

Domestic Violent Extremist Mobilization in South Dakota

Moonshot is a global social enterprise working to end online harms, applying evidence, ethics, and human rights. We design new methodologies and technologies to respond effectively to harms that threaten public safety, including violent extremism, gender-based violence, disinformation, and serious organized crime.

Since 2015 Moonshot has tracked searches for, and engagement with, Domestic Violent Extremism across the United States. From September 2020 Moonshot stepped up a tailored elections crisis response team to develop an early warning system, and intervention network, to mitigate potential escalation of tensions within the US.

This infographic specifically covers data collected on Google Search between from September 2020 until March 2021 related to Domestic Violent Extremist mobilizations to targeted violence, political violence, conspiracy theories, and armed groups. No personally identifiable information was collected as part of this research, which solely uses aggregated metadata.

Who is searching?

Where are the risks?

Tracked indicators are coded using a six-level risk matrix ranging from curiosity towards extremism (level one) to desire to cause harm and join groups (level six). For South Dakota the data shows the following distribution of searches by risk level starting with level three (sympathy with groups) to exclude searches without violent intent:

What are the risks?

Moonshot's data shows the prevalence per capita of the below Domestic Violent Extremism themes in South Dakota are greater than the US national average by the following percentage:

Moonshot's analysis revealed that users in South Dakota had a strong interest in political conspiracies and armed groups. Searches related to FEMA concentration camps and QAnon indicate that users have an appetite for disinformation, especially when it relates to polarized political attitudes and anti-establishmentarianism. While it is difficult to determine direct pathways from online searches to offline action, South Dakotans' interest in killing Republicans and the Anarchist Cookbook indicates a propensity for offline violence. The most frequent keywords for these Domestic Violent Extremism themes are:

- #1 Join 3 percenters
- #2 FEMA concentration camps
- #3 Anarchist Cookbook
- #4 Join Three percenters
- #5 we are q
- #6 Kill Republicans
- #7 qanon map pub
- #8 qanon plan to save the world
- #9 qanon saying
- #10 Hutaree Website

Number of searches by risk level per day

