The Elephant Joke

Complete the phrasal verbs, using the prepositions above.

An elephant walks 1 a restaurant, sits 2 at a table near the window and says to the waiter, "Good morning, could I have a cup of coffee, please?"

The waiter is amazed. "What's wrong?" the elephant asks, "You look like you've seen a ghost".

"I'm sorry. I've never heard an elephant talking before, and you speak perfect English."

"I'm afraid we've run 5 of coffee, Sir, but how about a nice cup of tea?"

"Tea?" says the elephant "Yes, that'll be fine."

So the waiter goes into the kitchen and tells the manager that there is an Indian elephant sitting by the window, who wants a cup of tea. "OK," says the manager, "We'd better give him some tea, then."

The waiter goes 6 to the elephant and says, "Here's your tea, Sir, and here's your bill for £3.50."

The elephant says "Thank you," picks up the cup with his trunk, and starts drinking. But a few moments later, the elephant throws the cup and the tray 7the floor and starts shouting.

The waiter is terrified, and says, "What's wrong, Sir?"

"It's this tea," the elephant says, "you put milk in it. Don't you know ANYTHING about elephants? We NEVER put milk in our tea!"

"I'm really sorry," the waiter says, "I didn't realise. It's just that we don't come 8 many elephants in this part of the world."

"That's not surprising," the elephant says, "£3.50 for a cup of tea is much too expensive!"

Picture Connections

Match A and B to make C. Connect a picture from the first column with a picture from the second column to make a compound noun which you find in the third column. For example, sea + horse = seahorse. Write the compound noun next to the picture in the third column.

- k) She's been burning the candle at both ends.

Mind Matching 1

Instructions for the teacher

- 1 Photocopy the chart below so that there is one for each person in the class.
- 2 Divide the class into two teams. Each team should nominate someone from their group to be the 'player'. The two players must go to the front of the class, so that they are facing their teams.
- 3 Give one of the photocopied charts to everyone, including the two players at the front of the class. Ask everyone to complete the first three squares on their chart. The students must not talk to each other or show anyone what they have written.
- 4 When everyone has finished writing, read out the first question. The two players should then read out their answers to the first question.

- 5 Everyone from both teams must then read out their answer to the first question. Teams score one point for each person who has the same answer as their team player. (To prevent cheating, move around the class and check what the students have written on their charts.)
- 6 Read out the second question and repeat the process. When you have heard all of the answers for the first three questions, ask the students to write down their answers to the next three, and continue the game. The team with the most points wins.

Alternative

For a smaller class, play as one team, with one player. Each person scores one point for every answer that matches the player's answer. The winner is the student with the most points at the end of the game.

Carla goes on Holiday

Carla go∈s on Holiday

Instructions for the teacher

This game should be played in small groups. Photocopy the 28 pictures from the opposite page and the 28 sentences cards below, so that there is one set of pictures and sentences for each group. Before you hand out the cards, make sure that each set has been shuffled. The students must work together to put the pictures in the correct sequence and then put the correct sentence card with each picture.

Follow up

Take away the sentences, leaving just the cartoon sequence. The students have to remember the phrasal verbs that go with each picture. (For more advanced groups, ask the students to repeat whole sentences.) One student from each group is allowed to look at the sentences. He / she can tell the other students whether their quesses are correct or incorrect, but must not give clues. The winning group is the first to repeat the story (or phrasal verb sequence) correctly without the sentence cards.

PEOPLE, ANIMALS AND OBJECTS

Board Game 1

Instructions for the teacher

Divide the class into groups of four. Each group will need:

- one copy of the board on pages 74 & 75
- one set of idiom cards
- one set of phrasal verb cards
- a die
- a counter for each player

Rules of the game

Player 1 must role the die and move his / her counter the corresponding number of spaces along the board. If the space that they land on has instructions, such as 'Go forward 3' they must do as the instructions say. If they land on a square that says 'phrasal verbs' or 'idioms', another player must pick up a card from the appropriate pile and read out the question on it. If player 1 gives the correct answer, they may role the die again and have another go. If player 1 gives the wrong answer, play passes to the next person. The winner is the first person to get around the board, from beginning to end.

