83. Law regulating sale of intoxicants held constitutional. People v. Kemmis [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 382, 116 NW 554. Ordinance prohibiting sale by unauthorized persons held not impliedly repealed by subsequent ordinance providing general scheme for regulation of licenses, two not being inconsistent and not covering same field. Town of Montclair v. Scola [N. J. Law] 69 A 451. Unrestricted common right to engage in business of retailing intoxicating liquors has been abrogated by statute, and privilege of conducting such business limited to particular class of persons who comply with certain prescribed conditions. City of Montpelier v. Mills [Ind.] 85 NE 6. Before anyone can rightfully exercise such privilege, he must bring himself within law and show that he has fully met all its terms and conditions. Id. Purpose of legislature in prohibiting sale without license held to provide revenue, and to restrict and regulate business. Brown v. State [Tenn.] 114 SW 198. Rev. Laws 1905, § 1519, held not void because prescribing no maximum penalty for its violation on theory that cruel or unusual punishment might be imposed, since, even if invalid when standing alone, § 4763 prescribes maximum penalty for misdemeanors when not otherwise expressly fixed, and controls when particular statute is silent on subject. State v. Kight [Minn.] 119 NW 56. Selling at retail without license, and without having receipt and notice for such license posted, held but one offense under Rev. Pol. Code, § 2834. State v. Mudie [S. D.] 115 NW 107. One not engaged in nor interested in liquor traffic, whose employe inadvertently or without authority makes sale at his place of business, is not "interested" in such sale. Partridge v. State [Ark.] 114 SW 215. Town ordinance is a "law of this state" within meaning of Pen. Code, § 435, making it misdemeanor to carry on without license any business for which license is required "by any law of this state." Ex parte Bagshaw, 152 Cal. 701, 93 P 864. One who selle single drink is retail dealer engaged in business of selling intoxicating liquors within meaning of Comp. Laws 1897, § 5380, providing that retail dealers shall be held to include all persons who sell liquors by the drink, etc., and liable to prosecution as such for selling without paying tax prescribed by Id. § 5379, as amended by Pub. Acts 1903, No. 62, p. 83. People v. Wilcox, 152 Mich. 39, 15 Det. Leg. N. 172, 115 NW 973.

Intent: On prosecution for selling liquor outside corporate limits of cities and villages in any less quantity than five gallons, intent is immaterial, and good faith on part of defendant is no defense. People v. Nylin, 236 Ill. 19, 86 NE 156, afg. 139 Ill. App. 500.

Effect of inability to obtain license: Where law requires license as condition precedent to engaging in sale of liquors, strict compliance therewith is necessary. City of Montpelier v. Mills [Ind.] 85 NE 6. Refusal of city officers to hear application for license and to issue required license is no defense to prosecution for selling liquor without license in violation of city ordinance. Id. Court cannot on such prosecution try collateral issues properly pertinent and material in proceedings to obtain license, and fact that defendant may have been amply able and willing to meet all conditions necessary to entitle him to license, and proffered proof of such facts, and tendered payment of fees, does not justify him in selling without license in violation of ordinance. Id. Where license is wrongfully and arbitrarily denied, remedy is by mandamus to compel its issuance, and applicant may also recover any damages sustained. Id. Under Laws 1896, c. 112, §§ 17, 18, 21, 31, and amendments thereto, held no defense to action for statutory penalties for selling without having obtained and posted certificate that county treasurer refused to issue certificate until he had received from excise department blanks for new form of bonds made necessary by change in law. Clement v. Smith, 112 NYS 955. Receipt acknowledging receipt of application, bond, and amount of tax, and letters of treasurer stating that applicant would be protected pending issue of new bonds, etc., held no defense. Id. Where county commissioners refuse to license corporation, latter has full and complete remedy by application to court to set aside such action as illegal or in excess of their powers. Connecticut Breweries Co. v. Murphy [Conn.] 70 A 450. Commissioners refused to license corporation, which was entitled to license, but licensed its secretary, with intent that such license should operate in law as license to corporation, and enable it to sell liquors without violating statute. Held that sales by corporation without any other authority therefor, though made in good faith, were in violation of Gen. St. 1902. Id.

Sales in territory where sale is prohibited as violation of license law: One cannot be properly indicted or convicted for selling without license in territory where sale is wholly prohibited. Pughsley v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 886. Special laws applicable to particular subdivisions of state, prohibiting sale of intoxicants therein, do not suspend general laws requiring license of those dealing in intoxicants, and punishing them for doing business without such license. Carpenter v. State [Tenn.] 113 SW 1042. One may be convicted of selling without license in violation of Acts 1899, p. 309, c. 161, though sale was made at place where law prohibiting sales within four miles of schoolhouse applied. Id. Offense of engaging in business without license, denounced by Rev. Pol. Code, §§ 2833, 2834, may be committed in locality where no license may be granted under local option laws, and hence information need not allege that business could have lawfully been engaged in in city and county where offense is alleged to have been committed. State v. Ely [S. D.] 118 NW 687. Offense of engaging in business without license held same as selling without license. Id. Where law prohibited any person who had not obtained license from engaging in sale of intoxicants at retail anywhere within state, held that reason why defendant had not procured license was immaterial, so that it was not necessary for indictment to show whether license could have been procured at place where business was conducted. State v. Mudis [S. D.] 115 NW 107. Since general prohibition law (Acts 1907, p. 81) repealed all existing laws allowing sales of intoxicants, and became effective Jan. 1, 1908, held that one selling on Jan. 7, 1908, could not be legally convicted under accusation charging selling without license in county in which prior to Jan. 1 intoxicants could have been legally sold upon obtaining license. Glover v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 862. Such conviction, or an acquittal on such charge, would not bar subsequent prosecution for selling in violation of act of 1907, two offenses being distinct. Id. Persons may be prosecuted and convicted for violations occurring prior to Jan. 1, 1908, of those laws which were suspended or repealed by act of 1907. Tooke v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 917.

What constitutes sale: Must have been complete sale passing title, as distinguished from executory contract of sale. State v. Davis, 62 W. Va. 500, 60 SE 584. Whether there is actual sale or executory contract of sale is question of intention. Id. Where agreed statements of facts showed that licensed saloon keeper delivered beer to customer at latter's residence, where same was paid for, pursuant to telephone message ordering it received at his place of business, held that judgment of acquittal on theory that parties intended title to pass at saloon keeper's place of business was justified. Id. One who receives money and delivers whisky therefor will be treated as the seller, no other person filling that character in transaction being pointed out by evidence, unless other facts and circumstances shown in evidence clearly indicate that he was acting in capacity of purchaser and not seller. State v. Kiger, 63 W. Va. 450, 61 SE 362. Evidence held to justify finding that defendant was seller. Id. One not engaged in sale of intoxicants, whose employe by mistake sold beer kept by his employer for his personal use, held not guilty of selling. Partridge v. State [Ark.] 114 SW 215. Under Act March 12, 1907 (Acts 1907, p. 366), one acting as agent of purchaser may be convicted of selling without license. Phillips v. State [Ala.] 47 S 245. Fact that orders transmitted to brewers through defendant described him as agent of purchasers held not to preclude jury from finding that he was in fact agent of brewers. State v. Clow [Mo. App.] 110 SW 632. Loan of whisky to be repaid in kind held sale. Brown v. State [Tenn.] 114 SW 198.

Place of sale. Witness ordered whisky from defendant, giving him money therefor, and defendant ordered it from dealer in another state. Whiskey was shipped in package which also contained whiskey belonging to third person, not ordered through defendant, and which was addressed to such third person and witness. Third person gave whiskey belonging to witness to defendant, who delivered it to witness. Held that title to whiskey did not pass until whiskey was actually delivered to witness by defendant, and defendant was guilty of sale at place of delivery. Jossy v. State [Ark.] 114 SW 216. Where orders for beer were received and filled by brewers in another state, but beer was shipped to their agent to be delivered to customers on receipt of payment, held that sale took place where such deliveries were made. State v. Clow [Mo. App.] 110 SW 632. Evidence held to justify finding of sale in town where beer was delivered, though credit was to be extended to end of month when payment was to be made in another town. Town of Montclair v. Scola [N. J. Law] 69 A 451. Statute held not to inhibit delivery outside of place of business of retail dealer but within territory covered by his license, in fulfillment of orders received and accepted at his place of business, but to regard such sales as made at such place of business in absence of agreement to contrary. State v. Davis, 62 W. Va. 500, 60 SE 584.

Quantity sold: Measurement intended by statute prohibiting sale outside cities and villages in less quantities than five gallons without license held measurement of the quiet liquor, after it has been released from confinement and reached quiet condition in the open air, and gas, froth, or foam cannot be measured. People v. Nylin, 236 Ill. 19, 86 NE 156, afg. 139 Ill. App. 500. Where evidence as to number of bottles of beer to the case sold by defendant was conflicting, question held for jury. Id.

Evidence held to sustain conviction. State v. Budworth, 104 Minn. 257, 116 NW 486. Held to justify finding that whiskey was property of defendant and that he made sale thereof to witness. State v. Doyle [W. Va.] 62 SE 453. Evidence held sufficient to sustain finding that method adopted by defendant for making sales was shift or device to evade law, and to sustain verdict of guilty. People v. Nylin, 236 Ill. 19, 86 NE 156, afg. 139 Ill. App. 500. Held to sustain finding that brewers sold beer through defendant, who ran order house, as their agent, and hence to sustain conviction of defendant for selling without license. State v. Clow [Mo. App.] 110 SW 632. Testimony of deputy county clerk that records of his office did not show that license had been granted to defendant held sufficient proof that latter did not have license. Reed v. Ter. [Okl. Cr. App.] 98 P 588. On prosecution for engaging in business without having paid tax prescribed by Comp. Laws 1897, § 5385, held that evidence of single sale on particular day within period laid in information, coupled with evidence of other sales on that and other days, would tend to prove charge. People v. Moore [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 920, 118 NW 742.

84. Objection that ordinance was invalid because it did not expressly prohibit sale but only provided penalty for selling held untenable, since defendant had no right to sell liquor in city unless authorized by city to do so. City of Arcola v. Wilkinson, 233 Ill. 250, 84 NE 264. Provision of constitution prohibiting sales, etc., is valid and self-executing. Ex parte Cain [Okl.] 93 P 974.

What constitutes sale: Taking of orders for future delivery of liquor by one representing foreign liquor house, and accepting price at time order was taken, held sale without proof of delivery, there being no limitation on agent's authority and it appearing that transaction was effort to circumvent ordinance. State v. Small [S. C.] 60 SE 676; Id. [S. C.] 63 SE 4. One engaged in traffic of whiskey is guilty of selling whiskey. State v. Small [S. C.] 63 SE 4. Whether defendant delivered liquor to witness as latter's property under an agreement or whether transaction constituted sale held for jury under evidence. State v. Smith [Vt.] 69 A 762. Proof that defendant took money and shortly thereafter returned with whiskey, which he delivered to purchaser, held to raise presumption that defendant was seller, and to establish prima facie case of guilt. Williams v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 671. Sale of five-gallon keg of whiskey to combination of persons subscribing therefor held sale to various individuals in quantities less than five gallons. Strong v. State [Ark.] 114 SW 239. Defendant being one of procuring causes of sale held accessory, and hence liable as principal in first degree under Kirby's Dig. §§ 1560, 1561. Id. In action for penalty, defendant held not entitled to attack ordinance under which action was brought on ground that it made master liable in all cases for giving away of liquor by his servant, etc., since no such questions were raised in record and ordinance might be valid in part and invalid in part. City of Arcola v. Wilkinson, 233 Ill. 250, 84 NE 264. Instruction that if defendant was proprietor of place where liquor was sold, and liquor was in his possession and control as proprietor, and was sold with his knowledge and consent, he would be guilty of a sale, though he might not have himself handed out liquor to customer, held sufficient under the evidence. State v. Pigg [Kan.] 97 P 859. Revisal 1905, § 3534, held to make it offense to procure liquor from illicit dealer by purchase and deliver it to another when both purchase and delivery are made in place where sale is prohibited by law, and to make such person agent of seller and not of purchaser. State v. Burchfield [N. C.] 63 SE 89. In such case person making purchase is to be considered as a principal and liable criminally as the seller, all who participate in misdemeanors being regarded as principals. Id. Person making purchase cannot escape liability by testifying that he was not seller's agent. Id. Statute does not apply where sale is legal or where state statute cannot apply to and affect transaction, as in case of interstate commerce, but in such case general rule applies that one acting entirely as agent of buyer is not indictable. State v. Whisenant [N. C.] 68 SE 91 Sale held consummated in another state, so that transaction was interstate commerce. Id.

Place of sale: Where contract was made in prohibition territory and it was agreed that delivery was to be made there, and it was in fact made there, held that transaction was illegal. Shelby Vinegar Co. v. Hawn [N. C.] 63 SE 78. Sale held consummated in another state so that transaction was interstate commerce. State v. Whisenant [N. C.] 63 SE 91.

Evidence: Held to show sale by defendant. Davis v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 132. Held to authorize conviction. Wheeler v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 409.

85. Gen. St. 1906, § 3556, as amended by Laws 1907, p. 203, c. 5690, § 1, held not unconstitutional because of omission of word "intoxicating" before word "liquors" therein. Ladson v. State [Fla.] 47 S 517. Whether law has been adopted in particular county is question of law for court. State v. Brown, 180 Mo. App. 214, 109 SW 99. Conviction cannot be sustained where evidence fails to show that local option election was held in county. Davis v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 546, 107 SW 828. Pen. Code 1895, art. 405, providing penalty for selling in blind tiger, held not unconstitutional, it being within power of legislature to prohibit sales in that manner and to provide higher punishment for such character of sale than for sales of different character. Schwulst v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 426, 108 SW 698.

Intent: In order to escape liability on ground that defendant intended to deliver nonintoxicating drink to purchaser but gave him beer by mistake, it must appear that such mistake grew out of no want of care on defendant's part, in view of statute to that effect. Coleman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 112 SW 1049. Held improper to refuse to permit defendant to testify that party who hired him told him that liquor was not intoxicating, and that he sold same believing that such was fact. Reed v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 4, 108 SW 368.

What constitutes sale: Instruction that certain facts would constitute sale held proper. Owens v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 362, 107 SW 548. Facts proven held to constitute sale. Potts v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 440, 108 SW 660. Where defendant, who had prescription for whiskey for his own use, procured whiskey thereon for another with latter's money, held that he was guilty of selling whether he made any profit or not, transaction being mere subterfuge. Hawkins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 813. Evidence that witness went to back of restaurant, where he met defendant, that he told defendant what he wanted, that defendant opened door to room where there was whiskey and told witness to help himself, and that witness did so and paid defendant, held to show sale. Robinson v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 567, 110 SW 905. Held that if money was borrowed from or furnished by B to defendant for purpose of taking whiskey from express office, and whiskey was turned over to defendant in discharge of that debt, there was a sale. Fields v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 451, 107 SW 857. Evidence as to whether or not such was the case held to make question for jury. Id. Transaction whereby defendant forwarded orders for beer, which was shipped consigned to him, each cask bearing name of purchaser, and out of which defendant made no profit, held not sale by defendant. Holloway v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 937. Instruction to acquit, if jury found that prosecuting witness did not pay for whiskey but merely went into place where defendant was and took bottle from bar or counter, or if they had reasonable doubt as to whether he paid defendant therefor, held proper. Dooley v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 491, 108 SW 675. Evidence held to require charge that if witness went into defendant's wareroom and took whiskey without his consent defendant should be acquitted. Howell v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 536, 110 SW 914. Loan of whiskey to be repaid in whiskey when person to whom loan was made received whiskey, which he had ordered or was about to order, held sale. Coleman v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 578, 111 SW 1011. Where witness borrowed whiskey in defendant's club room from third person with understanding that loan should be repaid with whiskey, which witness had ordered through defendant, held that transaction was subterfuge and sale. Beckham v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 1017; Wilson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 1018.

By whom sale made: Held that if, acting together as principals, defendant and another made alleged sale, they would both be guilty, regardless of any subterfuge or evasion of law, and hence that law basing conviction on existence of subterfuge was rightly refused. Wilson v. State, 53 Tex Cr. App. 556, 110 SW 904. Instruction to effect that in order to make a sale it was not necessary that defendant should have personally delivered liquor and received money, but that it was sufficient to show that liquor was delivered with his knowledge and consent and at his instance and direction, and that he or someone for him and for his use received money therefor, etc., held proper. King v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 101, 109 SW 182. Instruction that if defendant and any other person acting together sold intoxicants as alleged and both were present at time of sale, and both knew the unlawful act in making said sale, defendant would be guilty, regardless of whether he actually delivered liquor to purchaser and received pay therefor, held proper, all parties being principals in misdemeanor cases and there being evidence that defendant was present at time of sale, aiding and abetting. Reed v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 4, 108 SW 368. Instruction that if prosecuting witness gave money to third person to go and get whiskey, and latter did so, or if jury had reasonable doubt that such was case, they should acquit, held improperly refused in view of evidence. Dulin v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 442, 108 SW 696. Where witness borrowed whiskey in defendant's clubroom from third person with understanding that loan should be repaid with whiskey, which he had ordered from defendant, held that both defendant and such third person were guilty of selling. Beckham v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 1017. Person making loan held guilty. Wilson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 1018. Keeper of clubroom, who was present and at whose suggestion loan was made, held equally guilty with person making loan. Coleman v. State 53 Tex. Cr. App. 578, 111 SW 1011. On prosecution for engaging in and carrying on business of dealer in liquors in county which had voted against sale, proof of delivery of whisky to person by defendant and receipt of money therefor by him is prima facie evidence of ownership of whiskey by defendant, and casts upon him burden of rebutting legal presumption. Gen. St. 1906, § 3557. Fisher v. State [Fla.] 46 S 422. One delivering property to another and receiving pay therefor, no other person being known to buyer in the transaction, is presumed to be seller. State v. Russell [Del.] 69 A 839.

Principal and agent: Refusal of instructions to effect that if defendant procured whiskey for prosecuting witness with money furnished him for that purpose by the latter and with prescription given defendant by physician, and in so doing acted solely for accommodation of witness and made no profit out of transaction himself, he was not guilty of selling to witness, held error. Davis v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 373, 109 SW 938. Instruction that, if defendant unlawfully sold or caused to be sold, through another as his agent, intoxicating liquor, he would be guilty of violating local option law, held proper. Roberts v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 855, 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 861, 107 SW 59. Evidence that sale was made by one employed by defendant for that purpose, defendant being absent most of the time from place of business where sales were made, and absent when sale in question was made, held sufficient to sustain conviction. Id. To relieve one who has accepted money and shortly thereafter delivered whiskey to another in return therefor from presumption that he is seller, fact of his agency for buyer and lack of complicity in selling must be shown. Shaw v. State, 3 Ga. App. 607, 60 SE 326. Conviction is unauthorized where state's evidence shows that defendant was agent of buyer to bring whiskey from designated person disclosed by evidence. Id. Conviction held unauthorized where evidence failed to show that defendant either sold or solicited orders for sale of whiskey. Id. Under 24 Del. Laws, p. 135, c. 65, one selling liquor to another in Kent county, whether acting for himself or as agent of another, and whether liquor belongs to himself or another, violates statute. State v. Russell [Del.] 69 A 839. Is guilty even if acts as agent or messenger of purchaser if at same time acts as agent or representative or seller, or if himself owns liquor. Id.

To whom sale made: On prosecution for selling to named person held that, if whiskey was bought and paid for by latter's companion, there was no sale to such person. Tippit v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 180, 109 SW 190.

Place of sale: Intention governs as to what contract is and when title passes Marsden v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 945. Though time of payment may have some bearing on intention, mere fact that purchaser of beer does or does not pay for it does not determine rule as to where sale was made or fact that it was or was not made. Instruction held erroneous as making guilt dependent on payment after delivery. Id. Mere agreement to sell without delivery does not constitute sale. Pabst Brew. Co. v. Com., 32 Ky. L. R. 1010, 107 SW 728. Sale is not complete if there is anything left to be done by seller, such as selection or segregation of parcel sold from larger quantity in bulk. Id. Defendant's agent took order for beer in local option territory, subject to approval of manager in another state. Defendant shipped beer consigned to purchaser at town not in local option territory, from which place it was delivered to purchaser in local option territory by transfer wagon. Held not a sale in local option territory, in absence of showing that delivery by transfer wagon was pursuant to an arrangement by seller, it being presumed in such case that transfer company was agent of buyer. Id. Commerce clause of federal constitution held to prevent operation of statute in case where witness, who lived in local option territory, sent order for whiskey to defendant in another state, inclosing money to pay for same and express charges, and same was shipped from such other state to witness at place where local option was in force. Doores v. Com., 33 Ky. L. R. 69, 109 SW 302. Fact that defendant also did business in Kentucky, and opened branch office in another state for purpose of taking advantage of commerce clause, held immaterial, such course not being trick or device within meaning of statute. Id. Delivery of liquor by seller to express company in wet territory to be shipped to buyer in dry territory held delivery to buyer in wet territory, express company being deemed agent of buyer in such case. People v. Young, 237 Ill. 196, 86 NE 589. Where brewing company received and accepted order for beer in "wet" territory, held that sale was made there, though it was ordered through a saloonkeeper in wet territory by person residing in dry territory and was delivered to latter in dry territory by express, and though such order was received and accepted by saloonkeeper by telephone when purchaser was in dry territory. Id. Laws 1907, p. 302, § 13, providing that giving away or delivery for purpose of evading provisions of local option statutes, or taking of orders or making of agreements at or within anti-saloon territory for sale of liquor, or other shift or device for evading such provisions, shall be deemed unlawful selling, held not to change rule so as to make place of delivery place where liquor actually comes into hands of purchaser. Id. Where intoxicants are ordered to be shipped C. O. D., sale is completed where liquor is delivered to carrier, and seller is not guilty of selling at place of delivery. State v. Rosenberger, 212 Mo. 648, 111 SW 509. Such being case, held immaterial whether its transportation into local option territory was matter of interstate commerce or not. Id. When purchaser, living in local option district, orders, in writing by mail, from a person lawfully engaged in liquor business outside of such district, package of liquor to be sent to him for his own use by express C. O. D. to station within prescribed district, and such purchaser received such package, pays price for same and charges for return of money to express company for seller, sale is complete upon delivery of package to the express company by seller. Mullen v. State, 10 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 417.

Evidence held to sustain conviction. Fisher v. State [Fla.] 46 S 422; Jones v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 519, 107 SW 849; Curtis v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 606, 108 SW 380; Arnold v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 429, 108 SW 666; Goad v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 444, 108 SW 680; Harryman v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 474, 110 SW 926. On theory that defendant and his agent were acting together in common enterprise to sell for mutual profit in prohibited territory, and that direction to agent not to sell in Texas was mere pretext. Oldham v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 516, 108 SW 667. Evidence held to sustain finding that sale was made after law went into effect. Phillips v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 505, 111 SW 144. Evidence held to show sale to person named as purchaser in indictment. Coleman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 112 SW 1049. Facts proven held to justify finding of sale and verdict of guilty. Robinson v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 563, 110 SW 907. Evidence held to show sale by defendant, and that transaction was not gift. Human v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 474, 107 SW 817. Evidence held sufficient to warrant finding of sale by defendant. Donaldson v. State, 3 Ga. App. 451, 60 SE 115; State v. Brown, 130 Mo. App. 214, 109 SW 99; Sawyer v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 597, 108 SW 894; Carnes v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 509, 111 SW 402. That defendant was active vendor. State v. Melton, 130 Mo. App. 262, 109 SW 858. To sustain finding that contention that defendant procured whiskey for witness from stranger was mere pretext and pretense, and to sustain conviction. Hall v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 304, 109 SW 933. To show sale by proprietor of club in open violation of law. Killman v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 512, 112 SW 90. Evidence held insufficient to sustain conviction. Gaddis v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 839, 106 SW 1155. To show that defendant made the sale to prosecutor. Johnson v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 554, 107 SW 816. To sustain conviction on theory that defendant owned house where sale was made, and ran business, and that person making sale was his agent. King v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 101, 109 SW 182.

86. Verdict of guilty in prosecution for manufacturing in violation of prohibition law (Act Aug. 6, 1907, Acts 1907, p. 81) held unsupported by competent evidence. Allen v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 840.

87. Act April 1, 1907 (Laws 1907, p. 326), prohibiting soliciting of orders through agents, circulars, etc., held valid exercise of police power. Zinn v. State [Ark.] 114 SW 227. Statute held not in conflict with U. S. Const. art. 1, § 8, giving congress power to establish post offices and post roads, and to designate what shall be carried by and excluded from the mails. Id. One who solicited orders for whiskey in prohibition territory and then purchased from dealer sufficient quantity to fill such orders, and delivered it to purchasers, held not to have violated statute. State v. Earles, 84 Ark. 479, 106 SW 941. Pen. Code 1895, § 428, is police regulation necessary for enforcement of prohibitory regulations, and is not affected by extension of scope of its operations caused by passage of general prohibition act of 1907. Rose v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 117. Term "solicit personally," as used therein, includes any act done by seller himself which may tend to affect sale, as contrasted with any like act "by an agent" of the seller tending to similar result. Id. Whether solicitation is personal or by an agent is not dependent on personal presence of solicitor, but whether means of solicitation, whether oral or written, are used by agent or principal himself. Id. Solicitation by mail is personal solicitation, if seller himself in person writes or mails letter received by buyer. Id. To solicit sale by letter or circular is crime under said section if letter is intended to be delivered, and is in fact delivered as intended, in any county where sale is prohibited. Id. Where sale is solicited by written or printed communication mailed in another state, courts of county where letter is received by addressee and contents ascertained have jurisdiction, since no crime is committed until delivery of letter in state where solicitation is forbidden. Id. State may punish for crime committed through mails as medium without infringing right of federal government to control mails. Id. Said section is not in conflict with commerce clause of federal constitution in so far as it prohibits solicitation of orders, though seller and liquor are in another state, such regulation being expressly allowed by Act Aug. 8, 1890, c. 728, 26 Stat. 313 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2177). Id. Fact that Laws 1907, p. 297, provide that taking of orders or making of agreements in anti-saloon territory for sale or delivery prohibiting the keeping on hand of intoxicants;[88] prohibiting the keeping or furnishing of liquors at any public place,[89] or at one's place of business;[90] prohibiting the bringing or shipping of liquors into territory where the sale thereof is prohibited,[91] and the regulation of carriers in this regard;[92] the designation of certain of intoxicants shall be deemed an unlawful selling held not to render it invalid as interfering with interstate commerce, act not purporting to in any manner control importation of liquor from other states. People v. McBride, 234 Ill. 146, 84 NE 865. Question held not involved in prosecution for selling in anti-saloon territory. Id. Held that in any event invalidity of such provision would not affect balance of act. Id.

88. Municipal ordinance held not void as punishing mere intention, without any overt act. Callaway v. Mims [Ga. App.] 62 SE 654.

89. Acts 1907, p. 81, construed, and held that phrase "public place" is to be given relative meaning, and place may be public during some hours of the day and private during others. Tooke v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 917. Public place includes any place which from its public character members of the general public frequent, or where they may be expected to congregate at any time as matter of common right, also any place at which, even though it is privately owned or controlled, number of persons have assembled through common usage, or by general or indiscriminate invitation, express or implied. Id. It excludes those places which, though publicly owned, are devoted to private use and are not open to access of public, and also those places privately owned or controlled from which indiscriminate public is generally excluded, though at a particular time in question a number of persons may have congregated there, if congregation is result of special invitation for that occasion alone. Id. Town guardhouse relative to prisoner confined in cell therein with a sole companion is not public place. Id. Person's residence primarily is not public place, though it may become so through use to which owner devotes it. Id.

90. A "place of business" within purview of Acts 1907, p. 81, § 1, means place devoted by proprietor to carrying on of some form of trade or commerce. Jenkins v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 574. Phrase "at their place of business" includes in its meaning immediate room or place in which business in question is conducted, also any nearby place or room used by proprietor in connection with the business, or in such relation to actual place of business as to indicate that it is convenient place which proprietor would probably use for keeping therein such liquors as he might desire to furnish others for purpose of inducing trade, or for keeping therein liquors intended for unlawful sale under cover of business carried on in the main place. Id. Word "at" includes all that "in" would include, and less than "in and near" would include. Id. Reasonableness and probability of nearby place or room being used for either or both of the purposes indicated is to be judged from surrounding circumstances, and especially from manner in which it is actually used. Id. Back room of store partially cut off by partition wall, used for storage of goods and in which no goods were usually bought and sold, held within definition. Id. Nearby room, which person uses in connection with business conducted by him in his regular place of business, is a part of his "place of business." Bashinski v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 577. Jury held authorized, but not required, to find that storage room, etc., used in connection with restaurant, was within definition. Id. Where one makes common practice of selling illegally at fixed place, such place thereby becomes his place of business, but single sale, or even sporadic sales, will not ipso facto convert place where sale occurs into seller's place of business. Id. Definition of what is "place of business" is question of law for court, and whether any particular place falls within definition one of fact for jury, except where facts necessary to consititute particular place such are conceded to exist. Jenkins v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 574. Instruction telling jury what would constitute room a place of business held not invasion of province of jury. Bashinski v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 577. Held not necessary to show that liquor was publicly kept. Jenkins v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 574. Means public place of business as distinguished from place of private business, place where public, having business with owner, are impliedly or expressly invited for its transaction, word business being used in sense of trade, commerce, or traffic, and not as synonymous with occupation, vocation, or employment. Roberts v. State [Ga. App.] 60 SE 1082. Statute should be reasonably construed. Id. Whether place of business is public place is question for jury. Id. Room used solely for purpose of storage, which was kept locked, and to which public was not invited and from which they were excluded, and in which no business was transacted, held not place of business. Id. Held not unlawful to keep alcoholic liquors stored in such a room, where it appeared that liquor was never drunk therein or taken therefrom to be drunk, but that it was used by owner only for purpose of making non-alcoholic syrup or drink in private laboratory from which public was also excluded. Id. Where same place or premises is occupied both as place of business and for residential or other private purposes, proprietor cannot lawfully keep intoxicants there during any of the hours when place is open for business, or when members of public are admitted therein. Land v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 665. Intoxicants may be kept there during hours when place is closed to public access and all business has closed and room or premises is devoted to no other than private use, provided they are not allowed to remain there after reopening for business. Id. Mere fact that doors were open or closed not conclusive on question. Id.

91. Laws 1907, p. 1147, c. 806, making it unlawful for any person to bring more than half gallon of liquor into Burke county in any one day, except to druggist for medicinal purposes, held not valid exercise of police power, and unconstitutional in that it unduly restricts right of citizen to use of such classes of persons who may sell and the regulation of such sales;[93] prohibiting the property without any intent to violate any prohibited right in relation to it, taking of prohibited quantity into such county having no reasonable substantial relation to sale of liquors as prohibited by law. State v. Williams, 146 N. C. 618, 61 SE 61. Carrying liquor on the person is transporting it within meaning of Cr. Code 1902, § 589, making it crime to transport liquors from place to place within state by wagon, etc., "or by any other means or mode of carriage." State v. Pope, 79 S. C. 87, 60 SE 234. Where proof showed that defendant had liquor in his possession and was actually selling it, held that it was contraband and not within protection of commerce clause of federal constitution, though purchased out of state. Id. Where defendant was found at church selling liquor from bottles in his possession, held that it could not be contended that there was no evidence that he had transported it from one place to another, there being presumption that he carried it there. Id. Defendant held not within Cr. Code 1902, § 581, providing that liquors purchased outside of state, owned and conveyed by defendant as personal baggage, shall be exempt from seizure when quantity does not exceed one gallon. Id. Act Feb. 16, 1907, § 27, prohibiting transportation of intoxicants for unlawful use "to any place or county" where manufacture and sale are prohibited, held to make it an offense to transport liquor for unlawful use from place to place within a county. State v. Arnold [S. C.] 61 SE 891. Evidence held to make question for jury whether there was transportation for unlawful use. Id.

92. Acts 1906, p. 320, c. 63, making it an offense for carriers and others to deliver, etc., intoxicants in local option territory, making delivery of each package separate offense, and providing that public carriers may deliver intoxicants to licensed druggists in unbroken packages in quantity not to exceed 5 gallons at any one time, construed, and held that delivery by carrier to licensed druggist of unbroken box of whisky containing 5 gallons, and box of grain alcohol containing less than 5 gallons, at same time, was not violation of the act. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Com., 33 Ky. L. R. 855, 111 SW 333. Carrier is not liable if its agents acting in good faith and with due caution are actually deceived as to contents of package delivered to them for shipment. Adams Exp. Co. v. Com., 33 Ky. L. R. 967, 112 SW 577. Evidence held to sustain finding that agents knew or had reason to know that box contained intoxicants and that they were not deceived as to its contents. Id. Agent in such case must exercise same kind of judgment as if he were acting for himself, and what would or ought to convince him that certain facts exist is notice to carrier. Id. In addition to acting in good faith, agents must also exercise ordinary care or due caution to avoid violation of statute. Id. Though, in absence of statutory provision to that effect, carrier has no right of inspection, where it has reasonable suspicion that shipper is attempting to use its vehicle to violate law, it should require enough evidence of legality of shipment to satisfy reasonably prudent mind that suspicion was not well founded. Id. If knows article is contraband, must reject it, no matter what shipper says to contrary. Id. Right to demand assurances, and inspection if same is reasonable and practicable under circumstances, will not be denied as interference with commerce, statute not being for benefit of commerce. Id. Provision of said act that individuals may bring into such district upon their persons or as personal baggage, and for their private use, liquor in quantities not more than 1 gallon, held to apply to private persons only, and not to corporation. Id. Express company cannot be convicted under Acts 1903, p. 130, c. 40, § 1, for unlawfully delivering intoxicants shipped from another state c. o. d. to one in state not licensed to sell such liquor and who had not in good faith ordered same for his own use, transaction being interstate commerce to which statute is inapplicable. State v. U. S. Exp. Co., 63 W. Va. 299, 60 SE 144.

93. Hotels: Building having 10, but less than 16, bedrooms above basement or first floor, if it otherwise complies with liquor tax law and building code, may receive liquor tax certificate and be used as hotel under Laws 1897, c. 312, § 31, though it would not be classed as hotel under New York Building Code, § 10, and be subjected to provisions of that code especially applicable to hotels as defined therein. In re Clement, 113 NYS 392.

Manufacturers: Manufacturer received barrel of whisky from government warehouse after paying tax thereon, barrel being stamped to show such payment. Thereafter he transferred whiskey to 5 gallon kegs, stamping each with stamps furnished free by government for that purpose. Held that sale of such kegs was sale in original packages containing not less than 5 gallons within statute authorizing such sales by manufacturer without license. Bunch v. State [Ark.] 114 SW 239. Acts 1908, c. 189, § 15, relating to sales by licensed manufacturers of malt liquors, construed, and held that manufacturer located in no license territory can make no sale and delivery at place of manufacture, and that manufacturer in license territory can sell and deliver not less than 1 gallon at place of manufacture. Robert Portner Brew. Co. v. Southern Exp. Co. [Va.] 63 SE 6.

Druggists and physicians: On prosecution of druggist for selling in less quantity than 4 gallons, evidence held to show sale and to sustain conviction. State v. Scanlon, 130 Mo. App. 395, 110 SW 16. Title of Laws 1907, p. 297, providing for local option, held sufficiently broad to embrace provisions exempting from its operation sales by druggists for certain purposes and under certain conditions. People v. McBride, 234 Ill. 146, 84 NE 865. Druggist or pharmacist legitimately engaged in that business held to have right, without express authority of law, to have, keep, possess and store certain liquors mentioned in ordinance, as part of necessary drugs or stock in trade of his business, subject to conditions, limitations and restrictions imposed by said ordinance, and that he could be subjected to penalties therein prescribed for having, etc., such liquors only when it appeared that he was or had been dispensing them in violation of such conditions, restrictions and limitations. Town of Selma v. Brewer [Cal. App.] 98 P 61.

renting of rooms to be used for the unlawful sale of liquor;[94] provisions against evasions of the liquor laws;[95] regulations as to place of consumption;[96] denunciation

Where ordinance prohibiting sale or possession of intoxicants authorized sales by druggists under certain conditions and for certain purposes, held that druggist had of necessity right to possess such liquors as he was authorized to sell, and complaint in action against him for having liquors in his possession was demurrable where it failed to allege that he sold or was engaged in business of selling such liquors contrary to provisions of said ordinance, or without permit therein provided for. Id. Druggist selling liquor must comply with Code, § 2394, providing that request must be signed by applicant in his true name, truly dated, stating that applicant is not a minor, his residence, for whom and whose use liquor is required, his true name and residence, and where numbered, by street and number, if in a city. Long v. Joder [Iowa] 116 NW 1063. Is guilty of violation of law if fails to comply even through carelessness alone. Id. If applicant lives in country, must give both county and township of his residence. Id. Sale for medicinal purposes in local option territory may be made only on prescription of regular practicing physician. Williams v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 156, 109 SW 189. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 3047, prescription in order to afford protection to druggist must be in writing and dated and signed by licensed physician, must contain name of person for whom liquor is prescribed, and must state that it is prescribed as necessary remedy. State v. Davis, 129 Mo App. 129, 108 SW 127. Prescriptions described in indictment held not to authorize sale or to be any protection to druggist, and to be of no legal force or effect whatever, so that they could not be made basis for prosecution of physician under § 3050, making it misdemeanor to issue prescription for intoxicants to be used otherwise than for medicinal purposes. Id. Druggist held not to have violated local option law by selling on prescription stating that liquor was intended for buyer, though it was in fact for use of latter's wife, there being no showing of fraud or collusion. St. 1903, § 2558, construed. Commonwealth v. Byers, 33 Ky. L. R. 252, 109 SW 895. Offenses by physicians: Title of Act Aug. 13, 1907 (Acts 1907, p. 727), relating to prescriptions by physicians and others for intoxicants, held sufficiently comprehensive to embrace all matters covered by body of act. McAllister v. State [Ala.] 47 S 161. Statute held not invalid as interfering with personal liberty of a physician, since it embraces all of his class, but to be valid exercise of legislative power. Id. Provision of § 1 that no licensed physician or other person shall write or cause to be written or issued a prescription for more than one-fourth of pint of intoxicants on Sunday, etc., construed, and held that words "other person" apply to licensed physician or one not licensed who assumes to practice medicine, and hence that doctor whose name was signed to prescription by defendant was within act whether licensed or not. Id. Act No. 85, p. 124, of 1886, prohibiting physician from prescribing intoxicants in attempt to evade, or to assist any person in evading, payment of license or any law or ordinance relating to sale of intoxicants, covers but one subject, which is expressed in its title. State v. Breaux [La.] 47 S 876. Statute applies to physician who prescribes intoxicants for purpose of evading, or to assist another in evading, the Sunday law, it not being confined in its operation to evasion or attempt to evade license law. Id. Intent is essential element of offense. Id.

94. To render landlord guilty of violation of St. 1903, § 2567, penalizing one who "knowingly furnishes and rents a room to another" in which liquors are sold in local option territory in violation of local option law, he must know at time of renting that such is its intended use. Indictment held insufficient. Commonwealth v. Conway, 33 Ky. L. R. 996, 112 SW 575. To sustain conviction, must be some evidence tending to show that lessor knew, or had such information as would put person of ordinary prudence upon notice, at or before time lease was entered into, that it was intended to sell liquor on premises in violation of law, knowledge of illegal sales after making lease being insufficient. Commonwealth v. Morris, 33 Ky. L. R. 987, 112 SW 580.

95. In order to sustain conviction for giving away liquor in violation of Wilson's Rev. & Ann. St. 1903, § 3407, gift must be shown to have been made under some "pretext" or subterfuge, for purpose of evading law. Weston v. Ter. [Okl. Cr. App.] 98 P 360. Resident of dry territory arranged with employe of saloonkeeper in wet territory that he might telephone order from dry territory and have same filled. Thereafter he telephoned order to saloon, from which place it was transmitted to brewer in wet territory, who delivered beer to express company in wet territory, and beer was shipped by it to purchaser in dry territory. Held that saloonkeeper was not guilty of shift or device to evade local option laws within meaning of Laws 1907, p. 302, § 13, making such a shift or device an unlawful selling. People v. Young, 237 Ill. 196, 86 NE 589. Opening branch office in another state for purpose of taking advantage of interstate commerce clause held not trick or device to evade local option law. Doores v. Com., 33 Ky. L. R. 69, 109 SW 302.

96. Word "premises" as used in Code, § 2460, prohibiting any person, etc., operating any brewery from permitting drinking of products thereof or selling same at retail upon the premises of such brewery, held to include only buildings occupied by and grounds used in connection with such establishment, and not saloon in same building for which it paid mulct tax, though there was entrance from brewery into saloon through office of brewery's manager, where latter entrance was not used by any one to obtain beer, and employes who were entitled to beer under their contracts obtained same from saloon which they entered through public entrance from street. Orke v. McManus [Iowa] 115 NW 580. Term "business or occupation" as used in Gen. Laws 1905, p. 81, c. 64, making it offense for any person, etc., engaged in business or occupation of keeping or storing intoxicants in any county, etc., where sale has been prohibited, to permit any one to drink any intoxicants in of places where liquors are sold as nuisances,[97] or as disorderly houses;[98] regulations as to the manner in which licensees must conduct their places of business;[99] his place of business, defined, and definition in instruction held too restrictive as applied to facts. Cohen v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 422, 110 SW 66.

97. For abatement of traffic as nuisance, see § 8, post. Any person in any way concerned in keeping or owning intoxicating liquor with intent to violate provisions of Code, § 2404, providing for punishment of any person keeping or maintaining, or aiding or assisting in keeping or maintaining, any clubrooms in which intoxicants are kept for use, gift, sale, etc., is guilty also of violation of Id. § 2382, prohibiting any person from disposing of or owning or keeping any intoxicants with intent to violate law; and if he uses any particular place for owning or keeping such intoxicants for any of the prohibited purposes, he is also guilty of maintaining nuisance under provisions of Id. § 2384. State v. Johns [Iowa] 118 NW 295. Where unlawful sales were shown for purpose of proving intent with which liquors were kept upon premises, held that fact that no sales were proved subsequent to given date raised no presumption in favor of defendant that his unlawful intent ceased on that date. Id. Where intent with which liquors were kept on premises was shown by proof of unlawful sales, such intent would be presumed to continue until contrary appeared. Id. Where state traced liquor consigned to defendant with his knowledge to particular rooms, proved presence of defendant there, and that some of liquor was disposed of to witness while defendant was there, and that witness paid assessment for some purpose, held that there was sufficient evidence to warrant finding that defendant was owning and keeping intoxicants at particular place with intent to violate law, and that he was therefore using said place for purposes prohibited within meaning of statute. Id. Where liquors were consigned to defendant with his knowledge, held that state was entitled to presumption that they were owned by him. State v. Johns [Iowa] 118 NW 295. Evidence in action to enjoin liquor nuisance held to sustain judgment for plaintiff. Bohstedt v. Shanks [Iowa] 116 NW 812. Since offense of maintaining nuisance may be committed in dwelling house or any other kind of house, complaint in criminal prosecution need not state kind of house in which nuisance was kept and maintained, or negative fact that it was dwelling house. City of Ft. Scott v. Dunkerton [Kan.] 96 P 50. On prosecution for maintaining nuisance in violation of dispensary law, evidence held sufficient to go to jury. State v. Nelson, 79 S. C. 97, 60 SE 307.

98. Acts 30th Leg. p. 246, c. 132, declaring house in which liquors are sold or kept for sale without license to be a disorderly house, and making it an offense to keep such a house, held not in conflict with Const. art. 8, § 35, providing that no statute shall contain more than one subject, which shall be expressed in its title. Joliff v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 61, 109 SW 176. Even though title of act is not sufficiently broad to embrace matter in art. 359a attempted to be added to Pen. Code 1895, that fact does not invalidate balance of act, since such matter is separable. Id. Said statute held not impliedly repealed by Acts 30th Leg. c. 138, §§ 4, 5, 6, 27, prohibiting sale without license. Id. Statute held applicable in local option territory as well as in territory where license could be obtained. Id. Statute held not in conflict with Const. art. 16, § 20, requiring legislature to adopt local option law. Id.

99. Act 1907, p. 518, being an act to further regulate opening, closing and operating of saloon and the giving away or selling of intoxicants, held not to violate Const. § 61, providing that no act shall be so altered or amended on its passage through either house as to change its original purpoee (Fourment v. State [Ala.] 46 S 266), or Const. § 45, providing that each law shall contain hut one subject, which shall be expressed in its title (Id.). Even if § 2, prohibiting delivering of intoxicants during prohibited hours, is invalid because not within title, validity of balance of act is not affected thereby. Id. Word "saloon" as used in title means place where intoxicating liquors are sold. Id. Code, § 2448, prohibiting sale of intoxicants in room having more than one entrance, held not to apply to brewery, so that latter was not operated illegally though it had entrance into saloon run by it which also had entrance onto street, and was therefore operated in violation of law. Orke v. McManus [Iowa] 115 NW 580. Evidence held to show that defendant was interested with his bartender in operating pool and card tables in back room in connection with his saloon in aid or promotion of sales of liquors at the bar, and hence was guilty of violation of Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7283b, requiring licensed retailer of intoxicants to provide for sale of such liquors in a room separate from any other business of any kind. Mason v. State [Ind.] 83 NE 613. Subleasing of room to bartender, etc., held mere subterfuge to evade law. Id. Saloon held operated in connection with disorderly house authorizing cancellation of liquor tax certificate. In re Clement, 58 Misc. 257, 110 NYS 893. Ordinance prohibiting furnishing of food by licensed dealers in connection with intoxicants under penalty of fine or imprisonment held to define criminal offense within Const. art. 1, § 7, which prohibits putting any person twice in jeopardy. City of St. Paul v. Stamm [Minn.] 118 NW 154.

Permitting females in saloons: Ordinance prohibiting licensees from harboring or employing females in or about their places of business or permitting them to resort there for purpose of drinking held not unconstitutional as unwarranted discrimination against rights of females or an infringement on their equal rights, privileges and immunities, but to be valid exercise of police power. People v. Case [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 363, 116 NW 558. City held to have power under its charter to pass such ordinance. Id. On prosecution for suffering or permitting females to be or remain in saloon for purpose of being supplied with liquor, in violation of Rev. Codes, § 8385, evidence held to warrant finding that defendant was, for time being, in actual charge and control of saloon when sales to females were made. State v. Conway [Mont.] 98 P 654.

requiring the filing of lists of names of persons employed in saloons;[1] prohibiting the opening of places of sale and selling or furnishing liquors on certain days[2] and 1906, p. 203), dividing liquor dealers into two classes, first consisting of hotel and restaurant keepers, etc., and second of saloonkeepers, and providing certain regulations which are made applicable to second class and not to first, held not to contravene 14th amendment of federal constitution. Meehan v. Jersey City Excise Com'rs [N. J. Err. & App.] 70 A 363, afg. [N. J. Law] 64 A 689. Nor is such section in conflict with Const. art. 4, § 11, subd. 11, prohibiting private, local or special laws, regulating internal affairs of municipalities, or granting exclusive immunities, privileges or franchises. Id. Said section held to subject inns and taverns, as well as hotels, to restrictions therein mentioned, unless they have at least 10 spare rooms and beds for accommodation of boarders, transients and travelers. Id. Fact that § 5 of said act, relating to appointment of excise commissioners, is unconstitutional, held not to affect validity of remainder of act. Meehan v. Jersey City Excise Com'rs. [N. J. Err. & App.] 70 A 363, afg. [N. J. Law] 64 A 689. In proceedings under supplement of 1906 (P. L. 1906, p. 109), to act of 1899 (P. L. p. 77) for forfeiture of license of an inn and tavern for noncompliance with provision that if license be not in an inn and tavern or hotel having at least 10 spare rooms and beds for accommodation of guests, etc., interior shall be exposed to view from street at all times when sale of liquor is prohibited by law, complaint must show that inn and tavern whose license is sought to be revoked did not have such accommodations for guests as to bring it within class exempted by statute. Cuirczak v. Keron [N. J. Law] 70 A 366. Movable screen maintained in front of saloon sufficient to obstruct view of interior through door or window held violation of Cobbey's St. 1907, § 7179. Woods v. Varley [Neb.] 118 NW 1114. Employe of saloonkeeper who works in and around saloon cannot be held guilty of violation of § 7179 by reason of fact that screens are maintained in violation thereof, but if he can be held guilty of violation of said section at all, it must appear that he actively participated in placing or maintaining or causing to be placed or maintained, the forbiddsn screens or other obstructions. In re Adamek [Neb.] 118 NW 109. Obstruction of view of interior of saloon by screen at end of bar and by permitting pasting of advertising bills over window held violation of Laws 1881, c. 61, § 29, rendering licensee guilty of misdemeanor. Bolton v. Becker [Neb.] 119 NW 14. Screen held violation of said section. Woods v. Kirvohlavek [Neb.] 118 NW 1115.

1. Code, § 2448, subd. 4, construed, and held that where there are no persons so employed it is necessary to file statement showing that fact. Jones v. Mould [Iowa] 116 NW 733. Held that statute should be strictly construed in proceeding for contempt in violating injunction against unlawful sale of liquor, since such proceeding is quasi criminal in its nature. Id.

2. Sunday: Rev. St. 1899, § 3011, prohibiting dramshop keepers from keeping same open or selling or disposing of intoxicants on Sunday, held not in conflict with Const. art, 4, § 53, prohibiting class legislation. State v. Grossman [Mo.] 113 SW 1074. One charged with violation of said section held not entitled to question constitutionality of Id. § 3013, prohibiting granting license to one convicted of violating statutes relating to dramshops, two sections being separate and distinct. Id. Evidence held to support conviction for operating dramshop on Sunday and selling intoxicants therein on that day. State v. Donahue [Mo. App.] 110 SW 1102. Offense of keeping saloon open on Sunday consists in not keeping it closed, and it is not material whether or not any sale was made on that day, or whether or not any person was seen to enter or depart from the saloon, nor is intent of saloonkeeper in not keeping it closed material. State v. Schell [S. D.] 117 NW 505. City held to have power under its charter to pass ordinance requiring closing of saloons between hours of 9 p. m. and 5 a. m., and on Sunday. Thomas v. Saunders [Fla.] 47 S 796. Ordinance held not in conflict with provision of Laws 1907, p. 41, c. 5597, § 8, that no license issued under that act shall entitle holder thereof to sell between hours of 12 o'clock Saturday night and 12 o'clock Sunday night. Id. Since unlawful sale on Sunday and unlawfully allowing place where liquors are sold to remain open on Sunday are merely different forms of committing same legal offense, unlawful sale on Sunday can be charged as second offense, when first conviction relied upon was for unlawfully allowing saloon to remain open. Jung v. Ohio, 7 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 397. Evidence in proceeding to cancel liquor tax certificate held to show sales not in connection with regular meals ordered and served. In re Clement, 112 NYS 126. On prosecution for unlawfully opening and permitting saloon to be open for traffic and for selling, evidence held insufficient to sustain conviction. Caskey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 108 SW 665. Evidence in proceeding for revocation of license held insufficient to show sale on Sunday. Commonwealth v. Campbell, 32 Ky. L. R. 1131, 107 SW 797.

Election day: Proof that defendant was engaged in saloon business and that his saloon was open by or under his direction on election day held sufficient to show violation of Pen. Code 1895, art. 185, it being unnecessary to show that he sold, gave away, or offered to sell intoxicants. Smith v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 357, 107 SW 353. Sale of liquor on day of school election held violation of Code, § 2448, par. 9, prohibiting sales "on any election day." Hammond v. King, 137 Iowa, 548, 114 NW 1062. Fact that defendant was advised by county attorney, city attorney and chief of police that sale on school election day was not illegal held no defense, intent not being an essential element of offense. Id. Fact that defendant entered saloon alone for sole purpose of procuring his registration certificate, without which he could not vote, held not to render him guilty of violation of St. 1903, § 2565. Thompson v. Com., 32 Ky. L. R. 714, 107 SW 223. Evidence on prosecution for giving away whisky on election day held to make during certain hours;[3] limiting the number of licenses to be issued;[4] the designation of saloon limits;[5] prohibiting the selling of liquor in certain vicinities,[6] or in question for jury, so that it was error to direct verdict of guilty. Latch v. State, 84 Ark. 620, 106 SW 944. Evidence held not to require reversal of finding that applicant for license did not sell liquor on certain election day. In re Adamek [Neb.] 118 NW 109.

NOTE: "Keeping open" as applied to retail liquor stores or bar rooms implies a readiness to do business therein (Lynch v. People, 16 Mich. 472; Munzebrock v. State, 10 Ohio Dec. 277), and such a place is "open" when liquors are dispensed therein or therefrom, notwithstanding the fact that the usual means of ingress or egress are closed (Blahut v. State, 34 Ark. 447; Harvey v. State, 65 Ga. 568; Kroer v People, 78 Ill. 294), or that the bar is concealed by a screen marked "Bar closed" (Hussey v. State, 69 Ga. 54), or that but a single person is entertained (People v. James, 100 Mich. 522, 59 NW 236), or that the bar tender alone helps himself to liquor (People v. Crowley, 90 Mich. 366, 51 NW 617), or that the bar tender is absent and patrons are allowed to help themselves (People v. Cummerford, 58 Mich. 328, 25 NW 203), or that only employes are allowed therein and patrons are served with liquor in another room (Cooper v State, 88 Ga. 441, 14 SE 592; Harmon v. State, 92 Ga. 455, 17 SE 666; People v. Whipple, 108 Mich. 587, 66 NW 490; Peope v. Cox, 70 Mich. 247, 38 NW 235; People v. Ringsted, 90 Mich. 371, 51 NW 519; People v. Koob, 109 Mich. 358, 67 NW 320), or that the liquor is served in an adjacent room from a stock temporarily kept therein (People v. Ringsted, 90 Mich. 371, 51 NW 519). On the other hand, such a place has been held not "open" within the statutory meaning when persons are permitted to enter for another purpose than that of securing liquor (State v. Gregory, 47 Conn. 276; Patten v. Centralia, 47 Ill. 370; Weidman v. People, 7 Ill. App. 38; Miller v. State, 68 Miss. 553, 9 S 289; Lincolnton v. McCarter, 44 N. C. 429). In some jurisdictions, however, the rule is more strict, and the opening of such a room for any purpose (Baldwin v. Chicago, 68 Ill. 418; Klug v. State, 77 Ga. 734; Monses v. State, 78 Ga. 110; People v. Cox, 70 Mich. 297, 38 NW 235; People v. Woldoogel, 49 Mich. 337, 13 NW 620; Lederer v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. 623; Effinger v. State, 9 Ohio C. C. 376; State v. Helbel, 54 Ohio St. 321, 43 NE 328; McKinney v. Nashville, 96 Tenn. 79, 33 SW 724) or of rooms adjacent and connected (People v. Hughes, 97 Mich. 534, 56 NW 942; People v. Higgins, 56 Mich. 159, 22 NW 309; People v. Cox, 70 Mich 247, 38 NW 235; People v. Hughes, 90 Mich. 368, 51 NW 518) will constitute an "opening" of the bar room. [Ed.]

3. City held to have power under its charter to pass ordinance requiring closing of saloons between hours of 9 p. m. and 5 a. m., and on Sunday. Thomas v. Saunders [Fla.] 47 S 796. Village ordinance providing that all saloons should remain closed during certain hours, "unless by special permission of the president," held void as attempting to confer arbitrary power on an executive officer and allowing him, in executing ordinance, to make unjust and groundless discriminations among persons similarly situated. Village of Little Chute v. Van Camp [Wis.] 117 NW 1012. Held void also because legislative power to regulate saloons is lawmaking power vested in village board by St. 1898, § 893, subd. 26, which cannot be delegated. Id. Provision giving president power to suspend operation of ordinance at will held a compensation for first part of ordinance, so that its invalidity rendered whole ordinance void. Id.

4. St. 1903, § 3704, subd. 4, providing that in towns of sixth class which have voted in favor of sale trustees shall have no right, power, privilege, or discretion to refuse licenses, held not to deprive board of reasonable discretion to limit number of licenses that shall be granted. Schweirman v. Highland Park [Ky.] 113 SW 507. Refusal to issue license to one otherwise qualified held not arbitrary or capricious exercise of authority, or an abuse of discretion, where thers were already 4 licensed saloons in town. Id. Excise board has discretionary power to limit number of licenses. In re Jugenheimer [Neb.] 116 NW 966. This is especially true in cities where board is charged with duty of policing city and maintaining peace and good order therein, but is limited in number of officers which it may appoint and maintain for that purpose. Id.

5. Power to regulate held to give city power to restrict location of saloons, though charter did not confer it in express terms. Churchill v. Common Council [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 379, 116 NW 558. Bal. Ann. Codes & St. § 2934, conferring upon mayor and council power to regulate, restrain, license, or prohibit sale of intoxicants in town of Pasco, held not impliedly repealed by Id. § 1011, subd. 10, conferring on municipalties of fourth class power to license sale of intoxicants for purpose of regulation and revenus. State v. Franklin County Superior Ct. [Wash.] 94 P 1086. Power conferred by § 1011 held to include power to refuse license, and to restrict locality in which business should be carried on. Id. Municipal officers in restricting localities in which business might be carried on and in granting or refusing licenses held to be exercising legislative functions, so that their acts in so doing could not be reviewed or controlled by courts. Id. City ordinance prohibiting issuing of licenses within certain described territory, with exception of one lot on which dramshop was being conducted, held unreasonable and void. Moore v. Danville, 232 Ill. 307, 83 NE 845. Const. art. 16, § 20, requiring legislature to enact local option law, held not to preclude legislature from establishing saloon limits within cities and towns, that being in no sense a prohibition law, but merely a regulation of sale. Williams v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 371, 107 SW 1121. Provision of charter of city of Dallas, art. 12, subd. 2 Sp. Laws 1907, p. 646, c. 71), that no person shall establish or maintain saloon within certain prescribed limits, held to merely authorize the inhibition of the saloon. Id. Provision that commissioners shall never have power to authorize establishment and maintenance of saloons in territory known as Oak Cliff, and that Fair Park shall not be included in prohibited limits, held bare legislative declaration, and not in conflict with state or federal constitutions as denying equal protection of law. Id. Ordinance adopted pursuant to charter held not invalid on theory that charter provision delegates to city authorities in control of said park power to suspend said charter provision and ordinance establishing saloon limits, in so far as said park is concerned. Id. Limits as fixed by charter and ordinance adopted pursuant thereto held sufficiently definite, notwithstanding slight discrepancies in calls of boundaries and clerical errors. Id. Exemption of Oak Cliff held constitutional whether such territory be regarded as local option district or additional exempt territory. Id. Fact that ordinance did not except from its provisions Oak Cliff and Fair Park held not to render it invalid. Id. Charter provision and ordinance enacted pursuant thereto held not unconstitutional as attempt on part of legislature to delegate its power to suspend a general law. Andreas v. Beaumont [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 614. Ordinance held not void as unjust and unreasonable discrimination because it permitted those who had previously obtained licenses to conduct business outside limits thereby fixed to continue in business until such licenses expired. Id. Such provision held not to be void as unequal and nonuniform taxation because after its passage occupation tax of those within limits was increased and increase did not apply to those conducting business outside of limits under unexpired licenses, since if either ordinance was void for that reason it was one increasing tax. Id. Sp. Laws 1907, p. 661, c. 73, amending charter of city of Galveston by adding provision authorizing board of commissioners to license, tax, regulate, and prescribe location of places where intoxicants are sold, held in conflict with Const. art. 3, § 36, providing that no law shall be revived or amended by reference to its title, etc. Henderson v. Galveston [Tex.] 114 SW 108. Charter provision held not unconstitutional on ground that method prescribed by constitution whereby sale of intoxicants may be prohibited is exclusive, fixing of saloon limits being mere regulation of liquor traffic and in no sense a prohibition thereof. Ex parte King, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 383, 107 SW 549. Charter provision and ordinance enacted pursuant thereto held not to violate Const. art. 1, § 28, as delegation of legislative authority to vacate, suspend, etc., laws of state. Henderson v. Galveston [Tex.] 114 SW 108. Such charter provision held not invalid as delegation of legislative power. Id. Charter provisions held not in conflict with Acts 30th Leg. p. 260, c. 138, § 10, providing that if place of business be in any block in city where there are more bona fide residences than business houses, or in any block where there is a church or school, petition must be accompanied with written consent of majority of householders of residences in said block. Williams v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 371, 107 SW 1121. Ordinance adopted pursuant to express authority conferred on city council of Beaumont by charter held not to be void as in conflict with said statute. Andreas v. Beaumont [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 614. Laws 1907, p. 258, c. 138, providing for licensing saloons, etc., held not to have repealed charter provision fixing saloon limits, or render invalid ordinance adopted pursuant thereto. Williams v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 371, 107 SW 1121; Ex parte King, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 383, 107 SW 549.

6. Churches, etc.: Building built for dwelling house and occupied by two families held not used "exclusively" for church purposes within Laws 1896, c. 112, § 24, subd. 2, as amended by Laws 1900, c. 312, though owned by church organization and though parlor floor was used for regular church services. In re Finley, 58 Misc. 639, 110 NYS 71. Entrance to saloon held to be within 200 feet of church, attempted closing of such entrance and establishment of new one or another street being mere subterfuge. Id. Liquor tax law is to be liberally construed that it may accomplish purpose of its enactment, but its provisions must be given reasonable interpretation, and its prohibitions not extended to cases and situations not covered thereby. Id. Under P. L. 1906, p. 203, c. 114, § 4, no license can be granted to sell liquor by less measure than one quart in any new place within 200 feet of curtilage of church edifice, measured between nearest point of same and nearest point of building wherein such liquors are intended to be sold, though entrance to latter building is more than 200 feet distant from church curtilage. Lanning v. Burlington Excise Com'rs [N. J. Law] 68 A 1083. Act 1896 (P. L. 1896, p. 53), providing that no new license shall be granted to sell intoxicants within one mile from outside limits of any land controlled by any incorporated camp meeting association used for religious worship, or for any purpose for which such association is formed, held not unconstitutional as special legislation regulating internal affairs of cities. Sexton v. Asbury Park Excise Com'rs [N. J. Law] 69 A 470. Said act held to limit power to license conferred on board of excise commissioners of cities by P. L. 1902, p. 628, and not to have been repealed by latter act. Id.

Schools, colleges and academies: Gen. St. 1902, § 2647, as amended by Pub. Acts 1907, p. 750, c. 200, providing that no license, except renewal of a license, at discretion of county commissioners as to suitability of person or place, shall be granted within 200 feet from a schoolhouse, nor in such proximity to charitable institution, whether supported by public or private funds, as may be detrimental to same, held to give commissioners discretionary power to renew license, though school had been erected within 200 feet of applicant's place of business, should they be of opinion that his saloon was suitable place for sale of liquors. Appeal of Schusler [Conn.] 70 A 1029. Held that no place could, with propriety, be deemed suitable which was so near to any building occupied by charitable institution that its use as saloon would be detrimental to purposes of such institution. Id. Parochial school held charitable institution, though supported by private funds. Gen. St. 1902, §§ 3990, 4026. Id. Fact that site for parochial school was bought years after establishment of saloon, in close proximity to it, and after applicant had become owner of school property, held not to deprive commissioners of right to refuse to renew license because of proximity of school. Id. Value of saloon property held immaterial. Id. Proof that in other cases commissioners had renewed license to some other person to sell liquor at some other place not far from school or church held immaterial, powers of commissioners in dealing with each application being unfettered by what they may have done in dealing with any other. Id. Refusal to renew license because of erection of parochial school within 75 feet of applicant's saloon held not abuse of discretion. Id. Acts 1877, p. 180, prohibiting sales within 3 miles of certain academy in Emanuel county, held not repealed by Acts 1882, p. 601, and Acts 1887, p. 849, amending license law relating to said county, or by Acts 1900, p. 425, giving council of city in said county certain powers relating to intoxicants Pughsley v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 886. Evidence held to show that sale of liquor was within 5 miles of state university. Borroum v. State [Miss.] 47 S 480. Act May 10, 1907 (Laws 1907, p. 257), providing that no license shall be granted to keep dramshop within 5 miles of any state educational institution "which now has" 1,500 or more students enrolled, held void under Const. 1875, art. 4, § 53, prohibiting special or local legislation, there being but one institution to which it could apply. State v. Turner, 210 Mo. 77, 107 SW 1064. Applicant who had complied with all statutory requirements as to obtaining license held entitled to question constitutionality of said statute. Id.

State hospitals: Sale of liquor more than half mile from state hospital buildings, but within 75 feet of tract on which hospital was situated and which was used for hospital purposes, held violation of Laws 1896, c. 112, § 24, as amended by Laws 1905, c. 104, though lands within half mile of defendant's place were used for agricultural purposes. In re Clement, 110 NYS 57.

Residential and manufacturing districts: Renewal within meaning of Gen. St. 1902, § 2647, as amended by Pub. Acts 1907, c. 200, providing that no license "except the renewal of a license," at discretion of county commissioners as to suitability of person and place, shall be granted in the purely residential and manufacturing parts of a town, is granting to same person same privilege granted to him the previous year to sell in same place, and on review court is not required to treat petition for removal permit as application for renewal. Appeal of Bormann [Conn.] 71 A 502. License granting same privilege to same person to sell in same place specified in his license of previous year is renewal within meaning of § 2647, but license to different person to sell in said place is not. Appeal of Stavolo [Conn.] 71 A 549. Whether or not a certain place is a suitable place for a saloon is question of fact. Id. Neither the proper granting of renewal license for certain location in manufacturing and resedential district, which under § 2647 commissioners, in their discretion as to suitability of person and place, were authorized to grant, nor improper granting to licensee of permit to remove to more unsuitable location, held to have rendered former location, as matter of law upon facts found, suitable place for which to grant license which was not renewal. Id. Loc. Acts 1907, p. 324, authorizing certain towns to establish dispensaries, held not to repeal Acts 1851-52, prohibiting sales within 4 miles of any factory, so that establishment of dispensary within 4-mile limit was unauthorized. Town of Tallassee v. Toombs [Ala.] 47 S 308.

7. Gen. St. 1902, § 2674, prohibiting sale of intoxicants in any building belonging to or under control of "any county or town in the state," held not to apply to cities, and hence not to prohibit sale in building erected by lessees on land owned by city. Appeal of Camp, 80 Conn. 272, 68 A 444.

8. Minors: Licensed dramshop keeper selling to minor may be prosecuted either under Rev. St. 1899, § 3009, as amended by Acts 1905, p. 141, or under Rev. St. 1899, § 2179. State v. Hamill, 127 Mo. App. 661, 106 SW 1103. Fact that sale was made with written consent of parent or guardian is defense to prosecution under § 2179, but not to prosecution under § 3009 as amended. Id. Sale or delivery by licensee is violation of Laws 1903, p. 88, c. 95, § 15, as amended by Laws 1905, p. 450, c. 49, § 9, punishable under Laws 1903, p. 93, c. 95, § 33, as amended by Laws 1905, p. 456, c. 49, § 18. State v. Bean [N. H.] 71 A 216. Offense is made out by proof that defendants were licensed in certain town and then and there sold intoxicants to minor. Id. Where agent of licensee sells or furnishes in violation of Cobbey's St. 1907, § 7157, both are guilty of misdemeanor. In re Phillips [Neb.] 118 NW 1098. One acting merely as agent of purchaser cannot be convicted of selling. Moseley v. State [Ala.] 47 S 193. Intent is not essential element of offense of selling in violation of Laws 1904, Act No. 115, p. 134, § 20, and § 23, condition 5. State v. Gilmore, 80 Vt. 514, 68 A 658. Is not necessary to prove that defendant knew person to whom he sold was minor. Gaul v. People, 136 Ill. App. 445. Under St. 1898, § 1558, sale to minor without written authority of his parent or guardian is ground for revocation of license, regardless of licensee's intent. State v. Wausau [Wis.] 118 NW 810. Licensee held liable for sale by his employe without his knowledge, though he had previously instructed all his employes not to sell to minors. State v. Gilmore, 80 Vt. 514, 68 A 658. Licensee is answerable for sale by his agent, though he was absent from place of business at the time and had instructed such agent not to make forbidden sales. State v. Wausau [Wis.] 118 NW 810. Whether defendant exercised due diligence to find out minor's age, and was honestly mistaken, is question for jury. Askew v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 737. One charged with violation of 19 Del. Laws, c. 646, § 14, as amended by 21 Del. Laws, c. 246, § 1, must satisfy jury that he used that degree of care and diligence to ascertain whether person to whom it is alleged he sold was not under 21 years of age which a reasonably prudent and cautious person would exercise under like circumstances, charged with a like duty. State v. Salkowski [Del.] 69 A 839. If he uses such diligence and is reasonably and honestly deceived, he is not guilty. Id.

Intoxicated persons: Term "knowingly sell" as used in Acts 1908, c. 189, §§ 19, 27, held referable to condition of person to whom liquor is sold, and not to the sale, so that

Dispensary system. See 10 C. L. 441—Statutes in some states make provision for the establishment of public dispensaries for the sale of intoxicants[10] and prohibit sales except in such dispensaries.[11] Such dispensaries have been held to be state agencies, and their officers, officers of the government, and hence not subject to suit in the absence of an express statutory provision to the contrary.[12] The federal licensee was criminally liable for sale during his absence by his son who was employed by him in bar room and intrusted with conduct of same. O'Donnell v. Com. [Va.] 62 SE 373. Intent is not essential element of offense, and proof of sale by principal or by his clerk or agent is all that is necessary to make out offense, provided sale by clerk or agent is made in conduct of business with which he was charged by principal. Id. Rule holding that principal is bound for acts of his agent done without his authority or in violation of his instructions is exception to general rule that doctrine of respondeat superior does not apply in criminal cases, and is based on doctrine that licensee engages in business at his peril and is bound to see that requirements of law are complied with. Id. Evidence held to show that person to whom sale was made was intoxicated, and that such fact was apparent to anyone having occasion to observe his condition. Id.

Habitual drunkards: It is violation of liquor laws for bartender or employe of licensed dealer to sell liquor to habitual drunkard, though no penalty is provided therefor. Cobbey's St. 1907, §§ 7159, 7161. In re Adamek [Neb.] 118 NW 109.

Persons in the habit of getting intoxicated: A person "who is in the habit of getting intoxicated" within meaning of Dramshop Act, c. 43, § 6, making it an offense to sell intoxicating liquor to such a person, is one having the involuntary tendency to become intoxicated which is acquired by frequent repetition, and proof of a fixed habit is not essential. Giroux v. People, 132 Ill. App. 562. Evidence held to authorize finding that person to whom liquor was sold was in habit of getting intoxicated. Id. Evidence held to sustain finding that defendant sold intoxicating liquor to such person. Id. Is not necessary to allege or prove that defendant knew that person to whom sale was made was in habit of getting intoxicated. Gaul v. People, 136 Ill. App. 445.

Convicts: Indictment for selling or giving intoxicants to convict in violation of Cr. Code 1896, § 4554, need not allege that convict was confined in any particular place, it being sufficient if he was serving a sentence at time of alleged offense. Askew v. State [Ala.] 46 S 751.

9. Ordinance making it an offense for minor to purchase liquor held not invalid as discriminatory between persons of same class because making distinction between minors having written permission of parents, guardian or family physician and those who have not such permission. Fitch v. Lewistown, 137 Ill. App. 570. Ordinance held not invalid as inconsistent with Dramshop Act, § 14, which provides that in all cases persons to whom liquor has been sold in violation of act shall be competent witnesses, on theory that imposition of penalty on minor for violation of ordinance would operate to deprive state of proof to which it is entitled in prosecutions for violation of provisions of Dramshop Act imposing penalty on saloonkeepers for selling to minors. Id.

10. Loc. Acts 1907, p. 324, authorizing towns and cities in precinct No. 3 in Elmore county to establish dispensaries, held not to repeal Acts 1851-52, p. 262, prohibiting sale of liquor within four miles of any factory, so that establishment of dispensary by any such town within four-mile limit was unauthorized. Town of Tallassee v. Toombs [Ala.] 47 S 308. Petition to enjoin election commissioners from holding special election on question of maintaining dispensaries in certain county, based on ground that county supervisor was in error in holding that petition asking for election was signed by requisite number of electors, denied, there being plain and adequate remedy at law, and no property rights justifying interference by injunction being involved. Little v. Barksdale [S. C.] 63 SE 308. Creation of new county. Under Act Feb. 14, 1908 (25 Stat. 1279), creating Calhoun County out of portions of Lexington and Orangeburg counties, and Act Feb. 16, 1907 (25 Stat. 464), providing for continuation of existing dispensaries until voted out, held that it was duty of dispensary board of Orangeburg county to maintain dispensaries existing in territory taken from that county to form part of Calhoun county until creation of dispensary board for Calhoun county, or until dispensaries were voted out of latter county in manner provided by said act of 1907. Amerker v. Taylor [S. C.] 62 SE 7.

11. Act 1907, § 14 (Loc. Laws 1907, p. 884), making it unlawful to sell liquor in town of Florala except by a dispensary to be established thereunder, is good law to prohibit, if otherwise valid. Ex parte Hall [Ala.] 47 S 199. Act held not unconstitutional as granting special privileges to dispensary commissioners. Id. Act held not invalid as conferring legislative power on town, though it establishes prohibition unless town opens dispensary, since fact that opening of dispensary is not made mandatory does not give town authority to legislate, nor does town legislate by failing to open dispensary. Id. Even if act authorized town to discontinue dispensary at will, which it does not, such option may be delegated to municipality, and its exercise by latter would not be legislation on its part. Id. By its express provisions act of 1907 (25 Stat. 480), repealing dispensary law, does not preclude prosecution for violations of latter law theretofore committed. State v. Williams, 79 S. C. 101, 60 SE 229.

12. Action under civil damage act against dispensary and dispensary commissioners and manager, for damages for illegal sale of whiskey to plaintiff's minor son, held properly dismissed on demurrer. Fowler v. Rome Dispensary [Ga. App.] 62 SE 660. Words "any person" as used in Civ. Code 1895, § 3871, giving right of action to father in certain cases against any person selling or furnishing liquor to his minor son, do not include courts have, however, held that the commission appointed to close out the North Carolina state dispensary are not officers of the state discharging duties in its behalf,[13] that suits instituted against them by creditors of the dispensary are not suits against the state,[14] that said commission is not a court of the state,[15] and that such creditors may maintain suits in equity in the federal circuit court for the purpose of compelling the allowance and payment of their claims.[16]

§ 5. Penalties and forfeitures. See 10 C. L. 442—Summary proceedings at the instance of the state are treated in a subsequent section.[17] An action to recover a penalty is sometimes regarded as a civil action.[18] When held to be quasi criminae, defendant is entitled to a presumption of innocence[19] and his guilt must be proved by a clear preponderance of the evidence.[20]

Actions on liquor dealer's bonds for the benefit of individuals injured by their breach are treated in a subsequent section,[21] the treatment in this section being confined to actions for the benefit of the state or municipality. The necessity for and the form and sufficiency of such bonds have already been considered.[22] They are ordinarily confined in their operation to the premises covered by the dealer's license.[23] The licensing authorities, as a rule, have no authority to release sureties from liability for previous breaches.[24] The usual rules of evidence apply in actions state or its officers or agents. Id. Since dispensaries are prohibited from selling to minors, such a sale would be ultra vires for which dispensary could not be held liable, even if it could be sued. Id.

13. Members of South Carolina State Dispensary Commission, appointed pursuant to Sess. Laws 1907, p. 835, No. 402, held merely agents of state empowered to take possession of certain fund and directed to administer it in particular manner. Murray v. Wilson Distilling Co. [C. C. A.] 154 F 1, afg. 161 F 152.

14. Suit against members of commission by creditors to compel adjustment and payment of their claims held not one against state within U. S. Const. Amend. 11. Murray v. Wilson Distilling Co. [C. C. A.] 164 F 1, afg. 161 F 152. Held further that to uphold contention that debts were those of state, that commissioners represent state which is real party in interest, and that they alone have power to determine validity of claims against fund in case of dispute, would, in case just debt was rejected, deprive creditor of his property without due process of law. Id. Fund in their hands held, by virtue of statute, a fund held in trust for payment of debts therein mentioned, in which creditors of dispensary have property interest to extent that their debts are shown to be just. Id. State's interest in fund held confined to residue after payment of debts of dispensary and to be subordinate to payment of said debts, so that judicial determination of true amount of such debts could in no way affect rights or interests of state. Id. Fund being trust fund in regard to which commissioner's duties are clearly defined, held that state was not indispensable party, though it might, at its election, intervene for purpose of having any rights it might claim determined. Id. Federal circuit court of appeals held not bound to follow decision of supreme court of South Carolina to the contrary which was rendered after decision of federal circuit court that it had jurisdiction, and after latter court had issued injunction and appointed receiver as prayed for in complainant's bill. Murray v. Wilson Distilling Co. [C. C. A.] 164 F 1. Such decision held not binding on circuit court where rendered after decision of that court. Fleischmann Co. v. Murray, 161 F 162.

15. Dispensary commission appointed pursuant to S. C. Sess. Laws 1907, p. 835, No. 402, held not a court within meaning of U. S. Rev. St. § 720, prohibiting federal courts from granting injunctions staying proceedings in state courts. Murray v. Wilson Distilling Co. [C. C. A.] 164 F 1, afg. 161 F 152. Duty of commission to pay all just claims is mandatory, they having no discretion in the matter. Id.

16. Bill and testimony in support thereof held sufficient to authorize decree for injunction and receivers pendente lite. Murray v. Wilson Distilling Co. [C. C. A.] 164 F 1, afg. 161 F 152.

17. See § 7, post.

18. Actions by commonwealth to recover penalties for violation of Sunday closing law held civil, both in form and in their nature. Crim. Code Prac. § 11, Civ. Code, § 92. James v. Helm, 33 Ky. L. R. 871, 111 SW 335.

19. In action to recover penalty for violation of city ordinance prohibiting sale of intoxicants, held proper to instruct that law presumes defendant to be innocent and that such presumption is substantial part of the law of the land. City of Waverly v. Goss, 138 Ill. App. 68.

20. In action to recover penalty for violation of city ordinance prohibiting sale of intoxicants, instruction held not to impose on plaintiff higher degree of proof than that required by law. City of Waverly v. Goss, 138 Ill. App. 68.

21. See § 9, post.

22. See § 3, ante.

23. Retail dealer's bond held to relate to and to be confined in its operation to premises for which liquor tax certificate was to be issued, and not to cover illegal sales by licensee in other parts of state. Clement v. Smith, 113 NYS 55.

24. Excise commissioner held to have no on bonds.[25] Whether there has been a breach of the bond is ordinarily a question of fact for the jury,[26] unless a breach is shown by uncontradicted evidence.[27]

§ 6. Criminal prosecutions. A. General rules of criminal responsibility. See 10 C. L. 444—Liability for violation of particular regulations is treated in a prior section.[28] Reference should also be had to the topics dealing with criminal law and procedure generally.[29] A corporation may be held crimially liable for violation of the liquor laws.[30] The purchaser of intoxicants is not generally regarded as an accomplice of the one who sells them to him.[31] Several sales on the same day to the same person but at different times may constitute separate offenses.[32]

(§ 6) B. Indictment and prosecution.[33] Jurisdiction. See 10 C. L. 445—The jurisdiction of the various courts is regulated by statute.[34]

Indictment, information or complaint. See 10 C. L. 445—The indictment must not charge more than one offense in a single count.[35] Where a statute enumerates a series of acts, either of which separately or all of which together may constitute the offense, all may be charged in a single count,[36] but they must be charged conjuncauthority to make agreement with surety on liquor tax bond given pursuant to Laws 1896, c. 112, § 18, as amended by Laws 1897, c. 312, § 11. Clement v. Empire State Surety Co., 110 NYS 418. While commissioner may determine at given time whether sufficient grounds exist to warrant prosecution on bond, such determination is not absolute so as to bind either himself or his successor not to commence action upon such bond in the future. Id. Statute does not contemplate reduction in amount of penalty based upon doubtful liability or chances of success in maintaining action. Id. Evidence held insufficient to show agreement by commissioner with surety releasing latter from liability on bond in suit. Id. Evidence held insufficient to show any consideration for such agreement even though it was established. Id.

25. In action to recover penalty of liquor tax bond for selling liquor at hotel on Sunday without serving meals, held that, in view of delay in trial, certain general evidence that on occasion in question no liquor was sold without meals was admissible. Clement v. Beers, 110 NYS 99. Statement of waiter in presence of officer who arrested him that he had served them with sandwich with their beer held not evidence of fact that they ordered or were served with sandwich, and to have been incompetent and improperly admitted. Id.

26. Evidence held to make question of fact as to certain violations. Clement v. Beers, 110 NYS 99.

27. In action to recover penalty of liquor tax bond for selling liquor at hotel on Sunday without serving meals, uncontradicted evidence as to particular violation held to require direction of verdict for plaintiff. Clement v. Beers, 110 NYS 99.

28. See § 4, ante.

29. See Criminal Law, 11 C. L. 940; Indictment and Prosecution, 12 C. L. 1.

30. May be indicted and punished for acts of its agents in conduct of its business and which it commands or ratifies, in violation of Pen. Code 1895, § 428, prohibiting soliciting of orders for intoxicants in counties where sale is prohibited. Rose v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 117.

31. Within rule that testimony of accomplice must be corroborated. Gamble v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 544. One purchasing liquor in local option territory. Laws 1887, p. 72, c. 90. Fox v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 150, 109 SW 370. In view of statutory provisions that conviction may be had on uncorroborated testimony of purchaser of intoxicants in local option territory, and fact that supposed accomplice was purchaser, held that refusal to instruct that conviction could not be had on uncorroborated testimony of accomplice was proper. Ross v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 295, 109 SW 152.

32. Sales in violation of local option laws. Alexander v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 553, 110 SW 918. If not parts of same transaction. Robinson v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 567, 110 SW 905.

33. See 10 C. L. 445. For matters applicable to indictment and prosecution generally, reference should be had to the topic Indictment and Prosecution, 12 C. L. 1.

34. Provision of Laws 1896, c. 112, § 85, subd. 1, providing that violations of liquor tax law shall be prosecuted by indictment and in court of record, held not to have been repealed by Rochester City Charter (Laws 1907, c. 755, § 468) so as to give police court of that city exclusive jurisdiction of violations therein. People v. Craig, 111 NYS 909. On prosecution for selling within city limits contrary to city ordinance, held that defendant could not question jurisdiction of city over territory where sales were made and over which it had assumed to exercise jurisdiction. City of Aledo v. Nylin, 139 Ill. App. 527.

35. Affidavit in prosecution under Burns' Ann. St. 1908, § 8351, charging defendant with keeping, running and operating place where liquors were sold in violation of law, and with keeping in his possession intoxicating liquors for purpose of making such unlawful sales, held to charge but one offense. Yazel v. State [Ind.] 84 NE 972. Indictment charging that defendant was engaged in business of selling intoxicants at retail without having paid license and without having receipt and notice posted, in violation of Rev. Pol. Code, § 2834, held to charge but one offense. State v. Mudie [S. D.] 115 NW 107.

36. Complaint charging that defendant did "then and there keep a saloon," etc., where liquors were sold, "and did then and ther sell, dispense," etc., malt beer without having ob-

tively.[37] As a general rule any number of distinct misdemeanors of the same nature may be regarded in separate counts,[38] though there is some conflict of authority in this regard.[39] The same offense may be stated in different ways in different counts to meet the proof.[40]

As in other cases the indictment must charge all the essential elements of the offense[41] directly and positively,[42] and with sufficient particularity and clearness to tained license, in violation of city ordinance, held to state but one offense. In re Johnson, 6 Cal. App. 734, 93 P 199.

37. Indictment for violation of Rev. St. 1899, § 3011, making it offense for licensed dramshop keeper to sell, give away, or otherwise dispose of intoxicants, etc., may in one count charge all facts embraced in said section provided he connects them by the conjunctive conjunction "and," but if they are connected by disjunctive "or," indictment is bad. State v. Grossman [Mo.] 113 SW 1074.

38. Is permissible to join counts charging violation of general prohibition law (Acts 1907, p. 81) with counts charging violations of such laws regulating or prohibiting sales, etc., of intoxicants as may have been in force in particular venue of trial prior to date when such law went into effect, and within period prescribed by statute of limitations. Tooke v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 917.

39. Unlawful sales to two or more minors constitute separate offenses which cannot be properly charged in same indictment, though sales were made at same time. State v. Salkowski [Del.] 69 A 839.

40. Indictment for selling, etc., liquor on Sunday to one not guest of defendant's hotel, in violation of Laws 1896, c. 112, § 31, charging in different counts exposing for sale, sale and delivery, and giving away of same liquor to same named person on same day, held to state but one offense. People v. McDonnell, 108 NYS 749.

41. Indictment for selling without license must allege that sale was contrary to law (Cr. Code 1896, § 5077), though form 79 suggests two different forms. Smith v. State [Ala.] 46 S 753. On prosecution under Dramshop Act, § 7, information must allege that defendant was the keeper of the place, allegation that he sold intoxicating liquor there being insufficient. Grom v. People, 135 Ill. App. 453. Affidavit attempting to charge violation of Act Feb. 13, 1907 (Acts 1907, p. 27, c. 16, Burns' Ann. St. 1908, § 8338 et seq.), and Act March 16, 1907 (Acts 1907, p. 689, c. 293, Burns' Ann. St. 1908, § 8351 et seq.), by keeping liquor for sale without license, held insufficient in that it failed to show that defendant's possession of liquors was for purpose of selling, bartering, or giving them away in violation of law, or, in other words, that purposed sale would have been in violation of a license requirement. Regadanz v. State [Ind.] 86 NE 449. Use of word "unlawfully" held insufficient for that purpose, since pleader departed from language of statute. Id. Indictment charging that defendant maintained common nuisance in house which he held, etc., held not defective for failing to charge that there was such disorder as to disturb peace of neighborhood. Miller v. Com. [Ky.] 113 SW 518.

Character and kind of liquors: Indictment for violating local option law need not state kind, character and name of liquor sold, but it is sufficient to allege that it was intoxicating. Piper v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 485, 110 SW 898. Indictment for selling malt liquors without license in violation of White's Ann. Pen. Code 1895, art. 411a, must allege that liquors were intoxicating. Hardwick v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 832. Description of liquor sold as "fermented and malt liquors" held sufficient, that being definition in Laws 1896, c. 112, § 2. People v. McDonnell, 108 NYS 749. Though Laws 1907, p. 297, provides that in prosecutions thereunder it shall not be necessary to state kind of liquor sold nor name of person to whom it was sold, it does require statement that liquor sold was intoxicating, and hence is not void as changing rule as to burden of proof and quantum of evidence in criminal cases. People v. McBride, 234 Ill. 146, 84 NE 865. Provision held not in contravention of Const. art. 2, § 9, as not informing accused of nature of charge against him. Id. In any event defendant held not entitled to raise question on appeal where he did not object to information on that ground at trial. Id. Under information charging defendant with being engaged in business of selling intoxicating liquors without license, held proper to instruct that defendant might be convicted for selling any mixture containing any percentage of intoxicating liquor, though word "mixture" was not used in information. State v. Ely [S. D.] 118 NW 687.

Time: Time of selling without license need not be alleged. Rev. St. § 1063. State v. Conega, 121 La. 522, 46 S 614. Where indictment shows on its face that prosecution for offense charged would be barred by prescription had not some fact occurred to stop running of same, existence of such fact must be alleged, but where it does not, defendant must plead and affirmatively establish prescription. Id. Indictment for unlawfully selling and delivering intoxicants in violation of Acts 1901-02, p. 601, c. 516, providing for suppression of tippling houses and illegal traffic in ardent spirits in certain counties, held not demurrable for failure to allege precise time when or person to whom sale was made. Runde v. Com. [Va.] 61 SE 792. On prosecution for "engaging in the business" of selling intoxicants without license in violation of Rev. Pol. Code, §§ 2838, 2834, held proper to allege that offense was committed by engaging in the business on specified date and was continued until a specified later date. State v. Ely [S. D.] 118 NW 687. Held not necessary for indictment for selling, etc., liquor on Sunday to one not guest in defendant's hotel in violation of Laws 1896, c. 112, § 31, to state particular time of day of occurrence complained of. People v. McDonnell, 108 NYS 749. Information charging keeping saloon open on Sunday must allege day of month and year as well as day of week on which offense was committed, and offense must be proven to have been com-enable the accused to understand the nature of the charge against him.[43] An indictment for violation of the local option law must show that said law had been adopted and was in force in the county on the date when the offense is alleged to have been committed.[44] Where the statute fully defines the offense, it is sufficient mitted on that day. State v. Schell [S. D.] 117 NW 505. Omission of words "then and there" from complaint charging keeping of liquor nuisance held immaterial where times of doing forbidden acts were definitely stated and concurrence shown. City of Ft. Scott v. Dunkerton [Kan.] 96 P 50.

Place: On prosecution under Dramshop Act, § 7, information must show that place where sale was made was public resort, mere allegation that it was a "room" being insufficient. Grom v. People, 135 Ill. App. 453. On prosecution under Dramshop Act, § 7, where it is sought to have place at which sales are alleged to have been made in violation of the act abated, information must describe location of such place with sufficient particularity so that officer undertaking to execute judgment shall be both guided and protected. Id.

Quantity: Indictment for selling without license in violation of Rev. Laws 1905, § 1519, need not state particular amount sold, but it is sufficient to allege, in words of statute, that it was in quantities less than five gallons. State v. Budworth, 104 Minn. 257, 116 NW 486. Indictment charging sale, etc., "in quantities of less than five gallons at a time," held sufficient, in view of Laws 1896, c. 112, § 2, declaring trafficking in liquors within meaning of act to be sale of less than five wine gallons of liquor. People v. McDonnell, 108 NYS 749.

Name of purchaser: Indictment for keeping saloon open and selling on Sunday need not give name of persons to whom sale was made. State v. Merget, 129 Mo. App. 46, 107 SW 1015. Indictment charging sales without license to "John Doe and divers other persons," without naming them or alleging that their names are unknown, is fatally defective. State v. Delancey [N. J. Law] 69 A 958.

Intent: Information against physician for unlawfully prescribing intoxicants in violation of Act No. 85, p. 124 of 1886, must allege intent. State v. Breaux [La.] 47 S 876.

Allegations as to defendant's business: Information charging offense of making sales as druggist contrary to Comp. Laws 1897, § 5381, must show by some proper averment that defendant had given bond prescribed therein authorizing him to sell liquor for medicinal purposes. Peters v. Eaton Circuit Judge [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 462, 117 NW 68. Allegation that defendant's business "consists in part in the sale of drugs and medicines" held insufficient to show that he had given such bond. Id. Affidavit held insufficient in that so far as appeared therefrom accused might have been licensed druggist and entitled to sell as such. Regadanz v. State [Ind.] 86 NE 449. Information held not to charge defendant with offense of selling as retail liquor dealer where it was not alleged that he had not given the retailer's bond prescribed by Comp. Laws 1897, § 5386. Peters v. Eaton Circuit Judge [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 462, 117 NW 68.

42. Indictment for selling on Sunday to one not guest of defendant's hotel, in violation of Laws 1896, c. 112, § 31, held sufficient. People v. McDonnell, 108 NYS 749. Affidavit that affiant "has cause to believe and does believe that in his opinion" defendant unlawfully delivered liquor in a prohibitory district held fatally defective and insufficient to support judgment. Chappell v. State [Ala.] 47 S 329.

43. Where pleader departs from language of statute, he must charge commission of crime by averment of substantive facts. Regadanz v. State [Ind.] 86 NE 449. Indictment for violation of Laws 1896, c. 112, § 31, held to charge not failure to comply with requirements of law as to hotels but selling, etc., in hotel on Sunday to one to whom defendant as hotelkeeper had no right to sell. People v. McDonnell, 108 NYS 749.

Indictments, etc., held sufficient: Indictment alleging that license law was in force in certain town, that defendants were then and there licensed to sell liquor, and that they then and there unlawfully sold liquor to certain minor, held to charge violation of special provisions of license law (Laws 1903, c. 95, § 15, as amended) by defendants as licensees. State v. Bean [N. H.] 71 A 216. Indictment for conducting bar without license. Huber v. Com., 33 Ky. L. R. 1031, 112 SW 583. Indictment charging violation of Dispensary Act Feb. 16, 1907, § 27, prohibiting transportation of intoxicants for unlawful use to any place or county where sale is prohibited. State v. Arnold [S. C.] 61 SE 891. Indictment held to sufficiently charge sale in county in violation of local option law even if it was insufficient to show sale within 5 miles of university, which is also forbidden by statute. Borroum v. State [Miss.] 47 S 480. Indictment charging keeping disorderly house where liquors were sold or kept for sale without license (Acts 30th Leg. c. 132) drawn with special reference to Wilson's Criminal Forms, No. 218. Joliff v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 61, 109 SW 176. Indictment for selling or giving intoxicants to convict in violation of Cr. Code 1896, § 4554, held to sufficiently negative idea that person to whom liquor was furnished might have been under sentence from a municipality, even if statute does not apply to all convicts. Askew v. State [Ala.] 46 S 751.

Affidavit held insufficient to charge either offense of keeping, etc., place where liquors are sold, etc., in violation of law, or of being found in possession of liquors for purpose of selling, etc., them in violation of law, both of which are denounced by Acts 1907, p. 27, c. 16, § 1 (Burns' Ann. St. 1908, § 8337). Barnhardt v. State [Ind.] 86 NE 481. Use of word "unlawfully" held insufficient to charge that possession was in violation of law. Id.

44. Indictment held sufficient. Starnes v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 403, 107 SW 550. Recitals held not mere conclusions of pleader. Wade v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 184, 109 SW 191. Pleader may charge in detail all facts necessary to show that law had been adopt-to follow its language in charging a violation thereof,[45] substantial accuracy in this regard being sufficient.[46] It is not necessary to negative an exception or proviso in a statute unless it forms a part of the definition of the offense,[47] or is contained in ed in particular county on particular day, or that law had been adopted at particular time and was in force within county on date on which offense is charged. State v. Hall, 130 Mo. App. 170, 108 SW 1077. Indictment alleging that on July 8, 1904, law had been adopted and was in force in county, and charging violation thereof by defendant by selling on Oct. 6, 1906, held insufficient for failure to show that it continued to be in force on latter date. Id. Information alleging that election was held in Sept. 1903, and that sale occurred May 18, 1906, held to sufficiently allege that law was in force when sale was made, law continuing in operation until set aside by vote to that effect. Killman v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 570, 112 SW 92. Is sufficient to allege adoption of prohibition at local option election and due publication of result in general terms, and it is not necessary to specifically plead evidence constituting preliminary steps necessary to put local option law into operation. Indictment held sufficient. Wade v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 608, 108 SW 376. Affidavit and information held to sufficiently allege that commissioners' court had declared result of election. Starbeck v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 192, 109 SW 162. Where indictment showed that votes had determined in favor of prohibition, and that commissioner's court had made order prohibiting sale of intoxicants, held that it was not fatally defective though it did not specifically allege that commissioner's court had declared result of election by order. Williams v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 430, 107 SW 825. Allegation of sale after voters of county had determined that sale should be prohibited "and commissioner's court of said county had passed an order to that effect, which order had been duly published in accordance with law," held sufficient, though not in terms alleging that commissioner's court had declared result of election. Holloway v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 246, 110 SW 745. Allegation that "the commissioner's court of said county did pass and publish an order declaring the result of said election and prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors," etc., held insufficient, statute requiring publication to be made by county judge. Smitham v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 173, 108 SW 1183. Allegation that commissioner's court had caused order to be published in manner and form and for length of time required by law held sufficient. Jones v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 519, 107 SW 849; Watson v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 551, 107 SW 544. General allegation of publication is sufficient without in terms declaring that paper was selected by county judge. Holloway v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 246, 110 SW 745. Indictment held not invalid in that it alleged that commissioners' court did pass and publish order putting law into effect. Benson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 109 SW 168.

45. Indictment for keeping saloon open on Sunday held not defective for failure to allege which of two saloons operated by defendant in county was kept open. State v. Merget, 129 Mo. App. 46, 107 SW 1015. Indictment in form prescribed in Gen. St. 1906, § 3968, charging defendant with carrying on business of liquor dealer in violation of the local option law, need not allege that liquors were intoxicating. Ladson v. State [Fla.] 47 S 517. Offenses denounced by Act Feb. 13, 1907 (Acts 1907, p. 27, c. 16, Burns' Ann. St. 1908, § 8338 et seq.), and Act March 16, 1907 (Acts 1907, p. 689, c. 253, Burns' Ann. St. 1908, § 8351 et seq.), providing that any person keeping place where liquors are sold, etc., in violation of law, or any person found in possession of such liquors for such purpose, shall be guilty of misdemeanor, may be charged in language of statute, except that matters mentioned disjunctively must be charged conjunctively. Regadanz v. State [Ind.] 86 NE 449. On prosecution under Acts 1907, c. 16, § 1, making it an offense to keep place where liquors are sold in violation of law, affidavit describing place in language of statute held sufficient, any particular locality or place not being an ingredient of offense. Donovan v. State [Ind.] 83 NE 744. Nor was it necessary to allege specific sales of liquor, nor to name person or persons to whom sales were made in violation of law. Id. Nor was it necessary to allege that such liquors were sold by defendant while he was owner or proprietor of place. Id. Nor was it necessary to mention particular kind of liquor. Id. Rule does not sanction indictment charging one generally with offense specified in statute without specifying any particular act showing that general provision has been violated. State v. Gibbs, 129 Mo. App. 700, 108 SW 588. Indictment for violation of Rev. St. 1899, § 2991, charging that defendant at certain time and place unlawfully sold "intoxicating liquors in less quantity than three gallons without taking out or having a license," held insufficient. Id. Description in general language of statute must be accompanied by statement of all particulars essential to constitute offense and to acquaint accused with what he must meet on trial. Weston v. Ter. [Okl. Cr. App.] 98 P 360. Information under Wilson's Rev. & Ann. St. 1903, § 3407, providing for punishment of any person who shall "give away upon any pretext," must name person to whom gift was made and state pretext under which it was made. Id. Information for selling in violation of said section must give name of person to whom sale was made. Id.

46. Indictment for selling or giving intoxicants to convict in violation of Cr. Code 1896, § 4554, held sufficient. Askew v. State [Ala.] 46 S 751. Indictment for selling without license using substantially, though not exactly, language of Wilson's Rev. & Ann. St. 1903, § 3407, held sufficient. Reed v. Ter. [Okl.] 98 P 583. On prosecution for permitting females to be or remain in saloon for purpose of being supplied with liquor, in violation of Rev. Codes, § 8385, allegation charging that defendant was "then and there" owner and manager having charge and control of saloon held sufficient to charge him with being in control "for the time being." State v. Conway [Mont.] 98 P 654.

the enacting clause.[48] It is not ordinarily necessary to name the particular law violated.[49] Immaterial matters need not be alleged,[50] nor is it necessary to negative matters of defense.[51] Written instruments on which the prosecution is based may be pleaded either in haec verba or according to their legal effect.[52] Words which if stricken out leave the offense well charged, and which do not tend to negative any essential averment, may be disregarded as surplusage.[53]

Every essential averment must be proved substantially as laid.[54] The state

Yazel v. State [Ind.] 84 NE 972. Affidavit charging violation of that part of Burns' Ann. St. 1908, § 8351, making it an offense to keep, run or operate place where liquors are sold in violation of laws of state, or to be found in possession of such liquors for such purpose, need not allege that defendant was not licensed liquor dealer, or that he was not licensed pharmacist or wholesale liquor dealer. Id. In charging violation of Blind Tiger Law (Acts 1907, p. 27, c. 16, Burns' Ann. St. 1908, § 8338 et seq.), or Acts 1907, p. 689, c. 293 (Burns' Ann. St. 1908, § 8351 et seq.), it is not necessary to negative provisos and limitations therein contained. Regadanz v. State [Ind.] 86 NE 449. Indictment under Rev. St. § 4364-25, charging keeping, within limits of township and without limits of municipal corporation, place where liquors were sold, held not demurrable for failure to contain averments excluding defendant from operation of exception or proviso authorizing manufacture and sale of cider, etc., and sales by druggists in certain cases, since it relates only to offense of selling and not to that of keeping place. Hamilton v. State, 78 Ohio St. 76, 84 NE 601. Complaint charging violation of ordinance fixing saloon limits held not invalidated by fact that it did not except from its provisions certain territory in which charter provided that no saloons should be established or maintained, or a certain park in which charter provided sale might be licensed by city authorities having control thereof. Williams v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 371, 107 SW 1121.

48. Though indictment must negative exceptions in enacting clause, it need not do so in terms of statute, provided as whole it leaves no doubt that accused does not belong to excepted class. Adams Exp. Co. v. Com., 33 Ky. L. R. 967, 112 SW 577. Indictment against express company for violation of Acts 1906, p. 320, c. 63, prohibiting carriers from bringing, etc., intoxicants into local option territory, held sufficient, though it did not in terms negative exception in favor of persons bringing in intoxicants in quantities of less than one gallon on their persons or as their personal baggage and for their private use, since such provision could not apply to company. Id.

49. That being determined from facts alleged in affidavit or indictment. Donovan v. State [Ind.] 83 NE 744. Indictment for unlawfully selling liquor held not bad for failing to allege under which of the two licensing statutes offense was committed. State v. Polk [Del.] 69 A 1006.

50. On prosecution under Acts 1907, c. 16, § 1, making it an offense to keep place where liquors are sold in violation of law, affidavit need not allege that place was inclosed or blinded, secrecy not being an element of the offense. Donovan v. State [Ind.] 83 NE 744. Indictment for engaging in business of selling without license need not show whether license could have been procured at place where selling is alleged to have been committed. State v. Mudie [S. D.] 115 NW 107.

51. Under Rev. Code 1852, p. 419, § 12, as amended in 1893, providing that in prosecutions against vendor of intoxicants it shall not be necessary to allege that defendant had no license, but fact of license shall be matter of defense under plea of not guilty, held that indictment alleging that accused unlawfully sold liquor was sufficient. State v. Polk [Del.] 69 A 1006. Statute held constitutional. Id.

52. Indictment for issuing prescription for intoxicants in violation of law held to sufficiently describe instrument. McAllister v. State [Ala.] 47 S 161. Indictment under Rev. St. 1899, § 3050, making it misdemeanor for physician to issue prescription for intoxicants to be used otherwise than for medicinal purposes, held not to sufficiently set out prescriptions alleged to have been issued. State v. Davis, 129 Mo. App. 129, 108 SW 127. Setting out prescription according to its tenor imports an exact copy. Id.

53. After conviction of maintaining nuisance at certain place on certain days, held that judgment would not be arrested because complaint alleged that defendant kept place where liquors "were and are" sold, and where persons "were and are" permitted to resort for purpose of drinking such liquors, but words "and are" would be treated as surplusage. City of Ft. Scott v. Dunkerton [Kan.] 96 P 50. On prosecution for violation of local option law, clause relating to election held not to render indictment invalid. Sawyer v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 597, 108 SW 394.

54. Act March 12, 1907 (Gen. Acts 1907, p. 366), making it offense to act as agent of purchaser or seller in effecting unlawful sale, and providing that conviction for violation thereof may be had under an indictment for retailing without license and contrary to law, held not to authorize such conviction under indictment charging sale to minor in violation of Code 1896, § 5078. Moseley v. State [Ala.] 47 S 193. Code 1896, § 5077, held not to cover case, since it relates only to retailers. Id. Where information alleges that local option election on result of which prosecution is based was held on specified date, that fact must be proved. Green v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 466, 110 SW 919. Instruction held erroneous as authorizing conviction if jury found that defendant was engaged in system of business for evading local option law without regard to whether he made sale alleged in indictment within prohibited territory. Holloway v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 246, 110 SW 745; Id. [Tex. Cr. App.]

is not, however, restricted to the date alleged in the indictment, but a conviction is authorized where the offense is shown to have been committed on any day prior to the indictment and within the statute of limitations.[55] An indictment may be broad enough to cover the violation of several statutes by a single act.[56] In misdemeanor cases one may be convicted on evidence showing a sale through an agent under an indictment charging a sale by him personally.[57]

Trial.[See 10 C. L. 449]—In some states an attorney other than the prosecuting attorney may appear for the state on prosecution for violation of the liquor laws.[58]

Evidence.[See 10 C. L. 449]—The usual rules of criminal evidence are applicable to prosecutions for violation of the liquor laws,[59] including those as to hearsay[60] and opinion[61] evidence, secondary evidence,[62] and admissions.[63] Evidence to be ad-

111 SW 937. Count alleging joint sale to two named persons is not sustained by evidence showing separate sales to each of them. Yeoman v. State [Neb.] 115 NW 784; Id. [Neb.] 117 NW 997. Held fatal variance between allegation of sale to "C. Wiltis" and proof of sale to "C. Willis." Carnes v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 490, 110 SW 750. Where, on prosecution for selling without license, state elected to prosecute defendant for selling to named person, held that it could not prosecute him for selling to others, or prove sales to others in aid of proof that he was guilty of offense for which he was being prosecuted. Devine v. Com., 107 Va. 860, 60 SE 37. Evidence held sufficient to establish venue as laid in indictment for selling without license. State v. Budworth, 104 Minn. 257, 116 NW 486.

55. Illegal sale. Cripe v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 567. Where indictment charges unlawful sale of whisky generally, and not to any particular individual, proof may be made of any sales by him in jurisdiction of court within two years prior to date of accusation. Wheeler v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 409. On prosecution for selling in violation of prohibition law, state held entitled to prove as many distinct sales as it could within two years before finding of indictment. Taylor v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 1048. Indictment charging defendant with maintaining common nuisance on certain day, before finding of indictment, and up to and including day of finding of indictment, held to sufficiently charge continuing offense. Miller v. Com. [Ky.] 113 SW 518. Sales by defendant within year before finding of indictment may be shown, but not sales made more than year before such time. Id. Allowing police judge to testify that defendant was convicted before him within year before finding of indictment for having intoxicants in his possession for purpose of selling them held error, both because not best evidence and because it was not shown that he had such liquors in house referred to in indictment within year before it was found. Id. On prosecution for "engaging in the business" of selling without license in violation of Rev. Pol. Code, §§ 2838, 2834, held that, under information alleging that offense was committed by engaging in the business on specified date and was continued until specified later date, state could prove any sales between those dates as tending to prove that defendant was engaged in the business. State v. Ely [S. D.] 118 NW 687. Instruction limiting time in which state must prove its case to lesser time than two years prior to presentment of indictment is erroneous. Wagner v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 306, 109 SW 169.

56. Indictment under Rev. St. 1899, § 2179, or selling to minor without written consent of his parent or guardian, held broad enough to include offense defined by Id. § 3009, as amended by Acts 1905, p. 141, prohibiting sales to minors with or without such consent. State v. Hamill, 127 Mo. App. 661, 106 SW 1103.

57. Schwulst v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 426, 108 SW 698. All guilty participants being principals in misdemeanor cases. Roberts v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 355, 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 861, 107 SW 59.

58. May appear and file reply to plea in bar on prosecution for violation of Beal law. Gilliam v. State, 7 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 482.

59. See Indictment and Prosecution, 12 C. L. 1.

60. Evidence held inadmissible: On prosecution for violation of local option law, evidence that one who procured whisky and gave it to witness told latter that he had gotten it from defendant. Smith v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 507, 107 SW 819; Henderson v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 514, 107 SW 820. On prosecution for illegal sale, testimony of witnesses that he told justice of peace, to whom he gave bottle of whisky that he bought it from defendant, and testimony of justice to same effect. Holmes v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 352, 353, 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 844, 106 SW 1160. On prosecution for selling to person in habit of getting intoxicated, testimony as to losses of money by such person in so far as based upon things which had come to knowledge of witness and otherwise. Sheppelman v. People, 134 Ill. App. 556.

Evidence held admissible: Evidence that prosecuting witness gave witness bottle of whisky, and that witness gave same bottle of whisky to county attorney. Henderson v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 514, 107 SW 820. On prosecution for violation of local option law, testimony that third person gave witness money and told him that he wanted bottle of whisky, and that witness bought whisky from defendant and gave it to such person and told him that he got it from defendant, held admissible, where defendant brought out as part of his defense fact that witness had so stated to such person. Starnes v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 403, 107 SW 550.

61. On prosecution for violation of local option law, opinion of prosecuting attorney as to what would be violation of law, previously expressed to defendant while latter was under arrest in another case, held inadmissible must, of course, be relevant and material to the issues involved.[64] The court will take judicial notice of the boundaries of states and counties, and of the geographical location of cities and towns within their jurisdiction,[65] of the intoxicating character of certain liquors,[66] that the liquor traffic is prohibited in a certain county under the dispensary law,[67] and of the length of time during which the local option law continues in force in a given territory after its adoption therein.[68] Evidence of the contemporaneous possession of intoxicants by defendant is generally admissible in prosecutions for unauthorized sales,[69] though it has been held improper missible. Roberts v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 355, 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 861, 107 SW 59.

62. Testimony that witness to whom defendant loaned whisky had ordered whisky in writing from proprietor of clubroom in which loan was made held not objectionable as secondary evidence, it being merely incidental and preliminary to substantial charge of sale under pretense of loan, and prosecution not being based on such order. Wilson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 1018.

63. On prosecution for having engaged in business of selling intoxicants without having paid tax prescribed by Comp. St. 1897, § 5385, held that evidence that accused, immediately after reading of warrant to him, stated to sheriff that he had paid federal tax, and exhibited to him a federal license for current year, was admissible. People v. Moore [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 920, 118 NW 742.

64. On prosecution for violation of local option law, testimony of accused's witnesses on cross-examination that they kept whisky in clubroom for their own purposes held irrelevant and immaterial. Ross v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 295, 109 SW 152; Ross v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 162, 109 SW 153. Evidence that witness other than one to whom alleged sale was made had been in habit of storing whisky in defendant's wareroom and drinking same there with defendant's knowledge, and that defendant had ordered cask of whisky for his brother, who took it home, held inadmissible. Howell v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 536, 110 SW 914. Evidence as to existence of clubroom in city where alleged sale was made other than that conducted by defendant held inadmissible. Coleman v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 578, 111 SW 1011. Held error to permit state to prove that defendant had signed bonds of other persons accused of violating said law. Taylor v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 932. On prosecution for violating local option law in certain precinct, held proper to permit state to prove that town in which sale was made was in said precinct. Coleman v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 578, 111 SW 1011. Evidence of acquittal of defendant upon charge of keeping intoxicants for sale is irrelevant upon trial for selling intoxicants, since one may sell liquors which he does not keep for sale. Taylor v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 1048.

65. On prosecution for sale without license, venue held sufficiently proven. Reed v. Ter. [Ok]. Cr. App.] 98 P 583.

66. Whisky is judicially known to be intoxicating. Beaty v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 432, 110 SW 449; Donaldson v. State, 3 Ga. App. 451, 60 SE 115. Court may take judicial cognizance that whisky is a spirituous, alcoholic and intoxicating liquor. O'Connell v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 1007. A Manhattan cocktail is generally and popularly known as an intoxicating liquor, and no proof of its intoxicating character is necessary in prosecutions under prohibitory law. State v. Pigg [Kan.] 97 P 859. Court may take judicial cognizance that an ordinary beer, containing such percentage of alcohol as by common knowledge may produce intoxication when beer is drunk in such quantities as may ordinarily be drunk, is an intoxicating liquor. O'Connell v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 1007. Court will take judicial notice of fact that lager beer is an intoxicating malt liquor. Cripe v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 567.

67. That it is unlawful to manufacture or sell intoxicants in certain county. State v. Arnold [S. C.] 61 SE 891.

68. That it continues in force in county for 4 years, as provided by Rev. St. 1899, § 3033. State v. Hall, 130 Mo. App. 170, 108 SW 1077.

69. On prosecution for violation of local option law, may show that defendant had such an amount of whisky as to forbid any reasonable presumption that it was intended for his own immediate use. Wagner v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 306, 109 SW 169. Is admissible for purpose of corroborating state's witnesses and showing probability that he did sell whisky. Myers v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 558, 108 SW 392. Such evidence held not proving another offense, since it is not an offense to have whisky in a local option district. Id. Possession of intoxicants about 6 weeks after alleged sale held not contemporaneous therewith within meaning of rule. Id. Held error to permit state to prove that defendant's place of business had been raided under search and seizure law more than a year after alleged offense which occurred long before law was passed. Alderson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 412. Evidence that defendant had worked in clubrooms where intoxicants were sold for past 3 years, during which time local option law was in force in county, held inadmissible, it appearing that defendant had not been connected with clubroom for 2 months before alleged sale took place. McLemore v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 552, 110 SW 900. That one accused of unlawfully selling intoxicants is in possession of quantities of liquors, beer, bottles, jugs and measures is circumstance which, in connection with other circumstances, will warrant inference that owner is engaged in unlawful sale of intoxicants. Taylor v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 1048. On prosecution for selling without license, unexplained possession by defendant of unusual quantity of whisky shortly before time of alleged sale is competent evidence. State v. Kiger, 63 W. Va. 450, 61 SE 362.

Evidence held admissible: On prosecution for violating local option law, testimony that to show a seizure of liquor about the time of the alleged sale, or the result of litigation in respect to the liquors so seized.[70] Evidence that defendant refused to violate the law at other times is inadmissible on his behalf.[71] On prosecution for keeping a disorderly house, the general reputation of the place may be shown.[72] It is generally held proper to permit the jury to inspect the bottle containing the liquor alleged to have been sold by defendant and its contents.[73] Evidence of other transactions and offenses is generally inadmissible[74] except to show system[75] or intent,[76] or to identify the defendant.[77] In some instances the possession of a federal internal revenue license is a proper subject of inquiry.[78] Cases dealing with the witness had found keg with whisky in it at defendant's place of business shortly after alleged sale, and that at that time defendant stated that it belonged to him and had been there for some time. Starbeck v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 192, 109 SW 162. That whisky was put off train for defendant's employer, that same was carried by defendant to place where he worked, etc. Biddy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 108 SW 689. On prosecution for violation of general prohibition law (Laws 1907, p. 81), evidence that defendant received frequent shipments of liquor, that he had large amount on hand in his home, that in his house there were generally a number of persons singing, carousing, etc, Tooke v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 917. Evidence relative to consignment and delivery of whisky to defendant, on prosecution for selling without license. State v. Kiger, 63 W. Va. 450, 61 SE 362. On prosecution for maintaining nuisance in violation of prohibition law, records of local railway station containing record of articles received and delivered to defendant, also signature of defendant acknowledging receipt of articles specified, and testimony identifying record and defendant's signature and describing how record was kept and for what purpose, held competent to show admission by defendant of receipt of large quantities of beer. State v. Dahlquist [N. D.] 115 NW 81. Held immaterial whether railway company's agent himself kept record and made descriptive entries. Id. Receipts for freight belonging to defendant signed by drayman, who had written authority to act as defendant's agent in that regard, held competent evidence to show receipt by defendant of articles receipted for. Id. Record of local railway station showing receipt by agent of various beer receptacles from defendant and shipment of same held competent to show character of such shipments, where agent identified record and testified that he received information as to character of freight as described in record from defendant. Id.

70. On prosecution for sale in local option territory. Myers v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 558, 108 SW 392.

71. On prosecution for selling in violation of local option law, refusal to permit defendant's witness to testify that on date defendant was accused of selling whisky to state's witness he refused to sell to him held not error. Donaldson v. State, 3 Ga. App. 451, 60 SE 115.

72. On prosecution under Acts 30th Leg. c. 132, proof that other persons beside defendant, who worked in his place of business, sold liquors therein, held admissible. Jolliff v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 61, 109 SW 176.

73. On prosecution for selling without license, permitting bottle and its contents to be exhibited to jury in presence of court held not error, there being no proposal for jury to take bottle with them on their retirement, to be smelled, or drunk, or tasted. Phillips v. State [Ala.] 47 S 245. Permitting jury to take bottle with them into jury room held proper. Id. Held not error to permit jury to inspect, look at, and smell contents of bottle properly identified as purchased from defendant and admitted in evidence which was alleged to contain whisky. Reed v. Ter. [Okl. Cr. App.] 98 P 583.

74. On prosecution for violation of local option law, where it appeared that defendant as agent for outside concern received money for whisky from purchaser and forwarded same to principal, who shipped whisky to agent by open express shipment, evidence of previous transaction whereby order for beer was sent to principal by agent, and beer was sent c. o. d. direct to purchaser. Curtis v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 606, 108 SW 380. On prosecution for sale in August, evidence of sale in following December. Holloway v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 937. On prosecution for sale or loan in violation of local option law, evidence that accused had been enjoined from operating tenpin alley in certain town was inadmissible either as original or impeaching evidence. Taylor v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 932.

75. Testimony of prosecuting witness that he had obtained whisky from defendant several times before transaction on which prosecution was based held admissible under circumstances to show whether particular transaction was subterfuge, and whether defendant was selling witness whisky or letting him have his own whisky previously purchased. Killman v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 570, 112 SW 92.

76. On prosecution for maintaining nuisance, proof of unlawful sales is permissible. State v. Johns [Iowa] 118 NW 295. On prosecution for selling without license, evidence of sale at time other than that charged held admissible, not for purpose of convicting defendant of that sale, but as tending to show that transaction was sale, and that defendant was seller and not mere agent. Sweat v. State [Ala.] 45 S 588.

77. On prosecution for selling to named person contrary to law, evidence of sale to another person held properly admitted where it was limited to purpose of identifying defendant as person making sale in question. Abrams v. State [Ala.] 46 S 464.

78. On prosecution for selling in violation of prohibitory law and maintaining nuisance, held that certified copies of records of admissibility of particular evidence to prove the adoption of ordinances,[79] to show that a sale was made,[80] to connect defendant with the transaction in question,[81] to collector of internal revenue were admissible. State v. Pigg [Kan.] 97 P 859. On prosecution for selling and delivering in violation of Acts 1901-02, p. 601, c. 516, copy of records of office of collector showing that defendant held license as retail liquor dealer held admissible. Runde v. Com. [Va.] 61 SE 792. None of provisions of Shannon's Code, §§ 5573-5591, held broad enough to render certificate of collector of internal revenue showing issuance of special tax stamp to defendant admissible to show that he has paid internal revenue tax as retail liquor dealer, or is in possession of stamp, which fact is, by Acts 1903, p. 1079, c. 355, § 1, made prima facie evidence of sales in prosecutions for violations of law prohibiting sales within 4 miles of school house. Bayless v. State [Tenn.] 113 SW 1039. Certificate held not admissible under common law in absence of showing that collector had authority to issue it. Id. On prosecution for being common seller, examined copy of record of special liquor taxes in internal revenue office showing payment of tax by bottling company for buildings where offense was alleged to have been committed held admissible, evidence connecting defendant with business conducted at such places making relevancy of record clearly apparent as evidence competent to show that defendant, if not owner of liquors, assisted common seller in the business. State v. Martel, 103 Me. 63, 68 A 454. Under Acts 28th Leg. p. 57, c. 40, art. 407a, examined copy from books of internal revenue collector is admissible. Biddy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 108 SW 689. Is not necessary that such copy be certified by collector or his deputy, but any one may make examined copy and testify to same. Id. Examined copy itself must be introduced, and witness cannot testify orally as to its contents. Id. Testimony of witness who made copy of license held to sufficiently show that it was taken from records of internal revenue collector. King v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 101, 109 SW 182. Held improper to permit one who had examined collector's books to testify from memory or from notes that license had been issued to defendant. Biddy v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 412, 107 SW 814. Fact that defendant was served with subpoena duces tecum to produce license, but did not do so, held not to render such evidence admissible. Id. Certificate of collector that his records showed issuance of retail dealer's license to defendant's employer held inadmissible. Reed v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 4, 108 SW 368. Proof of existence of license may be made by parol. Oldham v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 516, 108 SW 667. Witness may testify that he saw license, issued in name of defendant's employer, posted up in place where defendant worked, though he did not remember date of said license. Biddy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 108 SW 689. May testify that defendant had license for sale of malt liquors in his place of business. Coleman v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 578, 111 SW 1011. Witness may testify that he heard defendant testify in another similar case that there was license posted up in place where he worked. Biddy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 108 SW 689. On prosecution, under Acts 30th Leg. c. 132, for keeping disorderly house, witness may testify that he saw license in defendant's name posted in house in question. Joliff v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 61, 109 SW 176.

79. Book in which town ordinances are engrossed and signed by town clerk as required by P. L. 1895, p. 228, § 27, is sufficient prima facie proof of existence and due publication of ordinance therein contained in view of P. L. 1907, p. 443, § 1. Town of Montclair v. Scola [N. J. Law] 69 A 451.

80. Evidence held admissible: On prosecution for selling without license, evidence that witness, who testified that he bought whisky from defendant, gave whisky to third person on same day and shortly after alleged sale. Murph v. State [Ala.] 45 S 208. On prosecution for having engaged in business of selling intoxicants without having paid tax required by Comp. Laws 1897, § 5385, held that prosecution had right to call witnesses who knew fact to testify that they saw sales of liquor made to identified persons, without also calling those persons as witnesses, they not being res gestae witnesses. People v. Moore [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 920, 118 NW 742. On prosecution for violating local option law where state claimed sale under pretense of loan, evidence of proprietor of clubroom where loan was made that it was custom of members to loan one another whisky when they had ordered whisky, and to make entry on order showing who had made loan. Wilson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 1018. Testimony of witness who loaned whisky to prosecutor at defendant's suggestion that defendant was tenant of his, and was occupying his house at time of sale, as circumstance to show familiarity of witness with defendant, and as corroborative of state's theory of a sale. Coleman v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 578, 111 SW 1011.

81. Evidence held admissible: On prosecution for violating local option law, held proper to permit witness to testify as to seeing bar fixtures in house where defendant worked. Biddy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 108 SW 689. Evidence that, after arrest of one who was alleged to have made the sales as defendant's agent, defendant, through a third person, got $60 from jailer which had been taken from agent's person, in view of fact that agent had shortly before brought 16 quarts of whisky to defendant's place of business which latter claimed as his property, and of other evidence, though defendant claimed that money was for sales made for him by agent in Indian Territory, and that he had directed agent not to sell it in Texas. Oldham v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 516, 108 SW 667. Testimony that witness gave third person money, that latter went up street in direction of defendant's place of business, and that later he came back and gave witness bottle of whisky. Starnes v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 403, 107 SW 550. On issue as to whether masked man who made sale was defendant's agent, held that defendant might show that he had transferred his business to another, and that contract between himself and latter in reference to transfer was admissible for that purpose. Schwulst v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 426, 108 SW 693. Defendant held also entitled to show, for same purpose, identify the liquor sold,[82] to prove the date of the sale,[83] to show the quantity[84] and the intoxicating quality[85] of liquor sold, to show that one was in the habit of getting intoxicated,[86] and to prove that defendant was a licensed physician,[87] will be found in the notes.

As in other cases, the evidence must establish defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.[88] The possession of a federal internal revenue license is given more that he had conferred with federal deputy marshal as to whether he could use his federal license to carry on another business, or whether it had become worthless by reason of transfer of his business. Id. On prosecution for being common seller, evidence that defendant gave orders and exercised control in relation to liquors consigned to certain bottling company, and was only person with whom witness had any talk in regard to said company's liquors. State v. Martel, 103 Me. 63, 68 A 454. On prosecution for having engaged in business of selling without having paid tax prescribed by Comp. St. 1897, § 5385, held that evidence that goods billed as mineral water were shipped to defendant, consigned to him, and delivered at place of business which it was claimed he carried on, on issue as to whether defendant was person conducting whatever business was carried on at that particular place. People v. Moore [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 920, 118 NW 742.

82. On prosecution for violation of local option law, evidence to identify bottle of whisky alleged to have been purchased held properly admitted. Dooley v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 491, 108 SW 676.

83. On prosecution for retailing contrary to law, question whether witness had gone before grand jury before he bought the whisky or afterwards held not improper, where evident purpose was to identify time of purchase and show that indictment was found within one year after sale. Wynne v. State [Ala.] 46 S 459. Where, on prosecution for selling without license, witness to whom sale was alleged to have been made testified that he did not remember date of sale, but that it was before defendant was tried in mayor's court, held not error to permit state to ask him what defendant was there tried for, sole purpose being to elicit data for definitely fixing date of sale. Sweat v. State [Ala.] 45 S 588. Admission of evidence of mayor and his docket held not error, as limited by court. Id. Remark of court limiting effect of evidence held not statement that offense for which defendant was tried in mayor's court was identical with one at bar. Id. Where different sales on same day were alleged, held proper to permit prosecuting witness to state time and hour of day he secured whisky from defendant. Robinson v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 565, 110 SW 908.

84. On prosecution for selling in less quantities than 5 gallons without license, held that measures used by witnesses in measuring beer sold by defendant and which had been sent to secretary of state by county clerk and tested and stamped by him as correct pursuant to Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 147, § 9, were admissible, testing and stamping being sufficient evidence that they were correct in absence of proof to contrary, regardless of whether they belonged to county or whether secretary was required to test them. People v. Nylin, 236 Ill. 19, 86 NE 156, afg. 139 Ill. App. 500.

85. Evidence held admissible: That bottle received by witness from defendant was labled "Budweiser." Coleman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 112 SW 769. Held proper to permit witness who drank some of beer to state that he thought it was intoxicating, particularly where there was no issue as to its being nonintoxicating. Curtis v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 606, 108 SW 330. While witness may testify as to his knowledge that liquor bought was whisky or was intoxicating, evidence must show that it was whisky, which is judicially known to be intoxicating, or, if not, that it was capable of producing intoxication, and where witness believed he was buying whisky, it was error to refuse to permit cross-examination for purpose of testing his knowledge as to whisky and as to whether what he bought was whisky. Beaty v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 432, 110 SW 449. Permitting witness to testify that stuff he purchased from defendant was whisky held not error, though it did not appear that he tasted or smelled it, that fact going only to weight of his testimony. Rice v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 107 SW 833. Testimony of witness that he called upon defendant for half a pint of whisky and that he received it, put it in his pocket, and paid 40 cents for it, and that he knew it was whisky, held not open to objection that it was irrelevant, immaterial, and was but conclusion and opinion of witness. Id. Fact that witness could not tell component parts of whisky, or whether liquor served to him was a distilled or rectified spirit, or whether there are many medicines that smell like whisky, held not to render him incompetent to testify that liquor served to him was whisky. People v. Marx, 112 NYS 1011. Where sales on which state relied had been shown and it had been proven that defendant sold cider to public generally, held not prejudicial error to admit evidence that defendant sold same kind of cider to others, followed by proof of its effect on them, though it would have been better to have confined proof to effect only. Devine v. Com., 107 Va. 860, 60 SE 37.

Evidence held inadmissible: That certain persons shown to have been present when sale was made to prosecuting witness were arrested and convicted for drunkenness. Isom v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 438, 107 SW 350.

86. Witnesses may testify as to whether person was in habit of drinking to excess. Sheppelman v. People, 134 Ill. App. 556.

87. On prosecution for issuing prescription for intoxicants in violation of law, testimony of physician that he had medical diploma held incompetent. McAllister v. State [Ala.] 47 S 161.

88. Sale to minors. State v. Salkowski [Del.] 69 A 339. On prosecution for selling without license, failure to instruct that defendant is presumed to be innocent, and this presumption is sufficient to acquit him un-or less probative force by the statutes of some states.[89] The finding of liquor on defendant's premises is sometimes made prima facie evidence of selling contrary to law.[90] The burden is ordinarily on defendant to show that he comes within an exception or proviso of the statute on which the prosecution is based[91] and, on prosecutions for selling without a license, to show that he had a license.[92] The fact of the sale may be shown by direct or circumstantial evidence,[93] and the state is not confined to direct evidence on prosecutions for maintaining a nuisance.[94]

Instructions. See 10 C. L. 454—Instructions must be predicated upon, and applicable to, the evidence introduced,[95] and must not invade the province of the jury.[96]

til evidence establishes his guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, held reversible error. Yeoman v. State [Neb.] 117 NW 997, modifying 115 NW 784.

89. Evidence of issuance of license does not raise presumption of guilt in absence of statute to that effect, but it is competent evidence for purpose of showing what business defendant is engaged in, or that he keeps liquors for sale. Appling v. State [Ark.] 114 SW 927. Kirby's Dig. § 5144, making finding of license on premises occupied or controlled by defendant prima facie evidence of violation of laws against clandestine sale of liquors, held not to apply where license was not found on premises but in bank where it had been deposited by owner. Instruction held prejudicially erroneous. Id. Provision of Laws 1907, p. 297, that issuance of special stamp or receipt shall be prima facie evidence of sale by person to whom it is issued at his place of business where it is posted, held not unconstitutional as changing burden of proof and quantum of evidence in criminal case. People v. McBride, 234 Ill. 146, 84 NE 865. Defendant held not in any event affected by provision where he himself offered stamp in evidence. Id. Term "person" as used in Laws 1905, p. 50, § 18, making issuing of license or tax stamp to any person prima facie evidence that he is selling, exchanging, or giving away intoxicating liquors, is broad enough to include corporation. Instruction approved. State v. Kline [Or.] 93 P 237. Charge that possession of license by defendant was prima facie evidence that he was engaged in selling intoxicants held proper in view of express provision of Acts 28th Leg. (1903) p. 55, c. 40, art. 402. Fox v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 150, 109 SW 370. Statute held not in conflict with constitutional provision guaranteeing to accused right to be confronted with witnesses against him, and to trial by jury. King v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 101, 109 SW 182. Under Acts 1901-02, p. 601, c. 516, § 5, and Acts 1906, p. 411, c. 236, proof that one accused of selling without license had federal license as retail liquor dealer raises disputable presumption of guilt, placing burden of proving that he has not violated law on him, and warranting conviction in absence of exculpatory evidence. Runds v. Com. [Va.] 61 SE 792. Such statutes held not in conflict with Const. art. 1, § 8, guaranteeing right of accused in criminal prosecutions to be confronted with accusers and witnesses. Id.

90. On prosecution for clandestine sale of liquor, finding of liquor on premises is prima facie evidence of guilt. Kirby's Dig. § 5141. Appling v. State [Ark.] 114 SW 927. Such presumption may be rebutted by showing that liquor was used for private purposes, and not for sale. Kirby's Dig. § 5146. Id. Gen. St. 1906, authorizing searches and seizure, and providing that if liquors shall be found in such quantities as to confirm belief of illegal sales, same shall be prima facie evidence of selling contrary to law, etc., held to apply generally, and not to be confined to selling in counties or precincts voting against such sales. Putnal v. State [Fla.] 47 S 864. One charged with keeping intoxicants for purpose of unlawfully selling or disposing of same, where such liquor is found in his possession, is not entitled to usual presumption of innocence, since statute makes such possession presumptive evidence of guilt. Cobbey's Ann. St. 1907, §§ 7150-7199a. Yeoman v. State [Neb.] 117 NW 997, modifying 115 NW 784. Return of sheriff showing seizure of named articles held not to show facts necessary to operation of statute making finding of liquors in possession of one not authorized to sell same, except in private dwelling house, prima facie evidence that they are kept for sale or use in violation of law, and finding of place fitted up with bar, etc., and internal revenue stamp, prima facie evidence that person to whom stamp was issued was maintaining common nuisance, and hence not to make prima facie case for state. State v. Foren [Kan.] 97 P 791.

91. On prosecution for selling without license, burden held on defendant to show that cider sold by him was pure apple cider within meaning of Acts 1906, p. 307, c. 181, and hence such as he could sell without license under exception of Acts 1904, c. 20, § 141. Devine v. Com., 107 Va. 860, 60 SE 37. On prosecution for violating local option law, held proper to permit defendant to testify that he was a druggist, without requiring him to show by record that he had qualified himself and been licensed as such, since, when he justified sale on ground that it was made under authority of his druggist's license, burden was on state to show that he was not druggist, license being at least prima facie evidence of fact that he was. Commonwealth v. Byers, 33 Ky. L. R. 252, 109 SW 895.

92. Josey v. State [Ark.] 114 SW 216; Reed v. Ter. [Okl. Cr. App.] 98 P 583.

93. Taylor v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 1048.

94. State v. Johns [Iowa] 118 NW 295.

95. Instruction on prosecution for selling without license that jury could not, after retiring, smell or taste contents of bottle admitted in evidence held properly refused. Phillips v. State [Ala.] 47 S 245. On prosecution for illegally selling, instruction as to sale by another than defendant held properly refused. Abrams v. State [Ala.] 46 S 464.

They should not be misleading[97] and should be so framed as not to withdraw from the consideration of the jury or ignore any material issue[98] or defense,[99] nor should

On prosecution for violation of local option law where evidence was to effect that defendant as agent for outside concern received money for whisky from purchaser and forwarded same to principal, who shipped whisky to agent by open express shipment, instruction basing guilt on proof of C. O. D. shipment direct to purchaser held erroneous. Curtis v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 606, 108 SW 380. On prosecution for selling in violation of local option law, instruction that if whiskey was given as an evasion of such law defendant would be guilty held not called for by facts. Tippit v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 180, 109 SW 190. Evidence as to intoxicating quality of beer sold held to justify instruction to find defendant guilty if jury found that defendant sold witness bottle of beer and that same was intoxicating. Schmidt v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 465, 110 SW 897. Instruction as to what would or would not constitute sale held properly refused as not called for by facts and misleading, and in view of other instructions. Killman v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 512, 112 SW 90. Taking into consideration both direct and circumstantial evidence and inferences which jury might fairly draw from both, held that every hypothesis set forth in instruction, on prosecution for maintaining nuisance, as to distribution among club members, was sustained by sufficient evidence. State v. Johns [Iowa] 118 NW 295. On prosecution for keeping liquor nuisance, instruction authorizing conviction if jury found that at any time between Jan. 1, 1906, the date charged in indictment, and Oct. 12, 1907, date of finding of indictment, defendant used rooms for purpose of selling intoxicants therein, or permitting same to be sold therein unlawfully, or keeping same therein for unlawful purposes, etc., held not objectionable on ground that there was no evidence tending to show guilt as early as first date or as late as second, limiting consideration of jury to more circumscribed period than that fixed by statute of limitations, not being prejudicial to defendant. Id. Instruction held not objectionable as permitting jury to find defendant guilty for alleged use of club rooms over drug store prior to May, 1906, at which time they were first occupied, in view of another instruction that jury could only find defendant guilty for using said rooms. Id. Evidence held not to show that defendant ceased use of premises in 1906, but to warrant finding that it continued until Oct. 12, 1907. Id.

96. Instructions on prosecution for selling without license held not objectionable as branding method adopted by defendant for making sales as shift or device to evade law. People v. Nylin, 139 Ill. App. 500, afd. 236 Ill. 19, 86 NE 156. On prosecution of defendant for keeping intoxicants on hand at his place of business, instruction that facts proved constituted place of business held erroneous. Roberts v. State [Ga. App.] 60 SE 1082. Requested charge as to effect of understanding of parties to transaction held properly refused, it being for witness to detail facts and for jury to determine whether transaction was sale or gift. Byrd v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 185. Instruction that jury might judicially recognize that whiskey is intoxicating held not objectionable as expression of opinion by court, that it is intoxicating being fact of universal knowledge which need not be proved. Donaldson v. State, 3 Ga. App. 451, 60 SE 115. On prosecution for violation of local option law, instruction that jury should find defendant guilty if they believed beyond reasonable doubt that defendant at specified time and place sold intoxicants to named person, and that sale had theretofore been and then was prohibited in said county held not on weight of evidence. Trail v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 107 SW 545. On prosecution for selling to person in habit of getting intoxicated, instruction that evidence of witnesses who testified that they had never seen such person intoxicated was negative evidence only and did not disprove affirmative evidence of those witnesses who testified to having seen him intoxicated held prejudicial error in view of conflict in evidence. Sheppelman v. People, 134 Ill. App. 556. Instruction assuming fact that person to whom sales were made was minor held erroneous. Gaul v. People, 136 Ill. App. 445. On prosecution for giving liquor to minor, held that error in instructions assuming that minor was given liquor by some one and that same was intoxicating was harmless, in view of evidence. Hall v. People, 134 Ill. App. 559. Where uncontradicted evidence showed that law had been legally adopted and publication thereof duly made in county, held that court was justified in assuming in instructions that it was in effect in county. Cordona v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 619, 111 SW 145. Evidence held to justify instruction that local option law had been in force in county since specified date. Harryman v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 474, 110 SW 926.

97. On prosecution under Acts 1907, p. 81, for having liquor on hand at place of business, use of phrases "connected therewith in said business" and "connected with that place of business" held not misleading as leading jury to believe that physical connection between room and defendant's restaurant was necessary to constitute former part of his place of business. Bashinski v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 577. On prosecution for selling in violation of local option law, instruction referring to whiskey sold as rye, where there was no evidence to that effect, held inapt but not misleading, since defendant was guilty if he sold any kind of whiskey. Donaldson v. State, 3 Ga. App. 451, 60 SE 115. On prosecution for violating local option law, instruction that sale had been prohibited in county since certain date held equivalent to charging that local option law had been in effect there since said date, there being no contention that sale was for any purpose authorized as exception to general rule prohibiting sale. Piper v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 485, 110 SW 898.

98. Refusal of charge setting forth constituent elements of sale held error in view of evidence. Tippit v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 180, 109 SW 190. On prosecution for selling in violation of local option law, held that jury should have been specifically instructed they single out and give undue prominence to particular evidence.[1] It is not error to refuse a requested instruction substantially covered by the charge given.[2]

Punishment.[See 10 C. L. 455]—The punishment which may be inflicted on one convicted of a violation of the liquor laws depends entirely on the statutes of the various states.[3] Where the same offense is charged in different counts of the indictment, there should be but one sentence.[4]

Appeal and review.—Special provision is sometimes made for the review of judgments of conviction for violation of the liquor laws.[5] The general rules as to appeals and the procedure thereon are fully treated elsewhere.[6] that there could be no conviction if transaction was gift. Id. Evidence held to raise issue that transaction in question was gift, and neither a sale nor a loan, so that failure to submit question of gift was reversible error. Coleman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 112 SW 1072.

99. Instruction on prosecution for selling without license that fact that defendant took money from another, went away and came back and gave him whiskey would not constitute sale, held properly refused as not covering other inculpating facts and circumstances in evidence. State v. Kiger, 63 W. Va. 450, 61 SE 362. On prosecution for violation of local option law, instruction held to have sufficiently presented defense that defendant took order on third person for price of whiskey which he furnished witness merely for purpose of getting rid of him, and that he did not intend to present order but intended to give whiskey to witness. Kilgore v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 447, 108 SW 662. Where facts clearly showed that defendant sold whiskey, instruction that if defendant did not intend to sell whiskey, but only intended to enable witness to get quart to make egg nog for himself, defendant, and others, and he made no profit out of same, he would not be guilty of sale, held properly refused. Jolly v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 484, 110 SW 749.

1. Instruction that if jury found that defendant sold intoxicants to prosecuting witness as alleged it was immaterial whether he was at time employed by certain person held erroneous. Green v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 933.

2. Refusal of instruction to effect that if witness instructed proprietor of club room to keep whiskey ahead for him, and that if money given latter was to pay express charges on whiskey previously ordered, or proprietor so believed, he would not be guilty, held not error. Killman v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 570, 112 SW 92. Refusal of requested instruction based on theory that transaction was gift held not error. Coleman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 112 SW 769. Requested instruction to effect that gift of whiskey in prohibition territory is not violation of local option law, and that to constitute sale minds of parties must meet, etc., held covered by main charge. Byrd v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 135.

3. Penalty clause of Rev. St. § 4364-25, relating to sales of liquor in townships outside limits of municipal corporations and keeping places for sale of liquors, held not superseded or repealed by § 6942. Hamilton v. State, 78 Ohio St. 76, 84 NE 601. Rev. St. 1892, § 2351, providing that whenever prescribed punishment is fine or imprisonment in the alternative court may in its discretion impose both, held not to apply to Laws 1901, p. 58, c. 4930, § 1, providing that one selling intoxicants in dry territory shall be punished by fine or imprisonment. Tanner v. Wiggins [Fla.] 45 S 459. Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 24, art. 5, § 1, cl. 46, 96, held to give city council discretionary power to determine amount of penalty within statutory limit, so that ordinance providing that whoever should sell liquor should be fined $200 for each offense did not, by imposing maximum fine in all cases, violate Const. art. 2, § 11, requiring all penalties to be proportioned to the nature of the offense. City of Arcola v. Wilkinson, 233 Ill. 250, 84 NE 264. Offense of selling, etc., intoxicants, contrary to prohibition provision of Constitution, is misdemeanor, word imprisonment as there used meaning imprisonment in common jail. Ex parte Cain [Okl.] 93 P 974. Maximum penalty is imprisonment in county jail not exceeding one year and fine not exceeding $500, under Wilson's Rev. & Ann. St. § 1935, providing for punishment of misdemeanors generally, minimum being fixed by constitution itself. Id. On prosecution for pursuing occupation of retail dealer without having paid tax therefor, where offense was committed before and trial took place after Acts 30th Leg. p. 258, c. 138, went into effect, held that penalty imposed by White's Pen. Code, art. 411a, should be imposed, in view of Pen. Code 1895, art. 15, providing that new penalty shall not be inflicted for offense committed before act imposing it went into effect except where punishment is ameliorated. Kendall v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 833.

4. Where witness purchased two glasses of whisky which he drank and bottle of whisky which he carried away, for whole of which he paid at one and the same time, held that there was but one transaction and one offense. Yeoman v. State [Neb.] 115 NW 784; Id. [Neb.] 117 NW 997.

5. Under Rev. St. 1908, § 4364-30zg, 4364-30zh, allowance by one judge of circuit court in vacation of motion for leave to file petition in error to reverse judgment of court of common pleas affirming judgment of conviction for violation of any law prohibiting sale of intoxicants held not to give to such court jurisdiction to try and determine errors complained of. Mitchell v. State, 78 Ohio St. 347, 85 NE 561. Such sections held to control error proceedings to reverse conviction or any judgment affirming conviction in such cases, though they are inconsistent with more general statutory provisions relating to review in criminal cases. Mitchell v. State, 78 Ohio St. 347, 85 NE 561. Rev. St. 1908, § 7356, and Act Feb. 23, 1906, § 20 (98 O. Laws, p. 12), construed, and held that cir-

§ 7. Summary proceedings.[See 10 C. L. 465]—Statutes in many states make special provision for the search for and seizure and destruction of liquor and other property kept or used in violation of the liquor laws.[7] The constitutional guaranty against unreasonable searches and seizures must be observed by the officer executing a search warrant as well as by the magistrate issuing it.[8] Whether the conduct of the officer in a given case is reasonable or unreasonable is to be determined by all the circumstances of that case.[9] An officer authorized to execute such a warrant who finds the liquors complained of and arrests the owner or keeper may also take and carry away such articles of property as may reasonably be used as evidence of guilt at the trial on the search and seizure process,[10] and may retain the same for the purpose of presenting them to the grand jury as evidence that the owner or keeper is guilty of a violation of the liquor laws.[11] The title to such property remains in the owner, but the lawful possession is temporarily in the officer for evidentiary purposes subject to the order of the court.[12]

The proceeding to secure the condemnation of liquors so seized is generally regarded as one in rem and is entirely separate and distinct from any criminal prosecution of the person in whose possession such liquors are found.[13] Provision is cuit court has jurisdiction of proceedings in error to review judgment of mayor of incorporated village convicting defendant of violation of local option laws, and for purpose of such review may grant leave to convicted party to file petition in error therein. State v. Mattingly [Ohio] 86 NE 353.

6. See Indictment and Prosecution, 12 C. L. 1.

7. To support search and seizure process under Rev. St. c. 29, § 49, place to be searched must be a locality, definite, certain and fixed, and must be so described in complaint. State v. Fezzette, 103 Me. 467, 69 A 1073. Word "place" as used in statute cannot be construed as broad enough to cover search for and seizure of liquors in valise alleged merely to be in possession of person charged with unlawfully keeping or depositing liquors, but not alleged to be in any definite and fixed locality or place. Id. Complaint failing to designate any place in which liquors are kept and deposited otherwise than "in a valise in the possession of" defendant in certain town held not to sufficiently allege an offense under said section. Id.

8. Buckley v. Beaulieu [Me.] 71 A 70.

9. Though officers in searching dwelling house occupied by family for liquors may and should search thoroughly in every part of house where there is reason to believe liquor may be found, they should also be considerate of comfort and convenience of occupants and be careful not to injure house or furniture more than is reasonably necessary. Buckley v. Beaulieu [Me.] 71 A 70. Where they have no reason to believe that liquors are concealed within walls and partitions, sounding and probing of walls for purpose of ascertaining whether any pipes leading to some receptacle for liquors are concealed there should be done with as little damage as possible. Id. Officers cutting holes in walls with axes, pickaxes and crowbars, and leaving debris on floors and carpets, held to have acted unreasonably and to have done unnecessary damage, and to have thereby exceeded their authority and rendered themselves liable to owner. Id.

10. Officer authorized to execute warrant properly issued for search and seizure under Rev. St. c. 29, § 49. Getchell v. Page, 103 Me. 387, 69 A 624. Common-law right and duty of officers executing search and seizure process to take and temporarily detain articles as evidence is in no way affected by Rev. St. c. 29, § 55, specifically making it officers' duty to take certain enumerated articles, such provision being in affirmation of common-law duty of officers and not exclusive. Id. Officers held entitled to take for use as evidence cork stoppers, funnels, copper measures, bottles, and mugs. Id. Record held not to show that baskets were reasonably useful as evidence, and owner held entitled to recover their value from officers. Id. Officer executing warrant held not required to make return on warrant of taking of property, he having taken them by virtue of law and not by virtue of warrant. Id.

12. Getchell v. Page, 103 Me. 387, 69 A 624.

13. Proceeding under Act Feb. 13, 1907, Acts 1907, c. 16, §§ 2-14, is in nature of libel to procure condemnation of liquors, and a proceeding in rem which is entirely separate from provisions of act relating to criminal prosecution of possessor, and may be instituted at different time and before different court. Regadanz v. State [Ind.] 86 NE 449. Hence authority to order destruction of property is not adjunct of power to determine guilt or innocence of possessor, and judgment ordering destruction based on conviction of possessor, without hearing and determination in proceeding in rem, is erroneous. Id. Forfeiture of contraband liquor unlawfully transported within state is, under Cr. Code 1902, § 583, proceeding in rem, and not part of punishment for offense to be considered in determining jurisdiction of magistrate. State v. Pope, 79 S. C. 87, 60 SE 234.

usually made for a trial to determine the ownership of the property seized and whether the same shall be forfeited.[14] In some states one claiming property so seized may replevy the same upon giving bond to repay the value thereof to the state in case of condemnation in a suit instituted for that purpose.[15]

§ 8. Abatement of traffic as a nuisance; injunction. See 10 C. L. 456—Where traffic in liquors is declared to be a nuisance,[16] it may be enjoined.[17] In the absence of a statutory provision to the contrary, however,[18] injunction for that purpose will not issue at the instance of a private citizen,[19] unless he shows resulting special injury to his property rights.[20] The petition for an injunction must describe the premises in question with sufficient accuracy to enable them to be identified.[21] The fact that there has been no violation of law by defendant since the commencement of the suit does not necessarily preclude the issuance of an injunction.[22]

14. Fact that notice in proceedings for condemnation was addressed to defendants instead of to defendants and all other persons claiming interest held not to render notice void, where it was properly served and it did not appear that claimant did not have actual notice of time and place of hearing. Greentree v. Wallace, 77 Kan. 149, 93 P 598. On prosecution for maintaining nuisance, trial to determine whether property seized by sheriff under warrant should be forfeited may be had at time fixed for answer in notice served on defendant, or at any other time to be fixed by court in exercise of judicial discretion. Gen. St. 1901, § 2495. State v. Foren [Kan.] 97 P 791. Held no abuse of discretion in ordering trial to proceed on answer day or in refusing new trial. Id. Wilson's Rev. & Ann. St. 1903, §§ 4997-5001, relating to procedure before magistrates and justices of peace, applies to trials as to property rights under Enforcing Act, art. 3, § 6 (Sess. Laws 1907-08, p. 605, c. 69), so that claimant may have change of venue in proper case. State v. Oldfield [Okl.] 98 P 925. Owner cannot maintain replevin against officer to recover possession of property seized under Gen. St. 1901, § 2494, and held by him pending hearing under § 2495. Greentree v. Wallace, 77 Kan. 149, 93 P 598.

15. Held that suit by state on bond given pursuant to Laws 1907, p. 156, c. 77, was in effect suit to declare a forfeiture or recover penalties of which district court and not county court had jurisdiction under Const. art. 5, § 8. Dupree v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 769, 107 SW 926; Malone v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 927.

17. On violation of Acts 1907, p. 473, § 29, declaring all places where persons are permitted to resort for purpose of drinking intoxicants to be nuisances, held that owner of premises, as well as lessee who ran place, would be enjoined, allegation of petition that owner knowingly permitted use of premises by lessee for such purpose not being denied. State v. Riddock [S. C.] 61 SE 210.

Decree: If court finds that defendant has been selling liquor in violation of law, it should enjoin him absolutely from further prosecution of business in any manner or form. Hemmer v. Bronson [Iowa] 117 NW 257. Decree held, in effect, a license or permission for defendants to continue business complained of, subject only to certain prescribed conditions, and hence to have been unauthorized and erroneous. Id. Code, § 2408, construed, and held to require closing of building for all purposes and that it be kept so closed for a year, unless sooner released by giving bond, etc., pursuant to § 2410. Lewis v. Brennan [Iowa] 117 NW 279. Decree substantially in language of statute held to have same meaning. Id. Under Code, § 2408, any one breaking into or using building directed to be kept closed is guilty of contempt, regardless of their intention. Id.

18. Required enactment of Code, § 2405, to authorize court of equity to entertain such a suit, and right thereby given, being purely statutory, may be taken away or modified by legislature. Campbell v. Jackman Bros. [Iowa] 118 NW 755. Plaintiff in proceeding under Code § 2406, though suing as an individual, acts in representative capacity only, and decree rendered therein is primarily one for protection of the public interests. Hemmer v. Bonson [Iowa] 117 NW 257. He has neither right nor power to consent to entry of decree which shall operate as license or permit for maintenance of nuisance for abatement or prevention of which remedy was created. Id. If he permits unauthorized decree to be entered to prejudice of public and fails or refuses to seek its correction, any other citizen may, upon proper showing of his qualifications, have same reviewed under writ of certiorari. Id. Particularly true in case of citizen who suffers special injury by reason of such decree. Id. As where she owns property adjoining place where nuisance is maintained and it would therefore be necessary, under Code, § 2448, to obtain her oonsent to sale at such place under provisions of mulct law. Id. Motive of the petitioner for certiorari is immaterial, and court will not consider contention that he is seeking to compel purchase of her property by defendants. Id.

19, 20. Campbell v. Jackman Bros. [Iowa] 118 NW 755.

21. Description of premises as "Nos. 83 and 85 Market Street" held to cover 83½ Market Street, which was stairway entrance between 83 and 86, leading up to and connected with second story of 83, and in which defendant and his family lived. State v. Chicco [S. C.] 63 SE 306.

22. Code, §§ 2382, 2384, 2405, 2447, 2448, construed, and held that where saloonkeeper who had paid mulct tax sold liquor on election day his place and business became and

§ 9. Civil liabilities for injuries resulting from sale.[See 10 C. L. 456]—By statute in many states, anyone furnishing or selling [23] intoxicants to another,[24] or to persons to whom the sale of intoxicants is prohibited by law or to whom he has been notified not to sell,[25] is made liable in damages[26] to certain specified persons,[27] or to any per-thereafter continued to be a nuisance which might be enjoined as such though he had, after such day, ceased to violate the law. Hammond v. King, 137 Iowa, 548, 114 NW 1062. Where it appeared that druggist had frequently made sales in violation of law before suit was brought, and still continued in the business, held that injunction should not have been refused on ground that he had not even technically violated law after suit was commenced and probably would not do so in future. Long v. Joder [Iowa] 116 NW 1063.

23. Evidence held to warrant submission of issue as to gifts made or permitted to be made to plaintiff's husband. Birkman v. Fahrenthold [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 428. In action for selling and furnishing liquor to plaintiff's minor son after notice, held that instruction requiring proof of sales to minor and ignoring effect of furnishing or giving liquor to him was erroneous. Liebler v. Carrel [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 976, 118 NW 975. Use of word "furnishing" instead of statutory word "giving" held immaterial, statute making licensee liable for either selling or giving in certain cases, and allegation of unlawful selling being amply sufficient. Pennington v. Gillaspie, 63 W. Va. 541, 61 SE 416.

24. To charge one with civil liability under Code 1895, § 3871, for selling to minor, it must appear that sale was made to minor by defendant in person, or in his presence, or with his consent, either express or implied. Fowler v. Rome Dispensary [Ga. App.] 62 SE 660. Said section confers civil right entirely distinct from penalty imposed by Pen. Code 1895, § 444, for selling, etc., to minors. Id. Emancipation of minor by father held no defense to suit by latter on bond. Price v. Wakeham [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 132. Evidence held sufficient to support allegation that plaintiff's husband was habitual drunkard. Birkman v. Fahrenthold [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 428. Change made in Rev. Pol. Code, § 2844, by Laws 1903, p. 190, c. 165, by including in unlawful sales without notice any person in habit of getting intoxicated, held immaterial in action on bond, where court did not submit issue as to person in habit of getting intoxicated to jury, form of bond not having been changed by such amendment. Palmer v. Schurz [S. D.] 117 NW 150. Sale to intoxicated person being illegal, held that no notice to party selling to such a person was necessary, either under statute or terms of bond, to render seller liable on bond. Id.

25. Instruction that burden was on plaintiff to prove material allegation of her complaint held not objectionable as leading jury to believe that in order to recover she must prove both that her husband was habitual drunkard and that defendant sold to him after notice, proof of either entitling her to recover under pleadings. Farenthold v. Tell [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 635. Right of plaintiff to serve notice not to sell to her husband held not dependent upon manner in which he treated her and her son when intoxicated, or even on whether he ever became intoxicated or not, so that evidence as to such treatment was improperly admitted. Id. Held error to allow testimony as to contents of written notice not to sell to plaintiff's husband which was not notice actually served on defendant. Montross v. Alexander, 152 Mich. 513, 15 Det. Leg. N. 228, 116 NW 190. Undisputed evidence held to support charge assuming service of notice on defendant. Birkman v. Fahrenthold [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 428. Allegation that constable served notice on defendant held sufficient, though it did not allege that he delivered it to him, served meaning service by delivery, and allegation being in language of statute. Id. Notice may be revoked, and revocation is complete defense to action on bond provided person to whom sale was made was not within prohibited class. Farenthold v. Tell [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 635. What saloonkeeper thought about efficacy of revocation, or what induced plaintiff to make it, held immaterial so that evidence on those points should not have been admitted. Id. Revocation of notices given to other saloonkeepers held immaterial except as circumstance to corroborate testimony that defendant's notice had been revoked. Id. Notice must have been revoked by person giving it in order to be defense to suit by latter. Id. Testimony of son that mother sent him to defendant to tell him not to sell to husband held admissible in view of allegation of defendant that he had made no sales to husband until after plaintiff had withdrawn her notice and given her permission, notwithstanding which she made no objection to defendant until filing of suit. Birkman v. Fahrenthold [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 428. Evidence held also admissible as tending to show that notice was in force at the time. Id. Withdrawal of notice held not revocation as far as defendant was concerned where he had not heard of it or acted on it. Id.

26. In action by widow for herself and as next friend for her minor child to recover for death of her husband, measure of damages is present value of sum deceased would probably have contributed to support of wife during period of their joint expectancy of life and amount he would probably have contributed to support of child during its dependency, provided it is less than deceased's expectancy. Young v. Beveridge [Neb.] 115 NW 766. Instruction stating rule in general terms held not ground for reversal, where there was no request for more specific one. Id. Though no evidence was introduced to show plaintiff's age or the condition of her health, held that jury were not precluded from considering her appearance in that regard in determining probable duration of her life. Id. Verdict held justified by case made and not to be excessive. Id. Held proper to permit mother to recover exemplary damages for injury to her means of support by reason of sales to her minor son. Ellsworth v. Cummins, 134 Ill. App. 397. Instructions inhibiting recovery of exemplary damages held properly refused. Pennington v. Gillaspie, 63 W. Va. 541, 61 SE son injured,[28] for any injuries resulting from such sale,[29] or from sales within a specified time before the commencement of the action.[30] In some states the liability is extended to the owners[31] and lessors[32] of buildings used for saloon purposes. Whether damages due to the death of the person to whom the sale is made may be recovered,[33] and whether damages sustained by an individual in consequence of the liquor traffic may be recovered though death follows the injury,[34] depends on the terms of the statute giving the right of action. That sales were made by his agent or servant does not relieve defendant from liability,[35] though they were made in vio-

416. Held proper to allege and prove conduct of husband inflicting humiliation and grief on wife in aggravation of damages. Id.

27. Under Rev. Pol. Code, § 2849, held that plaintiff could recover damages sustained by her children through suicide of their father even though she was not entitled to recover those sustained by herself. Palmer v. Schurz [S. D.] 117 NW 150.

28. Sister who was wholly without means and unable to earn livelihood, and was dependent on brother for her support, he being legally liable to support her under Hurd's Rev. St. 1908, c. 107, held entitled to sue under Hurd's Rev. St. 1908, c. 43, § 9, for damage to her means of support caused by sale to brother, regardless of whether she could have enforced brother's duty to support her. Nagle v. Keller, 237 Ill. 74, 86 NE 694. Where mother was living separate and apart from husband and derived her means of support from her own labors and those of her minor son, held that she could sue for injury to her means of support caused by sales to son, though his father was still living. Ellsworth v. Cummins, 134 Ill. App. 397. Since under compulsory school law father was bound to cause son to attend school, and hence was bound to furnish school books as part of his necessary support, held that deprivation of son's necessary school books by reason of intoxication of father was injury to means of support of son, and he was properly permitted to show such deprivation. Strattman v. Moore, 134 Ill. App. 275. Since wages earned by son during his minority belong to father, latter suffers direct pecuniary injury by death of son, and hence may maintain action under Comp. St. 1907, §§ 4235-4238, providing that license shall pay all damages that community or individuals may sustain in consequence of such traffic, though he is not dependent upon son for support, and regardless of whether son is under legal duty to support father. Murphy v. Willow Springs Brew. Co. [Neb.] 115 NW 763. Though loss of support is pecuniary injury for which recovery may be had, it is not the only pecuniary injury authorizing such recovery. Id.

29. Whether plaintiff's husband was intoxicated when he committed suicide held immaterial, provided his suicide was result of his previous intoxication. Palmer v. Schurz [S. D.] 117 NW 150. In action for damages for sale to plaintiff's minor son after notice, held that when plaintiff proves specific acts of intoxication and defendant denies having made any sales, it is competent to prove that intoxication complained of was caused by liquor furnished by another. Liebler v. Carrel [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 976, 118 NW 975. But neither as defense nor for purpose of dividing statutory liability may prior or contemporaneous sales be considered. Id. Saloonkeeper held liable under Comp. Laws 1897, § 5398, for injuries resulting to plaintiff from fact that husband committed suicide while intoxicated without proof that intoxication was cause of suicide. Dice v. Sherberneau, 152 Mich. 601, 15 Det. Leg. N. 255, 116 NW 416. Evidence held to justify finding that plaintiff's husband was intoxicated when he shot himself. Id. In action on bond for damages because of suicide of plaintiff's husband, allegation of complaint that sale was made to deceased on July 15, and that he continued to be intoxicated up to the time of his suicide on July 17, held to bring case within time specified in Rev. Pol. Code, § 2849, as "on that day or about that time when said acts were committed or said injuries received." Palmer v. Schurz [S. D.] 117 NW 150.

30. Damages recoverable under Code 1899, c. 32, § 26, should be limited to those arising from sales made within one year prior to commencement of action. Pennington v. Gillaspie, 63 W. Va. 541, 61 SE 416.

31. To establish liability of owner of building, it is necessary to prove guilt of occupant, and if owner and occupant of building are sued jointly, recovery is dependent on proof that occupant sold or gave intoxicants which in whole or in part caused intoxication complained of. Rev. St. 1905, c. 42. Hedlund v. Geyer, 234 Ill. 589, 85 NE 203, rvg. 137 Ill. App. 229.

32. Owner of building who rents it to another for saloon premises may, in proper case, be held liable for exemplary damages under Dramshop Act, § 9. Beckerle v. Brandon, 133 Ill. App. 114.

33. Acts 1905, p. 350, c. 36, construed, and held not to entitle widow to damages for injury to her means of support by death of her husband caused by intoxication, the consequence of liquors illegally furnished or sold to him by defendant. Pennington v. Gillaspie, 63 W. Va. 541, 61 SE 416.

34. Are recoverable under Comp. St. 1907, § 4235, without the aid of Lord Campbell's Act (Id. §§ 2802-2803). Murphy v. Willow Springs Brew. Co. [Neb.] 115 NW 761; Id. [Neb.] 115 NW 763. Such action is properly brought by the party or parties entitled to such damages, and is not maintainable by the personal representatives of the deceased. Id.

35. Saloonkeeper held responsible for sale to plaintiff's husband made by one left in sole charge of saloon, though latter received no compensation and though defendant had notified his regular barkeeper not to sell to plaintiff's husband. Dice v. Sherberneau, 152 Mich. 601, 15 Det. Leg. N. 255, 116 NW 416. Under declaration alleging sales

lation of his instructions,[36] nor is the fact that sales were made in good faith ordinarily a defense.[37] Plaintiff's consent to or acquiescence in the sale precludes recovery,[38] but the fact that he participated in the purchase does not, where he acted under coercion.[39] His bad character is no defense.[40] His motive in suing is ordinarily immaterial.[41]

The place of trial depends on the statutes of the various states.[42]

Where the parents' right of action for sales to a minor is community property, suit must be brought by the husband.[43] Where the wife dies pending a suit by both parents, the husband may prosecute it alone.[44] If the parents are divorced, both parents are necessary parties, unless the custody of the minor is awarded to one of them by the decree.[45] All persons liable under the statute may generally be joined as defendants in one suit.[46]

Plaintiff must allege all facts essential to the establishment of his cause of action.[47] Where good faith is a defense, it must be pleaded if relied on.[48] Matters laid under a videlicet need not be proved exactly as alleged.[49]

by defendant, sales by his bartender, clerk, servant, or agent may be shown, they being deemed in law to have been made by him. Pennington v. Gillaspie, 63 W. Va. 541, 61 SE 416.

36. Fact that defendant had previously directed servant not to furnish intoxicants to deceased held no defense. Young v. Beveridge [Neb.] 115 NW 766.

37. Good faith of saloonkeeper in believing that minor was of age held no defense to action by father on bond for permitting minor son to enter and remain in saloon. Markus v. Thompson [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 1074.

38. Acquiescense of father in sales to his minor son held to preclude recovery on bond. Instruction approved. Price v. Wakeham [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 132. Fact that father had expressly authorized other saloonkeepers to sell liquor to his minor son held no defense to action by him on bond for permitting minor to enter and remain in defendant's saloon. Markus v. Thompson [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 1074.

39. Fact that sons procured liquor for father held not to preclude them from recovering where they were under his domination and control and were coerced by him. Strattman v. Moore, 134 Ill. App. 275. Nor were their rights affected, under the circumstances, by fact that, at suggestion of their sister, they kept memorandum of the several occasions upon which they so procured liquor from defendant. Id.

40. Action by father on bond for sale to minor son. Price v. Wakeham [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 132.

41. Motive of wife in instituting suit on bond for sales to husband held immaterial, so that allegation that it was fraudulently instituted for purposes of speculation should have been stricken. Farenthold v. Tell [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 635. In action for damages for sale of liquor to plaintiff's minor son after notice, in which she claimed damages for injury to her feelings only, held that she was entitled to statutory penalty of $50, regardless of her motive. Liebler v. Carrel [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 976, 118 NW 975.

42. Cause of action arising under Code 1899, c. 32, § 26 (Code 1906, § 938), is transitory, and it need not appear that it arose in county in which action was brought. Pennington v. Gillaspie, 63 W. Va. 541, 61 SE 416.

43. Recovery on bond for selling to minor, or permitting minor to enter and remain in saloon, is community property where both parents are living together. Price v. Wakeham [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 132.

44. Action on bond for permitting minor to enter and remain in saloon. Munoz v. Brassel [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 417.

45. Plea in abatement setting up divorce held insufficient where it did not show what disposition was made as to custody of minor, or that such decree was final judgment, or that it had not been appealed from, set aside, or reversed, or that wife was living at time of filing plea. Price v. Wakeham [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 132.

46. Rev. St. 1905, c. 43, held to authorize joining of all persons, whether the sellers of the intoxicating liquors or the owners of buildings in which they were sold, though recovery can only be had against those whose liability is established by proof. Hedlund v. Geyer, 234 Ill. 589, 85 NE 203, rvg. 137 Ill. App. 229. Held that owners of buildings knowingly permitting liquors to be sold therein, which it was alleged caused intoxication of plaintiff's father, might be joined as defendants in suit to which their tenants were not parties with tenant of another building which they did not own, though they could not be made liable for latter's acts or for sales not made by tenants of their buildings. Id.

47. Is sufficient to allege generally that plaintiff was injured in her means of support in consequence of her husband's intoxication. Declaration held to state cause of action within rule. Pennington v. Gillaspie, 63 W. Va. 541, 61 SE 416. Contention that complaint in action on bond was insufficient for failure to allege that bond was approved and filed held untenable where bond, which was part of complaint, bore indorsement of county auditor to effect that it had been approved by county commissioners. Palmer v. Schurz [S. D.] 117 NW 150. Complaint held to sufficiently allege that defendant and his agents and servants sold plaintiff's husband liquor when he was intoxicated on or about time act complained of was committed. Id. Petition in action by father on bond for sales to minor son held to sufficiently describe defendant's place of business. Price v. Wakeham [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 132. Overruling of exception to allegations that son was obviously a minor, etc., held not reversible error in view of allegations of answer that sales to son were made in good faith under well founded belief that he was of age. Id. Where petition alleged that defendant was engaged in business of selling intoxicants in quantities less than quart, and had obtained license and executed liquor dealer's bond, held that allegation that he permitted plaintiff's minor son to enter and remain in his place of business sufficiently showed that place referred to was one where intoxicants were sold, though evidence showed that defendant had two places of business, in one of which intoxicants were not sold. Markus v. Thompson [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 1074. Held unnecessary to allege length of time minor remained in saloon, whether he was allowed to remain long enough to constitute breach of bond being question for jury. Id. Allegation as to date on which minor was allowed to enter and remain held sufficiently definite to allow proof of two breaches on certain day. Id. If fact that father had authorized others to sell to minor son was defense to action by him on bond for permitting minor to enter and remain in saloon, held that it could not be shown under general denial, but must be specially pleaded. Id.

The burden is on plaintiff to establish the material allegations of his complaint by a preponderance of the evidence.[50] The sale of intoxicants, as well as the injury or accident claimed as a result thereof, may be established by circumstantial evidence.[51] The usual rules of evidence apply.[52] Cases dealing with the admissibility of particular evidence[53] on the issue as to whether the person to whom sales are alleged to have been made was an habitual drunkard, to show intoxication,[54] to show the nature and quality of the liquor sold,[55] or the issue as to plaintiff's good faith in instituting the suit,[56] and on the issue of damages,[57] will be found in the notes.

48. Instruction to find for defendant if he sold to plaintiff's husband in good faith, with belief that latter was not habitual drunkard, and there was good ground for such belief, held error, that defense not being raised by the answer. Farenthold v. Tell [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 635.

49. Where petition charged violations on or about specified dates, held proper to refuse to confine recovery to violations on exact dates alleged. Munoz v. Brassel [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 417. Where petition alleged sales on or about certain dates, held that plaintiff was not bound to prove sales on said dates. Birkman v. Fahrenthold [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 428.

50. Instruction approved. Birkman v. Fahrenthold [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 428.

51. In action by plaintiff in behalf of herself and minor children to recover for death of her husband, evidence held to support verdict in her favor. Sullivan v. Radznweit [Neb.] 118 NW 571.

52. Evidence held admissible: In action for damages for injuries resulting from sale to plaintiff's husband, held proper to permit plaintiff to show her reason for stating to another saloonkeeper that he might sell liquor to husband on Saturday nights. Montross v. Alexander, 152 Mich. 513, 15 Det. Leg. N. 228, 116 NW 190. Held proper to permit plaintiff to testify to an interview with defendant and her husband in which defendant insisted that she should settle cause for $25, and threatened her with death if she did not, such evidence being supplemented by testimony from which inference might be drawn that defendant caused husband to use his influence upon plaintiff to induce her not to press the cause. Id. Testimony of son that he remembered time when his mother claimed to have seen his father drunk held not objectionable as hearsay, it, and questions eliciting it, having reference to circumstance of what mother had claimed in her testimony in order to direct his testimony to same subject-matter. Birkman v. Fahrenthold [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 428.

Evidence held inadmissible: In action for injuries resulting from sale to plaintiff's husband, held error to permit her to testify that she had 6 children, it appearing that 3 of them were living at home. Montross v. Alexander, 152 Mich. 513, 15 Det. Leg. N. 228, 116 NW 190. Statement by defendant or his servant that he had furnished certain mild drink to deceased held inadmissible as part of res gestae in action for damages for wrongful killing of deceased by sale to him. Young v. Beveridge [Neb.] 115 NW 766. In action for damages for sale to plaintiff's minor son after notice, evidence that plaintiff's husband rented building for saloon purposes and was surety on liquor dealer's bond held immaterial, he not being party to action, and there being no evidence tending to show her assent to his dealings or sympathy with business. Liebler v. Carrel [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 976, 118 NW 975. Evidence as to drinking habits of plaintiff's husband held irrelevant. Id.

53. There being testimony that plaintiff's husband would not mistreat her when sober, evidence tending to prove frequency of such conduct toward her held admissible. Birkman v. Fahrenthold [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 428. Though declaration under Code 1899, c. 32, § 26 (Code 1906, § 938), states claim for damages for only one year preceding commencement of action, evidence of habitual drunkenness on part of person to whom sales were made prior to said year and continuing until time of sales complained of, and knowledge on part of seller, is admissible. Pennington v. Gillaspie, 63 W. Va. 541, 61 SE 416.

54. Held not error to allow witnesses to testify as to whether or not deceased was intoxicated. Palmer v. Schurz [S. D.] 117 NW 150.

55. Statement of witness as to probable effect of liquor consumed by patron held inadmissible, though its admission was not error where it was part of conversation

Instructions should not be on the weight of the evidence[58] or assume the existence of fact in issue.[59]

In some states on action may be maintained on a liquor dealer's bond [60] by persons aggrieved by a sale [61] or by violation of the conditions of the bond.[62] The liability of sureties is limited to the penalty named in the bond [63] and in the absence of a provision therein to the contrary,[64] to damages resulting from sales made during properly admissible. Young v. Beveridge [Neb.] 115 NW 766.

56. Evidence as to husband's treatment of his family when drunk held admissible to refute plea that plaintiff and her husband fraudulently connived to obtain liquor for latter for sole purpose of fraudulently mulcting defendants in damages, even though plea was not afterwards substantiated. Birkman v. Fahrenthold [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 428. Testimony of wife that husband cursed her and threatened to kill her if she followed him to defendant's saloon again, etc., held admissible for same purpose. Id. In action for damages for sale to plaintiff's minor son, held that evidence as to refusal of license for another saloon in building owned by plaintiff's husband, etc., for purpose of showing that action was brought as result of conspiracy between plaintiff and those competing with defendant for opportunity to do business in community, was properly excluded, where defendant tendered no such issue by questions propounded or offers of testimony. Liebler v. Carrel [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 976, 118 NW 975.

57. In action for damages for sale to plaintiff's minor son after notice, held competent for defendant to prove that minor was in habit of becoming intoxicated prior to time when it is claimed he furnished him liquor. Liebler v. Carrel [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 976, 118 NW 975. Whether such evidence would tend to mitigate damages in particular case held to depend on other circumstances disclosed. Id. In action for injuries resulting from sale to plaintiff's husband, held proper to permit her to show that she had stroke of paralysis, and to introduce expert testimony as to its connection with her troubles. Montross v. Alexander, 152 Mich. 513, 15 Det. Leg. N. 228, 116 NW 190. In action by wife under Comp. Laws, § 5398, on bond for damages due to husband becoming incapacitated to maintain his family, held that mortality tables were properly admitted in evidence. Merrinane v. Miller [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 811, 118 NW 11. Permitting nonexpert witness who had worked with deceased to state in his opinion deceased was able to perform full day's manual labor held proper. Young v. Beveridge [Neb.] 115 NW 766.

58. Instruction as to burden of proof held not on weight of evidence. Birkman v. Fahrenthold [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 428.

59. Instructions held not objectionable as assuming fact of sales, etc. Birkman v. Fahrenthold [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 428. Instruction that hall where dancing was carried on was appurtenant to and part of saloon, and that permitting minor to enter and remain there would be permitting him to enter and remain in said saloon, held proper under evidence. Munoz v. Brassel [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 417.

60. Laws 1907, p. 258, c. 138, regulating sale of liquor, held not to have repealed Rev. St. 1895, art. 5060g, giving right of action on bond. Price v. Wakeham [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 132; Markus v. Thompson [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 1074; Farenthold v. Tell [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 635; Birkman v. Fahrenthold [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 428.

61. Laws 1897, c. 72, Pol. Code, c. 27, art. 6, giving married woman right to recover on bond damages resulting from sale of intoxicants to her husband, held not to violate Const. art. 3, § 21, providing that no law shall embrace more than one subject, which shall be expressed in its title. Palmer v. Schurz [S. D.] 117 NW 150.

62. "Persons aggrieved" as used in Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. art. 3380 means any person whose legal rights have been invaded by breach of bond. Saunders v. Alvido [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 992. Sister standing in loco parentis held entitled to maintain action for sales to minor, where mother and fathsr were dead Id. Petition held to show moral and legal obligation on part of plaintiff to maintain, control and care for minor. Id. In action on bond by parent for permitting minor to enter and remain in saloon, instructions that defendant must knowingly have permitted minor to enter and remain held properly refused, words "permit" and "remain" as used in bond not implying knowledge on part of defendant. Munoz v. Brassel [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 417. Fact that father was person aggrieved held to be shown by his relationship to his minor son, so that it was not necessary for him to allege that he was aggrieved. Markus v. Thompson [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 1074. May be more than one breach of bond on same day by allowing same minor to enter and remain in same saloon on same day. Id.

63. Provision of Comp. Laws, § 5398, fixing liability of sureties, must be read in connection with provision requiring bond and fixing penalty thereof. Merrinane v. Miller [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 811, 118 NW 11. Error in rendering judgment against sureties in excess of penalty fixed by bond held not cured by later limiting liability against defendants who were joined to amount of bond and permitting judgment against other defendants to stand at amount found by jury, such a course being unauthorized. Id.

64. Where various sales made through 3 successive years contributed to husband of plaintiff becoming habitual drunkard and wholly incapacitated to maintain his family, held that, under Comp. Laws, § 5398, principal and sureties on bonds for each of the successive years were responsible for the final consequences. Merrinane v. Miller [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 811, 118 NW 11. Such holding held not to violate rule that surety cannot be presumed to have meant to become liable for acts committed before he

the life of the bond.[65] The fair and voluntary execution of the bond is conclusive on the sureties of everything admitted therein.[66] Where the principal enjoys the benefit of a bond fairly entered into, the surety cannot question its validity after breach.[67] Where the surety undertakes to be liable for the result of a suit against the principal under the civil damage act, he is conclusively bound by the judgment in such a suit though he was not a party thereto and had no notice thereof.[68] The plea of nul tiel record is proper to test the existence of such judgment in an action on the bond.[69] Where the bond is joint and several, the fact that the act of a corporation in becoming surety thereon was ultra vires does not necessarily discharge the other surety.[70] One not a party to the bond cannot be joined as a defendant in an action thereon.[71] The plaintiff in such an action must prove that defendant was a licensee.[72] Admissions of the principal in proceedings to which the sureties were not parties are inadmissible as against them.[73]

§ 10. Property rights in and contracts relating to intoxicants.[See 10 C. L. 460] Contracts for the sale of intoxicants in violation of law[74] or for the purpose of enabling another to violate the law[75] are unenforcible. The fact that corporations signed bond, since there could be no liability unless unlawful act was committed after signing bond, and in light of statute making principal and sureties liable for any contribution to the injury, they must be held to have undertaken obligation indicated. Id.

65. Instruction held not misleading as authorizing jury to find for plaintiff for sales preceding giving of bond. Birkman v. Fahrenthold [Tex. Civ. Tex.] 114 SW 428. Proof that from date preceding bond to filing of suit there were 10 violations held not proof that 10 violations or any certain number of violations occurred during life of bond. Id. Testimony admissible against sureties held not to warrant recovery as against them for more than 2 violations. Id.

66. Town of Point Pleasant v. Greenlee, 63 W. Va. 207, 60 SE 601.

67. Estopped to contend that it was founded on illegal license. Town of Point Pleasant v. Greenlee, 63 W. Va. 207, 60 SE 601.

68. Where bond guaranteed payment of judgment for damages recovered under Code 1899, c. 32, held that surety was conclusively bound by judgment in action under that statute. Town of Point Pleasant v. Greenlee, 63 W. Va. 207, 60 SE 601.

69. The plea of nul tiel record is proper to test the existence of a judgment in a suit on a bond with collateral conditions, the breach of which assigned is the nonpayment of such judgment. Suit on bond conditioned to pay judgment recovered against principal under civil damage act. Town of Point Pleasant v. Greenlee, 63 W. Va. 207, 60 SE 601.

70. Where bond was in terms joint and several and act of corporation in becoming surety was not one which was necessarily ultra vires, held that other surety could not claim to be discharged even though plea of ultra vires was sustained. Munoz v. Brassel [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 417.

71. One who was liable under statute for sale of liquors resulting in injury to plaintiffs held not proper party. Sullivan v. Radzuweit [Neb.] 118 NW 571.

72. In action by parent for permitting minor to enter and remain in saloon, held that fact of application, payment of tax, filing of bond, and prosecution of business at particular place during year, was strong presumptive evidence that license was issued, and that it was unnecessary to expressly prove that it was issued. Munoz v. Brassel [Tex Civ. App.] 108 SW 417.

73. Admissions of principal at formal trial and in ex parte depositions held admissible against him, but not against sureties. Birkman v. Fahrenthold [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 428.

74. Can be no recovery for liquor sold in local option territory in violation of law. Dallas Brewery v. Holmes Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 122. Where contract was made in prohibition territory, and it was agreed that delivery was to be made there, and it was in fact made there, held that transaction was illegal, and parties being in pari delicto, seller could not maintain action for price. Shelby Vinegar Co. v. Hawn [N. C.] 63 SE 78. Corporation operating brewery legally held entitled to recover for beer sold at wholesale, even though fact that it also engaged in sale of beer at retail was violation of law. Orke v. McManus [Iowa] 115 NW 580. Code 1897, § 2423, providing that all liens and securities made on account of liquors sold in violation of law shall be void, and no rights can be acquired thereby, held not to apply to bond given by lessee conditioned that he should engage in no unlawful business on premises, and that lessor should be held harmless from any expenditure, or costs, or injunction, or assessment under prohibitory laws of state. Harbison v. Shirley [Iowa] 117 NW 963. Note held void under Gen. St. 1902, § 2727, providing that all contracts any part of consideration of which is illegal sale of intoxicants shall be void. Connecticut Brew. Co. v. Murphy [Conn.] 70 A 450. Statute held to include sales made without license. Id.

75. Can be no recovery where seller knows that purpose of purchaser is to retail liquor in local option territory in violation of law, and aids and abets purchaser in making such sales, and where money for payment of seller is to be derived from such sales. Dallas Brewery v. Holmes Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 122. In action by lessor on bond cannot be licensed to sell at retail has been held not to make it unlawful for a corporation to lease premises for the purpose of having beer manufactured by it sold therein.[76] The person seeking to avoid a contract ordinarily has the burden of proving its illegality.[77] It has been held that the court will not take judicial notice that beer is intoxicating,[78] or, except in the case of county seats, that a certain town is in a certain county.[79] The fact that the seller took out a federal internal revenue license may be shown on the issue as to whether the liquor sold was intoxicating.[80]

Where intoxicating liquors are recognized as property, they are insurable.[81] If at the time of effecting the insurance, however, the owner intends to use the liquors in the conduct of an unlawful business, the contract of insurance is void.[82]

The lease of a building for saloon purposes is terminated by the subsequent passage of a law prohibiting the sale of intoxicants in the city where it is located.[83]

§ 11. Drunkenness as an offense. See 10 C. L. 460—Drunkenness[84] in a public place or on a public street or highway[85] is made an offense in some states.

