

Appendix A. Table Of Legal Abbreviations

L. Kurt Adamson

This table is a working table of abbreviations, i.e., abbreviations cited in American cases, books, articles, and texts, and not restricted to standard abbreviations found in legal citation manuals. The scope of abbreviations includes the names of common federal and state primary sources, legal periodicals, treatises, and organizations, as well as selected words or phrases commonly found in American publications from the 19th century forward. There are also selected abbreviations for English, Canadian, Australian, and international sources.

The table has unique features in its two-part format. The main table lists fuller publication titles than may be found in other abbreviation tables. The second part lists the full names of individual authors referred to in the main abbreviation table. These fuller titles and author names may help in finding publications through a library catalog.

Not every variation for a publication's abbreviation is listed. But the table can be used to interpret abbreviations not listed. First, the same publication or organization may be abbreviated with or without periods, such as ("UPA" or "U.P.A." This table lists only one version. Second, standardized citations and abbreviations were not adopted until the 20th century. For example, Willard Phillips's Treatise on the Law of Evidence is cited in various sources as:

Phillips, Law of Evidence

Phillips on Evidence

Phillips, Evidence

Phillips, Ev.

Phil. Ev.

So the reader may use this table's information to interpret other variations of a publication's abbreviation. Many 19th-century treatises were published in numerous editions. Other parts of the citation are therefore essential to identify which edition of a work is being cited. Furthermore, the format "author on _____" (such as Phillips on Evidence) was a common citation practice throughout the 19th and early 20th centuries, even though it was only a common shorthand for the work or perhaps the title that appeared on its spine, but not the formal title of the work as found on its title page. Thus, this table provides at least the beginning portion of treatises titles.

The table is arranged in alphabetical order as if each abbreviation were one word without punctuation or spacing. Organizations are commonly cited without periods in their abbreviations. If an author's name is abbreviated, the full last name precedes the listed title. An author's initials are also included if more than one author with the same last name appears in the table. Finally, the ampersand (&) is treated, for purposes of order, as the word "and" in the abbreviation.

This table is not intended to be comprehensive. Other abbreviations may be found in the following sources: Mary M. Prince, Bieber's Dictionary of Legal Abbreviations: A Reference Guide for Attorneys, Legal Secretaries, Paralegals and Law Students (5th ed. 2001), Donald Raistrick, Index to Legal Citations and Abbreviations (2d ed. 1993), Charles C. Soule, The Lawyer's Reference Manual (1884), or John G. Marvin, Legal Bibliography, or A Thesaurus of American, English, Irish and Scotch Law Books (1847). For non-English language abbreviations, see Bieber and Raistrick, above, but also Igor I. Kavass & Mary M. Prince, A World Dictionary of Legal Abbreviations (1991-) or Arturo L. Torres & Francisco Avalos, Latin American Legal Abbreviations: A Comprehensive Spanish/Portuguese Dictionary with English Translations (1989).

Appendix B. Legal Maxims

In the first edition of this dictionary, published in 1891, Henry Campbell Black remarked that the book contained “a complete collection of legal maxims,” adding: “These have not been grouped in one body, but distributed in their proper alphabetical order through the book. This is believed to be the more convenient arrangement” (p. iv). Although it might indeed have been more convenient for readers who knew the maxims they wanted to look up — as 19th-century readers might have been apt to — spreading Latin sentences throughout the book is decidedly inconvenient for most dictionary users today. We have therefore collected them for ease of reference. A bibliography of works cited appears on page _____.

Of course, many scholars have long been intolerant of those who use maxims to decide cases. As James Fitzjames Stephen, one of the great 19th-century legal scholars, incisively put it before Black's work appeared: It seems to me that legal maxims in general are little more than pert headings of chapters. They are rather minims than maxims, for they give not a particularly great but a particularly small amount of information. As often as not, the exceptions and disqualifications to them are more important than the so-called rules. FN1

Other scholars have been equally derisive. FN2

But there is an element of fun in legal maxims: they sometimes express surprising insights — and these from ancient writers. Though they will not clinch arguments, they will delight many readers who have a historical bent.

— B.A.G.

Ab abusu ad usum non valet consequentia. A conclusion about the use of a thing from its abuse is invalid.

Ab assuetis non fit injuria. No injury is done by things long acquiesced in.

Abbreviationum ille numerus et sensus accipiendus est ut concessio non sit inanis. Such number and sense is to be given to abbreviations that the grant may not be void.

Absentem accipere debemus eum qui non est eo loco in quo petitur.We must consider a person absent who is not in that place in which he is sought.

Absentia ejus qui reipublicae causa abest neque ei neque alii damnosa esse debet.The absence of a person who is abroad in service to the state ought to be prejudicial neither to that person nor to another. Dig. 50.17.140.

Absoluta sententia expositore non indiget.A simple proposition needs no expositor.

Abundans cautela non nocet.Abundant caution does no harm.

Accessorium non ducit, sed sequitur, suum principale.An accessory does not lead, but follows, its principal.

Accessorium non trahit principale.The accessory does not carry the principal with it.

Accessorius sequitur naturam sui principalis.An accessory follows the nature of his principal.

Accipere quid ut justitiam facias non est tam accipere quam extorquere.To accept anything as a reward for doing justice is rather extorting than accepting.

Accusare nemo debet se, nisi coram Deo.No one is obliged to accuse himself, except before God.

Accusator post rationabile tempus non est audiendus, nisi se bene de omissione excusaverit.A person who makes an accusation after a reasonable time has passed is not to be heard unless the person makes a satisfactory excuse for the omission.

A communi observantia non est recedendum.Common observance (or usage) is not to be departed from.

A communi observantia non est recedendum et minime mutandae sunt quae certam interpretationem habent.Common observance is not to be departed from, and things that have certain meaning are to be changed as little as possible.

Acta exteriora indicant interiora secreta.Outward acts indicate the thoughts hidden within.

Acta in uno judicio non probant in alio nisi inter easdem personas.Things done in one action cannot be taken as evidence in another, unless it is between the same parties.

Actio non datur non damnificato.An action is not given to one who is not injured.

Actio non facit reum, nisi mens sit rea.An act does not make a person guilty unless the mind is guilty. • Properly, Actus non reum (q.v.). Cases: [Criminal Law  20. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 31–33, 35–39; Negligence § 913.]

Actionum genera maxime sunt servanda.The kinds of actions are especially to be preserved.

Actio personalis moritur cum persona.A personal action dies with the person. Cases: [Abatement and Revival  52. C.J.S. Abatement and Revival §§ 130–142, 146, 148, 151–154; Right of Privacy and Publicity § 42.]

Actio quaelibet it sua via.Every action proceeds in its own course.

Actore non probante, reus absolvitur.If the plaintiff does not prove his case, the defendant is acquitted.

Actori incumbit onus probandi.The burden of proof rests on the plaintiff.

Actor qui contra regulam quid adduxit non est audiendus.A pleader ought not to be heard who advances a proposition contrary to the rule (of law).

Actor sequitur forum rei.The plaintiff follows the forum of the defendant.

Actus curiae neminem gravabit.An act of the court will prejudice no one.

Actus Dei nemini facit injuriam.An act of God does wrong to no one. • That is, no one is responsible in damages for inevitable accidents.

Actus Dei nemini nocet.An act of God does wrong to no one.

Actus inceptus cujus perfectio pendet ex voluntate partium revocari potest; si autem pendet ex voluntate tertiae personae, vel ex contingenti, revocari non potest.An act already begun whose completion depends on the will of the parties may be recalled; but if it depends on consent of a third person or on a contingency, it cannot be recalled.

Actus iudicialis coram non iudice irritus habetur; de ministeriali autem a quocunque provenit ratum esto.A judicial act before one not a judge (or without jurisdiction) is void; as to a ministerial act, from whomsoever it proceeds, let it be valid.

*Actus legis nemini est damnosus.*An act of the law prejudices no one.

*Actus legis nemini facit injuriam.*An act of the law does no one wrong.

*Actus legitimi non recipiunt modum.*Acts required by law admit of no qualification.

*Actus me invito factus non est meus actus.*An act done (by me) against my will is not my act.

*Actus non facit reum nisi mens sit rea.*An act does not make a person guilty unless the mind is guilty; an act does not make the doer criminal unless his mind is criminal. • Coke gives the maxim in a slightly different form: Actus non reum facit nisi mens sit rea. 3 Co. Inst. 54; 107.

*Actus repugnans non potest in esse produci.*A repugnant act cannot be brought into being (that is, cannot be made effectual).

*Actus servi, in iis quibus opera ejus communiter adhibita est, actus domini habetur.*The act of a servant in those things in which he is usually employed is considered the act of his master.

*Additio probat minoritatem.*An addition proves inferiority. • That is, if it be said that a person has a fee tail, it is less than if the person has the fee.

*Ad ea quae frequentius accidunt jura adaptantur.*The laws are adapted to those cases that occur more frequently.

*A digniori fieri debet denominatio et resolutio.*The denomination and explanation ought to be derived from the more worthy.

*Adjuvari quippe nos, non decipi, beneficio oportet.*Surely we ought to be helped by a benefit, not be entrapped by it.

*Ad officium justiciariorum spectat unicuique coram eis placitanti justitiam exhibere.*It is the duty of justices to administer justice to everyone pleading before them.

*Ad proximum antecedens fiat relatio, nisi impediatur sententia.*A relative is to be referred to the nearest antecedent, unless prevented by the sense.

*Ad quaestiones facti non respondent iudices; ad quaestiones legis non respondent juratores.*Judges do not answer questions of fact; jurors do not answer questions of law.

Ad quaestiones legis iudices, et non juratores, respondent.Judges, and not jurors, answer questions of law.

Ad recte docendum oportet primum inquirere nomina, quia rerum cognitio a nominibus rerum dependet.In order rightly to comprehend a thing, it is necessary first to inquire into the names, for a right knowledge of things depends on their names.

Ad reges enim potestas omnium pertinet; ad singulos, proprietas.Kings have (political) power over all things, while individuals own them.

Adversus extraneos vitiosa possessio prodesse solet.Possession though faulty is usually sufficient against outsiders. • Prior possession is a good title of ownership against all who cannot show a better.

Ad vim majorem vel ad casus fortuitos non tenetur quis, nisi sua culpa intervenerit.No one is held to answer for the effects of superior force or accidents, unless his own fault has contributed.

Aedificare in tuo proprio solo non licet quod alteri noceat.It is not lawful to build on one's own land what may be injurious to another.

Aedificatum solo solo cedit.What is built on the land goes with the land.

Aedificia solo cedunt.Buildings go with the land.

Aequior est dispositio legis quam hominis.The law's disposition is more impartial than man's.

Aequitas agit in personam.Equity acts on the person.

Aequitas est correctio legis generaliter latae qua parte deficit.Equity is the correction of some part of the law where by reason of its generality it is defective.

Aequitas est perfecta quaedam ratio quae jus scriptum interpretatur et emendat; nulla scriptura comprehensa, sed sola ratione consistens.Equity is a sort of perfect reason that interprets and amends written law; comprehended in no written text, but consisting of reason alone.

Aequitas est quasi equalitas.Equity is as it were equality.

*Aequitas ignorantiae opitulatur, oscitantiae non item.*Equity assists ignorance but not complacency (or carelessness).

*Aequitas non facit jus, sed juri auxiliatur.*Equity does not create a right, but aids the right.

*Aequitas nunquam contravenit leges.*Equity never contravenes the laws.

*Aequitas sequitur legem.*Equity follows the law. Cases: [Equity  62.C.J.S. Equity § 118.]

Jus accrescendi praefertur ultimae voluntati. The right of survivorship is preferred to a last will.

Jus civile est quod sibi populus constituit. The civil law is what a people has established for itself.

Jus constitui oportet in his quae ut plurimum accidunt, non quae ex inopinato. Law ought to be made with a view to the cases that happen most frequently, and not to those that are unexpected.

Jus descendit, et non terra. A right descends, and not the land.

Jus dicere (et) non jus dare. To state the right (and) not to endow it. • Generally interpreted, to declare the law (and) not to make it. Cases: [Constitutional Law  70.1. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 191–201, 441.]

Jus est ars boni et aequi. Law is the science of what is good and just.

Jus est norma recti; et quicquid est contra normam recti est injuria. The law is the rule of right; and whatever is contrary to the rule of right is an injury.

Jus et fraus nunquam cohabitant.Right and fraud never abide together.

Jus ex injuria non oritur.A right does not arise from a wrong.

Jus in re inhaerit ossibus usufructuarii.A right in the thing cleaves to the person (literally, the bones) of the usufructuary.

Jusjurandi forma verbis differt, re convenit; hunc enim sensum habere debet, ut Deus invocetur.The form of taking an oath differs in language, but agrees in meaning; for it ought to have this sense, that God is invoked.

Jusjurandum inter alios factum nec nocere nec prodesse debet.An oath made between third parties ought neither to hurt nor to profit.

Jus naturale est quod apud homines eandem habet potentiam.Natural right is that which has the same force among (all) mankind.

Jus non habenti tute non paretur.It is safe not to obey a person who has no right.

Jus publicum et privatum est quod ex naturalibus praeceptis, aut gentium, aut civilibus est collectum et quod in jure scripto jus appellatur, id in lege Angliae rectum esse dicitur.Public and private law is that which is collected from the precepts of nature, of peoples in general, or of particular states; and what in written law is called “jus” by the law of England is said to be “right.”

Jus publicum privatorum pactis mutari non potest.A public right cannot be changed by agreements of private parties.

Jus quo universitates utuntur est idem quod habent privati.The right that corporations exercise is the same as the right that individuals possess.

Jus respicit aequitatem.Law regards equity.

Jus superveniens auctori accrescit successori.An additional or enhanced right for the possessor accrues to the successor.

Justitia debet esse libera, quia nihil iniquius venali justitia; plena, quia justitia non debet claudicare; et celer, quia dilatio est quaedam negatio.Justice ought not to be bought, for nothing is more hateful than venal justice; full, for justice ought not to be defective; and quick, for delay is a certain denial.

Justitia est constans et perpetua voluntas jus suum cuique tribuendi.Justice is a steady and unceasing disposition to render to every person his due.

Justitia est duplex: severe puniens et vere praeveniens.Justice is double: punishing with severity, and truly preventing.

Justitia est virtus excellens et Altissimo complacens.Justice is an excellent virtue and pleasing to the Most High.

Justitia firmatur solium.By justice the throne is strengthened.

Justitia nemini neganda est.Justice is to be denied to no one.

Justitia non est neganda, non differenda.Justice is not to be denied or delayed.

Justitia non novit patrem nec matrem, solum veritatem spectat justitia.Justice knows neither father nor mother; justice looks to truth alone.

Justum non est aliquem antenatum mortuum facere bastardum, qui pro tota vita sua pro legitimo habetur.It is not just to make a bastard after his death an elder child who all his life has been accounted legitimate.

Jus vendit quod usus approbavit.The law dispenses what use has approved.

La conscience est la plus changeante des régles.Conscience is the most changing of rules.

Lata culpa dolo aequiparatur.Gross negligence is equivalent to fraud.

*Le contrat fait la loi.*The contract makes the law.

*Legatos violare contra jus gentium est.*It is contrary to the law of nations to do violence to ambassadors.

*Legatum morte testatoris tantum confirmatur, sicut donatio inter vivos traditione sola.*A legacy is confirmed by the death of the testator, in the same manner as a gift from a living person is by delivery alone.

*Legatus regis vice fungitur a quo destinatur et honorandus est sicut ille cujus vicem gerit.*An ambassador fills the place of the king by whom he is appointed, and is to be honored in the same way as the person whose place he fills.

*Legem enim contractus dat.*The contract gives the law.

*Legem terrae amittentes perpetuam infamiae notam inde merito incurrunt.*Those who lose the law of the land thereby justly incur an eternal stigma of infamy.

*Leges Angliae sunt tripartitae: jus commune, consuetudines, ac decreta comitorum.*The laws of England are threefold: common law, customs, and decrees of parliament.

*Leges et constitutiones futuris certum est dare formam negotiis non ad facta praeterita revocari; nisi nominatim et de praeterito tempore et adhuc pendentibus negotiis cautum sit.*Laws and statutes are regarded as regulating future negotiations, not past transactions; unless they are expressly made to apply to both past and pending matters.

*Leges figendi et refigendi consuetudo est periculosissima.*The practice of adding and annulling laws is a most dangerous one. 4 Coke pref.

*Leges fixit pretio atque refixit.*He shaped and reshaped laws for a price; he promulgated and annulled laws at a price. • The reference is to a judge who took bribes.

*Leges humanae nascuntur, vivunt, et moriuntur.*Laws that humans have made are born, live, and die.

*Leges naturae perfectissimae sunt et immutabiles; humani vero juris conditio semper in infinitum decurrit, et nihil est in eo quod perpetuo stare possit.*The laws of nature are most perfect and immutable; but the condition of human law is an unending succession, and there is nothing in it that can stand forever.

*Leges non verbis sed rebus sunt impositae.*Laws are imposed on affairs, not words.

Leges posteriores priores contrarias abrogant. Subsequent laws repeal prior conflicting ones. Cases: [Statutes  159, 162. C.J.S. Statutes §§ 287, 294.]

Leges suum ligent latorem. Laws should bind their own author.

Leges vigilantibus, non dormientibus subveniunt. The laws aid those who keep watch, not those who sleep (that is, the vigilant, not the negligent). Cases: [Action  63; Equity  64. C.J.S. Actions § 239; Equity § 115.]

Legibus sumptis desinentibus, lege naturae utendum est. Where man-made laws fail, the law of nature must be used.

Merito retribuatur Rex legi quod lex attribuat ei.The king rightly repays the law what (i.e., the power that) the law ascribes to him; let the king repay to the law what the law attributes to him.

Merx est quidquid vendi potest.Merchandise is whatever can be sold.

Meum est promittere, non dimittere.It is mine to promise, not to discharge.

Minatur innocentibus qui parcat nocentibus.A person threatens the innocent who spares the guilty.

Minima poena corporalis est major qualibet pecuniaria.The smallest bodily punishment is greater than any pecuniary one.

Minime mutanda sunt quae certam habuerunt interpretationem.Things that have had a fixed interpretation are to be altered as little as possible.

Minimum est nihilo proximum.The least is next to nothing.

Minor ante tempus agere non potest in casu proprietatis, nec etiam convenire.A minor before majority cannot act in a case of property, not even to agree.

Minor ante tempus agere non potest in casu proprietatis, nec etiam convenire; differetur usque aetatem; sed non cadit breve.A minor before majority cannot act in a case of property, not even to agree; it will be deferred until majority; but a writ does not fail.

Minor jurare non potest.A minor cannot take an oath.

Minor minorem custodire non debet; alios enim praesumitur male regere qui seipsum regere nescit.A minor ought not be guardian of a minor, for he is presumed to govern others ill who does not know how to govern himself.

Minor non tenetur respondere durante minori aetati, nisi in causa dotis, propter favorem.A minor is not bound to answer during his minority, except as a matter of favor in a cause of dower.

Minor qui infra aetatem 12 annorum fuerit utlagari non potest nec extra legem poni, quia ante talem aetatem, non est sub lege aliqua nec in decenna.A minor who is under 12 years of age cannot be outlawed nor placed beyond the law, because before that age he is not under any law nor in a decennary.

Minor septemdecim annis non admittitur fore executores.A person under 17 years of age is not admitted to be an executor.

Minus solvit qui tardius solvit; nam et tempore minus solvitur.A person pays too little who pays too late; for, from the delay, the payment is less.

Misera est servitus ubi jus est vagum aut incertum.It is a miserable slavery where the law is vague or uncertain.

Mitius imperanti melius paretur.The more mildly one commands, the better is he obeyed.

Mobilia non habent situm.Movables have no fixed site or locality.

Mobilia personam sequuntur, immobilia situm.Movable things follow the person; immovable ones, their locality.

Mobilia sequuntur personam.Movables follow the person. Cases: [Taxation 98. C.J.S. Taxation §§ 153–157, 160, 283.]

Modica circumstantia facti jus mutat.A small circumstance attending an act alters the right.

Modus de non decimando non valet.A prescription not to pay tithes is void.

Modus et conventio vincunt legem.Customary form and the agreement of the parties overcome the law. • This is one of the first principles relative to the law of contract. 2 Coke 73.

Modus legem dat donationi.Custom (or form) gives law to a gift.

Moneta est justum medium et mensura rerum commutabilium, nam per medium monetae fit omnium rerum conveniens et justa aestimatio.Money is the just medium and measure of all exchangeable things, for by the medium of money a suitable and just estimation of all things is made.

Monetandi jus comprehenditur in regalibus quae nunquam a regio sceptro abdicantur.The right of coining is included among those rights of royalty that are never relinquished by the kingly scepter.

Monumenta quae nos recorda vocamus sunt veritatis et vetustatis vestigia.The monuments that we call records are the vestiges of truth and antiquity.

Mora debitoris non debet esse creditori damnosa.Delay by a debtor ought not to be injurious to a creditor.

Mora reprobatur in lege.Delay is disapproved of in law.

Mors dicitur ultimum supplicium.Death is called the extreme penalty.

Mors omnia solvit.Death dissolves all things.

Mortis momentum est ultimum vitae momentum.The moment of death is the last moment of life.

Mortuus exitus non est exitus.A dead issue is not issue. • That is, a child born dead is no child.

Mos retinendus est fidelissimae vetustatis.A custom of the truest antiquity is to be retained.

Mulcta damnum famae non irrogat.A fine does not impose a loss of reputation.

Multa conceduntur per obliquum quae non conceduntur de directo.Many things are conceded indirectly that are not allowed directly.

Multa fidem promissa levant.Many promises lessen confidence.

Multa ignoramus quae nobis non laterent si veterum lectio nobis fuit familiaris.We are ignorant of many things that would not be hidden from us if the reading of old authors were familiar to us.

Multa in jure communi contra rationem disputandi pro communi utilitate introducta sunt.Many things have been introduced into the common law, with a view to the public good, that are contrary to logical reasoning. Co. Litt. 70b.

Multa multo exercitatione facilius quam regulis percipies.You will perceive many things much more easily by practice than by rules.

Multa non vetat lex quae tamen tacite damnavit.The law does not forbid many things that yet it has silently condemned.

Multa transeunt cum universitate quae non per se transeunt.Many things pass with the whole that would not pass separately.

Multi multa, nemo omnia novit. Many men know many things; no one knows everything.

Multiplex et indistinctum parit confusionem; et quaestiones quo simpliciores, eo lucidiores. Multiplicity and indistinctness produce confusion: the simpler questions are, the more lucid they are.

Multiplicata transgressione crescat poenae inflictio. The infliction of punishment should increase with the repetition of the offense. • Coke continues, Ex frequenti delicto augetur poena (q.v.). 2 Co. Inst. 479.

Multitudinem decem faciunt. Ten make a multitude.

Multitudo errantium non parit errori patrocinium. The multitude of those who err does not produce indulgence for error.

Multitudo imperitorum perdit curiam. A multitude of ignorant practitioners destroys a court.

Multo utilius est pauca idonea effundere, quam multis inutilibus homines gravari. It is much more useful to pour forth a few suitable things than to burden mankind with many useless things.

Nasciturus pro jam nato habetur quamdiu agitur de ejus commodo. One about to be born is held as already born as long as the issue is to his benefit; a child conceived is treated as born to the extent that it is to his or her benefit.

Natura appetit perfectum, ita et lex. Nature aspires to perfection, and so does the law.

Naturae vis maxima; natura bis maxima. The force of nature is greatest; (and, as some say,) nature is doubly greatest. 2 Co. Inst. 564.

Natura fide jussionis sit strictissimi juris et non durat vel extendatur de re ad rem, de persona ad personam, de tempore ad tempus. The nature of the contract of suretyship is strictissimi juris, and does not endure or should not be extended from thing to thing, from person to person, or from time to time.

Naturale est quilibet dissolvi eo modo quo ligatur. It is natural for a thing to be dissolved in the same way in which it is bound.

Natura non facit saltum, ita nec lex. Nature makes no leap, and neither does the law.

Natura non facit vacuum, nec lex supervacuum. Nature makes no vacuum, and the law nothing purposeless.

*Nec curia deficeret in justitia exhibenda.*Nor should the court be deficient in showing justice.

*Necessarium est quod non potest aliter se habere.*That is necessary which cannot be otherwise.

*Necessitas est lex temporis et loci.*Necessity is the law of time and place.

*Necessitas excusat aut extenuat delictum in capitalibus, quod non operatur idem in civilibus.*Necessity excuses or extenuates delinquency in capital cases, but does not have the same effect in civil cases.

*Necessitas facit licitum quod alias non est licitum.*Necessity makes lawful what otherwise is unlawful.
Cases: [Criminal Law  38. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 49–53.]

*Necessitas inducit privilegium quoad jura privata.*Necessity creates a privilege with regard to private rights.

*Necessitas non habet legem.*Necessity has no law.

*Necessitas publica major est quam privata.*Public necessity is greater than private necessity.

*Necessitas quod cogit defendit.*Necessity defends what it compels.

*Necessitas sub lege non continetur, quia quod alias non est licitum necessitas facit licitum.*Necessity is not restrained by law, since what otherwise is not lawful necessity makes lawful.

*Necessitas vincit legem.*Necessity overcomes the law.

*Necessitas vincit legem; legum vincula irridet.*Necessity overcomes the law; it laughs at the fetters of laws.

*Nec super eum ibimus, nec super eum mittemus, nisi per legale iudicium parium suorum.*Nor shall we go upon him, nor send upon him, except by the lawful judgment of his peers; we will not go against him or send against him except by the lawful judgment of his peers. • This language appears in Magna Carta, ch. 39.

*Nec tempus nec locus occurrit regi.*Neither time nor place thwarts the king.

*Nec veniam effuso sanguine casus habet.*Where blood has been spilled, the case is unpardonable.

*Nec veniam, laeso numine, casus habet.*Where the Divinity has been insulted, the case is unpardonable.

*Negatio conclusionis est error in lege.*The denial of a conclusion is error in law.

*Negatio destruit negationem, et ambae faciunt affirmationem.*A negative destroys a negative, and both make an affirmative.

*Negatio duplex est affirmatio.*A double negative is an affirmative.

*Negligentia semper habet infortuniam comitem.*Negligence always has misfortune for a companion.

*Neminem laedit qui jure suo utitur.*A person who exercises his own rights injures no one.

Nemo unquam vir magnus fuit sine aliquo divino afflatu.No one was ever a great man without some divine inspiration.

Nemo videtur fraudare eos qui sciunt et consentiunt.No one is considered as deceiving those who know and consent.

Neque leges neque senatus consulta ita scribi possunt ut omnes casus qui quandoque inciderint comprehendantur; sed sufficit ea quae plerumque accidunt contineri.Neither laws nor acts of senate can be so written as to include all cases that have happened at any time; it is sufficient that those things that usually occur are encompassed. Dig. 1.3.10. pr.

Ne quid in loco publico vel itinere fiat.Let nothing be done (put or erected) in a public place or way. • The title of an interdict in the Roman law.

Nigrum nunquam excedere debet rubrum.The black should never go beyond the red. • That is, the text of a statute should never be read in a sense more comprehensive than the rubric, or title.

Nihil aliud potest rex quam quod de jure potest.The king can do nothing but what he can do legally; the king can do nothing except by law.

Nihil consensui tam contrarium est quam vis atque metus.Nothing is so opposite to consent as force and fear.

Nihil dat qui non habet.A person gives nothing who has nothing.

Nihil de re accrescit ei qui nihil in re quando jus accresceret habet.Nothing from a property accrues to a person who had no interest in the property when the right accrued. Co. Litt. 188.

Nihil dictum quod non dictum prius. Nothing is said that was not said before.

Nihil est enim liberale quod non idem justum. For there is nothing generous that is not at the same time just.

Nihil est magis rationi consentaneum quam eodem modo quodque dissolvere quo conflatum est. Nothing is more consonant to reason than that everything should be dissolved in the same way as it was made.

Nihil facit error nominis cum de corpore constat. An error in the name is nothing when there is certainty as to the person.

Nihil habet forum ex scena. The court has nothing to do with what is not before it.

Nihil infra regnum subditos magis conservat in tranquillitate et concordia quam debita legum administratio. Nothing better preserves the subjects of the realm in tranquillity and concord than a due administration of the laws. 2 Co. Inst. 158.

Nihil iniquius quam aequitatem nimis intendere. Nothing is more unjust than to extend equity too far.

Nihil in lege intolerabilius est (quam) eandem rem diverso jure censi. Nothing in law is more intolerable than that the same case should be subject (in different courts) to different views of the law.

Nihil magis justum est quam quod necessarium est. Nothing is more just than what is necessary.

Nihil nequam est praesumendum. Nothing wicked is to be presumed.

Nihil perfectum est dum aliquid restat agendum. Nothing is perfect while something remains to be done.

Nihil peti potest ante id tempus quo per rerum naturam persolvi possit. Nothing can be demanded before the time when, in the nature of things, it can be paid.

Nihil possumus contra veritatem. We have no power against truth.

Nihil praescribitur nisi quod possidetur. There is no prescription for what is not possessed.

Nihil quod est contra rationem est licitum. Nothing that is against reason is lawful.

Nihil quod est licitum est inconveniens. Nothing that is lawful is improper.

Nihil simul inventum est et perfectum. Nothing is invented and perfected at the same moment.

Nihil tam conveniens est naturali aequitati quam unumquodque dissolvi eo ligamine quo ligatum est. Nothing is so consonant with natural equity as that each thing should be dissolved by the same means as it was bound.

Nihil tam conveniens est naturali aequitati quam voluntatem domini volentis rem suam in alium transferre ratam haberi. Nothing is more consistent with natural equity than to confirm the will of an owner who desires to transfer his property to another.

Nihil tam naturale est quam eo genere quidque dissolvere quo colligatum est. Nothing is so natural as that an obligation should be dissolved by the same principle by which it was contracted.

Nihil tam naturale est quam eo genere quidque dissolvere quo colligatum est; ideo verborum obligatio verbis tollitur; nudi consensus obligatio contrario consensu dissolvitur. Nothing is so natural as to dissolve anything in the way in which it was bound together; therefore the obligation of words is taken away by words; the obligation of mere consent is dissolved by the contrary consent.

Nihil tam proprium imperio quam legibus vivere. Nothing is so becoming to authority as to live according to the law.

Nil agit exemplum litem quod lite resolvit. A precedent accomplishes nothing if it settles one dispute by raising another.

Nil facit error nominis cum de corpore vel persona constat. An error in the name is immaterial when the body or person is certain.

Nil sine prudenti fecit ratione vetustas. Antiquity did nothing without a good reason.

Nil temere novandum. Nothing should be rashly changed.

Nimia certitudo certitudinem ipsam destruit. Too great certainty destroys certainty itself.

Nimia subtilitas in jure reprobatur. Too much subtlety in law is condemned.

Nimia subtilitas in jure reprobatur, et talis certitudo certitudinem confundit. Too great subtlety is disapproved of in law, and such certainty confounds certainty.

Nimum altercando veritas amittitur. By too much quarreling truth is lost.

Nobiles magis plectuntur pecunia, plebes vero in corpore. The higher classes are more punished in money, but the lower in person.

Nobiles sunt qui arma gentilitia antecessorum suorum proferre possunt. The gentry are those who are able to produce the heraldic arms of their own ancestors.

Nobiliores et benigniores praesumptiones in dubiis sunt praeferendae. When in doubt, the more generous and kind presumptions are to be preferred.

Nobilitas est duplex, superior et inferior. There are two sorts of nobility, the higher and the lower.

Nomen est quasi rei notamen. A name is, as it were, the distinctive sign (or signifier) of a thing.

Nomen non sufficit si res non sit de jure aut de facto. A name does not suffice if the thing does not exist by law or by fact.

Nomina si nescis, perit cognitio rerum. If you do not know the names of things, the knowledge of things themselves perishes.

Nomina si nescis, perit cognitio rerum; et nomina si perdas, certe distinctio rerum perditur. If you do not know the names of things, the knowledge of things themselves perishes; and, if you lose the names, the distinction of the things is certainly lost.

Nomina sunt mutabilia, res autem immobiles. Names are mutable, but things immutable.

Nomina sunt notae rerum. Names are the marks of things.

Nomina sunt symbola rerum. Names are the symbols of things.

Non accipi debent verba in demonstrationem falsam, quae competunt in limitationem veram. Words ought not to be accepted to import a false description when they are consistent with a true definition.

Non alio modo puniatur aliquis, quam secundum quod se habet condemnatio.A person may not be punished otherwise than according to what the sentence enjoins.

Non aliter a significatione verborum recedi oportet quam cum manifestum est aliud sensisse testatorem.We must depart from the (ordinary) significance of words only when it is evident that the testator had a different understanding. Dig. 32.69. pr.

Non auditur perire volens.One who wishes to perish is not heard.

Non bis in idem (or imperative, ne bis in idem). Not twice for the same thing. • That is, a person shall not be twice tried for the same crime. This maxim of the civil law expresses the same principle as the familiar rule against “double jeopardy.” Cases: [Double Jeopardy  183.1.]

Non concedantur citationes priusquam exprimat super qua re fieri decet citatio.Summonses should not be granted before it is expressed on what ground a summons should be issued.

Non consentit qui errat.A person who errs does not consent.

Non dat qui non habet.A person who does not have does not give.

Non debeo melioris conditionis esse quam auctor meus a quo jus in me transit.I ought not to be in better condition than the person to whose rights I succeed.

Non deberet alii nocere quod inter alios actum esset.A person ought not to be injured by what has taken place between other parties.

Non debet actori licere quod reo non permittitur.What is not permitted to the defendant ought not to be allowed to the plaintiff.

Non debet adduci exceptio ejus rei cujus petitur dissolutio.An exception (or plea) should not be made on the very matter of which a determination is sought (in the case at hand).

Non debet alii nocere quod inter alios actum est.A person ought not to be prejudiced by what has been done between others.

Non debet alteri per alterum iniqua conditio inferri.An unfair condition ought not to be brought on one person by the act of another.

Non debet cui plus licet quod minus est non licere.A person who is permitted to do the greater thing ought not to be forbidden to do the lesser.

Non debet dici tendere in praejudicium ecclesiasticae liberatatis quod pro rege et republica necessarium videtur.What seems necessary for the king and the state ought not to be said to tend to the prejudice of spiritual liberty.

Non decet homines dedere causa non cognita.It is unbecoming to surrender people when no cause has been shown.

Non decipitur qui scit se decipi.A person is not deceived who knows himself to be deceived.

Non definitur in jure quid sit conatus.What an attempt is, is not defined in law.

Non differunt quae concordant re, tametsi non in verbis iisdem.Those things that agree in substance, even if not in the same words, do not differ.

Non dubitatur, etsi specialiter venditor evictionem non promiserit, re evicta, ex empto competere actionem.It is certain that even if the vendor has not given a special guarantee, an action ex empto lies against him, if the purchaser is evicted.

Non efficit affectus nisi sequatur effectus.The intention amounts to nothing unless some effect follows.

Non erit alia lex Romae, alia Athaenis; alia nunc, alia posthac; sed et omnes gentes, et omni tempore, una lex, et sempiterna, et immortalis continebit.There will not be one law at Rome, another at Athens; one law now, another hereafter; but one eternal and immortal law shall bind together all nations throughout all time.

Non est arctius vinculum inter homines quam jusjurandum.There is no closer (or firmer) link among men than an oath.

Non est certandum de regulis juris. There is no disputing rules of law.

Non est consonum rationi quod cognitio accessorii in curia christianitatis impediatur, ubi cognitio causae principalis ad forum ecclesiasticum noscitur pertinere.It is unreasonable that the cognizance of an accessory matter should be impeded in an ecclesiastical court, when the cognizance of the principal cause is admitted to appertain to an ecclesiastical court.

Non est disputandum contra principia negantem. There is no disputing against a person who denies first principles.

Non est justum aliquem antenatum post mortem facere bastardum qui toto tempore vitae suae pro legitimo habebatur. It is not just to make an elderborn a bastard after his death, who during his lifetime was accounted legitimate.

Non est novum ut priores leges ad posteriores trahantur. It is not an innovation to adapt earlier laws to later ones. Dig. 1.3.26.

Non est recedendum a communi observantia. There should be no departure from a common observance.

Non est regula quin fallat. There is no rule that may not deceive (or disappoint).

Non est reus nisi mens sit rea. A person is not guilty unless his mind is guilty. Cases: [Criminal Law  20. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 31–33, 35–39; Negligence § 913.]

Non est singulis concedendum quod per magistratum publice possit fieri, ne occasio sit majoris tumultus faciendi. That is not to be conceded to private persons which can be publicly done by the magistrate, lest it be the occasion of greater tumult.

Non exemplis sed legibus judicandum est. Not by examples but by the laws must judgment be made.

Non ex opinionibus singulorum, sed ex communi usu, nomina exaudiri debent. Names of things ought to be understood according to common usage, not according to the opinions of individuals. Cases: [Wills  456. C.J.S. Wills § 842.]

Non facias malum ut inde veniat bonum. You are not to do evil that good may come of it.

Non impedit clausula derogatoria quo minus ab eadem potestate res dissolvantur a qua constituuntur. A derogatory clause does not prevent things from being dissolved by the same power by which they were originally made.

Non in legendo sed in intelligendo leges consistunt. The laws consist not in reading but in understanding.

Non in tabulis est jus. It is not in books that the law is to be found.

Non jus ex regula, sed regula ex jure.The law does not arise from the rule (or maxim), but the rule from the law.

Non jus, sed seisin facit stipitem.Not right, but seisin, makes a stock (from which the inheritance must descend).

Non licet quod dispendio licet.That which is permitted only at a loss is not permitted.

Non nasci et natum mori paria sunt.Not to be born and to be born dead are equivalent.

Non obligat lex nisi promulgata.A law is not binding unless it has been promulgated.

Non observata forma, infertur adnullatio actus.When the form has not been observed, an annulment of the act is inferred.

Non officit affectus nisi sequatur effectus. Sed in atrocioribus delictis punitur affectus, licet non sequatur effectus.The intention is not an offense unless an effect follow. But in the most atrocious crimes the intention is punished, although no effect follow.

Non officit conatus nisi sequatur effectus.An attempt does not harm unless a consequence follows.

Non omne damnum inducit injuriam.Not every loss produces an injury (i.e., gives a right to action).

Non omne quod licet honestum est.Not everything that is lawful is honorable; not everything that is allowable is morally right.

Non omnium quae a majoribus nostris constituta sunt ratio reddi potest.Reason cannot always be given for the institutions of our ancestors.

Non pertinet ad judicem secularem cognoscere de iis quae sunt mere spiritualia annexa.It belongs not to the secular judge to take cognizance of things that are merely spiritual.

Non possessori incumbit necessitas probandi possessiones ad se pertinere.It is not incumbent on the possessor of property to prove that his possessions belong to him.

Non potest adduci exceptio ejusdem rei cujus petitur dissolutio.An exception cannot be brought on the same matter whose determination is at issue (in the action at hand).

Non potest probari quod probatum non relevat. That cannot be proved which, when proved, is irrelevant.

Non potest quis sine brevi agere. No one can sue without a writ.

Non potest rex gratiam facere cum injuria et damno aliorum. The king cannot confer a favor that occasions injury and loss to others.

Non potest rex subditum renitentem onerare impositionibus. The king cannot load a subject with impositions against his consent.

Non potest videri desisse habere qui nunquam habuit. A person cannot be considered as having ceased to have a thing who never had it.

Non praestat impedimentum quod de jure non sortitur effectum. A thing that has no effect in law is not an impediment.

Non quod dictum est, sed quod factum est, inspicitur. Not what has been said but what has been done is regarded. Cases: [Wills  108. C.J.S. Wills §§ 217–221, 225.]

Non quod voluit testator, sed quod dixit in testamento inspicitur. Not what the testator wanted, but what he said in the will, is regarded.

Non refert an quis assensum suum praefert verbis an rebus ipsis et factis. It is immaterial whether a person gives assent by words or by acts themselves and deeds.

Non refert quid ex aequipollentibus fiat. It does not matter which of two equivalents happens.

Non refert quid notum sit judici, si notum non sit in forma judicii. It matters not what is known to the judge if it is not known to him judicially.

Non refert verbis an factis fit revocatio. It does not matter whether a revocation is made by words or by acts.

Non respondebit minor, nisi in causa dotis, et hoc pro favore doti. A minor shall not answer except in a case of dower, and here in favor of dower.

Non solent quae abundant vitiare scripturas. Superfluous expressions do not usually vitiate writings.

Non solum quid licet sed quid est conveniens considerandum, quia nihil quod inconveniens est licitum.Not only what is permitted but what is proper is to be considered, because nothing improper is lawful.

Non sunt longa ubi nihil est quod demere possis.There is no prolixity where there is nothing that you can omit.

Non temere credere est nervus sapientiae.Not to believe rashly is the sinew of wisdom.

Non valebit felonis generatio nec ad haereditatem paternam vel maternam; si autem ante feloniam generationem fecerit, talis generatio succedit in haereditate patris vel matris a quo non fuerit felonia perpetrata.The offspring of a felon cannot succeed to either a maternal or paternal inheritance; but if the felon had offspring before the felony, the offspring may succeed to the inheritance of the father or mother by whom no felony was committed.

Non valet confirmatio, nisi ille, qui confirmat, sit in possessione rei vel juris unde fieri debet confirmatio; et eodem modo, nisi ille cui confirmatio fit sit in possessione.Confirmation is not valid unless the person who confirms is in possession either of the thing or of the right of which confirmation is to be made, and, in like manner, unless that person to whom confirmation is made is in possession.

Non valet donatio nisi subsequatur traditio.A gift is not valid unless delivery (or transference) follows.

Non valet exceptio ejusdem rei cujus petitur dissolutio.An exception based on the very matter of which the determination is sought is not valid.

Non valet impedimentum quod de jure non sortitur effectum.An impediment that does not derive its effect from the law has no force.

Non verbis sed ipsis rebus leges imponimus.Not on words, but on affairs themselves do we impose laws.

Non videntur qui errant consentire.They who err are not considered as consenting. Cases: [Contracts  93. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 136, 147–148.]

Non videntur rem amittere quibus propria non fuit.They are not considered as losing a thing if it was not their own.

Non videtur consensum retinuisse si quis ex praescripto minantis aliquod immutavit.If a person has changed anything at the demand of a party threatening, he is not considered to have maintained his consent.

Non videtur perfecte cujusque id esse quod ex casu auferri potest.A thing is not considered completely to belong to anyone if it can be taken from him by chance (or occasion).

Ubi aliquid conceditur, conceditur et id sine quo res ipsa esse non potest.When anything is granted, that also is granted without which the thing itself cannot exist.

Ubi aliquid impeditur propter unum, eo remoto, tollitur impedimentum.When anything is impeded by reason of one thing, when that is removed, the impediment is removed.

Ubi cessat remedium ordinarium, ibi decurritur ad extraordinarium.When a common remedy ceases to be of service, recourse is had to an extraordinary one.

Ubi culpa est, ibi poena subesse debet.Where the fault is, there the punishment should be imposed.

Ubiunque est injuria, ibi damnum sequitur.Wherever there is a legal wrong, there damage follows.

Ubi damna dantur victus victori in expensis condemnari debet.Where damages are awarded, the party that did not succeed ought to be adjudged to pay expenses for the party that prevailed.

Ubi eadem ratio, ibi idem jus.Where there is the same reason, there is the same law. — Also rendered Ubi eadem est ratio, ibi idem est jus.

Ubi eadem ratio, ibi idem jus; et de similibus idem est iudicium.Where there is the same reason, there is the same law; and the same judgment should be rendered on comparable facts.

Ubi est forum, ibi ergo est jus.Where the forum (or place of jurisdiction) is, there accordingly is the law.

Ubi et dantis et accipientis turpitude versatur, non posse repeti dicimus; quotiens autem accipientis turpitude versatur, repeti posse.Where there is misconduct on the part of both giver and receiver, we say the thing cannot be recovered; but as often as the misconduct is on the side of the receiver (alone), it can be recovered.

Ubi factum nullum, ibi fortia nulla.Where there is no fact, there are no strong points.

Ubi jus, ibi remedium.Where there is a right, there is a remedy. Cases: [Equity  55. C.J.S. Equity § 120.]

Ubi jus incertum, ibi jus nullum.Where the right is uncertain, there is no right. Cases: [Statutes  47. C.J.S. Statutes § 64.]

Ubi lex aliquem cogit ostendere causam, necesse est quod causa sit justa et legitima. Where the law compels someone to show cause, it is necessary that the cause be just and legal.

Ubi lex deest, praetor supplet. Where the law is deficient, the praetor supplies the deficiency.

Ubi lex est specialis et ratio ejus generalis, generaliter accipienda est. Where the law is special and the reason of it is general, it ought to be taken as general.

Ubi lex non distinguit, nec nos distinguere debemus. Where the law does not distinguish, we ought not to distinguish.

Ubi major pars est, ibi totum. Where the greater part is, there is the whole.

Ubi matrimonium, ibi dos. Where there is marriage, there is dower.

Ubi non adest norma legis, omnia quasi pro suspectis habenda sunt. Where there is no rule of law, everything must be held, as it were, suspect.

Ubi non est condendi auctoritas, ibi non est parendi necessitas. Where there is no authority to establish (a rule), there is no necessity to obey.

Ubi non est directa lex, standum est arbitrio judicis, vel procedendum ad similia. Where there is not direct law, one must rely on the judgment of the judge or refer to similar cases.

Ubi non est lex, ibi non est transgressio quoad mundum. Where there is not law, there is not transgression, as far as this world is concerned.

Ubi non est manifesta injustitia, judices habentur pro bonis viris, et judicatum pro veritate. Where there is no manifest injustice, the judges are to be regarded as honest men, and their judgment as truth.

Ubi non est principalis, non potest esse accessorius. Where there is no principal, there can be no accessory.

Ubi nulla est conjectura quae ducat alio, verba intelligenda sunt ex proprietate non grammatica sed populari ex usu. Where there is no inference that would lead in another direction, the words are to be understood according to their proper meaning, not strictly according to grammar but according to popular usage.

Ubi nullum matrimonium, ibi nulla dos. Where there is no marriage, there is no dower.

Ubi onus ibi emolumentum. Where the burden is, there is the profit or advantage.

Ubi periculum, ibi et lucrum collocatur. Where the risk is, there also the profit accrues.

Ubi pugnantia inter se in testamento juberentur, neutrum ratum est. When two directions conflicting with each other were given in a will, neither is held valid.

Ubi quid generaliter conceditur, inest haec exceptio, si non aliquid sit contra jus fasque. Where a thing is granted in general terms, this exception is implied: if there is not anything contrary to law and right.

Ubi quis delinquit ibi punietur. Where anyone commits an offense, there will he be punished.

Ubi remedium, ibi ius. Where there is a remedy, there is a right.

Ubi verba conjuncta non sunt, sufficit alterutrum esse factum. Where words are not conjoined, it is enough that one or another (of the things enumerated) has been done.

Ultima voluntas testatoris est perimplenda secundum veram intentionem suam. The last will of a testator is to be fulfilled according to his true intention.

Ultimum supplicium esse mortem solam interpretamur. We consider death alone to be the extreme punishment.

Ultra posse non potest esse et vice versa. What is beyond possibility cannot exist, and the reverse (what cannot exist is not possible).

Una persona vix potest supplere vices duarum. One person can scarcely supply the place of two.

Unaquaeque gleba servit. Every lump of earth (on the land) is subject to the servitude.

Uniuscujusque contractus initium spectandum est et causa. The beginning and cause of each and every contract must be considered.

Unius omnino testis responsio non audiatur. Let the evidence of one witness not be heard at all.

Universalis sunt notiora singularibus. Things universal are better known than things particular.

Universitas vel corporatio non dicitur aliquid facere nisi id sit collegialiter deliberatum, etiamsi major pars id faciat. A university or corporation is not said to take any action unless the action was resolved by it as a body, even if a greater part of the body should act.

Un ne doit prise advantage de son tort demesne. One should not take advantage from his own wrong.

Uno absurdo dato, infinita sequuntur. When one absurdity has been allowed, an infinity follows.

Unumquodque dissolvitur eodem ligamine quo ligatur. Everything is dissolved by the same binding by which it is bound together.

Unumquodque eodem modo dissolvitur quo colligatur. Any obligation is discharged in the same manner as it is constituted.

Unumquodque eodem modo quo colligatum est dissolvitur. In the same manner in which anything was bound, it is loosened.

Unumquodque est id quod est principalis in ipso. That which is the principal part of a thing is the thing itself.

Unumquodque ligamen dissolvitur eodem ligamine qui et ligatur. Every obligation is dissolved in the same manner in which it is contracted.

Unumquodque principiorum est sibimet ipsi fides; et perspicua vera non sunt probanda. Each and every one of the general principles is its own pledge of trust, and plain truths need not be proved.

Unusquisque debet esse gnarus conditionis ejus cum quo contrahit. Everyone ought to be cognizant of the condition of the person with whom he makes contract.

Usucapio constituta est ut aliquis litium finis esset. Prescription (Roman usucapio) was instituted that there might be some end to lawsuits. Dig. 41.10.5.

Usus est dominium fiduciarium. Use is a fiduciary ownership.

Usus fit ex iteratis actibus. Usage arises from repeated acts.

*Utile per inutile non vitiatur.*What is useful is not vitiated by the useless. Cases: [Trial 🔑336. C.J.S. Trial § 851.]

*Utlagatus est quasi extra legem positus: caput gerit lupinum.*An outlaw is, as it were, put out of the protection of the law: he carries the head of a wolf.

*Ut poena ad paucos, metus ad omnes perveniat.*So that punishment afflict few, (and) fear affect all. • Blackstone cites Cicero (pro Cluentio 46) emphasizing deterrence. 4 Bl. Com. 11.

Ut res magis valeat quam pereat.(Interpret the law, contract, etc.) so that the transaction is upheld rather than lost (or so that a matter may avail rather than perish). • The phrase can be literally translated as “that the matter may have effect rather than fail.” Cases: [Contracts 🔑153; Patents 🔑157(2); Wills 🔑449. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 330, 332; Patents §§ 270–272; Wills § 864.]

*Uxor et filius sunt nomina naturae.*Wife and son are names of nature.

*Uxor non est sui juris sed sub potestate viri.*A wife is not in her own right (i.e., she cannot act independently), but under the power of her husband.

*Uxor sequitur domicilium viri.*A wife follows the domicile of her husband.

*Vagabundum nuncupamus eum qui nullibi domicilium contraxit habitationis.*We call the person a vagabond who has acquired nowhere a domicile of residence.

*Valeat quantum valere potest.*Let it have effect as far as it can have effect.

*Vana est illa potentia quae nunquam venit in actum.*Vain is that power that never comes into action.

*Vani timores sunt aestimandi, qui non cadunt in constantem virem.*Those fears are to be considered groundless that do not affect a man of steady character.

*Vani timoris justa excusatio non est.*There is no legal excuse based on a groundless fear.

*Velle non creditur qui obsequitur imperio patris vel domini.*A person is not presumed to act of his own will who obeys the orders of his father or his master.

*Vendens eandem rem duobus falsarius est.*A vendor is fraudulent if he sells the same thing to two

Veniae facilitas incentivum est delinquendi.Ease of winning pardon is an incentive to committing crime.

Verba accipienda sunt secundum subjectam materiam.Words are to be interpreted according to the subject matter.

Verba accipienda ut sortiantur effectum.Words are to be taken so that they may have some effect.

Verba aequivoca ac in dubio sensu posita intelliguntur digniori et potentiori sensu.Equivocal words and those in a doubtful sense are understood in the more suitable and more effective sense.

Verba aliquid operari debent — debent intelligi ut aliquid operentur.Words ought to have some effect — words ought to be understood so as to have some effect.

Verba aliquid operari debent; verba cum effectu sunt accipienda.Words ought to have some effect; words must be taken so as to have effect.

Verba artis ex arte.Terms of art (should be explained) from the art.

Verba chartarum fortius accipiuntur contra proferentem.The words of deeds are taken most strongly against the person offering them.

Verba cum effectu accipienda sunt.Words must be taken so as to have effect.

Verba currentis monetae tempus solutionis designant.The words “current money” refer to the time of payment.

Verba debent intelligi cum effectu.Words ought to be understood with effect.

Verba debent intelligi ut aliquid operentur.Words ought to be so understood that they may have some effect.

Verba dicta de persona intelligi debent de conditione personae.Words spoken of the person are to be understood of the condition of the person.

Verba fortius accipiuntur contra proferentem.Words are interpreted more strongly against the party who puts them forward; words are most readily accepted against the one putting them forward.

Verba generalia generaliter sunt intelligenda.General words are to be understood generally.

Verba generalia restringuntur ad habilitatem rei vel aptitudinem personae.General words are limited to the capability of the subject matter or the aptitude of the person.

Verba generalia restringuntur ad habilitatem rei vel personae.General words are limited to the capability of the subject matter or of the person. Cases: [Release  31.]

Verba illata (relata) inesse videntur.Words referred to are considered as if incorporated.

Verba in differenti materia per prius, non per posterius, intelligenda sunt.Words referring to a different subject are to be understood by what goes before, not by what follows.

Verba intelligenda sunt in casu possibili.Words are to be understood in reference to a possible case.

Verba intentioni, et non e contra, debent inservire.Words should be subject to the intention, not the reverse.

Verba ita sunt intelligenda, ut res magis valeat quam pereat.Words are to be so understood that the matter may have effect rather than fail.

Verba mere aequivoca, si per communem usum loquendi in intellectu certo sumuntur, talis intellectus praeferendus est.When words are purely equivocal, if by common usage of speech they are taken in a certain meaning, such meaning is to be preferred.

Verba nihil operari melius est quam absurde.It is better that words should have no effect than an absurd effect.

Verba non tam intuenda quam causa et natura rei, ut mens contrahentium ex eis potius quam ex verbis appareat.The words (of a contract) are not to be looked to so much as the cause and nature of the matter, so that the intention of the contracting parties may appear from these rather than from the (mere) words.

Verba offendi possunt, immo ab eis recedere licet, ut verba ad sanum intellectum reducantur.The words can be faulted — indeed, it is permitted to depart from them, in order that the words may be restored to a sensible meaning.

Verba ordinationis, quando verificari possunt in sua vera significatione, trahi ad extraneum intellectum non debent. When the words of an ordinance can be made true in their true signification, they ought not to be warped to a foreign meaning.

Verba posteriora propter certitudinem addita, ad priora quae certitudine indigent, sunt referenda. Later words added for the purpose of certainty are to be referred to preceding words in which certainty is wanting.

Verba pro re et subjecta materia accipi debent. Words should be taken most in favor of the thing and the subject matter.

Verba quae aliquid operari possunt non debent esse superflua. Words that can have some effect ought not to be (treated as) superfluous.

Verba quantumvis generalia ad aptitudinem restringuntur, etiamsi nullam aliam paterentur restrictionem. Words, howsoever general, are confined to fitness (i.e., to harmonize with the subject matter), even if they would bear no other restriction.

Verba relata hoc maxime operantur per referentiam ut in eis inesse videntur. Words to which reference is made have, by the reference, this particular effect, that they are considered to be incorporated in those (clauses). • Words to which reference is made in an instrument have the same effect and operation as if they were inserted in the clause referring to them.

Verba relata inesse videntur. Words to which reference is made are considered incorporated.

Verba secundum materiam subjectam intelligi nemo est qui nescit. There is no one who does not know that words should be understood according to the subject matter.

Verba semper accipienda sunt in mitiori sensu. Words are always to be taken in their milder sense.

Verba strictae significationis ad latam extendi possunt, si subsit ratio. Words of a strict signification can be given a wide signification if there is reason for it.

Verba sunt indices animi. Words are indications of the intention.

Verbis standum ubi nulla ambiguitas. One must abide by the words where there is no ambiguity. Cases: [Statutes  190. C.J.S. Statutes § 321.]

Verborum obligatio verbis tollitur. An obligation verbally incurred is verbally extinguished.

*Verbum imperfecti temporis rem adhuc imperfectam significat.*The verb in the imperfect tense indicates a matter as yet incomplete.

*Verdictum quasi dictum veritatis; ut iudicium quasi juris dictum.*A verdict is, as it were, the saying of the truth, in the same manner that a judgment is the saying of the law (or right).

*Veritas, a quocunque dicitur, a Deo est.*Truth, by whomsoever pronounced, is from God.

*Veritas demonstrationis tollit errorem nominis.*The truth of the description removes the error of the name.

*Veritas est iustitiae mater.*Truth is the mother of justice.

*Veritas habenda est in juratore; iustitia et iudicium in iudice.*Truth is the desideratum in a juror; justice and judgment in a judge.

Vim vi repellere licet, modo fiat moderamine inculpatæ tutelæ, non ad sumendam vindictam, sed ad propulsandam injuriam.It is lawful to repel force by force; but let it be done with the self-control of blameless defense C not to take revenge, but to repel injury.

Violenta præsumptio aliquando est plena probatio.A very powerful presumption is sometimes full proof.

Viperina est expositio quæ corrodit viscera textus.That is a viperous exposition that gnaws away the innards of the text.

Vir et uxor censentur in lege una persona.Husband and wife are considered one person in law.

Vis legibus est inimica.Force is inimical to the laws.

Vitium clerici nocere non debet.A clerical error ought not to prejudice.

Vitium est quod fugi debet, ne, si rationem non invenias, mox legem sine ratione esse clames.It is a fault that ought to be avoided, that if you do not discover the reason, you quickly exclaim that the law is without reason.

Vix ulla lex fieri potest quæ omnibus commoda sit, sed si majori parti prospiciat, utilis est.Scarcely any law can be made that is advantageous to all; but if it benefits the majority, it is useful.

Vocabula artium explicanda sunt secundum definitiones prudentium.Terms of art are to be explained according to the definitions of those who are experienced in that art.

Volenti non fit injuria.There is no injury to one who consents. Cases: [Negligence  550, C.J.S. Negligence §§ 360–361.]

Voluit sed non dixit.The person willed but did not say.

Voluntas donatoris in charta doni sui manifeste expressa observetur.The will of the donor, if clearly expressed in the deed of his gift, should be observed.

Voluntas et propositum distinguunt maleficia.The will and the purpose distinguish crimes.

Voluntas facit quod in testamento scriptum valeat.The will (of the testator) gives validity to what is written in the will (testament).

Voluntas in delictis non exitus spectatur.In offenses, the will and not the outcome is regarded.

Voluntas reputatur pro facto.The will is to be taken for the deed. Cases: [Homicide  557.]

Voluntas testatoris ambulatoria est usque ad mortem.The will of a testator is changeable right up until death. • That is, the testator may change the will at any time. This maxim is sometimes written Voluntas testatoris est ambulatoria usque ad extremum vitae exitum (same sense).

Voluntas testatoris habet interpretationem latam et benignam.The will of the testator should receive a broad and liberal interpretation.

Voluntas ultima testatoris est perimplenda secundum veram intentionem suam.The last will of a testator is to be fulfilled according to his true intention.

Vox emissa volat; litera scripta manet.The uttered voice flies; the written letter remains. Cases: [Libel and Slander  15. C.J.S. Libel and Slander; Injurious Falsehood §§ 2, 10.]

Vulgaris opinio est duplex: orta inter graves et discretos, quae multum veritatis habet, et opinio orta inter leves et vulgares homines, absque specie veritatis.Common opinion is double: that proceeding from grave and discreet men, which has much truth in it, and that proceeding from foolish vulgar men, without any semblance of truth in it.

ABANDONED APPLICATION

abandoned application. Patents & trademarks. An application removed from the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office docket of pending applications because the applicant (or the applicant's attorney or agent of record) filed an express notice of abandonment, failed to take appropriate action at some stage in the prosecution of a nonprovisional application within the time specified by the PTO rules (or because the statutory period expired for a provisional application), or failed to pay the issue fee. • Abandonment of a patent or trademark application does not automatically result in abandonment of the invention or the mark. Cf. ABANDONED INVENTION; ABANDONED MARK.

ABANDONED EXPERIMENT

abandoned experiment. Patents. An unsuccessful attempt to reduce an invention to practice. • Unless it is publicly known, an abandoned experiment does not qualify as prior art under § 102 of the Patent Act, so it does not bar future patents.

ABANDONED INVENTION

abandoned invention. See INVENTION.

ABANDONED MARK

abandoned mark. See abandoned trademark under TRADEMARK.

ABANDONED PROPERTY

abandoned property. See PROPERTY.

ABANDONED, SUPPRESSED, OR CONCEALED

abandoned, suppressed, or concealed, adj. Patents. Intentionally or accidentally hidden from public notice, not reduced to practice, or not patented. • Another person's earlier invention will not be considered prior art if the first inventor abandoned the field to others or is held to have lost the right to patent by suppressing or concealing the invention. But if the suppression or concealment occurred after the art became known to the public, then it still qualifies as prior art. See MPEP § 2138.03. [Cases: Patents 82. C.J.S. Patents §§ 114–118.]

ABANDONED TRADEMARK

abandoned trademark. See TRADEMARK.

ABANDONEE

abandonee (<<schwa>>-ban-d<<schwa>>-nee). One to whom property rights are relinquished; one to whom something is formally or legally abandoned.

ABANDONMENT

abandonment, n. 1. The relinquishing of a right or interest with the intention of never again claiming it. • In the context of contracts for the sale of land, courts sometimes use the term abandonment as if it were synonymous with rescission, but the two should be distinguished. An abandonment is merely one party's acceptance of the situation that a nonperforming party has caused. 2. Family law. The act of leaving a spouse or child willfully and without an intent to return. • Child abandonment is grounds for termination of parental rights. Spousal abandonment is grounds for divorce. Cf. DESERTION. [Cases: Divorce 37; Infants 157. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 20, 41.]

“The lines of distinction between abandonment and the many forms of child neglect are often not very clear so that failure to support or to care for a child may sometimes be characterized as abandonment and sometimes as neglect.” Homer H. Clark Jr., The Law of Domestic Relations in the United States § 20.6, at 895 (1988).

malicious abandonment. 1. The desertion of a spouse without just cause. See criminal desertion under DESERTION. [Cases: Divorce 37. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 20, 41.] 2. See voluntary abandonment.

voluntary abandonment. 1. As a ground for divorce, a final departure without the consent of the other spouse, without sufficient reason, and without the intention to return. [Cases: Divorce 37. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 20, 41.] 2. In the law of adoption, a natural parent's willful act or course of conduct that implies a conscious disregard of or indifference to a child, as if no parental obligation existed. — Also termed malicious abandonment. [Cases: Adoption 7.4.]

3. Criminal law. RENUNCIATION(3). 4. Bankruptcy. A trustee's court-approved release of property that is burdensome or of inconsequential value to the estate, or the trustee's release of nonadministered property to the debtor when the case is closed. [Cases: Bankruptcy 3131–3137. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 188–189.] 5. Contracts. RESCISSION(2). 6. Insurance. An insured's relinquishing of damaged or lost property to the insurer as a constructive total loss. Cf. SALVAGE(2). [Cases: Insurance 2236. C.J.S. Abatement and Revival §§ 135, 146, 148, 151–154.] 7. Trademarks. A mark owner's failure to maintain the mark's proper use in commerce or failure to maintain its distinctive character. • Abandonment is an affirmative defense to an action for trademark infringement. — Also termed nonuse. [Cases: Trade Regulation 70. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 217–218.] 8. Copyright. Hist. An affirmative defense to a copyright-infringement claim governed by pre-1989 law, based on the author's general publication of the work without a copyright notice. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 50.1(4).] 9. Intellectual Property. The loss of an intellectual-property right, as by disuse, neglect of formalities, or failure to pay a required fee.

abandonment by operation of law. See constructive abandonment.

actual abandonment. 1. Patents. Intentional relinquishment of the right to patent protection, evidenced, for example, by more than mere inactivity or delay in filing the application. • Actual abandonment may be express or implied, but every reasonable doubt about intent will be resolved in the inventor's favor. [Cases: Patents 82. C.J.S. Patents §§ 114–118.] 2.Trademarks. Intentional loss of trademark protection by discontinuing commercial use of the mark with the intention of not using it again. [Cases: Trade Regulation 70. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 217–218.]

constructive abandonment. 1.Patents. The closing of a patent-application prosecution by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office when an applicant fails to respond to an office action within the time allowed, usu. six months, or fails to pay an issue fee. • If the delay was unintentional or unavoidable, the application may be revived. [Cases: Patents 107. C.J.S. Patents §§ 157–158.] 2.Patents. Abandonment of an invention by operation of law regardless of the inventor's intention, such as when the inventor forfeits the right to patent by selling or offering to sell the invention or by describing it in a publication more than a year before seeking patent protection. 35 USCA § 102. [Cases: Patents 80. C.J.S. Patents §§ 105–106, 108–111.] 3.Trademarks. An owner's loss of trademark protection, regardless of whether the mark is registered, by allowing the mark to lose its distinctiveness, such as by letting the name become a generic term for that type of goods, or by otherwise failing to maintain the mark's distinctive character. • For example, licensing the use of the mark without retaining control over how it is used would result in constructive abandonment. — Also termed abandonment by operation of law. [Cases: Trade Regulation 76. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 222–224.]

express abandonment.Patents. An applicant's intentional and clear termination of a patent prosecution. • An express abandonment must be made in a signed writing and received by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office in time for the Office to act before the patent issues. Once an application is expressly abandoned, it cannot be revived, and the applicant cannot preclude the public from freely availing itself of the invention's benefits. Abandonment of a patent application does not result in abandonment of the invention. — Also termed formal abandonment. [Cases: Patents 107. C.J.S. Patents §§ 157–158.]

implied abandonment.Patents. An inventor's failure to take steps to protect an invention, such as by failing to claim the invention when disclosed in a patent application or by permitting an application to be abandoned, esp. by failing to file an answer to an office action within the time allowed. [Cases: Patents 107. C.J.S. Patents §§ 157–158.]

ABANDONMENT OF CONTEST

abandonment of contest.Patents. The withdrawal by a party from an interference contest. • The abandonment of contest must be in writing. The contest is dissolved as to the abandoning party. [Cases: Patents 106(5).C.J.S. Patents § 166.]

ABANDUM

abandum (<<schwa>>-ban-d<<schwa>>m), n.[Law Latin] Hist. A thing that has been forfeited. — Also spelled abandun; abandonum.

ab ante (ab an-tee), adv.[Latin] Hist. Before; beforehand; in advance. — Also termed ab antecedente.

ab antiquo (ab an-tI-kwoh), adv.[Law Latin] Hist. From ancient times; of old. — Also termed ab antiqua.

abarnare (ab-ahr-nair-ee), vb.[Law Latin] Hist. To detect or disclose a secret crime; to bring to judgment.

ABATABLE NUISANCE

abatable nuisance. See NUISANCE.

abatamentum (<<schwa>>-bay-t<<schwa>>-men-t<<schwa>>m), n.[Law Latin] Hist. See ABATEMENT(5).

abatare (ab-<<schwa>>-tair-ee), vb.[Law Latin] Hist. To abate.

abatement (<<schwa>>-bayt-m<<schwa>>nt), n.1. The act of eliminating or nullifying <abatement of a nuis-ance> <abatement of a writ>. [C.J.S. Nuisances §§ 86–89.] 2. The suspension or defeat of a pending action for a reason unrelated to the merits of the claim <the defendant sought abatement of the suit because of misnomer>. See plea in abatement under PLEA. [Cases: Abatement and Revival 58.]

“Although the term ‘abatement’ is sometimes used loosely as a substitute for ‘stay of proceedings,’ the two may be distinguished on several grounds. For example, when grounds for abatement of an action exist, the abatement of the action is a matter of right, but a stay is granted in the court's discretion. And in proper circumstances a court may stay a proceeding pending the outcome of another proceeding although a strict plea in abatement could not be sustained.” 1 Am. Jur. 2d Abatement, Survival, and Revival § 3 (1994).

3. The act of lessening or moderating; diminution in amount or degree < abatement of the debt>.4.Wills & estates. The reduction of a legacy, general or specific, as a result of the estate's being insufficient to pay all debts and legacies <the abatement of legacies resulted from the estate's insolvency>. Cf. ADEPTION. [Cases: Wills 804–818.] 5.Archaic. The act of thrusting oneself tortiously into real estate after the owner dies and before the legal heir enters <abatement of freehold>. — Also termed (in sense 5) abatamentum. — abate,vb. — abat-able,adj.

abatement clause. A lease provision that releases the tenant from the rent obligation when an act of God precludes occupancy.

ABATER

abater (<<schwa>>-bay-t<<schwa>>r or -tor). 1. One who abates something. 2. A plea in abatement. See plea in abatement under PLEA.

ABATOR

ABC TEST

ABC test. The rule that an employee is not entitled to unemployment insurance benefits if the employee (A) is free from the control of the employer, (B) works away from the employer's place of business, and (C) is engaged in an established trade. • The name derives from the A, B, and C commonly used in designating the three parts of the test. [Cases: Social Security and Public Welfare 293, 351, 385. C.J.S. Social Security and Public Welfare §§ 166–169, 186, 214–215.]

ABC TRANSACTION

ABC transaction. Oil & gas. A sale of a working interest from an owner (A) to an operator (B) in return for a cash payment and the right to another (usu. larger) payment when the well produces, followed by A's sale of the right to the production payment to a corporation (C), which pays A in cash borrowed from a lender on C's pledge of the production payment. • Thus A receives cash taxed at capital-gains rates, and B pays part of the purchase price with nontaxable production income. The tax advantages of this transaction were eliminated by the Tax Reform Act of 1969.

ABDICATION

abdication (ab-di-kay-sh<<schwa>>n), n. The act of renouncing or abandoning privileges or duties, esp. those connected with high office <Edward VIII's abdication of the Crown in 1936> <the court's abdication of its judicial responsibility>. — abdicate (ab-di-kayt), vb. — abdicable (ab-di-k<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l), adj. — abdicator (ab-di-kay-t<<schwa>>r), n.

ABDITORY

abditory (ab-di-tor-ee), n.[Law Latin abditorium “box, receptacle”] A repository used to hide and preserve goods or money. — Also termed abditorium (ab-di-tor-ee-*<<schwa>>*m).

ABDUCTION

abduction (ab-d*<<schwa>>k-sh<<schwa>>*n), n.1. The act of leading someone away by force or fraudulent persuasion. • Some jurisdictions have added various elements to this basic definition, such as that the abductor must have the intent to marry or defile the person, that the abductee must be a child, or that the abductor must intend to subject the abductee to concubinage or prostitution. 2.Archaic. The crime of taking away a female person, esp. one who is below a certain age (such as 16 or 18), without her consent by use of persuasion, fraud, or violence, for the purpose of marriage, prostitution, or illicit sex. [Cases: Criminal Law 45.10. C.J.S. Kidnapping §§ 5–6.] 3. Loosely, KIDNAPPING. See ENTICEMENT OF A CHILD. — abduct,vb. — abductor,n. — abductee,n.

“Abduction seems not to have been a crime at early common law, but found its way thereinto through an old English statute which defined the crime substantially as the taking of a woman against her will for lucre, and afterwards marrying her, or causing her to be married to another, or defiling her, or causing her to be defiled.” Justin Miller, Handbook of Criminal Law § 104, at 319 (1934).

ABEARANCE

abearance (<<schwa>>-bair-*<<schwa>>*nts), n. Archaic. Behavior; conduct.

“The other species of recognizance, with sureties, is for the good abearance, or good behaviour. This includes security for the peace ...” 4 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 253 (1769).

Hunting World, Inc.*, 537 F.2d 4, 9 (2d Cir. 1976). [Cases: Trade Regulation 12.]

ABERRANT BEHAVIOR

aberrant behavior (a-ber-*<<schwa>>*nt). A single act of unplanned or thoughtless criminal behavior. • Many courts have held that aberrant behavior justifies a downward departure — that is, a more lenient sentence — under the federal sentencing guidelines, based on a comment in the introduction to the Guidelines Manual to the effect that the guidelines do not deal with single acts of aberrant behavior. U.S. Sentencing Guidelines Manual ch. 1, pt. A, ¶ 4.

ABESSE

abesse (ab-es-ee), vb.[Law Latin] Roman & civil law. To be absent; to be away from a place where one is supposed to be (as before a court). Cf. ADESSE.

abigeatus (<<schwa>>-bij-ee-ay-t<<schwa>>s), n.[Latin] Roman & civil law. The act of stealing cattle by driving them away (abigere); cattle-rustling. • In the later civil law, the usual term for this was abaction. — Also termed abigeat.

ABIGEUS

abigeus (<<schwa>>-bij-ee-<<schwa>>s), n.[Latin] Roman & civil law. One who steals cattle, esp. in large numbers; a cattle-rustler. • This was known in the later civil law as an abactor. Pl. abigei.

“The stealing of a single horse or ox might make a man an abigeus, but it seems that the crime could not be committed on less than four pigs or ten sheep. They need not however be taken all together. In such a state of the law one would expect thefts of three pigs or eight sheep to become abnormally common.” 1 James Fitzjames Stephen, A History of the Criminal Law of England 27 (1883).

ABILITY

ability. The capacity to perform an act or service; esp., the power to carry out a legal act <ability to enter into a contract>.

ABNORMAL LAW

abnormal law. The law as it applies to persons who are under legal disabilities such as infancy, alienage, insanity, criminality, and (formerly) coverture.

ABNORMALLY DANGEROUS ACTIVITY

abnormally dangerous activity. An undertaking that necessarily carries with it a significant risk of serious harm even if reasonable care is used, and for which the actor may face strict liability for any harm caused; esp., an activity (such as dynamiting) for which the actor is held strictly liable because the activity (1) involves the risk of serious harm to persons or property, (2) cannot be performed without this risk, regardless of the precautions taken, and (3) does not ordinarily occur in the community. • Under the Restatement (Second) of Torts, determining whether an activity is abnormally dangerous includes analyzing whether there is a high degree of risk of harm, whether any harm caused will be substantial, whether the exercise of reasonable care will eliminate the risk, whether the activity is a matter of common usage, whether the activity is appropriate to the place in which it occurs, and whether the activity's value to society outweighs its dangerousness. Restatement (Second) of Torts § 520 (1977). — Also, esp. formerly, termed extrahazardous activity; ultrahazardous activity. See strict liability under LIABILITY. [Cases: Negligence 305. C.J.S. #### ABORTIFACIENT abortifacient ( <<schwa>>-bor-t<<schwa>>-fay-sh<<schwa>>nt), n. A drug, article, or other thing designed or intended to produce an abortion. — Also (rarely) termed aborticide. — abortifacient,adj.

ABORTION

abortion,n.1. An artificially induced termination of a pregnancy for the purpose of destroying an embryo or fetus. • In Roe v. Wade, the Supreme Court first recognized a woman's right to choose to end her pregnancy as a privacy right stemming from the Due Process Clause of the 14th Amendment. 410 U.S. 113, 93 S.Ct. 705 (1973). Sixteen years later, in Webster v. Reproductive Health Services, the Court permitted states to limit this right by allowing them to enact legislation that (1) prohibits public facilities or employees from performing abortions, (2) prohibits the use of public funds for family planning that includes information on abortion, or (3) severely limits the right to an abortion after a fetus becomes viable — that is, could live independently of its mother. 492 U.S. 490, 109 S.Ct. 3040 (1989). In 1992, the Court held that (1) before viability, a woman has a fundamental right to choose to terminate her pregnancy, (2) a law that imposes an undue burden on the woman's right to choose before viability is unconstitutional, and (3) after viability, the state, in promoting its interest in potential human life, may regulate or prohibit abortion unless it is necessary to preserve the life or health of the mother. Planned Parenthood of Southeastern Pa. v. Casey, 505 U.S. 833, 112 S.Ct. 2791 (1992). In 2000, the Court again considered abortion rights and reaffirmed Casey in holding the Nebraska law at issue unconstitutional because (1) it failed to provide an exception to preserve the health of the mother, and (2) it unduly burdened a woman's right to choose a late-term abortion, thereby unduly burdening her right to choose abortion itself. Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914, 120 S.Ct. 2597 (2000). — Formerly also termed procuring an abortion; criminal operation; criminal miscarriage; pro-curing miscarriage. [Cases: Abortion and Birth Control 0.5.] 2. The spontaneous expulsion of an embryo or fetus before viability; MISCARRIAGE. — abort,vb. — abortionist,n.

“The word ‘abortion,’ in the dictionary sense, means no more than the expulsion of a fetus before it is capable of living. In this sense it is a synonym of ‘miscarriage.’ With respect to human beings, however, it has long been used to refer to an intentionally induced miscarriage as distinguished from one resulting naturally or by accident. There has been some tendency to use the word to mean a criminal miscarriage, and there would be distinct advantages in assigning this meaning to it; but there are so many references to lawful abortion or justification for abortion that it is necessary to speak of 'criminal abortion' or the 'crime of abortion' to emphasize the element of culpability." Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 186–87 (3d ed. 1982).

“Modern legal historians dispute whether, and to what extent, abortion constituted a crime at English common law. One view finds that, at most, abortion was an ecclesiastical crime, and concludes that the common law allowed a woman and her abortionist to terminate a pregnancy at all stages of gestation without secular penalties. Another claims that all abortions are at least secular wrongs to the fetus and that only the problems of proving a causal relationship between some abortions and fetal death prevented the punishment of all abortions. Substantial authority exists, however, for a middle ground: although no penalties attached to abortions before the fetus had quickened, performing a postquickening abortion was a common-law crime, most likely a misdemeanor.” Susan Frelich Appleton, “Abortion,” in 1 Encyclopedia of Crime and Justice 1, 1 (Sanford H. Kadish ed., 1983).

induced abortion. An abortion purposely and artificially caused either by the mother herself or by a third party. See ABORTIFACIENT.

late-term abortion. An abortion performed during the latter stages of pregnancy, usu. after the middle of the second trimester.

partial-birth abortion. An abortion in which a viable fetus is partially delivered before being destroyed.

therapeutic abortion. An abortion carried out to preserve the life or health of the mother. [Cases: Abortion and Birth Control 0.5.]

“Until recently it was common to speak of ‘therapeutic abortion.’ The literal meaning of the term is an abortion induced for medical reasons, but it was commonly understood to mean one for the purpose of saving the mother's life ....” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 193 (3d ed. 1982).

ABSOLUTE DISPARITY

absolute disparity. Constitutional law. The difference between the percentage of a group in the general population and the percentage of that group in the pool of prospective jurors on a venire.

- For example, if African-Americans make up 12% of a county's population and 8% of the potential jurors on a venire, the absolute disparity of African-American veniremembers is 4%. The reason for calculating the disparity is to analyze a claim that the jury was not impartial because the venire from which it was chosen did not represent a fair cross-section of the jurisdiction's population. Some courts criticize the absolute-disparity analysis, favoring instead the comparative-disparity analysis, in the belief that the absolute-disparity analysis understates the deviation. See FAIR-CROSS-SECTION REQUIREMENT; DUREN TEST; STATISTICAL-DECISION THEORY Y. Cf. COMPARATIVE DISPARITY. [Cases: Jury 33(1.1). C.J.S. Juries §§ 269–273, 279, 306.]

The merger of one nation into another, whether voluntarily or by subjugation. 3.Labor law. In a postmerger collective-bargaining agreement, a provision allowing seniority for union members in the resulting entity. 4.Real estate. The rate at which property will be leased or sold on the market at a given time. 5.Commercial law. A sales method by which a manufacturer pays the reseller's freight costs, which the manufacturer accounts for before quoting the reseller a price. — Also termed (in sense 5) freight absorption. — absorb,vb.

ABSQUE

absque (abs-kwee), adv.[Latin] Without.

ABSQUE ALIQUO INDE REDDENDO

absque aliquo inde reddendo (abs-kwee al-<<schwa>>-kwoh in-dee ri-den-doh), adv.[Law Latin] Hist. Without rendering anything therefrom. • This phrase appeared in royal grants in which no tenure was reserved.

ABSQUE CONSIDERATIONE CURIAE

absque consideratione curiae (abs-kwee k<<schwa>>n-sid-<<schwa>>-ray-shee-oh-nee kyoor-ee-ee), adv.[Law Latin] Without the consideration of the court; without judgment.

ABSQUE DUBIO

absque dubio (abs-kwee d[y]oo-bee-oh), adv.[Latin] Without doubt.

ABSQUE HOC

absque hoc (abs-kwee hok), adv.[Latin] Archaic. Without this. • The phrase was formerly used in common-law pleading to introduce the denial of allegations. — Also termed sans ce que. See TRAVERSE.

ABSQUE IMPETITIONE VASTI

absque impetitione vasti (abs-kwee im-p<<schwa>>-tish-ee-oh-nee vas-ti), adv.[Law Latin] Hist. See WITHOUT IMPEACHMENT OF WASTE.

ABSQUE INJURIA DAMNUM

absque injuria damnum (ab-skwee in-joor-ee-<<schwa>> dam-n<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] See DAMNUM SINE INJURIA. — Often shortened to absque injuria.

ABSQUE IPSIUS REGIS SPECIALI LICENTIA

absque ipsius regis speciali licentia (abs-kwee ip-see-<<schwa>>s ree-jis spesh-ee-ay-II li-sen-shee-<<schwa>>). [Law Latin] Hist. Without the special authority of the king himself. • The phrase was part of a law forbidding Crown vassals from transferring land without a special warrant.

ABSQUE TALI CAUSA

absque tali causa (abs-kwee tay-IIkaw-z<<schwa>>), adv.[Law Latin] Without such cause. • In common-law pleading, this was part of the larger phrase de injuria sua propria, absque tali causa (“of his own wrong, without such cause”) appearing in a reply that a trespass plaintiff made to counter a defendant's claim of excuse. In an assault case, for example, if a defendant pleaded that he had struck the plaintiff in self-defense, the plaintiff could reply that the defendant was guilty of his own wrong committed without such cause as alleged. See DE INJURIA.

ABS RULES

ABS Rules.Maritime law. Industry standards for the construction, maintenance, and operation of seagoing vessels and stationary offshore facilities, as set and enforced by the American Bureau of Shipping. See AMERICAN BUREAU OF SHIPPING .

ABSTAIN

abstain,vb.1. To voluntarily refrain from doing something, such as voting in a deliberative assembly. 2. (Of a federal court) to refrain from exercising jurisdiction over a matter. [Cases: Federal Courts 41–65.]

ABSTENTION

abstention. 1. The act of withholding or keeping back (something or oneself); esp., the withholding of a vote. 2. A federal court's relinquishment of jurisdiction when necessary to avoid needless conflict with a state's administration of its own affairs. 3. The legal principle underlying such a relinquishment of jurisdiction. Cf. COMITY; OUR FEDERALISM. [Cases: Federal Courts 41–65. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 16, 40.]

Burford abstention. A federal court's refusal to review a state court's decision in cases involving a complex regulatory scheme and sensitive areas of state concern. Burford v. Sun Oil Co., 319 U.S. 315, 63 S.Ct. 1098 (1943).

Colorado River abstention. A federal court's decision to abstain while relevant and parallel state-court proceedings are underway. Colorado River Water Conservation Dist. v. United States, 424 U.S. 800, 96 S.Ct. 1236 (1976).

equitable abstention. A federal court's refraining from interfering with a state administrative agency's decision on a local matter when the aggrieved party has adequate relief in the state courts.

permissive abstention. Abstention that a bankruptcy court can, but need not, exercise in a dispute that relates to the bankruptcy estate but that can be litigated, or is being litigated, in another forum. • In deciding whether to abstain, the bankruptcy court must consider (1) the degree to which state law governs the case, (2) the appropriateness of the procedure to be followed in the other forum, (3) the remoteness of the dispute to the issues in the bankruptcy case, and (4) the presence of nondebtor parties in the dispute. 28 USCA § 1334(c)(1). [Cases: Federal Courts 47.5.]

Pullman abstention. A federal court's decision to abstain so that state courts will have an opportunity to settle an underlying state-law question whose resolution may avert the need to decide a federal constitutional question. Railroad Comm'n v. Pullman Co., 312 U.S. 496, 61 S.Ct. 643 (1941). [Cases: Federal Courts 43, 46.]

Thibodaux abstention (tib-<<schwa>>-doh). A federal court's decision to abstain so that state courts can decide difficult issues of public importance that, if decided by the federal court, could result in unnecessary friction between state and federal authorities. Louisiana Power & Light Co. v. City of Thibodaux, 360 U.S. 25, 79 S.Ct. 1070 (1959). [Cases: Federal Courts 41, 43.]

Younger abstention. 1. A federal court's decision not to interfere with an ongoing state criminal proceeding by issuing an injunction or granting declaratory relief, unless the prosecution has been brought in bad faith or merely as harassment. Younger v. Harris, 401 U.S. 37, 91 S.Ct. 746 (1971). — Also termed equitable-restraint doctrine. [Cases: Federal Courts 49, 51, 54.] 2. By extension, a federal court's decision not to interfere with a state-court civil proceeding used to enforce the criminal law, as to abate an obscene nuisance. See OUR FEDERALISM.

ABSTINENCE

abstinence (ab-st<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>nts). The practice of refraining completely from indulgence in some act; esp., the practice of not having sex or of not consuming alcoholic beverages.

ABSTRACT

abstract, n.1. A concise statement of a text, esp. of a legal document; a summary. See ABSTRACT OF JUDGMENT; ABSTRACT OF TITLE. 2. Patents. A one-paragraph summary of an invention's design and function, including its nature, structure, purpose, and novelty. • The abstract is a required part of a patent application, and also appears on the front page of the patent itself. It may not exceed 150 words. For the purpose of determining adequacy of disclosure, the abstract is considered to be part of the specification. See 35 USCA § 112. — Also termed abstract of the disclosure; abstract of the specification. [Cases: Patents 99. C.J.S. Patents § 139.]

ABSTRACT COMPROMIS

abstract compromis. See general compromis under COMPROMIS.

ABTRACTER

abstracter. See ABTRACTOR.

ABSTRACT IDEA

abstract idea. Intellectual property. A concept or thought, removed from any tangible embodiment. • An abstract idea is one of the categories of unpatentable subject matter, along with natural phenomena and laws of nature. But a process that uses abstract ideas to produce a useful result can be patented. Copyright law likewise will not protect an abstract idea, but only its expression. The law of unfair competition, on the other hand, does protect abstract ideas that meet the other criteria of a trade secret. See business-method patent under PATENT.

ABSTRACTION

abstraction (ab- or <<schwa>>b-strak-sh<<schwa>>n), n.1. The mental process of considering something without reference to a concrete instance <jurisprudence is largely the abstraction of many legal particulars>. 2. A theoretical idea not applied to any particular instance <utopia in any form is an abstraction>. 3. The summarizing and recording of a legal instrument in public records <abstraction of the judgment in Tarrant County>. 4. The act of taking with the intent to injure or defraud <the abstraction of funds was made possible by the forged signature on the check>. — abstract (ab-strakt), vb.

ABSTRACTION-FILTRATION-COMPARISON TEST

abstraction-filtration-comparison test. Copyright. A judicially created test for determining whether substantial similarity exists between two works in an action for infringement. • In the first step, the court dissects the copy-righted work's structure and isolates each level of abstraction or generality (abstraction test). In the second step, the court examines each level of abstraction and separates out the unprotectable elements such as ideas, processes, facts, public-domain information, and merger material (filtration test). In the third step, the court compares the resulting core of protectable expression with the accused work to determine whether substantial elements of the copyrighted work have been misappropriated (comparison test). This test was first applied by the Second Circuit in Computer Associates Int'l, Inc. v. Altai, Inc., 982 F.2d 693 (2d Cir. 1992). Although that case involved computer software and the test is usu. applied in software-infringement cases, the test has also been applied to nonsoftware works. — Also termed abstraction-filtration test. See SIMILARITY. Cf. ABSTRACTIONS TEST. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 53(1).]

abstractions test.Copyright. A means of comparing copyrighted material with material that allegedly infringes the copyright by examining whether the actual substance has been copied or whether the two works merely share the same abstract ideas. • The primary authority for the abstractions test is Judge Learned Hand's opinion in Nichols v. Universal Pictures Corp., 45 F.2d 119 (2d Cir. 1930). Although referred to as a “test,” it is not a bright-line test, but an approach to discerning the boundaries of protectable expression by isolating and comparing each level of abstraction in the two works, from the lowest (most detailed) to the highest (most conceptual). Cf. ABSTRACTION-FILTRATION-COMPARISON TEST; LOOK-AND-FEEL TEST. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 53(1).]

ABSTRACT JURIDICAL ACT

abstract juridical act.See ACT.

ABSTRACT OF A FINE

abstract of a fine.See NOTE OF A FINE.

ABSTRACT OF CONVICTION

abstract of conviction.A summary of the court's finding on an offense, esp. a traffic violation. [Cases: Auto-mobiles 144.2(5.1).]

ABSTRACT OF JUDGMENT

abstract of judgment.A copy or summary of a judgment that, when filed with the appropriate public office, creates a lien on the judgment debtor's nonexempt property. See judgment lien under LIEN. [Cases: Judgment 768(1).C.J.S. Judgments §§ 559–561, 568.]

ABSTRACT OF RECORD

abstract of record.An abbreviated case history that is complete enough to show an appellate court that the questions presented for review have been preserved. [Cases: Appeal and Error 579; Criminal Law 1103.C.J.S. Appeal and Error § 496.]

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

abstract of the disclosure.See ABSTRACT(2).

ABSTRACT OF THE SPECIFICATION

abstract of the specification.See ABSTRACT(2).

abstract of title. A concise statement, usu. prepared for a mortgagee or purchaser of real property, summarizing the history of a piece of land, including all conveyances, interests, liens, and encumbrances that affect title to the property. — Also termed brief; brief of title. [Cases: Abstracts of Title 1. C.J.S. Abstracts of Title §§ 2–3, 5.]

good and merchantable abstract of title. An abstract of title showing clear, good, and marketable title, rather than showing only the history of the property. See clear title, good title, and marketable title under TITLE(2).

abstractor (ab- or <<schwa>>b-strak-t<<schwa>>r). A person who prepares abstracts of title. — Also spelled abstracter. [Cases: Abstracts of Title 3. C.J.S. Abstracts of Title §§ 6–20.]

abstract question. See HYPOTHETICAL QUESTION.

absurdity, n. The state or quality of being grossly unreasonable; esp., an interpretation that would lead to an unconscionable result, esp. one that the parties or (esp. for a statute) the drafters could not have intended and probably never considered. Cf. GOLDEN RULE.

A-B TRUST

A-B trust. See bypass trust under TRUST.

ab urbe condita (ab <<schwa>>r-bee kon-di-t<<schwa>>). [Latin] From the founding of the city (esp. Rome in 753 B.C.). • This term is sometimes used in abbreviated form in classical dates. For example, the date “23 A.U.C.” means “23 years after the founding of Rome,” or 730 B.C. — Abbr. A.U.C.

abuse (<<schwa>>-byoos), n. 1. A departure from legal or reasonable use; misuse. 2. Physical or mental mal-treatment, often resulting in mental, emotional, sexual, or physical injury. — Also termed cruel and abusive treatment. Cf. NEGLECT; CRUELTY.

abuse of the elderly. Abuse of a senior citizen by a caregiver. • Examples include deprivation of food or medication, beatings, oral assaults, and isolation. — Also termed elder abuse. [Cases: Assault and Battery 48. C.J.S. Assault and Battery §§ 2–3, 62, 64–66, 81.]

child abuse. 1. Intentional or neglectful physical or emotional harm inflicted on a child, including sexual molestation; esp., a parent's or caregiver's act or failure to act that results in a child's exploitation, serious physical or emotional injury, sexual abuse, or death. 2. An act or failure to act that presents an imminent risk of serious harm to a child. • Child abuse can be either intentional or negligent. The first case of child abuse actually prosecuted occurred in New York City in 1874. An eight-year-old girl named Mary Ellen was found to have been severely abused. Her abusers were prosecuted under the law for prevention of cruelty to animals, since no law protecting children then existed. Child abuse was first recognized as a medical concern in 1962, when Dr. C. Henry Kempe introduced the medical concept of battered-child syndrome. — Also termed cruelty to a child; cruelty to children; child maltreatment. See abused child under CHILD; battered child under CHILD; BATTERED-CHILD SYNDROME. Cf. secondary abuse. [Cases: Infants 13–13.5(2), 15. C.J.S. Infants §§ 5, 92–98.]

domestic abuse. See domestic violence under VIOLENCE.

elder abuse. See abuse of the elderly.

emotional abuse. Physical or mental abuse that causes or could cause serious emotional injury.

secondary abuse. Child abuse suffered by children who, although they are not physically abused, witness domestic violence within their families.

sexual abuse. 1. An illegal sex act, esp. one performed against a minor by an adult. — Also termed carnal abuse. 2. RAPE(2). [Cases: Assault and Battery 59; Infants 13. C.J.S. Assault and Battery § 74; Infants §§ 5, 92–93, 95–98.]

spousal abuse. Physical, sexual, or psychological abuse inflicted by one spouse on the other spouse; esp., wife-beating. See BATTERED-WOMAN SYNDROME.

abuse (<<schwa>>-byooz), vb. 1. To damage (a thing). 2. To depart from legal or reasonable use in dealing with (a person or thing); to misuse. 3. To injure (a person) physically or mentally. 4. In the context of child welfare, to hurt or injure (a child) by maltreatment. • In most states, a finding of abuse is generally limited to maltreatment that causes or threatens to cause lasting harm to the child.

ABUSED CHILD

abused child. See CHILD.

ABUSEE

abusee (<<schwa>>-byoo-zee), n. One who is or has been abused.

ABUSE EXCUSE

abuse excuse. Criminal law. The defense that a defendant cannot tell right from wrong or control impulses because of physical or mental abuse suffered as a child. • Like the traditional excuse of insanity, the abuse excuse is asserted by a defendant in an effort to avoid all culpability for the crime charged. Cf. BATTERED-CHILD SYNDROME; BATTERED-WOMAN SYNDROME.

ABUSE OF DISCOVERY

abuse of discovery. See DISCOVERY ABUSE.

ABUSE OF DISCRETION

abuse of discretion. 1. An adjudicator's failure to exercise sound, reasonable, and legal decision-making. 2. An appellate court's standard for reviewing a decision that is asserted to be grossly unsound, unreasonable, illegal, or unsupported by the evidence. See DISCRETION. [Cases: Appeal and Error 946; Criminal Law 1147. C.J.S. Appeal and Error § 772.]

ABUSE OF PROCESS

abuse of process. The improper and tortious use of a legitimately issued court process to obtain a result that is either unlawful or beyond the process's scope. — Also termed abuse of legal process; malicious abuse of process; malicious abuse of legal process; wrongful process; wrongful process of law. Cf. MALICIOUS PROSECUTION. [Cases: Process 168–171. C.J.S. Process §§ 106–114.]

“One who uses a legal process, whether criminal or civil, against another primarily to accomplish a purpose for which it is not designed is subject to liability to the other for harm caused by the abuse of process.” Restatement (Second) of Torts § 682 (1977).

ABUSE OF RIGHTS

abuse of rights. 1. Int'l law. A country's exercise of a right either in a way that impedes the enjoyment by other countries of their own rights or for a purpose different from that for which the right was created (e.g., to harm another country). 2. Louisiana law. A person's exercise of a right in an unneighborly spirit that, while of no benefit to that person, causes damage to the neighbor.

ABUSE-OF-RIGHTS DOCTRINE

abuse-of-rights doctrine. Civil law. The principle that a person may be liable for harm caused by doing something the person has a right to do, if the right is exercised (1) for the purpose or primary motive of causing harm, (2) without a serious and legitimate interest that is deserving of judicial protection, (3) against moral rules, good faith, or elementary fairness, or (4) for a purpose other than its intended legal purpose. [Cases: Torts 6. C.J.S. Torts §§ 5, 16–22.]

ABUSE OF THE ELDERLY

abuse of the elderly. See ABUSE.

ABUSE-OF-THE-WRIT DOCTRINE

abuse-of-the-writ doctrine. Criminal procedure. The principle that a petition for a writ of habeas corpus may not raise claims that should have been, but were not, asserted in a previous petition. Cf. SUCCESSIVE-WRIT DOCTRINE. [Cases: Habeas Corpus 896.]

ABUSER

abuser (<<schwa>>-byoo-z<<schwa>>r), n. 1. One who abuses someone or something. 2. ABUSE(1).

abusive (<<schwa>>-byoo-siv), adj.1. Characterized by wrongful or improper use <abusive discovery tactics>.2. (Of a person) habitually cruel, malicious, or violent <abusive parent>. — abusively,adv.

ABUSUS

abusus (<<schwa>>-byoo-s<<schwa>>s), n. Civil law. The right to dispose of one's property.

abut (<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>t), vb. To join at a border or boundary; to share a common boundary with <the company's land in Arizona abuts the Navajo Indian reservation>. — abutment (<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>t-m<<schwa>>nt), n.

abuttals (<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>t-<<schwa>>lz). Land boundaries; the boundary lines of a piece of land in relation to other contiguous lands. — Also termed (archaically) buttals.

abutter (<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>t-<<schwa>>r).1. The owner of adjoining land; one whose property abuts another's. [Cases: Adjoining Landowners 1.C.J.S. Adjoining Landowners §§ 2, 6–8, 39.]

