Costs.[67]—A general statute limiting costs is not applicable to a special proceeding in which the justice is given jurisdiction.[68] Failure to give security for costs is not ground for reversal where such failure was the result of conduct of the other party.[69] A statute preventing a reversal for improper allowance of fees does not cover a case expressly governed by another statute for costs generally, where the question does not come up on particular allowances which the justice had power to consider.[70]

§ 5. Appeal and error.[71]—The right of appeal may be exercised only in obedience to statutory regulations.[72]

55. On filing an abstract with the clerk of court [Code 1892, § 2413]. Wise v. Keer Thread Co. [Miss.] 36 So. 244.

55a. See 2 Curr. L. 659, n. 48.

56. A claim on an account for services rendered will not authorize the entry of a default judgment for laborers' wages. Phillips v. Norton [S. D.] 101 N. W. 727.

57. Phillips v. Norton [S. D.] 101 N. W. 727.

58. Notwithstanding the justice's record contains an entry to that effect. State v. Justice Court of Tp. No. 1 [Mont.] 78 P. 498. Justice heard the evidence and entered judgment on the proof adduced by plaintiff. Clark v. Great Northern R. Co. [Mont.] 76 P. 1003. Even though the docket recited notice and entry of defendant's default. Id.

59. Wade v. Swope [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 471. Judgment by confession held to show on its face every essential required to render it valid. Id. And see Confession of Judgment, 3 Curr. L. 719.

60. Rev. St. 1899, § 406. Wade v. Swope [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 471.

61. See Executions, 3 Curr. L. 1397.

62. This period is not extended by filing a transcript in the circuit court. Phillips v. Norton [S. D.] 101 N. W. 727. Execution issued held sufficient. Wilcher v. Pool [Ga.] 48 S. E. 956.

63. Under Mills' Ann. St. § 2668, providing that all executions shall be directed to the proper constable, a constable alone can execute such writs. He cannot deputize another to make the sale. Stacy v. Bernard [Colo. App.] 78 P. 615.

64. The execution of a judgment being ministerial. Joseph Speidel Grocery Co. v. Warder [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 534.

65. Mere deposit of the execution with the circuit clerk is not enough. Thompson v. Blanks [Tenn.] 84 S. W. 804.

66. Columbus Fertilizer Co. v. Hanks, 119 Ga. 950, 47 S. E. 222.

67. See 2 Curr. L. 660.

68. Attachment. La Goo v. Seaman [Mich.] 99 N. W. 393.

69. Where offer to give security was made, he made no response. Hirsh v. Fisher [Mich.] 101 N. W. 48. Statute providing that if a party refuses to accept an offer to allow judgment he shall be liable for costs unless the recovery should be more favorable to him than the offer. Lawson v. Speer, 91 App. Div. 411, 86 N. Y. S. 915.

70. La Goo v. Seaman [Mich.] 99 N. W. 393.

71. See 2 Curr. L. 660.

72. Appeal after the time allowed by statute gives the district court no jurisdiction. State v. District Court of Second Judicial Dist. [Mont.] 75 P. 862. Under § 4838, Rev. St. 1887, an appeal may be taken within 30 days by filing notice with the justice and serving a copy on the adverse party. Perkins v. Bridge [Idaho] 77 P. 329. The rules regulating appeals from justices' courts are applicable to an appeal from the action of the board of county commissioners. Blair v. Coakley, 136 N. C. 405, 48 S. E. 804. Return must be made to the appellate court and papers filed with the clerk within 10 days. Id.

There must be an appealable judgment.[73] Appeal lies from final judgments[74] and orders,[75] and is sometimes restricted in particular cases.[76] By trying the merits an appeal reaching jurisdiction is waived.[77] Appeal lies from the overruling of plea to the jurisdiction.[78]

Only parties affected by the judgment appealed from are necessary.[79] One co-defendant may appeal without joining the others.[80] The affidavit of appeal must be filed as required by law.[81]

Bonds.[82]—In some states an appeal bond is necessary to give the appellate court jurisdiction.[83] In others, jurisdiction may not be ousted, but may be rendered ineffectual by want of a sufficient bond.[84] The bond must correctly describe the judgment appealed from[85] and undertake to do what is prescribed by the statute,[86] and where the case is heard by a substitute justice, should be perfected before the one originally having jurisdiction.[87] The appellant should, in good practice, sign the appeal bond;[88] but where the bond is given at his instance and signed by the surety, the appeal should not be dismissed because of his failure to sign.[89] Unless so provided it need not be approved by the justice,[90] in which case he may require some evidence of the solvency of the sureties before granting the appeal.[91] A party is entitled to a reasonable time to provide bondsmen.[92] When excepted to, the sureties must justify within the time allowed by law.[93]

73. Query whether quashal of landlord's attachment for rent before judgment is final and appealable. Robertson v. Southerland, 22 App. D. C. 595.

74. No appeal lies from an order denying a motion to quash an execution. Carr v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 981. The debtor of a judgment debtor against whom proceedings in aid of execution have been brought before a justice of the peace has the right of appeal from the finding of the justice as to the fact of his indebtedness. Carlin v. Hower, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 70. A judgment is final when it determines the rights of the parties. Subsequent proceedings to ascertain the amount of costs are immaterial. Lemmons v. Huber [Or.] 77 P. 836. A judgment dismissing a cause because plaintiff refuses to plead is a final judgment. Moore Hayfield Co. v. Missouri, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 881.

75. An order made in proceedings in aid of execution that a third party who appears on notice for that purpose and admits his indebtedness shall pay into court the amount of such indebtedness to apply on the judgment is a final order. Duffey v. Reardon, 70 Ohio St. 328, 71 N. E. 712.

76. An appeal lies from a judgment entered in an action to enforce an agister's lien. Statutes construed. State v. Johnson [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 962.

77. Clute v. Everhart [Mich.] 100 N. W. 124.

78. Anderson v. Morton, 21 App. D. C. 444.

79. In an appeal from a justice's judgment against one partner who was served, it is not necessary to bring into the circuit court another partner who was not served. Gormley v. Hartray, 105 Ill. App. 625.

80. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Mears [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 401.

81. A prosecution for the violation of a city ordinance is a civil action. Affidavit of appeal must be filed with the justice and not with the court to which the appeal is taken as in criminal prosecutions. Fortune v. Wilburton [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 738.

82. See 2 Curr. L. 662.

83. A bond running to the wrong obligee cannot be amended after time for filing the bond has expired. Sutton v. Bower [Iowa] 99 N. W. 104.

84. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1763, where the sureties fail to justify within the time allowed. Morin v. Wells [Mont.] 75 P. 688. Such period may be extended by stipulation. Id. In Idaho the appeal is ineffectual unless an undertaking be filed with two or more sureties [Rev. St. 1887, § 4842]. Perkins v. Bridge [Idaho] 77 P. 329.

85. Appeal properly dismissed where the bond misdescribed the judgment in a material matter. East Liverpool Potters' Co. v. Hill [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 568.

86. "Satisfy and pay all intervening damages and costs" of appeal is not equivalent to "satisfy and pay any final judgment." Schrot v. Schoenfeld, 23 App. D. C. 421.

87. Justice temporarily disabled. Sickness. Meyers v. Dwight, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 431.

88, 89. Sanders v. Matthewson [Ga.] 48 S. E. 946.

90. If it is not sufficient, the adverse party may except and have it strengthened or the appeal dismissed. Dieter v. Ragsdale, 120 Ga. 417, 47 S. E. 942.

91. Hagerty v. Lierly [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 542. Even where the justice may be compelled to allow an appeal by rule and attachment. Id.

92. Spencer v. Broughton [Conn.] 58 A. 236.

93. The district court is not required to permit them to justify after such time. Peterson v. Kjellin [Minn.] 101 N. W. 948. Upon denial of the district court to allow them to justify after such time, judgment was properly entered against the appellant. Id. Such judgment, however, could not be entered against the sureties declined by the prevailing party. Id.

Where the interests of co-defendants are not adverse, one may appeal without making the others parties to the bond.[94] A bond is not rendered invalid by a clerical error.[95]

Appellate process and appearance.—Unless required by statute, new process is not necessary;[96] but notice of appeal required by statute must be given.[97] An appeal constitutes a general appearance, and want of service of process,[98] notice of appeal,[99] and irregularities in taking an appeal, are thereby waived;[1] but an appeal does not constitute a waiver of an objection to the jurisdiction of the person,[2] nor does the fact that after the justice overruled the objection he filed a motion for security of costs.[3] Process may be amended where substantial justice will be thereby promoted.[4]

The transcript[4a] must be filed within the time prescribed.[5] A rule of court requiring the transcript to be filed within a certain time after the appeal is perfected is not jurisdictional.[6] An offer to confess judgment need not be included in the transcript.[7] A motion to compel a justice to correct his record must show that it is erroneous.[8] In Montana a defective transcript may be corrected by the appellate court.[9]

The record must show[9a] jurisdictional facts, e. g., that an order granting an appeal was issued;[10] the timely performance of jurisdictional acts;[11] the giv-

94. Slayton & Co. v. Horsey [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 1086. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 1670, providing that the party appealing shall give bond payable to the appellee. Id. [Tex.] 78 S. W. 919. A co-defendant as against whom the action had been dismissed before judgment rendered need not be made a payee on an appeal bond executed by the other. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ivy [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 195.

95. Omission of "Company" from the name of a corporation defendant. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Mears [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 401.

96. The appeal being taken as required by law, judgment against appellee who did not appear is valid. Rowe v. Cannon, Jr. & Co. [Miss.] 36 So. 146.

97. Mills' Ann. St. § 2685, providing that when an appeal is taken by one of several parties the other parties shall be notified of the appeal, and unless served with notice the case shall be continued to the second term, is mandatory and no judgment can be rendered at the first term against parties not served. Miller v. Kinsel [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1075.

See 2 Curr L. 662.

98. Under Mills' Ann. St. § 2687, providing that the appellate court shall hear and determine the cause according to the justice of the case, and that no exception shall be taken to the form of service of process nor to any of the proceedings before him. School Dist. No. 38 v. Waters [Colo. App.] 77 P. 255.

99. Agreeing that two causes of action pending on appeal from a justice's court should be tried together constitutes an appearance. Morgan v. Garretson-Greason Lumber Co., 105 Mo. App. 239, 79 S. W. 997. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4073, providing that appeals allowed 10 days before the first day of the next term of the appellate court shall be determined at such term, and § 4070, providing for notice to appellee if the appeal be not allowed the same day judgment is rendered, an appellant cannot complain of a judgment of affirmance at a subsequent term on the ground that he had no notice when he knew the appeal was triable at such term. St. Louis World Pub. Co. v. Rialto Grain & Securities Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 781.

1. Appearing and permitting the case to remain in court for more than a year without objection. Spencer v. Broughton [Conn.] 58 A. 236.

2, 3. Meyer v. Phenix Ins. Co. [Mo.] 83 S. W. 479.

4. Insufficient description of property in unlawful detainer. Drinkard v. Heptinstall [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 72.

4a. See 2 Curr. L. 663.

5. Miller v. Walker [Neb.] 101 N. W. 332.

6. Right of dismissal should be exercised with discretion. Perkins v. Bridge [Idaho] 77 P. 329.

7. It is sufficient if it be filed and certified to the district court with the other papers. State v. Ellsworth [Neb.] 100 N. W. 314.

8. Statute providing that when a court is satisfied that the return is defective it may compel the justice to amend the same. Fortune v. Wilburton [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 738.

9. Under B. & C. Comp. § 2246, declaring that on filing a transcript the appeal is perfected, where notice of appeal has been given and a transcript filed which was defective for failing to contain certain original papers filed with the justice, the circuit court had jurisdiction to correct the transcript, even to supplying the entire original papers filed with the justice. Hager v. Knapp [Or.] 78 P. 671.

9a. See 2 Curr. L. 663, 665.

10. State v. Machen, 112 La. 556, 36 So. 589.

11. Where the appeal bond recites that the appellant came "within the time allowed by law" and entered his appeal and the record shows nothing to the contrary, the appeal will be held to be in time. Dieter v. Ragsdale, 120 Ga. 417, 47 S. E. 942. The record must not show a tardy filing of an appeal undertaking. Schrot v. Schoenfeld, 23 App. D. C. 421. Bond must be filed within six days [D. C. Code. §§ 30, 31]. Id.

ing of bond or excuse for not doing so;[12] and that the case is appealable;[13] but it will be presumed that notice of appeal has been served.[14] If review is by error, the record or bill of exceptions must show the errors.[15] No presumptions are indulged in favor of jurisdiction,[16] therefore every fact essential to the jurisdiction must affirmatively appear.[17] But where jurisdiction has once attached, the usual presumptions are entertained as to all subsequent proceedings.[18] A loss of jurisdiction by lapse of time will not be presumed against a record sufficient on its face.[19] In Texas, however, it is held that since justices' courts are created by the constitution and exercise certain exclusive jurisdiction, it is not necessary that every fact essential to jurisdiction should affirmatively appear from the record.[20]

Transfer of jurisdiction by appeal.[21]—The district court takes merely appellate jurisdiction by sending up the case[22] and takes none if the justice had none.[23]

The failure to pay trial costs in Georgia entitles the magistrate to dismiss but does not concern appellee.[24] Mere clerical acts may be performed after jurisdiction below is terminated.[25]

In New York an offer of judgment signed by attorney and made after service of notice of appeal but before the return by the justice to the appellate court and before a general appearance on appeal has been made by appellee or the cause is at issue above is good,[26] and the general provision requiring affidavit by an attorney subscribing an offer does not apply.[27]

Dismissal.[28]—Where either party may appeal, an appellant may dismiss against

12. Where the record does not contain the testimony, it will be presumed on appeal that a pauper's oath that he was unable to give a bond for costs was disproved. Cook v. Burson [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 871.

13. Under V. S. 129, a judgment, in an action involving $20 or less is final. Porter v. Bishop [Vt.] 59 A. 176. Declaring on penal bond for $100 shows appellate jurisdiction where it does not appear that recovery must have been limited to $50. Wall v. Mount [Ga.] 49 S. E. 778.

14. Statute providing that appeal may be taken by filing notice with the justice and serving a copy on the adverse party. Morin v. Wells [Mont.] 75 P. 688.

15. Affidavits upon which he decided an objection were not incorporated [§ 311, Code Civ. Proc., amended by c. 72, Sess. L. 1895]. Zeigler v. Sonner [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1028.

16. Justices' courts being courts of limited jurisdiction, jurisdiction of parties and subject-matter must affirmatively appear. Rhyne v. Manchester Assur. Co. [Okl.] 78 P. 558.

17. Recitation that a judgment entered after the time allowed by statute was entered pursuant to an order of the district court is insufficient, being a mere conclusion. Young v. Joseph Bros. [Neb.] 99 N. W. 522. Record merely showing "For violation of promises. Demand $100" is insufficient. Judgment reversed. Ball v. Hall [Del. Super.] 58 A. 1024.

18. Error for the district court to dismiss because the record failed to disclose that a continuance for more than 90 days was with the consent of the parties. Rhyne v. Manchester Assur. Co. [Okl.] 78 P. 558. Where the transcript shows that proceedings were regular, every presumption is in favor of the judgment. Squires v. Martin, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 313; Zelgler v. Sonner [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1028.

19. Record showing appeal from justice to jury on the fifth day after judgment upheld because there may have been an intervening Sunday reducing the time to the statutory one of four days. Puett & Co. v. McCall & Co. [Ga.] 48 S. E. 960.

20. It will be presumed that process has been served. Warren v. Foust [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 323.

21. See 2 Curr. L. 661, n. 83 et seq.

22, 23. Where the justice was without jurisdiction, the district court is also without jurisdiction. Hesser v. Johnson, 13 Okl. 747, 76 P. 181; Times Pub. Co. v. Hill [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 806; State v. Justice Court of Tp. No. 1 [Mont.] 78 P. 498; Baily v. Birkhofer, 123 Iowa, 59, 98 N. W. 594. Where the justice assumed jurisdiction over an equitable action. Johnson v. Stephens [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 192. Jurisdiction of the subject-matter cannot be conferred by appeal. Parker Grain Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Kan.] 78 P. 406. Gen. St. 1901, § 5228, divests a justice of jurisdiction where defendant resides within a city having a city court. Id. A domestic corporation having a general office in such city is a resident thereof. Id.

24. He cannot complain of refusal to dismiss. Stafford v. Wilson [Ga.] 49 S. E. 800.

25. After notice of appeal has been given, the taking of the recognizance and the allowing the appeal and making up the record are clerical acts. Spencer v. Broughton [Conn.] 58 A. 236.

26, 27. Construing Code Civ. Proc. §§ 3070-3072, 740 and 421. Cutting v. Jessmer, 91 N. Y. S. 658.

See generally Confession of Judgment, 3 Curr. L. 719.

28. See 2 Curr. L. 663.

the objection of the opposite party.[29] A judgment of affirmance entered at the instance of the appellee is equivalent to a dismissal.[30]

Pleadings on appeal.[31]—The rules of pleading in the justice's court govern on appeal.[32] It will not be presumed that there were oral pleadings sufficient to authorize the recovery of a sum greater than demanded by the written pleadings.[33] The case may be tried on such pleadings as will secure substantial justice, whether such pleadings were made up in court or before the justice.[34] The main issues and object of action are the same,[35] hence pleadings may not be amended so as to state a new defense,[36] and a counterclaim not filed before the justice cannot be availed of.[37] General denial on appeal is not departure.[38] Motion may be made to dismiss because the complaint does not state a cause of action.[39]

The case is usually tried de novo when appealed,[40] and certain actions treated as if originating in the appellate court.[41] The practice in the district court is applicable to actions appealed.[42]

In order to be available, error must have been objected to in the justice's court.[43] An objection to the admission of evidence cannot be raised for the first time on appeal.[44]

The appellate court may inquire into the jurisdiction of justice's court,[45] though the appeal is erroneously taken to such court.[46] Where it is determined 29. Hart v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 99 N. W. 1019.

30. Statute providing that if the appellant fails to docket his appeal in time, the appellee may docket the case and have the judgment of the justice affirmed. Blair v. Coakley, 136 N. C. 405, 48 S. E. 804. If a recordari granted as substitute for an appeal be not docketed at that or the succeeding term, plaintiff may at a subsequent term docket the case and have it dismissed. Johnson v. Grand Fountain of United Order of True Reformers, 135 N. C. 385, 47 S. E. 463.

31. See 2 Curr. L. 664.

32. Where no demurrer was provided for in the justice's court, an objection that plaintiff had not legal capacity to sue is not waived by appealing. Wendleton v. Kingery [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 102. Where a reply could not be filed below, it was not necessary in the district court. Duane v. Molinak [Mont.] 78 P. 588.

33. Interest. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Dawson Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 298.

34. Drinkard v. Heptinstall [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 72. The appellate court, in its discretion, may allow new pleadings to be filed. Boyce v. Augusta Camp, No. 7,429, M. W. A. [Okl.] 78 P. 322. Such amendments as will promote justice and a fair trial may be allowed. Drinkard v. Heptinstall [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 72. Leave to amend having been obtained by plaintiff while defendant was in court, defendant was entitled to no other notice. Fowler v. Michael [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 321.

35. Cannot dismiss a cause on pleadings filed in the district court without determining the issues made by the pleadings below. Duane v. Molinak [Mont.] 78 P. 588. On appeal from a justice in an action of trespass quare clausum fregit, the judgment of the superior court cannot be an adjudication as to ownership of the freehold. Aliter if the case be begun in the superior court. Weidner v. Lund, 105 Ill. App. 454.

36. Naftzker v. Lantz [Mich.] 100 N. W. 601. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1761, providing that on appeal the cause must be tried anew, where there was no showing that a motion was made to set aside the judgment and dismiss the case, the district court properly tried the issues as presented by the pleadings. Clark v. Great Northern R. Co. [Mont.] 76 P. 1003.

37. Cedar Hill Orchard & Nursery Co. v. Heiney [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 278.

38. Mullins v. South Omaha Street Fair Ass'n [Neb.] 99 N. W. 521.

39. Macon & B. R. Co. v. Walton [Ga.] 48 S. E. 940.

40. On appeal from a magistrate's decision determining an attachment, both parties are entitled to produce testimony de novo. McLane v. Colburn, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 257. See 2 Curr. L. 665, n. 48, et seq.

41. In Alabama, as regards recovery of interest, an action for rent. Anderson v. Winton, 136 Ala. 422, 34 So. 962.

42. Cir. Ct. Rule 7, subd. b, relating to proof admissible under the general issue, applies to an action appealed from a justice's court. Carter & Co. v. Weber [Mich.] 101 N. W. 818. A statute providing that a defect of parties must be raised by demurrer or answer and if not so raised is waived. Miller v. Kinsel [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1075.

43. That questions to witnesses were objectionable. Hellinger v. Marshall, 92 App. Div. 607, 86 N. Y. S. 1051. That certain evidence was inadmissible under the pleadings. Id. A motion for nonsuit on the ground that the evidence did not establish a cause of action raised the point that there was no contract. Bement & Sons v. Rockwell, 92 App. Div. 44, 86 N. Y. S. 876.

44. First Nat. Bank v. Carter [Mich.] 101 N. W. 585.

45. In order to determine its own jurisdiction. Rhyne v. Manchester Assur. Co. [Okl.] 78 P. 558.

46. The district court in Oklahoma has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from the probate court. Rhyne v. Manchester Assur. Co. [Okl.] 78 P. 558.

that the magistrate has no jurisdiction, the cause should be dismissed.[47] In Nebraska, if the judgment of the justice is reversed, the case should be set down for trial.[48] The case should be remanded and not finally decided where evidence was erroneously received under an unsworn answer which however might have been amended in this respect.[49]

Judgment[49a] rendered as provided by statute is proper.[50] Where the appellant dismisses his appeal, the judgment entered should correspond to the judgment of the justice.[51] On dismissal, judgment may be entered against appellant for costs.[52] It is improper to refuse a new trial on appeal from a default which is excusable and where there is a good defense, even though the affidavit is denied and not corroborated.[53]

Further appeal or error.[53a]—The judgment on appeal from a default is itself appealable, being final and affecting a substantial right.[54] Where the court of first appeal wrongly refuses to entertain it on the ground of nonappealability, the remedy is mandamus and not further appeal.[55] When the cause goes further up, the record must show the steps necessary to transfer jurisdiction to the court of first appeal.[56] The jurisdiction of the circuit court must be determined from the record.[57] The supreme court will not interfere with the first grant of a new trial where it does not appear that the law and facts required a judgment in favor of the plaintiff.[58] Objections to appeal proceedings cannot be raised for the first time in the supreme court.[59]

§ 6. Certiorari.[60]—Appeal is the more appropriate remedy to review errors,[61] and if appeal lies, certiorari will not;[62] but certiorari is independent of appeal and it is not obligatory upon an applicant in resorting to the former to assign reason or excuse for not adopting the latter.[63]

The justice is the proper respondent, the adverse party an improper one.[64] Refusal to join will not defeat a co-party's right to certiorari,[65] and if the case is no longer pending as to one, he cannot join.[66]

The petition should be sustained where it brings up only questions of law;[67] where it affirmatively appears that petitioner was not accorded a fair trial;[68] where 47. Should not remand it for that purpose. Riley v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. [S. C.] 47 S. E. 708.

48. Code Civ. Proc. § 601. Westover & Co. v. Van Dorn Ironworks Co. [Neb.] 97 N. W. 598.

49. Stafford v. Wilson [Ga.] 49 S. E. 800.

49a. See 2 Curr. L. 666, n. 63, et seq.

50. Rev. St. 1899, § 4081, providing that if judgment be against appellant it shall be rendered against him and his securities, a judgment entered against appellant for $200 and against the securities for $75, the amount of the bond, is proper. Gwinnup v. Sibert [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 589.

51. For a like amount. Jacobs v. Johnson [Miss.] 36 So. 544.

52. Hager v. Knapp [Or.] 78 P. 671.

53. Kilts v. Neahr, 91 N. Y. S. 945.

53a. See generally Appeal and Review, 3 Curr. L. 167.

54. Kilts v. Neahr, 91 N. Y. S. 945.

55. Robertson v. Southerland, 22 App. D. C. 595.

56. Must show bond or affidavit in lieu of it. Penn Fire Ins. Co. v. Pounders [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 666.

57. On appeal from the circuit in an action appealed from the justice's court and tried de novo, whether the circuit court was without jurisdiction of the subject-matter because the justice did not obtain it is to be solved from the record. This does not include the justice's docket or the minutes of his proceeding, unless made a part thereof by the bill of exceptions. Town of Washburn v. Washburn Waterworks Co. [Wis.] 98 N. W. 539.

58. Bell v. Felt, 119 Ga. 498, 46 S. E. 642.

59. The sufficiency of an affidavit of appeal. Gerhart Realty Co. v. Weiter [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 278.

60. See 2 Curr. L. 666.

61. Computing Scale Co. v. Tripp [Mich.] 101 N. W. 803. Not certiorari. State v. Walker, 112 La. 429, 36 So. 482.

62. State v. Justice Court of Tp. No. 1 [Mont.] 78 P. 498. It must appear that there is no other plain, speedy and accurate remedy. Id. Entering judgment less than ten days after service. Fry v. Armstrong [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 1001.

63. Under Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, arts. 344, 345, providing that an applicant for certiorari must show lack of jurisdiction or injustice. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Keel [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 1082.

64. Anderson v. Morton, 21 App. D. C. 444.

65. Bradford v. Brown, 22 App. D. C. 455.

66. Judgment had gone against him. Bradford v. Brown, 22 App. D. C. 455.

67. Dotson v. Hawes, 120 Ga. 369, 47 S. E. 900.

68. Trial by a prejudiced jury. Kenyon v. Brightwell, 120 Ga. 606, 48 S. E. 124.

the verdict is wholly without evidence to support it,[69] or is for an amount greater than was claimed;[70] but may be denied in so far as it brings under review the verdict of the jury, where a finding in favor of the claimant was not demanded by the evidence adduced in the magistrate's court.[71] Certiorari to correct a transcript will be denied where it appears that because of negligence of the petitioner it is too imperfect to show the grounds of error on which he relies.[72] It must be in the name of a party to the proceeding in the justice's court.[73] In Georgia the petition must be accompanied by a certificate of the magistrate that all costs have been paid;[74] but absence of such certificate is not ground for dismissal of the appeal.[75] Objection that the petition is not verified should be made before it has been sanctioned or the answer of the justice filed.[76]

The notice of the sanction of the writ must identify the case.[77]

The return of the justice, being responsive and covering points of error appearing in the affidavit, is conclusive,[78] and will not be construed to contain all the testimony adduced where it impliedly negatives such fact,[79] but will be construed in harmony with the record,[80] and his affidavit cannot be read to explain what his answer meant.[81] Where the petition attacks a judgment on the ground that it is contrary to the evidence, it is necessary that the record should clearly state the facts on which the judgment was based.[82] In Texas the allegations in the petition should be taken as true.[83] It will be presumed that the authority of the agent who appeared for the plaintiff was proven.[84]

The reviewing court[84a] should correct errors of law,[85] and in common law certiorari such only as are in the record.[86] Irregular proceedings should be made the subject of a motion for a new trial at the time.[87] In the District of Columbia, certiorari removes the case to all intents as if instituted above,[88] wherefore a nonjoining party may be brought in by process or attachment may issue against his

69. Morgan v. Cohutta, 120 Ga. 423, 47 S. E. 971.

70. Kenyon v. Brightwell, 120 Ga. 606, 48 S. E. 124.

71. Hill v. Julian, 119 Ga. 607, 46 S. E. 834.

72. Hager v. Knapp [Or.] 78 P. 671.

73. A petition will be dismissed though the wrong name was placed in the petition inadvertently. Berendt v. McHugh [Ga.] 48 S. E. 691.

74. Receipt signed by the justice that plaintiff has paid him a named sum in full of all costs to date is sufficient. Western & A. R. Co. v. Carder, 120 Ga. 460, 47 S. E. 930.

75. Dieter v. Ragsdale, 120 Ga. 417, 47 S. E. 942.

76. Williams v. Mangum, 119 Ga. 628, 46 S. E. 835.

77. Notice describing a case tried before one magistrate is not notice of a case tried before another in a different court, though there may be a coincidence between the names of the parties. Bramlitt v. Kulman [Ga.] 48 S. E. 713.

78. Hinchman v. Spaulding [Mich.] 100 N. W. 901.

79. A return stating "No stenographer was present at the trial; not all the evidence was taken down by me; I am unable to state all the evidence given" negatives the idea that the affidavit for the writ contained substantially all the testimony. Computing Scale Co. v. Tripp [Mich.] 101 N. W. 803. Answer that verified petition contains "evidence as near as [justice] could state it from memory" is sufficient. Harris v. Daly [Ga.] 49 S. E. 609.

80. Statement that juror was accepted was referred to other than the one stricken from list. Faulkner v. Snead [Ga.] 49 S. E. 747.

81. Faulkner v. Snead [Ga.] 49 S. E. 747.

82. The appellate court cannot act upon an agreement that the petition and answer which are not in conflict shall be taken as true, as this involves the comparison of two different statements and tends to create confusion. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Potter, 120 Ga. 343, 47 S. E. 924. Evidence held to warrant refusal to sustain certiorari. Id.

83. County court should not hear evidence attacking the facts stated therein. Odom v. Carmona [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 1100.

84. No showing to the contrary in the justices' return. Brown v. Knop [Mich.] 100 N. W. 466.

84a. See 2 Curr. L. 667, n. 84, et seq.

85. Failure to dismiss plaintiff's cause of action because he had not served a copy of the account sued on with the summons as required by statute. Thomas & Blake v. Forsyth Chair Co., 119 Ga. 693, 46 S. E. 869.

86. A writ of review brings up only such questions as appear on the judgment roll. State v. Justice Court of Tp. No. 1 [Mont.] 78 P. 498.

87. Improper argument of counsel. Southern R. Co. v. Rollins [Ga.] 49 S. E. 290.

88, 89. Bradford v. Brown, 22 App. D. C. 455. The attachment bond should be made to such defendant and not to his co-defendants. Id.

property.[89] Error in overruling plea to jurisdiction by reason of nonresidence cannot be reached by certiorari[90] nor can the right of the justice to his office.[91]

Judgment.[92]—Final judgment should be entered by the reviewing court where it appears that the justice was without jurisdiction;[93] but otherwise where the final determination of the case does not depend upon a question of law and there are issues of fact involved.[94] This is true though a former certiorari in the same case complaining of the same defect may have been sustained.[95] If discretion is not abused the judgment of remand for new trial will stand.[96]

Liability on bond.—Where a certiorari has been sustained and the case sent back for another hearing, the certiorari bond becomes functus officio.[97]

§ 7. Criminal jurisdiction and procedure.—The power of a justice of the peace to issue warrants and as a committing magistrate and the procedure looking thereto[98] and his jurisdiction of prosecutions for crime[99] and the procedure therein[100] are fully treated elsewhere. Under the Wisconsin constitution the legislature has power to deprive justices of all jurisdiction of criminal cases.[101]

KIDNAPPING.[1]

A wife who has been abandoned cannot be said to kidnap a child of whom she is solely in custody.[2] The crime of taking, decoying or enticing a child from its parents as defined in Nebraska may be founded on any representation inducing the child to leave its father,[3] coupled with intent to detain or conceal the child maliciously, forcibly, or fraudulently.[4] The child's consent is no defense.[5] Six years, the maximum being twenty, is not excessive punishment for an aggravated and immoral case.[6] The child may testify that it left because of the arts and inducements of accused.[7]

90, 91. Anderson v. Morton, 21 App. D. C. 444.

92. See 2 Curr. L. 668.

93. Should not remand the case. Forbes Piano Co. v. Owens, 120 Ga. 449, 47 S. E. 938.

94. Though it appear that the verdict rendered in the justice's court was without evidence to support it. Patterson v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 117 Ga. 827, 45 S. E. 250. See, also, Bryan v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 117 Ga. 827, 45 S. E. 72.

95. Patterson v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 117 Ga. 827, 45 S. E. 250.

96. New trial after two verdicts is not necessarily an abuse of discretion where the case is close and errors harmed the losing party. Faulkner v. Snead [Ga.] 49 S. E. 747.

97. The security is discharged and may become security on a subsequent bond in the same case. Western & A. R. Co. v. Carder, 120 Ga. 460, 47 S. E. 930.

98. See Arrest and Binding Over, 3 Curr. L. 312.

99. Indictment and Prosecution, § 2, 2 Curr. L. 308.

100. Indictment and Prosecution, § 18, 2 Curr. L. 391.

101. Laws 1895, p. 7, creating the police court of Milwaukee, is valid. Heller v. Clarke [Wis.] 98 N. W. 952.

1. See 2 Curr. L. 608.

2. She removed it from the state. Biggs v. State [Wyo.] 77 P. 901.

Note: The common law crime consisted in "the forcible abduction or stealing away of a man, woman or child from their own country and sending them into another." 4 Bl. Comm. 219; 1 Clark & M. Crimes, 456; note 4 Am. St. Rep. 447. There must be actual or constructive force, actual or constructive nonconsent, and a taking into another country. 1 Clark & M. Crimes, 456; note 4 Am. St. Rep. 444. A New Hampshire case (State v. Rollins, 8 N. H. 550) holds that taking into another country is not necessary. In that case, however, the intention to take the child into another state was present and acts had been done looking thereto. Some of the American cases on force, fraud, intimidation and consent are: Moody v. People, 20 Ill. 315; People v. De-Leon, 109 N. Y. 226, 4 Am. St. Rep. 444, and note; Hadden v. People, 25 N. Y. 372; Schnicker v. People, 88 N. Y. 192; State v. Rollins, 8 N. H. 550; State v. Farrar, 41 N. H. 53; Com. v. Nickerson, 87 Mass. [5 Allen] 518.

The elements differ more or less under the statutory forms of kidnapping. See note 4 Am. St. Rep. 449; 2 Curr. L. 608.

3. "Entice" defined. Gould v. State [Neb.] 99 N. W. 541.

4, 5. Gould v. State [Neb.] 99 N. W. 541.

6. Minister enticed a girl of 15, he being married and a father and much her senior. Gould v. State [Neb.] 99 N. W. 541.

7. Enticement of a girl for immoral purposes. Gould v. State [Neb.] 99 N. W. 541. Compare Abduction, 3 Curr. L. 12.

Labels; Labor Unions; Laches; Lakes and Ponds, see latest topical index.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

§ 1. Definitions and Distinctions (389).
§ 2. Creation of the Relation; Leases; Parties (389). Establishment of the Relation (390). Actionable Use and Occupation (390). The Statute of Frauds (390). Breach of Agreement to Make Lease (390). Construction of Leases and Proof of the Terms of Tenancy (391).
§ 3. The Different Kinds of Tenancies and Their Incidents (392). Periodical Tenancies (392). Tenancy at Will (392). Tenancy at Sufferance (393).
§ 4. Rights and Interests Remaining in the Landlord (393).
A. Reversion (393).
B. Right of Re-entry and Control (393).
C. Estoppel of Tenant to Deny Title (393).
§ 5. Mutual Rights and Liabilities in Demised Premises (394).
A. Occupation and Enjoyment (394).
B. Assignment and Subletting (395).
C. Repairs and Improvements (396).
D. Insurance and Taxes (397).
E. Injuries from Defects and Dangerous Condition (397).
F. Emblements and Fixtures (398).
§ 6. Rent and the Payment Thereof (399). Defenses, Set-offs and Reductions (400).
§ 7. Rental on Shares (400).
§ 8. The Term, Termination of Tenancy, Renewals, Holding Over (401). Surrender, Abandonment and Eviction (401). Destruction of Premises (402). Forfeiture (402). Notice to Vacate and Demand of Possession (403). Renewal Under Express Agreement (404). Holding Over Without Agreement (404).
§ 9. Landlord's Remedies for Recovery of Rent (405). Stipulated Right to Relet (406). Distress (406). Attachment (407). Liens and Securities for Payment of Rent (407).
§ 10. Landlord's Remedies for Recovery of Premises (408). Procedure (408).
§ 11. Liability of Third Persons to Landlord or Tenant (410).
§ 12. Crimes and Penalties (410).

§ 1. Definitions and distinctions.[8]—The reservation of rent and allegiance to the title are distinguishing characteristics of the relation of landlord and tenant;[9] but to be a landlord one must be the owner or quasi owner of the property.[10] "Occupation" means a possession pursuant to an agreement sufficient to create the relation of landlord and tenant.[11] A purchaser at foreclosure of a mortgage on a lease is an "assign,"[12] and an executor is included in the term "successor."[13] A lease of real estate for years is personal estate.[14] An unassigned dower interest may not be the subject of a lease containing covenants running with the land.[15] Public wharves may be temporarily leased by the municipality.[16]

§ 2. Creation of the relation; leases; parties.[17]—Tenants in common may by express agreement establish the relation of landlord and tenant between them;[18] but a lease by one tenant in common of the entire estate is void as to the interest of his co-tenant,[19] and so of a demise by one who owns jointly with his wife and another.[20] A wife joining with her husband as lessees of property will be liable for the rent thereof.[21] In Connecticut a married woman may execute a lease containing covenants of right to convey and for quiet enjoyment,[22] and in Indiana a lease by a wife of her property for not longer than three years is not an encumbrance or a conveyance, and may be made without the husband's consent.[23] The unauthorized execution of a lease by an agent may be ratified by the principal under the ordinary rules of agency.[24] An administrator has no authority to lease

8. See 2 Curr. L. 668.
9. Andrews v. Erwin, 25 Ky. L. R. 1791, 78 S. W. 902.
10. Assignee of rent is not a landlord. State v. Elmore [S. C.] 46 S. E. 939.
11. Sterling v. Heimann [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 539.
12, 13. West Shore R. Co. v. Wenner, 70 N. J. Law, 233, 57 A. 408.
14. And voidable by an infant married woman upon reaching her majority. Shipley v. Smith, 162 Ind. 526, 70 N. E. 803.
15. Jackson v. O'Rorke [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1068.
16. Town of Morgan City v. Dalton, 112 La. 9, 36 So. 208.
17. See 2 Curr. L. 669.
18. Evidence held not to show such a relation. Smith v. Smith, 98 Me. 597, 57 A. 999.
19. Lessee held to be a tenant by sufferance. Jackson v. O'Rorke [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1068.
20. Snyder v. Harding, 34 Wash. 286, 75 P. 812.
21. Property for business purposes. Kriz v. Peege, 119 Wis. 105, 95 N. W. 108.
22. Winestine v. Ziglatzki-Marks Co. [Conn.] 59 A. 496.
23. Shipley v. Smith, 162 Ind. 526, 70 N. E. 803.
24. Anderson v. Conner, 43 Misc. 384, 87 N. Y. S. 449; Kriz v. Peege, 119 Wis. 105, 95 N. W. 108.

the lands of his intestate after final settlement and payment of the debt of the estate,[25] nor may a guardian let his ward's property for a longer term than the guardianship.[26] A surety of the lessee has no interest in the leasehold,[27] and is entitled to have his obligation strictly construed.[28]

Establishment of the relation.[29]—Any agreement showing a meeting of minds and including the necessary elements will establish the relation of landlord and tenant.[30] An agreement to give a lease is not a lease unless followed by occupation.[31] Mere possession of the property of another does not necessarily imply the relation,[32] though slight facts tending to show a lessee's dealing with the property may establish an acceptance by the tenant.[33] One cannot claim as tenant while he holds adversely,[34] and material alterations in a lease, unknown and unaccepted by one party thereto are not binding upon him.[35] Tenancies for years or for life may both be created by will.[36]

Actionable use and occupation.[37]—The relation of landlord and tenant may be implied as a matter of law,[38] and if the plaintiff makes out his title as he would in ejectment,[39] he may recover in assumpsit.[40]

The statute of frauds.[41]—An oral agreement to lease for two and a half years[42] or for the extension of a lease,[43] or permission to make alterations in a building, in effect giving ingress and egress for five years, is void under the statute of frauds,[44] as is a lease for more than a year, unsigned by the lessor.[45] But because of part performance by the lessee, equity may enforce against the lessor a lease invalid under the statute.[46]

Breach of agreement to make lease.[47]—The principle of estoppel will be con-

25. Jackson v. O'Rorke [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1068.

26. Any excess thereof is voidable at the election of the ward on coming of age. Jackson v. O'Rorke [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1068.

27. Seattle Brew. & Malt. Co. v. Jensen [Wash.] 78 P. 1007.

28. Surety on an attempted lease for five years not liable under a contract held to be a lease from year to year. Jewett v. Griesheimer, 91 N. Y. S. 654.

29. See 2 Curr. L. 669.

30. An agreement between a purchaser on a mortgage foreclosure and the former owner by which the latter remains in possession for two years after the time to redeem, paying rent with the privilege of redemption, creates the relation of landlord and tenant. Eldridge v. Hoefer [Or.] 77 P. 874. A written agreement under which one enters and takes possession of a strip of land, constructs a tramway thereon and occupies it for three years for a stipulated sum per year is a lease. Asher v. Johnson [Ky.] 82 S. W. 300. Facts held to show the relation of landlord and tenant. Alexander v. Zeigler [Miss.] 36 So. 536. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Ross [Ky.] 83 S. W. 635. Contra, evidence held not to show an oral lease for a fixed period of hotel rooms. Marcotte v. Sheridan, 91 N. Y. S. 744.

31. Goldberg v. Wood, 90 N. Y. S. 427.

32. Defendant held not to be a tenant of his wife's executor. Cook v. Klenk, 142 Cal. 416, 76 P. 57.

33. Smith v. Barber, 96 App. Div. 236, 89 N. Y. S. 317. Evidence held to show an acceptance of premises, though improvements had not been completed as covenanted by the landlord. O'Brien v. Jaffe, 88 N. Y. S. 1009.

34. Snyder v. Harding, 34 Wash. 286, 75 P. 812.

35. Ver Steeg v. Becker-Moore Paint Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 346.

36. Foss v. Stanton, 76 Vt. 365, 57 A. 942.

37. See 2 Curr. L. 670.

38. Story v. McCormick [Kan.] 78 P. 819. A trustee in bankruptcy of a farm tenant, occupying the farm buildings until the crops are sold, is liable to the landlord for his use and occupation thereof. In re Luckenbill, 127 F. 984.

39, 40. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Ross [Ky.] 83 S. W. 635.

41. See 2 Curr. L. 670.

42. Dechenbach v. Rima [Or.] 78 P. 666.

43. Landt v. Schneider [Mont.] 77 P. 307.

44. Peer v. Wadsworth [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 379.

45. Entry into possession held to create a tenancy from year to year. Jewett v. Greisheimer, 91 N. Y. S. 654.

46. Dechenbach v. Rima [Or.] 78 P. 666. The acceptance of a lease by occupying the demised premises will take the lease out of the statute of frauds, though such lease be not signed by the party sought to be charged. Noland v. Cincinnati Cooperage Co. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 627. The surrender of a lease, being a part of the consideration for purchase, constitutes part performance. Yule v. Feil, 123 Iowa, 662, 99 N. W. 559. Merely taking possession and making the payments of current rent does not constitute part performance under the statute of frauds. Otherwise of payment of rent for the entire term or of making valuable improvements. Humphrey Hardware Co. v. Herrick [Neb.] 99 N. W. 233.

47. See 2 Curr. L. 671.

sidered in the construction of an agreement to make a lease,[48] and one may sue for specific performance, without a formal tender of the lease.[49] Under an agreement for a lease, to be submitted to attorneys for approval, there must be some reasonable ground for a refusal to sanction the lease as drawn.[50]

Construction of leases and proof of the terms of tenancy.[51]—A lease must describe the land[52] and the term,[53] state when the rents are payable,[54] and be signed by the parties.[55] A seal imports a consideration as in other instruments.[56] A lease will be construed as a whole,[57] and though words of present demise will be held to give a lease, if no inconsistent purpose appears,[58] the courts will in general adopt the construction which the parties have placed upon it,[59] though under seal.[60]

Express covenants abrogate the operation of implied covenants,[61] and it is only where covenants are dependent that the performance by each party of his own covenant is a condition precedent to his right to recover on the covenant of the other party.[62]

Covenants by the tenant to pay taxes and water charges,[63] to repair,[64] and not to use the premises for the sale of intoxicating liquors, run with the land.[65]

A written lease is presumed to express the whole agreement of the parties thereto up to its execution,[66] and the usual rules on parol testimony to vary a written instrument apply;[67] but an independent oral contract collateral to a lease, for making repairs prior to the beginning of the term, is not merged in the lease.[68] Interpretations of some specific lease provisions are given in the notes.[69] The 48. American Security & Trust Co. v. Walker, 23 App. D. C. 583.

49, 50. Pittsburgh Amusement Co. v. Ferguson, 91 N. Y. S. 666.

51. See 2 Curr. L. 671.

52. Kuntz v. Mahrenholz, 88 N. Y. S. 1002. A lease containing an imperfect and indefinite description of the premises will be held invalid. Dixon v. Finnegan, 182 Mo. 111, 81 S. W. 449.

53. Kuntz v. Mahrenholz, 88 N. Y. S. 1002. It should be definite and certain as to the commencement and duration of the term (Pope v. Miller, 4 Ohio C. C. [N. S.] 564); but where no time is mentioned and no annual rent is reserved, the time will be controlled by the interval of payment (Albey v. Weingart [N. J. Law] 58 A. 87).

54. Kuntz v. Mahrenholz, 88 N. Y. S. 1002.

55. A memorandum will not be considered a lease where it is not signed by the lessee. Kuntz v. Mahrenholz, 88 N. Y. S. 1002.