The burden is on the state to prove all the essential elements of the offense[86] and that it was committed within the territorial jurisdiction of the court in which the prosecution is instituted.[87] The mere fact that one has drunk a large quantity of given by lessee conditioned that he should engage in no unlawful business on premises, and to hold lessor harmless from any expenditure, etc., under prohibitory laws, to recover mulct tax assessed against property because of lessee's sale of intoxicants thereon, evidence held insufficient to show that lessor connived at unlawful sales so as to preclude recovery on ground that lease and bond were made for purpose of permitting sales on leased premises in violation of law. Harbison v. Shirley [Iowa] 117 NW 963. Mere fact that lessor feared or suspected that liquor might be so sold held not to prevent recovery. Id.

76. Provision in lease for surrender of term in event license for dramshop could not be procured held not contrary to public policy. Conservative Realty Co. v. St. Louis Brew. Ass'n [Mo. App.] 113 SW 229.

77. Defendant seeking to avoid paying for intoxicant on ground that seller knew that it was to be sold in local option territory must prove that it was to be so sold. Dallas Brewery v. Holmes Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 122. In action by lessor on bond given by lessee conditioned that he should engage in no unlawful business on premises and to hold lessor harmless from any expenditure, or costs, or injunction, or assessment under prohibitory laws, held that burden was on defendant to show that provision in lease against use of premises for any unlawful purpose was mere subterfuge to cover up real purpose to use premises for unlawful sale of liquor. Harbison v. Shirley [Iowa] 117 NW 963.

78. Though contrary is true as to whisky, brandy, gin, and the like. Dallas Brewery v. Holmes Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 122.

79. Dallas Brewery v. Holmes Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 122.

80. In action on account for sale of cider. Shelby Vinegar Co. v. Hawn [N. C.] 63 SE 78.

81. Kellogg v. German American Ins. Co. [Mo. App.] 113 SW 663.

82. On theory that its direct effect is to protect insured in his purpose to violate law. Kellogg v. German American Ins. Co. [Mo. App.] 113 SW 663. Presence in drug stock at time insurance was effected of 10 barrels of beer and 70 gallons of whisky, and fact that thereafter insured made occasional unlawful sales, while tending to prove unlawful intent, held not to be conclusive, but to merely raise issue of fact for jury. Id.

83. Lessor held not entitled to recover rent where lessee discontinued occupancy. Heart v. East Tennessee Brew. Co. [Tenn.] 113 SW 364.

84. Drunkenness held to mean under influence of intoxicants to such an extent as to have lost the normal control of one's bodily and mental faculties, and, commonly, to evince disposition to violence, quarrelsomeness and bestiality. Brooke v. Morrilton [Ark.] 111 SW 471. Evidence showing that defendant was drinking and showed some signs of effect of liquor, but that he was attending to his business in orderly manner, and had not lost control of his faculties, held not to warrant conviction. Id. Word drunkenness as used in statute is to be understood in its ordinary and popular sense as result of excessive drinking of intoxicants. Clark v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 529, 111 SW 659. Evidence held to justify finding that defendant was drunk. Id.

85. City is not obliged to adopt Acts 1907, p. 290, making it an offense to appear at public gatherings in drunken condition, in order to have valid ordinance on the subject, though it may do so. Brooke v. Morrilton [Ark.] 111 SW 471. City ordinance making it misdemeanor to appear on public street in drunken or intoxicated condition held valid exercise of police power under Kirby's Dig. § 5438. Id. Evidence that defendant was drunk on certain named streets of certain city held sufficient proof that place where he was drunk was on a public street or highway. Springfield v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 569.

86. On prosecution for being intoxicated on public highway, to show that road in question was in fact a public highway. Cleveland v. State [Ga. App.] 60 SE 801. Conviction reversed where there was no evidence on the question. Id.

87. Proof that offense of being drunk on beer does not render him competent to testify as to whether a named quantity would have made defendant drunk.[88] The court need not define drunkenness or intoxication in its instructions.[89]

JOINT ADVENTURES.

The scope of this topic is noted below.[90]

What constitutes. See 10 C. L. 460—A joint adventure, as distinguished from agency,[91] partnership,[92] or tenancy in common,[93] is merely a combination of two or more persons in a single enterprise.[94] The implied understanding between joint purchasers is that each is engaging in an enterprise for mutual benefit and that public highway was committed in designated town or city held insufficient to establish venue and consequent jurisdiction in court whose jurisdiction was coextensive with a county. Springfield v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 569.

88. There being no statement as to his particular knowledge of effect of such liquor on defendant. Clark v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 529, 111 SW 659.

89. Leaving question of defendant's drunkenness to jury without defining term held not error. Brooke v. Morrilton [Ark.] 111 SW 471. Is not necessary to define "drunkenness" and "in a state of intoxication." Clark v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 529, 111 SW 659. Refusal of instruction that terms meant more than that defendant had drunk intoxicants sufficient to exhilerate him held not error in view of other instructions. Id.

90. Includes rights and liabilities between parties to joint enterprises for profit. Excludes partnerships (see Partnership, 10 C. L. 1100), joint estates (see Tenants in Common and Joint Tenants, 10 C. L. 1850), joint contracts (see Contracts, 11 C. L. 729), and joint tort feasors (see Torts, 10 C. L. 1857).

91. Contract between real estate agent and landowner for securing purchaser, compensation to be amount in excess of stated price, is agency contract, not joint venture. Manker v. Tough [Kan.] 98 P 792.

92. Agreement for joint construction of private telephone not partnership, there being no element of agency, no provision for division of profits, and no intention to create partnership. Hancock v. Tharpe, 129 Ga. 812, 60 SE 168.

93. Rights held analogous to those of tenants in common, and hence to be administered according to such analogy. Hancock v. Tharpe, 129 Ga. 812, 60 SE 168.

94. Complaint alleging that parties engaged in buying, training and selling horses, one party advancing money under agreement to divide profits equally, held to sufficiently state joint venture entitling plaintiff to accounting. Rice v. Peters, 113 NYS 40.

NOTE. Definition: A joint adventure is an agreement to share the returns of a particular transaction. In re Camp, 15 Ct. Cl. 469; Pickerell v. Fisk, 11 La. Ann. 277; McCreery v. Green, 38 Mich. 172; Taylor v. Bradley, 4 Abb. Dec. [N. Y.] 363; Newman v. Ruby, 54 W. Va. 381, 46 SE 172; Stotts v. Miller, 128 Iowa, 633, 105 NW 127; Alderton v. Williams, 139 Mich. 296, 102 NW 753; Kirkwood v. Smith, 47 Misc. 301, 95 NYS 926; Price v. Grice, 10 Idaho, 443, 79 P 387; Berg v. Gillender, 115 App. Div. 288, 100 NYS 792; Paddock v. Bray, 40 Tex. Civ. App. 226, 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 383, 88 SW 419; Wisconsin S. F. Co. v. D. K. Jeffris Lumber Co., 132 Wis. 1, 111 NW 237; Jones v. McNally, 53 Misc. 59, 103 NYS 1011; Voegtlin v. Bowdoin, 54 Misc. 254, 104 NYS 394; Scott v. White [Or.] 91 P 487. It is the creature of contract (Alderton v. Williams, 139 Mich. 296, 102 NW 753; Corbin v. Holmes [C. C. A.] 154 F 593; Whaples v. Fahys, 87 App. Div. 518, 84 NYS 793) and must rest upon a joint interest (Henderson v. Dougherty, 95 App. Div. 346, 88 NYS 665). The relation of joint adventures does not constitute a partnership unless the parties so intend or unless they hold themselves out to the public as partners. Brotherton v. Gilchrist, 144 Mich. 274, 13 Det. Leg. N. 150, 107 NW 890, 115 Am. St. Rep. 397; Blue v. Leathers, 15 Ill. 31; Beecher v. Bush, 45 Mich. 188, 7 NW 785, 40 Am. Rep. 465; Merrick v. Gordon, 20 N. Y. 93; Champion v. Bostwick, 18 Wend. [N. Y.] 175, 31 Am. Dec. 376; Everett v. Coe, 5 Denio [N. Y.] 180; Heimstreet v. Howland, 5 Denio [N. Y.] 68; Pattison v. Blanchard, 5 N. Y. 186; Putnam v. Wise, 1 Hill [N. Y.] 234, 37 Am. Dec. 309; Day v. Stevens, 88 N. C. 83, 43 Am. Rep. 732; Brown v. Jaquette, 94 Pa. 113, 39 Am. Rep. 770; Ambler v. Bradley, 6 Vt. 119; Cedarburg v. Guernsey, 12 S. D. 77, 80 NW 159; Mason v. Potter, 26 Vt. 722; Oppenheimer v. Clemmons, 18 F 886; Benjamin v. Porteus, 2 H. Bl. 590; Dry v. Boswell, 1 Camp. 330; Mair v. Glennie, 4 Maule & S. 240; Wilkinson v. Frasier, 4 Esp. 182; Heyhoe v. Burge, 9 C. B. 431; Eastman v. Clark, 53 N. H. 276, 16 Am. Rep. 192. Contra, Jones v. McMichael, 12 Rich. [S. C.] 176; Allen v. Davis, 13 Ark. 28; Holifield v. White, 52 Ga. 567; Adams v. Carter, 53 Ga. 160. The nature of the interest of the parties in the profits is sometimes held to be determinative of the character of the relation, it being held that one is a partner where a part of the profits themselves is his property, but not a partner where the amount of the profits merely fixes the amount of a debt or duty, and the profits themselves do not belong to such party. Shumaker on Partnership, p. 41, A joint adventure has been defined as a partnership limited as to scope and duration. Ross v. Willett, 76 Hun, 211, 27 NYS 785.—[Ed.]

each has a share in the venture according to the amount of his subscription.[95] The existence of the relation is determinable from the contract,[96] either by the court[97] or the jury.[98]

Rights and liabilities of parties. See 10 C. L. 461—The relation being contractual, the right to the profits frequently involves a construction of the agreement[99] and the determination of what are profits.[1] Losses should fall on the party who assumed the risk and would have reaped the benefit, rather than one whose interest in confined to reimbursement for advances and who held the legal title only for the purpose of security.[2] Interest should be provided for if intended to be charged.[3] An agreement not to sell the article produced without mutual consent does not authorize a party arbitrarily to withhold his consent.[4] The relationship being fiduciary, the parties must act in the highest good faith,[5] and a concealed profit accrues for the benefit of all the parties.[6] Parties to a joint adventure, as distinguished from a partnership, are not bound by the acts and declarations of other parties thereto relative to matters outside the joint adventure.[7]

95. Lomita Land & Water Co. v. Robinson [Cal.] 97 P 10.

96. Whether managers of syndicate were partners properly determinable from agreement. Jones v. Gould, 123 App. Div. 236, 108 NYS 31. Agreement being unambiguous was only evidence. Id.

97. Where there is no ambiguity in contract. Jones v. Gould, 123 App. Div. 236, 108 NYS 31.

98. Right of partner to recover sum advanced, dependent upon existence of joint venture, held properly submitted to jury, in view of evidence. Bowman v. Saigling [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 1082.

99. In joint adventure for manufacture of wire rope, where corporation furnished capital consisting of buildings, machinery and materials, and agreed to reception of one-half of net profits, "taxes on the capital employed and other charges as usual" to be made in ascertaining net profits, it was proper to deduct depreciation of machinery, power furnished, repairs, insurance, and deterioration of finished product stored in warehouse. Stone v. Wright Wire Co., 199 Mass. 306, 85 NE 471. Fact that parties to contract were not technically partners would be immaterial as affecting deductions from gross earnings in determining net profits. Id. In determining net profits of joint adventure, insurance held a "usual charge" within meaning of contract. Id. Where one party agreed to furnish buildings and power provision as to "power" was merely part of description of buildings to be furnished, and in ascertaining net profits it was proper to deduct value of power furnished from gross earnings. Id.

Profits in joint adventure for sale of stocks: Fact that person entitled to share in commission on sale of stock became purchaser immaterial as to rights of parties to commission. Boqua v. Marshall [Ark.] 114 SW 714. Where several parties were entitled to commission in sale of stock, party not active in sale was not entitled to his share free from expenditures, but must bear proportionate share. Id. Where active partners in inducing sale of stock paid bonus to person to finance deal, such bonus was legitimate item of expense to be deducted from profits before division. Id. Payment of $2,500 for extension of option to sell, $250 attorney's fees in preparing papers, $234.50 to engineer to examine property, $500 for attorney's services, and $776.78, half of operating expenses of firm, held legitimate expenses in earning $15,000 commission. Id. Amount forfeited by person for failing to consummate deal held proper item of profit to be added to commission. Id. Evidence sufficient to show verbal agreement for assistance of another in affecting sale of stock and that such person have one-third of commission. Id.

1. Net profits are the clear gain of a venture after deducting from net value of assets on hand capital invested and all outstanding liabilities. Thurston v. Hamblin, 199 Mass. 151, 85 NE 82. Where, under contract, party was entitled to one-half of net profits of venture, to be computed and paid quarterly, he was entitled to one-half of net profits from beginning of venture or from last division of profits, and not to one-half of profits in any quarter regardless of losses in previous quarter. Id. Right to profits vested at end of each quarter and could not be diminished by subsequent losses. Id.

2. Irby v. Cage, Drew & Co., 121 La. 615, 46 S 670.

3. Defendants not entitled to charge interest on advances to joint venture. Thurston v. Hamblin, 199 Mass. 151, 85 NE 82.

4. Must sell within reasonable time. Baker v. Keever, 130 Ga. 257, 60 SE 551. Where parties agreed to produce cotton and to sell same upon mutual consent, it will be presumed that mutual consent within the year was meant. Id. Refusal of party to sell cotton held a breach of contract, damages to be measured in contemplation of market price on day of breach. Id.

5. Taking secret profit by coadventurer is contrary to policy of law. Curry v. La Fon [Mo. App.] 113 SW 246. Partner not allowed to make profit for himself at expense of associates by deception as to purchase price. Lomita Land & Water Co. v. Robinson [Cal.] 97 P 10.

6. Party affecting secret profit is a trustee of such amount. Lomita Land & Water Co. v. Robinson [Cal.] 97 P 10.

7. Where, under syndicate agreement, managers were not partners, but rather Actions.[See 10 C. L. 462]—In order to recover a share of the profits of a venture, the plaintiff must prove the contract[8] and the extent of his interest in the venture.[9]

JOINT STOCK COMPANIES.[10]

The scope of this topic is noted below.[11]

A joint stock company is a partnership,[12] and the rights and duties of its members are determined from the articles of association.[13] Ordinarily a member may agents, statement of one could not bind other managers personally on separate and independent agreement. Jones v. Gould, 123 App. Div. 236, 108 NYS 31.

8. Interest in fund used by defendants without authority is insufficient. Whitman v. Bartlett [Ala.] 46 S 972.

9. Where parties had different interests. Whitman v. Bartlett [Ala.] 46 S 972.

10. See 10 C. L. 462.

11. Includes matters peculiar to unincorporated companies having transferable shares of stock. As to matters common to all voluntary associations, see Associations and Societies, 11 C. L. 308. As to partnerships generally, see Partnership, 10 C. L. 1100.

12. Not corporation. Rountree v. Adams Exp. Co. [C. C. A.] 165 F 152.

NOTE. Definition: A joint stock company is a partnership in fact and law, and, except as modified by statute, is subject to all the rules relating to partnerships at common law. Clagett v. Kilbourne, 1 Black [U. S.] 346; Hoadley v. Essex County Com'rs, 105 Mass. 519, 1 Keener's Cas. 1; Phillips v. Blatchford, 137 Mass. 510; Tappan v. Bailey, 4 Metc. [Mass.] 529; Whitman v. Porter, 107 Mass. 522; Hedge's Appeal, 63 Pa. 273; Logan v. McNaugher, 88 Pa. 103; Tide Water Pipe Co. v. Kitchenman, 108 Pa. 630; Kramer v. Arthurs, 7 Pa. 165; Eliot v. Himrod, 108 Pa. 569; Manning v. Gasharie, 27 Ind. 399; Butterfield v. Beardsley, 28 Mich. 412; McGreary v. Chandler, 58 Me. 537; Frost v. Walker, 60 Me. 468; Pennsylvania Ins. Co. v. Murphy, 5 Minn. 36; Pettis v. Atkins, 60 Ill. 454; Robbins v. Butler, 24 Ill. 387; Bullard v. Kinney, 10 Cal. 60; Wells v. Gates, 18 Barb. [N. Y.] 554; Dennis v. Kennedy, 19 Barb. [N. Y.] 517; Schuylerville Nat. Bank v. Van Derwerker, 74 N. Y. 234; Batty v. Adams County, 16 Neb. 44, 20 NW 15; Tenney v. New England Protective Union, 37 Vt. 64; Henry v. Jackson, 37 Vt. 431. 1 Clark & Marshall, Priv. Corp. 41. The one distinguishing essential which differentiates it from a partnership proper is the division of the capital stock into a definite number of shares of which each member is the owner of one or more (Phillips v. Blatchford, 137 Mass. 510; Hedge's Appeal, 63 Pa. 273) and a transfer of which does not involve a dissolution of the company (Jones v. Clark, 42 Cal. 180; Tyrrell v. Washburn, 6 Allen [Mass.] 466; Carter v. McClure, 98 Tenn. 109, 38 SW 585; Burdick's Cases, 37). In other words, it is a partnership without the element of delectus personarum (see Shumaker, Part. §§ 154, 155). It is not, properly speaking, a corporation, lacking the element of legislative creation and the merging of individual rights and liabilities (Lane v. Albertson, 78 App. Div. 607, 79 NYS 947; Sandford v. New York Sup'rs, 15 How. Prac. [N. Y.] 172), though sometimes called a quasi corporation (Oak Ridge Coal Co. v. Rogers, 108 Pa. 147). Some confusion results from the application of the name "joint stock company" to corporations proper (Code W. Va. 1899, c. 53, § 1) or to particular kinds of corporations (Attorney General v. Merc. Marine Ins. Co., 121 Mass. 524), but the greatest difficulty in defining the term arises from statutory regulations and modifications whereby such associations are made to assume a nature approximating more or less closely to that of a true corporation (Waterbury v. Merchants' Union Exp. Co., 50 Barb. [N. Y.] 157; Oak Ridge Coal Co. v. Rogers, 108 Pa. 147; School District v. Insurance Co., 103 U. S. 707, 26 Law. Ed. 601; Sanford v. New York Sup'rs, 15 How. Prac. [N. Y.] 172; Thomas v. Dakin, 22 Wend. [N. Y.] 9; Maltz v. American Exp. Co., 1 Flip, 611, Fed. Cas. No. 9,002; United States Exp. Co. v. Bedbury, 34 Ill. 459. Shumaker on Partnership [2d Ed.] 292). Such statutes will, of course, prevail where in conflict with the general principles of partnership. Shumaker, Partn. § 155; Clark & Marshall, Priv. Corp. § 21. [Ed.]

NOTE. Legality of joint stock companies at common law: Owing to the general legislative recognition of joint stock companies, the question of their validity at common law seems to have been seldom raised in the United States. Research has disclosed but four decisions upon this point. The legality of such companies at common law is asserted in Spotswood v. Morris, 12 Idaho, 360, 85 P 1094, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 665, and Winchester v. Coleman, 133 N. Y. 279, 31 NE 96, 16 L. R. A. 183; and in Phillips v. Blatchford, 137 Mass. 510, holding to the same effect, it is said that Act 6, Geo. 1, c. 18 (known as the bubble act, from the famous South Sea Bubble speculation which led to its enactment), restraining the formation of such companies, is not to be considered as having been adopted in this country, a decision cited with approval in Howe v. Morse, 174 Mass. 491, 55 NE 213. Among the English decisions may be noted Walburn v. Ingilby, 1 Myl. & K. 61, 3 Law J. ch. 21, holding that such a company is not illegal, though its articles of association provide for limited liability, such a provision being inoperative as to third parties without notice; Garrand v. Hardey, 5 Man. & G. 471, 1 Dowl. & L. 51, 12 Law J. C. P. (N. S.) 205, 6 Scott N. R. 450, and Harrison v. Heathorn, 6 Man. & G. 81, 12 Law J. C. P. (N. S.) 282, 6 Scott N. R. 735, holding that such companies are not common nuisances per se; and In re Mexican & S. A. Co., 27 Beav. 474, wherein the master of the rolls states that he can find no case or principal upon which such an association should be declared void at common law.—Adapted from 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 665.

13. Where intent to form joint stock comwithdraw from a joint stock company at will,[14] unless prohibited from so doing by the articles of association.[15] The validity of the organization of a stock company is not necessarily affected by the failure to acquire a valid title to all the propery specified in its articles or by an overestimation of capital.[16] An officer has no authority to bargain away the capital stock of the company.[17] The right to inspect the books and records of a joint stock company by a stockholder may be enforced by mandamus,[18] provided such right is invoked for a proper purpose[19] and the conditions precedent to the right to this particular remedy have been complied with.[20] Persons dealing with a joint stock company are bound by statutory limitations.[21] The association may be dissolved by mutual consent [22] or by a court of equity for good cause shown.[23] In an action in the federal courts, an allegation that plaintiff, a joint stock company, is a citizen of a state different from that of which the defendant is a citizen, will not give jurisdiction on the ground of citizenship.[24] An averment that complainant is a joint stock company is not equivalent to a statement that it is a corporation.[25] Where a judgment is rendered against a joint stock company, such judgment cannot be avoided by a claim that the suit was against the shareholders individually.[26]

but such power must of course, be exercised in conformity with constitutional limitations.[29] The time for holding elections to fill vacancies is generally prescribed by positive law.[30] A judge elected to fill a vacancy must resign his former office before he can qualify for the new.[31] Appellate courts take judicial notice of who is judge

29. Clause in § 1 of Act of May 29, 1908 (Sess. Laws 1907-08, p. 453, c. 46), providing that court shall recommend to governor the appointment of an additional judge "for such period as the court may consider necessary to meet the conditions, held, at least as to the fixing of the term of court, void, as being the exercise of legislative power. Const. § 1, art. 4. In re County Com'rs [Okl.] 98 P 557. Title to Act of May 29, 1908 (Sess. Laws 1907-08, pp. 453, 454, c. 46), held to contain but one separate and distinct subject, the appointment of additional judges of district courts where same are found necessary. Id. Laws 1908, c. 52, p. 50 (Sp. Sess.), creating circuit court of Wyandotte County, etc., held a special law, repugnant to constitution of Kansas, and to afford defendant no warrant for holding of judge of such court. State v. Hutchings [Kan.] 98 P 797. Act of May 29, 1908 (Sess. Laws 1907-08, p. 454, c. 46), being void in part, held void in toto, provisions being so connected and dependent upon each other that legislature would not have enacted one without the other; hence petition for recommendation for appointment of additional judge dismissed. In re County Com'rs [Okl.] 98 P 557.

30. Rev. St. 1899, §§ 195, 201 (Sess. Laws 1890-91, p. 392, c. 100; Sess. Laws 1890-91, p. 237, c. 68), held to authorize holding of election for district judge at any general election when office will become vacant by expiration of term subsequent to such election and prior to next general election. State v. Schmitger [Wyo.] 96 P 238. Where law providing for election of police judge biennially was modified so that council might provide by ordinance that city clerk should be ex-officio police judge, and an ordinance to that effect was passed prior to next regular election, election of police judge at next following election became unnecessary, city clerk having already been elected for both offices. Vineyard v. Grangeville City Council [Idaho] 98 P 422. Nothing in Laws 1903, p. 187, prohibited enactment of ordinance. Id. Legislature held empowered to enact Laws 1903, p. 187, by Const. § 1, art. 12. Id. Act of March 10, 1903 (Laws 1903, p. 187), held not unconstitutional as having insufficient title. Id.

31. Election probably accountable for resignation, so as not to show intentional failure to render decision in former office within reasonable time. Wyatt v. Arnot [Cal. App.] 94 P 86.

NOTE. Right to hold two judicial offices simultaneously: It is held in State v. Jones, 130 Wis. 572, 110 NW 431, 8 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1107, that the offices of county judge and justice of the peace are incompatible where preliminary examinations in criminal cases might be held before either, so that the occupancy of both offices by one person would reduce the number of judicial officers having such jurisdiction which the law has provided.

The common law did not permit a person to hold inconsistent and incompatible offices. Positions were held to be incompatible when the multiplicity of business connected with them would prevent an individual from administering each with care and ability, or when they were of such a nature as to interfere with each other. Bacon, Abr., title "Officers," K. 2. So a judge of C. B. made a judge of B. R. ceases to be a judge of C. B. Bacon, Abr., supra. And one holding the office of justice of the peace for a precinct cannot also serve as justice of the peace for a township. Eddy v. Peoria County, 15 Ill. 375.

Yet, in the absence of incompatibility, the number of positions which might be held by an individual at the same time was not restricted, although the offices were judicial and of the highest rank.

A justice of the common pleas may be a baron of the exchequer. 4 Comyns' Dig., "Office," B. 7. Notable instances of the union of two judicial offices occurred when Knevit was both chief justice and chancellor in the time of Edward III, and when Lord Hardwicke simultaneously held the same positions in the time of George II. Throop, Pub. Off. § 30. These two offices were not considered incompatible, although the chancellor was accustomed to send issues to be tried in the king's bench or common pleas and to send cases to them for their opinion, and might, in causes of great importance, call to his assistance, members of both these courts. Commonwealth v. Northumberland County, 4 Serg. & R. [Pa.] 275.

The offices of justice of the peace and associate judge of common pleas were not inherently incompatible at common law. Id.

Nor are the offices of county and probate judge and recorder of a town incompatible. State v. Townsend, 72 Ark. 180, 79 SW 782.

Under a constitutional provision that judges shall not hold any other office of profit under the commonwealth during their continuance in office, the president judge of common pleas is not eligible to election as recorder of the mayor's court of a city. Commonwealth v. Conyngham, 65 Pa. 76.

But a constitutional provision forbidding any person to hold more than one office in the same department at the same time does not prevent the county and probate judge, who is a state officer in the judicial department, from holding the position of a recorder of a town, which is a municipal judicial office. State v. Townsend, supra.

Nor does a statute providing that the duties of the judge of the municipal court shall thereafter be performed by the justices of common pleas, or some one of them, confer upon the latter an additional office. Brien v. Com., 5 Metc. [Mass.] 508.

The appointment of a judge of common pleas, by the circuit judge, to preside during the trial of a case in which the latter is incompetent, does not vest in the former two offices in contravention of the Constitution. Dukes v. State, 11 Ind. 557, 71 Am. Dec. 370.

of a particular court,[32] elected at a particular election to fill an unexpired term.[33] The appellate court will also judicially notice that the term of office of the trial judge expired pending the time for settlement of the bill of exceptions.[34]

A term of office fixed by constitution [35] cannot be changed by the legislature [36] or by the recitals of a certificate of election.[37] The tenure [38] of judges in Hawaii is for four years and until the appointment and qualification of their successors.[39] Upon a sufficient showing, a judge may be impeached and removed from office.[40] Grounds for removal are frequently prescribed by statute.[41] The accused judge is usually entitled to notice of the charges against him.[42] Oral testimony is admissible in relation to the transactions upon which the charges are based.[43]

And powers conferred upon the justices of the supreme court with reference to the appointment of commissioners, in which they act judicially with delegated powers and not under the ordinary jurisdiction of the court, are not incompatible with the constitutional prohibition against a justice holding "any other office or public trust." Striker v. Kelly, 2 Denio [N. Y.] 323, afg. 7 Hill, 9.

In Commonwealth v. Northumberland County, supra, it is said that no provision of the constitution or any act of assembly prevents the offices of justice of the peace and associate judge of common pleas from being held by one person.

Where a city is entitled to a certain number of judicial officers, one person cannot hold two of such positions. State v. Hadley, 7 Wis. 700.

The election or appointment of a judicial officer to an incompatible judicial position is not void, but he may elect which office he will hold. If he chooses to accept the latter, he thereby vacates the former. But if the appointee subsequently accepts the appointment and qualifies, the first office is ipso facto vacated. People v. Carrique, 2 Hill [N. Y.] 93; Eddy v. Peoria County, supra.—Adapted from 8 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1107.

32. Supreme court takes judicial notice of who is judge of circuit court of particular county. Viertel v. Viertel, 213 Mo. 562, 111 SW 579. Courts take judicial notice of who presides as regular judge of a court making an order. City of Shawnee v. Farrell [Okl.] 98 P 942. Judge presumed to be one authorized to make order. Id.

33. Court of appeal takes judicial notice of fact that one was elected judge of superior court for county at general election under proclamation of governor to fill unexpired term. Wyatt v. Arnot [Cal. App.] 94 P 86.

34. Northwestern Port Huron Co. v. Zickrick [S. D.] 115 NW 525.

35. Const. art. 5, §§ 19, 4, 20, 21, and art. 21, § 20, held to apply to judge elected to fill vacancy and to one elected immediately preceding expiration of term of elected incumbent, so that judge elected at any general election holds office for 6 years from first Monday in January succeeding his election. State v. Schnitger [Wyo.] 96 P 238. Words "until otherwise provided by law," in Const. art. 5, § 19, held not to qualify remainder of section, but to refer only to number of districts. Id.

36. Const. art. 5, § 19, should be so construed as not purporting to empower legislature to change terms of district judges. State v. Schnitger [Wyo.] 96 P 238. Clause in Act of May 29, 1908, § 2 (Sess. Laws, 1907-08, p. 454, c. 46), providing that no appointment thereunder by governor of additional judge, "shall extend beyond Jan. 1, 1911," held repugnant to Const. art. 7, § 9 (Bunn's Ed. § 178), fixing term at four years and prescribing time for elections. In re County Com'rs [Okl.] 98 P 557.

37. Certificate that election is for unexpired term of predecessor does not shorten term fixed by constitution. State v. Schnitger [Wyo.] 96 P 238.

38. "Tenure" in 31 Stat. p. 156, § 80, held to mean right to hold an office for an indefinite time, as distinguished from "term," denoting period of time with fixed limits. Robinson v. U. S., 42 Ct. Cl. 52.

39. Last section of 31 Stat. p. 156, § 80, to effect that "all such officers shall hold office for 4 years and until their successors are appointed and qualified," held to include judges appointed by the president. Robinson v. U. S., 42 Ct. Cl. 52. Rev. St. title XXIII, c. 1, § 1864, providing that judges "of every territory" shall hold their offices for 4 years and until their successors are appointed and qualified," held to extend to judges in Hawaii. Id.

40. Judge who because of malice or corruption renders an erroneous decision, or fails to render decision within reasonable time, is liable to impeachment. Wyatt v. Arnot [Cal. App.] 94 P 86.

41. Persistent and intentional violation of prohibition contained in Greater New York Charter, p. 605, c. 466, § 1416. In re Deuel, 111 NYS 969. In proceeding for removal for violation of Greater New York Charter, p. 605, c. 466, § 1416, in which justice is charged with editing and managing a certain publication, question whether doing such acts is an enterprise that merits contempt of all decent minded men, and disreputable, held not to be considered, where character of publication was described in connection with charge of violation of section 1416, prohibiting "carrying on my business," and where evidence showed that justice was not actively engaged in business. Id.

42. On application for removal of justice of court of special sessions, court can act upon no charges unless respondent has had notice thereof and an opportunity to be heard. In re Deuel, 111 NYS 969. Under Conet. art. 6, § 17, and Laws 1895, p. 1294, c. 601, § 28, court is confined to investigation of charges preferred against justice and to determination of whether such charges are sufficient to warrant removal if proved. Id.

Salaries. See 10 C. L. 463—Salaries and fees are generally fixed by statute,[45] and the statutes allowing fees should be strictly construed.[46] The construction placed upon the statute by the officers acting thereunder may be considered.[47] When a judge collects fees to which he is not entitled,[48] they may be recovered back by the party entitled thereto.[49] A suit by a county against a judge and his sureties on his official bond is not one in behalf of the state to recover a penalty.[50] Liability for fees earned, but not collected is predicated upon willful or negligent failure to collect [51] or to take sufficient security therefor.[52] Penalties for the collection of excessive fees are often imposed by statute.[53] The legislature may, even contrary to what may be deemed the best policy, make the collectibility of a judge's fees more or less dependent upon the judgment rendered.[54] A judge's right to compensation ceases on the expiration of his term.[55]

§ 2. Special, substitute and assistant judges. See 10 C. L. 463—Usually the legislature can provide that a court may be held by a person other than the judge of that court under given circumstances,[56] and the legislatures of many states have so pro-main facts alleged in petition, he may present oral testimony as to transactions upon which charges are based. In re Droege, 111 NYS 8.

44. Judgment rendered by judge acting under invalid provision of charter of city and county of Denver held not void. Rude v. Sisack [Colo.] 96 P 976.

45. Compensation of county judges in counties with population not exceeding 20,000 is $1,600 out of fees, as provided by Sess. Laws. Okl. 1903, § 1, ch. 14. State v. Frear [Okl.] 96 P 628. Mandamus lies to recover excess. Id. Sole compensation of county judge, in absence of other specific provision, is that fixed by county board under authority of St. 1898, § 694. Hoffman v. Lincoln County [Wis.] 118 NW 850. Laws 1891, p. 126, c. 109, held not to prevent county judge from recovering from county the per diem compensation allowed by St. 1898, § 2454, as amended by Laws 1903, p. 81, c. 45, for time devoted to matters other than probate business. Id. Laws 1895, p. 493, c. 249, held to entitle county judge of Lincoln county to compensation allowed by St. 1898, § 2454, for time actually engaged in passing on applications for permits under Laws of 1891, p. 126, c. 109. Id. Words "for each day he shall be actually engaged," in St. 1898, § 2454, as amended by Laws 1903, p. 81, c. 45, held to indicate intention to allow compensation only for time actually consumed, necessitating a splitting up of days and a charge by the hour, and to establish arbitrary number of hours as a day's work. Id. "Day" in St. 1898, § 2454, as amended by Laws 1903, p. 81, c. 45, held to mean calendar day, so as not to authorize judge working over hours to charge more than the per diem allowance for one calendar day. Id. Provisions of Comp. St. § 3484 held limited to cases in which county judge derived power to perform services solely from grant of ordinary powers and jurisdiction of a justice of the peace; hence not to confer upon county judge right to charge fee for marriage ceremonies. Douglas County v. Vinsonholer [Neb.] 118 NW 1058.

46. Where complaint is filed against several persons, same fees recoverable as if but a single defendant until demand for separate trials is made, and then charges should be made only for such duties as are necessarily caused by separation. Downey v. Coykendall [Neb.] 116 NW 503.

47. Fact that officers whose duty it was to enforce act of 1877 (Laws 1877, p. 215), had for many years construed act as not to require county judge to report fees received for performing marriage ceremonies held properly considered in construing statute under which claim to fee was made. Douglas County v. Vinsonhaler [Neb.] 118 NW 1058.

48. County judge is not entitled to receive any compensation or fees for criminal cases dismissed without a trial. Lane v. Delta County [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 866.

49. By county. Lane v. Delta County [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 866. Four years' limitations held applicable to suit upon official bond to recover fees illegally collected. Id.

50. Lane v. Delta County [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 866.

51. Douglas County v. Vinsonhaler [Neb.] 118 NW 1058. Failure to collect fees for purely ministerial services would support charge of negligence, while in case of fees earned in judicial and probate proceedings actual negligence should be shown. Id.

52. Douglas County v. Vinsonhaler [Neb.] 118 NW 1058.

53. Comp. St. 1907, § 34, c. 28, imposing penalty for collection of excessive fees, held to apply to police judges. Downey v. Coykendall [Neb.] 116 NW 503. No defense to action under Comp. St. 1907, § 34, c. 28, that police judge acted under direction of prosecuting attorney. Id.

54. Acts 1899, p. 332, creating city court of Barnesville, sustained. Wellmaker v. Terrell, 3 Ga. App. 791, 60 SE 464.

55. Vineyard v. Grangeville City Council [Idaho] 98 P 422.

56. Georgia, etc., R. Co. v. Sasser, 130 Ga. 394, 60 SE 997. Acts of 1899, p. 48, conferring authority upon judge of city court to preside in another city court when judges of latter court is disqualified or providentially prevented from trying a case, held not in conflict with Const. art. 6, § 5, par. 1. Id. Act Dec. 21, 1899 (Acts 1899, p. 48), vided.[57] Under some of the statutes, where a judge is disqualified, he may call in the judge of another district,[58] while under other statutes a judge pro hac vice cannot be appointed by the regular judge,[59] the power of appointment being in the parties [60] or the clerk.[61] As a rule in Louisiana, where a judge who is recusable for interest makes an order appointing the judge of an adjoining district to try the recused case, the order operates as an effective appointment,[62] but this rule does not apply where for any valid reason the appointee is authorized to refuse to accept or act under the order of appointment.[63] When no objection is raised during trial, the objection that a special judge selected by the parties failed to take the oath of office is waived.[64] The fact that the Washington constitution entitles each county to a local judge does not disqualify a judge from another county to sit as a judge in a particular case in a county other than his own.[65] One cannot be a judge pro hac vice de facto.[66]

While discharging the specific duties of the office, a person designated to preside over a court other than his own sustains to that court the relation of judge,[67] but the powers and responsibilities of a judge requested to act for another are limited to the period he shall so act,[68] and resumption of jurisdiction by the regular judge operates to vacate the office of the special judge, without any order to that effect, as to all business except that already commenced by the special judge,[69] the jurisdiction of the special judge over business so commenced being in no wise affected by the return of the special judge;[70] and the fact that the regular judge of a district holds court in the same district and at the same time that a special judge is trying a case in no manner affects the jurisdiction of the special judge to try such case.[71] Jurisdiction of a special judge, not to try any particular case but to preside only in the absence of the regular judge, ends for all purposes with the adjournment of the term at which he was elected, except as to the matter of signing bills of exceptions in cases tried and finally determined by him.[72] When an incumbent dies, leaving official acts unfinished, they may be completed by his successor,[73] and an acting judge is sometimes authorized to sign the bill of exceptions to a cause heard by a judge who shall go out of office before doing so.[74] A judge pro tempore is without power to enter an order extending the time to make and serve a case made after he has ceased to sit as a court.[75] Temporary jurisdiction sometimes extends to the granting or refusing of injunctions,[76] but such jurisdiction usually may be exercised only in cases of emergency and urgent necessity.[77] Where a motion has been heard and determined by one circuit judge and no leave given to renew the motion, the same motion cannot be heard by another circuit judge upon the same state of facts,[78] but where an action has been tried before a substitute judge, and a motion for a new trial, not previously made before the substitute judge, is made before the regular judge upon the ground of erroneous rulings, the hearing of such a motion is not within the rule which prohibits one judge from reviewing the decisions of a co-ordinate judge.[79] Where power to act as a substitute judge is given in case of illness, absence or disqualification of 72. State v. Stevenson [W. Va.] 62 SE 688.

NOTE. Effect of adjournment of term: In State v. Stevenson [W. Va.] 62 SE 688, it was intimated in view of a new trial, though the decision of the point was not necessary to the disposition of the case on the appeal, that adjournment terminates jurisdiction of special judge elected to preside in the absence of the regular judge. In connection with this point the court said: "Authorities do hold however, that such special judge may adjourn the hearing of a case beyond the regular term without losing jurisdiction thereof. 23 Cyc. 612, and cases cited in note 54. The fact that the term of a regular or special judge has ended or expired before a trial begun is completed will not preclude his successor, the regular or newly-elected judge, from trying the case, but he would have to try it de novo. 23 Cyc. 565. It is said at the page just cited, on authority of Clanton v. Ryan, 14 Colo. 419, 24 P 258, and In re Sullivan, 143 Cal. 462, 77 P 153, that 'a judge who did not hear the evidence cannot render a judgment in a cause, notwithstanding the testimony may have been written down and preserved.'"

73. Judge having died without signing record of judgment, successor was authorized to sign same and complete record. Montgomery v. Viers [Ky.] 114 SW 251. Ky. St. 1903, § 977, held to apply to special as well as to regular judges, that where on account of death or for reasons enumerated therein a special judge shall fail to sign orders, they may be signed by special judge who succeeds him or by regular judge, if not disqualified. Ewell v. Jackson, 33 Ky. L. R. 673, 110 SW 860.

74. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 731 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 726), providing that where judge who heard a cause shall "go out of office" before he signs bill of exceptions, bill, if correct, shall be signed by succeeding or acting judge of court where case was heard, an acting judge elected to hold ensuing term, as required by Rev. St. 1899, § 1679, held proper person to sign bill of exceptions at term over which he presided in a case tried before regular judge at prior term, "go out of office" not being confined to death or resignation but covering a case of being disabled by sickness. Ranney v. Hammond Packing Co. [Mo. App.] 110 SW 613. Circumstance that former judge so far recovers his strength as to enable him to again take charge of the case does not alter the rule. Id.

76. In absence of circuit judge from county, the county judge may hear and grant or refuse motions for interlocutory injunctions of prohibitory nature and under Code Prac. § 273, it is error to invade jurisdiction of county in matter so long as he was within county, not disqualified, and circuit judge was out of county. the regular judge, the facts giving authority to act must be proved the same as other facts by competent evidence,[80] and on a motion to dismiss for disqualification of the substitute, the burden of proof is on plaintiff to affirmatively show the existence of facts upon which authority is dependent.[81] In some states where a case has been tried by a special judge, the record on appeal must show the disqualification of the regular judge, by what authority the special judge was elected or agreed upon, or in what manner he was legally designated to try the cause.[82]

§ 3. Powers, duties and liabilities. See 10 C. L. 484—Where a judge has been duly elected and commissioned, the law imposes in him the duty of hearing and disposing of the litigated questions that may arise in his jurisdiction, unless some cause to the contrary recognized by law as sufficient exists,[83] and where under the law it is clearly the duty of a judge to proceed to the consideration of a motion upon its merits, he cannot relieve himself of that duty or divest himself of jurisdiction by an arbitrary dismissal of the proceeding.[84] Failure to perform duties unconditionally imposed by law may render a judge liable upon his bond for the loss sustained through such failure,[85] but it is held that he cannot be held liable in damages for delay in rendering a decision,[86] though such delay, if willful and corrupt in its purpose, may constitute ground for impeachment.[87] In a proper case mandamus will lie to compel a judge to perform his duty.[88] When, therefore, for an unreasonable length of time he delays a decision, he may in a proper proceeding be compelled to decide,[89] but not in any particular way.[90] The presumption that public officers have performed their duties applies to the duty of a county judge to pay into the county treasury the surplus fees of his office,[91] but in a suit to recover the surplus uncollected fees of his office, slight evidence is sufficient to shift the burden of proof and require the officer to establish the exercise of reasonable diligence in endeavoring to collect the same.[92]

Id. Judge cannot invoke presumption that predecessor performed his duty as excuse for his own nonperformance, and hence under Ky. St. 1903, §§ 1065, 1068, it is no excuse for nonperformance by county judge acting as such from Dec. 1899, until Jan. 1902, that last settlement was made by guardian in 1889, where record showed appointment of guardian and settlement showed that he had in his possession money due the ward. 91, 92, 93. Frost v. Board of Teller County Com'rs, 43 Colo. 43, 95 P 289.

The appointment of a clerk by a county judge to have charge of the collection and disbursements does not relieve the judge, who fails to see to it that the clerk properly qualify, from liability to account for surplus fees earned in the proceedings of his court.[93] The complaint in an action against a judge to recover surplus fees not turned in must allege the proportion of the amount actually collected and unpaid and the amount uncollected.[94] Liability for uncollected fees is sometimes predicated upon negligence or willfulness in failure to collect.[95] Sureties on the official bond of a judge are not liable for money which does not come to the possession of their principal by virtue of his office.[96] Where an action is tried by one judge, a statement of the case cannot be settled by another, although the term of office of the trial judge may have expired, in the absence of statute authorizing same,[97] and a judge who did not hear the evidence cannot render a judgment in a cause, notwithstanding the testimony may have been written down and preserved.[98] A judge cannot purchase at a sale, the validity of which he must pass on in his official capacity.[99] A magistrate wrongfully assuming jurisdiction of a cause may thereby render himself liable for false imprisonment.[1]

Where there are two judges with the same powers and the same territorial jurisdiction,[2] serious complications sometimes arise as to their relative powers and duties.[3]

Powers during vacation or at chambers. See 10 C. L. 464.—Powers conferred upon the court as distinguished from the judge thereof cannot be exercised at chambers,[4] and the validity of any act in vacation or at chambers is usually determined with reference to whether the power to do such act lies with the judge or with the court as such.[5] In South Carolina a motion for discontinuance may be heard and granted at chambers,[6] and a circuit judge may at such time grant an order striking irrelevant matter from a pleading.[7] In North Carolina an application for mandamus may be filed and heard at chambers.[8]

Powers after terms of office. See 10 C. L. 465—Power to settle bills of exceptions in cases tried during a judge's term of office is sometimes expressly saved to him after the expiration of such term,[9] and where a case is tried before the judge of another district holding court for the regular judge, it is his duty to settle the bill of exceptions when presented to him at any time within the time fixed or extended by the regular judge, although his term of office may have expired,[10] but if he refuses the bill may be settled by the supreme court in such manner as that court may deem proper.[11]

Immunities and exemptions. See 10 C. L. 465—A suit cannot be maintained against the judge of a superior court for willful and intentional omission to decide a case after its trial and submission for decision,[12] nor can a judge who, because of malice or corruption, renders an erroneous decision, or fails to render a decision within a reasonable time, be required to answer to a private individual in an action for damages.[13]

§ 4. Disqualification in particular cases. See 10 C. L. 465—Disqualification statutes should be liberally construed with a view to effect their object and promote justice.[15] That a municipal court has previously tried a case which upon petition for certiorari is returned for another trial does not disqualify members of that court from again trying the case,[16] but in New Jersey, on writ of error, no justice who has given a judicial opinion in favor of or against any error complained of can sit as a member or have a voice on the hearing, or for its affirmance or reversal.[17] If the regular judge is disqualified to preside in the trial of a cause, he is likewise disqualified to sign the judgment or orders made therein by the special judge,[18] and where he is disqualified to try a criminal case, he is also disqualified to forfeit a bond in such case or to grant a rule nisi on the forfeiture,[19] but in California he may request another judge to try

NOTE. Pecuniary interest, such as will disqualify a judge from sitting in the cause, must be immediate, certain and dependent upon the result in the case, not remote, uncertain or speculative (Internal Imp. Fund v. Bailey, 10 Fla. 213), or where the interest is minute (In re Ryers, 72 N. Y. 1, 28 Am. Rep. 88, afg. 10 Hun [N. Y.] 93), or amounts to a mere bias or sympathy (Ex parte Harris, 26 Fla. 77, 7 S 1, 23 Am. St. Rep. 548, 6 L. R. A. 713). Thus, he is not disqualified to determine the validity of certain securities by reason of having once held similar securities (Gregg v. Pemberton, 53 Cal. 251), or to sit upon a case for the reason that he personally has an action pending against the plaintiff which is in no way affected by the result of the action at bar (Southern California Motor Road Co. v. San Bernardino Nat. Bank, 100 Cal. 316, 34 P 711; Southern California Motor Road Co. v. San Bernardino, 100 Cal. 316, 34 P 711), or by reason of his interest in the fees and costs incidental to the litigation (Ex parte Guereno, 69 Cal. 88, 10 P 261; Commonwealth v. Keenan, 97 Mass. 589; St. Louis, A. & T. R. Co. v. Holden, 3 Willson Civ. Cas. Ct. App. [Tex.] 323; People v. Edmonds, 15 Barb. [N. Y.] 529; Bennett v. State, 4 Tex. App. 72; White v. Hinton, 3 Wyo. 753, 30 P 953, 17 L. R. A. 66), unless he is liable therefor (Collingswood County v. Myers [Tex. Civ. App.] 35 SW 414); nor is he disqualified where his interest in the case is merely as an official repository of title (Clark v. State, 23 Tex. App. 260, 5 SW 115), although he is disqualified to pass upon claims against an estate of which he is an administrator (Knight v. Hardeman, 17 Ga. 253; In re Bacon, 73 Mass. [7 Gray] 391; Bedell v. Bailey, 58 N. H. 62), or of which he is a creditor (Thornton v. Moore, 61 Ala. 347; Coffin v. Cottle, 26 Mass. [9 Pick.] 287; Sigourney v. Sibley, 38 Mass. [21 Pick.] 101, 32 Am. Dec. 248; In re Cottle, 22 Mass. [5 Pick.] 483; Succession of Payne, 32 La. Ann. 355; Succession of Rhea, 31 La. Ann. 323; Burks v. Bennett, 62 Tex. 277), or a debtor (Gay v. Minot, 57 Mass. [3 Cush.] 352; In re Hancock, 27 Hun [N. Y.] 78). A judge has been held disqualified to act upon an injunction which would protect the judge's property equally with that of the plaintiff (North Bloomfield Gravel Min. Co. v. Keyser, 53 Cal. 251), or in a trial of title to land to which he is also claimant though not in the action at bar (Heilbron v. Campbell, 23 P 122; Casey v. Kinsey, 5 Tex. Civ. App. 3, 23 SW 818). Interest as a director or stockholder will disqualify a judge to try an action by or against a corporation (King v. Thompson, 59 Ga. 380; Kittridge v. Kinne, 80 Mich. 200, 44 NW 1051; In re Reddish, 49 Hun [N. Y.] 612, 2 NYS 259; Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Gill, 1 Ohio Dec. 501; Gregory v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 4 Ohio St. 675; Williams v. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 27 SW 147), but the fact that the judge had previously been a stockholder will have no such effect (Nicholson v. Showalter, 83 Tex. 99, 18 SW 326; Johnson v. Marietta, & N. G. R. Co., 70 Ga. 712; Palmer v. Lawrence, 5 N. Y. 389). The fact that a judge is a citizen and taxpayer does not generally disqualify him to hear a suit by or against the people (Kilbourn v. State, 9 Conn. 560; Foreman v. Marianna, 43 Ark. 324; Sauk v. Freeman, 24 Fla. 209, 4 S 525, 12 Am. St. Rep. 190; State v. Intoxicating Liquors, 54 Me. 564; State v. McDonald, 26 Minn. 445, 4 NW 1107; Co. Com'rs v. Lyth, 3 Ohio, 289; State v. Cisco [Tex. Civ. App.] 33 SW 244; Colgate v. Hill, 20 Vt. 56; Wheeling v. Black, 25 W. Va. 266; Ex parte Gurrero, 69 Cal. 88, 10 P 261; not be made to depend upon the judgment rendered,[27] but pecuniary interest in the costs, the amount of which is fixed by law, is not synonymous with pecuniary interest in a case.[28] Assistant judges are not disqualified from sitting at the trial of an information for an escape by the fact that they are members of the prison board, where membership gives them no interest,[29] nor are they disqualified by the fact that, as members of the prison board, they formed and expressed opinions as to the merits, where they took no part in the punishment inflicted by the board.[30] Relationship to a party is a disqualification in most states,[31] and the word "party" should not be construed in a technical and restricted sense but should be held to mean any one who is pecuniarly interested directly in the result of the suit, though not a party to the record and not necessarily bound by the judgment.[32] Relationship to the attorney for either party may work a disqualification.[33] The fact that a judge had been formally joined as a defendant in a former action does not disqualify him from hearing an application for a temporary injunction in a subsequent action involving the same issues.[34]

Disqualification by reason of professional connection as counsel. See 10 C. L. 466 A judge is not disqualified by professional connection as a lawyer with interests which may possibly become involved in the case,[35] or by the fact that at some former time he has been counsel for one of the parties,[36] but former connection as counsel in the same case disqualifies,[37] unless the disqualification is waived by the parties.[38]

Hanscomb v. Russell, 77 Mass. 373), but he is disqualified to determine the validity of a tax which he must pay if valid (Nalle v. City of Austin [Tex. Civ. App.] 21 SW 375; Wetzel v. State, 5 Tex. Civ. App. 17, 23 SW 825).—[Ed.]

27. Wellmaker v. Terrell, 3 Ga. App. 791, 60 SE 464.

28. Under Civ. Code 1895, § 4045, and other statutes considered judge of city court of Barnesville not disqualified from sitting as judge upon a scire facias to forfeit a criminal recognizance, although as ex officio clerk he is pecuniarily interested in costs in case and in collection of other costs due him, even though collectibility of latter costs may to some extent be dependent upon a judgment forfeiting the recognizance. Wellmaker v. Terrell, 3 Ga. App. 791, 60 SE 464.

29. No interest within meaning of Pub. St. 1906, § 1224. State v. Wright [Vt.] 69 A 761.

30. State v. Wright [Vt.] 69 A 761.

31. No judge can sit as such in any case in which he would be excluded from being a juror by reason of consanguinity or affinity to either of the parties. Davis Colliery Co. v. Charlevoix Sugar Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 974, 118 NW 929. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 46, providing that a judge "shall not sit in a case in which he is related by affinity to any party to the controversy within the sixth degree, a judge is not disqualified because he and the plaintiff's attorney are brothers-in-law, having married sisters. Zambetti v. Garton, 113 NYS 804.

32. Under Const. 1874, art. 7, § 20, and statute fixing fourth degree as line of prohibition, judge related within fourth degree to one not a party of record and not necessarily bound by judgment, but who is an attorney whose fees depend upon determination of cause, held disqualified. Johnson v. State [Ark.] 112 SW 143. Relationship to a stockholder of corporate party is equally disqualifying as relationship to a natural party. Davis Colliery Co. v. Charlevoix Sugar Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 974, 118 NW 929. Under Comp. Laws, § 1109, circuit judge held disqualified to appoint receiver for a corporation in which stock was held in name of a sister of judge's wife, stock being held by sister as administratrix of her husband's estate and she being entitled to one-half. Id.

33. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 170, subds. 2, 4, Const. art. 6, § 8; Code Civ. Proc. § 71, where it appeared that judge was related to attorney for defendant by consanguinity within third degree, attorney for defendant and judge being half-brothers born of same mother, held judge was disqualified from presiding at an arraignment, the hearing of a plea, or other preliminary steps beyond those necessary to regulate order of business and arrange calendar. People v. Ebey, 6 Cal. App. 769, 93 P 379.

34. So held where judge had no personal interest in action. Renshaw v. Cook, 33 Ky. L. R. 860, 895, 111 SW 377.

35. The fact that special judge is counsel for railroad which may be involved in litigation in respect to land in controversy does not disqualify him. Boreing v. Wilson, 33 Ky. L. R. 14, 108 SW 914.

36. Judge not disqualified from sitting in case involving right of a merged corporation to condemn land merely because some years previously he had been employed as counsel by one of constituent corporations in other condemnation proceedings against plaintiff. Keller v. Riverton Consol. Water Co., 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 301.

37. Disqualifies from sitting in cause. Stepp v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 158, 109 SW 1093. Under Comp. St. 1905, § 37, c. 19, district judge disqualified to make order confirming judicial sale in action which he commenced and prosecuted to judgment for plaintiff. Harrington v. Hayes [Neb.] 115 NW 773.

38. Kerr v. Burns [Colo.] 93 P 1120. Ac-

The fact that a judicial officer takes the affidavit of a party making a complaint does not constitute him a counsel so as to work a disqualification.[39] A judge is not necessarily disqualified by professional relationship with counsel in the case.[40]

Bias and prejudice.[See 10 C. L. 466]—A judge should be absolutely free from bias of any kind,[41] and no judge should preside over a trial where the evidence requires him to make an elaborate explanation of his relations to the subject-matter of the litigation.[42] At common law, bias or favor, not the result of relationship or interest,[43] will not be presumed.[44] Only judicial favoritism disqualifies; favoritism of a mere personal or social character to a party or his attorney is insufficient.[45] Hostility to a party on the part of one of two attorneys for a railway company does not disqualify the other to sit as judge.[46] Objection for disqualification on account of bias is waived if not properly presented.[47]

Procedure and trial of fact of disqualification.[See 10 C. L. 466]—The party who seeks to disqualify a judge has the burden of presenting facts showing disqualification by the best evidence obtainable.[48] In some states, save where purely frivolous reasons are assigned, a judge is incompetent to sit in judgment upon a motion for his own recusation,[49] while in others the judge himself trys the question of his disqualification;[50] and where uncontroverted affidavits of disqualification are filed, he must accept them as true,[51] and grant a motion to call in another judge where bias or other disqualification is shown.[52] Where disqualification is shown, judge has no discretion but must transfer proceedings commenced or pending to the nearest and most accessible court where a like objection does not exist,[53] and deny it where in his judgquiescence to sitting held equivalent to affirmative consent. Id. Under Mills' Ann. Code, § 429, providing that judge shall not sit in case in which he has been attorney unless by consent of all parties, judge who had acted as attorney for one party held not disqualified where all parties participated in suit without objecting to his sitting. Id.

39. Judge not disqualified for trying case on account of having taken affidavit of a party charging another with commission of an offense. Stepp v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 158, 109 SW 1093.

40. Not disqualified because attorney in case is his superior in common employment of corporation not directly interested in case. Boreing v. Wilson, 33 Ky. L. R. 14, 108 SW 914.

41. Wellmaker v. Terrell, 3 Ga. App. 791, 60 SE 464. Bias and prejudice works a disqualification. State v. Banta [La.] 47 S 538.

42. Political bias, amounting to personal hostility as shown by evidence, requiring elaborate explanation, etc., held to disqualify judge under Ky. St. 1903, § 968. Kentucky Journal Pub. Co. v. Gaines, 33 Ky. L. R. 402, 110 SW 268.

43. Interest need not necessarily be pecuniary but may be a personal one to judge. Fulton v. Longshore [Ala.] 46 S 989.

44. Fulton v. Longshore [Ala.] 46 S 989. Evidence insufficient to show pecuniary or personal interest sufficient to disqualify judge to try election contest. Id.

45. Boreing v. Wilson, 33 Ky. L. R. 14, 108 SW 914. Neither acceptance nor refusal of an invitation to dine will be considered as an evidence of such bias or friendship as to indicate lack of judicial integrity. Id. Fact that judge intended to appoint as commissioner, to hear proof and settle partnership accounts, a person prejudiced against one of parties and in favor of another no ground for disqualification, although a cause for objection to such appointment. Id. The fact that in a former case, where property now in controversy was involved, judge after deciding that a partnership existed expresses his satisfaction with the proof and complimented attorney on other side for presentation of case, held not to prejudice issue of existence of partnership so as to work a disqualification. Id.

46. Boreing v. Wilson, 33 Ky. L. R. 14, 108 SW 914.

47. By failure to specify objection in written motion for new trial. Commonwealth Elec. Co. v. Rooney, 138 Ill. App. 275.

48. Motions signed by counsel not supported by affidavit insufficient. Facts should have been shown by record evidence of facts. Johnson v. State [Okl. Cr. App.] 97 P 1059.

49. State v. Banta [La.] 47 S 538. Under Act No. 40, p. 38 of 1880, and No. 34, p. 48 of 1882, where reasons assigned in motion to recuse trial judge in criminal case alleged that judge was enemy of accused and so biased and prejudiced as to be incapable of giving a fair trial, and judge denied truth of allegations and declined to recuse himself, held he was incompetent to sit in judgment on motion. Id.

50. Swan v. Talbot, 152 Cal. 142, 94 P 238.

51. Code Civ. Proc. § 398. Parrish v. Riverside Trust Co. [Cal. App.] 93 P 685.

52. Swan v. Talbot, 152 Cal. 142, 94 P 238. By entertaining affidavits, court does not exercise discretion in transferring cause nor select judge who is to try it, since law makes selection when the undisputed facts are before the court. Parrish v. Riverside Trust Co. [Cal. App.] 93 P 685.

53. Parrish v. Riverside Trust Co. [Cal. App.] 93 P 685. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 398, 770, where defendants filed affidavits that ment the disqualifying cause is not shown.[54] The objections must be made promptly.[55] Affidavits of disqualification may be filed by any party to an action.[56] In some states the mere filing of an affidavit of disqualification terminates a judge's jurisdiction.[57] An affidavit of disqualification must set forth the facts upon which the general allegation is made,[58] but an affidavit alleging facts which, if true, show that the trial judge will not or cannot afford the litigant an impartial trial is sufficient.[59] In Oklahoma only one change of judge can be had.[60] If a change of venue be granted by a judge, or if he disqualifies himself on some statutory ground, an entry in the record proper should show such fact.[61]

JUDGMENTS.

The scope of this topic is noted below.[62]

§ 1. Definition, nature, and classification of judgments. See 10 C. L. 467—A judgment is a determination or sentence of the law, pronounced by a competent court or both judges of county were disqualified, and that Riverside County was nearest and most accessible, plaintiff filed affidavit not controverting others but showing that judge of R county was disqualified, and defendant filed additional affidavit that judge of O county next nearest was also disqualified. Held affidavits, though not counter, were properly considered, and order transferring cause to another county was proper. Id.

54. Under evidence and affidavits, not error to deny motion for change of judge. Swan v. Talbot, 152 Cal. 142, 94 P 238.

55. Too late to complain of disqualification after trial is ended. Johnson v. State [Okl. Cr. App.] 97 P 1059.

56. Where sheriff was sued for conversion for property levied on, and plaintiff in original action had indemnified sheriff, held such plaintiff without intervention became a "party" within Rev. Codes, § 6315, authorizing a "party" to disqualify judge by filing affidavit of prejudice. Gehlert v. Quinn [Mont.] 98 P 369. Code of Civ. Proc. §§ 170, 398, held not to restrict right to make and file affidavits to any particular party. Parrish v. Riverside Trust Co. [Cal. App.] 93 P 685.

57. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 6315, where a motion to strike portions of pleading was submitted and taken under advisement, and pending decision a disqualifying affidavit was filed and thereafter motion was overruled, held jurisdiction of case was terminated. State v. Second Judicial Dist. Ct., 37 Mont. 590, 97 P 1032. Rev. Codes, § 6315, providing that a judge shall be disqualified upon filing by party of affidavit that he has reason to and does believe that he cannot have an impartial hearing before judge by reason of bias and prejudice, held the law on subject. Gehlert v. Quinn [Mont.] 98 P 369.

58. Setting forth inference, suspicions and conjectures insufficient. Boreing v. Wilson, 33 Ky. L. R. 14, 108 SW 914.

59. Affidavit under Ky. St. 1903, § 968, held sufficient, error not to vacate bench. Kentucky Journal Pub. Co. v. Gaines, 33 Ky. L. R. 402, 110 SW 268.

60. Under Okl. Sess. Laws of 1903, p. 220, c. 25, § 1, art. 1, not error to not grant right to change judge where defendant had already taken a change of judge. Johnson v. State [Okl. Cr. App.] 97 P 1059.

61. Viertel v. Viertel, 212 Mo. 562, 111 SW 579.

62. This topic treats of judgments in general, and for a more particular and exhaustive treatment of judgments in particular actions or proceedings reference must be had to topics relating to such actions or proceedings. See such topics as Attach-judge as a result of a proceeding instituted in or before such court or judge, affirming that, upon the matters submitted, a legal duty or liability does or does not exist.[63] It is the pronouncement of the judge on the issue submitted to him.[64] It is more than a mere order,[65] or award.[66] There can be but one judgment in an action.[67] A judgment entered on an exemplification of the record does not become a judgment in the common interpretation of the word in the county to which it is transferred.[68]

Judgments on offer, consent, stipulation or confession.[69]—A decree entered by agreement is not a judicial decree in its strict legal sense but a solemn contract entered by the court.[70]

Defaults and office judgments.[71]

Final and interlocutory judgments.[See 10 C. L. 467]—There can be but one final judgment in a case.[72] The word "final" is used of a judgment in several senses, and ment, 11 C. L. 315; Alimony, 11 C. L. 96; Eminent Domain, 11 C. L. 1198; etc. For a more particular treatment of particular kinds of judgments, without reference to the character of the proceedings, see Confession of Judgment, 11 C. L. 663; Defaults, 11 C. L. 1063; Discontinuance, Dismissal and Nonsuit, 11 C. L. 1093. Equitable relief against judgments is treated generally, but see, also, Injunction, 12 C. L. 152. This topic excludes foreign judgments (see Foreign Judgments, 11 C. L. 1518), criminal judgments (see Indictment and Prosecution, 12 C. L. 1), conclusiveness of judgments between the parties (see Former Adjudication, 11 C. L. 1537), specific modes of enforcing judgments (see Creditors' Suits, 11 C. L. 936; Executions, 11 C. L. 1433; Sequestration, 10 C. L. 1622; Supplementary Proceedings, 10 C. L. 1765). It also excludes judgments upon particular pleadings (see Pleading, 10 C. L. 1173). For other matters relative to judgments but not treated herein or treated only generally or incidentally, see Mistake and Accident, 10 C. L. 853; Fraud and Undue Influence, 11 C. L. 1583; Appeal and Review, 11 C. L. 118; New Trial and Arrest of Judgment, 10 C. L. 999; Stay of Proceedings, 10 C. L. 1726.

63. Document reciting trial and verdict, etc., and "it is hereby ordered that judgment be entered," etc., held not a judgment but an order therefor, though entitled as a judgment and entered in the judgment book. Marsh v. Johnston, 123 App. Div. 596, 108 NYS 161. Order following action "whereupon it is ordered, considered, and adjudged that judgment be entered," etc., held not a judgment but an order for judgment. Dallam v. Sanchez [Fla.] 47 S 871. Unconditional order under Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 1228, that a garnishee pay money into court, held n judgment within a statute making judgments a lien on lands of debtor, when docketed in district court. Johnson v. Samuelson [Neb.] 117 NW 470. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 570, defining a judgment as a final determination of the rights of the parties, where court ordered, adjudged, and decreed that within 10 days defendant should pay plaintiff a certain sum, instead of that "plaintiff do have and recover," etc., held a judgment. Hentig v. Johnson [Cal. App.] 96 P 390. Under B. & C. Comp. §§ 59, 396, "judgment" includes "decree." Waymire v. Shipley [Or.] 97 P 807.

64. The record is merely historical and evidentiary. Montgomery v. Viers [Ky.] 114 SW 251. In a proper sense there is no filing of a decree any more than there would be a filing of a judgment, and the draft made for the guidance of the clerk is not the decree. Horn v. Horn, 234 Ill. 268, 84 NE 904.

65. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1003, defining an "order" as every direction of the court made in writing and not included in a judgment, and § 577, defining a judgment as a final determination of the rights of the parties, determination of judge dismissing a certain proceeding held not a judgment, but an order. In re Scott [Cal. App.] 96 P 385. Order of seizure and sale is not a judgment and an action to annul such order is not governed by the one year prescription. Pons v. Yazoo, etc., R. Co. [La.] 47 S 449. Decision overruling demurrer to amend complaint held not a judgment, but an order subject to vacation for cause, under Code Civ. Proc. § 473. Dent v. Los Angeles County Super. Ct. [Cal. App.] 95 P 672. Where demurrer to complaint was overruled and municipal court endorsed on the summons "Demurrer overruled with leave to plead over" within a certain time, such indorsement was not a judgment. Proper practice would have been to enter interlocutory judgment on such order. Binder v. Robinson, 110 NYS 229. Memorandum made by judge on trial docket opposite statement of the cause, "Nov. 14, 1903. Judgment by default for plaintiff," etc., held not a judgment but only a direction to the clerk as to the judgment to be entered. Winn v. McCraney [Ala.] 46 S 854.

66. An award for costs under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 779, 1251, is not a judgment and constitutes no lien on the debtor's real estate. Clinton v. South Shore Natural Gas & Fuel Co., 113 NYS 289.

67. Error to make a separate judgment for costs. Pelgram v. Ehrenzweig, 58 Misc. 198, 109 NYS 54.

68. Lehigh & N. E. R. Co. v. Hanhauser [Pa.] 70 A 1089.

69. See 6 C. L. 215. See, also, Confession of Judgment, 11 C. L. 663; Stipulations, 10 C. L. 1728.

70. A decree entered by agreement and not as the result of findings. Hohenadel v. Steele, 237 Ill. 229, 86 NE 717. Rehearing will not be allowed as to such a decree. Id.

71. See 10 C. L. 467. See, also, Defaults, 11 C. L. 1063.

72. New trial on one of two counts does not operate to set aside verdict on other counts, but stays operation of same until final judgment is entered on both counts.

when used in any qualified sense that fact must be kept clearly in mind.[73] A judgment which terminates and completely disposes of the action is final,[74] but one which does not so dispose of the action is not final.[75] A default judgment in an action for damages is interlocutory.[76]

§ 2. Requisites. A. In general. See 10 C. L. 468—A judgment entered without jurisdiction is void,[77] and hence the court must have jurisdiction of both the cause of action and the subject-matter thereof,[78] and except where there is an appearance,[79] legal service of process is also necessary.[80] Unless jurisdiction is conferred by ap-

Gann v. Dearborn Mfg. Co., 129 Mo. App. 425, 107 SW 15.

73. What judgments are final for the purpose of appeal and res judicata is treated respectively in Appeal and Review, 11 C. L. 118, and Former Adjudication, 11 C. L. 1537.

74. Order setting aside judgment and dismissing complaint held final. Newcomb v. Burbank, 159 F 569. Where action is based on gift of money made by certain person and used by him in paying firm debts, decree of dismissal is none the less final as to plaintiff, because containing unnecessary reservation of question as between partners whether one paid out money on behalf of firm. Goldsmith v. Goldsmith [Iowa] 117 NW 1077. Order setting apart premises as homestead for widow and children is final order and can be set aside only by motion for new trial within time limited or by motion under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4953, authorizing court to vacate judgment for mistake, inadvertence or excusable neglect, or § 5153. In re McKeever's Estate, 48 Wash. 429, 93 P 916. Where on appeal taken on exception to commissioner's report decree of lower court was reversed by the supreme court, proper decree entered and case remanded, decision of supreme court is final. Matthews & Co. v. Progress Distilling Co. [Va.] 62 SE 924. Decree held final and judgment properly entered thereon for amount resulting from corrections ordered by decree to be made in referee's report upon which judgment was given. Brown v. Rogers [S. C.] 61 SE 440. When demurrer to petition is sustained upon general ground of insufficient facts pleaded, and pleader stands thereon and judgment is rendered against him, such judgment is final upon facts pleaded, and such facts cannot thereafter be relitigated between same parties, in any court. Holderman v. Hood [Kan.] 96 P 71. Where condition in decree available only to appellants, their waiver by appealing of right to avail themselves of such condition had effect of making decree final and absolute and hence appealable, without waiting until time for availing themselves of condition had expired and judgment became final by its terms. Moore Printing Typewriter Co. v. Nat. Sav. & Trust Co., 31 App. D. C. 452. Where motion for new trial is entered on day judgment is rendered, judgment is not final until motion is determined. Vogelsang v. Fredkyn, 133 Ill. App. 356.

75. Judgment of partition and order of sale is interlocutory, order of distribution being final. Collier v. Catherine Lead Co., 208 Mo. 246, 106 SW 971. Order directing receiver to disburse among creditors all funds in his hands but not purporting to be a final order winding up the estate, but which sent accounts to a master, held not a final order ousting court of jurisdiction to entertain cross bill by receiver against creditor. Ledbetter v. Mendell, 124 App. Div. 854, 109 NYS 602. Where creditors filed a bill against debtor and assignee for their benefit, setting up that sale of property would sacrifice same and prayed for receiver to manage property, an order granting prayer and appointing receiver was not final judgment. Id.

76. One of two defendants in an action for damages, who defaults, still remains a party for the purpose of assessing damages, the default judgment being interlocutory and not final. Wilkins v. Brock [Vt.] 70 A 572.

77. McHenry v. State [Miss.] 44 S 831.

78. Judgment rendered by a court which has no jurisdiction is void. Bedingfield v. First Nat. Bank [Ga. App.] 61 SE 30; State v. State Dispensary Commission, 79 S. C. 316, 60 SE 928. This principal applies to an order of injunction. State v. State Dispensary Commission, 79 S. C. 316, 60 SE 928. Judgment is void where want of jurisdiction is apparent on its face. Churchill v. More [Cal. App.] 96 P 108. Judgment held void for want of jurisdiction where notice and return in attachment showed that it was not served in accordance with statute, where affidavit in attachment and writ and notice showed attachment was against personal estate of defendants representing parish, and where service of notice was too defective and irregular to be good as to either defendant and failed to comply with provisions of statute and was issued, posted and mailed prematurely. Czyston v. St. Stanislaus Parish, 131 Ill. App. 161. Judgment of adoption held not void for want of jurisdiction where court had jurisdiction of both parties and subject-matter necessary to render judgment. Jones v. Leeds, 41 Ind. App. 164, 83 NE 526.

An exception to this rule is that a judgment of the United States supreme court is binding on all the courts of the land, and the decision of the appellate courts of a state are binding on subordinate courts. State v. State Dispensary Commission, 79 S. C. 316, 60 SE 928.

79. See, generally Appearance, 11 C. L. 255. Where defendant was represented by attorneys who moved against pleadings and were served with notes of issue and notice of trial and motion for default, court had jurisdiction of person of defendant. Nichols v. Doak, 48 Wash. 457, 93 P 919. Evidence insufficient to show that attorneys who appeared for defendant were unauthorized to do so. Broadway v. Sidway, 84 Ark. 527, 107 SW 163.

80. See, also, Process, 10 C. L. 1262. Elmore v. Johnson, 121 La. 277, 46 S 310. Judg-pearance, personal service within the court's jurisdiction is essential to a judgment in personam,[81] but a judgment in rem may be entered on constructive service.[82] One who submits himself to the jurisdiction of the court cannot raise objection as to the manner in which the court has acquired its jurisdiction.[83] A judgment is not rendered void by mere irregularities[84] or errors[85] therein. A judgment must be sup-ment rendered without proper service of process is void. Stubbs v. McGillis [Colo.] 96 P 1005; Lindberg v. Thomas, 137 Iowa, 48, 114 NW 562; Minnesota Thresher Mfg. Co. v. L'Heureux [Neb.] 118 NW 565; Nicoll v. Midland Sav. & Loan Co. [Okl.] 96 P 744; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. English [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 424. Judgment in personam rendered against a defendant without notice to him or appearance by him is without jurisdiction and is entirely void. Weaver v. Webb, 3 Ga. App. 726, 60 SE 367. No jurisdiction is acquired until return of process or proof of publication. Deputy v. Dollarhide [Ind. App.] 86 NE 344. Where record or judgment does not show service of summons or that parties were before the court, the judgment is void. Cox v. Fowler, 33 Ky. L. R. 928, 111 SW 703. Where personal judgment was entered but record showed no process, appearance or constructive notice, held no valid judgment was shown. Southern Timber & Inv. Co. v. Poe [Ala.] 45 S 205; Southern Timber & Inv. Co. v. English Mfg. Co. [Ala.] 45 S 206. On a showing that no service of summons has been made, it is the duty of the court to vacate the judgment. Stubbs v. McGillis [Colo.] 96 P 1005. If service of process is void, the judgment may be collaterally attacked. Town of Point Pleasant v. Greenlee, 63 W. Va. 207, 60 SE 601. Decree in a suit in personam against heirs of a deceased person, without giving their names in the complaint or warning order, is beyond the jurisdiction of the court, and void. Indiana & Ark. Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Brinkley [C. C. A.] 164 F 963. Judgment against garnishee by court having no jurisdiction because of want of service is void and subject to collateral attack. Howell v. Sherwood [Mo.] 112 SW 50.

Constructive service: Decree based upon constructive service of process is void if the conditions authorizing such publication are not fulfilled. Indiana & Ark. Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Brinkley [C. C. A.] 164 F 963. Judgment cannot be rendered against nonresident without appearance, in absence of proof of facts required by Code 1896, § 531, to constitute notice by publication. Southern Timber & Inv. Co. v. Creagh [Ala.] 45 S 666. A judgment rendered by publication against a resident of the state who might have been served personally is absolutely void. Wagner v. Lincoln County [Neb.] 114 NW 574; Hayes County v. Wileman [Neb.] 118 NW 478. Failure to give proper notice to interested parties of hearing on a petition for appointment of an administrator by publication of the citation for the full statutory time renders subsequent proceedings voidable and subject to be set aside. In re Hanson [Minn.] 117 NW 235.

81. Vick v. Flournoy, 147 N. C. 209, 60 SE 978. Judgment in personam, where there has been no personal service or appearance, is void. Rutherford v. Ray, 147 N. C. 253, 61 SE 57. Service of process by publication does not authorize judgment in personam. Gassert v. Strong [Mont.] 98 P 497. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 419, personal judgment cannot be rendered against one constructively served. Pendleton v. Pendleton [Ky.] 112 SW 674. Personal judgment cannot be rendered on service by publication under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 582, 575. Moss v. Fitch, 212 Mo. 484, 111 SW 475. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 582, personal judgment on service outside the state is unwarranted in action for divorce. Id. Where an absentee is called in warranty through a curator ad hoc and proceedings are carried to judgment contradictorily with the curator, a moneyed judgment against such absentee is void. Andrews v. Sheehy [La.] 47 S 771. Attachment proceedings are in rem, and no valid judgment in personam can be had where there has not been personal service. Southern Timber & Inv. Co. v. Creagh [Ala.] 45 S 666. Court of equity will not render decree in personam enjoining act on the part of nonresident. Royal Fraternal Union v. Lundy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 185.

82. Action to redeem from foreclosure and enforce contract in respect to land held in rem, and jurisdiction to render judgment was acquired by service under Revisal 1905, §§ 448, 442. Vick v. Flornoy, 147 N. C. 209, 60 SE 978. Judgment quasi in rem on substituted service on nonresident held valid. Code Civ. Proc. § 637. Gassert v. Strong [Mont.] 98 P 497.

83. Codefendant who answers cross petition on merits after decree in favor of complainant against cross petitioner cannot object that such decree eliminated cross petition from suit. Novak v. Vovak, 137 Iowa, 519, 115 NW 1.

84. Judgment foreclosing mortgage not rendered void by plaintiff's failure to give bond required by statute. Highland Land & Bldg. Co. v. Audas, 33 Ky. L. R. 214, 110 SW 325. Where jury trial may be waived, failure to swear jury until after verdict and judgment is an irregularity, but does not render the judgment void. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Butler [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 671.

Default judgment entered in absence of both parties, but at time the cause is regularly reached, is voidable, but not void. Pitman v. Heumeier [Neb.] 115 NW 1083. Under Rev. St. 1887, § 4701, where judge of probate court entered default instead of postponing case, and 3 days later heard proofs and entered judgment, the judgment was not void, though irregular. Zimmerman v. Bradford-Kennedy Co., 14 Idaho, 681, 95 P 825. Irregularity in affidavit for published service will not render judgment void unless such irregularity is so great that the affidavit is rendered substantially worthless. Finn v. Howard, 77 Kan. 421, 94 P 801. Under Rev. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 237, 309, 316, delay in filing proof of service until after default was entered is a mere irregularity. Burton v. Cooley [S. D.] 118 NW 1028. Irregularity consisting of clerical error as to number of lot in tax foreclosure ported by pleadings,[86] proof,[87] valid findings [88] and verdict.[89] It is sometimes provided by statute that a judgment in favor of the plaintiff in a joint action against several defendants must be against all the defendants, though some have not been judgment held not sufficient to defeat judgment. Stevens v. Doohen [Wash.] 96 P 1032. Disregard of remedial limitations in a case of which the court has jurisdiction does not render the judgment void. In re Clark, 135 Wis. 437, 115 NW 387. In quo warranto where the subject-matter was within the power of the court, but it was prohibited from exercising jurisdiction for the purpose of restraining proceedings of a court of co-ordinate jurisdiction, the judgment was not wholly void, but was binding until set aside. Id. See, also, Harrigan v. Gilchrist, 121 Wis. 127, 99 NW 909.

85. Binding force of decree is not affected by fact that court erred. McFall v. Kirkpatrick, 236 Ill. 281, 86 NE 139. Error in decreeing alimony to wife in divorce (Kirby's Dig. § 2681) does not render the decree void. Pryor v. Pryor [Ark.] 114 SW 700. In suit to foreclose mortgage against nonresidents constructively served, the fact that personal judgment was improperly rendered did not affect court's power to order sale or render judgment as to such relief void. Highland Land & Bldg. Co. v. Audas, 33 Ky. L. R. 214, 110 SW 325. Though in action of ejectment, where answer does not set up affirmative defense or counterclaim and defendant does not prove title and plaintiff does not appear, the proper judgment is one of nonsuit, yet broader one is merely erroneous and not void, the court having jurisdiction. Comstock v. Boyle, 134 Wis. 613, 114 NW 1110.

86. Must be based on pleadings stating case to support it. Hart v. Hunter [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 882. A judgment cannot be rendered against person as to whom the pleadings fail to state a cause of action. Eckels v. Henning, 139 Ill. App. 660. Sufficiency of pleadings is not test of jurisdiction, and though defective they will sustain judgment if court has authority to grant relief demanded and facts are set forth intelligibly. In re Nelson's Estate [Neb.] 115 NW 1087. Whether judgment is supported by the pleadings depends on a reasonable construction of the pleadings as a whole. Chesney v. Chesney, 33 Utah, 503, 94 P 989. A judgment in an action for the value of specific personal property cannot be sustained on pleadings which raise no issue concerning its value or prayer for such recovery. Wagoner Nat. Bank v. Welch [C. C. A.] 164 F 813. A judgment by default upon a complaint which does not state a cause of action is void. Lewis v. Clements [Okl.] 95 P 769. Default rendered on service by publication must rest for validity on petition as it existed when order for publication was made. Cooper v. Gunter [Mo.] 114 SW 943. Cause of action set up for first time in reply which was a departure from that alleged in the petition will not sustain a default. Spiess' Adm'x v. Bartley [Ky.] 113 SW 127.

Conformity to statutory requirements: In action on judgment in replevin, evidence held sufficient to show that verification was made at the time it was filed, but that the jurat, through oversight, was not attached until later. Schattler v. Heisman, 85 Ark. 73. 107 SW 196. Under Acts 1898-99, p. 225, authorizing judgment by default on an account where plaintiff files a verified statement, a default in an action on account, rendered without stating that ths statute had been complied with, is erroneous, though complaint states that account is verified. Greer & Walker v. Lilpfert-Scales Co. [Ala.] 47 S 307. Answer cannot be regarded as a nullity and judgmsnt entered as on default because answer was verified before defendant's attorney. Zickermann v. Wohlstadter, 113 NYS 403. Service of amended petition is essential to sustain judgment thereon by default. Palmer v. Spandenberg [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 760.

Pleadings held sufficient to sustain judgment. Forty-Acre Spring Live Stock Co. v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 417. Allegation on insurance policy that insurance was due, while a conclusion, was also an allegation of fact sufficient to support the judgment. Rogers v. Shawnee Fire Ins. Co. [Mo. App.] 111 SW 592. Where complaint is sufficient to support action on judgment, it may be treated as such though it sets up void transcript by which the judgment was transferred, and additional allegations did not permit one who had full opportunity after service to present his objections in a regular way to set aside judgment entered on default. Goebel Brew. Co. v. Medbury [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 335, 116 NW 543. Where declaration is in several counts, one of which will support verdict, a judgment entered thereon is good. Hansen v. De Vita [N. J. Law] 68 A 1062.

Pleadings held insufficient: Complaint held to show that defendant had been discharged and insufficient to sustain judgment against him. Palmer v. Spandenberg [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 760.

87. Phelan v. New York, etc., R. Co., 113 NYS 35. Stipulation merely consenting that pleadings bs amended held not an admission of truth of allegations, and hence not a proper basis for judgment. Id. Where all material allegations of complaint were denied by answer, plaintiff was required to prove his allegations before being entitled to judgment by default. Isom v. Holcomb, 33 Ky. L. R. 307, 110 SW 249. So held under Civ. Code Proc. § 126, in action against infants. Id. A decree granting affirmative relief must be justified by the facts which it specifically finds, or by evidence appearing in the record. Warden v. Glos, 236 Ill. 511, 86 NE 116.

88. Where findings of fact are contradictory and uncertain and intention of court cannot be ascertained and certain parts of judgment are not supported by all findings, the judgment will be reversed and the case remanded for new findings and judgment. Frederickson v. Deep Creek Irr. Co. [Idaho] 96 P 117.

89. Code, § 3732, provides that a verdict shall be filed, entered on and mads a part of the record, and a judgment on a verdict not filed and made of record may be set aside on motion. Fred Heim Brew. Co. v. Hamilton, 137 Iowa, 376, 114 NW 1039.

served;[90] or if the court has jurisdiction of all the defendants, judgment may be rendered against those found liable;[91] or when there is a misjoinder of parties plaintiff, judgment may be rendered in favor of the parties entitled thereto.[92] Error in entering judgment against a defendant not served does not necessarily affect the validity of the judgment as to a defendant served.[93] A judgment against one defendant is not necessarily precluded by a directed verdict in favor of a codefendant[94] or by a discontinuance as to a codefendant.[95] Notice for judgment is sometimes essential.[96] The court may in its discretion grant a second rule for judgment, where a party abuses his rights under an order discharging a first rule.[97] Where a judgment is rendered in vacation, statutory requirements must be observed.[98] Physical appearance of parties is unnecessary to the validity of a judgment rendered by agreement.[99]

(§ 2) B. Conformity to process, pleading, proof and verdict or findings.[See 10 C. L. 469]—A judgment must conform to the pleadings,[1] and the issues thereby made,[2]

90. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1932 where action is against several jointly, but only one or more are served, judgment must be taken against all. Abromiovitz v. Markowitz, 58 Misc. 231, 108 NYS 1044. Under St. 1898, § 2884, providing for judgment in form against all defendants jointly liable, though some have not been served, where only one partner was served in an action on a firm debt judgment was properly entered against the one served and against the firm. Gessner v. Roeming, 135 Wis. 535, 116 NW 171.

91. Under Code 1904, § 3395, providing that in an action against two or more plaintiff may have judgment against any one from whom he would have been entitled to recover if sued alone, one cannot complain that as to his codefendant verdict is set aside as contrary to evidence. McIntyre v. Smyth, 108 Va. 738, 62 SE 930. Code Civ. Proc. 1895, § 1002, provides that in an action against several defendants the court may in its discretion render judgment against one or more of them leaving the action to proceed against the others, where the defendants are severally liable. State v. Ninth Judicial Dist. Ct., 37 Mont. 298, 96 P 337. Where two or more are sued as partners and plaintiff fails to establish a joint liability, judgment may be had against any found liable. Lapinsky v. Colish, 113 NYS 733.

92. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 578, where there is a misjoinder of parties plaintiff, judgment should not be for defendant, but the action should be dismissed as to the party improperly joined, and retained as to the others, and such judgment rendered as they are entitled to. Gillespie v. Gouley, 152 Cal. 643, 93 P 856.

93. Where, in action against individual and town to compel removal of obstruction in street placed there by individual, the town was not served with process and judgment was erroneously entered against it, such fact did not require disturbing the judgment because execution thereof against the individual would abate the nuisance without affecting any property right of town. State v. Franklin [Mo. App.] 113 SW 652.

94. In action against city and contractor for injuries sustained because of defect in a temporary sidewalk, the city being primarily liable, a directed verdict for the contractor did not preclude judgment against the city. Jones v. Seattle [Wash.] 98 P 743.

95. On appeal from justice in forcible entry against husband and wife, discontinuance as to wife does not make a new case so that judgment could not be had against the husband. Monahan v. Schwartz, 32 Ky. L. R. 1285, 108 SW 285.

96. Notice for judgment held fatally defective because not alleging facts. State v. Keadle, 63 W. Va. 645, 60 SE 798. Notice for judgment is not defective because facts are recited under a "whereas" instead of by positive averment. Id.

97. Where plaintiff had his rule for judgment for want of a sufficient affidavit of defense discharged so as to accelerate a trial, and thereafter the defendant for purpose of delay ruled the case out for arbitration, the court in its discretion might grant a second rule for judgment. Pence v. Poet, 221 Pa. 434, 70 A 832.

98. In order to confer jurisdiction upon a judge to render judgment in vacation, the consent of the parties must be given and authenticated as required by Code 1904, § 3427. Wingfield v. McGhee, 108 Va. 120, 60 SE 755. Record showing that "on motion of plaintiff it is ordered that the cause be submitted," etc., is insufficient. Id. Pleadings must be made up and proof filed before the court can render judgment in vacation as provided by Code, § 3427, without the consent of the parties. Id. Decree void because rendered in vacation without consent of the parties as required by Code 1904, § 3427, is not made valid by proceedings in vacation to correct recitals therein under § 3451. Id.

99. Forty-Acre Spring Live Stock Co. v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 417.

1. Furst v. Zucker, 110 NYS 63. Must be responsive to pleadings. Black v. Early, 208 Mo. 281, 106 SW 1014. A judgment is void to the extent that it goes beyond the pleadings and prayer. Charles v. White [Mo.] 112 SW 545. Erroneous where not justified by pleadings though based on facts found. Berman v. Kling [Conn.] 71 A 507. Judgment will not be amended on appeal by inserting name not appearing in declaration or plea, since to do so would make variance between pleading and judgment and judgment must follow pleading. Northwest Land & Trust Co. v. Lowman, 132 Ill. App. 454. In suit for land, where complaint is for undivided one-half of land, judgment must be for undivided one-half. Wells v. Blackman, 121 La. 394, 46 S 437. In suit for specified sum, a greater sum cannot be recovered. Morris v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 130. Judgment in partition held unauthorized by the pleadings and void. Davis v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 948. Where pleadings consisted of an ordinary petition in ejectment, a general denial, a plea of statute of limitations, and a general reply, a judgment for defendant for costs is consistent with the pleadings. Coleman v. Roberts [Mo.] 114 SW 39. In trespass to try title, plaintiff held not entitled to complain that the judgment did not adjudicate boundaries of a certain three acres, as he was not entitled to such relief under the pleadings. De Roach v. Clardy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 22. Where allegations of complaint are admitted and matter of defense set up, judgment should be for plaintiff on pleadings if allegations of cross complaint are insufficient to sustain judgment for defendant. Pugh v. Stigler [Okl.] 97 P 566. If a complaint against several fails to state a cause of action against all, a judgment against all as a unit may be arrested on motion of any defendant against whom a cause of action is not stated. Henning v. Sampsell, 236 Ill. 375, 86 NE 274.

Effect of abolition of forms of action: Since code abolishes forms of action, where plaintiff proceeds on theory that his remedy is by suit in equity, but complaint fails to state facts entitling him to equitable relief, but does state facts entitling him to money judgment, he will be given relief to which he appears to be entitled. Donovan v. McDevitt, 36 Mont. 61, 92 P 49.

Judgments held not in conformity with pleadings: Judgment in action on quantum meruit which is contrary to admissions in defendant's answer that work was worth certain amount. Horn v. Martinko [Cal. App.] 94 P 79. Plaintiffs having failed to prove cause of action alleged in their complaint, and proper objections having been made, and no amendment asked for, judgment in their favor on cause of action not alleged could not be sustained on appeal. Epstein v. Cohen, 56 Misc. 579, 107 NYS 148. Recovery may not be had on a wholly different cause of action than the one pleaded. Hayes v. American Bridge Co., 111 NYS 883. Amendment of petition on which judgment was rendered by abandonment of cause of action upon which such judgment was predicated, and then substitution for such judgment of entirely different judgment upon petition as amended, held improper. City of St. Louis v. G. H. Wright Contracting Co., 210 Mo. 491, 109 SW 6. Judgment on mutual benefit certificate on theory not alleged, as when judgment was based on theory of total disability but liability for such disability was not alleged. Brotherhood of R. Trainmen v. Dee [Tex.] 111 SW 396. Where suit to recover illegal tax was on theory that it was paid under protest, which was successfully controverted, judgment could not be rendered on any other theory. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Marion County [Tenn.] 108 SW 1058. One cannot plead one act of negligence and recover on another. Huss v. Heydt Bakery Co., 210 Mo. 44, 108 SW 63. May not be based on a different cause of action than that alleged. Berman v. Kling [Conn.] 71 A 507. When the only theory upon which a complaint states a cause of action is unsupported, a judgment for plaintiff will be reversed. Varn v. Pelot [Fla.] 45 S 1015. Recovery cannot be had on facts not pleaded. Kennedy v. Pearson [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 280; Berman v. Kling [Conn.] 71 A 507. That demurrer was not acted upon so as to be deemed waived, and evidence of such unreasonable delay was not objected to, did not authorize the court to base judgment on facts not alleged. Davis v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 948. Damages on grounds not alleged cannot be allowed. Rich v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Tex.] 108 SW 1152. Judgment based on allegations appearing only in replication cannot be sustained. Manuel v. Turner, 36 Mont. 512, 93 P 808. Judgment in excess of liability created by instrument sued on, as where endorser, bound by endorsement to pay on demand, is held as a guarantor. Clymer v. Terry [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 1129. In foreclosure proceedings where the complaint set up two mortgages of property described in both as a "homestead," but only one of which was signed by the wife, the fact that she appeared afforded no support to a decree extinguishing her rights under the mortgage signed only by her husband. Davis v. Davis [Vt.] 69 A 876. Decree in divorce suit amended so as to correctly describe property sought to be divided, thus creating variance between decree and complaint as to description of property which was not correctly described by complaint. Senkler v. Berry [Or.] 96 P 1070. Money judgment in suit for conveyance of mining property. Chenoweth v. Butterfield [Ariz.] 94 P 1131. Where only claim set up in pleadings was for land, it was error to render judgment charging land with money advanced to improve it. Allen v. Allen [Tex.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 479, 107 SW 528. Judgment at law in suit in equity is unauthorized, and hence where complaint states equitable cause of action, such a judgment is erroneous. Craigo v. Craigo [S. D.] 118 NW 712. Judgment on guaranty where suit was for services performed. Stone v. Stoits, 112 NYS 1045. Quieting defendant's title is not authorized on general denial in specific performance suit. Mancuso v. Rosso [Neb.] 116 NW 679. Judgment over against principal in favor of guarantor not authorized where not asked for by pleadings. Palmer v. Spandenberg [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 760.

Judgments held in conformity with pleadings: Judgment in trespass to try title held not objectionable as giving plaintiff more land than he claimed. Hildebrandt v. Hoffman [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 785. Where claim for damages for cutting timber from land was withdrawn in trespass to try title, judgment on that issue was unnecessary. Haynes v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 427. Decree in partition held within scope of the pleadings. Collins v. Crawford [Mo.] 112 SW 538. In an action for personal injuries, where answer alleged payment of a certain sum in satisfaction of damages and the court found the claim to be untrue and plaintiff testified that the sum was paid to compensate for time lost, the judgment need not be modified to the extent of crediting the amount of such payment. Dalton v. Pacific Elec. R. Co. [Cal. App.] 94 P 868. Complaint on contract obligation is sufficient to sustain judgment if such obligation appear by reasonable intendment. Postal Tel.-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 265. Judgment against married woman sued as a feme sole is valid the proof,[3] and the verdict or findings.[4] In some instances a finding manifestly er-where the action is brought on contract made in her maiden name. Emery v. Kipp [Cal.] 97 P 17.

Judgment including attorney's fees is not void because such fees were not authorized by pleadings. Shahan v. Myers, 130 Ga. 724, 61 SE 702.

2. Ireland v. Bowman [Ky.] 113 SW 56; Weissenfels v. Cable, 208 Mo. 515, 106 SW 1028. A judgment in a suit for replevin which is wholly outside the issues is void for want of jurisdiction to decide the question. J. P. Jorgenson Co. v. Rapp [C. C. A.] 157 F 732. Where only issue was whether deed was void as to complaining creditor, decree divesting title held void as beyond jurisdiction of court. Charles v. White [Mo.] 112 SW 545. Where judgment could be based on no other ground than false assumption not submitted, it was held erroneous. San Antonio Mach. & Supply Co. v. Campbell [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 770. Where only issue triable is whether county court erred in issuing letters of administration, judgment of circuit court on appeal attempting to determine heirs is unwarranted. In re Skelly's Estate [S. D.] 113 NW 91. In suit to recover from one a sum of money as proceeds of land sold by him on ground that he held legal title as security only, on a finding against such contention and that plaintiff held under void oral contract, the court could render judgment for plaintiff for amount of payments made by him on the contract. Richer v. Carlson, 136 Wis. 353, 117 NW 815.

Where parties consent to litigate issue not raised, a judgment on such issue is final. Engel v. Sontag, 110 NYS 933.

3. Judgment on cause of action alleged cannot be sustained where not proved. Abromovitz v. Markowitz, 56 Misc. 231, 108 NYS 1044. Judgment for amount impossible to be arrived at under pleadings and proof is erroneous. Paster v. Meyer, 107 NYS 736. Judgment based on misconception of evidence and not in conformity thereto is erroneous. Goetschius v. De Barbieri, 110 NYS 1076. Where one entitled only to equitable portion of fund demands all of it, he cannot complain of refusal of court to give any relief where evidence furnishes no basis for division of fund. Malone v. Malone, 151 Mich. 680, 15 Det. Leg. N. 79, 115 NW 716. Motion for judgment for the entire amount claimed is properly refused where, except as to one item, his right to recover is for jury. Hamill v. Schlitz Brew. Co. [Iowa] 115 NW 943. Where petition for cancellation of instrument for fraud alleged offer to reimburse plaintiff for use of property and decree showed that in open court plaintiff offered such reimbursement as price of decree, but decree by inadvertence omitted to adjudge defendants such payment, it is erroneous. Reed v. Colp [Mo.] 112 SW 255. Judgment against several defendants may not be had where evidence shows that but one is liable. Selnick v. Epstein, 113 NYS 827. Where firm member who owned land individually, gave a broker written authority to sell it, and in an action against firm there was no evidence that the agreement was made by the firm, a judgment against all the defendants was erroneous. Beuthien v. Alberts [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 681, 117 NW 556. Where plaintiff admitted that defendant was entitled to recover on a counterclaim, it is error to enter judgment without deducting such counterclaim. Fish v. Hahn, 124 App. Div. 173, 108 NYS 782. In action for money where counterclaim was set up and certain liability thereon admitted, the court properly deducted such sum from the verdict and rendered judgment for balance. Ferguson & McDaris Lumber Co. v. Tiede & Co., 130 Mo. App. 269, 109 SW 850. Where facts are stipulated as facts and such stipulation shows no liability on the part of defendant, it is error for court to overrule motion for judgment on stipulated facts. Andrews v. Moore, 14 Idaho, 465, 94 P 579. In trespass to try title, where defendant disclaimed title, judgment for plaintiff is proper though he does not offer evidence. Hildebrandt v. Hoffman [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 785.

4. Must conform to verdict. Haumueller v. Ackermann, 130 Mo. App. 387, 109 SW 857. Where findings and conclusions do not support judgment, it cannot be sustained. Village of Hailey v. Riley, 14 Idaho, 481, 95 P 686. Use of word "supposed" held not to authorize basing of judgment on conjecture instead of on facts duly found. Kunz v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. [Or.] 94 P 504. Unless answer is manifestly insufficient as defense, finding of issues in favor of defendant entitles him to judgment. Daly v. Daly, 80 Conn. 609, 69 A 1021. Fact that judgment order runs against "defendants" in action for personal injuries and provides for payment in due course of administration is not tantamount to dismissal as to all those defendants who were not receivers, where it appears that verdict was against all defendants, including those not receivers, and that separate motions for new trial and in arrest of judgment were made in behalf of several defendants. Eckels v. Henning, 139 Ill. App. 660. Judgment cannot be sustained by general verdict where plaintiff joined eighteen independent libels in one count, five of which were wholly insufficient. Flowers v. Smith [Mo.] 112 SW 499. Right to judgment on special findings returned with the general verdict, under Rev. St. 1899, § 3656, is limited to cases where there is an inconsistency between the special finding and general verdict, under § 3657. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Morris, 16 Wyo. 308, 93 P 664. In determining what judgment may be properly entered upon a special verdict, nothing can be looked at by court except pleadings and postea. Collins v. Whiteside [N. J. Err. & App.] 69 A 174. Where material fact found by jury on special interrogatories is in conflict with the general verdict, judgment should be given on the facts found. United States Health & Acc. Ins. Co. v. Clark, 41 Ind. App. 345, 83 NE 760. Verdict for both plaintiff and defendant will not sustain judgment for defendant. National Cash Register Co. v. Price, 41 Ind. App. 274, 83 NE 776. In action for price of goods, verdict was for defendant, said defendant paying $40 to plaintiff and plaintiff keeping the goods. Held it would not support an unconditional judgment for defendant. Id. Judgment must be rendered upon verdict and court has no power to render judgment for only part of items of damage allowed. Rich v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 93. Where in action against several defendants only one roneous may be disregarded as surplusage and judgment entered in accordance with the verdict as thus corrected.[5] Generally surplusage in no manner affects the validity of the judgment proper.[6] The judgment should also conform to the prayer,[7] but this rule is modified and in some cases entirely abrogated by the codes of practice,[8] and in equitable actions the prayer for general relief authorizes any relief consistent with the facts proved.[9] A decree must pass on the entire prayer.[10] Where the judgment grants all the relief to which the plaintiff is presently entitled, he cannot complain in that it does not anticipate relief to which he may in the future be entitled.[11] was served and action was dismissed as to others after verdict, judgment was properly entered against one served. Siltz v. Springer, 236 Ill. 276, 85 NE 748. Finding as to sufficiency of issue of bonds held sufficient to sustain judgment based thereon. Zimmermann v. Timmermann [N. Y.] 86 NE 540. In suit to recover certain sum and interest for failure to deliver property sold, the verdict of the jury is to be regarded as principal and interest and it was error for the court to add interest thereto. Houston v. Booth [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 795, 107 SW 887. Finding in judgment order that damages awarded plaintiff were for so much money due and earned as employe of defendant held sufficient finding that recovery was for wages, under Employment Act of 1889, § 13. Goodridge v. Alton, 140 Ill. App. 373. In action by creditors of decedent on bonds given by administrator on procuring orders to sell real estate, findings that administrator failed to apply proceeds of such sales to payment of debts, or to pay the money into court in compliance with orders and that he withheld such proceeds, authorize judgment on bonds. Egoff v. Board of Children's Guardians of Madison County [Ind.] 84 NE 151. Judgment in action against telegraph company for failure to deliver message held not to conform to findings. Holler v. Western Union Tel. Co. [N. C.] 63 SE 92.

Amendment to conform to verdict may be allowed in matters of form, as where judgment provides for recovery of property excluded by verdict. Central Brew. Co. v. American Brew. Co., 135 Ill. App. 648.

5. Where the jury in an action to contest a will return a verdict establishing its validity, but by manifest error insert date of execution of will as date of its probate, and record shows that but one paper writing purporting to be last will of decedent was exhibited to the jury, and that, were date of probate as given by jury correct, right to contest the will would have been barred, it is not error for court to treat date given by jury as mere surplusage and to enter judgment upon verdict correcting error and establishing validity of will. Seal v. Goebel, 11 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 433.

6. Bank of North Wilkesboro v. Wilkesboro Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 61 SE 570.

7. Relief cannot exceed that demanded in complaint. Code Civ. Proc. § 1003. Manuel v. Turner, 36 Mont. 512, 93 P 808. City having prayed that telephone company be enjoined from doing business in city "or" from charging higher rates than authorized, latter relief was properly granted on default of company. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. v. Hickman, 33 Ky. L. R. 730, 111 SW 311. Amount of judgment is limited to the sum prayed for. Ray v. Southern R. Co., 77 S. C. 103, 57 SE 636. It is error to award damages in a greater sum than prayed. Haumueller v. Ackermann, 130 Mo. App. 387, 109 SW 857. In action on notes given for purchase price of land, where one of makers was merely joined but no personal judgment was asked against him, plaintiff was not entitled to personal judgment. Brackett's Adm'r v. Boreing's Adm'r, 33 Ky. L. R. 292, 110 SW 276. Where pleadings in eminent domain did not ask adjudication of rights under former condemnation decree, held decree adjudicating such rights was unauthorized. Mundy v. Hart [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 236.

Effect of stipulations: Alleged error in rendering judgment for amount in excess of ad damnum held eliminated from case by stipulation that under common counts and general issue each party to cause might have same benefit and advantage of all claims, causes of action and defenses appearing from statement of facts as though said causes of action and defenses were specially pleaded. City of Chicago v. Conway, 138 Ill. App. 320.

8. Under the code system, relief may be awarded according to facts pleaded, and one is not confined to the relief demanded. Bradburn v. Roberts [N. C.] 61 SE 617. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 580, providing that where answer is filed any relief consistent with the complaint and issues may be granted, the extent of relief depends on the issues and not on the prayer. Murphy v. Stelling [Cal. App.] 97 P 672. That plaintiff asks for relief which his allegations do not warrant does not prevent him having relief to which the facts entitle him. Guerard v. Jenkins [S. C.] 61 SE 258.

9. See Equity, 11 C. L. 1235. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 90. Heckling v. Gehring's Ex'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 1198, 100 SW 824. Any relief consistent with pleadings and proof. Code, § 3775. Johnston v. Myers [Iowa] 116 NW 600. In suit to set aside judgment on note secured by vendor's lien, decreeing foreclosure of lien, a prayer for general and special relief authorizes setting aside of sale of land. McLean v. Stith [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 355. In suit to foreclose mortgage where prayer for relief and allegations asks establishment of priority of liens of mortgage and judgments, the decree on default of the owner of the equity may adjust such priorities. Manuel v. Turner, 36 Mont. 512, 93 P 808. On bill to enjoin city from moving sidewalk claimed by the owner to be the line to an inner line claimed by the city, a decree quieting complainant's title to the disputed strip was warranted by a prayer for general relief. Triece v. South Haven [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 606, 117 NW 555.

10. Decree silent as to certain subjects covered by prayer of bill for construction of will is erroneous. Lumpkin v. Lumpkin [Md.] 70 A 238.

11. Where judgment declared lien on life insurance policy held by plaintiff as collat-

Judgment non obstante See 10 C. L. 472 may be entered when the proceedings warrant it.[12] At common law the only occasion for such a judgment was where a verdict was given for the defendant upon an insufficient plea of confession and avoidance,[13] and even under the modern relaxations of this rule a motion for such a judgment is essentially a motion for a judgment on the record,[14] as where the pleadings do not sustain the verdict rendered.[15] Accordingly, under this practice, the evidence cannot be reviewed on such a motion,[16] but under a still more liberal practice obtaining in some states a judgment non obstante may be granted where it conclusively appears that the verdict is contrary to the evidence,[17] and that it would have been proper for the court to have directed verdict at the close of the evidence,[18] but even under the most liberal practice a motion for such a judgment will not be granted where the evidence is inconclusive [19] or where there is a substantial conflict in the evidence,[20] nor will it be granted where the judgment would be contrary to the theory presented by the pleadings and on which the case was tried,[21] or where any issues remain unde-eral security, but did not grant plaintiff right to exercise privilege of surrender of policy and collection of cash value. Davidson's Ex'r v. Hieatt [Ky.] 113 SW 891.

12. Fishburne v. Robinson [Wash.] 95 P 80.

13. See 6 C. L. 222.

14. See 6 C. L. 222.

15. Judgment non obstante not proper where all issues offered were material except one presented by an additional plea. Haitje v. Keeler, 133 Ill. App. 461. Unless plea of contributory negligence is controverted by reply, defendant is entitled to judgment, notwithstanding verdict. Schulte v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 33 Ky. L. R. 31, 108 SW 941. Under Civ. Code Proc. § 386, judgment non obstante for insurer held proper where complaint to set aside compromise of life insurance claim for fraud did not allege that money received under compromise had been tendered to insurer. Western & So. Life Ins. Co. v. Quinn [Ky.] 113 SW 456.

16. Admits for purpose of motion, facts found by jury and does not challenge sufficiency of evidence to support findings and cannot be treated as a motion to set aside verdict on that ground. Maxon v. Gates, 136 Wis. 270, 116 NW 758.

17. Fishburne v. Robinson [Wash.] 95 P 80, following Roe v. Standard Furniture Co., 41 Wash. 546, 83 P 1109. Fact that question of fraud was submitted to jury who found for defendant did not preclude entering judgment for plaintiff non obstante veridicto. Murphey v. Greybill, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 339.

18. Evidence held such as would justify court in giving peremptory instruction, and hence entry of judgment non obstante was not error. Murphey v. Greybill, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 339; Lightcap v. Nicola, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 189. Act Apr. 22, 1905, P. L. 286, is not intended to change relative functions of court and jury so as to permit judge to decide questions of conflicting evidence, but only to allow him to do, subsequently on review of whole case, what it then appears would have been proper to do by binding direction at trial. Lightcap v. Nicola, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 189; Shannon v. McHenry, 219 Pa. 267, 68 A 734; Tilburg v. Northern Cent. R. Co., 221 Pa. 245, 70 A 723. Act of Apr. 22, 1905, P. L. 286, broadens power of judge so that whereas verdict formerly was required to be for plaintiff and reservation to be of leave to enter judgment for defendant non obstante, now what is reserved is request for binding direction to jury for either party. Power of judge is the same and he is to treat the motion for judgment as if it were a motion for binding direction at trial, and to either judgment as if such direction had been given and verdict rendered accordingly. Time when judge may act is enlarged so as to allow deliberate review and consideration of facts and law upon whole evidence. If upon such consideration it appears that binding instruction for either party would have been proper at close of trial, court may enter judgment later with same effect, but if such course would have been improper then or there was conflict in evidence, such course would be improper on motion for judgment non obstante. Murphey v. Greybill, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 339. Under Pa. Act Apr. 22, 1905 (P. L. 286), where defendant's request for binding instructions is refused, he may under this statute file a motion for judgment, notwithstanding the verdict on the whole record. Keiper v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 159 F 206; American Car & Foundry Co. v. Alexandria Water Co., 221 Pa. 529, 70 A 867. Under Pennsylvania practice where verdict is directed for plaintiff and no question of law is reserved, court may not enter judgment for defendant, notwithstanding verdict. Collins v. Smith, 158 F 872.

On appeal from entry of judgment non obstante veredicto where peremptory instruction was in fact refused by lower court the appellate court will consider evidence as appellate court does where trial judge grants peremptory instruction for plaintiff and defendant appeals. Murphey v. Greybill, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 339.

19. Mere fact that plaintiff who was arrested by defendant without a warrant was found not guilty on ensuing prosecution held not sufficient to require judgment for plaintiff, notwithstanding the verdict for defendant in action for false imprisonment and malicious prosecution. Conkling v. Whitmore, 132 Ill. App. 574.

20. Messir v. McLean [Wash.] 98 P 106. Judgment, notwithstanding verdict, is not authorized where evidence presents a close case upon facts. Kallas v. Worth Bros. Co., 158 F 1018.

21. Judgment non obstante for plaintiff cannot be entered in action for false im-termined,[22] or on account of errors at the trial.[23] The motion for the judgment must be timely,[24] and all statutory conditions precedent thereto must have been performed.[25]

§ 3. Arrest of judgment. See 10 C. L. 473—The grounds for, the procedure on, and the effect of, a motion in arrest of judgment are treated elsewhere.[26]

§ 4. Rendition, entry and docketing. See 10 C. L. 473—Judgment should be rendered at a time prescribed by a valid law for the holding of court,[27] and should be rendered within the time prescribed by statute.[28] Where the statute fixing the time for rendition of judgment is mandatory, a judgment not entered within the time prescribed is invalid,[29] unless the time is extended as authorized by law or rule of court,[30] but, where the statute is directory only, failure to comply therewith is not fatal.[31] The grant of a stay of execution is not a grant of a stay of judgment.[32] In Alabama an award constitutes a judgment when the clerical act of filing it has been performed.[33] In the absence of statutory requirement, a judgment or decree need not usually be signed,[34] but in some states signature is required by statute.[35] prisonment on evidence of malicious prosecution. Conkling v. Whitmore, 132 Ill. App. 574. In action against a bankrupt to recover a preference, it cannot be asserted on such motion that payment was made from money belonging to a partnership and not to defendant, where pleadings and trial were on theory that it was made from bankrupt's money. Smedley v. Speckman [C. C. A.] 157 F 815.

22. Where question of damages is still open to jury. Hartje v. Keeler, 133 Ill. App. 461.

23. Errors in instructions and errors of law at trial. Pease v. Magill [N. D.] 115 NW 260.

24. Must be made before judgment is entered. Wheeler v. Preston, 32 Ky. L. R. 791, 107 SW 274. After verdict rendered has been affirmed by court, judgment non obstante cannot be entered, remedy being by motion to set aside verdict and for new trial. Smith v. Lincoln, 198 Mass. 388, 84 NE 498. Motion by plaintiff for judgment on record, including testimony adduced, made after jury had been discharged after finding for defendant, and after plaintiff had been granted new trial, was properly overruled. Hamill v. Schlitz Brew. Co. [Iowa] 115 NW 943.

Clerical misprision in including judgment in entry of verdict will not prevent court from granting motion for judgment non obstante filed prior to pronouncement of judgment. Tait v. Locke, 130 Mo. App. 273, 109 SW 105.

25. Not proper where no motion for directed verdict was made at close of plaintiff's case. Laws 1901, p. 74, c. 63. Landis Mach. Co. v. Konantz Saddlery Co. [N. D.] 116 NW 333. Act Apr. 22, 1905, P. L. 286. Philadelphia v. Bilyeu, 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 562.

26. See New Trial and Arrest of Judgment, 10 C. L. 999.

27. If not, it is void for want of jurisdiction. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Grant [Ala.] 45 S 226. Judgment of circuit court, rendered at adjourned term pursuant to void order entered at time fixed by void law for holding court, is void. Rigsby v. State [Ala.] 45 S 227.

28. Under Laws 1902, p. 1557, c. 580, § 230, the municipal court must render judgment within 14 days from submission of the cause, in the absence of valid stipulation of the parties extending the time. Carpenter v. Pirner, 107 NYS 875. Where court at conclusion of trial announces, "Decision reserved," the case is "submitted" within municipal Court Act, § 230, allowing the justice 14 days from such submission to render judgment. Mosehauer v. Jenkins, 112 NYS 1038.

29. Void when not entered within fourteen days as required by Municipal Court Act, Laws 1902, p. 1557, c. 580, § 230. Carpenter v. Pirner, 107 NYS 875.

30. Judgment void when not entered within time prescribed by Laws 1902, p. 1557, c. 580, § 230, and time was not extended by consent of parties as authorized by such section. Carpenter v. Pirner, 107 NYS 875. Municipal court rule 17, authorizing extension of time by stipulation, contemplates a written, filed, and recorded stipulation. Id.

31. That judgment was not rendered within 90 days after trial does not invalidate it. Moylan v. Moylan [Wash.] 95 P 271. Statute requiring decision to be filed within 30 days after submission is directory, and failure to comply with it is not fatal to judgment. Carney v. Twitchell [S. D.] 118 NW 1030.

32. An oral direction of the judge when directing entry of judgment granting "10 days' stay" merely means stay of execution. Gersman v. Levy, 57 Misc. 156, 108 NYS 1107.

33. Under Code 1896, §§ 509, 513, providing that submission and award shall be entered as a judgment nothing is required save the clerical act of filing the award. Gandy v. Tippett [Ala.] 46 S 463. Under § 521 all intendments are in favor of the award. Id.

34. Entry of decree by clerk gives it validity. Horn v. Horn, 234 Ill. 268, 84 NE 904.

35. See Civ. Code Proc. § 390; Ky. St. 1903, § 378. Ewell v. Jackson, 33 Ky. L. R. 673, 110 SW 860. It is not indispensable that judgment entered by special judge but not signed by him should be signed at its close by regular judge, where such judge signs orders of day among which this judgment is. Id. Under Code of Prac. title 1 and art. 546, judgments of court of appeals need not be signed by judges who participated therein, as is required of judges of courts of original jurisdiction. Thomas v. Goodwin, 120 La. 504, 45 S 406.

Form and contents. See 10 C. L. 473—A judgment should be definite and certain [36] and should recite the proceeding upon which it is based,[37] and, where it relates to land, should so describe it that its boundaries may be ascertained,[38] but a description is not insufficient if the land can be ascertained from the judgment roll.[39] Where the rights of several plaintiffs are several, the judgment should be several,[40] and if the liability of several defendants is joint, the judgment against them is properly made joint,[41] but it is error to enter a joint judgment against several defendants who cannot be held jointly liable.[42] Clerical errors may be disregarded [43] as may, also, many irregularities of form,[44] and amendments may be allowed in certain matters of form.[45] The reasons for judgment may be recited therein,[46] but a mere opinion is not a judgment.[47] A judgment may be molded to meet existing conditions.[48]

Entry, docketing and recording. See 10 C. L. 474—A judgment or decree is inchoate until approved by the court and filed for record or recorded.[49] The entry of

36. Judgment ordering an owner, through whose land a drainage ditch ran for the benefit of others, to remove obstructions he had placed or caused to be placed in the ditch at any time subsequent to a designated date, etc., held sufficiently definite. Brown v. Honeyfield [Iowa] 116 NW 731. Judgment on verdict that plaintiff recover $10,000 and costs from A. Railway Company, sometimes called Pennsylvania Railway Company, held in proper form and not inconsistent with verdict. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Darlington's Adm'x, 33 Ky. L. R. 818, 111 SW 360. An entry is sufficiently formal if it identifies the parties, shows the relief granted and that it is the act of the court. Montgomery v. Viers [Ky.] 114 SW 251.

37. Judgment reciting appearance of defendant, trial by jury, verdict whereupon it was adjudged that plaintiff recover from defendant a certain sum and costs, held to contain all essentials of a valid judgment. Light v. Reed, 234 Ill. 626, 85 NE 282.

38. Judgment for recovery of land or involving land should so describe it that it may be identified without reference to any other paper. Latham v. Lindsay [Ky.] 113 SW 878. Judgment in suit to quiet title should describe the land with such definiteness as to enable the parties to definitely locate it. Hill v. Barner [Cal. App.] 96 P 111.

39. Where judgment for recovery of land contains an insufficient description thereof which may be perfected by reference to the pleadings, it is erroneous but not void and may be corrected on motion. Latham v. Lindsay [Ky.] 113 SW 878. Though judgment in proceedings to establish a private road should have described the road, omission did not invalidate it where it referred to petition and report of commissioners for description. Fitzmaurice v. Turney [Mo.] 114 SW 504.

40. Where court improperly compelled several defendants to deliver rice to plaintiff on decreeing restitution, judgment was properly entered for each defendant separately, ownership of rice being several. Texas Land & Irr. Co. v. Sanders [Tex.] 111 SW 648.

41. A judgment that plaintiff "have and recover from defendants" a certain sum is in appropriate form for one on a joint, and not on a several obligation. Union Oil Co. of California v. Mercantile Refining Co. [Cal. App.] 97 P 919.

42. Entry of joint judgment against railroad company and receivers thereof for damages for injury caused by operation of road by receivers. Eckels v. Henning, 139 Ill. App. 660.

43. Slight error of form in final judgment held immaterial. Hartzell v. Maryland Casualty Co., 139 Ill. App. 366. Under Comp. Laws 1897, § 10272, providing that judgment shall not be stayed for any informality in entering or making up the record, use of word "order" instead of "adjudged" is not reversible error. Prussian Nat. Ins. Co. v. Eisenhardt [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 393, 116 NW 1097.

44. Alternative judgment that plaintiff recover goods sold on account of fraud or a specified sum of money, though not in best form, held sufficient to resist attack by injunction to enjoin enforcement, since all presumptions are in favor of it. Nichols v. Doak, 48 Wash. 457, 93 P 919.

45. Amendment of form to conform to verdict. See ante, § 2B.

46. Decree. Jackson v. Valley Tie & Lumber Co., 108 Va. 714, 62 SE 964.

47. Opinion prepared and signed in chambers by a judge of court of appeals, and filed in such court with an uncertified excerpt, indicating affirmance of the judgment appealed from, does not prove rendition of such judgment. Thomas v. Goodwin, 120 La. 504, 45 S 406.

48. Law allows molding of judgment to conditions existing at time of judgment. Gage v. Callanan, 113 NYS 227. Judgment commanded one to perform certain work within specified time, or that plaintiff recover certain damages. Held that, where to do such work it was necessary to enter plaintiff's premises and she refused to allow such entry, the court could protect defendant by clause at foot of judgment, or stay operation thereof. Groge v. Ruff, 110 NYS 259. Where appellee's evidence on trial in county court on appeal from justice court showed proper discharge in bankruptcy, pending appeal proper form of judgment is special judgment against bankrupt with perpetual stay of execution. Danforth Mfg. Co. v. Barrett & Co., 138 Ill. App. 244.

49. Where the record showed that a decree was not filed until May, it was rendered as judgment is a merely ministerial act,[50] which is usually performed by the clerk of court[51] after the judgment or decree has been approved by the judge in the manner required by law,[52] but must be performed prior to adjournment of the term.[53] It must be performed under proper authority,[54] in the manner prescribed by statute,[55] and must not be prematurely made,[56] but under some statutes certain judgments may be entered before they are enforcible.[57] In some states it is required that the judgment be submitted to the adverse party before entry.[58] A party favored by a stay of judgment must see that proper entry is made.[59] An unauthorized entry is not a judgment.[60] Clerical mistakes in making entry may be corrected on motion,[61] but of that term and not of the January term. Horn v. Metzger, 234 Ill. 240, 84 NE 893. Until then it is not final and is subject to change or modification. Horn v. Horn, 234 Ill. 268, 84 NE 904. Under Rev. Laws Hawaii 1905, § 506, title to property acquired by condemnation does not vest until judgment of condemnation has been filed and recorded with the registrar of conveyances. United States v. Merriam [C. C. A.] 161 F 303. Registration of both deed and judgment is essential. Id. Formal order denying motion for postponement should be entered so defendant may appeal. Rubenstein v. Schmuck, 113 NYS 554. No judgment of court of appeals can be received in evidence until it has been entered on records of court, nor can it be executed until it has been so entered and has also been recorded in records of inferior court, as provided by Code Prac. arts. 617-620, 623, 910, 915, Rev. St. § 475; Const. art. 104. Thomas v. Goodwin, 120 La. 504, 45 S 406.

56. Where court has made findings and pronounced judgment, clerk may enter it of that date, though form of order is not prepared until long afterwards, and judge may date judgment back to such date. Austin v. Austin, 42 Colo. 130, 94 P 309. It is clerk's duty to enter only such judgment as court rendered. City and County of San Francisco v. Brown, 153 Cal. 644, 96 P 281.

51. Judgment not rendered void by failure of clerk to enter same. Comstock v. Boyle, 134 Wis. 613, 114 NW 1110. Clerk may enter judgment for recovery of money. Revisal 1905, § 352. Bank of North Wilkesboro v. Wilkesboro Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 61 SE 570. Competent for legislature to confer such jurisdiction on clerk. Id. Minutes of court of record, whether of original or appellate jurisdiction, should be approved by the judge, but entering of proceedings in minute book is duty of clerk who should attest his work with his signature, but if clerk fails to so attest he is not thereby disqualified from certifying to correctness of copies therefrom. Thomas v. Goodwin, 120 La. 504, 45 S 406.

52. Approval of decree by chancellor is authority to clerk to enter it of record. Horn v. Horn, 234 Ill. 268, 84 NE 904.

Signature by judge as a condition precedent to entry. See ante, this section, first subdivision.

53. Clerk has no power to make a judgment entry after court has finally adjourned. Winn v. McCraney [Ala.] 46 S 854. Judgment entered by clerk after term at which it was rendered, and without consent of judge, is void. Shepherd v. Shepherd, 32 Ky. L. R. 942, 107 SW 273. Decree entered in vacation as of prior term pursuant to understanding is void. Jackson v. Becktold Printing & Book Mfg. Co. [Ark.] 112 SW 161.

54. A county clerk has no authority to enter a judgment of dismissal on an order of dismissal made by the appellate division. Van Norstrand v. Van Norstrand, 110 NYS 665.

55. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 390, providing for entry of judgment in order book, and Ky. St. 1903, § 378, providing for signing of proceedings each day by judge, judgment must be entered in the order book and signed. Ewell v. Jackson, 33 Ky. L. R. 673, 110 SW 860. Municipal court act contemplates entry of judgment on trial of demurrer as indicated by Laws 1902, p. 1587, c. 580, making provisions for costs in such cases. Binder v. Robinson, 110 NYS 229.

56. Where decree of foreclosure was void because prematurely entered, it could be vacated, and defendant, having answered before it was legally entered, was entitled to defend. Waymire v. Shipley [Or.] 97 P 807. Default decree prematurely entered is void. Id.

57. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 9462, providing for proceedings to establish private road, judgment may be entered for owners for damages assessed before they have been actually paid to county treasurer, and for establishment of the way, though latter part of judgment could not be enforced until payment was made. Fitzmaurice v. Turney [Mo.] 114 SW 504.

58. Rule requiring counsel for party in whose favor judgment is rendered to present journal entry to adverse counsel for his approval before giving same to clerk for entry does not apply in case of default. Interstate Life Assur. Co. v. Raper, 78 Ohio St. 113, 84 NE 754.

59. A stay of judgment after verdict for plaintiff is a favor to defendants and they must see that it is entered by the clerk in accordance with the court's directions. Gersman v. Levy, 57 Misc. 166, 108 NYS 1107.

60. Erroneous entry on calendar of word "dismissed" not made in consequence of order of court is not to be taken as a judgment. Ledbetter v. Mandell, 124 App. Div. 854, 109 NYS 602. Under Mansf. Dig. Ark. §§ 3948, 3950, 3952, such entry is not evidence that a judgment was actually entered. Id. Decree which has been altered before entry is not admissible in evidence. Bates v. Hall [Colo.] 98 P 3. Where verdict was for plaintiff but new trial was granted as to one of two counts, held, where clerk entered judgment on both counts, it was improper and did not estop plaintiff on the second trial. Gann v. Dearborn Mfg. Co., 129 Mo. App. 425, 107 SW 15.

61. Bates v. Hall [Colo.] 98 P 3.

until corrected the judgment stands as entered.[62] Every presumption is indulged in favor of the regularity of the recordation of a judgment.[63] Judgment cannot be entered against a party who dies pending trial,[64] but where an appellant dies after submission of the cause, an affirmance may be entered as of the date of submission.[65]

Entry or docketing as affecting the lien of the judgment is treated in a subsequent section.[66]

*Nunc pro tunc entries.*See 10 C. L. 475—Judgment nunc pro tunc may be entered in two classes of cases: Where the suitors had done all in their power to place the cause in condition to be decided, but owing to delay of the court judgment had not been rendered until death of a party or some other such occurrence;[67] or where judgment, though pronounced by the court, has through accident or mistake of officers of the court never been entered.[68] Such entry, however, will not be allowed to the prejudice of a third party who has become owner of property affected by the order.[69] Judgments may also be amended nunc pro tunc,[70] but the authority thus to amend a judgment is solely to make it speak the truth, and can never be used to make the record speak what it should have spoken but what it did not in fact speak.[71] An amendment nunc pro tunc must be based on matter of record,[72] and notice of such amendment must be given the adverse party unless it is obvious that he cannot be prejudiced by the amendment.[73] Where the rendering of judgment is a ministerial act, it may be made nunc pro tunc at a subsequent term.[74]

§ 5. *Occasion and propriety of amending, opening, vacating or restraining enforcement. A. Before finality.*See 10 C. L. 476—During the term or until judgment has become a finality,[75] the court has inherent and plenary power,[76] in the exercise of its

62. If decree entered is different from that pronounced, those making such contention should make entry speak truth, and until correct it is binding and prevails over decree actually rendered. Bates v. Hall [Colo.] 98 P 3.

63. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1236, 1246, relative to filing and recording of judgments, where a judgment is recorded, it is presumed that the judgment roll was actually filed in the clerk's office and that it contained the judgment. Burke v. Kaltenbach, 109 NYS 225.

64. Where plaintiff in action to quiet title died pending the suit, the judgment was a nullity both for and against all who claim under him. Bivens v. Henderson [Ind. App.] 86 NE 426.

65. Judgment on appeal will be entered as of date of submission. United States Health & Acc. Ins. Co. v. Clark, 41 Ind. App. 345, 83 NE 760.

Abatement of appeal by death of party. See Appeal and Review, 11 C. L. 118.

66. See post, § 8, Lien.

67. Clark & Leonard Inv. Co. v. Rich [Neb.] 115 NW 1084. Judgment may be entered nunc pro tunc as of date of submission of the cause on suggestion that the party against whom it was rendered has died in the meantime. Clark v. Van Cleef [N. J. Eq.] 71 A 260.

68. Clark & Leonard Inv. Co. v. Rich [Neb.] 115 NW 1084. When a judgment has been rendered and the clerk has neglected to enter it. Quartz Gold Min. Co. v. Patterson [Or.] 96 P 551. Where judgment was in fact rendered and proof thereof is made, but where by omission of the clerk or other casualty no entry was made. Montgomery v. Viers [Ky.] 114 SW 251.

69. He may appear and resist such entry. Clark & Leonard Inv. Co. v. Rich [Neb.] 115 NW 1084. On application to sign a judgment entry nunc pro tunc, it was proper for the court to require notice to parties and to persons who had become interested in the property affected by the judgment. Montgomery v. Viers [Ky.] 114 SW 251.

70. Where one of plaintiffs died during litigation and heirs were made parties and judgment entered for "plaintiffs," nunc pro tunc entry formally inserting names of heirs and other plaintiffs from data existing in clerk's office held proper. Dixon v. Hunter, 204 Mo. 382, 102 SW 970. Where judgment in proceedings to establish private road did not describe road, but referred to petition for description, the court could supply the description by entry nunc pro tunc. Fitzmaurice v. Turney [Mo.] 114 SW 504.

71. Liddell v. Landau [Ark.] 112 SW 1085. Where judgment was actually entered on a certain date because the clerk was behind in his work, the court would not order entry nunc pro tunc as of an earlier date so as to make notice of intention to move for new trial not premature. Power v. Turner [Mont.] 97 P 950.

72. Not on extraneous evidence. Pulitzer Pub. Co. v. Allen [Mo. App.] 113 SW 1159.

73. Pulitzer Pub. Co. v. Allen [Mo. App.] 113 SW 1159.

74. In view of Rev. St. 1895, arts. 1323, 1324, 1333, 1335, rendering of judgment on a general verdict is a ministerial act. Carwile v. Cameron & Co. [Tex.] 114 SW 100.

75. Court may in its own discretion set aside judgment during term. Knupp v. Miller [Mo. App.] 113 SW 725. Where judgment in proceedings in which bond was given conditioned upon failure to maintain judicial direction,[77] to vacate, alter, revise or amend the judgment [78] for clerical, judicial or other errors.[79] Where a judgment is set aside at the same term, the court may not at a subsequent term render judgment without a new trial.[80] Delay in passing upon a timely motion to set aside a judgment will not preclude relief.[81]

(§ 5) B. Right to relief after the judgment has become final, as by the expiration of the term of rendition or of the statutory extension thereof. See 10 C. L. 478. Except as to matters of form [82] or as to clerical misprisions [83] which work no preju-title to goods levied on was set aside because jury did not determine value of such goods, it was proper to open judgment on such bond for want of affidavit of defense. Gain v. Steinberger, 36 Pa. Super Ct. 303. Judgment of county court not final as to 2 infant plaintiffs could be corrected in term upon proper motion, but not in vacation. Texas Co. v. Beddingfield [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 894. A party not satisfied with the form of judgment should move to modify it. Broeker v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 41 Ind. App. 316, 83 NE 756. Court has power to vacate order confirming judicial sale at same term at which it was rendered. Indiana & Arkansas Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Milburn [C. C. A.] 161 F 531. Order requiring executor to give bond in administration suit, is interlocutory, and the court has power to change or annul it so long as the case remains open and within the jurisdiction of the court. Hurt v. Hurt [Ala.] 47 S 260.

What constitutes same term: Under St. 1898, § 2424, amended by Laws 1905, p. 12, providing that term of court does not end until beginning of another term, an order vacating judgment held to have been made at same term at which judgment was rendered. Frost v. Meyer [Wis.] 118 NW 811.

76. Common-law courts have power to correct their judgments to make them conform to original facts. Montgomery v. Viers [Ky.] 114 SW 251. While action in which jury trial is waived is pending, court has power to correct its own errors and may in its discretion vacate its findings and judgment and make new findings and enter new and different judgment. Piano Mfg. Co. v. Doyle [N. D.] 116 NW 529.

77. Application to open default is addressed to the discretion of court, exercise of which will not be interfered with in the absence of abuse thereof. Pillock v. Buck [Idaho] 96 P 212. Trial court has wide and extended discretion in modifying, vacating or setting aside judgments or decrees rendered in its own court when it does so at the same term at which such judgment or decree was entered. McAdams v. Latham [Okl.] 96 P 584.

78. Justice of city court has power to recall or revise his decision. Orlando v. Palladino, 112 NYS 1118. Judgment for defendant on demurrer may be vacated at same term on motion of plaintiff and judgment of dismissal without prejudice entered. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Berry [Kan.] 98 P 204.

79. Judgment properly vacated during terms where there was good defense which, through ignorance of defendant, was not asserted. Knupf v. Miller [Mo. App.] 113 SW 725. For error apparent on record, court may, during term at which decree is entered, set aside or modify same upon motion or at its own instance without notice. Guinn v. Warbutton [W. Va.] 60 SE 1100. Where judge's minutes express intent to dismiss action without prejudice, judgment entry reciting "dismissal" should be amended to conform to such intent. O'Bryan v. American Inv. & Imp. Co. [Wash.] 97 P 241.

80. Vacation of judgment entered on special findings is tantamount to granting of a new trial and judgment cannot at subsequent term be entered upon such findings without new trial. Brown v. Capital Townsite Co. [Okl.] 96 P 587.

81. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 988, providing that courts of continuous session have jurisdiction over their judgments for 60 days, such court does not lose jurisdiction to open default on timely motion because it does not pass on the motion until after expiration of 60 days. Petty v. Wilbur Stock Food Co., 32 Ky. L. R. 956, 107 SW 699. Where defendant moved in arrest of judgment, but motion was not passed upon until following term, court did not abuse its discretion in overruling motion and setting aside judgment, and a nunc pro tunc order in doing so was not necessary. Wheeler v. Preston, 32 Ky. L. R. 791, 107 SW 274.

82. The fact that through clerical misprision a judgment erroneously describes a judgment debtor as a corporation organized under the laws of a certain state is not ground for reversal, but such error may be corrected. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Harby [Fla.] 46 S 590. If court has failed to act or has acted erroneously, matter cannot be corrected by judgment at subsequent term; but if it has acted and record shows such fact, but there is not sufficient formal evidence, it may be made to conform to truth as shown by record. Montgomery v. Viers [Ky.] 114 SW 251. Court has inherent power to at any time correct or modify its judgment entry to make it conform to the judgment rendered when rights of third persons will not be prejudiced thereby. O'Bryan v. American Inv. & Imp. Co. [Wash.] 97 P 241. Entry, after judgment, of a remittitur from verdict, does not set aside or nullify judgment or amount to rendition of new judgment, but party making it should correct entry to conform to remittitur. State v. Broaddus, 212 Mo. 685, 111 SW 508. Informality merely as to form and not of substance may be amended at any time without remandment. Northeastern Coal Co. v. Tyrrell, 133 Ill. App. 472. Amendment of judgment in attachment by adding to it at subsequent term judgment in rem to property attached will not be set aside on ex parte application because made at subsequent term. Scarborough v. Merchants' & Farmers' Bank [Ga.] 62 SE 1040. Where a judgment failed to conform to verdict and included a party as defendant against whom jury made no finding, it may be amended by striking out such party so as to make it conform to the verdict. Rucker v. Williams, 129 dice to third persons,[84] a judgment cannot be altered, vacated or amended after it has become a finality,[85] unless the parties consent thereto,[86] or unless statutory authority is given therefor,[87] or unless it is void [88] or was procured by fraud [89] of

Ga. 828, 60 SE 155. Such motion was timely when made within one year. Id. Trial court at all times possesses inherent power to amend its judgments by nunc pro tunc entry so as to conform to proceedings, provided rights of third persons have not intervened. Senkler v. Berry [Or.] 96 P 1070.

83. Clerical misprision may be corrected at any time. Pelton v. Goldberg [Conn.] 70 A 1020; West Chicago Park Com'rs v. Boal, 232 Ill. 248, 83 NE 824; Hurt v. Chess & Wymond Co., 33 Ky. L. R. 767, 111 SW 285. Court may correct record so as to speak truth as to date of entry of judgment. Power v. Turner [Mont.] 97 P 950.

Held correctible: Where in ejectment court granted defendant's motion for nonsuit, act of clerk in entering judgment that defendant owned premises is a clerical and not judicial error. City and County of San Francisco v. Brown, 153 Cal. 644, 96 P 281. Error in omitting to give judgment for costs. Hilton v. Hilton's Adm'r, 32 Ky. L. R. 1082, 107 SW 736. Question of damages on affirmance is to be determined from record, and where record does not warrant judgment it is clerical error. Bank of Kentucky v. Com., 32 Ky. L. R. 1087, 107 SW 812. Every court of record has inherent power to make its record speak truth, and where a bond was ordered and given prior to sale of ward's land, and proper finding of necessity for sale was made prior to the order for sale, that these proceedings did not appear on original record but were subsequently added by amendment, did not render the decree void, since the defect was cured by the amendment. Appeal of Dunn [Conn.] 70 A 703. Amendment to order vacating judgment by adding "new trial granted" may be made after term. Frost v. Meyer [Wis.] 118 NW 811. Error in decreeing a person an entire tract where evidence showed him entitled to portion of it only may be corrected after reversal on appeal by declining his part. Langhorst v. Rogers [Ark.] 114 SW 915. Where decree enjoining diversion of water from river so that it would flow on certain land failed to describe land, court after term and after appeal, could correct error and having done so could not vacate the corrected order. New Liverpool Salt Co. v. Wellborn [C. C. A.] 160 F 923. To show time of trial. Carney v. Twitchell [S. D.] 118 NW 1030. After notice to parties in interest, court may by order entered nunc pro tunc, amend or correct its final judgment after expiration of the term at which it was rendered, when by reason of clerical misprision it does not speak the truth, as where clerk omitted words "without prejudice" from order dismissing citation. Murphy v. McMahon, 131 Ill. App. 384.

84. May not make such correction to prejudice of third persons. Senkler v. Berry [Or.] 96 P 1070.

85. Curtiss v. Bell [Mo. App.] 111 SW 131; Davidson v. Hughes, 76 Kan. 247, 91 P 913. Where federal court has jurisdiction of subject-matter and judgment recites service on defendant, it cannot be set aside on motion made after term. If defendant desires to assail truthfulness of such recital, his remedy is by suit for injunction. United States v. Taylor, 157 F 718. Where judgment on mechanic's lien was entered in accordance with claim, complaint and proof, and was identical judgment asked, court could not, after term, modify it to exclude a part of the land described and include other land. Laugesen v. Sanford, 135 Wis. 252, 115 NW 808. Erroneous judgment on merits can only be corrected on appeal, and cannot be set aside at subsequent term. Stewart v. Wood [Ark.] 111 SW 983. A court has no power to vacate or modify a consent decree except for fraud or mistake of both parties. Rogers v. Sluder [N. C.] 61 SE 627. Setting aside judgment of dismissal entered under agreement held void. Rivers v. Campbell [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 190.

NOTE. Power of court to abate judgment after term: After final adjournment of the term at which a judgment was rendered, the defendant died, and upon application of his executrix the trial court entered an order declaring the judgment to have abated and to be no longer of any validity. Held, that the trial court had no control over the judgment after the term at which it was rendered, and hence had no authority to make the order abating the judgment (Ward, C. J., dissenting). United States v. New York Gent., etc. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 164 F 324.

The general rule undoubtedly is that after the expiration of the term at which a judgment is rendered the trial court has no longer any control over such judgment. Black, Judgments (2ed Ed.) § 306; Freeman, Judgments, (4th Ed.) § 96. This rule is said in Bronsen v. Schulten, 104 U. S. 410, 26 Law. Ed. 797, to be in force in the federal courts, and this doctrine is further sustained by Klever v. Seawall, 12 C. C. A. 653, 65 F 373; Austin v. Riley, 55 F 833; Allen v. Wilson, 21 F 881. The prevailing opinion in the principal case follows the general rule.—From 7 Mich. L. R. 351.

86. Courts may, after term, redocket and retry a cause once tried and reduced to judgment if the parties so request and the subject-matter is within the province of the court to decide and neither party may withdraw his consent after the new trial has been entered upon. First Nat. Bank of Montpelier v. Mullen, 7 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 313.

87. At common law, motion was required to be filed at term at which judgment was rendered. Statutes have extended the period. Rev. St. 1899, § 4151. Three years. Cross v. Gould [Mo. App.] 110 SW 672. Aside from Code, § 4091, court has no general equitable jurisdiction to grant relief in cases of decrees obtained by fraud. Richards v. Moran, 137 Iowa, 220, 114 NW 1035. Under Municipal Court Act (Laws 1902, p. 1563, c. 580), § 254, judgment for $224.50 instead of $244.50 as proved on trial and rendered by jury may be corrected where variance was due to clerical error on part of clerk in entering judgment. Frankland v. Schoenfeld, 56 Misc. 547, 106 NYS 1101. Irregularity within Rev. St. 1899, § 795, means irregularity in judgment itself, either omitting to do something or doing something improperly. Cross v.

an adverse prevailing party,[90] or by accident, surprise or mistake.[91] Neither error [92] nor irregularities will warrant relief.[93] The granting of relief is within the sound discretion of the court,[94] especially in the case of default judgments.[95]

Gould [Mo. App.] 110 SW 672. In absence of evidence of irregularity, an unauthorized agreement of counsel to have judgment vacated is insufficient under Rev. St. § 5354, authorizing vacation for irregularity. Interstate Life Assur. Co. v. Raper, 78 Ohio St. 113, 84 NE 754. Rev. St. 1899, § 777 providing for setting aside judgment where defendant has not been summoned, does not apply where he has been summoned or appeared. Curtiss v. Bell [Mo. App.] 111 SW 131. Under Kirby's Dig. § 2683, a court may modify alimony decree based on agreement same as other decrees. Pryor v. Pryor [Ark.] 114 SW 700. Rev. St. § 5354, permitting opening of judgment by confession on note taken by warrant of attorney for more than was due, means more than is due plaintiff on instrument on which judgment was taken after considering defenses which might be made in bar to claim sued on, and not that defendant had right to counterclaim because it was connected with the subject of action, the subject-matter of the claim not being a matter which may be pleaded in defense of cause of action. Schubert v. State Banking & Trust Co., 6 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 544. Under such statute, fact that judgment includes interest from date of note, whereas testimony showed payment of certain amount of interest at time note was given, is not cause for vacation, but merely for its modification. Id.

88. Void judgment may be vacated and set aside at any time. Nicoll v. Midland Sav. & Loan Co. [Okl.] 96 P 744. Where attorney was not authorized to appear for defendant's wife, but did so, and judgment was rendered affecting her property, she could have it set aside so far as she could show defense against it as affecting her homestead and separate property. Owens v. Cage [Tex.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 313, 106 SW 880. Judgment on indemnity bond will be opened where plaintiff failed to prove that breach had been committed. Dawson v. Strouss, 219 Pa. 353, 68 A. 828. Judgment against several may be set aside after term for want of jurisdiction of one defendant. Thomson v. Patek, 235 Ill. 341, 85 NE 603. Order appointing guardian, void for failure to notify mother, held properly assailable by petition after expiration of term. Wortham v. John [Okl.] 98 P 347. Orders requiring guardian appointed without jurisdiction to make final report, etc., void for lack of jurisdiction, set aside. Id. It is not error to set aside at a subsequent term judgment without jurisdiction because in excess of amount claimed. American Audit Co. v. Miller, 11 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 368.

91. See post, § 5C. Girard Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Bankard, 107 Md. 538, 69 A 415. Where a party by mistake or other excusable cause fails to appear in the surrogate's court, that court has power to open a decree entered against him. In re Doig, 110 NYS 93. Such decree may be opened in part only and only so far as necessary to protect defendant. Id.

92. Loeser v. Savings Deposit Bank Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 163 F 212. Review of judgment in bankruptcy by circuit court of appeals on appeal instead of on petition to revise held irregularity not rendering judgment void. Id. Granting affirmative relief to defendant, though he filed neither affirmative defense nor counterclaim, and though plaintiff did not appear, held mere error. Comstock v. Boyle, 134 Wis. 613, 114 NW 1110. Failure of clerk to enter judgment and findings held mere error. Id. Where court has jurisdiction and judgment is not void, garnishee cannot inquire into intervening errors. Central Stock & Grain Ex. v. Pine Tree Lumber Co., 140 Ill. App. 471.

93. Findings and judgment may not be vacated because they do not state time of trial, since defect can be cured by amendment. Carney v. Twitchell [S. D.] 118 SW 1030.

94. Exercise of such discretion will not be interfered with on appeal. Poff v. Lockridge [Okl.] 98 P 427.

95. Murphy v. Schoch, 135 Ill. App. 550; Finkelstein v. Schilling, 135 Ill. App. 543; Zichermann v. Wohlstadter, 113 NYS 403. Violation of arrangement between counsel not binding on court is not ground for asserting judge is guilty of abuse of discretion, when he opens default upon such terms as statute authorizes him to impose. Eppoletto v. Zuhr, 111 NYS 565. Dates held so mixed that it could not be said that court abused its discretion. Heilbrun v. Jennings [Ind. App.] 111 SW 857. Though there was no absolute right to vacation of a default, the appellate division held to properly open same in exercise of its discretion. Tierney v. Helvetia Swiss Fire Ins. Co., 110 NYS 613. An application under Rev. Code Civ. Proc. § 151 to set aside a default on ground of mistake, inadvertence or excusable neglect is addressed to the discretion of the court. Rosebud Lumber Co. v. Serr [S. D.] 117 NW 1042. Discretion not abused in setting aside such judgment where defendant was a foreigner, unfamiliar with rules of procedure, and because of such fact delayed in getting an attorney to represent him. Id. Refusal to set aside a default entered for failure to plead held proper. State v. Quantic, 37 Mont. 32, 94 P 491. It is discretionary with the trial court to open a default where a proposed answer set up a meritorious defense. Hendricks v. Connor, 104 Minn. 399, 116 NW 751. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 1375, providing for setting aside a default procured by service by publication, it is not necessary that a wife who seeks to vacate a divorce decree so procured should allege fraud or that facts upon which such service was made were untrue. Bracht v. Bracht [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 641, 107 SW 895. Verified petition that facts stated therein are true to the best of her knowledge and belief is sufficient. Id. In suit by wife against husband for an accounting, he permitted default without fraud, accident or mistake. Held he was not entitled to have such judgment vacated. Moore v. Martin, 233 Ill. 512, 84 NE 630.

In some states, however, the opening of default judgments is a matter of right.[96] A default judgment will not be set aside except upon a showing of due diligence on the part of the defaulting party[97] and a meritorious defense,[98] but no defense need be shown to warrant the vacation of a void judgment.[99] When the plaintiff seeks to have a judgment against him set aside, he must comply with statutory requirements as to showing a good cause of action.[1] Statutes authorizing the

96. Party who applies within one year after entry of default judgment on service of summons by publication is entitled to defend the action as matter of right, provided his motion is accompanied by an answer setting up good defense on merits and he has not been guilty of laches in making motion. Fink v. Woods, 102 Minn. 374, 113 NW 909.

97. It is essential to setting aside of default judgment that defendant has not been negligent. Finkelstein v. Schilling, 135 Ill. App. 543. Nonjurisdictional matters which might have been urged on the trial will not be considered on motion to open judgment. Waters v. New York Life Ins. Co., 127 Mo. App. 683, 106 SW 1120. Judgment against insurance company in favor of administrator will not be opened to contest question of residence of deceased. Id. Where jurisdiction was acquired of insurance company by service as provided by Rev. St. 1899, § 7991 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 3799), default judgment would not be opened for failure of declaration to allege matters relative to defendants doing business in state, compliance with state laws and appointment of attorney for service, such matters being nonjurisdictional matters which might have been urged as defense. Id. It must be shown that diligence was exercised to present the defense by plea, and unless such diligence be shown the court does not abuse its discretion in refusing to set the default aside. Reliance on casualty company not diligence. Farber v. Bolotnikoff, 131 Ill. App. 345. Petition to open decree denied where petitioner deliberately omitted to employ solicitor, enter appearance, or make defense. Weaver v. Chicago Title & Trust Co., 131 Ill. App. 66. Proper to refuse to vacate a default where defendant answered "ready" day after day when he should have known of absence of a material witness. Korenman v. Blauner, 113 NYS 736. Where parties agreed upon settlement, but defendant had not paid the sum agreed and was notified 5 days before default that default would be taken for full amount, but ignored the matter, he could not have it vacated. Lazaroff v. Shapiro, 113 NYS 572. Where failure of a party to appear is due to his own neglect or that of his attorney, he is not entitled to relief against the judgment. Andres & Co. v. Schlueter [Iowa] 118 NW 429. Default will not be set aside merely because defendant has a meritorious defense. It must appear that he was not neglectful and was not misled. Colter v. Luke, 129 Mo. App. 702, 108 SW 608. Proper to refuse to vacate where defendant depended on his associate in business to attend to and defend the suit. Id. Held no reasonable excuse for failure to make defense within statutory time when there was ample proof that judgment debtor had ample time to interpose defense with due deliberation and without haste, with exercise of reasonable diligence, and where opportunities afforded were ignored and warnings were not heeded. Farrior v. Mickle, 133 Ill. App. 444.

98. Farber v. Bolotnikoff, 131 Ill. App. 345; Finkelstein v. Schilling, 135 Ill. App. 543; Ziegler v. Funkhouser [Ind. App.] 85 NE 984; Dana v. Thaw, 109 NYS 826. Complaint to set aside default judgment on ground of fraud and mistake held to state a sufficient defense to the action. Lithuanian Brotherhelp Soc. v. Tunila, 80 Conn. 642, 70 A 25. Vacation of default should only be on showing of reasonable excuse for defendant's neglect and a meritorious defense. Dana v. Thaw, 56 Misc. 612, 107 NYS 870. Where no meritorious defense is shown and the history of the case shows merely an effort to stave off judgment, a default will not be opened. American Pin Co. v. Tepfer, 111 NYS 1027. Showing of a meritorious defense based on information and belief is not sufficient to open a default. Phillips v. Portage Transit Co. [Wis.] 118 NW 539. A default will not be opened to allow a demurrer to be interposed. Schaeffer v. Gold Cord Min. Co., 36 Mont. 410, 93 P 344.

Meritorious defense shown: Where process upon which default was based was not in conformity to statutory requirements, and meritorious defense was shown, it was proper to set aside the default. Petty v. Wilbur Stock Food Co., 32 Ky. L. R. 956, 107 SW 699. Affidavit that signatures were forgeries or induced by trick or device without intention on part of signer to sign held sufficient defense to warrant opening judgment. Murphy v. Schoch, 135 Ill. App. 550. Though proper diligence is not shown, an order denying a conditional order to open a default will not be sustained where a meritorious defense and inability to comply with the order is shown, where plaintiff fails to meet the defense. Hart v. Cram, 124 App. Div. 487, 108 NYS 925. Failure to prove cause of action is the most potent reason why default should be vacated. Merritt & Chapman Derrick & Wrecking Co. v. Koronsky, 113 NYS 744. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 90, in order to support a judgment by default, the amount must be ascertainable from the complaint. Brashears v. Brashears, 33 Ky. L. R. 233, 110 SW 303. Held insufficient. Id.

Meritorious defense not shown: Code, § 4096, provides that judgment shall not be vacated unless cause of action or defense be shown, and hence, where motion is based on unavoidable casualty caused by withdrawal of counsel, and it did not appear that defense could be proved, motion held properly denied. Andres & Co. v. Schlueter [Iowa] 118 NW 429.

99. Stubbs v. McGillis [Colo.] 96 P 1005. But see post, this subsection, subdivision Points of Equity.

1. Under Code, § 568, plaintiff may not have judgment against him vacated where no showing was offered and no adjudication opening of judgments apply only to cases therein specified.[2] Authority to open judgments does not apply to a judgment which has been extinguished [3] or which has never existed,[4] though the contrary of the latter proposition is held in some states.[5] Federal courts are not controlled by state practice in the matter of vacating and modifying their own prior judgments.[6]

Courts of equity See 10 C. L. 482 have inherent jurisdiction to set aside or enjoin the enforcement of a judgment procured by fraud,[7] accident or mistake,[8] where its enforcement would be inequitable,[9] provided that there is no adequate remedy at law,[10] and that the party seeking relief is free from fault,[11] has a meritorious de-made that he had cause of action as required by § 572. Brown v. Dann [Kan.] 97 P 862.

2. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 724, providing for vacation for mistake, surprise or excusable neglect, vacation for other causes is not authorized, and an intentional default should not be opened. Warth v. Moore Blind Stitcher & Overseamer Co., 109 NYS 116.

3. Laws 1902, p. 1562, c. 580, § 253, authorizing opening of defaults, does not apply to a proceeding to vacate a judgment which has been extinguished. Fluegelman v. Armstrong, 110 NYS 967.

4. Where supreme court decides that a consent decree is void on the ground that it could be entered only after hearing, the trial court cannot amend the decree to show that it was in fact rendered after hearing. Schofield v. Rankin [Ark.] 109 SW 1161. Where judgment is absolutely void for want of service, a suit to vacate is not maintainable under Code, § 4091, specifying grounds of vacation or modification. Cummings v. Landes [Iowa] 117 NW 22. Prior to Laws 1907, p. 554, c. 304, § 253, amending Laws 1902, c. 580, § 253, municipal court had no power to vacate default judgment for want of service. Duryee v. Hunt, 56 Misc. 684, 107 NYS 734; Mann v. Meryash, 107 NYS 599.

5. Motion to correct record and vacate judgment for want of service held proper. Simmons v. Defiance Box Co. [N. C.] 62 SE 435.

6. Lorser v. Savings Deposit Bank & Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 163 F 212.

7. Engler v. Knoblaugh [Mo. App.] 110 SW 16. Fraud, accident, mistake and surprise are recognized grounds for equitable interference when one without negligence has lost an opportunity to present a meritorious defense to an action and the enforcement of judgment would be inequitable. Lithuanian Brotherhelp Soc. v. Tunila, 80 Conn. 642, 70 A 25. Equity will set aside judgment taken in violation of agreement to give notice of further proceedings. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Crenshaw [Tenn.] 110 SW 1017. Where attorneys fraudulently and without notice to their client embodied in a decree in partition a provision awarding themselves a portion of the land, held a suit in equity was the proper proceeding to vacate the decree and have a proper decree entered. Schneider v. Lobingier [Neb.] 117 NW 473. Though federal court has no power to vacate judgment entered by state court under Rev. St. § 720, it may by injunction restrain the holder of such judgment from enforcing it, as such process operates on the person and not against the state authorities. Schultz v. Highland Gold Mines Co., 158 F 337.

8. Where judge inadvertently adds statement to judgment contrary to his intention. Ludwig v. Walker, 111 NYS 1102. Equity will relieve against judicial mistake where court has been misled as to fact and has pronounced judgment which it would not otherwise have given. Engler v. Knoblaugh [Mo. App.] 110 SW 16. Mistake in judgment rendered on report of commissioners appointed to establish a road in reciting that certain facts had been considered by the commissioners held correctible in a separate suit in equity. Id. Remedy for erroneous recital of service is by injunction. United States v. Taylor, 157 F 718.

9. Court of equity does not sit in review of judgments at law but only gives relief in extreme cases, such as where a judgment is obtained by fraudulent means, or some part of it is so unconscionable that it would be tantamount to a fraud in the plaintiff to insist on its enforcement. Central Stock & Grain Ex. v. Pine Tree Lumber Co., 140 Ill. App. 471.

10. M. Redgrave Co. v. Redgrave [N. J. Eq.] 71 A 147. Facts held to show an adequate remedy at law. Id. As against a merely erroneous judgment, injunctive relief cannot be had if the remedy by appeal or certiorari is available. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Warbington [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 988. Where certain defenses and conditions have been determined against a party, he may not sue for injunctive relief against the judgment, his remedy being restricted to appeal. Flanagan v. MacNutt, 113 NYS 42. Remedy for adverse decision on plea of equitable estoppel is by writ of error. Monmouth County Elec. Co. v. Eatontown Tp. [N. J. Eq.] 70 A 994. The remedy for error in computing amount of judgment so that it is excessive is by appeal or certiorari and not by injunction to enjoin enforcement. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Warbington [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 988. Code Civ. Proc. § 1201, providing that when judgment is satisfied in fact otherwise than upon execution, party or attorney must give such acknowledgment, or make such indorsement, and upon motion court may compell it, or may order entry of satisfaction to be made without it, held to afford sufficient remedy. Donavan v. McDevitt, 36 Mont. 61, 92 P 49. Where there is adequate remedy at law to set aside default judgment obtained by fraud and mistake, equity will not give relief. Weed v. Hunt [Vt.] 70 A 564. Equity will not set aside default on ground of want of service and that sheriff's return was false. Reiger v. Mullins, 210 Mo. 563, 109 SW 26. Equity may grant relief against a default rendered on false return of service of process. Abraham v. Miller [Or.] 95 P 814. Evidence insufficient to show false return. Id. One cannot sue in equity to enjoin enforcement fense,[12] has acted with due diligence,[13] and has been guilty of no conduct amounting to a waiver or working an estoppel.[14] Equity may relieve from arbitrary or entirely unwarranted conduct of the court,[15] and also from void judgments,[16] but not from mere errors [17] or from failure to perfect an appeal.[18] A court of equity will not pass upon questions of fact determined by the judgment sought to be vacated.[19] A proof default judgment on ground that he was prevented by accident and mistake from setting up a defense, where by statute he is given an adequate remedy at law to open the default after he had notice of the judgment, and failure to avail of such remedy is not excused. Weed v. Hunt [Vt.] 70 A 564. Error in rendering default where answer is on file can only be corrected on motion during term or appeal and not by equity after term. Curtiss v. Bell [Mo. App.] 111 SW 131.

Statutes extending power of law courts in this respect do not restrict the jurisdiction of equity, and Rev. St. 1899, § 3795, authorizing grant of new trial after term for fraud and perjury, does not restrict power of court of equity to do so. Harden v. Card [Wyo.] 97 P 1075.

11. Equity cannot grant relief where judgment would not have been rendered except for defendant's negligence. Curtiss v. Bell [Mo. App.] 111 SW 131. Decree of orphan's court cannot be interfered with by equity where parties misunderstood issue or negligently failed to offer evidence which would have produced different result. Woolsey v. Woolsey [N. J. Eq.] 71 A 408. Judgment will not be opened for fraud where petitioner has not exercised due diligence to protect himself from such fraud. Johnson v. Building & Loan Ass'n, 133 Ill. App. 213. Equity will not enjoin entry of judgment because of court's refusal to consider equitable estoppel not properly pleaded. Monmouth County Elec. Co. v. Eatontown Tp. [N. J. Eq.] 70 A 994.

12. Reed v. New York Nat. Exch. Bank, 131 Ill. App. 434. Equity cannot give relief on ground of fraud or mistake where no effort is made to show a meritorious defense. Curtiss v. Bell [Mo. App.] 111 SW 131. Though decree be entered without jurisdiction, equity will not relieve against it if plaintiff had valid claim to which there was no defense. Lindberg v. Thomas, 137 Iowa, 48, 114 NW 562. Equity will not relieve against judgment obtained without service where defendant does not show meritorious defense. Broadway v. Sidway, 84 Ark. 527, 107 SW 163.

Decree entered without jurisdiction will not be enjoined where it is rendered upon valid cause of action to which there is no defense. Lindberg v. Thomas, 137 Iowa, 48, 114 NW 562.

13. See, also, post, § 5D. Injunction against enforcement of judgment will be refused where if complainant had acted promptly and in accord with practice and precedent it could have obtained as ample relief from trial court as court of equity could give. Central Stock & Grain Exch. v. Pine Tree Lumber Co., 140 Ill. App. 471. Bill will not lie to enjoin enforcement of a judgment where reasons assigned were available in original action and no reason is given why they were not then urged. Tyrrell v. Wood [R. I.] 68 A 545. Usury and the legal inability of a married woman to make a contract of surety for her husband are legal defenses and must be set up or they are concluded by the judgment. Weed v. Hunt [Vt.] 70 A 564. Where appellant, though duly served and present at trial, failed to take appeal or certiorari and his evidence of any trick, fraud or deception practiced in procuring judgment was loose and unsatisfactory, while regularity of judgment was sustained by record, testimony of constable who served summons and was present at trial and clear, positive testimony of appellee, refusal to restrain enforcement of judgment held proper. Hughes v. Clark, 35 Pa. Super. Ct. 518. A judgment may be set aside for fraud notwithstanding the fact that no defense was made at the time it was rendered, although the defendant was properly served with summons by copy thereof left at her usual place of residence. Ulman, Einstein & Co. v. Effinger, 11 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 383.

14. One who has on notice appeared and submitted his case on merits on application for modification of decree, without assailing procedure, should not afterwards be permitted to do so. Wilson v. McCutchen Estate Claimant [Iowa] 114 NW 551. Party to partition suit who was of age at time of decree and accepted fruits of the litigation and enjoyed them for many years estopped to assail the decree. Sullivan v. Holbrook, 211 Mo. 99, 109 SW 668. Judgment defendant with full knowledge of facts, having bid at sale of property under judgments and accepted overplus, held not entitled to have judgment set aside, though motion therefor was pending at the time of sale to purchaser's knowledge. Lupo v. Frazier, 130 Ga. 409, 60 SE 1003. Where city filed bill to enjoin removal through streets of smallpox hospital and consent decree was entered, that building should be destroyed and owners compensated, it was held that after such destruction, taxpayers could not demand vacation of decree on ground that city had not consented to it by ordinance. Chester City v. White, 220 Pa. 646, 70 A 125.

15. Ignoring plea of privilege, notwithstanding evidence conclusively establishing same. Coca Cola Co. v. Allison [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 308.

16. Void judgment of justice for less than appealable amount. Coca Cola Co. v. Allison [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 308.

17. No equitable aid will be extended merely for errors intervening in the progress of the cause or entry of judgment. Central Stock & Grain Exch. v. Pine Tree Lumber Co., 140 Ill. App. 471.

18. Where record did not show allowance of appeal or time for filing bond and could not be amended to permit appeal, collection of such judgment could not be enjoined unless the creditor would stipulate for entry of new judgment in like amount, accompanied by order allowing appeal. Wesley Hospital v. Strong, 233 Ill. 153, 84 NE 205.

19. Question as to alteration of an instru-ceeding to enjoin a judgment procured by fraud, accident or mistake is a direct and not a collateral attack.[20]

(§ 5) C. Fraud, accident, mistake, surprise, and other particular grounds.[See 10 C. L. 485]—Fraud must lie in the procurement of the decree,[21] and must be extrinsic or collateral to the questions examined and determined in the action.[22] Cases in which the facts have been deemed to show or not to show such surprise,[23] accident,[24] mistake,[25] excusable neglect,[26] fraud,[27] or any or all of such grounds [28] as would war-ment in issue at the trial. Harden v. Card [Wyo.] 97 P 1075.

20. Engler v. Knoblaugh [Mo. App.] 110 SW 16.

21. Fraud which justifies vacation of judgment must be practiced in procuring it and not that which merely affects the case generally. Cross v. Gould [Mo. App.] 110 SW 672. Where fraud is alleged but it does not appear from complaint that plaintiff was prevented from presenting his claim to court, complaint is insufficient. La Fitte v. Salisbury, 43 Colo. 248, 95 P 1065. Judgment may be set aside for fraud which prevented party from fully exhibiting his case, or for fraud by reason of which contest was prevented. Walker v. State [Ind. App.] 86 NE 502.

22. Fraud for which suit may be maintained to annul a judgment between the same parties must be extrinsic or collateral to the matter tried by the first court and not such as inhered in the issues of the prior action. Jackson v. Wilkerson [C. C. A.] 160 F 623. Where allegations of fraud were necessarily tried in the prior suit, the decree is res judicata. Id. False swearing and perjury do not constitute such a fraud. Richards v. Moran, 137 Iowa, 220, 114 NW 1035; Gitier v. Russian Co., 124 App. Div. 273, 108 NYS 793. Judgment will not be reviewed for perjury committed by a witness at the trial. Walker v. State [Ind. App.] 86 NE 502. Where the false evidence complained of is charged to relate to matters affecting the court's jurisdiction, a bill of review may lie, but such bill does not lie where the false evidence was merely evidence upon the issues tried and disposed of upon original hearing. Evidence to impeach witness upon original hearing is insufficient ground for allowing bill of review. Johnson v. Building & Loan Ass'n, 133 Ill. App. 213. Charge that decree of foreclosure was obtained upon testimony of one who swore falsely as to amount due held insufficient. Id. Allegation of fact known to be false and establishment of such fact by false testimony is not fraud under Code, § 4091. Helrick v. Smith, 137 Iowa, 622, 115 NW 226. Under Rev. Laws 1905, § 4277, providing for an action to vacate judgment for fraud or perjury, etc., such action cannot be maintained on bare allegation that, on an issue of fact so squarely made that each party knows what the other will attempt to prove, there was perjured testimony. Hayward v. Larrabee [Mich.] 118 NW 795.

23. Surprise shown: Default properly set aside where defendant was a foreigner and did not understand papers presented to him, was not served, and was not partner of codefendant served, but his wife was. Reichenbach v. Harris, 112 NYS 1069. A judgment taken contrary to agreement is by surprise, within B. & C. Comp. § 103, permitting relief against such judgment. Voorhees v. Geiser-Hendryx Inv. Co. [Or.] 98 P 324. Held not an abuse of discretion to vacate a judgment of divorce where attorney for defendant was misled by a remark of court as to probable time of trial. Jones v. Jones, 37 Mont. 155, 94 P 1056. Facts held to authorize opening of judgment taken by default where pending the action in which it was rendered leave to intervene was applied for and granted and statements by court as to time of future proceedings in the case were relied upon. Pitiock v. Buck [Idaho] 96 P 212. Default set aside for failure to serve notice of motion to place cause on short cause calendar. Donegan v. Hubbard, 110 NYS 98.

Surprise not shown: Under St. 1898, § 2832, permitting vacation for surprise, inadvertence, etc., where defendants knew that an action was being defended by an attorney in their name and one appeared as a witness, they are presumed to know that judgment would follow trial, and notice of entry to their attorney was notice to them, and they are not entitled to have it vacated. Emerson v. McDonell [Wis.] 118 NW 814. Where default is vacated and on last day of term another is entered for failure to answer, the latter will not be set aside where it does not appear that defendant was prevented by surprise, etc., arising from absence of counsel, from presenting his defense. Ramsey v. Ferguson, 32 Ky. L. R. 1033, 107 SW 779.

24. Accident shown: One held entitled to have default opened where trial was had at a time it was impossible for defendant to reach court and it was agreed that defendant might open it. Union Stores Corp. v. Haight, 110 NYS 423. Sickness of defendant's counsel is ground under Kirby's Dig. § 4421, relative to casualty or misfortune. Capital Fire Ins. Co. v. Davis, 85 Ark. 385, 108 SW 202. Sworn statements of counsel that he was sick are not overcome by affidavits that he appeared in good health. Id. That one was accidentally shot preventing his appearance is ground for vacating judgment under Civ. Code Prac. § 518, for unavoidable casualty or misfortune. Hargis v. Begley, 33 Ky. L. R. 1020, 112 SW 602.

Accident not shown: Where codefendant did not appear because of reliance on assurance of another that he need not, he was not entitled to have the judgment vacated on the ground that he had been misled as result of accident, fraud or mistake. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Washington [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 988. Withdrawal of counsel from case held not unavoidable casualty or misfortune within Code, § 4091. Andres & Co. v. Schlueter [Iowa] 118 NW 429.

25. Shown: Where cause is submitted on stipulation covering certain but not all issues, and by mistake court determined issues excluded, judgment may be amended to express intention of parties. Wright v. Krabbenhoft, 104 Minn. 460, 116 NW 940. Where wife's counsel in divorce proceedings by mistake and without her consent stipulated as to payment of costs out of proceeds of property divided, wife could have judgment based on such stipulation vacated. Sebree v. Sabree, 33 Ky. L. R. 114, 109 SW 311. Where judgment on report of commissioners to establish road was by mistake entered without annexed condition, defendant was entitled to equitable relief against its enforcement. Engler v. Knoblaugh [Mo. App.] 110 SW 16. Consent decree in creditor's suit properly vacated for mistake where creditor who did not consent had an interest which was disposed of by the decree. Prince's Adm'r v. McLemore, 108 Va. 269, 61 SE 802. Where failure to appear in court was due to error of court, judgment of nonsuit was properly vacated for mistake and surprise, under Revisal 1905, § 513, or Code 1883, § 274, relative to vacation in the discretion of the court. Smith v. Holmes Bros. [N. C.] 61 SE 631. Mistake of fact may be ground for interposition of court of equity to vacate judgment. Hilt v. Neimberger, 235 Ill. 235, 85 NE 304. Where defendant did not understand summons, evidence held to show that he was not served. Id. Under St. 1898, § 2832, authorizing the court, in its discretion to set aside a default, judgment by default was properly set aside where defendant was misled by plaintiff's attorney. Wegwart v. Beneditz, 135 Wis. 422, 115 NW 1101. Mistake or oversight of party in failing to notify his attorneys of settlement before their withdrawal from case held such as not to require court to disturb judgment, there being nothing to show that the mistake was excusable. Corson v. Smith [S. D.] 118 NW 705. Where court enters consent decree in partition, it cannot correct same on motion of one of parties because of alleged mistake as to law governing partition. Beer v. Orthaus, 109 NYS 997.

26. On motion to set aside default for excusable neglect and inadvertence, defaulting party must show that he or his attorney attended to matter of appearance with at least ordinary diligence. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Ross [Ind. App.] 86 NE 506. Facts held to show no abuse of discretion in refusing to vacate a default. Id. Where petition to vacate default judgment for excusable neglect makes proper case under Burns' Ann. St. 1908, § 405, statute is mandatory and court has no discretion. Ziegler v. Funkhouser [Ind. App.] 85 NE 984. Application to set aside default, stating that defendant was inexperienced woman, confined and sick when action was commenced, and showing that promptly on recovering within month after rendition of judgment she applied to have it vacated, authorizes relief under Burns' Ann. St. 1908, § 405, authorizing vacation for excusable neglect. Id. Failure to obtain counsel after having been served with process held not sufficient to authorize vacating of a default judgment. Hannan v. St. Clair [Colo.] 96 P 822. Will not be vacated because defendant defended his own cause and did not appreciate necessity of employing counsel. Langham v. O'Meara [Ky.] 112 SW 928.

27. Not essential to one's right to relief against default judgment that defendant's attorney should have intentionally and fraudulently misled him, but is sufficient if he did so innocently. Lithuanian Brotherhelp Soc. v. Tunila, 80 Conn. 642, 70 A 25. Consent decree obtained by fraud may be vacated. Prince's Adm'r v. McLemore, 108 Va. 269, 61 SE 802.

Held fraud: Stipulation in action to enjoin issuance of school bonds to enter judgment for plaintiff, entered into by board and plaintiff, held fraud on school district and the court and constituted no basis for judgment. Schouweiler v. Allen [N. D.] 117 NW 866. Averment in petition that goods or merchandise were sold to husband, and that afterwards and before suit is brought to recover price thereof plaintiffs inserted name of wife of such husband in said account, and without her knowledge or consent, is a sufficient averment of fraud to constitute a cause of action, and a demurrer to such petition and pertinent interrogatories attached thereto is properly overruled. Ulman, Einstein & Co. v. Effinger, 11 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 383. Judgment procured against party on account which she never owed, nor became either directly or indirectly liable for its payment, constitutes fraud on court rendering such judgment. Id. Failure of defendant, a foreigner, to appear to answer summons held due to misunderstanding, due in part at least to conduct of plaintiff's attorney, whereby former was led to believe that summons was only a notice to pay. Lithuanian Brotherhelp Soc. v. Tunila, 80 Conn. 642, 70 A 25.

Held not fraud: One alleging himself to be unable to ascertain for himself condition of his account with building and loan association, and who alleged that he was therefore compelled to rely on representations of officers of association, does not allege sufficient fraud to warrant setting aside decree of foreclosure obtained by association for greater amount than he alleged officers represented to be due, where he failed to show reason why he could not have investigated condition of account as well at time of suit as later. Johnson v. Building & Loan Ass'n, 133 Ill. App. 213. On motion to set aside judgment entered for greater sum than agreed, held record supported finding that judgment was based on merits and not on agreement. Stewart v. Wood [Ark.] 111 SW 983. Where plaintiff was entitled to judgment because defendant did not file his answer within statutory period, and judgment was proper, representations that defendant had no attorney and no answer was filed because of mistake did not constitute fraud. Curtiss v. Bell [Mo. App.] 111 SW 131. Mere prosecution of unfounded claim or erroneous allegation of fact does not constitute fraud under Code, § 4091. Hedrick v. Smith, 137 Iowa, 625, 115 NW 226. Where one demanded and took a personal judgment by default against one not personally liable. Id.

28. Allegations of agreement to extend time of redemption are immaterial in proceedings to have judgment of foreclosure set aside. Johnson v. Building & Loan Ass'n, 133 Ill. App. 213. That premises were community property and as such vested exclusively in widow held not ground for vacation of judgment setting apart homestead for widow and children, under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4953, relative to mistake, inadvertence or neglect, or under § 5153, relative to casualty or misfortune. In re McKeever's Estate, 48 Wash. 429, 93 P 916. If justice announces one judgment and by fraud, accident or mistake enters another, equity has jurisdiction to set latter aside. Nashville, rant or require the vacation or modification of the judgment, are collated in the notes. The casualty or misfortune must be such as reasonable skill and diligence could not have avoided.[29] A judgment founded upon a usurious contract will usually be opened.[30]

(§ 5) D. Procedure to amend, open, vacate, or enjoin. See 10 C. L. 488—A motion to vacate a judgment for irregularity is a common-law remedy,[31] but in the absence of statute, a court of purely statutory creation cannot ordinarily vacate its final judgments unless so authorized by statute.[32] A motion to open a judgment is an appeal to the equitable powers of the court and cannot be sustained because of a mere technical irregularity not affecting the merits or justice of the judgment.[33] Proceedings to vacate judgments are sometimes specifically provided by statute,[34] and in such proceedings the requirements of the statute must be substantially complied with.[35] Statutory proceedings are not necessarily exclusive.[36] etc., R. v. Brown, 3 Ga. App. 561, 60 SE 319. Will not grant relief where, as is apparent from record, sole cause of complainant's acts was belief that it was immune from final process. Central Stock & Grain Exch. v. Pine Tree Lumber Co., 140 Ill. App. 471. Held error for clerk to set aside, on ground of excusable mistake or neglect, judgment in favor of surety who had paid judgment against principal. Bank of North Wilkesboro v. Wilkesboro Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 61 SE 570. Failure of defendant, a foreigner, to appear and defend, held due to misunderstanding, in that he thought summons was only a notice to pay. Lithuanian Brotherhelp Soc. v. Tunila, 80 Conn. 642, 70 A 25. Decree opening a highway properly vacated where owner was misled as to location of road. Thomas v. Boyd, 108 Va. 584, 62 SE 346.

29. On application for relief on ground of inadvertence and mistake of counsel, all attendant circumstances as shown by papers are to be considered. Lunnun v. Morris [Cal. App.] 95 P 907. Where defendant's counsel was misled by plaintiff's counsel, whether he was negligent was a question for the trial court. Cross v. Gould [Mo. App.] 110 SW 672. Where defendant was negligent in failing to have her husband appear as witness, judgment will not be set aside. Badham v. Lunsford [Ala.] 46 S 762. Where the husband was sick but might have attended, held defendant did not prove that his failure to appear was not due to her fault. Id. Under Code, § 4091, providing for vacation for unavoidable casualty or misfortune, judgment properly vacated where defendant acted in reliance on letter from clerk of court stating that complaint had not been filed. Logan v. Southall, 137 Iowa, 372, 115 NW 19. Where only excuse for failure to appear in justice court was mistake of attorney as to date of trial, plaintiff held not entitled to relief in equity. Kramer v. Schulte [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 893, 118 NW 481. Mere failure of attorney to attend to his duty or his luck of judgment as to steps to be taken to protect his client is not casualty or misfortune under Code, § 4091. Hedrick v. Smith, 137 Iowa, 625, 115 NW 226. Party who is guilty of failure to inform attorney of service of notice of action in order that defense may be interposed is guilty of negligence barring relief under Code, § 4091, on ground of unavoidable casualty or misfortune. Id. Where defendant did not ask continuance because of absent witness, nor ask that plaintiff be put upon showing as to what she expected to prove by her witness, held she was not entitled to have the judgment vacated. Badham v. Lunsford [Ala.] 46 S 762.

30. When consideration of confessed judgment is made in part of usury, no matter in what form it may be disguised, the court will ordinarily open the judgment and afford relief. Webster v. Smith, 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 281. Held no clear evidence sufficient to estop claim to open confessed judgment on ground of usury. Id.

31. Cross v. Gould [Mo. App.] 110 SW 672.

32. Municipal court had no power to vacate final order setting aside verdict and judgment. Colwell v. New York, etc., R. Co., 57 Misc. 623, 108 NYS 540.

33. Manayunk Trust Co. v. Platt, 221 Pa. 248, 70 A 721; Ilyus v. Buch, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 43; Zajaczkowski v. Jawer, 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 324. The judge exercises the functions of a chancellor, is vested with a discretion to pass upon the weight of the evidence and the credibility of the witnesses, and to dispose of the question presented upon equitable principles. Ilyus v. Buch, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 43; Zajaczkowski v. Jawer, 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 324.

34. Successive steps in proceedings to vacate a judgment after term, under §§ 5354, 5359 and 5360, are: (1) an application filed in the original case, stating the ground of the vacation and the defense, upon which summons shall issue, and no further pleading is required; (2) hearing on the application; (3) if ground for vacation is found to exist and a valid defense is averred in the application, the judgment should be vacated but the lien of the original judgment saved by suspending the order of vacation pending trial on the merits; (4) a pleading setting up the defense, and a trial upon the issues then made as if no judgment had been rendered; (5) the rendering of a judgment which shall either restore the old judgment or extinguish it, as the facts found on the trial demand. First Nat. Bank v. Mullen, 7 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 313.

35. McAdams v. Latham [Okl.] 96 P 584.

36. The provisions of § 5354, Rev. St., with reference to the vacation or modification of judgments after term, are cumulative merely and not exclusive. First Nat. Bank v. Mullen, 7 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 313.

37. One who seeks relief on ground of and within the statutory period [38] after the right to relief is ascertained.[39] A mo-

fraud must act diligently and in good faith. Cross v. Gould [Mo. App.] 110 SW 672. Movant held not barred by laches. Smith v. First Nat. Bank [Ga. App.] 62 SE 826. Not abuse of discretion to refuse to vacate for fraud, after delay of one year. Dunn v. Lawrence [Minn.] 118 NW 1118. One who moves to vacate judgment for fraud at term after discovering fraud acts with diligence and is not negligent as matter of law. Cross v. Gould [Mo. App.] 110 SW 672. Where motion is made to vacate decree pro confesso, four months after rule day, without sufficient excuse for the delay, it is proper to refuse to open it. King v. Bell [Fla.] 45 S 488.

Held seasonable: Respondents held not guilty of inexcusable laches where service was by publication and respondents had no knowledge of judgment until 9 months after rendition. Fink v. Woods, 102 Minn. 374, 113 NW 909. It is only unexcused laches in making application after notice of pendency of suit or entry of default judgment which will justify court in denying application for leave to answer on the ground of laches, and laches with reference to subject-matter and which might defeat right on trial on merite held insufficient. Id. Where owner conveys before commencement of suit in which judgment is entered, the grantee is not in laches for failing to attack judgment until after filing of a bill by the judgment creditor to set aside deed as fraudulent. In re Mullineaux [N. J. Law] 69 A 868.

Held not seasonable: Delay of two years under belief of corporation without visible assets that it was immune from final process, until discovery by creditors of fraudulent conveyance held laches. Central Stock & Grain Exch. v. Pine Tree Lumber Co., 140 Ill. App. 471. Held insufficient diligence where one against whom judgment was rendered waited nearly four years before seeking to have judgment alleged to have been procured by fraud set aside, even though he alleged himself to be of such limited education that he could not himself ascertain the condition of his account sued upon and reduced to judgment. Johnson v. Building & Loan Ass'n, 133 Ill. App. 213. Motion in 1907 to open default taken in 1901 comes too late where in 1901, landlord, in whose favor default judgment was entered, was 77 years old and in reasonably good health and clear mind, while in 1907 his physical and mental powers were so impaired that he could not give testimony. Schultz v. Von Der Born, 57 Misc. 625, 108 NYS 756. Petition to open final judgment denied, where petitioner received knowledge of decree against him in sufficient time to have presented petition to open same before finality and could not excuse delay or failure to do so. Weaver v. Chicago Title & Trust Co., 131 Ill. App. 66. Fourteen years' delay in seeking to vacate a judgment held not excused by fact that plaintiff knew beneficiaries of the judgment creditor and expected the judgment would become her property at her decease. Delaney v. O'Conner, 234 Ill. 546, 85 NE 226. Sixteen years' delay in seeking to vacate decree of removal of trustee held such laches as to preclude relief. Id. Equity will not vacate a decree entered in vacation where complainants, with knowledge of their rights and that decree was void, delayed for five years and innocent persons had acquired rights to be affected. Jackson v. Becktold Print. & Book Mfg. Co. [Ark.] 112 SW 161. Where court of common pleas quashed petition for appointment of viewers in proceeding to condemn a street and petitioners did not appeal, held the order would not be set aside after eleven years because the supreme court had decided in another case that the law was different from that upon which dismissal was based. In re Pulaski Ave., 220 Pa. 276, 69 A 749.

