character.

conditional contraband. Goods susceptible of being used for warlike and peaceful purposes, such as coal and food. — Also termed ancipitis usus (an-sip-i-t<<schwa>>s yoo-s<<schwa>>s).

contraband per se. Property whose possession is unlawful regardless of how it is used. Cf. derivative contraband.

derivative contraband. Property whose possession becomes unlawful when it is used in committing an illegal act. Cf. contraband per se.

CONTRA BONOS MORES

contra bonos mores (kon-tr<<schwa>> boh-nohs mor-eez). [Latin “against good morals”] Offensive to the conscience and to a sense of justice. • Contracts contra bonos mores are voidable. — Also termed contra bonos mores et decorum; adversus bonos mores.

“Whatever is contra bonos mores et decorum, the principles of our law prohibit, and the King's court, as the general censor and guardian of the public manners, is bound to restrain and punish.” Jones v. Randall, 98 E.R. 706, 707 (1774)(per Mansfield, C.J.).

CONTRACAUSATOR

contracausator (kon-tr<<schwa>>-kaw-zay-t<<schwa>>r).Hist. A criminal; a person prosecuted for a crime.

CONTRACEPTIVISM

contraceptivism.Hist. The criminal offense of distributing or prescribing contraceptives.

CONTRACT

contract,n.1. An agreement between two or more parties creating obligations that are enforceable or otherwise recognizable at law . [Cases: Contracts 1. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 2, 9, 12.] 2. The writing that sets forth such an agreement .

“The term contract has been used indifferently to refer to three different things: (1) the series of operative acts by the parties resulting in new legal relations; (2) the physical document executed by the parties as the lasting evidence of their having performed the necessary operative acts and also as an operative fact in itself; (3) the legal relations resulting from the operative acts, consisting of a right or rights in personam and their corresponding duties, accompanied by certain powers, privileges, and immunities. The sum of these legal relations is often called ‘obligation.’ The present editor prefers to define contract in sense (3) ....” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 13 n.2 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

“A contract is a promise, or a set of promises, for breach of which the law gives a remedy, or the performance of which the law in some way recognizes as a duty. This definition may not be entirely satisfactory since it requires a subsequent definition of the circumstances under which the law does in fact attach legal obligation to promises. But if a definition were attempted which should cover these operative facts, it would require compressing the entire law relating to the formation of contracts into a single sentence.” Samuel Williston, A Treatise on the Law of Contracts § 1, at 1–2 (Walter H.E. Jaeger ed., 3d ed. 1957) (footnote omitted).

“The term ‘contract’ is also used by lay persons and lawyers alike to refer to a document in which the terms of a contract are written. Use of the word in this sense is by no means improper so long as it is clearly understood that rules of law utilizing the concept ‘contract’ rarely refer to the writing itself. Usually, the reference is to the agreement; the writing being merely a memorial of the agreement.” John D. Calamari & Joseph M. Perillo, The Law of Contracts § 1.1, at 3 (4th ed. 1998).

3. A promise or set of promises by a party to a transaction, enforceable or otherwise recognizable at law; the writing expressing that promise or set of promises <when the lessor learned that the rooms were to be used for the delivery of blasphemous lectures, he declined to carry out his contract>. See Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 2 (1979). “The promissory element present in every contract is stressed in a widely quoted definition: ‘A contract is a promise, or set of promises, for breach of which the law gives a remedy, or the performance of which the law in some way recognizes as a duty.’ [1 Samuel Williston, Contracts § 1.1 (4th ed. 1990).] This, like similar definitions, is somewhat misleading. While it is true that a promise, express or implied, is a necessary element in every contract, frequently the promise is coupled with other elements such as physical acts, recitals of fact, and the immediate transfer of property interests. In ordinary usage the contract is not the promise alone, but the entire complex of these elements.” John D. Calamari & Joseph M. Perillo, The Law of Contracts § 1.1, at 1–2 (4th ed. 1998).

4. Broadly, any legal duty or set of duties not imposed by the law of tort; esp., a duty created by a decree or declaration of a court <an obligation of record, as a judgment, recognizance, or the like, is included within the term “contract”>. 5. The body of law dealing with agreements and exchange <the general theory of contract>. 6. The terms of an agreement, or any particular term <there was no express contract about when the money was payable>. 7. Loosely, a sale or conveyance. “Sometimes the word ‘contract’ is used to designate a transaction involving the exchange of goods or land for money. When money is exchanged for goods, this constitutes a sale. When money is exchanged for land, this constitutes a conveyance. Sales and conveyances may be the result of a previous contract but they are not the contracts in themselves. There is no undertaking or commitment to do or refrain from doing anything in the future. This indispensable element of contract is missing.” John Edward Murray Jr., Murray on Contracts § 2, at 5 (2d ed. 1974).

8. Loosely, an enforceable agreement between two or more parties to do or not to do a thing or set of things; a compact <when they finally agreed, they had a contract>. — contract, vb. — contractual, adj.

absolute simulated contract. Civil law. A simulated contract that the parties intend to be wholly ineffective. La. Civ. Code art. 2026. See simulated contract.

accessory contract. A contract entered into primarily for the purpose of carrying out a principal contract. • The principal types are suretyship, indemnity, pledge, warranty, and ratification. Cf. principal contract.

adhesion contract. A standard-form contract prepared by one party, to be signed by the party in a weaker position, usu. a consumer, who adheres to the contract with little choice about the terms. — Also termed contract of adhesion; adhesive contract; adhesory contract; adhesiory contract; take-it-or-leave-it contract; leonine contract. [Cases: Contracts 1. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 2–3, 9, 12.]

“Some sets of trade and professional forms are extremely one-sided, grossly favoring one interest group against others, and are commonly referred to as contracts of adhesion. From weakness in bargaining position, ignorance, or indifference, unfavored parties are willing to enter transactions controlled by these lopsided legal documents.” Quintin Johnstone & Dan Hopson Jr., Lawyers and Their Work 329–30 (1967).

“Dangers are inherent in standardization ... for it affords a means by which one party may impose terms on another unwitting or even unwilling party. Several circumstances facilitate this imposition. First, the party that proffers the form has had the advantage of time and expert advice in preparing it, almost inevitably producing a form slanted in its favor. Second, the other party is usually completely or at least relatively unfamiliar with the form and has scant opportunity to read it — an opportunity often diminished by the use of fine print and convoluted clauses. Third, bargaining over terms of the form may not be between equals or, as is more often the case, there may be no possibility of bargaining at all. The form may be used by an enterprise with such disproportionately strong economic power that it simply dictates the terms. Or the form may be a take-it-or-leave-it proposition, often called a contract of adhesion, under which the only alternative to complete adherence is outright rejection.” E. Allan Farnsworth, Contracts § 4.26, at 296–97 (3d ed. 1999).

aleatory contract (ay-lee-<<schwa>>-tor-ee). [fr. Latin aleator “gambler,” fr. alea “the throwing of dice”] A contract in which at least one party's performance depends on some uncertain event that is beyond the control of the parties involved. • Most insurance contracts and life annuities are of this type. — Also termed hazardous contract; wagering contract. Cf. certain contract. [Cases: Contracts 218; Insurance 1713. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 355, 358; Insurance §§ 253, 272, 285.]

“A contract is aleatory when, because of the nature or according to the parties' intent, the performance of either party's obligation, or the extent of the performance, depends on an uncertain event.” La. Civ. Code art. 1912.

alternative contract. A contract in which the performing party may elect to perform one of two or more specified acts to satisfy the obligation; a contract that provides more than one way for a party to complete performance, usu. permitting that party to choose the manner of performance. — Also termed alternative-methods-of-performance contract. [Cases: Contracts 172. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 341, 506; Trading Stamps and Coupons §§ 7–9.]

assessment contract. A contract in which the payment of a benefit is dependent on the collection of an assessment levied on persons holding similar contracts. See assessment insurance under INSURANCE. [Cases: Insurance 2080.]

best-efforts contract. A contract in which a party undertakes to use best efforts to fulfill the promises made rather than to achieve a specific result; a contract in which the adequacy of a party's performance is measured by the party's ability to fulfill the specified obligations. • Although the obligor must use best efforts, the risk of failure lies with the obligee. To be enforceable, a best-efforts term must generally set some kind of goal or guideline against which the efforts may be measured. See BEST EFFORTS. [Cases: Contracts 189. C.J.S. Contracts §§

bilateral contract. A contract in which each party promises a performance, so that each party is an obligor on that party's own promise and an obligee on the other's promise; a contract in which the parties obligate themselves reciprocally, so that the obligation of one party is correlative to the obligation of the other. — Also termed mutual contract; reciprocal contract; (in civil law) synallagmatic contract. See COUNTERPROMISE. [Cases: Contracts 1, 10(1). C.J.S. Contracts §§ 2–3, 9, 12, 105–106, 108–113.]

blanket contract. A contract covering a group of products, goods, or services for a fixed period.

bona fide contract (boh-n<<schwa>> fld orfl-dee). A contract in which equity may intervene to correct inequities and to adjust matters according to the parties' intentions.

build-to-print contract. A contract requiring the contractor to build a product according to exact technical specifications provided by the customer. • The design specifications are explicit and are often coupled with performance specifications, so the contractor has little discretion in how to perform. Much governmental contracting is build-to-print. — Also termed design-specification contract. Cf. performance contract (1).

certain contract. A contract that will be performed in a stipulated manner. Cf. aleatory contract.

collateral contract. A side agreement that relates to a contract, which, if unintegrated, can be supplemented by evidence of the side agreement; an agreement made before or at the same time as, but separately from, another contract. See COLLATERAL-CONTRACT DOCTRINE. [Cases: Evidence 440. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 1249–1251, 1283.]

“The term ‘collateral contract’ has no very precise meaning in the law. It is generally used as a label for a contract which is collateral, or by the side of, another contract. A great many examples of implied or constructive contracts created by the Courts are collateral in a broad sense.... [A]lthough the normal presumption is that the parties intend a written contract to be exclusive evidence of their intentions, it is always open to a party to show that in fact the writing did not exclusively represent their intentions, because of a ‘collateral’ contract made during the negotiations but not incorporated in the written instrument.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 80–81, 161 (3d ed. 1981).

(k<<schwa>>-myoo-t<<schwa>>-tiv orkom-y<<schwa>>-tay-tiv). Civil law. A contract in which one party's performance is correlative to the performance of the other, so that nonperformance by either affords a defense to the other. La. Civ. Code art. 1911. Cf. independent contract; synallagmatic contract.

conditional contract. An agreement that is enforceable only if another agreement is performed or if another particular prerequisite or condition is satisfied. — Also termed hypothetical contract. [Cases: Contracts 218. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 355, 358.]

conditional sales contract. See retail installment contract.

consensual contract. Hist. A contract arising from the mere consensus of the parties, without any formal or symbolic acts performed to fix the obligation. • Although the consensual contract was known to the common law, it originated in Roman law, where it embraced four types of contracts in which informal consent alone was sufficient: (1) an agency agreement (mandatum), (2) a partnership agreement (societas), (3) a sale (emptio venditio), or (4) a letting or hiring (locatio conductio). Cf. real contract.

“[T]he peculiarity of these Consensual Contracts is that no formalities are required to create them out of the Pact. Much that is indefensible, and much more that is obscure, has been written about the Consensual Contracts, and it has even been asserted that in them the consent of the Parties is more emphatically given than in any other species of agreement. But the Consensual merely indicates that the Obligation is here annexed at once to the Consensus. The Consensus, or mutual assent of the parties, is the final and crowning ingredient in the Convention, and it is the special characteristic of agreements falling under one of the four heads of Sale, Partnership, Agency, and Hiring, that, as soon as the assent of the parties has supplied this ingredient, there is at once a Contract. The Consensus draws with it the Obligation, performing, in transactions of the sort specified, the exact functions which are discharged, in the other contracts, by the Res or Thing ...” Henry S. Maine, Ancient Law 322–23 (10th ed. 1884).

construction contract. A contract setting forth the specifications for a building project's construction. • This type of contract is usually secured by performance and payment bonds to protect both the owner and the subcontractors. [Cases: Contracts 198.] constructive contract. See implied-in-law contract.

continuing contract. A contract calling for periodic performances. [Cases: Contracts 216. C.J.S. Contracts § 421.]

contract for deed. A conditional sales contract for the sale of real property. — Also termed installment land contract; land sales contract; land contract. [Cases: Vendor and Purchaser 54. C.J.S. Vendor and Purchaser §§ 145–146.]

contract for sale. 1. A contract for the present transfer of property for a price. — Also termed contract of sale. [Cases: Sales 1(1). C.J.S. Sales §§ 2, 9, 29, 48.] 2. A contract to sell goods at a future time. — Also termed (in sense 2) contract to sell.

contract implied in fact. See implied-in-fact contract.

contract implied in law. See implied-in-law contract.

contract of adhesion. See adhesion contract.

contract of affreightment. See CONTRACT OF AFFREIGHTMENT.

contract of beneficence. See gratuitous contract.

contract of benevolence. See gratuitous contract.

contract of carriage. See CONTRACT OF AFFREIGHTMENT.

contract of indemnity. See indemnity contract.

contract of insurance. See INSURANCE POLICY.

contract of marriage. See marriage contract.

contract of record. A contract that is declared by a court and entered into the court's record. • Contracts of record include judgments, recognizances, and (in England) statutes staple.

“Contracts of record are not really contracts at all, but are transactions which, being entered on the records of certain courts called ‘courts of record,’ are conclusive proof of the facts thereby appearing, and could formerly be enforced by action of law as if they had been put in the shape of a contract.” 1 Stewart Rapalje & Robert L. Lawrence, A Dictionary of American and English Law 282 (1883).

“A contract of record is in point of fact no contract at all, and has nothing whatever to do with the law of contracts. These so-called contracts are the obligations incurred by a judgment or recognizance of a Court of Record. They came to be called contracts only because they were enforceable by the same type of action as was used for genuinely contractual cases in the old common-law system of procedure.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 31 (3d ed. 1981).

contract of sale. See contract for sale (1).

contract to pledge. 1. An agreement purporting to create a present pledge without a bailment. 2. An agreement to make a future bailment for the purpose of security. See PLEDGE(3).

contract to satisfaction. See satisfaction contract.

contract to sell. See contract for sale (2).

contract uberrimae fidei (yoo-ber-<<schwa>>-mee fi-dee-I). A contract in which the parties owe each other duties with the utmost good faith. [Cases: Insurance 1867, 2996. C.J.S. Insurance § 377.]

“In a certain restricted group of contracts good faith is peculiarly necessary owing to the relationship between the parties, and in these cases — known as contracts uberrimae fidei — there is a full duty to disclose all material facts. The typical instance of such contracts is the contract of insurance. Here the duty to disclose all material facts to the insurer arises from the fact that many of the relevant circumstances are within the exclusive knowledge of one party, and it would be impossible for the insurer to obtain the facts necessary for him to make a proper calculation of the risk he is asked to assume without this knowledge.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 221–22 (3d ed. 1981).

contract under seal. A formal contract that requires no consideration and has the seal of the signer attached. • A contract under seal must be in writing or printed on paper or parchment and is conclusive between the parties when signed, sealed, and delivered. Delivery is made either by actually handing it to the other party (or party's representative) or by stating an intention that the deed be operative even though it is retained in the possession of the party executing it. Modern statutes have mostly eliminated the special effects of a sealed contract. — Also termed sealed contract; special contract; deed; covenant; specialty; specialty contract; common-law specialty. See SEAL. [Cases: Contracts 48. C.J.S. Contracts § 85.]

“The only formal contract of English law is the contract under seal, sometimes also called a deed and sometimes a specialty. It is the only formal contract, because it derives its validity neither from the fact of agreement, nor from the consideration which may exist for the promise of either party, but from the form in which it is expressed.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 82 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

“Contracts under seal also bear little resemblance to ordinary contracts, although here at least the liability is based on a promise. A contract under seal, that is to say a deed, ... is a written promise or set of promises which derives its validity from the form, and the form alone, of the executing instrument. In point of fact the ‘form’ of the deed is nowadays surprisingly elastic. The only necessities are that the deed should be intended as such, and should be signed, sealed, and delivered. The sealing, however, has now become largely a fiction, an adhesive wafer simply being attached to the document in place of a genuine seal. Similarly, ‘delivery’ is not literally necessary, provided that there is a clear intention that the deed should be operative.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 31 (3d ed. 1981).

cost-plus contract. A contract in which payment is based on a fixed fee or a percentage added to the actual cost incurred. [Cases: Contracts 229(2). C.J.S. Contracts § 386.]

de facto contract of sale. A contract that purports to pass property but is defective in some element.

dependent contract. A contract conditioned or dependent on another contract.

deposit contract. An agreement between a financial institution and its customer governing the treatment of deposited funds and the payment of checks and other demands against the customer's account. [Cases: Banks and Banking 133, 137–155. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 266–268, 277–278, 283–287, 290, 294–300, 320–321, 326–335, 342–381, 393, 399, 401, 415–423, 425–444, 455.]

design-specification contract. See build-to-print contract.

destination contract. A contract in which a seller bears the risk of loss until the goods arrive at the destination. UCC § 2-509. Cf. shipment contract. [Cases: Sales 201(4). C.J.S. Sales §§ 224–227.]

discharged contract. See void contract (2).

divisible contract. See severable contract.

dual contract. A contract between parties who have made two contracts for the same transaction, sometimes so that one may be used to defraud another (such as a lender) as to the terms of the parties' actual agreement.

electronic contract. See E-CONTRACT.

employment contract. A contract between an employer and employee in which the terms and conditions of employment are stated. [Cases: Master and Servant 2. C.J.S. Apprentices § 2; Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 21, 25–26.]

engineering, procurement, and construction contract. A fixed-price, schedule-intensive construction contract — typically used in the construction of single-purpose projects, such as energy plants — in which the contractor agrees to a wide variety of responsibilities, including the duties to provide for the design, engineering, procurement, and construction of the facility; to prepare start-up procedures; to conduct performance tests; to create operating manuals; and to train people to operate the facility. — Abbr. EPC contract. — Also termed turnkey contract. See SINGLE-PURPOSE PROJECT.

entire-output contract. See output contract.

escrow contract. The agreement among buyer, seller, and escrow holder, setting forth the rights and responsibilities of each. See ESCROW. [Cases: Deposits and Escrows 13, 15. C.J.S. Depositories §§ 15–17; Escrows §§ 6, 8–10.]

evergreen contract. A contract that renews itself from one term to the next in the absence of contrary notice by one of the parties.

executed contract. 1. A contract that has been fully performed by both parties. [Cases: Contracts 6; Sales 197; Vendor and Purchaser 53. C.J.S. Contracts § 8; Sales §§ 214, 223; Vendor and Purchaser §§ 144, 146.] 2. A signed contract. [Cases: Contracts 34. C.J.S. Contracts –§ 73–74, 700.]

executory contract (eg-zek-y<<schwa>>-tor-ee). 1. A contract that remains wholly unperformed or for which there remains something still to be done on both sides, often as a component of a larger transaction and sometimes memorialized by an informal letter agreement, by a memorandum, or by oral agreement. [Cases: Contracts 6; Sales 197; Vendor and Purchaser 53. C.J.S. Contracts § 8; Sales §§ 214, 223; Vendor and Purchaser §§ 144, 146.]

“If a contract is wholly executory, and the legal duties of the parties are as yet unfulfilled, it can be discharged by mutual consent, the acquittance of each from the other's claims being the consideration for the promise of each to waive his own.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 138 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

2. Bankruptcy. A contract under which debtor and nondebtor each have unperformed obligations and the debtor, if it ceased further performance, would have no right to the other party's continued performance. [Cases: Bankruptcy 3106. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 218.]

express contract. A contract whose terms the parties have explicitly set out. — Also termed special contract. Cf. implied contract. [Cases: Contracts 3. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 5, 7.]

financial contract. Securities. An arrangement that (1) takes the form of an individually negotiated contract, agreement, or option to buy, sell, lend, swap, or repurchase, or other similar individually negotiated transaction commonly entered into by participants in the financial markets; (2) involves securities, commodities, currencies, interest or other rates, other measures of value, or any other financial or economic interest similar in purpose or function; and (3) is entered into in response to a request from a counterparty for a quotation, or is otherwise entered into and structured to accommodate the objectives of the counterparty to such an arrangement.

fixed-price contract. A contract in which the buyer agrees to pay the seller a definite and predetermined price regardless of increases in the seller's cost or the buyer's ability to acquire the same goods in the market at a lower price. [Cases: Sales 77. C.J.S. Sales §§ 26, 96–98.]

formal contract. A contract made through the observance of certain prescribed formalities. • Among the formal contracts are the contract under seal, the recognizance, the negotiable instrument, and the letter of credit. Cf. informal contract; formal agreement under AGREEMENT.

forward contract. An agreement to buy or sell a particular nonstandardized asset (usu. currencies) at a fixed price on a future date. • Unlike a futures contract, a forward contract is not traded on a formal exchange. — Also termed forward agreement. Cf. FUTURES CONTRACT.

futures contract. See FUTURES CONTRACT.

gambling contract. An agreement to engage in a gamble; a contract in which two parties wager something, esp. money, for a chance to win a prize. • Where gambling is legal, contracts related to legal gambling activities are enforceable. — Also termed gaming contract. See wagering contract. [Cases: Gaming 25.]

“Generally, under or apart from statutes so providing, or prohibiting such contracts or transactions, gambling contracts and transactions are illegal and void and cannot be enforced; and such contracts are void ab initio.... A gambling contract is invalid, no matter what outward form it may assume, and no ingenuity can make it legal.” 38 C.J.S. Gaming § 26, at 138–39 (1996).

government contract. A contract to which a government or government agency is a party, esp. for the purchase of goods and services. See procurement contract.

gratuitous contract (gr<<schwa>>-t[y]oo-i-t<<schwa>>s). 1. A contract made for the benefit of a promisee who does not give consideration to the promisor. — Also termed contract of beneficence; contract of benevolence. Cf. onerous contract. 2. Civil law. A contract in which one party promises to give a benefit to the other party without expecting or gaining any benefit in return. — Also termed voluntary contract.

grubstake contract.A contract between two parties in which one party provides the grubstake — money and supplies — and the other party prospects for and locates mines on public land. • Each party acquires an interest in the mine as agreed to in the contract. Grubstake contracts are used chiefly in the western United States. In some states, such as Alaska, a request for grubstake money is considered the offer of a security and must be registered. — Also termed grubstaking contract. [Cases: Mines and Minerals 101. C.J.S. Mines and Minerals §§ 396–401.]

guaranteed-sale contract.A contract between a real-estate agency and a property owner in which the agency agrees to buy the property at a guaranteed price after a specified length of time if it has not been sold under the listing agreement. • The guaranteed price is usu. a substantial discount from the listed price. — Also termed guaranteed-purchase contract.

guaranty contract.See GUARANTY(1).

hazardous contract.See aleatory contract.

hypothetical contract.See conditional contract.

illegal contract.A promise that is prohibited because the performance, formation, or object of the agreement is against the law. • Technically speaking, an illegal contract is not a contract at all, so the phrase is a misnomer. Cf. unenforceable contract; void contract. [Cases: Contracts 103. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 195–200, 213–214.]

“An illegal contract is exceptionally difficult to define. It does not merely mean a contract contrary to the criminal law, although such a contract would indubitably be illegal. But a contract can well be illegal without contravening the criminal law, because there are certain activities which the law does not actually prohibit, but at the same time regards as contrary to the public interest and definitely to be discouraged, for instance, prostitution. While a void contract is not necessarily illegal, an illegal contract is often void. However, the consequences of an illegal contract differ somewhat from those usually produced by a simply void contract, so illegal contracts are usually accorded separate treatment.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 38 (3d ed. 1981).

illusory contract.An agreement in which one party gives as consideration a promise that is so insubstantial as to impose no obligation. • The insubstantial promise renders the contract unenforceable. [Cases: Contracts 10. C.J.S. Contracts § 108.]

immoral contract.A contract that so flagrantly violates societal norms as to be unenforceable. [Cases: Contracts 112. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 275–276.]

implied contract. 1. An implied-in-law contract. [Cases: Implied and Constructive Contracts 1. C.J.S. Im-plied and Constructive Contracts §§ 2–3.] 2. An implied-in-fact contract. Cf. express contract. [Cases: Contracts 27. C.J.S. Contracts § 6.]

implied-in-fact contract.A contract that the parties presumably intended as their tacit understanding, as inferred from their conduct and other circumstances. — Also termed contract implied in fact. [Cases: Contracts 27. C.J.S. Contracts § 6.]

implied-in-law contract. An obligation created by law for the sake of justice; specif., an obligation imposed by law because of some special relationship between them, or because one of them would otherwise be unjustly enriched. • An implied-in-law contract is not actually a contract, but instead a remedy that allows the plaintiff to recover a benefit conferred on the defendant. — Also termed contract implied in law; quasi-contract; constructive contract. See UNJUST ENRICHMENT. [Cases: Implied and Constructive Contracts 1. C.J.S. Implied and Constructive Contracts §§ 2–3.]

“[A]dventurous courts have turned to the idea of a ‘contract implied in law,’ a ‘quasi-contract’ — not really a contract, a legal fiction necessary to promote the ends of justice and, in particular, to prevent ‘unjust enrichment.’” Grant Gilmore, The Death of Contract 73–74 (1974).

impossible contract. A contract that the law will not enforce because there is no feasible way for one of the parties to perform. See IMPOSSIBILITY(3). [Cases: Contracts 309. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 520–522, 524.]

indemnity contract. A contract by which the promisor agrees to reimburse a promisee for some loss irrespective of a third person's liability. — Also termed contract of indemnity.

independent contract. A contract in which the mutual acts or promises of the parties have no relation to each other, either as equivalents or as considerations. Cf. commutative contract.

informal contract. 1. A contract other than one under seal, a recognizance, or a negotiable instrument; specif., that derives its force not from the observance of formalities but because of the presence in the transaction of certain elements that are usually present when people make promises with binding intent — namely, mutual assent and consideration (or a device other than consideration). • An informal contract may be made with or without a writing. Most modern contracts are informal. — Also termed bargain; simple contract. 2. See parol contract.

innominate contract (i-nom-<<schwa>>-nit). Roman & civil law. A contract not classifiable under any particular name; a contract for which the law supplies nothing in addition to the express agreement of the parties. La. Civ. Code art. 1914. • This type of contract was developed late in classical Roman law. Although the agreements were reciprocal, they did not become operational without at least part performance. — Also termed innominate real contract. Cf. nominate contract.

installment contract. A contract requiring or authorizing the delivery of goods in separate lots, or payments in separate increments, to be separately accepted. • Under the UCC, this type of agreement will be considered one contract even if it has a clause stating that each delivery is a separate contract. UCC § 2-612. [Cases: Sales 163, 192. C.J.S. Sales § 181.]

installment land contract. See contract for deed.

integrated contract. See INTEGRATED CONTRACT.

invalid contract. A contract that is either void or voidable. — Also termed invalid agreement. [Cases: Contracts 98. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 137, 139–140, 145, 153–155, 157, 171, 173–174, 185, 188.]

investment contract. See INVESTMENT CONTRACT.

joint contract. A contract in which two or more promisors are together bound to fulfill its obligations, or one in which two or more promisees are together entitled to performance. Cf. severable contract. [Cases: Contracts 181. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 366, 371.]

land contract. See contract for deed.

land sales contract. See contract for deed.

leonine contract. See adhesion contract.

letter contract. In federal contract law, a written contract with sufficient provisions to permit the contractor to begin performance. [Cases: Contracts 26. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 61–62, 64.]

leverage contract. See LEVERAGE CONTRACT.

literal contract. 1. Roman law. A type of written contract originally created by — and later evidenced by — an entry of the sum due on the debit side of a ledger, binding a signatory even though the signatory receives no consideration. • Literal contracts were often used for novations. See LITTERIS OBLIGATIO.

“Though an obligation could be created by a literal contract in the time of Gaius, the so-called literal contract of Justinian was not, in itself, a means of creating an obligation, but was the evidence of an obligation created in some other way .... The true literal contract, as described by Gaius, may be defined as a means of creating an obligation to pay money by a fictitious entry ... in the creditor's account book ... with the consent of the intended debtor. A, with B's consent, enters the fact that B is indebted to him ... and thereupon B is under an obligation to pay, though no money has passed between them.” R.W. Leage, Roman Private Law 316–17 (C.H. Ziegler ed., 2d ed. 1930).

2. Civil law. A contract fully evidenced by a writing and binding on the signatory.

marine contract. See maritime contract.

maritime contract. A contract that is recognized in admiralty jurisdiction. • In general, a maritime contract relates to a vessel in its use as such, to navigation on navigable waters, to transportation by sea, or to maritime employment. — Also termed marine contract.

marketing contract. 1. A business's agreement with an agency or other association for the promotion of sales of the business's goods or services. 2. An agreement between a cooperative and its members, by which the members agree to sell through the cooperative, and the cooperative agrees to obtain an agreed price.

marriage contract. A form of mutual consent required for a matrimonial relationship to exist according to the law of the place where the consent takes place. — Also termed contract of marriage.

mixed contract. 1. Civil law. A contract in which the respective benefits conferred are unequal. 2. A contract for both the sale of goods and services. • The UCC may apply to a mixed contract if the predominant purpose is for the sale of goods. [Cases: Sales 3.1. C.J.S. Sales §§ 3–4.]

mutual contract. See bilateral contract.

naked contract. See NUDUM PACTUM.

nominate contract (nom-<<schwa>>-nit). Civil law. A contract distinguished by a particular name, such as sale, insurance, or lease, the very use of which determines some of the rules governing the contract and the contractual rights of the parties, without the need for special stipulations. • The contracts are generally divided into four types: (1) real (arising from something done), (2) oral (arising from something said), (3) literal (arising from something written), and (4) consensual (arising from something agreed to). La. Civ. Code art. 1914. Cf. innominate contract.

nude contract. See NUDUM PACTUM.

onerous contract. Civil law. A contract in which each party is obligated to perform in exchange for each party's promise of performance. La. Civ. Code art. 1909. Cf. gratuitous contract.

option contract. See OPTION(2).

oral contract. See parol contract (1).

output contract. A contract in which a seller promises to supply and a buyer to buy all the goods or services that a seller produces during a specified period and at a set price. • The quantity term is measured by the seller's output. An output contract assures the seller of a market or outlet for the period of the contract. — Also termed en-tire-output contract. Cf. requirements contract. [Cases: Sales 71(4). C.J.S. Sales §§ 178–180.]

parol contract (p-<<schwa>>-rohlorpar-<<schwa>>l). 1. A contract or modification of a contract that is not in writing or is only partially in writing. — Also termed oral contract; parol agreement; (loosely) verbal contract. [Cases: Contracts 31, 238(2). C.J.S. Contracts §§ 68, 412–414.] 2. At common law, a contract not under seal, although it could be in writing. — Also termed informal contract; simple contract. See PAROL-EVIDENCE RULEE.

pay-or-play contract.A contract in which one party agrees to perform and the other agrees to pay for the promised performance even if performance is never demanded. • Pay-or-play contracts are usu. made in the entertainment industry.

performance contract. 1. A contract that requires a party to act personally and does not allow substitution. • People who provide unique personal services often make performance contracts. 2. A contract that allows the contractor to choose the means to achieve the end result. • The product's specifications may be loose and allow the contractor latitude in deciding how to perform. Cf. build-to-print contract.

personal contract. 1. A contract that binds a person but not that person's heirs or assignees because the contract requires a personal performance for which there is no adequate substitute. 2. A contract that binds a representative as an individual rather than binding the person or entity represented. • For instance, contracts made by a decedent's personal representative traditionally bind the representative, not the estate, unless expressly agreed otherwise. 3. A real-property-related contract that is treated as personal property, not as a substitute for the real property. • Ex-amples include oil-and-gas royalty contracts and property-insurance policies.

pignorative contract (pig-n<<schwa>>-ray-tiv).Civil law. A contract in which the seller of real property, instead of relinquishing possession of the property that is theoretically sold, gives the buyer a lien; a contract of pledge, hypothecation, or mortgage of realty. [Cases: Mortgages 31. C.J.S. Mortgages § 20.]

precontract. A contract that precludes a party from entering into a comparable agreement with someone else. • Historically, a precontract was usu. a promise to marry. It formed an impediment to marriage with any person other than the promisee. The legal impediment was extinguished and revived several times until it was finally abolished in 1752 by 26 Geo. 2, ch. 33, § 13. Cf. LETTER OF INTENT. [Cases: Contracts 25. C.J.S. Contracts § 60.]

principal contract.A contract giving rise to an accessory contract, as an agreement from which a secured obligation originates. Cf. accessory contract.

private contract.An agreement between private parties affecting only private rights.

procurement contract.A contract in which a government receives goods or services. • A procurement contract, including the bidding process, is subject to government regulation. See FEDERAL ACQUISITION REGULATION. — Also termed government contract. [Cases: Public Contracts 5. C.J.S. Public Administrative Law and Procedure §§ 7–9.]

public contract.A contract that, although it involves public funds, may be performed by private persons and may benefit them. [Cases: Public Contracts 1. C.J.S. Public Administrative Law and Procedure §§ 2–3, 6.]

quasi-contract. See implied-in-law contract.

real contract.Hist. A contract in which money or other property passes from one party to another; a contract requiring something more than mere consent, such as the lending of money or handing over of a thing. • This term, derived from Roman law, referred to contracts concerning both personal and real property. Real contracts in-cluded transactions in the form of commodatum, depositum, mutuum, and pignus. Cf. consensual contract.

“The essence of ...the real contracts, was that, at the time the agreement was made, one party, by delivering something belonging to him to the other party to the contract, imposed on that other an obligation to return the thing itself or, in the case of things intended to be consumed, an equivalent in kind. As the Roman lawyers ex-pressed it, the contractual obligation was created by something being handed over ....” R.W. Leage, Roman Private Law 292 (C.H. Ziegler ed., 2d ed. 1930).

“The term ‘real contract’ is in common use in the Civil law, and though not commonly used by judges or writers in the common law, nevertheless describes certain obligations enforced in England from very early times. A real contract is an obligation arising from the possession or transfer of a res.” Samuel Williston, A Treatise on the Law of Contracts § 8, at 19 (Walter H.E. Jaeger ed., 3d ed. 1957).

relative simulated contract.Civil law. A simulated contract that the parties intend to have some effects, but not necessarily those recited in the contract. La. Civ. Code art. 2027. See simulated contract.

requirements contract.A contract in which a buyer promises to buy and a seller to supply all the goods or services that a buyer needs during a specified period. • The quantity term is measured by the buyer's requirements. A requirements contract assures the buyer of a source for the period of the contract. Cf. output contract. [Cases: Sales 71(4). C.J.S. Sales §§ 178–180.]

retail installment contract.A contract for the sale of goods under which the buyer makes periodic payments and the seller retains title to or a security interest in the goods. — Also termed retail installment contract and security agreement; conditional sales contract. Cf. chattel mortgage under MORTGAGE. [Cases: Consumer Credit 4. C.J.S. Interest and Usury; Consumer Credit §§ 280, 284–293.]

satisfaction contract.A contract by which one party agrees to perform to the satisfaction of the other. — Also termed contract to satisfaction. [Cases: Contracts 282. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 561, 563–564.]

sealed contract.See contract under seal.

self-determination contract.Under the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act, an agreement by which the federal government provides funds to an Indian tribe and allows the tribe to plan and administer a program that would otherwise be administered by the federal government. 25 USCA § 450b(j). [Cases: Indians 7. C.J.S. Indians §§ 46–47.]

service contract. A contract to perform a service; esp., a written agreement to provide maintenance or repairs on a consumer product for a specified term. [Cases: Contracts 190; Sales 3.1. C.J.S. Contracts § 341; Sales §§ 3–4.]

severable contract. A contract that includes two or more promises each of which can be enforced separately, so that failure to perform one of the promises does not necessarily put the promisor in breach of the entire contract. — Also termed divisible contract; several contract. See SEVERABILITY CLAUSE. Cf. joint contract. [Cases: Contracts 137, 171. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 297, 349–354.]

shipment contract. A contract in which a seller bears the risk of damage to the items sold only until they are brought to the place of shipment. • If a contract for the sale of goods does not address the terms of delivery, it is presumed to be a shipment contract. UCC §§ 2-319, 2-504, 2-509. Cf. destination contract. [Cases: Sales 201(4). C.J.S. Sales §§ 224–227.]

“In the jargon of commercial lawyers, a contract that requires or authorizes the seller to send the goods to the buyer but does not require that he deliver them at any particular destination is called a ‘shipment contract.’ Generally, in shipment contracts, risk of loss passes to the buyer at the point of shipment, which is also the point of ‘delivery,’ while in ‘destination contracts’ (seller must deliver at a particular destination) risk passes upon seller’s tender at destination.” 1 James J. White & Robert S. Summers, Uniform Commercial Code § 3-5, at 128–29 (4th ed. 1995).

simple contract. See parol contract (2).

simulated contract. Civil law. A contract that, by mutual agreement, does not express the true intent of the parties. La. Civ. Code art. 2025. • A simulated contract is absolute when the parties intend that the contract will impose no obligations; no obligations are enforceable on the parties by such a contract. A simulated contract is relative if the parties intend it to impose obligations different from those recited in the contract; the intended obligations are enforceable if all relevant conditions are met. A simulated contract may affect the rights of third parties. See action en déclaration de simulation under ACTION(4). — Also termed simulation. [Cases: Fraudulent Con-veyances 1, 24(1).] special contract. 1. See contract under seal. 2. A contract with peculiar provisions that are not ordinarily found in contracts relating to the same subject matter. 3. See express contract.

specialty contract. See contract under seal.

standard-form contract. A usu. preprinted contract containing set clauses, used repeatedly by a business or within a particular industry with only slight additions or modifications to meet the specific situation. • Because stan-dard-form contracts usu. favor the drafting party, they can amount to adhesion contracts. Courts offset the drafting party's advantage by construing the contract in the light least favorable to the drafting party. — Also termed standardized contract. See adhesion contract. [Cases: Contracts 1. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 2, 9, 12.]

“[U]niformity of terms in contracts typically recurring in a business enterprise is an important factor in the exact calculation of risks. Risks that are difficult to calculate can be excluded altogether. Unforeseeable contingencies affecting performance, such as strikes, fire, and transportation difficulties can be taken care of... Standardized contracts have thus become an important means of excluding or controlling the [‘irrational factors’ that could persuade a court or jury to decide against a powerful defendant].” Friedrich Kessler, Contracts of Adhesion — Some Thoughts About Freedom of Contract, 43 Colum. L. Rev. 629, 631–32 (1943).

statutory contract. A contract for which a statute prescribes certain terms. • Statutes often govern the contracts made by public entities, but also some by private persons. For example, a statute may define and set minimum standards for terms in home-improvement contracts.

stock-option contract. A negotiable instrument that gives the holder the right to buy or sell — for a specified price within a fixed time limit — a certain number of shares of the corporation's stock. See STOCK OPTION. [Cases: Corporations 116. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 233–240, 242.]

subcontract. A contract made by a party to another contract for carrying out the other contract, or a part of it.

subscription contract. See SUBSCRIPTION(3).

substituted contract. A contract made between parties to an earlier contract so that the new one takes the place of and discharges the earlier one. • A substituted contract differs from a novation (as “novation” is traditionally defined) in that the latter requires the substitution for the original obligor of a third person not a party to the original agreement; when the obligee accepts the third party, the agreement is immediately discharged. In contrast to both substituted contract and novation, an executory accord does not immediately discharge an obligation; rather, the obligation is discharged on performance, often by a third person, rather than the original obligor. Cf. NOVATION; ACCORD(2). [Cases: Accord and Satisfaction 1; Novation 1, 4. C.J.S. Accord and Satisfaction §§ 2–17, 25–33; Novation §§ 2–4, 9–16, 29.]

“[A] substituted contract immediately discharges the prior claim which is merged into the new agreement. Consequently, in the absence of an express agreement to the contrary, the original claim can no longer be enforced. In the event of a breach, any action would have to be brought on the substituted agreement.... The concept of ‘substituted contract’ was created largely to circumvent the unsatisfactory rules that until recently governed executory accords. Now that these rules have been modernized, the next step should be the reabsorption of the substituted contract into the executory accord.... [T]he untidy distinction between executory accords and substituted contracts should not be allowed to complicate litigation about routine claim settlements.” John D. Calamari & Joseph M. Perillo, The Law of Contracts § 21.6, at 803 (4th ed. 1998).

synallagmatic contract (sin-schwa-lag-mat-ik). [fr. Greek synallagma “mutual agreement”] Civil law. A contract in which the parties obligate themselves reciprocally, so that the obligation of each party is correlative to the obligation of the other. La. Civ. Code arts. 1908, 1911.

- A synallagmatic contract is characterized by correlative obligations, whereas a commutative contract is characterized by correlative performances. The term synallagmatic contract is essentially the civil-law equivalent of the common law's bilateral contract. Cf. commutative contract.

tacit contract. A contract in which conduct takes the place of written or spoken words in the offer or acceptance (or both). [Cases: Contracts 27. C.J.S. Contracts § 6.]

take-it-or-leave-it contract. See adhesion contract.

take-or-pay contract. A contract requiring the buyer to either purchase and receive a minimum amount of a product (“take”) or pay for this minimum without taking immediate delivery (“pay”).

- These contracts are often used in the energy and oil-and-gas businesses. [Cases: Electricity 11(3); Gas 13(1).]

third-party-beneficiary contract. A contract that directly benefits a third party and that gives the third party a right to sue any of the original contracting parties for breach. [Cases: Contracts 187. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 612–622, 624–629.]

unconscionable contract. See unconscionable agreement under AGREEMENT.

unenforceable contract. A valid contract that, because of some technical defect, cannot be fully enforced; a contract that has some legal consequences but that may not be enforced in an action for damages or specific performance in the face of certain defenses, such as the statute of frauds. Cf. illegal contract; void contract. — Also termed agreement of imperfect obligation. [Cases: Contracts 1, 138(1). C.J.S. Contracts §§ 2–3, 9, 12, 280–281, 283–284, 290, 292, 300.]

“Courts are ... fond of condemning the unenforceable agreement as ‘illegal.’ This is misleading insofar as it suggests that some penalty is necessarily imposed on one of the parties, apart from the court's refusal to enforce the agreement. In some cases, the conduct that renders the agreement unenforceable is also a crime, but this is not necessarily or even usually so. It is therefore preferable to attribute unenforceability to grounds of public policy rather than to ‘illegality.’” E. Allan Farnsworth, Contracts § 5.1, at 323 (3d ed. 1999).

unilateral contract. A contract in which only one party makes a promise or undertakes a performance; a contract in which no promisor receives a promise as consideration for the promise given. [Cases: Contracts 1. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 2–3, 9, 12.]

“[M]any unilateral contracts are in reality gratuitous promises enforced for good reason with no element of bar-gain.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 126 (3d ed. 1981).

valid contract. A contract that is fully operative in accordance with the parties' intent. — Also termed valid agreement. [Cases: Contracts 1. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 2–3, 9, 12.]

variable annuity contract. Securities. An annuity whose payments vary according to how well the fund (usu. made up of common stocks) that backs it is performing. SEC Rule 0-1(e)(1) (17 CFR § 270.0-1(e)(1)). See variable annuity under ANNUITY.

verbal contract. See parol contract (1).

voidable contract. A contract that can be affirmed or rejected at the option of one of the parties; a contract that is void as to the wrongdoer but not void as to the party wronged, unless that party elects to treat it as void. [Cases: Contracts 98, 136. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 137, 139–140, 145, 153–155, 157, 171, 173–174, 185, 188, 280–281, 286, 296.]

void contract. 1. A contract that is of no legal effect, so that there is really no contract in existence at all. • A contract may be void because it is technically defective, contrary to public policy, or illegal. Cf. illegal contract; unenforceable contract. [Cases: Contracts 98, 136. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 137, 139–140, 145, 153–155, 157, 171, 173–174, 185, 188, 280–281, 286, 296.]

“Strictly speaking, a ‘void contract’ is a contradiction in terms; for the words describe a state of things in which, despite the intention of the parties, no contract has been made. Yet the expression, however faulty, is a compendious way of putting a case in which there has been the outward semblance without the reality of contract.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 18 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

“A valid contract is, of course, simply a contract of full force and effect, not vitiated in any way. A so-called void contract, on the other hand, is really a contradiction in terms inasmuch as a contract has already been defined in terms applicable only to a valid contract. However, the term is convenient and is universally used. For purposes of exposition, it is convenient to treat void contracts as falling, broadly speaking, into main categories. On the one hand, are cases where one of the normal requirements for the creation of a contract is absent, while, on the other hand, are cases where all the normal requirements are satisfied, but the contract is void because the law disapproves of its purpose or the terms by which it seeks to achieve that purpose. Typical examples of contracts which are void because one of the normal requirements is absent are contracts in which the acceptance of an offer has not been communicated or in which a promise is given gratuitously. Typical examples of contracts which are void because of their terms or objects are wagering contracts, and contracts prejudicial to family relations." P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 36–37 (3d ed. 1981).

2. A contract that has been fully performed. — Also termed discharged contract.

"Not only is the term 'void contract' in itself technically inaccurate, but a contract is sometimes said to be void, not because it was destitute of legal effect from its commencement, but because it has been fully performed, and so has ceased to have legal operation. It would be more proper to describe such a contract as 'discharged.'" William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 20 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

3. Loosely, a voidable contract.

"Again the word 'void' has been used, even by judges and the framers of statutes, where 'voidable' is meant. One illustration will suffice. By 17 Geo. III, c. 50, failure to pay certain duties at an auction is stated to make a bidding 'null and void to all intents,' but this does not entitle a purchaser who has repented of his bargain to avoid the contract by his own wrong, that is by refusal to pay the statutory duty. The contract is voidable at the option of the party who has not broken the condition imposed by law." William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 20–21 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

voluntary contract. See gratuitous contract (2).

wagering contract. 1. A contract the performance of which depends on the happening of an uncertain event, made entirely for sport. See gambling contract. Cf. aleatory contract. [Cases: Gaming 17(1).]

"Although wagering and gaming agreements were generally enforceable under the English common law, they were condemned in most American states, in part because they were thought to encourage shiftlessness, poverty, and immorality, and in part because they were regarded as too frivolous to be worthy of judicial attention. Irwin v. Williar, 110 U.S. 499 (1884) ('In England it is held that the contracts, although wagers, were not void at common law, ... while generally, in this country, all wagering contracts are held to be illegal and void as against public policy.')" E. Allan Farnsworth, Contracts § 5.2 n.4, at 326–27 (3d ed. 1999).

2. A contract in which an uncertain event affects or results from a business transaction. • With this type of wagering contract, a businessperson is protected from a trade risk.

written contract. A contract whose terms have been reduced to writing.

"Written contracts are also commonly signed, but a written contract may consist of an exchange of correspondence, of a letter written by the promisee and assented to by the promisor without signature, or even of a memorandum or printed document not signed by either party.

Statutes relating to written contracts are often expressly limited to contracts signed by one or both parties. Whether such a limitation is to be implied when not explicit depends on the purpose and context.” Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 95 cmt. c (1979) (citations omitted).

CONTRACTS CLAUSE

Contracts Clause. The clause of the U.S. Constitution prohibiting states from passing a law that would impair private contractual obligations. • The Supreme Court has generally interpreted this clause so that states can regulate private contractual obligations if the regulation is reasonable and necessary to serve an important public purpose. U.S. Const. art. I, § 10, cl. 1. — Also termed Contract Clause; Obligation of Contracts Clause. [Cases: Constitutional Law 113–185. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 277–389.]

CONTRACT-SPECIFICATION DEFENSE

contract-specification defense. An affirmative defense that immunizes a contractor from liability for a defect in a product when the contractor has manufactured or performed according to detailed contractual orders. • The defense applies to specialized, single-use components and protects a component supplier from claims of negligent design if the component conforms to the contractual specifications — unless the specifications are obviously dangerous. Under modern notions of strict liability, courts have increasingly rejected this defense. Cf. GOVERNMENT-CONTRACTOR DEFENSE; GOVERNMENT-AGENCY DEFENSE .

CONTRACTUS

contractus (k<<schwa>>n-trak-t<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Roman law. A contract; an agreement between two or more parties, usu. to create an actionable bond between them. See CONTRAHERE.

“The texts of the Roman Law do not supply a definition of contract. The words contractus — contrahere — like ‘contract’ in English, are used in various senses, sometimes wider, sometimes narrower. Labeo gives contractus the meaning of a reciprocal obligation, such as purchase and sale, hire, partnership. But when the Romans speak of obligation arising from contract, they mean obligations arising from convention or agreement. In Roman law it was far from being the case that all agreements which might be expected to produce a legal obligation did so.” R.W. Lee, The Elements of Roman Law 285 (4th ed. 1956).

CONTRACTUS BONAE FIDEI, VEL STRICTI JURIS

contractus bonae fidei, vel stricti juris (k<<schwa>>n-trak-t<<schwa>>s boh-nee fi-dee-I, vel strik-tljoor-is). [Latin] Roman law. Contracts of good faith or of strict law; a contract requiring that the parties perform their duties in good faith. • In an action brought on a contractus bonae fidei, the plaintiff had to assert that he had not acted in bad faith. All consensual contracts were considered contractus bonae fidei. Essentially, then, the phrase was typically used when a remedy was being sought for a breach. Judges enforced contracts of good faith (e.g., contracts of sale) according to the requirements of good faith and contracts of strict law (e.g., stipulations) according to their strict terms. — Sometimes shortened to contractus bonae fidei.

CONTRACT ZONING

contract zoning. See ZONING.

CONTRADICTORY JUDGMENT

CONTRADICTORY MOTION

contradictory motion. See MOTION(1).

CONTRA EXECUTIONEM

contra executionem (kon-tr<<schwa>> ek-si-kyoo-shee-oh-n<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] Hist. Against execution. • The phrase appeared in reference to the presumption in favor of a defendant's objections to the manner of execution against the defendant's property.

CONTRAFACTIO

contrafactio (kon-tr<<schwa>>-fak-shee-oh). [Law Latin] Hist. The act of counterfeiting. • The word appeared frequently in the phrase contrafactio sigilli regis (“counterfeiting the king's seal”).

CONTRA FIDEM TABULARUM NUPTIALIUM

contra fidem tabularum nuptialium (kon-tr<<schwa>> fl-d<<schwa>>m tab-y<<schwa>>-lair-<<schwa>>m n<<schwa>>p-shee-ay-lee-<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] Scots law. Against the provisions of the marriage contract. • The phrase usu. referred to antenuptial contracts.

CONTRA FORMAM COLLATIONIS

contra formam collationis (kon-tr<<schwa>> for-m<<schwa>>m k<<schwa>>-lay-shee-oh-nis). [Latin “against the form of a collation”] Hist. A writ to regain lands given to a religious society in exchange for perpetual alms. • The writ was usu. sought by an heir of the person who had given the land away.

CONTRA FORMAM FEOFFMENTI

contra formam feoffmenti (kon-tr<<schwa>> for-m<<schwa>>m feef-men-tl). [Latin “contrary to the form of the feoffment”] Hist. A writ that commanded a landowner to stop demanding from a tenant more services than those included in the tenant's deed to the land. — Also spelled contra formam feoffamenti.

“Contra formam feoffamenti is a writ that lies where a man before the statute of quia emptores terrarum, made 18 Ed. 1, infeoffed another by deed to do certain service; if the feoffor or his heirs distrain him to do other service than is comprised in the deed, then the tenant shall have this writ, commanding him not to distrain him to do other service than is comprised in the deed.” Termes de la Ley 116 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

CONTRAVENTION

contravention (kon-tr<<schwa>>-ven-sh<<schwa>>n).1. An act violating a legal condition or obligation; esp., an entail heir's act that conflicts with the entail provision. 2. French law. A criminal breach of a law, treaty, or agreement; a minor violation of the law. • A contravention is traditionally punishable by peines de police, usu. a fine not exceeding 15 francs and imprisonment not exceeding three days. See public-welfare offense under OFFENSE(1).

“We might get [terminological] help from the practice of Continental Europe in which three classes of punishable offenses are maintained — crimes, delicts, and contraventions. The last word is used for those minor violations of regulations, all of them necessary enough for public safety and convenience, which are so numerous and so detailed in our lives. It is a convenient term and is widely used in the United States for just such acts, but it has not yet been made official. The Continental practice has the advantage of using the word crimes only for really serious offenses, which is in conformity with popular feeling on the subject.” Max Radin, The Law and You 92 (1948).

3. Scots law. An action brought for breach of a peace bond. See LAWBURROWS. 4. Hist. Scots law. An act committed in violation of a legal condition or obligation, esp. one done contrary to a deed by an heir to an en-tailment.

CONTRACTATAE

contractatae (kon-trek-tay-tee). [Latin “things meddled with”] Scots law. Things that a person (such as a thief) either improperly used or tampered with.

CONTRACTATIO

contractatio (kon-trek-tay-shee-oh), n.[fr. Latin contractare “to touch or handle”] Hist. The act of laying hands on another's property with the intent of taking, misappropriating, or misusing it. • This term implied a greater culpability than simply taking property without the owner's permission and, under Roman law, was an element of theft (furtum). Pl. contractationes (kon-trek-tay-shee-oh-nee-z).

CONTRIBUTING CAUSE

contributing cause. See CAUSE(1).

CONTRIBUTING TO THE DELINQUENCY OF A MINOR

contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The offense of an adult's engaging in conduct involving a minor — or in the presence of a minor — likely to result in delinquent conduct. •

Examples include encouraging a minor to shoplift, enabling underage drinking, and soliciting sex for money. — Often shortened to contributing to delinquency. See JUVENILE DELINQUENCY. Cf. IMPAIRING THE MORALS OF A MINOR. [Cases: Infants 13. C.J.S. Infants §§ 5, 92–93, 95–98.]

CONTRIBUTIO LUCRI ET DAMNI

contributio lucri et damni (kon-tri-byoo-shee-oh loo-krI et dam-nl). [Latin] Scots law. Distribution of or sharing in profit and loss. • The phrase referred to one test for determining whether a partnership existed.

CONTRIBUTION

contribution. 1. The right that gives one of several persons who are liable on a common debt the ability to recover ratably from each of the others when that one person discharges the debt for the benefit of all; the right to demand that another who is jointly responsible for a third party's injury supply part of what is required to compensate the third party. — Also termed right of contribution. [Cases: Contribution 1–6. C.J.S. Contribution §§ 2–7, 9–24, 29.] 2. A tortfeasor's right to collect from others responsible for the same tort after the tortfeasor has paid more than his or her proportionate share, the shares being determined as a percentage of fault. [Cases: Contribution 5–7. C.J.S. Contribution §§ 5–10, 12–24, 29.] 3. The actual payment by a joint tortfeasor of a proportionate share of what is due. Cf. INDEMNITY. 4. WAR CONTRIBUTION.

CONTRIBUTION AGREEMENT

contribution agreement. See SUPPORT AGREEMENT.

CONTRIBUTION BAR

contribution bar. Preclusion of a defendant having contribution rights against other defendants, who have settled their dispute with the plaintiff, from seeking contribution from them. • The bar is usu. allowed in exchange for a credit against any judgment the plaintiff obtains against the nonsettling defendant. [Cases: Contribution 8. C.J.S. Contribution §§ 26–31.]

CONTRIBUTION CLAUSE

contribution clause. See COINSURANCE CLAUSE.

CONTRIBUTIONE FACIENDA

contribu-tione facienda (kon-tri-byoo-shee-oh-nee fay-shee-en-d<<schwa>>). [Latin “writ for making contribu-tion”] Hist. A writ to compel a tenant in common to contribute to a fellow tenant who has paid more than the tenant's share of a sum for which all the tenants are liable.

“Contribu-tione facienda is a writ that lieth in case where more are bound to one thing, & one is put to the whole burden.... If tenents in comon or joynt, hold a mill (pro indiviso) & equally take the profits therof, the mill falling to decay, & one or more of them refusing to contribute toward the reparation therof, the rest shall have this writ....” John Cowell, The Interpreter (1607).

CONTRIBUTION MARGIN

contribution margin. The difference between a product's selling price and its cost of production. • The contribution margin indicates the amount of funds available for profit and payment of fixed costs.

CONTRIBUTORY

contributory (k<<schwa>>n-trib-y<<schwa>>-tor-ee), adj. 1. Tending to bring about a result. 2. (Of a pension fund) receiving contributions from both the employer and the employees. [Cases: Pensions 101–107. C.J.S. Pensions and Retirement Plans and Benefits §§ 53–68, 121–129.]

contributory, n. 1. One who contributes or who has a duty to contribute. 2. A contributing factor. 3. Hist. A person who, as a result of being or representing a past or present member of a corporation, is liable to contribute to the corporation's debts upon its winding up.

CONTRIBUTORY INFRINGEMENT

contributory infringement. See INFRINGEMENT.

CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE

contributory negligence. See NEGLIGENCE.

CONTRIBUTORY-NEGLIGENCE DOCTRINE

contributory-negligence doctrine. Torts. The principle that completely bars a plaintiff's recovery if the damage suffered is partly the plaintiff's own fault. • Most states have abolished this doctrine and have adopted instead a comparative-negligence scheme. See NEGLIGENCE. Cf. COMPARATIVE-NEGLIGENCE DOCTRINE. [Cases: Negligence 547. C.J.S. Negligence §§ 293, 297.]

CONTRIBUTORY PENSION PLAN

contributory pension plan. See PENSION PLAN.

CONTROL

control, n. The direct or indirect power to direct the management and policies of a person or entity, whether through ownership of voting securities, by contract, or otherwise; the power or authority to manage, direct, or oversee <the principal exercised control over the agent>.

superintending control. The general supervisory control that a higher court in a jurisdiction has over the administrative affairs of a lower court within that jurisdiction. [Cases: Courts 204.]

working control. The effective control of a corporation by a person or group who owns less than 50% of the stock. [Cases: Corporations 174. C.J.S. Corporations § 307.]

control, vb. 1. To exercise power or influence over <the judge controlled the proceedings>. 2. To regulate or govern <by law, the budget office controls expenditures>. 3. To have a controlling interest in <the five shareholders controlled the company>.

CONTROL GROUP

control group. The persons with authority to make decisions on a corporation's behalf.

CONTROL-GROUP TEST

control-group test. A method of determining whether the attorney–client privilege protects communications made by corporate employees, by providing that those communications are protected only if made by an employee who is a member of the group with authority to direct the corporation's actions as a result of that communication. • The U.S. Supreme Court rejected the control-group test in Upjohn Co. v. United States, 449 U.S. 383, 101 S.Ct. 677 (1981). Cf. SUBJECT-MATTER TEST. [Cases: Witnesses 199(2). C.J.S. Witnesses § 325.]

CONTROLLED COMPANY

controlled company. See COMPANY.

CONTROLLED CORPORATE GROUPS

controlled corporate groups. See CONTROLLED GROUP.

CONTROLLED CORPORATION

controlled corporation. See CORPORATION.

CONTROLLED DEBATE

controlled debate. See DEBATE.

CONTROLLED FOREIGN CORPORATION

controlled foreign corporation. See CORPORATION.

CONTROLLED GROUP

controlled group. Tax. Two or more corporations whose stock is substantially held by five or fewer persons. • The Internal Revenue Code subjects these entities (such as parent–subsidiary or brother–sister groups) to special rules for computing tax liability. — Also termed controlled corporate groups. IRC (26 USCA) §§ 851(c)(3), 1563(a). [Cases: Internal Revenue 3870–3880. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 17–18, 638.]

CONTROLLED-SECURITIES-OFFERING DISTRIBUTION

controlled-securities-offering distribution. See securities-offering distribution (1) under DISTRIBUTION.

CONTROLLER

controller. See COMPTROLLER.

CONTROLLING INTEREST

controlling interest. See INTEREST(2).

CONTROLLING PERSON

controlling person. See CONTROL PERSON.

CONTROLLING SHAREHOLDER

controlling shareholder. See SHAREHOLDER.

CONTROL PERSON

control person. Securities. A person who has actual control or significant influence over the issuer of securities, as by directing corporate policy. • The control person is subject to many of the same requirements applicable to the sale of securities by the issuer. — Also termed controlling person. [Cases: Securities Regulation 35.15, 60.40. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 105–106, 218.]

“[T]he question of who is a control person is highly factual and is not dependent upon ownership of any specific percentage. For example, it has been held that someone owning eight percent of a company's stock was not a control person...” 1 Thomas Lee Hazen, The Law of Securities Regulation § 4.24, at 279 (3d ed. 1995).

CONTROL PREMIUM

control premium. See PREMIUM(3).

CONTROL STOCK

control stock. Stock belonging to a control person at the time of a given transaction. — Also termed control shares.

CONTROL TEST

control test. See IRRESISTIBLE-IMPULSE TEST.

CONTROL THEORY

control theory. The theory that people will engage in criminal behavior unless certain personally held social controls (such as a strong investment in conventional, legitimate activities or a belief that criminal behavior is morally wrong) are in place to prevent them from doing so. Cf. ROUTINE-ACTIVITIES THEORY Y; RA-TIONAL-CHOICE THEORY; STRAIN THEORY.

CONTROL-YOUR-KID LAW

control-your-kid law. See PARENTAL-RESPONSIBILITY STATUTE.

CONTROVER

controver (k<<schwa>>n-troh-v<<schwa>>r). Hist. A person who concocts false news.

CONTROVERSY

controversy. 1. A disagreement or a dispute, esp. in public. 2. A justiciable dispute.

public controversy. A controversy involving issues that are debated publicly and that have substantial ramifications for persons other than those engaged in it. • A participant in a public controversy may be deemed a public figure for purposes of a defamation suit arising from the controversy. See PUBLIC FIGURE. [Cases: Libel and Slander 48(1). C.J.S. Libel and Slander; Injurious Falsehood §§ 91–92, 96, 98, 102–104.]

separable controversy. A claim that is separate and independent from the other claims being asserted in a suit. • This term is most often associated with the statute that permits an entire case to be removed to federal court if one of the claims, being separate and independent from the others, presents a federal question that is within the jurisdiction of the federal courts. 28 USCA § 1441(c). [Cases: Removal of Cases 48–61. C.J.S. Removal of Causes §§ 134–140.]

3. Constitutional law. A case that requires a definitive determination of the law on the facts alleged for the adjudication of an actual dispute, and not merely a hypothetical, theoretical, or speculative legal issue. — Also termed (in senses 2 & 3) actual controversy. See CASE-OR-CONTROVERSY REQUIREMENT. [Cases: Action 6; Federal Courts 12.1. C.J.S. Actions §§ 38–45.] “What is a ‘case or controversy’ that is justiciable in the federal courts? The answer of Chief Justice Hughes is classic if cryptic. He said: ‘A controversy in this sense must be one that is appropriate for judicial determination. A justiciable controversy is thus distinguished from a difference or dispute of a hypothetical character; from one that is academic or moot. The controversy must be definite and concrete, touching the legal relations of parties having adverse legal interests. It must be a real and substantial controversy admitting of specific relief through a decree of a conclusive character, as distinguished from an opinion advising what the law would be upon a hypothetical state of facts.’ [Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Haworth, 300 U.S. 227, 240–41, 57 S.Ct. 461, 464 (1937) (Hughes, C.J.)] Unfortunately, this definition, though often quoted, turns upon labels that the Court had used in the past to describe cases before it, and the labels themselves are ‘elastic, inconstant, and imprecise.’ ” Charles Alan Wright, The Law of Federal Courts § 12, at controvert (kon-tr<<schwa>>-v<<schwa>>rt or kon-tr<<schwa>>-v<<schwa>>rt), vb. To dispute or contest; esp., to deny (as an allegation in a pleading) or oppose in argument <the allegations in Peck's pleadings were never adequately controverted>.

60–61 (5th ed. 1994).

CONTROVERT

CONTUBERNIUM

contubernium (kon-t[y]uu-b<<schwa>>r-nee-<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Roman law. A marriage-like union between slaves. • Contubernium was recognized in the United States. Before slavery was abolished, only one Southern court gave a marriage between slaves legal effect upon manumission. See Girod v. Lewis, 6 Mart. (O.S.) 559, 559–60 (La. 1819). In 1825, the Louisiana legislature passed a law expressly making such marriages invalid.

“No such thing as marriage among slaves was, or could be, recognized by the law. As slaves were wholly subject to the disposal of their masters, no unions having the character of permanence or sacredness could exist among them: such a union, if it existed, would abridge the master's power of absolute control. Among slaves there could only be contubernium, cohabitation of the sexes for a longer or shorter time, but no legal matrimonium.” James Hadley, Introduction to Roman Law 111 (1881).

“There was ... among slaves a permitted cohabitation called contubernium, but it brought with it no civil rights.... [C]ohabitation, ... in a state of slavery, was not marriage, or evidence of marriage. It conferred no rights upon the offspring, and created no legal disabilities on the part of the father from forming a valid marriage, whenever he became in a condition which would authorize him to contract one.” Adrienne D. Davis, The Private Law of Race and Sex: An Antebellum Perspective, 51 Stan. L. Rev. 221, 245 (1999).

CONTUMACE CAPIENDO

contumace capiendo. See DE CONTUMACE CAPIENDO.

CONUBIUM

conubium (k<<schwa>>-n[y]oo-bee-<<schwa>>m), n.[fr. Latin con “together” + nubere “to marry”] Roman law. 1. The legal capacity to wed. 2. The collection of rights that accompany a marriage between persons who have the capacity to marry. — Also spelled connubium. — Also termed jus connubii. See CONCUBINATUS; JUSTAE NUPTIAE.

“The word connubium denotes properly the right to intermarry with Roman citizens; and hence to contract a Roman marriage, according to the peculiar forms and with the peculiar incidents and effects of marriage between Roman citizens. Chief among these incidents or effects was the patria potestas, or life-long control of the father over his children ... which was among the most remarkable peculiarities of the Roman system. In general, con-nubium embraces the peculiar rights of Roman citizens, so far as they pertain to family relations.” James Hadley, Introduction to Roman Law 116 (1881).

CONUSANCE

conusance (kon-y<<schwa>>-z<<schwa>>nts).Hist. 1. Cognizance; jurisdiction. • The word conusance is actually an archaic form of cognizance. See COGNIZANCE(1); CLAIM OF COGNIZANCE. 2.JUDICIAL NOTICE. 3. An acknowledgment (of a debt, act, or opposing claim). • Examples of conusance include an acknowledgment in replevin that the defendant took the sued-for goods, or an acknowledgment in a land transfer (by fine) that the grantee is entitled to the land. See FINE(1).

CONUSANT

CONVENING ORDER

convening order.Military law. An instrument that creates a court-martial. • The convening order specifies (1) the type of court-martial and its time and place, (2) the names of the members and the trial and defense counsel, (3) the name of the military judge, if one has been detailed, and (4) if necessary, the authority by which the court-martial has been created. [Cases: Military Justice 879.1.]

CONVENTICLE

conventicle (k<<schwa>>n-ven-t<<schwa>>-k<<schwa>>l). [fr. Latin conventiculum “small assembly”] 1. An assembly of a clandestine or unlawful character. 2. An assembly for religious worship; esp., a secret meeting for worship not sanctioned by law. 3. A place where such meetings are held.

CONVENTIO

conventio (k<<schwa>>n-ven-shee-oh). [fr. Latin convenire “to come together”] 1.Eccles. law. The act of con-vening the parties to an action by summoning the defendant. 2.Hist. An agreement or convention; an agreement between two or more persons respecting a legal relation between them. See CONVENTION(1).

“Conventio is a word much used both in Ancient and Modern Law-pleadings, for an Agreement or Covenant.” Thomas Blount, Nomo-Lexicon: A Law-Dictionary (1670).

CONVENTION

convention. 1. An agreement or compact, esp. one among nations; a multilateral treaty <the Geneva Convention>. See TREATY. [Cases: Treaties 1.C.J.S. Treaties § 2.] 2. A special deliberative assembly elected for the purpose of framing, revising, or amending a constitution. See CONSTITUTION (1). — Also termed constitutional convention. [Cases: Constitutional Law 8, 10. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 5, 8–9.] 3. An assembly or meeting of members belonging to an organization or having a common objective <an ABA convention>. — Also termed conference. 4.Parliamentary law. A deliberative assembly that consists of delegates elected or appointed from subordinate or constituent organizations within a state or national organization, or elected directly from the organization's membership or from defined geographic or other constituencies into which the membership is grouped, and that usu. exercises the organization's highest policymaking authority . — Also termed assembly; congress; convocation; delegate assembly; general assembly. See HOUSE OF DELEGATES . 5.Parliamentary law. A session of a convention (sense 4), consisting of a series of consecutive meetings separated by short recesses or adjournments, often during a convention (sense 3) that includes educa-tional and social programs for the benefit of other members in addition to the delegates. 6. A generally accepted rule or practice; usage or custom <the court dispensed with the convention of having counsel approach the bench>.

CONVENTIONAL

conventional,adj.1. Customary; orthodox; traditional <conventional motion practice>.2. Depending on, or arising from, the agreement of the parties, as distinguished from something arising by law <conventional subrogation>.3. Arising by treaty or convention <conventional international law>.

CONVENTIONAL CUSTOM

conventional custom.See CUSTOM.

CONVENTIONAL INTEREST

conventional interest.See INTEREST(3).

CONVENTIONALISM

conventionalism. A jurisprudential conception of legal practice and tradition holding that law is a matter of respecting and enforcing legal and social rules.

CONVENTIONAL LAW

conventional law. A rule or system of rules agreed on by persons for the regulation of their conduct toward one another; law constituted by agreement as having the force of special law between the parties, by either supplementing or replacing the general law of the land. • The most important example is conventional international law, but there are many lesser examples such as rules and regulations of a country club or professional association, or the rules of golf, basketball, or any other game. — Also termed (in international law) treaty-made law; treaty-created law; treaty law. See CONVENTION(1).

CONVENTUS

conventus (k<<schwa>>n-ven-t<<schwa>>s), n. [Latin] 1. An assembly. • Conventus magnatum vel procerum (“the assembly of the nobles”) was an ancient name for Parliament. 2. CONVENTUS JURIDICUS. Pl. conventus.

CONVENTUS JURIDICUS

conventus juridicus (k<<schwa>>n-ven-t<<schwa>>s juu-rid-i-k<<schwa>>s). [Latin “judicial assembly”] Roman law. A court session held by a provincial governor in the leading cities of the province. — Sometimes shortened to conventus.

CONVERSION

conversion, n. 1. The act of changing from one form to another; the process of being exchanged.

equitable conversion. A change in the nature of property so that real property is treated as personal property, or vice versa, in certain circumstances. • Equitable conversion is based on the maxim that equity regards as done that which ought to be done. The most common situation involves transferring real property as the parties to a contract intended before the seller experienced a change in circumstances, such as marriage or death, that could affect the property's ownership. When a contract is made, the buyer acquires equitable title to the property, and the seller retains legal title. But the seller's interest is treated as one in personal property rather than in real property because the seller's true interest is in the proceeds (usu. personal property such as cash); the legal title is security for the buyer's payment. Courts usu. apply the doctrine of equitable conversion to recognize the transfer of equitable title, including the right of possession, to the buyer when the contract was signed. The buyer then acquires legal title by performing under the contract. [Cases: Conversion 1. C.J.S. Conversion §§ 2–4.]

forced conversion. The conversion of a convertible security, after a call for redemption, when the value of the security that it may be converted to is greater than the amount that will be received if the holder permits the security to be redeemed.

2. Tort & criminal law. The wrongful possession or disposition of another's property as if it were one's own; an act or series of acts of willful interference, without lawful justification, with an item of property in a manner inconsistent with another's right, whereby that other person is deprived of the use and possession of the property. [Cases: Trover and Conversion 1. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion § 1, 5.] — convert, vb. — conversionary, adj. "There are three distinct methods by which one man may deprive another of his property, and so be guilty of a conversion and liable in an action for trover — (1) by wrongly taking it, (2) by wrongly detaining it, and (3) by wrongly disposing of it. The term conversion was originally limited to the third of these cases. To convert goods meant to dispose of them, or make away with them, to deal with them, in such a way that neither owner nor wrongdoer had any further possession of them: for example, by consuming them, or by destroying them, or by selling them, or otherwise delivering them to some third person. Merely to take another's goods, however wrongfully, was not to convert them. Merely to detain them in defiance of the owner's title was not to convert them. The fact that conversion in its modern sense includes instances of all three modes in which a man may be wrongfully deprived of his goods, and not of one mode only, is the outcome of a process of historical development whereby, by means of legal fictions and other devices, the action of trover was enabled to extend its limits and appropriate the territories that rightly belonged to other and earlier forms of action." R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 94 (17th ed. 1977).

"By conversion of goods is meant any act in relation to goods which amounts to an exercise of dominion over them, inconsistent with the owner's right of property. It does not include mere acts of damage, or even an asportation which does not amount to a denial of the owner's right of property; but it does include such acts as taking possession, refusing to give up on demand, disposing of the goods to a third person, or destroying them." William Geldart, Introduction to English Law 143 (D.C.M. Yardley ed., 9th ed. 1984).

constructive conversion. Conversion consisting of an action that in law amounts to the appropriation of property. • Constructive conversion could be, for example, an appropriation that was initially lawful. [Cases: Trover and Conversion 6. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion §§ 35–38.]

conversion by detention. Conversion by detaining property in a way that is adverse to the owner or other lawful possessor. • The mere possession of property without title is not conversion. The defendant must have shown an intention to keep it in defiance of the owner or lawful possessor. [Cases: Trover and Conversion 6. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion §§ 35–38.]

conversion by estoppel. A judicial determination that a conversion has taken place — though in truth one has not — because a defendant is estopped from offering a defense. • This occurs, for example, under the traditional rule that a bailee is estopped from denying the bailor's title even if the bailor has no title to the chattel.

conversion by taking. Conversion by taking a chattel out of the possession of another with the intention of exercising a permanent or temporary dominion over it, despite the owner's entitlement to use it at all times. [Cases: Trover and Conversion 11. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion § 30.]

conversion by wrongful delivery. Conversion by depriving an owner of goods by delivering them to someone else so as to change the possession. [Cases: Carriers 93. C.J.S. Carriers § 408.]

conversion by wrongful destruction. Conversion by willfully consuming or otherwise destroying a chattel belonging to another person. [Cases: Trover and Conversion 12. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion § 20.]

conversion by wrongful disposition. Conversion by depriving an owner of goods by giving some other person a lawful title to them. [Cases: Trover and Conversion 10. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion §§ 31–34.]

direct conversion. The act of appropriating the property of another to one's own benefit, or to the benefit of another. • A direct conversion is per se unlawful, and the traditional requirements of demand and refusal of the property do not apply. [Cases: Trover and Conversion 3–5. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion §§ 8, 19, 21–30.]

fraudulent conversion. Conversion that is committed by the use of fraud, either in obtaining the property or in withholding it. [Cases: Trover and Conversion 3, 7. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion § 8.]

involuntary conversion. The loss or destruction of property through theft, casualty, or condemnation.

CONVEY

convey, vb. To transfer or deliver (something, such as a right or property) to another, esp. by deed or other writing; esp., to perform an act that is intended to create one or more property interests, regardless of whether the act is actually effective to create those interests.

CONVEYANCE

conveyance (k<<schwa>>n-vay-<<schwa>>nts), n.1. The voluntary transfer of a right or of property.

absolute conveyance. A conveyance in which a right or property is transferred to another free of conditions or qualifications (i.e., not as a security). Cf. conditional conveyance.

conditional conveyance. A conveyance that is based on the happening of an event, usu. payment for the property; a mortgage. Cf. absolute conveyance.

derivative conveyance. See secondary conveyance.

innocent conveyance. Hist. A leaseholder's conveyance of the leaseholder's property interest — that is, something less than a fee simple. • The conveyance is of an equitable interest. [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 74. C.J.S. Landlord and Tenant §§ 30, 53.]

mesne conveyance (meen). An intermediate conveyance; one occupying an intermediate position in the chain of title between the first grantee and the present holder.

original conveyance. See primary conveyance.

present conveyance. A conveyance made with the intent that it take effect at once rather than in the future.

primary conveyance. A conveyance that creates an estate. • Examples of primary conveyances include feoffment, gift, grant, lease, exchange, and partition. — Also termed original conveyance. Cf. secondary conveyance.

“Of conveyances by the common law, some may be called original, or primary conveyances; which are those by means whereof the benefit or estate is created or first arises: others are derivative or secondary; whereby the benefit or estate, originally created, is enlarged, restrained, transferred, or extinguished.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 309 (1766).

secondary conveyance. A conveyance that follows an earlier conveyance and that serves only to enlarge, confirm, alter, restrain, restore, or transfer the interest created by the primary conveyance. — Also termed derivative conveyance; derivative deed. Cf. primary conveyance.

voluntary conveyance. A conveyance made without valuable consideration, such as a deed in favor of a relative.

2. The transfer of a property right that does not pass by delivery of a thing or merely by agreement. 3. The transfer of an interest in real property from one living person to another, by means of an instrument such as a deed. 4. The document (usu. a deed) by which such a transfer occurs. [Cases: Deeds 3. C.J.S. Deeds §§ 1–8.] 5. A means of transport; a vehicle. 6. Bankruptcy. A transfer of an interest in real or personal property, including an assignment, a release, a monetary payment, or the creation of a lien or encumbrance. — Also termed (in sense 6) bond for deed. See FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE; PREFERENTIAL TRANSFER.

CONVEYANCER

conveyancer (k<<schwa>>n-vay-<<schwa>>n-s<<schwa>>r). A lawyer who specializes in real-estate transac-tions. • In England, a conveyancer is a solicitor or licensed conveyancer who examines title to real estate, prepares deeds and mortgages, and performs other functions relating to the transfer of real property.

CONVEYANCING

conveyancing (k<<schwa>>n-vay-<<schwa>>n-sing). The act or business of drafting and preparing legal in-struments, esp. those (such as deeds or leases) that transfer an interest in real property.

“Conveyancing is the art or science of preparing documents and investigating title in connection with the creation and assurance of interests in land. Despite its connection with the word ‘conveyance’, the term in practice is not limited to use in connection with old system title but is used without discrimination in the context of all types of title.” Peter Butt, Land Law 7 (2d ed. 1988).

“Conveyancing may be regarded as the application of the law of real property in practice.” Robert E. Megarry & M.P. Thompson, A Manual of the Law of Real Property 125 (6th ed. 1993).

CONVEYANCING COUNSEL

conveyancing counsel. Three to six lawyers who are appointed by the Lord Chancellor to assist the High Court of Justice with opinions in matters of property titles and conveyancing. — Also termed conveyancing counsel of the Supreme Court; (formerly) conveyancing counsel to the Court of Chancery.

An automatic delay in some states between the filing of divorce papers and the divorce hearing. [Cases: Divorce 146. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 209–210.] 4.Securities. A period (usu. at least 20 days) between the filing of a registration and the effective registration. 5. During a dispute, a period during which no action may be taken by either side. • In labor disputes, a statutory cooling-off period forbids employee strikes and employer lockouts.

COOLING TIME

cooling time.Criminal law. Time to recover cool blood after great excitement, stress, or provocation, so that one is considered able to contemplate, comprehend, and act with reference to the consequences that are likely to follow. See COOL BLOOD. [Cases: Homicide 669.]

“[O]ne who controls his temper time after time, following repeated acts of provocation, may have his emotion so bottled-up that the final result is an emotional explosion .... [I]n such a case the ‘cooling time’ begins to run not from earlier acts, but from ‘the last straw.’ ... As was the position in regard to the adequacy of the provocation, so the early holding was that the cooling time was a matter of law for the court.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 100 (3d ed. 1982).

COOL STATE OF BLOOD

cool state of blood. See COOL BLOOD.

CO-OP

[Cases: Husband and Wife 14; Joint Tenancy 1; Tenancy in Common 1. C.J.S. Estates § 19; Joint Tenancy §§ 2, 4, 7–9; Tenancy in Common §§ 2–5.] — coown, vb. — coownership, n.

COPA

COPA. abbr. CHILD ONLINE PROTECTION ACT.

COP A PLEA

cop a plea, vb. Slang. (Of a criminal defendant) to plead guilty to a lesser charge as a means to avoid standing trial for a more serious offense. See PLEA BARGAIN.

COPARCENARY

coparcenary (koh-pahr-s<<schwa>>-ner-ee), n. An estate that arises when two or more persons jointly inherit from one ancestor, the title and right of possession being shared equally by all. • Coparcenary was a form of coownership created by common-law rules of descent upon intestacy when two or more persons together constituted the decedent's heirs. Typically, this situation arose when the decedent was survived by no sons but by two or more daughters, so that the daughters took as coparceners. — Also termed parcenary; tenancy in coparcenary. — coparcenary, adj.

“Coparcenary is converted into separate ownership (i) by partition, or (ii) by the union in one parcener of all the shares, and it is converted into a tenancy in common if one parcener transfers her share to a stranger.” G.C. Cheshire, Modern Law of Real Property 553 (3d ed. 1933).

COPARCENER

coparcener (koh-pahr-s<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>r). A person to whom an estate descends jointly, and who holds it as an entire estate; a person who has become a concurrent owner as a result of descent. — Also termed parcener; (archaically) coparticeps.

“Coparceners constitute a single heir, and they occupy a position intermediate between joint tenants and tenants in common. Like joint tenants they have unity of title, interest and possession; like tenants in common, their estate is not subject to the doctrine of survivorship, and if there are three coparceners and one dies, her share passes separately to her heirs or devisee, not to the survivors, though the unity of possession continues. It follows that unity of time is not necessary to constitute coparcenary, for if a man has two daughters to whom his estate descends and one dies leaving a son, such son and the surviving daughter will be coparceners." G.C. Cheshire, Modern Law of Real Property 553 (3d ed. 1933).

COPARTICEPS

coparticeps (koh-pahr-t<<schwa>>-seps). [fr. Latin particeps "sharing"] See COPARCENER.

COPARTNER

copartner. A member of a partnership; PARTNER. [Cases: Partnership 1.C.J.S. Partnership §§ 1–7, 17.]

"Copartner need not exist alongside partner. The joint relationship (i.e., that the existence of one partner implies the existence of one or more other partners) is clear to all native speakers of English.... Because copartner adds nothing to the language of the law, it should be avoided." Bryan A. Garner, A Dictionary of Modern Legal Usage 223 (2d ed. 1995).

COPARTNERSHIP

copartnership. See PARTNERSHIP. • The terms copartnership and partnership are equally old — each having first appeared in the 1570s.

COPARTY

coparty. A litigant or participant in a legal transaction who has a like status with another party; a party on the same side of a lawsuit. — Also termed joint party. See CODEFENDANT; COPLAINTIFF.

COPAYMENT

COPLAINTIFF

coplaintiff. One of two or more plaintiffs in the same litigation. — Also termed joint plaintiff.

---

Cf. CODE-FENDANT.