“The major right of [an abutter] is that of access to his property — a right of reasonable ingress and egress. He is entitled to compensation for any substantial impairment of this reasonable access. The right normally includes the right to have, at some point, a driveway onto his premises. An abutter does not have the right to the continued flow of traffic in the same amount or pattern past his premises.” Osborne M. Reynolds Jr., Handbook of Local Government Law § 180, at 620 (1982).

2. Land that adjoins the land in question.

abutting foot.See FRONT FOOT.

ACCELERATED COST RECOVERY SYSTEM

Accelerated Cost Recovery System. An accounting method that is used to calculate asset depreciation and that allows for the faster recovery of costs by assigning the asset a shorter useful life than was previously permitted under the Internal Revenue Code. • This system applies to property put into service from 1981 to 1986. It was replaced in 1986 by the Modified Accelerated Cost Recovery System. — Abbr. ACRS. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3476. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 230, 234, 239, 249.]

ACCELERATED DEPRECIATION METHOD

accelerated depreciation method. See DEPRECIATION METHOD.

ACCELERATED DISCLOSURE

accelerated disclosure. See accelerated discovery under DISCOVERY.

ACCELERATED DISCOVERY

accelerated discovery. See DISCOVERY.

ACCELERATED-REENTRY THEORY

accelerated-reentry theory. See POST-EXPIRATION-SALES THEORY.

ACCELERATED REMAINDER

accelerated remainder. See REMAINDER.

ACCELERATION

acceleration, n.1. The advancing of a loan agreement's maturity date so that payment of the entire debt is due immediately. [Cases: Bills and Notes 129(2). C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 76, 92–100.] 2. The shortening of the time for vesting in possession of an expectant interest. — Also termed acceleration of remainder. [Cases: Remainders 5. C.J.S. Estates §§ 77, 80.] 3. Property. The hastening of an owner's time for enjoyment of an estate because of the failure of a preceding estate. 4. Securities. The SEC's expediting of a registration statement's effective date so that the registrant bypasses the required 20-day waiting period. — accelerate, vb.

ACCELERATION CLAUSE

acceleration clause. A loan-agreement provision that requires the debtor to pay off the balance sooner than the due date if some specified event occurs, such as failure to pay an installment or to maintain insurance. Cf. DEMAND CLAUSE; INSECURITY CLAUSE. [Cases: Bills and Notes 129(2). C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 76, 92–100.]

ACCELERATION OF REMAINDER

acceleration of remainder. See ACCELERATION(2).

ACCEPTABLE IDENTIFICATION OF GOODS AND SERVICES MANUAL

Acceptable Identification of Goods and Services Manual. Trademarks. A U.S. Government publication that sets forth, for goods and services, known acceptable international class categorizations and descriptions that may be used in trademark applications submitted to the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. • This manual is available from the U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, and through the PTO's website at http:// www.uspto.gov.

ACCEPTANCE

acceptance, n.1. An offeree's assent, either by express act or by implication from conduct, to the terms of an offer in a manner authorized or requested by the offeror, so that a binding contract is formed. • If an acceptance modifies the terms or adds new ones, it generally operates as a counteroffer. Cf. OFFER. [Cases: Contracts 22(1). C.J.S. Contracts §§ 46–51, 53–54; Trading Stamps and Coupons §§ 7–9.]

acceptance by silence. Acceptance of an offer not by explicit words but through the lack of an offeree's response in circumstances in which the relationship between the offeror and the offeree justifies both the offeror's expectation of a reply and the offeror's reasonable conclusion that the lack of one signals acceptance. • Ordinarily, silence does not give rise to an acceptance of an offer. [Cases: Contracts 22(1). C.J.S. Contracts §§ 46–51, 53–54; Trading Stamps and Coupons §§ 7–9.]

qualified acceptance. A conditional or partial acceptance that varies the original terms of an offer and operates as a counteroffer; esp., in negotiable instruments (bills of exchange), an acceptor's variation of the terms of the instrument. [Cases: Bills and Notes 83. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 38.]

2. A buyer's assent that the goods are to be taken in performance of a contract for sale. • Under UCC § 2-606, a buyer's acceptance consists in (1) signifying to the seller that the goods are conforming ones or that the buyer will take them despite nonconformities, (2) not making an effective rejection, or (3) taking any action inconsistent with the seller's ownership. If the contract is for the sale of goods that are not identified when the contract is entered into, there is no acceptance until the buyer has had a reasonable time to examine the goods. But if the buyer deals with them as owner, as by reselling them, a court may find constructive acceptance. [Cases: Sales 178(1). C.J.S. Sales §§ 189–191, 194–197.] “Acceptance means communicated acceptance.... [It] must be something more than a mere mental assent.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 34 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919). [But Corbin adds:] “This use of the word ‘communicated’ is open to some objection. To very many persons the word means that knowledge has been received. Frequently a contract is made even though the offeror has no such knowledge. In such case the acceptance is not ‘communicated’ and yet it consummates the contract.” Id. n.2.

“Acceptance of a conveyance or of a document containing a promise is a manifestation of assent to the terms thereof made, either before or after delivery, in accordance with any requirements imposed by the grantor or promisor. If the acceptance occurs before delivery and is not binding as an option contract, it is revocable until the moment of delivery.” Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 106 (1979).

3. The formal receipt of and agreement to pay a negotiable instrument. [Cases: Bills and Notes 66–84. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 4, 19, 21, 24, 37–40.] 4. A negotiable instrument, esp. a bill of exchange, that has been accepted for payment.

acceptance au besoin (oh b<<schwa>>-zwan). [French “in case of need”] An acceptance by one who has agreed to pay the draft in case the drawee fails to do so.

acceptance for honor.An acceptance or undertaking not by a party to the instrument, but by a third party, for the purpose of protecting the honor or credit of one of the parties, by which the third party agrees to pay the debt when it becomes due if the original drawee does not. • This type of acceptance inures to the benefit of all successors to the party for whose benefit it is made. — Also termed acceptance supra protest; acceptance for honor supra protest. [Cases: Bills and Notes 71. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 37.]

“ ‘Acceptance for honour supra protest’ is an exception to the rule that only the drawee can accept a bill. A bill which has been dishonoured by non-acceptance and is not overdue may, with the consent of the holder, be accepted in this way for the honour of either the drawer or an indorser (i.e., to prevent the bill being sent back upon the drawer or indorser as unpaid) by a friend placing his own name upon it as acceptor for the whole, or part only, of the amount of the bill; after a protest has been drawn up declaratory of its dishonour by the drawee. Similarly, where a bill has been dishonoured by non-payment and protested any person may intervene and pay it supra protest for the honour of any person liable thereon; the effect being to discharge all parties subsequent to the party for whose honour it is paid.” 2 Stephen's Commentaries on the Laws of England 202–03 (L. Crispin Warmington ed., 21st ed. 1950).

accommodation acceptance.The acceptance of an offer to buy goods for current or prompt shipment by shipping nonconforming goods after notifying the buyer that the shipment is intended as an accommodation. • This type of “acceptance” is not truly an acceptance under contract law, but operates instead as a counteroffer if the buyer is duly notified. [Cases: Sales 23(4). C.J.S. Sales §§ 38–40.]

banker's acceptance.A bill of exchange drawn on and accepted by a commercial bank. • Banker's acceptances are often issued to finance the sale of goods in international trade. — Abbr. BA. — Also termed bank acceptance. [Cases: Banks and Banking 189; Bills and Notes 151. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 452–458; Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 131.]

blank acceptance.Acceptance by a bill-of-exchange drawee before the bill is made, as indicated by the drawee's signature on the instrument.

conditional acceptance.An agreement to pay a draft on the occurrence or nonoccurrence of a particular event. [Cases: Bills and Notes 83. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 38.]

express acceptance.A written or oral expression indicating that the drawee has seen the instrument and does not dispute its sufficiency. • While a written acceptance is typically signified by the stamped or written word “ac-cepted” or “presented,” usu. on the instrument itself, an oral acceptance must be made directly to a drawer or holder who has waived the right to a written acceptance.

implied acceptance. An acceptance implied by a drawee whose actions indicate an intention to comply with the request of the drawer; conduct by the drawee from which the holder is justified in concluding that the drawee intends to accept the instrument. [Cases: Bills and Notes 70. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 21.]

special acceptance. An acceptance that departs from either the terms of a bill or the terms added to but not otherwise expressed in a bill. • An example is an acceptance of a draft as payable in a particular place even though the draft contains no such limitation. [Cases: Bills and Notes 83. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 38.]

trade acceptance. A bill of exchange for the amount of a specific purchase, drawn on and accepted by the buyer for payment at a specified time. [Cases: Bills and Notes 1. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 2–3, 5–6, 8–9, 17–18, 22.]

TESTING.

ACCEPTANCE DOCTRINE

acceptance doctrine. Construction law. The principle that, once an owner accepts the work of a contractor, the contractor is not liable to third parties for an injury arising from the contractor's negligence in performing under the contract, unless the injury results from a hidden, imminently dangerous defect that the contractor knows about and the owner does not know about. — Also termed accepted-work doctrine. [Cases: Negligence 1205(8). C.J.S. Negligence § 601.]

ACCEPTANCE FOR HONOR

acceptance for honor. See ACCEPTANCE(4).

ACCEPTANCE-OF-THE-BENEFITS RULE

acceptance-of-the-benefits rule. The doctrine that a party may not appeal a judgment after having voluntarily and intentionally received all or some part of the relief provided by it. [Cases: Appeal and Error 160. C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 193–194.]

ACCEPTANCE SAMPLING

acceptance sampling. The practice of examining only a few items from a shipment to determine the acceptability of the whole shipment.

ACCEPTANCE SUPRA PROTEST

acceptance supra protest. See acceptance for honor under ACCEPTANCE(4).

ACCEPTANCE TESTING

acceptance testing. Intellectual property. Formal experiments conducted by or on behalf of the customer to determine whether computer software or hardware or a commercial website satisfies the customer's acceptance criteria. • Usu., an acceptance-testing provision in a sales contract or license agreement is accompanied by a termination provision allowing the customer to back out of the contract if the product is not acceptable. — Also termed requirements testing. See ACCEPTANCE CRITERIA.

ACCEPTARE

acceptare (ak-sep-tair-ee), vb. [Latin] Civil law. To accept or assent to, as a promise made by another.

ACCEPTED-WORK DOCTRINE

accepted-work doctrine. See ACCEPTANCE DOCTRINE.

ACCEPTILATION

acceptilation (ak-sep-t<<schwa>>-lay-sh<<schwa>>n), n. [fr. Latin acceptilatio “release”] Roman & civil law. An oral release from an obligation even though payment has not been made in full; a complete discharge, esp. through a fictitious payment. — Also termed (in Roman law) acceptilatio. Cf. APOCHA.

ACCEPTOR

acceptor. A person or entity that accepts a negotiable instrument and agrees to be primarily responsible for its payment or performance. [Cases: Bills and Notes 73. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 39.]

ACCEPTOR SUPRA PROTEST

acceptor supra protest. One who accepts a bill that has been protested, for the honor of the drawer or an indorser. [Cases: Bills and Notes 71, 80. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 37.]

ACCEPT SERVICE

accept service. To agree that process has been properly served even when it has not been. — Also termed accept service of process.

ACCESS

access, n. 1. An opportunity or ability to enter, approach, pass to and from, or communicate with <access to the courts>. 2. Family law. VISITATION(2). 3. Family law. The opportunity to have sexual intercourse. Cf. NON-ACCESS.

multiple access. In a paternity suit, the defense that the mother had lovers other than the defendant around the time of conception. • The basis for the defense is that because the mother bears the burden of proof, she must be able to prove that only the defendant could be the child's father. In some jurisdictions, this is still known by its common-law name, the exceptio plurium concubentium defense, or as simply the plurium defense. Juries or judges who wished to dismiss the case because of the mother's promiscuity, rather than because of the improbability of the defendant's paternity, often accepted this defense. Most states have now abrogated the defense. In fact, in recent years the issue of multiple access has declined in importance with the rise of highly accurate paternity testing. [Cases: Children Out-of-Wedlock 50. C.J.S. Children Out-of-Wedlock §§ 103, 106.]

4. Patents & trademarks. The right to obtain information about and to inspect and copy U.S. Patent and Trademark Office files of patents, patent applications, trademark applications, and inter partes proceedings pertaining to them. 5. Copyright. An opportunity by one accused of infringement to see, hear, or copy a copyrighted work before the alleged infringement took place <the duplication of the error proved that the defendant had access to the work>. • Proof of access is required to prove copyright infringement unless the two works are strikingly similar. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 83(3.1).] “Since direct evidence of copying is rarely available, a plaintiff can rely upon circumstantial evidence to prove this essential element; the most important component of such circumstantial evidence to support a copyright infringement claim is proof of access. Evidence of access and substantial similarity create an inference of copying and establish a prima facie case of copying.” 18 Am. Jur. 2d Copyright and Literary Property § 206 (1985).

6. Copyright. The right to obtain information about and to inspect and copy U.S. Copyright Office files and deposited materials. See (for senses 3 & 4) POWER TO INSPECT. — access, vb.

ACCESS EASEMENT

access easement. See EASEMENT.

ACCESSIO

accessio (ak-s<<schwa>>sh-ee-oh) n. [Latin] Roman law. 1. The doctrine by which something of lesser size, value, or importance is integrated into something of greater size, value, or importance.

“If the identity of one thing (the accessory) is merged and lost in the identity of the other (the principal), the owner of the principal is the owner of the thing.... There is said to be accessio.... The term is used by some commentators (and, following them, by the French Civil Code) in a much wider sense to include all cases in which there has been an addition to my right, i.e. in which the object of my ownership has increased. The owner of an animal therefore acquires ownership of the young of the animal at birth by accessio, though in physical terms there has been not an accession but a separation. In this sense accessio includes all the original natural modes except occupatio and thesauri inventio. And there are other, intermediate, meanings. Since accessio as an abstract word is not Roman and no clear classification emerges from the texts, no one meaning or classification can be said to be ‘right,’ but those adopted by the French Civil Code are so wide as to be almost meaningless.” Barry Nicholas, An Introduction to Roman Law 133 & n.1 (1962).

2. ACCESSION(4).

ACCESSION

accession (ak-sesh-<<schwa>>n). 1. The act of acceding or agreeing <the family's accession to the kidnapper's demands>. 2. A coming into possession of a right or office <as promised, the state's budget was balanced within two years after the governor's accession>. 3. Int'l law. A method by which a nation that is not among a treaty's original signatories becomes a party to it <Italy became a party to the nuclear-arms treaty by accession>. See Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties, art. 15 (1155 U.N.T.S. 331, 8 I.L.M. 679 (1969)). — Also termed adherence; adhesion. See INSTRUMENT OF ACCESSION . 4. The acquisition of title to personal property by bestowing labor on a raw material to convert it to another thing <the owner's accession to the lumber produced from his land>. — Also termed (in Roman law) accessio. See ADJUNCTION(2). [Cases: Accession 1. C.J.S. Accession §§ 2–8.]

“Accessio is the combination of two chattels belonging to different persons into a single article: as when A's cloth is used to patch B's coat, or a vehicle let on hire-purchase has new accessories fitted to it.” R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 113 (17th ed. 1977).

5. A property owner's right to all that is added to the property (esp. land) naturally or by labor, including land left by floods and improvements made by others <the newly poured concrete driveway became the homeowner's property by accession>. • In Louisiana law, accession is the owner's right to whatever is produced by or united with something, either naturally or artificially.

La. Civ. Code arts. 483, 490, 507. Cf. ANNEXATION. 6. An improvement to existing personal property, such as new shafts on golf clubs. “The problem of accessions arises infrequently, judging from reported cases, but an obvious instance of the difficulty arises where a motor vehicle is being financed by a secured party and the debtor in possession of necessity acquires a new engine or new tires for the vehicle .... If the seller of the engine or tires reserved a security interest at the time the goods were installed, the seller should prevail over the vehicle's secured party, with a right to remove the accessions. Conversely, if the sale were on open credit with no security interest reserved, or if the seller acquired a security interest after installation of the goods, then the financier of the vehicle should prevail.” Ray D. Henson, Handbook on Secured Transactions Under the Uniform Commercial Code § 4-22, at 93 (2d ed. 1979).

7. The physical uniting of goods with other goods in such a manner that the identity of the original goods is not lost. UCC § 9-102(a)(1). 8. ACCESSORYSHIP.

ACCESS ORDER

access order. See VISITATION ORDER.

ACCESSORIAL

accessorial (ak-s<<schwa>>-sor-ee-<<schwa>>l), adj. 1. (Of a promise) made for the purpose of strengthening another's credit <an accessorial pledge by way of guaranty>. — Also termed accessory. 2. Criminal law. Of or relating to the accessory in a crime <accessorial guilt>. [Cases: Criminal Law 68–77. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 137–142.]

ACCESSORIAL OBLIGATION

accessorial obligation. See COLLATERAL OBLIGATION.

ACCESSORY

accessory (ak-ses-<<schwa>>-ree), n. 1. Something of secondary or subordinate importance. 2. Criminal law. A person who aids or contributes in the commission or concealment of a crime. • An accessory is usu. liable only if the crime is a felony. Cf. PRINCIPAL(2). [Cases: Criminal Law 68–77; Homicide 573. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 137–142.] — accessory, adj. — accessoryship, n.

“In most jurisdictions, the common-law distinctions between principals and accessories have largely been abolished, although the pertinent statutes vary in form and substance. Conceptually, the common-law pattern remains the same: The person who aids, abets, commands, counsels, or otherwise encourages another to commit a crime is still regarded as a party to the underlying crime as at common law, even though the labels principal in the first degree, principal in the second degree, and accessory before the fact are no longer used, and even though it usually does not matter whether the aider and abettor is or is not present at the scene of the crime.” 1 Charles E. Torcia, Wharton's Criminal Law § 35, at 202–03 (15th ed. 1993).

accessory after the fact. An accessory who was not at the scene of the crime but knows that a crime has been committed and who helps the offender try to escape arrest or punishment. 18 USCA § 3. • Most penal statutes establish the following four requirements: (1) someone else must have committed a felony, and it must have been completed before the accessory's act; (2) the accessory must not be guilty as a principal; (3) the accessory must personally help the principal try to avoid the consequences of the felony; and (4) the accessory's assistance must be rendered with guilty knowledge. An accessory after the fact may be prosecuted for obstructing justice. — Sometimes shortened to accessory after. [Cases: Criminal Law 74, 82. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 140, 146–147.]

“A principal in the second degree is one by whom the actual perpetrator of the felony is aided and abetted at the very time when it is committed; for instance, a car-owner sitting beside the chauffeur who kills someone by over-fast driving, or a passenger on a clandestine joy-riding expedition which results in manslaughter; or a bi-gamist's second ‘wife,’ if she knows he is committing bigamy. (In early law he was not ranked as a principal at all, but only as a third kind of accessory — the accessory at the fact.)” J.W. Cecil Turner, Kenny's Outlines of Criminal Law 86 (16th ed. 1952).

accessory before the fact. An accessory who assists or encourages another to commit a crime but who is not present when the offense is actually committed. • Most jurisdictions have abolished this category of accessory and instead treat such an offender as an accomplice. — Sometimes shortened to accessory before. See ACCOMPLICE. [Cases: Criminal Law 68, 81. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 137, 146–147.]

“An accessory before the fact is a person who procures or advises one or more of the principals to commit the felony. This definition requires from him an instigation so active that a person who is merely shown to have acted as the stake-holder for a prize-fight, which ended fatally, would not be punishable as an accessory. The fact that a crime has been committed in a manner different from the mode which the accessory had advised will not excuse him from liability for it. Accordingly if A hires B to poison C, but B instead kills C by shooting him, A is none the less liable as accessory before the fact to C's murder. But a man who has counselled a crime does not become liable as accessory if, instead of any form of the crime suggested, an entirely different offence is committed.” J.W. Cecil Turner, Kenny's Outlines of Criminal Law 88 (16th ed. 1952).

ACCIDENT

accident, n. 1. An unintended and unforeseen injurious occurrence; something that does not occur in the usual course of events or that could not be reasonably anticipated. 2. Equity practice. An unforeseen and injurious occurrence not attributable to mistake, negligence, neglect, or misconduct.

“The word ‘accident,’ in accident policies, means an event which takes place without one’s foresight or expectation. A result, though unexpected, is not an accident; the means or cause must be accidental. Death resulting from voluntary physical exertions or from intentional acts of the insured is not accidental, nor is disease or death caused by the vicissitudes of climate or atmosphere the result of an accident; but where, in the act which precedes an injury, something unforeseen or unusual occurs which produces the injury, the injury results through accident.” 1A John Alan Appleman & Jean Appleman, Insurance Law and Practice § 360, at 455 (rev. vol. 1981).

“Policies of liability insurance as well as property and personal injury insurance frequently limit coverage to losses that are caused by ‘accident.’ In attempting to accommodate the layman’s understanding of the term, courts have broadly defined the word to mean an occurrence which is unforeseen, unexpected, extraordinary, either by virtue of the fact that it occurred at all, or because of the extent of the damage. An accident can be either a sudden happening or a slowly evolving process like the percolation of harmful substances through the ground. Qualification of a particular incident as an accident seems to depend on two criteria: 1. the degree of foreseeability, and 2. the state of mind of the actor in intending or not intending the result.” John F. Dobbyn, Insurance Law in a Nutshell 128 (3d ed. 1996).

culpable accident. An accident due to negligence. • A culpable accident, unlike an unavoidable accident, is no defense except in those few cases in which wrongful intent is the exclusive and necessary basis for liability.

unavoidable accident. An accident that cannot be avoided because it is produced by an irresistible physical cause that cannot be prevented by human skill or reasonable foresight. • Examples include accidents resulting from lightning or storms, perils of the sea, inundations or earthquakes, or sudden illness or death. Unavoidable accident has been considered a means of avoiding both civil and criminal liability. — Also termed inevitable accident; pure accident; unavoidable casualty. Cf. ACT OF GOD. [Cases: Automobiles 201(10); Negligence 440. C.J.S. Motor Vehicles § 517; Negligence §§ 66–68, 209.]

“Inevitable accident ... does not mean a catastrophe which could not have been avoided by any precaution whatever, but such as could not have been avoided by a reasonable man at the moment at which it occurred, and it is common knowledge that a reasonable man is not credited with perfection of judgment.” P.H. Winfield, A Textbook of the Law of Tort § 15, at 43 (5th ed. 1950).

“An unavoidable accident is an occurrence which was not intended and which, under all the circumstances, could not have been foreseen or prevented by the exercise of reasonable precautions. That is, an accident is considered unavoidable or inevitable at law if it was not proximately caused by the negligence of any party to the action, or to the accident.” W. Page Keeton et al., Prosser and Keeton on the Law of Torts § 29, at 162 (5th ed. 1984).

ACCIDENTAL

accidental, adj. 1. Not having occurred as a result of anyone's purposeful act; esp., resulting from an event that could not have been prevented by human skill or reasonable foresight. 2. Not having been caused by a tortious act.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH

accidental death. See DEATH.

ACCIDENTAL-DEATH BENEFIT

accidental-death benefit. An insurance-policy provision that allows for an additional payment (often double the face amount of the policy) if the insured dies as a result of an accident, as defined in the policy, and not from natural causes. — Abbr. ADB. [Cases: Insurance 2599. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1094, 1096, 1170–1171.]

ACCIDENTAL HARM

accommodation note. See NOTE(1).

ACCOMMODATION PAPER

accommodation paper. A negotiable instrument that one party cosigns, without receiving any consideration, as surety for another party who remains primarily liable. • An accommodation paper is typically used when the cosigner is more creditworthy than the principal debtor. — Also termed accommodation bill; accommodation note. [Cases: Bills and Notes 49, 96. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 24–25, 63.]

ACCOMMODATION PARTY

accommodation party. A person who, without recompense or other benefit, signs a negotiable instrument for the purpose of being a surety for another party (called the accommodated party) to the instrument. • The accommodation party can sign in any capacity (i.e., as maker, drawer, acceptor, or indorser). An accommodation party is liable to all parties except the accommodated party, who impliedly agrees to pay the note or draft and to indemnify the accommodation party for all losses incurred in having to pay it. See SURETY. [Cases: Bills and Notes 49, 96, 122. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 24–25, 63.]

ACCOMMODATION SURETY

accommodation surety. See voluntary surety under SURETY.

ACCOMMODATUM

accommodatum (<<schwa>>-kom-<<schwa>>-day-t<<schwa>>m), n. See COMMODATUM.

ACCOMPANY

accompany, vb. To go along with (another); to attend. • In automobile-accident cases, an unlicensed driver is not considered accompanied by a licensed driver unless the latter is close enough to supervise and help the former.

ACCOMPLICE

accomplice (<<schwa>>-kom-plis). 1. A person who is in any way involved with another in the commission of a crime, whether as a principal in the first or second degree or as an accessory. • Although the definition includes an accessory before the fact, not all authorities treat this term as including an accessory after the fact. [Cases: Criminal Law 59. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 127, 998.]

“There is some authority for using the word ‘accomplice’ to include all principals and all accessories, but the preferred usage is to include all principals and accessories before the fact, but to exclude accessories after the fact. If this limitation is adopted, the word ‘accomplice’ will embrace all perpetrators, abettors and inciters.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 727 (3d ed. 1982).

2. A person who knowingly, voluntarily, and intentionally unites with the principal offender in committing a crime and thereby becomes punishable for it. See ACCESSORY. Cf. PRINCIPAL(2). “By definition an accomplice must be a person who acts with the purpose of promoting or facilitating the commission of the substantive offense for which he is charged as an accomplice. State v. White, N.J. 1984, 484 A.2d 691, 98 N.J. 122.” Model Penal Code § 2.06 annot. (1997).

ACCOMPLICE LIABILITY

accomplice liability. See LIABILITY.

ACCOMPLICE WITNESS

accomplice witness. See WITNESS.

ACCOMPT

accompt. See ACCOUNT(1).

ACCORD

accord, n. 1. An amicable arrangement between parties, esp. between peoples or nations; COMPACT; TREATY. 2. An offer to give or to accept a stipulated performance in the future to satisfy an obligor's existing duty, together with an acceptance of that offer. • The performance becomes what is known as a satisfaction. — Also termed executory accord; accord executory. See ACCORD AND SATISFACTION ; SATISFACTION. Cf. COM-PROMISE; NOVATION. [Cases: Accord and Satisfaction 1. C.J.S. Accord and Satisfaction §§ 2–17, 25–33.]

“An accord is a contract under which an obligee promises to accept a stated performance in satisfaction of the obligor's existing duty. Performance of the accord discharges the original duty.” Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 281(1) (1979).

“The term executory accord is sometimes used to underscore the point that the accord itself does not discharge the duty. It also reflects an historical anachronism, now generally rejected, under which an unperformed accord was not a defense to an action on the underlying duty.” E. Allan Farnsworth, Contracts § 4.24, at 289 n.10 (3d ed. 1999).

3. A signal used in a legal citation to introduce a case clearly supporting a proposition for which another case is being quoted directly.

accord, vb. 1. To furnish or grant, esp. what is suitable or proper <accord the litigants a stay of costs pending appeal>. 2. To agree <they accord in their opinions>.

ACCORD AND SATISFACTION

accord and satisfaction. An agreement to substitute for an existing debt some alternative form of discharging that debt, coupled with the actual discharge of the debt by the substituted performance. • The new agreement is called the accord, and the discharge is called the satisfaction. Cf. COMPROMISE; NOVATION; SETTLEMENT(2), (3). [Cases: Accord and Satisfaction 1. C.J.S. Accord and Satisfaction §§ 2–17, 25–33.]

“ ‘Accord and satisfaction’ means an agreement between the parties that something shall be given to, or done for, the person who has the right of action, in satisfaction of the cause of action. There must be not only agreement (‘accord’) but also consideration (‘satisfaction’). Such an arrangement is really one of substituted performance.” 1 E.W. Chance, Principles of Mercantile Law 101 (P.W. French ed., 13th ed. 1950).

ACCORDANT

accordant (<<schwa>>-kor-d<<schwa>>nt), adj. In agreement <accordant with these principles>.

ACCOUCHEMENT

accouchement (<<schwa>>-koosh-m<<schwa>>nt or ak-oosh-mawn). [French] Childbirth.

ACCOUNT

account, n. 1. ACCOUNTING(3) <the principal filed an action for account against his agent>. — Also spelled (archaically) accompt.

“The action of account lies where one has received goods or money for another in a fiduciary capacity, to ascertain and recover the balance due. It can only be maintained where there is such a relationship between the parties, as to raise an obligation to account, and where the amount due is uncertain and unliquidated.” Benjamin J. Shipman, Handbook of Common-Law Pleading § 56, at 144 (Henry Winthrop Ballantine ed., 3d ed. 1923).

2. ACCOUNTING(4) <the contractor filed an action for account against the nonpaying customer>. 3. A statement by which someone seeks to describe or explain an event <Fred's account of the holdup differed significantly from Martha's>. 4. A detailed statement of the debits and credits between parties to a contract or to a fiduciary relationship; a reckoning of monetary dealings < the trustee balanced the account at the end of each month>. • In wills and estates, an account is a brief financial statement of the manner in which an executor or administrator has performed the official duties of collecting the estate's assets and paying those who are entitled. An account charges the executor or administrator with the value of the estate as shown by the inventory, plus any increase, and credits the executor with expenses and costs, duly authorized disbursements, and the executor's commission. — Abbr. acct.; a/c. — Also termed accounting. See STATEMENT OF ACCOUNT. 5. A course of business dealings or other relations for which records must be kept <open a brokerage account>.

account in trust. An account established by an individual to hold the account's assets in trust for someone else. [Cases: Trusts 34.]

account payable. (usu. pl.) An account reflecting a balance owed to a creditor; a debt owed by an enterprise in the normal course of business dealing. — Often shortened to payable. — Also termed note payable. Pl. accounts payable.

account receivable. (usu. pl.) An account reflecting a balance owed by a debtor; a debt owed by a customer to an enterprise for goods or services. — Often shortened to receivable. — Also termed note receivable. Pl. accounts receivable.

account rendered. An account produced by the creditor and presented for the debtor's examination and acceptance.

account settled. An account with a paid balance.

account stated. 1. A balance that parties to a transaction or settlement agree on, either expressly or by implication. • The phrase also refers to the agreement itself or to the assent giving rise to the agreement.

“An account stated is a manifestation of assent by debtor and creditor to a stated sum as an accurate computation of an amount due the creditor.” Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 282(1)

(1979).

“If a creditor and a debtor wish to compromise or liquidate a disputed or unliquidated debt, they may do so by either a substituted contract or an accord. If, however, their agreement is in the nature of a computation, it is called an account stated. An account stated, then, is a manifestation of assent by both parties to the stated sum as an accurate computation of the debt.” E. Allan Farnsworth, Contracts § 4.24, at 286 (1982).

2. A plaintiff's claim in a suit for such a balance. 3. Equity practice. A defendant's plea in response to an action for an accounting. • The defendant states that the balance due on the statement of the account has been discharged and that the defendant holds the plaintiff's release. — Also termed stated account.

accumulated-adjustments account. Tax. An item on the books of an S corporation (usu. an equity item on the corporation's balance sheet) to account for taxable-income items passed through to shareholders, such as accumulated earnings — earned before the corporation converted from a C corporation to an S corporation — that would have been distributed as a dividend to the shareholders if the corporation had remained a C corporation. • One of the theories underlying the accumulated-adjustments account is that the shareholders should not be permitted to avoid dividend-tax treatment on a corporation's accumulated earnings just because the corporation converts from C status to S status. IRC (26 USCA) § 1368(e)(1). — Abbr. AAA. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3896. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 376–377.]

adjunct account. An account that accumulates additions to another account.

annual account. See intermediate account.

assigned account. A pledge of an account receivable to a bank or factor as security for a loan. [Cases: Assignments 10; Pledges 5; Secured Transactions 181. C.J.S. Assignments §§ 19–21; Pledges § 8; Secured Transactions §§ 25, 134–136.]

bank account. A deposit or credit account with a bank, such as a demand, time, savings, or passbook account. UCC § 4-104(a). [Cases: Banks and Banking 151. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 266–268, 277–278.]

blocked account. An account at a bank or other financial institution, access to which has been restricted either by the government or by an authorized person. • An account may be blocked for a variety of reasons, as when hostilities erupt between two countries and each blocks access to the other's accounts. — Also termed frozen account. [Cases: Banks and Banking 128, 151. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 266–268, 270, 277–278, 280–282, 327.]

book account. A detailed statement of debits and credits giving a history of an enterprise's business transactions.

capital account. An account on a partnership's balance sheet representing a partner's share of the partnership capital. [Cases: Partnership 81. C.J.S. Partnership §§ 91, 336, 340.]

charge account. See CHARGE ACCOUNT.

client trust account. See CLIENT TRUST ACCOUNT.

closed account. An account that no further credits or debits may be added to but that remains open for adjustment or setoff.

community account. An account consisting of community funds or commingled funds. See COMMUNITY PROPERTY.

contra account (kon-tr<<schwa>>). An account that serves to reduce the gross valuation of an asset.

convenience account. An apparent joint account, but without right of survivorship, established by a creator to enable another person to withdraw funds at the creator's direction or for the creator's benefit. • Unlike a true joint account, only one person, the creator, has an ownership interest in the deposited funds. Convenience accounts are often established by those who need a financial manager's help and want to make it easy for the manager to pay bills. Although the manager's name is on the account, he or she does not contribute any personal funds to the account and can write checks or make withdrawals only at the direction of or on behalf of the creator.

current account. 1. A running or open account that is settled periodically, usu. monthly. 2. A partner's account that reflects salary, withdrawals, contributions, and other transactions in a given period. 3. Banking. A depositor's checking account. 4. The portion of a nation's balance of payments that represents its exports, imports, and transfer payments.

custodial account. An account opened on behalf of someone else, such as one opened by a parent for a minor child. • Custodial accounts most often arise under the Uniform Transfers to Minors Act (1983). All states have enacted either that act or its earlier version, the Uniform Gifts to Minors Act. Property can be set aside by a donor or transferred to a third party as custodian for the benefit of a minor, usu. as an irrevocable gift. This is a much simpler mechanism than a trust. The custodian has powers and fiduciary duties similar to those of a trustee, except that the custodian is not under a court's supervision. The custodian must account for the property and turn it over to the beneficiary when he or she reaches majority. See UNIFORM TRANSFERS TO MINORS ACT.

deposit account. A demand, time, savings, passbook, or similar account maintained with a bank, savings-and-loan association, credit union, or like organization, other than investment property or an account evidenced by an instrument. UCC § 9-102(a)(29). — Abbr. D.A. [Cases: Banks and Banking 151; Building and Loan Associations 40. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 266–268, 277–278; Building and Loan Associations, Savings and Loan Associations, and Credit Unions §§ 66, 68, 71–79.]

escrow account. 1. A bank account, generally held in the name of the depositor and an escrow agent, that is returnable to the depositor or paid to a third person on the fulfillment of specified conditions. — Also termed escrow deposit. See ESCROW(2). [Cases: Deposits and Escrows 11–26. C.J.S. Depositaries §§ 4–5, 8–10, 13–25, 27; Escrows §§ 2–15.] 2. See impound account.

frozen account. See blocked account.

impound account.An account of accumulated funds held by a lender for payment of taxes, insurance, or other periodic debts against real property. — Also termed escrow; escrow account; reserve account. See ESCROW(2).

intermediate account.An account filed by an executor, administrator, or guardian after the initial account and before the final account. • This account is usu. filed annually. — Also termed annual account.

joint account.A bank or brokerage account opened by two or more people, by which each party has a present right to withdraw all funds in the account and, upon the death of one party, the survivors become the owners of the account, with no right of the deceased party's heirs or devisees to share in it. • Typically, the account-holders are designated as “joint tenants with right of survivorship” or “joint-and-survivor account-holders.” In some jurisdictions, they must be so designated to establish a right of survivorship. — Abbr. JA. — Also termed joint-and-survivorship account. [Cases: Joint Tenancy 1. C.J.S. Estates § 19; Joint Tenancy §§ 2, 4, 7–9.]

lien account.A statement of claims that fairly informs the owner and public of the amount and nature of a lien. [Cases: Liens 9; Mechanics' Liens 116. C.J.S. Liens § 10; Mechanics' Liens § 121.]

liquidated account.An account whose assets are clearly ascertained, either by agreement of the parties or by law.

long account.An account involving numerous items or complex transactions in an equitable action, usu. referred to a master or commissioner.

margin account.A brokerage account that allows an investor to buy or sell securities on credit, with the securities usu. serving as collateral for the broker's loan.

multiple-party account.An account that has more than one owner with a current or future interest in the account. • Multiple-party accounts include joint accounts, payable-on-death (P.O.D.) accounts, and trust accounts. Unif. Probate Code § 6-201(5).

mutual account.An account showing mutual transactions between parties, as by showing debits and credits on both sides of the account.

“[E]ach party to a mutual account occupies both a debtor and creditor relation with regard to the other party. A mutual account arises where there are mutual dealings, and the account is allowed to run with a view to an ultimate adjustment of the balance. In order to establish a mutual account, it is not enough that the parties to the account have cross demands or cross open accounts; there must be an actual mutual agreement, express or implied, that the claims are to be set off against each other.” 1 Am. Jur. 2d Accounts and Accounting § 6, at 564 (1994).

mutual-fund wrap account.An investment account that allocates an investor's assets only among mutual funds rather than stocks or other investments. See wrap account.

negotiable-order-of-withdrawal account.See NOW account.

nominal account (nahm-n). An income-statement account that is closed into surplus at the end of the year when the books are balanced.

NOW account (now). An interest-bearing savings account on which the holder may write checks. — Also termed negotiable-order-of-withdrawal account. [Cases: Banks and Banking 151. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 266–268, 277–278.]

offset account. One of two accounts that balance against each other and cancel each other out when the books are closed.

open account. 1. An unpaid or unsettled account. 2. An account that is left open for ongoing debit and credit entries by two parties and that has a fluctuating balance until either party finds it convenient to settle and close, at which time there is a single liability.

partial account. A preliminary accounting of an executor's or administrator's dealings with an estate. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 509(11). C.J.S. Executors and Administrators § 883.]

pay-on-death account. A bank account whose owner instructs the bank to distribute the account's balance to a beneficiary upon the owner's death. • Unlike a joint-and-survivorship account, a pay-on-death account does not give the beneficiary access to the funds while the owner is alive. — Abbr. POD account. — Also termed pay-on-death bank account.

pledged account. A mortgagor's account pledged to a lender in return for a loan bearing interest at a below-market rate. [Cases: Pledges 5. C.J.S. Pledges § 8.]

profit-and-loss account. A transfer account of all income and expense accounts, closed into the retained earnings of a corporation or the capital account of a partnership. [Cases: Corporations 311; Partnership 81. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 505–506; Partnership §§ 91, 336, 340.]

real account. An account that records assets and liabilities rather than receipts and payments.

reserve account. See impound account.

revolving charge account. See revolving credit under CREDIT(4).

running account. An open, unsettled account that exhibits the reciprocal demands between the parties.

sequestered account. An account (such as a joint bank account) that a court has ordered to be separated, frozen, and impounded.

share-draft account. An account that a member maintains at a credit union and that can be drawn on through the use of share drafts payable to third parties. • A share-draft account operates much like a checking account operates at a bank. — Also termed share account. [Cases: Building and Loan Associations 40. C.J.S. Building and Loan Associations, Savings and Loan Associations, and Credit Unions § 66.]

suspense account. A temporary record used in bookkeeping to track receipts and disbursements of an uncertain nature until they are identified and posted in the appropriate ledgers and journals. • A suspense account does not appear in a final financial statement. It is a useful tool when, for example, a lump-sum receipt or expenditure must be broken down to match several transactions before posting.

tax-deferred account. An interest-bearing account whose earnings are not taxable as income to the account holder before the earnings are withdrawn. • Tax-deferred accounts include most types of IRAs, variable annuities, 401(k) plans, cash-value life insurance, and most other types of tax-deferred savings instruments.

trust account. See CLIENT TRUST ACCOUNT.

wrap account. An investment account for which the investor, helped by a stockbroker, selects an account manager and pays a fee based on a percentage of the total assets to be managed. • Most wrap accounts contain a portfolio of investments, including stocks, bonds, and cash. Investors generally provide a risk profile but do not select the investments or give instructions to buy or sell. — Also termed wrap-fee account. See mutual-fund wrap account.

ACCOUNTABLE

accountable, adj. Responsible; answerable <the company was held accountable for the employee's negligence>. — accountability, n.

ACCOUNTABLE RECEIPT

accountable receipt. See RECEIPT.

ACCOUNTANT

accountant. 1. A person authorized under applicable law to practice public accounting; a person whose business is to keep books or accounts, to perform financial audits, to design and control accounting systems, and to give tax advice. • For some purposes, the term includes a professional accounting association, a corporation, and a partnership, if they are so authorized. [Cases: Accountants 1. C.J.S. Accountants § 2.]

certified public accountant. An accountant who has satisfied the statutory and administrative requirements to be registered or licensed as a public accountant. — Abbr. CPA.

2. A defendant in an action of account.

ACCOUNTANT-CLIENT PRIVILEGE

accounting. 1. The act or a system of establishing or settling financial accounts; esp., the process of recording transactions in the financial records of a business and periodically extracting, sorting, and summarizing the rec-orded transactions to produce a set of financial records. — Also termed financial accounting. 2. A rendition of an account, either voluntarily or by court order. • The term frequently refers to the report of all items of property, income, and expenses prepared by a personal representative, trustee, or guardian and given to heirs, beneficiaries, or the probate court. See ACCOUNT(4). 3. A legal action to compel a defendant to account for and pay over money owed to the plaintiff but held by the defendant (often the plaintiff's agent); ACCOUNTING FOR PROFITS. — Also termed account render; account; action of account. 4. More broadly, an action for the recovery of money for services performed, property sold and delivered, money loaned, or damages for the nonperformance of simple contracts. • Such an action is available when the rights of parties will be adequately protected by the payment of money. — Also termed action on account; account; action of book debt. 5. Commercial law. An equitable proceeding for a complete settlement of all partnership affairs, usu. in connection with partner misconduct or with a winding up. See WINDING UP. [Cases: Partnership 331. C.J.S. Partnership §§ 387, 391.] 6. Secured transactions. A record that (1) is authenticated by a secured party, (2) indicates the aggregate unpaid secured obligation as of a date no more than 35 days before or after the date of the record, and (3) identifies the components of the obligations in reasonable detail. UCC § 9-102(a)(29). [Cases: Secured Transactions 162. C.J.S. Secured Transactions § 112.]

ACCOUNTING FOR FRUITS

accounting for fruits. Civil law. A claim for the return of natural or civil fruits against an adverse possessor or other person obligated by law or contract to account for fruits. See FRUIT(2).

ACCOUNTING FOR PROFITS

accounting for profits.An action for equitable relief against a person in a fiduciary relationship to recover profits taken in a breach of the relationship. — Often shortened to accounting.

“The term accounting, or accounting for profits, is used in several ways. In its most important meaning, it is a restitutionary remedy based upon avoiding unjust enrichment. In this sense it reaches monies owed by a fiduciary or other wrongdoer, including profits produced by property which in equity and good conscience belonged to the plaintiff. It resembles a constructive trust in that tracing may be used to reach profits. But even if tracing fails, the plaintiff may recover a judgment for the profits due from use of his property.” Dan B. Dobbs, Law of Remedies § 4.3(5), at 408 (2d ed. 1993).

ACCOUNTING METHOD

accounting method.A system for determining income and expenses for tax purposes.

accrual accounting method (<<schwa>>-kroo-<<schwa>>l). An accounting method that records entries of debits and credits when the liability arises, rather than when the income or expense is received or disbursed. — Also termed accrual basis. Cf. cash-basis accounting method. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3099; Taxation 1078. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 25, 46, 57, 371; Taxation § 1759.]

AC ETIAM

ac etiam (ak ee-shee-<<schwa>>m oresh-ee-<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] Common-law pleading. 1. And also. • These words introduced a genuine claim in a pleading in a common-law case in which a fictitious claim had to be alleged to give the court jurisdiction. In other words, the phrase ac etiam directed the court to the real cause of action. — Also spelled acetiam.

“[T]o remedy this inconvenience, the officers of the king's bench devised a method of adding what is called a clause of ac etiam to the usual complaint of trespass; the bill of Middlesex commanding the defendant to be brought in to answer the plaintiff of a plea of trespass, and also to a bill of debt: the complaint of trespass giving cognizance to the court, and that of debt authorizing the arrest.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 288 (1768).

2. The clause that introduced the real allegation after a fictitious allegation of trespass. — Also termed (in sense 2) ac etiam clause.

To confirm as genuine before an authorized officer <ac-knowledged before a notary public>. [Cases: Acknowledgment 1. C.J.S. Acknowledgments §§ 2–4.] 5. (Of a notary public or other officer) to certify as genuine <the notary acknowledged the genuineness of the signature>.

ACKNOWLEDGED FATHER

acknowledged father.See FATHER.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

acknowledgment. 1. A recognition of something as being factual. 2. An acceptance of responsibility. 3. The act of making it known that one has received something. 4. A formal declaration made in the presence of an authorized officer, such as a notary public, by someone who signs a document and confirms that the signature is authentic. • In most states, the officer certifies that (1) he or she personally knows the document signer or has established the signer's identity through satisfactory evidence, (2) the signer appeared before the officer on the date and in the place (usu. the county) indicated, and (3) the signer acknowledged signing the document freely. Cf. VERIFI-CATION(1). [Cases: Acknowledgment 1. C.J.S. Acknowledgments §§ 2–4.]

contents of the instrument executed; in other words, an acknowledgment is the method of authenticating an instrument by showing it was the act of the person executing it, while a verification is a sworn statement as to the truth of the facts stated within an instrument.” 1A C.J.S. Acknowledgments § 2 (1985).

5. The officer's certificate that is affixed to the document. — Also termed (in sense 5) certificate of acknowl-edgment; (loosely) verification. See PROOF OF ACKNOWLEDGMENT. 6. A father's public recognition of a child as his own. — Also termed acknowledgment of paternity.

formal acknowledgment. 1. A father's recognition of a child as his own by a formal, written declaration that meets a state's requirements for execution, typically by signing in the presence of two witnesses. • In Louisiana law, this recognition may also be made by a mother. La. Civ. Code art. 203. 2. A father's recognition of a child as his own in the child's registry of birth or at the child's baptism. • In this sense, a formal acknowledgment typically occurs when a man signs the birth certificate or baptismal certificate as the father or announces at the baptismal service that he is the father. The fact that a man is named as the father on a certificate of birth or baptism is not a formal acknowledgment unless the father signs the document.

informal acknowledgment.A father's recognition of a child as his own not by a written declaration but by receiving the child into his family or supporting the child and otherwise treating the child as his own offspring.

act,n.1. Something done or performed, esp. voluntarily; a deed. — Also termed action.

“ ‘[A]ct’ or ‘action’ means a bodily movement whether voluntary or involuntary ....” Model Penal Code § 1.13.

2. The process of doing or performing; an occurrence that results from a person's will being exerted on the external world; ACTION(2). — Also termed positive act; act of commission.“The term act is one of ambiguous import, being used in various senses of different degrees of generality. When it is said, however, that an act is one of the essential conditions of liability, we use the term in the widest sense of which it is capable. We mean by it any event which is subject to the control of the human will. Such a definition is, indeed, not ultimate, but it is sufficient for the purpose of the law.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 367 (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

“The word ‘act’ is used throughout the Restatement of this Subject to denote an external manifestation of the actor's will and does not include any of its results, even the most direct, immediate, and intended.” Restatement (Second) of Torts § 2 (1965).

abstract juridical act.Civil law. A juridical act whose validity may be independent of the existence or lawfulness of the underlying cause. • In some systems, examples include negotiable instruments, debt remission, debt acknowledgment, and the novation of an obligation. See juridical act.

act in pais (in pay). [Law French] An act performed out of court, such as a deed made between two parties on the land being transferred. See IN PAIS.

act of the party. See act in the law.

administrative act. An act made in a management capacity; esp., an act made outside the actor's usual field (as when a judge supervises court personnel). • An administrative act is often subject to a greater risk of liability than an act within the actor's usual field. See IMMUNITY(1).

bilateral act. An act that involves the consenting wills of two or more distinct parties, as with a contract, a conveyance, a mortgage, or a lease; AGREEMENT(1).

conversionary act. An act that, unless privileged, makes the actor liable for conversion.

external act. An act involving bodily activity, such as speaking.

intentional act. An act resulting from the actor's will directed to that end. • An act is intentional when it is foreseen and desired by the doer, and this foresight and desire resulted in the act through the operation of the will.

internal act. An act of the mind, such as thinking.

judicial act. An act involving the exercise of judicial power. — Also termed act of court.

“The distinction between a judicial and a legislative act is well defined. The one determines what the law is, and what the rights of parties are, with reference to transactions already had; the other prescribes what the law shall be in future cases arising under it.” Union Pacific R.R. v. United States, 99 U.S. 700, 721 (1878) (Field, J., dissenting).

jural act (jooor-*<<schwa>>*l). An act taken in the context of or in furtherance of a society's legal system. — Also termed jural activity.

“In order to identify an act as a jural act, it must be the kind of act that would be engaged in by someone who is enforcing a law, determining an infraction of the law, making or changing a law, or settling a dispute.” Martin P. Golding, Philosophy of Law 23 (1975).

juridical act. Civil law. A lawful volitional act intended to have legal consequences. Cf. abstract juridical act.

juristic act. See act in the law.

legal act. See LEGAL ACT.

ministerial act. An act performed without the independent exercise of discretion or judgment. • If the act is mandatory, it is also termed a ministerial duty. See ministerial duty under DUTY(2).

negative act. The failure to do something that is legally required; a nonoccurrence that involves the breach of a legal duty to take positive action. • This takes the form of either a forbearance or an omission. — Also termed act of omission.

negligent act. An act that creates an unreasonable risk of harm to another.

predicate act. See PREDICATE ACT.

quasi-judicial act. See QUASI-JUDICIAL ACT.

tortious act. An act that subjects the actor to liability under the principles of tort law.

unilateral act. An act in which there is only one party whose will operates, as in a testamentary disposition, the exercise of a power of appointment, or the voidance of a voidable contract.

unintentional act. An act not resulting from the actor's will toward what actually takes place.

verbal act. 1. An act performed through the medium of words, either spoken or written. 2. Evidence. A statement offered to prove the words themselves because of their legal effect (e.g., the terms of a will). • For this purpose, the statement is not considered hearsay.

3. The formal product of a legislature or other deliberative body; esp., STATUTE. • For the various types of acts, see the subentries under STATUTE.

act in pais. See ACT.

ACT IN THE LAW

act in the law. See ACT.

actio (ak-shee-oh alsoak-tee-oh), n. [Latin] 1. Roman & civil law. An action; a right or claim. 2. A right of action. [Cases: Action 1. C.J.S. Actions §§ 2–9, 11, 17, 21, 32–33, 36.] 3. Hist. At common law, a lawsuit. Pl. actiones (ak-shee-oh-nee-z).

actio ad exhibendum (ak-shee-oh ad ek-si-ben-d<<schwa>>m). Roman law. An action to compel a defendant to produce property so as to establish that it is in the defendant's possession. Pl. actiones ad exhibendum.

actio aestimatoria (ak-shee-oh es-ti-m<<schwa>>-tor-ee-<<schwa>>). See DE AESTIMATO.

actio arbitraria (ak-shee-oh ahr-bi-trair-ee-<<schwa>>). Roman law. An action in which a judge issued an interlocutory decree ordering the defendant to do something (such as restoring property to the plaintiff) on pain of a monetary judgment payable to the plaintiff. • This action was so called because the judge could assess the damage at a high figure if the defendant failed to comply with the interlocutory order. Pl. actiones arbitrarie (ak-shee-oh-nee-z ahr-bi-trair-ee-I).

actio auctoritas (ak-shee-oh awk-tor-i-tas). Roman law. A seller's guarantee against eviction from mancipiated land coupled with a promise to pay twice the sale price as damages if the buyer is evicted. • The guarantee was implicit in the mancipation process. See MANCIPATION.

actio bonae fidei (ak-shee-oh boh-nee fi-dee-I). Roman law. One of a class of actions in which a judge could take equitable considerations into account in rendering a decision. Pl. actiones bonae fidei.

actio calumniae (ak-shee-oh k<<schwa>>-l<<schwa>>m-nee-ee). Roman law. An action to restrain, or collect damages for, a malicious civil suit. • The victim could also pursue criminal charges. Pl. actiones calumniae. See CALUMNIA.

actio civilis (ak-shee-oh s<<schwa>>-vi-lis). [Latin “a civil action”] Roman law. An action founded on the traditional Roman law, rather than the innovations of magistrates. Pl. actiones civiles. Cf. actio honoraria.

actio commodati (ak-shee-oh kom-<<schwa>>-day-ti). [Latin “action on loan”] Roman law. An action for the recovery of a thing gratuitously lent but not returned to the lender. — Also termed commodati actio. Pl. actiones commodati. See COMMODATUM.

actio commodati contraria (ak-shee-oh kom-<<schwa>>-day-tl k*<<schwa>>n-trair-ee-<<schwa>>*). Roman law. An action by a gratuitous borrower against a lender for extraordinary expenses or damage caused by the lender's default. Pl. actiones commodati contrariae.

actio commodati directa (ak-shee-oh kom-<<schwa>>-day-tl di-rek-t*<<schwa>>*). Roman law. An action by a lender against a borrower for restitution for an item gratuitously lent. Pl. actiones commodati directae.

actio condictio indebiti (ak-shee-oh k*<<schwa>>n-dik-shee-oh in-deb-<<schwa>>*-tl). See condictio indebiti under CONDICTIO. • Strictly speaking, the headword is a solecism, since a condictio is a type of actio, but this phrase is occasionally found in legal literature. Pl. actiones condictio indebiti.

actio conducti (ak-shee-oh k*<<schwa>>n-d<<schwa>>*k-tl). [Latin “action for the thing hired”] An action by the lessee of a thing or the hirer of another's services to enforce the contract or claim damages for breach. — Also termed actio ex conducto. Cf. actio locati.

actio confessoria (ak-shee-oh kon-f*<<schwa>>-sor-ee-<<schwa>>*). [Latin “action based on an admission”] 1. See vindicatio servitutis under VINDICATIO. 2. An action in which the defendant admits liability but does not express it in a fixed sum. • A judge therefore assesses the damages.

actio contraria (ak-shee-oh k*<<schwa>>n-trair-ee-<<schwa>>*). Roman law. A counterclaim. Pl. actio contra-ria. Cf. actio directa.

actio criminalis (ak-shee-oh kri-m*<<schwa>>*-nay-lis). Roman law. A criminal action. Pl. actiones criminales.

actio damni injuria (ak-shee-oh dam-nl in-joor-ee-<<schwa>>). Roman law. An action for damages for tortiously causing pecuniary loss. Pl. actiones damni injuriae. See actio legis Aquiliae.

actio de communi dividundo (ak-shee-oh dee k*<<schwa>>-myoo-nl di-vi-d<<schwa>>*n-doh). [Latin “for dividing a thing held in common”] Roman & civil law. An action to partition common property. — Sometimes shortened to de communi dividundo. Pl. actiones de communi dividundo. See ADJUDICATIO.

actio de dolo malo (ak-shee-oh dee doh-loh mal-oh). Roman law. An action of fraud. • This type of action was widely applied in cases involving deceitful conduct. — Also termed actio doli. Pl. actiones de dolo malo.

actio de in rem verso (ak-shee-oh dee in rem v*<<schwa>>*r-soh). See action de in rem verso under ACTION(4). Pl. actiones de in rem verso.

actio de pauperie (ak-shee-oh dee paw-p*<<schwa>>*r-ee). Roman law. An action for harm done by a domestic four-legged animal. • The owner could either pay for the damage or surrender the animal to the injured party. Justinian extended this action to include wild animals in some circumstances. See PAUPERIES.

actio de peculio (ak-shee-oh dee p<<schwa>>-kyoo-lee-oh). Roman law. An action against a paterfamilias or slave owner concerning the value of the child's or slave's separate funds (peculium). Pl. actiones de peculio.

actio de pecunia constituta (ak-shee-oh dee p<<schwa>>-kyoo-nee-<<schwa>>kon-sti-t[y]oo-t<<schwa>>). Roman law. An action on a promise to pay a preexisting debt. Pl. actiones de pecunia constituta.

actio depositi contraria (ak-shee-oh di-poz-<<schwa>>-tĭ k<<schwa>>n-trair-ee-<<schwa>>). Roman law. An action that a depositary has against the depositor for unpaid expenses. Pl. actiones depositi contrariae.

actio depositi directa (ak-shee-oh di-poz-<<schwa>>-tĭ di-rek-t<<schwa>>). Roman law. An action that a de-positor has against a depositary for the return of the deposited item. Pl. actiones depositi directae.

actio de tigno juncto (ak-shee-oh dee tig-noh j<<schwa>>ngk-toh). [Latin "action for joining timber"] Roman law. An action by the owner of material incorporated without payment into the defendant's building. • It was akin to a theft action. The plaintiff could recover up to twice the value of the material. Pl. actiones de tigno juncto.

actio directa (ak-shee-oh di-rek-t<<schwa>>). Roman law. 1. An action founded on strict law and conducted according to fixed forms; an action based on clearly defined obligations actionable at law based on a statute or a praetor's edict. 2. A direct action, as opposed to a counterclaim (actio contraria). Cf. actio in factum; actio utilis. Pl. actiones directae.

actio doli (ak-shee-oh doh-II). See actio de dolo malo.

actio empti (ak-shee-oh emp-tĭ). Roman law. An action by a buyer to compel a seller to deliver the item sold or for damages for breach of contract. — Also termed actio ex empto. Pl. actiones empti.

actio ex conducto (ak-shee-oh eks k<<schwa>>n-d<<schwa>>k-toh). See actio conducti. Pl. actiones ex con-ducto.

actio ex contractu (ak-shee-oh eks k<<schwa>>n-trak-t[y]oo). Roman law. An action arising out of a contract. • This term had a similar meaning at common law. Pl. actiones ex contractu.

actio ex delicto (ak-shee-oh eks d<<schwa>>-lik-toh). Roman law. An action founded on a tort. Pl. actiones ex delicto.

actio ex empto (ak-shee-oh eks emp-toh). See actio empti.

actio exercitoria (ak-shee-oh eg-z<<schwa>>r-si-tor-ee-<<schwa>>). Roman law. An action against the owner or lessee (exercitor) of a vessel, esp. for contracts made by the master. Pl. actiones exercitoriae.

actio ex locato (ak-shee-oh eks loh-kay-toh). See actio locati.

actio ex stipulatu (ak-shee-oh eks stip-y<<schwa>>-lay-t[y]oo). Roman law. An action brought to enforce a stipulatio. See STIPULATION(3).

actio ex vendito (ak-shee-oh eks ven-d<<schwa>>-toh). See actio venditi.

actio familiae erciscundae (ak-shee-oh f<<schwa>>-mil-ee-ee <<schwa>>r-sis-k<<schwa>>n-dee). [Latin "action to divide an estate"] An action for the partition of the inheritance among heirs. — Sometimes shortened to familiae erciscundae. See ADJUDICATIO.

actio finium regundorum (ak-shee-oh fl-nee-<<schwa>>m ri-g<<schwa>>n-dor-<<schwa>>m). [Latin "action for regulation of boundaries"] Roman law. An action among neighboring proprietors to fix or to preserve property boundaries. See ADJUDICATIO.

actio furti (ak-shee-oh f<<schwa>>r-tI). Roman law. An action by which the owner of stolen goods can, according to the circumstances, recover a multiple of their value from the thief by way of penalty, without prejudice to a further action to recover the goods themselves or their value. See furtum manifestum under FURTUM.

actio honoraria (ak-shee-oh [h]on-<<schwa>>-rair-ee-<<schwa>>). Pl. actiones honorariae. See ACTIONES HONORARIAE.

actio hypothecaria (ak-shee-oh hI-poth-<<schwa>>-kair-ee-<<schwa>>). See HYPOTHECARIA ACTIO.

actio in factum (ak-shee-oh in fak-t<<schwa>>m). Roman law. An action granted by the praetor when no standard action was available. • The closest Anglo-American equivalent is action on the case or trespass on the case. See trespass on the case under TRESPASS. Cf. actio directa; actio utilis.

actio injuriarum (ak-shee-oh in-juur-ee-ahr-<<schwa>>m). Roman law. An action that lay against anyone who had attacked the body, reputation, or dignity of any person. — Also spelled actio iniuriarum. Pl. actiones inju-riarum (ak-shee-oh-nee-z in-juur-ee-ahr-<<schwa>>m).

actio in personam (ak-shee-oh in p<<schwa>>r-soh-n<<schwa>>m). Pl. actiones in personam. See action in personam under ACTION(4).

actio in rem (ak-shee-oh in rem). Pl. actiones in rem. See action in rem and real action under ACTION(4).

actio institoria (ak-shee-oh in-sti-tor-ee-<<schwa>>). [Latin] Roman law. An action against a principal by one who contracted with the principal's business agent, limited to matters arising out of the business. See INSTITOR.

actio iudicati (ak-shee-oh joo-di-kay-tI). Roman law. An action to enforce a judgment by execution on the de-fendant's property. Pl. actiones iudicati.

actio legis (ak-shee-oh lee-jis). See LEGIS ACTIO.

actio legis Aquiliae (ak-shee-oh lee-jis <<schwa>>-kwil-ee-ee). Roman law. An action under the Aquilian law; specif., an action to recover for loss caused by intentional or negligent damage to another's property. — Also termed actio damni injuria; actio damni injuria dati. See LEX AQUILIA.

actio locati (ak-shee-oh loh-kay-tī). [Latin “action for what has been hired out”] Roman law. An action that a lessor (the locator) of a thing might have against the hirer, or an employer against a contractor. — Also termed actio ex locato (ak-shee-oh eks loh-kay-toh). Cf. actio conducti.

actio mandati (ak-shee-oh man-day-tī). 1. Civil law. An action to enforce a contract for gratuitous services or remuneration. 2. Hist. An action to enforce a contract for gratuitous services. See MANDATUM. Pl. actiones mandati.

actio mixta (ak-shee-oh mik-st<<schwa>>). Roman law. A mixed action; an action in which two or more features are combined, as an action for damages and for a penalty, or an action in rem and in personam. Pl. actiones mixta (ak-shee-oh-nee-z mik-st<<schwa>>).

actio negatoria (ak-shee-oh neg-<<schwa>>-tor-ee-<<schwa>>). Roman law. An action brought by a landowner against anyone claiming to exercise a servitude over the landowner's property. — Also termed actio negativa. Pl. actiones negatoriae.

actio negotiorum gestorum (ak-shee-oh n<<schwa>>-goh-shee-or-<<schwa>>m jes-tor-<<schwa>>m). Roman law. An action against a gestor for the mismanagement of the principal's property, or for any acquisitions made in the course of management. • The gestor could bring a counteraction to recover management-related expenses (actio contraria negotiorum gestorum). Pl. actiones negotiorum gestorum. See NEGOTIORUM GESTOR.

actio non accrevit infra sex annos (ak-shee-oh non <<schwa>>-kree-vit in-fr<<schwa>> seks an-ohs). [Latin “the action did not accrue within six years”] Hist. A plea to the statute of limitations by which the defendant asserts that the plaintiff's cause of action has not accrued within the last six years. Pl. actiones non accreverant infra sex annos.

actio non ulterius (ak-shee-oh non <<schwa>>l-teer-ee-<<schwa>>s). [Latin “an action no further”] Hist. The distinctive clause in a plea to abate further maintenance of the action. • This plea replaced the puis darrein continuance. Pl. actiones non ulterii. Cf. plea to further maintenance to the action, plea puis darrein continuance under PLEA.

actio Pauliana (ak-shee-oh paw-lee-ay-n<<schwa>>). [Latin “action attributed to Paul” or “Paulian action”] An action to rescind a transaction (such as alienation of property) that an insolvent debtor made to deceive the debtor's creditors. • This action was brought against the debtor or the third party who benefited from the transaction. Pl. actiones Paulianae.

“[A]ctio Pauliana, a name which has been shewn to be inserted by a glossator, after the first publication of the Digest. It lay where the debtor had impoverished himself to the detriment of his creditors, e.g. by alienations, by incurring liabilities or allowing rights to lapse, but not for failing to acquire or for paying just debts .... It lay against the debtor, who might have since acquired property .... But its chief field was against acquirers privy to the fraud, or even innocent, if the acquisition was gratuitous.” W.W. Buckland, A Text-Book of Roman Law from Augustus to Justinian 596 (Peter Stein ed., 3d ed. 1963).

actio perpetua (ak-shee-oh p<<schwa>>r-pech-oo-<<schwa>>). Roman law. An action that is not required to be brought within a specified time. Pl. actiones perpetuae. Cf. actio temporalis.

actio personalis (ak-shee-oh p<<schwa>>r-s<<schwa>>-nay-lis). Roman law. A personal action. Pl. actiones personales.

actio pignoratitia (ak-shee-oh pig-n<<schwa>>-r<<schwa>>-tish-ee-<<schwa>>). Roman law. An action of pledge; an action founded on a contract of pledge. — Also spelled actio pigneraticia; actio pignoratitia. — Also termed pignoratitia actio. Pl. actiones pignoratitiae. See PIGNUS.

actio poenalis (ak-shee-oh pi-nay-lis). Roman law. An action in which the plaintiff sued for a penalty rather than compensation. Pl. actiones poenales (ak-shee-oh-nee-z pi-nay-leez). Cf. actio rei persecutoria.

actio popularis (ak-shee-oh pop-y<<schwa>>-lair-is). [Latin “popular action”] Roman law. An action that a male member of the general public could bring in the interest of the public welfare. Pl. actiones populares (ak-shee-oh-nee-z pop-y<<schwa>>-lair-eez).

actio praejudicialis (ak-shee-oh pree-joo-dish-ee-ay-lis). Roman law. A preliminary action; an action begun to determine a preliminary matter on which other litigated matters depend. Pl. actiones praejudiciales.

actio praetoria (ak-shee-oh pri-tor-ee-<<schwa>>). Roman law. A praetorian action; one introduced by a praetor rather than founded on a statute. Pl. actiones praetoriae (ak-shee-oh-nee-z pri-tor-ee-I).

actio pro socio (ak-shee-oh proh soh-shee-oh). Roman law. An action brought by one partner against another. Pl. actiones pro socio. See SOCIETAS.

actio Publiciana (ak-shee-oh p<<schwa>>-blish-ee-ay-n<<schwa>>). Roman law. An action allowing a person who had acquired bonitary ownership of land to recover it from a third party, so that the person would in due course acquire full title by prescription. • This action is named for Publicius, who might have been the first praetor to grant the action. — Also termed actio Publiciana in rem. See bonitary ownership under OWNERSHIP.

actio quanti minoris (ak-shee-oh kwon-tI mi-nor-is). [Latin “an action for the shortfall in value”] Roman & civil law. A purchaser's action to recover for his overpayment for a defective item. Pl. actiones quanti minoris. Cf. actio redhibitoria.

“If a defect appeared which had not been so declared the buyer, if he sued within six months, could claim rescission of the sale by the actio redhibitoria, and, if within twelve months, could claim the difference between the price paid and the actual value of the defective slave or animal by the actio quanti minoris. In both actions the knowledge or ignorance of the seller was irrelevant: liability was strict." Barry Nicholas, An Introduction to Roman Law 181 (1962).

actio quod jussu (ak-shee-oh kwod j<<schwa>>s-[y]oo). Roman law. An action against a paterfamilias or a slaveowner for enforcement of a debt contracted on behalf of the paterfamilias or slaveowner by a son or a slave.

actio quod metus causa (ak-shee-oh kwod mee-t<<schwa>>s kaw-z<<schwa>>). Roman law. An action to penalize someone who wrongfully compelled the plaintiff to transfer property or to assume an obligation. • The plaintiff could obtain damages of four times the value of the loss suffered. Pl. actiones quod metus causa.

actio realis (ak-shee-oh ree-ay-lis). [Law Latin] Hist. A real action. Pl. actiones reales.

actio redhibitoria (ak-shee-oh red-i-bi-tor-ee-<<schwa>>). Roman & civil law. An action for restoration to cancel a sale because of defects in the thing sold. Pl. actiones redhibitoriae. Cf. actio quanti minoris.

actio rei persecutoria (ak-shee-oh ree-I p<<schwa>>r-si-kyoo-tor-ee-<< schwa>>). [Law Latin "an action for pursuing a thing"] Roman law. An action to recover a specific thing or monetary compensation, rather than a penalty. Pl. actiones rei persecutoriae (ak-shee-oh-nee-z ree-I p<<schwa>>r-si-kyoo-tor-ee-I). Cf. actio poenalis.

actio rerum amotarum (ak-shee-oh reer-<<schwa>>m am-<<schwa>>-tair-<<schwa>>m). Roman law. An action to recover items stolen by a spouse shortly before a divorce. Pl. actiones rerum amotarum.

actio rescissoria (ak-shee-oh re-si-sor-ee-<<schwa>>). Roman law. An action to restore to the plaintiff property lost by prescription. • This action was available to minors and other persons exempt from prescriptive claims against their property. Pl. actiones rescissoriae.

actio serviana (ak-shee-oh s<<schwa>>r-vee-ay-n<<schwa>>). Roman law. An action by which a lessor could seize, in satisfaction of unpaid rent, the lessee's personal property brought onto the leased premises. Pl. actiones servianae.

actio servi corrupti (ak-shee-oh s<<schwa>>r-vI k<<schwa>>-r<<schwa>>p-tI). [Latin] Roman law. An action for corrupting a slave or servant. • Since the "corruption" could take the form of bribery to find out the master's confidential business information, one scholar suggested in a famous article that it could be the precursor of the modern law of trade secrets. A. Arthur Schiller, Trade Secrets and the Roman Law: The Actio Servi Corrupti, 30 Colum. L. Rev. 837 (1930). Other scholars strongly disagree (see quotation).

"The actio servi corrupti presumably or possibly could be used to protect trade secrets and other similar commercial interests. That was not its purpose and was, at most, an incidental spin-off. But there is not the slightest evidence that the action was ever so used." Alan Watson, Trade Secrets and Roman Law: The Myth Exploded, 11 Tul. Eur. & Civ. L.F. 19, 19 (1996).

actio stricti juris (ak-shee-oh strik-t[ʃ]oor-is). Roman law. A class of personal actions enforceable exactly as stated in the formula without taking equitable considerations into account; an action of strict right. • This type of action was often used to recover a definite sum of money or a particular object that was the subject of a formal promise (stipulatio). Pl. actiones stricti juris. See FORMULA(1).

actio temporalis (ak-shee-oh tem-p[ə]schwa-ray-lis). Roman & civil law. An action that must be brought within a specified time. Pl. actiones temporales. Cf. actio perpetua.

actio tutelae (ak-shee-oh t[y]oo-tee-lee). Roman law. An action arising from a breach of the duty owed by a guardian (tutor) to the ward, such as mismanagement of the ward's property. Pl. actiones tutelae.

actio utilis (ak-shee-oh yoo-t[ə]schwa-lis). Roman law. An extension of a direct action, founded on utility rather than strict right, available esp. to persons having an interest in property less than ownership. • This type of action was modeled after the actio directa. Pl. actiones utiles. Cf. actio directa; actio in factum.

actio venditi (ak-shee-oh ven-d[ə]schwa-t[ɪ]). Roman law. An action by which a seller could obtain his price or enforce a contract of sale. — Also termed actio ex vendito. Pl. actiones venditi.

actio vi bonorum raptorum (ak-shee-oh v[ɪ] b[ə]schwa-nor[ə]schwa-m rap-tor[ə]schwa-m). Roman law. A penal action to recover goods taken by force. • A successful plaintiff would also receive three times the value of the taken property. Cf. INTERDICTUM QUOD VI AUT CLAM.

actio vulgaris (ak-shee-oh v[ə]schwa-l-gair-is). Hist. An ordinary action, as opposed to one granted in special circumstances. Pl. actiones vulgares.

legis actio. See LEGIS ACTIO.

ACTION

action. 1. The process of doing something; conduct or behavior. 2. A thing done; ACT(2). 3. Patents. OFFICE ACTION.

advisory action. Patents. See advisory office action under OFFICE ACTION.

4. A civil or criminal judicial proceeding. — Also termed action at law. [Cases: Action 1. C.J.S. Actions §§ 2–9, 11, 17, 21, 32–33, 36.] “An action has been defined to be an ordinary proceeding in a court of justice, by which one party prosecutes another party for the enforcement or protection of a right, the redress or prevention of a wrong, or the punishment of a public offense. But in some sense this definition is equally applicable to special proceedings. More accurately, it is defined to be any judicial proceeding, which, if conducted to a determination, will result in a judgment or decree. The action is said to terminate at judgment.” 1 Morris M. Estee, Estee's Pleadings, Practice, and Forms § 3, at 1 (Carter P. Pomeroy ed., 3d ed. 1885).

time there was a more marked distinction, for an action was considered as terminating when judgment was rendered, the execution forming no part of it. A suit, on the other hand, included the execution. The word 'suit,' as used in the Judiciary Act of 1784 and later Federal statutes, applies to any proceeding in a court of justice in which the plaintiff pursues in such court the remedy which the law affords him." Edwin E. Bryant, The Law of Pleading Under the Codes of Civil Procedure 3 (2d ed. 1899).

“ ‘Action,’ in the sense of a judicial proceeding, includes recoupment, counterclaim, set-off, suit in equity, and any other proceeding in which rights are determined.” UCC § 1-201(b)(1).

action at law.A civil suit stating a legal cause of action and seeking only a legal remedy. See suit at law and suit in equity under SUIT.

action de die in diem (dee dI-ee in dI-em). [Law Latin “from day to day”] Hist. 1.An action occurring from day to day; a continuing right of action. 2. An action for trespass for each day that an injury continues.

“That trespass by way of personal entry is a continuing injury, lasting as long as the personal presence of the wrongdoer, and giving rise to actions de die in diem so long as it lasts, is sufficiently obvious.” R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 42 (17th ed. 1977).

action de in rem verso (dee in rem v<<schwa>>r-soh). [Latin “action for money applied to (the defendant's) advantage”] 1.Roman & civil law. An action for unjust enrichment, in which the plaintiff must show that an enrichment was bestowed, that the enrichment caused an impoverishment, that there is no justification for the enrichment and impoverishment, and that the plaintiff has no other adequate remedy at law, including no remedy under an express or implied contract. 2.Roman law. An action brought against a paterfamilias or a slaveowner who benefited from the transaction of a child or slave. — Also termed (in both senses) actio de in rem verso.

action en declaration de simulation.Louisiana law. An action to void a contract. See simulated contract under CONTRACT.

action ex contractu (eks k<<schwa>>n-trak-t[y]oo). A personal action arising out of a contract. [Cases: Action 27. C.J.S. Actions § 85.]

“Actions ex contractu were somewhat illogically classified thus: covenant, debt, assumpsit, detinue, and account. The action of covenant lay where the party claimed damages for a breach of contract or promise under seal. The writ of debt lay for the recovery of a debt; that is, a liquidated or certain sum of money alleged to be due from defendant to plaintiff. The writ of detinue was the ancient remedy where the plaintiff claimed the specific recovery of goods, chattels, deeds, or writings detained from him. This remedy fell into disuse by reason of the unsatisfactory mode of trial of ‘wager of law,’ which the defendant could claim; and recourse was had to the action of replevin. In the American States an action of replevin founded upon statute provisions is almost universally the remedy for the recovery of specific personal property.” Edwin E. Bryant, The Law of Pleading Under the Codes of Civil Procedure 5 (2d ed. 1899).

action ex delicto (eks d<<schwa>>-lik-toh). A personal action arising out of a tort. [Cases:

Action 27. C.J.S. Actions § 85.]

“The actions ex delicto were originally the action of trespass and the action of replevin.”
Edwin E. Bryant, The Law of Pleading Under the Codes of Civil Procedure 5 (2d ed. 1899).

action for money had and received. At common law, an action by which the plaintiff could recover money paid to the defendant, the money usu. being recoverable because (1) the money had been paid by mistake or under compulsion, or (2) the consideration was insufficient. [Cases: Implied and Constructive Contracts 10–25. C.J.S. Implied and Constructive Contracts §§ 11–23.]

action for money paid. At common law, an action by which the plaintiff could recover money paid to a third party — not to the defendant — in circumstances in which the defendant had benefited. [Cases: Implied and Constructive Contracts 6. C.J.S. Implied and Constructive Contracts § 8.]

action for pointing. Hist. A creditor's action to obtain sequestration of the land rents and goods of the debtor to satisfy the debt or enforce a distress.

action for the loss of services. Hist. A husband's lawsuit against one who has taken away, imprisoned, or physically harmed his wife in circumstances in which (1) the act is wrongful to the wife, and (2) the husband is deprived of her society or services. [Cases: Husband and Wife 209(3).]

action for the recovery of land. See EJECTMENT.

action in equity. An action that seeks equitable relief, such as an injunction or specific performance, as opposed to damages. See suit in equity under SUIT. [Cases: Action 21. C.J.S. Actions § 124.]

action in personam (in p<<schwa>>r-soh-n<<schwa>>m). 1. An action brought against a person rather than property. • An in personam judgment is binding on the judgment debtor and can be enforced against all the property of the judgment debtor. 2. An action in which the named defendant is a natural or legal person. — Also termed personal action; (in Roman and civil law) actio in personam; actio personalis. Pl. actiones in personam; actiones personales. See IN PERSONAM. [Cases: Action 16. C.J.S. Actions §§ 10–12, 66, 69, 71–72, 74–77.]

action in rem (in rem). 1. An action determining the title to property and the rights of the parties, not merely among themselves, but also against all persons at any time claiming an interest in that property; a real action. [Cases: Action 16. C.J.S. Actions §§ 10–12, 66, 69, 71–72, 74–77.] 2. Louisiana law. An action brought for the protection of possession, ownership, or other real rights in immovable property. La. Civ. Code arts. 3651 et seq. 3. Louisiana law. An action for the recovery of possession of immovable property. La. Civ. Code art. 526. — Also termed (in Roman law) actio in rem; actio realis; real action. Pl. actiones in rem. See IN REM. 4. An action in which the named defendant is real or personal property.

action of account. See ACCOUNTING(3).

action of assize. Hist. A real action by which the plaintiff proves title to land merely by showing an ancestor's possession. See ASSIZE.

action of book debt. See ACCOUNTING(4).

action of declarator. Scots law. An action brought in the Court of Session for the purpose of establishing a legal status or right. — Also termed declarator; action for declaratory.

action of ejectment. See EJECTMENT(3).

action on account. See ACCOUNTING(4).

action on expenditure. An action for payment of the principal debt by a personal surety.

action on the case. See trespass on the case under TRESPASS.

action per quod servitium amisit (p<<schwa>>r kwod s<<schwa>>r-vish-ee-<< schwa>>m <<schwa>>-mI-sit). [Latin] Hist. An action for the loss of a servant's services.

action quasi in rem (kway-sI in remorkway-zI). An action brought against the defendant personally, with jurisdiction based on an interest in property, the objective being to deal with the particular property or to subject the property to the discharge of the claims asserted. See quasi in rem under IN REM. [Cases: Action 16. C.J.S. Actions §§ 10–12, 66, 69, 71–72, 74–77.]

action to quiet title. A proceeding to establish a plaintiff's title to land by compelling the adverse claimant to establish a claim or be forever estopped from asserting it. — Also termed quiet-title action. [Cases: Quieting Title 1. C.J.S. Quieting Title §§ 1, 3, 6.]

action to review judgment. Rare. 1. MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL. 2. A request for judicial review of a nonjudicial body's decision, such as an administrative ruling on a workers'-compensation claim. • The grounds for review are usu. similar to those for a new trial, esp. patent errors of law and new evidence.

amicable action. See test case (1) under CASE.

civil action. An action brought to enforce, redress, or protect a private or civil right; a noncriminal litigation. — Also termed (if brought by a private person) private action; (if brought by a government) public action. [Cases: Action 1. C.J.S. Actions §§ 2–9, 11, 17, 21, 32–33, 36.]

collusive action. An action between two parties who have no actual controversy, being merely for the purpose of determining a legal question or receiving a precedent that might prove favorable in related litigation. — Also termed fictional action. [Cases: Action 8. C.J.S. Actions §§ 34–35, 37.]

common-law action. An action governed by common law, rather than statutory, equitable, or civil law. [Cases: Action 21. C.J.S. Actions § 124.]

criminal action. An action instituted by the government to punish offenses against the public. [Cases: Action 18. C.J.S. Actions § 68.]

cross-action. An action brought by the defendant against the plaintiff based on the same subject matter as the plaintiff's action. See CROSS-CLAIM.

derivative action. See DERIVATIVE ACTION.

direct action. See DIRECT ACTION.

fictional action. See collusive action.

fictitious action. An action, usu. unethical, brought solely to obtain a judicial opinion on an issue of fact or law, rather than for the disposition of a controversy. [Cases: Action 8. C.J.S. Actions §§ 34–35, 37.]

hypothecary action (hI-poth-<<schwa>>-ker-ee). Roman & civil law. An action for the enforcement of a mortgage (hypotheca); a lawsuit to enforce a creditor's claims under a hypothec or hypothecation. — Also termed actio hypothecaria.

innominate action (i-nom-i-n*<<schwa>>t*). An action that has no special name by which it is known. Cf. nominate action.

joint action. 1. An action brought by two or more plaintiffs. 2. An action brought against two or more defendants. [Cases: Action 50(4.1).]

local action.An action that can be brought only in the jurisdiction where the cause of action arose, as when the action's subject matter is a piece of real property. [Cases: Courts 7. C.J.S. Courts §§ 20–22, 37.]

matrimonial action.An action relating to the state of marriage, such as an action for separation, annulment, or divorce. [Cases: Divorce 1; Marriage 57. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 2, 5, 97–98; Marriage § 64.]

mixed action.An action that has some characteristics of both a real action and a personal action. [Cases: Action 30. C.J.S. Actions §§ 78–83.]

“In early times the only mixed actions were those for the partition of lands, for which a writ was provided in the common-law courts. The remedy was further enlarged by the statute of 31 Hen. VII c. 1, and 32 Hen. VIII c. 32, which gave compulsory partition, by writ at common law. These statutes formed the basis of partition in the American States; but in England and here courts of Chancery have been found most convenient, and their procedure most favorable for the division of estates in land. The statutes at the present time, in most of the States, prescribe a procedure which is quite similar to that in equity practice.” Edwin E. Bryant, The Law of Pleading Under the Codes of Civil Procedure 10–11 (2d ed. 1899).

nominate action (nom-i-n<<schwa>>t). An action that is known by a name, such as a confessory action, a petitory action, or a possessory action. Cf. innominate action.

nonpersonal action.An action that proceeds within some category of territorial jurisdiction other than in personam — that is, jurisdiction in rem, quasi in rem, or over status.

penal action. 1. A criminal prosecution. [Cases: Action 18. C.J.S. Actions § 68.] 2. A civil proceeding in which either the state or a common informer sues to recover a penalty from a defendant who has violated a statute. • Although civil in nature, a penal action resembles a criminal proceeding because the result of a successful action is a monetary penalty intended, like a fine, to punish the defendant. See COMMON INFORMER. [Cases: Action 19. C.J.S. Actions § 70.]

“At one time it was a frequent practice, when it was desired to repress some type of conduct thought to be harmful, to do so by the machinery of the civil rather than of the criminal law. The means so chosen was called a penal action, as being brought for the recovery of a penalty; and it might be brought, according to the wording of the particular statute creating the penal action, either by the Attorney-General on behalf of the state, or by a common informer on his own account. A common informer was anyone who should first sue the offender for the penalty. Penal actions are still possible in a few cases, and their existence renders invalid several suggested distinctions between civil wrongs and crimes.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 107 (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

“For in ‘penal actions,’ unless the statute expressly authorizes private persons to act as informers, the State alone can sue and recover the penalty; and yet there is full authority for ranking such suits by it as merely civil proceedings.” J.W. Cecil Turner, Kenny's Outlines of Criminal Law 538 (16th ed. 1952).

3. A civil lawsuit by an aggrieved party seeking recovery of a statutory fine or a penalty, such as punitive damages. [Cases: Action 19. C.J.S. Actions § 70.]

“[T]here exists a well-known class of proceedings called ‘penal actions,’ by which pecuniary penalties can be recovered — in some cases by any person who will sue for them — from the doers of various prohibited acts; these acts being thus prohibited, and visited with penalties, solely on account of their tendency to cause evil to the community at large, ‘considered as a community.’ For example, a person who, in advertising a reward for the return of lost property, adds that ‘no questions will be asked’ incurs by the Larceny Act, 1861, a penalty of £50 recoverable by anyone who will sue for it.” J.W. Cecil Turner, Kenny's Outlines of Criminal Law 533–34 (16th ed. 1952).

personal action. 1. An action brought for the recovery of debts, personal property, or damages arising from any cause. — Also termed remedial action. [Cases: Action 30. C.J.S. Actions §§ 78–83.]

“Personal actions are subdivided into those brought for the recovery of a debt or of damages for the breach of a contract, or for tort, for some injury to the person or to relative rights or to personal or real property. The most common of these actions are debt, covenant, assumpsit, detinue, trespass, trespass on the case, trover, and replevin.” Benjamin J. Shipman, Handbook of Common-Law Pleading § 34, at 65 (Henry Winthrop Ballantine ed., 3d ed. 1923).

2. See action in personam.

petitory action (pet-<<schwa>>-tor-ee). 1. Roman & civil law. An action to establish and enforce title to property independently of the right to possession. 2. Civil law. An action for the recognition of ownership or other real right in immovable (or sometimes movable) property. • In civil-law systems, the petitory action (revendication) is a much broader and more effective remedy than the rei-vindicatio, the Roman prototype. This action is based on, and tends to protect, real rights, that is, ownership and its dismemberments. It is therefore a real action, distinguishable from personal actions based on (and tending to protect) personal rights. Generally, the petitory action is available for the protection of the ownership of both movables and immovables. In Louisiana, however, the petitory action is for the recognition of ownership or other real right in immovable property, brought by a person who is not in possession of it. La. Code Civ. Proc. art. 3651. An action for the recognition of such a right in movable property is an innominate real action, known as a revendicatory action. — Also termed petitory suit; petitorium; revendication. [Cases: Real Actions 6.]

plenary action (plee-<<schwa>>-ree or plen-). A full hearing or trial on the merits, as opposed to a summary proceeding. Cf. summary proceeding under PROCEEDING.

possessory action (p-<<schwa>>-zes-<<schwa>>-ree). 1. An action to obtain, recover, or maintain possession of property but not title to it, such as an action to evict a nonpaying tenant. — Also termed possessorium. [Cases: Ejectment 17; Replevin 1. C.J.S. Ejectment § 24; Replevin §§ 2–7.]

“The possessory action is available for the protection of the possession of corporeal immovables as well as for the protection of the quasi-possession or real rights in immovable property. It is distinguished from the petitory action which is available for the recognition and enforcement of ownership or of real rights in another's immovable, such as a usufruct, limited personal servitudes, and predial servitudes.” A.N. Yiannopoulos, Civil Law Property § 333, at 653 (4th ed. 2001).

2.Maritime law. An action brought to recover possession of a ship under a claim of title. [Cases: Admiralty 8. C.J.S. Admiralty §§ 59–61.]

public action.See civil action.

real action. 1. An action brought for the recovery of land or other real property; specif., an action to recover the possession of a freehold estate in real property, or seisin. 2.Civil law. An action based on, and tending to protect, a real right, namely, the right of ownership and its dismemberments. • It is distinguishable from a personal action, which is based on (and tends to protect) a personal right. 3.Louisiana law. An action brought for the protection of possession, ownership, or other real rights in immovable property.La. Code Civ. Proc. arts. 3651 et seq. — Also termed action in rem; actio in rem; actio realis. See SEISIN. [Cases: Real Actions 1–6.]

“If the question be asked why it was that a large part of the really English law which Bracton undertook to expound is found in connection with the subject of real actions, while in Blackstone's treatise only the personal actions are deemed worthy of attention, the answer must be that the former were dying out. When Chitty wrote (1808) the old real actions were practically obsolete, and in the succeeding generation such vestiges of them as remained were abolished by statute.” Hannis Taylor, The Science of Jurisprudence 574 (1908).

“The principal real actions formerly in use were (1) the writs of right; (2) the writs of entry; (3) the possessory assizes, such as novel disseisin and mort d'ancestor. Real actions are those in which the demandant seeks to recover seisin from one called a tenant, because he holds the land. They are real actions at common law because the judgment is in rem and awards the seisin or possession.” Benjamin J. Shipman, Handbook of Common-Law Pleading § 32, at 63 (Henry Winthrop Ballantine ed., 3d ed. 1923).

redhibitory action.Civil law. An action brought to void a sale of a thing having a defect that renders it either useless or so flawed that the buyer would not have bought it in the first place. See REDHIBITION. [Cases: Sales 113; Vendor and Purchaser 123. C.J.S. Sales §§ 123, 128–129, 199; Vendor and Purchaser §§ 300–305.]

rescissory action.Scots law. An action to set aside a deed.

revendicatory action (ree-ven-di-k<<schwa>>-tor-ee). See petitory action.

separate action. 1. An action brought alone by each of several complainants who are all involved in the same transaction but either cannot legally join the suit or, not being required to join, choose not to join it. 2. One of several distinct actions brought by a single plaintiff against each of two or more parties who are all liable to a plaintiff with respect to the same subject matter. — Also termed several action.

several action. See separate action.

sham action. An objectively baseless lawsuit the primary purpose of which is to hinder or interfere with a competitor's business relationships. See Professional Real Estate Investors, Inc. v. Columbia Pictures Indus., Inc., 508 U.S. 49, 113 S.Ct. 1920 (1993). — Also termed sham lawsuit; sham suit. See SHAM EXCEPTION.

statutory action. An action governed by statutory law rather than equitable, civil, or common law. [Cases: Action 3. C.J.S. Actions §§ 22–25, 28.]

test action. See test case (2) under CASE.

third-party action. An action brought as part of a lawsuit already pending but distinct from the main claim, whereby a defendant sues an entity not sued by the plaintiff when that entity may be liable to the defendant for all or part of the plaintiff's claim. • A common example is an action for indemnity or contribution. [Cases: Parties 50. C.J.S. Parties §§ 128–131, 142, 151.]

transitory action. An action that can be brought in any venue where the defendant can be personally served with process. [Cases: Venue 4. C.J.S. Venue §§ 8–9.]

“Transitory actions are universally founded on the supposed violation of rights which, in contemplation of law, have no locality. They are personal actions, that is, they are brought for the enforcement of purely personal rights or obligations. If the transaction on which the action is founded could have taken place anywhere, the action is generally regarded as transitory; but if the transaction could only have happened in a particular place ... the action is local. Some authorities, considering the effect of the distinction, define transitory actions as actions which may be tried wherever defendant may be found and served.” 92 C.J.S. Venue § 8, at 678–79 (1955).

Action. A former independent federal agency that administered various volunteer-services programs including Foster Grandparents, Retired Senior Volunteers, Senior Companions, Volunteers in Service to America, and Student Community Service Projects. • Its functions were transferred to the Corporation for National and Community Service in 1995. See CORPORATION FOR NATIONAL AND COMMUNITY SERVICE .

actionable per quod (p<<schwa>>r kwod). (Of potentially defamatory words) not inherently defamatory and therefore requiring allegation and proof of special damages. • For example, if the defendant says, "The plaintiff is crazy," the utterance is actionable per quod. That is, the plaintiff must prove, in addition to the utterance, that the defendant intended the words to mean that the plaintiff was mentally impaired or deficient in business or professional capacity, and that these words caused the plaintiff to suffer special damages. See PER QUOD.

actionable per se (p<<schwa>>r say). (Of defamatory words) legally and conclusively presumed defamatory. • In the law of defamation, words actionable per se are inherently libelous or slanderous. For example, if a person says of a fiduciary, "That person embezzles client funds," the utterance is actionable per se. The plaintiff does not have to allege or prove special damages. See PER SE.

"The terminology 'actionable per se' has proven treacherous, in that it has invited confusion with another doctrine which obtains in defamation cases. This is the doctrine which distinguishes between words (such as, 'You are a thief') which convey a defamatory meaning on their face, and, on the other hand, words of veiled detraction whose offense is apparent only when the context and circumstances are revealed. The former are sometimes said to be defamatory 'per se' or slanderous 'per se' or libelous 'per se,' whereas the latter, to be properly pleaded, must have an accompanying 'innuendo' or explanation. Clearly this requirement has no relationship to the other rule, that certain slanders are and others are not actionable without a showing of special damage, but the use of the phrase 'per se' in both connections has produced confusion, and we find many American courts adopting the practice of requiring, in cases where the defamation, whether slander or libel, must be explained by an 'innuendo' to reveal its defamatory meaning, that special damages be also pleaded." Charles T. McCormick, Handbook on the Law of Damages § 113, at 417 (1935).

active supervision. Antitrust. Under the test for determining whether a private entity may claim a state-action exemption from the antitrust laws, the right of the state to review the entity's anticompetitive acts and to disprove those acts that do not promote state policy. See STATE-ACTION DOCTRINE; MIDCAL TEST. [Cases: Monopolies 12(15.5). C.J.S. Monopolies §§ 136, 138–143.]

“The active supervision requirement stems from the recognition that where a private party is engaging in the anticompetitive activity, there is a real danger that he is acting to further his own interests, rather than the governmental interests of the State. The requirement is designed to ensure that the state-action doctrine will shelter only the particular anticompetitive acts that, in the judgment of the State, actually further state regulatory policies. To accomplish this purpose, the active supervision requirement mandates that the State exercise ultimate control over the challenged anticompetitive conduct.” Patrick v. Burget, 486 U.S. 94, 100–01, 108 S.Ct. 1658, 1663 (1988).

ACTIVE TRUST

ACT OF ATTAINDER

act of attainder.See BILL OF ATTAINDER.

ACT OF BANKRUPTCY

act of bankruptcy.An event, such as a debtor's fraudulent conveyance of property, that triggers an involuntary bankruptcy proceeding against a debtor. • The 1978 Bankruptcy Reform Act abolished this requirement as a condition to an involuntary bankruptcy proceeding. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2281. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 56.]

ACT OF COMMISSION

act of commission.See ACT.

ACT OF CONGRESS

act of Congress.A law that is formally enacted in accordance with the legislative power granted to Congress by the U.S. Constitution. • To become a law, or an act of Congress, a bill or resolution must be passed by a majority of the members of both the House of Representatives and the Senate. Bills or resolutions may generally be introduced in either chamber, except that bills for generating revenue must be introduced in the House of Representatives. When a bill or resolution is introduced in a chamber, it is usu. assigned to a committee. If it is passed by the committee, it is reported to the full chamber. If it passes in the full chamber, it is reported to the other chamber, which then usu. assigns it to a committee in that chamber. If it passes by majority votes of the committee and full body in that chamber, it is reported back to the originating chamber. If its terms have changed in the second chamber, it is submitted to a conference committee, consisting of members from both chambers, to work out a compromise. When the bill or resolution is passed, with the same terms, by both chambers, it is signed by the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate (usu. the President Pro Tempore), and is presented to the President of the United States for signature. If the President signs it or fails to return it to Congress within ten days, the bill or resolution becomes law. But if the President vetoes the bill or resolution, it must be passed by a two-thirds majority of the House of Representatives and the Senate to become law. U.S. Const. art. I, § 7; 3 The Guide to American Law 165–66 (West 1983).

ACT OF COURT

act of court. 1. See judicial act under ACT. 2.Scots law. A memorandum setting forth the proceedings in a lawsuit. 3.Scots law. A rule made by a sheriff regulating proceedings within the

---

ACT OF GOD

act of God. An overwhelming, unpreventable event caused exclusively by forces of nature, such as an earthquake, flood, or tornado. • The definition has been statutorily broadened to include all natural phenomena that are exceptional, inevitable, and irresistible, the effects of which could not be prevented or avoided by the exercise of due care or foresight. 42 USCA § 9601(1). — Also termed act of nature; act of providence; superior force; vis major; irresistible superhuman force; vis divina. Cf. FORCE MAJEURE; unavoidable accident under ACCIDENT. [Cases: Contracts 303(3), 309(1). C.J.S. Contracts §§ 520–524.]

“As a technical term, ‘act of God’ is untheological and infelicitous. It is an operation of ‘natural forces’ and this is apt to be confusing in that it might imply positive intervention of the deity. This (at any rate in common understanding) is apparent in exceptionally severe snowfalls, thunderstorms and gales. But a layman would hardly describe the gnawing of a rat as an act of God, and yet the lawyer may, in some circumstances, style it such. The fact is that in law the essence of an act of God is not so much a positive intervention of the deity as a process of nature not due to the act of man, and it is this negative side which needs emphasis.” Id. at 47.