56. Conant v. Jones, 120 Ga. 568, 48 S. E. 234.

57. Method of termination of tenancy. Schwoerer v. Connolly, 44 Misc. 222, 88 N. Y. S. 818.

58. Ver Steeg v. Becker-Moore Paint Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 346. Lease held to not in effect be a mortgage. Stockton v. Dillon [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 487.

59. Rubens v. Hill, 213 Ill. 523, 72 N. E. 1127; Slack v. Knox, 213 Ill. 190, 72 N. E. 746; Ver Steeg v. Becker-Moore Paint Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 346; Tilton v. Sterling Coal & Coke Co. [Utah] 77 P. 758. A strict construction of covenants will not be adopted where a clear intention of the parties to the contrary appears. Anzolone v. Paskusz, 96 App. Div. 188, 89 N. Y. S. 203.

60. Daly v. Piza, 90 N. Y. S. 1071.

61. Rubens v. Hill, 213 Ill. 523, 72 N. E. 1127.

62. The general rule is that the landlord's covenant to repair and the tenant's covenant to pay rent are independent. Rubens v. Hill, 213 Ill. 523, 72 N. E. 1127.

63. Lehmaier v. Jones, 91 N. Y. S. 687.

64. Lehmaier v. Jones, 91 N. Y. S. 687; Foss v. Stanton, 76 Vt. 365, 57 A. 942.

65. Granite Bldg. Corp. v. Greene [R. I.] 57 A. 649.

66. Gerry v. Siebrecht, 88 N. Y. S. 1034; Moore-Cortes Canal Co. v. Gyle [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 350; Woodward v. Ft. W. & D. C. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 896. Custom of the country will be called in to aid in the interpretation of the contract only where it is silent or obscure. Whorley v. Karper, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 347; Morningstar v. Querens [Ala.] 37 So. 825.

67. Okie v. Person, 23 App. D. C. 170; Donaldson v. Uhlfelder, 21 App. D. C. 489; Richmond Ice Co. v. Crystal Ice Co. [Va.] 49 S. E. 650. The whereabouts of a lease not being known, parol evidence of its contents is admissible (Cooley v. Collins [Mass.] 71 N. E. 979), but a lease of land for a year may be proved by testimony of the contracting parties (Yule v. Fell, 123 Iowa, 662, 99 N. W. 559).

68. Rubens v. Hill, 213 Ill. 523, 72 N. E. 1127.

69. The giving the tenant a refusal of the premises from month to month so long as he may desire to occupy them is a grant of preference if the landlord continue to let them. Drinkard v. Hepinstall [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 72. A lease of land "for the purpose of building and maintaining an ice house thereon" does not include the right to cut ice from the adjacent mill pond. Oliphant v. Richman [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 241. Right to take ice from and to turn hot water into a pond. Walker Ice Co. v. American Steel & Wire Co., 185 Mass. 463, 70 N. E. 937. A lease containing permission to connect with a steam supply pipe does not give a use of the steam with-renting of a building, without an explicit restriction carries with it the subjacent land.[70] Provisions for purchase at the option of the lessee are treated elsewhere.[71] The landlord and the co-tenants are necessary parties to a bill to settle the leasehold right of two sets of lessees.[72] A court of equity having cognizance of a case involving the possession of leased premises, with all interested parties in court, will place in possession the one equitably entitled thereto.[73]

§ 3. The different kinds of tenancies and their incidents.[74] Estate for years.—One in possession under an agreement that if he pay the taxes and the insurance, he may do as he likes with the property except sell it, is a tenant for life, not a tenant at will.[75] In California an estate for years is a chattel real and is not reached by a judgment rendered subsequent to the creation of the estate.[76]

Periodical tenancies.[76a]—One taking possession and paying rent under an oral lease for a term of years becomes a tenant from year to year, in the absence of a limitation upon the term.[77] A verbal lease of city property for a term of eleven months constitutes a tenancy from month to month,[78] and such a tenancy may be created by a holding over of city property,[79] or by the continuance in possession by a purchaser who is in default under an instalment contract.[80] The statute by which tenancies in New York City are deemed to continue until May 1st next after possession commences has no application to a tenancy from month to month.[81] In a month to month tenancy, taking of possession upon the 6th and payment of rent to the 1st of next month constitutes a tenancy from the first of one month to the first of the next month.[82]

Tenancy at will.[83]—A tenancy at the will of the lessee is also at the will of the lessor;[84] but is determined by the termination of the lessor's estate.[85] Entry under a parol lease for five years constitutes a tenancy at will,[86] and one holding over after the expiration of his term is a tenant at will with all the rights which had been annexed to the premises.[87] A tenancy at will is not converted into a out compensation. Smith v. Wenz, 184 Mass. 229, 70 N. E. 57. A provision for payment of penalty by lessor in case of a conveyance refers only to such a transfer as terminates the tenancy. Foley v. Constantino, 43 Misc. 91, 86 N. Y. S. 780. Damage by water in extinguishing a fire is within a provision relating to damage by fire. Roman v. Taylor, 93 App. Div. 449, 87 N. Y. S. 653. A lease granting the right to operate for oil and gas, "the terms of" the "grant shall not exceed 12 years." Held, the word "terms" did not refer to collateral matters attached to the grant, but to the grant itself. Griner v. Ohio Oil Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 126. A provision as to rent "during occupancy" held to mean during the term. Bickford v. Kirwin [Mont.] 75 P. 518. Allowance of damages for total failure to supply water. Moore-Cortes Canal Co. v. Gyle [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 350.

70. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Herkens [Tenn.] 79 S. W. 1038.

71. Vendors and Purchasers, 2 Curr. L. 1976; Contracts, 3 Curr. L. 805.

72. Pyle v. Henderson [W. Va.] 46 S. E. 791.

73. Gaffey v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. [Neb.] 98 N. W. 826.

74. See 2 Curr. L. 672.

75. Schaefer v. Anchor Mut. Fire Ins. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 857.

76. Summerville v. Stockton Mill. Co., 142 Cal. 529, 76 P. 243.

76a. See 2 Curr. L. 672.

77. Humphrey Hardware Co. v. Herrick [Neb.] 99 N. W. 233; Jewett v. Greisheimer, 91 N. Y. S. 654. That such an entry creates a tenancy at will, see Walter v. Transue, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 617.

78. Gerhart Realty Co. v. Weiter [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 278.

79. Sterling v. Heinmann [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 539.

80. Not a tenant by sufferance. McCrillis v. Benoit [R. I.] 59 A. 108.

81. Laws 1896, p. 591, c. 547, § 202. Olson v. Schevlovitz, 91 App. Div. 405, 86 N. Y. S. 834.

82. Ver Steeg v. Becker-Moore Paint Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 346.

83. Evidence held not to show defendant to be a tenant at will. Cook v. Klenk, 142 Cal. 416, 76 P. 57; Salas v. Davis, 120 Ga. 95, 47 S. E. 644. Evidence held not to show a tenancy at will under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 7089. Hancock v. Diamond Plate Glass Co., 162 Ind. 146, 70 N. E. 149. See 2 Curr. L. 672.

84. Beauchamp v. Runnels [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 1105.

85. Lyons v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 209 Pa. 550, 58 A. 924.

86. Walter v. Transue, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 617. That such a tenancy is one from year to year, see Humphrey Hardware Co. v. Herrick [Neb.] 99 N. W. 233; Jewett v. Greisheimer, 91 N. Y. S. 654.

87. Walker Ice Co. v. American Steel & Wire Co., 185 Mass. 463, 70 N. E. 937. But see Sterling v. Heinmann [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 539.

tenancy from year to year by the mere payment of rent, or its duration for more than one year.[88]

Tenancy at sufferance.[89]—Under some statutes all holding over or occupations of premises without express contract or lease constitute tenancies by sufferance.[90] A lessee of the entire estate, from one tenant in common, holds as a tenant by sufferance as to the other tenants in common.[91] Continuance in possession after adverse judgment in an action of trespass to try title does not constitute a tenancy at sufferance.[92]

§ 4. Rights and interests remaining in the landlord. A. Reversion.[93]—A lessor may assign the rent to become due without granting the reversion or may grant the reversion and reserve the rent,[94] but a grant of the reversion carries with it the right to rent thereafter accruing;[95] though a mortgagee does not succeed to the landlord's rights in a lease until he acquires the fee of the property.[96] Upon the severance, by conveyance, of the reversion of lands under lease, the rent will be apportioned among the reversion owners.[97] A purchaser of property "subject to existing tenancies" is presumed to know the nature, terms, and extent of such tenancies,[98] but he may not oust the tenant because of such purchase.[99] One whose deed contained a reservation of a portion of the property to the use of a third party for a specified time cannot claim rent therefor,[1] but he may maintain an action against the tenant for damage accruing after the transfer of the reversion, without an assignment of the cause of action from the vendor.[2] Neither a right of entry nor a right of action for a prior breach can be transferred.[3]

(§ 4) B. Right of re-entry and control.[4]—The term "re-enter" means such re-entry as an action of ejectment and not the statutory proceedings for possession,[5] though it is not restricted to the common-law action of ejectment.[6] A covenant giving the landlord the right to "resume possession" is enforceable though the lease had been terminated by summary proceedings.[7] A right of re-entry for condition broken is good against a purchaser of the leasehold interest upon execution.[8] Re-entry by a landlord after abandonment is not a bar to a recovery of rent due theretofore.[9]

(§ 4) C. Estoppel of tenant to deny title.[10]—During the continuance of a

88. Lyons v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 209 Pa. 550, 58 A. 924.

Contra: Continuance of the tenancy for two years, payment and acceptance of rent. Walter v. Transue, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 617.

89. Evidence held to prove a tenancy at sufferance and not at will. Salas v. Davis, 120 Ga. 95, 47 S. E. 644. Not a tenant by sufferance. McCrillis v. Benoit [R. I.] 59 A. 108. See 2 Curr. L. 672.

90. D. C. Rev. St. § 680. American Security & Trust Co. v. Walker, 23 App. D. C. 583.

91. Jackson v. O'Rorke [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1068.

92. Thomson v. Weisman [Tex.] 82 S. W. 503.

93. See 2 Curr. L. 673.

94. Shea v. McCauliff, 186 Mass. 569, 72 N. E. 69. Writing held to be a conveyance of the reversion. Winestine v. Ziglatzki-Marks Co. [Conn.] 59 A. 496. To constitute a good assignment there must be delivery. Malloy v. Benway, 34 Wash. 315, 75 P. 869.

95. Winestine v. Ziglatski-Marks Co. [Conn.] 59 A. 496.

96. Stewart v. Parcher, 91 Minn. 517, 98 N. W. 650.

97. Apportion it according to values not areas. Gribbie v. Toms, 70 N. J. Law, 522, 57 A. 144.

98. Anderson v. Conner, 43 Misc. 384, 87 N. Y. S. 449; Butte & B. Consol. Min. Co. v. Montana Ore Purchasing Co. [C. C. A.] 121 F. 524; Corre Hotel Co. v. Wells-Fargo Co. [C. C. A.] 128 F. 587.

99. Engler v. Garrett [Md.] 59 A. 648; Yule v. Fell, 123 Iowa, 662, 99 N. W. 559.

1. Evidence held not to show the relation of landlord and tenant. Becker v. Davis, 87 N. Y. S. 422.

2. Shinn v. Guyton & H. Mule Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 1015.

3. Foss v. Stanton, 76 Vt. 365, 57 A. 942.

4. See 2 Curr. L. 673.

5. Lyons v. Gavin, 43 Misc. 659, 88 N. Y. S. 252.

6. Recovery of possession for nonpayment of rent did not terminate the relation of landlord and tenant, so as to entitle the latter to recover a deposit for rent. Anzolone v. Paskusz, 96 App. Div. 188, 89 N. Y. S. 203.

7. Landesman v. Hauser, 91 N. Y. S. 6.

8. Acme Oil & Min. Co. v. Williams, 140 Cal. 681, 74 P. 296.

9. Harding v. Austin, 93 App. Div. 564, 87 N. Y. S. 887.

10. See 2 Curr. L. 673.

tenancy, the lessee is estopped from controverting the lessor's title,[11] as of the date of his lease,[12] though he acquire an adverse and better title,[13] but possession under an alleged lease cannot form the basis of title by adverse possession.[14] One claiming under an alleged purchase may show that the relation of landlord and tenant did not exist.[15] The acceptance of a void lease raises a mere presumption of the recognition of the lessor's title.[16]

§ 5. Mutual rights and liabilities in demised premises. A. Occupation and enjoyment.[17]—In the absence of statute, express agreement or fraudulent concealment by the landlord, he is not answerable to the tenant for the condition of the premises demised,[18] since a rule similar to that of caveat emptor applies,[19] and there is no implied warranty that the property is suitable for the purpose intended,[20] except in the letting of a furnished house for a summer.[21] A landlord is not required to place his tenant in possession, yet he should give a legal right of entry unencumbered by any act of his own,[22] and there is an implied obligation that leased premises shall be completed and ready for occupancy at the commencement of the term.[23] For failure to deliver possession the tenant may recover rent paid in advance,[24] or damages limited to the excess of the rental value over the rent reserved.[25] A covenant of quiet enjoyment relates to unlawful interference with the demised premises by the lessor,[26] and a covenant against molestation of "any other persons" refers only to others deriving their right through the lessor or by a paramount title.[27] To constitute a breach of covenant for possession and enjoyment, there must be an actual,[28] or constructive eviction resulting in surrender.[29]

11. Cambridge Lodge No. 9 K. P. v. Routh [Ind.] 71 N. E. 148. A tenant in possession may not dispute his landlord's title. Harvin v. Blackman, 112 La. 24, 36 So. 213; Meeske v. Miller [Mich.] 101 N. W. 52; Weide v. St. Paul Boom Co. [Minn.] 99 N. W. 421; Fuller Co. v. Manhattan Const. Co., 88 N. Y. S. 1049. Where plaintiff, two years after receiving a deed, leased to defendant in a writing describing plaintiff as owner, the lessee is estopped to claim ownership. Wadge v. Kittleson, 12 N. D. 452, 97 N. W. 856.

12. Tenant may show that landlord's title has subsequently been extinguished. Sherman v. Fisher [Mich.] 101 N. W. 572.

13. Town of Morgan City v. Dalton, 112 La. 9, 36 So. 208.

14. Dixon v. Finnegan, 182 Mo. 111, 81 S. W. 449. Possession under a tax on assessment lease is not adverse to the title of the fee owner. Miller v. Warren, 94 App. Div. 192, 87 N. Y. S. 1011.

15. Horne v. Mullis, 119 Ga. 534, 46 S. E. 663.

16. Presumption overcome by proof of lessee's claim of ownership by adverse possession at execution of the lease. Broad v. Beatty [Ark.] 83 S. W. 339.

17. See 2 Curr. L. 674.

18. Roth v. Adams, 185 Mass. 341, 70 N. E. 445; Shinkle, Wilson & Kreis Co. v. Birney, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 525.

19. Roth v. Adams, 185 Mass. 341, 70 N. E. 445; Prahar v. Tousey, 93 App. Div. 507, 87 N. Y. S. 845.

20. Ducker v. Del Genovese, 93 App. Div. 575, 87 N. Y. S. 889; Prahar v. Tousey, 93 App. Div. 507, 87 N. Y. S. 845; Landt v. Schneider [Mont.] 77 P. 307. A lessee's covenant to use premises only for a lyceum or dancing hall does not imply a covenant by the lessor as to their fitness for such purpose. Lyons v. Gavin, 43 Misc. 659, 88 N. Y. S. 252. A provision of "ready for occupancy" does not necessarily mean fitted by the lessor with fixtures rendering it ready for the lessee's business. Gerry v. Siebrecht, 88 N. Y. S. 1034. Lease held to imply a warranty of fitness for the intended use. Hunter v. Porter [Idaho] 77 P. 434.

21. Rubens v. Hill [Ill.] 72 N. E. 1127.

22. Smith v. Barber, 96 App. Div. 236, 89 N. Y. S. 317. He is not bound to eject a trespasser wrongfully in possession for the benefit of a lessee about to enter. Sullivan v. Schmitt, 93 App. Div. 469, 87 N. Y. S. 714.

23. Pough & Co. v. Cerimedo, 44 Misc. 246, 88 N. Y. S. 1054; Albey v. Weingart [N. J. Law] 58 A. 87. No obligation on a lessee to accept a portion only of the property demised. Smith v. Barber, 96 App. Div. 236, 89 N. Y. S. 317.

24. Meyers v. Liebeskind, 91 N. Y. S. 725.

25. Belding Bros. & Co. v. Blum, 88 N. Y. S. 178. For breach of contract to repair prior to commencement of term, the tenant may recover the rental value of rooms of the boarding house demised, during the time the landlord's default prevented their use. Daly v. Piza, 90 N. Y. S. 1071.

26. Pabst Brew. Co. v. Thorley, 127 F. 439. To impose the penalty of suspension of rent during eviction, it must appear that such eviction was brought about by the landlord or by his agency. Gribbie v. Toms, 70 N. J. Law, 522, 57 A. 144. A covenant for quiet enjoyment is not broken by the entry of a city in the exercise of its power of eminent domain. Pabst Brew. Co. v. Thorley, 127 F. 439.

27. Does not include trespassers. Pabst Brew. Co. v. Thorley, 127 F. 439.

28. Fuller Co. v. Manhattan Const. Co., 88 N. Y. S. 1049.

29. Olson v. Schevlovitz, 91 App. Div. 405,

For wrongful eviction or breach of covenant for quiet enjoyment, a tenant may recover the damages proximately resulting therefrom,[30] but the landlord does not forfeit his rights accruing under the lease and statutes.[31] A lessee may maintain his possession as well against his lessor,[32] or the transferee of the lessor acquiring rights subsequent to the lease, as against strangers.[33] Within reasonable limits restrictions may be made upon the use of leased property,[34] but notice of an intention to vacate is not notice requiring a landlord to enforce a provision for ejecting tenants violating the rules of the house.[35] One may compel his co-tenant to refrain from obstructing the light and air.[36]

(§ 5) B. Assignment and subletting.[37]—As a general rule the power of assignment is incident to a leasehold estate,[38] unless restrained by statute,[39] or by the terms of the lease, in which case an assignment without the assent of the landlord is not void, but voidable at the latter's option;[40] but a rental upon shares is regarded as personal.[41] A tenant subletting without proper authority and thereafter inducing the landlord to oust the sublessee is liable for damages sustained by such sublessee.[42] The purchase of a leasehold operates as an assignment thereof,[43] and the foreclosure of the mortgage of a lease is a breach of a condition against alienation,[44] but otherwise as to the mere giving of a mortgage.[45] The assignment of a lease and the subletting for part of the term are different transactions,[46] and an agreement by a lessee to convey any interest less than all of his is an agreement to execute a sublease and not to assign his lease.[47] A mortgage of a leasehold can have no duration beyond the term of the lease,[48] but an assigument may be shown by parol to be a mortgage security for a debt.[49] Where a person

86 N. Y. S. 834; Fuller Co. v. Manhattan Const. Co., 88 N. Y. S. 1049.

30. Tenant may demand an issue on the damages upon the appeal of summary proceedings or may maintain a separate action [Code, § 1776]. Burwell v. Brodie, 134 N. C. 540, 47 S. E. 47. The measure of damages for breach of covenant for quiet enjoyment is the value of the use of the property less the rent paid (Prochaska v. Fox [Mich.] 100 N. W. 746; Goldstein v. Asen, 91 N. Y. S. 783), but recovery of such damages cannot be had upon the common counts (Prochaska v. Fox [Mich.] 100 N. W. 746). Assumpsit will not lie for the breach of a covenant in a lease under seal. Crandall v. Johnson [R. I.] 58 A. 765. The harrassing and annoying of a tenant by a landlord is not a breach of the contract of leasing though it may support an action in tort. Fuller Co. v. Manhattan Const. Co., 88 N. Y. S. 1049. One alleging a wrongful eviction cannot recover both for the actual loss occasioned by the breach of contract and for wounded feelings caused by the commission of the tort. Harris v. Cleghorn [Ga.] 48 S. E. 959. A landlord wrongfully removing buildings and other chattels from leased premises is liable for the damage resulting to the tenant, regardless of the motive involved. Rice Fisheries Co. v. Pacific Realty Co., 35 Wash. 535, 77 P. 839. In Washington no attorney fee, additional to that allowed by statute can be awarded in an action for breach of covenant by the landlord. Spencer v. Commercial Co. [Wash.] 78 P. 914. Judgment in an action for rent, defended on the ground of boarding up certain windows is not res judicata in a subsequent action for eviction for the same cause, where the premises were not abandoned by the tenant until after judgment in the action for rent. Goldstein v. Asen, 91 N. Y. S. 783.

31. Burwell v. Brodie, 134 N. C. 540, 47 S. E. 47.

32, 33. State v. De Baillon [La.] 37 So. 481.

34. Lessor entitled to specific performance. Peer v. Wadsworth [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 379.

35. Practicing on musical instrument. Sefton v. Juilliard, 91 N. Y. S. 348.

36. Oehme v. Shotland, 90 N. Y. S. 958.

37. See 2 Curr. L. 676. Parol evidence is admissible to identify a leasehold interest conveyed in an indefinite assignment. Ascarete v. Pfaff [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 974.

38. Meyer v. Livesley [Or.] 78 P. 670; Schenkel v. Lischinsky, 90 N. Y. S. 300.

39. Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, § 3250. Ascarete v. Pfaff [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 974; Waggoner v. Cnody [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 355.

40. Scott v. Slaughter [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 643. Lessor held under the evidence to have waived a breach of covenant against assignment by lessee. Warner v. Cochrane [C. C. A.] 128 F. 553.

41. Meyer v. Livesley [Or.] 78 P. 670.

42. Calvert v. Hobbs [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 681.

43. Incorporated Town of Ozark v. Adams [Ark.] 83 S. W. 920.

44, 45. West Shore R. Co. v. Wenner, 70 N. J. Law, 233, 57 A. 408.

46. A covenant against one does not include the other. West Shore R. Co. v. Wenner, 70 N. J. Law, 233, 57 A. 408.

47. Schenkel v. Lischinsky, 90 N. Y. S. 300.

48. Miller v. Warren, 94 App. Div. 192, 87 N. Y. S. 1011.

49. Providence, F. R. & N. Steamboat Co. v. Fall River [Mass.] 72 N. E. 338.

other than the lessee is in possession of leasehold premises, the law presumes the lease has been assigned to him in a manner not violating the statute of frauds.[50] In equity but not at law,[51] a subtenant is chargeable with knowledge of the terms of the lessee's lease,[52] but he is not liable upon the covenants of the contract between the owner and lessee, unless he has contracted to become so.[53] One holding as assignee of a lessee and recognized as a lawful tenant by the landlord may insist on the lease provision for renewal.[54] An assignee is not permitted to question the validity of a sublease where it is not attacked by the lessor.[55]

(§ 5) C. Repairs and improvements.[56]—In the absence of statute or agreement to repair by the landlord,[57] or fraud or concealment as to the condition of the premises on his part,[58] the tenant takes the risk of safe occupancy;[59] but as is provided by statute in some states,[60] this rule does not extend to an outbuilding, appurtenant to the demised premises constructed and maintained for the use in common of the tenants,[61] nor after notice, to that portion of the property not exclusively demised to the tenant,[62] nor to repairs of an extraordinary nature,[63] but refers only to repairs necessitated by the acts of the lessee or his employes.[64] Under a covenant to "keep" and surrender the premises "in as good state and condition as reasonable use and wear thereof will permit" the tenant must put, keep, and leave them in good repair,[65] and a covenant to repair by the tenant runs with the land.[66] For a breach of a tenant's covenant to make repairs and improvements, the landlord may recover the cost of repairing the resulting damage from such failure, also the rental value during the period of repairs,[67] and a landlord is liable for his breach of an agreement to repair, made during the continuance of the tenancy, and based upon a good consideration.[68] Upon breach of a landlord's covenant to repair, a tenant should make the repairs and deduct therefor from the rent,[69] or vacate and sue for damages ex contractu.[70] That a landlord made repairs is not evidence of a promise to keep the premises in repair.[71] A notice to repair need not

50. Weinhandler v. Eastern Brew. Co., 89 N. Y. S. 16; Weide v. St. Paul Boom Co. [Minn.] 99 N. W. 421.

51. Peer v. Wadsworth [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 379.

52, 53. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Keahy [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 1102. Upon assignment of a lease, the assignee is bound to the landlord by privity of estate and the lessee remains liable by virtue of privity of contract. Gutman v. Conway, 90 N. Y. S. 290.

54. Warner v. Cochrane [C. C. A.] 128 F. 553.

55. Teater v. King, 35 Wash. 138, 76 P. 688.

56. See 2 Curr. L. 677.

57. Lehmaier v. Jones, 91 N. Y. S. 687. Civ. Code, §§ 2620, 2621, does not apply to business places. Landt v. Schneider [Mont.] 77 P. 307. Roof protecting one tenant only and not the landlord's tenants generally. Margolius v. Muldberg, 88 N. Y. S. 1048; Whitehead v. Comstock & Co. [R. I.] 56 A. 446; Lyon v. Buerman, 70 N. J. Law, 620, 57 A. 1009. Repairs to elevator used exclusively by tenant. Gray, Estey & Co. v. Corn, 91 N. Y. S. 745; Triplett v. Fauver [Va.] 48 S. E. 875. Water pipes. Spero v. Levy, 43 Misc. 24, 86 N. Y. S. 869.

58. Whitehead v. Comstock & Co. [R. I.] 56 A. 446.

59. Whitehead v. Comstock & Co. [R. I.] 56 A. 446. Excavations on adjacent lot. Serio v. Murphy [Md.] 58 A. 435.

60. Code, § 2455. Richmond Ice Co. v. Crystal Ice Co. [Va.] 49 S. E. 650.

61. Edwards v. Rissler, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 44.

62. Roof pipe and its sewer connections. Levine v. Baldwin, 87 App. Div. 150, 84 N. Y. S. 92. Water system just above the ceiling. Rubenstein v. Hudson, 86 N. Y. S. 750.

63. Rebuilding a wall condemned for defects from time and wear. Street v. Central Brew. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 547. Tenant liable for repair of fence damaged by rains. Jones v. Felker [Ark.] 80 S. W. 1088.

64. Does not refer to a defective pipe for conveying water from the roof to the sewer. Levine v. Baldwin, 87 App. Div. 150, 84 N. Y. S. 92; Ducker v. Del Genovese, 93 App. Div. 575, 87 N. Y. S. 889.

65. Lehmaier v. Jones, 91 N. Y. S. 687.

66. But an assignee of the lessor cannot sue for a breach which occurred before such assignee acquired title. Foss v. Stanton, 76 Vt. 365, 57 A. 942; Lehmaier v. Jones, 91 N. Y. S. 687.

67. Loughlin v. Carey, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 477. The measure of damages for a breach of covenant is the necessary cost of making the repairs. Lehmaier v. Jones, 91 N. Y. S. 687.

68. Frey v. Vignier [Cal.] 78 P. 733. No consideration. Altsheler v. Conrad [Ky.] 82 S. W. 257.

69, 70. Spero v. Levy, 43 Misc. 24, 86 N. Y. S. 869.

71. Galvin v. Beals [Mass.] 72 N. E. 969.

state the particulars and extent of the repairs required.[72] The changing of windows into doors is a violation of a covenant against alteration,[73] and constitutes waste,[74] and in the absence of a covenant to the contrary, a tenant is liable to the landlord for waste, by whomsoever committed.[75] An injunction to prevent waste will not be granted where the alleged wrongful acts are trifling in their nature.[76]

(§ 5) D. Insurance and taxes.[77]—Unless otherwise agreed, the duty to pay taxes rests upon the holder of the legal title,[78] but a lessee may legally bind himself to pay the increase in taxes on insurance because of improvements.[79] A covenant to pay taxes and water charges runs with the land;[80] and under a covenant to pay taxes assessed during the term, a tenant's liability extends to a tax for which the rolls are completed during the term.[81] A lessor cannot recover of his lessee premiums advanced for insurance according to the lease, where the insurance procured was void because of the lessor's misstatement.[82]

(§ 5) E. Injuries from defects and dangerous condition. To tenant or his servant.[83]—In general the rule of caveat emptor applies,[84] and the tenant takes the risk of safe occupancy;[85] but a landlord is liable for injuries from fraudulently concealed defects,[86] though not for those arising from defects of which he had no previous knowledge and of which he could not have known[87] by the exercise of reasonable care.[88] He is not bound to call the attention of his tenant to defects coming into existence during the term,[89] and a tenant knowing the defective condition of the premises may continue a use thereof if exercising due care.[90] A landlord is not liable to one tenant for the negligence of a co-tenant,[91] and may by express agreement shift to his tenant the responsibility to the public for injuries from snow and ice upon the premises.[92] Under a covenant to keep in repair, a lessor is liable in an action ex contractu,[93] for personal injuries to the lessee,[94] or

72. Foss v. Stanton, 76 Vt. 365, 57 A. 942.

73, 74. Peer v. Wadsworth [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 379.

75. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Heikens [Tenn.] 79 S. W. 1038.

76. Butts v. Fox [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 493.

77. See 2 Curr. L. 678.

78. Clinton v. Shugart [Iowa] 101 N. W. 785. Evidence held to show lessee not liable for the taxes. Security Trust Co. v. Liberty Bldg. Co., 96 App. Div. 436, 89 N. Y. S. 340.

79. Gridley v. Einbigler, 90 N. Y. S. 721.

80. Lehmaier v. Jones, 91 N. Y. S. 687.

81. Though they could not be paid before expiration of tenancy. Ogden v. Getty, 91 N. Y. S. 664.

82. Shirk v. Adams [C. C. A.] 130 F. 441.

83. See 2 Curr. L. 679.

84. Steefel v. Rothschild [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 112; Sherlock v. Rushmore, 99 App. Div. 598, 91 N. Y. S. 152. Under a lease reserving the control of the ceiling to the landlord, a tenant may recover for injuries from falling plaster. Golob v. Pasinsky, 178 N. Y. 458, 70 N. E. 973.

85. Flaherty v. Nieman [Iowa] 101 N. W. 280. Ceiling. Kushes v. Ginsburg, 99 App. Div. 417, 91 N. Y. S. 216. A petition not alleging that the fall of a house was due to defects in other parts of the building than those held by plaintiff under a lease does not state a cause of action. Franklin v. Tracey, 25 Ky. L. R. 1909, 78 S. W. 1112.

86. Smith v. Donnelly, 93 App. Div. 569, 87 N. Y. S. 893. Premises infected with contagious disease. Davis v. Smith [R. I.] 58 A. 630. Building known to be unsafe by landlord at time of lease and condemned directly thereafter. Steefel v. Rothschild [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 112; Kushes v. Ginsburg, 99 App. Div. 147, 91 N. Y. S. 216; Lovitt v. Creekmore [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1184.

87. Rear porch railing. Whiteley v. McLaughlin [Mo.] 81 S. W. 1094; Joshua v. Breithaupt, 90 N. Y. S. 1053; Galvin v. Beals [Mass.] 72 N. E. 969. Falling ceiling. Boden v. Scholtz, 91 N. Y. S. 437. Overflow pipe. Bertsch v. Unterberg, 88 N. Y. S. 983.

88. Hedekin v. Gillespie [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 143; Smith v. Donnelly, 93 App. Div. 569, 87 N. Y. S. 893; Udden v. O'Reilly, 180 Mo. 650, 79 S. W. 691. Injury to tenant's servant by elevator. Bogendoerfer v. Jacobs, 97 App. Div. 355, 89 N. Y. S. 1051. Railing of rear balcony. Clarke v. Welsh, 93 App. Div. 393, 87 N. Y. S. 697. Negligent maintenance of common yard. Garrett v. Somerville, 90 N. Y. S. 705.

89. Lyon v. Buerman, 70 N. J. Law, 620, 57 A. 1009. Ice forming in cellar. Whitehead v. Comstock & Co. [R. I.] 56 A. 446.

90. Keating v. Mott, 92 App. Div. 156, 86 N. Y. S. 1041; Hedekin v. Gillespie [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 143. Contributory negligence of subtenant. Margolius v. Muldberg, 88 N. Y. S. 1048.

91. Overflow of water. Sheridan v. Forsee [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 494. A provision of exemption of liability by a landlord to a tenant for certain acts of negligence of other tenants affords the landlord no protection for his own negligence of like character. Levin v. Habicht, 90 N. Y. S. 349.

92. Tenant not liable under the covenant but because of his continuance of nuisance. Wixon v. Bruce [Mass.] 72 N. E. 978.

93. Boden v. Scholtz, 91 N. Y. S. 437; Davis v. Smith [R. I.] 58 A. 630; Spero v. Levy, 43

his family, arising from breach of such contract,[95] but where a landlord has agreed to repair, he must be given reasonable notice of the defects.[96] Under a lease with covenants to repair by the tenant, and an ordinance requiring city inspectors to repair dangerous buildings and charge to the landlord, the latter is not liable to tenant for the cracking of the walls unless negligence is shown.[97]

To stranger.[98]—A lessor being obliged by the terms of his lease to keep the premises in repair is liable for injuries to third persons occasioned by the property becoming out of repair and dangerous after the demise,[99] or for injuries from an existing nuisance at the time of leasing, resulting from defects inherent in the original construction.[1] A licensee cannot recover for injuries from existing defects.[2] In general a tenant's guest cannot sue in tort for injuries from the landlord's breach of covenant to repair, but has an action on the contract.[3] A tenant may be liable to one receiving injuries resulting from the continuance of a nuisance by the tenant,[4] but not to an occupant of an adjoining building for damage from defective plumbing.[5]

(§ 5) F. Emblements and fixtures.[6]—Failure by a tenant to remove, within a reasonable time after expiration of his tenancy, crops which had become his personal property, did not vest title thereto in the succeeding tenant.[7] By custom in Pennsylvania the tenant is entitled to way-going crops.[8] In Missouri, contrary to the general rule, a purchaser upon foreclosure does not acquire the growing crops as against a tenant holding under a lease of later date than the incumbrance.[9] A trespasser has no right to harvest the crop he has planted on the land of another.[10] In Alabama an employe of a tenant on shares cannot maintain trover or trespass against a landlord for taking the crop where no force or violence was used.[11] The common-law right of a tenant to estovers is in force in Iowa.[12]

Manure.[13]

Fixtures.[14]—The law presumes that a tenant does not intend to make trade fixtures a part of the realty,[15] and the general rule is that trade fixtures may be removed before the expiration of the term,[16] if it can be done without injury to the premises;[17] but the right of removal does not subsist under a renewal contract

Misc. 24, 86 N. Y. S. 869; Stelz v. Van Dusen, 93 App. Div. 358, 87 N. Y. S. 716. Failure to make special and urgent repairs. Measure of damages is the loss sustained, not including speculative profits. Ehinger v. Bahl, 208 Pa. 250, 57 A. 572.

94, 95. Schoppel v. Daly, 112 La. 201, 36 So. 322.

96. Galvin v. Beals [Mass.] 72 N. E. 969.

97. Serio v. Murphy [Md.] 58 A. 435.

98. See 2 Curr. L. 680.

99. Edwards v. Rissler, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 44; Schoppel v. Daly, 112 La. 201, 36 So. 322. Where an employe of a tenant of a building was injured by falling down the shaft of an elevator, the door of which was open, the landlord being obligated by lease to carry tenants only, held the landlord owed the employe the duty of exercising reasonable care in guarding the shaft. Breuer v. Frank, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 69.

1. Edwards v. Rissler, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 44. The maintenance of an unsafe ceiling in a dwelling apartment exclusively in the possession of the tenant is not a nuisance. Kushes v. Ginsburg, 99 App. Div. 417, 91 N. Y. S. 216.

2. Flaherty v. Nieman [Iowa] 101 N. W. 280.

3. Davis v. Smith [R. I.] 58 A. 630. Strangers may in certain cases sue, in tort, a landlord for failure to repair. Id.

4. Wixon v. Bruce [Mass.] 72 N. E. 978.

5. McCord Rubber Co. v. St. Joseph Water Co., 181 Mo. 678, 81 S. W. 189.

6. See 2 Curr. L. 680.

7. Meffert v. Dyer [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 643.

8. Whorley v. Karper, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 347.

9. Nichols v. Lappin, 105 Mo. App. 401, 79 S. W. 995.

10. Stebbins v. Demorest [Mich.] 101 N. W. 528.

11. Farrow v. Wooley [Ala.] 36 So. 384.

12. Anderson v. Cowan [Iowa] 101 N. W. 92.

13, 14. See 2 Curr. L. 681.

15. Donnelly v. Frick & Lindsay Co., 207 Pa. 597, 57 A. 60.

16. Cohen v. Wittemann, 91 N. Y. S. 493. But the right continues in a tenant holding over without a formal lease. Donnelly v. Frick & Lindsay Co., 207 Pa. 597, 57 A. 60; City of St. Louis v. Nelson [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 271. West Virginia allows a reasonable time after the termination of the tenancy. Gartlan v. Hickman [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 14.

17. Cohen v. Wittemann, 91 N. Y. S. 493.

of lease where such right of removal is not specified.[18] Whether property is a trade fixture is generally a question of fact.[19] A landlord consenting to removal of shutters from a leased building cannot thereafter claim damages for such removal.[20] One who has failed to pay any rent will not be allowed to remove fixtures according to the lease, upon his offer to pay all arrears.[21]

§ 6. Rent and the payment thereof.[22]—Rent is an incident of the reversion,[23] and can only be recovered where the conventional relation of landlord and tenant exists.[24] One who occupies the premises of another is liable for the rent during such occupancy,[25] irrespective of the validity of his lease,[26] but a lessee assigning his interest with consent of the landlord is discharged from further liability for rent.[27] In Arkansas a tenant wrongfully holding over after statutory notice is liable for double rent.[28] Notice before termination of a lease of a raise in rent in case of holding over is binding upon the tenant though objected to,[29] and such a notice may be left at tenant's place of business with the person in charge if of suitable age and discretion.[30] To hold a tenant who abandons his term for the loss of rent thereby entailed, a landlord is not bound to let the premises remain idle during the remainder of the term; the tenant is acquitted of liability only when the lessor accepts the surrender.[31] A mere protest accompanying a payment of rent does not change its character.[32] A lessee having no knowledge of a transfer of the reversion is not in default for paying rent to the original lessor,[33] and under a lease providing for the deposit of rent in a certain bank, such a deposit constituted payment of the rent.[34] A provision for an annual rent payable in equal monthly instalments on the first of each month does not require payments in advance.[35] Monthly payments to a landlord by a subtenant on behalf of a tenant cannot be regarded as payments on rent previously due so as to affect the running of the statute of limitations.[36] In the absence of proof to the contrary, the court presumed that checks given for rent were in full payment of rent then due.[37] Upon the conveyance of lands under lease, an apportionment of rent is properly based upon rental values, not mere areas.[38] Under a lease providing for rent at 5% of the valuation less improvements by lessee, the premises should be considered as vacant property with clear title in fee simple.[39]

18. City of St. Louis v. Nelson [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 271.

19. Planking and stringers. Crerar v. Daniels, 209 Ill. 296, 70 N. E. 569. Oil derricks and machinery are not fixtures becoming part of the freehold. Gartlan v. Hickman [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 14. Flouring mill machinery is in general an irremovable fixture. Incorporated Town of Ozark v. Adams [Ark.] 83 S. W. 920.

20. Cohen v. Wittemann, 91 N. Y. S. 493.

21. Little Falls Water Power Co. v. Hausdorf, 127 F. 442.

22. See 2 Curr. L. 681.

23. Winestine v. Ziglatzki-Marks Co. [Conn.] 59 A. 496.

24. Parties adversely claiming title. Murphy v. Hopcroft, 142 Cal. 43, 75 P. 567.

25. Rubens v. Hill, 213 Ill. 523, 72 N. E. 1127; Ascarete v. Pfaff [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 974. A tenant who has moved out but not surrendered the keys may be liable for rent during a period of reconstruction following a fire. Schloss v. Schloss [Mich.] 100 N. W. 392.

26. Noland v. Cincinnati Cooperage Co. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 627; Ascarete v. Pfaff [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 974.

27. Though the assignee be insolvent. Ascarete v. Pfaff [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 974.

28. That removal would cause great inconvenience and injury to business is not a defense. Driver v. Edrington & Co. [Ark.] 84 S. W. 783.

29. Stees v. Bergmeier, 91 Minn. 513, 98 N. W. 648.

30. Delivered to tenant's bookkeeper by registered mail. Stees v. Bergmeier, 91 Minn. 513, 98 N. W. 648.

31. Gerhart Realty Co. v. Brecht [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 216.

32. Gerry v. Siebrecht, 88 N. Y. S. 1034.

33, 34. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. Lee [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 492.

35. Goldsmith v. Schroeder, 93 App. Div. 206, 87 N. Y. S. 558.

36. Boughton v. Boughton [Conn.] 58 A. 226.

37. Bon v. Fenlon, 89 N. Y. S. 961.

38. Gribbie v. Toms, 70 N. J. Law, 522, 57 A. 144.

39. Springer v. Borden, 210 Ill. 518, 71 N. E. 345; Columbia Theatre Amusement Co. v. Adsit, 211 Ill. 122, 71 N. E. 868.

Defenses, set-offs and reductions.[40]—Failure to deliver possession of the entire premises leased may amount to a failure of consideration for the lease;[41] and an eviction is a good defense to an action for rent,[42] if occurring before the rent becomes due,[43] but it is no defense that knowing of a conveyance of the reversion the tenant thereafter paid rent to his original lessor,[44] neither is it a defense that he has rendered himself unable to perform stipulations agreed upon in lieu of rent.[45] Re-entry under a defeasance clause terminates a tenant's liability for rent, but not his liability upon covenants surviving the re-entry.[46] The mere long continued receipt of rent when overdue does not constitute an equitable defense.[47] Payment is a matter of defense,[48] and must be pleaded to entitle it to be proved.[49] The lessee may recoup damages arising from fraud by the landlord,[50] but a counterclaim for damages in tort may not be interposed in an action upon a lease for rent.[51] A defense of breach of agreement by the lessor can be shown only under a plea of recoupment or set-off.[52] As an offset to rent, the measure of damages for lessor's failure to repair after a fire is the difference between the rental value of the premises as left by the fire and its condition if repaired as covenanted.[53] Under a written lease binding the tenant to make repairs, etc., he cannot show as a counterclaim a breach of a prior oral agreement by which the landlord was to put the premises in perfect condition.[54] A tenant may be liable to a receiver for the value of occupation after the receiver's appointment, though there be an offset as against the landlord.[55] Failure of a limited partnership to ratify its sublease other than as a subtenant is a good defense relative to rent accruing after its assignment for creditors and its vacation of the premises.[56] Promise by the owner of property leased for stock raising to make good any losses due to a lack of proper fencing is not without consideration.[57]

§ 7. Rental on shares.[58]—In general the parties to a lease providing that a certain portion of the crops go to each are tenants in common,[59] but where the relation of landlord and tenant is created, the title to the crops remains in the landlord until he has received his due proportion;[60] and he may require an accounting

40. See 2 Curr. L. 682.

41. Occupation of portion of premises did not constitute a waiver of his rights. Sullivan v. Schmitt, 93 App. Div. 469, 87 N. Y. S. 714.

42. Goetschius v. Shapiro, 88 N. Y. S. 171; Filkins v. Steele [Iowa] 100 N. W. 851; Gribbie v. Toms, 70 N. J. Law, 522, 57 A. 144; Okie v. Person, 23 App. D. C. 170; Chisolm v. Kilhreth, 88 N. Y. S. 364. Deprivation of light and air from adjoining property is no defense unless it involved the beneficial use of the premises as an appurtenant to the lease. Solomon v. Fantozzi, 43 Misc. 61, 86 N. Y. S. 754.

43. Fuller Co. v. Manhattan Const. Co., 88 N. Y. S. 1049; Klinker v. Guggenheimer, 93 App. Div. 393, 87 N. Y. S. 474.

44. Sullivan v. Lueck, 105 Mo. App. 199, 79 S. W. 724.

45. Noland v. Cincinnati Cooperage Co. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 627.

46. Vogel v. Piper, 89 N. Y. S. 431.

47. Carpenter v. Wilson [Md.] 59 A. 186.

48. Plaintiff not required to show nonpayment. Montgomery v. Leuwer [Minn.] 102 N. W. 367.

49. Fuller Co. v. Manhattan Const. Co., 88 N. Y. S. 1049.

50. Bauer v. Taylor [Neb.] 96 N. W. 268. That the landlord relet on the tenant's account, in a manner not in good faith, is properly pleaded as a defense and not a counterclaim. Vogel v. Piper, 89 N. Y. S. 431.

51. Gerry v. Siebrecht, 88 N. Y. S. 1034.

52. Morningstar v. Querens [Ala.] 37 So. 825.

53. Saffer v. Levy, 88 N. Y. S. 144. For the jury to determine whether lessor repaired after fire according to his covenant. Id. The executrix having pleaded a set-off for rent, evidence of the fair rental value of the premises is admissible, though it does not establish the relation of landlord and tenant. Wright v. Davis, 72 N. H. 448, 57 A. 335.