COPRINCIPAL

coprincipal. 1. One of two or more participants in a criminal offense who either perpetrate the crime or aid a person who does so. [Cases: Criminal Law 59. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 127, 998.]
2. One of two or more persons who have appointed an agent whom they both have the right to control.

COPULATIVE CONDITION

copulative condition. See CONDITION(2).

COPY

copy, n. 1. An imitation or reproduction of an original. • In the law of evidence, a copy is generally admissible to prove the contents of a writing. Fed. R. Evid. 1003. See BEST-EVIDENCE RULE. [Cases: Evidence 174.1. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 1074, 1102–1104.]

archival copy. See ARCHIVAL COPY.

attested copy. See certified copy.

certified copy. A duplicate of an original (usu. official) document, certified as an exact reproduction usu. by the officer responsible for issuing or keeping the original. — Also termed attested copy; exemplified copy; verified copy. [Cases: Criminal Law 430; Evidence 338. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 1025, 1029–1031; Evidence §§ 879–880, 893, 895.]

conformed copy. An exact copy of a document bearing written explanations of things that were not or could not be copied, such as a note on the document indicating that it was signed by a person whose signature appears on the original.

examined copy. A copy (usu. of a record, public book, or register) that has been compared with the original or with an official record of an original. [Cases: Criminal Law 445; Evidence 367. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 1025, 1029; Evidence §§ 881, 884, 889.]

exemplified copy. See certified copy.

true copy. A copy that, while not necessarily exact, is sufficiently close to the original that anyone can understand it.

verified copy. See certified copy.

2. Copyright. The physical form in which a creative work is fixed and from which the work can be reproduced or perceived, with or without the aid of a special device. 17 USCA § 101.
3. Copyright. An expressive work that is substantially similar to a copyrighted work and not produced coincidentally and independently from the same source as the copyrighted work. • Proof of copying in an infringement action requires evidence of the defendant's access to the original work and substantial similarity of the defendant's work to the original. See substantial similarity under SIMILARITY. “The noun ‘copy’ ordinarily connotes a tangible object that is a reproduction of the original work; the courts have generally found no reason to depart from this usage in the law of copyright.” 1 Melville B. Nimmer & David Nimmer, Nimmer on Copyright § 4.08[B], at 4-47 (Supp. 1995).

COPYCAT DRUG

copycat drug. See generic drug under DRUG.

COPYHOLD

copyhold. Hist. A base tenure requiring the tenant to provide the customary services of the manor, as reflected in the manor's court rolls. • Copyhold tenure descended from pure villeinage; over time, the customs of the manor, as reflected on the manor's rolls, dictated what services a lord could demand from a copyholder. This type of tenure was abolished by the Law of Property Act of 1922, which converted copyhold land into freehold or leasehold land. — Also termed copyhold tenure; customary estate; customary freehold; tenancy by the verge; tenancy par la verge; tenancy by the rod. See base tenure under TENURE; VILLEINAGE.

privileged copyhold. Hist. A copyhold subject only to the customs of the manor and not affected by the nonconforming dictates of the current lord.

COPYHOLDER

copyholder. Hist. A tenant by copyhold tenure. — Also termed tenant by the verge; tenant par la verge.

“The lord still held a court, and that court kept records of all transactions affecting the lands. These records were called the rolls of the court. When, for instance, a tenant sold his interest to a third party, the circumstances of the sale would be recorded, and the buyer would receive a copy of the court rolls in so far as they affected his holding. Inasmuch as he held his estate by copy of court roll, he came to be called a copyholder.” G.C. Cheshire, Modern Law of Real Property 24 (3d ed. 1933).

COPYHOLD TENANT

copyhold tenant. See customary tenant under TENANT.

COPYHOLD TENURE

copyhold tenure. See COPYHOLD.

COPYLEFT

copyleft. Slang. A software license that allows users to modify or incorporate open-source code into larger programs on the condition that the software containing the source code is publicly distributed without restrictions.

COPYLEFTED SOFTWARE

copylefted software. Slang. Free software whose distribution terms forbid the addition of restrictions if the software is redistributed in its original or a modified form. • Not actually a legal term, this phrase is popularly used as the antithesis of copyright by Internet free-software promoters. See FREEWARE.

COPYRIGHT

copyright, n. 1. The right to copy; specif., a property right in an original work of authorship (including literary, musical, dramatic, choreographic, pictorial, graphic, sculptural, and architectural works; motion pictures and other audiovisual works; and sound recordings) fixed in any tangible medium of expression, giving the holder the exclusive right to reproduce, adapt, distribute, perform, and display the work. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 1. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 2, 4–5.] 2. The body of law relating to such works. • Copyright law is governed by the Copyright Act of 1976. 17 USCA §§ 101–1332. — Abbr. c. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 101. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 102–104.] — copyright, vb. — copyrighted, adj.

“[C]opyright is a monopoly of limited duration, created and wholly regulated by the legislature; and ... an author has, therefore, no other title to his published works than that given by statute.” Ethan S. Drone, A Treatise on the Law of Property in Intellectual Productions 2 (1879).

“The development of copyright law in England was shaped by the efforts of mercantile interests to obtain monopoly control of the publishing industry — similar to those of the guilds that were instrumental in shaping patent and trademark law.... American copyright law came to distinguish between the ‘common law’ right of an author to his unpublished creations, and the statutory copyright that might be secured upon publication. Until recently, therefore, an author had perpetual rights to his creation, which included the right to decide when, if, and how to publish the work, but that common law right terminated upon publication at which time statutory rights become the sole rights, if any, to which the author was entitled. This distinction was altered by the Copyright Act of 1976, which shifts the line of demarcation between common law and statutory copyright from the moment of publication to the moment of fixation of the work into tangible form.” Arthur R. Miller & Michael H. Davis, Intellectual Property in a Nutshell 280–82 (2d ed.

“What is copyright? From copyright law's beginnings close to three centuries ago, the term has meant just what it says: the right to make copies of a given work — at first it meant simply written work — and to stop others from making copies without one's permission.” Paul Goldstein, Copyright's Highway 3 (1994).

“Before the 1976 Copyright Act swept virtually all copyrightable subject matter within the exclusive domain of federal protection, the term ‘copyright’ implied a statutory right created by Congress in order to ‘Promote the Progress of Science.’ Our first copyright act, in 1790, protected only maps, charts, and books. Protection gradually was extended to musical compositions and graphic works. In the middle of the nineteenth century, photography was developed and then protected, followed at the end of the century by motion pictures (although they were protected as photographs). As the twentieth century comes to a close, digital technology and multimedia forms of authorship seriously challenge the gradual, compartmentalized approach to granting new rights and new subject matter ....” 1 William F. Patry, Copyright Law and Practice 1 (1994).

ad interim copyright.Hist. A limited five-year U.S. copyright granted to the author of a foreign edition of an English-language book or periodical if, within six months after its publication abroad, the author deposited one complete copy of that edition in the U.S. Copyright Office and requested ad interim copyright protection. • An ad interim copyright was granted as an exception to the 1909 Copyright Act's manufacturing clause, which limited copyright protection for English-language books and periodicals to those printed in the U.S. If the copyright owner published the work in the U.S. during the period of ad interim protection and complied with the Act's manufacturing requirements, full copyright protection related back to the date of first publication. Otherwise, the work went into the public domain at the end of five years.

common-law copyright.A property right that arose when the work was created, rather than when it was published. • Under the Copyright Act of 1976, which was effective on January 1, 1978, common-law copyright was largely abolished for works created after the statute's effective date. But the statute retained the common law's recognition that the property right arose when the work was created rather than when it was published. And the common-law copyright still applies in a few areas: notably, a common-law copyright received before January 1, 1978, remains entitled to protection. — Also termed right of first publication.

COPYRIGHTABILITY TEST

copyrightability test.A judicial test for determining whether a contributor to a joint work is an author for legal purposes, based on whether the contributor's effort is an original expression that could qualify for copyright protection on its own. • This test has been adopted by a majority of courts that have addressed the question. Cf. DE MINIMIS TEST.

COPYRIGHT ACT OF 1790

Copyright Act of 1790.The first U.S. copyright law, which, like England's Statute of Anne, gave authors copyright protection for 14 years, renewable for another 14 years, after which time the work then entered the public domain.

COPYRIGHT ACT OF 1909

Copyright Act of 1909. A major revision of U.S. copyright law, extending the term of protection from 14 to 28 years (renewable for a second 28-year term); measuring the copyright term from the time of publication rather than the time of registration with the Copyright Office; and expanding coverage to all writings. • The Act retained the formalities for securing a copyright and required that a copyright mark appear on the work. It governed U.S. copyrights issued from July 1, 1909 to December 31, 1977. Although the 1976 Copyright Act supplanted the 1909 Act, the 1909 Act still applies to some pre-1978 claims and affects certain other rights of copyright owners. — Also termed 1909 Copyright Act.

COPYRIGHT ACT OF 1976

Copyright Act of 1976. A major revision of U.S. copyright law, extending the term of protection to the life of the author plus 50 years, measured from the date of creation; greatly expanding the types of works that qualify for protection; dropping the requirement that the work be published before it can be protected; making fair use a statutory defense to a claim in infringement; and preempting state common-law copyright. 17 USCA §§ 101 et seq. • This is the current federal statute that governs copyright registrations and rights. — Also termed 1976 Copyright Act.

COPYRIGHT AND THE CHALLENGE OF TECHNOLOGY

Copyright and the Challenge of Technology. See GREEN PAPER ON COPYRIGHT AND THE CHALLENGE OF TECHNOLOGY .

COPYRIGHT APPLICATION

copyright application. A written request for copyright protection made by a work's creator, filed with the U.S. Copyright Office and accompanied by a filing fee and either a deposit copy of the work or approved identifying material. • A registrant who does not meet the deposit requirement of the Copyright Act of 1976 risks losing copyright protection. See, e.g., Coles v. Wonder, 283 F.3d 798 (6th Cir. 2002). [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 50.20.]

COPYRIGHT BUG

copyright bug. See COPYRIGHT NOTICE.

COPYRIGHT CLAUSE

Copyright Clause. U.S. Const. art. I, § 8, cl. 8, which gives Congress the power to secure to authors the exclusive rights to their writings for a limited time. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 2.C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 3–6, 8.]

COPYRIGHT CLEARINGHOUSE

copyright clearinghouse. An organization that licenses members' works to applicants for specific purposes. • A clearinghouse usu. licenses only one type or class of works, such as songs, photographs, cartoons, or written materials.

---

COPYRIGHT INFRINGEMENT

copyright infringement. See INFRINGEMENT.

COPYRIGHT LEGEND

copyright legend. See COPYRIGHT NOTICE.

COPYRIGHT-MANAGEMENT INFORMATION

copyright-management information. The name and other identifying information about the creator, performer, or copyright owner of a creative work. See DIGITAL MILLENNIUM COPYRIGHT ACT.

COPYRIGHT MISUSE

copyright misuse. In an infringement action, an affirmative defense based on the copyright owner's use of a license to restrain trade or in any other manner that is against public policy. • The defense, roughly parallel to the declining patent-misuse defense, was invoked, for example, to prevent the American Medical Association from enforcing its copyright in its medical-procedure codes after licensing them to the U.S. Government for use in the Medicaid program. See Practice Mgmt. Info. Corp. v. Am. Med. Ass'n, 121 F.3d 516 (9th Cir. 1997). [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 75. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 43–44, 62.]

COPYRIGHT NOTICE

copyright notice. A notice that a work is copyright-protected, usu. placed in each published copy of the work. • A copyright notice takes the form © (year of publication) (name of basic copyright owner). Since March 1, 1989, such a notice is not required for a copyright to be valid (although the notice continues to provide certain procedural advantages). The phrase “all rights reserved” is usu. no longer required. — Sometimes termed copyright bug; copyright legend; notice of copyright. See ALL RIGHTS RESERVED; BUENOS AIRES CONVENTION . [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 50.1(2). C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 35, 95.]

COPYRIGHT OWNER

copyright owner. 1. One who holds an exclusive right or rights to copyrighted material. 17 USCA § 101. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 41. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 22, 93.] 2. One who is named as the owner on any copyright notice attached to a work and who is registered with the U.S. Copyright Office as the owner.

COPYRIGHT ROYALTY TRIBUNAL

Copyright Royalty Tribunal. A former board in the legislative branch of the federal government responsible for establishing and monitoring copyright royalty rates for published and recorded materials. • Its functions are now performed by copyright arbitration royalty panels.

CORAM

coram (kor-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m), prep. [Latin] (Of a person) before; in the presence of.

CORAM DOMINO REGE

coram domino rege (kor-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m dom-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-noh ree-jee). [Latin] Hist. Before our lord the king.

CORAM IPSO REGE

coram ipso rege (kor-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m ip-soh ree-jee). [Latin] Hist. Before the king himself. — Also termed coram ipso domino rege.

“The court of king's bench (so called because the king used formerly to sit there in person, the style of the court still being coram ipso rege) is the supreme court of common law in the kingdom....” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 41 (1768).

CORAM JUDICE

coram iudice (kor-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m joo-di-see). 1. In the presence of a judge. 2. JURISDICTION.

CORAM NOBIS

coram nobis (kor-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m noh-bis). [Latin “before us”] Hist. 1. A writ of error taken from a judgment of the King's Bench. • “Before us” refers to the sovereign, in contrast to the writ coram vobis (“before you”), which refers to any court other than King's Bench, esp. the Court of Common Pleas. 2. A writ of error directed to a court for review of its own judgment and predicated on alleged errors of fact. — Also termed writ of error coram nobis; writ of coram nobis. [Cases: Criminal Law 1411; Judgment 334.C.J.S. Judgments §7 360–361.]

CORAM NON JUDICE

coram non iudice (kor-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m non joo-di-see). [Latin “not before a judge”] 1. Outside the presence of a judge. 2. Before a judge or court that is not the proper one or that cannot take legal cognizance of the matter.

CORAM PARIBUS

coram paribus (kor-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m par-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-b⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s). [Latin] Hist. Before the peers. • This phrase appeared in deed attestations.

CORAM REGE COURT

Coram Rege Court. See KING'S BENCH.

CORAM SECTORIBUS

coram sectoribus (kor-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m sek-t⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-tor-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-b⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s). [Law Latin] Hist. Before the suitors.

CORAM VOBIS

coram vobis (kor-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m voh-bis), n. [Latin “before you”] Hist. 1. A writ of error directed to a court other than the King's Bench, esp. the Court of Common Pleas, to review its judgment.

“Certain errors in the process of the court, committed by the defaults of the clerks, or as to matters of fact, could be remedied by the court itself. The writ issued for this purpose was called a writ of error ‘coram vobis’ if the error was in the Common Pleas; ‘coram nobis’ if it was in the King's Bench.” 1 William Holdsworth, A History of English Law 224 (7th ed. 1956).

2. A writ of error sent by an appellate court to a trial court to review the trial court's judgment based on an error of fact. — Also termed writ of error coram vobis; writ of coram vobis. [Cases: Courts 207.1.]

CORDON RULE

Cordon rule. A rule of the U.S. Senate requiring any committee that is reporting a bill amending current law to show in its report what wording the bill would strike from or insert into the current statute. • The rule is named for Senator Guy Cordon (1890–1969) of Oregon, who proposed it. The analogous rule in the U.S. House of Representatives is the Ramseyer rule. See RAMSEYER RULE.

CORE EARNINGS

core earnings. See operating earnings under EARNINGS.

CORE PROCEEDING

core proceeding. Bankruptcy. 1. A proceeding involving claims that substantially affect the debtor-creditor relationship, such as an action to recover a preferential transfer. • In such a proceeding, the bankruptcy court, as opposed to the district court, conducts the trial or hearing and enters a final judgment. Cf. RELATED PROCEEDING. 2. In federal courts, an action involving subject matter that is clearly within the confines of federal bankruptcy law and the management of the bankrupt's estate. • A federal bankruptcy court may also hear noncore matters that have an independent basis for subject-matter jurisdiction, such as a federal question. For a nonexclusive list of core proceedings, see 28 USCA § 157(b)(2). [Cases: Bankruptcy 2043–2063. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 5, 9–12, 14–15, 17–18, 22.]

CORE RIGHTS

core rights. 1. Human rights that are generally recognized and accepted throughout the world. • These rights include freedom from extrajudicial execution, torture, and arbitrary arrest and detention. Core rights are embodied in many human-rights conventions, including the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights. 2. Fundamental rights claimed within a social, cultural, or other context. • These are not universally recognized rights. For example, the ability to vote may be a fundamental right of citizens in one country but only a privilege limited to selected people in another.

CORRESPONDENT

corespondent. 1. A coparty who responds to a petition, such as a petition for a writ of certiorari. 2. In some states, a coparty who responds to an appeal. 3. Family law. In a divorce suit based on adultery, the person with whom the spouse is accused of having committed adultery. See RESPONDENT. [Cases: Divorce 26. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 60, 70.]

CORE WORK PRODUCT

core work product. See opinion work product under WORK PRODUCT.

CORIUM FORISFACERE

corium forisfacere (kor-ee-<<schwa>>m for-is-fay-s<<schwa>>-ree). [Law Latin “to forfeit skin”] Hist. To whip (a person, esp. a servant) as punishment. — Also termed corium perdere.

CORIUM REDIMERE

corium redimere (kor-ee-<<schwa>>m ri-dim-<<schwa>>-r-ee). [Latin] Hist. To redeem one's skin. • This referred to a person who paid restitution for an offense.

CORNAGE

cornage (kor-nij). [fr. Anglo-French corne “horn”] Hist. 1. A type of grand-sergeanty military tenure in which the tenant was bound to blow a horn to alert others whenever an enemy approached. 2. A form of tenure entitling a landowner to rent based on the number of horned cattle owned by the tenant. • Cornage may have developed into a type of serjeanty or knight-service tenure that obligated the tenant to blow a horn to warn of invaders, esp. along the border with Scotland. See KNIGHT-SERVICE; SERJEANTY. — Also termed (in senses 1 & 2) horn tenure. 3. A tribute of corn due only on special occasions, as distinguished from a regularly provided service. • This term has often been spelled coraage or coraagium, stemming perhaps from a spelling error in the 1569 edition of Bracton's De Legibus et Consuetudinibus Angliae.

CORNELIAN LAW

Cornelian law. See LEX CORNELIA.

CORNER

corner, n. 1. The common end of two survey lines; an angle made by two boundary lines. [Cases: Boundaries 7. C.J.S. Boundaries §§ 10–13.]

existent corner. A corner whose location can be verified by an original landmark, a surveyor's field notes, or other reliable evidence.

lost corner. A point in a land description, such as a landmark or natural object, whose position cannot be reasonably determined from traces of the original marks or other acceptable evidence. • The location can be determined by reference to one or more independent points remaining in the description.

obliterated corner. A corner that can be located only with evidence other than that put in place by the original surveyor.

2. The acquisition of control over all or a dominant quantity of a commodity with the purpose of artificially enhancing the price, carried out by purchases and sales of the commodity — and of options and futures — in a way that depresses the market price so that the participants are enabled to purchase the commodity at satisfactory prices and withhold it from the market for a time, thereby inflating its price. • A corner accomplished by confederation, with the purpose of raising or depressing prices and operating on the market, is a criminal conspiracy if the means are unlawful.

CORNERING THE MARKET

cornering the market. The act or process of acquiring ownership or control of a large portion of the available supply of a commodity or security, permitting manipulation of the commodity's or security's price.

CORN PRODUCTS DOCTRINE

Corn Products doctrine. Tax. The principle that a capital asset should be narrowly defined to exclude inventory-related property that is integrally tied to the day-to-day operations of a business. Corn Prods. Refining Co. v. C.I.R., 350 U.S. 46, 76 S.Ct. 20 (1955). [Cases: Internal Revenue 3178, 3230.1. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 110.]

CORODY

corody (kor- orkahr-<<schwa>>-dee). Hist. An allowance of money, accommodation, food, or clothing given by a religious house to any person who signed over personal or real property or both in exchange or to a royal servant at the Crown's request. • The amount of property required from a person who purchased a corody depended on the person's age and remaining life expectancy. The Crown was entitled to a corody for a retired royal servant only from houses that the Crown had founded. Theoretically, the cost of a retired royal servant's care would come from the royal purse. But since the royal purse did not always open, royal servants were not always accepted as corodiaries. — Also spelled corrody. Cf. LIFE-CARE CONTRACT. — corodiary (k<<schwa>>-roh-dee-air-ee), corodiary, n.

“Corrody is a partition for one's sustenance. Be it bread, ale, herring, a yearly robe, or sum of money for the robe. So of a chamber, and stable for my horses, when the same is coupled with other things....” Sir Henry Finch, Law, or a Discourse Thereof 162 (1759).

COROLLARY

corollary (kor- orkahr-<<schwa>>-ler-ee), n. A proposition that follows from a proven proposition with little or no additional proof; something that naturally follows.

CORONA

corona (k<<schwa>>-roh-n<<schwa>>). [Latin] Hist. The Crown. • This term formerly appeared in criminal pleadings, e.g., placita coronae (“pleas of the Crown”).

CORONATION CASE

coronation case.Hist. Any of the many lawsuits for breach of contract resulting from the postponement of the coronation of Edward VII because of his illness. • In one case, for example, the defendant had agreed to hire a ship for watching the naval review by King Edward VII and for a day's cruise around the fleet. The court held that the contract was not frustrated by the cancellation of the naval review — the day's cruise around the fleet was still possible, and indeed, the ship could have been used for many other purposes.

CORONATOR

coronator (kor- orkahr-<<schwa>>-nay-t<<schwa>>r). [fr. Latin corona “crown”] A coroner. See CORONER(2).

“The formal title of custos (or occasionally conservator) placitorum corone continued to be used throughout the Middle Ages, but the more convenient shorter forms coronarius, which was confined to a short period around 1200, and CORONATOR rapidly gained greater currency. The English form was ‘coroner’ or ‘crownier.’ ” R.F. Hunnisett, The Medieval Coroner 1 n.1 (1961).

CORONATORE ELIGENDO

coronatore eligendo.See DE CORONATORE ELIGENDO.

CORONATORE EXONERANDO

coronatore exonerando.See DE CORONATORE EXONERANDO.

CORONER

coroner (kor- orkahr-<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>r).1. A public official whose duty is to investigate the causes and circumstances of any death that occurs suddenly, suspiciously, or violently. See MEDICAL EXAMINER. [Cases: Coroners 1. C.J.S. Coroners and Medical Examiners § 2.] 2.Hist. A royal official with countywide jurisdiction to investigate deaths, to hold inquests, and to assume the duties of the sheriff if need be. • The coroner acted as a check on the sheriff, a local officer whose growing power threatened royal control over the counties. The coroner reported criminal activity to the king's justices in eyre. When the eyre court arrived in a county, it collected the coroner's roll to learn what had occurred in the county during the eyre's absence. The justices fined the coroner if he failed to produce the roll, or if they learned of criminal activity in the county from a source other than the roll.

CORPORATION

corporation, n. An entity (usu. a business) having authority under law to act as a single person distinct from the shareholders who own it and having rights to issue stock and exist indefinitely; a group or succession of persons established in accordance with legal rules into a legal or juristic person that has legal personality distinct from the natural persons who make it up, exists indefinitely apart from them, and has the legal powers that its constitution gives it. — Also termed corporation aggregate; aggregate corporation; body corporate; corporate body. See COMPANY. [Cases: Corporations 1. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 2, 4.] — incorporate, vb. — corporate, adj.

“A corporation is an artificial being, invisible, intangible, and existing only in contemplation of law... [I]t possesses only those properties which the charter of its creation confers upon it.” Trustees of Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 17 U.S. (4 Wheat.) 518, 636 (1819)(Marshall, J.).

acquired corporation. The corporation that no longer exists after a merger or acquisition. [Cases: Corporations 586. C.J.S. Corporations § 807.]

admitted corporation. A corporation licensed or authorized to do business within a particular state. — Also termed qualified corporation; corporation qualified to do business.

aggressor corporation. A corporation that attempts to obtain control of a publicly held corporation by (1) a direct cash tender, (2) a public-exchange offer to shareholders, or (3) a merger, which requires the agreement of the target's management.

alien corporation. See foreign corporation.

brother-sister corporation. See sister corporation.

business corporation. A corporation formed to engage in commercial activity for profit. Cf. nonprofit corporation.

C corporation. A corporation whose income is taxed through it rather than through its shareholders. • Any corporation not electing S-corporation tax status under the Internal Revenue Code is a C corporation by default. — Also termed subchapter-C corporation. Cf. S corporation.

charitable corporation. A nonprofit corporation that is dedicated to benevolent purposes and thus entitled to special tax status under the Internal Revenue Code. — Also termed eleemosynary corporation. See CHARIT-ABLE ORGANIZATION. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4045–4069. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 327, 462–474.]

civil corporation. Any corporation other than a charitable or religious corporation.

clearing corporation. A corporation whose capital stock is held by or for a national security exchange or association registered under federal law such as the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

close corporation. A corporation whose stock is not freely traded and is held by only a few shareholders (often within the same family). • The requirements and privileges of close corporations vary by jurisdiction. — Also termed closely held corporation; closed corporation. [Cases: Corporations 3. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 5–7, 62.]

collapsible corporation. A corporation formed to give a short-term venture the appearance of a long-term investment in order to portray income as capital gain, rather than profit. • The corporation is typically formed for the sole purpose of purchasing property. The corporation is usually dissolved before the property has generated substantial income. The Internal Revenue Service treats the income earned through a collapsible corporation as ordinary income rather than as capital gain. IRC (26 USCA) § 341(a). Cf. collapsible partnership under PARTNERSHIP. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3728.] common-law corporation. See corporation by prescription.

controlled corporation. 1. A corporation in which the majority of the stock is held by one individual or firm. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3643.] 2. A corporation in which a substantial amount (but less than a majority) is held by one individual or firm. • Some states presume control with as little as 10%.

controlled foreign corporation. Tax. A foreign corporation in which more than 50% of the stock is owned by U.S. citizens who each own 10% or more of the voting stock. • These shareholders (known as U.S. shareholders) are required to report their pro rata share of certain passive income of the corporation. — Abbr. CFC. IRC (26 USCA) §§ 951–964. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4119. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 484.]

cooperative corporation. An entity that has a corporate existence, but is primarily organized for the purpose of providing services and profits to its members and not for corporate profit. • The most common kind of cooperative corporation is formed to purchase real property, such as an apartment building, so that its shareholders may lease the apartments. See COOPERATIVE(1). [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 350. C.J.S. Landlord and Tenant § 792.21.]

corporation aggregate. Hist. A corporation made up of a number of individuals. Cf. corporation sole.

“The first division of corporations is into aggregate and sole. Corporations aggregate consist of many persons united together into one society, and are kept up by a perpetual succession of members, so as to continue forever: of which kind are the mayor and commonalty of a city, the head and fellows of a college, the dean and chapter of a cathedral church.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 457 (1765).

“The corporation aggregate is the typical corporation, which, at any given time, normally contains a number of individuals as members. This number may be great or small, varying from the hundreds of thousands of burgesses of a large borough to the two members of a private joint-stock company. It is even said that a corporation aggregate would not necessarily cease to exist if all its members died, leaving no successors; and this is, probably, sound doctrine.” Edward Jenks, The Book of English Law 118 (P.B. Fairst ed., 6th ed. 1967).

corporation by estoppel. A business that is deemed, by operation of law, to be a corporation because a third party dealt with the business as if it were a corporation, thus preventing the third party from holding a shareholder or officer of the corporation individually liable. See ESTOPPEL. [Cases: Corporations 34. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 65–66.]

corporation by prescription. A corporation that, though lacking a charter, has acquired its corporate status through a long period of operating as a corporation. • Such an entity may engage in any enterprises that are not manifestly inconsistent with the purposes for which it is assumed to have been created. — Also termed common-law corporation. [Cases: Corporations 27.]

corporation de facto. See de facto corporation.

corporation de jure. See de jure corporation.

corporation for profit. See for-profit corporation.

corporation qualified to do business. See admitted corporation.

corporation sole. A series of successive persons holding an office; a continuous legal personality that is attributed to successive holders of certain monarchical or ecclesiastical positions, such as kings, bishops, rectors, vicars, and the like. • This continuous personality is viewed, by legal fiction, as having the qualities of a corporation. Cf. corporation aggregate.

“It would have been quite possible to explain in the same way the devolution of the lands of the Crown, or of a bishopric, or of a rectory, from the sovereign, bishop, or rector, to his successor; but English law has preferred to introduce for this purpose the fiction, peculiar to itself, of a ‘corporation sole.’” Thomas E. Holland, The Elements of Jurisprudence 350–51 (13th ed. 1924).

“But English Law knows another kind of corporation, the ‘corporation sole’, in which the group consists, not of a number of contemporary members, but of a succession of single members, of whom only one exists at any given time. This kind of corporation has been described by eminent legal writers as a ‘freak’; but it is a freak which undoubtedly has a legal existence. It has been said that the Crown is the only common law lay corporation sole; though the Master of Trinity College, Cambridge, has been claimed as another example, and statutory examples, such as the Public Trustee and the Treasury Solicitor, are conspicuous. But the examples of ecclesiastical corporations sole are numerous. Every diocesan bishop, every rector of a parish, is a corporation sole, and can acquire and hold land (and now also personal property) even during the vacancy of the see or living, for the benefit of his successors, and can bind his successors by his lawful conveyances and contracts. But, obviously, the distinction between the bishop or rector, in his personal and in his corporate character, is even harder to grasp than that between the members of a corporation aggregate and the corporation itself....” Edward Jenks, The Book of English Law 118–19 (P.B. Fairst ed., 6th ed. 1967).

dead corporation. See dissolved corporation.

de facto corporation (di fak-toh). An incompletely formed corporation whose existence operates as a defense to personal liability of the directors, officers, and shareholders who in good faith thought they were operating the business as a duly formed corporation. — Also termed corporation de facto. [Cases: Corporations 28. C.J.S. Corporations § 63.]

de jure corporation (di juur-ee). A corporation formed in accordance with all applicable laws and recognized as a corporation for liability purposes. — Also termed corporation de jure. [Cases: Corporations 3. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 5–7, 62.]

dissolved corporation. A corporation whose charter has expired or been revoked, relinquished, or voluntarily terminated. — Also termed dead corporation.

domestic corporation. 1. A corporation that is organized and chartered under the laws of a state. • The corporation is considered domestic by the chartering state. Cf. foreign corporation. 2. Tax. A corporation created or organized in the United States or under federal or state law. IRC (26 USCA) § 7701(a)(4). [Cases: Internal Revenue 3623. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 369.]

dormant corporation. 1. An inactive corporation; a legal corporation that is presently not operating. 2. A corporation whose authority to do business has been revoked or suspended either by operation of law (as by failure to pay franchise taxes) or by an act of the government official responsible for the corporation's authority.

dummy corporation. A corporation whose only function is to hide the principal's identity and to protect the principal from liability.

ecclesiastical corporation (i-klee-zee-as-t<<schwa>>-k<<schwa>>l). English law. A corporation that is organized for spiritual purposes or for the administration of property held for religious uses. — Also termed religious corporation. Cf. lay corporation.

“Ecclesiastical corporations. Corporations created for the furtherance of religion.... They are of two kinds: (1) corporations sole, i.e., bishops, certain deans, parsons and vicars; and (2) corporations aggregate, i.e., deans and chapters, and formerly prior and convent, abbot and monks, and the like. Such corporations are called ‘religious corporations,’ or ‘religious societies,’ in the United States.” 1 Stewart Rapalje & Robert L. Lawrence, A Dictionary of American and English Law 432 (1883).

eleemosynary corporation. See charitable corporation.

foreign corporation. A corporation that was organized and chartered under the laws of another state, government, or country <in Arizona, a California corporation is said to be a foreign corporation>. — Also termed alien corporation. Cf. domestic corporation. [Cases: Corporations 632. C.J.S. Corporations § 883.]

“ ‘Foreign’ is defined as ‘not native or domestic.’ This is the meaning given to the word in the various judicial definitions of foreign corporations. With respect to a particular state or country, a corporation created by or under the laws of that state or country is a ‘domestic corporation,’ and any corporation that owes its existence to the laws of another state, government or country is a ‘foreign corporation.’ The difference between a domestic and a foreign corporation of the same kind is one of status, determined by considerations that are external to the corporation and not internal or organic. Moreover, foreign corporations of all classes fall equally within the definition. In many jurisdictions foreign corporations are defined by statute, and the statutory definitions do not differ in substance from that stated above.” 17 Fletcher Cyclopedic on the Law of Private Corporations § 8290, at 6–7 (1998).

for-profit corporation.A corporation organized for the purpose of making a profit; a business corporation. — Also termed corporation for profit; moneyed corporation.

government corporation.See public corporation (3).

joint-venture corporation.A corporation that has joined with one or more individuals or corporations to accomplish some specified project.

lay corporation.English law. A corporation made up of laypersons, and existing for a business or charitable purpose. Cf. ecclesiastical corporation.

limited-liability corporation.See limited-liability company under COMPANY.

migratory corporation.A corporation formed under the laws of another state than that of the incorporators' residence for the purpose of carrying on a significant portion of its business in the state of the incorporators' residence or in a state other than where it was incorporated.

moneyed corporation. 1. A corporation that uses money capital in its business, esp. one (such as a bank) that engages in the exchange or lending of money. 2. See for-profit corporation.

multinational corporation.A company with operations in two or more countries, generally allowing it to transfer funds and products according to price and demand conditions, subject to risks such as changes in exchange rates or political instability. — Also termed transnational corporation.

multistate corporation.A corporation incorporated under the laws of two or more states.

municipal corporation.See MUNICIPAL CORPORATION.

municipal corporation de facto.See MUNICIPAL CORPORATION.

nonprofit corporation.A corporation organized for some purpose other than making a profit, and usu. afforded special tax treatment. — Also termed not-for-profit corporation. Cf. business corporation. [Cases: Corporations 3; Internal Revenue 4045–4071. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 5–7, 62; Internal Revenue §§ 327, 462–474, 670, 798.]

nonstock corporation.A corporation that does not issue shares of stock as evidence of ownership but instead is owned by its members in accordance with a charter or agreement. • Examples are mutual insurance companies, charitable organizations, and private clubs. [Cases: Corporations 3. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 5–7, 62.]

not-for-profit corporation.See nonprofit corporation.

parent corporation.A corporation that has a controlling interest in another corporation (called a subsidiary corporation), usu. through ownership of more than one-half the voting stock. — Often shortened to parent. — Also termed parent company.

political corporation. See public corporation (2).

private corporation. A corporation founded by and composed of private individuals principally for a nonpublic purpose, such as manufacturing, banking, and railroad corporations (including charitable and religious corporations). — Also termed quasi-individual. [Cases: Corporations 3. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 5–7, 62.]

professional corporation. A corporation that provides services of a type that requires a professional license. • A professional corporation may be made up of architects, accountants, lawyers, physicians, veterinarians, or the like. — Abbr. P.C.

public corporation. 1. A corporation whose shares are traded to and among the general public. — Also termed publicly held corporation. [Cases: Corporations 3. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 5–7, 62.] 2. A corporation that is created by the state as an agency in the administration of civil government. — Also termed political corporation. 3. A government-owned corporation that engages in activities that benefit the general public, usu. while remaining financially independent. • Such a corporation is managed by a publicly appointed board. — Also termed (in sense 3) government corporation; public-benefit corporation. [Cases: States 84. C.J.S. States §§ 141–143, 165, 202.] publicly held corporation. See public corporation (1).

public-service corporation. A corporation whose operations serve a need of the general public, such as public transportation, communications, gas, water, or electricity. • This type of corporation is usu. subject to extensive governmental regulation. [Cases: Public Utilities 103. C.J.S. Public Utilities §§ 3–4, 6, 11.]

qualified corporation. See admitted corporation.

quasi-corporation. An entity that exercises some of the functions of a corporation but that has not been granted corporate status by statute; esp., a public corporation with limited authority and powers (such as a county or school district). — Also sometimes termed quasi-municipal corporation. Cf. MUNICIPAL CORPORATION. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 2. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 7–9.]

quasi-public corporation. A for-profit corporation providing an essential public service. • An example is an electric company or other utility.

railroad corporation. A company organized to construct, maintain, and operate railroads. — Also termed railroad company. [Cases: Railroads 13. C.J.S. Railroads §§ 24–25, 31–33.]

“A railroad company or corporation is usually regarded as a private corporation, and justly so, as contrasted with a strictly public corporation, such as a city, county, township, or the like governmental subdivision, but it is not a private corporation in the strict sense that an ordinary business corporation is, for it is charged with duties of a public nature that distinguish it from a purely and strictly private corporation.” 1 Byron K. Elliott & William F. Elliott, A Treatise on the Law of Railroads § 3, at 7 (3d ed. 1921).

registered corporation. A publicly held corporation a security of which is registered under § 12 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. • The corporation is subject to the Act's periodic disclosure requirements and proxy regulations. 15USCA § 78l. [Cases: Securities Regulation 35.22. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 112–114.]

religious corporation. A corporation created to carry out some ecclesiastical or religious purpose. See ecclesiastical corporation. [Cases: Religious Societies 4. C.J.S. Religious Societies §§ 2, 5, 7–13.]

S corporation. A corporation whose income is taxed through its shareholders rather than through the corporation itself. • Only corporations with a limited number of shareholders can elect S-corporation tax status under Sub-chapter S of the Internal Revenue Code. — Also termed subchapter-S corporation; tax-option corporation. Cf. C corporation. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3885–3903. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 374–379.]

shell corporation. A corporation that has no active business and usu. exists only in name as a vehicle for another company's business operations.

sister corporation. One of two or more corporations controlled by the same, or substantially the same, owners. — Also termed brother-sister corporation. [Cases: Corporations 1.5(2), 3. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 5–7, 62.]

small-business corporation. 1. A corporation having no more than 75 shareholders and otherwise satisfying the requirements of the Internal Revenue Code provisions permitting a subchapter-S election. IRC (26 USCA) § 1361. See S corporation. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3885–3903. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 374–379.] 2. A corporation receiving money for stock (as a contribution to capital and paid-in surplus) totaling not more than $1,000,000, and otherwise satisfying the requirements of § 1244(c) of the Internal Revenue Code, thereby enabling the shareholders to claim an ordinary loss on worthless stock. IRC (26 USCA) § 1244(c).

sole corporation. A corporation having or acting through only a single member. [Cases: Corporations 3. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 5–7, 62.] spiritual corporation. A corporation whose members are spiritual persons, such as bishops, rectors, and abbots.

stock corporation. A corporation in which the capital is contributed by the shareholders and divided into shares represented by certificates. [Cases: Corporations 65. C.J.S. Corporations § 127.] subchapter-C corporation. See C corporation.

subchapter-S corporation. See S corporation.

subsidiary corporation. A corporation in which a parent corporation has a controlling share. — Often shortened to subsidiary; sub. [Cases: Corporations 174. C.J.S. Corporations § 307.]

surviving corporation.A corporation that acquires the assets and liabilities of another corporation by a merger or takeover. [Cases: Corporations 586. C.J.S. Corporations § 807.]

target corporation.A corporation over which control is being sought by another party. See TAKEOVER.

thin corporation.A corporation with an excessive amount of debt in its capitalization. See thin capitalization under CAPITALIZATION. [Cases: Corporations 3. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 5–7, 62.]

trading corporation.A corporation whose business involves the buying and selling of goods.

tramp corporation.A corporation chartered in a state where it does not conduct business. [Cases: Corporations 635.]

transnational corporation.See multinational corporation.

trust corporation.See trust company under COMPANY.

U.S.-owned foreign corporation.A foreign corporation in which 50% or more of the total combined voting power or total value of the stock is held directly or indirectly by U.S. citizens. IRC (26 USCA) § 904(g)(6). • If the dividend or interest income paid by a U.S. corporation is classified as a foreign source, the U.S. corporation is treated as a U.S.-owned foreign corporation. IRC (26 USCA) § 861. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4099–4105, 4119. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 484.]

CORPORATION ACT

Corporation Act.Hist. A 1661 English statute (13 Car. 2, St. 2, ch. 1) prohibiting the holding of public office by anyone who would not take the Anglican sacrament and the oaths of supremacy and allegiance. • The Act was repealed by the Promissory Oaths Act of 1871.

CORPORATION COUNSEL

CORPORATION FOR NATIONAL AND COMMUNITY SERVICE

Corporation for National and Community Service.A federal corporation that fosters civic responsibility, pro-vides educational opportunity for those who contribute services, and oversees AmeriCorps (the domestic Peace Corps), Learn and Serve America, and the National Senior Service Corps. • It was established in 1993. 42 USCA § 12651.

CORPORATOR

corporator (kor-p<<schwa>>-ray-t<<schwa>>r).1. A member of a corporation.
2.INCORPORATOR.

“Usually, a member of a corporation, in which sense it includes a stockholder; also, one of the persons who are the original organizers or promoters of a new corporation. The corporators are not the corporation, for either may sue the other.” William C. Anderson, A Dictionary of Law 266 (1889).

CORPOREAL

corporeal (kor-por-ee-<<schwa>>l), adj. Having a physical, material existence; TANGIBLE <land and fixtures are corporeal property>. Cf. INCORPOREAL. — corporeality,n.

CORPOREAL HEREDITAMENT

corporeal hereditament.See HEREDITAMENT.

CORPOREAL OWNERSHIP

CORPS DIPLOMATIQUE

corps diplomatique (kor dee-pl<<schwa>>-ma-teek).DIPLOMATIC CORPS.

CORPUS

corpus (kor-p<<schwa>>s), n.[Latin “body”] 1. The property for which a trustee is responsible; the trust principal. — Also termed res; trust estate; trust fund; trust property; trust res; trust. [Cases: Trusts 1. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion §§ 1–9, 14–18.] 2.PRINCIPAL(4). Pl. corpora (kor-p<<schwa>>-r<<schwa>>), corpuses (kor-p<<schwa>>-s<<schwa>>z).

CORPUS COMITATUS

corpus comitatus (kor-p<<schwa>>s kom-<<schwa>>-tay-t<<schwa>>s). [Latin “the body of a county”] Hist. The area within a territorial jurisdiction rather than on the “high seas” and hence where admiralty jurisdiction did not originally extend. See INFRA CORPUS COMITATUS.

CORPUS CORPORATUM

corpus corporatum (kor-p<<schwa>>s kor-p<<schwa>>-ray-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Hist. A corporate body; a corporation.

CORPUS CUM CAUSA

corpus cum causa (kor-p<<schwa>>s k<<schwa>>m kaw-z<<schwa>>). [Law Latin “the body with the cause”] Hist. A writ issuing out of Chancery to remove both a person and a record from an inferior court in order to review a judgment issued by the inferior court.

“The first use of the writ to challenge imprisonment was in cases of privilege; an officer of a central court, or a litigant there, could be released from imprisonment in another court by writ of privilege in habeas corpus form. The Court of Chancery at the same time developed a similar procedure for reviewing the cause of imprisonment in an inferior tribunal; this species of writ was called corpus cum causa, and it became a common remedy against the misuse of borough jurisdiction in the fifteenth century.” J.H. Baker, An Introduction to English Legal History 168 (3d ed. 1990).

CORPUS DELICTI

corpus delicti (kor-p<<schwa>>s d<<schwa>>-lik-tIor -tee). [Latin “body of the crime”] 1. The fact of a trans-gression; ACTUS REUS. [Cases: Criminal Law 26; Homicide 511. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 44–45, 1110.]

“[T]he definition of ‘corpus delicti’ often becomes important. (a) Essentially it signifies merely the fact of the specific loss or injury sustained, e.g., death of a victim or burning of a house. (b) To this is added also, by most courts, the criminal agency of some person (i.e., not mere accident). (c) A few courts also include evidence of the accused's identity with the deed; but this is absurd, for it virtually signifies making ‘corpus delicti’ synonymous with the whole charge. — Many courts treat this rule with a pedantic and unpractical strictness.” John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 310 (1935).

“One of the important rules of evidence in criminal cases is that which requires proof of the corpus delicti. Literally defined this term means ‘the body of the offense,’ or ‘the substance of the crime.’ In popular language it is used to describe the visible evidence of the crime, such as the dead body of a murdered person. Properly used, however, it is applicable to any crime and relates particularly to the act element of criminality; that is, that a certain prohibited act has been committed or result accomplished and that it was committed or accomplished by a criminal human agency.” Justin Miller, “The Criminal Act,” in Legal Essays in Tribute to Orrin Kip McMurray 469, 478 (1935).

“The phrase ‘corpus delicti’ does not mean dead body, but body of the crime, and every offense has its corpus delicti. Its practical importance, however, has been very largely limited to the homicide cases. It concerns the usability in a criminal case of a confession made by the defendant outside of court.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 140 (3d ed. 1982).

2. Loosely, the material substance on which a crime has been committed; the physical evidence of a crime, such as the corpse of a murdered person. • Despite the common misunderstanding, a victim's body could be evidence of a homicide, but the prosecutor does not have to locate or present the body to meet the corpus delicti requirement.

CORPUS DELICTI RULE

corpus delicti rule. Criminal law. The doctrine that prohibits a prosecutor from proving the corpus delicti based solely on a defendant's extrajudicial statements. • The prosecution must establish the corpus delicti with corroborating evidence to secure a conviction. [Cases: Criminal Law 412(6), 517.3. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 942–945.]

CORPUS JURIS

corpus juris (kor-p<<schwa>>s joor-is). [Latin “body of law”] The law as the sum or collection of laws <Corpus Juris Secundum>. — Abbr. C.J.

CORPUS JURIS ANGLIAE

corpus juris Angliae (kor-p<<schwa>>s joor-is ang-gee-ee). The entire body of English law, comprising the common law, statutory law, equity, and special law in its various forms.

CORPUS JURIS CANONICI

Corpus Juris Canonici (kor-p<<schwa>>s joor-is k<<schwa>>-non-<<schwa>>-sl). [Latin] Hist. The body of the canon law, compiled from the decrees and canons of the Roman Catholic Church. • The Corpus Juris Canonici emerged during the 12th century, beginning with the publication of Gratian's Decretum (c. 1140). In addition to the Decretum, it includes Raymond of Peñaforte's Liber Extra (1234), the Liber Sextus of Pope Boniface VIII (1298), the Clementines of Pope Clement V (1313), the Extravagantes Joannis of Pope John XXII (1325), and Extravagantes Communes published by Pope John's successors (1499–1502). In 1582, the entire collection was edited by a commission of church dignitaries and officially named the Corpus Juris Canonici. It remained the Catholic Church's primary body of law until the promulgation of the Code of Canon Law in 1917, now replaced by that of 1983.

“After Gratian, later papal enactments, called ‘decretals,’ were collected and issued by the authority of various popes.... A revised edition of such ‘decretals’ ... was presented to Pope Gregory IX in 1234 — only a short while, therefore, after the final form of Magna Carta in 1225 — and issued by him with statutory force. The revision freely made changes in the text of the enactments and the resulting compilation in four ‘books’ was regarded as a ‘Code,’ corresponding to the ‘Code’ of Justinian, just as the Decretum of Gratian corresponded to the Digest.... All these compilations and collections were, from the sixteenth century on, known as the Corpus Juris Canonici, the ‘Body of Canon Law,’ and formed the basis of the law administered in the Church courts.” Max Radin, Handbook of Anglo-American Legal History 33–34 (1936).

CORPUS JURIS CIVILIS

Corpus Juris Civilis (kor-p<<schwa>>s joor-is s<<schwa>>-vil-is or s<<schwa>>-v I-lis). The body of the civil law, compiled and codified under the direction of the Roman emperor Justinian in A.D. 528–556. • The collection includes four works — the Institutes, the Digest (or Pandects), the Code, and the Novels. The title Corpus Juris Civilis was not original, or even early, but was modeled on the Corpus Juris Canonici and given in the 16th century and later to editions of the texts of the four component parts of the Roman law. See ROMAN LAW. Cf. JUSTINIAN CODE.

CORPUS POSSESSIONIS

corpus possessionis (kor-p<<schwa>>s p<<schwa>>-zes[h]-ee-oh-nis). [Latin] Roman law. The physical aspect of possession. See animus possidendi under ANIMUS.

CORPUS PRO CORPORE

corpus pro corpore (kor-p<<schwa>>s proh kor-p<<schwa>>-ree). [Latin] Hist. Body for body. • This phrase commonly expressed the liability of a surety in a civil action (a mainpernor). See MAINPRISE.

CORREAL

correal (kor-ee-<<schwa>>l or k<<schwa>>-ree-<<schwa>>l), adj.[fr. Latin correus “codebtor”] Roman law. Of or relating to liability that is joint and several. • A correal debtor who paid an entire obligation had no right of action against a codebtor. See CORREUS; SOLIDARY.

“If Aulus, having first obtained from Titius the promise of a hundred aurei, turned to Seius and said, Spondesne mihi, Sei, cosdem centum aureos dare?(Do you engage, Seius, to give me the same one hundred aurei?), then if Seius answered, Spondeo, there was one single obligation for a hundred aurei, binding in full on each of the two debtors. Aulus could demand a hundred from Titius or a hundred from Seius, and in case of non-payment could sue either one, taking his choice between them, for the full amount. If either paid the hundred, whether willingly or by compulsion, the other was released: for there was but one debt, and that was now discharged. This kind of obligation is called correal obligation (correal, from con, and reus or rei, connected parties, parties associated in a common debt or credit).” James Hadley, Introduction to Roman Law 258 (1881).

correality (kor-ee-al-<<schwa>>-tee), n. The quality or state of being correal; the relationship between parties to an obligation that terminates when an entire payment is made by one of two or more debtors to a creditor, or a payment is made by a debtor to one of two or more creditors.

“But there were circumstances, apart from indivisibility, in which each of the parties might be liable in full.... Several were liable or entitled, each in solidum, under an obligation, but the thing was due only once. Satisfaction by, or to, one of those liable, or entitled, ended the whole obligation, and action by one of the joint creditors, or against one of the debtors, not only ‘novated’ the obligation between the actual parties, but destroyed it altogether as against the others. This relation is commonly called correality (correi debendi vel credendi).” W.W. Buckland, A Manual of Roman Private Law 349–50 (2d ed. 1939).

CORREAL OBLIGATION

correal obligation.See OBLIGATION.

CORRECTED POLICY

corrected policy.See INSURANCE POLICY.

CORRECTION

correction, n. 1. Generally, the act or an instance of making right what is wrong . 2. #### COST ACCOUNTING METHOD cost accounting method. See ACCOUNTING METHOD.

COST AND FREIGHT

cost and freight. A mercantile-contract term allocating the rights and duties of the buyer and the seller of goods with respect to delivery, payment, and risk of loss, whereby the seller must (1) clear the goods for export, (2) arrange for transportation by water, and (3) pay the costs of shipping to the port of destination. • When the goods are safely stowed on the receiving ship while docked, the seller's delivery is complete; the risk of loss then passes to the buyer. This term is used only when goods are transported by sea or inland waterway. — Abbr. CF; CFR; C & F; CandF. Cf. COST, INSURANCE, AND FREIGHT ; FREE ON BOARD. [Cases: Sales 77(2), 202(5). C.J.S. Sales §§ 96–98.]

COST APPROACH

cost approach. A method of appraising real property, based on the cost of building a new structure with the same utility, assuming that an informed buyer would pay no more for the property than it would cost to build a new structure having the same usefulness. Cf. MARKET APPROACH; INCOME APPROACH. [Cases: Taxation 348(4).]

COST BASIS

cost basis. See BASIS(2).

COST-BENEFIT ANALYSIS

COST-BOOK MINING COMPANY

cost-book mining company. An association of persons organized for the purpose of working mines or lodes, whose capital stock is divided into shares that are transferable without the consent of other members. • The management of the mine is entrusted to an agent called a purser. [Cases: Mines and Minerals 101. C.J.S. Mines and Minerals §§ 396–401.]

COST DEPLETION

cost depletion. Oil & gas. The recovery of an oil-and-gas producer's basis (i.e., investment) in a producing well by deducting the basis proportionately over the producing life of the well. Treas. Reg. § 1.611–2. Cf. PERCENTAGE DEPLETION .

“Under cost depletion, the taxpayer in an oil and gas property deducts the basis in the property from the income as oil and gas are produced and sold. Cost depletion is calculated by a formula ... [that] relates the recovery of the taxpayer's investment to the proportion that the current unit sales of oil and gas bear to the total anticipated sales of oil and gas from the property. The investment is recovered ratably over the life of the reserves.” John S. Lowe, Oil and Gas Law in a Nutshell 353 (3d ed. 1995).

COST, INSURANCE, AND FREIGHT

cost, insurance, and freight. A mercantile-contract term allocating the rights and duties of the buyer and the seller of goods with respect to delivery, payment, and risk of loss, whereby the seller must (1) clear the goods for export, (2) arrange for transportation by water, (3) procure insurance against the buyer's risk of damage during carriage, and (4) pay the costs of shipping to the port of destination. • The seller's delivery is complete (and the risk of loss passes to the buyer) when the goods are loaded on the receiving ship while docked in the port of shipment. This term is used only when goods are transported by sea or inland waterway. — Abbr. CIF; C.I.F. Cf. COST AND FREIGHT; FREE ON BOARD. [Cases: Sales 77(2). C.J.S. Sales §§ 96–98.]

“ ‘C.i.f.’ is a mercantile symbol that is commonly used in international sales contracts. It is defined by section 2–320 of the UCC and by the Incoterms — 1953 and the Revised American Foreign Trade Definitions — 1941. Under all of these definitions the letters ‘c.i.f.’ mean that the price covers the cost of the goods, the cost of insuring them for the benefit of the order of the buyer, and the cost of carrying them to the named point, almost always the destination. Like the other mercantile symbols, the meaning of ‘C.I.F.’ may be varied by agreement.” William D. Hawkland, Uniform Commercial Code Series § 2-320:01 (1984).

CIF destination. A contractual term denoting that the price includes in a lump sum the cost of the goods and the insurance and freight to the named destination. — Also termed C.I.F. place of destination. [Cases: Sales 77(2). C.J.S. Sales §§ 96–98.]

COST JUSTIFICATION

cost justification. Under the Robinson–Patman Act, an affirmative defense against a charge of price discrimination dependent on the seller's showing that it incurs lower costs in serving those customers who are paying less. 15 USCA § 13(a).

COST-OF-CAPITAL METHOD

cost-of-capital method. A means of measuring a utility's cost of acquiring debt and equity capital. • Regulatory commissions often use this method to determine a fair rate of return for the utility's investors. [Cases: Public Utilities 129. C.J.S. Public Utilities §§ 35, 38–41, 57.]

COUNT

count, n. Procedure. 1. The part of an indictment charging the suspect with a distinct offense. 2. In a complaint or similar pleading, the statement of a distinct claim. Cf. DECLARATION(7). [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 627; Pleading 53. C.J.S. Pleading § 150.]

“This word ... is in our old law-books used synonymously with declaration.... But when the suit embraces two or more causes of action (each of which of course requires a different statement), or when the plaintiff makes two or more different statements of one and the same cause of action, each several statement is called a count, and all of them, collectively, constitute the declaration.” 1 John Bouvier, A Law Dictionary 245 (1839).

common count. Hist. In a plaintiff's pleading in an action for debt, boilerplate language that is not founded on the circumstances of the individual case but is intended to guard against a possible variance and to enable the plaintiff to take advantage of any ground of liability that the proof may disclose. • In the action for indebitatus assumpsit, the common count stated that the defendant had failed to pay a debt as promised. See indebitatus assumpsit under ASSUMPSIT.

general count.A count that states the plaintiff's claim without undue particularity.

money count.Hist. A count, usu. founded on a simple contract, giving rise to a claim for payment of money.

“Simple contracts, express or implied, resulting in mere debts, are of so frequent occurrence as causes of action, that certain concise forms of counts were devised for suing upon them. These are called the ‘indebitatus’ or ‘money counts.’” 2 Stewart Rapalje & Robert L. Lawrence, A Dictionary of American and English Law 833 (1883).

multiple counts.Several separate causes of action or charged offenses contained in a single pleading or indictment. [Cases: Pleading 50. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 147–148.]

omnibus count (ahm-ni-b<<schwa>>s). A count that combines into one count all money claims, claims for goods sold and delivered, claims for work and labor, and claims for an account stated.

separate count.One of two or more criminal charges contained in one indictment, each charge constituting a separate indictment for which the accused may be tried. [Cases: Indictment and Information 97. C.J.S. Indictments and Informations § 133.]

several count.One of two or more counts in a pleading, each of which states a different cause of action. [Cases: Pleading 50, 53. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 147–148, 150.]

special count.A section of a pleading in which the plaintiff's claim is stated with great particularity — usu. employed only when the pleading rules require specificity. [Cases: Pleading 18, 50. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 70–71, 147–148, 162, 165.]

3. A canvassing. See CANVASS(2).4.Hist. The plaintiff's declaration, or initial pleading, in a real action. See DECLARATION(7).5.Patents. The part of a patent application that defines the subject matter in a priority contest (i.e., an interference) between two or more applications or between one or more applications and one or more patents. See INTERFERENCE(3). [Cases: Patents 106(2). C.J.S. Patents §§ 163–164, 167, 169.]

count,vb.1. In pleading, to declare or state; to narrate the facts that state a claim. 2.Hist. To plead orally; to plead or argue a case in court.

COUNTED VOTE

counted vote.See VOTE(4).

COUNTER

counter.Hist. An advocate or professional pleader; one who counts (i.e., orally recites) for a client. • Counters had coalesced into an identifiable group practicing before the Common Bench by the beginning of the 13th century. They were the leaders of the medieval legal profession, and over time came to be known as serjeants-at-law. — Also spelled countor; contor; counteur. See SERJEANT-AT-LAW.

COUNTERACTION

counteraction. See COUNTERCLAIM.

COUNTERAFFIDAVIT

counteraffidavit. See AFFIDAVIT.

COUNTERBOND

counterbond. See BOND(2).

COUNTERCLAIM

counterclaim,n. A claim for relief asserted against an opposing party after an original claim has been made; esp., a defendant's claim in opposition to or as a setoff against the plaintiff's claim. — Also termed counteraction; countersuit; cross-demand. Cf. CROSS-CLAIM. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 775–784; Set-off and Counterclaim 9. C.J.S. Set-off and Counterclaim §§ 9–10, 65.] — counterclaim,vb. — counterclaimant,n.

compulsory counterclaim.A counterclaim that must be asserted to be cognizable, usu. because it relates to the opposing party's claim and arises out of the same subject matter. • If a defendant fails to assert a compulsory counterclaim in the original action, that claim may not be brought in a later, separate action (with some excep-tions). See Fed. R. Civ. P. 13(a). [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 775; Judgment 585(4); Set-off and Counterclaim 60. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 775, 777–778; Set-off and Counterclaim §§ 102–103.] permissive counterclaim.A counterclaim that need not be asserted to be cognizable, usu. because it does not arise out of the same subject matter as the opposing party's claim or involves third parties over which the court does not have jurisdiction. • Permissive counterclaims may be brought in a later, separate action. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 13(b).

COUNTERDEED

counterdeed. See DEED.

COUNTERFEISANCE

counterfeisance (kown-t<<schwa>>r-fee-z<<schwa>>nts).Archaic. The act of counterfeiting.

COUNTERFEIT

counterfeit,vb. To unlawfully forge, copy, or imitate an item, esp. money or a negotiable instrument (such as a security or promissory note) or other officially issued item of value (such as a postage stamp or a food stamp), or to possess such an item without authorization and with the intent to deceive or defraud by presenting the item as genuine. • Counterfeiting includes producing or selling an item that displays a reproduction of a genuine trademark, usu. to deceive buyers into thinking they are purchasing genuine merchandise. See 18 USCA §§ 470 et seq. [Cases: Counterfeiting 1.Trade Regulation 312. C.J.S. Counterfeiting §§ 2, 8; Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 151.] — counterfeiting,n. — counterfeit,n. — counterfeit,adj.

“Literally a counterfeit is an imitation intended to pass for an original. Hence it is spurious or false, and to counterfeit is to make false. For this reason the verbs counterfeit and forge are often employed as synonyms and the same is true to some extent of the corresponding nouns. No error is involved in this usage but it is important to distinguish between the words as far as possible when used as the labels of criminal offenses. In the most restricted sense, [c]ounterfeiting is the unlawful making of false money in the similitude of the genuine. At one time under English statutes it was made treason. Under modern statutes it is a felony.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 431–32 (3d ed. 1982).

COUNTERFEIT ACCESS DEVICE AND COMPUTER FRAUD AND ABUSE ACT OF 1984

Counterfeit Access Device and Computer Fraud and Abuse Act of 1984.A federal statute that criminalizes various computer-related activities such as accessing without permission a computer system belonging to a bank or the federal government, or using that access to improperly obtain anything of value. 18 USCA § 1030.

COUNTERFEITER

counterfeiter. A person who makes an unauthorized imitation of something (esp. a document, currency, or another's signature) with the intent to deceive or defraud.

COUNTERFEITING

counterfeiting,n. The unlawful forgery, copying, or imitation of an item, esp. money or a negotiable instrument (such as a security or promissory note) or other officially issued item of value (such as a postage stamp), or the unauthorized possession of such an item, with the intent to deceive or defraud by claiming or passing the item as genuine. See 18 USCA §§ 470 et seq. — counterfeit,vb. — counterfeit,adj. — counterfeit,n.

COUNTERFEIT MARK

counterfeit mark.See counterfeit trademark under TRADEMARK.

COUNTERFEIT RECORDING

counterfeit recording. Copyright. An unauthorized copy of a copyright-protected recording's sounds, artwork, label, trademark, or packaging. — Also termed bootleg recording.

COUNTERFEIT TRADEMARK

counterfeit trademark. See TRADEMARK.

COUNTERFOIL

counterfoil (kown-t<<schwa>>r-foyl), n. A detachable part of a writing on which the particulars of the main part are summarized. • The most common example is a check stub, on which the date, the payee, and the amount are typically noted.

COUNTERLETTER

counterletter. Civil law. A document in which the parties to a simulated contract record their true intentions. La. Civ. Code art. 2025. • For example, the record owner of real property may acknowledge in a counterletter that another person actually owns the property; the counterletter may then be used when the property is to be recon-veyed after a period. A counterletter can have no effect against a third party acting in good faith. See simulated contract under CONTRACT.

COUNTERMAND

countermand (kown-t<<schwa>>r-mand), n. 1. A contradictory command that overrides or annuls a previous one. 2. An action that has the effect of voiding something previously ordered; a revocation. — countermand (kown-t<< schwa>>r-mandorkown-), vb.

COUNTEROFFER

counteroffer, n. Contracts. An offeree's new offer that varies the terms of the original offer and that ordinarily rejects and terminates the original offer. • A late or defective acceptance is considered a counteroffer. See MIRROR-IMAGE RULE. [Cases: Contracts 24. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 52–53.] — counteroffer, vb. — counterofferor, n.

COUNTERPART

counterpart. 1. In conveyancing, a corresponding part of an instrument <the other half of the indenture — the counterpart — could not be found>. 2. One of two or more copies or duplicates of a legal instrument <this lease may be executed in any number of counterparts, each of which is considered an original>.

“Formerly ‘part’ was used as the opposite of ‘counterpart,’ in respect to covenants executed in duplicate, but now each copy is called a ‘counterpart.’ ” 2 Stewart Rapalje & Robert L. Lawrence, A Dictionary of American and English Law 927 (1883).

“Counterparts are not nowadays written on the same parchment, but that which is executed by the grantor of an interest is called the ‘original,’ while that which is executed by the party to whom the interest passes — for ex-ample, a lessee — is called the ‘counterpart.’ ” G.C. Cheshire, Modern Law of Real Property 674 (3d ed. 1933).

counter will. See mutual will under WILL.

COUNTEZ

countez (kawn-teez). [Law French] Hist. A direction given by a clerk of a court to a crier, after a jury was sworn, to count the jury members.

“Of this ignorance we may see daily instances, in the abuse of two legal terms of ancient French; one, the prologue to all proclamations, ‘oyez, or hear ye,’ which is generally pronounced most unmeaningly, ‘O yes:’ the other, a more pardonable mistake, viz., when a jury are all sworn, the officer bids the crier number them, for which the word in law-french is, ‘countez;’ but we now hear it pronounced in very good English, ‘count these.’ ” 4 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 334 n.s (1769).

COUNTING HOUSE OF THE KING'S HOUSEHOLD

Counting House of the King's Household. See BOARD OF GREEN CLOTH.

COUNTRY

country. 1. A nation or political state; STATE(1). 2. The territory of such a nation or state.

COUNTY

county. The largest territorial division for local government within a state, generally considered to be a political subdivision and a quasi-corporation. • Every county exists as a result of a sovereign act of legislation, either constitutional or statutory, separating it from the rest of the state as an integral part of its territory and establishing it as one of the primary divisions of the state for purposes of civil administration. — Abbr. co. [Cases: Counties 1. C.J.S. Counties §§ 2–4.]

“A county is a part of the realm, intirely governed by one sheriff under the king, but all subject to the general government of the realm; and therefore every county is as it were an intire body of itself, so that upon a feoffment of lands in many towns in one county, livery of seisin made in one parcel in any one of the towns in the name of all, sufficeth for all the lands in all the other towns within the same county: but upon a feoffment of lands in divers counties, there must be livery of seisin in every county.” Sir Henry Finch, Law, or a Discourse Thereof 79 (1759).

foreign county. Any county separate from that of a county where matters arising in the former county are called into question, though both may lie within the same state or country.

COUNTY AGENT

county court. See COURT.

COUNTY JUDGE

county judge. See JUDGE.

COUNTY OFFICER

county officer. See OFFICER(1).

COUNTY PALATINE

county palatine (pal-*<<schwa>>-t*ln or -tin). Hist. A county in which the lord held certain royal privileges, such as the right to pardon a felon or to have indictments recite that offenses were committed against the lord's — rather than the king's — peace. • In England, there were three such counties: Chester, Durham, and Lancaster. The separate legal systems in these counties were slowly eliminated; the last vestiges of a separate system were abolished by the Courts Act (1971). Cf. proprietary government under GOVERNMENT.

“The counties palatine were Chester, Durham, and Lancaster. Whatever may be the precise date at which these counties became ‘Palatine,’ it seems likely that there was in Saxon times a jurisdiction equivalent to that of the Palatine earl, and originating in usurpation and necessity. The Central Government was too far away both before and after the Conquest to control effectually the administration of the Marches, which were always turbulent and lawless districts.” A.T. Carter, A History of English Legal Institutions 192 (4th ed. 1910).

COUNTY PROPERTY

county property. Property that a county is authorized to acquire, hold, or sell. [Cases: Counties 103. C.J.S. Counties § 143.]

COUNTY PURPOSE

county purpose. An objective pursued by a county; esp., one that a county levies taxes for. [Cases: Counties 190.1.]

COUNTY SEAT

county seat. The municipality where a county's principal offices are located. — Also termed county town. [Cases: Counties 25. C.J.S. Counties § 45.]

COUNTY SUPERVISOR

COUR DE CASSATION

Cour de Cassation. See COURT OF CASSATION.

COURIER

courier. A messenger, esp. one who delivers parcels, packages, and the like. • In international law, the term denotes a messenger duly authorized by a sending state to deliver a diplomatic pouch.

COURSE OF BUSINESS

course of business. The normal routine in managing a trade or business. — Also termed ordinary course of business; regular course of business; ordinary course; regular course. [Cases:

---

Customs and Usages 9. C.J.S. Customs and Usages § 15.]

COURSE OF DEALING

course of dealing. An established pattern of conduct between parties in a series of transactions (e.g., multiple sales of goods over a period of years). • If a dispute arises, the parties' course of dealing can be used as evidence of how they intended to carry out the transaction. Cf. COURSE OF PERFORMANCE ; trade usage under USAGE. [Cases: Contracts 170. C.J.S. Contracts § 340.]

“A course of dealing is distinguishable from a course of performance. As defined by the [UCC], ‘course of dealing’ relates to conduct under other transactions which occurred with regularity prior to the formation of the present contract, while ‘course of performance’ relates to the conduct of the parties under the contract in question subsequent to its formation. However, in meaning the two expressions are essentially equivalent.” Ronald A. Anderson, Uniform Commercial Code § 1-205:86 (1997).

COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT

course of employment. Events that occur or circumstances that exist as a part of one's employment; esp., the time during which an employee furthers an employer's goals through employer-mandated directives. Cf. SCOPE OF EMPLOYMENT ; ZONE OF EMPLOYMENT.

COURSE OF PERFORMANCE

course of performance. A sequence of previous performance by either party after an agreement has been entered into, when a contract involves repeated occasions for performance and both parties know the nature of the performance and have an opportunity to object to it. • A course of performance accepted or acquiesced in without objection is relevant to determining the meaning of the agreement. Cf. COURSE OF DEALING; trade usage under USAGE. [Cases: Contracts 170. C.J.S. Contracts § 340.]

“[C]ommon law courts have recognized the necessity of learning how people usually talk and what they usually mean by their language before one interprets their contracts.... ‘[C]ourse of performance’ refers to a pattern of performance of the contract that is the subject of the dispute, as contrasted to ‘course of dealing’ which refers to the pattern of performance in prior contracts between the same parties.” Claude Rohwer & Gordon D. Schaber, Contracts in a Nutshell 171–73 (4th ed. 1997).

“The phrase ‘course of performance’ relates to the way the parties have acted in performance of the particular contract in question. The judicial inquiry on this point is limited to the way the parties have acted in carrying out the particular contract that is in controversy, as distinguished from a general pattern of dealing that may embrace many other contracts or transactions between the parties.” Ronald A. Anderson, Uniform Commercial Code § 1-205:74 (1997).

COURSE OF TRADE

course of trade. See trade usage under USAGE.

COURT

court,n.1. A governmental body consisting of one or more judges who sit to adjudicate disputes and administer justice .

“A court ... is a permanently organized body, with independent judicial powers defined by law, meeting at a time and place fixed by law for the judicial public administration of justice.” 1 William J. Hughes, Federal Practice, Jurisdiction & Procedure § 7, at 8 (1931).

2. The judge or judges who sit on such a governmental body <the court asked the parties to approach the bench>.3. A legislative assembly <in Massachusetts, the General Court is the legislature>.4. The locale for a legal proceeding <an out-of-court statement>.5. The building where the judge or judges convene to adjudicate disputes and administer justice <the lawyers agreed to meet at the court at 8:00 a.m.>. — Also termed (in sense 5) courthouse.

admiralty court.See ADMIRALTY(1).

appeals court.See appellate court.

appellate court.A court with jurisdiction to review decisions of lower courts or administrative agencies. — Also termed appeals court; appeal court; court of appeals; court of appeal; court of review. [Cases: Courts 203–254.]

court of inquiry. 1. Hist. In English law, a court appointed by the monarch to ascertain whether it was proper to use extreme measures against someone who had been court-martialed. 2. Hist. In American law, an agency created under articles of war and vested with the power to investigate the nature of a transaction or accusation of an officer or soldier. 3. In some jurisdictions, a procedure that allows a magistrate to examine witnesses in relation to any offense that the magistrate has a good-faith reason to believe was committed.

court of instance. See trial court.

court of last resort. The court having the authority to handle the final appeal of a case, such as the U.S. Supreme Court.

court of law. 1. Broadly, any judicial tribunal that administers the laws of a state or nation. 2. A court that proceeds according to the course of the common law, and that is governed by its rules and principles. Cf. court of equity.

court of limited jurisdiction. A court with jurisdiction over only certain types of cases, or cases in which the amount in controversy is limited. [Cases: Courts 159–197. C.J.S. Courts §§ 3, 23, 25–35.]

court of ordinary. See probate court.

court of original jurisdiction. A court where an action is initiated and first heard. [Cases: Courts 118–158.1, 206. C.J.S. Courts §§ 3, 23–31, 33–35.]

court of record. 1. A court that is required to keep a record of its proceedings. • The court's records are presumed accurate and cannot be collaterally impeached. See OF RECORD(2). [Cases: Courts 48. C.J.S. Courts § 4.]

“The distinction that we still draw between ‘courts of record’ and courts that are ‘not of record’ takes us back to early times when the king asserts that his own word as all that has taken place in his presence is incontestable. This privilege he communicates to his own special court; its testimony as to all that is done before it is conclusive. If any question arises as to what happened on a previous occasion, the justices decide this by recording or bearing record (recordantur, portant recordum). Other courts ... may and, upon occasion, must bear record; but their records are not irrefragable .... We easily slip into saying that a court whose record is incontrovertible is a court which has record (habet recordum) or is a court of record, while a court whose record may be disputed has no record (non habet recordum) and is no court of record.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 669 (2d ed. 1899).

2. A court that may fine and imprison people for contempt.

“A court of record is, strictly speaking, a court which has power to fine and imprison.” Lancelot Feilding Everest, Everest and Strode's Law of Estoppel 13 (1923).

court of review. See appellate court.

court of special jurisdiction. See limited court.

court of special session. A court that has no stated term and is not continuous, but is organized only for hearing a particular case. [Cases: Courts 64. C.J.S. Courts § 119.]

criminal court. A court with jurisdiction over criminal matters.

Crown Court. See CROWN COURT.

Dean of Guild Court. See DEAN OF GUILD COURT.

de facto court (di fak-toh). 1. A court functioning under the authority of a statute that is later adjudged to be invalid. — Also termed court de facto. [Cases: Courts 59. C.J.S. Courts § 8.] 2. A court established and acting under the authority of a de facto government.

dependency court. A court having jurisdiction over matters involving abused and neglected children, foster care, the termination of parental rights, and (sometimes) adoption.

diocesan court (di-ahs-i-sin). Eccles. law. A court exercising general or limited jurisdiction (as determined by patent, local custom, or legislation) of matters arising within a bishop's diocese. • Diocesan courts include the consistory court, the courts of the commissaries, and the courts of archdeacons.

district court. 1. A trial court having general jurisdiction within its judicial district. — Abbr. D.C. [Cases: Courts 191.] 2. Scots law. A local court, usu. staffed by lay magistrates, with jurisdiction over petty crimes.

divided court. See DIVIDED COURT.

divisional court. An English court made up of two or more judges from the High Court of Justice sitting in special cases that cannot be disposed of by one judge. • Each division of the High Court has a divisional court, e.g., the Divisional Court of the Family Division. With the exception of the Divisional Court of the Chancery Division, which has jurisdiction to review land-registration appeals from the county court, almost all judicial appeals are from decisions of a magistrates' court. The Divisional Court of the Queen's Bench Division hears appeals from the Crown Court or the magistrates' court by way of case stated in criminal prosecutions, which is the most frequent use of a divisional court.

domestic court. 1. A court having jurisdiction at the place of a party's residence or domicile. 2. See family court.

domestic-relations court. See family court.

drug court. A court that hears cases against nonviolent adults and juveniles, who are often first-time offenders and who are usu. charged with possession of a controlled substance or with committing a minor drug-related crime. • Drug courts focus on treatment rather than on incarceration.

ecclesiastical court (i-klee-zee-as-ti-k<<schwa>>l). 1. A religious court that hears matters concerning a particular religion. 2. In England, a court having jurisdiction over matters concerning the Church of England (the established church) as well as the duties and rights of the people serving it, but whose modern jurisdiction is limited to matters of ecclesiastical discipline and church property. — Also termed church court; court christian; spiritual court; (in Latin) christianitatis curia; curia christianitatis. [Cases: Religious Societies 12, 14. C.J.S. Religious Socie-ties §§ 84–86, 88–92.]

“The ecclesiastical courts exercised a jurisdiction which played a part of the development of the English legal system, and their work was not confined to controlling the clergy and doctrines of the Church. The jurisdiction of these courts was of particular significance before the Reformation, but, in certain matters and especially in ma-trimonial causes and the law of succession to property on death (testate and intestate succession), it remained of importance till the middle of the nineteenth century.” 1 A.K.R. Kiralfy, Potter's Historical Introduction to English Law and Its Institutions 211 (4th ed. 1958).

examining court. A lower court (usu. presided over by a magistrate) that determines probable cause and sets bail at a preliminary hearing in a criminal case.

family court. A court having jurisdiction over matters involving divorce, child custody and support, paternity, domestic violence, and other family-law issues. — Also termed domestic-relations court; court of domestic re-lations; domestic court. [Cases: Courts 174.]

federal court. A court having federal jurisdiction, including the U.S. Supreme Court, courts of appeals, district courts, bankruptcy courts, and tax courts. — Also termed United States court.

foreign court. 1. The court of a foreign nation. 2. The court of another state.

forty-days court. See COURT OF ATTACHMENTS.

franchise court. See FRANCHISE COURT.

full court. A court session that is attended by all the court's judges; an en banc court. — Also termed full bench.

General Court. See GENERAL COURT.

general-jurisdiction court. See court of general jurisdiction.

High Commission Court. See COURT OF HIGH COMMISSION.

High Court. 1. HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE. 2. HIGH COURT OF JUSTICIARY.

High Court of Admiralty. See HIGH COURT OF ADMIRALTY.

High Court of Chivalry. See HIGH COURT OF CHIVALRY.

High Court of Delegates. See COURT OF DELEGATES.

High Court of Errors and Appeals. See COURT OF ERRORS AND APPEALS.

High Court of Justice. See HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

High Court of Justiciary. See HIGH COURT OF JUSTICIARY.

higher court. See court above.

highest court. The court of last resort in a particular jurisdiction; a court whose decision is final and cannot be appealed because no higher court exists to consider the matter. • The U.S. Supreme Court, for example, is the highest federal court.

hot court. A court, esp. an appellate court, that is familiar with the briefs filed in the case, and therefore with the issues, before oral argument. • Typically, a hot court controls the oral argument with its questioning, as opposed to listening passively to set presentations of counsel.

housing court. A court dealing primarily with landlord-and-tenant matters, including disputes over maintenance, lease terms, and building and fire codes. [Cases: Courts 174.]

hundred court. Hist. In England, a larger court baron, held for all inhabitants of a particular hundred rather than a manor, in which the free suitors were the judges (jurors) and the steward the register. • A hundred court was not a court of record, and it resembled a court-baron in all respects except for its larger territorial jurisdiction. The last hundred court was abolished in 1971. — Also termed hundred moot. See COURT BARON.

impeachment court. See COURT FOR THE TRIAL OF IMPEACHMENTS.

inferior court. 1. Any court that is subordinate to the chief appellate tribunal within a judicial system. 2. A court of special, limited, or statutory jurisdiction, whose record must show the existence of jurisdiction in any given case to give its ruling presumptive validity. — Also termed lower court.

inquisitorial court. A court in which the inquisitorial system prevails.

“We should remember that in the ‘inquisitorial court’ the roles of prosecutor, defender, and judge are combined in one person or group of persons. It is no accident that such a court commonly holds its sessions in secret. The usual explanation for this is that the methods by which it extracts confessions cannot stand public scrutiny. But the reason runs deeper. The methods employed by an inquisitorial court, even if open to the public, could scarcely be a secret of meaningful observation by an outsider. It is only when the roles of prosecutor, defender, and judge are separated that a process of decision can take on an order and coherence that will make it understandable to an outside audience and convince that audience that all sides of the controversy have been considered.” Lon L. Fuller, Anatomy of the Law 35–36 (1968).

instance court. 1. See trial court. 2.Hist. The admiralty court in England exercising original jurisdiction in all cases except those involving prizes.

insular court.A federal court with jurisdiction over U.S. island territories, such as the Virgin Islands. [Cases: Federal Courts 1021–1024.]

intermediate court.An appellate court that is below a court of last resort.

International Court of Justice.See INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE.

International Criminal Court.See INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL COURT.

International Trade Court.See UNITED STATES COURT OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE.

J.P. court.See justice court.

justice court.A court, presided over by a justice of the peace, that has jurisdiction to hear minor criminal cases, matters involving small amounts of money, or certain specified claims (such as forcible-entry-and-detainer suits). — Also termed justice-of-the-peace court; J.P. court. [Cases: Justices of the Peace 31. C.J.S. Justices of the Peace § 26, 47.]

juvenile court. 1. A court having jurisdiction over cases involving children under a specified age, usu. 18. • Illinois enacted the first statewide juvenile-court act in 1899. Today every state has a specialized juvenile or family court with exclusive original delinquency jurisdiction. — Also termed children's court. [Cases: Courts 174.] 2. A court having special jurisdiction over orphaned, delinquent, dependent, and neglected children. • This type of juvenile court is created by statute and derives its power from the specific wording of the statute, usu. having exclusive original jurisdiction over matters involving abuse and neglect, adoption, status offenses, and delinquency. Generally, juvenile courts are special courts of a paternal nature that have jurisdiction over the care, custody, and control of children (as defined by the statute). The jurisdiction of the juvenile court is exercised as between the state (for the child) and the parents of the child and is not concerned with a custody controversy that does not affect the morale, health, or welfare of the child. A juvenile court is not a criminal court. The primary concern of a juvenile court is the child's immediate welfare. See UNIFORM JUVENILE COURT ACT.

kangaroo court. 1. A self-appointed tribunal or mock court in which the principles of law and justice are disregarded, perverted, or parodied. • Kangaroo courts may be assembled by various groups, such as prisoners in a jail (to settle disputes between inmates) and players on a baseball team (to “punish” teammates who commit fielding errors).2. A court or tribunal characterized by unauthorized or irregular procedures, esp. so as to render a fair proceeding impossible. 3. A sham legal proceeding. • The term's origin is uncertain, but it appears to be an Americanism. It has been traced to 1853 in the American West. “Kangaroo” might refer to the illogical leaps between “facts” and conclusions, or to the hapless defendant's quick bounce from court to gallows.