“[A]ll natural agencies, as opposed to human activities, constitute acts of God, and not merely those which attain an extraordinary degree of violence or are of very unusual occurrence. The distinction is one of kind and not one of degree. The violence or rarity of the event is relevant only in considering whether it could or could not have been prevented by reasonable care; if it could not, then it is an act of God which will relieve from liability, howsoever trivial or common its cause may have been. If this be correct, then the unpredictable nature of the occurrence will go only to show that the act of God in question was one which the defendant was under no duty to foresee or provide against. It is only in such a case that the act of God will provide a defence.” R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 330 (17th ed. 1977).

ACT OF GRACE

act of grace. An act of clemency; esp., such an act performed at the beginning of a monarch's reign or at some other significant occasion.

ACT OF HONOR

act of honor. Commercial law. A transaction, memorialized in an instrument prepared by a notary public, evidencing a third person's agreement to accept, for the credit of one or more of the parties, a bill that has been protested. • The UCC eliminated this type of transaction.

ACT OF SETTLEMENT

Act of Settlement. Hist. An act of Parliament (12 & 13 Will. 3, ch. 2 (1701)) that resolved the question of royal succession unsettled after the Glorious Revolution of 1688. • The question was resolved by limiting the Crown to Protestant members of the House of Hanover. The Act also provided that the sovereign must be a member of the Church of England, and it established that judges would hold office during good behavior rather than at the will of the sovereign.

ACT-OF-STATE DOCTRINE

act-of-state doctrine. Int'l law. The principle that no nation can judge the legality of a foreign country's sovereign acts within its own territory. • As originally formulated by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1897, the doctrine provides that “the courts of one country will not sit in judgment on the acts of the government of another done within its own territory.” Underhill v. Hernandez, 168 U.S. 250, 252, 18 S.Ct. 83, 84 (1897). The Supreme Court later declared that though the act-of-state doctrine is compelled by neither international law nor the Constitution, it has “institutional underpinnings.” Banco Nacional de Cuba v. Sabbatino, 376 U.S. 398, 423, 84 S.Ct. 923, 937 (1964). [Cases: International Law 10.9. C.J.S. International Law § 34.]

ACT OF SUPREMACY

Act of Supremacy. Hist. A statute that named the English sovereign as supreme head of the Church of England (26 Hen. 8, ch. 1). • The Act was passed in 1534 during Henry VIII's reign and confirmed in 1559 (1 Eliz., ch. 1) to counteract pro-Catholic legislation enacted during the reign of Mary Tudor. In addition to making the monarch both head of state and head of the church, the Act defined some of the monarch's powers as head of the church, such as the power to issue injunctions relating to ecclesiastical affairs.

ACT OF THE LAW

act of the law. See ACT.

ACT OF THE PARTY

ACT OF UNIFORMITY

Act of Uniformity.Hist. Any of several 16th- and 17th-century acts mandating uniform religious practices in England and Ireland; specif., an act requiring the use of the Book of Common Prayer.

ACT OF UNION

Act of Union.Any of several acts of Parliament uniting various parts of Great Britain. • The term applies to (1) the Laws in Wales Act (1535), which united Wales with England and made that principality subject to English law, and (2) the Union with Ireland Act (1800), which abolished the Irish Parliament and incorporated Ireland into the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. It is used loosely in reference to the Union with Scotland in 1707, which was made not by statute but by treaty, approved by separate acts of the parliaments of Scotland and England, which by the treaty dissolved each parliament and created the new state of Great Britain with one parliament, the Parliament of Great Britain.

ACTOR

ACTUS ANIMI

actus animi (ak-t*<<schwa>>s an-<<schwa>>*-m). [Law Latin] Hist. An act of the mind; an intention. See ANIMUS.

“Again, consent, which is essential to all contracts, is an actus animi, and is presumed in all cases where the contract is ex facie regular.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 21–22 (4th ed. 1894).

actus legitimus (ak-t<<schwa>>s l<<schwa>>-jit-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] Hist. An act in the law; a juristic act; specif., an act the performance of which was accompanied by solemn rituals.

ACTUS PROXIMUS

actus proximus (ak-t<<schwa>>s prok-si-m<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] Hist. An immediate act, as distinguished from a preparatory act, esp. in the commission of a crime.

actus reus (ak-t<<schwa>>s ree-<<schwa>>s alsoray-<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin “guilty act”] The wrongful deed that comprises the physical components of a crime and that generally must be coupled with mens rea to establish criminal liability; a forbidden act <the actus reus for theft is the taking of or unlawful control over property without the owner's consent>. — Also termed deed of crime; overt act. Cf. MENS REA. [Cases: Criminal Law 26.C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 44–45, 1110.]

“The word actus connotes a ‘deed,’ a physical result of human conduct. When criminal policy regards such a deed as sufficiently harmful it prohibits it and seeks to prevent its occurrence by imposing a penalty for its commission. It has long been the custom of lawyers to describe a deed so prohibited by law in the words actus reus. Thus actus reus may be defined as ‘Such result of human conduct as the law seeks to prevent.’ It is important to note that the actus reus, which is the result of conduct, and therefore an event, must be distinguished from the conduct which produced the result. For example, in a simple case of murder it is the victim's death (brought about by the conduct of the murderer) which is the actus reus; the mens rea is the murderer's intention to cause that death. In other words, the crime is constituted by the event, and not by the activity (or in certain cases, as we shall see, by the omission to act) which caused the event.” J.W. Cecil Turner, Kenny's Outlines of Criminal Law 13 (16th ed. 1952).

“The phrase ‘deed of crime’ [= actus reus] as so used does not indicate the crime itself but merely one of the ingredients of crime; and this ingredient may be present without any crime at all, just as hydrogen is one of the ingredients of water but may be present without water. The words ‘deed of crime’ are so suggesting of the crime itself, however, that perhaps the Latin phrase ‘actus reus’ is less likely to cause confusion. The actus reus is es-sential to crime but is not sufficient for this purpose without the necessary mens rea, just as mens rea is essential to crime but is insufficient without the necessary actus reus.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 831 (3d ed. 1982).

ADDICENT

addicent (ad-i-sent), n. Roman law. One who transfers something by official authority.

ADDICERE

addicere (<<schwa>>-dis-<<schwa>>r-ee), vb.[Latin] Roman law. To adjudge, allot, or condemn.

ADDICT

addict (a-dikt), n. A person who habitually uses a substance, esp. a narcotic drug. [Cases: Chemical Dependents 1; Controlled Substances 38.C.J.S. Chemical Dependents §§ 2–3.] — addict (<<schwa>>-dikt), vb. — addictive,adj. — addiction,n.

drug addict.A person who is psychologically or physiologically dependent on a narcotic drug.

addict,vb.Roman law. 1. To adjudge (to); to deliver under court order. 2. More broadly, to surrender a thing (to someone else).

ADDICTIO

addictio (<<schwa>>-dik-shee-oh), n.[Latin] Roman law. The awarding by a magistrate of a person or thing to another, as the property of a debtor to a creditor, or as a form of conveyance. — Also termed addiction. Pl. addictiones (<<schwa>>-dik-shee-oh-neeZ).

ADDICTIO IN DIEM

addictio in diem (<<schwa>>-dik-shee-oh in dI-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “assignment for a fixed period” or “postponement to a date”] Roman law. A clause in a contract of sale in which the parties agree that the contract can be terminated if the seller receives a better offer within a specified period. — Also termed in diem addictio.

ADDICTION

addiction. 1. The habitual and intemperate use of a substance, esp. a potentially harmful one such as a narcotic drug. • The usual requisites are (1) an emotional dependence that leads to compulsiveness; (2) an enhanced tolerance of the substance, leading to more potent doses; and (3) physical dependence such that withdrawal symptoms result from deprivation. 2.ADDICTIO.

ADDICTIVE DRUG

addictive drug.See DRUG.

AD DIEM

ad diem (ad dI-<<schwa>>m). [Latin] At a day; at the appointed day.

ADDITION

addition. 1. A structure that is attached to or connected with another building that predates the structure; an extension or annex. • Although some courts have held that an addition is merely an appurtenant structure that might not actually be in physical contact with the other building, most courts hold that there must be physical contact. 2. A title or appellation appended to a person's name to show rank, occupation, or place of residence. • In English law, there are traditionally four kinds of additions: (1) those of estate, such as yeoman, gentleman, or esquire; (2) those of degree (or dignity), such as knight, baron, earl, marquis, or duke; (3) those of trade or occupation, such as scrivener, painter, mason, or carpenter; and (4) those of place of residence, such as London, Bath, or Chester. It was formerly required by the statute of additions (1 Hen. 5, ch. 5) that original writs and indictments state a person's addition, but the practice has long since been abolished.

ADDITIONAL CLAIMS AFTER ALLOWANCE

additional claims after allowance. Patents. Claims submitted for the first time by amendment after the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office has informed the applicant of the patent application's allowance. • Once a notice of allowance has been issued, the applicant may not by right submit additional claims. But in some circumstances, such as when the applicant seeks to add only dependent claims, the supervisory examiner has authority to enter an amendment containing additional claims after allowance but on or before the date when the issue fee is paid. See amendment after allowance under PATENT-APPLICATION AMENDMENT . [Cases: Patents 109. C.J.S. Patents §§ 152–155.]

ADDITIONAL-CONSIDERATION RULE

additional-consideration rule. Employment law. An exception to the employment-at-will principle, whereby an employee who does not have a written contract but who undertakes substantial hardship in addition to the normal job duties — as by relocating to a different city based on oral assurances of job security — can maintain a breach-of-contract claim if the employer does not fulfill its agreement. [Cases: Master and Servant 3(1), 4.C.J.S. Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 22–26, 42.]

ADEMPTIO

ademptio (<<schwa>>-demp-shee-oh), n. [Latin] Roman law. Ademption. • The term referred to the revocation of a legacy under certain circumstances, as when the item bequeathed no longer existed or when the testator no longer owned the item. The ablative form ademptions means “by ademption.” Pl. ademptions (<<schwa>>-demp-shee-oh-nee).

ADEMPTION

ademption (<<schwa>>-demp-sh<<schwa>>n), n. Wills & estates. The destruction or extinction of a testamentary gift by reason of a bequeathed asset's ceasing to be part of the estate at the time of the testator's death; a beneficiary's forfeiture of a legacy or bequest that is no longer operative. • There are two theories of ademption. Under the identity theory of ademption, a devise of a specific piece of property will fail if that property is not a part of the testator's estate upon his or her death. Under the intent theory of ademption, by contrast, when a specific devise is no longer in the testator's estate at the time of his or her death, the devisee will receive a gift of equal value if it can be proved that the testator did not intend the gift to be adeemed. The intent theory has been codified in § 2-606 of the 1990 Uniform Probate Code. — Also termed extinguishment of legacy. Cf. ABATEMENT; ADVANCEMENT(4); LAPSE(2). [Cases: Wills 764–771. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1742–1761, 1770–1773.] — adeem (<<schwa>>-deem), vb. — adeemed, adempted,adj.

ademption by extinction.An ademption that occurs because the unique property that is the subject of a specific bequest has been sold, given away, or destroyed, or is not otherwise in existence at the time of the testator's death. [Cases: Wills 767–768. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1749–1761.]

ademption by satisfaction.An ademption that occurs because the testator, while alive, has already given property to the beneficiary in lieu of the testamentary gift. [Cases: Wills 766. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1743–1744, 1753.]

adeo (ad-ee-oh). [Latin] So; as.

ADEQUACY OF DISCLOSURE

adequacy of disclosure.Patents. Satisfaction of the statutory requirements that the specification in a patent application (1) gives enough detailed information to enable one skilled in the art to make and use the claimed invention (the enablement requirement); (2) discloses the best way the inventor knows to make and use the invention (the best-mode requirement); and (3) shows that the inventor was in full possession of the claimed invention on the application's filing date (the written-description requirement). • A patent that fails to meet any one of these requirements may be rejected under 35 USCA § 112. Any issued patent with an inadequate disclosure is invalid, although the challenger has to overcome the presumption of validity. — Also termed sufficiency of disclosure. See ENABLEMENT REQUIREMENT; BEST-MODE REQUIREMENT. [Cases: Patents 99.C.J.S. Patents § 139.]

ADEQUACY TEST

ADEQUATE PROTECTION

adequate protection.Bankruptcy. The protection afforded to a holder of a secured claim against the debtor, such as a periodic cash payment or an additional lien <the bankruptcy court permitted the lender to foreclose on the debtor's home after finding a lack of adequate protection of the lender's property interest>.11 USCA § 361. [Cases: Bankruptcy 3062.C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 208.]

“Bankruptcy intends to safeguard secured creditors’ encumbrances, but the stay threatens them by preventing the secured creditors from foreclosing or taking other actions to apply the property's value against the secured debt. Bankruptcy aims to guard against this threat by ordering relief ... for lack of adequate protection of the secured interest.” David G. Epstein et al., Bankruptcy § 3-27, at 140 (1993).

AD FACTUM PRAESTANDUM

ad factum praestandum (ad fak-t<<schwa>>m pree-stan-d<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin “for the performance of a particular act”] Scots law. An obligation to perform an act other than paying money; an obligation that must be strictly fulfilled (such as to hand over a vase sold).

“In popular language almost all obligations may be said to be of this class, but there are obligations of a peculiar character which alone are denoted by the legal signification of this phrase. The obligation of a debtor is clearly one for the performance of a certain act, namely, the payment of his debt; but a decree at the instance of his creditor would not be termed a decree ad factum praestandum. An obligation ad factum praestandum is one for the performance of an act within the power of the obligant ....” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 27 (4th ed. 1894).

AD FEODI FIRMAM

ad feodi firmam (ad fee-<<schwa>>-dīf<<schwa>>r-m<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] To fee farm. See FEE FARM.

ADHERE

adhere,vb.1. (Of one house in a bicameral legislature) to reject the other house's insistence on a difference in legislation that has passed both houses, without requesting a conference. Cf. INSIST ON.

“When both houses have insisted [on differing views about an amendment] without a request for conference, it is also in order to move to adhere. Adoption of a motion to adhere represents an unyielding attitude of the adopting house. It is unparliamentary for an adhering house to request a conference; however, the other house may continue to insist and request a conference. It is in order for an adhering house to recede from its adherence and agree to a conference.” National Conference of State Legislatures, Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure § 768, at 556–57 (2000).

ADJOURN

adjourn (<<schwa>>-j<<schwa>>rn), vb. Parliamentary law. To end or postpone (a proceeding). Cf. RECESS(2).

“A motion to recess suspends the current meeting until a later time; the unqualified motion to adjourn terminates the meeting. When an assembly reconvenes following a recess, it resumes the meeting at the point where it was interrupted by the motion to recess. When an assembly reconvenes following an adjournment, it begins an entirely new meeting, starting with the first step in the regular order of business.” Alice Sturgis, The Standard Code of Parliamentary Procedure 76 (4th ed. 2001).

adjourn sine die (sI-nee [or sin-ay] dI-ee). [Latin “without date”] To end a deliberative assembly's or court's session without setting a time to reconvene. — Also termed adjourn without day. Cf. RISE(4).

ADJOURNMENT

adjournment (<<schwa>>-j<<schwa>>rn-m<<schwa>>nt), n. 1. The act of adjourning; specif., a putting off of a court session or other meeting or assembly until a later time. See ADJOURN.

adjournment sine die (<<schwa>>-j<<schwa>>rn-m<<schwa>>nt sI-nee [or sin-ay] dI-ee). The ending of a deliberative assembly's or court's session without setting a time to reconvene. — Also termed adjournment without day.

“The term adjournment sine die (or adjournment without day) usually refers to the close of a session of several meetings: (a) where the adjournment dissolves the assembly — as in a series of mass meetings or in an annual or biennial convention for which the delegates are separately chosen for each convention; or (b) where, unless called into special session, the body will not be convened again until a time prescribed by the bylaws or constitution — as in the case of a session of a legislature.” Henry M. Robert, Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised § 8, at 81 (10th ed. 2000).

conditional adjournment. An adjournment that does not schedule another meeting, but provides for reconvening the assembly at an officer's or board's call or under other defined circumstances.

2. The period or interval between adjourning and reconvening. [Cases: Criminal Law 649; Trial 26. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 1155; Trial § 113.]

ADMINISTRATIVE INTERPRETATION

administrative interpretation. See INTERPRETATION.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW

administrative law. The law governing the organization and operation of administrative agencies (including executive and independent agencies) and the relations of administrative agencies with the legislature, the executive, the judiciary, and the public. • Administrative law is divided into three parts: (1) the statutes endowing agencies with powers and establishing rules of substantive law relating to those powers; (2) the body of agency-made law, consisting of administrative rules, regulations, reports, opinions containing findings of fact, and orders; and (3) the legal principles governing the acts of public agents when those acts conflict with private rights. [Cases: Administrative Law and Procedure 1. C.J.S. Public Administrative Law and Procedure § 2.]

“Administrative law deals with the field of legal control exercised by law-administering agencies other than courts, and the field of control exercised by courts over such agencies.” Felix Frankfurter, The Task of Administrative Law, 75 U. Pa. L. Rev. 614, 615 (1927).

“[A]dministrative law is to labor law, securities regulation, and tax what civil procedure is to contracts, torts, and commercial law. Administrative law studies the way government institutions do things. It is therefore the pro-cedural component to any practice that affects or is affected by government decisionmakers other than just the courts. Its study goes beyond traditional questions; it explores a variety of procedures and it develops ideas about decisionmaking and decisionmakers.” 1 Charles H. Koch, Administrative Law and Practice § 1.2, at 2 (2d ed. 1997).

international administrative law. 1. The internal law and rules of international organizations. 2. administrator durante minore aetate (d[y]uu-ran-tee mi-nor-ee ee-tay-tee). An administrator who acts during the minority of a person who either is named by the testator as the estate's executor or would be appointed as the estate's administrator but for the person's youth.

administrator pendente lite. See special administrator.

administrator with the will annexed. See administrator cum testamento annexo.

ancillary administrator (an-s*<<schwa>>*-ler-ee). A court-appointed administrator who oversees the distribution of the part of a decedent's estate located in a jurisdiction other than where the decedent was domiciled (the place of the main administration). [Cases: Executors and Administrators 518. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators § 916.]

domiciliary administrator. A person appointed to administer an estate in the state where the decedent was domiciled at death.

foreign administrator. An administrator appointed in another jurisdiction. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 517. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators § 915.]

general administrator. A person appointed to administer an intestate decedent's entire estate.

public administrator. A state-appointed officer who administers intestate estates that are not administered by the decedent's relatives. • This officer's right to administer is usu. subordinate to the rights of creditors, but in a few jurisdictions the creditors' rights are subordinate. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 24.]

special administrator. 1. A person appointed to administer only a specific part of an intestate decedent's estate. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 22. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators §§ 951–952, 954–956.] 2. A person appointed to serve as administrator of an estate solely because of an emergency or an unusual situation, such as a will contest. — Also termed (in sense 2) administrator pendente lite.

ADMIRALTY LAW

admiralty law. 1. ADMIRALTY(2), 2. ADMIRALTY(3).

ADMISSIBILITY

admissibility (ad-mis-<<schwa>>-bil-<<schwa>>-tee), n. The quality or state of being allowed to be entered into evidence in a hearing, trial, or other proceeding. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2011; Trial 43. C.J.S. Trial § 162.]

“ ‘Admissibility’ can best be thought of as a concept consisting of two quite different aspects: disclosure to the trier of fact and express or implied permission to use as ‘evidence.’ If we think of admissibility as a question of disclosure or nondisclosure, it is usually easy to say whether or not an item of evidence has been admitted. When we consider the question of permissible use, the concept seems much more complex. In the first place, evidence may be ‘admissible’ for one purpose but not for another.... In the second place, questions of the permissible use of evidence do not arise only at the time of disclosure to the trier of fact. The court may have to consider admissibility in deciding whether to give the jury a limiting instruction, whether or not an opponent’s rebuttal evidence is relevant, and whether or not counsel can argue to the jury that the evidence proves a particular point.” 22 Charles Alan Wright & Kenneth W. Graham Jr., Federal Practice and Procedure § 5193, at 184 (1978).

conditional admissibility. The evidentiary rule that when a piece of evidence is not itself admissible, but is admissible if certain other facts make it relevant, the evidence becomes admissible on condition that counsel later introduce the connecting facts. • If counsel does not satisfy this condition, the opponent is entitled to have the conditionally admitted piece of evidence struck from the record, and to have the judge instruct the jury to disregard it. [Cases: Criminal Law 672, 681; Federal Civil Procedure 2014; Trial 51. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 1217; Trial § 177.]

curative admissibility. The rule that an inadmissible piece of evidence may be admitted if offered to cure or counteract the effect of some similar piece of the opponent’s evidence that itself should not have been admitted. [Cases: Criminal Law 396; Evidence 155. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 758; Evidence §§ 248–250.]

limited admissibility. The principle that testimony or exhibits may be admitted into evidence for a restricted purpose. • Common examples are admitting prior contradictory testimony to impeach a witness but not to establish the truth, and admitting evidence against one party but not another. The trial court must, upon request, instruct the jury properly about the applicable limits when admitting the evidence. Fed. R. Evid. 105. [Cases: Criminal Law 385; Trial 54. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 656, 753; Trial § 179.]

multiple admissibility. The evidentiary rule that, although a piece of evidence is inadmissible under one rule for the purpose given in offering it, it is nevertheless admissible if relevant and offered for some other purpose not forbidden by the rules of evidence. [Cases: Criminal Law 385; Trial 54. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 656, 753; Trial § 179.]

ADMISSIBLE

admissible (ad-mis-<<schwa>>-b*<<schwa>>*l), adj. 1. Capable of being legally admitted; allowable; permissible <admissible evidence>. 2. Worthy of gaining entry or being admitted .

ADMISSIBLE EVIDENCE

admissible evidence. See EVIDENCE.

ADMISSION

admission (ad-mish-*<<schwa>>*n), n. 1. Any statement or assertion made by a party to a case and offered against that party; an acknowledgment that facts are true. Cf. CONFESSIO. [Cases: Criminal Law 405; Evidence 200–205. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 877; Evidence §§ 293, 340, 364–467, 469–471.]

admission against interest. A person's statement acknowledging a fact that is harmful to the person's position as a litigant. • An admission against interest must be made either by a litigant or by one in privity with or occupying the same legal position as the litigant; as an exception to the hearsay rule, it is admissible whether or not the person is available as a witness. Fed. R. Evid. 801(d)(2). A declaration against interest, by contrast, is made by a nonlitigant who is not in privity with a litigant; a declaration against interest is also admissible as an exception to the hearsay rule, but only when the declarant is unavailable as a witness. Fed. R. Evid. 804(b)(3). See declaration against interest under DECLARATION(6).

admission by employee or agent. An admission made by a party-opponent's agent during employment and concerning a matter either within the scope of the agency or authorized by the party-opponent. [Cases: Criminal Law 410; Evidence 237–245. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 890–891; Evidence §§ 366, 433–442, 444–450, 454.]

admission by party-opponent. An opposing party's admission, which is not considered hearsay if it is offered against that party and is (1) the party's own statement, in either an individual or a representative capacity; (2) a statement of which the party has manifested an adoption or belief in its truth; (3) a statement by one authorized by the party to make such a statement; (4) a statement by the party's agent concerning a matter within the scope of the agency or employment and made during the existence of the relationship; or (5) a statement by a coconspirator of the party during the course of and in furtherance of the conspiracy. Fed. R. Evid. 801(d)(2). [Cases: Criminal Law 405–410; Evidence 221–253. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 877, 880, 882–884, 887–895, 905, 932, 936–940, 942–946; Evidence §§ 293, 364, 366, 410.]

admission by silence. The failure of a party to speak after another party's assertion of fact that, if untrue, would naturally compel a person to deny the statement. [Cases: Criminal Law 407; admission in judicio. See judicial admission.

adoptive admission. An action by a party that indicates approval of a statement made by another, and thereby acceptance that the statement is true. [Cases: Criminal Law 407; Evidence 220. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 887; Evidence §§ 390–393.]

extrajudicial admission. An admission made outside court proceedings.

implied admission. An admission reasonably inferable from a party's action or statement, or a party's failure to act or speak. — Also termed tacit admission. [Cases: Evidence 265(12). C.J.S. Evidence § 471.]

incidental admission. An admission made in some other connection or involved in the admission of some other fact.

incriminating admission. An admission of facts tending to establish guilt. [Cases: Criminal Law 405. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 877.]

judicial admission. A formal waiver of proof that relieves an opposing party from having to prove the admitted fact and bars the party who made the admission from disputing it. — Also termed solemn admission; admission in judicio; true admission. [Cases: Criminal Law 406(4); Evidence 206, 265(7). C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 882–884; Evidence §§ 364, 469, 472, 475–476.]

quasi-admission. An act or utterance, usu. extrajudicial, that creates an inconsistency with and discredits, to a greater or lesser degree, a present claim or other evidence of the person creating the inconsistency. [C.J.S. Evidence §§ 293, 340, 364–467, 469–471.]

solemn admission. See judicial admission.

tacit admission. See implied admission.

true admission. See judicial admission.

2. Acceptance of a lawyer by the established licensing authority, such as a state bar association, as a member of the practicing bar, usu. after the lawyer passes a bar examination and supplies adequate character references <admission to the bar>. • The entry of a lawyer on the rolls of an integrated bar, usu. after the fulfillment of two prerequisites: graduating from law school and passing a state bar examination. — Also termed admission to practice law. [Cases: Attorney and Client 7. C.J.S. Attorney and Client §§ 19–22.]

admission on motion. Permanent admission of a lawyer who is in good standing in the bar of a different state without the need for a full bar examination. [Cases: Attorney and Client 10. C.J.S. Attorney and Client §§ 26–28.]

admission pro hac vice (proh hak vi-see or proh hak vee-chay). Temporary admission of an out-of-jurisdiction lawyer to practice before a court in a specified case or set of cases. See PRO HAC VICE. [Cases: Attorney and Client 10. C.J.S. Attorney and Client §§ 26–28.]

3.Patents. A concession or representation by a patent applicant that an activity, knowledge, or a publication is prior art. • An admission requires the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office examiner to consider the relevant item as prior art, even if it does not technically qualify as prior art. — Also termed admission of prior art. [Cases: Patents 51(1). C.J.S. Patents §§ 31–33, 39.]

ad omissa vel male appretiata (ad oh-mis-<<schwa>> vel mal-ee <<schwa>>-pree-shee-ay-t*<<schwa>>*). [Law Latin] Scots law. Concerning things omitted or undervalued. • The phrase appeared in reference to an executor's duty to include in an estate's inventory previously omitted items or to reevaluate undervalued items in the estate's inventory.

ADOPTABILITY

adoptability, n. Family law. 1. A child's availability to be adopted, esp. by reason of all legal impediments having been removed. 2. The likelihood of a child's being adopted; a prospective adoptee's desirability from the prospective parents' point of view. — adoptable, adj.

ADOPTED CHILD

adopted child. See CHILD.

ADOPTEE

adoptee. A person who has become the legal child of one or two nonbiological parents. — Also termed adopted child.

ADOPTION

adoption, n. 1. Family law. The creation of a parent-child relationship by judicial order between two parties who usu. are unrelated; the relation of parent and child created by law between persons who are not in fact parent and child. • This relationship is brought about only after a determination that the child is an orphan or has been abandoned, or that the parents' parental rights have been terminated by court order. Adoption creates a parent-child relationship between the adopted child and the adoptive parents with all the rights, privileges, and responsibilities that attach to that relationship, though there may be agreed exceptions. There is a distinction between adoption and legitimation, and between adoption and fostering. Adoption usu. refers to an act between persons unrelated by blood; legitimation refers to an act between persons related by blood. Universally, a decree of adoption confers legitimate status on the adopted child. See adopted child under CHILD. Cf. LEGITIMATION(2). [Cases: Adoption 1. C.J.S. Adoption of Persons §§ 2-4.]

“Although adoption is found in many societies, ancient and modern, primitive and civilized, and is recognized by the civil law, it was unknown at common law. Accordingly, adoption is entirely a creature of statute ....” Elias Clark et al., Gratuitous Transfers: Wills, Intestate Succession, Trusts, Gifts, Future Interests, and Estate and Gift Taxation Cases and Materials 73-74 (4th ed. 1999).

adoption by estoppel. 1. An equitable adoption of a child by one who promises or acts in a way that precludes the person and his or her estate from denying adopted status to the child. 2. An equitable decree of adoption treating as done that which ought to have been done. • Such a decree is entered when no final decree of adoption has already been obtained, even though the principal has acted as if an adoption has been achieved. A petitioner must show an agreement of adoption, relinquishment of parental authority by the child's biological parents, assumption of parental responsibility by the foster parents, and a de facto relationship of parent and child over a substantial period. Such a claim typically occurs when an adoptive parent has died intestate, and the child tries to be named an heir. In a minority of states, adoption by estoppel may be a basis for allowing a child to participate in a wrongful-death action. — Also termed equitable adoption; virtual adoption. See ESTOPPEL(1).3. See de facto adoption. [Cases: Adoption 6. C.J.S. Adoption of Persons §§ 25–40.]

adult adoption.The adoption of one adult by another. • Many jurisdictions do not allow adult adoptions. Those that do often impose restrictions, as by requiring consent of the person to be adopted, but may not look too closely at the purpose for which adoption is sought.

agency adoption.An adoption in which parental rights are terminated and legal custody is relinquished to an agency that finds and approves the adoptive parents. • An agency adoption can be either public or private. In all states, adoption agencies must be licensed, and in most they are nonprofit entities. Parents who voluntarily place a child for adoption most commonly use a private agency. Cf. private adoption.

black-market adoption. 1. An illegal adoption in which an intermediary (a broker) receives payment for his or her services. 2. Baby-selling.

closed adoption.An adoption in which the biological parent relinquishes his or her parental rights and surrenders the child to an unknown person or persons; an adoption in which there is no disclosure of the identity of the birth parents, adopting parent or parents, or child. • Adoptions by stepparents, blood relatives, and foster parents are exceptions to the no-disclosure requirement. — Also termed confidential adoption. Cf. open adoption; cooperative adoption.

cooperative adoption.A process in which the birth parents and adoptive parents negotiate to reach a voluntary agreement about the degree and type of continuing contact after adoption, including direct visitation or more limited arrangements such as communication by telephone or mail, the exchange of either identifying or non-identifying information, and other forms of contact. Cf. open adoption; closed adoption.

de facto adoption.An adoption that falls short of the statutory requirements in a particular state. • The adoption agreement may ripen to a de jure adoption when the statutory formalities have been met or if a court finds that the requirements for adoption by estoppel have been met. — Also termed adoption by estoppel. [Cases: Adoption 6. C.J.S. Adoption of Persons §§ 25–40.]

direct-placement adoption.See private adoption.

embryo adoption.Slang. The receipt of a frozen embryo that is implanted into a recipient's womb. • Donors must waive all parental rights before the recipients of the embryo assume legal ownership or custody. The process is not considered to be a legal adoption because American law does not treat embryos as children.

equitable adoption. See adoption by estoppel.

gray-market adoption. See private adoption.

identified adoption. See private adoption.

independent adoption. See private adoption.

intercountry adoption. See international adoption.

international adoption. An adoption in which parents domiciled in one nation travel to a foreign country to adopt a child there, usu. in accordance with the laws of the child's nation. • International adoptions first became popular after World War II and escalated after the Korean Conflict because of the efforts of humanitarian programs working to find homes for children left orphaned by the wars. More recently, prospective parents have turned to international adoption as the number of healthy babies domestically available for adoption has steadily declined. — Also termed transnational adoption; intercountry adoption. See MULTIETHNIC PLACEMENT ACT OF 1994.

interracial adoption. See transracial adoption.

interstate adoption. An adoption in which the prospective parents live in one state and the child lives in another state. See INTERSTATE COMPACT ON THE PLACEMENT OF CHILDREN.

joint adoption. An adoption in which the prospective parents apply as a couple and are approved or rejected as a couple, as opposed to filing separate and individual applications to adopt a child. • Although the term most often applies to adoption by a married couple, it also applies to an adoption petition by two unmarried partners who are adopting a child.

open adoption. An adoption in which the biological mother (sometimes with the biological father) chooses the adoptive parents and in which the child often continues to have a post-adoption relationship with his or her biological family. • Typically the birth parents meet the adoptive parents and participate in the separation and placement process. The birth parents relinquish all legal, moral, and nurturing rights over the child, but usu. retain the right to continuing contact and to knowledge of the child's welfare and location. Cf. closed adoption; cooperative adoption.

posthumous adoption. An adoption that becomes legally final after the death of either an adoptive parent or the adopted child. • Few states recognize posthumous adoptions; most require all parties to an adoption to be alive at the time the final judgment is rendered.

private adoption. An adoption that occurs independently between the biological mother (and sometimes the biological father) and the adoptive parents without the involvement of an agency. • A private adoption is usu. arranged by an intermediary such as a lawyer, doctor, or counselor. Legal custody — though sometimes not physical custody — remains with the biological parent or parents until the termination and adoption are complete. — Also termed private-placement adoption; direct-placement adoption; direct adoption; gray-market adoption; identified adoption; independent adoption. Cf. agency adoption.

private-placement adoption. See private adoption.

pseudo-stepparent adoption. See second-parent adoption.

second-parent adoption. An adoption by an unmarried cohabiting partner of a child's legal parent, not involving the termination of a legal parent's rights; esp., an adoption in which a lesbian, gay man, or unmarried heterosexual person adopts his or her partner's biological or adoptive child. See Restatement (Third) of Property: Wills and Other Donative Transfers § 2.5 cmt. i. • Although not all jurisdictions recognize second-parent adoption, the practice is becoming more widely accepted. See In re Adoption of B.L.V.B., 628 A.2d 1271 (Vt. 1993); In re Adoption of Tammy, 619 N.E.2d 315 (Mass. 1993); In re Adoption of Evan, 583 N.Y.S.2d 997 (Sur. Ct. 1992). — Also termed de facto stepparent adoption; pseudo-stepparent adoption. Cf. stepparent adoption.

stepparent adoption. The adoption of a child by a stepfather or stepmother. • Stepparent adoptions are the most common adoptions in the United States. Cf. second-parent adoption.

transnational adoption. See international adoption.

transracial adoption. An adoption in which at least one adoptive parent is of a race different from that of the adopted child. • Under federal law, child-placement agencies may not use race as a factor in approving adoptions. 42 USCA § 5115a. — Also termed interracial adoption. See MULTIETHNIC PLACEMENT ACT OF 1994.

virtual adoption. See adoption by estoppel.

wrongful adoption. See WRONGFUL ADOPTION.

2. Roman law. The legal process of creating a parent-child relationship with a young person who is still under the power of another father. • The adopted person became part of the new paterfamilias's agnatic family with exactly the same standing as children (or grandchildren) by blood. This was later modified by Justinian. 3. Contracts. The process by which a person agrees to assume a contract previously made for that person's benefit, such as a newly formed corporation's acceptance of a preincorporation contract. Cf. ADROGATION. [Cases: Corporations 448(2). C.J.S. Corporations §§ 70-71, 73.] 4. Trademarks. The mental act necessary to acquire legal rights in a trademark, consisting of knowledge and intention to use a trademark on or in connection with a product or service in commerce. [Cases: Trade Regulation 63. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 31, 35, 37.] 5. Parliamentary law. A deliberative assembly's approval or endorsement by vote of a motion or report. — Also termed acceptance; consent; passage; ratification. — adopt, vb. — adoptive, adj.

ADOPTION AGENCY

adoption agency. A licensed establishment where a biological parent can voluntarily surrender a child for adoption. See agency adoption under ADOPTION.

ADOPTION AND SAFE FAMILIES ACT

Adoption and Safe Families Act. A 1997 federal law that requires states to provide safe and permanent homes for abused and neglected children within shorter periods than those required by earlier state and federal laws. • The primary focus is on the safety and well-being of the child, in contrast to previously paramount rights of the parents. The ASFA signaled a dramatic shift in the philosophy of child-protection proceedings that had controlled since 1980 under the Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act. — Abbr. ASFA. See ADOPTION ASSISTANCE AND CHILD WELFARE ACT; FOSTER-CARE DRIFT.

ADOPTION ASSISTANCE AND CHILD WELFARE ACT

Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act. A 1980 federal statute whose purpose was to force states to use reasonable efforts (1) to avoid removing children from their homes, (2) to reunite families when children had been removed because of abuse or neglect, and (3) when reunification failed, to terminate parental rights and place the children in permanent homes. 42 USCA §§ 620 et seq.; §§ 670 et seq. • The Act provided funds for foster-care placement, Child Protective Services, family preservation and reunification, and foster-care reform to states complying with the Act. Its aim was to prevent the unnecessary removal of children from homes and to hasten the return of children in foster care to their families. It has now been essentially overruled in philosophy by the 1997 enactment of the Adoption and Safe Families Act. See ADOPTION AND SAFE FAMILIES ACT.

ADOPTION-ASSISTANCE PLAN

adoption-assistance plan. An employer-sponsored program that provides financial assistance to employees for adoption-related expenses.

ADOPTION BY ESTOPPEL

adoption by estoppel. See ADOPTION(1).

ADOPTION BY REFERENCE

adoption by reference. See INCORPORATION BY REFERENCE.

ADOPTION-REGISTRY STATUTE

adoption-registry statute. A law that provides for the release of adoption information if the biological parent, the adoptive parent, and the adoptee (after he or she reaches a certain statutorily prescribed age) all officially record their desire for its release. — Also termed voluntary-registry law.

active adoption-registry statute. A registry statute that authorizes a state authority to seek out parties' desires to obtain or release adoption information when one party expresses a desire for that information.

passive adoption-registry statute. A registry statute allowing parties to register their desires for release of adoption information after an adopted child reaches a specified age.

ADULTERIUM

adulterium (ad-<<schwa>>l-teer-ee-<<schwa>>m), n.[Latin] Roman & civil law. 1. The crime of adultery. 2. A punishment imposed for the offense of adultery.

“Adulterium.... [A]dultery ... was considered a criminal offense only when committed by a married woman (adultera) .... [Before the Lex Julia de adulteriis coercendis of 18 B.C.], customary law admitted only immediate revenge of the husband .... Under the Julian statute, the father of the adulterous woman was permitted to kill her and her partner (adulter) if he surprised them in his or her husband's house. The husband's rights were rather limited; he was forced to divorce her, for otherwise he made himself guilty of matchmaking [pandering] .... Besides, he or his father had to accuse the adulteress of adulterium which now became a public crime prosecuted before a criminal court." Adolf Berger, Encyclopedic Dictionary of Roman Law 352 (1953).

ADULTERY

adultery (<<schwa>>-d<<schwa>>l-t<<schwa>>-ree), n. Voluntary sexual intercourse between a married person and someone other than the person's spouse. • In many jurisdictions, adultery is a crime, but it is rarely prosecuted. In states that still permit fault divorce, proof of adultery is a ground on which a divorce may be granted. A court may also use proof of adultery as a reason to reduce the offending spouse's marital-property award in a property division. Judges traditionally viewed adultery as a reason for denying the offending spouse primary custody of a child in a child-custody dispute. But today, only the deleterious effect of immoral behavior on the child is typically considered relevant. — Formerly also termed spouse-breach; avowtry. Cf. FORNICATION; INFIDELITY. [Cases: Adultery 1.C.J.S. Adultery §§ 2–8.] — adulterous,adj. — adulterer, adulteress,n.

“Returning to the question of adultery, evidently this word cannot be interpreted today in precisely the meaning it bore for the Old Testament patriarchs. On Old Testament principles one may marry several wives, even two sisters; and a married man may and should beget children for his dead brother. When Sarah found herself childless, she advised her husband Abraham to go in unto her maid, so that she might obtain children by the maid. Such acts, though evidently not adulterous within the original meaning of the Decalogue, would be regarded as adulterous by the laws and customs of Western society at the present day.” Glanville Williams, The Sanctity of Life and the Criminal Law 134 (1957).

“If a statute provided for the punishment of adultery without definition of the term, this gave rise to a difficulty as to the meaning of the word. In England, (1) the common-law meaning of the word was sex with another's wife, but this was not a common-law offense; (2) as the name of an offense it referred to sex by a married person with one other than the spouse, but that was recognized only in the ecclesiastical court.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 455 (3d ed. 1982).

“In some states, sexual intercourse between two married persons, who are not married to each other, constitutes adultery on the part of both; sexual intercourse between a married person and an unmarried person likewise constitutes adultery on the part of both. In other states, adultery can be committed only by a married person. Thus, sexual intercourse between two married persons, who are not married to each other, constitutes adultery on the part of both; but if only one party to the sexual intercourse is married, the intercourse constitutes adultery on the part of the married person and fornication on the part of the unmarried person. In other states, sexual intercourse constitutes adultery only where the woman is the married party. Thus, sexual intercourse between a married woman and a married man other than her spouse or sexual intercourse between a married woman and an unmarried man constitutes adultery on the part of both; but if the woman is unmarried, neither party is guilty of adultery even if the man is married.” 2 Charles E. Torcia, Wharton's Criminal Law § 211, at 531 (15th ed. 1994).

double adultery.Adultery between persons who are both married to other persons. [Cases: Adultery 1. C.J.S. Adultery §§ 2–8.]

incestuous adultery.Adultery between relatives; adultery committed by persons who are closely related. [Cases: Adultery 1; Incest 3. C.J.S. Adultery §§ 2–8; Incest§ 3.]

open and notorious adultery.Archaic. Adultery in which the parties reside together publicly, as if married, and the community is generally aware of the living arrangement and the fact that the couple is not married. [Cases: Marriage 53. C.J.S. Marriage § 45.]

single adultery.Adultery in which only one of the persons is married. [Cases: Adultery 1. C.J.S. Adultery §§ 2–8.]

advance directive. 1. A document that takes effect upon one's incompetency and designates a surrogate decision-maker for healthcare matters. • The Uniform Health-Care Decision Act (1993) states that the power of attorney for healthcare must be in writing and signed by the principal. Unless otherwise stated, the authority is effective only upon a determination that the principal lacks capacity, and it ceases to be effective once the principal regains his capacity. The agent must make decisions in accordance with the principal's relevant instructions, if there are any, or in the principal's best interests. — Also termed power of attorney for healthcare; healthcare proxy. See POWER OF ATTORNEY; UNIFORM HEALTH-CARE DECISION ACT. 2. A legal document explaining one's wishes about medical treatment if one becomes incompetent or unable to communicate. — Often shortened to directive. — Also termed medical directive; physician's directive; written directive. ATVEF.

ADVANCEMENT

advancement, n. A payment or gift to an heir (esp. a child) during one's lifetime as an advance share of one's estate, with the intention of reducing or extinguishing or diminishing the heir's claim to the estate under intestacy laws. • In some jurisdictions, the donor's intent is irrelevant if all the statutory elements of an advancement are present. A few jurisdictions define the relationship between the donor and donee to include inter vivos transfers between ancestors and descendants. Cf. ADEMPTION. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 93–118; Wills 757–762. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 69, 95–111, 116; Wills §§ 1774–1790.] — advance, vb.

“It is sometimes difficult to know whether money which a parent has given to his child is an advancement or not, but, generally speaking, an advancement is money which is given either to start a child in life or to provide for him, and does not include casual payments, so that a child is not bound to account for every sum received from a parent.” G.C. Cheshire, Modern Law of Real Property 784 (3d ed. 1933).

ADVANCE PAYMENT

advance payment. See PAYMENT.

ADVANCE PREMIUM

bilateral advance pricing agreement. An advance pricing agreement made between a company and two tax authorities.

multilateral advance pricing agreement. An advance pricing agreement made between a company and more than two tax authorities.

unilateral advance pricing agreement. An advance pricing agreement made between a company and one tax authority. • This does not necessarily allow a company to avoid double taxation. A tax authority that is not a party to the agreement is not bound by the transfer-pricing method specified in the agreement.

ADVANCE SHEETS

advance sheets. A softcover pamphlet containing recently reported opinions by a court or set of courts. • Advance sheets are published during the interim between an opinion's announcement and its inclusion in a bound volume of law reports. Cf. slip opinion (1) under OPINION; REPORT(3). [Cases: Courts 103; Reports 1. C.J.S. Courts §§ 170, 173–174, 176; Reports §§ 2–3.]

“As a bound volume of any series of reports is not published until sufficient matter has accumulated to fill it, it necessarily results in the holding of the first decisions rendered after the preceding volume has been issued, until there are enough more to justify the publication of the next volume. Even after enough material has been accumulated to fill a volume, there is necessarily considerable time consumed in its printing, indexing, and binding before the book is ready for delivery. Hence, it is customary, as soon as a part of the volume has come from the press, to issue such part in pamphlet form; and these paper-bound copies are known as ‘advance sheets.’ They are portions of the next volume issued in advance of final publication, being paged as they will appear in the bound volume. Advance sheets enable the enterprising lawyer to obtain the decisions right down almost to the date of his search for the law.” Frank Hall Childs, Where and How to Find the Law 21 (1922).

[Cases: Bankruptcy 2156. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 26.]

adversary system.A procedural system, such as the Anglo-American legal system, involving active and unhin-dered parties contesting with each other to put forth a case before an independent decision-maker. — Also termed adversary procedure; (in criminal cases) accusatorial system, accusatory procedure. Cf. INQUISITORIAL SYSTEM.

“The term adversary system sometimes characterizes an entire legal process, and sometimes it refers only to criminal procedure. In the latter instance, it is often used interchangeably with an old expression of continental European origin, ‘accusatorial procedure,’ and is juxtaposed to the ‘inquisitorial,’ or ‘nonadversary,’ process. There is no precise understanding, however, of the institutions and arrangements denoted by these expressions.” Mirjan Damaska, “Adversary Procedure,” in 1 Encyclopedia of Crime and Justice 24, 24–25 (Sanford H. Kadish ed., 1983).

ADVERSE AUTHORITY

adverse authority. See AUTHORITY(4).

ADVERSE-DOMINATION DOCTRINE

adverse-domination doctrine. The equitable principle that the statute of limitations on a breach-of-fiduciary-duty claim against officers and directors (esp. a corporation's action against its own officers and directors) is tolled as long as a corporate plaintiff is controlled by the alleged wrongdoers. • The statute is tolled until a majority of the disinterested directors discover or are put on notice of the claim against the wrongdoers. The purpose of this doctrine is to prevent a director or officer from successfully hiding wrongful or fraudulent conduct during the limitations period. FDIC v. Shrader & York, 991 F.2d 216, 227 (5th Cir. 1993). This doctrine is available only to benefit the corporation. — Also termed adverse dominion; doctrine of adverse domination. two-thirds majority of the Senate for ratification. As to public officers, the Senate's advice and consent generally includes the right to vote on approval of an appointment. [Cases: United States 35. C.J.S. United States §§ 23, 53, 56–57.]

ADVICE OF COUNSEL

advice of counsel. 1. The guidance given by lawyers to their clients. 2. In a malicious-prosecution lawsuit, a defense requiring both a complete presentation of facts by the defendant to his or her attorney and honest compliance with the attorney's advice. [Cases: Malicious Prosecution 21, 25(2). C.J.S. Malicious Prosecution or Wrongful Litigation §§ 25, 42, 44–47.] 3. A defense in which a party seeks to avoid liability or punishment by claiming that he or she acted reasonably and in good faith on the attorney's advice. • Such a defense usu. requires waiver of the attorney–client privilege, and the attorney cannot have knowingly participated in implementing an illegal plan. [Cases: Criminal Law 37.20. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 56, 94–95.]

“Advice of counsel is a defense to a limited number of torts involving lack of probable cause, bad faith, or malice as an element of the cause of action. By far the most frequent cause of action against which the defense is asserted is malicious prosecution. The defense may also be asserted to avoid liability for punitive damages on the reasoning that good faith reliance on advice of counsel defeats the malice necessary to an award of punitive damages. In civil matters, the advice is typically obtained from the defendant's own attorney; when the underlying proceeding is criminal, the advice may be obtained from the district attorney's office or similar source and may take the form of action by that officer rather than advice followed by action by the defendant.” 4 Ann Taylor Schwing, California Affirmative Defenses § 41:26, at 82 (2d ed. 1996).

ADVICE-OF-COUNSEL DEFENSE

advice-of-counsel defense. Patents. In an action for infringement, an assertion that after learning of the owner's rights, the defendant sought, obtained, and relied on an attorney's well-reasoned opinion before continuing the challenged act. • Courts treat the assertion as a factor in determining whether an act was willful (to support enhanced damages). It is not a true defense. Cf. willful infringement under INFRINGEMENT. [Cases: Patents 227. C.J.S. Patents § 403.]

ADVICE OF CREDIT

advice of credit. Notice by an advising bank of the issuance of a letter of credit. [Cases: Banks and Banking 191.10. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 341–366, 368–370, 372–376.]

advowee paramount. The sovereign, or highest patron.

ADVOWSON

advowson (ad-vow-z<<schwa>>n). Eccles. law. The right of presenting or nominating a person to a vacant benefice in the church. • The person enjoying this right is called the “patron” (patronus) of the church, and was formerly termed “advocatus,” the advocate or defender, or in English, the “advowee.” The patron presents the nominee to the bishop (or, occasionally, another church dignitary). If there is no patron, or if the patron neglects to exercise the right within six months, the right lapses and a title is given to the ordinary (usu. the bishop) to appoint a cleric to the church. Cf. PRESENTATION(2); INSTITUTION(5).

“An advowson is the perpetual right of presentation to an ecclesiastical living. The owner of an advowson is known as the patron. When a living becomes vacant, as when a rector or vicar dies or retires, the patron of the living has a right to nominate the clergyman who shall next hold the living. Subject to a right of veto on certain specified grounds, the Bishop is bound to institute (formally appoint) any duly qualified person presented. This is a relic of the days when it was common for the lord of a manor to build and endow a church and in return have the right of patronage.” Robert E. Megarry & P.V. Baker, A Manual of the Law of Real Property 414 (4th ed. 1969).

advowson appendant (<<schwa>>-pen-d<<schwa>>nt). An advowson annexed to a manor, and passing as incident to it, whenever the manor is conveyed to another. • The advowson passes with the manor even if it is not mentioned in the grant.

advowson collative (k<<schwa>>-lay-tiv). An advowson for which there is no separate presentation to the bishop because the bishop happens to be the patron as well. • In this case, the one act by which the benefice is conferred is called “collation.”

advowson donative (don-<<schwa>>-tiv ordoh-n<<schwa>>-tiv). An advowson in which the patron has the right to put a cleric in possession by a mere gift, or deed of donation, without any presentation to the bishop. • This type of advowson was converted into the advowson presentative by the Benefices Act of 1898. — Also termed donative advowson.

“An advowson donative is when the king, or any subject by his licence, doth found a church or chapel, and ordains that it shall be merely in the gift or disposal of the patron; subject to his visitation only, and not to that of the ordinary; and vested absolutely in the clerk by the patron's deed of donation, without presentation, institution, or induction. This is said to have been anciently the only way of conferring ecclesiastical benefices in England; the method of institution by the bishop not being established more early than the time of archbishop Becket in the reign of Henry II." 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 23 (1766).

advowson in gross. An advowson that is separated from the manor and annexed to a person. • All advowsons that have been separated from their original manors are advowsons in gross.

advowson presentative (pri-zen-t<<schwa>>-tiv). The usual kind of advowson, in which the patron has the right to make the presentation to the bishop and to demand that the nominee be instituted, if the bishop finds the nominee canonically qualified.

donative advowson. See advowson donative.

affinitas affinitatis (<<schwa>>-fin-i-tas <<schwa>>-fin-i-tay-tis), n.[Law Latin “affinity of affinity”] Hist. Relationship by two marriages, e.g., with one's stepmother's stepchild; a connection that arises from marriage but is neither consanguinity nor affinity. Cf. CONSANGUINITY; AFFINITY.

AFFINITY

affinity (<<schwa>>-fin-<<schwa>>-tee).1. A close agreement. 2. The relation that one spouse has to the blood relatives of the other spouse; relationship by marriage. 3. Any familial relation resulting from a marriage. Cf. CONSANGUINITY. See relative by affinity under RELATIVE. Cf. AFFINITAS AFFINITATIS ; CONSANGUINITY. [Cases: Marriage 10. C.J.S. Marriage § 17.]

“There is no affinity between the blood relatives of one spouse and the blood relatives of the other. A husband is related by affinity to his wife's brother, but not to the wife of his wife's brother. There is no affinity between the husband's brother and the wife's sister; this is called affinitas affinitatis.” 2 Charles E. Torcia, Wharton's Criminal Law § 242, at 573 (15th ed. 1994).

collateral affinity.The relationship of a spouse's relatives to the other spouse's relatives. • An example is a wife's brother and her husband's sister. [Cases: Marriage 10. C.J.S. Marriage § 17.]

direct affinity.The relationship of a spouse to the other spouse's blood relatives. • An example is a wife and her husband's brother.

quasi-affinity.Civil law. The affinity existing between two persons, one of whom has been engaged to a relative of the other.

secondary affinity.The relationship of a spouse to the other spouse's marital relatives. • An example is a wife and her husband's sister-in-law.

AFFIRM

affirm,vb.1. To confirm (a judgment) on appeal. • Sometimes the verb is used without a direct object <we affirm>. The equivalent expression in British English is to deny the appeal. [Cases: Appeal and Error 1124–1145.C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 714, 745, 770, 814, 826, 864–868, 878–898.] 2. To solemnly declare rather than swear under oath. 3. To testify or declare by affirmation.

AFFIRMANCE

affirmance,n.1. A ratification, reacceptance, or confirmation.

“A party who has the power of avoidance may lose it by action that manifests a willingness to go on with the contract. Such action is known as ‘affirmance’ and has the effect of ratifying the contract. See Restatement of Restitution § 68. The rule stated in this Section is a special application of that stated in § 85, under which a promise to perform a voidable duty is binding. On ratification, the affirming party is bound as from the outset and the other party continues to be bound.” Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 380 cmt. a (1979).

2. The formal approval by an appellate court of a lower court's judgment, order, or decree. [Cases: Appeal and Error 1124–1145. C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 714, 745, 770, 814, 826, 864–868, 878–898.] 3. The manifestation of a choice by someone with the power of avoidance to treat a voidable or unauthorized transaction as valid or authorized. 4. The manifestation of a choice, by one on whose behalf an unauthorized act has been performed, to treat the act as authorized.Restatement (Second) of Agency § 83 (1958). — affirm,vb.

AFFIRMANCE DAY GENERAL

AFFIX

affix (<<schwa>>-fiks), vb.1. To attach, add to, or fasten on permanently. See FIXTURE.
 2.Trademarks. To attach, physically or functionally, a trademark or servicemark to the goods or services it represents. • A mark must be affixed to show that it is used in trade. If physical attachment is impossible or impracticable, the mark may be used on a container or tag, or (esp. with servicemarks) displayed prominently in advertising. [Cases: Patents 98; Trade Regulation 64. C.J.S. Patents §§ 137–139; Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 34.] — affixation (af-ik-say-sh<<schwa>>n), n.

AFFIXUS

affixus (<<schwa>>-fik-s<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Roman law. Affixed or fastened to.

AFFORARE

afforare (af-<<schwa>>-rair-ee), vb.[Law Latin] To set a price or value on a thing.

AFFORCE

afforce (<<schwa>>-fors), vb. To strengthen (a jury) by adding new members.

AFFORCEMENT

afforcement (<<schwa>>-fors-m<<schwa>>nt), n.[Law Latin] Hist. 1.A reinforcement or fortification; esp., the reinforcing of a court on a solemn or extraordinary occasion. 2. A fortress. — Also termed afforciamment (<<schwa>>-for-sh<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>nt); afforciammentum (<<schwa>>-for-shee-<<schwa>>-men-t<<schwa>>m).

AFFORCING THE ASSIZE

afforcing the assize.Hist. A method of securing a jury verdict from a hung jury either by denying food and drink to the members until they reached a verdict or by bringing in new jurors until 12 would agree.

AFFOREST

afforest,vb. To convert (land) into a forest, esp. by subjecting it to forest law. [Cases: Woods and Forests 1. C.J.S. Woods and Forests §§ 1–2.] — afforestation,n.

AFFRANCHISE

affranchise (<<schwa>>-fran-chIz), vb. Archaic. To set free; to liberate from servitude or an obligation. • The equivalent verb in Law French was affranchir.

AFFRAY

affray (<<schwa>>-fray). The fighting, by mutual consent, of two or more persons in some public place, to the terror of onlookers. • The fighting must be mutual. If one person unlawfully attacks another who resorts to self-defense, the first is guilty of assault and battery, but there is no affray. — Also termed fray. Cf. RIOT; un-lawful assembly under ASSEMBLY; ROUT. [Cases: Criminal Law 45.15. C.J.S. Affray §§ 2–3, 5, 7, 13, 20.]

“An affray differs from a riot, a rout, or an unlawful assembly in that an affray is not premeditated and in order to constitute a riot, a rout, or an unlawful assembly at least three participants are essential, while ... an affray may be committed by only two. Moreover, an affray is more of a private nature than a riot.” 2A C.J.S. Affray § 3, at 519 (1972).

“The word ‘affray’ comes from the same source as the word ‘afraid,’ and the tendency to alarm the community is the very essence of this offense.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 479 (3d ed. 1982).

casual affray. See CHANCE-MEDLEY.

mutual affray. See MUTUAL COMBAT.

AFFRECTAMENTUM

affrectamentum (<<schwa>>-fɹɛk-t<<schwa>>-mɛn-t<<schwa>>m). See AFFREIGHTMENT.

AFORETHOUGHT

aforethought (<<schwa>>-for-thawt), adj. Thought of in advance; deliberate; premeditated <malice afore-thought>. See MALICE AFORETHOUGHT.

A FORTIORI

a fortiori (ay for-shee-or-Ior ah for-shee-or-ee), adv.[Latin] By even greater force of logic; even more so <if a 14-year-old child cannot sign a binding contract, then, a fortiori, a 13-year-old cannot>. Cf. A MULTO FOR-TIORI .

AFRICAN DEVELOPMENT FOUNDATION

African Development Foundation. A nonprofit federal foundation that supports the self-help efforts of poor people in African countries by making grants and by making and guaranteeing loans to any African entity engaged in peaceful activities that enable African people to develop more fully. • ADF was created by the African Development Foundation Act and began operating in 1984. 22 USCA § 290h. — Abbr. ADF.

AFTER-ACQUIRED DOMICILE

after-acquired domicile. See DOMICILE.

AFTER-ACQUIRED-EVIDENCE DOCTRINE

after-acquired-evidence doctrine. Employment law. The rule that if an employer discharges an employee for an unlawful reason and later discovers misconduct sufficient to justify a lawful discharge, the employee cannot win reinstatement. • The doctrine either shields the employer from liability or limits the available relief when, after an employee has been terminated, the employer learns for the first time that the employee engaged in wrongdoing that would have resulted in a discharge anyway. McKennon v. Nashville Banner Publ'g Co., 513 U.S. 352, 115 S.Ct. 879 (1995). [Cases: Master and Servant 37. C.J.S. Employer–Employee Relationship §§ 60, 86.]

AFTER-ACQUIRED PROPERTY

after-acquired property. 1. Secured transactions. A debtor's property that is acquired after a security transaction and becomes additional security for payment of the debt. UCC § 9-204. — Also termed future-acquired property. [Cases: Secured Transactions 13, 116. C.J.S. Secured Transactions §§ 12, 85.] 2. Bankruptcy. Property that the bankruptcy estate acquires after commencement of the bankruptcy proceeding. 11 USCA § 541(a)(7). [Cases: Bankruptcy 2558. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 120, 122.] 3.Wills & estates. Property acquired by a person after making a will. • The old rule was that a testamentary gift of personal property spoke at the time of the testator's death, whereas a gift of lands spoke from the date of the will's execution (so that after-acquired property was not disposed of), but this has been changed by legislation in most states. [Cases: Wills 8, 578. C.J.S. Wills §§ 53, 55–56, 1099–1104.]

AFTER-ACQUIRED-PROPERTY CLAUSE

after-acquired-property clause. A mortgage provision that makes any later-acquired real estate subject to the mortgage. [Cases: Mortgages 131. C.J.S. Mortgages § 174.]

AFTER-ACQUIRED TITLE

after-acquired title. See TITLE(2).

AFTER-ACQUIRED-TITLE CLAUSE

after-acquired-title clause. Oil & gas. A provision in an oil-and-gas lease extending the lease's coverage to include any interest in the property that the lessor may obtain after the lease is signed. • A common formulation is “This lease covers all the interest now owned by or hereafter vested in the lessor ....”

AFTER-ACQUIRED-TITLE DOCTRINE

after-acquired-title doctrine. The principle that title to property automatically vests in a person who bought the property from a seller who acquired title only after purporting to sell the property to the buyer. [Cases: Vendor and Purchaser 8. C.J.S. Vendor and Purchaser § 6.]

AFTERBORN CHILD

afterborn child. See CHILD.

AFTERBORN HEIR

afterborn heir. See HEIR.

AFTERCARE

aftercare. See juvenile parole under PAROLE.

AFTER COST

after cost. See COST(1).

AGAINST THE FORM OF THE STATUTE

against the form of the statute.Contrary to the statutory requirements. • This formal phrase, which traditionally concludes an indictment, indicates that the conduct alleged contravenes the cited statute and therefore constitutes a criminal offense. In modern contexts, the full conclusion often reads: “against the form of the statute in such case made and provided.” The phrase is a translation of the Law Latin contra formam statuti. [Cases: Indictment and Information 32(4).]

AGAINST THE PEACE AND DIGNITY OF THE STATE

against the peace and dignity of the state.A concluding phrase in an indictment, used to condemn the offending conduct generally (as opposed to the specific charge of wrongdoing contained in the body of the instrument). • This phrase derives from the Law Latin contra pacem domini regis (“against the peace of the lord the king”), a charging phrase formerly used in indictments and in civil actions of trespass. Cf. KING'S PEACE. [Cases: Indictment and Information 32(3).]

AGAINST THE WEIGHT OF THE EVIDENCE

against the weight of the evidence.(Of a verdict or judgment) contrary to the credible evidence; not sufficiently supported by the evidence in the record. See WEIGHT OF THE EVIDENCE.

AGAINST THE WILL

against the will.Contrary to a person's wishes. • Indictments use this phrase to indicate that the defendant's conduct was without the victim's consent.

AGALMA

agalma (<<schwa>>-gal-m<<schwa>>). [Greek] A figure or design on a seal.

AGARD

agard (<<schwa>>-gahrd). [Law French] An award. See NUL FAIT AGARD.

AGARDER

agarder (ah-gahr-day), vb.[Law French] To award, adjudge, or determine; to sentence or condemn.

AGE

age,n. A period of time; esp., a period of individual existence or the duration of a person's life.

• In American usage, age is stated in full years completed (so that someone 15 years of age might actually be 15 years and several months old). State statutes define various types of ages, as shown in the subentries.

age of capacity.The age, usu. defined by statute as 18 years, at which a person is legally capable of agreeing to a contract, maintaining a lawsuit, or the like. • A person may be authorized to make certain critical personal decisions at an earlier age than the general age of capacity, such as the decision whether to bear a child, to donate blood, to obtain treatment for sexually transmitted diseases, to marry, or to write a will. The age of capacity to write a will is typically not 18, but 14. — Also termed age of majority; legal age; lawful age. See CAPACITY(2). [Cases: Infants 1. C.J.S. Infants §§ 2–4.]

age of consent.The age, usu. defined by statute as 16 years, at which a person is legally capable of agreeing to marriage (without parental consent) or to sexual intercourse. • If a person over the age of consent has sexual intercourse with a person under the age of consent, the older person may be prosecuted for statutory rape regardless of whether the younger person consented to the act. See statutory rape under RAPE. [Cases: Infants 5; Marriage 19. C.J.S. Infants § 111; Marriage § 26.]

age of criminal responsibility.The age at which a child may be held responsible for a criminal act. • In American criminal law, some state statutes allow a child as young as 7 to be held responsible (as a juvenile) for some acts. See, e.g., N.D. Cent. Code § 12.1-04-01. The minimum age for imposing adult liability is as low as 10. See, e.g., Ind. Code Ann. § 31-30-3–4(3). But in some circumstances, at least one state allows an offender to be tried as an adult at any age. See, e.g., Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. § 712A.2d.

age of discretion. 1. The age at which a person is considered responsible for certain acts and competent to exercise certain powers. • For example, a person must be a legal adult to be eligible to serve a summons. 2. PUBERTY.

age of majority. 1. The age, usu. defined by statute as 18 years, at which a person attains full legal rights, esp. civil and political rights such as the right to vote. • The age of majority must be the same for men and women. In almost all states today, the age of majority is 18, but the age at which a person may legally purchase and consume alcohol is 21. — Also termed lawful age; legal age. 2. See age of capacity. — Also termed (in both senses) full age. [Cases: Child Support 389; Infants 1; Parent and Child 16. C.J.S. Infants §§ 2–4; Parent and Child §§ 13–37.]

age of reason.The age at which a person becomes able to distinguish right from wrong and is thus legally capable of committing a crime or tort. • The age of reason varies from jurisdiction to jurisdiction, but 7 years is traditionally the age below which a child is conclusively presumed not to have committed a crime or tort, while 14 years is usu. the age below which a rebuttable presumption applies. A child of 14 or older has traditionally been considered legally competent to commit a crime and therefore held accountable. With the creation of juvenile courts and their investiture of delinquency jurisdiction over children from birth to age 18, these traditional distinctions have nearly vanished. They surface from time to time in murder cases when a juvenile court considers whether to certify or transfer a very young child for trial in criminal court or when a prosecutor seeks to bypass the juvenile court by filing criminal charges against a young child. [Cases: Infants 59, 66. C.J.S. Infants §§ 189, 197, 204.]

fighting age. The age at which a person becomes eligible to serve in (or liable to conscription into) a military unit. [Cases: Armed Services 17, 20.4(1). C.J.S. Armed Services § 42.]

full age. See age of majority.

lawful age. 1. See age of capacity. 2. See age of majority (1).

legal age. 1. See age of capacity. 2. See age of majority (1).

AGE DISCRIMINATION

age discrimination. See DISCRIMINATION.

AGE DISCRIMINATION IN EMPLOYMENT ACT

Age Discrimination in Employment Act. A federal law prohibiting job discrimination based on a person's age, esp. unfair and discriminatory employment decisions that negatively affect someone who is 40 years old or older. 29 USCA §§ 621–634. • Passed in 1967, the Act applies to businesses with more than 20 employees and to all governmental entities. — Abbr. ADEA. [Cases: Civil Rights 1199. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 56–58.]

AGENCY

agency. 1. A fiduciary relationship created by express or implied contract or by law, in which one party (the agent) may act on behalf of another party (the principal) and bind that other party by words or actions. See AUTHORITY (1). [Cases: Principal and Agent 1. C.J.S. Agency §§ 2, 4–6, 23, 25–27, 33, 38–40, 58.]

“The basic theory of the agency device is to enable a person, through the services of another, to broaden the scope of his activities and receive the product of another's efforts, paying such other for what he does but retaining for himself any net benefit resulting from the work performed.” Harold Gill Reuschlein & William A. Gregory, The Law of Agency and Partnership § 1, at 3 (2d ed. 1990).

actual agency. An agency in which the agent is in fact employed by a principal. [Cases: Principal and Agent 96, 99. C.J.S. Agency §§ 148–149, 153–164.]

agency by estoppel. An agency created by operation of law and established by a principal's actions that would reasonably lead a third person to conclude that an agency exists. — Also termed apparent agency; ostensible agency; agency by operation of law. [Cases: Principal and Agent 25(3), 137. C.J.S. Agency §§ 61, 157, 211.]

agency by necessity. See agency of necessity.

agency by operation of law. See agency by estoppel.

agency coupled with an interest. An agency in which the agent is granted not only the power to act on behalf of a principal but also a legal interest in the estate or property involved. • This type of agency is irrevocable before the interest expires, unless the parties agree otherwise when creating the interest. The agency survives even if the principal becomes insane or dies. See power coupled with an interest under POWER(3). [Cases: Principal and Agent 34, 43(2). C.J.S. Agency §§ 114–119, 136.]

agency from necessity. See agency of necessity.

agency in fact. An agency created voluntarily, as by a contract. • Agency in fact is distinguishable from an agency relationship created by law, such as agency by estoppel. [Cases: Principal and Agent 8. C.J.S. Agency §§ 36–40.]

agency of necessity. An agency arising during an emergency that necessitates the agent's acting without authorization from the principal; the relation between a person who in exigent circumstances acts in the interest of another without being authorized to do so. • It is a quasi-contractual relation formed by the operation of legal rules and not by the agreement of the parties. — Also termed agency from necessity; agency by necessity. See NEGOTIORUM GESTIO. [Cases: Principal and Agent 14(1), 99. C.J.S. Agency §§ 20, 53, 153–164; Architects § 21.]

exclusive agency. The right to represent a principal — esp. either to sell the principal's products or to act as the seller's real-estate agent — within a particular market free from competition. • Strictly speaking, an exclusive agency merely excludes all other brokers, but not the owner, from selling the products or property. — Also termed exclusive agency to sell; exclusive franchise; sole selling agency. Cf. EXCLUSIVE RIGHT OF SALE.

“Contracts involving the element of exclusive agency generally fall into three classes: (1) where the contract does not prevent the principal from making direct sales but deprives him of the right to appoint other agents; (2) where the agent is the only one with any right to sell; and (3) where the exclusive agency is accompanied with a stipulated right to commissions on all sales whether made through the agent or not.” 3 Am. Jur. 2d Agency § 268, at 768 (1986).

express agency. An actual agency arising from the principal's written or oral authorization of a person to act as the principal's agent. Cf. implied agency. [Cases: Principal and Agent 96. C.J.S. Agency §§ 148–149.]

financing agency. A bank, finance company, or other entity that in the ordinary course of business (1) makes advances against goods or documents of title, or (2) by arrangement with either the seller or the buyer intervenes to make or collect payment due or claimed under a contract for sale, as by purchasing or paying the seller's draft, making advances against it, or taking it for collection, regardless of whether documents of title accompany the draft. UCC § 2-104(2).

general agency. A principal's delegation to an agent, without restriction, to take any action connected with a particular trade, business, or employment. — Also termed universal agency. [Cases: Principal and Agent 93. C.J.S. Agency § 172.]

implied agency. An actual agency arising from the conduct by the principal that implies an intention to create an agency relationship. Cf. express agency. [Cases: Principal and Agent 99. C.J.S. Agency §§ 153–164.]

ostensible agency. See agency by estoppel.

special agency. An agency in which the agent is authorized only to conduct a single transaction or a series of transactions not involving continuous service. [Cases: Principal and Agent 94. C.J.S. Agency § 172.]

undisclosed agency. An agency relationship in which an agent deals with a third party who has no knowledge that the agent is acting on a principal's behalf. • The fact that the agency is undisclosed does not prohibit the third party from seeking redress from the principal or the agent. [Cases: Principal and Agent 138–146. C.J.S. Agency §§ 166, 369–371, 385, 387–388, 393, 412–419, 448–451.]

universal agency. See general agency.

2. An agent's place of business. 3. A governmental body with the authority to implement and administer particular legislation. — Also termed (in sense 3) government agency; administrative agency; public agency; regulatory agency. [Cases: Administrative Law and Procedure 101. C.J.S. Public Administrative Law and Procedure § 8.]

federal agency. A department or other instrumentality of the executive branch of the federal government, including a government corporation and the Government Printing Office. • The Administrative Procedure Act defines the term agency negatively as being any U.S. governmental authority that does not include Congress, the courts, the government of the District of Columbia, the government of any territory or possession, courts-martial, or military authority. 5 USCA § 551. The caselaw on this definition focuses on authority: generally, an entity is an agency if it has authority to take binding action. Other federal statutes define agency to include any executive department, government corporation, government-controlled corporation, or other establishment in the executive branch, or federal regulatory board. [Cases: Administrative Law and Procedure 101; United States 30. C.J.S. Public Administrative Law and Procedure § 8; United States § 49.]

independent agency. A federal agency, commission, or board that is not under the direction of the executive, such as the Federal Trade Commission or the National Labor Relations Board. — Also termed independent regulatory agency; independent regulatory commission. [Cases: United States 29. C.J.S. United States §§ 52, 57.]

local agency. A political subdivision of a state. • Local agencies include counties, cities, school districts, etc.

quasi-governmental agency. A government-sponsored enterprise or corporation (sometimes called a government-controlled corporation), such as the Federal National Mortgage Corporation. [Cases: United States 53. C.J.S. United States §§ 83, 88–95.]

state agency. An executive or regulatory body of a state. • State agencies include state offices, departments, divisions, bureaus, boards, and commissions. — Also termed state body.

agenda. A list of things to be done, as items to be considered at a meeting, usu. arranged in order of consideration. — Also termed calendar; calendar of business; order of business. Cf. PROGRAM(1).

final agenda. An agenda that a deliberative assembly has adopted, or that has been adopted for a deliberative assembly by an officer or board charged with setting such an agenda.

proposed agenda. An agenda offered, usu. with the notice calling the meeting that the agenda covers, for a deliberative assembly's consideration. — Also termed tentative agenda.

report agenda. See report calendar under CALENDAR(4).

special-order agenda. See special-order calendar under CALENDAR(4).

tentative agenda. See proposed agenda.

agens (ay-jenz). [Latin] 1. One who acts or does an act; an agent. Cf. PATIENS. 2. A plaintiff.

agent. 1. Something that produces an effect <an intervening agent>. See CAUSE (1); ELECTRONIC AGENT. 2. One who is authorized to act for or in place of another; a representative . — Also termed commissionaire. Cf. PRINCIPAL(1); EMPLOYEE. [Cases: Principal and Agent 1, 3. C.J.S. Agency §§ 2, 4–9, 11–16, 18, 23, 25–27, 33, 38–40, 58.]

“Generally speaking, anyone can be an agent who is in fact capable of performing the functions involved. The agent normally binds not himself but his principal by the contracts he makes; it is therefore not essential that he be legally capable to contract (although his duties and liabilities to his principal might be affected by his status). Thus an infant or a lunatic may be an agent, though doubtless the court would disregard either's attempt to act as if he were so young or so hopelessly devoid of reason as to be completely incapable of grasping the function he was attempting to perform.” Floyd R. Mechem, Outlines of the Law of Agency 8–9 (Philip Mechem ed., 4th ed. 1952).

“The etymology of the word agent or agency tells us much. The words are derived from the Latin verb, ago, agere; the noun agens, agentis. The word agent denotes one who acts, a doer, force or power that accomplishes things.” Harold Gill Reuschlein & William A. Gregory, The Law of Agency and Partnership § 1, at 2–3 (2d ed. 1990).

apparent agent. A person who reasonably appears to have authority to act for another, regardless of whether actual authority has been conferred. — Also termed ostensible agent. [Cases: Principal and Agent 99. C.J.S. Agency §§ 153–164.]

bail-enforcement agent. See BOUNTY HUNTER.

bargaining agent. A labor union in its capacity of representing employees in collective bargaining. [Cases: Labor Relations 291. C.J.S. Labor Relations § 274.]

business agent. See BUSINESS AGENT.

clearing agent. Securities. A person or company acting as an intermediary in a securities transaction or providing facilities for comparing data with respect to securities transactions. • The term includes a custodian of securities in connection with the central handling of securities. Securities Exchange Act § 3(a)(23)(A) (15 USCA § 78c(a)(23)(A)). — Also termed clearing agency.

co-agent. A person who shares with another agent the authority to act for the principal. — Also termed dual agent. Cf. common agent.

commercial agent. 1. BROKER. 2. A consular officer responsible for the commercial interests of his or her country at a foreign port. 3. See mercantile agent.

common agent. An agent who acts on behalf of more than one principal in a transaction. Cf. co-agent.

corporate agent. An agent authorized to act on behalf of a corporation; broadly, all employees and officers who have the power to bind the corporation. [Cases: Corporations 397–399. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 586–587, 591, 593–596, 598.]

county agent. See juvenile officer under OFFICER(1).

del credere agent (del kred-<<schwa>>-ray or kray-d*<<schwa>>*-ray). An agent who guarantees the solvency of the third party with whom the agent makes a contract for the principal. • A del credere agent receives possession of the principal's goods for purposes of sale and guarantees that anyone to whom the agent sells the goods on credit will pay promptly for them. For this guaranty, the agent receives a higher commission for sales. The promise of such an agent is almost universally held not to be within the statute of frauds. — Also termed del credere factor. [Cases: Factors 29.]

diplomatic agent. A national representative in one of four categories: (1) ambassadors, (2) envoys and ministers plenipotentiary, (3) ministers resident accredited to the sovereign, or (4) chargés d'affaires accredited to the minister of foreign affairs. [Cases: Ambassadors and Consuls 1–8. C.J.S. Ambassadors and Consuls §§ 2–32.]

dual agent. See co-agent.

emigrant agent. One engaged in the business of hiring laborers for work outside the country or state.

enrolled agent. See ENROLLED AGENT.

escrow agent. The third-party depository of an escrow; ESCROW(3). — Also termed escrow holder; escrowee; escrow officer. [Cases: Deposits and Escrows 13. C.J.S. Depositories §§ 15–17; Escrows §§ 8–10.]

fiscal agent. A bank or other financial institution that collects and disburses money and services as a depository of private and public funds on another's behalf.

foreign agent. A person who registers with the federal government as a lobbyist representing the interests of a foreign nation or corporation.

forwarding agent. 1. See FREIGHT FORWARDER. 2. A freight forwarder who assembles less-than-carload shipments (small shipments) into carload shipments, thus taking advantage of lower freight rates. [Cases: Carriers 178. C.J.S. Carriers § 463.]

general agent. An agent authorized to transact all the principal's business of a particular kind or in a particular place. • Among the common types of general agents are factors, brokers, and partners. [Cases: Insurance 1634(2); Principal and Agent 93. C.J.S. Agency § 172; Insurance §§ 193–194.]

“Although the distinction between general and special agents can be difficult to apply, the terminology is some-times used by courts and the distinction plays a major role in the Restatement of Agency. A general agent ... is an integral part of the principal's business and does not need fresh authorization for each separate transaction. A manager of a store is an example of a general agent.” J. Dennis Hynes, Agency, Partnership, and the LLC in a Nutshell 21 (1997).

government agent. 1. An employee or representative of a governmental body. [Cases: United States 36. C.J.S. United States §§ 56–57.] 2. A law-enforcement official, such as a police officer or an FBI agent. 3. An informant, esp. an inmate, hired by law enforcement to obtain incriminating statements from another inmate. • An accused's Sixth Amendment right to counsel is triggered when the accused is questioned by a government agent.

high-managerial agent. An agent of a corporation or other business, having authority to formulate corporate policy or supervise employees. — Also termed superior agent.

independent agent. An agent who exercises personal judgment and is subject to the principal only for the results of the work performed.

innocent agent. Criminal law. A person whose action on behalf of a principal is unlawful but does not merit prosecution because the agent had no knowledge of the principal's illegal purpose; a person who lacks the mens rea for an offense but who is tricked or coerced by the principal into committing a crime. • Although the agent's conduct was unlawful, the agent might not be prosecuted if the agent had no knowledge of the principal's illegal purpose. The principal is legally accountable for the innocent agent's actions. See Model Penal Code § 2.06(2)(a).

insurance agent. See INSURANCE AGENT.

jural agent. See JURAL AGENT.

land agent. See LAND MANAGER.

listing agent. See LISTING AGENT.

local agent. An agent appointed to act as another's (esp. a company's) representative and to transact business within a specified district.

managing agent. A person with general power involving the exercise of judgment and discretion, as opposed to an ordinary agent who acts under the direction and control of the principal. — Also termed business agent. [Cases: Principal and Agent 50.]

mercantile agent. An agent employed to sell goods or merchandise on behalf of the principal. — Also termed commercial agent.

nonservant agent. An agent who agrees to act on the principal's behalf but is not subject to the principal's control over how the task is performed. • A principal is not liable for the physical torts of a nonservant agent. See IN-DEPENDENT CONTRACTOR. Cf. SERVANT.

ostensible agent. See apparent agent.

patent agent. A specialized legal professional — not necessarily a licensed lawyer — who prepares and prosecutes patent applications before the Patent and Trademark Office • Patent agents must be licensed by the Patent and Trademark Office. — Also termed patent solicitor; registered patent agent.

primary agent. An agent who is directly authorized by a principal. • A primary agent generally may hire a subagent to perform all or part of the agency. Cf. subagent.

private agent. An agent acting for an individual in that person's private affairs. [Cases: Principal and Agent 92(3).]

process agent. A person authorized to accept service of process on behalf of another. [Cases: Corporations 668(4); Process 58. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 954–956; Process § 39.]

procuring agent. A person who obtains drugs on behalf of another person and delivers the drugs to that person. • In criminal-defense theory, the procuring agent does not sell, barter, exchange, or make a gift of the drugs to the other person because the drugs already belong to that person, who merely employs the agent to pick up and deliver them.

public agent. A person appointed to act for the public in matters pertaining to governmental administration or public business. [Cases: Officers and Public Employees 1. C.J.S. Officers and Public Employees §§ 1–9, 12–17, 21.]

real-estate agent. An agent who represents a buyer or seller (or both, with proper disclosures) in the sale or lease of real property. • A real-estate agent can be either a broker (whose principal is a buyer or seller) or a salesperson (whose principal is a broker). [Cases: Brokers 6. C.J.S. Brokers §§ 25–26, 31–32.]

record agent. See INSURANCE AGENT.

registered agent. A person authorized to accept service of process for another person, esp. a corporation, in a particular jurisdiction. — Also termed resident agent. [Cases: Corporations 507(5), 668(4); Process 58. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 728, 954–956; Process § 39.]

selling agent. The real-estate broker's representative who sells the property, as opposed to the agent who lists the property for sale. Cf. LISTING AGENT. [Cases: Brokers 18. C.J.S. Brokers § 49.]

soliciting agent. 1. Insurance. An agent with limited authority relating to the solicitation or submission of applications to an insurance company but usu. without authority to bind the insurer, as by accepting the applications on behalf of the company. [Cases: Insurance 1634(3). C.J.S. Insurance § 195.] 2. An agent who solicits orders for goods or services for a principal. 3. A managing agent of a corporation for purposes of service of process. [Cases: Corporations 668(5).]

special agent. 1. An agent employed to conduct a particular transaction or to perform a specified act. [Cases: Principal and Agent 94. C.J.S. Agency § 172.] 2. See INSURANCE AGENT.

specially accredited agent. An agent with whom a third person has been specially invited to deal by the principal under circumstances leading the third person to believe that he or she will be notified if the authority is altered or revoked.

statutory agent. An agent designated by law to receive litigation documents and other legal notices for a nonresident corporation. • In most states, the secretary of state is the statutory agent for such corporations. [Cases: Corporations 507(5, 12), 646, 668(14). C.J.S. Corporations §§ 725, 728, 902, 959.]

stock-transfer agent. An organization that oversees and maintains records of transfers of shares for a corporation. [Cases: Corporations 128.1.]

subagent. A person to whom an agent has delegated the performance of an act for the principal; a person designated by an agent to perform some duty relating to the agency. • If the principal consents to a primary agent's employment of a subagent, the subagent owes fiduciary duties to the principal, and the principal is liable for the subagent's acts. Cf. primary agent. — Also termed subservant. [Cases: Principal and Agent 73. C.J.S. Agency §§ 257–263, 265–267.]

successor agent. An agent who is appointed by a principal to act in a primary agent's stead if the primary agent is unable or unwilling to perform.

superior agent. See high-managerial agent.

transfer agent. An organization (such as a bank or trust company) that handles transfers of shares for a publicly held corporation by issuing new certificates and overseeing the cancellation of old ones and that usu. also maintains the record of shareholders for the corporation and mails dividend checks. • Generally, a transfer agent ensures that certificates submitted for transfer are properly indorsed and that the right to transfer is appropriately documented. [Cases: Corporations 128.1.]

undercover agent. 1. An agent who does not disclose his or her role as an agent. 2. A police officer who gathers evidence of criminal activity without disclosing his or her identity to the suspect.

universal agent. An agent authorized to perform all acts that the principal could personally perform. [Cases: Principal and Agent 50.]

vice-commercial agent. Hist. In the consular service of the United States, a consular officer who was substituted temporarily to fill the place of a commercial agent who was absent or had been relieved from duty.

3. Patents. A person who is not an attorney but who has fulfilled the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office requirements as a lay representative and is registered to prepare and prosecute patent applications before the PTO. • To be registered to practice before the PTO, a candidate must establish mastery of the relevant technology (by holding a specified technical degree or equivalent training) in order to advise and assist patent applicants. The candidate must also pass a written examination (the "Patent Bar") that tests knowledge of patent law and PTO procedure. — Also termed patent agent. Cf. PATENT ATTORNEY. [Cases: Patents 97. C.J.S. Patents §§ 135–138, 145, 178.]

agent not recognized. Patents. A patent applicant's appointed agent who is not registered to practice before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. • A power of attorney appointing an unregistered agent is void.

associate agent. An agent who is registered to practice before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, has been appointed by a principal agent, and is authorized to prosecute a patent application through the filing of a power of attorney. • An associate agent is often used by outside counsel to assist in-house counsel.

AGENT PROVOCATEUR

agent provocateur (ay-j<<schwa>>nt pr<<schwa>>-vok-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>rorazhawn praw-vaw-k<<schwa>>-tuur), n. 1. An undercover agent who instigates or participates in a crime, often by infiltrating a group suspected of illegal conduct, to expose and punish criminal activity. 2. A person who entraps another, or entices another to break the law, and then informs against the other as a lawbreaker.

AGER

ager (ay-j<<schwa>>r), n. [Latin] Roman law. Land or territory; esp., a portion of land enclosed by definite boundaries.

ager arcifinius (ay-j<<schwa>>r ahr-si-fin-ee-<<schwa>>s). [Latin "land having irregular boundaries; unsurveyed land"] Roman law. Land enclosed only as a means of identification, not as a limit. Pl. agri arcifinii. Cf. ager limitatus.

ager limitatus (ay-j<<schwa>>r lim-i-tay-t<<schwa>>s). [Latin "field limited" or "land enclosed by boundaries"] Roman & civil law. Land with settled boundaries; esp., land whose boundaries have been fixed by a surveyor. • The term applied to land belonging to the state by right of conquest, then granted and sold in individual plots. Cf. ager arcifinius. Pl. agri limitati (ag-rI lim-i-tay-tI).

"The agri limitati of the Roman law were lands detached from the public domain, and converted into private property, by sale or grant, beyond the limits of which the owners could claim nothing." John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 36 (4th ed. 1894).

ager publicus (ay-j<<schwa>>r p<<schwa>>b-li-k<<schwa>>s). Land of the people; public land.

AGGRAVATED

aggravation. 1. The fact of being increased in gravity or seriousness. 2. Eccles. law. A censure threatening the recipient with an increase in the penalties associated with excommunication, usu. because the recipient disre-garded an earlier sentence. • For example, a person who spurned a sentence of excommunication might be sub-jected to an anathema (a formal ban or curse). — aggravate, vb.

AGGRAVATION RULE

aggravation rule. Workers' compensation. The principle that when an on-the-job injury combines with a preex-isting injury, resulting in a greater disability than that which would have resulted from the on-the-job injury alone, the entire disability is compensable as if it had occurred at work. [Cases: Workers' Compensation 552–566. C.J.S. Workmen's Compensation §§ 325–337.]

aggravator. 1. One who commits a crime with an aggravating circumstance. 2. See aggravating circumstance under CIRCUMSTANCE. Cf. MITIGATOR.

AGGREGATE

aggregate (ag-r<<schwa>>-git), adj. Formed by combining into a single whole or total <aggregate income>. — aggregately, adv.

aggregate (ag-r<<schwa>>-git), n. An assemblage of particulars; an agglomeration <aggregate of interests>.

aggregate (ag-r<<schwa>>-gayt), vb. To collect into a whole <aggregate the claims>.

aggregate concept. Tax. An approach to taxing business organizations whereby an organization is viewed as a collection of its individual owners, not as a separate taxable entity. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3879; Taxation 1015. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 17–18; Taxation § 1707.]

AGGREGATE THEORY OF PARTNERSHIP

aggregate theory of partnership. The theory that a partnership does not have a separate legal existence (as does a corporation), but rather is only the totality of the partners who make it up. Cf. ENTITY THEORY OF PARTNERSHIP. [Cases: Partnership 63. C.J.S. Partnership § 68.]

AGGREGATIO MENTIUM

aggregatio mentium (ag-r<<schwa>>-gay-shee-oh men-shee-<<schwa>>m). [Latin “gathering together of minds”] See MEETING OF THE MINDS.

AGGREGATION

aggregation. Patents. 1. A set of parts that do not cooperate in structure or function, and are therefore unpatentable as an invention; the opposite of a combination. [Cases: Patents 25. C.J.S. Patents § 86.] 2. Hist. A patent examiner's label for a claimed invention that may or may not be a patentable combination but whose claims do not clearly explain how the parts cooperate to produce a new or unexpected result. • As a term of art, aggregation lost its usefulness when it was replaced by a statutory test in § 103 of the Patent Act of 1952. — Also termed juxtaposition. Cf. COMBINATION (4).

“I think of a football team as a combination; one passes, one receives, another runs, and still others hold the line. Eleven men are doing different things, each in his own way, and not always simultaneously; yet they are working to a common end, to advance the ball; and they coact as a unit. I think of a track team as an aggregation; one runs, another hurdles, another jumps, another throws. They all work for a common general end, to amass points for their alma mater; but there is lacking the vital spark of cooperation or coordination. They work, not as one unit, but as several.” Skinner v. Oil, 54 F.2d 896, 898–99 (10th Cir. 1931).

“The mere combining of old machine parts, each operating in the old way and accomplishing the old result, is an aggregation, and hence unpatentable; whereas, if a new result be produced by the joint action of the elements, and if such a result be not the mere adding together of the contributions of the separate elements, then there exists a patentable combination.” Roger Sherman Hoar, Patent Tactics and the Law 38 (3d ed. 1950).

AGGREGATION DOCTRINE

aggregation doctrine. The rule that precludes a party from totaling all claims for purposes of meeting the minimum amount necessary to give rise to federal diversity jurisdiction under the amount-in-controversy requirement. See diversity jurisdiction under JURISDICTION; AMOUNT IN CONTROVERSY. [Cases: Federal Courts 344.]

AGGREGATION OF CLAIMS

aggregation of claims. Patents. In a patent application, an excessive number of claims that do not differ significantly in scope and are essentially duplicative. • Although a patent applicant may claim an invention and its various features in a reasonable number of ways, each claim must differ materially from the others. — Also termed multiplicity of claims; undue multiplicity of claims. [Cases: Patents 124. C.J.S. Patents § 210.]

AGGREGATION REJECTION

aggregation rejection. See REJECTION.

AGGRESSION

aggression. Int'l law. A grave breach of international law by a nation. • The prohibition of aggression is a peremptory rule (jus cogens). Aggressors are guilty of an international crime. But there is no generally accepted definition of what constitutes aggression despite many attempts over the years to devise one. In 1974, the United Nations General Assembly adopted a Resolution on the Definition of Aggression (Resolution 3314 (XXIX) of December 14, 1974). It defines aggression, in part, as “the use of armed force by a State against the sovereignty, territorial integrity, or political independence of another country, or in a manner inconsistent with the Charter of the United Nations....” The definition does not extend to measures that, in certain circumstances, might constitute aggression, nor does it recognize exceptional circumstances that would make the enumerated acts defensive rather than offensive. The U.N. Security Council has never expressly relied on the resolution when determining whether a nation's acts constitute a “threat to the peace, breach of the peace, or act of aggression.” (See U.N. Charter art. 39, 59 Stat. 1031.) The difficulty of finding a generally accepted definition of aggression is reflected in Article 5 of the Statute of the International Criminal Court (37 I.L.M. 999). It confers jurisdiction on the Court over “the crime of aggression” but also requires the parties to the Statute to define the crime before the Court can exercise jurisdiction. [Cases: War and National Emergency 1, 19. C.J.S. War and National Defense §§ 1, 5–6.]

“Although classical aggression has generally been thought to involve direct military operations by regular national forces under government control, today subjugation and control of peoples may well result from resort to non-military methods. Economic pressures on the other states; demands couched in traditional diplomatic terms but laden with implied threats to compel action or inaction; fifth column activities; the endless propaganda harangue urging another state's peoples to rise against their government; the aiding and abetting of rebel bands intent on overthrowing another government; and a wide range of other modern techniques must be included in the concept of aggression in so far as they are delicts at international law, for they are directed against the sovereign independence of a state.” Ann Van Wynen Thomas & A.J. Thomas Jr., The Concept of Aggression in International Law 69 (1972).

direct aggression. Aggression in which a state's regular armed forces participate.

indirect aggression. Aggression carried out by some means other than through a state's regular armed forces.

“[I]ndirect aggression would seem to have two prime meanings: (1) delictual acts armed or unarmed and conducted vicariously by the aggressor state through third parties which endanger the essential rights of a state, rights upon which its security depends, and (2) delictual acts taken directly by the governing authorities of a state against another state or vicariously through third-party groups which do not involve the use of armed force, but which do endanger the essential rights of a state upon which its security depends. No directly military operations by the regular armed forces of a state are involved in either case; therefore the aggression can be regarded as an indirect method of constraint carried on by the aggressor state." Ann Van Wynen Thomas & A.J. Thomas Jr., The Concept of Aggression in International Law 69 (1972).

AGGRESSOR CORPORATION

aggressor corporation. See CORPORATION.

AGGRESSOR DOCTRINE

aggressor doctrine. The principle precluding tort recovery for a plaintiff who acts in a way that would provoke a reasonable person to use physical force for protection, unless the defendant in turn uses excessive force to repel the plaintiff. [Cases: Assault and Battery 13. C.J.S. Assault and Battery §§ 19–21.]

agreement. 1. A mutual understanding between two or more persons about their relative rights and duties re-garding past or future performances; a manifestation of mutual assent by two or more persons. [Cases: Contracts 1. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 2–3, 9, 12.] 2. The parties' actual bargain as found in their language or by implication from other circumstances, including course of dealing, usage of trade, and course of performance. UCC § 1-201(b)(3). [Cases: Sales 33. C.J.S. Sales § 43.]

“The term ‘agreement,’ although frequently used as synonymous with the word ‘contract,’ is really an expression of greater breadth of meaning and less technicality. Every contract is an agreement; but not every agreement is a contract. In its colloquial sense, the term ‘agreement’ would include any arrangement between two or more persons intended to affect their relations (whether legal or otherwise) to each other. An accepted invitation to dinner, for example, would be an agreement in this sense; but it would not be a contract, because it would neither be intended to create, nor would it in fact create, any legal obligation between the parties to it. Further, even an agreement which is intended to affect the legal relations of the parties does not necessarily amount to a contract in the strict sense of the term. For instance, a conveyance of land or a gift of a chattel, though involving an agreement, is ... not a contract; because its primary legal operation is to effect a transfer of property, and not to create an obligation.” 2 Stephen's Commentaries on the Laws of England 5 (L. Crispin Warmington ed., 21st ed. 1950).

“An agreement, as the courts have said, ‘is nothing more than a manifestation of mutual assent’ by two or more legally competent persons to one another. Agreement is in some respects a broader term than contract, or even than bargain or promise. It covers executed sales, gifts, and other transfers of property.” Samuel Williston, A Treatise on the Law of Contracts § 2, at 6 (Walter H.E. Jaeger ed., 3d ed. 1957).

agreement incident to divorce. See DIVORCE AGREEMENT.

agreement of sale. An agreement that obligates someone to sell and that may include a corresponding obligation for someone else to buy. [Cases: Sales 1. C.J.S. Sales § 2.]

agreement to agree. 1. An unenforceable agreement that purports to bind two parties to negotiate and enter into a contract; esp., a proposed agreement negotiated with the intent that the final agreement will be embodied in a formal written document and that neither party will be bound until the final agreement is executed. 2. A fully enforceable agreement containing terms that are sufficiently definite as well as adequate consideration, but leaving some details to be worked out by the parties. [Cases: Contracts 25. C.J.S. Contracts § 60.]