38. California: Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, authorizing vacation of judgment as to party not served, judgment may be vacated if he shows meritorious defense and applies within one year. San Diego Realty Co. v. McGinn [Cal. App.] 94 P 374. Rule that motion to vacate judgment cannot be made after six months from its entry applies only where judgment which it is sought to vacate is one which was actually rendered. City & County of San Francisco v. Brown, 153 Cal. 644, 96 P 281.

Iowa: One is not entitled to seek to vacate judgment under Code § 4091, for unavoidable casualty or misfortune, after expiration of statutory period, unless he shows good ground for not having acted within the period. Hedrick v. Smith, 137 Iowa, 625, 115 NW 226. Code, § 3796, providing for new trial within two years where a judgment has been rendered on service by publication against a defendant who did not appear, does not apply to divorce suits. Tollefson v. Tollefson, 137 Iowa, 151, 114 NW 631.

Kentucky: Under Civ. Code Prac. §§ 414, 518, where action to set aside judgment is not brought for five years, it can be sustained only on ground that judgment is void. Highland Land & Bldg. Co. v. Audas, 33 Ky. L. R. 214, 110 SW 325.

Nebraska: A petition under Code Civ. Proc. § 602 to set aside judgment for fraud must be filed within two years. State v. Merchants' Bank [Neb.] 116 NW 667.

North Carolina: Revisal 1905, § 513, authorizing relief within one year for mistake or inadvertence, does not authorize relief after such time. Adams v. Joyner, 147 N. C. 77, 60 SE 725.

South Carolina: Cr. Code 1902, § 195, providing that court in its discretion may vacate within one year for mistake, surprise, etc., should be liberally construed in favor of justice. Jeter v. Knight [S. C.] 62 SE 259.

Texas: Bill to set aside judgment for fraud is barred in four years. McLean v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 355. Where decree of foreclosure recited appearance, and suit to restrain enforcement was not brought for four years, an action to annul it was barred by the four-year statute. Steves v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 877, 107 SW 141.

Statute tolled while plaintiff was insane. McLean v. Stith [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 355.

39. Motion to set aside default because amount was not ascertainable from complaint, as required by Civ. Code Prac. § 90, is not barred by limitation where relief is sought as soon as existence of judgment is ascertained. Brashears v. Brashears, 33 Ky. L. R. 233, 110 SW 303.

tion to strike a judgment cannot be entertained by the trial court after the case has been taken to an appellate court,[40] but a bill to enjoin the enforcement of a decree on the ground of fraud may be heard though an appeal is pending.[41] Lapse of time does not bar the vacation of a void decree.[42]

Parties.[See 10 C. L. 489]—One neither a party to a judgment nor bound thereby cannot maintain proceedings to vacate it,[43] unless his interests are affected thereby.[44] The mere fact that the judgment debtor is insolvent and his sureties have to pay the judgment [45] does not render him an unnecessary party in a proceeding to enjoin the enforcement of the judgment.

Modes and manner of procedure.[See 10 C. L. 489]—The usual remedies for opening and vacating judgments are by motion or petition in the cause [46] or by independent suit,[47] the former proceeding sometimes being held exclusive of the latter,[48] and at other times the latter being held exclusive.[49] A direct attack upon a judgment is an attempt to avoid or correct it in a manner provided by law, and the proper method

40. Trial court has no power to strike out judgment on motion made after it was enrolled, after appeal taken, execution staid, bond given, and transcript taken to appellate court. Code Pub. Loc. Laws, art. 4, § 171, motion being founded on surprise and fraud. United R. & Elec. Co. v. Corbin [Md.] 71 A. 131.

41. Bill to impeach and appeal seek different remedies. Dowagiac Mfg. Co. v. McSheery Mfg. Co. [C. C. A.] 155 F 524.

42. Hayes County v. Wileman [Neb.] 118 NW 478. Void judgment may be assailed at any time the party holding it seeks to derive advantage from it. Stubbs v. McGillis [Colo.] 96 P 1005. Defendants' delay to vacate void judgment will not preclude relief if plaintiff is not prejudiced. Id.

43. One not bound. Churchhill v. More [Cal. App.] 96 P 108. Where a decree is regularly and properly entered between the parties and no fraud is alleged, it cannot be set aside at the instance of one not a party but who claims some right in the property. Englehard-Hitchcock Co. v. Southern Banking & Trust Co., 162 F 690. Judgment rendered and enrolled, by mistake, against wrong party cannot be corrected except as between real parties and before rights of third parties have intervened. Allen West Commission Co. v. Millstead [Miss.] 46 S 256. One who has apparently, but not really, been made a party cannot directly assail judgment for fraud, since he has not been injured, and besides he has adequate remedy at law by motion in action to correct record. Hargrove v. Wilson [N. C.] 62 SE 520.

44. Grantee of judgment debtor has standing in court in which judgment is entered to move to set it aside as irregular and thereby remove apparent cloud it casts on the title. In re Mullineaux [N. J. Law] 69 A 968.

45. Steele v. Culver, 29 S. Ct. 9. Mere fact that judgment debtor is insolvent and sureties will have to pay judgment does not render him unnecessary party in proceeding to enjoin enforcement of judgment. Id.

46. See, also, ante, § 5B. Void judgment vacated on defendant's motion. Nicholson v. Midland Sav. & Loan Co. [Okl.] 96 P 747. Motion to impeach for fraud lies though facts do not appear on face of record. Smith v. First Nat. Bank [Ga. App.] 62 SE 826. Motion to set aside stipulation and judgment for fraud and collusion is addressed to inherent power of court to control its own proceedings and judgments, and not by Code Civ. Proc. § 1282 or § 1290. People v. Santa Clara Lumber Co., 113 NYS 70. Where return of process is defective, a default based thereon may be vacated on motion either under § 1 or § 5, c. 134, Code 1899. Lynch v. West, 63 W. Va. 571, 60 SE 606. Where judgment by default is based on void process, the statute relating to pleas in abatement will not be applied so as to deny defendant the remedy provided by such statutes. Id. Where defendant in municipal court has allowed a default to be entered against him, his remedy is by motion to open default. Fong Ming v. Fong Ling, 109 NYS 750. Prior to Laws 1907, p. 554, c. 304, § 253, amending Laws 1902, c. 580, § 253, municipal court had no power to vacate judgment for want of legal service on defendant, remedy being by appeal. Duryee v. Hunt, 56 Misc. 684, 107 NYS 734; Mann v. Meryash, 107 NYS 599. Under Revisal 1905, § 2513, remedy against fraudulent decree in partition is by petition in the cause. Hargrove v. Wilson [N. C.] 62 SE 520. Judgment may be modified by practice under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4953, providing for amendment of proceedings, though application is made under §§ 5153, 5162, providing for vacation or modification of judgments. O'Bryan v. American Inv. & Imp. Co. [Wash.] 97 P 241.

47. See ante, § 5B, subd. Courts of Equity. Code, §§ 4091-4094, requiring application for new trial to be filed in same cause and entitled in original action, have no application to suit to enjoin decree as being void for want of jurisdiction. Linderg v. Thomas, 137 Iowa, 48, 114 NW 562.

48. Under Revisal 1905, § 2513, a decree in partition can be assailed for fraud only by petition in the cause, and therefore an independent action to vacate will not lie. Hargrove v. Wilson [N. C.] 62 SE 520. Motion to set aside decree is proper and only remedy for irregularities in progress of cause. Lanier v. Heilig [N. C.] 63 SE 69.

49. Judgment procured by fraud can be vacated only by an independent proceeding. Simmons v. Defiance Box Co. [N. C.] 62 SE 435. Motion to open judgment as a default cannot be sustained where there has been no default, as where, upon denial of request for adjournment, defendant remained in court and took part in trial. Scheckter v. Reiter, 113 NYS 729.

is to bring forward the action and vacate the judgment.[50] An equitable proceeding to vacate is the proper remedy where time prescribed for prosecuting the proceeding has expired.[51] A bill of review to vacate a judgment for want of service where the judgment is not void cannot operate as an appeal.[52] On a bill to enjoin enforcement of a decree filed pending appeal, the court cannot set aside the decree for error.[53] Proceedings for relief from judgment should generally be instituted before the judge who rendered the judgment.[54] A judgment entered on an exemplification of the record does not become a judgment of the court upon the records at which such entry is made so as to give such court jurisdiction to inquire into the validity, merits or effect, of the judgment so entered.[55] Want of proper service may be cured by general appearance on motion to vacate,[56] and the right to relief may be waived.[57] A movant cannot, in a single proceeding, have three separate and distinct judgments vacated.[58] A judgment cannot be opened as a default where there has been no default.[59] A consent decree cannot be set aside by rehearing, appeal or bill of review unless through clerical error something not consented to was inserted.[60] One who seeks to vacate a judgment void as to himself is not required to first move for new trial or appeal.[61] One who seeks to open a judgment may not rely on its invalidity as to a codefendant for whose benefit it is not sought to be set aside.[62]

50. Bickford v. Bickford, 74 N. H. 448, 69 A 579. A motion to correct record to speak truth and show no service of process or appearance is direct proceeding and an appropriate remedy. Simmons v. Defiance Box Co. [N. C.] 62 SE 435. In action on judgment defense that judgment debtor was not in fact before the court is a direct attack. Ballou v. Skidmore [Ky.] 113 SW 441.

51. Where default judgment was rendered by the municipal court after it had lost jurisdiction, and defendant had no knowledge thereof until time to move to vacate had expired, an equitable action to vacate is proper. New York & N. J. Tel. Co. v. Rosenthal, 112 NYS 612.

52. Bill in nature of bill of review to vacate a judgment for want of service of process, where judgment was not void because of such defect, cannot operate as appeal, and where no facts are pleaded showing the judgment to be void, or that petitioners have a defense, it will not be set aside. Mueller v. Heidemeyer [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 447.

53. On a bill by defendant to enjoin enforcement of a decree on the ground of fraud, filed pending appeal from the decree, the court has no jurisdiction to set aside the decree for error. McSherry Mfg. Co. v. Dowagiag Mfg. Co. [C. C. A.] 160 F 948.

54. Superior court cannot review decrees of circuit court, and vice versa. May v. May, 134 Ill. App. 638. Judgment of county court held not subject to attack by injunction issued by district court. Wheeler v. Powell [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 689. An application to vacate an order setting aside a judgment and dismissing a complaint should be made to the judge who made it. Newcomb v. Burbank, 159 F 569. Rev. St. 1895, art. 2996, providing that writs of injunction to stay execution on judgment shall be tried in court where judgment was rendered, applies to county court. Wheeler v. Powell [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 689. Where calendar rules required motions to postpone trials to be heard by trial judges on affidavits, one who intentionally suffers a default after a judge had denied postponement on affidavits cannot apply to another judge to open the default, as such course would be appealing from one judge to another. Warth v. Moore Blind Stitcher and Overseamer Co., 109 NYS 116. Where a probate decree allowing a will was reversed by the supreme judicial court on a jury trial and the will disallowed on ground of undue influence and it was later found that a juror was bribed, a writ of review to set aside the decree should be addressed to the probate and not to the supreme court. Crocker v. Crocker, 198 Mass. 401, 84 NE 476. The erroneous description of land in the judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction cannot be corrected by the court of another jurisdiction. Smith's Heirs v. Railroad Lands Co., 120 La. 564, 45 S 441. Especially is this so after 20 years and where the judgment was prepared at the instance of those complaining. Id.

55. Lehigh & N. E. R. Co. v. Hanhauser [Pa.] 70 A 1089.

56. A motion to vacate a judgment on ground of want of service of process and that the complaint did not state a cause of action is a general appearance and cures want of service. Barnett v. Holyoke Mut. Fire Ins. Co. [Kan.] 97 P 962.

57. One who appears after default and moves to correct the judgment nunc pro tunc after learning of fraud practiced upon him waives the right to vacate for such fraud. Cross v. Gould [Mo. App.] 110 SW 672. Where judgment was procured by fraud, fact that defendant moved to correct it nunc pro tunc when he had no notice of fraud held not to estop him from having it vacated on ground that he had consented to it. Id.

60. Prince's Adm'r v. McLemore, 108 Va. 269, 61 SE 802.

61. One made party to judgment, but who was not served with process. Owens v. Cage [Tex.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 313, 106 SW 880.

62. In moving to open a judgment, want

The availability of the remedies by appellate review is elsewhere treated.[63]

Pleadings and practice. See 10 C. L. 490—A petition in equity to vacate a judgment should show the grounds upon which such relief is asked [64] definitely and with certainty,[65] and a petition to enjoin a judgment on the ground of its invalidity should affirmatively show it to be void.[66] The facts constituting the complainant's defense to the judgment must be stated.[67] A motion for relief against a confessed judgment should be only to open the judgment and for leave to plead.[68] Motions to open or vacate judgments must usually be accompanied by affidavits [69] showing the grounds relied on [70] and a meritorious defense,[71] but in some jurisdictions an affidavit of merits may be dispensed with in the discretion of the trial court on motion to open a default,[72] and the merits of the defense are not pertinent in the face of want of diligence.[73] Affidavits must definitely designate the judgment or part of jurisdiction of a codefendant cannot be relied upon where judgment is not sought to be opened for his benefit. Carney v. Twitchell [S. D.] 118 NW 1030.

63. See Appeal and Review, 11 C. L. 113; Certiorari, 11 C. L. 591.

64. Complaint charging misrepresentations of judgment plaintiff's attorney need not allege precise language used by him. Leithuanian Brotherhelp Soc. v. Tunila, 80 Conn. 642, 70 A 25. One who seeks equitable relief from a judgment, where he has lost his remedy at law because of statements of the trial judge, should allege that he relied on such statement. Ludwig v. Walker, 111 NYS 1102.

65. In a suit to vacate a judgment because entered on a legal holiday, complaint held not to sufficiently allege that it was entered on such date as against the presumption that it was entered in proper manner on a subsequent date. Stewart v. State Board of Medical Exm'rs, 48 Wash. 655, 94 P 472.

66. Zimmerman v. Trude [Neb.] 114 NW 641.

67. Mere statement that complainant has good defense is insufficient, as is also allegation that declaration on which judgment was rendered stated no cause of action. Reed v. New York Nat. Exch. Bank, 131 Ill. App. 434.

68. Should not be to vacate judgment. Murphy v. Schoch, 135 Ill. App. 550. Motion to vacate and set aside judgment on grounds that notes arose out of transaction of business in state by foreign corporation not authorized to transact such business under statute held properly denied. De Witt v. Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., 132 Ill. App. 356.

69. Motion to open default properly denied where affidavits upon which it is based are radically defective. Liebling v. Borg, 113 NYS 549.

70. Affidavit to vacate a default must show mistake, inadvertence or excusable neglect and a meritorious defense. Rev. St. 1887, § 4229. Beck v. Lavin [Idaho] 97 P 1028. Affidavit in proceedings to open judgment by confession, stating that notes had been given foreign corporation which had failed to comply with statute, held insufficient for failure to state that notes were not given in course of transactions with drummers or traveling salesmen excepted by the statute. De Witt v. Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., 132 Ill. App. 356. Affidavit held insufficient to authorize interference with judgment by confession on notes given foreign corporation alleged to have had no authority to transact business, where it fails to state facts forming consideration of notes. Id. Language which might have been sufficient in plea held insufficient for affidavit. Id.

71. Essential to motion to set aside judgment that affidavits show meritorious defense. Farrior v. Mickle, 133 Ill. App. 444. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 774, one must support his application to open a default by affidavit of merit or tender a copy of his proposed answer. Schaeffer v. Gold Cord Min. Co., 36 Mont. 410, 93 P 344. A verified answer denying every material allegation of the complaint is a sufficient affidavit of merits. Lunnun v. Morris [Cal. App.] 95 P 907. Counter affidavit tendered by a defendant in action of debt, with his plea, for purpose of setting aside an office judgment, is sufficient if it substantially complies with the statute. Ceranto v. Trimboli, 63 W. Va. 340, 60 SE 138. Use of "terms" instead of statutory word "demand" does not vitiate it, the words being equivalent. Id. Where such counter affidavit first denies indebtedness in the specific sum named in plaintiff's affidavit and then in any sum whatever, it does not impliedly admit any indebtedness. Id. Affidavit which sets forth no form of answer is insufficient. Steinman v. Blumenfeld, 113 NYS 550. Affidavit of merits on motion to set aside a default for excusable neglect merely stating that affiant has stated the facts constituting her defense to her counsel, but which does not state that she had stated all the facts. Cooper-Power v. Hanlon [Cal. App.] 95 P 678. Where the affidavit required by Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 1083, is in the form of a petition verified by the attorney of a nonresident defendant who deposes that he believes the facts stated in the petition are true, it is insufficient, especially where it fails to show that the attorney had personal knowledge that defendant did not have notice of the pendency of the action in time to appear. Cass v. Nitsch [Neb.] 115 NW 753.

72. Motion to open default entered on published service. Fink v. Woods, 102 Minn. 374, 113 NW 909. Where answer on its face states meritorious and legal defense, issue cannot be tried on affidavits on a motion to set aside judgment, and hence laches in looking after subject-matter, as by failing to pay taxes on land for 20 years, cannot be considered. Id.

73. Farrior v. Mickle, 133 Ill. App. 444.

thereof complained of,[74] and must state facts and not conclusions.[75] An affidavit chiefly upon information and belief is insufficient.[76] Where a motion is denied because of insufficiency of affidavit, leave to renew the motion should be granted.[77] Where rights of third parties are concerned, one moving to vacate a decree for fraud must make unconditional tender of benefits received under such decree.[78] The necessity of notice depends upon the circumstances,[79] but merely formal corrections may usually be made without notice.[80] On motion to vacate, the court should find the facts.[81]

Burden of proof and evidence. See 10 C. L. 492—On direct attack, mere findings of jurisdictional facts are not conclusive of jurisdiction to render a default judgment [82] but a judgment of a court of general jurisdiction imputes verity,[83] and all reasonable intendments will be indulged in favor of the regularity of the proceedings of such courts,[84] and such proceedings cannot be attacked by evidence outside the rec-

74. Affivadit relating to only one of two notes confessed by judgment is insufficient where it does not describe or state to which note it refers. DeWitt v. Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., 132 Ill. App. 356.

75. Affidavits filed in support of motion to set aside judgment by default should set up facts sufficient to constitute meritorious defense to action. Vogelsang v. Fredkyn, 133 Ill. App. 356. Whether acts of counsel amount to a mistake is to be determined by judge from facts, and not from conclusion of counsel. Lunnun v. Morris [Cal. App.] 95 P 907. Affidavit merely stating that there was good defense, without stating facts, held insufficient. Schaeffer v. Gold Cord Min. Co., 36 Mont. 410, 93 P 344. Words "business transacted, had and conducted," held insufficient in affidavit to set aside judgment by confession in favor of foreign corporation alleged to have been without authority to transact business, since maker of affidavit may have meant something quite different from meaning of statute, and affidavit should have stated transactions merged in notes so that court could see whether they amounted to doing business in state under statute. De Witt v. Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., 132 Ill. App. 356.

76. De Witt v. Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., 132 Ill. App. 356.

77. Where motion to open default was denied because of defect in supporting affidavit, defendant should be permitted to renew the motion where it does not clearly appear that he has no defense or that he acted in bad faith. Liebling v. Borg, 113 NYS 549.

78. Crocker v. Crocker, 198 Mass. 401, 84 NE 476.

79. Doubtful whether notice is required where correction is made upon what appears on the record or rests in the recollection of the court. Hurt v. Hurt [Ala.] 47 S 260. Where, on dismissing case appealed from justice court, the circuit court wrote on the docket "Dis. by deft., App'l," it was insufficient to show that former order of dismissal was erroneous, and it was error to amend nunc pro tunc without notice to adverse party. Pulitzer Pub. Co. v. Allen [Mo. App.] 113 SW 1159.

80. Where by oversight of clerk judgment on firm indebtedness was rendered against the firm as well as against the members, but did not recite that it was rendered against the individuals. Meirkord v. Helming [Iowa] 116 NW 785.

81. On motion to vacate for excusable mistake or neglect, the judges should find the facts. Smith v. Holmes Bros. [N. C.] 61 SE 631. Where it is sought to vacate a judgment for want of service of process, the court must find the fact and correct the record and where there was no service or appearance the judgment is void. Simmons v. Defiance Box Co. [N. C.] 62 SE 435. Consent by counsel to the opening up of a judgment is a waiver of a formal finding by the court that the defense about to be offered is a valid one within the meaning of §§ 5359 and 5360. First Nat. Bank v. Mullen, 7 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 313.

82. Deputy v. Dollarhide [Ind. App]. 86 NE 344.

83. Strobel v. Clark, 128 Mo. App. 48, 106 SW 585. Record of county court showing that sheriff has not filed proper bonds cannot be contradicted. Renshaw v. Cook, 33 Ky. L. R. 860, 895, 111 SW 377.

84. Berry v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo.] 114 SW 27. When the power of a court to expunge its judgment is invoked on the ground of its nullity, every presumption in favor of the judgment which does not contradict the record must be indulged. Loeser v. Savings Deposit Bank & Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 163 F 212. Where a court had jurisdiction to determine all conflicting questions of title in a partition suit, it is presumed that it did so and that a decree not appealed from finally adjudicated the interests of the parties in the land. Gillespie v. Pocahontas Coal & Coke Co., 162 F 742. Under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 1547, 3922, providing that costs shall follow the judgment, it is presumed that only such judgment was rendered as could be rendered, and where it does not show that costs had been adjudged, it could be corrected nunc pro tunc to show such fact. Saunders v. Scott [Mo. App.] 111 SW 874. Where a decree is different from the report of the referee who tried the proceeding, it is presumed that the referee's report was modified by the court before entry. Bates v. Hall [Colo.] 98 P 3. Where court has power to make an order, its authority to act in the premises will be presumed. Jerrue v. Los Angeles County Super. Ct. [Cal. App.] 95 P 906. It is presumed that in rendering a judgment a county court acted within its authority. Nolan v. Hughes [Or.] 93 P 362.

ord [85] except in a court of equity; [86] but such presumption does not apply to courts of limited jurisdiction.[87] One who seeks relief on the ground of fraud must prove it by clear and convincing proof,[88] and one who seeks relief on statutory grounds must establish such grounds.[89] One who asserts a judgment to be void must prove it,[90] and so also as to irregularities.[91] One who seeks relief from false entry of a judgment must show himself free from negligence in respect to the entry.[92] On a motion to open a judgment, the facts alleged to show the existence of a defense are taken as true,[93] and the evidence goes solely to the excuse for not appearing or to show due diligence.[94] The motion, therefore, will be heard solely on the movant's affidavits or pleadings,[95] and counter affidavits will not be considered [96] except as bearing upon

Where notice of appeal was given, but it does not appear that the appeal was perfected, such fact cannot be presumed so as to deprive the judgment of finality. Slaughter v. Cooper [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 897. Service of writ is presumed regular as to a justice's judgment recorded in the circuit court. Alfred v. Batson [Miss.] 45 S 465. Where a decree in chancery is entered at a term subsequent to the return term and recites due service of process, but the return on the summons is insufficient, it will be presumed that a second summons was issued but the recitals of the decree cannot prevail if it was entered at the return term of the summons. Manternach v. Studt, 230 Ill. 356, 82 NE 829. Where the record does not show service of process, proper service is presumed. Clark v. Neves, 76 S. C. 484, 57 SE 614.

85. A judgment by a court having jurisdiction of the parties and subject-matter imports absolute verity and cannot be attacked by evidence outside the record. Strobel v. Clark, 128 Mo. App. 48, 106 SW 585. Held incompetent to resort to evidence outside the record to prove that a probate court had exceeded its jurisdiction. Id. Clerical misprision must be shown from the record, and can be corrected only by the record. Brashears v. Brashears, 33 Ky. L. R. 233, 110 SW 303.

86. While the record of a court of general jurisdiction imputes absolute verity and can be impeached only by matter of record so far as amendment at law is concerned, cogent and convincing parol evidence is admissible in equity in cases of fraud and mistake. Engler v. Knoblaugh [Mo. App.] 110 SW 16. That a decree was erroneously entered in vacation may be established by proof aliunde. Jackson v. Becktold Print. & Book Mfg. Co. [Ark.] 112 SW 161.

87. One who claims under a judgment of a justice of the peace must show affirmatively that the justice had jurisdiction. Ferguson v. Basin Consol. Mines, 152 Cal. 712, 93 P 867. Must show that summons was issued and served in manner prescribed by law. Id.

88. In suit to vacate a judgment for fraud, affidavit and facts held not insufficient as a matter of law, but to present a question for the court. Cross v. Gould [Mo. App.] 110 SW 672.

89. One who seeks to vacate a default under Code Civ. Proc. § 151 must satisfy the court that failure to appear was the result of mistake, surprise or excusable neglect. Burton v. Cooley [S. D.] 118 NW 1028. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1908, § 410, providing for default judgment, and § 405, providing for vacation of a judgment for mistake, surprise, etc., held, where motion set up a meritorious defense, but was controverted by five affidavits, there was no error in denying the motion. Rooker v. Bruce [Ind.] 85 NE 351.

90. Evidence insufficient to justify setting aside a default on the ground that summons had not been served. Glauber v. Wallace, 104 Minn. 128, 116 NW 107. Showing by defendant in replevin that goods in controversy had been surrendered pursuant to an order of federal court is a showing of a meritorious defense sufficient to authorize vacation of judgment for want of jurisdiction. Thomson v. Patek, 235 Ill. 341, 85 NE 603. In a suit to enjoin enforcement of a judgment on the ground that acceptance of service in the action was forged and that defendant did not appear, defendant had the burden to prove such fact by a preponderance of evidence. Steves v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 877, 107 SW 141. Where judgment recited appearance in person and by attorneys, such recital, if true, rendered immaterial the fact that acceptance of service was forged. Id.

91. Power of court of common pleas to vacate its judgment after term on motion is controlled by Rev. St. § 5354, and where complaint is of irregularity in obtaining judgment, burden is on movant to show that alleged irregularity occurred at or before taking judgment. Interstate Life Assur. Co. v. Raper, 78 Ohio St. 113, 84 NE 754.

92. Engler v. Knoblaugh [Mo. App.] 110 SW 16.

93. Ziegler v. Funkhouser [Ind. App.] 85 NE 984. On motion to strike out a default, matters purely of defense may not be determined. Girard Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Bankard, 107 Md. 538, 69 A 415. Whether matter in controversy had been settled before judgment is an issue of fact not determinable on motion to open a default. Corson v. Smith [S. D.] 118 NW 705. It is sufficient to determine the validity of a defense as a matter of law from the statement pleaded, and the existence of an actual defense to the judgment sought to be vacated need not be established before the order of vacation is granted. First Nat. Bank v. Mullen, 7 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 313.

94. Ziegler v. Funkhouser [Ind. App.] 85 NE 984.

95. The motion, so far as it relates to the merits of the alleged cause of action or defense, should be heard on the affidavits in behalf of the motion only, but such affidavits should be closely scrutinized and intend-

the question of excuse or diligence;[97] nor can grounds for a new trial be considered.[98] As bearing upon the question of diligence, the court may consider the fact that the judgment has been acted upon in good faith by third parties.[99] The facts alleged in a petition for leave to file a bill of review on account of newly discovered evidence are taken as true,[1] but counter affidavits are admissible as bearing upon the nature, relevancy and materiality of such evidence.[2] Upon petition to open judgment, the court is not limited to a consideration of what appears in the petition only, but may consider any proceedings or evidence in the case bearing upon the propriety of granting the relief sought.[3] In a statutory action for the vacation of a judgment, the plaintiff will not be allowed to show as ground for vacating the judgment that his homestead may be sold at forced sale.[4] The proper manner of addressing the discretion of the court on motion to open a default is to accompany the motion with a transcript of the court whose action is relied upon as a ground for setting motion aside and as evidence of acts alleged.[5] In proceedings to correct a clerical misprision in a final judgment after term, it is competent for the court to admit in evidence the original citation and the abbreviations indorsed thereon, and to permit the clerk who made them to testify as to which they stood for.[6]

Questions of law and fact. See 8 C. L. 588—No court or judge has jurisdiction to open a regular judgment without some evidence of a valid defense.[7] On conflicting evidence the question may be one for the jury.[8] ments of the affidavits construed most strongly against the applicant. Murphy v. Schoch, 135 Ill. App. 550.

96. Farrior v. Mickle, 133 Ill. App. 444; Beck v. Lavin [Idaho] 97 P 1028. Hearing counter affidavits on merits would encroach on right to jury trial. Finkelstein v. Schilling, 135 Ill. App. 543; Murphy v. Schoch, 135 Ill. App. 550. While counter affidavits may not be entertained as to the merits, it is not error to consider affidavits controverting a prima facie defense on the merits under a general motion to open a default and vacate a judgment, where no sufficient cause is shown for opening the judgment. Farrior v. Mickle, 133 Ill. App. 444.

97. Beck v. Lavin [Idaho] 97 P 1028. Admissible on question of diligence. Farrior v. Mickle, 133 Ill. App. 444. Affidavits held to show movant was not diligent, where shown that he knew of judgment soon after its rendition but failed to act for two months. Finkelstein v. Schilling, 135 Ill. App. 543.

98. On motion to set aside judgment not filed within three days after verdict, as prescribed by Code, § 3756, for applications for new trial, grounds for new trial, § 3755, cannot be considered. Andres & Co. v. Schlueter [Iowa] 118 NW 429.

99. Where motion is made to set aside judgment in attachment, court may consider fact that garnishee served in attachment has paid judgment rendered against him. Farrior v. Mickle, 133 Ill. App. 444.

1. Truth of such statements is not to be decided on affidavits, but upon new hearing if leave to file bill of review be granted. Austin State Bank v. Morrison, 133 Ill. App. 229. Affidavit held to show, if true, that at time of transfer of certain warrants now claimed by receiver as property of firm, between partners, transferror was indebted to transferee in sum in excess of value of warrants, and to be sufficient affidavit of new evidence likely to change result on merits where judgment awarding title to warrants to receiver had been entered. Id.

2. Counter affidavits upon the hearing of a motion and petition for leave to file a bill of review, upon the ground of newly discovered evidence, are admissible to show whether the evidence claimed to be new was in fact new, or to state circumstances or explain the nature of the evidence claimed to be new, to enable the court to better judge of its relevancy and materiality. Austin State Bank v. Morrison, 133 Ill. App. 339.

3. Weaver v. Chicago Title & Trust Co., 131 Ill. App. 66.

4. Schubert v. State Banking & Trust Co., 6 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 544.

5. Heilbrun v. Jennings [Mo. App.] 111 SW 857.

6. Where clerk omitted words "without prejudice" from order of dismissal. Murphy v. McMahon, 131 Ill. App. 384.

7. Dillen v. Dillen, 221 Pa. 435, 70 A 806. Judgment on note executed by married woman will not be opened on sole testimony of husband that he had paid payee of note more than amount thereof where it was alleged that payments so made by him were made upon lease and not on note. Boggs v. Walton, 35 Pa. Super. Ct. 353.

8. On conflicting evidence as to whether a party defendant was served or appeared in an action, it was held a question for the jury whether the judgment was absolutely void. Owens v. Cage [Tex.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 313, 106 SW 880. On motion to vacate for want of proper service, affidavit of person served that he was not an officer or agent of defendant corporation is not conclusive, whether he was or not depends on character of duties performed by him. Cumberland Co. v. Lewis, 32 Ky. L. R. 1300, 108 SW 347.

Judgment or order of vacation and extent and effect thereof. See 10 C. L. 493—The judgment or order of vacation should protect the interests of both parties.[9] Reasonable terms[10] and conditions prescribed by statute may be imposed,[11] but conditions not authorized cannot be imposed.[12] Compliance with conditions imposed may be required.[13] The usual condition of an injunction bond is to pay the judgment and costs.[14] Some statutes do not permit the setting aside of the judgment but only authorize it to be opened and the cause set down for hearing.[15] Where a judgment by confession is opened in order to admit a defense, and the finding is against the defendant, a new judgment should not be entered.[16] Vacation for want of service will

9. Schneider v. Lobingier [Neb.] 117 NW 473. Where a judgment is vacated for want of service of process, but defendant by appearing submitted himself to the jurisdiction, he should be permitted to answer or demur. Stubbs v. McGillis [Colo.] 96 P 1005. Where plaintiff paid money on rendition of judgment in prior litigation between the parties under belief that case was settled and no appeal would be taken, but defendant appealed and obtained a more favorable judgment, plaintiff's suit to set aside the judgment should not be dismissed on finding that there was no compromise, without giving him judgment for money mistakenly paid. Dotson v. Carter [Ky.] 112 SW 1116. Code Civ. Proc. § 1292, providing that where judgment is set aside on motion the court may enforce restitution, does not apply to a motion to set aside a default and vacate a judgment which has been satisfied. Fluegelman v. Armstrong, 110 NYS 967.

10. Where interlocutory judgment in partition was obtained by false representations of plaintiff's attorney, order granting motion without costs and permitting defendant other privileges held not unduly lenient to defendant. Beer v. Orthaus, 113 NYS 533. Where a complaint was dismissed for failure of plaintiff to appear, and opening of default was conditioned on payment of $10 costs which he failed to pay, but by error of the clerk the cause was placed on the calendar and default entered against defendant, he was entitled to have such default vacated, and original judgment against plaintiff reinstated. Herman v. Hyman, 112 NYS 1077. Where defendant in divorce action defaulted, but after application was made to punish him for contempt for failure to obey default judgment, he moved to vacate and set aside judgment, proper practice is to refuse to entertain application until defendant has complied with judgment and relieved himself from contempt, but, having entertained the application without requiring such condition, applicant should not be permitted to try issues after grant of application until such condition is complied with. Krauer v. Krauer, 121 App. Div. 750, 106 NYS 490.

11. Under Kirby's Dig. § 6259, defendants constructively summoned, but who have not appeared, may vacate a decree and defend on giving bond for costs. Pearson v. Vance, 85 Ark. 272, 107 SW 986. Under Municipal Court Act, § 256 (Laws 1902, p. 1561, cl. 580), court may require deposit of amount of judgment or undertaking for such amount as condition for opening default, but may not require deposit of greater sum, and order requiring such greater sum will be modified on appeal. Eppoletto v. Zuhr, 111 NYS 565. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 783, 784, providing that court may, in its discretion, open judgment for mistake or excusable neglect, etc., within one year after notice, court may set aside default judgment on terms which will work justice. Quilhot v. Hamer, 158 F 188. Whether order on motion to show cause for opening default granted on condition of deposit provided for by Municipal Court Act (Laws 1902, p. 1563, c. 580), § 256, be appealable or not, condition requiring deposit should not be removed. Kramer v. Kerowitz, 111 NYS 697.

12. Under Municipal Court Act, Laws 1902, pp. 1562, 1563, 1585, 1589, c. 580, §§ 253, 256, 332, a justice held to have illegally taxed costs as a condition to opening a default. Thompson v. Hudson Bldg., 110 NYS 1077.

13. Where a default is set aside and defendants, with the consent of plaintiff, are permitted to file a certain answer, they cannot complain of denial of leave to file a different answer, though had they filed the answer permitted they might have been given leave to amend. Younger v. Moore [Cal. App.] 96 P 1093.

14. See Injunction, 12 C. L. 152. Condition should be to pay judgment entered and costs. R. S. c. 69, § 8. Central Stock & Grain Exch. v. Pine Tree Lumber Co., 140 Ill. App. 471. Chancellor has no discretion as to the injunction bond in case of an injunction against the enforcement of judgment, and must require, under statute, bond in double amount of judgment with sufficient surety conditioned for payment of all moneys and costs due plaintiff in judgment, and such damages as may be awarded against complainant in case injunction is dissolved. Reed v. New York Nat. Exch. Bank, 131 Ill. App. 434.

15. Laws 1902, p. 1562, c. 580, § 253, construed with prior legislation. Laws 1882, p. 351, c. 410; Laws 1862, p. 970, c. 484; Laws 1894, p. 1871; Laws 1896, p. 978, c. 748, held to confer no power on the municipal court to set aside a default absolutely but only to open it and set is down for pleading. Friedberger v. Stulpnagel, 112 NYS 89. Under Laws 1902, p. 1562, c. 580, authorizing the court to set aside a default and set the cause down for pleading, when the motion asks for equitable relief, default may be opened and the case set down for pleading if the facts warrant it. Raymond v. Keiley, 111 NYS 244; Milman v. Levine, 111 NYS 245.

16. Order should be that judgment already entered should stand. Northeastern Coal Co. v. Tyrrell, 133 Ill. App. 472. Recital in opening order that the judgment by confession shall "stand as security," etc., did not vacate judgment but operated merely to stay execution thereof. Id. Where a peremptory not abate the action where defendant has appeared generally.[17] If an award of attorney's fees is unauthorized by the pleadings, proceedings to amend or vacate such award might lie,[18] but where the judgment was otherwise correct and it is attacked as a whole, the motion is properly overruled.[19] An order denying a motion to vacate a judgment is a bar to any subsequent proceeding seeking the same relief.[20] The order should show that it is made at the same time if such fact is essential.[21] Vacation as to some of the parties vacates as to all, if their interests are inseparable.[22] On vacation of a judgment it ceases to exist.[23] Where a judgment decreeing the sale of land is vacated, the sale should also be vacated.[24] Where a judgment by confession is opened to allow the interposition of a defense, the only real effect of the words "to stand as security" is to stay execution until there is a trial upon the pleas that might be filed.[25] On direct attack upon a nunc pro tunc order amending a judgment, the sufficiency of the evidence to show that the original entry was erroneous may be looked to,[26] but on collateral attack a nunc pro tunc order amending a judgment will be sustained unless it is apparent that the court was without power to make it.[27]

Appeal and review.[See 10 C. L. 494]—The appealability of orders on motions to open or vacate judgments depends largely upon the peculiar practice in the various states.[28] When appealable it is very generally held that the order will not be disturbed in the absence of an abuse of discretion.[29] Questions sought to be reviewed must, as in other cases, be properly saved.[30] Where a motion to modify is denied solely on the instruction to find against the judgment debtor is given after a judgment by confession is opened, it is improper to include in the instruction to find for judgment creditor the words "and assess plaintiff's damages in sum of $862.83," but it should have ended with direction to find for plaintiff, and the judgment of court, after reciting verdict should have been as follows: "Therefore it is considered by court that judgment entered herein (giving date of judgment of confession so set aside, and amount thereof) stand in full force and effect as of the time of its rendition and that the plaintiff have execution thereon." Id.

19. Shahan v. Myers, 130 Ga. 724, 61 SE 702. Decision denying vacation of judgment as a whole is not to be construed as precluding appropriate proceedings to vacate it as to the unauthorized portion. Id.

20. Though not conclusive on the merits, it is conclusive on the ground upon which it was made. Pierce County v. Alexander [Wash.] 96 P 164.

21. Order vacating judgment cannot be sustained as made at the same term where record fails to show that from time of entry to time of order any term was held. Carney v. Twitchell [S. D.] 118 NW 1030.

22. It is proper to entirely vacate a judgment and sale of land for taxes where infants who owned an interest were not made parties, and the land was indivisible, though other owners were adults and properly joined. District of Clifton v. Pfirman, 33 Ky. L. R. 529, 110 SW 406.

23. A judgment vacating a judgment on a recognizance bond put the proceedings on the recognizance in the same situation as when judgment was rendered, and proceeding on the recognizance should have proceeded as if no judgment had been rendered. State v. Wallace, 209 Mo. 358, 108 SW 542.

24. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 518, providing that judgment against infant may be vacated after time, where judgment decreeing sale of land for taxes is vacated, the sale should also be vacated. District of Clifton v. Pfirman, 33 Ky. L. R. 529, 110 SW 406.

29. Ilyus v. Buch, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 43. Judgment of lower court affirmed where appellant's pleadings were evasive and manifestly withheld true facts of transaction complained of. Zajaczkowski v. Jawer, 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 324. Where, while testimony of parties was conflicting, that of appellee was corroborated by dates and other circumstances, action of lower court in refusing to open judgment will not be reversed. Geiser v. Kleckner, 35 Pa. Super. Ct. 517. Where defendant and her sister who testified that signature on bond upon which judgment was obtained was forged, did not have paper before them at time and had not seen it for over ten years and their attorney had taken it from prothonotary's office years before and had not returned it, and there was no evidence of any search, and hence it could not be treated as lost document, and witnesses necessary to fair trial for judgment debtor should judgment be opened had died, judge was guilty of no abuse of discretion in refusing to open judgment. Ilyus v. Buch, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 43.

30. After consent by counsel for payee to vacation of judgment on promissory notes, a request to charge jury not to undertake to determine validity of notes comes too late ground that it is too late, and it appears on appeal that the judgment sought to be modified is manifestly wrong, such judgment will be reversed.[31]

§ 6. Construction, operation and effect of judgment. See 10 C. L. 495—A judgment should be construed in connection with the complaint,[32] the record,[33] and opinion,[34] and a judgment on rehearing should be construed in connection with the original judgment.[35] A fair and reasonable construction is to be placed upon the language used,[36] and it should be so construed as to give effect to every part and to harmonize different parts.[37] Surplusage may be disregarded.[38] A recital in the jugment of due service prevails over defects in the record,[39] but a return showing want of service cannot be aided by the judgment.[40] The recovery of a joint judgment against several wrongdoers does not merge the several liability of each.[41] The identity of the issue when all the evidence has been heard, and right to question action of the court in vacating judgment is lost by laches. First Nat. Bank v. Mullen, 7 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 313.

If entry of judgment is so obscure or ambiguous as not to express final determination of court with sufficient accuracy, the pleadings and record may be referred to. Reaves v. Turner [Okl.] 94 P 543. Where judgment is ambiguous and its affect is questioned, pleadings or other proceedings may be looked to to ascertain its true meaning. Hanley v. Mason [Ind. App.] 85 NE 381. Recital in minutes of court that decree was by consent but minutes of clerk and judgment showed otherwise, held to warrant finding that decree was made after trial and not by consent. Charles v. White [Mo.] 112 SW 545. In order to find infant litigants bound by consent of their guardian ad litem to decree, the record should be entirely free from doubt as to the giving of consent. Id.

34. Where decree is in general terms, opinion of court may be looked to in order to determine the questions presented and decided. D'Arcy v. Staples & Hanford Co. [C. C. A.] 161 F 733. Opinion of court may be looked to in order to determine point decided on plea of former adjudication. Moore v. Chattanooga Elec. R. Co. [Tenn.] 109 SW 497.

35. Original decree finding generally for plaintiff upon all issues involved in case, which was vacated on rehearing solely on ground of defect of parties plaintiff, construed together with second decree, held equivalent to finding for plaintiff on facts. Griffith v. Stewart, 31 App. D. C. 29.

Thames v. Rouse [S. C.] 62 SE 254. Statutory decree establishing priorities to use of water for irrigation confers no new rights but is merely evidence of pre-existing ones. Alamosa Creek Canal Co. v. Nelson, 42 Colo. 140, 93 P 1112. Decree partitioning land and apportioning water rights did not change character of water rights of the respective owners. The right apportioned each was a riparian right. Verdugo Canon Water Co. v. Verdugo, 152 Cal. 655, 93 P 1021. Under a decree which partitions riparian land and apportions water rights, but does not specifically dispose of underground water essential to the preservation of the stream, such underground waters cannot be diverted but the surplus belongs to riparian owners, except that the decree cuts off from this right all land except those tracts which extend to some portion of the underground flow. One cannot collaterally assail a judgment on the ground of insufficiency of summons where such affidavit was held sufficient in the action in which judgment was rendered. Emery v. Kipp [Cal.] 97 P 17.

40. See Process, 10 C. L. 1262. The return of an officer serving a summons controls where it is inconsistent with recitals in the judgment; hence, where such return shows want of service, it cannot be aided by a recital in the judgment. Stubbs v. McGillis [Colo.] 96 P 1005.

41. Any or all of such wrongdoers may be pursued for satisfaction of the judgment. Tandrup v. Sampsell, 234 Ill. 526, 85 NE 331.

between several parties has no necessary bearing on the question whether a judgment is joint or several.[42] A judgment in rem adjudicates the status of particular subject-matter[43] and does not personally bind the judgment debtor.[44] A judgment at law is unit and must stand or fall as such.[45] So also one who relies upon an indivisible decree must accept it as a whole.[46] The conclusiveness of judgments between parties and privies is treated in another topic,[47] as is also their admissibility and effect as evidence.[48] Conclusiveness on collateral attack,[49] and effect as lien or notice,[50] are treated in other sections of this topic.

§ 7. Collateral attack. What is collateral. See 10 C. L. 495—A collateral attack is an attempt to impeach a judgment in a proceeding not instituted for the express purpose of annuling, correcting, or modifying the judgment.[51]

Grounds. See 10 C. L. 496—The judgment of a court of general jurisdiction which has jurisdiction of the parties and the subject-matter is not subject to collateral attack;[52] and upon such an attack such a judgment is conclusive upon all questions covered thereby.[53] It cannot thus be attacked for failure to show jurisdictional facts, where such facts appear from the entire record,[54] nor can a record of a court of general jurisdiction be attacked collaterally because it does not show correctly the

Held direct: An action brought expressly to set aside a decree for fraud is not a collateral attack though further equitable relief is asked. Noble v. Aune [Wash.] 96 P 688. It is proper in such action to ask for further relief in the matter of quieting title, and that such relief be granted if appropriate. Id. Action to review judgment in partition on ground that at time plaintiffs were nonresidents were not personally served, did not appear, that judgment was by default and partition was unequal and fraudulent. Deputy v. Dollarhide [Ind. App.] 86 NE 344. Since abolition of distinction between law and equity when judgment set up in bar is assailed and all the parties are before the court as procured by fraud, it is a direct and not a collateral attack. Houser v. Bonsal & Co. [N. C.] 62 SE 776. Court is required to submit the issue of fraud to the jury. Id. In a suit against a former owner to recover property or quiet title secured at judicial sale, a cross complaint by such former owner attacking the judgment is not a collateral attack and the jurisdiction of court may be looked into, but mere errors or irregularities not going to the jurisdiction may not be. action of the court.[55] A judgment, void for want of jurisdiction,[56] or for other reasons,[57] may be collaterally attacked at any time,[58] but its invalidity must appear from the face of the record,[59] since every presumption will be indulged in favor of its regularity,[60] if rendered by a court of general jurisdiction.[61] Where the record is silent as to service, the defendant may testify in rebuttal of the presumption

56. Bauer v. Widholm [Wash.] 95 P 277. May be collaterally attacked by debtor in supplementary proceedings on judgment. Gillespie v. Armstrong, 58 Misc. 310, 109 NYS 672. Where judgment was entered, by stipulation and the affidavit omitted a jurisdictional fact, did not describe the land in suit, one of the parties was not sui juris and the court was without power to render such judgment. Goodrum v. Buffalo [C. C. A.] 162 F 817.

57. Judgment void upon its face. Minnesota Thresher Mfg. Co. v. L'Heureux [Neb.] 118 NW 565. Void decree. Andrews v. Sheehy [La.] 47 S 771; Theobald v. Deslonde [Miss.] 46 S 712. Where land is conveyed to secure a debt and bound to reconvey given and land is sold on execution for a debt of the grantor, a petition by heirs of the obligee of the bond to set aside the sheriff's deed is not a proceeding to set aside the judgment, the attack on the judgment being on the ground that it is void. Buchan v. Williamson [Ga.] 62 SE 815. One who is sued on a foreign judgment may show that attorneys who undertook to appear for him in the case in which the judgment was rendered had no authority to do so, unless such question has been determined by a court having jurisdiction of parties and subject-matter. Thomas v. Virden [C. C. A.] 160 F 418.

Void judgment may be assailed before tribunal which rendered it by any person whose interests are affected by attempt to enforce it. Andrews v. Sheely [La.] 47 S 771.

59. Not unless affected by some jurisdictional infirmity. In re Nelson's Estate [Neb.] 115 NW 1087. One assailing judgment must prove by record that facts essential to sustain order did not exist. Moore v. Hanscom [Tex.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 438, 106 SW 876. It must be void on its face. Emery v. Kipp [Cal.] 97 P 17; Aldrich v. Barton, 153 Cal. 488, 95 P 900. Conditional and uncertain agreements between counsel for the parties respecting dismissal of a suit begun will not be enforced so as to avoid a judgment subsequently recovered and involved in a collateral proceeding. Pocahontas Wholesale Grocery Co. v. Gillespie, 63 W. Va. 578, 60 SE 597. Where record of county court does not negative existence of facts authorizing court to make an order, the law presumes that such facts were established and in collateral attack evidence outside the record to the contrary will not be heard. Moore v. Hanscom [Tex.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 438, 106 SW 876. Under Ann. St. 1906, p. 601, publication of summons in action against a nonresident and to have a judgment adjudged a lien on land need not describe the land and judgment thereon is not void and subject to collateral attack. Randall v. Snyder [Mo.] 112 SW 529.

60. A judgment of a court having jurisdiction is presumed correct on collateral attack. Williams v. Steele [Tex.] 108 SW 155. Every jurisdictional fact which record of a court of general jurisdiction does not show was absent must be presumed in favor of the judgment. Segal v. Reisert, 32 Ky. L. R. 901, 107 SW 747. Judgment confirming judicial sale of land. Id. Where a judgment was rendered on day court adjourned but was not entered until several days later and then on a page in front of where the judge signed the minutes adjourning court, and there is no irregularity in the minutes or allegation of fraud, such facts cannot be shown to impeach the judgment. Childress v. Carley [Miss.] 46 S 164. In ejectment involving a decree in partition it is presumed that the decree which was rendered by a court of general jurisdiction had jurisdiction of all the parties as against objection that the wife of an allottee was not a party. Wright v. Johnson, 108 Va. 855, 62 SE 948. In collateral attack on judgment of county court discharging sureties on a guardian's bond, it is presumed that statutory grounds for such discharge existed. Moore v. Hanscom [Tex.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 438, 106 SW 876.

Jurisdiction of parties: A judgment that defendant pay a certain annual sum for the support of his wife and children which shows that the parties appeared though it does not show the character of the action, cannot be attacked for want of jurisdiction on account of the character of the action. Spangle v. Spangle, 41 Ind. App. 297, 83 NE 720. Where it does not appear that a guardian ad litem who appeared for infant defendants was appointed, it will not be presumed that he was appointed without jurisdiction of parties having been obtained. Horn v. Horn, 234 Ill. 268, 84 NE 904. Recital in complaint on a judgment attempting to state facts showing legal service held not to disclose want of jurisdiction, so as to overcome the presumption of jurisdiction. Nolan v. Hughes [Or.] 94 P 504. Service of process and hearing at the first term at which the court had jurisdiction to hear it presumed. Horn v. Metzger, 234 Ill. 240, 84 NE 893. Service of process on the proper official of a municipal corporation is presumed. Curtis v. Charlevoix County Sup'rs [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 941, 118 NW 618. Where the record of a court, whether because lost or otherwise, is silent as to service and a duly entered judgment appears thereon, it will be presumed until the contrary appears, that service was made on defendant. Weaver v. Webb, 3 Ga. App. 726, 60 SE 367.

61. Where court has jurisdiction of parties and subject-matter, all intendments are in favor of judgment and only jurisdictional defects apparent on the face of the record can be collaterally attacked. Curtis v. Charlevoix County Sup'rs [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 941, 118 NW 618.

of service.[62] Recitals of jurisdictional facts are generally held conclusive,[63] unless contradicted by the record,[64] and where it is permissible to contradict such recitals, the evidence must be clear and convincing.[65] A judgment cannot be collaterally attacked for nonjurisdictional errors,[66] or irregularities of procedure.[67] The same general principles apply to probate,[68] and bankruptcy [69] decrees, and to judgments

62. Weaver v. Webb, 3 Ga. App. 726, 60 SE 367.

63. Where a court passes on facts determining its own jurisdiction, its judgment is not subject to collateral attack. Ledbetter v. Mandell, 124 App. Div. 854, 109 NYS 602. Finding as to residence of minor in guardianship proceedings is conclusive, and on appeal, where the evidence is not in the record, it cannot be reviewed. In re Baker, 153 Cal. 537, 96 P 12. Where the court had jurisdiction of parties and subject-matter, judgment reciting that nunc pro tunc entries were made upon proof from minutes and records of the court may not be collaterally attacked on ground that there was no evidence to support it. Collier v. Catherine Lead Co., 208 Mo. 246, 106 SW 971. In action to enjoin sale under execution, it is not permissible to impeach recitals in judgment upon which execution was based that recovery was had because of fraud by judgment creditor. Nichols v. Doak, 48 Wash. 457, 93 P 919. Judgment reciting due service of process cannot be collaterally attacked for want of service. Town of Point Pleasant v. Greenlee, 63 W. Va. 207, 60 SE 601. It is not ground for collateral attack for want of service where affidavit of service was not verified but subsequent affidavits were filed and judgment recited proof of personal service. McAuliff v. Hughes, 128 App. Div. 355, 112 NYS 486.

64. Where record shows lack of jurisdiction, the judgment is void and subject to collateral attack. Indiana & Arkansas Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Brinkley [C. C. A.] 164 F 963. Judgment is not subject to collateral attack because affidavit of service recited that service was made on a day prior to issue of summons, such error would be treated as a clerical one. McAuliff v. Hughes, 128 App. Div. 355, 112 NYS 486.

65. Evidence held insufficient to overthrow recitals of decree. Ladd v. Craig [Miss.] 47 S 777.

66. If court has jurisdiction of parties and proceeding, its judgment, however erroneous is valid, and not subject to collateral attack. Bickford v. Bickford, 74 N. H. 448, 69 A 579. Fact that complaint states a cause of action barred on its face by limitations does not render the judgment subject to collateral attack. Palmer v. Essex County Chosen Freeholders [N. J. Law] 71 A 285. Judgment in tax suit cannot be vacated on collateral attack on proof that taxes for year specified had been paid prior to suit begun. Cooper v. Gunter [Mo.] 114 SW 943. Of pleadings present issue within province of court to determine, judgment is not subject to collateral attack because complaint contains special counts which are invalid, as validity of declaration on direct attack does not control in a collateral attack on judgment. Curtis v. Charlevoix County Sup'rs [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 941, 118 NW 618.

67. Irregularities in proceedings in a court of general jurisdiction, as against collateral attack, are cured by the judgment. Palmer v. Essex County Chosen Freeholders [N. J. Law] 71 A 285. Judgment not open to collateral attack merely because there may have been abuse of discretion in exercise of lawful power to allow amendments to complaint, mere error not vitiating the judgment. Goodman v. Ft. Collins [C. C. A.] 164 F 970. Defect in publication of summons held not to render default therein subject to collateral attack. Randall v. Snyder [Mo.] 112 SW 529. If service of process is defective or irregular but not void, a judgment may be irregular and subject to direct attack but not to collateral attack. Town of Point Pleasant v. Greenlee, 63 W. Va. 207, 60 SE 601. Where in statutory suit for taxes one of defendants makes waiver of service by an irregular method, such irregularity does not render judgment subject to collateral attack. Walker v. Mills, 210 Mo. 684, 109 SW 44. Failure to enter orders and papers in action in common rule book is irregularity not subject to collateral attack. Curtis v. Charlevoix County Sup'rs [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 941, 118 NW 618.

68. Judgment of probate court as to matters of which it has jurisdiction. Jenkins v. Morrow [Mo. App.] 109 SW 1051. All proceedings presumed regular. Dennis v. Alves [Ky.] 113 SW 483. Order of probate court appointing executor is void if made without jurisdiction but, if made in exercise of proper jurisdiction, it is not subject to collateral attack though based on erroneous conclusions of law or fact. Union Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Ohio] 86 NE 478. Proceedings of county court in matters of administration are not subject to collateral attack except for want of jurisdiction. Holland v. Ferris [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 102. County court has jurisdiction to allow expenses of administration and a judgment allowing specified sum for legal services cannot be collaterally attacked. United States Fidelity & Guar. Co. v. People [Colo.] 98 P 828. In probate proceedings the county court is a court of record and of exclusive original jurisdiction and its judgments and recitals therein are entitled to the same presumptions as attach to records of other courts of that character. Kolterman v. Chilvers [Neb.] 117 NW 405. Where a probate court has jurisdiction in admitting a will to probate, all presumptions are in favor of the regularity of its proceedings and in collateral attack the court will not look into the degree of proof required by the probate court. Id. Failure to give proper notice to interested parties of hearing on a petition for appointment of an administrator, is not necessary to give the court jurisdiction of the estate, and subsequent proceedings cannot be collaterally attacked. In re Hanson [Minn.] 117 NW 235.

69. Not subject to collateral attack in suit by trustee to avoid a preference on the ground that one of three petitioners in the involuntary proceeding was not a creditor.

in special proceedings.[70] Presumptions of verity and regularity are indulged in favor of judgments of inferior courts where jurisdiction is shown,[71] or where such presumptions are required by statute,[72] but not otherwise.[73] A judgment in a special, statutory proceeding is open to collateral attack where it does not conform to statutory requirements.[74] A judgment entered by a court of competent jurisdiction is conclusive that it was rendered as therein stated.[75] Fraud is not ground for collateral attack.[76]

§ 8. Lien. When and to what it attaches. See 10 C. L. 499—The judgment lien attaches to all the real property of the judgment debtor,[77] title to which stands in his name[78] and which is situated in the county where the judgment is rendered[79] or Adjudication in bankruptcy that because of insolvency a receiver was appointed for the property of the alleged bankrupt is conclusive. Bankr. Act July 1, 1898. Hecox v. Rollestone [C. C. A.] 164 F 823.

70. Decree in contempt proceedings is not subject to collateral attack. Hoskins v. Somerset Coal Co., 219 Pa. 373, 68 A 843. Under Laws 1896, p. 227, c. 272, § 63, giving county judge and surrogate concurrent jurisdiction of adoption proceedings, one court cannot review order of adoption made by the other in a collateral proceeding. In re Ward's Estate, 112 NYS 282. Where a court had jurisdiction to render judgment in an adoption proceeding, its judgment is not subject to collateral attack in action by the child to quiet title and partition land claimed through the adoption. Jones v. Leeds, 41 Ind. App. 164, 83 NE 526.

71. Unless it is shown to have jurisdiction. Jones v. Leeds, 41 Ind. App. 164, 83 NE 526.

72. Where legislature did not provide method to review judgment of inferior tribunal, it intended to give finality thereto instead of laying them open to collateral attack. State v. Schenkel, 129 Mo. App. 224, 108 SW 635. County court's findings in proceeding to open county road. Id.

73. If jurisdiction of inferior court does not appear from record, judgment is to be treated as nullity and may be collaterally attacked. Ruckert v. Richter, 127 Mo. App. 664, 106 SW 1081.

74. Nothing is presumed in favor of jurisdiction of a court exercising special statutory powers and the record must affirmatively show jurisdictional facts. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Hasenwinkle, 232 Ill. 224, 83 NE 518. Judgment of court of general jurisdiction under a statutory proceeding unknown to the common law must contain mandatory requirements of the statute or it is open to collateral attack. Cooper v. Gunter [Mo.] 114 SW 943.

75. Neither parol testimony nor magistrate's recitals of fact in his answer are competent in face of record. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Brown, 3 Ga. App. 561, 60 SE 319. A recital in a judgment that it was entered at a regular term imports absolute verity and is controlling unless the contrary appears from the record. Curtis v. Charlevoix County Sup'rs [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 941, 118 NW 618. Omission in default for delinquent taxes to state jurisdictional fact as to years for which taxes were due cannot be supplied by clerk's order of publication or recitals in sheriff's deed, by statute made prima facie evidence of title. Cooper v. Gunter [Mo.] 114 SW 943. Where default for delinquent taxes did not state the years for which the taxes were due as required by statute, and petition was lost, it could not be presumed on collateral attack that petition alleged the years as required by statute. Id.

76. A final judgment may be attacked for fraud only by an independent action. Lanier v. Heilig [N. C.] 63 SE 69. On collateral attack on a judicial sale of land, that the consideration was grossly inadequate, will not avoid it where sale was made during troubled and unsettled times. Ladd v. Craig [Miss.] 47 S 777. Judgment cannot be attacked for fraud not apparent of record. Hart v. Hunter [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 882.

77. Where judgment debtor against whom lien existed expected to inherit land from his mother, who was seriously ill, and soon thereafter died, conveyed property while his mother still lived, grantee took subject to lien of judgment. Bliss v. Brown [Kan.] 96 P 945. In suit to subject interest of defendants in tract of land to judgment rendered in December 1901, other defendant claiming that land was partnership property, fact that after partnership settlement in July 1901 judgment debtor recovered judgment against other defendant, which was discharged after beginning of this suit, was immaterial. Mann v. Paddock, 108 Va. 827, 62 SE 951. "Real estate" within statute making all real estate of defendant subject to lien means "freehold" and not mere chattel interest in land. Bourn v. Robinson [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 873.

78. Judgment does not of itself constitute a lien upon land of the judgment debtor which stands of record in name of his wife. Robison v. Gumaer [Colo.] 95 P 935. Issue of execution creates such lien. Id. Where deed is deposited in escrow to be delivered on payment of purchase price, interest of vendor is subject to lien of judgment creditor on judgment obtained after sale was made, and subsequent payments made to vendor are at vendee's peril. May v. Emerson [Or.] 96 P 454.

79. Under Civ. Code 1896, § 1921, judgments are liens only on property situated in the county where judgment is recorded. Greenwood v. Trigg, Dobbs & Co. [Ala.] 46 S 227. Entry of judgment in particular county establishes lien only upon property within such county. Lehigh & N. E. R. Co. v. Hanhauser [Pa.] 70 A 1089. In record recorded. In some states issuance of execution is a condition to the attaching of the lien,[80] and in others proper docketing only is required.[81] Destruction of the record does not destroy the lien.[82] Where a judgment debtor makes the judgment a special lien on certain land, such land is primarily liable.[83] A revived judgment is a lien only from date of revival.[84]

Duration of lien See 10 C. L. 500 is generally prescribed by statute[85] and is not affected by subsequent conveyances,[86] but ceases to exist when the judgment becomes dormant.[87] Reversal on appeal destroys the lien.[88]

Rank and priority of lien. See 10 C. L. 500—The judgment lien is inferior to rights and liens existing at the time that it attaches,[89] except in so far as the rights ing judgments in another county, the statutory requirements must be substantially complied with, and judgment as recorded must be sufficiently complete in itself. Wicker v. Jenkins [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 188. Certificate of clerk attesting correctness of abstract of judgment recorded in another county need not be recorded. Id. Abstract of judgment recorded in another county, showing amount, rate of interest and costs, is sufficient though blanks for credits are not filled. Id. Under Gen. Laws 1898-99, p. 34, judgment certificate held sufficient to create a lien on land in county where filed, though it omitted the surname of one of the judgment creditors. Gunter v. Belser [Ala.] 45 S 582. Abstract recorded in another county, showing amount and rate of interest, held sufficient though erroneous as to amount of costs. Wicker v. Jenkins [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 188. Abstract recorded in another county stating name of plaintiff as W. B. F. W. instead of W. F. B. W. is insufficient. Id.

80. To establish a lien, the lienor must prove that execution was issued on judgment within 12 months after rendition as required by Sayle's Rev. Civ. St. 1897, art. 3293, to preserve the lien. Bourn v. Robinson [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 873. Evidence of mere entries on execution docket of the clerk, consisting of dates entered under an orderly arranged system, held not sufficient to prove issuance of execution. Id.

81. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1251, judgment becomes lien from time of docketing. Holland v. Grote [N. Y.] 86 NE 30. In New York judgment becomes a lien on real estate from date it is docketed irrespective of issuance of execution, levy, or sale. In re Tupper, 163 F 766. When properly docketed, decree in equity becomes lien on real estate of judgment debtor. Raymond v. Blancgrass, 36 Mont. 449, 93 P 648. In order to create lien, judgment must be properly docketed, and formalities of docketing required by statute must be complied with. Huff v. Sweetser [Cal. App.] 97 P 705. Judgment must be docketed against debtor in his correct name. Id.

82. Under Gen. St. 1906, §§ 1600, 1601, 1603, destruction by fire of record of judgment in county where rendered held not to destroy lien affected by recording of transcript of the judgment in another county before the fire, nor to prevent making the judgment a lien by recording in another county after the fire. Curry v. Lehman [Fla.] 47 S 18.

83. Where two persons buy separate pieces of land of a common grantor, against each of which there is a judgment lien, but upon one of which the grantor had placed a special lien for the amount of the judgments, the latter piece is primarily liable as between the purchasers for the amount. Pleasant Hill L., P. & W. Co. v. Quinlan, 130 Mo. App. 487, 109 SW 1061.

84. A judgment revived for the first time and made effectual against the debtor after he has transferred land by unrecorded deed is not a lien on such land. Allen West Commission Co. v. Millstead [Miss.] 46 S 256.

85. Code Civ. Proc. § 376, expressly provides that until after expiration of twenty years, payment of a judgment is not conclusively presumed, and though the lien has expired it presumptively constitutes a valid claim against the debtor until expiration of such period. Holland v. Grote [N. Y.] 86 NE 30.

86. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1251, providing that judgment is lien on property of debtor from time it is docketed, judgment docketed before alleged fraudulent conveyance by debtor became and for 10 years continued a lien, despite any number of transfers. Holland v. Grote [N. Y.] 86 NE 30.

87. Proposed sale of real estate, under execution issued on dormant judgment, will be enjoined at suit of one who acquired title to property during life of judgment. Lincoln Upholstering Co. v. Baker [Neb.] 118 NW 321. In action aided by attachment upon entry of judgment, attachment lien is merged in that of judgment, and thereafter lien is mere incident to judgment and ceases to exist when judgment becomes dormant. Id.

88. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1321, where judgment was reversed on appeal, it ceased to be a lien. Clinton v. South Shore Nat. Gas & Fuel Co., 113 NYS 289.

89. Judgment is not lien on land acquired by debtor subject to pre-existing contract to convey to intervener by fact that such intervener's contract was not recorded until after judgment was docketed. Huff v. Sweetser [Cal. App.] 97 P 705. Where land was conveyed to judgment debtor subject to contract to convey same to intervener and land was thereafter conveyed by debtor to plaintiff, intervener's equity entitling him to land free from lien was not destroyed by new contract of sale between plaintiff and intervener. Id. Where one in possession of mortgaged property under contract of sale pays part of purchase money, he is entitled to reimbursement out of surplus on foreclosure in preference to judgment creditors whose judgments were recovered after execution of his contract, provided he had no notice of the judgments, and he would also be entitled to reimbursement if he paid unof the prior claimant or encumbrancer may be affected by the recording acts.[90] It is inferior to the rights of a bona fide purchaser acquired before it becomes effective [91] or before it is docketed in such manner as to give constructive notice to subsequent purchasers.[92] Where the entry of judgment gives a lien upon the judgment debtor's real property,[93] it also operates as constructive notice to subsequent purchasers.[94] A judgment creditor may be estopped to assert his lien as against subsequent claimants or lienors.[95] A judgment lien prior in time to a mortgage is prima facie superior in rank as to property covered by the mortgage,[96] other than that for the price of which the mortgage was given.[97] Where land is conveyed to one who simultaneously transfers it as security for a loan to pay the purchase price, the title passes through the borrower without being affected by a judgment against the borrower.[98] Mere laches in enforcing a judgment is not ground for annulling it at the instance of a subsequent judgment creditor in the absence of proof of a valid defense.[99]

§ 9. Suspension, dormancy, and revival. See 10 C. L. 568—The objection that judgment is dormant may be raised after issue of execution,[1] and the execution may be enjoined.[2] In some states entries of execution on a judgment,[3] if made in the manner prescribed,[4] will arrest the running of the dormancy statutes. A proceeding der constraint of forfeiture of payments made. Durling v. Stillwell [N. J. Eq.] 69 A 978. Judgment lien is inferior to unrecorded deed executed before judgment was rendered. McCalla v. Knight Inv. Co., 77 Kan. 770, 94 P 126. Lien under judgment for allmony held inferior to trust deed and judgment of foreclosure. Prather v. Hairgrove [Mo.] 112 SW 552. A mortgage executed pending action is prior to the lien of the judgment procured therein in absence of intent to defraud. No lien until judgment. Curie v. Wright [Iowa] 119 NW 74.

90. Under recording laws, one who acquires a judgment lien without notice of prior unrecorded deed will be protected. Feinberg v. Stearns [Fla.] 42 S 797. One who has failed to record his deed has burden of showing that creditor of grantor, who subsequently acquired judgment, had notice thereof. Id.

91. Rule is same whether judgment was rendered by state or federal court. Allen West Commission Co. v. Millstead [Miss.] 46 S 256.

92. Order for deficiency judgment on mortgage foreclosure and docket thereof as judgment is no notice as to property standing in name Melvina Haring where action was against Amanda Haring. Haring v. Murphy, 113 NYS 452. Where judgment was entered and enrolled against R. H. Rutledge, whereas defendant's name was R. D. Rutledge, judgment held not notice. Allen West Commission Co. v. Millstead [Miss.] 46 S 256. Rights of subsequent purchasers cannot be effected by amendment as to name after such rights have attached. Id. Judgment against married woman docketed against her in her maiden name is not lien against property conveyed by her to innocent purchaser by her married name. Huff v. Sweetser [Cal. App.] 97 P 705. Under Civ. Code, § 1187, married woman is authorized to convey land in her name and purchaser is not put on inquiry as to her business transactions while unmarried. Id.

93. Sess. Laws 1893, p. 65, c. 42. Young v. Davis [Wash.] 97 P 506.

94. Purchaser from mortgagor after entry of decree of foreclosure held charged with notice of such decree and sale thereunder. Young v. Davis [Wash.] 97 P 506.

95. Where judgment creditors were made parties to a suit to foreclose a mortgage, gave notice that they had no defense and that mortgage was a prior lien, they were estopped to thereafter claim that their judgments were a prior lien. Smith v. Munger [Miss.] 47 S 676. An assignee pending the suit stands in no better position. Id.

98. Protestant Episcopal Church v. Lowe Co. [Ga.] 63 SE 136.

99. Delay of five years not ground for annulling a judgment at the instance of a subsequent creditor of the same debtor who recovered judgment after execution had been issued on the prior judgment. Great Falls Nat. Bank v. McClure [C. C. A.] 161 F 56.

1. Defendant in dormant judgment after issuance of execution may move, on rehearing of homestead appraisement after reversal of judgment of allotment of homestead, that the judgment be decreed dormant. McKeithen v. Blue [N. C.] 62 SE 769.

2. The plaintiff does not thereby seek to use the statute of limitations as a sword but as a shield to protect what the law has already given him. Updegraff v. Lucas, 76 Kan. 456, 93 P 630.

3. Entries made on an execution issued upon judgment rendered in 1877 need not, under Civ. Code 1895, § 3761, be recorded on the execution docket in order to prevent the dormancy of such judgment. Wever v. Parker [Ga.] 62 SE 813. Civ. Code 1895, § 3761, has no application to judgments rendered prior to Acts 1884-85, p. 95. Id.

4. Entries recorded on civil issue docket, instead of on the execution docket, will not arrest running of dormancy statute. Civ. Code 1895, § 3761. Oliver v. James [Ga.] 62 SE 73. Under Civ. Code, 1895, § 3763, time when record on execution docket of entry on execution was made must appear from docket in order to arrest the running of dormancy statute. Id. Bailiff of county court provided for by Civ. Code to revive a dormant judgment [5] is a new and separate proceeding but not a new action.[6] Such proceedings must be instituted within the period prescribed [7] and by parties entitled to maintain them.[8] Jurisdiction may be acquired by published service.[9] Objections seeking to go behind the judgment cannot be interposed against the revival of a valid judgment,[10] but all defenses and objections to the revival and enforcement of the judgment may be interposed [11] and the validity of the judgment may be attacked,[12] unless such objection has been waived; [13] and all proper objections may be made without constituting such an appearance as will render valid a judgment void for want of jurisdiction,[14] but the presumption is in favor of the validity of the judgment,[15] and the record cannot be contradicted by evidence aliunde.[16] Payment 1895, §§ 4189, 4190, is not officer authorized to execute and return execution issued from justice court, or to make entry thereon that will arrest running of dormancy statute. Id. Execution merely filed by clerk and memorandum of execution made on docket is not issued as required by statute and does not prevent judgment from becoming dormant. McKeithen v. Blue [N. C.] 62 SE 769.

5. Common law and statute of 2 Westminster, applying to scire facias are in force in Colorado from 1861, save as otherwise provided by statute. Collin County Nat. Bank v. Hughes [C. C. A.] 155 F 389. After a lapse of five years the appropriate remedy of the judgment creditor is to apply for leave to sue on the judgment. Partridge v. Moynihan, 110 NYS 539; Id. 111 NYS 31. The statutes of California contain two remedies for enforcement of dormant judgment; first, an action on judgment to be brought within period of five years, and second, a statutory proceeding for leave to issue execution. Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 685. In re Rebman [C. C. A.] 150 F 759. In Alabama residents of a town may file in the name of the state a petition in the nature of a bill of revivor for the effectuation of a decree abating a nuisance and perpetually enjoining the same. Deer v. State [Ala.] 46 S 848. A bill against the assignee of the person against whom the decree was rendered need not allege that he had notice of the decree. Id.

6. Reed v. Waterbury Nat. Bank, 135 Ill. App. 165; St Paul Harvester Co. v. Faulhaber [Neb.] 117 NW 702; Collin County Nat. Bank v. Hughes [C. C. A.] 155 F 389.

7. Motion to revive a judgment is barred under Ky. St. 1903, § 2548, after 7 years as to a surety, where no execution is issued or prosecuted in good faith during such period. Steele v. Dishman's Adm'r [Ky.] 113 SW 52. Proceeding to revive a judgment held barred where not brought within 10 years after judgment rendered, though brought within such period before entry thereof. Blohme v. Schmancke [S. C.], 61 SE 1060. Under Act Pa. April 3, 1903 (P. L. 139), providing that two returns of nil habit are equivalent to personal service in writs of scire facias to revive judgments, and rules of practice that such writs are a continuation of the original suit, a judgment entered on two such returns, where the court had original jurisdiction, is valid, but under Acts March 26, 1827 (P. L. 129), and Act June 1, 1887 (P. L. 289), limiting the life of a judgment to 5 years, a judgment of revival issued on two such writs, issued nine years after entry of original judgment, is void for want of jurisdiction. Davis v. Davis, 164 F 281. Under Code D. C. §§ 1213-1215 incl. and § 1078 (31 Stat. at L. 1381, c. 854), affidavit of nonpayment is unnecessary until after lapse of 12 years fixed by statute as life of judgment. Simpson v. Ninnix, 30 App. D. C. 582.

8. Ann. St. 1906, p. 2089, authorizing assignments of judgments and providing that assignments properly recorded vest title in the assignee, and authorizing action in the name of the assignee, authorizes action by the assignee on the judgment but not scire facias to revive it in his own name. Bick v. Robbins [Mo. App.] 111 SW 612. An executor of one of two plaintiffs in a justice's judgment cannot maintain notice or scire facias to revive it. The proceeding must be in the sole name of the survivor. Crim v. Rhinehart [W. Va.] 63 SE 212.

9. Code Civ. Proc. § 462, authorizing revival of dormant judgment upon service by publication, is not unconstitutional. White v Ress [Neb.] 115 NW 301. Code Civ. Proc. § 462, is applicable to revival of a dormant judgment and authorizes revival of such judgment against nonresidents upon service by publication. Id.

10. Weaver v. Webb, Galt & Kellogg, 3 Ga. App. 726, 60 SE 367; St. Paul Harvester Co. v. Fauhaber [Neb.] 117 NW 702. Defense that judgment is shown by evidence in bill of exceptions to be erroneous cannot be raised as a defense in a scire facias proceeding to revive the judgment. Reed v. Waterbury National Bank, 135 Ill. App. 165.

11. Payment. St. Paul Harvester Co. v. Faulhaber [Neb.] 117 NW 702. On a scire facias under Act April 4, 1862 (P. L. 325), and January 21, 1843 (P. L. 376), to revive judgment, affidavit of defense of party sought to be brought in as terre tenant, averring that such party has never held and does not now hold any property which he derived from defendant, is sufficient to prevent judgment. Hanhauser v. Pennsylvania, etc., R. Co. [Pa.] 71 A 5.

12. For want of jurisdiction. St. Paul Harvester Co. v. Faulhaber [Neb.] 117 NW 702. Defense that one was not served with process, did not waive service, and did not appear or plead, is complete defense in scire facias to revive judgment. Weaver v. Webb, Galt & Kellogg, 3 Ga. App. 726, 60 SE 367. Objection that defendant was not served, did not appear or plead, does not set up defense that could have been presented on trial of case. Id.

13. Where defendant is in court but fails to plead lack of jurisdiction of his person, he waives the objection. Weaver v. Webb, Galt & Kellogg, 3 Ga. App. 726, 60 SE 367.

is presumed if pleaded and the judgment creditor has the burden to rebut it.[17] The only issues raised by a plea of nul tiel record are whether there is such a record and whether the judgment is void for want of jursidiction,[18] and the defendant is not entitled to a jury trial thereon;[19] nor is one entitled to a trial by jury where the only plea, except that of nul tiel record, is one upon which no evidence was offered and would in any case have to be tried by the record alone.[20] The record of the judgment is admissible without proof of its genuineness.[21] In form and effect it is merely a judgment of revival and not of recovery.[22] The effect of the judgment is to adjudicate all questions necessarily involved,[23] but it does not impart any validity to a void judgment.[24] It is generally held that when a defendant answering to the writ of scire facias pleads matter which goes to his personal discharge, or any matter which does not go to the writ or to the nature of the writ or pleads such matter as constitutes a bar to the action against himself only, and of which his codefendants could not take advantage, such defendant may be discharged and the judgment revived against the other defendant or defendants.[25]

§ 10. Assignment of judgment. See 10 C. L. 503—An assignment may be by parol[26] or in writing.[27] When made in the manner prescribed by law, it passes an equity entitling the assignee to use on the judgment or to have the execution issued.[28] In some states the assignment must be entered of record in the court where the judg-

Weaver v. Webb, Galt & Kellogg, 3 Ga. App. 726, 60 SE 367. In scire facias to revive a judgment where the record shows that original record of judgment was introduced in evidence but that record was not incorporated or preserved in bill of exceptions, it will be presumed that judgment was regular and that it showed service on defendant. Reed v. National Bank of Eau Claire, 136 Ill. App. 378.

16. Evidence of lack of service. Bank of Eau Claire v. Reed, 232 Ill. 238, 83 NE 820. Plea of nul tiel record admits only showing that judgment is void on its face for lack of jurisdiction. Id. Plea or lack of service of process in action and that supposed return is incorrect and untrue is attack upon record in collateral proceeding and is demurrable. Reed v. Bank of Eau Claire, 136 Ill. App. 378. Plea of false return on summons in original cause does not defeat scire facias, the latter proceeding being a continuance of same suit in which sheriff's return cannot be contradicted so as to defeat jurisdiction. Reed v. Waterbury Nat. Bank, 135 Ill. App. 165.

17. Unless some witness having knowledge testifies to nonpayment, it is incumbent for the judgment creditor to rebut the presumption by proof of some fact which tends to make it more probable than otherwise that payment has not been made. Platte County Bank v. Clark [Neb.] 115 NW 787. Evidence insufficient to repel such presumption. Id.

18. Bank of Eau Claire v. Reed, 232 Ill. 238, 83 NE 820. Evidence in scire facias case held to sustain judgment and overcome plea of nul tiel record. Reed v. Waterbury Nat. Bank, 135 Ill. App. 165.

19. Bank of Eau Claire v. Reed, 232 Ill. 238, 83 NE 820.

20. Where second plea was lack of jurisdiction. Reed v. National Bank of Eau Claire, 136 Ill. App. 378.

21. Court takes judicial notice of its own records. Bank of Eau Claire v. Reed, 232 Ill. 238, 83 NE 820.

22. Judgment entered on scire facias is simply that defendant have execution for judgment mentioned in said scire facias and costs. Reed v. National Bank of Eau Claire, 136 Ill. App. 378. Form of judgment order in scire facias to revive judgment responding to only prayer of writ, according to established forms and giving execution on judgment to plaintiff, held correct notwithstanding words which may be surplusage. Reed v. Waterbury National Bank, 135 Ill. App. 165. Judgment under scire facias to revive judgment is not quod recuperet for amount due, its object being to revive judgment as it formerly existed and reinvest it with same attributes and conditions as originally belonged to it. The material part of it is that plaintiff have execution of judgment described in writ. Bank of Eau Claire v. Reed, 232 Ill. 238, 83 NE 820.

23. Where the action is by a pretended assignee of such judgment, one of the issues is whether he is assignee of the original holder of the judgment. La Fitte v. Salisbury, 43 Colo. 248, 95 P 1065. One who seeks to have judgment reviving judgment vacated on ground that assignee in whose favor it was revived procured the judgment on a forged assignment must allege that he was not served with process in the revival proceeding. 29. Kirby's Dig. § 4457, providing that on sale of judgment, written transfer shall be entered on records of court where judgment is recorded, refers to filing assignments in trial and not in court where case is appealed. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hambright [Ark.] 112 SW 876.

ment was rendered.[29] An assignment carries with it the claim upon which the judgment is based[30] and all the rights of the assignor,[31] and the asssignee may maintain action on the judgment in his own name.[32] Objections to the assignment cannot be raised after judgment in favor of the assignee.[33] The assignee stands in no better position than his assignor,[34] and, a judgment being a non-negotiable chose in action, the assignee takes it subject to all the equities of the debtor against the assignor at the date of the assignment.[35] Where a judgment debtor has notice of an assignment of the judgment, an attempted release by the assignor does not affect the assignee nor vest any rights in the debtor.[36] A fraudulent assignment will not avail the assignee.[37]

Assignment is essential to the acquisition of an interest in a future judgment.[38]

§ 11. Payment, discharge and satisfaction. See 10 C. L. 503—Payment may be made either to the party primarily entitled thereto or to his duly authorized representative.[39] In some states it is provided by statute that payment is presumed after the lapse of a prescribed period.[40] The filing of a satisfaction piece is prima facie evidence of payment.[41] A discharge in bankruptcy to a firm will not discharge a judgment against an individual member.[42] Payment of a judgment out of proceeds of sale of exempt property on execution satisfies it.[43] The holder of a judgment

30. King v. Miller [Or.] 97 P 542. Assignment carries with it the cause of action upon which the judgment is based. Feinberg v. Stearns [Fla.] 47 S 797.

31. Where judgment creditor had no notice of unrecorded deed, his assignee who had such notice will be protected. Feinberg v. Stearns [Fla.] 47 S 797.

32. Judgment is chose in action and can be assigned in writing by administrator of deceased judgment creditor so that assignee may sue thereon in his own name. Manson v. Peaks, 103 Me. 430, 69 A 690. Assignment of judgment properly admitted in action by assignee to enforce it, without proof of execution thereof. McCormick v. National Bank of Commerce [Tex. Civ. App.] 106 SW 747.

33. After an otherwise valid judgment in favor of such assignee in action upon original judgment, validity and efficacy of assignment cannot be questioned. Manson v. Peaks, 103 Me. 430, 69 A 690.

34. Judgment may be reversed after assignment. King v. Miller [Or.] 97 P 542. But where it is reversed after assignment, he may recover what he paid for it on the ground of failure of consideration or continue suit on the cause of action. B. & C. Comp. § 38. Id.

35. McManus v. Cash & Luckel [Tex.] 108 SW 800. This rule applies to judgment on negotiable note. Selden v. Williams, 108 Va. 542, 62 SE 380. Code 1904, §§ 3299, 3300, relative to effect of failure to plead a defense, held not to preclude judgment debtor from setting up equities against assignee of judgment, though they did not defend proceeding in which judgment was obtained, nor proceedings to revive it. Id. Where payee of note deposited it as collateral and holder recovered judgment against maker who paid amount it was given to secure, they were not estopped to set up equities against assignee as to balance because they failed to defend certain chancery proceedings to subject their property to lien of judgment. Id. Where firm recovered judgment and orally assigned one-half interest therein and thereafter debtor recovered judgment against one of members of firm, the debtor was entitled to set-off against partner's interest. McManus v. Cash [Tex.] 108 SW 800.

36. Hence, where the validity of an assignment of a judgment is not resisted by the debtor in an action by the assignee to revive the judgment, a subsequent release by the judgment holder cannot avail the judgment debtor. La Fitte v. Salisbury, 43 Colo. 248, 95 P 1065.

37. Where judgment was recovered against a city and property for injuries caused by defective sidewalk and city was not responsible but thereafter owner's wife took assignment of judgment, such assignment was not taken in good faith but under arrangement with the husband so that he might evade liability. Blocker v. Owensboro, 33 Ky. L. R. 478, 110 SW 369.

38. McRea v. Warehime [Wash.] 94 P 924.

39. Payment may be made to the plaintiff or to one of several plaintiffs, or to his attorney or the levying officer, or to the next friend or his attorney unless debtor has notice that attorney is not authorized to receive it. Davis v. Gott [Ky.] 113 SW 826. Where judgment creditor referred debtor to his attorney to settle, deposit in bank to credit of attorney and acceptance thereof by him is a satisfaction. Id. Acceptance of bank deposits in plaintiff's name, interest payable to her and principal to her children at her death, constitutes payment and satisfaction of judgment for alimony. Daly v. Daly, 80 Conn. 609, 69 A 1021.

42. Judgment in bankruptcy held not to discharge judgment against firm of which bankrupt was a member, no individual judgment against him. Code Civ. Proc. § 1268. In re Gruber, 113 NYS 923.

43. Johnson v. Motlow [Ala.] 47 S 568.

is entitled to but one satisfaction.[44] The pendency of an appeal from a judgment does not prevent the judgment debtor from paying a judgment or the judgment creditor from satisfying the same of record.[45] The filing of a remittitur nullifies the judgment and requires entry of a new one, the payment of which operates as a discharge.[46] Entry of satisfaction of judgment induced either by fraud or by mistake may be stricken by the court on notice to the parties and proof of the facts.[47] Such an application is addressed to the discretion of the court.[48] The holder of the legal title to a judgment is a necessary party where the satisfaction of a judgment is sought to be set aside for fraud.[49] The mere fact that the owner of a judgment receives assets of the judgment debtor is not alone sufficient to render such assets applicable to the payment of the judgment.[50]

§ 12. Set-off.[See 10 C. L. 504]—The power to set off one judgment against another is purely equitable and should be exercised only upon equitable principles and only when the court is satisfied that substantial justice is being done.[51] The power is not confined to judgments in the same court.[52] It is also immaterial that one of the judgments is in tort and the other in contract.[53] Where in the same judgment the parties are condemned to pay each other money, the two judgments should be set off pro tanto.[54] A judgment against one individually will not be set off against one in his favor as member of a partnership unless equity demands it.[55] Where the right to have one judgment set off against another does not exist at the time of the assignment of one, the right of set-off is lost by the assignment.[56]

§ 13. Interest.[See 10 C. L. 504]—A judgment predicated on monthly instalments bears interest only on such instalments as are matured.[57] In many states it is provided by statutes that judgments in a sum certain shall bear interest.[58] A debtor is

44. Where owner of mortgage which was first lien foreclosed and land was sold and surplus remained in his hands, and thereafter owner of judgment which was lien inferior to mortgage issued execution and purchased property at execution sale for amount of his judgment, and execution was returned satisfied but he never redeemed from mortgage, he was not thereafter entitled to surplus held by mortgagee. McCaffery v. Burkhardt, 104 Minn. 340, 116 NW 645.

45. Satisfaction being the act of the party and not an exercise of jurisdiction by the court over the judgment. Wagner v. Goldschmidt [Or.] 93 P 689.

46. Such new judgment may be satisfied by payment of the amount thereof regardless of interest accrued on original. Partello v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 107 SW 473.

47. Campbell v. Erb, 35 Pa. Super. Ct. 436.

48. Court held not to have abused discretion in refusing to strike satisfaction of entry where fraud or mistake if any was fault of plaintiff. Campbell v. Erb, 35 Pa. Super. Ct. 436.

49. Prindle v. Curran, 132 Ill. App. 162.

50. Finding that surety on appeal bond who had paid judgment after affirmance and received assignment of judgment received assets of debtor held insufficient to sustain a conclusion of payment. Garrett v. Mayfield Woolen Mills [Ala.] 44 S 1026.

51. Reed v. Smith, 158 F 889. Court of equity, in exercise of sound discretion, will direct one judgment to be set off against another whenever such relief does not run counter to any established principles of law or equity. Murray v. Skirm [N. J. Err. & App.] 69 A 496. One held not entitled to set off a judgment on a bond where it did not appear that it could not be satisfied out of security against a judgment for slander, where he procured the former judgment by assignment for the express purpose of set-off. Reed v. Smith, 158 F 889. Where one partner advances money to prosecute judgment under agreement that he is to be reimbursed out of the judgment, he is entitled to be reimbursed before judgment against his copartner can be set off against such judgment. McManus v. Cash [Tex.] 108 SW 800. In action to renew judgment where defendant pleaded payment but default was taken against him, and an order imposing condition of opening default was modified with costs against plaintiff, but not to abide event, it was improper to set off such costs against judgment as liability on judgment was undetermined. Donegan v. Patterson, 113 NYS 830.

52. May be exercised with reference to judgments in different courts and in different states. Reed v. Smith, 158 F 889.

53. Reed v. Smith, 158 F 889.

54. Luderbach Plumbing Co. v. Its Creditors, 121 La. 371, 46 S 359.

55. Held inequitable where one-half of judgment against the firm had been assigned. McManus v. Cash [Tex.] 108 SW 800.

56. McManus v. Cash [Tex.] 108 SW 800.

57. Where judgment has been entered on penal bond given to secure payments in monthly instalments, part of which were not due when judgment was entered, interest should only be computed on such instalments as are not paid at maturity, and then from date of maturity to payment. Dike v. Andrews [Neb.] 114 NW 582.

58. Under Civ. Code 1902, § 1660, providing that judgment shall draw interest wherever not liable for interest on a judgment while its payment is restrained by injunction[59] unless he has derived some advantage from the use of the money.[60] Generally the judgment creditor will not be allowed by his own acts to prolong the period for the running of interest by neglecting to take the steps provided by law to secure payment.[61] The rate of interest is regulated by the statute.[62] Interest may be compounded under some statutes in case of successive appeals.[63] When interest is allowed by way of a penalty, the allowance of an excessive rate amounts to the imposition of an excessive penalty.[64]

§ 14. Enforcement of judgment. See 10 C. L. 505—Proceedings to enforce judgments by creditor's suits,[65] execution and other final process[66] are treated elsewhere, as is also the enforcement of dormant judgments[67] and relief against the enforcement of judgments.[68] A judgment may be enforced by an original bill in equity,[69] notwithstanding relief might be obtained at law by garnishment proceedings,[70] but such a bill will not lie where there is no equitable necessity therefor.[71] In Montana a money decree in equity may be enforced in the same manner as a judgment at law,[72] And so also in Minnesota as to certain decrees.[73] A restraining order may be enforced only against the bodies of the offenders.[74] Nonprejudicial irregularities are unavailable on a collateral attack upon the enforcement proceedings.[75]

a certain sum of money shall be ascertained to be due, amount fixed by a decree in accounting held to bear interest. Brown v. Rogers [S. C.] 61 SE 440. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 3105, providing that all judgments, except certain ones, shall bear interest at 6 per cent, judgment on insurance policy for face thereof and statutory damages held to bear interest from date on entire sum. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 909.

59. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Carey, 80 Conn. 426, 68 A 993.

60. Fact that debtor does not keep amount of judgment unmingled with other funds does not affect liability for interest. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Carey, 80 Conn. 426, 68 A 993. Commingling of amount of judgment with other funds raises presumption of use. Id.

61. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 269, providing that interest shall be allowed on judgment of court of claims from date thereof until twentieth day after comptroller is authorized to issue warrant for payment thereof, or until payment if payment be made sooner, but that no such judgment shall be paid until copy thereof shall be filed with comptroller, where claimant appealed instead of filing copy of judgment with comptroller, and such appeal failed, interest was allowable only until twentieth day after date of judgment, the comptroller having at all times been ready and able to pay judgment as rendered. Evers v. Glynn, 110 NYS 405.

62. U. S. Nat. Bank v. Waddingham [Cal. App.] 93 P 1046. Under Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 6727, judgment draws 7 per cent interest from date of rendition, though founded upon contract for less amount. Portsmouth Sav. Bank v. Yeiser [Neb.] 116 NW 38. Judgment bears interest at rate not to exceed 6 per cent. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Field [Mo. App.] 111 SW 907. Rate on foreign judgment is controlled by law of state where judgment was rendered. Britton v. Chamberlain, 234 Ill. 246, 84 NE 895.

63. Under Kirby's Dig. § 5387, providing that all judgments shall bear interest from date where judgment was affirmed on appeal for the amount with interest, and thereafter a writ of error was taken to the federal supreme court, held the judgment bore interest until affirmed, and the then accumulated interest bore interest to time of judgment of the supreme court. Arkansas Southern R. Co. v. German Nat. Bank, 85 Ark. 136, 107 SW 668.

64. Imposed as penalty, and hence erroneous allowance in excess of statutory rate is not waived by failure to include objection on motion in arrest. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Field [Mo. App.] 111 SW 907.

73. Where judgment in divorce makes alimony a specific lien on certain land, it may be enforced by ordinary execution and sale thereunder. Makl v. Makl [Minn.] 119 NW 51.

74. Judgment enjoining officers of insurance society from canceling a certificate operates in personam only, and can be enforced only by attaching the bodies of the offender.

§ 15. Audita querela. See 10 C. L. 506

§ 16. Actions on judgment. See 10 C. L. 506—Actions on judgments must be brought within the period prescribed.[76] A limitation on final judgments is not a limitation on interlocutory decrees,[77] and a limitation on the issuance of execution is not a limitation on an action on the judgment.[78] All proper and necessary parties should be joined.[79] The complaint should conform to statutory requirements.[80] It is not always necessary to allege the date of the judgment.[81] Where a judgment is assailed for want of jurisdiction, but it appears just and no defense is shown, judgment for plaintiff is proper.[82]

§ 1. Occasion for and nature of judicial sales.[See 10 C. L. 507]—A judicial sale is a sale made by order or decree under the direction of a court having competent authority[2] and requiring confirmation to become effective.[3] The term is applicable to a chancery foreclosure,[4] the foreclosure of a tax lien,[5] a partition sale,[6] or a receiver's sale.[7] A court having jurisdiction of a corporation by consent has authority to order a sale of patents owned by the corporation to satisfy a decree against it.[8]

§ 2. The petition, order, writ, or decree.[See 10 C. L. 507]—In Pennsylvania a judicial sale of real estate is now effected by petition and citation, answer and replication in the court of common pleas.[9]

§ 3. Levy, seizure, appraisal, and the like.[See 8 C. L. 575]

§ 4. Notice and advertisement of sale.[See 10 C. L. 507]—The method of advertisement is governed by statute.[10]

§ 5. Sale and conduct of it and return.[See 10 C. L. 507]—Although the place of sale is usually prescribed by statute,[11] a decree authorizing an administrator to name the place of sale is valid.[12] A sale of the land covered by a deed of trust may be made by the trustee.[13] A sale of the property en masse is proper where a division is impracticable[14] or is not requested.[15] An agreement to chill a judicial sale and stifle competition is illegal,[16] but an agreement to raise the means of payment by contribution or to divide the property for the accommodation of the purchasers is valid.[17]

§ 6. Confirmation and setting aside sales.[See 10 C. L. 508]—The confirmation is the judicial sanction of the court.[18] The order, being a judicial act,[19] operates to cure irregularities[20] and authorizes a deed.[21] The statute of limitations does not run against the sale until confirmation.[22] An order of confirmation made by a district judge who is disqualified is void.[23] An owner of property who moves the court to deny confirmation because of inadequacy of price and offers to increase the bid on resale admits the jurisdiction of the court and the justice of the decree of sale.[24]

Refusal of confirmation or setting aside of sale.[See 10 C. L. 508]—The grant or refusal of confirmation rests in discretion,[25] but judicial sales will not be disturbed for slight causes,[26] or where a resale would not result in an increased price.[27] The court may reject any bid which is inadequate.[28]

NOTE. Opening judicial sales for advanced bids: Until the practice was abolished by act of parliament, a chancery sale in England might, before confirmation, be reopened upon a mere offer to advance the prices 10 per centum. Graffam v. Burgess, 117 U. S. 180, 29 Law. Ed. 839; Blackburn v. Selma R. R. Co., 3 F 689. The English practice has obtained footing in several states (Hinson v. Adrian, 92 N. C. 121; Childress v. Hart, 32 Tenn. (2 Swan) 487; Wilson v. Shields, 62 Tenn. (3 Baxt.) 65; Reese v. Copeland, 74 Tenn. (6 Lea.) 190; Dupuy v. Gorman, 77 Tenn. (9 Lea.) 144; Todd v. Gallego Mills Mfg. Co., 84 Va. 586, 5 SE 676; National Bank v. Jarvis, 28 W. Va. 805; Moore v. Triplett, 96 Va. 603, 32 SE 50, 70 Am. St. Rep. 882), but with certain limitations. Thus the opening of such a sale is held to be in the discretion of the court, and refusal to so open is not usually appealable. Owen's Admr. v. Owen, 24 Tenn. [5 Humph.] 352; Johnson v. Quarles, 44 Tenn. [4 Cold.] 615; Moore v. Triplett, 96 Va. 603, 32 SE 50, 70 Am. St. Rep. 882; Blackburn v. Selma R. Co., 3 F 689; Bright v. Bright, 80 Tenn. [12 Lea.] 630. No fixed rule is laid down as to the amount of upset bid which will warrant an opening of the sale (Hodgins v. Lanier, 23 Grat. [Va.] 494; Hansucker v. Walker, 76 Va. 753), though an advance of 10 per cent is usually considered sufficient (Pritchard v. Askew, 80 N. C. 86; Dula v. Seagle, 98 N. C. 458, 4 SE 549; Irby v. Irby, 79 Tenn. [11 Lea.] 165; Ewald v. Crockett, 85 Va. 299, 7 SE 386), and refusal to open for an advance of 30 per cent has been held error (Cole's Heirs v. Cole's Ex'r, 83 Va. 525, 5 SE 673). The advanced bid need not be paid into court, but must be absolute and unconditional and such as is considered safe and secured. Dula v. Seagle, 98 N. C. 458, 4 SE 549; Todd v. Gallego Mills Mfg. Co., 84 Va. 586, 5 SE 676; Stewart v. Stewart, 27 W. Va. 167; Blackburn v. Selma R. Co., 3 F 689. Where a sale is opened for an advance bid, the resale should be started at such bid and open to all (Marsh v. Nimoks, 122 N. C. 478, 29 SE 840, 65 Am. St. Rep. 715; Ewald v. Crockett, 85 Va. 299, 7 SE 386), and in default of other bids will be awarded to the advance bidder who must comply with the purchase or show cause why judgment should not be rendered against him (Marsh v. Nimocks, 122 N. C. 478, 29 SE 840, 65 Am. St. Rep. 715). In case of a default by the advance bidder, the court may order a resale and charge him with the deficit. Allen v. Eart, 63 Tenn. [4 Baxt.] 308. In the absence of fraud, accident or mistake, a sale will not be opened for an advance bid after confirmation (Houston v. Aycock, 37 Tenn. [5 Sneed.] 406, 73 Am. Dec. 131; Coffin v. Corruth, 41 Tenn. [1 Cold.] 194; Langyher v. Patterson, 77 Va. 470; Yost v. Porter, 80 Va. 855), and only under extraordinary circumstances will a sale be reopened a second time for advanced bids (Click v. Burris, 53 Tenn. [6 Heisk.] 539; Collins v. Woods, 88 Tenn. 779, 14 SW 221).

In many jurisdictions, however, the English rule is rejected in toto (George v. Norwood, 77 Ark. 216, 91 SW 557, 113 Am. St. Rep. 143; Glennon v. Mittenight, 86 Ala. 455, 5 S 772; Parker v. Bluffton Car-Wheel Co., 108 Ala. 140, 18 S 938; Penn's Admr. v. Tolleson, 20 Ark. 652; Colonial, etc., Mortg. Co. v. Sweet, 65 Ark. 152, 67 Am. St. Rep. 910, 45 SW 60; Ayers v. Baumgarten, 15 Ill. 444; Coffey v. Coffey, 16 Ill. 141; Harris v. Gunnell [Ky.] 95 SW 376; Lawson v. Hill [Ky.] 11 SW 606; Cohen v. Wagner, 6 Gill [Md.] 236; Page v. Cress, 80 Mich. 85, 20 Am. St. Rep. 504, 44 NW 1052; State Bank v. Green, 11 Neb. 303, 9 NW 36; Conover v. Walling, 15 N. J. Eq. 173; Fiske v. Weigle [N. J. Eq.] 21 A 452; Bethlehem Iron Co. v. Philadelphia, etc., R. C. 538) for the reason that such practice is held to discourage bidders at the original sale, and hence is against the interest of the owner (Morrisse v. Inglis, 46 N

A court of chancery has inherent power to set aside sales made by its order.[29] Inadequacy of price is not sufficient to set aside a sale unless so great as to establish fraud.[30] Thus the fact that the property brought considerably less than the appraised value,[31] or that it brought less than the guaranty made to the court as to the price that would be paid if the lands were resold,[32] is insufficient. The owner can object if the sale is unfairly made[33] or is for a grossly inadequate price,[34] but such objections should be made before confirmation.[35] An objection that the petition in the action did not state a cause of action cannot be relied upon by the purchasers to defeat confirmation,[36] and purchasers who were not prejudiced cannot complain because the property was sold en masse.[37] An objection may be based on the invalidity of the decree,[38] but the purchasers cannot object because of the existence of certain liens when such sums are payable out of the proceeds of the sale after satisfying the judgment.[39] A sale cannot be set aside in part.[40] Acquiescence by accepting the proceeds precludes a setting aside.[41] Fraud vitiates the sale,[42] but mere irregularities are insufficient.[43] A judgment debtor cannot have a sale set aside because the purchaser has not completed his payment.[44] The manner of seeking to vacate a confirming order and to obtain a resale is not important unless new rights have intervened.[45] The interest of the complainant should be alleged,[46] and

NOTE. Right of purchaser to bring action to quiet title: The purchaser at a sheriff's sale cannot maintain equitable action to remove cloud on title, since he has an adequate remedy at law (Apperson v. Montgomery, 82 Ala. 591, 2 S 513; Betts v. Nichols, 84 Ala. 278, 4 S 195), and earlier cases, apparently holding to the contrary, will be found to turn upon the question of fraud, a distinct ground of equity jurisdiction (e. g. Fraker v. Brawn, 2 Blatchf. [Ind.] 295). Some recent decisions hold to the general rule even where the question of fraud is involved. Ropes v. Jenerson, 45 Fla. 556, 110 Am. St. Rep. 79, 34 S 955; Thigpen v. Pitt, 54 N. C. [1 Jones Eq.] 49.—Adapted from 12 L. R. A. (N. S.) 66.

aside, the rights of innocent purchasers will not be disturbed[60] unless the sale is void for want of jurisdiction,[61] or where a judgment against an infant is reversed.[62] A purchaser of the assets of an insolvent corporation at a judicial sale does not assume the latter's obligations.[63] Where an inheritance is partitioned and the proceeds divided among the heirs before the birth of a posthumous child, the latter may recover his interest from a remote vendee of the purchaser at such sale.[64] A judicial sale of property for the satisfaction of the debts of the husband who is the owner of the fee-simple title terminates the wife's inchoate right of dower.[65] If the property is impressed with a trust, it is enforcible against the purchaser.[66] A resulting trust does not arise where one purchased land at a sale under a parol agreement to convey to another, unless the promisee furnished the purchase money or had an actual interest in the estate or a bona fide claim thereto.[67] The redemption must take place within the statutory period,[68] and the court cannot extend the right by neglecting to confirm the sale.[69] Redemption may be barred by laches [70] or be refused when the owners were wrong doers.[71]

Rights in proceeds and on bid. See 10 C. L. 511—The highest bidder at a judicial sale acquires incipient rights [72] which become absolute on confirmation.[73] Such a bidder is entitled to a judicial decision of his interest,[74] and may be compelled to complete his purchase [75] though there is no remedy except in the action under which the sale was had.[76] A purchaser is not excused from completing a sale because a building encroaches on another's land, when the owner of the adjoining property does not complain.[77] If the sale is set aside, the purchaser may recover the sums which he advanced.[78]

JURISDICTION.

The scope of this topic is noted below.[79]

§ 1. Definitions and distinctions. See 10 C. L. 512—Jurisdiction is the power of a court to hear and determine a cause or question.[80] It does not depend on the correctness of the decision made,[81] or on the existence of facts essential to a cause of action,[82] or on the title of the clerk to his office.[83] Jurisdiction of the subject-matter

79. Only civil jurisdiction is treated, criminal jurisdiction going elsewhere. See Indictment and Prosecution, 12 C. L. The jurisdiction of admiralty (see Admiralty, 11 C. L. 33), appellate (see Appeal and Review, 11 C. L. 118), bankruptcy (see Bankruptcy, 11 C. L. 383) and justice courts (see Justices of the Peace, 10 C. L. 553) is excluded, and also jurisdiction in proceedings for alimony or divorce (see Alimony, 11 C. L. 96; Divorce, 11 C. L. 1111,) and general equity jurisdiction (see Equity, 11 C. L. 1235). The articles on appearance (see Appearance, 11 C. L. 255), courts (see Courts, 11 C. L. 925), judges (see Judges, 10 C. L. 462), judgments (see Judgments, 10 C. L. 467), process (see Process, 10 C. L. 1262), removal of causes (see Removal of Causes, 10 C. L. 1508) and venue (see Venue and Place of Trial, 10 C. L. 1965) should be consulted herewith, as well as those which take up the jurisdictional phase in special proceedings (see Attachment, 11 C. L. 315; Carriers, 11 C. L. 499; Elections, 11 C. L. 1169; Eminent Domain, 11 C. L. 1198; Estates of Decedents, 11 C. L. 1275; Garnishment, 11 C. L. 1637; Highways and Streets, 11 C. L. 1720; Injunction, 10 C. L. 246; Mandamus, 10 C. is the abstract power to try cases of the kind pending.[84] The judgment of a court as to a matter outside its constitutional power is void,[85] while if the case is within such power, but the court is merely prohibited from exercising jurisdiction on principles of remedial procedure, the judgment, though erroneous, will be binding until vacated.[86] A final jurisdiction excludes any further jurisdiction in other courts.[87]

§ 2. Elements and extent in general. See 10 C. L. 513—Essential to jurisdiction is a subject-matter upon which adjudication is regularly invoked[88] in a competent forum,[89] either against adversary parties or in respect to the subject-matter itself,[90] which must be at least constructively in court.[91] Jurisdiction to afford a given kind of relief carries with it by implication power to do and decide all things necessary to effectuate the purpose for which the jurisdiction was conferred,[92] but a court is without jurisdiction of matters not in substance or effect embraced within the issues in the case.[93] The power of courts of law are limited to those recognized or defined by the common law or by constitutional or statutory provisions, either expressly or by inference from the nature and constitution of the tribunal.[94] Courts of equity having once acquired jurisdiction of a cause for a particular purpose will retain it for complete relief, regardless of the existence of questions properly cognizable at law.[95] Courts have inherent power to undo their own extra-jurisdictional proceedings and place the parties in statu quo.[96]

§ 3. Legislative power respecting jurisdiction. See 10 C. L. 513—Constitutional jurisdictions cannot be limited or enlarged by statute or rule unless the constitution so authorizes,[97] and all legislative enactments respecting jurisdiction must have proper regard for constitutional provisions in general,[98] for other superior laws,[99] and for adjoining jurisdictions.[1] State statutes cannot extend or restrict the jurisdiction of federal courts,[2] though they may enlarge equitable rights which will be enforced by the federal courts.[3]

§ 4. Territorial limitations. See 10 C. L. 514—All jurisdictions are bounded territorially by either the limits of the state or nation [4] or those of the district or circuit for which they were established.[5]

95. See Equity, 11 C. L. 1235.

96. County court could grant restitution of rice of value beyond its jurisdiction, it having previously required defendants to deliver same to plaintiff. Texas Land & Irr. Co. v. Sanders [Tex.] 111 SW 648; Id. [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 558.

97. Acts seeking to confer original jurisdiction on circuit court in matters outside limitations fixed by Const. 1901, §§ 8, 143, are void. Larkin v. Simmons [Ala.] 46 S 451. Under Const. § 21, art. 5, conferring on probate courts jurisdiction in all matters of probate "and appointment of guardians," legislature could confer on probate courts power to investigate chargee concerning delinquent children and make all necessary orders in relation thereto, as per act March 2, 1905. Ex parte Sharp [Idaho] 96 P 563. Section 97 of acts relating to elections (Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 46), giving circuit courts and superior court of Cook county jurisdiction to determine contests of election of mayors of cities, is not unconstitutional, constitution not limiting power of legislature to confer on such courts jurisdiction in addition to that conferred by that instrument. Kerr v. Flewelling, 235 Ill. 326, 85 NE 624. Legislature can confer on circuit court jurisdiction of cases involving any amount. Detroit Lumber Co. v. Petrel [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 506, 117 NW 80. Under Const. art. 6, § 18, giving justices of the peace jurisdiction with such exceptions and restrictions as may be prescribed by law, legislature can withdraw any cause from justices' jurisdiction. Id. See, also, Justices of the Peace, 10 C. L. 553. If functions conferred upon mayor and judge by Jones liquor law (98 O. L. 68) are ministerial, then § 12 is unconstitutional, being an attempt to confer original jurisdiction upon the circuit court in excess of that limited by Const. § 6, art. 12. In re Petition in Favor of Prohibiting Sale of Intoxicating Liquors v. Johnson, 9 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 147.

98. Gen. St. 1906, § 1200 et seq., and Laws 1907, c. 5706, amendatory of § 1203, conferring on county judge's courts jurisdiction to inquire into sanity of persons, commit lunatics, and appoint guardians, held not violative of state or federal constitution, as depriving of jury trial or due process of law. Ex parte Scudamore [Fla.] 46 S 279.

99. Act March 14, 1904, conferring on supreme court of Porto Rico original jurisdiction of questions between Roman Catholic church and people or any municipality affecting property rights, was within authority conferred on legislative assembly of Porto Rico by Foraker act of April 12, 1900, to legislate regarding jurisdiction and procedure of Porto Rican courts. Ponce v. Roman Catholic Apostolic Church, 210 U. S. 296, 52 Law. Ed. 1068. Not violative of act July 30, 1886, prohibiting territorial legislatures from passing special laws regulating procedure in courts of justice, etc. Id.

1. Legislature cannot by mere enactment and without co-operation of an adjoining state extend territory of state for which it legislates at expense of adjoining state and thereby invest courts with territorial jurisdiction over lands of sister state. Rober v. Michelsen [Neb.] 116 NW 949. Cannot authorize Nebraska courts to quiet title to lands within boundaries of sister state. Id.

2. Jurisdiction and powers of federal court of equity cannot be affected by state legislation. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission, 157 F 944.

3. Statute giving one in possession right to maintain suit to quiet title. Kraus v. Congdon [C. C. A.] 161 F 18.

4. See, also, post, § 5. Rule that equity court of a state may restrain performance of acts beyond its territorial jurisdiction seems to apply only where persons proceeded against reside within the jurisdiction. Royal Fraternal Union v. Lundy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 185. Texas court would not restrain nonresident officers of foreign insurance company from canceling insurance contract. Id.

5. See, also, post, § 5. Jurisdiction of inferior local courts established under Const. art. 6, § 18, is limited to actions arising within territorial limits of the tribunal or actions wherein the parties reside or are served within jurisdiction of the court. People v. Daley, 124 App. Div. 562, 108 NYS 1056. Laws 1902, p. 64, c. 35, creating city court for city of Poughkeepsie, considered, and held city court had no jurisdiction in bastardy proceeding where both complainant and defendant resided out of city and defendant had not been arrested or served therein. Id.

§ 5. Limitations resting in situs of subject-matter or status of litigants.[See 10 C. L. 514]—While power to adjudicate upon a subject-matter which can have no existence save at a fixed place pertains to the courts erected for that place,[6] other courts may have jurisdiction for the purpose of adjudicating personal rights of parties present in court which are in respect to, but do not directly affect, such subject-matter,[7] and if a court has jurisdiction of the parties and the general subject-matter of the suit, the fact that the res or subject-matter involved in a defensive issue is beyond its territorial jurisdiction does not deprive it of power to grant relief.[8] Jurisdiction may be affected by the nonresidence or alienage of the parties[9] or by their absence,[10] or by the place where the cause of action arose;[11] but as a rule these considerations are not controlling as to transitory actions[12] or proceedings in rem,[13] though alienage or diversity of citizenship often become important in federal practice.[14] Domestic

6. Action to quiet title to realty must be prosecuted where res is situated. Taylor v. Hulett [Idaho] 97 P 37. Suit to settle water rights held in nature of action to quiet title. Id. Court of sister state cannot by decree directly affect title to land in Illinois. MacDonald v. Dexter, 234 Ill. 517, 85 NE 209. Though parties are in court, jurisdiction is inadequate to try title to land in another state, parties contending at arm's length and there being no question of specific performance, enforcement of trust, or doing of any act binding on conscience of a party because of previous dealings. Sutton v. Archer [Miss.] 46 S 705. Mississippi court held without jurisdiction over land made part of state of Arkansas by change of river channel. Id.

7. Equity acting in personam has plenary power to affect title to realty in foreign jurisdictions by sale and conveyance thereof by its master in suits to execute trusts, undo frauds, or enforce contracts regarding such realty, having acquired jurisdiction of persons interested. Byrne v. Jones [C. C. A.] 159 F 321. Court of sister state could enforce agreement to divide profits from sale of land situated in Illinois. MacDonald v. Dexter, 234 Ill. 517, 85 NE 209. Suit by stockholders of a foreign corporation for recovery of assets and profits held in effect a proceeding in rem to establish a trust against certain other corporations as to certain mining property, giving equity jurisdiction, though title to foreign realty was incidentally involved, parties against whom relief was sought having appeared. Grant v. Greene, 111 NYS 1089. While court cannot reach and modify deed recorded in a sister state, where grantee appears in court to enforce rights thereunder against grantor, court may, at instance of defendant, compel reformation so as to express actual agreement. Lyndon Lumber Co. v. Sawyer, 135 Wis. 525, 116 NW 255. If court has jurisdiction of parties, it may decree foreclosure of chattel mortgage, though property be beyond its territorial jurisdiction. McDaniel v. Staples [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 596.

8. In suit to settle water rights, fact that defendant set up right to divert water up stream in adjoining state did not deprive court of power to determine priorities and adjudicate plaintiff's rights. Taylor v. Hulett [Idaho] 97 P 37.

9. Action for commissions for sale of land located without state is maintainable, though parties are nonresidents. McFadden v. Innes, 112 NYS 912. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 341, providing that for purpose of jurisdiction of county court a domestic corporation whose principal place of business is established by statute or is actually located in county shall be deemed resident of county, county court of Kings county has no jurisdiction of action against city of New York, defendant not being resident of Kings county, its principal place of business being in New York county. Maisch v. New York [N. Y.] 86 NE 458. That an insurer was a foreign corporation domiciled in another state held not to deprive equity court in Texas of jurisdiction in suit to determine status of parties under an insurance policy. Royal Fraternal Union v. Lundy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 185. Where foreign corporation had not complied with laws entitling it to do business in state and claimed it was not doing business there, courts of state could not acquire jurisdiction over it except in rem by foreign attachment. Vance v. Pullman Co., 160 F 707. See, also, Foreign Corporations, 11 C. L. 1508.

10. See Parties, 10 C. L. 1081.

11. Statutory, exclusive jurisdiction of domestic courts, see post, § 9A. See, also, 10 C. L. 521, n. 31.

12. See, also, Venue and Place of Trial, 10 C. L. 1965. Action may lie in South Carolina for tort committed in Florida. Crosby v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [S. C.] 61 SE 1064. Nonresidence of parties held no obstacle to jurisdiction where action was on domestic contract. Atkins v. Fitzpatrick, 57 Misc. 341, 109 NYS 619. Courts of New York are open to all suitors and will enforce transitory rights of action, where liability asserted is recognized at common law, is contractual in its nature and not against public policy of state. Hutchinson v. Ward [N. Y.] 85 NE 390. Suit on bond executed with mortgage in New Jersey held maintainable in New York, New Jersey statute relating to enforcement of such bonds and mortgages not confining action to New Jersey courts. Id. Circuit court of county in which partnership property is located has jurisdiction at suit of one partner to wind up partnership and administer its assets, though parties are nonresidents, other partner being found in such county. Hulings v. Jones, 63 W. Va. 696, 60 SE 874.

13. Action to establish and enforce a trust in realty is quasi in rem and courts of state where property is situated have jurisdiction, though trustee may be out of state. Gassert v. Strong [Mont.] 98 P 497.

14. See post, § 11B.

courts can have no jurisdiction over foreign sovereigns or property owned and operated by them for public purposes.[15] Where a wrong works injury in a state other than that in which it was committed, the courts of either state may grant relief provided jurisdiction in personam can be acquired.[16]

§ 6. Limitations resting in amount or value in controversy. See 10 C. L. 616—Division of jurisdiction between courts is often accomplished by fixing a maximum [17] or minimum amount [18] "involved," "claimed," "demanded," [19] or in "dispute" or "controversy," [20] and these amounts include or exclude interest and costs in accord-

15. Action for injuries from operation of railway operated by King of England for public purposes in Canada. Mason v. Intercolonial R. Co., 197 Mass. 349, 83 NE 876.

16. Diversion of water in Wyoming resulting in injury in Idaho could be inquired into by Idaho court where defendants were served in Idaho. Taylor v. Hulett [Idaho] 97 P 37.

17. Jurisdiction of justices of the peace as depending on amount in controversy, see Justices of the Peace, 10 C. L. 553.

Louisiana: Stipulation for trial of three separate but similar cases before one judge on same evidence held not to oust jurisdiction of city court, though sum of demands exceeded $100. Wisdom v. Bille, 120 La. 700, 45 S 554.

Massachusetts: District court without jurisdiction of action for damages in sum of $2,000 for money had and received. Hall v. Hall [Mass.] 86 NE 363. Could have allowed amendment reducing damages so as to give jurisdiction. Id.

New Jersey: If "balance" in dispute does not exceed $300, district court has jurisdiction (Bowler v. Osborne [N. J. Err. & App.] 70 A 149), hence fact that defendant's counterclaim was at first over $300 was not fatal where at trial she confessed plaintiff's claim so as to reduce her own to less than $300 (Id.). In suit for services, notice of recoupment of damages amounting to $710 held properly stricken as exceeding jurisdiction of district court. Corkran v. Taylor [N. J. Law] 71 A 124.

18. Arkansas: So-called penalty under Kirby's Dig. § 6649, for delay of railroad company in paying discharged employe, may be added to claim for wages in determining jurisdiction of circuit court. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Walsh [Ark.] 110 SW 222.

California: Superior court is without jurisdiction of action for services of value less than $300. Davis v. Treacy [Cal. App.] 97 P 78.

Georgia: Suit in which plaintiff states defendant is indebted to him on 77 notes for $10 each and prays judgment for principal and interest "of said notes" is within jurisdiction of city court of Atlanta, though only one note is attached as exhibit, especially when it is alleged the others are substantially in same form. Young v. Germania Sav. Bank [Ga. App.] 62 SE 999.

Illinois: Municipal court act (Acts 1905, p. 158), conferring on municipal court jurisdiction of actions on contracts express or implied, where amount claimed exceeds $1,000, is not class legislation. Chudnovski v. Eckels, 232 Ill. 312, 83 NE 846.

Maryland: Under Code Pub. Gen. Laws, art. 16, § 102, providing courts of equity shall not entertain suits "wherein the original debt or damages does not amount to $20," bill does not lie to restrain sale of land for nonpayment of taxes amounting to only $7.92. Smith v. Wells, 106 Md. 526, 68 A 134.

Michigan: Under Comp. Laws, §§ 10,789, 10,790, circuit courts specified therein have jurisdiction to enforce liens on certain water craft for material furnished, regardless of amount thereof. Detroit Lumber Co. v. The Petrel [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 506, 117 NW 80. Could enforce lien for less than $100. Id.

North Carolina: Jurisdiction is fixed by amount for which in aspect most favorable to plaintiff judgment could be rendered. Lenoir Realty & Inc. Co. v. Corpening [N. C.] 61 SE 528. In suit for 5 per cent commission for sale of realty for $4,000, recovery could not exceed $200 for breach by failure to convey. Id.

Texas: Suit in district court being on demand within its jurisdiction, court could entertain cross bill for overpayment of less than $500. Kelsey v. Collins [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 793. In actions to foreclose chattel mortgages, jurisdiction depends on value of property. McDaniel v. Staples [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 596. Fact that in suit to foreclose chattel mortgage petition stated that plaintiff did not know whether or not property was in the county held not to eliminate property from consideration in ascertaining amount in controversy. Id.

19. California: Jurisdiction of superior court under Const. art. 6, § 5, being dependent upon amount demanded, being as much as $300, where amount demanded exceeded this sum court had jurisdiction, though it was made up of smaller sums claimed in two different counts. Burke v. Maguire [Cal.] 98 P 21.

20. Louisiana: Where sublessee sued out injunction to protect himself in enjoyment of premises and also sought $2,000 damages for trespass already committed, value of sublease was part of "matter in dispute." Hirsh v. Valloft, 121 La. 66, 46 S 103.

Federal courts: Circuit court is without jurisdiction unless matter in dispute, exclusive of interest and costs, exceeds sum of $2,000, whether jurisdiction is based on diversity of citizenship or existence of federal question. Turner v. Jackson Lumber Co. [C. C. A.] 159 F 923. In suit to enjoin a nuisance, matter in dispute is not complainant's damage, but right of defendant to maintain the nuisance and value of such right controls. American Smelting & Refining Co. v. Godfrey [C. C. A.] 158 F 225. Bill to restrain enforcement of certain illegal regulations and charges held to show wrong in nature of continuing trespass of which court had jurisdiction, where complainant was subjected to charges amounting to some $1,600 a year. Chesapeake & Delaware Canal Co. v. Gring [C. C. A.] 159 F 662. In suit to enjoin rail-ance with the terms of the various statutes.[21] The amount involved is usually determined by the amount demanded by pleadings [22] unless it is clear as a matter of law that such amount cannot be in dispute or that it is merely colorable or fictitious.[23] Unless a pleading of itself shows fraud, the opposite party must allege and prove it.[24] Ordinarily distinct claims cannot be added so as to confer jurisdiction,[25] nor can a single cause be split and jurisdiction acquired of its parts.[26] In ancillary proceedings, the amount in controversy often becomes unimportant.[27]

§ 7. Limitations resting in character of subject-matter or object of action. See 10 C. L. 519—Particularly with respect to courts below those of general original jurisdiction,[28] and in cases of appeals,[29] is jurisdiction denied or conferred where the action involves the title to land,[30] a freehold,[31] constitutional questions [32] properly raised road companies from enforcing new rates, matter in dispute is right of defendants to enforce the rates. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Pacific Coast Lumber Mfgrs' Ass'n [C. C. A.] 165 F 1. Suit to enjoin taxes and not to remove cloud from title held not cognizable, amount of taxes not exceeding $2,000. Turner v. Jackson Lumber Co. [C. C. A.] 159 F 923; Id. [C. C. A.] 159 F 926. Whole sum sued for in action on bonds by joint owners thereof held controlling and not interest of each. Thomas v. Green County [C. C. A.] 159 F 339. In action on several notes, amount in controversy is aggregate of judgment prayed for. Heffner v. Gwynne-Treadwell Cotton Co. [C. C. A.] 160 F 635. Question not local so as to be controlled by state statutes or decisions. Id. Corporate stock is presumed to be worth par, on question of amount in controversy. Bernier v. Griscom-Spencer Co., 161 F 438. In suit for accounting by surviving partner, amount involved in value of entire partnership property. Rogers v. Lawton, 162 F 203. Under Mansf. Dig. § 4026 (Ind T. Ann. St. 1899, § 2706), defining jurisdiction of justices of the peace, plaintiff in United States commissioner's court having concurrent jurisdiction may sue and join as many causes as he may have against same defendant, provided each separate cause does not exceed $300. Reaves v. Turner [Okl.] 94 P 543.

21. Texas: Where suit in justice court was for $192 only, amendment on appeal to county court increasing demand to $200 and interest and costs held to raise claim beyond jurisdiction of county court. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Crenshaw [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 117. County court held to have jurisdiction of action for damages to shipment of cattle resulting in judgment for $675, though judgment for $908.82 and interest was demanded. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Pool [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 685.

22. Where damages claimed in the "writ" were $600, superior court had jurisdiction under Court and Practice Act 1905, § 10, though claim in declaration was of value of only $400. Ryder v. Brennan, 28 R. I. 538, 68 A 477. That proof showed value of property was less than $200 did not deprive court of jurisdiction to render judgment in foreclosure proceedings, it not being alleged or proven that amount alleged was frandulent or fictitious. McDaniel v. Staples [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 596.

23. Attorney's fees and damages could be included so as to raise demand to amount, within jurisdiction of district court, though under law these items were not recoverable, claim being bona fide and defendant not objecting or excepting to inclusion of such items. Lane v. General Acc. Ins. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 324. That certain matters alleged in complaint tended to disprove allegation as to amount in controversy held not fatal where such matters did not create a legal certainty that allegation was not well founded. Henry & Sons & Co. v. Colorado Farm & Live Stock Co. [C. C. A.] 164 F 986.

24. Lane v. General Acc. Ins. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 324.

25. Jurisdiction could not be conferred on circuit court by bringing single suit on several notes each for $26, though notes constituted a series given for price of a chattel. American Soda Fountain Co. v. Battle, 85 Ark. 213, 107 SW 672. See ante as to federal courts.

26. Two suits held not maintainable in justice court, each for killing of a mule, where both mules were killed simultaneously by same cause and value aggregated over $200. Yazoo, etc., R. Co. v. Payne [Miss.] 45 S 705.

27. Immaterial in ancillary suit by receiver for accounting and foreclosure of deed. Cooper v. Newton, 160 F 190. In suit to enforce attorney's lien. Brown v. Morgan, 163 F 395. That amount involved in garnishment proceedings in district court was within jurisdiction of county court did not give latter court jurisdiction where proceedings were not original but ancillary for enforcement of district court judgment. Simmang v. Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. [Tex.] 112 SW 1044.

28. See Justices of the Peace, 10 C. L. 553. Also Wills, 10 C. L. 2035, and Estates of Decedents, 11 C. L. 1275.

30. For questions of appellate jurisdiction, see Appeal and Review, 11 C. L. 118. See, also, 10 C. L. 519.

County court has jurisdiction where title is only incidentally involved. Henslee v. Boyd [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 128. Without jurisdiction of suit to establish an easement. Id. Action for value of timber and to enjoin cutting and removal of more timber held not to involve title to land so as to deprive county court of jurisdiction. Springer v. Collins [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 758. Was not action of forcible entry and detainer though plaintiff asked for possession of land. Id.

Municipal court cannot be ousted of jurisdiction in summary dispossession proceedings on ground title to realty is involved. Drake and passed upon below,[33] saved for review,[34] and assigned for error in the appellate court,[35] questions of law decided erroneously or contrary to other decisions,[36] the construction of statutes,[37] taxes or revenue,[38] penalties or forfeitures,[39] certain contractual [40] or tort liabilities,[41] and where any kind of equitable relief or cognizance is sought.[42] More often the statute merely prescribes what jurisdiction inferior courts

v. Cunningham, 111 NYS 199. Action to recover award for land owned by plaintiff but by mistake paid to defendant held to involve title where answer denied plaintiff's title. Taylor v. Gilleran, 111 NYS 719. Action should have been dismissed though defendant did not file bond under Laws 1902, §§ 179, 180, providing for such filing where title is set up for first time in answer, since in order to maintain action plaintiff would be compelled to show title in himself. Id. Plaintiff could not contend defendant did not dispute title where evidence offered by defendant showing his title was excluded on plaintiff's objection. Id. Action for loan broker's services held not to involve title to realty so as to divest jurisdiction. Hevia v. Lopardo, 111 NYS 663.

Probate court cannot determine title to realty. In re Strom's Estate [Mo.] 111 SW 534. Under Code 1896, § 3176 (Civ. Code 1907, § 5220), denying to probate court jurisdiction of partition proceedings when adverse claim or title is asserted, probate court is without jurisdiction if adverse claim or title is asserted in good faith, unless it is clear claimant had neither actual possession claiming adversely nor superior title. Layton v. Campbell [Ala.] 46 S 775. If clear he has neither, court has jurisdiction despite good faith of adverse claim. Id. Question of title to land as between widow and heirs of decedent cannot be determined by proceedings for settlement of the estate where sale is not required for payment of debts or legacies, since generally question can be settled only by direct action in law or equity in which issues may be properly litigated. Matheson v. Matheson [Iowa] 117 NW 755.

39. Suit on bond given to replevy liquor seized under Act April 5, 1907 (Acts 1907, p. 156, c. 77), held one to declare forfeiture or recover penalties, and hence not within jurisdiction of county court. Dupree v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 769, 107 SW 926; Malone v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 927.

40. Action against carrier for personal injury to passenger held action on implied contract within municipal court act, § 2 (Acts 1905, p. 158), conferring on municipal court jurisdiction of actions on contracts, express or implied, within limits as to amount involved. Chudnovski v. Eckels, 232 Ill. 312, 83 NE 846. Act held not invalid as denying equal rights. Id. Evidence in action for conversion of a piano held to bring case within Laws 1902, c. 580, § 139, prohibiting actions in municipal court of city of New York on written contracts of conditional sale of personalty, except to forclose lien. Jacob v Columbia Storage Warehouses, 109 NYS 1015.

41. Passenger's action against carrier held for battery and not for breach of contract, and so not within jurisdiction of municipal court. Miller v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 111 NYS 47. Error to admit evidence in support of action for malicious prosecution joined with another action cognizable by court. Telzer v. Brooklyn Union Elev. R. Co., 113 NYS 18.

Statutory, exclusive jurisdiction of domestic courts, see post, § 9A.

42. Terms "civil actions" as used in practice act includes actions for equitable or legal relief, or both (Luddington v. Merrill [Conn.] 71 A 504), hence all courts to which civil actions as defined by the act may properly be made returnable, except justice courts, may in absence of express law to contrary apply both legal and equitable remedies (Id.).

Circuit court has general equity jurisdiction to entertain action to partition personalty, appoint receiver, order property delivered to him, enter interlocutory decrees, and grant any relief necessary to exigencies of the case or contumacy of parties. Laing v. Williams, 135 Wis. 253, 115 NW 821.

City court of Miller county is without equity jurisdiction. Geer v. Cowart [Ga. App.] 62 SE 1054. Set-off involving equitable relief held properly stricken. Id. Sp. Act 1895 (12 Sp. Laws, p. 65), § 22, giving city court of Waterbury jurisdiction of "all civil actions" involving not more than $100, gives jurisdiction where either legal or equitable relief, or both, is demanded (Luddington v. Merrill [Conn.] 71 A 504), and court has jurisdiction of suit to foreclose a chattel mortgage securing $80 note (Id.). Though city court may entertain "equitable defenses," it is without jurisdiction where in action against a bank by transferee of an account bank by motion to interplead seeks to set aside transfer of account on ground of transferor's insanity. Edwards v. Greenwich Sav. Bank, 110 NYS 920.

Municipal court without power to cancel for mistake written instrument under seal. Pelgram v. Ehrenzweig, 58 Misc. 195, 109 NYS 55. Proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2256, 2257, though equitable in nature, held not within Const. art. 6, § 18, prohibiting legislature from conferring equitable jurisdiction on inferior or local courts, or municipal court act Laws 1902, p. 1490, c. 580, § 2, providing that municipal court shall not have equitable jurisdiction. shall have, impliedly excluding all else.[43] By statute the jurisdictions of courts of bankruptcy,[44] courts of probate and the like,[45] often become exclusive or at least primary.[46] Special statutory or constitutional jurisdictions are limited to occasions and objects contemplated by the law creating them.[47] That evidence in support of an action ordinarily cognizable by the court would be equally necessary in an action without the court's jurisdiction is not fatal.[48] The division of jurisdiction between state and federal courts and the conflict of their jurisdictions are treated in subsequent sections.[49]

Courts have no power to control or supervise legislative or official administrative discretion,[50] nor do they interfere with the management or proceedings of political parties except as authorized by statute.[51]

§ 8. Limitations resting in character or capacity of parties litigant. See 10 C. L. 521

§ 9. Original jurisdicton. A. Exclusive, concurrent and conflicting. See 10 C. L. 522—When by reason of any of the statutes or rules just considered [52] only one tribunal can act authoritatively, its jurisdiction is exclusive.[53] If two or more courts have jurisdiction, this is concurrent.[54] When proceedings in one court interfere with

808. Though in summary dispossession proceedings, right to renewal of lease and waiver of conditions were not available as basis for affirmative relief, they were equitable defenses which court could determine. Flanagan v. MacNutt, 113 NYS 42.

44. See Bankruptcy, 11 C. L. 383.

45. Superior court has probate jurisdiction but can exercise it only on appeal from court of probate which has original jurisdiction, and on appeal superior court acts as a probate court. Appeal of Woodward [Conn.] 70 A 453. Though supreme court will not entertain jurisdiction of suit to require an executor to account if that alone is involved (In re Farrell, 110 NYS 41), it will take jurisdiction if matters are involved of which surrogate's court is without jurisdiction (Id.). Would retain jurisdiction of proceeding for accounting by, and settlement with, estate of deceased executrix, and her executor as such and in his individual capacity, though proceeding for accounting by executor was pending in surrogate's court. Id.

Ruling of post office department that mail addressed to certain corporation shall be delivered to it and not to a corporation of similar name will not be interfered with merely because majority of letters are in fact intended for latter company. National Life Ins. Co. of U. S. A. v. National Life Ins. Co., 209 U. S. 317, 52 Law. Ed. 808.

51. Kump v. McDonald [W. Va.] 61 SE 909. Could not issue writ of prohibition against executive committee to prohibit recount of primary election ballots. Id. In absence of statutory authorization, courts are without jurisdiction ratione materiae in matter of contesting elections. Darbonne v. Oberlin, 121 La. 641, 46 S 679. Held not authorized to pass on conduct of local option elections. Id.

52. See ante, §§ 4-8.

53. Exclusive jurisdiction of federal courts, see post, § 11A. Gen. St. 1902, § 537, providing that all actions for equitable relief against causes pending or judgments rendered in superior court shall be brought in that court, precludes suit in equity in court of common pleas by garnishee in superior court for relief relating to the garnishment. Cronan v. Mersick, 80 Conn. 593, 69 A 938. Superior courts of Georgia have exclusive jurisdiction in equity causes. Civ. Code 1895, § 5842. Geer v. Cowart [Ga. App.] 62 SE 1054. Amended charter of city of Kalamazoo construed and held to confer on municipal court justice exclusive jurisdiction of certain actions between residents of city, his jurisdiction in such cases not being merely concurrent with that of the other justices until expiration of latter's terms. Strifling v. Baden [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 948, 118 NW 740. State courts have sole jurisdiction of actions by trustees in bankruptcy to recover property except actions to avoid preferences or recover property fraudulently conveyed. Drew v. Myers [Neb.] 116 NW 781. Constitutional jurisdiction of county court over matters pertaining to minors, idiots, estates of deceased persons, etc., is exclusive and can be exercised by no other court in state. Kennedy v. Pearson [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 280. Under New Mexico statute (Laws 1903, p. 51, c. 33), requiring all actions for personal injuries received in that territory to be brought in courts thereof, Texas courts have no jurisdiction of actions by resident citizens of New Mexico for injuries received by them in that territory. Southern Pac. Co. v. Dusablon [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 712, 106 SW 766.

54. Concurrent jurisdiction of state and federal courts, see post, § 11A.

Arkansas: Circuit and chancery courts have concurrent jurisdiction to partition land but proceedings in both cannot be concurrentproceeedings in another, there is a conflict of jurisdictions,[55] and the court which first acquired jurisdiction retains it to the exclusion of the other.[56] When similar proceed-ly pursued. Dunbar v. Bourland [Ark.] 114 SW 467.

Illinois: Superior court of Cook county and circuit court of that county have concurrent general jurisdiction. Cobe v. Guyer, 139 Ill. App. 580; Kerr v. Flewelling, 235 Ill. 326. 85 NE 624. County court and circuit court have equal and concurrent jurisdiction in proceedings to ascertain compensation for private property taken for public use. Bell v. Mattoon Waterworks & Reservoir Co., 235 Ill. 218, 85 NE 214.

Kentucky: Though county court has jurisdiction to determine inheritance tax questions (Acts 1906, c. 22, §§ 13, 14, 15), equity court may also require payment of such tax before distributing on estate. Barrett v. Continental Realty [Ky.] 114 SW 750.

Michigan: Courts of Charlevoix county have concurrent jurisdiction of prosecution under Pub. Acts 1899, p. 128, Act No. 88, § 2, for unlawfully having fish in one's possession on lake within jurisdiction of village of Manistique. People v. Coffey [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 947, 118 NW 732.

Oklahoma: Criminal court of appeals, supreme, district and county courts, have concurrent original jurisdiction in habeas corpus. Ex parte Johnson [Okl. Cr. App.] 98 P 461.

Wisconsin: Under Laws 1895, p. 66, c. 24, creating municipal court for city of Oshkosh and giving it concurrent jurisdiction with circuit court in all cases of "crimes and misdemeanors" arising in the city, with certain exceptions, and vesting it with jurisdiction in all criminal or bastardy cases, a bastardy proceeding is not a "criminal action." Goyke v. State [Wis.] 117 NW 1027. Under Laws 1905, p. 446, c. 295, conferring on superior court of Lincoln county jurisdiction equal to and concurrent with circuit court in "all civil actions and proceedings at law and in equity," etc., superior court or judge thereof has same power to appoint commissioners in condemnation proceedings as is possessed by circuit courts or judges. Wisconsin River Imp. Co. v. Pier [Wis.] 118 NW 857.

55. No court will entertain an application to require doing of things enjoined against by other competent judicial authority. State v. Dispensary Commission, 79 S. C. 316, 60 SE 928. Ex parte proceeding in state court to foreclose mortgage under local statute, grantee from mortgagor not being party, held not to affect jurisdiction of federal court of suit by grantee against mortgagee for accounting of proceeds of insurance policies and damages for settlement of loss for less than amount due. Jacob Tome Institute v. Whitcomb [C. C. A.] 160 F 835.

Interference with probate proceedings: Decree in superior court compelling specific performance of compromise between heir and devisee and directing executor to pay plaintiff her share as per agreement when time for distribution shall have come held not undue interference with settlement of estate in probate court. Blount v. Wheeler, 199 Mass. 330, 85 NE 477. Where in action in supreme court under Code Civ. Proc. § 2653a, and Laws 1892, p. 1136, c. 591, for determination of validity of probated will, court enjoins executor from distributing testamentary fund, jurisdiction of surrogate's court is pro tanto suspended. Shea v. Bergen, 110 NYS 572. See post, § 9B. Filing of claim against estate of a decedent with clerk of state district court as per state statute held not to bar suit thereon in federal court on ground action was pending in state court. Farmers' Bank of Cuba City v. Wright, 158 F 841. Action not ancillary to allege action in state court. Id. Jurisdiction of United States circuit court of bill seeking declaration and foreclosure of attorney's lien on distributive shares of heirs held not defeated because settlement of estate was pending in probate court, no interference with jurisdiction of that court being sought or decreed, but rights of parties being adjudged and decreed to be redressed only when probate should have finished its functions. Ingersoll v. Coram, 29 S. Ct. 92.

56. Royal League Kavanagh, 233 Ill. 175, 84 NE 178; Bigelow v. Old Dominion Copper Min. & Smelting Co. [N. J. Eq.] 71 A 153; In re Farrell, 110 NYS 41. As between state and federal court. State v. Palmer [C. C. A.] 158 F 705. Court first obtaining jurisdiction of controversy may proceed without interference from courts of concurrent jurisdiction, actual or constructive possession of subject-matter of suit not being essential. Vowinckel v. Clark, 162 F 991. Court first acquiring jurisdiction of specific property thereby withdraws same from jurisdiction of every other court so far as necessary to accomplish purpose of suit. Lang v. Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf R. Co. [C. C. A.] 160 F 355; Sullivan v. Algrem [C. C. A.] 160 F 366; Robinson v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 162 F 794. Jurisdiction thus acquired includes power to protect and effectuate its decrees or judgments and titles of purchasers and others thereunder, against attempts to impair them by proceedings in other courts, and court may lawfully retain jurisdiction for that purpose after its surrender of the property. Lang v. Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf R. Co. [C. C. A.] 160 F 355. State court held without power to adjudge certain bonds a lien on railroad property in possession of federal court, lien being sought only as part of order of sale which could not be decreed by state court. Wabash R. Co. v. Adelbert College, 208 U. S. 609, 52 Law. Ed. 642. Taking of jurisdiction by court of competent authority excludes jurisdiction of all other courts over case and all its incidents, except courts with appellate or supervisory control. State v. Reynolds, 209 Mo. 161, 107 SW 487. Other courts powerless to interfere with possession of receiver appointed by equity court having jurisdiction. Id. Where a receiver is regularly appointed for a trust company for preservation of the assets, he is not superseded by receiver appointed at instance of attorney general by another court under bill to dissolve under Feb. 11, 1895 (P. L. 4), creating a banking department. Jones v. Lincoln Sav. & Trust Co. [Pa.] 71 A 209. Though under statute action against a receiver will lie in counties other than that wherein he was appointed, court in such action may not disturb receiver's possession of property in custody of court appointing him

ings are pending in courts of concurrent jurisdiction, the later proceeding should be stayed.[57] A state court has no power to enjoin proceedings in federal courts,[58] and the power of federal courts over suits in state courts is restricted by statute.[59] A final judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction renders a similar suit res adjudicata in a court of concurrent jurisdiction.[60] A court cannot review the orders or judgments of another court of concurrent jurisdiction.[61]

(Paine v. Carpenter [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 430), but proceedings necessary to execution of foreign court's judgment should be taken by appointing court (Id.). Federal court cannot entertain and proceed with suit to foreclose a mortgage on the property of a railway company while it is in actual custody of a state court through its receiver appointed in a prior suit to foreclose a junior mortgage, nor can federal court remove state receiver or interfere with his management of the property. Cochran v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 158 F 549. Where relief in aid of which receiver is sought cannot be obtained except by actual seizure of the property, as where a lien is enforced, actual seizure is not necessary to exclude interference by other courts, but order appointing receiver is sufficient. State v. Palmer [C. C. A.] 158 F 705. Jurisdiction acquired by state court by appointment of receiver held not lost by supersedeas on appeal so as to authorize federal court to interfere by appointment of receiver pending appeal. Id. Suit by mortgage creditor of a corporation in a state court in which receivers were appointed, though appointment was afterward vacated pending hearing, is in rem, giving court exclusive jurisdiction of property, and federal court will not interfere in subsequent suit by appointing receivers at instance of a different complainant, though bill in state court did not state it was filed for all parties interested. Interstate R. Co. v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 164 F 770. Jurisdiction of federal court in administration of property of insolvent corporation held not divested by subsequent state court dissolution judgment. Robinson v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 162 F 794. Federal court held without power to appoint receiver for insolvent corporation, custody of whose property was already in state courts. Sullivan v. Algrem [C. C. A.] 160 F 366. After institution of action at law for partition of property, defendant could not sue in equity for same purpose. Dunbar v. Bourland [Ark.] 114 SW 467. Municipal court held without jurisdiction to determine collaterally a disputed question of heirship where such question was already directly in issue on appeal in circuit court. Thomas v. Olenick, 140 Ill. App. 385. Jurisdiction of federal court of bankruptcy over estate of bankrupt continues until trustee actually pays over to distributees dividends awarded them (Rockland Sav. Bank v. Alden, 103 Me. 230, 68 A 863), and hence funds against which checks for dividends had been regularly drawn but not yet delivered to distributee were yet in custodia legis and not subject to trustee process from state court (Id.). Case different where distributee's creditor merely intervenes as assignee of dividend and not by trustee proceeding. Id. Supreme court having taken jurisdiction of certain subject-matter in ejectment, chancery court cannot divest it or interfere in any way with ordinary process of common-law courts. City of Hoboken v. Hoboken & M. R. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 70 A 926. Where pending ancillary condemnation proceedings in foreclosure suit in federal court property was sold under foreclosure decree of such court, decree reserving all subsequent proper questions, and conveyance was made to purchaser with benefit to him of all suits or proceedings which had been instituted by receivers, federal court retained jurisdiction to such extent as to enable it to entertain supplemental bill by purchaser to enjoin mortgagees whose interest was sought to be reached by the condemnation proceedings from prosecuting foreclosure in state court until conclusion of condemnation proceedings. Taylor v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 162 F 452.

Probate matters: Where orphan's court has assumed jurisdiction of suit for recovery of a legacy under Orphan's Court Act, § 3 (P. L. 1898, p. 716), chancery will not interfere unless good cause is shown. Bower v. Bower [N. J. Eq.] 69 A 1077. Surrogate having acquired complete jurisdiction of matter of appointing successor to a trustee under Code Civ. Proc. § 2818, such jurisdiction could not be ousted by intervention of supreme court having concurrent jurisdiction. In re Brady's Estate, 58 Misc. 108, 110 NYS 755.

57. See, also, Abatement and Revival, 11 C. L. 1; Stay of Proceedings, 10 C. L. 1726. Where court of co-ordinate jurisdiction secures by proper process the custody or dominion of specific property which it is one of the objects of a federal court to subject to its judgment or decree, later suit should not be dismissed but should be stayed until proceedings in court which obtained prior custody are concluded, or ample time for their termination has elapsed, or custody or dominion is released. Sullivan v. Algrem [C. C. A.] 160 F 366. Where state court in suit to abate a nuisance and recover damages has issued injunction pendente lite, federal court will on motion of defendant stay a subsequent suit brought therein for identical relief until first has been disposed of. Vowinckel v. Clark, 162 F 991.

61. One justice of supreme court at special term held without jurisdiction to review acts of another such justice at special term. Silver & Co. v. Waterman, 111 NYS 546. Order made by court or judge without authority may be reviewed by court of co-ordinate jurisdiction and should be vacated on notice. Commitment for contempt. Stewart v. Stewart, 111 NYS 734. Terre tenants could not in their own county have injunction to restrain holders of a judgment obtained in another county from levying on complainant's property. Lehigh, etc., R. Co. v. Hanhauser [Pa.] 70 A 1089. Situs of property immaterial. Id. Election for incorporation of a village under order of circuit court of one

Though equity court may not proceed directly against foreign courts, they have power in proper cases to restrain persons within their own jurisdictions from prosecuting actions in other states or countries,[62] but to justify such relief it must appear that equitable rights will otherwise be denied the person seeking it,[63] and a court of one sovereignty may not even by injunction operating only on the parties litigant interfere with a court of another sovereignty in the regular execution of its judgments.[64]

(§ 9) B. Ancillary or assistant jurisdiction See 10 C. L. 524 is that which is exercised in proceedings which are incident to or in aid of a main proceeding.[65] Jurisdictional criteria essential to the main proceeding need not ordinarily coexist in the ancillary one.[66]

(§ 9) C. General or inferior, limited and special jurisdiction. See 10 C. L. 524—A general jurisdiction is one which is undefined, and which will embrace all judicable cases not withheld from it, either expressly or by implication.[67] county held not void because violative of injunction order from circuit court of another county. In re Clark, 135 Wis. 437, 115 NW 387.

62. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. v. Rubber Tire Wheel Co., 164 F 869. Could by decree in personam enjoin interference with complainant's business by bringing suits in a foreign country based on a patent which court had decreed complainant was not infringing. Id. Courts of equity may restrain persons within their jurisdictions from prosecuting actions in foreign states which would result in fraud or gross wrong or oppression. Royal League v. Kavanagh, 233 Ill. 175, 84 NE 178. Equity will in proper case and on proper terms restrain prosecution of action wherein a litigant oppresses his adversary by suing in a foreign jurisdiction for purpose of evading some established local policy of jurisdiction where parties are domiciled. Bigelow v. Old Dominion Copper Min. & Smelting Co. [N. J. Eq.] 71 A 153. Court of one state having jurisdiction in personam of receiver appointed by it in proceeding to dissolve a domestic corporation may in proper case restrain him from further prosecuting an action begun by him in another state. Guaranty Trust Co. v. Edison United Phonograph Co., 128 App. Div. 591, 112 NYS 929. Could do so where question of ownership and right to dispose of stock could be more conveniently and decisively settled in action in home state. Id.

63. Royal League v. Kavanagh, 233 Ill. 175, 84 NE 178. Not enough that there is reason to anticipate difference of opinion between domestic and foreign court. Id. Allegation that courts of another state had declared law to be different from that laid down by domestic courts held insufficient, it not appearing such foreign courts were courts of final appellate jurisdiction. Id. That federal courts have different views of law from that held by courts of Massachusetts where controversy is pending does not justify equity court of New Jersey from restraining corporation of latter state from prosecuting actions in Massachusetts against resident of that state. Bigelow v. Old Dominion Copper Min. & Smelting Co. [N. J. Eq.] 71 A 153. Power of courts of equity to restrain persons within control of their process from prosecuting suits in other states is clear, but on grounds of comity should be sparingly exercised. Id. Court will not enjoin prosecution of equitable suit already pending in court of full jurisdiction in sister state on any theory that it can better weigh evidence or more justly apply general principles, or on ground that it recognizes different rules of law or equity. Id. Mere showing that action in foreign state is unconscionable or that complainant in that action is estopped from suing there held insufficient. Id. Right to restrain proceeding in foreign state held lost by laches, acquiescence and waiver. Id.

64. Smith v. Reed [N. J. Eq.] 70 A 961. State court held powerless to restrain plaintiff in federal court from issuing execution, pending interpleader suit, where third person had attached judgment debt. Id.

65. Jurisdiction of incidental questions in same proceeding, see ante, § 2. Where court has jurisdiction of person and subject-matter, it has power to make such orders and issue such writs and process as may be necessary to effectuate its decree. In suit to determine water rights, court could award injunction restraining defendants from appropriating water in another state so as to deprive complainant of amount of water he was entitled to in state of forum. Taylor v. Hulett [Idaho] 97 P 37. After commencement of proceeding in supreme court under Code Civ. Proc. § 2653a, and Laws 1892, p. 1136, c. 591, providing for determination of validity of wills admitted to probate court to protect its jurisdiction over testamentary fund, may enjoin distribution by executor under probate decree, exercise of such control being incidental to court's jurisdiction under § 2653a. Shea v. Bergen, 110 NYS 572.

66. See ante, § 6, and post, §§ 11A, 11B, 11C.

67. Existence and Extent. Colorado: Legal and equitable constitutional jurisdiction of district court includes determination of claims to priorities in appropriation of water from public streams, and is not affected by statutes dividing state into water districts and providing for adjudication of priorities in those districts. Kerr v. Burns [Colo.] 93 P 1120.

Illinois: Superior court of Cook county has general jurisdiction concurrent with circuit court of that county. Cobe v. Guyer, 139 Ill. App. 580. May appoint receivers for homestead and loan associations. Id.

Indiana: Circuit court has jurisdiction of actions on insurance policies though policies were issued in another state. United States Health & Acc. Ins. Co. v. Clark, 41 Ind. App. 345, 83 NE 760.

Missouri: That a division of circuit court was assigned, criminal cases occupying its

New York: Supreme court special term has power during trial of an action at trial term to allow service of supplemental answer pleading recovery in another action. Jones v. Ramsey, 111 NYS 993.

Wisconsin: Under Const. art. 7, § 8, giving circuit courts jurisdiction in all cases "not hereafter prohibited by law," jurisdiction is prohibited by law when it has been in terms or by necessary implication conferred on some other court. Goyke v. State [Wis.] 117 NW 1027. Laws 1895, p. 66, c. 24, creating municipal court for city of Oshkosh and Winnebago county, "prohibited" circuit court of Winnebago county from exercising jurisdiction in bastardy proceedings. Id.

69. Idaho: Act March 2, 1905, conferring on probate court power to investigate charges concerning delinquent children, held constitutional. Ex parte Sharp [Idaho] 96 P 563.

Maryland: Orphan's court is restricted to exercise of powers expressly delegated and these cannot be extended by construction or implication. Flater v. Weaver [Md.] 71 A 309.

Pennsylvania: Orphan's court is without jurisdiction in escheat proceedings except as given by Act May 2, 1889 (P. L. 66). In re Alton's Estate, 220 Pa. 258, 69 A 902.

70. Florida: Gen. St. 1906, §§ 1200 et seq., and Laws 1907, c. 5706, amending § 1203, empowering county judge's courts to inquire into sanity of persons, commit lunatics, and appoint guardians, held not violative of state or federal constitution as depriving of due process or of jury trial. Ex parte Scudamore [Fla.] 46 S 279.

New York: Constitutional and statutory provisions considered, and held county court of Kings county is without jurisdiction of action against city of New York. Maisch v. New York, 111 NYS 645.

Oregon: As to probate matters, county court is a superior court of general jurisdiction. Nolan v. Hughes [Or.] 93 P 362.

Texas: Jurisdiction of county court to transact all business pertaining to deceased persons, minors, idiots, etc., is exclusive. Kennedy v. Pearson [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 280.

West Virginia: County court has exclusive and final jurisdiction over matter of granting license to sell liquors. Myers v. Circuit Court [W. Va.] 63 SE 201.

71. Oklahoma: Mayors of incorporated towns and cities in Indian Territory had jurisdiction in all civil cases arising within corporate limits, coextensive with jurisdiction of United States commissioners. Baker v. Marcum [Okl.] 97 P 572.

72. See Justices of the Peace, 10 C. L. 553.

73. Georgia: City court of Atlanta has general common-law jurisdiction, exceptions on account of exclusive jurisdiction of superior court and court of ordinary in certain cases notwithstanding. Young v. Germania Sav. Bank [Ga. App.] 62 SE 999. Has jurisdiction of action on notes for price of land in which general judgment and special lien on land are prayed. Id. Amount in controversy, see ante, § 6.

Kansas: City court held to have jurisdiction of statutory action against railway company for damages from fire, action not being in nature of common-law trespass quare clausum fregit, though bill of particulars stated plaintiff was "possessed" of realty in question. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Matson, 77 Kan. 858, 94 P 1134.

New York: City court of New York is without jurisdiction of actions against city. Maisch v. New York, 111 NYS 645. Laws 1901, p. 574, c. 466, § 1345, granting to municipal court a limited jurisdiction in actions against city of New York and omitting clause of Laws 1897, § 262, giving supreme court exclusive jurisdiction in such cases, did not give city court jurisdiction of actions against city. O'Connor v. New York, 191 N. Y. 238, 83 NE 979. Statutory provisions reviewed and held city court of New York city has jurisdiction of supplementary proceedings on judgments recovered in municipal court, though transcript has been filed in office of county clerk. Hottenroth v. Flaherty, 112 NYS 1111. City court of New York city has jurisdiction of action by a foreign corporation to recover money only. Woodward Lumber Co. v. General Supply & Const. Co., 113 NYS 628. Suit to recover money deposited to secure performance of services as janitor is not for accounting so as to deprive city court of New York city of jurisdiction, though defendant claims janitor received rents in excess of deposit. Niele v. Stokes, 113 NYS 704.

74. New York: Municipal court of city of New York is without inherent powers, being possessed of only such as the statute confers. Fluegelman v. Armstrong, 110 NYS 967; Thompson v. Hudson Bldg., 110 NYS 1077. Being of purely statutory creation every step taken by it must be based on authority expressly given or clearly to be inferred from statute. Colwell v. New York, etc., R. Co., 57 Misc. 623, 108 NYS 540. Has limited jurisdiction to foreclose mechanic's liens. Schumer v. Kohn, 111 NYS 728. Fact that in action by attorney against husband for services rendered wife in separation action it was necessary for plaintiff to show just cause for separation did not oust court's jurisdiction, such evidence being merely incidental to action on implied contract. Beyer v. Hadden, 113 NYS 529. Held without jurisdiction to open default and thus in effect set aside satisfaction of judgment duly entered and compelling plaintiff to again litigate. Fluegelman v. Armstrong, 110 NYS 967. Has no power to set aside default judgment but only to open default and set case for pleading. Friedberger v. Stulpnagel, 112 NYS 89. Held without authority to reinstate verdict and judgment by vacating its final order setting verdict aside and granting new trial. Colwell v. New York R. Co., 57 Misc. 623, 108 different states. The jurisdiction of courts cannot be affected by agreement of the parties,[76] except as to the manner of its acquisition or divestiture.[77]

(§ 9) D. Original jurisdiction of courts of last resort.[See 10 C. L. 526]—This includes the prerogative, common-law jurisdiction necessary to the proper control and supervision of the courts below,[78] and in its more common sense, such as the constitution and statutes prescribe.[79]

NYS 540. Action of justice in ordering payment of plaintiff's disbursements and in himself taxing costs, as condition to opening default, held extra jurisdictional. Thompson v. Hudson Bldg., 110 NYS 1077.

75. Powers of inferior courts will be strictly confined within the limits prescribed by statute. Friedberger v. Stulpnagel, 112 NYS 89.

76. Agreement not to sue on a judgment in state courts, but, if at all, only in Russia, held not within rule that parties cannot by stipulation oust state courts of jurisdiction (Gitler v. Russian Co., 124 App. Div. 273, 108 NYS 793), there being a distinction between agreement not to submit to courts a particular pending controversy and one attempting to withdraw all future controversies between contracting parties (Id.).

77. See post, § 13.

78. See, also, Appeal and Review, 11 C. L. 118; Mandamus, 10 C. L. 662; Prohibition, Writ of, 10 C. L. 1277; Quo Warranto, 10 C. L. 1356.

Kentucky: By virtue of general control conferred by Const. § 110, court of appeals may issue prohibition to prevent inferior courts from exceeding their jurisdictions or from invading jurisdictions of other courts, and may so control inferior courts having jurisdiction as to prevent irreparable injustice. Renshaw v. Cook, 33 Ky. L. R. 860, 895, 111 SW 377. Application for writ of mandamus to compel a judge to sign a judgment or enter new judgment nunc pro tunc should be made to circuit court, though Const. § 110 confers original jurisdiction also on supreme court. Montgomery v. Viers [Ky.] 114 SW 251.

Louisiana: Supervisory jurisdiction of supreme court is broader under constitution of 1898 than it was under that of 1879. McClelland v. Gasquet [La.] 47 S 540. Certain remedial writs held within power of court to grant against objections of prematurity, and appealability of orders. Id.

Missouri: Rev. St. 1899, § 1674, subd. 4 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 1217), conferring on circuit courts superintending control over probate courts, does not contemplate appeal (Morris v. Morris, 128 Mo. App. 673, 107 SW 405), but only means of exercising such control is by original writ such as certiorari, mandamus or prohibition (Id.).

Pennsylvania: Supreme court may issue all sorts of process and use and adopt all sorts of legal forms necessary to give effect to its supervisory authority. Schmuck v. Hartman [Pa.] 70 A 1091.

Wisconsin: Power of supreme court under Const. art. 7, § 3, to exercise superintending control over inferior courts, may be exercised in criminal as well as in civil cases. State v. Helms [Wis.] 118 NW 158. Power exists when inferior court acts beyond its jurisdiction or refuses to act within it to prejudice of the citizen and there is no other adequate remedy. Id. That it becomes necessary to review judicial action of inferior court held no obstacle in proper case (Id.), hence, notwithstanding rule that mandamus cannot be used to serve purpose of error to review judicial action of inferior court, supreme court will by mandamus compel lower court to proceed with action on refusal to do so after erroneous decision on a preliminary question (Id.). Any erroneous disposition of a criminal case before jury is sworn by which court refuses to proceed further on valid papers, where its duty is plain, refusal to perform clear and prejudicial, and other remedies inadequate, justifies supreme court to exercise its power of superintending control. Id. Supreme court may in proper case compel circuit court to proceed with criminal case where it wrongfully quashes complaint, information or indictment before jury is sworn. Id. Will not interfere on light occasions or when other remedies are sufficient, but exigency must obviously justify such action. Id. Error in quashing valid charge of practicing medicine without license held not to create exigency sufficiently extreme. Id.

79. Louisiana: Jurisdiction of supreme court in habeas corpus is confined to cases in which it may have appellate jurisdiction. State v. Patterson [La.] 47 S 511.

Massachusetts: Supreme judicial court has no original jurisdiction to revoke appointment of an administrator because of discovery of a will, though appointment was made after appeal to it and upon its decree. Crocker v. Crocker, 198 Mass. 401, 84 NE 476.

Minnesota: Supreme court has original jurisdiction under Rev. Laws 1905, § 202, to determine question of eligibility of members of legislature enacting law increasing compensation of members, as candidates for office for ensuing term. State v. Scott [Minn.] 117 NW 1044.

Nebraska: Constitutional jurisdiction conferred on supreme court "in all civil cases in which the state shall be party" is not confined to cases in which state has pecuniary interest, but may extend to all cases in which the state through its proper officers seeks enforcement of public right or restraint of public wrong. State v. Pacific Express Co. [Neb.] 115 SW 619. Action to restrain enforcement of excessive carrier's rates held one to restrain a public wrong. Id.

North Dakota: Jurisdiction of supreme courts to issue original writs extends to questions affecting sovereignty, franchises, or prerogatives of state or liberties of its people. State v. Fabrick [N. D.] 117 NW 860; State v. Gottbrecht [N. D.] 117 NW 864. Where right to be enforced pertains to matters of private or local concern alone, though publici juris, jurisdiction belongs to district court unless circumstances of such exceptional character are shown to exist that adequate relief cannot be obtained in dis-

§ 10. Appellate jurisdiction.[See 10 C. L. 527]—All questions of appellate jurisdiction in both state and federal practice are fully treated elsewhere.[80]

§ 11. Federal jurisdiction. A. Generally.[See 11 C. L. 528]—The jurisdiction of federal courts is dependent largely on the amount in controversy [81] and diversity of citizenship,[82] or a federal question.[83] These need not exist, however, in mere ancillary proceedings,[84] and a suit in equity dependent upon a former action of which a federal court has jurisdiction may therefore be maintained in that court regardless of diversity of citizenship or the existence of a federal question to aid, enjoin or regulate the original suit [85] to restrain, avoid, explain or enforce the judgment or decree therein,[86] or to adjudicate, restrain or enforce liens upon or claims to property in the custody of the court in the original action.[87] So, also, congress has in many cases specially conferred jurisdiction on the national courts, as in bankruptcy [88] or admiralty proceedings,[89] and where the action arises under the patent [90] or copyright laws,[91] or has for its object the removal of a cloud from title to lands lying within the district where suit is brought.[92] Federal jurisdiction attaching either at law or in equity carries with it for certain purposes both legal and equitable jurisdiction.[93]

Rights and remedies created by state statutes may be enforced and administered

trict court. State v. Fabrick [N. D.] 117 NW 860. Sovereignty or franchises of state held not directly involved in proceedings for division of a county. Id. Not in proceedings for change of location of county seat. State v. Gottbrecht [N. D.] 117 NW 864. Mere fact that delays might occur if legal proceedings were instituted in district court and that appeal might be taken held not to present exceptional circumstances constituting reason for issuing mandamus by supreme court to compel county commissioners to act. Id.

Oklahoma: Supreme court is without original jurisdiction to grant purely injunctional relief. State v. Kenner [Okl.] 97 P 258. Could not restrain county commissioners from carrying out alleged illegal court house contract. Id. In habeas corpus proceedings, criminal court of appeals is court of original jurisdiction. Ex parte Johnson [Okl. Cr. App.] 98 P 461.

90. See, also, Patents, 10 C. L. 1127. Circuit court has jurisdiction of actions arising under patent laws. Prest-o-Lite Co. v. Avery Portable Lighting Co., 164 F 60. Bill for specific performance of contract to assign a patent, and to restrain violation of a license contract under patent, states no ground for relief under patent laws. St. Louis Street Flushing Mach. Co. v. Sanitary Street Flushing Mach. [C. C. A.] 161 F 725. Suit against patentee and corporation controlling patent seeking to suspend decree of infringement obtained by former against complainant and to have established complainant's right to renewal of license contract with corporation to make and sell patented devise held not cognizable either on ground of existence of federal question or diversity of citizenship, gravamen being breach of license contract which was between residents of same state. Lefkowitz v. Foster Hose Supporter Co., 161 F 367. Bill to restrain infringement of a patent which thus presents a federal question does not draw within jurisdiction of circuit court issues in regard to unfair competition, though growing out of same acts of defendant, the two causes being independent. Cushman v. Atlantis Fountain Pen Co., 164 F 94. To confer jurisdiction of suit against a corporation for infringement of a patent, it is necessary either that defendant be an inhabitant of district where suit is brought, or that infringement was in district and defendant has at time of suit a regular place of business there. Underwood Typewriter Co. v. Fox Typewriter Co., 158 F 476. Not necessary that defendant should have had regular place of business in district at time it infringed. Id.

91. Where a certain matter was not subject to copyright, federal court could not acquire jurisdiction of suit by assignee to enjoin infringement on theory that assignor was estopped to set up want of jurisdiction. Royal Sales Co. v. Gaynor, 164 F 207. In suits involving rights under the copyright statutes, questions independent of such statutes cannot be considered where there is no claim of damages amounting to $2,000, and no diversity of citizenship. Scribner v. Straus, 210 U. S. 352, 52 Law. Ed. 1094. Right to relief in equity under alleged conditional sale held not cognizable. Id.

92. Jurisdictional act March 3, 1875, § 8, 18 St. 470, as amended by Act March 3, 1887, c. 373, 24 St. 552, and Act Aug. 13, 1888, c. 866, 25 St. 433 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 508), confers on circuit court jurisdiction of suit to remove cloud from title to land lying within district where suit is brought. Gillespie v. Pocahontas Coal & Coke Co., 162 F 742.

93. Receiver in equity suit required to proceed at law to recover money claimed to have been collected by agent of corporation for which receiver was appointed. Whelan v. Enterprise Transp. Co., 164 F 95.

in the national courts,[94] and rights under federal laws may be enforced by state courts unless congress has given the federal courts exclusive jurisdiction.[95] Both federal and state courts have power to determine the validity under the national constitution of either state or federal statutes.[96] A creditor's bill is maintainable in the federal circuit court to enforce a judgment of a court of the state.[97] A federal court cannot refuse to entertain jurisdiction of a cause properly cognizable therein merely because the controversy might be more expeditiously or economically determined in a state court.[98]

A federal court has no jurisdiction of an action against a state brought by a citizen of another state,[99] nor can it issue any injunction to stay proceedings in a

94. Either in law, equity or admiralty, as nature of rights and remedies may require. Platt v. Lecocq [C. C. A.] 158 F 723. U. S. circuit court and circuit court of appeal held to have same power as circuit court of South Dakota to determine enforcibility of order of state railroad commissioners. Id.

95. Bankruptcy [See, also, Bankruptcy, 11 C. L. 383]: State and federal courts have concurrent jurisdiction of actions by trustees in bankruptcy to avoid preferences or recover property fraudulently conveyed. Drew v. Myers [Neb.] 116 NW 781.

Interstate commerce [See, also, Carriers, 11 C. L. 499; Commerce, 11 C. L. 643]: Federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction of all questions arising under the interstate commerce act and its amendments. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Pacific Coast Lumber Mfrs.' Ass'n [C. C. A.] 165 F 1; Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Wood [Ind. App.] 84 NE 1009. Suit in equity against a railroad company to enjoin enforcement of rates filed with interstate commerce commission and alleged to be unjust and unreasonable, until legality thereof can be passed on by commission, arises under laws of United States, and federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction. Kalispell Lumber Co. v. Great Northern R. Co., 157 F 845. But state courts have jurisdiction of actions based on a carrier's common-law duties to furnish facilities for shipping, though carrier was engaged in interstate shipping where action is not under interstate commerce act. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Wood [Ind. App.] 84 NE 1009. That action could have been removed to federal court did not oust jurisdiction of state court, no removal steps having been taken. Id. After adjudication by interstate commerce commission that rates are unreasonable, state court may entertain action to recover overcharges on interstate shipments. Robinson v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. [W. Va.] 63 SE 323.

Patents [See, also, Patents, 10 C. L. 1127]: State courts may construe assignment of patent but cannot entertain suit by assignee to restrain breach thereof by assignor by using devices covered by the patents, such suit not being one in which patent rights are only collaterally involved. Jones Cold Store Door Co. v. Jones [Md.] 70 A 88. State court may take cognizance of suit in equity to determine ownership of letters patent and for accounting for use thereof. American Circular Loom Co. v. Wilson, 198 Mass. 182, 84 NE 133. Suit to enforce or annul a contract of which a patent is subject-matter arises under contract and not under patent laws. Marshall Engine Co. v. New Marshall Engine Co., 199 Mass. 546, 85 NE 741. Jurisdiction of state court is not ousted because validity of a patent is incidentally drawn in question in suit cognizable in such court. Id. Suit on assignment of a patent did not arise under patent laws merely because decree directed assignment of patent to plaintiff and enjoined making, selling or dealing in machines covered by patent. Id. No question of infringement where such question did not appear to have been raised in evidence before master. Id. If case arises under contract and is to enforce a covenant, incidental question under patent laws will not give federal courts exclusive jurisdiction. New York Phonograph Co. v. Darega, 111 NYS 363. Where no decree is necessary to cancellation of license to manufacture or sell a patented structure, manufacture or sale after notice of cancellation would be infringement over which federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction. Schalkenbach v. National Ventilating Co., 113 NYS 352. Suit by licensee of exclusive right to sell patented articles in certain territory to enjoin defendant from purchasing patented articles from purchaser of assets of plaintiff's licensor held to involve rights under federal statute permitting assignment of patents and not mere contract rights, so that state court could not take jurisdiction. New York Phonograph Co. v. Davega, 111 NYS 363.

96. Under Const. U. S. art. 6, § 2, declaring federal constitution supreme law, requiring support thereof by state and federal officers, and making state judges bound thereby. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Swanger, 157 F 783. That regulation of rates to be charged by a public service corporation is made by direct legislative act of state and not by a subordinate body does not affect power of state or federal court to inquire into its constitutionality. Consolidated Gas Co. v. New York, 157 F 849.

97. Feidler v. Bartleson [C. C. A.] 161 F 30. That complainant submitted himself to jurisdiction of state court when judgment was recovered and fact that jurisdiction of such court was adequate to afford all relief prayed for in creditors' suit held not to bar suit in federal court against defendants who were not parties in state court action. Id.

98. Pennsylvania Steel Co. v. New York City R. Co., 157 F 440.

99. Held suit against state: Where state statute provides that suits to recover penalties thereunder shall be brought in name of state by direction of governor, governor acts thereunder as executive of state with discretionary power, and suit to enjoin him from exercising such power is against state. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. McLendon, 157 state court [1] except where it acts in aid of its own jurisdiction already rightfully acquired.[2] Where it so acts it may protect a litigant from seizure by state authorities while attending trial.[3]

The circuit court has power to issue writs of mandamus only as ancillary to a jurisdiction already acquired.[4] The district court of the United States for Porto Rico is without authority to exercise purely probate jurisdiction in disregard of the local courts.[5]

Court of claim. See 10 C. L. 531

F 961. Though question was not definitely decided, court was strongly of opinion in Grand Trunk Western R. Co. v. Curry, 162 F 978, that suit to restrain secretary of state of California from enforcing license tax statute against corporation alleged to be not subject thereto, and for judicial construction of statutes, was against state.

Held not suit against state: Suit against attorney general or other state officers to enjoin enforcement of unconstitutional statutes to irreparable injury of complainant is not against state. Consolidated Gas Co. v. New York, 157 F 849; Lindsley v. Natural Carbonic Gas Co., 162 F 954. Suit to restrain Missouri secretary of state from enforcing state statute requiring him to cancel license of any foreign railroad company for removing actions against it to federal court, and providing penalties in addition on ground that statute was unconstitutional, held not a suit against the state, action being against state only when property rights are not involved in addition to penalties, fees and costs. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Swanger, 157 F 783. Railroad rates. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission, 157 F 944; Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Railroad Commission, 161 F 925. Immaterial that officers are specially charged with enforcement of statute. Id. Where state statute deprives of property without due process or denies equal protection, federal courts may enjoin officers of state courts from issuing or serving process in proceeding to enforce it. Id. Federal court of equity, having acquired jurisdiction and not only granted a preliminary injunction but under authority of statute itself suspended its operation pending final hearing, has power, on amended bill, to also enjoin county officers from taking either civil or criminal proceedings under suspended statute against employes of railroad, effect of which would be to interfere with operation of road, obstruct commerce and work irreparable injury to complainant. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission, 157 F 944. Where state railroad commission is given continuing power of supervision over matter of compliance with its orders and regulations, with power to change or repeal same and is made suable by statute, suit lies against it and its several members and officers in federal court to enjoin enforcement of an order on ground of confiscation. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. McLendon, 157 F 961. Suit against dairy and food commissioner of a state to retrain conduct under color of his office but alleged to violate state laws and to injuriously affect reputation and sale of complainant's products held not against state. Scully v. Bird, 209 U. S. 481, 52 Law. Ed. 899. Suit to compel South Carolina dispensary commission appointed to wind up affairs of state dispensary to pay a creditor from trust funds held by commission held not against the state. Fleischman Co. v. Murray, 161 F 152; Murray v. Wilson Distilling Co. [C. C. A.] 164 F 1.

Contra: Commission to wind up state dispensary held representative of state exercising judicial discretion as to validity of claims precluding suit against it in federal court. State v. State Dispensary Commission, 79 S. C. 316, 60 SE 928. Injunctional orders in Wilson Distilling Co. v. Murray and Fleischman Co. v. Murray (158 F), held extra jurisdictional and void as having been made in attempted suit against state. Id.

1. Though within inhibition against nullifying or staying proceedings in state courts, federal court cannot vacate a judgment entered in a state court. Schultz v. Highland Gold Mines Co., 158 F 337. It may restrain holder of judgment from enforcing it. Id. Suit to enjoin enforcement by attorney general of unconstitutional state statute by institution of criminal proceedings held not one to stay proceedings in state court. Lindsley v. Natural Carbonic Gas Co., 162 F 954. Grant of order protecting litigant from seizure by state authorities is without court proceedings, and commitment to insane asylum because of insanity decree of state court, protection to be while litigant was in attendance on trial of his case in federal court, held not to stay proceedings in state court. Chanler v. Sherman [C. C. A.] 162 F 19. South Carolina dispensary commission for winding up state dispensary held not "court of a state." Fleischman Co. v. Murray, 161 F 152; Murray v. Wilson Distilling Co. [C. C. A.] 164 F 1.

2. Where it seeks to enforce or protect its own lawful decrees. Lang v. Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf R. Co. [C. C. A.] 160 F 355.

3. Especially where threatened act must rest for justification on state decree, validity of which it is called upon to determine. Chanler v. Sherman [C. C. A.] 162 F 19. Could protect citizen of another state from commitment to insane asylum under state insanity decree while coming to state, remaining during trial, and departing therefrom, suit being to declare decree void for want of jurisdiction. Id.

4. Is without jurisdiction of original proceeding for such writ. Burnham v. Fields, 157 F 246.

5. Could not entertain bill to administer estates already in local courts though bill also sought to liquidate community between husband and wife, to annul a family settlement for fraud, and to set aside sales, where these matters were merely ancillary to settlement of estates. Garzot v. Rios De Rubio, 209 U. S. 283, 52 Law. Ed. 794.

(§ 11) B. As affected by diversity of citizenship.[See 10 C. L. 532]—The circuit court has jurisdiction of controversies between citizens of different states,[6] the requisites amount being involved.[7] In determining the question of jurisdiction, only indispensable parties should be considered.[8] These will be alligned in accordance with their real interest in the controversy;[9] and colorable or collusive transactions or arrangements of parties will not be tolerated.[10] If the real controversy is between citizens of different states or between a citizen and an alien, the fact that by some rule of law complainant is compelled to use the name of another person as defendant who is a citizen of a territory or of the same state as complainant will not deprive the court of jurisdiction.[11] An action will not lie in a federal court by an assignee to recover the contents of a chose in action payable to bearer and not made by a corporation unless it might have been prosecuted had no transfer been made.[12] Diversity of citizenship is not essential in mere ancillary proceedings.[13]

In the absence of waiver,[14] suit must be brought in the district whereof defendant is an inhabitant,[15] unless diversity of citizenship is the sole basis of jurisdiction,[16]

6. Suit against corporation held to involve a "controversy" between citizens of different states though defendant admitted allegations of bill and joined in request for receivers. In the Matter of Reisenberg, 208 U. S. 92, 52 Law. Ed. 403. Court has jurisdiction where parties designated in bill as plaintiffs and defendants are respectively citizens of different states and nothing appears from bill which requires their rearrangement. Loose v. Hartford Pulp Plaster Corp., 159 F 318. Bill seeking to establish existence of partnership only for purpose of subjecting interest of a judgment debtor therein to claim of judgment creditor held not demurrable on ground that complainant sought to compel defendants who were both residents of the state to litigate a demand held by one against the other. Feidler v. Bartleson [C. C. A.] 161 F 30.

7. See ante, § 6.

8. All others may be dismissed or disregarded if their presence will oust or restrict the jurisdiction. Kuchler v. Greene, 163 F 91. In suit to restrain for fraud collection of a judgment against a railway company and a subsequent judgment against its surety on appeal, brought by such surety and by one who by contract is bound to pay original judgment, railway company though insolvent is indispensable party and must be aligned with plaintiffs for purpose of determining jurisdiction. Steele v. Culver, 29 S. Ct. 9.

9. Where jurisdiction depends on diversity of citizenship, court will arrange parties according to their interest, and if such arrangement defeats jurisdiction bill will be dismissed. Mann v. Gaddie [C. C. A.] 158 F 42. Where a corporation defendant unites with its president in resisting a stockholder's claim of illegality and fraud by joint action of both defendants, fact that it would be for financial interest of corporation that suit should succeed does not require alignment of corporation as plaintiff so as to defeat federal jurisdiction. Venner v. Great Northern R. Co., 209 U. S. 24, 52 Law. Ed. 666.

11. Kuchler v. Greene, 163 F 91.

12. Circuit court is without jurisdiction of action by assignee of a chose in action though plaintiff and defendant are citizens of different states or one is an alien, unless plaintiff's assignor could have sued in same jurisdiction. Tierney v. Helvetia Swiss Fire Ins. Co., 163 F 82. Suit held not for specific enforcement of assignment of patent rights but to charge defendant as trustee ex maleficio, and therefore not within Rev. St. § 629, relating to suits by assignees to recover contents of chose in action. Prest-o-Lite Co. v. Avery Portable Lighting Co., 164 F 60. Defendant held also chargeable as trustee by virtue of official relationship with complainant at time of assignment so that suit to require accounting and transfer of patent was maintainable, diverse citizenship appearing. Id.

13. Immaterial in suit by attorney to enforce attorney's lien on judgment in favor of his client, proceeding being ancillary. Brown v. Morgan, 163 F 395. While suit to set aside an award of arbitrators may be regarded as ancillary to prior suit commenced by defendant to enforce same, this does not authorize bringing in of one who is citizen of same state as plaintiff for purpose of also impeaching an award in his favor made at same arbitration but distinct from that between the other parties. Hecht v. Youghiogheny & Lehigh Coal Co., 162 F 812. Partition proceeding, court already having custody of property. City of New Orleans v. Howard [C. C. A.] 160 F 393. Creditor's bill lies to set aside fraudulent conveyances which prevent collection of judgment obtained in same court. Hobbs Mfg. Co. v. Gooding, 164 F 91.