King's Court. See CURIA REGIS.

land court. A court having jurisdiction over land-related matters including: (1) exclusive original jurisdiction of applications for registration of land titles and related questions, writs of entry and petitions to clear title to real estate, petitions to determine the validity and extent of municipal zoning ordinances, bylaws, and regulations, and proceedings for foreclosure and redemption from tax titles; (2) original concurrent jurisdiction of declaratory judgment proceedings, shared with the supreme judicial, superior, and probate courts; and (3) original concurrent equity jurisdiction in land-related matters, except for cases of specific performance of land contracts. • Land courts today exist in the United States only in Massachusetts and Hawaii. [Cases: Courts 174, 472.1. C.J.S. Courts §§ 186–187.]

landed-estates court. Hist. English law. A statutorily established tribunal to dispose of encumbered real estate more promptly and easily than could be accomplished through the ordinary judicial machinery. • This type of court was first established in Ireland by acts of 11 & 12 Vict., ch. 48 and 12 & 13 Vict., ch. 77. The purpose of the court was to enable the owner, or any lessee of an unexpired term of 63 years or less, of encumbered land to apply to commissioners to direct a sale. The court served as a court of record and was called the Incumbered Estates Court. A later act abolished that court and created a new permanent tribunal called the Landed Estates Court. 21 & 22 Vict., ch. 72.

legatine court. A court held by a papal legate and having ecclesiastical jurisdiction.

legislative court. A court created by a statute, as opposed to one created by a constitution. — Also termed (in federal law) Article I court. [Cases: Courts 41. C.J.S. Courts §§ 93–96, 100, 102.]

levy court. Hist. A court that once existed in the District of Columbia, exercising many of the functions typical of county commissioners or county supervisors in the states, such as constructing and repairing roads and bridges.

limited court. A court having special jurisdiction conferred by statute, such as a probate court. — Also termed court of special jurisdiction. [Cases: Courts 159–197. C.J.S. Courts §§ 3, 23, 25–35.]

local court. A court whose jurisdiction is limited to a particular territory, such as a state, municipal, or county court.

lord mayor's court. A court of law and equity having jurisdiction in civil cases arising within the city of London and acting as the appellate court from the Chamberlain Court. • It was abolished by the Court Act of 1971.

lower court. 1. See court below. 2. See inferior court.

magistrate's court (maj-i-strayts or -strits). 1. A court with jurisdiction over minor criminal offenses. • Such a court also has the power to bind over for trial persons accused of more serious offenses. — Also termed police court. 2. A court with limited jurisdiction over minor criminal and civil matters. — Sometimes spelled (esp. in England) magistrates' court. — Also termed (in England) court of petty sessions; court of summary jurisdiction. [Cases: Justices of the Peace 31. C.J.S. Justices of the Peace §§ 26, 47.]

maritime court. See ADMIRALTY(1).

mayor's court. A municipal court in which the mayor presides as the judge, with jurisdiction over minor criminal (and sometimes civil) matters, traffic offenses, and the like. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 635. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 204–205.]

military court. A court that has jurisdiction over members of the armed forces and that enforces the Code of Military Justice. See CODE OF MILITARY JUSTICE. [Cases: Armed Services 42.1; Military Justice 870. C.J.S. Military Justice §§ 138–139.]

military court of inquiry. A military court that has special and limited jurisdiction and that is convened to investigate specific matters and, traditionally, to determine whether further procedures are warranted. 10 USCA § 935. [Cases: Armed Services 41. C.J.S. Armed Services §§ 160, 163; Military Justice § 161.]

moot court. See MOOT COURT.

municipal court. A court having jurisdiction (usu. civil and criminal) over cases arising within the municipality in which it sits. • A municipal court's civil jurisdiction to issue a judgment is often limited to a small amount, and its criminal jurisdiction is limited to petty offenses. — Also termed city court. [Cases: Courts 42(5), 186; Municipal Corporations 634. C.J.S. Courts § 102; Municipal Corporations §§ 204–205.]

piepowder court. See PIEPOWDER COURT.

police court. See magistrate's court (1).

practice court. 1. MOOT COURT. 2. (cap.) BAIL COURT.

prerogative court. In New Jersey, a probate court. See probate court.

pretorial court. Hist. A colonial court in Maryland with jurisdiction of capital crimes, consisting of the lord pro-prietary or his lieutenant-general and the council.

prize court. A court having jurisdiction to adjudicate the captures made at sea in time of war. See PRIZE(2). [Cases: War and National Emergency 28(1). C.J.S. War and National Defense §§ 29–39, 43, 45.]

probate court. A court with the power to declare wills valid or invalid, to oversee the administration of estates, and in some states to appoint guardians and approve the adoption of minors. — Also termed surrogate's court; surrogate court; court of ordinary; ordinary's court; county court; orphan's court (abbr. o.c.). See PROBATE. [Cases: Courts 42(4), 198.]

provisional court. A federal court with jurisdiction and powers governed by the order granting its authority, such as a temporary court established in a conquered or occupied territory.

Quarter Sessions Court. See COURT OF GENERAL QUARTER SESSIONS OF THE PEACE.

recorder's court. A court having jurisdiction over felony cases. • This court exists in only a few jurisdictions, such as Michigan, where the recorder's court hears felony cases arising within the Detroit city limits. [Cases: Criminal Law 90.]

register's court. Hist. A probate court in Pennsylvania. See probate court. [Cases: Courts 202.]

sheriff's court. Scots law. The principal inferior court in Scotland, having both civil and criminal jurisdiction.

small-claims court. A court that informally and expeditiously adjudicates claims that seek damages below a specified monetary amount, usu. claims to collect small accounts or debts. — Also termed small-debts court; conciliation court. [Cases: Courts 174.]

spiritual court. See ecclesiastical court.

state court. A court of the state judicial system, as opposed to a federal court.

superior court. 1. In some states, a trial court of general jurisdiction. [Cases: Courts 118–158.1. C.J.S. Courts §§ 3, 23–31, 33–35.] 2. In Pennsylvania, an intermediate court between the trial court and the chief appellate court. [Cases: Courts 242(1).]

supreme court. See SUPREME COURT.

Supreme Court of the United States. See SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

Supreme Judicial Court. The highest appellate court in Maine and Massachusetts. [Cases: Courts 225, 227.]

surrogate's court. See probate court.

tax court. See TAX COURT.

teen court. A group of teenagers who (1) hear cases involving juveniles, usu. first-time offenders, who have acknowledged their guilt or responsibility, and (2) impose sanctions within a fixed range, usu. involving counseling, community service, or restitution. • Some local jurisdictions in more than half the states have provided for this type of tribunal. The juvenile offender consents to the assessment of punishment by this jury of peers. The American Bar Association encourages the formation of these kinds of courts. — Also termed youth court.

Teind Court. See TEIND COURT.

territorial court. A U.S. court established in a U.S. territory (such as the Virgin Islands) and serving as both a federal and state court. • The Constitution authorizes Congress to create such courts. U.S. Const. art. IV, § 3, cl. 2. [Cases: Federal Courts 1021–1024.]

three-judge court. A court made up of three judges; esp., a panel of three federal judges convened to hear a trial in which a statute is challenged on constitutional grounds. • Three-judge courts were virtually abolished in 1976 when Congress restricted their jurisdiction to constitutional challenges to congressional reapportionments. Occasionally, Congress creates three-judge courts in special legislation, as with the 2002 campaign-finance law. Appeals from a three-judge court go directly to the Supreme Court. See 28 USCA § 2284. [Cases: Federal Courts 991–1013. C.J.S. Injunctions § 177.]

traffic court. A court with jurisdiction over prosecutions for parking violations and infractions of road law.

trial court. A court of original jurisdiction where the evidence is first received and considered. — Also termed court of first instance; instance court; court of instance.

Tribal Court. See TRIBAL COURT.

unified family court. In some jurisdictions, a court that hears all family matters, including matters of divorce, juvenile delinquency, adoption, abuse and neglect, and criminal abuse. • A unified family court also hears matters typically heard in family court (in jurisdictions that have statutory family courts) or in courts of general jurisdiction, such as divorce, paternity, and emancipation proceedings. Proponents of unified family courts cite the benefits of having all family-related matters heard by one court — for instance, the benefit of having a child testify only once rather than forcing the child to testify in one court in a divorce proceeding, in a different court in criminal proceedings against an abuser, and in yet another in a civil proceeding initiated by Child Protective Services.

COURT APPOINTED SPECIAL ADVOCATES

Court Appointed Special Advocates. A federally funded program in which trained laypersons act on behalf of children in abuse and neglect cases. • The CASA program began in 1977 in Seattle, Washington. In 1989, the American Bar Association endorsed using a combination of CASA volunteers and attorneys in abuse and neglect cases. CASA volunteers are sanctioned by the ABA as permissible guardians ad litem. — Abbr. CASA.

COURT A QUO

court a quo. See COURT.

COURT BARON

court baron. Hist. A manorial court with jurisdiction over amounts in controversy of 40 shillings or less. • According to some authorities, the court baron developed into two courts: the customary court baron for disputes involving copyholders, and the court baron proper (also known as the freeholders' court baron), in which freeholders were allowed to hold court concerning minor disputes. — Also termed freeholder's court baron.

“In Coke's day it was said that the lord of a manor had one court, ‘a court baron,’ for his freeholders and another court, ‘a customary court,’ for his copyholders, and that in the latter the lord or his steward was the judge. Now over his unfree men the lord had, according to the law of the king's court, almost unlimited power; short of maiming them he might do what he liked with them; and every tenant of an unfree tenement was a tenant at will. Nevertheless in the court rolls and the manuals for stewards which come to us from the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries we cannot discover two courts or two methods of constituting the court. Freeholders and serfs are said to owe suit to the same halimoot, and so far as we can see, the curia which pronounces judgment is always the same body.” 1 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 593 (2d ed. 1898).

COURTESAN

courtesan. 1. A court mistress. 2. A loose woman. 3. A prostitute. — Also spelled courtezan. Cf. CONCUBINE.

COURTESY

courtesy. See CURTESY.

COURTESY SUPERVISION

courtesy supervision. Oversight of a parolee by a correctional agency located in a jurisdiction other than where the parolee was sentenced. • Courtesy supervision is usu. arranged informally between correctional authorities in cases in which the offense is not serious and the rehabilitative needs of the parolee are better served in another jurisdiction.

COURT FOR CONSIDERATION OF CROWN CASES RESERVED

Court for Consideration of Crown Cases Reserved. Hist. A court established in 1848 to review questions of law arising in criminal cases. • Trial judges posed the postverdict questions of law to the Court, which decided whether error had been committed. The Court was abolished in 1907, and its jurisdiction was transferred to the Court of Criminal Appeal. — Also termed Court for Crown Cases Reserved.

“It was an old practice for the judge, in case of a conviction, if he felt a doubt as to the law, to respite judgment or sentence, and discuss the matter informally with the other judges. If they thought that the prisoner had been improperly convicted, he was pardoned. Statutory authority was given to this practice in 1848 by the establishment of the court for Crown Cases Reserved. All the judges were members of this court; and five, of whom the Lord Chief Justice must be one, formed a quorum.” 1 William Holdsworth, A History of English Law 217 (7th ed. 1956).

COURT FOR DIVORCE AND MATRIMONIAL CAUSES

Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes. Hist. A court exercising jurisdiction over family issues, such as legitimacy and divorce. • The Court, which was established in 1857, acquired the matrimonial jurisdiction previously exercised by the ecclesiastical courts. It consisted of the Lord Chancellor, the Chief Justices of the Queen's Bench and Common Pleas, the Chief Baron of Exchequer, the senior puisne judges of the last three courts, and the Judge Ordinary. In most instances, the Judge Ordinary heard the cases. The Judicature Act of 1873 abolished the Court and transferred its jurisdiction to the Probate Divorce and Admiralty Division (now Family Division) of the High Court of Justice.

COURT FOR THE CORRECTION OF ERRORS

Court for the Correction of Errors. A court having jurisdiction to review a lower court. • The name was formerly used in New York and South Carolina.

COURT FOR THE RELIEF OF INSOLVENT DEBTORS

Court for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors. Hist. A court located in London with jurisdiction over bankruptcy matters. • The Bankruptcy Act of 1861 abolished the Court.

COURT FOR THE TRIAL OF IMPEACHMENTS

court for the trial of impeachments. A tribunal empowered to try a government officer or other person brought before it by the process of impeachment. • The U.S. Senate and the British House of Lords have this authority, as do the upper houses of most state legislatures. — Also termed impeachment court; court of impeachment.

COURT HAND

court hand. Hist. A script style used by English court clerks, the words being abbreviated and contracted according to a set of common principles for maintaining brevity and uniformity. • This type of writing, along with the use of Latin (except for technical or untranslatable phrases), was banned early in the 18th century in an effort to make court records more accessible to nonlawyers.

“[T]echnical Latin continued in use from the time of its first introduction, till the subversion of our ancient constitution under Cromwell; when, among many other innovations in the law, some for the better and some for the worse, the language of our records was altered and turned into English. But, at the restoration of king Charles, this novelty was no longer countenanced; the practicers finding it very difficult to express themselves so concisely or significantly in any other language but the Latin. And thus it continued without any sensible inconvenience till about the year 1730, when it was again thought proper that the proceedings at law should be done into English, and it was accordingly so ordered by statute 4 Geo. II. c. 26... What is said of the alteration of language by the statute 4 Geo. II. c. 26 will hold equally strong with respect to the prohibition of using the ancient immutable court hand in writing the records of other legal proceedings; whereby the reading of any record that is forty years old is now become the object of science, and calls for the help of an antiquarian.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 322–23 (1768).

COURTHOUSE

courthouse. See COURT(5).

COURTHOUSE STEPS

courthouse steps. The figurative location of settlement negotiations that occur shortly before trial commences, regardless of the literal location of the negotiations <the parties settled the lawsuit on the courthouse steps>.

COURT LANDS

court lands. Hist. The part of a manor used for the lord's household. — Also termed (in Latin) curtiles terrae.

COURT LEET

court leet (kort leet). Hist. A feudal court responsible for receiving frankpledges and notices of criminal accusations. • Courts leet exercised both governmental and judicial powers, but declined after the justices in eyre began to take over serious criminal cases. The court met once or twice a year, and was presided over by the lord's steward, a lawyer who acted as judge.

---

COURT-MARTIAL

court-martial,n. An ad hoc military court convened under military authority to try someone accused of violating the Uniform Code of Military Justice, particularly a member of the armed forces. [Cases: Armed Services 42; Military Justice 870–898. C.J.S. Armed Services § 166; Military Justice §§ 13, 138–158.] Pl. courts-martial. — court-martial,vb.

“[C]ourts-martial are not a part of the federal judicial system, and the procedure in such courts is regulated by the Articles of War, Army Regulations, orders of the President, and military custom.” Altmayer v. Sanford, 148 F.2d 161, 162 (5th Cir. 1945).

BCD special court-martial.A special court-martial in which a possible punishment is a bad-conduct discharge (a “BCD”).

general court-martial.A proceeding that is presided over by a military judge, and no fewer than five members (who serve as jurors), and that has jurisdiction over all the members of the armed forces. • It is the highest military trial court.

special court-martial.A proceeding that is presided over by a military judge and no fewer than three members (who serve as jurors) to hear noncapital offenses and prescribe a sanction of hard labor, dismissal, or extended confinement (up to six months). • It is the intermediate level of courts-martial.

COURT OF ARCHDEACON

Court of Archdeacon (ahrch-dee-k<<schwa>>n).Hist. Eccles. law. An inferior ecclesiastical court with juris-diction over cases arising within the archdeaconry and probate matters. • Appeal was to the Bishop's Court. The Court of Archdeacon was abolished in 1967. — Also termed Archdeacon's Court; Archdiaconal Court (ahr-k<<schwa>>-dl-ak<<schwa>>n<<schwa>>l).

COURT OF ARCHES

Court of Arches.Eccles. law. The ecclesiastical court of the province of Canterbury, responsible for appeals from provincial diocesan courts. • The Pope heard appeals from the Court of Arches until the break with Rome prompted a transfer of the appellate jurisdiction to the Court of Delegates. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council now hears certain appeals from the Court of Arches. — Also termed Arches Court of Canterbury; Court of Canterbury; Court of the Official Principal. Cf. CHANCERY COURT OF YORK.

“The Court of Arches is the provincial court of the Archbishop of Canterbury. It is held by a judge generally called the Dean of the Arches. Its jurisdiction was important while testamentary cases were dealt with in the Ecclesiastical Courts. The name is derived from the fact that the court was originally held in the Church of St. Mary-le-Bow (Ecclesia Beatae Mariae de Arcubus), the steeple of which is raised on stone pillars formed archwise like bent bows.” W.J.V. Windeyer, Lectures on Legal History 184 n.11 (2d ed. 1949).

COURT OF ASSISTANTS

Court of Assistants.Hist. A colonial body organized in Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1630 to act as a legislature and court for the colony. Cf. GENERAL COURT .

“The court of assistants, made up of governor, deputy governor, and magistrates, heard appeals from lower courts, and took original jurisdiction in certain cases — for example, cases of divorce. Below it were the county courts.” Lawrence M. Friedman, A History of American Law 40 (2d ed. 1985).

COURT OF ATTACHMENTS

Court of Attachments.Hist. An inferior forest court with jurisdiction over trespasses of the royal forests. • The judges of this court (the verderers) met every 40 days to hear charges made by the royal foresters. Major trespass cases were heard by the justices in eyre. — Also termed wood-mote; forty-days court. See VERDERER.

COURT OF AUDIENCE

Court of Audience.Hist. Eccles. law. A court in which the Archbishop of York or Canterbury exercised personal jurisdiction. • This court was abolished in 1963.

“Just as the bishop did not deprive himself of all jurisdiction by delegation to an official or commissary, so the archbishop did not originally deprive himself of all jurisdiction by delegation to the official principal. He possessed a jurisdiction concurrent with that of the court of the Arches, which was exercised in the court of Audience. In later times this jurisdiction was exercised by the judge of the court of Audience. At one time the archbishop may have exercised a considerable part of this jurisdiction in this court." 1 William Holdsworth, A History of English Law 601 (7th ed. 1956).

COURT OF AUGMENTATIONS

Court of Augmentations.Hist. A court established in 1536 by Henry VIII to determine controversies arising from the royal policy of taking over property owned by monasteries. • The court was merged into the Court of Ex-chequer in 1554.

COURT OF CANTERBURY

Court of Canterbury.See COURT OF ARCHES.

COURT OF CASSATION

Court of Cassation (ka-say-sh<<schwa>>n). The highest court of France. • The court's name derives from its power to quash (casser) the decrees of inferior courts. — Also termed (more formally) Cour de Cassation.

COURT OF CHANCERY

court of chancery.See CHANCERY(1).

COURT OF CHIVALRY

COURT OF CIVIL APPEALS

COURT OF CLAIMS

court of claims.1.COURT. 2. (cap.) UNITED STATES COURT OF FEDERAL CLAIMS.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS

Court of Common Pleas. 1.Hist. A superior court having jurisdiction of all real actions and common pleas (i.e., actions between subjects). • The Court was presided over by a chief justice with four (later five) puisne judges. In 1873 it became the Common Pleas Division of the High Court of Justice. In 1881 it merged into the Queen's Bench Division. 2. An intermediate-level court in some states, such as Arkansas. [Cases: Courts 211.] 3. A trial court of general jurisdiction in some states, such as Ohio, Pennsylvania, and South Carolina. [Cases: Courts 150, 151, 153.] — Also termed Court of Common Bench. — Abbr. C.P.

causes both reall and personall are, or were in former times, tryed in this court, according to the strict lawe of the realme: and by Fortescue, cap. 50 it seemeth to have bene the onely court for reall causes." John Cowell, The Interpreter (1607).

COURT OF COMPETENT JURISDICTION

court of competent jurisdiction. See COURT.

COURT OF CONSCIENCE

court of conscience. Hist. A local English court with jurisdiction of small-debt cases. • The court was so called because its judgments were supposed to reflect equity and good conscience. County courts assumed the jurisdiction of the courts of conscience in 1846.

COURT OF CONVOCATION

Court of Convocation. Eccles. law. An assembly of high-ranking provincial officials and representatives of the lower clergy having jurisdiction over cases of heresy, schism, and other ecclesiastical matters.

COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS

Court of Criminal Appeals. 1. For each armed service, an intermediate appellate court that reviews court-martial decisions. • The court was established by the Military Justice Act of 1968. 10 USCA §§ 859–876. — Formerly termed Court of Military Review (abbr. CMR). [Cases: Armed Services 47.1(1); Military Justice 1411. C.J.S. Military Justice §§ 454, 457, 488–489, 491–492.] 2. In some jurisdictions, such as Texas and Oklahoma, the highest appellate court that hears criminal cases.

COURT OF CUSTOMS AND PATENT APPEALS

Court of Customs and Patent Appeals. Hist. An Article III court created in 1929 to hear appeals in customs and patent cases. • This court was abolished in 1982 and was superseded by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. — Abbr. CCPA. See UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE FEDERAL CIRCUIT. [Cases: Patents 113. C.J.S. Patents §§ 188–189, 196, 199, 202.]

COURT OF DELEGATES

Court of Delegates. Hist. Eccles. law. A court serving as the final court of appeal for admiralty and ecclesiastical matters. • The Court was established in 1534 to serve in the stead of the Papal Curia when the English Church severed its ties with the Papacy. Six delegates, appointed to hear only one case, made up the Court, usu. three persons trained in common law and three in civil law. This mixture led to confused rulings and unreliable pre-cedents that hindered the Court's credibility and ultimately led to its dissolution. The Court was abolished in 1833 and its jurisdiction transferred to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. — Also termed High Court of Delegates.

“The crown had an absolute discretion as to the person to be appointed. But, as the lawyers of Doctors' Commons were the only lawyers acquainted with canon or civil law, certain of them were usually included in the commis-sion.... It is not surprising to find that the [Court of Delegates] was unsatisfactory. It was a shifting body, so that no general rules of procedure could be established. It did not as a rule give reasons for its decisions. Its members were only paid a guinea a day; and consequently it was usually composed of the junior civilians. On them, the judges of the common law courts, appointed as delegates, were obliged to rely for their law. In consequence of the dissatisfaction felt at its working the Ecclesiastical Commission of 1832, in a special report, recommended the transfer of its jurisdiction to the Privy Council ...." 1 William Holdsworth, A History of English Law 605 (7th ed. 1956).

COURT OF ERROR

court of error. 1.Hist. Formerly, the Court of Exchequer Chamber and the House of Lords. • Appeals from common-law courts lay to the Court of Exchequer Chamber, and then to the House of Lords until 1873, when the Judicature Act gave jurisdiction of superior-court appeals to the Court of Appeal. Cf. COURT OF EXCHEQUER CHAMBER . 2. Generally, a court having jurisdiction to review a lower court's rulings.

COURT OF ERRORS AND APPEALS

Court of Errors and Appeals.Hist. Formerly, the court of last resort in New Jersey and New York. — Also termed High Court of Errors and Appeals.

COURT OF EXCHEQUER

Court of Exchequer (eks-chek-<<schwa>>r oreks-chek-<<schwa>>r).Hist. A former English superior court responsible primarily for adjudicating disputes about the collection of public revenue. • In 1873 it became the Exchequer Division of the High Court of Justice. In 1881 that Division was merged into the Queen's Bench Division. See QUEEN'S BENCH DIVISION. Cf. CHAMBER OF ACCOUNTS.

COURT OF EXCHEQUER CHAMBER

Court of Exchequer Chamber.Hist. 1.An informal assembly of common-law judges who (sometimes with the Lord Chancellor) gathered to discuss important cases that had adjourned pending an opinion from the Court. • This body never became a court of law in a technical sense, but judges gave great weight to its decisions. The last reported decision of this body is from 1738.

2. A court created by statute in 1357 to hear appeals from the Court of Exchequer. 3. A court created by statute in 1585 to hear appeals from the King's Bench. • This court consisted of all the justices of the Common Pleas and the Barons of Exchequer who were serjeants. At least six judges were necessary to render a judgment. “Parliament was only occasionally summoned in the sixteenth century; and as Parliament was the only court which could amend errors of the King's Bench, the want of a court which could hold regular sessions was much felt. To supply this want a new court of Exchequer Chamber was created in 1585 for the purpose of amending the errors of the King's Bench.” 1 William Holdsworth, A History of English Law 244 (7th ed. 1956).

4. A court charged with hearing appeals from the common-law courts of record. • This court was created in 1830 by combining the courts created by the statutes of 1357 and 1585. Appeals from one common-law court were heard by judges from the other two courts. “This complicated system of appellate courts was abolished in 1830, when a new Court of Exchequer Chamber was set up as the court of error from each of the three common law courts. It was composed of the judges of the two common law courts other than those of the court appealed from. At the same time the right of the King's Bench to hear error from the Common Pleas was abolished. From the judgment of this new court a further appeal still lay to the House of Lords. This court was thus, until the Judicature Act, 1873, a court of intermediate appeals. Its jurisdiction after the Judicature Act passed to the Court of Appeal which was then created.” W.J.V. Windeyer, Lectures on Legal History 144 (2d ed. 1949).

COURT OF GENERAL QUARTER SESSIONS OF THE PEACE

Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace. Hist. 1. English law. A court of criminal jurisdiction held in each county (or borough) once in every quarter of a year. • The court was made up of a county's justices of the peace. It committed certain cases to the Assizes. Quarter Sessions were abolished in 1971, with most jurisdiction transferred to the Crown Court. — Often shortened to Quarter Sessions; Sessions.

2. A court held in some states four times a year with jurisdiction over misdemeanors and occasionally tasks of an administrative nature, such as the care of public roads and bridges. — Often shortened to Quarter Sessions Court. — Also termed Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace.

COURT OF GREAT SESSIONS IN WALES

Court of Great Sessions in Wales. Hist. A common-law court established in 1543 in Wales with jurisdiction equivalent to that of the English assizes. • The Court of Great Sessions was bound to follow English law, but not necessarily English case precedent. — Also termed King's Great Sessions in Wales.

“There was no outcry when, in 1536, ‘the sinister usages and customs’ of the Welsh were abrogated and Welsh subjects were granted the same laws and liberties as the English.... A new system of courts, called the Great Sessions in Wales, was set up. The courts were to sit twice a year in four circuits, each comprising three counties, and to each circuit were appointed justices ‘learned in the laws of this realm’. These courts operated alongside the English courts, and they had the same jurisdiction in Wales as the King's Bench and Common Pleas had in England.... In 1830 the Great Sessions were abolished, and by complete procedural assimilation England and Wales became at last one unified jurisdiction, two extra circuits being added to the English assize system.” J.H. Baker, An Introduction to English Legal History 37–38 (3d ed. 1990).

COURT OF HIGH COMMISSION

Court of High Commission. Hist. Eccles. law. A tribunal responsible for inquiring into religious offenses such as the holding of heretical opinions, and absence from church. • Functioning as a court, the High Commission also prosecuted violations of the Acts of Supremacy and Uniformity (1559), the statutes that gave the Crown supreme power over the Church of England. The Commission's broad powers and use of civil-law procedures in ways counter to the common law (such as compelling suspects to testify against themselves) sparked opposition to its existence. Its close relationship with the Court of Star Chamber hastened its demise (along with the Star Chamber) in 1641. — Also termed High Commission Court.

“[T]he court of the king's high commission in causes ecclesiastical ... was intended to vindicate the dignity and peace of the church, by reforming, ordering, and correcting the ecclesiastical state and persons, and all manner of errors, heresies, schisms, abuses, offences, contempts, and enormities. Under the shelter of which very general words, means were found in that and the two succeeding reigns, to vest in the high commissioners extraordinary and almost despotic powers, of fining and imprisoning; which they exerted much beyond the degree of the offence itself, and frequently over offences by no means of spiritual cognizance. For these reasons this court was justly abolished by Statute 16 Car. I, c. 11. And the weak and illegal attempt that was made to revive it, during the reign of King James the second, served only to hasten that infatuated prince's ruin.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 67–68 (1768).

COURT OF HONOR

Court of Honor. Hist. 1. English law. A feudal court of the manor. 2. English law. A court with jurisdiction to hear complaints concerning either affronts to honor or encroachments in precedence rights, heraldry, or coat-armor. 3. A tribunal of army officers convened to review and punish any dereliction from a code of honor.

COURT OF HUSTINGS

Court of Hustings (h<<schwa>>s-tingz). Hist. 1. English law. A local court with jurisdiction over real and mixed actions, held in the Guildhall of London before the Recorder, the Lord Mayor, and Sheriff (the latter two officials serving as honorary judges). • This court dates from before the Conquest. 2. Formerly, a local court in Virginia. — Also termed curia burgi. See HUSTING.

COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER

Court of Oyer and Terminer (oy-<<schwa>>r an[d] t*<<schwa>>r*-m*<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>r*).1.Hist. An assize court commissioned by the Crown to pass through the counties two or more times a year and hear felonies and treason cases. • The judges sat by virtue of several commissions, each of which, strictly speaking, created a separate and distinct court. A judge with an oyer and terminer commission, for example, was allowed to hear only cases of felony and treason; he could not try persons charged with other criminal offenses. But if the judge also carried a commission of gaol delivery (as most did), he could try all prisoners held in gaol for any offense; in this way most Courts of Oyer and Terminer gathered full criminal jurisdiction. The jurisdiction of the assize courts was taken over by the Crown Court in 1971. See ASSIZE(1); COMMISSION OF OYER AND TERMINER; COMMISSION OF GAOL DELIVERY. 2. In some states, a court of higher criminal jurisdiction.

COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER AND GENERAL GAOL DELIVERY

Court of Regard.Hist. A forest court responsible for looking into matters of waste and encroachment onto forest land (i.e., purpresture). • The Court also ensured that the feet of all mastiffs — a breed allowed in royal forests as guard dogs — within the forest were declawed and cut so as to prevent them from chasing deer.

COURT OF REQUESTS

Court of Requests.Hist. A royal court whose jurisdiction was mainly civil, though it exercised quasi-criminal jurisdiction in offenses such as riot and forgery. • Dating from 1483, the Court of Requests was a part of the Privy Council. It was disbanded in 1641 when Parliament limited the Privy Council's judicial functions.

“The establishment of the court of Requests was due to the large increase in the judicial business of the Council and the Chancery under the Tudors.... It was related both to the judicial side of the Council, which, as we shall see, came, in the course of the Tudor period, to be known as the court of Star Chamber, and to the court of Chancery.... [F]rom the end of Henry VIII's reign onwards, the legal assessors of the court assumed entire control, with the result that it became a court which was quite separate from the court of Star Chamber. These legal assessors were styled Masters of Requests, and from their title the court got its name.” 1 William Holdsworth, A History of English Law 412–13 (7th ed. 1956).

COURT OF REVIEW

COURT OF SESSION

Court of Session. 1.Scots law. The supreme Scottish civil court. • Its jurisdiction corresponds generally to the English High Court of Justice. The Court of Session is divided into Outer House and Inner House. In Outer House, one judge hears cases of first instance. The Outer House's jurisdiction corresponds generally to the English High Court of Justice. The Outer House has two appellate chambers, the First and Second Division, in which three-judge panels sit. The Inner House's jurisdiction corresponds generally to the English Court of Appeal. The Court of Session also has several Lords Ordinary, who sit individually as trial judges. — Also termed Supreme Civil Court in Scotland. 2. In a few states, a court with jurisdiction over criminal cases.

COURT OF THE LORD HIGH CONSTABLE AND EARL MARSHAL

Court of the Lord High Constable and Earl Marshal. Hist. A court having jurisdiction over diverse military matters, such as treason, prisoners of war, and disputed coats of arms. • The Lord High Constable and the Earl Marshal were the top military officials of the Norman kings. After the office of Lord High Constable was forfeited in 1521, the court continued on as the Court of the Earl Marshal, but its jurisdiction was reduced to questions of chivalry only. Cf. HIGH COURT OF CHIVALRY.

COURT OF THE LORD HIGH STEWARD

Court of the Lord High Steward. Hist. A court commissioned to try a peer indicted for treason or a felony. • The Court met only if the House of Lords was not in session. The Lord High Steward sat as a judge and decided questions of law, and the peers decided facts only. The Court last sat in 1688.

COURT OF THE LORD HIGH STEWARD OF THE UNIVERSITIES

Court of the Lord High Steward of the Universities. Hist. A court convened to try scholars, esp. Oxford or Cambridge students, who have been indicted for treason, felony, or mayhem.

COURT OF THE MARSHALSEA

Court of the Marshalsea (mahr-sh<<schwa>>l-see). Hist. A court that moved about with the king, and had jurisdiction over certain cases arising within 12 miles of the king's residence (an area known as the verge). • The Court's steward and marshal acted as judges of the Court, and heard criminal cases and the common pleas of debt, covenant, and certain trespasses. The Court's migratory nature made it inconvenient for litigants, and prompted its abolition in 1849. — Also termed Court of the Steward and Marshal. Cf. PALACE COURT.

“Coke points out that all the Acts passed concerning this court restrained, or explained, but never added to its jurisdiction. He decided, in the Case of the Marshalsea, that it could not try the newer forms of action such as assumpsit and trover. Its once general jurisdiction had passed to the court of King's Bench, and the attitude of that court to the more limited court of the Marshalsea made the court of the Marshalsea almost useless. There were complaints in the seventeenth century of the conduct of its officials; and, as it was obliged to follow the king in his progresses, it was a court extremely inconvenient to use.” 1 William Holdsworth, A History of English Law 208 (7th ed. 1956).

COURT OF THE OFFICIAL PRINCIPAL

Court of the Official Principal. See COURT OF ARCHES.

COURT OF THE STEWARD AND MARSHAL

Court of the Steward and Marshal. See COURT OF THE MARSHALSEA.

COURT OF THE STEWARD OF THE KING'S HOUSEHOLD

Court of the Steward of the King's Household. Hist. A court having jurisdiction over criminal cases involving a member of the royal household. • This court's jurisdiction was at first limited to acts of violence by the king's servants toward a member of the king's council, but it was later given broader criminal authority. The Court was abolished in 1828.

COURT OF VERGE

Court of Verge. 1. VERGE(1). 2. VERGE(2).

COURT OF VETERANS APPEALS, U.S.

Court of Veterans Appeals, U.S. See UNITED STATES COURT OF VETERANS APPEALS.

COURT OF WARDS AND LIVERIES

Court of Wards and Liveries. Hist. A court created in 1540 to assert the Crown's right to income from a variety of feudal tenures. • The Court's unpopularity led to its abolition in 1660.

“[I]nquests of office were more frequently in practice than at present, during the continuance of the military tenures among us: when, upon the death of every one of the king's tenants, an inquest of office was held, called an inquisitio post mortem, to enquire of what lands he died seised, who was his heir, and of what age, in order to entitle the king to his marriage, wardship, relief, primer-seisin, or other advantages, as the circumstances of the case might turn out. To superintend and regulate these enquiries, the court of wards and liveries was instituted by statute 32 Hen. VIII c. 46 which was abolished at the restoration of king Charles the second, together with the oppressive tenures upon which it was founded.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 258 (1768).

cousin. 1. A child of one's aunt or uncle. — Also termed first cousin; full cousin; cousin-german. 2. A relative descended from one's ancestor (such as a grandparent) by two or more steps in a diverging line. 3. Any distant relative by blood or marriage; a kinsman or kinswoman.

cousin-german. A first cousin; a child of a full sibling of one's mother or father. See GERMAN.

cousin-in-law. 1. A husband or wife of one's cousin. 2. A cousin of one's husband or one's wife.

cousin once removed. 1. A child of one's cousin. 2. A cousin of one's parent.

cousin twice removed. 1. A grandchild of one's cousin. 2. A cousin of one's grandparent.

first cousin. See COUSIN(1).

second cousin. A person related to another by descending from the same great-grandfather or great-grandmother.

third cousin. A person related to another by descending from the same great-great-grandfather or great-great-grandmother.

COVENANT

covenant (k<<schwa>>v<<schwa>>n<<schwa>>nt), n. 1. A formal agreement or promise, usu. in a contract.

absolute covenant. A covenant that is not qualified or limited by any condition. Cf. conditional covenant.

affirmative covenant. A covenant that obligates a party to do some act; esp., an agreement that real property will be used in a certain way. • An affirmative covenant is more than a restriction on the use of property. For the real-property sense, see affirmative covenant under COVENANT(4). [Cases: Covenants 49, 69.]

assertory covenant. One that affirmatively states certain facts; an affirming promise under seal.

auxiliary covenant (awg-zil-y<<schwa>>-ree). A covenant that does not relate directly to the primary subject of the agreement, but to something connected to it. Cf. principal covenant.

collateral covenant (k<<schwa>>-lat-<<schwa>>-r<<schwa>>l). A covenant entered into in connection with the grant of something, but that does not relate immediately to the thing granted; esp., a covenant in a deed or other sealed instrument not pertaining to the conveyed property. Cf. inherent covenant.

concurrent covenant. A covenant that requires performance by one party at the same time as another's performance.

conditional covenant. A covenant that is qualified by a condition. Cf. absolute covenant.

continuing covenant. A covenant that requires the successive performance of acts, such as an agreement to pay rent in installments.

covenant in deed. See express covenant.

covenant in law. See implied covenant.

covenant not to compete. See noncompetition covenant.

covenant not to execute. A covenant in which a party who has won a judgment agrees not to enforce it. • This covenant is most common in insurance law.

covenant not to sue. A covenant in which a party having a right of action agrees not to assert that right in litigation. — Also termed contract not to sue. [Cases: Release 7, 37. C.J.S. Release §§ 4, 48–49, 54, 61–62.]

“A covenant not to sue is a promise by the creditor not to sue either permanently or for a limited period. If the promise is one never to sue it operates as a discharge just as does a release. The theory is that should the creditor sue despite his promise not to, the debtor has a counterclaim for damages for breach of the creditor's covenant not to sue which is equal to and cancels the original claim.... If the covenant is not to sue for a limited time, the modern view is that the covenant may be raised as an affirmative defense to any action brought in violation of the covenant.” John D. Calamari & Joseph M. Perillo, The Law of Contracts § 21-11, at 878–79 (3d ed. 1987).

dependent covenant. A covenant that imposes a duty that depends on the other party's prior performance. • Until the performance, the other party does not have to perform. Cf. concurrent covenant; independent covenant.

executed covenant. A covenant that has been fully performed.

executory covenant (eg-zek-y<<schwa>>-tor-ee). A covenant that remains unperformed in whole or in part.

express covenant. A covenant created by the words of the parties. — Also termed covenant in deed. Cf. implied covenant.

implied covenant. A covenant that can be inferred from the whole agreement and the conduct of the parties. — Also termed covenant in law. See implied term under TERM(2). Cf. express covenant.

implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. An implied covenant to cooperate with the other party to an agreement so that both parties may obtain the full benefits of the agreement; an implied covenant to refrain from any act that would injure a contracting party's right to receive the benefit of the contract. • Breach of this covenant is often termed bad faith. See BAD FAITH (2). [Cases: Contracts 168. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 346–347.]

implied negative covenant. A covenant binding a grantor not to permit use of any reserved right in a manner that might destroy the benefits that would otherwise inure to the grantee.

independent covenant. A covenant that imposes a duty that does not depend on the other party's prior performance.

inherent covenant. A covenant that relates directly to land, such as a covenant of quiet enjoyment. Cf. collateral covenant.

intransitive covenant. A covenant whose performance does not pass from the original covenantor to the covenantor's representatives. Cf. transitive covenant.

joint covenant. A covenant that binds two or more covenantors together. Cf. several covenant.

negative covenant. A covenant that requires a party to refrain from doing something; esp., in a real-estate financing transaction, the borrower's promise to the lender not to encumber or transfer the real estate as long as the loan remains unpaid.

noncompetition covenant. A promise, usu. in a sale-of-business, partnership, or employment contract, not to engage in the same type of business for a stated time in the same market as the buyer, partner, or employer. • Noncompetition covenants are valid to protect business goodwill in the sale of a company. In other contexts, they are generally disfavored as restraints of trade: courts generally enforce them for the duration of the business relationship, but provisions that extend beyond the termination of that relationship must be reasonable in scope, time, and territory. — Also termed noncompetition agreement; noncompete covenant; covenant not to compete; restrictive covenant; promise not to compete; contract not to compete. [Cases: Contracts 115. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 249–254, 257–260.] positive covenant. A covenant that requires a party to do something (such as to erect a fence within a specified time).

principal covenant. A covenant that relates directly to the principal matter of an agreement. Cf. auxiliary covenant.

protection covenant. See PROTECTION COVENANT.

restrictive covenant. See noncompetition covenant. (For the real-property sense, see restrictive covenant under COVENANT(4).)

several covenant. A covenant that binds two or more covenantors separately. — Also termed separate covenant. Cf. joint covenant.

transitive covenant. A covenant whose duty of performance passes from the original covenantor to the covenantor's representatives. Cf. intransitive covenant.

2.TREATY. 3. A common-law action to recover damages for breach of contract under seal. 4. A promise made in a deed or implied by law; esp., an obligation in a deed burdening or favoring a landowner. See contract under seal under CONTRACT. [Cases: Covenants 1–84. C.J.S. Covenants §§ 2–37, 46–47.] — covenantal,adj.“A covenant is properly defined as a promise made in deed, although in practice the term is used rather more loosely to mean simply an obligation affecting a landowner whether created by deed or not.” Peter Butt, Land Law 334–35 (2d ed. 1988).

“In their nature, covenants are first cousins to easements appurtenant. The burdened land corresponds to a servient tenement, the benefitted land, to a dominant tenement. In concept, the main difference between easements and covenants is that, whereas an easement allows its holder to go upon and to do something upon the servient tenement, the beneficiary of a covenant may not enter the burdened land, but may require the owner of that land to do, or more likely not to do, something on that land.” Roger A. Cunningham et al., The Law of Property § 8.13, at 467 (2d ed. 1993).

affirmative covenant.An agreement that real property will be used in a certain way. • An affirmative covenant is more than a restriction on the use of property. It requires the owner to undertake certain acts on the property. For a more general definition of this term, see affirmative covenant under COVENANT(1).

covenant against encumbrances.A grantor's promise that the property has no visible or invisible encumbrances. • In a special warranty deed, the covenant is limited to encumbrances made by the grantor. — Also termed general covenant against encumbrances. Cf. special covenant against encumbrances. [Cases: Covenants 42, 64. C.J.S. Covenants § 19.]

covenant appurtenant (<<schwa>>-p<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>nt). A covenant that is connected with the grantor's land; a covenant running with the land. Cf. covenant in gross. [Cases: Covenants 53–70. C.J.S. Covenants §§ 6, 25–31.]

covenant for further assurances.A covenant to do whatever is reasonably necessary to perfect the title conveyed if it turns out to be imperfect. See further assurance under ASSURANCE. [Cases: Covenants 44, 66. C.J.S. Covenants § 21.]

covenant for possession.A covenant giving a grantee or lessee possession of land.

covenant for quiet enjoyment. 1. A covenant insuring against the consequences of a defective title or any other disturbance of the title. [Cases: Covenants 43, 65. C.J.S. Covenants § 20.] 2. A covenant ensuring that the tenant will not be evicted or disturbed by the grantor or a person having a lien or superior title. • This covenant is sometimes treated as being synonymous with covenant of warranty. — Also termed covenant of quiet enjoyment.

covenant for title.A covenant that binds the grantor to ensure the completeness, security, and continuance of the title transferred. • This covenant usu. includes the covenants for seisin, against encumbrances, for the right to convey, for quiet enjoyment, and of warranty. [Cases: Covenants covenant in gross. A covenant that does not run with the land. Cf. covenant appurtenant.

---

38–48, 62–67. C.J.S. Covenants §§ 14–24, 29, 46–47.]

covenant of good right to convey. See covenant of seisin.

covenant of habitability (hab-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>-bil-<<schwa>>-tee). See implied warranty of habitability under WARRANTY(2).

covenant of nonclaim. A covenant barring a grantor or the grantor's heirs from claiming title in the conveyed land.

covenant of quiet enjoyment. See covenant for quiet enjoyment.

covenant of seisin (see-zin). A covenant, usu. appearing in a warranty deed, stating that the grantor has an estate, or the right to convey an estate, of the quality and size that the grantor purports to convey. • For the covenant to be valid, the grantor must have both title and possession at the time of the grant. — Also termed covenant of good right to convey; right-to-convey covenant. [Cases: Covenants 40, 62. C.J.S. Covenants §§ 17, 29.]

covenant of warranty. A covenant by which the grantor agrees to defend the grantee against any lawful or rea-sonable claims of superior title by a third party and to indemnify the grantee for any loss sustained by the claim. • This covenant is sometimes treated as being synonymous with covenant for quiet enjoyment. The covenant is not breached if the grantor fails to defend the grantee against an invalid claim. See WARRANTY(1). [Cases: Cove-nants 46–48, 67. C.J.S. Covenants §§ 22–24, 29.]

covenant running with the land. A covenant that, because it relates to the land, binds successor grantees indefi-nitely. • The land cannot be conveyed without the covenant. — Also termed real covenant; covenant running with the title. [Cases: Covenants 53–70. C.J.S. Covenants §§ 6, 25–31.]

“The important consequence of a covenant running with the land is that its burden or benefit will thereby be imposed or conferred upon a subsequent owner of the property who never actually agreed to it. Running covenants thereby achieve the transfer of duties and rights in a way not permitted by traditional contract law.” Roger Bernhardt, Real Property in a Nutshell 212 (3d ed. 1993).

covenant running with the title. 1. A covenant that relates to the land but has a specific or reasonably deter-minable expiration time. 2. See covenant running with the land.

covenant to convey. A covenant in which the covenantor agrees to transfer an estate's title to the covenantee.

covenant to renew. An executory contract that gives a lessee the right to renew the lease.

covenant to stand seised (seezd). Archaic. A covenant to convey land to a relative. • This covenant could not be used to convey land to a stranger; the only consideration that supported the covenant was the relationship by blood or marriage. [Cases: Deeds 24. C.J.S. Deeds § 15.]

future covenant. A covenant that can be breached only upon interference with the possession of the grantee or the grantee's successors. • The covenants in this class are the covenant for further assurances, the covenant for quiet enjoyment, and the covenant of warranty. The distinction between future and present covenants becomes important in determining when the statute of limitations begins to run. Cf. present covenant.

general covenant against encumbrances. See covenant against encumbrances.

implied reciprocal covenant. A presumption that a promisee has, in return for a promise made respecting land, impliedly made a promise to the promisor respecting other land. — Also termed implied reciprocal servitude.

personal covenant. A covenant that creates a personal right or obligation enforceable only between the covenanting parties and that is not binding on the heirs or assigns of the parties. Cf. covenant running with the land.

present covenant. A covenant that can be breached only at the time of conveyance. • The three covenants in this class are the covenant against encumbrances, the covenant of right to convey, and the covenant of seisin. Cf. future covenant.

real covenant. See covenant running with the land.

restrictive covenant. 1. A private agreement, usu. in a deed or lease, that restricts the use or occupancy of real property, esp. by specifying lot sizes, building lines, architectural styles, and the uses to which the property may be put. • Some restrictive covenants, such as race-based restrictions on transfers, are unenforceable but do not necessarily void the deed. — Also termed restrictive covenant in equity; equitable easement; equitable servitude. [Cases: Covenants 49–52, 69.] 2. See noncompetition covenant under COVENANT(1).

right-to-convey covenant. See covenant of seisin.

special covenant against encumbrances. A grantor's promise that the property is free of encumbrances created by the grantor only, not the grantor's predecessors. See special warranty deed under DEED. Cf. covenant against encumbrances. [Cases: Covenants 42, 64. C.J.S. Covenants § 19.]

covenant, vb. To promise or undertake in a covenant; to agree formally.

COVENANTEE

covenantee (k<<schwa>>v-<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>n-tee). The person to whom a promise by covenant is made; one entitled to the benefit of a covenant.

COVENANT TO PROTECT AGAINST DRAINAGE

covenant to protect against drainage. See PROTECTION COVENANT.

COVENTRY ACT

Coventry Act (k<<schwa>>v-<<schwa>>n-tree orkov-). An 1803 English statute establishing the death penalty for anyone who, with malice aforethought, did “cut out or disable the tongue, put out an eye, slit the nose, cut off a nose or lip, or cut off or disable any limb or member of any subject; with the intention in so doing to maim or disfigure him.”

“[At common law,] an injury such as cutting off [a man's] ear or nose did not constitute mayhem ... , because it did not result in permanent disablement, but merely disfigured the victim. This was corrected by an early English statute. It seems that an assault was made upon Sir John Coventry on the street by persons who waylaid him and slit his nose in revenge for obnoxious words uttered by him in Parliament. This emphasized the weakness of the law of mayhem, and the so-called ‘Coventry Act’ was passed [in 1803].” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 239–40 (3d ed. 1982).

COVENTURER

coventurer (koh-ven-ch<<schwa>>r-<<schwa>>r). A person who undertakes a joint venture with one or more persons. — Also termed co-adventurer. Cf. JOINT VENTURE . [Cases: Joint Ventures 1.1. C.J.S. Joint Ventures §§ 2–3, 20.]

COVER

cover, n. The purchase on the open market, by the buyer in a breach-of-contract dispute, of goods to substitute for those promised but never delivered by the seller. • Under UCC § 2-712, the buyer can recover from the seller the difference between the cost of the substituted goods and the original contract price. [Cases: Sales 418(7). C.J.S. Sales §§ 391–393, 403.]

COVERT BARON

covert baron (k<<schwa>>v-<<schwa>>rt bar-<<schwa>>n). [Law French] Hist. The condition or status of a married woman at common law. — Also written cover-baron. — Also termed covert de baron.

“By marriage, the husband and wife are one person in law: that is, the very being or legal existence of the woman is suspended during the marriage, or at least is incorporated and consolidated into that of the husband: under whose wing, protection, and cover, she performs every thing; and is therefore called in our law-french a feme-covert; is said to be covert-baron, or under the protection and influence of her husband, her baron, or lord; and her condition during her marriage is called her coverture.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 430 (1765).

COVERT-ENTRY SEARCH WARRANT

covert-entry search warrant. See SEARCH WARRANT.

COVERTURE

coverture (k<<schwa>>v-<<schwa>>r-ch<<schwa>>r also -tyoor), n. Archaic. The condition of being a married woman <under former law, a woman under coverture was allowed to sue only through the personality of her husband>. See feme covert under FEME. [Cases: Husband and Wife 55.] — covert (k<<schwa>>v-<<schwa>>rt), adj.

“Coverture, is a french word signifying any thing that covereth, as apparell, a coverlet .... It is particularly applied in our common lawe, to the estate and condition of a married woman, who by the lawes of our realme, is in (po-testate viri) and therefore disabled to contract with any, to the prejudice of her selfe or her husband, without his consent and privity; or at the least, without his allowance and confirmation.” John Cowell, The Interpreter (1607).

“Coverture is by law applied to the state and condition of a married woman, who is sub potestati viri, (under the power of her husband) and therefore unable to contract with any to the damage of herself or husband, without his consent and privity, or his allowance and confirmation thereof. When a woman is married she is called a Femme covert, and whatever is done concerning her during marriage is said to be done during coverture.” The Pocket Lawyer and Family Conveyancer 96 (3d ed. 1833).

create a blank.Parliamentary law. To amend a motion by striking out one or more terms and replacing them with blanks rather than different terms. See amendment by striking out and inserting under AMENDMENT(3). • This form allows a vote on several competing proposals at one time, rather than the usual process of voting separately on each proposal. See BLANK(2).

CREATIONISM

creationism. The teaching of the biblical version of the creation of the universe. • The United States Supreme Court held unconstitutional a Louisiana law that forbade the teaching of the theory of evolution unless biblical creation was also taught. The Court found that the law violated the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment because it lacked a “clear secular purpose.” Edwards v. Aguillard, 482 U.S. 578, 107 S.Ct. 2573 (1987). See ANTI-EVOLUTION STATUTE.

scientific creationism. A doctrine holding that the biblical account of creation is supported by scientific evidence.

CREATION SCIENCE

creation science. The interpretation of scientific evidence, arguments, and knowledge to support creationism. See CREATIONISM.

CREATIVE SENTENCE

creative sentence. See alternative sentence under SENTENCE.

CREATIVE WORK

creative work. See work of authorship under WORK(2).

CREATIVITY

creativity. Copyright. The degree to which a work displays imaginativeness beyond what a person of very ordinary talents might create. • Labor and expense are not elements of creativity; for that reason, they are not protected by copyright. Feist Pubs., Inc. v. Rural Tel. Serv. Co., 499 U.S. 340, 111 S.Ct. 1282 (1991). Cf. ORIGINALITY; SWEAT-OF-THE-BROW DOCTRINE . [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 12. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 19–20, 92.]

“Where creativity refers to the nature of the work itself, originality refers to the nature of the author's contribution to the work. Thus, a public domain painting may evince great creativity, but if a copyright claimant adds nothing of his own to it, by way of reproduction or otherwise, then copyright will be denied on the basis of lack of originality. Conversely, a work may be entirely the product of the claimant's independent efforts, and hence original, but may nevertheless be denied protection as a work of art if it is completely lacking in any modicum of creativity.” 1 Melville B. Nimmer & David Nimmer, Nimmer on Copyright § 2.08[B][2], at 2-88 (Supp. 1995).

CREATOR

creator. See SETTLOR(1).

CREATURE

creature. See ANIMAL.

bond creditor. A creditor whose debt is secured by a bond.

catholic creditor. Scots law. A person who has a security interest in more than one piece of the debtor's property.

certificate creditor. A creditor of a municipal corporation who receives a certificate of indebtedness rather than payment because the municipality cannot pay the debt. Cf. warrant creditor.

conditional creditor. Civil law. A creditor who has either a future right of action or a right of action in expectancy.

creditor at large.A creditor who has not established the debt by reducing it to judgment, or who has not otherwise secured a lien on any of the debtor's property.

domestic creditor.A creditor who resides in the same state or country as the debtor or the debtor's property.

double creditor.A creditor who has a lien on two funds. Cf. single creditor.

execution creditor.A judgment creditor who has caused an execution to issue on the judgment. [Cases: Execution 17. C.J.S. Executions § 20.]

foreign creditor.A creditor who resides in a different state or country from that of the debtor or the debtor's property.

gap creditor.Bankruptcy. A creditor who extends credit to, lends money to, or has a claim arise against the debtor in the period between the filing of an involuntary bankruptcy petition and the entry of the order for relief. • Under the Bankruptcy Code, a gap creditor's claim receives second priority, immediately below administrative claims. 11 USCA §§ 502(f), 507(a)(2). [Cases: Bankruptcy 2833. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 240.]

general creditor.See unsecured creditor.

hypothetical creditor.Bankruptcy. An actual or code-created judicial-lien creditor or bona fide purchaser who establishes a bankruptcy trustee's status under the Bankruptcy Code's priority scheme, claiming property through the debtor at the time of the bankruptcy filing. 11 USCA § 544. — Also termed hypothetical lien creditor. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2704, 2705. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 123, 134, 158.]

joint creditor.A creditor who is entitled, along with another creditor, to demand payment from a debtor.

judgment creditor.See JUDGMENT CREDITOR.

junior creditor.A creditor whose claim accrued after that of another creditor; a creditor who holds a debt that is subordinate to another's.

known creditor.A creditor whose identity or claim is either known or reasonably ascertainable by the debtor. • Known creditors are entitled to notice of the debtor's bankruptcy or corporate dissolution, as well as notice of any deadline for filing proofs of claim.

lien creditor.A creditor whose claim is secured by a lien on the debtor's property. UCC § 9-102(a)(52). [Cases: Secured Transactions 140. C.J.S. Secured Transactions § 92.]

preferred creditor.A creditor with a superior right to payment, such as a holder of a perfected security interest as compared to a holder of an unsecured claim. [Cases: Secured Transactions 138–140, 168. C.J.S. Secured Transactions §§ 88, 90–92, 106–107, 119–124.]

principal creditor.A creditor whose claim or demand greatly exceeds the claims of other creditors.

prior creditor.A creditor who is given priority in payment from the debtor's assets.

secondary creditor.A creditor whose claim is subordinate to a preferred creditor's.

secured creditor.A creditor who has the right, on the debtor's default, to proceed against collateral and apply it to the payment of the debt. UCC § 9-102(a)(72). — Also termed secured party.

“ ‘Secured party’ means (A) a person in whose favor a security interest is created or provided for under a security agreement, whether or not any obligation to be secured is outstanding; (B) a person that holds an agricultural lien; (C) a consignor; (D) a person to which accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes have been sold; or (E) if a security interest or agricultural lien is created or provided for in favor of a trustee, agent, collateral agent, or other representative, that representative.” UCC § 9-102(a)(72).

single creditor.In the marshaling of assets, a creditor with a lien on one fund. Cf. double creditor.

specialty creditor.A creditor to whom an heir is liable for a decedent's debts to the extent of the land inherited. • Historically, unless the creditor obtained a judgment against the debtor before the debtor's death, the creditor's right of action on the debt was limited to the decedent's lawful heir. If the debtor devised the land to a stranger, the creditor's claim was defeated. See HEIR(1).

“There were three exceptions to this rule that a fee simple estate was not liable to the creditors of the deceased. Debts due to the Crown and debts due to judgment creditors were enforceable against the land notwithstanding the death of the owner, and thirdly, if the fee simple tenant had in his lifetime executed a deed whereby he covenanted for himself and his heirs to pay a sum of money, the creditor (called a specialty creditor) could make the heir liable for the debt to the extent of the land which had descended to him. But this privilege of the specialty creditor was not at first enforceable against an equitable fee simple, and it was strictly limited to a right of action against the heir of the deceased, so that the creditor was defrauded of his money if the deceased devised his land to a stranger.” G.C. Cheshire, Modern Law of Real Property 738 (3d ed. 1933).

subsequent creditor.A creditor whose claim comes into existence after a given fact or transaction, such as the recording of a deed or the execution of a voluntary conveyance.

unsecured creditor.A creditor who, upon giving credit, takes no rights against specific property of the debtor. — Also termed general creditor.

warrant creditor.A creditor of a municipal corporation who is given a municipal warrant for the amount of the claim because the municipality lacks the funds to pay the debt. Cf. certificate creditor. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 896. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 801, 1636.]

CREDITOR BENEFICIARY

creditor beneficiary.See BENEFICIARY.

CREDITOR DOMINII

creditor dominii (kred-i-tor d<<schwa>>-min-ee-I). [Law Latin] Hist. The creditor who is entitled to ownership of an object; a secured creditor.

“Creditor dominii.... In commodate the lender is creditor of the subject, and on the bankruptcy of the borrower may vindicate his right of property and recover the subject itself ....” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 114 (4th ed. 1894).

CREDITOR'S BILL

creditor's bill. An equitable suit in which a judgment creditor seeks to reach property that cannot be reached by the process available to enforce a judgment. — Also termed creditor's suit. [Cases: Debtor and Creditor 11. C.J.S. Assignments for Benefit of Creditors § 26; Creditor and Debtor §§ 95–105.]

CREDITOR'S CLAIM

creditor's claim. See CLAIM(5).

CREDITORS' COMMITTEE

creditors' committee. Bankruptcy. A committee comprising representatives of the creditors in a Chapter 11 proceeding, formed to negotiate the debtor's plan of reorganization. • Generally, a committee has no fewer than 3 and no more than 11 members and serves as an advisory body. 11 USCA § 1102. [Cases: Bankruptcy 3024. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 193, 373.]

CREDIT RATING

credit rating. An evaluation of a potential borrower's ability to repay debt, prepared by a credit bureau at the request of a lender. [Cases: Credit Reporting Agencies 1–4. C.J.S. Credit Reporting Agencies; Consumer Protection §§ 2–22.]

CREDIT REPORT

credit report. 1. A credit bureau's report on a person's financial status, usu. including the approximate amounts and locations of a person's bank accounts, charge accounts, loans, and other debts, bill-paying habits, defaults, bankruptcies, foreclosures, marital status, occupation, income, and lawsuits. See CREDIT BUREAU. 2. The report of a credit-reporting bureau, usu. including highly personal information gathered through interviews with a person's friends, neighbors, and coworkers. See CREDIT-REPORTING BUREAU. [Cases: Credit Reporting Agencies 1–4.]

C.J.S. Credit Reporting Agencies; Consumer Protection §§ 2–22.]

CREDIT-REPORTING BUREAU

credit-reporting bureau. An organization that, on request, prepares investigative reports not just on people's creditworthiness but also on personal information gathered from various sources, including interviews with neighbors, friends, and coworkers. • These reports are used chiefly by employers (for prospective employees), insurance companies (for applicants), and landlords (for prospective tenants). — Also termed investigating bureau. Cf. CREDIT BUREAU. [Cases: Credit Reporting Agencies 1–4. C.J.S. Credit Reporting Agencies; Consumer Protection §§ 2–22.]

CREDITRIX

creditrix (kred-<<schwa>>-triks), n. [fr. Latin credere “to lend, entrust”] Civil law. Archaic. A female creditor.

CREDIT SALE

CREDIT-SHELTER TRUST

credit-shelter trust. See bypass trust under TRUST.

CREDIT SLIP

credit slip. A document that allows a store customer to either purchase another item or receive cash or credit for merchandise that the customer has returned to the store.

CREDIT UNION

credit union. A cooperative association that offers low-interest loans and other consumer banking services to persons sharing a common bond — often fellow employees and their family members. • Most credit unions are regulated by the National Credit Union Administration. State-chartered credit unions are also subject to regulation by the chartering state, and they may be regulated by state banking boards. [Cases: Building and Loan Associations 1–6, 24–40. C.J.S. Building and Loan Associations, Savings and Loan Associations, and Credit Unions §§ 2–7, 9–19, 31–32, 45, 66–113, 115, 144–145.]

“Credit unions were the last major thrift institutions developed in the United States .... What distinguished credit unions from mutual savings banks and savings and loan associations was their emphasis on a common bond of workers, church members, or people in a local area, wanting to borrow relatively small amounts at reasonable interest rates from each other, and help each other save to meet these short-term needs. Their goal was to provide a low interest rate alternative ... to loan sharks and pawnbrokers.” William A. Lovett, Banking and Financial Institutions Law in a Nutshell 284 (1997).

C REORGANIZATION

C reorganization.See REORGANIZATION(2).

CRESCENDO RENTAL

crescendo rental.See RENTAL.

CRETION

cretion (kree-sh<<schwa>>n), n. [fr. Latin cernere “to decide”] Roman law. 1. A method or form of accepting an inheritance by an heir who is appointed in a testament. • Cretion usu. had to be declared within 100 days from the date on which an heir received notice of the appointment.

“In the old law it was the practice to fix a time limit, usually of one hundred days, within which the heir was to make a formal acceptance, with the addition that if he failed to do so, he was to be disinherited and a substitute was to take the inheritance in his place. This formal acceptance was known as cretio from the Latin verb cernere — to decide. The practice had fallen into disuse before Justinian, who formally abolished it.” R.W. Lee, The Elements of Roman Law 199 (4th ed. 1956).

2. The period within which an heir might decide whether to accept an inheritance. — Also termed (in Latin) cretio (kree-shee-oh). — cretionary (kree-sh<<schwa>>n-er-ee), adj.

CREW MEMBER

crew member.See SEAMAN.

CRF

CRF.abbr.CRIMINAL-REFERRAL FORM.

CRIB

crib,n.[Origin unknown] Hist. An enclosure at the side of a court where the apprentices stood to learn the law. • For a full history of this term and its variants, see J.H. Baker, “The Pecunes,” in The Legal Profession and the Common Law 171, 173 (1986). — Also spelled cribbe; crubbe. — Also termed pecune.

CRI DE PAIS

cri de pais. See CRY DE PAIS.

CRIER

crier (krI-⟨schwa⟩r). 1. An officer of the court who makes public pronouncements as required by the court. Cf. BAILIFF(1). — Also termed court crier. [Cases: Courts 58. C.J.S. Courts § 108.] 2. An auctioneer. — Also spelled cryer.

CRIEZ LA PEEZ

criez la peez (krI-eez l⟨schwa⟩ pees). [Law French] Hist. Rehearse the concord (or peace).
 • This phrase was used to confirm the conveyance of land by fine. The serjeant or countor in attendance read the phrase aloud in court. See FINE(1).

CRIM. CON.

crim. con. abbr. CRIMINAL CONVERSATION.

CRIME

crime. An act that the law makes punishable; the breach of a legal duty treated as the subject matter of a criminal proceeding. — Also termed criminal wrong. See OFFENSE(1).

“Understanding that the conception of Crime, as distinguished from that of Wrong or Tort and from that of Sin, involves the idea of injury to the State of collective community, we first find that the commonwealth, in literal conformity with the conception, itself interposed directly, and by isolated acts, to avenge itself on the author of the evil which it had suffered.” Henry S. Maine, Ancient Law 320 (17th ed. 1901).

“It is a curious fact that all the minor acts enumerated in the penal code of a state like, say, New York are in law called crimes, which term includes both murder and overparking. It is a strong term to use for the latter, and of course the law has for centuries recognized that there are more serious and less serious crimes. At the common law, however, only two classes were recognized, serious crimes or felonies, and minor crimes or misdemeanors.” Max Radin, The Law and You 91 (1948).

administrative crime. An offense consisting of a violation of an administrative rule or regulation that carries with it a criminal sanction.

commercial crime. A crime that affects commerce; esp., a crime directed toward the property or revenues of a commercial establishment. • Examples include robbery of a business, embezzlement, counterfeiting, forgery, prostitution, illegal gambling, and extortion. See 26 CFR § 403.38.

common-law crime. A crime that is punishable under the common law, rather than by force of statute. Cf. statutory crime.

complainantless crime. See victimless crime.

computer crime. A crime involving the use of a computer, such as sabotaging or stealing electronically stored data. — Also termed cybercrime. [Cases: Telecommunications 461.15. C.J.S. Telegraphs, Telephones, Radio, and Television § 221.]

consensual crime. See victimless crime.

constructive crime. A crime that is built up or created when a court enlarges a statute by altering or straining the statute's language, esp. to drawing unreasonable implications and inferences from it. — Also termed implied crime; presumed crime.

continuous crime. 1. A crime that continues after an initial illegal act has been consummated; a crime that involves ongoing elements. • An example is illegal U.S. drug importation. The criminal act is completed not when the drugs enter the country, but when the drugs reach their final destination. 2. A crime (such as driving a stolen vehicle) that continues over an extended period. Cf. instantaneous crime.

corporate crime. A crime committed by a corporation's representatives acting on its behalf. • Examples include price-fixing and consumer fraud. Although a corporation as an entity cannot commit a crime other than through its representatives, it can be named as a criminal defendant. — Also termed organizational crime. Cf. occupational crime. [Cases: Corporations 526. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 736–739.]

credit-card crime. See CREDIT-CARD CRIME.

crime against nature. See SODOMY.

crime against the environment. See ENVIRONMENTAL CRIME.

crime malum in se. See MALUM IN SE.

crime malum prohibitum. See MALUM PROHIBITUM.

crime of omission. An offense that carries as its material component the failure to act.

crime of passion. A crime committed in the heat of an emotionally charged moment, with no opportunity to reflect on what is happening. See HEAT OF PASSION.

crime of violence. See violent crime.

crime without victims. See victimless crime.

cybercrime. See computer crime.

economic crime. A nonphysical crime committed to obtain a financial gain or a professional advantage.

“There are two major styles of economic crime. The first consists of crimes committed by businessmen as an adjunct to their regular business activities. Businessmen's responsibilities give them the opportunity, for example, to commit embezzlement, to violate regulations directed at their areas of business activity, or to evade the payment of taxes. This style of economic crime is often called white-collar crime. The second style of economic crime is the provision of illegal goods and services or the provision of goods and services in an illegal manner. Illegal provision of goods and services requires coordinated economic activity similar to that of normal business, but all of those engaged in it are involved in crime. The madam operating a brothel has many concerns identical to the manager of a resort hotel, and the distributor of marijuana must worry about the efficacy of his distribution system just as does a distributor of any other product. This type of economic crime is often called organized crime because the necessity of economic coordination outside the law leads to the formation of criminal groups with elaborate organizational customs and practices." Edmund W. Kitch, "Economic Crime," in 2 Encyclopedia of Crime and Justice 670, 671 (Sanford H. Kadish ed., 1983).

environmental crime. See ENVIRONMENTAL CRIME.

expressive crime. A crime committed for the sake of the crime itself, esp. out of frustration, rage, or other emotion, rather than for financial gain. Cf. instrumental crime.

federal crime. See FEDERAL CRIME.

general-intent crime. A crime that involves performing a particular act without intending a further act or a further result.

hate crime. A crime motivated by the victim's race, color, ethnicity, religion, or national origin. • Certain groups have lobbied to expand the definition by statute to include a crime motivated by the victim's disability, gender, or sexual orientation. Cf. hate speech under SPEECH. [Cases: Civil Rights 1808; Sentencing and Punishment 753. C.J.S. Civil Rights § 222; Criminal Law §§ 1495, 1527.]

high crime. A crime that is very serious, though not necessarily a felony. • Under the U.S. Constitution, a government officer's commission of a "high crime" is, along with treason and bribery, grounds for removal from office. U.S. Const. art. II, § 4. See IMPEACHABLE OFFENSE.

implied crime. See constructive crime.

inchoate crime. See inchoate offense under OFFENSE(1).

index crime. See index offense under OFFENSE(1).

infamous crime (in-f<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s). 1. At common law, a crime for which part of the punishment was infamy, so that one who committed it would be declared ineligible to serve on a jury, hold public office, or testify. • Examples are perjury, treason, and fraud. [Cases: Officers and Public Employees 31. C.J.S. Officers and Public Employees §§ 28–30.] 2. A crime punishable by imprisonment in a penitentiary. • The Fifth Amendment requires a grand-jury indictment for the prosecution of infamous (or capital) crimes, which include all federal felony offenses. See indictable offense under OFFENSE(1). Cf. noninfamous crime.

"At common law an infamous crime was one ... inconsistent with the common principles of honesty and humanity. Infamous crimes were treason, felony, all offenses found in fraud and which came within the general notion of the crimen falsi of the civil law, piracy, swindling, cheating, barratry, and the bribing of a witness to absent himself from a trial, in order to get rid of his evidence.” Justin Miller, Handbook of Criminal Law § 8, at 25 (1934).

instantaneous crime.A crime that is fully completed by a single act, as arson or murder, rather than a series of acts. • The statute of limitations for an instantaneous crime begins to run with its completion. Cf. continuous crime.

instrumental crime.A crime committed to further another end or result; esp., a crime committed to obtain money to purchase a good or service. Cf. expressive crime.

international crime.See INTERNATIONAL CRIME.

major crime.See FELONY(1).

noninfamous crime.A crime that does not qualify as an infamous crime. Cf. infamous crime.

occupational crime.A crime that a person commits for personal gain while on the job. Cf. corporate crime.

organizational crime.See corporate crime.

organized crime.See ORGANIZED CRIME.

personal-condition crime.See status crime.

personal crime.A crime (such as rape, robbery, or pickpocketing) that is committed against an individual's person.

political crime.See POLITICAL OFFENSE.

predatory crime.A crime that involves preying upon and victimizing individuals. • Examples include robbery, rape, and carjacking.

preliminary crime.See inchoate offense under OFFENSE(1).

presumed crime.See constructive crime.

quasi-crime.Hist. 1. An offense not subject to criminal prosecution (such as contempt or violation of a municipal ordinance) but for which penalties or forfeitures can be imposed. • The term includes offenses that give rise to qui tam actions and forfeitures for the violation of a public duty. 2. An offense for which someone other than the actual perpetrator is held liable, the perpetrator being presumed to act on the command of the responsible party. See quasi-delict (1) under DELICT.

serious crime.1. See serious offense under OFFENSE(1).2.FELONY(1).

signature crime.A distinctive crime so similar in pattern, scheme, or modus operandi to previous crimes that it identifies a particular defendant as the perpetrator.

spontaneous crime.A criminal act that occurs suddenly and without premeditation in response to an unforeseen stimulus. • For example, a husband who discovers his wife in bed with another man and shoots him could be said to have committed an affectively spontaneous crime.

status crime.A crime of which a person is guilty by being in a certain condition or of a specific character. • An example of a status crime is vagrancy. — Also termed status offense; personal-condition crime.

statutory crime.A crime punishable by statute. Cf. common-law crime.

street crime.Crime generally directed against a person in public, such as mugging, theft, or robbery. — Also termed visible crime.

strict-liability crime.A crime that does not require a mens rea element, such as traffic offenses and illegal sales of intoxicating liquor. [Cases: Criminal Law 21. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 31.]

substantive crime.See substantive offense under OFFENSE(1).

vice crime.A crime of immoral conduct, such as gambling or prostitution.

victimless crime.A crime that is considered to have no direct victim, usu. because only consenting adults are involved. • Examples are possession of illicit drugs and deviant sexual intercourse between consenting adults. — Also termed consensual crime; crime without victims; complainantless crime.

“When a man's house has been robbed or his brother murdered, he is likely to take this complaint vigorously to the police and demand action. His presence on the scene dramatizes the need for law enforcement and gives sense and purpose to the work of the police and district attorney. In contrast, the absence of a prosecuting witness surrounds ‘crimes without victims’ with an entirely different atmosphere. Here it is the police who must assume the initiative. If they attempt to work without the aid of informers, they must resort to spying, and this spying is rendered all the more distasteful because what is spied upon is sordid and pitiable.” Lon L. Fuller, Anatomy of the Law 44 (1968).

violent crime.A crime that has as an element the use, attempted use, threatened use, or substantial risk of use of physical force against the person or property of another. 18 USCA § 16; USSG § 2E1.3. — Also termed crime of violence.

CRIMEN

crimen (krI-m<<schwa>>n), n. [Latin] 1. An accusation or charge of a crime. 2. A crime. Pl. crimina (krim-<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>).

crimen expilatae hereditatis (krI-m<<schwa>>n eks-p<<schwa>>-lay-tee h<<schwa>>-red-i-tay-tis). Roman law. A false claimant's willful spoliation of an inheritance.

crimen falsi (krI-m<<schwa>>n fal-sIorfawl-sI). [Latin “the crime of falsifying”] 1. A crime in the nature of perjury. — Also termed falsum. 2. Any other offense that involves some element of dishonesty or false statement. See Fed. R. Evid. 609(a)(2). [Cases: Witnesses 337(12).]

“The starting point [for perjury] seems to have been the so-called crimen falsi — crime of falsifying. In the beginning, perhaps, one convicted of perjury was deemed too untrustworthy to be permitted to testify in any other case, and the idea grew until the term ‘crimen falsi’ included any crime involving an element of deceit, fraud or corruption.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 26 (3d ed. 1982).

crimen feloniae imposuit (krI-m<<schwa>>n f<<schwa>>-loh-nee-ee im-poz-y<<schwa>>-wit). To accuse or charge with a felony.

crimen furti (krI-m<<schwa>>n f<<schwa>>r-tI). [Latin “the crime of stealing”] See THEFT.

crimen incendii (krI-m<<schwa>>n in-sen-dee-I). [Latin “the crime of burning”] See ARSON.

crimen innominatum (krI-m<<schwa>>n i-nom-<<schwa>>-nay-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin “the nameless crime”] See SODOMY.

crimen majestatis (krI-m<<schwa>>n maj-<<schwa>>-stay-tis). [Latin “crime against majesty”] Hist. High treason; any crime against the king's person or dignity; LESE MAJESTY. • Under Roman law, crimen majestatis denoted any enterprise by a Roman citizen or other person against the republic or the emperor. — Also termed crimen laesae majestatis. See LESE MAJESTY. Cf. PERDUELLIO.

crimen plagii (krI-m<<schwa>>n play-jee-I). [Latin] Roman law. See PLAGIUM.

crimen raptus (krI-m<<schwa>>n rap-t<<schwa>>s). [Latin “the crime of rape”] See RAPE.

crimen repetundarum (krI-m<<schwa>>n rep-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>n-dair-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “accusation of (money) to be repaid”] Roman law. 1. A charge of extortion brought against a Roman provincial governor. 2. Any act of misgovernment or oppression on the part of a magistrate or official.

crimen roberiae (krI-m<<schwa>>n r<<schwa>>-beer-ee-ee). [Latin “the crime of robbery”] ROBBERY.

CRIMINAL CONVERSATION

criminal conversation. Archaic. A tort action for adultery, brought by a husband against a third party who engaged in sexual intercourse with his wife. • Criminal conversation has been abolished in most jurisdictions. — Abbr. crim. con. See HEARTBALM STATUTE. [Cases: Husband and Wife 340–354.]

“An action (whether of trespass or case is uncertain, but probably trespass) formerly lay against one who had committed adultery with the wife of the plaintiff. It was known as an action for criminal conversation. The wife's consent was irrelevant. The action was distinct from that of enticement: one may commit adultery without enticing a wife away from her husband. The action was no doubt a necessity when divorce could only be obtained by Act of Parliament: as Parliament was not a tribunal suitable for trying allegations of adultery it was reasonable to require the petitioner to establish the truth of his allegations before a court of law. The action might also have been justified on the ground that the plaintiff is in substance complaining of the invasion of privacy of his marriage, and the insult thereby caused to his honour as a husband.” R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 358 (17th ed. 1977).

CRIMINAL JURISDICTION

criminal jurisdiction. See JURISDICTION.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE

criminal justice. 1. The methods by which a society deals with those who are accused of having committed crimes. See LAW ENFORCEMENT(1). 2. The field of study pursued by those seeking to enter law enforcement as a profession. • Many colleges offer degrees in criminal justice, typically after two to four years of study. — Also termed (in sense 2) police science; law enforcement.

CRIMINAL-JUSTICE SYSTEM

criminal-justice system. The collective institutions through which an accused offender passes until the accusations have been disposed of or the assessed punishment concluded. • The system typically has three components: law enforcement (police, sheriffs, marshals), the judicial process (judges, prosecutors, defense lawyers), and corrections (prison officials, probation officers, and parole officers). — Also termed law-enforcement system.

CRIMINAL LAW

criminal law. The body of law defining offenses against the community at large, regulating how suspects are investigated, charged, and tried, and establishing punishments for convicted offenders. — Also termed penal law.

“The criminal law represents the pathology of civilization.” Morris R. Cohen, Reason and Law 70 (1961).

“Often the term ‘criminal law’ is used to include all that is involved in ‘the administration of criminal justice’ in the broadest sense. As so employed it embraces three different fields, known to the lawyer as (1) the substantive criminal law, (2) criminal procedure, and (3) special problems in the administration and enforcement of criminal justice.... The phrase ‘criminal law’ is more commonly used to include only that part of the general field known as the substantive criminal law ....” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 1, 5 (3d ed. 1982).

crit. An adherent to the critical-legal-studies school of thought. — Also termed CLSer; Critic; critter.

fem-crit. A feminist adherent of critical legal studies.

CRITICAL EVIDENCE

critical evidence.See EVIDENCE.

CRITICAL LEGAL STUDIES

Critical Legal Studies. 1. A school of thought advancing the idea that the legal system perpetuates the status quo in terms of economics, race, and gender by using manipulable concepts and by creating an imaginary world of social harmony regulated by law. • The Marxist wing of this school focuses on socioeconomic issues. Fem-crits emphasize gender hierarchy, whereas critical race theorists focus on racial subordination. See fem-crit under CRIT; CRITICAL RACE THEORY. 2. The body of work produced by adherents to this school of thought. — Abbr. CLS.

CRITICAL LIMITATION

critical limitation.Patents. A limitation essential either to the operativeness of an invention or to the patentability of a patent claim for the invention. [Cases: Patents 165(2). C.J.S. Patents § 289.]

CRITICAL RACE THEORY

Critical Race Theory. 1. A reform movement within the legal profession, particularly within academia, whose adherents believe that the legal system has disempowered racial minorities. • The term first appeared in 1989. Critical race theorists observe that even if the law is couched in neutral language, it cannot be neutral because those who fashioned it had their own subjective perspectives that, once enshrined in law, have disadvantaged minorities and even perpetuated racism. 2. The body of work produced by adherents to this theory. — Abbr. CRT.

CRITICAL STAGE

critical stage.Criminal procedure. A point in a criminal prosecution when the accused's rights or defenses might be affected by the absence of legal representation. • Under the Sixth Amendment, a critical stage triggers the accused's right to appointed counsel. Examples of critical stages include preliminary hearings, jury selection, and (of course) trial. Cf. ACCUSATORY STAGE . [Cases: Criminal Law 641.3(2); Double Jeopardy 59.C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 213, 218, 282.]

annual crops. 1. Crops that must be planted each year, such as cotton, wheat, barley, corn, carrots, potatoes, and melons. 2. Crops for which the produce in any single year is mainly the result of attention and care exerted in the same agricultural year, such as hops and sugar cane.

away-going crops. A tenant's crops that were sown and will not be ready to harvest before the tenancy expires. • The tenant retains the ownership of the crops after the tenancy expires.

basic crops. Crops (such as wheat and corn) that are usu. subject to government-price supports.

growing crops. Crops that are in the process of growth. • Growing crops are goods under UCC § 2-105(1). Judicial decisions vary on the growth stage at which a crop becomes a growing crop and on whether pasturage grass is a growing crop. Cf. FARM PRODUCT. [Cases: Crops 1. C.J.S. Crops §§ 1-5, 9.]

standing crops. Crops that have not been harvested or otherwise severed from the land.

CROSS

cross, n. 1. CROSS-EXAMINATION. 2. A sale of a large amount of publicly traded stock between two private parties. • Although the transaction does not happen on the exchange floor, it typically requires exchange permission.

CROSS-APPEAL

cross-appeal. See APPEAL.

CROSS-BILL

cross-bill. See BILL(2).

CROSS-CLAIM

cross-claim, n. A claim asserted between codefendants or coplaintiffs in a case and that relates to the subject of the original claim or counterclaim. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 13(g). — Also termed cross-action; cross-suit. Cf. COUN-TERCLAIM. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 786; Pleading 147, 148, 149; Set-off and Counterclaim 10.] — cross-claim,vb. — cross-claimant,n.

“The courts have not always distinguished clearly between a cross-claim and a counterclaim, and have used one name where the other is proper under the rules, perhaps because in some states, and in the old equity practice, the term cross-complaint or cross-bill is used for what the rules regard as a counterclaim. Under Rule 13 a counterclaim is a claim against an opposing party, while a cross-claim is against a co-party. Further there is not the same freedom in asserting cross-claims that the rules provide for counterclaims. An unrelated claim against an opposing party may be asserted as a permissive counterclaim, but only claims related to the subject matter of the original action, or property involved therein, are appropriate as cross-claims.” Charles Alan Wright, The Law of Federal Courts § 80, at 574 (5th ed. 1994).

CROSS-COLLATERAL

cross-collateral. See COLLATERAL.

CROSS-COLLATERAL CLAUSE

cross-collateral clause. An installment-contract provision allowing the seller, if the buyer defaults, to repossess not only the particular item sold but also every other item bought from the seller on which a balance remained due when the last purchase was made. — Also termed dragnet clause.

CROSS-COLLATERALIZATION

cross-collateralization. See cross-collateral under COLLATERAL.

CROSS-COMPLAINT

cross-complaint. 1. A claim asserted by a defendant against another party to the action. — Also termed (in some jurisdictions) cross-petition. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 786; Pleading 148, 149. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 203, 206.] 2. A claim asserted by a defendant against a person not a party to the action for a matter relating to the subject of the action.

CROSS-DEFAULT CLAUSE

cross-default clause. A contractual provision under which default on one debt obligation triggers default on another obligation.

CROSS-DEFENDANT

cross-elasticity of demand. Antitrust. A relationship between two products, usu. substitutes for each other, in which a price change for one product affects the price of the other.

CROSS-ERROR

cross-error. See ERROR(2).

CROSS-EXAMINATION

cross-examination, n. The questioning of a witness at a trial or hearing by the party opposed to the party who called the witness to testify. • The purpose of cross-examination is to discredit a witness before the fact-finder in any of several ways, as by bringing out contradictions and improbabilities in earlier testimony, by suggesting doubts to the witness, and by trapping the witness into admissions that weaken the testimony. The cross-examiner is typically allowed to ask leading questions but is traditionally limited to matters covered on direct examination and to credibility issues. — Also termed cross-interrogation. Cf. DIRECT EXAMINATION; RE-CROSS-EXAMINATION. [Cases: Witnesses 266–284, 330. C.J.S. Witnesses §§ 445–498, 500–507, 579.] — cross-examine, vb.

cruel and unusual punishment. See PUNISHMENT.