“Although the parties expect that they will reach agreement on the missing terms, what they expect to happen if they fail to reach agreement is often unclear. They may understand that there will be no contract at all or they may understand that there will be a contract with the missing term supplied as a matter of law. If the latter is their understanding, a question arises whether the agreement is one with open terms sufficiently definite to be enforceable or whether it is a mere unenforceable 'agreement to agree.' ” E. Allan Farnsworth, Contracts § 3.29, at 217 (3d ed. 1999).

agreement to sell. An agreement that obligates someone to sell. [Cases: Sales 1. C.J.S. Sales § 2.]

separation agreement. See SEPARATION AGREEMENT.

side agreement. 1. An agreement that is ancillary to another agreement. 2. Int'l law. An international accord that is specifically negotiated to supplement a broader trade treaty. • For example, NAFTA contains no provisions about labor standards or environmental protection. But two side agreements about those areas were negotiated separately and designed to supplement NAFTA, making the treaty more attractive to the ratifying bodies. — Also termed supplemental agreement.

simple agreement. An agreement for which the law requires nothing for its effective operation beyond some manifestation that the parties have consented.

subordination agreement. An agreement by which one who holds an otherwise senior interest agrees to subordinate that interest to a normally lesser interest, usu. when a seller agrees to subordinate a purchase-money mortgage so that the buyer can obtain a first-mortgage loan to improve the property. [Cases: Secured Transactions 147. C.J.S. Secured Transactions § 108.]

supplemental agreement. See side agreement.

surrogate-parenting agreement. See SURROGATE-PARENTING AGREEMENT.

takeover agreement. An agreement under which a defaulting party's surety agrees to perform the original contract in the defaulting party's stead.

agri (ag-rī), n. pl. [Latin] Lands.

AGRIBUSINESS

agribusiness. The pursuit of agriculture as an occupation or profit-making enterprise, including labor, land-use planning, and financing the cost of land, equipment, and other necessary expenses.

AGRICULTURAL ADJUSTMENT ACT

Agricultural Adjustment Act. A 1933 federal statute that paid farmers not to produce crops in an effort to raise crop prices. • The U.S. Supreme Court declared the Act unconstitutional in 1936 on grounds that Congress had overstepped its power to regulate commerce. A second, more limited Agricultural Adjustment Act was enacted in 1938. — Abbr. AAA. [Cases: Agriculture 3.1.]

AGRICULTURAL COOPERATIVE SERVICE

Agricultural Cooperative Service. The federal agency within the U.S. Department of Agriculture responsible for helping farmers to organize farm cooperatives. • The Service also collects statistical information on co-ops and publishes Farmer Cooperatives, a monthly magazine.

AGRICULTURAL-DISPARAGEMENT LAW

agricultural-disparagement law. A statute designed to protect food producers from and provide remedies for pecuniary harm resulting from false and malicious reports of food contamination. • A typical statute applies to false and disparaging public statements implying or claiming that a perishable food product is unsafe for human consumption. It typically applies when the speaker or writer knows that the statements are false because the claim or implication has no basis in reliable scientific inquiry, facts, or data. — Also termed veggie-libel law; perishable-food-disparagement act; agricultural-product-disparagement law; food-disparagement law.

AGRICULTURAL LABOR

agricultural labor. Work that is performed on a farm or ranch, or that pertains to the production of commodities, such as harvesting crops, raising livestock, or obtaining milk, honey, or other animal products. • Agricultural labor is often excluded from certain labor laws, such as unemployment insurance and workers' compensation.

AGRICULTURAL LIEN

AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH SERVICE

Agricultural Research Service. An agency in the U.S. Department of Agriculture responsible for conducting agricultural research to ensure the production of high-quality food and food products. — Abbr. ARS.

AGRICULTURE

agriculture. The science or art of cultivating soil, harvesting crops, and raising livestock. [Cases: Agriculture 3.1.]

“ ‘Agriculture’ is broader in meaning than ‘farming’; and while it includes the preparation of soil, the planting of seeds, the raising and harvesting of crops, and all their incidents, it also includes gardening, horticulture, viticulture, dairying, poultry, bee raising, and ranching.” 3 Am. Jur. 2d Agriculture § 1, at 934–35 (1986).

AGRI LIMITATI

agri limitati (ag-rī lim-i-tay-tī). See ager limitatus under AGER.

AGUILAR–SPINELLI TEST

Aguilar–Spinelli test (ah-gee-lahr spi-nel-ee orag-w<<schwa>>-lahr). Criminal procedure. A standard for determining whether hearsay (such as an informant's tip) is sufficiently reliable to establish probable cause for an arrest or search warrant. • Under this two-pronged test — which has been replaced by a broader, totality-of-the-circumstances approach — the reliability of both the information and the informant must be assessed independently. Aguilar v. Texas, 378 U.S. 108, agunah (ah-goo-nah), n. Jewish law. 1. A woman whose husband has deserted her or otherwise disappeared. • She may not remarry until either proving his death or obtaining a divorce. 2. A woman whose husband will not agree to a divorce.

84 S.Ct. 1509 (1964); Spinelli v. United States, 393 U.S. 410, 89 S.Ct. 584 (1969). Cf. TOTALITY-OF-THE-CIRCUMSTANCES TEST. [Cases: Criminal Law 211(3); Searches and Seizures 118.C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 330, 337; Searches and Seizures §§ 160–165, 167.]

AICPA.abbr.American Institute of Certified Public Accountants. [Cases: Accountants 3.1.]

AID

AID.abbr.1. See artificial insemination by donor under ARTIFICIAL INSEMINATION . 2.UNITED STATES AGENCY FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT.

aid,n. Hist. 1.A subsidy or tax granted to the king for an extraordinary purpose. — Also termed grant-in-aid. 2. A benevolence or tribute (i.e., a sum of money) granted by the tenant to his lord in times of difficulty and distress. • Over time, these grants grew from being discretionary to matters of right. The three principal aids were: (1) to ransom the lord's person if he was taken prisoner; (2) to contribute toward the ceremony of knighting the lord's eldest son; and (3) to provide a suitable portion to the lord's eldest daughter when she married. 3. Assistance in defending a lawsuit in which the plaintiff also has a claim against an unsued third party having a joint interest in the defense.

AID AND ABET

aid and abet,vb. To assist or facilitate the commission of a crime, or to promote its accomplishment. • Aiding and abetting is a crime in most jurisdictions. — Also termed aid or abet; counsel and procure. [Cases: Criminal Law 59. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 127, 998.] — aider and abettor,n.

“The phrase ‘aid and abet’ and ‘aider and abettor’ seem unnecessarily verbose.... [A]ny aid given with mens rea is abetment; hence to add the word ‘aid’ to the word ‘abet’ is not necessary and is sometimes misleading.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 724–25 (3d ed. 1982).

“In connection with the principal in the second degree or accessory before the fact, the terms ‘aid’ and ‘abet’ are frequently used interchangeably, although they are not synonymous. To ‘aid’ is to assist or help another. To ‘abet’ means, literally, to bait or excite, as in the case of an animal. In its legal sense, it means to encourage, advise, or instigate the commission of a crime.” 1 Charles E. Torcia, Wharton's Criminal Law § 29, at 181 (15th ed. 1993).

AID AND COMFORT

aid and comfort.Help given by someone to a national enemy in such a way that the help amounts to treason. [Cases: Treason 6. C.J.S. Treason § 8.]

“Aid and comfort may be given in various ways, such as buying a vessel and fitting it for service in aid of the enemy, delivering prisoners and deserters to the enemy, or selling critical materials with knowledge of the fact that the purchaser buys them to use in the manufacture of gunpowder for the enemy, or otherwise to aid him in his prosecution of the war. And the courts have given short shrift to the claim that such a sale was not intended to aid the enemy but only to make a profit.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 502 (3d ed. 1982).

AIDED-AWARENESS SURVEY

aided-awareness survey.Trademarks. A trademark survey in which interviewees are asked to choose from a spectrum of choices that prominently feature the desired response. • Aided-awareness surveys are often dis-counted or entirely disregarded by courts in trademark-infringement actions. — Also termed aided-recall survey. [Cases: Trade Regulation 580. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 268, 271.]

AIDE-MÉMOIRE

aide-mémoire (ayd-mem-wahr). [French] Int'l law.A diplomatic document that a diplomatic agent leaves with the receiving state's department of foreign affairs on the occasion of a démarche. • The aide-mémoire presents the receiving state with a precise record of the substance of the diplomatic agent's mission. It is typically written in an impersonal style, without mentioning either the addressee or the author. It appears on printed letterhead and is dated, but it is not signed, initialed, or embossed with a seal. See DÉMARCHE.

---

aider by verdict. The cure of a pleading defect by a trial verdict, based on the presumption that the record contains adequate proof of the necessary facts even if those facts were not specifically alleged. — Also termed cure by verdict. [Cases: Indictment and Information 200–203; Pleading 432–437. C.J.S. Indictments and Informations §§ 252–256; Pleading §§ 873–886.]

“AIDER BY VERDICT. Wherever a pleading states the essential requisites of a cause of action or ground of defense, it will be held sufficient after a general verdict in favor of the party pleading, though the statement be informal or inaccurate; but a verdict will never aid the statement of a title or cause of action inherently defective.” Benjamin J. Shipman, Handbook of Common-Law Pleading § 332, at 531 (Henry Winthrop Ballantine ed., 3d ed. 1923).

AIDING AN ESCAPE

ALFORD<TT> PLEA

Alford plea. A guilty plea that a defendant enters as part of a plea bargain, without actually admitting guilt. • This plea is not considered compelled within the language of the Fifth Amendment if the plea represents a voluntary, knowing, and intelligent choice between the available options <the defendant — realizing the strength of the prosecution's evidence and not wanting to risk receiving the death penalty — entered into an Alford plea>.North Carolina v. Alford, 400 U.S. 25, 91 S.Ct. 160 (1970). Cf. NO CONTEST . [Cases: Criminal Law 273(4.1), 273.1(2). C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 365–374.]

ALGORITHM

algorithm.Patents. A mathematical or logical process consisting of a series of steps, designed to solve a specific type of problem. • Algorithms were long considered abstract ideas and therefore unpatentable subject matter. But in 1998, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit found valid a patent on financial software as “a practical application of a mathematical algorithm [that] produces a useful, concrete and tangible result.” State St. Bank & Trust Co. v. Signature Fin. Group, 149 F.3d 1368, 1373 (Fed. Cir. 1998). That precedent makes it easier to patent computer software, which consists almost entirely of algorithms. [Cases: Patents 6. C.J.S. Patents §§ 26–27.]

ALGORITHM EXCEPTION

algorithm exception.Patents. The general rule that an abstract mathematical function, such as an algorithm, cannot be patented. • The exception was first articulated by the U.S. Supreme Court in Gottschalk v. Benson, 409 U.S. 63, 93 S.Ct. 253 (1972). The rule was undermined by State St.

Bank & Trust Co. v. Signature Fin. Group, 149 F.3d 1368 (Fed. Cir. 1998). In that case, the court decided that a machine's transformation of numerical data into a calculated share price was a sufficient and practical application of a mathematical algorithm, formula, or calculation because the final share price was "a useful, concrete and tangible result." — Also termed mathematical-algorithm exception.

alien enemy.A citizen or subject of a country at war with the country in which the citizen or subject is living or traveling. — Also termed enemy alien. [Cases: War and National Emergency 11. C.J.S. War and National Defense §§ 7–8.]

“In its natural meaning, the term ‘alien enemy’ indicates a subject of a State with which this country is at war; but in considering the enforcement of civil rights, the test is not nationality, but residence or place of business. Hence, if a person is voluntarily resident in or is carrying on business in an enemy country, then he is an alien enemy even though he be a British subject or the subject of a neutral State ....” 1 E.W. Chance, Principles of Mercantile Law 52–53 (P.W. French ed., 13th ed. 1950).

alien friend. An alien who is a citizen or subject of a friendly power. — Also termed (in Law French) alien amy; alien ami.

ALIENATION

alienation (ay-lee-<<schwa>>-nay-sh<<schwa>>n or ayl-y<<schwa>>-nay-sh<<schwa>>n), n.1. Withdrawal from former attachment; estrangement <alienation of affections>.2. Conveyance or transfer of property to another <alienation of one's estate>. [Cases: Property 11. C.J.S. Property §§ 27, 33.] — alienative (ay-lee-<<schwa>>-nay-tiv or ayl-y<<schwa>>-), adj.

“[A]ny transfer of real estate short of a conveyance of the title is not an alienation of the estate.” 4A John Alan Appleman & Jean Appleman, Insurance Law and Practice § 2741, at 325 n.12 (rev. vol. 1969).

involuntary alienation. Alienation against the wishes of the transferor, as by attachment. — Also termed involuntary conveyance.

ALIENATION CLAUSE

alienation clause. 1. A deed provision that either permits or prohibits the further conveyance of the property. [Cases: Deeds 144(1), 149.C.J.S. Deeds §§ 275, 305–307, 309, 313.] 2. Insurance. A clause in an insurance policy voiding coverage if the policyholder alienates the insured property. [Cases: Insurance 3051. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 574, 640–652, 772.]

ALIENATION OF AFFECTIONS

alienation of affections. A tort claim for willful or malicious interference with a marriage by a third party without justification or excuse. • Where the cause of action still exists, the elements are (1) some wrongful conduct by the defendant with the plaintiff's spouse, (2) the loss of affection or loss of consortium of the plaintiff's spouse, and (3) a causal relationship between the defendant's conduct and the loss of consortium. Heartbalm statutes in 26 states and the District of Columbia have now abolished in whole or in part suits for alienation of affections. But the doctrine thrives elsewhere. For example, a North Carolina court has upheld a $1 million award to an ex-wife who filed an alienation-of-affections action against her ex-husband's new wife. Hutelmyer v. Cox, 514 S.E.2d 554 (N.C. Ct. App. 1999). See CONSORTIUM; HEARTBALM STATUTE. [Cases: Husband and Wife 322–337.]

ALIMENTA

alimenta (al-<<schwa>>-men-t<<schwa>>). [Latin] Roman law. Things necessary to sustain life, such as food and clothing.

ALIMONY

alimony (al-<<schwa>>-moh-nee).1. A court-ordered allowance that one spouse pays to the other spouse for maintenance and support while they are separated, while they are involved in a matrimonial lawsuit, or after they are divorced. • Alimony is distinct from a property settlement. Alimony payments are taxable income to the receiving spouse and are deductible by the payor spouse; payments in settlement of property rights are not. The Supreme Court has held unconstitutional a statute that imposed alimony obligations on the husband only. Orr v. Orr, 440 U.S. 268, 99 S.Ct. 1102 (1979). — Also termed spousal support; maintenance. Cf. CHILD SUPPORT; DIVORCE AGREEMENT. [Cases: Divorce 208, 230. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 315, 320–331, 336–339, 369, 394–400, 422–426, 481–487.]

“ ‘Alimony,’ which signifies literally nourishment or sustenance, means, in a general sense, the allowance required by law to be made to a spouse from the other spouse's estate for support or maintenance, either during a matrimonial suit or at its termination, where the fact of marriage is established and the right to a separate main-tenance is proved. Similarly stated, alimony is the allowance which a party may be compelled to pay to his or her spouse for maintenance when they are living apart or after they have been divorced.” 27B CJS Divorce § 306, at 102–03 (1986).

alimony in gross.Alimony in the form of a single and definite sum not subject to modification. — Also termed lump-sum alimony. [Cases: Divorce 241. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 395–397.]

permanent alimony.Alimony payable in usu. weekly or monthly installments either indefinitely or until a time specified by court order. • This kind of alimony may usu. be modified for changed circumstances of either party. It terminates upon the death of either spouse and usu.

upon the remarriage of the obligee. — Also termed final alimony; periodic alimony. [Cases: Divorce 230. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 369, 394–400, 422, 425–426, 481–487.]

provisional alimony. See temporary alimony.

rehabilitative alimony. Alimony found necessary to assist a divorced person in acquiring the education or training required to find employment outside the home or to reenter the labor force. • It usu. has time limitations, such as a maximum of one or two years. — Also termed short-term alimony; transitional alimony. [Cases: Divorce 247. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 373–377, 405–413.]

reimbursement alimony. Alimony designed to repay a spouse who during the marriage made financial contributions that directly enhanced the future earning capacity of the other spouse. • An example is alimony for a wife who worked full-time supporting herself and her husband with separate-property earnings while he earned a medical degree. [Cases: Divorce 231. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 370, 379.]

temporary alimony. Interim alimony ordered by the court pending an action for divorce or separation in which one party has made a claim for permanent alimony. — Also termed provisional alimony; alimony pendente lite; allowance pendente lite. [Cases: Divorce 208. C.J.S. Divorce §§ 315, 320–331, 336–339, 422–426.]

transitional alimony. See rehabilitative alimony.

ALIOQUI SUCCESSURUS

alioqui successurus (ay-lee-oh-kwI s<<schwa>>k-ses-<<schwa>>-r<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Hist. (Of an heir) otherwise entitled to succeed. • The phrase appeared in reference to an heir who would have succeeded to the property by law, even without a deed granting succession rights. — Also spelled alioquin successurus.

“In the general case, an heir who succeeds to an estate, incurs by his succession liability for the debts and obligations of his ancestor .... But if the heir succeeding to the estate can take it up in a different character from that of heir of the last proprietor, if he be alioqui successurus, such liability is not incurred.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 38 (4th ed. 1894).

ALIQVALIS PROBATIO

aliqualis probatio (al-i-kway-lis proh-bay-shee-oh). [Law Latin] Hist. Proof of some sort. • The phrase referred to evidence that, although not meeting strict legal requirements, was the best available under the circumstances.

ALIQUOT

aliquot (al-<<schwa>>-kwot), adj. Contained in a larger whole an exact number of times; fractional <5 is an aliquot part of 30>.

ALIUOT-PART RULE

aliquot-part rule. The principle that a person must intend to acquire a fractional part of the ownership of property before a court can declare a resulting trust in the person's favor. [Cases: Trusts 62–90. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion §§ 10–11, 128–142, 144–173.]

ALITER

aliter (al-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>r). [Latin] Otherwise; it would be otherwise.

“If I trespass on another's land, and make an excavation there without leaving any rubbish on the land, the trespass ceases as soon as I leave the land, and does not continue until I have filled the excavation up again. Consequently only one action will lie, and in it full damages are recoverable for both the past and the future. Aliter if I have brought a heap of soil and left it on the plaintiff's land.” R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 42 (17th ed. 1977).

allegation,n.1. The act of declaring something to be true. 2. Something declared or asserted as a matter of fact, esp. in a legal pleading; a party's formal statement of a factual matter as being true or provable, without its having yet been proved. — allege,vb.

defensive allegation.Eccles. law. A defendant's response in an ecclesiastical action; specif., a defendant's pleading of the facts relied upon that require the plaintiff's response under oath. Cf. primary allegation (2).

“The proceedings in the ecclesiastical courts are therefore regulated according to the practice of the civil and canon laws .... [T]heir ordinary course of proceeding is; first, by citation, to call the party injuring before them. Then ... to set forth the complainant's ground of complaint. To this succeeds the defendant's answer upon oath; when, if he denies or extenuates the charge, they proceed to proofs by witnesses examined, and their depositions taken down in writing, by an officer of the court. If the defendant has any circumstances to offer in his defence, he must also propound them in what is called his defensive allegation, to which he is entitled in his turn to the plaintiff's answer upon oath, and may from thence proceed to proofs as well as his antagonist.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 100 (1768).

disjunctive allegation.A statement in a pleading or indictment that expresses something in the alternative, usu. with the conjunction “or” . [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 675; Indictment and Information 72; Pleading 20, 53. C.J.S. Indictments and Informations § 152; Pleading §§ 72–73, 150.]

material allegation.In a pleading, an assertion that is essential to the claim, charge, or defense primary allegation. 1. The principal charge made against an adversary in a legal proceeding.

2.Eccles. law. The opening pleading in an action in ecclesiastical court. Cf. defensive allegation.

permanent allegiance.The lasting allegiance owed to a state by citizens or subjects.

temporary allegiance.The impermanent allegiance owed to a state by a resident alien during the period of resi-dence.

2.Hist. A vassal's obligation to the liege lord. See LIEGE.

ALL-ELEMENTS RULE

all-elements rule. Patents. The doctrine that each element of a claim must be present in an allegedly infringing device in order to establish literal infringement. • This rule acts to limit the doctrine of equivalents and prevent the doctrine's application to an entire claim, rather than the claim's constituent elements. — Also termed all-limitations rule. Cf. ALL-STEPS RULE E; INHERENCY DOCTRINE. [Cases: Patents 226.6. C.J.S. Patents § 415.]

ALLEN&lt;TT&gt; CHARGE

Allen charge. Criminal procedure. A supplemental jury instruction given by the court to encourage a deadlocked jury, after prolonged deliberations, to reach a verdict. Allen v. United States, 164 U.S. 492, 17 S.Ct. 154 (1896). — Also termed dynamite charge; dynamite instruction; nitroglycerine charge; shotgun instruction; third-degree instruction. [Cases: Criminal Law 865(1.5). C.J.S. Criminal Law § 1386.]

ALLER A DIEU

aller a Dieu (a-lay <<schwa>> dyuuordyoo). [Law French] To go to God. • This phrase prays for the case to be dismissed from court. — Sometimes spelled aler a Dieu. Cf. ADIEU.

ALLER SANS JOUR

aller sans jour (a-lay sanzhoor). [Law French] To go without day. • This phrase prays for a final dismissal of a case. — Also spelled aler sans jour. See GO HENCE WITHOUT DAY; ADEU.

ALL-ESTATE CLAUSE

all-estate clause. See ALL-THE-ESTATE CLAUSE.

ALL-EVENTS TEST

all-events test. Tax. A requirement that all events fixing an accrual-method taxpayer's right to receive income or incur expense must occur before the taxpayer can report an item of income or expense. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3373.]

ALLEVIARE

alleviare (<<schwa>>-lee-vee-air-ee), vb. [Law Latin] To levy or pay a fine or composition.

ALL FAULTS, WITH

all faults, with. See AS IS.

ALL FOURS

all fours. See ON ALL FOURS.

ALL-HOLDERS RULE

all-holders rule. Securities. 1. An SEC rule that prohibits a public offering by the issuer of shares to some, but not all, of the holders of a class of shares. 2. An SEC rule requiring a tender offeror to make its offer to all the target company's shareholders. [Cases: Securities Regulation 52.30–52.50. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 121–122, 127–128, 131–138, 140–141.]

alliance. 1. A bond or union between persons, families, states, or other parties. Cf. STRATEGIC ALLIANCE. 2. Int'l law. A union or association of two or more states or nations, usu. formed by league or treaty, esp. for jointly waging war or mutually protecting against and repelling hostile attacks. • An example is the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). Cf. DÉTENTE; ENTENTE.

ALLIED OFFENSE

allied offense. See OFFENSE(1).

ALL-INCLUSIVE MORTGAGE

all-inclusive mortgage. See wraparound mortgage under MORTGAGE.

ALLISION

allision (<<schwa>>-lɪzh-<<schwa>>n), n. Maritime law. The contact of a vessel with a stationary object such as an anchored vessel or a pier. • In modern practice, “collision” is often used where “allision” was once the preferred term. Cf. COLLISION. [Cases: Shipping 81. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 184–187.] — allide (<<schwa>>-lɪd), vb.

ALL-LIMITATIONS RULE

all-limitations rule. See ALL-ELEMENTS RULE.

ALLOCABLE

allocable (al-<<schwa>>-k-<<schwa>>-b-<<schwa>>l), adj. That can be assigned or allocated.

ALLOCATION

allocation, n. A designation or apportionment for a specific purpose; esp., the crediting of a receipt or the charging of a disbursement to an account < allocation of funds>. — allocate, vb. — allocable, adj. — allocator, n.

ALLOCATIONE FACIENDA

allocatione facienda (al-<<schwa>>-kay-shee-oh-nee fay-shee-en-d-<<schwa>>), n. See DE ALLOCATIONE FACIENDA.

ALLOCATUR

allocatur (al-<<schwa>>-kay-t-<<schwa>>r). [Law Latin] It is allowed. • This word formerly indicated that a writ, bill, or other pleading was allowed. It is still used today in Pennsylvania to denote permission to appeal. — Also termed allogatur.

special allocatur. An allowance of a writ (such as a writ of error) that is legally required in certain cases.

ALLOCUTE

allocute (al-<<schwa>>-kyoot), vb. To deliver an allocution in court.

ALLOCUTION

allocution (al-<<schwa>>-kyoo-sh*<<schwa>>*n), n. Criminal procedure. 1. A trial judge's formal address to a convicted defendant, asking him or her to speak in mitigation of the sentence to be imposed. • This address is required under Fed. R. Crim. P. 32(c)(3)(C). 2. An unsworn statement from a convicted defendant to the sentencing judge or jury in which the defendant can ask for mercy, explain his or her conduct, apologize for the crime, or say anything else in an effort to lessen the impending sentence. • This statement is not subject to cross-examination. [Cases: Sentencing and Punishment 356–360. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 1498.]

victim allocution. A crime victim's address to the court before sentencing, usu. urging a harsher punishment. [Cases: Sentencing and Punishment 361. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 1460, 1472, 1479–1480, 1492–1495, 1530, 1779.]

ALLOCUTORY

allocutory (<<schwa>>-lok-y*<<schwa>>*-tor-ee), adj. Of or relating to an allocution <allocutory pleas for mercy>.

ALLOCUTUS

allocutus. See ARREST OF JUDGMENT.

ALLOD

allod (al-*<<schwa>>*d), n. Hist. The domain of a household.

ALLODIAL

alodial (<<schwa>>-loh-dee-*<<schwa>>*l), adj. Held in absolute ownership; pertaining to an allodium. Cf. FEUDAL. — Also spelled alodial. — allodially, adv.

ALLODIUM

allodium (<<schwa>>-loh-dee-<<schwa>>m), n. An estate held in fee simple absolute. — Also spelled alodium. — Also termed alod; alode. [Cases: Estates in Property 5. C.J.S. Estates §§ 11–12.]

“In this country, one who has full ownership of land is said to own it allodially — that is, free of feudal services and incidents.” Thomas F. Bergin & Paul G. Haskell, Preface to Estates in Land and Future Interests 18 (2d ed. 1984).

ALLOGATUR

allogatur. See ALLOCATUR.

ALLOGRAPH

allograph (al-<<schwa>>-graf). An agent's writing or signature for the principal. • This is the antonym of auto-graph. [Cases: Principal and Agent 132(1).]

ALLONGE

allonge (a-lawnz). A slip of paper sometimes attached to a negotiable instrument for the purpose of receiving further indorsements when the original paper is filled with indorsements. • Former UCC § 3-202 required that indorsements be made on the instrument unless there was no space — and only then could an allonge be used. Current § 3-204(a) eliminates that requirement and provides that “a paper affixed to the instrument is part of the instrument.” The UCC comment makes it clear that the allonge is valid even if space is available on the instrument. [Cases: Bills and Notes 183. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 147, 149.]

ALL-OR-NONE OFFERING

all-or-none offering. See OFFERING.

ALL-OR-NONE ORDER

all-or-none order. See ORDER(8).

ALL-OR-NOTHING RULE

all-or-nothing rule. A gloss on the rule against perpetuities holding that a class gift is invalid in its entirety if it is invalid in part. • The effect is to invalidate a class member's interest even if it vests within the period of the rule because it may be subject to partial divestment by the remote interest of another class member. [Cases: Perpetuities 4(1). C.J.S. Perpetuities §§ 2, 12, 15–18, 20–24, 27–28, 30, 33, 35–36, 52–53.]

ALLOTMENT

allotment, n. 1. A share or portion of something, such as property previously held in common or shares in a corporation, or time assigned to speakers or sides in a deliberative assembly. [Cases: Common Lands 14. C.J.S. Common Lands §§ 17–19.] 2. In American Indian law, the selection of specific land awarded to an individual allottee from a common holding. [Cases: Indians 13. C.J.S. Indians §§ 82, 84.] — allot, vb.

---

allotment certificate.Securities. A document that records the essential elements of a subscription of shares, as how many shares are to be purchased, the price to be paid, and the payment and delivery schedule.

ALLOTMENT NOTE

allotment note.English law. A seaman's written assignment of a portion of his wages to a wife, parent, grand-parent, or sibling. • These notes are governed by the Merchant Shipping Act of 1970, § 13(1).

ALLOTMENT SYSTEM

allotment system.English law. The practice of dividing land into small portions for cultivation by agricultural laborers and others.

ALLOTTEE

allottee. One to whom an allotment is made; a recipient of an allotment.

ALLOWABLE STATE

allowable state.Patents. Of a patent claim, the condition of containing patentable subject matter in an acceptable form.

ALLOWANCE

allowance. 1. A share or portion, esp. of money that is assigned or granted.

allowance pendente lite.See temporary alimony under ALIMONY.

backhaul allowance.A price discount given to customers who get their goods from a seller's warehouse as a reflection of the seller's freight-cost savings.

family allowance.A portion of a decedent's estate set aside by statute for a surviving spouse, children, or parents, regardless of any testamentary disposition or competing claims. • Every state has a statute authorizing the probate court to award an amount for the temporary maintenance and support of the surviving spouse (and often for dependent children). The allowance may be limited for a fixed period (18 months under the Uniform Probate Code) or may continue until all contests are resolved and a decree of distribution is entered. This support, together with probate homesteads and personal-property allowances, is in addition to whatever interests pass by the will or by intestate succession. See probate homestead under HOMESTEAD. Cf. spousal allowance. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 173–201. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators §§ 344–393.]

gratuitous allowance.A pension voluntarily granted by a public entity. • The gratuitous (rather than contractual) nature of this type of allowance gives the pensioner no vested rights in the allowance. [Cases: Pensions 2.]

spousal allowance.A portion of a decedent's estate set aside by statute for a surviving spouse, regardless of any testamentary disposition or competing claims. • This allowance is superior to the claims of general creditors. In some states, it is even preferred to the expenses of administration, funeral, and last illness of the spouse. — Also termed widow's allowance; widower's allowance. See probate homestead under HOMESTEAD. Cf. family allowance. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 173–201. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators §§ 344–393.]

widower's allowance. See spousal allowance.

widow's allowance. See spousal allowance.

2. The sum awarded by a court to a fiduciary as payment for services. 3. A deduction.

depletion allowance. A tax deduction for the owners of oil, gas, mineral, or timber resources corresponding to the reduced value of the property resulting from the removal of the resource. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3490, 3501, 3504. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 261–265.]

4. Archaic. A special sum that a court awards to the prevailing party in addition to the usual costs of court, esp. in a difficult case. — Also termed extra allowance; special allowance. 5. Patents. The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office's decision to issue a patent to an applicant; specif., the patent examiner's approval of an application's claims. • Once a Notice of Allowance is sent, the inventor must pay an issue fee before the PTO issues the patent. [Cases: Patents 107. C.J.S. Patents §§ 157–158.] 6. Trademarks. The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office's decision to approve a trademark for which the application was made under § 1(b) of the Lanham Act. • If a trademark application is made under § 1(b) and approved by the PTO, the PTO issues a certificate of registration and publishes notice of the registration in the Official Gazette. [Cases: Trade Regulation 214. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 180.]

ALLOWED APPLICATION

allowed application. See PATENT APPLICATION.

ALLOW THE APPEAL

allow the appeal. See REVERSE.

ALLOYNOUR

alloynour (<<schwa>>-loy-n<<schwa>>r). [Law French] Hist. One who conceals, steals, or furtively carries off something.

ALL-PURPOSE PUBLIC FIGURE

all-purpose public figure. See PUBLIC FIGURE.

ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

All rights reserved. Copyright. A phrase required as part of a valid copyright notice under the Buenos Aires Convention. • Because other international copyright treaties do not require the phrase, and all signatories to the Buenos Aires Convention are parties to other treaties, the phrase is now surplusage.

ALL-RISK INSURANCE

all-risk insurance. See INSURANCE.

ALL-STEPS RULE

all-steps rule. Patents. The doctrine that in order for a method or process claim to be literally infringed by an accused process, the accused process must have every step and limitation — or an equivalent — of the infringed claim. Cf. ALL-ELEMENTS RULE. [Cases: Patents 229. C.J.S. Patents § 410.]

ALL SUBSTANTIAL RIGHTS

all substantial rights. Patents. Every right in a patent (whether or not held by the grantor) that is of value when the patent rights or an undivided interest in a patent is transferred. • A transfer is not a transfer of all substantial rights to a patent if: (1) it is territorially restricted; (2) its term is less than the patent term; (3) it contains field-of-use limitations; or (4) it does not convey rights to all claims in the patent. [Cases: Patents 202(1). C.J.S. Patents § 332.]

ALL-THE-ESTATE CLAUSE

all-the-estate clause. English law. The provision in a conveyance transferring “all the estate, right, title, interest, claims, and demand” of the grantor in the property conveyed. — Also termed all-estate clause.

“It was also usual before 1882 to add what was called an ‘all estate clause’ with the object of ensuring that the entire interest of the grantor should be transferred. This was as a matter of fact quite ineffective to transfer any-thing that would not pass automatically, and it is now omitted in reliance on the enactment that, unless a contrary intention is expressed, every conveyance is effectual to pass all the estate, right, title, interest, claim, and demand which the conveying parties respectively have in, to, or on the property.” G.C. Cheshire, Modern Law of Real Property 679–80 (3d ed. 1933).

allurement. Torts. An attractive object that tempts a trespassing child to meddle when the child ought to abstain. See ATTRACTIVE-NUISANCE DOCTRINE. [Cases: Negligence 1172–1178. C.J.S. Negligence §§ 399, 476–477, 494–526.]

alluvial mining. The practice of removing sand and gravel from a riverbed.

ALLUVIO MARIS

alluvio maris (<<schwa>>-loo-vee-oh mar-is). [Latin “alluvion of the sea”] The formation of soil or land from the sea.

alluvion (<<schwa>>-loo-vee-<<schwa>>n). [fr. Latin alluvio “flood”] Roman & civil law. 1.

Strictly, the flow or wash of water against a shore or riverbank. 2. An accumulation of soil, clay, or other material deposited by water; esp., in land law, an addition of land caused by the buildup of deposits from running water, the added land then belonging to the owner of the property to which it is added. — Also termed alluvium. 3. Louisiana law. An accumulation of soil, clay, or other material deposited on the bank of a river. • In Louisiana, lands formed on a seashore or the bank of a navigable lake are not alluvion. They belong to the state rather than the riparian owners. Cf. ACCRETION(1); AVULSION(2); DELICTION; EROSION. [Cases: Navigable Waters 44; Waters and Water Courses 93. C.J.S. Navigable Waters § 94; Waters §§ 177–182, 184–185.] — alluvial,adj. — allu-viate,vb. — alluviation,n.

ALLUVIUM

alluvium. See ALLUVION(2).

ALL WRITS ACT

All Writs Act. A federal statute that gives the U.S. Supreme Court and all courts established by Congress the power to issue writs in aid of their jurisdiction and in conformity with the usages and principles of law. 28 USCA § 1651(a). [Cases: Federal Courts 10.1.]

ALLY

ALTA VIA

alta via (al-t<<schwa>> vI-<<schwa>>). [Law Latin] A highway.

ALTERATION

alteration. 1. Property. A substantial change to real estate, esp. to a structure, usu. not involving an addition to or removal of the exterior dimensions of a building's structural parts. • Although any addition to or improvement of real estate is by its very nature an alteration, real-estate lawyers habitually use alteration in reference to a lesser change. Still, to constitute an alteration, the change must be substantial — not simply a trifling modification.

structural alteration. A significant change to a building or other structure, essentially creating a different building or structure.

material alteration. 1. A significant change in something; esp., a change in a legal instrument sufficient to alter the instrument's legal meaning or effect. [Cases: Alteration of Instruments 1. C.J.S. Alteration of Instruments §§ 2–4.] 2. An unauthorized change in an instrument or an addition to an incomplete instrument resulting in the modification of a party's obligations. UCC § 3-407(a). [Cases: Alteration of Instruments 1–30. C.J.S. Alteration of Instruments §§ 2–99, 104–109.]

ALTERCATION

altercation. A vehement dispute; a noisy argument.

“altercation. The traditional view is that this word refers to ‘a noisy brawl or dispute,’ not rising to the seriousness of physical violence.... But in AmE, the word now often denotes some type of scuffling or fighting, especially in police jargon.” Bryan A. Garner, A Dictionary of Modern American Usage 34 (1998).

ALTER EGO

alter ego. A corporation used by an individual in conducting personal business, the result being that a court may impose liability on the individual by piercing the corporate veil when fraud has been perpetrated on someone dealing with the corporation. See PIERCING THE CORPORATE VEIL. [Cases: Corporations 1.4(4). C.J.S. Corporations § 12.]

ALTER-EGO RULE

alter-ego rule. 1. Corporations. The doctrine that shareholders will be treated as the owners of a corporation's property, or as the real parties in interest, whenever it is necessary to do so to prevent fraud or to do justice. [Cases: Corporations 1.4(4). C.J.S. Corporations § 12.] 2. Criminal law. The principle that one who defends another against attack stands in the position of that other person and can use only the amount of force that the other person could use under the circumstances. [Cases: Assault and Battery 68; Homicide 757. C.J.S. Assault and Battery § 93.]

ALTERING OR AMENDING A JUDGMENT

altering or amending a judgment. A trial court's act of correcting a substantive mistake in a judgment, as by correcting a manifest error of law or fact. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e). [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 2641–2662.]

ALTERNAT

alternat (awl-t<<schwa>>r-nit or al-ter-nah). [French] The rotation in precedence among states, diplomats, etc., esp. in the signing of treaties. • This practice gives each diplomat a copy of the treaty with the diplomat's signature appearing first.

ALTERNATE

alternate. Parliamentary law. A proxy for a delegate, usu. chosen in the same manner as the delegate rather than chosen by the delegate. See DELEGATE(2); PROXY(1).

ALTERNATE LEGACY

alternate legacy. See LEGACY.

ALTERNATE VALUATION DATE

alternate valuation date. Tax law. The date six months after a decedent's death. • Generally, the estate can elect to appraise the decedent's property either as of the date of the decedent's death or as of the alternate valuation date. See BASIS. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4184.20; Taxation 895(4). C.J.S. Taxation §§ 1902–1903.]

ALTERNATIVE CONTRACT

alternative contract. See CONTRACT.

ALTERNATIVE DEVISE

alternative devise. See DEVISE.

ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION

alternative dispute resolution. A procedure for settling a dispute by means other than litigation, such as arbitration or mediation. — Abbr. ADR. — Also termed dispute resolution. See ARBITRATION; MEDIATION. [Cases: Arbitration 1. C.J.S. Arbitration §§ 2–3.]

“ADR can be defined as encompassing all legally permitted processes of dispute resolution other than litigation. While this definition (or something like it) is widely used, ADR proponents may object to it on the ground that it privileges litigation by giving the impression that litigation is the normal or standard process of dispute resolution, while alternative processes are aberrant or deviant. That impression is false. Litigation is a relatively rarely used process of dispute resolution. Alternative processes, especially negotiation, are used far more frequently. Even disputes involving lawyers are resolved by negotiation far more often than litigation. So ADR is not defined as everything-but-litigation because litigation is the norm. Litigation is not the norm. ADR is defined as every-thing-but-litigation because litigation, as a matter of law, is the default process of dispute resolution.” Stephen J. Ware, Alternative Dispute Resolution § 1.5, at 5–6 (2001).

ALTERNATIVE EXPRESSION

alternative expression. Patents. In a patent claim, a recitation of two or more elements or limitations that perform the same function <iron, steel, or other magnetic material>. • Although once contrary to U.S. Patent and Trade-mark Office policy, alternative expressions are now permitted if they present no uncertainty or ambiguity about the scope or clarity of the claims. — Also termed alternative language. [Cases: Patents 101(5).]

ALTERNATIVE JUDGMENT

alternative judgment. See JUDGMENT.

ALTERNATIVE LIABILITY

alternative liability. See LIABILITY.

ALTERNATIVE MANDAMUS

alternative mandamus. See MANDAMUS.

ALTERNATIVE-MEANS DOCTRINE

alternative-means doctrine.Criminal law. The principle that when a crime may be committed in more than one way, the jury must be unanimous on the defendant's guilt but need not be unanimous on the possible different methods of committing the crime, as long as each possible method is supported by substantial evidence. [Cases: Criminal Law 872.5. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 1396–1398, 1543.]

AMBIGUITAS PATENS

ambiguitas patens (am-bi-gyoo-<<schwa>>-tas pay-tenz). See patent ambiguity under AMBIGUITY.

AMBIGUITY

ambiguity (am-bi-gyoo-<<schwa>>-tee), n. An uncertainty of meaning or intention, as in a contractual term or statutory provision. Cf. MEANING. [Cases: Contracts 143(2); Statutes 190. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 303–305; Statutes § 321.] — ambiguous (am-big-yoo-*<<schwa>>*s), adj.

“In the context of statutory interpretation the word most frequently used to indicate the doubt which a judge must entertain before he can search for and, if possible, apply a secondary meaning is ‘ambiguity’. In ordinary language this term is often confined to situations in which the same word is capable of meaning two different things, but, in relation to statutory interpretation, judicial usage sanctions the application of the word ‘ambiguity’ to describe any kind of doubtful meaning of words, phrases or longer statutory provisions. Hinchy's case prompted the suggestion that if, in a particular context, words convey to different judges a different range of meanings ‘derived from, not fanciful speculations or mistakes about linguistic usage, but from true knowledge about the use of words, they are ambiguous.’ ” Rupert Cross, Statutory Interpretation 76–77 (1976).

ambiguity on the factum. An ambiguity relating to the foundation of an instrument, such as a question relating to whether a testator intended for a particular clause to be part of an agreement, whether a codicil was intended to republish a former will, or whether the residuary clause was accidentally omitted.

calculated ambiguity. A purposeful use of unclear language, usu. when two negotiating parties cannot agree on clear, precise language and therefore leave a decision-maker to sort out the meaning in case of a dispute. • Strictly speaking, this is a misnomer: the more precise term is vagueness, not ambiguity. See VAGUENESS(1).

extrinsic ambiguity. See latent ambiguity.

intrinsic ambiguity. See patent ambiguity.

latent ambiguity. An ambiguity that does not readily appear in the language of a document, but instead arises from a collateral matter when the document's terms are applied or executed <the contract contained a latent ambiguity: the shipping terms stated that the goods would arrive on the Peerless, but two ships have that name>. — Also termed extrinsic ambiguity; equivocation; ambiguitas latens. [Cases: Contracts 143(2); Evidence 452. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 303–305; Evidence §§ 1222–1224.]

“Instead of this word ‘equivocation,’ the phrase ‘latent ambiguity’ is sometimes used by courts, — ‘latent’ because it does not develop until we seek to apply it and then discover the equivocation. This phrase was invented by Lord Bacon, in one of his maxims, and it long held sway; but it has only served to confuse discussion, and his other word for the same thing, ‘equivocation,’ is more suitable, and has come into general use since Professor Thayer's masterly analysis of the subject some fifty years ago.” John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 529 (1935). — In fact, the usual term today is latent ambiguity. — Eds.

patent ambiguity (payt-<<schwa>>nt). An ambiguity that clearly appears on the face of a document, arising from the language itself <the nonperformance was excused because the two different prices expressed in the contract created a patent ambiguity>. — Also termed intrinsic ambiguity; ambiguitas patens. [Cases: Contracts 143(2); Evidence 451. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 303–305; Evidence §§ 1222, 1224–1225.]

“[L]atent ambiguity ... must be carefully distinguished from patent ambiguity, where words are omitted, or contradict one another; for in such cases explanatory evidence is not admissible. Where a bill of exchange was expressed in words to be drawn for ‘two hundred pounds’ but in figures for ‘£245,’ evidence was not admitted to show that the figures expressed the intention of the parties.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 401 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

AMBIGUITY DOCTRINE

ambiguity doctrine. See CONTRA PROFERENTEM.

A formal reparation for an offense or injury, done by making an open and usu. humiliating acknowledgment and apology so as to restore the victim's honor. • This apology could be accomplished, for example, by walking into church with a rope around the neck and a torch in hand, begging forgiveness from the injured party.

AMENDE PROFITABLE

amende profitable (<<schwa>>-mend proh-fee-tahb-l<<schwa>>), n. Roman–Dutch law. In a defamation action, reparations made by a defendant who pays a sum that the plaintiff has named under oath as being less than full satisfaction for the claim.

AMENDER

amender, n. One who amends (a document, etc.).

AMENDMENT

amendment. 1. A formal revision or addition proposed or made to a statute, constitution, pleading, order, or other instrument; specif., a change made by addition, deletion, or correction; esp., an alteration in wording. [Cases: Constitutional Law 4, 10; Statutes 131. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 5–6; Statutes § 243.] 2. The process of making such a revision.

amendment as of course. An amendment, usu. to pleadings, that a party has a statutory right to apply for without the court's permission.

amendment on court's own motion. A change to a pleading or other document by the judge without a motion from a party. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 826; Pleading 232. C.J.S. Pleading § 326.]

nunc pro tunc amendment (n<<schwa>>ngk proh t<<schwa>>ngkornuungk proh tuungk). An amendment that is given retroactive effect, usu. by court order. [Cases: Judgment 326; Motions 56(2). C.J.S. Judgments § 299; Motions and Orders §§ 51, 61.]

3. Parliamentary law. A motion that changes another motion's wording by striking out text, inserting or adding text, or substituting text. See AMEND (2). Cf. BLANK(2).

amendment by adding. An amendment that places new wording at the end of a motion or of a paragraph or other readily divisible part within a motion. • Some authorities treat amendment by adding as a form of amendment by inserting. Cf. amendment by inserting.

amendment by inserting. An amendment that places new wording within or around a motion's current wording. • Some authorities distinguish amendment by adding, which places new wording after the current wording, from amendment by inserting. Cf. amendment by adding.

amendment by striking out. An amendment that removes wording from a motion's current wording.

amendment by striking out and inserting. An amendment that removes wording and replaces it with alternative wording. • The motion can properly apply only to inserting wording in place of the wording being struck out; it cannot strike out some wording and insert new wording in a different place. See amendment by substituting; CREATE A BLANK.

amendment by substituting. 1. A special type of amendment by striking out and inserting that replaces an entire main motion or a paragraph or other readily divisible part within a main motion; an amendment of greater scope than a perfecting amendment. Cf. perfecting amendment. 2. An amendment by striking out and inserting. See amendment by striking out and inserting. — Also termed amendment in the nature of a substitute (in sense 1); substitute; substitution; substitute amendment. • Parliamentary writers differ on when an amendment by striking out and inserting qualifies as an amendment by substituting. Some manuals treat the two as equivalent and apply the same rules to them. Others maintain that an amendment is not a substitute unless it replaces the entire main motion — or at least a readily divisible part within the main motion — and apply different rules to an amendment by substituting than to a less drastic amendment.

amendment in the nature of a substitute. See amendment by substituting (1).

amendment of the first degree. See primary amendment.

amendment of the first rank. See primary amendment.

amendment of the second degree. See secondary amendment.

amendment of the second rank. See secondary amendment.

amendment to the text. See primary amendment.

committee amendment. An amendment to a motion reported by a committee to which the motion was referred.

first-degree amendment. See primary amendment.

floor amendment. An amendment offered from the floor by an individual member, as distinguished from a committee amendment. Cf. committee amendment.

friendly amendment. An amendment that the mover of the motion being amended supports, and to which no other member objects.

“The term ‘friendly amendment’ is often used to describe an amendment offered by someone who is in sympathy with the purposes of the main motion, in the belief that the amendment will either improve the statement or effect of the main motion, presumably to the satisfaction of its maker, or will increase the chances of the main motion's adoption. Regardless of whether or not the maker of the main motion ‘accepts’ the amendment, it must be opened to debate and voted on formally (unless adopted by unanimous consent) and is handled under the same rules as amendments generally.” Henry M. Robert, Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised § 12, at 154 (10th ed. 2000).

“Often, such an amendment is proposed as a ‘friendly amendment,’ simply indicating that the member proposing the amendment feels it will be acceptable to the maker of the main motion. If the maker of the original motion does not wish to accept the amendment, the amendment must then receive a second to come before the assembly, and will receive the usual consideration by the assembly. However, even the acceptance of the proposed amendment by the maker of the motion is simply a statement of support, and every member of the assembly retains the right to object to the amendment's adoption by general consent, and to debate and vote on the amendment.” Alice hostile amendment. An amendment that is opposed by the supporters of the main motion.

killer amendment. An amendment that has the effect, intended or not, of ensuring the defeat of the main motion.

nongermane amendment. An amendment that adds an unrelated rider. • A nongermane amendment is out of order in most ordinary assemblies and many legislative bodies. But some legislative bodies, in jurisdictions where legislation may embrace more than one subject, allow nongermane amendments to a bill. See RIDER.

perfecting amendment. An amendment that merely edits the form of a main motion or a primary amendment but does not substantially change its content; an amendment of lesser scope than an amendment by substituting. Cf. amendment by substituting (1).

primary amendment. An amendment that directly amends the main motion. Cf. secondary amendment.

pro forma amendment. An amendment moved solely for the purpose of obtaining the floor and treated as withdrawn once the mover has spoken. • The customary pro forma amendment in Congress is a motion “to strike the last word.”

secondary amendment. An amendment that alters a pending primary amendment. Cf. primary amendment.

second-degree amendment. See secondary amendment.

substitute amendment. 1. A secondary amendment that substantially replaces rather than edits a primary amendment. 2. See amendment by substituting.

A MENSA ET THORO

a mensa et thoro (ay men-s<<schwa>> et thor-oh). [Latin “from board and hearth”] (Of a divorce decree) ef-fecting a separation of the parties rather than a dissolution of the marriage . • Not all states provide for such a proceeding. See divorce a mensa et thoro under DIVORCE; SEPARATION; A VINCULO MATRIMONII. [Cases: Divorce 155.C.J.S. Divorce §§ 223–225.]

AMERCE

amerce (<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>rs), vb.1. To impose a fine or penalty that is not fixed but is left to the court's discretion; to punish by amercement. 2. To fine or punish in any manner. — amerceable (<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>r-s<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l), amerciable (<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>r-see-<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l), adj.

“There were two more aspects to this financial scheme of permitting suitors to use the royal courts — for a con-sideration. The practice developed of ‘amercing’ or fining those who were ‘in the mercy of the king’ because they had put forward a false claim, or had made a false defense. In other words the loser of the suit had to pay a fine for his supposedly unjust effort to deny or resist the claim of his opponent.” Charles Herman Kinnane, A First Book on Anglo-American Law 272 (2d ed. 1952).

AMERCEMENT

amercement (<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>rs-m<<schwa>>nt), n.[fr. Law French estre à merci “to be at the mercy (of another),” fr. Latin merces “payment”] 1. The imposition of a discretionary fine or penalty by a court, esp. on an official for misconduct <an amercement proceeding>.2. The fine or penalty so imposed <an amercement charged to the sheriff for failing to return the writ of execution>. — Also termed cashlite; (archaically) amer-ciament; merciament. #### AMNESTY amnesty, n. A pardon extended by the government to a group or class of persons, usu. for a political offense; the act of a sovereign power officially forgiving certain classes of persons who are subject to trial but have not yet been convicted <the 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act provided amnesty for undocumented aliens already present in the country>. • Unlike an ordinary pardon, amnesty is usu. addressed to crimes against state sovereignty — that is, to political offenses with respect to which forgiveness is deemed more expedient for the public welfare than prosecution and punishment. Amnesty is usu. general, addressed to classes or even communities. — Also termed general pardon. See PARDON. [Cases: Pardon and Parole 26. C.J.S. Pardon and Parole §§ 3, 31.] — amnesty,vb.

“Amnesty... derives from the Greek amnestia (‘forgetting’), and has come to be used to describe measures of a more general nature, directed to offenses whose criminality is considered better forgotten.” Leslie Sebba, “Amnesty and Pardon,” in 1 Encyclopedia of Crime and Justice 59, 59 (Sanford H. Kadish ed., 1983).

express amnesty.Amnesty granted in direct terms.

implied amnesty.Amnesty indirectly resulting from a peace treaty executed between contending parties.

AMNESTY CLAUSE

amnesty clause.A clause, esp. one found in a peace treaty, that wipes out past offenses such as treason, sedition, rebellion, and even war crimes. • A sovereign may grant amnesty to all guilty persons or only to certain categories of offenders.

AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL

Amnesty International.An international nongovernmental organization founded in the early 1960s to protect human rights throughout the world. • Its mission is to “secure throughout the world the observance of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.” Amnesty Int’l Statute, art. 1.

A MORTE TESTATORIS

a morte testatoris (ay mor-tee tes-t<<schwa>>-tor-is). [Latin] Hist. From the death of the testator. • The phrase appeared in reference to the moment when a legacy vests in the beneficiary.

AMORTIZATION

amortization (am-<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>-zay-sh<<schwa>>n), n.1. The act or result of gradually extinguishing a debt, such as a mortgage, usu. by contributing payments of principal each time a periodic interest payment is due.

negative amortization.An increase in a loan's principal balance caused by monthly payments insufficient to pay accruing interest.

2. The act or result of apportioning the initial cost of a usu. intangible asset, such as a patent, over the asset's useful life. Cf. DEPRECIATION. — Sometimes also termed amortizement.

AMORTIZATION RESERVE

amortization reserve.See RESERVE.

AMORTIZATION SCHEDULE

amortization schedule. A schedule of periodic payments of interest and principal owed on a debt obligation; specif., a loan schedule showing both the amount of principal and interest that is due at regular intervals over the loan term and the remaining unpaid principal balance after each scheduled payment is made.

AMORTIZE

amortize, vb. 1. To extinguish (a debt) gradually, often by means of a sinking fund. 2. To arrange to extinguish (a debt) by gradual increments. 3. Hist. To alienate or convey lands to a corporation (that is, in mortmain). — Also spelled amortise. See MORTMAIN.

AMORTIZED LOAN

amortized loan. See LOAN.

AMORTIZED MORTGAGE

amortized mortgage. See MORTGAGE.

AMORTIZEMENT

amortizement. See AMORTIZATION.

AMOTION

amotion. 1. A turning out, as the eviction of a tenant or the removal of a person from office. [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 275; Officers and Public Employees 70. C.J.S. Landlord and Tenant §§ 716–718, 724; Officers and Public Employees § 175.] 2. The common-law procedure available to shareholders to remove a corporate director for cause. [Cases: Corporations 294. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 454–457.]

3. The wrongful moving or carrying away of another's personal property.

AMOUNT IN CONTROVERSY

amount in controversy. The damages claimed or relief demanded by the injured party in a lawsuit. • For a federal court to have diversity jurisdiction, the amount in controversy must exceed $75,000. 28 USCA § 1332(a). — Also termed jurisdictional amount; matter in controversy. See DIVERSITY OF CITIZENSHIP ; AGGREGATION DOCTRINE. [Cases: Courts 119, 167; Federal Courts 335.]

AMOUNT REALIZED

amount realized. Tax. The amount received by a taxpayer for the sale or exchange of an asset, such as cash, property, services received, or debts assumed by a buyer. Cf. GAIN(3); LOSS(2). [Cases: Internal Revenue 3194; Taxation 996. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 113; Taxation §§ 1732–1733.]

AMOVE

amove, vb. To remove (a person) from an office or position.

AMOVEAS MANUS

amoveas manus (ay-moh-vee-*<<schwa>>s man-<<schwa>>*s). [Law Latin “that you remove your hands”] Hist. 1. A judgment ordering the Crown to relinquish possession of land to the complainant. • The judgment is so called from the emphatic words quod manus domini regis amoveantur (“that the hands of the king be removed”). 2. The writ issued on the judgment.

AMPLIATIO

ampliatio (am-plee-ay-shee-oh), n. [Latin] Roman law. 1. The act of deferring or reserving judgment. 2. In a criminal trial before a comitia, the repeating of evidence at the jury's request. Pl. ampliaciones (am-plee-ay-shee-oh-nee-z).

ANALOG

analog.Patents. A different material, usu. a chemical or DNA sequence, that produces the same result as the specified material when used in a certain way. • To prevent others from free-riding on their innovations without technically infringing their exclusive rights, patent applicants often include analogs in their claims. — Also spelled analogue. — Also termed functional analog; equivalent.

ANALOGOUS ART

analogous art. See ART.

ANALOGOUS USE

analogous use. 1.Patents. The application of a process already known in one field of art to produce a similar result in another field. • Unless the fields are so unrelated or the outcomes so different as to produce a novel, useful, and nonobvious result, an analogous use is not patentable. 2.Trademarks. The use of a mark in marketing and advertising a product or service before the actual sale of the product or service, in order to establish the mark's use in commerce. • For the owner to take advantage of the analogous-use doctrine, the marketing campaign must be substantial and the product or service must be available soon after the campaign. An owner who files an in-tent-to-use application may tack on the period of analogous use for purposes of priority and incontestability.

ANALYTICAL JURISPRUDENCE

ANARCHIST

anarchist,n. One who advocates the overthrow of organized government by force or who believes in the absence of government as a political ideal. — anarchism (the philosophy), n.

ANARCHY

anarchy,n.1. Absence of government; lawlessness. 2. A sociopolitical theory holding that the only legitimate form of government is one under which individuals govern themselves voluntarily, free from any collective power structure enforcing compliance with social order. — anarchic,adj.

criminal anarchy. A doctrine advocating the overthrow of organized government by force or violence, by assassinating a head of government, or by some other unlawful act. • Most states have laws limiting speech that incites criminal anarchy. The laws do not apply to abstract philosophical expressions or predictions or like expressions protected by the First and Fourteenth Amendments. Criminal-anarchy statutes (e.g., 18 USCA § 2385) apply only to speech that is calculated to induce forceful and violent activity, such as attempts to incite people to riot, or that otherwise generates some “clear and present danger” that the advocated violent overthrow may be attempted or accomplished. See Gitlow v. New York, 268 U.S. 652, 666, 45 S.Ct. 625, 630 (1925).

ANATHEMA

anathema (<<schwa>>-nath-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>), n. An ecclesiastical curse that prohibits a person from receiving communion (as in excommunication) and bars the person from contact with members of the church. — anathematize, vb.

ANATOCISM

anatocism (<<schwa>>-nat-<<schwa>>-siz-<<schwa>>m), n. [fr. Greek anatokismos “to lend on interest again”] Rare. 1. Compound interest. See compound interest under INTEREST(3). 2. The practice of compounding interest.

ANCIENT FACT

ancient fact. See FACT.

ANCIENT HOUSE

ancient house. See HOUSE.

ANCIENT LAW

ancient law. The law of antiquity, considered esp. either from an anthropological standpoint or from the stand-point of tracing precursors to modern law.

“Ancient law uniformly refuses to dispense with a single gesture, however grotesque; with a single syllable, however its meaning may have been forgotten; with a single witness, however superfluous may be his testimony. The entire solemnities must be scrupulously completed by persons legally entitled to take part in them, or else the conveyance is null, and the seller is re-established in the rights of which he had vainly attempted to divest himself.” Henry S. Maine, Ancient Law 225–26 (17th ed. 1901).

ANCIENT-LIGHTS DOCTRINE

ancient-lights doctrine. The common-law principle by which a landowner acquired, after 20 years of uninter-rupted use, an easement preventing a neighbor from building an obstruction that blocks light from passing through the landowner's window. • The window (or other opening) is termed an ancient light. This doctrine has rarely been applied in the United States. — Also termed ancient-windows doctrine. [Cases: Easements 11. C.J.S. Easements § 51.]

“[A] notice ‘Ancient Lights,’ which is often seen affixed to the wall of a building, only denotes a claim by or on behalf of the owner that he has acquired, by prescription or otherwise, a right to a reasonable amount of light, free from interruption, over adjoining land; but it must not be supposed that such a notice is necessary in order to protect a legal right.” 2 Stephen's Commentaries on the Laws of England 347 (Crispin Warmington ed., 21st ed. 1950).

“Under the English doctrine of ancient lights, which has been soundly repudiated in this country, if a landowner had received sunlight across adjoining property for a specified period of time, the landowner was entitled to continue to receive unobstructed access to sunlight across the adjoining property; the landowner acquired a negative prescriptive easement and could prevent the adjoining landowner from obstructing access to light.” 1 Am. Jur. 2d Adjoining Landowners § 90, at 889 (1994).

ANCIENT READINGS

ancient readings.Hist. Lectures on ancient English statutes, formerly having substantial legal authority.

ANCIENT RENT

ANCILLARY TO PRIORITY

ancillary to priority. Patents. An issue that is so logically related to the issue of priority of invention that it cannot be separated from the issue of priority. • The question whether an issue is ancillary to priority was once used to challenge the jurisdiction of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, but the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences now has explicit jurisdiction over ancillary issues. [Cases: Patents 90(1). C.J.S. Patents §§ 120–122.]

ANCIPITIS USUS

ancipitis usus. See conditional contraband under CONTRABAND.

ANDERS<TT> BRIEF

Anders brief. Criminal procedure. A brief filed by a court-appointed defense attorney who wants to withdraw from the case on appeal based on a belief that the appeal is frivolous. • In an Anders brief, the attorney seeking to withdraw must identify anything in the record that might arguably support the appeal. The court then decides whether the appeal is frivolous and whether the attorney should be permitted to withdraw. Anders v. California, 386 U.S. 738, 87 S.Ct. 1396 (1967). — Also termed no-merit brief. [Cases: Criminal Law 1077.3. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 1689–1694.]

service consisting in the transport of goods or persons for the imperial post; a public Pony Express rider. 3.Hist. A service exacted by a lord beyond what is due. Pl. angariae.

ANGARY

angary (ang-g<<schwa>>-ree).Int'l law.A country's right, in war or other urgent circumstances, to seize — for temporary use — neutral merchant ships in its inland or territorial waters as well as aircraft within its territory, with full indemnity by the country. — Also termed right of angary; jus angariae; angaria.

“In many respects the content and scope of the right of angary remain unclear and there is little evidence of State practice on several controversial questions. In practice, the right has been exercised mainly in wartime. Never-theless, several writers consider it to be applicable in times of peace and in cases of absolute necessity, such as the evacuation of the population in the event of a national emergency.” Rainer Lagoni, “Angary, Right of,” in 1 Encyclopedia of Public International Law (1992).

vicious animal. 1. An animal that has shown itself to be dangerous to humans. 2. Loosely, one belonging to a breed or species that is known or reputed to be dangerous. • A vicious animal may be domestic, feral, or wild. See VICIOUS PROPENSITY.

wild animal. 1. An animal that, as a matter of common knowledge, is naturally untamable, unpredictable, dan-gerous, or mischievous. See FERAE NATURAE. 2. Any animal not statutorily designated as a domestic animal. — Also termed wild creature.

“Wild creatures, such as game, are part of the land and pass with it, though it cannot be said that they are within the ownership of any particular person. Wild creatures which have been tamed belong to the person who has tamed them, and animals too young to escape belong to the owner of the land on which they are, but in each case the owner has only a qualified property in them, for the moment they gain or regain their natural liberty the ownership is lost.” G.C. Cheshire, Modern Law of Real Property 118 (3d ed. 1933).

ANIMAL AND PLANT HEALTH INSPECTION SERVICE

Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. An agency in the U.S. Department of Agriculture responsible for controlling or eliminating pests and plant diseases by regulating the shipment of agricultural products within the United States. • Established in 1977, some of its functions were transferred to the U.S. Department of Homeland Security in 2003. — Abbr. #### ANIMO ET CORPORE animo et corpore (an-<<schwa>>-moh et kor-p<<schwa>>-ree), adv. [Latin] By the mind and by the body; by the intention and by the physical act of control < possession is acquired animo et corpore>.

ANIMO ET FACTO

animo et facto (an-<<schwa>>-moh et fak-toh). [Latin] Hist. By act and intention.

“Thus, for example, in acquiring a domicile, mere residence is not sufficient, if there be not the intention to acquire it, as domicile can only be acquired animo et facto.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 21 (4th ed. 1894).

ANIMO FELONICO

animus felonico (an-<<schwa>>-moh f<<schwa>>-lon-<<schwa>>-koh), adv.[Latin] With felonious intent; with the intention to commit a felony.

ANIMUS

animus (an-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s). [Latin] 1. Ill will; animosity.

class-based animus. A prejudicial disposition toward a discernible, usu. constitutionally protected, group of persons. • A class-based animus is an essential element of a civil-rights conspiracy case. [Cases: Civil Rights 1033(1), 1137. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 18, 20, 23–24, 34, 39–40.]

2. Intention. • All the following Latin “animus” phrases have analogous adverbial forms beginning with “animus” (the definition merely needing “with” at the outset). For example, animus furandi means “with the intention to steal,” animus testandi means “with testamentary intention,” etc.

animus adimendi (an-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s ad-i-men-dI). [Latin] The intention to adeem.

animus belligerendi (an-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s b<<schwa>>-lij-<<schwa>>-ren-d I). [Latin] The intention to wage war.

animus cancellandi (an-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s kan-s<<schwa>>-lan-dI). [Latin] The intention to cancel. • This phrase usu. refers to a will.

animus capiendi (an-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s kap-ee-en-dI). [Latin] The intention to take or capture.

animus contrahentium (an-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s kon-tr<<schwa>>-hen-shee-<<schwa>>m). [Latin] The intention of the contracting parties.

animus dedicandi (an-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s ded-<<schwa>>-kan-dI). [Latin] The intention to donate or dedicate.

animus defamandi (an-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s def-<<schwa>>-man-dI). [Latin] The intention to defame. [Cases: Libel and Slander 2. C.J.S. Libel and Slander; Injurious Falsehood § 43.]

animus derelinquendi (an-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s dee-rel-ing-kwen-dI). [Latin] The intention to abandon.

animus deserendi (an-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s des-<<schwa>>-ren-dI). [Latin] The intention to desert (usu. a spouse, child, etc.). [Cases: Divorce 37(3). C.J.S. Divorce § 52.]

animus differendi (an-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s dif-<<schwa>>-ren-dI). [Latin] The intention to obtain a delay. • The phrase animus differendi (“with the intention to obtain a delay”) appeared in reference to a presumption that certain actions of a defendant were designed to obtain a delay.

animus domini (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s dom-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-nI). [Latin] Roman law. The intent to exercise dominion over a thing; the intent to own something. Cf. animus possidendi.

“All possession has two elements, a physical and a mental, which the Romans distinguish as corpus and animus. The first is the physical relation of the possessor to the object. The second is his sense of that relation. If he is minded to deal with the thing as his own (animus domini — animus sibi habendi), no matter whether rightfully or wrongfully, he possesses in the fullest sense.” R.W. Lee, The Elements of Roman Law 179–80 (4th ed. 1956).

animus donandi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s doh-nan-dI). [Latin] The intention of donating; the intention to give. [Cases: Gifts 15.]

animus et factum (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s et fak-t⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m). [Latin “mind and deed”] The intention and the deed. • This phrase can refer to a person's intent to reside in a given country permanently or for an inde-finite period.

animus felonius (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s fe-loh-ni-k⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s). [Latin] The intention to commit a felony. [Cases: Criminal Law 20. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 31–33, 35–39; Negligence § 913.]

animus furandi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s fyuu-ran-dI). [Latin] The intention to steal. • In Roman law, the focus was on the unauthorized use of property rather than an intent to permanently deprive the owner of it. [Cases: Larceny 1, 3. C.J.S. Larceny §§ 1(1, 2), 9, 25–29.]

“[An] intent to deprive the owner of his property permanently, or an intent to deal with another's property un-lawfully in such a manner as to create an obviously unreasonable risk of permanent deprivation, [is] all that is required to constitute the animus furandi—or intent to steal.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 332–33 (3d ed. 1982).

animus gerendi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s j⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-ren-dI). [Latin] The intention to act as heir.

animus immiscendi et adeundi hereditatem (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s im-i-sen-d I et ad-ee-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-n-dI h⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-red-i-tay-t⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m). [Latin] The intention to meddle with and take up a succession.

animus indorsandi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s in-dor-san-dI). [Law Latin] Hist. The intention of indorsing. • One who indorsed a check animo indorsandi would be liable for the amount if the check was dishonored.

animus injuriandi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s in-joor-ee-an-dI). [Latin] The intention to injure, esp. to insult.

animus lucrandi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s loo-kran-dI). [Latin] The intention to make a gain or profit.

animus malus (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s mal-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s). [Latin] Evil intent.

animus manendi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-nen-dI). [Latin “will to remain”] The intention to remain; the intention to establish a permanent residence. — Also termed animus remandendi. [Cases: Domicile 4(2). C.J.S. Domicile §§ 11–19, 25–27, 29–34, 37–40.]

animus morandi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-ran-dI). [Latin “will to tarry”] The intention to remain. • Although animus morandi is broadly synonymous with animus manendi, morandi suggests less per-manency.

animus nocendi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s noh-sen-dI). [Latin] The intention to harm.

animus obligandi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s ahb-li-gan-dI). [Latin] The intention to enter into an obligation.

animus occidendi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s ahk-si-den-dI). [Latin] The intention to kill.

animus possidendi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s pah-s⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-den-dI). [Latin] Roman law. The intent to possess a thing. Cf. animus domini.

animus quo (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s kwoh). [Latin] The intent with which; motive.

animus recipiendi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s ri-sip-ee-en-dI). [Latin] The intention to receive.

animus recuperandi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s ri-k[y]oo-p⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-ran-dI). [Latin] The intention to recover.

animus remanendi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s rem-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-nen-dI). [Latin] See animus manendi.

animus republicandi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s ree-pub-l⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-kan-dI). [Latin] The intention to republish.

animus restituendi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s r⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-sti-tyoo-en-dI). [Latin] The intention to restore.

animus revertendi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s ree-v⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩r-ten-dI). [Latin] The intention to return (to a place). • In Roman law, this intent was a factor in deciding whether animals, such as doves and bees, remained in a person's ownership.

animus revocandi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s rev-oh-kan-dI). [Latin] The intention to revoke (a will) <her destruction of the will indicated that she had animus revocandi>. [Cases: Wills 170. C.J.S. Wills §§ 390, 393, 413–414.]

animus signandi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s sig-nan-dI). [Latin] The intention to sign. [Cases: Wills 72. C.J.S. Wills §§ 169–170.]

animus testandi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s tes-tan-dI). [Latin] Testamentary intention.

animus ulciscendi (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-m⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s ⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩l-si-sen-dI). [Latin] The intention to take revenge.

ANNATES

annates (an-ayts oran-its), n.[fr. Law Latin annata] See FIRST FRUITS(2).

ANNATS

annats (an-*<<schwa>>*ts). See FIRST FRUITS(2).

ANNEX

annex,n. Something that is attached, such as a document to a report or an addition to a building.

ANNEXATION

annexation,n.1. The act of attaching; the state of being attached. 2.Property. The point at which a fixture becomes a part of the realty to which it is attached. [Cases: Fixtures 6.] 3. A formal act by which a nation, state, or municipality incorporates land within its dominion. • In international law, the usual formalities of announcing annexation involve having specially commissioned officers hoist the national flag and read a proclamation. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 29. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 45–46, 54.] 4. The annexed land itself. Cf. ACCESSION (5). — annex,vb.

cherry-stem annexation. 1. Annexed land that resembles (on a map) a cherry because the annexed territory — the cherry — is not contiguous to the acquiring municipality, and the narrow corridor of annexed land leading to the targeted area resembles a stem. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 29(4). C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 48–51.] 2. The process of annexing land with this configuration.

ANNUITANT

annuitant (<<schwa>>-n[y]oo-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>nt), n. A beneficiary of an annuity. [Cases: Annuities 1. C.J.S. Annuities §§ 2-4, 6-9, 21.]

ANNUITY

annuity (<<schwa>>-n[y]oo-<<schwa>>-tee). 1. An obligation to pay a stated sum, usu. monthly or annually, to a stated recipient. • These payments terminate upon the death of the designated beneficiary. [Cases: Annuities 1.C.J.S. Annuities §§ 2–4, 6–9, 21.] 2. A fixed sum of money payable periodically. 3. A right, often acquired under a life-insurance contract, to receive fixed payments periodically for a specified duration. Cf. PENSION. 4. Patents. See MAINTENANCE FEE. 5. A savings account with an insurance company or investment company, usu. established for retirement income. • Payments into the account accumulate tax-free, and the account is taxed only when the annuitant withdraws money in retirement.

annuity certain. An annuity payable over a specified period, regardless of whether the annuitant dies. — Also termed term annuity.

annuity due. An annuity that makes payments at the beginning of each pay period. Cf. ordinary annuity.

cash-refund annuity. An annuity providing for a lump-sum payment after the annuitant's death of the difference between the total received and the price paid.

constituted annuity. Louisiana law. An annuity that has a maximum duration of ten years and, under some circumstances, can be redeemed before the term's expiration. La. Civ. Code art. 2796.

contingent annuity. 1. An annuity that begins making payments when some future event occurs, such as the death of a person other than the annuitant. 2. An annuity that makes an uncertain number of payments, depending on the outcome of a future event.

continuing annuity. See survivorship annuity.

deferred annuity. An annuity that begins making payments on a specified date if the annuitant is alive at that time. — Also termed deferred-payment annuity. Cf. immediate annuity.

fixed annuity. An annuity that guarantees fixed payments, either for life or for a specified period.

group annuity. An annuity payable to members of a group, esp. employees, who are covered by a single annuity contract, such as a group pension plan.

immediate annuity. An annuity paid for with a single premium and that begins to pay benefits within the first payment interval. Cf. deferred annuity.

joint annuity. An annuity payable to two annuitants until one of them dies, at which time the annuity terminates for the survivor (unless the annuity also provides for survivorship rights). See survivorship annuity.

life annuity. An annuity payable only during the annuitant's lifetime, even if the annuitant dies prematurely.

life-income period-certain annuity. An annuity that pays a specified number of payments even if the annuitant dies before the minimum amount has been paid.

nonrefund annuity. An annuity with guaranteed payments during the annuitant's life, but with no refund to anyone at death. — Also termed straight life annuity; pure annuity.

ordinary annuity. An annuity that makes payments at the end of each pay period. Cf. annuity due.

private annuity. An annuity from a private source rather than from a public or life-insurance company.

pure annuity. See nonrefund annuity.

refund annuity. An annuity that, upon the annuitant's death, pays to the annuitant's estate the difference between the purchase price and the total payments received during the annuitant's lifetime.

retirement annuity. An annuity that begins making payments only after the annuitant's retirement. • If the annuitant dies before retirement, an agreed amount will usu. be refunded to the annuitant's estate.

single-premium deferred annuity. An annuity for which a party pays a lump-sum premium in exchange for receiving a specified sum at a future date. • The income earned on the investment is tax-free until it is withdrawn. — Abbr. SPDA.

straight annuity. An annuity that makes payments in fixed amounts at periodic intervals. Cf. variable annuity.

straight life annuity. See nonrefund annuity.

survivorship annuity. An annuity providing for continued payments to a survivor, usu. a spouse, after the original annuitant dies. — Also termed continuing annuity.

ANNUITY TRUST

annuity trust. See TRUST.

ANNULMENT

annulment (<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>l-m<<schwa>>nt), n. 1. The act of nullifying or making void; VOIDANCE. 2. A judicial or ecclesiastical declaration that a marriage is void. • An annulment establishes that the marital status never existed. So annulment and dissolution of marriage (or divorce) are fundamentally different: an annulment renders a marriage void from the beginning, while dissolution of marriage terminates the marriage as of the date of the judgment of dissolution. Although a marriage terminated by annulment is considered never to have occurred, in most states today a child born during the marriage is not considered illegitimate after the annulment. Cf. DI-VORCE. [Cases: Marriage 56. C.J.S. Marriage § 63.] 3. A rescission. See RESCIND(3). — annul (<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>l), vb.

ANNULMENT OF ADOPTION

annulment of adoption. See ABROGATION OF ADOPTION.

ANNULMENT OF JUDGMENT

annulment of judgment. A retroactive obliteration of a judicial decision, having the effect of restoring the parties to their pretrial positions. • Types of annulment include reversal and vacation. See REVERSE; VACATE(1).

ANNUM LUCTUS

annum luctus (an-<<schwa>>m l<<schwa>>k-t<<schwa>>s), n. [Latin “year of mourning”] Roman law. The year following the death of a married man during which his widow could not remarry, because of the confusion that would ensue in determining the parentage of a child born a few months after a second marriage within that year. — Also sometimes termed year in mourning.

ANNUS

annus (an-<<schwa>>s). [Latin] A year.

ANNUS CONTINUUS

annus continuus (an-<<schwa>>s k<<schwa>>n-tin-yoo-<<schwa>>s). [Latin “a continuous year”] Roman law. A straight 365-day period, without interruption. Cf. ANNUS UTILIS.

ANNUS DELIBERANDI

annus deliberandi (an-<<schwa>>s d<<schwa>>-lib-<<schwa>>-ran-di). [Latin “the year for deliberating”] Scots law. The year during which an heir could determine whether to enter an inheritance and represent an ancestor. The period was later shortened to six months. See DAMNOSA AUT LUCROSA.

“The entry of an heir infers serious responsibilities, and therefore the year is allowed for consideration. The annus deliberandi commences on the death of the ancestor, unless in the case of a posthumous heir, in which case the year runs from the heir's birth.” William Bell, Bell's Dictionary and Digest of the Law of Scotland 47 (George Watson ed., 7th ed. 1890).

ANNUS, DIES, ET VASTUM

annus, dies, et vastum (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s, dI-eez, et vas-t⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m). [Law Latin] See YEAR, DAY, AND WASTE.

ANNUS ET DIES

annus et dies (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s et dI-eez). [Law Latin] A year and a day. See YEAR-AND-A-DAY RULE.

ANNUS UTILIS

annus utilis (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s yoo-t⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-lis). [Latin “a year that can be used”] Roman law. A 365-day period during which legal rights could be exercised, not including days when the courts were closed or when a person could not otherwise pursue those rights; a year made up of the available days for conducting legal business. Cf. ANNUS CONTINUUS.

ANNUUS REDITUS

annuus reditus (an-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s red-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-t⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s). [Law Latin] A yearly rent.

ANOMALOUS INDORSEMENT

anomalous indorsement. See irregular indorsement under INDORSEMENT.

ANOMALOUS JURISDICTION

anomalous jurisdiction. See JURISDICTION.

ANOMALOUS-JURISDICTION RULE

anomalous-jurisdiction rule (⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-nom-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-l⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s). The principle that a court of appeals has provisional jurisdiction to review the denial of a motion to intervene in a case, and if the court of appeals finds that the denial was correct, then its jurisdiction disappears — and it must dismiss the appeal for want of jurisdiction — because an order denying a motion to intervene is not a final, appealable order. • This rule has been criticized by courts and commentators. Many appellate courts, upon finding that the trial court properly denied a motion to intervene, will affirm the denial instead of dismissing the appeal for want of jurisdiction. — Sometimes shortened to anomalous rule. [Cases: Appeal and Error 329, 782; Federal Courts 555, 587. C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 32, 241–242.]

ANOMALOUS PLEA

anomalous plea. See PLEA(3).

anomalous rule. See ANOMALOUS-JURISDICTION RULE.

A NON DOMINO

a non domino (ay non dom-<<schwa>>-noh). [Law Latin] Hist. From one who is not the proprietor.

A NON HABENTE POTESTATEM

a non habente potestatem (ay non ha-ben-tee poh-tes-tay-t*<<schwa>>*m). [Latin] Scots law. From one not having power. • This phrase appeared most commonly in a conveyance in reference to a seller who was not the owner.

“If A. disposed ground, which he held on a personal title, to B., he could not grant warrant for the infeftment of B., himself being uninfeft; but he could assign to B. the unexecuted precept of sasine in his (A.'s) own favour, and on it B. could complete his feudal title. If, instead of thus assigning a valid precept, A. himself granted a precept for the infeftment of B., such a precept was a non habente potestatem, and ineffectual. This was a defect, however, which was remedied by prescription.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 5 (4th ed. 1894).

ANONYMOUS

anonymous, adj. Not named or identified *<the police arrested the defendant after a tip from an anonymous informant>. — anonymity (an-<<schwa>>-nim-<<schwa>>*-tee), n.

ANONYMOUS CASE

anonymous case. A reported case in which the word “anonymous” is substituted for at least one party's name to conceal the party's identity. See, e.g., Anonymous v. Anonymous, 735 N.Y.S.2d 26 (App. Div. 2001).

ANONYMOUS WORK

anonymous work. See WORK(2).

ANSI

ANSI. abbr. AMERICAN NATIONAL STANDARDS INSTITUTE.

ANSWER

answer,n.1. A defendant's first pleading that addresses the merits of the case, usu. by denying the plaintiff's allegations. • An answer usu. sets forth the defendant's defenses and counterclaims. [Cases: Pleading 76–87. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 159–162, 164, 168–173.]

false answer.A sham answer in a pleading. See sham pleading under PLEADING (1). [Cases: Pleading 359. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 653–654.]

2. A person's, esp. a witness's, response to a question posed.

evasive answer.A response that neither directly admits nor denies a question. • In discovery, this is considered a failure to answer. Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(a)(3).

unresponsive answer.Evidence. A response from a witness (usu. at a deposition or hearing) that is irrelevant to the question asked. — Also termed nonresponsive answer. [Cases: Witnesses 248. C.J.S. Witnesses § 430.]

3.Patents. A patent applicant's response to an office action.

answer,vb.1. To respond to a question, a pleading, or a discovery request < the company failed to answer the interrogatories within 30 days>. [Cases: Pleading 76–100; Pretrial Procedure 301–306. C.J.S. Discovery §§ 63–70; Pleading §§ 159–162, 164, 166, 168–178, 202, 764, 769.] 2. To assume the liability of another .3. #### ANTECEDENT BASIS antecedent basis. Patents. A general word or phrase in a patent claim or description to which a later specific word or phrase must refer. • Claims will be rejected as impermissibly vague or indefinite if the latter word is not clearly connected to its antecedent because the wording becomes ambiguous. In general, a term is first introduced with an indefinite article and is later referred to with the definite article (or said). [Cases: Patents 101(6).]

ANTECEDENT CLAIM

antecedent claim. A preexisting claim. • Under the UCC, a holder takes an instrument for value if it is taken for an antecedent claim. UCC § 3-303(a)(3).

ANTECEDENT DEBT

antecedent debt. See DEBT.

ANTECESSOR

antecessor (an-t<<schwa>>-ses-<<schwa>>r oran-t<<schwa>>-ses-<<schwa>>r), n. [Latin]
1. Roman law. A professor of law. 2. Hist. An ancestor. 3. Hist. A predecessor to an office.

ANTEDATE

antedate (an-ti-dayt), vb. 1. To affix with a date earlier than the true date; BACKDATE(1) <antedate a check>. 2. To precede in time <the doctrine antedates the Smith case by many years>. — Also termed predate. Cf. POSTDATE. — antedate, n.

ANTEDATING OF A PRIOR-ART REFERENCE

antedating of a prior-art reference. Patents. The removal of a publication, a U.S. patent, or a foreign patent cited as prior art against the application by filing an affidavit or declaration establishing the applicant's completion of the invention in this country, or in another NAFTA or WTO member country, before the effective date of the cited reference. • The term applies only to U.S. patent applications. An issued patent may also antedate a prior-art reference if the conception predates the prior art and the inventor used due diligence in reducing the concept to practice. — Also termed antedating a reference; swearing behind a prior-art reference; carrying back the date of invention. [Cases: Patents 62(1).]

ANTE EXHIBITIONEM BILLAE<TT>

ante exhibitionem billae (an-tee ek-si-bish-ee-oh-n<<schwa>>m bil-ee). Before the exhibition of the bill; i.e., before a suit has begun.

ANTE<TT> FACTUM

ante factum. A thing done before; a previous act or fact. — Also spelled ante-factum.

ANTE LITEM MOTAM<TT>

ante litem motam (an-tee II-tem moh-t<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin “before the lawsuit was started”] Hist. Before an action has been raised; before a legal dispute arose — i.e., at a time when the declarant had no motive to lie. • This phrase was generally used in reference to the evidentiary requirement that the acts upon which an action is based occur before the action is brought. In Scotland, the phrase also referred to the obligation of an estate intromitter to become confirmed as executor of the estate before a creditor could sue the estate. Otherwise, the intromitter could be held personally liable for the decedent's debts. — Sometimes shortened to ante litem.

ANTE MERIDIEM<TT>

ante meridiem (an-tee m<<schwa>>-rid-ee-<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Before noon. — Abbr. a.m.; A.M.

ANTE<TT> MORTEM

ante mortem. [Latin] Before death.

ANTE<TT> MORTEM INTEREST

ante mortem interest (an-tee mor-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin] An interest existing before (but not after) a transferor's death.

ANTE<TT> MORTEM STATEMENT

ante mortem statement. See dying declaration under DECLARATION(6).

ANTENATUS

antenatus (an-tee-nay-t<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] A person born before a certain political event that affected the person's political rights; esp., a person born before the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Cf. POST-NATUS. Pl. antenati.

ANTENUPTIAL

antenuptial (an-ti-n<<schwa>>p-sh<<schwa>>l), adj. See PRENUPTIAL.

ANTENUPTIAL AGREEMENT

ANTENUPTIAL CONTRACT

antenuptial contract. See PRENUPTIAL AGREEMENT.

ANTENUPTIAL GIFT

antenuptial gift. See prenuptial gift under GIFT.

ANTENUPTIAL WILL

antenuptial will. See prenuptial will under WILL.

ANTE OMNIA<TT>

ante omnia (an-tee ahm-nee-<<schwa>>). [Latin] Hist. 1. Before anything else is done; first of all. • Objections that could bar the litigation were usu. discussed ante omnia. 2. Above all other things.

ANTE REDDITAS RATIONES

ante redditas rationes (an-tee red-<<schwa>>-tas ray-shee-oh-nis or rash-ee). [Law Latin] Scots law. Before accounts are rendered. • A tutor could not file an action against a minor to recover payments unless the tutor first provided an accounting of the ward's estate.

ANTHROPOMETRY

anthropometry (an-thr<<schwa>>-pom-<<schwa>>-tree). A system of measuring the human body, esp. the size relationships among the different parts. • Before the advent of fingerprinting, minute measurements of the human body — taken and compared to other persons' measurements — were used to identify criminals and deceased persons. Cf. BERTILLON SYSTEM. — anthropometric,adj.

ANTI-ASSIGNMENT ACT

Anti-Assignment Act.A federal statute prohibiting the assignment or transfer of claims against the United States. 31 USCA § 3727.

ANTI-ASSIGNMENT-IN-GROSS RULE

anti-assignment-in-gross rule.Trademarks. The doctrine that an assignment of a mark without the goodwill symbolized by the mark is invalid. • Although trademark rights are not destroyed when a mark is assigned in gross, the failure of the assignor to continue to use the mark, coupled with an ineffective transfer, may result in abandonment. — See assignment in gross under ASSIGNMENT. [Cases: Trade Regulation 101.1. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 205.]

ANTIBOOTLEG

antibootleg,adj. Copyright. Of or pertaining to an effort to combat or discourage illegal recording, distribution, and sale of unauthorized reproductions of live and broadcast performances. • The federal antibootleg statute, 18 USCA § 2319A, and the antibootleg statutes of several states criminalize bootlegging activities. — antibootleg-ging,n. See ANTIBOOTLEG STATUTE .

ANTIBOOTLEG STATUTE

antibootleg statute.Copyright. A law, esp. a state law, that prohibits making, distributing, or selling an unauthorized recording of a live performance.

ANTICHRESIS

antichresis (an-ti-kree-sis). [Latin “in place of interest”] Roman & civil law. A mortgage in which the mortgagee retains possession of the mortgaged property and takes the fruits (such as rents) of the property in lieu of interest on the debt. La. Civ. Code art. 3176. [Cases: Mortgages 1. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 2–6.]

“Under the Civil Code of Louisiana, taken from the Code Napoleon, there are two kinds of pledges: the pawn, when a movable is given as security, and the antichresis, when the security given consists in immovables or real estate. Under the latter the creditor acquires the right to take the rents and profits of the land, and to credit, annually, the same to the interest, and the surplus to the principal of the debt, and is bound to keep the estate in repair, and to pay the taxes. Upon default upon the part of the debtor, the creditor may prosecute the debtor, and obtain a decree for selling the land pledged.” 3 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law *403–04 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

ANTICHURNING RULE

antichurning rule.Tax. A statutory or regulatory provision that denies certain tax advantages, esp. accelerated depreciation and amortization schedules, to taxpayers who acquire property in a transaction that does not result in a significant change in the property's ownership or use. See CHURNING(2).

ANTICIPATED

anticipated,adj. Patents. (Of a patent claim) having all the same elements of a prior-art reference. • If a claim is anticipated by a previous invention or publication, that claim is not allowable; if a patent has already been issued, it will be declared invalid. — Also termed fully met.

ANTICIPATED COMPROMIS

anticipated compromis.See general compromis under COMPROMIS.

ANTICIPATION

anticipation. 1. The distribution or receipt of trust income before it is due. 2.Patents. The prior invention or disclosure of the claimed invention by another, or the inventor's own disclosure of the claimed invention by publication, sale, or offer to sell if that disclosure predates the date of the patent-application filing by more than one year. • By disproving the claim's novelty, anticipation bars the allowance of a claim and provides a defense to an action for infringement based on that claim. See NOVELTY(2). [Cases: Patents 50.1. C.J.S. Patents §§ 37, 40.] — anticipate,vb.

“Anticipation implies spoiling something for someone, by getting in ahead; obviously this can only be done by a device (or description of a device), and only to a patent.” Roger Sherman Hoar, Patent Tactics and the Law 51 (3d ed. 1950).

ANTICIPATORY BREACH

anticipatory breach.See BREACH OF CONTRACT.

ANTICIPATORY FILING

anticipatory filing.The bringing of a lawsuit or regulatory action against another with the expectation that the other party is preparing an action of its own. • If properly brought, an anticipatory filing may determine procedural matters such as jurisdiction and venue. See anticipatory replication. See REPLICATION.

ANTICIPATORY REPUDIATION

anticipatory repudiation. See REPUDIATION.

ANTICIPATORY SEARCH WARRANT

anticipatory search warrant. See SEARCH WARRANT.

ANTIRCUMVENTION DEVICE

anticircumvention device. Copyright. An apparatus designed to prevent bypassing, avoiding, removing, deactivating, or impairing a technological measure that controls access to a work protected by copyright; an apparatus in a media player or receiver, such as a DVD player or a TV satellite dish, designed to prevent unauthorized use or duplication of copyrighted material.

anticompetitive conduct. Antitrust. An act that harms or seeks to harm the market or the process of competition among businesses, and that has no legitimate business purpose.

ANTICONTEST CLAUSE

anticontest clause. See NO-CONTEST CLAUSE.

ANTICOUNTERFEITING CONSUMER PROTECTION ACT

Anticounterfeiting Consumer Protection Act. Copyright & trademarks. A federal law to discourage counterfeiting of trademarks and copyrighted merchandise such as computer programs, phonorecords, and motion pictures. • The law imposes criminal liability for trafficking in counterfeit goods and services (18 USCA § 2318), provides for the seizure of counterfeit goods (15 USCA § 1116(d)(9)), and provides enhanced statutory civil penalties (15 USCA § 1117(c)). — Abbr. ACPA.

ANTICYBERSQUATTING CONSUMER PROTECTION ACT

Anticybersquatting Consumer Protection Act. Trademarks. A 1999 federal law authorizing a trademark owner to obtain a federal-court order transferring ownership of a domain name from a cybersquatter to the trademark owner. • A mark's owner must show that (1) the mark and the domain name are identical or confusingly similar; (2) the mark was distinctive when the domain name was first registered; (3) the trademark's owner used the mark commercially before the domain name was registered; and (4) the domain registrant acted in bad faith and intended to profit from the trademark's use. Registering a domain name with the intent to sell it to the trademark owner is presumptively an act of bad faith. But if a defendant can prove a legitimate reason for the domain-name registration, the defendant may be allowed to keep the name. — Abbr. ACPA. — Also termed Trademark Cy-berpiracy Prevention Act. [Cases: Trade Regulation 628. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 298.]

ANTIDEFICIENCY LEGISLATION

antideficiency legislation. See LEGISLATION.

ANTIDEFICIENCY STATUTE

antideficiency statute. See antideficiency legislation under LEGISLATION.

ANTIDESTRUCTIBILITY STATUTE

antidestructibility statute. See DESTRUCTIBILITY OF CONTINGENT REMAINDERS.

ANTIDESTRUCION CLAUSE

antidestruction clause. A provision in a security protecting a shareholder's conversion rights, in the event of a merger, by granting the shareholder a right to convert the securities into the securities that will replace the company's stock when the merger is complete. See convertible security under SECURITY.

ANTIDILUTION ACT

antidilution act. Trademarks. A statute prohibiting actions that are likely to lessen, diminish, or erode a famous mark's capacity to identify and distinguish goods and services, without regard to whether the action creates a likelihood of confusion, mistake, or deception. • The Federal Trademark Dilution Act provides relief against another's commercial use of a mark or tradename that dilutes the distinctive quality of a famous mark. More than half the states also have antidilution statutes, which are based on the International Trademark Association's 1964 Model State Trademark Bill. — Also termed antidilution statute. [Cases: Trade Regulation 366. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 79.]

ANTIDILUTION PROVISION

antidilution provision. A convertible-security provision that safeguards the conversion privilege from share splits, share dividends, or other transactions that might affect the conversion ratio. See CONVERSION RATIO; DILUTION(2). [Cases: Corporations 66, 116. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 177–179, 233–240, 242.]

ANTIDISSECTION RULE

antidissection rule. Trademarks. A rule, applied in comparing potentially conflicting marks, that requires that the marks be compared as a whole or as they are viewed by consumers in the marketplace, not broken down into their component parts. • The antidissection rule does not preclude an analysis of the dominant and subordinate features of a mark to determine which features make the most significant impression on consumers, but the mark must still be considered in its entirety. See TOUT ENSEMBLE. [Cases: Trade Regulation 346.]

ANTIDUMPING LAW

antidumping law. A statute designed to protect domestic companies by preventing the sale of foreign goods at less than fair value, as defined in the statute (for example, at a price below that of the domestic market). See DUMPING. [Cases: Customs Duties 21.5. C.J.S. Customs Duties §§ 135–152.]

ANTIDUMPING TARIFF

antidumping tariff. See TARIFF(2).

ANTI-EVOLUTION STATUTE

anti-evolution statute. Hist. A law that forbids the teaching of the theory of evolution in schools. • Such statutes were held unconstitutional as violative of the Establishment Clause in Epperson v. Arkansas, 393 U.S. 97, 89 S.Ct. 266 (1968). — Also termed evolution statute. See CREATIONISM.

ANTIFRAUD RULE

antifraud rule. See RULE10b-5.

ANTIGRAPH

antigraph (an-ti-graf). Archaic. A copy or counterpart of an instrument.

ANTIGRAPHUS

antigraphus (an-tig-r<<schwa>>-f<<schwa>>s), n. [Law Latin] Hist. An officer who maintains tax revenues; a comptroller.

ANTIHAZING STATUTE

antihazing statute. A (usu. criminal) law that prohibits an organization or members of an organization from requiring a prospective member, as a condition of membership, to do or submit to any act that presents a substantial risk of physical or mental harm. • In 1874 Congress passed the first antihazing statute, directed at stopping hazing by midshipmen at the United States Naval Academy. Most states have passed their own antihazing statutes. — Also termed hazing statute.

ANTI-HEARTBALM STATUTE

anti-heartbalm statute. See HEARTBALM STATUTE.

ANTI-INJUNCTION ACT

Anti-Injunction Act. A federal statute providing that a federal court may not enjoin state-court proceedings unless an injunction is (1) expressly authorized by Congress, (2) necessary for the federal court's in rem jurisdiction, or (3) necessary to prevent relitigation of a judgment rendered by the federal court. 28 USCA § 2283. See NORRIS–LA GUARDIA ACT. [Cases: Courts 508. C.J.S. Courts §§ 216, 218–219.]

ANTI-JOHN LAW

anti-john law. A criminal-law statute punishing prostitutes' customers. [Cases: Prostitution 1. C.J.S. Prostitution and Related Offenses §§ 2–4, 8–13, 17, 21–24.]

ANTILAPSE STATUTE

antilapse statute. Wills & estates. A statute that substitutes certain heirs of some types of testamentary beneficiaries when the beneficiary has predeceased the testator and permits them to take the gift, which would otherwise fail and thus pass to the residuary beneficiary (if any) or to the intestate heirs. • Under the common law and the laws of all states, a testamentary beneficiary must survive a testator or else the gift is said to lapse. Although most states have enacted antilapse statutes, their terms vary from state to state. — Also termed lapse statute; nonlapse statute. [Cases: Wills 774–777. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1791–1808.]

ANTIMANIFESTO

antimanifesto. Int'l law. A proclamation in which a belligerent power asserts that the war is a defensive one for that power.

ANTIMARITAL-FACTS PRIVILEGE

antimarital-facts privilege. See marital privilege (2) under PRIVILEGE(3).

antinomia (an-ti-noh-mee-⟨schwa⟩). [Greek] Roman law. An ambiguity in the law. See ANTINOMY.

ANTINOMY

antinomy (an-tin-⟨schwa⟩-mee), n. A contradiction in law or logic; esp., a conflict of authority, as between two decisions <antinomies in the caselaw>. — antinomic (an-ti-nom-ik), adj.

ANTIPIRACY

antipiracy, adj. Copyright & trademarks. Of or pertaining to an effort to combat or discourage illegal reproduction, distribution, or use of copyrighted or trademarked products <an antipiracy group>.

ANTIQUA CUSTUMA

antiqua custuma (an-ti-kw-⟨schwa⟩ k-⟨schwa⟩s-t[y]oo-m-⟨schwa⟩). [Law Latin “ancient customs”] Hist. A tax on wool, woolfells, and leather, under St. 3 Edw. • The distinction between antiqua custuma and nova custuma arose when the king imposed new taxes on the same articles in the 22nd year of his reign. Cf. NOVA CUSTUMA.

