A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers [1849]. Monday [Though All the Fates Should Prove Unkind, st. 2]
- 22 Methinks my own soul must be a bright invisible green.
A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers. Wednesday
- 23 It takes two to speak the truth—one to speak, and another to hear.
A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers. Wednesday
- 24 Even the death of friends will inspire us as much as their lives. . . . Their memories will be encrusted over with sublime and pleasing thoughts, as monuments of other men are overgrown with moss; for our friends have no place in the graveyard.

- 26 The frontiers are not east or west, north or south, but wherever a man fronts a fact.
A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers. Thursday
- 27 A true account of the actual is the rarest poetry, for common sense always takes a hasty and superficial view.

¹No year in Thoreau's dateline.

- 1 My life has been the poem I would have writ,
But I could not both live and utter it.
A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers. My Life Has Been the Poem I Would Have Writ
- 2 As if our birth had at first sundered things, and we had been thrust up through into nature like a wedge, and not till the wound heals and the scar disappears, do we begin to discover where we are,
and that nature is one and continuous everywhere.

deep surmise which pierces and scatters them?

- 6 The fate of the country . . . does not depend on what kind of paper you drop into the ballot box once a year, but on what kind of man you drop from your chamber into the street every morning.
Slavery in Massachusetts [1854]
- 7 I should not talk so much about myself if there were anybody else whom I knew as well.
Walden [1854], ch. 1, Economy
- 8 I have traveled a good deal in Concord.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 9 Public opinion is a weak tyrant compared with our own private opinion. What a man thinks of himself, that it is which determines, or rather, indicates, his fate.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 10 As if you could kill time without injuring eternity.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 11 The mass of men lead lives of quiet desperation.
What is called resignation is confirmed desperation.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 12 It is a characteristic of wisdom not to do desperate things.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 13 It is never too late to give up our prejudices.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 14 Age is no better, hardly so well, qualified for an instructor as youth, for it has not profited so much as it has lost.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 15 Most of the luxuries, and many of the so-called comforts, of life are not only not indispensable, but positive hindrances to the elevation of mankind.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 16 To be a philosopher is not merely to have subtle thoughts, nor even to found a school, but so to love wisdom as to live accordingly to its dictates, a life of simplicity, independence, magnanimity, and trust.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 17 Beware of all enterprises that require new clothes.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 18 In the long run men hit only what they aim at.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 19 The swiftest traveler is he that goes afoot.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 20 It is not necessary that a man should earn his living by the sweat of his brow unless he sweats easier than I do.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 21 When a man dies he kicks the dust.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 22 As for doing good, that is one of the professions which are full.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 23 There is no odor so bad as that which arises from goodness tainted.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 24 There are a thousand hacking at the branches of evil to one who is striking at the root.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 25 Philanthropy is almost the only virtue which is sufficiently appreciated by mankind.
Walden, 1, Economy
- 26 A man is rich in proportion to the number of things which he can afford to let alone.
Walden, 2, Where I Lived, and What I Lived For
- 27 I know of no more encouraging fact than the unquestionable ability of man to elevate his life by a conscious endeavor.
*Walden, 2, Where I Lived, and What I
Lived For*
- 28 I went to the woods because I wished to live deliberately, to front only the essential facts of life, and see if I could not learn what it had to teach, and not,
when I came to die, discover that I had not lived.
*Walden, 2, Where I Lived, and What I
Lived For*
- 29 Our life is frittered away by detail. . . . Simplify, simplify.
*Walden, 2, Where I Lived, and What I

Walden, 2, Where I Lived, and What I Lived For
- 4 Books must be read as deliberately and reservedly as they were written.
Walden, 3, Reading
- 5 How many a man has dated a new era in his life from the reading of a book.
Walden, 3, Reading
- 6 I love a broad margin to my life.
Walden, 4, Sounds
- 7 Our horizon is never quite at our elbows.
Walden, 5, Solitude
- 8 I never found the companion that was so companionable as solitude. We are for the most part more lonely when we go abroad among men than when we stay in our chambers. A man thinking or working is always alone, let him be where he will.
Walden, 5, Solitude
- 9 I had three chairs in my house: one for solitude, two for friendship, three for society.
Walden, 6, Visitors
- 10 I was determined to know beans.
Walden, 7, The Beanfield
- 11 Through want of enterprise and faith men are where they are, buying and selling, and spending their lives like serfs.
Walden, 10, Baker Farm
- 12 They [wood stumps] warmed me twice—once while I was splitting them, and again when they were on the fire.¹ Walden, 13, Housewarming
- 13 Heaven is under our feet as well as over our heads.
Walden, 16, The Pond in Winter
- 14 While men believe in the infinite, some ponds will be thought to be bottomless.
Walden, 16, The Pond in Winter
- 15 Through our own recovered innocence we discern the innocence of our neighbors.
Walden, 17, Spring
- 16 It is not worth while to go round the world to count the cats in Zanzibar.
Walden, 18, Conclusion
- 17 As if there were safety in stupidity alone.
Walden, 18, Conclusion
- 18 If one advances confidently in the direction of his dreams, and endeavors to live the life which he has imagined, he will meet with a success unexpected in common hours.
Walden, 18, Conclusion
- 19 If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music which he hears, however measured or far away.
Walden, 18, Conclusion

Walden, 18, Conclusion
- 22 Only that day dawns to which we are awake. There is more day to dawn. The sun is but a morning star.
Walden, 18, Conclusion
- 23 I hear many condemn these men because they were so few. When were the good and the brave ever in a majority?
A Plea for Captain John Brown [1859]
- 24 I speak for the slave when I say that I prefer the philanthropy of Captain Brown to that philanthropy which neither shoots me nor liberates me.
A Plea for Captain John Brown
- 25 So we defend ourselves and our henroosts, and maintain slavery.
A Plea for Captain John Brown

Walking [1862]
- 28 In wildness is the preservation of the world.²
Walking
- 29 I believe in the forest, and in the meadow, and in the night in which the corn grows.
Walking

Let each produce according to his aptitudes and his force; let each consume according to his need.—LOUIS BLANC, Organisation du Travail [1840]

Nothing in society will belong to anyone, either as a personal possession or as capital goods, except the things for which the person has immediate use, for either his needs, his pleasures, or his daily work. Every citizen will make his particular contribution to the activities of the community according to his capacity, his talent and his age; it is on this basis that his duties will be determined, in conformity with the distributive laws.—MORELLY, Le Code de la Nature [1755] entered into a holy alliance to exorcise this specter: Pope and Czar, Metternich and Guizot, French Radicals and German police spies.

The Communist Manifesto [1848],¹ opening lines

1 The history of all hitherto existing society is the history of class struggles. Freeman and slave, patrician and plebeian, lord and serf, guild master and journeyman, in a word, oppressor and oppressed, stood in constant opposition to each other, carried on an uninterrupted, now hidden, now open fight, a fight that each time ended, either in a revolutionary reconstitution of society at large, or in the common ruin of the contending classes.

The Communist Manifesto, sec. 1

2 The executive of the modern state is but a committee for managing the common affairs of the whole bourgeoisie.² The bourgeoisie has, historically, played a most revolutionary role.

The Communist Manifesto, 1

3 The bourgeoisie, by the rapid improvement of all instruments of production, by the immensely facilitated means of communication, draws all, even the most barbarian, nations into civilization.

The Communist Manifesto, 1

4 Of all the classes that stand face to face with the bourgeoisie today, the proletariat alone is a really revolutionary class. The other classes decay and finally disappear in the race of modern industry; the proletariat is its special and essential product.³

The Communist Manifesto, 1

5 In this sense, the theory of the Communists may be summed up in the single sentence: Abolition of private property. The Communist Manifesto, 2

6 In proportion as the antagonism between classes within the nation vanishes, the hostility of one nation to another will come to an end.

The Communist Manifesto, 2

7 The ruling ideas of each age have ever been the ideas of its ruling class.

The Communist Manifesto, 2

8 The communists disdain to conceal their views and aims. They openly declare that their ends can be obtained only by forcible overthrow of all existing social conditions. Let the ruling classes tremble at a communist revolution. The proletarians have nothing to lose but their chains. They have a world to win. Working men of all countries, unite!⁴

10 Say not the struggle nought availeth,
The labour and the wounds are vain,
The enemy faints not, nor faileth,
And as things have been, things remain.

If hopes were dupes, fears may be liars;
It may be, in yon smoke concealed,
Your comrades chase e'en now the fliers,
And, but for you, possess the field.

For while the tired waves, vainly breaking,
Seem here no painful inch to gain,
Far back through creeks and inlets making
Came, silent, flooding in, the main,

And not by eastern windows only,
When daylight comes, comes in the light,

In front the sun climbs slow, how slowly,
But westward, look, the land is bright.

24 I'm not denyin' the women are foolish; God
Almighty made 'em to match the men.
Adam Bede, 53

25 The law's made to take care o' raskills.
The Mill on the Floss [1860], bk. III, ch. 4

1 There is no hopelessness so sad as that of early youth, when the soul is made up of wants, and has no long memories, no superadded life in the life of others.
The Mill on the Floss, III, 5

2 Not let them want bread, but only require them to eat it with bitter herbs.
The Mill on the Floss, IV, 1

3 I've never any pity for conceited people, because I think they carry their comfort about with them.¹
The Mill on the Floss, V, 4

4 The happiest women, like the happiest nations, have no history.

6 In our springtime every day has its hidden growths in the mind, as it has in the earth when the little folded blades are getting ready to pierce the ground.
Felix Holt, the Radical [1866], ch. 18

7 One way of getting an idea of our fellow-countrymen's miseries is to go and look at their pleasures.
Felix Holt, the Radical, 28

8 Prophecy is the most gratuitous form of error.
Middlemarch [1871–1872], ch. 10

9 If we had a keen vision of all that is ordinary in human life, it would be like hearing the grass grow or the squirrel's heart beat, and we should die of that roar which is the other side of silence.
Middlemarch, 22

10 If youth is the season of hope, it is often so only in the sense that our elders are hopeful about us.
Middlemarch, 55

11 There is no creature whose inward being is so strong that it is not greatly determined by what lies outside it.
Middlemarch, Finale

12 Hostesses who entertain much must make up their parties as ministers make up their cabinets, on grounds other than personal liking.

18 Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord;
He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored;
He hath loosed the fateful lightning of His terrible, swift sword;
His truth is marching on.
Battle Hymn of the Republic [1862], st. 1

19 In the beauty of the lilies Christ was born across the sea,
With a glory in His bosom that transfigures you and me;
As He died to make men holy, let us die to make men free.

Charles Kingsley

1819–1875

20 Give me the political economist, the sanitary reformer, the engineer; and take your saints and virgins, relics and miracles. The spinning-jenny and the railroad, Cunard's liners and the electric telegraph, are to me . . . signs that we are, on some points at least, in harmony with the universe.

Then hey for boot and horse, lad,
And round the world away:
Young blood must have its course, lad,
And every dog his day.
Water Babies. Song II, st. 1
- 5 God grant you find one face there
You loved when all was young!
Water Babies. Song II, st. 1
- 6 Science frees us in many ways . . . from the bodily

- 1 When the inhabitants of some sequestered island first descry the “big canoe” of the European rolling through the blue waters towards their shores, they rush down to the beach in crowds, and with open arms stand ready to embrace the strangers. - 6 Let the most absent-minded of men be plunged in his deepest reveries—stand that man upon his legs, set his feet a-going, and he will infallibly lead you to water, if water there be in all that region. . . . Meditation and water are wedded forever.
Moby-Dick, 1

Moby-Dick, 26
- 12 And this is what ye have shipped for, men! to chase that white whale on both sides of land, and over all sides of earth, till he spouts black blood and rolls fin out.
Moby-Dick, 36
- 13 All visible objects, man, are but as pasteboard masks . . . strike, strike through the mask!
Moby-Dick, 36
- 14 All that most maddens and torments; all that stirs up the lees of things; all truth with malice in it; all that cracks the sinews and cakes the brain; all the subtle demonisms of life and thought; all evil, to crazy Ahab, were visibly personified, and made practically assailable in Moby Dick. He piled upon the whale’s white hump the sum of all the general rage and hate felt by his whole race from Adam down; and then, as if his chest had been a mortar, he burst his hot heart’s shell upon it.
Moby-Dick, 41
- 15 Though in many of its aspects this visible world seems formed in love, the invisible spheres were formed in fright.
Moby-Dick, 42
- 16 For as this appalling ocean surrounds the verdant land, so in the soul of man there lies one insular Tahiti, full of peace and joy, but encompassed by all the horrors of the half known life.
Moby-Dick, 58
- 17 By heaven, man, we are turned round and round in this world, like yonder windlass, and Fate is the handspike.
Moby-Dick, 132
- 18 All collapsed, and the great shroud of the sea rolled on as it rolled five thousand years ago.
Moby-Dick, 135
- 19 What we take to be our strongest tower of delight, only stands at the caprice of the minutest event—the falling of a leaf, the hearing of a voice, or the receipt of one little bit of paper scratched over with a few small characters by a sharpened feather.
Pierre [1852], bk. IV

Preface to the first edition of Leaves of Grass [1855]²

¹Lieb Vaterland, magst ruhig sein, / Fest steht und treu die Wacht am Rhein.

²The first edition of Leaves of Grass, published anonymously by its author in July 1855, contained a long preface and twelve untitled poems. Over the next four decades Whitman revised and enlarged his book. The texts and sequence of the verse quotations here are those of the so-called Deathbed Edition [Philadelphia, 1891–92].

- 9 All beauty comes from beautiful blood and a beautiful brain.

Preface to the first edition of Leaves of Grass

- 10 This is what you shall do: Love the earth and sun and the animals, despise riches, give alms to every one that asks, stand up for the stupid and crazy, devote your income and labor to others, hate tyrants, argue not concerning God.

Preface to the first edition of Leaves of Grass

- 11 The proof of a poet is that his country absorbs him as affectionately as he has absorbed it.

Preface to the first edition of Leaves of Grass

- 12 One's-Self I sing, a simple separate person,
Yet utter the word Democratic, the word
En-Masse. One's-Self I Sing

- 13 O to be self-balanced for contingencies,
To confront night, storms, hunger, ridicule, accidents, rebuffs, as the trees and animals do.
Me Imperturbe

- 14 I hear America singing, the varied carols I hear.
I Hear America Singing

- 15 I celebrate myself, and sing myself,
And what I assume you shall assume,
For every atom belonging to me as good belongs to you.

- I loafe and invite my soul,
I lean and loafe at my ease observing a spear of summer grass. Song of Myself, 1

- 16 Stop this day and night with me and you shall possess the origin of all poems.
Song of Myself, 2

- 17 Swiftly arose and spread around me the peace and knowledge that pass all the argument of the earth,
And I know that the hand of God is the promise of my own,
And I know that the spirit of God is the brother of my own,
And that all the men ever born are also my brothers, and the women my sisters and lovers,
And that a kelson of the creation is love.

Song of Myself, 5

- 18 A child said What is the grass? fetching it to me with full hands;
How could I answer the child? I do not know what it is any more than he.

- I guess it must be the flag of my disposition, out of hopeful green stuff woven. Song of Myself, 6

- 19 And now it seems to me the beautiful uncut hair of graves.
Song of Myself, 6

- 1 Has any one supposed it lucky to be born?
I hasten to inform him or her it is just as lucky to die, and I know it.
Song of Myself, 7
- 2 And the look of the bay mare shames silliness out of me.
Song of Myself, 13
- 3 This is the grass that grows wherever the land is
and the water is,
This is the common air that bathes the globe.
Song of Myself, 17
- 4 Have you heard that it was good to gain the day?
I also say it is good to fall, battles are lost in the same spirit in which they are won.
Song of Myself, 18
- 5 I find no sweeter fat than sticks to my own bones.
Song of Myself, 20
- 6 My foothold is tenon'd and mortis'd in granite,
I laugh at what you call dissolution,
And I know the amplitude of time.
Song of Myself, 20
- 7 I am the poet of the Body and I am the poet of the Soul.
Song of Myself, 21
- 8 I am he that walks with the tender and growing night,
I call to the earth and sea half-held by the night.
Press close bare-bosom'd night—press close magnetic nourishing night!
Night of south winds—night of the large few stars!
Still nodding night—mad naked summer night.
Song of Myself, 21
- 9 Walt Whitman, a kosmos, of Manhattan the son, Turbulent, fleshy, sensual, eating, drinking and breeding,
No sentimentalist, no stander above men and women or apart from them,
No more modest than immodest.
Unscrew the locks from the doors!
Unscrew the doors themselves from their jambs!
Song of Myself, 24
- 10 The scent of these arm-pits aroma finer than prayer,
This head more than churches, bibles, and all the creeds.
Song of Myself, 24
- 11 I dote on myself, there is that lot of me and all so luscious.
Song of Myself, 24
- 12 Steep'd amid honey'd morphine, my windpipe
throttled in fakes of death.
Song of Myself, 26
- 13 I merely stir, press, feel with my fingers, and am happy,
To touch my person to someone else's is about as much as I can stand.
Song of Myself, 27
- 14 Logic and sermons never convince,
The damp of the night drives deeper into my soul.
Song of Myself, 30
- 15 I believe a leaf of grass is no less than the journey-work of the stars.
Song of Myself, 31
- 16 I think I could turn and live with animals, they are so placid and self-contain'd,
I stand and look at them long and long.
They do not sweat and whine about their condition,
They do not lie awake in the dark and weep for their sins,
They do not make me sick discussing their duty to God,
Not one is dissatisfied, not one is demented with the mania of owning things,
Not one kneels to another, nor to his kind that lived thousands of years ago,
Not one is respectable or unhappy over the whole earth.
Song of Myself, 32
- 17 I am afoot with my vision.
Song of Myself, 33
- 18 I am the man, I suffer'd, I was there.
Song of Myself, 33
- 19 Agonies are one of my changes of garments.
Song of Myself, 33
- 20 I have said that the soul is not more than the body,
And I have said that the body is not more than the
soul,
And nothing, not God, is greater to one than one's self is,
And whoever walks a furlong without sympathy walks to his own funeral drest in his shroud.
Song of Myself, 48
- 21 Do I contradict myself?
Very well then I contradict myself,
(I am large, I contain multitudes.)
Song of Myself, 51
- 22 I sound my barbaric yawp over the roofs of the world.
Song of Myself, 52
- 23 I bequeath myself to the dirt to grow from the grass I love,
If you want me again look for me under your boot-soles.
Song of Myself, 52
- 24 If anything is sacred the human body is sacred.
I Sing the Body Electric, 8
- 25 Through you I drain the pent-up rivers of myself,
In you I wrap a thousand onward years.
A Woman Waits for Me

- 1 As Adam early in the morning,
Walking forth from the bower refresh'd with sleep,
Behold me where I pass, hear my voice, approach, Touch me, touch the palm of your hand to my body as I pass,
Be not afraid of my body.
As Adam Early in the Morning
- 2 Afoot and light-hearted I take to the open road,
Healthy, free, the world before me,
The long brown path before me leading wherever I choose.
Henceforth I ask not good-fortune, I myself am good-fortune. Song of the Open Road, 1
- 3 The glories strung like beads on my smallest sights and hearings, on the walk in the street and the passage over the river.
Crossing Brooklyn Ferry, 2
- 4 A great city is that which has the greatest men and women,
If it be a few ragged huts it is still the greatest city in the whole world.
Song of the Broad-Axe, 4
- 5 Come Muse migrate from Greece and Ionia, Cross out please those immensely overpaid accounts,
That matter of Troy and Achilles' wrath, and Aeneas', Odysseus' wanderings, Placard "Removed" and "To Let" on the rocks of your snowy Parnassus.
Song of the Exposition, 2
- 6 We must march my darlings, we must bear the brunt of danger,
We the youthful sinewy races, all the rest on us depend,
Pioneers! O pioneers! Pioneers! O Pioneers!
- 7 Out of the cradle endlessly rocking,
Out of the mocking-bird's throat, the musical shuttle,
Out of the Ninth-month midnight.
Out of the Cradle Endlessly Rocking
- 8 When I heard the learn'd astronomer,
When the proofs, the figures, were ranged in columns before me,
When I was shown the charts and diagrams, to add,
divide, and measure them,
When I sitting heard the astronomer where he lectured with much applause in the lecture-room,
How soon unaccountable I became tired and sick,
Till rising and gliding out I wander'd off by myself,
In the mystical moist night-air, and from time to time,
Look'd up in perfect silence at the stars.
When I Heard the Learn'd Astronomer
- 9 Words! book-words! what are you?
Song of the Banner at Daybreak
- 10 Young man I think I know you—I think this face is the face of the Christ himself, Dead and divine and brother of all, and here again
he lies.
A Sight in Camp in the Daybreak Gray and Grim
- 11 Many a soldier's loving arms about this neck have
cross'd and rested,
Many a soldier's kiss dwells on these bearded lips.
The Wound-Dresser
- 12 Give me the splendid silent sun with all his beams full-dazzling.
Give Me the Splendid Silent Sun, 1
- 13 Word over all, beautiful as the sky, Beautiful that war and all its deeds of carnage must
in time be utterly lost,
That the hands of the sisters Death and Night incessantly softly wash again, and ever again,
this soil'd world;
For my enemy is dead, a man divine as myself
is dead. Reconciliation
- 14 When lilacs last in the dooryard bloom'd,
And the great star early droop'd in the western sky in the night,
I mourn'd, and yet shall mourn with ever-returning spring.
When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloom'd, 1
- 15 Nor for you, for one alone,
Blossoms and branches green to coffins all I bring,
For fresh as the morning, thus would I chant a song for you O sane and sacred death.
When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloom'd, 7
- 16 Come lovely and soothing death,
Undulate round the world, serenely arriving,
arriving,
In the day, in the night, to all, to each,
Sooner or later delicate death.
When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloom'd, 14
- 17 Dark mother always gliding near with soft feet,
Have none chanted for thee a chant of fullest welcome?
When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloom'd, 14
- 18 O Captain! my Captain! our fearful trip is done,
The ship has weather'd every rack, the prize we sought is won,
The port is near, the bells I hear, the people all exulting. O Captain! My Captain!, st. 1
- 19 Exult O shores, and ring O bells!
But I with mournful tread,

Walk the deck my Captain lies,
 Fallen cold and dead.
O Captain! My Captain!, st. 3

 And the first object he look'd upon, that object he became. There Was a Child Went Forth

 Every cubic inch of space is a miracle. Miracles

4 A batter'd, wreck'd old man,
 Thrown on this savage shore, far from home,
 Pent by the sea and dark rebellious brows, twelve dreary months,
 Sore, stiff with many toils, sicken'd and nigh to death,
 I take my way along the island's edge,
 Venting a heavy heart. Prayer of Columbus

All we Karamazovs are such insects, and, angel as you are, that insect lives in you too, and will stir a tempest in your blood. Tempests, because sensual lust is a tempest—worse than a tempest! Beauty is a terrible and awful thing! It is terrible because it has not been fathomed, for God sets us nothing but riddles. Here the boundaries meet and all contradictions exist side by side.

The Brothers Karamazov, III, 3

13 What to the mind is shameful is beauty and nothing else to the heart. Is there beauty in Sodom? Believe me, that for the immense mass of mankind beauty is found in Sodom. Did you know that secret? ³Quelle atroce invention que celle du bourgeois, n'est-ce pas?