14. See post, § 11D.

15. Suit against railroad company based on interstate commerce act held maintainable only in state of defendant's incorporation. Memphis Cotton Oil Co. v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 164 F 290. Where stockholders' bill was filed by citizens of three states against citizens of two other states in state where part of defendants resided, but was not local, jurisdiction attached as to all complainants and as to all defendants who were citizens of state of forum, but not as to other defendants. Schultz v. Highland Gold Mines Co., 158 F 337. No objection that citizens of different states other than state in which suit is instituted are combined as co-or unless the federal court has exclusive jurisdiction.[17] A suit by a citizen against an alien can be maintained only in the district in which valid service can be made on defendant.[18]

(§ 11) C. As affected by existence of federal question.[See 10 C. L. 533]—A federal question exists whenever a federal statute,[19] a treaty or the federal constitution,[20] is to be construed or its effect or operation is involved,[21] and also when the action is against a corporation organized under act of congress.[22] It does not arise merely because defendant is a railroad company engaged in interstate commerce.[23] Except complainants. Id. Federal court of district of which complainants are inhabitants has jurisdiction of suit to enjoin several railroad companies who are members of an association from putting into effect an alleged unlawful rate on all food commodities shipped in territory embraced in district, though none of defendants are citizens of the state, where they operate roads in state and district and are found and served therein. Macon Grocery Co. v. Atlantic C. L. R. Co., 163 F 736.

16. Where jurisdiction depends solely on diversity of citizenship, suit may be brought in district of residence of either plaintiff or defendant. Schultz v. Highland Gold Mines Co., 158 F 337. Suit to restrain carrier from enforcing a certain reconsignment charge as unreasonable, though maintainable at common law, was suit within interstate commerce act so that jurisdiction was not alone dependent on diverse citizenship and suit could therefore be brought only in district in which defendant was inhabitant. Sunderland v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 158 F 877. Action in state whereof neither plaintiff nor defendant was citizen held not removable to federal court on ground of citizenship. Gillespie v. Pocahontas Coal & Coke Co., 162 F 742.

17. Provision of § 1, of acts of 1887 and 1888 (Act March 3, 1887, c. 373, 24 St. 552 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 508]), and Act Aug. 13, 1888, c. 866, 24 St. 433 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 508), relating to circuit and district courts, that "no suits shall be brought in either of such courts against any person by any original process or proceeding in any other district than that whereof he is an inhabitant," does not apply to suits of which such courts are given exclusive jurisdiction. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Pacific Coast Lumber Mfrs' Ass'n [C. C. A.] 165 F 1. Suit to enjoin railroad companies from enforcing unreasonable rates in violation of interstate commerce act may be maintained in any district in which defendants can be found. Id.

18. That alien corporation was authorized to do business in a state and that service of process in any suit against it could be made on state officer held not to give federal court in the state jurisdiction of suit against corporation, it not appearing service was made or could have been made within district of such court (Tierney v. Helvetia Swiss Fire Ins. Co., 163 F 82), and fact that defendant was authorized to do business in district held not sufficient to authorize service therein unless it actually did business (Id.).

19. By bill alleging acquisition of railroad right of way under federal statute and that defendant had taken possession under claim plaintiff's rights had been forfeited held to present federal question. Columbia Valley R. Co. v. Portland & S. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 162 F 603. Action against railroad for injuries received in Indian Territory while Mansf. Dig. Ark. c. 20, § 566, was there in force pursuant to act Cong. May 2, 1890, c. 182, 26 St. 81, held to arise under statutes of Arkansas and not under act of Congress. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Hollan [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 642.

20. Constitutional question involved: Bill alleging attempt by state to destroy by legislation contract exemption from taxation. Jetton v. University of the South, 208 U. S. 489, 52 Law. Ed. 584. Contention that municipal ordinance providing for summary destruction of unwholesome foods contravened U. S. Const. 14 Amend., held to present a constitutional question, though it was unfounded. North American Cold Storage Co. v. Chicago, 29 S. Ct. 101.

Not involved: Provisions of U. S. Const. Amend. 14, securing personal rights, are directed against the states and their agencies and not against acts of private persons acting as such, these latter raising no constitutional question. Marten v. Holbrook, 157 F 716. Complaint alleging that defendants entered into conspiracy by unlawful means to deprive plaintiff of liberty and property and unlawfully and without due process caused his arrest and confinement in a state insane asylum held not to involve any federal question. Id. Bill by express company to restrain widow of one of its messengers from suing railroad company for husband's death and thus render complainant liable over to railroad company held not to involve interstate commerce clause of 14th amendment. Rountree v. Adams Exp. Co. [C. C. A.] 165 F 152.

21. Suit by riparian owners to enjoin officers of state from selling shore lands under statute enacted pursuant to Const. Wash. art. 17, § 1, declaring state to be owner of beds and shores of all navigable waters, held not to involve any real and substantial federal question either as to deprivation of property without due process or as involving construction of federal statutes under which owners claimed, Washington constitution expressly reserving owners' right to assert their claims in state courts, and U. S. supreme court having declared that U. S. patents issued under general laws do not of themselves convey title below high-water mark. McGilvra v. Ross [C. C. A.] 164 F 604.

22. Action against corporation organized under act of congress held to arise under laws of United States. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Hendricks [Okl.] 95 P 970; Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Hamilton [Okl.] 95 P 972.

23. In re Matter of Reisenberg, 208 U. S. 92, 52 Law. Ed. 403.

where the federal court has exclusive and special jurisdiction,[24] the regular jurisdictional amount must also be involved.[25]

(§ 11) D. Averments and objections as to jurisdiction. See 10 C. L. 534.—Every fact essential to bring the cause within the jurisdiction of the court must affirmatively appear on the record,[26] but jurisdiction will not be renounced or denied if the requisite facts so appear either directly or by just inference from any part of the record.[27] An averment of residence is not sufficient as an averment of citizenship,[28] but an allegation that a corporation was organized and exists under the laws of a named state sufficiently alleges the citizenship of the corporation.[29] A federal question such as will confer jurisdiction must be involved in the allegations essential to plaintiff's cause of action [30] and cannot be supplied by anticipating defenses.[31] Jurisdiction is not defeated because of matters in the complaint having a tendency to show that the allegation respecting the amount in controversy is not well founded, unless they create a legal certainty of that conclusion.[32]

Plaintiff in a state court may appear specially and without leave in a federal court for the purpose of raising the question of the jurisdiction of a federal court as to a subject-matter first brought within the jurisdiction of the state court.[33] An objection that a suit against an individual is in effect a suit against the state should be raised by demurrer or plea and not by motion to dismiss.[34] Objection to being sued in the district may be waived [35] by appearance, demurrer, answer or going to trial.[36]

25. See ante, § 6.

26. Turner v. Jackson Lumber Co. [C. C. A.] 159 F 923. Diverse citizenship must be affirmatively shown by record. International Bank & Trust Co. v. Scott [C. C. A.] 159 F 58. Admission at trial of "liability of defendant in this case, and everything as alleged except the measure of damages," held not to cure failure of declaration to allege requisite citizenship. Grand Trunk Western R. Co. v. Reddick [C. C. A.] 160 F 898.

27. Pleadings held to sufficiently show diversity of citizenship. Adams Exp. Co. v. Adams [C. C. A.] 159 F 62.

28. That plaintiff was bona fide resident of state. Kolke v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 157 F 623. Allegation that plaintiff was resident of city of D in state of Tennessee. Crosby v. Cuba R. Co., 158 F 144. Where plaintiff testified he lived in Cuba, he might be granted leave after verdict to take deposition to establish citizenship and amend declaration. Id. In action by liquidating committee of a bank, allegation that all of such committee resided in Republic of Mexico without averments that they were citizens of that republic held insufficient. International Bank & Trust Co. v. Scott [C. C. A.] 159 F 58. Defect not cured by recital in motion for rehearing of motion to dismiss that it appeared on face of defendant's pleading that "plaintiff" is a resident citizen of Republic of Mexico. Id. Pleading that plaintiff's assignor was a corporation with principal office in Florida and that defendant resided in Alabama held insufficient. J. J. McCaskill Co. v. Dickson [C. C. A.] 159 F 704.

29. An allegation that defendant is a corporation organized under and by virtue of the laws of a certain state is in legal effect an averment that it is a citizen of such state. Crosby v. Cuba R. Co., 158 F 144. Allegation that complainant was a "joint stock company" organized and existing under laws of New York and a citizen of that state held insufficient, a joint stock company being only a partnership, all of whose members could not be presumed to be nonresidents. Rountree v. Adams Exp. Co. [C. C. A.] 165 F 152.

30. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley, 29 S. Ct. 42.

31. Allegation that defendants acted as officers of United States. Peoples U. S. Bank v. Goodwin, 160 F 727. Suit to compel carrier's performance of agreement to issue passes held not brought within jurisdiction of circuit court as involving federal question by allegations in bill that refusal was based on act of congress of June 29, 1906, and that such act did not prohibit giving of passes under circumstances of the case, and if construed to such effect would deny due process of law. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley, 29 S. Ct. 42.

32. Henry & Sons & Co. v. Colorado Farm & Live Stock Co. [C. C. A.] 164 F 986.

33. Mortgage creditor who had first instituted receivership proceeding in state court held entitled to so appear in subsequent federal suit by another complainant seeking receivership, not being required to intervene and thus subject himself to court's jurisdiction. Interstate R. Co. v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 164 F 770.

34. Court should not dismiss on own motion or on motion of defendant. Scully v. Bird, 209 U. S. 481, 52 Law. Ed. 899.

35. Joinder as defendants of citizens of states other than that in which suit is brought is not jurisdictional but may be waived by defendants erroneously joined. Schultz v. Highland Gold Mines Co., 158 F 337.

36. General appearance when complaint did not show jurisdictional facts held not to confer jurisdiction. Leonard v. Merchants'

The federal statute directs the court to dismiss the action whenever it shall appear to its satisfaction that it does not really and substantially involve a dispute or controversy properly within its jurisdiction,[37] or that the parties have been improperly or collusively made or joined for the purpose of conferring jurisdiction.[38]

§ 12. Federal appellate jurisdiction.[See 10 C. L. 535]—All questions under this designation are fully treated elsewhere.[39]

§ 13. Acquisition and divestiture.[40]—Jurisdiction in a particular case is usually acquired by either process or appearance.[41] While jurisdiction of the person may be conferred by acts or consent of parties,[42] jurisdiction of the subject-matter cannot be so conferred.[43] Only the res can be affected in an action based entirely on substituted process.[44]

Coal Co. [C. C. A.] 162 F 885. Right of a party to suit in district of residence of either plaintiff or defendant is personal and may be waived by trial, demurrer, answer or appearance without objection. McPhee & McGinnity Co. v. Union Pac. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 158 F 5. Demurring and answering. Ingersoll v. Coram, 29 S. Ct. 92. Objection that neither party was resident of district held waived by demurring on grounds going to merits is addition to jurisdictional grounds, where under local practice defendant could have appeared specially. Western Loan & S. Co. v. Butte & B. Consol. Min. Co., 210 U. S. 368, 52 Law. Ed. 1101. Such objection held waived by appearance, pleading and going to trial. Shanberg v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. [C. C. A.] 158 F 1. Under New York practice, followed by federal courts in that state in actions at law, defendant does not waive right to object to jurisdiction by including in answer every defense on which he relies. Leonard v. Merchants' Coal Co. [C. C. A.] 162 F 885. Answer denying allegation as to citizenship, joining issues on merits, and pleading counterclaim, held not to waive objection to being sued in the district. Id.

37. That defendant admitted plaintiffs' claims and joined in request for receivership held not to show there was no substantial controversy. In re Matter of Reisenberg, 208 U. S. 92, 52 Law. Ed. 403.

38. Requisite amount and diversity of citizenship being involved, agreement of parties that suit should be in federal court and that averments of bill should be admitted held insufficient to establish collusion. Pennsylvania Steel Co. v. New York City R. Co., 157 F 440. That defendant admitted allegations of bill and united in complainant's request for receivers held insufficient to establish collusion requiring dismissal under Act March 3, 1875 (18 St. at L. 470, c. 137), there being no claim allegations of bill were untrue, or that debts named did not exist, and no question as to citizenship or evidence of fraud. In re Matter of Reisenberg, 208 U. S. 92, 52 Law. Ed. 403. Omission of one of two complainants having similar claims to avoid failure of suit for want of requisite diversity of citizenship, amended bill reciting consent of omitted party to all relief sought and all orders or proceedings in the suit, held not collusion. Mathieson v. Craven, 164 F 471. Stockholders' suit held not subject to equity rule 94 where constitutional questions were involved, and corporation and directors were in sympathy with bill. Lindsley v. Natural Carbonic Gas Co., 162 F 954. Evidence held to show collusive incorporation of party plaintiff in another state for sole purpose of suing in federal court, requiring dismissal under act March 3, 1875, § 5. Miller v. East Side Canal & Irr. Co., 29 S. Ct. 111. Evidence held not sufficient to establish incorporation in another state for sole purpose of invoking federal jurisdiction. Percy Summer Club v. Astle [C. C. A.] 163 F 1.

41. See, also, Appearance, 11 C. L. 255; Process, 10 C. L. 1262. Process or appearance essential. Chief Pub. Co. v. Schneider, 110 NYS 974. Under Municipal Court Act, § 26, parties may appear in court voluntarily and have their differences adjusted. Friedberger v. Stulpnagel, 112 NYS 89. Question of jurisdiction to reinstate cause after dismissal held waived by participation in trial after reinstatement. The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. v. Nix, 138 Ill. App. 559; Wilson v. Chandler, 133 Ill. App. 622. Plaintiff's appearance in state court in opposition to defendant's motion to vacate order of removal of cause to federal court held not to estop him from challenging jurisdiction of federal court on ground petition for removal was insufficient since neither consent nor estoppel can confer jurisdiction on federal courts. Tierney v. Helvetia Swiss Fire Ins. Co., 110 NYS 613. One's knowledge of pendency of proceedings cannot confer jurisdiction in absence of process or appearance. David Bradley Mfg. Co. v. Burrhus, 135 Iowa, 324, 112 NW 765.

Mere submission of case does not confer jurisdiction of subject-matter. Goyke v. State [Wis.] 117 NW 1027. Going to trial on merits does not waive question of jurisdiction. Carriere v. U. S., 163 F 1009. Where county judge was without jurisdiction to entertain proceedings for sale of realty for taxes because statute under which same was had had been repealed, order confirming title in purchase was null and void, regardless of waiver or consent. In re McIntyre, 124 App. Div. 66, 108 NYS 242. Where action for libel, commenced by trustee process, was illegal and void, defendant's release of garnishees did not waive right to object to jurisdiction.

Jurisdiction may be divested by failure of court or parties to take steps necessary to preserve it,[45] by transfer of the cause,[46] or by legislation.[47] Provision is generally made for the preservation or transfer of existing jurisdictions upon the establishment of new courts [48] or districts.[49]

§ 14. Objections to jurisdiction, inquiry thereof, and presumptions respecting it. See 10 C. L. 539—In the absence of estoppel,[50] courts will at all stages entertain objections and inquiries as to jurisdiction,[51] especially in federal practice.[52] Jurisdictional questions are usually raised by motion,[53] plea in abatement or other proper and specific pleading.[54] Objection or exception to jurisdiction of the subject-matter is in-

45. Failure to render judgment within 14 days after submission of cause held to divest municipal court of further jurisdiction. Lebowitz v. Herman, 108 NYS 566. Judgment rendered in municipal court July 17, 1907, in case tried May 10, 1907, is void, statute requiring rendition within 14 days from time case is submitted, unless parties consent otherwise. Carpenter v. Pirner, 107 NYS 875. Statement by attorney "you may have a week and all summer if you want it," held at most to extend time one week. Id. Rule 17 of municipal court contemplates making of a record of filing of written stipulation for extension of time within which court may render judgment, in order to enable court to retain jurisdiction after expiration of statutory time. 47. Pending state action against government contractors and surety on bond under Act Cong. Aug. 13, 1894, c. 280, 24 St. 278, held not affected by enactment of Act Feb. 14, 1905, c. 778, 33 St. 811, limiting jurisdiction to federal courts, Rev. St. U. S. 1878, § 13 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 6), providing against release of liability under repealed statutes. Burton v. Seifert Plastic Relief Co. [Va.] 61 SE 933.

48. Act Aug. 1, 1907, attempting to repeal Acts 1900-01, p. 861, and 1903, p. 398, establishing county court of Coffee county and defining its jurisdiction and providing for certification of pending causes to circuit court, held invalid as being at variance with statutory notice of intention to pass the same. Larkin v. Simmons [Ala.] 46 S 451.

49. Where new county was carved from county of domicile of guardian and ward, guardian had option under § 7 of Act Aug. 21, 1905, creating the new county, to have jurisdiction over him changed to ordinary of new county, but if option is not exercised jurisdiction remains as before. Maloy v. Maloy [Ga.] 62 SE 991.

50. Sureties on replevin bond held estopped to assert want of jurisdiction due to value of property exceeding jurisdictional amount, papers in case stating value within jurisdiction of court. Janssen v. Duncan, 43 Colo. 286, 95 P 922. District court having jurisdiction of subject-matter of suit to determine water rights, defendant therein is estopped to question jurisdiction of court in such suit for first time in another suit brought nine years later, on ground that under statute adjudication should have covered all priorities in the district and not merely priorities for water from the single stream involved, defendant having voluntarily submitted himself to jurisdiction, participated in trial, appealed and received water as per award. Kerr v. Burns [Colo.] 93 P 1120.

51. Question of jurisdiction of subject-matter may be raised at any stage of case, in any court, by either court or counsel. Lohmeyer v. St. Louis Cordage Co. [Mo.] 113 SW 1108; Cable v. Duke, 208 Mo. 557, 106 SW 643. Supreme court may raise question at any stage and of own motion. Allott v. American Strawboard Co., 237 Ill. 55, 86 NE 685. Objection may be made at any stage, whether in due course of pleading or not. McQueen v. McDaniel [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 219. Pleading to merits no waiver of right to dismissal of appeal to county court. Id. Plea to jurisdiction ratione materiae may be filed any time, as after answer. Burnstein v. Dalton Clark Stave Co. [La.] 47 S 753. Where court was without jurisdiction of divorce proceeding it could dismiss of own motion at any time while cause was pending. Watts v. Watts, 130 Ga. 683, 61 SE 593. Court may of own motion vacate order void ab initio for want of jurisdiction. Persing v. Reno Stock Brokerage Co. [Nev.] 96 P 1054. Where papers in distress proceedings were returned to court not having jurisdiction, such court could allow withdrawal thereof for lodgment in proper court for trial. Harrell v. Logue Bros., 130 Ga. 446, 60 SE 1042. Jurisdiction of federal court to administer assets of defunct corporation held not subject to question in collateral proceeding for partition of surplus assets. City of New Orleans v. Howard [C. C. A.] 160 F 393. Jurisdiction as to subject-matter may be first questioned on appeal, but not jurisdiction as to person. See Saving Questions for Review, 10 C. L. 1572.

52. Where want of jurisdiction appears on face of complaint, it is duty of federal court to notice it, regardless of manner in which it is brought to its attention. Koike v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 157 F 623. Court bound to notice failure of complaint to sufficiently allege citizenship though no objection was made. Crosby v. Cuba R. Co., 158 F 144. Circuit court of appeal cannot ignore question of jurisdiction of circuit court appearing on record though not made ground of appeal. McGilvra v. Ross [C. C. A.] 164 F 604.

53. Objection to jurisdiction cannot be determined on preliminary motion for injunction to restrain plaintiff from proceeding further. Johnson v. Victoria Chief Copper Min. & Smelting Co., 60 Misc. 468, 112 NYS 346.

54. See, also, Pleading, 10 C. L. 1173. Where petition does not show want of juriseffectual to raise the question of jurisdiction in personam.[55] Jurisdictional averments may be supplied by amendment in proper cases.[56] When a court is without jurisdiction, it cannot render judgment generally for defendant.[57]

Evidence and presumptions. See 10 C. L. 540.—Courts of general jurisdiction are presumed to have had jurisdiction in given case.[58] Though there is no presumption in favor of the existence of a limited or special jurisdiction,[59] a jurisdiction, whether limited or general, will be presumed to have been rightfully exercised where it is shown to have existed.[60] diction, defendant desiring to raise question should point out distinctly, in answer or other pleading, reasons for want of jurisdiction. Richardson v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 33 Ky. L. R. 972, 112 SW 582. Answer denying "that this court has jurisdiction as to" defendants held mere conclusion. Hendricks v. Calloway, 211 Mo. 536, 111 SW 60.

55. Bernstein v. Dalton Clark Stave Co. [La.] 47 S 753.

56. In condemnation proceedings in county courts of Colorado, complaint wanting in a requisite jurisdictional averment, such as one relating to the value of the property involved, is not void but amendable, and amendment when made relates back to time of filing complaint. Goodman v. Ft. Collins [C. C. A.] 164 F 970.

57. Judgment should be for dismissal and not for defendant on merits. Taylor v. Gilleran, 111 NYS 719. When a plea to the jurisdiction is sustained, the judgment should be that plaintiff take nothing and that defendant go hence without day. Hartzell v. Maryland Casualty Co., 139 Ill. App. 366.

58. Nothing is presumed beyond cognizance of courts of general jurisdiction. Cobe v. Guyer, 139 Ill. App. 580; Horn v. Metzger, 234 Ill. 240, 84 NE 893. City court of East St. Louis being court of general jurisdiction, it will be presumed it had jurisdiction both of parties and subject-matter to enable it to render a decree. Horn v. Metzger, 234 Ill. 240, 84 NE 893. Circuit courts being courts of general jurisdiction, jurisdiction in personam will be presumed. Richardson v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 33 Ky. L. R. 972, 112 SW 582. To sustain objection, lack of jurisdiction must appear affirmatively on record. Ex parte Pearson, 79 S. C. 302, 60 SE 706. Since as to probate matters county court is a superior court of general jurisdiction, in pleading a judgment of such court sitting in probate it is only necessary to allege that it was rendered in a probate matter. Nolan v. Hughes [Or.] 93 P 362. Presumption in favor of jurisdiction cannot prevail against record showing insufficient proof of publication of notice. Deputy v. Dollarhide [Ind. App.] 86 NE 344. Order of court of general jurisdiction authorizing sale and reinvestment by trustee held not void for failure of record to affirmatively show due perfecting of service on minor beneficiaries, though granted at chambers and in vacation. Peavy v. Dure [Ga.] 62 SE 47. Collateral attack of judgments for jurisdictional defects, see Judgments, 10 C. L. 467.

59. Since county court is of limited jurisdiction, and under Const. art 6, § 14, has jurisdiction of action to recover money where defendant resides in county and sum demanded does not exceed $2,000, complaint in such an action must allege that defendant is resident of county. Henneke v. Schmidt, 121 App. Div. 516, 106 NYS 138. Jurisdiction of justice in garnishment proceeding cannot be presumed but must affirmatively appear on face of proceedings. Walker v. O'Gara Coal Co., 140 Ill. App. 279. Jurisdiction of municipal court being limited, all facts essential thereto must appear in record. Carpenter v. Pirner, 107 NYS 875. Though in pleading judgments of inferior courts fact showing jurisdiction must be alleged or pleader may, under Code Civ. Proc. § 532, state that judgment was "duly given or made," allegation in supplementary proceedings on municipal court judgment that judgment was "duly recovered" was equivalent to allegation that it was duly given. Hottenroth v. Flaherty, 112 NYS 1111.

60. Carter's Adm'r v. Skillman [Va.] 60 SE 775. Rule applicable to county court, only difference between courts of general and courts of limited jurisdiction being that as to former jurisdiction is presumed, while as to latter presumption is against jurisdiction. Id.

The scope of this topic is noted below.[61]

§ 1. Necessity or occasion for a jury trial. A. As "preserved" by the constitutions. See 10 C. L. 641—The right to a jury trial of the issues of fact[62] cannot be curtailed by the courts[63] or abridged by legislative enactments,[64] but a general provision that the right "shall remain inviolate" only preserves the right as it existed prior to the adoption of the constitution.[65] The right does not exist in equitable actions,[66]

61. It includes generally all matters relating to necessity of jury trial and the selection and service of petit jurors in both civil and criminal cases. It excludes grand juries (see Grand Jury, 11 C. L. 1658), feigned issues out of chancery (see Equity, 11 C. L. 1235), the custody and conduct of juries during the trial (see Trial, 10 C. L. 1896, as to civil trials; Indictment and Prosecution, 12 C. L. 1, as to criminal trials), misconduct as ground for new trial (see New Trial and Arrest of Judgment, 10 C. L. 999, as to civil trials; Indictment and Prosecution, 12 C. L. 1, as to criminal trials), and the rendition and reception of verdict (see Verdicts and Findings, 10 C. L. 1974; Indictment and Prosecution, 12 C. L. 1). As to powers and province of the jury, see Questions of Law and Fact, 10 C. L. 1346, and topics there referred to.

62. "Right to a jury trial" is right to submission of all issues in case on law given by court whereby jury determines rights of litigants. John King Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ky.] 114 SW 308. Right not satisfied where most important part of case was submitted to jury, case having been erroneously transferred to equity docket. Id.

63. Supreme court may not infringe on right. Patterson v. Warfield, 233 Ill. 147, 84 NE 176; Hayward v. Sencenbaugh, 235 Ill. 580, 85 NE 939. Continual setting aside of verdicts until jury agrees with trial court an infringement under Const. art. 1, § 2, providing that right to jury shall remain "inviolate" meaning thereby unhurt, uninjured, unpolluted, unbroken. Ridgely v. Taylor, 110 NYS 665. Where three juries believed plaintiff's version of case, trial court was not justified in setting aside verdict as against weight of evidence. Id.

64. Wilmarth v. King, 74 N. H. 512, 69 A 889; Johnson v. State [Okl. Cr. App.] 97 P 1059. Right to jury trial secured by 7th amend. Const. not infringed by proceeding under bankrupt act of July 1, 1898, § 60d, to re-examine and reduce payments and transfers of property to counsel by bankrupt in contemplation of services to be rendered. In re Wood, 210 U. S. 247, 52 Law. Ed. 1046.

Held constitutional: Rev. Codes 1905, § 7047, subd. 1, relative to references. Smith v. Kunert [N. D.] 115 NW 76. Acts 1907, p. 639, c. 185, providing for trial of violators of game laws before justice of peace with right of appeal. State v. Sexton [Tenn.] 114 SW 494. Pub. St. c. 248, § 3, authorizing justices of peace to determine punishment when imprisonment does not exceed six months. Such punishment not more than public whipping and sitting in stocks which was permissible under constitution of 1784. Wilmarth v. King, 74 N. H. 512, 69 A 889. Statute providing for enforcement of mechanic's lien in equity. Mills v. Britt [Fla.] 47 S 799. Rev. St. 1895, art. 85, providing for compensation of assignee; to be allowed by county or district judge in case of difference between parties. Schutz v. Burges [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 494. Laws 1905, p. 66, c. 5,388, § 9, authorizing commitment of incorrigibles by judge of circuit or county court without trial by jury, is to that extent constitutional. Pugh v. Bowden [Fla.] 45 S 499. Gen. Laws 1906, §§ 1200, 1201, 1202, and § 1203, as am'd by Laws of 1907, ch. 5706, p. 217, providing for commitment of lunatics by county judge's courts, do not violate § 3, of Declaration of Rights of Constitution in not providing jury trial, such right not being in use prior to adoption of constitution. Ex parte Scuddamore [Fla.] 46 S 279. Insane person has right to trial by jury on issue of insanity, it being custom of chancellor to require trial by jury on question of insanity when constitution adopted. Sporza v. German Sav. Bank, 192 N. Y. 8, 84 NE 406. Insanity Law (L. 1896, p. 471, c. 545) preserves right to trial by jury by providing for same at request of relatives or friends. Id. Court will assume that commitment to insane hospital was based on steps required by law, such as trial by jury, where record fails to disclose proceedings. Id. Right of insane person to jury trial personal to him and person's name in statute. Debtor may not claim. Id. Constitutional provision does not apply to original suit in supreme court. People v. Alton, 233 Ill. 542, 84 NE 664.

Unconstitutional: Practice Act, § 119 (L. 1907, p. 468), providing for final judgment of supreme court on appeal from decision of new trial in appellate court. Patterson v. Warfield, 233 Ill. 147, 84 NE 176. Laws 1907, p. 467, § 119, providing that appellant to supreme court must stipulate for judgment absolute on reversal. Hayward v. Sencenbaugh, 235 Ill. 580, 85 NE 939. Though jury was waived on mutual consent at trial which resulted in judgment appealed from. Id. Practice Act, § 119 (L. 1907, p. 467), providing for appeal from appellate court on judgments of new trial, and rendition of final judgment if such appeal is not prosecuted with effect, is unconstitutional as special legislation. and the primary relief sought, if warranted by the pleadings,[67] characterizes the action.[68] Where an equitable action involves distinct legal issues, the latter are triable by jury.[69] The retention of equitable jurisdiction for the determination of all the issues involved,[70] and the allowance of a bill to restrain a multiplicity of suits,[71] does not infringe the right, but where an equity suit is changed to a law action, the right cannot be denied.[72] A law action may become equitable by interpleader.[73] The Noble v. Learned, 153 Cal. 245, 94 P 1047. Opinion of jury on question of fact advisory. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 412. Small v. Binford, 41 Ind. App. 440, 83 NE 507. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 412, providing that where there is joinder of legal and equitable actions former be tried by jury unless waived and latter by court, it was not error to deny request for jury trial on issues raised in two paragraphs of complaint where either paragraph invoked equity jurisdiction. Watt v. Barnes, 41 Ind. App. 466, 84 NE 158. In proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. c. 17, tit. 2, §§ 2256, 2257, to redeem leased property, neither party is entitled to jury trial, proceedings being equitable in nature. Statutes construed. Ebling Brew. Co. v. Nimphius, 58 Misc. 545, 109 NYS 808. Plaintiff has no absolute right to jury trial where issues in suit based on fraudulent obtaining of money are such as prior to Jan. 1, 1880, would have been properly cognizable in equity. Gen. St. 1902, § 720. Bristol v. Pitchard [Conn.] 71 A 558. Acts 1897, p. 82, providing for determination of whether law had been complied with in respect to certain bonds before their issuance, is not unconstitutional for making no reference to jury trial, since action is nearer equitable than legal. Lippitt v. Albany [Ga.] 63 SE 33.

67. Demand for equitable relief will not convert law case into equitable one to deprive plaintiff of jury trial. Thompson v. National Bank of Commerce [Mo. App.] 110 SW 681. Right to jury trial not forfeited by fact that petition for damages for overflowing of land also prays for injunction. Bratton v. Catawba Power Co. [S. C.] 60 SE 673.

68. Equitable: Right properly denied defendant who presented defense of purchaser for value without notice (Atlantic & C. Air Line R. Co. v. Victor Mfg. Co., 79 S. C. 266, 60 SE 675), estoppel (Id.), or a defense, so interwoven with plaintiff's cause as to partake of equitable nature (Id.). Issues arising where judgment is sought to be vacated or modified and validity of defense are triable by court without jury. Mansf. Dig. Ark. § 3913 (Ind. T. Ann. St. 1899, § 2593). Poff v. Lockridge [Okl.] 98 P 427. Bill in equity to enforce mechanic's lien not action to recover on contract, though labor and material furnished in accordance with contract. Mills v. Britt [Fla.] 47 S 799. In action to restrain trespass on land, defense that deed under which plaintiff claims is void for fraud does not entitle defendant to jury trial, since equity has concurrent jurisdiction. Atlantic & C. Air Line R. Co. v. Victor Mfg. Co., 79 S. C. 266, 60 SE 675. Equitable defenses interposed in ejectment may be disposed of without jury. Cassin v. Nicholson [Cal.] 98 P 190.

Legal: Party entitled to jury trial as matter of right in law action. Const. art. 1, § 6. Yeiser v. Broadwell [Neb.] 115 NW 293. Where issues involved can be properly disposed of by jury, action should not be tried by referee. Northrop v. Butler, 110 NYS 815. Complaint entitling plaintiff to punitive damages presents issue for jury. Bratton v. Catawba Power Co. [S. C.] 60 SE 673. Error to refuse jury trial in action for conversion of proceeds of bank check which is denied. Brockway v. Reynolds [Neb.] 118 NW 1055. Where petition for breach of contract for services is denied, issues are for jury. Snell v. Niagara Paper Mills [N. Y.] 86 NE 460. Either party entitled to jury as matter of right in action for damages for leaving fence in unsafe condition, permitting escape of cattle. Stanley v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. [Kan.] 96 P 34. Action by shipper, under Sherman anti-trust law (Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, § 7, 26 Stat. 210 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3202]), to recover treble damages to business by reason of conspiracy and combination of interstate carriers in charging excessive rates, an action at law and parties entitled to jury trial. Meeker v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 162 F 354.

69. Issues of fact exclusively for jury at common law. United States v. Ramsey, 158 F 488. Title to land. Bratton v. Catawba Power Co. [S. C.] 60 SE 673. Question of title by accretion. Const. 1875, art. 2, § 28 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 162). Lee v. Conran [Mo.] 111 SW 1151. Direct attack on validity of liquor election triable before judge and jury in suit for restraining order. Wallace v. Salisbury [N. C.] 60 SE 713. Issues of whether bankrupt rendered services at defendant's request and, if so, value thereof, are triable by jury. Breck v. U. S. Title Guaranty & Indemnity Co., 128 App. Div. 311, 112 NYS 756. Under Civ. Code Prac. §§ 10-12, party to equitable action has right to trial of legal issues by jury. Morawick v. Martineck's Guardian, 32 Ky. L. R. 971, 107 SW 759. Code refers only to legal issues. Barnes v. Johnson, 32 Ky. L. R. 803, 111 SW 372. Code Civ. Proc. 1902, § 274, refers strictly to legal issues. Keenan v. Leslie, 79 S. C. 473, 60 SE 1114. In action to enforce double lien for repairs on and storage of defendant's automobile where plaintiff had voluntarily surrendered car on artisan's lien, which was not shown to be prior to plaintiff's lien, defendant was entitled to jury trial on issue as to claim for storage and amount. Gage v. Callanan, 113 NYS 227.

70. In proceeding to compel assignee to settle accounts for benefit of creditors, incidental issues of fraud and value need not be submitted to jury. Cominger v. Louisville Trust Co., 33 Ky. L. R. 53, 108 SW 950.

71. Jury trial must give way to appeal to equity where ordinary proceeding at law will not sufficiently administer justice. Southern Steel Co. v. Hopkins [Ala.] 47 S 274.

72. Where equitable suit to set aside conveyance was changed to action for money damages on account of grantee's conveyance, equity court could not retain jurisdiction and deprive defendant of right to jury. Maass v. Rosenthal, 109 NYS 917. In action to enforce right to a jury does not exist in summary proceedings,[74] contempt, [75] habeas corpus,[76] eminent domain proceedings,[77] or a motion from office,[78] unless conferred by the statute.[79] Neither is the right guaranteed in trials for violation of municipal ordinances [80] as distinguished from criminal prosecutions.[81]

Denial of the right; conditions. See 10 C. L. 542—It is error to deny a jury trial because its grant would necessitate a continuance,[82] because the action involves a long examination of documents,[83] or because of a refusal to advance the venire fees.[84] The entry of judgment where there is no issuable defense is not a violation of the right,[85] but a denial may take place by arresting the introduction of evidence and directing a verdict.[86] The denial of a jury trial in a case where a jury may be waived is error only [87] which may be harmless.[88] Where a jury trial is not of right, an abuse of discretion is necessary to occasion a denial.[89] Mandamus will not lie to compel a judge to call a jury where the right is not endangered.[90]

The character of the jury guaranteed See 10 C. L. 543 is the common-law jury com-attorney's lien where defendant filed bond under Code, § 322, which bond operated to release lien, plaintiff's demand became one at law for recovery of compensation and he was entitled to jury trial. Jamison v. Ranck [Iowa] 119 NW 76.

73. Action of law in city court which by interpleader, under Code Civ. Proc. § 820, becomes equitable, is triable without jury. Schreiber v. Dry Dock Sav. Inst., 112 NYS 360.

74. Where a purchaser at partition sale refuses property causing a resale at a loss, the loss may be recovered by summary proceedings without a trial by jury. Rev. St. 1835, pp. 258, 259, §§ 40, 41 (Rev. St. 1899, p. 799, §§ 3202, 3203; Ann. St. 1906, p. 1819), and Wag. St. p. 970, c. 104, art. 2, § 31 (Rev. St. 1899, § 4407; Ann. St. 1906, p. 2421). McNamee v. Cole [Mo. App.] 114 SW 46. Proceedings by state board of health to revoke physician's license for cause are summary in their nature and triable by board without intervention of jury. Munk v. Frink [Neb.] 116 NW 525.

75. Defendant on trial for an indirect contempt is not of right entitled to jury trial. Laws 1901, ch. 123, p. 231, valid. State v. Johnston [Kan.] 97 P 790.

76. Const. art. 1, § 15, art. 5, § 10. Pittman v. Byars [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 102.

77. Amount of attorney's fee in proceedings to condemn land for public use may be determined by court without jury. Richardson v. Centerville, 137 Iowa, 253, 114 NW 1071.

78. Burke v. Jenkins [N. C.] 61 SE 608.

79. See § 1B, As Conferred Where the Common Law Did Not Give It.

80. Const. art. 2, § 9, providing that accused in criminal prosecutions have jury trial, etc., does not apply to action for penalty for violation of city ordinance. Not criminal prosecution. City of Chicago v. Knobel, 232 Ill. 112, 83 NE 459.

81. Commitment of person by criminal court of record according to Laws 1905, p. 66, c. 5388, § 9, is void and unconstitutional, unless trial by jury. Pugh v. Bowden [Fla.] 45 S 499.

82. Error to refuse trial by jury when properly demanded in accordance with Const. art. 5, § 10, and Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 3189, though grant of such right would necessitate continuance. Cleveland v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 547.

83. Plaintiff's right to jury trial in action for breach of contract for services not referable by fact that counterclaim involved long examination of documents, etc. Snell v. Niagara Paper Mills [N. Y.] 86 NE 460.

84. New Jersey Soc. for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals v. Wilbur [N. J. Law] 69 A 1010.

85. Entry of judgment in action on unconditional contract in writing where no issuable defense is not in violation of right to jury trial. Plea of general issue no defense. Jester v. Bainbridge State Bank [Ga. App.] 61 SE 926. Judgment upon unconditional contract in writing properly rendered by judge without jury where all defenses are stricken. Moore v. Smith Mach. Co. [Ga. App.] 60 SE 1035.

86. Arresting introduction of evidence before defendant rested, and instructing jury to convict, error, as defendant entitled to have question passed on by jury. Commonwealth v. Gamble, 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 146.

87. Not excess of jurisdiction. Writ of review applicable. Goodman v. Santa Clara County Super. Ct. [Cal. App.] 96 P 395.

88. Denial of right to jury pursuant to stipulation under which prior trial had been had not harmful where court made full findings of fact and added determination to verdict in accordance therewith. Twentieth Century Co. v. Quilling [Wis.] 117 NW 1007.

89. Where trial of issues by jury is discretionary (Code Civ. Proc. § 971), refusal of jury trial is not erroneous though based to some extent on condition of jury calendar. Borosky v. Gallin, 110 NYS 818. Where plaintiff selected equity court and waited three months before exercising right, though counterclaim presented issue of law, denial not abuse. Ettlinger v. Trustees of Sailors' Snug Harbor, 122 App. Div. 681, 107 NYS 779.

90. Where mistrial occurred number of times in preference case and district judge fixed case de novo for trial but refused to call jury for that day, mandamus would not lie to compel such call, since judge showed that attorney general wished for change of venue which judge intended to grant, and if such venue should not be granted case might be postponed till jury could be had. State v. Reid, 121 La. 93, 46 S 113.

posed of twelve men,[91] and the right to a jury of this number cannot be abridged by statute,[92] though in some states the right only exists where a felony is to be punished,[93] or in civil cases where the amount exceeds one hundred dollars.[94] A verdict rendered by an insufficient number of jurors should be set aside.[95]

(§ 1) B. As conferred where the common law did not give it.[See 19 C. L. 543]—The right to a jury trial as existing at the common law has been extended in many states, and a jury trial may be demanded in condemnation proceedings,[99] divorce,[97] probate matters,[98] in proceedings for the removal of a public officer,[99] or in deciding issues of fact in mandamus.[1] Statutory actions are substituted in some states with provision for trial by jury when the recovery of specific real property is sought,[2] or where the action is "for money only."[3]

91. Jury guaranteed by Const. art. 1, §§ 7, 8, is common-law jury of 12 jurors. Jennings v. State, 134 Wis. 307, 114 NW 492.

92. House Enrolled Bill No. 418 of 1907 (Loc. Laws 1907, p. 981, No. 684), establishing juvenile court, providing for juries of six (§ 5, p. 984), and vesting court with power to imprison children, etc., is unconstitutional as giving jury of six power to determine guilt of criminal when Const. art. 6, § 28, gives accused right to jury of 12 men. Robinson v. Wayne Circuit Judges, 151 Mich. 315, 14 Det. Leg. N. 945, 115 NW 682. House Enrolled Bill No. 418 of 1907 (Loc. Laws 1907, p. 988, No. 684), § 14, providing that if child be adjudged delinquent court may place case on trial, impose fine, etc., as in criminal prosecution with further provisions for trial by jury of 6, violates constitution. Id.

93. Jury of 5 trying an accused for petit larceny has no jurisdiction to convict for embezzlement, that being a felony punishable at hard labor. Art. 116 of constitution of 1898. State v. Evans [La.] 47 S 603.

94. Jury of 12 men required where damages or chattels claimed exceed $100. Municipal Court Act, Laws 1902, p. 1559, c. 580, § 234. Skinner v. Allison, 111 NYS 264.

95. Where one of 12 jurors disappeared. Jennings v. State, 134 Wis. 307, 114 NW 492. Mistrial where jury of 6 tried issue and defendant entitled to 12. Skinner v. Allison, 111 NYS 264.

96. Landowner in condemnation proceedings on filing exceptions to award of commission and demand for jury trial is entitled to such trial, though exceptions are pending and undetermined. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Pfau, 212 Mo. 398, 111 SW 10. Where commissioners' report is filed and damages assessed paid into court, railroad may proceed to construct road though exceptions are taken to award and such action does not deprive landowner of trial by jury. Id.

97. Divorce in equity, but issue of adultery triable by jury under Code Civ. Proc. § 1757. Tietzel v. Tietzel, 122 App. Div. 873, 107 NYS 878. Submission of issue of marriage on divorce not authorized. Wood v. Platt, 57 Misc. 140, 108 NYS 948. Under Const. art. 1, § 15, art. 5, § 10, and Rev. St. art. 2979, parties to divorce are entitled to jury trial on issues of fact set forth in pleadings. Wright v. Wright [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 158.

98. In proceeding to contest will, statute directs issue to be made up to be tried by jury. Dismissal of bill for want of equity after reversal on appeal erroneous. Crumbaugh v. Owen, 232 Ill. 191, 83 NE 803. Where reversal of appellate court is founded on question of fact and decree is on petition to admit will to probate, such material question of fact must be directed by reversal to be tried by jury. Code Civ. Proc. § 2588. In re O'Gorman's Will, 111 NYS 274. Under Civ. Code 1902, § 2561, extra compensation of administrator must be ascertained by jury, but such right may be waived. Anderson v. Silcox [S. C.] 63 SE 128. A contestant of a will has no right to a jury trial after the issues raised in the proceedings for probate have been tried by jury. Construing Statutes. In re Dolbeer's Estate, 153 Cal. 652, 96 P 266. Denial of jury not erroneous where court subsequently concluded that petitioner for revocation of probate of will had no interest in estate. In re Wickersham's Estate, 153 Cal. 603, 96 P 311. Right of trial by jury secured by constitution has no reference to proceedings on probate of wills. In re Dolbeer's Estate, 153 Cal. 652, 96 P 266. Proceedings special, belonging at common law to ecclesiastical jurisdiction. Id. On appeal to district court from order refusing to admit will to probate, district court has discretionary power to order any or all material issues to be tried by jury. Cartwright v. Holcomb [Okl.] 97 P 385. Proceeding to contest will not suit at common law wherein right to trial by jury is guaranteed by 7th amend. to constitution. Id.

99. Officer in proceedings for removal from office for malfeasance is entitled to jury trial under Comp. L. 1907, §§ 4574, 4575. Law v. Smith [Utah] 98 P 300. When accorded, the trial by jury should be conducted as in similar judicial proceedings. Doubt as to right. Territory v. Sanches [N. M.] 94 P 954.

1. Issue of fact joined on issuance of alternative writ of mandamus. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2082, 2083. People v. Italian Ass'n St. B. E. of M. A., 123 App. Div. 277, 107 NYS 1101.

2. Action under Rev. Code Civ. Proc. § 675, which is substituted for action of ejectment and proceeding to quiet title, presents an issue of fact for recovery of specific real property, and under § 244 must be tried by jury. Burleigh v. Hecht [S. D.] 117 NW 367.

3. Action against partner for fraud in retaining certain money an action at law triable by jury. Rev. St. 1899, § 691 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 700). Baum v. Stephenson [Mo. App.] 113 SW 225. Rev. St. 1906, § 5130, extending trial by jury in actions for money only, is applicable, regardless of number of items of account, unless relation is such as to call for accounting. Willson Imp. Co. v. Malone, 78 Ohio St. 232, 85 NE 51. Rev. St. 1906, § 5130, providing for trial by jury in actions for money only, does not extend to equity cases. Id.

(§ 1) C. Demand, loss, or waiver of right.[See 10 C. L. 543]—Generally trial by jury is subject to waiver in civil cases [4] and criminal cases not amounting to felony,[5] but a person accused of an infamous crime, though not a felony, cannot waive the constitutional number of jurors.[6] An incompetent may waive trial by jury on the issue of insanity.[7] In many states the right to trial by jury is conditional upon timely demand [8] made in the prescribed manner,[9] and in a justice's court such demand oper-

5. Const. art. 1, § 7. Goodman v. Santa Clara County Super. Ct. [Cal. App.] 96 P 395.

6. Dickinson v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 159 F 801. Trial opened with jury of twelve, but sickness intervening two were excused, defendants agreeing that trial proceed before remaining ten. Held they could not waive right by such agreement. Id. Upon pleading not guilty to information charging felony or misdemeanor, accused cannot waive jury of less than 12. Jennings v. State, 134 Wis. 307, 114 NW 492.

NOTE. Validity of waiver of jury trial in criminal actions: It is held in In re Quown [Okl.] 91 P 689, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1136, that one charged with a crime triable by jury at common law cannot waive such right. Although the contrary has been often asserted, it may be safely said that the courts are unanimous in holding that the right to trial by jury cannot be waived by one charged with felony, in the absence of statute to that effect. Harris v. People, 128 Ill. 585, 21 NE 563, 15 Am. St. Rep. 153; Morgan v. People, 136 Ill. 161, 26 NE 651; Paulsen v. People, 195 Ill. 518, 63 NE 144; State v. Maine, 27 Conn. 281; State v. Carman, 63 Iowa, 130, 50 Am. Rep. 741, 18 NW 691; State v. Larrigan, 66 Iowa, 426, 23 NW 907; State v. Tucker, 96 Iowa, 276, 65 NW 152; State v. Douglass, 96 Iowa, 308, 65 NW 151; State v. Lightfoot, 107 Iowa, 344, 78 NW 41; State v. Rea, 126 Iowa, 65, 101 NW 507; Neales v. State, 10 Mo. 498; Arnold v. State, 38 Neb. 752, 57 NW 378; Grant v. People, 4 Park. Crim Rep. 527; State v. Rep. 544; State v. Stewart, 89 N. C. 563; Maye v. Com., 82 Va. 550; Ford v. Com., 82 Va. 553; Wilson v. State, 16 Ark. 601; Bond v. State, 17 Ark. 290; People v. Smith, 9 Mich. 193; Williams v. State, 12 Ohio St. 622. In Indiana where there is a statutory provision authorizing waiver of jury trial in all cases except capital crimes, it is held that jury cannot be waived in the latter class of cases. Warner v. State, 102 Ind. 52, 1 NE 65; Lowery v. Howard, 103 Ind. 440, 3 NE 124; Frazier v. State, 106 Ind. 562, 7 NE 378. In the case of misdemeanors the same rule is asserted by a few authorities (State v. Tucker, 96 Iowa, 276, 65 NW 152; State v. Douglass, 96 Iowa, 308, 65 NW 151; State v. Lockwood, 43 Wis. 403 [obiter]), but the very great weight of authority is to the contrary and the right to waive jury trial, even in the absence of statutory authority, is maintained (Logan v. State, 86 Ga. 266, 12 SE 406; Moore v. State, 124 Ga. 30, 52 SE 81; Hollis v. State, 118 Ga. 760, 45 SE 617; Darst v. People, 51 Ill. 286, 2 Am. Rep. 301; Austin v. People, 63 Ill. App. 298; Daliman v. People, 113 Ill. App. 507; Jacobs v. People, 218 Ill. 500, 75 NE 1034; State v. Shafer, 82 Mo. App. 60; St. Charles v. Hackman, 133 Mo. 634, 34 SW 878; Levi v. State, 4 Baxt. [Tenn.] 289; State v. Alderton, 50 W. Va. 101, 40 SE 350; State v. Packenham, 40 Wash. 403, 82 P 597; United States v. Praeger, 149 F 474; Schick v. U. S., 195 U. S. 65, 49 Law. Ed. 99). This note does not include cases upon the right of one charged with crime to waive irregularities in qualifications or number of jurors or like objections to the proceedings, for a discussion of which see Schick v. U. S., 195 U. S. 65, 49 Law. Ed. 99.—Adapted from 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1136.

Request for jury after trial of issue has begun too late. In re Wickersham's Estate, 153 Cal. 603, 96 P 311. Under Acts 1896-97, pp. 807, 813, §§ 10, 25, right to trial by jury in misdemeanor case is waived by failure to make demand before first term of court after arrest. Hammond v. State [Ala.] 45 S 654. Under Loc. Laws, Jefferson County, p. 604, § 13 (Gen. Laws 1886-87, p. 838), demand for trial jury in misdemeanor case must be made to clerk within 10 days after arrest. Expression "or after court assumes jurisdiction" applies only to cases transferred to that court. Merriweather v. State [Ala.] 45 S 420. Under Acts 1894-95, p. 1062, § 19, and Acts 1896-97, p. 327, §§ 8, 11, where defendant took appeal from conviction in recorder's court to city court and made no demand for jury on appeal or when case was sounded for trial, demand after term at which appeal was taken was too late. Harrison v. Anniston [Ala.] 46 S 980.

9. No definite form of notice prescribed by Court and Practice Act 1905, § 799. Arnold v. Regan [R. I.] 69 A 292. Title and venue and words "in the above entitled cause the appellants move that the same be assigned for jury trial," signed by attorney, held sufficient. Id. Exception to ruling denying twelve jurors preserves right and same is not lost by partition in trial. Skinner v. Allison, 111 NYS 264. Waiver where defendant proceeded to trial merely excepting to amendment which changed equitable cause of action. Reynolds v. Wynne, 111 NYS 248. A request for submission of a disputed fact must be specific. Suggestion that issue was disputed not equivalent to request. Kinner v. Whipple, 113 NYS 337. Under act establishing city court of Thomasville (Acts 1905, p. 392), § 31, written demand "15 days after first day of term of court to which case is returnable" is requisite or waiver. No exates to deprive the justice of jurisdiction to try a cause without a jury.[10] Where the waiver is conditioned upon the failure of both parties to make a demand,[11] a request by the plaintiff assures the right to the defendant.[12] The waiver of the right operates as a waiver of the re-examination on appeal of any question of law or fact decided upon or in connection with the trial.[13] The right to a jury will not be determined on appeal where there was no demand.[14]

What constitutes waiver. See 10 C. L. 544—The waiver of a jury trial may be by consent [15] or the failure to make a demand.[16] The election of an equity forum constitutes waiver,[17] but the right to a jury trial on the issue of adultery is not waived by noticing for trial and filing a note of issue in the equity court.[18] A request for a directed verdict by both parties operates as a waiver,[19] unless the rule is changed by statute.[20] Where written consent is required before the court can order a reference, the right to trial by jury is not waived by silence,[21] and an agreement that a cause be referred to a referee is not a consent that the court may determine the issues.[22] Where an equity court loses jurisdiction by the change of the cause of action, the consent of the parties is required to cause a waiver of the jury trial,[23] and such conception because judge is disqualified. Mills v. Ivey, 3 Ga. App. 557, 60 SE 299. Under Loc. Acts 1900-01, p. 1298, § 14, in reference to trial of misdemeanor cases in Gadsden city court, and rule of court requiring demand for jury at 9 a. m. on first Monday after arrest, written demand at 2 o'clock p. m. may be properly disregarded. Stafford v. State [Ala.] 45 S 673.

11. Under Municipal Court Act, L. 1902, p. 1557, c. 580, §§ 230, 231, jury trial is waived when neither party makes demand. Karch v. Nassau Elec. R. Co., 123 App. Div. 34, 107 NYS 829.

12. Trial by court after plaintiff's waiver against defendant's protest erroneous. Karch v. Nassau Elec. R. Co., 123 App. Div. 34, 107 NYS 829. Where plaintiff demanded jury and defendant's challenge to venire was sustained, plaintiff could not waive demand. Municipal Court Act, L. 1902, p. 1557, c. 580, § 230. Id.

13. Where cause triable by jury under Rev. St. § 566, U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 461, is tried by court by consent of parties, no question of fact or law is subject to re-examination in appellate court. United States v. Cleage [C. C. A.] 161 F 85. Rev. St. §§ 649, 700, U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 525, 570, providing for waiver of jury and review of judgments, relates exclusively to trials in circuit courts. Id. 19. Where neither party requests submission of issue to jury, but both ask for direction in their favor, right to jury trial is waived. Kinner v. Whipple, 113 NYS 337.

20. The fact that each party asks for a directed verdict does not amount to a waiver, within Practice Act, §§ 60, 61, 82 (L. 1907, pp. 456, 460). Wolf v. Chicago Sign Print. Co., 233 Ill. 501, 84 NE 614.

23. Maass v. Rosenthal, 109 NYS 917. Where equitable suit to set aside conveyance was changed to action for money damages, it appearing that grantee had conveyed, failure of grantee to object to evidence of condition and value of property conveyed, etc., did not amount to waiver. Id.

sent cannot be implied from the filing of the answer.[24] The fact that a creditor of an insolvent corporation filed a claim against an estate with a receiver appointed in equity does not operate to cause a waiver of a jury trial in an action by the receiver on a money demand against such claimant.[25]

§ 2. Eligibility to and exemption from jury service. See 10 C. L. 544—Exemption is a personal privilege,[26] and exemption but not disqualification results from age,[27] prior jury service within a specified time,[28] or certain positions in the public service.[29] A juror who has been convicted of a crime,[30] or one who cannot understand English,[31] is disqualified.

§ 3. Disqualifications pertaining to the particular cause. Right to an unbiased and unprejudiced jury. See 10 C. L. 545—Jurors should be free from prejudice.[32] A primary cause of disqualification is the existence of a fixed opinion,[33] but a juror is not disqualified because he has an opinion[34] based on rumors[35] or newspaper re-

27. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 3799 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 2107). Blair v. Paterson [Mo. App.] 110 SW 615. Juror over 60 exempt. Albany Phosphate Co. v. Hugger Bros. [Ga. App.] 62 SE 533.

Not disqualification: Juror over 60 years exempt but not disqualified. Albany Phosphate Co. v. Hugger Bros. [Ga. App.] 62 SE 533.

28. Juror who has served in either court within year immediately preceding his selection as member of jury panel or talesmen is not competent. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 1451. Mason v. State [Ind.] 83 NE 613. Under Rev. St. § 812 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 627), as modified by Act June 30, 1879, c. 52, § 2, 21 Stat. 43 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 624), prior service within one year in same court disqualifies. Morris v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 161 F 672.

Not disqualified: Juror not disqualified in criminal case by service as juror for six days during preceding six months in district court or during preceding three months in county court. Code Cr. Proc. 1895, art. 673. Benton v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 360, 107 SW 838.

29. Under D. C. Code, § 215 (31 Stat. at L. 1223, c. 854), and § 217, salaried officers of government are given right to assert exemption from jury list. Crawford v. U. S., 30 App. D. C. 1.

Not disqualification: Under D. C. Code, § 215 (31 Stat. at L. 1223, ch. 854), salaried officers of government are not disqualified to act as jurors. Crawford v. U. S., 30 App. D. C. 1. Druggist whose store is postal substation is not ipso facto disqualified as juror, though being salaried officer of government and exempt. Id.

30. Under Code Cr. Proc. 1895, art. 673, subd. 3, and art. 676, juror who has been convicted and sentenced for perjury and has not been pardoned is absolutely disqualified. Rice v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 359, 107 SW 832.

31. Mexican examined in English language answering correctly and able to read intelligently not disqualified. Essary v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 596, 111 SW 927.

32. Johnson v. State [Okl. Cr. App.] 97 P 1059. Juror being plaintiff in suit against defendant for damages for same wrong as at issue is disqualified on account of implied bias. Stennett v. Bessemer [Ala.] 45 S 890. Where examination clearly showed bias. Heidbrink v. United R. Co. [Mo. App.] 113 SW 223. No bias within P. Code, § 1073, subd. 2, where juror stated that he had no prejudice against organized labor, though his employes had joined in strike he believed that labor organizations were prone to conspiracies. People v. Duncan [Cal. App.] 96 P 414.

33. Juror should not have opinion as to material fact in issue relating to parties, subject-matter or credibility of witnesses. Roberts v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 497. Juror having fixed opinion which it would require strong evidence to remove is incompetent, though he states that he will be governed by evidence and instructions. Murphy v. State [Miss.] 45 S 865.

34. Juror who had opinion which it would take evidence to remove but who stated himself capable to try case on merits competent. State v. Banner [N. C.] 63 SE 84. Where record did not show opinion. Smith v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. [Neb.] 115 NW 755. Opinion of juror as to liability of defendant in other cases not cause for challenge. Id. Where from all evidence juror has no bias or prejudice and only desires to reach result to which evidence conduces, he is competent, though he has expressed opinion as to guilt of accused. Code 1906, § 2685. Murphy v. State [Miss.] 45 S 865. While it is rule that one qualified to sit as juror in criminal case who states that, notwithstanding an opinion he has formed as to guilt of defendant, he believes he can lay that opinion aside and render fair and impartial verdict based alone on the evidence and charge of court, it is nevertheless duty of court to secure as jurors men who do not entertain settled belief as to either guilt or innocence of defendant. State v. Dickerson, 7 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 193.

35. Opinion based on rumor does not disqualify where juror states ability to give fair and impartial trial. Decker v. State, 85 Ark. 64, 107 SW 182; Russell v. State, 53 Tex Cr. App. 500, 111 SW 658.

ports [36] which he is able to lay aside. Neither is a juror necessarily incompetent because he has formed an opinion regarding the guilt of a person jointly indicted with the defendant.[37] Ordinarily, prior service does not disqualify a juror [38] unless the cases are identical,[39] or the credibility of the same witness is involved.[40] Mere knowledge of a prior conviction does not disqualify.[41] A juror who stated that he would give more weight to the testimony of a white man than a negro is not disqualified,[42] and the answer given under a misconception of the counsel's questions is not a sufficient reason to excuse the juror.[43] In criminal trials place of residence is material,[44] such fact is unimportant in an action to sever territory from a municipality where the determination of the case would not affect the juror's taxes.[45] Relationship to the accused,[46] or that the jurors is an employe of a party to the action,[47] are grounds for challenge, but the rules cannot be extended to disqualify a person engaged in a similar vocation,[48] a member of a similar [49] or rival corporation,[50]

36. Juror not disqualified by opinion based on newspapers, rumor, etc., when he stated ability to try case on evidence and instructions. State v. Howard, 120 La. 311, 45 S 260; Cooke v. People, 134 Ill. App. 41; State v. Rohn [Iowa] 119 NW 88. Opinion from newspaper reports of former trials. Noonan v. Luther, 112 NYS 898. Where court satisfied that opinion will not resist force of evidence. Johnson v. State [Okl. Cr. App.] 97 P 1059. No bias within Pen. Code, § 1073, subd. 2, where juror had opinion based on newspapers. People v. Duncan [Cal. App.] 96 P 414. Does not disqualify. Pen. Code, § 1076. People v. Maughs [Cal. App.] 96 P 407. Rev. St. 1899, § 2616 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 1550). State v. Vickers, 209 Mo. 12, 106 SW 999. Jurors who had read unsworn confession of party implicated in crime but who were able to lay aside opinion based on such reading and render verdict in accordance with law and evidence not disqualified, under Rev. St. 1899, § 2616 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 1550). State v. Bobbitt [Mo.] 114 SW 511.

Disqualified: Under Rev. Code Civ. Proc. § 6741, juror having opinion based on rumour or newspapers is disqualified to act in personal injury action against carrier. Shane v. Butte Elec. R. 38. That juror states on voir dire that he has previously sat upon trial of murder case does not render him subject to challenge upon ground of implied bias. Johnson v. State [Okl. Cr. App.] 97 P 1059.

39. Jurors who have acted upon or heard testimony in identical case whereby they have formed opinion are disqualified. Ross v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 162, 109 SW 153. Service on grand jury which returned indictment ground for disqualification. Ryan v. State, 10 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 497.

40. Where prosecution relies on one witness. Hanes v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 107 SW 818; Green v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 933. Similar prosecution. Holmes v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 352, 353, 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 844, 106 SW 1160. Where juror had acted in two similar cases. Roberts v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 497. Where jurors heard testimony of witness against one defendant, they were disqualified from acting on the trial of another defendant with same witness. Kenecht v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 55, 108 SW 1183.

41. Arnwine v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 796. Jurors in court room whereby they obtained knowledge of trial and acquittal of accused on another charge of robbery. State v. Wren, 121 La. 55, 46 S 99. Presence of jurors during trial for adultery does not disqualify in action for unlawful carrying pistol where they state ability to act impartially. Hubbard v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 399, 107 SW 351. Retention of juror possessing knowledge of former conviction harmless where juror was fair and did not disclose knowledge. Moore v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 336, 107 SW 540.

42. Juror stated ability to give impartial trial and that he was free from prejudice. Moore v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 336, 107 SW 540.

43. Where juror stated he would give accused benefit of reasonable doubt when court explained law. Rice v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 112 SW 299.

44. Juror resident of county where crime committed, though retaining legal residence in another county, not disqualified, there being no injustice or intentional wrong. Thurman v. Com., 107 Va. 912, 60 SE 99.

45. Johnson v. Waterloo [Iowa] 119 NW 70. See, also, Eminent Domain, 11 C. L. 1198, as to peculiar disqualifications in that proceeding.

46. Pen. Code, § 1074, authorizes challenge for implied bias if juror is related to accused by consanguinity or affinity within fourth degree. Improper to sustain challenge where juror might be fourth or fifth cousin or something through marriage and had only recently ascertained fact. People v. Schmitz [Cal. App.] 94 P 407.

47. Employe of party to action disqualifies. Code Civ. Proc. § 1180. Blair v. McCormack Const. Co., 123 App. Div. 30, 107 NYS 750.

Stockholder in corporation which is party to action disqualifies. Code Civ. Proc. § 1180. Blair v. McCormack Const. Co., 123 App. Div. 30, 107 NYS 750.

48. In suit for real estate broker's commissions, persons engaged in similar vocation were not for that reason disqualified. Ballentine v. Mercer, 130 Mo. App. 605, 109 SW 1037. "Interest in the cause" means either direct or indirect interest in subject-matter of particular cause. Not mere general interest. Id.

49. Jurors having membership in cattle association for purpose of preventing thefts of an employe of a stockholder of a corporation which is a party,[51] or a citizen and taxpayer of a municipality which is a party.[52] Statutes fixing disqualification in civil cases do not ordinarily apply in criminal cases.[53]

§ 4. Discretion of court to excuse juror. See 10 C. L. 546

§ 5. The jury list and drawing for the term. See 10 C. L. 546—Statutes providing for the selection of the jury list by jury commissioners[54] prescribe the manner of appointment of these officers.[55] In some states provision is made for a substitute when a member is absent or for action by the majority of the board.[56] The authority of a judge to draw a jury under the local laws is not an interference with the acts of the commissioners under the general law.[57] The Texas "jury wheel law" is constitutional.[58] Utter disregard of a statute requiring the names of the jurors to be selected in proportion to the number of qualified persons in the supervisor's districts renders the drawing invalid.[59] Under an act providing for the recording of the list of jurors upon the journals of the court and certifying to the correctness thereof, the purely ministerial duties could be performed by a deputy.[60] A provision for additional jurors to be drawn from the neighborhood is valid.[61] The right to jurors from the neighborhood is satisfied by drawing from the body of the county.[62] While a large sheep and prosecuting offenders are not disqualified by that fact alone in prosecution for stealing sheep by another similar association. Starke v. State [Wyo.] 96 P 148.

50. Fact that juror is stockholder in rival corporation not ground for challenge for cause where juror states that he does not know defendant and could act impartially. Rogers Grain Co. v. Tanton, 136 Ill. App. 533.

51. Employe of stockholder of corporation not disqualified in case where corporation is party. Sansouver v. Glenlyon Dye Works, 28 R. I. 539, 68 A 545.

55. Jury commissioners are statute officers, and under Const. art. 71, are appointive by general assembly. State v. Pierre, 121 La. 465, 46 S 574. Under Act No. 98, p. 124 of 1880, as am'd by Act No. 170, p. 211 of 1894, duty of appointing jury commissioners is vested in governor. Id. Acts 1898, p. 218, No. 135, § 3, providing that appointment of jury commission be written and entered on minutes of district court, sufficiently complied with by verbal order in open court entered on minutes. State v. Marionneaux, 120 La. 455, 45 S 389. Under Acts 1898, p. 218, No. 135, § 3, order appointing jury commission should be written only when made at chambers, purpose of statute being to provide for entry in minutes. Id. Acts 1898, p. 216, No. 135, sufficiently complied with by "it is ordered that jury commission is hereby ordered to be composed of following citizens," etc., naming five citizens. Id.

56. Civ. Code 1902, § 2909, providing that county auditor, county treasurer and clerk of common pleas constitute jury commissioners, and that majority of board may act, is not inconsistent with or repealed by Act Feb. 7, 1902 (23 St. at L. p. 1066), providing for county superintendent of education and sheriff to fill absent places. "Jury wheel law," Acts 30th Leg., c. 139, § 1 (L. 1907, p. 269), enacting jury law to be operative in counties having city or cities aggregating 20,000 inhabitants, applies to county containing two cities aggregating that number of inhabitants, though no one city so large. Logan v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 1028. "Jury wheel law," Acts 30th Leg. (L. 1907, p. 269), c. 139, § 1, is not in violation of constitution prohibiting special legislation, though applicable only to counties having city or cities of 20,000 population. Id. "Jury wheel law," Acts 30 Leg. (L. 1907, p. 269), c. 139, § 1, is not invalid in that it lists names of jurors for duty for period of two years, and excludes those who may become disqualified in the meanwhile. Id.; Huddleston v. 61. Act Feb. 8, 1895 (Loc. Laws 1894-95, p. 425), providing for drawing of jurors within two miles of court house, and returning other names to jury box when number of qualified jurors in attendence is insufficient, does not violate Const. 1901, art. 1, § 6, as to impartial jury. Wray v. State [Ala.] 45 S 697.

62. Not violative of Const. art. 2, §§ 5, 9.

discretion is allowed the officers in selecting a jury,[63] discrimination against citizens on account of race or color is illegal,[64] but the constitutional guaranty does not entitle a person to a jury of the same race [65] and discrimination is not presumed.[66] The statutes provide for the striking of the names of persons who are deemed incompetent.[67] Statutes regulating the drawing of jurors are generally regarded as directory,[68] and an irregularity vitiates the drawing only where fraudulent;[69] thus the fact that the drawing took place before the commissioners were sworn,[70] that a sheriff did not actually draw the general panel,[71] or that the prosecuting attorney consulted with the judge as to the qualifications of the jurors,[72] has been held immaterial. On an issue as to the validity of a drawing of certain jurors, evidence that it was the object in drawing to scatter the jury over the county is admissible.[73]

Selection of jurors from registration books of voters by board of supervisors by selecting persons of good moral character from the various districts does not admit of discrimination against negroes. Lewis v. State [Miss.] 45 S 360. Statutory provisions for selecting jury do not authorize discrimination. Montgomery v. State [Fla.] 45 S 879. Where county supervisors in selecting jury list intentionally struck off names of negroes, such action was in violation of constitution as to due process of law. Farrow v. State [Miss.] 45 S 619. Violation of constitution granting accused trial by impartial jury. Id. Denies equal protection of laws. Id. Motion to quash venire for race discrimination properly denied where negro sat on jury, where judge instructed jury commissioners not to discriminate, and they testified that they had obeyed such instruction. Macklin v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 197, 109 SW 145.

66. Montgomery v. State [Fla.] 45 S 879. Presumption may be overcome by sufficient proper evidence. Id. Illegal discrimination should be alleged and if not admitted by demurrer or otherwise must be proven in proper proceedings. Id. No discrimination against person of African descent from mere fact that jury selected was white. Groce v. Ter. [Ariz.] 94 P 1108.

67. Under Act 1902 (23 St. at L. p. 1066), §§ 2, 4, 7, 14, officers charged with duty of drawing jury may strike names of persons deemed by them not to possess statutory qualifications. State v. Mills, 79 S. C. 187, 60 SE 664. Under Code 1887, § 4018, as am'd by Act Feb. 10, 1904 (Acts 1904, pp. 15-17), clerk has no right to leave off name of person drawn who is incompetent unless embraced in section of statute. Ashlock v. Com. [Va.] 61 SE 752.

68. Subetantial compliance sufficient. Governor v. State [Ga. App.] 63 SE 241; McNeal v. State [Ga. App.] 63 SE 224; Coleman v. State [Ga. App.] 63 SE 244; Passmore v. State [Ga. App.] 63 SE 244. Rev. 1905, §§ 1957-1960, relative to revision of jury list, directory. State v. Banner [N. C.] 63 SE 84. Where the drawing and summoning is under color of law and semblance of legal authority, the jury is such at least de facto. Not open to litigant to challenge each juror on ground that act they were drawn under is unconstitutional. State v. Ju Nun [Or.] 97 P 96.

69. Failure to observe does not vitiate venire in absence of bad faith or corruption on part of county commissioners. State v. Banner [N. C.] 63 SE 84. Motion to quash venire because of objections to manner of drawing properly denied, where facts did not show fraud. Code 1896, § 4997. Richter v. State [Ala.] 47 S 163.

70. Whether the jury commissioners drew the list before or after they were sworn is immaterial. Officers de facto if not de jure. Rosenblatt v. State, 2 Ga. App. 649, 58 SE 1107. Oath immaterial. Pol. Code 1895, § 242. Id.

71. Where sheriff being ill supervised selection of jurors while another marked names suggested, selection was made by the sheriff. State v. Kelly [N. J. Err. & App.] 70 A 342.

72. Drawing of petit jurors by county court in compliance with Rev. St. 1899, §§ 3769, 3770 (Ann. St. 1906, pp. 2096, 2097), merely irregular where prosecuting attorney consulted with judge as to qualifications but no evidence of selecting jurors or of erasure of names selected. State v. Melton, 130 Mo. App. 262, 109 SW 858.

73. Richter v. State [Ala.] 47 S 163.

74. Thurman v. Com., 107 Va. 912, 60 SE 99.

Writ returnable on second day of term not venire may be quashed where the required diligence in summoning the jurors was not exercised,[76] but objections to a venire may be waived.[77] A venire should not be quashed because the state's counsel assisted in checking the venire list.[78] The canvassing of the list of proposed jurors for eminent domain proceedings is legal.[79] The municipal court act of Chicago providing for the service of the venire by the sheriff is constitutional.[80] In Louisiana the proper evidence of the manner in which the venire has been drawn is the proces verbal of the drawing,[81] and sworn allegations of fraud are necessary to attack the drawing.[82]

§ 7. Empaneling the trial jury. See 10 C. L. 549—The trial jury must be empaneled substantially [83] as provided by statute,[84] and in criminal cases the rule is more strictly applied.[85] A mandatory requirement that the clerk draw the names of the jurors from the box cannot be evaded.[86] Technical errors, such as the absence of an officer while the panel was drawn,[87] or the overruling of a motion for a continuance,[88] will not work a reversal unless prejudice results. A defect in the panel may be waived.[89] Under the Illinois practice, where a panel is broken by challenge, the invalid for that reason, since by Code 1887, § 4018 (Va. Code 1904, p. 2114), judge might make writ returnable on day other than first day of term. Id.

75. Omission of words "of his corporation" not fatal in writ, since by statute, Code 1887, §§ 3142, 3144 (Va. Code 1904, p. 1661), residents of corporation are only permitted to serve. Thurman v. Com., 107 Va. 912, 60 SE 99.

76. Where only 11 jurors of 50 were present, case should be postponed until sheriff had summoned venire, or venire should be quashed and new one issued. Logan v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 1028. Proper to refuse to quash venire as failing to show diligence in summoning jurors where sheriff and deputies searched for same, some being out of state and none omitted purposely. Rice v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 112 SW 299.

77. Where exceptions were taken to venire but no motion to quash and parties proceeded to empanel jury, objection was waived. Mercer County v. Wolff, 237 Ill. 74, 86 NE 708. Right to trial by jury regularly chosen waived where counsel consented to set trial at a time when he knew a picked up jury would have to be used. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Coggin, 44 Tex. Civ. App. 423, 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 75, 99 SW 1052.

78. On theory of prior knowledge of list, since such list was subject to inspection. Rice v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 112 SW 299.

80. Municipal Court Act of Chicago, § 25 (Hurd's Rev. St. 1095, p. 644, c. 37), providing that jurors be provided by jury commissioners of Cook county, that venires be served by sheriff at expense of county, and that jury fees be paid by city, apportion expenses between city and county and is not violative of Const. art. 2, § 2, as to deprivation of property without due process of law. Revenues subject to legislative control. City of Chicago v. Knobel, 232 Ill. 112, 83 NE 459. Not violative of Const. art. 9, §§ 9, 10, providing for levy and collection of uniform taxes by municipality. Id.

81. State v. Marionneaux, 120 La. 455, 45 S 389.

82. In absence of sworn allegations of fraud, accused may not have venire box opened to ascertain if recitals of proces verbal of drawing are true. State v. Marionneaux, 120 La. 455, 45 S 389.

83. Acts 1898, p. 216, No. 135, does not direct that names of jurors be drawn from envelope containing names for term rather than box. State v. Montgomery, 121 La. 1005, 46 S 997. Where 8 jurors were drawn from box rather than envelope in accordance with custom of court, and remaining four according to counsel's suggestion in pursuance with statute, accused cannot object. Id.

84. Jurors must be selected and returned in statutory manner. Substituted juror. People v. Duncan [Cal. App.] 96 P 414. Under St. ch. 78, §§ 21, 23, jury to be passed upon and accepted in panels of four. People v. Nylin, 139 Ill. App. 500.

85. Where offender against municipal ordinance demanded jury as expressly authorized by B. & C. Comp. § 2257, from jury list provided by § 2251 et seq., court cannot over objections of party direct officer to summon jury as authorized by §§ 2221, 2222. Cusiter v. Silverton, 50 Or. 419, 93 P 234. Jurors whose names were drawn from wheel by judge, district clerk and deputy sheriff were lawfully chosen. Prosecution for theft. Davis v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 629, 108 SW 667.

86. Jury drawn by deputy sheriff by direction of clerk illegal. State v. McGee, 80 Conn. 614, 69 A 1059.

87. Absence of justice of peace while panel was drawn harmless where judge was present and drawing otherwise in accordance with Gen. St. 1901, § 3816. State v. Thurston, 77 Kan. 522, 94 P 1011.

88. Overruling of motion to postpone empanelment of jurors until two absent jurors could be secured, or to quash special venire, harmless when such jurors were subsequently brought in. Tabor v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 387, 107 SW 1116.

89. Expressly or by implication. Ivey v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 565. Where no challenge to array, though panel contains less than 48 jurors, accused cannot as matter of right demand filling of panel. Id.

challengor must tender back a full panel, and, therefore, he must first examine the talesmen called to supply the place of the one challenged.[90] In a will contest in Alabama where the contestant challenges a juror the court need not supply twelve men before requiring contestant to pass on those remaining.[91]

§ 8. Arraying and challenging. A. Challenge to the array or panel. See 10 C. L. 549 A challenge to the array must be one which affects the entire panel [92] and must be timely made.[93] An objection that the jurors were not drawn according to law is too general to cover an objection that the sheriff failed to select the general panel.[94] The challenge to the array has been abolished in some states.[95] The refusal of a continuance for the procurement of evidence to support a challenge to the panel is discretionary.[96]

(§ 8) B. Challenge for cause. See 10 C. L. 550—A challenge for cause may be based upon disqualification in general [97] or on the particular cause.[98] The enumerated causes by challenge in a statute are not exclusive of other causes.[99] It is also a ground for challenge that the juror has been subpoenaed as a witness,[1] but this defect may be waived.[2] The challenge must specify the ground of disqualification.[3] It is a general rule that challenges should be made before the juror is sworn,[4] but it has been held permissible to excuse a previously accepted juror "for cause" before the jury was completed.[5] In Georgia it is not ground for a challenge to the poll that jurors who had been rejected at a previous trial were placed upon the list,[6] but the fact

Right to list of jurors.[8]

(§ 8) C. Peremptory challenges and standing jurors aside. Peremptory challenges.[See 10 C. L. 550]—A premptory challenge is an objection for which no reason need be given.[9] A person accused of a crime is entitled to a complete panel before exercising his peremptory challenges.[10] While peremptory challenges exist by virtue of statute,[11] the right is valuable and must be held to exist unless the code expressly excludes.[12]

Number allowed.[See 10 C. L. 550]—The number of peremptory challenges is regulated by statute and is usually dependent upon the punishment to be inflicted,[13] and an accused cannot multiply his challenges by the number of counts in the complaint.[14] Additional challenges may be allowed where additional jurors are summoned.[15] Usually joint parties are only entitled in the aggregate to the number allowed to a single party [16] unless their interests are antagonistic.[17] It was not error to refuse an additional peremptory challenge where a challenge for cause was overruled, the juror being competent, and nothing was said about a particular juror being distasteful.[18]

Time for challenge.[See 10 C. L. 551]—The right of peremptory challenge must be exercised before the juror is sworn.[19]

(§ 8) D. Examination of jurors and trial and decision of challenges.[See 10 C. L. 551]—The determination of the competency of a juror rests with the court [20] from a consideration of the evidence presented [21] and other circumstances.[22] The question

22. Not confined to answers of juror but may consider appearance, demeanor, etc. Bemis v. Omaha [Neb.] 116 NW 31. Court not bound by answers of juror on voir dire but may take other means to determine com-

presented by a challenge is one of mixed law and fact to be tried as any other issue upon evidence.[23] Doubts as to competency should be resolved in favor of the accused,[24] but a party has no vested interest in the selection of any particular juror.[25] The separate examination of veniremen is a matter of discretion.[26] The challengor has the burden of establishing incompetency,[27] and the failure to examine is a waiver of disqualification.[28] Some states provide for the determination of impartiality by statutory questions, interrogated by the judge upon proper challenge.[29]

Scope of examination. See 10 C. L. 551—It is proper to permit questions for the intelligent exercise of the peremptory challenge [30] or to ascertain if the juror is disqualified.[31] Pertinent questions in good faith are proper though directed to matters not in issue,[32] but totally irrelevant questions,[33] questions tending to encourage a disagreement [34] by alluding to former trials,[35] should be avoided, and the court may require questions to be asked in a clear and intelligible manner.[36] The allowance of additional examination after a juror is sworn is discretionary.[37] A defendant has a right to rely on the answers given.[38] A question as to whether a juror can act on the evidence and instructions may be excluded in eminent domain proceedings,[39] and the refusal of an examination of jurors in such proceedings is not erroneous when the complainant had neglected one opportunity.[40]

Review of trial of challenges[41]—The decision that a juror is qualified will be reversed only in case of above.[42] The exercise of peremptory challenges is not reviewable,[43] nor is a rule adopted by the trial court for the exercise of peremptory challenges.[44]

Improper overruling or sustaining of a challenge as a ground for reversal.[45]—Error in excluding a juror is not ground for reversal where the jury was fair and impartial,[46] nor will a reversal be granted for the erroneous overruling of a challenge where the objecting party fails to exhaust his peremptory challenges,[47] although if a party is compelled to use a peremptory challenge and an objectionable juror is thereafter forced upon him, relief will be granted.[48] A presumption of prejudice arises from the erroneous overruling of a challenge for cause,[49] where the record shows the exhaustion of the peremptory challenges.[50] Objections are not available after the verdict,[51] though the disqualification was not discovered until then.[52] It is reversible error to excuse a juror for a defect which may be waived.[53]

cannot complain because he was convicted by such a jury.[56] The names required for a special venire must be drawn by the proper officer.[57] The issuance of a new venire returnable instanter is proper in condemnation proceedings.[58] In Alabama each capital case must have its own separate venire.[59] Mistake in the names of the veniremen is not ground for quashal,[60] or the fact that the list furnished the accused did not state the residences of the jurors.[61] In a felony case in Virginia, the court may provide for the drawing of jurors in his absence by appointing a commissioner of chancery.[62]

§ 10. Special and struck juries and juries of less than twelve.[See 8 C. L. 635]—A special or struck jury is authorized in New York [63] in an intricate or important case.[64]

§ 11. Swearing.[See 8 C. L. 635]—The fact that the jury is not sworn may be waived.[65]

§ 12. Custody and discharge of jurors and jury.[66]—The power to discharge a jury in a civil cause during trial is not discretionary.[67]

56. Under Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 3150, and Code Cr. Proc. art. 695, person convicted of offense in fourth week of term cannot complain because jury was selected by sheriff at court's order instead of by jury commission, and such jurors were impartial where jury commission selected jurors for three weeks but disposition of business required another week. Green v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 490, 110 SW 920.

57. Under Acts 30th Leg. (L. 1907) p. 269, c. 139, providing that keys for wheel containing names of jurors shall be kept by sheriff and district clerk, who shall draw names, etc., and that when special venire is ordered "clerk" shall draw names required, a special venire in criminal district court of county is properly drawn by district clerk of county. Lee v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 113 SW 301; Moxie v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 375.

58. Under Eminent Domain Act, § 7; Hurd's Rev. St. 1908, c. 47, where venire quashed. Mercer County v. Wolff, 237 Ill. 74, 86 NE 708.

59. Error to draw and summon one venire for two or more cases. Walker v. State [Ala.] 45 S 640. Under Cr. Code 1896, §§ 5004, 5005 (Cr. Code 1907, §§ 7263, 7265), providing for drawing of special jury in capital cases which with panel of petit jurors for week shall constitute venire, it was error to direct that names from jury box constitute venire without embracing petit jurors. Statute mandatory. Bradberry v. State [Ala.] 46 S 968.

60. Names should be discarded and other jurors summoned. Code 1896, § 5007. Walker v. State [Ala.] 45 S 640. Mistake of second initial of juror's name not ground for quashal. Patterson v. 63. Under Laws 1901, p. 1465, c. 602, § 5, as am'd by L. 1904, p. 1147, c. 458, authorizing special jury to try issues in civil case where struck jury might be ordered, where case presented importance and intricacy authorizing struck jury under Code Civ. Proc. § 1063, practice of drawing struck jury need not be followed but special jury might be drawn. Jerome v. New York Evening Journal Pub. Co., 124 App. Div. 372, 108 NYS 801. Code Civ. Proc. § 1063, authorizes struck jury when requisite for fair and impartial trial, or where special jury is required by importance or intricacy of case. Id. Facts held to indicate importance and intricacy of case rather than inability to secure impartial jury, and struck jury proper. Id. Impartial jury most speedily obtained from special panel authorized by L. 1901, p. 1462, c. 602, as amended by L. 1904, p. 1147, c. 458, than attempting to procure struck jury. People v. McClellan, 124 App. Div. 664, 109 NYS 76.

64. A struck jury is proper in an action for libeling a public official in respect to his official conduct. Within discretion of court. Jerome v. New York Evening Journal Pub. Co., 124 App. Div. 372, 108 NYS 801. Case involving title to mayoralty of New York City is of such importance as to be tried before special jury. People v. McClellan, 124 App. Div. 664, 109 NYS 76.

65. Failure to object during trial that jury had not been sworn a waiver of defect. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Butler [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 671. Where trial by jury may be waived, failure to swear jury where no objection is made till after verdict and judgment is mere irregularity. Id.

§ 13. Compensation, sustenance and comfort of jurors.[See 8 C. L. 635]—A provision for compensation for the attendance of jurors entitles them to a fee though they did not serve.[68] In a lunacy proceeding in New York, the jurors are entitled to but one fee, regardless of the length of the hearing.[69] The allowance to the trustee of the jury fund of three per cent of the fines and forfeitures collected in Kentucky gives him no interest in damages awarded on the affirmance of a judgment for the commonwealth.[70] The refusal of a county treasurer to pay a warrant for the services is not enforcible by mandamus.[71]

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

§ 1. The office.[See 10 C. L. 553]—The justice of the peace is a public officer[72] and combines judicial and clerical functions.[73] He can ordinarily perform judicial acts only when actually sitting as a court.[74] A justice court is not usually deemed one of record.[75] In Mississippi only kinship or pecuniary interest in the result disqualifies as justice from presiding in a particular case.[76] Provision in a home rule charter for the establishment of police courts does not impair the legislative power to create justice courts in the municipality.[77] Where a city having justices under a special charter adopts a general charter providing for the election of police judges, the justices retain their powers under the special charter until police judges

68. Under Code 1896, §§ 4580, 4581, entitling jurors to $2 for each day's "service," and special jurors to same compensation for their "attendance," special juror who attended court upon summons for one day and was discharged without being sworn is entitled to compensation. Chitty v. Tisdale [Ala.] 45 S 587.

69. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2333, 3313, fees of jurors in courts of record are 25 cents for each case in which he is empaneled, except as otherwise provided. In re Vanderbilt, 111 NYS 558.

70. Commonwealth v. French [Ky.] 114 SW 255. Under Ky. St. 1903, §§ 2286, 2290, trustee of jury fund collects all fines and forfeitures in favor of commonwealth and retains 3 per cent for compensation. Id. Cannot be deprived of such fee by pardon of governor. Id.

72. Justice, a public officer, under Cr. Code 1896, § 5153 (Cr. Code 1907, § 7446), punishing any person who, being disqualified by law, enters upon any public office. State v. Albright [Ala.] 46 S 470.

73. Taking a bail bond by justice held a clerical act. State v. Cooper [Tenn.] 113 SW 1048. It devolves upon him to perform all ministerial acts in connection with the court as well as the judicial acts. Zimmerman v. Bradford-Kennedy Co., 14 Idaho, 681, 95 P 825. Entry of a judgment when he renders the judgment is a judicial act as distinguished from the ministerial function performed by him in entering a judgment upon the verdict of the jury in appeal. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Brown, 3 Ga. App. 561, 60 SE 319.

74. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Cohn & Co. [Ga. App.] 62 SE 572. The act of a justice in setting aside a dismissal after expiration of the term of his court is a nullity. Rivers v. Campbell [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 190. Collection of judgment rendered after setting aside dismissal held properly enjoined. Id. Fact that justice has extrajudicially granted a party's sole counsel leave of absence, or has personally agreed to continue trial of case, does not require grant of a continuance. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Cohn & Co. [Ga. App.] 62 SE 572. One who absents himself from court upon a promise by the magistrate, when not actually presiding, that a leave of absence will be granted or that the cause will be continued, does so at his own peril. are elected.[78] The legislature may confer on one of the justices of the peace in a city exclusive, civil and criminal jurisdiction over cases between residents of a city which was before possessed by four justices and make the one justice the successor of the other justices upon the separation of their terms.[79] Appointees in case of vacancies usually hold office until the "next general election," [80] and elections must be held at the time prescribed by statute.[81]

§ 2. Compensation, duties, and liabilities. See 10 C. L. 554—A justice collecting an unlawful fee is guilty of extortion.[82] Where the fee is to be collected for the benefit of another, the justice is liable if he fails to collect it.[83] In some states an annual salary is given in full compensation for all services performed.[84] Failure on the part of the county attorney to notify the sureties on the justices' official bond of the fact that the justice had collected and neglected to pay over costs due to the county attorney does not release the sureties,[85] but any act on the attorney's part extending the time for payment without the sureties' consent operates as a discharge.[86]

§ 3. Civil jurisdiction. See 10 C. L. 555—Justice courts are courts of limited and special jurisdiction,[87] possessing only such powers as are conferred by statute,[88] and appellate courts take judicial notice of the population of a county for the purpose of determining what laws govern.[89] There is no intendment in their favor [90] and

78. Adoption of Gen. Charter Law (St. 1898, c. 40a) § 925-61, held not to deprive justices of city of powers exercised under special charter until police justice was elected. Olson v. Hawkins, 135 Wis. 394, 116 NW 18. Appointment by mayor of city having adopted general charter (St. 1898, c. 40a) as authorized by § 525-31, even though premature, held to render appointee a de facto police justice. Id.

79. Kalamazoo Amended Charter Loc. Acts 1907, p. 883, Acts No. 648, and especially § 18, c. 29, creating municipal court for city of Kalamazoo, held not unconstitutional as depriving constitutional officers of their offices, constitution not requiring more than one justice in a city. Const. art. 6, §§ 1, 17. Strifling v. Baden [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 948, 118 NW 740. Under act held exclusive jurisdiction of justice was not suspended until the expiration of the other justice's terms, so as to make his jurisdiction before that time concurrent with that of the other justices. 80. Next general election in Wilson's Rev. & Ann. St. 1903, § 3750, means next general election at which the particular class of officers is to be chosen. Wainwright v. Fore [Okl.] 97 P 831. Appointee to fill vacancy of officer elected at election for adoption of constitution held to hold until election of 1910, that being first general election at which a justice could be elected to fill vacancy under constitution and statutes. Id.

81. Election of justices of the peace, held in Nov. 1907 to take effect January 1, 1908, to succeed incumbents elected in November, 1904, for terms of three years and took office in April, 1905, premature and void, and petitions in quo warranto directed against such incumbents will be dismissed. State v. Brown, 11 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 107.

82. State v. Cooper [Tenn.] 113 SW 1048. A justice has no right to collect a fee for taking a bail bond until it has been adjudged upon some disposition of the case by final judgment that the defendant was liable for the same. Id.

83. Under Laws 1899, p. 495, c. 286, where justice of the peace was called to try a case when municipal judge was disqualified, $10 fees were collectible and to be divided between municipal judge and justice who tried case. Mead v. Simpson, 134 Wis. 451, 114 NW 821.

84. Under Loc. Acts 1901, p. 671, No. 468, § 37 and § 38, justice not entitled to retain fees collected in criminal cases, they not being "costs" nor "expenses," and justice's salary being fixed at $1,500 in full for all services performed. Harrison v. Chippewa County Sup'rs, 151 Mich. 91, 14 Det. Leg. N. 811, 114 NW 851.

85. Wright v. Deaver [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 165.

86. Agreement between county attorney and justice whereby time was extended in consideration of justice paying interest held to discharge sureties, not having consented to agreement. Wright v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Smith, 3 Ga. App. 644, 60 SE 353. Under Const. art. 6, § 18, held legislature can withdraw any cause from justice's jurisdiction. Detroit Lumber Co. v. The Petrel [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 506, 117 NW 80.

88. Martin v. Richmond [Va.] 62 SE 800.

89. Court takes notice that on Aug. 28, 1900, Cole county had less than 50,000 inhabitants, hence jurisdiction of justice therein was governed by Rev. St. 1899, § 3835 [Ann. St. 1906, p. 2124]. Ruckert v. Richter, 127 Mo. App. 664, 107 SW 1081.

90. Smith v. Lyle Rock Co. [Mo. App.] 111 SW 831; Harlan v. Gladding, McBean & Co. [Cal. App.] 93 P 400; Ferguson v. Basin Consol. Mines, 152 Cal. 712, 93 P 867.

it is essential that the jurisdictional facts appear of record,[91] and in an action on a justice's judgment, claimant therein has the burden of showing that the justice had jurisdiction,[92] and to establish the same, the issuance and service of summons as required by law must be shown.[93] Technical defect in the summons is not, however, jurisdictional.[94] Where a justice has obtained jurisdiction,[95] it continues until divested,[96] and there is a presumption that the subsequent proceedings are regular, unless the alleged irregularity appears upon the face of the record or there is an omission to make of record that which the law expressly requires shall be so entered,[97] and where the record in an ordinary action shows an appearance by the parties, the want of jurisdiction of the person is waived where no objection is raised thereto.[98] A justice loses jurisdiction of a cause by his unauthorized denial of a timely request for a jury,[99] by an unauthorized continuance[1] or adjournment,[2] by failure to make a sufficient entry as to adjourned date,[3] by writing up and signing the judgment rendered,[4] and by giving a party to understand that proceedings are

91. Jurisdiction must appear on face of proceedings. Smith v. Lyle Rock Co. [Mo. App.] 111 SW 831; Fabien v. Grabow [Mo. App.] 114 SW 80; Little Rock Brick Works v. Hoyt [Ark.] 112 SW 880. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 3835 [Ann. St. 1906, p. 2124], record reciting that suit was on a note, but not the amount of principal, or that note bore interest or that amount of judgment exceeding $250 was not for face of note exclusive of interest, held insufficient to show jurisdiction. Ruckert v. Richter, 127 Mo. App. 664, 106 SW 1081.

92. Ferguson v. Basin Consol. Mines, 152 Cal. 712, 93 P 867. Failure to show request to sit as justice in another township during an absence as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 105. Harlan v. Gladding, McBean & Co. [Cal. App.] 93 P 400.

93. Where plaintiff's claim was founded on judgment. Ferguson v. Basin Consol. Mines, 152 Cal. 712, 93 P 867. Where judgment relied on was based on summons served outside of county, burden on plaintiff to prove that there was attached to summons a certificate of county clerk that person issuing summons was an acting justice of the peace at date of its issuance. Code Civ. Proc. § 849. Id.

94. Error in year in which summons was made returnable. Epstein v. Prosser, 112 NYS 174. Code Civ. Proc. § 2877, that summons must be returnable at time therein specified, etc., held not jurisdictional. Id.

95. Where action was upon promissory note for an amount less than $100 and defendants appeared by counsel, held justice had jurisdiction. Gilman v. Weiser [Iowa] 118 NW 774.

96. Where magistrate complied with Civ. Code of Laws 1902, § 2972, judgment in pursuance of such authority not erroneous. Lynch v. Ball, 79 S. C. 243, 60 SE 691.

97. Gilman v. Weiser [Iowa] 118 NW 774. Code, § 4648, requires justice to enter upon docket every adjournment ordered with a statement at whose instance it is granted and for what time, but does not require recording of cause or ground upon which order is made, hence presumption that motion was based upon sufficient ground or at least upon ground which judge deemed sufficient. Id.

98. Smith v. Lyle Rock Co. [Mo. App.] 111 SW 831.

99. Denial for failure to advance venire fees. New Jersey Soc. for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals v. Wilbur [N. J. Law] 69 A 1010.

1. Where justice was absent for more than two hours after cause was set for hearing, held without jurisdiction to enter an order of continuance, and all jurisdiction over case lost. Brin v. Topp, 131 Ill. App. 394. Agreement between attorneys as to a postponement of a suit not binding on parties since in Illinois attorneys are unknown in courts of justice of the peace. Id. Continuance for an indefinite period does not work a discontinuance of cause, where it is done with consent and at request of both parties thereto. Justice retains jurisdiction and is vested with authority at some future time to call case up and fix a day certain for its trial, although a longer period has elapsed than that fixed by statute. McGinniss v. Dickson, 11 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 99. Continuances from week to week on justice's own motion where neither party is present to insist upon their statutory rights amount to a mere irregularity and not to a discontinuance of case or ouster of jurisdiction, continuances being made after several such continuances by agreement, and where neither party asserted rights under Code 1899, c. 50, §§ 59-63 [Code 1906, §§ 2010-2014]. Pocahontas Wholesale Grocery Co. v. Gillespie, 63 W. Va. 573, 60 SE 597.

2. Disregard of limitations of powers under Code, § 4496, deprives justice of jurisdiction. Gilman v. Weiser [Iowa] 118 NW 774. Restriction to period of three days in Code, § 4496, held to have special reference to adjournments ordered upon justices' own motion or for his own convenience. Id. Either party may have a continuance not exceeding 60 days for production of absent witnesses (Code, § 4497), and they may agree upon a longer continuance or an indefinite continuance subject to proper notice of time of trial to be subsequently fixed by justice. Id.

3. Where justice took an adjournment from Saturday evening, Dec. 1st, to Monday, Dec. 30, at 1 o'clock P. M., docket entry showing "case adjourned till Monday, 1 o'clock, P. M.," entry held sufficiently definite as to adjourned date so as not to defeat jurisdiction. Hanson v. Gronlie [N. D.] 115 NW 666.

4. After a judgment has been written up and signed, the justice's jurisdiction over the cause is ended, and he has no power or au-ended, and his failure to either announce his decision or an adjournment of the hearing,[5] and the making of an order afterwards is a constructive fraud which avoids the judgment.[6] Upon the due and regular taking of an appeal the justice loses jurisdiction of the action,[7] but the fact that proofs are not made or judgment entered on the return day named in the summons does not ipso facto oust the court of jurisdiction.[8] In Arkansas the jurisdiction of the justice over the subject-matter in controversy is derived from the constitution, but the mode of proceeding is prescribed by statute.[9] Jurisdiction is sometimes confined to actions on contract[10] and sometimes extended to a limited class of actions ex delicto.[11] Under the various statutes a justice of the peace has been held to have jurisdiction of actions for penalties,[12] or of actions by a county against a county judge and his sureties on the former's bond for the recovery of fees unlawfully collected,[13] and to award consequential damages for injuries to personal property occasioned by mere negligence;[14] but he cannot entertain suits against a common carrier for failure to thority to open and amend it. Pettit v. Burke, 139 Ill. App. 419.

5. Garnishment proceedings summons under Civ. Code, § 249 (Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 1228). Johnson v. Samuelson [Neb.] 117 NW 470.

6. Entry of judgment against garnishee after discharge, no notice being given, held constructively fraudulent. Johnson v. Samuelson [Neb.] 117 NW 470.

7. Garnishment proceedings in justice court after perfecting appeal held void, court having lost jurisdiction. Hopkins v. McCusker, 103 Minn. 79, 114 NW 468. After appeal has been perfected, fact that an appeal bond has been given and is in full force and effect does not prevent commencement of garnishment proceedings in district court; appeal bond not bond provided for by Rev. Laws 1905, § 4256. Hopkins v. McCusker, 103 Minn. 79, 114 NW 468. Want of jurisdiction waived by a defendant who having pleaded the general issue causes case to be certified to appellate court which has jurisdiction. LaBarre v. Bent [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 822, 118 NW 6.

8. Where court entered default after expiration of one hour after time fixed for hearing, failed to make order postponing case and three days thereafter heard proofs and entered judgment, proceeding though irregular held not to oust jurisdiction or render judgment void. Rev. St. 1887, § 4701, and Sess. Laws 1905, p. 29. Zimmerman v. Bradford-Kennedy, 14 Idaho, 681, 95 P 825.

9. Little Rock Brick Works v. Hoyt [Ark.] 112 SW 880.

10. Where note was obtained from maker by false representations paid to one to whom it had been negotiated, action against payee for money had and received upon allegation of want of consideration held on contract and within jurisdiction. Manning v. Fountain [N. C.] 60 SE 645. Statute conferring jurisdiction of causes of action arising from contract either express or implied has in view only such contracts as arise immediately out of a course of dealing between the parties; no jurisdiction of action to recover cost of repairing a retaining wall which was alleged to belong to defendants, and which had fallen on plaintiff's land, no express contract being averred and no implication of contractual obligation enforcible by action of assumpsit before justice, arising. Birkhead v. Ward, 35 Pa. Super. Ct. 235. Action to recover $100 paid to insurance company, within jurisdiction, where plaintiff waives tort and sues for money had and received, though justice has no jurisdiction of actions to recover damages for fraud and deceit in amount over $50. Stroud v. Life Ins. Co. [N. C.] 61 SE 626.

11. A justice's court has no jurisdiction of actions ex delicto except for injury to personal property less than $100. Action for damages arising for failure to transport a shipment of property held ex contractu, error to dismiss for want of jurisdiction of subject-matter. Jenkins v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 3 Ga. App. 381, 59 SE 1120. Justice has jurisdiction of action to recover from connecting carrier $150 loss, which was due to "carelessness and negligence," action being ex contractu though contract of shipment was made by initial carrier. Midland Valley R. Co. v. Hale & Co. [Ark.] 111 SW 646. Under constitution and statute in pursuance thereof, justice has jurisdiction of action for personal injuries negligently inflicted, where amount demanded does not exceed $50. Houser v. Bousal & Co. [N. C.] 62 SE 776. In action for breach of contract for carriage and delivery of goods immaterial to jurisdiction whether action be in tort or in contract, damages being same in either case. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Wilson, 85 Ark. 257, 107 SW 978. Where action is for damages to personal property, it is immaterial whether plaintiff sue in tort or in contract. Where amount did not exceed $100. Georgia, etc., R. Co. v. Elliot, 3 Ga. App. 773, 60 SE 363.

12. Comp. Laws 1897, § 9799. La Barre v. Bent [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 882, 118 NW 6. Declaration showing with reasonable definiteness that highway commissioner was proceeding under Comp. Laws 1897, § 4157, to collect penalty for obstructing highway, held to state a cause as against defendant pleading issuably and removing cause to circuit court. Inference that action was personal held unwarranted, and presence of commissioner's name might be treated as surplusage if necessary. Id.

13. Action not one in behalf of state for recovery of a penalty and amount of bond being involved only to extent of sum sought to be recovered and which was within justice's jurisdiction. Lane v. Delta County [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 866.

14. Action against railway company for shrinkage in weight by reason of prolonged perform a public duty,[15] nor an action for the killing of live stock in the absence of evidence showing that the casualty occurred either in the township where the action was brought or in an adjoining township,[16] and jurisdiction over trespass exists only where the trespass is vi et armis, and the injury is immediate.[17] He has jurisdiction of forcible entry and detainer proceedings,[18] unless the title to realty is involved,[19] but the right to proceed in a summary proceeding to obtain possession is lost and confided with the appellate court upon the filing of affidavit and recognizance as provided by statute.[20] While a justice has no equitable jurisdiction,[21] he may enforce by legal remedies the collection of money which equitably belongs to a party,[22] and especially where by assignment the plaintiff has acquired both the legal and equitable title.[23] The jurisdiction of a proceeding to lay out a road attaches upon the filing of a certificate of the highway commissioners,[24] and a certificate in substantial compliance with the requirements of statute is sufficient to confer jurisdiction.[25] Under statute providing for the filing of affidavits and confinement of hogs in cars, loss from depreciation in market prices, extra feed, bills, etc. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. McNutt, 138 Ill. App. 66.

15. Allegation in petition showing suit to recover damages for breach of duty on part of railway company, justice without jurisdiction. Civ. Code 1895, § 4068. Smith & Simpson Lumber Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ga. App.] 62 SE 472; Zuber v. Central of Georgia R. Co. [Ga. App.] 62 SE 473. Nature of action determinable by allegations and not by nomenclature of plaintiff. Smith & Simpson Lumber Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ga. App.] 62 SE 472.

16. Daniels v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 130 Mo. App. 213, 109 SW 85.

17. Birkhead v. Ward, 35 Pa. Super. Ct. 235. Jurisdiction under Act of March 22, 1814, 6 Sm. L. 182, held not to extend to injuries for redress of which action of trespass on case was appropriate and exclusive remedy. Id. Act of May 25, 1887 (P. L. 271), abolishing distinction between trespass vi et armis and trespass on case held not to extend justice's jurisdiction to causes of action not theretofore embraced therein. Id. Where transcript of justice shows that plaintiff "claims ten dollars and fifty cents costs of repairing wall belonging to defendants," held not to show an action ex delicto so as to come within jurisdiction. Id.

18. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 838, justice has jurisdiction of forcible entry and detainer, and in such proceeding any evidence, otherwise competent, may be given and questions involved determined. Richmond v. California Super. Ct. [Cal. App.] 98 P 57. Statutory provisions for proceedings in forcible entry and detainer held to include proceedings in unlawful detainer. Id. Jurisdiction over forcible entry and detainer not limited to cases where lease has expired by efflux of time, but applies as well where lease has been terminated by act of lessor for violation of any of covenants of lease by express authority of provisions of lease. Rev. St. 1895, art. 2519, held to apply to all cases where landlord seeks to recover possession from tenant or one holding under him on ground that lease has terminated by term, contingency or for violation of terms. Termination by breach of covenant not to sublet held not to oust justice of jurisdiction. Walther v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 414.

19. See post this section.

20. Under Act 1836, §§ 14, 117, proceedings before justice and 6 jurors confided in court of common pleas upon defendant's filing of affidavit that he does not claim under defendant in execution, though Act of May 24, 1878, providing for six jurors instead of twelve is unconstitutional. Reams v. Yeager, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 520.

21. United States Fidelity & Guar. Co. v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 61 SE 375. To declare an equity or enforce an equitable lien. Id. Action by trustee in bankruptcy to recover proceeds of preference obtained by a creditor of bankrupt through legal process held a suit in equity beyond jurisdiction of justice. Action under Bankr. Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 60, subd. "a" (30 Stat. 562 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3445]). Starbuck v. Gebo, 112 NYS 312. No jurisdiction over counterclaim of an equitable nature to recover money paid under a mistake of fact. Aimee Realty Co. v. Haller, 128 Mo. App. 66, 106 SW 588. No jurisdiction of action involving settlement of partnership accounts. Rude v. Sisack [Colo.] 96 P 976. Action held based on personal agreement and not a partnership transaction so as to be beyond jurisdiction where plaintiff sued on claim assigned to him by A, defendant's partner in a business venture which alleged that defendant had agreed to pay A a fixed sum per week and withhold part of same for A to fall back on if venture failed. Id. No jurisdiction of an action at law to recover earned profits due one member of a joint enterprise, until amount of profits have been determined by an accounting either between the parties themselves or by court of competent jurisdiction. O'Rourke v. Edwards, 11 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 124.

22. United States Fidelity & Guar. Co. v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 61 SE 375.

23. Justice held to have jurisdiction to recover from defendant on ground that defendant was surety on bond of an agent through whom defendant purchased property for principal, and that defendant with knowledge paid agent who converted payment, and surety company was compelled to pay amount to principal who assigned claim to surety company, that became legal and equitable owner. United States Fidelity & Guar. Co. v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 61 SE 375.

24. Commissioners of Highways v. Hucker, 133 Ill. App. 252.

25. Certificate held sufficient, though formally defective in not asking that benefits as for their amendment in attachment proceedings, the jurisdiction of the justice is not dependent upon a preliminary showing of facts but upon the actual existence of the facts on which jurisdiction is made to rest,[26] and such facts may be shown at any time before trial providing they existed at the time of presentation of the original insufficient affidavit; hence, where defendant appears generally and goes to trial without objecting to the original affidavit, the jurisdictional facts are thereby admitted and objections to the attachment waived.[27] A justice of another township has no jurisdiction to sit in place of another justice in the absence of a written request from the latter,[28] but so long as a necessary absence continues, a substitute justice requested to attend in another's behalf retains jurisdiction to do and perform any act required in the proceeding.[29] Prohibition lies to prevent a justice from exceeding his jurisdiction.[30]

Residence determining jurisdiction. See 10 C. L. 556—A justice's jurisdiction is usually coextensive with the boundaries of the county,[31] but all actions at law commenced before a justice of the peace must be brought in the township, village or city where the plaintiff or the defendant or one of several plaintiffs or defendants reside,[32] and before one may be sued elsewhere than in his own county and precinct, the case must come clearly within one of the exceptions in the statute.[33] In New York a justice of any town has jurisdiction of a defendant who is a nonresident of the county in which the town is situated, though plaintiff be also a nonresident, provided the defendant is within the town when the action is commenced,[34] and one may be sued in any county within the state where he resides;[35] but he has no jurisdiction of an action between two nonresidents of the state.[36] A justice of the city and county where a note is payable has jurisdiction of an aciton on such note,[37] and by the service of a summons on the defendant jurisdiction of his person is also obtained.[38]

The amount in controversy See 10 C. L. 556 is determined by the sum demanded,[39] but a cause for a sum greater than the jurisdictional amount cannot be split up well as damages be determined, under "Rules and Regulations prescribed in act in relation to public roads," §§ 41, 54. Commissioners of Highways v. Hucker, 133 Ill. App. 252.

26. St. 1898, §§ 3701, 3702. Givans v. Searle, 136 Wis. 608, 118 NW 202.

27. Appearance held to give justice jurisdiction not only to render personal judgment but to proceed with attachment. St. 1898, §§ 3701, 3702. Givans v. Searle, 136 Wis. 608, 118 NW 202.

28. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 105, where no request made, held justice was without jurisdiction. Harlow v. Gladding, McBean & Co. [Cal. App.] 93 P 400.

29. Under Cobbey's St. 1907, § 2037, substitute authorized to file and approve bond and make transcript, nothing showing return of regular justice before performance of acts. Carmichael v. McKay [Neb.] 116 NW 676.

30. Martin v. Richmond [Va.] 62 SE 800.

31. Rev. St. 1887, §§ 3850, 3885. State v. Noyes [Idaho] 96 P 435.

32. Gen. Laws 1895, c. 33, p. 151, amending Gen. St. 1878, c. 65, § 6, held a jurisdictional requirement. Stevenson v. Murphy [Minn.] 119 NW 47. Gen. St. 1894, subd. 3, § 4960, as amended by c. 321, p. 409, Laws 1899. Union Stoneware Co v. Lang, 103 Minn. 466, 115 NW 271. Requirements held not unreasonable. Id. Affidavit presented in support of motion for dismissal held sufficient to make out prima facie case. Id.

33. Johnson v. Lanford [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 693. Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 1585, held not to authorize joinder of a nonresident of county when codefendant did not reside in precinct in which suit was commenced even though codefendant did not object to being sued there, hence under Act Apr. 18, 1907, art. 1194 (Gen. Laws 1907, p. 249, c. 183), it was error for courts not to change venue on plea of privilege to be sued in one's own county. Id.

34, 35. Dale v. Prentice, 110 NYS 535.

36. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2861, 2869, justice without jurisdiction where plaintiff and defendant were nonresidents of state. Judgment rendered void. Drew v. Cass, 112 NYS 607.

37. Where defendant a resident of San Luis Obispo county had executed note payable in city and county of San Francisco, justice of San Francisco had jurisdiction of subject-matter. Code Civ. Proc. § 832, subd. 7. Brum v. Ivins [Cal.] 96 P 876.

38. Brum v. Ivins [Cal.] 96 P 876.

39. Justice has jurisdiction of breach of contract cass where total sum demanded is $200. Teal v. Templeton [N. C.] 62 SE 737. Where one filed written petition on two notes aggregating $160, notice of such demand issued and served on defendant, jurisdictional amount being $100, held defendant not required to appear, and judgment entered by default on one of notes was void. Nauman v. Nauman, 137 Iowa, 233, 114 NW 1068.

and the defendant be vexed with several suits.[40] Where the amount claimed is within the jurisdiction, the court may adjudicate the controversy though the accumulation of interest, while the action is pending, increases the amount due to more than the jurisdictional amount;[41] but the judgment must in no case exceed the statutory amount.[42] The rule against splitting demands does not apply to actions to enforce mechanics' liens claims.[43] Sometimes the amount is determinable by the amount adjudged,[44] and the justice has no authority to determine that the total amount of the accounts of partners to an action exceeds the statutory amount over which he has jurisdiction,[45] hence he has no power to dismiss except upon proof of that fact, and an inspection of the pleadings is insufficient.[46] The value of the rights involved in forcible entry and detainer proceedings cannot serve to oust the jurisdiction of the justice court,[47] and provisions limiting the jurisdiction in replevin actions, may apply only to the plaintiffs' actions in which case there is no limit to the amount that may be rendered when the finding is for the defendant.[48] In Illinois a justice has no jurisdiction in a replevin action where the property involved is worth more than two hundred dollars,[49] and it is proper to permit the jury to determine the value of the property involved in order to determine whether such value is in excess of the statutory amount.[50] Consent to jurisdiction over an amount greater than that fixed by statute must be in writing,[51] but a remittitur of all above the jurisdictional amount sustains the jurisdiction on appeal, in cases where the amount demanded is doubtful.[52]

Title to realty.[See 10 C. L. 557]—A justice has no jurisdiction of summary proceedings except where there is the relation of landlord and tenant[53] as he has no Amount claimed in summons and not that shown by testimony controlling. Pocahontas Wholesale Grocery Co. v. Gillespie, 63 W. Va. 578, 60 SE 597. Where no written complaint, sum demanded in summons is test. Teal v. Templeton [N. C.] 62 SE 737.

40. Giving of separate checks at different times aggregating an amount exceeding justice's jurisdiction not sufficient to show that they were for the same demand so as to defeat separate actions. Pocahontas Wholesale Grocery Co. v. Gillespie, 63 W. Va. 578, 60 SE 597. Where two mules were killed by a locomotive at same time and manner, two separate actions cannot be brought in justice's court to recover $175 for each, killing constituting but one cause of action. Jurisdiction being limited to $200, court was without jurisdiction. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Payne [Miss.] 45 S 705.

41. Gen. St. 1901, § 5230. Parker v. Dobson [Kan.] 96 P 472.

42. Cause remanded with direction to modify judgment by reducing same to $300. Gen. St. 1901, § 5230. Parker v. Dobson [Kan.] 96 P 472.

43. Separate actions may be instituted before a justice to enforce each lien. Aimee Realty Co. v. Hallen, 128 Mo. App. 66, 106 SW 588.

44. In suit by assignee of note for less than $200, where maker demanded judgment against payee for any amount the assignee might recover on ground of failure of consideration of note given for premiums on life policy, where justice was not asked to cancel policy and did not do so but adjudged that payee was liable to maker to extent of his liability to assignee which was less than $200, held justice had jurisdiction to determine suit, sum adjudged and not that sum and others claimed under contract being amount in controversy. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Warbington [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 988.

45. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2863, subd. 4, justice not authorized to determine from pleadings that accounts exceeded $400. Dale v. Prentice, 110 NYS 535.

46. Code Civ. Proc. § 2863, subd. 4. Dale v. Prentice, 110 NYS 535.

47. Proceedings under Rev. St. 1895, art. 2519. Walther v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 414.

48. Rev. St. 1899, § 3900 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 2155), fixing replevin jurisdiction at $250, and § 3914, p. 2161, held to apply merely to plaintiff's action, and under § 3921, p. 2164, there is no limit to justice's jurisdiction when finding is for defendant. Saunders v. Scott [Mo. App.] 111 SW 874. Complaint under fair construction held to show that plaintiff intended to confine claim to aggregate sum of $250 giving justice jurisdiction. Id.

49. Rev. St. c. 79, art. 2, par. 5. Jarrett v. McIntyre, 134 Ill. App. 581.

50. Jarrett v. McIntyre, 134 Ill. App. 581.

51. Consent under Code, § 4777, to take jurisdiction where the amount does not exceed $300, must be in writing. Nauman v. Nauman, 137 Iowa, 233, 114 NW 1068. Under Code § 4477, where neither of two notes exceeds $100 and each stipulates to give jurisdiction in action thereon to an amount not exceeding $300, claims cannot be united in one action, where combined amount exceeds $100. Id. Jurisdictional defect in such case not avoided by expedient of dismissing part of claim. Id.

52. Teal v. Templeton [N. C.] 62 SE 737.

53. Where pleadings in unlawful detainer jurisdiction of actions in which the title to real estate is involved,[54] and as soon as a bona fide claim to a fee-simple ownership to land involved is made by the defendant, jurisdiction of the cause is ousted;[55] but jurisdiction over a proceeding to dispossess persons unlawfully in possession of the land of another is not affected by defendant's oath that the title to the land may be raised without any showing of title or justification.[56] In some states on account to the necessity of proof of land titles, jurisdiction of actions for injury to land [57] or objection of easements [58] is denied.

Objections to the jurisdiction. See 10 C. L. 558—In an action in a justice court judgment, the defendant may by way of answer attack the jurisdiction of the court,[59] but the facts upon which he relies must be properly pleaded,[60] and the jurisdiction of a justice in a proceeding to lay out a road cannot be questioned either before him or before the county court upon appeal, but only by certiorari.[61] Where upon the face of a complaint in a replevin suit the justice has apparent jurisdiction and on appeal the value of the property is found to exceed the statutory amount and the case is dismissed, the sureties upon the bond are estopped from denying the justice's jurisdiction.[62] Where the record does not show jurisdiction, the judgment is a nullity and may be collaterally attacked.[63]

§ 4. Procedure in justices' courts. See 10 C. L. 558—The commencement of an action before a justice of the peace dates from the delivery of the summons to the constable for service.[64] Justices are not supposed to be trained in technical rules of pleading and practice,[65] and mere informalities in the conduct of justices' courts, where no essential right or interest of either party suffers, prejudices, should be overlooked.[66] A litigant is not required to conduct the proceeding by counsel.[67] In some states a justice may grant a new trial,[68] but usually he has no power to raised decisive question of the relation, which was within justice's jurisdiction, held action was not transferable as involving title to realty. Richmond v. California Super. Ct. [Cal. App.] 98 P 57. Quasi tenancy insufficient, proof must show either express letting or letting by implication, and occupancy as tenant. Id.

54. Martin v. Richmond [Va.] 62 SE 800. Under Act of March 20, 1810 (5 Sm. L. 161), even though contractual obligation to pay cost of repairing a wall might be assumed, no jurisdiction. Birkhead v. Ward, 35 Super. Ct. 235.

55. Jurisdiction to impose a fine for digging up a street in violation of ordinance ousted by claim of fee simple ownership of land on which digging was done. Martin v. Richmond [Va.] 62 SE 800.

56. Proceeding under Civ. Code 1902, § 2972. Lynch v. Ball, 79 S. C. 243, 60 SE 691.

57. Action by farm lessor against lessee for damages for failure to repair fences as required by lease, not an action to recover for damages to land so as to be beyond justice's jurisdiction. Von Berg v. Goodman, 85 Ark. 605, 109 SW 1006.

58. Action for penalty imposed by Comp. Laws 1897, § 4157, for obstructing highway, held not within § 704. La Barre v. Bent [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 822, 118 NW 6. Action brought by a private person to recover damages for disturbing a private right of way held within statute, but jurisdiction to try actions for damages resulting to private persons expressly conferred. Id.

59. Stevenson v. Murphy [Minn.] 119 NW 47.

60. General denial of jurisdiction or of service of summons, not sufficient. Defendant must plead facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action to same extent as though he had brought an original action attacking the judgment for want of jurisdiction. Stevenson v. Murphy [Minn.] 119 NW 47. Answer held not inconsistent with statement of facts but sufficient to challenge jurisdiction of justice, so as to render evidence on jurisdiction admissible. Id.

61. That being only way provided by statute. Commissioners of Highways v. Hucker, 133 Ill. App. 252.

62. Where cattle replevied were by affidavits alleged to be of $250 value and on appeal found to be $500 value, sureties estopped to challenge jurisdiction. Janssen v. Duncan, 43 Colo. 286, 95 P 922. Testimony on value of property, ownership thereof and that original judgment upon which execution was issued was obtained without service, held properly rejected as immaterial in action on replevin bond. Janssen v. Duncan, 43 Colo. 286, 95 P 922.

66. Gilman v. Weiser [Iowa] 118 NW 774.

67. Benton v. Stakes [Md.] 71 A 532.

68. Until the expiration of five days from set aside a judgment rendered by him[69] or to grant a new trial,[70] and while he may amend a judgment in matters of form or otherwise not affecting its legal tenor or effect,[71] yet he is without power to amend or otherwise enlarge or diminish its original scope and efficacy;[72] and it has been held that after a judgment has once been written up and signed, he is without power to open and amend the same thereafter.[73] He may take judicial notice of proceedings on his own docket and act thereon,[74] must disregard any error in the pleadings or proceedings not affecting the substantial rights of the adverse party,[75] and may in his discretion refuse a continuance.[76] Where, by appearance in a proceeding on adjournment, jurisdiction is conferred over a cause, a party is bound to take notice of a continuance ordered at the instance of the adverse party on the day to which the first adjournment was taken.[77] Where statutes do not require motions for continuance to be in writing, an oral application or motion may properly be entertained.[78] When acting within the limits of his jurisdiction, the proceedings before a justice are presumed regular.[79] The demand for a jury must be timely made,[80] but when timely made, in a proper case,[81] it cannot lawfully be denied for failure to advance the venire fees,[82] though failure to make an advance deposit for jurors' and constables' fees as required by statute and as directed by the justice waives a jury trial.[83] Objections propter defectum to jurors are of no avail after verdict,[84] and it is not error to allow the jury to take an original summons with them during the deliberation of a case.[85] A garnishment in a justice's court follows the attachment under which it issues, and the garnishee is required to appear and answer at the term to the rendering of a judgment, the magistrate has power to grant a new trial. Williams v. Rickembaker, 79 S. C. 467, 60 SE 1122.

69. A justice of the peace has no power to set aside judgment rendered by himself. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Brown, 3 Ga. App. 561, 60 SE 319. Cannot sustain motion in arrest of judgment. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Smith, 3 Ga. App. 644, 60 SE 353.

70. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Smith, 3 Ga. App. 644, 60 SE 353.

71. Judgment against defendant and garnishee might be amended by striking name of garnishee. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Brown, 3 Ga. App. 561, 60 SE 319.

72. Justice not authorized to convert a judgment into two judgments, one against defendant and the other against garnishee. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Brown, 3 Ga. App. 561, 60 SE 319.

73. Pettit v. Burke, 139 Ill. App. 419.

74. May take judicial notice of proceedings on his own docket, and the dismissal by him of an attachment proceeding without hearing of testimony is not error, where another case is pending in same court, or in court of common pleas, between same parties and involving the same subject-matter. Beardsley v. Zacharias & Co., 19 C. C. 637, followed; Lyon v. Phares, 9 C. C. (N. S.) 614, not followed. Brown v. De Long, 6 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 510.

75. Rev. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 150, 153, held applicable to cases triable in justice court, hence not error to disregard technical defect in summons. Bradley v. Mueller [S. D.] 118 NW 1035.

76. No abuse of discretion in action against three persons to refuse a continuance on account of absence of one of them, case having been previously continued for absence of defendant's counsel, where there was no showing that motion was not made for delay, what testimony he would have given, or that proper steps had been taken to procure his testimony. Charleston Live Stock Co. v. Collins, 79 S. C. 383, 60 SE 944.

77. Even though he then failed to appear and to give consent to continuance. Gilman v. Welser [Iowa] 118 NW 774.

78. Gilman v. Weiser [Iowa] 118 NW 774.

79. Where under Rev. Justice's Code, § 124, it was duty of justice when change of place was granted to first determine whether parties had agreed upon a justice, and in absence to send case to nearest justice, presumption that he did so, jurisdiction being admitted. State v. Carlisle [S. D.] 118 NW 1033.

80. In trial of civil action, demand for jury, after justice without objection has called case for trial and sworn plaintiff's witnesses, comes too late and should be refused, error not to do so if the amount is under twenty dollars, since it deprives the right of appeal. Burton v. Board of Education, 5 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 294.

which the attachment is returnable.[86] A motion to dismiss the garnishment does not reach the attachment.[87] Under statute consolidation of actions under certain circumstances is permissible.[88] A motion for nonsuit is waived by defendant introducing evidence and not reviewing the motion after the close of all the evidence.[89]

The docket and other records See 10 C. L. 558 need not be technically exact,[90] and the presumption is in favor of the verity and regularity of the record and judgment where there is a sufficient showing of jurisdiction of the subject-matter and parties.[91] Where from the docket entries it is inferable that both defendants were present, it is immaterial that only one is mentioned as being present when the case was called.[92] Only entries required to be made in a justice's docket are prima facie evidence of the facts stated therein,[93] and among other things the record must show that the statutory notice of intent to sue was given before beginning the action,[94] but it need not show where and before whom the summons was returnable,[95] nor where the entries were made.[96] Affirmative recitals cannot be impeached by parol,[97] nor has the circuit court authority to compel a justice to amend his docket or any right to permit him to do so.[98] The recital in a judgment that defendant failed to answer the complaint as required by law is sufficient to support a default, without a docket entry to that effect.[99]

Change of venue. See 10 C. L. 558—A case may be changed to some justice in an adjoining township of the same county whenever under statute a party is entitled to a change of venue,[1] and when defendant believes that the justice before whom the action is brought is prejudiced against him, he may have the venue changed to the next nearest justice,[2] but the right may be waived and is waived by consent to transfer to a third justice who thereupon properly has jurisdiction.[3] Strict compliance with all statutory requirements is necessary in order that the duty to grant a change shall become mandatory,[4] and a motion for a change should not be made after entering upon the trial on grounds which the moving party knew previous thereto.[5]

5. Mayes v. Evans [S. C.] 61 SE 216.

The justice to whom a cause is sent may serve the notice of time and place of trial upon the defendant's attorney.[6]

Transfer of cause. See 10 C. L. 558—Under statute providing for the removal of any case in which the title to land "shall in any wise come in question," removal may be had where equitable but not legal title is in controversy,[7] but a summary proceeding in unlawful detainer where the question of relation of landlord and tenant is raised is not removable as involving title to realty.[8]

Process and appearance. See 10 C. L. 559—An action may, under most statutes be commenced by the service of a summons without a complaint,[9] or warrant and in such case the writ is usually required to state not only the names of both parties[10] but the nature of the demand.[11] Where the summons is served accompanied by a complaint, the defendant must look to the complaint to determine the cause of action against him.[12] The summons, in some states, supplies the place of the petition or declaration in other courts, and is indispensable to the trial.[13] If the original is still in existence and for any reason cannot be produced at the time of trial, the case should be continued until the original summons can be brought into court,[14] and if it is not forthcoming when the case is called for trial, and if it has been lost or destroyed, the justice should have a copy established before proceeding with the trial.[15] It must be served and return made within time prescribed.[16] The affidavit upon which a summons is issued,[17] the service of the summons,[18] the return thereof,[19] must be in compliance with statute. 11. Under Code 1858, § 4146 (Shannon's Code, § 5958), warrant issued by justice notifying defendant to "appear and answer plaintiff in a plea of damages under $500" held insufficient, not notifying defendant of what he is called upon to answer. Memphis St. R. Co. v. Flood [Tenn.] 113 SW 384. Code 1858, § 2815 (Shannon's Code § 4520), so far as applicable to summons issued by a justice of the peace and authorizes omission of statement of cause of action, held in conflict with Code 1858, § 4146 (Shannon's Code, § 5958), and latter statute controls. Id. Code 1858, § 4119 (Shannon's Code § 5931) without avail in action where warrant does not contain a general statement of nature of demand sued on as required by Code 1858, § 4146, and where there was no consent to try case without a warrant. 18. Service in an action against a railroad may be made on a freight agent, under Code Civ. Proc. § 2880, where person upon whom process may be served has not been designated, though assistant superintendent of railroad company resides in county where such superintendent is not a managing agent within § 2879. Duval v. Boston & M. R. Co., 58 Misc. 504, 111 NYS 629. Where citation as issued commanded summoning of St. L. S F. & T. R. Co., and was served on G. as defendant's agent, and return described defendant as St. L. & S. F. R. Co., held no legal service on latter road. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. English [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 424. Where transcript, enrolled in the circuit clerk's office and recorded in chancery clerk's office, shows that justice appointed a private person to execute and return the writ, presumption that circumstances authorizing such an appointment existed and that therefore the service of the writ was legal. Presumption in favor of one claiming under execution sale on judgment of justice. Alfred v. Batson [Miss.] 45 S 465.

19. Return of service of summons in action against a railway company, service being on freight agent, held insufficient under Code Civ. Proc. § 2880, where it contained no averment that the officer left copies with person to the issuance of summons is all that is required[20] and technical defects are not fatal.[21] In a suit against a domestic corporation,[22] the return of the officer need not show that the place of service was the place of residence of the person served.[23] Service in a proper case may be had by publication,[24] statutory requirements being complied with,[25] but, in case of service by publication, judgment by default cannot be rendered before the expiration of the statutory time allowed within which to make appearance.[26] Notice of intention to sue must be given before suit is brought in actions requiring same,[27] and it is incumbent upon the plaintiff to prove that such notice was timely given[28] a sufficient statement of claim or demand must be filed before a summons can be issued.[29] The process of garnishment is returnable to the next regular term of court to be held at the place where the original judgment was obtained.[30] A justice having no jurisdiction to issue process running out of his county is confined to the statutory method of acquiring jurisdiction of the person,[31] and since he has no jurisdiction to issue summons to another county, where all the defendants reside outside of his county, he acquires no jurisdiction of defendants by so doing.[32] Jurisdiction is conferred by a general appearance[33]

Pleadings, issues, and proof. See 10 C. L. 559—With but rare exceptions,[36] pleadings need not be in writing[37] but they cannot be dispensed with.[38] Under statute, requiring defendant to answer within seven days from the date of service, answer may be made on any one of those days.[39] The rules of pleading are greatly relaxed in justice court[40] and niceties and formalities in pleadings are not required,[41] but a statement of the facts upon which the action is as founded must be given,[42] and any statement of the cause of action, if it apprises the opposite party of the nature of the action and is sufficient to bar another action, is sufficient,[43] and, in an action on a contract, a complaint apprising the defendant of the claim against him is all that is required.[44] The petition may be signed by counsel[45] or by an cessful attempt was made to raise question of title to land as defense, held to confer jurisdiction over person of defendant. Lynch v. Ball, 79 S. C. 243, 60 SE 691. Proceedings taken by a party showing that he appeared for any purpose consistent with jurisdiction gives court jurisdiction, even though such party states that he appeared specially to object to jurisdiction. Where defendant appeared and objected to jurisdiction on ground that summons was defective, and also moved to amend return to summons to conform to facts, held motion to amend was inconsistent with want of jurisdiction, amounted to a general appearance, and gave court jurisdiction even though party stated that he appeared specially. Bestor v. Intercounty Fair, 135 Wis. 339, 115 NW 809. By appearance, justice having jurisdiction of subject-matter, jurisdiction over person is waived where no objection is made for want thereof. Smith v. Lyle Rock Co. [Mo. App.] 111 SW 831.

Written statement that defendants were plaintiff's attorneys, that plaintiff delivered to them deed to certain real estate with direction to deliver same to C in settlement of a compromise upon the latter paying $50, that defendant delivered deed and received $50, which sum is due plaintiff less fee of $50, that demand has been made but money not paid, held sufficient. Lloyd v. Meservey, 129 Mo. App. 636, 108 SW 595. Bill of particulars held a sufficient pleading. Parker v. Dobson [Kan.] 96 P 472. Citation held sufficient to support default judgment for $149.35 and interest from July 6, 1907, though it stated demand to be for $137.00 and interest from Mar. 1, 1907. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Warbington [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 988. Allegation of accord and satisfaction, though it should have been claimed with more particularity, held sufficient. Van Allen v. Shulenburgh, 58 Misc. 136, 110 NYS 464. Suit on account may be maintained for materials furnished and work done, although agreement whereon materials were furnished or work done may be evidenced by a written contract. Southern Exp. Co. v. Hunnicutt [Ga. App.] 63 SE 26.

42. Under Kirby's Dig. §§ 4565, 4580, written statement, that defendant owed plaintiff $38 for stock killed by a certain train, a further sum as reasonable attorney's fee and $38 as a penalty, asking judgment for $76, cost and a reasonable attorney's fees held sufficient. Morrison v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Ark.] 112 SW 975. Allegation held sufficient to admit proof as to how defendant became liable, if at all, for penalty and attorney's fee. Id.

43. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 3852 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 2135), complaint not destroyed by being overcharged with details, etc., where enough was left after rejecting unnecessary matter to state cause and bar another action. Dalton v. United R. Co. of St. Louis [Mo. App.] 114 SW 561. Complaint held not insufficient because plaintiffs' Christian names were set out by initials, and because note sued on showed that it was payable upon condition, performance of condition not being alleged, since any complaint which apprises defendant of nature of claim and would bar another action is sufficient, and therefore filing of note would have been sufficient. Helms v. Appleton [Ind. App.] 85 NE 733.

44. Amended complaint for work done held agent,[46] and, if the complaint is sufficiently specific to apprise a person of common understanding of the exact nature and extent of plaintiff's claim, it is sufficient.[47] Even though a complaint fails to state a cause of action, a demurrer thereto may properly be overruled where it does not challenge the sufficiency of the complaint on that ground.[48] A technical plea of nul tiel record cannot be effectively used to question the existence of a justice court record, except where justice courts are courts of record,[49] but, even if such plea were proper to question a justice court judgment and process, it would not be for the jury but for the court to pass upon.[50] Issues not pleaded cannot be raised [51] nor in actions on contract can evidence of misrepresentation or partial failure of consideration be introduced where no notice of such defenses have been given,[52] but, under statute providing that in case of verdict for the defendant as to the right of property in a replevin action the jury shall also find damages for withholding the property, no counterclaim need be filed or any claim made for such damages to authorize their recovery.[53] Plaintiff must prove his case although defendant does not appear,[54] but, where the complaint is verified and the answer is an unverified general denial and counterclaim, plaintiff is entitled to a judgment without further proof.[55] In some states failure to bring forward all demands existing at the time of commencing a suit, bars a suit for the demand not so consolidated.[56] A plaintiff having pleaded a breach of contract and an offer to rescind may abandon the theory of rescission and submit the case upon a breach of the contract.[57] Where the pleadings are oral, the defendant is not entitled to a judgment on his counterclaim because no reply has been filed.[58] Statutes usually provide for making amendments to pleadings.[59] A summons may be sufficient. Magoon v. O'Connor [Mo. App.] 114 SW 83.

St. 1906, p. 2223), statement of account, setting out that it was for work done on railroad, time of performance, amount, interest, etc., less credits, held sufficient to admit of amendment. Magoon v. O'Connor [Mo. App.] 114 SW 83. Correction of a mistake of dates amended provided no change in the nature of the cause is involved,[60] and even the absence of an allegation of jurisdiction may be cured by amendment.[61] If a petition is ambiguous, amendment to plainly show whether the action is one in tort or for breach of contract should be allowed,[62] but an action ex delicto can not be transferred by amendment into one ex contractu.[63] There should be no variance between the pleadings and the proof,[64] but a slight variance between the process and proof is immaterial,[65] and a variance between the summons and the declaration may be waived by the pleadings.[66] The statute of limitations may be availed of by demurrer to a bill or declaration,[67] but whether a notice or scire facias to revive a judgment would come under the rule is perhaps doubtful.[68]

Verdict and Judgment. See 10 C. L. 561—An informal entry of judgment is good,[69] since much less degree of technicality and formality is required in the judgments of justices of the peace than is exacted in respect to judgments of courts of record,[70] and the judgment and the motion of appeal therefrom must be tested by substance rather than by form,[71] but substance cannot be dispensed with and supplied by amendment.[72] A justice is not obliged to publicly announce the judgment upon the instant after the evidence is closed.[73] Only one judgment can be rendered in an action tried in a justice court,[74] and in such judgment the justice must specify, tax and include the costs allowed by law to the prevailing party.[75] Judgment must show for and against whom[76] and in what case it was rendered,[77] but if subject to no other objections, the fact that it contains no caption to show the parties may be regarded as not fatal.[78] A mere verbal announcement by a justice after the trial of a cause as to what conclusion he has reached does not constitute a judgment,[79] but the judgment must be determined from the docket entry,[80] and although it may be valid, it is unenforcible until it is entered on the docket.[81] Judgment by default may be taken on the adjourned day where defendant is not present to make a defense,[82] but where the action is in tort and not on contract or on an account, judgment cannot be rendered on a verified complaint without proof.[83] Amounts due plaintiff may rightly be offset against those due the defendant and judgment entered for the difference.[84] The judgment of a de facto justice is not void,[85] nor is a judgment rendered void by the fact that an infant appears by next friend appointed differently than as prescribed by statute,[86] or by failure to rightly name the defendant in the summons or judgment or to correct the misnomer.[87] A judgment by default entered against a nonresident on a summons served less than the statutory time before the return day is not void but irregular or at most voidable,[88] and where the defendant does not appear to ask for time to plead or move to set the judgment aside, he will be held to have waived the irregularity.[89] A judgment is void where no summons issued,[90] when entered at an unauthorized continuance,[91] and when against a nonresident in garnishment proceedings, where it purports to be personal and not in rem.[92] Where it has been adjudged on review of a suit in attachment that the justice of the peace was without jurisdiction, any order which the justice may have as to payment of the money is void and it becomes his duty to return it to the garnishee, notwithstanding the dismissal of the petition by the reviewing court may have been erroneous.[93] A judgment of a justice of the peace docketed in the superior court continues a judgment of the justice for all purposes save those of lien on execution,[94] and as such is subject to the limitation prescribed for such judgments;[95] but in some states, when a judgment of the justice has been filed in the office of the prothonotary, it has all the force and effect of a judgment originally obtained in the court of common pleas.[96] A compelled judgment of nonsuit rendered against a

96. Judgment in a proceeding before a justice or alderman and a sheriff's jury, under act of June 16, 1836, to obtain possession by a purchaser at sheriff's sale, not within meaning of statutes authorizing a transcript of judgments of justices of the peace to be filed in the office of the prothonotary, and providing that such judgments shall thereafter have all the force and effect of judgments originally obtained in the courts of common pleas. Act of 1885, P. L. 160. People's Trust Sav. & Deposit Co. v. Ehrhart, nonresident for failure to file security for costs and on a refusal of his motion to adjourn is a voluntary nonsuit.[97] When the statute prescribes the judgment and one is rendered, it is presumed to be the one prescribed, but if one not prescribed is entered it will be attributed to the misprision of the clerk and may be corrected by a nunc pro tunc order.[98] A judgment cannot be collaterally attacked for irregularities after jurisdiction has once been gained,[99] nor will conditional and uncertain agreements between counsel respecting a dismissal of a suit be enforced so as to avoid a judgment subsequently rendered and involved in collateral proceeding,[1] but relief, if at all, must be by direct proceedings instituted for that purpose.[2] An executor of one of two plaintiffs in a justice's judgment cannot maintain a notice or scire facias to revive it.[3]

Execution.[See 10 C. L. 562]—Execution cannot be issued by a justice after three years from the rendition of the judgment without revival,[4] but though an execution may be issued from the office of the clerk of the circuit court on the transcript of the judgment, more than three years from the date of the judgment and without its revival, that can only be done when the transcript is filed within three years,[5] and if an execution is issued which does not follow the judgment as docketed, the court has power on motion to recall or quash it,[6] but such motion does not reach any defects in the judgment not shown upon the face of the record.[7] A substantial compliance with statute requiring a certificate that justice of the peace issuing an execution is a duly qualified justice in the county and precinct from which it is issued is sufficient,[8] and a slight error in the name of the defendant in an execution does not render the execution void,[9] such process being amendable on motion before the justice so as to make it conform to the judgment.[10] Where a justice's judgment is void for want of proper service, the execution and other proceedings thereunder are likewise void.[11] appellate court.[12] In some states two methods of appeal from a final judgment are provided,[13] but an appeal with a trial de novo can be taken only from a "final judgment."[14] The right of appeal is sometimes given to any "person aggrieved" by the judgment though he is not a party to the record,[15] but ordinarily where the appeal is from a judgment, none but the parties tried in the justice court are parties on appeal.[16] The right to appeal from the judgment of a justice to a jury in the superior court is sometimes determined by the amount in controversy,[17] and in determining whether an appeal or certiorari is the proper remedy,[18] or whether an appeal lies,[19] the pleadings determine the amount in controversy. To what court an appeal may be taken may depend on the amount recovered or whether there was a jury trial.[20] A voluntary nonsuit[21] is not appealable.[22] The perfecting of an appeal gives the appellate court jurisdiction of the cause,[23] and the appellate court becomes possessed of the cause upon filing of transcript and papers by the justice,[24] regardless of the payment of fees,[25] or that there be no affidavit for the appeal nor any bond.[26] The jurisdiction on appeal is limited the same as that of the justice before whom the action originated.[27] Payment of fees and state tax are not juris-

Where justice court was without jurisdiction in action of replevin, no jurisdiction in circuit court to which appeal was taken. Jarrett v. McIntyre, 134 Ill. App. 581. No jurisdiction in dictional to an appeal.[28] Under statute providing that when a bond and affidavit for an appeal have been filed an appeal shall be considered allowed, though no entry thereof appears in the record, an order granting an appeal is unnecessary,[29] but the docketing of a judgment in a higher court does not give such court jurisdiction of the action in which the judgment was entered,[30] though the statutes do not require the filing of the notice,[31] yet the fact that notice was given, being jurisdictional, it must affirmatively appear on the face of the record either by filing of the notice and the return therein with the circuit clerk or by a recital in the judgment or order disposing of the cause.[32] The notice is sufficient if it identifies the judgment appealed from and informs the nonappealing party that an appeal has been taken,[33] and a mere clerical error therein does not defeat jurisdiction to try a case de novo.[34] Where there is a failure to serve notice of appeal as required by statute, the superior court acquires no jurisdiction over the nonappealing party and it can only affirm the judgment or dismiss the appeal at the election of plaintiff.[35] Under statute providing that an appeal shall be taken by filing notice with the justice and serving a copy on the adverse party, the order in which the notice is filed and served is immaterial.[36] One desiring a new trial on the facts in the appellate court must appeal under statute relating to appeals generally,[37] and the appeal must be taken within the statutory time from the rendition of the judgment,[38] and can be allowed after the expiration of that time only upon a showing under oath of a good cause for not taking appeal within the time prescribed.[39] A justice has no power to make a contract to enter a prayer for an appeal if the verdict and judgment should be against the party so contemplating to contract,[40] the prayer must be made on the day the judgment is entered in a trial of the rights of property,[41]

In suit to enjoin execution of justice's judgment for want of jurisdiction over person of defendant entitled to be sued in another county, presumption is that evidence supported judgment and that plea in abatement setting forth right to be sued in another county was properly overruled, evidence not appearing in petition. Id. If plea of privilege is ignored by justice or improperly overruled, execution may be enjoined. Id. Petition not alleging a valid defense to action and facts showing it but containing allegation that answer showed a good defense where defense was a general denial held insufficient. Id. Petition not setting out evidence in support of plea, and if any disapproving it, but containing allegation that petitioner proved truth of plea, held insufficient. Id. Where evidence was conflicting on plea of privilege interposed by justice, and justice erred in law in overruling plea, held judgment could not be enjoined. Id.

After expiration of five days from rendition of judgment by default, order to set such judgment aside and order a new trial will only be granted upon a showing of injustice done, and a sufficient excuse for the default. Where second default was made after a new trial had been granted, only remedy is under Code Civ. Proc. 1902, § 368, and no relief can be had thereunder where there is no showing of not having had notice of second trial, that they suffered injustice, or of excuse for default. Williams v. challenged it must be determined on the record, if possible, or if jurisdiction depends on a fact which can be shown only by evidence aliunde, the evidence must be produced by the party bound to show jurisdiction.[54] Want of jurisdiction of the subject-matter cannot be waived,[55] but in irregularities in process not jurisdictional to be available must have been objected to before the justice.[56] A defect in a warrant is not waived by going to trial without making a motion to quash.[57] Where jurisdiction is not shown either by the record or evidence aliunde, the defect goes to the merits of the appeal and cannot be treated as a technicality.[58] Findings of fact are conclusive on appeal,[59] and objections to introduction of certain testimony under the pleadings cannot be first raised before the appellate court.[60] The appellate court can grant a new trial only upon terms authorized by statute.[61] Upon reversal by the common pleas court of an order of a justice of the peace overruling a motion to discharge an attachment, the common pleas court should retain the matter for trial upon appeal.[62]

Bonds. See 10 C. L. 564—An appeal is not effectual until a sufficient undertaking is filed[63] within the time fixed by statute.[64] Where a judgment is rendered against the plaintiff, it is not essential that he file an appeal bond in order to prosecute the appeal,[65] but where the plaintiff recovers a money judgment to perfect the appeal and confer jurisdiction upon the appellate court, it must appear from the record that an appeal bond was executed or an affidavit in lieu thereof given.[66] The amount of an undertaking must not be less than the statutory amount, but the fact that a greater amount than that required is deposited does not invalidate the appeal,[67] and where the bond is made to the proper party, imposes a substantial liability upon the sureties, and is filed in good faith, jurisdiction is given, although it is defective in some respects,[68] and in such case the action should not be dismissed if the appellant applies seasonably for leave to file a good and sufficient bond.[69] Where it clearly appears that an undertaking was for the purpose of staying proceedings, it will not be considered sufficient as an undertaking on appeal where it does not cover costs on appeal,[70] but although the undertaking may be insufficient to stay proceedings, it may be sufficient to effectuate the appeal.[71] An appeal bond which is insufficient to confer jurisdiction on the appellate court is not enforcible as a common-law obligation.[72] Jurisdiction on appeal from a judgment by a justice of the peace is conferred by approval of the undertaking by another justice of the same township.[73] Where a judgment is void, so also is the stay bond.[74] A recognizance taken on appeal must be returned to the court to which the appeal is taken,[75] since without return of the recognizance the appellate court has no jurisdiction to proceed,[76] but failure to return the recognizance at the outset is not fatal, even after a motion to dismiss.[77] The recognizance on appeal is an official record and to be effective must be signed by the magistrate.[78] A party on appeal stating that deposit was made to perfect the appeal will not thereafter be heard on subsequent assertion that it was for a different purpose.[79] Sureties on an appeal bond are released by the discharge in bankruptcy of the debtor during the pendency of the appeal.[80]

appeal constitutes an appearance to the proceedings so as to give appellate court jurisdiction of person filing the same.[83] An appearance and demurrer, on appeal from a justice's judgment by default entered upon an irregular summons, is a waiver of the irregularity in the judgment.[84]

The transcript. See 10 C. L. 565—The appellate court is without jurisdiction to proceed with the trial of a cause in the absence of a transcript of the proceedings before the justice.[85] The transcript of judgment must be filed within the time prescribed by statute,[86] and the appellant must see that the justice files the transcript as required by statute, or on failure to do so the appellate court may in its discretion dismiss the appeal or affirm the judgment for failure to prosecute,[87] but, where a judgment is rendered upon a written instrument duly filed with the justice but which was not sent with the transcript on appeal, such instrument may be subsequently filed though not brought up on a rule upon the justice or by certiorari.[88] The affidavit, writ of replevin, and bond in an attachment suit instituted before a justice, becomes part of the record in the appeal even though filed after the term at which judgment is rendered upon the appeal,[89] and the fact that such papers were not on file at the time of hearing of the appeal is a mere irregularity, not affecting the jurisdiction to hear and determine the appeal.[90] Technical accuracy in a transcript is not required,[91] but although it need not show the affidavit in full[92] nor be under seal[93] yet it must show that the justice had obtained jurisdiction of the defendant.[94] When the transcript is certified as true, its correctness cannot be attacked in a court of review,[95] and where it shows affirmatively that the justice has performed the duty required of him and made a brief note of all the pleadings made by the parties on his docket, evidence to contradict this will not be received in the absence of fraud, accident, or mistake properly pleaded.[96] In a forcible entry and detainer suit, it is appellant's duty to produce the transcript on the return day or show that he has done all in his power to produce it.[97]

97. Under Ann. St. 1906, § 3370, where transcript was not returned within 6 days

The justice cannot amend his transcript unless required to do so by an order of the appellate court,[98] and, where an appeal has been taken from the justice and a transcript of the judgment filed, a petition asking leave to amend by filing a transcript amended to the petition will not be granted in the absence of a showing of fraud practiced, or that the transcript attached to the petition was correct and the one filed incorrect.[99] A motion to correct or amend should be made preliminary to the trial.[1] If the motion is granted, an order to that effect in the minutes of the appellate court is sufficient.[2]

The record.[See 10 C. L. 566]—A justice's record need not be as precise, formal, and accurate as that of a court of record,[3] and the order in which entries have been made are not conclusive that the facts evidenced by them occurred in that order unless so stated in the record.[4] Interlineations in, and pastings to a bill of exceptions will be presumed to have been made in good faith and at the time stated,[5] and, where the record states that a reply was filed before trial and the reply is attached to the justice's transcript and returned as one of the original papers in the case, the record cannot be impeached by ex parte affidavits.[6] Upon the suggestion of a diminution of the record, the appellate court may, and unless good cause is shown will, grant leave to supply the deficiency,[7] and in a proper case a justice may be compelled to correct erroneous entries in his records.[8]

Dismissal.[See 10 C. L. 566]—Except for defects in the appeal proceedings, an appeal cannot be dismissed.[9] If the appellant does not appear to prosecute his appeal, or fails to make out his case for any legal reason, the case can be dismissed, but not the appeal.[10] A motion to dismiss lies on appeal where a recognizance taken by a magistrate or municipal court is not required to the appellate court [11] or where the undertaking fails to cover costs,[12] but it will not be dismissed on the ground that the affidavit and bond for appeal were defective where appellant later filed a proper bond,[13] and, where before a motion to dismiss is acted upon docket fees are tendered, a motion to dismiss for failure to pay such fees may properly be denied.[14] Under statute, after rendition of judgment, and appellant offered no valid excuse for not doing so, held circuit had no jurisdiction. Anheuser-Busch Brew. Ass'n v. Southern Bowling Ass'n [Mo. App.] 114 SW 90. where the appellant is plaintiff and in default for a petition, the appellate court may on its own motion dismiss the action and adjudge the costs against such appellant.[15] The fact that the summons issued out of a justice's court is not served and return made thereon within three years is not a ground for dismissal.[16] To entitle one to an order setting aside a dismissal, it must not only appear that he possessed a meritorious defense to the action but also that the dismissal was not due to his own negligence.[17] A defendant, after his motion to dismiss the appeal is overruled, waives jurisdiction by appearing to the merits of the cause where the court has jurisdiction of the subject-matter.[18]

Pleadings on appeal.[See 10 C. L. 566]—Pleadings sufficient in the justice court are sufficient on appeal where the trial is de novo.[19] They need not be in writing[20] and they may be amended,[21] if such as afford ground for amendment,[22] at the discretion of the judge,[23] where the issues are not changed and such amendment is the correction of a clerical error.[24] A complaint cannot be amended so as to set up a new cause of action [25] nor can any set-off or counterclaim be entertained in the county court which was not pleaded in the court below,[26] but supplemental pleadings may be made after the appeal if the amendment does not pertain to subject-matters wholly beyond the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace to determine,[27] and a second supplemental petition, which is in fact a reply to defenses set up in the answer, may be filed on appeal to the county court though such pleading is erroneously denominated.[28] New matter may be pleaded if the identity of the cause of action is preserved and no set-offs and counterclaims not pleaded below are raised;[29] hence, a trial amendment on appeal is not subject to a motion to strike because it pleads matter not pleaded in the justice court.[30] A garnishee's properly filed answer cannot be striken on appeal.[31] A reply to an answer is necessary only where a counterclaim is pleaded in the answer.[32] Where the summons and return do not show a misjoinder of causes of action, an objection on the ground of misjoinder should be taken by answer.[33] Objections to pleadings should be specific.[34]

Where the case is tried de novo on appeal[35] on its merits,[36] and judgment rendered upon the evidence adduced,[37] proceedings in the justice court in nowise affect proceedings on appeal,[38] for an appeal from a judgment vacates the judgment.[39] The burden is on the appellant to make out his case,[40] but, where the appeal is taken from a judgment by default on both law and fact, the appellant cannot for the first time file an answer and raise a question of fact.[41] The appellee may offer any defense he may have at the time of hearing;[42] so also, when upon a writ of error a ruling is reversed by the appellate court and the cause ordered back for trial, it goes back for trial as if no former order or judgment had ever been made.[43] It is not error for a court of common pleas to hear testimony de novo on appeal in an attachment proceeding from the overruling by a justice of the peace of a motion to dissolve.[44]

44. Brown v. DeLong, 6 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 510.

Judgment. See 10 C. L. 567—The appellate court cannot render a judgment in an amount which the justice for lack of jurisdiction could not have rendered,[45] but, on affirming a judgment and dismissing the appeal, it may in its discretion order the record returned to the magistrate for such further proceedings as are necessary to effectuate the judgment.[46] A judgment of the circuit court dismissing, without prejudice, a cause appealed from a justice's judgment is not a bar to a subsequent action.[47] Proof of affirmative defenses must be made before the allegations of an answer can have effect, except as to settle issues.[48]

Further appeal or error. See 10 C. L. 568 is governed almost entirely by the rules applicable to appeals in cases originally begun in the intermediate court.[49] The right of further appeal may be had where there has been an abuse of discretion,[50] but, where the intermediate had acquired no jurisdiction, there can be no further appeal,[51] and, where the intermediate court was without jurisdiction because of the insufficiency of the record, a further appeal will be heard only where the record is perfected by certiorari.[52] The presumption is that rulings of the intermediate court upon the question of jurisdiction of the justice is correct.[53] Points not raised in the intermediate court and not raised in the affidavit for a writ of certiorari cannot be tried.[54]

§ 6. Certiorari. See 10 C. L. 568—Only a few cases of seemingly peculiar application to review of justice court proceedings are retained in this topic.[55]

A petition for certiorari in a civil action[56] at the time of its filing in the office of the clerk of the superior court[57] must be accompanied either by the prescribed pauper's affidavit or the statutory certiorari bond approved by the judicial officer before whom the case was originally tried.[58] The certiorari is a nullity unless a legal bond or a pauper affidavit in lieu thereof has been filed before the issuance of the writ.[59]

46. Action of superior court in ordering record returned for further proceedings, and in ordering that certified copy of order accompany record, held not error, especially where no prejudice to rights is shown. Wilson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 79 S. C. 198, 60 SE 663.

47. Since on dismissal action is out of both courts. Holman v. Lueck [Wis.] 119 NW 124. Fact that no affidavit for a new trial was filed under St. §§ 3767, 3768, held not to make dismissal a bar, since, if error was done in dismissing without prejudice without affidavit, it was error within jurisdiction of court. Under Revisal 1905, §§ 607, 608, where an appeal was taken in Sept. 1906 and transcript sent to clerk of superior court, but appeal not docketed till 1907 after five terms of court had been held and motion to dismiss was allowed, held refusal to allow docketing was not reviewable, appellant not having paid clerk's fees, or requested docketing prior to motion to dismiss. McClintock v. Life Ins. Co. [N. C.] 62 SE 775.

51. Maley v. Mundy [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 684, 107 SW 905. Where appeal was dismissed because record failed to show jurisdiction in county court and original transcript did not contain bond nor transcript of justice, motion for rehearing not giving reason for prior omission properly overruled. Statutes generally provide who may execute the bond[60] and the requirements thereof.[61] The bond is not amendable,[62] and if it appears to be valid and properly executed, the court will not hear evidence to sustain it though evidence may be introduced to attack it as having been executed or signed by one without authority.[63] While the fact that the surety upon an appeal bond is also the surety on the certiorari bond of the same case is a good ground for dismissing the certiorari in the superior court,[64] yet, where a dismissal is not urged, it is not a ground upon which a writ of error, issued upon a bill of exceptions, may be dismissed.[65] Notice to the opposite party of the sanction of a writ of certiorari and of the time and place of hearing as required by law is indispensable,[66] since the same is in a sense the process which brings the defendant in certiorari into court.[67] Notice may be waived but the waiver must be in writing, and either service of the notice or the written waiver must appear in the record.[68] Certiorari is the proper remedy to a justice's judgment rendered after refusal of a timely demand for a jury,[69] to correct irregularities in the summoning a jury,[70] to inquire into the jurisdiction of the inferior tribunal,[71] and after a verdict has been rendered by a jury in a justice's court for the party dissatisfied in all cases, irrespective of the character of the questions involved or the amount in controversy.[72] Certiorari will lie to review a judgment in favor of one who has entirely failed to prove his cause of action,[73] but the exclusion of testimony not of a conclusive character does not give such right, the proper remedy being an appeal.[74] A verdict in the justice's court is sometimes required before a case can be carried by certiorari to a superior court.[75] Only matters raised in the court below will be reviewed,[76] and no ground or error can be insisted or passed upon than those stated in the petition and answer.[77] Language of the court which appears to determine the right to a writ upon the merits, when the denial was in fact upon other grounds, cannot prejudice the parties not then before the court[78] nor foreclose them from presenting the question anew,[79] or preclude the superior court from determining it as if the former opinion had not been rendered.[80] The violation of a leave of absence extrajudicially granted before court is not such an abuse of discretion as can be reviewed.[81] A certiorari will not be dismissed on the ground that the petition does not negative the idea that a writ of garnishment might have been served by leaving a copy at the garnishee's principal office, where it otherwise appears therefrom that no such service was attempted,[82] nor because the writ of garnishment was not directed to the justice but to the sheriff, where in fact, the justice before whom the judgment against the garnishee was rendered complied with the law in preparing a transcript of the record and filed the same before the court from which the writ issued,[83] and the fact that the petition is not properly verified if it is sanctioned and the magistrate answers, verifying its recitals, is no ground for a dismissal.[84] The fact of approval must appear upon the papers themselves.[85] An affidavit upon information and belief is insufficient,[86] but amendments are liberally awarded.[87] The real merits of a certiorari are determinable upon the hearing by the contents of the answer, and allegations of the petition not verified by the answer are worthless,[88] but upon the presentation of a petition for sanction, all allegations of the petition, properly verified, are to be taken as true until the coming in of the answer.[89] The answer must show that there has been a final judgment or verdict rendered [90] and the record must show jurisdiction.[91]

60. Certiorari bond may be executed by any authorized agent or any attorney of a corporation. Civ. Code 1895, § 4639. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Rhodes [Ga. App.] 60 SE 828. Under Civ. Code of 1895, either a general agent or a special agent may execute bond on behalf of principal, word "supervisor" purporting general agency and authority to bind company. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Rhodes [Ga. App.] 60 SE 828. May be executed by an agent (Bass v. Masters [Ga. App.] 63 SE 24), and presumption is that one who executed bond as agent was duly authorized to do so, unless it affirmatively appears that agency was created by an undisclosed power of attorney (Id.). When certiorari bond appears upon its face to have been signed by one apparently authorized to act as agent, authority to sign is presumed and presumption prevails until rebutted. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Rhodes [Ga. App.] 60 SE 828; American Ins. Co. v. Cable Co. [Ga. App.] 60 SE 1037. Bond may in behalf of a corporation be executed by any agent of corporation which is petitioning for the writ who may be either specially or generally authorized to take such action in its behalf, term "manager" as applied to corporations indicating one having general control, and such control in connection with seal importing power to bind corporation. Id. "Manager" implies agency and presumptively authority to bind corporation in case in which corporation was actual party when case was tried and brought up by writ. Id.

In the determination of alleged errors on certiorari, the answer of the justice furnishes to court the only authoritative information as to what occurred in the trial sought to be reviewed,[92] and the return on a writ of review to review judicial proceedings is conclusive as to the facts.[93] In case of conflict between the bill of exceptions and the record, as to matters which form a part of the record, the latter controls.[94] When a case has been properly removed by certiorari, the superior court may hear and determine the case upon its merits,[95] and in its discretion determine the reasonable amount of the garnishee's fee to be taxed against appellant against whom judgment is entered,[96] but the court should not dispose of the main case on the merits while a traverse to the magistrate's return is pending.[97] The court is confined to the examination of questions of law arising or appearing on the face of the record and proceedings.[98] Judgments must be in conformity with statute,[99] and although a court may be right in dismissing a certiorari by a claimant,[1] yet it is error to include in the dismissal judgment a judgment against the principal in the certiorari bond and his security for the amount of the fi. fa. which has been levied upon the property adjudged not to be the claimant's.[2]

the limits of the precinct does not involve jurisdiction, but is a matter of procedure,[6] and an irregularity that may be waived by consent and agreement of the parties.[7] Where statute provides that a justice shall have jurisdiction in criminal cases throughout the county in which he is elected and resides, his authority to hear and dispose of criminal cases is not limited to the township for which he is elected and where he resides.[8] In North Carolina criminal offenses punishable by a fine not exceeding $50, or imprisonment not exceeding 30 days, are within the final jurisdiction of justices of the peace,[9] and in New Jersey the justice has jurisdiction to hear and determine violations of health ordinances in cities where no police justice has been appointed or provided for.[10] It is not necessary that a conviction state that the cause was heard in a summary manner,[11] nor need notice before suit be given.[12] Under statute providing that when a change of the place of a preliminary examination is granted the cause shall be transferred to the next nearest justice unless the parties otherwise agree, the justice before ordering a change must first ascertain whether the parties have agreed upon a justice,[13] and in the absence of such agreement transfer the cause to the next nearest justice.[14] One desiring to appeal to the circuit court from a conviction by a justice must give the justice notice thereof in writing within the statutory time,[15] but if the notice is in substantial compliance with the statute, it is sufficient.[16] Under statutes in some states a city mayor may act as police justice to dispose of prosecutions for violations of the city ordinances, and as mayor ex officio justice of the peace he may hold the regular court of the justice of the peace to try prosecutions for violations of the state laws.[17] The two courts are wholly distinct and separate.[18] The record must show clearly what offense was charged and whether against the municipal or state power,[19] and the police justice must keep a separate docket as justice of the peace.[20] The jury must be selected in the way the law provides,[21] but the error in selecting, if otherwise the justice has full jurisdic-

17, 18. Washington v. State [Miss.] 46 S 539.

19. Washington v. State [Miss.] 46 S 539. Affidavit for unlawful sale of liquor was sworn to before police clerk, charged defendant with unlawfully selling liquor within corporate limits, and concluded against peace and dignity of state. In transcript it appeared "copy of records of proceedings before U. S. Vandaman, mayor of city of Greenwood and ex officio justice of the peace of Leflore county in said city, etc.," and sentence that defendant be fined $500 and imprisoned in city jail. Held jurisdiction of courts being confused, defendant was entitled to discharge. Id.

KIDNAPPING.[24]

The scope of this topic is noted below.[25]

Kidnapping was a misdemeanor at common law,[26] and, unless denominated a felony by statute, it is not necessary to allege that the offense was "feloniously" committed although the penalty therefor is fixed as for a felony.[27] The substantial equivalent of the statutory definition is sufficient to set forth the offense.[28] Where crim-cused for jury selected under B. & C. Comp. § 2257. Cusiter v. Silverton, 50 Or. 419, 93 P 234. Not error for appellate court to set aside judgment. Id.

23. Commonwealth v. Gill, 28 Ky. L. R. 879, 90 SW 605.

24. See 10 C. L. 570.

25. Includes the crime of unlawfully taking away any person from his home or his removal from one place to another by force, fraud or intimidation and without his consent. Excludes the abduction of females for purposes of prostitution or concubinage, see Abduction, 11 C. L. 9. For civil liability, see False Imprisonment, 11 C. L. 1456.

26. State v. Holland, 120 La. 429, 45 S 380.

NOTE. What constitutes kidnapping: Kidnapping, at common law and under statutes declaratory thereof, is forcible abduction or stealing away of a man, woman or child from their own country and sending them into another (4 Blackstone Com. 219; 1 East P. C. 430; Moody v. People, 20 Ill. 315; Click v. State, 3 Tex. 282; 4 Stephens' Com. 93; 1 Clark & M. Crimes, 456; People v. Chu Quong, 15 Cal. 332; Commonwealth v. Blodgett, 12 Met. [Mass.] 56; Smith v. State, 63 Wis. 453, 23 NW 879; People v. Fick, 89 Cal. 144, 26 P 759; Ex parte Keil, 85 Cal. 309, 24 P 742; Ex parte Miller, 24 P 743; State v. Stickney, 29 Mont. 523, 75 P 201), though the element of transportation to a foreign country has been repudiated as an essential, at least in one case (State v. Rollins, 8 N. H. 550). It is regarded as an aggravated false imprisonment. Costello v. State, 29 Tex. App. 127, 14 SW 1011; Smith v. State, 63 Wis. 453, 23 NW 879. No particular length of time of detention is essential. State v. Leuth, 128 Iowa, 189, 103 NW 345.

The asportation must be without consent of the kidnapped party and without lawful authority (Click v. State, 3 Tex. 282; Costello v. State, 29 Tex. App. 127, 14 SW 1011; Cochran v. State, 91 Ga. 763, 18 SE 16; People v. Fitzpatrick, 57 Hun, 459, 8 N. Y. Cr. R. 81, 10 NYS 629; Olivarez v. State, 14 SW 1012), and a child of tender years is deemed incapable of consenting (State v. Farrar, 41 N. H. 53; Commonwealth v. Nickerson, 5 Allen [Mass.] 518; United States v. Ancarola, 17 Blatchf. [U. S.] 423; Davenport v. Com., 1 Leigh [Va.] 588; Sutton v. State, 122 Ga. 158, 50 SE 60). Fraud or duress may negative consent of a person of mature years. Schnicker v. People, 88 N. Y. 193; Moody v. People, 20 Ill. 315; People v. DeLeon, 109 N. Y. 226, 16 NE 46, 4 Am. St. Rep. 444, and note; In re Kelly, 46 F 653; Sutton v. State, 122 Ga. 158, 50 SE 60; State v. White, 48 Or. 416, 87 P 137; State v. Altemus, 76 Kan. 718, 92 P 594.

Statutes frequently eliminate the element of transportation to another country or state (Hadden v. People, 25 N. Y. 373; Smith v. State, 63 Wis. 453, 23 NW 879; Eberling v. State, 136 Ind. 117, 35 NE 1023; Dehn v. Mandeville, 52 N. Y. St. Rep. 281, 22 NYS 984; State v. Buckarow, 38 La. Ann. 316; State v. Harrison, 145 N. C. 408, 59 SE 867), or substitute the element of removal from usual place of residence (Boes v. State, 125 Ind. 205, 25 NE 218; State v. Sutton, 116 Ind. 527, 19 NE 602; State v. Kimmerling, 124 Ind. 382, 24 NE 722), but where defined as taking with intent to detain and conceal, such intent must appear at the time of the taking (Smith v. State, 63 Wis. 453, 23 NW 879; Mayo v. State, 43 Ohio St. 567, 3 NE 712; People v. Black, 147 Cal. 426, 81 P 1099). In child stealing, lack of consent by the parents is sometimes made an essential, without regard to consent of child. Gravett v. State, 74 Ga. 191; Thweatt v. State, 74 Ga. 821; Arrington v. State, 3 Ga. App. 30, 59 SE 207. Removal of a prisoner from the state by an officer without extradition has been held kidnapping, irrespective of consent. Ker v. Illinois, 119 U. S. 436, 30 Law. Ed. 421. Kidnapping a child under fourteen years of age is a felony, under Statute 24 and 25, Vict. c. 100, § 56. Confinement of one adjudged insane is not kidnapping (People v. Camp, 66 Hun, 531, 21 NYS 741, afd. in 139 N. Y. 87, 34 NE 755), nor can a parent be guilty of kidnapping a minor child of whom he has the parental right of custody (Hunt v. Hunt, 94 Ga. 257, 21 SE 515; State v. Angel, 42 Kan. 216, 21 P 1075; Burns v. Commonwealth, 129 Pa. 138, 18 A 756; John v. State, 6 Wyo. 203, 44 P 51; Biggs v. State, 13 Wyo. 94, 77 P 901), but otherwise if the child is in the lawful custody of another (In re Peck, 66 Kan. 693, 72 P 265).—[Ed.]

27. Rev. St. 1870, § 805, hard labor, at the discretion of the court. State v. Holland, 120 La. 429, 45 S 380.

28. "Unlawfully" instead of "without authority of law." State v. Holland, 120 La. 429, 45 S 380.

inal intent is not an essential element, evidence of previous offenses of the same nature is not admissible.[29]

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

The scope of this topic is noted below.[30]

§ 1. Definitions and distinctions. See 10 C. L. 571—A lease is to be distinguished from a possession incidental to a contract of hire,[31] from a cropper's contract, so called,[32] from a license,[33] and from a mortgage.[34] While a lease is distinguishable from a sale in that it does not pass an interest in the fee, it is an "alienation of lands"

29. Under Rev. St. 1870, § 805. State v. Holland, 120 La. 429, 45 S 380.

30. Leases of chattels (see Bailments, 11 C. L. 365), gas and mining leases (see Mines and Minerals, 10 C. L. 839), and water right leases (see Waters and Water Supply, 10 C. L. 1996), are excluded, as are matters peculiar to leases by particular classes of persons (see Railroads, 10 C. L. 1365, and the like).

31. Janitor occupying rooms as incident to his employment is not a tenant. Tucker v. Burt, 152 Mich. 68, 15 Det. Leg. N. 83, 115 NW 722. Where farm is rented for agricultural purposes to one employed in butcher shop and not as incidental to his employment, relation of landlord and tenant exists. Womach v. Jenkins, 128 Mo. App. 408, 107 SW 423.

32. Where owner contracted with another to furnish, in addition to the land, the wheat to be sown, the latter to do all the work and crop to be divided between them, held that relation of landlord and tenant did not exist but contract was mere cropper's contract. Haggard v. Walker [Mo. App.] 111 SW 904. Verbal agreement whereby one was to furnish land, teams and tools to another who was to cultivate the land, get wood for first party, feed his stock, milk his cows, and make his fires, crop to be divided equally between them, held not to create relation of landlord and tenant but tenants in common of crop. Rogers v. Frazier Bros. & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 727. Under Code 1896, § 2711, where one furnishes land and another labor to produce crop which is to be divided, relation of landlord and tenant exists. Kennedy v. McDiarmid [Ala.] 47 S 792. See Emblements and Natural Products, 11 C. L. 1197.

33. Instrument giving right to occupy side of building for advertising purposes held a license and not a lease. Manheimer v. Gudat, 55 Misc. 330, 106 NYS 461. Where defendant hired entire roof of building for two years to be used for displaying advertising signs, with right of access during business hours, owner reserving right to enter upon roof for repairing or to place lights, held lease and not a mere license. United Merchants' Realty & Imp. Co. v. New York Hippodrome, 113 NYS 740. Contract whereby plaintiff was to have exclusive privilege of public stenographer's office in certain hotel, agreeing to pay monthly rent, plaintiff to do private correspondence for hotel management and to furnish competent stenographers, held not a lease but mere contract to allow stenographer and typewriter to carry on business in hotel. Hess v. Roberts, 124 App. Div. 328, 108 NYS 894. See Licenses to Enter on Land, 10 C. L. 630.

34. Instrument in form a lease with the right to remove timber, etc., given as security construed a mortgage. Johnson v. Hataway [Ala.] 46 S 760. See Mortgages, 10 C. L. 855.

within the act of congress relating to the right of Indians to dispose of their lands.[35] The word "lease" is frequently used to designate the written instrument, though such instrument is in fact only evidence of the leasing.[36]

§ 2. The contract of lease and creation of tenancy. See 10 C. L. 571—The relation being purely contractual cannot arise by operation of law,[37] and, while the contract may be express or implied,[38] all the elements of a contract, such as the meeting of the minds,[39] must exist,[40] and if there is a writtent lease it must be delivered[41] without fraud,[42] unless the party claiming nondelivery is estopped to assert the same.[43] No particular form of expression is necessary but any language manifesting an intention to create the relation is sufficient.[44] A party is entitled to have included in his lease

35. Lease is an "alienation of lands" within Act April 21, 1904, c. 1402, 33 Stat. 204, relating to alienation of lands by Indians. Eldred v. Okmulgee L. & T. Co. [Okl.] 98 P 929.

36. Mattlage v. McGuire, 111 NYS 1083.

37. Vendee in possession after breach of contract cannot be treated as lessee. Stockwell v. Washburn, 111 NYS 413.

38. Starbuck v. Avery [Mo. App.] 112 SW 33. Though provision that lessee shall have option "at expiration of this lease" to renew, provided he gives six months prior notice of his "intention," contemplated further action at end of term after giving of notice, if lessee notifies lessor that he will take for another term and lessor accepts, a complete contract is formed. Nutmeg Park Driving Corp. v. Fiske [Conn.] 71 A 499. Where lessor sells land and vendee knows of existing tenancy and the tenant upon learning of the sale continues, relation of landlord and tenant is created between them. Starbuck v. Avery [Mo. App.] 112 SW 33. Where lessee is notified that he is lessee of the premises and agrees to pay rent to such person, held to establish relation of lessor and lessee. Friedland v. Nicholsburg, 110 NYS 1055.

39. Evidence of conversations and negotiations held to make question for jury whether minds had met. Robertson & Co. v. Russell [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 205. Evidence of conversations, writings, etc., held to show that minds met on particular rental. Id. Where owner did not surrender lease but merely permitted it to be used to make duplicate copy to be signed by original lessors, and he was not aware that true copy was not made, his act did not operate to make new lease (Fleck v. Feldman, 110 NYS 412), and where false lease was assigned by lessee to subtenants, owner retained all rights under original lease against assignor and assignee (Id.).

40. Express contract for room rent asserted against son-in-law after family difficulties arise will be carefully scrutinized. Heron v. Weber, 103 Me. 178, 68 A 744. Evidence held insufficient to show express contract to pay room rent, defendant being a son-in-law and claim being asserted only after family difficulties arose. Id. Evidence held to sustain finding of written lease for one year at rental of $50 per month. Rees v. Storms [Minn.] 117 NW 498. Relation of landlord and tenant may be established by lessee's acknowledgment of the tenancy. Dunn v. Taylor [Tex.] 113 SW 265.

Offer and acceptance: Defendants made rental proposal and plaintiffs mailed acceptance. Defendants remained in possession and plaintiffs demanded rent under new lease. Held that receipt of acceptance was not necessary as demand of rent was an acceptance and defendants remaining in possession gave plaintiffs right to elect at any time to consider lease in effect. Robertson & Co. v. Russell [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 205. In order to become a contract for the renewal of a lease there must be a meeting of minds and acceptance of the offer to renew before it is withdrawn. Landlord's offer to renew lease made while lease still in force but withdrawn before acceptance cannot be construed as of binding force. Globe Brew. Co. v. Simon, 132 Ill. App. 198.

41. Waldo v. Jacobs, 152 Mich. 425, 15 Det. Leg. N. 316, 116 NW 371. Delivery obtained for lessor's attorney without lessor's consent and knowledge held not a legal delivery. Morgan v. Simmons [Utah] 96 P 1018. Where lease was signed by both parties and delivered by plaintiff to his agents to be delivered to defendant but never delivered, held invalid. Harnett v. Korscherak, 110 NYS 986. Where unregistered lease from general agent to his principal is found among principal's papers in possession of agent, no delivery is shown in the absence of evidence of agent to accept delivery. Smith v. Moore [N. C.] 62 SE 892. Where lease is found among papers of lessees in possession of lessor who was general agent of lessees, and is offered on behalf of deceased lessor, burden rests on one offering. Id.

42. Where there was evidence that lease was signed by lessor to be delivered to lessee if he agreed thereto and signed same, but that lessee fraudulently procured delivery, finding that lease was obtained by lessee by fraud construed as finding that lease as a mere written instrument was so obtained. Morgan v. Simmons [Utah] 96 P 1018.

43. Where lessee recognized lease by offering to relinquish rights thereunder, he cannot resist on ground of nondelivery. Obendorfer v. Mecham, 110 NYS 340. Where tenant in possession mortgages her leasehold and there is recorded a sealed lease with two years to run, lessor is estopped to assert that lease was never delivered and that lessee is in under a subsequent parol lease. Jetter Brew. Co. v. Kurzel, 112 NYS 239.

44. Hancock County Sup'rs v. Imperial Naval Stores Co. [Miss.] 47 S 177. The words "agreed to let" are interpreted to mean the same as "let," unless there is something in the instrument to show that a present demise could not have been in the contemplation of the parties, and thirty days' notice does not terminate it. Instrument agree-

all the terms of the accepted option to lease.[45] The contract must be free from fraud[46] and material misrepresentation,[47] and the lease must be for a lawful purpose.[48] The mere demise by the lessor of the premises leased is not sufficient consideration to support an independent covenant of the lessee.[49] To avoid a lease because of false representations, they must be material,[50] and it must appear that the lessee relied upon them.[51] A lessee who seeks to avoid the lease on account of fraudulent representations must act promptly on discovery of the fraud.[52] The lease must be by one having an estate in the land,[53] or by one duly authorized and empowered to make the same.[54] A lease is binding upon the lessee though not signed by him if he takes possession thereunder.[55] In some states lease of certain term durations must be recorded.[56]

Construction of leases and proof of the terms of tenancy. See 10 C. L. 572—The rules of construction applicable to contracts generally apply to leases,[57] the cardinal principal being to give effect to the intention of the parties.[58] Leases are governed as to legal effect by the laws of the state where executed,[59] and it will be presumed that the parties contracted with reference to local established customs.[60] While a ing to lease for a definite period and embodying all details held to be lease. Seibert v. Grace, 138 Ill. App. 361.

45. Option to lease held to contain all the essentials of a lease. O'Connor v. Harrison, 132 Ill. App. 264.

46. Where lessee covenanted that he had examined and knew the condition of the premises and had received same in good order and repair, and that no representations were made as to condition except as indorsed thereon, he could not rescind for alleged false oral representations as to condition of boiler. Jorgeson v. Hock, 234 Ill. 631, 85 NE 296.

47. Misrepresentation by sublessor that there were no restrictions in his lease except against use as saloon or restaurant held material on issue of frand. Humphreys v. Roberts, 113 NYS 792. Misrepresentation by sublessor as to rent paid by him held not as to a material matter. Id. Though lessee pleaded that written contract did not set forth the agreement, evidence that lessee did not read same and that he trusted lessor held irrelevant and immaterial. Duncan v. Jouett [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 981.

48. Mere knowledge or suspicion that lessee is going to use premises for illegal purpose will not invalidate the contract. Harbison v. Shirley [Iowa] 117 NW 963. Though corporation cannot be licensed to keep saloon, it may lease premises so as to have its beer sold thereon. Conservative Realty Co. v. St. Louis Brew. Ass'n [Mo. App.] 113 SW 229.

49. Covenant for bidding other than plaintiff's beer to be sold on premises leased without agreement to sell to lessee is unilateral. Fortune Bros. Brew. Co. v. Shields, 137 Ill. App. 77.

50. Representation that defendant was owner, when in fact title was in his wife, not such representation as will entitle tenant to rescission, in absence of showing that possession was disturbed. Hock v. Jorgeson, 137 Ill. App. 199.

51. Evidence held not to show reliance upon representation that boiler and steam pipes were in good repair. Hock v. Jorgeson, 137 Ill. App. 199.

52. A lessee who claimed that he was induced to accept lease because of fraudulent representations regarding good repair of boiler and pipes of engine, but who retained possession of premises for two years, held precluded from setting up fraud. Hock v. Jorgeson, 137 Ill. App. 199.

53. Fact that lessor was not owner of the premises does not authorize lessee to rescind where he has not been disturbed. Wife of lessor owner. Jorgeson v. Hock, 234 Ill. 631, 85 NE 296.

54. Agent must have authority. Bonnazza v. Joseph Schlitz Brew. Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 846, 118 NW 604. Agent possessing power to rent has power to renew lease. Steuerwald v. Jackson, 123 App. Div. 569, 108 NYS 41. Executor cannot bind estate by acceptance of lease beginning after death of testator. Grace v. Seibert, 235 Ill. 190, 85 NE 308.

See, also, Agency, 11 C. L. 72.

55. Bakker v. Fellows [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 545, 117 NW 52.

56. Lease for five years with right of renewal is for more than seven years, within Rev. Laws, c. 127, § 4, requiring such leases to be recorded. Leominster Gaslight Co. v. Hillery, 197 Mass. 267, 83 NE 870. Purchaser subject to a lease is bound by it though not recorded. Id. Where lease for more than 21 years is recorded, under Act May 28, 1715 (Smith's Law, p. 94), an estate for years vests though possession is not taken. St. Vincent's Roman Catholic Congregation of Plymouth v. Kingston Coal Co., 221 Pa. 349, 70 A 838.

57. See Contracts, 11 C. L. 729.

58. Where lease recites that "premises are now in good repair," and evidence shows it was not in good repair at time of execution of lease but was put in such condition before commencement of term, covenant to surrender "in the same condition as they now are," held to refer to commencement of term. Chesapeake Brew. Co. v. Goldberg, 107 Md. 485, 69 A 37. Lease of basement and store room, in building in which there were other tenants, held not to include roof, and lessor could erect billboard thereon. Macnair v. Ames [R. I.] 68 A 950.