ANTIQUA ET NOVA

antiqua et nova (an-tī-kw<<schwa>> et noh-v<<schwa>>). [Latin] Hist. Old and new (rights).

“Antiqua et nova .... The technical terms in our law equivalent to these Latin terms are, heritage and conquest; heritage (antiqua) being that estate to which any one succeeds as heir; conquest (nova) that which he succeeds to or acquires by purchase, gift, or any singular title. The distinction between heritage and conquest is now abolished, 37 & 38 Vict. cap. 94, § 37.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 50 (4th ed. 1894).

ANTIQUARE

antiquare (an-ti-kwair-ee), vb.[Latin] Roman law. 1. To reject a proposal for a new law. • Those who voted against a proposed law wrote on their ballots the letter “A” for antiquo (“I am for the old law”).2. To repeal a law.

ANTIQUA STATUTA

antiqua statuta (an-tī-kw<<schwa>> st<<schwa>>-t[y]oo-t<<schwa>>). See VETERA STATUTA .

ANTIQUUM DOMINICUM

antiquum dominicum (an-tī-kw<<schwa>>m d<<schwa>>-min-i-k<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] Ancient demesne. See DEMESNE.

ANTIQUUS ET NOVUS EXTENTUS

antiquus et novus extentus (an-tī-kw<<schwa>>s et noh-v<<schwa>>s ek-sten-t<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] Scots law. Old and new extent. • The phrase appeared in reference to the valuation of land for tax purposes, with old valuations assessed in the year 1280, and new valuations assessed several times after that date. Cf. QUANTUM NUNC VALENT; QUANTUM VALUERUNT TEMPORE PACIS.

ANTISHELVING CLAUSE

antishelving clause.Patents. A provision in a patent-licensing contract, usu. one in which payment is based on royalties, requiring the licensee to put the patented article into commercial use within a specified time and to notify the patentee if the licensee decides to stop selling or manufacturing it. • The licensee generally agrees to commercially exploit the patent or else risk losing the license or exclusivity. Antishelving clauses are also used in trademark licenses. — Also termed antishelving provision; shelving clause; shelving provision. [Cases: Patents 211(1). C.J.S. Patents § 348.]

ANTISOCIAL PERSONALITY DISORDER

antisocial personality disorder.See PSYCHOPATH.

ANTISPAMMING LAW

antispamming law. A statute enacted to combat or criminalize the sending of unsolicited commercial e-mail. • Many states have such a law. See SPAM.

ANTISUBROGATION RULE

antissubrogation rule (an-tee-s<<schwa>>b-roh-gay-sh<<schwa>>n). Insurance. The principle that an insurance carrier has no right of subrogation — that is, no right to assert a claim on behalf of the insured or for payments made under the policy — against its own insured for the risk covered by the policy. See SUBROGATION. [Cases: Insurance 3510. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 1465–1466, 1489.]

ANTITAKEOVER STATUTE

antitakeover statute. A state law designed to protect companies based in the state from hostile takeovers.

ANTITHETARIUS

antithetarius (an-tith-<<schwa>>-tair-ee-<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] Hist. An accused person who asserts that his or her accuser is guilty of the crime. Cf. APPROVER(1).

ANTITRUST CIVIL PROCESS ACT

Antitrust Civil Process Act. A federal law prescribing the procedures for an antitrust action by way of a petition in U.S. district court. 15 USCA §§ 1311 et seq.

ANTITRUST GUIDELINES FOR THE LICENSING OF INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY

Antitrust Guidelines for the Licensing of Intellectual Property. A set of criteria, jointly issued by the Antitrust Division of the U.S. Justice Department and the FTC, that those agencies apply in deciding whether to initiate an investigation or enforcement action as a result of restrictions in patent, copyright, trade-secret, and know-how licenses. 4 Trade Reg. Rep. (CCH) ¶ 13,132 (Apr. 6, 1995).

ANTITRUST LAW

antitrust law. 1. The body of law designed to protect trade and commerce from restraints, monopolies, price-fixing, and price discrimination. • The principal federal antitrust laws are the Sherman Act (15 USCA §§ 1–7) and the Clayton Act (15 USCA §§ 12–27).

“As legislative history and case law both disclose, the general objective of the antitrust laws is the maintenance of competition. Competition per se thus becomes a goal of the legal order. Yet, competition is not a concept which defines itself; notions about the desirability of competition may shape judgments about how the law should apply, at least at its indistinct edges.” Lawrence A. Sullivan, Handbook of the Law of Antitrust § 5, at 20 (1977).

2. (cap.) SHERMAN ANTITRUST ACT.

ANTLIKE PERSISTENCY

antlike persistency. Patents. Slang. The steady tenacity of a patent solicitor who tries to wear down the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office by prosecuting patent claims until the PTO eventually relents. • Judge Learned Hand coined this pejorative expression in Lyon v. Boh, 1 F.2d 48, 49–50 (S.D.N.Y. 1924).

apocha trium annorum (ap-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-k⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩ trɪ-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m ⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-nor-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩m). [Latin “receipt for three years”] Scots law. Hist. Receipts for three consecutive periodic payments, the production of which gave rise to a presumption that prior installments had been properly paid.

“The production by the debtor of receipts for the last three consecutive installments of a termly payment, such as feu-duty, rent, wages or interest, raises a presumption, the apocha trium annorum, rebuttable by parol evidence, that all prior instalments have been duly paid. The same inference is not justified by one receipt, even for three or more instalments. Nor do receipts for three instalments justify an inference that a bill, granted for earlier arrears, has been paid.” 2 David M. Walker, Principles of Scottish Private Law 143 (4th ed. 1988).

APOCRISARIUS

apocrisarius (⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩-pɒk-ri-sair-ee-⟨⟨schwa⟩⟩s), n.[Latin] Hist. Eccles. law. 1. An ambassador; a mes-senger, such as a Pope's legate. 2. One who answers for another; esp., an officer who presented church matters to the emperor and conveyed the answers to the petitioners. 3. One who, upon consultation, gives advice in eccle-siastical matters. — Also termed responsalis; a responsis; secretarius; consiliarius; referendarius; a consiliis.

APOGRAPHA

appearance, n. Procedure. A coming into court as a party or interested person, or as a lawyer on behalf of a party or interested person; esp., a defendant's act of taking part in a lawsuit, whether by formally participating in it or by an answer, demurrer, or motion, or by taking postjudgment steps in the lawsuit in either the trial court or an appellate court. [Cases: Appearance 1–29; Federal Civil Procedure 561–574. C.J.S. Appearances §§ 2–59.] — appear, vb.

“The English courts did not, until modern times, claim jurisdiction over the person of the defendant merely by service of summons upon him. It was deemed necessary to resort to further process by attachment of his property and arrest of his person to compel ‘appearance,’ which is not mere presence in court, but some act by which a person who is sued submits himself to the authority and jurisdiction of the court. Any steps in the action, such as giving bail upon arrest, operated as an appearance or submission.” Benjamin J. Shipman, Handbook of Com-mon-Law Pleading § 5, at 24 (Henry Winthrop Ballantine ed., 3d ed. 1923).

“The term ‘appearance’ is used particularly to signify or designate the overt act by which one against whom suit has been commenced submits himself to the court’s jurisdiction, although in a broader sense it embraces the act of either plaintiff or defendant in coming into court .... An appearance may be expressly made by formal written or oral declaration, or record entry, or it may be implied from some act done with the intention of appearing and submitting to the court’s jurisdiction.” 4 Am. Jur. 2d Appearance § 1, at 620 (1995).

appearance de bene esse. See special appearance.

appearance pro hac vice (proh hak vI-see or proh hahk vee-chay). appearance under protest. English & Canadian law. See special appearance.

compulsory appearance. An appearance by one who is required to appear by having been served with process. [Cases: Appearance 1. C.J.S. Appearances §§ 2–4, 6.]

general appearance. A general-purpose appearance that waives a party’s ability later to dispute the court’s au-thority to enter a binding judgment against him or her. [Cases: Appearance 8(1), 19(1); Federal Civil Pro-cedure 566. C.J.S. Appearances §§ 6, 13, 18–19, 21–22, 24, 30, 34, 39, 53.]

initial appearance. A criminal defendant’s first appearance in court to hear the charges read, to be advised of his or her rights, and to have bail determined. • The initial appearance is usu. required by statute to occur without undue delay. In a misdemeanor case, the initial appearance may be combined with the arraignment. See ARRAIGNMENT. [Cases: Arrest 70; Criminal Law 261–264. C.J.S. Arrest §§ 61–64; Criminal Law §§ 355, 357–360, 362–363.]

limited appearance. See special appearance.

special appearance. 1. A defendant’s pleading that either claims that the court lacks personal jurisdiction over the defendant or objects to improper service of process. 2. A defendant’s showing up in court for the sole purpose of contesting the court’s assertion of personal jurisdiction over the defendant. • Special appearances have been abolished in federal court. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b). — Also termed limited appearance; appearance de bene esse; (in English & Canadian law) appearance under protest. [Cases: Appearance 9(2, 3); Federal Civil Procedure 565. C.J.S. Appearances §§ 4, 7, 23, 25–28.]

2. An office occupied by someone who has been appointed . 3. Parliamentary law. The naming of an officer, the members of a committee, or the holder of any other title in an organization by means other than the organization's election. 4. The act of disposing of property, in exercise of a power granted for that purpose <the tenant's appointment of lands>. See POWER OF APPOINTMENT. [Cases: Powers 1. C.J.S. Powers § 2.] — appoint, vb. — appointer (for senses 1–3), n. — appointor (for sense 4), n.

illusory appointment. A nominal, unduly restrictive, or conditional transfer of property under a power of appointment. [Cases: Powers 36(3). C.J.S. Powers § 21.]

“Like many other theories which are very plausible in the abstract, experience has shown that the doctrine of illusory appointments is difficult in application, since the term ‘illusory’ is vague and indefinite. And, because of the difficulty of formulating rules for determining what is an illusory appointment and the evils resulting from attempts to substitute the judicial will for the intent of the donor and donee of the power, the doctrine has been condemned or rejected by many courts.” 62 Am. Jur. 2d Powers of Appointment § 186 (1990).

APPOINTMENTS CLAUSE

Appointments Clause. The clause of the U.S. Constitution giving the President the power to nominate federal judges and various other officials. U.S. Const. art. II, § 2. [Cases: United States 35. C.J.S. United States §§ 23, 53, 56–57.]

APPRENTICE

apprentice. 1.Hist. A person bound by an indenture to work for an employer for a specified period to learn a craft, trade, or profession.

“Apprentices, in the strict legal sense, are servants, usually but not necessarily infants, who agree to serve their masters with a view to learning some trade or business, and whose masters on their part agree to instruct them. The contract is usually for a term of years and is normally embodied in a deed, in which case the apprentice is said to be bound by an indenture of apprenticeship. It is customary for the father of the apprentice (or some person standing in loco parentis), as well as the apprentice himself to execute the deed or other instrument, and thus become liable for the due observance by the apprentice of his obligations thereunder. When an apprentice deliberately misconducts himself in such a way that, in the case of any other servant, his behaviour would amount to a repudiation of the agreement, and thereupon the master decides to accept the repudiation and dismisses him, the apprentice's repudiation is not effective, and the contract is not terminated, unless the Court find that such a course would be for the infant's benefit. Otherwise the infant could do indirectly what he could not do directly — namely, bring about a rescission of the contract.” 2 Stephen's Commentaries on the Laws of England 133–34 (L. Crispin Warmington ed., 21st ed. 1950).

appurtenance (<<schwa>>-p<<schwa>>rt-[<<schwa>>-]n<<schwa>>nts), n. Something that belongs or is attached to something else <the garden is an appurtenance to the land>.

restricted meaning should attach to the words of the description of the premises conveyed.” 1 H.C. Underhill, A Treatise on the Law of Landlord and Tenant § 291, at 442–43 (1909).

compulsory arbitration. Arbitration required by law or forced by law on the parties.

final-offer arbitration. Arbitration in which each party must submit a "final offer" to the arbitrator, who may choose only one. • This device gives each party an incentive to make a reasonable offer or risk the arbitrator's accepting the other party's offer. The purpose of this type of arbitration is to counteract arbitrators' tendency to make compromise decisions halfway between the two parties' demands.

grievance arbitration. 1. Arbitration that involves the violation or interpretation of an existing contract. • The arbitrator issues a final decision regarding the meaning of the contractual terms. 2. Labor law. Arbitration of an employee's grievance, usu. relating to an alleged violation of the employee's rights under a collective-bargaining agreement. • The arbitration procedure is set out in the collective-bargaining agreement. Grievance arbitration is the final step in grievance procedure. — Also termed rights arbitration. See GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE. [Cases: Labor Relations 434.5.]

"The great majority of today's collective bargaining agreements provide for an impartial arbitrator to hear and decide grievances under the bargaining agreement. The details of grievance arbitration vary considerably among agreements." Douglas L. Leslie, Labor Law in a Nutshell 264 (3d ed. 1992).

interest arbitration. Arbitration that involves settling the terms of a contract being negotiated between the parties; esp., in labor law, arbitration of a dispute concerning what provisions will be included in a new collective-bargaining agreement. • When the parties cannot agree on contractual terms, an arbitrator decides. This type of arbitration is most common in public-sector collective bargaining.

ARREST

arrest,n.1. A seizure or forcible restraint. 2. The taking or keeping of a person in custody by legal authority, esp. in response to a criminal charge; specif., the apprehension of someone for the purpose of securing the administration of the law, esp. of bringing that person before a court. [Cases: Arrest 68(3). C.J.S. Arrest §§ 43–44.] — arrest,vb.

“The question of what constitutes an arrest is a difficult one. On one end of the spectrum, it seems apparent that detention accompanied by handcuffing, drawn guns, or words to the effect that one is under arrest qualifies as an ‘arrest’ and thus requires probable cause. At the other end, a simple questioning on the street will often not rise to the level of an arrest. Somewhere in between lie investigative detentions at the stationhouse ....” Charles H. Whitebread, Criminal Procedure § 3.02, at 61 (1980).

arrest by warrant.See lawful arrest under ARREST.

arrest in execution.See arrest on final process.

ARREST OF INQUEST

arrest of inquest. A plea that a matter proposed for inquiry has already been investigated and should therefore not be reexamined.

ARREST OF JUDGMENT

arrest of judgment. The staying of a judgment after its entry; esp., a court's refusal to render or enforce a judgment because of a defect apparent from the record. • At common law, courts have the power to arrest judgment for intrinsic causes appearing on the record, as when the verdict differs materially from the pleadings or when the case alleged in the pleadings is legally insufficient. Today, this type of defect must typically be objected to before trial or before judgment is entered, so that the motion in arrest of judgment has been largely superseded. — Also termed allocutus. [Cases: Criminal Law 966–976; Judgment 259–269. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 1453–1457; Judgments §§ 95–105.]

“An arrest of judgment [under common law] was the technical term describing the act of a trial judge refusing to enter judgment on the verdict because of an error appearing on the face of the record that rendered the judgment invalid.” United States v. Sisson, 399 U.S. 267, 280–81, 90 S.Ct. 2117, 2125 (1970).

A punishment of burning or branding the left thumb of a lay offender who falsely claimed and was allowed the benefit of clergy, so that the offender would be distinguished if he tried to claim the benefit again. — Also termed arsere en le main (ahr-soor awn l<<schwa>> man or awn l<<schwa>> man).

arson,n.1. At common law, the malicious burning of someone else's dwelling house or outhouse that is either appurtenant to the dwelling house or within the curtilage. [Cases: Arson 1. C.J.S. Arson §§ 2–3.]

“The thing that is burnt must be a ‘house’, but this word has a large meaning; already in 1220 we find the burning of a barn that was full of corn treated as a felony.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 492 (2d ed. 1899).

“The burning of one's own dwelling to collect insurance did not constitute common-law arson. It was generally assumed in early England that one had the legal right to destroy his own property in any manner he chose.” Denis Binder, “Arson: Legal Aspects,” in 1 Encyclopedia of Crime and Justice 80, 80 (Sanford H. Kadish ed., 1983).

“At common law, arson is the wilful and malicious burning of the dwelling house of another. It may occur during the nighttime or the daytime, and it is an offense against the security of habitation or occupancy, rather than against ownership or property.” 3 Charles E. Torcia, Wharton's Criminal Law § 334, at 324–25 (15th ed. 1995).

2. Under modern statutes, the intentional and wrongful burning of someone else's property (as to destroy a building) or one's own property (as to fraudulently collect insurance). See Model Penal Code § 220.1(1). — Also termed (in Latin) crimen incendii; (in sense 2) statutory arson. Cf. HOUSEBURNING; CRIMINAL DAMAGE TO PROPERTY. “The term ‘statutory arson’ is employed to designate the entire area of statutory proscription which is analogous to, but does not constitute, common-law arson. It is important to have mutually exclusive labels here not only for the reasons mentioned in the preceding section, but because some of the state statutes provide a penalty for arson without defining the word and hence adopt the common-law definition.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 287 (3d ed. 1982).

“(1) Arson. A person is guilty of arson, a felony of the second degree, if he starts a fire or causes an explosion with the purpose of: (a) destroying a building or occupied structure of another; or (b) destroying or damaging any property, whether his own or another's, to collect insurance for such loss. It shall be an affirmative defense to prosecution under this paragraph that the actor's conduct did not recklessly endanger any building or occupied structure of another or place any other person in danger of death or bodily injury.” Model Penal Code § 220.1 (1997).

aggravated arson. Arson accompanied by some aggravating factor, as when the offender foresees or anticipates that one or more persons will be in or near the property being burned. [Cases: Arson 12. C.J.S. Arson § 19.]

ARSONABLE

arsonable, adj. (Of property) of such a nature as to give rise to a charge of arson if maliciously burned <only real property, and not personal property, is arsonable>. [Cases: Arson 5. C.J.S. Arson §§ 4–5, 12–14.]

ARSON CLAUSE

arson clause. Insurance. An insurance-policy provision that excludes coverage of a loss due to fire if the insured intentionally started the fire. [Cases: Insurance 2166(3). C.J.S. Insurance § 922.]

ARSONIST

ART

ART.abbr.ASSISTED REPRODUCTIVE TECHNOLOGY.

art. 1. Creative expression, or the product of creative expression. 2. An occupation or business that requires skill; a craft. 3.Patents. A field of useful endeavor; the methodical application of knowledge or skill in creating something new. [Cases: Patents 5. C.J.S. Patents §§ 13–14, 16.]

analogous art.Patents. A technique, product, application, machine, or method that is reasonably related to the problem addressed by the invention, and with which the inventor is assumed to be familiar. — Also termed per-tinent art. See NONOBVIOUSNESS. [Cases: Patents 16(3).]

nuisance prior art.Patents. Information that appears to anticipate or obviate an invention, but does not actually do so because the earlier described invention was neither reduced to practice nor adequately disclosed in any documents. • Nuisance prior art does not bar a patent's issuance, but it may prolong the prosecution. The term does not apply to efforts that are not prior art at all, such as descriptions of unsuccessful attempts to reduce an invention to practice, or to writings that do not disclose real inventions or technology, such as science fiction.

prior art.Patents. Knowledge that is publicly known, used by others, or available on the date of invention to a person of ordinary skill in an art, including what would be obvious from that knowledge. • Prior art includes (1) information in applications for previously patented inventions; (2) information that was published more than one year before a patent application is filed; and (3) information in other patent applications and inventor's certificates filed more than a year before the application is filed. The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office and courts analyze prior art before deciding the patentability of a comparable invention. 35 USCA § 102. [Cases: Patents 16(2). C.J.S. Patents § 69.]

relevant art.Patents. Art to which one can reasonably be expected to look for a solution to the problem that a patented device tries to solve. • The term includes not only knowledge about a problem in a particular industry, but also knowledge accumulated in scientific fields whose techniques have been commonly employed to solve similar problems. — Also termed pertinent art.

4.Hist. In a seduction case, the skillful and systematic coaxing of another to engage in sexual activity.

ART AND PART

art and part,adj. & adv. English & Scots law. Aiding in or contributing to the commission of a crime <the lookout was involved in the burglary on an art-and-part basis> <the baker acted art and part in the prisoner's escape by producing a cake with a file in it>. See ACCESSORY(2).

art and part,n. Scots law. Participation in or encouragement of a crime; criminal guilt by assisting, advising, or participating in the crime. Cf. OPE ET CONSILIO .

“Scots law never distinguished between degrees of participation in a crime, between what English law distinguished as accession before the fact, concomitant accession, and accession after the fact. In treason all participants were treated as principal offenders and indictments in other cases charged the accused as ‘actor or art and part’. The Criminal Procedure (Scotland) Act 1887 made this an unnecessary but implied charge in all indictments.” 6 David M. Walker, A Legal History of Scotland 397 (2001).

ARTFUL PLEADING

“Congress also has the power, within certain limits, to create what are called ...Article I tribunals .... These Article I tribunals are really akin to administrative agencies; that is, the ‘judges’ do not have any constitutionally guaranteed lifetime tenure and protection from salary diminution; they are not governed by the case or controversy limitation of Article III... At the present time, Article I courts include territorial courts, certain courts in the District of Columbia, courts martial, and legislative courts and administrative agencies that adjudicate ‘public rights.’ ” John E. Nowak & Ronald D. Rotunda, Constitutional Law 22–23 (4th ed. 1991).

ARTICLE II JUDGE

Article II judge.A U.S. bankruptcy judge or magistrate judge appointed for a term of years as authorized by Congress under Article II of the U.S. Constitution.28 USCA §§ 151 et seq., 631 et seq. See governing document under DOCUMENT(1). [Cases: Corporations 18. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 26, 33–35, 41, 559.]

ARTICLES OF CONFEDERATION

Articles of Confederation.The instrument that governed the association of the 13 original states from March 1, 1781 until the adoption of the U.S. Constitution. • They were prepared by the Continental Congress, submitted to the states in 1777, and later ratified by representatives of the states empowered by their respective legislatures for that purpose.

ARTICLES OF DISSOLUTION

articles of dissolution.A document that a dissolving corporation must file with the appropriate governmental agency, usu. the secretary of state, after the corporation has settled all its debts and distributed all its assets. [Cases: Corporations 610(1). C.J.S. Corporations §§ 835–837.]

ARTICLES OF IMPEACHMENT

articles of impeachment.A formal document alleging the specific charges against a public official and the rea-sons for removing that official from office. • It is similar to an indictment in a criminal proceeding. See IM-PEACHMENT(1). [Cases: United States 35. C.J.S. United States §§ 23, 53, 56–57.]

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION

articles of incorporation.A governing document that sets forth the basic terms of a corporation's existence, including the number and classes of shares and the purposes and duration of the corporation. • In most states, the articles of incorporation are filed with the secretary of state as part of the process of forming the corporation. In some states, the articles serve as a certificate of incorporation and are the official recognition of the corporation's existence. In other states, the government issues a certificate of incorporation after approving the articles and other required documents. — Also termed articles of association; articles of organization; certificate of incorporation. — Often shortened (informally) to articles. Cf. BYLAW(1); CHARTER(5). See governing document under DOCUMENT(1). [Cases: Corporations 18. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 26, 33–35, 41, 559.]

ASFA

ASFA.abbr.ADOPTION AND SAFE FAMILIES ACT.

ASHWANDER<TT> RULES

Ashwander rules. A set of principles outlining the U.S. Supreme Court's policy of deciding constitutional questions only when necessary, and of avoiding a constitutional question if the case can be decided on the basis of another issue. • These rules were outlined in Justice Brandeis's concurring opinion in Ashwander v. Tennessee Valley Authority, 297 U.S. 288, 56 S.Ct. 466 (1936). They include the policy that the court should not decide a constitutional question in a friendly suit, should not anticipate a question of constitutional law, should not create a rule of constitutional law that is broader than that called for by the facts of the case, should not decide a constitutional issue if the case can be decided on another ground, should not rule on the constitutionality of a statute unless the plaintiff is harmed by the statute or if the plaintiff has accepted the benefits of the statute, and should not rule on the constitutionality of an act of Congress without first analyzing whether the act can be fairly construed in a way that would avoid the constitutional question. — Also termed Brandeis rules. [Cases: Constitutional Law 46(1). C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 88–89, 92.]

AS IS

as is,adv. & adj. In the existing condition without modification <the customer bought the car as is>. • Under UCC § 2-316(3)(a), a seller can disclaim all implied warranties by stating that the goods are being sold “as is” or “with all faults.” Generally, a sale of property “as is” means that the property is sold in its existing condition, and use of the phrase as is relieves the seller from liability for defects in that condition. — Also termed with all faults. [Cases: Contracts 205.30; Sales 267. C.J.S. Contracts § 359; Sales §§ 238, 263–270.]

aspirin wars. Slang. A series of false-advertising lawsuits between makers of over-the-counter pain relievers in the 1980s, all regarding the boundaries of comparative advertising.

asportation (as-p<<schwa>>r-tay-sh<<schwa>>n), n. The act of carrying away or removing (property or a person). • Asportation is a necessary element of larceny. — Also termed carrying away. See LARCENY. [Cases: Kidnapping 1; Larceny 17; Robbery 10. C.J.S. Kidnapping §§ 1–2; Larceny § 6; Robbery § 5.] — asport, vb. — asportative, adj.

“To constitute larceny, there must be a taking or caption and carrying away or asportation of the property of another. There is a caption when the defendant takes possession. He takes possession when he exercises dominion and control over the property. There is an asportation when he carries away the property; any carrying away movement, however slight, is sufficient. An asportation presupposes a prior caption; therefore, there can be no asportation unless there has first been a caption.” 3 Charles E. Torcia, Wharton's Criminal Law § 357, at 412–13 (15th ed. 1995).

ASPORTAVIT

asportavit (as-por-tay-vit). [Law Latin] He carried away.

ASSART

assart.Hist. 1. The action of pulling up trees and bushes in a forest to make the land arable. • This was a crime if done without a license. 2. A piece of land made arable by clearing a forest.

ASSASSINATION

assassination,n. The act of deliberately killing someone, esp. a public figure, usu. for hire or for political reasons. — assassinate,vb. — assassin,n.

ASSAULT

assault,n.1.Criminal & tort law. The threat or use of force on another that causes that person to have a reasonable apprehension of imminent harmful or offensive contact; the act of putting another person in reasonable fear or apprehension of an immediate battery by means of an act amounting to an attempt or threat to commit a battery. [Cases: Assault and Battery 2, 48. C.J.S. Assault and Battery §§ 2–4, 6–8, 62, 64–66, 81.] 2.Criminal law. An attempt to commit battery, requiring the specific intent to cause physical injury. — Also termed (in senses 1 & 2) simple assault; common assault. 3. Loosely, a battery. 4. Popularly, any attack. Cf. BATTERY. — assault,vb. — assaultive,adj.

“Ordinary usage creates a certain difficulty in pinning down the meaning of ‘assault.’ Etymologically, the word is compounded of the Latin ad + saltare, to jump at. In popular language, it has always connoted a physical attack. When we say that D assaults V, we have a mental picture of D attacking V, by striking or pushing or stabbing him. In the middle ages, however, the terms ‘assault’ and ‘battery’ were given technical meanings which they have retained ever since. It became settled that though an assault could be committed by physical contact, it did not require this, since a show of force raising an apprehension in the mind of the victim was sufficient. Also, a ‘battery’ did not require an actual beating; the use of any degree of force against the body would suffice. The acts of spitting on a person and kissing without consent are both batteries.” Glanville Williams, Textbook of Criminal Law 135–36 (1978).

“In addition to the classic definitions of assault, some jurisdictions have used assault as a generic term to describe either assault or battery. Thus, a defendant who intentionally injures somebody may be convicted of assault rather than battery.” Arnold H. Loewy, Criminal Law in a Nutshell 57 (2d ed. 1987).

aggravated assault.Criminal assault accompanied by circumstances that make it more severe, such as the intent to commit another crime or the intent to cause serious bodily injury, esp. by using a deadly weapon. See Model Penal Code § 211.1(2). [Cases: Assault and Battery 54. C.J.S.

Assault and Battery §§ 72–74, 80–81.]

“The common law did not include any offense known as ‘aggravated assault.’ However, it did make provision for certain situations in this field, under other names. If, for example, the intended application of force to the person would have resulted in murder, mayhem, rape or robbery, if successful, and the scheme proceeded far enough to constitute an attempt the prosecution was for an attempt to commit the intended felony.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 180 (3d ed. 1982).

assault purpensé (<<schwa>>-sawlt poor-pawn-say). [French] Hist. Premeditated assault. — Also termed assultus premeditatus (<<schwa>>-s<< schwa>>l-t<<schwa>>s pree-med-<<schwa>>-tay-tis).

“Even before the conquest, ... deliberately planned assassinations came to be distinguished and put into the list of Crown pleas as forsteal. The original sense of this word was lying in wait to ambush the victim. After the conquest this is expressed in various terms in French and Latin, but frequently takes the form of assault purpensé, or assultus premeditatus. In time this yields before malitia excogitata, and so introduces us to the very troublesome word ‘malice.’” Theodore F.T. Plucknett, A Concise History of the Common Law 444 (5th ed. 1956).

assault to rape. See assault with intent to commit rape.

assault with a deadly weapon. An aggravated assault in which the defendant, using a deadly weapon, threatens the victim with death or serious bodily injury. — Also termed assault with a dangerous weapon. [Cases: Assault and Battery 56. C.J.S. Assault and Battery §§ 77–79.]

assault with intent. Any of several assaults that are carried out with an additional criminal purpose in mind, such as assault with intent to murder, assault with intent to rob, assault with intent to rape, and assault with intent to inflict great bodily injury. • These are modern statutory inventions that are often found in state criminal codes. [Cases: Homicide 725; Rape 16; Robbery 13. C.J.S. Rape §§ 32, 36–43; Robbery §§ 78–79, 82.]

assault with intent to commit rape. An assault carried out with the additional criminal purpose of raping the victim. — Also termed assault to rape. [Cases: Rape 6. C.J.S. Rape § 19.]

atrocious assault. An assault that causes severe wounding or maiming.

attempted assault. An attempt to commit an assault; an attempted battery that has not progressed far enough to be an assault, as when a person intends to harm someone physically but is captured while or after trying to locate the intended victim in his or her place of employment. • Traditionally, most commentators held that an attempted assault could not exist because assault was in itself an attempt to commit a crime. Many modern authorities, however, assert that an attempted assault can occur, and that it should be punishable. — Also termed attempt to assault. See ATTEMPT TO ATTEMPT. [Cases: Assault and Battery 61. C.J.S. Assault and Battery § 82.]

“[I]t is apparent that reference may be made to an ‘attempt to assault’ without logical absurdity. There is nothing absurd in referring to an attempt to frighten, which would constitute, if successful, a criminal assault in most jurisdictions.... It is not surprising, therefore, that there is a tendency to break away from the ancient view that there is no such offense known to the law as an attempt to commit an assault.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 168 (3d ed. 1982).

“By far the most interesting cases in this area are the attempted assault cases. Where assault is defined as intentionally putting another in fear of a battery, there is of course no basis for denying the possibility of an attempt. Where, however, assault is defined as an attempted battery, attempted assault looks very much like the forbidden ‘attempt to attempt’ a battery. For this reason some courts have held that there is no such crime as attempted assault. Other courts, however, have held that an attempted assault can exist, defining it as an attempted battery which has not progressed far enough to be an assault.” Arnold H. Loewy, Criminal Law in a Nutshell 223–24 (2d ed. 1987).

civil assault.An assault considered as a tort and not as a crime. • Although the same assaultive conduct can be both a tort and a crime, this term isolates the legal elements that give rise to civil liability. [Cases: Assault and Battery 2. C.J.S. Assault and Battery §§ 2–4, 6–8.]

conditional assault.An assault expressing a threat on condition, such as “your money or your life.”

criminal assault.An assault considered as a crime and not as a tort. • This term isolates the legal elements that give rise to criminal liability even though the act might also have been tortious. [Cases: Assault and Battery 48. C.J.S. Assault and Battery §§ 2–3, 62, 64–66, 81.]

excusable assault.An assault committed by accident or while doing a lawful act by lawful means, with ordinary caution and without any unlawful intent.

felonious assault.An assault that is of sufficient severity to be classified and punished as a felony. See aggravated assault; assault with a deadly weapon. [Cases: Assault and Battery 60. C.J.S. Assault and Battery § 63.]

malicious assault with a deadly weapon.An aggravated assault in which the victim is threatened with death or serious bodily harm from the defendant's use of a deadly weapon. • Malice is inferred from both the nature of the assault and the weapon used. [Cases: Assault and Battery 56. C.J.S. Assault and Battery §§ 77–79.]

sexual assault. 1. Sexual intercourse with another person who does not consent. • Several state statutes have abolished the crime of rape and replaced it with the offense of sexual assault. [Cases: Rape 1. C.J.S. Rape §§ 1–3, 15.] 2. Offensive sexual contact with another person, exclusive of rape. • The Model Penal Code lists eight circumstances under which sexual contact results in an assault, as when the offender knows that the victim is mentally incapable of appreciating the nature of the conduct, either because of a mental disease or defect or because the offender has drugged the victim to prevent resistance. See Model Penal Code § 213.4. — Also termed (in sense 2) indecent assault. Cf. RAPE. [Cases: Assault and Battery 59. C.J.S. Assault and Battery § 74.]

simple assault.1. See ASSAULT(1).2. See ASSAULT(2).

“(1) Simple Assault. A person is guilty of assault if he: (a) attempts to cause or purposely, knowingly or recklessly causes bodily injury to another; or (b) negligently causes bodily injury to another with a deadly weapon; or (c) attempts by physical menace to put another in fear of imminent serious bodily injury.” Model Penal Code § 211.1 (1997).

ASSAULT AND BATTERY

assault and battery.Loosely, a criminal battery. See BATTERY.

“Although the term assault and battery is frequently used when a battery has been committed, one who commits a battery cannot also be punished for committing an assault, since the lesser offense of assault blends into the actual battery.” Paul Marcus, “Assault and Battery,” in 1 Encyclopedia of Crime and Justice 88, 88 (Sanford H. Kadish ed., 1983).

ASSECURATION

assecurator (<<schwa>>-sek-y<<schwa>>-ray-sh<<schwa>>n).Marine insurance. Insurance.

ASSECURATOR

assecurator (<<schwa>>-sek-y<<schwa>>-ray-t<<schwa>>r).Marine insurance. An insurer.

ASSEMBLY

assembly. 1. A group of persons organized and united for some common purpose.

delegate assembly.See CONVENTION(4).

deliberative assembly.Parliamentary law. A body that transacts business according to parliamentary law. • A deliberative assembly typically has several distinctive characteristics: (1) it is a group of people who meet all together to propose, discuss, and possibly vote on courses of action to be undertaken in the group's name; (2) participants are free to use their own judgment; (3) enough people participate that a certain degree of formality in proceedings is desirable; (4) each participant has one vote and may dissent without fear of expulsion; and (5) when some members are absent, the members actually present have the authority to act for the entire group (subject to quorum and other requirements). See Henry M. Robert, Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised § 1, at 2 (10th ed. 2000).

ordinary assembly.Parliamentary law. A deliberative assembly other than a legislative body.

riotous assembly.Hist. An unlawful assemblage of 12 or more persons causing a disturbance of the peace. See RIOT. [Cases: Riot 1. C.J.S. Riot; Insurrection §§ 2–10.]

unlawful assembly.A meeting of three or more persons who intend either to commit a violent crime or to carry out some act, lawful or unlawful, that will constitute a breach of the peace. Cf. RIOT. [Cases: Unlawful Assembly 1. C.J.S. Unlawful Assembly §§ 2–5, 9–13.]

“In order that the assembly may be ‘unlawful,’ it is not necessary that the object of the meeting should itself be illegal. The test is, not the illegality of the purpose for which the persons are met, but the danger to the peace which their meeting involves. The mere fact, therefore, that the purpose is unlawful is not enough; it must be shown that it involves reasonable apprehension of a breach of the peace. Thus, if a number of persons meet to plan a fraud, they may be guilty of a conspiracy, but their meeting is not an unlawful assembly.” 4 Stephen's Commentaries on the Laws of England 135–36 (L. Crispin Warmington ed., 21st ed. 1950).

“An unlawful assembly differs from a riot in that if the parties assemble in a tumultuous manner, and actually execute their purpose with violence, it is a riot; but if they merely meet on a purpose, which, if executed, would make them rioters, and, having done nothing, they separate without carrying their purpose into effect, it is an unlawful assembly.” 77 C.J.S. Riot; Insurrection § 2, at 565 (1994).

2. In many states, the lower house of a legislature. 3.Parliamentary law. CONVENTION(4).4.Patents. In a patent claim, a collection of parts used to form a structure.

ASSEMBLY, RIGHT OF

assembly, right of. See RIGHT OF ASSEMBLY.

assensio mentium (<<schwa>>-sen-see-oh men-shee-<<schwa>>m). [Latin "assent of minds"] See MEETING OF THE MINDS.

assent, n. Agreement, approval, or permission; esp., verbal or nonverbal conduct reasonably interpreted as willingness. See CONSENT. — assent, vb.

"The requirement of 'assent,' which is fundamental to the formation of a binding contract, implies in a general way that both parties to an exchange shall have a reasonably clear conception of what they are getting and what they are giving up." Marvin A. Chirelstein, Concepts and Case Analysis in the Law of Contracts 66 (1990).

actual assent. Assent given by words or conduct intended to express willingness.

apparent assent. Assent given by language or conduct that, while not necessarily intended to express willingness, would be understood by a reasonable person to be so intended and is actually so understood.

constructive assent. Assent imputed to someone based on conduct.

express assent. Assent clearly and unmistakably communicated.

implied assent. Assent inferred from one's conduct rather than from direct expression.

mutual assent. Agreement by both parties to a contract, usu. in the form of offer and acceptance. • In modern contract law, mutual assent is determined by an objective standard — that is, by the apparent intention of the parties as manifested by their actions. Cf. MEETING OF THE MINDS. [Cases: Contracts 15. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 35–36, 38.]

ASSENTED STOCK

assented stock. See STOCK.

ASSENTING-SILENCE DOCTRINE

assenting-silence doctrine. The principle that an accusation will be taken as true, despite silence by the accused, if the accusation was made under circumstances in which silence can be fairly said to be an agreement. • This doctrine is usu. held to be invalid as a measure of a criminal defendant's guilt. [Cases: Criminal Law 407. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 887.]

assessee (as-<<schwa>>-see), n. A person against whom a payment is assessed.

ASSESSMENT

assessment,n.1. Determination of the rate or amount of something, such as a tax or damages <assessment of the losses covered by insurance>. [Cases: Damages 95–126; Internal Revenue 4520; Taxation 308.C.J.S. Damages §§ 105–153, 163–164; Internal Revenue § 641; Parent and Child § 344; Taxation § 1673.] 2. Imposition of something, such as a tax or fine, according to an established rate; the tax or fine so imposed < assessment of a luxury tax>. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4520; Taxation 308. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 641; Taxation § 1673.]

“There is a distinction between public improvements, which benefit the entire community, and local improve-ments, which benefit particular real estate or limited areas of land. The latter improvements are usually financed by means of special, or local, assessments. These assessments are, in a certain sense, taxes. But an assessment differs from a general tax in that an assessment is levied only on property in the immediate vicinity of some local municipal improvement and is valid only where the property assessed receives some special benefit differing from the benefit that the general public enjoys.” Robert Kratovil, Real Estate Law 465 (6th ed. 1974).

assessment for benefits. See special assessment.

deficiency assessment. An assessment by the IRS — after administrative review and tax-court adjudication — of additional tax owed by a taxpayer who underpaid. See DEFICIENCY(2). [Cases: Internal Revenue 4520. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 641.]

double assessment. The act of requiring that tax be paid twice for the same property. See double taxation under TAXATION.

erroneous assessment. An assessment that deviates from the law and creates a jurisdictional defect, and that is therefore invalid.

excessive assessment. A tax assessment that is grossly disproportionate as compared with other assessments. [Cases: Taxation 40(7). C.J.S. Taxation § 35.]

frontage assessment. A municipal tax charged to a property owner for local improvements that abut a street or highway, such as sidewalks, pavements, or sewage lines. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 469. C.J.S. Mu-nicipal Corporations §§ 1281–1283, 1285.]

jeopardy assessment. An assessment by the IRS — without the usual review procedures — of additional tax owed by a taxpayer who underpaid, based on the IRS's belief that collection of the deficiency would be jeopardized by delay. IRC (26 USCA) §§ 6811 et seq. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4548. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 651.]

local assessment. A tax to pay for improvements (such as sewers and sidewalks) in a designated area, levied on property owners who will benefit from the improvements. — Also termed local-improvement assessment. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 405. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 1116–1118.]

“Since there is [an] important and fundamental distinction between the tax in the more limited sense and the local assessment, the question often arises whether provisions in constitutions and statutes which refer by name to taxes, include also local assessments. This is primarily a question of legislative intention. In the absence of anything to show the specific intention of the legislature, the general rule is that the local assessment possesses such marked peculiarities differentiating it from the tax in the more limited sense of the term, that the use of the term ‘tax’ does not prima facie show an intention to include local assessments.” 1 William H. Page & Paul Jones, A Treatise on the Law of Taxation by Local and Special Assessments § 39, at 67 assessment fund. The balance of the assessments of a mutual-benefit association, minus expenses, from which beneficiaries are paid. [Cases: Beneficial Associations 17. C.J.S. Beneficial Associations § 28.]

ASSESSMENT INSURANCE

assessment insurance. See INSURANCE.

ASSESSMENT LIST

assessment list. See ASSESSMENT ROLL.

ASSESSMENT PERIOD

assessment period. A taxable period.

ASSESSMENT RATIO

assessment ratio. For property-tax purposes, the ratio of assessed value to fair market value.

ASSESSMENT ROLL

assessment roll. A record of taxable persons and property, prepared by a tax assessor. — Also termed assessment list. [Cases: Taxation 408. C.J.S. Taxation § 580.]

assessment work. Mining law. The annual labor (such as improvements) that must be performed on an unpatented mining claim to continue to hold the claim. [Cases: Mines and Minerals 23. C.J.S. Mines and Minerals §§ 84, 96.]

assessor. 1. One who evaluates or makes assessments, esp. for purposes of taxation. — Also termed (specif.) tax assessor. [Cases: Taxation 309, 312. C.J.S. Taxation §§ 455–457, 459–461, 478–480.] 2. A person who advises a judge or magistrate about scientific or technical matters during a trial. See MASTER(2). 3. ADSESSOR. — assessorial (as-<<schwa>>-sor-ee-*<<schwa>>*l), adj. — assessorship, n.

asset. 1. An item that is owned and has value. 2. (pl.) The entries on a balance sheet showing the items of property owned, including cash, inventory, equipment, real estate, accounts receivable, and goodwill. 3. (pl.) All the property of a person (esp. a bankrupt or deceased person) available for paying debts or for distribution.

accrued asset. An asset arising from revenues earned but not yet due.

admitted asset. An asset that by law may be included in evaluating the financial condition of an insurance company. Cf. nonadmitted asset. [Cases: Insurance 1363. C.J.S. Insurance § 168.]

appointive asset. An asset distributed under a power of appointment.

assets by descent. The portion of an estate that passes to an heir and is sufficient to charge the heir with the decedent's specialty debts. — Also termed assets per descent.

assets in hand. The portion of an estate held by an executor or administrator for the payment of debts chargeable to the executor or administrator. — Also termed assets entre main; assets entre mains.

assets per descent. See assets by descent.

asset under management. A securities portfolio for which an investment adviser provides ongoing, regular supervisory or management services.

capital asset. 1. A long-term asset used in the operation of a business or used to produce goods or services, such as equipment, land, or an industrial plant. — Also termed fixed asset. 2.

For income-tax purposes, any of most assets held by a taxpayer except those assets specifically excluded by the Internal Revenue Code. • Excluded from the definition are, among other things, stock in trade, inventory, and property held by the taxpayer primarily for sale to customers in the ordinary course of trade or business. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3230.1–3261. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 127–145, 490–491, 671.]

commercial assets.The aggregate of available property, stock in trade, cash, and other assets belonging to a merchant.

current asset.An asset that is readily convertible into cash, such as a marketable security, a note, or an account receivable. — Also termed liquid asset; quick asset; near money; financial asset.

“Current assets are assets expected to be converted to cash, sold, or consumed during the next twelve months, or within the business's normal operating cycle if the cycle is longer than a year. The operating cycle is the period from the time that cash is used to acquire goods and services, these goods and services are sold to customers, and the accounts receivable from these customers are collected in cash. For a small retail store, the operating cycle may be only a few weeks or months. For a shipbuilding company, however, the normal operating cycle could run several years.” Jay Alix & Elmer E. Heupel, Financial Handbook for Bankruptcy Professionals § 9.2, at 354 (1991).

dead asset.A worthless asset that has no realizable value, such as an uncollectible account receivable.

earning asset.(usu. pl.) An asset (esp. of a bank) on which interest is received. • Banks consider loans to be earning assets.

equitable asset.An asset that is subject to payment only in a court of equity.

financial asset.See current asset.

fixed asset.See capital asset (1).

frozen asset.An asset that is difficult to convert into cash because of court order or other legal process.

hard asset.See real asset.

hidden asset.An asset carried on the books at a substantially reduced or understated value that is considerably less than market value.

illiquid asset.An asset that is not readily convertible into cash, usu. because of (1) the lack of demand, (2) the absence of an established market, or (3) the substantial cost or time required for liquidation (such as for real property, even when it is desirable).

individual asset.(usu. pl.) Property belonging to a member of a partnership as personal property, apart from the firm's property. [Cases: Partnership 67. C.J.S. Partnership §§ 70–72.]

intangible asset.Any nonphysical asset or resource that can be amortized or converted to cash, such as patents, goodwill, and computer programs, or a right to something, such as services paid for in advance.

legal asset. A decedent's asset that by law is subject to the claims of creditors or legacies. — Also termed probate asset. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 38. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators §§ 2, 121, 130.]

liquid asset. See current asset.

mass asset. An intangible asset, such as a dominant market position, that is made up of several components but that is considered a single entity for purposes of depreciation, because the loss of any component of the asset is replaced by new components, so that the whole asset has little or no fluctuation in value. • An entity with a dominant market position might lose a vendor but, because of its dominant market position, still be able to replace the loss with a new vendor. The market position is therefore considered a mass asset.

net assets. See net worth under WORTH.

net quick assets. The excess of quick assets less current liabilities. See QUICK-ASSET RATIO.

new asset. Wills & estates. In the administration of a decedent's estate, property that the administrator or executor receives after the time has expired to file claims against the estate.

nominal asset. An asset whose value is difficult to assess, such as a judgment or claim.

nonadmitted asset. An asset that by law may not be included in evaluating the financial condition of an insurance company because it cannot be converted quickly into cash without a financial loss. Cf. admitted asset. [Cases: Insurance 1363. C.J.S. Insurance § 168.]

nonprobate asset. Property that passes to a named beneficiary upon the owner's death according to the terms of some contract or arrangement other than a will. • Such an asset is not a part of the probate estate and is not ordinarily subject to the probate court's jurisdiction (and fees), though it is part of the taxable estate. Examples include life-insurance contracts, joint property arrangements with right of survivorship, pay-on-death bank accounts, and inter vivos trusts. — Also termed nonprobate property. Cf. WILL SUBSTITUTE.

personal asset. An asset in the form of money or chattels.

premarital asset. Property that a spouse owned before marrying. • In most jurisdictions, this is part of the spouse's separate property. See SEPARATE PROPERTY. Cf. COMMUNITY PROPERTY.

probate asset. See legal asset.

quick asset. 1. Cash and other current assets other than inventory. 2. See current asset.

real asset. 1. An asset in the form of land. 2. Loosely, any tangible asset. — Also termed hard asset.

tangible asset. An asset that has a physical existence and is capable of being assigned a value.

wasting asset. An asset exhausted through use or the loss of value, such as an oil well or a coal deposit.

ASSET ACQUISITION

asset acquisition. Acquisition of a corporation by purchasing all its assets directly from the corporation itself, rather than by purchasing shares from its shareholders. — Also termed asset purchase. Cf. SHARE ACQUISITION.

ASSET ALLOCATION

asset allocation. The spreading of funds between different types of investments with the intention of decreasing risk and increasing return.

ASSET-BACKED SECURITY

asset-backed security. See SECURITY.

ASSET-BASED FINANCING

asset-based financing. See FINANCING.

ASSET-COVERAGE TEST

asset-coverage test. Accounting. A bond-indenture restriction that permits additional borrowing only if the ratio of assets (typically net tangible assets) to debt (typically long-term debt) does not fall below a specified minimum.

ASSET-DEPRECIATION RANGE

asset-depreciation range. Tax. The IRS's range of depreciation lifetimes allowed for assets placed in service between 1970 and 1980 and for assets depreciated under the Modified Accelerated Cost Recovery System under the Tax Reform Act of 1986. — Abbr. ADR. See ACCELERATED COST RECOVERY SYSTEM. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3476. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 230, 234, 239, 249.]

asseverate (<<schwa>>-sev-<<schwa>>-rayt), vb. To state solemnly or positively; to aver. See AVERMENT. — asseveration (<<schwa>>-sev-<<schwa>>-ray-sh<< schwa>>n), n.

ASSIGN

assign, n. (usu. pl.) See ASSIGNEE.

assign, vb. 1. To convey; to transfer rights or property <the bank assigned the note to a thrift institution>. 2. To assert; to point out <the appellant assigned as errors two of the trial court's rulings>. See ASSIGNMENT OF ERROR .

ASSIGNABLE

assignable, adj. That can be assigned; transferable from one person to another, so that the transferee has the same rights as the transferor had <assignable right>. Cf. NEGOTIABLE. [Cases: Assignments 1. C.J.S. Assignments §§ 2–7; Right of Privacy and Publicity § 42.]

ASSIGNABLE LEASE

assignable lease. See LEASE.

assignment (as-ig-nay-sh<<schwa>>n), n. 1. Archaic. An appointment of a time and place to meet, esp. for en-gaging in illicit sex. 2. Eccles. law. A specific allegation in a defendant's counterpleading. 3. French law. A plaintiff's complaint; a writ of summons.

ASSIGNATION HOUSE

assignment house. See DISORDERLY HOUSE.

ASSIGN DOWER

assign dower.To set out the legal description of a widow's share of her deceased husband's estate. See DOWER.

ASSIGNED ACCOUNT

assigned account.See ACCOUNT.

ASSIGNED COUNSEL

assigned counsel.See COUNSEL.

ASSIGNED ERROR

assigned error.See ERROR.

ASSIGNED RISK

assigned risk.See RISK.

ASSIGNEE

assignee (<<schwa>>-sI-neeor as-<<schwa>>-nee). One to whom property rights or powers are transferred by another. • Use of the term is so widespread that it is difficult to ascribe positive meaning to it with any specificity. Courts recognize the protean nature of the term and are therefore often forced to look to the intent of the assignor and assignee in making the assignment — rather than to the formality of the use of the term assignee — in defining rights and responsibilities. — Also termed assign. [Cases: Assignments 90. C.J.S. Assignments §§ 73, 84, 88.]

absolute assignee.A person who is assigned an unqualified interest in property in a transfer of some or all of the incidents of ownership.

assignee ad interim.An assignee appointed between the time of bankruptcy and the appointment of a regular assignee.

assignee for value.An assignee who has paid for or otherwise given consideration for the assignment.

collateral assignee.A lender who is assigned an interest in property (usu. real property) as security for a loan.

gratuitous assignee.An assignee under an assignment not given for value.

subassignee. A person to whom a right is assigned by one who is a previous assignee of the right.

ASSIGNEE CLAUSE

assignee clause.A provision of the Judiciary Act of 1789 that prevented a litigant without diversity of citizenship from assigning a claim to another who did have the required diversity. • In 1948 the assignee clause was replaced by 28 USCA § 1359, which denies federal jurisdiction when a party is improperly or collusively joined, by as-signment or otherwise, merely to invoke jurisdiction.

ASSIGNER

assigner. See ASSIGNOR.

ASSIGNMENT

assignment. 1. The transfer of rights or property <assignment of stock options>. [Cases: Assignments 31. C.J.S. Assignments §§ 43, 46.] 2. The rights or property so transferred <the aunt assigned those funds to her niece, who promptly invested the assignment in mutual funds>.

“An assignment is a transfer or setting over of property, or of some right or interest therein, from one person to another; the term denoting not only the act of transfer, but also the instrument by which it is effected. In these senses the word is variously applied in law.” Alexander M. Burrill, A Treatise on the Law and Practice of Voluntary Assignments for the Benefit of Creditors § 1, at 1 (James Avery Webb ed., 6th ed. 1894).

“Negotiability differs from assignment, with which it has obvious affinities, in at least two respects. In the first place no notice need be given of the transfer of a negotiable instrument, and in the second place the transfer of such an instrument is not subject to equities. Thus whereas an assignor only transfers his rights subject to any defences which could be pleaded against him, a transfer of a negotiable instrument to someone in good faith passes a good title, free from any such defences. For instance a person who receives a cheque in good faith obtains a good title, even though the cheque may have been stolen. It is not, of course, any document which has the attributes of negotiability. Only those documents recognized by the custom of trade to be transferable by delivery (or endorsement) are negotiable. Other documents can only be transferred by assignment.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 278–79 (3d ed. 1981).

absolute assignment. An assignment that leaves the assignor no interest in the assigned property or right. [Cases: Assignments 71. C.J.S. Assignments § 73.]

assignment by operation of law. A transfer of a right or obligation as a necessary consequence of a change in legal status, regardless of the affected party's intent. • For example, a right and a corresponding obligation may disappear if they vest in the same person, as might happen in a merger or acquisition.

assignment for value. An assignment given in exchange for consideration.

assignment in gross. A transfer of a company's trademark separately from the goodwill of the business. • Courts often hold that such an assignment passes nothing of value to the transferee. — Also termed naked assignment. See ANTI-ASSIGNMENT-IN-GROSS RULE. [Cases: Trade Regulation 93, 101.1. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 9, 205.]

assignment of account. An assignment that gives the assignee the right to funds in an account, usu. to satisfy a debt. [Cases: Assignments 10. C.J.S. Assignments §§ 19–21.]

assignment of application. 1. Patents. The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office's formal routing of a patent or trademark application to the examining group to which it appears to belong based on subject matter. 2. The transfer of the right to prosecute a patent or register a trademark. • The assignee must show ownership in the property to be patented or registered and, if less than absolute, the extent of ownership. See 37 CFR § 3.73. [Cases: Patents 183.]

assignment of dower (dow-<<schwa>>r). The act of setting apart a widow's share of her deceased husband's real property. [Cases: Dower and Curtesy 65–112. C.J.S. Dower §§ 75–129, 169–170.]

assignment of income. See assignment of wages.

assignment of lease. An assignment in which a lessee transfers the entire unexpired remainder of the lease term, as distinguished from a sublease transferring only a portion of the remaining term. [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 74. C.J.S. Landlord and Tenant §§ 30, 53.]

assignment of realty. A transfer of a real-property interest that is less than a freehold. • The term includes debt-security interests in land.

assignment of wages. A transfer of the right to collect wages from the wage-earner to a creditor. — Also termed assignment of income. [Cases: Assignments 11.1.]

assignment pro tanto. An assignment that results when an order is drawn on a third party and made payable from a particular fund that belongs to the drawer. • The drawee becomes an assignee with respect to the drawer's interest in that fund. [Cases: Assignments 49. C.J.S. Assignments § 55.]

collateral assignment. An assignment of property as collateral security for a loan. [Cases: Secured Transactions 181. C.J.S. Secured Transactions §§ 25, 134–136.]

common-law assignment. An assignment for the benefit of creditors made under the common law, rather than by statute. [Cases: Debtor and Creditor 1. C.J.S. Assignments for Benefit of Creditors §§ 2, 4; Creditor and Debtor §§ 2–3.]

conditional assignment. An assignment of income (such as rent payments or accounts receivable) to a lender, made to secure a loan. • The lender receives the assigned income only if the assignor defaults on the underlying loan. [Cases: Mortgages 199(2); Secured Transactions 181. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 301–302; Secured Transactions §§ 25, 134–136.]

effective assignment. An assignment that terminates the assignor's interest in the property and transfers it to the assignee.

equitable assignment. An assignment that, although not legally valid, will be recognized and enforced in equity — for example, an assignment of a chose in action or of future acquisitions of the assignor. • To accomplish an “equitable assignment,” there must be an absolute appropriation by the assignor of the debt or fund sought to be assigned. [Cases: Assignments 48. C.J.S. Assignments §§ 2, 53.]

fly-power assignment. A blank written assignment that, when attached to a stock certificate, renders the stock transferable. [Cases: Corporations 125. C.J.S. Corporations § 229.]

foreign assignment. An assignment made in a foreign country or in another jurisdiction.

general assignment. Assignment of a debtor's property for the benefit of all the assignor's creditors, instead of only a few. — Also termed voluntary assignment. See ASSIGNMENT FOR THE BENEFIT OF CREDITORS. [Cases: Debtor and Creditor 1. C.J.S. Assignments for Benefit of Creditors §§ 2, 4; Creditor and Debtor §§ 2–3.]

gratuitous assignment. An assignment not given for value; esp., an assignment given or taken as security for — or in total or partial satisfaction of — a preexisting obligation. [Cases: Assignments 54. C.J.S. Assignments § 60.]

mesne assignment (meen). A middle or intermediate assignment; any assignment before the last one.

naked assignment. See assignment in gross.

partial assignment. The immediate transfer of part but not all of the assignor's right. [Cases: Assignments 30. C.J.S. Assignments §§ 10–12.]

preferential assignment. See PREFERENTIAL TRANSFER.

total assignment. An assignment empowering the assignee to enforce the entire right for the benefit of the assignor or others. • Examples are assignment to secure an obligation and assignment to a trustee.

voluntary assignment. See general assignment.

wage assignment. An assignment by an employee of a portion of the employee's pay to another (such as a creditor). [Cases: Assignments 11.1.]

3. The instrument of transfer <the assignment was appended to the contract>. [Cases: Assignments 31. C.J.S. Assignments §§ 43, 46.] 4. A welfare recipient's surrender of his or her rights to child support (both current and past due) in favor of the state as a condition of receiving governmental financial assistance <the assignment made economic sense to her because her child support amounted to $200 a month, while she received $400 a month in welfare>. 5. A task, job, or appointment <the student's math assignment> <assignment as ambassador to a foreign country>. 6. The act of assigning a task, job, or appointment <the assignment of various duties>.

assignment of the floor. Parliamentary law. The process by which the chair recognizes who is entitled to speak.

7. In litigation practice, a point that a litigant advances <the third assignment of error>.

new assignment. Hist. A plaintiff's restatement of a claim because the first complaint did not contain sufficient details. • The purpose was to allow a plaintiff to reply to a defendant's responsive plea that did not address the plaintiff's specific claim because the complaint was too general. New assignment has been replaced by amended pleadings. — Also termed novel assignment.

“A new assignment is a restatement in the replication of the plaintiff's cause of action. Where the declaration in an action is ambiguous and the defendant pleads facts which are literally an answer to it, but not to the real claim set up by the plaintiff, the plaintiff's course is to reply by way of new assignment; that is, to allege that he brought his action, not for the cause supposed by the defendant, but for some other cause, to which the plea has no application." Benjamin J. Shipman, Handbook of Common-Law Pleading § 214, at 370 (Henry Winthrop Ballantine ed., 3d ed. 1923).

ASSIGNMENT CLAUSE

assignment clause.Oil & gas. See CHANGE-OF-OWNERSHIP CLAUSE.

ASSIGNMENT DIVISION

Assignment Division.The section of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office that is responsible for recording as-signments and other documents affecting title to patent and trademark applications, patents, and registrations.

ASSIGNMENT FOR THE BENEFIT OF CREDITORS

assignment for the benefit of creditors.Assignment of a debtor's property to another person in trust so as to consolidate and liquidate the debtor's assets for payment to creditors, any surplus being returned to the debtor. • This procedure serves as a state-law substitute for federal bankruptcy proceedings. The debtor is not discharged from unpaid debts by this procedure since creditors do not agree to any discharge. [Cases: Debtor and Creditor 1. C.J.S. Assignments for Benefit of Creditors §§ 2, 4; Creditor and Debtor §§ 2–3.]

ASSIGNMENT OF DOWER

assignment of dower (dow-<<schwa>>r). See ASSIGNMENT(2).

ASSIGNMENT OF ERROR

assignment of error.A specification of the trial court's alleged errors on which the appellant relies in seeking an appellate court's reversal, vacation, or modification of an adverse judgment. Pl. assignments of error.See ER-ROR. Cf. WRIT OF ERROR. [Cases: Appeal and Error 718; Criminal Law 1129. C.J.S. Appeal and Error § 578; Criminal Law § 1688.]

ASSIGNMENT OF INCOME

assignment of income.See assignment of wages under ASSIGNMENT(2).

ASSIGNMENT-OF-INCOME DOCTRINE

assignment-of-income doctrine.Family law. The common-law principle that the person who has earned income is the person taxed on it, regardless of who receives the proceeds. • Under this doctrine, future income assigned to another is taxable to the assignor. For example, in Lucas v. Earl, 281 U.S. 111, 50 S.Ct. 241 (1930), the Court held that a husband who was the sole wage-earner could not assign to his wife half his income and then pay the federal income tax on only the unassigned part.

ASSIGNMENT OF LEASE

assignment of lease. See ASSIGNMENT(2).

ASSIGNMENT OF PROPERTY

assignment of property. See EQUITABLE DISTRIBUTION.

ASSIGNMENT OF REALTY

assignment of realty. See ASSIGNMENT(2).

ASSIGNMENT-OF-RENTS CLAUSE

assignment-of-rents clause. A mortgage provision or separate agreement that entitles the lender to collect rents from the mortgaged premises if the borrower defaults. [Cases: Mortgages 199(2). C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 301–302.]

ASSISTANCE OF COUNSEL

assistance of counsel. Representation by a lawyer, esp. in a criminal case. • The phrase in its modern uses derives from the Sixth Amendment: “In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right ... to have the assis-tance of counsel for his defense.” U.S. Const. amend. VI. See RIGHT TO COUNSEL . [Cases: Criminal Law 641.13. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 304–305.]

effective assistance of counsel. A conscientious, meaningful legal representation, whereby the defendant is ad-vised of all rights and the lawyer performs all required tasks reasonably according to the prevailing professional standards in criminal cases. See Fed. R. Crim. P. 44; 18 USCA § 3006A.

“The law is in flux on precisely what constitutes the ‘effective’ assistance of counsel. The Supreme Court has yet to set forth a definitive standard, and lower courts have adopted differing ones. Prior to the 1970s the most common standard was the ‘mockery of justice’ standard, under which counsel's assistance was ‘ineffective’ only when it was so inadequate that it reduced the trial

'to a farce' or rendered it a 'mockery of justice.' Since that time, most courts have abandoned this formulation in favor of more stringent requirements, stipulating, for example, that 'counsel must exercise [the] normal skill and knowledge which normally prevails at the time and place' (Moore v. United States, 432 F.2d 730 (3d Cir. 1970)), that counsel must render the 'reasonably competent assistance of an attorney acting as his diligent advocate' (United States v. Decoster, 487 F.2d 1197 (D.C. Cir. 1973)), or that counsel's representation must be 'within the range of competence demanded of attorneys in criminal cases' (Marzullo v. Maryland, 561 F.2d 540 (4th Cir. 1977)). All of these new standards beg the questions of what traditional level of practice is to be regarded as 'customary,' 'diligent,' or 'reasonable.' Thus, little has been definitively resolved by the new, higher standards." Arval A. Morris, "Right to Counsel," in 1 Encyclopedia of Crime and Justice 278, 283 (Sanford H. Kadish ed., 1983).

ineffective assistance of counsel. A representation in which the defendant is deprived of a fair trial because the lawyer handles the case unreasonably, usu. either by performing incompetently or by not devoting full effort to the defendant, esp. because of a conflict of interest. • In determining whether a criminal defendant received ineffective assistance of counsel, courts generally consider several factors: (1) whether the lawyer had previously handled criminal cases; (2) whether strategic trial tactics were involved in the allegedly incompetent action; (3) whether, and to what extent, the defendant was prejudiced as a result of the lawyer's alleged ineffectiveness; and (4) whether the ineffectiveness was due to matters beyond the lawyer's control.

"The Sixth Amendment right to assistance of counsel has been held to imply the 'right to the effective assistance of counsel.' The Court has often said that the converse — ineffective assistance of counsel — is a constitutional denial of the Sixth Amendment right, even if the lawyer has been retained by rather than appointed for the defendant. 'Ineffective' does not necessarily mean incompetent or unprepared; it means an inability to perform as an independent lawyer devoted to the defendant.... However, counsel's assistance is not necessarily ineffective because the lawyer made mistakes. Only very serious errors, such as would likely have produced an entirely different outcome at trial, will suffice to require a new trial." Jethro K. Lieberman, The Evolving Constitution 263–64 (1992).

ASSIZE

assize (<<schwa>>-sIz), n.1. A session of a court or council.

maiden assize.Hist. 1.An assize in which no prisoner is sentenced to death. 2. An assize in which the sheriff presents the judges with white gloves because there are no prisoners to try. • This practice stemmed from a custom in which a prisoner who was convicted of murder but pardoned by the Crown presented gloves to the judges as a fee.

2. A law enacted by such a body, usu. one setting the measure, weight, or price of a thing.

Assize of Arms.An 1181 statute requiring every man to keep arms suitable to his station in life. See ASSISA ARMORUM.

Assize of Clarendon (klar-<<schwa>>n-d<<schwa>>n).Hist. A decree issued in 1166 by Henry II to the justices in eyre and sheriffs concerning criminal procedure. • The Assize expanded the reach of the king's courts by asserting royal jurisdiction over serious crimes. See CONSTITUTIONS OF CLARENDON.

Assize of Northampton.Hist. A decree issued in 1176 by Henry II as an expansion and reissue of the Assize of Clarendon, instructing judges esp. on questions of tenure, relief, and dower.

3. The procedure provided for by such an enactment. 4. The court that hears cases involving that procedure. 5. A jury.

grand assize.(often cap.) A sworn panel summoned by judicial writ to resolve disputes concerning real property. • Henry II instituted the Grand Assize in the 12th century as an alternative to trial by battle. — Also termed magna assisa.

petite assize.A jury convened to decide questions of possession.

6. A jury trial.

assize of mort d'ancestor (mor[t] dan-ses-t<<schwa>>r). An action for the recovery of land belonging to the claimant's ancestor. • Mort d'ancestor was abolished in the early 19th century. — Also termed assisa mortis d'ancestoris; assisa de morte antecessoris.

judicial assize. An assize begun by judicial writ and deriving from pleas of gage, mort d'ancestor, and darrein presentment.

petty assize. An assize begun by an original writ. • Petty assizes were characterized by the form of the writ, which specified the questions to be put to the panel, and ordered that a panel be assembled. The petty assizes were novel disseisin, mort d'ancestor, utrum, and darrein presentment.

“The word ‘Assisa’ means originally the sitting of a court or assembly. It then comes to denote the things done, the enactments passed, at such a court or assembly. Thus we speak of the Assize of Clarendon, or the Assize of Northampton. Certain of these enactments in Henry II's reign introduced a new procedure for the trial of questions as to the ownership or possession of lands held by free tenure. The Grand Assize introduced this new procedure for the determination of questions of ownership; the possessory assizes for the determination of question of possession.”
1 William Holdsworth, A History of English Law 275 (7th ed. 1956).

7. A jury's finding. 8. A writ. — Also spelled assise; assisa.

assize of darrein presentment (dar-ayn pri-zent-m<<schwa>>nt), n.[fr. French dernier présentation “last pre-sentment”] Hist. A writ allowing a person with a right of advowson that had been disturbed by another claimant to have a jury determine who had last presented a clerk to a benefice and then to allow that person to present again and to recover damages for interference. • This was abolished by the Real Property Limitation Act of 1833 and was replaced by the quare impedit action. — Also termed darreign presentment; assize of last presentation; assisa ultimae praesentationis; assize de ultima presentatione. — Also spelled darreign. See ADVOWSON; QUARE IMPEDIT.

“An assise of darrein presentment, or last presentation, lies when a man, or his ancestors, under whom he claims, have presented a clerk to a benefice, who is instituted; and afterwards upon the next avoidance a stranger presents a clerk, and thereby disturbs him that is the real patron. In which case the patron shall have this writ, directed to the sheriff to summon an assise or jury, to enquire who was the last patron that presented to the church now vacant, of which the plaintiff complains that he is deforced by the defendant: and, according as the assise determines that question, a writ shall issue to the bishop; to institute the clerk of that patron, in whose favour the determination is made, and also to give damages ....” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 245 (1768).

“[A]t some time or another during his reign Henry gave a possessory action, the assize of darrein presentment ... which stands to the writ of right of advowson in somewhat the same relation as that in which the novel disseisin stands to the writ of right for land. If the church is vacant and two persons are quarrelling about the advowson, it is very necessary that some provisional, some possessory judgment should be given .... The principle of the new assize is, simply stated, this: 'He who presented last time, let him present this time also; but this without prejudice to any question of right.' An inquest of neighbours is summoned to declare who it was that presented the last parson." 1 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 148–49 (2d ed. 1898).

assize of fresh force.Hist. A writ available in urban areas to disseise another's land. • This writ is so called because it was available only within the first 40 days after title accrued to the person seeking it. — Also termed assisa friscae fortiae.

assize of novel disseisin.Hist. A writ for a tenant who has been disseised of lands and tenements. • This institution of English law flourished for about 300 years — from the 12th century to the 15th. It had become wholly obsolete by the mid-17th century. — Also termed assisa novae disseysinae.

"[Up to the 15th century,] 'assize of novel disseisin' was a series of perfectly plain words, as plain as the words 'proceeding in recent ejectment,' which translate them into modern English, would be to us. Even to humble contemporaries whose linguistic horizons did not extend beyond English, the institution itself apart from its name was perfectly straightforward. It meant that if a freeholder of land was ejected from his property he could require the sheriff to set up a jury of twelve, have them go look at the land, and bring them before the king's justices when they next came to hold court in the county. The justices asked the jurors whether the freeholder had been illegally put out of his holding, as he complained, and if they said that he had then the court would restore the land to him at once." Donald W. Sutherland, The Assize of Novel Disseisin 1–2 (1973).

assize of nuisance.Hist. A writ available to a landowner suffering from a nuisance on another's land; a writ to abate a nuisance. • This writ also entitled a successful plaintiff to damages. — Also termed assisa de nocumento.

"The assize of nuisance. — This was supplementary to the famous assize of novel disseisin which was limited to redressing any act of the defendant that interfered with the plaintiff's seisin of land. It was therefore useless if the injury to the plaintiff began wholly on the defendant's land (e.g., if he erected there a dam which diverted water from the plaintiff's land), for the injury was not a disseisin as there was no entry on the plaintiff's land. This gap was filled by the assize of nuisance as early as the thirteenth century. It extended both to injuries to servitudes stricto sensu and to common rights." P.H. Winfield, A Textbook of the Law of Tort § 130, at 443 (5th ed. 1950).

schwa>>-l<<schwa>>m). A code of feudal law intended to serve as the law of the lands conquered by the Crusaders. • The code was prepared in the 12th century after the 1099 conquest of Jerusalem.

ASSIZE UTRUM

assize utrum (yoo-tr<<schwa>>m). [Latin] Hist. A writ to determine whether land claimed by a church was held by lay or spiritual tenure. • This writ is named after its emphatic word, which required the fact-finder to determine whether (utrum) the land belonged to the church. — Also termed (erroneously) assize of utrum; assize de utrum.

“In the assize utrum a jury was summoned to decide whether land was held by lay or spiritual tenure — a pre-liminary question to any litigation about it, for the Church claimed jurisdiction over spiritual land. Later the Church was to lose this jurisdiction, and the assize utrum became the parson's substitute for the writ of right. This curious development was brought about in this way. A parson could not use the writs of right, for, like a life tenant, he could not trace his title back to the seisin of an ancestor. The assize utrum could be made to serve the parson, however, for the question asked in the writ was whether certain land in a parish was ‘the free alms of the Church of X.’ If the answer was ‘yes,’ then it followed that it was the parson of the parish's land.” Brian Simpson, An Introduction to the History of the Land Law 30–31 (1961).

“[T]he ‘assize utrum’ ... is important as being the first instance known to us of the general use of the royal procedure by way of inquest in a matter of private litigation. If the answer of the inquest was that this land was held in frankalmoign, then the case went to the ecclesiastical court; if that it was lay fee, then to the appropriate lay tribunal. In the course of the thirteenth century the ecclesiastical courts lost their jurisdiction over land held by spiritual tenure, and the ‘assize utrum’ came to be used not as a merely preliminary procedure but as a mode of deciding in royal courts a question of title to glebe land.” Geoffrey Radcliffe & Geoffrey Cross, The English Legal System 33–34 (G.J. Hand & D.J. Bentley eds., 6th ed. 1977).

See D/B/A. Cf. corporate name under NAME. [Cases: Corporations 46. C.J.S. Corporations § 99.]

assume or reject. Bankruptcy. (Of a debtor-in-possession or a trustee) to make an election under the Bankruptcy Code concerning an executory contract or an unexpired lease within a prescribed period, depending on the chapter of the Code under which the case is proceeding and the subject matter of the contract. • The timing, procedure, and consequences of the election are described in 11 USCA § 365.

assumpsit (<<schwa>>-s<<schwa>>m[p]-sit). [Law Latin “he undertook”] 1. An express or implied promise, not under seal, by which one person undertakes to do some act or pay something to another <an assumpsit to pay a debt>. 2. A common-law action for breach of such a promise or for breach of a contract <the creditor's assumpsit against the debtor>. [Cases: Assumpsit, Action of 1. C.J.S. Assumpsit, Action of §§ 2, 4–6.]

“It was early known as ‘trespass on the case upon promises,’ but in time came to be designated assumpsit (he assumed or promised), and lies for damages for breach of all contracts, parol or simple, whether written or verbal, express or implied.” Edwin E. Bryant, The Law of Pleading Under the Codes of Civil Procedure 9–10 (2d ed. 1899).

“In its origin an action of tort, [assumpsit] was soon transformed into an action of contract, becoming afterwards a remedy where there was neither tort nor contract. Based at first only upon an express promise, it was afterwards supported upon an implied promise, and even upon a fictitious promise. Introduced as a special manifestation of the action on the case, it soon acquired the dignity of a distinct form of action, which superseded Debt, became concurrent with Account, with Case upon a bailment, a warranty, and bills of exchange, and competed with Equity in the case of the essentially equitable quasi-contracts growing out of the principle of unjust enrichment. Surely, it would be hard to find a better illustration of the flexibility and power of self-development of the Common Law.” James Barr Ames, “The History of Assumpsit,” in 3 Select Essays in Anglo-American Legal History 298 (1909).

general assumpsit. An action based on the defendant's breach of an implied promise to pay a debt to the plaintiff. — Also termed common assumpsit; indebitatus assumpsit. [Cases: Assumpsit, Action of 7. C.J.S. Assumpsit, Action of § 10.]

“General assumpsit is brought for breach of a fictitious or implied promise raised by law from a debt founded upon an executed consideration. The basis of the action is the promise implied by law from the performance of the consideration, or from a debt or legal duty resting upon the defendant.” Benjamin J. Shipman, Handbook of Common-Law Pleading § 59, at 153 (Henry Winthrop Ballantine ed., 3d ed. 1923).

“[T]he word ‘assumpsit’ suggest[s] the making of a promise. While that is true in the case of the action of special assumpsit, the promise alleged in the action of general assumpsit was only a fiction. Accordingly in the latter action, the word ‘assumpsit’ no more means that an obligation exists as the result of making a contract, than that a contract is involved because the obligation is described as quasi-contractual.” Charles Herman Kinnane, A First Book on Anglo-American Law 633–34 (2d ed. 1952).

indebitatus assumpsit (in-deb-i-tay-t<<schwa>>s <<schwa>>-s<<schwa>>m[p]-sit). [Latin “being indebted, he undertook”] 1.Hist. A form of action in which the plaintiff alleges that the defendant contracted a debt and, as consideration, had undertaken (i.e., promised) to pay. • The action was equivalent to the common-law action for debt (an action based on a sealed instrument), but could be used to enforce an oral debt. In England, indebitatus assumpsit was abolished in 1873 by the Judicature Act. But it is still used in several American states, such as California. See CONCESSIT SOLVERE. 2. See general assumpsit.

“[I]f I verbally agree to pay a man a certain price for a certain parcel of goods, and fail in the performance, an action of debt lies against me; for this is a determinate contract: but if I agree for no settled price, I am not liable to an action of debt, but a special action on the case, according to the nature of my contract. And indeed actions of debt are now seldom brought but upon special contracts under seal .... [T]he plaintiff must recover the whole debt he claims, or nothing at all. For the debt is one single cause of action, fixed and determined; and which therefore, if the proof varies from the claim, cannot be looked upon as the same ... action of debt .... But in an action on the case, on what is called an indebitatus assumpsit, which is not brought to compel a specific performance of the contract, but to recover damages for its non-performance, the implied assumpsit, and consequently the damages for the breach of it, are in their nature indeterminate; and will therefore adapt and proportion themselves to the truth of the case which shall be proved, without being confined to the precise demand stated in the declaration.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 154 (1768).

special assumpsit. An action based on the defendant's breach of an express contract. — Also termed express assumpsit. [Cases: Assumpsit, Action of 6. C.J.S. Assumpsit, Action of § 4.]

“Special assumpsit lies for the recovery of damages for the breach of simple contract, either express or implied in fact. The term ‘special contract’ is often used to denote an express or explicit contract as contrasted with a promise implied in law.” Benjamin J. Shipman, Handbook of Common-Law Pleading § 58, at 148 (Henry Winthrop Ballantine ed., 3d ed. 1923).

“From the allegations concerning the ‘assumpsit,’ a new action which split off from the action on the case came to be known as the action of assumpsit. Since, however, the plaintiff had to allege and prove a specific or special promise, in order to get a judgment, the action came to be known as the action of 'special assumpsit.' When the special promise came to be regarded as the basis of the action, the action came to be regarded as a contract action, rather than one based on unclassified 'wrongs.' ” Charles Herman Kinnane, A First Book on Anglo-American Law 633–34 (2d ed. 1952).

ASSUMPTION

assumption, n. 1. A fact or statement taken for granted; a supposition . 2. The act of taking (esp. someone else's debt or other obligation) for or on oneself; the agreement to so take <assumption of a debt>. — assume, vb.

implied assumption. The imposition of personal liability on a land purchaser who buys subject to a mortgage and who deducts the mortgage amount from the purchase price, so that the purchaser is treated as having assumed the debt. [Cases: Mortgages 279. C.J.S. Mortgages § 395.]

ASSUMPTION CLAUSE

assumption clause. 1. A mortgage provision that prohibits another from assuming the mortgage without the permission of the mortgagee. [Cases: Mortgages 272. C.J.S. Mortgages §§ 382–383.] 2. A provision by which the transferee of an instrument agrees to assume an obligation of the transferor.

ASSUMPTION FEE

assumption fee. A lender's charge for processing records for a new buyer's assumption of an existing mortgage. [Cases: Mortgages 279. C.J.S. Mortgages § 395.]

ASSUMPTION OF THE RISK

assumption of the risk. Torts. 1. The act or an instance of a prospective plaintiff's taking on the risk of loss, injury, or damage <the skydiver's assumption of the risk>. — Also termed assumption of risk. [Cases: Negligence 550. C.J.S. Negligence §§ 360–361.]

“[Assumption of risk] has been a subject of much controversy, and has been surrounded by much confusion, because ‘assumption of risk’ has been used by the courts in several different senses, which traditionally have been lumped together under the one name, often without realizing that any differences exist. There are even courts which have limited the use of the term ‘assumption of risk’ to cases in which the parties stand in the relation of master and servant, or at least some other contractual relation; but they have been compelled to invent other names for other cases, such as ‘incurred risk,’ or ‘volenti non fit injuria.’ This appears to be largely a distinction without a difference; and most courts have made general use of the one term.... In its most basic sense, assumption of risk means that the plaintiff, in advance, has given his express consent to relieve the defendant of an obligation of conduct toward him, and to take his chances of injury from a known risk arising from what the defendant is to do or leave undone.” W. Page Keeton et al., Prosser and Keeton on the Law of Torts § 68, at 480–81 (5th ed. 1984).

2. The principle that one who takes on the risk of loss, injury, or damage cannot maintain an action against a party that causes the loss, injury, or damage <assumption of the risk was not a valid defense>. • Assumption of the risk was originally an affirmative defense, but in most jurisdictions it has now been wholly or largely subsumed by the doctrines of contributory or comparative negligence. The risk assumed by the person was often termed an in-curred risk.

implied assumption of the risk. An assumption based on the plaintiff's conduct that seems to consent to relieve another of liability for negligence. • For this defense to apply, the plaintiff's conduct must suggest (1) open consent to the risk, (2) voluntary participation in the activity, and (3) full understanding of the danger. See VOLENTI NON FIT INJURIA.

primary assumption of the risk. A legal conclusion that the defendant was not negligent because the defendant either did not owe a duty of care to the injured party or did not breach any duty owed. • Courts decide questions of duty through policy judgments, which include the relative balance between risks and utilities.

“Primary assumption of risk occurs when the plaintiff voluntarily participates in an activity involving certain inherent risks and encounters one of the inherent risks; the defense is a complete bar to recovery because there is no duty of care to protect another from the risks inherent in a voluntary activity.” 4 Ann Taylor Schwing, California Affirmative Defenses 2d § 48:24, at 59 (1996).

“Primary assumption of risk is sometimes viewed as a misnomer. This concept is frequently described as a no-duty rule because the plaintiff, by engaging in a known and potentially risky activity, has relieved the defendant of the duty of care normally owed to the plaintiff. Under the primary-assumption-of-risk/no-duty doctrine, ‘there [would be] no liability because the defendant did not breach a duty of care to the plaintiff.’ [Kenneth S. Abraham, The Forms and Functions of Tort Law 155 (1997).] Traditionally, the no-duty rule completely bars a plaintiff's recovery. Courts limit the use of primary assumption of risk in comparative-negligence jurisdictions because of the harshness of this rule. Recently, some comparative-negligence jurisdictions have started to review primary assumption-of-risk claims within the framework of their comparative-fault system, refusing to automatically bar the plaintiff's entire recovery.” Luke Ellis, Note, Talking About My Generation: Assumption of Risk and the Rights of Injured Concert Fans in the Twenty-First Century, 80 Texas L. Rev. 607, 618 (2002).

secondary assumption of risk. 1. The act or an instance of voluntarily encountering a known unreasonable risk that is out of proportion to any advantage gained. • With secondary assumption of the risk, the fact-finder considers the reasonableness of the plaintiff's conduct in the particular case, balancing the risks and utilities under the circumstances. 2. An affirmative defense to an established breach of a duty, based on a claim that the plaintiff acted unreasonably in encountering a known risk. See contributory negligence under NEGLIGENCE.

voluntary assumption of the risk. An intentional and unreasonable exposure of oneself to danger created by another's negligence, when one knows or has reason to know of the danger.

ASSURANCE

assurance, n. 1. Something that gives confidence; the state of being confident or secure <self-assurance>.2.English law. See life insurance under INSURANCE <she obtained assurance before traveling abroad, naming her husband as the beneficiary>.3. The act of transferring real property; the instrument by which it is transferred <the owner's assurance of the farm to his son>.4. A pledge or guarantee <adequate assurances of the borrower's solvency>. — assure,vb.

adequate assurance. 1.Contracts. A circumstance or a contractual obligor's act that gives an obligee reason to be confident that the contract will be duly performed. • If the obligee has good reason to feel insecure and justifiably demands assurance, an obligor's failure to provide adequate assurance may constitute a repudiation of the contract. UCC § 2-609. 2.Bankruptcy. Evidence that a debtor will probably be able to perform its obligations under a contract, such as the posting of a bond or a showing that the debtor will generate sufficient income to pay any arrearages and future payment obligations. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2481, 3114. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 103–104, 226.]

ATTACHING CREDITOR

attaching creditor. See CREDITOR.

ATTACHMENT

attachment. 1. The seizing of a person's property to secure a judgment or to be sold in satisfaction of a judgment. — Also termed (in civil law) provisional seizure. Cf. GARNISHMENT; SEQUESTRATION(1). [Cases: Attachment 1; Federal Civil Procedure 581–590. C.J.S. Attachment §§ 2–4, 7.]

attachment of wages. The attachment by a plaintiff of a defendant's earnings as an employee. • In some jurisdictions, an attachment-of-earnings order requires the defendant's employer to deduct a specified sum or percentage of the defendant's wages or salary and to pay the money into court. The court then sends the money to the plaintiff. Federal law provides a garnishment statute for satisfaction of judgments for child support and alimony. Under this statute, up to 50% of a wage-earner's disposable income can be seized if the wage-earner has another family of dependents and up to 60% if there is only one family. If the obligor is more than three months in arrears, an additional 5% can be seized until the arrearage is paid. 15 USCA § 1673(b)(2). — Also termed attachment of earnings; wage-withholding; automatic wage-withholding; wage assignment. Cf. GARNISHMENT; INCOME-WITHHOLDING ORDER. [Cases: Execution 420.5; Garnishment 1. C.J.S. Exchanges § 24; Executions § 24.]

provisional attachment. A prejudgment attachment in which the debtor's property is seized so that if the creditor ultimately prevails, the creditor will be assured of recovering on the judgment through the sale of the seized property. • Ordinarily, a hearing must be held before the attachment takes place, and most courts require the creditor to post a bond for any damages that result from the seizure (esp. if the creditor ultimately loses in the lawsuit). [Cases: Attachment 4. C.J.S. Attachment §§ 12, 14.]

2. The arrest of a person who either is in contempt of court or is to be held as security for the payment of a judgment. [Cases: Execution 421. C.J.S. Executions § 24.] 3. A writ ordering legal seizure of property (esp. to satisfy a creditor's claim) or of a person. — Also termed writ of attachment. [Cases: Attachment 140; Federal Civil Procedure 581. C.J.S. Attachment § 156.]

ancillary attachment. An attachment that results in seizure and holding of property pending a resolution of the plaintiff's claim. — Also termed attachment on mesne process. [Cases: Attachment 1. C.J.S. Attachment §§ 2–4, 7.]

4. The creation of a security interest in property, occurring when the debtor agrees to the security, receives value from the secured party, and obtains rights in the collateral. UCC § 9-203. Cf. PERFECTION. [Cases: Secured Transactions 133. C.J.S. Secured Transactions § 34.] 5. The act of affixing or connecting; something (as a document) that is affixed or connected to something else.

attachment on mesne process. See ancillary attachment under ATTACHMENT(3).

attainder (<<schwa>>-tayn-d<<schwa>>r), n.1. At common law, the act of extinguishing a person's civil rights when that person is sentenced to death or declared an outlaw for committing a felony or treason. 2.Hist. A grand-jury proceeding to try whether a jury has given a false verdict. 3. The conviction of a jury so tried. See BILL OF ATTAINDER. — attain (<<schwa>>-taynt), vb.

“The word attainder is derived from the Latin term attinctus, signifying stained or polluted, and includes, in its meaning, all those disabilities which flow from a capital sentence. On the attainder, the defendant is disqualified to be a witness in any court; he can bring no action, nor perform any of the legal functions which before he was admitted to discharge; he is, in short, regarded as dead in law.” 1 Joseph Chitty, A Practical Treatise on the Criminal Law 725 (2d ed. 1826).

ATTAINT

attaint (<<schwa>>-taynt), adj. Maligned or tarnished reputationally; under an attainder for crime.

attaint, n. Hist. A writ to inquire whether a 12-member jury gave a false verdict. • If it was so found (by a 24-member jury), the judgment based on the verdict was overturned. The writ was abolished in England in 1826.

ATTEMPT

attempt, n.1. The act or an instance of making an effort to accomplish something, esp. without success. 2.Criminal law. An overt act that is done with the intent to commit a crime but that falls short of completing the crime. • Attempt is an inchoate offense distinct from the attempted crime. Under the Model Penal Code, an attempt includes any act that is a substantial step toward commission of a crime, such as enticing, lying in wait for, or following the intended victim or unlawfully entering a building where a crime is expected to be committed. See Model Penal Code § 5.01. — Also termed criminal attempt; offer. See DANGEROUS-PROXIMITY TEST; INDISPENSABLE-ELEMENT TEST ; LAST-PROXIMATE-ACT TEST; PHYSICAL-PROXIMITY TEST; PROBABLE-DESISTANCE TEST ; RES IPSA LOQUITUR TEST. Cf. CONSPIRACY; SOLICITATION(2). [Cases: Criminal Law 44. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 114–123.] — attempt, vb.

“An attempt to commit an indictable offence is itself a crime. Every attempt is an act done with intent to commit the offence so attempted. The existence of this ulterior intent or motive is the essence of the attempt.... [Yet] [a]lthough every attempt is an act done with intent to commit a crime, the converse is not true. Every act done with this intent is not an attempt, for it may be too remote from the completed offence to give rise to criminal liability, notwithstanding the criminal purpose of the doer. I may buy matches with intent to burn a haystack, and yet be clear of attempted arson; but if I go to the stack and there light one of the matches, my intent has developed into a criminal attempt.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 387 (Glanville L. Williams ed.,

“Attempt ... is the most common of the preliminary crimes. It consists of steps taken in furtherance of an indictable offence which the person attempting intends to carry out if he can. As we have seen there can be a long chain of such steps and it is necessary to have some test by which to decide that the particular link in the chain has been reached at which the crime of attempt has been achieved; that link will represent the actus reus of attempt ....” J.W. Cecil Turner, Kenny's Outlines of Criminal Law 79 (16th ed. 1952).

attempted monopolization.See MONOPOLIZATION.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

attempted suicide.See SUICIDE.

ATTEMPT TO ASSAULT

attempt to assault.See attempted assault under ASSAULT.

ATTEMPT TO ATTEMPT

attempt to attempt.A first step made toward a criminal attempt of some sort, such as a failed effort to mail someone a note inciting that person to engage in criminal conduct. • As a general rule, courts do not recognize an attempt to commit a crime that is itself an attempt. But some jurisdictions recognize this offense, esp. when the attempted crime is defined to be an independent substantive crime. For example, some jurisdictions recognize an attempted assault if assault is defined as placing a person in apprehension of bodily injury (as opposed to being defined merely as an attempted battery). In this situation, courts have been willing to punish conduct that falls short of the attempted crime but constitutes more than mere preparation to commit it. See attempted assault under ASSAULT.

ATTORNMENT

attornment (<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>rn-m<<schwa>>nt), n.1. A tenant's agreement to hold the land as the tenant of a new landlord. [Cases: Landlord and Tenant 15. C.J.S. Landlord and Tenant §§ 21–22, 277, 279.] 2. A constructive delivery involving the transfer of mediate possession while a third person has immediate possession; esp., a bailee's acknowledgment that he or she will hold the goods on behalf of someone other than the bailor. • For the other two types of constructive delivery, see CONSTITUTUM POSSESSORIUM ; TRADITIO BREVI MANU. — attorn, vb.

“[Another] form of constructive delivery is that which is known to English lawyers as attornment.... The mediate possessor of a thing may deliver it by procuring the immediate possessor to agree with the transferee to hold it for the future on his account, instead of on account of the transferor. Thus if I have goods in the warehouse of A and sell them to B, I have effectually delivered them to B so soon as A has agreed with B to hold them for him, and no longer for me.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 306–07 (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

ATTRACTIVE-NUISANCE DOCTRINE

attractive-nuisance doctrine.Torts. The rule that a person who owns property on which there is a dangerous thing or condition that will foreseeably lure children to trespass has a duty to protect those children from the danger < the attractive-nuisance doctrine imposed a duty on the school to protect the children from the shallow, polluted pond on school property>. — Also termed turntable doctrine; torpedo doctrine. See ALLUREMENT; DANGEROUS INSTRUMENTALITY . [Cases: Negligence 1172–1178. C.J.S. Negligence §§ 399, 476–477, 494–526.]

ATTRIBUTION

attribution,n. The process — outlined in the Internal Revenue Code — by which a person's or entity's stock ownership is assigned to a related family member or entity for tax purposes. — Also termed stock attribution. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3626. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 17–18.] — attribute,vb. — attributive,adj.

ATTRIBUTION RIGHT

attribution right.Copyright. A person's right to be credited as a work's author, to have one's name appear in connection with a work, or to forbid the use of one's name in connection with a work that the person did not create. • Attribution rights constitute one aspect of the moral rights recognized primarily in civil-law countries. Under the Visual Artists Rights Act of 1990, the creators of a very limited class of works — called works of visual art — have certain statutory attribution rights. 17 USCA § 106A. Under the Berne Convention Implementation Act, attribution rights afforded foreign copyright owners may be enforceable in the U.S. — Also termed rights of attribution; paternity; maternity. Cf. INTEGRITY RIGHT; MORAL RIGHT. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 36. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 10, 40–41, 97.]

ATWOOD&lt;TT&gt; DOCTRINE

Atwood doctrine. The principle that, to the extent an ERISA plan and its summary-plan description conflict regarding the circumstances under which benefits may be denied, the summary-plan description controls. Atwood v. Newmont Gold Co., 45 F.3d 1317 (9th Cir. 1995); 29 USCA § 1022. See SUMMARY-PLAN DESCRIPTION. [Cases: Pensions 47. C.J.S. Pensions and Retirement Plans and Benefits §§ 31–33.]

au besoin (oh b<<schwa>>-zwan). [French “in case of need”] A designation in a bill of exchange stating who is responsible for payment if the drawee fails or refuses to pay. • Au besoin is part of the phrase au besoin, chez Messrs. Garnier et DuCloux (meaning “in case of need, apply to Messrs. Garnier and DuCloux”).

A.U.C.

A.U.C.abbr.AB URBE CONDITA.

AUCTION

auction,n. A sale of property to the highest bidder. • Under the UCC, a sale at auction is complete when the auctioneer so announces in a customary manner, as by pounding a hammer. UCC § 2-328. — Also termed auction sale. [Cases: Auctions and Auctioneers 1. C.J.S. Auctions and Auctioneers § 3.] — auction,vb.

auction without reserve.An auction in which the property will be sold to the highest bidder, no minimum price will limit bidding, the owner may not withdraw property after the first bid is received, the owner may not reject any bids, and the owner may not nullify the bidding by outbidding all other bidders. • In an auction without reserve, the owner essentially becomes an offeror, and each successively higher bid creates a contingent contract, the highest bid creating an enforceable agreement. — Also termed absolute auction. See WITHOUT RESERVE. [Cases: Auctions and Auctioneers 7. C.J.S. Auctions and Auctioneers §§ 2, 8–17.]

auction with reserve.An auction in which the property will not be sold unless the highest bid exceeds a minimum price. See WITH RESERVE. [Cases: Auctions and Auctioneers 7. C.J.S. Auctions and Auctioneers §§ 2, 8–17.]

Dutch auction. 1. An auction in which property is initially offered at an excessive price that is gradually lowered until the property is sold. 2. An auction in which several identical items are offered simultaneously, one to a bidder, and sold to the highest bidder for the amount of the lowest winning bid. 3.Securities. A method of tendering stock shares whereby a corporation provides a price range, shareholders indicate how many shares they will sell and at what price, and the corporation buys however many shares it wants at the lowest prices offered. — Also termed Dutch-auction tender method.[Cases: Auctions and Auctioneers 7. C.J.S. Auctions and Auctioneers §§ 2, 8–17.] 4.Securities. An auction of securities, usu. other than stock, in which a security's price is gradually lowered until it meets an acceptable bid and is sold. 5.Securities. An auction of a new issue of stock in which there is a stated minimum price per share, but bidders may offer a higher price for any number of shares until the highest price offered becomes the final price at which all the shares issued will be sold. — Also termed (in sense 4) offer for sale by tender.

knock-out auction. An auction at which two or more bidders have agreed in advance not to bid against one another. • At common law, knock-out auctions were not forbidden, on grounds that a person could not be constrained to make an offer. But most jurisdictions now have statutes that (1) forbid dealers (those who buy at auctions with the intention of reselling to others) from giving or offering an inducement to abstain from bidding at an auction, and (2) penalize the person who seeks such an inducement from a dealer.

auctioneer, n. A person legally authorized to sell goods or lands of other persons at public auction for a commission or fee. • The auctioneer is the property owner's agent up to the moment when a purchaser's bid is accepted, when the auctioneer becomes the purchaser's agent. — Formerly also termed vendue master. [Cases: Auctions and Auctioneers 3. C.J.S. Auctions and Auctioneers §§ 2–3.]

AUCTION MARKET

auction market. See MARKET.

AUCTION SALE

AUCTOR

auctor (ahk-tor), n. [Latin “author”] 1. The source of a right or title, such as a grantor; AUTHOR(2). 2. A principal.