The Traveller

Look at the pictures below. What do the people look like?
How long do you think they have been travelling?
What places do you think they have travelled to?
What do you think their lives are like?

The Traveller

Student A

Imagine you are one of the people in the pictures. You meet Student B for the first time. He / she is very interested in your life and asks you lots of questions. You are happy to talk about your life. Before you start, think of the following:

- your childhood / family background
- how you ended up travelling
- whether you enjoy your life or not
- what kind of person you are
- your daily life
- the people you've met and experiences you've had

Student B

Imagine you meet one of the people in the pictures (Student A). You are very interested in the kind of life he / she has led. You have lots of questions to ask him / her. Read through the questions and make sure you understand them fully.

- 1 Where do you come from?
- 2 Where did you grow up?
- 3 How did you end up here?
- 4 Did you fall out with your family?
- 5 What have you found out about yourself by living on the road?
- 6 If I wanted to live the same life as you, would you try and put me off?
- 7 Do you come across strange people on the road?
- 8 Do you find it difficult to get on with other people? Do you find it difficult to fit in?

- 9 How do you get by?
- 10 What do people make of you? Do they look down on you?
- 11 What sort of things do you have to do without?
- 12 Has anyone ever put you up in their home for a night?
- 13 What are the good things about living on the road? And what are the drawbacks?
- 14 Do you feel free because there's nobody to tell you off or order you about, or do you feel cut off from society in some way?
- 15 Can you take me through a typical day? How do you spend your time?

Picture Interviews

Student A

Instructions for the teacher

Photocopy the illustrated list of phrasal verbs and go through them with their meanings with the students. The students should keep their lists to refer to during the game.

Divide the class into small groups. Give each group a pile of mime cards which they must place face down. The students must take it in turns to pick up a card and mime the situation on it. Before the students begin their mimes, they must read out the first sentence on the card, which tells the rest of the group what information they are looking for, e.g. You are looking for a place and a phrasal verb. The others must guess what is being mimed. This version of the game is just for fun and there is no scoring involved.

Alternative

Divide the class into two teams. Ask a student from Team A to come to the front, pick up a card and mime the situation. Students from both teams can try to guess what is being mimed. The first student to guess correctly scores a point for their team. A student from Team B must then do a mime. The game continues until all of the cards have been used.

Note: Some of the mimes are for two people. When two people are needed, it is indicated on the card.

Hotel Magnifico

Student B

The manager of the Hotel Magnifico received a letter from a customer who wasn't satisfied with her holiday. He replied to the letter. Use these phrasal verbs with run to complete the letter.

up • through • over • out of • away • down • into

Dear Mrs Lott,

Thank you for your letter. It is very rare that we get letters from people who want to run (1) our hotel, so we would like to run (2) the points you raised one by one.

It is true that a man ran into your husband at the airport, but there is a very simple explanation for this - you'd picked up the wrong suitcase from the carousel. He had your bag and you had his. He was just trying to help you out. So I'm afraid that we will be unable to pay any medical bills that you run (3)

You say that some of the buildings near your hotel were run down. You should have read the guidebook. These buildings are, in fact, some of the most famous ancient monuments on the planet. They are 3,500 years old.

You say that several cars were driving on the wrong side of the road. I'd like to point out that we drive on the RIGHT in this country, unlike you in Britain. The reason why you nearly ran (4) a pedestrian was that you were driving on the LEFT.

You can run (5) problems if you try to make up sentences in a foreign language without knowing any grammar. You looked up some of our words in your pocket dictionary but did you understand exactly what they meant?

You wanted to say, 'I am sick of the food you are serving us' but what you actually said was, 'I have a highly contagious disease picked up from the food you are throwing at me.' So, it's hardly surprising that my staff ran (6) Can I suggest you get a better dictionary next time you come to see us?