⁴Translated by FRANCIS STEEGMULLER.

⁵La parole humaine est comme un chaudron fêlé où nous battons des mélodies à faire danser les ours, quand on voudrait attirer les étoiles.

1 She [Madame Bovary] had that indefinable beauty that comes from happiness, enthusiasm, success—a beauty that is nothing more or less than a harmony of temperament and circumstances.

Madame Bovary, II, 12

2 We shouldn't maltreat our idols: the guilt comes off on our hands.¹

Madame Bovary, III, 6

3 There isn't a bourgeois alive who in the ferment of his youth, if only for a day or for a minute, hasn't thought himself capable of boundless passions and noble exploits. The sorriest little woman-chaser has dreamed of Oriental queens; in a corner of every notary's heart lie the moldy remains of a poet.

Madame Bovary, III, 6

4 Of all the icy blasts that blow on love, a request for money is the most chilling and havoc-wreaking.

Madame Bovary, III, 8

5 Anyone's death always releases something like an aura of stupefaction, so difficult is it to grasp this irruption of nothingness and to believe that it has actually taken place.

Madame Bovary, III, 9

6 The writer in his work must be like God in his creation—invisible and all-powerful: he must be everywhere felt, but never seen.

Letter to Mademoiselle Leroyer de Chantepie [March 18, 1857]

7 The one way of tolerating existence is to lose oneself in literature as in a perpetual orgy.

Letter to Mademoiselle Leroyer de Chantepie [September 4, 1858]

8 Axiom: hatred of the bourgeois is the beginning of wisdom.

Letter to George Sand [May 10, 1867]

9 I call a bourgeois anyone whose thinking is vulgar.

Quoted by Maupassant

10 What is beautiful is moral, that is all there is to it.

13 Nature as a whole possesses a store of force which cannot in any way be either increased or diminished . . . therefore, the quantity of force in Nature is just as eternal and unalterable as the quantity of matter. . . . I have named [this] general law "The Principle of the Conservation of Force."⁴

Über die Erhaltung der Kraft [1847]

14 Whoever, in the pursuit of science, seeks after immediate practical utility, may generally rest assured that he will seek in vain. All that science can achieve is a perfect knowledge and a perfect understanding of the action of natural and moral forces.

- 21 The translator of Homer should above all be penetrated by a sense of four qualities of his author: that he is eminently rapid; that he is eminently plain and direct, both in the evolution of his thought and in the expression of it, that is, both in his syntax and in his words; that he is eminently plain and direct in the substance of his thought, that is, in his matter and ideas; and, finally, that he is eminently noble.
On Translating Homer [1861]
- 22 Of these two literatures [French and German], as of the intellect of Europe in general, the main effort, for now many years, has been a critical effort;

the endeavor, in all branches of knowledge — theology, philosophy, history, art, science — to see the object as in itself it really is.

On Translating Homer

1 The grand style arises in poetry, when a noble nature, poetically gifted, treats with simplicity or with severity a serious subject.

On Translating Homer

2 Nations are not truly great solely because the individuals composing them are numerous, free, and active; but they are great when these numbers, this freedom, and this activity are employed in the service of an ideal higher than that of an ordinary man, taken by himself.

Democracy [1861]

3 It is a very great thing to be able to think as you like; but, after all, an important question remains: what you think.

Democracy

4 For the creation of a masterwork of literature two powers must concur, the power of the man and the power of the moment, and the man is not enough without the moment.

The Function of Criticism at the Present Time [1864]

5 The critical power . . . tends, at last, to make an intellectual situation of which the creative power can profitably avail itself . . . to make the best ideas prevail.

The Function of Criticism at the Present Time

6 There is the world of ideas and there is the world of practice; the French are often for suppressing the one and the English the other; but neither is to be suppressed.

The Function of Criticism at the Present Time

7 Burke is so great because, almost alone in England, he brings thought to bear upon politics, he saturates politics with thought.

The Function of Criticism at the Present Time

8 The notion of the free play of the mind upon all subjects being a pleasure in itself, being an object of desire, being an essential provider of elements without which a nation's spirit, whatever compensations it may have for them, must, in the long run, die of inaction, hardly enters into an Englishman's thoughts.

The Function of Criticism at the Present Time

9 I am bound by my own definition of criticism: a disinterested endeavor to learn and propagate the best that is known and thought in the world.

20 Listen! you hear the grating roar

Of pebbles which the waves draw back, and fling,

- 2 The sea of faith
Was once, too, at the full, and round earth's shore
Lay like the folds of a bright girdle furled.
But now I only hear
Its melancholy, long, withdrawing roar,
Retreating, to the breath
Of the night-wind, down the vast edges drear
And naked shingles of the world.
- Ah, love, let us be true
To one another! for the world, which seems
To lie before us like a land of dreams,
So various, so beautiful, so new,
Hath really neither joy, nor love, nor light,
Nor certitude, nor peace, nor help for pain;
And we are here as on a darkling plain
Swept with confused alarms of struggle and flight,
Where ignorant armies clash by night.

- ⁸ The growth of New England was a result of the aggregate efforts of a busy multitude, each in his narrow circle toiling for himself, to gather competence or wealth. The expansion of New France was the achievement of a gigantic ambition striving to grasp a continent. It was a vain attempt.
Pioneers of France in the New World [1865], introduction
- ⁹ A boundless vision grows upon us; an untamed continent; vast wastes of forest verdure; mountains silent in primeval sleep; river, lake, and glimmering pool; wilderness oceans mingling with the sky. Such was the domain which France conquered for civilization. Plumed helmets gleamed in the shade of its forests, priestly vestments in its dens and fastnesses of ancient barbarism. Men steeped in antique learning, pale with the close breath of the cloister, here spent the noon and evening of their lives, ruled savage hordes with a mild, parental sway, and stood serene before the direst shapes of death. Men of courtly nurture, heirs to the polish of a far-reaching ancestry, here, with their dauntless hardihood, put to shame the boldest sons of toil.
Pioneers of France in the New World, introduction
- ¹⁰ Faithfulness to the truth of history involves far more than a research, however patient and scrupulous, into special facts. Such facts may be detailed with the most minute exactness, and yet the narrative, taken as a whole, may be unmeaning or untrue. The narrator must seek to imbue himself with the life and spirit of the time. He must study events in their bearings near and remote; in the character, habits, and manners of those who took part in them. He must himself be, as it were, a sharer or a spectator of the action he describes.

13 I asserted—and I repeat—that a man has no reason to be ashamed of having an ape for his grandfather. If there were an ancestor whom I should feel shame in recalling it would rather be a man—a man of restless and versatile intellect—who, not content with an equivocal success in his own sphere of activity, plunges into scientific questions with which he has no real acquaintance, only to obscure them by an aimless rhetoric, and distract the attention of his hearers from the real point at issue by eloquent digressions and skilled appeals to religious prejudice.

Where's Hipparchia, and where is Thaïs,
Neither of them the fairer woman.
Where is Echo, beheld of no man
Only heard on river and mere—
She whose beauty was more than human? . . .
But where are the snows of yesteryear?

8 The hero of my tale, whom I love with all the power of my soul, whom I have tried to portray in all his beauty, who has been, is, and will be beautiful, is Truth. Sevastopol in May 1855 [1855]

9 The old man . . . used to say that a nap “after dinner was silver—before dinner, golden.”¹

War and Peace [1865–1869], bk. I, ch. 15

10 “What's this? am I falling? my legs are giving way under me,” he thought, and fell on his back.
He opened his eyes, hoping to see how the struggle of the French soldiers with the artilleryman was ending, and eager to know whether the red-haired artilleryman was killed or not, whether the cannons had been taken or saved. But he saw nothing of all that. Above him there was nothing but the sky—
the lofty sky, not clear, but still immeasurably lofty, with gray clouds creeping quietly over it.

*War and Peace,*² III, 16

11 Three days afterwards the little princess was buried, and Prince Andrey went to the steps of the tomb to take his last farewell of her. Even in the coffin the face was the same, though the eyes were closed. “Ah, what have you done to me?” it still seemed to say.

War and Peace, IV, 9

12 In historical events great men—so called—are but the labels that serve to give a name to an event, and like labels, they have the least possible connection with the event itself. Every action of theirs, that seems to them an act of their own free will, is in an historical sense not free at all, but in bondage to the whole course of previous history, and predestined from all eternity.

War and Peace, IX, 1

13 The strongest of all warriors are these two—
Time and Patience.

War and Peace, X, 16

14 He [Platon Karataev] did not understand, and could not grasp the significance of words taken apart from the sentence. Every word and every action of his was the expression of a force uncomprehended by him, which was his life.

War and Peace, XII, 13

15 For us, with the rule of right and wrong given us by Christ, there is nothing for which we have no standard. And there is no greatness where there is not simplicity, goodness, and truth.

War and Peace, XIV, 18

16 Pure and complete sorrow is as impossible as pure and complete joy.

War and Peace, XV, 1

17 The subject of history is the life of peoples and of humanity. To catch and pin down in words—that is, to describe directly the life, not only of humanity, but even of a single people, appears to be impossible.

War and Peace, epilogue, pt. II, ch. 1

ily is unhappy in its own way.

- 1 Ivan Ilych's life had been most simple and most ordinary and therefore most terrible.

The Death of Ivan Ilych [1886]¹

- 2 Ivan Ilych saw that he was dying, and he was in continuous despair.

In the depth of his heart he knew he was dying, but not only was he not accustomed to the thought, he simply did not and could not grasp it.

The syllogism he had learned from Kiezewetter's Logic: "Caius is a man, men are mortal, therefore Caius is mortal," had always seemed to him correct as applied to Caius, but certainly not as applied to himself. That Caius—man in the abstract—was mortal, was perfectly correct, but he was not Caius, not an abstract man, but a creature quite, quite separate from all others.

What Is Art? [1898], ch. 8

- 6 Man survives earthquakes, epidemics, the horrors of disease, and all the agonies of the soul, but for all time his most tormenting tragedy has been, is, and will be—the tragedy of the bedroom.

- 7 It [Arizona] is my land, my home, my father's land, to which I now ask to be allowed to return. I want to spend my last days there, and be buried among those mountains. If this could be I might die in peace, feeling that my people, placed in their native homes, would increase in numbers, rather than diminish as at present, and that our name would not become extinct.

3 What treaty that the white man ever made with us have they kept? Not one. When I was a boy the Sioux owned the world; the sun rose and set on their land; they sent ten thousand men to battle. Where are the warriors today? Who slew them? Where are our lands? Who owns them? . . . What law have I broken? Is it wrong for me to love my own? Is it wicked for me because my skin is red? Because I am a Sioux; because I was born where my father lived; because I would die for my people and my country? Statement ¹Edward Sylvester Ellis [1840–1916] reported that after Custer's fight with Black Kettle's band of Cheyenne Indians, the Comanche Chief Toch-a-way (Turtle Dove) was presented to General Sheridan. The Indian said: "Me Toch-a-way, me good Indian." The reply, as reported by Ellis but vehemently denied by Sheridan, is given in the text; the phrase is more often heard in the version: The only good Indian is a dead Indian.

- 1 “You are old, Father William,” the young man said,
 “And your hair has become very white;
 And yet you incessantly stand on your head—
 Do you think, at your age, it is right?”¹
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland
 [You Are Old, Father William, st. 1]
- 2 “In my youth,” said his father, “I took to the law,
 And argued each case with my wife;
 And the muscular strength which it gave to my jaw,
 Has lasted the rest of my life.”
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland
 [You Are Old, Father William, st. 6]
- 3 “I have answered three questions, and that is enough,”
 Said his father. “Don’t give yourself airs!
 Do you think I can listen all day to such stuff?
 Be off, or I’ll kick you downstairs!”
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland
 [You Are Old, Father William, st. 8]
- 4 Those serpents! There’s no pleasing them!
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland
 [You Are Old, Father William, st. 8]
- 5 “If everybody minded their own business,” said the Duchess in a hoarse growl, “the world would go round a deal faster than it does.”
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 6
- 6 “Talking of axes,” said the Duchess, “chop off her head!”
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 6
- 7 Speak roughly to your little boy,
 And beat him when he sneezes:
 He only does it to annoy,
 Because he knows it teases.
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 6
- 8 “If it had grown up,” she said to herself, “it would have made a dreadfully ugly child; but it makes rather a handsome pig, I think.”
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 6
- 9 “All right,” said the [Cheshire] Cat; and this time it vanished quite slowly, beginning with the end of the tail, and ending with the grin, which remained some time after the rest of it had gone.
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 6
- 10 “Then you should say what you mean,” the March Hare went on.
 “I do,” Alice hastily replied; “at least—at least I mean what I say—that’s the same thing, you know.”
 “Not the same thing a bit!” said the Hatter.
 “Why, you might just as well say that ‘I see what I eat’ is the same thing as ‘I eat what I see!’”
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 7
- 11 “It was the best butter,” the March Hare meekly replied.
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 7
- 12 Twinkle, twinkle, little bat!
 How I wonder what you’re at!
 Up above the world you fly,
 Like a teatray in the sky.²
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 7
- 13 “Take some more tea,” the March Hare said to Alice, very earnestly.
 “I’ve had nothing yet,” Alice replied in an offended tone: “so I can’t take more.”
 “You mean you can’t take less,” said the Hatter:
 “it’s very easy to take more than nothing.”
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 7
- 14 They drew all manner of things—everything that begins with an M . . . such as mousetraps, and the moon, and memory, and muchness—you know you say things are “much of a muchness.”
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 7
- 15 The Queen turned crimson with fury, and after glaring at her for a moment like a wild beast, began screaming, “Off with her head! Off with—”
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 8
- 16 “Tut, tut, child,” said the Duchess. “Everything’s got a moral if only you can find it.”
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 9
- 17 Take care of the sense and the sounds will take care of themselves.³
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 9
- 18 “We called him Tortoise because he taught us,” said the Mock Turtle angrily. “Really you are very dull!”
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 9
- 19 “Reeling and Writhing, of course, to begin with,” the Mock Turtle replied, “and the different branches of Arithmetic—Ambition, Distraction, Uglification, and Derision.”
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 9
- 20 Advance twice, set to partners . . . change lobsters, and retire in same order.
Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, 10
- 21 “Will you walk a little faster?” said a whiting to a

- 11 And, as in uffish thought he stood,
The Jabberwock, with eyes of flame,

Came whiffing through the tulgey wood,
And burbled as it came!

One, two! One, two! And through and through
The vorpal blade went snicker-snack!
He left it dead, and with its head
He went galumphing back.

"And hast thou slain the Jabberwock?
Come to my arms, my beamish boy!
O frabjous day! Callooh! Callay!"
He chortled in his joy.
Through the Looking-Glass [Jabberwocky,

Through the Looking-Glass, 2
- 14 "A slow sort of country!" said the Queen.
"Now, here, you see, it takes all the running you can do, to keep in the same place. If you want to get somewhere else, you must run at least twice as fast as that!" Through the Looking-Glass, 2
- 15 Speak in French when you can't think of the English for a thing—turn out your toes when you walk—and remember who you are!
Through the Looking-Glass, 2
- 16 "If you think we're waxworks," he said, "you ought to pay, you know. Waxworks weren't made to be looked at for nothing. Nohow!"
Through the Looking-Glass, 4
- 17 "Contrariwise," continued Tweedledee, "if it but as it isn't, it ain't. That's logic."

Through the Looking-Glass, 4
- 18 The sun was shining on the sea,
Shining with all his might:
He did his very best to make
The billows smooth and bright—
And this was odd, because it was
The middle of the night.
Through the Looking-Glass
[The Walrus and the Carpenter, st. 1]
- 19 The Walrus and the Carpenter
Were walking close at hand:
They wept like anything to see
Such quantities of sand:
"If this were only cleared away,"
They said, "it would be grand!"

"If seven maids with seven mops
Swept it for half a year,
Do you suppose," the Walrus said,
"That they could get it clear?"

2 And thick and fast they came at last,
And more, and more, and more —
All hopping through the frothy waves,
And scrambling to the shore.

3 “The time has come,” the Walrus said,
“To talk of many things:
Of shoes — and ships — and sealing wax —
Of cabbages — and kings —
And why the sea is boiling hot —
And whether pigs have wings.”

Through the Looking-Glass
[The Walrus and the Carpenter, st. 11]

4 “But wait a bit,” the Oysters cried,
“Before we have our chat;

9 “The rule is, jam tomorrow, and jam yesterday —
but never jam today.”

“It must come sometimes to ‘jam today,’” Alice objected.

“No, it can’t,” said the Queen. “It’s jam every 14 “But ‘glory’ doesn’t mean ‘a nice knockdown argument,’” Alice objected.

“When I use a word,” Humpty Dumpty said, in rather a scornful tone, “it means just what I choose it to mean — neither more nor less.”

“The question is,” said Alice, “whether you can make words mean so many different things.”

“The question is,” said Humpty Dumpty, “which is to be master — that’s all.”

- 3 To the Fifty-fourth Regiment of Massachusetts Infantry:

The white officers, taking life and honor in their hands, cast in their lot with men of a despised race unproved in war, and risked death as inciters of servile insurrection if taken prisoners, besides encountering all the common perils of camp march and battle.

The black rank and file volunteered when disaster clouded the Union cause, served without pay for eighteen months till given that of white troops, faced threatened enslavement if captured, were brave in action, patient under heavy and dangerous labors, and cheerful amid hardships and privations.

Together they gave to the nation and the world undying proof that Americans of African descent possess the pride, courage, and devotion of the patriot soldier. One hundred and eighty thousand such Americans enlisted under the Union flag in 1863–1865.

6 While the law [of competition] may be sometimes hard for the individual, it is best for the race, because it insures the survival of the fittest in every department. We accept and welcome, therefore, as conditions to which we must accommodate ourselves, great inequality of environment, the concentration of business, industrial and commercial, in the hands of a few, and the law of competition between these, as being not only beneficial, but essential for the future progress of the race.

- 9 Forty years on, when afar and asunder
Parted are those who are singing today.
*Forty Years On [1872]*³

¹A famously moot quotation frequently attributed instead to Charles Dudley Warner (see 543). A variant version—“We all grumble about the weather but nothing is done about it”—appears in Robert Underwood Johnson’s recollections of Mark Twain (Remembered Yesterdays [1923]).

²In a well-conducted man-of-war . . . everything is in its place, and there is a place for everything. —MARRYAT, Masterman Ready [1842]

1836–1914

- 10 The day of small nations has long passed away.
The day of Empires has come.
Speech. Birmingham [May 12, 1904]

Sir W[illiam] S[chwenck] Gilbert

1836–1911

- 11 Oh, I am a cook and a captain bold
And the mate of the Nancy brig,
And a bo’sun tight, and a midshipmite,
And the crew of the captain’s gig.
The “Bab” Ballads [1866–1871]. The Yarn of the “Nancy Bell,” st. 3
- 12 As innocent as a new-laid egg.
Engaged [1877], act I
- 13 I’m called Little Buttercup—dear little Buttercup,
Though I could never tell why.
H.M.S. Pinafore [1878], act I
- 14 I am the Captain of the Pinafore;
And a right good captain too!
H.M.S. Pinafore, I
- 15 And I’m never, never sick at sea!
What, never?
No, never!
What, never?
Hardly ever!
He’s hardly ever sick at sea!
Then give three cheers, and one cheer more
For the hardy Captain of the Pinafore!
H.M.S. Pinafore, I
- 16 And so do his sisters, and his cousins, and his aunts!
His sisters and his cousins,
Whom he reckons up by dozens,
And his aunts!
H.M.S. Pinafore, I
- 17 When I was a lad I served a term
As office boy to an Attorney’s firm.
I cleaned the windows and I swept the floor
And I polished up the handle of the big front door.
I polished up that handle so carefuller
That now I am the Ruler of the Queen’s Navee!
H.M.S. Pinafore, I
- 18 Stick close to your desks and never go to sea,
And you all may be Rulers of the Queen’s Navee!
H.M.S. Pinafore, I
- 19 Things are seldom what they seem,
Skim milk masquerades as cream.
H.M.S. Pinafore, II
- 20 He is an Englishman!
For he himself has said it,

- And it's greatly to his credit,
That he is an Englishman! H.M.S. Pinafore, II
- 1 For he might have been a Roosian,
A French or Turk or Proosian,
Or perhaps Itali-an.
But in spite of all temptations
To belong to other nations,
He remains an Englishman. H.M.S. Pinafore, II
- 2 It is, it is a glorious thing
To be a Pirate King.
Pirates of Penzance [1879], act I
- 3 I am the very model of a modern Major-General.
I've information vegetable, animal, and mineral,
I know the Kings of England, and I quote the fights historical,
From Marathon to Waterloo, in order categorical.
Pirates of Penzance, I
- 4 When the foeman bares his steel,
Tarantara, tarantara!
We uncomfortable feel,
Tarantara. Pirates of Penzance, II
- 5 When constabulary duty's to be done,
The policeman's lot is not a happy one.
Pirates of Penzance, II
- 6 Come, friends, who plow the sea,
Truce to navigation,
Take another station;
Let's vary piracee
With a little burglaree.¹ Pirates of Penzance, II
- 7 Twenty love-sick maidens we,
Love-sick all against our will.
Patience [1881], act I
- 8 You must lie upon the daisies and discourse in novel phrases of your complicated state of mind,
The meaning doesn't matter if it's only idle chatter
of a transcendental kind.
And everyone will say,
As you walk your mystic way,
"If this young man expresses himself in terms too deep for me,
Why, what a very singularly deep young man this deep young man must be!" Patience, I
- 9 Though the Philistines may jostle, you will rank as an apostle in the high aesthetic band,
If you walk down Piccadilly with a poppy or a lily in your medieval hand.
And everyone will say,
As you walk your flowery way,
- "If he's content with a vegetable love, which would certainly not suit me,
Why, what a most particularly pure young man this pure young man must be!" Patience, I
- 10 Prithee, pretty maiden, will you marry me?
(Hey, but I'm hopeful, willow, willow, waly!)
Patience, I
- 11 While this magnetic,
Peripatetic
Lover he lived to learn,
By no endeavor,
Can magnet ever
Attract a silver churn! Patience, II
- 12 Francesca da Rimini, miminy, piminy,
Je-ne-sais-quoi young man! Patience, II
- 13 A greenery-yallery, Grosvenor Gallery,
Foot-in-the-grave young man! Patience, II
- 14 I see no objection to stoutness, in moderation.
Iolanthe [1882], act I
- 15 None shall part us from each other,
One in life and death are we:
All in all to one another—
I to thee and thou to me!
Thou the tree and I the flower—
Thou the idol; I the throng—
Thou the day and I the hour—
Thou the singer; I the song! Iolanthe, I
- 16 Bow, bow, ye lower middle classes!
Bow, bow, ye tradesmen, bow, ye masses.
Iolanthe, I
- 17 The Law is the true embodiment
Of everything that's excellent.
It has no kind of fault or flaw,
And I, my Lords, embody the Law. Iolanthe, I
- 18 Pretty young wards in Chancery. Iolanthe, I
- 19 For I'm not so old, and not so plain,
And I'm quite prepared to marry again.
Iolanthe, I
- 20 Hearts just as pure and fair
May beat in Belgrave Square
As in the lowly air
Of Seven Dials. Iolanthe, I
- 21 When I went to the Bar as a very young man (Said I to myself, said I). Iolanthe, I
- 22 I often think it's comical
How nature always does contrive
That every boy and every gal,
That's born into the world alive,
Is either a little Liberal,
Or else a little Conservative! Iolanthe, II

¹The roistering chorus "Hail, hail, the gang's all here" is sung to Sir Arthur Sullivan's music for these lines.