AUCTORE PRAETORE

auctore praetore (awk-tor-ee pree-tor-ee). [Latin] 1. Roman law. On the authority of the praetor. 2. Scots law. With the sanction of a judge.

AUCTOR IN REM SUAM

auctor in rem suam (awk-tor in rem s[y]oo-*<<schwa>>*m). [Latin] Hist. One who acts on one's own behalf; a principal in one's own affairs.

AUCTORITATE JUDICIS

auctoritate judicis (awk-tor-<<schwa>>-tay-tee joo-di-sis). [Latin] Hist. By judicial authority.

AUDIENCE

audience, n. A hearing before judges. See RIGHT OF AUDIENCE.

AUDIENCE TEST

audience test.Copyright. A judicial analysis used to determine whether the lay observer or an ordinary, reasonable audience would conclude that the protectable expression in a copyrighted work is substantially similar to the expression in the accused work. — Also termed ordinary-observer test; ordinary-lay-observer test. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 53(1).]

AUDIO HOME RECORDING ACT

Audio Home Recording Act.Copyright. A 1992 federal law designed to prevent copyright-infringement suits based on the manufacture, importation, distribution, or sale of digital-audio technology. • Manufacturers of digital recording devices must pay royalties on sales of the devices and related media, and build security mechanisms into each device. The security mechanisms allow the owner of a digital-recording device to make a copy from the original medium, but not to make a copy from the copy. 17 USCA §§ 1001–1010. — Abbr. AHRA. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 67.2. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property § 58.]

AUDIOVISUAL WORK

audiovisual work.See WORK(2).

AUDIT

audit,n. A formal examination of an individual's or organization's accounting records, financial situation, or compliance with some other set of standards. See GENERALLY ACCEPTED AUDITING STANDARDS. — audit,vb. — auditor,n.

audit of return.See tax audit.

compliance audit.An audit conducted by a regulatory agency, an organization, or a third party to assess compliance with one or more sets of laws and regulations.

correspondence audit.An IRS audit of a taxpayer's return conducted by mail or telephone. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4443. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 616, 618.]

desk audit.A review of a civil-service position to determine whether its duties and responsibilities fit the prescribed job classification and pay scale. [Cases: Officers and Public Employees 11.8. C.J.S. Officers and Public Employees §§ 74, 77.]

double audit.An audit of the same subject performed separately by two independent auditors.

environmental audit.A company's voluntary self-audit to evaluate its environmental-management programs and to determine whether it is in compliance with environmental regulations.

event-driven audit.An audit that focuses on particular transactions or activities that may raise significant legal issues. • Unlike routine periodic audits, an event-driven audit can focus substantial auditing resources on analyzing a particular event.

field audit.An IRS audit conducted at the taxpayer's business premises or lawyer's offices. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4443. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 616, 618.]

independent audit. An audit conducted by an outside person or firm not connected with the person or organization being audited.

internal audit. An audit performed by an organization's personnel to ensure that internal procedures, operations, and accounting practices are in proper order.

office audit. An IRS audit of a taxpayer's return conducted in the IRS agent's office. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4443. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 616, 618.]

periodic audit. An audit conducted at regular intervals to assess a company's current condition.

post audit. An audit of funds spent on a completed capital project, the purpose being to assess the efficiency with which the funds were spent and to compare expected cash-flow estimates with actual cash flows.

tax audit. The review of a taxpayer's return by the IRS, including an examination of the taxpayer's books, vouchers, and records supporting the return. — Also termed audit of return. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4443. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 616, 618.]

transactional audit. An audit performed for due-diligence purposes to determine whether there are potentially significant problems with a transaction. • Transactional audits are often conducted in real-property transactions to identify any environmental problems. In that context, the audit is sometimes called a site assessment.

AUDITA QUERELA

audita querela (aw-dī-t<<schwa>> kw<<schwa>>-ree-l<<schwa>>). [Law Latin “the complaint having been heard”] A writ available to a judgment debtor who seeks a rehearing of a matter on grounds of newly discovered evidence or newly existing legal defenses. [Cases: Audita Querela 1. C.J.S. Audita Querela § 2.]

“The writ of audita querela (= quarrel having been heard) ... , introduced during the time of Edward III, was available to re-open a judgment in certain circumstances. It was issued as a remedy to defendant where an important matter concerning his case had arisen since the judgment. Its issue was based on equitable, rather than common law principles.” L.B. Curzon, English Legal History 103 (2d ed. 1979).

“Audita querela is distinguished from coram nobis in that coram nobis attacks the judgment itself, whereas audita querela may be directed against the enforcement, or further enforcement, of a judgment which when rendered was just and unimpeachable.” 7A C.J.S. Audita Querela § 2, at 901 (1980).

AUDIT COMMITTEE

audit committee. See COMMITTEE.

AUDIT LETTER

audit letter. A written request for an attorney, banker, or someone else to give financial auditors information about a person or entity being audited, including information about pending or threatened litigation. • The recipient of an audit letter usu. sends the response (called an audit-letter response) directly to the financial auditors. See AUDIT RESPONSE. [Cases: Attorney and Client 106, 112. C.J.S. Attorney and Client §§ 234, 255, 258–260.]

AUDIT-LETTER RESPONSE

audit-letter response. See AUDIT RESPONSE.

AUNT JEMIMA<TT> DOCTRINE

Aunt Jemima doctrine.Trademarks. The principle that a trademark is protected not only from use on a directly competing product, but also from use on a product so closely related in the marketplace that consumers would be confused into thinking that the products came from a single source.Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney & Co., 247 F. 407 (2d Cir. 1917); 15 USCA § 1114. • In the namesake case, the name used on pancake flour was later used on syrup. The issue was not whether a competitor was trying to pass off goods, but whether it was fair to let the name's second user jeopardize the goodwill built up by the first user. See COMPLEMENTARY GOODS. [Cases: Trade Regulation 339, 341. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 81, 84, 86.]

AURAL ACQUISITION

aural acquisition.Criminal law. Under the Federal Wiretapping Act, hearing or tape-recording a communication, as opposed to tracing its origin or destination. 18 USCA § 2510(4). [Cases: Telecommunications 494.C.J.S. Telegraphs, Telephones, Radio, and Television §§ 247–249, 254, 264–265.]

AUSA

AUSA.abbr.See Assistant United States Attorney under UNITED STATES ATTORNEY.

AUSTRALIAN BALLOT

Australian ballot.See BALLOT(4).

AUTHENTIC ACT

authentic act.Civil law. 1. A writing signed before a notary public or other public officer. [Cases: Acknowledgment 1. C.J.S. Acknowledgments §§ 2–4.] 2. A certified copy of a writing. [Cases: Evidence 343.C.J.S. Evidence §§ 887–888.]

AUTHENTICATE

authenticate,vb.1. To prove the genuineness of (a thing). [Cases: Criminal Law 444; Evidence 366–381.] 2. To render authoritative or authentic, as by attestation or other legal formality. See UCC § 9-102(a)(7). [Cases: Contracts 37. C.J.S. Contracts § 79.]

AUTHENTICATION

authentication, n. 1. Broadly, the act of proving that something (as a document) is true or genuine, esp. so that it may be admitted as evidence; the condition of being so proved <authentication of the handwriting>. [Cases: Criminal Law 444; Evidence 366–381.] 2. Specif., the assent to or adoption of a writing as one's own.

self-authentication. Authentication without extrinsic evidence of truth or genuineness. • In federal courts, certain writings, such as notarized documents and certified copies of public records, may be admitted into evidence by self-authentication. Fed. R. Evid. 902. [Cases: Criminal Law 444; Evidence 366–381.]

AUTHENTIC INTERPRETATION

authentic interpretation. See INTERPRETATION.

AUTHENTICUM

authenticum (aw-then-t<<schwa>>-k<<schwa>>m). Roman & civil law. 1. An original instrument. 2. (cap.) A Latin version of 134 Novels promulgated by Justinian mostly in Greek between A.D. 535 and 556. — Also termed Authenticæ.

AUTHOR

author. 1. Copyright. The person who creates an expressive work, or the person or business that hires another to create an expressive work. • In copyright law, “author” applies to a broad range of occupations, including writers, artists, programmers, choreographers, and translators. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 41(1).] 2. One from whom a right or title derives in some way other than by descent. See AUCTOR(1).

AUTHORITATIVE PRECEDENT

authoritative precedent. See binding precedent under PRECEDENT.

AUTHORITY

authority. 1. The right or permission to act legally on another's behalf; esp., the power of one person to affect another's legal relations by acts done in accordance with the other's manifestations of assent; the power delegated by a principal to an agent <authority to sign the contract>. — Also termed power over other persons. See AGENCY. [Cases: Principal and Agent 96.C.J.S. Agency §§ 148–149.]

“The term ‘authority,’ like the term ‘contract,’ may easily be used in three senses, and is therefore a term to be avoided when accurate reasoning is desirable. It may be used to mean (1) the operative acts of the principal, (2) a physical document executed by the principal, or (3) the legal relations consequent upon the preceding operative facts (1) and (2), and especially the legal power conferred upon the agent to bring the principal into new legal relations without any further action by the principal. The operative facts may be spoken words, a document together with the acts necessary to execute it, or other conduct by the principal apparently expressing an intention to create a power. Hereafter, the word ‘authority’ will be used to denote these operative facts; in other cases the word power will usually be substituted. This latter word is not so likely to be taken in shifting senses, in spite of the fact that ‘power of attorney’ generally means a physical document under seal.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 508 n.1 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

actual authority. Authority that a principal intentionally confers on an agent or authority that the agent reasonably believes he or she has as a result of the agent's dealings with the principal. • Actual authority can be either express or implied. — Also termed real authority. [Cases: Principal and Agent 96, 99. C.J.S. Agency §§ 148–149, 153–164.]

“Actual authority is such as a principal intentionally confers upon the agent, or intentionally, or by want of ordinary care, allows the agent to believe himself to possess.” Cal. Civ. Code § 2316.

apparent authority. Authority that a third party reasonably believes an agent has, based on the third party's dealings with the principal, even though the principal did not confer or intend to confer the authority. • Apparent authority can be created by law even when no actual authority has been conferred. — Also termed ostensible authority; authority by estoppel. [Cases: Principal and Agent 99. C.J.S. Agency §§ 153–164.]

“The term ‘apparent authority’ means that a legal power is vested in the agent in the absence of any intention by the principal that it should exist, or even in spite of his intention that it should not exist. The operative facts causing this power to exist are acts of the principal which, considered along with surrounding facts, induce the third person with whom the agent deals to believe reasonably that the principal intended the power to exist. The power is real and not merely apparent. The agent is indeed a wrongdoer in exercising the power. He possesses the power but not the legal privilege of using it. Likewise, the authority (meaning the action of the principal creating the agent's power) is real. It is only the intention of the principal to create such a power that is merely apparent (i.e., non-existent).” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 510 n.1 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

“ ‘Apparent authority’ of an insurance agent means such authority as an insurer knowingly permits the agent to assume, or which it holds him out as possessing, that is, such authority as he appears to have by reason of actual authority or such authority as a reasonably prudent man would suppose the agent to possess.” John Alan Appleman & Jean Appleman, Insurance Law and Practice § 8674 (1981).

authority coupled with an interest. Authority given to an agent for valuable consideration. •

This authority cannot be unilaterally terminated by the principal. [Cases: Principal and Agent 34. C.J.S. Agency §§ 114–119.]

constructive authority. Authority that is inferred because of an earlier grant of authority.

express authority. Authority given to the agent by explicit agreement, either orally or in writing. — Also termed stipulated authority. [Cases: Principal and Agent 96. C.J.S. Agency §§ 148–149.]

general authority. A general agent's authority, intended to apply to all matters arising in the course of business.

implied authority. Authority intentionally given by the principal to the agent as a result of the principal's conduct, such as the principal's earlier acquiescence to the agent's actions. — Also termed presumptive authority. [Cases: Principal and Agent 99. C.J.S. Agency §§ 153–164.]

incidental authority. Authority needed to carry out actual or apparent authority. • For example, the actual authority to borrow money includes the incidental authority to sign commercial paper to bring about the loan. — Also termed inferred authority. [Cases: Principal and Agent 99. C.J.S. Agency §§ 153–164.]

inherent authority. Authority of an agent arising from the agency relationship.

naked authority. Authority delegated solely for the principal's benefit, without giving any consideration to the agent. • This authority can be revoked by the principal at any time.

ostensible authority. See apparent authority.

presumptive authority. See implied authority.

real authority. See actual authority.

special authority. Authority limited to an individual transaction.

stipulated authority. See express authority.

supervisory authority. See SUPERVISORY AUTHORITY.

2. Governmental power or jurisdiction <within the court's authority>. 3. A governmental agency or corporation that administers a public enterprise < transit authority>. — Also termed public authority. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 2. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 7–9.]

constituted authority. (often pl.) The legislative, executive, and judicial departments officially and rightfully governing a nation, people, municipality, or other governmental unit; an authority properly appointed or elected under organic law, such as a constitution or charter.

examining authority. A self-regulatory organization registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission and vested with the authority to examine, inspect, and otherwise oversee the activities of a registered broker or dealer.

4. A legal writing taken as definitive or decisive; esp., a judicial or administrative decision cited as a precedent <that case is good authority in Massachusetts>. • The term includes not only the decisions of tribunals but also statutes, ordinances, and administrative rulings. [Cases: Courts 88. C.J.S. Courts § 139; Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 187.]

adverse authority.Authority that is unfavorable to an advocate's position. • Most ethical codes require counsel to disclose adverse authority in the controlling jurisdiction even if the opposing counsel has not cited it.

imperative authority.Authority that is absolutely binding on a court. — Also termed binding authority. Cf. binding precedent under PRECEDENT.

persuasive authority.Authority that carries some weight but is not binding on a court.

“It may be well to call attention to the fact that the word ‘authority’ is used by lawyers in at least two senses, one abstract and the other concrete. The word [in its concrete sense] refer[s] to the book or other repository to which one resorts to find propositions of law, and sometimes the word is used in an even narrower sense to mean reported cases. In its abstract sense, however, ‘authority’ is substantially equivalent to ‘influence’ or ‘power,’ and in this sense ‘authority’ may be divided into two grades, in that the force of a statement of law is either imperative (that is to say, absolutely binding upon the courts) or simply persuasive. The use of the terms ‘primary’ and ‘secondary’ authority, as applied in the concrete sense, must not be confused with the use of the terms ‘imperative’ and ‘persuasive’ authority, as used in the abstract sense. That is to say, a book of primary authority may be either imperative or persuasive, according to the circumstances ... , or it may be of no force at all. Books of secondary authority are, in the nature of things, usually merely of persuasive authority.” William M. Lile et al., Brief Making and the Use of Law Books 12 (3d ed. 1914).

primary authority.Authority that issues directly from a law-making body; legislation and the reports of litigated cases.

secondary authority.Authority that explains the law but does not itself establish it, such as a treatise, annotation, or law-review article.

5. A source, such as a statute, case, or treatise, cited in support of a legal argument <the brief's table of authorities>.

AUTHORITY BY ESTOPPEL

authority by estoppel.See apparent authority under AUTHORITY(1).

AUTHORIZATION CLAUSE

authorization clause.Patents. A Patent Act provision directing that if a person uses or manufactures something protected by a valid U.S. patent, acts on behalf of the U.S. government, and acts with the government's authori-zation or consent, the U.S., not the person, is deemed the infringing user or manufacturer. • If an infringing act is done by a government contractor or subcontractor working for the U.S. and the act is covered by the authorization or consent clause, the patent owner's only recourse is a suit against the U.S. in the U.S. Claims Court for com-pensation. The authorization or consent clause is in the second paragraph of 28 USCA § 1498(a). — Also termed consent clause. [Cases: United States 97.C.J.S. United States §§ 184–186.]

author's right.Copyright. The system of protecting the moral and economic rights of the creator of a work, esp. in civil-law countries. — Also termed (in French) droit d'auteur; (in German) Urheberrecht; (in Italian) diritto d' autore; (in Spanish) derecho de autor.

“[O]n almost every point of consequence, the traditions of copyright and author's right are far more alike than they are unlike. One reason is that the Berne Convention bridges the two traditions, with the result that its extensive minimum standards have dictated substantively similar rules for countries in both camps.” Paul Goldstein, International Copyright: Principles, Law, and Practice 4 (2001).

AUTHOR'S SHARE

author's share.Copyright. An author's portion of royalties, as determined by an agreement with the publisher.

AUTOCRACY

autocracy (aw-tok-r<<schwa>>-see), n. Government by one person with unlimited power and authority; unlimited monarchy. — autocratic (aw-t<<schwa>>-krat-ik), adj. — autocrat (aw-t<<schwa>>-krat), n.

AUTOGRAPH

autograph, n. A person's own writing or signature; HOLOGRAPH. Cf. ALLOGRAPH.

AUTOLIMITATION

autolimitation, n. An authority's establishment of rules that, in effect, limit the authority's own power. — auto-limit, vb.

AUTOMATED BOND SYSTEM

Automated Bond System. The New York Stock Exchange's computerized network that enables subscribers to electronically transmit quotations and execute orders for bond trades. — Abbr. ABS.

AUTOMATED PATENT SYSTEM

Automated Patent System. A computerized database of patents, maintained by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office database. — Abbr. APS. — Also termed automated patent search system.

AUTOMATED TRANSACTION

automated transaction. A contract formed or performed, in whole or in part, by electronic means or by electronic messages in which either party's electronic actions or messages establishing the contract are not intended to be reviewed in the ordinary course by an individual. UCITA § 2-102(a)(7), 102:10UC; UETA § 14.

AUTOMATIC-ADJUSTMENT CLAUSE

automatic-adjustment clause. A provision in a utility-rate schedule that allows a public utility to increase its rates without a public hearing or state review, if certain operating costs, such as the price of fuel, increase. Federal Energy Regulatory Comm'n v. Mississippi, 456 U.S. 742, 102 S.Ct. 2126 (1982). [Cases: Electricity 11.3(4, 6); Public Utilities 128, 167. C.J.S. Electricity § 33; Public Utilities §§ 36, 44–46, 48, 87, 96.]

AUTOMATIC-ASSIGNMENT DOCTRINE

automatic-assignment doctrine. Trademarks. The rule that, absent evidence to the contrary, the sale of an entire business carries with it and transfers to the purchaser any common-law marks used in that business without the need for a written assignment. • For marks registered under the Lanham Act or under some state registration schemes, a written assignment is required to transfer an interest in a registered mark or in a pending application to register a mark. [Cases: Trade Regulation 102. C.J.S. Trade-Marks, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 205, 207.]

automatism (aw-tom-<<schwa>>-tiz-<<schwa>>m), n.1. Action or conduct occurring without will, purpose, or reasoned intention, such as sleepwalking; behavior carried out in a state of unconsciousness or mental dissociation without full awareness. • Automatism may be asserted as a defense to negate the requisite mental state of voluntariness for commission of a crime. [Cases: Criminal Law 46. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 96–98, 113.] 2. The state of a person who, though capable of action, is not conscious of his or her actions. — automaton, n.

“How far is automatism a defence? It has been defined as involuntary action performed in a state of unconsciousness not amounting to insanity. Theoretically the defence is that no act in the legal sense took place at all — the plea is that there was no volition or psychic awareness.” George Whitecross Paton, A Textbook of Jurisprudence 315 (G.W. Paton & David P. Derham eds., 4th ed. 1972).

ambulatory automatism. Automatism that consists in irresponsible or purposeless wanderings.

AUTOMOBILE EXCEPTION

automobile exception. An exception to the warrant requirement in Fourth Amendment search-and-seizure law, holding that the police may, without a warrant, thoroughly search a movable vehicle for which the individual has a lessened expectation of privacy (such as a car or boat) if probable cause exists. • For purposes of this doctrine, exigent circumstances are presumed to exist. Once the right to conduct a warrantless search arises, the actual search may take place at a later time. Carroll v. United States, 267 U.S. 132, 45 S.Ct. 280 (1925); California v. Acevedo, 500 U.S. 565, 111 S.Ct. 1982 (1991). See exigent circumstances under CIRCUMSTANCE. [Cases: Controlled Substances 114; Searches and Seizures 60. C.J.S. Searches and Seizures § 79.]

AUTONOMIC LAW

autonomic law (aw-t<<schwa>>-nom-ik). The type of enacted law that has its source in various forms of sub-ordinate and restricted legislative authority possessed by private persons and bodies of persons. • Examples are corporate bylaws, university regulations, and the rules of the International Monetary Fund.

AUTONOMOUS TARIFF

autonomous tariff. See TARIFF(2).

AUTONOMY

autonomy (aw-tahn-<<schwa>>-mee), n. 1. The right of self-government. 2. A self-governing state. — auto-nomous (aw-tahn-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s), adj.

AUTONOMY OF THE PARTIES

autonomy of the parties. See FREEDOM OF CONTRACT.

AUTONOMY PRIVACY

autonomy privacy. See PRIVACY.

autopsy (aw-top-see). 1. An examination of a dead body to determine the cause of death, esp. in a criminal investigation. — Also termed postmortem; necropsy. [Cases: Coroners 14. C.J.S. Coroners and Medical Examiners § 16.] 2. The evidence of one's own senses.

“To a rational man of perfect organization, ... the best and highest proof of which any fact is susceptible is the evidence of his own senses. Hence autopsy, or the evidence of one's own senses, furnishes the strongest probability and indeed the only perfect and indubitable certainty of the existence of any sensible fact.” Gentry v. McMinnis, 3 Dana 382 (1835)(as quoted in John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 214 (1935)).

AUTOPTIC EVIDENCE

autoptic evidence (aw-top-tik). See demonstrative evidence under EVIDENCE.

AUTOPTIC PREFERENCE

autoptic preference (proh-f<<schwa>>r-<<schwa>>nts). The presentation of an item for inspection by the court. See demonstrative evidence under EVIDENCE. [Cases: Criminal Law 404.45; Evidence 188. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 854–855; Evidence §§ 789–791, 794, 796.]

“Yet another form of proof that may present difficulties in defining evidence is what Wigmore calls ‘autoptic preference.’ By this barbarism, the learned author was referring to those few cases in which it is possible to bring before the jury the material fact itself, rather than evidence of the fact.” 22 Charles Alan Wright & Kenneth W. Graham Jr., Federal Practice and Procedure § 5163, at 33 (1978).

AUTRE ACTION PENDANT

autre action pendant (oh-tr<<schwa>> ak-see-awn pahni-dahin). [Law French] Another action pending. • This phrase was formerly used in pleas of abatement.

AUTRE DROIT

autre droit (oh-tr<<schwa>> drwah). [Law French] In right of another. • This phrase describes the manner in which a trustee holds property for a beneficiary.

AUTREFOIS

autrefois (oh-tr<<schwa>>-fwahoroh-t<<schwa>>r-foyz). [Law French] On another occasion; formerly.

autrefois acquit (<<schwa>>-kwitor a-kee). A plea in bar of arraignment that the defendant has been acquitted of the offense. — Also termed former acquittal. See DOUBLE JEOPARDY. [Cases: Criminal Law 289–297; Double Jeopardy 100.1. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 381–383.]

“Suppose that a transgressor is charged and acquitted for lack of evidence, and evidence has now come to light showing beyond doubt that he committed the crime. Even so, he cannot be tried a second time. He has what is termed, in legal French, the defence of autrefois acquit. Similarly, if he is convicted, even though he is let off very lightly, he cannot afterwards be charged on fresh evidence, because he will have the defence of autrefois convict. These uncouth phrases have never been superseded, though they might well be called the defence of ‘previous acquittal’ and ‘previous conviction’; and ‘double jeopardy’ makes an acceptable generic name for both.” Glanville Williams, Textbook of Criminal Law 24 (1978).

autrefois attain ( <<schwa>>-taynt).Hist. A plea in bar that the defendant has already been attainted for one felony and therefore cannot be prosecuted for another.

autrefois convict.A plea in bar of arraignment that the defendant has been convicted of the offense. See DOUBLE JEOPARDY. [Cases: Criminal Law 289–297; Double Jeopardy 105. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 240, 381–383.]

AVERAGE

average,n.1. A single value that represents a broad sample of subjects; esp., in mathematics, the mean, median, or mode of a series. 2. The ordinary or typical level; the norm. 3.Maritime law. Accidental partial loss or damage to an insured ship or its cargo during a voyage. [Cases: Shipping 186–202. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 458–470.] — average,vb. & adj.

extraordinary average.A contribution by all the parties concerned in a commercial voyage — whether for vessel or cargo — toward a loss sustained by some of the parties in interest for the benefit of all.

general average.Average resulting from an intentional partial sacrifice of ship or cargo to avoid total loss. • The liability is shared by all parties who had an interest in the voyage. — Abbr. GA. — Also termed gross average; general-average contribution. [Cases: Shipping 186–202. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 458–470.]

“[G]eneral average refers to certain extraordinary sacrifices made or expenses incurred to avert a peril that threatens the entire voyage. In such a case the party sustaining the loss confers a common benefit on all the parties to the maritime venture. As a result the party suffering the loss has a right — apart from contract or tort — to claim contribution from all who participate in the venture. The doctrine of general average is thus an equitable principle derived from the general maritime law. General average is an exception to the principle of particular average that losses lie where they fall; rather the loss becomes ‘general,’ meaning that it is spread ratably among all the parties involved in the maritime adventure. The doctrine of general average is of ancient vintage, and can be traced back to remotest antiquity.” Thomas J. Schoenbaum, Admiralty and Maritime Law § 16-1, at 522–23 (1987).

particular average. Average resulting from an accidental partial loss or damage. • Any average that is not general is termed particular. The liability is borne solely by the person who suffered the loss. — Also termed simple average; partial average; petty average.

4.Hist. A service, esp. one of carriage, due from a feudal tenant to a lord. • The average is mentioned in the Do-mesday Book, but the exact nature of the service is unclear. Based on etymological studies, some authorities believe the term referred to the performance of work with or by beasts of burden. But because the term's origin is unclear, this theory is not universally accepted.

AVERAGE BOND

average bond. See BOND(2).

AVERAGE COST

average cost. See COST(1).

AVERAGE DAILY BALANCE

average daily balance. See DAILY BALANCE.

AVERAGE GROSS SALES

average gross sales. See SALE.

AVERAGE TAX RATE

AVERAGING DOWN

averaging down. An investment strategy in which shares in the same company are purchased at successively lower prices to achieve a lower average cost than the first purchase.

AVERAGING UP

averaging up. An investment strategy in a rising market in which equal numbers of shares are purchased at successively higher prices to reduce the investment's average cost basis. • For example, if an investor buys an equal number of shares at $10, $13, $15, and $18, the average cost per share is $14.

AVERMENT

averment (<<schwa>>-v<<schwa>>r-m<<schwa>>nt), n. A positive declaration or affirmation of fact; esp., an assertion or allegation in a pleading <the plaintiff's averment that the defendant ran a red light>. Cf. ASSEVE-RATE.

immaterial averment. An averment that alleges something in needless detail; a statement that goes far beyond what is in issue. • This type of averment may be ordered struck from the pleading. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 652, 1125; Pleading 22, 364. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 75–77, 668, 683.]

negative averment. An averment that is negative in form but affirmative in substance and that must be proved by the alleging party. • An example is the statement “she was not old enough to enter into the contract,” which is more than just a simple denial. Cf. TRAVERSE. [Cases: Pleading 78, 119–123. C.J.S. Pleading §§ 160–161, 186–187, 189–190.]

A VINCULO MATRIMONII

a vinculo matrimonii (ay ving-ky<<schwa>>-loh ma-tr<<schwa>>-moh-nee-I). [Latin] From the bond of ma-trimony. — Often shortened to a vinculo. See divorce a vinculo matrimonii under DIVORCE.

AVIZANDUM

avizandum (av-i-zan-d<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] Scots law. Deliberation; advisement. • The judge is said later to “advise” the case — that is, to give an opinion.

“To make avizandum with a process, or part of it, is to take it from the public court to the private consideration of the judge.” William Bell, Bell's Dictionary and Digest of the Law of Scotland 82 (George Watson ed., 7th ed. 1890).

AVOID

avoid, vb. To render void <because the restrictive covenant was overbroad, the court avoided it>. • Because this legal use of avoid can be easily confused with the ordinary sense of the word, the verb to void is preferable.

AVOIDABLE

avoidable,adj.1. Not inevitable; subject to prevention <an avoidable accident>.

practically avoidable.(Of harm) capable of being eliminated in whole or substantial part without the incurrance of prohibitive expense or hardship.

2. Capable of being refrained from <avoidable habits>.3. Voidable.

ANNULMENT(1) <avoidance of the agreement>.6.CONFESSION AND AVOIDANCE <the defendant filed an avoidance in an attempt to avert liability>. — avoid,vb.

AVOIDING POWER

avoiding power.See POWER(5).

AVOISION

avoision (<<schwa>>-voy-zh<<schwa>>n), n. An ambiguous act that falls between legal avoidance and illegal evasion of the law. • The term, coined by Arthur Seldon, an economist, is a blend of evasion and avoidance. Avoision usu. refers to financial acts that are not clearly legal tax avoidance or illegal tax evasion, but it sometimes appears in other contexts.

“The book is in three parts, divided into tiny chapterlets, forty-two in all. The first part takes up what Katz calls ‘avoision’: a fusion of ‘avoidance’ and ‘evasion’ that denotes cases in which it is unclear whether a person's conduct should be considered lawful avoidance of the law's prohibitions or illegal evasion. Two actresses are vying for the same part. Mildred knows that Abigail has been unfaithful to her husband. If she threatens to tell the husband unless Abigail forgoes the audition, that would be blackmail, and a crime. Instead she tells Abigail that she is mailing a letter addressed to the husband that reveals Abigail's infidelity and that has been timed to arrive the morning of the audition. Knowing that Abigail will stay home to intercept the letter, Mildred will have achieved the same end as she would have done by committing blackmail, yet her conduct is not criminal.” Richard A. Posner, “The Immoralist,” New Republic, July 15, 1996, at 38.

Broadly, any act of racial discrimination — public or private — that Congress can prohibit under the 13th Amendment. [Cases: Constitutional Law 83(2). C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 482–486.]

badger game. A scheme to extort money or some other benefit by arranging to catch someone in a compromising position and then threatening to make that person's behavior public.

“The ‘badger game’ is a blackmailing trick, usually in the form of enticing a man into a compromising position with a woman whose real or pretended husband comes upon the scene and demands payment under threat of prosecution or exposure.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 451 (3d ed. 1982).

BAD-MAN THEORY

bad-man theory. The jurisprudential doctrine or belief that a bad person's view of the law represents the best test of what the law actually is because that person will carefully calculate precisely what the rules allow and operate up to the rules' limits. • This theory was first espoused by Oliver Wendell Holmes in his essay The Path of the Law, 10 Harv. L. Rev. 457 (1897). In the essay, Holmes maintained that a society's legal system is defined by predicting how the law will affect a person, as opposed to considering the ethics or morals supposedly underlying the law. Under Holmes's theory, the prediction is best made by viewing the law as would a “bad man” who is unconcerned with morals. Such a person is not concerned with acting morally or in accord with a grand philosophical scheme. Rather, that person is concerned with whether and to what degree certain acts will incur punishment by the public force of the law. See LEGAL REALISM. — Also termed prediction theory.

bad motive. See MOTIVE.

bad<sub>s</sub>, n. Slang. In economics, the counterpart of “goods,” characterized by a negative correlation between the amount consumed and the consumer's wealth; specif., the kinds of products that tend to be bought only by poor people.

“Some products are termed ‘bads’ because consumption of the product tends to decrease with increasing wealth. Spam is one example of a bad, while beef tenderloin is generally thought to be a good.” Donald S. Chisum et al., Principles of Patent Law 54 (1998).

BAD TITLE

bad title. See TITLE(2).

bail, n. 1. A security such as cash or a bond; esp., security required by a court for the release of a prisoner who must appear at a future time <bail is set at $500>. Cf. RECOGNIZANCE. [Cases: Bail 39. C.J.S. Bail; Release and Detention Pending Proceedings §§ 2, 4–7, 31–32.]

bail absolute. A type of fiduciary bond conditioning a surety's liability on the failure of an estate administrator, executor, or guardian to properly account for estate funds. See fiduciary bond under BOND(2).

cash bail. A sum of money (rather than a surety bond) posted to secure a prisoner's release from jail. — Also termed stationhouse bail. [Cases: Bail 73. C.J.S. Bail; Release and Detention Pending Proceedings §§ 88–92.]

civil bail. A bond or deposit of money given to secure the release of a person arrested for failing to pay a court-ordered civil debt. • The bail is conditioned on the payment of the debt. [Cases: Bail 1. C.J.S. Bail; Release and Detention Pending Proceedings §§ 2, 191.]

excessive bail. Bail that is unreasonably high considering both the offense with which the accused is charged and the risk that the accused will not appear for trial. • The Eighth Amendment prohibits excessive bail. [Cases: Bail 52. C.J.S. Bail; Release and Detention Pending Proceedings § 69.]

stationhouse bail. See cash bail.

2. The process by which a person is released from custody either on the undertaking of a surety or on his or her own recognizance. 3. Release of a prisoner on security for a future appearance; esp., the delivery of a person in custody to a surety <the court refused bail for the accused serial killer>. [Cases: Bail 39. C.J.S. Bail; Release and Detention Pending Proceedings §§ 2, 4–7, 31–32.] 4. One or more sureties for a criminal defendant <the attorney stood as bail for her client>. See BAILER(1). “As a noun, and in its strict sense, bail is the person in whose custody the defendant is placed when released from jail, and who acts as surety for defendant's later appearance in court.... The term is also used to refer to the undertaking by the surety, into whose custody defendant is placed, that he will produce defendant in court at a stated time and place.” 8 C.J.S. Bail § 2 (1988).

bail above. See bail to the action.

bail below. See bail to the sheriff.

bail common. Hist. A fictitious surety filed by a defendant in a (usu. minor) civil action. — Also termed common bail; straw bail.

“[T]he Common Pleas made a distinction between common and special bail, allowing the former, in cases where the defendant voluntarily appeared to the process, or where the damage expressed in it appeared to be but of a trifling amount, and requiring the latter only, when the plaintiff's demand or the damage he had sustained appeared to be something considerable. In time therefore, in common cases, every defendant took the liberty of offering John Doe and Richard Roe, for his bail....” 1 George Crompton, Practice Common-Placed: Rules and Cases of Practice in the Courts of King's Bench and Common Pleas lxi (3d ed. 1787).

bail to the action. Hist. A surety for a civil defendant arrested by a mesne process (i.e., a process issued during the lawsuit). • If the defendant lost the lawsuit, the bail to the action was bound either to pay the judgment or to surrender the defendant into custody. — Also termed bail above; special bail. Cf. bail to the sheriff.

bail to the sheriff. Hist. A person who pledged to the sheriff that a defendant served with process during a civil action would appear on the writ's return day. — Also termed bail below. Cf. bail to the action.

“This kind of bail is called bail to the sheriff, because given to that officer, and for his security; and bail below, because subordinate or preliminary to bail to the action or special bail, which is termed bail above.” 1 Alexander M. Burrill, A Law Dictionary and Glossary 174 (2d ed. 1867).

bailer. 1. One who provides bail as a surety for a criminal defendant's release. — Also spelled bailor. — Also termed bail bondsman; bailman. 2. BAILOR(1).

bailiff. 1. A court officer who maintains order during court proceedings. • In many courts today, the bailiff also acts as crier, among other responsibilities. See CRIER. — Also termed (in England and Wales) usher; (in Scotland) macer. 2. A sheriff's officer who executes writs and serves processes. [Cases: Sheriffs and Constables 24. C.J.S. Sheriffs and Constables §§ 50–51.]

bailiff-errant.Hist. A bailiff appointed by the sheriff to deliver writs and other process within a county. Cf. bailiffs of franchises.

bailiffs of franchises.Hist. Bailiffs who execute writs and perform other duties in privileged districts that are outside the Crown's (and therefore the sheriff's) jurisdiction. Cf. bailiff-errant.

“Bailiffs of Franchises are those who are appointed by every Lord within his Liberty, to do such Offices therein, as the Bailiff Errant does at large in the County.” Thomas Blount, Nomo-Lexicon: A Law-Dictionary (1670).

bailiffs of hundreds.Hist. Bailiffs appointed by a sheriff to collect fines, summon juries, attend court sessions, and execute writs and process in the county district known as a hundred. See HUNDRED.

bailiffs of manors.Hist. Persons appointed to superintend the estates of the nobility. • These bailiffs collected fines and rents, inspected buildings, and took account of waste, spoils, and misdemeanors in the forests and demesne lands.

bound bailiff.Hist. A deputy sheriff placed under bond to ensure the faithful performance of assigned duties. — Also termed bumbailiff.

“The sheriff being answerable for the misdemesnors of these bailiffs, they are therefore usually bound in a bond for the due execution of their office, and thence are called bound-bailiffs; which the common people have corrupted into a much more homely appellation [i.e., bumbailiff].” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 334 (1765).

bumbailiff. 1.BrE. Slang. A bailiff of the lowest rank who performs the most menial tasks, such as arresting debtors and serving writs. • In British English, “bum” is slang for a person's buttocks. Some sources suggest that bumbailiffs are so called because they often approached debtors from behind before arresting them. 2. See bound bailiff.

high bailiff.Hist. A bailiff attached to a county court, responsible for attending court sessions, serving summonses, and executing orders, warrants, and writs.

special bailiff.Hist. A deputy sheriff appointed at a litigant's request to serve or execute some writ or process related to the lawsuit.

BAIL IN ERROR

bail in error. Security given by a defendant who intends to bring a writ of error on a judgment and desires a stay of execution in the meantime. See appeal bond, supersedeas bond under BOND(2).

BAILIVIA

bailivia. See BAILIWICK.

BAILIWICK

bailiwick (bay-l<<schwa>>-wik). The office, jurisdiction, or district of a bailiff; esp., a bailiff's territorial jurisdiction. — Also termed bailivia; baliva; balliva.

“In the early days a village was called a ‘wick.’ Each village had a bailiff who was its peace officer. His authority was limited to the territory of the wick. A bailiff was popularly referred to as a ‘bailie,’ and before long a bailie's wick was expressed as his ‘bailiwick.’ And in time this word came to be used to indicate the special territory over which a peace officer exercises his authority as such. Although it may be changed by statute, the normal situation is that the bailiwick of a policeman is his city, the bailiwick of a sheriff is his county and the bailiwick of a state officer, such as a member of the Highway Patrol, is the state.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 1096 (3d ed. 1982).

BAIL-JUMPING

bail-jumping, n. The criminal offense of defaulting on one's bail. See Model Penal Code § 242.8. See JUMP BAIL. [Cases: Bail 97. C.J.S. Bail; Release and Detention Pending Proceedings § 73.] — jump bail, vb. — bail-jumper, n.

BAILMENT

bailment. 1. A delivery of personal property by one person (the bailor) to another (the bailee) who holds the property for a certain purpose under an express or implied-in-fact contract. • Unlike a sale or gift of personal property, a bailment involves a change in possession but not in title. Cf. PAWN. [Cases: Bailment 1. C.J.S. Bailments §§ 2–13, 15, 19, 22–24, 31.]

“The customary definition of a bailment considers the transaction as arising out of contract. Thus Justice Story defines a bailment as ‘a delivery of a thing in trust for some special object or purpose, and upon a contract express or implied, to conform to the object or purpose of the trust’ [Joseph Story, Bailments 5 (9th ed. 1878)]. There has, however, been a vigorous dissent to this insistence on the contractual element in bailments. Professor Williston ... defines bailments broadly ‘as the rightful possession of goods by one who is not the owner’ [4 Samuel Williston, Law of Contracts 2888 (rev. ed. 1936)].... It is obvious that the restricted definition of a bailment as a delivery of goods on a contract cannot stand the test of the actual cases. The broader definition of Professor Williston is preferable.” Ray Andrews Brown, The Law of Personal Property § 73, at 252, 254 (2d ed. 1955).

“Although a bailment is ordinarily created by the agreement of the parties, resulting in a consensual delivery and acceptance of the property, such a relationship may also result from the actions and conduct of the parties in dealing with the property in question. A bailment relationship can be implied by law whenever the personal property of one person is acquired by another and held under circumstances in which principles of justice require the recipient to keep the property safely and return it to the owner.” 8A Am. Jur. 2d Bailment § 1 (1997).

actual bailment. A bailment that arises from an actual or constructive delivery of property to the bailee.

bailment for hire. A bailment for which the bailee is compensated, as when one leaves a car with a parking attendant. — Also termed lucrative bailment.

bailment for mutual benefit. A bailment for which the bailee is compensated and from which the bailor receives some additional benefit, as when one leaves a car with a parking attendant who will also wash the car while it is parked.

bailment for sale. A bailment in which the bailee agrees to sell the goods on behalf of the bailor; a consignment.

bailment for sole benefit of bailor. See gratuitous bailment.

constructive bailment. A bailment that arises when the law imposes an obligation on a possessor of personal property to return the property to its rightful owner, as with an involuntary bailment.

gratuitous bailment. A bailment for which the bailee receives no compensation, as when one borrows a friend's car. • A gratuitous bailee is liable for loss of the property only if the loss is caused by the bailee's gross negligence. — Also termed naked bailment; depositum; naked deposit; gratuitous deposit; deposit; bailment for sole benefit of bailor.

involuntary bailment. A bailment that arises when a person accidentally, but without any negligence, leaves personal property in another's possession. • An involuntary bailee who refuses to return the property to the owner can be liable for conversion. — Also termed involuntary deposit. See abandoned property, lost property, mislaid property under PROPERTY.

lucrative bailment. See bailment for hire.

naked bailment. See gratuitous bailment.

2. The personal property delivered by the bailor to the bailee. [Cases: Bailment 4. C.J.S. Bailments § 20.] 3. The contract or legal relation resulting from such a delivery. [Cases: Bailment 1. C.J.S. Bailments §§ 2–13, 15, 19, 22–24, 31.] 4. The act of posting bail for a criminal defendant. 5. The documentation for the posting of bail for a criminal defendant.

BAILOR

BAILOUT

bailout, n. 1. A rescue of an entity, usu. a corporation or an industry, from financial trouble. 2. An attempt by a business to receive favorable tax treatment of its profits, as by withdrawing profits at capital-gain rates rather than distributing stock dividends that would be taxed at higher ordinary-income rates. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3750. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 395.]

BAILOUT STOCK

bailout stock. See STOCK.

BAILPIECE

bailpiece. 1. Hist. A document recording the nature of the bail granted to a defendant in a civil action; specif., a surety issued to attest the act of offering bail 2. More modernly, a warrant issued to a surety upon which the surety may arrest the person bailed by him. • The bailpiece was filed with the court and usu. signed by the defendant's sureties. See BAIL(2); RECOGNIZANCE. — Sometimes written bailpiece.

BAIL-POINT SCALE

bail-point scale.A system for determining a criminal defendant's eligibility for bail, whereby the defendant either will be released on personal recognizance or will have a bail amount set according to the total number of points given, based on the defendant's background and behavior.

ballot, n. 1. An instrument, usu. a paper or ball, used for casting a vote. [Cases: Elections 126(5), 215. C.J.S. Elections § 118(1).] 2. The system of choosing officers by a recorded vote, usu. by marking a paper.

absentee ballot. A ballot that a voter submits, sometimes by mail, before an election. — Also termed absentee vote. See absentee voting under VOTING. [Cases: Elections 126(6), 216.1. C.J.S. Elections §§ 114, 118(1).]

bullet ballot. See bullet vote under VOTE(1).

exhausted ballot. See exhausted vote under VOTE(1).

joint ballot. A vote by legislators of both houses sitting together as one body.

preferential ballot. See preferential vote under VOTE(1).

secret ballot.A vote cast in such a way that the person voting cannot be identified. Cf Australian ballot. [Cases: Elections 126(6), 215. C.J.S. Elections §§ 114, 118(1).]

“The secret ballot, when used to protect citizens when choosing their representatives, is a hallmark of a democratic system of government; but, when it is used to conceal a public official's vote, it violates the fundamental tenet of an elected or appointed official's ultimate accountability to the electorate.” Op. Tex. Att'y Gen. H-1163 (1978).

spoiled ballot.A ballot reflecting a vote that cannot be counted because it was cast in a form or manner that does not comply with the applicable rules. See illegal vote under VOTE(1).

3. A vote in a series of one or more votes that is not conclusive until one candidate attains the necessary majority or supermajority <the candidate was nominated on the 21st ballot>.4. A list of candidates running for office <four candidates are on the ballot>. — ballot,vb.

Australian ballot.A uniform ballot printed by the government, listing all eligible candidates, and marked in secret. • Before Australian ballots became standard, candidates often printed their own ballots with only their names, and watchers at polling places could see whose ballot a voter was casting. — Loosely termed secret ballot. [Cases: Elections 126(5), 164. C.J.S. Elections § 118(1).]

Massachusetts ballot.A ballot in which, under each office, the names of candidates and party designations are printed in alphabetical order. • This is a type of Australian ballot.

office-block ballot.A ballot that lists the candidates' names under the title of the office sought without mentioning the candidates' party affiliations. [Cases: Elections 126(5), 168(1), 173. C.J.S. Elections §§ 118(1), 158.]

bank. 1. A financial establishment for the deposit, loan, exchange, or issue of money and for the transmission of funds; esp., a member of the Federal Reserve System. • Under securities law, a bank includes any banking institution, whether or not incorporated, doing business under federal or state law, if a substantial portion of the institution's business consists of receiving deposits or exercising fiduciary powers similar to those permitted to national banks and if the institution is supervised and examined by a state or federal banking authority; or a receiver, conservator, or other liquidating agent of any of the above institutions. 15 USCA § 78c(a)(6). [Cases: Banks and Banking 1, 232, 289. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 6, 482–483, 599–600.] 2. The office in which such an establishment conducts transactions.

“A bank is a quasi public institution, for the custody and loan of money, the exchange and transmission of the same by means of bills and drafts, and the issuance of its own promissory notes, payable to bearer, as currency, or for the exercise of one or more of these functions, not always necessarily chartered, but sometimes so, created to subserve public ends, or a financial institution regulated by law .... A bank is wholly a creature of statute doing business by legislative grace and the right to carry on a banking business through the agency of a corporation is a ‘franchise’ which is dependent on a grant of corporate powers by the state.” 1A Michie on Banks and Banking § 2, at 5–6 (1993).

bank for cooperatives. A bank within a system of banks established to provide a permanent source of credit to farmers' cooperatives and supervised by the Farm Credit Administration. [Cases: Banks and Banking 401–409. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 665–666.]

collecting bank. In the check-collection process, any bank handling an item for collection, except for the payor bank or the depository bank. UCC § 4-105(5). [Cases: Banks and Banking 156–163. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 317, 319, 322, 327, 382–400, 402, 404, 407, 409–410, 414.]

commercial bank. A bank authorized to receive both demand and time deposits, to engage in trust services, to issue letters of credit, to rent time-deposit boxes, and to provide similar services.

correspondent bank. A bank that acts as an agent for another bank, or engages in an exchange of services with that bank, in a geographical area to which the other bank does not have direct access.

custodian bank. A bank or trust company that acts as custodian for a clearing corporation and that is supervised and examined by a state or federal authority.

depository bank. The first bank to which an item is transferred for collection. UCC § 4-105(2). [Cases: Banks and Banking 120, 121, 137, 158. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 272–276, 322, 328, 330, 383, 395–397, 399, 402, 404.]

drawee bank. See payor bank.

Federal Home Loan Bank. See FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK.

federal intermediate credit bank. One of a system of 12 regional banks created in 1923 to discount obligations of agricultural credit corporations and similar institutions making short-term loans to farmers and ranchers. • The system is now merged with federal land banks to create the federal farm-credit system. [Cases: United States 53(7). C.J.S. United States §§ 90, 92–93.]

federal land bank. See FEDERAL LAND BANK.

intermediary bank. A bank to which an item is transferred in the course of collection, even though the bank is not the depository or payor bank. UCC § 4-105(4).

investment bank. A bank whose primary purpose is to acquire financing for businesses, esp. through the sale of securities. • An investment bank does not accept deposits and, apart from selling securities, does not deal with the public at large. See INVESTMENT BANKER. [Cases: Brokers 2. C.J.S. Brokers §§ 2–5.]

member bank. A bank that is a member of the Federal Reserve System. — Also termed reserve bank. See FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM. [Cases: Banks and Banking 359. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 661–662.]

mutual savings bank. A bank that has no capital stock and in which the depositors are the owners. See SAVINGS-AND-LOAN ASSOCIATION. [Cases: Banks and Banking 289; Building and Loan Associations 1. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 599–600; Building and Loan Associations, Savings and Loan Associations, and Credit Unions §§ 2–4.]

national bank. A bank incorporated under federal law and governed by a charter approved by the Comptroller of the Currency. • A national bank is permitted to use the abbreviation N.A. (national association) as part of its name. [Cases: Banks and Banking 232, 238. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 482–483, 496.]

negotiating bank. A financial institution that discounts or purchases drafts drawn under a letter of credit issued by another bank. [Cases: Banks and Banking 191. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 341–366, 368–370, 372–376.]

nonbank bank. A financial institution that either accepts demand deposits or makes commercial loans, but, unlike banks, does not do both at the same time and therefore can avoid federal regulations on bank ownership. • Nonbank banks were esp. prolific in the 1980s, but amendments to the definition of a bank under federal law have essentially closed this loophole.

nonmember bank. A bank that is not a member of the Federal Reserve System. See FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM.

payor bank. A bank that is asked to pay the amount of a negotiable instrument and, on the bank's acceptance, is obliged to pay that amount; a bank by which an item is payable as drawn or accepted. • Because the bank is the drawee of a draft, it is also termed a drawee bank. UCC § 4-105(3). [Cases: Banks and Banking 137, 158. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 322, 328, 330, 383, 395–397, 399, 402, 404.]

presenting bank. A nonpayor bank that presents a negotiable instrument for payment. UCC §

4-105(6). [Cases: Banks and Banking 158. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 322, 383, 395–397, 399, 402, 404.]

private bank. An unincorporated banking institution owned by an individual or partnership and, depending on state statutes, subject to or free from state regulation.

remitting bank. A payor or intermediary bank that pays or transfers an item.

reserve bank. See member bank.

respondent bank. A bank, association, or other entity that exercises fiduciary powers, that holds securities on behalf of beneficial owners, and that deposits the securities for safekeeping with another bank, association, or other entity exercising fiduciary powers. SEC Rule 14a-1(k) (17 CFR § 240.14a-1(k)).

savings-and-loan bank. See SAVINGS-AND-LOAN ASSOCIATION.

savings bank. A bank that makes primarily home mortgage and some other consumer loans, receives deposits and pays interest on them, and may offer checking accounts. • Historically, savings banks did not provide any checking services. [Cases: Banks and Banking 289. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 599–600.]

state bank. A bank chartered by a state and supervised by the state banking department. • For a state bank to have FDIC insurance on deposits, it must become a member of the Federal Reserve System. [Cases: Banks and Banking 2–6. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 2–5, 7–9, 15–18.]

bank, vb. 1. To keep money at <he banks at the downtown branch>. 2. To deposit (funds) in a bank <she banked the prize money yesterday>. 3. Slang. To loan money to facilitate (a transaction) <who banked the deal?>. • The lender's consideration usu. consists of a fee or an interest in the property involved in the transaction.

BANK HOLDING COMPANY

bank holding company. A company that owns or controls one or more banks. • Ownership or control of 25 percent is usu. enough for this purpose. — Abbr. BHC. [Cases: Banks and Banking 521–528. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 524, 661, 718–731, 746–747.]

banking. The business carried on by or with a bank.

BANKING ACT OF 1933

Banking Act of 1933. See GLASS-STEAGALL ACT.

banking day. 1. Banking hours on a day when a bank is open to the public for carrying on substantially all its banking functions. • Typically, if the bookkeeping and loan departments are closed by a certain hour, the remainder of that day is not part of that bank's banking day. 2. A day on which banks are open for banking business.

“ ‘Banking day’ is defined in [UCC §] 4-104(1)(c) [now 4-104(a)(3)]. The definition was designed to exclude from the ‘banking day’ all bank holidays (although some states added specifics on holidays) as well as the portions of a day on which one or more of the substantial departments of the bank closed off their services to the public, even though it remained open for accepting deposits and withdrawing funds as well as continuously processing items for payment or for dispatch. Clearly, when night depositaries came into vogue, their existence did not extend the ‘banking day.’ The present existence and growing use of so-called 24-hour teller machines also does not extend the banking day. The nature of the banking day is sufficiently tenuous that banks would do well to fix a definite cutoff hour under subsection 4-107(1).” William D. Hawkland, Uniform Commercial Code Series § 4-104:01, at 4-43 (1984).

banking game. A gambling arrangement in which the house (i.e., the bank) accepts bets from all players and then pays out winning bets and takes other bettors' losses. [Cases: Gaming 68(.5).]

BANK NIGHT

BANKR. REP.

Bankr. Rep. abbr. Bankruptcy Reporter. — Also abbreviated B.R.

BANKRUPT

bankrupt, adj. Indebted beyond the means of payment; insolvent. — Also spelled (archaically) bankerout; bankrout. — bankrupt, vb.

bankrupt, n. 1. A person who cannot meet current financial obligations; an insolvent person. • This term was used in bankruptcy statutes until 1979, and is still commonly used by nonbankruptcy courts. But the Bankruptcy Code uses debtor instead of bankrupt. 2. DEBTOR(2).

cessionary bankrupt. Archaic. A person who forfeits all property so that it may be divided among creditors. • For the modern near-equivalent, see CHAPTER 7. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2221. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 45.]

bankruptcy. 1. A statutory procedure by which a (usu. insolvent) debtor obtains financial relief and undergoes a judicially supervised reorganization or liquidation of the debtor's assets for the benefit of creditors; a case under the Bankruptcy Code (Title 11 of the United States Code). • For various types of bankruptcy under federal law, see the entries at CHAPTER. — Also termed bankruptcy proceeding; bankruptcy case; insolvency proceeding. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2001. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 2.]

“There are two general forms of bankruptcy: (1) liquidation and (2) rehabilitation. Chapter 7 of the Code is entitled ‘Liquidation.’ The terms ‘straight bankruptcy’ and ‘bankruptcy’ often are used to describe liquidation cases under the bankruptcy laws because the vast majority of bankruptcy cases are liquidation cases. In a typical Chapter 7 liquidation case, the trustee collects the nonexempt property of the debtor, converts that property to cash, and distributes the cash to the creditors. The debtor gives up all the nonexempt property she owns at the time of the filing of the bankruptcy petition and hopes to obtain a discharge. Chapters 11, 12, and 13 of the Bankruptcy Code contemplate debtor rehabilitation. In a rehabilitation case, creditors look to future earnings of the debtor, not to the property of the debtor at the time of the initiation of the bankruptcy proceeding, to satisfy their claims. The debtor generally retains its assets and makes payments to creditors, usually from postpetition earnings, pursuant to a court-approved plan.” David G. Epstein et al., Bankruptcy § 1-5, at 8–9 (1993).

family-farmer bankruptcy. See CHAPTER 12 (2).

farmer bankruptcy. See CHAPTER 12 (2).

involuntary bankruptcy. A bankruptcy case commenced by the debtor's creditors (usu. three or more), or, if the debtor is a partnership, by fewer than all the general partners. 11 USCA § 303(b). — Also termed involuntary proceeding. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2281. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 56.]

liquidation bankruptcy. See CHAPTER 7 (2).

malicious bankruptcy. An abuse of process by which a person wrongfully petitions to have another person adjudicated a bankrupt or to have a company wound up as insolvent. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2187. C.J.S. Bankruptcy §§ 36, 64.]

straight bankruptcy. See CHAPTER 7 (2).

voluntary bankruptcy. A bankruptcy case commenced by the debtor. 11 USCA § 301. [Cases: Bankruptcy 2251. C.J.S. Bankruptcy § 50.]

2. The field of law dealing with the rights of debtors who are financially unable to pay their debts and the rights of their creditors. — Also termed bankruptcy law. 3. The status of a party who has declared bankruptcy under a bankruptcy statute. — Also termed statutory insolvency. 4. Informally, the fact of being financially unable to pay one's debts and obligations as they become due; insolvency. • The roots of bankruptcy are the Latin bancus (table) and ruptus (broken). The English word bankruptcy derives from the Italian banca rotta, referring to the medieval Italian custom of breaking the counter of a financially failed merchant. — Also termed (in sense 4) failure to meet obligations.

BANKRUPTCY ACT

Bankruptcy Act. The Bankruptcy Act of 1898, which governed bankruptcy cases filed before October 1, 1979.

BANKRUPTCY CASE

BANKRUPTCY-REMOTE ENTITY

bankruptcy-remote entity. A business entity formed in a manner designed to minimize the risk of becoming a debtor in a bankruptcy case. • The entity's organizational charter usu. requires at least one independent director to be appointed, as well as a unanimous vote by the entity's directors, before a bankruptcy petition may be filed. The business is usu. a special-purpose entity established to perform limited functions, such as to purchase and hold accounts receivable or other financial assets that generate revenue. It also has only one or a few primary creditors, to reduce the likelihood of an involuntary bankruptcy. A bankruptcy-remote entity will sometimes issue securities instead of receiving a loan from a financial institution. See SINGLE-PURPOSE bank-statement rule. Commercial law. The principle that if a bank customer fails to examine a bank statement and any items returned with it, and report to the bank within a reasonable time any unauthorized payments because of a material alteration or forgery, the customer may be precluded from complaining about the alteration or forgery. UCC § 4-406. [Cases: Banks and Banking 148(3, 4), 174. C.J.S. Banks and Banking §§ 416, 419, 421–428, 430–432, 434–438.]

BANK-STATEMENT RULE

bann, n. [Law Latin] Hist. 1. The power of a court to issue an edict, esp. one relating to the public peace. 2. The edict itself. — Also termed bannum.

“An essential attribute of judicial power in the later periods is the bann, the right to command and forbid. Etymologically, bann comes from a root signifying loud speech. It may have meant at first the order issued by the leader in war; later an administrative command or ordinance. Hence it covers the official proclamation of peace in the court, and then it comes to mean the peace itself. In the older Frank sources, bann appears in the Latin as sermo, and sermo regis is the king's peace. Extra sermonem regis ponere means to put out of the peace. Another Latin or rather Latinized German word is forisbannire, from which comes our word ‘banish.’ ” Munroe Smith, The Development of European Law 35 (1928).

BANNITIO

bannitio (b<<schwa>>-nish-ee-oh or ba-). [Law Latin] Hist. Expulsion by a ban or public proclamation; banishment. See EXILE; BAN(1).

BANNITUS

BANNS OF MATRIMONY

banns of matrimony.Family law. Public notice of an intended marriage. • The notice is given to ensure that objections to the marriage would be voiced before the wedding. Banns are still common in many churches. — Also spelled bans of matrimony. — Also termed banns of marriage. [Cases: Marriage 24.]

“A minister is not obliged to publish banns of matrimony unless the persons to be married deliver to him, at least seven days before the intended first publication, a notice in writing stating the Christian name and surname and the place of residence of each of them and the period during which each has resided there.... Banns are to be published in an audible manner and in the form of words prescribed by the rubric prefixed to the office of matrimony in the Book of Common Prayer on three Sundays preceding the solemnisation of marriage during morning service or, if there be no morning service on a Sunday on which they are to be published, during evening service.” Mark Hill, Ecclesiastical Law 136 (2d ed. 2001) (dealing with practice in the Church of England).

local bar association.A bar association organized on a local level, such as an association within a county or city. • Local bar associations are voluntary in membership.

state bar association.An association or group of attorneys that have been admitted to practice law in a given state; a bar association organized on a statewide level, often with compulsory membership. • State bar associations are usu. created by statute, and membership is often mandatory for those who practice law in the state. Unlike voluntary, professional-development bar associations such as the American Bar Association, state bar associations often have the authority to regulate the legal profession, by undertaking such matters as disciplining attorneys and bringing lawsuits against those who engage in the unauthorized practice of law.

BAR DATE

bar date. Patents. The date by which a U.S. patent application must be filed to avoid losing the right to receive a patent. • In the U.S., the bar date for a patent application is one year after the invention is disclosed in a publication or patented in another country, or put into public use, sold, or offered for sale in the U.S. <since the invention was offered for domestic sale on January 1, 2000, the bar date for the U.S. patent application is January 1, 2001>. Cf. absolute novelty under NOVELTY. [Cases: Patents 67.1. C.J.S. Patents § 52.]

BAREBOAT CHARTER

bareboat charter. See CHARTER(8).

BAREBONES INDICTMENT

barebones indictment. See INDICTMENT.

bare license. See LICENSE.

BARE LICENSEE

bare licensee. See LICENSEE.

BARE OWNERSHIP

bare ownership. See trust ownership under OWNERSHIP.

BARE POSSIBILITY

bare possibility. See naked possibility under POSSIBILITY.

BARE PROMISE

bare promise. See gratuitous promise under PROMISE.

BARE STEERAGEWAY

bare steerageway. Maritime law. The lowest speed necessary for a vessel to maintain course.

BARE TRUSTEE

bare trustee. See TRUSTEE(1).

bar examination. A written test that a person must pass before being licensed to practice law. • The exam varies from state to state. — Often shortened to bar. [Cases: Attorney and Client 6. C.J.S. Attorney and Client § 18.]

Multistate Bar Examination. A nationally standardized part of a state bar examination given as a multiple-choice test covering broad legal subjects, including constitutional law, contracts, criminal law, evidence, property, and torts. — Abbr. MBE.

bar examiner. One appointed by the state to test applicants (usu. law-school graduates) by preparing, administering, and grading the bar examination. [Cases: Attorney and Client 6. C.J.S. Attorney and Client § 18.]

BARGAIN

bargain, n. An agreement between parties for the exchange of promises or performances. • A bargain is not necessarily a contract because the consideration may be insufficient or the transaction may be illegal. See BARGAIN SALE; informal contract under CONTRACT. [Cases: Contracts 1. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 2–3, 9, 12.] — bargain, vb.

“A bargain is an agreement of two or more persons to exchange promises, or to exchange a promise for a performance. Thus defined, ‘bargain’ is at once narrower than ‘agreement’ in that it is not applicable to all agreements, and broader than ‘contract’ since it includes a promise given in exchange for insufficient consideration. It also covers transactions which the law refuses to recognize as contracts because of illegality.” Samuel Williston, A Treatise on the Law of Contracts § 2A, at 7 (Walter H.E. Jaeger ed., 3d ed. 1957).

catching bargain. An agreement on unconscionable terms to purchase real property from — or loan money secured by real property to — a person who has an expectant or reversionary interest in the property.

illegal bargain. A bargain whose formation or performance is criminal, tortious, or otherwise contrary to public policy.

plea bargain. See PLEA BARGAIN.

time-bargain. See FUTURES CONTRACT.

unconscionable bargain. See unconscionable agreement under AGREEMENT.

BARGAIN AND SALE

bargain and sale. 1. A negotiated transaction, usu. for goods, services, or real property. 2. Hist. A written agreement for the sale of land whereby the buyer would give valuable consideration (recited in the agreement) without having to enter the land and perform livery of seisin, so that the parties equitably “raised a use” in the buyer. • The result of the transaction was to leave the legal estate in fee simple in the seller and to create an equitable estate in fee simple in the buyer until legal title was transferred to the buyer by delivery of a deed. In most jurisdictions, the bargain and sale has been replaced by the statutory deed of grant. [Cases: Deeds 22. C.J.S. Deeds § 16.]

BARGAIN-AND-SALE DEED

bargain-and-sale deed. See DEED.

BARGAINED-FOR EXCHANGE

bargained-for exchange. Contracts. A benefit or detriment that the parties to a contract agree to as the price of performance in return for a promise. • The Restatement of Contracts (Second) defines consideration exclusively in terms of bargain, but it does not mention benefit or detriment.

BARGAINEE

bargainee. The buyer in a bargained-for exchange.

BARGAINING AGENT

bargaining agent. See AGENT(2).

BARGAINING UNIT

bargaining unit. A group of employees authorized to engage in collective bargaining on behalf of all the employees of a company or an industry sector. [Cases: Labor Relations 202. C.J.S. Labor Relations §§ 173–174, 176, 178, 180–181, 183–186.]

BARGAIN MONEY

bargain money. See EARNEST MONEY.

BARGAINOR

bargainor (bahr-g<<schwa>>n-or-orbahr-g<<schwa>>-n<<schwa>>r). The seller in a bargained-for exchange.

BARGAIN PURCHASE

bargain purchase. See BARGAIN SALE.

BARGAIN SALE

bargain sale. A sale of property for less than its fair market value. • For tax purposes, the difference between the sale price and the fair market value must be taken into account. And bargain sales between family members may lead to gift-tax consequences. — Also termed bargain purchase.

BARGAIN THEORY OF CONSIDERATION

bargain theory of consideration. The theory that a promise or performance that is bargained for in exchange for a promise is consideration for the promise. • This theory underlies all bilateral contracts. See bilateral contract under CONTRACT. [Cases: Contracts 50. C.J.S. Contracts § 87.]

“[C]lassical contract theory tended to associate the doctrine of consideration with the concept of bargain. The emphasis of classical law shifted away from actual benefits and detriments to the mutual promises which constitute a wholly executory contract. American lawyers developed from this trend a ‘bargain theory of consideration’ and similarly in English law a more modern basis for the doctrine of consideration was found by some lawyers in the notion that a contract is a bargain in which the consideration is the price of the bargain. Allied to this is the supposed rule that nothing can be treated as a consideration unless it is seen by the parties as the ‘price’ of the bargain.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 119 (3d ed. 1981).

BAROMETER STOCK

barometer stock. See STOCK.

BARON

baron. 1. Hist. A man who held land directly from the Crown in exchange for military service. 2. Hist. A husband. See BARON ET FEME. 3. One of the judges of the former English or Scottish Courts of Exchequer. — Abbr. B. See BARONS OF THE EXCHEQUER. 4. A noble rank; specif., the lowest rank in the British peerage. 5. Generally, a lord or nobleman.

BARONES SCACCARII

barones scaccarii. See BARONS OF THE EXCHEQUER.

BARONET

baronet. Hist. A non-noble hereditary title that descends in the male line only. • Baronets originated in 1611 when James I began selling the title as a way to raise revenue.

BARON ET FEME

baron et feme (bar-<<schwa>>n ay fem). [Law French] Hist. Husband and wife. See COVERTURE; FEME COVERT.

BARONIAL COURT

baronial court. See COURT.

BARON PARKE'S RULE

Baron Parke's rule. See GOLDEN RULE.

BARONS OF THE EXCHEQUER

Barons of the Exchequer. Hist. The six judges of the Court of Exchequer. • After the 1873 transfer of the Court's jurisdiction to the High Court of Justice, the judges were known as justices of the High Court. — Also termed barones scaccarii. See COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

BARONY

barony (bar-<<schwa>>n-ee). 1. BARON(1). 2. TENURE(2).

BARRA

barra (bah-r-<<schwa>>). [Law French “bar”] Hist. 1. See PLEA IN BAR. 2. A barrister. — Also spelled barre.

BARRATOR

barrator (bar-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>r), n. A fomenter of quarrels and lawsuits; one who stirs up dissension and litigation among people. — Also spelled barretor. Cf. CHAMPERTOR.

“Barrator or Barater (Fr. Barateur, a Deceiver) Is a common mover or maintainer of Suits, Quarrels, or Parts, either in Courts or elsewhere in the Country, and is himself never quiet, but at variance with one or other.” Thomas Blount, Nomo-Lexicon: A Law-Dictionary (1670).

BARRATRY

barratry (bar-<<schwa>>-tree orbair-), n.1. Vexatious incitement to litigation, esp. by soliciting potential legal clients. • Barratry is a crime in most jurisdictions. A person who is hired by a lawyer to solicit business is called a capper. See CAPPER(1). [Cases: Champerty and Maintenance 4(.5), 5(.5), 9. C.J.S. Champerty and Maintenance, Barratry and Related Matters §§ 25–27.] 2. Maritime law. Fraudulent or grossly negligent conduct (by a master or crew) that is prejudicial to a shipowner. [Cases: Seamen 14; Shipping 61. C.J.S. Seamen §§ 30–32; Shipping § 159.]

“[S]ailing out of port in violation of an embargo, or without paying the port duties, or to go out of the regular course upon a smuggling expedition, or to be engaged in smuggling against the consent of the owner, are all of them acts of barratry, equally with more palpable and direct acts of violence and fraud, for they are wilful breaches of duty by the master. It makes no difference in the reason of the thing, whether the injury the owner suffers be owing to an act of the master, induced by motives of advantage to himself, or of malice to the owner, or a disregard of those laws which it was the master's duty to obey, and which the owner relied upon him to observe. It is, in either case, equally barratry.” 3 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law *305–06 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

3. The buying or selling of ecclesiastical or governmental positions. 4. The crime committed by a judge who accepts a bribe in exchange for a favorable decision. Cf. BRIBE. — barratrous (bar-<<schwa>>-tr<<schwa>>s), adj.

BARRIER TO ENTRY

barrier to entry. An economic factor that makes it difficult for a business to enter a market and compete with existing businesses.

“Strictly speaking, a barrier to entry is a condition that makes the long-run costs of a new entrant into a market higher than the long-run costs of the existing firms in the market; a good example is a regulatory limitation on entry. The term is also used, more questionably, as a synonym for heavy start-up costs.” Richard A. Posner, Economic Analysis of Law § 10.8, at 227 (2d ed. 1977).

BARRING OF ENTAIL

barring of entail. The freeing of an estate from the limitations imposed by an entail and permitting its free disposition. • This was anciently done by means of a fine or common recovery, but later by a deed in which the tenant and next heir join. — Also termed breaking of entail; disentailment. See ENTAIL. [Cases: Deeds 127; Estates in Property 12. C.J.S. Deeds § 247; Estates §§ 22–27.]

BARRISTER

barrister (bar-is-t<<schwa>>r), n. In England or Northern Ireland, a lawyer who is admitted to plead at the bar and who may argue cases in superior courts. • In many other Commonwealth nations, the legal profession is similarly divided into barristers and solicitors. Cf. SOLICITOR(4). — barristerial (bar-<<schwa>>-steer-ee-*<<schwa>>*l), adj.

inner barrister. 1.QUEEN'S COUNSEL. 2. A student member of an Inn of Court.

outer barrister.A barrister called to the bar, but not called to plead from within it, as a Queen's Counsel or (formerly) serjeant-at-law is permitted to do; a barrister belonging to the outer bar. — Also termed utter barrister. See CALL TO THE BAR; OUTER BAR.

vacation barrister.A barrister who, being newly called to the bar, for at least three years must attend inn-of-court functions that are held during the long vacation.

BARTER

BASE

base,adj. Servile; (of a villein) holding land at the will of the lord. See base estate under ESTATE(1).

BASE COURT

base court.See COURT.

BASED ON

based on.Copyright. Derived from, and therefore similar to, an earlier work. • If one work is “based on” an earlier work, it infringes the copyright in the earlier work. To be based on an earlier work, a later work must embody substantially similar expression, not just substantially similar ideas. See derivative work under WORK(2).

BASE ESTATE

base estate.See ESTATE(1).

BASE FEE

base fee.1.FEE(2).2.fee simple determinable under FEE SIMPLE.

BASEL CONVENTION

Basel Convention on the Control of Transboundary Movements of Hazardous Waste and Their Disposal.A 1992 treaty establishing formal rules and procedures for the transportation and disposal of hazardous waste across national borders. • The United States had not ratified the treaty as of 2003. — Often shortened to Basel Convention.

BASELINE

baseline.Int'l law.The line that divides the land from the sea, by which the extent of a state's coastal jurisdiction is measured. [Cases: International Law 7. C.J.S. International Law §§ basement court.Slang. A low-level court of limited jurisdiction, such as a police court, traffic court, municipal court, or small-claims court.

---

23–24.]

BASE-POINT PRICING

base-point pricing. 1. A pricing method that adds the price at the factory to the freight charges, which are calculated as the cost of shipping from a set location to the buyer's location. • The chosen shipping base point may be the same for all customers, or it may be a specific, established location, such as a manufacturing plant nearest to the buyer. 2. A uniform pricing policy in which the cost of transportation to all locations is presumed to be the same.

BASE SERVICE

base service.Hist. Agricultural work performed by a villein tenant in exchange for the lord's permission to hold the land. Cf. KNIGHT-SERVICE.

BASE TENURE

base tenure.See TENURE.

BASIC PATENT

basic patent.See pioneer patent under PATENT(3).

BASILICA

basilica (b<<schwa>>-sil-i-k<<schwa>>). [Greek] Hist.1. (cap.) A 60-book Greek summary of Justinian's Corpus Juris Civilis, with comments (scholia). • The Basilica (“royal law”) was begun by the Byzantine emperor Basil I, and it served as a major source of the law of the Eastern Empire from the early 10th century until Constantinople's fall in 1453. 2. A colonnaded hall used as a law court or for trading; specif., in ancient Rome, a public building usu. used as a court of justice. • A basilica typically featured a nave with two aisles and an apse. Architects adopted the basilica's layout for the design of early Christian churches.

basis. 1. A fundamental principle; an underlying condition. 2. Tax. The value assigned to a taxpayer's investment in property and used primarily for computing gain or loss from a transfer of the property. • When the assigned value represents the cost of acquiring the property, it is also called cost basis. — Also termed tax basis. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3195; Taxation 996.1–998. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 114–115; Taxation §§ 1726, 1732–1734.] Pl. bases.

adjusted basis. Basis increased by capital improvements and decreased by depreciation deductions. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3197; Taxation 996.1–998. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 119; Taxation §§ 1726, 1732–1734.]

“[I]t is well to consider the word ‘adjusted’ in the term ‘adjusted basis.’ Often, after property is acquired, certain adjustments (increases or decreases to the dollar amount of the original basis) must be made. After these adjustments, the property then has an ‘adjusted basis.’ ” Michael D. Rose & John C. Chommie, Federal Income Taxation § 6.04, at 300 (3d ed. 1988).

adjusted cost basis. Basis resulting from the original cost of an item plus capital additions minus depreciation deductions.

carryover basis. The basis of property transferred by gift or in trust, equaling the transferor's basis. — Also termed substituted basis. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3201.]

stepped-up basis. The basis of property transferred by inheritance. • Stepped-up basis equals the fair market value of property on the date of the decedent's death (or on the alternate valuation date). [Cases: Internal Revenue 3205. C.J.S. Internal Revenue § 116.]

substituted basis. 1. The basis of property transferred in a tax-free exchange or other specified transaction. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3184. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 120–121, 124.] 2. See carryover basis.

BASIS POINT

basis point. One-hundredth of 1%; .01%. • Basis points are used in computing investment yields (esp. of bonds) and in apportioning costs and calculating interest rates in real-estate transactions.

BASKET CLAUSE

Basket Clause. See NECESSARY AND PROPER CLAUSE.

BASSE JUSTICE

basse justice (bahs zhoo-stees). [Law French “low justice”] Hist. A feudal lord's right to personally try a person charged with a minor offense.

bastard. 1. See illegitimate child under CHILD. 2. A child born to a married woman whose husband could not be or is otherwise proved not to be the father. • Because the word is most commonly used as a slur, its use in family-law contexts is much in decline. [Cases: Children Out-of-Wedlock 1. C.J.S. Children Out-of-Wedlock §§ 2–11.]

adulterine bastard. A child born to a married woman whose husband is not the father of the child. • The rebuttable presumption is generally that a child born of the marriage is the husband's child. A child born to a woman by means of artificial insemination may be termed an adulterine bastard, but most jurisdictions prohibit a husband who has consented to the artificial insemination from denying paternity and responsibility for the child. Cf. ARTIFICIAL INSEMINATION.

BASTARD EISNE

bastard eisne. See EISNE.

BASTARDY

bastardy. See ILLEGITIMACY.

BASTARDY PROCEEDING

BASTARDY PROCESS

bastardy process. See PATERNITY SUIT.

BASTARDY STATUTE

bastardy statute. Archaic. A criminal statute that punishes an unwed father for failing to support his child. • These statutes have been found unconstitutional because they unfairly discriminate against fathers and do not punish unwed mothers. So they are unenforceable.

BATABLE GROUND

batable ground (bay-t<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>l). Land of uncertain ownership. • Batable (or debatable) ground originally referred to certain lands on the border of England and Scotland before the 1603 union of the two kingdoms.

BATCH NUMBER

batch number. See SERIES CODE.

BATES NUMBER

Bates number. See BATES-STAMP NUMBER.

BATES STAMP

Bates stamp, n. 1. A self-advancing stamp machine used for affixing an identifying mark, usually a number, to a document or to the individual pages of a document. 2. BATES-STAMP NUMBER. — Sometimes (erroneously) written Bate stamp.

BATES-STAMP

Bates-stamp,vb. To affix a mark, usu. a number, to a document or to the individual pages of a document for the purpose of identifying and distinguishing it in a series of documents <the paralegal is Bates-stamping the records described in the request for discovery>. — Sometimes (erroneously) written Bate-stamp.

BATES-STAMP NUMBER

Bates-stamp number.The identifying number that is affixed to a document or to the individual pages of a document. • The term gets its name from a self-advancing stamp machine made by the Bates Manufacturing Company. The number is typically used to identify documents produced during discovery. — Often shortened to Bates number; Bates stamp.

BATHTUB CONSPIRACY

bathtub conspiracy.See intra-enterprise conspiracy under CONSPIRACY.

BATSON CHALLENGE

Batson challenge.See CHALLENGE(1).

BATTERED CHILD

battered child.See CHILD.

BATTERED-CHILD SYNDROME

battered-child syndrome.Family law. A constellation of medical and psychological conditions of a child who has suffered continuing injuries that could not be accidental and are therefore presumed to have been inflicted by someone close to the child, usu. a caregiver. • Diagnosis typically results from a radiological finding of distinct bone trauma and persistent tissue damage caused by intentional injury, such as twisting or hitting with violence. The phrase was first used by Dr. Henry Kempe and his colleagues in a 1962 article entitled “The Battered Child Syndrome,” which appeared in the Journal of the American Medical Association. As a result of research on battered-child syndrome, the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Health, Education, and Welfare drafted a model statute requiring physicians to report serious cases of suspected child abuse. See CHILD-ABUSE AND -NEGLECT REPORTING STATUTE. [Cases: Criminal Law 474.4(4).]

BATTERED-PERSON SYNDROME

battered-person syndrome.See BATTERED-WOMAN SYNDROME.

BATTERED-SPOUSE SYNDROME

battered-spouse syndrome.See BATTERED-WOMAN SYNDROME.

BATTERED-WIFE SYNDROME

battered-wife syndrome.See BATTERED-WOMAN SYNDROME.

BATTERED WOMAN

battered woman.Family law. A woman who is the victim of domestic violence; a woman who has suffered physical, emotional, or sexual abuse at the hands of a spouse or partner. See domestic violence under VIOLENCE.

BATTERED-WOMAN SYNDROME

battered-woman syndrome.Family law. A constellation of medical and psychological conditions of a woman who has suffered physical, sexual, or emotional abuse at the hands of a spouse or lover. • Battered-woman syndrome was first described in the early 1970s by Dr. Lenore Walker. It consists of a three-stage cycle of violence: (1) the tension-building stage, which may include verbal and mild physical abuse; (2) the acute battering stage, which includes stronger verbal abuse, increased physical violence, and perhaps rape or other sexual abuse; and (3) the loving-contrition stage, which includes the abuser's apologies, attentiveness, kindness, and gift-giving. This syndrome is sometimes proposed as a defense to justify or mitigate a woman's killing of a man. — Sometimes (more specif.) termed battered-wife syndrome; (more broadly) battered-spouse syndrome; (broadly) battered-person syndrome. [Cases: Criminal Law 474.4(3).]

BATTERY

battery,n.1.Criminal law. The use of force against another, resulting in harmful or offensive contact. — Also termed criminal battery. [Cases: Assault and Battery 48. C.J.S. Assault and Battery §§ 2–3, 62, 64–66, 81.]

“Criminal battery, sometimes defined briefly as the unlawful application of force to the person of another, may be divided into its three basic elements: (1) the defendant's conduct (act or omission); (2) his ‘mental state,’ which may be an intent to kill or injure, or criminal negligence, or perhaps the doing of an unlawful act; and (3) the harmful result to the victim, which may be either a bodily injury or an offensive touching.” Wayne R. LaFave & Austin W. Scott Jr., Criminal Law § 7.15, at 685 (2d ed. 1986).

aggravated battery.A criminal battery accompanied by circumstances that make it more severe, such as the use of a deadly weapon or the fact that the battery resulted in serious bodily harm. • In most state statutes, aggravated battery is classified as both a misdemeanor and a felony. [Cases: Assault and Battery 54. C.J.S. Assault and Battery §§ 72–74, 80–81.]

sexual battery.The forced penetration of or contact with another's sexual organs or the perpetrator's sexual organs. Cf. RAPE. • In most state statutes, sexual battery is classified as both a misdemeanor and a felony. [Cases: Rape 1. C.J.S. Rape §§ 1–3, 15.]

simple battery.A criminal battery not accompanied by aggravating circumstances and not resulting in serious bodily harm. • Simple battery is usu. a misdemeanor but may rise to a felony if the victim is, for instance, a child or a senior citizen. [Cases: Assault and Battery 48. C.J.S. Assault and Battery §§ 2–3, 62, 64–66, 81.]

2.Torts. An intentional and offensive touching of another without lawful justification. — Also termed tortious battery. [Cases: Assault and Battery 2. C.J.S. Assault and Battery §§ 2–4, 6–8.]

Cf. ASSAULT. — batter,vb.“A battery is the actual application of force to the body of the prosecutor. It is, in other words, the assault brought to completion. Thus, if a man strikes at another with his cane and misses him, it is an assault; if he hits him, it is a battery. But the slightest degree of force is sufficient, provided that it be applied in a hostile manner; as by pushing a man or spitting in his face. Touching a man to attract his attention to some particular matter, or a friendly slap on the back is not battery, owing to the lack of hostile intention.” 4 Stephen's Commentaries on the Laws of England 62–63 (L. Crispin Warmington ed., 21st ed. 1950).

BATTLE OF THE FORMS

battle of the forms.The conflict between the terms of standard forms exchanged between a buyer and a seller during contract negotiations. • In its original version, UCC § 2-207 attempted to resolve battles of the forms by abandoning the common-law requirement of mirror-image acceptance and providing that a definite expression of acceptance may create a contract for the sale of goods even though it contains different or additional terms. — Also termed UCC battle of the forms. See MIRROR-IMAGE RULE. [Cases: Sales 22(4), 23(4). C.J.S. Sales §§ 38–40, 223.]

“The rules of offer and acceptance are difficult to apply in certain circumstances known as the ‘battle of the forms’ where parties want to enter into a contract, but jockey for position in an attempt to use the rules of law so as to ensure that the contract is on terms of their choosing.” P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 54 (3d ed. 1981).

BATTURE

batture (b<<schwa>>-tyooror ba-toor). [French] Soil, stone, or other material that builds under water and may or may not break the surface. • If batture builds against a bank and breaks the surface, it becomes alluvion. See ALLUVION(2). [Cases: Navigable Waters 44(6); Waters and Water Courses 93. C.J.S. Waters §§ 177–182, 184–185.]

BAUMES LAW

Baumes Law.A statute that provides for stricter criminal prosecution and penalties up to life imprisonment for an offender who has four convictions for felonies or certain misdemeanors. • The first Baumes Law, named for New York state Senator Caleb H. Baumes, was passed by the New York legislature in 1926. Cf. THREE-STRIKES LAW.

BAWD

bawd.Archaic. A person, usu. a woman, who solicits customers for a prostitute; a madam. See DISORDERLY HOUSE(2). Cf. PIMP. [Cases: Prostitution 1.C.J.S. Prostitution and Related Offenses §§ 2–4, 8–13, 17, 21–24.]

BAWDY HOUSE

bawdy house.See DISORDERLY HOUSE(2).

BAY

bay.Int'l law. An inlet of the sea, over which the coastal country exercises jurisdiction to enforce its environmental, immigration, and customs laws. [Cases: International Law 5. C.J.S. International Law §§ 14–20.]

historic bay.A bay that, because of its shape, would not be considered a bay subject to the coastal country's jurisdiction, except for that country's long-standing unilateral claim over it; a bay over which the coastal country has traditionally asserted and maintained dominion.

BAYH–DOLE ACT

Bayh–Dole Act.Patents. A federal statute that permits the U.S. Government to take title to or require licensing of nongovernmental inventions made by small businesses and nonprofit organizations while participating in federally funded programs. • Under the Act, an entity funded by the federal government must timely disclose any invention made in the course of a federally funded program. The entity may elect to retain title and to file and prosecute a patent application covering the invention. If the entity retains title to the invention, the government may still “march in” to force the entity to grant exclusive or nonexclusive licenses in appropriate circumstances. The Act is codified in 35 USCA §§ 200–212. — Also termed Patent and Trademark Law Amendments Act. See MARCH-IN RIGHTS.

beneficiary (ben-<<schwa>>-fish-ee-er-ee or ben-<<schwa>>-fish-<<schwa>>-ree), n.1. A person for whose benefit property is held in trust; esp., one designated to benefit from an appointment, disposition, or assignment (as in a will, insurance policy, etc.), or to receive something as a result of a legal arrangement or instrument. 2. A person to whom another is in a fiduciary relation, whether the relation is one of agency, guardianship, or trust. 3. A person who is initially entitled to enforce a promise, whether that person is the promisee or a third party. — beneficiary, adj.

contingent beneficiary. 1. A person designated by the testator to receive a gift if the primary beneficiary is unable or unwilling to take the gift. — Also termed contingency beneficiary. 2. A person designated in a life-insurance policy to receive the proceeds if the primary beneficiary is unable to do so. — Also termed secondary beneficiary. [Cases: Insurance 3483, 3485. C.J.S. Insurance § 1428.]

creditor beneficiary. A third-party beneficiary of a contract who is owed a debt that is to be satisfied by another party's performance under the contract. [Cases: Contracts 187(1). C.J.S. Contracts § 602.]

direct beneficiary. See intended beneficiary.

donee beneficiary. A third-party beneficiary who is intended to receive the benefit of the contract's performance as a gift from the promisee.

expectant beneficiary. See expectant distributee under DISTRIBUTE.

favored beneficiary. A beneficiary of a will who receives disproportionate amounts of the testator's property as compared with others having equal claims to the property, raising the specter of the beneficiary's undue influence over the testator. See UNDUE INFLUENCE. [Cases: Wills 164–166. C.J.S. Wills §§ 367–375.]

incidental beneficiary. 1. A third-party beneficiary who is not intended to benefit from a contract and thus does not acquire rights under the contract. Cf. intended beneficiary. [Cases: Contracts 187(1). C.J.S. Contracts § 602.] 2. A person to whom a settlor of a trust does not manifest an intention to give a beneficial interest but who may benefit from the trust's performance.

income beneficiary. A person entitled to income from property; esp., a person entitled to receive trust income. [Cases: Trusts 273. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion §§ 542–550.]

intended beneficiary. A third-party beneficiary who is intended to benefit from a contract and thus acquires rights under the contract as well as the ability to enforce the contract once those rights have vested. — Also termed direct beneficiary. Cf. incidental beneficiary. [Cases: Contracts 187(1). C.J.S. Contracts § 602.]

life beneficiary. One who receives payments or other benefits from a trust for life. [Cases: Trusts 140. C.J.S. Trover and Conversion §§ 254–257.]

primary beneficiary. The person designated in a life-insurance policy to receive the proceeds when the insured dies.

secondary beneficiary. See contingent beneficiary (2).

third-party beneficiary. A person who, though not a party to a contract, stands to benefit from the contract's performance. • For example, if Ann and Bob agree to a contract under which Bob will render some performance to Chris, then Chris is a third-party beneficiary. [Cases: Contracts 187(1). C.J.S. Contracts § 602.]

unborn beneficiary. A person who, though not yet born, is named in a general way as sharing in an estate or gift. • An example might be a grandchild not yet born when a grandparent specifies, in a will, that Blackacre is to go to “my grandchildren.”

BENEFICIARY HEIR

BENEFICIO PRIMO ECCLESIASTICO HABENDO

beneficio primo ecclesiastico habendo (ben-<<schwa>>-fish-ee-oh pry-moh <<schwa>>-klee-z[h]ee-as-t*<<schwa>>-koh h<<schwa>>*-ben-doh). [Latin “having the first ecclesiastical benefice”] Hist. A writ from the king to the lord chancellor ordering the appointment of a named person to the first vacant benefice.

BENEFICIUM

beneficium (ben-<<schwa>>-fish-ee-*<<schwa>>*m), n. [Latin “benefit”] 1. Roman law. A privilege, remedy, or benefit granted by law, such as the beneficium abstinenti (“privilege of abstaining”), by which an heir could refuse to accept an inheritance (and thereby avoid the accompanying debt). 2. Hist. A lease, generally for life, given by a ruler or lord to a freeman. • Beneficium in this sense arose on the continent among the German tribes after the collapse of the Roman Empire.

“All those to whom the Frankish king had given land and to whom the Frankish emperor had granted political authority had received it on certain conditions. They were the recipients of royal favor — a beneficium. Their holding came to be so styled.” Max Radin, Handbook of Anglo-American Legal History 126 (1936).

3. Hist. English law. An estate in land granted by the king or a lord in exchange for services. • Originally, a beneficium could not be passed to the holder's heirs, in contrast to feuds, which were heritable from an early date. Tenants, however, persisted in attempting to pass the property to their heirs, and over time the beneficium became a heritable estate. As this process occurred, the meaning of beneficium narrowed to a holding of an ecclesiastical nature. See BENEFICE(1).“Beneficia were formerly Portions of Land, etc. given by Lords to their Followers for their Maintenance; but afterwards as these Tenures became Perpetual and Hereditary, they left their Name of Beneficia to the Livings of the Clergy, and retained to themselves the Name of Feuds. And Beneficium was an estate in land at first granted for Life only, so called, because it was held ex mero Beneficio of the Donor ... [b]ut at Length, by the Consent of the Donor, or his Heirs, they were continued for the Lives of the Sons of the Possessors, and by Degrees past into an Inheritance....” Giles Jacob, A New Law-Dictionary (8th ed. 1762).

“In England from almost, if not quite, the earliest moment of its appearance, the word feodum seems not merely to imply, but to denote, a heritable, though a dependent right. But if on the continent we trace back the use of this word, we find it becoming interchangeable with beneficium, and if we go back further we find beneficium interchangeable with precarium. A tenancy at will has, we may say, become a tenancy in fee.... The Norman conquest of England occurs at a particular moment in the history of this process. It has already gone far; the words feum, feudum, feodum are fast supplanting beneficium....” 1 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 67–68 (2d ed. 1898).

4.Hist. Eccles. law. A feudal tenure for life in church-owned land, esp. land held by a layperson. • Over time, this sense of beneficium faded, and it came to be restricted to that of an ecclesiastical living, i.e., a benefice.“The pope became a feudal lord; and all ordinary patrons were to hold their right of patronage under this universal superior. Estates held by feudal tenure, being originally gratuitous donations, were at that time denominated beneficia: their very name as well as constitution was borrowed, and the care of the souls of a parish thence came to be denominated a benefice.” 4 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 106 (1769).

5.Hist. A benefit or favor; any particular privilege, such as benefit of clergy (beneficium clericale).6.BENEFICE(3). — Also termed (in senses 3–6) benefice.

BENEFICIUM ABSTINENDI

beneficium abstinendi (ben-⟨schwa⟩-fish-ee-⟨schwa⟩m ab-sti-nen-dī). [Latin “privilege of abstaining”] Roman law. The right of an heir to refuse an inheritance and thus avoid liability for the testator's debts.

“[T]hese heirs came also to be protected by the praetor, viz. by the jus or beneficium abstinendi. Provided they took care not to act as heir in any kind of way, then, whether they formally demanded the privilege or not, their own property could not be made liable for their ancestor's debts.” R.W. Leage, Roman Private Law 220 (C.H. Ziegler ed., 2d ed. 1930).

BENEFICIUM CEDENDARUM ACTIONUM

beneficium cedendarum actionum (ben-⟨schwa⟩-fish-ee-⟨schwa⟩m see-den-day-r-⟨schwa⟩m ak-shee-oh-n-⟨schwa⟩m). [Latin “privilege of having actions made over”] Roman & Scots law. The right of a cosurety who might or might not have paid the debt to compel the creditor to give over the right of action against the debtor and the other cosuretaries. • Under Scots law, a cosurety's (or cocautitioner's) right of action against the nonpaying cosurety arises on payment, without the necessity of compelling the creditor to assign the action. But in Roman law, the right of action arose before the paying of the debt.

BENEFICIUM COMPETENTIAE

beneficium                      competentiae                      (ben-⟨schwa⟩-fish-ee-⟨schwa⟩m kom-p⟨schwa⟩-ten-shi-ee). [Latin “privilege of competency”] Roman & Scots law. A debtor's right to be ordered to pay only as much as the debtor reasonably could, so that after assigning his or her estate to creditors, the debtor kept enough to live on. See assignment for the benefit of creditors under ASSIGNMENT; SALVO BENEFICIO COMPETENTIAE.

BENEFICIUM DIVISIONIS

beneficium      divisionis      (ben-⟨schwa⟩-fish-ee-⟨schwa⟩m di-vizh-ee-oh-nis). See BENEFIT OF DIVISION.

BENEFICIUM INVENTARII

beneficium      inventarii      (ben-⟨schwa⟩-fish-ee-⟨schwa⟩m in-ven-tay-ree-Ior in-ven-tair-ee-I). [Latin “with the benefit of inventory”] Roman law. The right of an heir to take an inventory within a set time before deciding whether to accept an inheritance. • An heir could provisionally take the succession and disclaim responsibility for debts beyond the estate's value until the inventory was completed and the inheritance accepted or rejected. This right was introduced by Justinian. — Also termed cum beneficio inventarii (k⟨schwa⟩m ben-⟨schwa⟩-fish-ee-oh in-ven-tair-ee-I).

BENEFICIUM ORDINIS

beneficium      ordinis      (ben-⟨schwa⟩-fish-ee-⟨schwa⟩m or-d⟨schwa⟩-nis). [Latin “privilege of order”] Roman & Scots law. A surety's right to require a creditor to seek payment from the principal debtor before seeking payment from the surety. See BENEFIT OF DISCUSSION.

“Beneficium Ordinis... by the civil law and our own, a cautioner, simply bound as such, is entitled to insist that the principal be first discussed by extreme diligence.” Hugh Barclay, A Digest of the Law of Scotland 76 (3d ed. 1865).

BENEFICIUM SEPARATIONIS

beneficium                      separationis                      (ben-⟨schwa⟩-fish-ee-⟨schwa⟩m sep-⟨schwa⟩-ray-shee-oh-nis). [Latin “privilege of separation”] Roman law. The right of a creditor of the deceased to have the property of the deceased separated from an heir's property. • This separation protected the creditors by ensuring that the deceased's property was not used to pay the heir's creditors. — Also termed separatio bonorum.

BENEFIT

benefit, n. 1. Advantage; privilege <the benefit of owning a car>. 2. Profit or gain; esp., the consideration that moves to the promisee . — Also termed legal benefit of an earlier filing date.Patents & trademarks. For a patent or trademark applicant, the advantage of being assigned the filing date of a related, earlier-filed application. • Under 35 USCA § 119: (1) a U.S. patent application is given the filing date of an earlier foreign application filed in accordance with the Paris Convention as long as the U.S. filing occurs not more than one year after the foreign filing; and (2) a continuing application filed in accordance with 35 USCA § 120 is given the filing date of an earlier-filed U.S. application. Similarly, under 15 USCA § 1126(d), a U.S. trademark applicant receives the filing date of an earlier-filed foreign application if: (1) the foreign application was filed in a Paris Convention country; and (2) the U.S. application is filed within six months after the foreign application. — Also termed benefit of priority filing date; claim of priority. [Cases: Patents 110. C.J.S. Patents § 156.]

BENEFIT OF AN EARLIER FILING DATE

BENEFIT-OF-BARGAIN RULE

benefit-of-bargain rule. See BENEFIT-OF-THE-BARGAIN RULE.

BENEFIT OF CESSION

benefit of cession. Civil law. A debtor's immunity from imprisonment for debt. • The immunity arises when the debtor's property is assigned to the debtor's creditors. See CESSIO BONORUM.

BENEFIT OF CLERGY

benefit of clergy. 1. At common law, the privilege of a cleric not to be tried for a felony in the King's Court <in the Middle Ages, any man who could recite the "neck verse" was granted the benefit of clergy>. • Although clergy includes monks and nuns as well as priests, there are no known cases of women claiming or being granted benefit of clergy. Congress outlawed benefit of clergy in federal courts in April 1790. It was abolished in England in 1827 but survived even longer in some American states, such as South Carolina, where it was successfully claimed in 1855. State v. Bosse, 42 S.C.L. (3 Rich.) 276 (1855). — Also termed clergy privilege; clericale privilegium. See NECK VERSE.