As for the complimentary salad, we hadn't run (7) green salad. It appears you ate the pot pourri.

Yours sincerely

John Rich Manager - The Hotel Magnifico

Board Game 2

Instructions for the teacher

Divide the class into groups of four. Each group will need:

- one copy of the board on pages 74 & 75
- one set of idiom cards
- one set of phrasal verb cards
- a die
- a counter for each player

Rules of the game

Player 1 must role the die and move his / her counter the corresponding number of spaces along the board. If the space that they land on has instructions, such as 'Go forward 3' they must do as the instructions say. If they land on a square that says 'phrasal verbs' or 'idioms', another player must pick up a card from the appropriate pile and read out the question on it. If player 1 gives the correct answer, they may role the die again and have another go. If player 1 gives the wrong answer, play passes to the next person. The winner is the first person to get around the board, from beginning to end.

True Stories?

- a) Look at the stories and facts below. For each of the numbers 1 to 13 you have to decide if the information is true or false. Choosing the correct definition for the phrasal verb in the box will help you do this!
- Two groups of scientists working for the Du Pont Chemical Company claimed that they had come up with the idea for a new material first.

 There was an argument about who should be credited with the discovery and neither the scientists in New York nor the scientists in London would back down. To make sure that the two groups didn't fall out, the Du Pont Company reached a compromise and called the new material NY (for New York) + LON (for London), or NYLON.

True (no longer keep to your position in an argument)

False (do as promised)

If you feel that you're having problems picking up English, then don't despair! Although English has more words in it than any other language (it is made up of approximately a million different words) most English people get by using only 1 per cent of the words available.

True (just manage)

True (just bought)
False (not have any left)

False (struggle)

When Adelaide Simpson moved into the White House in 1871 (he was the first President to live there) he wanted the house painted in the three colours of the American flag, (red, white and blue). However, when the builders turned up they told the President that the local shops in Washington had run out of red and blue paint and they only had white paint left in stock. So the President reluctantly gave in and had the whole building painted white, and within a few days the President's official residence became known as the "White House".

- b) All of the stories contain more phrasal verbs. How many phrasal verbs can you find?
- c) How many of the phrasal verbs can you replace with other verbs? For example in number 2, If you are having problems picking up English changes to If you are having problems learning English.
 - A farmer decided to sell his horse. The new owner, a businessman, wanted to give the horse a different name and he asked the farmer if he could come up with any ideas. "Well, I gave up trying to train this horse a long time ago," the farmer said, "This is a horse that makes you so angry that some days you feel like you want to murder it, so why don't you call the horse 'murder', that would be just right." The businessman decided that "murder" was not a very suitable name for a horse, so he turned the word around and called the horse "Red Rum" which is "muR-deR" spelt backwards. In the 1980s, Red Rum became the only horse to win Britain's most important race, the Grand National, three times.

True (think of)
False (leave)

When the Michigan Toy Company brought out their first toy bears in 1906, they named them after the American President Theodore (or Teddy for short) Roosevelt. The President had famously turned down an invitation to go bear-hunting because he thought it was a cruel sport. "I'm a friend of all the bears in all the woods of America," he said. And that's why toy bears are known as "teddy bears" or "teddies".

True (refuse, reject) False (accept)

People in Europe and the USA now polish off about 20 times as much sugar and at least 5 times as much fat as they did in 1800. This may be why the number of people with heart disease has gone up so dramatically in western countries.

False (buy)

True Stories?

In 1876 a group of boys were playing football at a school called Rugby in central England. One of the boys, 16-year-old William Webb Ellis, picked the ball up and ran with it across the pitch. Over the next few weeks this new tactic caught on among the boys and that's how rugby was born.