- 1 Here's a pretty kettle of fish!
Iolanthe, II
- 2 The House of Peers, throughout the war,
Did nothing in particular,
And did it very well. Iolanthe, II
- 3 When you're lying awake with a dismal headache,
and repose is taboo'd by anxiety,
I conceive you may use any language you choose to indulge in, without impropriety. Iolanthe, II
- 4 For you dream you are crossing the Channel, and tossing about in a steamer from Harwich—
Which is something between a large bathing machine and a very small second-class carriage. Iolanthe, II
- 5 Faint heart never won fair lady!
Nothing venture, nothing win—
Blood is thick, but water's thin—
In for a penny, in for a pound¹—
It's Love that makes the world go round!
Iolanthe, II
- 6 I love my fellow creatures—I do all the good I can—
Yet everybody says I'm such a disagreeable man!
And I can't think why!
Princess Ida [1884], act I
- 7 A wandering minstrel I—
A thing of shreds and patches,
Of ballads, songs and snatches,
And dreamy lullaby! The Mikado [1885], act I
- 8 I can't help it. I was born sneering.
The Mikado, I
- 9 As some day it may happen that a victim must be found,
I've got a little list—I've got a little list.
Of society offenders who might well be underground,
And who never would be missed—who never would be missed. The Mikado, I
- 10 Then the idiot who praises, with enthusiastic tone,
All centuries but this, and every country but his own. The Mikado, I
- 11 Three little maids from school are we,
Pert as a schoolgirl well can be,
Filled to the brim with girlish glee.
The Mikado, I
- 12 Ah, pray make no mistake,
We are not shy;
- We're very wide awake,
The moon and I! The Mikado, II
- 13 Here's a pretty state of things!
Here's a pretty how-de-do! The Mikado, II
- 14 My object all sublime
I shall achieve in time—
To let the punishment fit the crime.
The Mikado, II
- 15 A source of innocent merriment! The Mikado, II
- 16 On a cloth untrue
With a twisted cue
And elliptical billiard balls. The Mikado, II
- 17 I seized him by his little pig-tail,
And on his knees fell he,
As he squirmed and struggled,
And gurgled and guggled,
I drew my snickersnee! The Mikado, II
- 18 Merely corroborative detail, intended to give artistic verisimilitude to an otherwise bald and un-convincing narrative. The Mikado, II
- 19 The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra la,
Have nothing to do with the case.
The Mikado, II
- 20 On a tree by a river a little tomtit
Sang "Willow, titwillow, titwillow!"
And I said to him, "Dicky-bird, why do you sit Singing 'Willow, titwillow, titwillow!'
"Is it weakness of intellect, birdie?" I cried,
"Or a rather tough worm in your little inside?"
With a shake of his poor little head he replied,
"Oh, willow, titwillow, titwillow!"
The Mikado, II
- 21 There's a fascination frantic
In a ruin that's romantic;
Do you think you are sufficiently decayed?
The Mikado, II
- 22 He uses language that would make your hair curl. Ruddigore [1887], act I
- 23 When the footpads quail at the night-bird's wail,
and black dogs bay at the moon,
Then is the specters' holiday—then is the ghosts'
high noon! Ruddigore, II
- 24 I have a song to sing, O!
Sing me your song, O!
The Yeomen of the Guard [1888], act I
- 25 It's a song of a merryman, moping mum,
Whose soul was sad, and whose glance was glum,
Who sipped no sup, and who craved no crumb,
As he sighed for the love of a lady.
The Yeomen of the Guard, I

¹Well, then o'er shoes, o'er boots. And in for a penny, in for a pound.—EDWARD RAVENSCROFT [fl. 1671–1697], The Canterbury Guests; Or, A Bargain Broken [1695], act V, sc. i

- 1 He led his regiment from behind—
He found it less exciting.
The Gondoliers [1889], act I
- 2 That celebrated,
Cultivated,
Underrated
Nobleman,
The Duke of Plaza Toro! The Gondoliers, I
- 3 No soldier in that gallant band
Hid half as well as he did.
He lay concealed throughout the war,
And so preserved his gore, O! The Gondoliers, I
- 4 Of that there is no manner of doubt—
No probable, possible shadow of doubt—
No possible doubt whatever. The Gondoliers, I
- 5 Life's a pudding full of plums;
Care's a canker that benumbs,
Wherefore waste our elocution
On impossible solution?
Life's a pleasant institution,
Let us take it as it comes! The Gondoliers, I
- 6 The gratifying feeling that our duty has been done.
The Gondoliers, II
- 7 Take a pair of sparkling eyes. The Gondoliers, II
- 8 When everyone is somebodee,
Then no one's anybody! The Gondoliers, II
- 9 The world has joked incessantly for over fifty centuries.
And every joke that's possible has long ago been made.

The mother of months in meadow or plain
Fills the shadows and windy places
With lisp of leaves and ripple of rain;
And the brown bright nightingale amorous
Is half assuaged for Itylus,
For the Thracian ships and the foreign faces,
The tongueless vigil, and all the pain.

1 Before the beginning of years
There came to the making of man
Time, with a gift of tears;
Grief, with a glass that ran;
Pleasure, with pain for leaven;
Summer, with flowers that fell;
Remembrance fallen from heaven,
And madness risen from hell;
Strength without hands to smite;
Love that endures for a breath;
Night, the shadow of light,
And life, the shadow of death.

In such places standing alone on the mountaintop it is easy to realize that whatever special nests we make—leaves and moss like the marmots and birds, or tents or piled stone—we all dwell in a house of one room—the world with the firmament for its roof—and are sailing the celestial spaces without leaving any track.

The Class of '61. From Speeches [1913]
- 8 The only prize much cared for by the powerful is power. The prize of the general is not a bigger tent, but command.
Law and the Court [1913]
- 9 The attacks upon the Court are merely an expression of the unrest that seems to wonder vaguely whether law and order pay. When the ignorant are taught to doubt, they do not know what they safely may believe.
Law and the Court
- 10 I recognize without hesitation that judges do and must legislate, but they can do so only interstitially; they are confined from molar to molecular motions.
Southern Pacific Co. v. Jensen, 244 U.S. 205, 221 [1917]
- 11 The common law is not a brooding omnipresence in the sky but the articulate voice of some sovereign or quasi sovereign that can be identified.
Southern Pacific Co. v. Jensen, 244 U.S. 205, 222 [1917]
- 12 Certitude is not the test of certainty.
Natural Law [1918]
- 13 The most stringent protection of free speech would not protect a man in falsely shouting fire in a theater and causing a panic. . . . The question in every case is whether the words used are used in such circumstances and are of such a nature as to create a clear and present danger that they will bring about the substantive evils that Congress has a right to prevent.
Schenck v. United States, 249 U.S. 47 [1919]
- 14 When men have realized that time has upset many fighting faiths, they may come to believe even more than they believe the very foundations of their own conduct that the ultimate good desired is better reached by free trade in ideas—that the best test of truth is the power of the thought to get itself accepted in the competition of the market, and that truth is the only ground upon which their wishes safely can be carried out. That at any rate is the theory of our Constitution. It is an experiment, as all life is an experiment.
Abrams v. United States, 250 U.S. 616, 630 [1919]
- 15 I dare say that I have worked off my fundamental formula on you that the chief end of man is to frame general propositions and that no general proposition is worth a damn.

Gitlow v. New York, 268 U.S. 652, 673 [1925]
- 20 Three generations of imbeciles are enough.
Buck v. Bell, 274 U.S. 200, 207 [1927]
- 21 But if we are to yield to fashionable conventions, it seems to me that theaters are as much devoted to public use as anything well can be. We have not that respect for art that is one of the glories of France. But to many the superfluous is the necessary, and it seems to me that Government does not go beyond its sphere in attempting to make life livable for them.
Tyson & Bro. v. Banton, 273 U.S. 418, 447 [1927]
- 22 The power to tax is not the power to destroy while this Court sits.
Panhandle Oil Co. v. Knox, 277 U.S. 223 [1928]
- 23 For my part I think it a less evil that some criminals should escape than that the government should play an ignoble part. . . . If the existing code does not permit district attorneys to have a hand in such dirty business [wiretapping], it does not permit the judge to allow such iniquities to succeed.

Olmstead v. United States, 277 U.S. 438, 470 [1928]

- 1 If there is any principle of the Constitution that more imperatively calls for attachment than any other it is the principle of free thought—not free thought for those who agree with us but freedom for the thought that we hate.

United States v. Schwimmer, 279 U.S. 644, 653 [1928]

- 2 The riders in a race do not stop short when they reach the goal. There is a little finishing canter before coming to a standstill. There is time to hear the kind voice of friends and to say to one's self: "The work is done." But just as one says that, the answer comes: "The race is over, but the work never is done while the power to work remains." The canter that brings you to a standstill need not be only coming to rest. It cannot be, while you still live. For to live is to function. That is all there is in living.

William James

1842–1910

- 2 I have often thought that the best way to define a man's character would be to seek out the particular mental or moral attitude in which, when it came upon him, he felt himself most deeply and intensely active and alive. At such moments there is a voice inside which speaks and says: "This is the real me!"

The Letters of William James [1920]. To his wife, Alice Gibbons James, 1878

- 3 Most people live, whether physically, intellectually or morally, in a very restricted circle of their potential being. They make use of a very small portion of their possible consciousness, and of their soul's resources in general, much like a man who, out of his whole bodily organism, should get into a habit of using and moving only his little finger. Great emergencies and crises show us how much greater our vital resources are than we had supposed.

- 4 The moral flabbiness born of the exclusive worship of the bitch-goddess SUCCESS. That—with the squalid cash interpretation put on the word success—is our national disease.

- 5 The concrete man has but one interest—to be right. That to him is the art of all arts, and all means are fair which help him to it.

The Sentiment of Rationality [1882]

- 6 All our scientific and philosophic ideals are altars to unknown gods.

The Dilemma of Determinism [1884]

- 7 Habit is . . . the enormous flywheel of society, its most precious conservative agent. It alone is what keeps us all within the bounds of ordinance.

The Principles of Psychology [1890], ch. 4

- 8 There is no more miserable human being than one in whom nothing is habitual but indecision.

The Principles of Psychology, 4

- 9 Keep the faculty of effort alive in you by a little gratuitous exercise every day. That is, be systematically ascetic or heroic in little unnecessary points, do every day or two something for no other reason than that you would rather not do it, so that when the hour of dire need draws nigh, it may find you not unnerved and untrained to stand the test.

The Principles of Psychology, 4

- 10 The hell to be endured hereafter, of which theology tells, is no worse than the hell we make for ourselves in this world by habitually fashioning our characters in the wrong way.

The Principles of Psychology, 4

- 11 We are spinning our own fates, good or evil, and never to be undone. Every smallest stroke of virtue or of vice leaves its never so little scar . . . Nothing we ever do is, in strict scientific literalness, wiped out.

The Principles of Psychology, 4

- 12 Consciousness . . . does not appear to itself chopped up in bits. . . . A "river" or a "stream" are the metaphors by which it is most naturally described. In talking of it hereafter, let us call it the stream of thought, of consciousness, or of subjective life.

The Principles of Psychology, 9

- 13 As we take, in fact, a general view of the wonderful stream of our consciousness, what strikes us first is this different pace of its parts. Like a bird's life, it seems to be made of an alternation of flights and perchings.

The Principles of Psychology, 9

- 14 As the brain changes are continuous, so do all these consciousnesses melt into each other like dissolving views. Properly they are but one protracted consciousness, one unbroken stream.

The Principles of Psychology, 9

- 15 The last peculiarity of consciousness to which attention is to be drawn in this first rough description of its stream is that . . . it is always interested more in one part of its object [thought] than in another, and welcomes and rejects, or chooses, all the while it thinks.

The Principles of Psychology, 9

- 16 An act has no ethical quality whatever unless it be chosen out of several all equally possible.

The Principles of Psychology, 9

- 17 In its widest possible sense, however, a man's Self is the sum total of all that he can call his, not only his body and his psychic powers, but his clothes and his house, his wife and children, his ancestors and friends, his reputation and works, his lands and horses, and yacht and bank account. All these things give him the same emotions. If they wax and prosper, he feels triumphant; if they dwindle and die away, he feels cast down.

The Principles of Psychology, 10

- 1 Let anyone try, I will not say to arrest, but to notice or attend to, the present moment of time. One of the most baffling experiences occurs. Where is it, this present? It has melted in our grasp, fled ere we could touch it, gone in the instant of becoming.
The Principles of Psychology, 15
- 2 Genius . . . means little more than the faculty of perceiving in an unhabitual way.
The Principles of Psychology, 19
- 3 The art of being wise is the art of knowing what to overlook.
The Principles of Psychology, 22
- 4 The more rational statement is that we feel sorry because we cry, angry because we strike, afraid because we tremble, and not that we cry, strike, or tremble because we are sorry, angry, or fearful, as the case may be. Without the bodily states following on the perception, the latter would be purely cognitive in form, pale, colorless, destitute of emotional warmth.
The Principles of Psychology, 25
- 5 A purely disembodied human emotion is a nonentity.
The Principles of Psychology, 25
- 6 In the deepest heart of all of us there is a corner in which the ultimate mystery of things works sadly.
The Will to Believe [1897]. Is Life Worth Living?
- 7 It is only by risking our persons from one hour to another that we live at all. And often enough our faith beforehand in an uncertified result is the only thing that makes the result come true.
The Will to Believe. Is Life Worth Living?
- 8 This life is worth living, we can say, since it is what we make it, from the moral point of view.
The Will to Believe. Is Life Worth Living?
- 9 Be not afraid of life. Believe that life is worth living, and your belief will help create the fact.
The Will to Believe. Is Life Worth Living?
- 10 All the higher, more penetrating ideals are revolutionary. They present themselves far less in the guise of effects of past experience than in that of probable causes of future experience.
The Will to Believe. The Moral Philosopher and the Moral Life
- 11 There is but one unconditional commandment, which is that we should seek incessantly, with fear and trembling, so to vote and to act as to bring about the very largest total universe of good which we can see.
The Will to Believe. The Moral Philosopher and the Moral Life
- 12 An unlearned carpenter of my acquaintance once said in my hearing: "There is very little difference between one man and another; but what little there is, is very important." This distinction seems to me to go to the root of the matter.
The Will to Believe. The Importance of Individuals
- 13 Religion . . . shall mean for us the feelings, acts, and experiences of individual men in their solitude.
The Varieties of Religious Experience [1902], lecture 2
- 14 Religion . . . is a man's total reaction upon life.
The Varieties of Religious Experience, 2
- 15 We can act as if there were a God; feel as if we were free; consider Nature as if she were full of special designs; lay plans as if we were to be immortal; and we find then that these words do make a genuine difference in our moral life.
The Varieties of Religious Experience, 3
- 16 The God whom science recognizes must be a God of universal laws exclusively, a God who does a wholesale, not a retail business. He cannot accommodate his processes to the convenience of individuals.
The Varieties of Religious Experience, 20
- 17 The philosophy which is so important in each of us is not a technical matter; it is our more or less dumb sense of what life honestly and deeply means. It is only partly got from books; it is our individual way of just seeing and feeling the total push and pressure of the cosmos.
Pragmatism [1907],¹ lecture 1
- 18 No particular results then, so far, but only an attitude of orientation, is what the pragmatic method means. The attitude of looking away from first things, principles, "categories," supposed necessities; and of looking toward last things, fruits, consequences, facts.
Pragmatism, 2
- 19 I myself believe that the evidence for God lies primarily in inner personal experiences.
Pragmatism, 3
- 20 Our minds thus grow in spots; and like grease spots, the spots spread. But we let them spread as little as possible: we keep unaltered as much of our old knowledge, as many of our old prejudices and beliefs, as we can. We patch and tinker more than we renew. The novelty soaks in; it stains the ancient mass; but it is also tinged by what absorbs it.
Pragmatism, 5

¹The term [pragmatism] . . . was first introduced into philosophy by Mr. Charles Peirce in 1878 [in] an article entitled "How to Make Our Ideas Clear" in the Popular Science Monthly for January of that year. — Pragmatism [1907], lecture 1

See Charles Sanders Peirce, 573.

1 Truth happens to an idea. It becomes true, is made true by events. Its verity is in fact an event, a process: the process namely of its verifying itself, its verification. Its validity is the process of its validation.
Pragmatism, 6

2 Pluralism lets things really exist in the each-form or distributively. Monism thinks that the all-form or collective-unit form is the only form that is rational.
A Pluralistic Universe [1909], lecture 8

3 So long as antimilitarists propose no substitute for war's disciplinary function, no moral equivalent of war, analogous, as one might say, to the mechanical equivalent of heat, so long they fail to realize the full inwardness of the situation.
Memories and Studies [1911]. The Moral Equivalent of War

4 The "through-and-through" universe seems to suffocate me with its infallible impeccable all-pervasiveness. . . . It seems too buttoned-up and white-chokered and clean-shaven a thing to speak in the name of the vast slow-breathing unconscious Kosmos with its dread abysses and its unknown tides.

- 7 The face of nature and civilization in this our country is to a certain point a very sufficient literary field. But it will yield its secrets only to a really grasping imagination. . . . To write well and worthily of American things one need even more than elsewhere to be a master.
Letter to Charles Eliot Norton [January 16, 1871]
- 8 It's a complex fate, being an American, and one of the responsibilities it entails is fighting against a superstitious valuation of Europe.

- 10 Whatever question there may be of his [Thoreau's] talent, there can be none, I think, of his genius. It was a slim and crooked one, but it was eminently personal. He was unperfect, unfinished, inartistic; he was worse than provincial—he was parochial. Hawthorne, 4

The Art of Fiction [1888]
- 14 The only obligation to which in advance we may hold a novel, without incurring the accusation of being arbitrary, is that it be interesting.
The Art of Fiction
- 15 If I should certainly say to a novice, "Write from experience and experience only," I should feel that this was rather a tantalizing monition if I were not careful immediately to add, "Try to be one of the people on whom nothing is lost."
The Art of Fiction
- 16 We must grant the artist his subject, his idea, his donnée: our criticism is applied only to what he makes of it. . . . If we pretend to respect the artist at all, we must allow him his freedom of choice, in the face, in particular cases, of innumerable presumptions that the choice will not fructify. Art derives a considerable part of its beneficial exercise from flying in the face of presumptions.

The Art of Fiction

- 1 There are few things more exciting to me . . . than a psychological reason. The Art of Fiction
- 2 The practice of “reviewing” . . . in general has nothing in common with the art of criticism.
Criticism [1893]
- 3 The critical sense is so far from frequent that it is absolutely rare, and the possession of the cluster of qualities that minister to it is one of the highest distinctions. . . . In this light one sees the critic as the real helper of the artist, a torchbearing outrider, the interpreter, the brother. . . . Just in proportion as he is sentient and restless, just in proportion as he reacts and reciprocates and penetrates, is the critic a valuable instrument. Criticism
- 4 We work in the dark—we do what we can—we give what we have. Our doubt is our passion, and our passion is our task. The rest is the madness of art.
The Middle Years [1893]
- 5 The time-honored bread sauce of the happy ending. Theatricals: Second Series [1895]
- 6 Vereker’s secret . . . the general intention of his books: the string the pearls were strung on, the buried treasure, the figure in the carpet.
The Figure in the Carpet [1896]
- 7 I caught him, yes, I held him—it may be imagined with what passion; but at the end of a minute I began to feel what it truly was that I held. We were alone with the quiet day, and his little heart, dispossessed, had stopped.
The Turn of the Screw [1898], ending
- 8 Live all you can; it’s a mistake not to. It doesn’t so much matter what you do in particular, so long as you have your life. If you haven’t had that what have you had? . . . What one loses one loses; make no mistake about that. . . . The right time is any time that one is still so lucky as to have. . . . Live!
The Ambassadors [1903], bk. V, ch. 2
- 9 There is, I think, no more nutritive or suggestive truth . . . than that of the perfect dependence of the “moral” sense of a work of art on the amount of felt life concerned in producing it. The question comes back thus, obviously, to the kind and the degree of the artist’s prime sensibility, which is the soil out of which his subject springs.
Prefaces [1907–1909]. The Portrait of a Lady
- 10 Life being all inclusion and confusion, and art being all discrimination and selection, the latter, in search of the hard latent value with which it alone is concerned, sniffs round the mass as instinctively and unerringly as a dog suspicious of some buried bone.

Prefaces. The Spoils of Poynton

- 11 The fatal futility of Fact.
Prefaces. The Spoils of Poynton
- 12 The effort really to see and really to represent is no idle business in face of the constant force that makes for muddlement. The great thing is indeed that the muddled state too is one of the very sharpest of the realities, that it also has color and form and character, has often in fact a broad and rich comicality. Prefaces. What Maisie Knew
- 13 To criticize is to appreciate, to appropriate, to take intellectual possession, to establish in fine a relation with the criticized thing and to make it one’s own.
Prefaces. What Maisie Knew
- 14 The historian, essentially, wants more documents than he can really use; the dramatist only wants more liberties than he can really take.
Prefaces. The Aspern Papers
- 15 The ever importunate murmur, “Dramatize it, dramatize it!” Prefaces. The Altar of the Dead
- 16 In art economy is always beauty.
Prefaces. The Altar of the Dead
- 17 The terrible fluidity of self-revelation.
Prefaces. The Ambassadors
- 18 I’m glad you like adverbs—I adore them; they are the only qualifications I really much respect.
Letter to Miss M. Betham Edwards [January 5, 1912]
- 19 We must know, as much as possible, in our beautiful art . . . what we are talking about—and the only way to know is to have lived and loved and cursed and floundered and enjoyed and suffered. I think I don’t regret a single “excess” of my responsive youth—I only regret, in my chilled age, certain occasions and possibilities I didn’t embrace.
Letter to Hugh Walpole [August 21, 1913]
- 20 I still, in presence of life . . . have reactions—as many as possible. . . . It’s, I suppose, because I am that queer monster, the artist, an obstinate finality, an inexhaustible sensibility. Hence the reactions—appearances, memories, many things, go on playing upon it with consequences that I note and “enjoy” (grim word!) noting. It all takes doing—and I do. I believe I shall do yet again—it is still an act of life.
Letter to Henry Adams [March 21, 1914]
- 21 It is art that makes life, makes interest, makes importance, for our consideration and application of these things, and I know of no substitute whatever for the force and beauty of its process.

7 No doubt my poetry errs on the side of oddness.
I hope in time to have a more balanced and Miltonic style. But as air, melody, is what strikes me most of all in music, and design in painting, so design, pattern, or what I am in the habit of calling inscape is what I above all aim at in poetry. Now it is the virtue of design, pattern, or inscape to be distinctive, and it is the vice of distinctiveness to become queer. This vice I cannot have escaped.

