12 Cr. 185 (LAP)

Dear Judge Preska:

The government has completed its redactions of Exhibit H, which it sent to defense counsel last week. The parties agree that the new version complies with the Court's protective order.

This filing is intended to supplement the re-redacted submissions filed on January 7, 2014.

Thank you for your kind attention to this letter.

Respectfully submitted,

Re: United States v. Jeremy Hammond
12 Cr. 185 (LAP)

Dear Judge Preska

Please accept this letter as an addendum to our sentencing submission on behalf of Mr. Jeremy Hammond.

We have devoted a large portion of our main submission to Mr. Hammond's motivations and other relevant Section 3553(a) factors. In the course of reviewing the discovery in this case, it has become clear that the Stratfor hack and the relevant conduct to which Mr. Hammond pled guilty are only part of the story, and that there are additional hacks and conduct by Mr. Hammond that are appropriate for the Court's consideration under 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) as they are part of the nature and circumstances of the offense and they provide the contextual framework for the Court's overall consideration of Mr. Hammond's intentions and motivation.¹

Following the Stratfor hack, Mr. Hammond, through the government's agent Hector Monsegur, aka "Sabu," was asked to hack a number of websites and computer servers outside of the United States. Mr. Monsegur supplied lists of targets, which included numerous foreign government websites and affected over 1000 domains.²

² Many of these target websites utilized the popular Plesk web-hosting software and were subject to a hidden vulnerability, which only Jeremy Hammond a few others had the tools to access. This vulnerability permitted attackers to access and control the servers remotely.

government direction, repeatedly asked Mr. Hammond to provide passwords or root backdoor information to access these sites. In some cases, as with at least some of the [REDACTED] targets, which were passed on to Havittaja, and some of the [REDACTED] targets, which appear to have been passed on to a [REDACTED] hacking group known as "Red Hack," it appears as though the United States government was actively facilitating the hacking of foreign government websites. In other cases, Mr. Hammond provided site access information to Mr. Monsegur, but it is unclear if any action was taken, or what, if any, intelligence information was collected by the United States. It is possible that some of these vulnerabilities mined by Mr. Hammond, at Mr. Monsegur's direction, still exist, and that the government possesses the means to access these sites.

We have attached, for the Court's review, a summary of the discovery materials that relate to this activity, as well as the bate stamped pages of discovery that corresponds to this summary.

Thank you for your kind consideration of these materials.

Respectfully submitted,

DISCOVERY TIMELINE PERTAINING TO HACKS OF FOREIGN WEBSITES

01/23/12

- Mr. Monsegur gives Mr. Hammond a list of [REDACTED] targets with Plesk vulnerabilities¹ and asks him to “hit these....for our [REDACTED] squad.” (BS 104988 – 104989)
- Hammond hacks one of these targets and shows Monsegur the site contains 287 domains and 1330 different email accounts. Monsegur says he will give these targets to [REDACTED] hacker “Hivitja” (actually Havittaja) to hack the sites. Monsegur tells Hammond to create a root backdoor (“just backdoor urls”) so the sites can be accessed again. Hammond also gives Monsegur passwords for some of the sites.² (BS 104989 – 104990)
- Monsegur identifies additional targets for Hammond. Hammond confirms that he successfully gained access to two of them. One of the servers contains 3520 domains, many of them in [REDACTED] and [REDACTED]. Another contains 392 [REDACTED] domains. (BS 104991-105013)
- Hammond explains to Monsegur how to use root backdoors and where to find the email and databases. (BS 105013-105014)
- Monsegur says he is finding more targets (“finding new juicy targets”) and asks for root backdoor instructions again, which Hammond provides. (BS 105014)
- Monsegur provides Hammond with targets in [REDACTED]. Hammond gains access to one that contains 62 domains and 96 email accounts. (BS 105028-105029)
- Monsegur provides more international targets, says he is “looking for embassys [sic] and consulates” [sic]. Hammond provides access to two of them. (BS 105029-105030)
- Monsegur asks Hammond to access a [REDACTED] site, but he is unable to gain access. (BS 105041)
- Monsegur gives Hammond more [REDACTED] targets, including [REDACTED] which he describes as a “big target.” Hammond provides passwords. (BS 105041-105042)
- Monsegur provides more [REDACTED] targets. Hammond gains access to one of them and provides the password, as requested. (BS 105044-105046)

1 In the discovery, Plesk vulnerabilities are indicated with the [REDACTED] a vulnerable port on Plesk websites.

2 For sites that ran on Linux, Mr. Hammond was able to provide backdoors. For Windows-based sites, he was only able to provide passwords for administrative access.