True (become popular)

False (discover)

Policewoman Jenny Paterson got a message on her police radio and spent the afternoon of 7th March 2001 looking into the theft of a saxophone from a school. Although it wasn't a serious crime, she didn't want the thieves to get away with it. When she got back to the police station she had to put up with a lot of teasing from her colleagues. The thief had actually stolen a fax and phone from the school. "There was a lot of noise in the street when I took the message," Officer Paterson said "and I couldn't make out what the station were saying to me. It was an easy mistake to make."

True (see or hear clearly)

False (pretend)

The inventor Alexander Graham Bell made the first telephone call in 1832 when he connected a phone in his office to a second phone in his kitchen. When he finally got through to his wife in the kitchen he told her, "I'm fed up with salads and I'm not going to eat them any more. If I eat one more piece of lettuce I'll turn into more piece of lettuce I'll turn into a rabbit." Unsurprisingly, his wife hung up on him and they split up a few months later.

True (have an argument) of False (end a phone conversation)

The Beatles, the world's most successful pop group, were turned down by the first four record companies they approached. The record companies said that guitar music wouldn't take off with young people.

True (become popular)

False (lose popularity)

In 1782, the King of England (George III) found out that every morning, the Queen slipped out of the back door of Buckingham Palace and met her lover in Green Park, just 100 metres away. On her walk through the park the Queen would stop and pick flowers for her lover. The King couldn't get over it and he was mad with jealousy. The King ordered that all the flowers in Green Park should be pulled up and thrown away and he told his gardeners never to plant any more flowers in Green Park from that moment on. Two hundred years later, the tradition still lives on and Green Park is the only major park in London without any flowers.

True (accept)
False (believe)

The steel used to build the first railway system in Russia was made in an area of south London called Vauxhall. The steel was transported from London to Moscow in large crates with the word "Vauxhall" on the side and the word was soon picked up by the Russian workmen who were putting down the track. In time, "Vauxhall" caught on as part of the general language and that's why "vokzál" is the Russian word for

True (learn without much effort)

The modern name for the highest mountain in the world, Mount Everest, comes from a joke made by a Canadian explorer called Francis Guillardot who made one of the first attempts to climb Everest in 1911. Previously, the mountain was known as K-21. A few hours before Guillardot set off on his 8,836-metre climb, a young newspaper journalist asked him: "What will be the first thing you do, Sir, when you get to the top of this great mountain?" Guillardot smiled and said: "Have a rest." K-21 became known as the "Have a rest" mountain and, over time, "Have a rest" turned into "Everest", the name we use today.

What your answers mean:

Mainly sweet things

You're generous and sociable, the life and soul of the party. You get on well with people from all walks of life and a job that involves contact with people would be right up your street. You want to change the world and be the centre of attention. Think of a career as: an actor, a tour guide, a television presenter, a flight attendant, a politician, a goalkeeper.

Mainly fruit

You want a job with loads of responsibility. You're cautious and sensible and don't like taking risks. You look before you leap and never put all your eggs in one basket. Careful planning will help you weather a storm. You don't like to rock the boat, you want to know where you stand. These jobs would suit you perfectly: a doctor, a judge, a traffic warden, a bank manager, a book-keeper.

You like the simple life, nothing too strenuous. A regular 9-5 job would suit you down to the ground. You don't really like planning ahead, you play it by ear and go with the flow. You take things one day at a time, and although you get on well with people you keep yourself to yourself and don't mind working alone. So, think about a job as: an athlete, a painter, a lighthouse keeper, a zookeeper, a beekeeper.

The Perfect Job

Go through the maze from the start to the finish by joining up the words or phrases that complete these sentences. If you join them up correctly, you will find the right answer to the question at the end. Take the letters in each square to find the answer. You can go left ←, right → or down ↓.

CLOWNS INTERNATIONAL

Have you ever noticed how every clown looks different, with his or her own unique look and costume? Well, there's a reason for this. Welcome to the world of Clowns International.

In 1947, a man called Stan Bult 1 an organisation called 'The International Circus Clowns Club', later known as "Clowns International".