CRUELTY

cruelty. The intentional and malicious infliction of mental or physical suffering on a living creature, esp. a human; abusive treatment; outrage. Cf. ABUSE; INHUMAN TREATMENT; INDIGNITY.

“When William Blake opined that ‘Cruelty has a human heart’, he posited the physical and emotional forms which cruelty may take. But when is one party so cruel to the other that it goes to the heart of the marriage and justifies dissolution? A New York court defined cruelty as bodily harm, or a reasonable apprehension of bodily harm, which endangers life, limb, or health and renders marital cohabitation unsafe or improper. Some states are reluctant to permit divorce when there has been only emotional suffering without physical harm. And in a marriage of long duration, some courts require that the cruelty be more extreme to justify divorce than if the relationship has been brief. Acts constituting the ground must continue over an extended period of time unless they are so severe as to shock the conscience, or raise the probability that it would be unsafe for the innocent party if the couple remain together.” Walter Wadlington & Raymond C. O'Brien, Family Law in Perspective 73 (2001).

cruelty to a child. See child abuse under ABUSE.

cruelty to animals. A malicious or criminally negligent act that causes an animal to suffer pain or death. [Cases: Animals 38. C.J.S. Animals §§ 99–104, 108.]

extreme cruelty. As a ground for divorce, one spouse's physical violence toward the other spouse, or conduct that destroys or severely impairs the other spouse's mental health. — Also termed cruel and inhumane treatment. Cf. ABUSE (2). [Cases: Divorce 34. C.J.S. Divorce § 19.]

legal cruelty. Cruelty that will justify granting a divorce to the injured party; specif., conduct by one spouse that endangers the life, person, or health of the other spouse, or creates a reasonable apprehension of bodily or mental harm. [Cases: Divorce 27. C.J.S. Divorce § 22.]

mental cruelty. As a ground for divorce, one spouse's course of conduct (not involving actual violence) that creates such anguish that it endangers the life, physical health, or mental health of the other spouse. See EMOTIONAL DISTRESS. [Cases: Divorce 27. C.J.S. Divorce § 22.]

physical cruelty. As a ground for divorce, actual personal violence committed by one spouse against the other. [Cases: Divorce 27(3, 6). C.J.S. Divorce §§ 24, 27, 29–31.]

CRUMMEY POWER

Crummey power. The right of a beneficiary of a Crummey trust to withdraw gifts made to the trust up to a maximum amount (often the lesser of the annual exclusion or the value of the gift made to the trust) for a certain period after the gift is made. • The precise characteristics of a Crummey power are established by the settlor of a Crummey trust. Typically, the power is exercisable for 30 days after the gift is made and permits withdrawals up to $5,000 or 5% of the value of the trust. A beneficiary may allow the power to lapse without making any demand for distribution. See Crummey trust under TRUST; annual exclusion under EXCLUSION.

CRUMMEY TRUST

Crummey trust. See TRUST.

CRY DE PAIS

cry de pais (krī d<<schwa>> pay). [Law French] Hist. The cry of the country. • The hue and cry after an offender raised by the country (i.e., the people). — Also spelled cri de pais. See HUE AND CRY(1).

CUI ANTE DIVORTIUM&lt;TT&gt;

cui ante divortium (kI [or kwIor kwee] an-tee d<<schwa>>-vor-shee-<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin “to whom before divorce”] Hist. A writ of entry enabling a divorced woman to recover land that she had held in fee but that her husband had sold without her permission during the marriage. • The name of this writ derives from the words within it: cui ipsa ante divortium inter eos celebratum, contradicere non potuit (“whom she, before the divorce between them, could not gainsay”). The writ was abolished in 1833. — Also termed sur cui ante divortium.

CUI BONO?

Cui bono?[Latin] For whose advantage?; Who benefits? • The exclamation may be used to ask who benefited from the results of a crime, usu. to cast suspicion without offering evidence of guilt. Despite the literal meaning, the term is more often used to mean “what's the good of it?” or “what benefits are there?”

CUI IN VITA

cui in vita (kI [or kwIor kwee] in vI-t<<schwa>>). [Law Latin “to whom in the life”] Hist. A writ of entry enabling a woman to recover land that she had held in fee but that her deceased husband had sold without her permission. • It is so called from the words of the writ: cui ipsa in vita sua contradicere non potuit (“whom she, in his lifetime, could not gainsay”). — Also termed sur cui in vita.

“Cui in vita, is a writ of entry, which a Widow hath against him, to whom her Husband alienated her Lands or Tenements in his life time, which must specifie, that During his life, she could not withstand it.” Thomas Blount, Nomo-Lexicon: A Law-Dictionary (1670).

CUJUS HAEREDIBUS MAXIME PROSPICITUR

cujus haeredibus maxime prospicitur (k[y]oo-j<<schwa>>s h<<schwa>>-red-i-b<<schwa>>s mak-s<<schwa>>-mee proh-spis-i-t<<schwa>>r). [Latin] Hist. Whose heirs are chiefly regarded.

“Cujus haeredibus maxime prospicitur... This is a rule of construction to be attended to in ascertaining from the terms of a destination, in whom the fee of a property is vested, the ordinary rule being, that he is the fiar whose heirs are preferred. Thus, a conveyance to ‘A and B jointly, and the heirs of B,’ gives A merely a joint right of liferent, and gives B the fee. Under such a destination, B is so absolutely the fiar that his rights cannot be impaired by any acts, even onerous, of A, who is held, as we have said, to be a liferenter.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 121 (4th ed. 1894).

CULPA

culpa (k<<schwa>>l-p<<schwa>>). [Latin] 1.Roman & civil law. Fault, neglect, or negligence; unintentional wrong. See NEGLIGENCE. Cf. DILIGENTIA; CASUS (1); DOLUS(1).2.Roman law. Conduct that made a party to a contract, or quasi-contract, liable to the other party.

lata culpa (lay-t<<schwa>> k<<schwa>>l-p<<schwa>>). [Latin “grave fault”] Gross negligence amounting to bad fath (dolus). • This phrase occurs most commonly in bailment law and in the law of the transport of persons. — Also termed culpa lata. See gross negligence under NEGLIGENCE.

levis culpa (lee-vis k<<schwa>>l-p<<schwa>>). [Latin “slight fault”] 1. Ordinary negligence. 2. Failure to act as the ideal paterfamilias should. — Also termed culpa levis; culpa levis in concreto. See ordinary negligence under NEGLIGENCE.

levissima culpa (l<<schwa>>-vis<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>> k<<schwa>>l-p<<schwa>>). [Latin “the slightest fault”] Slight negligence. — Also termed culpa levissima. See slight negligence under NEGLIGENCE.

CULPABILIS

culpabilis (k<<schwa>>l-pay-b<<schwa>>-lis), adj.[Latin] Hist. Guilty.

CULPABILITY

culpability (k<<schwa>>l-p<<schwa>>-bil<<schwa>>-tee), n. Blameworthiness; the quality of being culpable. • Except in cases of absolute liability, criminal culpability requires a showing that the person acted purposely, knowingly, recklessly, or negligently with respect to each material element of the offense. See Model Penal Code § 2.02.

“The concept of culpability is used as a reference point to assess the defendant's guilt and punishment even though, in the two contexts, culpability denotes different aspects of the defendant and the murder. At the guilt phase, culpability is most often used to refer to the state of mind that the defendant must possess. Also at the guilt phase, culpability may reflect a broader judgment about the defendant: when he is culpable for his conduct, it means that he is blameworthy and deserves punishment. At the punishment phase, the concept of culpability stands as the benchmark for when the death penalty is an appropriate punishment.” Phyllis L. Crocker, Concepts of Culpability and Deathworthiness, 66 Fordham L. Rev. 21, 35–36 (1997).

CULPA LEVISSIMA

culpa levissima. See levissima culpa under CULPA.

CULPRIT

culprit. 1. A person accused or charged with the commission of a crime. 2. A person who is guilty of a crime. • Culprit may be a running together of cul, shortened from the Latin culpabilis (“guilty”), and prit, from Old French prest (“ready”), two words formerly used to orally plead at the outset of a criminal case.

“When the prisoner hath thus pleaded not guilty, non culpabilis... the clerk of the assise, or clerk of the arraigns, on behalf of the crown replies, that the prisoner is guilty, and that he is ready to prove him so. This is done by two monosyllables in the same spirit of abbreviation, ‘cul. prit.’ which signifies first that the prisoner is guilty, (cul. culpable, or culpabilis) and then that the king is ready to prove him so; prît, praesto sum, or paratus verificare.... How our courts came to express a matter of this importance in so odd and obscure a manner ... can hardly be pronounced with certainty. It may perhaps, however, be accounted for by supposing that these were at first short notes, to help the memory of the clerk, and remind him what he was to reply; or else it was the short method of taking down in court, upon the minutes, the replication and averment; ‘cul. prît’: which afterwards the ignorance of succeeding clerks adopted for the very words to be by them spoken. But however it may have arisen, the joining of issue ... seems to be clearly the meaning of this obscure expression; which has puzzled our most ingenious etymologists, and is commonly understood as if the clerk of the arraigns, immediately on plea pleaded, had fixed an opprobrious name on the prisoner, by asking him, ‘culprit, how wilt thou be tried?’ ” 4 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 333–34 (1769).

CULTURA

cultura (k<<schwa>>l-t[y]oor-<<schwa>>). [Law Latin] Hist. A piece of tillable land; tillage.

CUR.

cur. abbr. CURIA(3).

CURA

cura (kyoor-<<schwa>>), n. [Latin] Roman law. A guardianship that protects the interests of minors who are between puberty and the age of 25, or incapacitated persons. Pl. curae. Cf.

TUTELA.

“Cura was a form of guardianship indicated by the necessities of the case, with respect to persons who, though sui juris, were in need of protection. It was not regarded as a substitute for patria potestas as tutela was.... It extended to the person as well as the property, and in the latter respect is much the same as in the case of the tutela of infants.” R.W. Leage, Roman Private Law 122 (C.H. Ziegler ed., 2d ed. 1930).

cura furiosi (kyoor-<<schwa>> fyoor-ee-oh-sI). A guardianship for an insane person who was mentally inca-pacitated.

“The cura furiosi empowered and bound the curator to manage the property of the lunatic on the lunatic's behalf.” Rudolph Sohm, The Institutes: A Textbook of the History and System of Roman Private Law 492 (James Crawford Ledlie trans., 3d ed. 1907).

cura minoris (kyoor-<<schwa>> mi-nor-is). A form of guardianship for a minor under 25 whose capacity of action was complete, but whose judgment might be defective. Pl. cura minorum.

cura prodigi (kyoor-<<schwa>> prah-d*<<schwa>>*-jI). A form of guardianship for a spendthrift, usu. at the request of the person's agnatic family.

“The cura prodigi differed from the cura furiosi in that the prodigus, unlike the furiosus, was himself capable of performing any act by which he acquired a right or benefit. The appointment of a curator, however, precluded the prodigus from performing any act which operated to alienate property or to subject him to a liability; any such act, in order to be effectual, had to be concluded either by the curator on behalf of the prodigus or by the prodigus with the approval of the curator.” Rudolph Sohm, The Institutes: A Textbook of the History and System of Roman Private Law 492 (James Crawford Ledlie trans., 3d ed. 1907).

CURATOR

curator (kyuur-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-t⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩r orkyuur-ay-t⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩r or kyuu-ray-tor), n.1. Roman law. (ital). A person who manages the affairs of another; a guardian. Pl. curatores (ky⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩r-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-tor-eez). See CURA.

“Although the control of a Tutor ceased when the Pupillus had attained manhood and become invested with his political rights, it must have frequently happened that the youth would be involved in business which he would be incapable of regulating with advantage at that early age, and would, at all events, if wealthy, be open to fraud and imposition. Hence arose the practice of nominating a Curator, whose authority extended to the twenty-fifth year of the ward, but who did not necessarily, like a Tutor, exercise a general superintendence, being frequently no-minated for one special purpose....Curatores were appointed also to manage the affairs of persons beyond the age of twenty-five, who, in consequence of being insane, deaf and dumb, or affected with some incurable disease, were incapable of attending to their own concerns.” William Ramsay, A Manual of Roman Antiquities 299–300 (Rodolfo Lanciani ed., 15th ed. 1894).

curator ad litem (kyuu-ray-tor ad II-t⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m). A curator appointed by a court to represent the interests of a youth, or an incapacitated or unborn person, during the proceedings before the court. [Cases: Infants 76. C.J.S. Infants § 222.]

curator bonis (kyuu-ray-tor boh-nis). [Latin “a guardian of property”] 1. Roman law. A guardian appointed to care for property, esp. for the benefit of creditors. 2. Scots law. A person appointed by a court to manage an estate, esp. of a minor or an insane person. — Also termed curator ad bona.

curator bonorum (kyuu-ray-tor b⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-nor-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m). A person appointed by a court to administer the estate of an insolvent person.

2. A temporary guardian or conservator appointed by a court to care for the property or person of a minor or incapacitated person. [Cases: Guardian and Ward 13(6).]

interim curator. Archaic. A person appointed by a justice of the peace to hold a felon's property until a royal administrator could be assigned the task.

3.Civil law. A guardian who manages the estate of a minor, an absent person, or an incapacitated person. Pl. curatores.[Cases: Absentees 5; Guardian and Ward 1. C.J.S. Absentees §§ 7–14.]

curator ad hoc (kyuu-ray-tor ad hok). A court-appointed curator who manages a single matter or transaction. See special guardian under GUARDIAN. [Cases: Absentees 5; Infants 76. C.J.S. Absentees §§ 7–14; In-fants § 222.]

curator rei (kyuu-ray-tor ree-I). [Latin] Scots law. A guardian of an estate, as distinguished from a tutor, who is a guardian of a person. — Also termed curator datur rei.

4.Parliamentary law. An officer charged with custody of an organization's valuable property.

A regulation that forbids people (or certain classes of them, such as minors) from being outdoors or in vehicles during specified hours. [Cases: Infants 13. C.J.S. Infants §§ 5, 92–93, 95–98.]

CURIA

curia (kyoor-ee-<<schwa>>), n. [Latin] 1.Roman law. One of 30 divisions (three tribes of ten curiae) into which the Roman people were said to be divided by Romulus. See comitia curiata under COMITIA. 2.Roman law. A legislative gathering, esp. of the Roman Senate; the building used for the gathering. 3.Hist. A judicial tribunal held in the sovereign's palace; a royal court. — Abbr. cur. 4.Hist. A court. 5. The papal court, including its functionaries and officials.

“The word curia in classical Latin is used in a number of ways. Apparently, it meant at first a subdivision of the people. It was also used, by a transfer which is not too clear, for the building in which the Roman Senate met. By an almost inevitable development it became the word for the Senate itself and later the ordinary designation for the Council in municipalities of the later Empire.... How much of this was still recalled in Medieval times, we cannot tell, but ... in the early Middle Ages, curia was a common word to describe both the groups of men who generally were found in attendance on pope, emperor, king or prince, and the groups which were summoned by him to give him counsel. The curia in the latter sense, however, was not really a casual group of persons, summoned spas-modically to advise the king or any other person. It had come to be in Feudal Europe the ordinary Latin word for the general meeting of the lord's vassals, which itself grew out of the Germanic mot or thing.... The Curia of the king was in theory a larger and more important example of the same kind of assemblage.” Max Radin, Handbook of Anglo-American Legal History 46–48 (1936).

CURIA ADMIRALITATIS

curia admiralitatis (kyoor-ee-<<schwa>> ad-m<<schwa>>-ral-<<schwa>>-tay-tis). [Law Latin] See HIGH COURT OF ADMIRALTY.

CURIA ADVISARI VULT

curia advisari vult (kyoor-ee-<<schwa>> ad-v<<schwa>>-sair-iv<<schwa>>lt). [Latin] The court will be advised; the court will consider. • This phrase signaled a court's decision to delay judgment pending further consideration. In England, the phrase is still used in all Court of Appeal decisions when the judgment is reserved; that is, not delivered after the hearing. — Abbr. cur. adv. vult; c.a.v.

CURIA BARONIS

curia baronis (kyoor-ee-<<schwa>> b<<schwa>>-roh-nis). [Law Latin] See COURT BARON .

CURIA BURGI

CURIA PALATII

curia palatii (kyoor-ee-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩ p⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-lay-shee-I). [Law Latin “court of the palace”] PALACE COURT.

CURIA REGIS

Curia Regis (kyoor-ee-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩ ree-jis). [Latin “king's court”] Hist. (sometimes not cap.)
1. The chief court in early Norman England, established by William the Conqueror. • The curia regis was a body of advisers who traveled with the king, advising him on political matters and acting as an appellate court in important or complicated cases. Over time the functions of the curia regis became exclusively judicial in nature. — Also termed King's Court; aula regis. — Abbr. C.R.

“[W]e are tempted to use terms which are more precise than those that were current in the twelfth century. In particular we are wont to speak of the Curia Regis without remembering that the definite article is not in our documents. Any court held in the king's name by the king's delegates is Curia Regis. Thus the institution of what in course of time will be a new tribunal, a Court of King's Bench or a Court of Common Pleas, may be found in some small rearrangement, some petty technical change, which at the moment passes unnoticed.” 1 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 153 (2d ed. 1898).

“[A small] body collects round the king, a body of administrators selected from the ranks of the baronage and of the clergy. At its head stands the chief-justiciar, the king's right-hand man, his viceroy when the king is, as often he is, in his foreign dominions.... This body when it sits for financial purposes constitutes the Exchequer (Scaccarium), so called from the chequered cloth which lies on the table, convenient for the counting of money. Also it forms a council and court of law for the king; it is a curia Regis, the king's court, and its members are justitiiarii, justiciars or justices of this court. Under Henry I they are sent into the counties to collect taxes and to hold pleas; they are then justitiiarii errantes, justitiiarii itinerantes. During the whole period the term curia Regis seems loosely used to cover both the sessions of this permanent body and the assembly of the tenants in chief; the former may perhaps be regarded as a standing committee of the latter.” F.W. Maitland, The Constitutional History of England 63–64 (1908; repr. 1955).

“The focal point of royal government was the curia regis (king's court), the body of advisers and courtiers who attended the king and supervised the administration of the realm. It was not a specific court of law, any more than the eyre was, but rather was the descendant of the Anglo-Saxon witengemot (meeting with the witan, or royal advisers) and the ancestor of the king's council which later subdivided into parliament and the privy council.” J.H. Baker, An Introduction to English Legal History 20 (3d ed. 1990).

2. The sessions of this court.

CURING TITLE

curing title. The act of removing defects from a land title to make it marketable.

CURSITOR

cursor (k<<schwa>>r-s<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>r). Hist. A chancery clerk responsible for making out original writs. • Cursor derives from the writs de cursu that the clerks wrote out.

CURSITOR BARON

cursor baron. Hist. An officer of the Court of Exchequer with administrative, but not judicial, duties. • Over time, as the Barons of the Exchequer took on more judicial rather than fiscal duties, the need for someone with financial experience became apparent. So in 1610 a cursor baron was appointed to sit alongside the judges. The office was abolished in 1856.

CUSOR

cursor (k<<schwa>>r-s<<schwa>>r). Eccles. law. An inferior officer of the papal court.

CURTESY

curtesy (k<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>-see). At common law, a husband's right, upon his wife's death, to a life estate in the land that his wife owned during their marriage, assuming that a child was born alive to the couple. • This right has been largely abolished. Traditionally, the full phrase was estate by the curtesy of England (or Scotland). — Also spelled (esp. in Scots law) courtesy. — Also termed tenancy by the curtesy. Cf. DOWER. [Cases: Dower and Curtesy 1. C.J.S. Dower §§ 2, 5–6, 136–138.]

curtesy consummate (k<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>-see k<<schwa>>n-s<<schwa>>m-it orkahn-s<<schwa>>-mit). The interest the husband has in his wife's estate after her death.

curtesy initiate (k<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>-see i-nish-ee-it). The interest the husband has in his wife's estate after the birth of issue capable of inheriting, and before the death of the wife.

CURTILAGE

curtilage (k<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>-lij). The land or yard adjoining a house, usu. within an enclosure. • Under the Fourth Amendment, the curtilage is an area usu. protected from warrantless searches. — Also termed (in Latin) curtillium. See OPEN-FIELDS DOCTRINE. Cf. MESSUAGE. [Cases: Searches and Seizures 27. C.J.S. Searches and Seizures §§ 36, 71.]

CURTILES TERRAE

CUSTODIAL INTERFERENCE

custodial interference. Family law. 1. The abduction of a child or the inducement of a minor child to leave the parent legally entitled to custody or not to return to the parent entitled to legal custody. 2. Any hindrance to a parent's rightful access to a child. • The Restatement (Second) of Torts § 700 (1977) provides for an action in tort by the parent entitled to custody against one who, with knowledge that the parent does not consent, either takes the child or compels or induces the child to leave or not to return to the parent legally entitled to custody. — Also termed custody interference.

CUSTODIAL INTERROGATION

custodial interrogation. See INTERROGATION.

CUSTODIAL PARENT

custodial parent. See PARENT.

CUSTODIAL RESPONSIBILITY

custodial responsibility. Family law. Physical child custody and supervision, usu. including overnight responsibility for the child. • This term encompasses visitation and sole, joint, and shared custody. Both parents share responsibility for the child regardless of the amount of time they spend with the child. See CUSTODY.

CUSTODIAL TRUST

custodial trust. See TRUST.

CUSTODIAN

custodian, n. 1. A person or institution that has charge or custody (of a child, property, papers, or other valuables); GUARDIAN. • In reference to a child, a custodian has either legal or physical custody. See CAREGIVER. 2. Bankruptcy. A prepetition agent who has taken charge of any asset belonging to the debtor. 11 USCA § 101(11). [Cases: Bankruptcy 2021.1.] — custodianship, n.

CUSTODIAN BANK

custodian bank. See BANK.

CUSTODIA TERRAE ET HAEREDIS

CUSTODY

custody, n. 1. The care and control of a thing or person for inspection, preservation, or security.

constructive custody. Custody of a person (such as a parolee or probationer) whose freedom is controlled by legal authority but who is not under direct physical control.

---

penal custody. Custody intended to punish a criminal offender. [Cases: Escape 1. C.J.S. Escape §§ 2–3, 5–10, 12, 27, 44.]

physical custody. See PHYSICAL CUSTODY(1).

preventive custody. Custody intended to prevent further dangerous or criminal behavior.

protective custody. The government's confinement of a person for that person's own security or well-being, such as a witness whose safety is in jeopardy or an incompetent person who may harm others. [Cases: Witnesses 20. C.J.S. Witnesses § 69.]

2. Family law. The care, control, and maintenance of a child awarded by a court to a responsible adult. • Custody involves legal custody (decision-making authority) and physical custody (caregiving authority), and an award of custody usu. grants both rights. In a divorce or separation proceeding between the parents, the court usu. awards custody to one of them, unless both are found to be unfit, in which case the court may award custody to a third party, typically a relative. In a case involving parental dereliction, such as abuse or neglect, the court may award custody to the state for placing the child in foster care if no responsible relative or family friend is willing and able to care for the child. — Also termed child custody; legal custody; managing conservatorship; parental functions. See managing conservator (2) under CONSERVATOR; PARENTING PLAN. [Cases: Child Custody 1–992. C.J.S. Parent and Child §§ 55–155, 157, 203, 321–325, 377.]

divided custody. An arrangement by which each parent has exclusive physical custody and full control of and responsibility for the child part of the time, with visitation rights in the other parent. • For example, a mother might have custody during the school year, and the father might have custody during the summer vacation. [Cases: Child Custody 210.]

joint custody. An arrangement by which both parents share the responsibility for and authority over the child at all times, although one parent may exercise primary physical custody. • In most jurisdictions, there is a rebuttable presumption that joint custody is in the child's best interests. Joint-custody arrangements are favored unless there is so much animosity between the parents that the child or children will be adversely affected by a joint-custody arrangement. An award of joint custody does not necessarily mean an equal sharing of time; it does, however, mean that the parents will consult and share equally in the child's upbringing and in decision-making about up-bringing. In a joint-custody arrangement, the rights, privileges, and responsibilities are shared, though not necessarily the physical custody. In a joint-custody arrangement, physical custody is usu. given to one parent. In fact, awards of joint physical custody, in the absence of extraordinary circumstances, are usu. found not to be in the best interests of the child. — Also termed shared custody; joint managing conservatorship. [Cases: Child Custody 120–155.]

“The statutes, and the cases as well, differ over the definition of joint custody. It is most often defined as meaning only that both parents will share in the decisions concerning the child's care, education, religion, medical treatment and general welfare.” Homer H. Clark Jr., The Law of Domestic Relations in the United States § 19.5, at 815 (2d ed. 1988).

legal custody. 1.CUSTODY(2), (3).2. The authority to make significant decisions on a child's behalf, including decisions about education, religious training, and healthcare.

physical custody.See PHYSICAL CUSTODY(2), (3).

residential custody.See PHYSICAL CUSTODY(2).

shared custody.See joint custody.

sole custody.An arrangement by which one parent has full control and sole decision-making responsibility — to the exclusion of the other parent — on matters such as health, education, religion, and living arrangements. [Cases: Child Custody 20–88. C.J.S. Parent and Child §§ 56–93.]

split custody.An arrangement in which one parent has custody of one or more children, while the other parent has custody of the remaining children. • Split custody is fairly uncommon, since most jurisdictions favor keeping siblings together.

3. The detention of a person by virtue of lawful process or authority. — Also termed legal custody. [Cases: Arrest 68(3). C.J.S. Arrest §§ 43–44.] — custodial,adj.

CUSTODY DECREE

CUSTOMARY LAW

customary law. Law consisting of customs that are accepted as legal requirements or obligatory rules of conduct; practices and beliefs that are so vital and intrinsic a part of a social and economic system that they are treated as if they were laws. — Also termed consuetudinary law.

cyberlaw (sI-b<<schwa>>r-law). The field of law dealing with the Internet, encompassing cases, statutes, regulations, and disputes that affect people and businesses interacting through computers. • Cyberlaw addresses issues of online speech and business because of the nature of the medium, including intellectual-property rights, free speech, privacy, e-commerce, and safety, as well as questions of jurisdiction. — Also termed cyberspace law.

“Much of the hoopla about ‘cyberspace law’ relates more to climbing the steep learning curve of [the Internet's] technological complexities than to changes in fundamental legal principles. To the extent there was ‘new’ law, it was almost entirely case-by-case development, in accordance with accepted and well-understood basic legal principles, albeit applied to new technology and new circumstances.” Jay Dratler Jr., Cyberlaw § 1.01, at 1–3 (2001).

CYBERPIRACY

cyberpiracy.Trademarks. The act of registering a well-known name or mark (or one that is confusingly similar) as a website's domain name, usu. for the purpose of deriving revenue. • One form of cyberpiracy is cybersquatting. Another is using a similar name or mark to mislead consumers. For example, a site called Nikee.com that sold Nikee-branded athletic shoes and sporting goods would draw customers away from the famous Nike brand. [Cases: Trade Regulation 350.1. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 119.] — cyberpirate,n.

CYBERSPACE LAW

cyberspace law.See CYBERLAW.

CYBERSQUATTING

cybersquatting. The act of reserving a domain name on the Internet, esp. a name that would be associated with a company's trademark, and then seeking to profit by selling or licensing the name to the company that has an interest in being identified with it. • The practice was banned by federal law in 1999. See ANTICYBERS-QUATTING CONSUMER PROTECTION ACT. [Cases: Telecommunications 461.15. C.J.S. Telegraphs, Telephones, Radio, and Television § 221.]

CYBERSTALKING

cyberstalking. The act of threatening, harassing, or annoying someone through multiple e-mail messages, as through the Internet, esp. with the intent of placing the recipient in fear that an illegal act or an injury will be inflicted on the recipient or a member of the recipient's family or household.

CYBERTERRORISM

cyberterrorism. See TERRORISM.

CYBERTHEFT

cybertheft. The act of using an online computer service, such as one on the Internet, to steal someone else's property or to interfere with someone else's use and enjoyment of property. • Examples of cybertheft are hacking into a bank's computer records to wrongfully credit one account and debit another, and interfering with a copyright by wrongfully sending protected material over the Internet. [Cases: Telecommunications 461.15. C.J.S. Telegraphs, Telephones, Radio, and Television § 221.]

CYCLICAL

cyclical (sI-kl<<schwa>>-k<<schwa>>l orsik-l<<schwa>>-k<<schwa>>l), adj. (Of a stock or an industry) characterized by large price swings that occur because of government policy, economic conditions, and seasonal changes.

CY PRES

cy pres (see prayor sI). [Law French “as near as”] 1. The equitable doctrine under which a court reforms a written instrument with a gift to charity as closely to the donor's intention as possible, so that the gift does not fail. • Courts use cy pres esp. in construing charitable gifts when the donor's original charitable purpose cannot be fulfilled. It is also used to distribute unclaimed portions of a class-action judgment or settlement funds to a charity that will advance the interests of the class. Cf. DOCTRINE OF APPROXIMATION . [Cases: Charities 37. C.J.S. Charities §§ 36–37.]

“The cy pres doctrine has been much discussed, if not a little severely criticised, and in many cases misunders-tood... The cy pres doctrine is one under which Courts of Chancery act, when a gift for charitable uses cannot be applied according to the exact intention of the donor. In such cases the courts will apply the gift, as nearly as possible (cy pres) in conformity with the presumed general intention of the donor; for it is an established maxim in the interpretation of wills, that a court is bound to carry the will into effect if it can see a general intention consistent with the rules of law, even if the particular mode or manner pointed out by the testator cannot be followed.” George T. Bispham, The Principles of Equity § 104, at 113–14 (11th ed. 1931).

“Although the reason for the adoption of the cy pres rule by the English chancery court in the middle ages is not known, various hypotheses as to the motives of the court have been suggested. The most plausible theory is that the chancellors, being ecclesiastics and trained in Roman law, resurrected this civil law doctrine in order to save gifts made for religious purposes and thereby subject the property to church control. Justification for the use of the doctrine was laid on the shoulders of the donor, the idea being that since the object of the testator in donating the money to charity was to obtain an advantageous position in the kingdom of heaven, he ought not to be frustrated in this desire because of an unexpected or unforeseen failure.” Edith L. Fisch, The Cy Pres Doctrine in the United States 4 (1950).

2. A statutory provision that allows a court to reform a will, deed, or other instrument to avoid violating the rule against perpetuities. See RULE AGAINST PERPETUITIES.

CYROGRAPHARIUS

cyrographarius (sI-roh-gr<<schwa>>-fair-ee-<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] Hist. See CHIROGRAPH(4).

CYROGRAPHUM

cyrographum (sI-rog-r<<schwa>>-f<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] See CHIROGRAPH(2).

DAILIA

dailia. See DALUS.

DAILUS

dailus. See DALUS.

DAILY BALANCE

daily balance. The final daily accounting for a day on which interest is to be accrued or paid.

average daily balance. The average amount of money in an account (such as a bank account or credit-card account) during a given period. • This amount serves as the basis for computing interest or a finance charge for the period.

DAILY NEWSPAPER

daily newspaper. See NEWSPAPER.

DAISY CHAIN

daisy chain. A series of purchases and sales of the same stock by a small group of securities dealers attempting to drive up the stock's price to attract unsuspecting buyers' interest. • Once the buyers have invested (i.e., are caught up in the chain), the traders sell for a quick profit, leaving the buyers with overpriced stock. This practice is illegal.

DALUS

dalus (day-l<<schwa>>s), n. [Law Latin “a dale”] Hist. 1. A dale; a ditch. 2. A measure of land being a thin strip of pasture between two plowed furrows. — Also termed dailus; dailia.

DAMAGE

damage,adj. Of or relating to monetary compensation for loss or injury to a person or property  . — Also termed damages . Cf. DAMAGES.

damage,n. Loss or injury to person or property <actionable damage resulting from negligence>.

DAMAGE-CLEER

damage-cleer (dam-ij kleeer), n.[fr. Latin damna clericorum “clerk's compensation”] Hist. A set fee payable by a plaintiff to the Court of the Common Pleas, King's Bench, or Exchequer before execution on an award of damages. • The fee — later abolished by statute — was originally a gratuity to the court clerks for preparing special pleadings. It was later abolished by statute. — Also spelled damage cleere. — Also termed damna clericorum.

“Damage cleere, damna clericorum, was assessed by the tenth part in the common pleas, and by the twentieth part in the king's bench and exchequer, of all damages, exceeding five marks, recovered either by verdict, confession, or judgment of the court, in all actions upon the case, covenant, trespass, battery, false imprisonment, dower, and all others, wherein the damages were uncertain, which the plaintiff was obliged to pay to the prothonotary, or chief officer of that court, wherein they were recovered before he could have execution for them. But this is taken away by 17 Car. 2, c. 6.” Termes de la Ley 141 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

DAMAGE FEASANT

damage feasant (dam-ij fez-<<schwa>>nt orfee-z<<schwa>>nt), n.[fr. French faisant dommage] Hist. Doing damage. • This phrase usu. refers to injury to a person's land caused by another person's animals' trespassing on the property and eating the crops or treading the grass. By law, the owner of the damaged property could distrain and impound the animals until compensated by the animals' owner. But the impounder had to feed the animals and could not sell or harm them. The term was introduced during the reign of Edward III. — Also spelled damage faisant. — Also termed damnum facientes.

DAMAGE RULE

damage rule.See LEGAL-INJURY RULE.

DAMAGES

damages,n. pl. Money claimed by, or ordered to be paid to, a person as compensation for loss or injury <the plaintiff seeks $8,000 in damages from the defendant>. — damage,adj.

“Damages are the sum of money which a person wronged is entitled to receive from the wrongdoer as compensation for the wrong.” Frank Gahan, The Law of Damages 1 (1936).

accumulative damages.Statutory damages allowed in addition to amounts available under the common law. — Also termed enhanced damages.

actual damages.An amount awarded to a complainant to compensate for a proven injury or loss; damages that repay actual losses. — Also termed compensatory damages; tangible damages; real damages. [Cases: Damages 15. C.J.S. Damages §§ 21–22.]

---

added damages. See punitive damages.

additional damages. Damages usu. provided by statute in addition to direct damages. • Additional damages can include expenses resulting from the injury, consequential damages, or punitive damages.

benefit-of-the-bargain damages. Damages that a breaching party to a contract must pay to the aggrieved party, equal to the amounts that the aggrieved party would have received, including profits, if the contract had been fully performed. — Also termed loss-of-bargain damages. [Cases: Damages 117.]

compensatory damages (k<<schwa>>m-pen-s<<schwa>>-tor-ee). 1. Damages sufficient in amount to indemnify the injured person for the loss suffered. — Often shortened to compensatories. 2. See actual damages. [Cases: Damages 15. C.J.S. Damages §§ 21–22.]

consequential damages. Losses that do not flow directly and immediately from an injurious act but that result indirectly from the act. [Cases: Damages 15–25. C.J.S. Damages §§ 21–38, 42; Parent and Child § 344.]

contemptuous damages. See nominal damages.

continuing damages. 1. Damages arising from the same injury. 2. Damages arising from the repetition of similar acts within a definite period.

cosmetic damages. The amount awarded to compensate for personal disfigurement.

damages for lost expectations. See expectation damages.

damages ultra (<<schwa>>l-tr<<schwa>>). Additional damages claimed by a plaintiff who is not satisfied with the amounts the defendant paid into court.

direct damages. See general damages.

discretionary damages. Damages (such as mental anguish or pain and suffering) that are not precisely measurable but are determined by the subjective judgment of a jury. — Also termed indeterminate damages.

double damages. Damages that, by statute, are twice the amount that the fact-finder determines is owed or twice the amount of actual damages awarded. • In some cases, double damages are awarded in addition to actual damages, so the effect is the same as treble damages. [Cases: Damages 227. C.J.S. Damages §§ 218–219, 383.]

enhanced damages. 1. See accumulative damages. 2. Patents. Damages for patent infringement in an amount up to three times that of compensatory damages, at the discretion of the court, based on the egregiousness of the defendant's conduct, including the willfulness of the infringement. [Cases: Patents 319(3). C.J.S. Patents § 569.]

estimated damages. See liquidated damages.

excess damages. Damages awarded to an insured — beyond the coverage provided by an insurance policy — because the insurer did not settle the claim within policy limits. • If the insurer acted in bad faith in not settling, the insured may have a claim to recover the excess damages from the insurer. — Also termed excess-liability damages. [Cases: Insurance 3350. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1160–1163, 1342.]

excessive damages. A jury award that grossly exceeds the amount warranted by law based on the facts and circumstances of the case; unreasonable or outrageous damages, which are subject to reduction by remittitur. See REMITTITUR. [Cases: Damages 127–140. C.J.S. Damages §§ 384–385, 387–394; Parent and Child § 344.]

exemplary damages. See punitive damages.

expectation damages. Compensation awarded for the loss of what a person reasonably anticipated from a transaction that was not completed. — Also termed expectancy damages; lost-expectation damages; damages for lost expectations. [Cases: Damages 23. C.J.S. Damages §§ 28–33.]

fee damages. Damages awarded to the owner of abutting property for injury caused by the construction and operation of an elevated railroad. • The term is used because the damage is to the property owner's easements of light, air, and access, which are parts of the fee.

foreseeable damages. Damages that a breaching party knew or should have known would result from a breach when the contract was made. [Cases: Damages 21. C.J.S. Damages §§ 30–33.]

future damages. Money awarded to an injured party for an injury's residual or projected effects, such as those that reduce the person's ability to function. • Examples are expected pain and suffering, loss or impairment of earning capacity, and projected medical expenses. [Cases: Damages 25. C.J.S. Damages § 42.]

general damages. Damages that the law presumes follow from the type of wrong complained of; specif., compensatory damages for harm that so frequently results from the tort for which a party has sued that the harm is reasonably expected and need not be alleged or proved. • General damages do not need to be specifically claimed. — Also termed direct damages; necessary damages. [Cases: Damages 5. C.J.S. Damages §§ 3–6.]

gross damages. The total damages found before adjustments and offsets.

hedonic damages (hi-don-ik). Damages that attempt to compensate for the loss of the pleasure of being alive. • Such damages are not allowed in most jurisdictions. — Also termed (erroneously) hedonistic damages. [Cases: Damages 48–56.20. C.J.S. Damages §§ 94–104; Parent and Child § 344; Torts §§ 66–83.]

imaginary damages. See punitive damages.

inadequate damages. Damages insufficient to fully and fairly compensate the parties; damages bearing no reasonable relation to the plaintiff's injuries, indicating prejudice, mistake, or other fact to support setting aside a jury's verdict. [Cases: Damages 127–140. C.J.S. Damages §§ 384–385, 387–394; Parent and Child § 344.]

incidental damages. 1. Losses reasonably associated with or related to actual damages. 2. A seller's commercially reasonable expenses incurred in stopping delivery or in transporting and caring for goods after a buyer's breach. UCC § 2-710. [Cases: Sales 384(4).] 3. A buyer's expenses reasonably incurred in caring for goods after a seller's breach. UCC § 2-715(1). [Cases: Sales 418(19). C.J.S. Sales §§ 396, 400–401, 404–405.]

“What are incidental damages? The Code does not define incidental damages; rather 2–715(1) lists many expenses that are included as incidental damages. However, Comment 1 to 2–715 stresses that those listed ‘are not intended to be exhaustive’ but are merely illustrative of the typical kinds of incidental expenses that can be recovered under 2–715: (1) those associated with rightful rejection (for instance, inspection and storage); (2) those associated with a proper revocation of acceptance; and (3) those involved in effecting cover.” 1 James J. White & Robert S. Summers, Uniform Commercial Code § 10-3, at 561–62 (4th ed. 1995).

indeterminate damages. See discretionary damages.

intervening damages. Continuing damages that accrue during the pendency and prosecution of an unsuccessful appeal. • A lower court may include intervening damages in an award.

irreparable damages (i-rep-schwa-r*schwa*-b*schwa*l). Damages that cannot be easily ascertained because there is no fixed pecuniary standard of measurement, e.g., damages for a repeated public nuisance. — Also termed nonpecuniary damages.

land damages. See just compensation under COMPENSATION.

lawful damages. Those damages fixed by law and ascertained in a court of law.

liquidated damages. An amount contractually stipulated as a reasonable estimation of actual damages to be recovered by one party if the other party breaches. • If the parties to a contract have properly agreed on liquidated damages, the sum fixed is the measure of damages for a breach, whether it exceeds or falls short of the actual damages. — Also termed stipulated damages; estimated damages. See LIQUIDATED-DAMAGES CLAUSE. Cf. unliquidated damages; PENALTY CLAUSE. [Cases: Damages 74–84. C.J.S. Damages §§ 175–179, 184–194.]

“Where the terms of a contract specify a sum payable for non-performance, it is a question of construction whether this sum is to be treated as a penalty or as liquidated damages. The difference in effect is this: The amount recoverable in case of a penalty is not the sum named, but the damage actually incurred. The amount recoverable as liquidated damages is the sum named as such. In construing these terms a judge will not accept the phraseology of the parties; they may call the sum specified ‘liquidated damages,’ but if the judge finds it to be a penalty, he will treat it as such.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 470 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

“The distinction between a penalty and genuine liquidated damages, as they are called, is not always easy to apply, but the Courts have made the task simpler by laying down certain guiding principles. In the first place, if the sum payable is so large as to be far in excess of the probable damage on breach, it is almost certainly a penalty. Secondly, if the same sum is expressed to be payable on any one of a number of different breaches of varying importance, it is again probably a penalty, because it is extremely unlikely that the same damage would be caused by these varying breaches. Thirdly, where a sum is expressed to be payable on a certain date, and a further sum in the event of default being made, this latter sum is prima facie a penalty, because mere delay in payment is unlikely to cause damage. Finally, it is to be noted that the mere use of the words ‘liquidated damages’ is not decisive, for it is the task of the Court and not of the parties to decide the true nature of the sum payable.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 316–17 (3d ed. 1981).

loss-of-bargain damages. See benefit-of-the-bargain damages.

lost-expectation damages. See expectation damages.

moratory damages (mor-<<schwa>>-tor-ee or mahr). Civil law. Damages for a delay in performing an obligation. La. Civ. Code arts. 1989, 1994. • There must be a default before these damages can be recovered, while compensatory damages are recoverable both for a failure of performance and for a defective performance.

multiple damages. Statutory damages (such as double or treble damages) that are a multiple of the amount that the fact-finder determines to be owed. — Also termed multiplied damages. See double damages; treble damages. [Cases: Damages 227. C.J.S. Damages §§ 218–219, 383.]

“[T]he statutory multiple damages differ from the common law punitive damages in that punitive damages involved no fixed sum or limit. The fixed limit of multiple damages not only reduces their threat to the defendant and the potential for abuse, it also reduces the possibility of a measured deterrence. Likewise, because the enhancement of the award is fixed by the statutory multiple, there is no occasion for introducing evidence of the defendant's wealth as there is in the case of common law punitive damages .... Perhaps a more important distinction is that multiple damages statutes may be enacted for entirely non-punitive purposes. Specifically, some double or treble damages statutes, and also specified ‘civil penalties,’ are intended to provide a kind of liquidated damages for actual losses that cannot be proved or that are otherwise unrecognized by the law.” Dan B. Dobbs, Law of Remedies § 3.12, at 359 (2d ed. 1993).

necessary damages. See general damages.

nominal damages. 1. A trifling sum awarded when a legal injury is suffered but when there is no substantial loss or injury to be compensated. 2. A small amount fixed as damages for breach of contract without regard to the amount of harm. — Also termed contemptuous damages. Cf. substantial damages. [Cases: Damages 8–14. C.J.S. Damages §§ 3, 12–20.]

“Nominal damages are damages awarded for the infraction of a legal right, where the extent of the loss is not shown, or where the right is one not dependent upon loss or damage, as in the case of rights of bodily immunity or rights to have one's material property undisturbed by direct invasion. The award of nominal damages is made as a judicial declaration that the plaintiff's right has been violated." Charles T. McCormick, Handbook on the Law of Damages § 20, at 85 (1935).

"Nominal damages are awarded if the plaintiff establishes a breach of contract or a tort of the kind that is said to be 'actionable per se' but fails to establish a loss caused by the wrong. In the case of tort not actionable per se as, for example, negligence, if the plaintiff fails to establish a loss, the action will be dismissed. The practical significance of a judgment for nominal damages is that the plaintiff thereby establishes a legal right. The judgment has the effect of a declaration of legal rights and may deter future infringements or may enable the plaintiff to obtain an injunction to restrain a repetition of the wrong. The obtaining of nominal damages will also, in many cases, entitle a plaintiff to costs .... [Also,] nominal damages might serve as a peg upon which to hang an award of exemplary damages." S.M. Waddams, The Law of Damages 477–78 (3d ed. 1997).

nonpecuniary damages.Damages that cannot be measured in money. See irreparable damages.

particular damages.See special damages.

pecuniary damages (p<<schwa>>-kyoo-nee-er-ee). Damages that can be estimated and monetarily compensated. • Although this phrase appears in many old cases, it is now widely considered a redundancy — since damages are always pecuniary.

permanent damages.Damages for past, present, and future harm that cannot be avoided or remedied.

presumptive damages.See punitive damages.

prospective damages.Future damages that, based on the facts pleaded and proved by the plaintiff, can reasonably be expected to occur. [Cases: Damages 25. C.J.S. Damages § 42.]

proximate damages.Damages directly, immediately, and naturally flowing from the act complained of. Cf. speculative damages (1). [Cases: Damages 18. C.J.S. Damages §§ 23–25, 27.]

punitive damages.Damages awarded in addition to actual damages when the defendant acted with recklessness, malice, or deceit; specif., damages assessed by way of penalizing the wrongdoer or making an example to others. • Punitive damages, which are intended to punish and thereby deter blameworthy conduct, are generally not recoverable for breach of contract. The Supreme Court has held that three guidelines help determine whether a punitive-damages award violates constitutional due process: (1) the reprehensibility of the conduct being punished; (2) the reasonableness of the relationship between the harm and the award; and (3) the difference between the award and the civil penalties authorized in comparable cases. BMW of North America, Inc. v. Gore, 517 U.S. 559, 116 S.Ct. 1589 (1996). — Also termed exemplary damages; vindictive damages; punitory damages; presumptive damages; added damages; aggravated damages; speculative damages; imaginary damages; smart money; punies. [Cases: Damages 87–94. C.J.S. Damages §§ 183, 195–217.]

“Although compensatory damages and punitive damages are typically awarded at the same time by the same decisionmaker, they serve distinct purposes. The former are intended to redress the concrete loss that the plaintiff has suffered by reason of the defendant's wrongful conduct. The latter, which have been described as ‘quasi-criminal,’ operate as ‘private fines’ intended to punish the defendant and to deter future wrongdoing. A jury's assessment of the extent of a plaintiff's injuries is essentially a factual determination, whereas its imposition of punitive damages is an expression of its moral condemnation.” Cooper Indus. v. Leatherman Tool, 532 U.S. 424, 432, 121 S.Ct. 1678, 1683 (2001)(per Stephens, J.).

real damages.See actual damages.

reliance damages.Damages awarded for losses incurred by the plaintiff in reliance on the contract. [Cases: Damages 22.]

“Reliance damages are ... ‘real’ losses in a much more tangible way than losses of expectations. The distinction is nicely illustrated by McRae v. Commonwealth Disposals Commission.... In this case, ... the defendants sold a shipwrecked tanker which they advertised as lying on a certain reef in the Pacific, and the plaintiffs spent a substantial sum of money equipping a salvage expedition to go in search of the ship. The ship was wholly non-existent, and the plaintiffs were held entitled to damages. Here it was clear that the plaintiffs had incurred substantial expenses — real losses — in reliance on the contract, and the Australian High Court awarded these reliance damages to the plaintiffs.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 311 (3d ed. 1981).

reliance-loss damages.A reimbursement for losses or expenses that the plaintiff suffers in reliance on the defendant's contractual promise that has been breached.

remote damages.See speculative damages (1).

rescissory damages (ri-sis-<<schwa>>-ree or ri-siz-). Damages contemplated to restore a plaintiff to the position occupied before the defendant's wrongful acts.

restitution damages.Damages awarded to a plaintiff when the defendant has been unjustly enriched at the plaintiff's expense.

“Suppose A pays money to B in pursuance of a contract which turns out to be void, or perhaps is subsequently frustrated: clearly A cannot sue B for breach of contract. B's promise to perform his side of the bargain is vitiated by the mistake or the frustrating event, so A's lost expectations are losses which he must just put up with. But his claim to repayment of the money is evidently much stronger: for this money is a tangible loss to A and a tangible enrichment to B. So in this sort of case the money will often be recoverable, though English lawyers think of this as a quasi-contractual claim to recover money as on a total failure of consideration, and not a contractual claim to restitution damages. There is, however, no strong reason for refusing to call this a contractual action, any more than there is a reason for calling an action for damages quasi-contractual.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 312 (3d ed. 1981).

severance damages.In a condemnation case, damages awarded to a property owner for diminution in the fair market value of land as a result of severance from the land of the property actually condemned; compensation awarded to a landowner for the loss in value of the tract that remains after a partial taking of the land. [Cases: Eminent Domain 95–96. C.J.S. Eminent Domain §§ 84, 86, 105, 126–127, 142, 147, 152–153.]

special damages. Damages that are alleged to have been sustained in the circumstances of a particular wrong. • To be awardable, special damages must be specifically claimed and proved. — Often shortened to specials. — Also termed particular damages. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(g). [Cases: Damages 5. C.J.S. Damages §§ 3–6.]

speculative damages. 1. Damages that are so uncertain to occur that they will not be awarded. — Also termed remote damages. 2. See punitive damages.

statutory damages. Damages provided by statute (such as a wrongful-death-and-survival statute), as distinguished from damages provided under the common law. [Cases: Death 80.]

stipulated damages. See liquidated damages.

substantial damages. A considerable sum awarded to compensate for a significant loss or injury. Cf. nominal damages. [Cases: Damages 6, 10. C.J.S. Damages §§ 38–41, 299.]

“Substantial damages ... are the result of an effort at measured compensation, and are to be contrasted with nominal damages which are in no sense compensatory, but merely symbolic.” Charles T. McCormick, Handbook on the Law of Damages § 20, at 85 (1935).

tangible damages. See actual damages.

temperate damages. Rare. Reasonable damages.

temporary damages. Damages allowed for an intermittent or occasional wrong, such as a real-property injury whose cause can be removed or abated. [Cases: Damages 39. C.J.S. Damages § 57.]

treble damages. Damages that, by statute, are three times the amount that the fact-finder determines is owed. — Also termed triple damages. [Cases: Damages 227. C.J.S. Damages §§ 218–219, 383.]

uncertain damages. Damages that are not clearly the result of a wrong. • The rule against allowing recovery of uncertain damages refers to these damages, not damages that are uncertain only in amount. [Cases: Damages 6. C.J.S. Damages §§ 38–41, 299.]

unliquidated damages. Damages that cannot be determined by a fixed formula and must be established by a judge or jury. Cf. liquidated damages. [Cases: Damages 1, 6, 194. C.J.S. Damages §§ 1–2, 4–6, 38–41, 299.]

vindictive damages. See punitive damages.

DAMNATUS

damnatus (dam-nay-t<<schwa>>s), n. [fr. Latin damnare “to condemn”] 1. Roman law. A person condemned, esp. in a capital case. 2. Hist. Something prohibited by law; something that is unlawful, as in damnatus coitus (“unlawful sexual connection”).

DAMN-FOOL DOCTRINE

damn-fool doctrine. Insurance. The principle that an insurer may deny (esp. liability) coverage when an insured engages in behavior that is so ill-conceived that the insurer should not be compelled to bear the loss resulting from the insured's actions. — Also termed damned-fool doctrine.

“The ‘damn foolish acts’ concept is not a perfect predictor of judicial decisions, both because of its own imprecision and because other considerations, such as a desire to assure an innocent third party a source of indemnification, may influence a court. However, especially when ... the insured who acted foolishly has sufficient resources to provide compensation to the injured persons, analysis of a coverage issue on the basis of a ‘damn fool’ doctrine is frequently a very effective approach both to predicting and to understanding outcomes.” Robert E. Keeton & Alan I. Widiss, Insurance Law: A Guide to Fundamental Principles, Legal Doctrines, and Commercial Practices § 5.4, at 541 (1988).

damnify, vb. To cause loss or damage to; to injure <the surety was damnified by the judgment obtained against it>.

DAMNI INJURIA ACTIO

damni injuria actio (dam-nĭ in-joor-ee-<<schwa>> ak-shee-oh). [Latin "an action for wrongful damage"] See actio damni injuria under ACTIO.

DAMNOSA AUT LUCROSA

damnosa aut lucrosa (dam-noh-s<<schwa>> awt loo-kroh-s<<schwa>>). [Latin] Hist. Disadvantageous or advantageous. • The heir to a succession had to determine whether it was hurtful or advantageous to him to take up the estate before actually doing so. See ANNUS DELIBERANDI.

DAMNOSA HEREDITAS

damnosa hereditas (dam-noh-s<<schwa>> h<<schwa>>-red-i-tas), n. [Latin "an injurious inheritance"] 1. Roman & civil law. An inheritance more onerous than beneficial, esp. because it is burdened with debt. 2. English law. A bankrupt debtor's property that creditors will disclaim under the bankruptcy laws because debt on the property will exceed revenues. 3. Generally, anything that is acquired but turns out to be disadvantageous. — Also spelled damnosa haereditas.

DAMNOUS

damnous (dam-n<<schwa>>s), adj. Causing loss or damage.

DAMNO VITANDO

damno vitando. See CERTANS DE DAMNO VITANDO; IN DAMNO VITANDO.

DAMNUM

damnum (dam-n<<schwa>>m), n. [Latin] A loss; damage suffered. Pl. damna.

DAMNUM ABSQUE INJURIA

damnum absque injuria (dam-n<<schwa>>m ab-skwee in-joor-ee-<<schwa>>). See DAMNUM SINE INJURIA.

DAMNUM EMERGENS

damnum emergens (dam-n<<schwa>>m i-m<<schwa>>r-jenz). [Latin "damage arising"] Hist. An actual realized loss (such as a decline in the value of property) as opposed to an expected future loss (such as loss of profit); consequential loss.

“These kinds of damage are distinguished by the commentators as damnum emergens and lucrum cessans, which may be rendered ‘positive damage’ and ‘loss of profit.’ The first may be immediate (e.g., my slave is killed or has lost an eye), or consequential (I have lost his services — I have incurred medical expenses — he was one of a troupe of singers and the whole troupe is less valuable in consequence of his death or injury). Where there is no pecuniary loss there is no action. An action does not lie ... for striking a slave if his value to me has not been depreciated by the blow nor for trespass to land unattended by damage.” R.W. Lee, The Elements of Roman Law 394 (4th ed. 1956).

DAMNUM ET INTERESSE

damnum et interesse (dam-n<<schwa>>m et in-t<<schwa>>r-es-ee). [Latin] Scots law. The loss and damage sustained.

“Damnum et interesse. — The loss and interest; or, as the words may also be translated, damage, and its issues or consequences. The words are used by Erskine in treating of the liability of cautioners who become bound to see a specific act performed. Failing performance, the cautioners are liable to the creditors for the damnum et interesse — that is, the actual and consequential damage suffered through non-performance on the part of the debtor.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 134 (4th ed. 1894).

DAMNUM FACIENTES

damnum facientes (dam-n<<schwa>>m fay-shee-en-teez), n. See DAMAGE FEASANT.

DAMNUM FATALE

damnum fatale (dam-n<<schwa>>m f<<schwa>>-tay-lee). [Latin “unavoidable damage”] Roman law. Damage caused by an unavoidable circumstance, such as a storm or a shipwreck, for which bailees or others will not be held liable. • But an exception was made for damages resulting from theft.

“The liability of innkeepers, carriers, and stable keepers, at Roman law, was provided for in the praetor's edict. They were under an obligation to restore all goods which the guests or passengers had with them, or left in their charge, and they could not defend themselves by showing the utmost degree of diligence. Unavoidable accident, which no human prudence would avert or provide against, damnum fatale, or overwhelming force, vis maior, were, however, an adequate defense .... It was particularly noted that theft by a third person would not be permitted as a defense and the reason assigned was the fact that travelers have scarcely any chance to protect themselves against collusion between the innkeeper and the thief.” Max Radin, Handbook of Roman Law 254 (1927).

DAMNUM INFECTUM

damnum infectum (dam-n<<schwa>>m in-fek-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Roman law. Loss not yet suffered but threatened or apprehended, as when a neighbor's building is likely to collapse onto one's property.

DAMNUM INJURIA DATUM

damnum injuria datum (dam-n<<schwa>>m in-joor-ee-<<schwa>> day-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Roman law. Willful or negligent damage to corporeal property; damage for which compensation was given under the Aquilian law. • In this phrase, the word damnum refers to economic loss, not the physical damage (if any). See actio legis Aquiliae under ACTIO.

DAMNUM SINE INJURIA

damnum sine injuria (dam-n<<schwa>>m sI-nee in-joor-ee-<<schwa>> orsin-ay). [Latin “damage without wrongful act”] Loss or harm that is incurred from something other than a wrongful act and occasions no legal remedy. • An example is a loss from fair trade competition. — Also termed damnum absque injuria; absque injuria damnum; absque injuria. Cf. INJURIA ABSQUE DAMNO. [Cases: Damages 3. C.J.S. Damages § 7.]

“There are cases in which the law will suffer a man knowingly and wilfully to inflict harm upon another, and will not hold him accountable for it. Harm of this description — mischief that is not wrongful because it does not fulfil even the material conditions of responsibility — is called damnum sine injuria, the term injuria being here used in its true sense of an act contrary to law (in jus), not in its modern and corrupt sense of harm.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 372–73 (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

“There are many forms of harm of which the law takes no account. Damage so done and suffered is called damnum sine injuria, and the reasons for its permission by the law are various and not capable of exhaustive statement. For example, the harm done may be caused by some person who is merely exercising his own rights; as in the case of the loss inflicted on individual traders by competition in trade, or where the damage is done by a man acting under necessity to prevent a greater evil.” R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 13 (17th ed. 1977).

DAN

Dan (dan), n.[fr. Latin dominus] Archaic. In England, an honorable title for a man; the English equivalent of the Spanish Don. • The term was replaced by the terms Master, Mister, and Sir.

D &amp; O LIABILITY INSURANCE

D & O liability insurance. See directors' and officers' liability insurance under INSURANCE.

DANELAW

danelaw (dayn-law). Hist. 1. A system of rules, introduced by the Danes during their invasions of England primarily in the ninth century and maintained principally in the midland and eastern counties where the invasions occurred. • Danelaw was the prevailing law in these regions from the reign of King Edgar to Edward the Confessor, who compiled a uniform law that included some Danelaw components. 2. The counties in England where the Danish law was enforced primarily in the ninth and tenth centuries. — Also termed danelage; lex Danorum; denelage.

“The Danish invasions of the ninth century subjected the eastern parts of the island to new Scandinavian influences. Where the Danes conquered, their ‘Danelaw’ prevailed. The very word ‘law’ is believed to have been given to the English language by the Danes.” J.H. Baker, An Introduction to English Legal History 3 (3d ed. 1990).

DANGER

danger. 1. Peril; exposure to harm, loss, pain, or other negative result. 2. A cause of peril; a menace.

apparent danger. 1. Obvious danger; real danger. — Also termed patent danger. 2. Criminal law. The perceived danger in one person's actions toward another, as a result of which it seems necessary for the threatened person to use force in self-defense. See SELF-DEFENSE. [Cases: Homicide 787.]

deterrent danger. An obvious danger that an occupier of land creates to discourage trespassers, such as a barbed-wire fence or spikes on the top of a wall.

extraordinary danger. See extraordinary hazard under HAZARD.

imminent danger. 1. An immediate, real threat to one's safety that justifies the use of force in self-defense. 2. Criminal law. The danger resulting from an immediate threatened injury sufficient to cause a reasonable and prudent person to defend himself or herself. [Cases: Homicide 789.]

patent danger. See apparent danger (1).

retributive danger. A concealed danger that an occupier of land creates to injure trespassers. • A retributive danger is lawful only to the extent that it could be justified if the occupier had inflicted the injury personally or directly to the trespasser. Thus, a spring gun or a land mine is an unlawful means of defending land against a trespasser.

seeming danger. Danger that a reasonable person would perceive to be real, even if it is not.

unavoidable danger. 1. Inescapable danger. 2. A danger that is unpreventable, esp. by a person operating a vessel.

DANGER-CREATION DOCTRINE

danger-creation doctrine. The theory that if a state's affirmative conduct places a person in jeopardy, then the state may be liable for the harm inflicted on that person by a third party. • This is an exception to the general principle that the state is not liable for an injury that a third party inflicts on a member of the public. — Also termed danger-creation exception. Cf. SPECIAL-RELATIONSHIP DOCTRINE. [Cases: States 112.2(1).]

DANGERIA

dangeria, n. Hist. Payment by forest tenants to the lord so that they can plow and sow in the same season as pannage. See PANNAGE.

DANGER-INVITES-RESCUE DOCTRINE

danger-invites-rescue doctrine. See RESCUE DOCTRINE.

DANGER OF NAVIGATION

danger of navigation. See PERIL OF THE SEA.

DANGER OF RIVER

danger of river. See PERIL OF THE SEA.

DANGER OF THE SEA

danger of the sea. See PERIL OF THE SEA.

DANGEROUS

dangerous, adj. 1. (Of a condition, situation, etc.) perilous; hazardous; unsafe . 2. (Of a person, an object, etc.) likely to cause serious bodily harm  .

imminently dangerous. (Of a person, behavior, activity, or thing) reasonably certain to place life and limb in peril. • This term is relevant in several legal contexts. For example, if a mental condition renders a person imminently dangerous to self or others, he or she may be committed to a mental hospital. And the imminently dangerous behavior of pointing a gun at someone's head could subject the actor to criminal and tort liability. Further, the manufacturer of an imminently dangerous product may be held to a strict-liability standard in tort.

inherently dangerous. (Of an activity or thing) requiring special precautions at all times to avoid injury; dangerous per se. See DANGEROUS INSTRUMENTALITY; INHERENTLY DANGEROUS ACTIVITY.

DANGEROUS CONDITION

dangerous condition. See CONDITION(4).

DANGEROUS CONDUCT

dangerous conduct. See unreasonably dangerous conduct under CONDUCT.

DANGEROUS CRIMINAL

dangerous criminal. See CRIMINAL.

DANGEROUS DRUG

dangerous drug. See DRUG.

DANGEROUS EXPOSURE

dangerous exposure. See EXPOSURE.

DANGEROUS INSTRUMENTALITY

dangerous instrumentality. An instrument, substance, or condition so inherently dangerous that it may cause serious bodily injury or death without human use or interference. • It may serve as the basis for strict liability. See ATTRACTIVE-NUISANCE DOCTRINE. Cf. deadly weapon under WEAPON. [Cases: Negligence 305–307, 1172–1178. C.J.S. Negligence §§ 170, 176–179, 399, 476–477, 494–526.]

DANGEROUS LUNATIC

dangerous lunatic. See LUNATIC.

DANGEROUS OCCUPATION

dangerous occupation. See OCCUPATION.

DANGEROUS-PROPENSITY TEST

dangerous-propensity test. See DANGEROUS-TENDENCY TEST.

DANGEROUS-PROXIMITY TEST

dangerous-proximity test. Criminal law. A common-law test for the crime of attempt, focusing on whether the defendant is dangerously close to completing the offense. • Factors include the gravity of the potential crime, the apprehension of the victim, and the uncertainty of the crime's occurrence. See ATTEMPT(2). [Cases: Criminal Law 44. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 114–123.]

DANGEROUS SITUATION

dangerous situation. Under the last-clear-chance doctrine, the circumstance in which a plaintiff operating a motor vehicle has reached a perilous position (as on the path of an oncoming train) that cannot be escaped by the exercise of ordinary care. — Also termed situation of danger. See LAST-CLEAR-CHANCE DOCTRINE. [Cases: Automobiles 227. C.J.S. Motor Vehicles §§ 963–970.]

DANGEROUS-TENDENCY TEST

dangerous-tendency test. A propensity of a person or animal to inflict injury. • The test is used, esp. in dog-bite cases, to determine whether an owner will be held liable for injuries caused by the owner's animal. — Also termed dangerous-propensity test. [Cases: Animals 70. C.J.S. Animals §§ 172, 176–183, 186, 188–189, 198, 200.]

DANGEROUS WEAPON

dangerous weapon. See WEAPON.

DANGER-UTILITY TEST

danger-utility test. See RISK-UTILITY TEST.

DANISM

danism (dan-iz-<<schwa>>m), n. [fr. Greek daneismos “a loan”] Hist. The lending of money on usury.

DARDEN<TT> HEARING

Darden hearing. Criminal procedure. An ex parte proceeding to determine whether disclosure of an informer's identity is pertinent to establishing probable cause when there is otherwise insufficient evidence to establish probable cause apart from the arresting officer's testimony about an informer's communications. • The defense attorney may be excluded from the hearing but can usu. submit questions to be used by the judge in the examination. People v. Darden, 313 N.E.2d 49 (N.Y. 1974). [Cases: Criminal Law 627.10. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 533–540.]

DARE

dare (dair-ee), vb. [Latin “to give”] Roman law. 1. To give; to transfer (something, esp. property). • The transfer can be made to discharge a debt, to create an obligation, or to make a gift. 2. To appoint a representative.

DARE AD REMANENTIAM

dare ad remanentiam (dair-ee ad rem-<<schwa>>-nen-shee-<<schwa>>m), vb. [Latin “to give in fee or forever”] To transfer (esp. a remainder) in fee or forever.

DARPA

DARPA.abbr.DEFENSE ADVANCED RESEARCH PROJECTS AGENCY.

DARRAIGN

darraign (d<<schwa>>-rayn), vb. [fr. Latin derationare; fr. French disrener] Hist. 1. To displace; to disarrange. 2. To respond to an accusation; to settle a dispute. — Also spelled deraigh; dereyne.

DARREIN

darrein (dar-ayn), adj. [fr. French dernier “the last”] The last, as in darrein presentment (“the last presentment”). See DARREIN CONTINUANCE; assize of darrein presentment under ASSIZE(8).

DARREIN CONTINUANCE

darrein continuance (dar-ayn k<<schwa>>n-tin-yoo-<<schwa>>nts), n. [fr. French dernier continuance “the last continuance”] Hist. Every plea of a new matter after the last entry of a plea on the record. • Every entry of a pleading after the first pleading on the record was called a continuance. — Also spelled dareyne continuance.

DARREIN PRESENTMENT

darrein presentment (dar-ayn pri-zent-m<<schwa>>nt), n. See assize of darrein presentment under ASSIZE(8).

DARREIN SEISIN

darrein seisin (dar-ayn see-zin), n.[French "last seisin"] Hist. A tenant's plea in a writ of right. See SEISIN.

DATABASE

database. A compilation of information arranged in a systematic way and offering a means of finding specific elements it contains, often today by electronic means. • Unless the information itself is original, a database is not protected by U.S. copyright law. Elsewhere, it may be protected as a distinct class of "literary works," or it may be the subject of sui generis intellectual-property laws. See SWEAT-OF-THE-BROW DOCTRINE. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 12(3).]

DATABASE DIRECTIVE

Database Directive.See DIRECTIVE ON THE LEGAL PROTECTION OF DATABASES.

DATA PROTECTION

data protection.Any method of securing information, esp. information stored on a computer, from being either physically lost or seen by an unauthorized person.

DATE

date. 1. The day when an event happened or will happen <date of trial>.2. A period of time in general <at a later date>.3. An appointment at a specified time <no dates are available>.

answer date.See answer day under DAY.

appearance date.See answer day under DAY.

date of bankruptcy.Bankruptcy. The date when a court declares a person to be bankrupt; the date of bankruptcy adjudication. • This date may coincide with the voluntary-filing date. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2202.]

date of cleavage.Bankruptcy. The filing date of a voluntary-bankruptcy petition. • With a few exceptions, only the debts existing at this time are dischargeable.

date of injury.Torts. The inception date of an injury; the date of an accident causing an injury.

date of invention.Patents. For purposes of a patent application, the date when the creation was reduced to practice. • If the invention has not been built, the date of invention is the date when the patent application is filed, since that is a constructive reduction to practice.

date of issue. 1.Commercial law. An arbitrary date (for notes, bonds, and other documents in a series) fixed as the beginning of the term for which they run; the date that a stock or bond bears on its face, not the date on which it is actually signed, delivered, or put into circulation. • When a bond is delivered to a purchaser, it is considered "issued." But this concept is distinguishable from the "date of issue," which remains fixed, regardless of the date of sale or delivery. 2.Insurance. The date specified in the policy as the "date of issue," not the date on which the policy is executed or delivered, and regardless of other dates that may be specified in the policy or elsewhere, such as the date that the policy is to “take effect.” [Cases: Insurance 3125(5). C.J.S. Insurance § 852.]

date of maturity.Commercial law. The date when a debt falls due, such as a debt on a promissory note or bond. [Cases: Bills and Notes 129. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 86–89, 91–99.]

declaration date.Corporations. The date when corporate directors declare a dividend. Cf. DIVIDEND DATE; EX-DIVIDEND DATE. [Cases: Corporations 152. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 295–299.]

dividend date.See DIVIDEND DATE.

effective filing date.Patents. The date that a patent application is considered to have been filed. • The actual filing date may be later, as for a continuing application. But under the doctrine of continuity, the child application is usu. entitled to the filing date of the parent application to prove priority. — Also termed parent filing date. See CONTINUITY. [Cases: Patents 110. C.J.S. Patents § 156.]

filing date. 1. Generally, the date when any document is delivered to the appropriate authority. 2.Patents. The date when a patent application is filed. • The filing date closes the door on prior art; starts the clock on the period of eligibility to file in other countries; sets the priority date for public use, disclosure, or sale; and (absent other evidence) establishes the date of constructive reduction to practice. 3.Trademarks. The date when a trademark application is filed.

parent filing date.See effective filing date.

payable date.Corporations. The official date on which shareholder dividends or distributions become payable. — Also termed record date.

payment date.Corporations. The date on which stock dividends or interest checks are paid to shareholders.

priority date.Patents. The date that will determine which applicant in an interference proceeding will get a patent. • The priority date is also the cutoff date for prior art. In the United States the priority date is the date of invention; in the rest of the world it is the date on which the patent application was filed. See FIRST-TO-FILE SYSTEM; FIRST-TO-INVENT SYSTEM.

record date.Corporations. The date on which a stockholder must own shares to be entitled to vote or receive a dividend. — Also termed date of record. See EX-DIVIDEND DATE. [Cases: Corporations 155(2), 194, 197. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 301, 364–367, 373, 375–378.]

settlement date.Securities. 1. The date on which an investor must pay the broker for securities purchased. 2. The date on which a seller must deliver negotiable certificates for securities sold.

submission date. 1. The date that a case is to be submitted to a court for determination. 2. The date on which an investor must pay the broker for securities purchased. 3. The date on which a seller must deliver negotiable certificates for securities sold.

DATE CERTAIN

date certain. A fixed or appointed day; a specified day, esp. a date fixed by an instrument such as a deed. Cf. TIME CERTAIN(1). — Also termed (in French law) date certaine (dat sair-tayn).

DATE OF RECORD

date of record. See record date under DATE.

DATE RAPE

date rape. See RAPE.

DATIO

datio (day-shee-oh), n. [fr. Latin dare “to give”] Roman law. 1. An act of giving, as in datio in solutum (“giving in payment”). 2. An appointment, as in datio tutoris (“appointment of a guardian”). Pl. dationes (day-shee-oh-nee-z).

DATIO IN SOLUTUM

datio in solutum (day-shee-oh in s<<schwa>>-l[y]oo-t<<schwa>>m). Roman law. The discharging of an obligation by the giving and acceptance of something other than the thing due.

DATION

dation (day-sh<<schwa>>n), n. [fr. Latin dare “to give”] Civil law. A grant of something the recipient is actually entitled to, such as an office.

DATION EN PAIEMENT

dation en paiement (day-sh<<schwa>>n in pay-m<<schwa>>nt or da-syon ahn pay-mon), n. [French “a giving in payment”] Civil law. 1. An exchange of something instead of money to satisfy a debt. See ACCORD AND SATISFACTION. [Cases: Accord and Satisfaction 13. C.J.S. Accord and Satisfaction §§ 25–27, 29.] 2. Louisiana law. A contract in which the obligor gives a thing to the obligee, who accepts it in payment of a debt. La. Civ. Code art. 2655. • Dation en paiement requires court approval after petition and notice. 3. A method of satisfying a mortgage debt by transferring the mortgaged property when the mortgage exceeds the property's value and the mortgage-holder is willing to accept the property in satisfaction of the debt. [Cases: Mortgages 304. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 451, 475.]

DATIVE

dativ (day-tiv), n. [fr. French datif “of giving”] 1. Roman & civil law. An appointment made by judicial or magisterial authority; esp., something granted that is not provided by law or a will. • In Scotland, an executor-dativ is a court-appointed executor. 2. Hist. Something that can be given or retracted at will, such as an appointment to a nonperpetual office. — Also spelled datif.

DATIVE CURATORSHIP

dativ curatorship. See dativ tutorship under TUTORSHIP.

DATIVE TUTORSHIP

---

datave tutorship. See TUTORSHIP.

DATUM

datum (day-t<<schwa>>m), n. [fr. Latin dare “to give”] 1. A piece of information. Pl. data. 2. Hist. Something given or executed. 3. A date.

DATUS BONIS

datus bonis (day-t<<schwa>>s boh-nis). [Latin] Scots law. (Of a person) appointed to manage an estate.

DAUBERT<TT> HEARING

Daubert hearing (dah-b<<schwa>>rt or doh-behr). A hearing conducted by federal district courts, usu. before trial, to determine whether proposed expert testimony meets the federal requirements for relevance and reliability, as clarified by the Supreme Court in Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharms., Inc., 509 U.S. 579, 113 S.Ct. 2786 (1993). [Cases: Evidence 508, 546, 555. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 527, 597–601, 609–610, 624–625, 627, 634, 649, 652, 677, 680, 682–684, 687–688, 713, 729.]

DAUBERT<TT> TEST

Daubert test. A method that federal district courts use to determine whether expert testimony is admissible under Federal Rule of Evidence 702, which generally requires that expert testimony consist of scientific, technical, or other specialized knowledge that will assist the fact-finder in understanding the evidence or determining a fact in issue. • In its role as “gatekeeper” of the evidence, the trial court must decide whether the proposed expert testimony meets the requirements of relevance and reliability. The court applies the test outside the jury's presence, usu. during a pretrial Daubert hearing. At the hearing, the proponent must show that the expert's underlying reasoning or methodology and its application to the facts are scientifically valid. In ruling on admissibility, the court considers a flexible list of factors, including (1) whether the theory can be or has been tested, (2) whether the theory has been subjected to peer review or publication, (3) the theory's known or potential rate of error and whether there are standards that control its operation, and (4) the degree to which the relevant scientific community has accepted the theory. Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharms., Inc., 509 U.S. 579, 113 S.Ct. 2786 (1993). Similar scrutiny must be applied to nonscientific expert testimony. Kumho Tire Co. v. Carmichael, 526 U.S. 137, 119 S.Ct. 1167 (1999). Variations of the Daubert test are applied in the trial courts of most states. [Cases: Evidence 508, 546, 555. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 527, 597–601, 609–610, 624–625, 627, 634, 649, 652, 677, 680, 682–684, 687–688, 713, 729.]

DAUGHTER

daughter. A parent's female child; a female child in a parent–child relationship.

DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

daughter-in-law. The wife of one's son.

DAVIS-BACON ACT

Davis-Bacon Act. A federal law originally enacted in 1931 to regulate the minimum-wage rates payable to employees of federal public-works projects. 40 USCA § 276a.

DAY

day. 1. Any 24-hour period; the time it takes the earth to revolve once on its axis <we have a day to prepare a mandamus petition>. [Cases: Time 8.C.J.S. Time §§ 8-10.] 2. The period between the rising and the setting of the sun <day or night>. — Also termed natural day. 3. Sunlight <we can see it in the day>. 4. The period when the sun is above the horizon, along with the period in the early morning and late evening when a person's face is discernible. 5. Any specified time period, esp. as distinguished from other periods <the good old days> . — Also termed (in senses 2-4) daytime. Cf. NIGHT.

adjournment day. 1. The day on which an organization, such as a court or legislature, adjourns. 2. Hist. A later day appointed by the judges at regular sittings at nisi prius to try an issue of fact not then ready for trial.

adjournment day in error. Hist. A day scheduled for completion of matters not finished on the affirmance day of the term.

affirmance day general. Hist. In the Court of Exchequer, a day appointed after the beginning of every term to affirm or reverse judgments.

answer day. The last day for a defendant to file and serve a responsive pleading in a lawsuit. • Under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, a defendant generally must serve an answer (1) within 20 days after being served with the summons and complaint, or (2) if a defendant timely waives service at the plaintiff's request, within 60 days after the request for waiver was sent. Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(d), 12(a). — Also termed answer date; appearance date; appearance day.

artificial day. The period from the rising to the setting of the sun. — Also termed solar day; civil day; dies solaris.

astronomical day. See solar day (2). banking day. See BANKING DAY.

business day. A day that most institutions are open for business, usu. a day on which banks and major stock exchanges are open, excluding Saturdays and Sundays.

calendar day. A consecutive 24-hour day running from midnight to midnight. — Also termed natural day. [Cases: Time 8. C.J.S. Time §§ 8-10.]

civil day. See artificial day.

clear day. One of many full, consecutive days between (1) the date when a period, measured in days, begins and (2) the date when an event that ends the period occurs. • For example, if a statute or contract requires a party to give another party five clear days of notice of a hearing, and the hearing is scheduled to be held on the 31st day of the month, the party giving notice must do so by the 25th day of the month so that five full (clear) days elapse between but not including the 25th and 31st.

common day. In England, an ordinary court day.

court day. A day on which a particular court is open for court business. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(a); Fed. R. Crim. P. 45(a).

day of demurrage. Maritime law. A day beyond the days allowed for loading or unloading cargo. • A fine is usu. assessed for each day of delay. See DEMURRAGE. Cf. LAYDAY.

dedication day. Hist. A day on which people from several villages gathered in one place to celebrate the feast day of the saint and patron of a church.

entire day. An undivided day, rather than parts of two or more days aggregated to form a 24-hour period. • An entire day must have a legal, fixed, precise time to begin and end. A statute referring to an entire day contemplates a 24-hour period beginning and ending at midnight. [Cases: Time 8. C.J.S. Time §§ 8–10.]

ferial day (feer-ee-<<schwa>>l). Hist. 1. A day free from labor, pleading, and service of process; a holiday. 2. A working day, under a 1449 statute (27 Hen. 6, ch. 5).

juridical day (juu-rid-i-k<<schwa>>l). A day on which legal proceedings can be held. — Also termed judicial day. Cf. nonjudicial day; NONJURIDICAL.

law day. See LAW DAY.

lay day. See LAYDAY.

legislative day. A day that begins when a legislative body reconvenes after a recess or adjournment, and ends when the body next recesses or adjourns until a different calendar day. • A legislative day may extend over several calendar days.

love day. Hist. 1. A day when neighbors amicably settled a dispute. 2. A day when one neighbor helped another without payment.

natural day. 1. The 24-hour period from midnight to midnight. — Also termed calendar day. [Cases: Time 8. C.J.S. Time §§ 8–10.] 2. The period between sunrise and sunset. — Also termed artificial day.

nonjudicial day. A day when courts do not sit or when legal proceedings cannot be conducted, such as a Sunday or legal holiday. See LEGAL HOLIDAY; NON JURIDICUS. Cf. juridical day. [Cases: Time 8. C.J.S. Time §§ 8–10.]

peremptory day. A day assigned for trial or hearing, without further opportunity for postponement.

quarter day. Hist. One of four days during a year that money owed (such as rent) was legally or customarily payable. • In England and Wales the quarter days are Lady Day, March 25;

Midsummer Day, June 24; Michaelmas Day, September 29; and Christmas Day, December 25. In Scotland the traditional quarter or term days are Candlemas, February 2; Whitsunday (or Whitsuntide), May 15; Lammas, August 1; and Martinmas, November 11. Scotland's statutory quarter or term days are the 28th of February, May, August, and November. If a document specifies a different date for a quarter day, then the specified date controls. — Also termed (in Scots law) term day.

return day. 1. A day on which a defendant must appear in court (as for an arraignment). [Cases: Criminal Law 228. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 344.] 2. A day on which a defendant must file an answer. 3. A day on which a proof of service must be returned to court. — Also termed rule day. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 512; Pleading 131. C.J.S. Pleading § 198.] 4. A day on which a writ of execution must be returned to court. [Cases: Execution 333. C.J.S. Executions § 323.] 5. A day specified by law for counting votes in an election. — Also termed return date. [Cases: Elections 126(7), 241. C.J.S. Elections § 119(1).] solar day. 1. See artificial day. 2. The 24-hour period from noon to noon. — Also termed astronomical day.

DE

de (d<<schwa>> or duu). [French] Of; about. • This is a French preposition often used to show the genitive case, as in breve de droit (“writ of right”).

de (dee or day). [Latin] Of; about; concerning; respecting; by; from; out of; affecting. • This preposition is used in the titles of English statutes, of original and judicial writs, and of court proceedings.

DEACON

deacon. 1.Eccles. law. In certain churches, a member of the clerical order who assists the priest in various duties, including the presentation of the sacrament. • It is the third order of the

---

Church of England below bishops and priests. A deacon is not allowed to consecrate the Holy Communion or pronounce absolution but can perform most of the other priestly duties. 2. An elected or appointed officer of a church who assists a minister or priest in various duties.

DEAD-AND-BURIED COMPANY

dead-and-buried company. See COMPANY.

DEAD ASSET

dead asset. See ASSET.

DEADBEAT

deadbeat. Slang. A person who does not pay debts or financial obligations (such as child-support payments, fines, and legal judgments), usu. with the suggestion that the person is also adept or experienced at evading creditors.

DEADBEAT DAD

deadbeat dad. Slang. A father who has not paid or who is behind in making child-support payments.

DEADBEAT MOM

deadbeat mom. Slang. 1. A mother who has not paid or who is behind in making child-support payments. • This term is used far less frequently than either deadbeat dad or deadbeat parent, probably because nearly ten times as many men as women fail to support (or are ordered to support) their children financially after divorce. 2. An able-bodied mother whose income is derived from welfare payments, not from gainful employment.