59. Perpetual lease. Bowler v. Emery [R. I.] 70 A 7.

60. Permitting lessee to remove crop after expiration of term where he was prevented lease drawn exclusively by the lessor should be construed most strongly against him,[61] and doubts as to the meaning of a restrictive covenant must be resolved against the restriction,[62] the court should give such effect to each clause as to promote the general purpose of the lease[63] if possible.[64] Where the language is clear and certain, it must be given effect, however harsh,[65] and its meaning will not be extended by implication,[66] but where indefinite and ambiguous,[67] parol evidence may be resorted to to show the intention of the parties. In case of uncertainty, a practical construction by the parties may be adopted by the court.[68] Contemporaneous parol agreements are merged in the written lease,[69] which must control the contractual rights of the parties,[70] unless they relate to collateral matters,[71] or to conditions precedent to the taking effect of the lease.[72] As to whether a tenancy is held jointly or severally is a question of fact.[73] by circumstances from gathering during term. Bowles v. Drivir [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 440.

61. Morgan v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 978.

62. Covenant as to cigar privileges in other parts of the same building. The Apollo Cigar Co. v. O'Brien, 11 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 63.

63. Lease binding lessor not to lease "to another saloon or dramshop on said block during this lease," and providing for termination of lease if saloon license could not be obtained, etc., held to show general purpose to lease for saloon purposes. Conservative Realty Co. v. St. Louis Brew. Ass'n [Mo. App.] 113 SW 229.

64. Conservative Realty Co. v. St. Louis Brew. Ass'n [Mo. App.] 113 SW 229. Lease of passageway of three feet requiring lessor to maintain a cistern and closet "on said premises" held in view of purpose of said lease not to authorize erection of closet so as to block way. Sultzman v. Branham, 128 Mo. App. 696, 108 SW 1074.

65. Conservative Realty Co. v. St. Louis Brew. Ass'n [Mo. App.] 113 SW 229.

66. Lease that provided for purchase of buildings and improvements by subsequent lessee held, where state sold premises and tenant sought to have lien declared to secure improvements, that lease could not be construed as containing agreement to purchase by vendee, or that lien should be created in favor of original lessee. Diederich v. Rose, 133 Ill. App. 384.

67. Where lease required lessee to put in strawberries in patch south of clover field and there were two such patches, parol evidence is admissible to identify. Lauderdale v. King, 130 Mo. App. 236, 109 SW 852. Lease containing option of purchase together with instructions in writing to holder of deed in escrow held not so ambiguous as to admit parol evidence. Pollard v. Sayre [Colo.] 98 P 816.

68. Sublease of "the premises which he (original lessee) holds under lease," etc., held to refer to premises held by lessor under a practical construction rather than by strict interpretation of his lease, where sublessee knew of such practical construction. Hirsh v. Valloft, 121 La. 66, 46 S 103. Taking of possession and compliance with terms by both lessor and lessee held to show occupancy under written lease, although words did not express lease in praesenti. Eagle Tube Co. v. Holsten, 110 NYS 242.

69. Moore v. Coughlin, 111 NYS 856. Where lease recites the rental of a particular farm at a specific rent and said nothing as to number of acres or that rental was per acre, lessee cannot show by parol that rental was by acre upon a representation that farm contained certain number of acres for purpose of establishing counterclaim. Lewis v. Muse, 130 Mo. App. 194, 108 SW 1107.

70. Word "furnished" as used in lease providing that "party of the first agrees to furnish water sufficient to irrigate land above described, said water to come from an artesian well located on land," held to mean to "deliver" and was not complied with where contractor digging well for lessor locked same on completion so that lessee could not get water without breaking lock. Smith v. Hicks [N. M.] 98 P 138. Under Greater New York Charter, §§ 475, 473, as amended by Laws 1902, p. 1219, c. 509, and Laws 1904, p. 1431, c. 600, conferring on alderman power to establish a scale of rents for supplying water, and providing that all extra charges for water shall be included in regular rents, and in case meter shall be placed in any building quantity used shall be determined by such meter, tenant stipulating to pay regular "annual rent * * * assessed * * * according to law for * * * water rent" must pay meter rent. Loewenthal v. Michels, 110 NYS 639. Where by cropping contract tenant agreed to pay one-half of expenses of maintaining both families and family of landlord was increased by her son becoming a member thereof without lessee's consent, lessee may recover additional expense. Feland v. Berry [Ky.] 113 SW 425. Where physician rented room in business block and lessor agreed to furnish heat and water, faucet in hallway some distance from office held not a compliance. Rosenbloom v. Solomon, 57 Misc. 290, 109 NYS 540. Cropping contract provided that landlord was to have a 12-acre tobacco barn built, she to pay cost of same, tenant agreeing to attend to building of same. Held that it was duty of landlord to furnish material on the premises, and, where she negligently delayed until too late to build and crop is damaged, she is liable. Feland v. Berry [Ky.] 113 SW 425.

71. A lease in writing cannot be varied by parol proof of a contemporaneous agreement to repair. Ross v. Griebel, 136 Ill. App. 399. Contra. Williams v. Salmond, 79 S. C. 459, 61 SE 79. Parol agreement to make certain repairs and to put in certain furniture before commencement of term held collateral. Davies v. Hotchkiss, 112 NYS 233.

72. Contemporary parol agreement that

The statute of frauds.[See 10 C. L. 573]—Leases are contracts for the conveyance of land and within the statute relating thereto.[74] They must also conform to the statutes requiring contracts not to be performed within one year to be in writing.[75] In many states an agent's authority must be in writing to authorize him to execute a lease,[76] but the mere fact that he exceeds his written authority as to the terms of the lease does not bring the lease within the statute.[77] Where a demise in writing extends over a fixed period, with a provision for its continuance over another fixed period at a fixed rental, the renewal is a continuation of the old term and is within the statute of frauds.[78] Where a tenant under a lease within the statute of frauds takes possession and is accepted,[79] the statute does not apply to the contract arising therefrom.[80] A bill seeking the enforcement of a lease or assignment thereof which is within the statute of frauds must show that it is in writing.[81]

Covenants.[See 10 C. L. 574]—While there is ordinarily no implied covenant that the premises are suitable for the tenant's business,[82] by statute in Louisiana the lessor warrants against all vices and defects which may prevent the use intended by the lease.[83] The parties may make such express covenants as they see fit provided they are not contrary to positive law or against public policy,[84] and upon breach thereof the party injured may sue for damages,[85] or rescind the contract in certain cases.[86] lessor would not enforce lessee's covenant to pay proportionate share of water rates if lessee executed the lease and paid the rent does not come within rule permitting parol conditions precedent to contract taking effect. Goerlitz v. Schwartz, 112 NYS 1119.

73. Evidence examined and held sufficient to sustain finding that premises rented to two persons at a certain rental "each per month" constituted a several and separate liability on each for one-half total rent. Carpenter v. Lewis, 133 Ill. App. 449.

74. Miles v. Janvrin [Mass.] 86 NE 785. Oral agreement between corporation landlord and tenant holding under lease from year to year, that tenant should continue in possession until certain litigation should be determined, in meantime to pay rents monthly or quarterly, held within statute. Williams v. Apothecaries' Hall Co., 80 Conn. 503, 69 A 12. Delivery of unsigned lease to tenant by agent of lessor with oral stipulation that it must be signed by designated hour or lease would be given to another, which was not signed but taken up at such hours, held not such delivery as satisfies statute of frauds. Mentzer v. Hudson Sav. Bank, 197 Mass. 325, 83 NE 1102. Where written lease is orally renewed and orally modified, instruction referring to lease as oral held not erroneous. Ashdown v. Ely [Iowa] 117 NW 976.

75. Lease not to be performed within year is within statute. Goldstein v. Webster [Cal. App.] 95 P 677; Moore v. Terrell, 33 Ky. L. R. 822, 111 SW 297; Womach v. Jenkins, 128 Mo. App. 408, 107 SW 423.

76. Where written authority of agent requiring him to take security for rent did not designate time of taking or character of security, lessor is bound by lease silent as to security where lessee offers ample security long before commencement of term. Paris v. Johnston [Ala.] 46 S 642.

77. Did not require security for rent as required by written authority. Paris v. Johnston [Ala.] 46 S 642.

78. Five-year term demised in writing with five-year renewal was not as to renewal obnoxious to statute of frauds, rendering leases for more than three years invalid. Batuia v. McBride [N. J. Err. & App.] 68 A 113.

79. Entry on term of former tenant without consent of landlord held not a partial performance. Moore v. Terrell [Ky.] 33 Ky. L. R. 822, 111 SW 297.

84. Principal that contract between railroad company and individual to control location of stations, etc., is void, has no application to agreement by lessor to furnish trackage to lessee. Cole v. Brown-Hurley Hardware Co. [Iowa] 117 NW 746. Agreement by lessor to furnish trackage to business block held not void on its face as contemplating asserting undue influence on public officials (Id.), though both knew that municipal consent, necessary to valid construction, had not been obtained (Id.).

85. That about time lessee executed lease of fruit stand he formed partnership held not to prevent him from suing as individual for breach of lessor's covenants in absence of evidence of assignment of lease to partnership. Metzger v. Brincat [Ala.] 45 S 633.

86. Where lessee agrees to pay specified sum for building and trackage, invalidity of agreement to secure trackage invalidates entire contract. Cole v. Brown-Hurley Hardware Co. [Iowa] 117 NW 746.

87. See Reformation of Instruments, 10 C. L. 1496.

Breach of contract to make lease. See 10 C. L. 574—A lease is to be distinguished from a contract to make a lease,[88] and the latter from a mere option.[89] Lessor cannot recover of lessee for refusal to accept a lease where he did not put the premises into the condition required by the lease,[90] unless the lessee has waived such nonperformance or is estopped to assert it.[91] A deposit to secure performance must be returned, notwithstanding nonperformance, unless it is liquidated damages or actual damages are shown.[92]

§ 3. The different kinds of tenancies and their incidents. Periodical tenancies. See 10 C. L. 574—While a periodical tenancy may be created by express agreement,[93] it generally results from a holding over after the expiration of a term,[94] or from possession under a lease void under the statute of frauds[95] or otherwise.[96] The character of the tenancy is sometimes regulated by statute where the lease does not fix the time of its duration.[97] Though the payment of rent is sometimes significant as to the character of the tenancy, it cannot prevail against the terms of the leasing.[98]

Tenancy at will. See 10 C. L. 575—A tenancy at will may be created by express agreement,[99] and in a few states arises from possession under a lease within the stat-

88. Evidence held to show a mere tentative agreement contemplating execution of a written lease later, and not a final lease. Sherry v. Proal, 109 NYS 1008. Direction, by one who has been occupying an apartment, to janitress, who was without authority to rent, not to let any one have apartment during his absence, and a statement that when he got back he would sign a lease for a year, held not to constitute an oral lease but at most contract for a lease. Columbia Bank v. Clarke, 108 NYS 587.

89. Instrument commencing "We agree to execute a lease," etc., and not containing the word "option," held binding contract and not an option. Benedict v. Pincus, 191 N. Y. 377, 84 NE 284.

90. Failed to have premises steam heated as called for by agreement. Corinthian Lodge v. Smith, 147 N. C. 244, 61 SE 49.

91. Fact that lessee who had agreed to take lease of store from certain time if steam heat was put in remained silent when told that steam plant would not be ready held not to estop him from refusing to take lease because of lack of steam. Corinthian Lodge v. Smith, 147 N. C. 244, 61 SE 49.

92. Broadway Renting Co. v. Wolpin, 110 NYS 151.

93. Testimony of lessee that he had lived in flat for 13 years, that he had hired it from A to whom he paid rent, that he paid $25 per month, although not always in advance, etc., held to show monthly tenancy. Drake v. Cunningham, 111 NYS 199. Evidence of conversations and negotiations held to show monthly tenancy. Schnieder & Co. v. Amendola, 113 NYS 517. Evidence held for jury whether tenancy was from month to month of for term of one year. Franck v. Smolens, 113 NYS 464. Acceptance of rents held not assent that tenant was holding as tenant from month to month, though tenant was claiming a modified agreement. Williams v. Apothecaries Hall Co., 80 Conn. 503, 69 A 12.

94. Ventura Hotel Co. v. Pabst Brew. Co., 33 Ky. L. R. 149, 109 SW 354. Lease for one month from specific date, at a monthly rental, under which possession is continued after end of month, held to create tenancy from month to month though Gen. St. 1902, § 4043, provides that no holding over shall be evidence of an agreement for a further lease. Williams v. Apothecaries' Hall Co., 80 Conn. 503, 69 A 12.

95. Where tenant enters under lease for indefinite term, rent payable annually, tenancy from year to year is created though within the statute of frauds. Williams v. Apothecaries' Hall Co., 80 Conn. 503, 69 A 12. Parol lease for two years followed by possession and payment of rent creates a tenancy from year to year. Nichols v. Hicklin, 127 Mo. App. 672, 106 SW 1109. Where tenant under parol lease for stipulated rent enters into possession thereunder, a tenancy from year to year arises by implication. Griswold v. Branford, 80 Conn. 453, 68 A 987. Where possession is taken under parol lease for two years, tenancy from year to year is created (Harnett v. Korscherak, 110 NYS 986), and fact that receipts for rent recited "let by the month only," is immaterial (Id.). Where parol lease for a year is followed by possession, a tenancy from year to year arises. Nonpayment of rent does not reduce to tenancy at will. Griswold v. Branford, 80 Conn. 453, 68 A 987.

96. Where lease of community property for a year is void because not joined in by wife and rent is payable monthly, tenancy becomes one from month to month. Ryan v. Lambert [Wash.] 96 P 232.

97. Parol lease reserving monthly rent, with provision that lessee might remain paying rent so long as he desired, held not to agree upon time of termination, within Gen. St. 1902, § 4043, providing that parol leases reserving a monthly rent in which no time for termination is agreed on shall be construed as leases for a month only. Price v. Raymond, 80 Conn. 607, 69 A 935. Where tenant enters under lease for indefinite term, rent payable annually, it is a lease from year to year. Williams v. Apothecaries' Hall Co., 80 Conn. 503, 69 A 12.

98. From the payment of rent monthly, a letting from month to month will not be implied where the letting was for a longer term upon monthly payments. Seibert v. Grace, 138 Ill. App. 361.

99. Evidence held to show that defendant's predecessor took possession and used land ute of frauds.[1] A tenancy at will of agricultural lands is in effect a tenancy from year to year in Missouri.[2]

Tenancy at sufferance. See 8 C. L. 664

§ 4. Rights and interests remaining in the landlord. A. Reversion, seisin, and right of re-entry. See 10 C. L. 575—The landlord is the owner of the estate not demised and may do with it as he sees fit, subject always to the lease.[3] While an assignee of the landlord's interest is entitled to all of his rights,[4] he is chargeable with notice of the rights of a tenant in possession,[5] and has no more right than the lessor.[6] Possession of the tenant inures to the landlord,[7] and upon a sale of the reversion the lessee will be deemed to hold under the grantee unless he repudiates the tenancy upon learning of the sale,[8] although such continued possession is not constructive notice of the vendee's unrecorded deed.[9] Upon the death of the landlord his heirs, devisees or personal representatives usually succeed to all his rights and interests.[10] A subtenant holds subject to the rights of re-entry reserved as against the tenant.[11]

(§ 4) B. Estoppel of tenant to deny title. See 10 C. L. 575—While one sued as a tenant may show that the relation does not exist,[12] one who has acquired [13] possession as a tenant is estopped to deny his landlord's title,[14] or to assert a superior one.[15] The estoppel applies only in actions arising out of the relationship,[16] and relates only to the lessor's title at the time of contracting and the lesee may show that such title has been lost,[17] or he may acquire and assert the same.[18] While the estoppel does not apply to the lessee's wife,[19] it extends to all succeeding to the lessee's possession.[20]

as tenant at will. Buford v. Wasson [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 275. One entering into possession by express permission of the owner at will, such possession creates relation of landlord and tenant. Id.

1. Price v. Thompson [Ga. App.] 60 SE 800. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 3414 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 1948), taking of possession under a lease within statute of frauds creates tenancy at will. Womach v. Jenkins, 128 Mo. App. 408, 107 SW 423. See ante, subsec. Periodical Tenancies.

10. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 80, § 14, giving heirs and personal representatives of lessor same rights and remedies as lessor would have had, lessee sued by heirs in forcible detainer cannot litigate validity of will devising premises to another. Thomas v. Olenick, 237 Ill. 167, 86 NE 592.

11. Where lease provided that landlord might re-enter on expiration of term, landlord was held entitled to possession as against subtenant, although tenancy had terminated by tenant's surrender before expiration of term. Turn Verein Garfield v. Vocke, 131 Ill. App. 528.

12. May show that he leased from another but not by showing the plaintiff was not true owner. Johnson v. Tucker, 136 Wis. 505, 117 NW 1002. Evidence held sufficient to show that relation existed. Tefft v. Tefft [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 715, 117 NW 627.

13. True owner in actual possession does not estop himself from asserting his title by accepting lease from a claimant. Strong v. Baldwin [Cal.] 97 P 178.

14. Wallbrecht v. Blush, 43 Colo. 329, 95 P 927; Hardwick v. Karn [Ky.] 33 Ky. L. R. 776, 111 SW 293; Hulett v. Platt [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 207. Doctrine applies though land is public domain. Wallbrecht v. Blush, 43 Colo. 329, 95 P 927. Doctrine does not obtain where title is derivative. Drake v. Cunningham, 111 NYS 199. Where one enters into possession under another who also remains in possession, the doctrine that he cannot dispute title of one under whom he enters without surrendering possession does not apply where there has been a disclaimer of tenancy and notice thereof to party from whom possession was obtained. Mitchell v. Allen [S. C.] 61 SE 1087.

15. Mullins v. Hall [Ky.] 112 SW 920. Tenant cannot acquire and assert patent to land. King v. Hill, 32 Ky. L. R. 1192, 108 SW 238.

17. Cohen v. Carpenter, 113 NYS 168. As that he was a tenant and his landlord has entered for breach of lease. Id.

18. Tenant may assert superior title acquired by purchase from landlord or at a judicial sale. Hyman v. Grant [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 853.

19. Where grantor of land fronting on an oyster bed, with all oyster rights, leased oyster bed from grantee, he is estopped to deny lessor's title, but lessee's wife not a party to lease is not estopped to assert that

Likewise, one succeeding to the lessee's possession cannot assert any defense which the lessee could not assert.[21]

Adverse possession.—Where the relation is once established, limitations will not run against the landlord[22] until the lessee has publicly repudiated the relation and professed an adverse possession,[23] and the rule applies to all who succeed to the tenant's possession.[24] The repudiation must be open, continuous, notorious, and of such adverse character as to preclude all doubt as to lessor's knowledge thereof.[25]

§ 5. Mutual rights and liabilities in demised premises. A. Occupation and enjoyment. See 10 C. L. 577—The tenant is entitled to all easements running with the land and incident thereto,[26] and takes subject to all existing servitudes.[27] While the lessor cannot impose additional burdens upon the demised premises,[28] a lessee of the "lower floor" is bound to recognize the existence of the upper floors and consents that his lease does not include privileges and appurtenances necessary to such floors.[29] The landlord is bound by an express covenant to supply heat,[30] and in such case a covenant by the tenant to keep the premises in repair does not require him to repair the heating apparatus,[31] and the duty to furnish heat may be implied from the surrounding facts,[32] but the lease of a "bedroom" does not carry as an incident a right bed lay beyond boundaries fixed by Civ. Code 1896, § 3155, granting to owners of land right to plant and gather oysters for specified distance in front of land. Cleveland v. Alba [Ala.] 46 S 757.

20. One acquiring possession through collusion with tenants. Williams v. Fox, 152 Mich. 215, 15 Det. Leg. N. 91, 115 NW 710. Subtenant cannot dispute title of original landlord. Orthwein v. Davis, 140 Ill. App. 107.

21. True owner cannot enjoin enforcement of writ of possession which had been obtained against lessee. Hardwick v. Karn, 33 Ky. L. R. 776, 111 SW 293.

22. In ejectment against tenant, plaintiff need not prove adverse title within prescriptive period. Fenn v. Louisell [C. C. A.] 160 F 458.

23. Buford v. Wasson [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 275. One's possession under lease is presumed to continue until it is shown that such possession has been surrendered or the lease otherwise repudiated. Jones v. California & O. Land Co. [Or.] 97 P 625. Where lessee attorns to another and pays rent to such person with lessor's consent, possession may be adverse. Hanson v. Sommers [Minn.] 117 NW 842.

24. Buford v. Wasson [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 275.

25. Coquille Mill & Mercantile Co. v. Johnson [Or.] 98 P 132; Buford v. Wasson [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 275. Lessor's knowledge of adverse holding need not be proven beyond all doubt but stronger and clearer proof is required than in other cases. Buford v. Wasson [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 275. Where tenancy at will was created solely to allow lessee's cattle to graze upon the land, and third person used same under right of tenant grazing of his cattle thereon was no notice of adverse possession. Id. Evidence of acts, etc., of one holding under original tenant held insufficient to show notice of adverse holding. Id. Where lessee stated to third person claiming land that he was in possession for lessor and wanted third person's authority to use land, and right to purchase from third person if he won from landlord or from landlord if he did not win, in absence of notice to landlord of surrender of possession held by him, held not to effect tenancy, and his possession inured to lessor. Hulett v. Platt [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 207.

26. Drainage easement. Brown v. Honeyfield [Iowa] 116 NW 731.

27. Prior recorded release to railroad for all damages by flooding due to reconstruction, etc., held binding on lessee (Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Thornton [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 220), who could not assert lack of consideration (Id.). Under the statute giving an adjoining owner the right, without the consent of the other, to erect a party wall, one-half on the premises of the other, a party wall does not become an incumbrance for which a lessee making use of wall, and thereby obligating himself to adjoining owner for share in cost thereof, may recover of lessor for breach of covenant. Code, §§ 2994-3003. Percival v. Colonial Inv. Co. [Iowa] 115 NW 941.

28. Enjoined from using cess-pool for new apartment. Hirsh v. Valloft, 121 La. 66, 46 S 103.

29. Rojas v. Seeger [La.] 47 S 532. Where pending negotiations and granting of particular requests thereafter, lessee says nothing about stairway entrance to upper floors and about signs of tenants thereof, it will be presumed that such conditions were regarded as appurtenant to leases of upper floors. Id. Where lessee is sued by a third party claiming a part of or a servitude on the premises leased, lessee may call his lessor in warranty. Id.

30. An agreement by the lessor to supply steam heat requires him to supply such heat as will make the premises reasonably habitable for the purpose for which they were leased. Birtman Co. v. Thompson, 136 Ill. App. 621.

31. Birtman Co. v. Thompson, 136 Ill. App. 621.

32. Duty to furnish heat to apartment may be implied from lessor's implied covenant of quiet enjoyment, where means of furnishing heat is exclusively under lessor's con-to a supply of water.[33] A name given to the business of the lessee and not attached to the property may be changed by the lessee.[34]

In the absence of agreed liquidated damages,[35] upon a breach of a covenant,[36] the covenantee may recover the actual damages sustained.[37] Where the breach of the covenant destroys the lessee's business, he may sue in tort.[38] The duty of a lessor or a lessee to comply with municipal police regulations depends upon the ordinance.[39] Unless restricted by the lease,[40] the tenant may put the property to any lawful[41] use not constituting a nuisance[42] or amounting to waste.[43]

A lessee is entitled to possession according to the terms of the lease,[44] and, where the lessor fails to give possession or to put the premises into a tenantable condition[45]

trol. Jackson v. Paterno, 58 Misc. 201, 108 NYS 1073. While fact that heating apparatus in apartment was under exclusive control of lessor, held not to raise implied covenant on part of lessor to heat, although, where apartment is to be used exclusively for dwelling purposes, lessor undertakes to lease premises fit for such purpose and lessee may vacate if insufficiently heated. Jackson v. Paterno, 128 App. Div. 474, 112 NYS 924.

33. Sturm v. Huck [N. J. Law] 71 A 44. Permit to get water from other rooms is a mere revocable license. Id.

34. Name "Hotel Denechaud" held given to business of tenant Denechaud and not attached to building. Sieward v. Denechaud, 120 La. 720, 45 S 561. Nothing in deed to plaintiff's ancestor to show intent to include name as part of property. Id.

35. Deposit of $800 as liquidated damages for failure to comply with covenants of lease for five years at $4,800 per year rent held not unreasonable. Franceschini v. Chaucer, 110 NYS 775.

36. Evidence held to show breach of lessor's covenant to furnish heat. Borchardt v. Parker, 108 NYS 585.

37. Where lessor expressly agrees to furnish heat, lessee may recover damages for refusal or failure to comply. Jackson v. Paterno, 58 Misc. 201, 108 NYS 1073. Where lessor fails to furnish heat as agreed, measure of damages is difference in value of premises if it had been heated as agreed and in its unheated condition. Borchardt v. Parker, 108 NYS 585. Retention of possession does not affect counterclaim for damages for breach of covenant to heat. Id. For breach of the landlord's covenant to heat premises leased for business purposes, the tenant may recover for resulting loss of time of employes and extra wages required to be paid. Birtman Co. v. Thompson, 136 Ill. App. 621.

38. Where lessee rented floor of building with steam power to run its laundry business, and steam is cut off destroying business, lessee may sue in tort for destruction of business, and is not confined to action for breach of covenant. Eagan v. Browne, 112 NYS 689.

39. Municipal ordinance providing that "no person or occupant or other person having control," of any building, shall permit a nuisance, etc., has no application to a lessor under lease containing no covenants as to condition or repairs. People v. Kent, 151 Mich. 134, 14 Det. Leg. N. 904, 114 NW 1012.

40. Where lease restricts use to a "billiard and pool hall," injunction lies to restrain use for moving picture show, though no particular damage would result. Dycus v. Traders' Bank & Trust Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 329. Change of name of business from "Hotel" to "Inn" held not such a change of business as to authorize annullment of lease. Sieward v. Denechaud, 120 La. 720, 45 S 561. Change from "Hotel" to "Inn" held not such a change as to prevent lessee from surrendering in condition in which received. Id. Where sublessee of part of building permitted storeroom to be expensively fitted up for saloon purposes and to run for 11 months without interruption, held estopped to enjoin such use, though she wrote to defendant that such use would not be permitted. Beebe v. Tyre [Wash.] 94 P 940. Cashier of bank held, under charter and by-laws, not to have power to waive restriction as to use. Dycus v. Traders' Bank & Trust Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 329. Stipulation that lessee should not allow the premises or any part thereof to be used for immoral purposes or for sale of intoxicating liquors, and giving lessor right to forfeit lease if so used, held for benefit of lessor alone and nonenforcible by sublessee of part of premises, Beebe v. Tyre [Wash.] 94 P 940.

41. Lessee of building for advertising purposes cannot erect signs to height prohibited by ordinance to injury of lessor (Wineburgh Advertising Co. v. Faust Co., 113 NYS 709), and fact that lessor permitted him to erect same does not bind him to permit further violations (Id.). Where lessor of advertising space wrongfully refused to permit lessee to erect sign for another, allowance of total amount lessee was to receive without deduction for cost of erection is erroneous. Id.

42. Whether operation of stampmill on ground floor of building otherwise used as a hotel was a nuisance held for jury. Ridpath v. Spokane Stamp Works, 48 Wash. 320, 93 P 416. Where operation of stamp mill on first floor of building is a nuisance, in suit by lessee to restrain lessor from removing post upon which stamp strikes and shutting of power, held that he had burden to show that lessor agreed to such use. Spokane Stamp Works v. Ridpath, 48 Wash. 370, 93 P 533.

44. Lease may postpone commencement of term to future day. Johnston v. Corson Gold Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 157 F 145.

45. Where condition remained unchanged and lessee moved in and occupied premises two weeks after commencement of term, held to show that it was not untenantable at beginning of term. Davies v. Hotchkiss, 112 NYS 233.

as agreed, thereby depriving the lessee of possession,[46] the lessee may rescind[47] or recover damages.[48]

After possession has been given, the lessee is entitled to exclusive possession,[49] unless he voluntarily surrenders the same,[50] and one unlawfully[51] disturbing his possession is liable.[52] Injunction will issue to protect such possession where irreparable injury will result.[53] As incidental to the use of the demised premises, the tenant is entitled to the produce thereof,[54] and may remove the same unless otherwise provided.[55]

Right to enter.[See 10 C. L. 578]—While forcible entry and unlawful detainer will not lie to recover initial possession,[56] the lessee may maintain ejectment.[57]

Covenant for quiet enjoyment.[See 10 C. L. 578]—Where lessor does all that he can to abate a nuisance and the lessee thereafter pays rent without objecting, he cannot recover damages for disturbance.[58]

Nature of estate of tenant.[See 10 C. L. 579]—The rights of a tenant of a building in the ground upon which it stands depends upon the extent of his demise.[59]

(§ 5) B. Assignment and subletting.[See 10 C. L. 579]—While a lease or the rents may be assigned by an express agreement,[60] a warranty deed by the lessor operates

46. Failure of lessor to put premises in habitable condition as agreed does not deprive lessee of possession unless he intended to take possession. Davies v. Hotchkiss, 112 NYS 233. Evidence held insufficient to show that lessee intended to take possession at time fixed for commencement of term. Id.

47. Where lessor agreed to have premises ready by June 1st but did not do so, and lessee thereupon agreed to take it, if ready, by the 14th, held no rescission. Davies v. Hotchkiss, 112 NYS 233.

48. Where lessor fails to give possession at time specified, measure of damages is excess of rental value over rent reserved (Bailey v. Krupp, 110 NYS 994), any time between time of executing contract and time of commencement of term (Paris v. Johnston [Ala.] 46 S 642). Where lessee is deprived of possession for two weeks of house leased for summer because of untenantable condition caused by lessor's neglect, measure of damages is proportionate rental. Davies v. Hotchkiss, 112 NYS 233.

49. St. Vincent's Roman Catholic Congregation v. Kingston Coal Co., 221 Pa. 349, 70 A 838. Hence adverse possession does not run against landlord until leasehold has been terminated. Id. Lessor cannot be removed from premises by summary proceedings on ground of forcible entry and detainer, where he has an interest in the business conducted upon the premises and no forcible detention is shown. Davis v. Shapiro, 112 NYS 1105.

50. Evidence held to sustain finding that lessee consented to lessor renting negro house to another. Hurt v. Kirby [Ga. App.] 60 SE 802.

51. Where renewal lease is of very debatable validity, lessor is not liable for damages for disturbance of possession by forcible detainer brought in good faith. Aull v. Bowling Green Opera House Co. [Ky.] 114 SW 284. Lessor procuring wrongful issuing of warrant of restitution is liable for resulting damages. Roettger v. Riefkin [Ky.] 113 SW 88. Where lessor is present when writ of possession is issued at direction of his attorney on judgment in his favor and officer is directed to serve same, he is responsible therefor. Morrison v. Price [Ky.] 112 SW 1090. Where agreed statement of facts recited that "lessors requested" magistrate to issue writ, held sufficient to go to jury as to both lessors. Roettger v. Riefkin [Ky.] 113 SW 88. In action for wrongful dispossession, evidence that plaintiffs had been ejected by other landlords is inadmissible. Id. One attempting to justify disturbance of lessee's possession under writ of possession issued on judgment in favor of lessor must plead writ. Morrison v. Price [Ky.] 112 SW 1090.

52. Where writ of restitution was prematurely issued through mistake only, compensatory damages can be recovered. Injury to lessee's property. Roettger v. Reifkin [Ky.] 113 SW 902.

53. Lessee for saloon purposes by brewing company protected against conspiracy between landlord, sublessee, and another brewing company. Chesapeake Brew. Co. v. Mt. Vernon Brew. Co., 107 Md. 528, 68 A 1046.

54. Lessee is entitled to crops and straw. Munier v. Zachary [Iowa] 114 NW 525.

55. Covenant not to remove straw from premises does not invest lessor with such interest as to enable him to recover as for conversion for removal, but he must sue for breach of covenant (Munier v. Zachary [Iowa] 114 NW 525), and measure of damages is not value of straw as such but as manure (Id.).

56. Taylor v. Orlansky [Miss.] 46 S 50.

57. Such remedy being adequate, he cannot resort to equity to establish title, though he asks for incidental equitable relief such as for injunction for waste, etc. Johnston v. Carson Gold Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 157 F 145.

58. Tenants in building disturbing others. McCullough v. Houar [Iowa] 117 NW 1110.

59. Lease of basement gives no right to ground in case building is burned. MacNair v. Ames [R. I.] 68 A 950.

60. Evidence held for jury whether defendant corporation was not in fact the corporation which as mortgagee and assignee of rents had been given full and complete control of premises. Carlon v. City Sav. Bank [Neb.] 118 NW 334.

as an assignment of the lease[61] and entitles the purchaser to all the rights of a lessor,[62] especially if recognized by the lessee.[63]

Unless restricted by prohibitions in the lease[64] or by statute,[65] a tenant may assign his lease,[66] but he is not thereby released from his covenants[67] unless the landlord accepts the assignee as a substitute tenant.[68] A covenant against subletting and assignment is not broken by a transfer of the leased premises by operation of law, but if the covenant expressly prohibit such a transfer the lease will be forfeited.[69] Whether a partial transaction is an assignment or a sublease depends upon its legal effect rather than its form.[70] Unless the lease is within the statute of frauds, it may be assigned by an act evincing such purpose[71] by the lessee or one having authority to act for him.[72] The assignee is entitled to all the rights of the lessee under the lease[73] but not to concessions granted as a favor,[74] and, on the other hand, so long

61. Purchaser may sue on original lease. Starbuck v. Avery [Mo. App.] 112 SW 33.

62. Ventura Hotel Co. v. Pabst Brew. Co., 33 Ky. L. R. 149, 109 SW 354.

63. Lessee's occupancy with notice of sale amounts to recognition of purchaser as lessor. Starbuck v. Avery [Mo. App.] 112 SW 33.

64. Assignment may be absolutely prohibited. E. H. Powers Shoe Co. v. Odd Fellows Hall Co. [Mo. App.] 113 SW 253. Covenant providing for forfeiture, if lessee's interest be sold under execution or other legal process without written consent of lessor, held not broken by transfer of lessee's interest by operation of law from bankrupt lessee to trustee, this not being by sale. Gazlay v. Williams, 210 U. S. 41, 52 Law. Ed. 950. The lessee's right of assignment may be restricted by agreement that no assignment shall be made without the landlord's consent. In action on contract to recover fixed sum in consideration of which landlord was to consent to assignment, evidence held to show that intent was that no right should accrue unless lessee actually made assignment. O'Brien v. Pabst Brew. Co., 31 App. D. C. 56. Covenant that assignment without consent of lessor shall be void is valid (Behrens v. Cloudy [Wash.] 97 P 450), and assignment is void as to whole lease (Id.). Assignee could not exercise option to purchase contained in lease. Id. Where lessor expressly declares that under no circumstances will she execute or consent to assignment of lease to plaintiff, temporary injunction restraining others from interfering with plaintiff's possession, pending trial, held improper. Miles v. Samuels, 111 NYS 537.

65. At common law and under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 80, § 32, providing that, when the lease is assigned, landlord shall have right to enforce his lien against assignee, etc., leases are assignable. Gillespie v. Fulton Oil & Gas Co., 236 Ill. 188, 86 NE 219.

66. Bank to accomplish voluntary liquidation, "pledged" to another bank its assets, etc., as security for advancements, and agreed to make transfers on request to satisfy recording statutes. Assignee took possession of leased property. Held in effect an assignment of lease. People v. German Bank, 110 NYS 291.

67. Fact that lease was assigned to corporation under provision therein authorizing such assignment does not release lessee, where there was no provision to that effect. Midland Tel. Co. v. National Tel. News Co., 236 Ill. 476, 86 NE 107. Assignment, though with lessor's consent, does not relieve lessee from covenant to pay rent and though lessor after assignment accepts rent from assignee. Manley v. Berman, 111 NYS 711. Where lease was actually transferred during last month of lease, for which rent was not paid, and possession taken by transferee, lessor may look to either for rent. Grauer v. Rudinsky, 111 NYS 530. Where one telegraph company leased its plant to another with privilege of assignment but collected rent only from the lessee, evidence held not to show release of lessee's liability. Chicago & Milwaukee Tel. Co. v. Type Tel. Co., 137 Ill. App. 131.

68. Evidence held to show that tenant parted with all his rights to another who occupied and became tenant of original lessor. Savage v. Cowan [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 319.

69. Lease providing for forfeiture, "if lessee's interest should be sold under execution or other legal process without written consent of lessors," was not broken by sale by lessee's assignee in bankruptcy under order of bankruptcy court. Gazlay v. Williams, 210 U. S. 41, 52 Law. Ed. 950.

70. A "subleasing" is where lessee demises whole or part of leased premises for portion of term. Hudgins v. Bowes [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 178. Instrument in form of sublease of part of premises for full term held assignment (Cameron Tobin Baking Co. v. Tobin, 104 Minn. 332, 116 NW 838), and original lessees cannot maintain forcible entry by unlawful detainer against assignee by virtue of reservation of right of entry for breach of covenant (Id.).

71. Lease for less than year. Grauer v. Rudinsky, 111 NYS 530.

72. Husband living separate from wife and possessing only power of attorney to collect her debts and receive personal property on which she holds liens, etc., held not to have authority to assign lease held by her. Milstein v. Mosher, 110 NYS 568.

73. Marino v. Williams [Nev.] 96 P 1073. Covenants running with the land are available to lessee's assignee. Hollander v. Central Metal & Supply Co. [Md.] 71 A 442. Covenant to convey to lessees, "their heirs and assigns," etc., held to run with the land. Id. One who loans money to another for purpose of erecting a building upon the lot upon the faith of a verbal agreement based upon a prior assignment of a lease combined with an option to purchase has an equity in the property superior to after-acquired deficiency decree in mortgage foreclosure or as he remains in possession[75] he is liable to the lessor for rent.[76] The rights of the assignor depends upon the terms of the assignment.[77]

Subject to the restrictions in the lease,[78] a lessee may sublease,[79] and any restrictions may be waived by the landlord.[80] Landlord's consent to a subletting when required by the lease must be obtained without fraud,[81] but need not be based upon a consideration, especially where the lessee has acted thereon.[82] A subletting does not create any contractual relation between the lessor and the sublessee,[83] nor does it relieve the original lessee from his obligations[84] unless the landlord accepts a substitution.[85] The lessee cannot bind beyond his term,[86] and the sublessee, knowing of the original lease, is charged with knowledge of its terms[87] and takes subject thereto.[88] A tenant cannot voluntarily surrender a right to the prejudice of his subtenant.[89] equity, if any, of volunteer purchaser at void execution sale against debtor though judgment existed prior to advancements. Thalheimer v. Tischler [Fla.] 46 S 514.

74. Where lease calls for specific rental, fact that lessor granted lessee concessions held not to entitle assignee to same. Kean v. Rogers [Iowa] 118 NW 515. Evidence held to show that reduction of rent was a temporary concession and not a modification of lease. Id.

75. Where assignee paid rent for some time, its officers asserted control of premises, and refused to permit lessor to sell except subject to lease, held to warrant finding that assignee was in possession under assignment. Marone v. Hinckel Brew. Co., 110 NYS 601.

76. Marone v. Hinckel Brew. Co., 110 NYS 601. Suing of assignor, original lessee, is not an election so as to preclude suit against assignee since both are liable. People v. German Bank, 110 NYS 291. Lessor cannot, though entitled to rent for entire period without regard to destruction of premises by fire, sue assignee after destruction without showing terms of assignment. Norton v. Hinecker, 137 Iowa, 750, 115 NW 612. See, also, § 4B ante, as to preclusion of assignee to deny landlord's title.

77. Where lessee sold all his right, title and interest in and to lease containing option without reservation of rebate allowed by option, he is not entitled thereto. Pollard v. Sayre [Colo.] 98 P 816.

78. Where lessor orally consented to subletting, fact that, on being informed that sublessee preferred to have his consent in writing, he stated over the telephone that he would come down to the leased store later, held not a revocation of consent. Mattox v. Wescott [Ala.] 47 S 170. Letting of two rooms for light housekeeping to separate family held a subletting within Rev. St. 1895, art. 3250, making such subletting a ground of forfeiture unless lessor's consent thereto is first obtained. Hudgins v. Bowes [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 178. Covenant not to "permit any other person or persons to occupy," etc., held not violated by assigning room to mere lodger. Peaks v. Cobb, 197 Mass. 554, 83 NE 1106. Covenant against subletting is not broken by sale of matured but unharvested crop with right of removal. Kirkpatrick v. Fonner [Neb.] 116 NW 779. One of lessors having consented to subleasing and thus not entitled to recover against lessee in action of unlawful detainer, his colessors cannot do so. Mattox v. Wescott [Ala.] 47 S 170.

79. Mattox v. Wescott [Ala.] 47 S 170.

80. Although lease calls for lessor's written consent, lessor may waive same by giving parol consent. Mattox v. Wescott [Ala.] 47 S 170. Subletting with knowledge and consent of lessor held not a violation of covenant against subletting without consent in writing. Chesapeake Brew. Co. v. Mt. Vernon Brew. Co., 107 Md. 528, 68 A 1046.

81. Fact that lessee when applying for lessor's consent did not disclose names of sublessees or their business held not to show that consent was obtained by unfair means, there being no request for such information. Mattox v. Wescott [Ala.] 47 S 170.

82. Where lessor gave consent to subletting and lessee bound himself to let in reliance thereon, lessor cannot assert invalidity of consent as not supported by a consideration. Mattox v. Wescott [Ala.] 47 S 170.

83. Audubon Hotel Co. v. Braunnig, 120 La. 1089, 46 S 33. Subtenant cannot enforce lessor's covenant to renew. Audubon Hotel Co. v. Braunnig, 120 La. 1089, 46 S 33. Where lessee refuses to renew, subtenant's remedy is for damages against his lessor and he cannot compel lessor to renew. Id.

84. Lessee is liable for rent after expiration of term so long as occupied by his lessees (Erskine v. Russell, 43 Colo. 449, 96 P 249), but where lease is assigned with consent of lessor, his liability ceases with end of term (Id.).

85. Fact that lessor authorized subtenant to make certain repairs and to deduct cost thereof from rent held not to show acceptance of subtenant as lessee. Hooks v. Bailey [Ga. App.] 62 SE 1054. Mere collecting of rent from subtenant does not show election to treat subtenant as original lessee, especially where lessor retained rent notes of original lessee, and surrendered same as subtenant made payments. Id.

86. Sublease does not bind lessor beyond term unless lessee renews under privilege contained in lease. Marino v. Williams [Nev.] 96 P 1073.

87. Brock v. Desmond & Co. [Ala.] 45 S 665.

88. Where original lessee's term is forfeited for nonpayment of rent, subtenant's rights are cut off though he has paid his rent. Brock v. Desmond & Co. [Ala.] 45 S 665. Subtenant has no better standing than original lessee where lease has been forfeited. Park Laundry Co. v. Sassone, 108 NYS 725.

89. Assent to a duly declared forfeiture is not a surrender of a right. Brock v. Desmond & Co. [Ala.] 45 S 665.

(§ 5) C. Repairs and improvements. See 10 C. L. 580—There being no common-law implied covenant on the part of the landlord to repair,[90] he is under no obligation so to do[91] in the absence of statute[92] or an express covenant.[93] An agreement to repair made after the execution of the lease must be supported by a new consideration.[94] The lessor's covenant to repair will not be extended by judicial construction,[95] and the particular repair must come fairly within it.[96] A covenant to repair runs with the land[97] but may be waived.[98] Under an express provision, the lessor may enter upon the premises to make repairs.[99] The lessor must repair portions of the premises remaining under his control,[1] unless exempted by the lease.[2] A lessor failing to perform his covenant to repair is liable for the decreased rental value[3] and for any other proximate damages.[4]

A lessee of a part of a building only[5] need not repair portions not demised.[6]

90. Kirby v. Wylie [Md.] 70 A 213. Mere lease does not impose a duty upon either lessor or lessee to repair (Williams v. Salmond, 79 S. C. 459, 61 SE 79), and, hence, a collateral agreement must be made in respect thereto (Id.). While consideration for lease is usually the rent to be paid, collateral contract may be shown as additional consideration. Id.

91. Morgan v. Sheppard [Ala.] 47 S 147.

92. Under Rev. Civ. Code, art. 2693, lessor must deliver premises in good condition and free from any repairs. Bennett v. Southern Scrap Material Co., 121 La. 204, 46 S 211. Under Laws 1896, p. 589, c. 547, § 197, and express provision of lease giving lessee the right to terminate lease if it should be so injured by fire as to be untenantable, lessee cannot repair himself and counterclaim costs. Moore v. Coughlin, 111 NYS 856. Where pleadings merely raise the issue whether lessor made repairs as agreed, held error to submit issue whether premises were fit for occupancy by human beings as required by statute. Mitchell v. Henderson, 37 Mont. 515, 97 P 942.

93. Glenn v. Hill, 210 Mo. 291, 109 SW 27; Graff v. Lemp Brew. Co., 130 Mo. App. 618, 109 SW 1044. Where lessor agreed to repair if lessee would take a lease which he refused, held that he could not recover for lessor's failure to repair though he moved in. Byrnes v. McNevin, 112 NYS 1064. Express covenant to repair before term made at time of leasing is binding on lessor. Collins v. Fillingham, 129 Mo. App. 340, 108 SW 616. In action for injury, where plaintiff's evidence tends to show express covenant by lessor to repair, case is for jury. Id. The landlord may, by express agreement, fix the amount to be allowed tenant for making repairs. Lease provided that tenant might, with owner's written consent, make repairs and extraordinary improvements for which owner was to deduct not exceeding $1,000 a year from rent. Held that allowance of first month's rent on unauthorized repairs was a waiver of requirement of written consent. Langley v. D'Audigne, 31 App. D. C. 409.

95. Richmond v. Lee, 123 App. Div. 279, 107 NYS 1072.

96. Lessee's covenant to make necessary "repairs" held not to render him liable for collapse of building due to decay of pillars, vices and defects of condition rendering premises unfit for leased purposes not being included in repairs. Bennett v. Southern Scrap Material Co., 121 La. 204, 46 S 211. Covenant that, if the "premises" should be injured by fire or otherwise, landlord would repair, etc., held not to require lessor to repair sewer where it was injured by excavations on adjoining lots where it crossed same. Richmond v. Lee, 123 App. Div. 279, 107 NYS 1072. Covenant by lessor to repair, if premises were injured "by the elements" so as to be uninhabitable, held to include injuries arising from action of elements causing natural decay. Hanchett v. O'Reilly [N. J. Law] 68 A 1066. Covenant to repair or rebuild, if premises are destroyed or rendered untenantable by "the elements or act of God," held not to cover dilapidation caused by gradual decay and frequent alterations by tenant. Kirby v. Wylie [Md.] 70 A 213. Where farm lease required lessor to furnish on notice such materials as he deemed necessary for repairs, and lessee claims credit for materials furnished by him, held a question for jury whether repairs were reasonably necessary. Ashdown v. Ely [Iowa] 117 NW 976.

97. Grantee and assignee of lessor bound. Silberberg v. Trachtenberg, 58 Misc. 536, 109 NYS 814.

98. Words "which is done," following agreement of lessor to repair fence, held to authorize inference that further repairs were waived. Hurt v. Kirby [Ga. App.] 60 SE 802.

1. Goldberg v. Lloyd, 110 NYS 530; Valentine v. Woods, 110 NYS 990.

2. Lease of apartment requiring lessee to take care of apartment and fixtures, and make repairs at own cost, imposed duty on lessee to repair apartment, but lessor cannot create nuisance by failure to repair parts of premises remaining under his control. Goldberg v. Lloyd, 110 NYS 530.

3. Miller v. Sullivan, 77 Kan. 252, 94 P 266. To repair and put in certain furniture. Davies v. Hotchkiss, 112 NYS 233. Court cannot take judicial notice that failure to repair impaired value of premises. Id.

4. See post, subsec. E. Palmer v. Byrd, 131 Ill. App. 495.

5. Lease of "the building known as the Olympic Theater, * * * being the theater property above first story, with staircases leading thereto, * * * and box office on first floor," held as matter of law not lease of whole building. Valentine v. Woods, 110 NYS 990.

6. Tenant leasing building above first story owes no duty to keep roof in repair. Valentine v. Woods, 110 NYS 990.

Where the lease defines the lessee's obligation to repair, his duty is measured thereby,[7] although a lease obligating him to make repairs does not cover defects created by the negligence of the landlord before the commencement of the term.[8] "Reasonable use and wear" [9] are usually excepted from the lessee's obligation, but he has the burden of showing that an unusual damage comes within the exception.[10] While a covenant to surrender in good condition imposes no liability during the term,[11] it is immaterial that the term is terminated by forfeiture.[12] A lessee failing to keep his covenant to repair is liable for the resulting damages,[13] and, where the action is brought after the end of the term, the measure of damages is the cost of putting the premises in the condition required by the covenant [14] and is not affected by the fact that a new tenant makes the repair at his own expense.[15]

Waste.[See 10 C. L. 581]—Without the lessor's consent,[16] the lessee cannot commit waste,[17] and an injunction will issue to prevent threatened [18] waste.[19] A tenant is liable for voluntary waste [20] and impliedly covenants to make such repairs as are necessary to prevent waste.[21]

(§ 5) D. Insurance and taxes.[See 10 C. L. 581]—A tenant of a perpetual leasehold must pay the taxes,[22] and he is liable though the draughtsman drawing a new lease mistakenly omits the provision.[23] In some states the lessee is charged by statute with the payment of taxes,[24] but the obligation is usually controlled by the lease.[25] Where

8. Negligent use of elevator and oral agreement of lessor to pay lessee expense of making such repairs may be shown. Bailey v. Krupp, 110 NYS 994.

9. Damages from ordinary reasonable use and wear has reference to depreciation, while tenant does nothing by affirmative act inconsistent with usual use and does not omit to do acts which it is usual for a tenant to perform. Taylor v. Campbell, 123 App. Div. 698, 108 NYS 399. Damages due to falling of picture of its own weight, in furnished house leased for five months, held in the course of ordinary reasonable use and wear. Id.

10. Clock and glassware broken and furniture greatly damaged at end of five months' term. Taylor v. Campbell, 123 App. Div. 698, 108 NYS 399.

11. Covenant to yield up premises in good repair and to maintain the premises in the condition in which "the same are in at the commencement of the term, or may be put in by the lessor," does not require lessee to repair defect existing at commencement of term during his term. Hill v. Hayes, 199 Mass. 411, 85 NE 434.

12. Livingston v. Robb, 113 NYS 137.

13. In action for breach of tenant's covenant to surrender premises in good condition, brought after removal in summary proceedings, plaintiff may recover as damages rental value and cost of removal of tenant's property, but not counsel fee, marshal's fee and charges for taking out the precept, its service and for docketing summary proceedings. Livingston v. Robb, 113 NYS 137. Where lease provided that one-half of deposit to secure performance should be applied to payment of last month's rent, it could not be applied to repairs. Schwartz v. Ribaudo, 110 NYS 352.

14, 15. Appleton v. Marx, 191 N. Y. 81, 83 NE 563.

16. Evidence held to show lessor's consent to alterations though sufficient to constitute waste. Pfister Co. v. Fitzpatrick Shoe Co., 197 Mass. 277, 83 NE 878.

17. Drilling of holes into brick wall for the insertion of wooden pegs as supporters of signs held waste. Hayman v. Rownd [Neb.] 118 NW 328.

18. Evidence held sufficient to sustain finding that lessee was threatening to drill holes into brick wall to insert wooden peg onto which to hang signs. Hayman v. Rownd [Neb.] 118 NW 328.

19. Hayman v. Rownd [Neb.] 118 NW 328.

20. Removal by stranger of things fixed to freehold, without lessee's knowledge, does not render him liable for voluntary waste. Rimoldi v. Hudson Guild, 110 NYS 881.

21. Unless lessor expressly covenants to make repairs, lessee is under implied covenant to make such repairs as are necessary to prevent waste, and fact that lease specifically requires him to make certain repairs does not affect the duty. Goldberg v. Lloyd, 110 NYS 530.

22. City of Norfolk v. Perry Co., 108 Va. 28, 61 SE 867.

23. Where lease, renewable forever, given by city, provides that lessee shall pay the "public and other taxes," but draughtsman, directed to renew according to its terms, changes wording of the covenant, held that original provision could be enforced where lessee knew that lease was to be renewed on old terms. City of Norfolk v. White, 108 Va. 35, 61 SE 870.

24. Tenant being bound by Code Pub. Gen. Laws 1904, art. 81, § 69, to pay taxes, he cannot omit to do so and purchase tax title as against lessor. Lansburg v. Donaldson [Md.] 71 A 88.

25. Provision in perpetual lease requiring tenant to pay the "public taxes" held to include municipal taxes, though latter were unknown at time of executing lease. City of Norfolk v. Perry Co., 108 Va. 28, 61 SE 867.

tax reimbursements are payable monthly, an eviction relieves the lessee as to future installments.[26]

The duty of the tenant to pay insurance premiums is usually covered by the lease.[27]

(§ 5) E. Injuries from defects and dangerous condition.[See 10 C. L. 582]—Except as to original structural defects,[28] nuisances[29] and known latent defects concealed from the tenant,[30] the latter takes the premises in the condition they are in at the time of leasing[31] and assumes all risks for obvious defects,[32] though it has been said that where the premises are rented in a bad state of repair, the landlord is liable for injuries caused thereby.[33] The landlord, however, must use reasonable care,[34] unless relieved by the lease,[35] to keep in a safe condition,[36] portions of building not demised,[37] but used by the tenants, with his consent,[38] as incident to the premises leased[39] and not merely under a license,[40] and if negligent,[41] he is liable for all in-

Extent of lessee's liability on covenant to pay his pro rata share of water rent must be computed by means at hand, unless he puts in meter. Goerlitz v. Schwartz, 112 NYS 1119. Lessee under lease, binding him to pay a proportionate part of water rents, is not liable after vacating where water is measured by meter, since there could be no charges against him. Corn v. Shapiro, 111 NYS 727.

26. Hall v. Middleby, 197 Mass. 485, 83 NE 1114.

27. Where persons not owners but liable for insurance premiums gave lease in which lessee undertook to bear "any and all increase of insurance on such premises," held to render lessee liable for increased insurance and plate glass insurance, though payable to owners. Frank v. Auerbach, 110 NYS 890. Evidence held to make question for jury whether any particular time was fixed for payment of insurance premiums by lessee. Wright v. Northrup [Iowa] 118 NW 437.

28. Lessor is liable for defect of construction, latent or patent, where he knows thereof or ought to know. Monahan v. National Realty Co. [Ga. App.] 62 SE 127. Construction which is not strong enough to stand strain of ordinary use is defective construction. Id. Evidence of conditions at time of accident held admissible as bearing on question of original defective construction and on question of lessor's knowledge thereof as given by physical conditions. Id.

29. Platform before store provided with steps in front of door only, and not throughout length, held not so unsafe as to be nuisance. Wheeler v. Pullman Palace Car Co., 131 Ill. App. 262.

30. Complaint failing to aver that defects were latent or were not made known held demurrable. Morgan v. Sheppard [Ala.] 47 S 147.

31. Miles v. Janvrin [Mass.] 86 NE 785; Morgan v. Sheppard [Ala.] 47 S 147.

32. "Goose neck" from gutter in eaves discharged water onto steps. Hannaford v. Kinne, 199 Mass. 63, 85 NE 187. Fact that lessor made repairs on steps used in common held not to impose duty to attach conductor to goose neck which discharged water from eaves onto steps. Id. Lessor is not liable to lessee, his servants or guests for open defects existing at time of leasing, though constituting a nuisance. Morgan v. Sheppard [Ala.] 47 S 157.

33. Evidence held not to show that falling of iron shutters by which plaintiff was injured was caused by any defect existing at time premises were demised. Everett v. Foley, 132 Ill. App. 438.

34. Marcheck v. Klute [Mo. App.] 113 SW 654. Liable for defects known or which would have been known by the exercise of reasonable care. Monahan v. National Realty Co. [Ga. App.] 62 SE 127. Stairway and landing affording access to rooms in tenement house. Peters v. Kelly, 113 NYS 357. Lessor must exercise reasonable care to keep halls, porches, etc., reserved for common use of all tenants in a safe condition. Farley v. Byers [Minn.] 118 NW 1023.

35. Stipulation that lessor should not be liable for injuries occasioned "by the elevators, boilers, machinery or any thing appurtenant thereto," held not to exempt from liability for negligence of operator. Cunningham v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 109 NYS 1070.

36. Jackson v. Paterno, 128 App. Div. 474, 112 NYS 924. Where chute was three feet from passageway to rooms in loft and adjacent to wall so that one entering would have to turn sharply along wall after entering door to fall into it, held that chute did not render passageway dangerous. Marcheck v. Klute [Mo. App.] 113 SW 654.

37. Lease of three rooms in tenement house held not a hiring of yard, stairway and landing by which access was had. Peters v. Kelly, 113 NYS 351. Evidence in action by tenant of ground floor for damages caused by stoppage of drain pipe leading from skylight roof placed over part of premises held to show that landlord had control of skylight. Capwell Co. v. Blake [Cal. App.] 98 P 51.

38. Evidence held to sustain finding that lessee was invited by lessor to use private way in leaving leased premises. Nichols v. Jung Shoe Co., 135 Wis. 129, 115 NW 334.

39. Where lessor leased rooms in loft which could be reached only by stairway to loft and then along loft, lease carried right to use stairway and portion of loft necessary to reach rooms (Marcheck v. Klute [Mo. App.] 113 SW 654), and lessor owed duty to keep same in repair (Id.).

40. Where tenant's children are merely licensed to use unleased portions of loft for play, lessor is not bound to keep same safe and is liable only for misfeasance. Marcheck v. Klute [Mo. App.] 113 SW 654.

41. Evidence held insufficient to show that juries proximately resulting therefrom [42] to one rightfully using the premises.[43] In the absence of statute [44] or express agreement, a landlord need not keep common hallways [45] or stairs [46] lighted. The liability for lack of repairs is statutory in some states,[47] but ordinarily rests upon the lessee.[48] While a landlord may covenant to repair,[49] in many states an action ex contractu [50] or in tort [51] for personal injuries cannot be based thereon as being too remote; [52] but in others recovery may be had where personal injury could reasonably be anticipated from a failure to repair.[53] The contract must be made with the lessee.[54] A contract to repair, however, must be distinguished from a covenant to maintain the premises in a safe condition,[55] or to lessor knew of or was in any way responsible for bicycle in hall. Aldrich v. Lane, 110 NYS 897. Placing of common door mat in common hallway before lessor's door held not negligent. McGowan v. Monahan, 199 Mass. 296, 85 NE 105. Where at time of purchasing of premises vendee examined dumb waiter and it appeared all right and was notified that it had just been "overhauled," failure to inspect and discover defect for 2½ days held as matter of law not negligence. Timlan v. Dilworth [N. J. Err. & App.] 71 A 33. Where elevator boy brought elevator level with floor and stepped out to answer inquiries, during which time watchman stepped into elevator and ran it up, leaving door open, and plaintiff walked into shaft, verdict for plaintiff upheld where jury was properly instructed. Jolliffe v. Miller, 111 NYS 406.

42. Evidence held insufficient to warrant finding that deceased tripped on loose zinc on stair-steps. Jones v. Ryan, 109 NYS 156. Evidence held insufficient to show that tin which struck plaintiff came from roof or that defendant, who had agreed to keep roof in repair, was responsible for it. Kooperberg v. Sussman, 110 NYS 319. Finding that defendant placed mat in hallway held authorized from fact that plaintiff spoke of mat as defendant's mat and he did not deny it and that it was in front of his door. McGowan v. Monahan, 199 Mass. 296, 85 NE 105.

43. Evidence held to show that child was not using loft as passageway from leased rooms when he fell through chute but was playing. Marcheck v. Klute [Mo. App.] 113 SW 654. Lessor owes no greater duty to lessee's children than he owes to lessor. Id.

44. Failure to light halls of tenement house in violation of Tenement House Act, Laws 1901, p. 889, c. 334, held evidence of negligence. Lichtman v. Rose, 110 NYS 935. Under Tenement House Act, Laws 1901, p. 908, c. 334, defining tenement house as one occupied by at least three families who have a common right "in the halls, stairways, yards, water closets, etc.," building so divided as to constitute entirely separate residences, with no common hallways, etc., and yard used in common only by consent of lessor, held not a tenement house. Aldrich v. Lane, 110 NYS 897.

45. Duty to keep in condition it was in when leased. McGowan v. Monahan, 199 Mass. 296, 85 NE 105.

46. Injury caused by getting off steps before store on account of insufficient light, not chargeable to landlord. Wheeler v. Pullman Palace Car Co., 131 Ill. App. 262.

47. Under Rev. Code La. art. 2322, providing that owner of building is answerable for damage occasioned by its ruin when caused by neglect to repair, held that lessor was liable to subtenant for injuries caused by giving away of rotten rail to gallery, neither tenant nor subtenant being under obligation to make repairs. Frank v. Suthon, 159 F 174. Tenement House Act, Laws 1901, pp. 913, 1362, c. 334, 335, held only to require lessor to keep ceilings in clean and sanitary condition, and does not impose duty to keep in safe condition. Goetchius v. Gale, 57 Misc. 192, 108 NYS 1079. Description in action against lessor of apartment as "an apartment or tenement house" held insufficient to show that tenement house act is applicable. Id. Lessee of building containing an elevator, or hand hoist, is charged with statutory duty of maintaining same with safety devices required by Gen. St. 1894, § 2250 (Welker v. Anheuser-Busch Brew. Ass'n, 103 Minn. 189, 114 NW 745), and a de facto officer of a corporate lessee cannot recover for injuries due to lack thereof, though he is temporarily engaged in duties not ordinarily incident to his office, he not being a mere employe (Id.).

48. For duty to make repairs, see ante, subsec. C. The occupant and not the owner is responsible for injuries arising from a failure to keep the premises in repair. Where wash room under tenant's exclusive control overflowed and injured plaintiff's telephone cables, tenant was responsible. Chicago Tel. Co. v. Commercial Union Assur. Co., 131 Ill. App. 248.

49. Miles v. Janvrin [Mass.] 86 NE 785. Lease obligating lessor to furnish elevator service is admissible to show lessor's duty to keep same in safe condition and lessee's employe's right to use same. Sciolaro v. Asch, 113 NYS 446.

50. Cuilhe v. Ackerman, 58 Misc. 538, 109 NYS 714.

51. Nagle v. Davies, 113 NYS 834.

52. Graff v. Lemp Brew. Co., 130 Mo. App. 618, 109 SW 1044; Marcheck v. Klute [Mo. App.] 113 SW 654. Unless apartment was under his control, failure of lessor to repair ceiling in violation of his covenant to repair gives no right of action for injuries due to falling of a portion thereof. Goetchius v. Gale, 57 Misc. 192, 108 NYS 1079.

53. Graff v. Lemp Bros. Brew. Co., 130 Mo. App. 618, 109 SW 1044. Where lessor obligated to repair has knowledge of defect which is likely to result in personal injury and fails to repair, he is liable for any injury which may result. Id.; Marcheck v. Klute [Mo. App.] 113 SW 654.

54. Complaint for personal injuries failing to allege that agreement to repair was made with lessee, held demurrable. Morgan v. Sheppard [Ala.] 47 S 147.

55. Where lessor agrees merely to repair, he is not ordinarily liable for personal inprotect against a particular danger.[56] A lessor obligated to repair is not liable for resultant injury unless he had actual or constructive notice of the defect,[57] and the injury is one which could be reasonably anticipated.[58] By express provision written notice of the defect is sometimes required.[59] Where the lessor undertakes to furnish elevator service, he cannot delegate the duty of seeing that the elevator is kept in a safe condition.[60]

Where the landlord undertakes to repair, he must do so in a careful manner,[61] and where the repairs are of a character to cause injuries if negligently done,[62] or unless certain precautionary measures are taken,[63] he is liable though he acts through an independent contractor.

While a tenant cannot ordinarily recover for damages due to the lessor's failure to repair where he could have repaired at small cost,[64] he need not make such repairs while the lessor is making ineffectual attempts to do so.[65] As in all other cases, the party injured must be free from contributory negligence.[66]

To strangers. See 10 C. L. 583—Where lessor lets the premises in a known [67] defective condition amounting to a nuisance,[68] he is liable for resulting injury [69] to one juries, but where he agrees to keep premises in safe condition the rule is otherwise. Miles v. Janvrin [Mass.] 86 NE 785.

56. Where lessor agreed to protect certain dangerous place against children, injury to child resulting from failure is not too remote. Marcheck v. Klute [Mo. App.] 113 SW 654. Where covenant to protect dangerous place is relied on to render lessor liable, covenant and breach thereof must be pleaded. Id.

57. Brooks v. Schlernitzauer, 113 NYS 484. Evidence that there was a heavy fall of snow on Saturday, and on Monday roof leaked and it was found that roof was rusty and had holes in it, held insufficient to show constructive notice in absence of evidence as to length of time it had so existed. Id.

58. Where extraordinary rainfall on roof covered with snow and ice caused water to back up and rise above chimney flashings, held that it could not have been reasonably foreseen. Gutman v. Folsom, 113 NYS 691.

59. Where lease makes lessor liable for injuries caused by lack of repairs only after written notice of need, such notice must be given. Gutman v. Folsom, 113 NYS 691. Lessor's general bookkeeper held to have no authority to waive written notice of lack of repairs. Id.

60. Sciolaro v. Asch, 113 NYS 446.

61. Carlon v. City Sav. Bank [Neb.] 118 NW 334. Liable for negligence in leaving roof in leaky condition. Dalkowitz Bros. v. Schreiner [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 564. Where lessor without consideration undertook to repair furnace and took out old one and failed to replace for unreasonable time, lessee injured by exposure cannot recover on theory of negligent repairs as wrong was mere omission to compute. Glenn v. Hill, 210 Mo. 291, 109 SW 27.

62. Moving house and did not secure steps. Doyle v. Franek [Neb.] 118 NW 468. Where lessor undertakes to put on new roof through independent contractor, he is liable for negligence in leaving in leaky condition. Dalkowitz Bros. v. Schreiner [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 564.

63. Eberson v. Continental Inv. Co., 130 Mo. App. 296, 109 SW 62.

64. Bennett v. Southern Scrap Material Co., 121 La. 204, 46 S 211.

65. Miller v. Sullivan, 77 Kan. 252, 94 P 266. Where lessee gave due notice of defective roof and lessor made ineffectual attempts to repair, held that lessee could recover for damages to goods resulting from such defect. Id.

66. Where lessor is making ineffectual efforts to repair, lessee need not move out to prevent injury to goods. Miller v. Sullivan, 77 Kan. 252, 94 P 266. Mere use of defective premises knowing that lessor has not repaired is not contributory negligence as matter of law unless obviously dangerous. Graff v. Lemp Brew. Co., 130 Mo. App. 618, 109 SW 1044. Negligence of lessee in putting goods into building while roof was being repaired held for jury where contractor told him that they would be protected. Eberson v. Continental Inv. Co., 130 Mo. App. 296, 109 SW 62. Evidence that plaintiff knew that porch was out of repair, unaccompanied by evidence that she knew extent of defects does not affirmatively show negligence in using porch. Collins v. Fillingham, 129 Mo. App. 340, 108 SW 616. Where no one saw accident, evidence held insufficient to warrant finding that deceased who fell down stairs was exercising due care. Jones v. Ryan, 109 NYS 156. Evidence held to sustain finding that lessee was not negligent in falling into basement stairway on dark night in leaving premises by private way. Nichols v. Jung Shoe Co., 135 Wis. 129, 115 NW 334. Negligence in coming down stairway in dark hallway of tenement house having hold of banisters. Lichtman v. Rose, 110 NYS 935.

Contributory negligence must be specifically pleaded. Graff v. Lemp Brew. Co., 130 Mo. App. 618, 109 SW 1044. A tenant knowing of a defect in a board walk and receiving a promise to repair it is not as a matter of law guilty of contributory negligence in subsequently forgetting the defect. Udwin v. Spirkel, 136 Ill. App. 155.

67. Evidence held to authorize finding that lessor knew, or in exercise of due care should have known, of defective condition of coal hole in sidewalk. Hill v. Hayes, 199 Mass. 411, 85 NE 434.

68. One falling into open cellarway in sidewalk cannot recover of lessor on theory of a nuisance without a showing that maintenance of cellarway was in violation of rightfully upon the premises,[70] if such injury could be reasonably anticipated;[71] but in the absence of a covenant to repair,[72] he is not liable for defects arising during the term[73] where the duty of repairing rests upon the tenant,[74] though amounting to a nuisance,[75] unless he undertakes to make repairs[76] and does so negligently.[77] A tenant is only required to exercise reasonable care to prevent injury by articles thrown from the window.[78]

(§ 5) F. Improvements, emblements and fixtures.[See 10 C. L. 583]—The right to improvements is frequently controlled by express provision of the lease.[79] The right some law or ordinance. Donovan v. Gillies Coffee Co., 111 NYS 707.

69. Hill v. Hayes, 199 Mass. 411, 85 NE 434. Evidence of condition of coal hole in sidewalk held to show that it was in a dangerous condition at time of letting. Id. Description of coal hole held admissible as bearing on its condition at time of execution of lease and whether defect continued until time of accident. Id.

70. Where it appears that premises where injury occurred were leased, allegation that plaintiff was "lawfully" upon the premises held not objectionable as not showing that plaintiff was more than a mere licensee to whom defendant owed no duty to keep in safe condition. Stern v. Miller, 111 NYS 659.

71. Lessor of theater building with door opening into space six or seven feet above the ground held not liable to patron induced to walk out of same by exit signs and lights, since door in leased condition was clearly not intended as an exit and injury was due to lessee's negligence. McCain v. Majestic Bldg. Co., 120 La. 306, 45 S 258.

72. Promise to repair during term made without consideration does not render lessor liable. Morgan v. Sheppard [Ala.] 47 S 147.

73. Connors v. Newton [N. J. Law] 71 A 36.

74. Lessor held not liable for defects in grating covering window admitting light to cellar of store where duty of making repairs was expressly imposed on lessee. Gelof v. Morgenroth, 58 Misc. 557, 109 NYS 880. Fell into unguarded cellarway in sidewalk. Donovan v. Gillies Coffee Co., 111 NYS 707.

75. Allowed leader pipe to freeze, causing water to back up and freeze on roof, which fell onto plaintiff. Coman v. Alles, 198 Mass. 99, 83 NE 1097.

76. Evidence of conversation between witness and one to whom rent was paid in regard to another falling into hole prior to accident in question and of his promise to repair held admissible as bearing upon question whether subsequent repairs were by defendant lessor or by third person. Hill v. Hayes, 199 Mass. 411, 85 NE 434. Objection that complaint does not allege that repairs were made during term held not raised by demurrer that complaint does not show any duty owed by lessor to plaintiff to repair, etc., under Code 1896, § 3303, requiring demurrer to distinctly state grounds of objection. Morgan v. Sheppard [Ala.] 47 S 147.

77. Morgan v. Sheppard [Ala.] 47 S 147.

78. Carl v. Young, 103 Me. 100, 68 A 593. Complaint merely alleging injury from spittoon thrown from leased building not averring that it was thrown by tenant or his servants or showing any negligence is insufficient. Id.

79. Provision that lessee should surrender premises "in good order and condition, with all improvements, additions and extensions without any compensation," held not to vest title to improvement, etc., in lessor when made and lessee could remove before end of term. In re Montello Brick Works, 163 F 624. Though lease provided that improvements should remain personalty and subject to removal during last 60 days of term, failure to remove during term changed character. Hughes v. Kershow, 42 Colo. 210, 93 P 1116. "Improvements" as used in provision requiring lessor to pro rata reimburse lessee for improvement if term was terminated before its expiration by lessor to make a sale held to mean changes or betterments in existing buildings as well as new structures. Douglaston Realty Co. v. Hess, 124 App. Div. 508, 108 NYS 1036. Renewal lease, in effect an extension lease, held not to forfeit lessee's rights to certain buildings erected by him, though they were not expressly reserved. Ogden v. Garrison [Neb.] 117 NW 714. Where lessee was entitled to recover value of buildings erected by him on premises which lessor refused to permit him to remove, he is entitled to credit for value of building to lessor and not value of material after torn down and removed. Hegan Mantel Co. v. Alford [Ky.] 114 SW 290. Covenant requiring lessor to pro rata reimburse lessee for improvements upon terminating lease under its terms held to run with land, although word "assigns" was not used, especially where covenants were to be binding on personal representatives. Douglaston Realty Co. v. Hess, 124 App. Div. 508, 108 NYS 1036.

NOTE. Effect of new lease without reserving right to remove fixtures: The prevailing rule is that a new lease, without reserving the right to remove fixtures, is an implied surrender of such rights under the old tenancy (Wadman v. Burke, 147 Cal. 351, 81 P 1012, 1 L. R. A. [N. S.] 1192; Pronguey v. Gurney, 37 U. C. Q. B. 347; Id., 36 U. C. Q. B. 53; Loughran v. Ross, 45 N. Y. 792, 6 Am. Rep. 173; Talbot v. Cruger, 151 N. Burke, 147 Cal. 351, 81 P 1012, 1 L. R. A. [N. S.] 1192), although it would appear that the question is not regarded as settled in England (Ex parte D'Eresby, 44 L. T. N. S. 781, rvg. Ex parte Sheen, 43 L. T. N. S. 638), and the New York courts are not inclined to extend the rule to removable trade fixtures not savoring of realty (Lewis v. Ocean Nav. & Pier Co., 125 N. Y. 341, 26 NE 301; Smusch v. Kohn, 22 Misc. 344, 49 NYS 176; Burnheimer v. Adams, 70 App. Div. 114, 75 NYS 93, afd. in 175 N. Y. 472, 67 NE 1080).

The general doctrine is, however, flatly repudiated in Kerr v. Kingsbury, 39 Mich. 150, 33 Am. Rep. 362, which case is followed by Second Nat. Bank v. Merrill Co., 69 Wis. 501, 34 NW 514, and Wittenmeyer v. Board of Education, 10 Ohio C. C. 119 while in Union Terminal Co. v. Willman & S. F. R. Co., 116 Iowa, 392, 90 NW 92, citing McCarthy v. Trumacher, 108 Iowa, 284, 78 NW 1104, it is said that the doctrine has not yet been adopted in Iowa. The case of Wright v. Macdonnell, 88 Tex. 140, 30 SW 907, shows a decided leaning toward the same opinion, although in the later case of Hertzberg v. Wette, 22 Tex. Civ. App. 320, 54 SW 921, the general rule is followed upon the doctrine of stare decisis. The early New York case of Devin v. Dougherty, 27 How. Pr. [N. Y.] 455, to the same effect, has never been followed in that state and the Ohio decisions are not in harmony upon the rule, see Cook v. Scheid, 6 Ohio Dec. Reprint, 867.

Cases following the general rule frequently turn upon special covenants in the new lease (Thresher v. East London Waterworks Co., 2 Barn. & C. 608; Loughran v. Ross, 45 N. Y. 792, 6 Am. Rep. 173; Jungerman v. Bovee, 19 Cal. 355; Sanitary Dist. v. Cook, 169 Ill. 184, 48 NE 461, 61 Am. St. Rep. 161, 39 L. R. A. 369; Carlin v. Ritter, 68 Md. 478, 13 A 370, 16 A 301, 6 Am. St. Rep. 467; George Bauernschmidt Brew. Co. v. McColgan, 89 Md. 135, 42 A 907), though in Kerr v. Kingsbury, supra, similar covenants were held ineffective to that end. The following cases go to the construction of such special agreements or the intention of the parties as inferred therefrom: Fitsherbert v. Shaw, 1 H. Bl. 258; Heap v. Barton, 16 Jur. 891; Mansfield v. Blackburne, 6 Bing. N. C. 426; Sharp v. Milligan, 23 Beav. 419; Id. 5 Week. Rep. 337; Ex parte Hemenway, 2 Low. Dec. 456, F Cas. No. 6346; Jungerman v. Bovee, 19 Cal. 355; McCarthy v. Trumacher, 108 Iowa, 284, 78 NW 1104; Chaffee v. Fish, 2 Ohio, S. & C. P. Rec. 89; Abell v. Williams, 3 Daly [N. Y.] 17; Livingston v. Sulzer, 19 Hun [N. Y.] 375; Wright v. McDonnell, 88 Tex. 140, 30 SW 907, rvg. 27 SW 1024; Hertzberg v. Witte, 22 Tex. Civ. App. 320, 54 SW 921; Second Nat. Bank v. O. E. Merrill Co., 69 Wis. 501, 34 NW 514.

Where the new agreement does not amount to a new lease but is merely a continuation or renewal of the old tenancy, the cases are uniform in holding that the right of the tenant to remove fixtures survives. Ross v. Campbell, 9 Colo. App. 38, 47 P 465; Royce v. Latshaw, 15 Colo. App. 420, 62 P 627; Baker v. McClurg, 95 Ill. App. 165, afd. in 198 Ill. 28, 92 Am. St. Rep. 261, 59 L. R. A. 131, 64 NE 701; Hedderich v. Smith, 103 Ind. 205, 2 NE 315, 53 Am. Rep. 509; Howe's Cave Ass'n v. Houck, 66 Hun [N. Y.] 205, 49 NYS 5, 21 NYS 40, afd. in 141 N. Y. 606, 36 NE 740; Clarke v. Howland, 85 N. Y. 204; Radey v. McCurdy, 209 Pa. 306, 58 A 558, 103 Am. St. Rep. 1009, 67 L. R. A. 359; Young v. Consolidated Implement Co, 23 Utah, 586, 65 P 720. —Adapted from 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1192.

80. Florala Sawmill Co. v. Parrish [Ala.] 46 S 461. Where lessee plants crop which cannot be harvested within such term, he cannot thereafter harvest same. Bowles v. Driver [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 440.

81. Florala Sawmill Co. v. Parrish [Ala.] 46 S 461.

82. Duncan v. Jouett [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 981.

83. Huggins v. Reynolds [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 116. Where, upon expiration of term, lessee does not act with due diligence but abandons unharvested crop, he cannot sue lessor in conversion for gathering and using same. Id.

84. Where lease authorized lessee to make alterations, provision that "all improvements, betterments, and changes or alterations" shall belong to lessor to end of term held not to include saloon fixtures and appliances put in by a brewery company under contract with lessee. Wright v. La May [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 1020, 118 NW 964. Covenants restricting a tenant's right to remove improvements and repairs should receive a fair and reasonable construction. Covenant that all improvements and alterations in saloon rented should belong to landlord, etc., held not to include easily removable trade fixtures but alterations and improvements provided for in lease. Webber v. Franklin Brew. Co., 123 App. Div. 465, 108 NYS 251.

85. See Fixtures, 11 C. L. 1477. Where award in condemnation was made for present value of fixtures, in division between landlord and tenant of award, held error to estimate value of fixtures as removed at end of term. In re Water Front on North River [N. Y.] 84 NE 1105. Tenant or his mortgagee may remove fixtures placed on premises. Combination gas and electric chandeliers, wooden partitions around a toilet, including lease, become part of the realty,[86] as do articles so annexed as not to be removable without injury to the realty.[87] A tenant may enter upon the premises within a reasonable time after the expiration of his term to remove personal property,[88] but forfeits his right of removal if he fails to exercise it within a reasonable time.[89]

(§ 5) G. Options of purchase or sale.[See 10 C. L. 584]—The option must be definite and certain,[90] but where a part of the leasing transaction [91] it need not be supported by an independent consideration.[92] The relation of landlord and tenant continues until the option is exercised,[93] but thereafter the relation is that of vendor and purchaser.[94] The right must be timely exercised [95] in the prescribed manner [96] and all conditions precedent [97] and subsequent [98] complied with.

mirrors, porcelain urinals, water closet seats and connections, etc., held trade fixtures removable. Excelsior Brew. Co. v. Smith, 110 NYS 8. Permanent fixtures on surrender of a lease revert to the landlord. In re Water Front on North River, 109 NYS 921.

86. Not subject to mechanic's lien under statute. Langley v. D'Audigne, 31 App. D. C. 409. Alterations on building by which doors and frames were removed, openings enlarged, enclosures and doors extended and marble platforms countersunk into water table, not movable or trade fixtures which lessee or tenant could remove. Excelsior Brew. Co. v. Smith, 110 NYS 8. Steam heating plant not removable by tenant nor by his purchaser from trustee in bankruptcy. Jacob v. Kellogg, 56 Misc. 611, 107 NYS 713.

87. Caustic soda factory burned; lead pipes, iron, debris, etc., not removable as personalty. Niagara Falls Hydraulic Power & Mfg. Co. v. Schermerhorn, 111 NYS 576.

88. Turpentine which has dripped from the trees and been caught in boxes held personalty, but not "scrapings" adhering to the trees. Florada Sawmill Co. v. Parrish [Ala.] 46 S 461.

89. Pile v. Holloway, 129 Mo. App. 593, 107 SW 1043.

90. Where time of payment is optional with lessee and the place is fixed by Code Prac. art. 406, option to purchase is not void as incomplete in not fixing time and place of payment. Succession of Witting, 121 La. 501, 46 S 606. Where at time of execution of lease containing option deed was executed and placed in escrow, written instruction issued therewith may be considered as part of same transaction in construing option. Pollard v. Sayre [Colo.] 98 P 816.

91. Lease and option giving lessee right to purchase during term and apply rent to purchase price held part of same transaction though separately executed, and hence no separate consideration was necessary to sustain option. Brink v. Mitchell, 135 Wis. 416, 116 NW 16.

92. Reserved rent held sufficient. Succession of Witting, 121 La. 501, 46 S 606; Feudtner v. Ross [N. J. Eq.] 69 A 190.

93. Luigart v. Lexington Turf Club [Ky.] 113 SW 814.

94. Where lessee elects to purchase and proceeds to have appraisers appointed, he holds as purchaser and not as lessee holding over, and is not liable for rent for reasonable time. Washburn v. White, 197 Mass. 540, 84 NE 106. Summary process, under Rev. Laws, c. 181, will not lie to recover possession. Id. Lessor bound himself to convey to lessee at any time during term upon payment of $1,280, and to surrender the unpaid rent notes. Held where lessee paid said $1,280 on Aug. 30, 1907, and gave notice of his election, he was not liable on rent note maturing on Oct. 1st. Lee v. Cochran [Ala.] 47 S 581.

95. Where lease of sawmill required lessee to saw not less than 500,000 feet during year, and to pay $375 whether lumber was sawed or not, with right to hold for another year on same terms, option to purchase "at any time during sawing of the timber" did not continue after term though lumber was thereafter sawed. Felton v. Chellis [Vt.] 69 A 149. Option to purchase endorsed on lease to be exercised before designated date could not be exercised thereafter, especially where new leases had been executed without option. Feudtner v. Ross [N. J. Eq.] 69 A 190. Where lease provided that it was for a term of five years, 1905 to 1909, inclusive, and gave lessee an option to purchase any time during his "term," term was period of five years between 1905 and 1909, inclusive. Lee v. Cochran [Ala.] 47 S 581. Lessee in possession of premises under lease expiring January 1st, 1903, executed new lease for five years from Oct. 1, 1902, which provided for immediate possession and gave option of purchase which could be exercised at any time during term. Held immaterial where option was exercised in January, 1903, whether lessee went into immediate possession under new lease of term or continued under old until end. Swanston v. Clark, 153 Cal. 300, 95 P 1117.

96. Stipulation to sell for fixed price means cash and not on credit terms. Succession of Witting, 121 La. 501, 46 S 606. Where lease contained option of purchase at $20,000 but instructions directed delivery of deed upon receipt of sum or $2,500 less than stated amount, held option to purchase at $17,500. Pollard v. Sayre [Colo.] 98 P 816.

97. Where option specifies that lessee may exercise it at any time within a year by paying a specified sum, all taxes, etc., held that payment of taxes was not condition precedent, though it provided that, upon payment of price and taxes "to the proper officers," defendant would convey, and lessee could exercise option after defendant had paid same. Brink v. Mitchell, 135 Wis. 416, 116 NW 16.

98. Mere lapse of time, without obtaining an award by referees appointed on lessee electing to purchase, is insufficient to show that lessee has lost right to hold as purchase without payment of rent (Washburn v. White, 197 Mass. 540, 84 NE 106), as is unexplained failure to procure an award (Id.).

(§ 5) H. Actions.[See 10 C. L. 584]

§ 6. Rent and the payment thereof, and actionable use and occupation.[See 10 C. L. 585]—The obligation to pay rent is contractual,[99] and where the lease is under seal, only a party thereto can recover thereon.[1] Where the rent is payable in advance, the lessee may pay the same to his lessor though he sells the premises during the month.[2] The lease controls as to time,[3] amount,[4] and manner [5] of payment and the application thereof.[6] By a new agreement supported by a consideration,[7] the rent may be modified.[8] Where defendant agreed with the lessee to take his place and pay the rent, the landlord may sue him therefor without regard to whether he is an assignee or a subtenant.[9] Where a tenant abandons the premises, it is the duty of the landlord to exercise reasonable diligence [10] to relet, but he is not required to make extensive repairs,[11] or to join other parts of the building to the demised portion [12] to effect a reletting. In actions for rent, the usual rules as to variance,[13] burden of proof,[14] evidence,[15] and conformity of recovery to the pleadings and proof [16] apply.

99. Plaintiff cannot recover where evidence does not show that he owned premises or any contractual relation. Drexler v. Cohen, 108 NYS 679. Where deed to purchaser on foreclosure of mortgage to which proceeding tenant was not a party conveyed subject to leases and tenant never attorned to purchaser, he cannot recover rent. Wacht v. Erskine, 113 NYS 130.

1. Where sealed lease is in name of L as lessor, though followed by word "agent," he alone can sue, it not being shown that lessee knew who true owner was at time of executing. Buge v. Newman, 113 NYS 198.

2. Leopold v. Baum, 110 NYS 1054.

3. Evidence held to show agreement for monthly rent but not in advance. Mitchell v. Henderson, 37 Mont. 515, 97 P 942. Abandonment and offer to surrender does not enable lessor to sue for rent for term where payable monthly. Curtis v. Hammond, 43 Colo. 277, 95 P 921.

4. Where lease reserves $4 per week rent, fact that lessor's agent authorized lessee to pay at the end of the month does not change rate from $4 per week to $16 per month. Ebersole v. Addington [Ala.] 46 S 849.

5. Rent may be payable in labor. Price v. Thompson [Ga. App.] 60 SE 800.

6. Lease provided for application of rent to payment of mortgage on fee. Held that provision was for protection of lessee, and upon sale of lease held in bankruptcy purchaser cannot insist that back rents due be applied to mortgage as against lessor's proven claim. In re Ketterer Mfg. Co., 162 F 583. Lessee may show parol agreement modifying lease so as to make rents applicable to debt due from lessor to lessee. American Exch. Nat. Bank v. Smith, 113 NYS 236.

7. Agreement by lessee after execution of lease and before commencement of term to put premises into such condition as to comply with tenement house requirements is consideration for reduction of rent. Haight v. Cohen, 123 App. Div. 707, 108 NYS 502. Agreement of lessor not to enforce immediate payment of debt of lessor held sufficient consideration for promise of lessor not to enforce immediate payment of rent when due. American Exch. Nat. Bank v. Smith, 113 NYS 236.

8. Notice of increase of rent in monthly tenancy announcing that rent after certain date will be $150 per month instead of $40, "as heretofore paid," held sufficient though rent was $35 per month under prior lease. Berryman v. Gibson [Cal. App.] 95 P 671. An increase in rent forms a new contract when assented to by tenant. Where premises were rented at $30 a month and landlord served notice on subtenant that rent would be increased to $200, in absence of tenant's consent the tenancy under former rental continued. George J. Coake Co. v. Fitzgerald, 131 Ill. App. 133.

9. Foucar v. Holberg, 85 Ark. 59, 107 SW 172.

10. Answer asserting lack of due diligence held denial of element of plaintiff's cause of action and not defense by confession and avoidance. Woodbury v. Sparrell Print, 198 Mass. 1, 84 NE 441. Burden of showing diligence to release rests on plaintiff. Id.

11. While lessor need not make extensive repairs or improvements to enable him to relet, instruction held to properly submit to jury duty to make repairs rendering premises safe. Woodbury v. Sparrell Print, 198 Mass. 1, 84 NE 441.

12. Woodbury v. Sparrell Print, 198 Mass. 1, 84 NE 441. Instructions stating rule but leaving it to jury to say whether applicable held erroneous. Id.

13. Where complaint alleged assignment to defendant, it cannot be shown that assignment was merely as security, that assignor remained in possession for 20 months and then sold business to third party, whom defendant accepted as debtor and agreed to pay rent thereafter. Early v. Koehler & Co., 110 NYS 357.

14. Where in action for rent, taxes, insurance premiums, etc., court instructs that burden is on plaintiff to prove that all moneys were due at time of suit, held error to instruct that extension of time for payment of taxes as claimed by defendant must be shown by preponderance of evidence. Wright v. Northrup [Iowa] 128 NW 437.

15. Rev. St. 1899, § 4137 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 2246), requiring exhibition of deed under which title is claimed, on demand of rent by purchaser, applies to actions for possession and not to actions merely for rent. Starbuck v. Avery [Mo. App.] 112 SW 33. Where

Defenses, set-offs and reductions. See 10 C. L. 586—Payment,[17] rescission for fraud,[18] total failure of consideration,[19] and attornment to one entitled to immediate possession to avoid eviction,[20] are defenses to a suit for rent. The effect of assignment or subletting is treated in another section.[21] An actual eviction [22] or constructive eviction, followed by surrender of possession,[23] unless due to lessee's own default,[24] or a forfeiture,[25] relieves the tenant from future rents. The wrongful act of the landlord does not bar him from recovering rent, unless the tenant by such act has been deprived in whole or in part of the possession, or the premises rendered useless.[26] The issuance of a precept in summary proceedings or a warrant of dispossession is a defense to unaccrued rents [27] unless waived.[28] Where rent is payable monthly in advance, a surrender [29] or forfeiture [30] during the month does not relieve tenant from such month's rent, but the courts are divided as to the effect of an eviction.[31] In the absence of statute [32] or express agreement,[33] a destruction of the building [34] or of the lessee sued on rent notes counterclaimed on theory that he was entitled to recover profits a berry crop would have yielded during designated years had he been permitted to remain in possession, evidence that patch was flooded during one of the years and of actual yield during other is admissible. Lauderdale v. King, 130 Mo. App. 236, 109 SW 852.

16. Where plaintiff, while claiming right to recover $76.17 for June rent and $475 for July, in addition to right to retain deposit, sued for $500, and defendant admitted $76.17 to be due for June and claimed deposit of $475, judgment for plaintiff for $100 held not authorized by any theory. Woodard v. Johnson, 109 NYS 741. Where lessor claimed that lessee was tenant for another year by holding over and lessee asserted a parol agreement permitting her to remain in possession upon paying pro rata for time she was actually in possession, judgment for rent for one month held unsupported where she only remained in possession nine days. Goetschius v. De Barbieri, 110 NYS 1076. In suit for reasonable rental for holding over, it is error to give judgment for amount offered by lessee for renewal where it is in excess of reasonable rental as shown by evidence and amount claimed in petition. Aull v. Bowling Green Opera House Co. [Ky.] 114 SW 284.

17. Evidence of checks held to show payment. Leopold v. Baum, 110 NYS 1054. Evidence held sufficient to sustain finding that rent for month sued for was unpaid. Lewy v. Wolfman, 110 NYS 256.

18. Defense of fraud and rescission cannot be based upon alleged false representations as to sanitary conditions where lessee remained in possession for eight months and bad odors may have been due to his neglect to repair plumbing. La Roche v. Mulhall, 112 NYS 1115.

19. Breach of covenant to improve not a condition precedent to payment of rent only relates to part of consideration, and lessee cannot continue to occupy and refuse to pay rent. White v. Y. M. C. A., 233 Ill. 526, 84 NE 658.

20. Nashua L., H. & P. Co. v. Francestown Soapstone Co., 74 N. H. 511, 69 A 883. Where tenant subleased for period beyond term, testimony of subtenant that after lessee's term he paid rent to owner to avoid eviction held to show attornment. Id.

21. See ante, § 5B.

22. As to what constitutes actual or constructive eviction, see post, § 8. Tenant wholly or partially evicted need not pay rent for time evicted. Bergman v. Papia, 58 Misc. 533, 109 NYS 856. Lessee has burden of showing eviction. Ventura Hotel Co. v. Pabst Brew. Co., 33 Ky. L. R. 149, 109 SW 354. Must show eviction by preponderance of evidence. Hermitage Co. v. Roos, 110 NYS 976.

23. Rea v. Algren, 104 Minn. 316, 116 NW 580. Constructive eviction is no defense to rent suit unless property is surrendered. Mahoney v. Broodway Brew. & Malting Co., 57 Misc. 430, 108 NYS 237.

24. Evicted by building department under order of court for failure to keep in repair. Manley v. Berman, 111 NYS 711.

25. Baxter v. Heimann [Mo. App.] 113 SW 1152.

26. Tenant holding under lease embodying agreement to install system of ventilation refused to pay rent until agreement carried out, but retained possession held liable for rent. White v. Y. M. C. A., 137 Ill. App. 286.

27. Schwartz v. Ribaudo, 110 NYS 352.

28. Effect of Code Civ. Proc. § 2253, under which issuance of warrant of dispossession terminates lease and releases tenant for future rents may be waived. Franceschini v. Chaucer, 110 NYS 775.

29. Manley v. Berman, 111 NYS 711. Where rent is payable monthly in advance and tenant vacated before end of term, no defense that lessor entered during latter part of last month and relet. Kent v. Ward, 111 NYS 743.

30. Under landlord and tenant act (Rev. St. 1899, § 4131 [Ann. St. 1906, p. 2243]), where rent payable monthly in advance is not paid, lessor may forfeit lease and recover possession and may recover rent for full month. Bradley v. Campbell [Mo. App.] 111 SW 597.

31. Cannot recover (Hall v. Middleby, 197 Mass. 485, 83 NE 1114), even up to time of eviction (Chapman-Drake Co. v. Frank Fabian Mfg. Co., 104 Minn. 176, 116 NW 207). Where rent for month is due at time of constructive eviction, lessor may recover same. Schuster v. Arscott, 110 NYS 1107; Cukor v. Wiener, 110 NYS 249.

32. Civ. Code, § 1932, providing that hirer may terminate hiring where greater portion of the "thing hired" is destroyed, does not authorize tenant to recover proportionately rent paid upon destruction of crop of asparbeneficial enjoyment of the premises [35] does not relieve the tenant. Arbitrary refusal of lessor to renew the lease does not authorize lessee to abandon the premises and refuse to pay rent.[36]

The tenant may counterclaim damages arising from landlord's failure to give possession at the date specified,[37] from a breach of his covenants,[38] from his fraud [39] or deceit,[40] or suspension of rent where obligation to pay is absolute.[41]

General rents and perpetual leases. See 8 C. L. 684—An action for the purchase price of ground rents held in effect a bill for specific performance of a contract for the sale of real estate.[42]

Use and occupation. See 10 C. L. 587—Use and occupation will lie only where the relation of landlord and tenant exists,[43] but, ordinarily, one occupying and using [44] the lands of another with his consent but without any express reserve rent [45] may be held on an implied contract.[46]

§ 7. Rental on shares. See 10 C. L. 587—A contract of rental on shares renders the landlord and lessee tenants in common [47] of the entire crop,[48] and the lessee impliedly agus, since crop was not the thing hired. Meek v. Cunha [Cal. App.] 96 P 107. Real Property Law, Laws 1896, p. 589, c. 547, § 197, authorizing tenant to surrender where building is so injured as to become untenantable, is inapplicable to interference with enjoyment by odors from pre-existing restaurant. Kent v. Ward, 111 NYS 743.

33. Provision that if building should be damaged by fire so as to be untenantable "the rent should cease until such time as building shall be put in complete repair," held not to relieve tenant for entire month's rent during month when fire occurred but only for time that premises are actually untenantable. Einstein v. Tutelman, 110 NYS 1025.

34. Sedalia Planing Mill & Lumber Co. v. Swift & Co., 129 Mo. App. 471, 107 SW 1093. Though lessor has insured same for own benefit. Id.

35. Destruction of beneficial enjoyment of premises by an inundation does not affect tenant's liability for rent (Meek v. Cunha [Cal. App.] 96 P 107), nor entitle him to apportionment of rent (Id.).

36. Refusal of landlord to re-rent does not authorize lessee to vacate and refuse to pay rent. Kerwin v. MacMaster, 108 NYS 1016.

37. Bailey v. Krupp, 110 NYS 994.

38. Valentine v. Woods, 110 NYS 990. Lessee damaged by lessor's failure to perform covenant may recoup. White v. Y. M. C. A., 233 Ill. 526, 84 NE 658. Lessee may counterclaim expenditures for repairs which lessor covenanted to make. Silberberg v. Trachtenberg, 58 Misc. 536, 109 NYS 814. Where lessor of business block fails to secure trackage as agreed in consideration of rent, he is liable for damages. Cole v. Brown-Hurley Hardware Co. [Iowa] 117 NW 746.

39. Measure of damages is difference between rental value of premises, subject to conditions of lease if it had been as represented, and value, subject to conditions of lease in actual condition. Scovell v. Pfeffer [Iowa] 117 NW 684. Evidence held sufficient to go to jury on fraudulent representations as to tiling on land. Dougan v. Mitchell [Iowa] 115 NW 492.

40. Damages arising from deceit inducing execution of lease may be counterclaimed, lessee not being compelled to abandon lease and rescind. Myers v. Fear [Okl.] 96 P 642.

41. There being no absolute obligation to pay rent on first of month, occurrence of fire suspending rent does not create a partial defense but should be asserted as a counterclaim. Einstein v. Tutelman, 110 NYS 1025.

42. Slotter v. Patterson, 221 Pa. 68, 70 A 286.

43. Starbuck v. Avery [Mo. App.] 112 SW 33. Complaint alleging wrongful occupation of plaintiff's land for 23 months, that defendants became indebted to plaintiffs, that defendants became indebted for the reasonable value of the use and occupation, held an action for wrongful occupation and not for use and occupation. Leyson v. Davenport [Mont.] 98 P 641.

44. Where at time plaintiff bought premises defendant had some fixtures in building which remained for several months but defendant never disturbed possession of premises, held not to show such use as to render defendant liable. Bonnazza v. Schlitz Brew. Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 846, 118 NW 604.

45. Where lease and evidence leaves it uncertain as to whether premises in question were included in lease, evidence that lessee was placed in possession when lease was executed rebuts presumption that he agreed to pay other rent. Gerhardt v. Boettger [N. J. Err. & App.] 70 A 173.

46. Revisal 1905, § 1986. Sessoms v. Tayloe [N. C.] 62 SE 424. If no lien exists therefore under Revisal 1905, § 1993, on crop, remedy of owner is against personal representative of deceased occupant. Id.

47. Where lessor sells entire crop with lessee's consent, lessee is entitled to an accounting. Rice v. Peters, 113 NYS 40. Tenants in common of crop, and if lessee mortgages his interest mortgagee is only subrogated to lessee's interest and as against lessor must fulfill lessee's contract. Abernethy v. Uhlman [Or.] 93 P 936. Under provisions of Revisal 1905, § 1995, that on a controversy between lessor and lessee over possession of crop, where neither avails himself of remedy by claim and delivery under §§ 1993, 1994, action may be brought in superior court, and equitable action by landlord for recovery of crop and for receiver will lie. Talbot v. Tyson, 147 N. C. 273, 60 SE 1125.

48. Lessor has undivided interest in whole crop and may advance money to protect same covenants to operate and cultivate with due diligence.[40] A reservation of title to the entire crop in the landlord does not prevent him from taking a chattel mortgage on the lessee's share,[50] nor does the taking thereof waive the reservation.[51] Where a mortgagee of lessee's share fails to furnish money necessary to harvest the crop as agreed, the lessor may do so to protect his interest and has prior right of reimbursement,[52] though the lessee actually harvests the crop.[53] The contract controls as to the manner of division.[54]

A tenant under an agreement for a crop rental cannot abandon the premises and recover quantum meruit for the work done,[55] nor can he recover quantum meruit where evicted by the lessor.[56] A contract of rental on shares so partakes of the nature of a contract of hire as to make its principles of damages applicable,[57] and where the lessor evicts the tenant and harvests the crop, the doctrine applicable to conversion of property does not apply.[58]

§ 8. The term, termination of tenancy, renewals, holding over. See 10 C. L. 583—In some states a maximum term is prescribed by statute.[59] The lease controls as to the beginning,[60] duration [61] and end [62] of the term. While a term may be made to and be reimbursed out of proceeds in preference to existing lienors. Abernethy v. Uhlman [Or.] 97 P 540.

49. Mining lease. National Light & Thorium Co. v. Alexander [S. C.] 61 SE 214. Complaint alleging that tenant did not cultivate large part of land and cultivated rest in unhusbandlike manner held too indefinite as to amount of tillable land, amount cultivated and amount not properly cultivated. Kennedy v. McDearmid [Ala.] 47 S 792.

50. Mortgage has effect of contract for a lien. McFadden v. Thorpe Elevator Co. [N. D.] 118 NW 242.

52. Abernethy v. Uhlman [Or.] 93 P 936.

53. Abernethy v. Uhlman [Or.] 93 P 936. Variance: Between allegations lessee delivered crop to lessor as security for advances in harvesting crop, that lessee was unable to procure help to harvest and requested lessor to help, which he did, and evidence that lessor harvested crop. Abernethy v. Uhlman [Or.] 93 P 936.

54. Where evidence of both parties shows that method of dividing crop was orally modified, court may assume such division as the proper one. Cramer v. Nelson, 128 Mo. App. 393, 107 SW 450. Where lessee claimed that corn was to be divided in field by taking alternate sections of 16 rows for respective parties and lessor denied that division was to be made in field, charge that if lessee did not set over to lessor one-half of corn grown on the farm, etc., held not to charge that division was to be made in field. 57. Where lessor evicts lessee, only such sums as tenant may earn by reasonable diligence can be deducted from value of tenant's share of crop. Crews v. Cortez [Tex.] 113 SW 523. Where lessor wrongfully evicts tenant, expense incurred by lessor in maturing and harvesting crop cannot be deducted in ascertaining value of lessee's share (Id.), but such expense may be taken as evidence of what it would have cost tenant to mature and harvest crop where their same methods, etc., were pursued (Id.). Where, in action by tenant for breach of lease on shares, he is charged with what he earned or could have earned elsewhere, total cost of producing crop, including his services, should not be deducted (Somers v. Musolf [Ark.] 109 SW 1173), and, likewise, where contract called for services of his two brothers, he should not be charged with their earnings elsewhere and value thereof in producing crop (Id.). Lessor could not require lessee to keep his brothers in his employ so as to lessen damage to extent of earnings. Id.

59. Under Code 1896, § 1032, providing that no leasehold shall be created for longer than twenty years, provision in lease for twenty years giving lessee rights to continue is void. Tennessee Coal, I. & R. Co. v. Pratt Consol. Coal Co. [Ala.] 47 S 337. Lease for twenty years from and after January 18, 1900, was enclosed in sealed envelope and placed in escrow, the envelope bearing indorsement of lessor directing delivery at his death to lessee, held that indorsement was no part of lease and where delivered in 1906, lease is void under Const. art. 18, § 12, prohibiting lease of agricultural lands for more than 12 years. Waldo v. Jacobs, 152 Mich. 425, 15 Det. Leg. N. 316, 116 NW 371.

60. Lease from quarter to quarter "from and after April 1st, 1902," held to include April 1st, 1902. Budds v. Frey, 104 Minn. 481, 117 NW 158.

61. Lease "for the term of three years, with the privilege of five years for" an annual rental does not give right to five additional years. Glensler v. Nichols, 151 Mich. 425, 15 Det. Leg. N. 13, 115 NW 458. Lease for certain term with provision that breach of any of the covenants shall terminate it and give right of re-entry is a lease for term specified, unless terminated for breach of covenants. Walther v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 414. Tenancy at will may be terminated at any time by notice. Buford v. Wasson [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 275.

62. Lease conveyed premises for three years for manufacture of rosin and turpentine from cutting of boxes, boxing to start during January, held that starting of boxing was not a condition precedent or subsequent, and term expires three years from last day of January whether boxing was started or not. Davis v. Taylor, Lowenstein & Co. [Ala.] 47 S 653.

terminate ipso facto on the happening of a contingency,[68] if such contingency is a condition as distinguished from a limitation, a re-entry or other act of the lessor is necessary.[64] By statute [65] and by agreement,[66] the destruction of the buildings or impairment rendering them untenantable often gives the tenant a right to terminate the tenancy,[67] unless due to his default.[68] The term of a lessee under a tenant by the curtesy is terminated by the death of lessor.[69] Where the lease contemplates that the premises shall be used for a particular purpose and such use becomes unlawful the lease becomes void.[70] The tenant may terminate the lease where the landlord defaults in his agreement in a particular which substantially impairs the tenant's use.[71] Issuing and execution of a warrant of dispossession in summary proceeding terminates the relation,[72] and a reversal of the order does not reinstate the same unless the tenant so elects.[73] An option of cancellation may be given,[74] but all conditions precedent must be first complied with before it can be exercised.[75] Where the Lessee sold business to another but nothing was said about lease, although purchaser used same. Held that lease was terminated and purchaser was tenant at will, and provision in original lease exempting company from liability for fires did not apply. Ft. Worth. etc., R. Co. v. Wooldridge [Tex.] 108 SW 1159. Where lease for five years was for general saloon business and saloon license could be issued only for six months, provision "should said saloon license be not secured on said premises," etc., lessee might terminate lease construed as not limited to initial license. Conservative Realty Co. v. St. Louis Brew. Ass'n [Mo. App.] 113 SW 229. Lease providing that lessor should not be responsible on covenant for quiet enjoyment should possession be taken by public authority and providing that award should be paid to landlord and that tenant should receive only such an award as might be made for his interest. Held that in legal effect parties contemplated that taking under eminent domain should end lease. In re Pier Old No. 11, East River, 124 App. Div. 465, 109 NYS 2. Clause "subject only to sale of property" as used in lease providing that lessee could renew" from one to five terms of two years each, subject only to a sale of said property, held to relate to word "option" and not words "from one to five terms of two years each," so that sale did not terminate lease until end of renewed term. People's Bank & Trust Co. v. Tissier Hardware Co. [Ala.] 45 S 624.

64. Provision in lease that it was "to commence on the 1st day of May, 1907, and to end on the 1st day of May, 1908, at noon," is a limitation and lease terminates of itself (Low v. Thompson, 111 NYS 607, afg. 58 Misc. 541, 109 NYS 750), and is not converted into a condition by covenant to surrender possession at end of term, and a provision that upon default in any covenant, lessor could at his option terminate lease (Low v. Thompson, 11 NYS 607). Provision that filing of any process against tenant "shall cause this lease immediately thereafter to cease and to come to an end," held not self-executing, but enforcible only at lessor's election. Cohen v. Afro-American Realty Co., 58 Misc. 199, 108 NYS 998. Re-entry for tenant's breach of the lease terminates the same. Cohen v. Carpenter. 113 NYS 168.

65. Real Property Law (Laws 1896, p. 589, c. 547), § 197, authorizing lessee to surrender where building is so impaired or destroyed by elements or any other cause as to be untenantable, does not authorize surrender because of noise and vibrations of a neighboring electric light plant with which lessor is not connected. Floyd-Jones v. Schaan, 113 NYS 472, afg. 109 NYS 362.

66. Lease of store room provided that if the "building or premises wherein said demised premises are contained" should be so badly injured that they could not be repaired within 60 days, etc., lease should terminate. Held that if building was so injured that it could not be repaired within 60 days, lease terminated though demised premises were not injured. Levy v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. [C. C. A.] 161 F 283.

67. Where tenant remains in possession after fire, he cannot refuse to pay rent. Feinstein v. Gottfried, 107 NYS 881.

68. Real Property Law, Laws 1896, p. 589, c. 547, § 197, authorizing lessee to surrender lease where building becomes uninhabitable, etc., has no application where lessee owes duty to repair. Goldberg v. Lloyd, 110 NYS 530.

74. Option to cancel lease in event of sale during term may be exercised by lessors by giving proper notice after passing of title to purchaser. Lewis v. Agoure [Cal. App.] 96 P 327. Oral notices of intention to exercise option and conversations in respect thereto held to show no waiver nor laches. Id. Notice construed as one authorizing tenant to continue at increased rental, given under mistaken idea that term had expired and not a notice under provision giving lessor right to cancel on 30 days' notice. Anderson v. Hebbard, 56 Misc. 664, 107 NYS 824.

option to purchase under a lease has been exercised, the relation of landlord and tenant is terminated.[76]

Surrender, abandonment and eviction. See 10 C. L. 589—A surrender may be effected by mutual agreement, express or implied,[77] by substitution of a new lease,[78] or the minate lease upon making a bona fide sale and service of notice, but requiring him to pro rate reimburse tenant for improvements, held not to entitle him to possession until he reimbursed lessee. Douglaston Realty Co. v. Hess, 124 App. Div. 508, 108 NYS 1036.

76. Tenant is entitled to show tender of purchase price under option to purchase, as bearing on character of his possession as against landlord. Stanwood v. Kuhn, 132 Ill. App. 466.

77. Under answer in action for rent alleging that plaintiff's acts compelled defendant to abandon the premises, that they consented to the rescission and abandonment and occupied premises, held sufficient to admit evidence of notice by tenant to terminate lease and acceptance by lessors. Stott v. Chamberlain [S. D.] 114 NW 683.

Surrender: Where trustee in bankruptcy removed lessee's property from premises and delivered key to lessor, who attempted to lease at higher rent and let contract for extensive improvements, held acceptance of surrender, although lessor accepted keys stating that it was only for purpose of renting for bankrupt. In re Schomacker Piano Forte Mfg. Co., 163 F. 413.

No surrender: Surrender of term by act and implication of law will not be implied from dissolution of partnership between tenants and rejected tender of key by unauthorized person. Creachen v. Achenberg [N. J. Law] 70 A 160. Where lessee of space in hotel lobby took down railing separating space on vacating, fact that guests used such space held not to authorize inference of acceptance of surrender. Chittenden v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 688, 117 NW 548. Fact that lessor did not return key which lessee had left at his house, and inspected house when unoccupied to see if plumbing had been affected by weather, and permitted another to do so to determine its fitness for occupation, held not inconsistent with claim that he consider lease in force. Chandler v. Hinds, 135 Wis. 43, 115 NW 339. At lessee's request, lessor procured subtenant and notified lessee that she would rent it and store lessee's furniture in basement. Lessee's wife answered that she would release the lease if lessor would pack and store furniture in certain warehouse, which lessor refused to do, and notified lessee that he would be held liable. Lessee had furniture moved out and left keys with janitor or in hallway. Held not to show surrender. Obendorfer v. Mecham, 110 NYS 340. Acceptance by a landlord of the surrender of leased premises is not shown by testimony that the agent of the landlord called upon the lessee for the keys, saying, "I want to take somebody up there to show them the place," when the only testimony as to anything further said by the agent at that or any other time was that he refused to accept the premises and insisted on holding the lessee for the rent for the remainder of the term of the lease. Becker v. Shoemaker, 7 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 272.

For jury: Whether lessor took possession and occupied premises on their surrender held on conflicting evidence for jury. Stott v. Chamberlain [S. D.] 114 NW 683.

NOTE. Respective rights of parties when tenant abandons leased premises: A lessee cannot exonerate himself from liability under his lease by an abandonment or surrender of the premises. Bonetti v. Treat, 91 Cal. 223, 27 P 612, 14 L. R. A. 151; Lockwood v. Lockwood, 22 Conn. 425; Alschuler v. Schiff, 59 Ill. App. 51; Reynolds v. Swain, 13 La. Ann. 193; Prentiss v. Warne, 10 Mo. 601; Livermore v. Eddy's Admr., 33 Mo. 547; Greene v. Waggoner, 2 Hilt. [N. Y.] 297; Scheelky v. Koch, 119 N. C. 80, 25 SE 713; Barlow v. Wainwright, 22 Vt. 88, 52 Am. Dec. 79. Except where the lessor accepts the surrender. Buckingham Apartment House Co. v. Dafoe, 78 Minn. 268, 80 NW 974; Elliott v. Aiken, 45 N. H. 30; Stotesbury v. Vail, 13 N. J. Eq. 390; Teller v. Boyle, 132 Pa. 56, 18 A 1069. An express agreement to accept the surrender need not be shown, for the assent of the landlord may be implied by operation of law from the manner in which he uses the property after its abandonment by the tenant. Hays v. Goldman, 71 Ark. 251, 72 SW 563; Buckingham Apartment House Co. v. Dafoe, 78 Minn. 268, 80 NW 974; Meeker v. Spalsbury, 66 N. J. Law, 60, 48 A 1026; Miller v. Dennis, 68 N. J. Law, 320, 53 A 394; Stern v. Thayer, 56 Minn. 93, 57 NW 329.

If a landlord, after the abandonment, takes possession without indicating to the tenant an intention to hold him for the rent, or to lease on his account, he thereby, as a general rule accepts the abandonment, and releases the tenant from further obligation. Rice v. Dudley, 65 Ala. 68; Williamson v. Crossett, 62 Ark. 393, 36 SW 27; Williams v. Vanderbilt, 145 Ill. 238, 34 NE 476, 36 Am. St. Rep. 486, 21 L. R. A. 489; Armour Packing Co. v. Des Moines Pork Co., 116 Iowa, 723, 89 NW 196, 93 Am. St. Rep. 270; Kneeland v. Schmidt, 78 Wis. 345, 47 NW 438, 11 L. R. A. 498; Lamson Consol. Store Service Co. v. Bowland, 52 C. C. A. 335, 114 F 639; Watson v. Merrill, 136 F 359, 69 L. R. A. 719. The only liability of the tenant, in such a case, is upon the covenants in the lease, if any, which survive reentry. Vogel v. Piper, 89 NYS 431, 42 Am. Rep. 303. However, the mere fact that the landlord resumes possession, or puts others in possession, temporarily, without rent (Hays v. Goldman, 71 Ark. 251, 72 SW 563; Way v. Myers, 64 Ga. 760; Hardison Whisky Co. v. Lewis, 114 Ga. 602, 40 SE 702; Joslin v. McLean, 99 Mich. 480, 58 NW 467), or advertises the abandoned premises for sale and offers immediate possession to the purchaser, does not show an acceptance of the surrender (Reeves v. McComesky, 168 Pa. 571, 32 A 96).

When a tenant abandons, the landlord may enter to care for the property (Hays v. Goldman, 71 Ark. 251, 72 SW 563; Bowen v. Clarke, 22 Or. 566, 30 P 430, 29 Am. St. Rep. 625), clean the windows (Milling v. Becker, 96 Pa. 182), or to make repairs (Biggs v. Stueler, 93 Md. 100, 48 A 727; Livermore v.

Eddy's Admr., 33 Mo. 547; Buck v. Lewis, 46 Mo. App. 227; Whitman v. Louten, 3 NYS 754; Breuckman v. Twibill, 89 Pa. 58; Texas Loan Agency v. Fleming, 92 Tex. 458, 49 SW 1039, 44 L. R. A. 279), without necessarily thereby accepting the surrender. But if he makes extensive alterations, beyond any necessity for the preservation of the property, such acts will usually be construed as an acceptance of the surrender. Lafferty v. Hawes, 63 Minn. 13, 65 NW 87; Duffy v. Day, 42 Mo. App. 638; Meeker v. Spalsbury [N. Y.] 66 N. J. Law, 60, 48 A 1026; McKellar v. Sigler, 47 How. Pr. 2.

In case a landlord receives the keys and retains them, this is a circumstance which may tend to show an acceptance of the surrender, and with other acts may be conclusive thereof. Ledsinger v. Burke, 113 Ga. 74, 38 SE 313; Hesseltine v. Seacy, 16 Me. 212; Buckingham Apartment House Co. v. Dafoe, 78 Minn. 268, 80 NW 974; Elliott v. Aiken, 45 N. H. 30. However, the fact that the landlord or his agent retains the key when sent or delivered to him by the tenant does not alone show an acceptance of the surrender. Withers v. Larrabee, 48 Me. 570; Biggs v. Stueler, 93 Md. 100, 48 A 727; Scott v. Beecher, 91 Mich. 590, 52 NW 20; Steketee v. Pratt, 122 Mich. 80, 80 NW 989; Lucy v. Wilkins, 33 Minn. 441, 23 NW 861; Blake v. Dick, 15 Mont. 236, 38 P 1072, 48 Am. St. Rep. 671; Landt v. Schneider, 31 Mont. 15, 77 P 307; Ryan v. Jones, 2 Misc. 65, 20 NYS 842; Ladd v. Smith, 6 Or. 316; Bowen v. Clarke, 22 Or. 566, 30 P 430, 29 Am. St. Rep. 625; Milling v. Becker, 96 Pa. 182; Newton v. Speare Laundering Co., 19 R. I. 546, 37 A 11. Where a tenant moves away and sends the keys to the landlord in a letter, his retention of them does not establish an acceptance of the tenant's abandonment (Thomas v. Nelson, 69 N. Y. 118), nor does the mere fact that a landlord picks up the key from his doorstep, where the tenant has thrown it, and keeps it (Diehl v. Lee [Pa.] 9 A 865). Where a lessee undertakes to surrender the premises, but the lessor refuses the key, the fact that he afterwards takes the key from a place where the lessee left it, is, in itself, of no significance. Long v. Stafford, 103 N. Y. 274, 8 NE 522. And if a landlord accepts the key, stating that he received it but not the premises, this will not be deemed an acceptance of the surrender. Townsend v. Albers, 3 E. D. Smith [N. Y.] 560.

When a tenant abandons the demised premises, the landlord is not bound to relet them to others in order to diminish his loss. Schuisler v. Ames, 16 Ala. 73, 50 Am. Dec. 168; Patterson v. Emerich, 21 Ind. App. 614, 52 NE 1012; Merrill v. Willis, 51 Neb. 162, 70 NW 914; Reich v. McCrea, 59 Hun, 625, 13 NYS 650; Clendinning v. Lindner, 9 Misc. 682, 30 NYS 543; Bowen v. Clarke, 22 Or. 566, 30 P 403, 29 Am. St. Rep. 625; Racke v. Anheuser-Busch Brew. Assn., 17 Tex. Civ. App. 167, 42 SW 774.

Nevertheless, it is generally conceded that a landlord may attempt to relet abandoned premises (Gaines v. McAdam, 79 Ill. App. 201; Vincent v. Frelich, 50 La. Ann. 378, 23 S 373, 69 Am. St. Rep. 436; Scott v. Beecher, 91 Mich. 590, 52 NW 20; Joslin v. McLean, 99 Mich. 480, 58 NW 467; Spies v. Voss, 16 Daly, 171, 9 NYS 532; Dorrance v. Bonesteel, 51 App. Div. 129, 64 NYS 307; Lane v. Nelson, 167 Pa. 602, 31 A 864), or actually relet them (Miller v. Benton, 55 Conn. 529, 13 A 678; Brown v. Cairns, 107 Iowa, 727, 77 NW 478; Brown v. Cairns, 63 Kan. 584, 66 P 639; Biggs v. Stueler, 93 Md. 100, 48 A 727; Winant v. Hines, 14 Daly [N. Y.] 187; Rich v. Doyne, 85 Hun, 510, 33 NYS 341), without necessarily accepting the surrender of the tenant. The rule as stated by some authorities is that the landlord may re-enter and relet the premises to others for the benefit or on the account of the tenant, crediting him with the proceeds. Hays v. Goldman, 71 Ark. 251, 72 SW 563; Humiston, Keeling & Co. v. Wheeler, 175 Ill. 514, 51 NE 893; Marshall v. John Grosse Clothing Co., 184 Ill. 421, 56 NE 807, 75 Am. St. Rep. 181; Brown v. Cairns, 107 Iowa, 727, 77 NW 478; Roumage v. Blatrier, 11 Rob. [La.] 101; Stewart v. Sprague, 71 Mich. 50, 38 NW 673; Doolittle v. Selkirk, 7 Misc. 722, 28 NYS 43. Having thus relet the premises, the landlord may recover as damages the difference between the rent received and what he would have received, but no more. Respini v. Porta, 89 Cal. 464, 26 P 967, 23 Am. St. Rep. 488; Minneapolis Baseball Co. v. City Bank, 74 Minn. 98, 76 NW 1024; Alsup v. Banks, 68 Miss. 664, 9 S 895, 24 Am. St. Rep. 294, 13 L. R. A. 598; Whitman v. Louten, 3 NYS 754; Auer v. Penn, 99 Pa. 370, 44 Am. Rep. 114; Dulin v. Knechtel [Tex. Civ. App.] 51 SW 350. Of course if the lessor accepts the surrender, he has no claim for diminished rents thereafter. Everett v. Williamson, 107 N. C. 204, 12 SE 187.

In case the landlord resumes possession and relets, or attempts to relet, on his own account, or under such circumstances that it is fair to assume that he does not intend to look to the tenant for the rent, he thus accepts the surrender and relieves the tenant from his obligation. Hays v. Goldman, 71 Ark. 251, 72 SW 563; Welcome v. Hess, 90 Cal. 507, 27 P 369, 25 Am. St. Rep. 145; In re Mahler, 105 F 428; Ledsinger v. Burke, 113 Ga. 74, 38 SE 313; Palmer v. Myers, 79 Ill. App. 409; Biggs v. Stueler, 93 Md. 100, 48 A 727; Duffy v. Day, 42 Mo. App. 638; Huling v. Roll, 43 Mo. App. 234; Sherman v. Engel, 18 Misc. 484, 41 NYS 959; Barkley v. McCue, 25 Misc. 738, 55 NYS 608; Crane v. Edwards, 80 App. Div. 333, 80 NYS 747; Gutman v. Conway, 45 Misc. 363, 90 NYS 290; Gray v. Kaufman Dairy & Ice Cream Co., 162 N. Y. 388, 56 NE 903, 76 Am. St. Rep. 327, 49 L. R. A. 580; White v. Berry, 24 R. I. 74, 52 A 682; Pelton v. Place, 71 Vt. 430, 46 A 63. Some authorities take the ground that if a lessor relets the abandoned premises without the consent of the lessee, or without an agreement, express or implied, with him, that a reletting may be made, then he will be held to have accepted the surrender and to have released the lessee from further liability. Underhill v. Collins, 132 N. Y. 269, 30 NE 576; Gaffney v. Paul, 29 Misc. 642, 61 NYS 173.

This question is raised in the recent case of Oldewurtle v. Wiesenfeld, 97 Md. 165, 54 A 969, where the court decides that a landlord does not necessarily accept a surrender by re-renting the premises without the assent of the tenant. The following is an extract from the opinion: "The best approved cases hold that, where a tenant repudiates the lease, and abandons the demised premises, and the lessor enters and relets the property, such re-renting does not relieve the tenant from the payment of the rent under the covenants of the lease. Auer v. Penn, 99 Pa. 370, 44 Am. Rep. 114; Meyer v. Smith, 33 Ark. 627; Bloomer v. Merrill, 1 leasing to a third party.[79] An unauthorized acceptance of a surrender may be ratified by the landlord.[80] An unexecuted [81] parol agreement to surrender is within the statute of frauds.[82] Where the premises have been sublet, the subtenant becomes the tenant of the landlord upon a surrender.[83] One asserting a surrender has the burden of proof.[84]

An actual eviction exists where the lessee is physically deprived of the demised premises [85] without right,[86] and a constructive eviction where he is not physically expelled but his beneficial enjoyment is substantially interfered with.[87] A total

Daly [N. Y.] 485; Scott v. Beecher, 91 Mich. 590, 52 NW 20; Rich v. Doyenn, 85 Hun, 510, 33 NYS 341; Alsup v. Banks, 68 Miss. 664, 9 S 895, 24 Am. St. Rep. 294, 13 L. R. A. 598."

"The rule santioned by the decided weight of authority," to quote from the supreme court of Nebraska, "if indeed there can be said to be a diversity of opinion on the subject, is that the landlord may, at his election, relet the premises upon the abandonment thereof by the tenant, in which case the measure of his damage will be the agreed rental, less the amount realized on account of such reletting; or he may permit the premises to remain vacant until the end of the term, and recover his rent in accordance with the terms of the lease." Merrill v. Willis, 51 Neb. 162, 70 NW 914, approved in Brown v. Cairns, 63 Kan. 584, 66 P 639.

When a lessor tells the lessee to quit the premises, and the lessee does quit, and the lessor then takes possession himself, or accepts rent from another, such a change of possession by mutual agreement operates as a surrender of the lease. Boyd v. George 2 Neb. Unoff. 420, 89 NW 271. If a lease authorizes the lessor to re-enter and relet the premises in case they are vacated by the tenant, a surrender by operation of law does not occur when the lessee vacates the premises and the lessor re-enters and relets them. Grommes v. St. Paul Trust Co., 147 Ill. 634, 35 NE 820, 37 Am. St. Rep. 248; Jones v. Rushmore, 67 N. J. Law, 157, 50 A 587.

The mere receipt of rent by a landlord from an under-lessee does not evidence his assent to the abandonment of the demised premises by the original lessee, and is no proof of his acceptance of such under-lessee as a tenant. Decker v. Hartshorn, 60 N. J. Law, 548, 38 A 678. But when a new tenant has, by agreement with the landlord, been substituted and accepted in place of the old tenant, a surrender of the lease by operation of law arises. Bowen v. Haskell, 53 Minn. 480, 55 NW 629.—Adapted from 114 Am. St. Rep. 717.

78. Douglaston Realty Co. v. Hess, 124 App. Div. 508, 108 NYS 1036.

79. Void parol lease to third person held not to work a surrender by operation of law within Laws 1896, p. 592, c. 547, § 207. Rogge v. Levinson, 113 NYS 525.

80. Lessor's silence for two months and attempts to relet, held to show ratification of agency of janitress in accepting surrender. Feust v. Craig, 109 NYS 742.

81. Under Rev. Civ. Code, §§ 1283, 1287, written lease may be terminated by an oral executed agreement. Stott v. Chamberlain [S. D.] 114 NW 683. Payment under parol agreement to surrender upon payment of specified sum is not a partial performance. Longacre v. Longacre [Mo. App.] 111 SW 855.

82. Parol agreement to surrender at future date is within statute. Longacre v. Longacre [Mo. App.] 111 SW 855. Where in response to tenant's written request for release, lessor replied that he was unable to come to terms with the tenant they proposed and would look to them for rent, held no written surrender within Laws 1896, p. 592, c. 547, § 207. Rogge v. Levinson, 113 NYS 525.

83. Marino v. Williams [Nev.] 96 P 1073.

84. Lynch v. Robert P. Murphy Hotel Co., 112 NYS 915.

85. Jackson v. Paterno, 58 Misc. 201, 108 NYS 1073. Where lessor, while lessee is absent, breaks into premises to show same to prospective tenant, and thereafter places new lock on door and keeps key, held an eviction, though lease provided that lessor could enter to show premises. Lester v. Griffin, 57 Misc. 628, 108 NYS 580.

86. Chattel mortgage on goods on premises to secure performance of covenants empowering lessor to take possession to foreclose and to sell at public auction, held not to authorize lessor to take exclusive possession of premises and sell at retail, and such acts constitute eviction. Hall v. Middleby, 197 Mass. 485, 83 NE 1114. Entry to make repairs does not constitute eviction where authorized by lease. Kent v. Ward, 111 NYS 743.

87. Jackson v. Paterno, 58 Misc. 201, 108 NYS 1073; Fox v. Murdock, 58 Misc. 207, 109 NYS 108.

Held eviction: Where roof so leaked as to deprive lessee of beneficial enjoyment. Valentine v. Woods, 110 NYS 990. Letting of other apartments in building for immoral purposes, and failure to remove such disorderly persons. Cushman & Co. v. Thompson, 58 Misc. 539, 109 NYS 757. Where lessor's superintendent listened at switchboard or at telephone in her room when lessee's wire was in use, and made insulting and slanderous remarks to elevator boys concerning lessee, with lessor's knowledge. Fox v. Murdock, 58 Misc. 207, 109 NYS 108.

No eviction: Insulting and slanderous remarks of lessor's servants unknown to lessee. Fox v. Murdock, 58 Misc. 207, 109 NYS 108. Landlord's refusal to assent to reasonable alterations in violation of lease. Whitcomb v. Brant [N. J. Law] 69 A 1086. Fact that tenant in overhead apartment kept dog which barked and howled when left alone, where lessor was not responsible for it or knew of it. McKinny v. Browning, 110 NYS 562. Evidence insufficient to show whether defect in bowl in toilet was due alone to plumbing in lessee's department, or whether unsanitary condition was due to want of repairs in general plumbing. Goldberg v. Lloyd, 110 NYS 530. In absence of fraud or deceit or covenant by lessor to eviction occurs where the tenant is deprived of the entire premises, and a partial where he is evicted from only a part thereof.[88] A breach of the landlord's covenant to heat,[89] to furnish elevator service,[90] or to repair,[91] constitutes constructive eviction where the tenant's beneficial enjoyment of the premises is materially diminished. A failure to repair [92] or to furnish heat or water [93] is not an eviction where the duty so to do does not rest upon the lessor, but upon the tenant.[94] An eviction may be waived,[95] and, where the tenant has been constructively evicted he must promptly abandon the premises.[96] Where a tenant has been evicted, no duty rests upon him to demand restoration.[97] keep premises free, existence of vermin does not constitute eviction. Jacobs v. Morand, 110 NYS 208. Constructive eviction cannot be predicated upon the acts of other tenants where lessor is no way responsible therefore and especially where no complaint has been made to him. French v. Pettingill, 128 Mo. App. 156, 106 SW 575. Where lessor has authority to enter to make repairs and lessee has agreed to leave property in as good condition as reasonable use and wear will permit held that entry by lessor to nail boards over broken windows after subtenant had vacated did not constitute constructive eviction. Mahoney v. Broadway Brew. & Malting Co., 57 Misc. 430, 108 NYS 237. Where lease requires lessor's consent to alterations, refusal to consent to unreasonable alterations does not constitute eviction, especially where not necessary for leased purposes. Whitcomb v. Brant [N. J. Law] 68 A 1102. Failure of lessor to keep gas heater in bath room in repair held not as a matter of law constructive eviction of a tenant of rooms in house. Johnson v. Tucker, 136 Wis. 505, 117 NW 1002. Held proper to submit issue by submitting question "Was defendant evicted from leased premises" instead of submitting question whether gas heater was out of repair. Id. Where there is no interference with the possession, but merely a consent to an underletting given pursuant to a request on the behalf of the tenant, it does not constitute eviction. Cafe Lakota v. Doyle, 140 Ill. App. 448. Unauthorized acts of other tenants and of adjoining owners, without evidence of intent of landlord, to deprive use of premises. John Anisfield Co. v. Covey, 140 Ill. App. 364.

88. Jackson v. Paterno, 58 Misc. 201, 108 NYS 1073. Where lessee of second floor of loft building was deprived of entrance when business required held partial eviction. Lawrence v. Edwin A. Denham Co., 58 Misc. 543, 109 NYS 752. Where premises were partly rendered uninhabitable by stranger, refusal of lessor to allow repairs to be made held partial eviction. Bergman v. Papia, 58 Misc. 533, 109 NYS 856.

89. Furnished inadequate heat. Jackson v. Paterno, 58 Misc. 201, 108 NYS 1073. Where lease contained no express covenant to heat but contained covenant of quiet enjoyment and obligated lessor to repair radiators and steam fittings, held for jury whether lessor impliedly agreed to heat. Graham v. Grape Capsule Co., 113 NYS 103.

90. Held for jury whether lessor agreed to operate elevator day and night and whether it had been stopped for repairs and unreasonable time. Boschardt v. Scott, 110 NYS 243.

91. Viehman v. Boelter [Minn.] 116 NW 1023. Evidence of nonperformance of condition in lease to make certain improvements and keep premises in sanitary condition held insufficient to warrant a cancellation. Merrill v. Hexter [Or.] 94 P 972.

92. Falling of plaster on ceiling in kitchen and loosening in other rooms, held not constructive eviction where lessor did not convenant that premises were fit for occupancy and lessee agreed to repair. Pollak v. Stolzenberg, 110 NYS 224. Evidence that plumbing became defective without proof that it was lessor's duty to repair or that premises were rendered untenantable thereby does not show constructive conviction. Huggins v. Jasper [Mo. App.] 114 SW 545.

93. Evidence not showing lessor's duty to furnish hot water or how long same was shut off held insufficient to show constructive eviction. Cukor v. Wiener, 110 NYS 249.

94. Constructive eviction cannot be predicated upon defective plumbing where lessee agreed to make all repairs. La Roche v. Mulhall, 112 NYS 1115.

95. Remaining in possession until repairs are made waives constructive eviction. Goldberg v. Lloyd, 110 NYS 530. Payment of rent at conclusion of summary dispossession proceedings in which he had been defeated, on trial judge denying stay, held involuntary and not waiver of eviction. Lawrence v. Edwin A. Denham Co., 58 Misc. 543, 109 NYS 752. Though lessor refused to consent to reasonable alterations, tenant cannot remain in possession and refuse to pay rent, his action being for damages, if any. Whitcomb v. Brant [N. J. Law] 68 A 1102. Where lessee remained in possession for six months, he cannot claim constructive eviction on account of odors arising from restaurant underneath apartments. Kent v. Ward, 111 NYS 743. Constructive eviction cannot be predicated on odors or noise arising from restaurant under apartments, where such restaurant was known to exist at time of leasing. Id.

96. Promptitude of lessee's removal upon learning of misconduct of lessor's superintendent held for jury. Fox v. Murdock, 58 Misc. 207, 109 NYS 108. Lessee rented premises knowing that a cafe was being operated in another part thereof, which was used by a club, the members of which used it late at night and were sometimes drunk and boisterous. Lessee, however, was not disturbed but the reputation of the place hurt her vocation as music teacher. Held that, where she remained in possession for several months and had improvements made and made no complaint, she could not claim constructive eviction. French v. Pettingill, 128 Mo. App. 156, 106 SW 575.

97. Lester v. Griffin, 57 Misc. 628, 108 NYS 580.

Forfeitures.[See 10 C. L. 590]—While forfeitures are not favored, they will be enforced according to the terms of the lease [98] unless waived.[99] Nonpayment of rent on the day due is frequently made a ground of forfeiture,[1] but, where the lessor has customarily permitted the lessee to pay at a later date without objection, he cannot declare a forfeiture without giving the lessee notice that rent must be paid when due.[2] A court of equity will not declare the forfeiture of a lease for default in payment of rent where the rent may be recovered by enforcing the lien,[3] and where the covenant to pay goes only to part of the consideration, and a breach of the covenant can be compensated in damages, the defendant cannot rely on the covenant as a condition precedent but must perform the covenant on his part and then rely on a suit for damages for breach by the other.[4] Forfeiture will not be decreed for breach of an independent covenant of the lessee, severable from the leasing.[5] A mere unlawful sale of liquors on the premises is no ground for forfeiture.[6] A forfeiture cannot be asserted by a stranger to the lease.[7] The lessor must act promptly upon learning of facts authorizing forfeiture [8] and must follow the procedure prescribed by the lease.[9] Express provisions as to the rights of the parties upon a forfeiture will be given effect,[10] but ordinarily no recovery can be had for rendering the premises uninhabitable after a forfeiture has been duly declared.[11] Equity will relieve from a forfeiture brought about by mistake or fraud,[12] where no adequate remedy exists at law.[13]

98. Where lease provides that breach of any condition should terminate same and give right of re-entry, subletting without lessor's consent contrary to lease, ipso facto, terminates lease. Walther v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 414. Lessee held not to have forfeited his lease by violating covenant as to selling lessor's beer. Standard Brew. Co. v. Anderson, 121 La. 935, 46 S 926.

99. Acceptance of rent after known forfeiture waives forfeiture. In re Montello Brick Works, 163 F 624. Where notice of forfeiture was duly given and lessee immediately began to look for another building and moved as soon as he found one, mere fact that he did not pay double rent as per lease held not to show waiver of forfeiture or a new releasing, especially where lessee recognized liability for double rent but excused payment until a certain indebtedness against lessor could be adjusted. Baxter v. Heimann [Mo. App.] 113 SW 1152.

1. Tender to lessor who has agreed to sell premises but by stipulation had right to receive rents and profits at time of tender is good and prevents forfeiture. Pheasant v. Hanna, 63 W. Va. 613, 60 SE 618.

2. Standard Brew. Co. v. Anderson, 121 La. 935, 46 S 926.

3. Where payment of rent due was made by lessee, lessor's cestui qui trust could not be heard to object because forfeiture had not been declared. Patterson v. Northern Trust Co., 132 Ill. App. 208.

4. Consideration for tenant's covenant to pay rent were demise of premises and agreement to install ventilating plant. On landlord's failure to install plant, tenant refused to pay rent but retained possession. Held, on his bill for injunction to prevent landlord to distrain for rent, that he had no standing in equity. White v. Y. M. C. A., 137 Ill. App. 286.

5. Covenant forbidding lessees to use or sell any beer not manufactured by a certain company not a condition subsequent. Fortune Bros. Brew. Co. v. Shields, 137 Ill. App. 77.

6. Commonwealth v. Morris, 33 Ky. L. R. 987, 112 SW 580.

7. One in adverse possession. St. Vincent's Roman Catholic Congregation of Plymouth v. Kingston Coal Co., 221 Pa. 349, 70 A 838.

8. Cannot declare forfeiture for assignment of lease without consent, where assignee is led to believe that consent will be given and is permitted to make valuable improvements. Powers Shoe Co. v. Odd Fellows Hall Co. [Mo. App.] 113 SW 253.

9. Where lease provided that forfeiture should be made by notice in writing, such notice was sufficient without entry. Baxter v. Heimann [Mo. App.] 113 SW 1152.

10. Where lease provided that no action of trespass or the like should be brought in case lessor forcibly dispossessed lessee under terms of lease, lessee is estopped from claiming damages from shutting off heat after he had terminated lease. Howe v. Frith [Colo.] 95 P 603.

11. No recovery can be had for shutting off of heat after default of rent and notice to vacate. Howe v. Frith [Colo.] 95 P 603. Fact that lessor is prevented by injunction from recovering possession after forfeiture does not affect rule that after forfeiture no damages can be recovered for rendering premises uninhabitable or express waiver of any right of action for such trespass. Id.

12. Powers Shoe Co. v. Odd Fellows Hall Co. [Mo. App.] 113 SW 253. Where at time application for assent to assignment was made lessor had determined not to give same but opened up negotiations and led assignee to make valuable improvements, etc., held that forfeiture was fraudulent and equity would grant relief. Id. Where complaint in petition to enjoin forfeiture admits facts which authorized forfeiture but assails validity of declaration of forfeiture on ground that lessee was led into doing the forfeiting acts by lessor's fraud, it is sufficient without allegation that term was in fact forfeited. Id.

13. Where lessor was not only estopped to declare forfeiture because of his fraud but lessee was entitled to have term reinstated,

Notice to vacate and demand of possession.[See 10 C. L. 581]—While no notice is necessary to terminate a tenancy for a fixed term,[14] it is usually required where the term is of indefinite duration,[15] or a periodic tenancy,[16] though lessee may by terms of a lease waive all rights to notice of lessors election to declare a lease at an end.[17] It must be given by the lessor or by some one on his behalf,[18] must be of the statutory length,[19] must require surrender at the end of a rent paying period,[20] and must be served in the prescribed manner.[21] A notice is waived by the giving of another notice fixing a later date,[22] or by accepting rent for a period beyond the date of surrender.[23] Where the tenant claims under a lease which the landlord contends to be void, no notice is necessary.[24]

Renewal under express agreement.[See 10 C. L. 582]—Option to renew is frequently given to the lessee,[25] and such privilege runs with the land.[26] A covenant for renewal not binding on the heirs of the parties is not void as creating a perpetuity.[27] A covenant authorizing a renewal under the same terms renews all the covenants when exercised [28] except the covenant of renewal,[29] which is not renewed unless such clearly appears to have been the intention of the parties.[30] Where the right is contingent, such contingency must have happened.[31] The option must be exercised in lessee's remedy of pleading estopped in lessor's suit to recover possession is not adequate. Powers Shoe Co. v. Odd Fellows Hall Co. [Mo. App.] 113 SW 253.

14. Agreement by tenant at will to surrender at future date does not create a new term lease. Longacre v. Longacre [Mo. App.] 111 SW 855.

15. Where tenant occupied premises under agreement that he could remain for one month or until tenement house department served notice requiring his removal, held tenancy for indefinite term, entitling tenant to a month's notice to quit. Rybicki v. Kalish, 58 Misc. 219, 108 NYS 1001. Tenancy at will can only be terminated by notice to quit. Longacre v. Longacre [Mo. App.] 111 SW 855. Lease to another to commence on July 1st, notice whereof was given to tenant on June 6th, held to render him a tenant by sufferance after July 1st, notwithstanding Rev. Laws, c. 129, § 12. Mentzer v. Hudson Sav. Bank, 197 Mass. 325, 83 NE 1102.

16. Under the Illinois statute, a thirty days' notice is required to terminate a tenancy from month to month. Rev. Stats. ch. 80, §§ 6 and 8. Golden v. Menker, 132 Ill. App. 25.

17. Sherman House Hotel Co. v. Cirkle, 136 Ill. App. 381.

18. Notice required by St. 1898, § 2183, to terminate a tenancy at will or at sufferance need not be given by landlord personally but may be given by another in his behalf. State v. Hilgendorf, 136 Wis. 21, 116 NW 848.

19. Notice of about 10 days held insufficient as to length of time, under Code 1896, § 2127. Speer v. Smoot [Ala.] 47 S 256. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4109 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 2234), tenancy from year to year can only be terminated by 60 days' notice. Womack v. Jenkins, 128 Mo. App. 408, 107 SW 423. Thirty days' notice is necessary to terminate a tenancy from month to month. Schneider & Co. v. Amendola, 113 NYS 517. Five days' notice is necessary to terminate monthly tenancy. Id. Notice to quit on July 1st given on May 9th to tenant at will paying monthly rent held sufficient under Rev. Laws c. 129, § 12, authorizing notice equal to rent paying period. Mentzer v. Hudson Sav. Bank, 197 Mass. 325, 83 NE 1102.

20. Reck v. Caulfield [Ky.] 112 SW 843.

21. Allegation of service of notice on tenant's wife held sufficient under St. 1898, § 2184, authorizing service upon anyone of proper age residing on the premises, since it could be reasonably inferred that she was of proper age. State v. Hilgendorf, 136 Wis. 21, 116 NW 848. Defective service is waived where, in dispossession proceedings, lessee did not except to proof of such service and did not include defect as one of the grounds in motion to dismiss. J. H. Schnieder & Co. v. Amendola, 113 NYS 517.

22. Reck v. Caulfield [Ky.] 112 SW 843.

23. Speer v. Smoot [Ala.] 47 S 256.

24. Waldo v. Jacobs, 152 Mich. 425, 15 Det. Leg. N. 316, 116 NW 371.

25. Marino v. Williams [Nev.] 96 P 1073.

26. Leominster Gaslight Co. v. Hillery, 197 Mass. 267, 83 NE 870. Where lessor joined in lease to subtenant with privilege of renewal, subtenant may enforce renewal against lessor and his successor in interest. Marino v. Williams [Nev.] 96 P 1073.

27. Hudgins v. Bowes [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 178.

28. Option to purchase. Pflum v. Spencer, 123 App. Div. 742, 108 NYS 344. Where lease provided for renewal on same terms if lessees signified acceptance in writing, etc., lessee held term under original lease and not under the notice. Wiener v. Graff & Co. [Cal. App.] 95 P 167.

29. Drake v. St. Louis Board of Education, 208 Mo. 540, 106 SW 650. Provision that "every renewal lease shall contain all the covenants * * * herein contained," etc., held to provide for one renewal only. Id.

30. Drake v. St. Louis Board of Education, 208 Mo. 540, 106 SW 650. Where lease for year gives right to renew same for like period on same terms and thereafter from year to year, right to renew is not exhausted by one renewal. Van Beuren & New York Bill Post Co. v. Kenney & Sullivan Advertising Co., 113 NYS 450.

31. Provision for renewal so long as premises are used for advertising purposes held to refer only to premises leased for such pur-

the prescribed manner,[32] unless waived,[33] which is usual by notice. Ordinarily, any notice which apprises the landlord of the tenant's intention to renew is sufficient.[34] Where the lease provides for an extension of the term as distinguished from a renewal, at the option of the lessee, a holding over is a sufficient election.[35] Where the lessee has the privilege of renewing at a rental to be fixed by appraisers, joining in the appointment of the appraisers is not an election.[36] Unless the lease so provides, the renewal must be as to the entire premises.[37] Where the lessor wrongfully refuses to renew, the measure of damages is the difference in the rental value and rent reserved for the full term.[38]

Holding over without express agreement. See 10 C. L. 593— While the effect of holding over [39] is fixed by statute in some states,[40] at common law a tenant for a year or a shorter term on holding over could be treated as a trespasser or as a tenant for a similar term [41] at the election of the landlord,[42] unless he has been misled,[43] a new agreement has been made,[44] or unless negotiations are pending,[45] and the lessor has pose and not to entire property. Van Buren & New York Bill Post Co. v. Kenney & Sullivan Advertising Co., 113 NYS 450. Where lessor usually gave notice of rent accruing and customarily accepted rent a few days after due without objection, he could not refuse renewal on ground of nonpayment of rent due at expiration of lease where no notice was given and where lessee promptly paid same on being notified that she had lost right of renewal. Montant v. Moore, 113 NYS 43.

32. Where lease provides for a renewal, a new lease is unnecessary to bind parties. Mattlage v. McGuire, 111 NYS 1083. Where lease gives lessee absolute right of renewal upon notice, notice of itself constitutes a renewal. Chittenden v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 688, 117 NW 548. Lease providing for 60 days' notice of intention to renew and that if lessor or her husband "die during said 60 days before expiration of term" granted, etc., held to contemplate that 60 days' notice of intention to renew should run during last 60 days of term. Pflum v. Spencer, 123 App. Div. 742, 108 NYS 344. Where lease provided for a further lease at increase rental, on notice of tenant that he desired to continue lease, and tenant after giving notice continued in possession, held to bind parties. Mattlage v. McGuire, 111 NYS 1083.

33. Joining by lessor in appointment of appraisers to fix rent two days after expiration of lease held to waive failure of lessee to give notice of election to renew and that request for appraisers was untimely. Marino v. Williams [Nev.] 96 P 1073. Where lessee claims a renewal and lessor accepts rent, held that both are bound. Chittenden v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 688, 117 NW 548.

34. Where lease entitled lessees to renewal provided they "signified" their acceptance in writing on or before certain date, any notice in writing sufficient to enable lessor to hold them is sufficient to renew. Wiener v. Graff & Co. [Cal. App.] 95 P 167. Letter enclosed in lessee firm's business envelope, on firm's paper, reciting description of lease, and stating that H. Groff & Co. as lessee firm "elects to avail itself of renewal privilege," etc., held sufficient though not signed. Id.

35. Quinn v. Valiquette, 80 Vt. 434, 68 A 515.

36. But lessee may decline to renew if rent is deemed too high. Marino v. Williams [Nev.] 96 P 1073.

37. Assignee or subtenant of part cannot renew. Marino v. Williams [Nev.] 96 P 1073.

38. Though property is taken under eminent domain where lessee would be entitled to compensation for eviction. Niederstein v. v. Cusick, 110 NYS 287. But where lessee holds possession by holding over, such time should be deducted (Id.), but not time occupied after condemnation (Id.).

39. Leaving of furniture in apartments upon unauthorized permit of janitor held a holding over. McMann v. Bloomer, 107 NYS 882. Evidence of bales of paper and other boxes and retention of keys for 14 days held to show holding over. Fitzgerald v. St. George, 110 NYS 971. Where lessee of roof for advertising purposes left bulletin board at expiration of term, held a holding over, notwithstanding notice of intention to vacate. United Merchants' Realty & Imp. Co. v. New York Hippodrome, 113 NYS 740. Holding over of subtenant is holding over by tenant. Ventura Hotel Co. v. Pabst Brew. Co., 33 Ky. L. R. 149, 109 SW 354.

40. Though Gen. St. 1902, § 4043, provides that holding over shall not alone be evidence of agreement for further lease, tenancy under such circumstances may be shown by supplemental proof of oral agreement. Griswold v. Branford, 80 Conn. 453, 68 A 987.

41. Gifford v. Bingham [Ind. App.] 84 NE 1099; Leggett v. Louisiana Purchase Exposition Co. [Mo. App.] 114 SW 92. Tenant from year to year holding over becomes a tenant for another year. Griswold v. Branford, 80 Conn. 453, 68 A 987; Kelly v. Armstrong, 139 Ill. App. 467. Liable though he vacated. Harnett v. Korscherak, 110 NYS 986. Tenancies from year to year by implication are results of judicial legislation as a measure of equity. Griswold v. Branford, 80 Conn. 453, 68 A 987.

42. Bringing of action for rent on book account where no rent was sought for occupancy after end of second year held not an election to renew for another year. Felton v. Chellis [Vt.] 69 A 149.

43. To believe that he will not be held for such period. Leggett v. Louisiana Purchase Exposition Co. [Mo. App.] 114 SW 92.

44. Leggett v. Louisiana Purchase Co. [Mo. App.] 114 SW 92.

45. Where lease had been sent to lessee for approval and subsequent letter of lessor consented to a retention of possession until the conclusion thereof.[46] Holding over after the expiration of the tenancy does not vest in the tenant any new right or operate to extend his term.[47] In New York a tenant whose term is to commence immediately upon the termination of an existing lease has the same rights as the landlord.[48] Where a tenant is served with notice that if he holds over an increased rent will be charged and he does not dissent,[49] a holding over renders him liable therefor.[50] In some states a tenant holding over is liable for double damages unless he acts in good faith and under the belief that he is entitled to possession.[51] Service of a demand for possession of the premises is not a condition precedent to recovery of double rent under the Illinois statute, making tenant unlawfully holding over liable for double rent,[52] and an action may be maintained although the landlord has sublet the premises but is prevented from giving possession by reason of the hold-over.[53] A subtenant who holds for a fixed term of one month only acquires, by holding over after the expiration of the term, no greater rights than the lessee had.[54] shows that he was still willing that lessee should accept, held error to submit to jury question whether negotiations were closed by failure to accept within reasonable time. Leggett v. Louisiana Purchase Exposition Co. [Mo. App.] 114 SW 92. Where lease was sent to lessee before expiration of term for approval and he had not responded, held that, if he had decided to reject same, then negotiations were ended, but if at expiration of term he intended to consider it further, then they were not. 48. Under Real Property Law (Rev. St. [9th. Ed.] p. 3573), § 193, providing that grantee of leased property, or of reversion thereof, or of any rent, etc., has same remedies as grantor, lessee whose term commences immediately upon expiration of a current term may elect to hold such prior tenant for new term upon his holding over. United Merchants' Realty & Imp. Co. v. Roth [N. Y.] 86 NE 544.

§ 9. Landlord's remedies for recovery of rent and advancements. See 10 C. L. 594—Where the payment of rent is secured by a bond [55] or by a deposit,[56] the rights of the parties thereunder are controlled by their agreement. Where the lessee is disposing of the crop with the intent of avoiding payment of rent,[57] or to an extent that will impair the landlord's chances of recovery,[58] attachment may issue in some states.

49. Testimony of witness that lessee did not say anything evincing dissent when notified that he would be charged additional rent if he held over held to sustain finding of assent though witness could not tell what he did say. Williams v. Foss-Armstrong Hardware Co., 135 Wis. 280, 115 NW 803.

50. Williams v. Foss-Armstrong Hardware Co., 135 Wis. 280, 115 NW 803.

51. Tenant is not liable for double damages under St. 1903, § 2293, for holding over where he in good faith claimed possession under renewal lease of debatable validity. Aull v. Bowling Green Opera House Co. [Ky.] 114 SW 284. Where term had been terminated by sale of property and notice as provided in lease, and lessee held possession on untenantable ground that there was pending a perfected appeal from order of sale, plaintiff in unlawful detainer is entitled to recover value of use of property under Civ. Code, § 3334, and not merely treble amount of rent. Buhman v. Nickels & Brown Bros. [Cal. App.] 95 P 177. An action under the landlord and tenant act (R. S. c. 80, § 2), making a tenant willfully holding over after his term liable for double rent, is not barred by a prior recovery upon an appeal bond in a forcibe entry and detainer action for the same premises, when the sum claimed as damages under the statute exceeds the sum recovered on the appeal bond. Alexander v. Loeb, 133 Ill. App. 556.

52. R. S. c. 80, § 20. Alexander v. Loeb, 133 Ill. App. 556.

53. Where by terms of lease landlord was to make alterations before giving possession to new tenant, and was prevented from making such alterations by former tenant holding over, he was entitled to possession and double rent as against such former tenant. Alexander v. Loeb, 133 Ill. App. 556.

54. Fitzgerald v. George J. Cooke Co., 133 Ill. App. 479.

55. Bond conditioned on payment "of the rent in the above written agreement," lease for one year "with the privilege to renew" upon same terms and conditions, held not to cover rent, accruing under renewal. Kanouse v. Wise [N. J. Law] 69 A 1017.

56. Although deposit was "to be forfeited upon failure to comply with any of the covenants," where tenant was dispossessed and premises re-rented at loss of $16.66, held that lessee was entitled to balance. Tribble v. Danahar, 108 NYS 657.

57. Evidence of lessee avoiding discussion as to payment of rent and of his selling corn held to authorize issuing of attachment under Ky. St. 1903, § 2302. Clark v. Burton, 32 Ky. L. R. 559, 106 SW 823.

58. Where lessee abandoned premises and lessor attached crop for moneys due and harvested same, it is proper to determine issue of debt by actual realization from crop, but validity of attachment must be determined.

Parties and procedure generally.[See 10 C. L. 594]—The general rules of pleading apply.[50] In suit for rent lessee may set off the damages or additional expenditures incurred by him through failure of lessor to fulfill covenants of lease.[60] Rent is a necessary within a statute authorizing equitable process after judgment for necessaries.[61]

Distress.[See 10 C. L. 594]—Distress proceedings are usually started by affidavit[62] and directed against the person of the lessee,[63] though they are in fact against the movable property upon the premises without regard to ownership.[64] One serving a distress warrant cannot break into the house to make a levy.[65] The failure of the officers to give notice of the distress as required by the Mississippi statute is a ground for quashing the writ.[66] A counter affidavit is equivalent to an admission of ownership.[67] In the absence of notice an unrecorded lease of furniture is void as against a seizure under a distress warrant.[68] Distress warrants are amendable under the same rules as pleadings,[69] and, likewise, the general rules of pleading[70] and evidence[71] apply. Where goods are retaken by replevin, recovery can be had on the replevin bond only when the rent action has terminated in favor of the lessor,[72] in which case judgment may be rendered for full amount where it is admitted that value of goods exceeds rent due.[73] Injunction will issue to enjoin an unlawful distraint only when there is no other adequate remedy.[74]

Liens and securities for the payment of rent and advancements.[See 10 C. L. 595]—By agreement,[75] and by statute in some states, the landlord has a lien upon the crops and the property of the lessee on the premises.[76] In some states the liens are ex-from fair market value of crop at time of attachment without regard to amount realized. Southern Orchard Planting Co. v. Turner [Ark.] 112 SW 956.

59. Under Rules of Court, pp. 44, 45, allowing contracts to be pleaded according to legal effect, recovery may be had under averment of parol lease for a year, though tenancy is one by implication of law arising from act of parties. Griswold v. Branford, 80 Conn. 453, 68 A 987.

67. Price v. Thompson [Ga. App.] 60 SE 800.

68. Simpson v. MacDonald, 79 S. C. 277, 60 SE 674.

69. Distress warrant for rent of a particular tract for year 1907 cannot be amended by substituting rent for different tracts due 1906 (Brinson v. Chandler [Ga. App.] 60 SE 805), although warrant need not specify particular premises out of which the rent arises or time when rent became due (Id.).

70. Replication of third party who has replevied property attached by the landlord for rent, in answer to latter's avowry, should not literally follow form given in Code 1906, § 2863, and deny indebtedness, but should raise issue of ownership. Wright v. Craig [Miss.] 45 S 835.

71. Where answer set up damages by way of reconvention for wrongful levy of distress on mules but showed that levy was proper, evidence of value of services of mules was properly refused. Dunlap v. Thresher [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 568, 107 SW 83.

72. Even if independent action may be maintained upon replevy bond executed as a part of the defense to a distress warrant, under Civ. Code, 1895, § 4819, no recovery can be had unless it appears that rent action has terminated in favor of lessor. Gober v. Barry [Ga. App.] 60 SE 807.

73. Where personal property has been distrained and replevin terminates in favor of landlord, under Replevin Act, § 23, Gen. St. 1895, p. 2774, where plaintiff admits that value of goods distrained exceeded rent due, judgment for whole of arrearages is properly awarded. Whitcomb v. Brant [N. J. Law] 69 A 1086.

74. One whose goods have been distrained is improperly granted relief by injunction where complaint does not show that remedy provided by Civ. Code 1902, § 2435, for testing validity, etc., is not available. Evans v. Mayes [S. C.] 62 SE 207.

75. Mere stipulation that lessee will not sell crops without written consent of lessor does not give lien for rent. Ibbetson v. Pearson [Cal. App.] 94 P 252. Where lessor brings action to have it decreed that he has a lien on goods under his lease, makes an election and cannot thereafter abandon proceedings and treat matter as a pure chattel mortgage. Wilmore v. Mintz, 42 Colo. 328, 95 P 536.

76. Only property of lessee on premises is tended to farm implements.[77] In such cases the use to which articles are put determines the right to a lien[78] for the rent due.[79] The statutory lien, however, extends only to so much as is necessary to secure him for the rent due[80] and is lost by a sale with his consent,[81] as the lien cannot attach to the proceeds,[82] although by agreement an equitable lien may attach.[83] The lien may be waived.[84] Where the lease reserves a lien on the crop with a power of sale,[85] the lessor has the sole title to the crop until the lien is satisfied.[86] While the lien cannot be extended beyond the terms of the statute by stipulation, contingent amounts stipulated to be added as a part of the rent may, if so treated, where in fact a part of the consideration.[87]

While a purchase-price mortgage given at the time of purchase is superior to the landlord's lien,[88] the lien coupled with a power of sale is superior to a purchase without notice,[89] and in Pennsylvania is superior to an execution levy for one year's rent.[90] In Texas, one receiving crops upon which lessor has a lien and appropriating the same to his own use within thirty days after removal from the premises[91] is liable in conversion;[92] but in the absence of statute a landlord, having no right of possession in the tenant's crops in the absence of the levy of a distress warrant, has no right of action against a purchaser thereof in the absence of fraud or a promise of the purchaser to pay the rent out of the crops.[93] Where the landlord accepts a surrender of the premises, one holding a junior lien is entitled to have the value of the use off-set.[94] Where a payment of rent due is made by permission of a court of equity to release the landlord's lien, the tenant is entitled to possession as a matter of right.[95]

While the landlord has no lien for supplies or advancements[96] to assist in pro-subject to lessor's privilege. Luderbach Plumbing Co. v. Its Creditors, 121 La. 371, 46 S 359. Where lessor wrongfully claims and takes possession of personalty, he is guilty of conversion. Plazzek v. Harman [Kan.] 98 P 771.

77. Lahn & Co. v. Carr, 120 La. 797, 45 S 707. Steam engine, used in connection with a pump for irrigating, a thresher engine for threshing, and plows and harrows for cultivating crops, held within the statute. Id.

78. Lahn & Co. v. Carr, 120 La. 797, 45 S 707. No lien on a buggy and horse not used on farm. Field v. Newburn [Miss.] 45 S 573.

79. Lessor cannot retain any portion of crop under alleged lien for rent without proof of amount of rent due. Sessoms v. Tayloe [N. C.] 62 SE 424. Fact that lessor was found not to be entitled to rent for entire term does not affect his right to enforce lien for amount due. Wright v. Northrup [Iowa] 118 NW 437.

91. Books of tenant and third party held to sufficiently show that such third person received crop within 30 days and the quantity thereof. Sexton Rice & Irr. Co. v. Sexton [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 697, 106 SW 728.

92. Sexton Rice & Irr. Co. v. Sexton [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 697, 106 SW 728.

93. Wicks v. Wheeler, 139 Ill. App. 412.

94. Where lessee transferred lease and furniture of hotel with lessor's consent and took back lien on furniture junior to lessor's lien for rent and sublessee surrendered premises to owner during term who occupied same, held that lessee was entitled to have value of use by owner offset against sublessee's liability. Kennedy v. Groves [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 136.

95. Lessor's cestui qui trust, who has made no objection to order allowing lien to be removed by payment, had no standing in equity to object to such payment. Patterson v. Northern Trust Co., 132 Ill. App. 208.

96. Where lessor, having valid lien on mule, cart and remainder of crop for adducing the crop [97] furnished by another, although he assumes liability therefor without the lessee's contract or is a surety therefor,[98] he has a lien where, with the lessee's consent, the goods are furnished primarily upon his credit.[99] A landlord claiming a lien for advancements must show that they were in fact made.[1]

§ 10. Landlord's remedies for recovery of premises. See 10 C. L. 597—The lessor, upon the breach of the lease by the tenant giving him a right of re-entry,[2] may make a peaceable re-entry without process of law.[3] A provision giving the landlord summary powers of re-entry is valid.[4] Equity will not enjoin a dispossession proceedings where an adequate remedy at law exists.[5] Sickness is no defense to dispossession proceedings.[6]

Summary proceedings. See 10 C. L. 597—To authorize summary proceedings,[7] a statutory ground must exist [8] and, where predicated upon a holding over, the conventional relation of landlord and tenant must exist.[9] The statutory demand [10] or notice [11] must be given by the landlord or his authorized agent.[12] The necessary parvancements on crop of 1905, agreed to permit lessee to use same to produce crop of 1906, and the debt to be considered as part of agreed advancements, held advancement within Code, § 1754. Windsor Bargain House v. Watson [N. C.] 62 SE 305.

97. Where advancements are appropriate and necessary to production of crop, they will be presumed to create lien, but where not in themselves so appropriate and necessary, it must affirmatively appear that they were made in aid of crop. Windsor Bargain House v. Watson [N. C.] 62 SE 305.

98. Lessor who is merely surety for the debt incurred for suppliss has no lien as against other creditors. Ranger Mercantile Co. v. Terrett [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 471, 106 SW 1145.

99. Henderson v. Hughes [Ga. App.] 60 SE 813. Evidence held to sustain finding that goods were furnished upon sole liability of lessor and not upon mere suretyship. Id. Where landlord's credit was basis of loan, fact that lessee signed note as principal maker and that agent of lessor procuring same signed in own name as surety instead of his principals is immaterial. Stubbs & Co. v. Waddell [Ga. App.] 61 SE 145. In such case note and testimony of lender and agent are competent and relevant. Id.

1. Sessoms v. Tayloe [N. C.] 62 SE 424.

2. Where tenant from month to month is in default in rent for 15 days, landlord has immediate right of re-entry, under Gen. Laws 1896, c. 269, § 7. Rinfret v. Morrisey [R. I.] 69 A 763.

3. Cohen v. Carpenter, 113 NYS 168. Where landlord accepted lessee's principals as tenants, held sufficient re-entry. Rinfret v. Morrisey [R. I.] 69 A 763. Where landlord entered for breach of lease and subtenant pays rent to him, held that possession of subtenant was his possession. Cohen v. Carpenter, 113 NYS 168.

4. Sherman House Hotel Co. v. Cirkle, 136 Ill. App. 381.

5. Equity will not enjoin action to dispossess for nonpayment of rent on ground that condition precedent to payment had not been performed. White v. Y. M. C. A., 233 Ill. 526, 84 NE 658.

6. Sickness held no defense to summary proceedings for possession. Gifford v. Bingham [Ind. App.] 84 NE 1099.

7. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7106, providing a summary proceeding before justice of the peace, held not to create a new cause of action but a summary relief. Gifford v. Bingham [Ind. App.] 84 NE 1099.

8. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2231, providing various grounds on which summary proceedings may be maintained, held that action does not lie for breach of covenant to repair or to comply with orders of health department. Simonelli v. Di Ericco, 110 NYS 1044. Term "rent" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 2231, does not include costs of repairs which tenant agrees to make, though lease provides that cost thereof may be "added" to the rent. Id.

9. Cullinan v. Goldstein, 113 NYS 21. Mere showing that defendant entersd into possession under contract of purchass which stipulated for rent in case purchaser defaulted, held insufficient to show relation of landlord and tenant (Lewis v. Cooley [S. C.] 62 SE 868), but where on default he surrendered bond for title and gave notes for rent and ceased to pay rent, etc., held to show such relation (Id.). Where lessees dealt with lessor as a partnership and, after change in membership, continued to pay rent to partnership as reconstructed, they could not defend on ground that partnership did not exist. Wallbrecht v. Blush, 43 Colo. 329, 95 P 927.

10. Demand of rent due by agent is sufficient. Moore v. Coughlin, 111 NYS 856. Under express provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 2231, subd. 2, no defense that precise sum due was not demanded, as where there was counterclaim to be offset. Id. Where rent was payable in cotton to be delivered at warehouse designated by lessor, no summary proceeding for nonpayment will lie upon affidavit failing to allege demand for same, or that demand was waived, or that lessor had designated place for delivery. Hicks v. Beacham [Ga.] 62 SE 45. Tender not kept good held not to relieve lessee from duty of making payment upon service of notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161, subd. 2, demanding payment within three days or possession. Occidental Real Estats Co. v. Gantner [Cal. App.] 95 P 1042.

11. Failure to servs three days' notice, as required by Civ. Code 1902, § 2423, is waived by answer and trial on merits which confers jurisdiction of person. Mayes v. Evans [S. C.] 61 SE 216.

12. Notice required by Code Pub. Gen. Laws 1904, art. 53, § 1, may be given by land-ties plaintiff [13] and defendant,[14] and the right of intervention,[15] are largely statutory. Under the New York statute, the petition must describe the petitioner's interest.[16] An allegation as to the amount of the rent reserved cannot be denied on information and belief.[17] The general power of a court to amend its pleadings applies to summary proceedings.[18] While the question of title is not ordinarily involved,[19] the statute usually prescribes the defenses that may be interposed [20] and the right to set up counterclaims.[21] Unless controlled by statute the general rules of practice apply in matters of continuances,[22] opening of default,[23] granting of discontinuances,[24] admission of evidence,[25] and trial procedure.[26] Under the New York statute, the lord's agent. Benton v. Stokes [Md.] 71 A 532. Agent with authority to lease has authority to give notice. Id. Where lease recites that certain persons are lessor's agents and tenant occupies for term under same, he is estopped to deny agency. Id. Where, in petition for possession, lessor alleges that notice has been given, he thereby ratifies act of agent in giving same. Id.

13. Lessee with term commencing at end of existing term cannot maintain action, under Code Civ. Proc. § 2235. Cullinan v. Goldstein, 113 NYS 21.

14. Failure to make subtenants parties is not an objection available to tenants, under Code Civ. Proc. § 2235, requiring petition to name the person against whom proceeding is instituted. Atterbury v. Edwa, 113 NYS 614.

15. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2244, landlord, who has re-entered, may answer in summary proceedings by tenant against subtenant. Cohen v. Carpenter, 113 NYS 168. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2244, any person "claiming possession" may intervene in summary proceedings. Levy v. Winkler, 110 NYS 997. Though assignee of lease sublet for full term, held to have sufficient interest to intervene. Id.

16. Description of interest, as that of "landlord," held insufficient under Code Civ. Proc. § 2235, requiring petition to state petitioner's interest. Cappel v. London, 113 NYS 2. Petition alleging relation of landlord and tenant held sufficient. Slater v. Waterson & Law Amusement Co., 58 Misc. 215, 109 NYS 50. Petition made by secretary of corporation showing that plaintiff corporation had a lease on premises and had subleased to defendant is sufficient. Park Laundry Co. v. Sassone, 108 NYS 725.

17. Allegation that on March 1st, 1908, there was due, under written lease, sum of $2,000 for certain month's rent cannot be denied on information and belief. Browning v. Moses, 111 NYS 651.

18. Comp. Laws, § 10,268, giving court power to amend in form or substance in furtherance of justice, applies to summary proceeding under § 11,165 (Gensler v. Nicholas, 151 Mich. 529, 15 Det. Leg. N. 13, 115 NW 458), and complaint may be amended by correcting description so as to make it applicable (Id.).

19. Questions involved in summary proceeding is whether conventional relation of landlord and tenant exists and who is entitled to possession, and does not involve title. Drake v. Cunningham, 111 NYS 199.

20. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2244, authorizing equitable defenses, lessee may plead right to renewal on proceeding for holding over. Montant v. Moore, 113 NYS 43. Lessee may show parol agreement with lessor, modifying lease and authorizing application of rents to payment of debt of lessors. American Exch. Nat. Bank v. Smith, 113 NYS 236. Under code provision that, in summary proceedings to dispossess, any legal, equitable defense or counterclaim may be asserted, held error to exclude agreement between lessor and lessee whereby goods sold to lessor were charged against rent, in suit by assignee of rents where he had notice. Costello v. Seidenberg, 110 NYS 924. Likewise held error to exclude counterclaim that, by agreement between lessee and assignee, latter agreed to accept claim against lessor, and that he refused to do so. Id.

21. Under express provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 2244, damages resulting from breach of lessor's covenants may be set off as a defense in summary proceeding for nonpayment of rent (Shotland v. Mulligan, 111 NYS 642; American Exch. Nat. Bank v. Smith, 113 NYS 236), but no affirmative recovery can be had (Shotland v. Mulligan, 111 NYS 642). Excess may be recovered in independent action. American Exch. Nat. Bank v. Smith, 113 NYS 236. Breach of parol promise to make certain repairs before commencement of term cannot be counterclaimed, where tenant knew that they had not been made when he moved in. Moore v. Caughlin, 111 NYS 856.

22. Code Civ. Proc. § 2248, providing that justice may in his discretion grant an adjournment to enable application to procure necessary witnesses, does not prevent continuance on other legal grounds. Maher v. Edwards, 110 NYS 1083.

23. Condition attached to order opening default, requiring tenant to give undertaking for $4,000, amount claimed to be due for rent, held abuse of discretion. Lee v. Revolving Airship Tower Co., 111 NYS 28. Where continuance was denied tenant though legal ground therefor was presented, held error to condition opening of default entered upon payment of rent for month in question where lessee had given ample security. Maher v. Edwards, 110 NYS 1083.

24. Held not abuse of discretion to refuse landlord's request to discontinue, where counterclaim has been interposed. American Exch. Nat. Bank v. Smith, 113 NYS 236.

25. Where lessor instituted summary proceedings for nonpayment of rent, validity of assignment of lease to intervener as violative of provision requiring lessor's consent held not in issue. Levy v. Winkler, 110 NYS 997. Where tenant asserts that property is claimed by other heirs, will is admissible to show title in plaintiff upon proof of validity. Drake v. Cunningham, 111 NYS 199. Though lease is void or insufficient, it may be referred to for the terms of the lease, in-final order closes the proceedings [27] and should not be granted in favor of the lessee for mere insufficient notice of lessor to terminate the tenancy.[28] The rights of an assignee not in possession are terminated by summary proceedings against the assignor.[29] In New York, equity may enjoin summary proceedings where it would, under like circumstances, enjoin an action of ejectment.[30] On denial of motion to open default, appeal must be taken from the order denying the motion and not from the order of eviction.[31]

Forcible entry and unlawful detainer. See 10 C. L. 598—All general matters of forcible entry and unlawful detainer are treated in a separate topic,[32] and only those peculiar to the relation of landlord and tenant are considered here. Unlawful detainer is the proper remedy in many states to recover possession of a tenant [33] holding over after the expiration of his term [34] or a forfeiture thereof,[35] and is available to one succeeding to the lessor's interest.[36] Forcible entry and detainer will not lie to recover possession of premises leased with option to purchase, where the opinion has been exercised.[37] It is available though the tenant's possession is partial [38] or constructive.[39] Unless the lease is of a definite duration, two notices are usually necessary, one to terminate the tenancy [40] and the other thereafter demanding possession.[41] Three days' notice to pay is necessary, under the California statute, before unlawful cluding the time when lessor could terminate. Eagle Tube Co. v. Holsten, 110 NYS 242.

26. Summary proceedings held a "cause" within Municipal Court Act (Laws 1902, p. 1494, c. 580), providing that "causes set down for trial must be tried when reached unless legal grounds exist for an adjournment." Maher v. Edwards, 110 NYS 1083.

27. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2249, no judgment is necessary. Steuerwald v. Jackson, 123 App. Div. 569, 108 NYS 41.

28. Where it devolves that lessee is entitled to 30 days' notice instead of 5 days', lessee is entitled merely to a dismissal and not to a final order. Franck v. Smolens, 113 NYS 464.

29. Mahoney v. Hoffman, 58 Misc. 217, 109 NYS 13. Assignment in violation of terms held not to confer any rights where possession was not taken until after term was terminated by warrant in summary proceedings (Id.), and fact that predecessor, who was disturbed, though not a party to the proceedings, secured a favorable order in forcible entry and detainer does not strengthen right where he came into possession independently (Id.).

30. Code Civ. Proc. § 2265. Montant v. Moore, 113 NYS 43. Proceeding to dispossess will be enjoined pending suit by lessee to specifically perform covenant to renew. Id.

31. On denial of motion of subtenant to open default order of eviction in proceedings against tenant and "John Doe, alleged assignee" of leasee, appeal must be taken from order denying motion and not from order of eviction. Park Laundry Co. v. Sassone, 108 NYS 725.

32. See Forcible Entry and Unlawful Detainer, 11 C. L. 1484.

33. To sustain an action for unlawful detainer, proof of express tenancy, or fact showing by implication occupation as tenant, must be made. Richmond v. California Super. Ct. [Cal. App.] 98 P 57. Evidence held to make question for jury whether premises were leased to husband or to wife. Doyle v. Franek [Neb.] 118 NW 468.

34. Under laws of Arkansas in force in Indian Territory, unlawful detainer is proper remedy to recover possession of tenant holding over. Showalter v. Ryles [Okl.] 97 P 569.

35. Rev. St. 1895, art. 2519, making one, holding over "after the termination of the time for which such lands were let to him," guilty of forcible entry and detainer, applies to holding over after forfeited term under lease. Walther v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 414.

36. Showalter v. Ryles [Okl.] 97 P 569.

37. Where lease embodied option to purchase, fact that there was an agreement to surrender possession on expiration of term did not give landlord right to enter, it appearing that tenant had exercised option by part payment on same day that lease was executed. Stanwood v. Kuhn, 132 Ill. App. 466.

38. Under the statute in Illinois, the landlord may sue in forcible entry and unlawful detainer for the entire premises although the defendant be in possession of only a part thereof. Golden v. Menker, 132 Ill. App. 25.

39. Where tenant was not in physical possession but left premises in charge of his brother, he was in constructive possession. Geo. J. Cooke Co. v. Fitzgerald, 131 Ill. App. 133.

40. Notice given before termination of lessee's possessory right, demanding immediate possession, is insufficient as a demand for possession after termination of tenant's possessory rights. Ross v. Gray Eagle Coal Co. [Ala.] 46 S 564. Where demand in writing for possession is not necessary to terminate tenancy, no demand is necessary, under Rev. St. 1899, § 3321 (Ann. St. 1906, 1880). Campbell v. Johnson, 129 Mo. App. 201, 107 SW 1020.

41. Ross v. Gray Eagle Coal Co. [Ala.] 46 S 564. Where lease expressly provides that nonpayment of rent shall forfeit lease and entitle lessor to recover possession without demand for rent on possession, neither notice of forfeiture nor demand of possession is prerequisite to action for unlawful detainer. Dietz v. Barnard, 32 Ky. L. R. 1130, 107 SW 766.

detainer will lie for nonpayment of rent.[42] In Illinois neither demand of possession nor notice is necessary where tenant is holding over.[43] The complaint must show the relation of landlord and tenant [44] and the unlawful detention.[45] An action for rent cannot be joined within an action under the forcible entry and detainer act of Colorado.[46] Where unlawful detainer is predicated upon forfeiture for nonpayment of rent, payment may be set up in defense.[47] The liability of the traverser's bond is controlled by the statute under which it is given.[48]

§ 11. Rights and liabilities between landlord or tenant and third persons. See 10 C. L. 599—A tenant cannot recover for injuries resulting from wrong committed before he executed the lease,[49] which applies to a year to year tenancy from holding over.[50] Negligence of the lessor will not preclude lessee from recovering damages arising from negligent excavation by adjoining owner.[51] A tenant is liable for the negligent use of the demised premises.[52] Under a statute providing that a party need not prove more than is necessary to entitle him to the relief asked, a lessee suing for an injury to his crop need not show his interest therein.[53]

§ 12. Crimes and penalties. See 10 C. L. 599—The Georgia act, making it a criminal offense to entice away a cropper, is in derogation of common law and must be strictly construed,[54] and, hence, a contract executed as required by statute must be shown.[55]

42. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161, authorizing action in unlawful detainer for nonpayment of rent after three days' written notice to pay, such notice need not state that lessee has three days within which to pay. Berryman v. Gibson [Cal. App.] 95 P 671.

43. Geo. J. Cooke Co. v. Fitzgerald, 131 Ill. App. 133.

44. Complaint alleging a verbal lease, 30 days' notice to terminate tenancy and three days' notice to quit, held to sufficiently show relation. Richmond v. California Super. Ct. [Cal. App.] 98 P 57. Complainant may allege interest by averring lease from owner covering period in question without setting out terms of lease. Berryman v. Gibson [Cal. App.] 95 P 671.

45. Complaint alleging that defendant entered into possession about Oct. 1st, 1905, as tenant from month to month, paying therefore a stipulated amount in advance on the first day of each month, etc., held to sufficiently allege time of beginning of term. State v. Hilgendorf, 136 Wis. 21, 116 NW 848.

46. Mills' Ann. St. c. 53, §§ 1969, 1996. Tyler v. McKenzie, 43 Colo. 233, 95 P 943.

47. Allegation that plaintiff failed to make necessary repairs, that defendant made same and sent check for balance of rent due, which was not returned until beginning of action, held not a counterclaim, but plea of payment or tender. Tipton v. Roberts, 48 Wash. 391, 93 P 906. Where, upon lessor's failure to make necessary repairs on request, lessee made same and sent check for balance of rent with bill of repairs, and thereafter check for next month's rent, all of which were retained until commencement of action, held that checks constituted payment. 48. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 464, providing that traverser and sureties on bond shall be liable, where he fails to prosecute traverse with effect, for withholding possession and reasonable expenses of traversee, bond is not liable for rent from surrender of possession until lessor finds another tenant, though failure to surrender prevented lessor from giving possession to another tenant who repudiated contract (Columbia Trust Co. v. Reccius [Ky.] 113 SW 895), nor for compromise settlement with such lessee (Id.), nor commission to real estate agent for procuring another (Id.).

49. Adjoining owner had stopped outlet to drain causing crop to be flooded. Funston v. Hoffman, 232 Ill. 360, 83 NE 917.

50. Where during 1905, adjoining owner stopped up outlet to drain, tenant holding over another year cannot recover for crops flooded in 1906. Funston v. Hoffman, 232 Ill. 360, 83 NE 917.

51. Contos v. Jamison [S. C.] 62 SE 867.

52. Where faucet on floor, under exclusive control of one tenant, was found running and water damaged goods on floor below, presumption of negligence arises. Baker v. Schwartz, 113 NYS 727. Testimony of defendant that he opened faucet on day before it was found running and it did not run held to show that he left same open, though he testified that he was "quite sure" he turned it off. 53. Under Code 1897, § 3639, providing that a party shall not be compelled to prove more than is necessary to entitle him to relief asked, tenant suing for injury to crop, who shows that he is in possession as tenant, need not disclose his interest in crops or land (Blunck v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 115 NW 1013), and it is not material that he may be held to his landlord for a part of the crop (Id.).

55. Orr v. Hardin [Ga. App.] 61 SE 518. Under act of December 17, 1901 (Acts 1901, p. 63), as amended by act of Aug. 7, 1903 (Acts 1903, p. 91), imposing penalty for inducing cropper to leave, etc., where oral contract

LARCENY.

The scope of this topic is noted below.[56]

§ 1. Common-law larceny. See 10 C. L. 600—Larceny [57] is the taking and carrying away,[58] from the actual or constructive[59] possession of the owner,[60] of the personal property [61] of another [62] by trespass [63] or fraud,[64] without his consent,[65] and with fe-of lease partly performed was made in presence of one witness, such witness must witness establishment of relation, and, where oral contract made in his presence created relation only if certain things transpired in future, it is insufficient to support conviction. Polk v. Thomason, 130 Ga. 642, 61 SE 123.