"What we 2	to do in those early days,"
Burt said, "was to bring the worl	d community of clowns together in some way, so that performers fro	om different countries could share experiences with each other, swa	p stories and keep up to date with what was 3	in the clown world.

But we soon discovered that when clowns got together to talk about their profession there was one problem that kept on 4, and that was how angry performer got when other clowns copied their 'slap' and 'motley' (the clown words for 'make-up' and 'costume').

"It's a complete rip-off," one clown said "Every time I come up with a new design for my 'motley' or a different way of 5 my 'slap', someone steals the idea from right under my nose and does exactly the same thing as me."

But how could a clown copyright his or her look? How could you stop two clowns looking the same?

The story of Pocahontas and the English

400 years ago, hundreds of British people boarded ships in the western English ports of Plymouth and Bristol and 1 off on a 5000 km journey across the Atlantic Ocean to start a new life on the east coast of America, the area we now call Virginia.

The people who took this journey had different reasons for leaving Britain. Some were fleeing from religious persecution, some were evangelists hoping to convert the Native Americans to Christianity, others had heard of the extraordinary natural resources of the New World (gold, silver, sugar, jewels) and were hoping to make their fortune.

Question: In an age before newspapers, television, photographs and the Internet, what do you think people imagined the New World of the Americas would be like? Remember at this time many people thought that the world was flat and that if you travelled too far you would fall off the edge.

The building of Jamestown began just hours after the first colonists arrived. There was no time to lose because the early settlers had travelled in the autumn and they knew that when winter 3 in they would effectively be cut off from the outside world.

To get wood and other resources for their houses, the settlers moved onto the lands that Native American tribes lived on, and it wasn't long before there were violent clashes between the two groups.

Question: How do you think the Native Americans felt when they saw the newcomers beginning to build Jamestown on the land they lived on?

It was near Jamestown, in 1607, that Pocahontas, the 12-year-old daughter of the leader of the Algonquin tribes of Indians, first came across the settlers from Europe.

Despite the fighting, she decided to go into Jamestown and bring the colonists food. The settlers were so taken

Pocahontas

Soon after Pocahontas had made her first contact with the settlers, the Algonquians captured a colonist called John Smith. While they were deciding whether he should be killed, Pocahontas stood in front of Smith and put her head on his shoulder. She was saying that the Indians should spare his life, even though he was their enemy. Touched by her actions, they agreed to set him free, and Pocahontas now decided she should act as a kind of bridge between the two communities, even though it would put her in real danger.

Questions: What kind of arguments do you imagine Pocahontas used to try and bring the two communities together? What do you think she said to her father, Chief Powhatan? What do you think she said to the settlers?

In 1608, there was more fighting, and the colonists held several Native Americans prisoner in Jamestown. When Pocahontas heard about this, she 13 up a meeting between her father and the settlers and encouraged the two sides to make peace. After hours of discussion the prisoners were set free.

But the peace didn't last long and a year later, in 1609, a full-scale war 14 out. The war would last for five years. There was nothing Pocahontas could do and she lost contact with many of her settler friends. And then, in 1613, things went from bad to worse.

Pocahontas was kidnapped by the colonists. Chief Powhatan was told that the only way he could get his daughter back was to end the war but he refused to give in to this blackmail and the fighting continued. Question: Was Chief Powhatan right to keep on fighting? Should he have made peace in order to get his daughter back?

She took a new name, Rebecca, and because of her marriage, she was now free to see her father and family again. Somehow, finally, she managed to get the two sides to stop fighting.

Soon after, Pocahontas gave birth to a son, Thomas. In 1616, her husband decided to return to England and he persuaded her to go with him.

Questions: How do you think the marriage between the daughter of Chief Powhatan and one of the settlers changed the relationship between the Indians and the colonists? What do you think Pocahontas 17 of England?