DEADBEAT PARENTS PUNISHMENT ACT

Deadbeat Parents Punishment Act. A 1998 federal statute that makes it a felony, punishable by up to two years in prison, for failure to pay child support if the obligor has crossed state lines in an attempt to avoid paying the support. • The Act provides felony penalties if (1) a person travels across state lines intending to evade a child-support obligation that is over $5,000 or that has remained unpaid longer than one year, or (2) a person willfully fails to pay support for a child living in a different state if that obligation is greater than $10,000 or if it remains unpaid for more than two years. The Act supersedes the Child Support Recovery Act of 1994. The greatest change in the new statute is the provision regarding the obligor's crossing of state lines in an effort to evade the support obligation. 42 USCA § 228. — Abbr. DPPA. See CHILD SUPPORT RECOVERY ACT OF 1994.

DEADBORN

deadborn. See STILLBORN.

DEAD CORPORATION

dead corporation. See dissolved corporation under CORPORATION.

DEAD FREIGHT

dead freight. See FREIGHT.

DEADHAND CONTROL

deadhand control. The convergence of various legal doctrines that allow a decedent's control of wealth to influence the conduct of a living beneficiary; esp., the use of executory interests that vest at some indefinite and remote time in the future to restrict alienability and to ensure that property remains in the hands of a particular family or organization. • Examples include the lawful use of conditional gifts, contingent future interests, and the Claflin-trust principle. The rule against perpetuities restricts certain types of deadhand control, which is sometimes referred to either as the power of the mortua manus (dead hand) or as trying to retain property in mortua manu. See RULE AGAINST PERPETUITIES.

DEAD LETTER

dead letter. 1. A law or practice that, although not formally abolished, is no longer used, observed, or enforced. 2. A piece of mail that can be neither delivered nor returned because it lacks correct addresses for both the intended recipient and the sender. [Cases: Postal Service 24.C.J.S. Postal Service and Offenses Against Postal Laws § 20.]

DEADLOCK

deadlock, n. 1. A state of inaction resulting from opposition, a lack of compromise or resolution, or a failure of election. See tie vote under VOTE (3). 2. Corporations. The blocking of corporate action by one or more factions of shareholders or directors who disagree about a significant aspect of corporate policy. [Cases: Corporations 553(5), 592. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 760, 811, 813–816, 818, 821, 824, 830–831.] — deadlock, vb.

DEADLY FORCE

deadly force. See FORCE.

DEADLY WEAPON

deadly weapon. See WEAPON.

DEADLY WEAPON PER SE

deadly weapon per se. See WEAPON.

DEAD MAN'S PART

dead man's part. 1. Archaic. By custom in certain places, the portion of a dead man's estate set

“If the deceased leaves a widow and children, his substance ... is divided into three parts; one of which belongs to the widow, another to the children, and the third to the administrator: if only a widow, or only children, they shall respectively, in either case, take one moiety, and the administrator the other: if neither widow nor child, the administrator shall have the whole. And this portion, or dead man's part, the administrator was wont to apply to his own use, till the statute I Jac. II. c. 17 declared that the same should be subject to the statute of distributions.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 518 (1766).

“If a testator leaves neither wife nor child, he can give away the whole of his movable goods. If the testator leaves wife but no child, or child but no wife, his goods must, after his debts have been paid, be divided into two halves; one of these can be disposed of by his will, it is ‘the dead's part,’ the other belongs to the widow, or (as the case may be) to the child or children.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 349 (2d ed. 1899).

2.Scots law. The part of the movable estate that may be disposed of by will in any way the testator wishes; specif., the part of a dead man's personal estate not legally reserved for his spouse or children and capable of being bequeathed by will or falling upon intestacy to his next of kin. — Also termed dead's part.

DEAD MAN'S STATUTE

dead man's statute. A law prohibiting the admission of a decedent's statement as evidence in certain circumstances, as when an opposing party or witness seeks to use the statement to support a claim against the decedent's estate. — Also termed dead person's statute. [Cases: Witnesses 125.C.J.S. Witnesses § 215.]

DEAD MARRIAGE

dead marriage. See MARRIAGE(1).

DE ADMENSURATIONE DOTIS

de admensuratione dotis (dee ad-men-s[y]uu-ray-shee-oh-nee doh-tis), n. [Law Latin “of the admeasurement of dower”] Hist. A writ available to an heir (or the heir's guardian if the heir is an infant) to reduce the dower of the ancestor's widow who, while the heir was an infant, was assigned more dower than she was entitled to.

“If the heir or his guardian do not assign her dower within the term of quarantine, or do assign it unfairly, she has her remedy at law, and the sheriff is appointed to assign it. Or if the heir (being under age) or his guardian assign more than she ought to have, it may be afterwards remedied by writ of admeasurement of dower.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 136 (1766).

de allocatione facienda (dee al-<<schwa>>-kay-shee-oh-nee fay-shee-en-d<< schwa>>), n.[Law Latin “for making allowance”] Hist. A writ directed to the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer allowing certain officers (such as accountants and customs collectors) to have in their accounts the funds necessary to make certain payments.

DE ALODE PARENTUM

de alode parentum (dee al-<<schwa>>-dee p*<<schwa>>-ren-t<<schwa>>*m). [Law Latin] Hist. From freehold of one's parents.

“De alode parentum. — Lands descending by inheritance from parents were said to be so acquired, in contradistinction to lands held in feu ... and to those acquired by a singular title. Subsequently the phrase acquired a more comprehensive signification, as all lands were, in process of time, termed allodial, in which the holder had a right of absolute property, without rendering any service therefor, or recognising any superior therein, and of which he had an unlimited power of disposal.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 137 (4th ed. 1894).

DE ALTO ET BASSO

de alto et basso (dee al-toh et bas-oh), n.[Law Latin “of high and low”] Hist. The total submission of all differences — great or small — to arbitration.

DE AMBITU

de ambitu (dee am-bi-tyoo). [Latin “of going around”] Of devious methods of securing a position, as through bribery. • Several Roman laws (such as the Lex Julia de Ambitu) dealt with these methods, such as prohibiting electoral bribery.

DE AMPLIORI GRATIA

de ampliori gratia (dee am-pli-or-Igray-shee-<<schwa>>). [Latin] Of more abundant or more full grace.

DEAN

dean. 1.Eccles. law. An officer who leads a chapter, parish, or other subdivision of a diocese, usu. upon a bishop's request or appointment.

“A dean and chapter are the council of the bishop, to assist him with their advice in affairs of religion, and also in the temporal concerns of his see .... All ancient deans are elected by the chapter, by conge d'eslire from the king, and letters missive of recommendation; in the same manner as bishops: but in those chapters, that were founded by Henry VIII out of the spoils of the dissolved monasteries, the deanery is donative .... The chapter, consisting of canons or prebendaries, are sometimes appointed by the king, sometimes by the bishop, and sometimes elected by each other.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 370–71 (1765).

2. In a school, college, or university, the administrative or academic head. • In larger schools, there may be several kinds of deans, such as a dean of admissions and a dean of student affairs. Within a university, there may be deans of specific schools. [Cases: Colleges and Universities 7.C.J.S. Colleges and Universities §§ 15–18.] 3. The head or commander of a group of ten, such as ten soldiers or ten monks.

DE ANNO BISSEXTILI

de anno bissextili (dee an-oh bis-sek-stī-II), n.[Law Latin “of the bissextile year”] Hist. A law of Henry III advising the justices of the bench that in a case requiring something to be done within a year, the leap-year day and the day before should be counted as one day.

DE ANNUA PENSIONE

de annua pensione (dee an-yoo-<<schwa>> pen-shee-oh-nee), n.[Law Latin “of annual pension”] Hist. A royal writ demanding payment from an abbey or prior, of a yearly pension for the king's chaplain named in the writ.

de asportatis religiosorum (dee as-por-tay-tis ri-lij-ee-oh-sor-<<schwa>>m), n.[Law Latin “concerning the property of religious persons carried away”] Hist. A statute of Edward I passed to curb alienation of clerical possessions, including the removal of those possessions to foreign countries.

DE ASSISA PROROGANDA

de assisa proroganda (dee <<schwa>>-sI-z<<schwa>> proh-r<<schwa>>-gan-d<< schwa>>), n.[Law Latin “of the proroguing of an assize”] Hist. A writ ordering justices to postpone an assize because a party is busy in the Crown's service.

DEATH

death. The ending of life; the cessation of all vital functions and signs. — Also termed decease; demise.

accidental death.A death that results from an unusual event, one that was not voluntary, intended, expected, or foreseeable.

brain death.The bodily condition of showing no response to external stimuli, no spontaneous movements, no breathing, no reflexes, and a flat reading (usu. for a full day) on a machine that measures the brain's electrical activity. — Also termed legal death.

civil death. 1.Archaic. At common law, the loss of rights — such as the rights to vote, make contracts, inherit, and sue — by a person who has been outlawed or convicted of a serious crime, or who is considered to have left the temporal world for the spiritual by entering a monastery.

“In one large department of law the fiction [civil death] is elegantly maintained. A monk or nun can not acquire or have any proprietary rights. When a man becomes ‘professed in religion,’ his heir at once inherits from him any land that he has, and, if he has made a will, it takes effect at once as though he were naturally dead.” 1 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, History of English Law 434 (2d ed. 1898).

“Civil death arises from outlawry; it seems doubtful whether there are any other circumstances to which the phrase is now applicable.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 193 n.(b) (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

2. In some states, the loss of rights — such as the rights to vote and hold public office — by a person serving a life sentence. Cf. civil disability under DISABILITY(3). [Cases: Officers and Public Employees 31. C.J.S. Officers and Public Employees §§ 28–30.] 3. The state of a corporation that has formally dissolved or become bankrupt, leaving an estate to be administered for the benefit of shareholders and creditors. — Also termed (in senses 2 & 3) legal death. [Cases: Corporations 617(1). C.J.S. Corporations § 852.]

compensable death. Workers' compensation. A death that, because it occurred in the course of employment, entitles the employee's heirs to compensation. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 408–510. C.J.S. Workmen's Compensation §§ 245–287.]

death by one's own hand. See SUICIDE(1).

immediate death. 1. See instantaneous death. 2. A death occurring within a short time after an injury or seizure, but not instantaneously.

“A distinction has been made between ‘instantaneous’ and ‘immediate’ death .... As an example of ‘immediate’ rather than ‘instantaneous’ death ... the situation in which a blow on the head produces unconsciousness and renders the victim incapable of intelligent thought, speech, or action for several minutes until he dies.” 22A Am. Jur. 2d Death § 43, at 159 (1988).

instantaneous death. Death occurring in an instant or within an extremely short time after an injury or seizure. • It is a factor in determining an award of damages for the victim's pain and suffering. — Sometimes also termed immediate death.

“Although the possibility of a death that is truly simultaneous with the injury that caused it has been denied, it has been pointed out that death may be so contemporaneous with the fatal injury as to be instantaneous in the sense that there could be no recovery for the victim's pain and suffering. Ordinarily, death is not regarded as instantaneous if an appreciable length of time elapsed between the injury and the death. Indeed, even where the injury causing the death is necessarily fatal and death results therefrom in a few moments, it has been held that although it would commonly be called an instantaneous death, still if the injured person survives the injury for a brief period, it may not be said that the death is instantaneous .... In such case it is immaterial that the period of time between the injury and death is short.” 22A Am. Jur. 2d Death § 43, at 158 (1988).

legal death. 1. See brain death. 2. See civil death (2). 3. See CIVIL DEATH (3).

natural death. 1. Bodily death, as opposed to civil death. 2. Death from causes other than accident or violence; death from natural causes. — Also termed mors naturalis. Cf. violent death. See NATURAL-DEATH ACT.

presumptive death. Death inferred from proof of the person's long, unexplained absence, usu. after seven years. See ENOCH ARDEN LAW. [Cases: Death 1–2. C.J.S. Death §§ 1, 3, 8–14.]

simultaneous death. The death of two or more persons in the same mishap, under circumstances that make it impossible to determine who died first. See UNIFORM SIMULTANEOUS DEATH ACT; COMMON DISASTER; COMMORIENTES.

violent death. Death accelerated by human intervention and resulting from a sharp blow, explosion, gunfire, or the like. Cf. natural death.

death-damage statute. Archaic. See WRONGFUL-DEATH STATUTE.

DEATH DUTY

death duty. 1. DUTY(4). 2. See estate tax under TAX.

DEATH-KNELL DOCTRINE

death-knell doctrine. A rule allowing an interlocutory appeal if precluding an appeal until final judgment would moot the issue on appeal and irreparably injure the appellant's rights. • Once recognized as an exception to the final-judgment rule, the doctrine was limited by the U.S. Supreme Court in Coopers & Lybrand v. Livesay, 437 U.S. 463, 98 S.Ct. 2454 (1978). There, the Court held that the death-knell doctrine does not permit an immediate appeal of an order denying class certification. But the doctrine still applies in some contexts. For example, the doctrine allows an immediate appeal of the denial of a temporary restraining order when the lack of an appeal would leave nothing to be considered in the trial court. *Woratzek v. #### DEBELLATIO debellatio (deb-<<schwa>>-lay-shee-oh). [Latin] Int'l law. A means of ending a war and acquiring territory when one of the belligerent countries has been so soundly defeated that its adversary is able to decide alone the fate of the defeated country's territory; conquest followed by annexation. — Also termed subjugation.

“[There are] three possible alternative meanings of debellatio in international law. The first is that debellatio denotes the change wrought by the conquest and total subjugation of a State together with that State's annexation by the conqueror. The second view is that debellatio corresponds to the total defeat of an enemy State, its occupation, and the elimination of a vital component of Statehood; in this view, debellatio implies the extinction of the old State, but it leaves open the legal future of the occupied territory (annexation or the founding of one or more new States). The third view is that debellatio only describes a factual situation and that even the elimination of all the State organs combined with the occupation of the territory does not exclude the continuing existence of that State. It is mainly the second and the third meanings of debellatio which have been advocated for the situation of Germany since the end of World War II.” Karl-Ulrich Meyn, “Debellatio,” in 1 Encyclopedia of Public International Law 166 (1992).

DE BENE ESSE

de bene esse (dee bee-nee es-ee also day ben-ay es-ay), adv.[Law Latin “of well-being”] As conditionally allowed for the present; in anticipation of a future need <Willis's deposition was taken de bene esse>. [Cases: Pretrial Procedure 63. C.J.S. Pretrial Procedure §§ 3–10, 18–20, 35–54.] — Abbr. d.b.e. — de bene esse,adj.

DEBENTURE

debenture (di-ben-ch<<schwa>>r). [fr. L. debentur “there are owed”] 1. A debt secured only by the debtor's earning power, not by a lien on any specific asset. • Originally, this was the first word of a deed detailing sums acknowledged to be owed. 2. An instrument acknowledging such a debt. 3. A bond that is backed only by the general credit and financial reputation of the corporate issuer, not by a lien on corporate assets. — Also termed debenture bond; unsecured bond; naked debenture; plain bond. Cf. BOND(3). [Cases: Corporations 470. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 664–665.]

“The word ‘debenture’ in its archaic sense was applied to a form given under seal as an acknowledgment for goods supplied to the Royal Household, and as such probably meant a charge on Public Funds. The term was further applied to drawback certificates issued for repayment, on the exportation of goods, of duty which had already been paid upon them, and this term is still so used by H.M. Customs.... The word is now, however, generally used to indicate an acknowledgment of indebtedness given under seal by an incorporated company, containing a charge on assets of the company, and carrying an agreed rate of interest until payment, but the variety of the forms which a debenture may take makes it difficult to find a good general definition in any reported case.” Thomas Froude & Eric V.E. White, The Practice Relating to Debentures 1 (1935).

convertible debenture.A debenture that the holder may change or convert into some other security, such as stock. [Cases: Corporations 473. C.J.S. Corporations § 670.]

DEBET ET DETINET

debet et detinet (dee-bet ordebet-et et det-i-net ordet-<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>t). [Law Latin] Hist. He owes and detains. • This phrase was used in declarations in actions for debt when the original creditor sued the original debtor. The declaration stated that the defendant “owes to” as well as “detains from” the plaintiff the debt or thing in question; thus, the action was said to be “in the debet et detinet.” But if the action was brought against someone other than the original debtor (such as an executor, for a debt due from the testator), then the action was said to be “in the detinet alone.” Cf. DETINET.

DEBET SINE BREVE

debet sine breve (dee-bet ordebet-et sI-nee breevorbree-vee), n.[Law Latin “debt without a writ”] 1. An action for debt commenced under a bill rather than a writ. 2. A debt confessed by judgment. — Abbr. d.si.ib. — Also termed debitum sine breve; debit sans breve. See CONFESSION OF JUDGMENT.

DE BIEN ET DE MAL

de bien et de mal (d<<schwa>> byen ay d<<schwa>> mal). [Law French] See DE BONO ET MALO(1).

DE BONIS NON ADMINISTRATIS

de bonis non administratis (dee boh-nis non ad-min-<<schwa>>-stray-tis). [Law Latin] Hist. Of the goods not administered. • When the first administrator of an intestate estate dies or is removed, the second administrator is called an administrator bonis non, who administers the goods not administered by the previous executor.

DE BONIS NON AMOVENDIS

de bonis non amovendis (dee boh-nis non ay-moh-ven-dis), n.[Latin “of goods not to be moved”] Hist. A writ directing the sheriffs of London to make sure that a defendant's goods are not removed while the defendant's writ of error on a judgment is pending.

DE BONIS PROPRIIS

de bonis propriis (dee boh-nis proh-pree-is), n.[Law Latin “of his own goods”] Hist. A judgment allowing execution on an administrator's individual property rather than the property of an estate, as when the administrator mismanages the estate. Cf. DE BONIS TESTATORIS.

DE BONIS TESTATORIS

de bonis testatoris (dee boh-nis tes-t<<schwa>>-tor-is), n.[Law Latin “of the goods of the testator”] Hist. A judgment awarding execution on a testator's property, rather than the individual property of an administrator. Cf. DE BONIS PROPRIIS .

DE BONIS TESTATORIS AC SI

de bonis testatoris ac si (dee boh-nis tes-t<<schwa>>-tor-is ak sI). [Law Latin “from the goods of the testator if he has any, and if not, from those of the executor”] Hist. A judgment holding an executor responsible if the testator's estate is insufficient or if the executor falsifies a pleading as a release.

DE BONNE MEMOIRE

de bonne memoire (d<<schwa>> bawn mem-wahr). [Law French] Of sound mind; of good memory. — Also spelled de bone memorie. See MIND AND MEMORY; COMPOS MENTIS .

DE BONO ET MALO

de bono et malo (dee boh-noh et mal-oh), n.[Law Latin “for good and evil”] Hist1.For good and evil. • A criminal defendant indicated full submission to the jury's verdict by placing himself or herself at the jury's mercy de bono et malo. — Also termed de bien et de mal. 2. A special writ of jail delivery issued by the justices of assize to enable them to try all criminal defendants who were in jail where the court traveled. • Formerly, the judges were required to issue a separate writ for every prisoner. This was replaced by a general commission of jail delivery.

“[T]hey have ... a commission of general gaol delivery; which empowers them to try and deliver every prisoner, who shall be in the gaol when the judges arrive at the circuit town, whenever indicted, or for whatever crime committed. It was anciently the course to issue special writs of gaol delivery for each particular prisoner, which were called the writs de bono et malo: but, these being found inconvenient and oppressive, a general commission for all the prisoners has long been established in their stead. So that, one way or other, the gaols are cleared, and all offenders tried, punished, or delivered, twice in every year: a constitution of singular use and excellence.” 4 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 267 (1769).

DE BONO GESTU

de bono gestu (dee boh-noh jes-t[y]oo). [Law Latin] For good behavior.

DEBT

debt. 1. Liability on a claim; a specific sum of money due by agreement or otherwise <the debt amounted to $2,500>.2. The aggregate of all existing claims against a person, entity, or state <the bank denied the loan application after analyzing the applicant's outstanding debt>.3. A nonmonetary thing that one person owes another, such as goods or services < her debt was to supply him with 20 international first-class tickets on the airline of his choice>.4. A common-law writ by which a court adjudicates claims involving fixed sums of money <he brought suit in debt>. — Also termed (in sense 4) writ of debt. [Cases: Debt, Action of 1. C.J.S. Debt, Action Of §§ 1–2, 7–11.]

“The action of debt lies where a party claims the recovery of a debt; that is, a liquidated or certain sum of money due him. The action is based upon contract, but the contract may be implied, either in fact or in law, as well as express; and it may be either a simple contract or a specialty. The most common instances of its use are for debts: (a) Upon unilateral contracts express or implied in fact. (b) Upon quasi-contractual obligations having the force and effect of simple contracts. (c) Upon bonds and covenants under seal. (d) Upon judgments or obligations of record. (e) Upon obligations imposed by statute.” Benjamin J. Shipman, Handbook of Common-Law Pleading § 52, at 132 (Henry Winthrop Ballantine ed., 3d ed. 1923).

active debt.Civil law. A debt due to another person.

ancestral debt.An ancestor's debt that an heir can be compelled to pay.

antecedent debt. 1.Contracts. An old debt that may serve as consideration for a new promise if the statute of limitations has run on the old debt. See PREEXISTING-DUTY RULE. [Cases: Contracts 67. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 121–122.] 2.Bankruptcy. A debtor's prepetition obligation that existed before a debtor's transfer of an interest in property. • For a transfer to be preferential, it must be for or on account of an antecedent debt. See PREFERENTIAL TRANSFER. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2612. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 142–143.]

bonds.

community debt. A debt that is chargeable to the community of husband and wife. See COMMUNITY PROPERTY. [Cases: Husband and Wife 268.]

consumer debt. A debt incurred by someone primarily for a personal, family, or household purpose. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2185, 2254, 2618. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 55, 150, 348.]

“What are ‘consumer’ debts? Section 101(8) defines a consumer debt as follows: ‘consumer debt means debt incurred by an individual primarily for a personal, family, or household purpose.’ The touchstone is the debtor's use of the money. The nature of the collateral, the business of the creditor and the form of the loan are all irrelevant. A loan of $25,000 from a Credit Union to pay for a child's education is a consumer debt, but the same loan used to finance the opening of an accounting business is not a consumer debt. This is so irrespective of the nature of the collateral put up for the debt.” David G. Epstein et al., Bankruptcy § 7-45, at 579 (1993).

contingent debt. A debt that is not presently fixed but that may become fixed in the future with the occurrence of some event.

pure debt. See pure obligation under OBLIGATION.

secured debt. A debt backed by collateral.

short-term debt. Collectively, all debts and other liabilities that are payable within one year. — Also termed current liability.

simple-contract debt. A debt that is either oral or written but is not of record and not under seal. — Also termed debt by simple contract.

special-contract debt. A debt due, or acknowledged to be due, by an instrument under seal, such as a deed of covenant or sale, a lease reserving rent, or a bond. — Also termed debt by special contract; debt by specialty contract; specialty debt.

---

“Any contract in short whereby a determinate sum of money becomes due to any person, and is not paid but remains in action merely, is a contract of debt. And, taken in this light, it comprehends a great variety of acquisition; being usually divided into debts of record, debts by special, and debts by simple contract.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 464 (1766).

subordinate debt. A debt that is junior or inferior to other types or classes of debt.

unliquidated debt. A debt that has not been reduced to a specific amount, and about which there may be a dispute.

DEBT LIMITATION

debt limitation. A ceiling placed on borrowing by an individual, business, or government. • The constitutions of many states prohibit the states from incurring debt in excess of a stated amount. Other state constitutions allow states to incur debt above a stated amount only through a vote of the people. — Also termed limitation on indebtedness. [Cases: States 115. C.J.S. States §§ 216, 218–222.]

DEBT OF RECORD

debt of record. See DEBT.

DEBTOR

debtor. 1. One who owes an obligation to another, esp. an obligation to pay money.
 2. Bankruptcy. A person who files a voluntary petition or against whom an involuntary petition is filed — Also termed bankrupt. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2221. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 45.]

“Section 101 [of the Bankruptcy Code] also introduces us to the language of modern bankruptcy practice. It tells us, for instance, that the person whom a bankruptcy case concerns is a debtor. A person or a firm in bankruptcy is no longer called a bankrupt. Although that word retains some currency among lay people, among bankruptcy lawyers it sounds old-fashioned and precious.” Douglas G. Baird, Elements of Bankruptcy 6 (2001).

3. Secured transactions. A person who either (1) has a property interest — other than a security interest or other lien — in collateral, even if the person is not an obligor, or (2) is a seller of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes. UCC § 9-102(a)(28). — Abbr. Dr. [Cases: Secured Transactions 12, 21. C.J.S. Secured Transactions §§ 7, 10, 12, 19, 36.]

absent debtor. A debtor who lacks the intent to defraud creditors but is beyond the geographic reach of ordinary service of process.

absconding debtor. A debtor who flees from creditors to avoid having to pay a debt. • Absconding from a debt was formerly considered an act of bankruptcy. See ACT OF BANKRUPTCY.

account debtor. A person obligated on an account, chattel paper, or general intangible. • The UCC exempts from the definition of account debtor a person obligated to pay a negotiable instrument, even if the instrument constitutes chattel paper. UCC § 9-102(a)(3).

common debtor. Scots law. A debtor whose property has been arrested by more than one creditor.

concealed debtor. A debtor who hides from creditors, usu. with the intent to defraud the creditors or to avoid service of process, but does not leave the community or move out of state.

joint debtor. One of two or more debtors jointly liable for the same debt.

judgment debtor. See JUDGMENT DEBTOR.

new debtor. Secured transactions. A person who becomes bound as debtor under a security agreement previously entered into by another person. UCC §§ 9-102(a)(56), 9-203(e).

solvent debtor. A debtor who owns enough property to cover all outstanding debts and against whom a creditor can enforce a judgment.

DEBTOR-IN-POSSESSION

debtor-in-possession. Bankruptcy. A Chapter 11 or 12 debtor that continues to operate its business as a fiduciary to the bankruptcy estate. • With certain exceptions, the decenary.Hist. A town or district consisting of ten freeholding families. • A freeholder of the decenary (a decennarius) was bound by frankpledge to produce any wrongdoer living in the decenary. — Also spelled decennary. — Also termed decenna; tithing. Cf. FRANKPLEDGE.

DECENARY

“The civil division of the territory of England is into counties, of those counties into hundreds, of those hundreds into tithings or towns. Which division, as it now stands, seems to owe its original to king Alfred; who, to prevent the rapines and disorders which formerly prevailed in the realm, instituted tithings; so called from the Saxon, because ten freeholders, with their families, composed one. These all dwelt together, and were sureties or free pledges to the king for the good behavior of each other; and, if any offence was committed in their district, they were bound to have the offender forthcoming. And therefore anciently no man was suffered to abide in England above forty days, unless he were enrolled in some tithing or decenary.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 110 (1765).

DECIES TANTUM

decies tantum (desh-ee-eez ordee-shee-eez tan-t*<<schwa>>*m), n.[Law Latin “ten times as much”] Hist. A writ ordering a juror who accepted a bribe for a verdict to pay ten times the bribery amount, half to the suing party and half to the Crown.

“Decies tantum is a writ that lies where a juror in any inquest takes money of the one part or other, to give his verdict; then he shall pay ten times as much as he hath received: and every one that will sue may have this action, and shall have the one half, and the king the other .... And the same law is of all other actions popular, where one part is to the king, the other to the party that sues. Also the embracers, who procure such inquests, shall be punished in the same manner, and they shall have imprisonment a year. But no justice shall inquire thereof ex officio, but only at the suit of the party.” Termes de la Ley 146 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

DECIMAE

decimae (des-<<schwa>>-mee), n.[fr. Latin decem “ten”] Eccles. law. 1. The tenth part of the annual profits of a benefice originally payable to the Pope, and later to the Crown by 26 Hen. 8, ch. 3.

“The tenths, or decimae, were the tenth part of the annual profit of each living ... which was also claimed by the holy see .... But this claim of the pope met with a vigorous resistance from the English parliament; and a variety of acts were passed to prevent and restrain it .... But the popish clergy, blindly devoted to the will of a foreign master, still kept it on foot; sometimes more secretly, sometimes more openly and avowedly .... And, as the clergy expressed this willingness to contribute so much of their income to the head of the church, it was thought proper (when in the same reign the papal power was abolished, and the king was declared the head of the church of England) to annex this revenue to the crown ....” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 274 (1765).

2. Tithes paid to the church, often in grain or wool.

DECIMAE GARBALES

dying declaration.A statement by a person who believes that death is imminent, relating to the cause or circumstances of the person's impending death. • The statement is admissible in evidence as an exception to the hearsay rule. — Also termed deathbed declaration; ante mortem statement. [Cases: Evidence 275.5; Homicide 1075. C.J.S. Evidence § 288.]

“[A] rule peculiar to criminal cases is the exception to the rule respecting hearsay evidence which renders dying declarations as to the cause of death admissible in trials for murder or manslaughter.... The earliest emphatic statement of it ... is to be found in Woodcock's case, decided in 1789 .... This case refers to a decision in 1720 ... and to the case of R. v Reason and Tranter, decided in 1722. That case, however, says nothing as to any limitation on the rule. A series of cases from 1678 to 1765 show that during that period declarations of deceased persons as to the cause of their death were admitted even though the declarants had hopes of recovery when they were made.” 1 James Fitzjames Stephen, A History of the Criminal Law of England 447–48 (1883).

self-disserving declaration. See declaration against interest.

self-serving declaration. An out-of-court statement made to benefit one's own interest. [Cases: Criminal Law 413; Evidence 271. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 877; Evidence § 289.]

7. Common-law pleading. The plaintiff's first pleading in a civil action. • It is an amplification of the original writ on which the action is founded, with the additional circumstances of the time and place of injury. In a real action, the declaration is called a count. Today the equivalent term in English law is statement of claim; in most American jurisdictions, it is called a petition or complaint. — Also termed narratio. See COUNT(2), (3). Cf. PLEA (2). [Cases: Pleading 41. C.J.S. Pleading § 96.] “The declaration is a statement of all material facts constituting the plaintiff's cause of action in a methodical and legal form. It consists of the following parts: (a) Statement of title of court. (b) Statement of venue in the margin. (c) The commencement. (d) The body, or statement of the cause of action. (e) The conclusion.” Benjamin J. Shipman, Handbook of Common-Law Pleading § 76, at 192 (Henry Winthrop Ballantine ed., 3d ed. 1923).

declaration in chief. A declaration for the principal cause of action.

8. A formal, written statement — resembling an affidavit but not notarized or sworn to — that attests, under penalty of perjury, to facts known by the declarant. • Such a declaration, if properly prepared, is admissible in federal court with the same effect as an affidavit. 28 USCA § 1746. — Also termed declaration under penalty of perjury; unsworn declaration under penalty of perjury. Cf. AFFIDAVIT. 9. Int'l law. An oral or written statement, unilaterally made, by which a state expresses its will, intent, or opinion when acting in the field of international relations. 10. See declaratory judgment under JUDGMENT. 11. DECLARATION OF RIGHTS. — declare, vb. — declaratory, adj.

DECLARATION OF PARIS

Declaration of Paris. An international agreement, signed by Great Britain, France, Turkey, Sardinia, Austria, Prussia, and Russia in 1856 (at the end of the Crimean War), providing that (1) privateering is illegal, (2) with the exception of contraband, a neutral flag covers an enemy's goods, (3) with the exception of contraband, neutral goods cannot be confiscated under a hostile flag, and (4) a blockade must work to be binding. • The agreement was later adopted by most other maritime powers, except the United States and a few others.

“The Declaration of Paris is one of the greatest triumphs won by commercial interests over the strict rules of maritime warfare. Its importance resides in its first three articles. Article 4 did no more than formulate a principle acknowledged for more than a century. Construed strictly it requires an impossibility; for no blockade, however strict, can always ‘prevent access to the coast of the enemy.’ But it is clear that the words were meant to be understood in a reasonable sense as merely prohibitory of ineffective or ‘paper’ blockades .... Article 1 struck at a most objectionable practice. The current of opinion had long been running strongly against the use of privateers.... Article 2 ... has provoked an enormous amount of controversy. Together with Article 3 it amounted to a new departure in the law of maritime capture. Up to 1856 the great naval powers had been divided between the old principle that the liability of goods to capture should be determined by the character of their owner, and the more modern principle ... that the character of the ship in which the goods were laden should settle their fate.” 1 R.H. Inglis Palgrave, Palgrave's Dictionary of Political Economy 520–21 (Henry Higgs ed., 2d ed. 1925).

DECLARATION OF RIGHTS

declaration of rights. 1. An action in which a litigant requests a court's assistance not because any rights have been violated but because those rights are uncertain. • Examples include suits for a declaration of legitimacy, for declaration of nullity of marriage, and for the authoritative interpretation of a will. 2. #### DECLARATORY THEORY declaratory theory.The belief that judges' decisions never make law but instead merely constitute evidence of what the law is. • This antiquated view — held by such figures as Coke and Blackstone — is no longer accepted.

“There are ... at least three good reasons why the declaratory theory should have persisted for some time after the modern English doctrine [of precedent] had begun to take shape. In the first place, it appealed to believers in the separation of powers, to whom anything in the nature of judicial legislation would have been anathema. Secondly, it concealed a fact which Bentham was anxious to expose, namely, that judge-made law is retrospective in its effect. If in December a court adjudges that someone is liable, in consequence of his conduct during the previous January, it would certainly appear to be legislating retrospectively, unless the liability is based on an earlier Act of Parliament, or unless the court is simply following a previous decision. A way of disguising the retrospective character of such a judgment would be to maintain the doctrine that the court really was doing no more than state a rule which anyone could have deduced from well-known principles or common usage, for the conduct in question would then have been prohibited by the law as it stood in January. The third reason for the persistence of the declaratory theory may be thought to justify its retention in a revised form today. When confronted with a novel point, judges always tend to speak as though the answer is provided by the common law.” Rupert Cross & J.W. Harris, Precedent in English Law 30 (4th ed. 1991).

DECREE

decree, n. 1. Traditionally, a judicial decision in a court of equity, admiralty, divorce, or probate — similar to a judgment of a court of law < the judge's decree in favor of the will's beneficiary >. 2. A court's final judgment. 3. Any court order, but esp. one in a matrimonial case < divorce decree >. See JUDGMENT; ORDER(2); DECISION. [Cases: Divorce 152. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 222, 230–234.]

“The chief differences between decrees in equity and judgments at common law are as follows: The former are pronounced by courts of equity; the latter, by courts of law. The former result from an investigation and determination of the rights of the parties by the means provided and according to the principles recognized in equity jurisprudence; the latter result from an investigation and determination made by the more limited means and more inflexible rules of the common law. The former may be adjusted to all the varieties of interest and of circumstance, and may contain such directions as are needed to carry them into effect, both in letter and in spirit; the latter are in an invariable form, general in terms, and absolute for plaintiff or defendant. And the former often enforce rights not recognized by the common law .... The term ‘judgment’ is frequently used in a broad sense to include decrees in equity.” 1 A.C. Freeman, A Treatise of the Law of Judgments § 12, at 23–24 (Edward W. Tuttle ed., 5th ed. 1925).

agreed decree. A final judgment, the terms of which are agreed to by the parties.

consent decree. A court decree that all parties agree to. — Also termed consent order. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2397; Judgment 87. C.J.S. Judgments § 186.]

decree of valuation.Scots law. A decree of the Teind Court determining the extent and value of a heritor's teinds.

decree pro confesso (proh k<<schwa>>n-fes-oh).Equity practice. A decree entered in favor of the plaintiff as a result of the defendant's failure to timely respond to the allegations in the plaintiff's bill; esp., a decree entered when the defendant has defaulted by not appearing in court at the prescribed time. — Also termed decree taken pro confesso. [Cases: Equity 417–420.]

“A decree pro confesso in equity is similar to a default judgment in an action at law. If a defendant in an equity suit fails to answer the plaintiff's petition within the prescribed time period, the bill will be taken pro confesso, and a decree entered in favor of the plaintiff .... However, whereas a default judgment in an action at law effects an admission of pleaded facts and conclusions of law ... a decree pro confesso in an equity action admits only the material and well pleaded facts in the petition and does not admit the legal claims upon which the plaintiff seeks relief.” 27A Am. Jur. 2d Equity § 249, at 733–34 (1996).

deficiency decree. See deficiency judgment under JUDGMENT.

divorce decree. A final judgment in a suit for divorce. • A divorce decree dissolves the marriage and usu. resolves all matters concerning property and children. Generally, matters concerning children can be modified in a post-divorce action if there has been a substantial change in circumstances.

DECRETA

decreta (di-kree-t<<schwa>>), n.[Latin "decisions"] Roman law. Judgments of magistrates; esp., sentences pronounced by the emperor as the supreme judge. See DECRETUM.

"Decreta. In Roman law decisions of magistrates given after investigation of a case by cognitio... and in particular, decisions of the emperor as judge of first instance after trial by cognitio, or as a judge of appeal. As the highest authority in the State the emperor could interpret the law freely and even introduce new principles. Consequently imperial decisions were authoritative interpretations of the law or even innovatory and regarded as statements binding for the future, and as such quoted by the jurists. They were not only communicated to the parties but recorded in the records of the imperial court and private persons might obtain copies of them." David M. Walker, The Oxford Companion to Law 343 (1980).

DE DIE IN DIEM

de die in diem (dee dI-ee in dI-<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] From day to day; daily.

DEDI ET CONCESSI

dedi et concessi (dee-dI et k<<schwa>>n-ses-I). [Law Latin] I have given and conveyed. • These were the words generally used to convey a gift.

DEDIMUS ET CONCESSIMUS

dedimus et concessimus (ded-<<schwa>>m<<schwa>>s et k<<schwa>>n-ses-i-m<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] We have given and granted. • These words were used in a conveyance when there was more than one grantor or when the grant was from the Crown.

DEDIMUS POTESTATEM

dedimus potestatem (ded-⟨schwa⟩-m⟨schwa⟩s poh-tes-tay-t⟨schwa⟩m). [Law Latin “we have given power”] 1. A commission issuing from the court before which a case is pending, authorizing a person named in the commission to compel the attendance of certain witnesses, to take their testimony on the written interrogatories and cross-interrogatories attached to the commission, to reduce the answers to writing, and to send it sealed to the court issuing the commission. 2. In England, a chancery writ commissioning the persons named in the writ to take certain actions, including administering oaths to defendants and justices of the peace. • The writ was formerly used to commission a person to take action such as acknowledging a fine and appointing an attorney for representation in court. Before the Statute of Westminster (1285), an attorney could not appear on behalf of a party without this writ. — Also termed dedimus potestatem de attorno faciendo.

“Dedimus potestatem is a writ that lies where a man sues in the king's court, or is sued, and cannot well travel, then he shall have this writ directed to some justice, or other discreet person in the country, to give him power to admit some man for his attorney, or to levy a fine, or to take his confession, or his answer, or other examination, as the matter requires.” Termes de la Ley 148 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

DEDITICII

dediticii (ded-i-tish-ee-I-or dee-di-tI-shee-I), n. pl.[Latin “those who have surrendered”] Roman law. The lowest class of freemen whose members were ineligible for Roman citizenship, including enemies granted freedom in exchange for surrender, or, under the Lex Aelia Sentia, manumitted slaves convicted of a crime in a court, or branded or put in chains by their former owners. • Dediticii who were formerly slaves were not allowed to live within 100 miles of Rome. Justinian abolished this status. — Also spelled dedititii. — Sing. dediticius, dedititius.

“Dediticii ... were not reduced to slavery, but to a condition quite analogous. They were not allowed to make a will, or to take under one; they never obtained Roman citizenship, and they could not come within one hundred miles of the city of Rome.” Andrew Stephenson, A History of Roman Law § 119, at 324 (1912).

“Slaves who before manumission had been subjected to degrading punishment (e.g. had been branded or made to fight in the arena) were given, on manumission, a special status, viz. that of enemies surrendered at discretion (dediticii). A dediticius, though free and not a slave, had none of the rights of a citizen, could never under any circumstances better his position (e.g. become a citizen), and was not allowed to live within 100 miles of Rome.” R.W. Leage, Roman Private Law 67 (C.H. Ziegler ed., 2d ed. 1942).

DEDITION

dedition (di-dish-⟨schwa⟩n), n.[fr. Latin deditio “give up”] A surrender of something, such as property.

DE DIVERSIS REGULIS JURIS ANTIQUI

de diversis regulis juris antiqui (dee di-v⟨schwa⟩r-sis reg-y⟨schwa⟩-lis joor-is an-tI-kwI). [Latin “of various rules of ancient law”] Roman law. The last title in the Digest, containing 211 maxims. See DIGEST(2).

DE DOLO MALO

de dolo malo (dee doh-loh mal-oh). [Latin] Of or based on fraud. See ACTIO DE DOLO MALO .

DE DOMO REPARANDA

de domo reparanda (dee doh-moh rep-<<schwa>>-ran-d<<schwa>>), n.[Law Latin “to repair a house”] Hist. A writ ordering a cotenant to contribute to the expenses of maintaining common property.

DE DONIS CONDITIONALIBUS

De Donis Conditionalibus (dee doh-nis k<<schwa>>n-dish-ee-<<schwa>>-nal-i-b<<schwa>>s). An English statute, enacted in 1285, that gave rise to the ability to create a fee tail. — Often shortened to De Donis. — Sometimes written de donis conditionalibus.

“[T]he statute de donis of 13 Edw. I... was intended to check the judicial construction, that had, in a great degree, discharged the conditional fee from the limitation imposed by the grant. Under that statute, fees conditional were changed into estates tail ....” 4 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law *444 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

“[A]fter De Donis, the formula ‘to A and the heirs of his body’ gave to A an estate known as an estate in fee tail. Because A had no power to transfer an estate in fee simple absolute, it became theoretically possible for persons like O to tie up the ownership of land in a single family for hundreds of years. We say theoretically possible because by 1472 a way would be found for the tenant in tail (as A was called) to transfer an estate in fee simple absolute despite De Donis.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 29 (2d ed. 1984).

DE DOTE ASSIGNANDA

de dote assignanda (dee doh-tee as-ig-nan-d<<schwa>>), n.[Law Latin “for assigning dower”] Hist. A writ ordering a royal escheater to provide dower to a widow of a tenant holding an estate directly from the Crown.

DE DOTE UNDE NIL HABET

de dote unde nil habet (dee doh-tee <<schwa>>n-dee nil hay-bet), n.[Law Latin “of dower whereof she has none”] A writ ordering a tenant interfering with a widow's right to dower to provide a reasonable dower. — Also termed writ of dower.

“DE DOTE UNDE NIL HABET. This is a writ of right in its nature .... It must be brought by the widow as demandant, against the tenant of the freehold, that is, the heir or his alienee, and its effect is to enable the former to recover from the latter the seisin of a third part of the tenements in demand, to be set forth to her in severalty by metes and bounds, together with damages and costs.”

DEDUCTIBLE

deductible,adj. Capable of being subtracted, esp. from taxable income. See DEDUCTION(2).

deductible,n.1. Under an insurance policy, the portion of the loss to be borne by the insured before the insurer becomes liable for payment. Cf. SELF-INSURED RETENTION N. [Cases: Insurance 2106, 2523.]

straight deductible.A deductible that is a specified, fixed amount.

2. The insurance-policy clause specifying the amount of this portion.

DEDUCTION

deduction,n.1. The act or process of subtracting or taking away. 2.Tax. An amount subtracted from gross income when calculating adjusted gross income, or from adjusted gross income when calculating taxable income. — Also termed tax deduction. Cf. EXEMPTION(3); TAX CREDIT. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3270–3516; Taxation 1031.1–1046. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 33, 55, 58, 63, 140, 146–205, 209–265, 267–268, 270–287, 329–330, 335, 409, 489, 671, 673, 799–800; Taxation §§ 1738–1755.]

additional standard deduction.The sum of the additional amounts that a taxpayer who turns 65 or becomes blind before the close of the taxable year is entitled to deduct. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3295; Taxation 1031.1. C.J.S. Taxation §§ 1738–1739.]

charitable deduction.A deduction for a contribution to a charitable enterprise that has qualified for tax-exempt status in accordance with IRC (26 USCA) § 501(c)(3) and is entitled to be deducted in full by the donor from the taxable estate or from gross income. See CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTION(2); CHARITABLE ORGANIZATION. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3337; Taxation 1031.1. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 186, 212, 215–222, 276; Taxation §§ 1738–1739.]

deduction in respect of a decedent.A deduction that accrues to the point of death but is not recognizable on the decedent's final income-tax return because of the accounting method used, such as an accrued-interest expense of a cash-basis debtor.

itemized deduction.An expense (such as a medical expense, home-mortgage interest, or a charitable contribution) that can be subtracted from adjusted gross income to determine taxable income.

marital deduction.A federal tax deduction allowed for lifetime and testamentary transfers from one spouse to another. IRC (26 USCA) §§ 2056, 2523. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4169. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 535.]

miscellaneous itemized deduction.Generally, an itemized deduction of job or investment expenses; a deduction other than those allowable in computing adjusted gross income, those enumerated in IRC (26 USCA) § 67(b), and personal exemptions. • This type of deduction is allowed only to an itemizing taxpayer whose total miscellaneous itemized deductions exceed a statutory percentage of adjusted gross income.

standard deduction. A specified dollar amount that a taxpayer can deduct from adjusted gross income, instead of itemizing deductions, to determine taxable income. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3295; Taxation 1031.1. C.J.S. Taxation §§ 1738–1739.]

3. The portion of a succession to which an heir is entitled before a partition. 4. The act or process of reasoning from general propositions to a specific application or conclusion. Cf. INDUCTION(2). — deduct (for senses 1–3), vb. — deduce (for sense 4), vb.

DEDUCTION FOR NEW

deduction for new. See NEW-FOR-OLD(1).

DEDUCTION IN RESPECT OF A DECEDENT

deduction in respect of a decedent. See DEDUCTION.

DEDUCTIS DEBITIS

deductis debitis (di-d<<schwa>>k-tis deb-i-tis). [Latin] Hist. The debts being deducted. • Before an estate could be ascertained, the debts had to be deducted.

DE EA RE ITA CENSUERE

de ea re ita censuere (dee ee-<<schwa>> ree I-t<<schwa>> sen-s[y]oo-<<schwa>>-ree). [Latin] Concerning that matter they have so decreed. • This phrase was used to record decrees of the Roman senate. — Abbr. d.e.r.i.c.

DEED

deed, n. 1. Something that is done or carried out; an act or action. 2. A written instrument by which land is conveyed. 3. At common law, any written instrument that is signed, sealed, and delivered and that conveys some interest in property. — Also termed (in senses 2 & 3) evidence of title. See contract under seal under CONTRACT. Cf. CONVEYANCE; BILL OF SALE. — deed, vb.

“A deed is a writing sealed and delivered. For if either a parchment without writing be delivered as one's deed, yet it is not his deed, though an obligation be afterwards written in it: or if it be a writing but not sealed at the time of the delivery of it as his deed, it is a scrole and not his deed. Or if I make and seal a deed, and the party take it without my delivery, I may plead it is not my deed.” Sir Henry Finch, Law, or a Discourse Thereof 108 (1759).

“What then is a deed? Unfortunately the word is not free from ambiguity. In the original and technical sense a deed is a written instrument under the seal of the party executing it. Because, however, of the wide use of such instruments in the conveyance of real estate, it has come to mean in popular acceptance any formal conveyance for the transfer of land or of an interest therein. The dual use of the term has crept into the language of courts and law writers, so that in the reading of cases it is difficult to determine whether the word is used in the first and original sense, or whether it connotes a formal instrument of the type ordinarily employed for the conveyance of land.” Ray Andrews Brown, The Law of Personal Property § 46, at 118–19 (2d ed. 1955).

“All deeds are documents, but not all documents are deeds. For instance, a legend chalked on a brick wall, or a writing tattooed on a sailor's back may be documents but they are not deeds. A deed is, therefore, a particular kind of document. It must be a writing and a writing on paper or its like, e.g., vellum or parchment. Any instrument under seal is a deed if made between private persons. It must be signed, sealed, and delivered. A deed must either (a) effect the transference of an interest, right or property, or (b) create an obligation binding on some person or persons, or (c) confirm some act whereby an interest, right, or property has already passed.” Gerald Dworkin, Odgers' Construction of Deeds and Statutes 1 (5th ed. 1967).

absolute deed.A deed that conveys title without condition or encumbrance. — Also termed deed absolute.

administrator's deed.A document that conveys property owned by a person who has died intestate.

bargain-and-sale deed.A deed that conveys property to a buyer for valuable consideration but that lacks any guarantee from the seller about the validity of the title. See BARGAIN AND SALE. [Cases: Deeds 22. C.J.S. Deeds § 16.]

composition deed.A deed reflecting the terms of an agreement between a debtor and a creditor to discharge or adjust a debt. [Cases: Debtor and Creditor 10. C.J.S. Assignments for Benefit of Creditors § 26; Creditor and Debtor §§ 84–94.]

counterdeed. A secret deed, executed either before a notary or under a private seal, that voids, invalidates, or alters a public deed.

deathbed deed.Rare. A deed executed by a grantor shortly before death. • The grantor need not be aware that he or she is near death when the deed is executed.

deed absolute.See absolute deed.

deed in fee.A deed conveying the title to land in fee simple, usu. with covenants.

deed in lieu of foreclosure.A deed by which a borrower conveys fee-simple title to a lender in satisfaction of a mortgage debt and as a substitute for foreclosure. • This deed is often referred to simply as “deed in lieu.” [Cases: Mortgages 293. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 441–443.]

deed of covenant.A deed to do something, such as a document providing for periodic payments by one party to another (usu. a charity) for tax-saving purposes. • The transferor can deduct taxes from the payment and, in some cases, the recipient can reclaim the deducted tax.

deed of distribution.A fiduciary's deed conveying a decedent's real estate.

deed of gift.A deed executed and delivered without consideration. — Also termed gratuitous deed.

---

deed of inspectorship.Hist. An instrument reflecting an agreement between a debtor and creditor to appoint a receiver to oversee the winding up of the debtor's affairs on behalf of the creditor.

deed of partition.A deed that divides land held by joint tenants, tenants in common, or coparceners. [Cases: Partition 96. C.J.S. Partition §§ 141–142.]

deed of release.A deed that surrenders full title to a piece of property upon payment or performance of specified conditions.

deed of separation.An instrument governing a spouse's separation and maintenance. [Cases: Husband and Wife 278.] deed of settlement. 1. A deed to settle something, such as the distribution of property in a marriage. 2.English law. A deed formerly used to form a joint-stock company.

deed of trust.A deed conveying title to real property to a trustee as security until the grantor repays a loan. • This type of deed resembles a mortgage. — Also termed trust deed; trust indenture; indemnity mortgage. — Also termed common-law mortgage. [Cases: Mortgages 8. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 5–6, 10.]

deed poll.A deed made by and binding on only one party, or on two or more parties having similar interests. • It is so called because, traditionally, the parchment was “polled” (that is, shaved) so that it would be even at the top (unlike an indenture). — Also spelled deed-poll. Cf. INDENTURE.

deed to lead uses.A common-law deed prepared before an action for a fine or common recovery to show the object of those actions.

deed without covenants.See quitclaim deed.

defeasible deed.A deed containing a condition subsequent causing title to the property to revert to the grantor or pass to a third party.

derivative deed.See secondary conveyance under CONVEYANCE.

disentailing deed.Hist. A tenant in tail's assurance that the estate tail will be barred and converted into an estate in fee. • The Fines and Recoveries Act (3 & 4 Will. 4 ch. 74) introduced this way of barring an entail. It authorized nearly every tenant in tail, if certain conditions were met, to dispose of the land in fee simple absolute and thus to defeat the rights of all persons claiming under the tenant.

donation deed.A deed granted by the government to a person who either satisfies the statutory conditions in a donation act or redeems a bounty-land warrant. See DONATION ACT; BOUNTY-LAND WARRANT.

full-covenant-and-warranty deed.See warranty deed.

general warranty deed.See warranty deed.

---

gift deed. A deed given for a nominal sum or for love and affection.

good deed. A deed that conveys good title as opposed to a deed that is merely good in form. — Also termed lawful deed.

grant deed. A deed containing, or having implied by law, some but not all of the usual covenants of title; esp., a deed in which the grantor warrants that he or she (1) has not previously conveyed the estate being granted, (2) has not encumbered the property except as noted in the deed, and (3) will convey to the grantee any title to the property acquired after the date of the deed.

gratuitous deed. See deed of gift.

inclusive deed. See inclusive grant under GRANT.

indented deed. See INDENTURE(2).

latent deed. A deed kept in a strongbox or other secret place, usu. for 20 years or more.

lawful deed. See good deed.

mineral deed. A conveyance of an interest in the minerals in or under the land. [Cases: Mines and Minerals 55. C.J.S. Mines and Minerals §§ 158–160, 169.]

mortgage deed. The instrument creating a mortgage. • A mortgage deed typically must contain (1) the name of the mortgagor, (2) words of grant or conveyance, (3) the name of the mortgagee, (4) a property description sufficient to identify the mortgaged premises, (5) the mortgagor's signature, and (6) an acknowledgment. To be effective and binding, a mortgage deed must also be delivered. [Cases: Mortgages 42. C.J.S. Mortgages § 93.]

onerous deed. Scots law. A deed given in exchange for a valuable consideration, often as part of a marriage settlement.

quitclaim deed. A deed that conveys a grantor's complete interest or claim in certain real property but that neither warrants nor professes that the title is valid. — Often shortened to quitclaim. — Also termed deed without covenants. Cf. warranty deed. [Cases: Deeds 25, 121. C.J.S. Deeds §§ 17, 261.]

“A quitclaim deed purports to convey only the grantor's present interest in the land, if any, rather than the land itself. Since such a deed purports to convey whatever interest the grantor has at the time, its use excludes any implication that he has good title, or any title at all. Such a deed in no way obligates the grantor. If he has no interest, none will be conveyed. If he acquires an interest after executing the deed, he retains such interest. If, however, the grantor in such deed has complete ownership at the time of executing the deed, the deed is sufficient to pass such ownership.... A seller who knows that his title is bad or who does not know whether his title is good or bad usually uses a quitclaim deed in conveying.” Robert Kratovil, Real Estate Law 49 (6th ed. 1974).

release deed. A deed that is issued once a mortgage has been discharged, explicitly releasing and reconveying to the mortgagor the entire interest conveyed by an earlier deed of trust. [Cases: Mortgages 309. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 451, 465–466, 477–478.]

sheriff's deed. A deed that gives ownership rights in property bought at a sheriff's sale. [Cases: Execution 241. C.J.S. Executions § 224.]

special warranty deed. 1. A deed in which the grantor covenants to defend the title against only those claims and demands of the grantor and those claiming by and under the grantor. [Cases: Covenants 48, 67. C.J.S. Covenants §§ 24, 29.] 2. In a few jurisdictions, a quitclaim deed. Cf. warranty deed. [Cases: Deeds 25, 121. C.J.S. Deeds §§ 17, 261.]

statutory deed. A warranty-deed form prescribed by state law and containing certain warranties and covenants even though they are not included in the printed form.

support deed. A deed by which a person (usu. a parent) conveys land to another (usu. a son or daughter) with the understanding that the grantee will support the grantor for life. • Support deeds often result in litigation.

tax deed. A deed showing the transfer of title to real property sold for the nonpayment of taxes. See office grant under GRANT; tax sale under SALE. Cf. TAX CERTIFICATE. [Cases: Taxation 774. C.J.S. Taxation § 1445.]

title deed. A deed that evidences a person's legal ownership of property. See TITLE.

trust deed. See deed of trust.

warranty deed. A deed containing one or more covenants of title; esp., a deed that expressly guarantees the grantor's good, clear title and that contains covenants concerning the quality of title, including warranties of seisin, quiet enjoyment, right to convey, freedom from encumbrances, and defense of title against all claims. — Also termed general warranty deed; full-covenant-and-warranty deed. See WARRANTY(1). Cf. quitclaim deed; special warranty deed. [Cases: Covenants 46–48, 67. C.J.S. Covenants §§ 22–24, 29.]

wild deed. A recorded deed that is not in the chain of title, usu. because a previous instrument connected to the chain of title has not been recorded.

DEED BOX

deed box. Archaic. A box in which deeds of land title are traditionally kept. • Such a box is considered an heirloom in the strict sense. See HEIRLOOM(1).

DEED OF AGENCY

deed of agency. A revocable, voluntary trust for payment of a debt.

DEED OF CRIME

deed of crime. See ACTUS REUS.

DEED OF FEOFFMENT

deed of feoffment. See FEOFFMENT(3).

DE EJECTIONE CUSTODIAE

de ejectione custodiae (dee ee-jek-shee-oh-nee k<<schwa>>s-toh-dee-ee). [Latin “ejectment of a ward”] Hist. A writ available to a guardian after being ejected from the ward's land during the ward's minority. • The writ lay to recover the land or person of the ward, or both. The French equivalent was ejectment de garde.

DE EJECTIONE FIRMAE

de ejectione firmae (dee ee-jek-shee-oh-nee f<<schwa>>r-mee). [Latin “ejectment of farm”] Hist. A writ or action of trespass to obtain the return of lands or tenements to a lessee for a term of years that had been ousted by the lessor or by a reversioner, remainderman, or stranger. • The lessee was then entitled to a writ of ejectment to recover, at first, damages for the trespass only, but later the term itself, or the remainder of it, with damages. This action is the foundation of the modern action of ejectment. See EJECTMENT.

“A writ then of ejectione firmae, or action of trespass in ejectment, lieth, where lands or tenements are let for a term of years; and afterwards the lessor, reversioner, remainder-man, or any stranger, doth eject or oust the lessee of his term. In this case he shall have his writ of ejectment, to call the defendant to answer for entering on the lands so demised to the plaintiff for a term that is not yet expired, and ejecting him. And by this writ the plaintiff shall recover back his term, or the remainder of it, with damages.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 199 (1768).

DEEM

deem, vb. 1. To treat (something) as if (1) it were really something else, or (2) it had qualities that it does not have <although the document was not in fact signed until April 21, it explicitly states that it must be deemed to have been signed on April 14>. 2. To consider, think, or judge <she deemed it necessary>.

“ ‘Deem’ has been traditionally considered to be a useful word when it is necessary to establish a legal fiction either positively by ‘deeming’ something to be what it is not or negatively by ‘deeming’ something not to be what it is.... All other uses of the word should be avoided .... Phrases like ‘if he deems fit’ or ‘as he deems necessary’ or ‘nothing in this Act shall be deemed to ...’ are objectionable as unnecessary deviations from common language. ‘Thinks’ or ‘considers’ are preferable in the first two examples and ‘construed’ or ‘interpreted’ in the third.... ‘Deeming’ creates an artificiality and artificiality should not be resorted to if it can be avoided.” G.C. Thornton, Legislative Drafting 99 (4th ed. 1996).

DEEMED TRANSFEROR

deemed transferor. Tax. A person who holds an interest in a generation-skipping trust on behalf of a beneficiary, and whose death will trigger the imposition of a generation-skipping transfer tax. • A deemed transferor is often a child of the settlor. For example, a grandfather could establish a trust with income payable for life to his son (who, because he is only one generation away from his father, is also known as a nonskip person) with the remainder to his grandson, a beneficiary also known as the skip person. When the son dies, the trust will be included in his gross estate for determining the generation-skipping transfer tax. IRC (26 USCA) §§ 2601–2663. See GENERATION-SKIPPING TRANSFER; generation-skipping transfer tax under TAX; generation-skipping trust under TRUST; SKIP PERSON; NONSKIP PERSON.

DEEP ISSUE

deep issue. See ISSUE(1).

DEEP LINK

deep link. Intellectual property. A webpage hyperlink that, when clicked, opens a page on another website other than that site's home page. • Some plaintiffs have argued, with mixed success, that bypassing their home pages in this manner deprives them of advertising revenue. Deep-linking does not violate copyright if the portal provided does not copy any of the linked page's content. And if there is no confusion about the source of the information, deep-linking does not constitute unfair competition.

DEEP POCKET

deep pocket. 1. (pl.) Substantial wealth and resources <the plaintiff nonsuited the individuals and targeted the corporation with deep pockets>. 2. A person or entity with substantial wealth and resources against which a claim may be made or a judgment may be taken <that national insurance company is a favorite deep pocket among plaintiff's lawyers>.

DEEP ROCK DOCTRINE

Deep Rock doctrine. Bankruptcy. The principle by which unfair or inequitable claims presented by controlling shareholders of bankrupt corporations may be subordinated to claims of general or trade creditors. • The doctrine is named for a corporation that made fraudulent transfers to its parent corporation in Taylor v. Standard Gas & Elec. Co., 306 U.S. 307, 59 S.Ct. 543 (1939). [Cases: Bankruptcy 2968. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 264.]

DE ESCAETA

de escaeta (dee es-kee-t<<schwa>>), n. [Law Latin “of escheat”] Hist. A writ authorizing a lord to recover land when the lord's tenant died without an heir. See ESCHEAT.

DE ESCAMBIO MONETAE

de escambio monetae (dee es-kam-bee-oh m<<schwa>>-nee-tee), n. [Law Latin “of exchange of money”] Hist. A writ authorizing a merchant to prepare a bill of exchange.

DE ESSENDO QUIETUM DE THEOLONIO

de essendo quietum de theolonio (dee e-sen-doh kwI-ee-t<<schwa>>m dee thee-<<schwa>>-loh-nee-oh), n. [Law Latin “of being quit of toll”] Hist. A writ authorizing a person who is exempt from paying a toll to enforce the exemption without harassment. — Also spelled de essendo quietum de tolonio.

DE ESSENTIA

de essentia (dee e-sen-shee-<<schwa>>). [Law Latin] Hist. Of the essence; essential.

DE ESSONIO DE MALO LECTI

de essonio de malo lecti (dee e-soh-nee-oh dee mal-oh lek-tI), n.[Law Latin “of essoyn of malum lecti (sickness of bed)"] Hist. A writ ordering a determination whether a person is truly sick after the person has issued an essoyn claiming sickness as an excuse for not appearing in court.

DE ESTOVERIIS HABENDIS

de estoveriis habendis (dee es-t*<<schwa>>-veer-ee-is h<<schwa>>*-ben-dis), n.[Law Latin “for having estovers”] Hist. A writ allowing a wife divorced a mensa et thoro (“from bed and board”) to recover alimony or estovers. — Often shortened to estoveriis habendis.

“In case of divorce a mensa et thoro, the law allows alimony to the wife which is that allowance, which is made to a woman for her support out of her husband's estate; being settled at the discretion of the ecclesiastical judge, on consideration of all the circumstances of the case. This is sometimes called her estovers for which, if he refuses payment, there is; (besides the ordinary process of excommunication) a writ at common law de estoveriis habendis, in order to recover it .... It is generally proportioned to the rank and quality of the parties. But in case of elopement, and living with an adulterer, the law allows her no alimony.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 429 (1765).

DE ESTREPAMENTO

de estrepamento (dee e-strep-<<schwa>>-men-toh), n.[Law Latin “of enstrepment”] Hist. A writ to prevent waste by a tenant while a suit to recover the land is pending against the tenant. • Because this writ was only auxiliary to a real action to recover land, and because equity afforded the same relief by injunction, the writ fell into disuse and was abolished by 3 & 4 Will. 4, ch. 27. — Also termed writ of estrepement. See ESTREPEMENT.

DE EU ET TRENE

de eu et trene (d*<<schwa>>* yoo ay trayn). [French] Hist. Of water and whip of three cords. • This term referred to a neife who, as a servant, could be corporally punished. See NEIFE.

DE EVE ET DE TREVE

de eve et de treve (d*<<schwa>>* ev ay d*<<schwa>>* trev). [Law French] Hist. From grandfather and great-grandfather's great-grandfather. • This phrase described the ancestral rights of lords to their villeins.

DE EXCOMMUNICATO CAPIENDO

de excommunicato capiendo (dee eks-k<<schwa>>-myoo-ni-kay-toh kap-ee-en-doh), n.[Law Latin “for taking an excommunicated person”] Hist. Eccles. law. ## DEFAMACAST defamacast (di-fam-<<schwa>>-kast). Defamation by television or radio broadcast. • The word was first used in American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, Inc. v. Simpson, 126 S.E.2d 873, 879 (Ga. Ct. App. 1962). Although Prosser called it “a barbarous word” (William Prosser, The Law of Torts 753 [4th ed. 1971]), another authority has said that “[t]he word seems to be quite apt” (Laurence H. Eldredge, The Law of Defamation § 12, at 77 [1978]). See DEFAMATION.

DEFAMATION

defamation,n.1. The act of harming the reputation of another by making a false statement to a third person. • If the alleged defamation involves a matter of public concern, the plaintiff is constitutionally required to prove both the statement's falsity and the defendant's fault. 2. A false written or oral statement that damages another's reputation. See LIBEL; SLANDER. Cf. DISPARAGEMENT. [Cases: Libel and Slander 6–14. C.J.S. Libel and Slander, Injurious Falsehood §§ 2, 5–6, 10–12, 17–42, 47, 104.] — defame,vb.

“Defamation is the publication of a statement which tends to lower a person in the estimation of right-thinking members of society generally; or which tends to make them shun or avoid that person.” P.H. Winfield, A Textbook of the Law of Tort § 72, at 242 (5th ed. 1950).

“The wrong of defamation consists in the publication of a false and defamatory statement concerning another person without lawful justification. That person must be in being. Hence not only does an action of defamation not survive for or against the estate of a deceased person, but a statement about a deceased or unborn person is not actionable at the suit of his relatives, however great their pain and distress, unless the statement is in some way defamatory of them.” R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 138 (17th ed. 1977).

“For entirely too long a period of time, English and American law have recognized two distinct kinds of defamation based solely on the form in which it is published. Oral defamation is slander; written defamation is libel. Libel is a crime and a tort which subjects the defamer to tort liability without proof of special damages. Slander is not a common law crime and, with certain exceptions, does not subject the defamer to liability unless there is proof of special damages. Under this distinction in form alone the defamatory letter read only by its addressee and burned to ashes after being read is a more serious defamation than a defamatory statement spoken to an audience of 3,000 community leaders and molders of public opinion. This is utterly absurd and completely indefensible ....” Laurence H. Eldredge, The Law of Defamation § 12, at 77 (1978).

“Defamation ... is involved in two related harms, libel and slander. A familiar statement is that libel is written whereas slander is oral. This covers the idea in a general way but tends to mislead because defamation may be published without the use of words and hence be neither written nor oral. Thus libel may be perpetrated by hanging a person in effigy and slander, by sign or gesture.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 489 (3d ed. 1982).

defamation per quod. Defamation that either (1) is not apparent but is proved by extrinsic evidence showing its injurious meaning or (2) is apparent but is not a statement that is actionable per se. [Cases: Libel and Slander 33. C.J.S. Libel and Slander, Injurious Falsehood § 198.]

defamation per se. A statement that is defamatory in and of itself and is not capable of an innocent meaning. [Cases: Libel and Slander 33. C.J.S. Libel and Slander, Injurious Falsehood § 198.]

trade defamation. The damaging of a business by a false statement that tends to diminish the reputation of that business. • Trade defamation may be trade libel if it is recorded, or trade slander if it is not. — Also termed commercial defamation. Cf. TRADE DISPARAGEMENT; TRADE LIBEL.

DEFAMATORY

defamatory, adj. (Of a statement or communication) tending to harm a person's reputation, usu. by subjecting the person to public contempt, disgrace, or ridicule, or by adversely affecting the person's business. [Cases: Libel and Slander 6–14. C.J.S. Libel and Slander; Injurious Falsehood §§ 2, 5, 10–12, 17–42, 104.]

“A communication is defamatory if it tends so to harm the reputation of another as to lower him in the estimation of the community or to deter third persons from associating or dealing with him.” Restatement of Torts § 559 (1938).

“No exhaustive definition of ‘defamatory’ emerges from the cases for, as Lord Reid once said, it is not for the judges to ‘frame definitions or to lay down hard and fast rules. It is their function to enunciate principles and much that they say is intended to be illustrative or explanatory and not to be definitive’ [Cassell & Co. Ltd. v. Broome (1972) AC 1027, 1085]. One can nevertheless achieve a working description by combining two statements, namely: a defamatory statement is one which injures the reputation of another by exposing him to hatred, contempt, or ridicule, or which tends to lower him in the esteem of right-thinking members of society.” R.W.M. Dias & B.S. Markesinis, Tort Law 423–24 (2d ed. 1989).

DEFAMATORY COMMUNICATION

defamatory communication. See DEFAMATORY STATEMENT.

DEFAMATORY LIBEL

defamatory libel. See LIBEL(1).

DEFAMATORY PROPAGANDA

defamatory propaganda. See PROPAGANDA.

DEFAMATORY STATEMENT

defamatory statement. A statement that tends to injure the reputation of a person referred to in it. • The statement is likely to lower that person in the estimation of reasonable people and in particular to cause that person to be regarded with feelings of hatred, contempt, ridicule, fear, or dislike. — Also termed defamatory communication. [Cases: Libel and Slander 6–14. C.J.S. Libel and Slander; Injurious Falsehood §§ 2, 5, 10–12, 17–42, 104.]

DEFAMES

DEFAULT JUDGMENT

default judgment. 1. A judgment entered against a defendant who has failed to plead or otherwise defend against the plaintiff's claim. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2411; Judgment 92. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 195–196, 208, 235.] 2. A judgment entered as a penalty against a party who does not comply with an order, esp. an order to comply with a discovery request. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b). — Also termed judgment by default. See JUDGMENT. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1278, 2820.]

nil dicit default judgment (nil dI-sit). [Latin “he says nothing”] A judgment for the plaintiff entered after the defendant fails to file a timely answer, often after the defendant appeared in the case by filing a preliminary motion. — Also termed nihil dicit default judgment; judgment by nil dicit. — Often shortened to nihil dicit. [Cases: Judgment 106. C.J.S. Judgments § 212.]

no-answer default judgment. A judgment for the plaintiff entered after the defendant fails to timely answer or otherwise appear. [Cases: Judgment 106. C.J.S. Judgments § 212.]

---

post-answer default judgment. A judgment for the plaintiff entered after the defendant files an answer, but fails to appear at trial or otherwise provide a defense on the merits. [Cases: Judgment 109. C.J.S. Judgments § 211.]

DEFAULT JURISDICTION

To vanquish; to conquer (someone or something) <to defeat the armies>. 4. To frustrate (someone or something) <the expenditures defeat the bill's purpose>.

DEFECT

defect, n. An imperfection or shortcoming, esp. in a part that is essential to the operation or safety of a product. — defective, adj. [Cases: Products Liability 8. C.J.S. Products Liability §§ 11–15.]

apparent defect. See patent defect.

design defect. An imperfection occurring when the seller or distributor could have reduced or avoided a foreseeable risk of harm by adopting a reasonable alternative design, and when, as a result of not using the alternative, the product or property is not reasonably safe. [Cases: Products Liability 11. C.J.S. Products Liability §§ 19–21.]

fatal defect. A serious defect capable of nullifying a contract.

hidden defect. A product imperfection that is not discoverable by reasonable inspection and for which a seller or lessor is generally liable if the flaw causes harm. • Upon discovering a hidden defect, a purchaser may revoke a prior acceptance. UCC § 2-608(1)(b). — Also termed latent defect; inherent defect. [Cases: Sales 119. C.J.S. Sales §§ 194, 199–202.]

latent defect. See hidden defect.

manufacturing defect. An imperfection in a product that departs from its intended design even though all possible care was exercised in its assembly and marketing. [Cases: Products Liability 8. C.J.S. Products Liability §§ 11–15.]

marketing defect. 1. The failure to adequately warn of a potential risk of harm that is known or should have been known about a product or its foreseeable use. 2. The failure to adequately instruct the user about how to use a product safely. [Cases: Products Liability 14. C.J.S. Products Liability §§ 25–29.]

patent defect.A defect that is apparent to a normally observant person, esp. a buyer on a reasonable inspection. — Also termed apparent defect.

defectus (di-fek-t<<schwa>>s), n. [fr. Latin deficere “to be deficient”] Hist. A defect; a deficiency.

DEFECTUS SANGUINIS

defectus sanguinis (di-fek-t<<schwa>>s sang-gwi-nis). [Latin “defect of blood”] Hist. A failure of issue, often resulting in an escheat. See ESCHEAT.

DEFENCE

defence. See DEFENSE.

DEFEND

defend, vb. 1. To deny, contest, or oppose (an allegation or claim) <the corporation vigorously defended against the shareholder's lawsuit>. 2. To represent (someone) as an attorney <the accused retained a well-known lawyer to defend him>.

DEFENDANT

defendant (di-fen-d<<schwa>>nt). A person sued in a civil proceeding or accused in a criminal proceeding. — Abbr. D. Cf. PLAINTIFF.

John Doe defendant. An anonymous defendant labeled “John Doe” because the plaintiff does not, at the time of filing suit, know the person's name. • John Doe defendants are common in several situations, such as police-brutality lawsuits in which the plaintiff does not know the names of the officers allegedly at fault. See JOHN DOE.

DEFENDANT IN ERROR

defendant in error. Archaic. In a case on appeal, the prevailing party in the court below. See APPELLEE; RESPONDENT(1).

DEFENDANT SCORE

defendant score. A number taken from an established scale, indicating the relative seriousness of the defendant's criminal history. Cf. CRIME SCORE.

DEFENDANT'S GAIN

defendant's gain. The amount of money or the value of property that a criminal defendant has obtained by committing a crime. • Some states, such as New York, consider the defendant's gain when assessing a criminal fine or ordering restitution.

DEFENDEMUS

defendemus (di-fen-d<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s). [fr. Latin defendere] We will defend. • This term was used in conveyancing to require the donor and the donor's heirs to defend the donee against any attempted encumbrance not specifically agreed to. Although defendeus was not a warranty, it became part of the warranty clause “shall and will warrant and forever defend.”

DEFENDER

defender. 1. One who defends, such as the defendant in a lawsuit, a person using self-defense, or defense counsel. 2. PUBLIC DEFENDER.

DEFENDERE

defendere (di-fen-d<<schwa>>-ree), vb. [Law Latin] To deny; to defend.

DEFENDERE SE PER CORPUS SUUM

defendere se per corpus suum (di-fen-d<<schwa>>-ree see p<<schwa>>r kor-p<<schwa>>s s[y]oo-<<schwa>>m), vb. [Law Latin “to defend himself by his own body”] Hist. To agree to a trial by judicial combat; to agree to a duel.

---

lend upon usury”] Hist. The act of lending money at a usurious interest rate.

DEFENESTRATION

defenestration (dee-fen-<<schwa>>-stray-sh<<schwa>>n). The act of throwing someone or something out a window. — defenestrate,vb.

DEFENSE

defense (di-fen[t]s).1. A defendant's stated reason why the plaintiff or prosecutor has no valid case; esp., a defendant's answer, denial, or plea < her defense was that she was 25 miles from the building at the time of the robbery>. [Cases: Criminal Law 31. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 15, 46–49, 88, 93–94.]

“Defence is defined to be that which is alleged by a party proceeded against in an action or suit, as a reason why the plaintiff should not recover or establish that which he seeks by his complaint or petition.” Edwin E. Bryant, The Law of Pleading Under the Codes of Civil Procedure 240 (2d ed. 1899).

affirmative defense.A defendant's assertion of facts and arguments that, if true, will defeat the plaintiff's or prosecution's claim, even if all the allegations in the complaint are true. • The defendant bears the burden of proving an affirmative defense. Examples of affirmative defenses are duress (in a civil case) and insanity and self-defense (in a criminal case). — Also termed plea in avoidance; plea in justification. Cf. negative defense. [Cases: Criminal Law 31; Federal Civil Procedure 751; Pleading 78. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 15, 46–49, 88, 93–94; Pleading §§ 160–161.]

capacity defense.A defense based on the defendant's inability to be held accountable for an illegal act or the plaintiff's inability to prosecute a lawsuit (as when the plaintiff was a corporation, but has lost its corporate charter). See CAPACITY.

choice-of-evils defense.See lesser-evils defense.

collateral defense (k*<<schwa>>-lat<<schwa>>-r<<schwa>>l*).Criminal law. A defense of justification or excuse not involving a rebuttal of the allegation and therefore collateral to the elements that the prosecutor must prove. See EXCUSE(2); JUSTIFICATION(2). [Cases: Criminal Law 38. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 49–53.]

defense of habitation.The defense that conduct constituting a criminal offense is justified if an aggressor unjustifiably threatens the defendant's place of abode or premises and the defendant engages in conduct that is (1) harmful to the aggressor, (2) sufficient to protect that place of abode or premises, and (3) reasonable in relation to the harm threatened. — Also termed defense of premises. See CASTLE DOCTRINE.

defense of inequitable conduct.Patents. A defense to an action for patent infringement, made by charging the plaintiff with breaching the duty of candor and good faith. • To succeed, the defendant must show that, in the patent prosecution, the plaintiff intentionally withheld material information from or misled the examiner. Inequitable conduct is a combination of two former defenses: unclean hands and fraud on the Patent Office. [Cases: Patents 97. C.J.S. Patents §§ 135–138, 145, 178.]

derivative defense. A defense that rebuts the criminal elements that a prosecutor must establish to justify the submission of a criminal case to a jury.

designer defense. A novel defense based on diminished capacity attributed to stress or impairment. • The phrase derives from the fact that the defense is tailored to the defendant and the circumstances of the crime. Examples include extraordinary reactions to snack food (the Twinkie defense), unconsciousness or sleepwalking, and postpartum psychosis. See AUTOMATISM.

dilatory defense (dil-<<schwa>>-tor-ee). A defense that temporarily obstructs or delays a lawsuit but does not address the merits. • Examples of dilatory defenses include misjoinder, nonjoinder, res judicata, misnomer, lack of capacity to sue, another action pending, statute of limitations, prematurity, unripeness, release, and settlement.

dwelling defense. See CASTLE DOCTRINE.

eleemosynary defense. See charitable immunity under IMMUNITY(2).

equitable defense. A defense formerly available only in a court of equity but now maintainable in a court of law. • Examples include mistake, fraud, illegality, failure of consideration, forum non conveniens, laches, estoppel, and unclean hands.

frivolous defense. A defense that has no basis in fact or law.

full defense. A technical common-law defensive plea, stated at length and without abbreviation. • The plea is obsolete because of the pleading requirements in federal and state rules of civil procedure.

general-justification defense. See lesser-evils defense.

imperfect defense. A defense that fails to meet all legal requirements and usu. results only in a reduction in grade or sentence rather than an acquittal, as when a defendant is charged with manslaughter rather than murder because the defendant, while defending another, used unreasonable force to repel the attack. See imperfect self-defense under SELF-DEFENSE. Cf. perfect defense.

inconsistent defense. A defense so contrary to another defense that the acceptance of one requires abandonment of the other. • A person accused of murder, for example, cannot claim both self-defense and the alibi of having been in a different city when the murder took place. [Cases: Criminal Law 43.5. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 54.]

innocent-owner defense. A forfeiture-action defense in which the owner of property (such as real estate or money) asserts that another person committed the wrongful act or omission while using the property without the owner's knowledge or consent. See 18 USCA § 981(a)(2); 21 USCA § 881. See civil forfeiture under FORFEITURE.

insanity defense. See INSANITY DEFENSE. issuable defense. Common-law pleading. A plea on the merits setting forth a legal defense. Cf. issuable plea under PLEA(3).

justification defense. See JUSTIFICATION DEFENSE.

legal defense. A complete and adequate defense in a court of law.

lesser-evils defense. The defense that, while the defendant may have caused the harm or evil that would ordinarily constitute a criminal offense, in the present case the defendant has not caused a net harm or evil because of justifying circumstances and therefore should be exculpated. — Also termed choice-of-evils defense; necessity; general-justification defense.

meritorious defense (mer-<<schwa>>-tor-ee-<<schwa>>s). 1. A defense that addresses the substance or essentials of a case rather than dilatory or technical objections. [Cases: Judgment 145, 379, 447. C.J.S. Judgments §§ 341, 404, 445.] 2. A defense that appears likely to succeed or has already succeeded.

necessity defense. See JUSTIFICATION(2).

negative defense. A defendant's outright denial of the plaintiff's allegations without additional facts pleaded by way of avoidance. Cf. affirmative defense.

ostrich defense. A criminal defendant's claim not to have known of the criminal activities of an associate.

partial defense. A defense going either to part of the action or toward mitigation of damages.

pass-on defense. An antitrust defense that a member of the distributive chain who was overcharged or undercharged passed on the price adjustment to reflect the charge and thereby suffered no damage. — Also termed passing on.

peremptory defense (p*<<schwa>>-emp-t-*<<schwa>>-r-ee). A defense that questions the plaintiff's legal right to sue or contends that the right to sue has been extinguished.

2. A defendant's method and strategy in opposing the plaintiff or the prosecution; a doctrine giving rise to such a method or strategy <the lawyer advised her client to adopt a passive defense and to avoid taking the witness stand>.

empty-chair defense. See EMPTY-CHAIR DEFENSE.

Stalingrad defense. The strategy of wearing down the plaintiff by tenaciously fighting by whatever means anything the plaintiff presents and appealing every ruling favorable to the plaintiff, rather than presenting a meritorious case. • The tactic is named for the Russian city besieged by the Germans in World War II. The defenders refused to surrender and used every available tactic and tool to hold the attackers at bay until winter cut the enemy's supply lines, leaving the attackers with inadequate resources with which to continue the siege.

3. One or more defendants in a trial, as well as their counsel <the defense rests>. 4. Commercial law. A basis for avoiding liability on a negotiable instrument <the drawer asserted a real defense against the holder in due course>.

absolute defense. See real defense.

personal defense. An ordinary defense in a contract action — such as failure of consideration or nonperformance of a condition — that the maker or drawer of a negotiable instrument is precluded from raising against a person who has the rights of a holder in due course. • A personal defense can be asserted only against a transferee who is not a holder in due course. — Also termed limited defense.

real defense. A type of defense that is good against any possible claimant, so that the maker or drawer of a negotiable instrument can raise it even against a holder in due course. • The ten real defenses are (1) fraud in the factum, (2) forgery of a necessary signature, (3) adjudicated insanity that, under state law, renders the contract void from its inception, (4) material alteration of the instrument, (5) infancy, which renders the contract voidable under state law, (6) illegality that renders the underlying contract void, (7) duress, (8) discharge in bankruptcy, or any discharge known to the holder in due course, (9) a suretyship defense (for example, if the holder knew that one indorser was signing as a surety or accommodation party), and (10) a statute of limitations (generally three years after dishonor or acceptance on a draft and six years after demand or other due date on a note). — Also termed absolute defense; universal defense. [Cases: Bills and Notes 364. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 191.]

5. Measures taken by a country or individual to protect against an attack. See SELF-DEFENSE; NATIONAL DEFENSE(1).

DEFLATION

deflation, n. A general decline in the price of goods and services. Cf. INFLATION; DISINFLATION. — deflate, vb. — deflationary, adj.