54. Thomas v. Dingelman, 90 N. Y. S. 436.

55. Receiver appointed under a mortgage executed prior to the lease. Derby v. Brandt, 90 N. Y. S. 980.

56. In re Campbell's Estate, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 424.

57. Ensign v. Park [Kan.] 77 P. 583.

58. See 2 Curr. L. 683. See, also, Agriculture, 3 Curr. L. 137, as to Croppers' Contracts.

59. Fagan v. Vogt [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 664.

60. De Loach v. Delk, 119 Ga. 884, 47 S. E. 204. Under a lease upon shares, the portion reserved to the landlord is rent. Randall v. Ditch, 123 Iowa, 582, 99 N. W. 190.

after each yearly sale.[61] A tenant upon shares is not a mere laborer working for wages, but has an interest in the crops,[62] and upon the death of such a tenant, his estate is entitled to remuneration quantum meruit.[63] A lease upon shares made in reliance on the personal character of the lessee is not assignable without consent of the lessor.[64] An oil lease in consideration of royalties contains an implied covenant for diligent operation after oil is struck.[65]

§ 8. The term, termination of tenancy, renewals, holding over.[66]—A provision for termination of tenancy for breach of covenant may be a condition or a conditional limitation,[67] but in general a default by the lessee in the conditions of the lease, ipso facto terminates his rights thereunder.[68] Upon the termination of a tenancy by the landlord, the tenant may recover a deposit made by him as a guarantee of his fulfillment of the covenants,[69] but not if recovery of possession is had for nonpayment of rent.[70] Conveyance of property by a lessor does not per se terminate a tenancy,[71] and changes in the personnel of a tenant, acquiesced in by the lessor do not terminate a tenancy at will.[72] Under a lease that will expire after three years from a given date if the property be sold, the tenancy is terminated by a sale after the date specified.[73] In Mississippi a tenancy "by the month" can only be terminated at the end of a monthly term after proper notice.[74] The homestead interest of a widow being that of occupancy only, her abandonment of such interest terminates an unexpired lease she had previously made.[75] A subtenant's right of possession falls with a termination of the principal lease according to its terms.[76]

A lease may be rescinded,[77] if reasonable diligence be shown,[78] for failure of a lessor to deliver possession at the beginning of the specified term,[79] or for fraud by the lessor.[80] Suit by a lessee to enforce his claims as equitable owner of part of the land is a rescission of the lease,[81] and an action by the landlord to recover the land and quiet title is an acceptance of such rescission.[82]

Surrender, abandonment and eviction.[83]—A surrender may occur by operation of law.[84] Where after abandonment, the landlord relets in his own name, the tenancy is terminated;[85] but where a right to abandon premises arises, the tenant must 61. Price v. Grice [Idaho] 79 P. 387.

62. Parker v. Brown, 136 N. C. 280, 48 S. E. 657. Tenant on shares may assert his rights against his landlord by a laborer's lien, but cannot maintain trover. De Loach v. Delk, 119 Ga. 884, 47 S. E. 204. Failure of a tenant to sue for recovery of possession after entry, dispossession and seizure of crops by the landlord does not defeat the tenant's right to recover the value of the crops. Fagan v. Vogt [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 664. In an action for breach of a lease upon royalties, evidence as to what the owner would take for the property, is inadmissible as relating to the measure of damages. Burwell v. Brodie, 134 N. C. 540, 47 S. E. 47.

63. Parker v. Brown, 136 N. C. 280, 48 S. E. 657.

64. Meyer v. Livesley [Or.] 78 P. 670.

65. Acme Oil & Mining Co. v. Williams, 140 Cal. 681, 74 P. 296.

66. See 2 Curr. L. 684.

67. Martin v. Crossley, 91 N. Y. S. 712.

68. Gartlan v. Hickman [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 14.

69. Hecklau v. Hauser [N. J. Law] 59 A. 18.

70. Anzolone v. Parkusz, 96 App. Div. 188, 89 N. Y. S. 203.

71. Foley v. Constantino, 43 Misc. 91, 86 N. Y. S. 780.

72. Walker Ice Co. v. American Steel & Wire Co., 185 Mass. 463, 70 N. E. 937.

73. Hickox v. Seegner [Wis.] 101 N. W. 357.

74. Wilson v. Wood [Miss.] 36 So. 609.

75. Jones v. Green [Ky.] 83 S. W. 582.

76. Bove v. Coppola, 91 N. Y. S. 8. One having desk privileges in the room of a tenant has no right of action against the landlord for dispossession of himself with the tenant for the latter's nonpayment of rent. Eaton v. Hall, 43 Misc. 153, 88 N. Y. S. 260.

77. See 2 Curr. L. 684.

78. Oppenheimer v. Clunie, 142 Cal. 313, 75 P. 899.

79. Meyers v. Liebeskind, 91 N. Y. S. 725. Evidence showed a waiver of right of cancellation. Smith v. Barber, 96 App. Div. 236, 89 N. Y. S. 317.

80. Bauer v. Taylor [Neb.] 96 N. W. 268.

81, 82. Snyder v. Harding, 34 Wash. 286, 75 P. 812.

83. See 2 Curr. L. 685.

84. Gerhart Realty Co. v. Brecht [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 216.

85. Gutman v. Conway, 90 N. Y. S. 290; Fleischmann Realty & Construction Co. v. Morison, 88 N. Y. S. 128.

remove with reasonable promptitude.[86] Manual delivery is often material in determining surrender,[87] though in general the acceptance of a new lease by the lessee constitutes a surrender of the preceding one.[88] The acceptance of surrender of a lease terminates the relation of landlord and tenant,[89] is a bar to recovery for a breach of covenant,[90] and though in case of surrender between rent days, the tenant is discharged from liability for rent from the last rent day,[91] it has no effect upon accrued rent, though payable in advance.[92] An acceptance may be by the secretary of a corporation,[93] or by an agent having authority to modify a lease, though it provide for surrender only upon the written consent of the landlord.[94] Formal notice of an intention to vacate is not necessary.[95] An eviction may consist of the exclusion of the tenant from a substantial portion of the demised premises,[96] the renting of a part of the building for lewd purposes,[97] the arbitrary exclusion of a tenant's servant from the use of the elevator,[98] failure to heat as agreed,[99] or the alteration,[1] or damage by fire of the premises destroying their usefulness;[2] but allowing premises to fall into a state of decay does not necessarily constitute an eviction, nor a breach of a covenant for quiet enjoyment,[3] nor do alterations, improvements and repairs made with the consent of the tenant,[4] nor an assault upon a tenant by a hall boy, even if imputable to the landlord;[5] neither does violation by a co-tenant, of a lease provision against practicing upon musical instruments.[6] Whether the acts of a landlord amount to an eviction is frequently a question of fact.[7]

Destruction of premises.[8]—Since the renting of a building carries with it the subjacent land, the destruction of the building does not necessarily terminate the relation of landlord and tenant.[9]

Forfeiture.[10]—The general rule is that forfeitures are discountenanced by the 86. Butler v. Carillo, 88 N. Y. S. 941. The New York statute permits a tenant to surrender a building if it becomes untenantable and releases him from liability for the rent [Laws 1896, p. 589, c. 547]. Roman v. Taylor, 93 App. Div. 449, 87 N. Y. S. 653. Unless there be a specific agreement to the contrary. Id.

87. Lester Agricultural Chemical Works v. Selby [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 247. The turning over of property by the tenant to designated persons at the request of the landlord's agent and secretary constitutes a surrender of a lease under seal. Commercial Hotel Co. v. Brill [Wis.] 101 N. W. 1101. Evidence held not to show a surrender of a lease. Weil v. Witte, 90 N. Y. S. 287.

88. But not where accepted by the president of a corporation acting beyond his authority. Lester Agricultural Chemical Works v. Selby [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 247.

89. Okie v. Person, 23 App. D. C. 170. Leaving the key at lessor's place of business and under his protest does not constitute an acceptance. Landt v. Schneider [Mont.] 77 P. 307. The giving by a landlord of a license of way to city, similar to that granted by the tenant, after abandonment of the premises by the tenant, does not constitute an acceptance of the abandonment. Pierson v. Hughes, 87 N. Y. S. 223.

90. Cohen v. Wittemann, 91 N. Y. S. 493.

91, 92. Okie v. Person, 23 App. D. C. 170.

93. Commercial Hotel Co. v. Brill [Wis.] 101 N. W. 1101.

94. Goldsmith v. Schroeder, 93 App. Div. 206, 87 N. Y. S. 558.

95. Filkins v. Steele [Iowa] 100 N. W. 851.

96. Perniciaro v. Veniero, 90 N. Y. S. 369.

97. Weiler v. Pancoast [N. J. Law] 58 A. 1084.

98. Eschmann v. Atkinson, 91 N. Y. S. 319.

99. Filkins v. Steele [Iowa] 100 N. W. 851.

1. Gribbie v. Toms, 70 N. J. Law, 522, 57 A. 144.

2. Goetschius v. Shapiro, 88 N. Y. S. 171.

3. Roth v. Adams, 185 Mass. 341, 70 N. E. 445.

4. Olson v. Schevlovitz, 91 App. Div. 405, 86 N. Y. S. 834.

5. Haas v. Ketcham, 87 N. Y. S. 411.

6. Enforcement of such a provision is optional with the landlord. Sefton v. Juilliard, 91 N. Y. S. 348.

7. Rubens v. Hill, 213 Ill. 523, 72 N. E. 1127. Whether the giving of singing lessons in an adjoining apartment was a constructive eviction may be for the jury. Chisolm v. Kilbreth, 88 N. Y. S. 364. As to whether the elevator service was interrupted for an unreasonable time for repairs was for the jury. Ardsley Hall Co. v. Sirrett, 86 N. Y. S. 792. Constructive eviction. Chisolm v. Kilbreth, 88 N. Y. S. 364. No eviction where landlord, before expiration of lease serves notice to vacate or legal measures would be taken, and tenant thereupon moves out without protest. Greenberg v. Murphy, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 531.

8. See 2 Curr. L. 685.

9. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Heikens [Tenn.] 79 S. W. 1038. But see Goetschius v. Shapiro, 88 N. Y. S. 171.

10. See 2 Curr. L. 686.

courts,[11] and the requirements of a lease must be strictly followed by the lessor before a forfeiture will be enforced against the lessee.[12] The right of forfeiture may be exercised by the covenantee only,[13] who may waive his rights;[14] but the assignee of a lessor who has waived a forfeiture cannot enforce such forfeiture.[15] Generally the acceptance of rent is a recognition of a continuation of the tenancy and a waiver of forfeiture;[16] but the acceptance of rent after an alleged breach of a continuing condition is no bar to a recovery for subsequent breaches.[17] A tender, after forfeiture, of royalties due under a lease, is not a bar to the lessor's right to insist on the forfeiture.[18] Forfeiture of oil and gas lease is worked by failure to drill within the prescribed time or to pay the rental;[19] but such a forfeiture does not carry with it the oil derricks and machinery.[20]

Notice to vacate and demand of possession.[21]—A notice to vacate for breach of covenants must be sufficiently specific to inform the tenant of the breach complained of,[22] but in general a substantial compliance with the statute as to notice is sufficient.[23] Service upon one of two or more partners,[24] or in the tenant's absence, upon his wife,[25] or upon his agent who on the same day delivered the notice to his principal, is sufficient.[26] The reasonableness of a notice to vacate must depend upon the surrounding circumstances.[27] Permission to a tenant to remain, notice to quit having been served, may constitute a withdrawal of the notice,[28] as may the giving of a second notice.[29] One holding by claim of adverse title is not entitled to notice to remove before suit is brought.[30] Under a lease giving the tenant a refusal of the premises from month to month, the tenancy terminates at the end of each month and no notice to quit is necessary.[31] A tenant claiming to hold a lease for a definite term is not estopped from claiming as a tenant at will

11. Acme Oil & Min. Co. v. Williams, 140 Cal. 681, 74 P. 296; In re Adams, 134 F. 142; Johnson v. Lehigh Valley Traction Co., 130 F. 932. A court of equity will relieve a lessee of a forfeiture caused by the neglect of the landlord. Pyle v. Henderson [W. Va.] 46 S. E. 791. Equity will relieve from forfeiture under an oil lease for failure to pay rentals when compensation can be fully made. Id. Equity will not grant relief against forfeiture for failure to pay taxes unless the breach occurred by accident or mistake. Landlord's estate sold to pay the taxes. Webb v. King, 21 App. D. C. 141; Gordon v. Richardson, 185 Mass. 492, 70 N. E. 1027.

12. Johnson v. Lehigh Valley Traction Co., 130 F. 932. A lease will not be declared forfeited for failure to pay water rent unless it has been demanded. Carpenter v. Wilson [Md.] 59 A. 186. The breach of a negative covenant may be ground for forfeiture. West Shore R. Co. v. Wenner, 70 N. J. Law, 233, 57 A. 408.

13. Hancock v. Diamond Plate Glass Co., 162 Ind. 146, 70 N. E. 149; Bickford v. Kirwin [Mont.] 75 P. 518.

14. In re Adams, 134 F. 142.

15. McConnell v. Pierce, 210 Ill. 627, 71 N. E. 622.

16. Granite Bldg. Corp. v. Greene [R. I.] 57 A. 649. But not when a statutory bond is given to pay the rent, pending ejectment proceedings. Id.

17. Granite Bldg. Corp. v. Greene [R. I.] 57 A. 649.

18. Acme Oil & Min. Co. v. Williams, 140 Cal. 681, 74 P. 296.

19. Meek v. Cooney, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 266.

20. Acme Oil & Min. Co. v. Williams, 140 Cal. 681, 74 P. 296.

21. See 2 Curr. L. 686.

22. Byrkett v. Gardner, 35 Wash. 668, 77 P. 1048. A notice to vacate for nonpayment of rent must specify the amount claimed. Id.

23. Rev. St. 1887, §§ 5093, 5094. Hunter v. Porter [Idaho] 77 P. 434. Description of a place by its reputed name is sufficient in the demand for possession. Story v. Walker [N. J. Law] 58 A. 349. Notice signed by a law clerk in the name of the owner and her attorneys is sufficient. Bond v. Chapman, 34 Wash. 606, 76 P. 97. Form of notice [Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7093]. Cheek v. Preston [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 1048.

24. Maneely v. Mayers, 43 Misc. 380, 87 N. Y. S. 471.

25. Tenant absent from the state. Gerhart Realty Co. v. Weiter [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 278.

26. Ewing v. O'Malley [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 1087.

27. Wheeler v. Wheeler [Vt.] 59 A. 842. Lease held to give landlord the right to terminate the tenancy upon five days' notice only on breach of covenant as to manner of use by the lessee. Schwoerer v. Connolly, 44 Misc. 222, 88 N. Y. S. 818.

28. Brown v. Montgomery, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 262.

29. Not when suit is pending upon the first notice. Ewing v. O'Malley [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 1087.

30. Davis v. Clinton, 25 Ky. L. R. 2021, 79 S. W. 259.

31. Drinkard v. Hepinstall [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 72.

and entitled to the statutory notice, where by the landlord's own case a tenancy at will exists.[32] A demand for possession is sufficient to prevent a renewal by continued occupancy,[33] and proof of service of notice to quit will overcome a presumption that a tenant is holding over with permission of the landlord.[34] A notice served on the 2nd to quit on the 23rd of the same month, being the end of the monthly rent period, is sufficient in Washington.[35] In Nebraska a tenant in default of rent is entitled to but three days' notice.[36] In Vermont no notice to quit is necessary in case of a lessee holding over after termination of a lease by its own limitation or after breach by him of a stipulation contained therein.[37]

Renewal under express agreement.[38]—Unless otherwise provided a renewal is for the term and according to the conditions of the original agreement;[39] but the law does not favor agreements for perpetual renewal.[40] Provisions relating to renewals are generally construed against the landlord,[41] and upon his breach of covenant for renewal, the lessee may require specific performance,[42] where the conduct of the tenant as such has not been inequitable,[43] or he has not waived his right to a renewal.[44] A lease for a term of years with option to the lessor to renew for another like period or else pay for buildings erected by the lessee is satisfied by one renewal.[45] The acceptance of a new lease is equivalent to a surrender of possession and a re-entry under the new tenancy,[46] and releases a surety on the prior agreement.[47] Where a lease provides for renewal upon notice, the tenant must affirmatively express his election unless waived by the landlord;[48] but under a demise allowing renewal without requiring a written notice thereof, mere holding over may be sufficient.[49] A holding over pursuant to a new verbal letting constitutes a tenancy from month to month of a city leasehold.[50]

Holding over without agreement.[51]—A holding over without a new lease is pre-

32. Comp. Laws 1897, § 9257. Simons v. Detroit Twist Drill Co. [Mich.] 99 N. W. 862.

33. Drinkard v. Hepinstall [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 72.

34. Thull v. Allen [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1024.

35. Teater v. King, 35 Wash. 138, 76 P. 688.

36. Hutzel v. Draper [Neb.] 99 N. W. 263.

37. Wheeler v. Wheeler [Vt.] 59 A. 842.

38. See 2 Curr. L. 687.

39. Gerhart Realty Co. v. Brecht [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 216. Does not carry with it a parol contract made subsequent to the former lease. Slack v. Knox, 213 Ill. 190, 72 N. E. 746.

40. "With the privilege of renewal at the same rate and terms each year thereafter from year to year" constituted letting from month to month after expiration of terms specified. Tischner v. Rutledge, 35 Wash. 285, 77 P. 388.

41. Kaufmann v. Liggett, 209 Pa. 87, 58 A. 129. A lessor violating a covenant for renewal cannot require a strict compliance with the lessee's covenants. Warner v. Cochrane [C. C. A.] 128 F. 553. The covenants of an existing lease may furnish consideration for a contract of renewal. Brown v. Montgomery, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 262. Upon renewal equity will not compel an arbitration, though provided for in the lease, but will order an appraisement. Disagreement of arbitrators does not divest a tenant of his rights. Kaufmann v. Liggett, 209 Pa. 87, 58 A. 129.

42. Warner v. Cochrane [C. C. A.] 128 F. 553; Neiderstein v. Cusick, 178 N. Y. 543, 71 N. E. 100.

43. Bankruptcy of tenant not sufficient ground for annulling the renewal clause. Olden v. Sassman [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 1075.

44. Whitaker v. Hughes [Okl.] 78 P. 383.

45. Powell v. Pierce [Va.] 49 S. E. 666.

46. City of St. Louis v. Nelson [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 271.

47. Reading Trust Co. v. Jackson, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 69.

48. Spangler v. Rogers, 123 Iowa, 724, 99 N. W. 580; Keppler Bros. v. Heinrichsdorf, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 112; Gerhart Realty Co. v. Brecht [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 216. Mere holding over is not sufficient, though the lessee covenanted not to relinquish the premises without the written consent of the lessor. Spangler v. Rogers, 123 Iowa, 724, 99 N. W. 580. Evidence held to show the necessity of a new lease to operate as a renewal under an option therefor. Werlein v. Janssen, 112 La. 31, 36 So. 216.

49. Gerhart Realty Co. v. Brecht [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 216; Quade v. Fitzloff [Minn.] 100 N. W. 660.

50. But mere temporary use may be but a license. Sterling v. Heimann [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 539.

51. See 2 Curr. L. 688.

NOTE. Tenants in common; holding over: A and B leased a building of which they were co-tenants, to a firm composed of B and C. Upon the expiration of the lease, B, against the will of A, gave the firm written permission to occupy the premises temporarily pending removal. The lessees accordingly held over, whereupon A sued for his fraction of rent for the new year. Held, that the defendants are to be regarded as occupying sumed to be upon the conditions of the expired agreement,[52] though in some states a one-year term is thereby implied.[53] Payment of a specified increase of rent constitutes an acceptance of the premises at such amount for another term.[54] The holding over of one under authority of the lessee is binding upon the latter.[55]

§ 9. Landlord's remedies for recovery of rent. Parties and procedure generally.[56]—A lessee and one joint lessor may be estopped from objecting to a recovery by the other lessor, of the rent due.[57] In Missouri to entitle a purchaser of land under lease to bring suit for the rent, a demand therefor must be made together with an exhibit of the deed under which he claims.[58] The relation of landlord and tenant is a prerequisite to an action for use and occupation,[59] and there can be no recovery in the absence of proof as to the rental value[60] and its nonpayment by the tenant;[61] but whether or not rent was demanded is immaterial.[62] Assumpsit quantum meruit will not lie for a recovery of rent under an express contract to pay at a particular time or in a particular way,[63] and upon an attempted recovery for use and occupation at an agreed monthly rent or a reasonable rate, no recovery can be had on the theory of a tenancy at will with payments of rent annually due.[64] To compel election between inconsistent remedies both must exist at the time of resort to one of them.[65] An action for recovery of rent is not barred by previous action for recovery of possession and for mesne profits,[66] nor is it a waiver of the right of forfeiture of the lease for nonpayment of such rent, nor a bar to a forceable detainer action.[67] A tenant abandoning his term is acquitted of liability only when the lessor accepts the surrender.[68]

the premises after the expiration of the lease as co-tenants of the plaintiff, and are liable, at most, only for occupation rent. Valentine v. Healy, 178 N. Y. 391.

The tendency of the more recent decisions, as well as the English practice, is opposed to the New York rule that a tenant in common who has taken a lease of the moiety of his co-tenant, is not liable as under a new lease for holding over. See O'Connor v. Delaney, 53 Minn. 247, 39 Am. St. Rep. 601; Leigh v. Dickeson, L. R. 15 Q. B. Div. 60. The New York court has, however, extended the principle by including within it the case stated. It is clear that the firm of B and C occupied the premises purely by virtue of the relationship of landlord and tenant which the lease established between it on the one side and A and B on the other; and it is difficult to see how it can be held to shift to the position of co-tenant, especially since one of its members had no interest in the property. If a partnership may properly be considered a distinct legal entity, the view advanced becomes more difficult to support. See Henry v. Anderson, 77 Ind. 361; Valentine v. Healy, 86 Hun [N. Y.] 259. Furthermore, to attain the result reached here one must do violence to the rule that one tenant in common cannot bind his co-tenant without the latter's consent. Mussey v. Holt, 24 N. H. 248, 55 Am. Dec. 234.—18 Harvard L. R. 70.

52. Woodward v. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 896.

53. Flomerfelt v. Dillon, 88 N. Y. S. 132; Pierson v. Hughes, 87 N. Y. S. 223. In Kentucky a tenant holding over for 90 days without the institution of proceedings to dispossess him may hold for a year [Ky. St. 1903, § 2295]. Asher v. Johnson [Ky.] 82 S. W. 300.

54. Laws 1901, p. 31, c. 31, held constitutional. Stees v. Bergmeier, 91 Minn. 513, 98 N. W. 648.

55. Morgenthau v. Beaton, 88 N. Y. S. 359.

56. See 2 Curr. L. 688.

57. Foreman v. Saunders [Minn.] 100 N. W. 93.

58. Rev. St. 1899, §§ 4136-4138. Sullivan v. Luech, 105 Mo. App. 199, 79 S. W. 724.

59. Cambridge Lodge No. 9, K. P. v. Routh [Ind.] 71 N. E. 148. One suing upon a verbal lease made by an agent must adopt the whole of the contract, regardless of agent's authority to make some of its provisions. Shinn v. Guyton & H. Mule Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 1015.

60. Ambrose v. Hyde [Cal.] 79 P. 64.

61. But such defect may be waived by defendant's admission of nonpayment. Butler v. Carillo, 88 N. Y. S. 941.

62. Fuller Co. v. Manhattan Const. Co., 88 N. Y. S. 1049.

63. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Ross [Ky.] 83 S. W. 635.

64. Boughton v. Boughton [Conn.] 58 A. 226.

65. Forcible detainer and action for rent under lease. Mark v. Schumann Piano Co., 105 Ill. App. 490.

66. Linke v. Walcott, 5 Ohio Circ. R. (N. S.) 54.

67. Mark v. Schumann Piano Co., 105 Ill. App. 490.

68. Gerhart Realty Co. v. Brecht [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 216. The measure of a lessee's liability for unlawful abandonment can only be determined after re-entry, at the end of the rent periods. Vogel v. Piper, 89 N. Y. S. 431. Under a right to relet and apply the proceeds to the lessee's credit, a recovery may be had before the expiration of the term for the rent due before re-entry.

A lessee is responsible for the rent of property in possession of his subtenants not in privity of contract with the lessor,[60] and it will not be presumed that the tenant had assigned his lease in the absence of proof that another was in possession of the entire premises.[70] A guaranty of rent, under seal, imports a consideration and suit may be brought thereon for a default in the rent.[71] In Kansas a recovery of rent, where the relation of landlord and tenant is implied as a matter of law, is limited to a period of three years prior to commencement of the action.[72] The general rules as to procedure and evidence apply.[73] Judgment for rent and eviction is conclusive of the existence of the relation of landlord and tenant, the validity of the lease and the landlord's right to regain possession.[74]

Stipulated right to relet.[75]

Distress.[76]—In general, at common law, all goods and chattels upon the premises were liable to distress for rent;[77] among the many exceptions to this rule are the exemptions of goods entrusted to an agent to be sold on commission,[78] property held by the tenant as bailee,[79] goods of the tenant taken in execution though remaining on the premises,[80] and household goods belonging to a stranger not in a house but temporarily standing on the sidewalk in course of removal to a wagon.[81] The filing of a counter-affidavit to a distress warrant is a plea to the merits,[82] and converts the warrant into mesne process, the proceeding then amounting to a suit for rent.[83] For a wrongful distress, a tenant in Pennsylvania may bring replevin, or an action under the state statute, or the statute of Marlbridge or under the common law.[84] The creation of another lien upon the property is not effectual to defeat the landlord's right to distress for one year's rent;[85] and by statute in Virginia a landlord may distrain for more than one year's rent if no lien has been created upon the property before levy of the distress warrant.[86]

Harding v. Austin, 93 App. Div. 564, 87 N. Y. S. 887.

69, 70. Ely v. Winans, 88 N. Y. S. 929.

71. Roth v. Adams, 185 Mass. 341, 70 N. E. 445.

72. Story v. McCormick [Kan.] 78 P. 819.

73. In an action for rent, plaintiff is not entitled to an adjournment on the ground of surprise where the evidence complained of is in fact immaterial. Nieberg v. Greenberg, 91 N. Y. S. 83. Appearance and answer, without objection in the trial court, is a waiver of irregularity in service of process. Martin v. Crossley, 91 N. Y. S. 712. The complaint must sufficiently describe the property. Morningstar v. Querens [Ala.] 37 So. 825. Amendment of petition. Schmidt v. Brittain [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 677. An answer pleading a set-off for improvements is demurrable if it fails to allege a lien on the rents or a personal liability of the plaintiff or an effort to follow the real estate for enforcing any lien. Bell v. Bitner [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 549. A landlord may upon cross-examination inquire into the authority of one alleged to be his agent by defendant. Flomertfelt v. Dillon, 88 N. Y. S. 132. Parol evidence held admissible to show intended use of leased premises, and its condition and description. Landt v. Schneider [Mont.] 77 P. 307. Whether parol evidence of an alleged subsequent lease should be admitted was within the discretion of the trial court. Cooley v. Collins [Mass.] 71 N. E. 979. Under a written lease, parol evidence of a contemporaneous verbal agreement regarding repairs is inadmissible. Hallenbeck v. Chapman [N. J. Law] 58 A. 1096. In an action for rent and steam used, evidence held insufficient to show the value or amount of excess steam taken. Goetschius v. Shapiro, 88 N. Y. S. 171.

74. Harvin v. Blackman, 112 La. 24, 36 So. 213. A judgment roll of prior summary proceedings relative to the same parties and property is conclusive evidence of all facts alleged in the petition on affidavit forming the basis of such proceedings. Goetschius v. Shapiro, 88 N. Y. S. 171.

75, 76. See 2 Curr. L. 689.

77. Clothier v. Braithwaite, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 521; Wanamaker v. Carter, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 625.

78. Wanamaker v. Carter, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 625.

79. Clothier v. Braithwaite, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 521.

80. Sprinkel v. Rosenheim & Son [Va.] 48 S. E. 883.

81. Pickering v. Breen, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 4.

82. Brooke v. Augusta Warehouse & Banking Co., 119 Ga. 946, 47 S. E. 341.

83. Hardy v. Poss, 120 Ga. 385, 47 S. E. 947; Brooke v. Augusta Warehouse & Banking Co., 119 Ga. 946, 47 S. E. 341.

84. Thomas v. Gibbons, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 635.

85, 86. Code 1887, §§ 2787-2791. Sprinkel v. Rosenheim & Son [Va.] 48 S. E. 883.

Attachment.[87]—The procuring of an attachment instead of a distress warrant is not a ground for exemplary damages.[88]

Liens and securities for payment of rent.[89]—Upon the removal of property pledged for rent, it is for the landlord to determine as to the sufficiency of the property remaining.[90] A landlord's lien upon the crops for rent is for a debt so in the nature of purchase money that it is superior to the statutory exemptions,[91] and takes precedence over purchases or incumbrances accruing subsequent to the attaching of the lien;[92] it extends to the crops of the tenant,[93] or those raised by his sublessee or assignee,[94] and may be asserted against the products or the purchaser thereof,[95] but does not attach to crops shipped out of the state.[96] An assignee of rent cannot claim a right to a lien upon crops as a landlord.[97] Some statutory provisions are considered in the notes.[98] A landlord waives his lien upon the crops or animals of his tenant by consenting to their sale,[99] or being a witness thereof without objection.[1] A waiver in favor of materialmen to a specified amount inures to the benefit of all furnishers in their order of service up to that amount.[2] A crop against which a landlord has a claim for advances is considered in the possession of the landlord so long as it remains upon the rented premises,[3] but a mere direction by a tenant to a landlord, claiming a lien upon the crops, to go and attach them does not make the landlord owner thereof.[4] A landlord's lien cannot be foreclosed on the trial of the right to property attached as that of the tenant and claimed by the landlord.[5] In Georgia a tenant's creditor may contest by affidavit, the alleged lien, whereupon the issue is tried as in other causes.[6] Failure by a tenant to file a counter-affidavit in proceedings to foreclose a landlord's lien and a subsequent private sale after levy

87. See 2 Curr. L. 690.

88. Lawson v. Goodwin [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 279.

89. See 2 Curr. L. 690.

90. If he believes himself insecure, the landlord may sieze for the rent whether due or to become due. Millot v. Conrad, 112 La. 928, 36 So. 807.

91. Exemption. Civ. Code 1895, § 2866 et seq. Shirling v. Kennon, 119 Ga. 501, 46 S. E. 630. A landlord's lien upon the crop is superior to the claim for an allowance for the tenant's widow. Walker v. Patterson's Estate [Tex. Civ. App.] 77 S. W. 437. But see Parker v. Brown, 136 N. C. 280, 48 S. E. 657.

92. Staber v. Collins [Iowa] 100 N. W. 527. It cannot be affected by the tenant's false statements to a purchaser of the crop [lien by Rev. St. 1899, § 4115]. Williams v. De Lisle Store Co., 104 Mo. App. 567, 79 S. W. 487.

93. Edwards v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 659. Not for an indebtedness arising from the pasturage of stock or hire of a team not used in cultivating the farm. Tucker, Zeve & Co. v. Thomas [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 649.

94. Edwards v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 659.

95, 96. Ball v. Sledge, 82 Miss. 749, 35 So. 447.

97. State v. Elmore [S. C.] 46 S. E. 939.

98. In Mississippi a landlord has a lien on all agricultural products raised on the premises, as security for rent and supplies for the current year. Ball v. Sledge, 82 Miss. 749, 35 So. 447. A landlord will not be allowed a lien for a year's rent under the Pennsylvania statute where upon a sale of a bankrupt liquor dealer's stock and license, the proceeds from the stock can not be distinguished [Laws Pa. 1891 (P. L. 122)]. Keyser v. Wessel [C. C. A.] 128 F. 281. In Iowa a landlord has a lien on the crops and all the personal property kept or used on the premises during the term, and a seizure and sale of the tenant's property under a general execution on a judgment for rent is authorized though the property be in possession of a bona fide purchaser, he having knowledge of the lien [Code, § 2992]. Staber v. Collins [Iowa] 100 N. W. 527. A landlord's lien for advances extends only to the crop for the year for which they were furnished. Walker v. Patterson's Estate [Tex. Civ. App.] 77 S. W. 437.

99. Randall v. Ditch, 123 Iowa, 582, 99 N. W. 190. Receipt by landlord of portion of proceeds of sale show a ratification of such sale. Planters' Compress Co. v. Howard [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 119. Under the evidence, landlord held to have waived his lien upon the crops. Alexander v. Zeigler [Miss.] 36 So. 536; Dreyfus v. Gage & Co. [Miss.] 36 So. 248.

1. Johnson & Son v. Kincaid [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 536.

2. Southern Grocer Co. v. Adams, 112 La. 60, 36 So. 226.

3. Groesbeck v. Evans [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 430.

4. Burke v. Holmes [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 564.

5. Groesbeck v. Evans [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 430.

6. Martin v. Nichols [Ga.] 49 S. E. 613.

is not a bar to an action of trover by the tenant.[7] The South Carolina landlord lien act has been held constitutional.[8]

§ 10. Landlord's remedies for recovery of premises.[9]—Ejectment is the proper action for re-entry under a lease, when possession and a right to a deficiency from reletting on account is sought,[10] and "justice ejectment" is available where a tenancy for life, created by contract, is involved.[11] Summary proceedings are available upon default in the rent,[12] though the lease give a right of re-entry.[13] After the giving of notice to terminate a tenancy for breach of covenant, the landlord may resort to summary proceedings,[14] and a lease provision requiring the lessor to give thirty days' notice to enforce forfeiture because of breach of covenants is not a bar to an action for possession for nonpayment of rent.[15] A landlord cannot maintain summary proceedings against a tenant holding under an invalid lease where there has been no termination of tenancy by notice or limitation,[16] nor for a failure to pay a specified penalty for a breach of covenants for improvements.[17] Failure to farm land in a good and husbandlike manner is not waste entitling the landlord to a recovery of possession.[18] Where a tenant is in possession, equity has no jurisdiction to enforce a forfeiture of the lease, the lessor having an adequate remedy at law.[19] An action of forceable detainer will not lie where only questions of title are involved;[20] the question of possession can alone be determined.[21] The mere delivery of the key by the tenant to the landlord does not entitle the latter to enter and expel by force the tenant who continues in actual possession.[22]

Procedure.[23]—In summary proceedings for possession, the owner must show a strict compliance with the statute,[24] and the person lawfully entitled to the possession must appear as plaintiff.[25] The affidavit should allege facts from which the court may find the existence of the relation of landlord and tenant,[26] and the plaintiff must show such facts as bring the case within the statute,[27] and establish a tenancy.[28] It is sufficient to show that any portion of the rent is unpaid,[29] or that the premises are used for immoral purposes.[30] The question of title will not be tried in this proceeding,[31] the issue being on the existence of

7. Knowles v. Stegall, 120 Ga. 451, 47 S. E. 902.

8. Code of Laws 1902, § 3057. State v. Elmore [S. C.] 46 S. E. 939.

9. See 2 Curr. L. 692.

10. Fleishauer v. Bell, 44 Misc. 240, 88 N. Y. S. 922.

11. Foss v. Stanton, 76 Vt. 365, 57 A. 942.

12. Lyons v. Gavin, 43 Misc. 659, 88 N. Y. S. 252. Landlord held not to have waived his right to summary proceedings. Foster v. Foster, 98 App. Div. 24, 90 N. Y. S. 451.

13. Fleishauer v. Bell, 44 Misc. 240, 88 N. Y. S. 922.

14. Code Civ. Proc. § 2231, subd. 1. Martin v. Crossley, 91 N. Y. S. 712.

15. Hunter v. Porter [Idaho] 77 P. 434.

16. Gossett v. Fox, 90 N. Y. S. 477.

17. Sipp v. Reich, 88 N. Y. S. 960.

18. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 5527. Byrkett v. Gardner, 35 Wash. 668, 77 P. 1048.

19. Johnson v. Lehigh Valley Traction Co., 130 F. 932.

20, 21. Jones v. Seawell, 13 Okl. 711, 76 P. 154.

22. Giffin v. Martel [Vt.] 58 A. 788.

23. See 2 Curr. L. 693.

24. Flewellen v. Lent, 91 App. Div. 430, 86 N. Y. S. 919. One invoking the harsh remedy of summary proceeding for the recovery of land must comply strictly with the statute. Failure to prove notice to quit as alleged; proceeding prematurely brought. Wilson v. Wood [Miss.] 36 So. 609.

25. Story v. Walker [N. J. Law] 58 A. 349.

26. Amendments allowable. Bowles v. Dean [Miss.] 36 So. 391.

27. V. S. § 1560. Wheeler v. Wheeler [Vt.] 59 A. 842.

28. Civ. Code 1895, § 4813 et seq. Patrick v. Cobb [Ga.] 49 S. E. 806.

29. Belding Bros. & Co. v. Blum, 88 N. Y. S. 178. That the landlord violated an agreement for keeping in force a liquor license for his tenant's benefit is not available as a defense in a proceeding to dispossess for nonpayment of rent. Liebmann's Sons Brewing Co. v. De Nicolo, 91 N. Y. S. 791. In an action for possession, for breach of covenant, that the covenant was personal or that it was not a continuing covenant should be raised by demurrer, but that plaintiff had not consented to an assignment is debatable under the general issue. That rent was accepted after forfeiture was properly pleaded specially. Granite Bldg. Corp. v. Greene [R. I.] 57 A. 649.

30. Sullivan v. Schatzel, 88 N. Y. S. 352.

31. Meeske v. Miller [Mich.] 101 N. W. 52.

a tenancy.[32] In an action for possession for nonpayment of rent, counterclaims or set-offs are not admissible,[33] nor can defendant set up his equitable title,[34] nor justify possession under a lease which he has repudiated by his plea,[35] but he may show the conditions under which he holds.[36] An unrecorded written memorandum of a lease for four years is insufficient to support the possession of a tenant against summary proceedings brought by a subsequent bona fide purchaser.[37] Proceedings begun before the complete expiration of the time allowed for payment of rent will be dismissed.[38] Judgment for tenant is an estoppel on the landlord only as to what was or what should have been decided.[39] Jurisdiction to try an action for possession depends upon the existence of the landlord and tenant relation at commencement of suit,[40] and not the amount involved.[41] In New Jersey a justice loses jurisdiction by refusing to summon a jury unless the costs therefor are advanced or secured.[42] In Georgia exclusive jurisdiction of proceedings against a tenant holding over is vested in the superior court.[43] A court of equity may restrain summary proceedings.[44] A writ of restitution issued at the commencement or during the pendency of an action is in general governed by the same principles of law as a writ of attachment on other ancillary process in the main cause.[45] An order of dispossession is not entered by default and subject to vacation by the court where one of a firm properly served appeared and consented to its issuance.[46] Assumpsit for rent will not bar an action for possession unless the rent be paid within the time specified by the notice.[47] Some statutory provisions are considered in the notes.[48] An equitable defense is not available in a common-law action of ejectment.[49] Where a lease expires by its own limitation, no written demand by the landlord for possession is necessary before bringing an action for forcible detainer.[50] Under a lease providing for the immediate issuance of a hab. fa. poss. upon failure to surrender possession,

32. Civ. Code 1895, § 4813 et seq. Patrick v. Cobb [Ga.] 49 S. E. 806.

33. Hunter v. Porter [Idaho] 77 P. 434.

34. Cottrell v. Moran [Mich.] 101 N. W. 561; Bond v. Chapman, 34 Wash. 606, 76 P. 97; Jones v. Seawell, 13 Okl. 711, 76 P. 154.

35. Rausch v. Briefer [Mich.] 101 N. W. 523.

36. Wheeler v. Wheeler [Vt.] 59 A. 842.

37. Laws 1896, p. 607, c. 547, §§ 240, 241. Jokinsky v. Miller, 44 Misc. 239, 88 N. Y. S. 928.

38. Cheek v. Preston [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 1048.

39. Does not prevent landlord from showing value of crops in subsequent action. Burwell v. Brodie, 134 N. C. 540, 47 S. E. 47.

40. Jurisdiction not affected so far as costs are concerned by demolition of the building during an appeal and subsequent retrial. Simmons v. Pepe, 43 Misc. 661, 88 N. Y. S. 120.

41. Schumann Piano Co. v. Mark, 208 Ill. 282, 70 N. E. 226.

42. Story v. Walker [N. J. Law] 58 A. 349.

43. But judge of City Court of Moultrie may administer oath to affiants in such proceedings and may issue a warrant to be returned to the Superior Court. Stephenson v. Warren, 119 Ga. 504, 46 S. E. 647.

44. Kaufmann v. Liggett, 209 Pa. 87, 58 A. 129.

45. Teater v. King, 35 Wash. 138, 76 P. 688.

46. Laws 1902, p. 1562, c. 580. Maneely v. Mayers, 43 Misc. 380, 87 N. Y. S. 471.

47. Schumann Piano Co. v. Mark, 208 Ill. 282, 70 N. E. 226.

48. In Washington judgment may be rendered for double the damages found by the jury [2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 5542]. Bond v. Chapman, 34 Wash. 606, 76 P. 97. In Indiana a new trial cannot be demanded as of right in an action for possession where a tenant unlawfully holds over. Cambridge Lodge, No. 9, K. P. v. Routh [Ind.] 71 N. E. 148. In New York a failure for 25 days to enter a judgment for possession is a mere irregularity. Lyons v. Gavin, 43 Misc. 659, 88 N. Y. S. 252. Appeal does not lie from a dismissal of summary proceedings where no final order granting possession or awarding costs was made [Code Civ. Proc. § 2249]. Sipp v. Reich, 88 N. Y. S. 960. "Judgment for tenant" without a final order in his favor is irregular [Code Civ. Proc. § 2249]. Gossett v. Fox, 90 N. Y. S. 477. Tenant may stay the issuance of an order of removal by payment of the rent and costs. Not necessary to await the issuance of a formal order of removal [Code Civ. Proc. § 2254]. Flewellen v. Lent, 91 App. Div. 430, 86 N. Y. S. 919. N. Y. Civ. Code § 2254, does not authorize a stay of proceedings after issuance of a warrant of dispossession. Maneely v. Mayers, 43 Misc. 380, 87 N. Y. S. 471.

49. Rausch v. Briefer [Mich.] 101 N. W. 523.

50. Andrews v. Erwin, 25 Ky. L. R. 1791, 78 S. W. 902.

one is not liable in trespass for failing to wait five days after termination of the lease before the issuance of such writ.[51]

§ 11. Liability of third persons to landlord or tenant.[52]—Both the tenant and the landlord may sue for injuries to their estate in the premises[53] proximately resulting from one's negligence.[54] A tenant rightfully removing the goods of his predecessor has no control over such goods after their removal,[55] and if instead of delivering them upon demand, he moves and stores them he is guilty of conversion.[56] In Missouri one knowingly purchasing crops grown upon demised lands is liable to the landlord for the unpaid rent, to the value of such purchase,[57] but not as for a conversion unless purchasing with knowledge of a lien.[58] A recorded lease is notice to everyone of its existence.[59]

§ 12. Crimes and penalties.[60]—In some states it is a misdemeanor for a tenant to remove crops without consent of the landlord or five days' notice of an intention to make such removal,[61] but disposal of crops without consent of an assignee of rent is not criminal, such assignee not being a landlord and entitled to a lien.[62] It is no defense that the tenant had suffered damage by the landlord's breach of contract, equal to the rents and advancements.[63] An officer removing goods from premises upon execution of a writ of restitution is not amenable for their remaining upon the sidewalk for an unreasonable time.[64]

LAND PATENTS, see latest topical index.

LARCENY.

§ 1. Common Law Larceny (410).
§ 2. Statutory Larceny, Theft, etc. (412).
§ 3. Indictment and Prosecution (412).
A. Indictment (412).
B. Admissibility of Evidence (414).
C. Effect of Possession of Stolen Property (415).
D. Sufficiency of Evidence (416).
E. Instructions (416).
F. Trial, Sentence and Review (417).

§ 1. Common law larceny.[1]—Larceny is the felonious taking and carrying away[2] of the personal property[3] of another,[4] with intent to convert it to the use

51. Dickson v. Wood, 209 Pa. 345, 58 A. 668.

52. See 2 Curr. L. 695.

53. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Heikens [Tenn.] 79 S. W. 1038. Whether plaintiff in an action for damage to property exercised ordinary care was for the jury. Pittsfield Cottonwear Mfg. Co. v. Pittsfield Shoe Co., 72 N. H. 546, 58 A. 242. Whether the officer executing a writ of restitution removed goods from other than the "store floor" of certain premises was for the jury. Morlarity v. Wagner, 88 App. Div. 612, 84 N. Y. S. 864.

54. Pittsfield Cottonwear Mfg. Co. v. Pittsfield Shoe Co., 72 N. H. 546, 58 A. 242.

55, 56. McGonigle v. Belleisle Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 569.

57. Rev. St. 1899, § 4123. Williams v. De Lisle Store Co., 104 Mo. App. 567, 79 S. W. 487.

58. Crane v. Murray [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 280.

59. Laws 1896, p. 615, c. 547, § 266. Reid v. Long Lake, 44 Misc. 370, 89 N. Y. S. 993. No fraudulent or wrongful act of the recording officer can change its character as a recorded instrument. Id.

60. See 2 Curr. L. 696.

61. Code, § 1759. State v. Bell [N. C.] 49 S. E. 163. Evidence held insufficient to sustain a conviction for disposing of property to defraud a landlord of his lien for rent. Proceeds of property applied upon a mortgage given by tenant and landlord. Smith v. State, 139 Ala. 115, 36 So. 727.

62. State v. Elmore [S. C.] 46 S. E. 939.

63. State v. Bell [N. C.] 49 S. E. 163.

64. Williams v. District of Columbia, 22 App. D. C. 471.

1. See 2 Curr. L. 696.

2. State v. Carr [Del. Gen. Sess.] 57 A. 370. See 2 Curr. L. 696, n. 1. No evidence of asportation. State v. Boatright, 182 Mo. 33, 81 S. W. 450. Cutting a rope attaching a jug of whiskey to the saddle horn of witness' horse and carrying off the whiskey, without the use of any other force and without any putting in fear, is larceny, not robbery. Bowlin v. State [Ark.] 81 S. W. 838. See 2 Curr. L. 697, n. 26. It is not necessary where one is charged with stealing public records that the removal be from the office of the custodian; it is sufficient if the defendant took them animo furandi from any place, or from any person, either with or without consent. People v. Mills, 178 N. Y. 274, 70 N. E. 786.