56. Includes the common-law offense of simple larceny and its statutory equivalents, also such statutory variations as larceny from a dwelling or other specified place, larceny from the person, etc., which, though not amounting to robbery, are sometimes denominated compound larceny. Excludes the common-law offense of compound larceny (see Robbery, 10 C. L. 1531), and those statutory offenses which although denominated larceny, larceny by bailee, larceny after trust, etc., lack the essential element of trespass in the original taking (see Embezzlement, 11 C. L. 1192). Obtaining property by means of false pretense (see False Pretenses and Cheats, 11 C. L. 1460), breaking and entering (see Burglary, 11 C. L. 487), and matters common to all crimes (see Criminal Law, 11 C. L. 940 and Indictment and Prosecution, 12 C. L. 1), are elsewhere treated.

57. Larceny is the wrongful or fraudulent taking or carrying away by any person of the personal goods of another with intent to convert them to the taker's use without the consent of the owner. State v. James [Mo. App.] 113 SW 232.

58. Complete and exclusive possession by thief is essential. State v. Johnson [Kan.] 98 P 216. Where one attempts to steal article from person of another but only succeeds in dislodging it so that it falls to floor, without having control of it for a single instant, crime of larceny not complete. Id.

59. Money taken from wife acting as husband's agent is taken from possession of husband. Commonwealth v. Levinson, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 286. Receipt from wife of husband's goods by an adulterer or one intending to elope with her is larceny from husband. Id. Where paramour steals husband's funds from wife, he is guilty of larceny from husband. Id. Goods accidentally left in a particular place are not lost and taking is from possession of owner. No error to refuse charge on animous furandi where livery stable keeper stole and secreted article left in buggy. Moxie v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 375. Upon satisfaction of judgment upon goods in warehouse under levy on execution, the owner has right of possession and unauthorized removal of the goods by another may constitute larceny. People v. Frankenberg, 236 Ill. 408, 86 NE 128.

60. People v. Cain [Cal. App.] 93 P 1037. Where prosecutor secured permission to use bureau drawer of defendant and defendant stole therefrom, there was larceny from possession of prosecutor. White v. State [Ala.] 47 S 192. That owner's son had used gun just previous to larceny thereof no defense on theory that gun was not in owner's possession. Crouch v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 460, 107 SW 859.

61. Shell fish planted under public waters where they do not grow naturally and therefore cannot become mixed with those local to the place are subject of larceny, providing the person taking them has notice of their private ownership, which is orally given by enclosing the bed by stakes or otherwise. The question of whether the bed was leased is immaterial though such leases are authorized. People v. Morrison, 124 App. Div. 10, 108 NYS 262.

62. Ownership must be established. State v. James [Mo. App.] 113 SW 232. Unauthorized sale of wife's personal property by husband is invalid and subsequent authorized sale by him is not larceny from original vendee. Hudspeth v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 112 SW 1069. Where machinery was delivered on agreement that title should remain in vendor until price was fully paid and that vendor had the right to enter premises at any time and remove the machinery or part thereof, vendor's agent is not guilty of larceny in removing a part. Guthrie v. State [Miss.] 47 S 639.

63. Bill of particulars alleging trespass in taking is supported by proof of taking from custodian's apartment in her absence, and a defense negativing trespass but otherwise of no legal efficacy may be disregarded. Commonwealth v. Levinson, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 286.

64. Trespass not necessary where taking is by artifice, fraud or false pretense. Vought v. State, 135 Wis. 6, 114 NW 518. Town board issuing and obtaining money on fraudulent orders. Id. Larceny may be committed where legal process is fraudulently and feloniously used for purpose of securing possession of goods. People v. Frankenberg, 236 Ill. 408, 86 NE 128. If owner of goods parts voluntarily with both possession and title, a fraudulent taking thereof is no more than false pretense, but if he parts with possession only, felonious conversion of the goods is larceny. Beckwith v. Galice Mines Co., 50 Or. 542, 93 P 453.

65. Nonconsent is an essential. George v. U. S. [Okl. Cr. App.] 97 P 1052.

NOTE. Effect of consent to taking by servant or bailee: Where a servant is inlonious intent[66] entertained at the time of the taking,[67] to deprive the owner thereof and to convert the same to the use of the taker.[68] While the property taken must have some value, it need not necessarily have money value, and hence property may be the subject of larceny although not the subject of a lawful sale.[69] Special ownership is sufficient to support the charge,[70] even as against the general owner,[71] but a special owner having relinquished possession to the agent of a general owner retains no ownership which will support a charge of larceny against such agent.[72] While as a general rule the taking must be personal, where larceny is committed through an innocent agent the principal, although not actually present, is none the less guilty thereof.[73] The offense is complete with the taking and failure to act trusted with goods for a particular purpose, the person who by fraud obtains possession thereof is guilty of larceny, but otherwise if the servant has general authority to conduct business and part with the property. Queen v. Prince, L. R. 1, C. C. 150. Thus, one obtaining goods fraudulently from a pawnbroker's clerk is not guilty of larceny (Rex v. Jackson, 1 Moody, C. C. 119), while one who fraudulently obtains property from a servant or bailee who is merely charged with the custody or delivery of the property is guilty (Shipply v. People, 86 N. Y. 375, 40 Am. Rep. 551; Queen v. Stewart, 1 Cox, C. C. 174; Rex v. Small, 8 Car. & P. 46; Reg. v. Webb, 5 Cox, C. C. 154; Reg. v. Robins, Dears, C. C. 418; Reg. v. Little, 10 Cox, C. C. 559; Aldrich v. People, 224 Ill. 622, 79 NE 964, 115 Am. St. Rep. 166, 7 L. R. A. [N. S.] 1149). Where there is no fraud, and the taker honestly believed that the owner's agent has authority to part with the property, the felonious intent essential to larceny is wanting (Fetkenhauer v. State, 112 Wis. 491, 88 NW 294; Heskew v. State, 18 Tex. App. 275), but where the taker had reason to know that there was lack of authority, he cannot defend on the ground of agent's consent (State v. McCarthy, 17 Minn. 76 (Gil. 54); Oakley v. State, 40 Ala. 372). —Adapted from 7 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1149.

66. Felonious intent essential. Crouch v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 460, 107 SW 859; Jones v. State, 85 Ark. 360, 108 SW 223. Where one takes property under mistaken but honest belief in his own right, there is no larceny, although he knew of the adverse claims of another. State v. Bailey, 63 W. Va. 668, 60 SE 785.

67. If original taking is innocent, no subsequent intent can render the offense larceny. Warren v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 394, 106 SW 382; Worthington v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 178, 109 SW 187. If finder really believed owner could not be found, no subsequent appropriation of the property, either before or after learning who was true owner, can constitute theft. Worthington v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 178, 109 SW 187. If accused believed at the time he took cattle at the request of another that such other had authority to take the same, there was no larceny although accused later learned that the cattle were being stolen. Warren v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 394, 106 SW 382.

68. Intent to appropriate to taker's use is essential. Alford v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 621, 108 SW 364.

69. Whiskey in prohibition territory. Mance v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 1053. Trees in forest reserve which by constitutional provision could not be legally sold. People v. Gallagher, 58 Misc. 512, 111 NYS 473.

70. Possession is sufficient ownership to support allegation. State v. Whitman, 103 Minn. 92, 114 NW 363. Ownership properly laid in lessee. Id. Wife's property stolen from husband is stolen from wife. Kauffman v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 209, 109 SW 172.

71. Owner may be guilty of larceny from an agister. Under Pen. Code, § 484, defining larceny as felonious stealing of personal property of another. People v. Cain [Cal. App.] 93 P 1037. A pastured heifer with B, who sold pasturage to C, who lost the heifer. A stated he would hold B and C responsible. They thereupon found heifer in A's field and recovered it. A brings larceny against B and C, judgment for defendants; C brings larceny against A, who is convicted. Id.

NOTE: Taking of property by a general owner to defeat lien is generally held to constitute larceny. Tumalty v. Parker, 100 Ill. App. 382; State v. Nelson, 36 Wash. 126, 78 P 790, 104 Am. St. Rep. 945, 68 L. R. A. 283; People v. Long, 50 Mich. 249, 15 NW 105; State v. Stephens, 32 Tex. 155; Queen v. Hollingsworth, 2 Can. Cr. Cas. 291; Henry v. State, 110 Ga. 750, 36 SE 55, 78 Am. St. Rep. 137; Bruley v. Rose, 57 Iowa, 651, 11 NW 629; Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Hinsdell, 76 Kan. 74, 90 P 800, 12 L. R. A. (N. S.) 94; Lewis v. State, 50 Tex. Cr. App. 331, 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 301, 97 SW 481. Thus, the owner may commit larceny by feloniously taking his own property after it has been levied upon under execution (Palmer v. People, 10 Wend. [N. Y.] 165, 25 Am. Dec. 551), but it must appear that he knew of the levy (State v. Deavitt, 32 Mo. 571), and that the taking was felonious (Adams v. State, 45 N. J. Law, 448). So, also, it is held larceny for a general owner to carry away property levied upon under attachment (Commonwealth v. Greene, 111 Mass. 392), although there is authority to the contrary (Clark v. State, 41 Neb. 370, 59 NW 785).

The general rule, however, appears to be repudiated in Commonwealth v. Tobin, 2 Brewst. [Pa.] 570, upon the ground that in such cases there is no taking "of the goods of another" and hence no larceny.—Adapted from 12 L. R. A. (N. S.) 94.

72. Mosbey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 113 SW 276. The treasurer of a Masonic lodge retains no ownership in funds delivered to an organizer who had authority to receive the same for the grand master. Id.

73. State v. Bailey, 63 W. Va. 668, 60 SE 785.

promptly for recovery is not material.[74] After the stolen property has been found in possession of the defendant it is too late to create a defense by "voluntary" return to the owner.[75] Larceny is distinguished from embezzlement by the presence of a wrong or trespass in the original taking,[76] and from robbery by the absence of violence or putting in fear in the original trespass.[77]

§ 2. Statutory larceny, theft, etc.[See 10 C. L. 601]—This section includes only statutory variations of common-law larceny, and excludes statutory offenses which, although denominated larceny, are more logically embraced within the generally accepted definition of some other offense.[78]

Statutes frequently make special provisions relative to larceny of particular property[79] or larceny from a particular place[80] or in a particular manner.[81] Such statutes do not as a rule create a new offense but merely recognize a higher degree which necessarily includes the common-law offense.[82] Many statutes specify as subjects of larceny property which was not so considered at common law,[83] notably, written instruments.[84] The fact that an act violates a specific statute renders it none the less larceny if it also violates the laws denouncing that offense generally.[85] In some states the alteration of a brand or mark on an animal is an assertion of possession which may constitute larceny.[86]

74. Commonwealth v. Levinson, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 286.

75. No error in failing to charge on voluntary return. Moxie v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 375. Branding an animal is assertion of possession, and the fact that after branding animal was turned loose on range and recovered by owner does not constitute voluntary return. Thorne v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 309, 107 SW 831.

76. Conspiracy whereby one was elected secretary of labor union, secured its funds and submitted to mock robbery, held embezzlement rather than robbery or larceny. State v. Cothern [Iowa] 115 NW 890. At common law an employe who misappropriated goods of his master which are in his custody for a specific purpose is guilty of larceny; there is trespass in the taking for other than the specific purpose. Possession remains in the master (Minor v. State [Fla.] 46 S 297), though some embezzlement statutes are broad enough to include the above case (Id.). Possession as distinguished from custody discussed (Id.), but where employe who has access to but no possession or custody of goods of his master appropriates same to his own use, there is larceny and not embezzlement (Id.). President of mercantile company was in actual and present possession and personal custody was in certain employe. Misappropriation by general manager held larceny. Id.

77. Robbery includes larceny and larceny from person. State v. Taylor [Iowa] 118 NW 747. If jury have reasonable doubt of the element of force and fear, there can be no verdict greater than larceny from the person. Id. Distinction between larceny from the person and robbery lies in the force or intimidation used, if the article is attached to the person so that there is resistence, however slight, or if there is any active resistence to the taking, the act is robbery and not larceny. People v. Campbell, 234 Ill. 391, 84 NE 1035.

78. See Embezzlement, 11 C. L. 1192; False Pretenses and Cheats, 11 C. L. 1460; Robbery, 10 C. L. 1531.

79. Horses and cattle. Rev. Pen. Code, §§ 605, 607, 608, amended Laws 1903, p. 175, c. 151. State v. Matejowsky [S. D.] 115 NW 96. Under Laws 1903, c. 218, p. 372, § 1, denouncing theft of "any harness" as grand larceny, not necessary that thing stolen shall comprise all parts of a complete harness. State v. Wortman [Kan.] 98 P 217. See, also, Animals, 11 C. L. 109.

80. Breaking and entering is not an element of larceny from a dwelling contrary to Code 1837, §§ 4832, 4833. State v. McDermet [Iowa] 115 NW 884. Taking chickens from coop in a wagon standing in an inclosed barnyard is larceny from inclosed premises contrary to Acts 30th Gen. Assem. p. 122, c. 133. State v. Norman, 135 Iowa, 483, 113 NW 340. Right of occupancy is sufficient to maintain the charge as against the thief. Id.

81. "Privately" stealing from the person. Pen. Code, arts. 879, 880. Stealing horse on pretext of hiring. Ky. St. 1903, § 1195. If honest intent to return existed at time of hiring, not guilty. Smith v. Commonwealth, 33 Ky. L. R. 998, 112 SW 615.

82. Statute defining and punishing larceny from the person creates no new offense, hence jury may properly find guilty of included offense of petit larceny. State v. Clem [Wash.] 94 P 1079.

83. Under Pen. Code, § 537, growing trees are subject to larceny as if severed by another. People v. Gallagher, 58 Misc. 512, 111 NYS 473.

84. Under St. 1898, § 4415, denouncing as larceny the stealing of negotiable and other instruments of value, a town order is the subject of larceny although void for fraud in its issuance, if valid on its face. Vought v. State, 135 Wis. 6, 114 NW 518.

85. Laws 1900, p. 63, c. 20, § 222, forbidding spoliation of forest reserves, does not abrogate general larceny statute with regard thereto. People v. Gallagher, 58 Misc. 512, 111 NYS 473.

86. Thorne v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 309. 107 SW 831.

§ 3. Indictment and prosecution. A. Indictment.[See 10 C. L. 602] —An indictment is none the less one for larceny alone because matter averred by way of inducement may constitute another offense.[87] The indictment must charge the essential elements of the offense,[88] including felonious intent,[89] value,[90] and ownership,[91] if known to the grand jury,[92] and must describe the property,[93] with reasonable certainty.[94] One who commits larceny through an innocent agent is properly charged as a principal,[95] as in an accessory before the fact under statutes abolishing the distinction.[96] Where articles belonging to different owners are stolen at the same time and place, the offense is single and should be so charged,[97] but the fact that they were so stolen must be charged.[98] Where the larceny of several lots is charged in a single count, it is proper to allege gross value without specifying items,[99] but such an allegation is not repugnant to further allegations of detailed values amounting to a different total, since the latter allegations control.[1] Though an allegation of gross value only, as to articles of unequal value, will fail in the absence of proof of larceny of all the property alleged, the rule is otherwise in the

88. "One gold coin then and there being on the person of A, did steal," sufficiently alleges larceny from the person. State v. Faulk [S. D.] 116 NW 72. Under Pen. Code, art. 879, denouncing theft by "privately" stealing from the person, and art. 880, defining the offense, an indictment charging taking without owner's consent, and so suddenly as not to allow time for resistence, sufficiently described the offense, it not being necessary to allege "privately." Bush v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 213, 109 SW 194, citing Kerry v. State, 17 Tex. App. 180, 50 Am. Rep. 122. Breaking and entering is no part of larceny from a dwelling and need not be alleged. State v. McDermet [Iowa] 115 NW 884.

89. Feloniously did take, steal and carry away held sufficient. State v. McDermet [Iowa] 115 NW 884.

90. Allegation of value is necessary under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 38, § 167, denouncing larceny of negotiable and other instruments in writing. People v. Silbertrust, 236 Ill. 144, 86 NE 203. Allegation that bill of exchange is of certain value "to the Bank" not a general allegation of value; the last clause cannot be rejected as surplusage. Id.

91. One gold coin of the money of A held sufficient. State v. Faulk [S. D.] 116 NW 72. Ownership of wife's separate property properly alleged in her though stolen from husband's custody. Under Code Cr. Proc. 1895, art. 445 and Rev. St. 1895, arts. 2967, 2968. Kauffman v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 209, 109 SW 172. Allegation of ownership in a warehouseman from whose leased premises the property was stolen is sufficient, though general ownership was in another. State v. Whitman, 103 Minn. 92, 114 NW 363. Ownership cannot be laid in a special owner who has relinquished possession to the agent of a general owner. Mosbey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 113 SW 276.

92. If unknown or could not be ascertained by reasonable inquiry, need not be alleged though trial evidence subsequently reveals true owner. Ray v. State [Ga. App.] 60 SE 816.

93. One gold coin, current as money, of the value of $5.00 held sufficient. State v. Faulk [S. D.] 116 NW 72. "One man's saddle" and "one horse" held sufficient. State v. Blair, 63 W. Va. 635, 60 SE 795. "Money purse" sufficient without specifying size, weight, color, and value, where any theft from the person is felony. Bush v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 213, 109 SW 184. Larceny of brown gilding, property of A, and black gilding, property of B, held to sufficiently charge larceny of the black gilding. State v. West [Idaho] 95 P 949. Need not describe stolen property with reference to any mark whereby it may be distinguished from other property of the same or a similar kind. State v. Bailey, 63 W. Va. 668, 60 SE 785. Notwithstanding Rev. Code Cr. Proc. § 226, providing that erroneous allegation as to person injured shall be deemed immaterial, an allegation of larceny of enumerated two and three year old cattle, the property of A and B is not sufficient identication of the cattle otherwise than by the allegation of ownership, and does not sufficiently describe cattle owned by A, B & C, although doing business as A & B. State v. Ham [S. D.] 114 NW 713.

94. Defect in description is immaterial in Georgia if the question might be legally investigated thereunder, and an aquittal will act as bar to subsequent prosecution. Burch v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 503.

95. State v. Whitman, 103 Minn. 92, 114 NW 363.

96. Under Rev. Laws 1905, § 4758, an accessory before the fact may properly be charged as principal. State v. Whitman, 103 Minn. 92, 114 NW 363.

97. Clemm v. State [Ala.] 45 S 212. Charge of taking from ginner two bales of cotton, property of M & P respectively, not bad for duplicity. Peck v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 1019.

98. Demurrer for failure to charge same time and place sustained. Clemm v. State [Ala.] 45 S 212. "Did then and there take from the possession of P, and did then and there take from the possession of M, held sufficient. Peck v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 1019.

99. Reeder v. State [Ark.] 111 SW 272.

1. 600 lbs. of cotton, 200 lbs. belonging to M, 100 to C, 140 to Y, 50 to P, 40 to D, 40 to C. Reeder v. State [Ark.] 111 SW 272.

case of a commodity, there being nothing to show that it is not of uniform value.[2] Sex is not generally a material allegation in indictments for larceny of horses or cattle.[3] Corporate existence of the owner need not be alleged except where necessary to show that defendant had not been stealing his own property.[4] That the indictment incidentally charges another offense is immaterial.[5] Where it is doubtful whether the offense is larceny or embezzlement, the indictment may contain both counts and, in Nebraska, the state is not required to elect.[6] Where any one of several elements will make an offense grand larceny, and two of them are alleged, one may be rejected as surplusage.[7]

(§ 3) B. Admissibility of evidence.[See 10 C. L. 603]—The general rules as to circumstantial[8] and corroborative evidence,[9] res gestae,[10] admissions,[11] and declarations,[12] are applicable. Evidence of independent crimes is not generally admissible but evidence of a series of events leading up to and making possible the commission of the act charged are admissible, though involving an independent crime,[13] and relevant testimony is not inadmissible merely because it tends to show the commission of another crime.[14] Where larceny by means of a pretended arrest is charged, it is competent to show the nonexistence of the alleged cause of arrest.[15] A check identified as given to the person selling stolen property is admissible as to the date of sale.[16] The state may always trace the stolen property by direct[17] or circumstan-

2. Pieces of brass. Smith v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 170, 109 SW 127.

3. Burch v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 503. Aquittal for larceny of cow bars indictment for larceny of steer when in fact the transactions were the same. Id. Under Rev. Pen. Code, §§ 605, 607, 608, as amended by Laws 1903, p. 175, c. 151 denouncing the stealing of any stallion, mare, gelding, horse or colt, allegation is sufficient to cover geldings. Rulings under similar and dissimilar statutes extensively discussed. State v. Matejousky [S. D.] 115 NW 96.

4. Crime complete when it appears that property feloniously taken is not property of accused, immaterial whether owner was person, corporation, or other entity. People v. Mead, 109 NYS 163.

5. Indictment for larceny of logs from state land, which charges entering land with intent to commit larceny, in its self a misdemeanor. People v. Gallagher, 58 Misc. 512, 111 NYS 473.

6. Cohoe v. State [Neb.] 118 NW 1088.

7. A steer being one of the enumerated articles whose taking is grand larceny, averment of taking from possession of owner is surplusage. People v. Hutchings [Cal. App.] 97 P 325.

8. Evidence as to tracks left by a vehicle from place of crime to defendant's residence and of human tracks identified as those of defendant is proper. State v. Norman, 135 Iowa, 483, 113 NW 340. Evidence that the track of defendant's wagon led along unusual byways is proper as bearing upon guilty knowledge. Id.

9. Where witness testified that he had certain money on him when arrested, evidence that he displayed certain described money just previous to arrest is admissible against policeman charged with larceny from prisoner. State v. McDowell [Mo.] 113 SW 1113.

10. That accused was seen coming from scene of larceny with stolen property in his possession and offered witness money to say nothing. Perry v. State [Ala.] 46 S 470. Evidence of taking of other articles at the same time and of other facts and circumstances not charged is admissible where limited to purpose of connecting defendant with acts charged. Lynne v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 375, 111 SW 729.

11. Statement to sheriff held to refer to the stolen horses and hence admissible. State v. Glover [S. D.] 113 NW 625. Explanations of possession by accused to police officer immediately upon being arrested and charged with larceny and before he has had an opportunity to concoct a story, are admissible. State v. Jacobs [Mo. App.] 113 SW 244.

12. That defendant claimed to have money previous to theft inadmissible as self-serving. Anglin v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 475, 107 SW 835. One charged with larceny may show the negotiations under which he obtained possession of the property and his declarations when found in his possession but not declarations meantime, such being open to suspicion as a part of his plan of defense. Mason v. State [Ind.] 85 NE 776.

13. That defendant debauched prosecutor's wife in South Africa, induced her to sell her husband's farm, eloped with her to America, and while living with her in a state of adultery stole the proceeds of the sale. Commonwealth v. Levinson, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 286.

14. Ray v. State [Ga. App.] 60 SE 816. Evidence of previous arrest of complainant at instance of defendant for larceny of same stock held admissible as to defendant's intent. People v. Cain [Cal. App.] 93 P 1037.

15. That complaining witness was not drunk when arrested as testified by defendant. State v. McDowell [Mo.] 113 SW 1113.

16. Dennis v. State [Ark.] 114 SW 926.

17. Hooton v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 6, 108 SW 651. Prosecuting witness may testify that money found on accused looked like the money stolen. Anglin v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 475, 107 SW 835. Evidence of similar chattels seen in possession of accused at about time property was missed by owner held admissible, though indictment alleged larceny at later date. Ingraham v. State [Neb.] 118 NW 320.

tial evidence,[18] unless such evidence would inflame or prejudice the jury.[19] On indictment for larceny of a branded steer, the hide and diagram of the owner's brand are admissible,[20] but evidence of third persons that they sometimes make mistakes in identifying their own cattle is irrelevant.[21] The defendant should be permitted to introduce any proper evidence tending to establish a valid defense.[22] The introduction of incompetent evidence, if immaterial, is harmless.[23]

(§ 3) C. Effect of possession of stolen property. See 10 C. L. 605—It is held that the personal and exclusive possession[24] of recently[25] stolen goods raises a presumption of guilt[26] which, in the absence of a satisfactory explanation,[27] may support a conviction for larceny,[28] but the decisions are not in harmony upon this point, and some courts maintain that this presumption alone will not warrant a conviction, though it may do so in connection with other evidence[29] or that it merely raises an inference of guilt,[30] which may be considered by the jury on the same footing as the other evidence in the case,[31] and in connection therewith.[32] The presumption, such as it is, is of fact rather than of law[33] and may be overthrown by other evidence.[34] The identity of the goods found in possession of the accused with the stolen goods is a question of fact,[35] but the evidence must justify the findings.[36]

18. Lynne v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 375, 111 SW 729. No error to admit evidence of corresponding money hidden in room of confederate. Hooton v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 6, 108 SW 651.

19. Hooton v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 6, 108 SW 651.

20, 21. People v. Hutchings [Cal. App.] 97 P 325.

22. Evidence tending to show innocent possession. Mason v. State [Ind.] 85 NE 776. Evidence that defendant was authorized agent of owner. Guthrie v. State [Miss.] 47 S 639. Evidence tending to rebut felonious intent in the taking and that subsequent suspicious conduct was by advice of parent. Worthington v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 178, 109 SW 187.

23. Though leases of oyster beds are authorized by Laws 1868, c. 734, p. 1652, the existence of such a lease is not material to larceny of oysters; hence parol evidence of the lease is harmless. People v. Morrison, 124 App. Div. 10, 108 NYS 262.

24. Must be complete and exclusive. State v. Johnson [Kan.] 98 P 216. Must be personal, involving a distinct and conscious assertion of possession. People v. Horton [Cal. App.] 93 P 382. Must be personal but not necessarily exclusive. The rule is satisfied if it is exclusive as to persons not particeps criminis. As to the latter class possession of one is possession of each and all. Id. Possession held to be personal. Id.

25. Must be recent. Bryant v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 540. Instruction on possession must include element of recency. Mance v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 1053. Instruction that, if jury finds defendant had possession recently after Dec. 18, it may presume, etc., held erroneous as excluding from the consideration of the jury the interval between the date mentioned and Oct. 18th, the date of the alleged offense. State v. Plant, 209 Mo. 307, 107 SW 1076.

26. Mills v. Erie R. Co., 113 NYS 641.

27. Explanation before trial held insufficient to render prosecuting witness liable for malicious prosecution in maintaining the charge. Mills v. Erie R. Co., 113 NYS 641.

28. Jones v. State, 85 Ark. 360, 108 SW 223; McDonald v. State [Fla.] 47 S 485; Mason v. State [Ind.] 85 NE 776.

29. State v. Peck, 14 Idaho, 712, 95 P 515; Mason v. State [Ind.] 85 NE 776.

30. Mason v. State [Ind.] 85 NE 776.

31. McDonald v. State [Fla.] 47 S 485; Slater v. U. S. [Okl. Cr. App.] 98 P 110. Incorrect to instruct that possession raises a presumption of guilt. Slater v. U. S. [Okl. Cr. App.] 98 P 110. Correct to instruct that unexplained possession of recently stolen property is a circumstance to be considered by the jury. Territory v. Caldwell [N. M.] 98 P 167. Presumption from possession is not conclusive but is merely a circumstance from which guilt may be inferred. Not sufficient to authorize conviction when not shown to be recent and when property had passed from hand to hand, prior holders since larceny not given good excuse for their possession. Bryant v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 540.

32. Defendant's denial of knowledge of the stolen property, his presence near the scene of the theft at about the time of its commission, and the other surrounding circumstances, were properly considered by the court in determining the effect of his possession of the property. Mason v. State [Ind.] 85 NE 776.

33. Instruction on presumption arising from possession held to be on weight of evidence and erroneous. Slater v. U. S. [Okl. Cr. App.] 98 P 110.

34. Evidence held to show defendant not guilty. State v. Crooke, 129 Mo. App. 490, 107 SW 1104.

35. Cox v. State, 3 Ga. App. 609, 60 SE 283; Lynne v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 375, 111 SW 729; Hooton v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 6, 108 SW 651.

36. Evidence insufficient. Johnson v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 510, 107 SW 845; Taylor v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 615, 111 SW 151.

A reasonable explanation imposes the burden of rebuttal upon the state,[37] but failure to rebut does not render the explanation conclusive of innocence.[38]

(§ 3) D. Sufficiency of evidence.[See 10 C. L. 605]—The state must prove beyond a reasonable doubt,[39] by competent and satisfactory evidence,[40] every essential ingredient of the offense, such as felonious intent,[41] ownership in another than the accused,[42] nonconsent by the owner,[43] value of the property taken,[44] and the guilt of the accused,[45] and must support by proof every material allegation,[46] though in

37. McDonald v. State [Fla.] 47 S 485. Defendant need not prove truth of explanation. Id. If explanation, considered with the whole evidence, raises a reasonable doubt, jury should acquit. Mason v. State [Ind.] 85 NE 776. When accused made an adequate explanation which, if true, warranted acquittal, neglect to charge on evidentiary value of possession when weighed in connection with the explanation is error. Morris v. State [Ga. App.] 63 SE 26.

38. Explanation must be not only reasonable but credible and sufficient to raise a reasonable doubt. McDonald v. State [Fla.] 47 S 485. Sufficiency of explanation is for jury. Jones v. State [Ga. App.] 61 SE 133. Jury or court sitting upon facts is sole judge of sufficiency. Mason v. State [Ind.] 85 NE 776. May convict if explanation is not believed, though there was no direct rebuttal. McDonald v. State [Fla.] 47 S 485. Verdict of guilty indicates that jury did not believe explanation. Id.

39. McDonald v. State [Fla.] 47 S 485. Burden of proof is always on state and never shifts. Cagle v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 307, 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 550, 106 SW 356.

40. Proof must be substantial, not mere suspicion. Jones v. State, 85 Ark. 360, 108 SW 223. Evidence should warrant a reasonable conclusion of guilt. Mickle v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 157 F 229. Where reliance is on circumstantial evidence, the state must reasonably identify the property found in possession of accused. Felts v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 48, 108 SW 654.

41. Evidence held sufficient to warrant finding of criminal intent in taking. State v. Noyes [Idaho] 96 P 435. Circumstances held to rebut theory that defendant believed gun belonged to a friend. Crouch v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 460, 107 SW 859. Evidence sufficient to show inclosure of shell fish plantation and notice of ownership. People v. Morrison, 124 App. Div. 10, 108 NYS 262.

42. Ownership must be shown. State v. James [Mo. App.] 113 SW 232. Possession is prima facie evidence of ownership but not sufficient to overcome presumption of innocence and warrant conviction of accused. One presumption cannot overthrow another and conviction cannot be had on mere inference of an essential element. Id.

43. Must be shown. State v. Faulk [S. D.] 116 NW 72; State v. James [Mo. App.] 113 SW 232; George v. U. S. [Okl. Cr. App.] 97 P 1052. Direct proof not necessary; may be inferred from the circumstances. State v. Faulk [S. D.] 116 NW 72. Fact that owner made search for stolen property is a cogent circumstance to show nonconsent. Not necessary to prove by testimony of owner. George v. U. S. [Okl. Cr. App.] 97 P 1052. Proof of nonconsent held sufficient. State v. Faulk [S. D.] 116 NW 72. Proof that pocket book was snatched from owner's pocket while owner's attention was diverted held sufficient to show lack of consent. State v. James [Mo. App.] 113 SW 232. Evidence held sufficient to sustain verdict of larceny from the person though there was some evidence to the effect that owner consented to part with property. Washington v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 300, 109 SW 157.

44. With rare exceptions the question of value is for jury, notwithstanding weight of evidence. Schwartz v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 449, 111 SW 399. Values are always largely a matter of opinion and a statement of value is not to be held conclusive, regardless of jury's belief in the honesty and fairness of witness. Id. Where there is no claim that value of property has undergone change, testimony as to value at time of theft is sufficient proof thereof. Cummings v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 397, 106 SW 363. The original cost of worn clothing is to be considered in fixing its actual value when stolen. State v. McDermet [Iowa] 115 NW 884. Evidence of value held sufficient. State v. Faulk [S. D.] 116 NW 72.

45. Accused must be positively identified with the crime. State v. James [Mo. App.] 113 SW 232.

Held sufficient to sustain verdict. Dennis v. State [Ark.] 114 SW 926; Minor v. State [Fla.] 46 S 297; People v. Frankenberg, 236 Ill. 408, 86 NE 128; Smith v. Com., 33 Ky. L. R. 998, 112 SW 615; State v. McGee, 212 Mo. 95, 110 SW 699; State v. Walken [Mo. App.] 113 SW 221; State v. Hayes [Mo.] 113 SW 1050; State v. McDowell [Mo.] 113 SW 1113; Crouch v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 460, 107 SW 859; Hooton v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 6, 108 SW 651; Lynne v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 375, 111 SW 729; Gibbs v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 795; Moore v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 807; Williams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 823; State v. Clem [Wash.] 94 P 1079. Evidence of larceny by trick under pretense of making change held sufficient. Taylor v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 482.

Held insufficient to sustain verdict. Jones v. State, 85 Ark. 360, 108 SW 223; State v. West [Idaho] 95 P 949; State v. James [Mo. App.] 113 SW 232. Evidence held insufficient to support verdict. Landreth v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 556, 110 SW 905; Fruger v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 794.

46. "Coin" imports current money; not necessary to prove allegation of currency. State v. Faulk [S. D.] 116 NW 72. Allegation of paper currency, money of the United States, supported by proof of gold certificates and national bank notes. Anglin v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 475, 107 SW 835. Husband's money stolen from wife by wife's paramour supports allegation of larceny from husband. Commonwealth v. Levinson, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 286. Where ownership is alleged in three persons and proved in two, there is fatal

Texas the state need not prove an allegation of ownership which is not denied.[47] Testimony of an accomplice must be corroborated.[48] Where there is legal evidence of guilt, its sufficiency is ordinarily a question of fact.[49] Corpus delicti,[50] and guilt of the accused,[51] may be shown by circumstantial evidence, but circumstantial evidence must be legal evidence,[52] and of such cogency as to exclude every other hypothesis except that of guilt,[53] and its effect is for the jury to determine.[54]

(§ 3) E. Instructions.[See 10 C. L. 607]—The instructions should clearly[55] state the law of the case[56] when read as a whole,[57] and are not erroneous when in view of variance. Franklin v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 547, 110 SW 909. Proof that cotton raised by renter was stolen from ginner does not support allegation of ownership in landlord. Peck v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 1019. Indictment for larceny of diamond ring and proof of larceny of diamond shirt stud held absolute failure of proof. Stats v. Plant, 209 Mo. 307, 107 SW 1076.

47. Proper to omit charge on proof of ownership. Moore v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 807.

48. Corroboration held sufficient. State v. Whitman, 103 Minn. 92, 114 NW 363; State v. Shapiro [R. I.] 69 A 340; Vought v. State, 135 Wis. 6, 114 NW 518. Testimony of defendant and corroborative evidence held sufficient to support conviction for larceny from box car independent of testimony of accomplices. Celender v. State [Ark.] 109 SW 1024.

49. Credibility of witnesses is for jury. McDonald v. State [Fla.] 47 S 485. Sufficiency of circumstantial evidence is for jury. Perry v. State [Ala.] 46 S 470. Whether the claim of right was bona fide or pretended is for the jury. State v. Bailey, 63 W. Va. 668, 60 SE 785. Whether hiring of horse was in good faith or a fraudulent pretext held for jury. Smith v. Com., 33 Ky. L. R. 998, 112 SW 615. Testimony of prosecutor that he missed corn from his crib at time of alleged larceny, and that he believed corn in defendant's possession was his, but would not swear it, together with testimony of defendant's wife that defendant asked her to engage prosecutor in conversation while he got corn, held sufficient to take cass to jury. State v. Bailey [Del.] 69 A 1004.

51. Proper to instruct that circumstantial evidence may be sufficient to warrant conviction. People v. Cain [Cal. App.] 93 P 1037. Identity of stolen money may be shown by circumstantial evidence. McDonald v. State [Fla.] 47 S 485. Facts and circumstances may disprove innocent taking under bona fide claim of right. Attempt to defeat adverse claim by concealment or disposition of property. State v. Bailey, 63 W. Va. 668, 60 SE 785. Conspiracy to commit larceny may be proved by circumstantial evidence. Conspiracy held to be proved so as to render evidence of acts and declarations of codefendant admissible. State v. Lewis [Or.] 94 P 831. That defendants were jointly in charge of carriage and that property stolen therefrom was immediately thereafter found in the possession of each held to prove felonious intent. Moxle v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 375. Evidence of larceny from person of prosecutor while engaged with prostitute in such a way that she could not have taken the property held to directly implicate proprietor of bawdy house who was in immediate vicinity. State v. Lewis [Or.] 94 P 831.

Held sufficient: To sustain conviction. People v. Maltais [Cal. App.] 93 P 890; People v. Cain [Cal. App.] 93 P 1037; McDonald v. State [Fla.] 47 S 485; Hutchings v. State [Ga. App.] 114 SW 375. To show larceny by conspirators. State v. Lewis [Or.] 94 P 831.

52. Testimony that contents of box car "checked up short" when referred to a bill of lading, which bill of lading is not shown to be a correct list of the contents of car or to have been signed by any one held insufficent. Perry v. State [Ala.] 46 S 470. Must reasonably identify property found in possession of accused. Felts v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 48, 108 SW 654.

53. Johnson v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 510, 107 SW 845. Where all parties were drunk, circumstances held insufficient to prove privately taking money from the person. Day v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 648, 111 SW 408.

54. Dennis v. State [Ark.] 114 SW 926.

55. Instruction on innocent taking held confusing and contradictory. Warren v. Stats [Tex. Cr. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 394, 106 SW 382.

56. Instructions must cover the essentials of the offense with regard to the evidence of the case. Instructions held sufficient in the absence of request. State v. McDermet [Iowa] 115 NW 884. Failure to instruct on taking from person "so suddenly as not to permit time to make resistance" not failure to set out law applicable to the case. Williams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 823. Instruction held to sufficiently present the merits. Crouch v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 460, 107 SW 859. Instruction held not to erroneously authorize conviction for larceny from another than the prosecutor. People v. Cain [Cal. App.] 93 P 1037. Failure to specify intent to appropriate to own use held fatal. Alford v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 621, 108 SW 364. If the original taking is innocent, no subsequent intent can render the taking larceny and failure to so instruct is error. Warren v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 394, 106 SW 382. Allegation of possession of an agent for a corporation and charge of taking from the possession of corporation fatally variant. Taylor v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 615, 111 SW 151. Charge that if explanation "accounted for defendant's innocence" he should be acquitted held erroneous since a defendant is never required to account for the evidence they do not mislead the jury.[58] Questions of fact should be properly submitted[59] and all circumstances having evidentiary value.[60] Reasonable doubt should be sufficiently charged[61] and any proper defense raised by the evidence.[62] It is proper to charge on included lesser offenses when justified by the evidence,[63] and it is error to instruct that the accused cannot be convicted of an included lesser offense under indictment charging the greater.[64] Where the degree of the offense is not clear, it is proper to charge in the alternative.[65] It is not necessary to define larceny when all the essential elements thereof are set forth.[66] Issues not raised by the evidence are properly excluded,[67] as are requested charges as to matters already set forth[68] or misstating the law of the case.[69] A charge imposing upon the taker of lost property the burden of diligent search for the owner is error.[70] In Texas a charge authorizing the penalty for a different offense, though not prejudicial to the defendant, is held error.[71]

(§ 3) F. Trial, sentence and review. See 10 C. L. 609—Where the indictment incidentally charges a misdemeanor, the state cannot be compelled to try the defendant first for the misdemeanor.[72] Conviction of an included lesser offense may be proper under an indictment charging the greater.[73] Under an indictment for grand larceny, verdict of larceny without specifying degree but finding an amount as for petit will support a sentence proper for petit larceny.[74] In the absence of proof, verdict may be directed for the defendant.[75] Upon motion the trial court may his innocence. Cagle v. State, 52 Tex. Cr. App. 307, 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 550, 106 SW 356.

57. Two instructions, each inadequate, if read singly, held to adequately define larceny when read together. State v. De Lea, 36 Mont. 531, 93 P 814.

58. Instruction as to effect of claim of ownership by one in possession shortly after larceny, while too broad as a general proposition, held proper under the evidence. People v. Horton [Cal. App.] 93 P 383.

59. Value is a question of fact and should not be ignored in instructions. Schwartz v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 449, 111 SW 399.

60. Element of recency as affecting possession of stolen goods. Mance v. State [Ga. App.] 62 SE 1053; State v. Plant, 209 Mo. 307, 107 SW 1076.

61. If the defendant took the hog, believing it to be his own, you will acquit him, or if you have a reasonable doubt of his guilt you will acquit him, held to sufficiently charge reasonable doubt under the circumstances. Harrolson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 113 SW 544.

62. Evidentiary value of explanation of possession. Morris v. State [Ga. App.] 63 SE 26. Where defendant testified that he received the money after it was stolen, error to refuse charge that if this were true he could not be convicted of larceny. Felts v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 48, 108 SW 654.

63. State v. Clem [Wash.] 94 P 1079. In robbery trial, evidence held to justify instruction on larceny and larceny from the person. State v. Taylor [Iowa] 118 NW 747.

64. State v. Taylor [Iowa] 118 NW 747.

65. When complainant was drunk and state could not clearly show just how money was taken, an instruction on larceny from the person was not error, especially where verdict was for larceny only. Hooton v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 6, 108 SW 651.

66. Where the court instructs the jury that it must find, beyond a reasonable doubt, the material allegations of the information and specifies what are such material allegations, including all essential elements of larceny, it is unnecessary to define larceny. Starke v. State [Wyo.] 96 P 148.

67. Uncontroverted facts. Moore v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 807. Not error to refuse charge on animus furandi where it is clearly proved. Moxie v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 375. Proper to omit charge on defense not suggested by the evidence. Moore v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 807. Charge on voluntary return properly omitted when there was no voluntary return but defendant was caught with the goods. Id. Instruction that if complainant threw his money promiscuously about and accused took it he could not be convicted properly refused where evidence shows that complainant simply arranged his money along the bar. Hooton v. State, 53 Tex. Cr. App. 6, 108 SW 651.

68. Instruction on innocent taking already covered. Gibbs v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 795.

70. Moxie v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 375.

71. A charge authorizing sentence of $500 on one year, being the penalty for a misdemeanor, is fatally defective in case of petty theft, the penalty for which is $500 or two years. Peck v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 111 SW 1019.

72. People v. Gallagher, 58 Misc. 512, 111 NYS 473.

73. State v. Taylor [Iowa] 118 NW 747. Conviction of larceny proper under indictment for breaking and entering and stealing. State v. Shapiro [R. I.] 69 A 340. A conviction for petit larceny may be had under an indictment for grand larceny. As expressly provided by Rev. St. 1899, § 1911. State v. Walken [Mo. App.] 113 SW 221. May be convicted of petit under indictment charging grand larceny. Thomas v. State [Ala.] 46 S 565.

grant a new trial for insufficiency of evidence or where the verdict is against the manifest weight of evidence,[76] but where there is any legal evidence to support the verdict, it will not ordinarily be disturbed on appeal.[77] On appellate review the general rules apply as to saving questions for review.[78] The acquittal of two of joint conspirators to commit larceny is no bar to conviction of a third who actually obtained the fruits of the larceny.[79]

LIBEL AND SLANDER.

§ 1. Definition and distinctions, nature of tort, and persons liable or damnifiable.[See 10 C. L. 809]—The action of libel is one to recover damages for injury to a man's reputation and good name,[80] and a libel in its most general and comprehensive sense is any false publication injurious to the reputation of another.[81] Libel may arise from insinuation as well as by explicit statement.[82] The action is maintainable though the subject of the libel is unnamed.[83] Generally an action of slander may not be maintained jointly against two or more defendants.[84] A repetition of an identical libel is not a new cause of action but an aggravation of the pre-existing cause.[85] A corporation may sue or be sued for libel,[86] but is unaffected by libels by or concerning its agents.[87] A corporation is not liable for defamation by its agents unless committed in the course of employment[88] or ratified.[89] A part-

81. Julian v. Kansas City Star Co., 209 Mo. 35, 107 SW 496.

Definitions: A written or printed publication which is false and defamatory and calculated to expose one to ridicule or contempt, or to render him odious, or injure him in his business or calling, or in his social standing, is a libel. Register Newspaper Co. v. Worten, 33 Ky. L. R. 840, 111 SW 693. Unprivileged publication by letter or otherwise, which causes person to be avoided, etc. Briggs v. Brown [Fla.] 46 S 325. Libel is malicious defamation of person made public by any printing or writing tending to provoke him to wrath, or expose him to public hatred, contempt or ridicule, or to deprive him of benefits of public confidence and social intercourse. Julian v. Kansas City Star Co., 209 Mo. 35, 107 SW 496. Libel defined. Gen. Laws Tex. (Acts 1901, p. 30, c. 26). Belo & Co. v. Lacy [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 215. Includes any case which was libelous at common law. Fleming v. Mattinson [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 650.

82. Merrill v. Post Pub. Co., 197 Mass. 185, 83 NE 419.

83. When facts are so stated that any intelligent reader upon reading article and knowing facts would come to conclusion that it applied to such party. Adams v. Carrington Pub. Co., 160 F 986.

84. Unless connected by allegation of proof of common design and purpose. Rice v. McAdams [N. C.] 62 SE 774.

85. Murray v. Galbraith [Ark.] 109 SW 1011.

86. Farbenfabriken v. Beringer [C. C. A.] 158 F 802. Corporation may sue as distinguished from members. Hapgoods v. Crawford, 110 NYS 122. Hurt which wrong affecting reputation may do to a corporation is not coextensive with that which libel may inflict upon natural person. Farbenfabriken v. Beringer [C. C. A.] 158 F 802.

87. Attack on rectitude of officers does not give corporation right of action. Warner Instrument Co. v. Ingersoll, 157 F 311; Hapgoods v. Crawford, 110 NYS 122.

88. Insurance company not liable for slanderous statements by solicitors not spoken in course of employment. Kane v.

nership may be liable for libel by a partner in furtherance of the firm business.[90] A publisher is liable for libels by his agents within the scope of their employment, but their express malice is not ordinarily imputable to him.[91] Where a signed notice in a newspaper was entirely different from the one authorized, the fact that the defendants did not correct the published notice was not evidence of ratification.[92]

§ 2. Elements of tort. A. Actionable words. See 10 C. L. 610—Words actionable per se without proof of special damage include words imputing crime,[93] infectious Boston Mut. Life Ins. Co., 200 Mass. 265, 86 NE 302. Making of slanderous statements by agents of insurance company will not authorize inference that they were made in course of employment. Id.

89. In action of superintendent and refusal to assist plaintiff not indicative of ratification of slander by agents. Kane v. Boston Mut. Life Ins. Co., 200 Mass. 265, 86 NE 302. Letters insufficient to ratify slander of agent when expressing disapproval of acts. Id. Proof of loss of business insufficient to show ratification where no evidence that deendants knew facts. Id.

90. Libelous letter in respect to business of partnership signed by partnership name per member. Burgess & Co. v. Patterson [Ky.] 106 SW 837.

91. NOTE. Liability of newspaper editor or publisher for libelous article published in his absence or without his knowledge: The liability of a newspaper proprietor for libelous articles published in his absence or without his knowedge is generally admitted (Crane v. Bennett, 177 N. Y. 106, 69 NE 274, 101 Am. St. Rep. 729; Morgan v. Bennett, 44 App. Div. 323, 60 NYS 619; McMahon v. Bennett, 31 App. Div. 16, 52 NYS 390; O'Brien v. Bennett, 59 App. Div. 623, 69 NYS 298; Andres v. Wells, 7 Johns. [N. Y.] 261, 5 Am. Dec. 267; Holmes v. Jones, 147 N. Y. 59, 41 NE 409, 49 Am. St. Rep. 646; Youmans v. Paine, 86 Hun [N. Y.] 479, 35 NYS 50; Warner v. Press Pub. Co., 132 N. Y. 181, 30 NE 393; Bennett v. Salisbury, 78 F 769; Mallory v. Bennett, 15 F 374; Buckley v. Knapp, 48 Mo. 152; Eviston v. Cramer, 57 Wis. 570, 15 NW 760; Bruce v. Reed, 104 Pa. 415, 49 Am. Rep. 586; Dunn v. Hall, 1 Ind. 355; Rex v. Gutch, Moody & M. 433; Rex. v. Walter, 3 Esp. 21), and this liability is held to include punitive damages in cases where such an award is proper, notwithstanding the fact that such publication may have been made contrary to the rules laid down by the proprietor for the regulation of his agents. The rule is strictly enforced in the case of unchaste or reckless publications reflecting upon personal reputation, and it is held that the hurry of getting out a large metropolitan journal is no excuse for such articles. Bennett v. Salisbury, 78 F 769; Smith v. Matthewa, 152 N. Y. 152, 46 NE 164; Warner v. Press Pub. Co., 132 N. Y. 181, 30 NE 393; Holmes v. Jones, 121 N. Y. 461, 24 NE 701; Holmes v. Jones, 147 N. Y. 59, 41 NE 409, 49 Am. St. Rep. 646; Scripps v. Reilly, 38 Mich. 27. The rule is, in effect, the same in the case of a corporate publisher, for although it is difficult to impute malice to a corporation, the act having been done by the agent in the course of his employment and for the benefit of the employer, it is but just that the employer should be held responsible therefor. Lothrop v. Adams, 133 Mass. 480, 43 Am. Rep. 528. Ratification as a proof of malice in such cases is discussed in Edsall v. Brooks, 2 Rob. [N. Y.] 417; Mallory v. Bennett, 15 F 375; Goodrich v. Stone, 11 Metc. [Mass.] 492, and Haines v. Schultz, 50 N. J. Law, 481, 14 A 488.

But in Smith v. Ashley, 11 Metc. [Mass.] 367, 45 Am. Dec. 216, it was held that where the publisher believed an article to be a fictitous narrative, but it proved to be libelous, he was not liable. See, also, Detroit Post Co. v. McArthur, 16 Mich. 447; Scripps v. Reilly, 38 Mich. 10 and Robertson v. Wylde, 2 Moody & R. 101, wherein it is held that punitive damages will not be allowed where the proprietor of the newspaper is ignorant of the publication and is not negligent.

There are strong dicta to the effect that the liability of an editor in such cases is no less than that of a proprietor (Well v. Nevin, 1 Monaghan [Pa.] 65; Spooner v. Daniek, Fed. Cas. No. 13,244a; McCabe v. Jones, 10 Daly [N. Y.] 222; Hunt v. Bennett, 19 N. Y. 173), and there are cases which include a manager within such liability (Ickes v. State, 16 Ohio C. C. 31; Danville Press Co. v. Harrison, 99 Ill. App. 244; Smith v. Utley, 92 Wis. 133, 65 NW 744, 35 L. R. A. 620). This extension of the rule is expressly disapproved in Folwell v. Miller, 75 C. C. A. 489, 145 F 495, 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 332, where it is held the president of a publishing corporation is not liable for libels published without his knowledge or authority, and that the liability of an editor for such publications is not that of a proprietor, and hence he cannot be held for articles published without his knowledge and in his absence. In Com. v. Kneeland, Thatcher Cr. Cas. 346, it is said, obiter., that editorial orders forbidding such publications may be a defense where the libel was inserted surrepititiously. In the case of Watts v. Fraser, 7 Car. & P. 369, where the editor was held liable, it would seem that he was also proprietor of the publication in question.—[Ed.]

92. Instruction properly refused. Horton v. Jackson [Ark.] 113 SW 45. Where defendant requested publication of notice that plantiff was expelled from order, and another notice was published stating that plaintiff was traitor to order, defendant was not liable for second notice. Id.

93. Words need not charge offense in language of statute. Gordon v. Journal Pub. Co. [Vt.] 69 A 742; Brown v. Knapp & Co. [Mo.] 112 SW 474.

Held actionable per se: Charge of perjury. Brown v. Globe Print. Co. [Mo.] 112 SW 462; Brown v. Knapp & Co. [Mo.] 112 SW 474. Charge that plaintiff stole wheat. Rice v. McAdams [N. C.] 62 SE 774. Charge that one stole check for $36, that unless he would pay amount he would be prosecuted for forgery, obtaining money by falee pretenses, and for stealing the check. Zentzshel v. Richey, 33 Ky. L. R. 657, 110 SW 832. Letter notifying addressee that plaintiff had moved timber disease,[94] or want of chastity,[95] or exposing one to scorn, ridicule or contempt,[96]

from writer's land, that if addressee purchased from plaintiff he received stolen property, and that addressee must heed notice or matter would be placed before proper officials. Burgess & Co. v. Patterson [Ky.] 106 SW 837. Charging plaintiff with smuggling. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 574. Words "He has another wife back east and a wife and child here," as charging bigamy. Bleitz v. Carton [Wash.] 95 P 1099. Publication charging plaintiff, though unnamed, with throwing bomb or hiring others to throw bomb which wrecked attorney's home, and with other crimes. Dennison v. Daily News Pub. Co. [Neb.] 118 NW 568. Article stated that $70,000 had been used by enterprising individuals who had passed hat. Adams v. Carrington Pub. Co., 160 F 986. "Assault and battery with intent to kill" actionable though not in statutory words. Gordon v. Journal Pub. Co. [Vt.] 69 A 742. "Battery" may be treated as surplusage. Id. Publication of article charging persons with effecting pool or combination libelous per se, as tending to expose person to hatred or contempt or to injure business, and fact that Code §§ 5060-5062, making pools a crime, might be unconstitutional, would not lessen fact that acts were contrary to public policy of state. Dorn v. Cooper [Iowa] 117 NW 1.

Held not actionable per se: To charge one with having stolen land of another not actionable per se, there being no such crime as larceny of land. Jones v. Bush [Ga.] 62 SE 279. Article stating that plaintiff had procured perjured statements concerning candidate and circulated slanderous attack, that animus of attack originated in case where candidate appeared against plaintiff, that such action was to recover fees which plaintiff as county clerk had not accounted for, construed as not directly or by imputation charging plaintiff with enbezzlement, perjury or subornation of perjury. Sheibley v. Fales [Neb.] 116 NW 1035.

94. Article referring to plaintiff as "ill with disease" does not charge infectious disease. Merrill v. Post Pub. Co., 197 Mass. 185, 83 NE 419.

95. Held actionable per se: Publicly calling young white woman "a Decatur street whore." Sparks v. Bedford [Ga. App.] 60 SE 809. Charge that person had committed fornication. Harms v. Proehl, 104 Minn. 303, 116 NW 587. Article in newspaper which to common understanding charged woman referred to as mistress of plaintiff. Dempster v. Mann, 157 F 319. Words, "B was undoubtedly down the railroad track with some woman; I believe it; he is guilty and I know he is," actionable as charging adultery. Bashford v. Wells [Kan.] 96 P 663. Publication that husband of plaintiff had brought suit against attorney for alienation of affections, and later divorce suit which had not been decided, libelous per se, as imputing divorce for adultery. De Festetics v. Sun Print. & Pub. Ass'n, 57 Misc. 194, 109 NYS 30. Article regarding minister who was defendant in divorce suit imputing improper conduct. Russell v. Washing Post Co., 31 App. D. C. 277.

Held not actionable per se: In altercation over horses where defendant said "You will have to keep your horses away from my fence. Your horse has knocked my post off, you damned old bitch," language was not slanderous per se as imputing want of chastity. Warren v. Ray [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 935, 118 NW 741.

96. Publication which holds one up to ridicule, contempt, hatred or obloquy is libelous, though no crime is charged. Gordon v. New York Evening Journal Pub. Co., 111 NYS 574.

Held actionable per se: Writing that plaintiff is brother of sister arrested for larceny a statement affecting person's standing in community. Merrill v. Post Pub. Co., 197 Mass. 185, 83 NE 419. Finding that writing of a man that he was in such difficulties that sister stole to help him out properly libelous. Id. Article relating to dog at dog show which was dyed and imputing act to plaintiff. Van Heusen v. Argenteau, 124 App. Div. 776, 109 NYS 238. Article holding plaintiff out as going into passion and threatening to kill another without cause or provocation. Gordon v. New York Evening Journal Pub. Co., 111 NYS 574. Equivocal newspaper article capable of meaning that person referred to was member of underworld, familiar with Chinese prize fighter and on terms of intimacy with such person, and implying that relations were improper, held actionable on demurrer. Ervin v. Record Pub. Co. [Cal.] 97 P 21. Article in paper reasonably construed as holding plaintiff up to ridicule and contempt, as imputing misconduct. Chanler v. Town Topics Pub. Co. [C. C. A.] 161 F 105. Words spoken of plaintiff that he destroyed public records to cover up evidence of his misappropriation of public funds and fines belonging to the town, defamatory, per se. Johnston v. Turner [Ala.] 47 S 570. Newspaper article as to graveling district charging that commissioners overcharged neighbors over $7,000, criticising paving, etc. Murray v. Galbraith [Ark.] 109 SW 1011. Publication that lawyer procured passage of bill raising judge's salary and was rewarded by references. Hickey v. Corson Mfg. Co., 58 Misc. 70, 108 NYS 884. Article charging attorney with bringing unauthorized suit is libelous. Register Newspaper Co. v. Worten, 33 Ky. L. R. 840, 111 SW 693. Newspaper article referring to lawyer as "fellow with license to practice," and as being popular with ex-prisoners, drawing much practice from such source, libelous. Id. Article charging attorney with unprofessional conduct, as soliciting business. Id. Charge against public official importing want of integrity or corruption in discharge of official duties. Dauphing v. Buhne, 153 Cal. 757, 96 P 880. Publication charging plaintiff as unscrupulous office holder. Stewart v. Codrington [Fla.] 45 S 809. Words, "he is a hypocrite, a wolf in sheep's clothing, who steals the livery of heaven to serve the devil in." Id. Words, "he is at the head of the most villainous gang of thieves that ever plundered the taxpayers of Volusia county." Id. Words, "he is vicious, profligate, malevolent and vindictive." Id. "He is a liar or perjurer." Id. Publication impeaching plaintiff's veracity libelous per se. Fleming v. Mattinson [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 650. Charge of falsehood libelous per se at common law, and rule not changed by Acts 1901, p. 30, c. 26. Id.

Held not actionable per se: Charge that or injuring one in his business or occupation.[97] Words actionable per se may be spoken of a corporation.[98] Words may be libelous though if not written they would not have been slanderous.[99] The court or jury[1] in determining whether a publication is libelous per se must consider the article as a whole[2] in the light of the common acceptation of the terms employed,[3] the question being what was understood by the hearers or readers.[4] The headlines of a newspaper are frequently determinative of the question whether an article is libelous.[5] Defamation of a class of persons is not actionable by the individual members unless the libelous article is shown to refer to a particular person or to every person of the class.[6] Mere disparaging words are actionable only upon proof of special damage.[7]

(§ 2) B. Publication.[See 10 C. L. 612]—The libelous matter must be published by being communicated to some third person.[8] Sending a sealed letter through the mail to the person defamed thereby is not sufficient publication[9] unless the sender knows that the letter will be opened by a third person,[10] and a publication is not ef-man was not fit to associate with decent people and had been in jail, not actionable per se. Bleitz v. Carton [Wash.] 95 P 1099. Article to effect that plaintiff had secured marriage license, that due to mysterious intervention marriage did not take place, that groom said he did not know where bride was, not libelous per se. Whitehouse v. Cowles, 48 Wash. 546, 93 P 1086. Article as to conviction of murderers wherein accused stated that jurors had been bribed not libelous per se, since article as whole condemned murderers for statement and discredited same. Tate v. Nicholson Pub. Co. [La.] 47 S 774. Series of articles in newspaper referring to another publication and stating that latter could say what it pleased, and criticising acts of mayor and governing body, held not libelous per se. Flowers v. Smith [Mo.] 112 SW 499. Newspaper article concerning feud between plaintiff's relatives not libelous as matter of law, plaintiff not being stated as living there. Merrill v. Post Pub. Co., 197 Mass. 185, 83 NE 419.

97. A false, unprivileged publication which necessarily causes injury to a person in his personal, social, official or business relations is actionable per se. Briggs v. Brown [Fla.] 46 S 325. Charging physician with having stolen land of another is not charge in reference to profession so as to be actionable per se. Jones v. Bush [Ga.] 62 SE 279.

98. Where language used is defamatory and injuriously affects credit, occasioning pecuniary injury. Hapgoods v. Crawford, 110 NYS 122. Printed words must import indictable offense involving moral turpitude, or such malevolence, misconduct or obloquy as affects the corporation or affects a pecuniary loss. Warner Instrument Co. v. Ingersoll, 157 F 311. Words held not slanderous per se, as not charging crime or disease and not prejudicing corporation in business. Farbenfabriken v. Beringer [C. C. A.] 158 F 802.

99. Requisite of charge of crime relates only to slander, and any written statement tending to incite hatred, contempt or ridicule is libelous. Gordon v. New York Evening Journal Pub. Co., 111 NYS 574.

1. See post, § 5D. Trial as to when jury determines actionable nature of words.

2. Tate v. Nicholson Pub. Co. [La.] 47 S 774; Johnston v. Turner [Ala.] 47 S 570. Article making libelous charge that plaintiff was smuggler not qualified. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 574.

3. De Festetics v. Sun Print. & Pub. Ass'n, 57 Misc. 194, 109 NYS 30; Johnston v. Turner [Ala.] 47 S 570. "Misappropriation" susceptible of imputing dishonesty, embracing embezzlement. Johnston v. Turner [Ala.] 47 S 570. Newspaper article construed as not libelous, merely stating assault on small boy by two other boys which nearly culminated in death. Gordon v. Journal Pub. Co. [Vt.] 69 A 742. Words must be construed in their more innocent sense unless accompanied by averments of local meaning of a grosser nature. Words "she is a fast girl and not fit to teach school," "she is a girl of loose character and not fit to teach school," I am only sorry for one thing that I did not strap her when I had the chance," not actionable per se on demurrer. Brinsfield v. Howeth, 107 Md. 278, 68 A 566.

4. Ervin v. Record Pub. Co. [Cal.] 97 P 21; Bashford v. Wells [Kan.] 96 P 663; Gordon v. Journal Pub. Co. [Vt.] 69 A 742. Words "stolen" and "robbed" not used as implying larceny and robbery. Good v. Grit Pub. Co., 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 238. Newspaper article construed and held to charge perjury with no statement of attending circumstances showing charge to be unfounded. Brown v. Knapp & Co. fective when brought about by the contrivance of the plaintiff.[11] Only one publication takes place where a newspaper is issued and distributed in various counties of a state.[12]

(§ 2) C. Malice.[See 10 C. L. 612]—Express malice may always be shown [13] and may appear from the publication itself [14] or from the circumstances surrounding the publication,[15] and repetition of the slander is competent to show malice.[16] Defendant is entitled to rebut express malice as by showing a retraction,[17] and may testify directly as to his own intent.[18] Malice is often involved in the question of privilege.[19] Failure of defendant to investigate the truth of a charge alleged by him as provocation is not conclusive of malice.[20] Malice is presumed where the words are actionable per se,[21] though the contrary has been held where the statement was made as a repetition of what others said.[22]

§ 3. Privilege and justification.[See 10 C. L. 613]—Answers of a witness are absolutely privileged.[23] Qualified privilege extends to all bona fide communications upon any subject in which the communicant has an interest or duty to a person having a corresponding interest or duty.[24] The doctrine of qualified privilege extends not only to official proceedings, such as police investigation of alleged crimes,[25] informations to procure arrest,[26] communications in official reports,[27] and to the publication of proceedings in the public courts of justice,[28] executive and legisla-

Not privileged: Publication of partial proceedings where no judicial action has been had not privileged. Brown v. Globe Printing Co. [Mo.] 112 SW 462. Must be public investigation, at least so much as is implied in submission to judicial mind with view to judicial action. Id. Newspaper may not repeat defamatory statements made in exercise of absolute privilege, though such statements are published in good faith as matter of news. Id. Publication of portions of brief at extradition hearing which portions reflected upon character of plaintiff imputing crime not privileged. Id. Defamatory statements of counsel in court. Brown v. Knapp & Co. [Mo.] 112 SW 474. Act of publication an adoption of original calumny. Id. Interspercing headlines through body of report, such as "Charge of Perjury" and "Knew it Was Untrue," beyond privilege. Id. Publication of experts from brief reflecting on character of another not permissible after decision. Brown v. Globe Printing Co. [Mo.] 112 SW 462. Newspaper article criticising graveling district commissioners, asserting overcharge of $7,000 calling attention to wretched paving and averring that other "overcharges" would be found, not privileged. Murray v. Galbraith [Ark.] 109 SW 1011. Subsequent publication stating that libel suit had been filed, that same was conclusive of plaintiff's determination to shift responsibilities on innocent parties, and repeating charges, not privileged. Id.

29. Brown v. Globe Printing Co. [Mo.] 112 SW 462.

30. Publication of article commenting on candidate for re-election. Coleman v. MacLennan [Kan.] 98 P 281. Comments must be fair and impartial. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 574. Acts 1901, p. 30, c. 26, § 3, subd. 4, as to privilege, relates solely to criticism of official acts and matters of public concern. Id. Under Acts 1901, p. 30, c. 26, § 3, subd. 4, privilege is not extended unless comment is fair and reasonable. Id. Article charging smuggling and possibly bribing of custom house officials not privileged as comment on official acts. Id. A false charge of facts amounting to moral turpitude is libelous. Sheibley v. Fales [Neb.] 116 NW 1035. False charges imputing criminal offense or moral delinquency not privileged. Russell v. Washington Post Co., 31 App. D. C. 277. Article as to minister who was defendant in divorce suit imputing misconduct not privileged, being attack on private life and character. Id. Publication of false criminal charge concerning candidate for public office not privileged within Civ. Code, § 47, subd. 3, declaring as privileged a communication without malice between interested persons. Dauphiny v. Buhne, 153 Cal. 757, 96 P 880.

31. State newspaper published primarily for state constituency is not deprived of privilege in discussion of subjects of statewide concern because paper has small circulation elsewhere. Coleman v. MacLennan [Kan.] 98 P 281. In the discussion of matters of public interest, ridicule, sarcasm and invective may be employed if based on fact. Hubbard v. Allyn [Mass.] 86 NE 356. Where chemist published article criticising plaintiff, a baker, for purchasing vanilla which according to analysis must have cost $2.75 per gallon, such price was pivotal point of article and where found to be false would authorize finding that article was not fair comment but attack on plaintiff's business. Id. Although members of board of health expressed view made by church members in accordance with the discipline of the church,[32] and to statements fairly and reasonably necessary to the transaction of private business.[33] The application of the principle is not precluded because the communication was voluntary,[34] but the statement must not needlesssly injure the person spoken of.[35] A communication absolutely privileged is not actionable though made maliciously,[36] but qualified privilege is unavailable if the publication is malicious.[37] Malice is not presumed.[38] It may, however, be established from the publication,[39] or the evidence of malice which is apparent from the article may be used in establishing malice.[40] If defendant did in fact act in good faith, it is not necessary that he should have had probable cause to believe the statements,[41] and the fact that the statement is false does not establish malice,[42] unless that fact is known to the publisher.[43] Neither is malice to be presumed from the refusal of one making a qualifiedly privileged communication to name his informant.[44] The questions of privilege and malice are often submitted to the jury.[45]

Truth.[See 10 C. L. 615]—In some states the publication of a defamatory statement is not actionable if true,[46] but all the substantially defamatory statements must be that article be published concerning use of vanilla by local baker, there is no presumption that anything but fair comment should be published. Id. Taking of census matter of public interest warranting criticism though libel is prohibited. Flowers v. Smith [Mo.] 112 SW 499. Newspaper may not publish defamatory remarks of stockholder at private meeting. Kimball v. Post Pub. Co., 199 Mass. 248, 85 NE 103. Publication of defamatory statements made at meeting of stockholders of private corporation not privileged, since matters not public or for public purpose. Id. Where defamatory statements were published in reporting a meeting of a private corporation, it is no defense that a bill in equity has been filed making the same charges. Id. Newspaper not liable for imputed malice for publication of charges as to fraudulent racing and action taken by racing authorities, though proceedings are ex parte. Rabb v. Trevelyan [La.] 47 S 455. A newspaper may publish the report of a quasi public body if without malicious intent. Id. Fraudulent racing concerns public. Id. Plea of justification sustained by proof. true to afford a complete defense.[47] In Nebraska the truth when published with good motives and justifiable ends is a sufficient defense.[48] One cannot set up defense that the libel was a truthful recital of what others asserted.[49]

§ 4. Damages and the aggravation and mitigation thereof.[50]—The question of damages is peculiarly for the jury.[51] While nominal damages may be awarded,[52] general damages are presumed in the publication of matter actionable per se[53] and include damages for mental suffering.[54] Damages may be recovered upon proof of special injury where the publication is not privileged and not actionable per se,[55] though the damages recoverable are only compensatory.[56] Such damages include compensation for wounded feelings and loss of reputation,[57] and proof that plaintiff has a family and of whom it consists is proper to show damage;[58] but no compensation can be allowed for the mental anguish of plaintiff's family nor for plaintiff's grief at the distress of his family.[59] The constituents of compensatory damages are not the same when a corporation is libeled.[60] Attorney's fees are not recoverable.[61] Generally[62] a recovery of exemplary damages is authorized where the publication is prompted by malice.[63] Exemplary damages may be based upon any publication libelous per se,[64] but are not allowed merely because the libel is false.[65] The jury may determine if they should be awarded.[66] In mitigation the defendant may show that the slander was provoked by the plaintiff,[67] that a retraction was published,[68] or that he had good cause for believing the charge to be true.[69] Where the general issue is pleaded, the defendant may show in mitigation of damages the general bad reputation of the plaintiff.[70] The fact that another newspaper had previously published a substantially similar report,[71] or that the defendant had denied such other report, cannot be shown in mitigation.[72] A plea of justification reiterating the libel is an aggravation of the wrong and may be considered in assessing damages, when the defendant offers no evidence to prove the truth.[73] Damages assessed by the jury will not be interfered with in the absence of abuse of discretion.[74]

§ 5. Actions and procedure. A. Conditions precedent and procedure in general.[See 10 C. L. 618]—The right of action for a libel contained in a newspaper accrues wherever the newspaper is publicly circulated.[75] An action for libel cannot be commenced by trustee process,[76] and a discovery of an instrument alleged to be a libel cannot be enforced against a defendant.[77] Where an undertaking for costs is required,[78] the refusal of a new understaking in lieu of a defective one may be an abuse of discretion.[79] In some states notice to the publishers by the aggrieved party is requisite.[80]

(§ 5) B. Pleading.[See 10 C. L. 617]—An allegation of extrinsic facts showing that the words were spoken of the plaintiff is necessary if the defamatory words are indefinite,[81] except where the rule is changed by statute.[82] The use of the word

76. Rev. St. Me. 1903, c. 88, § 1, enumerating actions which may not be commenced in that manner construed, and words "slander by writing or speaking," held to include libel. Macurda v. Globe Newspaper Co., 165 F 104.

77. Discovery would compel furnishing of evidence which might be used on criminal prosecution. Riddle v. Blackburne, 110 NYS 748. Opposition to motion is defendant's only opportunity to object to being compelled to furnish such evidence. Id.

78. Jurisdiction of court in action of slander does not depend upon whether sufficient undertaking for costs is filed at commencement of action, since undertaking required by St. 1871, p. 533, c. 377, § 1, may be filed later. Becker v. Schmidlin, 153 Cal. 669, 96 P 280.

79. Where plaintiff believed undertaking sufficient, where sureties were in court to justify and refusal operated to defeat action because of limitations. Becker v. Schmidlin, 153 Cal. 669, 96 P 280. New undertaking may be filed in lieu of defective one. Id.

80. Laws 1899, p. 101, c. 59, not complied with. Whitehouse v. Cowles, 48 Wash. 546, 93 P 1086. Notice served on one defendant but no proper proof that he was publisher, since evidence submitted was incompetent because of remoteness and rule against proving agency by declarations of agent. Id.

81. Rule at common law and not changed by statute. Flowers v. Smith [Mo.] 112 SW 499. Where allegation will admit introduction of evidence to show that plaintiff was person referred to, it is sufficient. Van Hensen v. Argenteau, 124 App. Div. 776, 109 NYS 238. Statement in inducement that plaintiff was student in public schools, that words were published concerning him, insufficient

"whereas" in the inducement is unnecessary.[83] A special allegation of malice is proper,[84] and an allegation of falsity and malice deprives the libelous matter of its character as a privileged communication.[85] Allegations of reckless and willful publication are not objectionable as conclusions.[86] The time of every traversable fact must be stated.[87] An allegation that the libel was published concerning plaintiff in his professional or business capacity is necessary in order to recover for injury to business.[88] Only the libelous passages of an article need be set out.[89] In pleading a series of newspaper articles, the vice of duplicity must be avoided,[90] and each count must stand on its own allegations.[91] Improper joinder gives defendant the right to demand an election.[92] The innuendo is merely a form or mode of introducing explanation,[93] and it cannot operate to alter the effect of the previous words.[94] Innuendo is necessary when it is sought to attach a covert meaning to words apparently harmless[95] or where the complaint would otherwise be uncertain.[96] It is not necessary where the words are certain and actionable per se.[97] The innuendo may tend to limit the effect of the language alleged.[98] An improved innuendo is mere surplusage.[99] The legal effect of the innuendo is a question of law which arises on the demurrer.[1] Plaintiff need not allege that the publication tended to expose her to public hatred where the words are actionable per se,[2] and,

and not cured by innuendo. Gordon v. Journal Pub. Co. [Vt.] 69 A 742. No cause of action where libelous article refers to class of persons, and personal application cannot be given to plaintiff by inducement or colloquium. Comes v. Cruce, 85 Ark. 79, 107 SW 185.

82. Complaint alleging that article was published of and concerning plaintiff is sufficient where article is libelous per se, though plaintiff is not identified as person libeled. Unnecessary to allege "any extrinsic fact for the purpose of showing the application to plaintiff." Code Civ. Proc. § 535. Van Heusen v. Argenteau, 124 App. Div. 776, 109 NYS 238.

83. Defect formal and only reached at common law by special demurrer. Stewart v. Codrington [Fla.] 45 S 809.

84. Though malice may be inferred. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 574.

85. Stewart v. Codrington [Fla.] 45 S 809.

86. Since statement of facts would involve pleading of evidence. San Antonio Pub. Co. v. Lewy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 574.

87. Requirement not relaxed by rule that variance between time alleged and proof is not fatal. Gordon v. Journal Pub. Co. [Vt.] 69 A 742. "About" renders allegation uncertain. Id.

88. Stewart v. Codrington [Fla.] 45 S 809. Failure to allege limits damages to those sustained in private character. Id.

89. Provided nothing be omitted which qualifies or alters sense. Meriwether v. Knapp & Co., 211 Mo. 199, 109 SW 750. Defendant may present different meaning. Register Newspaper Co. v. Worten, 33 Ky. L. R. 840, 111 SW 693.

90. Each publication in separate count. Flowers v. Smith [Mo.] 112 SW 499; Gordon v. Journal Pub. Co. [Vt.] 69 A 742. Declaration consisting of three counts, each setting out separate publication, not duplicitous. Gordon v. Journal Pub. Co. [Vt.] 67 A 742. Count containing three statements of defendant at different times, i. e., three distinct causes of action, bad for duplicity. Brinsfield v. Howeth, 107 Md. 278, 68 A 566. Eighteen different libelous articles in one count. Flowers v. Smith [Mo.] 112 SW 499.

91. Libelous article annexed as exhibit to another count but no reference. Merrill v. Post Pub. Co., 197 Mass. 185, 83 NE 419. Allegation that libel was printed concerning plaintiff "in his office as postmaster" does not add to previous allegation of libel on him as citizen. Id.

92. Remaining charges to be dismissed. Flowers v. Smith [Mo.] 112 SW 499.

93. Brinsfield v. Howeth, 107 Md. 278, 68 A 566; Gordon v. Journal Pub. Co. [Vt.] 69 A 742.

2. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 574.

where a publication is actionable per se, special damages need not be alleged,[3] but otherwise such allegation is necessary.[4]

Plea or answer.[See 10 C. L. 617]—Truth must be pleaded to be available as a defense,[5] and to be a complete defense the plea of justification must be broad enough to cover the entire charge.[6] Where the defamatory matter charged in general in its nature, the plea of justification should be specific[7] but a general allegation is proper where the alleged libel is specific.[8] To supplement the new matter set forth in a defense of justification, paragraphs of the answer proper may be repeated.[9] An affirmative defense of justification need not contain a denial of the extent of the plaintiff's damages.[10] The failure to plead the truth of the libel operates as an admission of its falsity.[11] A plea of qualified privilege must negative falsity and malice.[12] An affirmative partial defense may contain repetitions of the answer proper which are necessary,[13] and where facts are not expressly pleaded as a partial defense, the plea must be tested on demurrer as if given in complete defense.[14] A denial and a plea of privilege[15] or a denial and a plea that the words are true[16] may not be inconsistent. Allegations unsupported by evidence[17] or allegations which merely repeat the denial[18] may properly be stricken. An answer treated as adequate in the trial will not be disturbed after verdict.[19]

Declaration alleging that false and malicious letter was sent by officer of improvement company to indemnity company and alleging special damages not demurrable. Briggs v. Brown [Fla.] 46 S 325. Complaint not demurrable though not alleging special damages, unless words used are incapable of any reasonable construction which will make them defamatory. Chanler v. Town Topics Pub. Co. [C. C. A.] 161 F 105.

5. Act 1901, p. 30, c. 26, making truth a defense does not change necessity of pleading. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 574.

6. In libel suit for publishing letter charging plaintiff as dishonest in two transactions, plea of justification alleging that plaintiff was dishonest in one transaction is not broad enough to be a complete defense. Lapetina v. Santangelo, 124 App. Div. 519, 108 NYS 975.

7. Sheibley v. Fales [Neb.] 116 NW 1035. Must state specific facts showing in what instances and in what exact manner plaintiff has misconducted himself or has done things charged against him. Fodor v. Fuchs [N. J. Law] 71 A 108. Plea failing to set forth time, place, facts, or circumstances of conviction relied upon in justification bad for uncertainty and should be stricken. Id.

8. Sheibley v. Fales [Neb.] 116 NW 1035.

9. Allegations of meaning of article and denials of meaning alleged in complaint. Haffen v. Tribune Ass'n, 111 NYS 225. Paragraph of the answer proper, consisting of admission that defendant published an article, set out at length, is properly repeated. To make defense complete and include article. Id. Repetition of denial, from answer proper, of false and malicious publication, is unnecessary. Where defense alleged that article was true, privileged and published in good faith. Id.

11. Brinsfield v. Howeth, 107 Md. 278, 68 A 566.

12. Lapetina v. Santangelo, 124 App. Div. 519, 108 NYS 975. Defense that defendant wrote libelous letter to attorney in connection with professional services rendered and that letter was privileged is plea of qualified privilege. Id.

13. Defense in mitigation may contain denial of extent of damages alleged in complaint. Haffen v. Tribune Ass'n, 111 NYS 225.

14. Lapetina v. Santangelo, 124 App. Div. 519, 108 NYS 975.

15. Where complaint charged that defendant had spoken a positive charge of bigamy, defendant's denial was not inconsistent with a plea of privilege wherein defendant stated that the words were spoken in a conditional statement and such allegation was not an admission. Bleitz v. Carton [Wash.] 95 P 1099.

16. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 113, defendant may deny speaking words in one allegation and in another allege that the words are true without being required to elect between them. Whittaker v. McQueen, 32 Ky. L. R. 1094, 108 SW 236. Assumption in instruction that defendant admitted in answer that article was written of and concerning plaintiff erroneous where defendant pleaded general denial and special defense of jurisdiction but no admission. Flowers v. Smith [Mo.] 112 SW 499.

17. Portion of answer setting up plaintiff's unfitness or lack of qualification in holding certain office properly stricken. Julian v. Kansas City Star Co., 209 Mo. 35, 107 SW 496.

18. Words alleged in answer in addition to denial giving statement of what was actually said which statement was not libelous per se should be stricken on motion being merely repetition of denial. Zentzshel v. Richi, 33 Ky. L. R. 657, 110 SW 832.

19. Sheibley v. Fales [Neb.] 116 NW 1035.

Demurrer.[See 10 C. L. 617]—An objection to the sufficiency of the declaration must be made by demurrer[20] or motion in arrest of judgment.[21] Upon demurrer it is the province of the court to determine if the words charged in the declaration amount to slander.[22] A demurrer will lie where it is apparent that the article was not published concerning the plaintiff,[23] where special damages are not sufficiently pleaded,[24] or where the complaint is otherwise fatally defective.[25] Where a libelous article did not identify the person libeled, and the plaintiff alleged that the article was published concerning her, such fact was admitted by demurrer for want of facts.[26]

Bills of particulars.[See 8 C. L. 725]—A bill of particulars is unnecessary to explain an allegation if injury where no special damage is alleged.[27]

(§ 5) C. Evidence.[See 10 C. L. 618]—The burden of proving express malice rests upon the plaintiff when the libel is qualifiedly privileged.[28] Where a conspiracy between two joint defendants to defame the plaintiff is alleged, plaintiff has the burden of proof.[29] Where the words are actionable per se, the burden of proving justification is on the defendant.[30] The libelous words must be proved as laid.[31]

20. Gates v. Little, 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 422.

21. Delay until after verdict results in curing of many defects. Gates v. Little, 36 Pa. Code 1906, § 10, words considered as insults Super. Ct. 422.

22. Brinsfield v. Howeth, 107 Md. 278, 68 A 566.

23. Article referring to nonunion telegraph operator of certain company and it appeared that plaintiff had been union man three years and had not been employed by said company for nine years. Fagan v. New York Evening Journal Pub. Co., 113 NYS 62.

24. Insufficient facts to state cause of action. Fagan v. New York Evening Journal Pub. Co., 113 NYS 62.

25. Demurrer properly sustained where truth of article not denied, where article not libelous per se and no inducement, colloquium or innuendo pleaded. Whitehouse v. Cowles, 48 Wash. 546, 93 P 1086. In action against election manager for stating that plaintiff was convict, declaration failing to aver malice, or to state that charge was not true, or that defendant did not make challenge in good faith, is subject to demurrer. Dedeaux v. King [Miss.] 45 S 466. Under and calculated to lead to breach of peace are actionable. Id.

26. Van Heusen v. Argenteau, 124 App. Div. 776, 109 NYS 238.

27. Allegation that plaintiff's reputation had been injured with reference to former employers. Loscher v. Hager, 124 App. Div. 568, 109 NYS 562. Where plaintiff alleged that defendant without provocation summoned police officer to arrest him for offense of which he was not guilty, defendant was not entitled to bill of particulars since he might ascertain officer as well as plaintiff. Id.

28. Butterworth v. Todd [N. J. Law] 70 A 139. Proof of express malice insufficient though word "forged" used when it appeared that such word was used in popular sense as fabrication of false charge. Id. Where plaintiff's averments that libelous statements were false and malicious, were traversed and on trial it was admitted that defendant pubnot rely on presumptions, but must prove lished libel on official report, plaintiff could both falsity and malice, though truth had been specially pleaded. Barry v. McCollom [Conn.] 70 A 1035.

29. Instruction approved. Rice v. McAdams [N. C.] 62 SE 774.

30. Rice v. McAdams [N. C.] 62 SE 774; Sheibley v. Fales [Neb.] 116 NW 1035. Instruction as to conspiracy, requiring plaintiff to produce greater weight of evidence, approved. Rice v. McAdams [N. C.] 62 SE 774. Where answer denies slander and alleges that words are true, plaintiff has burden of proof. Whittaker v. McQueen, 32 Ky. L. R. 1094, 108 SW 236.

31. Other equivalent words insufficient. Hill v. Leffler, 133 Ill. App. 266. Where count charged that "defendant by its agents" uttered alleged slanders, an offer of proof that agents "severally published the various oral statements set out" was insufficient to raise an issue, there being no proof that slanders were uttered in course of employment. Kane v. Boston Mut. Life Ins. Co. [Mass.] 86 NE 302. No material variance where proof sustained allegation as to stealing check but failed to add "on R. Y. Austin." Zentzshel v. Richie, 33 Ky. L. R. 657, 110 SW 832. Where pleading was contended to be insufficient as not setting out all of libel, but such matter was fully introduced in evidence and did not show variance. Meriwether v. Knapp & Co., 211 Mo. 199, 109 SW 750. Proof need not in every minute particular correspond with words alleged. Former strict rule as to variance relaxed. Bleitz v. Carton [Wash.] 95 P 1099. Reason for requiring substantial proof of the words alleged is that defendant may plead justification (Id.), but absence of a plea of justification does not decrease the amount of accuracy of proof required (Id.). Proof of slanderous words spoken in a conditional or hypothetical statement does not support an allegation of words pleaded as a positive or direct assertion. Id. Proof by other persons at other times and places insufficient to sustain verdict, where plaintiff did not amend or seek to do so, and effect of admitting such evidence to sustain verdict would be to render bill of particulars furnished of no value. Id. Variance fatal where words alleged were actionable per se as charging bigamy and words proven could not by any possible construction charge plaintiff with

Evidence of justification[32] or mitigation[33] is only admissible if pleaded, and matter pleaded in justification is not admissible in mitigation.[34] Evidence which only justifies a portion of the libel is admissible when that portion is severable.[35] Evidence of intent is inadmissible where the publication is actionable per se and unambiguous.[36] A record of a church trial is only admissible to refresh the memory of the witness.[37] Evidence of facts wholly irrelevant to the charge in the libel[38] or hearsay[39] should be excluded. Where a prosecuting attorney was accused of being a party to a conspiracy to blackmail, evidence that he did not investigate the character of a prosecuting witness was irrelevant.[40] Corroborative evidence should not be stricken.[41] Upon proper foundation, a copy of the paper containing the libel is admissible.[42] The admissibility of evidence may involve a construction of the libelous article,[43] and where a libelous utterance refers to an article in another newspaper, the latter article is competent.[44] Words written or spoken by defendant before or after those sued on, or after the commencement of the action, are admissible.[45] In slander charging theft, evidence of plaintiff's indictment and acquittal is not admissible.[46] It is admissible to prove that the plaintiff is the person referred to in a defamation[47] to show malice[48] or the absence of it,[49] to explain the bigamy. Id. Where plaintiff alleged that defendant spoke as follows, "Blutz is a bigamist. I threw it in his teeth and he did not deny it. He has two wives," proof that defendant did not call plaintiff "a bigamist in so many words, that is, he didn't call Mr. Blutz a bigamist that I can recollect," not only was a variance but in effect a positive denial. Id. Directed verdict proper where facts completely at variance with pleadings and plaintiff not entitled to damages. Id.

32. Dorn v. Cooper [Iowa] 117 NW 1.

33. Where article charged existence of pool to buy hogs, evidence of actual prices at town and elsewhere was not admissible in mitigation of damages, such defense not being pleaded and article only purporting to be based on defendant's own knowledge. Dorn v. Cooper [Iowa] 117 NW 1.

37. Not public or quasi public record. Harms v. Proehl, 104 Minn. 303, 116 NW 587.

38. In action of libel charging plaintiff, a village attorney, of dishonesty, advising a suit to be brought, derogatory question as to suit brought several years before properly excluded as immaterial. Smith v. Hubbell, 151 Mich. 59, 14 Det. Leg. N. 874, 114 NW 865. Deposition of witness as to what was said in conversation outside of charge on which declaration was based erroneously admitted. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Rivers [Miss.] 46 S 705. Evidence of authority of revenue officer to search houses in case of suspected smuggling irrelevant in action for libel where newspaper article charged smuggling. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 574. Report of government officers, though official proceeding, was nevertheless inadmissible as evidence, since article charging plaintiff with smuggling did not refer to such report. Id.

39. Telegrams with reference to extradition proceedings, which proceedings were privileged. Brown v. Globe Print. Co. [Mo.] 112 SW 462. In libel charging smuggling, report of goverment officers excluded as hearsay. San Antonio Light Pub. C. v. Lewy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 574. Letter by third person to defendant not admissible since third person may be called as witness. Whittaker v. McQueen, 32 Ky. L. R. 1094, 108 SW 236.

Authenticated copy of evidence of witnesses before state senate hearsay, notwithstanding Rev. St. 1899, § 3091 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 1772), declaring documents prima facie evidence, since no proof of authority. Julian v. Kansas City Star Co., 209 Mo. 35, 107 SW 496. Inadmissible to show justification. Id. No showing that such witnesses could not be produced at trial. Id.

40. In seeking to justify. Pickford v. Talbott, 29 S. Ct. 75.

41. Evidence that defendant showed letter to witness which read like one declared on, that defendant stated it was copy, is corroborative and should not be stricken. Briggs v. Brown [Fla.] 46 S 325.

42. Where evidence showed defendant as publisher. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 574.

43. Libelous article against judge charging misconduct construed as sufficiently broad, on plea of justification to admit of evidence of misconduct both at chambers and on bench. People v. Cornell, 110 NYS 648.

44. Flowers v. Smith [Mo.] 112 SW 499.

meaning of ambiguous phrases,[50] and to show loss of trade [51] or other evidence of damage.[52] Evidence of defendant's refusal to publish a retraction is not admissible to enhance the plaintiff's recovery.[53] Proof that plaintiff's reputation for chastity is bad is proper in mitigation,[54] and where a libelous article criticised a mayor as to a census, it was proper to show that such census was actually erroneous.[55] Improper evidence which is admitted on the promise of counsel to connect with later evidence may be stricken on his failure to introduce such evidence.[56]

(§ 5) D. Trial.[See 10 C. L. 620]—The question of whether an article is actionable per se is determined by the court when the words are clear and unambiguous,[57] but when doubtful in their meaning,[58] or where an ulterior meaning is imputed to 46 S 705. Evidence that witness went to defendant and requested him to cease libels and resulting conversation not competent in rebuttal. Flowers v. Smith [Mo.] 112 SW 499.

Publications dealing with unworthiness of plaintiff to hold office though referring to entirely different matters, admissible to show malice. Julian v. Kansas City Star Co., 209 Mo. 35, 107 SW 496. Other publications than one sued on admissible to show malice, especially when dealing with same subject. Id.; Meriwether v. Knapp & Co., 211 Mo. 199, 109 SW 750. Remote evidence of malice admissible, remoteness only going to weight of evidence. Julian v. Kansas City Star Co., 209 Mo. 35, 107 SW 496. Publication devoted entirely to arraigning another man admissible to show malice when such man previously associated with plaintiff in other articles. Meriwether v. Knapp & Co., 211 Mo. 199, 109 SW 750. Rule at common law that unproved plea of justification was evidence of malice is abrogated by Code. Whittaker v. McQueen, 32 Ky. L. R. 1094, 108 SW 236. Where there was no evidence to sustain flagrant charges of unchastity against plaintiff made in the answer, such answer might be considered as bearing on defendant's good faith. Discretionary with judge. Reynolds v. Vinier, 109 NYS 293.

49. Where article was published charging that pool existed for purchase of hogs, defendant to rebut inference of actual malice might show prices at town and elsewhere. Dorn v. Cooper [Iowa] 117 NW 1. Evidence that defendant's attention was called to schoolhouse, and that he replied that condition was deplorable and that he had report which he was sorry to send in, admissible to show absence of malice. Barry v. McCollom [Conn.] 70 A 1035.

Facts in defendant's knowledge at time of publication are competent to repel inference of malice. Julian v. Kansas City Star Co., 209 Mo. 35, 107 SW 496; Flowers v. Smith [Mo.] 112 SW 499. Evidence that defendant did not act maliciously and that his feelings both before and after publication were friendly to plaintiff is proper since malice is in issue. Dorn v. Cooper [Iowa] 118 NW 35, rvg. [Iowa] 117 NW 1. Evidence of the opposing party's feelings to the defendant is inadmissible being mere inference or conclusion. Dorn v. Cooper [Iowa] 118 NW 35.

50. Evidence to prove peculiar or extraordinary meaning of words admissible upon proper foundation. Brinsfield v. Howeth, 107 Md. 278, 68 A 566. Slander and damage lie in the comprehension of the hearers. Id. Evidence of circumstances under which libel published competent to show meaning when ambiguous. Julian v. Kansas City Star Co., 209 Mo. 35, 107 SW 496. Where the words are susceptible of more than one meaning or may be offensive from the circumstances under which they were uttered, evidence of what witnesses understood words to mean is admissible. Evidence of same character as opinion evidence to be weighed with caution. Id. Question should not be submitted to jury if words not susceptible of contended construction. Id.

51. Smith v. Hubbell, 151 Mich. 59, 14 Det. Leg. N. 874, 114 NW 865; Hubbard v. Allyn [Mass.] 86 NE 356. Evidence that after publication friends of plaintiff refused to call upon her, and employ her for sewing. Gates v. Little, 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 422.

52. Evidence of plaintiff's writings and their circulation and size of congregation proper, to show damage in libel on minister. Russell v. Washington Post Co., 31 App. D. C. 277.

53. Punitive damages not allowed. Dennison v. Daily News Pub. Co. [Neb.] 118 NW 568. Fact that other publishers had published retraction inadmissible. Id.

54. On charge of unchastity where defendant pleads in mitigation that plaintiff's reputation for chastity is bad, letters written by plaintiff to certain man tending to prove defendant's assertion are admissible. Raymond v. Ring, 112 NYS 1.

55. In libel regarding denial of correct census by mayor, the plaintiff, evidence that such census was incorrect was competent being matter of public interest and also admissible in mitigation. Flowers v. Smith [Mo.] 112 SW 499. On mitigation showing that census was actually erroneous, hearsay evidence is inadmissible and statements made to witness discrediting census inadmissible. Id.

57. Julian & Kansas City Star Co., 209 Mo. 35, 107 SW 496; Gordon v. Journal Pub. Co. [Vt.] 69 A 742. To warrant withdrawal of case from jury, it must appear that words are in no sense susceptible of defamatory interpretation. Merrill v. Post Pub. Co., 197 Mass. 185, 83 NE 419. Quantity of alleged libel as it stands upon record is question of law for court. Whether libel simple or explained by innuendos. Good v. Grit Pub. Co., 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 238. In civil cases court is bound to instruct as to whether publication is libelous, supposing innuendos to be true. Id. Where descriptive words in publication are not equivocal, and there is no evidence from which it could be understood to apply to plaintiff, court may properly instruct they do not apply to plaintiff. words inoffensive on their face,[59] a question of fact is presented. The question of whether an article was published concerning the plaintiff is a question of fact,[60] unless there is no ambiguity as to the meaning of the language used.[61] The question of malice is for the jury[62] and is properly submitted where in the publication of judicial proceedings[63] a pleading is omitted,[64] or an article given undue prominence,[65] or an account of judicial proceedings has been unfairly abridged.[66] If the facts are uncontroverted, an occasion of privilege is determined by the court,[67] but where the evidence is uncertain and conflicting, the jury should determine if the statements were privileged.[68] Some state constitutions make the jury judges of the law in libel cases,[69] and in such states the jury is not bound by the instructions.[70] The instructions should conform to the issues raised by the pleadings[71] and evidence,[72] should properly define the tort,[73] should not give undue prominence to a 35, 107 SW 496; Gordon v. Journal Pub. Co. [Vt.] 69 A 742. Libel based on newspaper article as to arrest of plaintiff's sister for larceny held for jury whether publication reasonably susceptible of defaming plaintiff. Merrill v. Post Pub. Co., 197 Mass. 185, 83 NE 419.

59. Julian v. Kansas City Star Co., 209 Mo. 35, 107 SW 496. Newspaper article saying that plaintiff "did well in a legislative way * * * but also as * * * chief of police," it was said of him that he was not a proper man for the position, etc., sufficiently double in meaning to warrant submission to jury, in view of condition of suspicion in public mind. Report of judicial proceeding found libelous and therefor not privileged by jury who were judges of law and fact. Brown v. Globe Print. Co. [Mo.] 112 SW 462.

70. Jury may decide whether libel or no libel, being both judges of law and fact. Julian v. Kansas City Star Co., 209 Mo. 35, 107 SW 496.

71. Instruction properly refused as tendering false issue on justification. Brown v. Knapp & Co. [Mo.] 112 SW 474; San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 574. Instruction as to provocation not rendered outside issue though answer consisted of denials where evidence showed words to be uttered in street fight. Childs v. Childs [Wash.] 94 P 660. Instruction that statement that plaintiff was habitual drunkard was libel unless privileged proper where it was not claimed that publication was absolutely privileged and jury was required to find malice, justification not being pleaded. Thompson v. Rake [Iowa] 118 NW 279.

72. Instruction ignoring defense of privilege not erroneous being unsupported by evidence. Brown v. Knapp & Co. [Mo.] 112 SW 474. Refusal to submit defense of privilege not error because of want of evidence. Brown v. Globe Print. Co. [Mo.] 112 SW 462. An instruction on theory that there is evidence of privilege erroneous when in fact no such evidence, though from facts on request court should have instructed that publication was not privileged. Dauphiny v. Buhne, 153 Cal. 757, 96 P 880. Instruction as to no evidence of justification not erroneous. Julian v. Kansas City Star Co., 209 Mo. 35, 107 SW 496. Instruction authorizing jury to find for plaintiff unless articles were true or in substance true not erroneous though articles contained immaterial matters not affecting libel. Reg-portion of the evidence[74] or assume controverted matters as proved,[75] and should not be misleading.[76] Reference to the costs of suit is improper.[77] In admitting other publications as evidence of malice, the jury should be instructed not to give damages because of such other words.[78] The right to open and close is with the party having the burden of proof.[79] A new trial may properly be granted where newly-discovered evidence will change the result.[80]

§ 6. Criminal libel and slander. The offense. See 10 C. L. 621—Statutory definitions of criminal libel substantially re-enact the offense as it existed at the common law.[81] In Alabama the publication of a libel which may tend to provoke a breach of the peace is puishable,[82] and an imputation of adultery in circulars which are distributed is punishable.[83] In some jurisdictions a husband may be convicted of slandering his wife.[84] The seizure of a person after admission to bail and forcing him to submit to the photographs and measurements under the Bertillon system ister Newspaper Co. v. Worten, 33 Ky. L. R. 840, 111 SW 693. Instruction not erroneous as authorizing recovery without regard to weight of evidence when other instructions submitted that jury must base findings and verdict on evidence. Childs v. Childs [Wash.] 94 P 660. Instruction submitting whether defendant knew plaintiffs were in business of buying hogs erreneous since such fact was not based on evidence. Dorn v. Cooper [Iowa] 117 NW 1. Instruction erroneous as excluding all evidence of good faith, in mitigation of damages. Flowers v. Smith [Mo.] 112 SW 499. Where evidence showed without conflict that defendant knew or believed that plaintiffs were in certain business, instruction submitting that issue was erroneous. Dorn v. Cooper [Iowa] 117 NW 1.

73. Error to refuse to charge article as libelous per se. Dauphiny v. Buhne, 153 Cal. 757, 96 P 880. In defining libel, definition should be limited to character of libel shown by evidence and instruction in libel for injury to reputation is erroneous as including financial injury not alleged or proved. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 574. Use of words "good name" equivalent to reputation in charge. Id. Requested charge properly refused. Id. Charge as to privilege being in language of statute, refusal of instruction that substantial proof of defense of privilege was sufficient was proper. Id.

74. No comment on facts when instruction considered as whole, in violation of Const. art. 4, § 16. Childs v. Childs [Wash.] 94 P 660.

75. Assumption of publication in charge not erroneous when undisputed. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 574.

76. Requested charge as to existence of probable cause in publication of libel refused as misleading. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 574. Instruction erroneous as misleading since libelous matter did not refer to plaintiff. Flowers v. Smith [Mo.] 112 SW 499. Instruction as to costs misleading since an offer to confess judgment had been made and award of nominal damages would not carry costs. Dorn v. Cooper [Iowa] 117 NW 1. General instruction as to malice erroneous as being too broad and applying correct rule as to proof of malice to articles which were and were not actionable per se. Flowers v. Smith [Mo.] 112 SW 499. Where a libel stated that school teacher had not "even the externals of refinement," an instruction that such matter was rather a subject for jury's own observation was erroneous as misleading the jury to believe such observation best evidence. 78. Separate cause of action. Register Newspaper Co. v. Worten, 33 Ky. L. R. 840, 111 SW 693.

79. Where the publication of a libel actionable per se is admitted, and justification pleaded, defendant has right to produce evidence first and right to open and close argument. Shelbley v. Fales [Neb.] 116 NW 1035.

80. Where new evidence would amply substantiate defendant's plea in mitigation that plaintiff actually was unchaste. Raymond v. Ring, 112 NYS 1.

81. Criminal libel has been defined to be the malicious defamation expressed by printing, writing, signs, pictures or the like tending to blacken the memory of one who is dead, or the honesty, virtue, integrity or reputation of one who is alive, and thereby expose him to public hatred, contempt or ridicule. Pen. Code 1895, § 335. Michael v. Bacon [Ga. App.] 63 SE 228. Definition as recognized at common law. Id. Libel is a malicious defamation expressed either by writing, printing, signs or pictures, tending to impeach the honesty, integrity, virtue or reputation of a person and expose him to public hatred, contempt or ridicule. Rev. St. 1887, § 6737. State v. Sheridan, 14 Idaho, 222, 93 P 656. Libel defined. Rev. St. 1899, § 2259; Ann. St. 1906, p. 1425. State v. Santhuff [Mo. App.] 110 SW 624. Under Rev. St. 1897, § 6737, libel need not charge person with crime. State v. Sheridan, 14 Idaho, 222, 93 P 656.

82. Cr. Code 1896, § 5063. Brooke v. State [Ala.] 45 S 622. Common-law definition applied, since statute does not define. Id. Code 1896, § 5063, qualifies rule that whatever at common law consisted of libel is punishable by adding that the libel must have tendency to provoke breach of peace. Id.

83. Libel by statute (Rev. St. 1899, § 2863 [Ann. St. 1906, p. 1426]) and punishable as misdemeanor (Rev. St. 1899, § 2260). State v. Santhuff [Mo. App.] 110 SW 624. Imputing adultery libel, though charge not sufficient to state crime. Id.

constitutes criminal libel.[85] In some states the publication need not be false in order to maintain a prosecution.[86] False statements are presumed to be malicious and wrongful unless privileged.[87] Words which expose a person to contempt and ridicule are libelous per se,[88] and in construing a doubtful word the court should take its ordinary meaning as it would naturally be understood by persons reading the article.[89] The libelous document must have been published.[90] The publication of judicial proceedings is privileged,[91] but comments on the motives of parties to a judicial proceeding and deductions drawn therefrom as to whether proceedings are in good faith are beyond the scope of privilege.[92] Publications which are privileged as being in the discharge of a duty[93] are strictly limited to the persons to whom the duty is owing.[94]

The prosecution. See 10 C. L. 621—An affidavit need not be as complete, technically, as an information, and is sufficient if it states the elements of the offense.[95] The indictment should state that the libel was published concerning the prosecutor.[96] It need only set forth the libelous portion of an article.[97] Falsity may in some states be alleged in general terms.[98] Truth or good faith is a matter of defense.[99] Evidence of provocation is inadmissible,[1] as is a subsequent publication by defendant disclaiming malice.[2] In a prosecution for imputing want of chastity, evidence

85. Under Pen. Code, §§ 242, 244, 245. Gow v. Bingham, 57 Misc. 66, 107 NYS 1011.

86. Immaterial at common law, and rule not changed by Const. 1901, art. 1, § 12, authorizing evidence of truth of libel, since such provision is silent ae to purpose or extent to which evidence is admissible. Brooke v. State [Ala.] 45 S 622.

87. State v. Cooper [Iowa] 116 NW 691. Fact that libelous publication is based upon reasonable or proper cause does not justify it. Id. Where article ie libelous per se, proof of publication makes prima facie case. State v. Sheridan, 14 Idaho, 222, 93 P 656.

88. Under Rev. St. 1887, § 6737, article concerning governor stating, "Gooding and graft have become so thoroughly known as synonymous terms that the rank and file will have no more of it, etc.," is libelous per se. State v. Sheridan, 14 Idaho, 222, 93 P 656. Libel charging attorney with improper conduct and dishonest motives libelous per se under Code, § 5086, defining criminal libel ae statement which would hold party up to ridicule and contempt, etc. State v. Cooper [Iowa] 116 NW 691.

89. Unless it affirmatively appears that word was used in another sense. State v. Sheridan, 14 Idaho, 222, 93 P 656. Words actionable if epoken will be actionable if published in writing or its equivalent. Id. Use of slang word does not render article less libelous when having well recognized meaning and by tending to impeach honesty exposing person to public hatred, contempt and ridicule. Id. Word "graft" imputes dishonest gain by reason of position, use of office for personal gain without rendering compensatory service, to steal, swindle. Id.

90. By delivery, selling, reading or otherwise communicating or causing this to be done. Rev. St. 1899, § 2261. State v. Santhuff [Mo. App.] 110 SW 624.

91. State v. Cooper [Iowa] 116 NW 691.

92. State v. Cooper [Iowa] 116 NW 691. Charge that lawyer was guilty of improper motives and unprofessional conduct not privileged. Id. Article giving opinion of reporter as to proceedings of judicial, legislative or other public body is not privileged within Rev. St. 1887, § 6743. State v. Sheridan, 14 Idaho, 222, 93 P 656. Under Rev. St. 1887, § 6743, article to be privileged must be fair, true report of judicial, legislative or other public official proceeding, or of statement of speech, etc. Id.

93. Person making publication must have something more resting upon conscience than mere desire to promote public welfare. State v. Cooper [Iowa] 116 NW 691. Publisher of temperance magazine not authorized to attack lawyer for misconduct in conduct of disbarment proceedings against attorneys employed by temperance organization. Id.

94. Privilege not broader than duty. State v. Cooper [Iowa] 116 NW 691. Communication by magazine to persons outside of temperance organization an excess of privilege rendering defense unavailable. Id.

95. Affidavit held sufficient to form basis of information for criminal libel. State v. Santhuff [Mo. App.] 110 SW 624.

96. No form prescribed, but technicalities of common law not required in view of Code 1896, § 5064, permitting general allegations. Brooke v. State [Ala.] 45 S 622.

97. Not entire article. Brooke v. State [Ala.] 45 S 622.

98. Indictment setting out libelous publication in full, alleging that same is "false, scandalous, malicious and defamatory," is sufficient without specific assertion of falsity of each statement contained in publication. Robinson v. State [Md.] 71 A 433.

99. State v. Sheridan, 14 Idaho, 222, 93 P 656. Prosecution need not prove negative of such defense. Id. Under Rev. St. 1887, § 6740, defendant may prove truth of charge as justification. Id.

1. Evidence of abusive language used by prosecutor in regard to defendant before publication of libel for which prosecution was laid not admissible. Robinson v. State [Md.] 71 A 433.

2. Robinson v. State [Md.] 71 A 433.

that the words were spoken to another person than the one alleged is error.[3] Where the language is not libelous per se, its meaning is for the jury,[4] but it is error to submit the meaning of unambiguous language libelous as a matter of law.[5] Where the jury are judges of the law, the instructions are advisory only.[6] Where the libel as circulated by defendant is alleged with exactness, variance with the original manuscript submitted to the printer is immaterial.[7]

§ 7. Jactitation or slander of title. See 10 C. L. 622—An action for slander of title is an action on the case for special damage by reason of the speaking or publication of the slander of the plaintiff's title,[8] and it follows that actual malice and special damage is of the gist of the action.[9]

LICENSES.

The scope of this topic is noted below.[10]

§ 1. Definition and nature. See 10 C. L. 622—While a license is a privilege to do something which without such privilege would be unlawful,[11] the thing to be done may sometimes be prohibited solely for the purpose of giving rise to the necessity of the license.[12] The privilege granted is personal to the licensee[13] and cannot be assigned without the consent of the licensing authority,[14] nor can the personal representative of a deceased licensee receive the benefits of the license.[15] A license is not an appointment to office.[16] The distinction between regulatory fees and revenue taxes is considered in a subsequent section.[17]

3. Porter v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 107 SW 817. Proof utterly irrelevant when witness testified no one present when accused told him slanderous statement. Id.

4. Where the alleged libel does not import a crime or misdemeanor, its libelous character must be referred to the jury as a question of fact. Michael v. Bacon [Ga. App.] 63 SE 228. Language may be reasonably construed by jury as libelous when accusing a man of falsehood in dealing with employes. Id.

5. Imputing criminal misconduct to lawyer. State v. Cooper [Iowa] 116 NW 691.

6. State v. Williams, 77 Kan. 857, 94 P 160.

7. Where printer corrected bad spelling and accused then distributed article, conviction was proper since printed article agreed exactly with information. State v. Santhuff [Mo. App.] 110 SW 624.

8. Not like ordinary defamation. Hygienic Fleeced Underwear Co. v. Way, 35 Pa. Super. Ct. 229.

9. No special damage shown. Hygienic Fleeced Underwear Co. v. Way, 35 Pa. Super. Ct. 229.

10. This topic treats of the general principles applicable to police regulation of occupations and of privilege, business, and occupation taxes as distinguished from general property taxes. Rights relative to the use of land (see Licenses to Enter on Land, 10 C. L. 630), liability of and to licensees of the use of property (see Negligence, 10 C. L. 922), and the specific application of the general principles herein dealt with to particular subject-matter (see such topics as Attorneys and Counselors, 11 C. L. 332; Intoxicating Liquors, 12 C. L. 332; Peddling, 10 C. L. 1159; Pawnbrokers and Secondhand Dealers, 10 C. L. 1147; Medicine and Surgery, 10 C. L. 828; Street Railways, 10 C. L. 1730), are treated elsewhere. § 2. Power to require and validity of statutes. See 10 C. L. 622—It is a well recognized attribute of sovereign power to tax any occupation for the purpose of raising revenue, and such tax may be laid and collected in the form of a license fee.[18] The power to regulate includes the power to license as a means of regulation.[19] Any business the pursuit of which may be prohibited by the state as an exercise of police power may be licensed if not malum in se,[20] and even a prohibited business may be taxed.[21]

The freedom from judicial control enjoyed by the legislature in regard to property taxes in general, subject only to constitutional limitations, does not extend to license, privilege and business taxes.[22] On the other hand, while license, privilege and business taxes are subject to such general constitutional limitations as those relating to the title and subject-matter of legislative acts,[23] abridgement of the natural rights of citizens,[24] liberties guaranteed by the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution,[25] equality before the laws or the equal protection thereof,[26] due process of law,[27] retroactive laws,[28] rights and privileges of citizens of other states,[29] freedom of contract,[30] inviolability of contract,[31] interference with interstate com-

40. License tax imposing same amount upon all engaged in same business, regardless of business done or profits received therefrom, is not an unreasonable discrimination by reason of the fact that different persons in business may have much more capital employed and earn much more profit than others. So held in case of $100 license tax on gas companies where city charter had following proviso: That no discrimination shall be made between persons engaged in the not arbitrary,[41] must be based on some reason suggested by a difference in the situation and circumstances of the subjects treated,[42] and must operate equally upon all within a class.[43] The fact that a discriminating tax applies to all persons of a given class does not render it any the less obnoxious as an unjust discrimination against a class of citizens.[44] An ordinance cannot make a particular act penal when done by one person and impose no penalty for the same act done under like circumstances by another.[45] One who has not been refused a license cannot attack the license law as discriminatory.[46] The fact that property is subject to an ad valorem tax does not prevent the imposition of a tax upon the occupation in which such property is used,[47] and in some instances still another tax may be imposed for the privilege of using such property in certain places.[48] A tax on each vehicle used by hackmen has been held not to be double taxation within a state constitution.[49] Occupation or vocation taxes are not taxes upon labor or upon the right to work.[50]

The power to license and regulate cannot be used as a means of raising revenue,[51] and to be valid as a license tax it must be imposed upon the privilege of engaging in the particular business and not on the property pertaining thereto,[52]

but the power and authority to license and regulate necessarily implies the right to charge and fix the amount of a license fee.[53] Such fee must be reasonable [54] with reference to the expense of enforcing the regulation,[55] and fees in excess of those necessary for regulation are significant of an intent to raise revenue.[56] The rule as to reasonable proportion between the tax and the expense of regulation does not apply to revenue taxes.[57] Regulations imposed under the police power must be reasonable with reference to the health, safety and comfort of the public,[58] and legitimate callings cannot be prohibited under the guise of regulation;[59] but lines of business harmful to public morals or productive of disorder may be so highly taxed as to limit or discourage this business.[60] Reasonableness depends upon the circumstances of the case,[61] and the courts will not interfere on the ground of unreasonableness except in cases of manifest abuse of discretion on the part of the licensing authorities.[62] The rule as to certainty in the description of the acts to be performed

thereunder applies to licensing statutes and ordinances,[63] but the fact that a law imposing an annual license tax is somewhat crude and imperfect and not the best that could be devised for the purposes of raising revenue cannot affect its validity.[64]

Where uniformity is required of occupation taxes, such a tax is invalidated by arbitrary exemptions,[65] but in most of the states liberal exemptions are allowed,[66] the rule being, as in the case of the imposition of a tax, that an exemption accorded to persons or with reference to things as a class and not of a class will be upheld if it operates equally upon all subjects within such class.[67] A license tax may be imposed in lieu of and to the exclusion of all other taxes.[68]

The power to impose license and privilege taxes may be delegated to municipal corporations,[69] with full discretion as to the issuance of the license and the amount of the tax or fee,[70] to be exercised by municipal officers.[71] This, however, does not mean that arbitrary power may be so granted,[72] or that it may be exercised in an arbitrary manner by such officers,[73] but the courts are slow to review their action.[74]

In all cases the authority of the municipality is dependent upon charter or statute,[75] and must be exercised in the manner prescribed,[76] and while in some cases a municipality may impose an occupation or business tax, notwithstanding a license previously granted by the state,[77] it can neither require a license of one holding an exempting permit from the state[78] or where such a license is expressly prohibited by statute,[79] nor license illegal occupations[80] or acts.[81] A municipality may impose a regulatory license tax under a general welfare clause,[82] but cannot impose revenue tax under such clause[83] nor can it tax for revenue under the power to regulate.[84] A municipality cannot be authorized to levy a tax for revenue outside of its territorial jurisdiction.[85] The extent of the licensing powers of a municipality under a particular charter or statute is purely a matter of construction.[86]

Power to impose revenue tax on commission merchants held conferred by new charter of Baltimore city. Meushaw v. State [Md.] 71 A 457. Town may regulate transportation of garbage. Buffalo Fertilizer Co. v. Cheektowaga, 113 NYS 901. Schedule B, c. 5597, p. 48, of Laws of 1907, authorizes imposition of a license tax by cities of 1000 to 3000 inhabitants upon any express company having an office therein of a sum not to exceed $25, and chapter 5811, p. 430, of the Laws of 1907, neither in express terms nor by implication authorizes the city of Jasper to impose such license tax for a greater amount than $25. State v. Lewis [Fla.] 46 S 630.

Punishment: Under statute authorizing city to pass ordinances for levy and collection of license taxes and to prescribe penalties for enforcement of such ordinances by inflicting fine not exceeding $100 and imprisonment for each offense, an ordinance imposing a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $100, or imprisonment not exceeding 30 days or both such fine and imprisonment, for each violation, is within the limits of the statutory grant of power. City of Holton v. Tatlock, 77 Kan. 376, 94 P 204.

§ 3. Issuance and revocation.[See 10 C. L. 827]—The wrongful refusal of a license does not justify the applicant in proceeding to act without a license,[87] his remedy being by writ of mandamus to compel the issuance of the license,[88] or it has been declared, by action for the damages sustained from such refusal,[89] but with reference to such liability it has been held that an applicant cannot neglect to avail himself of his remedy by mandamus and thus lay up damages for himself by reason of the failure of ministerial officers to perform their duty.[90] Express authority to revoke for cause is sometimes conferred upon municipalities.[91] A bare license may at any time be revoked or terminated,[92] but not so where the authority to revoke is expressly qualified.[93] Notice is sometimes required.[94] The payment of an occupation tax does not relieve the taxpayer from subsequent regulation.[95] The right to enjoy a privilege under a municipal license is not property of such a character that a court of equity will protect it after an implied revocation of the license.[96] A license is not necessarily revoked ipso facto by violations of the law and regulatory provisions by the licensee.[97] Proceedings to review revocation of a license and to compel reissue abate upon the death of the licensee.[98]

§ 4. Interpretation of statutes and ordinances and persons subject.[See 10 C. L. 828]—Judicial construction of particular statutes and ordinances is determinative of questions relative to the time within which a licensing statute becomes operative,[99] the scope of the classification,[1] acts authorized by the license,[2] the manner of computing the license tax,[3] and persons exempt.[4] Statutes or ordinances regulating the inherent right to follow an honest employment approach an abridgement of constitutional rights, and are strictly construed.[5] So, also, a statute or ordinance providing for the punishment of persons engaging in work without a license is penal, and will be strictly construed against the government,[6] and hence an act which is not within the spirit of the statute, though within its letter, will not be construed as included in the enactment,[7] but such statutes or ordinances will be construed, nevertheless, according to the manifest extent of the legislative body.[8] The grant of a privilege in consideration of compensation will not of itself operate as a release of the right subsequently to enact license fees.[9]

enue is the primary object,[10] and the real purpose of the tax is determinative of its nature, regardless of the disposition of the proceeds thereof,[11] and regardless, likewise, of the name by which the tax is called,[12] though such name may, in a proper case, be considered, in arriving at the legislative intent,[13] and in some cases the expressed purpose of the tax is held to be determinative.[14] Where any imposition is laid upon persons or property under a general taxing ordinance, the only conclusion that can be drawn is that such tax is laid for revenue purposes alone unless the contrary is made to appear,[15] but specific reference to regulation is not essential to constitute a tax a regulatory one,[16] and where the tax will be valid if regulatory and invalid if for revenue, the presumption is that it is for regulation where there is nothing to indicate a contrary intent.[17]

§ 5. Assessment and recovery of license fees; prosecutions for failure to pay. See 10 C. L. 630—A municipal ordinance is a state law within the meaning of an act making the violation of a state licensing law a crime.[18] Payment of license taxes may be enforced by fine and imprisonment[19] or by legal process issued for its collection,[20]

19. Salt Lake City v. Christensen Co. [Utah] 95 P 523. Ordinance is not invalid because it imposes a penalty by fine or imprisonment for failure to pay a license, which penalty is not imposed for a failure to pay taxes generally. Id. Subjecting person to penal punishment for failure or refusal to pay license does not constitute "imprisonment for debt." Ex parte Diehl [Cal. App.] 96 P 98.

NOTE. Liability of agent or employe in case license tax is unpaid: It is held very generally that one may be penalized for carrying on a business or employment subject to license tax when such tax has not been paid, although his only interest therein is as an agent or employe (Dentler v. State, 112 Ala. 70, 20 S 592; Abel v. State, 90 Ala. 631, 8 S 760; Campbell v. Anthony, 40 Kan. 652, 20 P 492; Com. v. Hadley, 11 Metc. [Mass.] 66; People v. Metzger, 95 Mich. 121, 54 NW 639; State v. Chastain, 19 Or. 176, 23 P 963; City of Emporia v. Becker, 76 Kan. 181, 90 P 798, 12 L. R. A. [N. S.] 946; Bond v. Royston, 130 Ga. 646, 61 SE 491, distinguishing Gould v. Atlanta, 55 Ga. 678), and that the fact that he receives no compensation for his services is immaterial (State v. Keith, 46 Mo. App. 525; State v. Bugbee, 22 Vt. 32). Where both the business and the employment are subject to license, it is held that a licensed agent may become penally liable for conducting the business of an unlicensed employer (Farmington v. Rutherford, 94 Mo. App. 328, 68 SW 83), or an unlicensed agent may be liable for serving a licensed employer (Wason v. Underhill, 2 N. H. 505), and the same was held in the case of one who conducted on unlicensed agency, although the actual sales were made by licensed subagents (Mitcheli v. Meridian, 67 Miss. 644, 7 S 493). It is held that proof of sale of an article subject to license tax throws the burden on defendant to prove that his employer is a licensed dealer (Rana v. State, 51 Ark. 481, 11 SW 692; Klepfer v. State, 121 Ind. 491, 23 NE 287), and that it is the employer's duty to ascertain that his employer is so licensed before entering his service (Commonwealth v. Hadley, 11 Metc. [Mass.] 66; Hays v. State, 13 Mo. 246; Tardiff v. State, 23 Tex. 169, 62 Am. Dec. 550; State and both the tax and the penalty for its nonpayment may be made a lien upon property.[21] On a prosecution for engaging in a business without a license, the defendant's failure to secure a license must be alleged.[22] On a prosecution for violation of a license law, the burden is upon the prosecution to make out its case,[23] but when an ordinance prescribes separate offenses, proof of a single offense is sufficient.[24] The burden is upon the defendant to show the unreasonableness of the tax.[25] Partial failure to perform duties of regulation is not alone a defense to an action to recover a license fee.[26] On the question of whether a given occupation comes within a particular class of which a municipal occupation tax is required, evidence which tends to show the character of the business is admissible,[27] but the licensee's belief as to the scope of his license will not excuse a plain violation of the law.[28] In some instances the enforcement of an invalid license ordinance will be enjoined,[29] but it is held that enforcement by criminal prosecution will not be enjoined,[30] and that criminal or other prosecution will not be enjoined after an implied revocation of a license.[31] In a suit for an injunction against the sale of the complainant's property, the defendant has the burden of establishing any other charge against the property than that for which the assessment was made.[32] The form of prosecution is sometimes

v. Chastain, 19 Or. 176, 23 P 963; City of Emporia v. Becker, 76 Kan. 181, 90 P 798, 12 L. R. A. [N. S.] 946). The last cited case holds that honest belief that the employer is a licensed dealer is no defense, but a contrary view is indicated in Tardiff v. State, 23 Tex. 169, 62 Am. Dec. 550. These cases have most frequently arisen in connection with the unlicensed sale of liquors (Abel v. State, 90 Ala. 631, 8 S 760; State v. Keith, 37 Ark. 96; Johnson v. State, 37 Ark. 98; Baird v. State, 52 Ark. 326, 12 SW 566; Com. v. Hadley, 11 Metc. [Mass.] 66; People v. Metzger, 95 Mich. 121, 54 NW 639; People v. De Groot, 111 Mich. 245, 69 NW 248; Isbell v. State, 13 Mo. 86; Hays v. State, 13 Mo. 246; State v. Bryant, 14 Mo. 340; Board of Excise v. Dougherty, 55 Barb. [N. Y.] 332; French v. People, 3 Park. Crim. Rep. 114; State v. Chastain, 19 Or. 176, 23 P 963; Tardiff v. B. 346), but the same rule has been applied to merchants (City of Emporia v. Becker, 76 Kan. 181, 90 P 798, 12 L. R. A. [N. S.] 946; Campbell v. Anthony, 40 Kan. 652, 20 P 492), commission merchants (Elsberry v. State, 52 Ala. 8), street railway employes (Springfield v. Smith, 138 Mo. 645, 40 SW 757, 60 Am. St. Rep. 569, 37 L. R. A. 446; Wyandotte v. Corrigan, 35 Kan. 21, 10 P 99), dealers in playing cards (Dentler v. State, 112 Ala. 70, 20 S 592), sewing machine (Mitchell v. Meridian, 67 Miss. 644, 7 S 493), insurance (Farmington v. Rutherford, 94 Mo. App. 328, 68 SW 83), express (Montgomery v. Shoemaker, 51 Ala. 114), and railway agents, etc. (Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Attalla, 118 Ala. 362, 24 S 450). The contrary view is, however, more or less clearly indicated in some cases. State v. Woods, 40 La. Ann. 175, 8 S 543; Cincinnati v. Withers, 5 Ohio S. & C. P. Dec. 570; O'Rourke v. State, 6 Ohio C. C. 612; Troy v. Harris, 102 Mo. App. 51, 76 SW 662; United States v. Paxton, 1 Cranch C. C. 44, Fed. Cas. No. 16013; United States v. Shuck, 1 Cranch, C. 32. In suit to restrain sale under assessment against complainant as a transient made to depend upon the rights and questions involved.[33] A municipal corporation is not liable for threats made by officers against person peddling without a license,[34] or for seizure of property upon a tax execution issued under an invalid ordinance.[35]

§ 6. Effect of failure to obtain.[See 10 C. L. 630]—Contracts executed by unlicensed persons are generally held valid in the absence of a manifest legislative intent to the contrary,[36] but the statutes of some states are held to invalidate such contracts,[37] and where such a contract is executed while an invalidating statute is in operation, it will not be validated by a subsequent general repeal of such statute.[38] Questions of fact involved in a defense of noncompliance with the statute are for the jury.[39] Where a license is not obtained there can be no obligation to pay for a license merely by reason of unlawfully engaging in business, and hence no civil action will lie for a license fee,[40] but in such case there may be criminal liability.[41] Licensees are sometimes given a right of action against persons usurping license privileges.[42]

§ 7. Disposition of license moneys.[See 10 C. L. 630]—The disposition of license moneys depends upon the legislative intent with regard thereto.[43] For most intents and purposes,[44] a license, statute or ordinance need not specify the purpose to which the fee or tax is to be applied.[45] Disposition as affecting the character of the tax is treated in a previous section.[46] and other estates.[See 10 C. L. 631]—A license is a personal, revocable and nonassignable privilege conferred either by writing or parol, to do one or more acts on land without possessing any interest therein.[48] Whether a contract gives a mere license or more is a matter of interpretation.[49] A license is distinguishable from an easement [50] or a lease.[50a] The nature of a license is not changed by the use of terms in the contract, which are ordinarily used in leases.[51] A ticket of admission to an entertainment is a mere revocable license,[52] and where a landlord demises a bedroom and permits the tenant to obtain water from other rooms in the house, such permission is a license.[53] A license is ordinarily revocable at the will of the licensor,[54] unless the license is coupled with an interest [55] or is based on a consideration.[56] There is an irreconcilable conflict of authority as to whether the incurring of expense by the licensee affects the power of revocation.[57] A conveyance by the licensor operates as a revocation.[58]

56. Ruthven v. Farmers' Co-op. Creamery Co. [Iowa] 118 NW 915.

57. Held revocable: Telephone line constructed. Yeager v. Tuning [Ohio] 86 NE 657. License to village trustees by landowner for sewer improvements revocable at will of owner. In re Trustees of Village of White Plains, 124 App. Div. 1, 108 NYS 596. License for drainage ditch revocable though dug and maintained. McIntyre v. Harty, 236 Ill. 629, 86 NE 581. Act June 4, 1889 (Laws 1889, p. 116), providing that drains constructed by license be deemed for mutual benefit of land, etc., does not apply to licenses revoked before act became effective. Id. A license to maintain spur track revocable without refunding expenditures made in improvements. Belzoni Oil Co. v. Yazoo, etc., R. Co. [Miss.] 47 S 468.

Held not revocable: Fully executed license is irrevocable since revocation would be fraud on licensee. Ruthven v. Farmers' Co-op. Creamery Co. [Iowa] 118 NW 915.

NOTE. Revocability as affected by expenditures of licensee (Supplementing Annotation in 8 C. L. 753): The general rule is undoubtedly that a parol license to enter land is revocable at the pleasure of the licensor and by weight of authority. This rule is not altered by reason of expenditures by the licensee in the execution of his license. Upon the latter point, however, there is marked conflict. See Stoner v. § 2. Rights and liabilities of licensees. See 10 C. L. 631—A licensee acquires only such rights as are conferred by the terms of the license.[59] The licensee is entitled to notice of revocation and a reasonable time to remove structures placed on the land,[60] but a conveyance is notice of revocation.[61] A licensee having constructed a boom in a navigable stream under a license from the riparian owner is estopped from denying the rights of such owner or those of any one claiming under him.[62]

LIENS.

The scope of this topic is noted below.[63]

§ 1. Definition and nature. See 10 C. L. 632

§ 2. Common-law, equitable, and statutory liens. A. Common-law liens. See 8 C. L. 756—Possession is essential to a lien,[64] and no artisan's lien arises where the material or object on which the work is to be done is by the contract to be delivered before payment and credit given.[65] A common-law lien must be based upon a contractual relation,[66] and a custodian of property received from a sheriff, who has absolute control of the same, has no lien thereon against the owner for the costs in keeping the same.[67] Liens by contract exist only when it is expressly agreed that a party may retain the property as security for work done or expense incurred in support of it,[68] and a person can create a lien on property only to the extent of his interest in it.[69]

69. Where land conveyed to woman and her infant children, she may create lien affecting her interest alone. Lavell v. Carter [Ky.] 112 SW 1118.

Generally a lien on real property cannot be created by parol,[70] but a lien on personalty may be.[71] A lien upon land as a general rule includes the growing timber thereupon when the lien is created,[72] but there may be circumstances to rebut this presumption,[73] or the right may be expressly or impliedly waived.[74] A guardian of infants as lessor of premises has no power in the absence of express authority of the court to agree to a lien on improvements made by the lessee.[75]

(§ 2) B. Equitable liens.[See 10 C. L. 632]—Equity will not ordinarily affix a specific lien for a general indebtedness in the absence of an intent by the parties that a lien arise,[76] or unless the property charged was specifically benefited.[77] A constitutional provision, rendering a contract for the payment of a tax or other lien void, does not apply to an equitable lien.[78] A vendor's equitable lien to secure the price does not arise until the purchaser defaults.[79]

(§ 2) C. Statutory liens.[See 10 C. L. 633]—Among the specific liens created by statute are those of livery stable keepers [80] and mechanics of every sort.[81] A special lien provided by statute does not extend to property in custodia legis.[82] To perfect a statutory lien every requirement must be complied with.[83] The right to perfect a lien given by statute is ordinarily a privilege limited to the claimant, and any assignment thereof before record carries only the chose in action constituting the basis of the intended lien.[84] A statutory provision for the filing of the evidence of debt or charge secured by the lien is not retroactive.[85]

Construction.[See 10 C. L. 633]—Lien laws being in derogation of the common law must be strictly construed,[86] and the enumeration of the property upon which a lien may be held is exclusive.[87]

§ 3. Rank and priorities of liens.[See 10 C. L. 633]—A parol promise of a debtor that another who advances money shall be substituted and have the superior lien on the premises is not effective.[88] A lien of an execution creditor is superior to that of a mortgagee who loans money to pay debts superior to the lien of the execution creditor.[89] Statutes sometimes make provision for priorities in liens created thereby,[90] and laborer's liens are ordinarily given superiority.[91] Where a stable keeper parts with possession of a horse upon which he has a lien for keep, the title of a purchaser of the horse for value and without notice is superior to the lien of the stable keeper.[92]

§ 4. Waiver, extinguishment, discharge, and revival.[See 10 C. L. 634]—When the provisions of a contract relied upon as constituting a waiver of the statutory lien are ambiguous, the doubt should be resolved against the waiver.[93] An agreement by the original contractor not to enforce a lien is binding upon a subcontractor, whose only connection with the owner is through such contract.[94] A lien may be extinguished by a sufficient tender.[95] The voluntary surrender of the possession of the property,[96] or the wrongful conversion of property.[97] A demand for more than the amount due does not vitiate the lien.[98] A lien upon the building of a lessee as personalty terminates by the failure of the lessee to remove the improvements at the expiration of his lien.[99] A statutory lien may be lost by the failure to record the lien within a prescribed period.[1]

§ 5. Enforcement and protection of liens.[See 10 C. L. 634]—The foreclosure of a lien is wholly inoperative upon the rights of a person not a party to the suit.[2] Where property is seised under execution, the lien claimant may come into court and assert his rights.[3]

Statutory proceedings to enforce or foreclose.[See 10 C. L. 634]—The method of enforcement of statutory liens is often provided by statute.[4] In Alabama a blacksmith's lien is enforcible by attachment proceedings.[5] In some states an execution is authorized to satisfy a deficiency on the foreclosure.[6]

89. Where mortgagee simply loaned money to pay debts and did not purchase or take assignment thereof, and mortgagee had no claim as against execution creditors to be substituted to rights of original creditors. Lane v. Lloyd, 33 Ky. L. R. 570, 110 SW 401.

*Equitable remedies and procedure.*See 10 C. L. 635—The enforcement of a lien may be defeated by laches,[7] and such defense is available without being pleaded.[8] A money judgment is proper in an equity foreclosure suit where the complainant loses the possession of the property.[9] In a decree of sale of property it is the correct practice to determine the priority and order of payment of the different liens[10]

LIMITATION OF ACTIONS.

The scope of this topic is noted below.[11]

§ 1. *The statutes; validity and application generally.*See 10 C. L. 635—Statutes of limitation are usually held to be statutes of repose,[12] applying to the remedy and not to the right,[13] and, hence, are personal to the debtor.[14] The statute limiting the time to attack land patents of the United States, however, operates in rem to validate the patent if not assailed in time.[15] Limitation acts may be given retroactive effect.[16]

1896, §§ 2753, 2754. Mann Lumber Co. v. Bailey Iron Works Co. [Ala.] 47 S 325. When property levied on is not liable to attachment because plaintiff has no lien, motion to dissolve attachment is proper remedy. Code 1896, §§ 2753, 2754. Mann Lumber Co. v. Bailey Iron Works Co. [Ala.] 47 S 325. Plea to merits waiver of defense that property is not subject to lien. Id. Finding that plaintiff is entitled to lien as claimed against property is surplusage, no such finding being required in blacksmith's liens. Id.

8. Hughes v. Kershow, 42 Colo. 210, 93 P 1116.

9. Involuntary surrender of property to artisan's prior lien. Gage v. Callanan, 113 NYS 227. Evidence insufficient to show that artisan's lien was prior to plaintiff's lien for storage or that surrender of property was not voluntary, rendering money judgment erroneous. Id.

10. Pusey v. Pennsylvania Paper Mills, 163 F 672.

11. It includes all matters relating to the operation of general statutes of limitation.

It excludes special limitations imposed on particular actions (see Death by Wrongful Act, 11 C. L. 1019), and on proceedings which do not fall within the designated "actions" (see Estates of Decedents, 11 C. L. 1275; Bankruptcy, 11 C. L. 383; Appeal and Review, 11 C. L. 118, and like topics). It likewise excludes the doctrine of laches (see Equity, 11 C. L. 1235).

13. The statute bars only the action and does not destroy the right. Wilson v. Chandler, 133 Ill. App. 622; Smith v. Smith, 35 Pa. Super. Ct. 323. So, where the law gives a party a remedy by two different actions, the statute may bar the one and not the other. Where plaintiff's testator was deprived of possession of bond by wrongful act of defendant, right to recover debt evidenced by bond held complete and unimpaired by tortious act. Smith v. Smith, 35 Pa. Super. Ct. 323.

14. Pendley v. Powers, 129 Ga. 69, 58 SE 653. The statute does not mean that the debt has been paid. It is a personal privilege which the law gives the debtor whereby he may say that the demand is stale and should not be enforced. Sterrett v. Sweeney [Idaho] 98 P 418.

See post, this section, as to waiver, and post, § 7C as to persons to whom bar is available.

15. Hence, after five years without attack, a patent from the United States, invalid when made, must be deemed to have same

Statutes prescribing shorter periods than the existing period prescribed may be made to apply to existing causes, providing a reasonable period for bringing action is given.[17] A statute is never given retroactive operation unless there is an express provision or necessary implication that such was the legislative intent.[18] Unless a contrary intention be expressed, new, re-enacted, or amended statutes are to be given prospective effect so as to extend the period as to existing causes to the full time prescribed by such statutes from the time they take effect.[19] They are favored in law [20] and are said to be a property right,[21] though not so in the sense of being within constitutional protection against impairment.[22] They apply to actions, not to defenses,[23] but a barred cause cannot be pleaded as set-off [24] unless otherwise provided by statute.[25] The statutes are to be liberally construed and provisions excepting certain persons or classes from their operation are to be strictly construed.[26] Short statutes are construed strictly.[27] A statute limiting the period within which effect as against the United States as though it were valid when issued. Under Act of Mar. 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1099, c. 561) § 8. United States v. Chandler-Dunbar Water Power Co., 209 U. S. 447, 52 Law. Ed. 881.

16. Mulvey v. Boston, 197 Mass. 178, 83 NE 402.

17. The legislature may shorten the period and make the statute applicable to existing causes, provided a reasonable period is fixed for commencing action on existing causes. Adams & Freese Co. v. Kenoyer [N. D.] 116 NW 98. The period prescribed may be reduced providing a reasonable time is given after the change to allow an action to be commenced. Mulvey v. Boston, 197 Mass. 178, 83 NE 402. Where a statute is changed from six years to two years and such change would bar a cause accrued, an allowance of 30 days within which to sue is reasonable. Id. A change in a statute from six to two years and allowing 30 days within which to sue causes accrued more than two years does not deprive a person of property without due process. Id.

18. Theis v. Beaver County County Com'rs [Okl.] 97 P 973. Laws 1905, c. 5, p. 9, providing that a mortgagor's absence or nonresidence shall not suspend the statute as to actions to foreclose, do not apply to accrued causes. Clarke & Co. v. Doyle [N. D.] 116 NW 348. Laws 1905, c. 5, p. 9, held not to apply to accrued actions to foreclose mortgages for the reason that no time was fixed within which such actions should be commenced, and if the time between the passage and approval of the act (four months) was intended, it was unreasonably short. Adams & Freese Co. v. Kenoyer [N. D.] 116 NW 98. Sess. Laws 1905, p. 328, § 3, providing that such set-off or counterclaim shall not be barred until the claim of the plaintiff is barred, affects only existing set-offs, and did not revive a barred one. Theis v. Beaver County County Com'rs [Okl.] 97 P 973. Ann. St. 1906, p. 2364, reducing the period as to judgments from 20 to 10 years, does not operate retroactively on existing judgments, but the period begins to run as to such judgments from the date the statute took effect. Bick v. Robbins [Mo. App.] 111 SW 612. Under Ann. St. 1906, p. 2353, providing that no action shall be maintained to foreclose any mortgage thereafter executed to secure a barred obligation, and Rev. St. 1899, § 4277, providing that no action shall be maintained to foreclose any mortgage theretofore executed after two years from date, held that § 4277 covered only mortgages securing debts barred when the statute took effect, and granted two years grace to foreclose, and mortgage secured by a note not barred when the statute took effect was not within its provisions. Martin v. Teasdale, 212 Mo. 611, 111 SW 511.

19. Amendment to Rev. St. 1901, tit. 41, pars. 2935-2974, relative to limitations made by par. 2954, held not to affect causes accruing before the amendment went into effect in view of pars. 2974 and 4243. Crowell v. Davenport [Ariz.] 94 P 1114.

20. San Diego Realty Co. v. McGinn [Cal. App.] 94 P 374. It is the policy of the law to fix in every case a limit of time for bringing actions. Foster v. Jordan [Ky.] 113 SW 490. Act May 2, 1889, limiting period within which claimants of an escheated estate may assert rights, is not unconstitutional as violating due process clause. In re Alton's Estate, 220 Pa. 258, 69 A 902.

21. San Diego Realty Co. v. McGinn [Cal. App.] 94 P 374.

22. The bar of the statute as a defense is not property. Removal of the bar is not a taking of property without due process. People v. Haverstraw School Board of Education, 110 NYS 769.

23. The statute does not bar a suit invoked as a shield. Suit in nature of cross action to correct public records and enjoin prosecution of an action at law theretofore commenced to recover possession of land. Hall v. O'Connell [Or.] 94 P 564.

24. Theis v. Beaver County County Com'rs [Okl.] 97 P 973.

25. In action against grantee on verbal promise to pay mortgage on land conveyed by plaintiff to defendant, defendant's counterclaim for false representations respecting the land while barred as an original cause was available under Code, § 3457, providing it may be asserted as a defense, though barred if it was the property of the party pleading it at the time it became barred, and was not barred at time claim sued on originated. Bradley v. Hufferd [Iowa] 116 NW 814.

26. Will not be construed to extend to persons not expressly mentioned. Lawson v. Tripp [Utah] 95 P 520. Exceptions in favor of the sovereignty must be strictly construed against the sovereign. Warren County v. Lamkin [Miss.] 46 S 497.

27. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Batesville & Winerva Tel. Co. [Ark.] 110 SW 1047.

to attack judicial sales does not apply to a sale which the court had no jurisdiction to make.[28] The United States courts recognize the statutes of the several states and give them the same construction and effects as local courts.[29]

Statutes of limitation are not enforced in equity except by way of analogy to laches,[30] or in cases where jurisdiction of equity and law is concurrent,[31] or where the statute is by its terms applicable in equity.[32] One who resorts to equity to escape the defense of the statute cannot himself invoke it.[33]

The statutes do not run against the state. See 10 C. L. 037—This rule also applies to subordinate political bodies, including municipal corporations, with respect to litigation to enforce governmental rights.[34] The rule that limitations do not run against the state does not apply where the state holds the bare legal title,[35] nor where by statute they are made specifically to apply;[36] but a statute making limitations applicable as against the state will not be given such effect if it is repugnant to constitutional provision.[37]

28. Indiana & Arkansas Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Brinkley [C. C. A.] 164 F 963.

29. Cheatham v. Evans [C. C. A.] 160 F 802.

30. See Equity, 11 C. L. 1235. In re Fisk [Conn.] 71 A 559. The rule of laches invoked by equity in analogy to the statute of limitations does not apply to laches under Civ. Code, § 1691, requiring rescission for fraud to be promptly sought after discovery thereof. Richards v. Farmers & Merchants Bank [Cal. App.] 94 P 393. In case a defendant, as a matter of equity, is entitled to be subrogated to the lien of a mortgage, the court may as a condition precedent to granting equitable relief to the owner compel payment of the mortgage, though by its terms the lien is barred. Hobson v. Huxtable, 79 Neb. 334, 116 NW 278.

Federal courts sitting in equity are not bound by, but apply the statutes in analogy to, the doctrine of laches. It must appear that complainant was not guilty of laches. Redd v. Brun [C. C. A.] 157 F 190. If a complainant fail to discover fraud within the statutory period, he must plead and prove time when he discovered it and impediments which prevented earlier discovery. Id. If by the exercise of ordinary diligence he should have discovered it within the statutory period, he is guilty of laches. Held to show laches. Id.

31. Action to recover back money paid by mistake. Sternberg v. Sternberg & Co. [N. J. Eq.] 69 A 492. In action against directors of a corporation for misfeasance and malfeasance, the remedy at law and in equity is concurrent and the statute is applicable in equity. People v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 124 App. Div. 714, 109 NYS 453.

32. Under Civ. Code 1896, § 674, the statute is made applicable to suits in chancery and the defense may be raised by demurrer, when it appears on the face of the bill. Lady Ensley Coal, Iron & R. Co. v. Gordon [Ala.] 46 S 983.

33. United States & Mexican Trust Co. v. Delaware Western Const. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 447. Where failure of a contractor to perform his contract is urged against his prayer for equitable relief, he may not rely on limitations, though an action at law for damages would be barred. Id. Under Shannon's Code, § 4453, there is no limitation applicable to the state in civil actions. State v. Standard Oil Co. [Tenn.] 110 SW 565. Property held in trust by district agricultural association being property of the state held by a public institution for public use, the statute does not run against an action to recover it whether the record title be held by the state at large or by a county or other official body. Sixth Dist. Agr. Ass'n v. Wright [Cal.] 97 P 144. Land dedicated to public use as a cemetery is within Ann. St. 1906, p. 2344, providing that the statute shall not run against land given to public, pious, or charitable use. Tracy v. Bittle [Mo.] 112 SW 45.

34. Where a county diverts money collected upon taxes levied by a city, it does not run against an action by the city to recover. City of Osawatomie v. Miami County Com'rs [Kan.] 96 P 670. Not as against streets and highways under Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 3351. Perry v. Ball [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 588.

35. In 1857 the state sold swamp lands granted it by Act Cong. Sept. 28, 1850, and the purchaser received a certificate of purchase. The land was thereafter patented to the state. Held, it was duty of state to patent to the purchaser after confirmation of the grant to the state, and limitations ran from that time. Hibben v. Malone, 85 Ark. 584, 109 SW 1008. See, also, Adverse Possession, 11 C. L. 41.

36. Under B. & C. Comp. § 13, providing that limitations shall apply to actions in the name of the state, it applies to all actions whether in its sovereign or proprietary capacity, and applies to an obligation of a canal company to pay a certain per cent of its tolls. State v. Portland General Elec. Co. [Or.] 95 P 722. Code 1880, §§ 2664, 2668, 10 year statute, applies as against a county in an action to recover possession of land not devoted to public use held under void lease. Warren County v. Lamkin [Miss.] 46 S 497. Runs against school district as well as against state, county, or town. Clarke v. School Dist. No. 16, 84 Ark. 516, 106 SW 677.

37. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4807, making limitations applicable to the state, held not to apply to adverse possession of school lands, since such construction would make it repugnant to Enabling Act (Act Feb. 22, 1889) requiring school lands to be disposed of at public sale, and Const. art. 16, § 1, declaring all public lands to be held in trust. O'Brien v. Wilson [Wash.] 97 P 1115.

Limitation is, subject to same exceptions, governed by the law of the forum.[38]—A cause of action can accrue in but one place.[39] Statutes in many states make a bar in the state where the cause of action arose effective in the forum,[40] exception being sometimes made in favor of claims held from the time of their accrual by a citizen of the state where suit is brought.[41] Part payment in the state where the cause of action arose tolls the statute and the claim is enforcible in another state.[42]

The defense of the statute may be waived[43] but such waiver must be definite.[44] Defendant may become estopped to assert the bar of the statute.[45]

§ 2. Classes of actions and the respective periods.[See 10 C. L. 637]—The various statutes prescribe periods of limitation for the different kinds of actions such as actions for the recovery of land,[46] to determine adverse claims,[47] for use and occupation

38. See Conflict of Laws, 11 C. L. 671.

39. In case of a note made payable in the state where the payer lives, it arises in that state. McKee v. Dodd, 152 Cal. 637, 93 P 854.

40. "Has arisen in another state" in Rev. St. 1887, § 4079, providing that, when a cause accrued in another state is barred there, it cannot be maintained here, means the state in which the contract is to be discharged, and does not apply to an intermediate state through which the debtor may subsequently travel or reside for a sufficient length of time to raise the bar before coming to this state. West v. Theis [Idaho] 96 P 932. Under Rev. St. 1887, § 4079, "a cause of action arises" at the time and place in the state when and where the debt is to be paid, and the cause thus arising follows the debtor until it is barred in the state where it arose, or until the debtor has lived in this state until it is barred by its statutes. West v. Theis [Idaho] 96 P 932.

41. Where one acquired a cause of action by assignment after its accrual, even though he has always been a citizen of the state, he is not within the exception of Rev. St. 1898, § 2899, providing that, when a cause of action has arisen in another state and is there barred, no action shall be maintained thereon in this state, except in favor of one who was a citizen thereof and acquired the cause before its accrual. Lawson v. Tripp [Utah] 95 P 520. Code Civ. Proc. § 361 provides that when a cause has arisen in another state and is barred there an action cannot be maintained in California except in favor of one who has been a citizen and has held the cause since it accrued, where a cause accrued in New York while defendant was in Europe and he afterwards lived in Hawaii until the notes were barred there. Held the Hawaiian statutes did not bar an action in California. McKee v. Dodd, 152 Cal. 637, 93 P 854.

42. Where a resident of Idaho goes to Washington and makes a partial payment on a Washington contract, upon his return to Idaho the contract as made follows him, and the statutes of Idaho begin to run upon his re-entry into the state. Sterrett v. Sweeney [Idaho] 98 P 418.

43. See 10 C. L. 637. Where several years after final report of a referee he filed a petition for compensation and plaintiff moved to have its allowance set aside, but on hearing it was reduced and subsequently moved for further reduction but did not allude to limitations, held, by the last motion, he waived the question of limitations. Scott v. Bay City, 150 Mich. 694, 114 NW 675. The statute of limitations merely takes away the remedy and may be waived by not urging it. Wilson v. Chandler, 133 Ill. App. 622. See post, § 8, as to necessity of pleading statute.

44. A stipulation on a note "and the payee or holder of this note may renew or extend the time of payment of the same from time to time as often as required, without notice and without prejudice to the rights of such payee or holder, to enforce the same against the makers * * * at any time the same may become due and payable," is not a waiver of the bar of limitations. Allen v. Allen's Estate [Neb.] 116 NW 509. Where a defendant pleaded general issue to a count of a complaint and thereafter plaintiff filed an amended count stating the same cause but which superseded the original count, defendant could plead limitations notwithstanding the former plea. Maegerlein v. Chicago, 237 Ill. 159, 86 NE 670.

45. Where defendants did not use agreement to arbitrate as a means to induce inaction, it was held not to work an estoppel, plaintiff having taken no steps in matter. Hornblower v. George Washington University, 31 App. D. C. 64.

46. Where city in 1888 established building line but owner had no notice of the proceeding and the city made no entry until 1907, owner was not barred by Gen. St. 1902, § 1109, providing that no person shall enter land except within 15 years after his title shall accrue, etc. Northrop v. Waterbury [Conn.] 70 A 1024. Action of forced heirs to reduce a donation that trenches upon their legitime is prescribed in five years. Succession of Meisner, 121 La. 863, 46 S 889. Under Ind. T. Ann. St. 1899, § 2942, no action for recovery of land may be maintained where plaintiff did not claim title, or his testator or intestate had been out of possession for five years. Tynton v. Hall [Okl.] 98 P 895. Under Code Civ. Proc. S. C. 1872, § 111, amended in 1873, 15 Stat. 497, limiting actions to recover land to 10 years, but if plaintiff was a minor, 5 years after he attained majority; and Code Civ. Proc. 1882, §§ 93, 108, held where land was sold in 1875 and grantees had since been in possession an action by minors was governed by the law of 1873 five years. Cheatham v. Evans [C. C. A.] 160 F 802. Rev. St. Mo. 1890, § 4262, limiting actions to recover land to 10 years, applies to all suits legal or equitable, and may be invoked in a federal court by pur-thereof [48] or damages for injuries thereto,[49] actions to set aside deeds,[50] to recover escheated estates,[51] actions on contracts,[52] express or implied,[53] written [54] and oral,[55] chaser under deed at foreclosure sale in suit by mortgagor to redeem. Clapp v. Leavens [C. C. A.] 164 F 318. Possession of purchaser at foreclosure sale held adverse. Id.

See, also, Adverse Possession, 11 C. L. 41.

47. Action at law under Rev. Code Civ. Proc. § 675, to determine adverse claims, is governed by statutory sections providing for limitations of actions. Burleigh v. Hecht [S. D.] 117 NW 367.

48. Code, § 4198, limiting right of action to recover for use and occupation of property to five years, does not apply to suit to quiet title. German v. Heath [Iowa] 116 NW 1051. Action for rents and profits against one who took possession of land as a bona fide purchaser is barred in three years. Brown v. Nsims [Ark.] 112 SW 373. Right to recover rent for mill site and water privileges is barred in two years. Briggs v. Avary [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 728, 106 SW 904.

49. Action for recurrent flowage of land caused by construction of ore reducing works is not in trespass but to recover incidental and consequential damage and is not governed by Rev. St. Idaho 1887, § 4054, limiting action in trespass to three years. Hill v. Empire State Idaho Min. & Developing Co., 158 F 881. For damages to land caused by construction of dam, five years. King v. Danville, 32 Ky. L. R. 1188, 107 SW 1189. Where dykes built along the bank of a river were permanent structures and their effect was to deflect the current of the river against the plaintiff's bank and undermine it, held damages were recoverable in a single action and action for trespass was barred in three years under Mansf. Dig. Ark. § 4478. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Moseley [C. C. A.] 161 F 72. Under § 2369 Gen. St. 1894 providing that an action for damages occasioned by a mill dam must be brought within two years, held no action for overflowing lands by construction of a milldam which is a permanent structure can be maintained unless brought within two years after first damages sustained. Priebe v. Ames, 104 Minn. 419, 116 NW 829.

50. Actions by grantors of land five years after youngest attained majority to set aside the deed are not proceedings to recover land or possession thereof within Code Civ. Proc. § 365, and fall within 10 year statute § 388. O'Donohue v. Smith, 57 Misc. 448, 109 NYS 929.

51. Where an estate of a decedent has been escheated under Act May 2, 1889, relatives of decedent are barred after 7 years to secure restitution, though they had no actual notice of the proceeding. In re Alton's Estate, 220 Pa. 258, 69 A 902.

52. Under Comp. Laws, § 9734, barring actions on contracts in 10 years, an action on a separation contract between husband and wife by which he bound himself to pay a certain mortgage is barred in 10 years. Clinton v. Clinton's Estate, 148 Mich. 496, 14 Det. Leg. N. 204, 111 NW 1087. Provisions of a mortgage held not to constitute a contract to pay a certain sum of money within a certain time as affected by limitations. Union Trust Co. v. Scott, 170 Ind. 666, 85 NE 481. One who acquiesces in breach of contract for 8 years, knowing that seller cannot perform, is barred. Himrod v. Kimberly, 219 Pa. 546, 69 A 72. Action for work done and material furnished on paving contract accrues on 10th day of month after estimates were allowed and was barred in two years, under Laws 1895, p. 128, c. 8. Thornton v. East Grand Forks [Minn.] 118 NW 834.

53. Where insurance company became insolvent and unable to carry out endowment policy which it had agreed to set off at maturity against mortgage made by insured to the company, the insured was released from his obligation to pay instalments and the obligation of the company was for money had and received, barred in six years. Union Trust Co. v. Scott, 170 Ind. 666, 85 NE 481. Implied obligation of principal to reimburse surety who pays the debt is barred in two years after return to state of principal. Bray v. Cohn [Cal. App.] 93 P 893.

54. Ky. St. 1903, § 2515, barring actions on contracts in writing in five years, applies to action by administrator to recover value of decedent's support, to which decedent was entitled under contract. Bryson's Adm'r v. Briggs, 32 Ky. L. R. 159, 104 SW 982. Action against common carrier for injuries to hogs in transit under written contract held governed by Ky. St. 1903, § 2514, 15 year statute. Richardson v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 33 Ky. L. R. 916, 111 SW 843. Debt evidenced by warrants issued by a de facto municipal corporation is one evidenced by an instrument in writing and is not barred by the two year statute. City of Carthage v. Burton [Tex. Civ App.] 111 SW 440. Action on town warrants commenced more than six years after repudiation of the warrants by the town is barred. Howe v. Gunnison, 42 Colo. 540, 95 P 283. In view of banking laws in force in 1839 (Rev. St. 1839, pp. 145, 146; Rev. St. 1849, c. 39) and Rev. St. 1858, c. 71, St. 1898, § 4230, part of the chapter of limitations providing that its provisions should not apply to bills, notes, or other evidences of debt put in circulation by a bank applies only to such evidences of debt and not to certificates of deposit. Lusk v. Stoughton State Bank, 135 Wis. 311, 115 NW 813. Where a benefit certificate was payable to a certain person and she died before insurer, introduction of society's by-laws to show to whom payment should be made in case of death of beneficiary did not make ths certificate an oral contract. Jones v. Supreme Lodge Knights of Honor, 236 Ill. 113, 86 NE 191. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 337, requiring actions on written contracts to be brought within four years, an action to foreclose a mortgage given by a decedent and her husband was barred as to his joint liability four years after maturity of the note. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc. v. Farnham, 153 Cal. 578, 96 P 9. Civ. Code § 1214, renders void as to the mortgags a deed from one to her husband before they mortgaged the land, the mortgage being first recorded until the mortgagee acquired notice of the deed and hence an action to foreclose the mortgage brought within four years after the deed was recorded is not barred under Code Civ. Proc. § 337, requiring actions on written contracts to be brought within four years. Id. Ten and not five-year limitation held to apply to action against carrier for failure to observe com-

on promissory notes,[56] for recovery back of usurious interest,[57] for services rendered,[58] for breach of warranty,[59] for delay in delivering a telegram,[60] actions on accounts,[61] for accounting,[62] actions on sealed instruments,[63] actions on judgments,[64] mon-law obligation to transport, bill of lading having been issued soon after receipt of property sought to be transported. Coats v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 134 Ill. App. 217.

55. Action for claim on oral contract against estate of a decedent which has been duly presented to administrator and allowed and subsequently disallowed at the instance of an heir or creditor may under Rev. St. 1906, § 6098, be brought within 6 months after notice of rejection, though after deducting time intervening between allowance and rejection more than 6 years have elapsed since accrual of the cause. Speidel v. Phillips, 78 Ohio St. 194, 85 NE 53. Benefit certificate sued on held clearly a contract in writing and not within proposition that where an agreement in writing is so indefinite that parol testimony is required to make it complete it will be treated as an oral contract subject to statute of limitation. Jones v. Supreme Lodge Knights of Honor, 140 Ill. App. 227.

56. As against a demand note which is payable when the promise is made, the statute starts to run concurrently with the making of the promise. Time of demand on note running for indefinite time held immaterial. Statute runs from time of promise. Knecht v. Boshold, 138 Ill. App. 430. Action not commenced on note within 10 years barred. Rev. St. § 16, c. 83. Id. Action on note and mortgage given to secure it is governed by Gen. St. 1901, § 4446, and § 4444 does not apply. Kirk v. Andrew [Kan.] 97 P 797. In such action the same limitation applies to each branch of the case if the action is maintainable on the note it is maintainable on the mortgage. Id. Action by accommodation indorser against maker of note for payments thereon for maker's benefit, six years. Blanchard v. Blanchard, 113 NYS 882.

57. An action to recover usurious interest exacted by a creditor must be brought within a year from the date of payment [Code D. C. § 1181] (Brown v. Slocum, 30 App. D. C. 576), but the statute does not in such case begin to run until the cause of action accrues upon making the last instalment, even though the usurious interest was deducted in advance (Id.). Where amount retained was called a commission but usury was admitted, action within a year from last instalment held not barred, although more than a year had elapsed since deduction was made. Code D. C. § 1181. Id.

58. Action for services rendered is barred in four years. Consaul v. Rawlins, 130 Ga. 726, 61 SE 704.

59. For breach of warranty in sale of bull that the animal was a breeder and proved to be barren, the two year statute applies. Williamson v. Heath [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 983.

60. For delay in delivering telegram Ky. St. 1903, § 2515, five year statute applies. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Witt, 33 Ky. L. R. 685, 110 SW 889. Damages for failure to deliver telegram are not "injuries to the person" within Ky. St. 1903, § 2515, prescribing one year limitation. Id.

61. Account between liquor seller and customer consisting of debits on one side and cash payments and credits for returned demijohns on the other is not a mutual current account within Code Civ. Proc. § 386. Lowenthal v. Resnick, 110 NYS 1045. In order for such mutuality of account to exist as will arrest the bar of the statute, each party must extend credit to the other on faith of an admitted indebtedness on his part. It is not enough to show that there are two accounts. It must appear that the indebtedness of each party was the result of a course of dealings in which credit was extended on faith of indebtedness. Smith v. Hembree, 3 Ga. App. 510, 60 SE 126. Action on account for goods sold in 1894 is barred in 1896, two year statute. Code Civ. Proc. § 339 in absence of written acknowledgment of the debt. National Cycle Mfg. Co. v. San Diego Cycle Co. [Cal. App.] 98 P 64.

62. A suit by a customer against a stockbroker for accounting of gambling transactions or to recover money lost under Gen. St. 1905, p. 1606, is barred where nearly one year has elapsed since margins were paid. Blessing v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 70 A 933. Action between partners for an accounting is barred after 6 years. Dowse v. Gaynor [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 897, 118 NW 615.

63. Death of a guardian constitutes "discharge" within Rev. Laws, c. 149, § 35, requiring action on guardian's bond to be brought within four years after his discharge. Hill v. Arnold, 199 Mass. 109, 85 NE 97. Section 35 and not c. 202, § 7, giving minors and insane persons such period after removal of disability, applies. Id. Action on official bond of a judge to recover fees illegally collected in criminal cases is governed by the four year and not the two year statute. Lane v. Delta County [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 866. Under Rev. Laws 1905, § 4076, an action against sureties on official bond may be brought within 6 years after expiration of the term of the officer. Adams v. Overboe [Minn.] 117 NW 496. Suit on bond coupons is governed by the statute applicable to sealed instruments, and not that applicable to simple contracts. Prescott v. Williamsport, etc., R. Co., 159 F 244. Ann. St. 1906, p. 2347, limiting actions on sealed or unsealed instruments for payment of money to 10 years, applies to an attachment bond conditioned to refund all sums adjudged to be refunded and to pay damages and costs. State v. Brown, 208 Mo. 613, 106 SW 630. Where a life tenant paid a mortgage to protect her estate and was subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee, she had 20 years to foreclose. Bonhoff v. Wiehorst, 57 Misc. 456, 108 NYS 437. In action on sealed instrument, plea of statute a nullity. Smith v. Smith, 35 Pa. Super. Ct. 323.

64. Every settlement in probate court between guardian and ward is final unless appealed from or opened for fraud or mistake by action commenced within 2 years after the ward attains majority. Rev. St. § 6289. Errett v. Howert, 78 Ohio St. 109, 84 NE 753.

for the revival of judgments,[65] and to set aside judicial sales,[66] actions to recover taxes,[67] to cure defective acknowledgments,[68] and to enforce trusts,[69] actions to foreclose mortgages,[70] suing out letters of administration [71] or probating wills,[72] actions against decedents' estates,[73] actions to abate nuisances [74] for conversion,[75] fraud,[76]

A surety who obtains an assignment of a judgment against himself and principal is substituted to all rights of the judgment creditor and his rights are governed by the 15 year statute and not by the five year statute. Patton's Ex'r v. Smith [Ky.] 114 SW 315. Shannon's Code, § 4473, requiring actions on judgments and decrees to be brought within 10 years, applies to petition to revoke probate of a will on the ground that it was made on incompetent testimony. Scott v. Wagstaff [Tenn.] 107 SW 976. Mansf. Dig. § 4103 (Ind. T. Ann. St. § 2783), limiting time to five years within which execution may issue in commissioner's courts, is not a limitation on an action on the judgment. Reaves v. Turner [Okl.] 94 P 543. Though a judgment has expired, it remains a lien for 20 years from rendition. Civ. Code Proc. § 376. Holland v. Grote [N. Y.] 86 NE 30. Action on foreign judgment is barred in five years under Laws 1872, p. 559. Davis v. Munie, 235 Ill. 620, 85 NE 943. A common-law judgment is enforcible for twelve years. Code D. C. §§ 1212-1215 [31 Stat. 1381, c. 854]. Simpson v. Minnix, 30 App. D. C. 582.

65. In the District of Columbia, the common-law rule that a scire facias can only be issued after ten years from the date of a judgment, upon a motion and affidavit that the judgment has been paid, has been abrogated. Doctrine abrogated by D. C. Code, §§ 1212-1215 (31 Stat. § 1381, c. 854), fixing life of a judgment at twelve years during which time judgment may be revived by scire facias by merely filing a praecipe with clerk. Simpson v. Minnix, 30 App. D. C. 582. Prescription of one year whether under Civ. Code art. 1897, or art. 1994, has no application to attacks upon simulated sales. Lawson v. McBride, 121 La. 282, 46 S 312.

66. Comp. St. 1907, § 117, c. 23, apply to irregular administrative sales but not to void ones, and an action by an heir to quiet title to the homestead of his ancestor may be maintained at any time within 10 years after the right of action accrued or the attainment of his majority. Holmes v. Mason [Neb.] 114 NW 606. Four year limitation prescribed by Acts 1895, c. 4322, § 64, applies only when a purchaser at tax sale goes into actual possession and only bars suit by the former owner or claimant as to so much of the land as was sold for taxes. Dees v. Smith [Fla.] 46 S 173. Under Code 1871, § 2173, an action to recover land sold by virtue of order of probate court must be brought within one year. Jordan v. Bobbitt [Miss.] 45 S 311. Where one claimed under deed executed pursuant to decree of probate court by administrator under order directing him to execute it in compliance of contract executed under power of attorney, held the title was acquired by deed within Comp. Laws § 9714, limiting actions to recover land held under deed by administrator, though an attorney testified he acted under a different power of attorney. Chandler v. Clark, 151 Mich. 159, 14 Det. Leg. N. 931, 115 NW 65.

67. Actions to recover franchise taxes under Laws 1891-1893, p. 331, providing for such taxes and authorizing suits in Franklin County Circuit Court, and governed by general limitation law Ky. St. § 2515, five years. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Com., 32 Ky. L. R. 1112, 108 SW 245. Action by a city to enforce its lien for taxes may be brought within five years. City of Middlesborough v. Coal & Iron Bank, 33 Ky. L. R. 469, 110 SW 355.

68. Certificate of acknowledgment of married woman's deed is not curable after four years. Kimmey v. Abney [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 635, 107 SW 885.

69. To enforce a constructive trust 10 years. Lady Ensley Coal, Iron & R. Co. v. Gordon [Ala.] 46 S 983.

70. In action to enforce lien on land for payment of an annuity, the statute applicable to foreclosure of mortgages should be applied and recovery allowed for payments not 15 years past due. Stringer v. Gamble [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 1030, 118 NW 979.

71. Under Code § 3305, letters of administration must be sued out within five years. German v. Heath [Iowa] 116 NW 1051.

72. A proceeding to probate a will of a nonresident is within Ky. St. 1903, § 2522, and must be commenced, within 10 years from testator's death. Foster v. Jordon [Ky.] 113 SW 490.

73. Claim against estate based on order in nature of a judgment of the quarter session of Allegheny county which was never a lien upon after-acquired real estate in Lawrence county has only lien of general debts upon such subsequently acquired lands, hence subject to Act of June 14, 1901 (P. L. 562), requiring commencement of action within two years after decedent's death. Henry's Estate, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 597.

74. The prescription of one year is not pleadable in bar of a demand for an injunction against a present continuing nuisance. Barrow v. Gaillardanne [La.] 47 S 891.

75. Where action in conversion was brought within 6 years and within 3 years after discovery of the conversion, the 6 year statute was no defense. MacDonnell v. Buffalo Loan, Trust & Safe Deposit Co. [N. Y.] 85 NE 801. Action in conversion by state to recover value of timber which had not been removed within the time prescribed is not controlled by the statute applying to actions for penalty (§ 4077) or actions for penalty or forfeiture to the state (§ 4078, Laws 1905). State v. Rat Portage Lumber Co. [Minn.] 115 NW 162. Property was converted by a sheriff at the time of sale thereof, and action was not barred for three years. Rev. Laws 1905, § 4077. Adams v. Overboe [Minn.] 117 NW 496.

76. Mill's Ann. St. Colo. § 2911, bars an action for fraud three years after discovery of facts which would awaken a person of ordinary diligence and lead to discovery of the fraud if pursued with reasonable diligence. Redd v. Brun [C. C. A.] 157 F 190. Under St. 1903, § 2519, barring relief on injuries to property [77] or persons,[78] death by wrongful act.[79] An omnibus clause usually covers all actions not expressly provided for.[80]

§ 3. Accrual of cause of action and beginning of period. See 10 C. L. 839—A cause of action does not accrue until there is a demand capable of present enforcement,[81]

ground of fraud after 10 years, an action to surcharge an executor's final account for misappropriation of funds is barred in 10 years. Wren's Ex'r v. Wren's Ex'x, 31 Ky. L. R. 1096, 104 SW 737. Action for fraud is barred in 6 years. Rev. Laws 1902, c. 202. Marvel v. Cobb, 200 Mass. 293, 86 NE 360. Bill to set aside a conveyance and a mortgage for fraud is barred in 6 years. Id. St. 1898, §§ 1188, 1189a, 1189b, prescribing limitations of actions by former owners to recover possession of land sold for taxes, or to avoid a tax deed, does not apply to actions to annul a tax title for fraud in the proceedings. Boon v. Root [Wis.] 119 NW 121. Action for fraud, in misrepresenting title of land, is barred in one year after discovery of the fraud. Christian v. Denmark [Ala.] 47 S 82. Bill to set aside judgment and sales thereunder for fraud is barred in four years. McLean v. Stith [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 355. Action to annul instrument for fraud is not barred until four years after fraud is or should have been discovered. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Jowers [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 946. The limitation of time within which "an action for relief on the ground of fraud" must be commenced applies only when the party against whom the bar is interposed is required to allege fraud in pleading his cause of action or prove it to entitle him to relief. Logan v. Brown [Okl.] 95 P 441. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 2515, limiting actions for fraud and mistake to five years and § 2519 providing that a cause does not accrue until discovered, but no action shall be maintained after 10 years, held an action cannot be maintained unless within five years after discovery of the fraud or mistake and in no event after 10 years. Reid v. Singer Mfg. Co., 32 Ky. L. R. 927, 107 SW 310. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 338, limiting actions for relief on ground of fraud to three years, complaint by beneficiary under will against administrator brought 14 years after death of testator alleging fraudulent concealment, held insufficient where it did not allege that fraudulent representations were relied upon during such period. Burke v. Maguire [Cal.] 98 P 21. Code Civ. Proc. § 338, limiting actions for relief on ground of fraud, does not apply to action for breach of warranty. Murphy v. Stelling [Cal. App.] 97 P 672. Laws 1903, No. 16, barring actions for relief on ground of fraud after one year from discovery of fraud, applies only to equitable actions and not to an action against an agent to compel return of money. Sandoval v. Randolph [Ariz.] 95 P 119. In claim for having fraudulently taken money from possession of owner, statute does not begin to run against claim until time of discovery of fraud. Six year statute (Act of March 27, 1713, § 1 [Sm. L. 76]) not applicable if fraud had been practiced, at least not until discovery of fraud. Kalin v. Wehrle, 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 305.

77. An action in assumpsit for the value of trees wrongfully cut is governed by the six year statute and not by Shannon's Code § 4470, barring actions for injury to land in 3 years. Whitaker v. Poston [Tenn.] 110 SW 1019.

78. Action by husband for injuries to his wife and loss of her services is "for injuries to the person" and is barred in two years under Laws 1902, p. 322, c. 406. Mulvey v. Boston, 197 Mass. 178, 83 NE 402. Action for injuries by being accidentally struck by a beer glass is governed by St. 1898, § 4222, providing that notice of time, place, manner and description of injuries must be given or action brought within one year, and not by § 4224 limiting action for assault and battery to two years. Donner v. Graap, 134 Wis. 523, 115 NW 125.

79. The right of action given by the "Mines and Miners Act" for causing unlawful death is governed by the general laws governing the limitations of personal actions and not by the one year limitation law of the "Injuries Act." Donk Bros. Coal & Coke Co. v. Sapp, 133 Ill. App. 92.

80. Action in equity to ascertain and recover deceased partner's interest in ultimate distribution of partnership assets is within the 10 year statute, relief not specially provided for (Rev. Code Civ. Proc. § 66), and not an action on contract, within the six year statute nor an action to recover land. McPherson v. Swift [S. D.] 116 NW 76. Action to surcharge executor's account for fraud is not within St. 1903, § 2543, declaring that limitations shall not apply to active trusts. Wren's Ex'r v. Wren's Ex'x, 31 Ky. L. R. 1096, 104 SW 737. Action by creditors against assignee for benefit of creditors to set aside unlawful acquisition by assignee of corporate stock belonging to the estate is an equitable action not within Rev. St. 1895, art. 3354, two year statute, but is governed by the four year statute Rev. St. 1895, art. 3358. McCord v. Nabours [Tex.] 109 SW 913; Id. [Tex.] 111 SW 144.

81. St. 1898, § 3860. In re Hanlin's Estate, 133 Wis. 140, 113 NW 411; Hildebrand v. Kinney [Ind. App.] 83 NE 379. Accrues when the person owing it first has a legal right to sue. McPherson v. Swift [S. D.] 116 NW 76. On note payable in 20 years, right of action upon same accrues upon maturity, and limitations run from that time. Smith v. Smith, 35 Pa. Super. Ct. 323. Where one in contemplation of marriage fraudulently deeded land to children by a former marriage, the statute did not run against the wife until her dower interest became consummate by the death of her husband; it is against public policy to hold that a wife must, at peril of becoming barred, commence action against her husband and his grantee. Wallace v. Wallace, 137 Iowa, 169, 114 NW 913. Against the right to redeem from a tax foreclosure, the statute does not commence to run until the expiration of two years within which he could redeem. Young v. Jackson [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 74. Limitations run against title of a pre-emptor of public land from his compliance with the req-

a party against whom it may be enforced,[82] a party competent to sue,[83] and a tribunal before which the claim can be asserted.[84] The cause of action for breach of warranty accrues when the breach becomes apparent,[85] for breach of covenant at the time the covenantee is compelled to yield to the outstanding title,[86] for breach of covenant against the incumbrance at the time it is paid by the covenantee,[87] to recover a bank deposit, after demand and refusal of the bank to pay.[88] An action to recover money accrues when such money becomes due,[89] but if to recover money wrongfully uisites to entitle him to a patent in favor of one who holds adversely. Eastern Banking Co. v. Lovejoy [Neb.] 115 NW 857. Where land is levied on under execution but is sold and possession given by debtor before sheriff's sale, the statute runs against purchaser at sheriff's sale from time debtor executes his deed, and not from time sheriff's deed is delivered. Watt v. Killibrew [Ala.] 47 S 83. Where one member of a firm dies and the other assigns for the benefit of creditors, the holder of a firm note may proceed against the estate without first suing the survivor; and the running of the statute in favor of the estate is not tolled. In re Neher's Estate, 57 Misc. 527, 109 NYS 1090. The right of majority stockholders of a corporation to compel defendant who controlled it to pay a judgment against it based on fraudulent division by defendant of the surplus earnings, accrues when corporation is compelled to pay the judgment, and not from wrongful division of the earnings. Dodd v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 32 Ky. L. R. 605, 106 SW 787. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 299, and § 2380, limitations begin to run in favor of the estate of a decedent against a claim for funeral expenses 20 days after his death. Hildebrand v. Kenney [Ind. App.] 83 NE 379. Does not commence to run against city warrants payable out of a special fund to be created until such fund is created. Rogers v. Omaha [Neb.] 117 NW 119. Laws 1889-90, p. 149, authorizing collection of taxes by suit within five years, and Laws 1889-90, p. 149, c. 103, placing a franchise tax on railroads but not conferring on the Franklin circuit court jurisdiction, held an action in the Franklin circuit court more than five years after taxes might have been assessed but within five years from when it was assessed was not barred. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Com., 32 Ky. L. R. 1112, 108 SW 245. The cause of action for compensation for services in designing a building and superintending its construction accrues when he approves the final bill of the contractors, when it is presumed that the work was completed. Date of presenting for payment does not establish date when bill became due or when indebtedness accrued. Hornblower v. George Washington University, 31 App. D. C. 64. Action against a railroad for breach of contract to construct a depot in a certain place in consideration of the grant of a right of way is not barred by the three year statute, where the line of road was not completed until two years after right of way was acquired. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Berry [Ark.] 110 SW 1049.

82. Hildebrand v. Kinney [Ind. App.] 83 NE 379. Where a cause against a mortgagor accrued after her death and when no administration of her estate existed, the statute did not commence to run until an administrator was appointed. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc. v. Farnham, 153 Cal. 578, 96 P 9. Where trustee sold land to the etate for delinquent taxes and two days before period of redemption expired the clerk sold it to defendant, the three year limitation act Tenn. 1899, p. 1143, did not begin to run until such conveyance. Collier v. Goessling [C. C. A.] 160 F 604.

83. See, also, post, § 6. Cannot be started when there is no one who can sue or be sued. LeCroix v. Malone [Ala.] 47 S 725. Where money of an intestate's estate had been converted more than six years before action commenced but the administrator had been appointed less than one year before commencement of action, limitations did not commence to run until appointment of the administrator. Root v. Lathrop [Conn.] 70 A 614. Upon death of a partner in 1891, the surviving partner appointed an agent to care for the property and claimed it all. An administrator was appointed for decedent in 1892 and sold his interest to a third person. Held that prior to appointment of the administrator there was no one who could demand settlement, and right of action did not accrue until then. McPherson v. Swift [S. D.] 116 NW 76.

84. Saranac Land & Timber Co. v. Roberts, 125 App. Div. 333; 109 NYS 547.

85. For breach of warranty in sale of a bull that such bull was a breeder, not until satisfactory proof that the animal was barren. Williamson v. Heath [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 983.

86. Limitations commence to run against breach of covenant of seisin from the date the covenantee is compelled to yield to an outstanding title and not from date of deed. Brooks v. Mohl, 104 Minn. 404, 116 NW 931. For breach of covenants of seisen and general warranty in a deed, though the breach is technical at the time the deed is made, no substantial damage is suffered and no cause of action accrues until eviction. Sturgis v. Slocum [Iowa] 116 NW 128. But if no possession or right passes under the deed, the covenants are broken at once and cause of action immediately accrues. Id.

87. Cause of action for breach of covenant against incumbrances made by persons subsequently deceased held not to arise so as to be enforcible against estate until covenantee or others entitled to benefit of covenant have suffered actual damages. Hanlin's Estate, In re, 133 Wis. 140, 113 NW 411.

88. Not against the right of a depositor of a bank to recover a deposit until demand therefor and refusal of the bank to pay. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Continental Nat. Bank, 212 Mo. 505, 111 SW 574.

89. If money advanced was not to be paid until some future time, the statute did not commence to run until such time. Jarvis v. Matson [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 326. By writing July 14, 1898, defendant acknowledged receipt of $200 from plaintiff and paid out it accrues at the date of payment.[90] A cause of action by a surety against a cosurety for contribution [91] or against his principal for reimbursement [92] accrues when the surety pays the debt and a like rule applies in case of other persons secondarily liable.[93] A cause of action for money due in installments accrues on maturity of each installment,[94] and the statute runs upon the whole debt from the date of the first default only when such default has the effect of maturing the entire debt.[95] A cause of action on a mutual current account accrues on the date of the last item thereof,[96] but to bring a case within this rule the account must be a mutual one,[97] and if it is not such an account, the statute runs on each item from its date.[98] A agreed to pay him $400 from first profits of a certain mine or the $200 with interest within 6 months. Held, the statute commenced to run January 14, 1899. Davis v. Crawford, 197 Mass. 309, 83 NE 866.

90. Where county treasurer illegally paid out money belonging to school district, the statute ran against right to recover it back from date of payment, and it was barred n three years. Clarke v. School Dist., 84 Ark. 516, 106 SW 677.

91. A surety's right of action for contribution against a cosurety accrues at the time he pays the debt of the principal, and not until then. Mentzer v. Burlingame [Kan.] 97 P 371. Action by surety against cosurety for contribution does not accrue until payment of the obligation by the surety. Kelley v. Sproul [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 559, 117 NW 327. In suits for contribution, the right of action is on an implied promise, and the statute runs from the date of each advancement. Jarvis v. Matson [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 326.

92. Against an action by a surety against a principal for reimbursement from time the surety paid, and not from maturity of note. Blanchard v. Blanchard, 113 NYS 882.

93. Where one agreed to pay notes of another but did not, and the latter was required to pay, limitations run from the date they were required to make payment. Enos v. Anderson, 40 Colo. 395, 93 P 475. Cause of action against a banking firm which had assumed the bank's debts to recover money which the bank was compelled to pay by reason of failure of the firm to do so did not accrue until the firm defaulted in performance of its contract and the bank paid the demand. Hoskins v. Velasco Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 462, 107 SW 598.

94. For interest due on a mortgage accrues when each instalment of interest becomes due. Quackenbush v. Mapes, 123 App. Div. 242, 107 NYS 1047. Where divorce was granted in 1890 awarding weekly allowance of alimony and no payment was made, where application for execution of the decree was made in 1903, the statute did not bar weekly payments accruing within the limitation period. Dewey v. Dewey, 151 Mich. 586, 14 Det. Leg. N. 997, 115 NW 735. Where a written contract of sale provides that the purchase price is to be paid at any time within two years "in amounts and at such times as may suit the convenience" of the purchaser, an action on the contract is not barred until three years after the expiration of the two years within which defendant had right to make payment. Plaintiff held not in default, such time not having expired when action was brought. Patterson v. Barrie, 30 App. D. C. 531.

95. Otherwise it runs only as to the instalment due. Clause v. Columbia Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 16 Wyo. 450, 95 P 54.

96. Vogel v. Kennedy, 127 Mo. App. 228, 104 SW 1151. Not governed by rule of partial payments. Rogers v. Davis, 103 Me. 405, 69 A 618. Where mutual account was opened January 1894, and from 1898 to 1902 there was but one item of twenty cents, which charge was specifically paid shortly after made and credit given therefor on the account, held an action in 1905 was not barred. Id. When parties by mutual dealings have extended, by some item of debit or credit, the time of the bar of the statute, the debtor may not then shorten the time by making specific payment of debit items. Id. Where contract was a continuous one to furnish material for several houses, materials furnished from time to time and prices entered into running account on which payments were made from time to time. Smith v. Ross, 31 App. D. C. 348.