12 One must have a good memory to be able to keep the promises one makes.

Human, All Too Human, 59

13 One will rarely err if extreme actions be ascribed to vanity, ordinary actions to habit, and mean actions to fear.

Human, All Too Human, 74

14 Every tradition grows ever more venerable—the more remote is its origin, the more confused that origin is. The reverence due to it increases from generation to generation. The tradition finally becomes holy and inspires awe.

loved by others, I would almost say that we are indispensable; and no man is useless while he has a friend. Across the Plains [1892]. Lay Morals
- 21 If your morals make you dreary, depend upon it, they are wrong. I do not say give them up, for they may be all you have, but conceal them like a vice lest they should spoil the lives of better and simpler people. Across the Plains. Lay Morals
- 22 Here lies one who meant well, tried a little, failed much:—surely that may be his epitaph of which he need not be ashamed.
Across the Plains. Lay Morals
- 23 Ice and iron cannot be welded.
Weir of Hermiston [1896]

¹Of the several traditions relating to the origin of this remark, the most reasonable one traces it to John Motley Morehead [1796–1866], who was Governor of North Carolina 1841–1845. He was visited by James H. Hammond [1807–1864], who was Governor of South Carolina 1842–1844. They engaged in discussion and argument, and when the latter waxed hot, Governor Morehead was reported by a servant to have exclaimed: “It’s a long time between drinks.”—JOHN MOTLEY MOREHEAD, letter [November 21, 1934] grow;

There's where the birds warble sweet in the springtime,
There's where this old darky's heart am longed to go.
Carry Me Back to Old Virginny [1875], st. 1

Sir James George Frazer

1854–1941

- 15 Dwellers by the sea cannot fail to be impressed by the sight of its ceaseless ebb and flow, and are apt, on the principles of that rude philosophy of sympathy and resemblance . . . to trace a subtle relation, a secret harmony, between its tides and the life of man. . . . The belief that most deaths happen at ebb tide is said to be held along the east coast of England from Northumberland to Kent.

The Golden Bough [1922],¹ ch. 3

- 16 The heaviest calamity in English history, the breach with America, might never have occurred if George the Third had not been an honest dullard.

The Golden Bough, 3

- 17 By religion, then, I understand a propitiation or conciliation of powers superior to man which are believed to direct and control the course of nature and of human life.

The Golden Bough, 4

- 18 It is a common rule with primitive people not to waken a sleeper, because his soul is away and might not have time to get back.

The Golden Bough, 18

- 19 The awe and dread with which the untutored savage contemplates his mother-in-law are amongst the most familiar facts of anthropology.

The Golden Bough, 18

- 20 When all is said and done our resemblances to the savage are still far more numerous than our differences from him.

The Golden Bough, 23

The Importance of Being Earnest, I

9 To lose one parent, Mr. Worthing, may be regarded as a misfortune; to lose both looks like carelessness.

The Importance of Being Earnest, I

10 Relations are simply a tedious pack of people, who haven't got the remotest knowledge of how to live, nor the smallest instinct about when to die.

The Importance of Being Earnest, I

11 I never travel without my diary. One should always have something sensational to read in the train.

The Importance of Being Earnest, II

12 Thirty-five is a very attractive age. London society is full of women of the very highest birth who have, of their own free choice, remained thirty-five for years.

The Importance of Being Earnest, III

13 The fact is, that civilization requires slaves. The Greeks were quite right there. Unless there are slaves to do the ugly, horrible, uninteresting work, culture and contemplation become almost impossible. Human slavery is wrong, insecure, and demoralizing. On mechanical slavery, on the slavery of the machine, the future of the world depends.

The Soul of Man Under Socialism

15 Anybody can make history. Only a great man can write it.

Aphorisms

16 I never saw a man who looked
With such a wistful eye
Upon that little tent of blue
Which prisoners call the sky.

The Ballad of Reading Gaol [1898], pt. I, st. 3

17 When a voice behind me whispered low,
"That fellow's got to swing."

The Ballad of Reading Gaol, I, st. 4

18 Yet each man kills the thing he loves,
By each let this be heard,
Some do it with a bitter look,
Some with a flattering word,
The coward does it with a kiss,
The brave man with a sword!

The Ballad of Reading Gaol, I, st. 7

19 It is sweet to dance to violins
When Love and Life are fair:
To dance to flutes, to dance to lutes
Is delicate and rare:
But it is not sweet with nimble feet
To dance upon the air!

The Ballad of Reading Gaol, II, st. 9

20 Something was dead in each of us,
And what was dead was Hope.

The Ballad of Reading Gaol, III, st. 31

21 And the wild regrets, and the bloody sweats,
None knew so well as I:
For he who lives more lives than one
More deaths than one must die.

The Ballad of Reading Gaol, III, st. 37

22 I know not whether laws be right,
Or whether laws be wrong;
All that we know who lie in gaol
Is that the wall is strong;
And that each day is like a year,
A year whose days are long.

The Ballad of Reading Gaol, V, st. 1

23 The vilest deeds like poison weeds
Bloom well in prison air:
It is only what is good in man
That wastes and withers there:
Pale Anguish keeps the heavy gate
And the Warder is Despair.

The Ballad of Reading Gaol, V, st. 5

I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the republic for which it stands: one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

More than thirty years later, “my flag” was changed to “the flag of the United States of America”; in 1954 an act of Congress added “under God.”

Louis D[embitz] Brandeis

1856–1941

1 Those who won our independence believed that the final end of the State was to make men free to develop their faculties; and that in its government the deliberative forces should prevail over the arbitrary. They valued liberty both as an end and as a means. They believed liberty to be the secret of happiness and courage to be the secret of liberty.

Whitney v. California, 274 U.S. 357, 375 [1927]

2 Fear of serious injury cannot alone justify suppression of free speech and assembly. Men feared witches and burned women. It is the function of speech to free men from the bondage of irrational fears. Whitney v. California, 274 U.S. 357, 376

3 They [the makers of the Constitution] conferred, as against the Government, the right to be let alone—the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men.

6 There is in most Americans some spark of idealism, which can be fanned into a flame. It takes sometimes a divining rod to find what it is; but when found, and that means often, when disclosed to the owners, the results are often most extraordinary.

- 17 Prefer geniality to grammar.
The King's English [1906], ch. 2
- 18 HACKNEYED PHRASES. . . . The purpose with which these phrases are introduced is for the most part that of giving a fillip to a passage that might be humdrum without them . . . but their true use when they come into the writer's mind is as danger signals; he should take warning that when they suggest themselves it is because what he is writing is bad stuff, or it would not need such help; let him see to the substance of his cake instead of decorating with sugarplums.

A Dictionary of Modern English Usage [1926]¹

- 1 QUOTATION. . . . A writer expresses himself in words that have been used before because they give his meaning better than he can give it himself, or because they are beautiful or witty, or because he expects them to touch a chord of association in his reader, or because he wishes to show that he is learned and well read. Quotations due to the last motive are invariably ill-advised; the discerning reader detects it and is contemptuous; the undiscerning is perhaps impressed, but even then is at the same time repelled, pretentious quotations being the surest road to tedium.

A Dictionary of Modern English Usage

- 2 THAT, relative pronoun . . . The two kinds of relative clause, to one of which that and to the other of which which is appropriate, are the defining and the nondefining;² and if writers would agree to regard that as the defining relative pronoun, and which as the nondefining, there would be much gain both in lucidity and in ease. Some there are who follow this principle now, but it would be idle to pretend that it is the practice either of the most or of the best writers.

- 10 Anybody who has been seriously engaged in scientific work of any kind realizes that over the entrance to the gates of the temple of science are written the words: Ye must have faith. It is a quality which the scientist cannot dispense with.

Where Is Science Going? [1932]

- 11 An important scientific innovation rarely makes its way by gradually winning over and converting its opponents: it rarely happens that Saul becomes Paul. What does happen is that its opponents gradually die out and that the growing generation is familiarized with the idea from the beginning.

Speech at New York City [November 11, 1902]

- 6 A man who is good enough to shed his blood for his country is good enough to be given a square deal afterwards. More than that no man is entitled to, and less than that no man shall have.

Speech at Springfield, Illinois [July 4, 1903]

- 7 No man is above the law and no man is below it; nor do we ask any man's permission when we require him to obey it. Obedience to the law is demanded as a right; not asked as a favor.

Third Annual Message [December 7, 1903]

- 8 The men with the muckrakes are often indispensable to the well-being of society, but only if they know when to stop raking the muck, and to look upward to the celestial crown above them. . . . If they gradually grow to feel that the whole world is nothing but muck their power of usefulness is gone.²

6 Loveliest of trees, the cherry now
Is hung with bloom along the bough.
A Shropshire Lad [1896], no. 2, st. 1

7 Now, of my threescore years and ten,
Twenty will not come again,
And take from seventy springs a score,
It only leaves me fifty more.

And since to look at things in bloom
Fifty springs are little room,
About the woodlands I will go
To see the cherry hung with snow.

A Shropshire Lad, 2, st. 2, 3

8 Clay lies still, but blood's a rover;
Breath's a ware that will not keep.
Up, lad: when the journey's over
There'll be time enough to sleep.
A Shropshire Lad, 4 (Reveille), st. 6

¹I am not a pessimist but a peyorist (as George Eliot said she was not an optimist but a meliorist); and that philosophy is founded on my observation of the world, not on anything so trivial and irrelevant as personal history. — HOUSMAN, autobiographical note written for a French translation of his poems

9 Lovers lying two and two
Ask not whom they sleep beside,
And the bridegroom all night through
Never turns him to the bride.
A Shropshire Lad, 12, st. 4

10 When I was one-and-twenty
I heard a wise man say,
“Give crowns and pounds and guineas
But not your heart away.”
A Shropshire Lad, 13, st. 1

11 When I was one-and-twenty
I heard him say again,
“The heart out of the bosom
Was never given in vain;
'Tis paid with sighs a plenty
And sold for endless rue.”
And I am two-and-twenty,
And Oh, 'tis true, 'tis true.
A Shropshire Lad, 13, st. 2

12 His folly has not fellow
Beneath the blue of day
That gives to man or woman
His heart and soul away.
A Shropshire Lad, 14, st. 3

13 Oh, when I was in love with you,
Then I was clean and brave,
And miles around the wonder grew
How well I did behave.

And now the fancy passes by,
And nothing will remain,
And miles around they'll say that I Am quite myself again.
A Shropshire Lad, 18, st. 1, 2

14 And silence sounds no worse than cheers
After earth has stopped the ears.
A Shropshire Lad, 19 (To an Athlete Dying Young), st. 4

15 The bells they sound on Bredon,
And still the steeples hum.
“Come all to church, good people”—
Oh, noisy bells, be dumb;
I hear you, I will come.

A Shropshire Lad, 39, st. 3
- 3 Into my heart an air that kills
From yon far country blows:
What are those blue remembered hills,
What spires, what farms are those?

That is the land of lost content,
I see it shining plain,
The happy highways where I went
And cannot come again.
A Shropshire Lad, 40, st. 1, 2
- 4 Earth and high heaven are fixed of old and founded strong.
A Shropshire Lad, 48, st. 1
- 5 Far in a western brookland

6 Let your boat of life be light, packed with only what you need—a homely home and simple pleasures, one or two friends, worth the name, someone to love and someone to love you, a cat, a dog, and a pipe or two, enough to eat and enough to wear, and a little more than enough to drink; for thirst is a dangerous thing.
Three Men in a Boat [1889], ch. 3

7 I like work: it fascinates me. I can sit and look at it for hours. I love to keep it by me; the idea of getting rid of it nearly breaks my heart.
Three Men in a Boat, 15

8 “Nothing, so it seems to me,” said the stranger, “is more beautiful than the love that has weathered the storms of life. . . . The love of the young for the young, that is the beginning of life. But the love of the old for the old, that is the beginning of—of things longer.”

To My Godchild

17 I fled Him, down the nights and down the days;
I fled Him, down the arches of the years;
I fled Him, down the labyrinthine ways
Of my own mind; and in the mist of tears
I hid from Him, and under running laughter.

- 9 The study of mathematics is apt to commence in disappointment. . . . We are told that by its aid the stars are weighed and the billions of molecules in a drop of water are counted. Yet, like the ghost of Hamlet's father, this great science eludes the efforts of our mental weapons to grasp it.

An Introduction to Mathematics [1911], ch. 1

- 10 Civilization advances by extending the number of important operations which we can perform without thinking about them.

An Introduction to Mathematics, 5

- 11 The science of pure mathematics, in its modern developments, may claim to be the most original creation of the human spirit.

Science and the Modern World [1925], ch. 2

- 12 The greatest invention of the nineteenth century was the invention of the method of invention.

Science and the Modern World, 6

- 13 The religious vision, and its history of persistent expansion, is our one ground for optimism. Apart from it, human life is a flash of occasional enjoy-

Adventures of Ideas, 20

- 2 There are no whole truths; all truths are half-truths. It is trying to treat them as whole truths that plays the devil.

Dialogues of Alfred North Whitehead [1953],¹ prologue

- 3 The vitality of thought is in adventure. Ideas won't keep. Something must be done about them. When the idea is new, its custodians have fervor, live for it, and, if need be, die for it.

Dialogues of Alfred North Whitehead, 22, August 17, 1941

- 5 What is morality in any given time or place? It is what the majority then and there happen to like, and immorality is what they dislike.

Dialogues of Alfred North Whitehead, August 30, 1941

- 6 The ideas of Freud were popularized by people who only imperfectly understood them, who were incapable of the great effort required to grasp them in their relationship to larger truths, and who therefore assigned to them a prominence out of all proportion to their true importance.

Dialogues of Alfred North Whitehead, 28, June 3, 1943

- 7 A philosopher of imposing stature doesn't think in a vacuum. Even his most abstract ideas are, to some extent, conditioned by what is or is not known in the time when he lives.

Dialogues of Alfred North Whitehead, 29, June 10, 1943

- 8 Intellect is to emotion as our clothes are to our bodies; we could not very well have civilized life without clothes, but we would be in a poor way if we had only clothes without bodies.

Dialogues of Alfred North Whitehead, 29, June 10, 1943

- 9 No period of history has ever been great or ever can be that does not act on some sort of high, idealistic motives, and idealism in our time has been shoved aside, and we are paying the penalty for it.

- 1 O World, thou choosest not the better part!
It is not wisdom to be only wise,
And on the inward vision close the eyes,
But it is wisdom to believe the heart.
O World, Thou Choosest Not [1894]
- 2 Beauty as we feel it is something indescribable:
what it is or what it means can never be said.
The Sense of Beauty [1896], pt. IV, Expression
- 3 Even the most inspired verse, which boasts not without a relative justification to be immortal, becomes in the course of ages a scarcely legible hieroglyphic; the language it was written in dies, a learned education and an imaginative effort are requisite to catch even a vestige of its original force.
Nothing is so irrevocable as mind.
The Life of Reason [1905–1906], vol. I,
Reason in Common Sense
- 4 Happiness is the only sanction of life; where happiness fails, existence remains a mad and lamentable experiment.
The Life of Reason, I, Reason in Common Sense
- 5 That life is worth living is the most necessary of assumptions, and, were it not assumed, the most impossible of conclusions.
The Life of Reason, I, Reason in Common Sense
- 6 Fanaticism consists in redoubling your efforts
when you have forgotten your aim.
The Life of Reason, I, Reason in Common Sense
- 7 Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it.
The Life of Reason, I, Reason in Common Sense
- 8 When Socrates and his two great disciples composed a system of rational ethics they were hardly proposing practical legislation for mankind . . .
They were merely writing an eloquent epitaph for their country.
The Life of Reason, V, Reason in Science
- 9 Let a man once overcome his selfish terror at his own finitude, and his finitude is, in one sense, overcome.
The Ethics of Spinoza [1910], introduction
- 10 Perhaps the only true dignity of man is his capacity to despise himself.
The Ethics of Spinoza, introduction
- 11 Miracles are propitious accidents, the natural causes of which are too complicated to be readily understood. The Ethics of Spinoza, introduction
- 12 The Bible is literature, not dogma.
The Ethics of Spinoza, introduction
- 13 American life is a powerful solvent. It seems to neutralize every intellectual element, however tough and alien it may be, and to fuse it in the native good will, complacency, thoughtlessness, and optimism.
Character and Opinion in the United States
[1920]
- 14 All his life he [the American] jumps into the train after it has started and jumps out before it has stopped; and he never once gets left behind, or breaks a leg.
Character and Opinion in the United States
- 15 There is no cure for birth and death save to enjoy the interval.
Soliloquies in England and Later Soliloquies
[1922]. War Shrines
- 16 I like to walk about amidst the beautiful things that adorn the world; but private wealth I should decline, or any sort of personal possessions, because they would take away my liberty.
Soliloquies in England and Later Soliloquies.
The Irony of Liberalism
- 17 My atheism, like that of Spinoza, is true piety towards the universe and denies only gods fashioned by men in their own image, to be servants of their human interests.
Soliloquies in England and Later Soliloquies.
On My Friendly Critics
- 18 Scepticism is the chastity of the intellect, and it is shameful to surrender it too soon or to the first comer.
Scepticism and Animal Faith [1923], ch. 9
- 19 The young man who has not wept is a savage, and the old man who will not laugh is a fool.
Dialogues in Limbo [1926], ch. 3
- 20 Religion in its humility restores man to his only dignity, the courage to live by grace.
Dialogues in Limbo, 4
- 21 There is nothing impossible in the existence of the supernatural: its existence seems to me decidedly probable.
The Genteel Tradition at Bay [1931]
- 22 There is no God and Mary is His Mother.

1 Our type of creativeness is the conception and birth of a new being—the person in the part. It is a natural act similar to the birth of a human being.

An Actor Prepares [1936],¹ ch. 16

2 In the creative process there is the father, the author of the play; the mother, the actor pregnant with the part; and the child, the role to be born.

3 There was ease in Casey's manner as he stepped into his place,
There was pride in Casey's bearing, and a smile on Casey's face,

And when, responding to the cheers, he lightly doffed his hat,

No stranger in the crowd could doubt 'twas Casey at the bat.

4 Oh! somewhere in this favored land the sun is shining bright;
The band is playing somewhere, and somewhere hearts are light;
And somewhere men are laughing and somewhere children shout,
But there is no joy in Mudville—mighty Casey has struck out.

5 Where all your rights become only an accumulated wrong; where men must beg with bated breath for leave to subsist in their own land, to think their own thoughts, to sing their own songs, to garner the fruits of their own labors . . . then surely it is braver, a saner and truer thing, to be a rebel in act and deed against such circumstances as these than tamely to accept it as the natural lot of men.

- 4 There are two things to aim at in life: first, to get what you want; and, after that, to enjoy it. Only the wisest of mankind achieve the second.
Afterthoughts [1931]
- 5 How awful to reflect that what people say of us is true!
Afterthoughts
- 6 Solvency is entirely a matter of temperament and not of income.
Afterthoughts
- 7 There are few sorrows, however poignant, in which a good income is of no avail.
Afterthoughts
- 8 The indefatigable pursuit of an unattainable perfection, even though it consist in nothing more than in the pounding of an old piano, is what alone gives a meaning to our life on this unavailing star.
Afterthoughts
- 9 What I like in a good author is not what he says, but what he whispers.
Afterthoughts
- 10 People say that life is the thing, but I prefer reading.
Afterthoughts
- 11 There is more felicity on the far side of baldness than young men can possibly imagine.
Afterthoughts
- 12 Thank heavens, the sun has gone in, and I don't have to go out and enjoy it.

- 13 And I would have, now love is over,
An end to all, an end:

I cannot, having been your lover,
Stoop to become your friend!
After Love [1892], st. 3

- 14 My soul is like this cloudy, flaming opal ring.

- 18 The woods of Arcady are dead,
And over is their antique joy;
Of old the world on dreaming fed;
Gray Truth is now her painted toy.
Crossways [1889]. The Song of the Happy Shepherd, st. 1
- 19 Down by the salley gardens my love and I did meet;
She passed the salley gardens with little snow-white feet.
She bid me take love easy, as the leaves grow on the tree;
But I, being young and foolish, with her would not agree.
Crossways. Down by the Salley Gardens
- 20 She bid me take life easy, as the grass grows on the weirs;
But I was young and foolish, and now am full of tears.
Crossways. Down by the Salley Gardens
- 21 The years like great black oxen tread the world,
And God the herdsman goads them on behind,
And I am broken by their passing feet.
The Countess Cathleen [1892], last lines
- 22 Red Rose, proud Rose, sad Rose of all my days!
Come near me, while I sing the ancient ways.
The Rose [1893]. To the Rose Upon the Rood of Time, st. 1

¹See Auden, 775:14.

- 1 I will arise and go now, and go to Innisfree,
And a small cabin build there, of clay and wattles
made:
Nine bean-rows will I have there, a hive for the honeybee,
And live alone in the bee-loud glade.

- 4 When you are old and gray and full of sleep,
And nodding by the fire, take down this book.²
The Rose. When You Are Old, st. 1
- 5 How many loved your moments of glad grace,
And loved your beauty with love false or true,
But one man loved the pilgrim soul in you,
And loved the sorrows of your changing face.

- 7 Land of Heart's Desire,
Where beauty has no ebb, decay no flood,
But joy is wisdom, time an endless song.
The Land of Heart's Desire, l. 373
- 8 All things uncomely and broken, all things worn out and old,
The cry of a child by the roadway, the creak of a lumbering cart,
The heavy steps of the plowman, splashing the
wintry mold,
Are wronging your image that blossoms a rose in the deeps of my heart.

- 15 Never give all the heart, for love
Will hardly seem worth thinking of
To passionate women if it seem
Certain, and they never dream
That it fades out from kiss to kiss;
For everything that's lovely is
But a brief, dreamy kind delight.
In the Seven Woods. Never Give All the Heart
- 16 I said, "A line will take us hours maybe;

- 20 The friends that have it I do wrong
When ever I remake a song

¹I had still the ambition, formed in Sligo in my teens, of living in imitation of Thoreau on Innisfree, a little island in Lough Gill, and when walking through Fleet Street very homesick I heard a little tinkle of water and saw a fountain in a shop window which balanced a little ball upon its jet, and began to remember lake water. From the sudden remembrance came my poem Innisfree. — YEATS, The Trembling of the Veil [1926]

- 6 Turning and turning in the widening gyre
The falcon cannot hear the falconer;
Things fall apart; the center cannot hold;
Mere anarchy is loosed upon the world,
The blood-dimmed tide is loosed, and everywhere
The ceremony of innocence is drowned;
The best lack all conviction, while the worst
Are full of passionate intensity.
*Michael Robartes and the Dancer. The Second
Coming, st. 1*
- 7 Now I know
That twenty centuries of stony sleep
Were vexed to nightmare by a rocking cradle,
And what rough beast, its hour come round
at last,
Slouches towards Bethlehem to be born?
*Michael Robartes and the Dancer. The Second

*Michael Robartes and the Dancer. A Prayer
for My Daughter, st. 8*
- 15 All hatred driven hence,
The soul recovers radical innocence
And learns at last that it is self-delighting,
Self-appeasing, self-affrighting,
And that its own sweet will is Heaven's will.
*Michael Robartes and the Dancer. A Prayer
for My Daughter, st. 9*
- 16 That is no country for old men. The young
In one another's arms, birds in the trees
— Those dying generations — at their song,
The salmon-falls, the mackerel-crowded seas,
Fish, flesh, or fowl, commend all summer long
Whatever is begotten, born, and dies.
Caught in that sensual music all neglect
Monuments of unaging intellect.
The Tower [1928]. Sailing to Byzantium, st. 1
- 17 An aged man is but a paltry thing,
A tattered coat upon a stick, unless
Soul clap its hands and sing, and louder sing
For every tatter in its mortal dress.
The Tower. Sailing to Byzantium, st. 2

1 Consume my heart away; sick with desire
And fastened to a dying animal
It knows not what it is; and gather me
Into the artifice of eternity.