3. State v. Carr [Del. Gen. Sess.] 57 A. 370. See 2 Curr. L. 697, n. 22, 23, 24. Records or documents filed in a public office may be the subject of larceny. People v. Mills, 178 N. Y. 274, 70 N. E. 786. Oysters or clams, planted under public water, in a bed, where they do not exist naturally, and of the taker,[5] without consent of the owner.[6] Where the taking is under circumstances showing a want of felonious intent,[7] such as a claim of ownership in one's self,[8] or for any purpose excluding the presumption of intent to deprive the owner of his property,[9] there is no larceny. A bailee who has lawful possession cannot commit larceny.[10] The subsequent wrongful conversion of property by one who has received it from the owner in good faith does not constitute larceny.[11] Where possession is obtained by means of a trick or device, the offense is made out;[12] but false representations inducing one to part unconditionally with the title to goods do not constitute larceny.[13] If defendant came into possession in good faith with the owner's consent, a subsequent conversion will not amount to larceny;[14]

which is inclosed by stakes or otherwise, sufficiently to show private possession, are not part of realty, but chattels, and therefore the subject of larceny. People v. Wanzer, 43 Misc. 136, 88 N. Y. S. 281. As to larceny of fixtures, see Bronson, Fixtures, § 112a.

4. State v. Carr [Del. Gen. Sess.] 57 A. 370. The superintendent of a land and cattle company having complete charge and control of the company's property was for the purpose of a prosecution for theft of such cattle their owner. Barnes v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 735. See, also, Kennon v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 82 S. W. 518. So also the general manager of a partnership owning horse and other chattels. People v. Nunley, 142 Cal. 105, 75 P. 676. Mere temporary absence from home of one of two joint owners of cattle running on a range and so not in their actual possession is not enough to constitute separate possession in the other joint owner, under an indictment alleging the ownership in the latter. Merit v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 330. The possession of a bailee is sufficient to sustain a conviction of larceny. Griffiths v. State [Ind.] 72 N. E. 563; Bone v. State [Ga.] 48 S. E. 986. A man may be guilty of larceny of his wife's property. Hunt v. State [Ark.] 79 S. W. 769.

5. State v. Carr [Del. Gen. Sess.] 57 A. 370. One is guilty of theft although it is not his purpose to appropriate the property stolen to his own use, but to divest the owner of his property and place the ownership in another. Lopez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 1016. The finding of property and retention thereof, knowing the rightful owner, is larceny. Flemister v. State [Ga.] 48 S. E. 910. See 2 Curr. L. 697, n. 20.

6. The asportation must be against the will of the owner. In this connection a distinction is to be taken between the ownership of the public and that of an individual. If an individual voluntarily delivers his property to another, there is no trespass, but the property of the public is always in the possession of a custodian, who has it for that purpose and no other, and cannot yield rightful possession. People v. Mills, 178 N. Y. 274, 70 N. E. 786. To constitute the crime there must be a trespass; that is, a taking of the property without the consent of the owner. State v. Teller [Or.] 78 P. 980.

7. In larceny it is essential to a conviction that the property was taken "animo furandi." Where it clearly appears that the taking was perfectly consistent with honest conduct, though the person may have been mistaken, he cannot be convicted of larceny. Bird v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 525. That the taking was open and unconcealed is inconsistent with a felonious intent. Removal of loose plank from a public building and voluntary restoration of substantially the same kind and value. Fletcher v. Com. [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1089. Retention of deposition by deponent for purpose of submission to his attorney. Parr v. Loder, 97 App. Div. 218, 89 N. Y. S. 823.

8. McCary v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 373; Hull v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 380. See 2 Curr. L. 696, n. 6. Can be no larceny where one takes property under bona fide belief that it is his own. State v. Wasson [Iowa] 101 N. W. 1125.

9. Jackson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 79 S. W. 521. See 2 Curr. L. 697, n. 11. Where one is seen taking goods from a building adjoining one that is on fire, it is a question for the jury whether it was with an intent to remove the goods to a place of safety or to steal them. People v. Smith, 143 Cal. 597, 77 P. 449.

10. State v. Seeney [Del. Gen. Sess.] 59 A. 48. See 2 Curr. L. 697, n. 13.

11. State v. Teller [Or.] 78 P. 980.

12. See 2 Curr. L. 697, n. 16. Short changing. Flynn v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 206. Where persons conspire to cheat a man under color of a bet, and he simply deposits his money as a stake with one of them, not meaning thereby to part with the ownership therein, they, by taking the money, commit larceny. Hindman v. State [Ark.] 81 S. W. 836; State v. Boatright, 182 Mo. App. 33, 81 S. W. 450. Where the ownership of the property is not parted with but possession alone is obtained by a fraud or trick with intent to convert the property and permanently deprive the owner of it, and it is converted to the use of the taker without the owner's consent, the offense is larceny at common law and under the Missouri statute. State v. Copeman [Mo.] 84 S. W. 942. Lock game held to constitute larceny where prosecutor never intended to part with title to his money, and not obtaining money by trick or confidence game prohibited by Mo. Rev. St. 1899, § 2213. Id. Inducing one to deposit money as security. State v. Buck [Mo.] 84 S. W. 951.

13. See 2 Curr. L. 697, n. 17. Otherwise where the testimony shows that the title has not passed. Hunt v. State [Ark.] 79 S. W. 769; State v. Buck [Mo.] 84 S. W. 951; State v. Copeman [Mo.] 84 S. W. 942.

14. Abrams v. State [Ga.] 48 S. E. 965. See 2 Curr. L. 697.

but if an intent to convert was present at the time of coming into possession, it is larceny.[15] One attempting to steal a horse, but frustrated after procuring the bridle and saddle, may be convicted of stealing these but not the horse.[16] One aiding and abetting another in the commission of the offense is equally guilty.[17] Where defendant in the course of an hour and a half obtained from prosecutor money with which to buy liquor, in all amounting to $80, this was one continuous transaction, constituting a felony.[18] Under the Kentucky statute, making it an offense for any carrier, porter or other person to whom money is confided for carriage, to embezzle the same, the offense consists in the fraudulent appropriation, without reference to the amount, of the money.[19]

§ 2. Statutory larceny, theft, etc.[20]—Notwithstanding that larceny from a railroad car be made a specific offense, yet if at the time of the larceny, the car is within a house, the same act would also be larceny from the house.[21] Loose lumber not a part of the building or fixtures is not within a statute prohibiting the felonious removal from any church, chapel or other public building of any goods, chattels or other thing of value belonging thereto.[22] That a statute defining and classifying the offense of larceny from the house did not provide a penalty is not fatal to a conviction thereunder.[23] Several statutory definitions and distinctions are discussed in the note.[24]

§ 3. Indictment and prosecution. A. Indictment.[25]—As in other cases an

15. Hiring livery. Johnson v. State, 119 Ga. 563. 46 S. E. 839; State v. Blay [Vt.] 58 A. 794. The question of such intent is for the jury. People v. Smith, 143 Cal. 597, 77 P. 449; State v. Blay [Vt.] 58 A. 794.

16. Ex parte Thrasher [Tex. Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 1142.

17. See 2 Curr. L. 698. Where cattle were stolen with the knowledge of defendant, who helped to drive them away and sell them, he is guilty of larceny. Murray v. State [Miss.] 36 So. 541.

19. Stat. of 1903, § 1203. Commonwealth W. 206.

19. Stat. of 1903, § 1203. Commonwealth v. Smith [Ky.] 82 S. W. 236.

20. See 2 Curr. L. 698.

21. Bone v. State [Ga.] 48 S. E. 986.

22. Fletcher v. Com. [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1089.

23. Penal Code 1895, § 178. Heard v. State, 120 Ga. 848, 48 S. E. 311.

24. The Arkansas statute making it a felony to steal a cow, hog or other animal contemplates live animals [Sand. & H. Dig. § 1700]. Hutchinson v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 331. The title to chap. 4395, Acts of 1895, Florida, held to be broad enough to embrace grand larceny. Ex parte Bush [Fla.] 37 So. 177. The Georgia Penal Code of 1895 was intended to make the stealing of baled cotton a felony, regardless of value or of the place where the cotton was stored. Hall v. State, 120 Ga. 142, 47 S. E. 519. In Louisiana the statutory crime of horse stealing includes no lesser offense. State v. Gouvernale. 112 La. 956, 36 So. 817. The Louisiana statute of 1902, to the extent that it assumes to grade the offense of larceny, is unconstitutional [Act No. 107 of 1902]. State v. Dalcourt, 112 La. 420, 36 So. 479. Missouri Rev. St. 1899, § 1898, providing for punishment of those stealing, taking and carrying away property of another, does not pretend to embrace elements of offense of larceny, which remain same as at common law. State v. Copeman [Mo.] 84 S. W. 942. Rev. St. 1899, § 2213, providing punishment for obtaining property by confidence game, does not apply where property is obtained by trespass, but only where victim consents to parting with title and possession. Id. In New York, files in the custody of a public official may be the subject of larceny [Pen. Code, § 531, subd. 3]. People v. Mills, 178 N. Y. 274, 70 N. E. 786, afg. 91 App. Div. 331, 86 N. Y. S. 529. See 2 Curr. L. 698, n. 45. Defendant's statement that he has an order from a well known corporation for a large number of garments, and that he desires to purchase goods from which to manufacture them, thereby inducing their delivery, is a false statement of an existing fact and not a warranty of his financial standing within a statute requiring false pretenses in regard to a purchaser's financial responsibility to be in writing. N. Y. Pen. Code, § 544. Prosecution for grand larceny for obtaining goods by false pretenses. People v. Rothstein [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 999. Larceny is defined in the Oklahoma statutes to be "the taking of personal property, accomplished by fraud or stealth, and with intent to deprive another thereof." Distinction between larceny and embezzlement pointed out. Flohr v. Territory [Okl.] 78 P. 565. The Texas statute against theft from the person creates two characters of theft, one of property taken privately without the knowledge of the prosecutor, and the other where property is taken so suddenly as not to allow time to make resistance [art. 880, subd. 2, Pen. Code 1895]. Steele v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 962. See Carroll v. State [Ga.] 48 S. E. 909, for similar statute. In order to constitute theft there must be a fraudulent taking. Young v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 808.

25. See 2 Curr. L. 698.

indictment for larceny should be sufficiently definite to enable the accused to ascertain the specific charge he is called on to meet, and, in the event of a second prosecution, to plead his former acquittal or conviction;[26] but the intent to deprive the owner of his property need not be specifically alleged, if the language otherwise imports such intent.[27]

The description of the property must be such as to enable the defendant to know the specific charge he is to meet,[28] and the state will be held to proof of the description as laid, though it be unnecessarily minute;[29] but it is not necessary to minutely describe each particular bill or coin alleged to have been stolen,[30] neither is it necessary to allege that the money converted was lawful money of the United States.[31] The name of the owner of the building from which the property was taken need not be alleged.[32] A description of animals presumes live animals.[33] Unless immaterial under the statute, the value must be alleged;[34] but time[35] and place[36] are not material and need not be truly laid further than to show venue

26. Melvin v. State, 120 Ga. 490, 48 S. E. 198. An indictment alleging that accused advised and encouraged his principal to commit a theft of horses which he had hired is not defective for failure to allege that accused was a party to the contract of hiring. Harrold v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 728. An indictment charging the unlawful, willful and felonious taking and driving away of a horse from the possession of the owner, naming him, giving a description of the property, and fixing the time and venue, is sufficient. State v. Rooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82.

27. See 2 Curr. L. 699, n. 53. To charge that one did "unlawfully and wrongfully take and carry away" certain property sufficiently alleges an intent to steal. Taylor v. State, 120 Ga. 484, 48 S. E. 158. Where, in an indictment, property is alleged to have been taken by fraud and stealth, it is not necessary to set out the fraudulent acts relied on as constituting the fraud. Conversion by bailee. Flohr v. Territory [Okl.] 78 P. 565.

28. State v. Minck [Minn.] 102 N. W. 207. Describing property as "one shovel, of the value of one dollar," is too general. Melvin v. State, 120 Ga. 490, 48 S. E. 198. Description held sufficient. Bone v. State, 120 Ga. 866, 48 S. E. 356. Indictment for simple larceny charging accused with stealing "one black and white male hog, of the personal goods" of a named person sufficiently describes the property. Harvey v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 674.

29. McLendon v. State [Ga.] 48 S. E. 902; Hall v. State, 120 Ga. 142, 47 S. E. 519. Courts will judicially notice the denominational value of money proven to have been stolen. Ector v. State, 120 Ga. 543, 48 S. E. 315. A variance between a complaint charging the theft of a "steel strap" and an information stating that the article stolen was a "steel trap" is fatal to a conviction. Snoga v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 625. Where the allegation is general, in a charge of theft, that the money taken was lawful current money of the United States, the evidence must show that it was legal tender coin or legal tender currency of the United States. Nickels are legal tender. Black v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 79 S. W. 311. It is no variance that the larceny was of a check, the indictment being for larceny of money. Hunt v. State [Ark.] 79 S. W. 769.

30. Ector v. State, 120 Ga. 543, 48 S. E. 315. Testimony which identified money stolen as eight silver dollars and three silver dimes sufficiently identified the money described in the indictment as "gold and silver coin * * * money of the United States." Johnson v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 651. Where an indictment charges theft of bills, currency or current money of the United States, giving the denomination and value, proof of legal tender treasury notes, demand notes, gold or silver certificates, or of national bank bills, is admissible. Berry v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 630.

31. Ector v. State, 120 Ga. 543, 48 S. E. 315.

32. Where building is sufficiently described. State v. Minck [Minn.] 102 N. W. 207.

33. If the animal be dead, the fact must be stated, else there will be a variance, fatal to conviction. Hutchinson v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 331.

34. An indictment is good if it alleges merely the aggregate value of articles. It is, however, better practice to set out the value of each article. Bone v. State, 120 Ga. 866, 48 S. E. 356. Under the Oklahoma statute the value of a domestic animal need not be alleged [art. 1, c. 20, p. 104, Session Laws 1895]. Woodring v. Territory [Okl.] 78 P. 85. Allegation of value immaterial under 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. Wash. § 7113, making punishable the theft of a horse or colt of any value. State v. Washing [Wash.] 78 P. 1019. Indictment for bringing stolen horses into state held sufficient, though no value alleged. Theft of horses criminal under Wilson's Rev. & Ann. St. Okl. 1903, § 2480. Beard v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 824.

35. Proof of the offense at any time before the indictment is found will sustain it. State v. Carr [Del. Gen. Sess.] 57 A. 370.

36. An indictment charging larceny from a "residence" is sufficient under a statute prohibiting larceny from a "building." People v. Klammer [Mich.] 100 N. W. 600. So charging larceny "from" a building on fire sufficiently charges an offense within a and avoidance of limitations; but ownership must be alleged.[37] Allegations of ownership are material and must be proven as alleged.[38] The misspelling of the owner's name is not a fatal variance if it is idem sonans with the true spelling.[39] Possession cannot be charged to be in the owner where the property is being held as lost property by one who does not know the true owner.[40] Several means of committing the offense may be charged in the conjunctive,[41] and where the act may be one of several statutory offenses, they may all be charged in different counts to meet the proof.[42] Clerical errors are immaterial.[43]

(§ 3) B. Admissibility of evidence.[44]—Declarations by accused,[45] his conduct,[46] other and different thefts,[47] the condition of cattle stolen,[48] circumstances statute against stealing "in" a building on fire. Id. Venue sufficiently laid and established. Theft of money from person of prosecutor without his knowledge. Carroll v. State [Ga.] 48 S. E. 909. No locality except venue need be charged in prosecutions under the Georgia Penal Code of 1895, § 186, which was intended to make the stealing of baled cotton a felony, regardless of value or of the place where the cotton was stored. Hall v. State, 120 Ga. 142, 47 S. E. 519. Evidence held to sustain finding that offense was committed in G. county as alleged. Cage v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 631.

37. Whether larceny is simple or compound. State v. Wasson [Iowa] 101 N. W. 1125.

38. Merrit v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 330. An information for the theft of goods belonging to a minor who lives with his parents may properly allege ownership either in the minor or his parents. Jackson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 79 S. W. 521. Indictment laying ownership in husband and proof that it belonged to him and his wife are not variant. Kirby v. State, 139 Ala. 87, 36 So. 721. There is no substantial variance between an indictment charging larceny of property from a firm, and proof of larceny from a warehouse of another firm, the members of both firms being common. Lowry v. State [Tenn.] 81 S. W. 373. Where a statute providing that where an offense is charged for injury to person or property, an erroneous allegation as to the person or owner shall not be material, an indictment need not allege that a corporation was incorporated. Commonwealth v. Vineyard [Ky.] 82 S. W. 289. Evidence that the cotton "had been raised by the family" and was in possession of the husband who subsequently sold it and received the proceeds was sufficient to sustain an allegation that the cotton belonged to the husband. Johnson v. State, 120 Ga. 509, 48 S. E. 199. There is no variance between an indictment which alleges the ownership of property in one, and proofs which show that the general property therein was in that one and another, the special property being in the former. Payne v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 74. Proof of the larceny of property from the agent of the owner sustains an indictment charging a larceny from the owner. Lowry v. State [Tenn.] 81 S. W. 373. The fact that the information alleges that the property belonged to C. W. D. and the proof shows that it belonged to Chas. D. does not warrant a new trial, where the verdict shows that it belonged to C. W. D., and it does not appear that they are different persons. State v. Rooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82. Where the indictment charges the stealing of seed cotton, the property of J, and the proof shows it to have been the property of A, the variance is fatal. Young v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 934.

39. Proof showing larceny from one Shuter is not a variance from an indictment charging larceny from one Shutter. State v. Johnson [Wash.] 78 P. 903.

40. Proof that defendant obtained the horse from one L, who had taken him up as an estray without knowing his real owner, is a fatal variance from an indictment charging the ownership and possession of the horse to be in D, the real owner. Williams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 829.

41. Larceny without the knowledge of the person affected, or so suddenly as not to allow time for resistance. Steele v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 962.

42. A count for theft from the person, and one for theft of property over the value of fifty dollars may be joined. Flynn v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 206.

43. The omission of the word "of" between the words "goods and chattels" and the name of the prosecutor. Bennett v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 483.

44. See 2 Curr. L. 701.

45. See 2 Curr. L. 701, n. 93. Where defendant had been previously arrested for horse stealing, and while under arrest for a similar offense subsequently committed was asked why he stole "these horses" replied it was "habit," his reply is admissible, though there is no evidence what horses were referred to by questioner. State v. Blay [Vt.] 58 A. 794. Contradictory statements made by accused while under arrest, and without being warned, as to how he got possession of the stolen property, are of an inculpatory character, and are not admissible, not being offered for purposes of impeachment. Parks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 79 S. W. 301. Confession made without warning before arrest held admissible. Gibson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 1119.

46. See 2 Curr. L. 701, n. 94. Bain v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 79 S. W. 814. Upon proof of defendant's admission to having taken money and his offer to pay it back, he may tender evidence that he was timid and easily frightened, to rebut the presumption of guilt from the alleged proposal to return the money. State v. Lewis, 136 N. C. 626, 48 S. E. 654.

47. See 2 Curr. L. 701, n. 95. If system is bearing on the question of intent involved in the main charge,[49] statements made to the prosecutor by one with whom defendant was acting in concert when the offense was committed, though made in defendant's absence,[50] and all facts connected with the larceny, when part of the res gestae,[51] are admissible. A local custom in regard to the rights of persons taking up and holding stray cattle cannot be shown.[52] Any fact having a legitimate tendency to prove that a larceny has been committed,[53] or to identify accused with the person in possession of the property, may be shown.[54] A confession of one of two joint defendants is admissible only as against him.[55] The state must show that defendant took the property animo furandi.[56] The prosecutor may testify as to his ownership of the property.[57]

(§ 3) C. Effect of possession of stolen property.[58]—The possession of recently stolen property is evidence of guilt.[59] Such possession raises a presumption that thereby shown. Buck v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 387. But evidence of other distinct larcenies, committed at least a year after the offense charged, by different persons under different circumstances and by different means, is inadmissible. Betting at races. State v. Boatright, 182 Mo. 33, 81 S. W. 450. Admission of evidence as to other charges of larceny held proper, where closely interwoven with that on which defendant was being tried. State v. Rooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82.

48. On a theft of cattle, one qualified by long experience may testify at the trial that when found in defendant's possession, the condition of the cattle showed they had been driven hard. Kennon v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 82 S. W. 518. So one who has testified that in tracking cattle he found evidence that they were scouring may testify that fast driving of fat cattle makes them scour frequently. Id.

49. Evidence of false representation that defendants would assign bills to prosecuting witness admissible in prosecution for grand larceny by embezzlement, though not pleaded in indictment. People v. Rothstein [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 999.

50. State v. Copeman [Mo.] 84 S. W. 942. Admission of statements made to prosecutor by W. before offense was committed and before they met defendant and in no way referring to him, held not prejudicial. Id.

51. Where a buggy harness was with a lap robe and was shown to have been taken at the same time, evidence concerning it was admissible in a prosecution for theft of the lap robe, as part of the res gestae, though it was not traced to the possession of the accused. Thompson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 78 S. W. 941. On a prosecution for cattle theft committed in a particular county, evidence of accused's purpose in going to that county three years before the commission of the offense is too remote. People v. Green, 143 Cal. 8, 76 P. 649.

52. Cannot operate to suspend criminal statute, or to overthrow rules of evidence by which commission of offense is proven. Crockford v. State [Neb.] 102 N. W. 70.

53. Testimony of a witness that he had heard that prosecutor had lost certain clothing was admissible when offered solely to show why he had carefully examined goods found in defendant's possession. Stafford v. State [Ga.] 48 S. E. 903. But in a prosecution for horse theft, it was not competent for the state to show what an alleged detective, who had testified for the state, told the officers about the theft of the horse. Lightfoot v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 78 S. W. 1075. On prosecution for larceny of $20 gold piece, testimony that after arrest witness and policeman found $20 gold piece in room where crime was committed is admissible, though witness cannot identify particular coin as his. State v. Johnson [Wash.] 78 P. 903. On trial for larceny of $100 bill, evidence that accused's wife was in possession of bill of same denomination and description shortly after commission of alleged crime, and that she sent it to the bank to be changed, is admissible as circumstance tending to throw light on the transaction. Buckine v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 257.

54. Testimony that a saddle found in defendant's house resembled the saddle that was on the stolen horse when defendant riding the horse called at witness' house was properly admitted. People v. Nunley, 142 Cal. 441, 76 P. 45. Where the greater part of property stolen consisted of money in small denominations, nickels and dimes, it was not error to admit in evidence money of the kind and denomination stolen, and shown to have been in the possession of defendant soon after the crime was committed, though not identified as the money stolen. State v. Coover [Kan.] 76 P. 845. It is not error to admit in evidence articles of clothing traced to the possession of accused, there being sufficient evidence that they are the ones stolen from prosecutor. Williams v. State, 119 Ga. 564, 46 S. E. 837.

55. Court should so instruct jury at time of its admission. Howson v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 933. Other defendant should ask instruction limiting scope of confession. Id.

56. Where it was claimed that prosecuting witness by mistake gave accused $100 bill instead of $10 bill, evidence held to authorize jury to find that he took it with knowledge that it was a larger amount than he was authorized to receive. Buckine v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 257.

57. Bennett v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 483.

58. See 2 Curr. L. 702.

59. Hudson v. State [Ga.] 48 S. E. 903; Stafford v. State [Ga.] 48 S. E. 903; Bone v. State [Ga.] 48 S. E. 986. To be considered the person having possession is the one who stole it,[60] unless he accounts satisfactorily for his possession,[61] in which case it is incumbent upon the state to show that his explanation is false.[62] The property found in defendant's possession must be identified as that belonging to the prosecuting witness.[63]

(§ 3) D. Sufficiency of evidence.[64]—It is incumbent upon the state to sustain each element of the crime by satisfactory proof.[65] Cases turning on the sufficiency of the evidence to support a verdict of guilty are collected in the note.[66]

(§ 3) E. Instructions.[67]—Instructions on the liability of principals of the second degree,[68] prosecutor's custody of the property,[69] defendant's good faith in taking,[70] and the presumption arising from possession of the stolen property, are and weighed by the jury in connection with the other evidence. If a reasonable doubt of guilt is raised even by inconclusive evidence of the innocent possession of stolen goods, the defendant is entitled to the benefit of it. State v. Lax [N. J. Law] 59 A. 18.

60. State v. Carr [Del. Gen. Sess.] 57 A. 370. Such possession together with false statements as to source of its possession is sufficient to make out prima facie case of larceny. Scott v. State, 119 Ga. 425, 46 S. E. 637.

61. State v. Carr [Del. Gen. Sess.] 57 A. 370. One having possession of stolen property may explain the circumstances under which he got possession, showing that his possession is an innocent one. Jackson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 79 S. W. 521.

62. State v. Carr [Del. Gen. Sess.] 57 A. 370; State v. Lax [N. J. Law] 59 A. 18. Where the evidence is conflicting as to whether defendant who was not present at the taking, but received the article from the person who took it, had anything to do with the original taking, he was entitled to a charge that if he had nothing to do therewith the jury should acquit him, though he obtained it from the thief, knowing it had been stolen. Jackson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 631.

63. Watson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 82 S. W. 514.

64. See 2 Curr. L. 703.

65. State v. Carr [Del. Gen. Sess.] 57 A. 370. Where title to animals, subject to larceny, is sought to be established by brand, a certificate of the recorded brand must be shown. Territory v. Smith [N. M.] 78 P. 42. Value of a domestic animal under the Oklahoma statute need not be proven [art. 1, ch. 20, p. 104, Session Laws 1895]. Woodring v. Territory [Okl.] 78 P. 85. The accused having been charged with the larceny of two articles, and the evidence being insufficient to make out the offense as to one, and there being no proof of the value of the other, a new trial should have been granted. White v. State, 120 Ga. 145, 47 S. E. 547. Where on a trial for theft of a lap robe, there was no controversy that it was worth a dollar, and the court submitted a misdemeanor to the jury, there was no error in failing to submit to the jury some proved value. Thompson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 78 S. W. 941.

66. Evidence held sufficient to sustain a conviction for theft of cattle. (State v. Greenland [Iowa] 100 N. W. 341; Crockford v. State [Neb.] 102 N. W. 70), horses (Lopez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 1016; Blanco v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 370), hogs (Pollard v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 79 S. W. 26; Jackson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 83; Pate v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 695; Gibson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 1119; Bennett v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 483; Harvey v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 674), and money (Ector v. State, 120 Ga. 543, 48 S. E. 315; Berry v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 630; Gill v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 912; Buckine v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 257; State v. Johnson [Wash.] 78 P. 903). Larceny of money by means of lock game. State v. Copeman [Mo.] 84 S. W. 942. By inducing one to deposit money as security. State v. Buck [Mo.] 84 S. W. 951. Cement. State v. Minck [Minn.] 102 N. W. 207. Larceny from person. People v. Clark [Cal.] 79 P. 434. Likewise to authorize the jury to find that the larceny of a ring, committed by a married woman in company with her husband, was the result of a preconcerted scheme to steal, and that the wife was equally guilty with her husband and was not acting under coercion. Commonwealth v. Adams [Mass.] 71 N. E. 78. Evidence insufficient to establish value of property to be over $50.00. Howell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 185. To show fraudulent taking of horse. Young v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 808. To sustain conviction for theft of horses (State v. Gordon [Utah] 76 P. 882), cattle (Barnes v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 735; Waters v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 82 S. W. 654), hogs (Walker v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 716; Watson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 82 S. W. 514), bale of cotton (Edwards v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 79 S. W. 542), steel trap (Snoga v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 625). No sufficient corroboration of accomplice. Buck v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 387, 390.

67. See 2 Curr. L. 704.

68. That defendant could be convicted if found guilty of the larceny charged or if he merely aided or abetted therein. People v. Ruiz, 144 Cal. 251, 77 P. 907.

69. An instruction which omitted to state that the complaining witness had the "actual" care, control and management of the cattle stolen is not fatal to a conviction. Kennon v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 82 S. W. 518.

70. A charge that even though the jury believed that the hog belonged to prosecuting witness, yet that if at the time defendant took the animal he did so under a claim of right and in good faith, honestly believing that it belonged to him, he would not be guilty is proper. Hull v. State [Tex.

referred to below.[71] No instruction on the question of the value of the property stolen is necessary where it is immaterial under the statute.[72] In Texas, failure to instruct as to a particular issue is not error in a misdemeanor case unless a proper request in writing is presented thereon and refused.[73] A defendant who has produced evidence tending to sustain the issues on his part is entitled to have the jury instructed on his theory of the case.[74] It is proper to refuse an instruction distinguishing between grand larceny and robbery.[75] The failure of the court on a prosecution for grand larceny to give the jury a form of verdict permitting it to find defendant guilty of petit larceny is favorable to the accused, and is not a ground for reversal on appeal,[76] particularly where defendant did not request an instruction permitting a conviction for the lesser crime, and the evidence showed that he was guilty of grand larceny if he was guilty of any crime.[77] It is proper to refuse a charge that the jury could not find defendant guilty unless he committed the crime alone, where he is jointly indicted with another for the commission of the crime charged.[78] An instruction defining the difference between larceny and obtaining money under false pretenses is not necessary where there is no evidence that the prosecutor parted with the ownership of the property or consented to defendant's conversion of it.[79]

(§ 3) F. Trial, sentence and review.[80]—Where there was a question whether or not witness was a detective or an accomplice with defendant in the theft, the question should have been submitted to the jury.[81] Under an information for larceny from the person of a named individual in the nighttime, a verdict of guilty of larceny from "a" person in the nighttime is insufficient.[82] In Louisiana a sentence of imprisonment in the penitentiary cannot be imposed where the accused has entered a plea of guilty of petit larceny.[83] Notwithstanding the provision in Connecticut that one who steals chattels not exceeding $15 in value shall be given a money fine, a person stealing a horse of less than that value may be given a jail sentence.[84] Sentence of 20 years under statute applicable to third offenses affirmed.[85] One indicted for robbery may be convicted of larceny from the person.[86]

Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 380. A charge that one who, acting on the faith of a statutory provision, takes charge of an animal abandoned by its owner, cares for it, and at the end of three months sells the animal, is guilty of larceny, even though the statute proves unconstitutional, is bad. Kueney v. Uhl [Iowa] 98 N. W. 602. Charge held to have fairly submitted question whether accused took calf into his possession with felonious intent to steal it. Crockford v. State [Neb.] 102 N. W. 70.

71. Murray v. State [Miss.] 36 So. 541; State v. Lax [N. J. Law] 59 A. 18. Charge directing the jury not to consider defendant's recent possession of the property unless the evidence showed that he had personal and actual possession involving a distinct and conscious ownership, held favorable to defendant. Beard v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 824.

72. Theft of horse of any value punishable under 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. Wash. § 7113. State v. Washing [Wash.] 78 P. 1019.

73. Hull v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 380. Code Cr. Proc. art. 723, did not change the rule. Llcett v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 79 S. W. 33.

74. Evidence insufficient to show that property came into defendant's hands lawfully, so as to entitle him to charge that he could not be convicted if the jury so found. State v. Teller [Or.] 78 P. 980.

75. Robbery involves grand larceny, and jury could not acquit of larceny from person if facts showed robbery. People v. Clark [Cal.] 79 P. 434.

76, 77, 78. People v. Clark [Cal.] 79 P. 434.

79. State v. Copeman [Mo.] 84 S. W. 942.

80. See 2 Curr. L. 705.

81. Lightfoot v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 78 S. W. 1075.

82. State v. McGee, 181 Mo. 312, 80 S. W. 899.

83. State v. Coston [La.] 37 So. 619.

84. Gen. St. 1902, § 1204. McVelgh v. Ripley [Conn.] 58 A. 701.

85. In re Butler [Mich.] 101 N. W. 630.

86. Under Iowa Code, § 4753, making it robbery to steal and take from the person of another any property, the subject of larceny, by violence, etc. State v. Wasson [Iowa] 101 N. W. 1125.

LASCIVIOUSNESS; LATERAL RAILROADS; LATERAL SUPPORT; LAW OF THE CASE; LAW OF THE ROAD; LEASES; LEGACIES AND DEVISES; LEGAL CONCLUSIONS; LEGATEES; LETTERS; LETTERS OF CREDIT; LEVEES; LEWDNESS, see latest topical index.

LIBEL AND SLANDER.

§ 1. Definitions and Distinctions (418).
§ 2. Actionable Words (418).
A. In General (418).
B. Words Imputing Crime or Want of Chastity (419).
C. Words Exposing to Contempt or Ridicule (419).
D. Words Injuring in Business or Occupation (420).
E. Disparagement of Property or Title (421).
§ 3. Malice (421).
§ 4. Privilege and Privileged Communications (421).
§ 5. Publication (423).
§ 6. Justification (423).
§ 7. Damages, and the Aggravation and Mitigation Thereof (423).
A. Actual or Compensatory Damages (423).
B. Punitive or Exemplary Damages (423).
C. Aggravation of Damages (424).
D. Mitigation of Damages (424).
E. Inadequate and Excessive Damages (424).
§ 8. Persons Liable (424).
§ 9. Conditions Precedent (425).
§ 10. Pleading; Declaration, Complaint, or Petition (425). Colloquium and Innuendo (425). Plea, or Answer (426). Demurrer (426). Bill of Particulars (426). Issues, Proof and Variance (426).
§ 11. Evidence (426).
§ 12. Trial (427).
§ 13. Criminal Slander (428).

§ 1. Definitions and distinctions.[87]—The common law definitions[88] are substantially adhered to by statutory definitions, they differing only in minor particulars.[89] A libelous utterance may also be "insulting words" under a statute, but the two are distinct.[90] A libel is a trespass on the case.[91]

§ 2. Actionable words. A. In general.[92]—Words, when construed according to their natural and ordinary meaning, may be actionable, either because defamatory upon their face,[93] in which case they are actionable per se,[94] that is without proof of actual damage, the injury being presumed;[95] or because under the circumstances attending their publication, they were capable of a special meaning, rendering them defamatory, in which case special damage must be averred and proved.[96] In determining whether a publication is libelous, the words must

87. See 2 Curr. L. 705.

88. See Cyc. Law Dict. "Libel," "Slander," and see note Actionable Words, 2 Curr. L. 706.

89. See 2 Curr. L. 705, n. 57. Libel is a false and unprivileged publication in writing, printing, picture, effigy or other fixed representation to the eye, which exposes any person to hatred, contempt, ridicule, or obloquy, or which causes him to be shunned or avoided, or which has a tendency to injure him in his occupation [Civ. Code Mont. § 32]. Paxton v. Woodward [Mont.] 78 P. 215. Libel is the malicious defamation of a person made public by any printing, writing, sign, picture, representation or effigy, tending to provoke him to wrath or expose him to public hatred, contempt or ridicule, or to deprive him of the benefits of public confidence or social intercourse [Iowa Code, § 5086]. Morse v. Times-Republican Printing Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867.

90. Sun Life Assur. Co. v. Bailey, 101 Va. 443, 44 S. E. 692.

91. At common law trespass on the case was the form of action to recover damages for libel, and persons charged with a joint libel are joint trespassers within the meaning of the Georgia constitution, and suable within the county of the residence of any one of such joint "trespassers." Cox v. Strickland, 120 Ga. 104, 47 S. E. 912.

92. See 2 Curr. L. 706.

93. Words defamatory on their face: See monographic note, 2 Curr. L. 707. Where a wrong sued for is the violation of plaintiff's right to go to and remain in a place of public resort, it is immaterial, except on the question of damages, whether the words accompanying the exclusion of such person were of themselves defamatory. Davis v. Tacoma R. & Power Co., 35 Wash. 203, 77 P. 209.

94. In determining whether particular words are actionable per se, the same rules do not apply to libel as to slander. What would not be actionable without alleging and proving special damage, if merely spoken, may be actionable per se if written, or printed, or otherwise published in a libel. See monographic note, 2 Curr. L. 709.

95. When a false and unprivileged publication possessing the ingredients that stamp it as libelous per se is established, injury is presumed to ensue therefrom, as the direct product of such publication, and affords ground for the allowance of at least nominal damages. Paxton v. Woodward [Mont.] 78 P. 215.

96. Words actionable on proof of special damage only. See monographic note, 2 Curr. L. 712. Watters & Son v. Retail Clerks' Union No. 479, 120 Ga. 424, 47 S. E.

be taken in accordance with their general acceptance,[97] and given that meaning which under all the circumstances of their publication may be presumed to have been conveyed to those to whom the publication is made.[98] It is not necessary that the defamatory charge or imputation shall be made in direct and positive terms, or that it shall be made as of the knowledge of the person making it.[99] Mere words of abuse are not actionable in themselves.[1]

(§ 2) B. Words imputing crime or want of chastity.[2]—Slanderous words which impute the commission of some crime by the plaintiff involving moral turpitude, or which would subject the offender to an infamous punishment, are actionable per se,[3] and this is true whether such crime is one at common law or has been made so by statute.[4]

At the early common law it was not regarded as actionable to charge a female with unchastity without showing special damage;[5] but by reason of statutory changes and the trend of modern judicial opinion, it is now almost universally held actionable per se to charge another with adultery or fornication.[6]

(§ 2) C. Words exposing to contempt or ridicule.[7]—Any false statement

911. Words injuring in business or trade. Jaeger v. Beberdick [N. J. Law] 57 A. 157.

97. See 2 Curr. L. 706, n. 62. Morse v. Times-Republican Printing Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867.

98. See 2 Curr. L. 706, n. 63. Paxton v. Woodward [Mont.] 78 P. 215. It is not necessary that the words make a charge in express terms, for they are actionable if they consist of a statement of facts which would naturally and presumably be understood by the hearers as a charge of crime. Quist v. Klichli [Minn.] 99 N. W. 642. See, also, monographic note, 2 Curr. L. 706, Construction of words.

99. See monographic note, 2 Curr. L. 709, Defamation by irony, insinuation, etc. The assertion of a libel, either by insinuation, irony, question or allusion, is the same as if asserted directly in terms. Wilkens v. Hammann, 43 Misc. 21, 86 N. Y. S. 744. It is a sound rule that the publisher of libelous matters attributed to others is liable to the person injured if such matters are published with evident sanction and are made the basis of offensive insinuations, derogatory expressions of opinion, and injurious characterizations. Mertens v. Bee Pub. Co. [Neb.] 99 N. W. 847.

1. The words spoken were not of themselves the basic wrong. The complaint was for wrongful exclusion from public resort, accompanied by loud and boisterous language. Davis v. Tacoma R. & Power Co., 35 Wash. 203, 77 P. 209.

2. See 2 Curr. L. 714.

3. Shepherd v. Piper, 98 Me. 384, 57 A. 84. See, also, monographic note, 2 Curr. L. 714, words imputing crime. The words "You damned old ——— you broke in P's house and stole the coal" charge a crime and are actionable per se. Short v. Acton [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 505. So to charge one with keeping a house of prostitution (Wilkens v. Hammann, 43 Misc. 21, 86 N. Y. S. 744), or a disorderly house, imputes an indictable offense, and is actionable per se (Moore v. Beck [N. J. Law] 58 A. 166). The words "He is a chippy-chaser" impute to plaintiff, he being a married man, the crime of adultery, and are actionable per se. McDonald v. Nugent, 122 Iowa, 651, 98 N. W. 506. In an action for libel in charging complainant with taking part in a rebellion against the government of Brazil, where there is no allegation and proof of a statute making such an act a treasonable offense and providing penalties therefor, the court cannot assume that the laws of Brazil are similar to the common law so as to provide a punishment for treason. Crashley v. Press Pub. Co. [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 258.

4. Shepherd v. Piper, 98 Me. 384, 57 A. 84. To say of one's former clerk that he "has robbed me out of all I made. * * * He has robbed me of all the profits, which amounted to several hundred dollars," charges a fraudulent conversion of property within the meaning of the Kentucky Act of 1902, p. 151, c. 66, making such conversion a crime, and is actionable per se. Allen v. Brady [Ky.] 83 S. W. 565. In New York, to charge another with being an anarchist is slanderous. In that state the Penal Code defines criminal anarchy as the doctrine that organized government should be overthrown by force or violence [sections 468a, 468b]. Von Gerichten v. Seitz, 94 App. Div. 130, 87 N. Y. S. 968. Double voting upon a question merely calling for an expression of opinion, and where those voting have no power to determine the question voted upon, is not an offense either at common law or by statute. A declaration declaring upon such conduct does not impute an offense and is demurrable. Shepherd v. Piper, 98 Me. 384, 57 A. 84.

5. Patterson v. Frazer [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 1077. See, also, monographic note, 2 Curr. L. 716, Words imputing unchastity or immoral conduct.

6. In Texas, since the passage of Pen. Code 1895, art. 645, spoken words falsely and maliciously or wantonly imputing a want of chastity are actionable without showing special damage. Hatcher v. Range [Tex.] 81 S. W. 289. To accuse another of adultery is slanderous per se. McDonald v. Nugent, 122 Iowa, 651, 98 N. W. 506. To say of one that he is living in sin with his housekeeper, an unmarried woman, is actionable per se. Kersting v. White [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 730.

7. See 2 Curr. L. 715.

published of or concerning another which tends to injure his reputation and thereby expose him to public hatred, contempt, scorn, obloquy or shame, is libelous per se;[8] thus to charge another with being afflicted with venereal disease is slanderous.[9]

(§ 2) D. Words injuring in business or occupation.[10]—Any false and malicious statement published concerning another is libelous per se when it tends to injure him in his business,[11] and so of publications reflecting on the character or qualifications of a professional man,[12] or of a public officer in the conduct of his office.[13] But words to be actionable on this ground must touch the plaintiff in his office, profession or trade,[14] and be shown to have been spoken of the party in relation thereto and to be such as would prejudice him therein.[15]

8. Morse v. Times-Republican Printing Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867. Newspaper publication that a man is a eunuch (Eckert v. Van Pelt [Kan.] 76 P. 909, 66 L. R. A. 266), that he is a common liar (Paxton v. Woodward [Mont.] 78 P. 215), that plaintiff's wife had announced that her life had been made unhappy because plaintiff neglected everything, her included, in his absorbing pursuit of millions and that he sacrificed everything to his one passion (Woolworth v. Star Co., 97 App. Div. 525, 90 N. Y. S. 147). To accuse one of being a secret slanderer and a scandal monger, with betraying his friends, and telling lodge secrets (Patton v. Cruce [Ark.] 81 S. W. 380), to say of one that in attempting to collect a bill he threatened violence with a pistol and was arrested (Hanson v. Krehbiel, 68 Kan. 670, 75 P. 1041). So to publish of plaintiff: "Savant cannot make a living. Old Oxford professor and family in sad straits. He is living with his young wife and two small children in a house which has not a single door or window inclosed. He is too poor to finish his dwelling and too proud to ask aid" is libelous per se. Martin v. Press Pub. Co., 93 App. Div. 531, 87 N. Y. S. 859. A publication describing plaintiff as "an Englishman of more or less indifferent repute" is not libelous per se where there is no innuendo alleging the libelous meaning of such words. Crashley v. Press Pub. Co. [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 258. It is not necessary that crime be imputed to the plaintiff to constitute libel. It is enough if the printed article be such that its publication naturally tends to brand him with dishonesty or other conduct or characteristic deserving the contempt or reprobation of right minded people. To say that "Charles was not in Boone for his health. Charles was in Boone for the other fellow's health. The other fellow's health is all that Charles left in Boone. He took everything else the other had. * * * Cholly was strictly onto his job just the same. He got away with over $500 good hard currency" is libelous per se. Morse v. Times-Republican Printing Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867.

9. McDonald v. Nugent, 122 Iowa, 651, 98 N. W. 506. See 2 Curr. L. 717, monographic note, Words imputing disease.

10. See 2 Curr. L. 717.

11. For a mercantile agency to report of a business house that its bank account "is not classed as an entirely desirable one," if false, is actionable. Mower-Hobart Co. v. Dun & Co., 131 F. 812. A publication beginning "Hints to Advertisers—This is from the fake trade journal published at St. Louis" is libelous per se. Midland Pub. Co. v. Implement Trade Journal Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 298. While to characterize another as extravagant may not be actionable per se, yet to charge that one's extravagance has brought to bankruptcy a company or enterprise may be actionable when said of one whose business it is to act as manager of large enterprises in which others are interested. Daily v. De Young, 127 F. 491; Daily v. Engineering & Min. Journal, 94 App. Div. 314, 88 N. Y. S. 6. A mere libel or defamation of business reputation, unaccompanied by threats, intimidation or coercion, or by any direct attack upon property or conduct of business, or by any direct or indirect creation of liability on the part of the complainant, is not within the equitable jurisdiction of the circuit court of the United States. Edison v. Thomas A. Edison Jr., Chemical Co., 128 F. 957. The placing of a firm of merchants on an "unfair list" by Clerks' Union is not libelous per se. Watters & Son v. Retail Clerks' Union No. 479, 120 Ga. 424, 47 S. E. 911. So of "blacklisting" an employe. Wabash R. Co. v. Young, 162 Ind. 102, 69 N. E. 1003. To charge one with being a member of a labor organization and that he is a labor agitator is not libelous per se. Wabash R. Co. v. Young, 162 Ind. 102, 69 N. E. 1003. To allege that a trade journal is a fake is to charge theft, and since a corporation cannot be guilty of theft, the libel is on the manager of the paper. Midland Pub. Co. v. Implement Trade Journal Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 298.