3 [REDACTED] is a [REDACTED] media conglomerate and the [REDACTED]

1/25/12

- Monsegur provides a long list of targets from many different international countries including [REDACTED] (BS 105061-105063)
- Monsegur tells Hammond that he will give the [REDACTED] government sites to a [REDACTED] hacking group known as RedHack ("the [REDACTED] will be handled RedHack famous [REDACTED] hackers") and tells Hammond that the sites he has given him are "high priority" -- as if he were placing an order. (BS 105063)
- Monsegur invites Hammond to the RedHack channel so Hammond can provide the [REDACTED] sites ("accept invite"). Monsegur also provides more [REDACTED] domains (BS 105065-105066)
- Hammond tells Monsegur that one of the servers has mail for 22 [REDACTED] government domains and another has mail for about 600 domains. (BS 105067.)
- Monsegur creates a chat room and invites Hammond and an alleged member of RedHack. They exchange information regarding thousands of [REDACTED] sites. (BS 62889)
- Hammond explains to the alleged Redhack member how to access the root backdoors of the [REDACTED] sites. (BS 62889-62897)

1/26/12

- Monsegur follows up on foreign government targets he provided to Hammond "last night." Hammond sends back a list of the sites he did not gain access to, including government sites in [REDACTED] (BS 105077-105078)
- Monsegur asks for the list again. Monsegur again asks for instructions on how to access root backdoors. Hammond gives Monsegur the information (BS 105080-105081)
- Monsegur provides two [REDACTED] government targets and asks Hammond to provide passwords. (BS 105088)
- Monsegur provides more [REDACTED] targets to which he wants access. (Monsegur: "lend me an hour of your time to bang out these [REDACTED] targets.") Hammond gains access to one that hosts 7 domains and 56 email accounts. (BS 105091)
- Monsegur provides two targets in [REDACTED] Hammond cannot gain access to either. (BS 105091-105092)

2/2/12

- Monsegur provides more targets, including a government site in [REDACTED] and government sites in [REDACTED] Mr. Monsegur asks again for instructions on how to access root backdoors. (BS 105152)
- Monsegur provides targets in [REDACTED] Hammond accesses one of the [REDACTED] sites that contains 135 domains and 287 email accounts (BS 105157-105159)

2/15/12

- Monsegur provides targets in [REDACTED] He tells Hammond that these sites are for "tony, the guy who hacked kingcope" (BS 67593-67594)
- Monsegur tells Hammond he is "setting up a new box to serve as another tor onion for us as a third backup" and says "I want us to have redundant backups for all our shit." (BS 67594-67595)
- Hammond provides access to some of the [REDACTED] sites. He creates three backdoors and tells Monsegur that they contain hundreds of domains and emails. Hammond comments "hopefullyl were getitngs omething out of all this" and Monsegur responds "trust me...everything i do serves a purpose ;P" (BS 67597)

[REDACTED]=big target. they made a massive power move. they sent letters to 48 states (probably excluding alaska and hawaii) basically saying. give us 225million per prison and we'll manage all your prisoners
(5:42:49 PM) leondavidson@jabber.org/jabber.org: $10800000000 = 225 * 48$ a year
(5:43:09 PM) yohoho@jabber.ccc.de: oh I know
(5:43:12 PM) yohoho@jabber.ccc.de: that is biggest target ever.
(5:43:16 PM) yohoho@jabber.ccc.de: they run plesk, in fact.

(5:47:32 PM) yohoho@jabber.ccc.de: especially with immigrants
(5:47:46 PM) yohoho@jabber.ccc.de: they say they are illegal, but they lock them up and pay them well below minimum wage
(5:47:57 PM) yohoho@jabber.ccc.de: in their prison sweatshops
(5:51:22 PM) leondavidson@jabber.org/jabber.org: <http://www.theonion.com/articles/iran-worried-us-might-be-building-8500th-nuclear-w,27325/> tho meant as a joke is actually pretty sad state of reality