DEFORCE

deforce, vb. 1. To keep (lands) from the true owner by means of force. 2. To oust another from possession by means of force. 3. To detain (a creditor's money) unjustly and forcibly. — deforciant, n.

“The character of the action of debt is well illustrated by the form of the writ as given by Glanville. It directs the sheriff to order the debtor to render a stated sum which he owes to the plaintiff, ‘and whereof the plaintiff complains that the defendant unjustly deforces him,’ and, if he will not obey, he is to be summoned before the King's Court. The plaintiff is ‘deforced’ of money just as in a writ of right he is ‘deforced’ of land. It is true that the term ‘deforces’ disappeared from the writ shortly after Glanville's time, the word debet taking its place; but this seems to have been a matter of form, not of substance. The plaintiff sought to recover the money due as his property.” William F. Walsh, Outlines of the History of English and American Law 411 (1924).

DEFORCEMENT

deforcement. 1. An act of keeping lands from the true owner by force. 2. An act of ousting

A reduction in rank, degree, or dignity; specif., censure of a clergy member by divestiture of holy orders, either by word or by a solemn divestiture of robes and other insignia. Cf. DEPOSITION(4); DEPRIVATION(4). 2. A moral or intellectual decadence or degeneration; a lessening of a person's or thing's character or quality <degradation of resources>. 3. A wearing down of something, as by erosion.

DE GRATIA

de gratia (dee gray-shee-<<schwa>>). [Latin] Of favor; by grace, as in de speciali gratia (“of special grace or favor”).

DEGREE

degree. 1. Generally, a classification or specification <degrees of proof>. 2. An incremental measure of guilt or negligence; a level based on the seriousness of an offense <murder in the first degree>. See DEGREE OF CRIME. 3. A stage in a process; a step in a series of steps toward an end <the statute went through several degrees of development>. 4. A stage in intensity . 5. In the line of descent, a measure of removal determining the proximity of a blood or marital relationship <the council member did not participate in the vote because he was related to one of the bidders within the first degree of consanguinity>. • In the civil law, and in the degree-of-relationship system used by many American jurisdictions, an intestate estate passes to the closest of kin, counting degrees of kinship. To calculate the degree of relationship of the decedent to the claimant, one counts the steps (one for each generation) up from the decedent to the nearest common ancestor of the decedent and the claimant, and on down to the claimant from the common ancestor. The total number of steps is the degree of relationship. For example, a decedent's cousin stands in the fourth degree of relationship. Degrees of relationship are used not only to determine who is the closest heir but also to establish the incest prohibition in marriage requirements. — Also termed degree of kin; degree of relationship; degree of descent. See AFFINITY(2); CONSANGUINITY. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 22. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution § 26.] equal degree.A relationship between two or more relatives who are the same number of steps away from a common ancestor. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 22. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution § 26.]

prohibited degree.A degree of relationship so close (as between brother and sister) that marriage between the persons is forbidden by law. • Generally, with slight variations from jurisdiction to jurisdiction, the law forbids marriages between all persons lineally related and within the third civil-law degree of relationship. That is, aunt–nephew and uncle–niece relations are prohibited. Prohibited degrees are also known as Levitical degrees, since the incest prohibition is pronounced in the Bible in Leviticus 18:6–18. — Also termed forbidden degree. [Cases: Marriage 10. C.J.S. Marriage § 17.]

6. A title conferred on a graduate of a school, college, or university, either after the completion of required studies or in honor of special achievements <she began studying for the bar exam the day after receiving her law degree>. Cf. DIPLOMA(3).

DEGREE OF CARE

degree of care.A standard of care to be exercised in a given situation. See CARE. [Cases: Negligence 230. C.J.S. Negligence §§ 34, 59, 114, 116–117.]

DEGREE OF CRIME

degree of crime. 1. A division or classification of a single crime into several grades of guilt, according to the circumstances surrounding the crime's commission, such as aggravating factors present or the type of injury suffered. [Cases: Criminal Law 28. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 9, 13.] 2. A division of crimes generally, such as felonies or misdemeanors. [Cases: Criminal Law 27. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 9–12.]

DEGREE OF DESCENT

degree of descent.See DEGREE(5).

DEGREE OF KIN

degree of kin.See DEGREE(5).

DEGREE OF NEGLIGENCE

degree of negligence. One of the varying levels of negligence typically designated as slight negligence, ordinary negligence, and gross negligence. See NEGLIGENCE. [Cases: Negligence 272–276. C.J.S. Negligence §§ 88–113.]

“Although the common law concept of degrees of negligence has been criticized or repudiated in many jurisdictions, the usefulness of the view at common law that degrees of negligence exist is still recognized in a number of jurisdictions, particularly in regard to the distinction between ordinary and gross negligence. Furthermore, legislators have not been dissuaded from using the degrees of negligence concept when it is helpful to achieve a legislative purpose.” 57A Am. Jur. 2d Negligence § 233, at 274 (1989).

DEGREE OF PROOF

degree of proof. 1. BURDEN OF PROOF. 2. BURDEN OF PRODUCTION.

de haerede rapto et abducto (dee hi-ree-dee rap-toh et ab-d<<schwa>>k-toh), n. [Law Latin “of an heir ravished and carried away”] Hist. A writ allowing a lord to recover a ward who had been taken by another person.

DE HAERETICO COMBURENDO

de haeretico comburendo (dee hi-ret-i-koh kom-by<<schwa>>-ren-doh), n. [Law Latin “of burning a heretic”] Hist. 1. A writ ordering the execution by burning of a convicted heretic who refused to recant, or was convicted of heresy again after recanting. — Also termed writ de haeretico comburendo.

“[W]e find among our ancient precedents a writ de haeretico comburendo, which is thought by some to be as ancient as the common law itself. However, it appears from thence, that the conviction of heresy by the common law was not in any petty ecclesiastical court, but before the archbishop himself in a provincial synod; and that the delinquent was delivered over to the king to do as he should please with him: so that the crown had a control over the spiritual power, and might pardon the convict by issuing no process against him; the writ de haeretico comburendo being not a writ of course, but issuing only by the special direction of the king in council.” 4 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 46–47 (1769).

“But the case of Sawtre (1400) is a clear case in which the rule of the canon law was applied. He was convicted of heresy before the Bishop of Norwich and recanted his heresy. He fell again into heresy, and was condemned by the archbishop and his provincial Council, as a relapsed heretic. On this conviction the king issued a writ de haeretico comburendo. This case clearly shows that the common law recognized the rule of the canon law ....” 1 William Holdsworth, A History of English Law 617 (7th ed. 1956).

2. The first English penal law against heresy, enacted in 1401 (2 Hen. 4, ch. 15). • The law authorized the burning of defendants who relapsed or refused to abandon their heretical opinions. “The first English statute that denounced the penalty of death against heretics was passed in the year 1401. Whether before that statute the law that was in force in our land demanded or suffered that such persons should be burnt is a question that has been eagerly debated; on it in the days of Elizabeth and James I depended the lives of Anabaptists and Arians; it has not yet lost its interest; but it is a question that buzzes in a vacuum, for until Lollardy became troublesome there was too little heresy in England to beget a settled course of procedure.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 544 (1899).

“The writ de homine replegiando lies to replevy a man out of prison, or out of the custody of any private person, (in the same manner that chattels taken in distress may be replevied ...) upon giving security to the sheriff that the man shall be forthcoming to answer any charge against him. And, if the person be conveyed out of the sheriff's jurisdiction, the sheriff may return that he is eloigned ... upon which a process issues ... to imprison the defendant himself, without bail ... till he produces the party. But this writ is guarded with so many exceptions, that it is not an effectual remedy in numerous instances, especially where the crown is concerned.” 3 William Blackstone, quasi-delict. 1.Roman law. A residuary category of private wrongs, characterized by either vicarious or strict liability.

“QUASI-DELICT.... Justinian enumerates four cases of obligations said to arise quasi ex delicto. The implication seems to be that in all of them the law creates a liability though the defendant may not in fact be to blame. The cases are the following: — (1) The judge who ‘makes the case his own’ ... incurs a penalty fixed by the magistrate at discretion .... (2) If anything was thrown, or poured, from an upper room ... the occupier was liable for double the damage .... (3) If a thing was kept placed or suspended over a way used by the public ... there was a penalty ... which might be recovered from the occupier .... (4) Ship-owners, innkeepers and stable-keepers were liable for damage or theft committed by slaves or free persons in their employ ...." R.W. Lee, The Elements of Roman Law 401–02 (4th ed. 1956).

In a replevin action, a writ ordering the redelivery to the owner of goods.

second deliverance. Hist. A second replevin remedy after the plaintiff has been nonsuited and the distrained property has been returned to the defendant. — Also termed writ of second deliverance.

“And at the common law, the plaintiff might have brought another replevin, and so in infinitum, to the intolerable vexation of the defendant. Wherefore the statute of Westm. 2, c. 2 restrains the plaintiff, when nonsuited, from suing any fresh replevin, but allows him a judicial writ issuing out of the original record, and called a writ of second deliverance, in order to have the same distress again delivered to him, on giving the like security as before. And, if the plaintiff be a second time nonsuit, or if the defendant has judgment upon verdict ... he shall have a writ or return irreplevisable; after which no writ of second deliverance shall be allowed.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 150 (1767).

5. Such a release (as in sense 3) or redelivery (as in sense 4).

DELIVERED AT FRONTIER

delivered at frontier. A mercantile-contract term allocating the rights and duties of the buyer and the seller of goods with respect to delivery, payment, and risk of loss, whereby the seller must (1) clear the goods for export, (2) arrange and pay for transportation, and (3) deliver the goods to a specified place on the importing nation's border. • The seller's delivery is complete (and the risk of loss passes to the buyer) when the goods arrive at the designated point and are placed at the disposal of the buyer. This term is generally used when the delivery place is on land, but it places no explicit restrictions on the mode of carriage. If the delivery place is a border port and delivery is complete either onboard or alongside the vessel, the term delivered ex ship or delivered ex quay is preferred. — Abbr. DAF. Cf. DELIVERED EX SHIP; DELIVERED EX QUAY.

DELIVERED DUTY PAID

delivered duty paid. A mercantile-contract term allocating the rights and duties of the buyer and the seller of goods with respect to delivery, payment, and risk of loss, whereby the seller must (1) clear the goods for export, (2) bear the costs of carriage, (3) pay the buyer's import duties, and (4) make the goods available to the buyer onboard the carrier at the destination. • The seller's delivery is complete (and the risk of loss passes to the buyer) when the seller's carrier arrives at the agreed destination. This term is generally used when the delivery place is on land, but it places no explicit restrictions on the mode of carriage. If the delivery point is a port and delivery is complete either onboard or alongside the vessel, the term delivered ex ship or delivered ex quay is preferred. — Abbr. DDP. Cf. DELIVERED DUTY UNPAID; DELIVERED EX SHIP; DELIVERED EX QUAY.

DELIVERED DUTY UNPAID

delivered duty unpaid. A mercantile-contract term allocating the rights and duties of the buyer and the seller of goods with respect to delivery, payment, and risk of loss, whereby the seller must (1) clear the goods for export, (2) bear the costs of carriage (apart from unloading charges and import duties), and (3) make the goods available to the buyer onboard the carrier at the destination. • The seller's delivery is complete (and the risk of loss passes to the buyer) when the seller's carrier arrives at the agreed destination. The buyer is responsible for all import duties. This term is generally used when the delivery place is on land, but it places no explicit restrictions on the mode of carriage. If the delivery point is a port and delivery is complete either onboard or alongside the vessel, the term delivered ex ship or delivered ex quay is preferred. — Abbr. DDU. Cf. DELIVERED DUTY PAID ; DELIVERED EX SHIP; DELIVERED EX QUAY.

DELIVERED EX QUAY

delivered ex quay. A mercantile-contract term allocating the rights and duties of the buyer and the seller of goods with respect to delivery, payment, and risk of loss, whereby the seller must (1) clear the goods for export, (2) bear the costs of transportation to the port named by the importing buyer, and (3) place the goods alongside the ship in the port of destination. • The seller's delivery is complete (and the risk of loss passes to the buyer) when the goods are unloaded in the destination port. This term is used only when goods are transported by sea or inland waterway. — Abbr. DEQ. Cf. DELIVERED EX SHIP ; FREE ALONGSIDE SHIP.

DELIVERED EX SHIP

delivered ex ship. A mercantile-contract term allocating the rights and duties of the buyer and the seller of goods with respect to delivery, payment, and risk of loss, whereby the seller must clear the goods for export and bear the costs of transportation (apart from unloading charges and import duties) to the importing nation's port of destination. • The seller's delivery is complete (and the risk of loss passes to the buyer) when the seller's carrier arrives at the destination port. This term is used only when goods are transported by sea or inland waterway. — Abbr. DES. Cf. DELIVERED EX QUAY; FREE ON BOARD.

The title of two statutes enacted in the 11th and 13th years of the reign of Edward I, providing that the land of a business debtor could be held by a creditor as security until the debt was paid.

“But by the statute de mercatoribus... the whole of a man's lands was liable to be pledged in a statute merchant, for a debt contracted in trade; though one-half of them was liable to be taken in execution for any other debt of the owner.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 161 (1765).

DEMESNE

demesne (di-maynor di-meen), n.[French] 1. At common law, land held in one's own right, and not through a superior; esp., land attached to a manor and reserved for the court's own use. 2. Domain; realm. — Also spelled demain.

ancient demesne.Hist. A manor that was held by the Crown at the time of William the Conqueror and was recorded in the Domesday Book.

demesne as of fee.Hist. Complete ownership of something.

“But there is this distinction between the two species of hereditaments: that, of a corporeal inheritance a man shall be said to be seised in his demesne, as of fee; of an incorporeal one, he shall only be said to be seised as of fee, and not in his demesne. For, as incorporeal hereditaments are in their nature collateral to, and issue out of, lands and houses, their owner hath no property, dominicum, or demesne, in the thing itself, but hath only something derived out of it; resembling the servitudes, or services, of the civil law.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 106 (1766).

DEMESNE LAND

demesne land.See LAND.

DEMESNE LAND OF THE CROWN

DEMISE

demise (di-mIz), n.1. The conveyance of an estate, usu. for a term of years; a lease <the demise of the land for one year>.2. The instrument by which such a conveyance is accomplished <the demise set forth the terms of the transfer>.3. The passing of property by descent or bequest .4. The death of a person or (figuratively) of a thing <the corporation's untimely demise>. See DEATH. — Abbr. dem. — demise,vb.

demise of the Crown.The immediate, automatic transfer of a kingdom to a successor upon a sovereign's death or long absence from the throne.

“The king never dies. Henry, Edward, or George may die; but the king survives them all. For immediately upon the decease of the reigning prince in his natural capacity, his kingship or imperial dignity, by act of law, without any ... interval, is vested at once in his heir; who is, eo instanti, king to all intents and purposes. And so tender is the law of supposing even a possibility of his death, that his natural dissolution is generally called his demise... an expression which signifies merely a transfer of property; for ... when we say the demise of the crown, we mean only that, in consequence of the disunion of the king's body natural from his body politic, the kingdom is transferred or demised to his successor; and so the royal dignity remains perpetual." 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 242 (1765).

joint demise.In an ejectment action, a demise made by two or more persons in one declaration. [Cases: Ejectment 65. C.J.S. Ejectment § 61.]

separate demise.In an ejectment action, a demise made solely by the lessor.

several demise.(often pl.) Hist. In an ejectment action, a list of demises by all people potentially owning the property at issue, used to ensure that the plaintiff had proved a lease from the person actually having title. See EJECTMENT.

single demise.In an ejectment action, a declaration containing one demise. See EJECTMENT. [Cases: Ejectment 65. C.J.S. Ejectment § 61.]

DEMISE CHARTER

demise charter.See bareboat charter under CHARTER(8).

DEMUR

demur (di-m*<<schwa>>r*), vb. 1. To file a demurrer. See DEMURRER. 2. To object to the legal sufficiency of a claim alleged in a pleading without admitting or denying the truth of the facts stated. [Cases: Pleading 189.C.J.S. Pleading §§ 235–236, 239, 289–290, 292.] 3. To object to the legal sufficiency of a claim alleged in a pleading while admitting the truth of the facts stated.

DEMURRABLE

demurrable (di-m*<<schwa>>r-<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l*), adj. (Of a claim, pleading, etc.) subject to a demurrer . See DEMURRER.

DEMURRAGE

demurrage (di-m*<<schwa>>r-ij*). (usu. pl.) Maritime law. 1. Liquidated damages owed by a charterer to a shipowner for the charterer's failure to load or unload cargo by the agreed time. [Cases: Shipping 170. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 431–432.]

contract demurrage. A demurrage paid by a vessel's charterer if the time to load or unload the vessel at port takes longer than that agreed on in the charterer's contract with the shipowner. Cf. DISPATCH MONEY.

“The contract may also provide that if ... the loading time exceeds that fixed by the charter, the charterer will pay a liquidated compensation termed ‘contract demurrage.’ ” Frank L. Maraist, Admiralty in a Nutshell 56 (2d ed. 1988).

noncontract demurrage. Demurrage not provided by contract, but ordered by a court. — Also termed damages for detention.

“After the ... days on contract demurrage have expired, the charterer of course still remains liable for further delay, but the liability now is one for noncontract demurrage, which will be fixed by the court just as would any other unliquidated claim for damages. Non-contract demurrage may also be referred to as 'damages for detention.' ” Grant Gilmore & Charles L. Black Jr., The Law of Admiralty § 4–8, at 212 (2d ed. 1975).

2. A charge due for the late return of ocean containers or other equipment.

DEMURRAGE LIEN

demurrage lien. See LIEN.

DEMURRANT

demurrant (di-m<<schwa>>r-<<schwa>>nt). A party who interposes a demurrer. See DEMURRER.

DEMURRER

demurrer (di-m<<schwa>>r-<<schwa>>r). [Law French demorer “to wait or stay”] A pleading stating that although the facts alleged in a complaint may be true, they are insufficient for the plaintiff to state a claim for relief and for the defendant to frame an answer. • In most jurisdictions, such a pleading is now termed a motion to dismiss, but the demurrer is still used in a few states, including California, Nebraska, and Pennsylvania. Cf. DENIAL(1). [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 658; Pleading 189. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 235–236, 239, 289–290, 292.]

“The word ‘demurrer,’ derived from the Latin demorari, or the French demorer, meaning to ‘wait or stay,’ imports that the party demurring waits or stays in his proceedings in the action until the judgment of the court is given whether he is bound to answer to so insufficient a pleading. Each party may demur to what he deems an insufficient pleading of the other. The demurrer was general when it was to matter of substance; it was special when it was made to matter of form, and must specifically point out the defect.” Edwin E. Bryant, The Law of Pleading Under the Codes of Civil Procedure 15 (2d ed. 1899).

demurrer ore tenus. An oral demurrer. See ORE TENUS.

“The codes either expressly or by implication require all pleadings to be in writing. To this proposition there is the apparent exception that objections to the jurisdiction of the court, or to the sufficiency of a pleading, that it does not state a cause of action or defence, may be raised on the trial by what is sometimes called a demurrer ore tenus (that is, orally, — by word of mouth).” Edwin E. Bryant, The Law of Pleading Under the Codes of Civil Procedure 179 (2d ed. 1899).

general demurrer. See general exception (1) under EXCEPTION(1).

parol demurrer. Hist. A suspension of proceedings during the minority of an infant.

speaking demurrer. A demurrer that cannot be sustained because it introduces new facts not contained in the original complaint. [Cases: Pleading 210. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 289–290.]

special demurrer. An objection that questions the form of the pleading and states specifically the nature of the objection, such as that the pleading violates the rules of pleading or practice. [Cases: Pleading 206. C.J.S. Pleading § 233.]

DEMURRER BOOK

demurrer book. A record of the demurrer issue used by the court and counsel in argument.

DEMURRER TO EVIDENCE

demurrer to evidence. A party's objection or exception that the evidence is legally insufficient to make a case. • Its effect, upon joinder in the demurrer by the opposite party, is that the jury is discharged and the demurrer is entered on record and decided by the court. A demurrer to evidence admits the truth of all the evidence and the legal deductions from that evidence. [Cases: Criminal Law 752; Trial 150. C.J.S. Trial §§ 384–386, 391.]

DEMURRER TO INTERROGATORIES

demurrer to interrogatories. The objection or reason given by a witness for failing to answer an interrogatory.

DEMUTUALIZATION

demutualization, n. The process of converting a mutual insurance company (which is owned by its policyholders) to a stock insurance company (which is owned by outside shareholders), usu. as a means of increasing the insurer's capital by allowing the insurer to issue shares. • About half the states have demutualization statutes authorizing such a conversion. #### DENIAL denial,n.1. A refusal or rejection; esp., a court’s refusal to grant a request presented in a motion or petition <denial of the motion for summary judgment>.2. A defendant’s response controverting the facts that a plaintiff has alleged in a complaint; a repudiation <the worker filed a denial alleging that physical contact never occurred>. Cf. DEMURRER. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 741; Pleading 112. C.J.S. Pleading § 183.]

conjunctive denial.A response that controverts all the material facts alleged in a complaint.

disjunctive denial.A response that controverts the truthfulness of two or more allegations of a complaint in the alternative.

general denial.A response that puts in issue all the material assertions of a complaint or petition. — Also termed general plea. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 742; Pleading 123. C.J.S. Pleading § 187.]

qualified general denial.A general denial of all the allegations except the allegations that the pleader expressly admits.

“The qualified general denial most frequently is used when a limited number of allegations in the complaint are to be admitted. This form of denial also is employed when defendant cannot expressly deny an averment in his opponent’s pleading and therefore cannot submit a general denial, although defendant wants to put plaintiff to his proof on that averment by interposing a denial of knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief or a denial on information and belief.” 5 Charles Alan Wright & Arthur R. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure § 1266, at 405 (2d ed. 1990).

specific denial. A separate response applicable to one or more particular allegations in a complaint. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 742; Pleading 124. C.J.S. Pleading § 188.]

DE NON DECIMANDO

de non decimando (dee non des-<<schwa>>-man-doh), n.[Law Latin “of not paying tithes”] Eccles. law. A claim for release from paying a tithe. — Also termed modus de non decimando.

“A prescription de non decimando is a claim to be entirely discharged of tithes, and to pay no compensation in lieu of them. Thus the king by his prerogative is discharged from all tithes. So a vicar shall pay no tithes to the rector, nor the rector to the vicar .... But these privileges are personal to both the king and the clergy; for their tenant or lessee shall pay tithes .... And from this original have sprung all the lands, which, being in lay hands, do at present claim to be tithe-free: for, if a man can show his lands to have been such abbey lands, and also immemorially discharged of tithes ... this is now a good prescription, de non decimando. But he must show both these requisites for abbey lands, without a special ground of discharge, are not discharged of course; neither will any prescription de non decimando avail in total discharge of tithes, unless it relates to such abbey lands.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 31–32 (1766).

DE NON PROCEDENDO AD ASSISAM

de non procedendo ad assisam (dee non proh-s<<schwa>>-den-doh ad <<schwa>>-sI-z<<schwa>>m), n.[Law Latin “of not proceeding to take an assize”] Hist. A writ ordering justices not to hold an assize in a particular case.

DEODAND

deodand (dee-<<schwa>>-dand). Hist. Something (such as an animal) that has done wrong and must therefore be forfeited to the Crown. • This practice was abolished in 1846.

“In the oldest records, we see no attempt to distinguish the cases in which the dead man was negligent from those in which no fault could be imputed to him, and the large number of deodands collected in every eyre suggests that many horses and boats bore the guilt which should have been ascribed to beer. A drunken carter is crushed beneath the wheels of his cart; the cart, the cask of wine that was in it and the oxen that were drawing it are all deodand. Bracton apparently thought it an abuse to condemn as deodand a thing that had not moved; he would distinguish between the horse which throws a man and the horse off which a man stupidly tumbles, between the tree that falls and the tree against which a man is thrown. We do not see these distinctions in the practice of the courts.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 474 n.4 (2d ed. 1899).

“[W]hen in 1716 the coroner's jury of Yarmouth declared a stack of timber which had fallen on a child to be forfeited as a deodand, it was ransomed for 30s., which was paid over to the child's father.” J.W. Cecil Turner, Kenny's Outlines of Criminal Law 7 (16th ed. 1952).

DE ODIO ET ATIA

de odio et atia (dee oh-dee-oh et ay-shee-<<schwa>>), n.[Law Latin “of hatred and malice”] Hist. A writ ordering a sheriff to summon a 12-member jury to inquire whether a prisoner jailed for murder was charged for a good reason or only because of ill-will and to determine whether bail should be set. • If the prisoner was accused out of spite or had committed the crime in self-defense, then another writ called tradas in ballim would have been issued ordering the sheriff to release the prisoner on bail if the sheriff could find 12 good citizens of the county to vouch for the prisoner. This writ, similar to habeas corpus, was first mentioned in Magna Carta. — Also termed breve de bono et malo.

“Deportatio. Perpetual banishment of a person condemned for a crime. It was the severest form of banishment since it included additional penalties, such as seizure of the whole property, loss of Roman citizenship, confinement to a definite place. Under the Principate it replaced the former interdicio aqua et igni. The emperor could grant the deportee full amnesty, which restored him to his former rights (postliminium). Places of deportatio were islands (in insulam) near the Italian shore or an oasis in the Libyan desert.” Adolf Berger, Encyclopedic Dictionary of Roman Law 432 (1953).

DEPOSIT IN COURT

deposit in court. The placing of money or other property that represents a person's potential liability in the court's temporary custody, pending the outcome of a lawsuit. — Also termed deposit into the registry of the court. [Cases: Deposits in Court 1. C.J.S. Deposits in Court §§ 1, 4–7.]

DEPOSIT INSURANCE

deposit insurance. See INSURANCE.

DEPOSIT INTO THE REGISTRY OF THE COURT

deposit into the registry of the court. See DEPOSIT IN COURT.

DEPOSITION

deposition (dep-<<schwa>>-zish-<<schwa>>n). 1. A witness's out-of-court testimony that is reduced to writing (usu. by a court reporter) for later use in court or for discovery purposes. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 30; Fed. R. Crim. P. 15. — Also termed examination before trial. [Cases: Criminal Law 627.2; Federal Civil Procedure 1311–1456; Pretrial Procedure 91–206. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 468; Discovery §§ 2, 4, 6–7, 9–10, 12–32, 34–61, 69, 77, 125; Pretrial Procedure §§ 4–6, 10–17, 24, 33, 35–54, 63–66, 70–72, 74, 76–77, 109–129, 132–138.] 2. The session at which such testimony is recorded.

apex deposition. The deposition of a person whose position is at the highest level of a company's hierarchy. • Courts often preclude an apex deposition unless (1) the person to be deposed has particular knowledge regarding the claim, and (2) the requesting party cannot obtain the requested — and discoverable — information through less intrusive means. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1325; Pretrial Procedure 101. C.J.S. Discovery § 17.]

deposition de bene esse (dee bee-nee es-ee also day ben-ay es-ay). A deposition taken from a witness who will likely be unable to attend a scheduled trial or hearing. • If the witness is not available to attend trial, the testimony is read at trial as if the witness were present in court. See testimony de bene esse under TESTIMONY. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1291–1299, 1311–1456; Pretrial Procedure 61–65. C.J.S. Pretrial Procedure §§ 1, 3–20, 34–54.]

deposition on written questions. A deposition given in response to a prepared set of written questions, as opposed to a typical oral deposition. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 31. — Formerly also termed deposition on written interrogatories. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1408; Pretrial Procedure 155. C.J.S. Discovery §§ 55–61.]

“The advantage of a deposition on written questions is that counsel for the parties need not go to some distant place to be present at the taking of the deposition. Instead they serve on each other questions and cross questions — and even redirect and recross questions — that they wish to have put to the deponent. These are then sent to the officer who is to take the deposition. The officer puts the questions to the witness, records the answers, and transcribes and files the deposition as with an oral deposition. The officer is merely to record what the witness says in response to the various questions propounded to him or her." Charles Alan Wright, The Law of Federal Courts § 85, at 618–19 (5th ed. 1994).

oral deposition. A deposition given in response to oral questioning by a lawyer. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1381; Pretrial Procedure 151. C.J.S. Discovery §§ 30, 51–53.]

30(b)(6) deposition. Under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the deposition of an organization, through the organization's designated representative. • Under Rule 30(b)(6), a party may take the deposition of an organization, such as a corporation. The notice of deposition (or subpoena) may name the organization and may specify the matters to be covered in the deposition. The organization must then designate a person to testify about those matters on its behalf. Fed. R. Civ. P. 30(b)(6). Most states authorize a similar procedure under state-court procedural rules. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1325.]

3. The written record of a witness's out-of-court testimony. 4. Eccles. law. The involuntary release of a clergyman from the exercise of his office. Cf. DEGRADATION(1); DEPRIVATION(4).

accumulated depreciation.The total depreciation currently recorded on an asset. • On the balance sheet, an asset's total cost less accumulated depreciation reflects the asset's book value. — Also termed accrued depreciation.

annual depreciation.The annual loss to property due to regular wear and tear.

functional depreciation.Depreciation that results from the replacement of equipment that is not yet worn out, but that is obsolete in light of a new invention or improved machinery allowing more efficient and satisfactory production.

DEPRECIATION METHOD

depreciation method.A set formula used in estimating an asset's use, wear, or obsolescence over the asset's useful life. • This method is useful in calculating the allowable annual tax deduction for depreciation. See USEFUL LIFE . [Cases: Internal Revenue 3470–3505; Taxation 1044.C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 223–249, 252, 259–265, 278, 489, 671, 673, 799; Taxation §§ 1741–1742.]

accelerated depreciation method.A depreciation method that yields larger deductions in the earlier years of an asset's life and smaller deductions in the later years.

annuity depreciation method.A depreciation method that allows for a return of imputed interest on the undepreciated balance of an asset's value. • The imputed interest is subtracted from the current depreciation amount before it is credited to the accumulated depreciation accounts.

declining-balance depreciation method.A method of computing the annual depreciation allowance by multiplying the asset's undepreciated cost each year by a uniform rate that may not exceed double the straight-line rate or 150 percent.

double-declining depreciation method.A depreciation method that spreads over time the initial cost of a capital asset by deducting in each period twice the percentage recognized by the straight-line method and applying that double percentage to the undepreciated balance existing at the start of each period.

replacement-cost depreciation method.A depreciation method that fixes an asset's value by the price of its substitute.

sinking-fund depreciation method.A depreciation method that accounts for the time value of money by setting up a depreciation-reserve account that earns interest, resulting in a gradual yearly increase in the depreciation deduction.

straight-line depreciation method.A depreciation method that writes off the cost or other basis of the asset by deducting the expected salvage value from the initial cost of the capital asset, and dividing the difference by the asset's estimated useful life.

sum-of-the-years'-digits depreciation method.A method of calculating the annual depreciation allowance by multiplying the depreciable cost basis (cost minus salvage value) by a constantly decreasing fraction, which is represented by the remaining years of useful life at the beginning of each year divided by the total number of years of useful life at the time of acquisition. — Sometimes shortened to SYD method.

unit depreciation method.A depreciation method — directly related to the productivity of the asset — that divides the asset's value by the estimated total number of units to be produced, and then multiplies the unit cost by the number of units sold during the year, representing the depreciation expense for the year.

units-of-output depreciation method.A method by which the cost of a depreciable asset, minus salvage value, is allocated to the accounting periods benefited based on output (as miles, hours, number of times used, and the like).

DEPRECIATION RESERVE

depreciation reserve.An account, esp. of a public utility, built up to offset the depreciation of property because of time and use, so that at the end of the property's service, there is enough money to replace the property. [Cases: Public Utilities 127. C.J.S. Public Utilities § 28, 37.]

“Derivatives transactions may be based on the value of foreign currency, U.S. Treasury bonds, stock indexes, or interest rates. The values of these underlying financial instruments are determined by market forces, such as movements in interest rates. Within the broad panoply of derivatives transactions are numerous innovative financial instruments whose objectives may include a hedge against market risks, management of assets and liabilities, or lowering of funding costs; derivatives may also be used as speculation for profit.” Procter & Gamble Co. v. Bankers Trust Co., [1996–1997 Transfer Binder] Fed. Sec. L. Rep. (CCH) ¶ 99,229, at 95,238 (S.D. Ohio 1996).

2. See derivative work under WORK(2).

DERIVATIVE ACQUISITION

derivative acquisition.See ACQUISITION.

DERIVATIVE ACTION

derivative action. 1. A suit by a beneficiary of a fiduciary to enforce a right belonging to the fiduciary; esp., a suit asserted by a shareholder on the corporation's behalf against a third party (usu. a corporate officer) because of the corporation's failure to take some action against the third party. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 23.1. — Also termed derivative suit; shareholder derivative suit; stockholder derivative suit; representative action. Cf. DIRECT ACTION(3). [Cases: Corporations 207.5. C.J.S. Corporations § 413.] 2. A lawsuit arising from an injury to another person, such as a husband's action for loss of consortium arising from an injury to his wife caused by a third person.

DEROGATION

derogation (der-⟨schwa⟩-gay-sh⟨schwa⟩n), n.1. The partial repeal or abrogation of a law by a later act that limits its scope or impairs its utility and force <statutes in derogation of the common law>. [Cases: Statutes 237, 239. C.J.S. Statutes §§ 380, 382.] 2. Disparagement; depreciation in value or estimation <some argue that the derogation of family values has caused an increase in crime>. 3. Detraction, prejudice, or destruction (of a grant or right) <an attorney may be punished for derogation from professional integrity>. — derogate (der-⟨schwa⟩-gayt), vb.

DEROGATION CLAUSE

derogation clause. Int'l law. A reservation in a treaty allowing a signator to refuse to comply with certain provisions. • For example, a signator may be allowed to suspend some or all of its treaty obligations during a war or other national emergency. If a treaty lacks an express derogation clause, then general principles governing suspension or termination of treaties apply.

DEROGATION FROM GRANT

derogation from grant. A provision in an instrument of transfer (such as a deed) that diminishes, avoids, or otherwise operates against the grant itself.

DEROGATORY CLAUSE

derogatory clause. 1. A statutory or contractual provision proclaiming that the document in which it appears, or a part of the document, cannot be repealed or amended. • Such provisions are considered ineffective.

“The one thing a sovereign legislature cannot do is truncate its own sovereignty by restricting its successors. A parliament sovereign today must also be sovereign tomorrow. What is technically called a clausula derogatoria is therefore ineffective: non impedit clausula derogatoria quo minus ab eadem potestate res dissolvantur a qua constituuntur (a derogatory clause does not prevent things from being dissolved by the same power which created them).” F.A.R. Bennion, Statutory Interpretation § 140, at 313 (3d ed. 1997).

2. A clause that a testator inserts secretly in a will, containing a provision that any later will not having that precise clause is invalid. • A derogatory clause seeks to protect against a later will extorted by undue influence, duress, or violence. — Also termed clausula derogativa; clausula derogatoria.

DES

DES.abbr.DELIVERED EX SHIP.

DE SALVA GARDIA

de salva gardia (dee sal-v<<schwa>> gahr-dee-<<schwa>>), n.[Law Latin “of safeguard”] A writ issued to protect strangers from harm while pursuing their legal rights in England.

DE SALVO CONDUCTU

de salvo conductu (dee sal-voh k<<schwa>>n-d<<schwa>>k-t[y]oo). [Law Latin “of safe conduct”] A writ of safe conduct.

DE SA VIE

de sa vie (d<<schwa>> sa vee). [Law French] Of one's own life, as distinguished from pur autre vie (“for another's life”).

DESCEND

descend,vb. To pass (a decedent's property) by intestate succession.

DESCENDANT

descendant (di-sen-d<<schwa>>nt), n. One who follows in lineage, in direct (not collateral) descent from a person. • Examples are children and grandchildren. Cf. ASCENDANT. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 25. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution § 32.] — descendant,adj.

collateral descendant.Loosely, a blood relative who is not strictly a descendant, like a niece or nephew.

lineal descendant.A blood relative in the direct line of descent. • Children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren are lineal descendants.

DESCENDIBILITY OF FUTURE INTERESTS

descendibility of future interests.The legal possibility that a future interest (such as a remainder or an executory interest) can legally pass by inheritance.

DESCENDIBLE

descendible,adj. (Of property) capable of passing by descent or being inherited. See HERITABLE.

DESCENT

descent,n.1. The acquisition of real property by law, as by inheritance; the passing of intestate real property to heirs. See SUCCESSION(2). Cf. DISTRIBUTION(1); PURCHASE. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 1–19.C.J.S. Conflict of Laws §§ 71, 84; Descent and Distribution §§ 1–22; Right of Privacy and Publicity§ 42.] 2. The fact or process of originating from a common ancestor. Cf. ASCENT. — descend,vb.

collateral descent.Descent in a collateral or oblique line, from brother to brother or cousin to cousin. • With collateral descent, the donor and donee are related through a common ancestor. Cf. collateral descendant under DESCENDANT. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 32–41. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 29, 38–49.]

direct-line descent. See lineal descent.

immediate descent. 1. A descent directly to an heir, as from a grandmother to granddaughter, brought about by the earlier death of the mother. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 25–36. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 29, 32–43.] 2. A direct descent without an intervening link in consanguinity, as from mother to daughter.

lineal descent. Descent in a direct or straight line, as from father or grandfather to son or grandson. — Also termed direct-line descent. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 25. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution § 32.]

maternal-line descent. Descent between two persons, traced through the mother of the younger.

mediate descent. 1. A descent not occurring immediately, as when a granddaughter receives land from her grandmother, which first passed to the mother. 2. A direct descent occurring through a link in consanguinity, as when a granddaughter receives land from her grandfather directly.

“The law categorizes descents as either lineal or collateral, and as mediate or immediate. The term mediate or immediate descent may denote either the passing of the estate, or the relationship between the intestate and the heir. The classification of descents as mediate or immediate describes the proximity of the descent, while the characterization as lineal or collateral refers to the direction of the descent.” 23 Am. Jur. 2d Descent and Distribution § 49, at 787–88 (1983).

paternal-line descent. Descent between two persons, traced through the father of the younger.

DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION

descent and distribution. 1. See intestate succession under SUCCESSION(2). 2. Broadly, the rules by which a decedent's property is passed, whether by intestate succession or by will. See DISTRIBUTION(1).

DESCENT CAST

descent cast. Hist. The devolution of realty that has been acquired by disseisin, abatement, or intrusion, upon an heir whose ancestor died intestate. • This tolled the real owner's right of entry until the owner brought a legal action. — Also termed descent which tolls entry.

DESCRIPTION

description. 1. A delineation or explanation of something by an account setting forth the subject's characteristics or qualities <description of a patentable process>. 2. A representation by words or drawing of something seen or heard or otherwise experienced <description of the criminal> <description of the accident>. 3. An enumeration or specific identification of something < description of items in the estate>. 4. LEGAL DESCRIPTION. 5. Patents. In a U.S. patent application, the section that (1) comprehensively characterizes the invention in language that is clear and complete enough to enable anyone skilled in the relevant art to make and use the invention; (2) explains the best mode for using the invention; and (3) usu. includes an explanation of drawings that are part of the application. • The detailed description typically makes up the largest portion of the application's specification. — Also termed (in sense 5) enabling disclosure; enabling requirement; written description. [Cases: Patents 99. C.J.S. Patents § 139.]

DESCRIPTIO PERSONAE

descriptio personae (di-skrip-shee-oh p<<schwa>>r-soh-nee). [Law Latin] Description of the person. • This phrase, typically used to identify or describe a person in a contract or deed, is not essential to a document's validity. Cf. DESIGNATIO PERSONAE.

DESCRIPTIVE COMPARATIVE LAW

descriptive comparative law. See COMPARATIVE LAW.

DESCRIPTIVE MARK

descriptive mark. See descriptive trademark under TRADEMARK.

DESCRIPTIVE TRADEMARK

descriptive trademark. See TRADEMARK.

DESCRIPTIVE WORD

descriptive word. Trademarks. A term that portrays a general characteristic or function of a product or service. • A descriptive word may not be registered as a trademark unless it has acquired secondary meaning in the minds of consumers so that it is directly associated with one brand. [Cases: Trade Regulation 164. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 162.]

“A trader cannot appropriate to his exclusive use words or symbols which (in the application he is to make of them) are public property. The right of all to use descriptive words in their ordinary and usual meaning must not be restricted. No sign or form of words may be appropriated as a trade-mark, for use in its primary meaning, which, from the nature of the fact conveyed by that primary meaning, others may employ with equal truth, and with equal right, for the same purpose.” Harry D. Nims, The Law of Unfair Competition and Trade-Marks 524 (1929).

DE SCUTAGIO HABENDO

de scutagio habendo (dee skyoo-tay-jee-oh h<<schwa>>-ben-doh), n. [Law Latin “for having scutage”] Hist. 1. A writ ordering a tenant-in-chief by knight's service to serve in a war, send a substitute, or pay a sum of money. 2. A writ authorizing a lord who had served in the war or paid the required fine to recover the scutage from his knight's fees. See SCUTAGE.

“Such a baron, having proved that he fulfilled his contract or paid his fine, will have a royal writ de scutagio habendo, whereby the sheriff will be ordered to cause him to have the scutage due from his tenants. Still, before he can get his scutage, he has to obtain something that the king is apt to treat as a favour.” 1 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 270 (2d ed. 1898).

DESECRATE

desecrate, vb. To divest (a thing) of its sacred character; to defile or profane (a sacred thing).

DE SECTA AD MOLENDINUM

de secta ad molendinum (dee sek-t<<schwa>> ad m<<schwa>>-len-di-n<<schwa>>m), n.[Law Latin “of suit at mill”] Hist. A writ forcing a person to continue grinding corn at a particular mill, as was customary, or to give a good reason why the custom should not be continued.

“There are also other services, due by ancient custom and prescription only. Such is that of doing suit to another's mill: where the persons, resident in a particular place, by usage time out of mind have been accustomed to grind their corn at a certain mill; and afterwards any of them go to another mill, and withdraw their suit ... from the ancient mill. This is not only a damage, but an injury, to the owner .... And for this injury the owner shall have a writ de secta ad molendinum commanding the defendant to do his suit at that mill ... or show good cause to the contrary: in which action the validity of the prescription may be tried, and if it be found for the owner, he shall recover damages against the defendant.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 234–35 (1768).

DE SECTIS NON FACIENDIS

de sectis non faciendis (dee sek-tis non fay-shee-en-dis), n.[Law Latin “of not doing services”] Hist. A writ exempting a ward or dowress from performing certain services.

DESEGREGATION

desegregation, n.1. The abrogation of policies that separate people of different races into different institutions and facilities (such as public schools). [Cases: Schools 13. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 108, 111, 121.] 2. The state of having had such policies abrogated. Cf. INTEGRATION (4). — desegregate, vb.

DE SEISINA HABENDA

de seisina habenda (dee see-zin-<<schwa>> h<<schwa>>-ben-d<<schwa>>), n.[Law Latin “of holding seisin”] Hist. A writ ordering the sovereign to deliver seisin of lands and tenements to a lord, after holding them for the allowed year and a day because the lord's tenant committed a felony.

DESERTER

deserter. Int'l law. A soldier who leaves national military service with the intention of reneging on military obligations either permanently or for the duration of a military operation; a person who illegally abandons a military force, often by seeking refuge in a foreign territory or by joining enemy forces. [Cases: Armed Services 38; Military Justice 661. C.J.S. Armed Services § 156; Military Justice § 55.]

desertion, n. The willful and unjustified abandonment of a person's duties or obligations, esp. to military service or to a spouse or family. • In family law, the five elements of spousal desertion are (1) a cessation of cohabitation, (2) the lapse of a statutory period, (3) an intention to abandon, (4) a lack of consent from the abandoned spouse, and (5) a lack of spousal misconduct that might justify the abandonment. — Also termed gross neglect of duty. Cf. ABANDONMENT. [Cases: Armed Services 38; Divorce 37; Military Justice 661. C.J.S. Armed Services § 156; Divorce §§ 20, 41; Military Justice § 55.] — desert, vb.

constructive desertion. One spouse's misconduct that forces the other spouse to leave the marital abode. • The actions of the offending spouse must be serious enough that the spouse who is forced from the home finds the continuation of the marriage to be unendurable or dangerous to his or her safety and well-being, and finds it necessary to seek safety outside the marital domicile. — Also termed constructive abandonment. [Cases: Divorce 37(22). C.J.S. Divorce §§ 41, 44, 78.]

criminal desertion. One spouse's willful failure without just cause to provide for the care, protection, or support of the other spouse who is in ill health or needy circumstances. [Cases: Husband and Wife 302, 304.]

obstinate desertion. Desertion by a spouse who persistently refuses to return to the marital home, so that the other spouse has grounds for divorce. • Before the advent of no-fault divorce, this term was commonly used in divorce statutes. The term was often part of the longer phrase willful, continued, and obstinate desertion. [Cases: Divorce 37(15). C.J.S. Divorce §§ 41, 78.]

willful, continued, and obstinate desertion. See obstinate desertion.

DESERTS

deserts. See JUST DESERTS.

DESIGN

design, n. 1. A plan or scheme. 2. Purpose or intention combined with a plan.

formed design. Criminal law. The deliberate and fixed intention to kill, though not necessarily a particular person. See PREMEDITATION. [Cases: Homicide 535.]

3. The pattern or configuration of elements in something, such as a work of art. 4. Patents. The drawing or the depiction of an original plan for a novel pattern, model, shape, or configuration that is chiefly decorative or ornamental. • If it meets other criteria, a design may also be protectable as a trademark. — design, vb.

DESIGN AROUND

design around,vb. Patents. To make something that performs the same function or has the same physical properties as (a patented product or process) but in a way different enough from the original that it does not infringe the patent. See DOCTRINE OF EQUIVALENTS.

DESIGNATE

contemptible person.

DESPOIL

despoil (di-spoil), vb. To deprive (a person) of possessions illegally by violence or by clandestine means; to rob. — despoliation (di-spoh-lee-ay-sh<<schwa>>n), despoilment, n.

DESPONSATION

desponsation (dee-spon-say-sh<<schwa>>n). Archaic. The act of betrothal; the act of contracting for marriage.

DESPOT

despot (des-p<<schwa>>t), n. 1. A ruler with absolute power and authority. 2. A tyrant. — despotism (di-spot-ik), adj.

DESPOTISM

despotism (des-p<<schwa>>-tiz-<<schwa>>m). 1. A government by a ruler with absolute, unchecked power. 2. Total power or controlling influence.

DE STATU DEFUNCTORUM

de statu defunctorum (dee stay-t[y]oo dee-f<<schwa>>ngk-tor-<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] Scots law. Concerning the status of the decedent. • The phrase was often used to refer to questions about the decedent's legitimacy.

DE STATUTO MERCATORIO

de statuto mercatorio (dee st<<schwa>>-tyoo-toh m<<schwa>>r-k<<schwa>>-tor-ee-oh), n. [Law Latin “of statute merchant”] Hist. A writ ordering the imprisonment of someone who forfeits a statute-merchant bond until the debt has been paid. See STATUTE MERCHANT.

DE STATUTO STAPULAE

de statuto stapulae (dee st<<schwa>>-tyoo-toh stay-py<<schwa>>-lee), n. [Law Latin “of statute staple”] Hist. A writ to seize the property of and imprison a person who forfeits a statute-staple bond. See STATUTE STAPLE.

DESTINATION

destination. 1. The predetermined end of a course, as of a voyage or package shipment. 2. The act of appointment, esp. in a will; a designation. 3. Scots law. The nomination of heirs — esp. in a certain order — by law or under a will.

“The series of heirs called to the succession of heritable or moveable property, either by the provision of the law or by the will of the proprietor, is, generally speaking, termed a destination; but the term is usually applied, in a more limited sense, to a nomination of successors in a certain order, regulated by the will of the proprietor.” William Bell, Bell's Dictionary and Digest of the Law of Scotland 320 (George Watson ed., 7th ed. 1890).

4.Scots law. The line of successors so appointed.

DESTINATION BILL OF LADING

destination bill of lading.See BILL OF LADING.

DESTINATION CONTRACT

destination contract.See CONTRACT.

DESTINATION DU PÈRE DE FAMILLE

destination du père de famille (des-tee-nah-syawm doo pair d<<schwa>> fa-mee). [French “destination of the father of the family”] 1.Civil law. The legal standing of the owner of two estates that would be subject to a servitude if they were not owned by the same person. • When the two estates cease to be owned by the same owner, a servitude comes into existence if (1) the servitude is apparent from external signs, such as a roadway or a pipeline, or (2) the common owner recorded a declaration establishing the destination. La. Civ. Code art. 741. 2.Hist. A property use that the owner has intentionally established on one part of the property in favor of another part.

DESTINATIONE

destinatione (des-ti-nay-shee-oh-nee). [Law Latin] Hist. By destination or appointment of an heir. • The phrase appeared in reference to the process, made possible through a destination clause, by which an heir was appointed to a succession in a certain order. See DESTINATION(2),(3).

DESTITUTE

destitute (des-ti-t[y]oot), adj.1. Deprived; bereft. 2. Not possessing the necessities of life; lacking possessions and resources; indigent.

DESTITUTIVE FACT

destitutive fact.See divestitive fact under FACT.

DESTRUCTIBILITY

destructibility,n. The capability of being destroyed by some action, turn of events, or operation of law. — destructible,adj.

DESTRUCTIBILITY OF CONTINGENT REMAINDERS

destructibility of contingent remainders.Property. The common-law doctrine requiring a future interest to vest by the time it is to become possessory or else suffer total destruction (the interest then reverting to the grantor). The doctrine could be avoided by the use of trustees to preserve contingent remainders. • This doctrine has been abolished in all but a few American jurisdictions; the abolishing statutes are commonly termed anti-destructibility statutes. — Also termed destructibility rule. [Cases: Remainders 10. C.J.S. Estates §§ 88–89, 91–92.]

“The destructibility rule still exists in its old common-law form in Florida. Various authors have suggested that it also exists unchanged in Arkansas, North Carolina, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, and Tennessee; but there are no statutes or recent decisions to clarify the rule's status in these states.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 79 n.46 (2d ed. 1984).

DESTRUCTIBLE TRUST

destructible trust. See TRUST.

DESTRUCTION

destruction. 1. The act of destroying or demolishing; the ruining of something. 2. Harm that substantially detracts from the value of property, esp. personal property. 3. The state of having been destroyed.

DESUETUDE

desuetude (des-w<<schwa>>-t[y]ood). 1. Lack of use; obsolescence through disuse. 2. The doctrine holding that if a statute or treaty is left unenforced long enough, the courts will no longer regard it as having any legal effect even though it has not been repealed. [Cases: Statutes 173. C.J.S. Statutes § 292.]

“[T]he doctrine of desuetude has had in all legal systems a very limited and cautious application. For the anachronistic statute a better remedy may be found through reinterpretation in the light of new conditions; as Gray remarks with some irony. ‘It is not as speedy or as simple a process to interpret a statute out of existence as to repeal it, but with time and patient skill it can often be done.’ ” Lon L. Fuller, Anatomy of the Law 38 (1968) (quoting John Chipman Gray, The Nature and Sources of Law 192 (1921)).

“There is no doctrine of desuetude in English law, so a statute never ceases to be in force merely because it is obsolete. Normally there must be an express repeal, but the whole or part of an enactment may be impliedly repealed by a later statute.” Rupert Cross, Statutory Interpretation 3 (1976).

DE SUPERONERATIONE PASTURAE

de superoneratione pasturae (dee soo-p<<schwa>>-roh-n<<schwa>>-ray-shee-oh-nee pas-ty<<schwa>>-ree), n. [Law Latin “of surcharge of pasture”] Hist. A judicial writ against a person who was initially brought into county court for putting too many cattle on pasture, and later was impleaded in the same court on the same charge, and the cause was removed to the superior court at Westminster.

DE TABULIS EXHIBENDIS

de tabulis exhibendis (dee tab-y<<schwa>>-lis ek-si-ben-dis). [Latin] Roman law. Of producing the tablets of a will. • This was a subject covered under Roman exhibitory interdicts governing the production of documents. A will of a deceased person had to be produced and opened to determine whether the applicant had rights under it.

DETACHIARE

DETAINDER

detainer. 1. The action of detaining, withholding, or keeping something in one's custody.

forcible detainer.See FORCIBLE DETAINDER.

unlawful detainer.The unjustifiable retention of the possession of real property by one whose original entry was lawful, as when a tenant holds over after lease termination despite the landlord's demand for possession. [Cases: Forcible Entry and Detainer 5.]

2. The confinement of a person in custody. 3. A writ authorizing a prison official to continue holding a prisoner in custody. [Cases: Extradition and Detainers 52.] 4. A person who detains someone or something.

DE TALLAGIO NON CONCEDENDO

de tallagio non concedendo (dee t<<schwa>>-lay-jee-oh non kon-s<<schwa>>-den-doh), n.[Law Latin "of not granting tallage"] Hist. The title of a statute declaring that no taxes will be imposed by the king or his heirs without the consent of the archbishops, bishops, earls, barons, knights, and other freemen of the realm. • The statute has been used to support the constitutional doctrine disallowing taxation except by Parliament. 34 Edw., st. 4.

DETECTION

detection. The act of discovering or revealing something that was hidden, esp. to solve a crime.

"There is a clear distinction between inducing a person to do an unlawful act and setting a trap to catch him in the execution of a criminal plan of his own conception. There is also a distinction between the terms 'detection' and 'entrapment,' as applied to the activities of law enforcement officers. Legitimate detection of crime occurs when officers test a suspected person by offering him an opportunity to transgress the law in such manner as is usual in the activity alleged to be unlawful. On the other hand, entrapment occurs when officers induce a person to violate the law when he would not otherwise do so." 21 Am. Jur. 2d Criminal Law § 202 (1981).

DE TEMPORE CUJUS CONTRARIUM MEMORIA HOMINUM NON EXISTIT

de tempore cujus contrarium memoria hominum non existit (dee tem-p<<schwa>>-ree k[y]oo-j<<schwa>>s k<<schwa>>n-trair-ee-<<schwa>>m m<<schwa>>-mor-ee-<< schwa>> hom-<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>m non eg-zis-tit). [Latin] From time whereof the memory of man does not exist to the contrary. See LEGAL MEMORY.

DE TEMPORE IN TEMPUS ET AD OMNIA TEMPORA

de tempore in tempus et ad omnia tempora (dee tem-p<<schwa>>-ree in tem-p<< schwa>>s et ad om-nee-<<schwa>> tem-p<<schwa>>-r<<schwa>>). [Latin] From time to time, and at all times.

DE TEMPS DONT MEMORIE NE COURT

de temps dont memorie ne court (d<<schwa>> tahn dawnmem-<<schwa>>-ree n<< schwa>> koor). [Law French] From time whereof memory does not run; time out of human memory. • This Law French phrasing was a forerunner of Blackstone's classic formulation: "time whereof the memory of man does not run to the contrary." 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 460–61 (1765). See LEGAL MEMORY.

DÉTENTE

détente (day-tahnt). [French] 1. The relaxation of tensions between two or more parties, esp. nations. 2. A policy promoting such a relaxation of tensions. 3. A period during which such tensions are relaxed. Cf. ENTENTE; ALLIANCE.

DETENTIO

detentio (di-ten-shee-oh), n.[Latin] 1.Roman law. See possessio naturalis under POSSESSIO. 2.Hist. Detention; detainment, as opposed to captio ("taking").

DETENTION

detention,n.1. The act or fact of holding a person in custody; confinement or compulsory delay. — detain,vb.

investigative detention.The holding of a suspect without formal arrest during the investigation of the suspect's participation in a crime. • Detention of this kind is constitutional only if probable cause exists.

pretrial detention. 1. The holding of a defendant before trial on criminal charges either because the established bail could not be posted or because release was denied. 2. In a juvenile-delinquency case, the court's authority to hold in custody, from the initial hearing until the probable-cause hearing, any juvenile charged with an act that, if committed by an adult, would be a crime. • If the court finds that releasing the juvenile would create a serious risk that before the return date the juvenile might commit a criminal act, it may order the juvenile detained pending a probable-cause hearing. Juveniles do not have a constitutional right to bail. The Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of such statutes in Schall v. Martin, 467 U.S. 253, 104 S.Ct. 2403 (1984). — Also termed temporary detention.

preventive detention.Confinement imposed usu. on a criminal defendant who has threatened to escape, poses a risk of harm, or has otherwise violated the law while awaiting trial, or on a mentally ill person who may cause harm.

2. Custody of property; esp., an employee's custody of the employer's property without being considered as having legal possession of it.

DE TIGNO JUNCTO

de tigno juncto (dee tig-noh j<<schwa>>gnk-toh). See actio de tigno juncto under ACTIO.

DETINET

detinet (det-i-net). [Latin] He detains. • An action in debt may be in detinet when the plaintiff alleges that the defendant wrongfully kept goods, as distinguished from wrongfully taking them. An action in debt may also be in detinet when it is brought by or against someone other than an original party to the debt, such as an executor. An action of replevin is in detinet when the defendant retains possession of the property until after the judgment. Cf. DEBET ET DETINET.

DETINUE

detinue (det-i-nyoo or -noo). A common-law action to recover personal property wrongfully taken by another. Cf. REPLEVIN; TROVER. [Cases: Detinue 1.C.J.S. Detinue § 1.]

“A claim in detinue lies at the suit of a person who has an immediate right to the possession of the goods against a person who is in actual possession of them, and who, upon proper demand, fails or refuses to deliver them up without lawful excuse. Detinue at the present day has two main uses. In the first place, the plaintiff may desire the specific restitution of his chattels and not damages for their conversion. He will then sue in detinue, not in trover. In the second place, the plaintiff will have to sue in detinue if the defendant sets up no claim of ownership and has not been guilty of trespass; for the original acquisition in detinue sur bailment was lawful.” R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 111 (17th ed. 1977).

detinue of goods in frankmarriage.Hist. A writ allowing a divorced wife to obtain the goods given to her during the marriage.

detinue sur bailment (det-i-nyoo s<<schwa>>r bayl-m<<schwa>>nt). [Law French] Hist. An action to recover property that the defendant acquired by bailment but refuses to return.

DETINUIT

detinuit (di-tin-yoo-it). [Latin] He has detained. • An action is said to be in the detinuit when the plaintiff finally recovers possession of the property claimed under a writ of replevin.

DETOUR

detour,n. Torts. An employee's minor deviation from the employer's business for personal reasons. • Because a detour falls within the scope of employment, the employer is still vicariously liable for the employee's actions. Cf. FROLIC. [Cases: Master and Servant 302(6); Workers' Compensation 666. C.J.S. Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 221–222; Workmen's Compensation § 399.]

DETOURNEMENT

detournement (di-tuurn-m<<schwa>>nt), n. An employee's misappropriation of the employer's funds.

DE TRANSGRESSIONE, AD AUDIENDUM ET TERMINANDUM

de transgressionem, ad audiendum et terminandum (dee trans-gresh-ee-oh-nee, ad aw-dee-en-d<<schwa>>m et t<<schwa>>r-mi-nan-d<<schwa>>m), n.[Law Latin "of trespass, for determining and hearing a misdemeanor"] Hist. A commission for hearing and determining an outrage or misdemeanor.

DETRIMENT

detriment. 1. Any loss or harm suffered by a person or property. 2.Contracts. The relinquishment of some legal right that a promisee would have otherwise been entitled to exercise. — Also termed legal detriment. Cf. BENEFIT(2).

"A promise or an act may be a detriment although on balance the promisor is making a good bargain. Thus a promise to pay £10,000 for a Rolls Royce worth £12,000, is none the less a detriment, and a good consideration for a promise to deliver the car." P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 101 (3d ed. 1981).

detriment to a promisee.Contracts. Consideration offered by a promisee to a promisor, esp. in a unilateral contract. [Cases: Contracts 52. C.J.S. Contracts § 90.]

DETRIMENTAL RELIANCE

marriage”] A second marriage after the death of or divorce from the first spouse, or after an annulment of a first marriage. — Also termed digama; digamy.

DE UXORE RAPTA ET ABDUCTA

de uxore rapta et abducta (dee <<schwa>>k-sor-ee rap-t<<schwa>> et ab-d<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>), n.[Law Latin “of seizing and carrying away a man's wife”] Hist. A writ of trespass for a man whose wife had been raped and carried away.

DEVADIATUS

devadiatus (di-vad-ee-ay-t<<schwa>>s), n.[Law Latin] Hist. A defendant without a surety. — Also termed divadiatus.

DEVALUATION

devaluation, n. The reduction in the value of one currency in relation to another currency. Cf. REVALUATION. — devalue, vb.

DEVASTATION

devastation. 1. An executor's squandering or mismanagement of the deceased's estate. 2. An act of destruction. 3. WASTE(1).

DEVASTAVERUNT

devastaverunt (di-vas-t<<schwa>>-veer-<<schwa>>nt). [Latin pl. of devastavit “he (or she) has wasted”] They have wasted. • This word usu. referred to both an executor's waste of a decedent's property and the action against the executor for that waste.

DEVASTAVIT

devastavit (dev-<<schwa>>-stay-vit), n.[Latin “he (or she) has wasted”] A personal representative's failure to administer a decedent's estate promptly and properly, esp. by spending extravagantly or misapplying assets. • A personal representative who commits waste in this way becomes personally liable to those having claims on the assets, such as creditors and beneficiaries.

DE VASTO

de vasto (dee vas-toh), n.[Law Latin “of waste”] A writ allowing a reversioner or remainderman to compel a tenant for life or for years to appear and answer for the waste and resulting damage to the plaintiff's inheritance. See WASTE (1).

DEVELOPED WATER

developed water. See WATER.

DEVELOPING COUNTRY

developing country. Int'l law. A country that is not as economically or politically advanced as the main industrial powers. • Developing countries are located mostly in Africa, Asia, Eastern Europe, the Middle East, and Latin and South America. — Also termed developing state; underdeveloped country; less-developed country; Third World country.

“Pertinent terminology has undergone extensive changes in the past 40 years. At the very start, before the category found its way into official texts, economic and political writings referred mainly to ‘poor’ or ‘backward’ countries. In the late 1940s, the term ‘underdeveloped countries’ came into common usage in economic literature and in the jargon of international organizations. It was replaced in the 1950s by the term ‘less developed countries,’ for which the current ‘developing countries’ was eventually substituted. These terms are essentially interchangeable as they refer to the same group and kind of countries. However, variations in the use of the term reflect significant changes in the perception of the central issue, namely, economic development, as well as responses to justified sensitivities on the part of the countries principally concerned.” A.A. Fatouros, “Developing States,” in 1 Encyclopedia of Public International Law 1017 (1992).

DEVELOPMENT

development. 1. A human-created change to improved or unimproved real estate, including buildings or other structures, mining, dredging, filing, grading, paving, excavating, and drilling. 2. An activity, action, or alteration that changes undeveloped property into developed property.

DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITY

DE VENTRE INSPICIENDO

de ventre inspiciendo (dee ven-tree in-spish-ee-en-doh), n. [Law Latin “of (or for) inspecting the belly”] 1. A writ allowing a presumptive heir to summon a jury of matrons to verify the pregnancy of a widow suspected of feigning the pregnancy to produce a supposed heir. — Also termed ad ventrem inspiciendum. See venire facias tot matronas under VENIRE FACIAS.

“And this gives occasion to a proceeding at common law, where a widow is suspected to feign herself with child, in order to produce a supposititious heir to the estate: an attempt which the rigor of the Gothic constitutions esteemed equivalent to the most atrocious theft, and therefore punished with death. In this case with us the heir presumptive may have a writ de ventre inspiciendo to examine whether she be with child, or not ... and, if the widow be upon due examination found not pregnant, any issue she may afterwards produce, though within nine months, will be bastard.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 444 (1765).

2. A writ providing a temporary stay of execution if a jury of matrons determines that a woman scheduled for execution and claiming pregnancy is “quick with child.” • The execution would be postponed until after the birth, but if the woman became pregnant a second time before execution, she had no remedy. — Sometimes shortened to ventre inspiciendo. — Also spelled de ventre in spiciendo.

DE VERBO IN VERBUM

de verbo in verbum (dee v<<schwa>>r-boh in v<<schwa>>r-b<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] Word for word.

DEVEST

DEVIANCE

deviance, n. The quality or state of departing from established norms, esp. in social customs. — deviate (dee-vee-ayt), vb. — deviant, adj. & n. — deviate (dee-vee-<<schwa>>t), n.

DEVIATION

deviation. 1. Generally, a change from a customary or agreed-on course of action. 2. Employment law. A departure from one's course of employment to tend to a personal matter. • A deviation from the course of employment may be an issue in disputes about workers' compensation or about the employer's tort liability to third parties based on the employee's actions. See COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT. Cf. FROLIC. 3. Insurance. A departure by an insured party from a routine course of action, resulting in increased risk of some loss that the insured is indemnified against. [Cases: Insurance 3059. C.J.S. Insurance § 768.] 4. Maritime law. A departure from the terms expressed in a bill of lading or other transportation contract.

“For both geographic deviations and quasi-deviations, the contractual voyage is the benchmark against which the carrier's performance is to be measured. If the parties agreed to an indirect route, the carrier commits no deviation in following it; if the parties agreed to deck carriage, the carrier may stow the cargo on deck. All deviations ‘have one common, indispensable element — a violation of the terms of the bill of lading.’ ” Michael F. Sturley, “Deviation Defined,” in 2A Benedict on Admiralty 122 (7th rev. ed. 2002) (quoting Rockwell Int'l Corp. v. M/V Incotrans Spirit, 707 F.Supp. 272, 273 (S.D. Tex. 1989), aff'd, 998 F.2d 316 (5th Cir. 1993)).

quasi-deviation. A deviation from an agreed-on shipping term other than a deviation in course or destination (e.g., an unreasonable delay or the unauthorized carriage of cargo on deck).

reasonable deviation. A deviation that is justified by circumstances. • If a deviation is reasonable, the carrier does not lose its usual limitations and exemptions under the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act.

unreasonable deviation. A deviation that is not justified by circumstances. • An unreasonable deviation causes the carrier to lose the benefit of its usual limitations and exemptions under the

---

 Carriage of Goods by Sea Act.

DEVIATION DOCTRINE

deviation doctrine. 1. A principle allowing variation from a term of a will or trust to avoid defeating the document's purpose. 2. A principle allowing an agent's activity to vary slightly from the scope of the principal's permission. 3. Maritime law. The rule that a carrier loses the benefit of its limitations and exemptions under the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act if a deviation from the terms of the bill of lading is unreasonable, but does not if it is reasonable. [Cases: Insurance 3059. C.J.S. Insurance § 768.]

DEVIATION-WELL SURVEY

deviation-well survey. An examination to determine whether a well is bottomed under another person's land.

DEVICE

device. 1. Patents. A mechanical invention, as differentiated in patent law from a chemical discovery. • A device may be an apparatus or an article of manufacture. — Also termed machine. [Cases: Patents 11. C.J.S. Patents §§ 20, 25.] 2. A scheme to trick or deceive; a stratagem or artifice, as in the law relating to fraud. [Cases: Fraud 3.]

DE VICINETO

de vicineto (dee vi-sin-<<schwa>>-toh or -sI-n*<<schwa>>*-toh). [Law Latin] From a vicinage; from a neighborhood. • This term was generally used in reference to a jury pool. See DE CORPORE COMITATUS.

DE VI LAICA AMOVENDA

de vi laica amovenda (dee vI lay-<<schwa>>-k*<<schwa>>* ay-moh-ven-d*<<schwa>>*), n. [Law Latin “of removing a lay force”] Hist. A writ allowing a parson claiming rights to a church to order a sheriff to remove a group of laymen who, with another parson, had taken control of the church and prevented the new parson from entering.

DEVILING

deviling (dev-<<schwa>>-ling). 1. The act of a barrister's handing a brief over to another to handle a case. 2. The practice of a junior barrister (known as a “devil”) who drafts pleadings or other documents for a senior barrister who approves them, signs them, and is ultimately responsible for the work. — Also spelled devilling.

DEVIL ON THE NECK

devil on the neck. Hist. A torture device made of irons that fastened to a person's neck and legs and then wrenched together to either gradually or quickly break the person's back. • It was often used to coerce confessions.

DEVISABLE

devisable,adj.1. Capable of being bequeathed by a will. 2. Capable of being invented. 3. Feigned.

DEVISAVIT VEL NON

devisavit vel non (dev-<<schwa>>-say-vit [or -zay-vit] vel non), n. [Law Latin “he (or she) devises or not”] Hist. An issue directed from a chancery court to a court of law to determine the validity of a will that has been contested, as by an allegation of fraud or testamentary incapacity. See VEL NON .

DEVISE

devise (di-vIz), n. 1. The act of giving property by will. • Although this term traditionally referred to gifts of real property — and in British usage the term is still confined to real property — in American usage the term has been considerably broadened. In both the Restatement of Property and the Uniform Probate Code, a disposition of any property by will is a devise. In the United States today, it is pedantry to insist that the noun devise be restricted to real property. [Cases: Wills 1. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1, 3, 174.] 2. The provision in a will containing such a gift. 3. Property disposed of in a will. 4. A will disposing of property. Cf. TESTAMENT(1). Cf. BEQUEST; LEGACY. — devise,vb.

alternative devise.A devise that, under the terms of the will, is designed to displace another devise if one or more specified events occur. — Also termed secondary devise. See younger-generation devise.

conditional devise.A devise that depends on the occurrence of some uncertain event. [Cases: Wills 639–668. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1380–1424.]

demonstrative devise.A devise, usu. of a specific amount of money or quantity of property, that is primarily payable from a designated source, but that may be payable from the estate's general assets if the designated property is insufficient. See Restatement (Third) of Property: Wills and Other Donative Transfers § 5.1 (1999). Cf. pecuniary devise.

executory devise.An interest in land, created by will, that takes effect in the future and depends on a future contingency; a limitation, by will, of a future estate or interest in land when the limitation cannot, consistently with legal rules, take effect as a remainder. • An executory devise, which is a type of conditional limitation, differs from a remainder in three ways: (1) it needs no particular estate to support it, (2) with it a fee simple or lesser estate can be limited after a fee simple, and (3) with it a remainder can be limited in a chattel interest after a particular estate for life is created in that interest. See conditional limitation under LIMITATION. [Cases: Wills 7. C.J.S. Wills §§ 58, 63–64, 68.]

“The reason of the institution of the executory devise was to support the will of the testator; for when it was evident that he intended a contingent remainder, and when it could not operate as such by the rules of law, the limitation was then, out of indulgence to wills, held to be good as an executory devise. They are not mere possibilities, but certain and substantial interests and estates, and are put under such restraints only as have been deemed requisite to prevent the mischiefs of perpetuities, or the existence of estates that were unalienable.” 4 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law *264 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

failed devise. See lapsed devise.

general devise. 1. A devise, usu. of a specific amount of money or quantity of property, that is payable from the estate's general assets. See Restatement (Third) of Property: Wills and Other Donative Transfers § 5.1 (1999). 2. A devise that passes the testator's lands without specifically enumerating or describing them. [Cases: Wills 583. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1090, 1105.]

lapsed devise. A devise that fails because the devisor outlives the named recipient. — Also termed failed devise; failed gift.

pecuniary devise. A demonstrative devise consisting of money. Cf. demonstrative devise.

primary devise. A devise to the first person named as taker. • For example, a devise of “Blackacre to A, but if A does not survive me then to B” names A as the recipient of the primary devise and B as the recipient of the secondary or alternative devise.

residuary devise. A devise of the remainder of the testator's property left after other specific devises are taken. [Cases: Wills 586. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1176–1179, 1184.]

secondary devise. See alternative devise.

specific devise. A devise that passes a particular piece of property. [Cases: Wills 751. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1662, 1667–1677, 1679–1683.]

younger-generation devise. An alternative devise to a descendant of the recipient of a primary devise. Unif. Probate Code § 2–603. • A devise of “Blackacre to A, but if A does not survive me then to A's child B” creates a younger-generation devise in A's descendant, B. See alternative devise.

devise, vb. To give (property) by will.

“The modern convention which sets apart ‘devise’ for ‘realty’ and ‘bequeath’ for ‘personalty’ is modern; in the middle ages, the English word ... is the equivalent of the French word.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 338 (2d ed. 1899).

DEVISEE

devisee (dev-<<schwa>>-zee or di-vi-zee). A recipient of property by will. Cf. LEGATEE.

first devisee. The first devisee designated to receive an estate under a will.

next devisee. The devisee who receives the remainder of an estate in tail, as distinguished from the first devisee. See FEE TAIL. [Cases: Wills 604. C.J.S. Wills § 1258.]

residuary devisee. The person named in a will who takes the testator's property that remains after the other devises.

DEVISER

deviser. One who invents or contrives <the deviser of these patents>.

DEVISOR

devisor. One who disposes of property (usu. real property) in a will. [Cases: Wills 1. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1, 3, 174.]

DEVOIR

devoir (d<<schwa>>-vwahrordev-wahr).Hist. A duty; a tax. — Also spelled devoire.

“Devoire is as much as to say a duty. It is used in the statute of 2 R. 2, cap. 3, where it is provided, that all the western merchants, being of the king's amity, shall pay all manner of customs and subsidies, and other devoire of Calais.” Termes de la Ley 168 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

DEVOLUTION

devolution (dev-<<schwa>>-loo-sh<<schwa>>n), n. The act or an instance of transferring one's rights, duties, or powers to another; the passing of such rights, duties, or powers by transfer or succession <the federal government's devolution of police power to the states>. — devolutionary,adj. — devolutionist,n.

DEVY

devy (d<<schwa>>-vI), vb.[Law French] To die.

DE WARRANTIA CHARTAE

de warrantia chartae (dee w<<schwa>>-ran-shee-<<schwa>> kahr-tee), n. [Law Latin “of a warranty of charter”] Hist. A writ allowing a tenant enfeoffed with a warranty, who was impleaded in an assize or other action in which the tenant could not call upon the warranty, to compel the feoffor to assist the tenant with a plea or defense, or else to pay damages and the value of the land, if it is recovered against the tenant.

“This we still make use of in the form of common recoveries, which are grounded on a writ of entry; a species of action that we may remember relies chiefly on the weakness of the tenant's title, who therefore vouches another person to warrant it .... In assises indeed, where the principal question is whether the demandant or his ancestors were or were not in possession till the ouster happened, and the title of the tenant is little (if at all) discussed, there no voucher is allowed; but the tenant may bring a writ of warrantia chartae against the warrantor, to compel him to assist him with a good plea or defence, or else to render damages and the value of the land, if recovered against the tenant.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 299 (1768).

DE WARRANTIA DIEI

de warrantia diei (dee w<<schwa>>-ran-shee-<<schwa>> dI-ee-I), n. [Law Latin “of warranty of day”] Hist. A writ ordering a judge not to default a party for nonappearance because the Crown warranted that the party was busy in its service.

DEXTRARIUS

DIALECTIC

dialectic (dī-lek-tik), n.1. A school of logic that teaches critical examination of the truth of an opinion, esp. by discussion or debate. • The method was applied by ancient philosophers, such as Plato and Socrates, primarily in the context of conversational discussions involving questions and answers, and also by more modern philosophers, such as Immanuel Kant, who viewed it as a theory of fallacies, and G.W.F. Hegel, who applied the term to his philosophy proceeding from thesis, to antithesis, to synthesis. 2. An argument made by critically examining logical consequences. 3. A logical debate. 4. A disputant; a debater. Pl. dialectics.

DIALLAGA

diallage (dī-al-jee), n.[fr. Greek diallag “interchange”] A rhetorical figure of speech in which arguments are placed in several points of view, and then brought to bear on one point.

DIALOGUS DE SCACCARIO

Dialogus de Scaccario (dī-al-g-s dee sk-kair-ee-oh), n.[Law Latin “a dialogue of or about the Exchequer”] Hist. A treatise, written during the reign of Henry II, on the Court of Exchequer, set up in imaginary dialogue form between a master and a disciple. • Although some originally attributed the work to Gervase of Tilbury, it was probably written by Richard Fitz Nigel, the bishop of London under Richard I, and the former Treasurer of the Exchequer.

“The Dialogus de Scaccario is an anonymous book, but there can be little doubt that we are right in ascribing it to Richard Fitz Neal: that is to say, to Richard the son of that Nigel, bishop of Ely .... The book stands out as an unique book in the history of medieval England, perhaps in the history of medieval Europe. A high officer of state, the trusted counsellor of a powerful king, undertakes to explain to all whom it may concern the machinery of government. He will not deal in generalities, he will condescend to minute details. Perhaps the book was not meant for the general public so much as for the numerous clerks who were learning their business in the exchequer, but still that such a book should be written, is one of the wonderful things of Henry's wonderful reign.” 1 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 161–62 (2d ed. 1898).

DIANATIC

dianatic (dī-nat-ik). See DIANOETIC.

DIANOETIC

dianoetic (dī-noh-et-ik), n.[Greek dianoetikos, fr. dia- “through” + noein “to revolve in the mind”] Archaic. A form of logical reasoning that proceeds from one subject to another. — Also termed (erroneously) dianatic.

DIARCHY

diarchy. [fr. Greek dy “two” + archein “rule”] A government jointly ruled by two people, such as William and Mary of England. — Also termed duarchy; dyarchy.

“Dyarchy. A term applied by Mommsen to the Roman principate ... a period in which he held that sovereignty was shared between the princes and the senate. The term has also been given to a system of government, promoted as a constitutional reform in India by Montagu and Chelmsford and introduced by the Government of India Act, 1919. It marked the introduction of democracy into the executive of the British administration of India by dividing the provincial executives into authoritarian and popularly responsible sections composed respectively of councillors appointed by the Crown and ministers appointed by the governor and responsible to the provincial legislative councils .... The system ended when full provincial autonomy was granted in 1935.” David M. Walker, The Oxford Companion to Law 386 (1980).

DIARIUM

diarium (dI-air-ee-<<schwa>>m), n.[fr. Latin dies “day”] Roman law. An allowance (usu. of food) needed for a day; a daily allowance of food or pay. Pl. diaria (dI-air-ee-<<schwa>>).

DIATIM

diatim (dI-ay-t<<schwa>>m). [fr. Latin dies “day”] Every day; daily.

DICA

dica (dI-k<<schwa>>), n.[Law Latin] An account tally. See TALLY(1).

DICAST

dicast (dI-kast ordik-ast), n.[Greek dikastes] Hist. An ancient Greek officer sitting as both judge and juror. • Each dicast was generally a free citizen over the age of 30. The dicasts sat together in groups of 100 to 500, according to each case's importance, and decided cases by a majority.

DICIS CAUSA

dicis causa (dI-sis kaw-z<<schwa>>). [Latin] Roman law. For form's sake; on the surface. • The phrase appeared in reference to transactions completed in a certain form to conceal their true purpose.

DICTATE

dictate, vb. 1. To pronounce orally for transcription. 2. To order; to command authoritatively.

DICTATION

dictation. 1. The act of speaking words to be transcribed. 2. The words so transcribed.

DICTATOR

dictator. 1. Roman law. An absolute ruler appointed in an emergency for a term of six months and subject to reappointment.

“In special emergencies, particularly in times of grave crisis, either consul might appoint a dictator who exercised supreme authority, but not beyond six months, unless reappointed. This was, in effect, a temporary reversion to monarchy.” R.W. Lee, The Elements of Roman Law 14 (4th ed. 1956).

2. A person, esp. a ruler, with absolute authority.

DICTUM

dictum (dik-t<<schwa>>m), n.1. A statement of opinion or belief considered authoritative because of the dignity of the person making it. 2. A familiar rule; a maxim. 3. OBITER DICTUM. Pl. dicta. [Cases: Courts 92.C.J.S. Courts §§ 142–143.]

“As a dictum is by definition no part of the doctrine of the decision, and as the citing of it as a part of the doctrine is almost certain to bring upon a brief maker adverse comment, lawyers are accustomed to speak of a dictum rather slightly, and sometimes they go so far as to intimate a belief that the pronouncing of a dictum is the doing of a wrong. Yet it must not be forgotten that dicta are frequently, and indeed usually, correct, and that to give an occasional illustration, or to say that the doctrine of the case would not apply to some case of an hypothetical nature, or to trace the history of a doctrine, even though it be conceded, as it must, that such passages are not essential to the deciding of the very case, is often extremely useful to the profession.” William M. Lile et al., Brief Making and the Use of Law Books 307 (3d ed. 1914).

dictum proprium (dik-t<<schwa>>m proh-pree-<<schwa>>m). A personal or individual dictum that is given by the judge who delivers an opinion but that is not necessarily concurred in by the whole court and is not essential to the disposition. — Also termed (loosely) dictum propria.

gratis dictum (gray-tis dik-t<<schwa>>m). 1. A voluntary statement; an assertion that a person makes without being obligated to do so. 2. A court's stating of a legal principle more broadly than is necessary to decide the case. 3. A court's discussion of points or questions not raised by the record or its suggestion of rules not applicable in the case at bar.

judicial dictum. An opinion by a court on a question that is directly involved, briefed, and argued by counsel, and even passed on by the court, but that is not essential to the decision. Cf. OBITER DICTUM.

obiter dictum. See OBITER DICTUM.

simplex dictum (sim-pleks dik-t<<schwa>>m). An unproved or dogmatic statement. See IPSE DIXIT.

DICTUM DE KENILWORTH

dictum de Kenilworth (dik-t<<schwa>>m dee ken-<<schwa>>l-w<<schwa>>rth), n. [Law Latin “edict of Kenilworth”] Hist. A declaration of an agreement between Edward I and the barons who had opposed him under the leadership of Simon de Montfort. • The agreement, which concerned rent on the lands forfeited in the rebellion, was so called because it was made at Kenilworth castle in Warwickshire in A.D. 1266. It was published in the Statutes of the Realm and 52 Hen. 3.

DICTION PAGE

dictum page. See pinpoint citation under CITATION(3).

DICTION PROPRIA

dictum propria. See dictum proprium under DICTUM.

DIEBUS FERIATIS

diebus feriatis (dI-<<schwa>>-b*<<schwa>>*s feer-ee-ay-tis). [Latin] Hist. On holidays.

DIEI DICTIO

diei dictio (dI-ee-Idik-shee-oh). [Latin “appointing a day”] Roman law. 1. A magistrate's notice summoning the accused to appear on a fixed day for trial. 2. The service of a summons. — Also written diei dictio; diem dicere.

DIEM CLAUSIT EXTREMUM

diem clausit extremum (dI-*<<schwa>>m klaw-zit ek-stree-m<<schwa>>*m), n. [Law Latin “he closed his last day”] Hist. 1. A chancery writ, founded on the statute of Marlbury, ordering the county escheator, after the death of a chief tenant of the Crown, to summon a jury to determine the amount and value of land owned by the chief tenant, to determine the next heir, and to reclaim the property for the Crown. • It was a type of inquisition post mortem.