12. Where a newspaper publication ridicules the private life of an author, and represents him as a presumptuous literary freak, and is manifestly an attack upon his reputation or business, it is libelous per se and cannot be justified on the ground that it is a jest. Triggs v. Sun Print. & Pub. Ass'n [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 739.

13. To publish of a director of the state prison that he bought mules for $27 per head more than they were worth, and paid for horses double what they were worth charges a breach of official duty and is actionable per se. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

14. See monographic note, 2 Curr. L. 718; Cranfill v. Hayden [Tex.] 80 S. W. 609. See same case 75 S. W. 573, 2 Curr. L. 717, n. 73. A minister of the gospel is one following a profession within the meaning of the Georgia Code, which makes a person liable with-

(§ 2) E. Disparagement of property or title.[16]—A bona fide claim of title to plaintiff's property is not actionable.[17] Words disparaging property, to be actionable on that basis, must be spoken of the property and not of the person of plaintiff,[18] and a publication relating to the value of shares of stock which plaintiff had advertised to sell at public sale must be shown to have been false and malicious to have caused special pecuniary damage.[19]

§ 3. Malice.[20]—Malice, express or implied, is an essential ingredient of libel,[21] but where the language complained of is actionable per se, both malice and injury are presumed.[22] But the malice which the law thus implies and presumes to exist is malice in law, or legal malice, as distinguished from malice in fact, or actual malice.[23] Where the publication is not actionable per se, actual malice must be shown.[24] The presence or absence of actual malice becomes material only as a circumstance affording a basis for increasing or diminishing the amount of recovery, and in cases involving the defense of privileged publication.[25]

§ 4. Privilege and privileged communications.[26]—Not all communications which may tend to injure are actionable. Thus any matter or thing pertinent[27] and material[28] to a judicial proceeding is for reasons of state policy absolutely privileged,[29] even if uttered maliciously.[30] The privilege extends to a full and out proof of special damage for words spoken of another in reference to his "profession" calculated to injure him therein. Flanders v. Daley, 120 Ga. 885, 48 S. E. 327. It is not necessary that such minister should at the time the words are spoken be receiving compensation for his services. Id. To say of a school teacher that he is "noted," though used in an invidious sense, and, referring to a particular district, "has done more damage and less good than any other teacher," and, referring to his application for a position as teacher, "this district knows when it has had enough, so it turned the gentleman down," does not disparage him or impute to him a lack of any qualities or qualifications which are prerequisites to the due fulfillment of the duties of a school teacher, and is not actionable per se. Paxton v. Woodward [Mont.] 78 P. 215.

15. Paxton v. Woodward [Mont.] 78 P. 215. To say of plaintiff that he had an adopted daughter whom he was accustomed to go off and live with for periods of a week at a time, leaving his wife at home alone, is not actionable per se, in the absence of an allegation that the words were spoken of plaintiff in reference to any occupation or business. Cassavoy v. Pattison, 93 App. Div. 370, 87 N. Y. S. 658.

16. See 2 Curr. L. 720.

17. Plaintiff must show the words were maliciously published. Butts v. Long [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 312.

18. A publication to the effect that a hotel kept by plaintiff was a resort for questionable characters, and that one of such characters probably committed a certain murder, referred to the property of plaintiff and not to plaintiff himself. Maglio v. New York Herald Co., 93 App. Div. 547, 87 N. Y. S. 927. A publication stating that "Mr. Crooked [Calvin] K. Reifsnider gets it in the neck again" is a libel of the named person individually and cannot be enlarged by innuendo to apply to a corporation of which he is manager, in the absence of an allegation that he and the corporation are one and the same, or that people generally so understood. Midland Pub. Co. v. Implement Trade Journal Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 298.

19. Young v. Geiske, 209 Pa. 515, 58 A. 887.

20. See 2 Curr. L. 720.

21. See 2 Curr. L. 720, n. 76. Under the Montana statute, defining libel, the existence of malice is not a necessary ingredient to entitle the plaintiff to recover. Paxton v. Woodward [Mont.] 78 P. 215.

22. See 2 Curr. L. 720, n. 77. Butler v. Barret, 130 F. 944; Morse v. Times-Republican Print. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867; Short v. Acton [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 505; McDonald v. Nugent, 122 Iowa, 651, 98 N. W. 506.

23. Wrege v. Jones [N. D.] 100 N. W. 705. Malice as that word is used in cases of slander and libel does not necessarily imply actual evil intent, but rather the want or absence of any legal excuse for the speaking or publication of the injurious words. McDonald v. Nugent, 122 Iowa, 651, 98 N. W. 506; Morse v. Times-Republican Print. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867.

24. It is sufficient to justify a recovery for a libel conditionally privileged if there is any degree of actual malice in the motives inspiring it, though there may also be a lawful motive. Cranfill v. Hayden [Tex.] 80 S. W. 609. Evidence that defendant did not intend to charge or be understood as charging plaintiff with the crime imputed is admissible to negative malice in fact as distinguished from malice in law. Short v. Acton [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 505.

25. Paxton v. Woodward [Mont.] 78 P. 215. The right to recover being shown, and the presence of malice wanting, actual or compensatory damages only can be awarded; but join to such right of recovery the element of malice, and punitive or exemplary damages may be added. Id.

26. See 2 Curr. L. 721.

27. Laing v. Mitten, 185 Mass. 233, 70 N. E. 128.

28. Monroe v. Davis [Ky.] 82 S. W. 450.

29. Statements made to a magistrate, having jurisdiction to entertain a complaint, correct report of judicial proceedings, but there must be no prejudicial comment,[31] and where there is inaccuracy in the report of a judicial case, defendant may show that reasonable care was used.[32]

Again, whenever an author or publisher acts in the bona fide discharge of a public[33] or private duty,[34] legal or moral,[35] or in the prosecution of his own rights,[36] his statements are privileged, but only qualifiedly so.[37] When a communication is privileged, it does not lose its privileged character by reason of incidentally coming to the attention of others than those for whom it was intended.[38] Whether an alleged slanderous communication is privileged is a matter of law for the court to determine, when the circumstances and the occasion of the communication are undisputed.[39] that defendant had inflicted an assault and battery, and testimony to the same effect upon a trial, are spoken in the course of judicial proceedings, and privileged. Laing v. Mitten, 185 Mass. 233, 70 N. E. 128. But libelous matter published of a court after the conclusion of a cause is not within the privilege. Burdett v. Com. [Va.] 48 S. E. 878.

30. Laing v. Mitten, 185 Mass. 233, 70 N. E. 128.

31. Striking headlines to a newspaper report characterizing plaintiff as a "traitor, seducer and perjurer" are actionable. Dorr v. U. S., 195 U. S. 138, 49 Law. Ed. —.

32. Use of opinion filed by the court as the source of the newspaper's information sustained. O'Connell v. Boston Herald Co., 129 F. 839.

33. Newspaper reports or criticisms: It is universally understood that when a citizen offers himself as a candidate for public suffrage he invites criticism of his character to the extent that such criticism is directed to his qualifications for the office to which he aspires. His obligation to submit to such criticism cannot be determined by his own feelings or belief as to the fairness and justness of the criticism. The rule is based upon considerations of public policy, namely, that the merits and demerits of public men, including candidates for public office, shall be freely canvassed, to the end that the voters may make a safe and intelligent selection. Mertens v. Bee Pub. Co. [Neb.] 99 N. W. 847. But this privilege extends only to criticisms or expressions of opinion based upon sufficient foundation, such as admitted or proven facts, and not to false allegations of fact. The better opinion is to the effect that when a publisher undertakes to state a fact with reference to another person which would be defamatory of the person and injurious to his reputation, there is no doctrine of privilege to shield the publisher for such misstatement of fact. If, on the other hand, the publisher, upon certain proved or admitted facts, expresses his opinion, however severe or uncomplimentary such opinion may be, the rule of privilege will extend its protection in the absence of express malice. Id. An insurance agent as such is not a public officer, nor is his character a matter of such general public interest as to bring him within the scope of the privilege extended in this class of cases. Morse v. Times-Republican Print. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867. If allegations of fact in a newspaper charging a candidate for office with a criminal offense are false, they are not privileged, and good faith and probable cause are not a defense. Star Pub. Co. v. Donahoe [Del.] 58 A. 513, 65 L. R. A. 980. "Liberty of the press" discussed and defined. Morse v. Times-Republican Print. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867.

34. Reports of a mercantile agency will be privileged when furnished to those having an interest in the matter. But the privilege is lost when the report is furnished to subscribers generally. Mower-Hobart Co. v. Dun & Co., 131 F. 812. A statement made by a husband to a friend, to whom the husband had applied to care for the children, that he was about to leave his wife because of infidelity, is not privileged. Stayton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 78 S. W. 1071. The statement of a railroad company that a person was a labor agitator could not amount to a libel where the statement was made in answer to an inquiry addressed to it by another railroad which contemplated employing him. Wabash R. Co. v. Young, 162 Ind. 102, 69 N. E. 1003. Communications made in the course of ecclesiastical discipline are not of the absolutely privileged class [Code 1896, § 5065]. Grant v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 420.

35. A communication to a society of persons associated for the promotion of morals that one of its members is living in sin with an unmarried woman is privileged. Kersting v. White [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 730. And it is not material that the statement was made, not at a meeting of the society, but to one of the members the day previous to a meeting. Id. Nor is it material that the society was not a church but a voluntary association of persons pledged to maintain good morals. Id.

36. Statements published in good faith by one to protect his own interests in a matter where he is concerned, as well as to protect the interests of another whom he represents as agent, are privileged when the character of the publication is such as makes it reasonably necessary under the circumstances to accomplish the desired purpose. A willful falsehood cannot be uttered in good faith, and therefore can never be the subject of a privileged communication. Holmes v. Clisby [Ga.] 48 S. E. 934.

37. Flanders v. Daley, 120 Ga. 885, 48 S. E. 327.

38. Mertens v. Bee Pub. Co. [Neb.] 99 N. W. 847.

39. Kersting v. White [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 730.

§ 5. Publication.[40]—Publication is an essential element of libelous defamation,[41] and the sending of a letter through the mail is not a publication.[42] But it has been said there may be publication before or after the mailing of the letter, as by dictation to a stenographer.[43] Every repetition or republication of a libel is a new libel,[44] and a suit may be maintained in any county in which the newspaper is circulated, though published in another county.[45]

§ 6. Justification.[46]—That the libelous matter was copied from another paper is no justification.[47] Good faith, when so pleaded, is available in mitigation of damages, but not as a defense,[48] nor is it a defense that defendant did not intend to make the charge which he did in fact make,[49] nor can actionable words be justified on the ground that they were intended as a jest.[50] That plaintiff has libeled defendant does not defeat his cause of action.[51]

§ 7. Damages,[52] and the aggravation and mitigation thereof. A. Actual or compensatory damages.[53]—Upon proof of words actionable per se and their application to plaintiff, he is entitled to such compensatory damages as are attributable to the publication,[54] without proof of special damage,[55] though in an action of slander in one's business, prospective profits are speculative and cannot be considered.[56] Shame and mortification are elements of and may constitute grievous mental suffering, and are elements of actual damage.[57] Where only compensatory damages can be recovered, the standing of the defendant is immaterial.[58]

(§ 7) B. Punitive or exemplary damages.[59]—To warrant a recovery of punitive or exemplary damages, the presence of actual malice must be established,[60] though a newspaper publisher may be cast in punitive damages, though unaware

40. See 2 Curr. L. 722.

41. Sun Life Assur. Co. v. Bailey, 101 Va. 443, 44 S. E. 692.

42. Sun Life Assur. Co. v. Bailey, 101 Va. 443, 44 S. E. 692. Especially if sent to the person libeled, with no reason to suppose that it will be opened and read by any one else before he has received and read it. Rumney v. Worthley [Mass.] 71 N. E. 316. See 2 Curr. L. 723, n. 97.

43. This may be by dictation of the letter to the stenographer, writing out on typewriter and subsequent signature by the author, or by making contents of the letter known to others before or after it was mailed, or in a number of other ways (dictum). Sun Life Assur. Co. v. Bailey, 101 Va. 443, 44 S. E. 692.

Note: The same was held in Gambrill v. Schooley, 93 Md. 48, following Pullman v. Hill, 1 Q. B. Div. 524; but was denied in Owen v. Ogilvie Pub. Co., 32 App. Div. [N. Y.] 465. The negative seems supported by better reason. See comment in 8 Law Notes, 467.

44. Each publisher is liable to the same extent as if the calumny originated with him. Morse v. Times-Republican Print. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867; Kersting v. White [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 730. But a repetition of defamatory words, though in the presence of others made at the special request of plaintiff, does not constitute such a legal injury as will give rise to an action. Patterson v. Frazer [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 1077.

45. Tingley v. Times Mirror Co., 144 Cal. 205, 77 P. 918.

46. See 2 Curr. L. 723.

47. Butler v. Barrett, 130 F. 944; Morse v. Times-Republican Print. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867.

48. Morse v. Times-Republican Print. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867; Dunlevy v. Wolferman [Mo. App.] 79 S. W. 1165. The question whether defendant exercised good faith, made an honest mistake and had reasonable grounds for believing the publication true, is under the North Carolina statute for the jury. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

49. Short v. Acton [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 505.

50. Triggs v. Sun Print. & Pub. Ass'n [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 739.

51. See 2 Curr. L. 722, n. 90. Patton v. Cruce [Ark.] 81 S. W. 380.

52. See, generally, Damages, 3 Curr. L. 997.

53. See 2 Curr. L. 723.

54. See 2 Curr. L. 723. Wrege v. Jones [N. D.] 100 N. W. 705.

55. See 2 Curr. L. 723. Paxton v. Woodward [Mont.] 78 P. 215.

56. Hume v. Kusche, 42 Misc. 414, 87 N. Y. S. 109.

57. Graybill v. De Young, 140 Cal. 323, 73 P. 1067. Mental suffering may be considered by the jury from their general knowledge in assessing damages. Butler v. Barret, 130 F. 944; Davis v. Tacoma R. & Power Co., 35 Wash. 203, 77 P. 209.

58. Sun Life Assur. Co. v. Bailey, 101 Va. 443, 44 S. E. 692.

59. See 2 Curr. L. 723.

60. Wrege v. Jones [N. D.] 100 N. W. 705; Hume v. Kusche, 42 Misc. 414, 87 N. Y. S. 109.

of the publication.[61] Where the slander was unprivileged, plaintiff need not prove the words spoken were false to authorize a recovery of smart money.[62]

(§ 7) C. Aggravation of damages.[63]—The circulation of defendant's newspaper is material on the question of aggravated damages.[64] Where the defendant interposes substantial evidence tending to support a plea of justification, that the proof fails to support the plea does not warrant a holding as matter of law that the plea was made in bad faith.[65]

(§ 7) D. Mitigation of damages.[66]—The fact that before the publication on which suit is brought plaintiff libeled defendant,[67] that defendant honestly believed the published charge was true,[68] that the libelous matter was copied from another newspaper,[69] and an offer to retract, if made before the commencement of suit, may all be considered in mitigation of damages.[70] Likewise it is open to defendant to show the bad character of plaintiff.[71] The mitigating circumstances, however, must have been known to defendant at the time of publication.[72]

(§ 7) E. Inadequate and excessive damages.[73]—Appellate courts will not interfere with the award of a jury unless the amount awarded is so grossly inadequate or excessive as to shock the moral sense and raise a reasonable presumption that the jury was actuated by passion or prejudice.[74]

§ 8. Persons liable.[75]—A corporation may be liable for libel,[76] and under the Texas statute, the wife may maintain an action of slander against the husband.[77] It is no defense that the defamatory matter was published by another person or newspaper, and merely copied, with or without credit,[78] for one who circulates it is also liable.[79]

61. Graybill v. DeYoung, 140 Cal. 323, 73 P. 1067. See 2 Curr. L. 724, n. 10.

62. Hume v. Kusche, 42 Misc. 414, 87 N. Y. S. 109.

63. See 2 Curr. L. 724.

64. Graybill v. DeYoung, 140 Cal. 323, 73 P. 1067, citing Gilman v. McClatchy, 111 Cal. 614.

65. Moore v. Beck [N. J. Law] 58 A. 166.

66. See 2 Curr. L. 724.

67. Patton v. Cruce [Ark.] 81 S. W. 380.

68. As affecting the amount of exemplary damages, the truth of the charge or defendant's honest belief therein may be offered in mitigation. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811; Morse v. Times-Republican Printing Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867; Dunlevy v. Wolferman [Mo. App.] 79 S. W. 1165. See 2 Curr. L. 724, n. 18.

69. Morse v. Times-Republican Print. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867.

70. Dinkelspiel v. New York Evening Journal Pub. Co., 42 Misc. 74, 85 N. Y. S. 570.

71. Morning Journal Ass'n v. Duke [C. C. A.] 128 F. 657. A cross-examination therefore which elicited that plaintiff had been a gambler for large stakes was proper, and its exclusion from consideration by the jury is reversible error. Best v. Kessler [C. C. A.] 130 F. 24.

72. Butler v. Barret, 130 F. 944; Dinkelspiel v. New York Evening Journal Pub. Co., 42 Misc. 74, 85 N. Y. S. 570. In order that the publisher of a libel may show in mitigation of damages the publication of similar libelous articles in other newspapers, it must be shown that he saw the articles in such newspapers, and was influenced thereby or believed them to be true. Carpenter v. New York Evening Journal Pub. Co., 96 App. Div. 376, 89 N. Y. S. 263.

73. See 2 Curr. L. 725.

74. Morning Journal Ass'n v. Duke [C. C. A.] 128 F. 657. $750 held excessive for attempted wrongful exclusion from public resort. Davis v. Tacoma R. & Power Co., 35 Wash. 203, 77 P. 209. $4,500 excessive for charging county election commissioners with misconduct in making appointments. Evening Post Co. v. Rhea [Ky.] 81 S. W. 273. $1,000 not excessive for accusing another with being a swindler, a forger, and a double thief in the sum of $70,000. Graybill v. DeYoung, 140 Cal. 323, 73 P. 1067. $500 not excessive where merchant followed customer into street and excitedly accused her of not having paid for goods taken from store, thereby attracting large crowd. Dunlevy v. Wolferman [Mo. App.] 79 S. W. 1165.

75. See 2 Curr. L. 725.

76. By agent acting within scope of his employment and in the course of business of the corporation. Sun Life Assur. Co. v. Bailey, 101 Va. 443, 44 S. E. 692.

77. Stayton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 78 S. W. 1071.

78. Morse v. Times-Republican Print. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867; Butler v. Barret, 130 F. 944. Nor is the rule in any manner changed or its effect avoided by the fact that the party who republishes the libel adds thereto "palliative" comments. Morse v. Times-Republican Print. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867. There is a distinction between the liability of a publisher who states upon his own authority and under his own sanction libelous matters which are proven to be false, and the liability of one who merely pretends to quote false and libelous mat-

§ 9. Conditions precedent.[80]—A precedent demand for retraction is required in some states,[81] but the right to recover cannot be abridged by a legislative enactment that a retraction shall be full compensation for the injury.[82] In Colorado an action for libel cannot be maintained unless commenced within one year after the cause of action accrued.[83]

§ 10. Pleading; declaration, complaint, or petition.[84]—The declaration or complaint must set out the particular words used,[85] allege that they were published of and concerning plaintiff,[86] with reference to his business or occupation where that is the basis of the suit,[87] and where the matter complained of is not actionable per se, must allege special damage,[88] specifically setting forth the facts.[89] Plaintiff in an action for slander to title must show title.[90] A petition which states the actual damages at $1,000 and the punitive damages at $9,000 sufficiently complies with a code provision that where exemplary damages are recoverable, the petition shall state separately the amount thereof.[91] A complaint that fails to charge publication in the state will not justify service on a foreign corporation within the state.[92] Common-law libel and an action for insulting words under the statute cannot be blended in one count; but a publication containing insulting words may be declared on under the statute, although it is libelous at common law.[93]

Colloquium and innuendo.[94]—When the words are unequivocal in their import and obviously defamatory, it is not necessary to employ colloquium or innuendo to explain their application and meaning;[95] but if the words be of doubtful significance, or derive their libelous character not from their own intrinsic force, but from extraneous facts, it is necessary to allege the meaning intended, ters spoken by others. Mertens v. Bee Pub. Co. [Neb.] 99 N. W. 847.

79. See Mack v. Sharp [Mich.] 101 N. W. 631.

80, 81. See 2 Curr. L. 725.

82. Chapter 249, p. 439, Laws 1901 of Kansas, requiring a retraction by newspapers, is unconstitutional. Hanson v. Krehbiel, 68 Kan. 670, 75 P. 1041. But a statute which provides that a retraction upon notice shall entitle a plaintiff to but actual damages is constitutional. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

83. Mills' Ann. St. § 2901; Evans v. Republican Pub. Co. [Colo. App.] 78 P. 311.

84. See 2 Curr. L. 725. Complaint for libel held sufficient. Quist v. Kiichli [Minn.] 99 N. W. 642.

85. See 2 Curr. L. 725, n. 33.

86. See 2 Curr. L. 725, n. 34. An allegation that the printed language was used of and concerning the plaintiff imports that those who read it so understood. Eckert v. Van Pelt [Kan.] 76 P. 909.

87. An allegation that the words complained of were spoken in reference to plaintiff's "office or profession of a minister of the gospel, he being then and there a local preacher of M. E. Church South," is a sufficient averment as against a demurrer raising the objection that the plaintiff was not following a profession. Flanders v. Daley, 120 Ga. 885, 48 S. E. 327. In an action for slander of one in his business, it must be alleged that the words were spoken of plaintiff in connection with his occupation or business. Hume v. Kusche, 42 Misc. 414, 87 N. Y. S. 109; Cassavoy v. Pattison, 93 App. Div. 370, 87 N. Y. S. 658.

88. See 2 Curr. L. 725. Watters & Son v. Retail Clerks' Union No. 479, 120 Ga. 424, 47 S. E. 911. Where it is necessary to allege special damages in order to set out a cause of action, the particular loss or injury must be distinctly stated. The ad damnum clause is not the equivalent of such an averment. Id.

89. See 2 Curr. L. 725, n. 35. Statutes dispensing with the necessity of showing by the statement of extrinsic facts, the application to the plaintiff of alleged defamatory words published in an alleged libel do not dispense with the allegation of such facts as are necessary to show the meaning or publication of ambiguous language or language not actionable per se. Hamilton v. Lowery [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 54.

90. Butts v. Long [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 312.

91. Midland Pub. Co. v. Implement Trade Journal Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 298.

92. Averments that the libel was published in a certain state and other states are not sufficient. Doherty v. Evening Journal Ass'n, 90 N. Y. S. 671.

93. Sun Life Assur. Co. v. Bailey, 101 Va. 443, 44 S. E. 692.

94. See 2 Curr. L. 726.

95. Paxton v. Woodward [Mont.] 78 P. 215. See 2 Curr. L. 726, n. 44. The purpose of an innuendo is to set forth by necessary averments extrinsic facts, or to explain the meaning of doubtful words; but such averments are not useful or controlling where the meaning of the language is plain and the explanation of the words immaterial and unnecessary. Quist v. Kiichli [Minn.] 99 N. W. 642.

or set forth such extraneous facts by proper averments.[96] Where the plaintiff by innuendo ascribes a particular meaning to the words complained of, he is bound by such meaning and cannot at the trial resort to another.[97]

Plea or answer.[98]—Under the North Dakota statute[99] a defendant in an action for slander or libel may answer by way of justification and mitigation, either or both, or may plead mitigating circumstances in connection with a general denial.[1] The justification must be as broad as the libel.[2] Allegations in an answer that plaintiff has unsuccessfully sued other publishers for libel are immaterial,[3] and one slander cannot be set up as a counterclaim against another slander.[4]

Demurrer.[5]—It is ground for demurrer that it does not appear that the statutory notice for retraction was given,[6] and a demurrer raising the question whether the publication complained of is libelous per se is not frivolous.[7] Where an answer contained first a general denial, then "for a first, separate, and distinct defense to the complaint herein" matter solely by way of justification, and finally alleged in a distinct paragraph a reiteration of the matter stated under the separate defense of justification "as a partial defense in mitigation," plaintiff had the right to test on demurrer the sufficiency of the plea of justification as a complete defense, apart from the partial defense in mitigation.[8]

Bill of particulars.[9]

Issues, proof and variance.[10]—In slander it is unnecessary for plaintiff to prove that the words alleged to have been spoken were false,[11] and where the publication is libelous per se, malice and injury are presumed, and no other proof need be offered than the publication itself and the identification of the plaintiff as the person assailed.[12] To constitute justification, the supporting proof must be as broad as the charge.[13]

§ 11. Evidence.[14]—Where matters alleged to be libelous are conditionally privileged, the onus of proving their falsity,[15] and that they were published with malice,[16] is on plaintiff; but where the published matter is actionable per se, the burden is on defendant to prove its truth or matters in mitigation.[17]

96. Paxton v. Woodward [Mont.] 78 P. 215. Sec 2 Curr. L. 726, n. 48. Complaint alleging that defendant by whom plaintiff had previously been employed had "blacklisted" plaintiff showed no cause of action in absence of allegation that blacklisting imputed the commission of a crime or other conduct exposing to public hatred and disgrace. Wabash R. Co. v. Young, 162 Ind. 102, 69 N. E. 1003.

97. Hamilton v. Lowery [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 54. See 2 Curr. L. 726, n. 46. Whenever a specific meaning is given to the terms of a libel or slander by connecting it with previous matter, the whole must be proved as being essential to the nature and identity of the charge. Patterson v. Frazer [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 1077. And where the extrinsic matter is required to be proved with its connection with the words spoken as a whole in order to support the cause of action, it is indispensable that such matter should be submitted to and found by the jury to exist as alleged. Id.

98. See 2 Curr. L. 727.

99. Rev. Codes 1899, § 5289.

1. Wrege v. Jones [N. D.] 100 N. W. 705.

2. See 2 Curr. L. 727, n. 53. Morse v. Times-Republican Print. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867; Carpenter v. New York Evening Journal Pub. Co., 96 App. Div. 376, 89 N. Y. S. 262. Where the imputation complained of is a conclusion from certain facts, the plea of justification must aver the existence of a state of facts which will warrant the inference of the charge. Paxton v. Woodward [Mont.] 78 P. 215.

3. Burnham v. Franklin, 44 Misc. 299, 89 N. Y. S. 917.

4. Wrege v. Jones [N. D.] 100 N. W. 705.

5. See 2 Curr. L. 727.

6. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

7. Daily v. De Young, 127 F. 491.

8. Jansen v. Fischer, 90 N. Y. S. 346.

9, 10. See 2 Curr. L. 727.

11. Hume v. Kusche, 42 Misc. 414, 87 N. Y. S. 109.

12. Morse v. Times-Republican Print. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867.

13. Mere evidence that plaintiff's record was pigeonholed at police headquarters is not sufficient to show that he was a "rogue's gallery man." Carpenter v. New York Evening Journal Pub. Co., 96 App. Div. 376, 89 N. Y. S. 263.

14. See 2 Curr. L. 728.

15. Hume v. Kusche, 42 Misc. 414, 87 N. Y. S. 109; Cranfill v. Hayden [Tex.] 80 S. W. 609.

16. Mertens v. Bee Pub. Co. [Neb.] 99 N. W. 847; Kersting v. White [Mo. App.] 80

Any fact tending to establish malice,[18] or the lack of it,[19] the truth or falsity of the charge,[20] and the extent of plaintiff's injury proximately resulting from the publication, may be shown,[21] and evidence of plaintiff's general, social and business standing is admissible.[22]

§ 12. Trial.[23]—Whether a publication is actionable on its face,[24] or when given a particular meaning ascribed to it by the plaintiff or defendant,[25] or whether the matter complained of will bear the meaning ascribed to it by innuendo,[26] and whether it was privileged,[27] are questions of law; but whether ambiguous

S. W. 730. The doctrine of privilege operates to change the ordinary rules with respect to libelous matter to this extent only: it removes the presumption of malice, and makes it incumbent on the party complaining to show malice. This may be done by the construction of the written matter constituting the alleged libel, or by extrinsic facts and circumstances from which the existence of malice may fairly be inferred. Morse v. Times-Republican Print. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867.

17. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811. Where the truth of words alleged to be slanderous is pleaded as a defense, the burden is on defendant to prove them true. Hume v. Kusche, 42 Misc. 414, 87 N. Y. S. 109.

18. Where defendant sought to extenuate the publication by showing that the article was copied from another paper, evidence was admissible to show that such paper published a full retraction five days before the publication by defendants. Butler v. Barret, 130 F. 944. Utterances made by defendant prior to the one prosecuted for, imputing to prosecutrix adulterous conduct, are relevant as tending to prove that like utterances with which he is charged, if made in fact, were malicious. Grant v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 420. A man's record at police headquarters is admissible in an action for libelling him only on the question of malice. It is not evidence of the facts therein stated so as to constitute justification. Carpenter v. New York Evening Journal Pub. Co., 96 App. Div. 376, 89 N. Y. S. 263. Plaintiff may, if he elect to do so, rely solely upon the libelous character of the publication to show malice, but he is not limited to it. Evidence is admissible of other defamatory charges, and of statements made by defendant, even though after the commencement of the action, which may tend to evince a wish to vex, annoy or injure plaintiff, but for the purpose only of proving malice, and not as affording a basis of extra compensation therefor. Paxton v. Woodward [Mont.] 78 P. 215. Statements made by defendant at the same time, or shortly before or after, those charged in the indictment, are admissible to show intent. Stayton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 78 S. W. 1071.

19. In an action for libel or slander, the right to recover punitory damages depends upon the presence of actual malice; and where such damages are claimed, the presence or absence of actual malice, and its degree, is a vital and material question. In such cases the defendant may, under a sufficient answer, testify directly to his intent or motive, and also as to facts and circumstances which were within his knowledge and relied upon by him which tend to characterize his motive. Wrege v. Jones [N. D.] 100 N. W. 705. In an action for libel in charging plaintiff, president of an insurance company, with perjury in making his report, allegations of answers that defendant has examined the books containing the reports of the company and found the questions answered differently in different reports for the same year, are admissible on the question of malice and in mitigation of damages. Burnham v. Franklin, 44 Misc. 299, 89 N. Y. S. 917. But an allegation that the company had been excluded from doing business in certain states is immaterial, where such exclusion did not relate to the libelous charge. Id.

20. Where, in an action for a libel charging plaintiff with failure to sufficiently provide for his family, the main issue was such suitable provision, the opinion of a witness from whom plaintiff had purchased certain bills of clothing for his sons as to whether the clothing purchased was a liberal provision for the sons was inadmissible. McCloskey v. Pulitzer Pub. Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 723.

21. In an action for insulting words, evidence to the effect produced by an article other than that alleged, and for which the defendant was not shown to be responsible, is inadmissible. Sun Life Assur. Co. v. Bailey, 101 Va. 443, 44 S. E. 692. Plaintiff to prove special damages from a libel may show what his income from his business had been up to the time of the libel, and how it had fallen off immediately thereafter. Morse v. Times-Republican Print. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867.

22. Morning Journal Ass'n v. Duke [C. C. A.] 128 F. 657.

23. See 2 Curr. L. 729.

24. See ante, § 2A; see, also, 2 Curr. L. 729, n. 79. It is not error that the trial court submitted to the jury the question whether the libelous article complained of was actionable on its face, there having been no request that the court determine the question as a matter of law. Olson v. Aubolee [Minn.] 99 N. W. 1128.

25. Monographic note, see 2 Curr. L. 706, Province of court and jury. Morning Journal Ass'n v. Duke [C. C. A.] 128 F. 657. In Missouri, under the constitution, art. 2, § 14, the jury is made the judge of whether a publication is libelous. Duncan v. Williams [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 1175.

26. Hamilton v. Lowery [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 54.

27. Kersting v. White [Mo App.] 80 S. W. 730. See 2 Curr. L. 729, n. 80.

words, or words decided by the court to be capable of the special meaning ascribed to them, were in fact used and understood in such special sense, is a question of fact for the jury, taking into consideration all the circumstances under which they were uttered or published.[28]

It is unnecessary in instructing in a libel suit to point out the particular words in a written article which constitute the libel, but it is sufficient to charge that the article as a whole was libelous,[29] and an instruction that in estimating damages the jury have a right to consider the natural and necessary consequences of the publication upon plaintiff is correct.[30]

§ 13. Criminal slander in Texas must be uttered maliciously and wantonly as well as falsely.[31] One who circulates a libel may be guilty of the offense denounced by the Michigan statute,[32] making it a misdemeanor to falsely charge another with the commission of a crime.[33]

LICENSES.[34]

§ 1. Power to Require and Validity of Statutes (428).
§ 2. Interpretation of Statutes and Ordinances and Persons Subject (430).
§ 3. Assessment and Recovery; Prosecutions for Failure to Pay (431).
§ 4. Effect of Failure to Obtain (432).

§ 1. Power to require and validity of statutes.[35]—License regulations are ordinarily justified as an exercise of the police power,[36] and the fact that some classes of persons are excepted does not make the regulation void,[37] though it was

28. Morning Journal Ass'n v. Duke [C. C. A.] 128 F. 657. See 2 Curr. L. 706, note. The meaning intended to be given to the alleged libelous words by the defendant as averred by the innuendo is a question of fact for the jury. Hamilton v. Lowery [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 54. If the words are ambiguous, the jury are to determine, not what the defendant intended to charge, but what in fact he did charge, and what the reading public reasonably supposed or understood. Morse v. Times-Republican Print. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 867. In Holmes v. Clisby [Ga.] 48 S. E. 934, the general rule is stated to be that the question of libel or no libel is one of fact for the jury, the court observing: "Especially is this true where the writing is not a libel per se, but its character as such depends upon the circumstances under which it was published."

29. Cranfill v. Hayden [Tex.] 80 S. W. 609.

30. Graybill v. DeYoung, 140 Cal. 323, 73 P. 1067.

31. A requested charge that in order to convict the jury must believe beyond a reasonable doubt not only that the alleged false words were uttered by defendant, but that such words were uttered maliciously or wantonly; that the expression "maliciously" meant that the words were so uttered as to imply an evil intent or legal malice, or without reasonable ground for believing that they were true, or that the woman had a bad reputation for chastity; and that the expression "wantonly" meant that the words were uttered regardless of consequences, in a reckless manner, or under such circumstances as evidenced a wicked and mischievous intent, and without excuse, should have been given, as it is a part of the statutory definition of slander in Texas. Rainwater v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 38.

32. Comp. Laws 1897, § 11,762.

33. Mack v. Sharp [Mich.] 101 N. W. 631.

34. See, also, Intoxicating Liquors, 4 Curr. L. 252; Foreign Corporations, 3 Curr. L. 1455; Insurance, 4 Curr. L. 157 (right to do business).

35. See 2 Curr. L. 730.

36. An annual tax on places where inflammables are stored is a police regulation. Standard Oil Co. v. Com. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 1020. A contract with a city allowing erection of telephone poles does not divest it of its police power to require a license. City of Ft. Smith v. Hunt [Ark.] 82 S. W. 163. A license fee for each telegraph pole erected in the street is valid. It is not a rental for use of the streets, and is sustainable under the police power. Id.

The state, under its police power, has the right, in the absence of constitutional limitation or inhibition, to subject all occupations to a reasonable regulation, by the imposition of license fees, where such regulation is required for the public welfare. This right applied to the use of bicycles. Simpson v. Whatcom, 33 Wash. 392, 74 P. 577.

37. An exception of the sale of farm products is valid. In re Abel [Idaho] 77 P. 621. A license tax on hawkers is not invalid because it excepts persons selling their own products. Kansas City v. Overton, 68 Kan. 560, 75 P. 549. An ordinance requiring a less fee where meals are cooked and served by the proprietor or his family than where they are not so cooked and served is not unjustly discriminating. Ex parte Lemon, 143 Cal. 558, 77 P. 455. An exception of persons taking orders which is confined to the taking of orders from "merchants" is class legislation (In re Abel [Idaho] 77 P 621), but such a provision does not invalidate the remainder of the act (Id.).

otherwise held where the exceptions were numerous and unreasonable,[38] nor are they ordinarily construed as restraint of interstate commerce;[39] but to be so sustained, they must be in some manner designed to subserve public comfort or safety,[40] and must be reasonable in character.[41] License laws, however, are often passed in the exercise of the taxing power,[42] and as such must conform to the constitutional provisions relating to taxation.[43] Where the subject-matter is within the taxing power, neither the propriety[44] nor the amount[45] of the tax is subject to judicial review. Municipal power to impose license taxes must be derived expressly or by necessary implication from legislative grant,[46] and in California

38. A great number of exceptions based on no classification to a statute forbidding peddling. State v. Whitcom [Wis.] 99 N. W. 468.

39. Imposition of privilege tax for the selling of liquor on a boat making regular trips to a port within the state is not a regulation of interstate commerce. Foppiano v. Speed [Tenn.] 82 S. W. 222. Statute imposing a license tax on packing houses doing business in the state held not to be an interference with interstate commerce. Lacy v. Armour Packing Co., 134 N. C. 567, 47 S. E. 53. A tax on sawmills excepting those who do not export, interferes with interstate commerce. Adams v. Mississippi Lumber Co. [Miss.] 36 So. 68. Statute imposing tax on packing houses held not to violate the constitutional provision that taxes must be laid by a uniform rule. Lacy v. Armour Packing Co., 134 N. C. 567, 47 S. E. 53. Imposition of a merchant's tax on a nonresident dealing through a resident agent in goods deposited in store within the state does not interfere with interstate commerce. American Steel & Wire Co. v. Speed, 192 U. S. 500, 48 Law. Ed. 538. A municipal ordinance imposing a license tax on the agent of a citizen of a foreign state for the privilege of selling goods is unconstitutional because it imposes a burden on interstate commerce. Fee required of agent of a portrait company of Illinois canvassing for orders in Ohio. In re Julius, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 604. The requirement of a license from the agent of a nonresident selling property which he has in the state for delivery is not a regulation of interstate commerce. In re Abel [Idaho] 77 P. 621.

40. The trade of horseshoeing is not one subject to license regulation. In re Aubry [Wash.] 78 P. 900; People v. Beattie, 96 App. Div. 383, 89 N. Y. S. 193. The practice of dentistry is a business subject to regulation. In re Thompson [Wash.] 78 P. 899. An ordinance taxing water companies for each plug is not an exercise of the police power. Commissioners of Cambridge v. Cambridge Water Co. [Md.] 58 A. 442.

41. A requirement of a deposit of $500 by itinerant vendors is not unreasonable. State v. Feingold [Conn.] 59 A. 211. An annual tax of $250 for each pool table is not unreasonable, where the power to prohibit exists. Wysong v. Lebanon [Ind.] 71 N. E. 194. $100 on employment agencies is not excessive. State v. Robertson, 136 N. C. 587, 48 S. E. 595. A requirement of a license for a single act of hiring a conveyance is unreasonable. Town of Plymouth v. Cooper, 135 N. C. 1, 47 S. E. 129. $35 for each six months for hucksters and $15 additional for each assistant is not unreasonable. Kansas City v. Overton, 68 Kan. 560, 75 P. 549.

42. A license tax required for the sale of goods is in effect a tax upon the goods themselves. In re Julius, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 604. The act licensing employment agencies is sustainable as an exercise of the taxing power. State v. Robertson, 136 N. C. 587, 48 S. E. 595. The payment by a tobacco factory of $1 on the marketable value of $1,000 of product up to $100,000 and at the rate of 50 cents thereafter, is not a property tax but a license tax. Strater Bros. Tobacco Co. v. Com., 25 Ky. L. R. 1717, 78 S. W. 871. The reciprocal tax is a privilege or license tax. Condition upon which the company is admitted to do business does not violate Nebraska constitution. State v. Insurance Co. [Neb.] 99 N. W. 36. Reciprocal tax laws are generally held valid. Statutes providing that whenever by the laws of another state a home corporation doing business in such state shall be required to pay a tax or license fee greater than the amount required in other states, then corporation from such state will be required to pay the same tax in the former. Id. Colorado statute providing for a license fee from every one selling intoxicating liquors is a statute for securing revenue and not for the regulation of the liquor traffic. Parsons v. People [Colo.] 76 P. 666.

43. Colorado law providing for a license tax on all persons selling liquor does not violate the constitutional provision guarantying to each citizen the equal protection of the laws. Parsons v. People [Colo.] 76 P. 666. Colorado law providing for a license fee payable to the state does not violate the constitutional provision inhibiting all taxation of trades or occupations for purpose of securing revenue. Id. Colorado law providing for a tax to the state for persons selling liquor does not violate the constitutional provision relative to uniformity. Id. A license law exempting persons who do not export their product invades the provision against unequal taxation. Adams v. Mississippi Lumber Co. [Miss.] 36 So. 68.

44. Gordon Bros. v. Newport News, 102 Va. 649, 47 S. E. 828.

45. State v. Robertson, 136 N. C. 587, 48 S. E. 595.

46. Commissioners of Cambridge v. Cambridge Water Co. [Md.] 58 A. 442. A grant of power to regulate water plugs and to license certain persons not including water companies gives no power to tax water companies for each plug used. Id. The city of Winston is limited by its charter to a requirement of a tax not over $10 a year on a business other than those enumerated in the Constitution provides that the grant must be by general statute;[47] but a law relative to cities of one class is general within such provision,[48] and the provision does not relate to cities incorporated by special act.[49] A license tax ordinance does not embrace two subjects because it contains both police and revenue features.[50]

In respect to some professions and skilled trades, the granting of licenses is often referred to a board of examiners,[51] and such acts are not invalid as a delegation of legislative power.[52] The powers of such boards, however plenary the grant, are not arbitrary.[53] It is sometimes required that the applicant be a graduate of some institution,[54] and the board is usually made the judge of the good standing thereof.[55]

Enforcement of an invalid license tax may be enjoined.[56]

§ 2. Interpretation of statutes and ordinances and persons subject.[57]—License laws being penal are to be strictly construed,[58] and one cannot be convicted thereunder unless clearly of the class of persons designated by the act.[59] Where the charter. City of Winston v. Beeson, 135 N. C. 271, 47 S. E. 457. A power to define who shall be considered "transient merchants" does not give power to include persons who are not merchants. Itinerant optician. City of Waukon v. Fisk [Iowa] 100 N. W. 475. One who takes orders for himself and has the goods shipped to the buyers is a transient merchant. City of Cedar Falls v. Gentzer, 123 Iowa, 670, 99 N. W. 561. Nor does a power to license peddlers, etc., include itinerant opticians. City of Waukon v. Fisk [Iowa] 100 N. W. 475.

47. Licenses for revenue are taxes within a constitutional provision that municipalities can be vested with taxing power only by general law. Ex parte Jackson, 143 Cal. 564, 77 P. 457. If the authorizing statute be general, it is immaterial that other cities have not acted under it. Id.

48. Ex parte Jackson, 143 Cal. 564, 77 P. 457.

49. Ex parte Helm, 143 Cal. 553, 77 P. 453. The city of Marysville has power under its special act of incorporation to impose license taxes for revenue. Ex parte Lemon, 143 Cal. 558, 77 P. 455.

50. Kansas City v. Overton, 68 Kan. 560, 75 P. 549.

51. An act making the approval of a board of examiners necessary to the carrying on of a trade need not prescribe a standard of proficiency. Barber's license law. State v. Briggs [Or.] 77 P. 750. The power of determining such standard vested in the board may not be an arbitrary power, but subject to an implied limitation of fair exercise. State v. Briggs [Or.] 77 P. 750; Id., 78 P. 361.

52. Dentistry act not unconstitutional as conferring legislative power on board. In re Thompson [Wash.] 78 P. 899.

53. In Oregon the commissioners for licensing sailors' boarding houses have no arbitrary power to deny a license. Laws 1903, p. 238, § 3, giving power to reject, is to be construed in connection with the prior clause (White v. Mears, 44 Or. 215, 74 P. 931), and as so construed, the statute is valid (Id.).

54. A requirement that applicants for license to practice dentistry shall have a diploma from a dental college in good standing is not unreasonable. In re Thompson [Wash.] 78 P. 899.

55. The licensing of barber schools is within the scope of the title of Laws 1903, p. 27, relating to the licensing of barbers. State v. Briggs [Or.] 78 P. 361. The veterinary board has no power to pass on the regularity of a veterinary college duly organized under the laws of the state. Wise v. State Veterinary Board [Mich.] 101 N. W. 562.