In March 1617, a few months after she arrived in England, Pocahontas fell ill. She decided to go back to America and boarded a ship bound for Virginia but before the boat had reached the open sea, a doctor told her she was too sick to travel. She got off the boat and died a few days later, in a village 30 kilometres from London. She was just 22.

Question: What can we learn from the life of Pocahontas?

Relationship Questionnaire

Work in pairs. Discuss each question with your partner and choose one of the three options a, b or c. Then see page 63 to find out what kind of boyfriend / girlfriend you are!

- a) laugh it off saying, "It's no big deal. Let's forget about it. Maybe I got the time wrong anyway."
- b) explain that you feel let down and ask him / her to try and be more considerate next time
- c) slam down the phone and refuse to see him / her again

- a) cut out chocolates straight away and start eating salads
- b) agree to cut down a little but still eat chocolate when you feel like it
- c) tell him / her it's none of their business what you eat, go to the fridge and pig out on your favourite biscuits and cakes
- Your boyfriend / girlfriend has picked up some really embarrassing habits from his / her friends, like belching after meals and sniffing loudly while you are talking. What do you do?
 - a) smile and say that belching and sniffing and natural things to do
 - b) bite your tongue in public but take him / her quietly to one side and explain that they should have better manners
 - c) blow your top and tell him / her that if you wanted to date a monkey you'd go to the zoo

- Your boyfriend / girlfriend is always putting you down in front of his / her friends. What do you do?
 - a) put on a front and pretend that you don't care, even if it's really getting to you
 - b) grit your teeth in public but ask him / her to talk it over with you next time you're alone
 - c) give as good as you get and spill the beans about all his bad habits
- Your boyfriend / girlfriend spends money like it's going out of fashion but always claims to be hard up. Now he / she wants to borrow money off you. What do you do?
 - a) lend him / her the money happily, no questions asked
 - b) lend him / her the money but ask them to pay you back before the end of the week
 - c) turn him / her down and tell them to go and sponge off someone else

 - c) find them a pain in the neck and try to get out of seeing them again

Relationship Questionnaire

- What do you usually do when you have an argument with your boyfriend / girlfriend?
 - a) give in, throw in the towel and go along with what he / she wants to do
 - b) try to see both sides of the argument and come up with a compromise
 - c) stick to your guns, stand your ground and never give an inch
- Your boyfriend / girlfriend gives you a present you really hate. What do you do?
 - a) tell him / her a white lie and say, "It's wonderful – just what I wanted."
 - b) come clean and explain why you don't like the gift
 - c) hit the roof and throw the present back in his / her face

What do your answers say about you?

Mostly As

You are loyal and supportive. You'll stick with someone through thick and thin. But be careful. Sometimes your good nature lets people think they can just walk all over you. Your boyfriend / girlfriend can wrap you round their little finger and get away with murder. Don't let him / her push you around. Sometimes you might need to stand up for yourself a bit more. It's time to stop being a doormat!

Mostly Bs

You're cautious and thoughtful and believe in give and take. You always give your partner the benefit of the doubt but you won't be pushed around. You like to look before you leap and never jump to conclusions. You are cool, calm and collected and prefer to think through the issues involved rather than just blowing your top and losing your rag. Once you trust someone you stick with them through thick and thin. But if someone lets you down, you won't give them a second chance.

Mostly Cs

You are hot-headed and impulsive and fly off the handle much too quickly. Calm down. Try not to lose your rag so quickly. For you, everything has to be cut and dried and there are no grey areas. You always see things in black and white. You won't give people a second chance and you always want to have things your own way. Just remember, good relationships are built on give and take. Try to be more tolerant and understanding.