The Tower. Sailing to Byzantium, st. 3

2 Once out of nature I shall never take
My bodily form from any natural thing,
But such a form as Grecian goldsmiths make
Of hammered gold and gold enameling
To keep a drowsy Emperor awake;
Or set upon a golden bough to sing
To lords and ladies of Byzantium
Of what is past, or passing, or to come.¹

7 O but we dreamed to mend
Whatever mischief seemed
To afflict mankind, but now
That winds of winter blow
Learn that we were crack-pated when we dreamed.

*The Tower. Nineteen Hundred and Nineteen,
III, st. 3*

8 Come let us mock at the great
That had such burdens on the mind
And toiled so hard and late
To leave some monument behind,
Nor thought of the leveling wind.

14 A shudder in the loins engenders there
The broken wall, the burning roof and tower
And Agamemnon dead.

The Tower. Leda and the Swan, st. 3

15 Labor is blossoming or dancing where
The body is not bruised to pleasure soul,
Nor beauty born out of its own despair,
Nor blear-eyed wisdom out of midnight oil.
O chestnut tree, great-rooted blossomer,
Are you the leaf, the blossom or the bole?
O body swayed to music, O brightening glance,
How can we know the dancer from the dance?

The Tower. Among School Children, st. 8

16 Never to have lived is best, ancient writers say; Never to have drawn the breath of life, never to have looked into the eye of day;
The second best's a gay goodnight and quickly turn away.

Earth was bountiful and we were surrounded with the blessings of the Great Mystery. Not until the hairy man from the east came and with brutal frenzy heaped injustices upon us and the families that we loved was it “wild” for us. - 10 The term Satyagraha was coined by me . . . in order to distinguish it from the movement then going on . . . under the name of Passive Resistance.
Its root meaning is “holding on to truth,” hence “force of righteousness.” I have also called it love force or soul force. In the application of Satyagraha, I discovered in the earliest stages that pursuit of truth did not permit violence being inflicted on one’s opponent, but that he must be weaned from error by patience and sympathy. For what appears truth to the one may appear to be error to the other. And patience means self-suffering. So the doctrine came to mean vindication of truth, not by the infliction of suffering on the opponent, but on one’s self.³

- 12 Omit needless words.
Vigorous writing is concise. A sentence should contain no unnecessary words, a paragraph no unnecessary sentences, for the same reason that a drawing should have no unnecessary lines and a machine no unnecessary parts. This requires not that the writer make all his sentences short, or that he avoid all detail and treat his subjects only in outline, but that every word tell.

9 What artists call posterity is the posterity of the work of art.

Remembrance of Things Past. Within a Budding Grove, pt. I

10 Not only does one not retain all at once the truly rare works, but even within such works it is the least precious parts that one perceives first. Less deceptive than life, these great masterpieces do not give us their best at the beginning.

Remembrance of Things Past. Within a Budding Grove, I

11 The time which we have at our disposal every day is elastic; the passions that we feel expand it, those that we inspire contract it; and habit fills up what remains.

*Remembrance of Things Past. Within a

14 They buried him, but all through the night of mourning, in the lighted windows, his books arranged three by three kept watch like angels with outspread wings and seemed, for him who was no more, the symbol of his resurrection.

Remembrance of Things Past. The Captive, pt. I

15 The bonds that unite another person to ourself exist only in our mind. Memory as it grows fainter relaxes them, and notwithstanding the illusion by which we would fain be cheated and with which,
out of love, friendship, politeness, deference, duty, we cheat other people, we exist alone. Man is the creature that cannot emerge from himself, that knows his fellows only in himself; when he asserts the contrary, he is lying.

Remembrance of Things Past. The Sweet Cheat Gone

- 1 There is not a woman in the world the possession of whom is as precious as that of the truths which she reveals to us by causing us to suffer.

- 4 Only through art can we get outside of ourselves and know another's view of the universe which is not the same as ours and see landscapes which would otherwise have remained unknown to us like the landscapes of the moon. Thanks to art, instead of seeing a single world, our own, we see it multiply until we have before us as many worlds as there are original artists.

The Aran Islands

Paul Valéry

1871–1945

- 14 The folly of mistaking a paradox for a discovery, a metaphor for a proof, a torrent of verbiage for a spring of capital truths, and oneself for an oracle, is inborn in us.

*Introduction to the Method of Leonardo da Vinci [1895]*⁴

- 15 Collect all the facts that can be collected about the life of Racine and you will never learn from them the art of his verse. All criticism is dominated by the outworn theory that the man is the cause of the work as in the eyes of the law the criminal is the cause of the crime. Far rather are they both the effects.

Introduction to the Method of Leonardo da Vinci

- 16 The sea, the ever renewing sea!⁵

Charmes [1922]. Le Cimetière Marin

³May the grass grow at your door and the fox build his nest on your hearthstone. May the light fade from your eyes, so you never see what you love. May your own blood rise against you, and the sweetest drink you take be the bitterest cup of sorrow. May you die without benefit of clergy; may there be none to shed a tear at your grave, and may the hearthstone of hell be your best bed forever. — Traditional Wexford curse

⁴Translated by THOMAS MCGREEVY.

⁵La mer, la mer toujours recommencée!

- 1 The wind is rising . . . we must attempt to live.¹
Charmes. Le Cimetière Marin
- 2 Poetry is simply literature reduced to the essence of its active principle. It is purged of idols of every kind, of realistic illusions, of any conceivable equivocation between the language of “truth” and the language of “creation.” Littérature [1930]
- 3 An intelligent woman is a woman with whom one can be as stupid as one wants.
Mauvaises Pensées et Autres [1941]
- 4 That which has always been accepted by everyone, everywhere, is almost certain to be false.
Tel Quel [1943]
- 5 God created man, and finding him not sufficiently alone, gave him a female companion so that he might feel his solitude more acutely.
Tel Quel
- 6 A poem is never finished, only abandoned.

- 9 Zuleika, on a desert island, would have spent most of her time in looking for a man’s footprint.
Zuleika Dobson [1911], ch. 2
- 10 She was one of the people who say: “I don’t know anything about music really, but I know what I like.”
Zuleika Dobson, 9
- 11 Of all the objects of hatred, a woman once loved is the most hateful.
Zuleika Dobson, 13
- 12 The Socratic manner is not a game at which two can play. Please answer my question, to the best of your ability.
Zuleika Dobson, 15
- 13 I have known no man of genius who had not to pay, in some affliction or defect either physical or spiritual, for what the gods had given him.
No. 2. The Pines
- 14 To say that a man is vain means merely that he is pleased with the effect he produces on other people. A conceited man is satisfied with the effect he produces on himself.
Quia Imperfectum

¹Le vent se lève . . . il faut tenter de vivre.

- 15 Strange, when you come to think of it, that of all the countless folk who have lived before our time on this planet not one is known in history or in legend as having died of laughter.
Laughter

Léon Blum

1872–1950

- 16 Life does not give itself to one who tries to keep all its advantages at once. I have often thought morality may perhaps consist solely in the courage of making a choice.

1872–1961

- 5 This much I think I do know—that a society so riven that the spirit of moderation is gone, no court can save; that a society where that spirit flourishes, no court need save; that in a society which evades its responsibility by thrusting upon the courts the nurture of that spirit, that spirit in the end will perish.

- 8 That community is already in the process of dissolution where each man begins to eye his neighbor as a possible enemy, where nonconformity with the accepted creed, political as well as religious, is a mark of disaffection; where denunciation, without specification or backing, takes the place of evidence; where orthodoxy chokes freedom of dissent; where faith in the eventual supremacy of reason has become so timid that we dare not enter our convictions in the open lists, to win or lose.

- 11 Mathematics may be defined as the subject in which we never know what we are talking about,
 nor whether what we are saying is true.
*Recent Work on the Principles of Mathematics [1901]. In International Monthly, vol. 4,
 p. 84*
- 12 Mathematics, rightly viewed, possesses not only truth, but supreme beauty—a beauty cold and austere, like that of sculpture, without appeal to any part of our weaker nature, without the gorgeous trappings of painting or music, yet sublimely pure, and capable of a stern perfection such as only the greatest art can show.
The Study of Mathematics [1902]
- 13 Mathematics takes us still further from what is human, into the region of absolute necessity, to which not only the actual world, but every possible world, must conform.

8 Economic distress will teach men, if anything can, that realities are less dangerous than fancies, that fact-finding is more effective than fault-finding.

Progress and Power [1935]

9 The significance of man is that he is that part of the universe that asks the question, What is the significance of Man? He alone can stand apart imaginatively and, regarding himself and the universe in their eternal aspects, pronounce a judgment: The significance of man is that he is insignificant and is aware of it.

19 In New Mexico he always awoke a young man; not until he rose and began to shave did he realize that he was growing older. His first consciousness was a sense of the light dry wind blowing in through the windows, with the fragrance of hot sun and sagebrush and sweet clover; a wind that made one's body feel light and one's heart cry "To-day, to-day," like a child's.

We shall fight in France, we shall fight on the seas and oceans, we shall fight with growing confidence and growing strength in the air, we shall defend our island, whatever the cost may be, we shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills; we shall never surrender.
Speech on Dunkirk, House of Commons [June 4, 1940]
- 2 Let us . . . brace ourselves to our duties, and so bear ourselves that if the British Empire and its Commonwealth last for a thousand years, men will still say: "This was their finest hour."
Speech in the House of Commons [June 18, 1940]
- 3 We shall defend every village, every town and every city. The vast mass of London itself, fought street by street, could easily devour an entire hostile army; and we would rather see London laid in ruins and ashes than that it should be tamely and abjectly enslaved.
Radio broadcast [July 14, 1940]
- 4 Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few.
Tribute to the Royal Air Force, House of Commons [August 20, 1940]
- 5 The British Empire and the United States will have to be somewhat mixed up together in some of their affairs for mutual and general advantage. For my own part, looking out upon the future, I do not view the process with any misgivings.
Tribute to the Royal Air Force, House of Commons [August 20, 1940]
- 6 Death and sorrow will be the companions of our journey; hardship our garment; constancy and valor our only shield. We must be united, we must be undaunted, we must be inflexible.
Report on the war, House of Commons [October 8, 1940]
- 7 We are waiting for the long-promised invasion. So are the fishes.
Radio broadcast to the French people [October 21, 1940]
- 8 Here is the answer which I will give to President Roosevelt. . . . Give us the tools, and we will finish the job.
Radio broadcast [February 9, 1941]
- 9 This is one of those cases in which the imagination is baffled by the facts.
Remark in the House of Commons following the parachute descent in Scotland of Rudolf Hess [May 13, 1941]
- 10 The British nation is unique in this respect. They are the only people who like to be told how bad things are, who like to be told the worst.
Report on the war, House of Commons [June 10, 1941]
- 11 A vile race of quislings¹—to use the new word which will carry the scorn of mankind down the centuries.
Speech at St. James's Palace, London [June 12, 1941]
- 12 The destiny of mankind is not decided by material computation. When great causes are on the move in the world . . . we learn that we are spirits, not animals, and that something is going on in space and time, and beyond space and time, which, whether we like it or not, spells duty.
Radio broadcast to America on receiving the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from the University of Rochester, New York [June 16, 1941]
- 13 Hitler is a monster of wickedness, insatiable in his lust for blood and plunder. Not content with having all Europe under his heel, or else terrorized into various forms of abject submission, he must now carry his work of butchery and desolation among the vast multitudes of Russia and of Asia. . . . So now this blood-thirsty guttersnipe must launch his mechanized armies upon new fields of slaughter, pillage and devastation.
Radio broadcast on the German invasion of Russia [June 22, 1941]
- 14 We will have no truce or parley with you [Hitler], or the grisly gang who work your wicked will. You do your worst—and we will do our best.
Speech to the London County Council [July 14, 1941]
- 15 The V sign is the symbol of the unconquerable will of the occupied territories, and a portent of the fate awaiting the Nazi tyranny.
Message to the people of Europe on launching the V for Victory propaganda campaign [July 20, 1941]
- 16 Nothing is more dangerous in wartime than to live in the temperamental atmosphere of a Gallup Poll,² always feeling one's pulse and taking one's temperature.

- 1 Never give in, never give in, never, never, never, never—in nothing, great or small, large or petty—never give in except to convictions of honor and good sense.
Address at Harrow School [October 29, 1941]
- 2 Do not let us speak of darker days; let us speak rather of sterner days. These are not dark days: these are great days—the greatest days our country has ever lived; and we must all thank God that we have been allowed, each of us according to our stations, to play a part in making these days memorable in the history of our race.
Address at Harrow School [October 29, 1941]
- 3 In the past we have had a light which flickered, in the present we have a light which flames, and in the future there will be a light which shines over all the land and sea.
Speech on war with Japan, House of Commons [December 8, 1941]
- 4 What kind of people do they [the Japanese] think we are?
Speech to the U.S. Congress [December 26, 1941]
- 5 We have not journeyed all this way across the centuries, across the oceans, across the mountains, across the prairies, because we are made of sugar candy.
Speech to the Canadian Senate and House of Commons, Ottawa [December 30, 1941]
- 6 When I warned [the French] that Britain would fight on alone whatever they did, their generals told their prime minister and his divided cabinet, “In three weeks England will have her neck wrung like a chicken.” Some chicken; some neck.
Speech to the Canadian Senate and House of Commons, Ottawa [December 30, 1941]
- 7 The late M. Venizelos¹ observed that in all her wars England—he should have said Britain, of course—always wins one battle—the last.
Speech at the Lord Mayor’s Day Luncheon, London [November 10, 1942]
- 8 Now this is not the end. It is not even the beginning of the end. But it is, perhaps, the end of the beginning.
Speech at the Lord Mayor’s Day Luncheon, London [November 10, 1942]
- 9 I have not become the King’s First Minister in order to preside over the liquidation of the British Empire.

- 10 The soft underbelly of the Axis.
Report on the war, House of Commons [November 11, 1942]
- 11 In war-time, truth is so precious that she should always be attended by a bodyguard of lies.
Remark at Teheran Conference [December 1943]
- 12 “Not in vain” may be the pride of those who have survived and the epitaph of those who fell.²
Speech in the House of Commons [September 28, 1944]
- 13 The United States is a land of free speech. No where is speech freer—not even here where we sedulously cultivate it even in its most repulsive form.
Speech in the House of Commons [September 28, 1944]
- 14 He [President Franklin D. Roosevelt] died in harness, and we may well say in battle harness, like his soldiers, sailors, and airmen, who side by side with ours are carrying on their task to the end all over the world. What an enviable death was his.
Speech in the House of Commons [April 17, 1945]
- 15 I think “No comment” is a splendid expression. I am using it again and again. I got it from Sumner Welles.
To reporters at the Washington, D.C., airport, after conferring with President Truman at the White House [February 12, 1946]
- 16 From Stettin in the Baltic to Trieste in the Adriatic an iron curtain³ has descended across the Continent.
Address at Westminster College, Fulton, Missouri [March 5, 1946]

²The eight thousand paratroopers of the First British Airborne Division who landed in Arnheim, Holland, behind the German lines and held the area for nine days and nights, with a loss of six thousand [September 1944]. MAJOR GENERAL R. E. URQUHART, the division commander, radioed to Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery: All will be ordered to break out rather than surrender.

³An iron curtain had dropped between him and the outer world—H. G. WELLS, The Food of the Gods [1904]

France . . . a nation of forty millions with a deep-rooted grievance and an iron curtain at its frontier.—GEORGE WASHINGTON CRILE [1864–1943], A Mechanistic View of War and Peace [1915]

With a rumble and a roar, an iron curtain is descending on Russian history.—VASILI ROZANOV [1856–1919], Apocalypse of Our Time [1918]

We were behind the “iron curtain” at last.—ETHEL ANNAKIN SNOWDEN [1881–1951], Through Bolshevik Russia [1920]

The Nazi minister of enlightenment and propaganda, PAUL JOSEPH GOEBBELS, used the phrase “iron curtain” in reference to the USSR in Das Reich [February 23, 1945].

CHURCHILL used it in a top-secret telegram to President Truman [May 12, 1945].

- 12 What fairy story, what tale from the Arabian Nights of the jinns, is a hundredth part as wonderful as this true fairy story of simians! It is so much more heartening, too, than the tales we invent. A universe capable of giving birth to many such accidents is—blind or not—a good world to live in, a promising universe. . . . We once thought we lived on God's footstool; it may be a throne.

- 15 They would not find me changed from him they knew—
Only more sure of all I thought was true.
Into My Own [1913], st. 4
- 16 Ah, when to the heart of man
Was it ever less than a treason
To go with the drift of things,
To yield with a grace to reason,
And bow and accept the end
Of a love or a season?
Reluctance [1913], st. 4
- 17 I'm going out to clean the pasture spring;
I'll only stop to rake the leaves away
(And wait to watch the water clear, I may):
I shan't be gone long.—You come too.
The Pasture [1914], st. 1
- 18 Something there is that doesn't love a wall.
Mending Wall [1914]
- 19 My apple trees will never get across
And eat the cones under his pines, I tell him.
He only says, "Good fences make good neighbors."¹

Is due to truths being in and out of favor.
The Black Cottage [1914]
- 3 Pressed into service means pressed out of shape.
The Self-Seeker [1914]
- 4 I shall be telling this with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence:
Two roads diverged in a wood, and I—
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference.
The Road Not Taken [1916], st. 4
- 5 I'd like to get away from earth awhile
And then come back to it and begin over.
May no fate willfully misunderstand me
And half grant what I wish and snatch me away
Not to return. Earth's the right place for love:
I don't know where it's likely to go better.
Birches [1916]
- 6 One could do worse than be a swinger of birches.
Birches
- 7 I shall set forth for somewhere,
I shall make the reckless choice
Some say when they are in voice
And tossing so as to scare
The white clouds over them on,
I shall have less to say,
But I shall be gone. The Sound of the Trees [1916]
- 8 Do you know,
Considering the market, there are more
Poems produced than any other thing?
No wonder poets sometimes have to seem
So much more businesslike than businessmen.
Their wares are so much harder to get rid of.
New Hampshire [1923]
- 9 The snake stood up for evil in the Garden.
The Ax-Helve [1923]
- 10 Why make so much of fragmentary blue
In here and there a bird, or butterfly,
Or flower, or wearing-stone, or open eye,
When heaven presents in sheets the solid hue?
Fragmentary Blue [1923], st. 1
- 11 Some say the world will end in fire,
Some say in ice.
From what I've tasted of desire
I hold with those who favor fire.
But if it had to perish twice,
I think I know enough of hate
To say that for destruction ice
- Is also great
And would suffice. Fire and Ice [1923]
- 12 The way a crow
Shook down on me
The dust of snow
From a hemlock tree
Has given my heart
A change of mood
And saved some part
Of a day I had rued. Dust of Snow [1923]
- 13 Whose woods these are I think I know.
His house is in the village though;
He will not see me stopping here
To watch his woods fill up with snow.
Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening [1923], st. 1
- 14 My little horse must think it queer
To stop without a farmhouse near.
Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening, st. 2
- 15 The woods are lovely, dark and deep.
But I have promises to keep,
And miles to go before I sleep,
And miles to go before I sleep.
Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening, st. 4
- 16 Love at the lips was touch
As sweet as I could bear;
And once that seemed too much;
I lived on air. To Earthward [1923], st. 1
- 17 Now no joy but lacks salt
That is not dashed with pain
And weariness and fault;
I crave the stain
Of tears, the aftermark
Of almost too much love,
The sweet of bitter bark
And burning clove. To Earthward, st. 5, 6
- 18 Keep cold, young orchard. Goodbye and keep cold.
Dread fifty above more than fifty below.
Goodbye and Keep Cold [1923]
- 19 It looked as if a night of dark intent
Was coming, and not only a night, an age.
Someone had better be prepared for rage.
There would be more than ocean-water broken
Before God's last Put out the Light was spoken.
Once by the Pacific [1928]
- 20 Tree at my window, window tree,
My sash is lowered when night comes on;
But let there never be curtain drawn
Between you and me.
Tree at My Window [1928], st. 1

- 1 That day she put our heads together,
Fate had her imagination about her,
Your head so much concerned with outer,
Mine with inner, weather. Tree at My Window, st. 4
- 2 I have been one acquainted with the night.
Acquainted with the Night [1928]
- 3 If, as they say, some dust thrown in my eyes
Will keep my talk from getting overwise,
I'm not the one for putting off the proof.
Let it be overwhelming. Dust in the Eyes [1928]
- 4 Don't join too many gangs. Join few if any.
Join the United States and join the family—
But not much in between unless a college.
Build Soil [1932]
- 5 The sun was warm but the wind was chill.
You know how it is with an April day
When the sun is out and the wind is still,
You're one month on in the middle of May.
But if you so much as dare to speak,
A cloud comes over the sunlit arch,
A wind comes off a frozen peak,
And you're two months back in the middle of March.
Two Tramps in Mud Time [1936], st. 3
- 6 But yield who will to their separation,
My object in living is to unite
My avocation and my vocation
As my two eyes make one in sight.
Only where love and need are one,
And the work is play for mortal stakes,
Is the deed ever really done
For Heaven and the future's sakes.
Two Tramps in Mud Time, st. 9
- 7 No memory of having starved
Atones for later disregard,
Or keeps the end from being hard.

Better to go down dignified
With boughten friendship by your side
Than none at all. Provide, provide!
Provide, Provide [1936], st. 6, 7
- 8 The old dog barks backward without getting up.
I can remember when he was a pup.
The Span of Life [1936]
- 9 I never dared to be radical when young
For fear it would make me conservative when old.
Precaution [1936]
- 10 The land was ours before we were the land's.
She was our land more than a hundred years
Before we were her people.
The Gift Outright [1941]¹
- 11 She is as in a field a silken tent
At midday when a sunny summer breeze
Has dried the dew and all its ropes relent,
So that in guys it gently sways at ease.
The Silken Tent [1942]
- 12 But strictly held by none, is loosely bound
By countless silken ties of love and thought
To everything on earth the compass round,
And only by one's going slightly taut
In the capriciousness of summer air
Is of the slightest bondage made aware.
The Silken Tent
- 13 Happiness Makes Up in Height for What It Lacks in Length. Title of poem [1942]
- 14 Far in the pillared dark
Thrush music went—
Almost like a call to come in
To the dark and lament.