56. Hewin v. Atlanta [Ga.] 49 S. E. 765.

57. See 2 Curr. L. 732.

58. Kloss v. Com. [Va.] 49 S. E. 655.

59. Illustrations. A salesman carrying samples and taking orders which are filled and shipped from a factory is not a peddler. Kloss v. Com. [Va.] 49 S. E. 655. A statute taxing traveling vendors of patent medicines, jewelry, soap, paper "or other merchandise" does not include salesmen selling illuminating oil in large quantities. Standard Oil Co. v. Swanson [Ga.] 49 S. E. 262. A nonresident manufacturing company who has an agent in another state to whom it ships goods in bulk, to be by him assorted and distributed among its customers, is a merchant within the tax statutes of such state. American Steel & Wire Co. v. Speed, 110 Tenn. 524, 75 S. W. 1037, afd. 192 U. S. 500, 48 Law. Ed. 538. North Carolina statute providing for license tax for every corporation organized or doing business within the state applies to foreign as well as domestic corporations. State v. Armour Packing Co., 135 N. C. 62, 47 S. E. 411. Statute imposing tax on packing houses held to apply to a foreign corporation which shipped its product into the state. Lacy v. Armour Packing Co., 134 N. C. 567, 47 S. E. 53. An exemption of persons "taking orders" for wholesale houses does not apply to a solicitor who has the goods for immediate delivery to the purchaser. In re Abel [Idaho] 77 P. 621. Evidence held insufficient to show that defendant was an itinerant medical practitioner. Howe v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 78 S. W. 1064. Vehicle used by the owner in performing services for hire is "used or let for hire." Swetman v. Covington [Ky.] 82 S. W. 386. Selling of oil to dealers in quantities of not less than 25 gallons is a selling "at rea license is required for the carrying on of a business, single or occasional acts,[60] or acts merely incidental to another business,[61] are not within the statute. A boat making regular trips to a port within a state is within the jurisdiction of such state for the imposition of privilege tax on the sale of liquor on such boat.[62] Where both state and municipality tax a business, one engaged therein must pay both taxes.[63]

§ 3. Assessment and recovery; prosecutions for failure to pay.[63a]—Privilege taxes for past years may be collected without any reassessment.[64] A statute providing for the back assessment of taxes on property which has escaped taxation applies to privilege taxes.[65] Classification of a railroad by the railroad commission as one claiming charter exemption from state control is necessary to the imposition of additional privilege tax on that account.[66] Under North Carolina statutes providing for a license tax, it was held a tax could be collected by the state as well as by the county.[67] Where no adequate remedy is provided for collecting a tax, the city may sue therefor.[68] Limitations run against a license created by contract.[69] Proceedings for violation of a city license tax ordinance are civil and need not be on information.[70] An indictment alleging sale of "coal oil, a lubricating oil" is good, it being a question for the jury whether coal oil is a lubricating oil.[71] An indictment for selling one kind of oil without a license is not sustained by proof of sale of another kind.[72] The exception as to products of defendant's farm need not be negatived.[73] An indictment that defendant "engage in procuring laborers" sufficiently avers that he engaged in the business of so doing.[74] An indictment for acting without a license as agent for a foreign corporation is not defective for failing to allege the incorporation of the principal, its name as alleged being one appropriate to a corporation.[75] A complaint charging the keeping of a "livery or feed" stable without license is good after conviction.[76] Where the tax is an annual one on the carrying on of a business, a conviction of doing business without a license bars further prosecution for carrying on such business during the current year.[77] The "certificate of registration" required by section 1 of the barber's license law of Washington is the same as the "certificate" mentioned in section 10 and is sub-tall" (Standard Oil Co. v. Com. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 970), while if the sale is to others than dealers it is peddling (Standard Oil Co. v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 83 S. W. 557, citing Standard Oil Co. v. Com. [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1150). Giving of trading stamps is not a "gift enterprise" within a charter power to license such enterprises. City of Winston v. Beeson, 135 N. C. 271, 47 S. E. 457.

60. A single sale is not within an ordinance licensing itinerant vendors. State v. Feingold [Conn.] 59 A. 211.

61. One employed to post bills is "engaged in the business" of bill posting, but one employed as a salesman who occasionally posts bills as an advertisement of his wares is not. Rogers v. Sandersville, 120 Ga. 192, 47 S. E. 557. The furnishing of trading stamps in connection with the sale of merchandise is not a separate business. Hewin v. Atlanta [Ga.] 49 S. E. 765. Hiring of laborers in one's own business is not within the statute relating to employment agencies. Carr v. Duplin's Com'rs, 136 N. C. 125, 48 S. E. 597.

62. Foppiano v. Speed [Tenn.] 82 S. W. 222.

63. In Colorado druggists are liable for the state tax as well as the municipal tax levied for the privilege of selling intoxicating liquors. Parsons v. People [Colo.] 76 P. 666.

63a. See 2 Curr. L. 733, n. 36, et seq.

64, 65. Foppiano v. Speed [Tenn.] 82 S. W. 222.

66. Gulf & S. I. R. Co. v. Adams, 83 Miss. 306, 36 So. 144.

67. State v. Armour Packing Co., 135 N. C. 62, 47 S. E. 411.

68. A penalty for failure to take out license is not an adequate remedy. City of Lexington v. Wilson [Ky.] 80 S. W. 811.

69. Jersey City v. Jersey City & B. R. Co. [N. J. Law] 59 A. 15.

70. City of Billings v. Brown [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 322.

71, 72. Commonwealth v. Standard Oil Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 2116, 80 S. W. 206.

73. City of Billings v. Brown [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 322.

74. State v. Roberson, 136 N. C. 587, 48 S. E. 595.

75. Leps v. State, 120 Ga. 139, 47 S. E. 572.

76. Cannot be attacked on habeas corpus. Ex parte Jackson, 143 Cal. 564, 77 P. 457.

77. State v. Roberson, 136 N. C. 591, 48 S. E. 596.

ject to revocation under section 14.[78] The section of the barber's license law forbidding practice without having obtained a license includes one who practices after revocation of his license.[79]

§ 4. Effect of failure to obtain.[80]—Though it is generally held that no recovery can be had by an unlicensed person on a contract for the doing of an act for which a license is required,[81] it has been held that failure of a broker to take out a license does not avoid his contract for compensation,[82] and a foreign corporation may sue, though it has not paid the license tax.[83]

LICENSES TO ENTER ON LAND.

§ 1. Nature, Creation and Indicia of a License and Distinction from Easements and Other Estates (432). Licenses Coupled with an Interest (433).

§ 2. Rights and Liabilities of Licensees (433).

§ 1. Nature, creation and indicia of a license and distinction from easements and other estates.[84]—A license is authority to enter on another's land or to do some act thereon which without authority would be wrong, and which is not an estate in the land.[85] It is in the absence of an estate in the lands that it differs from easement.[86] A lease differs in being an irrevocable (except by its own terms) interest in the use or profits of the lands.[87] A license must emanate from one having authority to grant it.[88] It may arise by implication,[89] but is not necessarily implied from unrestrained user.[90] An attempted sale by parol of standing timber amounts to a license to cut and remove it.[91] Since a license does not create an estate, it need not be in writing.[92] It is revocable at will[93] and by the weight of 78, 79. State v. Chaney [Wash.] 78 P. 915.

80. See 2 Curr. L. 734.

81. See Hammon, Cont. p. 347.

82. Tooker v. Duckworth [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 963.

83. Box, Board & Lining Co. v. Vincennes Paper Co., 45 Misc. 1, 90 N. Y. S. 836.

84. See 2 Curr. L. 734.

85. Cyc. Law Dict. "Licenses;" 1 Tiffany Real Prop. 678.

Licenses are executory and executed and express and implied. Cyc. Law Dict. "Licenses," 1 Tiffany Real Prop. 678.

86. Note: In a number of cases collected in note to Waldron's Petition [R. I.] 67 L. R. A. 120, it is held that the right in a burial lot is a mere license, not an easement. See Kincaid's Appeal, 66 Pa. 411, 5 Am. Rep. 377; Windt v. German Ref. Church, 4 Sandf. Ch. [N. Y.] 471; Richards v. Northwest Protestant Dutch Church, 32 Barb. [N. Y.] 42; Craig v. First Pres. Church, 82 Pa. 42, 32 Am. Rep. 417; Buffalo City Cemetery v. Buffalo, 46 N. Y. 503; McGuire v. St. Patrick's Cathedral, 54 Hun [N. Y.] 207; Page v. Symonds, 63 N. H. 17, 56 Am. Rep. 481; Partridge v. First Indep. Church, 39 Md. 631; Rayner v. Nugent, 60 Md. 515; Catholic Cathedral Church v. Manning, 72 Md. 116; Dwenger v. Geary, 113 Ind. 106. The facts and reasoning in the foregoing cases are well set out in the note referred to.

87. See Landlord and Tenant, 4 Curr. L. 389.

88. There is no presumption that railroad employes have authority to give a license to cross the track. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Shiflet [Tex.] 83 S. W. 677.

89. The fact that there is a door in a partition between adjoiners creates a license to use it as a passway. Belser v. Moore [Ark.] 84 S. W. 219.

90. Not from the fact that persons habitually cross a railroad track at a certain place. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Shiflet [Tex.] 83 S. W. 677.

91. When cut it becomes the property of the licensee. Welever v. Advance Shingle Co., 34 Wash. 331, 75 P. 863. After the timber is cut the licensor is estopped to assert that he had no title. Id.

92. A license burdening real estate with a servitude may be created by parol. Brantley v. Perry, 120 Ga. 760, 48 S. E. 332. Such a license is not affected by reason of not being in writing, provided it is founded upon a definite understanding between competent parties. Smith v. P., C. C. & St. L. R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 194.

93. A door in a partition between adjoining owners may be closed by either. Belser v. Moore [Ark.] 84 S. W. 219. The fact that the owner of a pond allows an ice man to cut ice one year creates no obligation on his part to allow him to do so again. Oliphant v. Richman [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 241.

Note: The fact that a consideration is to be paid does not render the license irrevocable (Huff v. McCauley, 53 Pa. 206, 91 Am. Dec. 203; Dodge v. McClintock, 47 N. H. 383; Duenneen v. Rich, 22 Wis. 550; Baldwin v. Taylor, 166 Pa. 507), nor does the fact that expense is incurred (Minneapolis Mill. Co. v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co., 51 Minn. 304; Hathaway v. Yakima Water, Light & Power Co., 14 Wash. 469, 53 Am. St. Rep. 874; Lambe v. Manning, 171 Ill. 612). And the act that the agreement has been authority, notwithstanding an express promise to the contrary and expense incurred on faith thereof,[94] especially where based on no valuable consideration;[95] but authority is not wanting for the proposition that if the enjoyment is preceded necessarily by the expenditure of money, it becomes irrevocable,[96] especially after it is executed.[97]

Licenses coupled with an interest.[98]—The license of a tenant of an apartment house to use a portion of a porch not attached to his rooms is not a license coupled with an interest.[99]

§ 2. Rights and liabilities of licensees.[1]—The authority is for the doing of only the act specifically licensed.[2] It cannot ripen into an easement by user.[3] Rights under an unrevoked license cannot be interfered with.[4] A licensee may maintain trespass.[5] He must exercise ordinary care to avoid injury,[6] and cannot recover for injuries caused by existing defects.[7]

LIENS.

§ 1. Definition and Nature (434).
§ 2. Common-Law, Equitable and Statutory Liens (434).
A. Common-Law Liens (434).
B. Equitable Liens (434).
C. Statutory Liens (435).
§ 3. Priorities Between Liens (435).
§ 4. Waiver, Extinguishment, Discharge and Revival (436).
§ 5. Enforcement and Protection of Liens (437). Statutory Proceedings to Enforce or Foreclose (437). Equitable Remedies and Procedure (437).

This article treats only of liens in general, specific liens being treated under the specific topics to which they relate.[8] The effect of insolvency[9] or death[10] and the means by which priorities are worked out[11] are treated elsewhere.

performed will be of no avail in a court of law. Banghart v. Flummerfelt, 43 N. J. Law, 28; Hitchens v. Shaller, 32 Mich. 496; Owen v. Field, 12 Allen [Mass.] 457; Fryer v. Warne, 29 Wis. 511. The rule in equity is otherwise in some jurisdictions. Lacy v. Arnett, 33 Pa. 169; Adams v. Patrick, 30 Vt. 516; Dempsey v. Kipp, 61 N. Y. 462; Morton Brew. Co. v. Morton, 47 N. J. Eq. 158, 20 A. 268; Wilson v. Chalfant, 15 Ohio, 248, 45 Am. Dec. 574; Baldock v. Atwood, 21 Or. 73, 26 P. 1058; Test v. Larsh, 76 Ind. 462. These cases rest on the proposition that it would be a fraud to permit a revocation. From note to Pifer v. Brown, 43 W. Va. 412, 49 L. R. A. 497.

94. Entwhistle v. Henke, 211 Ill. 273, 71 N. E. 990. A local custom that prospectors would be allowed to work out the prospect against the will of the owner cannot prevail over this rule. Entwhistle v. Henke, 211 Ill. 273, 71 N. E. 990.

95. Regardless of whether when the permission was given the parties contemplated the privilege would be permanent, and money was expended to facilitate the enjoyment of it. Huber v. Stark [Wis.] 102 N. W. 12. Where without consideration permission was given an adjoining owner to connect his drain with the drain of the owner granting the permission, a license, revocable at will, was acquired. Knoll v. Baker [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 480.

96. License to dig a ditch across land. Brantley v. Perry, 120 Ga. 760, 48 S. E. 332. Such a license is binding on a grantee who takes with notice. Id. A license granted to a telephone company, under which money is expended and which is not abused, is not revocable at the pleasure of the municipality. Village of London Mills v. Fairview-London Tel. Circuit, 105 Ill. App. 146.

97. Smith v. P., C. C. & St. L. R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 194.

98. See 2 Curr. L. 736.

99. Flaherty v. Nieman [Iowa] 101 N. W. 280.

1. See 2 Curr. L. 735.

2. A license to construct a roadbed creates no rights in the land beyond the embankment, though the railroad company was authorized by statute to acquire a right of way of a certain width. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Smith [Ala.] 37 So. 490.

3. Owner of a saloon adjoining a hotel had a permissive license to use the rotunda of the hotel as a passageway. Belser v. Moore [Ark.] 84 S. W. 219. Long user with acquiescence of the owner. Little v. American Tel. & T. Co., 96 App. Div. 559, 89 N. Y. S. 136.

4. Declaration alleging that plaintiff with the assent of the owners of the land had maintained a line of pipes thereon and that the owner carried such pipes away is good against demurrer. Despeaux v. Delano [N. J. Law] 59 A. 10.

5. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Smith [Ala.] 37 So. 490.

6. Licensee in a switchyard held guilty of contributory negligence. Nichols v. Gulf, etc., R. Co., 83 Miss. 126, 36 So. 192.

7. Tenant of an apartment house using a porch other than that attached to his own apartments. Flaherty v. Nieman [Iowa] 101 N. W. 280.

8. See Agency, 3 Curr. L. 68; Attachment, 3 Curr. L. 353; Attorneys and Counselors, 3 Curr. L. 376; Auctions and Auctioneers, 3 Curr. L. 394; Brokers, 3 Curr. L. 535; Car-

§ 1. Definition and nature.—A lien is a hold or claim which one person has upon the property of another as a security for some debt or charge.[12] From its very nature it takes priority over the claims of simple creditors[13] and inferior liens.[14]

§ 2. Common-law, equitable and statutory liens. A. Common-law liens.[15]—A common-law lien consists in the mere right to retain possession[16] until the debt or charge is paid.[17] The sellers of fruit trees under a contract of payment out of crops raised therefrom have no lien on the land whereon the trees are planted.[18]

(§ 2) B. Equitable liens.[19]—A written[20] contract showing an intention to charge identified property with a debt or other obligation[21] creates an equitable lien thereon. The principles of equity requiring it, such lien will be upheld, though the contract be invalid;[22] but the invalidity of an agreement for a common-law lien does not of itself give rise to an equitable lien, though the agreement be made in good faith.[23]

Equity will, in the absence of an express agreement, create a lien when the rights of the parties cannot be otherwise secured;[24] but it will not declare such a lien where to do so would destroy the protection the law affords infants.[25]

Where there is an exchange of lands, a breach of a covenant of warranty by riers, 3 Curr. L. 591; Chattel Mortgages, 3 Curr. L. 682; Executions, 3 Curr. L. 1397; Factors, 3 Curr. L. 1415; Inns, Restaurants and Lodging Houses, 4 Curr. L. 123; Judgments, 4 Curr. L. 287; Landlord and Tenant, 4 Curr. L. 389; Mechanics' Liens, 2 Curr. L. 869; Mortgages, 2 Curr. L. 905; Railroads, 2 Curr. L. 1382; Taxes, 2 Curr. L. 1786; Vendors and Purchasers, 2 Curr. L. 1976; Agisters' Liens (see Animals, 3 Curr. L. 159); Logging Liens (see Forestry and Timber, 3 Curr. L. 1468); Crop Liens (see Agriculture, 3 Curr. L. 137, and Landlord and Tenant, 4 Curr. L. 389); Maritime Liens (see Shipping and Water Traffic, 2 Curr. L. 1648).

9. See Bankruptcy, 3 Curr. L. 434; Insolvency, 4 Curr. L. 129.

10. See Estates of Decedents, 3 Curr. L. 1238.

11. See Marshaling Assets and Securities, 2 Curr. L. 798.

12. Gilmor v. Dale, 27 Utah, 372, 75 P. 932; Cyc. Law Dict., "Lien." A personal claim against a bankrupt's estate does not constitute a lien. Eason v. Garrison [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 800.

13. An equitable mortgage takes precedence of the rights of creditors in proceedings to administer the property of the mortgagor for the benefit of his creditors. Harrigan v. Gilchrist [Wis.] 99 N. W. 909. Under tax law requiring assessment of taxes against the person, and requiring collection out of personal property if possible, the lien of a real estate mortgage executed prior to a tax assessment and levy, is superior to the assessment. Ferguson v. Kaboth, 43 Or. 414, 73 P. 200.

14. See post, § 3, Priorities between liens.

15. See 2 Curr. L. 737.

16. A factor's lien does not attach until he acquires possession. Ryttenberg v. Schefer, 131 F. 313. See titles Agency, 3 Curr. L. 68; Attorneys and Counselors, 3 Curr. L. 376; Factors, 3 Curr. L. 1415.

17. Cyc. Law Dict. "Liens."

18. Butler v. Stark, 25 Ky. L. R. 1886, 79 S. W. 204.

19. See 2 Curr. L. 737. For specific equitable liens, see Chattel Mortgages, 3 Curr. L. 682; Mortgages, 2 Curr. L. 905; Vendors and Purchasers, 2 Curr. L. 1976.

20. An oral agreement to make land answerable for services to be rendered does not create a lien on the land in the hands of grantees of the promisor. Wagner v. Weyhe [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 915.

21. A mortgagor expressly agreeing to keep up insurance for the security of the mortgagee, the latter has an equitable lien upon the proceeds of the insurance. Brown v. Commercial Fire Ins. Co., 21 App. D. C. 325. A deed by which the grantee assumes and agrees to pay existing mortgages, liens, taxes and claims of any and every description creates a charge on the land. Gage v. Cameron, 212 Ill. 146, 72 N. E. 204. See 2 Curr. L. 737, n. 74-81.

22. Where a debtor undertook to convey an interest in land in payment of a just debt, but the deed was inoperative for failure of delivery in the lifetime of the grantor, held equity would declare a lien on the land for the amount of the debt. Sutton v. Gibson [Ky.] 84 S. W. 335.

23. An agreement for a factor's lien being invalid because possession remained in the debtor. Ryttenberg v. Schefer, 131 F. 313.

24. A divorced wife is entitled to a lien on an insurance policy on the life of her former husband to secure premiums paid by her during the existence of the marriage relation. Hatch v. Hatch [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 411. See 2 Curr. L. 737, n. 85.

25. One loaning money to a minor to redeem mortgaged land on the representations of the minor that the lender would be subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee, held insufficient to entitle the lender to a lien on the land for the amount loaned. Burton v. Anthony [Or.] 79 P. 185.

one party entitles the other to a lien on the land conveyed to the former for damages sustained by reason of such breach.[26] One entering on land with knowledge that it belongs to another acquires no lien for improvements.[27]

(§ 2) C. Statutory liens.[28]—The special lien given laborers on the product of their labor generally attaches to the property of their employers only.[29] In some states one lawfully in possession of personal property of another has a lien thereon for any services rendered the owner in the protection, improvement or safe-keeping of such property.[30]

Construction.[30a]—The ordinary rules of statutory construction apply,[31] and the statutes are to be construed so as to be rendered effective if possible.[32]

§ 3. Priorities between liens.[33]—The determination of priorities is usually sought as incidental to other relief, but it may be sought by an original bill, and it is no objection to such a proceeding that the plaintiff is not likely to be benefited thereby.[34] As between equitable liens, priority is determined by the equities of the case.[35] Statutory liens being involved, the priority is often dependent upon the nature of the lien, as for instance, a purchase-money lien;[36] but lacking this intrinsic superiority, the priority depends upon record[37] or the equivalents thereof.[38]

26. Newburn v. Lucas [Iowa] 101 N. W. 730.

27. Wade v. Keown, 25 Ky. L. R. 1787, 78 S. W. 900.

28. See 2 Curr. L. 738.

For specific statutory liens, see titles Attachment, 3 Curr. L. 353; Executions, 3 Curr. L. 1397; Inns, Restaurants and Lodging Houses, 4 Curr. L. 123; Landlord and Tenant, 4 Curr. L. 389; Mechanics' Liens, 2 Curr. L. 869; Railroads, 2 Curr. L. 1382; Taxes, 2 Curr. L. 1786; Warehousing and Deposits, 2 Curr. L. 2029; Crop Liens (see Agriculture, 3 Curr. L. 137, and Landlord and Tenant, 4 Curr. L. 389); Agisters' Liens (see Animals, 3 Curr. L. 159); Logging Liens (see Forestry and Timber, 3 Curr. L. 1468).

29. Employe repairing property of one other than his employer has no lien thereon, though the result of such repairs be to make practically a new article [Civ. Code 1895, § 2793]. Lanier v. Bailey [Ga.] 48 S. E. 324.

30. Under Rev. Civ. Code, § 2153, one contracting to cut, stack, bale and haul hay from another's farm is entitled to a special lien on the unhauled hay, dependent on possession for their compensation, and, as between the parties, the lienor is in possession until the hay is voluntarily surrendered. Woodford v. Kelley [S. D.] 101 N. W. 1069.

30a. See 2 Curr. L. 739.

31. The words "continued possession" in the lien law [Laws 1897, c. 418, § 112] refer to a case where the continued possession of the chattel is intended to remain with the vendee. Mott Iron Works v. Reilly, 39 Misc. 833, 81 N. Y. S. 323.

32. The provision in Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 6566, relative to erection of partition fences, requiring the township trustee's statement to be recorded in the "mechanic's lien record," is not ineffective because there is no such record, there being a record in which mechanics' liens are required to be recorded. Tomlinson v. Bainaka [Ind.] 70 N. E. 155.

33. This section treats only of priorities between liens of different classes; for priority between liens of the same class or kind, see separate articles as Attachment, 3 Curr. L. 353; Garnishment, 3 Curr. L. 1550; Judgments, 4 Curr. L. 287; Mortgages, 2 Curr. L. 905, etc. It does not discuss priorities depending on the defectiveness of one or the other of the two hostile liens. As to priority between a lienor and a simple creditor, see ante, § 1, Definition and nature. See 2 Curr. L. 739.

34. Judgment lienor may bring action to marshal liens, although prior liens will exhaust the fund arising from the sale of the property. Knox v. Carr, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 81.

35. The seller under an unrecorded conditional sale is entitled to priority as against prior creditors of the bankrupt buyer, but not as against subsequent creditors without notice, though they have no lien on the property other than the caveat afforded by the bankruptcy adjudication [Ky. St. 1903, § 496 and Bankr. Act, § 64, cl. 5, construed]. In re Ducker, 133 F. 771. See 2 Curr. L. 739, n. 5.

36. Landlord's special lien for rent upon crops raised on rented premises held superior to a claim of exemption. Shirling v. Kennon, 119 Ga. 501, 46 S. E. 630.

37. Recorded mortgage held superior to an unrecorded bond for a deed, with the deed in escrow. Keene Guaranty Sav. Bank v. Lawrence, 32 Wash. 572, 73 P. 680. See 2 Curr. L. 739, n. 7, 8.

38. Chattel mortgagee having knowledge of prior deed of trust, held purchaser at sale under latter taking possession has right to growing crop as against mortgagee. Penryn Fruit Co. v. Sherman-Worrell Fruit Co., 142 Cal. 643, 76 P. 484. In a suit for partition, judgment liens existing at the commencement of the suit against one of the shares are entitled to preference over the lien of attorneys for their services in an unsuccessful attempt to defeat the liens. Atlee v. Bullard, 123 Iowa, 274, 98 N. W. 889. Judgment creditors by intervening in a pending creditor's suit in which a receiver is appointed acquire equitable liens on the property of the corporation as of the date of filing. Atlantic Trust Co. v. Dana

Compliance with statutory provisions which do not affect the rights of the contesting parties as between themselves need not be proven.[39] The lien of an ordinary recorded mortgage is not subordinate to mechanics' liens merely because the money which it was given to secure was loaned for the purpose of improving the mortgaged premises, and under an express contract that it should be so used.[40] As between himself and the mortgagee, a judgment creditor is entitled to all the surplus proceeds of the sale after the payment of the mortgage debt, with such expenses only as are provided for in the mortgage or are necessarily incident thereto.[41]

In order to obtain a decision on the question of priority, such question must be within the scope of the action.[42] The property being in the custody of one court, general creditors cannot pursue it in another court by means of an action at law, judgment and execution.[43] On a question of priority, a court will not set aside its state statutes for the benefit of foreigners and to the prejudice of its own citizens.[44] The word "creditor," as used in statutes declaring unrecorded chattel mortgages to be void as against creditors, means creditors having some sort of lien fixed by law or legal proceedings upon the particular property, and does not include a mere general creditor.[45]

§ 4. Waiver, extinguishment, discharge and revival.[46]—One may waive his lien, and the waiver being for a specified amount, it operates in favor of subsequent lienors in the order of their priority, up to the amount specified,[47] and the burden of showing the waiver rests on the subsequent lienor.[48] The ordinary rules of construction apply,[49] and the breach of an independent condition in another contract does not entitle one to avoid his waiver.[50] By the acceptance of a substitute lien, the former one is extinguished.[51] In California a lien upon collateral is ex-

[C. C. A.] 128 F. 209. A mortgagee by intervening in a receivership suit acquires a prior right to the income thereafter earned by the receiver as against ordinary judgment creditors subsequently intervening, and whose judgments were obtained during the receivership. Id. See 2 Curr. L. 739, n. 7, 8.

39. In a contest between lienors, failure to prove allegation that no proceeding at law was had in a suit to foreclose a real estate mortgage, held to be, at most, error without prejudice. Chaffee v. Sehestedt [Neb.] 96 N. W. 161.

40. Chaffee v. Sehestedt [Neb.] 96 N. W. 161.

41. Staton v. Webb [N. C.] 49 S. E. 55. Attorney's fees cannot be allowed the mortgagee without proof of necessity or authority in the mortgage. Id. Mortgagor cannot by subsequent agreement with the mortgagee give the latter the entire proceeds under the guise of exorbitant commissions. Id.

42. The priority of liens will not be determined on the trial of the right to property attached as that of a tenant and claimed by the landlord. Groesbeck v. Evans [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 430.

43. Where, during action to foreclose a mortgage, a temporary injunction issued restraining the defendant from disposing of the property, held the latter was in the custody of the law. Ryan v. Donley [Neb.] 96 N. W. 234.

44. Chattel mortgage executed and recorded in one state on property afterwards transferred to another will not be given priority over the liens of local attaching creditors in the latter. Snyder v. Yates [Tenn.] 79 S. W. 796.

45. Eason v. Garrison [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 800.

46. See 2 Curr. L. 740.

As to the effect of bankruptcy, see Bankruptcy, 3 Curr. L. 434.

47. Southern Grocer Co. v. Adams, 112 La. 60, 36 So. 226.

48. Citizens' State Bank v. Smith [Iowa] 101 N. W. 172.

Evidence held insufficient to sustain statement that judgment creditor had agreed to waive the benefit of a stipulation giving him priority. Stover v. Hellyer [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 470.

49. An indorsement on the margin of a mortgage that it is given to secure so much of the purchase money is not inconsistent with a stipulation in it that the mortgage lien should be subsequent to certain judgment liens. Stover v. Hellyer [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 470.

50. Breach of contract by which a subcontractor was entitled to a certificate from chief engineer so that he could collect money due him, held not to entitle him to avoid his waiver of his statutory lien. McCabe v. Rapid Transit Subway Const. Co., 127 F. 465.

51. One accepting a legal lien cannot, upon its becoming unavailable, go back to the initiation of the transaction and claim an equitable lien. Gove v. Morton Trust Co., 96 App. Div. 177, 89 N. Y. S. 247. Persons furnishing articles for a building waive any right of lien they may have on their particular article by taking in payment a bond secured by a mortgage on the tinguished by the lapse of the time within which an action can be brought upon the principal obligation.[52] A court of equity does not, by the appointment of a receiver, acquire authority to displace contract liens.[53]

A recital in a deed will revive a vendor's lien so as to give it priority over a judgment lien subsequently accruing.[54]

§ 5. Enforcement and protection of liens.[55]—In most cases of statutory liens, the statute expressly provides a mode for its enforcement.[56] In a suit to establish a lien on land, all persons against whom any relief is sought should be made parties.[57] The owner's right to redeem being barred, junior lienors not parties to the first proceeding are only entitled to a decree allowing them a reasonable time within which to redeem.[58] A debtor being adjudged a bankrupt pending an action in a state court to enforce a specific lien against his property, the state court is not thereby, nor by failure of the trustee in bankruptcy to intervene, divested of jurisdiction.[59]

Statutory proceedings to enforce or foreclose.[60]—A suit to foreclose a statutory lien against real property is one calling for the exercise of the equity powers of the court.[61] The holder of a lien on real property is not denied due process of law by failure to personally serve him with notice of the pendency of proceedings in rem affecting his lien.[62] The plaintiff need not negative provisos not contained in the enacting clause of the statute,[63] and there being a general denial, must prove all essential facts.[64] The commencement of an action of foreclosure suspends the running of the statute of limitations in favor of the defendants in the action; but it continues to run so far as others are concerned.[65] The jury not responding to the issue of the existence vel non of a lien, it is error to enter judgment establishing such lien.[66] An execution issued on the foreclosure of a laborer's lien operates as final process until arrested by a valid counter affidavit.[67] entire property and made to a trustee to secure the bondholders. Security Trust Co. v. Temple Co. [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 865.

Equitable remedies and procedure.[68]—A receiver may be appointed when neces-

52. Where an action on a debt for which insurance policies on the life of the debtor were pledged as security was barred before policies matured, the lien was extinguished [Civ. Code, § 2911]. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Pacific Fruit Co., 142 Cal. 477, 76 P. 67. The above rule is contrary to that existing at the common law. Id.

53. Mortgage on property and income of corporation. Atlantic Trust Co. v. Dana [C. C. A.] 128 F. 209.

54. Austin v. Lauderdale [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 413.

55. See 2 Curr. L. 740.

56. For specific statutory enforcement of liens, see specific articles previously referred to.

57. Combs' Adm'x v. Krish [Ky.] 84 S. W. 562.

58. Are not entitled to another sale. Crouch v. Dakota, etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 101 N. W. 722.

59. Vance v. Lane's Trustee [Ky.] 82 S. W. 297.

60. See 2 Curr. L. 740.

61. Court may deny jury trial. Suit to foreclose partition fence lien under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 6568. Tomlinson v. Bainaka [Ind.] 70 N. E. 155. Const. art. 1, § 20, as to right of jury trial, does not appiy to this proceeding. Id.

62. Proceeding to enforce tax lien, notice by publication was given to all interested parties. Leigh v. Green, 193 U. S. 79, 48 Law. Ed. 623.

63. Action under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 6568, to enforce a lien for building a partition fence. need not allege that the lands therein described were enclosed by a fence to retain stock. Tomlinson v. Bainaka [Ind.] 70 N. E. 155.

64. In an action to foreclose a statutory lien for building a partition fence, the answer being a generai denial, plaintiff must prove all the facts necessary to give the township trustee authority to contract for the building of the fence and issuing the certificate provided for by Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 6566. Tomlinson v. Bainaka [Ind.] 70 N. E. 155.

65. Lien for a street improvement. Page v. Chase Co. [Cal.] 79 P. 278.

66. Code 1896, § 2739, construed. Goldstein v. Leake [Ala.] 36 So. 458.

67. Moultrie Lumber Co. v. Jenkins [Ga.] 49 S. E. 678. Where attorney acted as notary public for client, held affidavit void [construing Civ. Code 1895, § 4417]. Id. In such case held the court properly refused to consider the sufficiency of the levy, and the case was properly dismissed. Id.

68. See 2 Curr. L. 741.

NOTE. Enforcement of equitable liens: A court of chancery may enforce an equitable lien on an equitable legal estate in sary to preserve the lien.[69] Where a lienor acquires the legal title to the property, he may maintain a bill of strict foreclosure to cut off the equity and right of junior incumbrancers to redeem.[70] When confirmation of a judicial sale discharging prior liens on the land and relating them to the purchase money is asked, the court will consider the equities of such lienholders.[71]

LIFE ESTATES, REVERSIONS AND REMAINDERS.

§ 1. Nature and Definitions (438).
§ 2. Mutual and Relative Rights and Remedies of Life Tenants, Future Tenants and Their Privies (441). Taxes and Incumbrances and Contribution (442). Mutual Dealings (443). Increment to Funds (443). Protection to Expectant Interest (444).
§ 3. Rights and Remedies Between Third Persons and Life Tenants, Remaindermen or Reversioners (444).

The scope of this topic does not embrace modes of creating life and future estates or the creative instruments,[72] or the particular freeholds of dower, curtesy and the like;[73] but is confined to the general principles of all life and future estates.[74]

§ 1. Nature and definitions.[75]—A life estate is a freehold[76] limited to determine with the life or lives of particular persons, or at an uncertain period which may continue for life.[77] The power of alienation is not a necessary incident to a life estate,[78] but to render it inalienable, the instrument creating it must expressly so declare.[79] A condition of forfeiture upon alienation[80] or failure to occupy[81] may be annexed to it. Such conditions are construed strictly against the grantor.[82]

A reversion is that estate remaining by operation of law in the grantor or his heirs to commence in possession after a lesser particular estate granted out by him is determined.[83] The validity of a life estate is not affected by the possibility that the remainder over may fail for want of takers.[84] lands, and if the law creates a lien upon a legal interest in realty, a similar lien may sometimes be declared and enforced in chancery upon equitable estates by analogy, but equity cannot extend a pure legal lien created by statute upon estates purely legal to cases not provided by statute, and of the latter class is a judgment lien. Buchan v. Sumner, 2 Barb. Ch. [N. Y.] 165, 47 Am. Dec. 305. From note to Aldine Mfg. Co. v. Phillips [Mich.] 74 Am. St. Rep. 380, 388.

69. Lien on hay for cutting, stacking and baling the same held not error to appoint receiver after answer was served and though defendant was not insolvent. Woodford v. Kelley [S. D.] 101 N. W. 1069.

70. Crouch v. Dakota, etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 101 N. W. 722.

71. Porch v. Agnew Co. [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 726.

72. See Deeds of Conveyance, 3 Curr. L. 1056; Wills, 2 Curr. L. 2076.

73. See Curtesy, 3 Curr. L. 987; Dower, 3 Curr. L. 1144.

74. Compare Real Property, 2 Curr. L. 1462.

75. See 2 Curr. L. 741.

Note: As to the fundamental principles and distinguishing features of life estates, reversions, remainders and conditional limitations, see Tiffany Real. Prop. §§ 70, 113, 118.

76. A life tenant is the owner of a freehold interest, notwithstanding conditional defeasance, and may give a valid consent to the building of a street railway. Ireton Brothers v. Ft. Wayne, V. W. & L. Traction Co., 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 317. A contract that one may use a building so long as he pays taxes and insurance is not a mere tenant at will as to his insurable interest. He has a life estate subject to be defeated by noncompliance with the conditions. Schaefer v. Anchor Mut. Fire Ins. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 857. A husband by whom a wife has issue becomes when she inherits land tenant by curtesy initiate. He is seised of a freehold estate. The interest of the wife is a reversion. Winestine v. Ziglatzki-Marks Co. [Conn.] 59 A. 496.

77. Estate to one so long as she remains a widow is a defeasible life estate. McKee v. McKee's Ex'r [Ky.] 82 S. W. 451.

See 1 Tiffany Real Prop., 71, for definition and incidents of life estates.

78. Equitable estate for life. Wenzel v. Powder [Md.] 59 A. 194.

79. Provision that all the income should be applied to the support of settler, wife and children did not create a spendthrift trust. Wenzel v. Powder [Md.] 59 A. 194. Provision of forfeiture in case remaindermen incumbered the fee held not to prevent the estate of the life tenant from becoming liable for his debts. Flaherty v. Stephenson [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 131.

80, 81. Lewis v. Lewis, 76 Conn. 586, 57 A. 735.

82. Civ. Code, § 1442. Reclamation Dist No. 551 v. Van Loben Sels [Cal.] 78 P. 638

83. See 1 Tiffany Real Prop. 269; Cyc.

A remainder is an estate expressly limited to take effect in possession immediately on the expiration of the particular estate,[85] not in derogation thereof and created by the same instrument.[86]

A remainder is vested if there is a present fixed right to future enjoyment,[87] though subject to defeasances and substitutions.[88] It is inheritable[89] though not yet in possession.[90]

It is contingent when limited to a dubious or uncertain person,[91] or upon a dubious and uncertain event,[92] or upon an event which may not happen until after

Law Dict. "Reversion." The wife's interest in lands subject to curtesy initiate is a reversion. Winestine v. Ziglatzki-Marks Co. [Conn.] 59 A. 496. If the remaindermen die prior to the termination of the particular estate, it reverts to the grantor. Archer v. Jones [Iowa] 101 N. W. 195. See 2 Curr. L. 744, n. 53.

84. Loyd v. Loyd's Ex'r, 102 Va. 519, 46 S. E. 687

85. A remainder must be supported by a particular estate: If the particular estate determines before the remainderman is qualified to take, the remainder expires. Archer v. Jacobs [Iowa] 101 N. W. 195. Estate in trust, the income to children for a specified period when the estate was to be conveyed in fee to certain remaining beneficiaries, held to create equitable remainders or cross remainders in fee and entitled to the legal title on the termination of the trust. Loomer v. Loomer, 76 Conn. 522, 57 A. 167.

86. Deed with reservation to grantor for life. Dozier v. Toalson, 180 Mo. 546, 79 S. W. 420. See 2 Curr. L. 742, n. 49 et seq.

87. Remainder to one on termination of life estate. Archer v. Jacobs [Iowa] 101 N. W. 195. A warranty deed to "A" with a reservation of the rents and profits to the grantor for life creates a vested remainder in fee in "A." Dozier v. Toalson, 180 Mo. 546, 79 S. W. 420.

88. Estate to a wife for life remainder to children, and if any child died before testator or life tenant, his children should take the share of their parent, gives children living at testator's death a vested remainder. Wicker v. Wicker [S. C.] 49 S. E. 10. Estate to "A" for life, remainder to certain named persons, or if any of such persons died before the life tenant, leaving children, such children should take the share of their parents, creates a vested remainder in persons named. Woodley v. Calhoun [S. C.] 48 S. E. 272. Estate to "A" for life, remainder to "B," if "B" die before distribution, to his issue if any, otherwise to his heirs, gives "B" a vested remainder. Callison v. Morris, 123 Iowa, 297, 98 N. W. 780. An estate to "A" for life with power to sell if necessary for her support, remainder to "B," gives "B" a vested remainder, subject to be divested by sale but not otherwise. Hare v. Congregational Soc. [Vt.] 57 A. 964. Remainder to "A" and if she die without issue to "B" gives "A" a defeasible remainder in fee. McKee v. McKee's Ex'r [Ky.] 82 S. W. 451.

89, 90. A remainderman's heirs are such as are living at his death. A half-brother born after his death but before the death of the life tenant does not inherit from him. Kesterson v. Bailey [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 97. Estate to "A" for life, remainder to grantor's heirs, creates a vested remainder in the heirs. Where before termination of the life estate, one heir died leaving a child, such child took its parents' estate. Porter v. Osmun [Mich.] 98 N. W. 859. Will descend to heirs of remainderman, though he die before coming into possession; may be aliened by him or subjected to claims of creditors. Archer v. Jacobs [Iowa] 101 N. W. 195.

91. One in contemplation of marriage deeded property in trust to pay the income to himself for life, remainder to his widow and issue. Held, on marriage and birth of issue, the remainder became vested. In re Craig's Estate, 97 App. Div. 289, 89 N. Y. S. 971. A remainder to an unborn child vests at its birth. Kesterson v. Bailey [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 97. Estate "to A for life and immediately on her death to children then living or the issue of a deceased child." Mulliken v. Earnshaw, 209 Pa. 226, 58 A. 286. Estate to "A" for life, remainder to his issue then living, and the issue of any then dead. If "A" die without issue, then to "B." Held, the period of vesting was fixed as of the date of the death of "A," and no estate vested in a grandchild who died before him. In re Adams' Estate, 208 Pa. 500, 57 A. 979. Estate in trust to pay income to daughters or if any died to her issue, or failing issue to her sisters surviving, with the right in trustee to sell and to withhold shares of income and to be divided as in intestacy at majority of youngest child of daughters, held contingent till distribution. In re Knowles' Estate, 208 Pa. 219, 57 A. 518. A gift over to the life tenant's children "or their children who may be living at that time" (life tenant's death) is contingent until the life tenant's death. But they are "owners" who may be impleaded in condemnation proceedings and they may be compensated. Charleston & W. C. R. Co. v. Reynolds [S. C.] 48 S. E. 476. A remainder to a class at the death of the life tenant is contingent until his death. Wenzel v. Powder [Md.] 59 A. 194. Estate to "A" for life, save in case she remarries, to a class creates a contingent remainder. Thompson v. Adams, 205 Ill. 552, 69 N. E. 1.

92. Estate to "A" for life and if she die without children to be divided among heirs of the grantor creates a contingent remainder in children living at the death of the grantor. Hauser v. Craft, 134 N. C. 319, 46 S. E. 756. Where the right of the remainderman to succeed to the possession at the termination of the life tenancy is not or may never be ascertained. Archer v. Jacobs [Iowa] 101 N. W. 195. Estate to "A" for life, remainder to "B" if he is then alive, if not to "C" with the same provision, creates a contingent remainder, but the termination of the particular estate. The uncertainty whether a remainderman will outlive the life tenant does not make a remainder contingent.[93] It is the present capacity of taking effect in possession if the possession becomes vacant,[94] not the certainty that such will exist that marks a vested remainder.[95] Remainders may "cross" or alternate.[96]

Vested remainders are favored in construction.[97]

A vested fee-simple estate in remainder is "property" within a statute giving a husband a life estate in his wife's property if she died intestate.[98] Even contingent remaindermen may be "owners" within statutory definitions.[99] Ordinarily only vested future estates are leviable.[1]

Under the rule in Shelley's Case a limitation to "heirs" of a life tenant converts the particular estate into a fee.[2]

At common law a valid conditional limitation[3] could be made only by way of executory devise;[4] but statutes now generally make them valid if created by deed.[5] However, it is said that a conditional limitation does not cut down nor accelerate the prior estate in fee.[6] Under a statute providing that such an estate may be limited to the "right heirs" of the grantor, it may be limited to a specified person, a right heir.[7] the first in the order named who is alive at the death of the life tenant takes a fee. McKee v. McKee's Ex'r [Ky.] 82 S. W. 451.

93. Devise to "A" for life, and at her death to her children and grandchildren, if she left neither, to "B," "A's" children and grandchildren in being at the death of testator took a vested remainder, though they might not survive their mother. Archer v. Jacobs [Iowa] 101 N. W. 195. Provision in will to "A" on death of "B" does not indicate an intention to postpone the vesting of the estate until "B's" death. Id.

94. Archer v. Jacobs [Iowa] 101 N. W. 195. If the class to whom a remainder is devised is certain and only the time of enjoyment is postponed, the estate is vested; thus an estate to "A" for life or during widowhood, then to grantor's children. Dee v. Dee, 212 Ill. 338, 72 N. E. 429.

95. Archer v. Jacobs [Iowa] 101 N. W. 195.

96. Remainder to one if he survive the life tenant if not to another vests in the order named as they shall survive. McKee v. McKee's Ex'r [Ky.] 82 S. W. 451.

97. See Deeds of Conveyance, 3 Curr. L. 1056; Wills, 2 Curr. L. 2076. Will be held vested if it can be done with manifest violation of the intention of a donor. Archer v. Jacobs [Iowa] 101 N. W. 195.

98. Snyder v. Jones [Md.] 59 A. 118.

99. Condemnation proceedings. Charleston & W. C. R. Co. v. Reynolds [S. C.] 48 S. E. 476.

1. See Executions, 3 Curr. L. 1397.

Note: A vested remainder in fee may be taken in execution and sold by virtue thereof under a judgment against the remainderman (Den v. Hillman, 7 N. J. Law, 218; Wilkinson v. Chew, 54 Ga. 602; Davis v. Goforth, 1 Lea [Tenn.] 31; Murrell v. Roberts, 33 N. C. 424, 53 Am. Dec. 419), so also, a reversionary interest may be sold on execution, though it is contingent upon the happening of events which may never occur, and though the extent of the interest cannot be ascertained (Woodgate v. Fleet, 44 N. Y. 1). Contingent remainders, however, in which the takers cannot be identified until the termination of the particular estate cannot be so taken (Hayward v. Peavey, 128 Ill. 430; Ducker v. Burnham, 146 Ill. 9, 37 Am. St. Rep. 135; Roundtree v. Roundtree, 26 S. C. 450), unless under a statute providing that all interests in land shall be subject to seizure (White v. McPheeters, 75 Mo. 292). Conditional limitations and executory devises not being assignable were not, at common law, subject to sale on execution. Watson v. Dodd, 68 N. C. 528.—From note to Young v. Young [Va.] 23 L. R. A. 645.

2. See fuller treatment of the rule in Real Property, 2 Curr. L. 1462; Deeds, 3 Curr. L. 1056; Wills, 2 Curr. L. 2076. Estate to one during his natural life and then to his heirs gives the first taker a fee. Doyle v. Andis [Iowa] 102 N. W. 177. The rule in Shelley's Case is part of the common law of Iowa. Id.