“Benefit of clergy was a remarkable privilege which, although now obsolete, was for centuries of great importance in criminal law. Some knowledge of it is even now essential for a proper understanding of common law crimes. After William the Conqueror separated the ecclesiastical from the secular courts, the clergy put forward the claim that all persons in holy orders should be exempt from secular jurisdiction in all proceedings, civil or criminal. Eventually the rule was established that ‘clerks’ of all kinds, who committed any of the serious crimes termed felonies, could be tried only in an ecclesiastical court, and therefore were only amenable to such punishments as that court could inflict. Any clerk accused of such crime was accordingly passed over to the bishop's court. He was there tried before a jury of clerks by the oaths of twelve compurgators; a mode of trial which usually ensured him an acquittal.” J.W. Cecil Turner, Kenny's Outlines of Criminal Law 75 (16th ed. 1952).

“ ‘Benefit of clergy,’ in its origin, was the right of a clergyman not to be tried for felony in the King's Court. In ancient times, when the Church was at the peak point of its power, it preempted jurisdiction over felony charges against clergymen. It demanded that in any case in which a clergyman was charged with felony, the case be transferred to the Ecclesiastical Court for trial. The benefit was extreme because conviction of felony in the King's Court resulted in the sentence of death, whereas the Ecclesiastical Court did not make use of capital punishment.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 4 (3d ed. 1982).

2. Religious approval as solemnized by church ritual <the couple had several children without benefit of clergy>. • This common use of the phrase is premised on a misunderstanding of its original meaning (sense 1).

BENEFIT OF COUNSEL

benefit of counsel. See RIGHT TO COUNSEL(1).

BENEFIT OF DISCUSSION

benefit of discussion. Civil law. A guarantor's right to require a creditor to seek payment from the principal debtor before seeking payment from the guarantor. — Also termed (in French law) bénéfice de discussion; (in Scots law) right of discussion. [Cases: Guaranty 42(1), 45, 77(2).]

“Benefit of Discussion. By common law a cautioner, bound simply as such, had right to insist that the creditor should discuss the principal debtor, that is, exhaust his estate by diligence, before coming upon him for payment of the debt.” William K. Morton & Dale A. Whitman, Manual of the Law of Scotland 299 (1896).

BENEFIT OF DIVISION

benefit of division. Civil law. A surety's right to be sued only for a part of the debt proportionate to the number of solvent cosureties. — Also termed (in Roman law) beneficium divisionis; (in French law) bénéfice de division; (in Scots law) right of division. [Cases: Principal and Surety 66, 168, 169. C.J.S. Principal and Surety §§ 72, 218–219.]

BENEFIT OF INVENTORY

benefit of inventory. Civil law. The principle that an heir's liability for estate debts is limited to the value of what is inherited, if the heir so elects and files an inventory of the estate's assets. — Also termed bénéfice d'inventaire. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 119. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 112, 114, 123.]

BENEFIT OF PRIORITY FILING DATE

BENEFIT-OF-THE-BARGAIN RULE

benefit-of-the-bargain rule. 1. The principle that a party who breaches a contract must pay the aggrieved party an amount that puts that person in the same financial position that would have resulted if the contract had been fully performed. [Cases: Damages 117.] 2. The principle that a defrauded buyer may recover from the seller as damages the difference between the value of the property as represented and the actual value received. — Also termed benefit-of-bargain rule. Cf. OUT-OF-POCKET RULE. [Cases: Fraud 59(2).]

BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION

benevolent association. See ASSOCIATION.

BENEVOLENTIA REGIS HABENDA

benevolentia regis habenda (ben-<<schwa>>-v*<<schwa>>-len-shee-<<schwa>>* ree-jis)

h<<schwa>>-ben-d<<schwa>>). [Latin “the king's benevolence to be had”] Hist. A fine paid to receive the king's pardon and a restoration of place, title, or estate.

BENEVOLENT SOCIETY

benevolent society. See benevolent association under ASSOCIATION.

BENTHAMISM

Benthamism. See hedonistic utilitarianism under UTILITARIANISM.

BENTHAMITE

Benthamite, adj. Of or relating to the utilitarian theory of Jeremy Bentham. See hedonistic utilitarianism under UTILITARIANISM.

BEP

BEP. abbr. BUREAU OF ENGRAVING AND PRINTING.

BEQUEATH

bequeath (bi-kweeth), vb. 1. To give property (usu. personal property) by will. [Cases: Wills 1. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1, 3, 174.] 2. Hist. To assign or transfer real or personal property by formal declaration, either inter vivos or after death.

BEQUEATHAL

bequeathal. See BEQUEST.

BEQUEST

bequest (bi-kwest), n. 1. The act of giving property (usu. personal property) by will. [Cases: Wills 1. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1, 3, 174.] 2. Property (usu. personal property other than money) disposed of in a will. — Also termed bequeathal (bi-kwee-th<<schwa>>l). Cf. DEVISE; LEGACY.

charitable bequest. A bequest given to a philanthropic organization. See CHARITABLE ORGANIZATION. [Cases: Charities 4. C.J.S. Charities §§ 3–4.]

conditional bequest. A bequest whose effectiveness or continuation depends on the occurrence or nonoccurrence of a particular event. • An example might be a testator's gift of “the income from the farm to my daughter, Betty, until she remarries.” If a condition prohibits certain legal conduct, such as using tobacco or growing a beard, it is sometimes termed a reformation condition or character-improvement condition. [Cases: Wills 639–668. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1380–1424.]

demonstrative bequest. A bequest that, by its terms, must be paid out of a specific source, such as a stock fund. [Cases: Wills 755. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1664, 1667–1677, 1679–1683.]

executory bequest. A bequest of a future, deferred, or contingent interest in personal property. [Cases: Wills 625. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1314–1317, 1319.]

general bequest. 1. A bequest of a general benefit, rather than a particular asset, such as a gift of money or a gift of all the testator's stocks. 2. A bequest payable out of the general assets of the estate. [Cases: Wills 756. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1663, 1667–1677, 1679–1683.]

monetary bequest. See pecuniary bequest.

money bequest. See pecuniary bequest.

pecuniary bequest. A testamentary gift of money; a legacy. — Also termed monetary bequest; money bequest. [Cases: Wills 566, 567. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1141, 1143–1147.]

remainder bequest. See residuary bequest.

residuary bequest. A bequest of the remainder of the testator's estate, after the payment of the debts, legacies, and specific bequests. — Also termed remainder bequest. [Cases: Wills 586. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1176–1179, 1184.]

specific bequest. A bequest of a specific or unique item of property, such as any real estate or a particular piece of furniture. [Cases: Wills 753. C.J.S. Wills §§ 1662, 1667–1677, 1679–1683.]

BERLIN ACT

Berlin Act. Copyright. A 1908 revision of the Berne Convention prohibiting formalities as a requirement for copyright protection, recommending (but not requiring) a term of protection equal to the life of the author plus 50 years, and expanding the types of works eligible for copyright protection. • Motion pictures were included in copyright protection for the first time. — Also termed Berlin Act of 1908; 1908 Berlin Act.

BERNE ADDITIONAL PROTOCOL

Berne Additional Protocol. Copyright. A 1914 amendment to the Berne Convention providing for reprisals against a foreign national who publishes simultaneously in both a member nation and the author's own nonmember and nonreciprocating country. • The reprisal was aimed at the United States, which until 1989 refused to join the Berne Convention but whose citizens could enjoy Berne protection by first publishing in a member nation. See BACK DOOR TO BERNE .

BERNE CONVENTION

Berne Convention. Copyright. An international copyright treaty providing that works created by citizens of one signatory nation will be fully protected in other signatory nations, without the need for local formalities. • The treaty was drafted in Berne in 1886 and revised in Berlin in 1908. It is now administered by the World Intellectual Property Organization and prescribes minimum levels and terms of copyright protection. The United States ratified the Berne Convention in 1989 and changed several aspects of U.S. copyright law to comply with the treaty's terms. — Also termed Berne Copyright Convention; Berne Convention for the Protection of Literary and Artistic Property. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 34. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 21, 92.]

BERNE CONVENTION IMPLEMENTATION ACT

Berne Convention Implementation Act. Copyright. The 1988 federal law making the United States a signatory to the Berne Convention, 102 years after the convention was first opened for signatures. • The law ended rigid formalities for registration and marking, although registration is still required before U.S.-copyright owners can sue for infringement. Pub. L. No. 100-568, 102 Stat. 2853. — Abbr. BCIA.

BERNE COPYRIGHT CONVENTION

Berne Copyright Convention. See BERNE CONVENTION.

BERNE-MINUS

Berne-minus, adj. Copyright. Of or relating to the second sentence of Art. 9(1) of the TRIPs Agreement, which provides that intellectual-property rights and duties under the Berne Convention will not be expressly enforced on noncomplying signatories through the TRIPs Agreement. U.S. reluctance to expressly protect moral rights of authors and artists has been criticized as a “Berne-minus” attitude.

BERNE PARIS ACT

Berne Paris Act. Copyright. A 1971 revision of the Berne Convention reducing the obligations of nations that became members as colonies of signatories. — Also termed 1971 Paris Act of the Berne Convention.

BERNE-PLUS

Berne-plus, adj. Copyright. Of or relating to a copyright-treaty provision that affords greater intellectual-property protection than the minimum required by the Berne Convention, either by granting stronger rights or by extending protection to new forms of subject matter. • The term arose during negotiations over the TRIPs Agreement, reflecting the principle that the treaty should incorporate and build on existing international law. The WIPO treaties are said to be “Berne-plus” treaties because they incorporate Berne protections and add additional protections of their own.

BERNE SAFEGUARD CLAUSE

Berne Safeguard Clause. Copyright. A provision in the Universal Copyright Convention barring protection in Berne Union countries for the works of any country that withdraws from the Berne Union after January 1, 1951. • The purpose of the clause was to prevent countries from withdrawing from the Berne Union in favor of the more relaxed copyright-protection standards of the Convention. The clause was amended in 1971 to give developing countries the right to opt out of its mandate.

BERNE UNION

Berne Union. Copyright. The treaty alliance of Berne Convention member nations.

BERRY RULE

Berry rule. The doctrine that a defendant seeking a new trial on grounds of newly discovered evidence must show that (1) the evidence is newly discovered and was unknown to the defendant at the time of trial; (2) the evidence is material rather than merely cumulative or impeaching; (3) the evidence will probably produce an acquittal; and (4) the failure to learn of the evidence was not due to the defendant's lack of diligence. Berry v. State, 10 Ga. 511 (1851). [Cases: Criminal Law 938(1). C.J.S. Criminal Law § 1447.]

BERTILLON SYSTEM

Bertillon system (b<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>-lon or bair-tee-yawn). A system of anthropometry once used to identify criminals by measuring and describing them. • The Bertillon system is named for Alphonse Bertillon, the French anthropologist who developed the technique early in the 20th century. It has been largely replaced by fingerprinting. Cf. ANTHROPOMETRY.

“The system of identification known as the Bertillon system is worked out on the assumption that an individual's physical measurements are constant after maturity is attained. Such measurements include height, span of arms, sitting height, length of head, width of right ear, length of left foot, length of left middle finger, length of left little finger, and length of left forearm. The Bertillon system also records photographs (front and profile), hair and eye color, complexion, scars, tattoo marks and any asymmetrical anomalies.” Encyclopedia of Criminology 81–82 (Vernon C. Branham & Samuel B. Kutash eds., 1949), s.v. “Criminalistics.”

BES

bes (bes), n. [Latin] 1.Roman law. Two-thirds of the Roman as, or pound, consisting of 8 unciae (ounces) out of 12. See AS; UNCIA. 2.Civil law. Two-thirds of an inheritance.

BESAYEL

besayel (bes-ay-<<schwa>>l). [Law French] Hist. 1.A writ of right used by a great-grandfather's heirs to recover property held by the great-grandfather. See assize of mort d'ancestor under ASSIZE(6).2. A great-grandfather. — Also spelled besaial; besaile; bisaile; besayle. Cf. AIEL; COSINAGE.

BESLUIT

besluit (bi-sloyt), n.[Dutch “decision”] Roman–Dutch law. A legislative resolution or decree.

BESPEAKS-CAUTION DOCTRINE

bespeaks-caution doctrine.Securities. The principle that if soft information in a prospectus is accompanied by cautionary language that adequately warns investors that actual results or events may affect performance, then the soft information may not be materially misleading to investors. • Soft information includes forecasts, estimates, opinions, and projections about future performance. The doctrine was codified in the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995.

BEST BID

best bid.See BID(1).

BEST EDITION

best edition. Copyright. A particular version of a copyrighted work that is published in the U.S. before the date of deposit and that is designated by the Library of Congress, in its discretion, as the most suitable for its purposes. • Two copies of a copyrighted work, in the selected best-edition form, must be deposited with the Library. [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 50.10. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 38–39.]

BEST EFFORTS

best efforts. Diligent attempts to carry out an obligation <the contractor must use best efforts to complete its work within the stated time>. • As a standard, a best-efforts obligation is stronger than a good-faith obligation. Best efforts are measured by the measures that a reasonable person in the same circumstances and of the same nature as the acting party would take. — Also termed best endeavors. Cf. due diligence (1) under DILIGENCE; GOOD FAITH . [Cases: Contracts 189. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 341–342.]

BEST-EFFORTS CONTRACT

best-efforts contract. See CONTRACT.

BEST-EFFORTS UNDERWRITING

best-efforts underwriting. See UNDERWRITING.

BEST EMBODIMENT

best embodiment. See BEST MODE.

BEST ENDEAVORS

best endeavors. See BEST EFFORTS.

BEST EVIDENCE

best evidence. See EVIDENCE.

BEST-EVIDENCE RULE

best-evidence rule. The evidentiary rule providing that, to prove the contents of a writing (or a recording or photograph), a party must produce the original writing (or a mechanical, electronic, or other familiar duplicate, such as a photocopy) unless it is unavailable, in which case secondary evidence — the testimony of the drafter or a person who read the document — may be admitted. Fed. R. Evid. 1001–1004. — Also termed documentary-originals rule; original-writing rule; original-document rule. [Cases: Criminal Law 398–403; Evidence 157–187. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 833–845; Evidence §§ 1054–1131.]

“Down to a century or more ago, the term ‘best evidence’ was a good deal used; ‘the best evidence that the nature of the thing will afford’ was said to be required. But this loose expression never represented a concrete rule. The only positive and concrete rules of the kind are those above named. And today, though the cant phrase is sometimes invoked, and though an inference may be made against a party who fails to produce what might be better evidence, yet no court will in general exclude relevant evidence because there might be better evidence available.” John H. Wigmore, A Students' Textbook of the Law of Evidence 219 (1935).

BESTIALITY

bestiality (bes-chee-al-<<schwa>>-tee). Sexual activity between a human and an animal. • Some authorities restrict the term to copulation between a human and an animal of the opposite sex. See SODOMY. [Cases: Sodomy 1.C.J.S. Sodomy §§ 2–6.]

BEST INTERESTS OF CREDITORS

best interests of creditors. Bankruptcy. A test for confirmation of a reorganization plan whereby the court inquires into whether the plan ensures that the value of property to be distributed to each creditor is at least the amount that the creditor would receive if the debtor's estate were liquidated in a Chapter 7 case. • A court may not confirm a plan in a Chapter 9, Chapter 12, or Chapter 13 case unless it is in the best interests of the creditors. In a Chapter 11 case, a court may confirm a plan even though some creditors do not vote to accept it if the court finds that the plan is in the creditors' best interest. 11 USCA §§ 944(7), 1129(a)(7), 1225(a)(4), 1325(a)(4). — Also written best interest of creditors.

BEST INTERESTS OF THE CHILD

best interests of the child. Family law. A standard by which a court determines what arrangements would be to a child's greatest benefit, often used in deciding child-custody and visitation matters and in deciding whether to approve an adoption or a guardianship. • A court may use many factors, including the emotional tie between the child and the parent or guardian, the ability of a parent or guardian to give the child love and guidance, the ability of a parent or guardian to provide necessities, the established living arrangement between a parent or guardian and the child, the child's preference if the child is old enough that the court will consider that preference in making a custody award, and a parent's ability to foster a healthy relationship between the child and the other parent. — Abbr. BIC. — Also termed best interest of the child. Cf. PARENTAL-PREFERENCE DOCTRINE.

BEST-INTERESTS-OF-THE-CHILD DOCTRINE

best-interests-of-the-child doctrine. Family law. The principle that courts should make custody decisions based on whatever best advances the child's welfare, regardless of a claimant's particular status or relationship with the child. • One important factor entering into these decisions is the general belief that the child's best interests normally favor custody by parents, as opposed to grandparents or others less closely related. The doctrine is quite old, having been stated, for example, in the early-19th-century case of Commonwealth v. Briggs, 33 Mass. 203 (1834). — Sometimes shortened to best-interests doctrine; best-interest doctrine. See PARENTAL-PREFERENCE DOCTRINE E.

BEST MODE

best mode. Patents. The best way that the inventor knows to work the invention described and claimed in a patent or patent application. • A patent application must disclose the best mode known to the inventor at the time of the filing. Failure to disclose the best mode can render a patent invalid. 35 USCA § 112, ¶ 1. — Also termed best embodiment. Cf. ENABLEMENT REQUIREMENT. [Cases: Patents 98. C.J.S. Patents §§ 137–139.]

BEST-MODE REQUIREMENT

best-mode requirement. Patents. The requirement that a patent application show the best physical method known to the inventor for using the invention. Cf. ENABLEMENT REQUIREMENT. [Cases: Patents 98. C.J.S. Patents §§ 137–139.]

BESTOW

bestow, vb. To convey as a gift <bestow an honor on another>. — bestowal, n.

BEST USE

best use. See highest and best use under USE(1).

BET

bet, n. Something (esp. money) staked or pledged as a wager. [Cases: Gaming 1.] — bet, vb. — betting, n. — bettor, n.

layoff bet. A bet placed by a bookmaker to protect against excessive losses or to equalize the total amount placed on each side of the wager. See LAYOFF BETTOR. [Cases: Gaming 73.]

BETA-TEST AGREEMENT

beta-test agreement. Intellectual property. A software license agreement, usu. between a software developer and a customer, permitting the customer to use the software program in a “live” environment before its release to the general public. • Beta-test agreements differ from more conventional software licenses in that they typically (1) have more significant limitations on liability; (2) contain few, if any, warranties; and (3) require user evaluation and feedback. — Also termed software beta-test agreement.

BETA TESTING

beta testing. Intellectual property. The process of testing products and services, esp. software, under real-life conditions. • Consumers often engage in beta testing at no cost in exchange for reporting to the developer how satisfied they are, any problems they encounter, and any suggested improvements. To protect a trade secret or to avoid a statutory bar, the developer may require the user to sign a nondisclosure agreement. Cf. ALPHA TESTING .

BET DIN

bet din. Family law. A rabbinical tribunal empowered by Jewish law to decide and enforce matters of Jewish law and custom; esp., a tribunal consisting of three rabbis who decide questions of Jewish law.

BETROTHAL

betrothal. 1.Eccles. law. A religious ceremony confirming an agreement to marry. • Historically, a betrothal was performed months or years before the parties wedded. It was in theory as legally binding as a marriage and created an impediment to marriage with any other person, but not an insurmountable impediment. In modern form, the betrothal is usu. part of the marriage ceremony. — Also termed betrothment. See ENGAGEMENT(2). Cf. precontract under CONTRACT; ESPOUSALS. 2.Slang. A corporate merger agreement.

BETROTHMENT

betrothment. See BETROTHAL(1).

BETTERMENT

betterment. 1. An improvement that increases the value of real property; esp., an enhancement in the nature of an alteration or addition that goes beyond repair or restoration to a former condition. [Cases: Improvements 1.C.J.S. Improvements §§ 2, 4.] 2. An improvement of a highway, railroad, or building that goes beyond repair or restoration. 3. An increase in value, esp. real-estate value, attributable to improvements. See IMPROVEMENT.

BETTERMENT ACT

betterment act.A statute requiring a landowner to compensate an occupant who improves the land under a mistaken belief that the occupant is the real owner. • The compensation usu. equals the increase in the land's value generated by the improvements. — Also termed occupying-claimant act; occupant statute. [Cases: Improvements 4. C.J.S. Improvements § 5.]

BETTERMENT TAX

betterment tax.A tax for the improvement of highways.

BETTING

betting. See PARIMUTUEL BETTING.

BEYOND A REASONABLE DOUBT

beyond a reasonable doubt.See REASONABLE DOUBT.

BEYOND SEAS

beyond seas.Hist. 1.(Of a person) being absent from a jurisdiction or nation; out of the country, esp. across the ocean. • This term was used when a person could not be served with a summons, notice, etc. because the person was absent from the jurisdiction. Some jurisdictions toll the statute of limitations during a defendant's absence. 2. Out of state. • Although originally beyond seas meant “out of the country,” the U.S. Supreme Court declared that the term includes absence from a state. Murray's Lessee v. Baker, 16 U.S. 541, 545 (1818). — Also termed beyond sea; beyond the seas; ultra mare.

“[I]t has been provided that if any person or persons against whom there shall be any cause of action shall at the time of its accrual be beyond seas, then the person or persons entitled to any such cause of action shall be at liberty to bring the same against such person or persons within such time as before limited, after his or their return from beyond seas." John Indermaur, Principles of the Common Law 240 (Edmund H. Bennett ed., 1st Am. ed. 1878).

actual bias.Genuine prejudice that a judge, juror, witness, or other person has against some person or relevant subject. Cf. implied bias.

implied bias.Prejudice that is inferred from the experiences or relationships of a judge, juror, witness, or other person. — Also termed presumed bias. Cf. actual bias.

judicial bias.A judge's bias toward one or more of the parties to a case over which the judge presides. • Judicial bias is usu. insufficient to justify disqualifying a judge from presiding over a case. To justify disqualification or recusal, the judge's bias usu. must be personal or based on some extrajudicial reason. [Cases: Judges 49. C.J.S. Judges § 108.]

BIC

BIC.abbr.BEST INTERESTS OF THE CHILD.

BICAMERAL

bicameral,adj. (Of a legislature) having two legislative houses (usu. called the House of Representatives, or the Assembly, and the Senate). • The federal government and all states except Nebraska have bicameral legislatures. [Cases: States 26. C.J.S. States § 40.] — bicameralism,n.

BICAMERAL CLAUSE

Bicameral Clause.The constitutional provision that creates the two legislative chambers of Congress. See U.S. Const. art. I, § 1.

BID

bid,n.1. A buyer's offer to pay a specified price for something that may or may not be for sale  .

best bid.The highest auction bid; in the letting of a contract, the lowest bid by a qualified bidder. [Cases: Auctions and Auctioneers 7. C.J.S. Auctions and Auctioneers §§ 2, 8–17.]

bid in.A bid made by the owner of auctioned property to ensure that the property is not sold below actual value. [Cases: Auctions and Auctioneers 7. C.J.S. Auctions and Auctioneers §§ 2, 8–17.]

bid off.To purchase by bid at auction or judicial sale. [Cases: Auctions and Auctioneers 7. C.J.S. Auctions and Auctioneers §§ 2, 8–17.]

upset bid.A bid in a judicial sale made for more than the purchaser's bid so that the sale will be set aside (i.e., upset). [Cases: Judicial Sales 19.]

2. A submitted price at which one will perform work or supply goods <the subcontractor's bid>. See BID-SHOPPING. — bid,vb. — bidder,n.

competitive bid.A bid submitted in response to public notice of an intended sale or purchase.

firm bid.A bid that, by its terms, remains open and binding until accepted or rejected. • A firm bid commonly contains no unusual conditions that might defeat acceptance.

open bid.A bid that the bidder may alter after submission so as to meet competing bids.

sealed bid.A bid that is not disclosed until all submitted bids are opened and considered simultaneously.

BID AND ASKED

bid and asked.Securities. A notation describing the range of prices quoted for securities in an over-the-counter stock exchange. • Bid denotes the buying price, and asked denotes the selling price. See SPREAD(2). [Cases: Exchanges 13. C.J.S. Exchanges §§ 2, 18.]

BID BOND

bid bond.See BOND(2).

BIDDING UP

bidding up.The act or practice of raising the price for an auction item by making a series of progressively higher bids. • Bidding up is unlawful if the bids are made collusively by persons with an interest in raising the bids. Cf. BY-BIDDING; SHILLING(1). [Cases: Auctions and Auctioneers 7.C.J.S. Auctions and Auctioneers §§ 2, 8–17.]

bid peddling. See BID-SHOPPING.

BID PRICE

bid price. See PRICE.

BID QUOTE

bid quote. Securities. The price a broker will pay for a security or commodity.

BID-SHOPPING

bid-shopping. A general contractor's effort — after being awarded a contract — to reduce its own costs by finding a subcontractor that will submit a lower bid than the one used in calculating the total contract price. • If a lower bid is obtained, the general contractor will receive a windfall profit because the savings are usu. not passed on to the property owner. The subcontractor whose bid is used in the initial proposal can seek to avoid bid-shopping by insisting that it be irrevocably named in the contract as the project's subcontractor.

BID WANTED

bid wanted. Securities. A dealer's notation that bids are being sought from anyone on a security for sale. • The notation appears in the pink sheets. — Abbr. BW. See PINK SHEET.

BIENNIAL SESSION

biennial session. See SESSION(1).

BIENNIUM

biennium (bI-en-ee-<<schwa>>m). 1. A two-year period. 2. The period for which many state legislatures make appropriations. [Cases: States 131.C.J.S. States §§ 234–239.]

bigamus (big-<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s), n. Hist. 1. One who commits bigamy; a bigamist. 2. A man who marries a widow, or who remarries. • Under ecclesiastical law, a bigamus could be denied benefit of clergy.

BIGAMY

bigamy, n. 1. The act of marrying one person while legally married to another. • Bigamy is distinct from adultery. It is a criminal offense if it is committed knowingly. In 1878, the U.S. Supreme Court held that the government was not constitutionally prohibited from banning Mormon polygamy. Reynolds v. United States, 98 U.S. (8 Otto) 145 (1878). [Cases: Bigamy 1. C.J.S. Bigamy §§ 2–6, 8.] 2. Eccles. law. The act of marrying a widow or widower, or a divorced person. • Sense 2 is valid even under modern ecclesiastical law, but it is not an offense, only a bar to entering holy orders. — Also termed sequential marriage. Cf. POLYGAMY; MONOGAMY; ADULTERY. — bigamist, n.

BIG BATH

big bath. Slang. A write-off of significant costs, taken to shed an unprofitable business line or to remove the necessity for future write-offs.

BIG BOARD

BILL

bill,n.1. A formal written complaint, such as a court paper requesting some specific action for reasons alleged. 2. An equitable pleading by which a claimant brings a claim in a court of equity. • Before the merger of law and equity, the bill in equity was analogous to a declaration in law. The nine parts of every equitable bill are (1) the address to the person holding the great seal, (2) the introduction, which identifies the parties, (3) the premises, which state the plaintiff's case, (4) the confederating part, in which the defendants are charged with combination, (5) the charging part, in which the plaintiff may try to overcome defenses that the defendants may allege, (6) the jurisdictional clause, showing that the court has jurisdiction, (7) the interrogating part, inserted to try to compel a full and complete answer, (8) the prayer for relief, and (9) the prayer for process to compel the defendants to appear and answer. — Also termed bill in equity. See DECLARATION(7). — Also termed bill in chancery; bill of chancery; bill of equity; bill for foreclosure. [Cases: Equity 128–153.]

“The statement of the plaintiff’s cause of action in equity is called the bill. To this bill the defendant (unless he could protect himself by a demurrer or a plea) was obliged to put in an answer under oath.” George Tucker Bispham, The Principles of Equity: A Treatise on the System of Justice Administered in Courts of Chancery § 9, at 12 (11th ed. 1931).

bill for a new trial. A bill in equity to enjoin a judgment and to obtain a new trial because of some fact that would render enforcement of the judgment inequitable. • The fact must have been either unavailable or unknown to the party at trial through fraud or accident. Cf. MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL. [Cases: Fraudulent Conveyances 258; New Trial 124(1). C.J.S. New Trial §§ 147, 170, 174–175, 177, 185–186.]

bill for redemption. See bill of redemption.

bill in aid of execution. A bill filed by a judgment creditor to set aside a fraudulent encumbrance or conveyance. [Cases: Fraudulent Conveyances 258.]

bill in perpetuam rei memoriam. See bill to perpetuate testimony.

bill in the nature of a bill of review. A postjudgment bill of review filed by someone who was neither a party to the original suit nor bound by the decree sought to be reversed. — Also termed supplemental bill in the nature of a bill of review. [Cases: Equity 442.]

bill in the nature of a bill of revivor. A bill filed when a litigant dies or becomes incapacitated before the litigant’s interest in property could be determined. • The purpose of the bill is to resolve who holds the right to revive the original litigation in the deceased’s stead. [Cases: Equity 116.]

bill in the nature of a supplemental bill. A bill bringing to court new parties and interests arising from events that occur after the suit is filed. • A supplemental bill, in contrast, involves parties or interests already before the court. [Cases: Equity 294.]

bill in the nature of interpleader. A bill of interpleader filed by a person claiming an interest in interpleaded property. [Cases: Interpleader 23. C.J.S. Interpleader §§ 33–34.]

bill of certiorari. A bill in equity seeking removal of an action to a higher court. See CERTIORARI. [Cases: Certiorari 42(.5).]

bill of complaint. An original bill that begins an action in a court of equity. See COMPLAINT(1). [Cases: Equity 128–153.]

“A suit in equity, under the procedure of the English Court of Chancery, which was generally adopted in the American States prior to the code, is instituted by the plaintiff filing a bill of complaint. The plaintiff is usually called the complainant, in the Federal courts the complainant or plaintiff indifferently. The bill is in substance a petition to the chancellor, or judge of the court of equity, setting forth at large the grounds of the suit, and praying the process of the court, its subpoena, to bring the defendant into court and compel him to answer the plaintiff’s bill, and, also, for such relief by decree or interlocutory remedy, by way of injunction, etc., as the plaintiff supposes himself entitled to.” Edwin E. Bryant, The Law of Pleading Under the Codes of Civil Procedure 55 (2d ed. 1899).

bill of conformity. A bill filed by an executor or administrator who seeks the court's guidance in administering an estate. • The bill is usu. filed to adjust creditors' claims.

bill of costs. A certified, itemized statement of the amount of costs owed by one litigant to another, prepared so that the prevailing party may recover the costs from the losing party. — Also termed cost bill. [Cases: Costs 202. C.J.S. Costs § 148.]

bill of discovery. A bill in equity seeking disclosure of facts within the opposing party's knowledge. See DISCOVERY. [Cases: Equity 129.]

bill of evidence. A transcript of testimony heard at trial.

bill of exceptions. 1. A formal written statement — signed by the trial judge and presented to the appellate court — of a party's objections or exceptions taken during trial and the grounds on which they are founded. • These bills have largely been replaced by straight appeals under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. See EXCEPTION(1). [Cases: Exceptions, Bill of 1. C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 461–463.] 2. In some jurisdictions, a record made to preserve error after the judge has excluded evidence.

bill of foreclosure. A bill in equity filed by a lender to have mortgaged property sold to satisfy all or part of the secured, unpaid debt. [Cases: Mortgages 444. C.J.S. Mortgages § 739.]

bill of interpleader. An original bill filed by a party against two or more persons who claim from that party the same debt or duty. • The requesting party asks the court to compel the contenders to litigate and establish their rights to the debt or the duty. See INTERPLEADER. [Cases: Interpleader 23. C.J.S. Interpleader §§ 33–34.]

“The common law offered the stakeholder no relief, in that if he paid in good faith to one claimant, he might nevertheless be sued by and required to pay another claimant. And a judgment at law in favor of one claimant against the stakeholder was no defense to an action against the stakeholder by another claimant. However, in equity the bill or suit of interpleader offers him a remedy in that he may interplead (bring) into one action all of the claimants, turn the money or property over to the court, be himself dismissed from the proceeding, and have the court decide which of the claimants is entitled to the fund or property ....” William Q. de Funiak, Handbook of Modern Equity § 108, at 241–42 (2d ed. 1956).

bill of peace. An equitable bill filed by one who is threatened with multiple suits involving the same right, or with recurrent suits on the same right, asking the court to determine the question once and for all, and to enjoin the plaintiffs from proceeding with the threatened litigation. • One situation involves many persons having a common claim but threatening to bring separate suits; another involves one person bringing a second action on the same claim. [Cases: Equity 51(1). C.J.S. Equity §§ 38–41.]

“By a bill of peace we are to understand a bill brought by a person to establish and perpetuate a right which he claims, and which, from its nature, may be controverted by different persons, at different times, and by different actions; or, where separate attempts have already been unsuccessfully made to overthrow the same right, and justice requires that the party should be quieted in the right, if it is already sufficiently established; or if it should be sufficiently established under the direction of the court. The obvious design of such a bill is to procure repose from perpetual litigation, and therefore, it is justly called a bill of peace.” Joseph Story, Commentaries on Equity Jurisprudence § 853, at 567 (W.E. Grigsby ed., 1st English ed. 1884).

“If there was a dispute as to some right involving a multiplicity of persons (e.g., as to a man's right to take tolls, or to a right of way traversing many estates), a bill of peace could be brought in equity to establish the right and so secure repose from the prospect of incessant or multifarious litigation. Bills of peace have now in practice been superseded by modern procedural provisions for the joinder of parties and for representative actions.” Robert E. Megarry & P.V. Baker, Snell's Principles of Equity 570 (27th ed. 1973).

bill of privilege.Hist. The formal process for suing an attorney or officer of the court.

“Attorneys and all other persons attending the courts of justice (for attorneys, being officers of the court, are always supposed to be there attending) are not liable to be arrested by the ordinary processes of the court, but must be sued by a bill, called usually a bill of privilege, as being personally present in court.” William Blackstone, 3 Commentaries on the Laws of England 289 (1768).

bill of redemption.A bill in equity filed to enforce a right to redeem real property, usu. following a mortgage foreclosure or a delinquent-tax sale. — Also termed bill for redemption.

bill of review.A bill in equity requesting that a court reverse or revise a prior decree. [Cases: Equity 442.]

bill of revivor.A bill filed for the purpose of reviving and continuing a suit in equity when the suit has been abated before final consummation. • The most common cause of such an abatement is the death of either the plaintiff or the defendant. [Cases: Equity 303.]

bill of revivor and supplement.A compound of a supplemental bill and a bill of revivor, joined for convenience. • Its distinct parts must be framed and proceeded on separately. [Cases: Equity 294–309.]

bill quia timet.An equitable bill used to guard against possible or prospective injuries and to preserve the means by which existing rights are protected from future or contingent violations. • It differs from an injunction, which corrects past and present — or imminent and certain — injuries. One example is a bill to perpetuate testimony. See QUIA TIMET. [Cases: Equity 17. C.J.S. Equity § 55.]

bill to carry a decree into execution.A bill brought when a decree could not be enforced without further court order because of the parties' neglect or for some other reason. — Also termed bill to enforce a decree. [Cases: Equity 438.]

bill to perpetuate testimony.An original bill to preserve the testimony of a material witness who may die or leave the jurisdiction before a suit is commenced, or to prevent or avoid future litigation. — Also termed bill in perpetuam rei memoriam. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1293; Pretrial Procedure 64. C.J.S. Pretrial Procedure §§ 13–17, 34.]

bill to suspend a decree. A bill brought to set aside a decree. [Cases: Equity 430.]

bill to take testimony de bene esse (dee or d<<schwa>> bee-nee es-ee also day ben-ay es-ay). A bill brought to take testimony pertinent to pending litigation from a witness who may be unavailable at the time of trial. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 1293; Pretrial Procedure 64. C.J.S. Pretrial Procedure §§ 13–17, 34.]

cost bill. See bill of costs.

cross-bill. A bill brought by the defendant against the plaintiff in the same suit, or against other defendants in the same suit, relating to the matters alleged in the original bill. [Cases: Equity 195–206.]

nonoriginal bill. A bill relating to some matter already litigated by the same parties. • It is an addition to or a continuation of an original bill.

original bill. A bill relating to some matter that has never before been litigated by the same parties with the same interests. [Cases: Equity 128–153.]

skeleton bill of exceptions. A bill of exceptions that, in addition to the formal parts, contains only the court's directions to the clerk to copy or insert necessary documents into the record for appellate review, but does not contain the actual evidence or trial-court rulings. • For example, the statement “the clerk will insert the official transcript here” is typically a skeleton bill. [Cases: Exceptions, Bill of 23. C.J.S. Appeal and Error § 468.]

supplemental bill. A bill filed for the purpose of adding something to an original bill. • This addition usu. results from the discovery of new facts or from a new understanding of facts after the defendant has put on a defense. [Cases: Equity 294–301.]

supplemental bill in the nature of a bill of review. See bill in the nature of a bill of review.

3. A legislative proposal offered for debate before its enactment. [Cases: Statutes 1–23. C.J.S. Statutes §§ 2–6, 9–18, 21–42.]

administration bill. A bill drafted and submitted by the executive branch.

appropriations bill. A bill that authorizes governmental expenditures. • The federal government cannot spend money unless Congress has appropriated the funds. U.S. Const. art. I, § 9, cl. 7. — Also termed spending bill. See APPROPRIATION(2), (3). [Cases: United States 85. C.J.S. United States §§ 156–158.]

budget bill. A bill designating how money will be allocated for the following fiscal year.

clean bill. A bill that has been changed so much by a legislative committee that it is better to introduce a new bill (a “clean” one) than to explain the changes made. — Also termed committee substitute.

companion bill. A bill introduced in the other house of a bicameral legislature in a substantially identical form.

deficiency bill. An appropriation bill covering expenses omitted from the general appropriation bills, or for which insufficient appropriations were made. • An urgent deficiency bill covers immediate expenses usu. for one item, and a general deficiency bill covers a variety of items.

engrossed bill. 1. A bill in a form ready for final passage by a legislative chamber. 2. A bill in the form passed by one house of the legislature. See ENGROSS(3); ENGROSSMENT(2).

“An engrossment is a proofreading and verification in order to be certain that the bill before the house is identical with the original bill as introduced with all amendments that have been adopted correctly inserted.” National Conference of State Legislatures, Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure § 735-2, at 525 (2000).

enrolled bill. A bill passed by both houses of the legislature and signed by their presiding officers. See ENROLL(2); ENROLLED-BILL RULE. [Cases: Statutes 37. C.J.S. Statutes §§ 56–58.]

house bill. (often cap.) A legislative bill being considered by a house of representatives. — Abbr. H.; H.B.

money bill. See revenue bill.

must-pass bill. Legislation of vital importance, such as an appropriation without which the government will shut down. • A must-pass bill will often attract unrelated riders. See RIDER.

omnibus bill. 1. A single bill containing various distinct matters, usu. drafted in this way to force the executive either to accept all the unrelated minor provisions or to veto the major provision. 2. A bill that deals with all proposals relating to a particular subject, such as an “omnibus judgeship bill” covering all proposals for new judgeships or an “omnibus crime bill” dealing with different subjects such as new crimes and grants to states for crime control.

prefiled bill. A bill that has been drafted and submitted before a legislative session begins.

private bill. A bill relating to a matter of personal or local interest only. Cf. special law under LAW.

“A private Bill is a measure for the interest of some person or class of persons, whether an individual, a corporation, or the inhabitants of a county, town, parish, or other locality, and originates on the motion of some member of the [legislature] in which the Bill is introduced.” Courtenay P. Ilbert, Legislative Methods and Forms 28 (1901).

public bill. A bill relating to public policy in the whole community.

revenue bill. A bill that levies or raises taxes. • Federal revenue bills must originate in the House of Representatives. U.S. Const. art. I, § 7, cl. 1. — Also termed money bill.

6. A bill of exchange; a draft <the bank would not honor the unsigned bill>. See DRAFT(1). [Cases: Bills and Notes 1. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 2–3, 5–6, 8–9, 17–18, 22.]

advance bill.A bill of exchange drawn before the shipment of the goods.

banker's bill.See finance bill.

domestic bill. 1. A bill of exchange that is payable in the state or country where it is drawn. [Cases: Bills and Notes 128. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit§ 85.] 2. A bill on which both the drawer and drawee reside within the same state or country. — Also termed (in sense 2) inland bill of exchange. Cf. foreign bill. [Cases: Bills and Notes 13. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 5.]

finance bill.A bill of exchange drawn by a bank in one country on a bank in another country to raise short-term credit. • Finance bills are often issued in tight money periods, and usu. have maturity dates of more than 60 days. — Also termed banker's bill; working capital acceptance.

foreign bill.A bill of exchange drawn in one state or country and payable in another. Cf. domestic bill. [Cases: Bills and Notes 13, 128. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit §§ 5, 85.]

investment bill.A bill of exchange purchased at a discount and intended to be held to maturity as an investment.

7. A formal document or note; an instrument <bill of sale>.“The expression ‘bill of sale’ includes bills of sale, assignments, transfers, declarations of trust without transfer, inventories of goods with receipts thereto attached, or receipts for purchase-monies of goods, and other assurances of personal chattels, and also powers of attorney, authorities, or licences to take possession of personal chattels as security for any debt, and also any agreement, whether intended or not to be followed by the execution of any other instrument, by which a right in equity to any personal chattels, or to any charge or security thereon, shall be conferred ....” Joshua Williams, Principles of the Law of Personal Property 60 (11th ed. 1881) (tracking the definition in the [U.K.] Bills of Sale Act of 1878).

“A transfer may be either an absolute assignment by way of gift or sale, or an assignment by way of mortgage or security only; but in either case when a written document of any sort is used to effect the transfer, the document is called technically a ‘bill of sale.’ ” Arthur Weldon & H. Gibson Rivington, Gibson's Conveyancing 302 (14th ed. 1933).

bill obligatory. A written promise to pay; a promissory note under seal. — Also termed single bond. See NOTE(1). [Cases: Bills and Notes 41. C.J.S. Bills and Notes; Letters of Credit § 5.]

bill of interpleader. See BILL(2).

BILL OF LADING

bill of lading (layd-ing). A document acknowledging the receipt of goods by a carrier or by the shipper's agent and the contract for the transportation of those goods; a document that indicates the receipt of goods for shipment and that is issued by a person engaged in the business of transporting or forwarding goods. UCC § 1-201(b)(6). • A negotiable bill of lading is a document of title. — Abbr. B/L. Cf. WAYBILL; AIRBILL. [Cases: Carriers 51; Shipping 106. C.J.S. Carriers § 390; Shipping §§ 256–257.]

“A bill of lading may be regarded in three several aspects. (1) It is a receipt given by the master of a ship acknowledging that the goods specified in the bill have been put on board; (2) it is the document [that] contains the terms of the contract for the carriage of the goods agreed upon between the shipper of the goods and the shipowner (whose agent the master of the ship is); and (3) it is a ‘document of title’ to the goods, of which it is the symbol. It is by means of this document of title that the goods themselves may be dealt with by the owner of them while they are still on board ship and upon the high seas.” William R. Anson, Principles of the Law of Contract 380 (Arthur L. Corbin ed., 3d Am. ed. 1919).

bearer bill of lading. A negotiable bill of lading that authorizes the carrier or holder of freight to deliver it to the bearer.

claused bill of lading. See unclean bill of lading.

clean bill of lading. A bill of lading containing no clause or notation qualifying the bill's terms. • Possible clauses or notations could include a provision for deck storage or a recording of cargo damage. Cf. unclean bill of lading. [Cases: Carriers 52(2). C.J.S. Carriers § 438.]

destination bill of lading. A bill procured to be issued at the destination point or any other place than the place of shipment. UCC § 7-305. [Cases: Shipping 106(3). C.J.S. Shipping §§ 260–263, 265.]

foul bill of lading. See unclean bill of lading.

long-form bill of lading. A bill of lading that expressly contains all the terms of the transportation contract. Cf. short-form bill of lading.

negotiable bill of lading. A bill of lading calling for the delivery of goods to the bearer or to a named person's order. UCC § 7-104. [Cases: Carriers 54; Shipping 106(5). C.J.S. Carriers § 398; Shipping § 259.]

nonnegotiable bill of lading. See straight bill of lading.

ocean bill of lading. A negotiable bill of lading used in shipment by water. — Often shortened to ocean bill. [Cases: Shipping 106. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 256–257.]

onboard bill of lading. A bill of lading reflecting that goods have been loaded onto a ship. • In multimodal shipments, an onboard bill of lading may include goods loaded onto land vehicles also. — Often shortened to onboard bill.

order bill of lading.A negotiable bill of lading stating that the goods are consigned to the order of the person named in the bill. [Cases: Carriers 54. C.J.S. Carriers § 398.]

overseas bill of lading.A bill of lading used for overseas shipment by water or air. UCC § 2-323. • In air freight, an overseas bill of lading is called an air waybill. — Often shortened to overseas bill.

short-form bill of lading.A bill of lading that does not expressly contain all the terms of the transportation contract, but incorporates them by reference to another document, usu. one at the office of the carrier.

spent bill of lading.A negotiable bill of lading that is not produced, canceled, or surrendered after the carrier has delivered the goods. — Often shortened to spent bill.

straight bill of lading.A nonnegotiable bill of lading that specifies a consignee to whom the carrier is contractually obligated to deliver the goods. • In some countries, including England, a document is not a bill of lading unless it is negotiable. — Also termed nonnegotiable bill of lading. [Cases: Carriers 51. C.J.S. Carriers § 390.]

through bill of lading.A bill of lading by which a carrier agrees to transport goods to a designated destination, even though the carrier will have to use a connecting carrier for part of the passage. UCC § 7-302. — Often shortened to through bill. [Cases: Carriers 51. C.J.S. Carriers § 390.]

unclean bill of lading.A bill of lading that shows on its face that the goods were damaged or that there was a shortage of goods at the time of shipment. — Also termed claused bill of lading; foul bill of lading. Cf. clean bill of lading.

BILL OF MIDDLESEX

bill of Middlesex.Hist. A process by which the Court of the King's Bench in Middlesex obtains jurisdiction over a defendant who resides in a county outside the Court's jurisdiction, by alleging a fictitious trespass in a county over which the court has jurisdiction. • Once the sheriff returns the bill noting that the defendant is not in the county where the trespass occurred, a latitat is issued to the sheriff of the defendant's actual residence. See LATITAT.

“The bill of Middlesex is a kind of capias, directed to the sheriff of that county, and commanding him to take the defendant, and have him before our lord the king at Westminster on a day prefixed, to answer to the plaintiff of a plea of trespass. For this accusation of trespass it is, that gives the court of king's bench jurisdiction in other civil causes, as was formerly observed; since when once the defendant is taken into custody ... , he, being then a prisoner of this court, may here be prosecuted for any other species of injury.” 3 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 285 (1768).

BILL OF MORTALITY

bill of mortality.Hist. A record of the number of deaths occurring in a given district. • Bills of mortality were compiled — often week to week — in England from late in the 16th century to the 19th century as a way to keep track of the plague and other highly contagious diseases.

BILL OF PAINS AND PENALTIES

bill of pains and penalties.A legislative act that, though similar to a bill of attainder, prescribes punishment less severe than capital punishment. • Bills of pains and penalties are included within the U.S. Constitution's ban on bills of attainder. U.S. Const. art I, § 9. [Cases: Constitutional Law 82.5. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 429–431.]

BILL OF PARCELS

bill of parcels.See BILL(5).

BILL OF PARTICULARS

bill of particulars.A formal, detailed statement of the claims or charges brought by a plaintiff or a prosecutor, usu. filed in response to the defendant's request for a more specific complaint. • The bill of particulars has been abolished in federal civil actions and replaced by the motion for a more definite statement. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(e). But it is still used in some states (such as California) and in federal criminal cases. See Fed. R. Crim. P. 7(f). — Also termed statement of particulars. See MOTION FOR MORE DEFINITE STATEMENT . [Cases: Indictment and Information 121; Pleading 313. C.J.S. Indictments and Informations § 137; Pleading § 531.]

“Although it has been said that the bill of particulars is not a discovery device, it seems plain that it is a means of discovery, though of a limited nature. It is the one method open to a defendant in a criminal case to secure the details of the charge against him.” 1 Charles Alan Wright, Federal Practice and Procedure § 129, at 646–47 (3d ed. 1999).

birretum (b<<schwa>>-ret-<<schwa>>m). [Law Latin] A cap or coif formerly worn by British judges and serjeants-at-law.

birth. The complete extrusion of a newborn baby from the mother's body. • The quotation below states the traditional legal view of birth. In a few jurisdictions, the state of the law may be changing. In South Carolina, for example, a child does not have to be born alive to be a victim of murder; a woman can be convicted of fetal murder if her baby is stillborn because of the mother's prenatal drug abuse.

BIRTH CERTIFICATE

birth certificate. A formal document that records a person's birthdate, birthplace, and parentage. • In all 50 states, an adopted child receives a second birth certificate reflecting his or her adoptive parents. In such a case, the original birth certificate is usu. sealed and can be opened only by court order. Some states allow limited access, depending on the year when an adoptee was born and (sometimes) on whether the birth parents consent. The trend today is to open records if (1) both the child and the biological parent consent — for example, through an adoption registry, or (2) the child requests and, upon notification, the biological parent does not veto the request. Oregon enacted the first statute to permit access to birth records upon the unilateral demand of the adopted child, once the child reaches the age of majority. See ADOPTION-REGISTRY STATUTE. [Cases: Health 397.]

BIRTH CONTROL

birth control. 1. Any means of preventing conception and pregnancy, usu. by mechanical or chemical means, but also by abstaining from intercourse. 2. More narrowly, contraception.

BIRTHDAY CLUB

BLACKACRE

Blackacre. A fictitious tract of land used in legal discourse (esp. law-school hypotheticals) to discuss real-property issues. • When another tract of land is needed in a hypothetical, it is often termed “Whiteacre.”

“Blackacre is the most celebrated tract of land in the world of the law .... Blackacre is wholly mythical, yet totally real. It is a concept, living in the realm of the mind and doubly valuable since much of the law of property has the same type of reality.” John E. Cribbet, Principles of the Law of Property 2 (2d ed. 1975).

BLACK ACT

Black Act.Hist. An English statute (9 Geo. ch. 22) establishing the death penalty for the unlawful killing or maiming of animals. • The statute was passed in 1722 in the wake of crimes committed by persons with faces blackened or otherwise disguised. The statute was repealed in 1827. The classic study of this law is E.P. Thompson, Whips and Hunters: The Origins of the Black Act (1975).

BLACK ACTS

BLACK CAP

black cap.A square cap worn by English judges on certain state or solemn occasions. • The black cap was formerly worn by judges when handing down a death sentence.

BLACK CODES

black codes.(usu. cap.) Hist. 1.Antebellum state laws enacted to regulate slavery. 2. Laws enacted shortly after the Civil War in the ex-Confederate states to restrict the liberties of the newly freed slaves to ensure a supply of inexpensive agricultural labor and to maintain white supremacy.

“Clearly, leaders of the old South who survived the war were in no mood for racial equality. It was a bitter enough pill that the slaves were legally free; there was no inclination to go beyond the formal status. The Black Codes of 1865, passed in almost all of the states of the old Confederacy, were meant to replace slavery with some kind of caste system and to preserve as much as possible of the prewar way of life.” Lawrence M. Friedman, A History of American Law 504 (2d ed. 1985).

BLACK ECONOMY

black economy.See SHADOW ECONOMY.

BLACK HAND

Black Hand.Hist. Any of several secret societies that were active in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. • Most of these organizations were composed of anarchists or separatists and engaged in terrorism. In the late 19th and early 20th centuries, a loosely knit Sicilian–Italian criminal organization called the Black Hand extorted money from Italian immigrants to the U.S. through threats and acts of violence. Chapters of the organization were established throughout the United States and Canada. The New York City Police Department created the nation's first bomb squad to deal with the bombs used by the Black Hand. A band of Spanish anarchists in the late 19th century and a group of Serbian anarchists in the early 20th century were also called the Black Hand. The organizations were not related. — blackhand,n.

blackmail,n.1. A threatening demand made without justification; EXTORTION. Cf. FEEMAIL; GRAYMAIL; GREENMAIL(1), (2). [Cases: Extortion and Threats 25.1. C.J.S. Threats and Unlawful Communications §§ 2–20.] — blackmail,vb.

“[Blackmail is] a certain rate of Money, Corn, Cattle, or other consideration, paid to some inhabiting upon, or near the borders, being persons of name and power, allied with ... known Robbers ... to be thereby by them freed and protected from the danger of those Spoil-takers.” Thomas Blount, Nomo-Lexicon: A Law-Dictionary (1670).

“ ‘Black-mail’ (black rent) was anciently used to indicate ‘rents reserved in work, grain or baser money’ (i.e. baser than silver). It was also employed at one time to refer to ‘a tribute formerly exacted in the north of England and in Scotland by freebooting chiefs for protection from pillage.’ [Quoting American College Dictionary (1948).] Such practice was extortion, in the literal sense, and hence ‘blackmail’ is frequently used to indicate statutory extortion or sometimes an extorsive threat. And the federal statute forbidding the sending of an extorsive threat by mail has been referred to as the ‘blackmail statute.’ ” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 451 (3d ed. 1982).

BLAINE AMENDMENT

Blaine amendment.A provision in a state constitution for stricter separation of church and state than is required by the Establishment Clause. • In 1875, at the request of President Ulysses S. Grant, Senator James G. Blaine proposed an amendment to the U.S. Constitution, applying the Free Exercise and Establishment Clause to the states, and specifically prohibiting the use of any state funds to support any religious institutions, including private church-run schools (esp. Roman Catholic). The House of Representatives passed the amendment, but the Senate narrowly voted against it. Many states, however, amended their constitutions to include a “Blaine Amendment” strictly prohibiting the use of public money for the support of religious institutions.

BLAME

blame,n.1. An act of attributing fault; an expression of disapproval <the judge said all of the plaintiff's attorneys were to blame>.2. Responsibility for something wrong <blame rested with all the defendants>. — blame,vb. — blameworthy, blamable,adj.

BLANC SEIGN

blanc seign (blahnk sayn). [Law French] Civil law. A signed paper entrusted to someone with the power to bind the signer within the limits of the agreement between the signer and the grantee. See POWER OF ATTORNEY(1).

BLANK

blank.Parliamentary law. 1. A ballot cast without a vote, effectively an abstention. 2. A name, number, time, or other term left open in a motion, to be filled in by vote after taking proposals from the floor. • An election is a common form of filling a blank: each nomination is effectively a proposal for filling the blank in the question, “Resolved, That _____ is elected.” See CREATE A BLANK; FILL A BLANK.

---

BLANK ACCEPTANCE

blank acceptance.See ACCEPTANCE(4).

BLANK BAR

blank bar.Hist. A plea in bar interposed by a defendant in a trespass action. • This type of plea was filed to compel the plaintiff to state exactly where the alleged trespass occurred. — Also termed common bar.

BLANK FORM

blank form. Copyright. A form, usu. one for record-keeping and business purposes, that does not convey information until it has been filled in. • Blank forms are not eligible for copyright protection. — Also termed business form. See BLANK-FORMS RULE.

BLANK-FORMS RULE

blank-forms rule. Copyright. The principle that forms are not protectable by copyright if they are designed for recording information but do not themselves convey any information. • The rule, first promulgated by the U.S. Supreme Court in Baker v. Selden, 101 U.S. 99 (1879), is now a U.S. Copyright Office regulation, 37CFR § 202.1(c). See MERGER DOCTRINE (1). [Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 10.4. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property §§ 11–12, 16, 92, 101.]

BLANK INDORSEMENT

blank indorsement. See INDORSEMENT.

BLANK STOCK

blank stock. See STOCK.

BLASPHEMY

blasphemy (blas-f<<schwa>>-mee), n. Irreverence toward God, religion, a religious icon, or something else considered sacred. • Blasphemy was a crime at common law and remains so in some U.S. jurisdictions, but it is rarely if ever enforced because of its questionable constitutionality under the First Amendment. Cf. PROFANITY. [Cases: Criminal Law 45.20. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 7.] — blaspheme (blas-feemorblas-feem), vb. — blasphemous (blas-f<<schwa>>-m<<schwa>>s), adj. — blasphemer (blas-fee-m<<schwa>>r), n.

“Blasphemy is the malicious revilement of God and religion. In England blasphemy was the malicious revilement of the Christian religion.... Blasphemy has been held to be a common-law crime [in the United States] because of its tendency to stir up breaches of the peace. It is expressly made punishable by some of the statutes.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 474, 475 (3d ed. 1982).

BLOCK

block,n.1. A municipal area enclosed by streets <three blocks away>. See LOT (1).2. A quantity of things bought or sold as a unit .

BLOCKADE

blockade.Int'l law.A belligerent's prevention of access to or egress from an enemy's ports by stationing ships to intercept vessels trying to enter or leave those ports. • To be binding, a blockade must be effective — that is, it must be maintained by a force sufficient to prevent access to ports. — Also termed simple blockade; de facto blockade. [Cases: War and National Emergency 19. C.J.S. War and National Defense § 6.]

“A blockade must be existing in point of fact; and in order to constitute that existence, there must be a power present to enforce it. All decrees and orders, declaring extensive coasts and whole countries in a state of blockade, without the presence of an adequate naval force to support it, are manifestly illegal and void, and have no sanction in public law.” 1 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law *144 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

“The word blockade properly denotes obstructing the passage into or from a place on either element, but is more especially applied to naval forces preventing communication by water. Unlike siege it implies no intention to get possession of the blockaded place. With blockades by land or ordinary sieges neutrals have usually little to do.” Theodore D. Woolsey, Introduction to the Study of International Law § 202, at 351 (5th ed. 1878).

pacific blockade.Int'l law. A blockade that is established without a declaration of war.

public blockade.Int'l law. An established blockade of which the blockading nation gives formal notice to the governments of neutral nations.

BLOCKAGE RULE

blockage rule.Tax. The principle that a large block of stock shares may be valued at less than the total value of the individual shares because such a large block may be difficult to sell at full price. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4534; Taxation 1072. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 523, 646.]

BLOCK-BOOKING

block-booking,n. Copyright. In the licensing or use of movies, the practice by film distributors of conditioning the license or use on the acceptance of an entire package or block of films, which typically includes unwanted or inferior films. • In United States v. Loew's, Inc., 371 U.S. 38, 83 S.Ct. 97 (1962), the U.S. Supreme Court condemned block-booking as an illegal tying arrangement that violates the Sherman Act.

BLOCKBURGER<TT> TEST

Blockburger test.Criminal law. A test, for double-jeopardy purposes, of whether a defendant can be punished separately for convictions on two charges or prosecuted later on a different charge after being convicted or acquitted on a charge involving the same incident; a comparison of two charges to see if each contains at least one element that the other does not. • Although the test is frequently called the same-evidence test, that term is misleading since the analysis involves the elements of the charged offenses rather than the facts of the incident. Blockburger v. U.S., 284 U.S. 299, 304, 52 S.Ct. 180, 192 (1932). — Also termed same-elements test; actual-evidence test. Cf. SAME-CONDUCT TEST; SAME-TRANSACTION TEST. [Cases: Double Jeopardy 135, 136. C.J.S. Criminal Law § 246.]

BLOCKBUSTING

blockbusting. The act or practice, usu. by a real-estate broker, of persuading one or more property owners to sell their property quickly, and often at a loss, to avoid an imminent influx of minority groups. • Blockbusting is illegal in many states. [Cases: Brokers 1, 4; Civil Rights 1076. C.J.S. Brokers §§ 6–12; Civil Rights §§ 2–3, 14–17, 21.]

BLONDER-TONGUE DOCTRINE

Blonder-Tongue doctrine. Patents. The rule that a patentee is barred by collateral estoppel from relitigating the validity of a patent that has been held invalid in an earlier proceeding in which the patentee had a full and fair opportunity to litigate the patent's validity. • The rule was adopted by the U.S. Supreme Court in Blonder-Tongue Laboratories, Inc. v. University of Illinois, 402 U.S. 313, 91 S.Ct. 1434 (1971). — Also termed Blonder-Tongue rule. [Cases: Patents 327(13).]

BLOOD

blood. A relationship between persons arising by descent from a common ancestor. See RELATIVE.

entire blood. See full blood.

full blood. The relationship existing between persons having the same two parents; unmixed ancestry. — Also termed whole blood; entire blood.

half blood. The relationship existing between persons having the same father or mother, but not both parents in common. — Sometimes written half-blood. See relative of the half blood under RELATIVE. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 35. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution §§ 29, 42.]

heritable blood. Hist. A relationship between an ancestor and an heir that the law recognizes for purposes of passing good title to property. — Also termed inheritable blood. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 21. C.J.S. Descent and Distribution § 24.]

mixed blood. Archaic. The relationship between persons whose ancestors are of different races or nationalities.

“The term ‘mixed bloods,’ as used in treaties and statutes, has been held to include persons of half, or more or less than half, Indian blood, derived either from the father or from the mother.” 42 C.J.S. Indians § 3 (1991).

whole blood. See full blood.

BLOOD, CORRUPTION OF THE

blood, corruption of the. See CORRUPTION OF BLOOD.

BLOOD ALCOHOL CONTENT

blood alcohol content. The concentration of alcohol in one's bloodstream, expressed as a percentage. • Blood alcohol content is used to determine whether a person is legally intoxicated, esp. under a driving-while-intoxicated law. In many states, a blood alcohol content of .08% is enough to charge a person with an offense. — Abbr. BAC. — Also termed blood alcohol count; blood alcohol concentration. See DRIVING UNDER THE INFLUENCE; DRIVING WHILE INTOXICATED . [Cases: Automobiles 332, 411. C.J.S. Motor Vehicles §§ 1382–1394, 1397–1411.]

BLOOD BORDER

blood border. Slang. The dividing line between adjoining states that have different minimum drinking ages. • The term derives from the fact that juveniles from the state with the higher minimum age drive to the state with a lower minimum age, purchase and consume alcohol, and drive home intoxicated.

BLOOD FEUD

blood feud. See FEUD(4).

BLOOD-GROUPING TEST

blood-grouping test. A test used in paternity and illegitimacy cases to determine whether a particular man could be the father of a child, examples being the genetic-marker test and the human-leukocyte antigen test. • The test does not establish paternity; rather, it eliminates men who could not be the father. See PATERNITY TEST; GENETIC-MARKER TEST; HUMAN-LEUKOCYTE ANTIGEN TEST . [Cases: Children Out-of-Wedlock 58. C.J.S. Children Out-of-Wedlock §§ 75–76.]

BLUE LAW

blue law.A statute regulating or prohibiting commercial activity on Sundays. • Although blue laws were formerly common, they have declined since the 1980s, when many courts held them invalid because of their origin in religion (i.e., Sunday being the Christian Sabbath). Blue laws usu. pass constitutional challenge if they are enacted to support a nonreligious purpose, such as a day of rest for workers. — Also termed Sunday law; Sunday-closing law; Sabbath law; Lord's Day Act. [Cases: Sunday 3–30(8). C.J.S. Sunday §§ 8–83.]

BLUE LIST

Blue List.Securities. A daily listing (on blue paper) of secondary-market offerings of municipal bonds.

“Municipal bonds available for resale in the secondary market are listed by state in The Blue List, along with such information as the number of bonds offered, issuer, maturity date, coupon rate, price, and dealer making the offering. Ratings are not included. But there are sections on settlement dates of recent new offerings, prerefunded bonds, and miscellaneous offerings (some U.S. government and agency obligations, railroad equipment trust certificates, corporate bonds, and even preferred stocks). The dollar value of listings, referred to as the floating supply, gives an indication of the size and liquidity of the secondary municipal market.” The New York Institute of Finance, How the Bond Market Works 185 (1988).

BLUE NOTE

blue note. See NOTE(1).

BLUE-PENCIL TEST

blue-pencil test. A judicial standard for deciding whether to invalidate the whole contract or only the offending words. • Under this standard, only the offending words are invalidated if it would be possible to delete them simply by running a blue pencil through them, as opposed to changing, adding, or rearranging words. [Cases: Contracts 137. C.J.S. Contracts § 297.]

BLUE-RIBBON JURY

BLUE-SKY

blue-sky, vb. To approve (the sale of securities) in accordance with blue-sky laws <the company's IPO has not yet been blue-skyed>.

blue-sky, adj. (Of a security) having little value.

BLUE-SKY LAW

blue-sky law. A state statute establishing standards for offering and selling securities, the purpose being to protect citizens from investing in fraudulent schemes or unsuitable companies. [Cases: Securities Regulation 248–273. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 3, 374–376, 379–411, 414.]

“Although the public is probably more aware of the existence and operation of the several federal statutes administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission, most state legislation in this area is broader in scope. State securities laws, commonly referred to as ‘blue sky’ laws, were enacted long before the Securities Act of 1933, and Congress specifically preserved these laws instead of attempting to preempt the field for federal legislation.” Louis Loss & Edward M. Cowett, Blue Sky Law 3 (1958).

“The state legislatures entered the arena of securities regulation more than twenty years before Congress.... [T]he statutes, which vary widely in their terms and scope, are commonly referred to as ‘blue sky’ laws, an appellation with several suggested origins. It has been said, for example, that the Kansas legislature was spurred by the fear of fast-talking eastern industrialists selling everything including the blue sky.” 1 Thomas Lee Hazen, Treatise on the Law of Securities Regulation § 8.1, at 490–92 (3d ed. 1995).

BLUEWATER SEAMAN

bluewater seaman. See able-bodied seaman under SEAMAN.

BLURRING

blurring, n. Trademarks. A form of dilution in which goodwill in a famous mark is eroded through the mark's unauthorized use by others on or in connection with dissimilar products or services. • Blurring is one type of dilution that is actionable under the Federal Trademark Dilution Act, 15 USCA § 1125(c) <the court found that Nabisco's use of a fish shape in its animal crackers diluted Pepperidge Farm's famous Goldfish trademark>. — Also termed dilution by blurring; diminution. Cf. TARNISHMENT. [Cases: Trade Regulation 366. C.J.S. Trade-Mark, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition § 79.]

“Blurring is a lessening of the fame possessed by a famous mark. One might begin to think about blurring by recalling ‘free association’ exercises or games, in which one player says a word and the other player must respond instantly with the first word that pops into his or her head. By definition, a strong or famous mark is likely to produce both a prompt and a uniform ‘free association’ response when mentioned to most consumers. Thus when I say ROLEX, you — and almost everyone else — will likely say ‘watches.’ ... On the other hand, a weak mark will produce no response at all, or a variety of responses from different consumers.... If the owners of the ROLEX mark had no way to prevent the use of that mark on pencils, or pianos, or pistachio nuts, because those products are so remote from watches that they could not prove any likelihood of confusion, eventually, the automatic free association of the ROLEX mark with watches, and watches alone, would be destroyed. The mark would be less famous than before. It would be blurred.” Roger E. Schechter & John R. Thomas, Intellectual Property § 30.3, at 710–11 (2003).

BMI

BMI. abbr. BROADCAST MUSIC, INC.

BOARD

board. 1. BOILERPLATE

boilerplate,n.1. Ready-made or all-purpose language that will fit in a variety of documents. • The term, first recorded in 1893, may have referred to steel plates affixed to boilers. But the modern sense comes from the use of the term to refer to copy set on printing plates (or molds to make the plates) and distributed in that form to newspapers. The copy could not be edited. 2. Fixed or standardized contractual language that the proposing party views as relatively nonnegotiable. [Cases: Contracts 1.C.J.S. Contracts §§ 2–3, 9, 12.] — boilerplate,adj.

---

boiler-room transaction.Slang. A high-pressure telephone sales pitch, often of a fraudulent nature.

BOLGER<TT> TEST

Bolger test. The judicial test for determining whether a statement is commercial speech, by examining (1) whether it is an advertisement; (2) whether it refers to a specific product or service; and (3) whether the speaker has an economic motivation for making the statement. Bolger v. Youngs Drug Prods. Corp., 463 U.S. 60, 66–67, 103 S.Ct. 2875, 2879–80 (1983). • An affirmative answer to all three questions is “strong support” that the speech is commercial, but it is not dispositive; rather, the decision should be based on common sense.

BOLSTER

bolster,vb. To enhance (unimpeached evidence) with additional evidence. • This practice is often considered improper when lawyers seek to enhance the credibility of their own witnesses. [Cases: Witnesses 318. C.J.S. Witnesses §§ 562–564.]

bona fide holder for value. See HOLDER FOR VALUE.

BONA FIDE INTENT TO USE

bona fide intent to use. Trademarks. A specific, good-faith intention to use a mark in the ordinary course of trade in interstate commerce and not merely to reserve it for later use, as determined by objective circumstantial evidence. • A federal registration obtained under Lanham Act § 1(b) requires a bona fide intent to use the mark. If the required intent is later determined to be lacking, the registration may be invalidated.

BONA FIDE JUDGMENT CREDITOR

bona fide judgment creditor. See JUDGMENT CREDITOR.

BONA FIDE OCCUPATIONAL QUALIFICATION

bona fide occupational qualification. An employment qualification that, although it may discriminate against a protected class (such as sex, religion, or national origin), relates to an essential job duty and is considered reasonably necessary to the operation of the particular business. • Such a qualification is not illegal under federal employment-discrimination laws. — Abbr. BFOQ. [Cases: Civil Rights 1118, 1529. C.J.S. Civil Rights §§ 25, 161–162.]

“The bona fide occupational qualification is a complete defense. It is invoked when the defendant makes a distinction expressly forbidden by Title VII, such as the refusal to hire women or women with preschool-age children, the reassignment of pregnant employees, or the exclusion of particular ethnic groups from particular jobs.... The employer's motivation for excluding the protected class is not significant in evaluating the BFOQ defense. The inquiry focuses on the necessity of using an expressly forbidden classification. The fact that the employer adopted the exclusion for invidious reasons, rather than for the business consideration on which the defense is based, is not material. Thus, if the exclusion, in fact, is proved to be necessary it may be used, even if invidiously motivated.” Mack A. Player, Employment Discrimination Law § 5.29, at 282–83 (1988).

BONA FIDE OPERATION

bona fide operation. A real, ongoing business.

BONA FIDE PERCEPTIO ET CONSUMPTIO

BOND

bond,n.1. An obligation; a promise.

“[A]n obligation, or in English a ‘bond,’ is a document written and sealed containing a confession of a debt; in later times ‘contract’ is the genus, ‘obligation’ the species.” 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law 207 (2d ed. 1899).

2. A written promise to pay money or do some act if certain circumstances occur or a certain time elapses; a promise that is defeasible upon a condition subsequent; esp., an instrument under seal by which (1) a public officer undertakes to pay a sum of money if he or she does not faithfully discharge the responsibilities of office, or (2) a surety undertakes that if the public officer does not do so, the surety will be liable in a penal sum.“The fact that an instrument is called a ‘bond’ is not conclusive as to its character. It is necessary to disregard nomenclature and look to the substance of the bond itself. The distinguishing feature of a bond is that it is an obligation to pay a fixed sum of money, at a definite time, with a stated interest, and it makes no difference whether a bond is designated by that name or by some other, if it possesses the characteristics of a bond. There is no distinction between bonds and certificates of indebtedness which conform to all the characteristics of bonds.” 1 Silvester E. Quindry, Bonds & Bondholders Rights & Remedies § 2, at 3–4 (1934).

appeal bond.A bond that an appellate court may require from an appellant in a civil case to ensure payment of the costs of appeal; a bond required as a condition to bringing an appeal or staying execution of the judgment appealed from. Fed. R. App. P. 7. Cf. supersedeas bond. [Cases: Appeal and Error 373–395; Federal Courts 661, 687. C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 264, 288, 290–291, 295, 322–352.]

appearance bond.See bail bond.

arbitration bond.See ARBITRATION BOND.

attachment bond.A bond that a defendant gives to recover attached property. • The plaintiff then looks to the bond issuer to satisfy a judgment against the defendant. [Cases: Attachment 261; Federal Civil Procedure 585. C.J.S. Attachment §§ 247–251, 258.]

average bond.Marine insurance. A bond given to the captain of a ship by consignees of cargo subject to general average, guaranteeing payment of their contribution once it is ascertained, on condition that their goods be promptly delivered. [Cases: Shipping 198. C.J.S. Shipping § 470.]

bail bond.A bond given to a court by a criminal defendant's surety to guarantee that the defendant will duly appear in court in the future and, if the defendant is jailed, to obtain the defendant's release from confinement. • The effect of the release on bail bond is to transfer custody of the defendant from the officers of the law to the custody of the surety on the bail bond, whose undertaking is to redeliver the defendant to legal custody at the time and place appointed in the bond. — Also termed appearance bond; recognizance. See BAIL. [Cases: Bail 54.1.]

bid bond.A bond filed in public construction projects to ensure that the bidding contractor will enter into the contract. • The bid bond is a type of performance bond. [Cases: Public Contracts 9. C.J.S. Public Administrative Law and Procedure § 12.]

blank bond.Archaic. A bond in which the space for the creditor's name is left blank.

blanket bond. 1. A bond covering several persons or projects that require performance bonds. 2. See fidelity bond.

bond for land.A bond given by the seller of land to a buyer, binding the seller to convey once the buyer tenders the agreed price. — Also termed bond for a deed. Cf. BINDER(1). [Cases: Vendor and Purchaser 27. C.J.S. Vendor and Purchaser § 22.]

bond of corroboration.An additional obligation undertaken to corroborate the debtor's original obligation.

bond to keep the peace.See peace bond.

bottomry bond.A contract for the loan of money on a ship, usu. at extraordinary interest, for maritime risks encountered during a certain period or for a certain voyage. • The loan can be enforced only if the vessel survives the voyage. — Also termed bottomage bond. Cf. respondentia bond. [Cases: Shipping 89–100. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 223–231.]

“A bottomry bond, strictly speaking, is a mortgage or pledge of a ship by the owner or agent, to secure the repayment of money lent for the use of the ship; and the conditions of it are, that if the ship is lost, the lender loses his money; but if it arrives, then, not only the ship itself is liable, but also the person of the borrower.” John Indermaur, Principles of the Common Law 169 (Edmund H. Bennett ed., 1st Am. ed. 1878).

“[T]he bottomry bond ... is a sort of mortgage on a ship, entered into for the purpose of raising money in case of necessity in a foreign port. The advance of communications has caused bottomry and respondentia bonds to pass virtually out of use.” Grant Gilmore & Charles L. Black Jr., The Law of Admiralty § 1-10, at 25 n.85 (2d ed. 1975).

claim-property bond.See replevin bond.

common-defeasance bond.See penal bond.

common-law bond.A performance bond given by a construction contractor. • A common-law bond exceeds the requirements of a statutory performance bond because it provides additional coverage for construction projects. Cf. PERFORMANCE BOND. [Cases: Principal and Surety 65, 66(1). C.J.S. Principal and Surety §§ 70, 72–73, 75.]

common money bond.A promise to pay money as a penalty for failing to perform a duty or obligation.

contract bond.See PERFORMANCE BOND.

cost bond.A bond given by a litigant to secure the payment of court costs. [Cases: Costs 120–124; Federal Civil Procedure 2732. C.J.S. Costs §§ 73–74.]

counterbond. A bond to indemnify a surety.

delivery bond. See forthcoming bond.

depository bond. A bond given by a bank to protect a public body's deposits should the bank become insolvent.

discharging bond. A bond that both permits a defendant to regain possession of attached property and releases the property from the attachment lien. — Also termed dissolution bond. See forthcoming bond. [Cases: Attachment 261. C.J.S. Attachment §§ 247–251, 258.]

executor's bond. A bond given to ensure the executor's faithful administration of the estate. See fiduciary bond. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 26. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators § 71.]

“The English law did not require an executor to give bond because he was appointed by the testator and his authority was derived from the will rather than court appointment. Some American jurisdictions do not require a bond of an executor. In the majority of our states a testator may by will dispense with the executor's bond, but in absence of such testamentary provision a bond will be required.” Thomas E. Atkinson, Handbook of the Law of Wills § 113, at 621 (2d ed. 1953).

fidelity bond. A bond to indemnify an employer or business for loss due to embezzlement, larceny, or gross negligence by an employee or other person holding a position of trust. — Also termed blanket bond. [Cases: Insurance 1014, 2400. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 8, 1075.]

fiduciary bond. A type of surety bond required of a trustee, administrator, executor, guardian, conservator, or other fiduciary to ensure the proper performance of duties. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 26; Trusts 161. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators § 71; Trover and Conversion § 302.]

forthcoming bond. 1. A bond guaranteeing that something will be produced or forthcoming at a particular time, or when called for. 2. A bond (usu. given to a sheriff) to permit a person to repossess attached property in exchange for that person's commitment to surrender the property in the event of an adverse judgment; specif., a bond required of a defendant as a condition of retaining or regaining possession of a chattel in an attachment or replevin action, whereby the surety agrees to surrender the chattel and to pay its value if the plaintiff wins the lawsuit. — Also termed delivery bond. Cf. replevin bond. [Cases: Attachment 261. C.J.S. Attachment §§ 247–251, 258.]

general-average bond. Maritime law. A cargo owner's bond exacted by a carrier to ensure that the owner will pay the general average contribution. • When the contribution amounts are disputed, the carrier requires this bond before agreeing to unload the ship. It may also be required when the amounts are undisputed, as security of payment. — Also termed average bond. See general average under AVERAGE(3). [Cases: Shipping 198. C.J.S. Shipping § 470.] guaranty bond. A bond combining the features of a fidelity and a surety bond, securing both payment and performance.

---

heritable bond.Scots law. A bond secured by land.

hypothecation bond.A bond given in the contract of bottomry or respondentia. [Cases: Shipping 89–100. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 223–231.]

indemnity bond.A bond to reimburse the holder for any actual or claimed loss caused by the issuer's or some other person's conduct. [Cases: Indemnity 28.]

injunction bond.A bond required of an injunction applicant to cover the costs incurred by a wrongfully enjoined party; a bond required as a condition of the issuance or continuance of a bond. Fed. R. Civ. P. 65(c). [Cases: Injunction 148. C.J.S. Injunctions §§ 168–174.]

interim bond. 1. A bond set by a police officer when a person is arrested for a minor offense, such as a misdemeanor, without a warrant. • Although the bond allows the arrestee to be released, it requires that the person be available for arraignment. 2. A bond set by a judge or magistrate and attached to a misdemeanor warrant.

judicial bond.A bond to indemnify an adverse party in a lawsuit against loss occasioned by delay or by deprivation of property resulting from the lawsuit. • Judicial bonds are usu. classified according to the nature of the action in which they are required, as with appeal bonds, injunction bonds, attachment bonds, replevin bonds, forthcoming or redelivery bonds, and bail bonds. A bond of a fiduciary — such as a receiver, administrator, executor, or guardian — is often required as a condition to appointment.

liability bond.A bond intended to protect the assured from a loss arising from some event specified in the bond.

license bond.A bond required of a person seeking a license to engage in a specified business or to receive a certain privilege. — Also termed permit bond. [Cases: Licenses 26. C.J.S. Licenses § 42.]

maintenance bond.A bond guaranteeing against construction defects for a period after the completion of the contracted-for work. [Cases: Principal and Surety 82; Public Contracts 45. C.J.S. Principal and Surety §§ 72, 77, 111; Public Administrative Law and Procedure § 45.]

negotiable bond.A bond that can be transferred from the original holder to another. [Cases: Bonds 74.]

official bond. 1. A bond given by a public officer requiring the faithful performance of the duties of office. 2. A bond filed by an executor, guardian, trustee, or other fiduciary. See fiduciary bond. [Cases: Officers and Public Employees 37. C.J.S. Officers and Public Employees §§ 61–62.]

payment bond.A bond given by a surety to cover any amounts that, because of the general contractor's default, are not paid to a subcontractor or materialman. [Cases: Principal and Surety 82; Public Contracts 46. C.J.S. Principal and Surety §§ 72, 77, 111; Public Administrative Law and Procedure §§ 46–50.]

“[T]he bond serves two purposes: it assures the owner a lien-free project, and it induces suppliers and subcontractors to accept work on the project, perhaps at a lower price, because of the assurance that they will be paid. Since no additional charge is generally made for a payment bond when a performance bond is being purchased, the two are usually issued simultaneously.” Grant S. Nelson, Real Estate Finance Law § 12.2, at 881 (3d ed. 1994).

peace bond. A bond required by a court from a person who has breached or threatened to breach the peace. — Also termed bond to keep the peace. See BREACH OF THE PEACE. [Cases: Breach of The Peace 15.1, 22. C.J.S. Breach of the Peace §§ 14, 18, 21, 23–25; Domestic Abuse and Violence §§ 2–3.]

penal bond. A bond requiring the obligor to pay a specified sum as a penalty if the underlying obligation is not performed. — Also termed penal bill; common-defeasance bond. [Cases: Bonds 1, 50. C.J.S. Bonds §§ 2–4, 7, 32, 34, 39.]

performance bond. See PERFORMANCE BOND.

permit bond. See license bond.

personal bond. 1. See bail bond; BAIL. 2. A written document in which an obligor formally recognizes an obligation to pay money or to do a specified act. 3. Scots law. A bond containing a promise without security.

probate bond. A bond, such as that filed by an executor, required by law to be given during a probate proceeding to ensure faithful performance by the person under bond. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 26. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators § 71.]

redelivery bond. See replevin bond.

refunding bond. A bond given to assure an executor that a legatee will return an estate distribution should the remaining estate assets be insufficient to pay the other legacies. [Cases: Executors and Administrators 299. C.J.S. Executors and Administrators § 541.]

registered bond. A governmental or corporate obligation to pay money, represented by a single certificate delivered to the creditor. • The obligation is registered in the holder's name on the books of the debtor. [Cases: Corporations 471; Municipal Corporations 936. C.J.S. Corporations § 667; Municipal Corporations § 1700.]

removal bond. 1. A bond to cover possible duties owed by a person who removes goods from a warehouse for export. 2. A bond required in some states when a litigant seeks to remove an action to another court. [Cases: Removal of Cases 89. C.J.S. Removal of Causes § 168.]

replevin bond (ri-plev-in). 1. A bond given by a plaintiff to replevy or attach property in the defendant's possession before judgment is rendered in a replevin action. • The bond protects the attaching officer and ensures the property's safekeeping until the court decides whether it should be returned to the defendant. — Also termed replevy bond. See REPLEVIN. [Cases: Replevin 33. C.J.S. Replevin § 54.] 2. A bond given by a defendant in a replevin action to regain attached property pending the outcome of litigation. • The bond does not discharge the attachment lien. [Cases: Replevin 49. C.J.S. Replevin §§ 76–77.] — Also termed replevy bond; claim-property bond; redelivery bond. Cf. forthcoming bond.

respondentia bond (re-spon-den-shee-<<schwa>> or ree-). A contract containing the pledge of a ship's cargo; a mortgage of a ship's cargo. Cf. bottomry bond. [Cases: Shipping 89–100. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 223–231.]

“A respondentia bond is a loan upon the pledge of the cargo, though an hypothecation of both ship and cargo may be made in one instrument; and generally, it is only a personal obligation on the borrower, and is not a specific lien on the goods, unless there be an express stipulation to that effect in the bond; and it amounts, at most, to an equitable lien on the salvage in case of loss.” 3 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law *354–55 (George Comstock ed., 11th ed. 1866).

simple bond. 1. A bond without a penalty. 2. A bond payable to a named obligee on demand or on a certain date.

statutory bond. A bond that literally or substantially meets the requirements of a statute. [Cases: Bonds 31, 50. C.J.S. Bonds §§ 21–23, 28, 32, 34, 39.]

straw bond. A bond, usu. a bail bond, that carries either a fictitious name or the name of a person who is unable to pay the sum guaranteed; a worthless or inadequate bond.

submission bond. A bond given by a litigant who agrees to submit a lawsuit to arbitration and to be bound by an arbitrator's award. [Cases: Arbitration 14. C.J.S. Arbitration § 184.]

supersedeas bond (soo-p*<<schwa>>r-see-dee-<<schwa>>*s). An appellant's bond to stay execution on a judgment during the pendency of the appeal. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(d); Fed. R. App. P. 8(b). — Often shortened to supersedeas. See SUPERSEDE(2). Cf. appeal bond. [Cases: Appeal and Error 460; Execution 158(2); Supersedeas 5. C.J.S. Appeal and Error §§ 408–410, 418; Executions §§ 155–156.]

surety bond. See PERFORMANCE BOND.

ten-percent bond. A bail bond in the amount of 10% of the bond otherwise required for a defendant's release. • This type of bond usu. allows a defendant to arrange a bond without the services of a bondsman or other surety.

unsecured bail bond. A bond that holds a defendant liable for a breach of the bond's conditions (such as failure to appear in court), but that is not secured by a deposit of or lien on property. See RECOGNIZANCE. [Cases: Bail 40, 55. C.J.S. Bail; Release and Detention Pending Proceedings §§ 8, 93–95.]

3. A long-term, interest-bearing debt instrument issued by a corporation or governmental entity, usu. to provide for a particular financial need; esp., such an instrument in which the debt is secured by a lien on the issuer's property. Cf. DEBENTURE. “Typically debt securities are notes, debentures, and bonds. Technically a ‘debenture’ is an unsecured corporate obligation while a ‘bond’ is secured by a lien or mortgage on corporate property. However, the word ‘bond’ is often used indiscriminately to cover both bonds and debentures .... A ‘bond’ is a long term debt security while a ‘note’ is usually a shorter term obligation. Bonds are historically bearer instruments, negotiable by delivery, issued in multiples of $1,000 with interest payments represented by coupons that are periodically clipped and submitted for payment.” Robert W. Hamilton, The Law of Corporations in a Nutshell 128 (3d ed. 1991).

accrual bond. A bond — usu. the last collateralized-mortgage-obligation issue — from which no principal or interest payment will be made until any bonds issued earlier have been fully paid. — Also termed Z-bond.

adjustment bond. A bond issued when a corporation is reorganized. — Also termed reorganization bond.

annuity bond. A bond that lacks a maturity date and that perpetually pays interest. — Also termed consol; perpetual bond; continued bond; irredeemable bond. [Cases: Annuities 1. C.J.S. Annuities §§ 2–4, 6–9, 21.]

arbitrage bond. A municipal bond, the proceeds of which are invested in bonds paying a higher yield than that paid by the municipality on its own bonds. • Under the Internal Revenue Code, the tax-free aspect of municipal-bond income may be lost if the bonds are classified as arbitrage bonds. See ARBITRAGE. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3132.10. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 94, 98.]

assessment bond. A municipal bond repaid from property assessment taxes. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 950. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 1708–1709.]

baby bond. A bond usu. having a face value of $1,000 or less.

bearer bond. A bond payable to the person holding it. • The transfer of possession transfers the bond's ownership. Cf. registered bond. [Cases: Bonds 74, 86.]

bond and mortgage. A bond that is backed by a mortgage on realty. — Also termed mortgage bond. Cf. DEBENTURE(3).

book-entry bond. A bond for which no written certificate is issued to reflect ownership.

callable bond. See redeemable bond.

chattel-mortgage bond. A bond secured by a mortgage on personal property.

closed-end mortgage bond. A mortgage bond with provisions prohibiting the debtor from issuing additional bonds against the bond's collateral.

collateral trust bond. 1. A bond representing a debt secured by the deposit of another security with a trustee. — Also termed collateral trust certificate. 2. A long-term corporate bond that is secured by other companies' mortgage bonds held by the corporation, which pledges and deposits the mortgage bonds in trust. • The interest on these collateral trust bonds is typically lower than that received on the bonds pledged; the surplus is used to form a sinking fund to redeem the collateral trust bonds. A holding company often issues these bonds by pledging the stock of a subsidiary.

commodity-backed bond. A bond with interest payments or principal repayment tied to the price of a specific commodity, such as gold. • This type of bond, which has a low interest rate but provides a hedge against inflation because the commodity price will usu. rise, is often issued by a firm with a stake in the commodity.

consolidated bond. 1. A railroad bond secured by a mortgage on the entire railroad line formed by several consolidated railroads. Cf. divisional bond. 2. A single bond that replaces two or more outstanding issues.

construction bond. A bond issued by a governmental entity for a building project. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 911. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations § 1649.]

convertible bond. A bond that can be exchanged for stock shares in the corporation that issued the bond. [Cases: Corporations 470. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 664–665.]

corporate bond. 1. An interest-bearing instrument containing a corporation's promise to pay a fixed sum of money at some future time. • A corporate bond may be secured or unsecured. [Cases: Corporations 470. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 664–665.] 2. A bond issued by a corporation, usu. having a maturity of ten years or longer.

county bond. A county-issued bond paid through a levy on a special taxing district, whether or not the district is coextensive with the county. [Cases: Counties 187. C.J.S. Counties § 226.]

coupon bond. A bond with attached interest coupons that the holder may present to receive interest payments. See BOND COUPON.

cumulative income bond. See income bond.

cushion bond. A bond paying an uncommonly high interest rate.

debenture bond. See DEBENTURE(3).

deferred-interest bond. A bond whose interest payments are postponed for a time.

discount bond. A bond sold at its current market value, which is less than its face value. — Also termed non-interest-bearing bond.

divisional bond. A railroad bond secured by a mortgage on a specific segment of a consolidated railroad system. Cf. consolidated bond (1).

endorsed bond. See guaranteed bond (1).

equipment trust bond. A bond secured by tangible property, such as an airplane. • A trustee usu. holds title to the equipment, which is leased to the issuer. — Also termed equipment trust certificate.

first-mortgage bond. A long-term bond that has the first claim on specified assets.

flat bond. A bond that trades without accrued interest.

floating-interest bond. A bond with an interest rate that moves up and down with changing economic conditions.

flower bond. A Treasury bond redeemable before maturity if used to settle federal estate taxes. • Flower bonds were issued before April 1971 and reached final maturity in 1998. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4830. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 548–549, 727.]

foreign bond. A bond issued in a currency different from that used where the issuer is located, such as a Canadian-government bond that is denominated in U.S. dollars and issued in the United States.

full-faith-and-credit bond. See general-obligation bond.

general-mortgage bond. A corporate bond secured by a blanket mortgage on property. • The general-mortgage bond, however, is often less valuable because it is subordinate to prior mortgages. [Cases: Corporations 470. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 664–665.]

general-obligation bond. A municipal bond payable from general revenue rather than from a special fund. • Such a bond has no collateral to back it other than the issuer's taxing power. — Often shortened to obligation bond. — Also termed full-faith-and-credit bond. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 953.]

“There are two main types of bonds issued by local governments: general obligation bonds and revenue bonds.... Bonds will be assumed to be general obligation unless they themselves contain a clear promise to pay only out of a special fund.” Osborne M. Reynolds Jr., Handbook of Local Government Law § 104, at 323 (1982).

gold bond. 1. Hist. A bond payable in gold coin or U.S. currency at the election of the bondholder. • This type of bond existed until 1933, when the U.S. monetary system abandoned the gold standard. 2. A commodity-backed bond that is secured by gold and issued by a gold-mining company.

government bond. See savings bond; government security under SECURITY(4).

guaranteed bond. 1. A bond issued by a corporation and guaranteed by a third party. • This type of bond is common among railroads. — Also termed endorsed bond; assumed bond; joint bond. 2. A bond issued by a subsidiary corporation whose parent corporation guarantees the principal and interest payments.

high-yield bond. A high-risk, high-yield subordinated bond issued by a company with a credit rating below investment grade. — Also termed junk bond; high-yield debt obligation.

improvement bond. See revenue bond.

income bond. A corporate bond secured by the corporation's net income, after the payment of interest on senior debt. • Sometimes this type of bond is a cumulative-income bond, in which case, if the income in any year is insufficient to pay the full interest, the deficit is carried forward as a lien on any future income. — Also termed cumulative income bond. [Cases: Corporations 470. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 664–665.]

indeterminate bond.A callable bond with no set maturity date.

industrial-development bond. 1. A type of revenue bond in which interest and principal payments are backed by a corporation rather than a municipality. • This type of bond usu. finances a private business facility. 2. A tax-exempt municipal bond that finances a usu. local industry. — Also termed industrial-revenue bond. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 912. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations § 1650.]

interchangeable bond.A bond that can be exchanged for a different type of bond, such as a coupon bond that may be exchanged for a registered bond.

interest bond.A bond paid in lieu of interest due on other bonds.

investment-grade bond.A bond with a rating of BBB or better by the leading bond rating services. See INVESTMENT-GRADE RATING.

irredeemable bond.See annuity bond.

joint and several bond.A bond in which the principal and interest are guaranteed by two or more obligors. [Cases: Bonds 51. C.J.S. Bonds §§ 40–43.]

joint bond.A bond signed by two or more obligors. • In contrast to a joint and several bond, all the obligors must be joined if an action is brought on the bond. [Cases: Bonds 51. C.J.S. Bonds §§ 40–43.]

junior bond.A bond subordinate in priority to another bond.

junk bond.See high-yield bond.

leasehold-mortgage bond.A bond issued by a lessee and secured by the lessee's leasehold interest.

Lloyd's bond.Hist. English law. A corporate bond issued on work done or goods delivered. • A bond issued in this manner avoids any restriction on indebtedness existing either in law or in corporate bylaws. The term supposedly derives from an English lawyer named Lloyd, who is credited with devising the method.

mortgage bond.A bond secured by the issuer's real property.

multimaturity bond.See put bond.

municipal bond.A bond issued by a nonfederal government or governmental unit, such as a state bond to finance local improvements. • The interest received from a municipal bond may be exempt from federal, state, and local taxes. — Often shortened (in plural) to municipals; munies. — Also termed municipal security. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 911. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations § 1649.]

noncallable bond.See noncallable security under SECURITY.

non-interest-bearing bond.See discount bond.

nonstatutory bond. See voluntary bond.

obligation bond. See general-obligation bond.

open-end mortgage bond. A mortgage bond that can be used as security for another bond issue.

optional bond. A bond that the holder may redeem before its maturity date if the issuer agrees.

option tender bond. See put bond.

participating bond. A bond that entitles the holder to a share of corporate profits but does not have a fixed interest rate.

passive bond. A bond bearing no interest. See passive debt under DEBT. [Cases: Bonds 63. C.J.S. Bonds § 52.]

perpetual bond. See annuity bond.

post-obit bond. An agreement by which a borrower promises to pay to the lender a lump sum (exceeding the amount advanced) upon the death of a person whose property the borrower expects to inherit. • Equity traditionally enforces such bonds only if the terms are just and reasonable. — Also termed post-obit agreement.

premium bond. A bond with a selling price above face or redemption value. See PREMIUM(3).

put bond. A bond that gives the holder the right to redeem it for full value at specified times before maturity. — Also termed multimaturity bond; option tender bond. Cf. put option under OPTION.

railroad-aid bond. A bond issued by a public body to fund railway construction.

redeemable bond. A bond that the issuer may call for payment. — Also termed callable bond.

re-funding bond. A bond that retires an outstanding bond. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 913. C.J.S. Municipal Corporations §§ 1651, 1653.]

registered bond. A bond that only the holder of record may redeem, enjoy benefits from, or transfer to another. Cf. bearer bond. [Cases: Bonds 74, 86.]

reorganization bond. See adjustment bond.

revenue bond. A government bond repayable from public funds. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 950(15).]

savings bond. A nontransferable bond issued by the U.S. government. [Cases: United States 91. C.J.S. United States §§ 164, 167.]

school bond. A bond issued by a city or school district to fund school construction.

secured bond. A bond backed by some type of security. Cf. DEBENTURE(2). [Cases: Schools

97. C.J.S. Schools and School Districts §§ 522–524, 527–529.]

serial bond.A bond issued concurrently with other bonds having different maturity dates.

bonorum possessio contra tabulas (b*<<schwa>>-nor<<schwa>>m* p*<<schwa>>-zes[h]-ee-oh kahn-tr<<schwa>> tab-y<<schwa>>-l<<schwa>>s*). [Latin “possession of goods contrary to the terms of the will”] Roman law. An order authorizing the applicant to take possession of an estate contrary to the testament. • Magistrates made such orders in certain cases, as where a testator passed over a daughter or an emancipated son who was not expressly disinherited. The legacies in the will remained valid, but if the testator passed over any male in the testator's power (patria potestas), the will was invalidated and intestacy resulted. — Also termed contra tabulas.

“The Praetor could not affect the civil validity of a will; he could not make or unmake a heres. He could, however, give bonorum possessio to a person, heres or not at civil law, which gave him power to take possession of the goods by appropriate steps, bonorum possessio contra tabulas...” W.W. Buckland, A Text-Book of Roman Law from Augustus to Justinian 324 (Peter Stein ed., 3d ed. 1963).

bookland (buuk-land).Hist. Land held under charter or deed; freehold land. • This was a privileged form of ownership (usu. free of the customary burdens on land) generally reserved for churches and leaders. — Also spelled bocland; bockland. — Also termed charter-land. Cf. LOANLAND; FOLKLAND.