“Diem clausit extremum is a writ that lies where the king's tenant that holds in chief, dies; then this writ shall be directed to the excheator, to inquire of what estate he was seised, who is next heir, and his age, and of the certainty and value of the land, and of whom it is holden; and the inquisition shall be returned into the chancery, which is commonly called the office after the death of that person.” Termes de la Ley 169 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

2. An Exchequer writ ordering a sheriff to summon a jury to investigate a Crown debtor's place of death and amount of property owned, and to levy the property of the deceased's heirs and executors. • It was repealed by the Crown Proceedings Act of 1947. “And there is another writ of diem clausit extremum awarded out of the exchequer, after the death of an accomptant or debtor of his majesty, to levy the debt of his heir, executor, administrator's lands or goods.” Termes de la Ley 169 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

DIES

dies (dI-eez), n. [Latin] A day; days. Pl. dies.

dies ad quem (dI-eez ad kwem), n. [Latin “the day to which”] Civil law. An ending date for a transaction; the ending date for computing time, such as the day on which interest no longer accrues.

dies amoris (dI-eez <<schwa>>-mor-is), n.[Law Latin] Hist. A day of favor; esp., a day set by the court for the defendant to make an appearance. • This was usu. the fourth day of the term, which was the first day the court normally sat for business. In addition, the defendant usu. had three days of grace from the summons to appear, but an appearance on the fourth day quarto die post (“on the fourth day thereafter”) was usu. sufficient.

dies a quo (dI-eez ay kwoh), n.[Latin “the day from which”] Civil law. A transaction's commencement date; the date from which to compute time, such as a day when interest begins to accrue. La. Civ. Code art. 1784.

dies cedit (dI-eez see-dit). [Latin “the time begins to run”] Roman & Scots law. The day on which an interest, esp. a legacy, vests; the day on which a conditional obligation becomes due. • An interest usu., but not always, vested on the day of the testator's death. — Also termed dies cedens. Cf. dies venit.

“A legacy was due, or became a valid right, either at the death of the testator or the occurrence of a condition precedent. This vesting of the property or the accruing of an obligation determined the content and nature of the interests involved. What the legatary got was discovered by examining what the legacy actually carried with it on the day when it became vested. To express the fact that the legacy had become vested, the technical expression dies cedit was used.” Max Radin, Handbook of Roman Law 434–35 (1927).

dies comitiales (dI-eez k<<schwa>>-mish-ee-ay-leez). [Latin] Roman law. The 190 days in the year when an election could be held or the people could assemble as a legislative body. • The praetors could not hold court while a legislative assembly was in session.

dies communes in banco (dI-eez k<<schwa>>-myoo-nee in bang-koh), n.[Law Latin “common days before the bench”] 1. Regular appearance dates in court. — Also termed common-return days. 2. An enactment printed under the Statutes of Henry III, regulating continuances and writ return dates.

dies datus (dI-eez day-t<<schwa>>s), n.[Law Latin “a given day”] A continuance, esp. for a defendant before a declaration is filed; a time of respite in a case. • A continuance granted after the filing of the declaration is called an imparlance. See IMPARLANCE.

dies datus in banco (dI-eez day-t<<schwa>>s in bang-koh), n.[Law Latin] A day given before the bench, as distinguished from a day at nisi prius.

dies datus partibus (dI-eez day-t<<schwa>>s pahr-t<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>s), n.[Law Latin “a day given to the parties”] A continuance; an adjournment.

dies datus prece partium (dI-eez day-t<<schwa>>s pree-see pahr-shee-<<schwa>>m), n.[Law Latin “a day given at the prayer of the parties”] A day given at the parties' request.

dies Dominicus (dI-eez d<<schwa>>-min-i-k<<schwa>>s), n.[Latin] The Lord's day; Sunday.

dies excrescens (dI-eez ek-skree-s<<schwa>>nz), n.[Law Latin “the increasing day”] The additional day in a leap year.

dies fasti (dI-eez fas-tI). [Latin] Roman law. A day when justice could be administered; a day when the praetor could officially pronounce the three words “do,” “dico,” and “addico.” — Also called triverbial days. Cf. NEFASTUS.

dies feriati (dI-eez fer-ee-ay-tI), n.[Latin] Roman & civil law. A holiday; holidays.

dies gratiae (dI-eez gray-shee-ee), n.[fr. Law French jour de grace] Hist. A day of grace, usu. granted to the plaintiff.

dies in banco. See DAYS IN BANK.

dies intercesi (dI-eez in-t<<schwa>>r-sI-zI). [Latin “divided days”] Roman law. A day when the courts were open for only part of the day.

dies iudicis (dI-eez juu-rid-i-k<<schwa>>s), n.[Latin] A day when justice can be administered. • This term was derived from the civil-law term dies fasti. See dies fasti.

dies legitimus (dI-eez l<<schwa>>-jit-i-m<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Roman law. A lawful day; a law day.

dies marchiae (dI-eez mahr-kee-ee), n.[Law Latin “a day of the march”] Hist. In the reign of Richard II, the annual day set aside for the wardens of the English and Scottish borders to hold peace talks and resolve differences.

dies nefasti (dI-eez nee-fas-tI), n. See NEFASTUS; dies non iudicis.

dies non (dI-eez non). See dies non iudicis.

dies non iudicis (dI-eez non juu-rid-i-k<<schwa>>s), n.[Law Latin “a day not juridical”] A day exempt from court proceedings, such as a holiday or a Sunday. — Often shortened to dies non.

dies pacis (dI-eez pay-sis), n.[Law Latin “day of peace”] Hist. A day of peace. • The days were originally divided into two categories: dies pacis ecclesiae (“a day of the peace of the church”) and dies pacis regis (“a day of the Crown's peace”).

dies religiosi (dI-eez ri-lij-ee-oh-sI). [Latin] Roman law. Religious days on which it was unlawful to transact legal or political business.

dies solaris (dI-eez s<<schwa>>-lair-is), n.[Law Latin “a solar day”] See solar day under DAY.

dies solis (dI-eez soh-lis). [Latin “day of the sun”] Roman law. Sunday.

dies utiles (dI-eez yoo-t<<schwa>>-leez). [Latin “available days”] Roman law. A day when something can be legally done, such as an application to the praetor to claim an inheritance.

dies venit (dI-eez vee-nit). [Latin “the day has come”] Roman & Scots law. The date when an interest is both vested and actionable. • It is usu. the day when the heir accepts the inheritance and a legatee can claim payment of a legacy. — Also termed dies veniens. Cf. dies cedit.

dies votorum (dI-eez voh-tor-*<<schwa>>*m), n.[Latin “a day of vows”] A wedding day.

DIET

diet. 1. A regimen, esp. of food. 2. A governing body's meeting day for legislative, political, or religious purposes; specif., a national assembly of various European countries, such as the diet of the German empire, which was summoned by the emperor regularly to perform various functions, including levying taxes, enacting laws, and declaring war. 3.Scots law. A day to perform a duty, such as a court sitting day, an appearance day, and a criminal pleading or trial day. — Also spelled dyet.

“In procedure on indictment there are two diets, the pleading diet, when the accused is called to plead, and the trial diet when, if he has pled not guilty, he is tried.” David M. Walker, The Oxford Companion to Law 357 (1980).

DIETA

dieta (dI-ee-t*<<schwa>>*), n.[fr. Latin dies “day”] Hist. 1.A day's journey. 2. A day's work. 3. A day's expenses.

DIEU ET MON DROIT

Dieu et mon droit (dyuu ay mawndrwah). [French “God and my right”] The motto of the royal arms of England. • It was first used by Richard I and, with the exception of Elizabeth I, was continually used from Edward III to William III, who used the motto je maintiendrey. Queen Anne used Elizabeth I's motto, semper eadem, but Dieu et mon droit has been used since her death.

DIEU SON ACTE

Dieu son acte (dyuu sawnakt), n.[Law Latin “an act of God”] Hist. An act of God, beyond human control.

DIFFACERE

diffacere (di-fay-s<<schwa>>-ree), vb.[fr. Old French deffacer] Hist. To deface; to mutilate. — Also termed disfacere; defacere.

DIFFERENT-DEPARTMENT RULE

different-department rule. A doctrine holding that people who work for the same employer are not fellow servants if they do not do the same work or do not work in the same department. • This rule, which creates an exception to the fellow-servant doctrine, has been rejected by many jurisdictions. See FELLOW-SERVANT DOCTRINE E; fellow servant under SERVANT.

DIFFERENTIAL PRICING

differential pricing. The setting of the price of a product or service differently for different customers. See PRICE DISCRIMINATION.

DIFFORCIARE

difforciare (di-for-shee-air-ee), vb.[Law Latin “to deny”] Hist. To keep (something) from someone; to deny (something) to someone.

DIGAMY

digamy (dig-<<schwa>>-mee). See DEUTEROGAMY.

DIGEST

digest, n. 1. An index of legal propositions showing which cases support each proposition; a collection of summaries of reported cases, arranged by subject and subdivided by jurisdiction and court. • The chief purpose of a digest is to make the contents of reports available and to separate, from the great mass of caselaw, those cases bearing on some specific point. The American Digest System covers the decisions of all American courts of last resort, state and federal, from 1658 to present. — Abbr. D.; Dig.

“An important and numerous class of books included in the general division designated as books of secondary authority is the group known by the generic name of ‘Digests.’ A Digest is essentially an index to Cases. But it is much more than an ordinary index, for it indicates the holdings and (in some, though not all, publications) the facts of each case. Any particular digest is a summary of the case law coming within its scope, and its units are summaries of particular points of particular cases. What the syllabi of a reported case are to that case, a digest is to many cases. Were a digest simply a collection of citations to cases, arranged logically according to the contents of such cases, it would be a search book; but, being a summary of the case law, it is a book of secondary authority.” William M. Lile et al., Brief Making and the Use of Law Books 68 (3d ed. 1914).

2.Civil law. (cap.) A compilation and systematic statement of the various areas of law; chiefly, the Pandects of Justinian in 50 books, known as the Digest. — Also termed digesta; digests. See PANDECT(2).

DIGITAL AGENDA

DIGNITARY

dignitary, adj. Of or relating to one's interest in personal dignity, as contrasted with one's interest in freedom from physical injury and property damage. • Tort actions that compensate a plaintiff for a dignitary insult rather than physical injury or property damage include false-light privacy and negligent infliction of emotional distress.

dignitary, n. 1. A person who holds a high rank or honor. 2. Eccles. law. A person who, by virtue of holding a superior office, stands above ordinary priests and canons.

DIGNITARY TORT

dignitary tort. See TORT.

DIGNITY

dignity, n. 1. The state of being noble; the state of being dignified. 2. An elevated title or position. 3. A person holding an elevated title; a dignitary. 4. A right to hold a title of nobility, which may be hereditary or for life.

“Dignities may be hereditary, such as peerages ..., or for life, such as life peerages and knighthoods. The dignities of peerages and baronetcies are created by writ or letters patent, that of knighthood by dubbing as knight. A dignity of inheritance may also exist by prescription. Dignities of inheritance are incorporeal hereditaments having been originally annexed to the possession of certain lands or created by a grant of those lands and are generally limited to the grantee and his heirs or his heirs of the body. If heirs are not mentioned, the grantee holds for life only. The heirs are determined by the rules which governed the descent of land prior to 1926.” David M. Walker, The Oxford Companion to Law 358 (1980).

DIJUDICATION

dijudication (dī-joo-d<<schwa>>-kay-sh<<schwa>>n). Archaic. A judicial determination.

DILAPIDATION

dilapidation. (often pl.) Damage to a building resulting from acts of either commission or omission. • A dilapidation may give rise to liability if it constitutes an act of waste, a breach of contract, or a statutory violation.

DILAPIDATIONS, ACTION FOR

dilapidations, action for (d<<schwa>>-lap-<<schwa>>-day-sh<<schwa>>nz).Hist. An action brought by a new incumbent of a benefice for damages rising from the disrepair of the houses or buildings on the benefice. • The incumbent — whether of a rectory, a vicarage, or a chapel — sued the executors or administrators of the incumbent's deceased predecessor (who was not liable for the disrepairs while living). The incumbent of a benefice was bound to maintain the parsonage, farm buildings, and chancel in good and substantial repair, restoring and rebuilding when necessary, according to the original plan. But the incumbent did not have to supply or maintain anything in the nature of ornament.

DILATORY

DILECTO ET FIDELI

dilecto et fideli (di-lek-toh et fi-dee-II). [Law Latin] To his beloved and faithful. • This phrase was used in various writs. — Abbr. di. et fi.

DILIGENCE

diligence. 1. A continual effort to accomplish something. 2. Care; caution; the attention and care required from a person in a given situation. • The Roman-law equivalent is diligentia. See DILIGENTIA.

“Care, or the absence of negligentia, is diligentia. The use of the word diligence in this sense is obsolete in modern English, though it is still retained as an archaism of legal diction. In ordinary usage, diligence is opposed to idleness, not to carelessness.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 393 n. (i) (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

common diligence. 1. See due diligence (1).2. See ordinary diligence.

due diligence. 1. The diligence reasonably expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a person who seeks to satisfy a legal requirement or to discharge an obligation. — Also termed reasonable diligence; common diligence. 2. Corporations & securities. A prospective buyer's or broker's investigation and analysis of a target company, a piece of property, or a newly issued security. • A failure to exercise due diligence may sometimes result in liability, as when a broker recommends a security without first investigating it adequately. [Cases: Securities Regulation 25.21(4), 25.62(2). C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 87, 95.] extraordinary diligence. Extreme care that a person of unusual prudence exercises to secure rights or property.

great diligence. The diligence that a very prudent person exercises in handling his or her own property like that at issue. — Also termed high diligence.

low diligence. See slight diligence.

necessary diligence. The diligence that a person is required to exercise to be legally protected.

ordinary diligence. The diligence that a person of average prudence would exercise in handling his or her own property like that at issue. — Also termed common diligence.

reasonable diligence. 1. A fair degree of diligence expected from someone of ordinary prudence under circumstances like those at issue. 2. See due diligence (1).

slight diligence. The diligence that a person of less than common prudence takes with his or her own concerns. — Also termed low diligence.

special diligence. The diligence expected from a person practicing in a particular field of specialty under circumstances like those at issue.

3. Patents. Speed and perseverance in perfecting an invention. • Diligence is one factor in deciding which of two or more independent inventors will be granted a patent: if the first inventor cannot prove reasonable diligence in reducing the invention to practice, a later inventor may take priority. [Cases: Patents 90(3). C.J.S. Patents § 125.] 4. Scots law. A court-issued warrant to compel something, such as the attendance of a witness or the enforcement of an unpaid judgment debt. 5. Scots law. Any legal process available to a creditor to seize a debtor's property to compel the debtor to answer an action for debt, to preserve the property as security for a judgment that the creditor may obtain, or to liquidate the property in satisfaction of a judgment already obtained. • Forms of diligence include adjudication, arrestment, inhibition, poiding, and sequestration for rent. Until the mid-20th century, a debtor could also be imprisoned. The term diligence is also sometimes used to denote a warrant that may be granted to compel a witness's attendance or to compel production of documents. See EXECUTION(3).

DILIGENCE AGAINST THE HERITAGE

diligence against the heritage. Scots law. A writ of execution allowing a creditor to proceed against a debtor's real property.

DILIGENT

diligent,adj. Careful; attentive; persistent in doing something.

DILIGENTIA

diligentia (dil-⟨schwa⟩-jen-shee-⟨schwa⟩), n.[Latin] Roman law. Carefulness; diligence. • The failure to exercise diligentia might make a person liable if contractually obliged to look after another's interests, or it might result in tort liability. See DILIGENCE. Cf. NEGLIGENTIA.

“The texts distinguish two standards of diligence, a higher and a lower. The higher is the diligence which the good father of a family habitually exhibits in his own affairs (diligentia exacta or exactissima — diligentia boni patrisfamilias). The lower is the diligence which the person in question exhibits in his own affairs (diligentia quam suis rebus). This may, in fact, reach a high degree of diligence or it may not. But, at least, where this standard is applied nothing extraordinary is expected. It is a concrete standard. It is enough that the person in question pursues his normal course. According to a traditional terminology, where the first standard is applied, there is said to be liability for culpa levis in abstracto — slight negligence in the abstract; in the second case there is liability for culpa levis in concreto — slight negligence in the concrete.” R.W. Lee, The Elements of Roman Law 288 (4th ed. 1956).

diligentia exactissima (dil-⟨schwa⟩-jen-shee-⟨schwa⟩ eks-ak-tis-⟨schwa⟩-m⟨schwa⟩). [Latin] Extraordinary diligence that a head of a family habitually exercises in business. — Also termed diligentia exacta; diligentia boni patrisfamilias. See extraordinary diligence under DILIGENCE.

diligentia media (dil-i-jen-shee-⟨schwa⟩ mee-dee-⟨schwa⟩). [Law Latin] Scots law. Middle level of diligence; the level of diligence that a person of ordinary prudence exercises in his or her own affairs. — Also termed diligentia quam suis rebus (dil-⟨schwa⟩-jen-shee-⟨schwa⟩ kwam s[y]oo-is ree-b⟨schwa⟩s). See ordinary diligence under DILIGENCE.

diligentia quam suis rebus. See diligentia media.

DILIGIATUS

diligiatus (d⟨schwa⟩-lij-ee-ay-t⟨schwa⟩s), n.[fr. Latin dis- “apart” + ligius “under legal protection”] A person cast out of the law's protection; an outlaw.

DILLON'S RULE

Dillon's rule. The doctrine that a unit of local government may exercise only those powers that the state expressly grants to it, the powers necessarily and fairly implied from that grant, and the powers that are indispensable to the existence of the unit of local government. • For the origins of this rule, see 1 John F. Dillon, The Law of Municipal Corporations § 89, at 115 (3d ed. 1881). [Cases: Municipal Corporations 57. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 104, 106, 108, 110–115, 117–118, 122, 137–138, 143, 145–146.]

DILUTION

dilution. 1. The act or an instance of diminishing a thing's strength or lessening its value. 2. Corporations. The reduction in the monetary value or voting power of stock by increasing the total number of outstanding shares. 3. Constitutional law. The limitation of the effectiveness of a particular group's vote by legislative reapportionment or political gerrymandering. • Such dilution violates the Equal Protection Clause. — Also termed vote dilution. [Cases: Constitutional Law 225.3(2). C.J.S. Constitutional Law § 818.] 4. Trademarks. The impairment of a famous trademark's strength, effectiveness, or distinctiveness through the use of the mark on an unrelated product, usu. blurring the trademark's distinctive character or tarnishing it with an unsavory association. • Trademark dilution may occur even when the use is not competitive and when it creates no likelihood of confusion. The elements of trademark dilution are (1) ownership of a famous mark and (2) actual dilution. But a plaintiff does not have to prove actual loss of sales or profits. Moseley v. V Secret Catalogue, Inc., 537 U.S. 418, 123 S.Ct. 1115 (2003). See BLURRING; TARNISHMENT. [Cases: Trade Regulation 366. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 79.]

A territorial unit of the church, governed by a bishop, and further divided into parishes. 3. Eccles. law. A bishop's jurisdiction. • Several dioceses together are governed by an archbishop.

DIOICHIA

dioichia (dI-oy-kee-<<schwa>>), n. [fr. Latin diocesis "a diocese"] A district over which a bishop exercises his spiritual functions.

DIP

DIP.abbr.DEBTOR-IN-POSSESSION.

DIPLOMA

diploma. 1. Roman law. A letter giving permission to use the imperial post. 2. Hist. A royal charter; letters patent. 3. A document that evidences or memorializes graduation from a school or society. Cf. DEGREE(6). [Cases: Schools 178. C.J.S. Schools and School Districts §§ 803–806.] 4. A document that evidences a license or privilege to practice a profession, such as medicine.

DIPLOMACY

diplomacy, n. Int'l law. 1. The art and practice of conducting negotiations between national governments.

open diplomacy. Diplomacy carried on with free access to interested observers and members of the press.

parliamentary diplomacy. The negotiations and discussions carried out in international organizations according to their rules of procedure.

secret diplomacy. Diplomacy carried on behind closed doors. — Also termed quiet diplomacy.

shuttle diplomacy. Diplomatic negotiations assisted by emissaries, who travel back and forth between negotiating countries. • In legal contexts, the term usu. refers to a similar approach used by a mediator in negotiating the settlement of a lawsuit. The mediator travels back and forth between different rooms, one of which is assigned to each side's decision-makers and counsel. The mediator relays offers and demands between the rooms and, by conferring with the parties about their positions and about the uncertainty of litigation, seeks to reach an agreed resolution of the case. The mediator does not bring the parties together in the same room.

2. Loosely, foreign policy. 3. The collective functions performed by a diplomat. — diplomatic, adj. — diplomat, n.

DIPLOMATIC POUCH

diplomatic pouch. 1. A bag containing official correspondence, documents, or articles intended exclusively for official communications of a nation with its missions, consular posts, or delegations. 2. The contents of the bag. — Also termed diplomatic bag; valise diplomatique.

DIPLOMATIC PROTECTION

diplomatic protection. Protection given by one country's representatives to a person, usu. its citizen, against another country's alleged violation of international law.

“The term diplomatic protection is not altogether precise. First, not only diplomatic agents and missions and other foreign offices may and do exercise diplomatic protection, but also, at a different level, consuls, and, although very rarely, military forces. Secondly, the term diplomatic protection does not clearly denote the boundary line to other diplomatic activities for the benefit of individuals, such as mere promotion of interests in one's own nationals in a foreign State, or friendly intercessions with foreign authorities. Thus, diplomatic or consular actions to obtain concessions or other government contracts for nationals from the receiving State, or the arrangement of legal defense for a justly imprisoned national are not diplomatic protection in our sense; they are usually neither directed against the other State nor based on a real or alleged violation of international law. All these last-mentioned activities may be called diplomatic protection only if the term is taken in a very broad sense.” William Karl Geck, “Diplomatic Protection,” in 1 Encyclopedia of Public International Law 1046 (1992).

DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS

diplomatic relations. Int'l law. The customary form of permanent contact and communication between sovereign countries. [Cases: Ambassadors and Consuls 3; International Law 10–10.2. C.J.S. Ambassadors and Consuls §§ 15–23; International Law §§ 9–12.]

DIPLOMATIC REPRESENTATION

diplomatic representation. See REPRESENTATION(5).

---

diplomatics. The science of deciphering and authenticating ancient writings. • The principles were largely developed by the Benedictine Dom Mabillon in his 1681 work entitled De re diplomatica. — Also termed diplomatic (n.).

“Diplomatics, the science derived from the study of ancient diplomas, so called from being written on two leaves, or on double tablets. The Romans used the term more specially for the letters of license to use the public conveyances provided at the different stations, and generally for public grants. Subsequently it attained a more extended signification, and in more modern times has been used as a general term for ancient imperial and ecclesiastical acts and grants, public treaties, deeds of conveyance, letters, wills, and similar instruments, drawn up in forms and marked with peculiarities varying with their dates and countries. With the revival of literature, the importance of such documents in verifying facts and establishing public and private rights led to their being brought together from the historical works and the monastic registers in which they had been copied, or, in rarer instances, from public and ecclesiastical archives where the originals were still preserved. Then arose questions of authenticity, and doubts of the so-called originals; disputants defended or condemned them; and, in order to establish principles for distinguishing the genuine from the forged, treatises were written on the whole subject of these diplomas.” 7 Encyclopaedia Britannica 220 (9th ed. 1907).

DIPLOMATIC SECURITY SERVICE

Diplomatic Security Service. A bureau of the U.S. Department of State having responsibility for protecting the Secretary of State and domestic and foreign dignitaries, as well as for investigating criminal activities such as identity-document fraud involving U.S. passports and visas. • The Service now employs some 800 special agents (members of the U.S. Foreign Service), who are located throughout the United States and in scores of embassies worldwide.

DIPTYCH

diptych (dip-tik), n. [fr. Greek diptycha “two-leaved”] 1. Roman law. Two tablets usu. made of wood or metal and tied with string through holes at the edges so that they could fold over (like a book with two leaves). • Diptychs were often used to send letters, and the text was sometimes written using a stylus, once on the inside waxed leaves and again on the outside, so that it could be read without opening the tablets. 2. Hist. Eccles. law. Tablets used by the church, esp. to register names of those making supplication, and to record births, marriages, and deaths. 3. Hist. Eccles. law. The registry of those names.

“The recitation of the name of any prelate or civil ruler in the diptychs was a recognition of his orthodoxy; its omission, the reverse. The mention of a person after death recognized him as having died in the communion of the church, and the introduction of his name into the list of saints or martyrs constituted canonization. In liturgics the diptychs are distinguished as the diptychs of the living and the diptychs of the dead, the latter including also the commemoration of the saints .... In the Western Church the use of the diptychs died out between the ninth and the twelfth century; in the Eastern Church it still continues.” 2 The Century Dictionary and Cyclopedia (1895).

“Diptychs were used in the time of the Roman empire for sending letters .... The consula and quaestors used, on assuming office, to send diptychs containing their names and portraits to their friends .... The early Christians used tablets thus made in the celebration of divine worship .... They were placed on ... the pulpits, or reading desks, which may still be seen in ancient basilicas at the west end of the choir or presbytery; and from them were read to the congregation of the faithful the names of the celebrating priests, of those who occupied the superior positions in the Christian hierarchy, of the saints, martyrs, and confessors, and, in process of time, also of those who had died in the faith... The inscription on the diptychs of deaths and baptisms, naturally led to the insertion of dates, and the diptychs seem thus to have grown into calendars, and to have been the germ from which necrologies, lists of saints, and almanacs have been developed.” 7 Encyclopaedia Britannica 223–24 (9th ed. 1907).

DIRATIONARE

dirationare (di-ray-shee-<<schwa>>-nair-ee), vb.[fr. Latin dis “thoroughly” + ratiocinari “to reason”] Hist. 1.To prove; to establish one's right. 2. To disprove; to refute (an allegation).

DISABILITY

disability. 1. The inability to perform some function; esp., the inability of one person to alter a given relation with another person. 2. An objectively measurable condition of impairment, physical or mental <his disability entitled him to workers'-compensation benefits>. — Also termed incapacity. [Cases: Civil Rights 1019, 1218; Workers' Compensation 802.C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 2, 6–7, 9–10, 19, 21, 61.]

“The Supreme Court has cautioned that [the Americans with Disabilities Act] requires that disabilities be evaluated ‘with respect to an individual’ and must be determined based on whether an impairment substantially limits the ‘major life activities of such individual.’ The Court conceded that ‘some impairments may invariably cause a substantial limitation of a major life activity,’ but ‘[t]he determination of whether an individual has a disability is not necessarily based on the name or diagnosis of the impairment the person has, but rather on the effect of that impairment on the life of the individual.’ As a result, courts are reluctant to characterize any particular impairment as a per se disability under ADA. And the fact that an impairment is considered to be a disability under a different set of criteria for some purpose other than the ADA has no bearing on the determination of whether an individual is disabled within the meaning of ADA.” Harold S. Lewis Jr. & Elizabeth J. Norman, Employment Discrimination Law and Practice 485–86 (2001).

developmental disability.An impairment of general intellectual functioning or adaptive behavior.

partial disability.A worker's inability to perform all the duties that he or she could do before an accident or illness, even though the worker can still engage in some gainful activity on the job. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 856–859. C.J.S. Workmen's Compensation §§ 562–564, 566.]

permanent disability.A disability that will indefinitely prevent a worker from performing some or all of the duties that he or she could do before an accident or illness. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 863–864. C.J.S. Workmen's Compensation §§ 567–574.]

physical disability.An incapacity caused by a physical defect or infirmity, or by bodily imperfection or mental weakness.

temporary disability.A disability that exists until an injured worker is as far restored as the nature of the injury will permit. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 863–864. C.J.S. Workmen's Compensation §§ 567–574.]

temporary total disability.Total disability that is not permanent.

total disability.A worker's inability to perform employment-related duties because of a physical or mental impairment. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 846–852. C.J.S. Workmen's Compensation §§ 556–561.]

3. Incapacity in the eyes of the law <most of a minor's disabilities are removed when he or she turns 18>. — Also termed incapacity.

canonical disability.A canonical impediment (usu. impotence). See canonical impediment under IMPEDIMENT.

civil disability.The condition of a person who has had a legal right or privilege revoked as a result of a criminal conviction, as when a person's driver's license is revoked after a DWI conviction. Cf. civil death (2) under DEATH.

DISABILITY BENEFITS

disability benefits.See DISABILITY COMPENSATION.

DISABILITY CLAUSE

disability clause.Insurance. A life-insurance-policy provision providing for a waiver of premiums during the policyholder's period of disability, and sometimes providing for monthly payments equal to a percentage of the policy's face value. [Cases: Insurance 2035. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 452–453, 556, 732–733, 773, 817, 832–833.]

DISABILITY COMPENSATION

disability compensation.Payments from public or private funds to a disabled person who cannot work, such as social-security or workers'-compensation benefits. — Also termed disability benefits. [Cases: Social Security and Public Welfare 140.5–140.40; Workers' Compensation 836–902.C.J.S. Social Security and Public Welfare §§ 48–55, 58–59, 61; Workmen's Compensation §§ 545–591.]

DISABILITY INSURANCE

disability insurance. See INSURANCE.

DISABILITY RETIREMENT PLAN

disability retirement plan. See EMPLOYEE BENEFIT PLAN.

DISABLE

disable, vb. 1. To deprive (someone or something) of the ability to function; to weaken the capability of (someone or something). 2. To impair; to diminish. 3. To legally disqualify (someone); to render (someone) legally incapable.

DISABLED PERSON

disabled person. See PERSON(1).

DISABLEMENT

disablement, n. 1. The act of incapacitating or immobilizing. 2. The imposition of a legal disability.

DISABLING RESTRAINTS

disabling restraints. Limits on the alienation of property. • These restraints are sometimes void as being against public policy. [Cases: Perpetuities 6(1). C.J.S. Perpetuities §§ 52, 55–68, 72–75.]

DISABLING STATUTE

disabling statute. See STATUTE.

DISADVOCARE

disadvocare (dis-ad-v<<schwa>>-kair-ee), vb. [Law Latin] To deny; to disavow.

DISAFFIRM

disaffirm (dis-<<schwa>>-f<<schwa>>rm), vb. 1. To repudiate; to revoke consent; to disclaim the intent to be bound by an earlier transaction. 2. To declare (a voidable contract) to be void.

DISAFFIRMANCE

disaffirmance (dis-<<schwa>>-f<<schwa>>rm-<<schwa>>nts). 1. An act of denial; a repudiation, as of an earlier transaction. [Cases: Contracts 272. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 471, 484.] 2. A declaration that a voidable contract (such as one entered into by a minor) is void. — Also termed disaffirmation. [Cases: Infants 58(1). C.J.S. Infants §§ 166, 172–174.]

“Disaffirmance is an operative act whereby the legal relations created by an infant's contract are terminated and discharged and other legal relations substituted. Inasmuch as the infant's executory promise does not operate to create any legal duty in him (the infant being at all times at liberty or privileged not to perform), his disaffirmance is not the discharge of such a duty. A return promise by an adult, however, creates a legal duty and the infant has a correlative right in personam. A disaffirmance terminates these.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 181 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

DISAFFOREST

disafforest (dis-⟨schwa⟩-for-⟨schwa⟩st or -fahr-⟨schwa⟩st), vb.[fr. French desaforester] Hist. To free lands from the restrictions of the forest laws and return them to the status of ordinary lands. — Also termed deafforest.

DISASTER

disaster. A calamity; a catastrophic emergency.

DISASTER AREA

disaster area. A region officially declared to have suffered a catastrophic emergency, such as a flood or hurricane, and therefore eligible for government aid. [Cases: United States 82(5). C.J.S. United States § 160.]

DISASTER LOSS

disaster loss. See LOSS.

DISASTER RELIEF ACT

Disaster Relief Act. A federal statute that provides a means by which the federal government can help state and local governments to relieve suffering and damage resulting from disasters such as hurricanes, tornadoes, floods, earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, landslides, mudslides, drought, fire, and explosions. • A 1974 amendment established a process for the President to declare affected communities disaster areas.

DISAVOW

disavow (dis-<<schwa>>-vow), vb. To disown; to disclaim knowledge of; to repudiate <the company disavowed the acts of its agent>. — disavowal, n.

DISBARMENT

disbarment, n. The action of expelling a lawyer from the bar or from the practice of law, usu. because of some disciplinary violation. • One who has passed the bar, been called to the bar, or been admitted to the bar is privileged to stand inside the wooden barrier that separates the gallery from the actual courtroom, particularly the judge's bench, and conduct business with the court. So this term literally describes the loss of the privilege. Although disbarment is typically a permanent removal from the practice of law, in some jurisdictions a disbarred attorney may (after a certain period) petition for readmission. In England and Wales, only a barrister is disbarred; a solicitor is struck off the roll, so the expulsion of a solicitor is termed striking off the roll. See STRUCK OFF. [Cases: Attorney and Client 58. C.J.S. Attorney and Client §§ 116–118.] — disbar, vb.

DISBOCATIO

disbocatio (dis-b*<<schwa>>-kay-shee-oh*), n. [fr. Law Latin dis- + boscus “wood”] Hist. The conversion of forest to pasture.

disceptatio causae (di-sep-tay-shee-oh kaw-zee). [Latin “debate about a case”] Roman law. The argument by the advocates of both sides of a dispute.

DISCHARGE

discharge (dis-chahrj), n.1. Any method by which a legal duty is extinguished; esp., the payment of a debt or satisfaction of some other obligation. 2.Bankruptcy. The release of a debtor from monetary obligations upon adjudication of bankruptcy; DISCHARGE IN BANKRUPTCY. Cf. RELEASE(1). [Cases: Bankruptcy 3251. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 288–290.] 3. The dismissal of a case. 4. The canceling or vacating of a court order. 5. The release of a prisoner from confinement.

unconditional discharge. 1. A release from an obligation without any conditions attached. 2. A release from confinement without any parole requirements to fulfill.

6. The relieving of a witness, juror, or jury from further responsibilities in a case. 7. The firing of an employee.

constructive discharge.A termination of employment brought about by making the employee's working conditions so intolerable that the employee feels compelled to leave. [Cases: Civil Rights 1123; Master and Servant 31(2). C.J.S. Civil Rights § 28; Employer–Employee Relationship § 53.]

“Most constructive discharges fall into one of two basic fact patterns. First, the employer can cause a constructive discharge by breaching the employee's contract of employment in some manner short of termination. Second, the employer can make working conditions so intolerable that the employee feels compelled to quit.” Mark A. Rothstein et al., Employment Law § 9.7, at 539 (1994).

retaliatory discharge.A discharge that is made in retaliation for the employee's conduct (such as reporting unlawful activity by the employer to the government) and that clearly violates public policy. • Federal and state statutes may entitle an employee who is dismissed by retaliatory discharge to recover damages. [Cases: Civil Rights 1247, 1249(2); Master and Servant 30(6.5). C.J.S. Civil Rights § 66; Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 68, 70, 72, 79.]

wrongful discharge.A discharge for reasons that are illegal or that violate public policy. [Cases: Civil Rights 1122; Master and Servant 30. C.J.S. Civil Rights § 28; Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 35, 38–40, 42–43, 56, 60.]

8. The dismissal of a member of the armed services from military service <the sergeant was honorably discharged>. [Cases: Armed Services 11, 22.C.J.S. Armed Services §§ 37, 80–81, 83–103.]

administrative discharge.A military-service discharge given by administrative means and not by court-martial.

bad-conduct discharge.A punitive discharge that a court-martial can give a member of the military, usu. as punishment for repeated minor offenses. —Abbr. BCD.

dishonorable discharge.The most severe punitive discharge that a court-martial can give to a member of the military. • A dishonorable discharge may result from conviction for an offense recognized in civilian law as a felony or of a military offense requiring severe punishment. Only a general court-martial can give a dishonorable discharge.

general discharge.One of the administrative discharges given to a member of the military who does not qualify for an honorable discharge.

honorable discharge.A formal final judgment passed by the government on a soldier's entire military record, and an authoritative declaration that he or she has left the service in a status of honor. • Full veterans' benefits are given only to a person honorably discharged.

undesirable discharge.One of the administrative discharges given to a member of the military who does not qualify for an honorable discharge.

9.Parliamentary law. A motion by which a deliberative assembly, having referred a matter to a committee, takes the matter's further consideration out of the committee and back into its own hands. — Also termed discharge a committee; withdrawal. — discharge (dis-chahrj), vb.

DISCHARGEABILITY PROCEEDING

dischargeability proceeding.Bankruptcy. A hearing to determine whether a debt is dischargeable or is subject to an exception to discharge. 11 USCA § 523. [Cases: Bankruptcy 3381. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 18, 337, 340.]

DISCHARGEABLE CLAIM

dischargeable claim.Bankruptcy. A claim that can be discharged in bankruptcy. [Cases: Bankruptcy 3341–3362. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 316–336, 344, 348.]

DISCHARGED CONTRACT

discharged contract.See void contract under CONTRACT.

DISCHARGE HEARING

discharge hearing.Bankruptcy. A hearing at which the court informs the debtor either that a discharge has been granted or the reasons why a discharge has not been granted. See REAFFIRMATION HEARING. [Cases: Bankruptcy 3318.1.]

DISCHARGE IN BANKRUPTCY

discharge in bankruptcy. 1. The release of a debtor from personal liability for prebankruptcy debts; specif., discharge under the United States Bankruptcy Code. [Cases: Bankruptcy 3251. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 288–290.] 2. A bankruptcy court's decree releasing a debtor from that liability.

DISCHARGING BOND

discharging bond. See BOND(2).

DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDING

disciplinary proceeding. An action brought to reprimand, suspend, or expel a licensed professional or other person from a profession or other group because of unprofessional, unethical, improper, or illegal conduct. • A disciplinary proceeding against a lawyer may result in the lawyer's being suspended or disbarred from practice. [Cases: Licenses 38. C.J.S. Agriculture § 4.5; Architects § 10; Licenses §§ 48, 50–63.]

DISCIPLINARY RULE

disciplinary rule. (often cap.) A mandatory regulation stating the minimum level of professional conduct that a professional must sustain to avoid being subject to disciplinary action. • For lawyers, the disciplinary rules are found chiefly in the Model Code of Professional Responsibility. — Abbr. DR. Cf. ETHICAL CONSIDERATION. [Cases: Licenses 25. C.J.S. Agriculture § 4.5; Licenses §§ 41, 45–46.]

DISCIPLINE

discipline, n. 1. Punishment intended to correct or instruct; esp., a sanction or penalty imposed after an official finding of misconduct. [Cases: Licenses 38. C.J.S. Agriculture § 4.5; Architects § 10; Licenses §§ 48, 50–63.] 2. The punishment or penalties (often termed “sanctions”) imposed by a disciplining agency on an attorney who has breached a rule of professional ethics. • Three types of discipline are common: disbarment, suspension, and reprimand (public or private). 3. Control gained by enforcing compliance or order. 4. Military law. A state of mind inducing instant obedience to a lawful order, no matter how unpleasant or dangerous such compliance might be. — discipline, vb. — disciplinary, adj.

DISCLAIMER

disclaimer, n. 1. A renunciation of one's legal right or claim; esp., a renunciation of a patent claim, usu. to save the remainder of the application from being rejected. 2. A repudiation of another's legal right or claim. 3. A writing that contains such a renunciation or repudiation. 4. RENUNCIATION (2). — disclaim, vb.

disclaimer of warranty. An oral or written statement intended to limit a seller's liability for defects in the goods sold. • In some circumstances, printed words must be specific and conspicuous to be effective. [Cases: Sales 267. C.J.S. Sales §§ 238, 263–270.]

patent disclaimer. See statutory disclaimer.

qualified disclaimer. 1. A disclaimer with a restriction or condition attached. • In this sense it is qualified because it carries the restriction or condition. 2. A person's refusal to accept an interest in property so that he or she can avoid having to pay estate or gift taxes. • To be effective under federal tax law, the refusal must be in writing and must be executed no later than nine months from the time when the interest was created. In this sense, it is qualified in the sense of being within the lawful exemption. IRC (26 USCA) § 2518. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4177.20, 4205.10; Taxation 866. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 500; Taxation §§ 1791, 1797–1799, 1824, 1859–1865.]

statutory disclaimer. Patents. A patent applicant's amendment of a specification to relinquish one or more claims to the invention. 35 USCA § 253. • Before the statute was enacted, a single invalid claim was grounds for denying a patent. — Also termed patent disclaimer. See SPECIFICATION(3). [Cases: Patents 149, 154. C.J.S. Patents §§ 261–263.]

terminal disclaimer. Patents. A patent applicant's statement shortening the term of the patent. • To revive an abandoned application for a design application or for a utility or plant application filed before June 8, 1995, the applicant must disclaim a period equal to the duration of abandonment. A terminal disclaimer may also be required in an application for an obvious variation on an existing patent: to avoid a double-patenting rejection, the inventor agrees that both patents will expire on the same day. [Cases: Patents 131. C.J.S. Patents § 236.]

DISCLOSED PRINCIPAL

disclosed principal. See PRINCIPAL(1).

DISCLOSURE

disclosure, n. 1. The act or process of making known something that was previously unknown; a revelation of facts . See DISCOVERY.

defensive disclosure. See DEFENSIVE DISCLOSURE.

full disclosure. A complete revelation of all material facts.

public disclosure of private facts. The public revelation of some aspect of a person's private life without a legitimate public purpose. • The disclosure is actionable in tort if the disclosure would be highly objectionable to a reasonable person. See INVASION OF PRIVACY. [Cases: Torts 8.5(5.1). C.J.S. Right of Privacy and Publicity §§ 17, 20–21, 23–27, 31, 33, 40–41.]

voluntary disclosure of offense. A person's uncoerced admission to an undiscovered crime. • Under the federal sentencing guidelines, a lighter sentence may be allowed. See USSG 5K2.16.

2. The mandatory divulging of information to a litigation opponent according to procedural rules. — Also termed compulsory disclosure; automatic disclosure. See DISCOVERY(2). [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1261; Pretrial Procedure 11. C.J.S. Discovery §§ 2–4, 6–7; Pretrial Procedure §§ 2–6.] — disclose, vb. — disclosural, adj. “Rule 26(a) [of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure] reflects a shift away from the traditional method of obtaining discovery through the service of written demands toward requiring automatic disclosure by the parties of information that would invariably be requested. The goal of automatic disclosure is the creation of a more efficient and expeditious discovery process.... Rule 26(a)(1) provides for the initial disclosure of specified information relating to witnesses, documents, and insurance agreements. Rule 26(a)(2) provides for the disclosure of information regarding experts who may be used at trial. Rule 26(a)(3) provides for specified pretrial disclosures regarding witnesses, evidence, and objections.” Jay E. Grenig & Jeffrey S. Kinsler, Handbook of Federal Civil Discovery and Disclosure § 1.15, at 65–66 (2d ed. 2002).

accelerated disclosure. See accelerated discovery under DISCOVERY.

initial disclosure. Civil procedure. In federal practice, the requirement that parties make available to each other the following information without first receiving a discovery request: (1) the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of persons likely to have relevant, discoverable information, (2) a copy or description of all relevant documents, data compilations, and tangible items in the party's possession, custody, or control, (3) a damages computation, and (4) any relevant insurance agreements. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(a)(1)(A)–(D). [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1261, 1272.]

3. Patents. A document explaining how an invention works in sufficient detail for one skilled in the art to be able to understand and duplicate the invention; everything revealed about an invention in the patent application, including drawings, descriptions, specifications, references to prior art, and claims. • An invention disclosure statement is sometimes attested by a knowledgeable witness, who signs and dates the disclosure document to establish the inventor's identity and the date of the invention before the patent application is prepared. An inventor can file a disclosure document with the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office before submitting a patent application, but the document's date has no relationship to the later application's effective filing date. See ENABLEMENT REQUIREMENT. Cf. ENABLING SOURCE; DEFENSIVE DISCLOSURE. [Cases: Patents 99. C.J.S. Patents § 139.] 4. Patents. PUBLICATION(2).

DISCLOSURE DOCUMENT PROGRAM

Disclosure Document Program. Patents. A U.S. Patent and Trademark Office program allowing an inventor to file a preliminary description of an invention and establish its date of conception before applying for a patent. • The document can help establish a date of inventive effort for use in a later interference. — Abbr. DDP. Cf. provisional application under PATENT APPLICATION. [Cases: Patents 97. C.J.S. Patents §§ 135–138, 145, 178.]

DISCOMMON

discommon (dis-kom-<<schwa>>n), vb. 1. To deprive of the right of common (e.g., the right to pasture). 2. To deprive (something, esp. land) of commonable character. • A person could discommon land by separating or enclosing it. 3. To deprive (someone) of the privileges of a place, such as the right to use common land or to enjoy a church fellowship.

DISCONFORMITY

disconformity. See NEW MATTER.

DISCONTINUANCE

discontinuance (dis-k<<schwa>>n-tin-yoo-<<schwa>>nts), n.1. The termination of a lawsuit by the plaintiff; a voluntary dismissal or nonsuit. See DISMISSAL; NONSUIT(1); judgment of discontinuance under JUDGMENT. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1691; Pretrial Procedure 501. C.J.S. Dismissal and Nonsuit §§ 2–7, 9–10, 12, 14–16, 24.] 2. The termination of an estate-tail by a tenant in tail who conveys a larger estate in the land than is legally allowed. [Cases: Estates in Property 12.C.J.S. Estates §§ 22–27.]

“Such is ... the injury of discontinuance; which happens when he who hath an estate-tail, maketh a larger estate of the land than by law he is entitled to do: in which case the estate is good, so far as his power extends who made it, but no farther. As if tenant in tail makes a feoffment in fee-simple, or for the life of the feoffee, or in tail; all which are beyond his power to make, for that by the common law extends no farther than to make a lease for his own life: the entry of the feoffee is lawful during the life of the feoffer; but if he retains the possession after the death of the feoffor, it is an injury, which is termed a discontinuance; the ancient legal estate, which ought to have survived to the heir in tail, being gone, or at least suspended, and for a while discontinued.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 171–72 (1768).

DISCONTINUEE

discontinuee,n. A person whose acquisition of an entailed estate causes a discontinuance of the fee tail heirs' right to the estate. Cf. DISCONTINUOR.

DISCONTINUING EASEMENT

discontinuing easement.See discontinuous easement under EASEMENT.

DISCONTINUOR

discontinuor,n. A tenant in tail whose conveyance of the entailed estate causes a discontinuance. Cf. DISCONTINUEE.

DISCONTINUOUS EASEMENT

discontinuous easement.See EASEMENT.

DISCONTINUOUS SERVITUDE

discontinuous servitude.See discontinuous easement under EASEMENT.

DISCONVENABLE

disconvenable (dis-k<<schwa>>n-vee-n<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l), adj.[Law French] Archaic. Unfit; improper.

DISCOUNT

discount,n.1. A reduction from the full amount or value of something, esp. a price. 2. An advance deduction of interest when a person lends money on a note, bill of exchange, or other commercial paper, resulting in its present value. See PRESENT VALUE. 3. The amount by which a security's market value is below its face value. — Also termed bond discount. Cf. PREMIUM(3). — discount, vb.

---

bulk discount. See volume discount.

cash discount. 1. A seller's price reduction in exchange for an immediate cash payment. 2. A reduction from the stated price if the bill is paid on or before a specified date.

functional discount. 1. A supplier's price discount given to a purchaser based on the purchaser's role (such as warehousing or advertising) in the supplier's distributive system. • This type of discount typically reflects the value of services performed by the purchaser for the supplier. If a functional discount constitutes a reasonable reimbursement for the purchaser's actual marketing functions, it does not constitute unlawful price discrimination and does not violate antitrust laws. 2. A supplier's price discount based on the purchaser's relative distance from the supplier in the chain of distribution. • For example, a wholesaler or distributor usu. receives a greater discount than a retailer.

quantity discount. See volume discount.

trade discount. 1. A discount from list price offered to all customers of a given type — for example, a discount offered by a lumber dealer to building contractors. 2. The difference between a seller's list price and the price at which the dealer actually sells goods to the trade.

volume discount. A price decrease based on a large-quantity purchase. — Also termed bulk discount; quantity discount.

DISCOUNT BOND

discount bond. See BOND(3).

DISCOUNT BROKER

discount broker. See BROKER.

DISCOUNTED CASH FLOW

discounted cash flow. See CASH FLOW.

DISCOUNTED-CASH-FLOW METHOD

discounted-cash-flow method. See discounted cash flow under CASH FLOW.

DISCOUNT INTEREST

discount interest. See INTEREST(3).

DISCOUNT LOAN

discount loan. See LOAN.

DISCOUNT MARKET

discount market. See MARKET.

DISCOUNT RATE

discount rate. See INTEREST RATE.

DISCOUNT SHARE

discount share. See discount stock under STOCK.

DISCOUNT STOCK

discount stock. See STOCK.

DISCOUNT YIELD

discount yield. See YIELD.

DISCOVERABLE

discoverable, adj. Subject to pretrial discovery <the defendant's attorney argued that the defendant's income-tax returns were not discoverable during the liability phase of the trial>. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1272; Pretrial Procedure 27.]

DISCOVERED-PERIL DOCTRINE

discovered-peril doctrine. See LAST-CLEAR-CHANCE DOCTRINE.

DISCOVERT

discovert (dis-k<<schwa>>v-<<schwa>>rt), adj. 1. Archaic. Uncovered; exposed. 2. Not married, esp. a widow or a woman who has never married.

DISCOVERY

discovery, n. 1. The act or process of finding or learning something that was previously unknown <after making the discovery, the inventor immediately applied for a patent>. 2. Compulsory disclosure, at a party's request, of information that relates to the litigation <the plaintiff filed a motion to compel discovery>. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 26–37; Fed. R. Crim. P. 16. • The primary discovery devices are interrogatories, depositions, requests for admissions, and requests for production. Although discovery typically comes from parties, courts also allow limited discovery from nonparties. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1261–1686; Pretrial Procedure 11–44. C.J.S. Discovery §§ 2–12, 14–22, 24–29, 31–47, 51–53, 56, 58–59, 69; Pretrial Procedure §§ 2–6.] 3. The facts or documents disclosed <the new associate spent all her time reviewing discovery>. 4. The pretrial phase of a lawsuit during which depositions, interrogatories, and other forms of discovery are conducted. — discover, vb. — discoverable, adj.

“Discovery has broad scope. According to Federal Rule 26, which is the model in modern procedural codes, inquiry may be made into ‘any matter, not privileged, that is relevant to the subject matter of the action.’ Thus, discovery may be had of facts incidentally relevant to the issues in the pleadings even if the facts do not directly prove or disprove the facts in question.”

---

Geoffrey C. Hazard Jr. & Michele Taruffo, American Civil Procedure: An Introduction 115 (1993).

accelerated discovery. A party's production of relevant evidence to an opponent at a time earlier than would otherwise be required by rule or standing order of the court. • The accelerated discovery is usu. carried out in compliance with a specific court order or the parties' agreement. — Also termed accelerated disclosure.

postjudgment discovery. Discovery conducted after judgment has been rendered, usu. to determine the nature of the judgment debtor's assets or to obtain testimony for use in future proceedings. — Also termed posttrial discovery. [Cases: Execution 373–400; Federal Civil Procedure 2707. C.J.S. Executions §§ 356, 359–389, 412.]

pretrial discovery. Discovery conducted before trial to reveal facts and develop evidence. • Modern procedural rules have broadened the scope of pretrial discovery to prevent the parties from surprising each other with evidence at trial. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1261; Pretrial Procedure 14, 25. C.J.S. Discovery §§ 2, 6, 10, 32, 36, 58.]

reciprocal discovery. See reverse Jencks material under JENCKS MATERIAL.

reverse discovery. See reverse Jencks material under JENCKS MATERIAL.

DISCOVERY ABUSE

discovery abuse. 1. The misuse of the discovery process, esp. by making overbroad requests for information that is unnecessary or beyond the scope of permissible disclosure or by conducting discovery for an improper purpose. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1261, 1278; Pretrial Procedure 28. C.J.S. Discovery §§ 2, 6–7, 21.]

“The term ‘discovery abuse’ has been used as if it were a single concept, but it includes several different things. Thus, it is useful to subdivide ‘abuse’ into ‘misuse’ and ‘overuse.’ What is referred to as ‘misuse’ would include not only direct violation of the rules, as by failing to respond to a discovery request within the stated time limit, but also more subtle attempts to harass or obstruct an opponent, as by giving obviously inadequate answers or by requesting information that clearly is outside the scope of discovery. By ‘overuse’ is meant asking for more discovery than is necessary or appropriate to the particular case. ‘Overuse,’ in turn, can be subdivided into problems of ‘depth’ and of ‘breadth,’ with ‘depth’ referring to discovery that may be relevant but is simply excessive and ‘breadth’ referring to discovery requests that go into matters too far removed from the case.” Charles Alan Wright, The Law of Federal Courts § 81, at 580 (5th ed. 1994).

2. The failure to respond adequately to proper discovery requests. — Also termed abuse of discovery. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1278; Pretrial Procedure 44.1.]

DISCOVERY IMMUNITY

discriminant function (di-skrim-n). An IRS method of selecting tax returns to be audited. • The method consists of (1) using a computer program to identify returns with a high probability of error (such as those showing a disproportionate amount of deductible expenses), and (2) having examiners manually review the selected returns to determine which ones should be audited. — Also termed DIF system. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4443. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 616, 618.]

DISCRIMINATEE

discriminatee (di-skrim-n-tee). A person unlawfully discriminated against. [Cases: Civil Rights 1007. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 2–5, 7–9, 11–13, 18, 44.]

DISCRIMINATION

discrimination, n. 1. The effect of a law or established practice that confers privileges on a certain class or that denies privileges to a certain class because of race, age, sex, nationality, religion, or handicap. • Federal law, including Title VII of the Civil Rights Act, prohibits employment discrimination based on any one of those characteristics. Other federal statutes, supplemented by court decisions, prohibit discrimination in voting rights, housing, credit extension, public education, and access to public facilities. State laws provide further protections against discrimination. [Cases: Civil Rights 1001–1263. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 2–37, 39–67, 85–86, 88, 102–104, 107, 122, 144, 219–221.] 2. Differential treatment; esp., a failure to treat all persons equally when no reasonable distinction can be found between those favored and those not favored. [Cases: Civil Rights 1033, 1138. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 18, 20, 23–24, 34, 39–40.]

“The dictionary sense of ‘discrimination’ is neutral while the current political use of the term is frequently non-neutral, pejorative. With both a neutral and a non-neutral use of the word having currency, the opportunity for confusion in arguments about racial discrimination is enormously multiplied. For some, it may be enough that a practice is called discriminatory for them to judge it wrong. Others may be mystified that the first group condemns the practice without further argument or inquiry. Many may be led to the false sense that they have actually made a moral argument by showing that the practice discriminates (distinguishes in favor of or against). The temptation is to move from 'X distinguishes in favor of or against' to 'X discriminates' to 'X is wrong' without being aware of the equivocation involved." Robert K. Fullinwider, The Reverse Discrimination Controversy 11–12 (1980).

age discrimination. Discrimination based on age. • Federal law prohibits discrimination in employment against people who are age 40 or older. [Cases: Civil Rights 1014, 1199. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 2, 6–7, 9–10, 19, 21, 56–58.]

content-based discrimination. A state-imposed restriction on the content of speech, esp. when the speech concerns something of slight social value and is vastly outweighed by the public interest in morality and order. • Types of speech subject to content-based discrimination include obscenity, fighting words, and defamation. R.A.V. v. City of St. Paul, 505 U.S. 377, 383–84, 112 S.Ct. 2538, 2543 (1992).

gender discrimination. See sex discrimination.

invidious discrimination (in-vid-ee-<<schwa>>s). Discrimination that is offensive or objectionable, esp. because it involves prejudice or stereotyping.

racial discrimination. Discrimination based on race. [Cases: Civil Rights 1009, 1107. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 2–5, 7–9, 11–13, 18, 22, 26–27, 30–31, 33–34, 37, 41–42, 44, 67.]

reverse discrimination. Preferential treatment of minorities, usu. through affirmative-action programs, in a way that adversely affects members of a majority group. See AFFIRMATIVE ACTION. [Cases: Civil Rights 1033(3), 1232. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 18, 20, 23–24, 64–65.]

sex discrimination. Discrimination based on gender, esp. against women. • The Supreme Court has established an intermediate-scrutiny standard of review for gender-based classifications, which must serve an important governmental interest and be substantially related to the achievement of that objective. Craig v. Boren, 429 U.S. 190, 97 S.Ct. 451 (1976). — Also termed gender discrimination. [Cases: Civil Rights 1011, 1164, 1236. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 2, 6–7, 9–10, 19, 21, 35, 64–65, 88.]

viewpoint discrimination. Content-based discrimination in which the government targets not a particular subject, but instead certain views that speakers might express on the subject; discrimination based on the content of a communication. • If restrictions on the content of speech are reasonable and not calculated to suppress a particular set of views or ideas, a governmental body may limit speech in a nonpublic forum to expressions that serve a specific purpose. For example, an agency holding a workshop to inform state employees of laws related to the agency's functions may reasonably prohibit the expression of opinions regarding the motives of the legislators. But if speech favorable to the legislators' intent is allowed and opponents are denied the opportunity to respond, the restriction would constitute viewpoint discrimination. — Also termed viewpoint-based discrimination. [Cases: Constitutional Law 90(3), 90.1(1).]

3. The effect of state laws that favor local interests over out-of-state interests. • Such a discriminatory state law may still be upheld if it is narrowly tailored to achieve an important state interest. Cf. FAVORITISM. [Cases: Commerce 54.1. C.J.S. Commerce § 51.] — discriminate,vb. — discriminatory,adj.

DISGRADING

disgrading.Hist. 1. The act of degrading. 2. The depriving of an order; the depriving of a dignity.

“Disgrading, or degrading, is when a man having taken upon him a dignity temporal or spiritual, is afterwards thereof deprived, be he knight, clerk or other. Whereof if a clerk be delivered to his ordinary, and cannot clear himself of the offence whereof he is convicted by the jury, he shall be disgraded for it; which is nothing else but the deprivation of him from those orders he hath taken upon him, as priesthood, deaconship, or otherwise.... In like manner there is disgrading of a knight .... And it is worthy the observation, that by the canon law there are two kinds of disgradings; the one summary, by word only, and the other solemn, by devesting the party disgraded from those ornaments and rites which are the ensigns of his order or degree.” Termes de la Ley 175–76 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

DISPARAGEMENT

disparagement (di-spair-ij-m*<<schwa>>*nt), n. 1. A derogatory comparison of one thing with another <the disparagement consisted in comparing the acknowledged liar to a murderer>.2. The act or an instance of castigating or detracting from the reputation of, esp. unfairly or untruthfully <when she told the press the details of her husband's philandering, her statements amounted to disparagement>.3. A false and injurious statement that discredits or detracts from the reputation of another's property, product, or business. • To recover in tort for disparagement, the plaintiff must prove that the statement caused a third party to take some action resulting in specific pecuniary loss to the plaintiff. — Also termed injurious falsehood. — More narrowly termed slander of title; trade libel; slander of goods. See TRADE DISPARAGEMENT. Cf. commercial defamation under DEFAMATION. [Cases: Libel and Slander 130, 133. C.J.S. Libel and Slander; Injurious Falsehood §§ 204–206, 209.] 4. Reproach, disgrace, or indignity <self-importance is a disparagement of greatness>.5.Hist. The act or an instance of pairing an heir in marriage with someone of an inferior social rank <the guardian's arranging for the heir's marriage to a chimney sweep amounted to disparagement>. — disparage,vb.

DISPARAGING INSTRUCTION

disparaging instruction.See JURY INSTRUCTION.

DISPARAGING MARK

disparaging mark. See disparaging trademark under TRADEMARK.

DISPARAGING TRADEMARK

disparaging trademark. See TRADEMARK.

DISPARATE IMPACT

disparate impact (dis-p<<schwa>>-rit). The adverse effect of a facially neutral practice (esp. an employment practice) that nonetheless discriminates against persons because of their race, sex, national origin, age, or disability and that is not justified by business necessity. • Discriminatory intent is irrelevant in a disparate-impact claim. — Also termed adverse impact. [Cases: Civil Rights 1033, 1140. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 18, 20, 23–24, 29, 144.]

DISPARATE TREATMENT

disparate treatment. The practice, esp. in employment, of intentionally dealing with persons differently because of their race, sex, national origin, age, or disability. • To succeed on a disparate-treatment claim, the plaintiff must prove that the defendant acted with discriminatory intent or motive. [Cases: Civil Rights 1033, 1138. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 18, 20, 23–24, 34, 39–40.]

“Claims brought on behalf of a group of employees come in two varieties: claims of intentional discrimination (or disparate treatment) and claims of discriminatory impact (or disparate impact). The difference between these types of claims is significant, so much so that constitutional law only recognizes claims of disparate treatment, not disparate impact. Yet these two kinds of claims resemble one another, especially in the statistical evidence that the plaintiff must present in order to establish liability... [C]lass claims of disparate treatment emphasize the historical perspective and its negative conception of equality as colorblindness, while class claims of disparate impact emphasize the remedial perspective and its goal of eliminating the effects of past discrimination.” George Rutherglen, Employment Discrimination Law 56 (2001).

DISPARITY

disparity (di-spar-<<schwa>>-tee). Inequality; a difference in quantity or quality between two or more things.

DISPATCH

dispatch (di-spachalsodis-pach), n.1. A prompt sending off of something .2. A prompt completion of something <dispatch of a business transaction>.3. Something quickly sent <the dispatch was mailed>.4. Maritime law. The required diligence in discharging cargo <dispatch is required on all charters>. [Cases: Shipping 49(6). C.J.S. Shipping § 108.]

customary dispatch. Dispatch that follows the rules, customs, and usages of the port where cargo is discharged. [Cases: Shipping 49(6). C.J.S. Shipping § 108.]

quick dispatch. A speedy dispatch that does not strictly follow the customs of the port, esp. to avoid delays resulting from a crowded wharf. [Cases: Shipping 49(6). C.J.S. Shipping § 108.]

5. Maritime law. DISPATCH MONEY.

DISPATCH MONEY

dispatch money. Maritime law. An amount paid by a shipowner to a vessel's charterer if the vessel's cargo is unloaded at the port sooner than provided for in the agreement between the charterer and the shipowner. — Also termed dispatch. Cf. contract demurrage under DEMURRAGE. [Cases: Shipping 49(6). C.J.S. Shipping § 108.]

“Some charters contain a provision for ‘dispatch money,’ which is in the nature of a reward to the charterer for loading or unloading more rapidly than provided for — i.e., in less time than the stipulated ‘lay days.’ Dispatch, where payable, is usually stated, just as is demurrage, in terms of a rate per day and pro rata part thereof.” Grant Gilmore & Charles L. Black Jr., The Law of Admiralty § 4–8, at 212 (2d ed. 1975).

DISPATCH RULE

dispatch rule. See MAILBOX RULE.

DISPENSE WITH THE READING OF THE MINUTES

dispense with the reading of the minutes. Parliamentary law. To forgo reciting the secretary's proposed minutes at the regular time. • The reading is not forgone altogether, but simply postponed. If the proposed minutes have been printed and circulated, then their correction and approval is in order without reading them aloud, and a motion to dispense with reading them is superfluous.

DISPERSONARE

dispersonare (dis-p<<schwa>>r-s<<schwa>>-nair-ee), vb. [Latin] Hist. To scandalize, disparage, or slander.

---

DISPLACEMENT

displacement. 1. Removal from a proper place or position <displacement of a file> <displacement of an officer>.2. A replacement; a substitution < displacement of the lawyer with another>.3. A forced removal of a person from the person's home or country, esp. because of war <displacement of refugees>.4. A shifting of emotional emphasis from one thing to another, esp. to avoid unpleasant or unacceptable thoughts or tendencies <emotional displacement>.

DISPLAY RIGHT

display right.Copyright. A copyright owner's exclusive right to show or exhibit a copy of the protected work publicly, whether directly or by technological means. • For example, this right makes it illegal to transmit a copyrighted work over the Internet without permission. A mechanism for resolving international grievances over intellectual-property protection, conducted by the World Trade Organization under the TRIPs Agreement. • The procedure begins with a complaint by one nation against another, followed by consultations between the nations, a WTO panel report on the issue, and (potentially) trade sanctions against one of the nations.

DISQUALIFICATION

disqualification,n.1. Something that makes one ineligible; esp., a bias or conflict of interest that prevents a judge or juror from impartially hearing a case, or that prevents a lawyer from representing a party. [Cases: Judges 39; Jury 97. C.J.S. Judges §§ 62, 98, 100–102, 107; Juries §§ 225, 248, 370–373, 378–379, 398–399, 415, 417–418, 420.]

vicarious disqualification.Disqualification of all the lawyers in a firm or in an office because one of the lawyers is ethically disqualified from representing the client at issue. — Also termed imputed disqualification. [Cases: Attorney and Client 21.15. C.J.S. Attorney and Client § 164.]

“In general, disqualification of a lawyer from representation, at least in multiple client-conflict scenarios, means disqualification of that lawyer's entire firm from the same representation. When a lawyer has been exclusively or chiefly responsible for the representation of a client and that lawyer changes jobs, there is little question but that the imputed-disqualification rule will apply to disqualify the new firm from representing the opponent of the first client. But because lawyers often work for large organizations, ... a question may arise about the application of the imputation rule when a lawyer has left employment .... If the lawyer had little or no responsibility in the first organization for the representation or if the lawyer can be effectively shielded from the representation in the new organization, or both, there may be no useful purpose served by imputing the lawyer's disqualification to the new organization ....” James E. Moliterno & John M. Levy, Ethics of the Lawyer's Work 151 (1993).

2. The act of making ineligible; the fact or condition of being ineligible. Cf. RECUSAL. — disqualify,vb.

DISTRESS

distress,n.1. The seizure of another's property to secure the performance of a duty, such as the payment of overdue rent. [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 263–270. C.J.S. Landlord and Tenant §§ 674–681, 683–696, 699–711.] 2. The legal remedy authorizing such a seizure; the procedure by which the seizure is carried out.

“Distress ... may be defined as the taking, either with legal process, or extra-judicially subject to the performance of some necessary condition precedent, by a private individual or by an officer of the court, of a personal chattel, out of the possession of a wrongdoer or defaulter and into the custody of the law to be impounded as a pledge in order to bring pressure to bear upon the owner of the chattel to redress an injury, to perform a duty, or to satisfy a lawful demand, subject, however, to the right of the owner to have the chattel returned to him [up]on the injury being redressed, or the duty performed, or the demand satisfied or [up]on security being given so to do.” F.A. Enever, History of the Law of Distress 7–8 (1931).

“The word distress is derived from distringere, meaning to put into a strait or pound. In early English customals the word used is nam, which is of Scandinavian derivation and indicates a taking. In the Latin legal documents of early medieval times pignorare is used as well as distringere to denote the act of distraining, but whereas distringere is used in relation to distress for rent and services, pignorare is applied to distress for debts.” Id. at 3.

distress damage feasant.The right to seize animals or inanimate chattels that are damaging or encumbering land and to keep them as security until the owner pays compensation. [Cases: Animals 95. C.J.S. Animals §§ 250, 252.]

distress infinite.A distress that the sheriff can repeat from time to time to enforce the performance of something, as in summoning a juror or compelling a party to appear in court. • The goods must be returned after the delinquent person performs his or her duty.

“[F]or the most part it is provided that distresses be reasonable and moderate; but, in the case of distress for fealty or suit of court, no distress can be unreasonable, immoderate, or too large: for this is the only remedy to which the party aggrieved is entitled, and therefore it ought to be such as is sufficiently compulsory; and, be it of what value it will, there is no harm done, especially as it cannot be sold or made away with, but must be restored immediately on satisfaction made. A distress of this nature, that has no bounds with regard to its quantity, and may be repeated from time to time until the stubbornness of the party is conquered, is called a distress infinite.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 231 (1768).

grand distress.Hist. In a quare impedit action in which the defendant has failed to appear, a distress of the defendant's goods and lands to compel the defendant's appearance.

second distress.A supplementary distress allowed when goods seized under the first distress are insufficient to satisfy the claim.

DISTRIBUTIVE DEVIATION

distributive deviation. A trustee's authorized or unauthorized departure from the express distributional terms of a trust. • A trustee must apply to the court for authority to deviate from the terms of a trust. In American law, courts rarely authorize deviation unless all the beneficiaries consent and there is no material purpose of the settlor yet to be served. Some state statutes provide that deviation is permitted if the court finds that deviation would effectuate the settlor's intention, though the modification is not expressly authorized by the trust's provisions. The Pulitzer trust illustrates the possibility that extraordinary circumstances not anticipated by the settlor may justify deviation, even despite an express prohibition within the trust. Joseph Pulitzer set up a testamentary trust with shares of World newspaper stock; his will directed that the sale of these shares was not authorized under any circumstances. Nonetheless, the court later approved the stock sale when given evidence that because of hemorrhaging losses, the trust's continuation was jeopardized. In re Pulitzer's Estate, 249 N.Y.S. 87 (Sur. Ct. 1931).

DISTRIBUTIVE FINDING

distributive finding. A jury's decision partly in favor of one party and partly in favor of another.

"Generally speaking, any conduct which, being contrary to the usages of the particular sort of meeting and class of persons assembled, interferes with its due progress and services, or is annoying to the congregation in whole or in part, is a disturbance; and a meeting may be said to be 'disturbed' when it is agitated, aroused from a state of repose, molested, interrupted, hindered, perplexed, disquieted, or diverted from the object of the assembly." 27 C.J.S. Disturbance of Public Meetings § 1, at 817 (1959).

DISTURBANCE OF COMMON

disturbance of common.At common law, a wrongful interference with, or impediment to, another's right to commonable property, such as a wrongful fencing or surcharge on the common.

"The disturbance of common comes next to be considered; where any act is done, by which the right of another to his common is incommoded or diminished. This may happen, in the first place, where one who hath no right of common, puts his cattle into the land; and thereby robs the cattle of the commoners of their respective shares of the pasture. Or if one, who hath a right of common, puts in cattle which are not commonable, as hogs and goats; which amounts to the same inconvenience." 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 237 (1768).

DISTURBANCE OF FRANCHISE

disturbance of franchise. At common law, a wrongful interference with a liberty or privilege.

“Disturbance of franchises happens when a man has the franchise of holding a court-leet, of keeping a fair or market, of free-warren, of taking toll, of seizing waifs or estrays, or (in short) any other species of franchise whatsoever, and he is disturbed or incommoded in the lawful exercise thereof.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 236 (1768).

DIVIDED CUSTODY

divided custody. See CUSTODY(2).

DIVIDED-DAMAGES RULE

divided-damages rule. Maritime law. The obsolete principle that when two parties are jointly liable to a third party for a tort, each party is liable for only half the damages. • The courts now apply a comparative-negligence standard. [Cases: Collision 143. C.J.S. Collision §§ 242, 245, 259, 261–262.]

“For over a hundred years admiralty law embraced the rule of ‘divided damages’ in collision cases .... In 1975, in United States v. Reliable Transfer Co., 421 U.S. 397, 95 S.Ct. 1708, 44 L.Ed.2d 251 (1975), the Supreme Court jettisoned that inequitable and illogical rule in favor of proportionate allocation of fault among joint-tortfeasors in collision cases. Each vessel now is liable to the other offending vessel in contribution for that part of the total damages proportionate to its fault, and is liable for its per capita (virile) share only when the respective faults of the vessels are equal, or when proportionate fault can not be ascertained.” Frank L. Maraist, Admiralty in a Nutshell 165 (2d ed. 1988).

liability dividend. See scrip dividend.

liquidation dividend. A dividend paid to a dissolving corporation's shareholders, usu. from the capital of the corporation, upon the decision to suspend all or part of its business operations. — Also termed liquidating dividend. [Cases: Corporations 629. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 875–878.]

nimble dividend. A dividend paid out of current earnings when there is a deficit in the account from which dividends may be paid. • Some state statutes prohibit nimble dividends.

noncumulative dividend. A dividend that does not accrue for the benefit of a preferred shareholder if there is a passed dividend in a particular year or period. Cf. cumulative dividend. [Cases: Corporations 152. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 295–299.]

nonrecurring dividend. See extraordinary dividend.

passed dividend. A dividend that is not paid when due by a company that has a history of paying regular dividends.

preferred dividend. A dividend paid to preferred shareholders, who are generally paid a fixed amount and take priority over common shareholders. [Cases: Corporations 151, 156. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 158, 293.]

property dividend. See asset dividend.

reinvested dividend. A dividend that is used to purchase additional shares in the corporation, instead of being taken in cash by the shareholder. See DIVIDEND-REINVESTMENT PLAN.

scrip dividend. A dividend paid in certificates entitling the holder to ownership of capital stock to be issued in the future. • This type of dividend usu. signals that the corporation's cash flow is poor. — Also termed liability dividend.

special dividend. See extraordinary dividend.

stock dividend. A dividend paid in stock expressed as a percentage of the number of shares already held by a shareholder. [Cases: Corporations 157. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 294, 302–304.]

unpaid dividend. A declared but unpaid dividend.

year-end dividend. An extra dividend paid at the end of the fiscal year depending on the amount of the profits.

DIVINE LAW

divine law.God's law, as distinguished from human law. See NATURAL LAW.

DIVINE RIGHT OF KINGS

divine right of kings.The political theory that the sovereign is a direct representative of God and has the right to rule absolutely by virtue of birth.

“Divine Right of Kings ... originated in the mediaeval concept of God's award of temporal power to civil rulers and spiritual power to the Church. It was claimed by the earlier Stuart kings in England, and explains many of their attitudes in the struggle which developed between them and Parliament for political sovereignty .... The principle of divine right was submerged during the Commonwealth but re-emerged under James II, but disappeared with his flight and abdication.”

---

David M. Walker, The Oxford Companion to Law 366 (1980).

DIVINE SERVICE

divine service. 1.Hist. A feudal tenure in which the tenants were obligated to perform special divine functions, such as singing at a certain number of masses or distributing a specified amount in alms. 2. A public worship service.

 DIVISUM IMPERIUM

divisum imperium (di-vI-z<<schwa>>m im-peer-ee-<<schwa>>m), n.[Latin “a divided empire”] Divided jurisdiction; alternate jurisdiction, as of courts.

“This main sea begins at the low-water-mark. But between the high-water-mark and the low-water-mark, where the sea ebbs and flows, the common law and admiralty have divisum imperium, an alternate jurisdiction; one upon the water, when it is full sea; the other upon the land, when it is an ebb.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 107 (1765).

DIVORCE

divorce. The legal dissolution of a marriage by a court. — Also termed marital dissolution; dissolution of marriage. Cf. ANNULMENT. [Cases: Divorce 1–420. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 2–138, 140–167, 169–196, 198–211, 213–610, 731, 757–766, 768–825, 837–844, 851–861.] — divorce,vb.

“When used without qualification, the term [divorce] imports a dissolution of the marriage relation between husband and wife, that is, a complete severance of the tie by which the parties were united. However, in its common and wider use, the term includes the dissolution of a valid marriage, a formal separation of married persons, and the annulment of a marriage void from the beginning.

“So, while the term ‘divorce’ has sometimes been broadly defined or applied to include both decrees of nullity and decrees of dissolution of marriage, especially where the marriage was not void but only voidable at the option of the injured party, this has been declared to be not in accord with modern usage, and generally, the term denotes only dissolution or suspension of a marital relation, and does not include annulment of an invalid marriage.” 27A C.J.S. Divorce § 2, at 31–32 (1986).absolute divorce.See divorce a vinculo matrimonii.

bifurcated divorce.See divisible divorce.

conditional divorce.See conversion divorce.

contested divorce. 1. A divorce that one spouse opposes in court. 2. A divorce in which the spouses litigate. • In this sense, although both spouses may want the divorce, they disagree on the terms of the divorce decree. Cf. uncontested divorce.

conversion divorce.A divorce granted after (1) a legal separation has been granted or the parties have signed a separation agreement, and (2) the parties have lived separately for a statutorily prescribed period. — Also termed convertible divorce; conditional divorce.

divisible divorce.A divorce whereby the marriage itself is dissolved but the issues incident to the divorce, such as alimony, child custody, and visitation, are reserved until a later proceeding. • This type of divorce can be granted when the court has subject-matter jurisdiction but lacks personal jurisdiction over the defendant-spouse. The doctrine of divisible divorce was recognized by the Supreme Court in Estin v. Estin, 334 U.S. 541, 68 S.Ct. 1213 (1948), and Vanderbilt v. Vanderbilt, 354 U.S. 416, 77 S.Ct. 1360 (1957). — Also termed bifurcated divorce. [Cases:

Divorce 146. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 209–210.]

divorce a mensa et thoro (ay men-s<<schwa>> et thor-oh). [Latin “(divorce) from board and hearth”] Hist. A partial or qualified divorce by which the parties were separated and allowed or ordered to live apart, but remained technically married. • This type of divorce, abolished in England in 1857, was the forerunner of modern judicial separation. — Also termed separation a mensa et thoro; separation from bed and board; limited divorce; legal separation; judicial separation. [Cases: Divorce 155. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 223–225.]

“[The Ecclesiastical Courts] grant also what is called a divorce a mensa et thoro, or rather what we should call a judicial separation, i.e. they release the parties from the duty of living together on grounds of cruelty or misconduct ....” William Geldart, Introduction to English Law 38 (D.C.M. Yardley ed., 9th ed. 1984).

divorce a vinculo matrimonii (ay ving-ky<<schwa>>-loh ma-tr<<schwa>>-moh-nee-I). [Latin “(divorce) from the chains of marriage”] A total divorce of husband and wife, dissolving the marriage tie and releasing the parties wholly from their matrimonial obligations. • At common law, but not always in canon law, this type of divorce bastardized any children from the marriage and was granted on grounds that existed before the marriage. In England, the Matrimonial Causes Act of 1857 introduced statutory divorce a vinculo matrimonii. — Usu. shortened to divorce. — Also termed absolute divorce. Cf. limited divorce. [Cases: Divorce 157. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 223–225.]

Dominican divorce. See Mexican divorce.

ex parte divorce (eks pahr-tee). A divorce proceeding in which only one spouse participates or appears in court. [Cases: Divorce 146. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 209–210.]

fault divorce. A divorce granted to one spouse on the basis of some proven wrongful act (grounds for divorce) by the other spouse. • Although all states now have some form of no-fault divorce, some jurisdictions still consider a spouse's fault in precipitating the divorce, esp. when dividing marital property or when awarding alimony. Traditionally, the common grounds for a fault divorce were adultery, abandonment, imprisonment, and physical or mental cruelty; the defenses to alleged fault in a petition for divorce were condonation, connivance, collusion, recrimination, and insanity. Section 303(e) of the Uniform Marriage and Divorce Act has abolished the defenses to divorce. Cf. no-fault divorce.

foreign divorce. A divorce obtained outside the state or country in which one spouse resides. [Cases: Divorce 351–420. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 769–825, 837–844, 851–861.]

Haitian divorce. See Mexican divorce.

hotel divorce. Slang. A form of collusive divorce — occurring before widespread passage of no-fault divorce laws — in which the spouses agree to fake an adultery scene to create “fault.” Cf. no-fault divorce.

'hotel divorces,' prevalent in jurisdictions where adultery is the only ground for divorce, and based on the principle that intercourse will be presumed from apparently uninhibited opportunity." Henry S. Drinker, Legal Ethics 123–24 (1953).

legislative divorce. Hist. The legal termination of a particular marriage, enacted by the legislature rather than by a court. • In the 18th century, Colonial American legislatures granted these special statutes. In 1816, the House of Burgesses of Virginia granted a divorce to Rachel Robards Jackson, the wife of then President Andrew Jackson, from a former spouse. Mrs. Jackson's untimely death was attributed to her reaction to the scandal that she had married Jackson before the divorce was procured. Now only state courts have authority to grant decrees of divorce. — Also termed parliamentary divorce. [Cases: Divorce 5. C.J.S. Divorce § 4.]

limited divorce. 1. A divorce that ends the legal relationship of marriage by court order but does not address financial support, property distribution, or care and custody of children. • In the days before no-fault divorce, a spouse might seek a quick divorce in a state with a short residency requirement (such as Nevada). Then courts in the home state would give full faith and credit only to the dissolution of the marital res, while maintaining sole jurisdiction over property-division, support, and custody issues. [Cases: Divorce 155. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 223–225.] 2. Loosely, a legal separation. 3. See divorce a mensa et thoro. Cf. divorce a vinculo matrimonii.

mail-order divorce. Slang. A divorce obtained by parties who are not physically present or domiciled in the jurisdiction purporting to grant the divorce. • Such a divorce is not recognized in the United States because of the absence of the usual bases for jurisdiction.

Mexican divorce. A divorce obtained in Mexico by mail order or by the appearance of one spouse who does not have a Mexican domicile. • Neither type is recognized in the United States. — Also termed Dominican divorce (if granted in the Dominican Republic); Haitian divorce (if granted in Haiti).

migratory divorce. A divorce obtained in a jurisdiction other than the marital domicile; esp., a divorce obtained by a spouse who moves to, or temporarily resides in, another state or country to get the divorce.

no-fault divorce. A divorce in which the parties are not required to prove fault or grounds beyond a showing of the irretrievable breakdown of the marriage or irreconcilable differences. • The system of no-fault divorce has been adopted throughout the United States. By 1974, 45 states had adopted no-fault divorce; by 1985, every state but New York had adopted some form of it. In New York — one of the last bastions of fault grounds for divorce — the closest equivalent is a conversion divorce one year after legal separation or a legal-separation agreement. Cf. fault divorce; hotel divorce. [Cases: Divorce 12. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 13–18, 70.]

parliamentary divorce. See legislative divorce.

pro-con divorce. Slang. An uncontested divorce granted after only the plaintiff appears at the proceeding (since the defendant contests nothing).

quickie divorce. Slang. A fast divorce granted with minimal paperwork. — Also termed quick divorce.

rabbinical divorce. A divorce granted under the authority of a rabbi. • This type of divorce affects the relationship of the parties under the tenets of Judaism. It affects particularly a Jewish woman's ability to remarry in accordance with Judaic law. In the United States, it is not generally a divorce recognized in civil courts. — Also termed get.

uncontested divorce. A divorce that is unopposed by the spouse who did not initiate it. Cf. contested divorce.

DIVORCE AGREEMENT

divorce agreement. A contractual agreement that sets out divorcing spouses' rights and responsibilities regarding property, alimony, custody, visitation, and child support. • The divorce agreement usu. becomes incorporated by court order as a part of the divorce decree and thus is enforceable by contempt, among other remedies. — Also termed agreement incident to divorce; marital settlement agreement; separation agreement. Cf. PROPERTY SETTLEMENT.

DIVORCE DECREE

divorce decree. See DECREE.