The word "heirs" is essential to justify the application of this rule. Does not apply where an estate is left to one for life remainder to her unborn child. Kesterson v. Bailey [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 97. Devise to "A" for life and if she die without leaving a child or children to "B" is not a case for the application of the rule. Hauser v. Craft, 134 N. C. 319, 46 S. E. 756.

3. Estate to "A" for life, then to "B" and "C," cross remainders to the surviver if either die without issue, and if both die without issue, to "D," creates a life estate in "A," determinable fees in "B" and "C" and a conditional limitation in "D." Middlesex Banking Co. v. Field [Miss.] 37 So. 139.

4. See discussion of this doctrine, which is not universally accepted, in 1 Tiffany Real Prop. p. 324, n. 210. Compare Real Property, 2 Curr. L. 1462; Wills, § 6, 2 Curr. L. 2162, n. 98.

5. Code 1880, § 1190, providing what conditional limitation is valid, is applicable to deeds as well as to devises. Middlesex Banking Co. v. Field [Miss.] 37 So. 139. The grantee of a conditional limitation takes by purchase. Id.

6. Middlesex Banking Co. v. Field [Miss.] 37 So. 139.

What words will define the estates is a question of interpretation of the instrument wherein they are used.[8]

Personalty may be limited in life estates[9] and future estates, if it be of a durable and nonconsumptive kind,[10] by the same language that would create similar estates in realty.[11]

The total of all estates is a fee,[12] hence the grant of a life estate and remainder passes the fee out of the grantor,[13] and when they unite in the same person, he takes a fee;[14] and contingent remainders limited to persons who are not and may never be in being are destroyed.[15]

§ 2. Mutual and relative rights and remedies of life tenants, future tenants and their privies.[16]—The life tenant should not deal with property in a manner prejudicial to the remainderman's interest.[17] A remainderman has no present interest during the existence of the life estate,[18] but is entitled to the property at its termination,[19] and a remainder may be accelerated if so intended where an intervening devise fails.[20] Possession after the termination of the life estate is not necessary to complete his title.[21] A reversioner entitled to re-enter on breach of condition subsequent cannot re-enter after conveyance of his reversionary interest.[22] His grantee cannot re-enter for a breach occurring prior to the conveyance.[23] Waste if willful and wanton will work a forfeiture of the life estate,[24] or a lesser degree will support action for damages.[25] Being liable to the remainderman for waste

7. Rev. Code 1880, § 1190. Middlesex Banking Co. v. Field [Miss.] 37 So. 139.

8. Words construed: Deed of trust held to create a life estate in the income in wife and children of the grantor, remainder in fee to the issue of such children. In re Eyre's Estate, 205 Pa. 561, 55 A. 541.

Consent judgment in partition of community property between a widow and heirs of her deceased husband held insufficient to reduce her fee to a life estate. Drew v. Morris [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 321. A reservation of the sole use, control and occupation. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Vaughn, 206 Ill. 234, 69 N. E. 113. Estate to "A," following other devises and bequests to her was a provision that it was for life only. Held, such limitation applied to the first devise. Hauser v. Craft, 134 S. C. 319, 46 S. E. 756. A devise to one "and to his children" held to create a life estate in the son, remainder to his children living at testator's death. Crawford v. Forest Oil Co., 208 Pa. 5, 57 A. 47.

9. Overton v. Nashville Trust Co., 110 Tenn. 50, 72 S. W. 108. Bequests to one "for her use during her natural life" in one-third the residue of the personal estate of a testator is a life estate. Dickinson v. Griggsville Nat. Bank, 209 Ill. 350, 70 N. E. 593. See 2 Curr. L. 744.

10. Personalty and realty to "A," providing that both kinds of property are given her for life, remainder to "B," gives "A" a life estate in both kinds of property. McKee v. McKee's Ex'r [Ky.] 82 S. W. 451.

11. Stallcup v. Cronley's Trustee, 25 Ky. L. R. 1675, 78 S. W. 441.

12. As to merger, see Real Property, 2 Curr. L. 1462.

13. A subsequent deed passes nothing. Smith v. Smith, 25 Ky. L. R. 1960, 79 S. W. 223. A grantor after providing for an annuity for himself for life, the principal to his children, subsequently agreed with the trustee that in consideration for the payment of the annuity in another way the principal might be divided. Held, that if the annuitant had a reversion, contingent on his outliving his children under the original trust, his substituted agreement disposed of it. Baltes v. Union Trust Co. [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 1005.

14. Graham v. Whitridge [Md.] 58 A. 36.

15. Archer v. Jacobs [Iowa] 101 N. W. 195.

16. See 2 Curr. L. 744.

17. Should not take title to realty purchased with the proceeds of the sale of personalty in the name of third persons. Dee v. Dee, 212 Ill. 338, 72 N. E. 429.

18. Where a grantor reserved a life estate, the surviving husband of a grantee who died during the life of the grantor has no present interest. Stebbins v. Petty, 209 Ill. 291, 70 N. E. 673.

19. Where distributees under a will agreed with the widow that she should have the use of certain property for life with power to use the principal but not to dispose of it by will, they were at the death of the widow entitled to the remaining property. No necessity for the legal representative of the testator's estate to act as a conduit. Hinn v. Gersten [Wis.] 99 N. W. 338.

20. By expunging an invalid trust. Lord v. Lord, 44 Misc. 530, 90 N. Y. S. 143.

21. Morrison v. Fletcher [Ky.] 84 S. W. 548.

22. Lewis v. Lewis, 76 Conn. 586, 57 A. 735.

23. Under Gen. St. 1902, § 4051, declaring that he shall have the same right of entry as the original reversioner. Lewis v. Lewis, 76 Conn. 586, 57 A. 735.

24. Under Civ. Code 1895, § 3090, must be both permissive and voluntary and the voluntary waste must be committed wantonly. Roby v. Newton [Ga.] 49 S. E. 694.

25. Roby v. Newton [Ga.] 49 S. E. 694. Where a prayer for relief was for forfeiture and in the alternative for damages, both issues should be submitted. Id.

committed by a stranger, he may recover full indemnity for an injury to the freehold,[26] notwithstanding a statutory right of action in the remainderman.[27]

Taxes and incumbrances and contribution.[27a]—It is the duty of the life tenant to keep down the taxes,[28] and he is personally liable therefor,[29] notwithstanding the estate is also bound.[30] A remainder cannot be sold for taxes due on the life estate.[31] The duty to preserve the premises from waste includes the obligation to keep down interest on existing incumbrances. If he is obliged to pay off an incumbrance, he is entitled to contribution.[32]

The possession of a life tenant is not adverse[33] to a remainderman or reversioner,[34] nor is the possession of one holding under him[35] during the existence of

26. Including loss to remainderman. Dix v. Jaquay, 94 App. Div. 554, 88 N. Y. S. 228. Complaint against subtenant for cutting timber held sufficient. Id.

27. Dix v. Jaquay, 94 App. Div. 554, 88 N. Y. S. 228.

27a. See 2 Curr. L. 744, n. 58, 67.

28. A life tenant is not entitled to deduct from a payment which is an annual charge upon the land a proportionate share of the taxes. Angle v. Angle [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 425. By permitting the estate to be sold for taxes and buying in the tax title, he acquires no rights against the remainderman. Crawford v. Meis, 123 Iowa, 610, 99 N. W. 186.

The duty as between life tenant and remainderman to pay transfer taxes is treated in the topic, Taxes, 2 Curr. L. 1786.

29. Morrison v. Fletcher [Ky.] 84 S. W. 548. A life tenant is liable for taxes which become a lien during the existence of his tenancy. In re Corbin's Will, 91 N. Y. S. 797.

30. Morrison v. Fletcher [Ky.] 84 S. W. 548. A life tenant is liable for taxes which taxes. It should be sold first. Fenley v. Louisville [Ky.] 84 S. W. 582.

31. After judgment entered for sale for taxes which were a lien on both life estate and remainder, the remainderman deposited with the court the amount due by them. Held, the judgment of sale should be modified. Woolley v. Louisville [Ky.] 82 S. W. 608.

NOTE. Effect on reversion or remainder of a tax sale during the existence of the life estate: There are two distinct doctrines. Under one the sale, if valid, extinguishes all prior titles of whatsoever nature or kind. Turner v. Smith, 14 Wall. [U. S.] 553, 20 Law. Ed. 724; Osterberg v. Union Trust Co., 93 U. S. 424, 23 Law. Ed. 964; Gross v. Taylor, 81 Ga. 86; Dunlap v. Gallatin County, 15 Ill. 7; Lewis v. Pleasants, 143 Ill. 271; Miami County Com'rs v. Brackenridge, 12 Kan. 114; Parker v. Baxter, 2 Gray [Mass.] 185; Langley v. Chapin, 134 Mass. 87; Sinclair v. Learned, 51 Mich. 335; Westbrook v. Miller, 64 Mich. 129. In several states it would seem that the reversioner or remainderman must be made a party to the tax suit. Gitchell v. Kreidler, 84 Mo. 472; Allen v. McCabe, 93 Mo. 138; Smith v. Messer, 17 N. H. 420; Jackson v. Babcock, 16 N. Y. 426; Jones v. Devore, 8 Ohio St. 430; Fager v. Campbell, 5 Watts [Pa.] 287. See, also, Yocum v. Zahner, 162 Pa. 468; Brown v. Austin, 41 Vt. 262; Jarvis v. Peck, 19 Wis. 74. The other doctrine limits the sale to the estate of the life tenant. Dyer v. Branch Bank, 14 Ala. 622; White v. Portland, 67 Conn. 272; Payne v. Arthur, 16 Ky. L. R. 784; Dunn v. Winston, 31 Miss. 135; Morrow v. Dows, 28 N. J. Eq. 459; Weaver v. Arnold, 15 R. I. 53; Nashville v. Cowan, 10 Lea [Tenn.] 209; Yenda v. Wheeler, 9 Tex. 408. The first doctrine is followed in those states where the tax is a charge upon the land alone where no resort is contemplated against the owner or his personal estate, and where the proceeding is strictly in rem. In such case the tax law is notice to the world of the liability of the land for public assessments. The latter doctrine is followed where the law requires the land to be listed in the name of the owner of the fee or of any other interest in the estate; provides for a personal demand for the tax, and authorizes a seizure of the body or goods of the delinquent, and authorizes a sale of the land only when all other remedies have been exhausted. In such cases the title is a derivative one and the purchaser takes only the interest of the defaulter.—From note to Ferguson v. Quinn [Tenn.] 33 L. R. A. 689.

32. Tindall v. Peterson [Neb.] 98 N. W. 688. In case he pays the principal, the burden is apportioned between him and the remainderman in such manner that the tenant will pay the present value of the amount of interest he would have paid during his life if the incumbrance had continued in existence, afd. on rehearing, 99 N. W. 659. The life tenant can recover from the remainderman his proportion of the purchase price of an outstanding title. Keller v. Fenske [Wis.] 101 N. W. 378.

33. See 2 Curr. L. 745.

34. Lewis v. Lewis, 76 Conn. 586, 57 A. 735; Hays v. Marsh, 123 Iowa, 81, 98 N. W. 604. However long continued. Morrison v. Fletcher [Ky.] 84 S. W. 548; Henderson v. Kibbie, 211 Ill. 556, 71 N. E. 1091; Joyner v. Futrell, 136 N. C. 301, 48 S. E. 649; Kesterson v. Bailey [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 97.

Note: It being the duty of the party in possession of the rents and profits to pay the taxes, he will not be permitted to acquire title by refusing or neglecting to pay the same and purchasing the premises at tax sale or subsequently acquiring them from a purchaser at such sale. Pleasants v. Scott, 21 Ark. 370, 76 Am. Dec. 403; McMinn v. Whelan, 27 Cal. 300; Busch v. Huston, 75 Ill. 343; Stears v. Hollenbeck, 38 Iowa, 550; Leppo v. Gibbert, 26 Kan. 138; Willard v. Strong, 14 Vt. 532, 39 Am. Dec. 240; Williamson v. Russell, 18 W. Va. 612; Perkins v. Wilkinson, 86 Wis. 538; Hagen v. Varney, 147 Ill. 281; Stewart v. Matheny, 66 Miss.

the life estate, unless the owner of the future estate is by statute, given a right of action.[36] But a life tenant by devise who gets in an outstanding paramount claim thereafter holds adverse to the remainderman[37] who is affected with notice by the recording of the deed,[38] though the remainderman may ordinarily contribute so it shall enure to him.[39] A co-tenant in remainder may purchase for his exclusive benefit an outstanding title,[40] and one may hold adversely to the others after the life estate terminates;[41] but improvements made by one inure to the benefit of all.[42] The possession of a life tenant cannot be tacked to that of a remainderman for the purpose of barring rights in third persons.[43]

Mutual dealings.—A contract of settlement between a life tenant as executor and remaindermen, if fair at the time, will not be set aside at their instance after his death.[44] Unauthorized advancements made to a remainderman do not constitute a lien on his interest.[45]

Increment to funds.[45a]—Surplus and undivided profits on hand when the stock was purchased[46] and stock dividends go to the corpus.[47]

Unconsumed income given for a specific purpose falls back into the corpus,[48] and a power not exercised in any manner affords no basis for a lien to cover other moneys devoted to its purpose.[49]

The right of partition[49a] is often given by statute to remaindermen and reversioners,[50] unless in the terms of the instrument creating the estate, a condition to the contrary prior to the time of enjoyment is implied.[51] This right may be denied if prejudicial to infant remaindermen.[52]

A power[53] to consume the principal may by terms of the grant[54] or by agree-

21, 14 Am. St. Rep. 538. See note to Estabrook v. Royon [Ohio] 32 L. R. A. 805.

35. Hauser v. Craft, 134 N. C. 319, 46 S. E. 756; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Vaughn, 206 Ill. 234, 69 N. E. 113; Charleston & W. C. R. Co. v. Reynolds [S. C.] 48 S. E. 476. An action against a grantee of a life tenant within the period of limitations after the life tenant's death is not barred. Ousler v. Robinson [Ark.] 80 S. W. 227.

36. Where a remainderman, with notice that his rights are disputed is given a right of action to settle disputed questions, notwithstanding the existence of the life estate, the bar of limitations may be invoked against him. Crawford v. Meis, 123 Iowa, 610, 99 N. W. 186.

37, 38. Commonwealth v. Clark [Ky.] 83 S. W. 100.

39. His proportionate share of the price paid. Keller v. Fenske [Wis.] 101 N. W. 378.

40. Crawford v. Meis, 123 Iowa, 610, 99 N. W. 186.

41. Co-remaindermen had become owners of the life estate. McCullough v. Finley [Kan.] 77 P. 696.

See Tenants in Common and Joint Tenants, 2 Curr. L. 1862.

42. He is not entitled to an allowance therefor on partition after the termination of the life estate. Porter v. Osmun [Mich.] 98 N. W. 859.

43. Under Code, § 152, providing that an action to foreclose shall be barred after ten years if the mortgagor has been in possession. Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162, 48 S. E. 578. Code, § 158, has no application, relief being provided for in § 152. Id.

44. They having been old and unlikely to outlive him, released for a small portion, but he died very soon. Almon v. Ellison [Ky.] 81 S. W. 245.

45. Where a life tenant, trustee of a fund, without authority makes advancements. Wilson v. Longhorne, 102 Va. 631, 47 S. E. 871.

45a. See 2 Curr. L. 744, n. 60.

46. This is a part of the principal. Tuttle v. First Nat. Bank, 44 Misc. 318, 89 N. Y. S. 820.

47. Blinn v. Gillett, 208 Ill. 473, 70 N. E. 704. Such a dividend is not intestate property. Id.

48. When a life estate is given for support at discretion of trustees, all which is not necessary or proper for support, falls into the remainder. Demeritt v. Young, 72 N. H. 202, 55 A. 1047.

49. Life tenant had power to sell if necessary for her support. She waived the right by obtaining sustenance elsewhere. Held she was not entitled to an equitable lien on the property. Hare v. Congregational Soc. [Vt.] 57 A. 964.

49a. See 2 Curr. L. 745.

50. See Partition, 2 Curr. L. 1097.

Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1901, ch. 106, § 1, providing that co-tenants have a right of partition. Miller v. Lanning, 211 Ill. 620, 71 N. E. 1115. Though they are not entitled to possession. Id. Remaindermen may partition during the existence of the life estate. McCullough v. Finley [Kan.] 77 P. 696.

51. Will provided for a division at the death or marriage of the life tenant. Dee v. Dee, 212 Ill. 338, 72 N. E. 429.

52. Miller v. Lanning, 211 Ill. 620, 71 N. E. 1115.

53. See Powers, 2 Curr. L. 1257; Wills, 2 Curr. L. 2076.

54. A power in the life tenant "to use ac-ment between life tenant and remainderman[55] be added to the life interest. The intention to grant the power must clearly appear.[56]

Protection to expectant interest.[56a]—The owner of a defeasible title need not,[57] but a life tenant may be required to give bond that personal property will be forthcoming when his estate terminates,[58] unless the property be of such nature that enjoyment thereof cannot be had without possession or consumption in whole or part.[59] Remaindermen in a fund may procure the appointment of a trustee to take possession of and preserve it.[60] A contingent remainderman's interest,[61] if not too remote,[62] must be protected when the property is converted, and in South Carolina he must be made a party to condemnation proceedings.[63] Equity may authorize a sale for the purpose of preserving the estate,[64] but the necessity therefor must be apparent.[65] Where the principal falls into the remainder as fast as life interests in the income determine, investments should be apportioned into as many parts as there are life tenants.[66]

§ 3. Rights and remedies between third persons and life tenants, remaindermen or reversioners.[67]—A life tenant can convey no greater interest than he owns,[68] unless vested with a power of disposal.[69] His deed carries any equities in the land which he has against the remainderman.[70] In North Carolina his covenant of general warranty has the effect only of a personal covenant.[71] The administrator, of a cording to her desire" creates a right to use all; the remainderman takes only such part as is undisposed of. McGuire v. Gallaghen [Me.] 59 A. 445. Implied from terms "To A, my wife, all my property, to be used by her according to her desire," at her death property remaining to B. Id.

55. Distributees under a will agreed with the widow that she should have the use of certain property for life with power to dispose of the principal, but not by will; held, the widow had power to incur indebtedness for living expenses payable out of the property either before or after her death. Hinn v. Gersten [Wis.] 99 N. W. 338. A clause that the widow should not dispose of the property by will did not change the effect of the agreement. Id.

56. Provision for the disposition of property "then remaining" at the death of the life tenant did not authorize the life tenant to sell. Thompson v. Adams, 205 Ill. 552, 69 N. E. 1.

56a. See 2 Curr. L. 744, n. 61.

57. If not so provided in the instrument creating the title. McKee v. McKee's Ex'r [Ky.] 82 S. W. 451.

58. McKee v. McKee's Ex'r [Ky.] 82 S. W. 451. As a general rule all usufructuaries must give bond. Maguire v. McGuire, 110 La. 279, 34 So. 443. The fact that she is appointed as executrix without bond does not relieve her. Id.

59. McKee v. McKee's Ex'r [Ky.] 82 S. W. 451.

60. Graham v. Whitridge [Md.] 58 A. 36.

61. Estate to "A" and his children, remainder to the descendants of "A" living at the time of his death. On a sale of the property during the life of "A," the judgment of sale should be so framed as to protect the interests of minor children if they survive their father. Bullock v. Bullock [Ky.] 84 S. W. 738.

62. Remaindermen not in being [Pub. Laws 1903, p. 122]. Smith v. Gudger, 133 N. C. 627, 45 S. E. 955.

63. Is entitled to compensation when the estate is taken. Charleston & W. C. R. Co. v. Reynolds [S. C.] 48 S. E. 476.

64. Though no such power is given by the instrument creating the life estate. Thompson v. Adams, 205 Ill. 552, 69 N. E. 1.

65. Thompson v. Adams, 205 Ill. 552, 69 N. E. 1.

66. So that as each life interest terminates that fraction may be turned over. Graham v. Whitridge [Md.] 58 A. 36.

67. See 2 Curr. L. 745.

68. Commissioners of Yazoo & Mississippi Valley Delta v. Nelms [Miss.] 37 So. 116. A dowress cannot convey the reversion. Ousler v. Robinson [Ark.] 80 S. W. 227. The grantee of a life tenant takes no greater interest than the grantor owns. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Vaughn, 206 Ill. 234, 69 N. E. 113. Where a legatee had a life estate in certain stock and the trustee was authorized by the will to give him possession and control of it, and the legatee pledged it under his authority, held, that in so doing the legatee acted as the trustee's agent, and the latter, after the legatee's death, could alone demand the return of the stock on payment of the notes which it was pledged to secure. Bristol Sav. Bank v. Holley [Conn.] 58 A. 691. One who purchases from the life tenant without consideration or with notice of the nature of his title acquires no rights against the remainderman. Dickinson v. Griggsville Nat. Bank, 209 Ill. 350, 70 N. E. 593.

69. By the statute in Wisconsin, a grantee under warranty deed by a life tenant with absolute power of disposal free from trust is a "purchaser" as to whom the power raises the life estate to a fee. Auer v. Brown [Wis.] 98 N. W. 966.

70. Lien acquired by paying off a mortgage. Keller v. Fenske [Wis.] 101 N. W. 1055.

71. Express provision of Code, § 1334. Hauser v. Craft, 134 N. C. 319, 46 S. E. 756.

life tenant, can have no interest.[72] The lien of a mortgage executed by him ceases[73] and his tenant becomes a trespasser;[74] but it is held that his grantee of a right of way does not,[75] and that he may recover his improvements from the reversioner,[76] especially if in possession in good faith.[77]

A vested remainder is alienable.[78] At common law, a contingent remainder was not subject to conveyance,[79] otherwise under a statute providing that any interest or claim to real estate may be disposed of by deed.[80] Such a statute also includes a conditional limitation.[81] It may be released to the tenant.[82] While it is assignable in equity, it will not be enforced as against the assignor unless based on a valuable consideration.[83]

The grantee of an expectancy acquires only his grantor's interest.[84] A reversionary interest is subject to sale on execution.[85] A possibility of reverter is not assignable.[86] The legislature may provide for the sale of property so as to divest the interest of persons having contingent remainders and executory devises.[87]

LIFE INSURANCE; LIGHT AND AIR, see latest topical index.

LIMITATION OF ACTIONS.

§ 1. Statutes of Limitation, Validity, Interpretation and Law Governing (446).
§ 2. Period of Limitation (449).
§ 3. Disability and Exceptions (450).
A. Trusts (450).
B. Insanity and Death (451).
C. Infancy and Coverture (451).
D. Absence and Nonresidence (452).
§ 4. Accrual of Cause of Action (453). As Between Stockholder, Corporation and Creditors (455). Mistake (457). Fraud (457). Accounts (458).
§ 5. Tolling (458).
§ 6. Commencement of Action (459).
A. In General (459).
B. Amendment of Pleading (460).
C. After Nonsuit or Dismissal (461).
§ 7. Revival of Obligation (462).
§ 8. Operation and Effect of Bar (463).
A. Bar of Debt as Affecting Security (463).
B. Against Whom Available (464).
C. To Whom Available (464).
§ 9. Pleading and Evidence (464).

This title relates to the general statutes of limitations and relegates to more 72. Borum v. Gregory, 119 Ga. 766, 47 S. E. 192.

73. Bryan v. Dupoyster [C. C. A.] 130 F. 83.

74. A lease given by a life tenant terminates at his death. Crawford v. Forest Oil Co., 208 Pa. 5, 57 A. 47.

75. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Vaughn, 206 Ill. 234, 69 N. E. 113. A railroad company holding a deed from a life tenant to a right of way should on termination of the life estate be given a reasonable time within which to condemn. Id.

76. In case of condemnation a railroad company need not pay the reversioner for improvements on a right of way acquired from the life tenant. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Vaughn, 206 Ill. 234, 69 N. E. 113.

77. If such tenant is in possession in good faith he is entitled to an accounting. He is chargeable with the income less taxes and improvements. Keller v. Fenske [Wis.] 101 N. W. 378.

78. Coats v. Harris [Idaho] 75 P. 243.

79. Conveyance by debtor of all his property would not pass a contingent remainder. Wilson v. Langhorne, 102 Va. 631, 47 S. E. 871. Neither at common law nor under a statute allowing conditional limitations to pass by deed. Stallcup v. Cronley's Trustees, 25 Ky. L. R. 1675, 78 S. W. 441.

80. Code 1887, § 2418. Wilson v. Langhorne, 102 Va. 631, 47 S. E. 871. Under Code, § 2914. McDonald v. Bayard Sav. Bank, 123 Iowa, 413, 98 N. W. 1025. Under a statute providing that a judgment shall be a lien on real estate acquired after the date of the judgment, a contingent remainder then held is liable when it subsequently vests. Wilson v. Langhorne, 102 Va. 631, 47 S. E. 871.

81. Ky. St. § 2341. Stallcup v. Cronley's Trustees, 25 Ky. L. R. 1675, 78 S. W. 441.

82. It is such a present and existing interest as is susceptible of release to the life tenant. Stallcup v. Cronley's Trustees, 25 Ky. L. R. 1675, 78 S. W. 441; McDonald v. Bayard Sav. Bank, 123 Iowa, 413, 98 N. W. 1025.

83. Stallcup v. Cronley's Trustees, 25 Ky. L. R. 1675, 78 S. W. 441.

84. Acquires nothing if the remainder never vests. Smith v. Smith, 25 Ky. L. R. 1960, 79 S. W. 223.

85. Land assigned as dower. Rusk v. Hill [Ga.] 49 S. E. 261.

86. Helms v. Helms [N. C.] 49 S. E. 110.

87. P. L., 503. In re Smith's Estate, 207 Pa. 604, 57 A. 37. Under Code 1887, § 2616, authorizing guardians to procure a sale of real estate of an incompetent whether or not there be limited thereon any other estate, equity may order a sale not only of a life estate of an incompetent but also any estate vested or contingent, limited to other incompetents. Rhea v. Shields [Va.] 49 S. E. 70. See Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. [Va.] 652, 98 Am. Dec. 698, for full discussion. Under Gen. St. p. 2992, providing for the sale of land free from contingent remainders limited to persons not in esse, an specific titles the various special limitations on particular kinds of actions and obligations,[88] and on those proceedings which do not fall within the general meaning given to the terms "actions" and "suits."[89] Limitations on a statutory liability where the statute prescribes the period within which the actions must be brought[90] are not, strictly speaking, statutes of limitations, and are treated in titles pertaining thereto. The doctrine of laches is treated in the title Equity.[91]

§ 1. Statutes of limitation, validity, interpretation and law governing.[92]—It is within legislative power to fix limitations on actions subject to the constitutional guaranties of property contracts and vested rights,[93] and if retroactive legislation is allowable, to provide that existing causes of action shall be barred unless brought within the period prescribed,[94] or to cut down[95] or extend[96] the presently prescribed period with respect to existing causes. A state may prescribe a limitation for actions on foreign judgments different from that prescribed for actions on domestic judgments.[97] A limitation may be specially prescribed for actions on written instruments executed outside the state.[98] The operation of the statute may be suspended as to a class.[99] There is a conflict of authority as to whether a barred obligation can be revived by statute.[1]

Statutes of limitation are statutes of repose, not of cancellation or payment.[2] They affect the remedy, not the right,[3] and apply to actions, not to defenses.[4] The general statutes are applied generally and in all cases where ex-estate to "A" for life, to "B" his wife for life, remainder to their children is a future estate, limited in part to persons not in esse, though the first life tenant has attained the age of 68 years. In re Clement [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 724.

88. See Estates of Decedents, § 6 B (statutes of nonclaim) 3 Curr. L. 1270; Bankruptcy, § 14 (statutes of nonclaim) 3 Curr. L. 434; Corporations, § 16 (stockholder's liability) 3 Curr. L. 935; Death by Wrongful Act, 3 Curr. L. 1042.

89. See Appeal and Review, 3 Curr. L. 167; New Trial and Arrest of Judgment, 2 Curr. L. 1037, and similar titles.

90. See Death by Wrongful Act, 3 Curr. L. 1034; Corporations, 3 Curr. L. 880; Estates of Decedents, 3 Curr. L. 1238.

91. See Equity, 3 Curr. L. 1210.

92. See 2 Curr. L. 746. See, also, Adverse Possession, 3 Curr. L. 51.

93. Edelstein v. Carlile [Colo.] 78 P. 680. See, generally, Constitutional Law, 3 Curr. L. 730.

94. Congress legislating for the District of Columbia. Givin v. Brown, 21 App. D. C. 295. See, also, Town of Koshkonong v. Burton, 104 U. S. 668, 26 Law. Ed. 886.

95. 21 James I, ch. 16, giving a person under disability the right to sue within 10 years after the disability was removed was repealed by Code D. C., § 1265, limiting such period to five years. Gwin v. Brown, 21 App. D. C. 295.

96. A statute may be changed to extend the period of a right already accrued and take away the allowance for absence from the state [Mont. Code Civ. Proc. § 554]. Davis v. Mills, 194 U. S. 451, 48 Law. Ed. 1067. The four-year limitation provided by Comp. Laws 1888, § 3143, was extended to six years by Rev. St. 1898, § 2484. Guthiel v. Gilmer, 27 Utah, 496, 76 P. 628.

97. The only limitation on this power is that a reasonable time must be allowed. Lamb v. Powder River Live Stock Co. [C. C. A.] 132 F. 434.

98. A provision that actions must be maintained within two years is not unconstitutional. Not as an interference with interstate commerce nor as a violation of the privileges and immunities granted to the citizens of the several states nor as a denial of equal protection of the laws [Code Civ. Proc. § 339, subd. 1]. Higgins v. Graham, 143 Cal. 131, 76 P. 898.

99. Ky. St. 1903, § 2525, does not run against married women during coverture regardless of their ability to maintain action during such period. Terrell v. Maupin [Ky.] 83 S. W. 591.

1. The right to defeat a debt by a plea of the statute is neither a vested nor a property right, and may be taken away by the legislature. Orman v. Van Arsdell [N. M.] 78 P. 48. After the bar of the statute is complete, the cause of action cannot be revived by legislative action. Edelstein v. Carlile [Colo.] 78 P. 680.

2. A barred vendor's lien will not be canceled as cloud on title. Cassell v. Lowry [Ind.] 72 N. E. 640. Limitations will not perfect title to land in one not in possession. Row v. Johnston, 25 Ky. L. R. 1799, 78 S. W. 906.

3. Ex parte Smith, 134 N. C. 495, 47 S. E. 16. Fraud may be set up as a defense though an action based thereon is barred. Jackson v. Martin [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 603. A deed omitted the recital that the grantee assumed a mortgage. Held, the fact that an action to reform the deed was barred was no defense to an action on the mortgage. Fender v. Hazeltine [Mo. App.] 79 S. W. 1018.

4. To an action on a note defendant set up discharge in bankruptcy. Plaintiff replied to this discharge that the note was procured by fraud, therefore was unaffected by the discharge. The defendant then set up limitations. Held, the rejoinder did not ception to their operation is not specifically made.[5] The enumeration of specific exceptions by implication excludes all others.[6] Special statutes control general ones.[7]

If it was so intended[8] and a reasonable time within which to bring action is allowed to those whose demands have accrued,[9] a retroactive operation will be given them. But following the usual construction statutes of limitation will not be given a retrospective effect unless the legislature so intended and such intention is unequivocally expressed.[10] What is a reasonable time is a legislative question and the wisdom of its decision will not be inquired into unless the period allowed is manifestly insufficient.[11] A limitation is unreasonable which does not afford full opportunity for the enforcement of the rights upon which it operates.[12] state a defense. Louisville Banking Co. v. Buchanan, 25 Ky. L. R. 2167, 80 S. W. 193. Where, in an action on a note, the defendant set up that he had delivered lumber to the plaintiff in part payment, the defense was not barred, though an action to recover for the lumber or set up its delivery as a counterclaim would be barred. Blackshear v. Dekle [Ga.] 48 S. E. 311.

5. Though under Code Civ. Proc. § 1569, limitations do not run against a claim against the estate of a decedent pending proceedings for the settlement of the estate, held, where a homestead was mortgaged and the husband died and the widow conveyed her interest, limitations did not cease to run in favor of the wife's grantee as against foreclosure because of the fact that the claim had been presented. Vandall v. Teague, 142 Cal. 471, 76 P. 35.

6. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Atchison Grain Co., 68 Kan. 585, 75 P. 1051.

NOTE. Concealment of a cause of action must be made an exception to the statute, otherwise it will not suspend the operation, however harsh or inequitable the enforcement may be. Fee's Adm'r v. Fee, 10 Ohio, 469, 36 Am. Dec. 103; Lathrop v. Shellbaker, 6 Ohio St. 276; Howk v. Minnick, 19 Ohio St. 462, 2 Am. Rep. 413; Smith v. Bishop, 9 Vt. 110, 31 Am. Dec. 607; Peak v. Buck, 3 Baxt. [Tenn.] 71; Troup v. Smith's Ex'rs, 20 Johns. [N. Y.] 33; Allen v. Mille, 17 Wend. [N. Y.] 202; Exhorn v. Exhorn, 37 N. Y. S. 68; Miller v. Wood, 116 N. Y. 351; Board of Chosen Freeholders v. Veghte, 44 N. J. Law, 509; Mast v. Easton, 33 Minn. 161, 22 N. W. 253; Jacobs v. Frederick, 81 Wis. 254; Blount v. Parker, 78 N. C. 128; Wood on Limitations [3rd Ed.] § 274. See Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Atchison Grain Co., 68 Kan. 585, 75 P. 1051.

7. An action for dower under Code Civ. Proc. § 1596 unaffected by the General Statutes. Wetyen v. Fick, 178 N. Y. 223, 70 N. E. 497.

8. Act Colo. April 29, 1895, as amended by Act April 6, 1899, being a re-enactment of a prior statute which it repealed, was intended to operate on judgments rendered prior to its passage. Lamb v. Powder River Live Stock Co. [C. C. A.] 132 F. 434. Act March 14, 1903, construed to be retrospective in its operation. Orman v. Van Arsdell [N. M.] 78 P. 48.

9. Gwin v. Brown, 21 App. D. C. 295; Edelstein v. Carlile [Colo.] 78 P. 680; Lamb v. Powder River Live Stock Co. [C. C. A.] 132 F. 434.

10. Edelstein v. Carlile [Colo.] 78 P. 680; Curtis v. Boquillas Land & Cattle Co. [Ariz.] 76 P. 612. Acts 1895, ch. 4375, p. 14, providing that a new promise to be effective must be in writing and signed, has no application to a promise made before the passage of the act. Vinson v. Palmer [Fla.] 34 So. 276. Rev. St. 1901, par. 2938, being the first legislation limiting the period within which actions for the recovery of real estate must be brought, has no application to an action commenced before the statute took effect. Curtis v. Boquillas Land & Cattle Co. [Ariz.] 76 P. 612. The provision in Rev. St. 1901, pars. 2974, 4243, providing that where the limitation prescribed in a repealed act had begun to run the time should be deemed a part of the period prescribed in the new statute, applies only to repealed statutes and not to new legislation where none had previously existed. Id. Mills' Ann. St. § 2923, providing that an action for the recovery of land must be brought within 20 years after the right of action accrues, is prospective. Edelstein v. Carlile [Colo.] 78 P. 680.

11. Whether it is manifestly insufficient is a question of law. Gwin v. Brown, 21 App. D. C. 295.

NOTE. Periods held reasonable: In Terry v. Anderson, 95 U. S. 628, 24 Law. Ed. 365, nine and one-half months; Vance v. Vance, 108 U. S. 245, 27 Law. Ed. 808, eight and one-half months; Wheeler v. Jackson, 137 U. S. 245, 34 Law. Ed. 659, six months; Turner v. New York, 168 U. S. 90, 42 Law. Ed. 392, six months; Stine v. Bennett, 13 Minn. 153, four and one-half months; Russell v. Akley Lumber Co., 45 Minn. 376, six months; Bigelow v. Bemis, 2 Allen [Mass.] 496, five months; Smith v. Packard, 12 Wis. 371, eight and one-half months; Horback v. Miller, 4 Neb. 31, four and one-half months; Myers v. Wheelock, 60 Kan. 747, six months; Power v. Kitching, 10 N. D. 254, 88 Am. St. Rep. 691, seven months. But in McGahey v. Virginia, 135 U. S. 662, 34 Law. Ed. 304, a limitation of one year was held unreasonable and in Berry v. Ransdall, 4 Metc. [Ky.] 292, the same was held of a limitation of thirty days. In Bank v. Braithwaite, 7 N. D. 358, 66 Am. St. Rep. 653, it was doubted whether three and one-half months was a reasonable time, but thirteen months was held reasonable. See Lamb v. Powder River Live Stock Co. [C. C. A.] 132 F. 434.

12. Act Colo. April 29, 1895, as amended by Act April 6, 1899, prescribing a general limitation of six years for actions on for-

The statute is a positive rule of law and must be enforced when applicable,[13] regardless of seeming harshness or unwisdom[14] if properly invoked,[15] and not otherwise.[16] An equitable reason for granting relief from the bar will not be considered at law.[17]

Admiralty[18] and equity, in the absence of exceptional circumstances, usually act in analogy to the statute;[19] but they are not bound by it and will not follow it where conditions render it inequitable,[20] except in cases of concurrent jurisdiction,[21] and under a system where there is but one form of action and the statute is directed to the substance not to the forum.[22]

Limitation is governed by the law of the forum;[23] but where a statute creates a liability and annexes a limitation thereto, such limitation will follow the right wherever the cause is sued upon,[24] and the fact that the limitation is contained in a different statute is immaterial, provided it is directed at the newly created liability.[25] A law applying the lex loci to foreign causes will bar a suit eign judgments and also declaring that if the judgment be based on a cause which accrued more than six years prior to the action on such judgment, the action, if against a bona fide resident, must be commenced within three months after rendition of the judgment sued on, is unreasonable. Lamb v. Powder River Live Stock Co. [C. C. A.] 132 F. 434.

13. Adams v. Hopkins, 144 Cal. 19, 77 P. 712. Where the defendant procured an injunction under Rev. Code 1899, § 5845 against the foreclosure of a mortgage under a power of sale contained therein, he is not estopped thereby to plead the bar of the statute against an action to foreclose. Feigen v. Drake [N. D.] 101 N. W. 893. A judgment establishing the validity of a mortgage rendered in an action to quiet title is not res adjudicata against a plea of the statute interposed in a subsequent action between the same parties to foreclose the same mortgage, where it does not appear that the conditions were such that the statute could not have been made available as a defense to the former action. Id. In the prescription liberandi causa, the question of good or bad faith plays no part. Munholland v. Fakes, 111 La. 931, 35 So. 983.

14. A court in its instructions is not required to comment on the wisdom and beneficence of the statute. Nelson v. Brisbin [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1057.

15. A debtor is under no obligation to call his creditors' attention to the statute. Paul v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 801.

16. Adams v. Hopkins, 144 Cal. 19, 77 P. 712.

17. Paul v. Fidelity & Casualty Ins. Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 801.

18. The fact that pending a suit in rem to recover for breach of contract of affreightment the damages sustained by libellant have increased to a sum in excess of the stipulation given for the release of the vessel is not such an exceptional circumstance as will permit an amendment of the libel to bring in the ship owner and add a new cause of action. The Southwark, 128 F. 149.

19. See Equity, 3 Curr. L. 1210. Federal court of equity. Stevens v. Grand Central Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 28. Accounting by stockholders against the directors of a corporation may extend back over six years from the time of bringing suit. Barry v. Moeller [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 97. Where a demand ordinarily cognizable at law is because of special conditions enforceable only in equity, limitations will be applied in the same way as at law, either in obedience to the statute or by analogy. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Darling, 21 App. D. C. 132. Laches is not charged against a party for failure to bring an action on an equitable claim if he acts within the time allowed by the statute. Michigan Trust Co. v. Red Cloud, 3 Neb. Unoff. 722, 92 N. W. 900.

20. In this case the Utah statute was not followed. Stevens v. Grand Central Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 28. Statutes of limitation as such are not enforced by courts of admiralty. The Southwark, 128 F. 149.

21. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Darling, 21 App. D. C. 132. If an action is barred at law, it is barred in equity. Tucker v. Linn [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 1017.

22. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 294, prescribing a 10-year limitation for actions on notes, bars an action to enforce a vendor's lien incident to the note. Cassell v. Lowry [Ind.] 72 N. E. 640.

23. The courts of one state will not as a matter of comity enforce a contract made in another state as to the time when suit shall be brought. Adams Exp. Co. v. Walker [Ky.] 83 S. W. 106. See 2 Curr. L. 747, n. 96.

See, generally, Conflict of Laws, 3 Curr. L. 720.

24. Mont. Code Civ. Proc. § 554, providing that an action against directors of a corporation to recover a penalty or enforce a liability created by law must be brought within three years, may be availed of by a defendant in another state. Davis v. Mills, 194 U. S. 451, 48 Law. Ed. 1067. A liability created by a statute which prescribes the time within which action must be brought will not be enforced in another state after the expiration of such period. Ross v. Kansas City S. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 626. Action for wrongful death. Negaubauer v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 99 N. W. 620.

25. The fact that the limitation is contained in the same section is material only against a corporation foreign to the lex loci where, however, it was at all times suable and could sue there.[26] Federal courts follow the statute of the state in which the action is tried.[27]

§ 2. Period of limitation.[28]—The various periods of limitation are entirely dependent on statutes, which usually prescribe times for the general classes of actions known as actions involving title to[29] or the rents and profits of, realty;[30] actions on contract;[31] sometimes specially on written contracts[32] and specialties;[33] liabilities arising out of contract;[34] actions for tort;[35] actions for usury;[36] ac-

as bearing on construction. Davis v. Mills, 194 U. S. 451, 48 Law. Ed. 1067.

26. Hence transitory cause of action running four years in Nebraska was barred there, though it run only over the two years prescribed in Iowa, where it arose. Taylor v. Union Pac. R. Co., 123 F. 155.

27. Green v. Barrett, 123 F. 349.

28. See 2 Curr. L. 747.

29. See Adverse Possession, 3 Curr. L. 51. An action to determine title to one-half cubic foot per second of water claimed under a deed is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 318. Five years. South Tule Independent Ditch Co. v. King, 144 Cal. 450, 77 P. 1032. An action for breach of covenant running with the land is governed by the 20-year statute, not the 6-year. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. McEwen [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 926. An action to set aside a tax deed because the land was purchased at a tax sale by the agent of the delinquent owner relative to the land is barred after five years [Code, § 1448]. Bemis v. Plato, 119 Iowa, 127, 93 N. W. 83. The nullity of a sale made by the wife in payment of her husband's debts is cured by the prescription of five years, dating from the dissolution of the marriage or the majority of the heir of the wife. Munholland v. Fakes, 111 La. 931, 35 So. 983. Five-year statute does not apply to actions concerning real estate [Code Civ. Proc. § 518]. Grogan v. Valley Trading Co. [Mont.] 76 P. 211. Code Civ. Proc. § 1499, requiring an action to recover not more than six inches of realty upon which the wall of a building stands to be maintained within a year, applies only to boundary walls where each adjoiner has erected a building, not to a wall erected by one. Bergman v. Kelin, 97 App. Div. 15, 89 N. Y. S. 624. One in possession under a decree for specific performance of a contract and partition, and with no reason to believe his title would be questioned, cannot be deprived of his title by the rule of limitation applicable to suits for specific performance. Logan v. Robertson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 395. Right to enforce a railroad mortgage held barred under the Wisconsin 10-year statute. Defendants had occupied the road adversely to the mortgagee. Gunnison v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 130 F. 259.

30. Not more than three years' rent can be recovered in ejectment [Sand. & H. Dig. § 2592]. Shirey v. Clark [Ark.] 81 S. W. 1057.

31. Breach of contract to pay for support must be brought within five years. Whitley v. Whitley's Adm'r [Ky.] 80 S. W. 825. Claim against a parent for services rendered his minor child is barred after five years. Barnett's Adm'r v. Adams [Ky.] 82 S. W. 406. Claim for services held barred. Rodgers v. Lamb's Estate [Mich.] 100 N. W. 440. An action for damages for failure to record a mortgage left with a person where no fraud is set up is within the six-year statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 382, subd. 2]. Crowley v. Johnston, 96 App. Div. 319, 89 N. Y. S. 258. An action on a common-law bond is within the provision of Code, § 155, providing that an action upon a contract, obligation, or liability arising out of contract must be commenced within three years. Jackson v. Martin, 136 N. C. 196, 48 S. E. 672. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4800, subd. 3, limiting actions on contract or liability, express or implied, not in writing or which does not arise out of any written instrument, applies only to actions arising out of contractual liability. Suter v. Wenatchee Water Power Co., 35 Wash. 1, 76 P. 298.

32. Ky. St. § 2515, providing the period of limitations for actions created by statute, does not apply to a contract between a city and a contractor for a street improvement, whereby the city agreed in writing to pay for so much of the cost as was not collectible from abutting owners. City of Louisville v. McNaughton, 24 Ky. L. R. 1153, 70 S. W. 841. A note given a bank in payment of a debt and interest thereon is not discounted, so as to be placed on a footing with foreign bills of exchange and within the operation of the five-year statute. Bramblette v. Deposit Bank, 25 Ky. L. R. 1850, 79 S. W. 193. A wife signed a note expecting her husband to sign as principal. He did not sign, but delivered the note in payment of four other notes previously executed by him. Held, she was a principal and St. 1903, § 2514 applied and not the section relative to actions against sureties. Deering & Co. v. Veal, 25 Ky. L. R. 1809, 78 S. W. 886. A deed reciting a consideration which it is shown by parol was not paid is a promise in writing on the part of the grantee to pay it. Fowlkes v. Lea [Miss.] 36 So. 1036. Statute relative to an unwritten contract express or implied does not apply. Id. Comp. St. § 41, as amended by Sess. Laws 1889, p. 172, provides that an action on a liability founded on a written instrument must be commenced within eight years. Held, an action to enforce a liability evidenced by a declaration of trust commenced within eight years after a certain payment was commenced in time. Goodell v. Sanford [Mont.] 77 P. 522.