“From very early times it was common to make grants of land to religious bodies or to individuals. The grants were effected by the king as the chief of the community, with the consent of the great men, who in conjunction with the great ecclesiastics, after the introduction of Christianity, formed the Witenagemot, or Assembly of the Wise. The grant was made by means of a ‘book’ or charter. Land thus granted was said to be ‘booked’ to the grantee, and was called bocland or bookland. Thus bookland comes to mean land held under a written instrument by private persons or churches; who or whose predecessors are, or at least are supposed to have been, grantees of the community. The practice seems, after the introduction of Christianity, to have prevailed chiefly in favour of religious houses, and in this way the great ecclesiastical corporations acquired their property.... In process of time the conception of bookland seems to be coextensive with that of alodial land.” Kenelm E. Digby, An Introduction to the History of the Law of Real Property 11–12 (5th ed. 1897).

“Prior to the Conquest, property in land was divided into bocland, folcland, and laenland. The exact nature of these rights has been disputed, but probably bocland was held by owners of high station claiming under a charter of privileges originally granted by the King, while folcland was held by ordinary owners according to the custom of the district in which the land lay. Laenland, or loanland, appears to have represented something in the nature of a tenancy of a less enduring character. It derived its existence from the loan of land by one person to another, and hence emphasises the relation later known as that of feudal landlord and tenant. Furthermore, as bocland became more common, a tendency for laenland and bocland to coalesce appeared.” A.K.R. Kiralfy, Potter's Outlines of English Legal History 195 (5th ed. 1958).

[Cases: Copyrights and Intellectual Property 67.2. C.J.S. Copyrights and Intellectual Property § 58.] 2. See PIRATE RECORDING.3.COUNTERFEIT RECORDING.

BOOTSTRAP

bootstrap,vb.1. To succeed despite sparse resources. 2. To reach an unsupported conclusion from questionable premises.

bootstrap doctrine.Conflict of laws. The doctrine that forecloses collateral attack on the jurisdiction of another state's court that has rendered final judgment. • The doctrine applies when a court in an earlier case has taken jurisdiction over a person, over status, or over land. It is based on the principle that under res judicata, the parties are bound by the judgment, whether the issue was the court's jurisdiction or something else. The bootstrap doctrine, however, cannot give effectiveness to a judgment by a court that had no subject-matter jurisdiction. For example, parties cannot, by appearing before a state court, “bootstrap” that court into having jurisdiction over a federal matter. [Cases: Judgment 818. C.J.S. Judgments § 986.]

“If the court which rendered the judgment has, with the parties before it, expressly passed upon the jurisdictional question in the case, or had opportunity to do so because the parties could have raised the question, that question is res judicata, and is therefore not subject to collateral attack in the state in which the judgment is sued on. This has been called the ‘bootstrap doctrine,’ the idea being that a court which initially had no jurisdiction can when the issue is litigated lift itself into jurisdiction by its own incorrect but conclusive finding that it does have jurisdiction.” Robert A. Leflar, American Conflicts Law § 79, at 159 (3d ed. 1977).

BOOTSTRAP SALE

bootstrap sale. See SALE.

BOOTY

BORK

bork (bork), vb. Slang. 1. (Of the U.S. Senate) to reject a nominee, esp. for the U.S. Supreme Court, on grounds of the nominee's unorthodox political and legal philosophy. • The term derives from the name of Robert Bork, President Ronald Reagan's unsuccessful nominee for the Supreme Court in 1987. 2. (Of political and legal activists) to embark on a media campaign to pressure U.S. senators into rejecting a President's nominee. 3. Generally, to smear a political opponent.

BORN-ALIVE TEST

born-alive test. 1. Under the common law, a showing that an infant was completely expelled from the mother's womb and possessed a separate and independent existence from the mother. 2. A showing that an infant, at the time of birth, was capable of living a separate and independent existence (regardless of how long the infant actually lived).

BORN VALID

born valid.Patents. Presumed to be good; entitled to the legal presumption that a patent was justified when issued and that challengers bear the burden of proving by clear and convincing evidence that the patent should not have been granted. • Defenses against infringement claims take one of three tacks: denying that the product infringes on the plaintiff's rights, challenging the validity of the patent itself, or challenging its enforceability. — Also termed presumption of validity. [Cases: Patents 112.1. C.J.S. Patents §§ 194, 203–205, 207.]

“The patent statute is unambiguous: ‘A patent shall be presumed valid .... The burden of establishing invalidity of a patent or any claim thereof shall rest on the party asserting such invalidity.’ A patent is born valid. It remains valid until a challenger proves it was stillborn or had birth defects, or is no longer viable as an enforceable right.” Roper Corp. v. Litton Sys., Inc., 757 F.2d 1266, 1270 (Fed. Cir. 1985)(quoting 37 USCA § 282).

BOROUGH

borough (b<<schwa>>r-<<schwa>>), n.1. A town or township with a municipal charter, such as one of the five political divisions of New York City. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 6. C.J.S. wainbote. An allowance of wood for the repair of wagons.

2. A compensatory payment for causing an injury. Cf. BOTELESS.“Bot (relief, remedy, compensation) was set at a certain number of shillings in case of wounding, a higher number if the wound injured not only flesh but also bone; indemnity had to be higher if the bone was broken. And so it went with other injuries.” Charles Herman Kinnane, A First Book on Anglo-American Law 215 (2d ed. 1952).

Godbote. A church fine paid for offenses against God.

hadbote.Hist. Amends for an affront to or violence against a person in holy orders. — Also spelled had-bot.

kinbote. See manbote.

maegbote (mag-boht). Bote paid to the relatives of an injured person.

manbote. Compensation for killing someone. — Also termed kinbote.

theftbote. The acceptance of a payment from a thief in exchange for an agreement not to prosecute; COMPOUNDING A CRIME. • The payment might be either a bribe or a return of the stolen goods themselves. This was a form of compounding a felony.

“Another offence of this class is theftbote or composition with a thief by which the person robbed takes his goods again and by contract suppresses the robbery and defrauds justice. This crime is punishable by fine and imprisonment.” 1 Sir Robert Chambers, A Course of Lectures on the English Law: 1767–1773 448 (Thomas M. Curley ed., 1986).

3. A tenant's right to use as much wood from the estate as necessary for fuel, fences, and other agricultural operations. • Bote in this sense is an earlier form of estovers. 4. The repair of bridges, highways, and public works. 5. An assessment levied to fund such repairs.

BOTELESS

boteless (boht-l<<schwa>>s), adj.1.Hist. Of or relating to an offense that cannot be expiated or otherwise remedied by the payment of a fine, the offender being required to suffer loss of liberty or life. • Boteless offenses appeared in Anglo-Saxon Britain about A.D. 700. They appear to have involved treason or violence against the king. 2.Hist. Without relief or remedy; without the privilege of making satisfaction for a crime by pecuniary payment. • The modern word bootless is derived from this term. Cf. BOTE(2).

“In the laws of Ine it appeared possible, in the discretion of the kind, to put certain offenders to death, rather than let them save themselves by paying a money fine. This involved a step in the modern direction, as far as criminal law is concerned. The ‘boteless’ offense, that is, the offense which can not be fully expiated by the payment of a money fine so that the guilty person must suffer loss of liberty or life is so familiar to us that we take it as a matter of course; it seems, however, to have first appeared in Anglo-Saxon Britain about the year A.D. 700. In general, these ‘boteless’ offenses seem to have appeared in connection with matter that we would say now involved treason or violence offered to the king.” Charles Herman Kinnane, A First Book on Anglo-American Law 216–17 (2d ed. 1952).

BOTHAGIUM

bothagium (bah-thay-jee-<<schwa>>m).Hist. Customary dues paid to a lord for placing a booth in a fair or market. — Also termed bord-halfpenny; boothage.

bound,n. (usu. pl.) 1.BOUNDARY <metes and bounds>.2. A limitation or restriction on action <within the bounds of the law>.

bound,vb. To delineate a property boundary <property bounded by the creek>. Cf. BIND.

BOUNDARY

boundary. 1. A natural or artificial separation that delineates the confines of real property <the creek serves as a boundary between the two properties>. See METES AND BOUNDS. [Cases: Boundaries 1–25. C.J.S. Boundaries §§ 2–63.]

“The object of all rules for the establishment of boundaries is to ascertain the actual location of the boundary as made at the time. The important and controlling consideration, where there is a conflict as to a boundary, is the parties' intention, whether express or shown by surrounding circumstances ....” 11 C.J.S. Boundaries § 3 (1995).

agreed boundary.A negotiated boundary by which adjacent landowners resolve uncertainties over the extent of their land. — Also termed boundary by agreement; boundary by acquiescence. See DOCTRINE OF PRACTICAL LOCATION.

land boundary.The limit of a landholding, usu. described by linear measurements of the borders, by points of the compass, or by stationary markers. See FORTY; LEGAL DESCRIPTION. [Cases: Boundaries 1–25. C.J.S. Boundaries §§ 2–63.]

lost boundary.A boundary whose markers have decayed, changed, or been removed or displaced in such a manner that the boundary's correct location can no longer be determined with confidence.

natural boundary.Any nonartificial thing (such as a river or ocean) that forms a boundary of a nation, a political subdivision, or a piece of property. — Also termed natural object. [Cases: Boundaries 4. C.J.S. Boundaries §§ 5–6.]

private boundary.An artificial boundary marker. [Cases: Boundaries 5. C.J.S. Boundaries §§ 3, 5, 7.]

bounty. 1. A premium or benefit offered or given, esp. by a government, to induce someone to take action or perform a service . 2. A gift, esp. in a will; generosity in giving <the court will distribute the testator's bounty equally>. 3. The portion of a salvage award exceeding what the salvor would be entitled to on the basis of quantum meruit. — Also termed gratuity; bonus.

BOUNTY HUNTER

bounty hunter. A person who for a fee pursues someone charged with or suspected of a crime; esp., a person hired by a bail-bond company to find and arrest a criminal defendant who has breached the bond agreement by failing to appear in court as ordered. — Also termed bail-enforcement agent.

BOUNTY LAND

bounty land. See LAND.

BOUNTY-LAND WARRANT

bounty-land warrant. Hist. A state- or federal-government-issued certificate affirming a veteran's eligibility to apply for ownership of a certain amount of public land. • A veteran had to apply for a bounty-land warrant; it was not automatically granted. When the application was approved, the veteran received notice that the warrant had been issued in the veteran's name and was on file in the General Land Office. The veteran could then sell or otherwise transfer the bounty-land warrant to anyone, even a nonveteran. The warrant holder acquired the right to redeem the warrant and apply for a land patent. The last statute authorizing the issue of bounty-land warrants was enacted in 1894, and the last warrants were issued in 1906.

BOX-TOP LICENSE

box-top license.See shrink-wrap license under LICENSE.

BOYCOTT

boycott,n.1. An action designed to achieve the social or economic isolation of an adversary. • The term derives from Captain Charles C. Boycott, an English landowner in famine-plagued Ireland of the 1870s; because of his ruthless treatment of Irish tenant farmers, the Irish Land League ostracized him. 2. A concerted refusal to do business with a party to express disapproval of that party's practices. 3. A refusal to deal in one transaction in an effort to obtain terms desired in a second transaction. • Under the Sherman Antitrust Act, even peaceful persuasion of a person to refrain from dealing with another can amount to a boycott. See 15 USCA §§ 1–7. Cf. PICKETING; STRIKE. — boycott,vb.

consumer boycott.A boycott by consumers of products or services to show displeasure with the manufacturer, seller, or provider.

group boycott.Antitrust. 1.CONCERTED REFUSAL TO DEAL. 2. A type of secondary boycott by two or more competitors who refuse to do business with one firm unless it refrains from doing business with an actual or potential competitor of the boycotters. • A group boycott can violate the Sherman Act and is analyzed under either the per se rule or the rule of reason, depending on the nature of the boycott. See PER SE RULE; RULE OF REASON.

“Since early in this century, courts have interpreted Section 1 [of the Sherman Act] to limit the ability of competing firms to agree not to deal with or to isolate another firm. Unlike many cartels, where all competitors voluntarily join to fix prices (and share monopoly rewards), concerted refusals to deal usually involve a subset of all market participants who band together to gain market power by destroying or coercing their rivals. Such organized refusals to deal with a particular firm are usually given the pejorative label of ‘group boycotts.’ ” Ernest Gellhorn & William E. Kovacic, Antitrust Law and Economics in a Nutshell 204 (4th ed. 1994).

primary boycott.A boycott by union members who stop dealing with a former employer.

secondary boycott.A boycott of the customers or suppliers of a business so that they will withhold their patronage from that business. • For example, a group might boycott a manufacturer who advertises on a radio station that broadcasts messages considered objectionable by the group.

BRACKET CREEP

bracket creep.The process by which inflation or increased income pushes individuals into higher tax brackets.

BRACKET SYSTEM

bracket system.Tax law. A system for collecting a sales tax based on an index providing for a graduated payment depending on the purchase price of the item, the purpose being fourfold: (1) to avoid having the seller collect a tax less than one cent; (2) to avoid requiring the state to figure the exact amount of tax on each sale; (3) to allow the seller to have a ready means for fixing the tax to be collected; and (4) to allow the state to collect about the right amount of tax. • This system may be provided for either by statute or by administrative regulation. [Cases: Taxation 1338.1. C.J.S. Taxation § 2062.]

BRACTON

Bracton. The common title of one of the earliest books of English law, De Legibus et Consuetudinibus Angliae (ca. 1250). • Henry of Bratton (also known as Bracton), a judge of the Court of King's Bench and of Assize, is credited with writing the work, though he may have merely revised an earlier version.

“Bracton's book is the crown and flower of English medieval jurisprudence.... Romanesque in form, English in substance — this perhaps is the best brief phrase that we can find for the outcome of his labours; but yet it is not very good. He had at his command and had diligently studied ... various parts of the Corpus Iuris Civilis, of the Decretum, and the Decretals, and he levied contributions from the canonist Tancred.... Bracton's debt — and therefore our debt — to the civilians is inestimably great. But for them, his book would have been impossible; but for them ... we should have missed not only the splendid plan, the orderly arrangement, the keen dilemmas, but also the sacerdotal spirit of the work. On the other hand, the main matter of his treatise is genuine English law laboriously collected out of the plea rolls of the king's court.... [H]is endeavor is to state the practice, the best and most approved practice, of the king's court, and of any desire to romanize the law we must absolutely acquit him." 1 Frederick Pollock & Frederic W. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I 206–09 (2d ed. 1898).

BRADY ACT

Brady Act. A federal law establishing a national system for quickly checking the background of a prospective handgun purchaser. • The formal name of the law is the Brady Handgun Violence Prevention Act. The U.S. Supreme Court held unconstitutional the law's interim provision, which required chief state law-enforcement officers (usu. sheriffs) to conduct background checks until the national system was in place. The act is named for James Brady, who, as a member of President Ronald Reagan's staff, was wounded by gunfire during an attempted presidential assassination in 1981. 18 USCA §§ 921–930.

BRADY<TT> MATERIAL

Brady material. Information or evidence that is favorable to a criminal defendant's case and that the prosecution has a duty to disclose. • The prosecution's withholding of such information violates the defendant's due-process rights. Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83, 83 S.Ct. 1194 (1963). See exculpatory evidence under EVIDENCE. Cf. JENCKS MATERIAL. [Cases: Constitutional Law 268(5); Criminal Law 700. C.J.S. Constitutional Law §§ 1053–1060; Criminal Law §§ 486, 490, 510, 1233, 1236.]

BRAIN DEATH

brain death. See DEATH.

BRAKE

brake. See DUKE OF EXETER'S DAUGHTER.

BRANCH

branch. 1. An offshoot, lateral extension, or division of an institution <the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of government>. 2. A line of familial descent stemming from a common ancestor <the Taylor branch of the Bradshaw family>. — Also termed stock.

BRAND

brand. Trademarks. A name or symbol used by a seller or manufacturer to identify goods or services and to distinguish them from competitors' goods or services; the term used colloquially in business and industry to refer to a corporate or product name, a business image, or a mark, regardless of whether it may legally qualify as a trademark. • Branding is an ancient practice, evidenced by individual names and marks found on bricks, pots, etc. In the Middle Ages, guilds granted their members the right to use a guild-identifying symbol as a mark of quality and for legal protection. — Also termed brand name.

private brand. An identification mark placed on goods made by someone else under license or other arrangement and marketed as one's own. • The seller of private-brand goods sponsors those goods in the market, becomes responsible for their quality, and has rights to prevent others from using the same mark.

BRAND ARCHITECTURE

brand architecture. Trademarks. The strategic analysis and development of optimal relationships among the multiple levels of a company and its brands, products, features, technology, or ingredient names. [Cases: Trade Regulation 5. C.J.S. Trade-Mark, Trade-Names, and Unfair Competition §§ 5, 16.]

BRANDEIS BRIEF

Brandeis brief (bran-dīz). A brief, usu. an appellate brief, that makes use of social and economic studies in addition to legal principles and citations. • The brief is named after Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis, who as an advocate filed the most famous such brief in Muller v. Oregon, 208 U.S. 412, 28 S.Ct. 324 (1908), in which he persuaded the Court to uphold a statute setting a maximum ten-hour workday for women.

BRANDEIS RULES

Brandeis rules. See ASHWANDER RULES.

BRANDING

branding. 1. The act of marking cattle with a hot iron to identify their owner. [Cases: Animals 5. C.J.S. Animals § 15.] 2. Formerly, the punishment of marking an offender with a hot iron.

BRAND NAME

brand name. 1. BRAND. 2. TRADENAME.

BRANKS

branks (brangks). Hist. An instrument used to punish scolds, consisting of an iron framework that surrounded the head and entered the mouth to keep the offender's tongue depressed. — Also termed scolding bridle. See SCOLD. Cf. CASTIGATORY.

BRASSAGE

brassage (bras-ij). Hist. A government charge for the actual cost of coining metals. • Any profit is termed seigniorage. See SEIGNIORAGE(2).

BRAWL

brawl, n. 1. A noisy quarrel or fight. 2. The offense of engaging in such a quarrel or fight. • In most jurisdictions, the offense is a statutory civil misdemeanor. 3. Hist. Eccles. law. The offense of disturbing the peace of a consecrated building or area; specif., a disturbance, such as arguing, within the churchyard or church. • Until 1860, offenders faced trial in ecclesiastical courts. — Also termed brawling. — brawl, vb.

---

breach,n. A violation or infraction of a law or obligation <breach of warranty> <breach of duty>. — breach,vb.

BREACH OF ARREST

breach of arrest.A military offense committed by an officer who, being under arrest in quarters, leaves those quarters without a superior officer's authorization. See arrest in quarters under ARREST.

BREACH OF CLOSE

breach of close.The unlawful or unauthorized entry on another person's land; a common-law trespass. — Also termed breaking a close. See CLOSE(1). [Cases: Trespass 10. C.J.S. Trespass §§ 13–15.]

BREACH OF CONTRACT

breach of contract.Violation of a contractual obligation by failing to perform one's own promise, by repudiating it, or by interfering with another party's performance. [Cases: Contracts 312, 315. C.J.S. Contracts § 561.]

“A breach may be one by non-performance, or by repudiation, or by both. Every breach gives rise to a claim for damages, and may give rise to other remedies. Even if the injured party sustains no pecuniary loss or is unable to show such loss with sufficient certainty, he has at least a claim for nominal damages. If a court chooses to ignore a trifling departure, there is no breach and no claim arises.” Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 236 cmt. a (1979).

active breach of contract.Civil law. The negligent performance of a contractual obligation, to the point of acting outside the contract's terms. • Under Louisiana law before 1984, active breach of contract was contrasted with passive breach of contract, which was a failure to perform the obligations created by the contract. Unlike a passive breach, an active breach of contract could give rise to a claim in contract and in tort. The distinction was abolished in 1984. Cf. passive breach of contract. [Cases: Contracts 312. C.J.S. Contracts § 561.]

anticipatory breach.A breach of contract caused by a party's anticipatory repudiation, i.e., unequivocally indicating that the party will not perform when performance is due. • Under these circumstances, the nonbreaching party may elect to treat the repudiation as an immediate breach and sue for damages. — Also termed breach by anticipatory repudiation; constructive breach. See anticipatory repudiation under REPUDIATION. [Cases: Contracts 313. C.J.S. Contracts § 534.]

“A repudiation by one party may occur before the time for performance has arrived. Such a repudiation is called an anticipatory breach, and it gives the innocent party the option of treating the contract as terminated at once and suing for damages immediately if he chooses or, alternatively, of waiting until the time of performance has arrived, and then again calling on the other party to perform. Should he choose the latter course he runs the risk that the contract may possibly become frustrated in the interim, in which case he will have lost his right to damages.”

---

P.S. Atiyah, An Introduction to the Law of Contract 298 (3d ed. 1981).

constructive breach. See anticipatory breach.

continuing breach. A breach of contract that endures for a considerable time or is repeated at short intervals.

efficient breach. An intentional breach of contract and payment of damages by a party who would incur greater economic loss by performing under the contract. See EFFICIENT-BREACH THEORY.

immediate breach. A breach that entitles the nonbreaching party to sue for damages immediately.

material breach. A breach of contract that is significant enough to permit the aggrieved party to elect to treat the breach as total (rather than partial), thus excusing that party from further performance and affording it the right to sue for damages. [Cases: Contracts 317, 318. C.J.S. Contracts §§ 334, 450–455, 507, 541–544.]

“In determining whether a failure to render or to offer performance is material, the following circumstances are significant: (a) the extent to which the injured party will be deprived of the benefit which he reasonably expected; (b) the extent to which the injured party can be adequately compensated for the part of that benefit of which he will be deprived; (c) the extent to which the party failing to perform or to offer to perform will suffer forfeiture; (d) the likelihood that the party failing to perform or to offer to perform will cure his failure, taking account of all the circumstances including any reasonable assurances; (e) the extent to which the behavior of the party failing to perform or to offer to perform comports with standards of good faith and fair dealing.” Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 241 (1979).

partial breach. A breach of contract that is less significant than a material breach and that gives the aggrieved party a right to damages, but does not excuse that party from performance; specif., a breach for which the injured party may substitute the remedial rights provided by law for only part of the existing contract rights. [Cases: Contracts 319. C.J.S. Contracts § 593.]

passive breach of contract. Civil law. A failure to perform the requirements of a contract. • Under Louisiana law up to 1984, passive breach of contract was contrasted with active breach of contract, which was negligence in performing a contractual obligation. While an active breach of contract could give rise to claims in contract and in tort, a passive breach of contract usu. did not give rise to a tort claim. Cf. active breach of contract. [Cases: Contracts 315. C.J.S. Contracts § 561.]

total breach. A breach of contract for which the remedial rights provided by law are substituted for all the existing contractual rights, or can be so substituted by the injured party; esp., a material breach that gives rise to a claim for damages based on the aggrieved party's remaining rights to performance under the contract. [Cases: Contracts 317. C.J.S. Contracts § 507.]

BREACH OF COVENANT

breach of covenant. The violation of an express or implied promise, usu. in a contract, either to do or not to do an act. See COVENANT. [Cases: Contracts 312. C.J.S. Contracts § 561.]

BREACH OF DUTY

breach of duty. The violation of a legal or moral obligation; the failure to act as the law obligates one to act; esp., a fiduciary's violation of an obligation owed to another. See NEGLIGENCE. [Cases: Negligence 250. C.J.S. Negligence § 59.]

BREACH OF PEACE

breach of peace. See BREACH OF THE PEACE.

BREACH OF PRISON

breach of prison. See PRISON BREACH.

BREACH OF PROMISE

breach of promise. The violation of one's word or undertaking, esp. a promise to marry. • Under English common law, an engagement to marry had the nature of a commercial contract, so if one party broke the engagement without justification, the innocent party was entitled to damages. See HEARTBALM STATUTE . [Cases: Breach of Marriage Promise 1–36. C.J.S. Breach of Marriage Promise §§ 2–21.]

BREACH OF THE PEACE

breach of the peace. The criminal offense of creating a public disturbance or engaging in disorderly conduct, particularly by making an unnecessary or distracting noise. — Also termed breach of peace; disturbing the peace; disturbance of the peace; public disturbance. See disorderly conduct under CONDUCT. [Cases: Breach of the Peace 1–14. C.J.S. Breach of the Peace §§ 2–13; Domestic Abuse and Violence §§ 3, 6.]

“A breach of the peace takes place when either an assault is committed on an individual or public alarm and excitement is caused. Mere annoyance or insult is not enough: thus at common law a householder could not give a man into custody for violently and persistently ringing his door-bell. It is the particular duty of a magistrate or police officer to preserve the peace unbroken; hence if he has reasonable cause to believe that a breach of the peace is imminent he may be justified in committing an assault or effecting an arrest.” R.F.V. Heuston, Salmond on the Law of Torts 131 (17th ed. 1977).

“The beginning of our criminal justice ... was concerned very largely with the problem of keeping the peace. Because of this fact all early indictments included some such phrase as ‘against the peace of the King’; and until recently statutory provisions for simplification, indictments in this country were thought to be incomplete without some such conclusion as ‘against the peace and dignity of the state.’ As a result of this history all indictable offenses are sometimes regarded as deeds which violate the public peace, and hence in a loose sense the term ‘breach of the peace’ is regarded as a synonym for crime.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 477 (3d ed. 1982).

BREACH OF TRUST

breach of trust. A trustee's violation of either the trust's terms or the trustee's general fiduciary obligations; the violation of a duty that equity imposes on a trustee, whether the violation was willful, fraudulent, negligent, or inadvertent. • A breach of trust subjects the trustee to removal and creates personal liability.

BREACH OF WARRANTY

breach of warranty. 1. A breach of an express or implied warranty relating to the title, quality, content, or condition of goods sold. UCC § 2-312. [Cases: Sales 284. C.J.S. Sales § 251.] 2. Insurance. WARRANTY(3).

BREAD ACTS

bread acts. Hist. Laws providing for the sustenance of persons kept in prison for debt. • These laws were formerly on the books in both England and the United States.

BREAD-AND-CHEESE ORDEAL

bread-and-cheese ordeal. See ordeal of the morsel under ORDEAL.

BREADTH OF A CLAIM

breadth of a claim. Patents. The scope or extent to which a patent claim excludes others from infringing activity.

break, vb. 1. To violate or disobey (a law) <to break the law>. 2. To nullify (a will) by court proceeding <Samson, the disinherited son, successfully broke the will>. 3. To escape from (a place of confinement) without permission <break out of prison>. 4. To open (a door, gate, etc.) and step through illegally <he broke the close>.

BREAKAGE

breakage. 1. An allowance given by a manufacturer to a buyer for goods damaged during transit or storage. 2. Insignificant amounts of money retained by racetrack promoters from bets. • The retention of these small sums avoids the inconvenience of counting and paying out inconsequential winnings. [Cases: Gaming 9.]

BREAK A HOUSE

break a house. To violently and feloniously remove or sever any part of a house or its locks.

BREAKDOWN OF THE MARRIAGE

breakdown of the marriage. See IRRETRIEVABLE BREAKDOWN OF THE MARRIAGE.

BREAKING

breaking, n. Criminal law. In the law of burglary, the act of entering a building without permission. [Cases: Burglary 9(1). C.J.S. Burglary §§ 11–12, 14–16, 20.]

“[T]o constitute a breaking at common law, there had to be the creation of a breach or opening; a mere trespass at law was insufficient. If the occupant of the dwelling had created the opening, it was felt that he had not entitled himself to the protection of the law, as he had not properly secured his dwelling.... In the modern American criminal codes, only seldom is there a requirement of a breaking. This is not to suggest, however, that elimination of this requirement has left the ‘entry’ element unadorned, so that any type of entry will suffice. Rather, at least some of what was encompassed within the common law ‘breaking’ element is reflected by other terms describing what kind of entry is necessary. The most common statutory term is ‘unlawfully,’ but some jurisdictions use other language, such as ‘unauthorized,’ by ‘trespass,’ ‘without authority,’ ‘without consent,’ or ‘without privilege.’ ” Wayne R. LaFare & Austin W. Scott Jr., Criminal Law § 8.13, at 793–94 (2d ed. 1986).

BREAKING A CASE

breaking a case. 1. The voicing by one appellate judge to another judge on the same panel of a tentative view on how a case should be decided. • These informal expressions assist the judges in ascertaining how close they are to agreement. 2. The solving of a case by the police.

BREAKING A CLOSE

breaking a close. See BREACH OF CLOSE.

BREAKING AND ENTERING

breaking and entering. See BURGLARY(2).

BREAKING A PATENT

breaking a patent. The act of demonstrating that a patent is invalid or unenforceable because it was used unlawfully by the patentee (esp. in violation of antitrust laws), or improperly issued by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office because of fraud, the existence of prior art, or any other barrier to proper issuance. • Defendants in patent-infringement actions may overcome the infringement allegations by showing that the patent should not have been allowed in the first place (so it is invalid), or that the patentee has misused the patent (so the patent is unenforceable). [Cases: Patents 97. C.J.S. Patents §§ 135–138, 145, 178.]

BREAKING BULK

breaking bulk, n. 1. The act of dividing a large shipment into smaller units. 2. Larceny by a bailee, esp. a carrier, who opens containers, removes items from them, and converts the items to personal use. — Also termed breaking bale. [Cases: Larceny 15. C.J.S. Larceny §§ 30–32, 45–48.] — break bulk, vb.

BREAKING-BULK DOCTRINE

breaking-bulk doctrine. Hist. The rule that a bailee who had lawful possession of property delivered in bulk and wrongfully took the property committed larceny only if the bailee broke the container open and took part or all of the contents. • If the bailee wrongfully took the property without opening the container, the act was theft but not larceny. — Also termed breaking-bale doctrine.

BREAKING OF ENTAIL

BREHON

brehon (bre-h<<schwa>>n).Hist. In Ireland, a judge.

BREHON LAW

Brehon law (bre-h<<schwa>>n law).Hist. The ancient system of law in Ireland at the time of its conquest by Henry II. • This law was formally abolished in 1366. — Sometimes spelled Brehon Law.

“[T]he Irish were governed by what they called the Brehon law, so stiled from the Irish name of judges, who were denominated Brehons. But king John in the twelfth year of his reign went into Ireland, and carried over with him many able sages of the law; and there by his letters patent, in right of the dominion of conquest, is said to have ordained and established that Ireland should be governed by the laws of England .... But to this ordinance many of the Irish were averse to conform, and still stuck to their Brehon law: so that both Henry the third and Edward the first were obliged to renew the injunction .... And yet, even in the reign of queen Elizabeth, the wild natives still kept and preserved their Brehon law ....” 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 100–01 (1765).

B REORGANIZATION

B reorganization. See REORGANIZATION(2).

BREPHOTROPHUS

brephotrophus (bre-fah-tr<<schwa>>-f<<schwa>>s). [Greek] Civil law. A person who manages institutions that receive and care for poor or abandoned children. • The word is Greek in origin (lit. meaning “one who feeds an infant”) and was used in late Roman law, but it first appeared in English in the 18th century. Pl. brephotrophi.

BRETHREN

brethren (breth-r<<schwa>>n), n. pl. Brothers, esp. those considered spiritual kin (such as male colleagues on a court) <my brethren argue in the dissent that my statutory interpretation is faulty>. • The use of this collegial term has naturally dwindled as more women have entered law and esp. into the judiciary. Cf. SISTREN.

BRETTS AND SCOTS, LAWS OF THE

Bretts and Scots, Laws of the. The customary laws used by the Celtic tribes of Scotland. • Edward I of England purported to abolish the laws in the early 14th century.

BREVE

breve (breev orbree-vee), n. [Law Latin] Hist. Writ. • The word brevis meant “short,” and brevia were short writs, unlike charters. Pl. brevia (bree-vee-<<schwa>>).

album breve (al-b<<schwa>>m breev orbree-vee). A blank writ; a writ with a blank or omission in it.

apertum breve (<<schwa>>-p<<schwa>>r-t<<schwa>>m breev orbree-vee). [Latin “open writ”] An open, unsealed writ. See patent writ under WRIT. Cf. CLAUSUM.

breve de bono et malo (breev orbree-vee dee boh-noh et mal-oh). See DE ODIO ET ATIA.

breve innominatum (breev orbree-vee i-nom-<<schwa>>-nay-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin “innominate writ”] A writ that recites a cause of action only in general terms.

breve magnum de recto (breev orbree-vee mag-n<<schwa>>m dee rek-toh). See DE RECTO PATENS.

breve nominatum. A writ in which the complaint particularly states the time, place, and demand.

breve perquirere (breev orbree-vee p<<schwa>>r-kwI-r<<schwa>>-ree). [Latin “to obtain a writ”] To purchase a writ or license of trial in the king's courts.

breve rebellionis. See COMMISSION OF REBELLION.

breve testatum (breev orbree-vee tes-tay-t<<schwa>>m). [Latin “a witnessed writ”] A written memorandum used to memorialize the terms of a conveyance and investiture of land. • Witnesses to the conveyance did not sign the document, but their names were recorded. Brevia testata were introduced to reduce disputes concerning the terms of oral grants.

brevia amabilia (bree-vee-<<schwa>> am-<<schwa>>-k<<schwa>>-bil-ee-<< schwa>>). [Latin “writs with agreement”] Writs obtained with the agreement or consent of the opposing party in an action.

brevia anticipantia (bree-vee-<<schwa>> an-tis-<<schwa>>-pan-shee-<< schwa>>). [Latin “anticipatory writs”] Anticipatory or preventive writs. • Six were included in this category: writs of mesne; warrantia chartae; monstraverunt; audita querela; curia claudenda; and ne injuste vexes. See QUIA TIMET.

brevia formata (bree-vee-<<schwa>> for-may-t<<schwa>>). [Latin “writs of approved form”] Writs of established and approved form, issued as a matter of course. Cf. brevia magistralia.

brevia judicialia (bree-vee-<<schwa>> joo-dish-ee-ay-lee-<<schwa>>). [Latin “judicial writs”] Writs that issue during an action or afterward in aid of judgment. • A court issued such a writ after an original writ had issued out of Chancery. Cf. brevia originale.

brevia magistralia (bree-vee-<<schwa>> maj-i-stray-lee-<<schwa>>). [Latin “masters' writs”] Writs issued by the masters or clerks of chancery according to the circumstances of particular cases. • These writs, unlike some others, might be varied in accordance with the complainant's particular situation. Cf. brevia formata.

brevia originale (bree-vee-<<schwa>> <<schwa>>-rij-i-nay-lee). [Latin] Original writ. • This writ began a judicial action. Cf. brevia judicialia.

brevia selecta (bree-vee-<<schwa>> s<<schwa>>-lek-t<<schwa>>). [Latin “selected writs”] Choice or selected writs or processes. — Abbr. brev. sel.

BREVET

brevet (br<<schwa>>-vetorbrev-it). [French] 1. Military law. A commission promoting an officer to a higher rank, esp. during wartime, but without a corresponding pay increase. [Cases: Armed Services 8, 13.1(5). C.J.S. Armed Services § 26.] 2. French law. A privilege or warrant granted by the government to a private person, authorizing a special benefit or the exercise of an exclusive privilege. • For example, a brevet d'invention is a patent for an invention. 3.Patents. A patent. — Also termed (in sense 3) brevet d'invention.

BREVIARIUM ALARICIANUM

Breviarium Alaricianum (bree-vee-air-ee-<<schwa>>m al-<<schwa>>-ri-kay-n-<<schwa>>m). [Latin] An abridgment (or breviary) of Roman law compiled by order of the Visigoth king Alaric II, published for the use of his Roman subjects in the year 506. • Revised versions were known as the Lex Romana Visigothorum. It was also termed the Breviarium Aniani after Alaric's chancellor, Anian, who edited and distributed the work. — Also termed Breviary of Alaric (bree-vee-er-ee <<schwa>>v al-<<schwa>>-rik).

“Though the Breviarium was later replaced by the Lex Visigothorum in the Visigothic kingdom, it continued in use in southern France and Lombardy, which had meantime passed under the dominion of the Franks. Its qualities made the Breviarium a book of high authority throughout the whole of western Europe during the Middle Ages and it was one of the main channels through which Roman law entered western European law prior to the Reception.” David M. Walker, The Oxford Companion to Law 151–52 (1980).

BREVIA SELECTA

brevia selecta.See BREVE.

BREVIATE

breviate (bree-vee-<<schwa>>t). [Latin] Hist. An abstract of a writing; esp., a short statement attached to a Parliamentary bill summarizing the contents of the bill.

BREVIBUS ET ROTULIS LIBERANDIS

brevibus et rotulis liberandis (bree-v*<<schwa>>-b<<schwa>>s* et roch-<<schwa>>-l<<schwa>>s lib-<<schwa>>r-an-dis). [Latin “breves and rolls to be freed”] Hist. A writ ordering a sheriff to turn over to a successor all paraphernalia of office.

BREVI MANU

brevi manu (bree-vIman-yoo), adv. [Latin “with a short hand”] Roman & civil law. 1. Directly; by the shortest route. 2. Without a legal warrant; on one's own authority. • In Roman law, the term referred to the contractual transfer (traditio) of ownership of an item to one who already had physical control of the item. See TRADITIO BREVI MANU; CONSTITUTUM POSSESSORIUM. In Scotland, this phrase usu. signified the performance of an act without the necessity of resorting to the courts.

“Thus, for example, it was anciently the practice in Scotland for an heritable proprietor, on his own authority, to poind his tenant's moveables for payment of his rent, without applying to any other judge ....Brevi manu in the Roman law is usually applied to a kind of constructive delivery. A thing is said to be transferred by brevi manu tradition, when it has been previously in the buyer's possession on some other title, as pledge or loan.” William Bell, Bell's Dictionary and Digest of the Law of Scotland 134 (George Watson ed., 7th ed. 1890).

BREVITATIS CAUSA

brevitatis causa (brev-i-tay-tis kaw-z*<<schwa>>*). [Latin] Scots law. For the sake of brevity. • The phrase was inserted in legal documents to show that another document had been incorporated by reference but not fully quoted.

BRIBE

bribe, n. A price, reward, gift, or favor bestowed or promised with a view to pervert the judgment of or influence the action of a person in a position of trust. Cf. BARRATRY(4).

“The core concept of a bribe is an inducement improperly influencing the performance of a public function meant to be gratuitously exercised.” John T. Noonan Jr., Bribes xi (1984).

BRIBEE

bribee. One who receives a bribe. — Also termed bribe-taker.

---

BRIBE-GIVER

bribe-giver. See BRIBER.

BRIBER

briber. One who offers a bribe. — Also termed bribe-giver.

BRIBERY

bribery,n. The corrupt payment, receipt, or solicitation of a private favor for official action. • Bribery is a felony in most jurisdictions. See Model Penal Code § 240.1. Cf. KICKBACK. [Cases: Bribery 1. C.J.S. Bribery §§ 2–3, 5–8, 10–11.] — bribe,vb.

“If money has been corruptly paid and corruptly received, for the purpose of influencing official action, do we have one crime of which two are guilty, or two different crimes? No uniform answer is possible under existing statutes. Under some of the provisions bribery is one offense and references to (1) giving or offering a bribe, or (2) to receiving or soliciting a bribe, are merely factual statements in regard to the guilt of one party or the other. Under another plan ‘bribery’ is employed as a generic term to cover two different offenses: (1) giving or offering a bribe, and (2) receiving or soliciting a bribe. A third plan uses the word ‘bribery’ to indicate the offense of the briber and ‘receiving a bribe’ for the other side of the transaction.” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 537 (3d ed. 1982).

commercial bribery. 1. The knowing solicitation or acceptance of a benefit in exchange for violating an oath of fidelity, such as that owed by an employee, partner, trustee, or attorney. Model Penal Code § 224.8(1).2. A supposedly disinterested appraiser's acceptance of a benefit that influences the appraisal of goods or services. Model Penal Code § 224.8(2).3. Corrupt dealing with the agents or employees of prospective buyers to secure an advantage over business competitors.

BROCARD

brocard (brahk-<<schwa>>rd or broh-k<<schwa>>rd). An elementary legal principle or maxim, esp. one deriving from Roman law or ancient custom.

BROCARIUS

brocarius (broh-kair-ee-<<schwa>>s). [Law Latin] Hist. A broker; a middleman between buyer and seller.

BROKER

broker, n.1. An agent who acts as an intermediary or negotiator, esp. between prospective buyers and sellers; a person employed to make bargains and contracts between other persons in matters of trade, commerce, or navigation. • A broker differs from a factor because the broker usu. does not have possession of the property. Cf. FACTOR. [Cases: Brokers 2.C.J.S. Brokers §§ 2–5.] 2. Securities. A person engaged in the business of conducting securities transactions for the accounts of others. [Cases: Securities Regulation 11.20, 40.12, 60.32. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 72, 157–158, 164–165, 195, 217.] — broker, vb.

“The most important determining factor of what constitutes a ‘broker’ is whether the party is dealing for itself or for another. A broker may, by contract, have title to property pass through it (though usually it does not), and it may, by contract, collect from the consumer, but a broker does not deal on its account. Two preliminary requirements must be met for a finding that an individual is acting as a broker: (1) the person is acting for compensation; and (2) the person is acting on behalf of someone else.” 12 Am. Jur. 2d Brokers § 1 (1997).

broker-agent. 1. A person who acts as an intermediary between parties to a transaction, and as a representative of one of them. [Cases: Brokers 2, 6. C.J.S. Brokers §§ 2–5, 25–26, 31–32.] 2. A person licensed both as a broker and as an agent. [Cases: Brokers 3. C.J.S. Brokers §§ 14–24.]

broker-dealer. A brokerage firm that engages in the business of trading securities for its own account (i.e., as a principal) before selling them to customers. • Such a firm is usu. registered with the SEC and with the state in which it does business. See DEALER(2). [Cases: Securities Regulation 11.20, 40.12, 60.32. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 72, 157–158, 164–165, 195, 217.]

“Since many broker-dealers maintain custody of funds and securities belonging to their customers, safeguards are required to assure that the customers can recover those funds and securities in the event the broker-dealer becomes insolvent. The three principal techniques that have been utilized are (a) financial responsibility standards for broker-dealers, (b) requirements for segregation of customers' funds and securities, and (c) maintenance of an industry-wide fund to satisfy the claims of customers whose brokerage firms become insolvent.” David L. Ratner, Securities Regulation in a Nutshell 182–83 (4th ed. 1992).

broker for sale. A broker retained to sell something, but having neither possession of the goods nor any right of action in the broker's own name on contracts that the broker enters into. [Cases: Brokers 2, 6. C.J.S. Brokers §§ 2–5, 25–26, 31–32.]

broker's broker. A municipal securities broker or dealer who routinely effects transactions for the account of other brokers, dealers, and municipal securities dealers.

commercial broker. A broker who negotiates the sale of goods without having possession or control of the goods. Cf. FACTOR(2). [Cases: Brokers 2, 6. C.J.S. Brokers §§ 2–5, 25–26, 31–32.]

commission broker. A member of a stock or commodity exchange who executes buy and sell orders.

customhouse broker. A broker who prepares paperwork for the entry or clearance of ships, and for the import or export of goods. — Also termed customs broker. [Cases: Customs Duties 60.5. C.J.S. Customs Duties §§ 56, 66–70.]

discount broker. 1. A broker who discounts bills of exchange and promissory notes, and advances money on securities. 2. A broker who executes buy and sell orders at commission rates lower than those of full-service brokers. [Cases: Brokers 69. C.J.S. Brokers §§ 177–180.]

government-securities interdealer broker. A broker engaged exclusively in the business of transacting in government securities for parties who are themselves government brokers or dealers.

institutional broker. A broker who trades securities for institutional clients such as banks, mutual funds, pension funds, and insurance companies.

insurance broker. Insurance. A person who, for compensation, brings about or negotiates contracts of insurance as an agent for someone else, but not as an officer, salaried employee, or licensed agent of an insurance company. • The broker acts as an intermediary between the insured and the insurer. — Also termed producer. [Cases: Insurance 1609. C.J.S. Insurance §§ 179, 181.]

“The term ‘insurance broker’ is often used to characterize an individual who is thought to act primarily on behalf of a purchaser in an insurance transaction. This delineation ... is employed by some courts and writers even though almost all insurance brokers are actually compensated for their services through commissions that are paid by the insurers. Because brokers receive compensation from the insurer, it seems evident that a persuasive argument can be made for not treating a broker as an agent of the insurance purchaser.” Robert E. Keeton & Alan I. Widiss, Insurance Law: A Guide to Fundamental Principles, Legal Doctrines, and Commercial Practices § 2.5, at 83–84 (1988).

loan broker. A person who is in the business of lending money, usu. to an individual, and taking as security an assignment of wages or a security interest in the debtor's personal property.

merchandise broker. One who negotiates the sale of merchandise without possessing it. • A merchandise broker is an agent with very limited powers.

money broker. A broker who negotiates the lending or raising of money for others.

mortgage broker. An individual or organization that markets mortgage loans and brings lenders and borrowers together. • A mortgage broker does not originate or service mortgage loans. [Cases: Brokers 2. C.J.S. Brokers §§ 2–5.]

note broker. A broker who negotiates the discount or sale of commercial paper.

real-estate broker.A broker who negotiates contracts of sale and other agreements (such as mortgages or leases) between buyers and sellers of real property. • Real-estate brokers must be licensed in the states where they conduct business. [Cases: Brokers 2, 3. C.J.S. Brokers §§ 2–5, 14–24.]

registered broker.A broker registered or required to be registered under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. [Cases: Securities Regulation 40.12. C.J.S. Securities Regulation §§ 157–158, 165.]

responsible broker-dealer.A broker-dealer who communicates bids or offers on the floor of a stock exchange at the designated location for trading in a reported security or who, in an off-exchange transaction, communicates the bid or offer as either a principal or an agent, for its own or another's account. SEC Rule 11Ac1-1(a)(21) (17 CFR § 240.11Ac1-1(a)(21)).

securities broker.A broker employed to buy or sell securities for a customer, as opposed to a securities dealer, who trades as a principal before selling the securities to a customer. See DEALER(2).

BROKERAGE

brokerage. 1. The business or office of a broker . [Cases: Brokers 2. C.J.S. Brokers §§ 2–5.] 2. A broker's fee <collect the brokerage after the house sells>. [Cases: Brokers 39. C.J.S. Brokers §§ 116–117, 143.]

BROKERAGE CONTRACT

brokerage contract.An agency agreement employing a broker to make contracts in the name of and on behalf of the principal and for which the broker receives a commission. [Cases: Brokers 7, 40. C.J.S. Brokers §§ 25, 27–32, 51, 117–120, 125, 143.]

BRUSSELS SATELLITE CONVENTION

Brussels Satellite Convention. Copyright. A 1974 treaty standardizing the regulation of broadcasting and cable retransmission using satellites. • Since the Convention addresses regulation of the signal rather than copyright or neighboring rights, what is transmitted is protected even if the content is not protected by any intellectual-property right. The U.S. ratified the Brussels Satellite Convention in 1984. — Also termed Brussels Convention; Convention Relating to the Distribution of Program-Carrying Signals Transmitted by Satellite.

BRUTON&lt;TT&gt; ERROR

Bruton error (broot-<<schwa>>n). The violation of a criminal defendant's constitutional right of confrontation by admitting into evidence a nontestifying codefendant's confession that implicates both of them, where the statement is not admissible against the defendant under any exception to the hearsay rule. • The error is not cured by a limiting instruction to the jury to consider the confession only against the one who made it, because of the high risk that the jury will disregard the instruction. Bruton v. United States, 391 U.S. 123, 88 S.Ct. 1620 (1968). [Cases: Criminal Law 662.10, 662.11. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 1130–1131.]

BURDEN

burden,n.1. A duty or responsibility <the seller's burden to insure the shipped goods>.2. Something that hinders or oppresses .3. A restriction on the use or value of land; an encumbrance <the easement created a burden on the estate>.4.Scots law. An encumbrance, restriction, or obligation imposed on a person or on property < the burden of curatorship> . • When the burden is on real property, it is called a real burden. — burden,vb. — burdensome,adj.

undue burden.A substantial and unjust obstacle to the performance of a duty or enjoyment of a right. • For example, excessive discovery requests place an undue burden on the person who must produce the data requested. And a state law requiring a particular kind of mud flap on trucks may place an undue burden on the flow of interstate commerce.

BURDEN OF ALLEGATION

burden of allegation.A party's duty to plead a matter in order for that matter to be heard in the lawsuit. — Also termed burden of pleading.

BURDEN OF GOING FORWARD WITH EVIDENCE

burden of going forward with evidence.See BURDEN OF PRODUCTION.

BURDEN OF PERSUASION

burden of persuasion.A party's duty to convince the fact-finder to view the facts in a way that favors that party. • In civil cases, the plaintiff's burden is usu. “by a preponderance of the evidence,” while in criminal cases the prosecution's burden is “beyond a reasonable doubt.” — Also termed persuasion burden; risk of nonpersuasion; risk of jury doubt. — Also loosely termed burden of proof. [Cases: Evidence 90–98. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 120–129.]

BURDEN OF PLEADING

burden of pleading.See BURDEN OF ALLEGATION.

BURDEN OF PRODUCTION

burden of production.A party's duty to introduce enough evidence on an issue to have the issue decided by the fact-finder, rather than decided against the party in a peremptory ruling such as a summary judgment or a directed verdict. — Also termed burden of going forward with evidence; burden of producing evidence; production burden; degree of proof. [Cases: Evidence 90–98. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 120–129.]

burden of proof. 1. A party's duty to prove a disputed assertion or charge. • The burden of proof includes both the burden of persuasion and the burden of production. — Also termed onus probandi. See SHIFTING THE BURDEN OF PROOF. 2. Loosely, BURDEN OF PERSUASION. [Cases: Evidence 90. C.J.S. Evidence § 120–121, 126, 128.]

“In the past the term ‘burden of proof’ has been used in two different senses. (1) The burden of going forward with the evidence. The party having this burden must introduce some evidence if he wishes to get a certain issue into the case. If he introduces enough evidence to require consideration of this issue, this burden has been met. (2) Burden of proof in the sense of carrying the risk of nonpersuasion. The one who has this burden stands to lose if his evidence fails to convince the jury — or the judge in a nonjury trial. The present trend is to use the term ‘burden of proof’ only with this second meaning ....” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 78 (3d ed. 1982).

“The expression ‘burden of proof’ is tricky because it has been used by courts and writers to mean various things. Strictly speaking, burden of proof denotes the duty of establishing by a fair preponderance of the evidence the truth of the operative facts upon which the issue at hand is made to turn by substantive law. Burden of proof is sometimes used in a secondary sense to mean the burden of going forward with the evidence. In this sense it is sometimes said that a party has the burden of countering with evidence a prima facie case made against that party.” William D. Hawkland, Uniform Commercial Code Series § 2A-516:08 (1984).

middle burden of proof. A party's duty to prove a fact by clear and convincing evidence. • This standard lies between the preponderance-of-the-evidence standard and the beyond-a-reasonable-doubt standard. See clear and convincing evidence under EVIDENCE. [Cases: Evidence 596. C.J.S. Evidence §§ 1299, 1304–1306, 1308, 1310–1311, 1315–1317.]

The presumption that in making business decisions not involving direct self-interest or self-dealing, corporate directors act on an informed basis, in good faith, and in the honest belief that their actions are in the corporation's best interest. • The rule shields directors and officers from liability for unprofitable or harmful corporate transactions if the transactions were made in good faith, with due care, and within the directors' or officers' authority. [Cases: Corporations 310(1). C.J.S. Corporations §§ 475, 477–484, 487–489.]

“The business judgment rule is a presumption protecting conduct by directors that can be attributed to any rational business purpose. In order to plead and prove a claim, a plaintiff must plead and prove facts overcoming this presumption. Where the presumption is overcome, directors bear the burden of proving the fairness of the challenged conduct. The difference between these two levels of judicial scrutiny — a presumption in favor of directors that protects conduct that is rational, versus a burden of proving fairness — frequently is outcome determinative.” 1 Dennis J. Block et al., The Business Judgment Rule 18–19 (5th ed. 1998).

BUSINESS LOSS

business loss. See ordinary loss under LOSS.

BUSINESS MEETING

business meeting. See MEETING.

BUSINESS METHOD

business method. Patents. A way or an aspect of a way in which a commercial enterprise is operated.

BUSINESS-METHOD EXCEPTION

business-method exception. Intellectual property. The traditional doctrine that business methods are not protected by intellectual-property laws. • Early caselaw established that “pure methods of doing business” were unpatentable. But in 1998, the Federal Circuit held in State St. Bank & Trust Co. v. Signature Fin. Group (149 F.3d 1368) that business methods are not per se unpatentable if they otherwise meet the requirements for a valid patent. The European Patent Convention expressly excludes business methods from patent protection. [Cases: Patents 7.14. C.J.S. Patents §§ 17–19, 27–28.]

BUSINESS-METHOD PATENT

business-method patent. See PATENT(3).

BUSINESS METHODS PATENT INITIATIVE

Business Methods Patent Initiative. A U.S. Patent and Trademark Office program that added a second level to business-method-patent reviews for the purpose of reducing the number of business-method patents issued. • The PTO created the initiative in response to complaints that examiners improperly approved many business-method patents. After an examiner approves the application and before a business-method patent is granted, a second examiner must completely review the application and either reject the application or affirm the issuance of the patent.

BUSINESS-PARTNER INSURANCE

business-partner insurance. See partnership insurance under INSURANCE.

BUSINESS PLAN

business plan. A written proposal explaining a new business or business idea and usu. covering financial, marketing, and operational plans.

BUSINESS-PURPOSE DOCTRINE

business-purpose doctrine. Tax. The principle that a transaction must serve a bona fide business purpose (i.e., not just for tax avoidance) to qualify for beneficial tax treatment. [Cases:

Internal Revenue 3071, 3315, 3396. C.J.S. Internal Revenue §§ 13–14, 151.]

business record. A report, memorandum, or other record made usu. in the ordinary course of business. • It may be ordered produced as part of discovery in a lawsuit.

BUSINESS-RECORDS EXCEPTION

business-records exception. Evidence. A hearsay exception allowing business records (such as reports or memoranda) to be admitted into evidence if they were prepared in the ordinary course of business. • If there is good reason to doubt a record's reliability (e.g., the record was prepared in anticipation of litigation), the exception will not apply. Fed. R. Evid. 803(6). — Also termed business-entry rule. [Cases: Criminal Law 436; Evidence 351. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 1032, 1034–1037; Evidence §§ 904–915, 917–923, 928–931, 965–966, 1023, 1025.]

bust-up merger. See MERGER.

BUT-FOR CAUSE

but-for cause. See CAUSE(1).

BUT-FOR MATERIALITY

but-for materiality. Patents. In an analysis of allegedly inequitable conduct, a test for determining the materiality of withheld information by assessing whether the withheld information, if disclosed, would have resulted in a finding of unpatentability. • Under this test — also called the objective but-for test — the issue is whether the patent would have issued if not for the misconduct of the applicant. By contrast, under the subjective but-for test, the issue is whether the misrepresentation caused the examiner to issue the patent. Although both tests have been applied by the courts, the Federal Circuit has rejected the but-for materiality test in favor of the materiality test codified in 37 CFR § 1.56. — Also termed objective but-for test. [Cases: Patents 97. C.J.S. Patents §§ 135–138, 145, 178.]

BUT-FOR TEST

but-for test. Tort & criminal law. The doctrine that causation exists only when the result would not have occurred without the party's conduct. — Also termed (in criminal law) had-not test. See but-for cause under CAUSE(1). [Cases: Criminal Law 26; Negligence 379. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 44–45, 1110.]

bylaw [fr. Danish bye, Old Norse byr, “town”] 1.Parliamentary law. (usu. pl.) A rule or administrative provision adopted by an organization for its internal governance and its external dealings. • Although the bylaws may be an organization's most authoritative governing document, they are subordinate to a charter or articles of incorporation or association or to a constitution. The “constitution and bylaws” are sometimes a single document. See governing document under DOCUMENT; ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION. Cf. CONSTITUTION. [Cases: Condominium 7; Corporations 54, 113, 116. C.J.S. Corporations §§ 111, 114, 116, 120, 220–225, 233–240, 242; Estates§ 202.] 2.ORDINANCE. — Sometimes spelled by-law; byelaw.

“By-law is now felt to be a compound of the preposition by and law, but originally by was the Danish by ‘town, village’ (found in Derby, Whitby, etc.), and the Danish genitive-ending is preserved in the other English form byr-law.” Otto Jespersen, Growth and Structure of the English Language 75 (9th ed. 1938).

cabal (k<<schwa>>-balor k<<schwa>>-bahl). A small group of political schemers or conspirators. • The term is sometimes said to have originated as an acronym from a committee of five ministers of Charles II, whose sur-names began with C, A, B, A, and L (Clifford, Arlington, Buckingham, Ashley, and Lauderdale). Though colorful, this etymology is false: the term came into English directly from the French cabale “intrigue,” which derives ultimately from Hebrew kabbalah “received lore.”

CABALA

cabala (kab-<<schwa>>-l<<schwa>> or k<<schwa>>-bahl-<<schwa>>). An esoteric or obscure doctrine.

caballeria (kah-bah-ye-ree-ah). [Spanish] Spanish law. An allotment of land in regions formerly conquered by Spain, such as Mexico and the southwestern United States. • Originally a Spanish feudal tenure held by a soldier, a caballeria eventually came to refer to an area of land. It usu. measures 100 by 200 feet in the United States, and between 30 and 200 acres in Mexico and other former Spanish territories.

cabinet. (often cap.) The advisory council to an executive officer, esp. the President. • The President's cabinet is a creation of custom and tradition, dating back to the term of George Washington. The U.S. Constitution alludes to a group of presidential advisers — the President “may require the Opinion, in writing, of the principal Officer in each of the executive Departments, upon any Subject relating to the Duties of their respective Offices” (art. II, § 2, cl. 1) — but the term cabinet is not specifically mentioned. The cabinet today comprises the heads of the 15 executive departments: the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Defense, the At-torney General, the Secretary of the Interior, the Secretary of Agriculture, the Secretary of Commerce, the Sec-retary of Labor, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the Secretary of Transportation, the Secretary of Energy, the Secretary of Education, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs, and the Secretary of Homeland Security. Other officials, such as the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and the director of the Office of Management and the Budget, have been accorded cabinet rank. [Cases: United States 35. C.J.S. United States §§ 23, 53, 56–57.]

inner cabinet. The heads of the departments of State, Treasury, Defense, and Justice. • This group is so called because in most administrations it tends to be closer to the executive and more influential than the rest of the cabinet (the outer cabinet).

kitchen cabinet. An unofficial and informal body of noncabinet advisers who often have more sway with the executive than the real cabinet does. • This term was first used derisively in reference to some of President Andrew Jackson's advisers, who, because of their reputation for unpolished manners, were supposedly not important enough to meet in the formal rooms of the White House.

“The term [kitchen cabinet] began to lose its sting after Jackson's time. But because most Presidents do have circles of personal friends, the idea remains. Theodore Roosevelt had his ‘tennis cabinet.’ Jonathan Daniels referred to Warren Harding's ‘poker cabinet.’ Herbert Hoover had an exercise-loving ‘medicine ball cabinet.’ Even governors can play the game. In writing of New York's Alfred Smith, Ed Flynn mentions the ‘golfing cabinet.’” William Safire, Safire's New Political Dictionary 389 (1993).

Cable and Satellite Directive. See DIRECTIVE ON THE COORDINATION OF CERTAIN RULES CONCERNING COPYRIGHT AND NEIGHBOURING RIGHTS APPLICABLE TO SATELLITE BROADCASTING AND CABLE RETRANSMISSION .

cabotage (kab-<<schwa>>-tij). Int'l law. 1. The carrying on of trade along a country's coast; the transport of goods or passengers from one port or place to another in the same country. • The privilege to carry on this trade is usu. limited to vessels flying the flag of that country. 2. The privilege of carrying traffic between two ports in the same country. 3. The right of a foreign airline to carry passengers and cargo between airports in the same country.

“Some writers maintain [that cabotage] should be applied only to maritime navigation; in this context one can distinguish between petit cabotage — transport between ports situated on the same sea (e.g. Bordeaux–Le Havre) — and grand cabotage — transport between ports situated on different seas (e.g. Bordeaux–Marseille). However, the term is also properly applied to transport between two inland points on an international river within one State, although the term grand cabotage is sometimes incorrectly applied to transnational transport between the inland ports of different riparian States on the same waterway. River cabotage properly so called is sometimes also referred to as local transport. Finally, the term has also been adopted to describe commercial air transport between airports situated in the same State.” Robert C. Lane, “Cabotage,” in 1 Encyclopedia of Public International Law 519–20 (1992).

C.A.F.

c.a.f. Cost, assurance, and freight. • This term is synonymous with C.I.F. [Cases: Sales 201(4). C.J.S. Sales §§ 224–227.]

“[I]n a French contract the term ‘C.A.F.’ does not mean ‘Cost and Freight’ but has exactly the same meaning as the term ‘C.I.F.’, since it is merely the French equivalent of that term. The ‘A’ does not stand for ‘and’ but for ‘assurance,’ which means insurance.” William D. Hawkland, Uniform Commercial Code Series § 2-320 (1984).

consent calendar. A list of business awaiting a deliberative assembly's vote that is not expected to be substantially opposed and is therefore scheduled for a vote without debate, or for automatic adoption unless a member objects. — Also termed consent agenda; unanimous-consent agenda; unanimous-consent calendar.

“An assembly with a large number of routine or noncontroversial matters on its agenda may find it not only convenient but expeditious to consider these matters under unanimous consent procedure. This gives every member an opportunity to object. At the same time, it gives the presiding officer an opportunity to dispose of a great deal of the agenda confronting the assembly quickly and efficiently, particularly when it would be most helpful to the assembly to get its job done. This can even be done by taking en bloc action (that is, disposing of various items at the same time without taking separate consideration of them) when matters are not controversial or are of minor importance to the assembly, though every member has the right to object.” Floyd M. Riddick & Miriam H. Butcher, Riddick's Rules of Procedure 56 (1985).

debate calendar.The list of business that is awaiting a deliberative assembly's vote and that is not on the consent calendar. — Also termed debate agenda.

report calendar.The list of business coming before a deliberative assembly for information only rather than for its vote. • An item on the report calendar may be the subject of a vote in the future. — Also termed report agenda.

CALVO DOCTRINE

Calvo doctrine. Int'l law. The rule that resident aliens have the same rights to protection as citizens, but no more. • This doctrine, which sought to establish a minimum international standard for the treatment of aliens, was developed by the Argentinian jurist Carlos Calvo in his treatise Le droit international théorique et pratique (5th ed. 1896). The doctrine was intended to prevent aliens from abusing their right of diplomatic protection. It was re-jected by many states on the ground that the doctrine sought to deprive states of their right to protect their citizens in countries when the rights of the general population fell below the minimum international standards.

CAMBIALE JUS

cambiale jus (kam-bee-ay-lee j<<schwa>>s). [Latin “law of exchange”] The law of commercial exchange.

CANON

canon (kan-<<schwa>>n), n.1. A rule or principle, esp. one accepted as fundamental.

canon of construction. A rule used in construing legal instruments, esp. contracts and statutes. • Although a few states have codified the canons of construction — examples of which are contra proferentem and eiusdem generis — most jurisdictions treat the canons as mere customs not having the force of law. — Often shortened to canon. — Also termed rule of construction; rule of interpretation. [Cases: Contracts 143; Statutes 174. C.J.S. Contracts § 302; Statutes § 306.]

“A frequent criticism of the canons [of construction], made forcefully by Professor Llewellyn many years ago, is that for every canon one might bring to bear on a point there is an equal and opposite canon. This is an exaggeration; but what is true is that there is a canon to support every possible result.” Richard A. Posner, The Federal Courts: Crisis and Reform 276 (1985).

canon of descent. (usu. pl.) A common-law rule governing intestate succession. • In England, canons of descent tended to concentrate landholdings in the hands of a few people, an approach generally rejected in the United States. — Also termed canon of inheritance. [Cases: Descent and Distribution 1–19. C.J.S. Conflict of Laws §§ 71, 84; Descent and Distribution §§ 1–22; Right of Privacy and Publicity § 42.]

“The common-law canons of descent tended to prevent the diffusion of landed property, and to promote its accumulation in the hands of a few. The principles sprang from the martial genius of the feudal system. In the United States the English common law of descents, in its essential features, has been rejected; each State has established a law for itself.” William C. Anderson, A Dictionary of Law 349 (1889).

2. (usu. cap.) A maxim stating in general terms the standards of professional conduct expected of lawyers. • The Model Code of Judicial Conduct (1990) contains five canons and hundreds of specific rules. [Cases: Attorney and Client 32(2). C.J.S. Attorney and Client § 44.] 3. A rule of ecclesiastical law. 4. A corpus of writings. 5. A clergy member on the staff of a cathedral.

honorary canon. A canon who serves without pay or other benefits.

6. A fixed regular payment or tribute made as a contribution payable to the church.

CANON EMPHYTEUTICUS

canon emphyteuticus (kan-*<<schwa>>n em-fi-t[y]oo-ti-k<<schwa>>*s). [Latin fr. Greek] Roman law. The annual payment that an emphyteuta made under a contract of emphyteusis. See EMPHYTEUSIS; EMPHYTEUTA.

CANONICAL

CANONIST

canonist (kan-<<schwa>>n-ist), n. An expert in canon law; esp., a canon lawyer or professor of ecclesiastical law.

CANON LAW

canon law. 1. A body of western ecclesiastical law that was compiled from the 12th to 14th centuries. • It has grown steadily since that time, and is now codified in the Codex Juris Canonici of 1983, replacing that of 1918. — Also termed corpus juris canonici; papal law; jus canonicum. 2. A body of law developed within a particular religious tradition. — Also termed church law; canonical law. Cf. ECCLESIASTICAL LAW. [Cases: Religious Societies 5.C.J.S. Religious Societies § 6.]

“The indirect contributions of the canon law to the development of English law were as great as, and the direct contributions far greater than, those made by the civil law. Indirectly the canon lawyers gave much even to the purely secular law of England, because, during the early Middle Ages, most of the judges or the royal courts were ecclesiastics acquainted with the chief doctrines of canon law.... The direct influence of the canon law in England resulted from its being the law which was administered in the courts of the Church.” W.J.V. Windeyer, Lectures on Legal History 41 (2d ed. 1949).

“Canon law has its roots in theology. But, so far as England is concerned, it may be defined as so much of the law of England as is concerned with the regulation of the affairs of the Church of England.” E. Garth Moore & Timothy Briden, Moore's Introduction to English Canon Law 9 (2d ed. 1985).

CANON OF CONSTRUCTION

“When all the ballots have been collected, including those of the presiding officer, the secretary, and the tellers, the ballots are canvassed by the tellers. Canvassing the ballots means more than just counting. It includes evaluating ballots to identify those that are invalid, blank, cast for illegal nominees, illegible, abstaining, and the like, and reporting the total results to the presiding officer for his announcement of the results.” Ray E. Keeseey, Modern Parliamentary Procedure 113 (1994).

CAPACITY

capacity. 1. The role in which one performs an act <in her corporate capacity>.

proprietary capacity.The capacity of a city or town when it engages in a business-like venture rather than a governmental function. See PROPRIETARY FUNCTION. [Cases: Municipal Corporations 57. C.J.S. Mu-nicipal Corporations §§ 104, 106, 108, 110–115, 117–118, 122, 137–138, 143, 145–146.]

representative capacity.The position of one standing or acting for another, esp. through delegated authority <an agent acting in a representative capacity for the principal>. [Cases: Principal and Agent 1. C.J.S. Agency §§ 2, 4–6, 23, 25–27, 33, 38–40, 58; Architects § 21.]

2. The power to create or enter into a legal relation under the same circumstances in which a normal person would have the power to create or enter into such a relation; specif., the satisfaction of a legal qualification, such as legal age or soundness of mind, that determines one's ability to sue or be sued, to enter into a binding contract, and the like <she had full capacity to bind the corporation with her signature>. • Unless necessary to show the court's jurisdiction, a plaintiff's pleadings need not assert the legal capacity of any party. A party wishing to raise the issue of capacity must do so by specific negative pleading. Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(a). — Also termed (specif.) capacity to sue; power over oneself. See STANDING. Cf. LACK OF CAPACITY. [Cases: Contracts 11; Federal Civil Procedure 111; Infants 70. C.J.S. Contracts § 32; Infants §§ 215, 226.] 3. The mental ability to understand the nature and effect of one's acts <his acute pain reduced his capacity to understand the hospital's admission form>. — Also termed mental capacity; sane memory. See COMPETENCY.

criminal capacity.The mental ability that a person must possess to be held accountable for a crime; the ability to understand right from wrong. See INSANITY; INFANCY. [Cases: Criminal Law 46; Homicide 815. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 96–98, 113.]

diminished capacity.An impaired mental condition — short of insanity — that is caused by intoxication, trauma, or disease and that prevents a person from having the mental state necessary to be held responsible for a crime. • In some jurisdictions, a defendant's diminished capacity can be used to determine the degree of the offense or the severity of the punishment. — Also termed diminished responsibility. Cf. INSANITY. [Cases: Criminal Law 46; Homicide 816. C.J.S. Criminal Law §§ 96–98, 113.]

testamentary capacity.The mental ability that a person must have to prepare a valid will. • This capacity is often described as the ability to recognize the natural objects of one's bounty, the nature and extent of one's estate, and the fact that one is making a plan to dispose of the estate after death. Traditionally, the phrase “of legal age and sound mind” refers to the testator's capacity. — Also termed disposing capacity; disposing mind; sound mind. See age of capacity under AGE. [Cases: Wills 21–55. C.J.S. Indians § 117; Wills §§ 2, 4–40.]

4. The ability or power to do or experience something.

“Capitis deminutio is the destruction of the ‘caput’ or legal personality. Capitis deminutio, so to speak, wipes out the former individual and puts a new one in his place, and between the old and the new individual there is, legally speaking, nothing in common. A juristic personality may be thus destroyed in one of three ways: (1) by loss of the status libertatis. This is the capitis deminutio maxima; (2) by loss of the status civitatis. This is the capitis deminutio media (magna); (3) by severance from the agnatic family. This entails capitis deminutio minima.” Rudolph Sohm, The Institutes: A Textbook of the History and System of Roman Private Law 178–79 (James Crawford Ledlie trans., 3d ed. 1907).

capitis deminutio maxima (kap-i-tis dem-i-n[y]oo-shee-oh mak-si-m*<<schwa>>*). [Latin “maximum reduction of status”] Roman law. The diminution of a person's legal status as a result of being reduced to slavery.

CAPUT

caput (kap-<<schwa>>t), n. [Latin “head”] 1.Hist. A head, chief, or principal person. 2.Roman law. A person. 3.Roman law. A person's condition or status.

“A ‘natural,’ as opposed to an ‘artificial,’ person is such a human being as is regarded by the law as capable of rights or duties: in the language of Roman law as having a ‘status.’ ... Besides possessing this general legal capacity, or status, a man may also possess various special capacities, such as the ‘tria capita’ of liberty, citizenship, and family rights. A slave having, as such, neither rights nor liabilities, had in Roman law, strictly speaking, no ‘status,’ ‘caput,’ or ‘persona.’ ... It must however be remembered that the terms ‘persona’ and ‘caput’ were also used in popular language as nearly equivalent to ‘homo,’ and in this sense were applied to slaves as well as to freemen.” Thomas E. Holland, The Elements of Jurisprudence 80–81 (4th ed. 1888).

CAPUT COMITATUS

caput comitatus (kap-<<schwa>>t kom-<<schwa>>-tay-t<<schwa>>s). [Latin “head of the county”] Hist. The head of a county; a sheriff.

CAREGIVER

caregiver. Family law. A person, usu. not a parent, who has and exercises custodial responsibility for a child or for an elderly or disabled person. — Also termed caretaker; custodian. See RESIDENTIAL RESPONSIBILITY.

CARELESS

careless, adj. 1. (Of a person) not exercising reasonable care. 2. (Of an action or behavior) engaged in without reasonable care. Cf. RECKLESS.

carelessness, n. 1. The fact, condition, or instance of a person's either not having done what he or she ought to have done, or having done what he or she ought not to have done. 2. A person's general disposition not to do something that ought to be done.

“The word ‘carelessness’ as a synonym for negligence can be committed by those who care deeply. A man may take all the care of which he is capable, and yet be accounted negligent for failing to reach the objective standard. He may honestly ... believe that the facts are such that he is not imperilling anyone; but he may be held to have been negligent in arriving at that belief. An incompetent driver may be convicted of driving ‘without due care and attention’ even though he was doing his level best. The careless person is the person who does not take the care he ought to take: never mind whether he felt careful. He can be held to be negligent in making a perfectly honest mistake.” Glanville Williams, Textbook of Criminal Law 44–45 (1978).

CA. RESP

ca. resp. See capias ad respondendum under CAPIAS.

CARETAKER

CARNAL KNOWLEDGE

carnal knowledge.Archaic. Sexual intercourse, esp. with an underage female. — Sometimes shortened to knowledge. [Cases: Incest 6; Rape 7.C.J.S. Incest § 5; Rape § 17.]

“The ancient term for the act itself was ‘carnal knowledge’ and this is found in some of the recent cases and statutes. The phrase ‘sexual intercourse,’ more common today apart from legal literature, is also found in recent cases and statutes. Either term, when the reference is to rape, is sometimes coupled with the word ‘ravish.’ And unlawful intercourse with a girl under the age of consent is often characterized as ‘carnal knowledge and abuse.’ ” Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law 201 (3d ed. 1982).

CARNET

carnet (kahr-nay). A customs document allowing an item (esp. an automobile) to be exported temporarily from one country into another country.

CARRIAGE

carriage. Transport of freight or passengers.

CARRIAGE AND INSURANCE PAID TO

carriage and insurance paid to.A mercantile-contract term allocating the rights and duties of the buyer and the seller of goods with respect to delivery, payment, and risk of loss, whereby the seller must (1) clear the goods for export, (2) procure and pay for insurance against the buyer's risk of damage while the goods are in carriage, (3) deliver the goods to the buyer's chosen carrier, and (4) bear the costs of carriage (apart from import duties) to the named destination. • When the goods are delivered to the carrier, the seller's delivery is complete; the risk of loss then passes to the buyer. Any mode of transportation can be used to carry the goods. — Abbr. CIP. Cf. CAR-RIAGE PAID TO.

CARRIAGE OF GOODS BY SEA ACT

Carriage of Goods by Sea Act. Maritime law. A 1936 federal statute regulating a carrier's liability for the loss or damage, and sometimes the delay, of ocean cargo shipped under a bill of lading. 46 USCA §§ 1300–1315. • The Act defines many of the rights and responsibilities of both the issuers and the holders of ocean bills of lading. — Abbr. COGSA. [Cases: Shipping 103. C.J.S. Shipping §§ 232–242.]

“The Carriage of Goods by Sea Act (COGSA), the domestic enactment of the international convention popularly known as the Hague Rules, allocates the risk of loss for cargo damage that occurs during ocean transportation to or from the United States under contracts evidenced by bills of lading and similar documents of title. It is the central statute in commercial admiralty, governing over $200 billion worth of American foreign commerce annually. The other major maritime countries of the world have also adopted the Hague Rules to govern their international ocean commerce.” Michael F. Sturley, The Fair Opportunity Requirement Under COGSA Section 4(5): A Case Study in the Misinterpretation of the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act, 19 J. Mar. L. & Com. 1, 1–2 (1988).

CARRIAGE PAID TO

carriage paid to. A mercantile-contract term allocating the rights and duties of the buyer and the seller of goods with respect to delivery, payment, and risk of loss, whereby the seller must (1) clear the goods for export, (2) deliver them to the buyer's chosen carrier, and (3) pay the costs of carriage (apart from import duties) to the named destination. • When the goods are delivered to the carrier, the seller's delivery is complete; the risk of loss then passes to the buyer. Any mode of transportation can be used to carry the goods. — Abbr. CPT. Cf. CARRIAGE AND INSURANCE PAID TO.

CARRIED INTEREST

carried interest. Oil & gas. In an oil-and-gas lease, a fractional interest that is free of some or all costs of exploring, drilling, and completing the well. • The owner of a carried interest may earn royalties on production but does not have a working interest, at least until all costs are recouped by the working-interest owner or owners, and often until some multiple of those costs is paid.

CARRIER

carrier. 1. An individual or organization (such as a shipowner, a railroad, or an airline) that contracts to transport passengers or goods for a fee. Cf. SHIPPER. [Cases: Carriers 3, 235. C.J.S. Aeronautics and Aerospace § 179; Carriers §§ 2, 385.]

common carrier. A commercial enterprise that holds itself out to the public as offering to transport freight or passengers for a fee. • A common carrier is generally required by law to transport freight or passengers or freight, without refusal, if the approved fare or charge is paid. —

Also termed public carrier. [Cases: Carriers 4.]

“[A] ‘common carrier’ is bound to take all goods of the kind which he usually carries, unless his conveyance is full, or the goods be specially dangerous; but may charge different rates to different customers.” Thomas E. Holland, The Elements of Jurisprudence 299 (13th ed. 1924).

marine carrier.A carrier operating on navigable waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

non-vessel-operating common carrier.Maritime law. A freight forwarder that does not own the means of transportation, but that contracts with a shipper to transport freight, and with a carrier to perform the transportation. • The non-vessel-operating common carrier becomes the carrier in the contract with the original shipper, and the shipper in the contract with the eventual carrier. See FREIGHT FORWARDER. — Abbr. NVOCC.

private carrier.Any carrier that is not a common carrier by law. • A private carrier is not bound to accept business from the general public. — Also termed contract carrier. [Cases: Automobiles 76; Carriers 3. C.J.S. Aeronautics and Aerospace § 179; Carriers §§ 2, 385; Motor Vehicles §§ 5, 105–113.]

CARROLL<TT> DOCTRINE

Carroll doctrine. The principle that a broadcast licensee has standing to contest any grant of a competitive license by the Federal Communications Commission because the grant could lead to a diminution in broadcast service by causing economic injury to an existing licensee. Carroll Broadcasting Co. v. FCC, 258 F.2d 440 (D.C. Cir. 1958). [Cases: Telecommunications 404.]

CARRY

carry,vb.1. To sustain the weight or burden of; to hold or bear <more weight than a single person can carry>.2. To convey or transport <carrying the coal from one state to another>.3. To possess and convey (a firearm) in a vehicle, including the locked glove compartment or trunk of a car <he carried the guns in his trunk>. • The United States Supreme Court adopted this definition in interpreting the phrase carries a firearm as used in a statute imposing a mandatory prison term on a person who uses or carries a firearm while committing a drug-trafficking crime. Muscarello v. U.S., 524 U.S. 125, 118 S.Ct. 1911 (1998). [Cases: Weapons 10.] 4. In a figurative sense, to possess or hold (insurance, etc.) <the decedent did not carry life insurance>.5.Parliamentary law. ## CASA VOLUNTEER

CASA volunteer.Family law. A specially screened and trained child-welfare volunteer appointed by the court to conduct an independent investigation of both the state agency and the family and to submit a report with findings and recommendations. • In some jurisdictions, such volunteers are provided for statutorily. They sometimes act as guardians ad litem. The CASA volunteer usu. (1) provides independent assessment of the child's needs, (2) acts as an advocate for the child, and (3) monitors agency decision-making and court proceedings. See COURT AP-POINTED SPECIAL ADVOCATES.

CASE

case. 1. A civil or criminal proceeding, action, suit, or controversy at law or in equity <the parties settled the case>.

active case.A case that is still pending.

case at bar.A case under the immediate consideration of the court. — Also termed case at bench; instant case; present case. See BAR(3).

case made. See case reserved (1).

case of first impression. A case that presents the court with an issue of law that has not previously been decided by any controlling legal authority in that jurisdiction.

case reserved. 1. A written statement of the facts proved at trial and drawn up and stipulated to by the parties, so that certain legal issues can be decided by an appellate court. — Also termed case made; special case. 2. Hist. An agreement between litigants to submit the case to a judge rather than to a jury.

“It should have come as no surprise ... that in most cases ‘merchants were not fond of juries.’ For one of the leading measures of the growing alliance between bench and bar on the one hand and commercial interests on the other is the swiftness with which the power of the jury is curtailed after 1790.... [D]uring the last years of the eighteenth century American lawyers vastly expanded the ‘special case’ or ‘case reserved,’ a device designed to submit points of law to the judges while avoiding the effective intervention of a jury. In England, Lord Mansfield had used a similar procedure to bring about an alliance between common lawyers and mercantile interests.” Morton J. Horwitz, The Transformation of American Law, 1780–1860 141–42 (1977).

case stated. 1. A formal written statement of the facts in a case, submitted to the court jointly by the parties so that a decision may be rendered without trial. — Also termed case agreed on. [Cases: Trial 368. C.J.S. Trial § 1022.] 2. Hist. A procedure used by the Court of Chancery to refer difficult legal questions to a common-law court. • This procedure was abolished in 1852. 3. English law. An appeal from a Magistrates' Court to the Divisional Court of Queen's Bench on a point of criminal law. • After ruling, the magistrate states the facts for the appeal and the Queen's Bench rules on the question of law presented by the magistrate's ruling.

inactive case. A pending case that is not proceeding toward resolution. • This may occur for several reasons, such as nonservice, want of prosecution, or (in a criminal case) the defendant's having absconded.

instant case. See case at bar.

present case. See case at bar.

special case. See case reserved (1).

test case. 1. A lawsuit brought to establish an important legal principle or right. • Such an action is frequently brought by the parties' mutual consent on agreed facts — when that is so, a test case is also sometimes termed amicable action or amicable suit.

“The suit is spoken of, in the affidavits filed in support of it, as an amicable action, and the proceeding defended on that ground. But an amicable action, in the sense in which these words are used in courts of justice, presupposes that there is a real dispute between the parties concerning some matter of right. And in a case of that kind it sometimes happens, that, for the purpose of obtaining a decision of the controversy, without incurring needless expense and trouble, they agree to conduct the suit in an amicable manner, that is to say, that they will not em-barrass each other with unnecessary forms or technicalities, and will mutually admit facts which they know to be true, and without requiring proof, and will bring the point in dispute before the court for decision, without subjecting each other to unnecessary expense or delay. But there must be an actual controversy, and adverse interests. The amity consists in the manner in which it is brought to issue before the court. And such amicable actions, so far from being objects of censure, are always approved and encouraged, because they facilitate greatly the administration of justice between the parties. The objection in the case before us is, not that the proceedings were amicable, but that there is no real conflict of interest between them; that the plaintiff and defendant have the same interest, and that interest adverse and in conflict with the interest of third persons, whose rights would be seriously affected if the question of law was decided in the manner that both of the parties to this suit desire it to be." Lord v. Veazie, 49 U.S. 251, 255 (1850)(Taney, C.J.).

2. An action selected from several suits that are based on the same facts and evidence, raise the same question of law, and have a common plaintiff or a common defendant. • Sometimes, when all parties agree, the court orders a consolidation and all parties are bound by the decision in the test case. — Also termed test action.

2. A criminal investigation <the Manson case>.3. An individual suspect or convict in relation to any aspect of the criminal-justice system <the probation officer said he considers Mr. Jones a difficult case>.4. An argument <the debater made a compelling case for gun control>.5. An instance, occurrence, or situation  .6. TRESPASS ON THE CASE <the actions of trover and case are not entirely defunct>.

CASE-IN-CHIEF

case-in-chief. 1. The evidence presented at trial by a party between the time the party calls the first witness and the time the party rests. 2. The part of a trial in which a party presents evidence to support the claim or defense. Cf. REBUTTAL.

caselaw. The law to be found in the collection of reported cases that form all or part of the body of law within a given jurisdiction. — Also written case law; caselaw. — Also termed decisional law; adjudicative law; juri-sprudence; organic law.

“Case law in some form and to some extent is found wherever there is law. A mere series of decisions of individual cases does not of course in itself constitute a system of law. But in any judicial system rules of law arise sooner or later out of the solution of practical problems, whether or not such formulations are desired, intended or consciously recognized. These generalizations contained in, or built upon, past decisions, when taken as normative for future disputes, create a legal system.” Karl N. Llewellyn, “Case Law” in 3 Ency. Soc. Sci. 249 (1930).

CASE LAWYER

case lawyer. An attorney whose knowledge is largely confined to a specific field of expertise.

“A working lawyer cannot expect to keep abreast of all this output of ideas, but he can at least study some portion so as to liberalize his views of law and to avoid the reproach of being a mere case lawyer.” Lord Wright, The Study of Law, 54 Law Q. Rev. 185, 185 (1938).

CASELOAD

caseload. The volume of cases assigned to a given court, agency, officer, judge, law firm, or lawyer.

CASE OF FIRST IMPRESSION

case of first impression. See CASE.

CASE-OR-CONTROVERSY REQUIREMENT

case-or-controversy requirement. The constitutional requirement that, for a federal court to hear a case, the case must involve an actual dispute. See CONTROVERSY(3); advisory opinion under OPINION(1). [Cases: Federal Courts 12.]

“The courts of the United States do not sit to decide questions of law presented in a vacuum, but only such questions as arise in a ‘case or controversy.’ The two terms can be used interchangeably, for, we are authoritatively told, a ‘controversy,’ if distinguishable at all from a ‘case,’ is distinguishable only in that it is a less comprehensive term, and includes only suits of a civil nature.” Charles Alan Wright, The Law of Federal Courts 60 (5th ed. 1994).

CASE PLAN

case plan. A written procedure for the care and management of a child who has been removed from his or her home and placed in foster care or in an institution. • The case plan includes (1) a description of the place where the child has been placed, (2) a plan for providing the child with safe and proper care, and (3) a plan for services that will be provided to the child's parents. Each state must have a case-review system formulated to ensure that the child is placed in the least restrictive and most appropriate place and that the plan is in the best interests of the child; the plan must be reviewed every six months. See ADOPTION AND SAFE FAMILIES ACT.

CASE RESERVED

case reserved. See CASE.

cash equivalent.A short-term security that is liquid enough to be considered equivalent to cash.

CASH-EQUIVALENT DOCTRINE

cash-equivalent doctrine.Tax. The doctrine requiring income to be reported even if it is not cash, as when the taxpayer barter to receive in-kind payments. [Cases: Internal Revenue 3116, 3714.]

CASH-EXPENDITURE METHOD

cash-expenditure method.Tax. A technique used by the IRS to reconstruct a taxpayer's unreported income by comparing the amount spent on goods and services during a given period with the income reported for that period. • If the expenditures exceed the reported revenue, the IRS treats the difference as taxable income. [Cases: Internal Revenue 4530.1.]

CASH FLOW

cash flow. 1. The movement of cash through a business, as a measure of profitability or liquidity. 2. The cash generated from a business or transaction. 3. Cash receipts minus cash disbursements for a given period. — Sometimes written cashflow.

cash flow per common share.The cash flow from operations minus preferred stock dividends, divided by the number of outstanding common shares.

discounted cash flow.A method of evaluating a capital investment by comparing its projected income and costs with its current value. • Discounted cash flow is used to determine the value of a company by calculating the present value of its future cash flows. In theory, the value of the corporation's assets equals the present value of the expected cash flow generated by those assets. — Also termed discounted-cash-flow method. — Abbr. DCF; DCF method.

incremental cash flow.The net increase in cash flow attributable to a particular capital investment.

negative cash flow.A financial situation in which cash outflow exceeds cash inflow. See INSOLVENCY.

---

net cash flow.Cash inflow minus cash outflow.

CASU CONSIMILI

casu consimili (kay-s[y]oo k<<schwa>>n-sim-<<schwa>>-II), n. [Latin "in a like case"] Hist. A writ of entry allowing the holder of a reversionary interest in land to sue for the return of land alienated by a life tenant or a tenant by the curtesy. • This writ originated in the second Statute of Westminster (13 Edw. I) ch. 24 (1285), which expanded the writs available to litigants by requiring the Chancery to issue a writ for any situation that called for a writ similar to one that had previously issued consimili casu ("in a like case"). Specifically, the statute provided (in Latin) that "as often as it shall happen in chancery that in one case a writ is found, and in a like case [in consimili casu], falling under the same right, and requiring like remedy, no writ is to be found, the clerks of chancery shall agree in making a writ..." Many other writs were framed under Westminster 2, but this particular writ's close association with the statute led to its taking the generic name. — Also termed consimili casu; entry in casu consimili. See ACTIONES NOMINATAE.

CASU PROVISIO

casu proviso (kay-s[y]oo pr<<schwa>>-vI-zoh). [Latin "in the case provided"] Hist. A writ of entry to recover a reversion in land alienated by a tenant in dower, i.e., a widow with a life estate in the alienated land.

CASUS

A situation actually contemplated by the legislature in enacting a statute that applies to the situation. • In this sense, the term is opposed to casus omissus. Cf. CASUS OMISSUS .

CASUS AMISSIONIS

casus amissionis (kay-s<<schwa>>s <<schwa>>-mis[h]-ee-oh-nis). [Latin "the occasion of the loss"] Hist. The circumstances under which a document is lost or destroyed. • In an action to prove the contents of a lost instrument, the circumstances under which a document was lost was required evidence. Lost documents are now covered by Federal Rule of Evidence 1004(1).

CASUS BELLI

casus belli (kay-s<<schwa>>s bel-I). [Latin] An act or circumstance that provokes or justifies war.

CASUS FOEDERIS

casus foederis (kay-s<<schwa>>s fed-<<schwa>>r-is). [Latin “the case of the treaty” or “the case of the agreement”] 1.Int'l law. A provocative act by one nation toward another, entitling the latter to call upon an ally to fulfill the terms of an alliance. 2. A clause within a treaty of alliance specifying such provocative acts. 3.Contracts. A case or an event falling within the terms of a contract.

CASUS FORTUITUS

casus fortuitus (kay-s<<schwa>>s for-t[y]oo-<<schwa>>-t<<schwa>>s). [Latin] 1. A fortuitous event. 2. A loss not attributable to human fault.

CASUS IMPROVISUS

casus improvisus (kay-s<<schwa>>s im-pr<<schwa>>-vI-z<<schwa>>s). [Latin] Hist. An unforeseen case; a case not provided for.

“Casus improvisus .... This phrase is of frequent occurrence, and admits of varied illustration. Thus, if an Act of Parliament has been passed for the removal of some inconvenience, or the suppression of some evil, and specifies the circumstances or cases in which it is to have application, and a case occurs which is not specified by the Act, in which, nevertheless, the application of the Statute would be beneficial, this is a casus improvisus, and neither the procedure nor the provisions of the Act can be applied to it. The Statute cannot be strained so as to be made applicable to a case for which it does not provide. Statutes, however, which are purely remedial are construed liberally, and are often extended to cases similar to those mentioned in the Act, although such cases do not fall within the letter of the enactment.” John Trayner, Trayner's Latin Maxims 70 (4th ed. 1894).

CASUS INCOGITATI

casus incogitati (kay-s<<schwa>>s in-koj-i-tay-tI). [Law Latin] Hist. Circumstances unthought of. • Circumstances that were not otherwise addressed in an instrument could be determined on equitable grounds.

CASUS MALE INCLUSUS

casus male inclusus (kay-s<<schwa>>s mal-ee in-kloo-s<<schwa>>s). [Latin “case wrongly included”] A situation literally provided for by a statute or contract, but wrongly so because the provision's literal application has unintended consequences.

CASUS OMISSUS

casus omissus (kay-s<<schwa>>s <<schwa>>-mis-<<schwa>>s). [Latin “case omitted”] A situation not provided for by a statute or contract, and therefore governed by caselaw or new judge-made law. Pl. casus omissi. Cf. CASUS(2). [Cases: Statutes 186. C.J.S. Statutes § 320.]

“At times a state of war appears to exist between the courts and the parliamentary draftsman. The courts decline to come to the rescue when a casus omissus is revealed, so words appropriate to cover the casus omissus are added to the statute. More frequently the draftsman gets in first and, anticipating a strict construction by the courts coupled with a total lack of sympathy if there should happen to be a casus omissus, he produces a statute which is nothing less than horrific in its detail.” Rupert Cross, Statutory Interpretation 11–12 (1976).

CASUS RARIOR

casus rarior (kay-s<<schwa>>s rair-ee-or).Hist. An exceptional case. Pl. casus rariores.

CATS AND DOGS

cats and dogs.Slang. 1. Nonperforming securities. 2. Highly speculative securities.

“Wall Street disdainfully regards most penny stocks as cats and dogs, a popular phrase in use since 1879 to describe low-priced, often worthless, speculative securities. The single word dog also means a worthless security, and the related pup meant a low-priced, inactive stock during the 1940s and 1950s.” Kathleen Odean, High Steppers, Fallen Angels, and Lollipops: Wall Street Slang 10 (1988).

CATTLE-RUSTLING

caucus (kaw-k<<schwa>>s), n.1. Representatives from a political party who assemble to nominate candidates and decide party policy. [Cases: Elections 125. C.J.S. Elections § 104.] 2. A meeting of a group, usu. within a deliberative assembly, of people aligned by party or interest to formulate a policy or strategy. — caucus,vb.

“The term caucus also sometimes applied to a similar meeting of all the known or admitted partisans of a par-ticular position on an important issue — in a convention or any other deliberative assembly — who meet to plan strategy toward a desired result within the assembly. Such a meeting may be held on the presumed informal understanding that those who attend will follow the decisions of the caucus.” Henry M. Robert, Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised § 59, at 588 (10th ed. 2000).

separate caucus.A confidential mediation session that a mediator holds with an individual party to elicit settle-ment offers and demands. • When separate caucuses are used, the mediator typically shuttles between the two (or more) sides of a dispute to communicate offers and demands. Formerly, ABA Model Rule of Professional Re-sponsibility 2.2 (governing when a lawyer could act for more than one client or as an intermediary between parties) applied when a lawyer acted as a mediator. Although the rule was deleted from the Model in 2002, many states have similar rules in effect. The rule requires a lawyer acting as an intermediary to inform the parties about mediation and the mediator's role, to act impartially, and to have a good-faith belief that the matter can be resolved in all parties' best interests.

CAUSA

causa (kaw-z<<schwa>>), n.[Latin] 1.CAUSE(1).

“One of the vaguest terms of the Roman juristic language. Starting from the basic meaning of cause, reason, inducement, the jurists use it in very different senses....Causa is the reason for which some judicial measures (actions, exceptions, interdicts) were introduced by the praetor....

Sometimes causa is roughly identical with animus when it alludes to the subjective motive, intention, or purpose of a person.” Adolf Berger, Encyclopedic Dictionary of Roman Law 382–83 (1953).

causa causans (kaw-z<<schwa>> kaw-zanz). An immediate or effective cause. See immediate cause under CAUSE(1).

causa jactitationis maritagii (kaw-z<<schwa>> jak-ti-tay-shee-oh-nis mar-<<schwa>>-tay-jee-I). [Latin “cause of assertion of marriage”] See JACTITATION OF MARRIAGE.

causa matrimonii praelocuti (kaw-z<<schwa>> ma-tr<<schwa>>-moh-nee-I pree-l<<schwa>>-kyoo-tl). [Latin “cause of prearranged marriage”] Hist. A writ of entry available to a woman who had given land to a suitor who refused to marry her within a reasonable time. — Also termed entry for marriage in speech.

causa proxima (kaw-z<<schwa>> prok-si-m<<schwa>>). The immediate or latest cause. See proximate cause under CAUSE.

causa remota (kaw-z<<schwa>> ri-moh-t<<schwa>>). A remote or indirect cause. See remote cause under CAUSE.

causa sine qua non (kaw-z<<schwa>> si-nee kway nonalsosin-ay kwah nohn). A necessary cause; the cause without which the thing cannot be or the event would not have occurred. See but-for cause under CAUSE(1).

2.Roman & civil law. A consideration or inducement.“The revolution of the ancient law of Contract was con-summated when the Praetor of some one year announced in his Edict that he would grant equitable actions upon Pacts which had never been matured at all into Contracts, provided only that the Pacts in question had been founded on a consideration (causa).” Henry S. Maine, Ancient Law 28 (17th ed. 1901).

“Article 1131 of the French Civil Code provides that: ‘L’obligation sans cause, ou sur une fausse cause, ou sur une cause illicite, ne peut avoir aucun effet.’ This cause or causa is a synonym for consideration, and we find the terms used interchangeably in the earlier English authorities.” John Salmond, Jurisprudence 361 (Glanville L. Williams ed., 10th ed. 1947).

causa falsa (kaw-z<<schwa>> fal-s<<schwa>> [orfawl-s<<schwa>>]). See falsa causa.

causa non secuta (kaw-z<<schwa>> non s<<schwa>>-kyoo-t<<schwa>>). [Latin “the (expected) consideration not having followed”] Roman law. A consideration that has failed; failure of consideration.

falsa causa (kaw-z<<schwa>> fal-s<<schwa>> [orfawl-s<<schwa>>]). [Latin “mistaken reason or motive”] Roman law. Falsity of consideration. • This might result from several things, such as a mistaken reason for making a gift or bequest. — Also termed (esp. in civil law) causa falsa.

CAUSA CAUSAE EST CAUSA CAUSATI

causa causae est causa causati (kaw-z<<schwa>> kaw-zee est kaw-z<<schwa>> kaw-zay-tI). [Latin “the cause of a cause is the cause of the thing caused”] Torts. The principle that the cause of the cause (rather than only the immediate cause) should also be considered as the cause of the effect.