97. For definition, see Accounts Stated and Open Accounts, 11 C. L. 22. One item of an account entered within the statutory period will not bring other barred items without the statute unless there were mutual and reciprocal accounts and demands between the parties. Elwood v. Hughes, 109 NYS 25. An account of loans between lender and borrower kept on borrowing firm's books or slips of paper is not a mutual open and current account within Code Civ. Proc. NYS 386. In re Girvin, 160 F 197. A current account kept by a husband of transactions with his wife's money is not a mutual account, nor is it a mutual account where it contains simply items of money. Cash items form no part of mutual account. Id. Where several items (10) seven of which were barred, were set up and it was alleged that it was impossible to state the others except one not barred, held the claims could not be regarded as a continuous account so as to suspend the statute until date of the last item. Novak v. Novak, 137 Iowa, 519, 115 NW 1. A finding as to date of the items is not a finding that they were not barred. Id. Where joint account of husband and wife with another contained items on both sides running a number of years down to 1904, an action was not barred in 1905. Mt. Nebo Anthracite Coal Co. v. Martin [Ark.] 112 SW 882.

98. Where several demand loans were made by a wife to a firm of which her husband was a member, limitations ran from the date of each item. In re Girvin, 160 F 197. In action for board furnished, where it appeared that it was furnished at widely divergent periods covering a number of years, the court properly regarded each as a separate transaction and not as a con-cause of action for a continuing wrong accrues at the date of the last injury.[99] Where a condition precedent to a right of action exists, the cause does not accrue until the condition is performed.[1] Hence an action on a guardian's bond does not accrue until final account has been filed and he is discharged.[2] Where an attorney collects money for his client, the statute commences to run within a reasonable time, depending on the circumstances.[3] When the right to sue for settlement of partnership affairs accrues depends upon the circumstances.[4] If an injury to land is permanent, the cause accrues at once for the entire damage,[5] but if the injury is continuous or intermittent, it accrues at the date of each injury.[6] Where a statute of tinuous account. Hendelman v. Kahan [Wash.] 97 P 109. Where a decedent was entitled to recover for support, each year's account should be deemed a separate cause of action. Bryson's Adm'r v. Briggs, 32 Ky. L. R. 159, 104 SW 982.

99. One whose logs are injured by being caught in a dam, which constitutes a nuisance, may sue for damages though the dam has existed for more than five years. Ireland v. Bowman [Ky.] 114 SW 338.

1. Where debt payable in instalments was secured by deed of trust, stipulating that at option of holder the entire debt should become due upon default of payment of any instalment, held, in absence of exercise of option by the holder, the statute did not run until maturity of the debt. Clause v. Columbia Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 16 Wyo. 450, 95 P 54. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 380, 381, limiting actions on sealed instrument to 20 years, and § 415, providing the cause accrues when action may be brought, where a mortgage was payable three years after date, interest payable semi-annually, and in case of default entire sum was due at option of the holder, where holder did not exercise his option, the cause did not accrue until maturity of the mortgage. Quackenbush v. Mapes, 123 App. Div. 242, 107 NYS 1047. Where judgment was obtained in 1888 and execution issued thereon in 1907, and returned unsatisfied, in an action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance made in 1893, the cause did not accrue until issuance and return of execution. Code Civ. Proc. § 382. Action formerly cognizable in equity to procure judgment other than for money on ground of fraud. Holland v. Grote, 125 App. Div. 413, 109 NYS 787. A provision in a mortgage that on breach of condition the mortgage should become due immediately held for the benefit of the creditor, and it had a right to indulge the debtor and hence prevent the operation of the statute. Congregational Church Bldg. Soc. v. Osborne, 153 Cal. 197, 94 P 881. Mere passive acquiescence held waiver of forfeiture. Id. One who voluntarily takes out policy of insurance on life of his infant niece payable to himself, intending to reimburse himself for premiums out of the proceeds of the policy, cannot enforce his claim until death of the niece, and his cause of action does not accrue until then. Stokes v. Waters' Ex'r, 32 Ky. L. R. 1218, 108 SW 275. Where the performance of a duty is to take place upon the happening of a certain contingency or the fulfillment of a certain condition, the cause of action does not accrue or the statute begin to run until the event occurs or the condition is complied with. Balance of attorney and accountant's claim to be paid out of proceeds of suit or when suit was terminated. Waterman v. Kirk, 139 Ill. App. 421. The death of the promissor before the contingency happens does not set the statute in motion in favor of his estate. Where promissor died before termination of suit, out of proceeds of which plaintiff was to receive fees. Id.

2. Under Code 1880, § 2107, terminating guardian's powers at marriage of ward, and Code 1892, § 2738, requiring actions on guardian's bonds to be brought within five years from ward's majority, held the statute does not run in favor of a guardian or his sureties for failure to deliver property until final account has been filed and guardian discharged. Pattison v. Clingan [Miss.] 47 S 503.

3. Goodyear Metallic Rubber Shoe Co. v. Baker's Estate [Vt.] 69 A 160. Where a decendent had collected money, as attorney but had failed to pay it over, whether reasonable time had elapsed, in addition to statutory period, 30 days before death of decedent held a question for the court. Id.

4. Cannot be held, as a matter of law, to accrue at date of dissolution or be carried back by relation to that date. McPherson v. Swift [S. D.] 116 NW 76.

5. For injury to land caused by straightening a creek where present and future effect could be ascertained with reasonable certainty at the time and the injury is permanent at the time of construction. Turner v. Overton [Ark.] 111 SW 270. For injury to land resulting from permanent structure on completion of structure. King v. Danville Council, 32 Ky. L. R. 1188, 107 SW 1189. For damages by reason of a railroad constructing a fence and failing to leave opening, by reason of which an owner was shut out from a field and deprived of its use, the cause accrues when the fence was built. Sutherland v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 969.

6. For damages to land by diversion and unlawful use of water, not on erection of the dam, but the owner may recover damages resulting during five years next preceding commencement of action. King v. Danville Council, 32 Ky. L. R. 1188, 107 SW 1189. Where, by negligent construction of railroad embankment and ditches, surface water is discharged onto adjoining property and injures crops, the cause of action accrues at date of the injury, and not at date of construction of embankment and ditches. Morse v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Neb.] 116 NW 859. A cause of action for flooding land and depositing waste, injurious materials thereon caused by operation of ore reduction works, is for recurrent flowage which did not accrue on construction of the works but limitation provides that it shall not run against one until notice, actual notice is usually requisite.[7] An action for possession runs from the time the right to such possession is complete.[8] Thus, the statutes do not run against a remainderman during the existence of the life estate,[9] unless the remainderman has a present right to sue.[10] When a tenant denies his landlord's right of possession and refuses to attorn or pay rent for the premises, the cause of action in forcible detainer accrues to the landlord, and the statute begins to run.[11]

As between stockholder, corporation and creditor,[12] the time when a cause accrues to enforce a stockholder's liability accrues when the extent of such liability is known.[13]

*Mistake and fraud.*See 10 C. L. 642—A cause of action for relief on the ground of mistake or fraud does not ordinarily accrue until such mistake or fraud is or should in the exercise of ordinary diligence, have been discovered.[14] And what facts should at the time of particular injury sustained. Hill v. Empire State-Idaho Min. & Developing Co., 158 F 881. Where one obstructs the channel of a stream so that at widely different dates flood waters are cast upon another's land, the cause of action accrues at the date of the injury, and not at date of obstruction. McClure v. Broken Bow [Neb.] 115 NW 1081.

7. Under Kirby's Dig. §§ 6587, 6588, providing that liabilities of a railroad assumed by a purchasing railroad shall be barred in one year "after notice" of sale the notice required is actual and not constructive notice. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Batesville & Winerva Tel. Co. [Ark.] 110 SW 1047.

8. Mitchell v. Baldwin [Ala.] 45 S 715. Adult heirs have no right to possession of the homestead until termination of homestead interest of the minor heir, and the two year limitation to set aside a void tax deed of the homestead does not run against them until the minor attains majority. Harris v. Brady [Ark.] 112 SW 974. Where testator devised land to his widow, her estate to terminate on her remarriage, and she sold the land, the statute did not run against the right of the heirs to recover the land until remarriage of the widow. Haring v. Shelton [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 389. Where property is given in trust for the benefit of one person for life, remainder over, the right of action of the remainderman to recover part of the property converted by the life beneficiary accrues on death of the life beneficiary. Putnam v. Lincoln Safe Deposit Co., 191 N. Y. 166, 83 NE 789.

9. Willhite v. Berry, 232 Ill. 331, 83 NE 852; Hobson v. Huxtable, 79 Neb. 334, 116 NW 278. A married woman, owner of land, died in 1872, leaving husband and several children, and husband took estate by curtesy. In 1882 a railroad without contract or right appropriated a part of the land; the husband died in 1892 and heirs sued in 1904. Held statute did not commence to run as against them until the death of the life tenant. Webster v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 78 Ohio St. 87, 84 NE 592. Where decedent was seised of land during her life, her husband's estate by the curtesy for life suspended the statute as against the wife's heirs. Hill v. Lane [N. C.] 62 SE 1074.

10. Hobson v. Huxtable, 79 Neb. 334, 116 NW 278. Where a bank assisted a life tenant in some of its stock to sell the stock outright, vested remaindermen had a right of action at once and limitations at once commenced to run. Yeager v. Bank of Kentucky, 32 Ky. L. R. 547, 106 SW 806.

11. Twenty year provision held to commence to run when tenant refused to attorn or pay for premises. Plock v. Plock, 139 Ill. App. 416.

12. See 10 C. L. 642. See, also, Corporations, 11 C. L. 882.

13. Under the Maine statute limitations do not run against stockholders of a banking corporation on their individual liability until the assets of the corporation are fully administered and the amount of the deficiency judicially ascertained. Flynn v. American Banking & Trust Co. [Me.] 69 A 771. Right of receiver of insolvent bank to apply for order vacating order restraining him from proceeding against stockholders secondarily liable, and distributing fund derived from assessment against them, held not barred. State v. Germania Bank [Minn.] 119 NW 61.

14. St. 1898, § 4222, an equitable action for fraud does not accrue until discovery of the fraud. Boon v. Root [Wis.] 119 NW 121. Code Civ. Proc. § 338 expressly provides that actions to rescind instruments for fraud are not barred until one year after discovery of the fraud. Richards v. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank [Cal. App.] 94 P 393. Action to reform deed for fraud or mistake is not barred where brought within 10 years from execution of deed and within five years from discovery of the fraud. Morgan v. Combs, 32 Ky. L. R. 1205, 108 SW 272. Action against promoters of a corporation to recover secret profits made on sale of land to the corporation is within Code, § 3448, providing that action for fraud does not accrue until fraud is discovered. Chaffee v. Berkley [Iowa] 118 NW 267. Silence of the promoters as to price paid for land afterwards sold to the corporation is a fraudulent concealment deemed to avoid the statute. Id. Where an intestate was trustee of a secret trust, limitations did not begin to run against his administratrix for breaches of the trust until the right of action accrued on discovery of the fraud. Russel v. Huntington Nat. Bank [C. C. A.] 162 F 868. The statute does not run against a remainderman in trust property to recover part of the property converted by the life beneficiary until he has actual knowledge of facts upon which his right depends. Putnam v. Lincoln Safe Deposit Co., 191 N. Y.

charge a person of ordinary diligence with notice of fraud depends on the circumstances of each case.[15] Some cases confine this rule to fraud and exclude mistake. Limitation as against a tort, committed through mere mistake not involving fraud begins to run from the time the wrong was done, and not from time of discovery,[16] and some require concealment by the wrong doer of the facts.[17]

§ 4. Time tolled and computation of the period. See 10 C. L. 644—The time that is necessarily required to prosecute an appeal from a judgment on a verdict erroneously directed against the plaintiff in a scire facias upon a mechanic's lien is not to be excluding in computing and applying limitations.[18] In a statutory action to subject a wife to the payment of a family expense, the running of the statute of limitations is not tolled as against the wife by the rendition of a judgment against her husband.[19]

§ 5. What is the commencement of an action. A. In general. See 10 C. L. 644—It is generally held that an action is commenced when summons is served [20] or delivered for service,[21] or on the filing of a complaint.[22] Service must be had on one entitled 166, 83 NE 789. Where a wife on death of the husband fraudulently purchased for a grossly inadequate price at partition sale land, and a child 16 years old at the time did not understand the transaction and acquiesced in it, without fully understanding it, after attaining majority, held the statute did not run. Markley v. Camden Safe Deposit & Trust Co. [N. J. Eq.] 69 A 1100. In action to set aside a deed for fraud, evidence insufficient to show that fraud should not have been discovered within five years. Hendrick v. Miller, 32 Ky. L. R. 1030, 107 SW 731. Where a husband had converted money belonging to his wife, his statement after her death that he and his wife had spent most of the money was not sufficient to show fraudulent concealment, sufficient to suspend the statute. Smith v. Settle, 128 Mo. App. 379, 107 SW 430.

15. Held one was not negligent as a matter of law, in failing to discover mistake in description of land granted more than four years before bringing the action. Isaacks v. Wright [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 970. Subpoena in foreclosure proceedings of land which defendant had contracted to plaintiff by clear title held to be considered with other facts in determining whether plaintiff has such knowledge of the foreclosure proceedings and their effect as would put her upon inquiry to ascertain defendant's good faith and start limitations against her right to recover for his fraud. Comfort v. Robinson [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 951, 118 NW 943. That grantor in deed containing a misdescription had opportunity to investigate and discover the mistake held insufficient to show that he should have discovered it more than four years before bringing the action. Isaacks v. Wright [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 970.

16. Commonwealth v. Donnelly, 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 619.

17. That money was obtained by fraud does not prevent the statute running against an action to recover it back from the consummation of the transaction, unless investigation is prevented by affirmative acts of the wrongdoer, mere silence is insufficient. Boyd v. Beebe [W. Va.] 61 SE 304. Evidence sufficient to show fraudulent concealment preventing the running of the statute. Dowse v. Gaynor [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 897, 118 NW 615. Mere ignorance of plaintiff of his cause of action will not prevent running of statute. There must be concealment. Clapp v. Leavens, 164 F 318. The statute begins to run from the time plaintiff discovered that defendant had collected the money due on the judgment, unless there was a fraudulent concealment of the cause of action which tolled the statute. Held, under evidence, no fraudulent concealment such as would toll five year statute. Hurd's Statutes of 1905, p. 1334, § 22. Heckard v. Daugherty, 133 Ill. App. 420. The statute begins to run as against a cause of action sounding in tort of which fraud is a basis as soon as the fraud and subsequent injury have occurred, and not when the fraud is discovered unless there has been a fraudulent concealment of the cause of action. No averment of concealment. Nelson v. Petterson, 131 Ill. App. 443.

18. Five years' limitation under Act of June 16, 1836 (P. L. 695, § 24). Kountz v. Consolidated Ice Co., 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 639. Presumption is that in fixing time for reviving lien legislature took into consideration delays incident to an appeal for correction of error by trial court. Id.

19. In action under Husband and Wife Act, § 8, judgment against husband held not to toll statute as against wife. Staver Carriage Co. v. Beaudry, 138 Ill. App. 147.

20. Where service of process is quashed because made by an unauthorized person, plaintiff could cause service of another summons or an amended petition, thereby commencing a new action within Rev. St. 1899, § 3461, providing that action is deemed commenced at date of summons served. Clause v. Columbia Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 16 Wyo. 450, 95 P 54.

21. Where summons was issued August 2nd returnable August 14, affidavit of him to whom it was given for service made August 13, four days before an item was barred that he was unable to find defendant overcomes objection that summons was not delivered for service before limitations had run. Elwood v. Hughes, 109 NYS 25.

22. In proceedings under Gen. Laws 1878, § 9, to sequester property of a debtor and have a receiver appointed, the exhibition of a claim and filing of a complaint by a creditor pursuant to order of court is the commencement of an independent action. Downer v. Union Land Co., 103 Minn. 392, 115 NW 207. Where acknowledgment was taken in October to accept it.[23] In a federal court of equity there must be filing of complaint, issuance of subpœna and bona fide attempt to serve it.[24] The commencement of an action tolls the statute only as to persons bringing and not as to others having a right to maintain an independent action.[25] A writ of error is not a new suit in the sense that the limitations applicable to the original cause of action run against it.[26] The statute does not cease to run against offsets until the time defendant files his plea of offset.[27]

(§ 5) B. Amendment of pleading.[28]—An amendment founded on the same cause of action [29] but in different terms,[30] or which cures a defective complaint [31] or corrects a recital therein,[32] or which set forth the cause with greater amplification,[33]

1901 and petition for correction thereof was filed July 24, 1905, and amended petition given to defendant's attorney a few days before July 24th and thereafter taken from his office and filed, held he was charged with notice of the filing of the petition so as to prevent running of the four year statute. Taylor v. Silliman [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 1011.

23. Where city clerk was proper officer upon whom to serve complaint in action against the city for injuries, service on a clerk in the office of the corporation counsel was not the commencement of an action. Boyle v. Detroit, 152 Mich. 248, 15 Det. Leg. N. 136, 115 NW 1056.

24. To constitute "commencement of a suit" in federal court of equity, there must be filing of bill, due issuance of subpoena, which must come into the hands of the serving officer with intent to be served, and there must be a bona fide attempt to serve it. United States v. Miller, 164 F 444. Bona fide attempt shown where marshal made several attempts to serve, and after life of original an alias subpoena was served. Id.

25. The mere commencement of an action by a judgment creditor under § 9, c. 76, Gen. Laws 1878, for sequestration of property of the debtor and appointment of receiver did not toll the statute as to claims of other creditors since each might have brought a separate action and the court could have consolidated them. Downer v. Union Land Co., 103 Minn. 392, 115 NW 207.

26. Provision in insurance policy requiring action thereon to be brought within one year relates to original suit and not writs of error therein. Helbig v. Citizens' Ins. Co., 234 Ill. 251, 84 NE 897.

27. Boyd v. Beebe [W. Va.] 61 SE 304.

28. See 10 C. L. 644. See, also, Pleading, 10 C. L. 1173.

29. Amendment to complaint by assignee of a school warrant held not to set up a different cause of action since an adjudication under the original complaint would bar an action on the amended complaint, and vice versa. Michelltree School Tp. Co. v. Carnahan [Ind. App.] 84 NE 520. In an action for death resulting from negligence, where original complaint was not barred, a proper amendment made after the statute had run relates back. Alabama Consol. Coal & Iron Co. v. Heald [Aa.] 45 S 686; Townes v. Dallas Mfg. Co. [Ala.] 45 S 696. If an amendment is not a departure from the original complaint, the fact that the former is based on statute and the latter under common-law liability does not prevent the amendment from relating back. Alabama Consol. Coal & Iron Co. v. Heald [Ala.] 45 S 686.

Held not to set up a different cause: Amendment to complaint for damages for breach of contract. El Paso, etc., R. Co. v. Harris [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 145. Where complaint against a railroad for slander though its road master alleged that he said "The old ——— is stealing and I want him discharged," an amendment alleging "and that the oldest foreman on the road was caught stealing." Yazoo, etc., R. Co. v. Rivers [Miss.] 46 S 705. Where complaint demanded foreclosure of landlord's lien on crop, subsequent amendment was based on conversion of the crop. Sexton Rice & Irr. Co. v. Sexton [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 697, 106 SW 728. Amended petition filed under statute passed pending proceedings as a continuation of original condemnation proceedings. Columbia Heights Realty Co. v. MacFarland, 31 App. D. C. 112. New cause of action not set up by alleging in amendment that contract upon which action was grounded was in writing, first declaration being silent on point, amendment in avoidance of plea of five-year limitation statute. Coats v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 134 Ill. App. 217. Where both declarations complained of construction by defendant of an imperfect and unsafe stone cellar wall and of procuring plaintiff to work upon wall constructed upon unsafe foundation thereby causing injury complained of. Hagen v. Schlueter, 140 Ill. App. 84.

30. Byrne v. Marshall Field & Co., 237 Ill. 384, 86 NE 748. Where an original complaint for injuries stated a good cause of action defectively, alleging that the company so carelessly "propelled" its car, etc., and an amendment alleging that it so carelessly "conducted and managed" its car, the amendment did not set up a new cause of action. Ratner v. Chicago City R. Co., 233 Ill. 169, 84 NE 201. Where complaint alleged injury to horses by defendant willfully running its locomotive over them, an amendment alleging that horses were injured by being frightened onto a trestle by locomotive did not set up a new cause of action. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Garth [Ala.] 46 S 583.

31. An amendment to a complaint which states a cause of action defectively relates back. Byrne v. Marshall Field & Co., 237 Ill. 384, 86 NE 748.

32. Where complaint on promissory note was amended merely for the purpose of correcting a recital that the copy of the note was attached so as to allege that the original instead of the copy was attached, a new cause of action was not stated. Bradley v. Pinney, 77 Kan. 763, 93 P 585.

33. Amendments which only amplify or make more certain the allegations of the original complaint relate back. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Sweet [Kan.] 96 P 657. Where original petition sought to recover broker's or which substitutes [34] or brings in new parties,[35] relates back to the filing of the original complaint, but where it sets forth a new and different cause of action,[36] or a cause dependent on different grounds,[37] or where the original complaint did not state a cause of action,[38] the statute continues to run until the amendment is filed. An amendment in an action for wrongful death which changes the beneficiary of the action is, in effect, the bringing of a new action.[39] It is immaterial whether an amendment sets up a different cause of action where it sets up a cause not barred.[40]

(§ 5) C. Nonsuit and dismissal. See 10 C. L. 645—In many states it is prescribed by statute that if an action fail otherwise than on the merits, a new action may be commission, an amendment embodying the same allegations, but with greater amplification and additional allegations, did not set up a new cause of action. Mayes v. Magill [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 558, 107 SW 363. Where original complaint and amendments filed within the period all alleged failure to provide safe place to alight, averment of causes contributing to unsafeness of the place will not prevent amendments from relating back. Atlanta & B. Air Line R. v. Wheeler [Ala.] 46 S 262.

34. The substitution of a third party for the original plaintiff in an action is not the commencement of a new action. State Bank v. Carroll [Neb.] 116 NW 276. Where action to enforce pledged securities was brought within the period and pending suit they were assigned, an amendment substituting parties plaintiff did not constitute a new action. Merced Bank v. Price [Cal.] 98 P 383. That plaintiffs sue in amended complaint in their individual capacity does not change the cause of action set forth in the original complaint in the firm name. Mayes v. Magill [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 558, 107 SW 363. Where original complaint was in name of plaintiff as a widow and the amendment set up that she had been deserted by her husband. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Overton [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 691, 107 SW 71.

35. Entrance into action of other parties whether they came in voluntarily or through the agency of plaintiffs, does not constitute new cause of action. El Paso, etc., R. Co. v. Harris [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 145. Where action was commenced within the period, an amendment adding another party plaintiff relates back. Cousar v. Heath [S. C.] 61 SE 973. Where one brought suit against a corporation for unfair trade and amended to show that during a part of the time the corporation was a partnership, held the amendment did not set up a different cause of action. Dittgen v. Racine Paper Goods Co., 164 F 85.

36. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Sweet [Kan.] 96 P 657. Where a new or different cause of action barred by the statute of limitation is introduced by an amendment, the statute may be pleaded as a bar. Chicago-Virden Coal Co. v. Bradley, 134 Ill. App. 234. In action for damages done by fire, an amendment alleging that damage was done by another and different fire from that set forth in the original complaint does not relate back. Id. After the statute has run, a new cause of action cannot be introduced or new parties brought in or a new subject-matter presented. Lane v. Sayre Water Co., 220 Pa. 599, 69 A 1126. In trespass for malicious seizure the complaint cannot be amended after six years from accrual of the cause of action to allege abuse of process by excessive seizure. Id. Where complaint for death was based on Miners' Act (Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, p. 1393), and was amended to ask recovery under common-law liability, held the amendment set up a new cause of action. Bradley v. Chicago-Virden Coal Co., 231 Ill. 622, 83 NE 424. Where cause of action predicated upon Mines and Miners' Act was amended by substitution of cause of action predicated upon Injuries Act after latter cause, if in an independent action, would have been barred, held amendment was likewise barred. Chicago-Virden Coal Co. v. Bradley, 134 Ill. App. 234. Amended declaration pleading specially policy of insurance where original declaration was on an account stated, held to state a new cause of action and barred. Heffron v. Concordia Fire Ins. Co., 138 Ill. App. 483.

37. A cause of action set up in an amendment, though founded on the same injury as that described in the original complaint, is a different cause of action if it is dependent entirely upon different reasons for holding defendant liable. Johnson v. American Smelting & Refining Co. [Neb.] 116 NW 517. The original complaint alleged a personal injury and consequent damages because of negligence of a third party and that defendant succeeded to his liabilities. The amended complaint alleged that the injury was caused by defendant's negligence. Held different cause of action. Id. Where complaint set up simple negligence or willful, wanton or reckless conduct of defendant and amendment charging willful and wanton conduct of defendant's servant set up a new ground of liability. Freeman v. Central of Georgia R. Co. [Ala.] 45 S 898.

38. Where a complaint fails to state a cause of action, and after the statute has run an amendment setting up new and additional counts stating a cause of action is filed, such amendment does not relate back. Bahr v. National Safe Deposit Co., 234 Ill. 101, 84 NE 717. Original declaration for death on wrongful act held to state cause of action. Bahr v. National Safe Deposit Co., 137 Ill. App. 397; Englund v. Mississippi Valley Trac. Co., 139 Ill. App. 572.

39. Gen. St. Fla. 1906, § 3146, gives right of action to widow alone. Federal Act June 11, 1906, c. 3073, gives the right to personal representative. Held where widow sued in Florida the action was based on the state statute and an amendment to change her capacity to that of administratrix introduced a new cause of action based on the federal statute. Hall v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 157 F 464.

40. Martin v. Simon Gregory & Co. [Ark.] 110 SW 1046.

commenced within a prescribed period.[41] Such statutes apply only to the proceedings designated,[42] and falling within their terms [43] and in Georgia the privilege can be exercised but once.[44] One who seeks the benefit of the statute must prove that he comes within its terms.[45]

§ 6. Postponement, interruption, and revival. A. General rules. See 10 C. L. 646 Subject to the rule that limitations do not run against sovereignty,[46] the statutes are applied generally and to all cases.[47] Where exception to their operation is not specifically made,[48] and after they have once commenced, they run over all subsequent disabilities and intermediate acts,[49] unless otherwise expressly provided,[50] but being statutes of repose, they are suspended during pendency of legal proceedings looking to settlement,[51] providing they are such as to prevent the enforcement of the remedy

41. Henderson v. Eller, 147 N. C. 582, 61 SE 446. Where holder of note brought action upon it in a county where one of makers resided and also sent a summons to another county where another maker resided and pending proceedings action was dismissed, held to have failed otherwise than on the merits within. Gen. St. 1901, § 4451. Parker v. Dobson [Kan.] 96 P 472. Quashing of service of summons because made by unauthorized person held to result in failure of plaintiff otherwise than on merits within Rev. St. § 3465, authorizing new action within one year. Clause v. Columbia Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 16 Wyo. 450, 95 P. 54. Under Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, c. 83, where judgment for plaintiff is reversed and time for bringing action has expired pending suit, a new action may be commenced within one year. Held where plaintiff sued for injuries and after limitations expired amendments were filed setting up a new cause and a judgment for him could not be sustained, he was entitled to bring a new action within one year. McAndrews v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 162 F 856.

42. Ann. St. 1906, p. 2357, providing that if one suffer nonsuit or his judgment be reversed on appeal or error or arrested, he may bring a new action within one year, means appeal or error prosecuted in the original manner and not appeal from quashing or refusing to quash executions on the judgment. Moore v. Gibson, 130 Mo. App. 590, 109 SW 1056.

43. A suit brought in a state court and properly removed to a federal court having concurrent jurisdiction and there dismissed on plaintiff's motion cannot under Civ. Code 1895, § 3786, be renewed in a state court within six months, so as to avoid the bar. Webb v. Southern Cotton Oil Co. [Ga.] 63 SE 135. Where a case was removed from state to federal court after the time prescribed has elapsed and a nonsuit is granted in the latter, the case could not be rebrought in the state court within six months. Id.

44. Under § 3786, Civ. Code 1895, providing that if plaintiff be nonsuited or shall discontinue or dismiss his case and shall recommence action within six months, such renewed action shall stand upon the same footing as the original, such privilege may be exercised but once. Webb v. Southern Cotton Oil Co. [Ga.] 63 SE 135. Such statute applies only to cases pending in state courts. Id.

45. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 405, providing for new action within one year after termination in any other manner than by voluntary dismissal, final judgment on merits, etc., a plaintiff in a barred action who claims that the action is brought within one year after termination by nonsuit must prove it unless it is admitted. Clifford v. Duffy, 56 Misc. 667, 107 NYS 809. Answer alleging that defendant recovered judgment on the merits does not admit that former action was terminated by nonsuit. Id.

46. See ante, § 1.

47. See ante, §§ 2, 3. Where several have an interest and each may maintain a separate action, the disability of one does not toll the statute as to others. Hobson v. Huxtable, 79 Neb. 334, 116 NW 278. Under St. 1903, § 2522, statutes of limitation apply to all actions whether based on legal or equitable rights. Wren's Ex'r v. Wren's Ex'x, 31 Ky. L. R. 1096, 104 SW 737.

48. Does not run against correction of a deed where vendee has been in possession, under Ky. St. 1903, § 2543, providing that limitations shall not apply to action by a vendee in possession for a conveyance. Hill v. Clark, 32 Ky. L. R. 595, 106 SW 805. Where a right of action had accrued prior to passage of Shannon's Code, § 4464, suspending limitations during the Civil War, the right was not affected nor impaired thereby nor by the constitutional provision on the same subject. Breckenridge Cannel Coal Co. v. Scott [Tenn.] 114 SW 930.

49. The rule is universal that with the exceptions provided by statute and in certain cases where the statute is suspended because it is impossible to commence an action, when the statute has once begun to run it can not be suspended, postponed or interrupted by any subsequent condition. Congregational Church Bldg. Soc. v. Osborn, 153 Cal. 197, 94 P 881. When the statute has once commenced to run, nothing can stop it except some positive statutory requirement. Gaston v. Gaston [S. C.] 61 SE 393.

50. Under U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1986, providing that in absence of protest settlement of duties shall become final one year after entry, the filing of protest tolls the statute until it is decided. Klumpp v. Thomas [C. C. A.] 162 F 853.

51. Statutes of limitation are statutes of repose and are based on the likelihood that inaction for a protracted period would not occur unless a settlement had been made. Klumpp v. Thomas [C. C. A.] 162 F 853. A creditor's bill suspends the statute during its pendency only as to claims brought into the suit and after conclusion of the suit the statute continues to run. Prince's Adm'r v. McLemore, 108 Va. 269, 61 SE 802. An action by action.[52] The commencement of an action to enforce the right tolls the statute,[53] but the mere reservation of a claim by an executor does not.[54] Disabilities cannot be tacked.[55] Financial distress of one entitled to sue,[56] or mere ignorance of the existence of a cause of action, does not suspend the statute,[57] nor does a mere request by the debtor not to sue.[58] The continued possession by the creditor of a note pledged as collateral suspends the statute as to the principal obligation after the collateral is prescribed on its face.[59] Mere ignorance of the whereabouts of a debtor who is not absent from the state does not toll the statute of limitation as applied to an action on an account, but the burden is on the creditor to show affirmative acts on the part of the debtor which prevented a discovery of his whereabouts.[60] A barred obligation cannot be revived by a transaction having no relation to it.[61]

(§ 6) B. Trusts.[See 10 C. L. 647]—The statutes do not run in favor of a trustee of an active, or continuing trust, until his repudiation thereof and notice brought home to the beneficiary,[62] but do run against constructive or implied trusts from in 1878 by creditors of an estate against the administrator and his sureties to set aside his settlement and restate the account suspended limitations as to sureties until termination of the suit in 1893, and an action against distributees of deceased sureties on administrator's bond brought 8 years thereafter is not barred. Cole v. Hall, 85 Ark. 144, 107 SW 175.

52. Harrison v. Scott, 77 Kan. 637, 95 P 1045. The statute will run against a cause in favor of a stockholder of an insolvent corporation for contribution from his costockholders based on a claim in his favor against the corporation, though there is pending against him an action on his double liability in which he seeks to offset the same cause of action. Id. The fact that the subject of an action is held in custodia legis in another action in which the defendant is not a party nor in privity with a party and over which he has no control, will not suspend the statute in his favor. Hawkins v. Brown [Kan.] 97 P 479.

53. Where a corporation has purchased the business and stock in trade of an individual and assumed the liabilities and is impleaded in an action against the seller to recover a debt, and while such action is pending, sells to another corporation which in turn assumes the debts, held the statute did not begin to run in favor of the latter, so long as the creditor is prosecuting with reasonable diligence actions to establish liability of the successive corporations. Walterscheid v. Bowdish, 77 Kan. 665, 96 P 56.

54. Though executor has received a claim against the estate which he has never accepted nor rejected. In re Neher's Estate, 57 Misc. 527, 109 NYS 1090.

55. Rev. St. 1895, art. 3376, expressly provides that disability of minority cannot be tacked to disability of coverture of the ancestor. Laird v. Murray [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 780.

56. The fact that a mortgagor was not financially able to redeem from foreclosure sale will not toll the statute as to his right to redeem. Clapp v. Leavens [C. C. A.] 164 F 318.

57. Mere ignorance of existence of cause of action does not suspend the statute unless there has been fraudulent concealment. Hibben v. Malone, 85 Ark. 584, 109 SW 1008. The statute is not tolled as to a foreign plaintiff because he is ignorant that defendant has removed to this state. Dowse v. Gaynor [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 897, 118 NW 615.

See, however, ante § 3, as to rule that cause of action for fraud accrues only on notice thereof.

58. Request not to sue for a tort, accompanied by a suggestion that matter would be adjusted, but unaccompanied by any acknowledgment of liability or promise to pay, and promise not to plead the statute, does not suspend it. Brown v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 147 N. C. 217, 60 SE 985.

59. The continued possession by the creditor of a note pledged as collateral operates as a suspension of prescription on the principal obligation after the collateral note is prescribed on its face. Meyer Bros. v. Colvin [La.] 47 S 447.

60. Nelson Morris & Co. v. Cisler, 7 Ohio N. P. [N. S.] 142.

61. A debtor conveyed land to a creditor who executed a contract to reconvey within a specified time on payment of the debt. The debtor sold his equity to a third person. Held the debtor could not thereafter demand that the creditor apply in payment of the debt an amount claimed to be due from the creditor on a prior barred obligation. McCarron v. Wheeler, 151 Mich. 222, 14 Det. Leg. N. 923, 114 NW 1028.

62. Weitner v. Thurmond [Wyo.] 98 P 590. Not against the enforcement of an express trust until by some act or declaration of the trustee an end is put to the trust relation. Greenleaf v. Land & Lumber Co., 146 N. C. 505, 60 SE 424. Do not run where guardian purchases property for his ward and takes title in name of third person, until ward has notice that deed was taken in name of third person. Manahan v. Holmes, 58 Misc. 86, 110 NYS 300. A county which collects taxes for a city holds the funds as trustee. City of Chadron v. Dawes County [Neb.] 118 NW 469. Do not run against a trust until repudiation by the trustee and do not run against right to enforce trust obligation of purchaser of premises on a mortgage foreclosure to refund to the mortgagor what she invested in the premises, until he repudiated the trust. Carr v. Craig [Iowa] 116 NW 720. Not in favor of one cotenant against another until ouster. German v. Heath [Iowa] 116 NW 1051.

the creation thereof.[63] A sale by a trustee for his own interest is a repudiation of the trusts.[64]

(§ 6) C. Insanity and death.[See 10 C. L. 647]—As a general rule the statutes do not run against insane persons during the continuance of the disability.[65] Death does not toll the statute unless such exception is provided for.[66] Statutes generally provide that an action may be prosecuted on behalf of a deceased person,[67] or against his estate within a prescribed period after his death [68] or appointment of administrator,[69] but the action must be prosecuted within such period.[70]

(§ 6) D. Infancy and coverture.[See 10 C. L. 648]—Infants are generally excepted from the operation of the statutes [71] or are given a prescribed period after attaining majority within which to bring action,[72] but exemption of infants from the opera-

63. Lady Ensley Coal, Iron & R. Co. v. Gordon [Ala.] 46 S 983; Norton v. Bassett [Cal.] 97 P 894. Constructive trust. Markley v. Camden Safe Deposit & Trust Co. [N. J. Eq.] 69 A 1100. Where husband obtained money belonging to his wife and she elected to treat him as an implied or constructive trustee, such trust was not such as to suspend the statute which ran from its creation. Smith v. Settle, 128 Mo. App. 379, 107 SW 430. Where owners of land conveyed it and took a purchase money mortgage to be paid from sales of the land, if a constructive trust was created it arose from confidential relations of the parties and breach of the agreement would start the statute as to the constructive trust after expiration of a reasonable time from the sale of the land. Castro v. Adams, 153 Cal. 382, 95 P 1027. If the equity consists of a right on the part of the plaintiff to call upon the court to declare the holder of the legal title a trustee, the statute runs from the time the right or cause accrues. Greenleaf v. Land & Lumber Co., 146 N. C. 505, 60 SE 424.

64. Where a bank of a trustee, assisted the life tenant in some of its stock to sell it outright. Yeager v. Bank of Kentucky, 32 Ky. L. R. 547, 106 SW 806.

65. McLean v. Stith [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 355. Not against an insane person, if in fact insane, though not adjudged insane. Kaack v. Stanton [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 702. Where, after one was adjudged insane and his land sold in an action by a creditor against his committee, the statute ran against his right of action to recover it when he was discharged as restored, and was not tolled by a recurrence of insanity nine years later. Howard v. Landsberg's Committee, 108 Va. 161, 60 SE 769.

66. Where limitations commenced to run before a decedent's death, they were not interrupted by his death nor by the infancy of his heirs. Lewine v. Gerardo, 112 NYS 192.

67. Ann. St. 1906, p. 2355, providing that, if a person entitled to sue dies before limitations have run and the cause survives, his representatives may sue within a year therefrom, is limited to one year from death of decedent and not to one year from appointment of administrator. Smith v. Settle, 128 Mo. App. 379, 107 SW 430.

68. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 299, a claim against a decedent's estate, cause of action whereon accrued during his lifetime, is barred where no administrator is appointed within 18 months after his death. Hildebrand v. Kinney [Ind. App.] 83 NE 379.

69. Under Code 1902, § 2858, and Code Civ. Proc. § 123, where the maker of a note dies before limitations have run, an action may be brought against his administrator after the statute has run, but within one year after the granting of letters of administration. Gaston v. Gaston [S. C.] 61 SE 393. In computing period, time when there was no administrator should be deducted. Bryson's Adm'r v. Briggs, 32 Ky. L. R. 159, 104 SW 982.

70. One's husband became insane in 1875, but no guardian was appointed. In 1881 the wife moved to another state and remarried believing the husband dead. The husband died in 1894. Held an action by the wife in 1905 to quiet title to land, standing in name of deceased, was barred. German v. Heath [Iowa] 116 NW 1051.

71. Gary v. Landry [La.] 47 S 124. The 10 year's prescriptions are suspended during minority. Jenkins v. Salmen Brick & Lumber Co., 120 La. 549, 45 S 435. Where there is no reference to a deceased child or his representatives in a will, limitations do not run against a minor child of such deceased child during his minority. Rowe v. Allison [Ark.] 112 SW 395. Where one takes a deed to secure a debt and subsequently acquires possession under a void sheriff's deed, an action to cancel the deed and for other relief is not barred where it appears that the debtor has died less than seven years after the sheriff's sale and all but two of his heirs are minors. Buchan v. Williamson [Ga.] 62 SE 815. Not as against one under legal disability to sue until removal of the disability. Hobson v. Huxtable, 79 Neb. 334, 116 NW 278. Under Law 1893, p. 20, c. 11, limiting actions to recover land to seven years, except as to infants, adverse possession under mortgage foreclosure gives title except as against minors. Schlarb v. Castaing [Wash.] 97 P 289. Where sale under foreclosure was consummated in 1891, and at that time heirs of grantor were 18 years of age, held an action by them in 1901 to set aside the foreclosure was barred. Hendricks v. Calloway, 211 Mo. 536, 111 SW 60.

72. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 375, providing a twenty-year period within which to recover land, but providing in case of a minor, that the period of minority is not a part of such period, except that it cannot be extended more than 10 years after removal of disability, where land was taken against infants in 1878 and the eldest attained majority in 1881, the action was not barred in 1899. Muller v. Manhattan R. Co., 124 App. Div. 295, 108 NYS 852. As to children who tion of the statute depends upon express provision therein,[73] and infancy of an heir cannot avail where the statute has run against the ancestor.[74] As a general rule the statute is suspended as to claims between husband and wife during the existence of the marital relation,[75] but this rule is not universal.[76] In some states coverture is not a bar to an action and the statute is not suspended.[77]

(§ 6) E. Absence and nonresidence.[See 10 C. L. 648]—It is generally provided that absence or nonresidence shall suspend the operation of the statute,[78] but such an exception will not be implied where the statute does not declare it.[79] Nonresidence does not suspend the statute if personal service may be had in the state.[80] A stat-became of age in 1879 and 1880, the action was barred in 1898, but not as to a child who attained majority in 1890. Taggart v. Manhattan R. Co., 57 Misc. 184, 109 NYS 38. Where a child cotenant was 14 years of age when his right of action accrued, his right to sue was not barred until 27 years thereafter. Goggin v. Manhattan R. Co., 124 App. Div. 644, 109 NYS 83. Where a mother acquired land in the name of herself and minor children and thereafter surrendered her unrecorded deed to her grantor and took a new deed in her own name, held limitations did not run against remainder interest of minors until their mother's death and they then still being minors, not until three years after disability was removed did the statute run. Ky. St. 1903, § 2506. Sayler v. Johnson, 32 Ky. L. R. 709, 107 SW 210. Under Kirby's Dig. § 5075, providing that a minor entitled to sue may bring action within three years after attaining majority, one who attained majority in April 1904 may sue in 1905 to set aside a tax deed executed in 1902. Harris v. Brady [Ark.] 112 SW 974.

73. Where not prohibited by constitution, the legislature may make such statutes applicable to infants. Schlarb v. Castaing [Wash.] 97 P 289. Laws 1893, p. 20, limiting actions to recover land to seven years and exempting minors as to two classes of possession, applies to minors as to the other section. Id. The betterment act, Kirby's Dig. §§ 2754, 2757, limiting actions to recover rents and profits from one in possession as a bona fide purchaser, applies to infants. Brown v. Neims [Ark.] 112 SW 373. Not a limitation statute. Id. Rev. St. 1895, § 3376, expressly provides that, where right of action on purchase money note accrued during lifetime of holder, a married woman, the statute runs from her death as against her children, though they are minors. Laird v. Murray [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 780.

74. Sanders v. Word [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 205.

75. Hamby v. Brooks [Ark.] 111 SW 277.

76. Where husband received money belonging to his wife, the statute ran against her from date he received it, but the wife having died under coverture her representatives could sue within one year from her death. Ann. St. 1906, pp. 2354, 2355. Smith v. Settle, 128 Mo. App. 379, 107 SW 430. Action by wife against husband to recover land may accrue during coverture, but if she dies under coverture, whether the statute has run or not, and action is saved to her heirs within three years, by Ann. St. 1906, p. 2342. Id.

77. Runs against married woman's right to recover community homestead conveyed by her husband in hostility to her homestead rights. Sanders v. Wood [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 205.

78. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 3367, providing that, if a person against whom a cause accrues shall be without the state when it accrues or at any time during which action might have been maintained, such absence shall not be taken as part of the time limited, it is immaterial whether a debtor was in the state when a cause accrued, if he leaves it before the bar is complete. Dignowity v. Sullivan [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 428. Where a debtor is out of the state when a cause accrues, the statute does not commence to run until he comes into the state and will continue to run so long as he remains in the state and is suspended if he again leaves. Gibson v. Simmons, 77 Kan. 461, 94 P 1013. Before a debtor, who is absent from the state when a cause accrues and who makes occasional visits to the state during the period, can set up the statute, the times of his temporary presence in the state must aggregate the statute. Id. Where grantee in tax deed was at time a nonresident and remained so until the property was conveyed, the period of his absence was not to be counted in determining whether the statute had run against a suit by the original owner to quiet title. Burleigh v. Hecht [S. D.] 117 NW 367. In action on a note barred on its face, plaintiff did not have the burden to show precise periods during which defendant visited the state, but it was sufficient for him to show that he left the state before the statute had run and remained a nonresident. Dignowity v. Sullivan [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 428. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 339, limiting actions on written instruments executed outside the state to two years, and § 351, tolling the statute as to time a defendant is absent from the state, where note was made payable in New York by residents of that state, but maker was nonresident when cause accrued and later came to California, the statute ran in his favor only after he came to California, and was tolled while he was occasionally absent from the state. McKee v. Dodd, 152 Cal. 637, 93 P 854.

79. Laws 1872, p. 559, barring action on a foreign judgment in five years, fixes the time from which the statute runs as when facts exist which authorize the action without reference to residence of either party, and the statute runs, though all parties were nonresidents, until the judgment defendant became a resident after judgment, though if either party had been a resident when the cause accrued it would have been saved by § 18. Davis v. Munie, 235 Ill. 620, 85 NE 943.

80. Rev. St. 1906, p. 2356, suspending the ute providing that one absent from the state when a cause of action accrues, who shall "return" thereto, may be sued within the time limited applies to nonresidents coming into the state for the first time.[81] Where a debtor had departed from the the state and had no place of abode therein, his temporary return and presence at court did not continue the operation of the statute.[82] The effect of bar by the statute of another state during the period of nonresidence is discussed in another section.[83]

(§ 6) F. A new promise to pay or acknowledgment of the obligation See 10 C. L. 649 tolls the statute or revives a cause already barred,[84] but this rule is held to apply only to causes of action ex contractu.[85] The acknowledgment must have reference to the entire claim [86] and plainly indicate the claim to which it refers.[87] Promisor may bind his successor in interest [88] or his joint debtor.[89] The promise must conform to statutory requirements [90] and is generally required to be in writing.[91] It must contain an admission of a present existing debt.[92] Letters may be sufficient.[93] statute while a debtor is absent from the state, should be construed in connection with p. 597, providing for service of process by leaving a copy of the writ at his usual place of abode. State v. Allen [Mo. App.] 111 SW 622. The jury should be charged how ordinary process may be served by leaving a copy of the petition at his usual place of abode. Id.

82. State v. Allen [Mo. App.] 111 SW 622.

83. See ante, § 1.

84. A written acknowledgment within the statutory period raises an implied promise to pay within the statutory period from date of such acknowledgment. National Cycle Mfg. Co. v. San Diego Cycle Co. [Cal.] 98 P 64. Though a purchaser of mortgaged property does not in the deed assume it, his express written admission of the debt is sufficient to defeat the plea of limitations in an action to foreclose. Senninger v. Rowley [Iowa] 116 NW 695.

85. A cause of action sounding in tort is not revived by an acknowledgment. Nelson v. Petterson, 131 Ill. App. 443.

86. Tender of an amount in open court and plea accompanying it did not take the whole of plaintiff's claim out of the statute; thereby only a part of the claim was acknowledged. Antrim Lumber Co. v. Bolinger & Co., 121 La. 306, 46 S 337.

87. An acknowledgment or promise to take a case out of the statute must specify or plainly refer to the particular debt or demand or cause of action sought to be revived. Pendley v. Powers, 129 Ga. 69, 58 SE 653.

88. Where a purchaser with notice of a mortgage takes an interest in the mortgaged premises, he succeeds to the estate and occupies the position of his grantor, and so long as the mortgager retains an equity of redemption his acknowledgment binds the purchaser. DuBois v. First Nat. Bank, 43 Colo. 400, 96 P 169. A grantor in a deed of trust securing a debt may arrest the statute by acknowledging the debt, and bind one who subsequently acquires an interest in the property. Id.

89. The rule that a surety is not protected by limitations against his liability for contribution to his cosurety, who makes payment after the statute has run against the joint obligation, is not changed by Comp. Laws 1897, §§ 9734, 9742. Kelley v. Sproul [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 559, 117 NW 327.

90. A written acknowledgment of a firm debt made by two of the partners after action brought to dissolve the firm held insufficient under Code Civ. Proc. 1902, § 131, requiring the acknowledgment to be in writing and signed by the party to be charged. Bulcken v. Rhode [S. C.] 62 SE 786.

91. Code Civ. Proc. § 360, expressly provides that new promise or acknowledgment must be in writing. Norton v. Bassett [Cal.] 97 P 894.

92. An acknowledgment in writing that the debt once existed but which does not contain an admission of a present subsisting debt is insufficient. Hawkins v. Brown [Kan.] 97 P 479. One who relies upon a payment to save an account from the bar of the statute has the burden to prove it and that it was accompanied by an absolute acknowledgment by the debtor of a balance due. Cahn v. Reilly, 113 NYS 545. That debtor told his creditor to continue the account and paid a sum "on account" does not show an acknowledgment of a balance due from which a promise to pay it could be inferred. Id. Letters held insufficient because not containing any admissions except those coupled with claim of offset. R. M. Gilmour Mfg. Co. v. Johnson, 58 Misc. 553, 109 NYS 715. A letter by a debtor corporation to its creditor, stating that latter's disputed claim had been referred to one of its officers for adjustment, held insufficient. Code. § 1271 [31 Stat. 1390, ch. 854]. Hornblower v. George Washington University, 31 App. D. C. 64.

93. Under Code, § 3456, providing that a cause may be revived by a signed admission, a letter by the debtor in response to a demand for payment acknowledging the debt held sufficient. Senninger v. Rowley [Iowa] 116 NW 695. Letter referring to creditor's letter "I am sorry that I am not in a position at this time to help you out as you request * * * Just as soon as I can see my way clear I will help you out," and other letters of similar import, held sufficient to remove the bar. Sears v. Howe, 80 Conn. 414, 68 A 983. Under Gen. St. 1902, § 707, providing that in actions against representatives of deceased persons new promise

A check is sufficient though the money paid on it is subsequently returned,[94] and a warrant issued by a city in consideration of a valid debt is sufficient,[95] but mere indorsements of interest payments on a note are not where it is required that the acknowledgment be signed.[96] Where an acknowledgment, or new promise is required, either is sufficient.[97] The acknowledgment extends the time for bringing action only for the statutory period thereafter.[98]

(§ 6) G. A partial payment.[See 10 C. L. 650]—A partial payment tolls the statute[99] and starts it running anew from the date it is made.[1] A partial payment must be voluntary and free from any uncertainty as to the identification of the debt[2] and must be made and accepted as a partial payment on a larger debt.[3] Payment must be made by one with authority to bind the person sought to be charged.[4] or acknowledgment must be in writing, indebtedness need not appear on the face of the instrument, and acknowledgment by letters is held sufficient. Id.

94. Under Code 1897, § 3456, providing that a cause may be revived by a signed admission in writing, where after computation of a debt the debtor gave a check but on discovery of an error, the money was paid back and the debt left as before, held the check was a sufficient admission. Senninger v. Rowley [Iowa] 116 NW 695. Held it could not be asserted that the transaction amounted to an agreement for a new loan and not a revivor of the original debt. Id. Where purchaser of mortgaged premises paid interest on the mortgage from year to year, secured reduction of rate, pays part of principal, and gives check for computed balance, though it is returned and his conduct is for 15 years consistent with the theory that he owed the money, his acknowledgment revived the debt. Senninger v. Rowley [Iowa] 116 NW 695.

95. A warrant issued by the proper authorities of a city in consideration of a valid debt is a written acknowledgment and promise to pay and arrest the running of the statute. Rogers v. Omaha [Neb.] 114 NW 833.

96. Indorsements of interest payments made on a firm note by one of the partners after the note had been filed in dissolution proceedings, transferring to the note entries made on the firm ledger, held insufficient. Bulcken v. Rhode [S. C.] 62 SE 786. Bookkeeper's entries of credits for interest paid on firm debt not signed by any of the partners and without intent to deliver the writing to the creditor are insufficient, under Code Civ. Proc. 1902, § 131, requiring acknowledgment to be signed by the party to be charged. Id.

97. Under Code, § 3456, providing that a cause may be renewed or revived by signed admission in writing or a new promise to pay, it is not necessary that both an admission and a new promise to pay be made and signed; either is sufficient. Senninger v. Rowley [Iowa] 116 NW 695.

98. Under Code, § 360, written acknowledgment within statutory period extends time for bringing action only for the period of limitations thereafter. National Cycle Mfg. Co. v. San Diego Cycle Co. [Cal.] 98 P 64.

99. Looked on as acknowledgment of debt from which promise to pay balance may be inferred. State v. Allen [Mo. App.] 111 SW 622. Where life tenant from time to time made payments of principal and interest on a mortgage to protect her estate, and was subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee, each payment operated as a new admission and postponed the running of the statute against her right to foreclose. Bonhoff v. Wiehorst, 57 Misc. 456, 108 NYS 437. Rev. Laws, c. 202, § 13, declaring that the mere indorsement by holder of note of payment thereon is not sufficient, does not apply where a maker made a payment and the holder in his presence indorsed it on the note and the maker then promised to pay balance. Mitchell v. Thomas, 197 Mass. 347, 83 NE 864. Under Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, any payment upon a written contract made through arrangement of the maker will toll the statute. Bosler v. McShane, 78 Neb. 86, 110 NW 726. Payment of dividends on stock of a corporation assigned to payee by maker of note as collateral security, and application thereof as payments on the note tolls the statute. Id. Where a credit is indorsed on note after it is barred, resuscitating payment must be proved by evidence aliunde the indorsement. Brown v. Carson [Mo. App.] 111 SW 1181.

1. The Washington Statute Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4817, however, says that if a debter makes a partial payment he recognizes the debt and fixes the date of payment as a new date from which the statute begins to run. Sterrett v. Sweeney [Idaho] 98 P 418. Under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. Wash. § 4817, partial payment on promissory note fixes date of such payment as the time from which statute begins to run. Id.

2. In re Girvin, 160 F 197. One made several loans of money to her husband's firm between 1896 and 1904. Each loan was a separate transaction. $1000 was paid and the claimant was told that it was charged to her account. Held not to constitute a partial payment on outlawed claims. Id. Where a creditor holds several separate claims and a debtor makes a general payment without authorizing application to any particular claim, all of which are barred, the bar is not removed as to any. Anderson v. Nystrom, 103 Minn. 168, 114 NW 742.

3. In re Girvin, 160 F 197. To infer new promise from fact of partial payment of a barred obligation, debt must be definitely pointed out to debtor and intention to discharge it in part made manifest. Anderson v. Nystrom, 103 Minn. 168, 114 NW 742.

4. That assignee for creditors of a surviving partner made payment on firm note after death of one partner does not stop the statute running in favor of estate of deceased partner. In re Neher's Estate, 57 Misc. 527,

A partial payment by a principal tolls the statute as to a surety,[5] but if payment is made on a renewal note which the surety deems void, it will not as to him toll the statute as to the original note.[6] Partial payments by a principal debtor do not toll the statute as to a guarantor of a promissory note unless the contract of guaranty expressly so provides.[7]

§ 7. Operation and effect of bar. A. Bar of debt as affecting security. See 10 C. L. 651—As a general rule the bar of the debt does not bar an action on the security,[8] and an action to enforce the security is not barred so long as the debt remains alive.[9] But a vendor's lien not reserved cannot be enforced after a purchase-money note is barred.[10] Where security is void, no action can be maintained after the debt is barred.[11] The revivor of a debt revives the mortgage given to secure it.[12]

(§ 7) B. Against whom available. See 10 C. L. 651—The statutes run against the holder of an equitable title as well as against the holder of a legal one.[13] All persons in privity to the parties are bound by the bar,[14] and an assignee of a barred cause has no greater rights than his assignor.[15] They do not bar one whose rights are saved by a timely proceeding in which he intervenes.[16]

(§ 7) C. To whom available. See 10 C. L. 651—The time during which the right to sue may be exercised is governed by statute, whether natural or artificial persons, residents or nonresidents are parties litigant.[17] The defense is a personal privilege of the debtor and can be made only by him or by persons standing in his shoes,[18] and one who is not in privity with the maker of a mortgage cannot set up

109 NYS 1090. Payment made by one partner after dissolution of partnership does not toll statute as to the retired partner. Robertson Lumber Co. v. Anderson, 100 Minn. 137, 110 NW 623. Where a new partnership assumed a note, evidence held insufficient to show that when holder of note accepted interest thereon from new firm he had no notice that a partner had retired, the absence of which notice would have prevented the running of the statute as to the retired partner. Akin v. Van Wirt, 124 App. Div. 83, 108 NYS 327. Where surety on note told principal to keep interest paid or he, the surety, would have to pay it, held principal's payment of interest was not made as agent of surety so as to take the case as to the surety out of the statute. Id. Where a husband conveyed to a wife land upon which there was a mortgage which provided that any payment procured or made by the wife, she or the person making such payment should be subrogated to rights of mortgagee, held payment by wife did not toll the statute as to the husband's liability to her to pay the mortgage. Clinton v. Clinton's Estate, 148 Mich. 496, 14 Det. Leg. N. 204, 111 NW 1087.

5, 6. State v. Allen [Mo. App.] 111 SW 622.

7. Northwest Thresher Co. v. Dahltorp, 104 Minn. 130, 116 NW 106. Contract of guaranty did not so provide. Id.

8. Lien of mortgage may be enforced though the debt is barred. Roach v. Sanborn Land Co., 135 Wis. 354, 115 NW 1102. Where a trust deed was given as security, the bar of the statute in so far as the personal liability of the debtor was concerned was ineffective to destroy the lien against the property. In re Straub, 158 F 375. Where land is conveyed by absolute deed as security, the grantor can invoke the aid of equity only by recognizing the debt as an existing lien on the land even though the debt is statute barred. Lake v. Weaver [N. J. Eq.] 70 A 81. See note, 5 C. L. 1448.

9. The right to foreclose a trust deed lien is not barred until the debt secured is barred. Pinckney v. Young [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 622.

10. Where a note given for the purchase price of land contains no reservation of a vendor's lien and is barred, the holder has no claim on the land. Laird v. Murray [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 780.

11. Where deed of trust was executed to secure a barred note and the deed was void because of alteration in a suit to foreclose the deed and enforce the note as a lien, no recovery could be had on the note as against a plea of the statute. Kalteyer v. Mitchell [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 462.

12. Senninger v. Rowley [Iowa] 116 NW 695.

13. Hibben v. Malone, 85 Ark. 584, 109 SW 1008.

14. Where the right of mortgagees to enforce their mortgage is barred, the right of one entitled to be subrogated to their lien is also barred, and the fact that such person is an infant is immaterial. Brown v. Nelms [Ark.] 112 SW 373. If trustee is barred, beneficiary is also barred. Sutton v. Jenkins, 147 N. C. 11, 60 SE 643.

15. Marvel v. Cobb, 200 Mass. 293, 86 NE 360.

16. Proceeding to contest will commenced within two years after probate inures to benefit of party who intervenes after statutory period and statute is not available as defense to intervening petition. Maurer v. Miller, 77 Kan. 92, 93 P 596.

17. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 401, 432, a foreign corporation which has a resident agent may plead limitations. Wehrenberg v. New York, etc., R. Co., 124 App. Div. 205, 108 NYS 704.

18. Where in a suit to foreclose a mortgage, the allegation against a defendant is that he has or claims some interest in the limitations to an action to foreclose.[19] Any creditor of an insolvent estate may urge the statute to prevent diminution of the assets.[20] It is doubtful whether the statute can be urged as a defense by a receiver in an action against him for fraud and conspiracy.[21] One may waive the bar of the statute or be estopped to assert it,[22] and where a voluntary benefit is conferred subject to the charge of a debt, limitations cannot be urged against the debt.[23]

§ 8. Pleading and evidence. See 10 C. L. 652—The statute of limitations is an affirmative defense and to be available must be pleaded [24] by answer [25] and cannot be raised by demurrer [26] unless the complaint shows on its face that the cause stated is barred.[27] But if the statute is in the nature of a condition to plaintiff's cause property and the character thereof does not appear, he must allege facts showing his right to set up the statute. Neill v. Burke [Neb.] 115 NW 321. Where deed by mortgagor to mortgaged premises was recorded before maturity of mortgage, the grantee was entitled, to plead limitations against foreclosure. San Diego Realty Co. v. McGinn [Cal. App.] 94 P 374. After a decedent conveyed land to her husband, they mortgaged it to plaintiff and later the husband conveyed to defendant. Held that defendant is entitled to whatever protection the statute would have afforded the husband as a subsequent grantee but nothing more. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc. v. Farnham, 153 Cal. 578, 96 P 9. An administrator or executor may plead statute as to liability of decedent, and a transferee may plead defense when action is sought to subject property transferred to him. Pendley v. Powers, 129 Ga. 69, 58 SE 653.

19. One who procured a tax deed is not a privy in title to a former owner who executed a mortgage on the land. Gibson v Ast, 77 Kan. 458, 94 P 801. Where in a suit to foreclose a mortgage a mortgagee asks account of, and offers to pay, amount due holder of tax certificate who is also a party to the action, such tax purchaser may not plead limitations against the mortgage, he having no interest in the right of the mortgagee to enforce it. Neill v. Burke [Neb.] 115 NW 321. Where a purchaser assumed part of a mortgage debt as purchase price, the mortgagee's receiver suing within 6 years from that time was entitled to judgment against the purchaser, though the action was barred as to the mortgagor. Union Trust Co. v. Scott, 170 Ind. 666, 85 NE 481. Owner cannot urge against claim of building contractor that claims against contractor by materialmen are barred. Dugue v. Levy, 120 La. 369, 45 S 280. In materialman's action against owner and contractor, owner cannot plead statute for contractor. Hildebrand v. Vanderbilt, 147 N. C. 639, 61 SE 620.

20. Pendley v. Powers, 129 Ga. 69, 58 SE 653.

21. State v. Merchants' Bank [Neb.] 116 NW 667.

22. See ante, § 1.

23. Under a will providing that a debt due from a legatee to a testator should be deducted from the legacy, the legatee could not plead limitations. In re Gillingham's Estate, 220 Pa. 353, 69 A 809.

24. Vogel v. Kennedy, 127 Mo. App. 228, 104 SW 1151; Perry v. Ball [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 588; Williams v. Keith [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 1056. Extinguishes the right to payment only at the option of the obligor. Roach v. Sanborn Land Co., 135 Wis. 354, 115 NW 1102. Is waived when benefits are not asserted by plea or answer or demurrer. Reaves v. Turner [Okl.] 94 P 543. In action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance where complaint alleged issuance of execution and return unsatisfied within the statutory period, if defendant relied on prior execution he should plead it. Holland v. Grote, 125 App. Div. 413, 109 NYS 787. In action to recover a bank deposit where the bank interpleaded without setting up limitations and asserted that it held the money as stakeholder and offered to pay it to the owner, limitations were not available. McCormick v. National Bank of Commerce [Tex. Civ. App.] 106 SW 747.

25. Code Civ. Proc. 1902, § 94, provides that the defense must be raised by answer and a demurrer is insufficient. Guerard v. Jenkins [S. C.] 61 SE 258. A limitation which merely affects the remedy. McRae v. New York, etc., R. Co., 199 Mass. 418, 85 NE 425. In action by surety to recover money expended in discharging a judgment against his principal if the claim of the surety was barred, the defendant should have pleaded it by answer. Bank of North Wilkesboro v. Wilkesboro Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 61 SE 570. Where a complaint for fraud shows on its face that the action is not brought within the statutory period, but states facts which render the complaint obnoxious to general demurrer, an answer that the cause of action did not accrue within the statutory period is a good plea. Bank of Miller v. Moore [Neb.] 116 NW 167. In trespass to try title where defendants rest upon their title and do not seek affirmative relief, plea of the 10 year statute is not available. Kirby v. Cartwright [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 509, 106 SW 742.

26. Corea v. Higuera, 153 Cal. 451, 95 P 882; Murphy v. Stelling [Cal. App.] 97 P 672; Keegin v. Joyce [Cal. App.] 98 P 396; Siler v. Jones, 33 Ky. L. R. 317, 110 SW 255. Cannot be asserted by demurrer unless the complaint shows on its face that the cause is barred. Earnest v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Ark.] 112 SW 141. Complaint to foreclose a mortgage which alleges payment on account within the statutory period is good against demurrer. Du Bois v. First Nat. Bank, 43 Colo. 400, 96 P 169.

27. Pendley v. Powers, 129 Ga. 69, 58 SE 653. Where the face of the bill shows the cause to be barred and no circumstances are stated showing it to fall within an exception, the defense may be raised by demurrer. Dees v. Smith [Fla.] 46 S 173. The time when suit was instituted may be shown by file marks on the bill, in determining of action, he must allege and prove that the action was brought within the time required,[28] and if it appear from the record that the action was not commenced within such period, the defense may be raised by demurrer.[29] Where an action is based on a barred cause, facts bringing the case within an exception must be specifically alleged.[30] Where an answer sufficiently sets up the statute, a reply is necessary.[31] In Georgia, however, the practice of replication has been abolished.[32] Averment of a new promise may by amendment be added to the petition.[33] One who pleads the statute as a defense has the burden to prove it.[34] One who sues on a barred claim has the burden to prove facts taking the case out of the statute.[35] Parol evidence is inadmissible to take the debt of a deceased person out of prescription.[36] The admissibility of evidence is governed by general rules.[37] The effect of evidence is sometimes limited by statute.[38] Where a party pleads an exception to toll the stat-upon demurrer whether the statute has run. Id. Complaint for relief on ground of fraud which shows on its face that the action was not commenced within four years is demurrable. Bank of Miller v. Moore [Neb.] 116 NW 167. May be presented by special exceptions where the complaint shows the cause to be barred. Schutz v. Burges [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 494. A complaint for injuries is not demurrable because allegation of date of injury showed the cause to be barred since it was competent to prove that the injury occurred at a subsequent date. Bulkley v. Norwich & W. R. Co. [Conn.] 70 A 1021.

28. Provision in Employers' Liability Act (Rev. Laws, c. 106) that injured person must within 60 days give notice of time, place, and cause of injury, and commence action within one year, is a condition to maintenance of the action. McRae v. New York, etc., R. Co., 199 Mass. 418, 85 NE 425.

29. Dowell v. Cox, 108 Va. 460, 62 SE 272.

30. In action to set aside deeds for fraud, allegations that plaintiff did not know of, nor have means of ascertaining the fraud until within three years from action commenced, is too general, especially where deeds have been recorded. Denike v. Santa Clara Valley Agr. Soc. [Cal. App.] 98 P 687. True in both common law and equity cases. Pendley v. Powers, 129 Ga. 69, 58 SE 653. An avoidance of a plea of a limitation statute may be obtained by a replication in confession and avoidance. Coats v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 134 Ill. App. 217.

31. Code Civ. Proc. § 483, requires actions for land to be brought within 10 years. Section 486 requires that a person establishing a legal title is presumed to have been possessed within the period. Section 558, provides that the defense must be raised by answer. Held that answer setting up adverse user of water right for more than 10 years required answer. State v. Quantic, 37 Mont. 32, 94 P 491.

32, 33. Pendley v. Powers, 129 Ga. 69, 58 SE 653.

34. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Berry [Ark.] 110 SW 1049; Coats v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 134 Ill. App. 217; Goodyear Metallic Rubber Shoe Co. v. Baker's Estate [Vt.] 69 A 160. In suit to foreclose a mortgage made in 1889, evidence held not to show that the note secured which had been lost did not contain a condition that no suit to foreclose should be brought before termination of life estate. Myers v. Lees [Iowa] 117 NW 45. Question of limitations held for the jury. Cook v. Skinner [Wash.] 97 P 234. The date when prescription commenced to run as relates to trespass on property (Act No. 33, p. 41, 1902), must be shown with reasonable certainty if testimony seeks to prove that it began to run from the day that the knowledge came to the owner and not from date of act complained of. Antrim Lumber Co. v. Bolinger & Co., 121 La. 306, 46 S 337.

35. Evidence insufficient to show a partial payment made on services rendered six years prior to action brought. Holden v. Cooney, 110 NYS 1030. Under Comp. Laws, § 9739, providing that where one fraudulently conceals a cause of action, the action may be commenced two years after discovery, one who asserts fraudulent concealment has the burden to prove it. Dowse v. Gaynor [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 897, 118 NW 615. Where one sought to recover on a promise made by a decedent in his lifetime to pay her a certain amount as soon as he became able, and at the time the promise was made plaintiff was an infant and did not bring action until long after she attained majority, held that though defendant had burden to prove that decedent was able to pay the debt evidence that promise was not barred was insufficient. White v. Devendorf, 111 NYS 815. One who claims under a barred mortgage has the burden to prove facts suspending the statute. Myers v. Lees [Iowa] 117 NW 45. To take a case based on fraud out of the statute by reason of nondiscovery of fraud, plaintiff must allege that fraud was done under such circumstances that he was not presumed to have notice and he must allege when and how the fraud was discovered. Denike v. Santa Clara Valley Agr. Soc. [Cal. App.] 98 P 687.

36. O'Quin v. Russell, 121 La. 57, 46 S 100.

37. Note given held admissible on the question whether the general rule that limitations begin to run from the date of an advancement was varied by an understanding that it should not be due until a definite future period. Jarvis v. Matson [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 326.

38. The object and effect of Act No. 78, p. 86, of 1888, amending Rev. Civ. Code § 3538, is not to prohibit proof of an interruption of the prescription running upon accounts sued upon which are governed by that prescription by reason of parol evidence, but to prevent such evidence when received having the effect of shifting the prescription of three years applicable to those accounts to the prescription of 10 years. Henry Block Co. v. Papania, 121 La. 683, 46 S 694.

ute, a general denial puts him upon proof thereof.[39] A plea of the statute may be determined upon an agreed statement of facts without making a special finding.[40] Amendments, the purpose of which are to avoid the effect of the statute, but which leaves the essential grounds of recovery unchanged, are favored by the courts.[41]

LIS PENDENS.

The scope of this topic is noted below.[42]

General rule. See 10 C. L. 654—A purchaser of property, pending litigation in which it is involved, takes subject to the event of the action[43] and is as fully bound thereby as the parties thereto,[44] the law inferring that all persons have notice of the proceedings of the courts of record, and that he who intermeddles with property in litigation does so at his peril.[45] The doctrine cannot be invoked where the court acquired no jurisdiction of specific property sought to be subjected to claims,[46] and pending suits, which disclose no purpose of any one to change or affect in any way the title to specific property of the parties to them, may not subject the purchasers pendente lite to subsequent judgments or decrees therein which attempt to affect them.[47] If the lis pendens is prosecuted in good faith, it is notice to any and all "purchasers," [48] so as to affect and bind by the decree any interest in the property which they may acquire by reason of the purchase.[49]

39. Theis v. Beaver County Com'rs [Okl.] 97 P 973. While facts in avoidance of the plea must as a general rule be pleaded, facts which go to disprove the facts alleged may be shown under a general denial. Hyman v. Grant [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 853.

40. Where on argument of plea of limitations the parties made an agreed statement of facts which was taken under advisement until the whole case should be heard. Cheatham v. Evans [C. C. A.] 160 F 802.

41. Wise v. Outtrim [Iowa] 117 NW 264. Where vendor sues on note and for foreclosure of vendor's lien and limitations are invoked, he may rescind the contract, and by proper amendment sue to recover the land. Atteberry v. Burnett [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 159.

42. It excludes the lien of judgments (see Judgments, 12 C. L. 408), the general doctrines of notice of prior rights (see Notice and Record of Title, 10 C. L. 1015), and lis pendens in the sense of another action pending, involving the same subject-matter (see Abatement and Revival, 11 C. L. 1).

43. Record held sufficient to show that assignor was brought into court and made party before making assignment, so as to subject assignee to lis pendens. Baker v. Baker [Md.] 70 A 418. Grantees in voluntary deed made pendente lite takes grantor's title subject to judgment subsequently rendered against grantor in pending case. Frey v. Meyers [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 592. Where after action is brought to subject property to lien for claims, jurisdiction of property and custody thereof is acquired, mortgagor's grantees and subsequent purchasers take same subject to execution of final adjudication of claim by court. Lang v. Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf R. Co. [C. C. A.] 160 F 355.

44. A common-law purchaser of property buying pending litigation concerning it, who is in privity with vendor, is bound by judgment in suit same as if made a party of record. Gilman v. Carpenter [S. D.] 115 NW 659.

45. Gilman v. Carpenter [S. D.] 115 NW 659. Purchaser of judgment against grantor in a deed of trust buying during suit to foreclose deed prior to lis pendens act held to have had constructive notice of suit; hence, chargeable with knowledge of facts which would have been disclosed by an inquiry. Smith v. Munger [Miss.] 47 S 676. Notice by lis pendens that party to action was real owner equivalent to actual notice of claim thereto. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Stryker [Ind. App.] 83 NE 647.

46. Lang v. Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf R. Co. [C. C. A.] 160 F 355. Court does not acquire jurisdiction of specific property of debtor by an action against him for a personal money judgment, and purchaser from debtor pendente lite takes it free from subsequent judgment against him. Id. Suit to enjoin debtor from using specific property until creditor's claim is paid confers on court no jurisdiction over property of debtor, and purchaser of latter from debtor pendente lite takes it free from any subsequent decree therein which attempts to affect same. Id.

47. Lang v. Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf R. Co. [C. C. A.] 160 F 355.

48. Where judgment creditor obtained a judgment to establish a lien on real estate purchased at execution sale and conveyed same to his attorney and defeated party sued out a writ of error without giving bond or obtaining a supersedeas, notice being given to attorney who appeared in court and pending rehearing attorney conveyed premises, held purchaser was a lis pendens

Statutory lis pendens. See 10 C. L. 655—The common-law rule charging all persons with notice of pending actions has been abrogated by statute in many states,[50] and the filing of notice of lis pendens in suits affecting title to or interest in real estate authorized.[51] One purchasing after the filing of the complaint and notice of lis pendens is chargeable with and bound by the result of the litigation as effectually as if made a party,[52] but unless the statutory notice is filed, an innocent purchaser will be protected.[53] Failure to file a notice of lis pendens as required by law in no wise affects the question of the court's jurisdiction [54] and the notice is not the commencement of an action as against the defendants,[55] but its object is to warn persons and put them on their guard in their dealings regarding the subject-matter of a pending action,[56] so as to preserve the status of the property and of the parties,[57] the only effect of omission to file being to release innocent third persons from the operation of the judgment rendered therein.[58] The filing does not charge a grantee with notice of claims not referred to in the instrument,[59] nor does it affect one hav-purchaser taking land subject to result of rehearing. Turner v. Edmonston, 210 Mo. 411, 109 SW 33. Attorney held to occupy same position as judgment creditor, having purchased from him and taken quitclaim deed. Id. Attorney held not a stranger and innocent purchaser in transaction but a lis pendens purchaser taking premises subject to the result of suit on rehearing. Turner v. Edmonston, 212 Mo. 377, 110 SW 1076.

Where plaintiff in ejectment proceedings shows that he was entitled to recover the premises sued for at the time of the commencement of the suit, a conveyance to a third party by plaintiff pending the action does not defeat the action. Recovery in such case inures to benefit of grantee. Glanz v. Ziabek, 233 Ill. 22, 84 NE 36.

Action by grantor of land to enforce a reservation of right of action for damages to easement of light, air, and access sustained before conveyance, and to compel a grantee to execute a release so that grantor may receive damages awarded or agreed upon, held an action affecting real estate so that lis pendens may be filed. Maurer v. Friedman, 125 App. Div. 754, 110 NYS 320. Lis pendens may be filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1670, in action to enjoin defendants from interfering with plaintiff's possession of an apartment in an apartment house, and for specific performance of contract for sale of apartment together with giving of a proprietary lease of apartment to plaintiff. Lawler v. Densmore-Compton Bldg. Co., 112 NYS 435. Fact that interest was in only part of whole premises, or that interest was in a leasehold instead of the fee, held no reason why lis pendens should be denied. Id.

59. Mere reference to the existence of a pending suit held insufficient to charge no-ing purchased without notice prior to the filing of the instrument.[60] It is only necessary as to subsequent purchasers for value and without notice.[61] An unauthorized lis pendens is a nullity.[62] Where the notice is otherwise correct, the fact that the date of attachment is not contained in the body thereof does not render it ineffectual to give notice, where the date of filing is certified to by the clerk in connection with his record of the notice.[63] In New York summons must be served within sixty days after filing of the notice of lis pendens.[64]

Property within the rule. See 8 C. L. 793

Continuity of lis pendens. See 10 C. L. 656—There is no fixed rule as to when lis pendens ceases.[65] It does not necessarily terminate upon the rendition of judgment but may continue for a reasonable time thereafter to allow the perfection of an appeal or the prosecution of a remedy to set the judgment aside.[66] Where the order or judgment rendered is appealable, the lis pendens cannot be canceled until the time to appeal has expired,[67] but after the expiration of such time it will be canceled as a matter of right,[68] although, where the judgment and notice are insufficient to limit the time for appeal, the notice of lis pendens cannot be canceled until after a final judgment has been rendered and the time to appeal therefrom has expired.[69] An unreasonable neglect to prosecute an action is a ground for cancellation.[70] Upon a motion to cancel a lis pendens upon the ground that the complaint fails to

63. Notice not containing date of attachment in body thereof as required by Ky. St. 1903, § 2358a, subd. 2, held to afford proper notice to persons filing attachment on property subsequently so as not to make second attachment take precedence. Burton-Whayne Co. v. Farmers' & Drovers' Bank [Ky.] 113 SW 445.

64. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1670, placing summons in hands of sheriff for service is insufficient but service must be actually made within 60 days or notice may be canceled upon motion. Cohen v. Biber, 123 App. Div. 528, 108 NYS 249. Statutory protection held a privilege requiring compliance with statute, and, without analogy with rule applying under statutes of limitations which tend to curtail rights. Id. Provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 1670, held peremptory, failure to comply with same a form of unreasonable neglect which requires cancellation under § 1674, hence, where lis pendens was filed Nov. 14, 1907, an amended summons and complaint filed Nov. 18, 1907, and service of summons and complaint delayed until Jan. 20, 1908, lis pendens should be cancelled. Brown v. Mando, 125 App. Div. 380, 109 NYS 726. Fact that notice to vacate was not made until after summons had actually been served held immaterial in absence of showthat defendant had knowledge of fact that notice had been filed before he was served. 70. Dismissal for failure to prosecute will not be granted where action was dismissed on plaintiff's failure to appear, and nothing remains to be done but to enter judgment on the dismissal. Proper remedy is cancellation under Code Civ. Proc. § 1674 after expiration of time for appealing from judgment. Rosenthal v. Friedman, 112 NYS 449. Failure to serve summons within 60 days after filing of notice, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1670, held a form of unreasonable neglect requiring cancellation under § 1674. Brown v. state a cause of action, the court cannot determine whether or not the action is well brought, or critically examine the complaint to see whether a demurrer would be sustained,[71] nor can it, where the action is to recover a judgment affecting realty, cancel the lis pendens because it is of the opinion from the allegation of the complaint that the action cannot be maintained for that purpose.[72] Provision is sometimes made for the cancellation of a notice of lis pendens by making a deposit of money or giving an undertaking.[73]

LOTTERIES.

The scope of this topic is noted below.[74]

What constitutes. See 10 C. L. 656—A lottery has been judicially defined as a game of hazard in which small sums are ventured with the chance of obtaining a larger value either in goods or money.[75] Every drawing where money or property is offered as prizes to be distributed by chance is a lottery.[76] Anything of value offered as an inducement to participate in a scheme of chance is a prize.[77]

Proc. § 1671, providing for cancellation, held to relate solely to an action of the character specified in § 1670, and not to a proceeding in rem against an unsafe building under Building Code, §§ 153-155. City of New York v. Unsafe Bldg., 57 Misc. 146, 107 NYS 749. Cancellation under Building Code could not be had even if Code Civ. Proc. § 1671 were applicable, cancellation being unauthorized only where adequate relief can be secured by deposit or undertaking. Id.

Scheme whereby subscriber paid one dollar per week and received two dollars for each dollar so paid providing he continued payments until maturity, i. e. until all previous certificates had matured and been paid, also providing that there was sufficient money in treasury and that total payment should not exceed $160, the redemption fund depending entirely upon new subscribers, and upon lapse by old subscribers, held lottery. Id., following Public Clearing House v. Coyne, 109 U. S. 497, 48 Law. Ed. 1092.

NOTE. Guessing contests as lotteries: Whether a guessing contest constitutes a lottery depends upon whether the result is necessarily a mere matter of chance or is a question of skill and judgment upon the part of the competitors. Thus, guesses as to the number of births and deaths in London during a certain week (Hall v. Cox, 1 Q. B. 198), guesses as to the winning horses in a certain race (Stoddart v. Sagar, 2 Q. B. 474; Camenada v. Holton, 60 L. J. Mag. Cas. N. S. 116, 17 Cox C. C. 307), the number of beans (Reg. v. Dodds, 4 Ont. Rep. 390), or buttons (Reg. v. Jamieson, 7 Ont. Rep. 149), in a glass jar, the number of cigarettes to be taxed during a certain period (United States v. Rosenblum, 121 F 180), the weight of a certain bar of soap (Dunham v. St. Croix Soap Mfg. Co., 34 N. B. 243), the number of votes cast at a certain election (Opinion of Atty. Gen. Miller, 19 Ops. Atty. Gen. 679; Opinion of Atty. Gen. Griggs, 23 Ops. Atty. Gen. 207), or the number of paid admissions to a world's fair (Opinion of Atty. Gen. Knox, 23 Ops. Atty. Gen. 492), have been held to depend upon skill and judgment and not to be regarded as lotteries while guesses as to a missing word in a paragraph (Barclay v. Pearson, 2 ch. 154), or as to certain spots in a newspaper, arbitrarily selected (Hall v. McWilliams, 65 J. P. 742), or as to the number of seeds in a pumpkin (Thomas, Non Mailable Matter § 137a), have been held to depend wholly upon chance and contests based thereon are held lotteries. Recent cases hold that guessing upon the vote at a certain election is a matter of chance rather than judgment and that such contests are lotteries (Stevens v. Cincinnati Times Star Co., 72 Ohio 112, 73 NE 1058, 106 Am. St. Rep. 586; Hobing v. Enquirer Co., 2 Ohio N. P. N. S. 205; Waite v. Press Pub. Ass'n [C. C. A.] 155 F 58, 11 L. R. A. [N. S.] 609). The same is held by Atty. Gen. Moody (25 Ops. Atty. Gen. 286) in an opinion which also reverses the opinions of Atty. Gen. Knox as to guesses at paid admissions to a worlds fair. Earlier cases which find the element of chance in contests not usually so considered are Hudelson v. State, 94 Ind. 426, 48 Am. Rep. 171 (number of beans in jar), and People v. Lavin, 179 N. Y. 164, 71 NE 753, 66 L. R. A. 601 (number of cigars taxed during certain period).—Adapted from 11 L. R. A. [N. S.] 609.

76. That every ticket entitles holder to a certain sum does not alter the case if

Civil rights and remedies.[See 10 C. L. 656]—The sale of lottery tickets was not prohibited at common law,[78] and it is held that statutes forbidding such sales are for the protection of the vendee, who is not pari delicto and hence not subject to the rule denying recovery of consideration for an executed illegal contract.[79] Contracts made in contemplation of a lottery scheme are void in most states.[80]

Criminal offenses and prosecutions.[See 8 C. L. 795]—Any person transmitting through the mails a letter, circular or post card concerning lotteries is guilty of a criminal offense under the federal statute.[81] Statutes in most states denounce lotteries and the sale of lottery tickets as criminal.[82]

MALICIOUS MISCHIEF.[84]

The scope of this topic is noted below.[84a]

Malicious intent is a necessary element of the offense at common law and under statutes declaratory thereof.[85] The word malice, as used in this connection, has a restricted meaning and signifies specific intent to injure, vex or annoy the owner of the property,[86] arising out of a spirit of revenge for real or fancied wrongs.[87] Malice is often a question of fact,[88] but may be inferred from the nature of the act and the circumstances of the case.[89] Some statutes enlarge the offense to include acts done maliciously or wantonly,[90] or substitute for malice the element of mere wantonness,[91] the latter word signifying a general malice and willful disregard of the rights of others[92] rather than a mere purpose to do an unlawful act.[93] The American Copying Co. v. Thompson [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 777.

77. Any inequality of value resulting from chance, whether the inequality consists in one individual receiving greater, less, or the same amount paid, as against a different relative amount received by others. Fitzsimmons v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 156 F 477.

Includes the common-law crime and statutory offenses closely analogous thereto. Excludes statutory offenses of a similar nature with reference to certain specific property, such as malicious destruction of or injury to fences (see Fences, 11 C. L. 1466), highways (see Highways and Streets, 11 C. L. 1720), or landmarks (see Boundaries, 11 C. L. 427).

fact that a particular act is denounced in a statutory chapter on malicious mischief does not necessarily involve reading the common-law essentials into the statute.[94] And under statutes forbidding such acts in the interest of public health or safety,[95] or in the interest of humanity,[96] specific malice is not essential to the offense. Variance as to time of the offense is immaterial except as affecting a limitation of prosecution, providing the offense proved is identical with the one charged.[97] Where ownership of property is alleged, it is sufficient to prove possession.[98] Where value of the property is material, it is a question for the jury upon conflicting evidence, and the defendant cannot complain of variance by reason of a finding for less than the amount charged.[99] The defendant may testify as to his intent.[1] Circumstantial evidence may be sufficient to sustain a conviction.[2] Within the statutory maximum, the penalty to be imposed is usually within the discretion of the trial court.[3]

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION AND ABUSE OF PROCESS.

The scope of this topic is noted below.[4]

§ 1. Nature and elements of the wrong. A. Malicious prosecution. See 10 C. of the time of the beginning of the prosecution.[23] It depends upon the honest and reasonable belief of the prosecutor, and not upon the actual facts of the cause.[29] Good faith is an element of probable cause.[30] A legitimate effort to test a third person's legal rights, when sufficiently in doubt, cannot be termed malicious prosecution.[31] A conviction in a criminal case before a court having competent jurisdiction is conclusive upon the question of probable cause,[32] and this is true though the trial was not by a jury,[33] and was subsequently reversed,[34] unless fraud, perjury or subornation of perjury in obtaining the conviction be shown.[35] An acquittal, on the other hand, is not even prima facie evidence of want of probable cause.[36]

§ 6. Malice.[See 10 C. L. 659]—Malice affords no ground of action if there was probable cause[37] though the rule is otherwise as to actions for abuse of process.[38] Malice does not involve the element of personal ill will,[39] and may be inferred from want of probable cause,[40] though it is not a legal presumption therefrom.[41]

from malice and want of probable cause,[42] but by the weight of authority advice of private counsel is not a complete defense although it is to be considered by the jury on questions of malice and probable cause,[43] in connection with other circumstances.[44] Whether counsel was paid for his advice may be material.[45] To be protected by advice of counsel, defendant should have made a full and honest statement of all facts known to him and such as he might have known by exercising reasonable diligence.[46] Where counsel or magistrate advises that it is doubtful if accused is guilty, prosecutor proceeds at his own risk.[47] The advice of a prosecuting attorney is a complete defense when prosecution, before acting, made a full and fair disclosure of all facts within his knowledge,[48] although by exercising reasonable diligence he might have ascertained other facts.[49] Where the prosecuting attorney investigated the case and instituted proceeding on behalf of the public, the party making complaint is not liable.[50] Advice of a justice of the peace that reasonable and probable cause existed is no sufficient defense.[51] In an action for malicious abuse of process where want of probable cause is not an element,[52] advice of counsel is no defense though it may be considered in mitigation.[53]

57. Booraem v. Potter Hotel Co. [Cal.] 97 P 65; Robitzek v. Daum, 220 Pa. 61, 69 A 96; McCall v. Alexander [S. C.] 61 SE 1106.

cause is sometimes said to raise a presumption of malice [56] and advice of counsel to raise a presumption of good faith.[59]

Admissibility of evidence. See 10 C. L. 661—Any evidence tending to existence of or want of probable cause is admissible.[60] Evidence that no indictment was found is admissible to show a favorable termination,[61] but not to show malice or want of probable cause.[62] Defendant may testify directly as to his own motives.[63] Where the issue is whether the prosecutor was agent of the defendant, evidence of other transactions is admissible.[64]

Question of law and fact. See 10 C. L. 661—The question of probable cause is a mixed question of law and fact.[65] Where the material facts are undisputed, the question is one of law.[66] It is the duty of the court to say what is probable cause and to determine as a matter of law whether the facts established do or do not amount to probable cause.[67] The presumption of larceny arising from the recent and unexplained possession of stolen goods continues after acquittal on the larceny charge,[68, 69] and if unrebutted makes the existence of probable cause a question of law.[70] It is exclusively the province of the jury to pass upon the testimony and ascertain the facts.[71] Where the facts are in dispute or capable of opposing inferences as to malice or probable cause, the question is one for the jury.[72] Existence of malice is to be determined by the jury.[73]

Instructions. See 10 C. L. 662—An instruction that actions for malicious prosecution have never been favored in law is properly refused.[74] Instructions as to probable cause may state what information would constitute probable cause.[75] They should clearly negative liability for malice if probable cause is found.[76]

The scope of this topic is noted below.[77]

§ 1. Nature and office of remedy in general. See 10 C. L. 862—In many states mandamus is termed as a civil action but even in such it retains some of its prerogative nature in that it is not used to redress private rights but only in matters relating to the public.[78] It is issued by appellate courts both in the exercise of their original jurisdiction and in aid of their appellate jurisdiction.[79] It is termed a writ of right [80] but the right to the writ is not absolute and it should be issued or denied in the exercise of a sound discretion in accordance with established rules of law.[81] It will not be granted when it would work injustice or produce confusion,[82] nor to perpetuate a fraud,[83] nor where the relator is not suffering any loss,[84] nor where it would prove unavailing or purposeless,[85] or where it is unnecessary,[86] nor to compel the performance of impossible [87] or illegal acts,[88] or an act which has been enjoined.[89] Manda-

Eslow, 151 Mich. 48, 14 Det. Leg. N. 845, 114 NW 859.

77. Includes all matters relating to the right to the writ and procedure thereon. Topics relating to the subject-matter in connection with which mandamus is invoked should also be consulted for fuller treatment as to the substantive right involved. For example, see Corporations as to right of stockholders to inspect books.

Wilder, 211 Mo. 305, 109 SW 574; State v. Schnitger, 16 Wyo. 479, 95 P 698; Garfield v. U. S., 31 App. D. C. 332. Ought not to be issued in cases of doubtful right. Higgins v. Brown [Okl.] 94 P 703. The remedy should be exercised with caution and only in furtherance of justice, and to this end its exercise is not found by hard and fast rules but is largely in the discretion of the court. Nation v. Grove County Com'rs, 77 Kan. 381, 94 P 257. Mandamus will not issue in all cases where a prima facie right to it is shown, and will be denied if public policy forbids the exercise of the right sought to be enforced. Granger v. French, 152 Mich. 356, 15 Det. Leg. N. 210, 116 NW 181. If, however, relator shows a clear legal right to the relief sought and no other adequate remedy therefor, the court should exercise a sound discretion in accord with the rules of law and award the writ rather than arbitrarily withhold its issuance. State v. Donnell Mfg. Co., 129 Mo. App. 206, 107 SW 1112.

Not to compel calling of jury where it appeared that change of venue would be granted. State v. Reid, 121 La. 93, 46 S 113. Not granted to compel secretary of state to certify nominations to county auditors where it could not be done in time to get tickets printed before election. State v. Nichols [Wash.] 97 P 1087. Will not reinstate member of corporation illegally expelled where it appears that at time of his expulsion he was not properly a member. Ziegenheim v. Baltimore Wholesale Grocery Co. [Md.] 69 A 1071. Provisional writ will not issue to compel a judge to sign a bill of exceptions containing matter on account of which he refused to sign where it does not appear that he has changed his mind, as his return to the provisional writ that such bill was false would conclude the writ. Cantrell v. Golden [Tenn.] 109 SW 1154. Cannot compel placing of name on list as candidate for office abolished by legislature. Fooshe v. McDonald [S. C.] 63 SE 3.

86. Where action of board of aldermen in attempting to vacate approval of back tax assessment was a nullity, mandamus to compel board to expunge entry from records will not issue. Adams v. Clarksdale [Miss.] 48 S 242.

87. Judgment rendered in 1904 ordering mus being a legal remedy the relator must have a clear legal right to have an act done,[90] and it must be the imperative duty of the respondent to do it.[91] Failure of another remedy without an adjudication of the merits does not conclude the relator's right.[92] In case of doubt as to the relator's right, it must be resolved against him.[93] Mandamus will not lie to set aside and so undo what has already been done, even though it ought not to have been done,[94] and cannot be made the instrument for giving a court jurisdiction of litigation on collateral matters in an irregular way.[95]

Other adequate remedy.[See 10 C. L. 665]—Mandamus does not lie where the petitioner has any other plain, speedy, adequate remedy at law,[96] as by appeal,[97] writ of error,[98] certiorari,[99] or a specific remedy provided by statute,[1] unless such remedy irrigation company to deliver water during 1903 will be set aside on appeal. Agricultural Ditch Co. v. Rollins, 42 Colo. 267, 93 P 1125. Not to compel trial judge to grant suspensive appeal where no such appeal lies. Succession of Platz [La.] 47 S 119.

Ex parte Nebraska, 209 U. S. 436, 52 Law. Ed. 876. Would not compel a judge to proceed with a case on an agreed statement of facts where an equity suit to cancel the agreement was pending, although it stated no cause of action, as his action was reviewable by appeal or error. State v. McCune, 129 Mo. App. 511, 107 SW 1030. Not to compel settlement of bill of exceptions denied as not presented in time, as a question of fact reviewable on appeal is presented. Stewart v. Torrance [Cal. App.] 98 P 396. Not to compel issue of injunction where refusal is appealable. Josephson v. Powers, 121 La. 190, 46 S 206.

98. Lindsey v. Carlton [Colo.] 96 P 997; Braun v. Campbell [Wis.] 118 NW 112. Not to compel change of venue. Hamilton v. Smart [Kan.] 95 P 836. Mandamus will not lie to compel a board of equalization to make a record of objections and requests for rulings which are not required by law to be spread on the record of its proceedings. Such matters should be made a matter of is concurrent and not exclusive.[2] A premature review cannot be obtained by a writ of mandamus.[3] The legal remedy barring interference by mandamus must not only be adequate but it must be specific and appropriate to the particular circumstances of the case and must afford relief on the subject-matter of the controversy.[4] A remedy at equity is not a remedy at law but is to be considered in the exercise of the court's discretion.[5]

Loss of remedy by limitations, laches, delay, estoppel, etc.[See 10 C. L. 666]—The writ may be denied because of laches.[6]

§ 2. Duties and rights enforcible by mandamus. A. Judicial procedure and process.[See 10 C. L. 667]—The writ of mandamus does not lie from a superior court to an inferior court to control its judicial acts,[7] or the exercise of judicial discretion,[8] unless for an abuse thereof.[9] Where a court refuses [10] or unwarrantably delays to act within its jurisdiction,[11] or acts beyond its jurisdiction,[12] action may be com-record by a bill of exceptions. State v. State Board of Equalization & Assessment [Neb.] 115 NW 789.

9. Glazier v. Ingham Circuit Judge [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 465, 116 NW 1007. Is proper remedy to enforce dismissal of criminal action where right to speedy trial has been denied in abuse of discretion. State v. Caruthers [Okl. Cr. App.] 98 P 474.

10. Jones v. Drake [Ky.] 112 SW 644; Higgins v. Brown [Okl.] 94 P 703; State v. Williams, 136 Wis. 1, 116 NW 225; State v. Helms, 136 Wis. 432, 118 NW 158. Where a court persists in refusing to permit the trial of a case to proceed, the remedy is by mandamus. Hirschfield v. Hassett, 59 Misc. 154, 110 NYS 264. Mandamus lies against a district court for refusal to take jurisdiction of an action and proceed, action of court being based upon a misconstruction of the statute as to its duty in the premises. State v. Ninth Judicial Dist. Ct. [Mont.] 99 P 291.

11. Judge who unreasonably delays a decision may be compelled to decide on the pelled; and particular action may be compelled where the right of relator thereto is beyond all question [12] and there is no other adequate and sufficient remedy.[14] Where a duty devolving on a court is ministerial and imperative, its performance may be compelled.[15] The duties of an officer of court are ordinarily ministerial and subject to control by mandamus,[16] but are occasionally judicial.[17] Mandamus lies to compel proper disposition of criminal proceedings as well as civil.[18]

Supervisory control. See 10 C. L. 670—A considerable supervisory power is often exercised over lower courts by the use of mandamus.[19] Courts will not exercise supervisory control upon light occasions,[20] nor will the writ be used to serve the purpose of a writ of error to review judicial action of the trial court.[21] The power will ground of abuse of discretion. Wyatt v. Arnot [Cal. App.] 94 P 86.

12. State v. Williams, 136 Wis. 1, 116 NW 225; State v. Helms, 136 Wis. 432, 118 NW 158.

13. Where the trial court strikes out a defective statement of fact without an opportunity of amendment, mandamus lies to compel him to vacate the order to strike out. State v. Steiner [Wash.] 98 P 609. Since an appeal does not lie from an appointment of an administrator by the probate court, the court may be compelled to follow the priority fixed by statute by mandamus. In re Flick's Estate, 212 Mo. 275, 110 SW 1074. Lies to compel a judge to require a witness before a notary taking a deposition to answer questions. In re Scott [Cal. App.] 96 P 385. If judge had no discretion to refuse in receivership proceedings to allow a petition for leave to file an independent suit, petitioner is entitled to a writ of mandate to compel the judge to grant the petition. De Forrest v. Coffey [Cal.] 98 P 27. Unwarranted refusal to admit to bail. State v. McMillan [Okl.] 96 P 618. Where more than two and one-half years had passed since one of defendants was defaulted in an action and there was little prospect of final judgment on account of absence of some of the defendants, the defaulted defendant may by mandamus compel the dismissal of the suit against him because of plaintiff's failure to have judgment entered within six months after he was entitled thereto, as the court is expressly authorized to do by § 1004 of the Code. State v. Ninth Judicial Dist. Ct., 37 Mont. 298, 96 P 337. Mandamus will not lie to compel a district judge to enter of record the district court of a certain county in his district an alleged order admitting defendant to bail, it being clear that order was not properly entitled to record there. State v. Russell [Okl.] 95 P 463. Mandamus will compel judge of district court as successor of the United States court in the Indian Territory to cause by proper order all matters, proceedings, records, books, papers and documents pertaining to all original causes or proceedings relating to estates transferred to such district court from such United States court to be transferred to the county court of such county. Davis v. Caruthers [Okl.] 97 P 581. Where a justice was appointed to hold court in a district during January and would not be assigned again to that district until July, and the hearing on the return of an order to show cause why mandamus should not issue to compel him to retain jurisdiction in that district and there try an action was not had until February, mandamus was properly denied since he could not be compelled to hear an action in a district to which he had not been assigned. Nitchie v. Weil, 125 App. Div. 378, 109 NYS 758.

32. Petition did not show that trustees had money to furnish transportation of school childern demanded. State v. Anderson, 170 Ind. 540, 85 NE 17; State v. Johns, 170 Ind. 233, 84 NE 1. In order to justify a writ requiring a county board to appropriate money to meet half the expenses of constructing a bridge, even where authorized by the highway commissioners, it should appear that there is money which might lawfully be appropriated for the purpose. People v. Cumberland County Sup'rs, 234 Ill. 412, 84 NE 1043.

33. The fact that an ordinary, whose duty it was to hire out certain convicts and collect and disburse the hire for the same, has, after hiring them out and collecting the hire, wrongfully disbursed the fund thus received by him will not prevent mandamus absolute from being granted to compel payment over of such money as it was the legal duty of the ordinary to pay over. Hutcheson v. Manson [Ga.] 62 SE 189.

within which an official act should have been done has passed is no ground for refusing mandamus where there is still sufficient time to accomplish the pupose of the act.[34] Mandamus will not compel an officer to perform an anticipated duty which he may never be obligated under the law to perform.[35] Mandamus is limited by statute in some states to executive or ministerial officers who have failed to perform or omitted to do some act, the performance or omission of which is enjoined by law.[36] When mandamus is sought to compel an officer to perform a duty enjoined by statute, the court will not permit the officer to assert that it is unconstitutional,[37] unless the nature of the office is such as to require him to raise the question or his personal interest is such as to entitle him to do so.[38] Mandamus will not compel performance of a contractual duty even by municipal or other corporations or their officers.[39] A board performing statutory duties of private and public interest and not political duties merely may be restrained from exceeding its powers.[40] Where statute provides that mandamus shall not issue against the governor, it does not lie against a board of which he is a member.[41]

Duties relating to allowance and payment of claims. See 10 C. L. 673—Where a claim is duly established, mandamus will lie to compel payment of the same from funds on hand [42] or compel the levy of a tax to pay it,[43] but in some jurisdictions it is held that, when it is sought to enforce payment of an audited claim, mandamus will be refused if it appears that there are no funds available to pay the same.[44] In Louisiana statute prohibits mandamus against city officers to enforce payment out of the

42. To compel treasurer to pay warrant. City & County of Denver v. Bottom [Colo.] 98 P 13. Payment of award in road proceedings compelled. Barber v. Delaware [N. J. Law] 69 A 641. Mandamus lies to compel the application of so much of a special fund as has been collected to the payment of certificates of indebtedness issued in payment of the work for which betterments were assessed for such special fund. People v. Monroe County Treasurer, 191 N. Y. 15, 83 NE 661. A judgment creditor of a city may compel payment by mandamus from funds on hand. Blocker v. Owensboro, 83 Ky. L. R. 478, 110 SW 369. The allowance and payment of the compensation of public officers fixed by law may be enforced by mandamus proceedings against auditing and disbursing officers. State v. Edwards, 33 Utah, 243, 93 P 720; Granger v. French, 152 Mich. 356, 15 Det. Leg. N. 210, 116 NW 181. Mandamus granted by statute to compel the performance of an act which the law especially enjoins as a duty resulting from office, trust or station furnishes a remedy for one having a claim for services performed for a state board, but such remedy is not exclusive, merely concurrent. Stern v. State Dental Examiners [Wash.] 96 P 693. Before mandamus to compel a city auditor to pay a city officer's salary into court to satisfy a judgment will be denied because the auditor has already drawn the warrant for the salary to another under an assignment void because executed and filed before the end of the month, it must appear that the auditor acted in good faith and that the warrant has been paid. In re Wilkes [Cal. App.] 97 P 677. To compel mayor to sign warrant for salary. Crane v. Shoenthal [N. J. Law] 69 A 972. Where borough council had ordered payment of a debt, borough president may be compelled to sign order; signing being a ministerial act, judgment of counsel determines whether bill should be paid. Breslin v. Earley, 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 49.

43. To levy tax to meet interest on bonds. Pitt County Com'rs v. MacDonald, McKoy & Co. [N. C.] 61 SE 643. The remedy of a contractor employed by city entitled to have special assessment provided for by ordinance levied and collected is by mandamus. Conway v. Chicago, 237 Ill. 128, 86 NE 619. A teacher may by mandamus compel raising of funds for the payment of his services. Dennington v. Roberta, 130 Ga. 494, 61 SE 20. Judgment creditor may compel tax levy. Lake County Com'rs v. Schradsky, 43 Colo. 84, 95 P 312; Blocker v. Owensboro, 33 Ky. L. R. 478, 110 SW 869.

44. State v. Burley [S. C.] 61 SE 255. Under South Carolina Code 1902, § 609, mandamus will not lie to require the issuance and payment of a check for past county indebtedness for which no funds had been reported. State v. Goodwin [S. C.] 62 SE 1100.

treasury.[45] While officers and boards charged with the auditing and examination of claims act sometimes in a quasi judicial capacity, their ministerial acts may be controlled.[46]

Duties of election officers. See 10 C. L. 674—Mandamus lies to compel election officials to act [47] provided the duty be clear and specific,[48] but it will not review their judicial action.[49]

Enforcement of right to public office. See 10 C. L. 674—Mandamus lies where one has been refused admittance [50] or wrongfully turned out of any office.[51] Title to office, however, cannot be determined by mandamus as between adverse claimants,[52] or

46. The board of examiners created by the Utah Const. art. 7, § 13, with power to examine all claims against the state except salaries and compensation fixed by law, may in a proper case be subject to mandamus. State v. Edwards, 33 Utah, 243, 93 P 720. While the state board of examiners in the consideration of claims acts in a quasi judicial capacity, and may exercise discretion in the discharge of its official duties, it may not arbitrarily refuse to allow a claim involving questions of law only, and if it does claimant may compel allowance by mandamus. Court stenographer. State v. Cutler [Utah] 95 P 1071. Lies to compel supervisor of county to publish statement of claims audited by county commissioners as required by 1 Code Laws 1902, § 769. State v. Burley [S. C.] 61 SE 255.

47. Canvassing of the election and declaring the result by the county court ministerial duties. State v. Smith, 129 Mo. App. 49, 107 SW 1051. May compel canvassing officers to canvass returns. Cerini v. De Long, 7 Cal. App. 398, 94 P 582. May compel secretary of state to file nomination papers. State v. Swanger, 212 Mo. 472, 111 SW 7. To prevent secretary of state from certifying the names of certain persons as candidates for office denied. State v. Blaisdell [N. D.] 118 NW 141. Under the charter of the City of Denver the appointment of an election judge by any member of the election commission is final and must be ratified, and for failure mandamus will lie to compel the commission to certify appointments duly made. People v. Youngs, 43 Colo. 334, 95 P 1067. To require trustees of school district to hold election to determine location of a school site. State v. Lyons, 37 Mont. 354, 96 P 922. The supreme court has no jurisdiction under election laws to determine in mandamus the validity of certain ballots mentioned in the writ contained in boxes deposited with the city clerk and to order a recount and recanvass of such ballots. People v. Albany County Sup'rs [N. Y.] 84 NE 1118. The rights of a candidate arising under the primary election laws of Florida are such that when violated mandamus may be used to compel the performance of the duties imposed upon members of the congressional or standing committee of a political party in a congressional district. D'Alemberte v. State [Fla.] 47 S 489. Mandamus will lie to compel board of aldermen to hear contested election case. Sheehan v. Manchester, 74 N. H. 445, 68 A 872. Mandamus will not compel a board of canvassers for the mere personal satisfaction of a candidate to count a rejected vote. Ice v. Marion County Canvassers [W. Va.] 63 SE 331.

48. Mandamus will not be awarded against committee of political party to compel it to declare a person nominated who appears to be nominated by face of returns, when the committee has allowed an opposing candidate recount and has not yet made recount nor declared result of election. Kump v. McDonald [W. Va.] 61 SE 908. Does not lie to compel county board of canvassers to count ballots cast at a primary election for nominatione which have been rejected by the election board under provisions of the statutes because not signed by the election judges and not indorsed with the signatures of any of the election offiers. Crosby v. Haverly [Neb.] 118 NW 123. Mandamus to require the holding of an election for the determination of a school house site cannot be defeated on the ground that the discretion of the board will be controlled, since they have no discretion in the matter, nor is the financial condition of the district any defense, since the electors are the final arbiters of that question. State v. Lyons, 37 Mont. 354, 96 P 922.

49. Where election officers are vested with judicial powers, court has no power to compel them to add a name or remove one from voting list. Gainer v. Dunn [R. I.] 69 A 336; Id. [R. I.] 69 A 851.

50. Lies to compel a judge to examine credentials of two candidates for office of clerk to determine which one holds prima facie title to the office. Matney v. King [Okl.] 93 P 737. Under statutes providing for a county committee to be made up of those duly elected upon delivery of the custodian of the primary records of certificates of election, one possessing such certificate is entitled to mandamus to compel membership in the committee, the committee having no power to review his election. People v. Republican County Committee, 124 App. Div. 427, 108 NYS 1051.

51. Matney v. King [Okl.] 93 P 737. Compel restoration of office to one wrongfully removed. State v. Miles, 210 Mo. 127, 109 SW 595. Detective in police department illegally removed by mayor. State v. Baldwin, 77 Ohio St. 532, 83 NE 907. In mandamus to compel reinstatement of city employe removed contrary to civil service rules, court will not refuse to reinstate petitioner because removing officer would immediately remove him for causes stated in the answer, it being presumed that the removing officer would only remove such employe after a fair investigation of the charges. Fruitt v. Philadelphia, 221 Pa. 331, 70 A 757.

52. Burke v. Bessemer City Com'rs [N.

against one having color of right,[53] and so one wrongfully removed from office cannot compel his reinstatement by mandamus without showing that such office is vacant.[54] Mandamus is the proper remedy to compel the delivery by a former incumbent of public office of books, records and paraphernalia belonging thereto to the person having a clear prima facie title to the office and its belongings,[55] but such duty does not rest upon a mere private individual who happens to be in possession of such books, records, etc., and mandamus will not lie to compel delivery to the office entitled thereto,[56] nor will the writ issue to compel the district judge to enter an order recognizing one as the lawful incumbent of an office.[57] Where title to office is undisputed or has been settled by quo warranto, mandamus lies to compel consideration of the bond offered but not its acceptance.[58] Where a police commissioner retires a member of the police department upon a surgeon's certificate of incapacity as provided by statute, such member cannot attack the commissioner's action and jurisdiction by going back of the same and attacking the certificate and compelling reinstatement[59] by mandamus.

(§ 2) C. Quasi public and private duties.[See 10 C. L. 676]—While mandamus will not issue to enforce a private contractual right,[60] it may be invoked to compel performance of a public duty originating in contract.[61] It is the proper remedy to compel performance of duties arising from franchise,[62] but even conceding that an interchange of connections and business between different telephone companies may be required, mandamus to compel same will not lie in a proceeding to which one of the companies is not a party.[63] Mandamus will lie to compel restoration to an office with such characteristics as make it analogous to public office,[64] and to a considerable extent to control the affairs of private corporations, as a compelling re-

53. Title to public office based upon mistakes of fact or misconceptions of law may impart a color of right which will bar mandamus. Matney v. King [Okl.] 93 P 737. Palpable disregard of law renders the action whereby an office is seized merely colorable and may be disregarded. Id. Mere claim to an office by one whose claim is not based at least on a reasonable color of right or where one is merely an intruder does not sufficiently raise question of title to office so as to bar mandamus. State v. Miles, 210 Mo. 127, 109 SW 595.

Paris Mountain Water Co. [S. C.] 62 SE 874. May compel the delivery of gas by gas company. Cox v. Malden & Melrose Gaslight Co., 199 Mass. 324, 85 NE 180. To compel street railroad to pave street as required by its franchise. Denison & S. R. Co. v. Denison [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 780. Mandamus lies to compel a common carrier to perform the common-law duty of treating all shippers alike. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Larabee Flour Mills Co., 29 S. Ct. 214. A patron of a mutual telephone company can demand only the same service that is rendered other patrons of same class and can only require of another company use of its system on terms accorded public generally; hence mandamus does not lie to compel latter company to connect its line, and exchange service with former company on same terms and conditions as it connected with a third company. Ivanhoe Furnace Co. v. Virginia & Tennessee Tel. Co. [Va.] 63 SE 426.

63. Ivanhoe Furnace Co. v. Virginia & Tennesseee Tel. Co. [Va.] 63 SE 426. Where on application for mandamus to compel a water company to lay mains it appears that adequate mains have been laid, and that resolutions of relator's board of trustees requiring respondent to lay mains and erect hydrants did not state in any way the number or location of the hydrants, the writ should not be granted. People v. New Rochelle Water Co., 58 Misc. 287, 110 NYS 1089. Franchise provided that connections with houses for water be made free. Company made agreements with users to pay for own connections. Municipality might compel company to make connections. International Water Co. v. El Paso [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 816.

tiring secretary to deliver books and papers to his successor,[65] to enforce a stockholder's right to inspection of the corporate books,[66] or to compel the issue of stock.[67] It will sometimes lie to compel reinstatement in a fraternal benefit association,[68] though it is generally held that mandamus, will not, in the absence of statute, lie against an unincorporated association [69] or its officers in their official capacity,[70] or as individuals based on a matter growing out of their offices.[71] As in the case of public officers, the courts cannot control the discretion of quasi public officers,[72] and the duty must be plain and positive.[73] In Michigan mandamus lies to compel a sheriff to make a proper delivery of goods in a replevin action.[74]

§ 3. Jurisdiction and venue.[See 10 C. L. 676]—Mandamus is not an action to enforce a "money demand" and so is properly brought before the judge at chambers.[75] The Texas court of criminal appeals has no jurisdiction of an appeal from an order denying an application for a writ of mandamus to compel a county attorney to prosecute.[76] In New York, with but few exceptions, a writ of mandamus can be granted only at a special term of the supreme court held within the judicial district embracing the county wherein an issue of fact, joined upon an alternative writ of mandamus, is triable.[77]

To compel officers to show books, must appear that they were given a reasonable time to act on shareholder's demand. Id.

67. Mandamus will not lie to compel issue and delivery of stock of corporation except it has some special value peculiar to itself or unless shares are detained and control of corporation is at issue. State v. Jumbo Extension Min. Co. [Nev.] 94 P 74. Refusal if it appears that the application is not made in good faith. Kuhbach v. Irving Cut Glass Co., 220 Pa. 427, 69 A 981; Clawson v. Clayton, 33 Utah, 266, 93 P 729. Mandamus will not lie to examine books, papers, etc., where the stockholder himself shows a lack of good faith and the corporation evinces a willingness to give him such information as is proper. Bevier v. U. S. Wood Preserving Co. [N. J. Law] 69 A 1008. May be granted despite fact that he is stockholder in competing company. Kuhbach v. Irving Cut Glass Co., 220 Pa. 427, 69 A 981. Examination at unreasonable time or in unreasonable manner will be denied. Clawson v. Clayton, 33 Utah, 266, 93 P 729.

74. Where it was claimed that property was wrongfully delivered to plaintiff in replevin and that under the statutes a delivery to plaintiff was barred by a former delivery to defendant, mandamus and not certiorari was the proper remedy to compel a redelivery to defendant. Detroit & M. R. Co. v. Alpena Circuit Judge, 152 Mich. 201, 15 Det. Leg. N. 81, 115 NW 724.

75. Mandamus to compel delivery of fund to board of commissioners. Coleman v. Coleman [N. C.] 62 SE 415. By statute in some states where a person seeks relief by mandamus, other than enforcement of a money demand, the summons shall be returnable before a judge at chambers at which time the court, except for cause shown, shall proceed to hear and determine the action. issue as ancillary relief where necessary to carry out the objects of the main case and give complete relief,[79] but the circuit court of appeals has no jurisdiction to issue mandamus as ancillary to a mandate of the supreme court.[80]

§ 4. Parties. A. Parties plaintiff. See 10 C. L. 879—Any private person may move without the intervention of the attorney general for a writ of mandamus to enforce the performance of a public duty not due to the government as such,[81] but some courts hold that private individuals cannot seek to remedy a purely public grievance by mandamus, but must seek redress, through action by the appropriate officers.[82] The direct and special interest of a private individual which entitles him to maintain mandamus to enforce his private right in the performance of a public duty must be independent of that which obtains to him in common with the general public, though such interest may not be different in kind from that of the general public or peculiar to the individual.[83] To enforce a private right the real party in interest

80. Circuit court of appeals to which is addressed mandate of supreme court directing remanding cause to federal district court for further proceedings in conformity with opinion upon which mandate was based has no jurisdiction to compel district court, by mandamus, to modify decree entered in supposed compliance with such mandate to conform to view of the supreme court's opinion entertained by the circuit court of appeals. Ex parte First Nat. Bank of Chicago, 207 U. S. 61, 52 Law. Ed. 103. The denial of mandamus by the supreme court did not confer or declare jurisdiction to grant what the supreme count denied. Id.

81. A majority of the common council as such and in their private capacity may maintain mandamus to compel the recognition of an ordinance and order requiring the mayor, auditor and treasurer to pay water rents into the city's general fund and a transfer of a portion of the water fund to the general fund. Sinclair v. Brightman, 198 Mass. 248, 84 NE 453. Application by private individuals for mandamus to compel city to advertise and sell telephone franchise as directed by ordinance held not to show that applicants had such private interest as entitled them to the writ. Louisville Home Tel. Co. v. Louisville [Ky.] 113 SW 855. Where statute provides for the raising of funds to meet school expenses, a teacher has such special interest as entitles him to compel the raising of funds by mandamus to pay for his services. Dennington v. Roberta, 130 Ga. 494, 61 SE 20. Where relator is resident and taxpayer of school district, board of trustees of which have removed school house site contrary to law, so that children are required to go three and one-half miles further to school and are liable to be deprived of the benefits of school because of the danger of crossing a river, he is a party "beneficially interested" under the statute. State v. Lyons, 37 Mont. 354, 96 P 922. Where petitioner was indicted for a misdemeanor, he had sufficient interest in the performance of the clerk of court's duty to docket subpoenas to compel him to docket the same as required by law. Jackson v. Mobley [Ala.] 47 S 590. After an election to change county lines under statute, and a majority of the votes cast are in favor of a change so as to bring the city wholly within the lines of a particular one of the adjacent counties, and the mayor and clerk have certified the result and other steps have been taken, any citizens and taxpayers have such interest in common in the matter as to entitle them to join in mandamus to compel the ordinary of one county to join in completing the readjustment. Manson v. College Park [Ga.] 62 SE 278. One who has taken an assignment of warrants issued in payment of work done and being done for a county has an interest entitling him to compel the contract under which the work is being done to be spread upon the records of the county ordinary as required by statute. Jones v. Bank of Cumming [Ga.] 63 SE 36. Where franchise has been granted street railway company which has not had the same ratified by the city council, upon the refusal of the city council to ratify it upon a petition by taxpayers, a taxpayer and elector was not a party "beneficially interested" as required by code and could not by mandamus compel action by the council. Webster v. San Diego Common Council [Cal. App.] 97 P 92. Private citizen without legal, property or personal interest cannot maintain mandamus to settle a doubtful question arising upon the face of a franchise ordinance. People v. Aurora, Elgin & Chicago R. Co., 141 Ill. App. 82. Where lands have been sold and apparently valid title taken by innocent third persons, a party exhibiting no special authority in the premises nor authority to discredit such title has no standing in applying for a writ to compel the auditor and register to execute a deed of conveyance of

should be named as plaintiff and such proceeding should not be entitled in the name of the state on the relation of such party,[84] but the practice of prosecuting such actions in the name of the state on relation of the party beneficially interested is sanctioned.[85] Mandamus under the Colorado code being a civil action may be brought in the names of the real parties in interest where it is sought to protect a purely private right.[86] Where a corporation acquires rights from a municipality to perform public service acts, the municipality is the proper party to compel their performance.[87] Where parties having substantial rights were petitioners in mandamus, the defendants by pleading to the merits waived the objection that the people were not made the nominal plaintiff.[88] Failure to proceed in the name of the state may be obviated by amendment.[89] The right of intervention exists in mandamus proceedings.[90]

(§ 4) B. Parties defendant.[See 10 C. L. 679]—Where suit lies against a board or an officer in his official capacity, it is immaterial that there is any change in the board or office pending suit.[91] In mandamus to compel inspection of corporate books, it is sufficient to make the officer on whom the statutory duty is devolved the party respondent and the corporation need not be joined.[92] All persons claiming rights adverse to those sought to be enforced must be joined,[93] unless such rights cannot be tried in the proceeding.[94]

§ 5. Pleading and procedure in general.[See 10 C. L. 680]—Before making an application for the writ of mandamus, demand must be made on the defendant to perform the act sought to be enforced.[95] Under the provisions of the Washington practice act, mandamus is properly commenced by summons and complaint rather than by motion and affidavit.[96] Two or more distinct rights which the petitioner

85. State v. Corgiat [Wash.] 96 P 689. In an alternative writ to compel defendants as judges of the county court to canvass and declare the result of an election to establish a road district under the statute, relators who were taxpayers, voters and citizens of the proposed district and interested therein were proper relators. State v. Smith, 129 Mo. App. 49, 107 SW 1051. Mandamus brought by the "state on the relation of [names given] constituting the board of commissioners of A county against, etc.," makes the board of commissioners of A county relators. State v. Marion County Com'rs [Ind.] 85 NE 513. An action to transfer papers, records, etc., from the United States court for the Indian Territory to the district court established in its stead may be brought in the name of the state on relation of the county judge or other proper party. Davis v. Caruthers [Okl.] 97 P 581.

91. To reinstate a member of a fraternal order it is immaterial that a supreme officer ceased to be such before the motion was decided; whatever obligation rested on him devolved upon his successor. Wilcox v. Supreme Council, Royal Arcanum, 123 App. Div. 86, 108 NYS 483. A suit against a board of commissioners lies against the board whose duty it is to act as such and not against individuals composing it so that a change in the board's membership pending suit does not affect it. Town of Scott v. Artman, 237 Ill. 394, 86 NE 595.

92. Merrill v. Suffa, 42 Colo. 195, 93 P 1099.

93. On mandamus to compel the land commissioner to award to relator public land previously awarded to others, the right to land awarded to an applicant not made a party to the proceeding cannot be considered. Halbert v. Terrell [Tex.] 112 SW 1036.

94. In proceedings to compel a mayor to appoint members of a certain political party as members of a commission, members of another party already appointed are not proper parties to the action, since their title to office cannot be tried in the proceeding. Independence League v. Taylor [Cal.] 97 P 303.

95. Mandamus to compel delivery of a high school certificate. Ferguson v. Sonoma County Board of Education, 7 Cal. App. 568, 95 P 165.

may have growing out of two or more entirely distinct wrongs committed against him cannot be joined in the same mandamus.[97]

§ 6. Petition or affidavit.[See 10 C. L. 880]—Though in some states ordinary rules of pleading at law are made applicable,[98] the proceeding is ordinarily instituted by petition, the object of which is to secure the issue of an alternative writ or rule to show cause.[99] It must set forth the material facts relied upon so that they may be traversed or admitted,[1] negative any facts which might defeat the right to the writ,[2] and show every fact necessary to entitle the relator to the relief sought [3] and that such right exists at the time of bringing the proceeding.[4] Superfluous allegations may be expunged,[5] and motion to expunge is the proper remedy to raise the irrelevancy or evidentiary character of averments [6] but cannot take the place of a demurrer or raise questions of substantial right.[7] If additional relief is desired, it should be sought by amendment and not by a second independent petition.[8]

§ 7. Alternative writ.[See 10 C. L. 881]—The alternative writ corresponds in many particulars to a declaration at common law,[9] and the facts therein, aided if necessary by the facts alleged in the application therefor, must show a cause of action, that is, a duty to perform and the power to perform on part of the defendant.[10]

3. Petition insufficient to show that plaintiff was entitled to certificate authorizing him to practice medicine. Webster v. State Board of Health [Ky.] 113 SW 415; People v. La Salle County School Directors, 139 Ill. App. 620. Petition for establishment of school held defective for failure to allege abandonment of district. Teeple v. State [Ind.] 86 NE 49. Petition for mandamus to compel borrowing money to build a school house by issuing bonds, etc., held insufficient in not alleging the amount of bond that was voted to be issued, and that the amount to be issued would not make indebtedness of district beyond constitutional limit. People v. La Salle County School Directors, 139 Ill. App. 620. Petition charging obstruction in terms of Railroad Act, Chap. 114, Hurd's R. S. 1905, § 20, held sufficient on demurrer, though it did not specify with particularity, manner of obstruction. Highway Com'rs v. Fenton & Thompson R. Co., 135 Ill. App. 394. Petition to compel canvass of returns not demurrable for failure to allege that clerk certified names of additional registered voters. Cerini v. De Long, 7 Cal. App. 398, 94 P 582. Petition to compel publishing of statement by public officer need not allege that he has funds to pay for same. State v. Burley [S. C.] 61 SE 255. Petition to enforce grant of building permit held not defective for failure to allege cost of building. Coon v. San Francisco Public Works, 7 Cal. App. 760, 95 P 913.

4. In action to compel a justice to correct his docket, where judgment was entered for the plaintiff on the allegation that the petitioner was not at the time of judgment indebted to the plaintiff, such allegation was insufficient for he might be at the time of mandamus, in which event there would be no injury. Braun v. Campbell [Wis.] 119 NW 112.

Writ defective, being only brief resume of petition. Lindsey v. Carlton [Colo.] 96 P 997. An alternative writ to compel the board of freeholders to repair a bridge need not allege that the freeholders could not be relieved from repairing the bridge by building a new road as provided by law. Edwards v. Sussex County Freeholders [N. J. Law] 69 A 1107. Alternative writ to establish a road district as provided by law held not defective for failure to allege appointment of judges of election. State v. Smith, 129 Mo. App. 49, 107 SW 1051. Alternative writ on demurrer held not to state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action in regard to certain ballots. People v. Albany County Sup'rs [N. Y.] 84 NE 1118. To render the application and alternative writ to compel performance by an officer sufficient to withstand a demurrer for want of facts, it must appear that it is the officer's duty and that he has the power to perform the act sought to be enforced. State v. Johns, 170 Ind. 233, 84 NE 1. Allegations in an alternative writ for reinstatement after removal from office held sufficient. People v. Ahearn [N. Y.] 86 NE 474. Allegations in regard to time tending to show that a justice had lost jurisdiction in an action

The mandatory clause of a writ should expressly and clearly state the precise thing which is required of the defendant,[11] and should not grant [12] greater relief than the allegations of the petition and writ call for.

§ 8. Demurrer to petition or writ; answer or return; subsequent pleadings. See 10 C. L. 682—The alternative writ may be demurred to,[13] demurrer admitting all[14] material allegations,[15] but not conclusions,[16] and a like result follows from motion to quash for insufficiency of facts.[17] It is a ground of demurrer if the command of the alternative writ exceeds the legal duty of defendant as disclosed by petition and writ,[18] and if the command of a mandatory writ grant greater relief than the allegations of the petition and writ call for it may be quashed on motion,[19] but a general demurrer will not lie to a petition which shows a right to a part of the relief asked.[20] Separate demurrers are properly filed by a corporation and its individual directors.[21] A demurrer will as in other cases be carried back to the first defective pleading.[22] By appearing and filing demurrer to a petition, for want of facts, defendant waives issuance of the alternative writ.[23] By answer to the merits the objections made by demurrer are waived.[24] The answer must take issue on all that is sought to be denied,[25] or tender an issuable averment of affirmative defenses.[26] An affidavit of defendant on application for mandamus may be accepted as a return, but an affidavit replying thereto should not be received.[27] A return to an alternaof mandamus to correct docket entries held not sufficiently clear and certain to show the falsity of the entries and loss of jurisdiction in the light of common knowledge respecting the liability of mistake in observing the time. Braun v. Campbell [Wis.] 119 NW 112. Provisions for establishing a road district required that notice of the election by publication in a county paper should be made. Alternative writ alleged an entry of an order regarding the election reciting that this notice be published, etc. Held bad for not alleging that notice was given. State v. Smith, 129 Mo. App. 49, 107 SW 1051.

14. People v. Butler, 125 App. Div. 384, 109 NYS 900. Allegation of fraud on information and belief contained in the answer to a petition are admitted by a demurrer where the fraud is alleged with sufficient particularity. Garfield v. U. S., 31 App. D. C. 332.

15. Where a petition for mandamus to compel petitioner's reinstatement to office under the civil service laws averred that petitioner was not furnished a statement of the reasons for dismissal and given an opportunity to reply as provided by statute, and the answer without referring to the averment alleged certain cause for removal, petitioner by demurring to answer did not admit the truth of the charges therein. 24. Demurrer on ground of improper parties. Town of Scott v. Artman, 237 Ill. 394, 86 NE 595.

25. Answer held to traverse averment of demand for performance of duty sought to be enforced. Ferguson v. Sonoma County Board of Education, 7 Cal. App. 568, 95 P 165. The petition and answer, too, while statutory substitutes for the alternative writ and return, are still so far common-law pleadings that a rule exactly reverse of that governing in equity prevails, and everything not explicitly denied is held admitted. Hohenadel v. Steele, 141 Ill. App. 218. In mandamus to compel payment of a reward offered by the governor, a plea alleging that the offer was signed in blank by the governor and filled in later by his secretary in his absence is available as charging that the record sued on is not genuine. Hager v. Sidebottom [Ky.] 113 SW 870.

26. When the defense of no funds to meet a claim against a municipality is relied on it should be alleged in the return of the officer so that an issue on that point may be made up and determined with the burden on the officer to show an absence of funds. State v. Burley [S. C.] 61 SE 255.

tive writ can only be stricken if it is found to be manifestly false, frivolous, or calculated to embarrass or delay the remedy sought.[28]

§ 9. Trial, hearing and judgment. A. Trial and hearing. See 10 C. L. 684—At the hearing on the petition and answer to the order to show cause, averments of the answer must be deemed to be true.[29] The relator has the burden of proving the allegations of his complaint.[30]

Jury. See 10 C. L. 684—By statute in some states where an issue of fact is raised by the pleadings, the court shall on motion refer the same to a jury.[31] The practice has been adopted in Illinois of certifying issues of fact in mandamus cases to a trial court with a direction to return a verdict to the supreme court.[32] The advisory verdict of a jury will not be affirmed on the ground that in six prior trials there were four similar verdicts and two disagreements, where such verdicts were wholly unsupported by any evidence.[33]

Damages. See 8 C. L. 880—Damages for a false return to a writ of mandamus should not include the relator's counsel fees or other disbursements of the trial.[34] Where the court declined to issue mandamus, petitioner was not injured by the sustaining of a motion to strike evidence as to damages.[35]

Abatement and dismissal. See 6 C. L. 684

(§ 9) B. Judgment. See 6 C. L. 613

Scope of relief. See 10 C. L. 686—A writ may issue for a part of the relief asked for[36] but cannot go beyond the prayer.[37] Relief granted to parties does not inure to the benefit of others or bar proceedings by them,[38] though the court may to avoid multiplicity of suits grant an order which will enure to others entitled.[39] Mandamus will compel only such acts as the complaining party is entitled to at the institution of his proceeding.[40] The relief granted should be specific.[41] The operation of a writ may be temporarily suspended to allow defendants to act voluntarily.[42]

38. A judgment of a federal court in a mandamus suit brought by a coal company operating mines on the line of a railroad to compel a fair distribution of cars does not inure to the benefit of any other operator not a party nor bar proceedings by him. Merchants' Coal Co. v. Fairmont Coal Co. [C. C. A.] 160 F 769.

39. Where a water company granted a franchise to supply inhabitants with water refused to make connections, the city might compel the company to act generally for all the citizens and need not wait and apply for connections in each case as it arose. International Water Co. v. El Paso [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 816.

40. Cannot issue mandamus which will be effectual only in the event of certain action by an inferior tribunal. McGinnis v. San Jose, 153 Cal. 711, 96 P 367.

41. Mandamus compelling a street railway to pave part of a street with the same material as the city used was not objectionable for failure to sufficiently describe the material with which the work was to be done or the manner of doing it. Denison & S. R. Co. v. Denison [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 780.

42. Where plans for certain obstructions in a street adjacent to abutting property were filed with and approved by the city's building department, and the construction thereof was knowingly acquiesced in by the officials, a writ of mandamus to compel removal of such obstructions by the city would be suspended for a reasonable time to allow the owners to do so voluntarily.

Costs.[See 10 C. L. 685]—There is no rule or statute in federal courts giving costs to the prevailing party on a mere order to show cause, and such a case is governed by the principles of equity.[43] In mandamus proceedings against a judge, costs will not be taxed against him.[44] If on summons to show cause adverse parties appear and resist mandamus on the merits, costs may go against them.[45] In New York costs may be awarded as in an action where an alternaitve writ of mandamus has been issued.[46]

§ 10. Peremptory writ.[See 10 C. L. 685]—Where both parties have been heard on a rule to show cause, and there are no disputable facts, a peremptory writ may issue in the first instance.[47] Matters arising after an alternative writ of mandamus is issued which makes it improper for the respondent to do the act relator seeks to compel afford a ground for refusing a peremptory writ.[48]

§ 11. Performance.[See 10 C. L. 666]—Where a writ commands that relator be restored to a position, it contemplates a restoration to duties similar to those performed by him at the time of his discharge.[49]

§ 12. Review.[See 10 C. L. 686]—The city of New Orleans has a right to appeal from a judgment in a mandamus suit against its treasurer ordering the payment of money out of municipal funds.[50] In New Jersey the grant or refusal of an alternative writ is reviewable by writ of error,[51] while the award of a peremptory writ or the refusal of the court to act is not so reviewable[52] in the absence of statute,[53] unless a final judgment enters on an issue of fact.[54] In New York an order for an alternative writ is not appealable, not affecting a substantial right.[55] The granting or refusal of the writ being addressed to the sound discretion of court, only in a clear case of abuse of discretion will the granting of mandamus be reversed.[56] It will be presumed on appeal where the findings support the judgment that the evidence supported the findings and that the question was heard and determined by the court as though made an issue by the pleadings.[57] Where a general direction is given to a lower court, the same is to be carried out in a form to be settled by such lower court.[58]

MARRIAGE.

The scope of this topic is noted below.[59]

§ 1. Nature of marriage; capacity of parties; fraud and duress. See 10 C. L. 686—While marriage is created by civil contract, it is a social status, the maintenance and integrity of which is of vital importance to the state.[60] The parties must have capacity to consent[61] and be free to marry.[62] Where statutory restrictions against remarriage of divorced persons exist, a marriage in violation thereof is not merely voidable but absolutely void,[63] but this does not apply to a marriage in another state.[64] A marriage induced by duress[65] or fraud[66] may be avoided, but concealment by one party of material facts cannot be urged in avoidance if the other party knew thereof[67] or was put on inquiry,[68] and cohabitation after discovery of such facts operates as a ratification.[69]

§ 2. Essentials of a contract of marriage. See 8 C. L. 883—All the prerequisites to a valid marriage will be presumed.[70] Failure to procure a marriage license and to have the church record signed by witnesses does not invalidate the marriage,[71] nei-trustee "if this court shall so authorize" to litigate, etc., held a sufficient compliance with supreme court's general mandate. Ex parte First Nat. Bank, 207 U. S. 61, 52 Law. Ed. 103. Subsequent decree entered in obedience to unwarranted judgment should be set aside. Id.

61. If one party be insane at time of marriage, there is no marriage in law or fact. Floyd County v. Wolfe [Iowa] 117 NW 32. Where testator's marriage was sought to be declared invalid on ground of insanity and lack of capacity to consent, held, under art. 403, Civ. Code, that validity of decedent's acts could not be contested unless intradiction was petitioned for prior to his death, except in cases in which the mental alienation manifested itself within 10 days prior to death. Ducasse's Heirs v. Ducasse, 120 La. 731, 45 S 565.

62. In action for separation where wife claimed to be such by virtue of an agreement, held that evidence would have been sufficient to establish her right as a common-law wife if it were not for the fact that she had, at time when relation began, an undivorced husband by an undisputed ceremonial marriage. Dietrich v. Dietrich, 128 App. Div. 564, 112 NYS 968.

63. Although statute does not in terms declare such marriage void; going no further than to make it unlawful for libelee to marry person other than libellant within prohibited period. State v. Sartwell [Vt.] 69 A 151. Under Civ. Code, art. 161, prohibition of marriage of accomplices in adultery applies only where there has been a divorce. Ducasse's Heirs v. Ducasse, 120 La. 731, 45 S 565.

70. That banns were published, license obtained, and that officiating clergyman was qualified and authorized. In re Sloan's Estate [Wash.] 96 P 684.

71. A woman having an undivorced husband still living was married by a justice of the peace. After the first husband's death, the parties freely and intending to marry went through a ceremony before a Catholic priest, who, thinking that marriage before justice was valid under the civil law and that ceremony before him was intended only as religious one, used same license that was used in civil ceremony, and had only two witnesses sign record although three were present. Held a valid marriage before priest. Landry v. Bellanger, 120 La. 962, 45 S 956.

ther do mere irregularities [72] nor failure to comply with conditions as to filing [73] the marriage contract.

A common-law marriage See 10 C. L. 687 has the same effect as marriage by ceremony [74] and may be contracted in one state although parties are and continued to be residents of another state.[75] To establish a common-law marriage de praesenti, there must be a present agreement [76] to be husband and wife, entered into in good faith,[77] followed by a present assumption of the marriage status.[78] The evidence of a common-law marriage should be clear, consistent, and convincing,[79] and in absence of direct evidence of a marriage per verba de praesenti, there must be proof of conduct or declarations [80] from which the contract may be presumed.[81] While a cohabitation meritricious in inception will be presumed to continue so,[82] slight evidence is sufficient to overcome the presumption.[83]

Evidence of marriage. See 10 C. L. 687—Marriage may be proved by record evi-

72. Application by wife alone, if identified, is sufficient under Act of May 1, 1893, P. L. 27, amending Act of June 23, 1885, P. L. 146. Miller's Estate, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 385. Nothing in Act of May 1, 1893, P. L. 27, amending Act of June 23, 1885, P. L. 146, requiring marriage to be performed within any given time after issuance of license. Marriage six months after. Id.

73. Sec. 19 of the Domestic Relations Law, added by c. 339, Laws of 1901, absolutely avoiding marriage by failure to comply with requirement of filing marriage contract within six months from date of marriage, was repealed before the expiration of the time for filing. Held on motion for alimony pendente lite that omission to file made the marriage possibly voidable, but not void. Kahn v. Kahn, 113 NYS 256.

74. Davis v. Stouffer [Mo. App.] 112 SW 282.

75. In contested will it appeared that decedent's wife had been divorced in New York and decree prohibited remarriage on showing that decedent and his alleged wife had gone to New Jersey and there entered into a common-law marriage, and thereupon returned to New York and cohabited as hueband and wife. Held, this constituted a marriage valid in New York. In re Garner's Estate, 59 Misc. 116, 112 NYS 212.

76. Contract per verba de praesenti by which parties intend that marriage status shall arise immediately constitutes a valid marriage in itself, and is distinct from a case where something else is intended to be done before status arises. Davis v. Stouffer [Mo. App.] 112 SW 282.

77. Parties illicitly cohabiting, on request of alleged wife's mother answered questions in Episcopal marriage service when read by her. Held not sufficient to establish contract, when considered in connection with subsequent refusal of man to have ceremony performed. Weidenhoft v. Primm, 16 Wyo. 340, 94 P 453. A mere written agreement does not create relation where it appeared that cohabitation was meretricious in inception, that parties did not consider themselves husband and wife, and that the agreement was simply made for purpose of defeating a criminal prosecution. Pegg v. Pegg [Iowa] 115 NW 1027.

78. Need be no more than recognition that by contract parties, in good faith, have come and are married for purpose of assuming and carrying out the marriage relation. Davis v. Stouffer [Mo. App.] 112 SW 282. Cohabitation or intercourse not necessary. Davis v. Stouffer [Mo. App.] 112 SW 282.

79. Evidence examined and held not sufficient, on issue in contested will. In re Rossignot's Will, 112 NYS 353. Evidence examined and held to authorize a verdict that no common-law marriage by express contract existed. In re Imboden's Estate, 128 Mo. App. 555, 107 SW 400. Evidence examined and held to show common-law marriage by contract de praesenti. Davis v. Stouffer [Mo. App.] 112 SW 282.

80. In contest of will involving issue of marriage, evidence showing that executrix and decedent had lived together as husband and wife and had represented themselves as such, in spite of showing that executrix had been divorced and that decree forbade her remarriage, held sufficient to establish the relation. In re Garner's Estate, 59 Misc. 116, 112 NYS 212.

81. Cohabitation and repute may raise presumption, but is rebuttable. Commonwealth v. Gamble, 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 146.

82. Instruction, as matter of law, that even though relation was meretricious in beginning a subsequent marriage in fact was conclusively established by evidence as to subsequent conduct, properly refused. Commonwealth v. Gamble, 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 146. Married woman left her husband in 1892 and in 1894 established a relation meretricious in inception with defendant, resulting in birth of issue. Two years later she entered into a written agreement to live with him, admittedly not a marriage contract, which agreement was suspended for a month but reinstated in 1899. Held insufficient to show marriage overthrowing presumption of continuance of meretricious relation. Dietrich v. Dietrich, 128 App. Div. 564, 112 NYS 968.

83. Instruction that marriage must be proved as other civil contracts is indefinite and tends to minimize value of evidence of general repute. Drawdy v. Hesters, 130 Ga. 161, 60 SE 451. Instruction that proof of actual marriage is necessary, erroneous. Id. Burden is on party asserting validity to show not only that illicit relation had terminated, but had terminated by parties entering into affirmative agreement to become man and wife. Id. No evidence to overcome presumption. Pegg v. Pegg [Iowa] 115 NW 1027.

dence,[84] by declarations,[85] letters,[86] or by testimony of the parties thereto,[87] or of any person having knowledge of the facts,[88] or by facts and circumstances.[89] Proof of marriage after a great length of time need not be as exact as of a recent one.[90] Proof of cohabitation and repute when coexisting [91] raises a presumption of marriage,[92] whether common-law marriages are recognized or not.[93] The evidence as to

84. Evidence held admissible: Introduction of license, certificate and testimony of priest held sufficient to sustain finding of actual marriage. Miller's Estate, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 385. Certified copy of docket entries and decree granting divorce held competent evidence to prove marriage in prosecution for bigamy. Pontier v. State, 107 Md. 384, 68 A 1059. Certified copy of license and certificate of marriage competent to corroborate witness' testimony as to his marriage. Witty v. Barham, 147 N. C. 479, 61 SE 372.

Evidence held inadmissible: An instrument purporting to be a marriage certificate but of which there is no proof as to execution or recordation is inadmissible to prove marriage. Eames v. Woodson, 120 La. 1031, 46 S 13. Purported marriage certificate issued by justice of the peace inadmissible to show marriage, his official character and fact that he executed it in his official capacity not being proven. Holtman v. Holtman [Ky.] 114 SW 1198. Certificate of keeper of record of vital statistics, not an authenticated copy of record nor a statement of its substance. Pontier v. State, 107 Md. 384, 68 A 1059. Where statute makes issuance of license immaterial if marriage otherwise valid, a certificate of clerk of court stating that no entry of license appeared, inadmissible. Id.

85. Declarations of persons who knew the parties as to marriage 50 years before. Dunn v. Garnett [Ky.] 112 SW 841. Declarations of wife after husband's death as to fact of marriage inadmissible, since not against interest. Drawdy v. Hesters, 130 Ga. 161, 60 SE 451. In a suit wherein plaintiff claimed her allowance as decedent's widow, evidence that decedent declared himself a single man admissible as a member of plaintiff's family. In re Imboden's Estate, 128 Mo. App. 555, 107 SW 400.

86. Letters to decedent from one who claimed to be his widow not admissible as part of res gestae, where letters from decedent to plaintiff not also offered. In re Imboden's Estate, 128 Mo. App. 555, 107 SW 400.

87. In action for criminal conversation, testimony of the husband and wife that they were married by a minister of the Gospel twenty-five years before, that they had since constantly lived together as husband and wife, that they had a son 22 years old, showed an actual marriage. Stark v. Johnson, 43 Colo. 243, 95 P 930.

88. On issue of whether beneficiary under certificate issued by fraternal benefit association was wife of assured, evidence of one witness present at marriage ceremony and another who knew her as wife of assured held sufficient. Potievska v. Independent Western Star Order [Mo. App.] 114 SW 572. Parol testimony to show religious ceremony in Italy not in violation of rule requiring best evidence. Massucco v. Tomassi, 80 Vt. 186, 67 A 551.

89. Evidence of ceremony by priest and subsequent cohabitation as husband and wife sufficient, where statute provides that validity shall not be affected on account of want of jurisdiction or authority of official, providing the parties or either of them fully believe they have been lawfully married. Woldson v. Larson [C. C. A.] 164 F 548. Fact that man and woman have same surname, no evidence that they were husband and wife. Claxton v. Lovett, 129 Ga. 300, 58 SE 830. Facts as to residence of parties to first and second marriage held not sufficient to preclude jury from finding that first marriage had not been dissolved by divorce. Colored Knights of Pythias v. Tucker [Miss.] 46 S 51. Where wife claimed rights by marriage in 1862 as against subsequent marriage and cohabitation in 1873, question whether bonds of former marriage subsisted is for jury. Sparks v. Ross [N. J. Eq.] 70 A 679. Evidence examined and held sufficient to show marriage as basis for action for alienation of affection. Bair v. Paterson [Mo. App.] 110 SW 615. Evidence held sufficient to sustain finding that wife claiming homestead exemption did not in good faith believe herself married. Middleton v. Johnston [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 789. In action to quiet title, where it was incumbent upon plaintiff to show that defendant was not divorced from his first wife at time of marriage in question, evidence held sufficient to bring case before jury. Compton v. Benham [Ind. App.] 85 NE 365. Foreign marriage held not proved by evidence of "ritual marriage" not made legal according to statute of Austria. Kresh v. Kresh, 58 Misc. 461, 111 NYS 437.

90. Proof of slave marriage after fifty years. Dunn v. Garnett [Ky.] 112 SW 841.

91. Where parties have cohabited as husband and wife, acknowledged themselves to be such, and reputed to be such, a legal presumption of marriage arises. Osborne v. McDonald, 159 F 791.

92. Evidence that plaintiff and defendant in divorce action were living together as husband and wife and passed as such in their community raises a presumption sufficient in absence of denial. Houlton v. McGuirk [La.] 47 S 681. Instruction that this proof may be made by showing general repute among neighbors correct. Drawdy v. Hesters, 130 Ga. 161, 60 SE 451. Evidence as to cohabitation and repute held relevant in proof of marriage as defense in ejectment action under mortgage. Stodenmeyer v. Hart [Ala.] 46 S 488. If certificate is not per se legal evidence, marriage may be proved by cohabitation and repute. Eames v. Woodson, 120 La. 1031, 46 S 13. In a will contest where issue was as to which of two women was decedent's widow, one of them claiming through a nonceremonial unwitnessed marriage supported by evidence of repute, the other through a formal ceremony clearly established and from which issue sprang, held no presumption in favor of repute must be general and uniform,[94] and the cohabitation must not have been illicit in its inception.[95] Less proof is required to show a marriage in fact between persons competent to marry at the beginning of the cohabitation than when it appear that one was at that time knowingly incompetent, even though the impediment was subsequently removed.[96] There is no presumption that a contract was entered into after the removal of such impediment.[97]

§ 3. Validity and effect. See 10 C. L. 688—Every marriage is presumed valid[98] and when once established is presumed to continue,[99] but these presumptions while strong, may be overcome by testimony sufficient to satisfy the jury that there was no valid marriage or that it did not continue.[1] A marriage valid according to the law in force when made is valid although that law was later repealed.[2] Validity is to be determined according to the law of the place where the marriage was entered into,[3] but if valid according to that law, it is valid anywhere,[4] even when the parties have left their own state to marry elsewhere for the purpose of avoiding the laws of the state of their domicile.[5] A marriage void in inception may become valid either will be entertained. In re Rossignot's Will, 112 NYS 353.

93. Where plaintiff in a suit involving community property was shown to have lived with decedent as husband and wife, to have held her out as his wife, made conveyances in which she joined as wife, buried her as such and that she was considered by friends as such, held sufficient to show marriage in Washington where common-law marriages are not valid. Nelson v. Carlson, 48 Wash. 651, 94 P 477.

94. Evidence examined and held not uniform. Weidenhoft v. Primm, 16 Wyo. 340, 94 P 453. Conflict in testimony as to general reputation. Penney v. St. Joseph Stockyards Co., 212 Mo. 309, 111 SW 79.

95. Where plaintiff on an issue of heirship admitted that her relations with decedent were meretricious in the beginning, they will be presumed to continue so, despite an alleged later contract of marriage. Weidenhoft v. Primm, 16 Wyo. 340, 94 P 453. Evidence as to nature of cohabitation considered and held insufficient to show relation of husband and wife. Id. Declarations of husband denying marriage made during period of cohabitation are admissible as part of res gestae. Drawdy v. Hesters, 130 Ga. 161, 60 SE 451.

96. In action to quiet title, it appeared that defendant married, having an undivorced wife who subsequently obtained a divorce from him with personal service, in absence of proof of a new contract after divorce, and on showing that he continued to cohabit with his last wife, who was ignorant of disability, held sufficient to warrant presumption that no valid marriage was ever consummated. Compton v. Benham [Ind. App.] 85 NE 365.

97. Where man, having a wife living, entered into illicit relations with another, cohabited with her as his wife, fact that this cohabitation was continued unchanged after divorce of first wife not of itself sufficient to show a contract of marriage after impediment removed. O'Neill v. Davis [Ark.] 113 SW 1027.

98. Marriage and cohabitation for eighteen years in neighborhood where wife by alleged prior marriage resided. Sparks v. Ross [N. J. Eq.] 70 A 679. Banns, license, etc., presumed. In re Sloan's Estate [Wash.] 96 P 684.

99. In action on insurance policy presumption is that beneficiary continued to remain wife of assured. Hilliard v. Wisconsin Life Ins. Co. [Wis.] 117 NW 999.

1. Where defense in suit on insurance policy was that beneficiary was not the wife of assured, an instruction that the jury was bound to presume a divorce of beneficiary from the first husband, "unless it was conclusively proved by positive evidence that no divorce had been granted before the second marriage," was erroneous since it required a degree of proof amounting to demonstration. Colored Knights of Pythias v. Tucker [Miss.] 46 S 51. In action to quiet title, evidence of marriage in 1862 did not conclusively show that it still subsisted in 1873, where it appeared that both parties subsequently married others and that plaintiff knew of defendant's marriage but made no claim that she was his wife. Sparks v. Ross [N. J. Err. & App.] 69 A 185.

2. A husband who entered into a valid marriage when less than 18 years old cannot base a suit annulling such marriage on the enactment of a subsequent statute authorizing a decree of nullity on ground of age, the statute not being retroactive. Williams v. Brokaw [N. J. Eq.] 70 A 665.

3. In absence of evidence as to laws of Greece, they will be presumed to be the same as those of the forum. Vazakas v. Vazakas, 109 NYS 568.

4. A common-law marriage by the sealing ceremony of the Mormon Church valid in Utah will be recognized as valid in Idaho in suit to determine widow's right to her interest in property of deceased husband. Hilton v. Stewart [Idaho] 96 P 579. Marriage according to common law alleged to have been contracted in Colorado will be recognized in Washington where such marriages are not valid if contracted there. Nelson v. Carlson, 48 Wash. 651, 94 P 477. Marriage, in another state, of divorced man forbidden by decree to remarry. In re Garner's Estate, 59 Misc. 116, 112 NYS 212.

5. Where statute prohibited marriage by ward without guardian's consent, parties went to another state where such restriction did not exist and were married there, held when impediment is removed.[6] A subsequent marriage raises no presumption of invalidity of the first,[7] even between the same parties,[8] but will create a presumption of a preceding valid divorce.[9] Presumptions in favor of second marriage merely overcome a presumption as to first marriage arising from reputation and cohabitation, and do not overcome actual proof of first marriage.[10] A decision of the courts of a sister state is decisive evidence as to validity.[11] Doctrine of estoppel does not apply as between husband and wife and parent or child.[12]

§ 4. Proceedings for annulment.[See 10 C. L. 689]—A decree of annulment is not necessary to clothe the parties with all the rights of unmarried persons.[13] If the court has jurisdiction of the parties and proceedings,[14] its judgment, although erroneous, is valid until set aside or reversed.[15] Annulment is not equivalent to divorce.[16] The court, unless controlled by positive enactment, proceeds as a court of marriage valid. Sturgis v. Sturgis [Or.] 93 P 696.

6. In a suit to establish plaintiff's dower, it appeared that prior to her alleged marriage to decedent she was already married to one S., of whom nothing had been heard for three years prior to the marriage to decedent. Held that, the reputed marital relations and cohabitation of plaintiff and decedent continuing on the expiration of seven years from the disappearance of S, the marriage became presumptively valid. Smith v. Fuller [Iowa] 115 NW 912.

7. Evidence of subsequent marriage will not raise a presumption that first marriage was terminated by divorce or death, where it appears that the parties were alive and in the absence of evidence showing divorce. Smith v. Fuller [Iowa] 115 NW 912. Where parties were married in Canada and subsequently in New Jersey, if first marriage was valid the second would amount to nothing. Knapp v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 114 SW 836.

8. Remarriage subsequent to marriage contracted after first marriage does not invalidate presumption of continuance of first marriage. Smith v. Fuller [Iowa] 115 NW 912.

9. Sufficient to make wife competent witness for his child on issue in ejectment as to whether child was daughter of deceased by alleged wife. Lyon v. Lash [Kan.] 99 P 598.

10. In suit to determine title to decedent's property wherein decedent's husband claimed a valid and subsisting marriage prior to his marriage to decedent, evidence held sufficient to establish first marriage and to overcome presumption of validity of the second. In re Sloan's Estate [Wash.] 96 P 684. Defendant married plaintiff in annulment suit in good faith believing that her former husband was dead, not having heard from him for five years, held voidable but not void. Stokes v. Stokes, 113 NYS 142.

11. In a suit brought in Idaho to determine widow's right to half-interest in property of deceased, judgment and decree of supreme court of Utah in suit between same parties on same question adjudging her marriage to deceased valid is res adjudicata and controlling in Idaho court. Hilton v. Stewart [Idaho] 96 P 579.

12. In suit invoking community property where decedent's husband alleged a prior marriage, he was not estopped to deny the validity of the subsequent marriage. In re Sloan's Estate [Wash.] 96 P 684.

13. Floyd County v. Wolfe [Iowa] 117 NW 32. Fact that statute provides that a marriage where a husband or wife exists by a former marriage shall be absolutely void without any legal process does not deprive court of jurisdiction of a proceeding to annul such marriage. Bickford v. Bickford, 74 N. H. 448, 69 A 579.

14. Since marriage is a civil contract, the right to bring action for annulment is strictly personal to the parties and does not pass to the heirs. Ducasse's Heirs v. Ducasse, 120 La. 731, 45 S 565. Where a woman in good faith enters into a marriage contract with a man and they assume and enter into the marriage state pursuant to any ceremony or agreement recognized by the law of the place, which marriage would be legal except for the incompetency of the man which he conceals from the woman, a status is created which will justify a court in rendering a decree of annulment upon complaint of the woman. Buckley v. Buckley [Wash.] 96 P 1079. Evidence in suit founded on fraud and hypnotic influence, where defendant was in Greece and suit undefended, held insufficient. Vazakas v. Vazakas, 109 NYS 568.

15. Cannot be collaterally attacked. Bickford v. Bickford, 74 N. H. 448, 69 A 579. Revisory power of court over orders as to alimony, allowance and custody made upon a decree of nullity, does not open upon an application thereunder the decree upon which such orders may have been based. Id.

16. In purview of statute granting homestead exemption to wife, decree of annulment not considered of same effect as divorce. Floyd County v. Wolfe [Iowa] 117 NW 32. Same rules as to counsel fees apply in an action for annulment as in an action for divorce. Schroter v. Schroter, 57 Misc. 199, 107 NYS 1065. Under B. & C. Comp. § 508, in bringing a suit to declare a marriage void, it is sufficient, if marriage is solemnized in this state, to allege and prove that plaintiff is an inhabitant of the state at time of commencement of suit. Parrish v. Parrish [Or.] 96 P 1066. Doubtful whether equitable suit to annul is maintainable for causes recognized by statute as grounds for divorce. Griffin v. Griffin, 130 Ga. 527, 61 SE 16. Section 3534 of the code, authorizing service of summons by publication in divorce proceedings, where defendant is a equity in the exercise of its jurisdiction of matrimonial causes, despite fact that that jurisdiction is conferred and regulated by statute,[17] and may, where a marriage is not void but voidable, deny complainant relief where he does not come into court with clean bonds.[18] Annulment will not be granted for physical incapacity where, by reason of the advanced years of the parties, the desire for support and companionship, rather than the usual motives of marriage, must have actuated them.[19]

MARSHALING ASSETS AND SECURITIES.[20]

The scope of this topic is noted below.[21]

Broadly stated, the doctrine of marshaling assets is that a creditor who has the right to make his debt out of either of two funds must resort to that one of them which will not interfere with or defeat the rights of another creditor who has recourse to only one of the funds.[22] It is confined to cases where two or more persons are creditors of the same debtor and have successive liens upon the same property, while the creditor prior in right has also other securities belonging to the same debtor not available to the junior lien.[23] It is not a vested right or lien founded on contract, but rests upon equitable principles [24] to the end that the claims of both creditors shall be satisfied; [25] hence it is not invoked in favor of one having an adequate remedy at law,[26] nor will it be enforced to the detriment of the prior creditor.[27] Injunction will issue to prevent prosecution of a suit until another fund has been exhausted,[28] but the right to compel one to resort to a particular fund cannot be denonresident, does not extend to an action to annul. Bisby v. Mould [Iowa] 115 NW 489.

17. Where plaintiff in annulment suit founded on having a former wife living was shown to have knowledge and to have acted in bad faith, the court will refuse relief. Berry v. Berry, 114 NYS 497.

18. Where husband in the second marriage entered into in good faith by both parties, after knowledge that his wife had another husband still living elected to continue to treat her as his wife. Stokes v. Stokes, 113 NYS 142. Code Civ. Proc. § 1745, providing that an action to annul a marriage upon ground that former husband or wife of one of the parties was living, the former marriage being in force, may be maintained by either of the parties during the lifetime of the other, or by former husband or wife, construed not to afford relief to one who has acted in bad faith and knowingly contracted a bigamous marriage, its object being to protect the innocent and aid those who have acted in good faith. Berry v. Berry, 114 NYS 497. Evidence, in annulment suit on ground that plaintiff had a former wife, examined and held to support finding that he acted with knowledge and in bad faith in contracting his second marriage. Id. Section 3 of the Domestic Relations Law, providing that "a marriage is absolutely void if contracted by a person whose husband or wife by a former marriage is living, unless either:—(3) Such former husband or wife has absented himself or herself for five successive years then last past without being known to such person to be living during that time" in which event such "a marriage is void from the time its nullity is declared by a court of competent jurisdiction" held not mandatory so as to confer relief as matter of strict legal right. But court may inquire into circumstances and exercise its equitable powers. Stokes v. Stokes, 113 NYS 142.

19. Where plaintiff was 56 years old and defendant 69, it appearing that plaintiff was a soldier's widow and would recover her pension if marriage annulled. Hatch v. Hatch, 58 Misc. 54, 110 NYS 18.

cleared in an action not brought for that purpose, where all the parties necessary for the determination of the question are not before the court.[29]

If a mortgagee or other lienholder releases part of the land or premises upon which his lien exists, to the prejudice of a subsequent incumbrancer or purchaser with notice of the subsequently acquired rights, his release will operate as a discharge of his lien to the extent of the value of the land released,[30] but such release will not impair the lien unless the lienholder knows that the release must result in injury to subsequently acquired rights, or has such notice of the probable existence of such rights as to make it his duty to investigate and inquire before acting,[31] and as a general rule, such lienholder will not be chargeable with constructive notice;[32] hence the mere registration of a subsequent mortgage or deed of conveyance or possession does not operate as such notice.[33] It will be presumed that the holder of a lien who executes a release of a part of the law is acquainted with the contents of the release.[34]

As applied to the settlement of estates, the doctrine may be defined as such an arrangement of the different funds under administration as will enable all parties having equities therein to receive their due proportions, notwithstanding any intervening interests, liens, or other claims of particular persons to prior satisfaction out of a portion of the funds.[35]

35a. Includes all matters relative to rights and liabilities growing out of the relation. Excludes agency (see Agency, 11 C. L. 60), apprentices (see Apprentices, 11 C. L. 262.)

36. Relation arises through contract made termined, in general, by reference to the principles applicable to other contracts,[37] and to the facts of each particular case. A contract of employment is not lacking in mutuality because the party employed does not bind himself to continue in the employment for a definite period.[38] Whether the relation created is that of master and servant or employer and independent contractor depends upon the terms of the contract,[39] the test being, in general, the degree of control exercised by the one over the other in the performance of the particular service or work contracted for.[40]

Termination of the relation. See 10 C. L. 691—The term for which a servant is employed must be determined by reference to the contract [41] and, where its terms are not clear and certain, by reference to all the attendant facts and circumstances,[42] and the construction which they themselves have placed upon it.[43] Where the parties mutually acquiesce in a continuance of the service without change, after expiration of a term, there is an implied hiring for another term of the same length [44] at the same compensation,[45] but a holding over in an employment to a fixed date creates an employment at will.[46] Where no definite term is fixed, the contract is terminable at will by either party [47] without notice or cause.[48] There is a conflict as to whether the use of a certain unit of time in naming compensation is sufficient evidence to sustain a finding of a hiring for that term.[49] Some courts hold that a hiring at so much per year, no time being specified, is indefinite and may be terminated at will,[50] but it is said that the weight of authority is that this circumstance alone, in the absence of any other consideration impairing its weight, will sustain a finding of a hiring for that period.[51]

Discharge of employe.[See 10 C. L. 692]—No particular form of words is required to constitute a discharge; any words, written or verbal, or acts, conveying the idea that services are no longer desired and will not be accepted, may constitute a discharge.[52] The question is one of fact, dependent upon the circumstances of each case.[53] A request to resign is not a discharge when not treated as such by the parties.[54] While an employe is justified in refusing to continue services when his employer refuses payment according to contract,[55] such breach by defendant is not a discharge.[56]

A servant is bound to obey all lawful and reasonable orders of his employer,[57] and if an order is reasonable and lawful the employer's motive in giving it is immaterial.[58]

Disobedience of orders and failure to perform the work for which he was employed is ground for dismissal,[59] but disobedience of an unreasonable or unlawful order is not.[60] Whether an order is reasonable is a question of fact,[61] in determining which it may be presumed that an employe is hired with some regard to his known capabilities, when the contract contains no limitations as to the nature of services to be required.[62] A discharge is justified where the servant does not give his entire time and attention, as agreed, to the master's business,[63] or is negligent in the performance of his duties.[64] Where a contract requires services satisfactory to the employer, and the employment involves taste, fancy, interest, and personal satisfaction or judgment of the employer, he may discharge when he considers services unsatisfactory [65] and no question of good faith is involved.[66] If services do not involve questions of taste and personal satisfaction, the question of good faith in discharging the employe is one of fact.[67] A servant's default in abandoning the service may be waived by the employer.[68] A wrongful breach of contract by the master relieves the servant from further performance of any of its conditions.[69]

Remedy for wrongful discharge.[See 10 C. L. 694]—For a wrongful discharge, the servant has a right of action for damages[70] which may be maintained before expiration of the term for which he was employed.[71] The measure of damages is the amount which the employe would have earned under the contract[72] less what he earned or could have earned by the exercise of reasonable diligence in other employment,[73] it being the duty of the discharged employe to lessen his damages by the use of such diligence,[74] to obtain other employment of the same grade and kind,[75] and if such employment cannot within a reasonable time be secured, then to seek other work for which he is fitted,[76] but he is not bound to mitigate damages by accepting employment to which he was not accustomed and for which he was not fitted.[77] Where the action is brought before expiration of the contract term, the measure of damages is the amount of wages due and unpaid at time of trial less earnings up to that time,[78] and what he would have earned under the contract[79] less probable future earnings.[80] But the rule that earnings of the employe are to be deducted does not apply where the contract calls for only a portion of the employe's time[81] and where the amount actually earned could have been earned in his own time after performing the services called for by the contract.[82] In an action for damages, the burden is upon plaintiff to show the contract of employment[83] and wrongful discharge.[84] It is generally held that the burden is upon defendant to show that plaintiff found or could have found other suitable employment[85] and that, in the absence of such proof, plaintiff is entitled to recover the salary fixed by the contract,[86] but it is not prejudicial error to allow plaintiff to prove, while making his case, that he in fact did not secure other employment,[87] and where such showing is made, plaintiff is entitled prima facie to wages or salary for the balance of the term.[88] The burden is upon defendant to plead[89] and prove justification for the discharge.[90] Even though plaintiff pleads that he was discharged without cause, he does not assume the burden of proving it.[91] Usually the complaint in such action should set out the contract, the wrongful discharge, ability and willingness of the employe to perform the work required, and a claim of damages for the breach.[92] But a complaint which does not allege or claim damages as such, but demands judgment for a specified sum, may be held equivalent to a claim for damages,[93] where it is not attacked by demurrer.[94] In an action for liquidated damages as fixed by the contract, its terms must control,[95] though it is not error to receive unnecessary evidence as to the reason for the clause providing for damages.[96] Whether the claim for damages was waived by voluntary resignation is a question of fact.[97] All relevant facts transpiring between the discharge and the trial may be shown and considered in estimating damages.[98] Where the employe went into business for himself after his discharge, the details of his business after the expiration of the contract term could not be proved to show the value of his services to himself before expiration of the term.[99] Receipts signed by plaintiff, reciting employment by the week only, are binding upon him unless explained.[1] In Louisiana it is provided by statute that an employe discharged without serious cause may recover as a penalty the salary for the unexpired term.[2] But this statute is held inapplicable to purely executory contracts;[3] in such cases only actual damages are recoverable.[4]

Remedies of master for breach by servant.[See 8 C. L. 845]—Workmen have the right to quit the service at any time, singly or in concert, even in violation of their contracts,[5] subject, of course, to the right of the employer to recover damages for the breach.[6] A court of equity will not enjoin breach of a contract for ordinary personal services, the remedy at law being adequate,[7] nor will breach of an agreement not to engage in business in the state be enjoined, in the absence of some special equity involving good will, peculiar, intellectual or other skill or capacity, secret process or other recognized ground.[8] The mere fact that the employe has secretly acquired information concerning patrons of the employer does not warrant such relief.[9] A contract between employer and employe that the latter will not quit without giving a week's notice, and that if he does so the employer shall retain a week's wages as liquidated damages, is reasonable and enforcible.[10]

The act is held within the constitutional amendment of 1906; classification is legal and does not violate federal constitution; provision as to nonpayment of contractor who violates act enforced. Id. The law is not affected by Laws 1907, p. 1076, c. 506, amending Penal Code, § 384h, providing that contractor requiring more than 8 hours' work on municipal contracts may, on conviction, be fined, and his contract forfeited, at option of municipality. The two acts are independent and provide cumulative remedies. People v. Metz [N. Y.] 86 NE 986.

15. Oregon Sess. Laws 1903, p. 148, limiting the hours of labor of women in laundries to 10 hours daily, is not unconstitutional as being an infringement of the 14th amendment of the constitution of the United States. Muller v. Oregon, 208 U. S. 412, 52 Law. Ed. 551.

16. Montana statute (Laws 1907, p. 6, c. 5) regulating hours of work of railroad employes not invalid as regulation of interstate commerce, in absence of federal legislation on subject. State v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 36 Mont. 582, 93 P 945. The act was not at once rendered inoperative by Act of Congress of Mar. 4, 1907, 34 Stat. 1415, since the latter was not to become operative until Mar. 4, 1908. Id.

17. Laws 1907, p. 332, regulating hours of service of train dispatchers and telegraph operators, is invalid in so far as it applies to interstate traffic and is also unenforcible as to intrastate traffic, because congress has passed an act regulating same matter, and state law makes no discrimination. State v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 212 Mo. 658, 111 SW 500.

18. The Wisconsin act of 1907, prohibiting more than eight consecutive hours of work for telegraph operators, including train dispatchers, is held invalid because in conflict with act of congress. Laws 1907, p. 1188, c. 575, conflicts with Act Cong. March 4, 1907, c. 3939, 34 St. 1415, which regulates hours of employes engaged in interstate commerce. State v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 136 Wis. 407, 117 NW 686. Act of congress is valid, and declares the federal policy, which excludes power of state to legislate on the subject so far as employes engaged in interstate commerce are concerned. Id.

19. The fact that railway trainmen have been on duty for more than fifteen consecutive hours does not amount to a violation by the company of Code § 3365-14, unless it appears that the company permitted or required them to undertake the run without at least eight hours' rest subsequent to their last preceding run, and not then unless the jury find from the evidence that the last preceding run occupied more than fifteen consecutive hours. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Collins, 10 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 486.

20. Evidence warranted finding that plaintiff was employed to prepare plans as alleged. Cooke v. Independent Tel. & T. Const. Co. [N. J. Law] 68 A 790. Evidence sufficient to support verdict for plaintiff, minor, in action for wages. Kraus v. Clark [Neb.] 116 NW 164. Evidence sufficient to show hiring of plaintiff by defendant's son, and ratification, with knowledge of wages promised, by defendant. Larson v. Foss [Wis.] 118 NW 804. Evidence insufficient to sustain claim for work as brakeman. Meek v. Missouri Pac.

recover for services voluntarily performed and not included in his contract,[22] nor for work done in violation of a criminal statute.[23] The usual rules of construction of contracts apply.[24] Thus, a reasonable construction, effectuating the real intention of the parties, will be adopted rather than a harsh and unreasonable construction.[25] Where there is an express contract, the amount of compensation recoverable depends upon its terms;[26] under an implied contract,[27] or one which fails to fix the rate of compensation,[28] the reasonable value of services rendered may be recovered. Recovery may also be had as upon a quantum meruit where services have been performed and accepted and the agreement as to compensation is unenforcible.[29] One prevented by unavoidable sickness from completing services under contract may recover the reasonable value of services rendered.[30] Where a special contract is alleged, no recovery can be had as upon an implied contract.[31] Where an employe, hired at a fixed salary, continues in the same employment after the expiration of the term of the original hiring, without any new contract as to compensation, it is presumed that the parties intend the same compensation.[32] In such case there can be no recovery on a quantum meruit.[33] One who employs and agrees to pay another for services is liable therefor though services are to be performed for a third person.[34]

R. Co., 129 Mo. App. 507, 107 SW 1044. Evidence insufficient to support claim for services in obtaining for defendant, employment agency, certain number of laborers. Calugerovich v. Yuzzolino, 110 NYS 984. Contract of beer salesman construed as calling for yearly, not monthly, payments, conditioned upon salesman disposing of 30,000 barrels yearly at certain net price to defendant. Gminder v. Zeltner Brew. Co., 111 NYS 215.

21. There being no proof of hiring for any definite period, plaintiff could recover only for actual time she worked. Reitzfeld v. Sobel, 114 NYS 27. Plaintiff, employed to manage department of defendant's mail order medical business, was to have salary and certain commission on receipts in his department, settlements to be made monthly. Held he was not entitled to commissions on sums paid after his employment ceased, though paid by patient handled by him. Ortega v. Collins New York Medical Institute, 111 NYS 427.

25. Contract held to provide for $60 per month and half profits, less salary. Losee v. Brunson, 141 Ill. App. 326.

26. Evidence held to sustain plaintiff's contention as to agreed price for work. Ashkanazy v. Sachs, 110 NYS 929. Evidence held to show agreement to allow manager of store 25 per cent of profits as well as salary. Sicard v. Albenberg Co., 136 Wis. 622, 118 NW 179. Action on timber cruiser's contract for compensation; contract construed, no variance between pleading and proof; recovery sustained. Western Lumber Co. v. Willis [C. C. A.] 160 F 27. Giving employe $1 extra on one payday, and acceptance by him as gift, did not change former written contract of employment. Molostowsky v. Grauer, 113 NYS 679. Evidence held to sustain contention for commissions on goods sold to customers procured by plaintiff. Altmayer v. Lahm, 113 NYS 964. Error to give judgment for defendant on plaintiff's uncontradicted testimony as to certain extra work done for defendant at stipulated price. O'Donnell v. Caspary, 113 NYS 771. Contract for salary and commission as manager of stave factory construed; verdict for plaintiff sustained. Bauer Cooperage Co. v. Shelton [Ky.] 114 SW 257. Evidence insufficient to warrant finding of agreement to pay salary as well as living and traveling expenses of plaintiff and wife. Schomburg v. Columbia Fuller's Earth Co., 125 App. Div. 925, 110 NYS 135.

27. If services are rendered with expectation on one side of payment therefor, and on the other of receiving payment, the employe may recover the reasonable value of services rendered as upon implied contract. Middlebrook v. Slocum, 152 Mich. 286, 15 Det. Leg. N. 322, 116 NW 422.

See, also, Implied Contracts, 11 C. L. 1876.

28. Where employe was to receive such compensation, in addition to rent of premises, as employer deemed reasonable, and employer died without fixing value of services rendered, employe was entitled to recover their reasonable value. Bossi's Estate, In re, 133 Wis. 119, 113 NW 433.

29. As where contract for stock of corporation in exchange for labor and services was void as to stock, and services were performed and accepted by corporation. Miller v. Cosmic Cement, Tile & Stone Co. [Md. App.] 71 A 91.

31. Altmayer v. Lahm, 113 NYS 964.

32. Perry v. Noonan Furniture Co. [Cal. App.] 95 P 1128. Where service is continued after incorporation of the business, the terms of the original contract may be shown on the issue of the compensation to be paid by the corporation. Id.

33. Perry v. Noonan Furniture Co. [Cal. App.] 95 P 1128.

34. Neff v. Williamson [Ala.] 46 S 238.

An employe who leaves the employment for cause during the term for which he was employed may recover for his services until the day he quits.[35] A breach of an independent provision of the contract does not preclude recovery for services performed.[36] Where salary is payable in instalments, a servant rightfully discharged may recover instalments due and payable at the time of his discharge[37] and may also recover the proportionate part of a deferred payment if the employer has waived his right to withhold it.[38] If an employe's breach of a contract for services is inexcusable, he may recover the reasonable value of services rendered, less the damage, if any, to the employer, caused by the breach.[39] Where a discharged employe has fully performed the services contemplated by his contract, he may recover the loss sustained by breach of the contract.[40] A provision for the payment of liquidated damages to the employe for cancellation of the contract without notice is enforcible.[41] Whether a servant has released his claim against the master for compensation is a question of fact.[42]

Defendant may offset damages caused by the plaintiff's negligence in the performance of services, unless the claim therefor has been waived.[43] He is not entitled to credit for sums earned by plaintiff for services performed for others, defendant having suffered no damage.[44] The burden is upon defendant to show unfaithfulness of the employe such as to bar recovery.[45] A temporary illness of the employe will not necessarily entitle the employer to a deduction from wages.[46] After termination of a salesman's contract, an action by the employer will lie to recover advances.[47]

An action for compensation may be maintained when the compensation is due and payable.[48] The right to commissions does not usually arise until work has been

35. Employe who quit because salary was not paid him when due. F. B. Tait Mfg. Co. v. Tinsman, 138 Ill. App. 76.

36. Contract of plaintiff with corporation construed as employing him as treasurer, and as containing further independent agreement for disposal of stock; hence he could recover contract price of services as treasurer though he failed to dispose of stock. Hinchman v. Matheson Motor Car Co., 151 Mich. 214, 14 Det. Leg. N. 902, 115 NW 48.

37. Lindner v. Cape Brew. & Ice Co., 131 Mo. App. 680, 111 SW 600.

38. As where check for all instalments due and part of deferred payment had been tendered to discharged employe. Lindner v. Cape Brew. & Ice Co., 131 Mo. App. 680, 111 SW 600.

39. Stolle v. Stewart [S. D.] 114 NW 1007.

40. Architect and manager who secured tenants for building could recover agreed commissions on unexpired leases and rentals which he was to be paid for securing leases. Equitable Loan & Security Co. v. Knox [Ga.] 62 SE 1030.

41. Evidence held to show employment for year at annual salary payable monthly; and also agreement whereby defendant was to pay plaintiff $2,500 in monthly instalments in consideration of canceling the annual contract without notice; latter agreement enforced. Arnold v. Railway Steel Spring Co., 131 Mo. App. 612, 110 SW 617.

42. Meaning of words "in full" to which servant subsequently added "to date" as endorsed on check. Millert v. Augustinian College, 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 511.

43. Defendant employed plaintiff to make cheese furnishing all tools and materials, and plaintiff agreed to make cheese in workmanlike manner to best of his ability and to take care of it at defendant's factory until disposed of by defendant. Held sales of cheese by defendant, and advances to plaintiff for living expenses, without objection, did not operate as waiver of claim for damages because of plaintiff's negligence. Wenger v. Marty, 135 Wis. 408, 116 NW 7.

44. Where plaintiff was employed to run defendant's farm, defendant was not entitled, in action for compensation, to credit for money earned by plaintiff by working for others. Williams v. Crane [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 372, 116 NW 554.

45. Where services of farm servant had been accepted, burden was on defendant, in action for compensation, to show such unfaithfulness as would bar recovery. Williams v. Crane [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 372, 116 NW 554. Mere mistakes in giving defendant credit for sales of crops held not to constitute infidelity. Id.

46. Illness for three or four months, servant being absent from office most of the time but answering mail at his home and superintending by means of telephone, held sufficient performance of agreement to give "best services for promotion and welfare of business." Reiter v. Standard Scale & Supply Co., 141 Ill. App. 427.

47. Freudenberg v. Cooper, 113 NYS 493.

48. Where evidence warranted finding that defendant agreed to pay plaintiff for services as soon as lumber was sawed, suit for compensation before it was inspected was not premature. Wescott v. Wade [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 489, 116 NW 1002.

fully done.[49] Where the hiring is for a term, salary is not recoverable until the end of such term.[50] Where the contract is continuous, interest may be recovered only from the time of bringing the action.[51] By statute in Illinois, attorney's fees may be recovered by plaintiff in an action for wages.[52] An action for compensation for services, measured by a certain proportion of profits of the employer's business, is an action at law, though an accounting may be necessary.[53] Holdings as to pleadings,[54] evidence,[55] and instructions,[56] in actions for compensation, are given in the notes.

*Trade secrets and inventions.*See 10 C. L. 698—Equity will enjoin the disclosure by an employe of confidential business secrets communicated to him in the course of his employment,[57] such as the names and addresses of customers of his former employer,[58] and where an employe has expressly agreed not to disclose such information to others or to use it against the employer's interests, an additional ground for equitable intervention exists.[59] Such provisions of a contract are enforcible, though another provision, by which the employe agrees not to engage in similar business for a stipulated time after termination of his contract, is invalid.[60] It is not necessary that there should be an express agreement not to divulge trade secrets where such agreement may fairly be implied from the circumstances of the case and the relation of the parties.[61] Equity will not enjoin breach of a contract

49. Salesman not entitled to commissions on contracts not actually secured until he had been placed on salary basis. Freeman v. Tiffany Studios, 113 NYS 64.

50. Contract of employment at an annual salary held to be construed by parties as meaning that salary was payable monthly. F. B. Tait Mfg. Co. v. Tinsman, 138 Ill. App. 76.

51. Contract construed as one continuous contract, though plaintiff's wages were increased from time to time. Cully v. Isham, 125 App. Div. 97, 109 NYS 92.

52. Transit man and topographer employed at $100 a month is an "employe" and his salary is "wages" within the meaning of Employment Act of 1889, allowing recovery of attorney's fees on suit for wages. Goodridge v. Alton, 140 Ill. App. 373. Under Employment Act of 1889, the word "employe" held to comprehend all persons employed to render to another regular, continuous and exclusive services of same general nature that are due from a "mechanic, artisan, miner, laborer or servant." 55. Contract of employment irrelevant in action for wages, only issue being time of discharge, and fact of employment being conceded. Geissendoerfer v. Western Horse Shoe Co., 131 Mo. App. 534, 110 SW 640. On issue of agreed salary, application for bond for plaintiff, signed by defendant's authorized agent, and reciting salary, was competent as admission against interest. Ackerman v. Berriman, 113 NYS 1015. Issue being existence of contract to pay for services of plaintiff as governess, proof of criminal assault on plaintiff by defendant five months before her discharge was inadmissible. Meyer v. Gans, 114 NYS 584. Action for wages, payment of which was in issue. Questions to plaintiff whether she paid her board during time in issue relevant on question whether she had been paid. Mann v. Schneider, 110 NYS 383. Where, in action for salary, it did not appear that certain expenses had been incurred on account of plaintiff's illness, it was proper to exclude proof of them. Reiter v. Standard Scale & Supply Co., 237 Ill. 374, 86 NE 745. Where plaintiff's compensation was to depend on results produced on farm, in part, he was entitled to testify as to value of products for year. Williams v. Crane [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 372, 116 NW 554. Where cheese maker agreed to make cheese in workmanlike manner to "best of his ability," evidence, including proof of his statements, was admissible, in action for agreed wages, to show what his ability was. Wenger v. Marty, 135 Wis. 408, 116 NW 7.

56. Instructions not misleading and properly presented issues. Bauer Cooperage Co. v. Shelton [Ky.] 114 SW 257.

57. Witkop & Holmes Co. v. Boyce, 112 NYS 874.

58. Employe enjoined from disclosing to new employer, a competitor of plaintiff, names of customers. Witkap & Holmes Co. v. Boyce, 112 NYS 874. In New York, Pen. Code, § 642, makes wrongful use of such list or compilation of names misdemeanor, thus declaring policy of state. Id.