DIVORCE PROCTOR

divorce proctor. A person (such as a guardian) who is appointed to protect the interest of the state or children in a divorce action. — Sometimes shortened to proctor. [Cases: Infants 76. C.J.S. Infants § 222.]

DIVORTIUM

divortium (di-vor-shee-*<<schwa>>*m), n. [Latin] 1. Roman law. Divorce; a severance of the marriage tie. • In classical law, no grounds were required. Cf. REPUDIUM. 2. Eccles. law. A decree allowing spouses to separate or declaring their marriage invalid.

doctrine of curative admissibility. A rule allowing a party to introduce otherwise inadmissible evidence to remove the prejudice caused by the improper admission of evidence that was offered by the opposing party. • The doctrine applies when a motion to strike cannot cure the prejudice created by the adverse party. — Also termed curative-admissibility doctrine. [Cases: Criminal Law 396; Evidence 155. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 758; Evidence §§ 248–250.]

DOCTRINE OF ELECTION

doctrine of election. A doctrine holding that when a person has contracted with an agent without knowing of the agency and later learns the principal's identity, the person may enforce the contract against the agent or the principal, but not both. See ELECTION(1). [Cases: Principal and Agent 145(4). C.J.S. Agency §§ 416–417.]

DOCTRINE OF ENTIRETIES

doctrine of entireties (en-tī-ē-teez). In customs law, the rule that when an entry consists of parts that assemble to form an article different from any of the parts, the proper classification will be of the whole article, rather than the individual components.

DOCTRINE OF EQUIVALENTS

doctrine of equivalents. Patents. A judicially created theory for finding patent infringement when the accused process or product falls outside the literal scope of the patent claims. • The doctrine evolved to prevent parties from evading liability for patent infringement by making trivial changes to avoid the literal language of the patent claims. Graver Tank & Mfg. Co. v. Linde Air Prods. Co., 339 U.S. 605, 70 S.Ct. 854 (1950). In determining whether infringement exists under the doctrine, the court must first determine whether “the accused product or process contain[s] an element identical or equivalent to each claimed element of the patented invention.” Warner-Jenkinson Co. v. Hilton Davis Chem. Co., 520 U.S. 17, 39–40, 117 S.Ct. 1040, 1054 (1997). If it does, it infringes on the patent if the differing element performs substantially the same function in substantially the same way to get the same result as the patented product or process. Prosecution-history estoppel is not an absolute bar to a patentee who seeks to invoke the doctrine of equivalents to prove infringement on a claim that was voluntarily amended. Festo v. Shoketsu Kinzoku Kogyo Kabushiki Co., 535 U.S. 722, 122 S.Ct. 1831 (2002). — Also termed equivalents doctrine; doctrine of equivalence; doctrine of equivalency; doctrine of substantial equivalents; nonliteral infringement. Cf. literal infringement under INFRINGEMENT. [Cases: Patents 237. C.J.S. Patents §§ 425–426.]

reverse doctrine of equivalents. The doctrine preventing infringement liability when the invention is substantially described by the claims of another's patent but performs the same or similar function in a substantially different way.

DOCTRINE OF ESTATES

doctrine of estates.Hist. The rule that a person cannot own land, but can merely own an estate in it, authorizing the person to hold it for some period of time. • This doctrine answers the question of the duration of an estate. Cf. DOCTRINE OF TENURES.

DOCTRINE OF FINALITY

doctrine of finality.See FINALITY DOCTRINE.

DOCTRINE OF GENERAL AVERAGE

doctrine of general average.Maritime law. A rule allowing a carrier to require cargo owners and the shipowner to contribute pro rata to the cost of protecting the ship and its cargo. [Cases: Shipping 186. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 458–459.]

DOCTRINE OF IDENTIFICATION

doctrine of identification.Hist. English law. The rule that if a person traveling in a conveyance is injured in an accident that occurs because of someone else's negligence, and the driver of the conveyance is contributorily negligent, the passenger cannot claim damages against the tortfeasor since the passenger is “identified” with the contributorily negligent driver. • The leading authority for this doctrine was Thorogood v. Bryan, 8 C.B. 115 (1849), but the Court of Appeal repudiated the doctrine as unsound in The Bernina [1887], 13 App. Cas. 1 (1888).

DOCTRINE OF ILLUSORY COVERAGE

doctrine of illusory coverage.A rule requiring an insurance policy to be interpreted so that it is not merely a delusion to the insured. [Cases: Insurance 2090. C.J.S. Insurance § 58.]

DOCTRINE OF NECESSARIES

doctrine of necessities. 1. The rule holding a parent or spouse liable to anyone who sells goods or provides medical services to that person's child or spouse if the goods or services are required for sustenance, support, or healthcare. 2. Archaic. The common-law rule holding a husband or father liable to anyone who sells goods to his wife or child if the goods are required for sustenance or support. See NECESSARIES. [Cases: Husband and Wife 19.]

DOCTRINE OF NOTICE

doctrine of notice. See NOTICE DOCTRINE.

DOCTRINE OF OBLIGATION

doctrine of obligation. English law. The rule that if a foreign court of competent jurisdiction has adjudicated a certain sum to be due from one person to another, the liability to pay that sum becomes a legal obligation enforceable domestically by a debt action. • Once the plaintiff proves the judgment, the burden shifts to the defendant to show why the obligation should not be performed. The doctrine was established by Baron Parke in Russell v. Smyth, 9 M. & W. 810, 819 (1842). — Often shortened to obligation.

DOCTRINE OF OPTIONAL COMPLETENESS

doctrine of optional completeness. See RULE OF OPTIONAL COMPLETENESS.

DOCTRINE OF SUBSTITUTED JUDGMENT

doctrine of substituted judgment. See SUBSTITUTED-JUDGMENT DOCTRINE.

DOCTRINE OF SUPERIOR EQUITIES

doctrine of superior equities. Insurance. A rule by which an insurer is unable to recover from anyone whose equities are equal or superior to the insurer's; esp., a rule that a right of subrogation may be invoked against another party only if that party's guilty conduct renders the party's equity inferior to that of the insured. — Also termed risk-stops-here rule. [Cases: Insurance 3517; Subrogation 1. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1476, 1482, 1484, 1487; Subrogation §§ 2–15, 19, 91.]

DOCTRINE OF TENURES

doctrine of tenures.Hist. The rule that all land is held of the Crown, either directly or indirectly, on some type of tenure. • This doctrine answers the question of the manner in which an estate is held. — Also termed doctrine of tenure. Cf. DOCTRINE OF ESTATES.

DOCTRINE OF THE CONCLUSIVENESS OF THE JUDGMENT

doctrine of the conclusiveness of the judgment.See judicial estoppel under ESTOPPEL.

DOCTRINE OF THE LAST ANTECEDENT

doctrine of the last antecedent.See RULE OF THE LAST ANTECEDENT.

D'OENCH DUHME<TT> DOCTRINE

D'Oench Duhme doctrine (dench doom). The rule that estops a borrower from asserting a claim or defense against a federal successor to a failed financial institution — if the claim or defense is based on a side or secret agreement or representation — unless the agreements or representations have been (1) put into writing, (2) executed by the financial institution and borrower when the loan was issued, (3) approved by the financial institution's board of directors or loan committee, and (4) made a permanent part of the financial institution's records.D'Oench, Duhme & Co. v. FDIC, 315 U.S. 447, 62 S.Ct. 676 (1942) (now partially codified at 12 USCA § 1823(e), and otherwise of questionable standing in light of O'Melveny & Myers v. FDIC, 512 U.S. 79, 114 S.Ct. 2048 (1994)). [Cases: Banks and Banking 505. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 673, 676–679, 682–687, 690–694, 696, 699–705, 708–717.]

DO EQUITY

do equity.(Of one who seeks an equitable remedy) to treat or offer to treat the other party as fairly as is necessary, short of abandoning one's own legal rights, to bring about a fair result. • The phrase derives from the maxim “One who seeks equity must do equity.” See CLEAN-HANDS DOCTRINE.

D'OFFICE

d'office (daw-fees). [Law French] Of office; officially. • This is similar to the Latin phrase ex officio.

DOLE-MOOR

dole-moor. See DOLE-LAND.

DOLE&lt;TT&gt; TEST

Dole test. A four-part test used to determine the constitutionality of a condition attached by Congress under its Spending Clause power to the receipt of federal money. • The spending must be in pursuit of the general welfare, and the condition must be unambiguous, related to some federal interest, and not barred by any other provision of the Constitution. South Dakota v. Dole, 483 U.S. 203, 107 S.Ct. 2793 (1987).

DOLI CAPAX

doli capax (doh-llkay-paks), adj.[Latin “capable of wrong”] Roman law. Capable of committing a crime or tort; esp., old enough to determine right from wrong. — Also termed capax doli. Cf. DOLI INCAPAX.

“In criminal cases, an infant of the age of fourteen years may be capitally punished for any capital offence: but under the age of seven he cannot. The period between seven and fourteen is subject to much uncertainty: for the infant shall, generally speaking, be judged prima facie innocent; yet if he was doli capax, and could discern between good and evil at the time of the offence committed, he may be convicted and undergo judgment and execution of death, though he hath not attained to years of puberty or discretion.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 452–53 (1765).

DOLI INCAPAX

doli incapax (doh-II in-kay-paks), adj.[Latin “incapable of wrong”] Roman law. Incapable of committing a crime or tort. — Also termed incapax doli. Cf. DOLI CAPAX.

DOLUS

dolus (doh-l<<schwa>>s). [Latin “device; artifice”] Roman & civil law. 1. Fraud or deceit; conduct intended to deceive someone; bad faith. • Although there may be dolus without fraud, fraud always includes dolus. Cf. CASUS(1); CULPA(1).2. Intentional aggression; willful injury, esp. to another's property. — Also termed dolus malus; fraus.

“In the twelfth century the resuscitated Roman law introduced some new ideas. Men began to contrast, as Glanvill does, civil with criminal causes, to speak of dolus and culpa and casus, and to lay stress on the psychical element in crime.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 477 (2d ed. 1899).

“Although the word malitia is not unknown to the Roman lawyers, the usual and technical name for wrongful intent is dolus, or more specifically dolus malus. Dolus and culpa are two forms of mens rea. In a narrower sense, however, dolus includes merely that particular variety of wrongful intent which we term fraud — that is to say, the intent to deceive. From this limited sense it was extended to cover all forms of wilful wrongdoing. The English term fraud has never received an equally wide extension.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 385 (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

dolus bonus (doh-l<<schwa>>s boh-n<<schwa>>s). [Latin “good deceit”] Shrewdness or justifiable deceit, as when a person lies to an attacker to prevent an assault. • Dolus bonus does not produce any legal consequences.

dolus dans locum contractui (doh-l<<schwa>>s danz loh-k<<schwa>>m k<<schwa>>n-trak-choo-I). [Latin] Fraud (or deceit) giving rise to the contract; specif., a fraudulent misrepresentation that, having been made by one of the parties to the contract and relied on by the other, was actually instrumental in inducing the latter to enter into the contract.

dolus incidens (doh-l<<schwa>>s in-si-denz). [Law Latin] Hist. Fraud incidental; fraud that does not affect the essential terms of an agreement.

dolus malus (doh-l<<schwa>>s mal-<<schwa>>s). [Latin “bad or evil deceit”] Evil or fraudulent design or intent; an unjustifiable deceit.

DOMBOC

domboc. See DOOMBOOK.

DOMBROWSKI<TT> DOCTRINE

Dombrowski doctrine. A short-lived rule that entitled a person to seek a federal-court injunction to prevent prosecution under a broad or vague state statute that affects rights guaranteed by the First Amendment. Dombrowski v. Pfister, 380 U.S. 479, 85 S.Ct. 1116 (1965). • The doctrine was greatly cut back six years after it was announced, when the Supreme Court ruled that a speculative First Amendment chilling effect does not justify federal-court intervention in state affairs. Younger v. Harris, 401 U.S. 37, 91 S.Ct. 746 (1971). [Cases: Courts 508. C.J.S. Courts §§ 216, 218–219.]

DOMESTIC-RELATIONS COURT

domestic-relations court. See family court under COURT.

DOMESTIC-RELATIONS EXCEPTION

domestic-relations exception. The exclusion of suits regarding the granting of divorce, alimony, and child custody from federal diversity jurisdiction. • The domestic-relations exemption to federal diversity jurisdiction originated as dictum in Barber v. Barber, 62 U.S. (21 How.) 582 (1858). Federal courts do not have jurisdiction to grant divorces, award alimony, or determine child custody. In general, matters of domestic relations are left to the states. But the federal courts may hear other diversity matters involving family members, such as tort claims or suits seeking to enforce alimony orders. Ankenbrandt v. Richards, 504 U.S. 689, 112 S.Ct. 2206 (1992).

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE

domestic violence. See VIOLENCE.

DOMICELLUS

domicellus (dom-<<schwa>>-sel-<<schwa>>s), n. [Law Latin] Hist. 1. A king's natural son in France. 2. A young lord.

“Domicellus, Is an old obsolete ... Word, anciently given as an Appellation or Addition to the King's natural Sons in France, and sometimes to the eldest Sons of Noblemen there; from whence we borrowed these Additions: As several natural Children of John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, are stiled Domicelli by the Charter of Legitimation.... But according to Thorn, the Domicelli were only the better Sort of Servants in Monasteries.” Giles Jacob, A New Law-Dictionary (8th ed. 1762).

DOMICILE

domicile (dom-<<schwa>>-sII), n.1. The place at which a person has been physically present and that the person regards as home; a person's true, fixed, principal, and permanent home, to which that person intends to return and remain even though currently residing elsewhere. • A person has a settled connection with his or her domicile for legal purposes, either because that place is home or because the law has so designated that place. — Also termed permanent abode. [Cases: Domicile 1. C.J.S. Domicile §§ 2–3, 5, 11.]

“By domicile we mean home, the permanent home; and if you do not understand your permanent home, I am afraid that no illustration drawn from foreign writers or foreign languages will very much help you to it.” Whicker v. Hume [1858] 7 H.L.C. 124, 160(per Lord Cranworth).

“It is difficult to give a definition of domicil that will cover at once domicil by operation of law and domicil by choice. The idea of domicil certainly includes the idea of place and the idea of settled connection with the place. Domicil of choice is so closely connected with the idea of home that it seems desirable to include that idea in any definition, and yet the idea is not applicable to many kinds of domicil by operation of law. It has therefore seemed best to state this element in the alternative. If a home is in the place, that is sufficient. If there is no home, or if the party is not sui juris, then the place is assigned by law without his will.” 1 Joseph H. Beale, A Treatise on the Conflict of Laws § 9.1, at 89–90 (1935).

“A person's domicile is the place with which that person is most closely associated — his or her ‘home’ with all the connotations of that word. A person can be domiciled in a nation, a state of the United States, a city, or a house within a city. He or she can have a domicile within a broader geographical designation without having a domicile in a narrower geographical designation. For example, a person may be domiciled in a state without being domiciled within any particular city within the state. For interstate choice-of-law purposes, it is the state in which a person is domiciled that is significant.” Russell J. Weintraub, Commentary on the Conflict of Laws § 2.2, at 14 (4th ed. 2001).

2. The residence of a person or corporation for legal purposes. — Also termed (in sense 2) legal residence; domicile by operation of law. Cf. RESIDENCE; PLACE OF BUSINESS. — Also spelled (in BrE) domicil. “Tax statutes frequently speak in terms of residence, intending it to be the equivalent of domicile. For example, the New York estate tax speaks in terms of residence and non-residence. Similarly ..., the United States imposes an estate tax on any resident or citizen of the U.S. Although both statutes use the term ‘residence,’ its usage has been construed to mean ‘domicile.’ ” Robert C. Lawrence III, International Tax and Estate Planning § 1.03(a)(4), at 8–9 (1989).

after-acquired domicile. A domicile established after the facts relevant to an issue arose. • An after-acquired domicile cannot be used to establish jurisdiction or choice of law.

commercial domicile. 1. A domicile acquired by a nonresident corporation conducting enough activities to permit taxation of the corporation's property or activities located outside the bounds of the taxing state. 2. A domicile acquired by a person or company freely residing or carrying on business in enemy territory or enemy-occupied territory. — Also termed quasi-domicile.

corporate domicile. The place considered by law as the center of corporate affairs, where the corporation's functions are discharged; the legal home of a corporation, usu. its state of incorporation or the state in which it maintains its principal place of business. • For purposes of determining whether diversity jurisdiction exists in federal court, a corporation is considered a citizen of both its state of incorporation and the state of its principal place of business. See DIVERSITY OF CITIZENSHIP. [Cases: Corporations 52, 503(1); Taxation 397, 1016. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 107–109, 717, 886; Taxation §§ 577–579, 1708.]

domicile of birth. See domicile of origin.

domicile of choice. 1. A domicile established by physical presence within a state or territory, coupled with the intention to make it home. [Cases: Domicile 4. C.J.S. Domicile § 8.] 2. The domicile that a person chooses after reaching majority or being emancipated.

domicile of origin. The domicile of a person at birth, derived from the custodial parent or imposed by law. — Also termed natural domicile; domicile of birth; original domicile. See necessary domicile. [Cases: Domicile 3. C.J.S. Domicile §§ 6–7.]

“Domicil is sometimes divided into domicil of birth, that by operation of law, and that of choice. Domicil of origin in modern times is domicil in the place where his parents at his birth were domiciled.” Theodore D. Woolsey, Introduction to the Study of International Law § 71, at 105 n.2 (5th ed. 1878).

“Domicile of origin is the domicile the law assigns to each person at birth, usually the domicile of the father in the case of a legitimate child and of the mother in the case of an illegitimate child. Domicile of origin has particular significance in English law. If one abandons one's domicile of choice without attaining a new one, the domicile of origin ‘revives’ until a new domicile of choice is attained. In contrast, U.S. jurisdictions generally will not find a domicile abandoned until a new one has been adopted.” Robert C. Lawrence III, International Tax and Estate Planning § 1.03(a)(1), at 4 (1989).

domicile of succession. The domicile that determines the succession of a person's estate.

domicile of trustee. The domicile where a trustee is appointed. [Cases: Trusts 113. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion §§ 220–223.]

elected domicile. A contractually agreed domicile between parties for purposes of the contract.

foreign domicile. A domicile established by a citizen or subject of one sovereignty within the territory of another.

matrimonial domicile. A domicile that a husband and wife, as a married couple, have established as their home. — Also termed marital domicile; matrimonial home. [Cases: Divorce 62. C.J.S. Divorce § 99.]

municipal domicile. A person's residence in a county or municipality, as distinguished from the person's state or national domicile.

national domicile. A domicile considered in terms of a particular nation rather than a locality or subdivision of a nation.

natural domicile. See domicile of origin.

necessary domicile. A domicile legally fixed and independent of choice, as in the domicile of origin. See domicile of origin.

original domicile. See domicile of origin.

quasi-domicile. See commercial domicile.

quasi-national domicile. A person's state of residence, as distinguished from the person's national or local domicile.

DOMINATIO

dominatio (dom-<<schwa>>-nay-shee-oh), n.[Latin] Hist. Lordship; rule.

DOMINATION

domination.Patents. The effect that an earlier patent (usu. a basic one) has on a later patent (esp. one for improvements on the patented device) because the earlier patent's claims are so broad or generic that the later patent's invention will always read on the earlier patent's claims, resulting in infringement. • Because the patent system is based on exclusion of others from an invention's subject matter, the earlier, basic patent's claims "dominate" the later-invented improvement. If the improvement is patented and worked, it infringes the basic patent. But the basic patent's owner cannot practice the improvement without infringing on the improvement's patent. This standoff effect encourages improvement- and basic-patentees to seek licenses or cross-licenses with each other. See blocking patent under PATENT(3).

DOMINICAL

dominical (d<<schwa>>-min-<<schwa>>-k<<schwa>>l), adj. Of or relating to a Sunday; of or relating to the Lord's day.

DOMINION

dominion. 1. Control; possession <dominion over the car>. 2. Sovereignty <dominion over the nation>. 3. FOREIGN DOMINION.

DOMINIUM

dominium (d<<schwa>>-min-ee-<<schwa>>m), n. [fr. Latin dominus "lord"] 1. Roman & civil law. Absolute ownership including the right to possession and use; a right of control over property that the holder might retain or transfer at pleasure. • Dominium was subject to any servitudes, planning restrictions, etc. This term gradually came to also mean merely ownership of property, as distinguished from the right to possession or use.

"Dominium is the Roman term for the rights of an owner against all the world: and the contrast of dominium and obligatio is the nearest approach that can be made, in classical Roman language, to the distinction marked by the modern terms in rem and in personam." Frederick Pollock, A First Book of Jurisprudence 83 (1896).

"The one word dominium has to assume so many shades of meaning. The tenant qui tenet terram in dominio, is dominus rei and has dominium rei; but then he has above him one who is his dominus, and for the rights of this lord over him and over his land there is no other name than dominium." 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 4 (2d ed. 1899).

dominium directum (d<<schwa>>-min-ee-<<schwa>>m di-rek-t<<schwa>>m), n.[Law Latin] 1.Civil law. Legal, not equitable, ownership. 2.Feudal law. The right of the superior of land over a tenant.

dominium directum et utile (d<<schwa>>-min-ee-<<schwa>>m di-rek-t<<schwa>>m et yoo-t<<schwa>>-lee), n.[Law Latin] Civil law. Complete ownership of property, including both title and exclusive use.

dominium eminens (d<<schwa>>-min-ee-<<schwa>>m em-<<schwa>>-nenz), n.[Law Latin] Civil law. Eminent domain. See EMINENT DOMAIN.

dominium ex jure quiritium (d<<schwa>>-min-ee-<<schwa>>m eks joor-ee kwI-rish-ee-<<schwa>>m).Roman law. Ownership exercised by Roman citizens in the most complete manner (pleno jure), the property being domestic (not foreign) and having been acquired according to all the forms of law. — Also termed dominium quiritarium; dominium legitimum.

dominium legitimum (l<<schwa>>-jit-i-m<<schwa>>m). See dominium ex jure quiritium.

dominium plenum (d<<schwa>>-min-ee-<<schwa>>m plee-n<<schwa>>m), n.[Law Latin] Civil law. Full ownership combining dominium directum and dominium utile. — Also termed plenum dominium.

dominium quiritarium (d<<schwa>>-min-ee-<<schwa>>m kwI-r<<schwa>>-tair-ee-<<schwa>>m). See dominium ex jure quiritium.

dominium utile (d<<schwa>>-min-ee-<<schwa>>m yoo-t<<schwa>>-lee), n.[Law Latin] Civil law. Equitable ownership; a beneficial right to use property; the right of a tenant to use the soil and its profits.

“The special characteristic of Feudal land was that ownership in it was split into two kinds, the dominium directum of the superior (lord) and the dominium utile of the vassal. The feudists correctly insisted that this was not a form of joint ownership, not yet of ownership burdened with an easement or a ‘usufruct,’ but that two kinds of ownership were present, and that each of these persons, the lord and the vassal, was properly called ‘owner’ or dominus. The lord's dominium directum gave him a reversion in the case of forfeiture of failure of issue and the enjoyment of whatever the naturalia and accidentalia were. The vassal's dominium utile gave him the immediate enjoyment of the land itself.” Max Radin, Handbook of Anglo-American Legal History 148 (1936).

nudum dominium (n[y]oo-d<<schwa>>m d<<schwa>>-min-ee-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “bare ownership”] Roman law. Ownership divorced from present possession or use.

plenum dominium.See dominium plenum.

2.Hist. Lordship; sovereignty.“The Latin word for ownership, dominium, is particularly confusing, since in medieval times it is also the word for lordship.” J.H. Baker, An Introduction to English Legal History 255 (3d ed. 1990).

DOMINO VOLENTE

domino volente (dom-<<schwa>>-noh v<<schwa>>-len-tee). [Law Latin “the owner being willing”] With the owner's consent.

DOMINUS

dominus (dom-<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>s), n.[Latin “lord”] 1.Roman law. An owner of a thing or inheritance. 2.Roman law. The title of the emperor in the later empire. 3.Hist. #### DOOM doom, n. Hist. 1.A statute or law. 2. A judgment; esp., a sentence in a criminal matter. 3. Justice; fairness. 4. A trial; the process of adjudicating.

“The word ‘doom’ is, perhaps, best translated as ‘judgment.’ It survived in occasional use until the fourteenth century. Wyclif’s translation of the Bible, rendering the verse, ‘For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged,’ as ‘For in what dome ye demen, ye schuln be demed.’ The distinction which we make to-day between the legislator, who makes the law, and the judge, who interprets, declares and applies it, was not known to our Anglo-Saxon ancestors. The dooms were judgments in the sense that they were declarations of the law of the people.” W.J.V. Windeyer, Lectures on Legal History 1 (2d ed. 1949).

DORMANT TITLE

dormant title.See TITLE(2).

DORSUM

dorsum (dor-s<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Hist. The back. • This term usu. appeared as part of the phrase in dorso to indicate that an instrument had been signed on the back. In dorso recordi, for example, meant “on the back of the record.”

“In the first place then the payee, or person to whom or whose order such bill of exchange or promissory note is payable, may by endorsement, or writing his name in dorso or on the back of it, assign over his whole property to the bearer, or else to another person by name ....” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 468 (1766).

DOS

dos (dos), n.[Latin] 1.Roman law. Dowry.

“Dos was a gift made to the husband on the part of the wife as her contribution towards the expenses of the joint establishment. It was made by the wife or by another person on her behalf, usually before marriage and conditionally on the marriage taking place; but it might also be made or increased after marriage.” R.W. Lee, The Elements of Roman Law 150 (4th ed. 1956).

dos adventitia (dos ad-ven-tish-ee-<<schwa>>). [Latin] Roman law. A dowry brought by a bride to her husband when furnished by someone other than the bride or her father.

dos profectitia (dos proh-fek-tish-ee-<<schwa>>). [Latin] Roman law. A dowry brought by a bride to her husband when furnished by the bride's father or the bride herself.

dos receptitia (dos ree-sep-tish-ee-<<schwa>>). [Latin] Roman law. A dowry (whether adventitia or profectitia) that is specially stipulated to be returnable to the giver when the marriage ends.

DOTAL

dotal (doht-<<schwa>>l), adj. Of or relating to dowry. See DOWRY.

DOTALITIUM

dotalitium (doh-t<<schwa>>-lish-ee-<<schwa>>m), n.[Law Latin] Hist. Dower.

“[S]ome have ascribed the introduction of dower to the Normans, as a branch of their local tenures; though we cannot expect any feudal reason for its invention, since it was not a part of the pure, primitive, simple law of feuds, but was first of all introduced into that system (wherein it was called ...dotalitium) by the emperor Frederick the second; who was contemporary with our king Henry III. It is possible therefore that it might be with us the relic of a Danish custom: since, according to the historians of that country, dower was introduced into Denmark by Swein, the father of our Canute the great, out of gratitude to the Danish ladies, who sold all their jewels to ransom him when taken prisoner by the Vandals." 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 129–30 (1766).

DOUBLE VALUE

double value. Twice the value of something; specif., a penalty payable by a tenant to a landlord of twice the yearly value of lands held by the tenant, who refused to leave when the landlord provided written notice of intent to possess the property. • The penalty was provided under the Landlord and Tenant Act (1730). St. 4 Geo. 2. ch. 28, § 1. [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 216. C.J.S. Landlord and Tenant §§ 547–551.]

DOUBLE VOUCHER

double voucher. In a common-recovery suit, a voucher first by the fictitious tenant to the real tenant, and then by the real tenant to the common vouchee. See COMMON RECOVERY.

“The recovery, here described, is with a single voucher only; but sometimes it is with double... or farther voucher, as the exigency of the case may require. And indeed it is now usual always to have a recovery with double voucher at the least; by first conveying an estate of freehold to any indifferent person, against whom the praecipe is brought; and then he vouches the tenant in tail, who vouches over the common vouchee. For, if a recovery be had immediately against tenant in tail, it bars only such estate in the premises of which he is then actually seised; whereas if the recovery be had against another person, and the tenant in tail be vouched, it bars every latent right and interest which he may have in the lands recovered.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 359 (1766).

dowager (dow-<<schwa>>-j<<schwa>>r). A widow holding property or title — esp. a life estate in real property — received from her deceased husband.

DOWAGER-QUEEN

dowager-queen. The widow of the king of England. — Also termed queen dowager. See QUEEN MOTHER.

“A queen dowager is the widow of the king, and as such enjoys most of the privileges belonging to her as queen consort. But it is not high treason to conspire her death; or to violate her chastity ... because the succession to the crown is not thereby endangered. Yet still, ... no man can marry a queen dowager without special licence from the king, on pain of forfeiting his lands and goods.... A queen dowager, when married again to a subject, doth not lose her regal dignity, as peeresses dowager do their peerage when they marry commoners.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 217 (1765).

DOWER

dower (dow-<<schwa>>r). At common law, a wife's right, upon her husband's death, to a life estate in one-third of the land that he owned in fee. • With few exceptions, the wife could not be deprived of dower by any transfer made by her husband during his lifetime. Although most states have abolished dower, many states retaining the concept have expanded the wife's share to a life estate in all the land that her husband owned in fee. — Also termed dowment; maritagium. Cf.

dower ad ostium ecclesiae (ad ahs-tee-<<schwa>>m e-kee-z[h]ee-ee), n.[Law Latin “dower at the church door”] Hist. An endowment of dower made by a man to his wife at the church door or porch, usu. as part of the marriage ceremony.

“DOWER AD OSTIUM ECCLESIAE.... This appears to have been the original English dower .... It was formerly the most usual species of dower, and, though latterly fallen into disuse, was not abolished until the statute of 3 & 4 Will. IV. c. 105, s. 13 .... The wife might be endowed of personalty or goods as well as of lands, and a trace of this ancient kind of dower is still distinctly preserved in the marriage ritual of the church of England, in the expression ‘with all my worldly goods I thee endow.’ ” 1 Alexander M. Burrill, A Law Dictionary and Glossary 520 (2d ed. 1867).

dower by custom.Hist. Dower that is determined by custom rather than the general law. — Also termed dower by particular custom.

“Dower by ...custom; as that the wife shall have half the husband's lands, or in some places the whole, and in some only a quarter.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 132 (1766).

dower by particular custom.See dower by custom.

dower by the common law.The regular dower, consisting of a life interest in one-third of the lands that the husband held in fee. — Also termed dos rationabilis (dos rash-[ee]-<<schwa>>-nab-<<schwa>>-l<<schwa>>s). [Cases: Dower and Curtesy 10, 11. C.J.S. Dower §§ 10, 12–29, 140, 147–152.]

DRAGO DOCTRINE

Drago doctrine.The principle asserted by Luis Drago, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Argentine Republic, in a December 29, 1902 letter to the Argentine Minister in Washington, in which Drago, in response to the forcible coercion of Venezuela's unpaid loans by Great Britain and others, argued that no public debt should be collected from a sovereign state by force or through the occupation of American territory by a foreign power. • The subject was presented at the Hague Conference of 1907, when a modified version of the Drago doctrine was adopted.

DRAIN

drain,n.1. The act of drawing a liquid off gradually; the act of emptying. 2. The act of gradually exhausting. 3. A conduit for draining liquid, as a ditch or a pipe.

drain,vb.1. To draw (a liquid) off gradually <the farmer drained water from the property>.2.

To exhaust gradually <the facility has drained the area's natural resources>.3. To empty gradually <the water drained>.

DRAINAGE DISTRICT

drainage district.A political subdivision authorized to levy assessments for making drainage improvements within its area. [Cases: Drains 12.C.J.S. Drains § 8.]

“In the United States there are numerous special districts that administer drainage projects. They are typically formed under state law after a local election or petition showing consent of a majority of affected landowners. The projects are usually publicly financed, and assessments are made against all property benefited, whether or not all individual landowners have consented. Such projects can increase the agricultural capacity of drained lands and provide ‘new’ land for buildings and other improvements .... Special statutes governing drainage districts generally exempt them from restraints .... But if private property rights are taken or if others are damaged, compensation must be paid.” David H. Getches, Water Law in a Nutshell 301 (3d ed. 1997).

DRAINAGE RIGHTS

drainage rights.The interest that a property owner has in the natural drainage and flow of water on the land. [Cases: Waters and Water Courses 116.C.J.S. Waters §§ 255, 277–279.]

DRAM

dram (dram).1. An apothecary measurement of fluid equal to an eighth of an ounce. [Cases: Weights and Measures 3. C.J.S. Weights and Measures § 3.] 2. A small amount of anything, esp. liquor.

DRAMA

drama,n.1. A presentation of a story portrayed by words and actions or actions alone; a play. Cf. DRAMATIC COMPOSITION.

“The term [drama] is applied to compositions which imitate action by representing the personages introduced in them as real and as employed in the action itself. The varieties of the drama differ more or less widely, both as to the objects imitated and as to the means used in the imitation. But they all agree as to the method or manner which is essential to the dramatic art, viz., imitation in the way of action.” 7 Encyclopaedia Britannica 338 (9th ed. 1907).

2. An event or series of events having conflicting and exciting elements that capture people's attention.

DRAMATIC COMPOSITION

dramatic composition.Copyright. A literary work setting forth a story, incident, or scene intended to be performed by actors, often with a musical accompaniment. Cf. DRAMA(1). [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 7. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property § 13.]

DRAM SHOP

dram shop. Archaic. A place where alcoholic beverages are sold; a bar or saloon. — Also spelled dram-shop; dramshop. — Also termed grog-shop; drinking shop.

DRAM-SHOP ACT

dram-shop act. A statute allowing a plaintiff to recover damages from a commercial seller of alcoholic beverages for the plaintiff's injuries caused by a customer's intoxication. — Also termed civil-liability act; civil-damage law. [Cases: Intoxicating Liquors 282–324. C.J.S. Intoxicating Liquors §§ 428–463.]

“Largely at the behest of the temperance movement, statutes (called ‘dram shop acts’) were enacted in many states which imposed some form of civil liability on those engaged in the business of selling such beverages in favor of third persons injured thereby .... At one time, almost half the states had such laws; today, that number seems to be declining.... A growing minority of states have overthrown the common law rule and have created a common law dram shop action. In most of these jurisdictions, liability is predicated on statutes which regulate the liquor business and prohibit certain sales by liquor licensees (to minors, intoxicated persons, etc.) thus, where the sale is unlawful, it is negligence per se ....” Edward J. Kionka, Torts in a Nutshell 293–94 (2d ed. 1992).

DRAM-SHOP LIABILITY

dram-shop liability. Civil liability of a commercial seller of alcoholic beverages for personal injury caused by an intoxicated customer. • Claims based on a similar type of liability have been brought against private citizens for personal injury caused by an intoxicated social guest. [Cases: Intoxicating Liquors 282–324. C.J.S. Intoxicating Liquors §§ 428–463.]

DRAW

draw, vb. 1. To create and sign (a draft) <draw a check to purchase goods>. 2. To prepare or frame (a legal document) <draw up a will>. 3. #### DRAWER drawer. One who directs a person or entity, usu. a bank, to pay a sum of money stated in an instrument — for example, a person who writes a check; the maker of a note or draft. See MAKER. [Cases: Banks and Banking 137; Bills and Notes 23. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 328, 330; Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 9, 18, 20–21.]

DRAWING

drawing. 1. Patents. A specially prepared figure included with a patent application to explain and describe the invention. • A drawing is required when necessary to understand the invention. 35 USCA § 113. [Cases: Patents 100. C.J.S. Patents § 143.] 2. Trademarks. A graphic or textual depiction of a trademark, filed as part of an application for the mark to be placed on the primary register. • The drawing serves as the element that is published in the Official Gazette. It must include the applicant's name and address, the type of goods or services it will identify, and the date of first use or a statement of intent to use it in commerce. [Cases: Trade Regulation 212. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 176–177.]

formal drawing. A drawing that complies with the formatting requirements of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, as set forth in 37 CFR § 1.84, and is stamped “Approved” by the PTO Drafter. Cf. informal drawing.

front-page drawing. A drawing submitted with the patent application and selected by the examiner as the application's representative drawing. • The drawing is reproduced on the front page of the published application or patent. [Cases: Patents 100. C.J.S. Patents § 143.]

informal drawing. A drawing that does not comply with the formatting requirements of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. • A drawing may be submitted as informal by the patent applicant, or declared informal by the PTO Drafter. Cf. formal drawing.

original drawing. A drawing submitted with the original application.

special-form drawing. A drawing of a trademark that contains some graphical element, such as a logo, a picture, or a special type style. • A stylized or special-form drawing must be submitted in black-and-white, with a description of the colors to be used on the final mark. — Also termed stylized drawing.

substitute drawing. A drawing submitted after the original application has been filed. • A substitute drawing is often a formal drawing filed to replace an informal drawing.

typed drawing. A drawing of a trademark that is purely textual, with no graphical component. • A typed drawing consists solely of the words, letters, and numbers that make up the mark, typed in all capitals. — Also termed typed-form drawing.

---

DRAWING LOTS

drawing lots. An act of selection or decision-making based on pure chance, with the result depending on the particular lot drawn. • Jurors are usu. instructed by the court not to base their verdict on drawing lots or similar methods of chance.

DRAWLATCH

drawlatch. Hist. A thief; a robber who waits until homes are empty, then draws the homes' door latches to steal what is inside.

DRAYAGE

drayage. A charge for transporting property.

DRE

DRE. abbr. DRUG-RECOGNITION EXPERT.

DREAD-DISEASE INSURANCE

dread-disease insurance. See INSURANCE.

DREIT DREIT

dreit dreit. See DROIT-DROIT.

D REORGANIZATION

D reorganization. See REORGANIZATION(2).

DRIFT OF THE FOREST

drift of the forest. Hist. A periodic examination of forest cattle by officers who drive them to an enclosed place to determine their ownership or common status.

“Drift of the forest is nothing else but an exact view or examination taken once, twice, or oftener in a year as occasion shall require, what beasts there are in the forest, to the end that the common in the forest be not overcharged, that the beasts of foreigners that have no common there be not permitted, and that beasts not commonable may be put out.” Termes de la Ley 185–87 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

DRIFT-STUFF

drift-stuff. Any material floating at random in water without a discoverable source. • Drift-stuff is usu. the property of the riparian owner.

DRILLING CONTRACT

drilling contract. Oil & gas. A well-drilling agreement between a drilling contractor, who owns drilling rigs and associated equipment, and the owner or lessor of the mineral rights. • The contract spells out the rights and duties of the parties. In general, the more control the interest-owner retains over the contractor, the more liability the owner is exposed to for damages the drilling causes.

---

daywork drilling contract. Oil & gas. A contract under which the lease operator hires a drilling rig and oilfield workers, pays an amount based on the time spent in drilling operations, and retains the right to direct drilling operations. • This type of contract gives the lease operator broad control over the drilling contractor, so courts in turn impose broad liability on the lease operator for any damages that result from the drilling. Cf. footage drilling contract; turnkey drilling contract.

footage drilling contract. Oil & gas. A drilling contract under which the drilling contractor is paid to drill to a specified formation or depth, is paid a set amount per foot drilled, and is given broad control over how to do the work. • The risk of unexpected delays, as well as most liabilities, is on the contractor rather than the lease operator under this type of contract. Cf. daywork drilling contract; turnkey drilling contract.

turnkey drilling contract. Oil & gas. A drilling contract under which the drilling contractor promises to perform specified functions for an agreed price. • The lease operator has little or no discretion to control the drilling contractor, and so assumes little or no liability for damages that the drilling may cause. Cf. daywork drilling contract; footage drilling contract.

DRILLING-DELAY RENTAL CLAUSE

drilling-delay rental clause. Oil & gas. A provision in an oil-and-gas lease giving the lessee the right to maintain the lease from period to period during the primary term by paying delay rentals instead of starting drilling operations. • Lessees use drilling-delay rental clauses because courts have said that they obviate any implied covenant to drill a test well on the premises. They are accepted by lessors because they provide for periodic income from the lease. See “or”lease, “unless”lease under LEASE. [Cases: Mines and Minerals 78.1(3). C.J.S. Mines and Minerals §§ 269–270.]

“The purpose of the lease drilling-delay rental clause is to ensure that the lessee has no obligation to drill during the primary term by negating any implied obligation to test the premises. Before drilling-delay rental clauses became common in oil and gas leases, many courts held that lessees had an implied duty to drill a test well on the leased premises within a reasonable time after grant of the lease. The rationale for the implied covenant was that the major consideration for the grant of the lease by the lessor was the expectation that the property would be tested within a reasonable time. The courts' determination of what was a reasonable time ranged from a few months to several years, depending upon the circumstances. Lessees found that they could not rely upon a long stated term alone to preserve their rights.” John S. Lowe, Oil and Gas Law in a Nutshell 195–96 (3d ed. 1995).

DRIVER'S LICENSE

driver's license.The state-issued certificate authorizing a person to operate a motor vehicle. [Cases: Automobiles 136. C.J.S. Motor Vehicles §§ 22, 257, 259–261, 277–279.]

DRIVING

driving.n. The act of directing the course of something, such as an automobile or a herd of animals.

DRIVING UNDER THE INFLUENCE

driving under the influence.The offense of operating a motor vehicle in a physically or mentally impaired condition, esp. after consuming alcohol or drugs. • Generally, this is a lesser offense than driving while intoxicated. But in a few jurisdictions the two are synonymous. — Abbr. DUI. — Also termed driving while ability-impaired (DWAI); driving under the influence of liquor (DUIL); driving while intoxicated (DWI); operating under the influence (OUI); operating while intoxicated (OWI); operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated (OMVI); operating a motor vehicle under the influence (OMVUI). Cf. DRIVING WHILE INTOXICATED. [Cases: Automobiles 332.C.J.S. Motor Vehicles §§ 1382–1394.]

DRIVING WHILE ABILITY-IMPAIRED driving while ability-impaired.See DRIVING UNDER THE INFLUENCE.

DRIVING WHILE INTOXICATED driving while intoxicated. 1. The offense of operating a motor vehicle in a physically or mentally impaired condition after consuming enough alcohol to raise one's blood alcohol content above the statutory limit (.08% in many states), or after consuming drugs. • Penalties vary widely; for example, the maximum penalty in Missouri and Louisiana is a $500 fine and six months in jail, while the penalties in New York range from $500 to $5,000 in fines and up to four years in jail. 2.DRIVING UNDER THE INFLUENCE. — Abbr. DWI. — Also termed drunk driving. Cf. DRIVING UNDER THE INFLUENCE. [Cases: Automobiles 332. C.J.S. Motor Vehicles §§ 1382–1394.]

DRM

DRM. See direct-reduction mortgage under MORTGAGE.

DROFLAND

drofland (drohf-l<<schwa>>nd).Hist. A socage tenure that required the holder to drive the landlord's cattle to fairs and markets.

DROIT

droit (drwah or droyt). [French "right"] 1. A legal right or claim. 2. The whole body of law.

DROIT-CLOSE

droit-close (droyt klohz), n.[Law French] Hist. A writ against a lord on behalf of a tenant in ancient demesne holding land by charter in fee simple, in fee-tail, for life, or in dower.

DROIT COMMON

droit common (droyt kom-<<schwa>>n), n.[Law French] The common law. — Also termed droit coutumier. See COMMON LAW(2).

DROIT COUTUMIER

droit coutumier.See DROIT COMMON.

DROIT D'ACCESSION

droit d'accession (drwah dak-ses-syawn), n.[French "right of accession"] Civil law. The right of the owner of a thing to whatever is produced by it or is united with it, either naturally or artificially. La. Civ. Code arts. 483, 490, 507. • The equivalent of the Roman specificatio, the right includes, for example, the right of a landowner to new land deposited on a riverbank and the right of an orchard owner to the fruit of the trees in the orchard. See ACCESSION(3).

"DROIT D'ACCESSION.... The civil law rule is that if the thing can be reduced to the former matter it belongs to the owner of the matter, e.g. a statue made of gold; but if it cannot so be reduced it belongs to the person who made it, e.g. a statue made of marble." 1 John Bouvier, Bouvier's Law Dictionary 941 (8th ed. 1914).

DROIT D'ACCROISSEMENT

droit d'accroissement (drwah da-krwas-mawn), n.[French] French law. A right of survivorship by which an heir's interest is combined with the interest of a coheir who either has refused or is unable to accept the interest.

DROIT D'AUBAINE

droit d'aubaine (drwah doh-ben), n.[Law French "right of alienage"] Hist. With certain exceptions, a sovereign's right to a deceased alien's property, regardless of whether the alien had a will. • This right was primarily exercised in France, where it was revived in some form by Napoleon after its initial abolishment in 1790. It was ultimately abolished in 1819. — Also spelled droit d'aubaine; droit d'aubinage. — Also termed jus albanagii; jus albinatus.

“Under the French rule of law, known as the droit d'aubaine..., the whole property of an alien dying in France without leaving children born in that country escheated to the crown. The royal right was not universally exacted, and at a very early period special exceptions were introduced in favour of certain classes. Thus Louis XI exempted merchants of Brabant, Flanders, Holland, and Zealand from the operation of the law, and a similar privilege was extended by Henri II to merchants of the Hanse towns, and from Scotland.” 1 R.H. Inglis Palgrave, Palgrave's Dictionary of Political Economy 68 (Henry Higgs ed., 2d ed. 1925).

“In France by the fourteenth century it was accepted that a stranger might acquire and possess but not inherit or transmit by will or on intestacy. In 1386 the French king assumed the seigniorial droit d'aubaine or right to inherit. In treaties in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries the right was frequently renounced. Louis XVI in 1787 abolished the right as against subjects of Great Britain without reciprocity. The constituent Assembly abolished the right in 1790 and it was commonly abolished elsewhere in the early nineteenth century.” David M. Walker, The Oxford Companion to Law 378 (1980).

DROIT D'AUTEUR

droit d'auteur (drwah doh-t<<schwa>>r), n. [French “author's right”] The copyright system used in France and other civil-law nations and differing from common-law copyright by giving more protection to an author's moral right. See AUTHOR'S RIGHT.

DROIT DE BRIS

droit de bris (drwah d<<schwa>> bree), n. [Law French “right of a wreck”] Hist. A right claimed by lords of the coasts of France to fragments of shipwrecks, including persons or property that had washed ashore. • The right was exercised primarily in Bretagne but was abrogated by Henry III as duke of Normandy, Aquitaine, and Guienne, in a charter granted in A.D. 1226. — Also termed droit de bris sur le naufrages. Cf. DROIT DE NAUFRAGE.

DROIT DE DÉTRACTION

droit de détraction (drwah d<<schwa>> day-trak-syawn), n. [French “the right of withdrawal”] Int'l law. A tax on property acquired by succession or by will and then removed to another state or country.

DROIT DE GARDE

DROIT DE NAUFRAGE

droit de naufrage (drwah d<<schwa>> noh-frazh), n.[French] Hist. French law. The right of a sovereign or a lord owning a seashore to seize the wreckage of a shipwreck and kill the crew or sell them as slaves. Cf. DROIT DE BRIS.

DROIT DE PRISE

droit de prise (drwah d<<schwa>> preez), n.[French “a right of prize”] Hist. French law. A commoner's duty to supply articles on credit to the royal household for domestic consumption.

DROIT DE QUINT

droit de quint (drwah d<<schwa>> kant), n.[French “the right of a fifth”] Hist. French law. A required payment made by a noble vassal to the king each time ownership of the vassal's fief changed.

DROIT DE SUITE

droit de suite (drwah d<<schwa>> sweet), n.[French “right to follow”] 1. A creditor's right to recover a debtor's property after it passes to a third party. 2. Copyright. An artist's resale royalty; the right of a work's creator to benefit from appreciation in the value of the work by receiving a portion of the profit from its later resales. • A droit de suite is recognized in some European nations.

“The droit de suite (literally translated as the right to follow the work) enables artists to claim a portion of the price for which a work is resold. The idea is that an artist may sell a painting for a low price at a time when they are unknown and have little bargaining power. In due course, as the artist's reputation develops, the painting may be resold for continually increasing sums.... The right is seen to be justified not only because it encourages creation, but also because the artist is conceived (through the authorial link) as being responsible for the increase in value (economic success of their works).” Lionel Bently & Brad Sherman, Intellectual Property Law 281 (2001).

DROIT D'EXÉCUTION

droit d'exécution (drwah dek-say-kyoo-syawn), n.[French “right of execution”] French law. 1. A stockbroker's right to sell the stock bought for a client who later refuses it. 2. A stockbroker's right to sell deposited securities to secure the broker against a loss in buying for a client.

---

DROIT-DROIT

droit-droit (drwah-drwah), n.[Law French “double right”] Hist. The unification of the right of possession with the right of property. — Also termed jus duplicatum; dreit dreit.

“A complete title to lands, tenements, and hereditaments. For it is an ancient maxim of the law, that no title is completely good, unless the right of possession be joined with the right of property; which right is then denominated a double right, jus duplicatum, or droit droit. And when to this double right the actual possession is also united ... then, and then only, is the title completely legal.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 199 (1766).

DROIT DU SEIGNEUR

droit du seigneur (drwah d<<schwa>> sen-yuur). [French “right of the lord”] Hist. 1.A supposed customary right of a feudal lord to have sexual intercourse with a tenant's bride on her wedding night. 2. A supposed custom requiring sexual abstinence by a couple on their wedding night. — Also spelled droit de seigneur. — Also termed jus primae noctis.

DROIT ÉCRIT

DROIT MORAL

droit moral (drwah maw-ral). [French] The doctrine of moral right, which entitles artists to prevent others from altering their works. • The basic rights protected by this doctrine are (1) the right to create, (2) the right to disclose or publish, (3) the right to withdraw from publication, (4) the right to be identified with the work, and (5) the right to ensure the integrity of the work, including the right to object to any mutilation or distortion of the work. These rights are sometimes called moral rights. See MORAL RIGHT. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 6. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property § 16.]

DROIT NATUREL

droit naturel (drwah na-tuu-rel), n.[French] Natural law.

DROITS CIVILS

droits civils (drwah see-veel), n.[French] French law. Private rights not connected to a person's civil status. • Foreigners had certain rights that could be enforced when there was reciprocity with the foreigner's home country.

DROITS OF ADMIRALTY

droits of admiralty (droys), n. The Lord High Admiral's rights in connection with the sea, such as the right to recover proceeds from shipwrecks, enemy goods confiscated at the beginning of hostilities, jetsam, flotsam, treasure, deodand, fines, forfeitures, sturgeons, whales, and other large fishes. • The droit proceeds are paid to the Exchequer's office for the public's use. See PRIZE(2).

“The crown had originally certain rights to property found upon the sea, or stranded upon the shore. The chief kinds of property to which the crown was thus entitled were, great fish (such as whales or porpoises), deodands, wreck of the sea, flotsam, jetsam, and lagan, ships or goods of the enemy found in English ports or captured by uncommissioned vessels, and goods taken or retaken from pirates .... After the rise of the court of Admiralty the Lord High Admiral became entitled to these droits by royal grant .... The right to droits carried with it a certain jurisdiction. Inquisitions were held into these droits at the ports, or the Vice-Admirals or droit gatherers reported them to the Admiral. The large terms of the Admiral's Patents incited them, or their grantees, to frequent litigation with private persons or other grantees of the crown .... The Admiralty droits ... are now transferred to the consolidated fund.” 1 William Holdsworth, A History of English Law 559–61 (7th ed. 1956).

DROITURAL

droitural (droy-ch<<schwa>>-r<<schwa>>l), adj.[fr. Old French droiture “right”] Of or relating to an interest in property, as distinguished from actual possession.

DROIT VOISINS

DRY CHECK

dry check. See bad check under CHECK.

DRY EXCHANGE

dry exchange. Something that pretends to pass on both sides of a transaction, but passes on only one side.

“Dry exchange ... seems to be a subtil term invented to disguise usury, in which something is pretended to pass on both sides, whereas in truth nothing passes on the one side.” Termes de la Ley 185 (1st Am. ed. 1812).

“DRY EXCHANGE.... A euphemism applied to the ‘coverture’ or ‘colouring’ of the stringent statutes passed during the tudor period against usury .... Usury, which was condemned by religion and law alike during the middle ages, was from the middle of the 16th century no longer to be confounded with the legitimate employment of capital; but the sentiment which inspired the above enactments was that of governing classes associated with the landed interest.” 1 R.H. Inglis Palgrave, Palgrave's Dictionary of Political Economy 643 (Henry Higgs ed., 2d ed. 1925).

DRY HOLE

dry hole. Oil & gas. An oil or gas well that is incapable of producing enough minerals to justify the cost of completing it and putting it into production.

DUAL AGENT

dual agent. See co-agent under AGENT(2).

DUAL-CAPACITY DOCTRINE

dual-capacity doctrine. The principle that makes an employer — who is normally shielded from tort liability by workers'-compensation laws — liable in tort to an employee if the employer and employee stand in a secondary relationship that confers independent obligations on the employer. Cf. DUAL-PURPOSE DOCTRINE. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 2162.]

DUAL CITIZENSHIP

dual citizenship. 1. A person's status as a citizen of two countries, as when the person is born in the United States to parents who are citizens of another country, or one country still recognizes a person as a citizen even though that person has acquired citizenship in another country. [Cases: Citizens 18. C.J.S. Citizens §§ 17–18.] 2. The status of a person who is a citizen of both the United States and the person's country of residence.

DUAL CONTRACT

DUAL FUND

dual fund. See MUTUAL FUND.

DUAL INHERITANCE

dual inheritance. See INHERITANCE.

DUALITY OF ART

duality of art. Copyright. The twofold nature of applied art as both functional and aesthetic. • The United States takes a duality-of-art approach to copyright, protecting applied art only when the item could stand alone as an identifiable work of art even if it did not perform the function it was designed to do. — Also termed noncumulative approach. Cf. UNITY OF ART.

DUAL LISTING

dual listing. See LISTING(2).

DUAL-PERSONA DOCTRINE

dual-persona doctrine (d[y]oo-<<schwa>>l p<<schwa>>r-soh-n<<schwa>>). The principle that makes an employer (who is normally shielded from tort liability by workers'-compensation laws) liable in tort to an employee if the liability stems from a second persona unrelated to the employer's status as an employer. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 2162.]

DUAL-PRIORITIES RULE

dual-priorities rule. The principle that partnership creditors have priority for partnership assets and that individual creditors have priority for a partner's personal assets. • This rule has been abandoned by the bankruptcy laws and the Revised Uniform Partnership Act. The Bankruptcy

---

Code now allows partnership creditors access to all assets of bankrupt partners, not just those remaining after payment to individual creditors. — Also termed jingle rule. [Cases: Partnership 178, 186. C.J.S. Partnership §§ 174, 181.]

DUAL-PROSECUTION RULE

dual-prosecution rule. The principle that the federal government and a state government may both prosecute a defendant for the same offense because both governments are separate and distinct entities. See DUAL-SOVEREIGNTY DOCTRINE . [Cases: Double Jeopardy 186. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 258.]

DUAL-PURPOSE DOCTRINE

dual-purpose doctrine. The principle that an employer is liable for an employee's injury that occurs during a business trip even though the trip also serves a personal purpose. Cf. DUAL-CAPACITY DOCTRINE. [Cases: Master and Servant 302(2, 6); Workers' Compensation 661. C.J.S. Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 204–217, 221–223; Workmen's Compensation §§ 401–402.]

DUAL-PURPOSE FUND

dual-purpose fund. See dual fund under MUTUAL FUND.

DUAL-RESIDENTIAL PARENT

dual-residential parent. See PARENT.

DUAL-SOVEREIGNTY DOCTRINE

dual-sovereignty doctrine. The rule that the federal and state governments may both prosecute someone for a crime, without violating the constitutional protection against double jeopardy, if the person's act violated both jurisdictions' laws. See DUAL-PROSECUTION RULE. [Cases: Double Jeopardy 186. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 258.]

DUARCHY

duarchy (d[y]oo-ahr-kee), n. [fr. Greek duo “two” + archia “rule”] See DIARCHY.

DUBII JURIS

dubii juris (d[y]oo-bee-Ijoor-is). [Latin] Hist. Of doubtful law. • The phrase appeared in reference to an unsettled legal point.

DUBITANTE

dubitante (d[y]oo-bi-tan-tee). [Latin] Doubting. • This term was usu. placed in a law report next to a judge's name, indicating that the judge doubted a legal point but was unwilling to state that it was wrong. — Also termed dubitans.

“[E]xpressing the epitome of the common law spirit, there is the opinion entered dubitante — the judge is unhappy about some aspect of the decision rendered, but cannot quite bring himself to record an open dissent.” Lon L. Fuller, Anatomy of the Law 147 (1968).

DUBITATUR

dubitatur (d[y]oo-bi-tay-t<<schwa>>r). [Latin] It is doubted. • This phrase indicates that a point of law is doubtful. — Also termed dubitavit.

DUCAT

ducat (d<<schwa>>k-it). A gold coin used as currency, primarily in Europe and first appearing in Venice in the early 1100s, with the motto sit tibi, Christe, dato, quem tu regis, iste Ducatus (“let this duchy which thou rulest be dedicated to thee, O Christ”). • It survived into the 20th century in several countries, including Austria and the Netherlands.

DUCATUS

ducatus (d[y]<<schwa>>-kay-t<<schwa>>s), n.[Law Latin] A duchy; a dukedom.

DUCES TECUM

DUE-DILIGENCE INFORMATION

due-diligence information. Securities. Information that a broker-dealer is required to have on file and make available to potential customers before submitting quotations for over-the-counter securities. • The informational requirements are set out in SEC Rule 15c2-11 (17 CFR § 240.15c2-11). [Cases: Securities Regulation 25.21(4), 25.62(2). C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 87, 95.]

DUE INFLUENCE

due influence. The sway that one person has over another, esp. as a result of persuasion, argument, or appeal to the person's affections. Cf. UNDUE INFLUENCE .

DUEL

duel. 1. TRIAL BY COMBAT. 2. A single combat; specif., a prearranged combat with deadly weapons fought between two or more persons under prescribed rules, usu. in the presence of at least two witnesses, to resolve a previous quarrel or avenge a deed. • In England and the United States, death resulting from a duel is treated as murder, and seconds may be liable as accessories. — Also termed monomachy; single combat. Cf. MUTUAL COMBAT. [Cases: Homicide 537.]

“[A] duel which did not end in death was only a misdemeanour, till the passing of Lord Ellenborough's Act, 43 Geo. 3, c. 58, passed in 1803 .... A duel which did end fatally might be either murder or manslaughter, according to the following distinctions: — If the duel was on a sudden falling out, if the parties fought in hot blood and on the spot and one was killed, the offence was only manslaughter, however aggravated the case might be.... If a fatal duel took place when the parties were in cool blood, it was held to be murder, and of this there has never been any doubt whatever in this country, though juries not unfrequently acquitted in such cases if they sympathized with the prisoner.” 3 James Fitzjames Stephen, A History of the Criminal Law of England 100 (1883).

“Duelling is distinguished from other offenses in that it has none of the elements of sudden heat and passion, and is usually carried out with some formality. A duel has been distinguished from an ‘affray’ in that an affray occurs on a sudden quarrel while a duel is always the result of design.” 28A C.J.S. Duelling § 2, at 154 (1996).

DUELING

dueling, n. The common-law offense of fighting at an appointed time and place after an earlier disagreement. • If one of the participants is killed, the other is guilty of murder, and all who are present, abetting the crime, are guilty as principals in the second degree. [Cases: Criminal Law 45.30. C.J.S. Duelling §§ 2–3.]

“Duelling is prearranged fighting with deadly weapons, usually under certain agreed or prescribed rules.... It is a misdemeanor at common law to fight a duel, even though no death result, to challenge another to a duel, intentionally to provoke such a challenge, or knowingly to be the bearer of such a challenge.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 243 (3d ed. 1982).

DUELLUM

duellum (d[y]oo-el-<<schwa>>m), n. [fr. Latin duo “two”] Hist. See TRIAL BY COMBAT .

DUE NEGOTIATION

DUE NOTICE

due notice. See NOTICE.

DUE-ON-ENCUMBRANCE CLAUSE

due-on-encumbrance clause. A mortgage provision giving the lender the option to accelerate the debt if the borrower further mortgages the real estate without the lender's consent. • All state laws on the enforcement of due-on-sale clauses have been preempted, and the subject is now governed exclusively by the Garn Act. 12 USCA § 1701j-3. [Cases: Mortgages 403. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 102, 506, 509-510, 512, 519, 521.]

---

DUE-ON-SALE CLAUSE

due-on-sale clause. A mortgage provision that gives the lender the option to accelerate the debt if the borrower transfers or conveys any part of the mortgaged real estate without the lender's consent. [Cases: Mortgages 403. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 102, 506, 509-510, 512, 519, 521.]

DUE POSTING

due posting. 1. The stamping and placing of letters or packages in the U.S. mail. [Cases: Postal Service 15. C.J.S. Postal Service and Offenses Against Postal Laws §§ 18-19.] 2. The proper entry of an item into a ledger. 3. Proper publication; proper placement of an item (such as an announcement) in a particular place, as on a particular wall.

DUE PROCESS

due process. The conduct of legal proceedings according to established rules and principles for the protection and enforcement of private rights, including notice and the right to a fair hearing before a tribunal with the power to decide the case. — Also termed due process of law; due course of law. See FUNDAMENTAL-FAIRNESS DOCTRINE. [Cases: Constitutional Law 251-320.5. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 455, 461-467, 470, 501, 503, 513, 518, 540, 557, 576-581, 585, 587, 596, 612, 614-618, 704, 883, 945-1348, 1350-1396, 1399-1401, 1405-1427; Right to Die § 2; Zoning and Land Planning § 23.]

“The words ‘due process’ have a precise technical import, and are only applicable to the process and proceedings of the courts of justice; they can never be referred to an act of legislature.” Alexander Hamilton, Remarks on an Act for Regulating Elections, New York Assembly, 6 Feb. 1787, in 4 Papers of Alexander Hamilton 34, 35 (Harold C. Syrett ed., 1962).

“The words, ‘due process of law,’ were undoubtedly intended to convey the same meaning as the words, ‘by the law of the land,’ in Magna Charta.” Murray's Lessee v. Hoboken Land & Improvement Co., 59 U.S. (18 How.) 272, 276 (1855) (Curtis, J.).

“Due process of law in each particular case means, such an exertion of the powers of government as the settled maxims of law sanction, and under such safeguards for the protection of individual rights as those maxims prescribe for the class of cases to which the one in question belongs.” Thomas M. Cooley, A Treatise on the Constitutional Limitations 356 (1868).

“An elementary and fundamental requirement of due process in any proceeding which is to be accorded finality is notice reasonably calculated, under all the circumstances, to apprise interested parties of the pendency of the action and afford them an opportunity to present their objections.... The notice must be of such nature as reasonably to convey the required information.” Mullane v. Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 339 U.S. 306, 314, 70 S.Ct. 652, 657 economic substantive due process. The doctrine that certain social policies, such as the freedom of contract or the right to enjoy property without interference by government regulation, exist in the Due Process Clause of the 14th Amendment, particularly in the words “liberty” and “property.”

---

procedural due process. The minimal requirements of notice and a hearing guaranteed by the Due Process Clauses of the 5th and 14th Amendments, esp. if the deprivation of a significant life, liberty, or property interest may occur. • The Supreme Court has ruled that the fundamental guarantees of due process apply to children as well as to adults and that they apply in situations in which a juvenile may be deprived of liberty even though the juvenile proceedings may be labeled civil rather than criminal. In re Gault, 387 U.S. 1, 87 S.Ct. 1428 (1967). In that case, the Court held that an accused child was entitled to notice of the charges, the privilege against self-incrimination, the right to confront witnesses, and the right to summon witnesses on his or her own behalf. Justice Abe Fortas wrote the majority opinion in Gault, and Chief Justice Earl Warren predicted that it would come to be called the “Magna Carta for juveniles.” [Cases: Constitutional Law 251.5. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 946, 968–969.]

substantive due process. The doctrine that the Due Process Clauses of the 5th and 14th Amendments require legislation to be fair and reasonable in content and to further a legitimate governmental objective. [Cases: Constitutional Law 251.2. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 964, 970–975.]

DUE PROCESS CLAUSE

Due Process Clause. The constitutional provision that prohibits the government from unfairly or arbitrarily depriving a person of life, liberty, or property. • There are two Due Process Clauses in the U.S. Constitution, one in the 5th Amendment applying to the federal government, and one in the 14th Amendment applying to the states (although the 5th Amendment's Due Process Clause also applies to the states under the incorporation doctrine). Cf. EQUAL PROTECTION CLAUSE. [Cases: Constitutional Law 251–320.5. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 455, 461–467, 470, 501, 503, 513, 518, 540, 557, 576–581, 585, 587, 596, 612, 614–618, 704, 883, 945–1348, 1350–1396, 1399–1401, 1405–1427; Right to Die § 2; Zoning and Land Planning § 23.]

DUE PROCESS OF LAW

due process of law. See DUE PROCESS.

DUE-PROCESS RIGHTS

due-process rights. The rights (as to life, liberty, and property) so fundamentally important as to require compliance with due-process standards of fairness and justice. See DUE PROCESS; DUE PROCESS CLAUSE; FUNDAMENTAL-FAIRNESS DOCTRINE E.

DUE PROOF

due proof. Sufficient and properly submitted evidence to produce a result or support a conclusion, such as an entitlement to benefits supported by an insurance policy.

---

DUHIG<TT> RULE

Duhig rule.Oil & gas. A rule of title interpretation developed to deal with the common problem of overconveyance of fractional interests by giving priority to the granted interest over the reserved interest. Duhig v. Peavy-Moore Lumber Co., Inc., 144 S.W.2d 878 (Tex. 1940). • The rule is not accepted in all states and is generally limited to conveyances by warranty deed.

DUIL.abbr.Driving under the influence of liquor. See DRIVING UNDER THE INFLUENCE .

DUKE

duke. 1. A sovereign prince; a ruler of a duchy. 2. The first order of nobility in Great Britain below the royal family.

“But after the Norman conquest, which changed the military policy of the nation, the kings themselves continuing for many generations dukes of Normandy, they would not honour any subjects with that title, till the time of Edward III; who, claiming to be the king of France, and thereby losing the ducal in the royal dignity, in the eleventh year of his reign created his son, Edward the black prince, duke of Cornwall: and many, of the royal family especially, were afterwards raised to the honour. However, in the reign of queen Elizabeth, A.D. 1572, the whole order became utterly extinct: but it was revived about fifty years afterwards by her successor, who was remarkably prodigal of honours, in the person of George Villiers duke of Buckingham.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 385 (1765).

DUKE OF EXETER'S DAUGHTER

Duke of Exeter's Daughter.A torture rack in the Tower of London, named after the Duke of Exeter, Henry VI's minister who assisted in introducing it to England. — Also termed brake.

“The rack ... to extort a confession from criminals, is a practice of a different nature .... And the trial by rack is utterly unknown to the law of England; though once when the dukes of Exeter and Suffolk ... had laid a design to introduce the civil law into this kingdom as the rule of government, for a beginning thereof they erected a rack for torture; which was called in derision the duke of Exeter's daughter, and still remains in the tower of London: where it was occasionally used as an engine of state, not of law, more than once in the reign of queen Elizabeth.” 4 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 320–21 (1769).

DUKE OF YORK'S LAWS

Duke of York's Laws.A body of laws compiled in 1665 by Governor Nicholls for the more orderly government of the New York colony. • The laws were gradually extended to the entire province.

DULOCRACY

dulocracy (d[y]oo-lok-r<<schwa>>-see), n.[fr. Greek doulos “servant” + kratein “to rule”] A government in which servants or slaves have so many privileges that they essentially rule. — Also spelled doulocracy.

DULY

duly,adv. In a proper manner; in accordance with legal requirements.

DUM

dum (d<<schwa>>m). [Latin] While; provided that.

DUMB BIDDING

dumb bidding.An auction bidding process in which the minimum acceptance price is placed under the object for sale — unbeknownst to the bidders — and no bids are accepted until they meet that price. • Dumb bidding was initially intended to avoid the taxes imposed on auction sales by the statute of 1779, 19 Geo. 3, ch. 56, §§ 5–6, but the courts determined that the practice was fraudulent. [Cases: Auctions and Auctioneers 7. C.J.S. Auctions and Auctioneers §§ 2, 8–17.]

DUM FERRET OPUS

dum fervet opus (d<<schwa>>m f<<schwa>>r-vet oh-p<<schwa>>s). [Latin] While the action is fresh; in the heat of action. • This term usu. referred to matters of testimony.

DUM FUT INFRA AETATEM

dum fuit infra aetatem (d<<schwa>>m fyoo-it in-fr<<schwa>> ee-tay-t<<schwa>>m), n.[Law Latin “while he was within age”] Hist. A writ allowing a person of full age to recover lands feoffed while the person was an infant. • The remedy was also available to the person's heirs. It was later replaced by the action of ejectment. See EJECTMENT.

DUM FUT IN PRISONA

dum fuit in prisona (d<<schwa>>m fyoo-it in priz-<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>), n.[Law Latin “while he was in prison”] Hist. A writ restoring a man to his estate after he transferred the estate under duress of imprisonment. See duress of imprisonment under DURESS.

DUMMODO

dummodo (d<<schwa>>m-<<schwa>>-doh). [Latin] So that; provided that. • This term was used as a limitation in conveyances, as in dummodo solverit talem redditum (d<<schwa>>m-<<schwa>>-doh sol-v<<schwa>>-rit tay-lem red-i-t<<schwa>>m), meaning “provided he shall pay such a rent.”

DUMMODO CONSTET DE PERSONA

dummodo constet de persona (d<<schwa>>m-<<schwa>>-doh kon-stet dee p<<schwa>>r-soh-n<<schwa>>). [Latin] Hist. Provided it be evident who is the person meant. See CONSTAT DE PERSONA.

DUMMODO VASSALLI CONDITIO NON SIT DETERIOR

dummodo vassalli conditio non sit deterior (d<<schwa>>m-<<schwa>>-doh vas-<<schwa>>-II k<<schwa>>n-dish-ee-oh non sit di-teer-ee-or). [Law Latin] Hist. Provided the vassal's condition be not made worse. • The phrase was used as a limitation in a conveyance. See DUMMODO.

DUMMY

dummy,adj. Sham; make-believe; pretend <dummy corporation>.

dummy,n.1. A party who has no interest in a transaction, but participates to help achieve a legal goal. 2. A party who purchases property and holds legal title for another. Cf. STRAW MAN(3).

DUMP

dump,vb.1. To drop (something) down, esp. in a heap; to unload. 2. To sell (products) at an extremely low price; specif., to sell (products) in a foreign market at a lower price than at home.

DUMPING

dumping. 1. The act of selling a large quantity of goods at less than fair value. 2. Selling goods abroad at less than the market price at home. See ANTIDUMPING LAW. [Cases: Customs Duties 21.5. C.J.S. Customs Duties §§ 135–152.]

“Dumping involves selling abroad at a price that is less than the price used to sell the same goods at home (the ‘normal’ or ‘fair’ value). To be unlawful, dumping must threaten or cause material injury to an industry in the export market, the market where prices are lower. Dumping is recognized by most of the trading world as an unfair practice (akin to price discrimination as an antitrust offense).” Ralph H. Folsom & Michael W. Gordon, International Business Transactions § 6.1 (1995).

3. The disposal of waste matter into the environment. [Cases: Environmental Law 341.]

DUMPING ACT

Dumping Act. A federal antidumping law requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to notify the U.S. International Trade Commission (USITC) whenever the Secretary determines that goods are likely to be sold abroad at less than their fair value, so that the USITC can take appropriate action. 19 USCA § 1673. [Cases: Customs Duties 21.5. C.J.S. Customs Duties §§ 135–152.]

DUMP-TRUCK LAWYER

dump-truck lawyer. Slang. A public defender who spends little time or effort and exhibits little skill mounting a defense on behalf of an indigent defendant. • This derogatory term arises from criminal defendants' common perception (typically a misperception) that public defenders prefer to dump cases by making plea bargains rather than spend time preparing for trial.

DUM SE BENE GESSERIT

dum se bene gesserit (d<<schwa>>m see bee-nee jes-<<schwa>>r-it). [Latin “while he behaves himself properly”] Hist. During good conduct. Cf. QUAMDIU BENE SE GESSERINT.

DUM SOLA

dum sola (d<<schwa>>m soh-l<<schwa>>). [Latin] While single. • This phrase was used to limit conveyances, esp. to women, as in dum sola fuerit (“while she remains single”), dum sola et casta vixerit (“while she remains single and chaste”), and dum sola et casta (“while she is unmarried and lives chastely”).

DUN

dun (d<<schwa>>n), vb. To demand payment from (a delinquent debtor) <his creditors are dunning him daily>. — dun, n.

DUNAWAY HEARING

Dunaway hearing. A hearing to determine whether evidence has been seized from an accused in violation of his or her Fourth Amendment rights, as by a search conducted without probable cause. Dunaway v. New York, 442 U.S. 200, 99 S.Ct. 2248 (1979). See FOURTH AMENDMENT.

DUNGEON

dungeon. 1. The bottom part of a fortress or tower, often used as a prison. — Also termed dungeon-keep. 2. A dark underground prison.

DUNNAGE

dunnage (d<<schwa>>n-ij). Anything, esp. pieces of wood, that is put underneath or between cargo on a vessel to prevent the cargo from bruising or getting wet from water leaking into the hold. [Cases: Shipping 110. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 326, 328.]

DUODECEMVIRALE JUDICIUM

duodecemvirale      judicium      (d[y]oo-oh-des-<<schwa>>m-v<<schwa>>-ray-lee joo-dish-ee-<<schwa>>m). [Latin] A trial by 12 persons; a trial by jury.

DUODECIMA MANUS

duodecima manus (d[y]oo-oh-des-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>> man-<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Twelve men.

“The manner of waging and making law is this. He that has waged, or given security, to make his law, brings with him into court eleven of his neighbours: ... for by the old Saxon constitution every man's credit in courts of law depended upon the opinion which his neighbours had of his veracity. The defendant then, standing at the end of the bar, is admonished by the judges of the nature and danger of a false oath.... And thereupon his eleven neighbours or compurgators shall avow upon their oaths that they believe in their consciences that he saith the truth .... It is held indeed by later authorities ... that fewer than eleven compurgators will do: but Sir Edward Coke is positive that there must be this number ... for as wager of law is equivalent to a verdict in the defendant's favor, it ought to be established by the same or equal testimony, namely, by the oath of twelve men. And so indeed Glanvil expresses it, ... ‘jurabit duodecima manu’....” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 343 (1768).

DUODENA

duodena (d[y]oo-<<schwa>>-dee-n<<schwa>>). [Latin] 1. A jury of 12. 2. A dozen of anything.

 DUPLEX VALOR MARITAGII

duplex valor maritagii (d[y]oo-pleks val-*<<schwa>>r mar-<<schwa>>*-tay-jee-I), n.[Law Latin “double the value of a marriage”] Hist. A ward's forfeiture of double the value of a marriage made without the guardian's consent. • In the quotation that follows, Blackstone uses the accusative form (duplicem valorem maritagii) because the phrase follows the verb forfeited.

“For, while the infant was in ward, the guardian had the power of tendering him or her a suitable match, without disparagement, or inequality: which if the infants refused, they forfeited the value of the marriage ... to their guardian; that is, so much as a jury would assess, or any one would bona fide give to the guardian for such an alliance: ... and, if the infants married themselves without the guardian's consent, they forfeited double the value, duplicem valorem maritagii. This seems to have been one of the greatest hardships of our ancient tenures.” 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 70 (1766).

DUPLICATE

duplicate (d[y]oo-pli-kit), n.1. A reproduction of an original document having the same particulars and effect as the original. See Fed. R. Evid. 101(4). 2. A new original, made to replace an instrument that is lost or destroyed. — Also termed (in sense 2) duplicate original. [Cases: Criminal Law 399; Evidence 173. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 1074, 1114.] — duplicate (d[y]oo-pli-kit), adj.

“A ‘duplicate’ is defined for purposes of the best evidence rule as a counterpart produced by the same impression as the original, or from the same matrix, or by means of photography including enlargements and miniatures, by mechanical or electronic recording, by chemical reproduction, or by other equivalent techniques which accurately reproduce the original; copies subsequently produced manually, either handwritten or typed, are not within this definition.” 29A Am. Jur. 2d Evidence § 1085 (1994).

duplicate (d[y]oo-pli-kayt), vb.1. To copy exactly <he duplicated the original document>.2. To double; to repeat <she duplicated the performance>.

DURATIONAL-RESIDENCY REQUIREMENT

durational-residency requirement. The requirement that one be a state resident for a certain time, such as one year, as a precondition to the exercise of a specified right or privilege. • When applied to voting, this requirement has been held to be an unconstitutional denial of equal protection because it burdens voting rights and impairs the fundamental personal right of travel.

DURATION DIRECTIVE

Duration Directive. See DIRECTIVE HARMONIZING THE TERM OF COPYRIGHT AND CERTAIN RELATED RIGHTS .

DUREN<TT> TEST

Duren test. Constitutional law. A test to determine whether a jury's composition violates the fair-cross-section requirement and a criminal defendant's Sixth Amendment right to an impartial jury. • Under the test, a constitutional violation occurs if (1) a distinctive group is not fairly and reasonably represented in the jury pool in relation to its population in the community, (2) the underrepresentation is the result of a systematic exclusion of the group from the jury-selection process, and (3) the government cannot reasonably justify the discrepancy. Duren v. Missouri, 439 U.S. 357, 99 S.Ct. 664 (1979). See FAIR-CROSS-SECTION REQUIREMENT; STATISTICAL-DECISION THEORY; ABSOLUTE DISPARITY; COMPARATIVE DISPARITY. [Cases: Jury 33(1.1). C.J.S. Juries §§ 269–273, 279, 306.]

DURESS

duress (d[y]uu-res). 1. Strictly, the physical confinement of a person or the detention of a contracting party's property. • In the field of torts, duress is considered a species of fraud in which compulsion takes the place of deceit in causing injury.

“Duress consists in actual or threatened violence or imprisonment; the subject of it must be the contracting party himself, or his wife, parent, or child; and it must be inflicted or threatened by the other party to the contract, or else by one acting with his knowledge and for his advantage.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 261–62 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

“Few areas of the law of contracts have undergone such radical changes in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries as has the law governing duress. In Blackstone's time relief from an agreement on grounds of duress was a possibility only if it was coerced by actual (not threatened) imprisonment or fear of loss of life or limb. ‘A fear of battery ... is no duress; neither is the fear of having one's house burned, or one's goods taken away or destroyed’; he wrote, ‘because in these cases, should the threat be performed, a man may have satisfaction by recovering equivalent damages: but no suitable atonement can be made for the loss of life, or limb.’ Today the general rule is that any wrongful act or threat which overcomes the free will of a party constitutes duress. This simple statement of the law conceals a number of questions, particularly as to the meaning of ‘free will’ and ‘wrongful.’ ” John D. Calamari & Joseph M. Perillo, The Law of Contracts § 9-2, at 337 (3d ed. 1987).

2. Broadly, a threat of harm made to compel a person to do something against his or her will or judgment; esp., a wrongful threat made by one person to compel a manifestation of seeming assent by another person to a transaction without real volition. • A marriage that is induced by duress is generally voidable. 3. The use or threatened use of unlawful force — usu. that a reasonable person cannot resist — to compel someone to commit an unlawful act. • Duress is a recognized defense to a crime, contractual breach, or tort. See Model Penal Code § 2.09. See COERCION. “[In most states,] the age-old rule of duress — that the doing of a prohibited act is not a crime if reasonably believed to be necessary to save from death or great bodily injury — together with the equally ancient exception in the form of the ‘inexcusable choice,’ are as firm today as ever except for the realization that they cover only part of the field.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 1064 (3d ed. 1982).

“Among defenses, necessity needs to be distinguished from duress. Necessity is generally regarded as a justification, while duress is held to be an excuse. This means that the person who acts under necessity chooses to act in a way that the law ultimately approves. The person who acts under duress acts in a way that the law disapproves and seeks to discourage, but he acts under circumstances which make conviction and punishment inappropriate and unfair. This is so because to act under duress is to act under pressures that a person of reasonable firmness would not be able to resist. Thus, both the theory of necessity and the theory of duress refer to the pressure of exigent and extraordinary situations, but they do so in different ways.” Thomas Morawetz, “Necessity,” in 3 Encyclopedia of Crime and Justice 957, 959 (Sanford H. Kadish ed., 1983).

duress of circumstances. See NECESSITY(1).

duress of goods. 1. The act of seizing personal property by force, or withholding it from an entitled party, and then extorting something as the condition for its release. 2. Demanding and taking personal property under color of legal authority that either is void or for some other reason does not justify the demand.

duress of imprisonment. The wrongful confining of a person to force the person to do something.

duress of the person. Compulsion of a person by imprisonment, by threat, or by a show of force that cannot be resisted.

duress per minas (p<<schwa>>r mI-n<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] Duress by threat of loss of life, loss of limb, mayhem, or other harm to a person.

“Duress per minas is either for fear of loss of life, or else for fear of mayhem, or loss of limb. And this fear must be upon sufficient reason .... A fear of battery, or being beaten, though never so well grounded, is no duress; neither is the fear of having one's house burned, or one's goods taken away and destroyed; because in these cases, should the threat be performed, a man may have satisfaction by recovering equivalent damages: but no suitable atonement can be made for the loss of life, or limb.” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 127 (1765).

“Duress per minas is a very rare defence; so rare that Sir James Stephen, in his long forensic experience, never saw a case in which it was raised. It has, however, been thought that threats of the immediate infliction of death, or even of grievous bodily harm, will excuse some crimes that have been committed under the influence of such threats." J.W. Cecil Turner, Kenny's Outlines of Criminal Law 58 (16th ed. 1952).

economic duress. An unlawful coercion to perform by threatening financial injury at a time when one cannot exercise free will. — Also termed business compulsion.

"Courts have shown a willingness to recognize the concept of 'economic duress.' For instance it has been held that a defence on these grounds may be available to the purchaser of a ship from a shipbuilder, if the latter extracts a promise of extra payment as a condition of delivery of the ship." P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 230 (3d ed. 1981).

moral duress. An unlawful coercion to perform by unduly influencing or taking advantage of the weak financial position of another. • Moral duress focuses on the inequities of a situation while economic duress focuses on the lack of will or capacity of the person being influenced.

DURESSOR

duressor (d[y]r-ess-er). A person who coerces another person to do something against his or her will or judgment.

DURHAM

Durham (d-r-ess-m). One of the three remaining county palatines in England, the others being Chester and Lancaster. • Its jurisdiction was vested in the Bishop of Durham until the statute 6 & 7 Will. 4, ch. 19 vested it as a separate franchise and royalty in the Crown. The jurisdiction of the Durham Court of Pleas was transferred to the Supreme Court of Judicature by the Judicature Act of 1873, but Durham continued to maintain a Chancery Court according to the Palatine Court of Durham Act of 1889. See COUNTY PALATINE.