But no, I was out for stars:
I would not come in.
I meant not even if asked,
And I hadn't been.
Come In [1942], st. 4, 5
- 15 And were an epitaph to be my story
I'd have a short one ready for my own.
I would have written of me on my stone:
I had a lover's quarrel with the world.
The Lesson for Today [1942]
- 16 We dance round in a ring and suppose,
But the Secret sits in the middle and knows.
The Secret Sits [1942]
- 17 Back out of all this now too much for us,
Back in a time made simple by the loss
Of detail, burned, dissolved, and broken off
Like graveyard marble sculpture in the weather,
There is a house that is no more a house
Upon a farm that is no more a farm
And in a town that is no more a town.
Directive [1947]
- 18 First there's the children's house of make believe,
Some shattered dishes underneath a pine,
The playthings in the playhouse of the children.
Weep for what little things could make them glad.
Directive
- 19 Here are your waters and your watering place.
Drink and be whole again beyond confusion.
Directive
- 20 Have I not walked without an upward look
Of caution under stars that very well
Might not have missed me when they shot and fell?
It was a risk I had to take—and took.
Bravado [1947]

- 3 It asks a little of us here.
It asks of us a certain height,
So when at times the mob is swayed
To carry praise or blame too far,
We may take something like a star
To stay our minds on and be staid.
Take Something Like a Star [1949]
- 4 Forgive, O Lord, my little jokes on Thee
And I'll forgive Thy great big one on me.
From In the Clearing [1962]
- 5 I am assured at any rate
Man's practically inexterminate.
Someday I must go into that.
There's always been an Ararat
Where someone someone else begat
To start the world all over at.
A-Wishing Well [1962]
- 6 It takes all sorts of in and outdoor schooling
To get adapted to my kind of fooling.
It Takes All Sorts [1962]
- 7 Unless I'm wrong
I but obey
The urge of a song:
I'm — bound — away!

And I may return
If dissatisfied
With what I learn
From having died. Away! [1962], st. 5, 6
- 8 A poem . . . begins as a lump in the throat, a sense of wrong, a homesickness, a lovesickness. . . . It finds the thought and the thought finds the words.
Letter to Louis Untermeyer [January 1, 1916]
- 9 It is absurd to think that the only way to tell if a poem is lasting is to wait and see if it lasts. The right reader of a good poem can tell the moment it strikes him that he has taken an immortal wound — that he will never get over it.
The Poetry of Amy Lowell. From the Christian Science Monitor [May 16, 1925]
- 10 The figure a poem makes. It begins in delight and ends in wisdom . . . in a clarification of life — not necessarily a great clarification, such as sects and cults are founded on, but in a momentary stay against confusion.
Collected Poems [1939]. Preface
- 11 No tears in the writer, no tears in the reader.
Collected Poems. Preface
- 12 Like a piece of ice on a hot stove the poem must ride on its own melting. . . . Read it a hundred times; it will forever keep its freshness as a metal keeps its fragrance. It can never lose its sense of a meaning that once unfolded by surprise as it went.
Collected Poems. Preface
- 13 How many times it thundered before Franklin took the hint! How many apples fell on Newton's head before he took the hint! Nature is always hinting at us. It hints over and over again. And suddenly we take the hint.
Comment
- 14 It is only a moment here and a moment there that the greatest writer has.
Comment
- 15 Poetry is a way of taking life by the throat.
Comment
- 16 Talking is a hydrant in the yard and writing is a faucet upstairs in the house. Opening the first takes all the pressure off the second.
Comment
- 17 The greatest thing in family life is to take a hint when a hint is intended — and not to take a hint when a hint isn't intended.
Comment
- 18 Always fall in with what you're asked to accept.
Take what is given, and make it over your way. My aim in life has always been to hold my own with whatever's going. Not against: with.
Comment
- 19 I've given offense by saying I'd as soon write

¹While I can make no claim for having introduced the term "rugged individualism," I should be proud to have invented it. It has been used by American leaders for over a half-century in eulogy of those God-fearing men and women of honesty whose stamina and character and fearless assertion of rights led them to make their own way in life. — HERBERT HOOVER, The Challenge to Liberty [1934], ch. 5

The Trembling of a Leaf, 4
- 22 No one can be a humbug for five-and-twenty years. Hypocrisy is the most difficult and nerve-racking vice that any man can pursue; it needs an unceasing vigilance and a rare detachment of spirit.

It cannot, like adultery or gluttony, be practiced at spare moments; it is a whole-time job.

1 Without this playing with fantasy no creative work has ever yet come to birth. The debt we owe to the play of imagination is incalculable.

Psychological Types [1923], ch. 1, p. 82

2 The great problems of life—sexuality, of course, among others—are always related to the primordial images of the collective unconscious. These images are really balancing or compensating factors which correspond with the problems life presents in actuality. This is not to be marveled at, since these images are deposits representing the accumulated experience of thousands of years of struggle for adaptation and existence.

Psychological Types, 5, p. 271

3 The meeting of two personalities is like the contact of two chemical substances: if there is any reaction, both are transformed.

Modern Man in Search of a Soul [1933], p. 57

4 The great decisions of human life have as a rule far more to do with the instincts and other mysterious unconscious factors than with conscious will and well-meaning reasonableness. The shoe that fits one person pinches another; there is no recipe for living that suits all cases. Each of us carries his own life-form—an indeterminable form which cannot be superseded by any other.

Modern Man in Search of a Soul, p. 69

5 Aging people should know that their lives are not mounting and unfolding but that an inexorable inner process forces the contraction of life. For a young person it is almost a sin—and certainly a danger—to be too much occupied with himself; but for the aging person it is a duty and a necessity to give serious attention to himself.

Modern Man in Search of a Soul, p. 125

6 All ages before ours believed in gods in some form or other. Only an unparalleled impoverishment in symbolism could enable us to rediscover the gods as psychic factors, which is to say, as archetypes of the unconscious. No doubt this discovery is hardly credible as yet.

The Integration of the Personality [1939], p. 72

7 If there is anything that we wish to change in the child, we should first examine it and see whether it is not something that could better be changed in ourselves. The Integration of the Personality, p. 285

8 The conscious mind allows itself to be trained like a parrot, but the unconscious does not—which is why St. Augustine thanked God for not making him responsible for his dreams.

Psychology and Alchemy [1953], p. 51

9 The unconscious is not just evil by nature, it is also the source of the highest good: not only dark but also light, not only bestial, semihuman, and demonic but superhuman, spiritual, and, in the classical sense of the word, “divine.”

The Practice of Psychotherapy [1953], p. 364

10 The little world of childhood with its familiar surroundings is a model of the greater world. The more intensively the family has stamped its character upon the child, the more it will tend to feel and see its earlier miniature world again in the bigger world of adult life.

Stevens's note to The Emperor of Ice-Cream
- 20 The essential thing in form is to be free in whatever form is used. A free form does not assure freedom. As a form, it is just one more form. So that it comes to this, I suppose, that I believe in freedom regardless of form. A Note on Poetry [1937]
- 21 What makes the poet the potent figure that he is, or was, or ought to be, is that he creates the world to which we turn incessantly and without knowing it and that he gives to life the supreme fictions without which we are unable to conceive of it.
The Noble Rider and the Sound of Words [1942]
- 22 The subject matter of poetry is not that “collection of solid, static objects extended in space” but the life that is lived in the scene that it composes;
 and so reality is not that external scene but the life that is lived in it. Reality is things as they are.
The Necessary Angel [1951]
- 23 His [the poet's] function is to make his imagination theirs [the people's] and he fulfills himself only as he sees his imagination become the light in the minds of others. His role, in short, is to help people to live their lives. The Necessary Angel

- 4 Snow was general all over Ireland. It was falling on every part of the dark central plain, on the treeless hills, falling softly upon the Bog of Allen and, farther westward, softly falling into the dark mutinous Shannon waves. It was falling, too, upon every part of the lonely churchyard on the hill where Michael Furey lay buried. It lay thickly drifted on the crooked crosses and headstones, on the spears of the little gate, on the barren thorns. His soul swooned slowly as he heard the snow falling faintly through the universe and faintly falling, like the descent of their last end, upon all the living and the dead.

- 3 In the modern social order, the person is sacrificed to the individual. The individual is given universal suffrage, equality of rights, freedom of opinion; while the person, isolated, naked, with no social armor to sustain and protect him, is left to the mercy of all the devouring forces which threaten the life of the soul, exposed to relentless actions and reactions of conflicting interests and appetites. . . . afford assurance that all the men in all the lands may live out their lives in freedom from fear and want.

Atlantic Charter, drawn up aboard the U.S.S. Augusta in Argentia Harbor, Newfoundland [issued August 14, 1941]

9 Eighth, they believe that all of the nations of the world, for realistic as well as spiritual reasons, must come to the abandonment of the use of force. Since no future peace can be maintained if land, sea or air armaments continue to be employed by nations which threaten, or may threaten, aggression outside of their frontiers, they believe, pending the establishment of a wider and permanent system of general security, that the disarmament of such nations is essential.

Charter of the United Nations

15 We, the peoples of the United Nations

Determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind, and

To reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal right of men and women and of nations large and small, and . . . for these ends

To practice tolerance and live together in peace with one another as good neighbors, and

To unite our strength to maintain international peace and security . . .

Have resolved to combine our efforts to accomplish these aims.

Out of Africa [1937], pt. I, ch. 1

- 7 If I know a song of Africa—I thought—of the giraffe, and the African new moon lying on her back, of the plows in the fields, and the sweaty faces of the coffee-pickers, does Africa know a song of me? Would the air over the plain quiver with a color that I had had on, or the children invent a game in which my name was, or the full moon throw a shadow over the gravel of the drive that was like me, or would the eagles of Ngong look out for me?

- 15 In Israel, in order to be a realist you must believe in miracles. Interview [October 5, 1956]

Hugo La Fayette Black

1886–1971

- 16 No higher duty, or more solemn responsibility, rests upon this Court than that of translating into living law and maintaining this constitutional shield deliberately planned and inscribed for the benefit of every human being subject to our Constitution—of whatever race, creed or persuasion.
Chambers v. Florida, 309 U.S. 227 [1938]

- 17 The First Amendment has erected a wall between church and state. That wall must be kept high and impregnable. We could not approve the slightest breach.
Everson v. Board of Education, 330 U.S. 1
[1947]

- 1 It is my belief that there are “absolutes” in our Bill of Rights, and that they were put there on purpose by men who knew what words meant and meant their prohibitions to be “absolutes.”

Interview Before the American Jewish Congress [April 14, 1962]

- 2 An unconditional right to say what one pleases about public affairs is what I consider to be the minimum guarantee of the First Amendment.

New York Times Company v. Sullivan, 376 U.S. 254 [1964]

- 3 In revealing the workings of government that led to the Vietnam War, the newspapers nobly did precisely that which the Founders hoped and trusted they would do.

Concurring opinion on the publication of the Pentagon Papers [1971]

Randolph Silliman Bourne

1886–1918

- 4 War is the health of the state. It automatically sets in motion throughout society those irresistible forces for uniformity, for passionate cooperation with the Government in coercing into obedience the minority groups and individuals which lack the larger herd sense.

The State [1918]

Apsley [George Benet] Cherry-Garrard

1886–1959

- 5 Polar exploration is at once the cleanest and most isolated way of having a bad time which has been devised.

The Worst Journey in the World [1922]. Introduction

- 6 I now see very plainly that though we achieved a first-rate tragedy, which will never be forgotten because it was a tragedy, tragedy was not our business.

- 1 Soldiers are citizens of death's gray land.
Dreamers [1918]
- 2 Soldiers are dreamers; when the guns begin
They think of firelit homes, clean beds, and wives.
Dreamers
- 3 And when the war is done and youth stone dead
I'd toddle safely home and die—in bed.
Base Details [1918]
- 4 Who will remember, passing through this gate,
The unheroic dead who fed the guns?
Who shall absolve the foulness of their fate—
Those doomed, conscripted, unvictorious ones?
On Passing the New Menin Gate [1918]
- 5 I believe that the war, upon which I entered as a war of defense and liberation, has now become a war of aggression and conquest. . . . I have seen and endured the sufferings of the troops, and I can no longer be a party to prolong these sufferings for ends which I believe to be evil and unjust.

Paul [Johannes] Tillich

1886–1965

- 6 The name of this infinite and inexhaustible depth and ground of all being is God.
The Shaking of the Foundations [1948], ch. 7
- 7 Grace strikes us when we are in great pain and restlessness. . . . Sometimes at that moment a wave of light breaks into our darkness, and it is as though a voice were saying: "You are accepted."
The Shaking of the Foundations, 19
- 8 The basic anxiety, the anxiety of a finite being about the threat of non-being, cannot be eliminated. It belongs to existence itself.
The Courage to Be [1952], ch. 2

Ruth [Fulton] Benedict

1887–1948

- 9 From the moment of his birth the customs into which [an individual] is born shape his experience and behavior. By the time he can talk, he is the little creature of his culture.
Patterns of Culture [1934], ch. 1
- 10 Our children are not individuals whose rights and tastes are casually respected from infancy, as they are in some primitive societies. . . . They are fundamentally extensions of our own egos and give a special opportunity for the display of authority.

Patterns of Culture, 7

- 11 In world history, those who have helped to build the same culture are not necessarily of one race, and those of the same race have not all participated in one culture. In scientific language, culture is not a function of race.
Race: Science and Politics [1940], ch. 2
- 12 Racism is the dogma that one ethnic group is condemned by nature to congenital inferiority and another group is destined to congenital superiority.
Race: Science and Politics, 7
- 13 The tough-minded . . . respect difference. Their goal is a world made safe for differences, where the United States may be American to the hilt without threatening the peace of the world, and France may be France, and Japan may be Japan on the same conditions.

But is there anything beyond?
Heaven [1913]
- 18 Then, the cool kindness of sheets, that soon
Smooth away trouble; and the rough male kiss
Of blankets; grainy wood; live hair that is

Unpassioned beauty of a great machine;
The benison of hot water; furs to touch;
The good smell of old clothes.

That there's some corner of a foreign field
That is forever England.

- 1 Dürer would have seen a reason for living in a town like this.
The Steeple-Jack [1935], st. 1
- 2 The sweet air coming into your house on a fine day, from water etched with waves as formal as the scales on a fish.
The Steeple-Jack, st. 1
- 3 Of the crow-blue mussel shells, one keeps adjusting the ash heaps; opening and shutting itself like an injured fan.
The Fish [1935], st. 1, 2
- 4 I, too, dislike it. Reading it, however, with a perfect contempt for it, one discovers in it, after all, a place for the genuine.
Poetry [1935; revised 1967]
- 5 Nor till the poets among us can be “literalists of the imagination” — above insolence and triviality and can present for inspection, “imaginary gardens with real toads in them,” shall we have it. Poetry, st. 4, 5 (excluded in 1967 revision)¹
- 6 I wonder what Adam and Eve think of it by this time.
Marriage [1935]
- 7 Ecstasy affords the occasion and expediency determines the form.
The Past Is the Present [1935]
- 8 My father used to say, “Superior people never make long visits, have to be shown Longfellow’s grave or the glass flowers at Harvard.” Silence [1935]
- 9 “The deepest feeling always shows itself in silence; not in silence, but restraint.” Nor was he insincere in saying, “Make my house your inn.”² Inns are not residences. Silence
- 10 There is a great amount of poetry in unconscious fastidiousness.
Critics and Connoisseurs [1935]
- 11 What is our innocence, what is our guilt? All are naked, none is safe. What Are Years? [1941]
- 12 The power of the visible is the invisible.

- 15 Bedizened or stark naked, man, the self, the being we call human, writing master to this world. The Pangolin, st. 8
- 16 Among animals, one has a sense of humor. Humor saves a few steps, it saves years. The Pangolin, st. 8
- 17 The prey of fear, he, always curtailed, extinguished, thwarted by the dusk, work partly done, says to the alternating blaze, “Again the sun! anew each day; and new and new and new, that comes into and steadies my soul.” The Pangolin, st. 9
- 18 What sap went through that little thread to make the cherry red!
Nevertheless [1944], st. 11
- 19 They say there is a sweeter air where it was made, than we have here.
A Carriage from Sweden [1944]
- 20 THE MIND IS AN ENCHANTING THING is an enchanted thing, like the glaze on a katydid-wing subdivided by sun till the nettings are legion.
The Mind Is an Enchanting Thing [1944], st. 1
- 21 I inwardly did nothing. O Iscariot-like crime!
In Distrust of Merits [1941], st. 8
- 22 We don’t like flowers that do not wilt; they must die, and nine she-camel hairs aid memory.
The Sycamore [1956], st. 2
- 23 O to be a dragon, a symbol of the power of Heaven — of silkworm

- And the dead tree gives no shelter, the cricket no relief,
And the dry stone no sound of water. Only
There is shadow under this red rock,
(Come in under the shadow of this red rock),
And I will show you something different from either
Your shadow at morning striding behind you
Or your shadow at evening rising to meet you;
I will show you fear in a handful of dust.
The Waste Land. I, The Burial of the Dead
- 13 I had not thought death had undone so many.¹
Sighs, short and infrequent, were exhaled.²
The Waste Land. I, The Burial of the Dead
- 14 I think we are in rats' alley
Where the dead men lost their bones.
The Waste Land. II, A Game of Chess

It's so elegant
So intelligent.
The Waste Land. II, A Game of Chess
- 16 Hurry up please its time.
The Waste Land. II, A Game of Chess
- 17 But at my back from time to time I hear³
The sound of horns and motors, which shall bring Sweeney to Mrs. Porter in the spring.
O the moon shone bright on Mrs. Porter
And on her daughter
They wash their feet in soda water.
The Waste Land. III, The Fire Sermon
- 18 At the violet hour, when the eyes and back Turn upward from the desk, when the human engine waits
Like a taxi throbbing waiting,
I Tiresias, though blind, throbbing between two lives. The Waste Land. III, The Fire Sermon
- 19 When lovely woman stoops to folly⁴ and Paces about her room again, alone,
She smooths her hair with automatic hand,
And puts a record on the gramophone.
The Waste Land. III, The Fire Sermon

The Waste Land. V, What the Thunder Said
- 4 We are the hollow men
 We are the stuffed men
 Leaning together
 Headpiece filled with straw. Alas!
The Hollow Men [1925], I
- 5 Shape without form, shade without color,
 Paralyzed force, gesture without motion;
 Those who have crossed
 With direct eyes, to death's other Kingdom
 Remember us—if at all—not as lost
 Violent souls, but only
 As the hollow men
 The stuffed men. The Hollow Men, I

 But merely vans to beat the air
 The air which is now thoroughly small and dry Smaller and dryer than the will Teach us to care and not to care
 Teach us to sit still. Ash-Wednesday, I
- 11 Terminate torment
 Of love unsatisfied
 The greater torment
 Of love satisfied. Ash-Wednesday, II
- 12 Blown hair is sweet, brown hair over the mouth blown,
 Lilac and brown hair;
 Distraction, music of the flute, stops and steps of the mind over the third stair,
 Fading, fading; strength beyond hope and despair
 Climbing the third stair. Ash-Wednesday, III
- 13 Redeem
 The time. Redeem
 The unread vision in the higher dream
 While jeweled unicorns draw by the gilded hearse.
Ash-Wednesday, IV
- 14 Against the Word the unstilled world still whirled
 About the center of the silent Word.
Ash-Wednesday, V
- 15 Wavering between the profit and the loss
 In this brief transit where the dreams cross
 The dreamcrossed twilight between birth and dying. Ash-Wednesday, VI
- 16 The white sails still fly seaward, seaward flying
 Unbroken wings.
 And the lost heart stiffens and rejoices
 In the lost lilac and the lost sea voices
 And the weak spirit quickens to rebel
 For the bent goldenrod and the lost sea smell.
Ash-Wednesday, VI
- 17 Even among these rocks,
 Our peace in His will. Ash-Wednesday, VI
- 18 What seas what shores what gray rocks and what islands
 What water lapping the bow
 And scent of pine and the woodthrush singing through the fog
 What images return
 O my daughter. Marina [1930]

1 To arrive where you are, to get from where you are not,

You must go by a way wherein there is no ecstasy.
In order to arrive at what you do not know
You must go by the way which is the way of ignorance. Four Quartets. East Coker, III

2 The whole earth is our hospital
Endowed by the ruined millionaire.

Four Quartets. East Coker, IV

3 We call this Friday good.

Four Quartets. East Coker, IV

4 And so each venture
Is a new beginning, a raid on the inarticulate
With shabby equipment always deteriorating
In the general mess of imprecision of feeling,
Undisciplined squads of emotion.

Four Quartets. East Coker, V

5 Home is where one starts from. As we grow older
The world becomes stranger, the pattern more complicated

Of dead and living. Not the intense moment Isolated, with no before and after,
But a lifetime burning in every moment
And not the lifetime of one man only
But of old stones that cannot be deciphered.

Four Quartets. East Coker, V

6 Love is most nearly itself
When here and now cease to matter.

Old men ought to be explorers¹
Here and there does not matter
We must be still and still moving
Into another intensity

For a further union, a deeper communion
Through the dark cold and the empty desolation,
The wave cry, the wind cry, the vast waters
Of the petrel and the porpoise. In my end is my beginning. Four Quartets. East Coker, V

7 I do not know much about gods; but I think that the river

Is a strong brown god—sullen, untamed and intractable.

Four Quartets. The Dry Salvages [1941], pt. I

8 The sea is the land's edge also, the granite
Into which it reaches, the beaches where it tosses
Its hints of earlier and other creation:
The starfish, the hermit crab, the whale's backbone;

The pools where it offers to our curiosity
The more delicate algae and the sea anemone.
It tosses up our losses, the torn seine,
The shattered lobsterpot, the broken oar

And the gear of foreign dead men. The sea has many voices.

Four Quartets. The Dry Salvages, I

9 There is no end of it, the voiceless wailing,
No end to the withering of withered flowers.

Four Quartets. The Dry Salvages, II

10 The backward look behind the assurance
Of recorded history, the backward halflook
Over the shoulder, towards the primitive terror.

Four Quartets. The Dry Salvages, II

11 Time the destroyer is time the preserver.

Four Quartets. The Dry Salvages, II

12 Not fare well,
But fare forward, voyagers.

Four Quartets. The Dry Salvages, III

13 Music heard so deeply
That it is not heard at all, but you are the music
While the music lasts.

Four Quartets. The Dry Salvages, V

14 Only undefeated
Because we have gone on trying;
We, content at the last
If our temporal reversion nourish
(Not too far from the yew tree)
The life of significant soil.

Four Quartets. The Dry Salvages, V

15 What the dead had no speech for, when living,
They can tell you, being dead: the communication Of the dead is tongued with fire beyond the language of the living.

Four Quartets. Little Gidding [1942], pt. I

16 Ash on an old man's sleeve
Is all the ash the burnt roses leave.
Dust in the air suspended
Marks the place where a story ended.

Dust inbreathed was a house—
The wall, the wainscot and the mouse
The death of hope and despair,
This is the death of air.

Four Quartets. Little Gidding, II

17 Water and fire shall rot
The marred foundations we forgot,
Of sanctuary and choir.

This is the death of water and fire.

Four Quartets. Little Gidding, II

18 In the uncertain hour before the morning
Near the ending of interminable night
At the recurrent end of the unending
After the dark dove with the flickering tongue
Had passed below the horizon of his homing.