59. Contract contained agreement not to disclose names of customers. Witkap & Holmes Co. v. Boyce, 112 NYS 874. Equity will restrain employes from disclosing trade secrets of the employer acquired during employment under an agreement not to divulge such secrets. Stevens & Co. v. Stiles [R. I.] 71 A 802.

60. Witkap & Holmes Co. v. Boyce, 112 NYS 874.

61. Employe of optician engaged in examining patrons, prescribing, manufacturing and selling glasses, enjoined from using, after termination of his contract, names and addresses of patrons copied from employer's not to engage in business in the state, even though the employe has secretly acquired information as to the persons with whom his employer does business,[62] in the absence of some special equitable ground involving good will, peculiar, intellectual or other skill or capacity, or secret process, or other recognized ground,[63] since a court of equity will not enjoin breach of a contract for ordinary personal services, the remedy at law being adequate.[64]

An invention and patent thereon belong to the inventor to whom the patent has been issued, unless he has made an assignment of his right, or a valid agreement to make such assignment, even though it was his duty to use his skill and inventive ability to further the interests of his employer by devising improvements generally in the appliances and machinery, used in the employer's business.[65] Though a license or shop right may be found to exist in the employer, under some circumstances,[66] the employer is not entitled to a perpetual and exclusive license, since this would deprive the inventor of all beneficial interest in the patent.[67] Where a director and superintendent of a corporation acquires a patent in violation of the duty and confidence which he owes as director and servant, he holds it in trust for the corporation,[68] which may require an assignment of such patent upon making proper payment and reimbursing the servant,[69] in the absence of circumstances amounting to an estoppel to assert such claim.[70] A contract whereby an employe agrees to give all his time and labor to his employer in the improvement and perfection of machinery and devices manufactured and sold by the employer, and to obtain patents upon such devices as the employer desired to have protected, and to assign such patents to the employer, includes devices invented and perfected by the employe secretly during his term of employment,[71] and such contract is enforcible as to all devices and patents so perfected, both against the employe and his assignee of such patents.[72] One employed to perfect an invention occupies a confidential relation toward his employer, and is not at liberty to make disclosures with reference to the work in hand, nor will he be permitted, after successfully accomplishing the work for which he was employed and perfecting the machine, to claim title thereto as against his employer, or to engage in work for a rival concern on the same machine or other machines involving the same mechanical features, or involving devices or ideas peculiar to said machine.[73] One who conceives the principle of an invention is entitled to the entire result, though an assistant perfects details, and though both are fellow-servants of a common employer.[74]

Medical treatment.[See 10 C. L. 699]—Ordinarily, an employer is not bound to furnish medical assistance to an employe,[75] in the absence of an express agreement to do so,[76] and is not liable to a physician for services rendered the employe, in the absence of an agreement to pay therefor,[77] but an exception exists in cases of railroad employes injured away from home, relatives and friends, under circumstances such as to require immediate aid.[78] In such cases, the duty to furnish medical aid rests upon the employer rather than upon a stranger.[79] But in such cases the duty arises and ends with the emergency.[80] It is held that a railroad hospital association maintained in part by dues paid by employes entitled to treatment therein is not a charitable institution[81] but is liable for negligence of its agents,[82] and a railroad company which makes such association and its officers agents of the company becomes liable for their acts.[83] Elsewhere, it is held that it is the duty of a railroad company, maintaining a relief department, but deriving no pecuniary profit or benefit therefrom, to use reasonable care in selecting surgeons, attendants, and persons in charge of the hospital, and that it will be liable for want of such care,[84] but having used due care in selecting such agents, it will not be liable for their negligence.[85]

Assignments of wages.[86]—A mere direction or order to the employer to pay a certain amount weekly to a third person is revocable at will.[87] An assignment for wages earned during a particular period is effective to pass title without regard to whether the rate of payment remains the same or not.[88] A provision in the contract of employment that assignment of wages is prohibited and ground for discharge does not render the assignment void.[89] Where an assignment of wages is filed while such wages are in excess of the assignment, payment thereafter made to the assignee is at employer's peril so far as assignor's rights are concerned.[90]

Coal mining company not liable for medical services rendered employe at instance of superintendent, unless latter had special authority to employ physician, or unless an emergency existed requiring company to furnish medical aid to employe. Cushman v. Cloverland Coal & Min. Co., 170 Ind. 402, 84 NE 759. No recovery by physician for services rendered injured employe when no emergency was shown and case was not within exception as to railroads. Sourwine v. McRoy Clay Works [Ind. App.] 85 NE 782. Employer who merely summons physician and requests him to care for an employe who has suddenly become ill while at work and is thus unable to care for himself is not in the absense of an express stipulation between the employer and employe that former shall furnish medical aid to latter liable to physician for services so rendered. Statutory regulations. See 10 C. L. 699—Regulation of hours of labor,[91] and regulations relating to liability for injuries, and duties with respect to tools and appliances and places of work, are treated in other sections.[92] The Arkansas statute relating to wages of miners is upheld.[93] Holdings under the act providing that wages of railroad employes shall continue unless paid within seven days after their discharge are given in the note.[94] In that state an employe who abandons his employment before expiration of his term forfeits all wages and cannot recover compensation either on the contract or an a quantum meruit.[95] The Indiana statute requiring certain classes of employers to pay certain employes monthly is held invalid.[96] The Massachusetts statute providing that no assignment of future wages, to secure a loan of less than two hundred dollars, shall be valid against the employer unless the employer has consented thereto in writing, and unless the assignment and acceptance have been duly filed, and, if the assignor is a married man, unless his wife consents in writing, is upheld as a valid exercise of the police power.[97]

§ 3. Master's liability for injuries to servants. A. Nature and extent in general. See 10 C. L. 700—The right to recover for injuries is controlled by the law of the place where the injury occurred.[98] Common-law rules govern when the action is not based on statute.[99]

The duties of the master to the servant do not rest upon contract but arise by operation of law from the relation of master and servant;[1] and the law imposing these duties on the master is said to be but a phrase of the broader and more anciently recognized doctrine that every person who expressly or impliedly invites another to come upon his premises or to use his instrumentalities is bound to use ordinary care to protect the invited person from injury.[2] The master is not an insurer of the safety of his servants; the law imposes only the duty of ordinary or reasonable care for

92. See post, §§ 3A, 3B, 3E, 3F.

93. Ark. Acts 1905, c. 219, § 1, regulating the contracting for wages of miners employed at rates of wages determined by the quantity, and prohibiting a contract paid on basis of screened coal, is valid and does not infringe on right to contract given by federal constitution. McLean v. Arkansas, 29 S. Ct. 206.

94. Statute must be strictly complied with or penalty will not be enforced. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. McClerkin [Ark.] 114 SW 240. To render railroad company liable for penalty under Acts 1905, p. 538, it must appear that servant requested money or check sent to some regular station where there was an agent, and that money or check does not reach there within 7 days. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Bailey [Ark.] 112 SW 180. Company not liable for penalty under Acts 1905, p. 538, where paymaster did not absolutely refuse to pay but said they were not reasonable in not going to cars, the usual place to be paid off, and where he did not know how much men had coming and whether they had quit or had been discharged. Wisconsin & Arkansas Lumber Co. v. Thompson [Ark.] 113 SW 340. Station agent, discharged, applied to his successor for his pay, but did not indicate station where it was to be sent. Held, he should have applied to division agent who appointed him, such agent being his "foreman" or "timekeeper," and not having complied with statute, he was not entitled to the statutory penalty. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. McClarkin [Ark.] 114 SW 240. By Kirby's Dig. § 6649, where railroad company refuses to pay wages of discharged employe within seven days, wages continue thereafter. Under §§ 3695, 3696, no garnishment against company is valid (where sum demanded is $200 or less) until judgment against employe. Held, garnishment prior to judgment against employe does not arrest running of wages under § 6649; valid garnishment after judgment does. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Walsh [Ark.] 110 SW 222.

95. Under Kirby's Dig. § 5028. Latham v. Barwick [Ark.] 113 SW 646.

96. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 7056, 7057, is unconstitutional as class legislation. Smith v. Ohio Oil Co. [Ind. App.] 86 NE 1027, following Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Long, 169 Ind. 316, 82 NE 757.

97. St. 1908, p. 714, c. 605, §§ 7, 8, sustained. Mutual Loan Co. v. Martell, 200 Mass. 482, 86 NE 916. That it does not apply to assignments to secure debts other than loans of less than $200 does not invalidate it (Id.), nor is it invalidated by § 6 which exempts banks, banking companies, and loan companies and associations which are under state supervision (Id.).

their safety,[3] that is, that degree of care which reasonably prudent and cautious persons exercise under like circumstances.[4] There are cases, however, in which the act or omission at issue is itself so clearly negligent that the fact that other persons in the same or like circumstances have been guilty of it is insufficient to modify its character or effect.[5] But in cases not of that character, the true test of actionable negligence is that just given.[6] A master is not liable for injuries which could not reasonably have been foreseen and guarded against,[7] or which are purely accidental;[8]

3. O'Connor v. Armour Packing Co. [C. C. A.] 158 F 241; Wyman v. Lehigh Valley R. Co. [C. C. A.] 158 F 957; Cotton v. North Carolina R. Co. [N. C.] 62 SE 1093. Not required to guard against every possible contingency. Martin v. Walker & Williams Mfg. Co., 113 NYS 78. Not bound to take extraordinary precautions for servant's safety. Brett v. Frank & Co., 153 Cal. 267, 94 P 1051. Not required to use best, newest or safest places, ppliances and methods. H. D. Williams Cooperage Co. v. Headrick [C. C. A.] 159 F 680. Need only use ordinary care to supply reasonably safe places, appliances and methods. Id. Owes only duty of reasonable care to provide and maintain proper and safe appliances. Stewart & Co. v. Harman [Md.] 70 A 333. Must provide reasonably safe premises. Georgetown Water, Gas, Elec. & P. Co. v. Forwood [Ky.] 113 SW 112. Charge not erroneous for making it "absolute duty" of master to provide reasonably safe place, etc. Firment v. Berwind-White Coal Min. Co., 162 F 758. Charge, "there is a duty resting on the employer to furnish a reasonably safe place to work," to which no exception was taken until jury had retired, held not reversible error, though inaccurate. Walligora v. St. Paul Foundry Co. [Minn.] 119 NW 395.

4. Test of negligence is degree of care which persons of ordinary intelligence and prudence exercise under the same circumstances. Chicago Great Western R. Co. v. Egan [C. C. A.] 159 F 40. Master owes only that reasonable care which ordinarily prudent men use under the same circumstanees. Watson v. New York Cont. Co., 111 NYS 277. What ordinarily prudent person would have done in like circumstances is test; not particular or prevailing practice of others, which is, however, competent evidence. Chicago Great Western R. Co. v. McDonough [C. C. A.] 161 F 657. Full duty is to use ordinary care to supply such places, appliances and methods as persons of ordinary intelligence and prudence commonly use under like circumstances. H. D. Williams Cooperage Co. v. Headrick [C. C. A.] 159 F 680.

Common practice is that of reasonably careful and prudent men. Wilson v. New York, etc., R. Co. [R. I.] 69 A 364. Not negligence for railroad company not to light switch yards (collision having occurred) where general practice of railroads was not to light such yards, and defendant had maintained unlighted yards ten years and no similar accident had occurred. Travis v. Kansas City So. R. Co., 121 La. 885, 46 S 909.

5. Lake v. Shenango Furnace Co. [C. C. A.] 160 F 887.

A negligent act will not be excused because it is customary, though proof of custom is admissible and may be considered on the issue whether the act is negligent. Writa v. Interstate Iron Co., 103 Minn. 303, 115 NW 169.

6. The degree of care which persons of ordinary intelligence and prudence commonly exercise under the same circumstances. Lake v. Shenango Furnace Co. [C. C. A.] 160 F 887.

7. Employe using subcontractor's defective scaffold without knowledge of or orders from employer. Swift & Co. v. Larson, 136 Ill. App. 93. Master not liable where plaintiff was engaged in raising mortar in pail with rope and pulley, and, on looking up, was struck in eye by piece of mortar which fell from pail and his eye destroyed, no defect in appliance being shown. McIlease v. James F. Meehan Co., 113 NYS 489. The business being lawful, it is necessary to recovery for negligence that there should be proved some defect from which injury might have been anticipated and from which the injury in question in fact resulted. No recovery where no cause for fall of trip hammer was shown. Nichols v. Central Trust Co. [Ind. App.] 86 NE 878. Iron works employe wheeling barrow between pile of dies and trip hammer struck the dies and fell, and his feet struck a treadle which started trip hammer, by which he was injured. Held, injury was one not reasonably to be foreseen; master not liable. Powers v. Wyman & Gordon Co., 199 Mass. 591, 85 NE 845. Defendant operating number of ordinary sewing machines with usual belts on wheels fastened to revolving shaft not bound to anticipate that operator would get hair caught while stooping down to adjust belt on shaft. Nelson-Bethel Clothing Co. v. Pitts [Ky.] 114 SW 331.

Brakeman, having assisted in unloading baggage, missed open vestibule of moving train and caught on closed vestibule and was struck by truck as he was trying to open or raise platform of vestibule. Held negligence of master not shown in that truck ought to have been removed or such accident anticipated. Baxter v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co., 104 Minn. 230, 116 NW 474. Master not bound to anticipate that employe riding on freight elevator would be injured by allowing foot to project beyond floor so as to get it caught in hole in plaster on wall; no liability for allowing such condition, either at common law or under Rev. Laws, c. 106, § 71. McDonald v. Dutton, 198 Mass. 398, 84 NE 434. Master not chargeable with negligence for failure to foresee probability of small dent or depression in run-way causing barrow, being wheeled on it, to be deflected off and falling on plaintiff. Landrigan v. Taylor-Goodwin Co., 197 Mass. 582, 84 NE 314. Where stone in quarry showed no defect or other sign of its liability to fall, but fell for some unaccountable cause, master not liable. Mitchell Lime Co. v. Mickless [Ind. App.] 85 NE 728. Not negligence to start machine without notice to employe whose duties did not require him to touch it; it was not to be anticipated that he would carelessly allow his but to expose a servant to unusual [9] or unnecessary [10] danger is negligence. The degree of care required of the master in a particular instance depends upon the nature and character of the business, the character of the agencies employed by the master with and about which the employes are required to work,[11] the known capacity and experience of the employe,[12] the methods of carrying on the work,[13] the dangers which are known,[14] or which are reasonably to be apprehended,[15] and upon all the exigencies and circumstances of the particular case.[16] It follows that the question whether due care has been execised by the master, or by those who stand in his place, in a given instance, is usually a question of fact for the jury.[17] hand to come in contact with cogs. Harper v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Ky.] 115 SW 198.

8. Employers are not insurers against injury from pure accident arising in their regular line of employment. Accidental boiler explosion. Illinois Steel Co. v. Loughran, 136 Ill. App. 432. Death through falling of rock from roof in mine examined the same day and supposed to be safe, held accidental. Donk Bros. Coal & Coke Co. v. DeLaney, 133 Ill. App. 135.

Boy, going along passageway in mill, tripped over cordage, and in falling put out his hands to catch at another employe at work there and cut his hand on blade of knife sticking out of the other's pocket. Held an accident which ordinary prudence could not have guarded against. Peeno v. Overman-Schrader Cordage Co., 32 Ky. L. R. 1313, 108 SW 349.

9. Master's duty to guard against injury to servant ordered into place where he may be injured by sudden operation of machinery or other servant's acts. Cristanelli v. Saginaw Min. Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 784, 117 NW 910.

10. Master may be held liable for injury suffered by servant in obeying negligent order unnecessarily exposing him to danger. Yarber v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 235 Ill. 589, 85 NE 928. Negligence to subject employe to unnecessary dangers. Florala Sawmill Co. v. Smith [Fla.] 46 S 332.

11. It is master's duty to use every practicable precaution to protect employes from injury from electricity where that dangerous agency is used. Ago v. Harbach [Iowa] 117 NW 669. Electrical companies owe employes high degree of care, corresponding to danger, to keep wires properly insulated and properly suspended. Texarkana Tel. Co. v. Pemberton [Ark.] 111 SW 257. Where dynamite was kept in camp for blasting, degree of care required in protecting servants corresponded to danger arising from those circumstances. Froberg v. Smith [Minn.] 118 NW 57. Contractors, using dynamite in blasting frozen ground, charged with high degree of care in handling and keeping it. Anderson v. Smith, 104 Minn. 40, 115 NW 743. In determining whether mode of exploding dynamite in blasting rock was reasonably safe as to employes who handled rock after explosions, dangerous character of dynamite must be considered. Stephen v. Duffy, 237 Ill. 549, 86 NE 1082. Where the use of dynamite and the dangers arising from its use are in nowise incident to the servant's employment, the master owes as much protection to his servant as to a stranger. Proof that cranesman on steam shovel was killed through explosion of dynamite, that injury resulted without his fault and could not reasonably have been avoided by him, etc., held a prima facie case of negligence. Stephen v. Duffy, 136 Ill. App. 572.

12. As to children, see post, Injuries to Children. Telegraph company owes higher degree of care to apprentice lineman than to experienced men, and ought not to send apprentice to do dangerous work. Maitrejean v. New Orleans R. & L. Co., 120 La. 1056, 46 S 21.

13. Running train backward at night, distance of 84 miles, without headlights, being extra hazardous, requires corresponding degree of care by company to keep track clear. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Gardner [C. C. A.] 162 F 114.

14. Duty of master measured by known danger. Charron v. Union Carbide Co., 151 Mich. 687, 15 Det. Leg. N. 154, 115 NW 718. Master chargeable with care of careful and prudent men under the circumstances, and having reference to risk and danger of work. Williams v. Norton [Vt.] 69 A 146.

15. The degree of care must be commensurate with the dangerous character of the article, the circumstances under which it is used, and the seriousness of the dangers to be apprehended. Wiita v. Interstate Iron Co., 103 Minn. 303, 115 NW 169. Plumber was sent into elevator pit to repair water pipes, and water came out of pipe in contact with calcium carbide stored there, causing explosion which killed an employe. Held, employer should have anticipated danger and taken precautions to prevent it by removing water from pipes. Charron v. Union Carbide Co., 151 Mich. 687, 15 Det. Leg. N. 154, 115 NW 718. Master owes servant employed in preparing meats duty of reasonable care to protect him from infectious diseases which might be communicated by meats handled. O'Connor v. Armour Packing Co. [C. C. A.] 158 F 241.

16. Liability of master depends upon circumstances of each case. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Beazley [Fla.] 45 S 761. Measure of master's duty to servant is reasonable care, and in view of situation of parties, relations they have established, nature of business, character of machinery and appliances used, the surrounding circumstances and conditions, and exigencies which require vigilance and attention. Lay v. Elk Ridge Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 61 SE 156.

17. See, also, §§ 3B, et seq. Whether failure to guard stairway opening in building through which material fell on workman below was negligence. Leine v. Kellerman Cont. Co. [Mo. App.] 114 SW 1147. Whether master aught reasonably to have apprehended that rope pulley, no longer used, would hang down from revolving shaft so that employe, throwing off belt and tieing it

The common-law duties of the master to provide a reasonably safe place of work, reasonably safe tools and appliances,[18] and a sufficient number of reasonably competent servants to do the required work,[19] to provide suitable methods of work, and to make, promulgate and enforce reasonable rules and regulations,[20] and to warn and instruct servants,[21] are more fully discussed and illustrated in the succeeding paragraphs. The duties are personal to the master and cannot be delegated so as to relieve him from liability for their nonperformance.[22]

Statutory liability. See 10 C. L. 703—Statutes prohibiting or regulating the employment of children are treated in the following paragraph, and statutes relating particularly to subjects discussed in succeeding sections are there referred to.[23] Violation of an ordinance or statute imposing a mandatory duty is negligence per se,[24] provided the thing done or omitted is one of the things contemplated by the statute and prohibited or guarded against by it,[25] and there was a violation of a duty owed to the plaintiff personally or as a member of a class.[26] Statutes imposing certain duties on railroad companies for the protection of the general public and travelers are also for the benefit of employes.[27] A statute not retrospective in its terms can have no application to a cause of action which arose previous to its passage.[28] Statutory liability for death differs from that for injuries in some states.[29]

Employment of, and injuries to, children, including statutory liability.[30]—Statutes prohibiting employment in dangerous work of children of tender years are constitutional.[31] Violation of such a statute is commonly held to constitute negligence per se,[32] warranting recovery against the employer for injuries to the child[33]

24. Violation of ordinance prohibiting employment of persons as elevator operators who have not been duly examined and licensed is negligence per se. Cragg v. Los Angeles Trust Co. [Cal.] 98 P 1063.

25. Platt v. Southern Photo Material Co. [Ga. App.] 60 SE 1068.

26. Employment of child above prescribed age of child labor law not negligence per se, though affidavit required by law is not obtained. Platt v. Southern Photo Material Co. [Ga. App.] 60 SE 1068. Acts Tenn. 1891, p. 220, c. 101, § 2, makes railroad companies liable for killing live stock on track, in absence of contributory negligence, but exempts from liability if right of way is properly fenced. This does not create duty to fence as to employes so as to give a cause of action for death of engineer caused by collision with cow on track. Gill v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 160 F 260.

27. Statute requiring locomotive whistles to sound on approaching crossings is for benefit of sectionmen as well as travelers. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Burnett [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 404. Statute requiring railroads to keep constant lookout for persons and property on the track is for benefit of employes as well as others. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Puckett [Ark.] 114 SW 224.

28. Act June 10, 1907 (P. L. 523). McHugh v. Jones & Laughlin Steel Co., 219 Pa. 644, 69 A 90. Act Congress April 22, 1908, relating to liabilities of railroads to employes, is prospective only in operation; has no application where injury was received prior to enactment of statute. Winfree v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 164 F 698.

29. See, also, § 3E, Statutory Modification of Common Law Rule. Where servant, though foreman, was a farm laborer, within Rev. Laws, c. 106, § 79, master would not be liable for his death by virtue of § 73, cl. 2. Rowley v. Ellis, 197 Mass. 391, 83 NE 1103. Where evidence shows or warrants finding that appliance is defective, and that superintendent was negligent in failing to discover the defect, master would be liable both under common law and Rev. Laws, c. 106, § 71, cl. 1, for injury, without death. Id. In case of death of employe, liability is governed solely by Rev. Laws, c. 106, § 73, unless employe was farm laborer. Id.

31. Revisal 1905, § 3362, prohibiting employment of children under 12 in factories, is valid. Starnes v. Albion Mfg. Co., 147 N. C. 556, 61 SE 525. Legislature has power to fix age limit of children who may be employed in dangerous work. Stehle v. Jaeger Automatic Mach. Co., 220 Pa. 617, 69 A 1116.

32. Employment of child under 12 in cotton factory, being in violation of Rev. 1905, § 3362, is negligence per se and not merely evidence of negligence. Starnes v. Albion Mfg. Co., 147 N. C. 556, 61 SE 525. Employment of child under age prescribed by Acts 1906, p. 98, in factory or manufacturing establishment, is negligence per se, and such child injured while so engaged has right of action. Platt v. Southern Photo Material Co. [Ga. App.] 60 SE 1068.

resulting proximately therefrom.[34] Proof of violation of the statute and injury to the child is at least evidence of negligence sufficient to make a prima facie case for the jury.[35] Whether a particular statute is applicable or has been violated in a particular case depends upon the terms of the statute and the facts,[36] and may be for the jury.[37] To an action based on violation of such a statute, misrepresentations by the minor as to his age,[38] or by others, in his presence,[39] or the fact that the minor was instructed,[40] is no defense, nor is the defense of contributory negligence or assumption of risk available [41] in some jurisdictions. If a child employed is above the age limit of the statute, failure to take and file the affidavit as to his age, required by statute, though criminal, is not negligence per se as to such child.[42] That a statute prohibiting employment of children provides a penalty for its violation does not bar a civil proceeding for damages.[43] Statutes like those under discussion do not change the common-law rules as to negligence in putting a minor at work near dangerous

33. Under statute, injury to child under 14 while employed in furniture factory would warrant recovery. Finley v. Acme Kitchen Furniture Co. [Tenn.] 109 SW 504. Employe liable for death of boy of 14 where he was put to work on platform near engine and shaft and pulleys, a place dangerous even for an experienced man; liability existed even independently of agreemnt with parent that boy was not to be placed in dangerous work. Bourg v. Brownell-Drews Lumber Co., 120 La. 1009, 45 S 972. Michigan statutes prohibiting employment of children under 14 in factories, and of children under 16 in work dangerous to life or limb, impose duties for benefit of classes embraced in the acts, a breach of which resulting in injury gives rise to cause of action, though statutes do not expressly provide therefor. Syneszewski v. Schmidt [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 509, 116 NW 1107.

34. Child under 12 employed in cotton factory in violation of Rev. 1905, § 3362, to sweep spinning room and make bands, was injured while on another floor to visit his father, and while attempting to pick piece of cotton from carding machine, which was no part of his duties. Employment of child held proximate cause of injury. Starnes v. Albion Mfg. Co., 147 N. C. 556, 61 SE 525.

35. If an infant under 16 years of age is employed about dangerous machinery, owner not having certificate permitting her employment, as provided in Laws 1907, p. 576, c. 408, and is injured while so employed by reason of failure to guard machinery, such facts make prima facie case of negligence. Fitzgerald v. International Flax Twine Co., 104 Minn. 138, 116 NW 475.

36. Rev. St. 1899, § 6434, does not prohibit employment of women and children in manufacturing establishments, but prohibits requiring them to work near or between moving parts of machines. Peters v. Gille [Mo. App.] 113 SW 706. Machine is in motion within meaning of § 6434, though it stops occasionally in course of its operation. Id. No recovery warranted under Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 6434, prohibiting employment of minor between fixed or traversing parts of any machine while in motion, where plaintiff was working at side of and over moving belt which carried candy into knives which cut it. National Candy Co. v. Miller [C. C. A.] 160 F 51. Operation of electric freight elevator is "dangerous" occupation for boy under 16 within meaning of statute. Braasch v. Michigan Stove Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 748, 118 NW 366. Statute recognizes that children under 16 are immature. Id.

37. Fact of violation of child labor law evidence for jury in injury case. Stehle v. Jaeger Automatic Mach. Co., 220 Pa. 617, 69 A 1116. Whether or not certain work done by one excluded from such work by statute is extra hazardous or not is a question for the jury and not for experts. Child 14 years old putting rags through wringer. Swift & Co. v. Miller, 139 Ill. App. 192. Where boy under 16 is injured while oiling or cleaning machinery in motion, master is liable, whether machine was being operated for ordinary purpose or for purpose of cleaning, Act May 2, 1905 (P. L. 352), being violated. Whether it was being operated at full speed for jury. Sullivan v. Hanover Cordage Co. [Pa.] 70 A 909.

38. Violation of statute prohibiting employment of children under 16 years of age in dangerous work renders employer liable for injuries resulting therefrom, though child said he was 16, where employer did not obtain and file statement of parent or guardian as to child's age, as required by statute. Syneszewski v. Schmidt [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 509, 116 NW 1107.

39. That misrepresentations as to minor's age were made in his presence when he was employed did not estop him from relying on Pub. Acts 1901, p. 157, No. 113, § 3. Braasch v. Michigan Stove Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 748, 118 NW 366.

40. Instruction to children employed in violation of Act May 2, 1905 (P. L. 352), is no defense. Stehle v. Jaeger Automatic Mach. Co., 220 Pa. 617, 69 A 1116.

41. Contributory negligence or assumption of risk not available where boy under 16 injured oiling or cleaning machine. Sullivan v. Hanover Cordage Co. [Pa.] 70 A 909. An employer who employs a child under the age allowed by law to be employed in certain work cannot in an action for injuries to child in such prohibited work set up contributory negligence or assumption of risk. Stehle v. Jaeger Automatic Mach. Co., 220 Pa. 617, 69 A 1116.

machinery.[44] Whether such an act constitutes negligence is usually a question of fact [45] for the jury.[46]

For injury to a minor employed in violation of a child labor law, the parent may maintain an action for loss of services.[47] Consent by the parent to the employment of the child, with knowledge of the dangerous character of the work,[48] bars recovery.[49] Consent will be presumed if not negatived in the complaint,[50] and may be inferred where the service is allowed to continue without objection.[51]

The relation of master and servant must exist. See 10 C. L. 704—To warrant recovery for injuries caused by an alleged breach of a master's duties, it must appear that the person injured was at the time defendant's servant,[52] and was engaged in

45. Petition for injuries to child employed as press feeder held to state cause of action at common law, though not under child labor law of 1906. Platt v. Southern Photo. Material Co. [Ga. App.] 60 SE 1068.

46. Child of 13 caught by moving belt near which he was required to sweep. Goodwin v. Columbia Mills Co. [S. C.] 61 SE 390. Where boy of 14 was allowed to remain in room with belts and machinery during noon hour, and either in playing with belts or machines, or in endeavoring to adjust a belt which was loose, was caught and injured, he was entitled to recover if jury found master had failed to instruct or warn him of danger, and he had not been guilty of contributory negligence though he was not engaged in duties for which he was hired at time. Force v. Standard Silk Co., 160 F 992.

47. See, also, Parent and Child, 10 C. L. 1072. Employing child under 14 in factory in violation of labor law is sufficient evidence of negligence of master to sustain judgment for parent for loss of child's services. Danaher v. American Mfg. Co., 110 NYS 617.

48. Minor was employed as "doffer" in cotton mill with mother's consent, but his work was changed without her knowledge to work near carding machine, which was more dangerous. For injury diminishing his earning power, mother could recover. Hillsboro Cotton Mills v. King [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 132. Evidence that agreement of boy's father with defendant's representative was that boy was not to be put at dangerous work, and that he was put at dangerous work by employe delegated to look after him, who failed to instruct him as to danger, made case for jury. Leopard v. Laurens Cotton Mills [S. C.] 61 SE 1029.

49. Evidence showed acquiescence in employment in mine; no recovery. Tennessee Coal, Iron & R. Co. v. Crotweli [Ala.] 47 S 64. In suit by parent for injuries to son while engaged in hazardous employment, held that instructions properly submitted to jury questions of employment, consent of parent, danger, etc., and verdict for defendant held supported by evidence. Mitchell v. McGee [Miss.] 48 S 234.

50. Parent who consents to employment of child under 10, in violation of Gen. Acts 1903, p. 68, cannot maintain action for loss of services to him caused by her injury, and consent will be presumed when not negatived by complaint. Reaves v. Anniston Knitting Mills [Ala.] 45 S 702.

51. Parent who acquiesced in employment of her son in dangerous work in mine was chargeable with knowledge of risk which he assumed incident to such work. Tennessee Coal, Iron & R. Co. v. Crotweil [Ala.] 47 S 64. Mother of minor employed in mine four months without objection on her part could not recover damages for injuries sustained by him. Id. Boy told father of his employment two days before injury, and father told him of danger and cautioned him to be careful. Held consent to employment implied. Warrior Mfg. Co. v. Jones [Ala.] 46 S 456.

52. Defendant liable as master: Evidence sufficient to show plaintiff servant of defendant, having been employed by contractor for defendant. Driscoll v. Humes, Cruise & Smiley Co. [R. I.] 69 A 766. Evidence sufficient to warrant finding that defendant was owner of plant and employer, and not mere employe of another. Lewis v. Coupe, 200 Mass. 182, 85 NE 1053. Evidence warranted finding that plaintiff was secured as substitute for defendant's engineer with knowledge of defendant and his superintendent, and that plaintiff became defendant's employe. Aga v. Harbach [Iowa] 117 NW 669. Plaintiff, acting as brakeman on logging railroad, was employe of railroad company as well as of lumber company which owned railroad company. Barrow v. B. R. Lewis Lumber Co., 14 Idaho, 698, 95 P 682. Employe hired by one who was under contract with railroad company to load and unload lumber from and to cars, at so much per 1,000 feet, actual work being done under direction of company, was held voluntary servant of company; though he was paid by contractor. Knicely v. West Virginia M. R. Co. [W. Va.] 61 SE 811. Evidence sufficient to support finding that defendant's agent was in general charge of exhibition of engine and thresher and had power to employ plaintiff to assist him, and that plaintiff was defendant's servant at time of injury. Maxson v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. [Neb.] 116 NW 281.

Defendant not liable. Cudziak v. Morris & Co., 141 Ill. App. 356. No recovery where person who told plaintiff to go to work had no authority to employ him, and defendant had not hired him. Nicholas v. Oram [N. J. Law] 71 A 54. Where undisputed evidence showed relation of master and servant did not exist, any error in instructions as to liability of master to servant was harmless, verdict being for defendant. Haugabook v. Atlantic & B. R. Co., 130 Ga. 264, 60 SE 455. Contract or traffic arrangement whereby one company operates a line of railroad between two points for two other companies, and the performing, in a reasonable and proper manner,[53] duties within the scope of his employment.[54] In other words, it must appear that defendant owed the duties of a three divide the freight according to mileage, held not a partnership or agency. Hence employes of operating company were not employes of other two companies, and have no right of action against them for injury resulting from negligence of the operating company in operation of trains. Williams v. Kansas City, S. & G. R. Co., 120 La. 870, 45 S 924. Employe of contractor who furnished hoist and man to run it held not servant of another contractor who used hoist and such employe in its masonry work. Genovesia v. Pelham Operating Co., 114 NYS 646.

53. Recovery warranted where green hand acted under orders in oiling edger, and did work in customary way with customary appliance. Avery v. West Lumber Co., 146 N. C. 592, 60 SE 646. Flagman on work train was in proper place—caboose—at time of injury. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Vaughn, 33 Ky. L. R. 906, 111 SW 707. Mine employe, placing loaded car on track in mine, held not negligent as matter of law in being where he was. Brooks v. Chicago W. & V. Coal Co., 234 Ill. 372, 84 NE 1028. Switchman, standing with foreman during switching operations, saw signal given to move cars foreward, and stepped on track between cars when engine was suddenly backed and switchman was crushed between cars. Held, relation of master and servant existed, though reason for deceased's stepping on track was not shown. Missouri K. & T. R. Co. v. Pennewell [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 758. Held that master mechanic was properly on engine where train ran into open switch, that conductor and engineer were negligent and were not his fellow-servants. Tabor v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 210 Mo. 385, 109 SW 764. Defendant not liable where employe riding in elevator was injured because he leaned over and extended his foot where it was caught, out of mistaken idea that he would thus avoid injury. Avery v. Puckett [Ky.] 115 SW 723. Whether plaintiff was expressly or impliedly directed by foreman to go upon pile of lumber which fell held for jury. Bryant Lumber Co. v. Stastney [Ark.] 112 SW 740.

54. Recovery not warranted: Employe cannot recover for injuries resulting from his having undertaken work, outside the scope of his duties, voluntarily and without authority. Lewis v. Coupe, 200 Mass. 182, 85 NE 1053. If employe's work did not require him to be near dangerous machine by which he was injured, or if he undertook unnecessarily to perform work there and was injured, he could not recover for failure of master to guard the machine. Whiteley Malleable Castings Co. v. Wishon [Ind. App.] 85 NE 832. Master cannot be held liable for injury to servant who, without master's knowledge, leaves his place of work and puts himself in a place of danger. Schmonske v. Asphalt Ready Roofing Co., 114 NYS 87. Roundhouse employe left his work to go to restaurant outside company's yards, and in crossing yards stepped into pool of hot water. Held, defendant not liable since it owed him no duty at time, he not being in performance of duties. Wilson v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. [Ky.] 113 SW 101. Servant could not recover for injury by being caught in cogs suddenly started, when, at time, he was not at his place of work but was talking to fellow employe at different place in factory. Schmonske v. Asphalt Ready Roofing Co., 114 NYS 87. Boy left in charge of water tank by father, an employe, with consent of defendant's superintendent, fell through rotten part of roof and was drowned. Held, no recovery for death unless he was at time engaged in performance of duties for company, adjusting float and lever of tank. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Slaughter [Miss.] 45 S 873. If he was at time amusing himself by throwing rocks at passersby, there could be no recovery. Id. But if was in performance of duties it would not matter what part of roof he was on. Id.

Recovery warranted: Evidence sufficient to show employe in service of defendant at time of injury, though there was no direct proof of the fact. McDuffee's Adm'x v. Boston & M. R. R. Co. [Vt.] 69 A 124. Evidence sufficient to warrant finding that plaintiff was at time of injury engaged in work, hoisting ice, which, if not done in accordance with a positive direction by defendant, was acquiesced in and approved by him or his superintendent. Recovery proper. Lewis v. Coupe, 200 Mass. 182, 85 NE 1053. Allegation that employe was "necessarily" engaged in duties at certain place in mine held sustained by proof. Brooks v. Chicago W. & V. Coal Co., 234 Ill. 372, 84 NE 1028. Plaintiff was engaged in work when he was injured as he stepped upon platform from which his work was done. Hollis v. Widener, 221 Pa. 72, 70 A 287. Boy under 15 did not depart from scope of employment by sitting down to rest for short time. Jacobson v. Merrill & Ring Mill Co. [Minn.] 119 NW 510. Switchman held to have been engaged in line of duty when killed. Penney v. St. Joseph Stockyards Co., 212 Mo. 309, 111 SW 79. Coal shoveler not volunteer in assisting in mixing of zinc chloride solution, where it appeared he was ordered to do so by persons having authority to direct his work and he objected to changing. Elliff v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. [Or.] 99 P 76. Where it was necessary for some member of train crew to ride cars on down grade and brakeman refused, an emergency existed and conductor was not acting outside scope of duties in doing work himself. Yongue v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 112 SW 985. Engineer in charge of engine and machinery by which cages in mines were run was not without scope of duties in going to shaft to look after cables, etc., before raising cage. Moseley's Adm'r v. Black Diamond Coal & Min. Co., 32 Ky. L. R. 110, 109 SW 306. Servant hired by day to work in factory was instructed by foreman to look after certain belts, and was injured while trying to adjust them in customary way. Held, he was engaged in scope of employment and was not a volunteer. Mathews v. Kerlin [La.] 48 S 123. Foreman of cement work construction crew was not trespasser or mere licensee while in yards looking for yard master to master to the person injured at the time of the injury,[55] and that the latter was not a mere volunteer.[56] The relation of master and servant is usually held to exist during transportation of the servant to and from the place of work by the master,[57] such transportation being beneficial to both.[58] An employe is not a passenger while being so carried,[59] and some courts hold that the only duty then owed by the employer is that of reasonable care to avoid injuring him.[60] One riding on the car of a railroad company, engaged in performing duties under a contract made with an authorized representative of the company, is entitled to the same degree of care as an employe riding on the train with the company's consent.[61] Where employes were expected to remain on the premises during the period allowed for lunch, the relation of master master and servant was held to continue during that time.[62] A servant cannot be have board and tool cars moved. Missouri K. & T. R. Co. v. Balliet [Tex. Civ. App.] 107 SW 906.

55. If plaintiff voluntarily submitted himself to orders of agent of seller of engine in work of putting it in place, seller owed him duty of careful "superintendence" under statute. Bowie v. Coffin Valve Co., 200 Mass. 571, 86 NE 914. Where plaintiff went to building with tools in response to postal card and, when there, was called by foreman to come to him, defendant owed him same duty, as to lighting basement where he was, as though he had actually commenced work. Bausert v. Thompson Starrett Co., 110 NYS 521.

56. Boy employed by defendant was put at certain work, but voluntarily left it to assist another in adjusting belt. He was ordered away but later returned in violation of orders, and in assisting with belt was killed. No recovery; he was at time mere volunteer. Lindquist v. King's Crown Plaster Co. [Iowa] 117 NW 46. Where freight conductor had no power to employ assistant to aid in unloading freight, such assistant could not recover for injuries received as upon theory of breach of duty owed to him as employe, especially where he expected no pay. Taylor v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 108 Va. 817, 62 SE 798. He was mere volunteer. Id. Where freight train had full crew and did not need assistance, conductor had no authority to hire help, and one who assisted without pay was volunteer to whom company owed only ordinary care to avoid injuring him. Clarke v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 33 Ky. L. R. 797, 111 SW 344. Two linemen sent to attach guy wire to particular pole had no right to turn such work over to apprentice lineman, who was injured while doing it. Maitrejean v. New Orleans R. & L. Co., 120 La. 1056, 46 S 21. Where evidence showed custom of defendant's teamsters to assist men on street grader when it was out of order, decedent was not volunteer in giving such assistance at time of death. Jones v. Herrick [Iowa] 118 NW 444. Boy of 14 was directed to work with operator of trip hammer and keep dies clean and was directed by operator to assist in removing dies, and while so engaged trip hammer fell on him. Held, he was not mere volunteer. Avery v. Cottrill's Guardian [Ky.] 107 SW 332. Brakeman, who offered to make coupling, was not volunteer where engineer in charge told him to do it, though his ordinary duties did not include that work. Driver v. Southern R. Co. [Miss.] 46 S 824. Whether plaintiff was assisting in adjusting belt under orders of night boss or as mere volunteer held for jury. Jasper v. Bunker Hill & Sullivan Min. & Concentrating Co. [Wash.] 97 P 743.

57. Plaintiff while being carried to place of work on defendant's logging train was servant. Roland v. Tift [Ga.] 63 SE 133. Trestle and bridge builders employed by railway company, who lived in car furnished by company and were transported from place to place where services were required by company, were, while being so transported, employes and not passengers. Southern R. Co. v. West [Ga. App.] 62 SE 141.

58. Relation continued during time railway employes, working on track, were coming home on hand car furnished by master. Cicalese v. Lehigh Valley R. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 69 A 166.

59. Section hand riding on car of employer to place of work was not passenger but in exercise of mere privilege by reason of his employment. Mere fact of injury in collision did not warrant recovery; he must prove negligence. Birmingham R., L. & P. Co. v. Sawyer [Ala.] 47 S 67. Hotel waitress went out after dinner and on her return was injured while entering elevator to go to her room. Held, she was still servant not passenger, and hotel company owed her only duties of master. Walsh v. Cullen, 235 Ill. 91, 85 NE 223.

60. Duty owed to section hand riding on defendant's car to place of work was only exercise of reasonable care to avoid injuring him. Birmingham R. L. & P. Co. v. Sawyer [Ala.] 47 S 67.

61. Plaintiff contracted with foreman of bridge gang to cook for members of crew, using company's cars for purpose and company paying for board of men who left without paying her, though they usually paid her themselves. Held, foreman had authority to make contract, and company had knowledge thereof. Tinkle v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., 212 Mo. 445, 110 SW 1086. While not a passenger nor an employe, yet she performed duties for benefit of company and was more than mere licensee and was entitled to same degree of care as employe riding on train with company's consent. For negligence in stopping train, causing injury to plaintiff, company would be liable. Id. Plaintiff, being in performance of duties, did not assume risk and was not guilty of contributory negligence. Id.

62. Riley v. Cudahy Packing Co. [Neb.] 117 NW 765.

transferred from one master to another without his consent, either expressly given or implied from the nature and character of the work, when compared with his ordinary employment.[63] Whether the injured person was at the time a servant of defendant or another may be a question of fact.[64] Only ordinary care to avoid injuring him is owed to a mere volunteer.[65] A servant who enters upon his master's premises not to perform his duties but to violate the law is entitled to no higher degree of protection than any outsider under such circumstances.[66] It will not be presumed or implied, against a master engaged in lawful business, that he invited his servants to come upon his premises or to use his instrumentalities for the purpose of violating the law,[67] or that he should have anticipated their doing so.[68] An employer is not responsible for injuries caused wholly by the servants of another, over whom he has no control.[69]

One who is employed to do certain work, and who is responsible to his employer only for the result, is an independent contractor;[70] one who has no discretion as to the manner or details of the work, but is controlled therein by the employer is a servant.[71] Which relation exists in a particular case may be a question of fact for the jury.[72] The general employer does not owe the duties of a master to an independent contractor nor to the servants of an independent contractor,[73] nor will he be

63. Employe of vendee of engine could not be found to have become servant of vendor, under whose agent's orders he worked in putting engine in place, unless he consented to and voluntarily became the vendee's servant. Bowie v. Coffin Valve Co., 200 Mass. 571, 86 NE 914.

64. Whether miner was employe of owners of mine or of one who was independent contractor. Smith v. Garrison [Ky.] 108 SW 293. Engineer was in charge of dead engine being hauled on defendant's road, himself being employe of another company. Two roads were under same general management and engineer was subject to orders of defendant's conductor and engineer. Whether he was at time employe of defendant for jury. Crow v. Hauck's M. & A. R. Co., 212 Mo. 589, 111 SW 583.

65. That one not an employe voluntarily undertook to operate brake on train with knowledge of engineer, and was injured while so doing, did not make company liable if ordinary care to prevent injury to him was exercised after discovery of his peril. Derrickson's Adm'r v. Swann-Day Lumber Co. [Ky.] 115 SW 191.

66. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Chapman [Ga. App.] 62 SE 488. In North Carolina it is a misdemeanor for intoxicated person to take charge of a locomotive as engineer. Hence, in that state, an intoxicated servant who comes to take charge of locomotive as engineer, is there to commit a crime, and other employes owe him only such duties as they owe to other intruders. Id. Where such person sues to recover injuries for alleged negligence of engineer, defendant may plead and prove this North Carolina statute to show it did not owe duties as master, even though plaintiff had not entered engine, and could not be prosecuted under the statute. Id.

69. Independent contractor, building bridge for railway company, not responsible to one of his servants for injuries caused by negligence of employes of the railway company over which he had no control. Gurdon, etc., R. Co. v. Calhoun [Ark.] 109 SW 1017.

70. Person employed to construct trestles, roadway, etc., of materials furnished by defendant, subject to approval of defendant's engineer, was independent contractor. Walker v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 430. One employed to sink shaft at $10 a foot, the employer to furnish appliances only, and the contractor to employ, pay, and control his help, was independent contractor. Kiser v. Suppe [Mo. App.] 112 SW 1005.

71. Power to control details of work and to discharge is essential test of relation. Kiser v. Suppe [Mo. App.] 112 SW 1005. Man employed to shovel gumbo into cars, having no discretion as to manner of work, was not independent contractor, though paid by amount of work done. Missouri K. & T. R. Co. v. Romans [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 157. One employed to load and unload lumber at certain price per 1,000 feet, under orders and directions of defendant, was servant, not independent contractor. Knicely v. West Virginia M. R. Co. [W. Va.] 61 SE 811.

72. Company employed to tear down building was independent contractor if responsible to employer only for result, but servant if employer controlled and directed means and details of work. Question of relation held for jury. Ballard & Ballard Co. v. Lee's Adm'r [Ky.] 115 SW 732.

73. Injured men held servants of an independent contractor and not of defendant. Cole v. Louisiana Gas Co., 121 La. 771, 46 S. 801. Person who employed plaintiff as carpenter had contract to do carpenter work on house for certain sum, employed, controlled, and paid his own men, with whom defendant had nothing to do. Held, plaintiff's employer was independent contractor, not vice-principal of defendant. Kipp v. Oyster [Mo. App.] 114 SW 538. Where facts showed that person who employed plaintiff was independent contractor and not vice-principal of defendant, and plaintiff produced no evidence tending to show he was liable for negligence of the independent contractor.[74] But the owner of premises, who employs a person to do work thereon, owes to him and his servants the duties owed to a licensee.[75] While in performance of duties in a place where they have a right to be;[76] and a general employer may assume the duty of furnishing reasonably safe appliances for such persons[77] but does not thereby become bound to maintain the appliances in such condition having furnished those which are reasonably safe.[78]

The master's negligence must have been the proximate cause[79] of the servant's injuries.[80]—The proximate cause of an injury need not be the immediate cause; it is that which in a natural and continuous sequence, unbroken by any new, independent cause, produces the injury, and without which it would not have occurred.[81]

vice-principal, there was no question for jury. Id. Plaintiff was employed by contractor to sink shaft, and was to have one-third contractor's compensation after deducting certain expenses. General employer, defendant, had no control over plaintiff or over contractor's work but furnished derrick, hoist, and cable. Held, plaintiff was servant of contractor, not of defendant. Kiser v. Suppe [Mo. App.] 112 SW 1005.

74. Employer not liable to servants of independent contractor for latter's negligence. Ballard & Ballard Co. v. Lee's Adm'r [Ky.] 115 SW 732.

75. Defendant, operator of mine, owned to plaintiff, employe of contractor working mine, duty to inspect and keep it reasonably safe, plaintiff being licensee and for breach of this duty plaintiff could recover for injuries sustained. Tennessee Coal, Iron & R. Co. v. Burgess [Ala.] 47 S 1029.

76. Held that employe of contractor doing work on defendant's premises was not required in performance of his duties to be in vicinity of unguarded hatchway into which he fell. Defendant not liable. Hutchinson v. Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co., 152 Mich. 367, 15 Det. Leg. N. 235, 116 NW 1132.

77. A person undertaking to furnish machinery and appliances for the use of others assumes a duty to furnish a safe appliance, but this obligation does not depend upon a contractual relation between the person injured and the person whose negligence causes the injury but upon failure to perform an assumed duty. Where subcontractor's workman was injured by defective rung in ladder belonging to general contractor, evidence held not to show negligence. Dougherty v. Weeks, 111 NYS 218.

78. General employer who agreed to furnish contractor with derrick, hoist, and cable, knowing latter would employ miners, owed to such employes of contractor ordinary care to furnish reasonably safe cable but did not owe them duty of inspection thereafter, that being duty of contractor. Kiser v. Suppe [Mo. App.] 112 SW 1005. Cable used with hoist was furnished by general employer and used by contractor 9 or 10 days and then gave way where it was attached to hook of hoist. Negligence of contractor in failing to inspect was cause of accident; general employer performed duty by supplying cable reasonably safe at first. Id.

79. For discussion of general doctrine of proximate cause, see Negligence, 10 C. L. 922.

80. See 10 C. L. 707. No recovery unless negligence of master was proximate cause of injury. Ayres v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ga. App.] 63 SE 530; Steele's Adm'r v. Hillman Land & Iron Co. [Ky.] 114 SW 311; Moriarity v. Schwarzchild & Sulzberger Co., 132 Mo. App. 650, 112 SW 1034; Willson v. Logan, 139 Ill. App. 204. Plaintiff suing for death of employe must show negligence of master as proximate cause. Watson's Adm'r v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ky.] 114 SW 292. Removal of part of machine, not a safety device and which did not contribute to cause injury, not actionable negligence. Calhoun v. Holland Laundry, 220 Pa. 281, 69 A 756. No recovery for death alleged to have been caused by defendant's want of due care to procure medical attendance promptly, where evidence was that medical attendance would have enhanced chances of recovery but there was no evidence that it would have prevented death. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Allen [Ark.] 111 SW 802. Failure to comply with the requirements of building ordinances has no application where the injury was not attributable thereto. William Grace Co. v. Gallagher, 140 Ill. App. 603. Master would not be liable for injury to employe by getting hand caught in corn grinder where negligence alleged—failure to provide more light as agreed by superintendent—had nothing to do with accident. Jackson v. Gulf Elevator Co., 209 Mo. 506, 108 SW 44. Instruction allowing recovery on proof of any one of alleged grounds of negligence erroneous because not requiring act proved to be proximate cause of injury. Forquer v. Slater Brick Co., 37 Mont. 426, 97 P 843. Failure of mine foreman to adjust safety derailing device in certain way not actionable negligence when accident was not shown to have resulted therefrom. Merrigan v. Evans, 221 Pa. 1, 69 A 1113. Master is not liable for ordering plaintiff to drive mule known to be in habit of kicking and running away, where injury was solely result of balking. International Coal & Min. Co. v. Reeble, 137 Ill. App. 5. Plaintiff suing for employe's death must show alleged negligence and accident resulting therefrom to have been proximate cause of death; evidence insufficient. Moscarello v. Haines, 114 NYS 519.

81. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 988. There can be no recovery on an alleged ground of negligence if some independent intervening cause produced injury. Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Vail [Ala.] 46 S 587. Whenever causal connection between master's negligence and injury is broken by independent agency, alone sufficient to cause the injury, master's negligence is not proximate cause. Teis v.

Negligence of the master will be held the proximate cause of an injury if the master, in the exercise of ordinary care, ought reasonably to have foreseen that injury might result therefrom;[82] it is not necessary that the particular injury which occurred ought to have been foreseen,[83] provided it was the natural and probable consequence of the master's negligence.[84] If an injury would not have occurred but for negligence of the master, he is not relieved from resonsibility by the fact that an independent cause for which he is not responsible,[85] such as negligence of a fellow-servant,[86] or of a third person or other agency concurred in producing the injury.[87]

Smuggler Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 158 F 260. Where injuries were caused by head-on collision of street cars, the collision was the proximate cause, and negligence, if any, in sending out one car without notice was immaterial. Latsha v. Shamokin & E. Elec. R. Co. [Pa.] 70 A 1002. Failure to maintain or use certain appliance ought not be submitted as cause of injury when it could not have concurred in producing it or have been the independent cause of it. Huston v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 129 Mo. App. 576, 107 SW 1045. If negligent act of foreman in directing sand hoist to be raised intervened between resulting injury and plaintiff's signal, former was proximate cause. Boyle v. McNulty, 113 NYS 240. Employe was overcome by gas, and while unconscious, and being removed, his leg was broken by reason of its being allowed to project beyond edge of cage. Master's negligence in allowing gas in mine not proximate cause of injury to leg. Teis v. Smuggler Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 158 F 260. Box of freight was placed in gangway, and fell. It was again placed in position, leaning against gangway, and fell second time injuring plaintiff. Held, first fall, and negligence in first placing box where it was was not proximate cause of injury; verdict possibly based thereon set aside. Williams v. Citizens' Steamboat Co., 113 NYS 616. The master is liable for his negligence whether the injury is directly caused thereby or whether it is caused by the attempt of the servant to avoid it. Where conductor on car with which another car collided was injured because of collision, held immaterial whether injury was caused by being thrown from car or by jumping to avoid injury where peril was imminent. South Chicago St. R. Co. v. Atton, 137 Ill. App. 364. Failure to warn plaintiff of danger of being caught between car and door, if warning was necessary, held proximate cause of his being crushed; not fact that his clothing was caught on car; latter was mere condition. Charrier v. Boston & M. R. Co. [N. H.] 70 A 1078.

82. Injury must have resulted from doing or omission of an act which a person of ordinary prudence could foresee might naturally or probably produce injury. Wilson v. Southern R. Co., 108 Va. 822, 62 SE 972.

83. It must appear that same injury was likely to occur as the natural and probable result of the alleged negligent act, but it need not appear that alleged negligent person should have been able to foresee the exact injury which occurred. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Barwick [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 953. Particular accident which occurred need not have been reasonably anticipated; it is enough that injury of some kind ought reasonably to have been anticipated as consequence of negligence. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Hicks, 91 Miss. 273, 46 S 360. Master who failed to guard machine as required by statute ought to have anticipated that same injury might have resulted; immaterial that he could not reasonably have foreseen precise injury which resulted to boy who sat down on machine to rest. Jacobson v. Merrill & Ring Mill Co. [Minn.] 119 NW 510.

84. To be actionable, negligence must be the proximate cause of an injury which in the light of the attending circumstances ought to have been foreseen as a natural and probable consequence of the negligent act. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Rieden [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 930, 107 SW 661. Where servant sought to recover for injuries by reason of fact that hook used to hoist bucket slipped and allowed bucket to fall because hook had spread, he had burden to show that accident would not probably have happened had hook not been spread. Carney v. Minnesota Dock Co., 191 N. Y. 301, 84 NE 62. Hospital surgeon sent insane patient home unattended and without notifying family, and he was later struck by street car and killed, having partly undressed and placed himself on the track. Held, his death was natural consequence of surgeon's act. Phillips v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., 211 Mo. 419, 111 SW 109. Negligence if any, in allowing end of tie to rot could not be held proximate cause of injury to signal man who claimed he slipped on rotten tie, fell and became unconscious, and was then struck or run over by train. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Rieden [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 930, 107 SW 661. While employe was sitting on flat car with feet hanging over, piece of wood thrown off by another bounded back and struck him. Held, such injury was pure accident, and not a consequence which ought to have been foreseen by company, of allowing men to throw off wood near their homes as train passed. Ultima Thule, A. & M. R. Co. v. Benton [Ark.] 110 SW 1037. Maintaining post in such a position that plaintiff's arm was crushed against it on collision of car, which he was pushing, with an obstacle placed on the track by an outsider, held not the proximate cause of injury. Yunkes v. Latrobe Steel & Coupler Co., 131 Ill. App. 292.

85. Master not relieved by fact that negligence for which he is not responsible concurs in causing injury. Missouri K. & T. R. Co. v. Lasater [Tex. Civ. App.] 115 SW 103.

86. See post, § 3E.

87. Contributing negligence of third person no defense if injury would not have occurred without negligence of master. Elliff v. Oregon R. & N. Co. [Or.] 99 P 76. If

These principles are further illustrated by holdings grouped in the note.[88] What was negligence of master was efficient cause without which injury would not have occurred, negligence of others would not bar recovery. Aga v. Harbach [Iowa] 117 NW 669.

88. Master's negligence not shown to be proximate cause of injury: No recovery if negligence of servant, and not of master, is proximate cause of injury. Washington Mills v. Cox [C. C. A.] 157 F 634. Where plaintiff stumbled while carrying heavy bolt, held injury was due to accident, not to negligence of defendant. Jones v. Pioneer Cooperage Co. [Mo. App.] 114 SW 94. Evidence insufficient to show negligence of defendant in not lighting basement, cause of injury to plaintiff who slipped and sprained ankle in getting out of elevator. Benson v. Peters [Neb.] 117 NW 347. Negligence of operator, and not defect in metal press, proximate cause of injury where assistant got hand caught, upper die being lowered too soon by operator. Ladiew v. Sherwood Metal Working Co., 125 App. Div. 65, 109 NYS 477. Mule driver in mine stopped to remove sprags used to keep car from running on mule, and mule suddenly started and caught driver between car and mine wall. Failure to comply with Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 93, § 21, requiring places of refuge to be provided along roads, was not proximate cause of injury, since compliance by making such place within 25 feet of place of accident would not have prevented it. Schlapp v. McLean County Coal Co., 235 Ill. 630, 85 NE 916. Servant slipped on tie, and fell into low place on track, and before he could get out was struck by car. Held, slipping on tie was proximate cause of injury, not alleged negligence in maintaining track with low place on it. Chicago & E. R. Co. v. Dinius, 170 Ind. 222, 84 NE 9. No recovery for alleged negligence in allowing timbers of mine roof to become rotten, where injury by fall of rock was caused by motorman "back poling" motor, pole knocking timbers away. Williams' Adm'r v. Norton Coal Co., 108 Va. 608, 62 SE 342. Evidence held not to show master's negligence in providing reasonably safe place to work, where plaintiff was injured by shot breaking through wall of mine. Consolidated Coal Co. v. Francis, 133 Ill. App. 227; Consolidated Coal Co. v. Trautwein, 133 Ill. App. 231. Evidence held not to show that failure of mine manager to furnish props in room where shot-firer was injured was proximate cause of injury. Southern Coal & Min. Co. v. Hopp, 133 Ill. App. 239. Engineer's negligence in running ahead of schedule and not failure to send flagman out from preceding train held cause of collision. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Brice [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 1094. Defective condition of machine held not cause of injury to employe who got his hand caught by revolving cylinder. Hutchison v. Cohankus Mfg. Co. [Ky.] 112 SW 899. Cause of collision of plaintiff's train with double header which preceded him held not leaky engine on double header nor breaking of knuckle, but negligence of employes in failing to flag his train or negligence of plaintiff—engineer—in running at prohibited speed. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Keiffer [Ky.] 113 SW 433. No negligence of master shown where employe, familiar with premises, walked into open door in elevator shaft, mistaking it for door to room. Gobeil v. Ponemah Mills [R. I.] 69 A 684. Defect in machine not cause of girl's getting fingers crushed. Willson v. Logan, 139 Ill. App. 204. No recovery for injury to boy's hand on account of defect in nozzle of hose he was holding where hand was injured in knives of pug mill, and there was no evidence showing any causal connection between defect in nozzle and such injury. Forquer v. Slater Brick Co., 37 Mont. 426, 97 P 843. Plaintiff started to raise beam with crow-bar but was told by superintendent to use his hands, and while beam was being so raised other men let go and beam fell on plaintiff's hand. Proximate cause of injury was negligent act of fellow-servants, not superintendent's order. Carlsen v. McKee, 114 NYS 280. Lack of sufficient number of men to move engine (dismantled) not cause of injury to one, where fly wheel being rolled across floor struck projecting pipe and fell over on him; their own negligence was cause. Fairbanks, Morse & Co. v. Walker [C. C. A.] 160 F 896.

Evidence held to warrant finding that negligence of master was proximate cause: Unsafe method used to lower machine caused it to tip over. Hamann v. Milwaukee Bridge Co., 136 Wis. 39, 116 NW 854. That revolving set screw on shaft which caught servant's sleeve, was cause of injury. Little v. Bousfield & Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 763, 117 NW 903. That failure to have outside fire escape required by statute was cause of injuries to factory girl by burning. Arnold v. National Starch Co. [N. Y.] 86 NE 815. That failure to guard saw was proximate cause of injury to employe who slipped and came in contact with it. Evansville Hoop & Stave Co. v. Bailey [Ind. App.] 84 NE 549. That hole in floor was proximate cause of overturning of "buggy" used to haul steel plates, and not servant's negligent efforts to get it out of the hole. American Sheet & Tin Plate Co. v. Urbanski [C. C. A.] 162 F 91. That use of broken and repaired sheave wheel was proximate cause of breaking of cable and falling of bucket of ore on employe. Alaska-Treadwell Gold Min. Co. v. Cheney [C. C. A.] 162 F 593. That brakeman's death was caused by being struck in head by water spout. McDuffee's Adm'x v. Boston & M. R. R. Co. [Vt.] 69 A 124. That alleged defective condition of turn-table, causing it to stop suddenly, was cause of brakeman's injury. Currie v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. [Tex.] 108 SW 1167. That failure to warn servant of danger attendant upon dissolving of zinc chloride in tank was proximate cause of injury to eye by splashing of solution in it, though splashing was caused by fellow-servant. Elliff v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. [Or.] 99 P 76. That fall into shaft was caused by loose condition of earth at mouth on which boards were placed. Hollingsworth v. Davis-Daly Estates Copper Co. [Mont.] 99 P 142. Evidence and inferences therefrom held sufficient to take to jury question whether failure to block switch was cause of plaintiff's being injured by switch engine. Parker v. Union Station Ass'n [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 909, 118 NW 733. Death of employe sufficiently shown.

the proximate cause of an injury is ordinarily a question of act to be determined by the jury,[89] except in those few cases where the facts are undisputed and such that only one reasonable conclusion can be drawn therefrom.

to have been caused by defective port, gate of which fell out with him when he opened it. Puget Sound Nav. Co. v. Lavender [C. C. A.] 160 F 851. Negligent construction of stoging loose plank from which fell on plaintiff, proximate cause of injury, though another servant drove loaded truck against horse supporting staging. Vaisbord v. Nashua Mfg. Co., 74 N. H. 470, 69 A 520. Evidence sufficient to go to jury on issue whether method used to clear obstructions from saw caused injury. Godsoe v. Dodge Clothespin Co. [N. H.] 70 A 1073. Switchman knocked down by engine and dragged and foot caught in unblocked frog. Failure to block frog proximate cause of injury. Cooper v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 159 F 82. Proximate cause of brakeman's death held lack of automatic couplers which caused him to go between cars, and not defect in track which caused him to get caught in unblocked frog. York v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Ark.] 110 SW 803. Proximate cause of injuries to plaintiff by breaking of saw held its defective condition, and not "jam" caused by fellow-servant. Rice v. Reese [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 502. Where plaintiff, a minor, was injured by defective construction of hopper in clay crusher, his employment in violation of Child Labor Law held prima facie proximate cause of injury. Frorer v. Baker, 137 Ill. App. 588. Defective condition of chisel proximate cause of injury to servant by sliver which flew from it and struck him in the eye. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Walker, 41 Ind. App. 588, 84 NE 730. Defect in coupler which brakeman went between cars to investigate was proximate cause of injury by falling between cars, one of which ran over him. Sprague v. Wisconsin Cent. R Co., 104 Minn. 58, 116 NW 104. Defective condition of gasoline engine—prime plug had to be taken out to start it—held proximate cause of injury by explosion of nearby can of gasoline, to which fire was communicated by oil spilled on engine and floor in attempt to repair it. Meshisnek v. Seattle Sand & Gravel Co. [Wash.] 99 P 9. Failure to have flagman out with torpedo on track held proximate cause of injury to section hand who ran over it with car. Galveston H. & N. R. Co. v. Murphy [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 443. Engineer was directed to repair engine which he was employed to operate, and superior told him what to do to overcome such defect, and in so doing he was injured, defect in engine was proximate cause of injury. James v. Fountain Inn Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 61 SE 391. Where "dead block" gave way and allowed car to run away and kill employe, master was liable notwithstanding negligent act of fellow-servant, which dead block was intended to render harmless. Lay v. Elk Ridge Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 61 SE 156. The fact that brakeman's getting foot caught in unguarded space between ralls was immediate cause of his injury did not exclude from consideration negligence of company in allowing coupler to become defective, which caused brakeman to go between cars. Hynson v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 755, 107 SW 625. Workman on roof of defendant's building slipped and caught at electric wire to save himself and was injured by reason of poor insulation. Maintaining wire in that condition at that place was proximate cause of injury. Colusa Parrot Min. & Smelting Co. v. Monahan [C. C. A.] 162 F 276. Where order as to running of regular car (so as to avoid collision with special) was given only to conductor, instead of to motorman and conductor, and it was not posted as was customary, and conductor forgot it, the failure to take customary precautions to prevent forgetting of such order was proximate cause of collision of cars. Fitzgerald v. Worcester, etc., R. Co., 200 Mass. 105, 85 NE 911. Engineer's negligence in suddenly starting train held proximate cause of plaintiff's injuries. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Monell [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 504. Foreman's negligence in releasing car, which he said he would hold while plaintiff was blocking up turntable, held proximate cause of plaintiff's injury, car having left track and injured plaintiff. Missouri K. & T. R. Co. v. Bailey [Tex. Civ. App.] 115 SW 601. Negligence of engineer proximate cause of violent coupling, and not unavoidable accident to engine. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Finley [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 531. Where girl had her hand in machine, repairing thread, while machine was at rest, the foreman being engaged in repairing it, and he suddenly started it without warning, his act could be found to be the proximate cause of the injury to her hand. Fitzgerald v. International Flax Twine Co., 104 Minn. 138, 116 NW 475. Superintendent ordered employe to release chain which fell upon and injured plaintiff. Proximate cause was order of superintendent, not act of fellow-servant in obedience thereto. Deon v. McClintick-Marshall Const. Co., 114 NYS 28. Plaintiff was injured while at work on car on repair track. Custom was to have blue flag up on track, and when switching on track was necessary repair boss gave notice to men and then removed flag, and engine and cars could then enter on repair track. Here, boss removed flag and failed to warn plaintiff. Held, removal of flag was proximate cause of plaintiff's injury, other cars having been run in against car he was working on. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 988. Failure of engine to couple with car first struck, which then struck others which collided with plaintiff's car, was not proximate cause. Id.

89. Proximate cause held question for jury. Whether injuries to employe's finger were caused as alleged by his efforts to get out of telephone booth in which he was imprisoned. Georgetown Water, Gas, Elec. & P. Co. v. Forwood [Ky.] 113 SW 112. Whether negligent construction of passageway in building under construction was proximate cause of mason's tender's fall and death. Johnson v. Lindahl [Minn.] 118 NW 1009. Whether failure to plank over steel beams of building being constructed was cause of employe's fall. Schramme v. Lewinson, 110 NYS 599. Whether negligence in allowing gas to escape from oil tanks caused servant's

Contractual exemption from liability. See 10 C. L. 710—Contracts exempting the master from liability for negligence are usually held invalid on the ground of public policy [90] and are expressly prohibited by some statutes,[91] but an express agreement to assume ordinary risks is valid.[92] A contract providing that voluntary acceptance by an employe of the benefits of a relief department shall operate as a release of all claims against the employer for the injury is not void as against public policy,[93] unless opposed to a positive statute prohibiting such releases.[94] The South Carolina act providing that acceptance of benefits from a relief department to which employes are required to pay dues shall not bar an action for damages, and that a contract or release to the contrary shall be void, is held valid.[95] The act is held not to invalidate a release of a claim for damages arising out of negligence.[96]

(§ 3) B. Tools, machinery, appliances, and places for work. See 10 C. L. 711—It is the duty of the master to use ordinary care [97] to furnish machinery, tools and applideath. Boehrens v. Price [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 782. Whether explosion of boiler was due to negligent manner of work of servants or defect which reasonable inspection by master would have disclosed. Ragsdale v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 236 Ill. 175, 86 NE 214. Whether injury to employe throwing off belt to stop machine and tying up belt was caused by loose, unused rope pulley hanging on shaft. Trompley v. McAfee, 152 Mich. 494, 15 Det. Leg. N. 269, 116 NW 191. Instruction held to properly present issue of proximate cause—injury by falling on unguarded saw. Evansville Hoop & Stave Co. v. Bailey [Ind. App.] 84 NE 549. Whether fall of rock from roof of mine was caused by "squeeze," risk of which was assumed. McCarthy v. Spring Valley Coal Co., 232 Ill. 473, 83 NE 957. Whether proximate cause of miner's injury by falling of mine roof was willful violation of mines act by failure of examiner to inspect room or discover or post notice of defective and dangerous condition of mine roof. Mertens v. Southern Coal & Min. Co., 235 Ill. 540, 85 NE 743. Whether injury by falling rock was proximately caused by willful violation of Mines and Miners Act. Ingraham v. Harmon, 133 Ill. App. 82. Plaintiff injured by explosion of detonator which she was testing with ohmmeter. Whether defect in latter was cause of accident, for jury. Coril v. Masurite Explosive Co. [C. C. A.] 165 F 41. Brakeman trying to uncouple cars while moving slowly was unable to do it, and in going out from between cars got foot caught in unblocked frog. Whether failure to have car equipped with automatic coupler in working order was proximate cause of injury. Donegan v. Baltimore & N. Y. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 165 F 869. Whether injury to switchman was caused by slipping of push pole on switch engine or by acts of servants. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Forstall [C. C. A.] 159 F 893. Whether brakeman went between moving cars in disobedience of rules and whether defective bumpers caused injury. Southern R. Co. v. Shumate, 32 Ky. L. R. 1027, 107 SW 737. Whether failure of railroad company to have switch in proper position or negligence of engineer was cause of his injuries. Trimmier v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co. [S. C.] 62 SE 209. Whether defective condition of track and brakes was proximate cause of death of conductor who jumped from train. Yongue v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. [Mo. App] 112 SW 985. Whether defect in rollers of machine which caught cleaning stick and jerked plaintiff or slipping on floor was cause of injuries received by falling on machine. Zajdak v. Lisbon Falls Fiber Co., 111 NYS 50. Whether fall of operator into elevator shaft was due to negligence of fellow-servant or in part to master's negligence in failing to guard shaft properly. Roth v. Buettel Bros. Co. [Iowa] 119 NW 166. Whether uninsulated wire was cause of injuries to lineman engaged in stringing wires over others. De Kallands v. Washtenaw Home Tel. Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 337, 116 NW 564.

90. See 10 C. L. 710, n. 37.

91. Laws 1907, p. 495, c. 254, making railroad companies liable for defects in equipment, and for negligence of employes, and which provides that companies cannot be relieved by rule or contract or provision as to notice by employe injured, is held valid, since such contract or rule would defeat purpose of act and be against public policy. Kiley v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 119 NW 309.

92. Written agreement to assume ordinary risks of employment (brakeman) and to make careful examination of tracks, yards, etc., where duties called him, held valid, since it was an assumption only of ordinary risks. Wilson v. New York, etc., R. Co. [R. I.] 69 A 364.

93. Since employe may elect between such relief and action for damages. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Beazley [Fla.] 45 S 761.

94. Gen. St. 1906, § 3150, making void any contract restricting liability of railroad companies for injuries to employes, is valid. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Beazley [Fla.] 45 S 761.

95. Act is intended to prevent corporations from contracting away liability for negligence. Sturgess v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 60 SE 939.

96. Act does not apply in such a case. Sturgess v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 60 SE 939.

97. Duty with respect to appliances is ordinary care, such as man of ordinary prudence would exercise for his own safety were he doing the work. Sterne v. Mariposa Commercial & Min. Co., 153 Cal. 516, 97 P 66. Railway company not absolutely bound to keep engine throttle in condition but must use ordinary care to do so. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Mills [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 480.

ances which are reasonably safe [98] and suitable for the purposes for which they are intended to be used,[99] or for a use to which they are customarily put by employes with the knowledge or acquiescence of the master.[1] Instrumentalities of the kind ordinarily used by those engaged in the same business are reasonably safe within the meaning of this rule,[2] which does not require the latest, safest or best obtainable,[3] or those of any particular type,[4] to be provided, but the fact that an appliance is of the kind in general use will not excuse negligence in providing it, if it is not, in fact,

Duty of railway company to furnish reasonably safe hose for use of car cleaner and tank filler, and where hose broke, causing plaintiff's injury, company would be responsible for want of ordinary care. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Patrick [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 1097.

98. Pettus v. Kerr [Ark.] 112 SW 886; German-American Lumber Co. v. Brock [Fla.] 46 S 740; Kotera v. American Smelting & Refining Co. [Neb.] 114 NW 945; Lone Star Brew. Co. v. Willie [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 186; Truckers' Mfg. & Supply Co. v. White, 108 Va. 147, 60 SE 630; Norfolk & Portsmouth Trac. Co. v. Ellington's Adm'r, 108 Va. 245, 61 SE 779. Master liable for injuries caused by failure to provide reasonably safe appliances. Faulkner v. Texas, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 765. Master negligent if he furnishes defective tools liable to cause injury when used. Manning v. Portland Steel Ship Bldg. Co. [Or.] 96 P 545. Master is not guarantor of appliances but is bound only to use ordinary care to provide and maintain appliances which are reasonably safe. Southern R. Co. v. Moore, 108 Va. 388, 61 SE 747.

99. De Witt v. Floriston Pulp & Paper Co., 7 Cal. App. 774, 96 P 397. Whether reasonably safe appliances have been furnished may depend on uses to which they are to be put. Currie v. Missouri, etc., R. Co. [Tex.] 108 SW 1167. Degree of care depends upon circumstances and use to which appliances are to be put. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Patrick [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 1097. Alleged negligence in furnishing defective standards on flat cars was not sustained where it did not appear that they were defective for intended purpose, to hold materials on car and master was not shown to have knowledge of their use by brakemen as handholds. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Murray, 85 Ark. 600, 109 SW 549. Track and trains on logging road need be only reasonably safe for purposes intended; not negligence to use small or slightly worn rails, or cars unlike those in use on standard roads. Equipment of defendant held not negligently defective or unsuitable. Cavaness v. Morgan Lumber Co. [Wash.] 96 P 1084. Furnishing "spanner" wrench instead of "socket" wrench with which to tighten nuts on machine would not be negligence unless master knew, or in exercise of ordinary care ought to have known, that wrench furnished was not safe and sufficient for purpose. Sterne v. Mariposa Commercial & Min. Co., 153 Cal. 516, 97 P 66.

1. Where master provided certain tool for certain purpose, or permitted it to be used, it was immaterial that fellow-servant told him to use it. Disalets v. International Paper Co., 74 N. H. 440, 69 A 263. Master properly found guilty of negligence where green hand was told to oil edger and used for purpose bottle instead of oil can to do it, which required him to get upon machine, where he slipped, bottle being customarily used for such oiling. Avery v. West Lumber Co., 146 N. C. 592, 60 SE 646.

2. Negligence cannot be inferred from use of machine of the kind ordinarily used by persons in same business. Saller v. Friedman Bros. Shoe Co., 130 Mo. App. 712, 109 SW 794; Brands v. St. Louis Car Co., 213 Mo. 698, 112 SW 511. No negligence could be found in use of pug mill (for mixing clay), such as was customarily used in factories of the kind, without guard over knives, where there was no evidence that such guard was practicable, though, if practicable, it would have made machine safer. Forquer v. Slater Brick Co., 37 Mont. 426, 97 P 843. Where emery wheel was like those ordinarily used, and evidence showed they very seldom broke, use of such wheel was not negligence, though expert testified that convex wheel would be safer. Brands v. St. Louis Car Co., 213 Mo. 698, 112 SW 511. Doctrine not applicable where evidence did not show general use by other companies but only that same appliances had been previously used by defendant. Kennedy v. Laclede Gaslight Co. [Mo.] 115 SW 407.

3. Louisville Veneer Mills Co. v. Clemonts, 33 Ky. L. R. 106, 109 SW 308. Only reasonably safe and suitable appliances, not best or perfect working ones, required. Burke v. International Paper Co., 112 NYS 893. Not required to furnish best known appliances, only such as are reasonably fit and safe and are in general use. Cotton v. North Carolina R. Co. [N. C.] 62 SE 1093. Master may select appliances, and need not select newest and best, but must use ordinary car to select those reasonably safe. Norfolk & Portsmouth Trac. Co. v. Ellington's, 108 Va. 245, 61 SE 779. Only duty is to provide reasonably safe tools; not tools which make accidents impossible. Smith v. Long Island R. Co., 114 NYS 228. Master not obliged to furnish absolutely safe appliances but only such as are reasonably safe for intended purposes, and to keep them in repair. McDonald v. California Timber Co., 7 Cal. App. 375, 94 P 376.

4. Only appliances of ordinary character and reasonable safety required; not latest or best or any particular kind. Brands v. St. Louis Car Co., 213 Mo. 698, 112 SW 511. If double tape fuse used in mine was reasonably safe, failure to use different kind, though safer and better, would not constitute negligence. Wiita v. Interstate Iron Co., 103 Minn. 303, 115 NW 169. Evidence that hook was made of Bessemer steel and that it would have been better if made of wrought iron improperly received. Brossman v. Drake Standard Mach. Works, 232 Ill. 412, 83 NE 936.

reasonably safe.[5] Failure to provide appliances which are necessary in order that work may be done with reasonable safety,[6] or to provide a sufficient number or quantity of appliances,[7] may constitute negligence. The duty of the master with respect to appliances extends to those permanent appliances [8] which are used in the master's business, though owned by others.[9] The duty is owed only to those employes who are required to work with [10] or near them, and who are likely to be exposed to injury by reason of their defective or unsafe condition.[11] It is not owed to one whose duty it is to keep machinery in repair.[12] Whether due care in this respect has been exercised in a given case is ordinarily a question of fact.[13] The master is liable only for

5. The fact that an appliance is of the kind in general use throughout the country in the same or similar kind of work is not conclusive upon the question of negligence, if in fact the master has not used proper care in its selection and it is not reasonably safe. Wlita v. Interstate Iron Co., 103 Minn. 303, 115 NW 169. Where no buffer, brakes, or appliances were used to keep cars used in tunnel from running into pit at end of track, master could be found negligent in failing to provide reasonably safe appliances, though one he used was in general use. Evans v. Pearson, 125 App. Div. 666, 110 NYS 69. Fact that implement was purchased from reputable dealer, and was such as was ordinarily in use in same business, does not conclusively show exercise of due care in furnishing it to employe, though such facts may be considered by jury. Longpre v. Big Blackfoot Mill. Co. [Mont.] 99 P 131.

6. Defendant negligent for failure to provide means for making cement flow through conduits into bins, plaintiff having been injured by sudden flow produced by him by use of stick. Vaughn v. Glens Falls Portland Cement Co., 59 Misc. 230, 112 NYS 240.

7. Insufficient supply of suitable and safe rope was furnished painters with which to make or rig swinging scaffold. Bart v. Quadt [Cal. App.] 96 P 815. Defendant liable where fellow-servant selected best rope he could find from the supply provided and it broke injuring plaintiff. Reeder v. Crystal Carbonate Lime Co., 129 Mo. App. 107, 107 SW 1016.

8. Bolt used to fasten clamps on carrying crane held part of appliance; master not relieved by reason of having supply of other bolts. Porter v. American Bridge Co., 111 NYS 119. "Dead block" designed to stop cars which ran onto track, and to offset defects in the track, was part of appliances or place of work and employe had right to assume that it was reasonably safe. Lay v. Elk Ridge Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 61 SE 156. Rope sling, used on shipboard to lower staging over ship's side, held not mere temporary appliance but permanent and regular instrumentality as to which master was under duty of ordinary care to provide and maintain in reasonably safe condition. Doherty v. Booth, 200 Mass. 522, 86 NE 945. Employer liable if he furnished one which was defective or failed to maintain them in reasonably safe condition, injury resulting therefrom. Id. Marks or tags on cable of temporary elevator for convenience of engineer in telling where elevator was held mere temporary device, not part of ways, works or machinery; failure to have such tags on part of cable not negligence. Del Signore v. Thompson-Starrett Co., 198 Mass. 337, 84 NE 466.

9. Subcontractor liable for injuries to employe caused by defect in hoisting apparatus supplied by contractor but used by subcontractor's employes to do their work. Cavanaugh v. Windsor Cut Stone Corp., 80 Conn. 585, 69 A 345.

10. Duty to safeguard machines extends only to employes hired or expected to use them, not to volunteers. Stodden v. Anderson & Winter Mfg. Co. [Iowa] 116 NW 116. Defendant not liable where servant thoughtlessly put his hand behind him and got fingers caught in cogs of machine which had been started, where his duties did not require him to have anything to do with machine. Harker v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Ky.] 115 SW 198.

11. Tools and appliances must be reasonably safe, not only for those who use them but also for those required to work near them so as to expose to injury by reason of defects. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Walker, 41 Ind. App. 588, 84 NE 730. Where girl 14 or 15 was instructed as to manner of work, and unnecessarily and in violation of instructions worked too close to shaft, which caught her hair and injured her, law not requiring shaft to be guarded, negligence of master not shown. Civetti v. American Hatters & Furriers' Corp., 124 App. Div. 345, 108 NYS 663.

12. When the master employes servant, not to work with machinery but to repair it when defective or out of order, the rule requiring ordinary care to provide machinery equal in kind to that in general use, and reasonably safe for one exercising ordinary care in its use, does not apply to such machinery. Green v. Babcock Bros. Lumber Co., 130 Ga. 469, 60 SE 1062.

13. Question of negligence for jury: Injuries to operator of metal stamping press. Clemens v. Gem Fibre Package Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 574, 117 NW 187. Emery wheel broke. Huber v. Whale Creek Iron Works, 125 App. Div. 184, 109 NYS 177. Evidence tended to show knowledge by defendant's officers that boiler was unsafe. Hollis v. U. S. Glass Co., 220 Pa. 49, 69 A 55. Whether belt shifter used to change belt on pulleys of shaft defective and whether defect was cause of injury. Britton v. Hammond Packing Co. [Mo. App.] 114 SW 559. Whether rope used in shifting belt was in defective and dangerous condition, becoming entangled with belt and injuring plaintiff. Josher v. Bunker Hill & Sullivan Min. & Concentrating Co. [Wash.] 97 P 743. Whether belt should have been guarded to prevent automatic starting of machine. Cochrell v. Langley Mfg. Co. [Ga. App.] 63 SE 244. Whether master had failed to place guard over shaft gearing, or whether it had been removed at time of accident. Hoffman v. Rib Lake Lumber Co., 136 Wis. 388, 117 NW 789. Employe injured on shaft while attempting to adjust belt; whether defendants were negligent in failing to guard shaft or supply belt shifter. Seely v. Tenant, 104 Minn. 354, 116 NW 648. Revolving set screw caught sleeve of servant while adjusting pulley belt. Little v. Bousfield & Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 763, 117 NW 903. Whether unguarded rip saw was reasonably safe. Louisville Veneer Mills Co. v. Clemonts, 33 Ky. L. R. 106, 109 SW 308. Whether saw was properly guarded. Gustafson v. West Lumber Co. [Wash.] 97 P 1094. Plaintiff injured by hand coming in contact with knives of buzz planer from which shield had been removed. Bennett v. Carolina Mfg. Co., 147 N. C. 620, 61 SE 463. Providing defective push-pole on switch engine. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Forstall [C. C. A.] 159 F 893. Chain on elevator or carrier attached to street grading machine, allowing carrier to fall on plaintiff's intestate. Jones v. Herrick [Iowa] 118 NW 444. Whether small chain, used to hitch team to cable, was furnished by defendant, chain having parted, causing cable to strike decedent. Martin v. Gould, 103 Minn. 467, 115 NW 276. Plaintiff was working on mast of derrick supported by rope and pulley, and rope parted, allowing him to fall. Westin v. Anderson [Minn.] 119 NW 486. Whether it was defendant's duty to supply lineman, stringing wires, with insulated wires, and whether it did so. De Kallands v. Washtenaw Home Tel. Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 337, 116 NW 564. Employe injured where hook fastened to cable which was being moved sideways (attached to ditching machine) gave way, causing chain to fly back and strike him. Patterson v. Melchior [Minn.] 119 NW 402. Whether defendant was negligent in furnishing plaintiff cant hook with defective handle. Longpre v. Big Blackfoot Mill. Co. [Mont.] 99 P 131. Whether negligence to provide hook bent at right angles instead of at acute angle with which to draw up heavy slide, hook having slipped. Kotera v. American Smelting & Refining Co. [Neb.] 114 NW 945. Bar, shown to be defective, slipped, injuring plaintiff. Faulkner v. Texas, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 765. Evidence sufficient to go to jury which showed that chisel, frayed on top and with defective handle, was furnished, and that plaintiff while striking it was struck in eye by piece of steel. Manning v. Portland Steel Ship Bldg. Co. [Or.] 96 P 545. Hose used by car tank filler broke, causing plaintiff to lose balance and fall off car. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Patrick [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 1097. Defective, slow-burning fuse was furnished, and delayed explosion injured miner. Nustrom v. Shenango Furnace Co., 105 Minn. 140, 117 NW 480. Whether kind of fuse used in mine was reasonably safe for jury, in action for injuries caused by premature explosion, it appearing that fuse was of a kind commonly used, though another kind was being substituted by many mines. Wiita v. Interstate Iron Co., 103 Minn. 303, 115 NW 169. Whether it was negligence to continue to use water gauge of certain kind on steam engine, after several explosions, and after complaint by engineer, and promise of superintendent to substitute another. Nicolas v. Albert Lea L. & P. Co. [Minn.] 119 NW 503. Derrick boom fell suddenly while being operated. Miroslawski v. Ferguson & Lange Foundry Co., 232 Ill. 630, 83 NE 1086. Whether derrick and attachments operated by engine and friction drums, located on barge, used in bridge construction, was reasonably safe. King v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 104 Minn. 397, 116 NW 918. Whether hoisting appnratns, used in digging well, was reasonably safe and suitable. Carlson v. Cucamonga Water Co., 7 Cal. App. 382, 94 P 399. Where conductor was injured in rear end collision of cable cars, and there was evidence that grip of colliding car was defective and would not grip cable, proper to allow case to go to jury. Toncrey v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 129 Mo. App. 596, 107 SW 1091. Plaintiff hurt in coupling cars. Donk Bros. Coal & Coke Co. v. Retzloff, 133 Ill. App. 277. Evidence presented case for jury whether coupler was defective, whether defect ought to have been known to company, and whether its inspection was sufficient. Sprague v. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co., 104 Minn. 58, 116 NW 104. Whether it was negligent to require brakeman to work with turntable to turn heavy engine, which had to be carefully balanced on it in order to allow it to be safely turned, brakeman having no knowledge of that fact. Currie v. Missouri, etc., R. Co. [Tex.] 108 SW 1167. Whether use by defendant of vicious mare, which ran away while plaintiff was being taken home, injuring her was negligence. Henry v. Omaha Packing Co. [Neb.] 115 NW 777.

Evidence Held Not to Show Master Negligent: Automatic coupler. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Brady [C. C. A.] 161 F 719. Spacer used in winding wire on lathe held ordinarily safe. Allen v. Western Elec. Co., 131 Ill. App. 118. Servant injured by piece of breaker in rolling mill. Thomas v. Republic Iron & Steel Co., 140 Ill. App. 258. Gas stove and fixtures used to dry varnish within vat alleged to be defective in allowing gas to escape, explosion of which injured plaintiff, held reasonably safe. Eagle Brew. Co. v. Luckowitz, 138 Ill. App. 131. Valve stem not defective. Carr v. American Locomotive Co. [R. I.] 70 A 196. Employe's fingers caught in pulp press. Burke v. International Paper Co., 112 NYS 893. Construction of freight elevator which fell not shown negligent or defective. Young v. Mason Stable Co. [N. Y.] 86 NE 15. Plaintiff was employed to shovel clay into clay grinding machine, and while so engaged lump of clay fell from bucket in elevating device and struck him on the head, causing him to fall upon machine, which could not have been guarded so as to prevent such injury without reducing its efficiency. Held master not negligent. Bushtis v. Catskill Cement Co., 113 NYS 294. Ordinary sewing machine belt fastened together with hooks, held not dangerous appliance. Nelson-Bethel Clothing Co. v. Pitts [Ky.] 114 SW 331. Wagon used for hauling stone and heavy articles, with low body 18 inches from ground, held suitable for hauling heavy reel of cable wire. Kennedy v. Laclede Gaslight Co. [Mo.] 115 SW 407. Traction motor in mine not shown defective; ran away and operator jumped and was killed. Clinchfield Coal Co. v. Wheelers' Adm'r, 108 Va. 448, 62 SE 269. Ice skid slipped from wagon while plaintiff was loading ice. Lone Star Brew. Co. v. Willie [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 186. Where death of employe resulted from contact between tele- phone and trolley wires, verdict based on absence of guard between wires could not stand without evidence of feasibility of such guard. Conklin v. Central New York Telephone & T. Co., 114 NYS 180. Skids in sawmill being defective, an employe was stationed at the place to see that lumber and timbers were properly conveyed away, thus remedying defect, and for injury caused by his negligence a fellow employe could not recover. Carlson v. Weyerhaeuser Timber Co. [Wash.] 97 P 891. That skids in lumber mill were defective was not breach of master's duty where defect was remedied by employment of servant to take care of timbers which skids did not properly convey. Id. Guards on candy cutting machine held sufficient and all that could practicably be placed in it. National Candy Co. v. Miller [C. C. A.] 161 F 51. To show insufficiency or want of guards on machinery as cause of injury to operator. Greene v. Steere Worsted Mills [R. I.] 69 A 922. Evidence insufficient to take to jury question whether locomotive engine was defective, where it moved while plaintiff was under it engaged in cleaning out ashes. Douda v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 113 NW 272. To show defect in car-projecting bolt which caused injury to switchman. Galusha v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 168 F 333. To show cars between which conductor was crushed were defective because they had bumpers on them. Dermid v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 61 SE 657. Due care by street railway company does not require floors of all cars to be of same height so as to prevent one car from piling up on another in case of collision, thereby crushing motorman between them. Durkee v. Hudson Valley R. Co. [N. Y.] 86 NE 537.

Evidence held to show master negligent: Employe injured while attempting to adjust loose belt. Petrus v. Kerr [Ark.] 112 SW 858. Failure to provide proper appliance and method for shifting belts held negligence. Mathews v. Kerlin [La.] 48 S 103. Defendants negligent in requiring plaintiff to operate machine with defective belt and chargeable with knowledge of increased danger from such defect. Schow v. McCloskey [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 386. Evidence held to sustain finding that exposed and unguarded gearing was dangerous and should have been guarded and that injury to plaintiff was within field of reasonable anticipation. Klatz v. Power & Mfg. Mach. Co., 136 Wis. 107, 116 NW 770. Belt was improperly repaired and defective and broke where repaired, causing plaintiff's injury. Starnes v. Pine Woods Lumber Co. [La.] 47 S 607. Employer continued after notice, to use driving belt so loose that it left pulley and took position dangerous to employes. Krohn v. Smith & Co., 151 Mich. 247, 14 Det. Leg. N. 893, 114 NW 1017. Buzz planer in operating which plaintiff was injured defective and its defect caused injury. Powell v. Gifford, 200 Mass. 546, 86 NE 901. Continuing use of defective strip saw in mill which broke, injuring plaintiff. Rice v. Reese [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 502. Plaintiff, while instructing boy in use of lath trimmer, leaned on box covering saw and box tilted and saw cut arm off. Harrod v. Stout-Greer Lumber Co. [Ark.] 113 SW 39. Guard over saw consisting of box defective, part of it being caught by saw as it vibrated and thrown against plaintiff. Poczerwinski v. Smith Lumber Co., 105 Minn. 305, 117 NW 486. Cross-cut and rip saws maintained above surface of work bench without common appliances to render their use safe. Harney v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 115 NW 836. Saw held in place by old, worn, and defective rope fell on plaintiff, operator. Ogilvie v. Conway Lumber Co. [S. C.] 61 SE 511. Recovery sustained where girl of 16 was injured operating mangle with defective guard. Mansell v. Conrad, 125 App. Div. 634, 109 NYS 1179. Plaintiff struck in eye by flying steel sliver from hammer or chisel while holding rail which was being cut. Texas Mexican R. Co. v. Trifierina [Tex. Civ. App.] 111 SW 239. Boy of 16 was given defective sledge and burred prosser pins to work with on boiler tubes, and chip from pin struck him in eye. Pelow v. Oil Well Supply Co. [N. Y.] 86 NE 511. Plaintiff, holding chisel, struck by piece of steel chipped from sledge wielded by helper, sledge being plainly defective. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Quinlan, 77 Kan. 126, 93 P 602. Weight of dummy elevator fell down shaft. Winkle v. George B. Peck Dry Goods Co., 132 Mo. App. 686, 112 SW 1026. Death caused by sudden drop of elevator. Herlihy v. Little, 200 Mass. 154, 85 NE 884. Where air hoist worked by ropes had been changed during plaintiff's absence, and he was not advised, and in using it pulled wrong rope, causing it to go up suddenly and jar off its load, negligence being also alleged as to its quick action and absence of safety device. Wilgora v. St. Paul Foundry Co. [Minn.] 119 NW 835. Evidence, if believed, sufficient to show die machine defective, in that upper die would fall of itself. Gerding v. Standard Pressed Steel Co., 220 Pa. 229, 69 A 672. Injuries caused by breaking of rotten guy rope. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Beale [Ind. App.] 86 NE 421. If rope sling broke when subjected to ordinary strain, jury would be warranted in finding that it was unsafe at time of use. Doherty v. Booth, 210 Mass. 522, 96 NE 945. Servant's death caused by defective joint negligently fitted into steam pipe. De Witt v. Floriston Pulp & Paper Co., 7 Cal. App. 774, 96 P 397. Recovery warranted where injured employe was handed chain by master mechanic with which to take out armature, chain having broken owing to defect with notice of which defendant was chargeable. Eddington v. Union R. Co., 129 NYS 819. Finding of negligence warranted where telephone lineman received shock owing to presence of copper wires in tape with which he and another were making measurements. Murphy v. Hudson River Tel. Co., 112 NYS 149. Company liable for injuries to employe while blocking up turntable, which was rotted so that it had to be propped up to allow cars to pass over it, its condition being known to company and its foreman. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Bailey [Tex. Civ. App.] 115 SW 691. Switch stand through defective operation of which plaintiff was injured. Chicago, Wilmington & Vermillion Coal Co. v. Brooks, 138 Ill. App. 34. Locomotive engine; brakeman injured between engine and car. Rudquist v. Empire Lumber Co., 104 Minn. 505, 116 NW 1019. Defective boiler exploded, injuring fireman. Taylor v. White [Tex. Civ. App.] 113 SW 554. Drawheads on cars defective, allowing cars to come together, killing conductor while making coupling. Kansas City So. R. Co. v. Herrie [Ark.] 112 SW 967. Company negligent where tender and engine pulled apart owing injuries which, in the exercise of ordinary care, ought to have been foreseen and guarded against.[14] The duty to provide reasonably safe and suitable appliances cannot be delegated so as to relieve the master from responsibility for its proper performance.[15]

The master, having provided reasonably safe and suitable machinery and appliances, is not liable for injuries resulting from their negligent use by an employe,[16] or from their unauthorized[17] use for a purpose for which they were not intended,[18] or from failure to use appliances which have been provided,[19] or from the negligent to defect in coupling apparatus and fireman was killed. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Snow [Tex. Civ. App.] 115 SW 631. Employe killed between tender and loaded car owing to defect in coupling. Gauthier v. Wood [Wash.] 94 P 654. Negligence to allow step on engine tender to become worn and bent. Arkansas Cent. R. Co. v. Workman [Ark.] 112 SW 1082. Negligence for railroad company to have defective apron between engine and tender and to have it defectively connecting two. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Adams, 42 Tex. Civ. App. 274, 114 SW 453. Injuries to fireman caused by falling between engine and tender due to absence of apron which worked out of place by reason of defective bolt. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Mote [Ga.] 62 SE 164.

14. Only obligation to guard machinery is against such dangers as ought reasonably to be foreseen; no such duty owed servant who leaves place of work. Schmonske v. Asphalt Ready Roofing Co., 114 NYS 87. Master is not liable where servant is injured through carelessness or thoughtlessness by machine with which he is not required to work, even though it is defective. Harper v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Ky.] 115 SW 198. Large roller of machine was not covered, and gearing at ends could not be. Employe slipped and had fingers caught in this roller, an accident which was unusual and unlikely. Master not liable, since only practical guard might not have prevented such accident. Martin v. Walker & Williams Mfg. Co., 113 NYS 78. Dump car, which worked perfectly, held not defective in construction because cross arm came down too close to plank on which workmen were, where in operating car workmen would naturally be at safe distance from where cross-arm descended. Hanson v. Superior Mfg. Co., 136 Wis. 617, 118 NW 180. There could be no recovery for injuries to boy's hand in knives of pug mill on ground that nozzle on hose he was holding was defective, causing sudden spurt of water which carried his hand into knives, since such an accident could not reasonably have been foreseen. Forquer v. Slater Brick Co., 37 Mont. 426, 97 P 843.

15. Bort v. Quadt [Cal. App.] 96 P 815; Heck v. International Smokeless Powder Co. [N. J. Law] 71 A 150; Carr v. American Locomotive Co. [R. I.] 70 A 196. Duty to furnish reasonably safe jointer continuing and not discharged by simply employing man to keep it in condition. Bigum v. St. Paul Sash, Door & Lumber Co. [Minn.] 119 NW 481. Complaint alleging that defective rope was an "appliance" furnished by master not demurrable on ground that selection of it was by servant. Bart v. Quadt [Cal. App.] 96 P 815. Where sledges were placed at helper's disposal by foreman, selection of one by fellow-servant did not relieve master for injury to plaintiff. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Quinlan, 77 Kan. 126, 93 P 632. Employer liable where employe was struck by flying chip from chisel, though fellow-servant selected chisel under orders from foreman. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Walker, 41 Ind. App. 588, 84 NE 730.

16. Master not liable for misuse or negligent use of instrumentalities by employes. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Hamilton [Ind. App.] 85 NE 1044; Wyckoff v. Birch [N. J. Err. & App.] 71 A 243. Where an appliance has been demonstrated to be proper and safe, servant cannot recover for injuries caused by negligent operation in violation of instructions, danger being obvious. Great Western Sugar Co. v. Pray [C. C. A.] 158 F 756. Master not liable for motorman's injuries sustained in collision, where no defect in car brakes or apparatus was shown, but he failed to have sand box in order and could not use it. Brady v. North Jersey St. R. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 71 A 238. No recovery where no defect in gas making machine was shown but it appeared plaintiff opened both valves at once, having been warned against so doing. Mohn v. Pennsylvania Steel Co. [Pa.] 71 A 16. Master not required to provide brakes on motor to guard against employe's own negligence. Clinchfield Coal Co. v. Wheeler's Adm'r, 108 Va. 448, 62 SE 269. Defendant not bound to see that ice skid used by plaintiff was properly adjusted to his wagon. Lone Star Brew. Co. v. Willie [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 186. Master not liable for negligent use by servants of skids supplied for unloading rails from car. Indianapolis Trac. & Ter. Co. v. Kinney [Ind.] 85 NE 954.

17. Men employed by defendant had used tape to measure holes and poles on ground with knowledge of foremen, but it had not been used to throw over wires to measure standing poles. Held such use was unauthorized and defendant not liable for death caused by shock of current through the tape so used. Donahue v. Northwestern Tel. Exch. Co., 103 Minn. 432, 115 NW 279.

18. Where an employe, as prank, turned air hose on fellow-servant, causing his death, master was not liable on theory that air hose was dangerous and ought to have been guarded. Ballard's Adm'x v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 33 Ky. L. R. 301, 423, 110 SW 296. Where railroad company was not shown to have actual or implied knowledge of customary use by brakeman of standards on flat cars for handholds, it could not be charged with negligence in failing to provide standards suitable and safe for that purpose. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Murray, 85 Ark. 600, 109 SW 549.

19. Master not liable where fall of frame to support drop hammer was due to failure selection by an employe of such as are defective, others, reasonably safe, having been provided.[20]

Temporary appliances; scaffolds, staging and the like. See 10 C. L. 716—In respect to temporary appliances, such as scaffolds and the like, built and used by the employes in the ordinary course of their duties, the master fully performs his duty by supplying a sufficient quantity of suitable material,[21] and he is not liable for injuries caused by negligent construction or failure to use the suitable materials provided;[22] but if the master undertakes to furnish a completed structure or directs the servant to use such structure, he owes him the same degree of care with respect to its safety as he does with respect to other appliances.[23] of fellow-servants to use two guy ropes provided by master. Laragy v. East Jersey Pipe Co. [N. J. Law] 68 A 1073.

20. Where master has furnished a sufficient supply of suitable material or appliances, he is not liable for injuries resulting from the selection of an unsafe one by a fellow-servant. Reeder v. Crystal Carbonate Lime Co., 129 Mo. App. 107, 107 SW 1016. Where servants were ordered to do simple work, and left to select tools, master was not liable for negligence in furnishing tools. Smith v. Long Island R. Co., 114 NYS 228. Employe selected defective blow-off pipe with which to change water in locomotive boiler when good ones were available. No recovery for his death caused by such obvious defect. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Stone, 77 Kan. 642, 95 P 1049. If master furnished several emery wheels for use on particular machine, error of judgment on part of foreman who selected defective one would be negligence of fellow-servant only; but if only one actually used was available, master would be liable. Huber v. Whale Creek Iron Works, 125 App. Div. 184, 109 NYS 177.

21. Where men constructed staging to be used by them, master would have performed duty by furnishing sufficient quantity of suitable and reasonably safe materials. Donahue v. Buck & Co., 197 Mass. 550, 83 NE 1090. Master owes duty of due care to select materials for scaffold reasonably safe and suitable. Barkley v. South Atlantic Waste Co., 147 N. C. 585, 61 SE 565. Where workmen put up staging, master liable where fall was due to defective material supplied by him, sufficient good material not being at hand. Donahue v. Buck & Co., 197 Mass. 550, 83 NE 1090. Evidence sufficient to warrant finding that board supplied for use in making staging was defective and unsafe and that an inspection would have disclosed its condition. Dunleavy v. Sullivan, 200 Mass. 29, 85 NE 866. Where defendant agreed to and accepted plan of construction of staging suggested by employes, it was his duty to furnish suitable materials for it, and was liable for injury resulting from unsafe materials supplied by him. Id.

22. If master furnishes suitable materials for construction of appliances to be put together and used by employes, he is not liable for negligent construction. Bort v. Quadt [Cal. App.] 96 P 815. When employes themselves were required to build staging, master was not liable for its fall unless he supplied unsafe materials. Stevens v. Strout, 200 Mass. 432, 86 NE 907. Employer not liable where he supplied sufficient proper materials for scaffold and it was constructed by journeymen plasterers, according to rules of their union, before plaintiff came to work, he having fallen through board which broke owing to knot in it. Finan v. Sutch, 220 Pa. 379, 69 A 817. Planks laid over terra cotta floor of building in course of construction for workmen to walk on held only temporary appliance which it was employes' duty to look after. Master not liable where employe stepped on end of plank over hole and fell. Eisner v. Horton, 200 Mass. 507, 86 NE 892. No duty of master to furnish platform being shown, and, master having furnished suitable material, no recovery for injury to employe caused by negligent selection by him of defective planks. Wynne v. Continental Asphalt Paving Co., 112 NYS 1024. Master furnished good materials to support frame for drop hammer, and intended to use two guy ropes, and frame was so supported at first. One guy was removed, how, not shown, and frame fell. Master not liable. Laragy v. East Jersey Pipe Co. [N. J. Law] 68 A 1073. Where the master simply directs that a scaffold be built, leaving its construction and selection to skillful servants, and provides sufficient material, he is not liable for injuries to a fellow-servant of those who built it for defects therein. Cheatham v. Hogan [Wash.] 97 P 499.

23. Care required in building scaffolds needed in work is such as ordinarily prudent men would use under like circumstances. Murch Bros. Const. Co. v. Hays [Ark.] 114 SW 697. Where staging was furnished by defendant, latter was liable for injuries caused by its collapse, though it was built by another employe. Driscoll v. Humes, Cruise & Smiley Co. [R. I.] 69 A 766. Derrick which had been used several months in same place held permanent appliance, not one put up as used by employes. Watson v. New York Cont. Co., 111 NYS 277. Principle that master is not liable where he provides suitable materials, and servants select unsafe ones, not applicable where selection of timber for skid was made by superintendent of works. Heck v. International Smokeless Powder Co. [N. J. Law] 71 A 150. If master directs an employe to use a scaffold built by other employes, he adopts scaffold as his own and becomes liable for injuries to such employe for defects in its construction. Cheatham v. Hogan [Wash.] 97 P 499. Evidence held to warrant recovery where scaffold was built by employes in course of construction of building and used by them, and plaintiff was directed to take it down, and it fell when he went upon it for that purpose, he having had no part in its construc-

Holdings under the New York statute, requiring persons who procure work to be done in which scaffolds or similar appliances are necessary to provide safe appliances for such work are given in the note.[24]

Places for work.[See 10 C. L. 716]—It is the duty of the master to use ordinary care to provide a place of work which is reasonably safe,[25] considering the nature of the business and the character of the work,[26] and the intended uses and purposes of the place provided.[27] This duty extends only to the place provided by the master for the doing of the work [28] and in which the employes are required to be while in pertion. Id. Proof that boards used in scaffold were partly burned and knotty made case for jury. Barkley v. South Atlantic Waste Co., 147 N. C. 585, 61 SE 565.

24. Laws 1897, p. 467, c. 415, § 18, providing that safe scaffolds, etc., must be provided for use of employes engaged in building, repairing, etc., any house, building or structure, held to apply where plaintiff was repairing passenger car and fell by reason of defective platform on staging used in work. Caddy v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 125 App. Div. 681, 110 NYS 162. Section 18 in effect makes a scaffold a "place" of work, so far as master's duty with reference to it is concerned. Pettersen v. Rahtjen's American Composition Co., 111 NYS 329. Where action was based on this section, and court had not charged on duty of inspection, error to refuse requested charge that master would not be liable for defect not discoverable by inspection. Id. Section 18 does not make master insurer. Id. Under statute, employer is bound to furnish safe scaffold. O'Donnell v. John H. Parker Co., 125 App. Div. 475, 109 NYS 875. Statute requires furnishing of "safe" scaffold, not merely one which is "reasonably safe." Bower v. Holbrook, 125 App. Div. 684, 110 NYS 164. Duty under statute is continuous; scaffold must be kept safe; and master is liable for negligence of one entrusted with duty of furnishing or maintaining it in safe condition. Id. Held that foreman was negligent, knowing of condition of defective plank which broke. Id. Recovery sustained for death of painter of iron work of subway who fell by reason of defective plank in scaffold provided for his use. Id. Steel frame building was in course of construction, and men were erecting derrick with which to raise steel beams, and to reach ropes of derrick were told to make scaffold with two horses and plank. This was 30 feet from ground. Statute held applicable. Warren v. Post, 128 App. Div. 572, 112 NYS 960. Duty imposed by § 18 is absolute and nondelegable; master liable though defective scaffold put up by plaintiff and another plank being defective. Id. Scaffold prepared for plaintiff, with horses and planks, to be used by him in putting up fixtures to hang steam coils on, was within statute, and recovery for injury due to its defective condition was warranted. Tracey v. Williams, 111 NYS 114. Where patent ladder scaffold fell or tipped over with plaintiff, painter, whether defendant was negligent in furnishing contrivance not reasonably safe was for jury. Schmitt v. Rohn, 110 NYS 1086.

25. Burnside v. Peterson, 43 Colo. 382, 96 P 256; Bernheimer Bros. v. Bager [Md.] 70 A 91; Koerner v. St. Louis Car Co., 209 Mo. 141, 107 SW 481; Kotera v. American Smelting & Refining Co. [Neb.] 114 NW 945; Millen v. Pacific Bridge Co. [Or.] 95 P 196. Master is under duty to exercise reasonable care to provide servant a safe place in which to work, and not to subject or expose him to unnecessary risks. Lohman v. Swift & Co., 105 Minn. 148, 117 NW 418. Though fact that work is necessarily attended with some danger must be considered, yet it is master's duty to use reasonable care to see that servant is not unnecessarily exposed to danger in doing his work. Yarber v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 235 Ill. 589, 85 NE 928. Where servant is put to work in excavation under master's direction and control, it is latter's duty to see that place is and remains reasonably safe. Hilgar v. Walla Walla [Wash.] 97 P 498.

26. Master owes duty of providing reasonably safe place and maintaining it in that condition, having regard to character of services required and dangers to be apprehended by reasonably prudent man. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Carter [Ky.] 112 SW 904. The master is under duty to furnish a safe place to work for a servant constantly employed in close proximity to strong electric currents, so confining and controlling the electricity that it will not escape and injure the servant in the discharge of his duty. Miller v. Chicago & Oak Park El. R. Co., 132 Ill. App. 41. Duty of telephone company to see that wires of another company are not maintained so near its own as to cause danger to employes. Drown v. New England Tel. & T. Co. [Vt.] 70 A 599. Company maintaining private telephone system was under duty of keeping poles reasonably safe for use of workmen required to use them. Jackson Fibre Co. v. Meadows [C. C. A.] 159 F 110. Master owed duty to properly insulate wires maintained over roof on which employes were required to work. Colusa Parret Min. & Smelting Co. v. Monahan [C. C. A.] 162 F 276.

27. Master not liable where place is reasonably safe for intended purpose. International, etc., R. Co. v. Rieden [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 930, 107 SW 661.

28. Ordinary rule as to place held inapplicable where servants were sent to do work on another's premises, where such work was not usually done. Fairbanks, Morse & Co. v. Walker [C. C. A.] 160 F 896. Ladder furnished employe, which he was expected to use in performing his duties, held his "place" of work. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Steele [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 171. "Bridge" used on stage in presenting opera, put together by stage hands, and used in one act, was not a "place" but an "appliance" used by member of chorus, plaintiff. Hahn v. Conried Metropolitan Opera Co., 111 NYS 161. Brick wall in course of construction held not "place" of work of brickformance of their duties,[29] or which they customarily use with his knowledge or acquiescence,[30] and he is not liable for injuries received by a servant while in a place where he was not required or had no right to be,[31] the servant being then a mere licensee or trespasser.[32] The duty to provide a reasonably safe place is continuous [33] and cannot be delegated so as to relieve the master from responsibility for its nonperformance.[34] Whether due care has been exercised by the master in this respect is usually a question of fact.[35] layer; scaffold on which he stood was place. Ripp v. Fuchs, 113 NYS 361.

29. Duty extends only to premises where employe is required to work. Harper v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Ky.] 115 SW 198.

30. Harris v. Det Farenede Dampskibselskab [N. J. Err. & App.] 70 A 155.

31. Freight mover left his place to get shovel which foreman had told him he was getting and fell into coal hole. No recovery. Harris v. Det Farenede Dampskibselskab [N. J. Err. & App.] 70 A 155.

32. When a servant leaves the place of work provided without cause or authority, he becomes a mere licensee or trespasser. Harris v. Det Farenede Dampskibselskab [N. J. Err. & App.] 70 A 155.

33. Duty as to place continuous; warning should be given as to unusual dangers. Stephen v. Duffy, 136 Ill. App. 572. Duty is violated where the place is allowed to become unsafe or is rendered dangerous without notice to employes. Koerner v. St. Louis Car Co., 209 Mo. 141, 107 SW 481. Duty to provide safe place is continuous and must be performed when conditions change, owing to nature of work. Pennsylvania Steel Co. v. Jacobsen [C. C. A.] 157 F 656. Where place may become dangerous, and this fact ought reasonably to be foreseen, reasonable care to prevent accident must be used. Palmijiana v. Hyde-McFarlin Co., 110 NYS 368. If place becomes unsafe by reason of danger which master knows or ought to know, he is under duty to use care to prevent it, regardless of its source. Leazotte v. Jackson Mfg. Co., 74 N. H. 480, 69 A 640.

34. Lorts & Frey Planing Mill Co. v. Weil [Ky.] 113 SW 474; Weinert v. Merchants' & Shippers' Warehouse Co., 112 NYS 123; Palmijiana v. Hyde-McFarlin Co., 110 NYS 368. Duty to see that revolving shaft in dressing room was kept covered nondelegable. Flynn v. Prince, Collins & Marston Co., 198 Mass. 224, 84 NE 321. Railway company responsible for neglect of employe charged with duty of keeping track in repair and safe condition. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Cleland [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 122. Master not relieved where prop was caused to fall on plaintiff by acts of independent contractor. Bernheimer Bros. v. Boger [Md.] 70 A 91. Nonassignable duty of railroads to provide reasonably safe place of work extends to all tracks used by employes and cannot be assigned to an independent contractor as to any part of it so as to relieve the company from liability for its nonperformance. Vickers v. Kanawha & W. V. R. Co. [W. Va.] 63 SE 367. Independent contractor in doing his work suspended ropes from derrick over track and they were allowed to sag so that stack of engine caught one and pulled down another, which knocked plaintiff off a car. Held company was liable for contractor's negligence. Vickers v. Kanawha & W. V. R. Co. [W. Va.] 63 SE 367. Though company had no actual notice of presence of ropes over track in time to prevent injury, yet notice to independent contractor chargeable as vice-principal with master's duties was notice to company. Id. Railroad company could not escape liability for death of trainman caused by collision with rock on track by reason of fact that independent contractor engaged in excavation near track had thrown rock there and failed to give proper warning of blast and resulting obstruction. Walton v. Miller's Adm'x [Va.] 63 SE 458.

35. Question held for jury: Whether master was negligent in requiring employe to stand on two horizontal bars, 12 inches apart, 8 feet from floor, to haul up slide weighing 200 pounds, by means of iron hook, no safeguards to prevent falling being provided. Kotera v. American Smelting & Refining Co. [Neb.] 114 NW 945. Passageway in mill was cluttered with rolls of cloth, owing to breakdown of machine, and employe, ordered to hurry, caught foot in passing and was injured. Perrier v. Dunn Worsted Mills [R. I.] 71 A 796. Whether passageway used by mason's tender in hauling material was negligently constructed, planks not being securely fastened. Johnson v. Lindahl [Minn.] 118 NW 1009. Where heavy steel plate was allowed to stand on edge in passageway year or more, finally falling on plaintiff. Riley v. Cudahy Packing Co. [Neb.] 117 NW 765. Evidence of negligence sufficient to go to jury where narrow passage between engine pit and other machinery was improperly guarded, and minor was killed by getting caught in machinery. Lunde v. Cudahy Packing Co. [Iowa] 117 NW 1063. Plaintiff, domestic servant, stepped on trap-door, which was not kept in place by hinges or other means, and it tipped up and caused her to fall into cellar. Burnside v. Peterson, 43 Colo. 382, 96 P 256. Employe fell through hole in platform on which he was working. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Carter [Ky.] 112 SW 904. Chambermaid fell because of foot catching in hole in linoleum on floor in room where she was at work. Messir v. McLean [Wash.] 98 P 106. Only duty with reference to basement of building in course of construction was to light it sufficiently so that servant using ordinary care would not be exposed to danger. Whether it was sufficiently lighted for jury, evidence being conflicting. Bausert v. Thompson-Starrett Co., 110 NYS 521. Whether defendant was negligent in allowing windmill platform, on which plaintiff was required to go to oil mill, to become out of repair. Miller v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 103 Minn. 443, 115 NW 269. Whether elevator shaft was properly guarded by barriers, etc. Rath v. Buettel Bros. Co. [Iowa] 119 NW 166. Servant injured by fall of smokestack he was assisting in moving from burned building. Binyon v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 138. Employe ordered to work within reach of building being dismantled, which fell upon him. American Window Glass Co. v. Noe [C. C. A.] 158 F 777. "Manhole" made of concrete, was being lowered into hole and fell apart and injured plaintiff, digging to allow it to sink; negligence in failing to properly brace concrete structure. Ward v. Edison Elec. Illum. Co., 124 App. Div. 22, 108 NYS 608. Pile of lumber fell on plaintiff. Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 130 Mo. App. 128, 108 SW 1128; Bryant Lumber Co. v. Stastney [Ark.] 112 SW 740. Hay chute left uncovered in dimly lighted barn loft. Moellman v. Gieze-Henselmeier Lumber Co. [Mo. App.] 114 SW 1023. Whether coal bin where employe fell over rope was unsafe due to insufficient light. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Jackson [Tex. Civ. App.] 108 SW 483. Whether owner of vessel should have taken further precautions to guard hole made by servants of independent contractor in making repairs. Mella v. Northern S. S. Co., 162 F 499. Plaintiff directed to open flume gate to let water through, and foreman suddenly opened gate from inside, letting water down on plaintiff. Harris v. Washington Portland Cement Co. [Wash.] 95 P 84. Inexperienced man, put to work shoveling where ground was uneven, stepped into concealed hole. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Romans [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 157. Whether contractor was negligent in mode used to explode dynamite in blasting, as to an employe engaged in loading steam shovel and killed by explosion of charge which did not explode with others. Stephen v. Duffy, 237 Ill. 549, 86 NE 1082. Whether master was negligent in putting deceased to work in sewer trench, and not withdrawing him while loaded blast was being removed, which exploded. Polo v. Palisade Const. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 70 A 161. Evidence for jury where prop which held adjoining wall fell on employe working in excavation for new building. Bernheimer Bros. v. Bager [Md.] 70 A 91. Whether place of work, excavation, was properly safe guarded by timbering, and was reasonably safe, bank having caved in. Sonnenberg v. Southern Pac. Co. [C. C. A.] 159 F 884. Earth fell on employe at work in excavation. Hilgar v. Walla Walla [Wash.] 97 P 498. Case for jury where it was shown that deceased was killed by explosion of gas in manhole in defendant's plant, and use of defective gas pipes could be found. Seager v. Solvay Process Co., 114 NYS 591.

Evidence held sufficient to warrant finding of negligence: Coal shoveler on dock injured by fall of brace intended to hold timbers in place. Lipsky v. Reiss Coal Co., 136 Wis. 307, 117 NW 803. Mill foreman fell into pit, planks over which had been removed without his knowledge. Knox v. American Rolling Mill Corp., 236 Ill. 437, 86 NE 90. Master unnecessarily left openings in dust catcher in foundry, where previous explosions had occurred, as result of which an explosion occurred, killing servant. Jenco v. Illinois Steel Co., 233 Ill. 301, 84 NE 273. Evidence warranted finding of negligence where boy of 14 was struck by piece of cloth in factory, he being employed to watch cloth and required to stand on boxes for the purpose. Lane v. Manchester Mills [N. H.] 71 A 629. Revolving shaft in dressing room was left unboxed, and hooks were placed near it for use of employes, and shaft was practically noiseless when running and was usually boxed. Flynn v. Prince, Collins & Marston Co., 198 Mass. 224, 84 NE 321. Master liable where vat of hot liquid was left uncovered, into which plaintiff slipped. Gilbert v. Elk Tanning Co., 221 Pa. 176, 70 A 719. Maintaining box containing hot water and acid, with loose cover, near time check window where men went. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Fortner [Ky.] 113 SW 847. Hot water on floor not obvious to servant renders master liable. Grubic v. Western Tube Co. 139 Ill. App. 470. Iron moulder injured by molten iron spilled by another moulder who tripped over obstacle on floor. Railroad Supply Co. v. Klofski, 138 Ill. App. 468. Piece of lumber fell on plaintiff's foot. Merchants' & Miners' Transp. Co. v. Corcoran [Ga. App.] 62 SE 130. If lumber was negligently piled in mill so that it was liable to fall at any time on employes, this would constitute negligence. Rigby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 130 Mo. App. 128, 108 SW 1128. Employe hauling concrete under platform injured by fall of plank, being moved by servants. Kroeger v. Marsh Bridge Co. [Iowa] 116 NW 125. Defendant liable where plaintiff was ordered to work under defective staging, without warning, and loose plank fell on her. Vaisbord v. Nashua Mfg. Co., 74 N. H. 470, 69 A 520. Allowing piece of sheet metal, placed to protect machinery from rain through leaky roof by servant, to remain there after notice, it being liable to fall when machinery was operated. Kolodrianski v. American Locomotive Co. [R. I.] 69 A 505. Telephone booth so arranged that it cannot be opened from inside is not reasonably safe. Georgetown Water, Gas, Elec. & P. Co. v. Forwood [Ky.] 113 SW 112. Freight elevator with hole in floor 4 inches by 12 or 16 inches not reasonably safe. Kentucky Wagon Mfg. Co. v. Duganics [Ky.] 113 SW 128. Barrel rolled down slight incline in floor, through open elevator door, down upon plaintiff. Held defect in floor and failure to guard door was cause of injury. Moriarity v. Schwarzchild & Sulzberger Co., 132 Mo. App. 650, 112 SW 1034. Plaintiff injured by fall of telegraph pole on which he was working. Southwestern Tel. & T. Co. v. Tucker [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 481. Brick wall in course of construction fell on employe. Nelson Vitrifield Brick Co. v. Mussulman [Kan.] 99 P 236. Engine room was insufficiently supplied with electric light bulbs, and one bulb had to be used in different places, and in changing it engineer, plaintiff, received shock and burns owing to defective wiring and insulation. Aga v. Harbach [Iowa] 117 NW 669. Hole in roof covered with tar paper. Springfield Elec. L. & P. Co. v. Calvert, 134 Ill. App. 285. Complaint held to show cause of action where plaintiff fell through trap-door while inspecting warehouse. Taylor v. Palmer & Co., 121 La. 710, 46 S 703. Plaintiff, member of steam shovel crew, was ordered to clean track, and while so engaged was injured by chunk of frozen dirt being swung against him without warning. Raitila v. Consumers' Ore Co. [Minn.] 119 NW 490. Warehouse employe injured by fall of pile of sacks of flour, placed before he came to work, no warning of its dangerous condition being given. Weinert v. Merchants' & Shippers' Warehouse Co., 112 NYS 123. Workman killed by explosion of calcium carbide caused by plumber allowing water to run from pipe which he was repairing on to the carbide. Held master's duty to see that pipes were drained before repairs were undertaken, and this duty could not be delegated. Charron v. Union Carbide Co., 151 Mich. 687, 15 Det. Leg. N. 154, 115 NW 718. Trench into which plaintiff was ordered to go was not properly braced, and that its condition was discoverable by master by exercise of ordinary care. McCoy v. Northern Heating & Elec. Co., 104 Minn. 234, 116 NW 488. In blasting, one of three charges did not explode. Contrary to custom, no investigation was made, and when hole was drilled next day charge exploded, throwing rock on plaintiff below. Bjorklund v. Gray [Minn.] 118 NW 59. Defendants allowed box of dynamite to remain uncovered near tents occupied by men in which stoves were used, box having caught fire and exploded dynamite. Anderson v. Smith, 104 Minn. 40, 115 NW 743. Same holding; plaintiff injured by same explosion. Froberg v. Smith [Minn.] 118 NW 57. Master liable, having failed to locate and remove unexploded charges of dynamite exploding and causing death of cranesman. Stephen v. Duffy, 136 Ill. App. 572. Defendant was engaged in excavating cut across street and steam shovel came in contract with and cut gas main, from which gas escaped to fire box of engine, causing explosion and death of common laborer. Palmijiana v. Hyde-McFarlin Co., 110 NYS 368. Evidence ample to show negligence of foreman in failing to perform duty to locate and take out unexploded charges, where plaintiff in quarry was sent out to pick and shovel shale among hidden, unexploded charges of dynamite, of whose existence he was ignorant. Kansas Buff Brick & Mfg. Co. v. Bentley. 77 Kan. 780, 95 P 1134. Pulley through which ran cable used to haul logs was so changed that cable got caught on root and then swung against plaintiff when root gave way. Howland v. Standard Mill. & Logging Co. [Wash.] 96 P 686.

Holdings applying these principles to the duty of railroad companies with respect to their tracks, right of way, and premises,[36] and to the duties owed by owners or operators of mines [37] to their employes, are collected in the notes.

Evidence held insufficient to warrant finding of negligence: Scaffold. Rausa v. Bartzen, 140 Ill. App. 555. Plaintiff, engaged in washing floor of reservoir, was struck by chisel which dropped from roof where carpenters were shingling, doing their work in ordinary way. Taylor v. Washington Mill. Co. [Wash.] 97 P 243. Servant was hit by brick alleged to have fallen upon him while at work in constructing building. William Grace Co. v. Gallagher, 140 Ill. App. 603. Where servant was killed by falling into shaft-pit through alleged slippery condition of floor. Steffen v. Illinois Steel Co., 140 Ill. App. 551. Allowing place of work of plaintiff to become dangerous by reason of rock or slag being scattered on platform, plaintiff not having shown any condition such as would render probable an accident such as occurred. Cook v. U. S. Smelting Co. [Utah] 97 P 28. Vats, in which gas burners were, not unsafe. Eagle Brew. Co. v. Luckowitz, 138 Ill. App. 131. Where servant was injured in climbing from an unlighted basement in a building under construction in absence of showing that he exercised due care, master not liable. Falkeneau Const. Co. v. Ginley, 131 Ill. App. 399. Plaintiff was injured by falling timber dislodged by ascending bucket while working at bottom of sewer ditch. Evidence held not to show negligence of defendant in construction or arrangement of timbering. City of Chicago v. Enright, 138 Ill. App. 179. Where wires had only been up short time and were in good condition shortly before explosion, defect in them was not shown as cause of explosion of powder. Western Coal & Min. Co. v. Garner [Ark.] 112 SW 392. Quarryman injured by falling stone. Gince v. Beland [R. I.] 69 A 921.

36. Railroads: A railroad company may construct its road and other structures according to its own views, and solve its engineering problems in its own way, but cannot, without liability, violate rules of law governing care which must be taken for safety of passengers and employes. Clay v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 104 Minn. 1, 115 NW 949. No cause of action can be based on failure to block frogs. York v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Ark.] 110 SW 803. Use of unblocked frogs is not negligence. Donegan v. Baltimore & N. Y. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 165 F 869. Failure to block switches is negligence if they are not reasonably safe. Matthews v. New Orleans, etc., R. Co. [Miss.] 47 S 657. Company liable if injuries to engineer were caused by failure of company to have switch in proper position so that he could safely perform his duties. Trimmier v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co. [S. C.] 62 SE 209. Whether track construction, filling in level in center and leaving ties to project at ends, was negligent; jury could consider customary construction. Hall v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 116 NW 113. Track defective where engine tender left in, causing brakeman to jump and sustain injury. Laughy v. Bird & Wells Lumber Co., 136 Wis. 301, 117 NW 796. Railroad company could not be held negligent where signalman stepped on rotten end of tie, fell, was knocked senseless, and injured by train, since track was safe for running of trains, and such use by flagman, and such injury, was not reasonably to have been foreseen. International, etc. R. Co. v. Rieden [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 930, 107 SW 661. Brakeman, trying to catch and stop runaway cars, stumbled on defective cross tie and was run over by cars. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Cleland [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 122. Duty of railroad company to engineer with respect to road bed, washed out by rain, laid down in instructions to jury. Jennett v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 162 F 392. Brakeman killed while trying to uncouple car by stepping into trench dug along track for purpose of putting in target signals. Held company chargeable with negligence, though independent contractor did the digging of the trench. Southern R. Co. v. Newton's Adm'r, 108 Va. 114, 60 SE 625. Where brakeman was injured owing to defect in embankment where he alighted to turn switch, proof of customary use of the place was admissible, since, whether it was private ground or part of the right of way company owed employes duty to keep it safe if used by them customarily. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Reardon [C. C. A.] 159 F 366. Switch tender on electric tram road in mine slipped through opening on footboard of motor as car struck projecting rails of side track and had leg injured. Sundvall v. Interstate Iron Co., 104 Minn. 499, 116 NW 1118. Duty of railroad company to brakeman to maintain spur track as well as main track in reasonably safe condition; and if ballasting was required in exercise of ordinary care, failure to ballast was negligence. Roenfranz v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 116 NW 714. Company negligent when it allowed rails of spur track to become four inches out of alignment, causing derailment of car. Dortch v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [N. C.] 62 SE 616. Railroad company is under duty of ordinary care to maintain yards, tracks, appliances, etc., in switching yards reasonably safe for purpose of switching and coupling and uncoupling cars. International, etc., R. Co. v. Rieden [Tex. Civ. App.] 20 Tex. Ct. Rep. 930, 107 SW 661. Negligence for company to allow depression to exist in road bed in switching yards. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Mangan [Ark.] 112 SW 168. Where fireman in locomotive was injured by reason of locomotive dropping through defective bridge, evidence that bridge had given way before, and had been rebuilt in its former shape without being strengthened, and that it showed sinking at time of accident similar to first, held sufficient to sustain charge of negligence. McCabe & Steen Const. Co. v. Wilson, 209 U. S. 275, 52 Law. Ed. 788. Negligence for railroad company to maintain bridge so low as to endanger brakemen on cars using due care. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Rowsey's Adm'r, 108 Va. 632, 62 SE 363. Railroads have no common-law duty to fence their right of way, and failure to fence violates no duty owed employes. Gill v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 160 F 260. Neither common law nor Act Tenn. 1891, p. 220, c. 101, §§ 2, 3, making railroad companies liable for killing stock if right of way is not fenced, makes it duty of company as to employes to fence in tracks; and there is no liability for death of employe in collision with stock because of want of fence. Gill v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 165 F 438. Not negligence for defendant to maintain freight platform to conform to curved track, so that ends of passing car were 20 inches and center 5½ inches from platform, it not being expected that men would attempt to work between car and platform. Haring v. Great Northern R. Co. [Wis.] 119 NW 325. Whether defendant was negligent in maintaining freight platform too close to track, so as to be unsafe for employes riding on cars, for jury. Clay v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 104 Minn. 1, 115 NW 949. Failure to light platform where brakemen alight, or to allow 14-inch space between platform and cars, held not negligence. Arkansas Cent. R. Co. v. Workman [Ark.] 112 SW 1082. Railway company which acquiesced in custom of conductors to get off trains at station platform while trains were moving, to perform their duties, owed them duty of ordinary care to keep platforms reasonably safe and free from obstructions. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Kennedy [Tex. Civ. App.] 112 SW 339. Freight handler injured while handling freight owing to insufficient light at station. Carlson v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 118 NW 832. Railway companies may rely on its brakemen using due diligence to familiarize themselves with location of permanent structures near tracks. Carr v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 152 Mich. 138, 15 Det. Leg. N. 118, 115 NW 1068. Duty of railroad company to maintain structures at reasonably safe distance from track so that employes riding on cars will not be injured by them. Clay v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 104 Minn. 1, 115 NW 949. Evidence warranted finding that post was maintained too near railway track. Wilson v. New York, etc., R. Co. [R. I.] 69 A 364. Evidence held insufficient to show uniform custom, on which brakeman was entitled to rely, of railroad companies to maintain cattle chutes sufficiently distant from tracks to avoid contact with brakemen on cars. Carr v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 152 Mich. 138, 15 Det. Leg. N. 118, 115 NW 1068. Evidence for jury whether water spout on railway tank was so placed as to strike man of ordinary height on car. McDuffee's Adm'x v. Boston & M. R. Co. [Vt.] 69 A 124. Evidence sufficient to show that switch engine which plaintiff was engaged in repairing was not properly blocked, engine having suddenly started and run over him. Halvorson v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 104 Minn. 525, 116 NW 1134. To allow servant to work as repairer on car, standing in such position that train running on same track collided with it, injuring him, held negligent failure to provide reasonably safe place to work. Offner v. Erie R. Co., 140 Ill. App. 562. Recovery warranted where car repairer went under car to make repairs under foreman's orders, when part of car fell on him in course of work. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Maddox [Ga.] 63 SE 344. Snow plow threw snow and cinders from track through window, striking station agent's eye. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. White, 77 Kan. 853, 94 P 265. Railway company owes to employes as well as travelers duty of ordinary care to protect them at crossings by giving reasonable warning of approach of cars or engines. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Donovan [C. C. A.] 160 F 826. Lumber company, owning and operating logging railroad, owed employes duty of keeping it reasonably safe; liable for injuries caused by derailment of logging train. Barrow v. Lewis Lumber Co., 14 Idaho, 698, 95 P 682. Street railway company not liable where conductor was injured by striking telephone pole with his head, such pole being maintained where it was by another company, and defendant having no power or authority to remove it. Moore v. Chattanooga Elec. R. Co. [Tenn.] 109 SW 497. Evidence held to warrant finding that defendant was negligent in allowing car tracks lending into barn to become oily and greasy so that car could not be stopped in usual manner, as result of which it collided with another which injured plaintiff, repair man at work in pit under car. Jelinek v. St. Paul City R. Co., 104 Minn. 249, 116 NW 480. Whether electric railway company was negligent in allowing trolley pole to be placed too near track and to incline inward so as to strike plaintiff while looking out of window. East St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Kath, 133 Ill. App. 107.

The rule requiring the master to use ordinary care to provide a reasonably safe place of work does not apply where the very nature of the work itself renders it dangerous,[38] as where a dangerous place is being made safe,[39] nor where the danger is transitory or temporary and arises during the progress of the work,[40] nor where the injured servant was at the time engaged in making the place of work,[41] nor where the conditions are constantly changing and the safety of the servant must depend upon the exercise of due care by himself.[42] In these cases the dangers are incidental to the

37. Mines: Every part of entry in mine being for passage of miners, company owed duty to keep it all reasonably safe, even part not usually used. Mammoth Vein Coal Co. v. Looper [Ark.] 112 SW 390. Mine company liable for sending miners to work in dangerous entry, though entries were made by others who were paid by the yard, and point of injury was beyond point to which company had measured and paid for work. Campbell Coal Min. Co. v. Smith's Adm'r [Ky.] 115 SW 256. Not negligence to have powder stored in mine at convenient junction point, though electric wires passed near. Western Coal & Min. Co. v. Garner [Ark.] 112 SW 392. Miners sent into new shaft, after assurance from superintendent that they had had no trouble with "air," were overcome with powder gas from previous explosion and one died. Seals v. Whitney, 130 Mo. App. 412, 110 SW 35. Mining company liable for injuries caused by explosion of coal dust negligently allowed to remain in mine in dangerous quantity. Sterns Coal Co. v. Evans' Adm'r, 32 Ky. L. R. 755, 111 SW 308. Duty of mine operators to remove fire damp is same, regardless of whether its presence was due to faulty plan of ventilation or defects in apparatus. Black Diamond Coal & Min. Co. v. Price, 83 Ky. L. R. 334, 108 SW 345. Sending miner into room dangerous because of fire damp, as result of which explosion occurred, injuring miner, warranted recovery for injuries. Id. Stoppage of fan on outside of mine for short periods, during suspension of work in mine, held not negligence rendering master liable for injuries caused by explosion of gas next day, since such negligence was chargeable to fellow-servants of miners. Squilache v. Tidewater Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 62 SE 446. Mine employe sent with load of props to prop setter was not engaged in making place safe, but was entitled to reasonably safe place to work, and, for death by fall of roof, recovery could be had for breach of this duty. Ianne v. U. S. Gypsum Co., 110 NYS 496. Defendant liable where its foreman, whose duty it was to inspect, was notified that room was dangerous, but ordered plaintiff to work there without timbering it up, and plaintiff was injured by falling rock. Norton Coal Co. v. Murphy, 108 Va. 528, 62 SE 268. Slate and rock fell from side of mine entry upon miner; case for jury. Smith v. Garrison, 32 Ky. L. R. 1278, 108 SW 293. Dirt fell from ceiling of mine entrance; defendant liable. Spring Valley Coal Co. v. McCarthy, 136 Ill. App. 473. Miner injured in attempting to repair timbering in dangerous place, being assured by boss that place was all right; case for jury. Tomazin v. Shenango Furnace Co., 103 Minn. 334, 114 NW 1128. Defendant negligent in allowing large room to be excavated in gypsum mine without propping up roof, superintendent knowing dangerous conditions, roof having fallen and killed employe. Ianne v. U. S. Gypsum Co., 110 NYS 496. Sending miner up on twisted set of timbers to throw them down, timbers having fallen with him; case for jury. Swearingen v. Consol. Troup Min. Co., 212 Mo. 524, 111 SW 545. Defendant held not negligent in failing to have part of mine where servant was killed timbered, this not being usual custom nor expected. Hamilton's Adm'x v. Alleghany Ore & Iron Co., 108 Va. 700, 62 SE 957.

38. Where laborers were removing bank of earth by undermining it and then prying off overhanging part; danger of falling of earth necessarily involved. Logerto v. Central Bldg. Co., 123 App. Div. 840, 108 NYS 604. Safe place rule does not apply where work consists in tearing down unsafe structure preliminary to repairing it. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Hoffman [Va. App.] 63 SE 432. Duty to provide safe place does not apply where work consists in tearing down buildings. American Window Glass Co. v. Noe [C. C. A.] 158 F 777; Ballard & Ballard Co. v. Lee's Adm'r [Ky.] 115 SW 732.

39. Exception inapplicable where employe was at work in excavation for new building and prop of adjoining wall fell on him. Bernheimer Bros. v. Bager [Md.] 70 A 91.

40. It is not master's duty to follow employes and protect them from unexpected and unusual dangers. Taylor v. Washington Mill. Co. [Wash.] 97 P 243. Duty with respect to place does not apply where it is made dangerous by progress of work itself or by manner of its performance by employes. Morgan Const. Co. v. Frank [C. C. A.] 158 F 964.

41. Rule as to place inapplicable when men were drilling and blasting tunnel through rock, making their place of work as they went. Toppi v. McDonald, 128 App. Div. 443, 112 NYS 821.

42. Where the environment and place of work changes as work progresses, master not bound to follow up employes and guard against dangers from such changes. As where scaffold was changed as place of work changed. Schneider v. Philadelphia Quartz Co., 220 Pa. 548, 69 A 1035. Room in mine which plaintiff was employed to strip preparatory to leaving it, which became more dangerous as he removed walls of coal which sustained roof. Holland v. Durham Coal & Coke Co. [Ga.] 63 SE 290. Defendant not bound to protect miner against dangers due to changes in mine brought about by his own work in removing coal, it being his own duty to order props and prop up roof when it became dangerous. Smith's Adm'r v. North Jellico Coal Co. [Ky.] 114 SW 785. Master is not insurer of safety of place of work and need not follow it up to see that changing place is safe (telephone construction work). Tweed v. Hudson River Tel. Co., 114 NYS 607.

work and are assumed risks.[43] There can be no recovery for failure of the master to maintain the place of work in a reasonably safe condition wnen that duty devolved upon the injured servant,[44] or where the place was made unsafe by the act or negligence of a fellow-servant.[45]

Inspection, repairs, knowledge of defects. See 10 C. L. 721—The master's duty is not fully performed by providing reasonably safe tools and appliances and a reasonably safe place of work; he must use ordinary care to maintain them in that condition,[46] and the duty of maintenance necessarily includes that of reasonable inspection [47] and repairs.[48] Whether due care in this respect, has been used in a given instance is Master not liable for injury to workmen caused by stepping on nail in rubbish pile on floor of building in process of construction. Wells Bros. Co. v. Manion, 140 Ill. App. 527. Where structural iron worker stepped upon board which broke, evidence held not to show actionable negligence of defendant. Schneider v. American Bridge Co., 31 App. D. C. 420. Injury while ascending uncompleted stairway in building under construction. Falkeneau Const. Co. v. Ginley, 131 Ill. App. 399. Where building was in course of construction and carpenters were engaged in completing third floor, putting in floor beams and girders, conditions were constantly changing, and "safe place" rule did not apply. McNeill v. Bottsford-Dickinson Co., 128 App. Div. 544, 112 NYS 867. Removing gravel from pit, causing "cave-in." Slagle v. Averyville, 139 Ill. App. 423.

43. Risks incident to such work as construction, reconstruction, destruction, or repair, are assumed. Kentucky Block Cannel Coal Co. v. Nance [C. C. A.] 165 F 44.

44. In excavation it is master's duty to use care for the servant's safety corresponding to danger; but if materials for sharing or bracing are furnished to servant, and he fails to use them, master is not liable. Millen v. Pacific Bridge Co. [Or.] 95 P 196.

45. Leazotte v. Jackson Mfg. Co., 74 N. H. 480, 69 A 640; Connolly v. North Jersey, St. R. Co. [N. J. Law] 69 A 487. Master not liable if place becomes unsafe by reason of work negligently performed there. Kentucky Block Cannel Coal Co. v. Nance [C. C. A.] 165 F 44. If master has furnished reasonably safe place, he is not liable for injuries caused by dangers created by servant in course of performance of his duties. Bradley v. Forbes Tea & Coffee Co., 213 Mo. 320, 111 SW 919. Company not liable for injury caused by presence of chain on platform of caboose when it was put there by fellow-servants of plaintiff. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Hamilton [Ind. App.] 85 NE 1044. Master not liable where he furnishes place originally safe and it becomes unsafe by reason of the progress of the work or negligence of fellow-servants. United States Cement Co. v. Koch [Ind. App.] 85 NE 490. Duty of master to provide a safe place and to use reasonable care to maintain its safety does not involve duty to have representative present at every movement to keep place safe as against all possible negligence of coemployes. Illinois Steel Co. v. Lulenski, 136 Ill. App. 332.

46. Though appliances became defective by reason of negligence of employe whose duty it was to keep them in repair, master would yet be liable for injuries caused by such defective condition, if he knew or ought to have known of it, and allowed them to be used in such defective condition. Allen v. Standard Box & Lumber Co. [Or.] 97 P 555. Where plaintiff was injured by live wire while working as lineman, evidence examined and held to show that defendant negligently failed to maintain safe place to work by turning on current before plaintiff was through. Commonwealth Elec. Co. v. Rooney, 138 Ill. App. 275.

47. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Holmes [Ark.] 114 SW 221. Duty to use ordinary care to provide reasonably safe appliances involves duty to use same care in inspection. Cavanaugh v. Windsor Cut Stone Corp., 80 Conn. 585, 69 A 345. Duty of providing and keeping in repair tools and appliances includes duty of proper inspection to discover defects during use. Wilson v. New York Cont. Co., 113 NYS 349. It is master's duty to discover latent defects due to gradual wearing of machinery and warn servant of them. Cochrell v. Langley Mfg. Co. [Ga. App.] 63 SE 244. Duty of inspection is continuous and absolute. Id. Unless it is made employe's own duty to inspect, the master owes him the duty of reasonable inspection to see that machinery which he has charge of is kept free from defects. Hubbard v. Macon R. & L. Co. [Ga. App.] 62 SE 1018. Duty of master with respect to appliances includes inspection even though appliances have worked properly. Converse Bridge Co. v. Grizzle [Tenn.] 109 SW 290. Duty of master to inspect walls of quarry for loose rock, especially where weather conditions increase danger from this source. Alabama Consol. Coal & Iron Co. v. Hammond [Ala.] 47 S 248. It is master's duty to use reasonable care to provide reasonably safe place of work and to use same degree of care to keep it reasonably safe, and to that end to make seasonable and timely inspection of premises. Riley v. Cudahy Packing Co. [Neb.] 117 NW 765. Duty to keep appliances in proper condition requires of railroad companies inspection consistent with use and operation to discover defects arising from use, etc. Rush v. Oregon Power Co. [Or.] 95 P 193. Where brakeman showed injury by reason of brake on car being in improper condition, and also that car had been in yards for 8 hours, burden was upon defendant to show that reasonable inspection had been made, or that car had been moved or changed since such inspection. Reed v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 162 F 750. Duty to inspect and keep in repair push pole on switch engine rested on master, not on servants, it being permanent appliance. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Forstall [C. C. A.] 159 F 893.

48. Duty to inspect and keep in repair belts held to rest on master. Dittman v. Edison Elec. Illuminating Co., 125 App. Div. 691, 110 NYS 87. Though electric lighting apordinarily a question of fact [49] to be determined by reference to the nature of the work, the character of the place and appliances, and the use to which they are put.[50] The duty of maintenance and inspection is personal and nondelegable.[51] pliances were proper when installed, it was master's duty to keep them in reasonably safe condition by repairs. Aga v. Harbach [Iowa] 117 NW 669.

49. Question for jury: Foreman of excavation work struck by bar on pilot car used to haul away broken rock. Wilson v. New York Cont. Co., 113 NYS 349. Whether defect which caused cylinder of buzz planer to jump should have been discovered by employer. Rowell v. Gifford, 200 Mass. 546, 86 NE 901. Whether defendant was negligent in failing to discover and remedy defect in truck, wheel of which came off. Cotton v. North Carolina R. Co. [N. C.] 62 SE 1093. Whether defendant knew of defects in boiler which exploded, killing engineer. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Davenport [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 150. Whether inspection of elevator was sufficient, where one cable had broken and operator was ordered to run it with only one defective cable, which also broke causing injury. Wilson v. Escanaba Woodenware Co., 152 Mich. 540, 15 Det. Leg. N. 216, 116 NW 198. Rock fell from roof of mine entry on driver. McCarthy v. Spring Valley Coal Co., 232 Ill. 473, 83 NE 957. Case for jury where defect in roof, which fell, was discoverable only by rather close inspection. Campbell Coal Min. Co. v. Smith's Adm'r [Ky.] 115 SW 256.

50. The degree of care required in examining for defects is such as a person of ordinary prudence would use under similar circumstances, and it must have a relation to the character of the machine, and the gravity of results of accident. Wilson v. Escanaba Woodenware Co., 152 Mich. 540, 15 Det. Leg. N. 216, 116 NW 198. Duty to inspect instrumentalities at reasonable intervals depending on facts and circumstances. Cotton v. North Carolina R. Co. [N. C.] 62 SE 1093. Master must use ordinary care to discover and repair defects and obviate dangers, and this care must be tested by business in which he is engaged and conditions surrounding it and must be commensurate with its requirements. Bryant Lumber Co. v. Stastney [Ark.] 112 SW 740. Only reasonable care required in inspection of hook to discover defects; improper to receive evidence that defect might have been discovered by tests with heat, acids, or microscope, these tests being unusual. Brossman v. Drake Standard Mach. Works, 232 Ill. 412, 83 NE 936. Duty of inspection of place does not include duty to discover and prevent negligent acts of fellow-servants, after safe place has been provided. Connolly v. North Jersey St. R. Co. [N. J. Law] 69 A 487. If broken clevis on car brake would have been discovered by an inspection such as an ordinarily prudent person would have made under the circumstances, company would be liable. Missouri K. & T. R. Co. v. Blachley [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 995.

Evidence held to warrant finding of negligence: Hammer of pile driver suddenly fell on plaintiff; finding of negligence in failing to keep apparatus in repair warranted. Huston v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 129 Mo. App. 576, 107 SW 1045. Where "water-slip" rock fell on miner. Mammoth Vein Coal Co. v. Looper [Ark.] 112 SW 390. Buckets attached to ditching machine fell on plaintiff owing to defect in brake which held them in place, no inspection of machine having been made. Engler v. La Crosse Dredging Co., 105 Minn. 74, 117 NW 242. Death of servant by breaking of hook in hoisting apparatus, weakened by long use, chargeable to master's negligence for failure to inspect. Wilkinson v. Evans, 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 472. Elevator where cable and safety device were found to be obviously defective. O'Connor & Co. v. Gillaspy, 170 Ind. 428, 83 NE 738. Where cable of elevator and safety device were conceded to be defective, jury was warranted in finding that master was chargeable with notice of the defects owing to their nature. Id. Failure to discover dry rot in strap which held staging. Donahue v. Buck & Co., 197 Mass. 550, 83 NE 1090. Inspection of foreign car which did not disclose loose round of ladder was negligent. Kiley v. Rutland R. Co., 80 Vt. 536, 68 A 713. Footboard and handhold of engine tender were smashed. Engineer delegated to repair same, merely wired handhold, which came off when plaintiff used it, causing him to fall. Master liable. Beach v. Bird & Wells Lumber Co., 135 Wis. 550, 116 NW 245. Allowing brakes on car to remain out of order having had notice 3 days before injury. Garner v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 128 Mo. App. 401, 107 SW 427. Cars arrived in yards at 3 a. m. and plaintiff was injured at 11 a. m. by reason of brake being in improper condition. Reed v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 162 F 750. Railroad company chargeable with notice of defect in brake chain which had been repaired and left too short, car having been left, prior to injury to brakeman, at yards where inspection was made. Rush v. Oregon Power Co. [Or.] 95 P 193. Grab iron defective; reasonable inspection would have disclosed defect. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Holmes [Ark.] 114 SW 221.

Evidence held not to show negligence: Where boiler was bought from reputable dealer and inspected every six months by competent man, as required by statute. Cavanaugh v. Avoca Coal Co. [Pa.] 70 A 997. Where "hammer test" could not have been applied to flues of boiler, failure to use that test was not negligence. Ware v. Ithaca St. R. Co., 125 App. Div. 323, 109 NYS 426. Electric railway company performs its duty as to controller of electric car, if controller is shown to be of standard character, made by reputable manufacture and subjected to such inspection as is reasonable and practicable. Reasonable inspection does not require dismantling of complicated machinery. Jenkins v. St. Paul City R. Co., 105 Minn. 504, 117 NW 928. Freight elevator was inspected every six months and at last inspection had been repaired by experts and reported safe and in perfect condition, and defendant had no notice of any defect. Held, personal inspection not necessary, and no negligence shown as cause for fall of elevator. Young v. Mason Stable Co. [N. Y.]

A master is not liable for injuries resulting from defects of which he had no notice,[52] and which ordinary care and a reasonable inspection would not have disclosed;[53] he is chargeable with notice of defects which ordinary care on his part would have disclosed,[54] and in such cases, lack of actual notice will not relieve him

86 NE 15. Where pin attaching lever to coupling pin was missing, and brakeman was injured in attempting to make coupling by hand, where it appeared that three inspections had been made in 24 hours, that absence of pin was discovered just before accident, and that inspector was after pin when brakeman was hurt. Southern R. Co. v. Moore, 108 Va. 388, 61 SE 747. Where collision was caused by breaking of link in equalizing brake chain, and it appeared that chain was not worn or defective, that car was inspected once a week and electrical equipment every 24 hours, failure to make inspection suggested after accident, such as was made nowhere else on similar cars, was not negligence. Donaldson v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 114 NYS 11.

51. Petterson v. Rahtjen's American Composition Co., 111 NYS 329. Only its proper performance relieves master. Reed v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 162 F 750. Duty of inspecting cars is absolute and nondelegable. Southern R. Co. v. West [Ga. App.] 62 SE 141. Duty of inspecting meats, worked on by employes, to discover diseased animals and protect against infection, cannot be delegated; mere fact of government inspection or appointment of inspectors not enough. Must appear that reasonable inspection was in fact made. O'Connor v. Armour Packing Co. [C. C. A.] 158 F 241. Question for jury where it appeared that plaintiff was infected with anthrax from calf carcass and that reasonable inspection would have disclosed disease. Id. Defendant company gave linemen printed notice of duties, requiring among other things that linemen should inspect poles, cross-arms, etc., before climbing them. Plaintiff acknowledged receipt of notice in writing. Held, company was not relieved from liability for injury to lineman due to breaking of defective pole, set by gang of "ground men" week before. Ault v. Nebraska Tel. Co. [Neb.] 118 NW 73.

52. Proof of knowledge by employer that rock which fell on quarryman was loose held essential to recovery. Mitchell Lime Co. v. Nickless [Ind. App.] 85 NE 728. Master not liable for defects in appliances caused by servant's use, and not brought to his attention. Vaughn v. Longmead Iron Works, 220 Pa. 347, 69 A 810. Defect must be shown; also that master knew or ought to have known of it. Finn v. Oregon W., P. & R. Co. [Or.] 93 P 690. Evidence insufficient to show knowledge by defendant of vicious character of horse which kicked plaintiff. Haneman v. Western Meat Co. [Cal. App.] 97 P 695. Evidence held not to show knowledge by master that emery wheel was liable to explode. Brands v. St. Louis Car Co., 213 Mo. 698, 112 SW 511. Master not chargeable with negligence in failing to have premises properly lighted, where it appeared that lamps were provided but some were not burning, knowledge of which by master was not shown. Cook v. U. S. Smelting Co. [Utah] 97 P 28.

53. No recovery for alleged defect in appliance without proof that master knew or ought to have known of it. Forquer v. Slater Brick Co., 37 Mont. 426, 97 P 843. Where defect in ways, works, etc., is relied on, plaintiff must show not only existence of defect but that "it arose from or had not been discovered or remedied owing to the negligence of the master or employer, or of some person in the service of the master." Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Lowe [Ala.] 48 S 99. Evidence held not to show negligence of company with respect to projecting or loose spike used to hold rail to cross tie. Id. Latent defect in tube of boiler. Illinois Steel Co. v. Laughran, 136 Ill. App. 432. Defendant not liable for injuries caused by defective guard of elevator shaft, unless it knew or ought to have known in exercise of ordinary care of defect Roth v. Buettel Bros. Co. [Iowa] 119 NW 166. Where rung in ladder turned causing workman to fall, evidence held insufficient to show that defect had existed long enough to charge defendant with notice. Dougherty v. Weeks, 111 NYS 218. Telephone pole had been up about 6 years and poles of the kind lasted 12 to 15 years. Plaintiff was sent up to cut wires and, when he had done so, it fell with him. He had kicked it and discovered no defect. Held, no negligence of company shown in failing to discover its condition. Southwestern Tel. & T. Co. v. Tucker [Tex.] 114 SW 790.

54. Master chargeable with notice of defects which reasonable inspection would disclose. Burnside v. Peterson, 43 Colo. 382, 96 P 256. Duty, with respect to place and to warn, extends to dangers which master ought to know in exercise of ordinary care. Aga v. Harbach [Iowa] 117 NW 669. Master's duty extends not only to such dangers as are known but also to such as would be disclosed by reasonable care, in behalf of servant's safety, such care as corresponds to circumstances. Lohman v. Swift & Co., 105 Minn. 148, 117 NW 418. Notice of patent defects by the master will be presumed; but not of latent defects. Sack v. Ralston, 220 Pa. 216, 69 A 671. No defect is latent which an inspection will disclose. Illinois Steel Co. v. Laughran, 136 Ill. App. 432. Master is liable for defects of which he has actual knowledge, or with knowledge of which he is charged. Carr v. American Locomotive Co. [R. I.] 70 A 196. Instruction that, if defendant had notice of previous accidents at place in question by cars sliding on track and failed to use due care to prevent such occurrences by providing appliances for sanding track, it was negligent approved. Mayer v. Detroit, etc., R. Co., 152 Mich. 276, 15 Det. Leg. N. 231, 116 NW 429. Custom of throwing baled straw through opening in ceiling of barn was presumed to have been known and sanctioned by defendant, and he was chargeable with injury resulting therefrom, although servant who threw bale was plaintiff's fellow-servant. Standard Oil Co. v. Brown, 31 App. D. C. 371. Injury by die-press repeating stroke, chargeable to mas-from liability.[55] Knowledge of dangers or defects possessed by a vice-principal is knowledge of the master.[56]

Ordinarily, the servant is under no duty to make an inspection of the place or appliances[57] but may rely on the assumption that the master has performed his ter, knowledge of improper operation being shown. Smythe v. Parish & Co., 140 Ill. App. 405. If reasonable inspection would have disclosed that rope sling used to lower staging over ship's side had become unsafe by chafing of ship on wharf, master would be liable for injury caused by its breaking. Doherty v. Booth, 200 Mass. 522, 86 NE 945. Test of boiler failed to show defective weld in pipe. Illinois Steel Co. v. Loughran, 136 Ill. App. 432. Evidence held to show that chisel was known to be defective when furnished for use. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Walker, 41 Ind. App. 588, 84 NE 730. Where oil, making floor slippery, had been there 40 hours, evidence warranted finding of negligence in not discovering and removing it. Leagotte v. Jackson Mfg. Co., 74 N. H. 480, 69 A 640. Defendant liable where shafting was "nicked," causing plaintiff's clothing to be caught and injuring him. Defendant was chargeable with notice of the defect making shaft more dangerous. Whitworth v. South Arkansas Lumber Co., 121 La. 894, 46 S 912. Deceased ordered to assist in using derrick which collapsed and fell upon him owing to rottenness of timbers. It has been used 5 years and had been in same position 2 years and had never been inspected. Held, defendant chargeable with negligence. Converse Bridge Co. v. Grizzle [Tenn.] 109 SW 290. That placing piece of sheet metal where it was likely to fall was act of servant did not relieve master, where it was allowed to remain there and knowledge of it was imputed to master. Kalodranski v. American Locomotive Co. [R. I.] 69 A 505. Inspection, negligent or done by incompetent servant, which did not disclose obvious defects in guy line supporting derrick, or defects discoverable by reasonable inspection. Cavanaugh v. Windsor Cut Stone Corp., 80 Conn. 585, 69 A 345. Proper to refuse directed verdict where there was evidence from which jury could find alleged defect in hook, which broke, was obvious and should have been discovered. Brossman v. Drake Standard Mach. Works, 232 Ill. 412, 83 NE 936. Prima facie case of negligence made where plaintiff complained of machine, was told it had been fixed, and was thereafter injured by reason of hammer of it falling automatically. Staskowski v. Standard Oil Co., 111 NYS 58.

55. Master is liable for injuries caused by such defects as it is his duty to know about. Converse Bridge Co. v. Grizzle [Tenn.] 109 SW 290. It is not essential that defendant have actual knowledge of dangerous condition of place of work; it is sufficient that, in the exercise of ordinary care, he ought to have known. Kneale v. Lopez [Miss.] 46 S 715. Actual knowledge of existence of hole in ground where plaintiff worked not necessary to charge master if ordinary care would have disclosed it. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Romans [Tex. Civ. App.] 114 SW 157. Master cannot plead ignorance of defects in construction of suspended sliding door which make it liable to fall outwards upon slight jar or disturbance. Lochbaum v. Southwestern Box & Lumber Mfg. Co., 121 La. 176, 46 S 201.

56. Notice to mine boss of dangerous condition of walls of entry was notice to owners. Smith v. Garrison [Ky.] 108 SW 293. Notice to wire chief of dangerous condition of wires was notice to company. Texarkana Tel. Co. v. Pemberton [Ark.] 111 SW 257. Knowledge by foreman that belt had been improperly repaired and was defective was knowledge of defendant. Starnes v. Pine Woods Lumber Co. [La.] 47 S 607. Master liable for injury resulting from breaking of rope sling if his superintendent knew or ought to have known that it was originally unsafe, or had become so and was unsafe at time of accident. Doherty v. Booth, 200 Mass. 522, 86 NE 945. Notice to defendant's superintendent of vicious disposition of horse which defendant used, though owned by superintendent, was notice to defendant company, though superintendent had received such notice in a private capacity. Henry v. Omaha Packing Co. [Neb.] 115 NW 777.

57. See, also, post, §§ 3F, 3G. Servant is not bound to discover hidden or concealed dangers. Flowers v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Fla.] 46 S 718; Hubbard v. Macon R. & L. Co. [Ga. App.] 62 SE 1018; Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Beale [Ind. App.] 86 NE 431; Laughy v. Bird & Wells Lumber Co., 136 Wis. 301, 117 NW 796. Servant is under no duty to observe changes and defects in machinery due to gradual wear unless they are obvious to any careful man. Cochrell v. Langley Mfg. Co. [Ga. App.] 63 SE 244. Higher degree of care in the matter of inspection rests upon master than upon employe. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Beale [Ind. App.] 86 NE 431. Master bound to use ordinary care to discover latent defects; servant only bound to observe patent defects; need not inspect. Mitchell Lime Co. v. Nickless [Ind. App.] 85 NE 728. No part of elevator operator's duties to keep barriers to shaft in repair, no materials being provided for that purpose. Roth v. Buettel Bros. Co. [Iowa] 119 NW 166. Miner not bound to inspect condition of walls of mine entry, this being duty of owner. Smith v. Garrison [Ky.] 108 SW 293. No duty devolved on plaintiff to inspect platform, to discover hole made by removal of plank by master, without notice. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Carter [Ky.] 112 SW 904. Though hose used by servant was simple appliance, it was not, as matter of law, servant's duty to inspect and keep it in repair; its use and servant's lack of authority were to be considered by jury. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Patrick [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 1097. Employe had right to rely on performance of master's duty to furnish only suitable material for staging, not bound to discover dry rot in strap which caused staging to fall. Donahue v. Buck & Co., 197 Mass. 550, 83 NE 1090.

Railroad employes: Not brakeman's duty to inspect track. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Cleland [Tex. Civ. App.] 110 SW 122. Duty duty with respect thereto,[56] but this is not the rule with respect to simple and common tools used by the servant in the ordinary discharge of his duties,[59] nor does the rule apply where the servant injured was one on whom the duty of inspection rested.[60] No recovery can usually be had for an injury resulting from a defect or condition discoverable by the injured employe by the use of ordinary care in the course of his usual duties,[61] or which was actually known to him and of which he failed to complain or give notice.[62]

Statutes.[63]—Holdings under statutes of the different states relating to duties of employers with reference to appliances and place of work, such as various factory acts, mine acts, statutes relating to buildings in course of construction, and those relating to "ways, works and machinery," are given in the note.[64] of railway company to furnish reasonably safe car in which to transport employe, and latter not bound to inspect. Southern R. Co. v. West [Ga. App.] 62 SE 141. Custom of railroad company to inspect cars only in yards held not to relieve it from liability for death caused by defect in a car which employe was sent to get; employe was not bound to inspect or to know defect unless it was obvious. Southern R. Co. v. Hopkins [C. C. A.] 161 F 266. Rule requiring inspection of trains by employes held not to require inspection of ladders (conductor fell—round gave way). Kiley v. Rutland R. Co., 80 Vt. 536, 68 A 713. Duty of inspecting foreign cars rests on company receiving them, not on employes; and statutes requiring common carriers to receive and handle such care do not change rule. Id.

58. See, also, post, §§ 3F, 3G. Higher obligation rests upon master than upon employe as to defects in tools furnished employe. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Walker, 41 Ind. App. 588, 84 NE 730. Fact that ties on turn-table were 3 or 4 inches apart was a circumstance which plaintiff could not be expected to look for, and constituted a danger which was not assumed. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Galloway, 137 Ill. App. 296. Brakeman not required to inspect cars and appliances but was entitled to assume exercise of ordinary care by company to provide reasonably safe appliances. Missouri K. & T. R. Co. v. Blachley [Tex. Civ. App.] 109 SW 995.

59. Master not required to inspect steel hammer used by employes which they could see and inspect in ordinary course of work. Golden v. Ellis [Me.] 71 A 649. The duty of inspection does not extend to simple tools well understood by any person, such as hammers, saws, spades, hoes, lanterns, push sticks, etc. See cases cited in Longpre v. Big Blackfoot Mill. Co. [Mont.] 99 P 131. As to such tools duty to inspect is not absolute, but whether inspection is required is a question of fact. Error for instructions to require inspection of handle of cant hook; whether it should have been inspected was for jury. Id. Rule that employe is expected to observe defects in simple tools not applicable when employe injured was not using tool, chip from which flew off and injured him. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Walker, 41 Ind. App. 588, 84 NE 730.

60. It being duty of power house superintendent to see that place of work was reasonably safe, he could not recover from master for neglect of that duty. Woelflen v. Lewiston-Clarkston Co. [Wash.] 95 P 493. It being duty of lamp trimmer to observe and report defect in hood of lamp, defendant not chargeable with negligence in not discovering and repairing it. Gardner v. Schenectady R. Co., 112 NYS 369. Defendant not chargeable with negligence in furnishing rubber glove with hole in it to electric lamp trimmer, since employe had better opportunity to observe and remedy defect. Id. Whether it was plaintiff's duty to keep in repair platform of windmill being injured by reason of defects in it while oiling wind mill, for jury. Miller v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 103 Minn. 443, 115 NW 269.

61. See, also, post, § 3F, Assumption of Risk. Laughy v. Bird & Wells Lumber Co., 136 Wis. 301, 117 NW 796. Evidence held to show that driver injured by operation of defective switch in coal mine was unaware of danger of using it, and by exercise of ordinary care could not have apprehended such danger. Chicago, W. & V. Coal Co. v. Brooks, 138 Ill. App. 34. Where it appeared that car alleged to have been defectively equipped was foreign car never before seen by decedent, there was evidence to show want of knowledge by him. Davis Adm'x v. Rutland R. Co. [Vt.] 71 A 724. No recovery where plaintiff—superintendent of power house—had knowledge or opportunity therefor of presence of wires which injured him equal to or greater than that of defendant. Woelfler v. Lewiston-Clarkston Co. [Wash.] 95 P 493. Verdict for defendant should have been directed where it did not appear that shot-firer, injured in mine by shot breaking through wall between rooms, had no knowledge of the dangerous condition, but where on the contrary it must be assumed that, having worked as shot-firer for years, no one was better able to judge of the danger. Green v. Jones Bros. Coal & Min. Co., 140 Ill. App. 264.

62. See, also, post, § 3F. Where plaintiff himself spliced cable between telephone poles in usual way, and he knew as much about it as foreman, he had no cause of action for parting of cable, allowing him to fall. Tweed v. Hudson River Tel. Co., 114 NYS 607.

63. See 10 C. L. 725. See, also, supra, Temporary Appliances, etc., for New York statute.

64. Federal automatic coupler act applies only to cars engaged in interstate traffic. Rio Grande So. R. Co. v. Campbell [Colo.] 96 P 986. Car still engaged in interstate commerce when cargo had not been delivered and car was placed on side track for repairs, there easily made. St. Louis &

S. F. R. Co. v. Delk [C. C. A.] 158 F 931. Use of car not equipped with automatic coupler as required by federal safety appliance act is negligence per se. Austin v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 3 Ga. App. 775, 61 SE 998. The automatic coupler act requires carriers to equip cars with automatic couplers and to keep them so equipped, but requires only ordinary or reasonable care to keep such equipment in repair. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Delk [C. C. A.] 158 F 931. The federal safety appliance law, 27 Stat. at L. 531, c. 196, relating to drawbars of uniform height on freight cars, does not require that the drawbars in all loaded cars should be exactly at the minimum height from the rails, but its meaning is that such drawbar on a loaded car may legally be at any point within the maximum and minimum distance from the rails. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Taylor, 210 U. S. 1061, 52 Law. Ed. 281. A railroad company doing business as a common carrier engaged in interstate commerce has complied with the requirements of the safety appliance act when it equips its cars with automatic couplers as prescribed by said act, and it will not be thereafter subject to the conditions imposed for a violation thereof on account of subsequent defects occurring to the couplers which ordinary care and diligence could not have avoided. Under act March 2, 1893, 27 Stat. 531, c. 196 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3174), amended by act March 2, 1903, 32 Stat. 943 (U. S. Comp. St. 1907, p. 885), where coupler not shown to have been out of repair or defective so as to have been possible to repair same by exercise of ordinary care and diligence, company not liable for injury caused thereby. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Brinkmeier, 77 Kan. 14, 93 P 621.

Alabama: Evidence held to show wall of quarry from which rock fell part of "ways, works," etc., under Code 1907, § 3910, subd. 1. Alabama Consol. Coal & Iron Co. v. Hammond [Ala.] 47 S 248. Violation of statutory duty imposed on mine operators, resulting proximately in injury, is actionable. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Sharp [Ala.] 47 S 279. Code 1896, § 2914, imposes duty on mine operators to install ventilation system sufficient to dilute, carry off, or render harmless noxious gases in mines, but does not require such system as will carry off explosive gases not otherwise noxious. Held failure to install ventilation system that will carry out explosives is not negligence per se. Id.

Arkansas: Under Kirby's Dig. §§ 5352, 5350, failure to deliver props to miner when demanded by him, as required by statute, is negligence per se and gives right of action for injury or death caused thereby, in absence of contributory negligence. Johnson v. Mammoth Vein Coal Co. [Ark.] 114 SW 722. Under construction placed by supreme court of Alabama on Code 1907, § 3910, making employer liable for injuries to employe caused by any defect in "ways, works, machinery or plant," held that wire stretched across railway track so low as to catch an employe standing on passing car is not defect in way or track, there being nothing to show that wire was only there temporarily. Hubbard v. Central of Georgia R. Co. [Ga.] 63 SE 19.

Illinois. Mines Act: Laws 1899, c. 93, is valid. The selection of mine owners as class upon which certain responsibilities is cast for defaults of certain employes who must be selected according to statute is not repugnant to 14th amendment to U. S. Constitution on grounds of denying equal protection of the laws. Wilmington Star Min. Co. v. Fulton, 205 U. S. 60, 51 Law. Ed. 708. An act which does not require the owner to select a particular individual, or retain one when selected, if found incompetent, is not repugnant to the 14th amendment to the U. S. Constitution. Act requiring mine owners to select mine inspectors and managers who have been licensed by state board. Id. Where Mines and Miners' Act gives a cause of action for its willful violation, regardless of negligence, an instruction based upon charge of negligence is erroneous. Moore v. Centralia Coal Co., 140 Ill. App. 291. "Willful" violation of mines act means conscious violation. Mertens v. Southern Coal & Min. Co., 235 Ill. 540, 85 NE 743. Evidence held to show that mine examiner's visit and inspection under provisions was not made in good faith or in compliance with law. Mertins v. Southern Coal & Min. Co., 140 Ill. App. 190. In action under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 93, § 18, evidence held to warrant finding that roof of mine was unsafe on day of injury, and that mine examiner had failed to inspect it that day, or had inspected it and failed to put up notice of danger or date of inspection. Mertens v. Southern Coal & Min. Co., 235 Ill. 540, 85 NE 743. The clause of the statute, requiring examiner to post notice of dangerous conditions applies to dangerous condition of roof. Id. Under mines act, if the mine examiner has actual notice of dangerous condition in mine, the owner or operator is bound thereby, though mine examiner does not make formal report of such condition. Olson v. Kelly Coal Co., 236 Ill. 502, 86 NE 88. If thereafter an employe is permitted to go to work in the danger place, not under direction of the manager, and is injured, that owner is guilty of willful violation of act and is liable. Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 93, § 18. Id. Mine owner's statutory duty to inspect and furnish safe place to work does not extend to places not used for work. Injury by falling rock in unused room, on evidence, verdict for defendant should have been directed. Gallatin Coal & Coke Co. v. Jerrells, 135 Ill. App. 637. The provision requiring the mine examiner to make a daily record of the conditions of the mine in a book kept for the information or all concerned is not complied with merely by manager dating and signing the printed report without making an examination in fact. In view of willful violation of statute, servant's contributory negligence cannot be set up as a defense. Marquette Third Vein Coal Co. v. Allison, 132 Ill. App. 221. Under provision dispensing with "places of refuge" cut in wall where passageway between rail and wall is 2½ feet, the failure to keep such passage clear from obstructions constitutes a violation of act, the passage itself being construed to be a place of refuge. Moore v. Centralia Coal Co., 140 Ill. App. 291. Driver of car injured by its running down grade and leaving rails, on showing that master had failed, as required by act, to keep passageways and places of refuge open, and giving servant a cause of action for willful violation thereof so that he might safely have escaped from car, is entitled to have his case submitted to jury. Id. Proof that mine operator employed certified examiner, and that examiner had inspected mine entry and found it in satisfactory condition, not sufficient to exempt operator for failure to spray, sprinkle, or clean entry where dust in air required it, under the statute. Davis v. Illinois Collieries Co., 232 Ill. 284, 83 NE 836. Willful failure of manager or mine examiner to comply with requirements of mine statute (as to preventing accumulation of dust) is chargeable to operator even though latter has no actual knowledge of such delinquency. Id. Where shot-firer was injured on account of defendant's willful violation of provisions requiring roadways to be sprayed, evidence held sufficient to show violation to be a cause proximately contributing to injury. Illinois Collieries Co. v. Davis, 137 Ill. App. 15. Requirement that lower landing at surface of mine shaft shall be "securely fenced with automatic or other gates" is satisfied by using nonautomatic swinging gate fastened with a hook. Donk Bros. Coal & Coke Co. v. Sapp, 133 Ill. App. 92. The purpose of the requirement in the act, imposing on master the duty of furnishing props and caps, is to aid the miners who use them, in protecting themselves, and is not a measure for the general safety of other employes, and only those who have a right to demand and use them can base an action for damages on the willful violation thereof. Does not apply to shot-firer. Southern Coal & Min. Co. v. Hopp, 133 Ill. App. 239. An ordinance, the purpose of which is to protect workmen in places where machinery is employed from which such machinery, where it is so located as to endanger them while in the discharge of their duties, is intended only to apply to situations where workmen are necessarily in close proximity to such machinery, and does not apply to guarding an opening over a coal crusher in a room where there was no machinery with which workmen could come in contact, except through the necessary opening over the crusher. Chicago City R. Co. v. Martinic, 138 Ill. App. 575. Where plaintiff's intestate was killed while coupling a bad order car not equipped with automatic couplers, according to requirements of §§ 2 and 9 of the act providing for safety appliances for railroads, and barring defense of contributory negligence where its provisions are not complied with, a verdict for defendant should have been directed on failure to ehow that car was used in moving state traffic. Kelley v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 140 Ill. App. 125.

Indiana: Master liable under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7083, where sliver flew off chisel and struck employe engaged in duties near by. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Walker, 41 Ind. App. 588, 84 NE 730. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7087l, only requires guarding of such pieces of machinery as are dangerous to employee whose duties require their presence near such machines. Robbins v. Fort Wayne Iron & Steel Co., 41 Ind. App. 557, 84 NE 514. To warrant recovery under said statute, it must appear (1) that injured person was employe; (2) that machinery in question was unguarded; (3) that it was dangerous; (4) that duties of employe required him to work in immediate vicinity thereof; (5) that machine could have been guarded without rendering it useless. Id. Assumpsit of risk is not available as defense under such statute, but contributory negligence is. Id. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7087l, held applicable to laundry mangle. Pein v. Miznerr, 41 Ind. App. 255, 83 NE 784. Cause transferred to supreme court with recommendations to reverse or modify holding of La Porte Carriage Co. v. Sullender, 165 Ind. 290, 75 NE 277, that "belting" was not within statute. Id. Supreme court, however, upheld demurrer to complaint on ground that it disclosed contributory negligence and did not consider applicability of statute. See Pein v. Miznerr, 170 Ind. 659, 84 NE 981. Appliance operated by friction wheels held "gearing" within statute requiring guarding of dangerous machines. Whiteley Malleable Castings Co. v. Wishon [Ind. App.] 85 NE 832.

Planer is properly guarded within meaning of statute if so guarded that there is no probability of injury to an employe performing his duties in ths ordinary way, though he may be injured by unnecessarily placing some part of his body in danger. Vigo Cooperage Co. v. Kennedy [Ind. App.] 85 NE 986. Complaint held not to show that servant's duties required him to place hands where knives caught them in replacing boot of machine. Id. Statute requiring that in constructing buildings of three stories or more no story above the second shall be built until floor is laid in story below does not contemplate laying of floors between skylight covering open court and ground. Lagler v. Bye [Ind. App.] 85 NE 36. Man injured while working on skylight could not recover under statute. Id. Acts 1905, c. 50, regulating operation of coal mines, is not unconstitutional because not applying to mines employing less than 10 men; nor is provision as to lighting of mines invalid because not applying to mines electrically lighted. Chandler Coal Co v. Sams, 170 Ind. 623, 85 NE 341.

Iowa: Where there was evidence that cross cut saw could have been practically guarded, failure to provide guard as required by Code Supp. 1907, § 4999a, was negligence notwithstanding custom of others not to guard such saws. O'Connell v. Smith [Iowa] 118 NW 266.

Kansas: Proof of failure to guard belting being violation of Laws 1903, p. 540, c. 356, is prima facie proof of negligence. Kansas Buff Brick & Mfg. Co. v. Stark, 77 Kan. 648, 95 P 1047. Whether failure to guard belting was negligent as to particular employe held question of fact. Id. Laws 1903, p. 541, c. 356, § 4, requires only that cogs, gearing, etc., shall be screened, covered, boxed, or so guarded as to prevent employes coming in contact therewith; does not require remodeling of machine. Henschell v. Union Pac. R. Co. [Kan.] 96 P 857. Burden is upon plaintiff to show practicability of guarding gearing. Id. Operator of one elevator was injured by barrel which fell from another, elevators being open though run in enclosed shaft which included both. Held Laws 1903, p. 540, c. 356, was violated, the statute requiring elevators themselves to be enclosed, and injured employe could recover for such violation. Fowler Packing Co. v. Enzenperger, 77 Kan. 406, 94 P 995. Under Gen. St. 1901, § 4129, it is duty of mining boss to see that as excavation by coal miners proceeds the overhead rock is protected from falling on traveling ways below. Barrett v. Dessy [Kan.] 97 P 786. Laws 1907, p. 400, c. 250, prohibiting sale to miners of black powder except in original packages of 12½ pounds, securely sealed, to be delivered at powder house not more than 300 feet from pit head, is held constitutional. Ex parte Williams [Kan.] 98 P 777.

Kentucky: Ky. St. 1903, § 2731, requiring certain ventilation of mines, should be strictly enforced and mining companies held strictly accountable for failure to observe it. Sterns Coal Co. v. Evans' Adm'r, 33 Ky. L. R. 755, 111 SW 308. Violation by mine owner of Ky. St. 1903, § 2731, requiring shafts to be guarded with fences and gates, makes him liable for injuries resulting therefrom; and statute was violated where gate could not be closed owing to accumulations of coal, etc. Moseley's Adm'r v. Black Diamond Coal & Min. Co., 33 Ky. L. R. 110, 109 SW 306.

Massachusetts: Employe may recover for failure to install danger signals on elevator trap doors, as required by Rev. Laws, c. 104, § 27, unless he assumed risk or was negligent. Doolan v. Pocasset Mfg. Co., 200 Mass. 200, 85 NE 1055.

Michigan: Liability for injuries caused by failure to guard machinery depends upon giving of order by inspector requiring guards under Pub. Acts 1901, p. 159, No. 113, § 8. Kerr v. National Fulton Brass Mfg. Co. [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 985, 118 NW 925. Notice by inspector to guard emery wheels included wheels installed after order was given. Id. Failure to obey statutory requirement as to blocking switch, resulting in injury, would be actionable negligence. Parker v. Union Station Ass'n [Mich.] 15 Det. Leg. N. 909, 118 NW 733.

Minnesota: Failure to comply with provisions of Rev. Laws 1905, § 1813 (guarding machinery), is negligence when machinery of a dangerous character is so located as to be dangerous, and when it is practicable to guard it. Callopy v. Atwood, 105 Minn. 80, 117 NW 238. Master is not excused by fact that machine is manufactured without guard, and that it is customary to operate such machines without guards. Id. Statute is for protection of operators as well as careless and ignorant persons who may come in contact with it. Id. Evidence sufficient to sustain finding of negligence in failing to guard lath bolter machine which injured operator. Id. Duty to guard machinery as required by statute is absolute, and violation of it negligence per se, but contributory negligence and assumption of risk may be interposed as defenses in proper cases. Davidson v. Flour City Ornamental Iron Works [Minn.] 119 NW 483. Jointer machine within statute; failure to guard it negligence. Bigum v. St. Paul Sash, Door & Lumber Co. [Minn.] 119 NW 481. Evidence showed stationary or automatic guard on jointer machine was feasible. Id. Emery wheels are included within machinery required to be guarded by Rev. Laws 1905, § 1813. Davidson v. Flour City Ornamental Iron Works [Minn.] 119 NW 483. Failure to have guard on emery wheel, being violation of statute, is negligence per se. Id. Duty to guard emery wheel, under statute, absolute and continuing; not discharged by putting on guard originally, and assigning to servant duty of seeing that it was kept there; master liable for injuries due to absence of guard. Id. Proof that boy under 15 was employed in sawmill where dangerous machinery was used, in violation of Rev. Laws 1905, § 1804, and was injured by machine not guarded, as required by § 1813, made prima facie case of negligence. Jacobson v. Merrill & Ring Mill Co. [Minn.] 119 NW 510.