Match the definitions with the idioms taken from the analyses:

- 1 to lose your temper
- 2 to consider all the alternatives before making a decision
- 3 in all situations, good and bad
- 4 sharing
- 5 to characterise everyone and everything as either good or bad, with nothing in between
- 6 things that are neither completely good nor completely bad
- 7 to treat someone badly, as if they mean very little to you
- 8 to defend your rights as a person
- 9 to have a strong influence on someone so that they do whatever you want
- 10 to behave badly but not be blamed
- 11 controlled, rational and sensible
- 12 to assume that someone has the best intentions, even though you can't be sure that is the case

- a) to stand up for yourself
- b) grey areas
- c) to give someone the benefit of the doubt
- d) cool, calm and collected
- e) to see things in black and white
- f) through thick and thin
- g) to wrap someone round your little finger
- h) to blow your top
- i) to look before you leap
- j) give and take
- k) to walk all over someone
- I) to get away with murder

Instructions for the teacher

- 1 Photocopy the chart below so that there is one for each person in the class.
- 2 Divide the class into two teams. Each team should nominate someone from their group to be the 'player'. The two players must go to the front of the class, so that they are facing their teams.
- 3 Give one of the photocopied charts to everyone, including the two players at the front of the class. Ask everyone to complete the first three squares on their chart. The students must not talk to each other or show anyone what they have written.
- 4 When everyone has finished writing, read out the first question. The two players should then read out their answers to the first question.

- 5 Everyone from both teams must then read out their answer to the first question. Teams score one point for each person who has the same answer as their team player. (To prevent cheating, move around the class and check what the students have written on their charts.)
- 6 Read out the second question and repeat the process. When you have heard all of the answers for the first three questions, ask the students to write down their answers to the next three, and continue the game. The team with the most points wins.

Alternative

For a smaller class, play as one team, with one player. Each person scores one point for every answer that matches the player's answer. The winner is the student with the most points at the end of the game.

Mr Swallow curled his upper lip and snarled, "I'm not married and I have no friends so I have no use for flowers. Look at the map, Mr Carter. You have three centimetres of my land. As I told you before, you have until Monday to sort it out. We have nothing else to discuss. Good morning." And with that he slammed the door in my face. 'Charming', I thought. 'How nice.' So, what could I do? I was up a creek without a back 2 and give 3 to his threats. I went home and called the builders and on Monday morning, at crack of 4, they started taking down the fence. As the builders worked, Mr Swallow walked up and down the edge of his garden, map in hand, shouting, "I'm watching you, I'm watching you!", pacing up and down frantically measuring everything that wasn't moving.

o B o

Mr O'Falltrades nodded. "Double time, new shovels, new spades and a new wheelbarrow..." he said. "Yes, I think I can live with that. Throw in some cream for the bump on my head and you've got a deal." "Double time," Mr Swallow said, "new shovels, new spades, a new wheelbarrow and some cream to put on the bump on your head. Er, right. OK. Fine. And when the doctor turns up. I'll pay the bill. Anything, just as long as you don't take me to court." So a deal was struck and that was the end of it, the end of 'The Wars of The Roses'.

Last Thursday, a terrible storm blew 10 the fence in my back garden. The fence was really old, it was on its last 11, so I wasn't all that surprised that it fell down. But what really annoyed me was the fact that the fence fell on top of my rose bushes and knocked them flat. I had to throw them al

When the first section of the fence had been moved three centimetres to the left, Mr Swallow took out his tape measure, tied it to the wall of his shed, stretched the tape across the lawn and then held it against the fence. "Four metres!" he shouted. "Four metres exactly. It's mine again. All mine!" But at that exact moment, one of the builders, Jack O'Falltrades, was coming into the garden with a couple of shovels. He didn't see the tape measure stretched tightly across the lawn, twenty centimetres above the grass, and suddenly he was falling, head over 16, and the two shovels were spinning through the air like giant Catherine wheels. There was a thump (as Mr O'Falltrades hit the fence), a couple of thuds (as the shovels hit the shed), a brief silence (as the other gardeners tried to take 17 what had happened) and then a strange low cackling sound as Mr Swallow burst 18laughing. But it wasn't funny for Mr O'Falltrades because the impact had knocked him 19 He lay slumped against the fence, out cold.