Four Quartets. Little Gidding, II

Four Quartets. Little Gidding, II
- 2 Who then devised the torment? Love.
Love is the unfamiliar Name
Behind the hands that wove
The intolerable shirt of flame
Which human power cannot remove.
We only live, only suspire
Consumed by either fire or fire.
Four Quartets. Little Gidding, IV
- 3 A people without history
Is not redeemed from time, for history is a pattern
Of timeless moments. So, while the light fails
On a winter's afternoon, in a secluded chapel
History is now and England.
Four Quartets. Little Gidding, V
- 4 We shall not cease from exploration
And the end of all our exploring
Will be to arrive where we started
And know the place for the first time.
Four Quartets. Little Gidding, V
- 5 A condition of complete simplicity
(Costing not less than everything)
And all shall be well and
All manner of thing shall be well²
When the tongues of flame are infolded
Into the crowned knot of fire
And the fire and the rose are one.
Four Quartets. Little Gidding, V
- 6 It [tradition] cannot be inherited, and if you want it you must obtain it by great labor.
Tradition and the Individual Talent [1919]
- 7 The progress of an artist is a continual self-sacrifice, a continual extinction of personality.
Tradition and the Individual Talent
- 8 Poetry is not a turning loose of emotion, but an escape from emotion; it is not the expression of personality, but an escape from personality. But, of course, only those who have personality and emotions know what it means to want to escape from these things.
Tradition and the Individual Talent
- 9 The only way of expressing emotion in the form of art is by finding an "objective correlative"; in other words, a set of objects, a situation, a chain of events which shall be the formula of that particular emotion.
Hamlet and His Problems [1919]
- 10 Immature poets imitate; mature poets steal.
Philip Massinger [1920]
- 11 Every vital development in language is a development of feeling as well.
Philip Massinger
- 12 In the seventeenth century a dissociation of sensibility set in, from which we have never recovered; and this dissociation, as is natural, was aggravated by the influence of the two most powerful poets of the century, Milton and Dryden.
The Metaphysical Poets [1921]
- 13 Poets in our civilization, as it exists at present, must be difficult. . . . The poet must become more and more comprehensive, more allusive, more indirect, in order to force, to dislocate if necessary, language into its meaning.
The Metaphysical Poets
- 14 The great poet, in writing himself, writes his time.
Shakespeare and the Stoicism of Seneca [1927]
- 15 We know too much, and are convinced of too little. Our literature is a substitute for religion, and so is our religion.
A Dialogue on Dramatic Poetry [1928]
- 16 The general point of view may be described as classicist in literature, royalist in politics, and Anglo-Catholic in religion.
For Lancelot Andrews [1928], preface
- 17 We fight for lost causes because we know that our defeat and dismay may be the preface to our successors' victory, though that victory itself will be temporary; we fight rather to keep something alive than in the expectation that anything will triumph.
For Lancelot Andrews. Francis Herbert Bradley
- 18 Genuine poetry can communicate before it is understood.
Dante [1929]
- 19 More can be learned about how to write poetry from Dante than from any English poet. . . . The language of each great English poet is his own language; the language of Dante is the perfection of a common language.
Dante
- 20 Sometimes, however, to be a "ruined man" is itself a vocation.
The Use of Poetry and the Use of Criticism [1933]. Wordsworth and Coleridge
- 21 As things are, and as fundamentally they must always be, poetry is not a career, but a mug's game. No honest poet can ever feel quite sure of the permanent value of what he has written: he may have wasted his time and messed up his life for nothing.

- 17 [The tramp character:] A tramp, a gentleman, a poet, a dreamer, a lonely fellow, always hopeful of romance and adventure.
My Autobiography [1964], ch. 10

³Spoken by him in the movie The Major and the Minor [1942] but, according to his account, borrowed from a similar line spoken by his friend Charles Butterworth in the Mae West movie Every Day's a Holiday [1937].

1 All I need to make a comedy is a park, a policeman, and a pretty girl. My Autobiography, 10

2 I am known in parts of the world by people who have never heard of Jesus Christ.¹

From LITA GREY CHAPLIN, My Life with Chaplin [1966]

Christopher [Henry] Dawson

1889–1970

6 As soon as men decide that all means are permitted to fight an evil, then their good becomes indistinguishable from the evil that they set out to destroy.

The Judgment of the Nations [1942]

Philip Guedalla

1889–1944

7 The work of Henry James has always seemed divisible by a simple dynastic arrangement into three reigns: James I, James II, and the Old Pretender.

Supers and Supermen [1920]

Adolf Hitler

1889–1945

8 My adversaries . . . applied the one means that wins the easiest victory over reason: terror and force.

Mein Kampf (My Battle) [1933], vol. I, ch. 2

9 A majority can never replace the man. . . . Just as a hundred fools do not make one wise man, an heroic decision is not likely to come from a hundred cowards.

Mein Kampf, I, 3

²Les choses que je conte / Sont des mensonges vrais.

10 Strength lies not in defense but in attack.

Mein Kampf, I, 3

11 All propaganda has to be popular and has to adapt its spiritual level to the perception of the least intelligent of those towards whom it intends to direct itself.

Mein Kampf, I, 6

12 The great masses of the people . . . will more easily fall victims to a big lie than to a small one.

Mein Kampf, I, 10

13 Never tolerate the establishment of two continental powers in Europe. Mein Kampf, II, 14

14 After all, who remembers the Armenians?

Attributed remark, prior to the invasion of Poland [1939]

15 After fifteen years of work I have achieved, as a common German soldier and merely with my fanatical will power, the unity of the German nation, and have freed it from the death sentence of Versailles.³

Proclamation to the troops on taking over the leadership of the German armed forces [December 21, 1941]

16 This war no longer bears the characteristics of former inter-European conflicts. It is one of those elemental conflicts which usher in a new millennium and which shake the world once in a thousand years.

Speech to the Reichstag [April 26, 1942]

17 Is Paris burning?⁴

Asked at the Oberkommando der Wehrmacht, Rastenburg, Germany [August 25, 1944]

George S. Kaufman

1889–1961

18 Satire is what closes Saturday night.

Saying

Stoddard King

1889–1933

19 There's a long, long trail a-winding
Into the land of my dreams,
Where the nightingales are singing
And a white moon beams.

*The Long, Long Trail*⁵ [1913]

³The Allied and Associated Governments affirm and Germany accepts the responsibility of Germany and her Allies for causing all the loss and damage to which the Allied and Associated Governments and their nationals have been subjected as a consequence of the war imposed upon them by the aggression of Germany and her Allies. — Article 231 (the "war guilt clause"), Treaty of Versailles [June 28, 1919]

1889–1974

- 1 What each man does is based not on direct and certain knowledge, but on pictures made by himself or given to him. . . . The way in which the world is imagined determines at any particular moment what men will do.

Public Opinion [1922], ch. 1, The World Outside and the Pictures in Our Heads

- 2 In the great blooming, buzzing confusion of the outer world we pick out what our culture has already defined for us, and we tend to perceive that which we have picked out in the form stereotyped for us by our culture.

Public Opinion, 6, Stereotypes

- 3 Franklin D. Roosevelt is no crusader. He is no tribune of the people. He is no enemy of entrenched privilege. He is a pleasant man who, without any important qualifications for the office, would very much like to be President.

Today and Tomorrow [January 8, 1932]

- 4 In government offices which are sensitive to the vehemence and passion of mass sentiment public men have no sure tenure. They are in effect perpetual office seekers, always on trial for their political lives, always required to court their restless constituents.

Essays in the Public Philosophy [1935]

- 5 A free press is not a privilege but an organic necessity in a great society. . . . A great society is simply a big and complicated urban society.

Address at the International Press Institute Assembly, London [May 27, 1965]

- 6 Responsible journalism is journalism responsible in the last analysis to the editor's own conviction of what, whether interesting or only important, is in the public interest.

Jawaharlal Nehru

1889–1964

- 7 I want nothing to do with any religion concerned with keeping the masses satisfied to live in hunger, filth, and ignorance. I want nothing to do with any order, religious or otherwise, which does not teach people that they are capable of becoming happier and more civilized, on this earth, capable of becoming true man, master of his fate and captain of his soul.

From EDGAR SNOW, Journey to the Beginning [1958]

Arnold Joseph Toynbee

1889–1975

- 8 Civilizations, I believe, come to birth and proceed to grow by successfully responding to successive challenges. They break down and go to pieces if and when a challenge confronts them which they fail to meet.

Civilization on Trial [1948], ch. 4

1 If there is any fixed star in our constitutional constellation, it is that no official, high or petty, can prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, nationalism, religion, or other matters of opinion or force citizens to confess by word or act their faith therein.

West Virginia State Board of Education v. Barnett, 319 U.S. 642 [1943]

2 The first trial in history for crimes against the peace of the world imposes a grave responsibility. The wrongs which we seek to condemn and punish have been so calculated, so malignant and so devastating that civilization cannot tolerate their being ignored because it cannot survive their being repeated.

Opening address before the International Military Tribunal, Nuremberg [1945]

3 There is danger that, if the Court does not temper its doctrinaire logic with a little practical wisdom, it will convert the constitutional Bill of Rights into a suicide pact.

Terminiello v. Chicago, 337 U.S. 1, 37 [1949]

4 The day that this country ceases to be free for irreligion, it will cease to be free for religion.

Dissenting opinion, Zorach v. Clauson, 343 U.S. 306, 325 [1952]

and

Helen Merrell Lynd

1896–1982

5 It is characteristic of mankind to make as little adjustment as possible in customary ways in the face of new conditions; the process of social change is epitomized in the fact that the first Packard car body delivered to the manufacturer had a whipstock on the dashboard.

Middletown [1929], pt. VI, ch. 29

6 There with vast wings across the canceled skies,
There in the sudden blackness the black pall
Of nothing, nothing, nothing—nothing at all.

9 We were the first that found that famous country:

We marched by a king's name: we crossed the sierras:

Unknown hardships we suffered: hunger.

Conquistador [1932]. Bernal Díaz' Preface

10 She lies on her left side her flank golden:

Her hair is burned black with the strong sun.

The scent of her hair is of rain in the dust on her shoulders:

She has brown breasts and the mouth of no other country.

11 America was promises . . .

It was Man who had been promised.

America Was Promises [1939]

12 Races didn't bother the Americans. They were something a lot better than any race. They were a People. They were the first self-constituted, self-created People in the history of the world.

14 All I could see from where I stood

Was three long mountains and a wood.

Renascence [1912], l. 1

15 The world stands out on either side

No wider than the heart is wide;

Above the world is stretched the sky,—

No higher than the soul is high.

The heart can push the sea and land

Farther away on either hand;

The soul can split the sky in two,

And let the face of God shine through.

But East and West will pinch the heart

That can not keep them pushed apart;

And he whose soul is flat—the sky

Will cave in on him by and by.

Renascence, last lines

- 1 O world, I cannot hold thee close enough!
God's World [1917], st. 1
- 2 My candle burns at both ends;
 It will not last the night;
 But, ah, my foes, and, oh, my friends—
 It gives a lovely light.¹
A Few Figs from Thistles [1920]. First Fig
- 3 We were very tired, we were very merry—
 We had gone back and forth all night on the ferry.
A Few Figs from Thistles. Recuerdo
- 4 Whether or not we find what we are seeking
 Is idle, biologically speaking.
A Few Figs from Thistles. I Shall Forget You Presently, l. 13
- 5 Death devours all lovely things;
 Lesbia with her sparrow
 Shares the darkness—presently
 Every bed is narrow.
Passer Mortuus Est [1921], st. 1
- 6 I know I am but summer to your heart,
 And not the full four seasons of the year.
I Know I Am But Summer [1923], l. 1
- 7 I only know that summer sang in me
 A little while, that in me sings no more.
What Lips My Lips Have Kissed [1923], l. 13
- 8 Euclid alone
 Has looked on Beauty bare. Fortunate they
 Who, though once only and then but far away,
 Have heard her massive sandal set on stone.
Euclid Alone Has Looked on Beauty Bare [1923], l. 11
- 9 If ever I said, in grief or pride,
 I tired of honest things, I lied.
The Goose Girl [1923], l. 5
- 10 How strange a thing is death, bringing to his knees, bringing to his antlers
 The buck in the snow . . .
 Life, looking out attentive from the eyes of the doe.
The Buck in the Snow [1928]
- 11 I am not resigned to the shutting away of loving hearts in the hard ground.
 So it is, and so it will be, for so it has been, time out of mind:
 Into the darkness they go, the wise and the lovely.
 Crowned
 With lilies and with laurel they go; but I am not resigned.
Dirge Without Music [1928], st. 1

¹I burned my candle at both ends,/ And now have neither foes nor friends.—SAMUEL HOFFENSTEIN, Songs of Fairly Utter Despair, 8

- 12 Love is not all: it is not meat nor drink
 Nor slumber nor a roof against the rain;
 Nor yet a floating spar to men that sink.
Love Is Not All [1931], l. 1

Reinhold Niebuhr

1892–1971

- 13 God, give us grace to accept with serenity the things that cannot be changed, courage to change the things which should be changed, and the wisdom to distinguish the one from the other.
The Serenity Prayer [1943]
- 14 Goodness, armed with power, is corrupted; and pure love without power is destroyed.
Beyond Tragedy [1938]
- 15 The prophet himself stands under the judgment which he preaches. If he does not know that, he is a false prophet.
Beyond Tragedy
- 16 Humor is a prelude to faith and
 Laughter is the beginning of prayer.
Discerning the Signs of the Times [1949]
- 17 Nothing worth doing is completed in our lifetime; therefore, we must be saved by hope. Nothing true or beautiful or good makes complete sense in any immediate context of history; therefore, we must be saved by faith. Nothing we do, however virtuous, can be accomplished alone; therefore, we are saved by love.
The Irony of American History [1952]

Martin Niemoeller

1892–1984

- 18 In Germany they came first for the Communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me, and by that time no one was left to speak up.

19 He [the writer] must teach himself that the basest of all things is to be afraid; and, teaching himself that, forget it forever, leaving no room in his workshop for anything but the old verities and truths of the heart, the old universal truths lacking which any story is ephemeral and doomed—love and honor and pity and pride and compassion and sacrifice.

¹Representing, in context, the South.

- 1 He is immortal, not because he alone among creatures has an inexhaustible voice, but because he has a soul, a spirit capable of compassion and sacrifice and endurance.

Speech upon receiving the Nobel Prize

- 2 It is his [the poet's, the writer's] privilege to help man endure by lifting his heart, by reminding him of the courage and honor and hope and pride and compassion and pity and sacrifice which have been the glory of his past. The poet's voice need not merely be the record of man, it can be one of the props, the pillars to help him endure and prevail.

Speech upon receiving the Nobel Prize

- 3 The writer's only responsibility is to his art. He will be completely ruthless if he is a good one. . . . If a writer has to rob his mother, he will not hesitate; the "Ode on a Grecian Urn" is worth any number of old ladies.

From Writers at Work: The Paris Review Interviews [1959]

- 4 Really the writer doesn't want success. . . . He knows he has a short span of life, that the day will come when he must pass through the wall of oblivion, and he wants to leave a scratch on that wall—Kilroy was here—that somebody a hundred, or a thousand years later will see.

Alfred Hitchcock

8 The “MacGuffin” is the term we use to cover all that sort of thing: to steal plans or documents, or discover a secret, it doesn't matter what it is. And the logicians are wrong in trying to figure out the truth of a MacGuffin, since it's beside the point. The only thing that really matters is that in the picture the plans, documents, or secrets must seem to be of vital importance to the characters.

10 I decided it is better to scream. This pitiful sound, which sometimes, goodness knows how, reaches into the remotest prison cell, is a concentrated expression of the last vestige of human dignity. It is a man's way of leaving a trace, of telling people how he lived and died. By his screams he asserts his right to live, sends a message to the outside world demanding help and calling for resistance. If nothing else is left, one must scream. Silence is the real crime against humanity.

He was only two inches high; and he had a mouse’s sharp nose, a mouse’s tail, a mouse’s whiskers, and the pleasant, shy manner of a mouse. Before he was many days old he was not only looking like a mouse but acting like one, too—wearing a gray hat and carrying a small cane.

- 1 The main element of any United States policy toward the Soviet Union must be that of a long-term, patient but firm and vigilant containment of Russian expansive tendencies.

The Sources of Soviet Conduct, in Foreign Affairs [July 1947]

- 2 If we are to regard ourselves as a grown-up nation—and anything else will henceforth be mortally dangerous—then we must, as the Biblical phrase goes, put away childish things; and among these childish things the first to go, in my opinion, should be self-idealization and the search for absolutes in world affairs: for absolute security, absolute amity, absolute harmony.

Russia and the West under Lenin and Stalin [1961], ch. 25

- 3 There is no political or ideological difference between the Soviet Union and the United States—nothing which either side would like, or would hope, to achieve at the expense of the other—that would be worth the risks and sacrifices of a military encounter.

The Cloud of Danger [1977], ch. 11

- 10 It seems that the analysis of character is the highest human entertainment. And literature does it, unlike gossip, without mentioning real names.
Isaac Bashevis Singer Talks . . . About Everything, interview with Richard Burgin in the New York Times Magazine
- 11 There is a quiet humor in Yiddish and a gratitude for every day of life, every crumb of success, each encounter of love. . . . In a figurative way, Yiddish is the wise and humble language of us all, the idiom of a frightened and hopeful humanity.
Nobel lecture, Stockholm [December 8, 1978]
- 12 Children don’t read to find their identity. They don’t read to free themselves of guilt, to quench the thirst for rebellion, or to get rid of alienation. They have no use for psychology. They detest sociology. . . . They still believe in good, the family, angels, devils, witches, goblins, logic, clarity, punctuation and other such obsolete stuff.

4 Aristotle explicitly assures us that man, insofar as he is a natural being and belongs to the species of mankind, possesses immortality; through the recurrent cycle of life, nature assures the same kind of being-forever to things that are born and die as to things that are and do not change.

6 No punishment has ever possessed enough power of deterrence to prevent the commission of crimes. On the contrary, whatever the punishment, once a specific crime has appeared for the first time, its re-appearance is more likely than its initial emergence could have been.

Eichmann in Jerusalem: A Report on the Banality of Evil, epilogue

7 The hypocrite's crime is that he bears false witness against himself. What makes it so plausible to assume that hypocrisy is the vice of vices is that integrity can indeed exist under the cover of all other vices except this one. Only crime and the criminal, it is true, confront us with the perplexity of radical evil; but only the hypocrite is really rotten to the core.

The Dyer's Hand, I, Writing
- 14 Speaking for myself, the questions which interest me most when reading a poem are two. The first is technical: "Here is a verbal contraption. How does it work?" The second is, in the broadest sense, moral:
"What kind of a guy inhabits this poem? What is his notion of the good life or the good place? His notion of the Evil One? What does he conceal from the reader? What does he conceal even from himself?"
The Dyer's Hand, II, Making, Knowing and Judging
- 15 Whatever its actual content and overt interest, every poem is rooted in imaginative awe. Poetry can do a hundred and one things, delight, sadden, disturb, amuse, instruct—it may express every possible shade of emotion, and describe every conceivable kind of event, but there is only one thing that all poetry must do; it must praise all it can for being and for happening.

Judging*

1 The sea lies all about us. The commerce of all lands must cross it. The very winds that move over the lands have been cradled on its broad expanse and seek ever to return to it. The continents themselves dissolve and pass to the sea, in grain after grain of eroded land. So the rains that rose from it return again in rivers. In its mysterious past it encompasses all the dim origins of life and receives in the end, after, it may be, many transmutations, the dead husks of that same life. For all at last returns to the sea—to Oceanus, the ocean river, like the ever-flowing stream of time, the beginning and the end.

- 2 My secrets cry aloud.
I have no need for tongue.
My heart keeps open house,
My doors are widely flung.
Open House [1941], st. 1
- 3 This urge, wrestle, resurrection of dry sticks,
Cut stems struggling to put down feet,
What saint strained so much,
Rose on such lopped limbs to a new life?
Cuttings (later) [1948]
- 4 Nothing would sleep in that cellar.
Root Cellar [1948]
- 5 Nothing would give up life:
Even the dirt kept breathing a small breath.

- 6 Tugging all day at perverse life:
The indignity of it! Weed Puller [1948]
- 7 The whiskey on your breath
Could make a small boy dizzy;
But I hung on like death:
Such waltzing was not easy.
My Papa's Waltz [1948], st. 1
- 8 I study the lives on a leaf: the little Sleepers, numb nudgers in cold dimensions,

¹Never contradict. Never explain. Never apologize. (Those are the secrets of a happy life!)—JOHN ARBUTHNOT FISHER [1841–1920], Letter to The Times of London [September 5, 1919]

Beetles in caves, newts, stone-deaf fishes,
Lice tethered to long limp subterranean weeds,
Squirmers in bogs,
And bacterial creepers. The Minimal [1948]

- 9 At Woodlawn I heard the dead cry;
I was lulled by the slamming of iron,
A slow drip over stones,
Toads brooding in wells.
All the leaves stuck out their tongues;
I shook the softening chalk of my bones,
Saying,
Snail, snail, glister me forward,
Bird, soft-sigh me home.
Worm, be with me.
This is my hard time.
The Lost Son [1948], 1. The Flight
- 10 Fear was my father, Father Fear.
His look drained the stones.
The Lost Son, 3. The Gibber
- 11 A lively understandable spirit
Once entertained you.
It will come again.
Be still.
Wait. The Lost Son, 5. "It was beginning winter"
- 12 And the new plants, still awkward in their soil,
The lovely diminutives.
I could watch! I could watch!
I saw the separateness of all things!
A Field of Light [1948], III
- 13 I remember the neckcurls, limp and damp as tendrils,
And her quick look, a sidelong pickerel smile.
Elegy for Jane [1953]
- 14 I take this cadence from a man named Yeats;
I take it, and I give it back again.
Four for Sir John Davies [1953], I. The Dance
- 15 I wake to sleep, and take my waking slow.
I feel my fate in what I cannot fear.
I learn by going where I have to go.
The Waking [1953]
- 16 I knew a woman, lovely in her bones,
When small birds sighed, she would sigh back at them;
Ah, when she moved, she moved more ways than one:
The shapes a bright container can contain!
I Knew a Woman [1958]
- 17 Each one's himself yet each one's everyone.
The Sententious Man [1958], st. 6
- 18 When I was a lark, I sang;
When I was a worm, I devoured.
What Can I Tell My Bones? [1958]

- 1 I long for the imperishable quiet at the heart of form. The Longing [1964]
- 2 Old men should be explorers?¹
I'll be an Indian.

Always, in earth and air.
The Far Field [1964], III
- 4 In a dark time, the eye begins to see.
In a Dark Time [1964], st. 1
- 5 The soul has many motions, body one.
The Motion [1964], I
- 6 Love begets love. This torment is my joy.
The Motion, II
- 7 What's the worst portion in this mortal life?
A pensive mistress, and a yelping wife.
The Marrow [1964], I
- 8 Brooding on God, I may become a man.
Pain wanders through my bones like a lost fire;
What burns me now? Desire, desire, desire.
The Marrow, II
- 9 Lord, hear me out, and hear me out this day:
From me to Thee's a long and terrible way.
The Marrow, III
- 10 Now I adore my life
With the Bird, the abiding Leaf,
With the Fish, the questing Snail,
And the Eye altering all;
And I dance with William Blake
For love, for Love's sake.

and he is then no longer a thief.
The Human Comedy [1943], ch. 4

Victor [Frederick] Weisskopf

1908–

- 12 In man's brain the impressions from outside are not merely registered; they produce concepts and ideas. They are the imprint of the external world upon the human brain. Therefore, it is not surprising that, after a long period of searching and erring, some of the concepts and ideas in human thinking should have come gradually closer to the fundamental laws of this world, that some of our thinking should reveal the true structure of atoms and the true movements of the stars. Nature, in the form of man, begins to recognize itself.

Knowledge and Wonder [1962]

the delicate balance between social order and thirsty aspiration, shall send the skyscrapers in our cities toppling? Native Son, I
- 15 If we had been allowed to participate in the vital processes of America's national growth, what would have been the textures of our lives, the pattern of our traditions, the routine of our customs, the state of our arts, the code of our laws, the function of our government! . . . We black folk say that America would have been stronger and greater.

- 16 If I could do it, I'd do no writing at all here. It would be photographs; the rest would be fragments of cloth, bits of cotton, lumps of earth, records of speech, pieces of wood and iron, phials of odors, plates of food and of excrement. . . . A piece of the

Sir Isaiah Berlin

1909–1997

- 3 There exists a great chasm between those, on one side, who relate everything to a single, central vision, one system more or less coherent or articulate, in terms of which they understand, think and feel . . . and, on the other side, those who pursue many ends, often unrelated and even contradictory. . . . The first kind of intellectual and artistic personality belongs to the hedgehogs, the second to the foxes. . . . Dante belongs to the first category, Shakespeare to the second.

The Hedgehog and the Fox [1953], pt. 1¹

- 4 One belief, more than any other, is responsible for the slaughter of individuals on the altars of the great historical ideals. . . . This is the belief that somewhere, in the past or in the future, in divine revelation or in the mind of an individual thinker, in the pronouncements of history or science, or in the simple heart of an uncorrupted good man, there is a final solution. Two Concepts of Liberty [1958]

The Lonely Crowd [1950], ch. 1
- 15 The idea that men are created free and equal is both true and misleading: men are created different; they lose their social freedom and their individual autonomy in seeking to become like each other.
The Lonely Crowd, 18

Stephen Spender

1909–1995

- 16 I think continually of those who were truly great . . .
The names of those who in their lives fought for life,
Who wore at their hearts the fire's center.
Born of the sun they traveled a short while towards the sun,
And left the vivid air signed with their honor.
I Think Continually of Those

- 5 All they could see was sky, water, birds, light, and confluence. It was the whole morning world.

The Optimist's Daughter [1978]

- 6 Writing fiction has developed in me an abiding respect for the unknown in a human lifetime and a sense of where to look for the threads, how to follow, how to connect, find in the thick of the tangle what clear line persists. The strands are all there: to the memory nothing is ever really lost.

One Writer's Beginnings [1984]. Finding a Voice

- 3 The self-fulfilling prophecy is, in the beginning, a false definition of the situation evoking a new behavior which makes the originally false conception come true. The specious validity of the self-fulfilling prophecy perpetuates a reign of error. For the prophet will cite the actual course of events as proof that he was right from the very beginning.

1910–1998

- 4 In the dry places . . . towns, like weeds, spring up when it rains, dry up when it stops. But in a dry climate the husk of the plant remains. The stranger might find, as if preserved in amber, something of the green life that was once lived there, and the ghosts of men who have gone on to a better place.

Mr. Sammler's Planet [1970], pt. I

4 The idea of making the century's great crime look dull is not banal. Politically, psychologically, the Germans had an idea of genius. The banality was only camouflage. What better way to get the curse out of murder than to make it look ordinary, boring, or trite? . . . Banality is the adopted disguise of a very powerful will to abolish conscience.

women suffered in the middle of the twentieth century in the United States. Each suburban wife struggled with it alone. As she made the beds, shopped for groceries, matched slipcover material, ate peanut butter sandwiches with her children, chauffeured Cub Scouts and Brownies, lay beside her husband at night—she was afraid to ask even of herself the silent question—“Is this all?”

Love Calls Us to the Things of This World [1956]

1 The soul shrinks
 From all that it is about to remember,

 “Oh, let there be nothing on earth but laundry,
 Nothing but rosy hands in the rising steam
 And clear dances done in the sight of heaven.”
Love Calls Us to the Things of This World

2 Mind in its purest play is like some bat
 That beats about in caverns all alone,
 Contriving by a kind of senseless wit
 Not to conclude against a wall of stone.
 It has no need to falter or explore;
 Darkly it knows what obstacles are there,
 And so may weave and flutter, dip and soar
 In perfect courses through the blackest air.
 And has this simile a like perfection?
 The mind is like a bat. Precisely. Save
 That in the very happiest intellection
 A graceful error may correct the cave.

Mind [1956]

4 Ask us, prophet, how we shall call
 Our natures forth when that live tongue is all
 Dispelled, that glass obscured or broken

 And all we mean or wish to mean.

8 What you hope for
 Is that at some point of the pointless journey,

 And blow your brains out.

10 Black is beautiful when it is a slum kid studying to enter college, when it is a man learning new skills for a new job, or a slum mother battling to give her kids a chance for a better life. But white is beautiful, too, when it helps change society to make our system work for black people also. White is ugly when it oppresses blacks—and so is black ugly when black people exploit other blacks. No race has a monopoly on vice or virtue, and the worth of an individual is not related to the color of his skin.

 And danced the skies on laughter-silvered wings;
 Sunward I've climbed, and joined the tumbling

 Of sun-split clouds,—and done a hundred things
 You have not dreamed of—wheeled and soared and swung
 High in the sunlit silence. Hov'ring there,
 I've chased the shouting wind along, and flung
 My eager craft through footless halls of air . . .
- Up, up the long, delirious, burning blue
 I've topped the wind-swept heights with easy grace
 Where never lark nor ever eagle flew—
 And, while with silent lifting mind I've trod
 The high untrespassed sanctity of space,
 Put out my hand, and touched the face of God.

cooperation of scientists and technologists becomes more and more of a special and distinct intellectual community of friendship, in which, in place of an-tagonism, there is growing up a mutually advantageous sharing of work, a coordination of efforts, a common language for the exchange of information, and a solidarity, which are in many cases indepen-

I rise with my red hair
And I eat men like air.

Lady Lazarus, last stanza

- 12 The woman is perfected.

Her dead

Body wears the smile of accomplishment,
The illusion of a Greek necessity

Flows in the scrolls of her toga,
Her bare

Feet seem to be saying:

We have come so far, it is over.

- 15 I have always been scared of you,

With your Luftwaffe, your gobbledygoo.

And your neat mustache

And your Aryan eye, bright blue.

Panzer-man, panzer-man, O You—

Daddy, st. 9

- 16 Every woman adores a Fascist,

The boot in the face, the brute

Brute heart of a brute like you.

Daddy, st. 10

Signature song of FRANK SINATRA [1915–]. In November 1989 Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev announced (through a Foreign Ministry spokesman) that “the Sinatra Doctrine” had replaced the “Brezhnev Doctrine” for the east bloc nations: “Hungary and Poland are doing it their way.”

²Carmichael had used the phrase “Black power” in a speech in Greenwood, Mississippi [June 17, 1966].

To demand these God-given rights is to seek black power—what I call audacious power—the power to build black institutions of splendid achievement.—ADAM CLAYTON POWELL, JR. [1908–1972], Baccalaureate address at Howard University [May 29, 1966] See Langston Hughes, 763:1.

No curiosity about how they pass the eternal time besides circling the Throne chanting in Latin or delivering a crust of bread to a hermit on earth or guiding a boy and a girl across a rickety wooden bridge.

- 3 If we do discover a complete [unified] theory [of the universe], it should in time be understandable in broad principle by everyone, not just a few scientists. Then we shall all, philosophers, scientists, and just ordinary people, be able to take part in the discussion of the question of why it is that we and the universe exist. If we find the answer to that, it would be the ultimate triumph of human reason— for then we should know the mind of God.
A Brief History of Time [1988]. Conclusion

Erica Jong

1942–

- 4 The zipless fuck is absolutely pure. It is free of ulterior motives. There is no power game. The man is not “taking” and the woman is not “giving.” No one is attempting to cuckold a husband or humiliate a wife. No one is trying to prove anything or get anything out of anyone. The zipless fuck is the purest thing there is. And it is rarer than the unicorn.

Till she met a city feller,
And she lost her honest name. Song [c. 1915]

¹Often attributed, but without substantiation, to P. T. Barnum [1810–1891]; possibly derived from the line in a popular nineteenth-century song, "There's a new jay [meaning, rube or mark] born every day." —RALPH KEYES, Nice Guys Finish Seventh [1992].

²Variouly explained as a character who once lived on Campobello Island; a corruption of a phrase in Indian dialect; and a comparison with the worthlessness (for navigation) of a cook on board ship.

³"Mary is 24 years old. She is twice as old as Ann was when Mary was as old as Ann is now. How old is Ann?" —Brain teaser in the New York Press [October 16, 1903]

Answer: Ann is 18.

⁴There are variants for the less familiar last line, such as: And a silver sixpence in each shoe.

⁵Proverbial lore current in several variant forms, the most familiar and recent of which is: The opera ain't over till the fat lady sings. —DANIEL JOHN COOK [1926–], television newscast, San Antonio, Texas [April 1978]

⁶"Undoubtedly the most popular poem in the black vernacular. In this version of events, the sole survivor of the Titanic is a black menial referred to as Shine, who turns out to be a champion swimmer." —HENRY LOUIS GATES, JR., "Sudden Def," The New Yorker [June 19, 1995]

¹Sometimes "forty" or "thirty" is heard instead of "fifty." When Texas Guinan and her troupe were refused entry into France [1931], she was quoted as saying: "It goes to show that fifty million Frenchmen can be wrong." She promptly renamed her show Too Hot for Paris, and toured the United States with it.

²"One look is worth a thousand words." Fred R. Barnard, in Printers' Ink, 8 Dec., 1921, p. 96. He changed it to "One picture is worth a thousand words" in Printers' Ink, 10 March, 1927, p. 114, and called it "a Chinese proverb, so that people would take it seriously." — BURTON STEVENSON, ed., The Home Book of Proverbs, Maxims, and Familiar Phrases [1948]

³Frequently attributed to the DUCHESS OF WINDSOR and others. Tell a female she's thin and she's yours for life. — ANNE BERNAYS [1930–], Professor Romeo [1989]

⁴A popular aphorism with the architect Ludwig Mies van der Rohe and the art historian Aby Warburg; attributed [Le bon Dieu est dans le détail] to GUSTAVE FLAUBERT but without verification; possibly derived from seventeenth-century humanist CASPAR BARLAEUS [1584–1648] [God hides in the smallest pieces].

 Three bags full:
 One for my master,
 And one for my dame,

And one for the little boy
 Who lives down the lane. Baa, Baa, Black Sheep

11 Mary, Mary, quite contrary,
 How does your garden grow?
 With silver bells, and cockleshells,
 And pretty maids all in a row.
Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary

12 Oranges and lemons,
 Say the bells of St. Clement's.
 You owe me five farthings,
 Say the bells of St. Martin's.
 When will you pay me?
 Say the bells of Old Bailey.
 When I grow rich,
 Say the bells of Shoreditch. Oranges and Lemons

13 Here comes a candle to light you to bed,
 Here comes a chopper to chop off your head.
Oranges and Lemons

14 "Who killed Cock Robin?"
 "I," said the sparrow,
 "With my bow and arrow,
 I killed Cock Robin." Who Killed Cock Robin?

15 "Who saw him die?"
 "I," said the fly,
 "With my little eye,
 I saw him die." Who Killed Cock Robin?

16 This little pig went to market;
 This little pig stayed home;
 This little pig had roast beef;
 This little pig had none;
 And this little pig cried, Wee, wee, wee!
 All the way home. This Little Pig

17 Little boy blue, come blow your horn,
 The sheep's in the meadow, the cow's in the corn;
 But where is the boy who looks after the sheep?
 He's under the haystack fast asleep.
 Will you wake him? No, not I,
 For if I do, he'll be sure to cry. Little Boy Blue

18 Simple Simon met a pieman
 Going to the fair:
 Says Simple Simon to the pieman,
 "Let me taste your ware." Simple Simon

19 Ding dong bell,
 Pussy's in the well.
 Who put her in?
 Little Johnny Green. Ding Dong Bell

20 Little Tom Tucker
 Sings for his supper;
 What shall he eat?
 White bread and butter.

- How will he cut it
Without e'er a knife?
How will he be married
Without e'er a wife?
Little Tom Tucker
- 1 Crosspatch, draw the latch,
Set by the fire and spin:
Take a cup and drink it up,
Then call your neighbors in.
Crosspatch
- 2 High diddle diddle
The cat and the fiddle,
The cow jumped over the moon;
The little dog laughed
To see such craft
And the dish ran away with the spoon.
High Diddle Diddle
- 3 Three wise men of Gotham
Went to sea in a bowl:
And if the bowl had been stronger,
My song had been longer.
Three Wise Men of Gotham
- 4 Jack and Jill went up the hill
To fetch a pail of water;
Jack fell down and broke his crown,
And Jill came tumbling after.
Jack and Jill
- 5 Seesaw, Margery Daw,
Jacky shall have a new master;
Jacky must have but a penny a day,
Because he can work no faster.
Seesaw, Margery Daw
- 6 Taffy was a Welshman, Taffy was a thief;
Taffy came to my house and stole a piece of beef.
I went to Taffy's house, Taffy wasn't in;
Taffy came to my house and stole a silver pin.
I went to Taffy's house; Taffy wasn't home.
Taffy came to my house and stole a marrow bone.
I went to Taffy's house and Taffy was in bed;
So I picked up the poker and hit him in the head.
Taffy Was a Welshman
- 7 The Queen of Hearts
She made some tarts,
All on a summer's day;
The Knave of Hearts
He stole the tarts,
And took them clean away.
The Queen of Hearts
- 8 Bye baby bunting,
Daddy's gone a-hunting.
Gone to get a rabbit skin
To wrap the baby bunting in.
Bye Baby Bunting
- 9 Come, let's to bed,
Says Sleepyhead;
Tarry awhile, says Slow;
- Put on the pot,
Says Greedy-gut,
We'll sup before we go.
Let's to Bed
- 10 Four and twenty tailors went to kill a snail,
The best man among them durst not touch her tail.
She put out her horns like a little Kyloe cow,
Run, tailors, run, or she'll kill you all e'en now.
Four and Twenty Tailors
- 11 Goosey goosey gander,
Whither shall I wander?
Upstairs and downstairs,
And in my lady's chamber;
There I met an old man who wouldn't say his prayers;
I took him by the left leg
And threw him down the stairs.
Goosey Goosey Gander
- 12 Sing a song of sixpence,
A pocket full of rye,
Four and twenty blackbirds,
Baked in a pie;
When the pie was opened,
The birds began to sing;
Wasn't that a dainty dish
To set before a king?

The king was in his countinghouse
Counting out his money;
The queen was in the parlor
Eating bread and honey;
The maid was in the garden
Hanging out the clothes,
Along came a blackbird,
And snipped off her nose.
Sing a Song of Sixpence
- 13 There was an old woman who lived in a shoe,
She had so many children she didn't know what to do;
She gave them some broth without any bread,
She whipped them all soundly and put them to bed.
There Was an Old Woman
- 14 Ride a cockhorse to Banbury Cross,
To see a fine lady upon a white horse;
Rings on her fingers and bells on her toes,
She shall have music wherever she goes.
Ride a Cockhorse
- 15 Tom, Tom, the piper's son,
He learned to play when he was young.
But all the tune that he could play
Was "Over the hills and far away."
Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son
- 16 Tom, Tom, the piper's son,
Stole a pig, and away he run;

The pig was eat, and Tom was beat,
And Tom went howling down the street.

Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son

1 "Where are you going to, my pretty maid?"

"I'm going a-milking, sir," she said.

Where Are You Going To, My Pretty Maid?

2 "My face is my fortune, sir," she said.

Where Are You Going To, My Pretty Maid?

3 "Nobody asked you, sir," she said.

Where Are You Going To, My Pretty Maid?

6 Curlylocks, Curlylocks,
Wilt thou be mine?
Thou shalt not wash dishes
Nor yet feed the swine,
But sit on a cushion
And sew a fine seam,
And feed upon strawberries,
Sugar and cream.

Curlylocks

7 I had a little nut tree, nothing would it bear
But a silver nutmeg and a golden pear;
The king of Spain's daughter came to visit me,
And all for the sake of my little nut tree.

I Had a Little Nut Tree

8 Humpty Dumpty sat on a wall,
Humpty Dumpty had a great fall;
All the king's horses
And all the king's men
Couldn't put Humpty Dumpty together again.

9 Little Bo-peep has lost her sheep,
And cannot tell where to find them;
Leave them alone, and they'll come home,
And bring their tails behind them.

Little Bo-peep

10 Little Polly Flinders
Sat among the cinders,
Warming her pretty little toes.
Her mother came and caught her,
And whipped her little daughter
For spoiling her nice new clothes.

Little Polly Flinders

11 There was an old woman tossed in a blanket,
Seventeen times as high as the moon;
But where she was going no mortal could tell,
For under her arm she carried a broom.

Old woman, old woman, old woman, said I,
Whither, ah whither, ah whither so high?
To sweep the cobwebs from the sky,
And I'll be with you by and by.

There Was an Old Woman

12 The north wind doth blow,
And we shall have snow,
And what will poor robin do then,
Poor thing? He'll sit in a barn,
To keep himself warm,
And hide his head under his wing,
Poor thing!

The North Wind Doth Blow

13 Old mother Hubbard
Went to the cupboard,
To fetch her poor dog a bone;
But when she came there
The cupboard was bare,
And so the poor dog had none.

Old Mother Hubbard

14 Pussy cat, pussy cat, where have you been?
I've been to London to look at the queen.
Pussy cat, pussy cat, what did you there?
I frightened a little mouse under the chair.

Pussy Cat

15 Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers;
A peck of pickled peppers Peter Piper picked.
If Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers, Where's the peck of pickled peppers Peter Piper picked?

Peter Piper

16 Monday's child is fair of face,
Tuesday's child is full of grace,
Wednesday's child is full of woe,
Thursday's child has far to go,
Friday's child is loving and giving,
Saturday's child has to work for its living,
But a child that's born on the Sabbath day
Is fair and wise and good and gay.

Monday's Child Is Fair of Face

Snips and snails, and puppy dogs' tails;
That's what little boys are made of.

What Are Little Boys Made Of?

1 What are little girls made of?
Sugar and spice, and everything nice;
That's what little girls are made of.

What Are Little Girls Made Of?

2 Hickety pickety, my black hen,
She lays eggs for gentlemen.
Gentlemen come every day
To see what my black hen doth lay.

*Hickety Pickety*¹

3 Little Miss Muffet
Sat on a tuffet,
Eating some curds and whey.
Along came a spider,
And sat down beside her,
And frightened Miss Muffet away.

5 Jack, be nimble,
Jack, be quick,
Jack, jump over the candlestick.

Jack Be Nimble

6 There was a crooked man, and he went a crooked mile,
He found a crooked sixpence against a crooked
stile;
He bought a crooked cat, which caught a crooked
mouse,
And they all lived together in a little crooked house.

There Was a Crooked Man

7 Diddle diddle dumpling, my son John,
He went to bed with his stockings on;
One shoe off, one shoe on;
Diddle diddle dumpling, my son John.

Diddle Diddle Dumpling

8 Rub-a-dub-dub,
Three men in a tub,
And who do you think they be?
The butcher, the baker,
The candlestick-maker;
And all of them went to sea!

Rub-a-Dub-Dub

9 I saw three ships come sailing by,
Come sailing by, come sailing by,
I saw three ships come sailing by,
On New Year's Day in the morning.

11 Lucy Locket lost her pocket,
Kitty Fisher found it;
There was not a penny in it,
But a ribbon round it.

Lucy Locket

12 There were three jolly huntsmen,
As I have heard them say,
And they would go a-hunting
Upon St. David's Day.

There Were Three Jolly Huntsmen

13 All day they hunted,
And nothing did they find,
But a ship a-sailing,
A-sailing with the wind.

There Were Three Jolly Huntsmen

14 O do you know the muffin man,
The muffin man, the muffin man,
O do you know the muffin man,
That lives in Drury Lane?

The Muffin Man

In a shower of rain;
He stepped in a puddle, up to his middle,
And never went there again.

Doctor Foster

17 There was an old woman
Lived under a hill;
And if she's not gone,
She lives there still.

There Was an Old Woman

18 There was a little man, and he had a little gun,
And his bullets were made of lead, lead, lead;
He went to the brook, and saw a little duck,
And shot it through the head, head, head.

There Was a Little Man

19 Lavender's blue, dilly dilly, lavender's green;
When I am king, dilly dilly, you shall be queen.

Lavender's Blue

20 A dillar, a dollar,
A ten o'clock scholar,
What makes you come so soon?
You used to come at ten o'clock,
And now you come at noon.

A Dillar, a Dollar

One flew over the cuckoo's nest.

One Flew East

22 I had a little pony,
His name was Dapple Gray;
I lent him to a lady

¹Higgledy-piggledy my white hen,/She lays eggs for gentlemen;/She cannot be persuaded by gun or lariat/To come across for the proletariat.—DOROTHY PARKER

To ride a mile away.
 She whipped him, she slashed him,
 She rode him through the mire;
 I would not lend my pony now
 For all the lady's hire. I Had a Little Pony

1 Polly, put the kettle on,
 We'll all have tea. Polly, Put the Kettle On, st. 1

2 Sukey, take it off again,
 They've all gone away.

7 When good King Arthur ruled this land,
 He was a goodly king,
 He bought three pecks of barley meal,
 To make a bag pudding. Good King Arthur

8 One misty, moisty morning,
 When cloudy was the weather,
 I chanced to meet an old man
 Clothed all in leather;
 He began to compliment,
 And I began to grin —
 "How do you do?" and "How do you do?"
 And "How do you do?" again!
One Misty, Moisty Morning

9 Bobby Shaftoe's gone to sea,
 Silver buckles on his knee;
 He'll come back and marry me,
 Pretty Bobby Shaftoe. Bobby Shaftoe

 And he was wondrous wise;
 He jumped into a bramble bush
 And scratched out both his eyes.
There Was a Man in Our Town

14 There were two blackbirds,
 Sitting on a hill,
 The one named Jack,
 The other named Jill;
 Fly away, Jack! Fly away, Jill!
 Come again, Jack! Come again, Jill!
Two Blackbirds

15 This is the farmer sowing the corn,
 That kept the cock that crowed in the morn,
 That waked the priest all shaven and shorn,
 That married the man all tattered and torn,
 That kissed the maiden all forlorn,
 That milked the cow with the crumpled horn,
 That tossed the dog
 That worried the cat
 That killed the rat
 That ate the malt
 That lay in the house that Jack built.