The War of The Roses

Mr Swallow was still laughing as I took out my mobile phone and called the hospital. "The doctor's on her way," I said as I switched off my phone. "Oh, and Mr Swallow, I told the doctor to send the bill to you. After all, it was your tape measure that Mr O'Falltrades tripped 11" "But he was moving your fence, Mr Carter. I'm not to blame." "Ah!" I said as I bent down to loosen Mr O'Falltrades' tie. "But my fence was on your land. Look 12 the map. It's a good three centimetres your side of the line. I expect you'll be hearing from Mr. O'Falltrades' solicitor in the morning." Mr Swallow changed colour. "Hmmm ..." he muttered. "Good point, Mr Carter. I don't want to go to court ..." And with that, he ran to his shed, took out a bucket, filled it with water, ran back and threw the water over Mr O'Falltrades' face. As Mr O'Falltrades came 13 he let out a low, moaning "Ahhh!", shaking his head and spluttering.

øJø

So the two of us stood on Mr Swallow's doorstep and had a strange and awkward conversation. There were lots of 14 pauses and you could have cut the atmosphere with a 15 "How about a compromise?" I said after what seemed like hours. "Why don't we leave the fence where it is? It would cost me an arm and a 16 to get the builders to move it again. And to make 17 for the fact that I've got three centimetres of your land, you can have as many roses as you like from my garden. Just think about it. Just think of all the money you could save. When you want to brighten up your house, or when you friends have birthdays, you won't have to go to the florist's and splash 18 on expensive roses, I'll give them to you for free."

o K o

"Of course," I replied. "What would you like ... flowers for the hall, for the kitchen ...?" "Actually, flowers for a lady," he said, blushing and looking 19 at his shoes. "You know the doctor, the lady who came to see Mr O'Falltrades, well, she wanted to write me out a bill and so I invited her into the house, thinking

she could use the kitchen table, and she saw my collection of model trains, (it's my hobby, you see) and it turns out that, by some strange coincidence, it's her hobby too, and we chatted and, well, I ended up asking her out and she's coming round in an hour to pick me 20 and we're going to a model exhibition in the Town Hall and ..." "So things are looking up, Mr Swallow?" I said as he blushed an ever deeper shade of red. "Yes, Mr Carter, things are really looking up. It's strange, isn't it, how things turn out. A week ago, it was all rather a mess, wasn't it? But today ... today things are perfect, and I suppose you could almost say

"There you are," Mr Swallow said, turning to the other builders. "Jack's fine now. Look at him. He's as right as 22, never been better. In fact, that little nap probably did him the power of good. There he is, fit as a fiddle, as good as new, as ..." Mr Swallow broke 23 as the five builders formed a circle around him. They didn't look all that pleased. "OK, boys," Mr Swallow stammered. "Take it easy, no harm done, eh? Let's just talk about this ..." "We're listening," one of the builders said. "What did you have in mind?" "Well, erm, why don't we forget about the fence?" Mr Swallow began. "It might as well stay where it is ... after all, what's three centimetres between friends? And let me pay you for today, lads, and ..." The builders moved closer. "On second thoughts, why don't I pay you double time for today?" Mr Swallow went on, his voice a little higher than before. "Double time and some new shovels or spades or whatever you want."

Board Game 3

Instructions for the teacher

Divide the class into groups of four. Each group will need:

- one copy of the board on pages 74 & 75
- one set of idiom cards
- one set of phrasal verb cards
- a die
- a counter for each player

Rules of the game

Player 1 must role the die and move his / her counter the corresponding number of spaces along the board. If the space that they land on has instructions, such as 'Go forward 3' they must do as the instructions say. If they land on a square that says 'phrasal verbs' or 'idioms', another player must pick up a card from the appropriate pile and read out the question on it. If player 1 gives the correct answer, they may role the die again and have another go. If player 1 gives the wrong answer, play passes to the next person. The winner is the first person to get around the board, from beginning to end.