33. In New York a contract under seal is not governed by the six-year statute. City of New York v. Third Ave. R. Co., 42 Misc. 599, 87 N. Y. S. 584.

34. Where a tenant's servant was injured by reason of the landlord's failure to repair premises as he had agreed to do and the tenant was held liable to the servant, his action against the landlord was not based tions on a liability created by statute;[37] actions on a judgment;[38] and an omnibus section covering all actions not specifically provided for.[39] Parties to a contract may by the terms thereof limit the period within which an action must be brought.[40] In Kentucky, however, such a limitation is void as an attempt to vary the statute.[41]

In New York the day on which the cause accrued is included,[42] as is the last day, though it fall on Sunday.[43]

§ 3. Disability and exceptions. A. Trusts.[44]—The statute does not run in favor of the trustee of an express[45] or continuing trust[46] until repudiation thereof on personal injury, but was one arising out of breach of contract to which the five-year statute was applicable. Altsheler v. Conrad [Ky.] 82 S. W. 257. In Kentucky, proceedings for the assessment of land which the owner failed to list must be brought within five years. Falls Branch Jellico Land & Imp. Co. v. Com. [Ky.] 83 S. W. 108. An action for wrongful ejection from a street car without force is not an action for assault and battery within Rev. St. 1899, § 4275, limiting the right to bring actions for assault and battery to two years. Summerfield v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 172. Under Const. art. 7, § 6, providing that no person acting on behalf of the state shall allow any claim which as between citizens would be barred, a transfer tax illegally assessed need not be refunded. In re Hoople's Estate [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 229. Action for fraud in inducing parties to lease a cotton press is governed by the four-year statute. American Cotton Co. v. Frank Heierman & Bro. [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 845.

35. Trespass: An action against a city for damages resulting from the fact that the city engineer gave a property owner an erroneous statement as to the grade of a street in reliance upon which he built is barred in six years. Moore v. Lancaster [Pa.] 58 A. 890. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4800, limiting the time within which an action for trespass must be brought, governs only such actions as were trespass at common law. Suter v. Wenatchee Water Power Co., 35 Wash. 1, 76 P. 298. Action for negligent construction and maintenance of an irrigation canal from which water overflowed plaintiff's land is not within its purview. Id.

Negligence: The five-year statute is applicable to an action by a receiver for negligence of directors in managing a bank. Stone v. Rottman [Mo.] 82 S. W. 76.

Action for libel: Under Mills' Ann. St. § 2901, must be commenced within one year. Complaint showed on its face that the cause accrued more than one year prior. Evans v. Republican Pub. Co. [Colo. App.] 78 P. 311.

36. One year in Kentucky. Burnside v. Mealer [Ky.] 80 S. W. 785. One year in Louisiana. Dannenmann v. Charlton [La.] 36 So. 965.

37. The individual liability of a stockholder for corporate indebtedness is within Code Civ. Proc. § 338, requiring an action to be brought within three years. Jones v. Goldtree Bros. Co., 142 Cal. 383, 77 P. 939. An action for an accounting to require an executor to set apart exempt property from the estate of a decedent is to enforce a liability created by statute, and is barred after six years. In re Campbell's Estate, 96 App. Div. 561, 89 N. Y. S. 569. The 10-year statute applicable to equitable actions does not apply. Id.

In South Dakota: An action under Rev. Code Civ. Proc. § 807, by the mother of a bastard child to compel the father to support it is not for a penalty barred after two years, but may be maintained within six years. State v. Patterson [S. D.] 100 N. W. 162.

38. The Nebraska General Statute of Limitations, §§ 10, 16. Four years does not apply to actions on domestic judgments. Snell v. Rue [Neb.] 101 N. W. 10. A bill to impeach for fraud a decree discharging a guardian, though not within the terms of the statute which bars a bill of review, is by analogy governed by the same limitations. Willis v. Rice [Ala.] 37 So. 507.

39. Action for negligent construction of an irrigation canal, lawfully built, from which water overflowed adjoining land, is within Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4805. Suter v. Wenatchee Water Power Co., 35 Wash. 1, 76 P. 298.

40. In Marshalltown Stone Co. v. Louis Drach Const. Co., 123 F. 746, a six-months limitation was held reasonable. In Southern Exp. Co. v. Caldwell, 21 Wall. [U. S.] 264, 22 Law. Ed. 556, 90 days was held a reasonable limitation.

41. Adams Exp. Co. v. Walker [Ky.] 83 S. W. 106. The rule which forbids common carriers to contract away liability for negligence precludes them from limiting the time within which an action must be brought. Id.

42. Under Code, §§ 380, 383, the day on which the cause of action accrued is included in reckoning the period. Benoit v. New York, etc., R. Co., 94 App. Div. 24, 87 N. Y. S. 951.

43. Benoit v. New York, etc., R. Co., 94 App. Div. 24, 87 N. Y. S. 951.

44. See 2 Curr. L. 750.

45. Potter v. Kimball [Mass.] 71 N. E. 308. A trustee cannot continue as such, and whenever he makes a sale of trust property repudiate his trust as to the proceeds. Felkner v. Dooly, 27 Utah, 350, 75 P. 854. If the period for redemption of a pledge is not limited by contract, the right continues in the pledgor during his lifetime and descends to his heirs. White River Sav. Bank v. Capital Sav. Bank & Trust Co. [Vt.] 59 A. 197. Where immediately after a pledge of corporate stock the pledgor notified the corporation thereof, limitations did not run as against the pledgee's right to enforce his pledge in favor of the corporation which acquired a subsequent lien. Id. Swamp by the trustee,[47] and notice to the beneficiary[48] or until the trust relation is dissolved,[49] or terminated by statute.[50] The statute runs against an action to enforce a constructive trust from the date of notice.[51] If an action by a trustee is barred, the right of the beneficiary is also gone, though he may have been under disability when the cause accrued,[52] providing the trustee is vested with the legal title.[53]

(§ 3) B. Insanity and death.[54]—Limitations do not run against insane persons until the disability is removed.[55] The death of a debtor does not suspend the operation of the statute.[56] In Arkansas the death of a debtor causes a substitution of statutes.[57]

(§ 3) C. Infancy and coverture.[58]—The statute does not run against infants,[59] but an infant may be barred by the bar against his trustee or representative.[60] In many states statutes provide a period within which an action may be land funds held by the state for the benefit of purchasers who have expended a certain amount to reclaim land. Miller v. Batz, 142 Cal. 447, 76 P. 42. Locative interest of land held in trust. Logan v. Robertson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 395.

46. An executor who took possession of the personal property of the testator. In re Meyer's Estate, 98 App. Div. 7, 90 N. Y. S. 185. The statute does not run against a right of action in a guardian and administrator of an insane person against the decedent's estate until the relation is terminated. Cauthen v. Cauthen [S. C.] 49 S. E. 321. Debt due a decedent from an executrix. Sprague v. Walton [Cal.] 78 P. 645.

47. An executor in order to defeat a proceeding to compel him to account on the ground of limitations must allege that limitations have run since he repudiated his trust. In re Meyer's Estate, 98 App. Div. 7, 90 N. Y. S. 185. Where he denies the trust and the beneficiary has notice of such repudiation. Felkner v. Dooly [Utah] 78 P. 365.

48. Barnett v. Barnett [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 537.

49. A trustee took an assignment of a bond and mortgage to enable him to raise funds for the mortgagee and account to him. After such accounting, the trust relation was at an end and limitation commenced to run in favor of the trustee. Hayes v. Walker [S. C.] 48 S. E. 989.

50. Code, §§ 1402, 1488, provides that an action may be maintained against an executor or administrator any time after two years from qualification. Held, limitations commenced from that date. Edwards v. Lemmond, 136 N. C. 329, 48 S. E. 737.

51. Money received by one which belongs to another. Bridgens v. West [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 417. An admission that one has received money which belongs to another does not change a constructive trust into a continuing one. Id. One who had not the legal title to real estate devised it to one for life, remainder over. The life tenant thereafter acquired the legal title. Held, he became a constructive trustee and limitations began to run in his favor from that date. Commonwealth v. Clark [Ky.] 83 S. W. 100. His recording of the deed was notice to the remaindermen that he repudiated their claim. Id.

52. Wiess v. Goodhue [Tex.] 83 S. W. 178 If an action by trustees holding the legal title is barred as to them, it is barred as to beneficiaries. Brown v. Doherty, 93 App. Div. 190, 87 N. Y. S. 563.

53. A testatrix devised the fee of land to her children and appointed her husband executor and trustee to partition the land among them in his discretion. Held, though an action by the trustee to recover land held adversely was barred, the statute did not run against the children during minority. Wiess v. Goodhue [Tex.] 83 S. W. 178.

54. See 2 Curr. L. 750.

55. In Georgia a woman who is insane at the time of her husband's death may apply for dower at any time within seven years after the disability is removed. La Grange Mills v. Kener [Ga.] 49 S. E. 300.

56. Cause of action accruing on note during lifetime of holder, the statute of limitations begins to run from that date, and the death of the holder and failure to appoint an administrator of his estate does not suspend it. Tobias v. Richardson, 5 Ohio C. C. [N. S.] 74.

57. The statute applicable to the debt ceases and is succeeded by the two-year statute of nonclaim which runs from grant of letters of administration. Ross v. Frick Co. [Ark.] 83 S. W. 343.

58. See 2 Curr. L. 751.

59. Testatrix devised real property to her children. She constituted her husband trustee with power to execute deeds to the children when in his discretion the estate should be delivered to them. Held, the children were vested with the legal title and limitations did not run against an action to recover it during their minority. Wiess v. Goodhue [Tex.] 83 S. W. 178. Under Code, § 3453, limitations do not run against an infant, except for penalties and forfeitures until one year after majority. Rice v. Bolton [Iowa] 100 N. W. 634. Bill to set aside a judgment may be brought within two years after the majority of a plaintiff who was a minor when his right of action accrued. Ferguson v. Morrison [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 1240. Under Ky. St. 1903, §§ 2521, 2550, an infant nonresident distributee at date of distribution may enforce his right to a distributive share by an action on the executor's official bond within five years after attaining majority. Smith v. Hardesty [Ky.] 83 S. W. 646.

60. Brown v. Doherty, 93 App. Div. 190, 87 N. Y. S. 563; Wiess v. Goodhue [Tex.] 83 S. W. 178.

brought after majority is attained,[61] and if the action is not brought within such period, it is barred.[62]

The statute does not run against married women during coverture.[63] In Kentucky their right to maintain an action is immaterial.[64] The statute does not operate as between husband and wife.[65]

(§ 3) D. Absence and nonresidence.[66]—Generally speaking, the statute is tolled during nonresidence[67] or absence of defendant from the state,[68] no matter how long continued,[69] providing such nonresidence precludes the bringing of the action.[70] In some states the absence must be continuous and exceed a prescribed

61. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 297, providing that a cause of action accruing to a person under legal disability may be maintained within two years after the disability is removed. Bryson v. Collmer [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 229. In Alabama the bar of the statute is not effective against minors until three years after disability is removed. Bradford v. Wilson [Ala.] 37 So. 295. Land owned in common by infants and adults was sold for less than its value to one of the adults and the proceeds partitioned. The infants were represented by guardian ad litem. Held, within one year after attaining majority the infants could have their portion of the land set aside to them on returning the money received [Civ. Code Proc. §§ 391. 518]. Taylor v. Webber [Ky.] 83 S. W. 567. Where land of infants was wrongfully sold to innocent purchasers, an action to recover the proceeds brought within two years after the eldest infant attains majority is timely. Schneider v. Sellers [Tex.] 84 S. W. 417.

62. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 388, providing that an action not otherwise provided for must be brought within ten years from the time the cause accrued, and § 396, providing that time of disability is not a part of the time limited but that the period cannot be extended more than one year after disability ceases, a cause of action in an infant against his guardian arising from constructive fraud is barred one year after the infant attains majority. Cahill v. Seitz, 93 App. Div. 105, 86 N. Y. S. 1009. Under Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, p. 2620, an infant must sue within 2 years after attaining majority. Mason v. Odum, 210 Ill. 471, 71 N. E. 386. Where a deed executed by one of several executors was void but the grantee went into possession thereunder, limitations commenced to run against the executors and against infant beneficiaries at that date, and where such infants did not bring action within 10 years after attaining majority (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 365, 375), their action was barred. Brown v. Doherty, 93 App. Div. 190, 87 N. Y. S. 563. The doctrine that one under disability is entitled to a reasonable time after the disability is removed to disaffirm or ratify his acts does not give him a period other than that provided by the statute for maintaining an action. Cahill v. Seitz, 93 App. Div. 105, 86 N. Y. S. 1009.

63. Where married women executed a deed which was void because their husbands did not join, limitations did not run against them during coverture. Furnish's Adm'r v. Lilly [Ky.] 84 S. W. 734. Limitations do not run against a wife's estate in her husband's land during coverture. Waldron v. Harvey, 54 W. Va. 608, 46 S. E. 603. Coverture is good answer to the plea of limitations. Schmidt v. Brittain [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 677. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 3352, limitations run against married women after they attain majority. Their disability to continue until one year after the passage of the act which went into effect August 1, 1895. Held, an action commenced in 1902 by a married woman 60 years of age was barred. Broom v. Pearson [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 753. An action commenced in 1902 by the heirs of a married woman who would, had she lived been 56 years old is barred. Id.

64. Ky. St. 1903, § 2525. Ferrell v. Maupin [Ky.] 83 S. W. 591.

65. Collins v. Babbitt [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 481. Statute of limitations does not begin to run in favor of husband until death of wife as to an action to recover her land occupied by them in common. Snyder v. Elliott, 171 Mo. 362, 71 S. W. 826.

66. See 2 Curr. L. 751.

67. Under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 298, property fraudulently conveyed to a nonresident may be subjected to the satisfaction of a personal judgment against the grantor procured more than six years before. Balph v. Magaw [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 188. Where the evidence as to the residence of a defendant in the state was conflicting, the issue should have been submitted. Eldredge v. Mathews, 93 App. Div. 356, 87 N. Y. S. 652. Conflicting evidence held to show that after the cause of action accrued the defendant moved from the state. Under Civ. Code 1895, § 3783, the operation of the statute was suspended during his absence. Simpson v. Wicker, 120 Ga. 418, 47 S. E. 965. Gen. St. 1894, §§ 5145, 5146, construed and held that the first applies to actions, the subject-matter of which arises or originates in this state and the debtor is out of the state when the cause accrues or subsequently departs; the second section applies to actions, the subject-matter of which arises out of the state. Powers Mercantile Co. v. Biethen, 91 Minn. 339, 97 N. W. 1056.

68. Where one purchased land with funds belonging to another, took title in his own name and left the state, limitations against an action to declare a resulting trust did not run while he was absent [Rev. St. 1899, § 4282]. McMurray v. McMurray, 180 Mo. 526, 79 S. W. 701.

69. Though he remains away more than the full period of limitation. Bemis v. Ward [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 291.

70. Under Code, § 1597, an action for dower may be maintained against the occupant or person exercising ownership. Held, limitations are not suspended because of nonresidence of the life tenant and owner of period,[71] but a change of residence is not necessary.[72] A statute which suspends the operation during temporary absence does not apply to one who has never been a resident[73] In Wisconsin[74] nonresidence may be taken advantage of by a foreign corporation. A different rule prevails in New York.[75] In Nebraska and Iowa,[76] but not in Kansas,[77] they may avail of limitations.

§ 4. Accrual of cause of action. In general.[78]—A cause of action[79] accrues where there exists a demand capable of present enforcement, a suable party against the fee. Wetyen v. Fick, 178 N. Y. 223, 70 N. E. 497.

71. Code Civ. Proc. § 401, suspends the statute during the time of a continuous absence from the state of over a year's duration. Miller v. Warren, 94 App. Div. 192, 87 N. Y. S. 1011.

72. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 3367, the statute is suspended whenever the defendant is absent from the state on business or pleasure. Bemis v. Ward [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 291.

73. A note payable in Minnesota was executed in New York by a resident of that state who before it came due moved to New South Wales, where the note was outlawed by the laws of that country. Held, not being a resident of Minnesota at any time, the note is not enforceable against him while temporarily within this state. Drake v. Bigelow [Minn.] 100 N. W. 664. This opinion does not conflict with Powers Mercantile Co. v. Blethen, 91 Minn. 339, 97 N. W. 1056.

74. Rev. St. 1898, §§ 4222, 4223, suspending the statute while a defendant is absent from the state, may be taken advantage of by a foreign corporation under § 3207, giving it a right to sue. Weyburn & Briggs Co. v. Bemis [Wis.] 99 N. W. 1050.

75. Where a domestic corporation assumed the indebtedness of a foreign corporation, limitations commenced only from the date of assumption. Gray Lithograph Co. v. American Watchman's Time Detector Co., 44 Misc. 206, 88 N. Y. S. 857. Stockholders of a foreign corporation are, however, suable on their liability. Platt v. Wilmot, 193 U. S. 602, 48 Law. Ed. 809.

76. Taylor v. Union Pac. R. Co., 123 F. 155.

77. Williams v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 68 Kan. 17, 74 P. 600.

78. See 2 Curr. L. 751.

79. See Causes of Action and Defenses, 3 Curr. L. 663. An insurance policy provided that action thereon must be maintained within one year from loss; that in case of disagreement the loss should be submitted to arbitration; that the company should not be deemed to have waived any provision by any act relating to appraisement. Held, where without fault of the insured the appraisers failed to agree within a year, his right of action was not barred. Fritz v. British America Assur. Co., 208 Pa. 268, 57 A. 573; Tobias v. Richardson, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 74. Under the Oregon Boat Lien Law, limiting the commencement of an action to one year after the cause of action shall have accrued, limitations run from the expiration of the credit allowed, not from the furnishing of the material. Barstow v. The Aurelia [Or.] 77 P. 835. A father executed a deed to his son. The son without recording it returned it to his father. Held, the right to have the deed canceled did not accrue until the son several years later secretly obtained possession of it and had it recorded. Arnold's Heirs v. Arnold [Ky.] 82 S. W. 606. Limitations run against a cause of action for money had and received from the date of receipt. Murphy v. Omaha, 1 Neb. Unoff. 488, 95 N. W. 680. Money belonging to one school district erroneously paid by the county treasurer to another. This is not a payment under mistake. Independent School Dist. of Union v. Independent School Dist., 123 Iowa, 455, 99 N. W. 106.

Ejectment will not lie until the boundaries of land can be determined; therefore not as to public domain until survey. Suksdorf v. Humphrey [Wash.] 77 P. 1071. Where only one of several executors signed a deed and the grantee went into possession, limitations commenced to run against a right of action in ejectment from that date [Code Civ. Proc. § 415]. Brown v. Doherty, 93 App. Div. 190, 87 N. Y. S. 563. A right of action for unlawful levy accrues at the date the judgment under which it was made is set aside. Fenner v. Kime [Neb.] 99 N. W. 483. For breach of warranty of title by eviction under a paramount title, the right of action accrues at the time of eviction. Chenault v. Thomas [Ky.] 83 S. W. 109. A parent's cause of action for the seduction of his child accrues at the time of the seduction, not when the fact is discovered. Davis v. Boyett, 120 Ga. 649, 48 S. E. 185. Against a right of action in a wife for an invasion of homestead rights from the time of such invasion. McWhorter v. Cheney [Ga.] 49 S. E. 603. After the death of a wife, the husband is entitled to control the community property for the reasonable time necessary to pay community debts. Limitations against her heirs run after the lapse of a reasonable time without a repudiation of their claim. Miller v. Miller [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 1085. The right of action on a debt payable in instalments when each instalment becomes due. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Darling, 21 App. D. C. 132. Where a judgment is for the payment of money in instalments at fixed periods, limitation runs against each instalment only from date due. Schuler v. Schuler, 209 Ill. 522, 71 N. E. 16. A claim for boarding a person under an agreement for weekly compensation accrues from week to week. In re Goss, 90 N. Y. S. 769. Limitations do not run against a note given to secure the performance of a contract to pay money within two years until after the expiration of such period. Bonbright v. Bonbright, 123 Iowa, 305, 98 N. W. 784. An action for neglect to perform a duty arising from contract accrues at the time of the negligence. A money loaner agreed with a borrower to pay money loaned to a mortgagee, which he did without taking up the mortgage. This whom it may be enforced,[80] and a party who has a present right to enforce it.[81] The plaintiff must have a title enabling him to maintain action.[82] Where a claim is not due until a certain time[83] or the happening of a certain event,[84] or where an affirmative act[85] or a demand is necessary to perfect a cause of action, it does not accrue until the conditions are fulfilled.[86] Where a contract is silent as to when a future act is to be done, the law implies that it will be within reasonable time.[87] A right of action cannot accrue as against a municipal corporation until it has a legal existence,[88] and has provided a fund out of which payment of the mortgage was subsequently foreclosed by a bona fide assignee. Held, the action for neglect in paying money to the wrong party was barred in five years from payment. O'Connor v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. [Neb.] 93 N. W. 137. Upon a contract to indemnify against an obligation, when damage results. Id. [Neb.] 99 N. W. 845. On a promise to pay an existing obligation, on breach of the latter. A ranch owner agreed to pay a tenant a certain amount if he would move. While this promise was still enforceable, he promised to pay him as soon as the amount could be realized from the ranch. Morehouse v. Morehouse, 140 Cal. 88, 73 P. 738. A cause of action for failure to record a mortgage accrues on the failure to record irrespective of demand or discovery of the default. Crowley v. Johnstone, 96 App. Div. 319, 89 N. Y. S. 258. A cause of action accrues on a contract to pay off an obligation for another upon a failure to pay the same within the time contemplated. O'Connor v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. [Neb.] 99 N. W. 845. Limitations on the liability of a grantee who assumes a mortgage begins to run from the maturity of the note. Fender v. Hazeltine [Mo. App.] 79 S. W. 1018. Action on an implied contract accrues when the contract is executed. Must be brought within five years. Citizens' Bank v. Spencer [Iowa] 101 N. W. 643. In an action for the services of an architect for drawing two sets of plans, one in September, 1897, and one in March, 1898, evidence held insufficient to show an open account so as to make Code Civ. Proc. § 386 inoperative on the separate items. Meehan v. Figliuolo, 88 N. Y. S. 920.

80. Note becoming due after death of payee, limitation runs from administrator's appointment. Tobias v. Richardson, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 74.

81. See ante, § 3, Disability and Exceptions.

82. Ejectment for public lands will not lie until patent issues. Tegarden v. Le Marchel, 129 F. 487. An action brought within the statutory period after issuance of patent is in time. Code Civ. Proc. § 318, requiring seisin or possession within five years before the commencement of the action, does not apply. Adams v. Hopkins, 144 Cal. 19, 77 P. 712.

83. Where one promises to compensate a servant for services by a provision in her will, limitations do not commence to run until her death. Bair v. Hager, 97 App. Div. 358, 90 N. Y. S. 27. The statute of limitations does not run from the date of a compact to make twin wills, inasmuch as it cannot be consummated until the death of the survivor. Minor v. Minor, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 439. Where, by the terms of a contract to repay loans to a mining company advanced by stockholders, the repayment was not to be made until a reasonable time after the creation of the debt, limitations would not commence until such time. White v. Century Gold Min. & Mill. Co. [Utah] 78 P. 868.

84. Where compensation for services is not to be made until a certain date or until the happening of a certain event, limitations do not begin to run until such time. Cooper v. Colson [N. J. Err. & App.] 58 A. 337. A child was not to be compensated for services until her parent's indebtedness was paid off. [The parent died before the indebtedness was paid.] Limitations did not commence until his death. Harrison v. Harrison [Iowa] 100 N. W. 344.

85. Where a landlord converted the movables left by an evicted tenant, the question of diligence and promptness in removing same after eviction does not arise. Trover by a tenant is not barred until the statute of limitations interposes. Eldridge v. Hocfer [Or.] 77 P. 874.

86. Where a note provided that default in payment of interest should mature the whole debt, at the option of the holder, limitations will not commence to run until the option is exercised or the original date of maturity. Kennedy v. Gibson, 68 Kan. 612, 75 P. 1044. Provisions for acceleration of the maturity of the entire debt on default in payment of interest and taxes are not self-operative, so as to cause the statute of limitations to begin to run before the creditor has in some manner exercised his option. Keene Five Cent. Sav. Bank v. Reid [C. C. A.] 123 F. 221. Under Shannon's Code, § 4477, where a demand is necessary to entitle a party to a right of action, limitations commence to run from the time the right to make the demand is complete. Jenkins v. Dewar [Tenn.] 82 S. W. 470. The right to make demand on a note payable on demand accrues at its date. Id. Not against a certificate of deposit payable on demand and bearing interest if left six months until presentation for payment. In re Cook, 86 App. Div. 586, 83 N. Y. S. 1009.

87. Where land the title of which was in dispute was sold with the understanding that purchase money was not to be due until ownership was determined. Bryant v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 119 Ga. 607, 46 S. E. 829. A suit to recover the purchase money 25 years after the sale was barred. Id.

88. A village attempted to incorporate under a void act and collected license money which it was required to pay over. Held, as the curative act validating the statute under which it incorporated was not retrospective, an action to recover this money did not accrue until its enactment. Town of claim can be made.[89] Where a permanent nuisance is created and damages occasioned can be ascertained immediately, limitations run from the time it is created,[90] but if the total damage is not ascertainable but depends on forces set in motion by it, the statute runs only from the time actual damage results.[91] A prescriptive right to use real property bars an action to recover for permanent injuries to adjoining property;[92] but is no defense to an action for injuries to property beyond the limits of the right acquired.[93] Federal courts follow the decisions of the state courts in determining when a cause of action created by a statute accrues.[94]

The statute does not run against an action for accounting between partners until dissolution of the firm,[95] nor against a remainderman until the termination of the particular estate;[96] but this principle has no application where the right of occupancy in the life tenant is personal and he assigns such right.[97] It does not run against a right of action for partition between co-tenants,[98] but may be resorted to so far as it establishes interests in the property.[99]

As between stockholder, corporation and creditors.[1]—Limitations run in favor of a stockholder as to an unpaid portion of his subscription from the date it is due.[2] By the weight of authority it commences to run at this time as against Winneconne v. Winneconne [Wis.] 99 N. W. 1055.

89. Barnes v. Turner [Okl.] 78 P. 108.

90. The right of action in abutting owners for damages caused by the construction of an elevated railroad in the street whereby light and air are shut off accrues when the structure is completed. De Geofroy v. Merchants' Bridge Terminal R. Co., 179 Mo. 696, 79 S. W. 386.

91. In Texas, where a railroad is constructed without necessary culverts as provided by Rev. St. 1895, art. 4436, limitations against an action for the overflow of land occasioned thereby do not run until the occurrence of each overflow. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Beck [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 538. The fact that a system of sewers by which sewage was discharged into a stream was of a permanent character did not render the nuisance occasioned by such discharge permanent. Limitations did not run from date of construction. Vogt v. Grinnell, 123 Iowa, 332, 98 N. W. 782.

92. Damages caused an abutting owner by constructing a railroad in the street. Tietze v. International & G. N. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 124. Subjecting the right to an additional servitude. Id. Diversion of surface water. Id.

93. Throwing dirt on abutting property. Fietze v. International & G. N. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 124. Trimming trees beyond the limits of the prescriptive right. Id.

94. And what conditions authorize its enforcement. Whitman v. Atkinson [C. C. A.] 130 F. 759.

95. Weber v. Zacharias, 105 Ill. App. 640.

96. To recover land from one claiming under the life tenant. Kesterson v. Bailey [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 97.

97. The right of a survivor to occupy the community homestead is personal. When this interest is disposed of, the heirs of the owner of the other community have a right to the property. York v. Hutcheson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 895.

98. Code Civ. Proc. § 343, barring actions for relief not otherwise provided for, has no application to suits for partition. Adams v. Hopkins, 144 Cal. 19, 77 P. 712. The action of partition cannot be prescribed against so long as the thing remains in common and such community is acknowledged [Civ. Code, art. 1304]. Rhodes v. Cooper [La.] 37 So. 527.

99. Adverse possession. Adams v. Hopkins, 144 Cal. 19, 77 P. 712. An ouster will be implied from an ultimate finding that rights of co-tenants in partition have been barred. But may be barred by adverse possession of one co-tenant [Civ. Code, art. 1304]. Rhodes v. Cooper [La.] 37 So. 527. Specific finding of ouster is not necessary. Adams v. Hopkins, 144 Cal. 19, 77 P. 12.

1. See Corporations, 3 Curr. L. 880.

2. Weed v. Gainsville, etc., R. Co., 119 Ga. 576, 46 S. E. 885. On an absolute stock subscription, contract limitations run from the date instalments become due. Williams v. Taylor [Md.] 57 A. 641. A subscription for shares of corporate stock provided for the payment of one dollar at date of subscription, one dollar at the call of the directors, and one dollar every sixty days thereafter, if needed. Held "if needed" did not render time of payment indefinite, but the instalments became due automatically every 60 days after the first call, and the cause of action accrued when due. Williams v. Matthews [Va.] 48 S. E. 861. From the time the assessment becomes due. Parmelee v. Price, 208 Ill. 544, 70 N. E. 725.

NOTE. When liability of stockholder accrues: Liability to the corporation on the stock subscription accrues, according to the great weight of authority, when the call or demand is made, if such call is necessary (Taggart v. Western M. R. Co., 24 Md. 563, 89 Am. Rep. 760; Glenn v. Williams, 60 Md. 93; New England Fire Ins. Co. v. Haynes, 71 Vt. 306, 76 Am. St. Rep. 771; Great Western Tel. Co. v. Gray, 122 Ill. 630; Hawkins v. Glenn, 131 U. S. 319, 33 Law. Ed. 184; Glenn v. Marbury, 145 U. S. 499, 36 Law. Ed. 790; Glenn v. Macon, 32 F. 7; Glenn v. Semple, 80 Ala. 159, 60 Am. Rep. 92; Lehman v. Glenn, 87 Ala. 618; Semple v. Glenn, 91 Ala. 245, creditors of the corporation.[3] The endurance of the statutory liability depends largely on the terms of the statute, which often provides a special limitation but not always.[4]

24 Am. St. Rep. 894; Western R. Co. v. Avery, 64 N. C. 491; Glenn v. Howard, 81 Ga. 383, 12 Am. St. Rep. 318; Lewis v. Glenn, 84 Va. 947; Vanderwerken v. Glenn, 85 Va. 9; In re Haggert Bros. Mfg. Co., 19 App. R. Ont. [Can.] 582) though in some states it is held that the period of limitations runs from the date of subscription, or from a reasonable time after the subscription within which to call for payment (see Pittsburgh & C. R. Co. v. Byers, 32 Pa. 22, 72 Am. Dec. 770; McCully v. Pittsburgh & C. R. Co., 32 Pa. 26; Shackamaxon Bank v. Dougherty, 20 Wkly. Notes Cas. [Pa.] 297; Hamilton v. Clarion, etc., R. Co., 144 Pa. 34; Great Western Tel. Co. v. Purdy, 83 Iowa, 430; Id., 162 U. S. 329, 40 Law. Ed. 986); where no call is necessary or the subscription is payable on a day certain, the statute runs from the date of subscription or from the date when it is payable as the case may be. Curry v. Woodward, 53 Ala. 371; Hamilton v. Railroad Co., 144 Pa. 34. See Clark & M. Corp. § 490.

3. In Virginia. Gold v. Paynter, 101 Va. 714, 44 S. E. 920. Where the subscription is not written, limitations run in favor of the subscriber or assignee in 3 years [Code 1887, § 2920]. Gold v. Paynter, 101 Va. 714, 44 S. E. 920. Limitation against overdue payments on a stock subscription is not arrested by the appointment of a receiver for the corporation. It not being shown that such proceeding sought to subject stockholders to any liability for the amount unpaid. Williams v. Taylor [Md.] 57 A. 641. Under Act Va. Dec. 22, 1897, declaring that actions for unpaid stock subscriptions shall be brought at law and where resort is had to equity to wind up a corporation, a receiver may be appointed to recover assessments, a decree calling for the appointment of a receiver with power to collect is not a decree against the stockholders so as to stop limitations on overdue instalments. Williams v. Taylor [Md.] 57 A. 641.

NOTE: As against a receiver seeking to collect subscriptions after insolvency or dissolution of the corporation, it was said in an early Mississippi case that subscribers for stock in a corporation cannot oppose the statute of limitations to a claim in equity by creditors to have the stock paid up, on the ground that, before payment, the stockholders are chargeable with a trust in favor of creditors, and this trust "is a continuing, subsisting trust and confidence to which the statute of limitations has no application." Payne v. Bullard, 23 Miss. 88, 55 Am. Dec. 74. And there are decisions or dicta to this effect in other states. See Hightower v. Thornton, 8 Ga. 486, 52 Am. Dec. 412; Allibone v. Hager, 46 Pa. 48; Appeal of Mack [Pa.] 7 A. 481; McGinnis v. Barnes, 23 Mo. App. 413; Brown v. Union Ins. Co., 3 La. Ann. 177; Stark v. Burke, 9 La. Ann. 341; Succession of Shropshire, 12 La. Ann. 527. And see dictum in Crofoot v. Thatcher, 19 Utah, 212, 75 Am. St. Rep. 725. This, however, is contrary to the very decided weight of authority. Unpaid subscriptions to the capital stock of a corporation are not, in any proper sense, a trust fund for creditors, but simply create, as to the amount due thereon, the relation of debtor and creditor between the subscribers and the corporation (see Clark & M. Corp. § 768) and if the statute of limitations runs against an action by the corporation to collect a subscription, as it may (see cases supra), it also runs, in the absence of fraud, against a suit in equity by creditors to compel payment, or an action by a receiver or assignee. See South Carolina Mfg. Co. v. Bank of South Carolina, 6 Rich. Eq. [S. C.] 227; Curry v. Woodward, 53 Ala. 371; Hamilton v. Clarion, etc., R. Co., 144 Pa. 34; In re Haggert Bros. Mfg. Co., 19 App. R. Ont. [Can.] 582; Great Western Tel. Co. v. Gray, 122 Ill. 630; Williams v. Taylor, 120 N. Y. 244, rvg. Williams v. Meyer, 41 Hun [N. Y.] 545; Crofoot v. Thatcher, 19 Utah, 212, 75 Am. St. Rep. 725; Thompson v. Reno Sav. Bank, 19 Nev. 171, 3 Am. St. Rep. 881. The only difficulty is in determining when the statute begins to run as against creditors.

By the weight of authority, when subscriptions are payable upon call only, the statute of limitations does not begin to run, either as against the corporation or as against creditors, until a call is made, either by the directors or by a court of competent jurisdiction, although the corporation has ceased to do business, and has made an assignment of all its property, including unpaid subscriptions, for the benefit of creditors; and it does begin to run from the time of such a call. Glenn v. Semple, 80 Ala. 159, 60 Am. Rep. 92; Semple v. Glenn, 91 Ala. 245, 24 Am. St. Rep. 894; Lehman, Durr & Co. v. Glenn, 87 Ala. 618; Curry v. Woodward, 53 Ala. 371; Glenn v. Williams, 60 Md. 93; Glenn v. Saxton, 68 Cal. 353; Glenn v. Howard, 81 Ga. 383, 12 Am. St. Rep. 318; Washington Sav. Bank v. Butchers' & Drovers' Bank, 107 Mo. 133, 28 Am. St. Rep. 405; Lewis' Adm'r v. Glenn, 84 Va. 947; Vanderwerken v. Glenn, 85 Va. 9; Hawkins v. Glenn, 131 U. S. 319; Glenn v. Liggett, 135 U. S. 533; Glenn v. Marbury, 145 U. S. 499; Glenn v. Macon, 32 F. 7; Glenn v. Soule, 22 F. 417; Glenn v. Foote, 36 F. 824. Compare Christensen v. Quintard, 36 Hun [N. Y.] 334, and Christensen v. Colby, 43 Hun [N. Y.] 362. This is true of demand stock notes given by the stockholders of an insurance company. Crofoot v. Thatcher, 19 Utah, 212, 75 Am. St. Rep. 725; Kilbreath v. Gaylord, 34 Ohio St. 305. In some cases it has been held that, in the case of an insolvency or an assignment for the benefit of creditors, the statute runs from the time of the insolvency or assignment. Glenn v. Dorsheimer, 23 F. 695; Glenn v. Priest, 28 F. 907; Franklin Sav. Bank v. Bridges [Pa.] 8 A. 611; Swearingen v. Sewickley Dairy Co., 198 Pa. 68.

But the Federal cases cited are reversed or overruled by the cases in the supreme court of the United States above cited. See Glenn v. Liggett, 135 U. S. 533. When a subscription is payable upon call of the directors only, and they make no call before the corporation becomes insolvent and goes into the hands of a receiver, and the court then or-

Mistake.[5]—The statute does not run against a right of action growing out of mistake until discovery thereof.[6]

Fraud.[7]—It is generally provided that a cause of action arising out of fraud does not accrue until the fraud is[8] or ought to have been discovered.[9] Concealed fraud if not within the statutory exceptions does not suspend the operation of the statute.[10] Concealment of a cause of action becomes fraudulent when it is the ders an assessment to be paid to the receiver, and, if not paid, to be collected by him, the statute of limitations runs from the date of such order only. Great Western Tel. Co. v. Gray, 122 Ill. 630. If a receiver is required by statute to collect unpaid subscriptions at once, and no order of court is necessary to entitle him to sue, the statute runs from the date of his appointment. Webber v. Hovey, 108 Mich. 49.

It has been held, however, that, when a corporation is dissolved, the statute runs against the right to collect unpaid subscriptions from the date of the dissolution. Gareschi v. Lewis, 15 Mo. App. 565; Id., 93 Mo. 197.

Bonus or Watered Stock. The statute of limitations does not begin to run against a suit by creditors of a corporation to compel payment by holders of bonus or watered stock before the insolvency of the corporation. Hospes v. Northwestern Mfg. & Car Co., 48 Minn. 174, 31 Am. St. Rep. 637, 15 L. R. A. 470, 2 Keener's Cases, 1890, 1 Cum. Cas. 885; Jones v. Whitworth, 94 Tenn. 602. Compare Wilson v. St. Louis & Western R. Co., 120 Mo. 45, where a creditor was held to be barred by laches in a case in which stock was issued for services at an overvaluation. See Clark & M. Corp. § 490.

4. For full discussion see Clark & M. Corp. § 828.

5. See 2 Curr. L. 753.

6. Assignee of a void life policy paid premiums thereon believing it to be valid. American Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Bertram [Ind.] 70 N. E. 258.

7. See 2 Curr. L. 753.

8. Failure of an officer to transfer stock held fraudulent as to a stockholder who had transferred it to him to be transferred to a capitalist to induce him to uphold the credit of the corporation. Slayback v. Raymond, 93 App. Div. 326, 87 N. Y. S. 931. Where an agent misappropriates funds of his principal, the statute does not commence to run until notice to the principal. Guernsey v. Davis, 67 Kan. 378, 73 P. 101. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 338, subd. 4, limitations do not run against a cause of action for fraud until the fraud is discovered. People v. Perris Irr. Dist., 142 Cal. 601, 76 P. 381. The fact that a statute providing for the organization of irrigation districts declares that no action affecting the validity of the organization shall be maintained after two years subsequent to organization does not bar an action to have set aside for fraud the decree of confirmation. Id. Attachment and levy upon real estate fraudulently transferred, all the parties being nonresidents. Coulson v. Galtsman, 1 Neb. Unoff. 502, 96 N. W. 349. An action to set aside for fraud a decree confirming the organization of an irrigation district is not within the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 343. The omnibus clause. People v. Perris Irr. Dist., 142 Cal. 601, 76 P. 381. Where a widow did not discover that the title to lands purchased by her son with money belonging to her husband's estate was taken in his name until within ten years prior to action brought to declare a resulting trust, the statute of limitations had not run. McMurray v. McMurray, 180 Mo. 526, 79 S. W. 701. Where the cashier of a bank to whom its assets were turned over for the purpose of winding up its affairs conceals an abstraction of the bank's funds by fraudulent entries on the books. Central Bank of Kansas City v. Thayer [Mo.] 82 S. W. 142. The statute does not run against a cause of action against a city for the diversion of a special fund designated for the payment of improvement warrants until the holder of the warrants has notice of such wrongful diversion. Northwestern Lumber Co. v. Aberdeen, 35 Wash. 636, 77 P. 1063.

9. A mother took money left by her deceased husband, invested in land and divided the land with their child on the basis that the money was, as she falsely informed her child, community property. Limitations do not run against a right of action to set aside the partition until the fraud is discovered. Pitman v. Holmes [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 961. Evidence held sufficient to excuse a director's not discovering fraud. The Telegraph v. Loetscher [Iowa] 101 N. W. 773. Where one procures a deed by fraud and allows the grantor to remain in possession when the party in possession brings an action to quiet the title in themselves, he cannot set up St. 1903, §§ 2515, 2519, providing that no action for fraud shall be maintained after ten years. Row v. Johnston, 25 Ky. L. R. 1799, 78 S. W. 906.

10. Pietsch v. Milbrath [Wis.] 102 N. W. 342. The right of action against the promoters of a corporation to recover illegal profits made by them in buying for the corporation, at an excessive price, land on which they had obtained a secret option, is barred six years after accrual. Rev. St. 1898, § 4222. Not within the exception which postpones the operation of the statute until the right of action is discovered. Id. [Wis.] 101 N. W. 388. The provision in subd. 3, § 18, Civil Code, that a cause of action for relief on the ground of fraud shall not be deemed to have accrued until the discovery of the fraud has no application to an action founded on contract. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Atchison Grain Co., 68 Kan. 585, 75 P. 1051. One who buys a county warrant, which is void because issued to cover a discount to which such warrants were subject has a right of action at once. In the absence of actual intention to conceal the nature of the transaction, there is no fraudulent concealment sufficient to suspend the operation of the statute. Stewart v. Bank of Indian Territory [Kan.] 75 P. 1055.

duty of the party having knowledge of the facts to discover them to the other.[11] The recording of a deed fraudulently procured amounts to a discovery of the fraud,[12] providing it is under such circumstances as to put an ordinarily prudent man on inquiry.[13] The action must be brought within the time limited after discovery of the fraud,[14] and ignorance thereof until a time within the period must be established.[15]

Accounts.—Payments on a running account unless made to apply on specific items will be deemed general and stop limitations as to the entire account.[16] A payment upon a book account which has never been recognized in its entirety, without a showing that the payment was made in recognition of the whole claim, will not stop limitations as to the unpaid portion.[17]

§ 5. Tolling.[18]—Besides the commencement of an action,[19] only the circumstances enumerated in the statute suspend its operation.[20] This principle applies to limitations by contract.[21] The failure to appoint an administrator will not suspend the operation of the statute as to a cause of action accrued at the date of the death of his decedent.[22] A statutory prohibition staying the commencement of an action tolls the statute;[23] but ignorance of the existence of a

11. Where an agent conceals the true state of facts relative to transactions between himself and principal. Arkins v. Arkins [Colo. App.] 77 P. 256.

12. Rogers v. Richards, 67 Kan. 706, 74 P. 255. Starts limitations against the grantor as to any fraud in procuring the deed. McDonald v. Bayard Sav. Bank, 123 Iowa, 413, 98 N. W. 1025.

13. Not where debtor and creditor live 5,000 miles apart and the property is situated where neither live. Jones v. Danforth [Neb.] 99 N. W. 495.

14. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4800, provides that an action for fraud must be commenced within four years after the discovery of the fraud. Held an action for relief against a fraudulent corporate reorganization scheme in which the sacrifice of mortgaged property on foreclosure was complained of was barred where the complaint showed notice more than four years prior to commencement of the action. Griffith v. Seattle Consol. St. R. Co. [Wash.] 79 P. 314. Reasonable deduction from the complaint was that plaintiff had knowledge of the fraud for eighteen years. McWhorter v. Cheney [Ga.] 49 S. E. 603.

15. Action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance. Fuller v. Horner [Kan.] 77 P. 88. If the evidence leave the date in doubt, prescription will be maintained, especially where there is evidence that the fraud was discovered. Succession of Dauphin, 112 La. 103, 36 So. 287. A mere allegation that discovery was within the period is insufficient where from the circumstances of the case the probabilities are that it was made before. Id.

16. Howe v. Hammond [Vt.] 58 A. 724.

17. Rogers v. Newton [N. J. Law] 58 A. 1100.

18. See ante, § 4, as to effect of fraud and mistake.

19. See post, § 6.

20. Where a creditor of a dissolved corporation may maintain action against stockholders on the dissolution of the corporation without recovering judgment against the corporation, limitations as to a stockholder are not suspended while suit is being maintained against the corporation [actions under Kan. St. 1899, c. 23, § 32]. Whitman v. Atkinson [C. C. A.] 130 F. 759.

21. Limitation provided in an insurance policy not suspended by an injunction against an action thereon. Paul v. Fidelity & Casualty Ins. Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 801. The defense of limitations is not waived by setting up another reason for refusal to pay when a demand was made after the bar was complete. Id. Evidence held insufficient to show that a claim for labor and services was postponed until the death of the debtor. Rodgers v. Lamb's Estate [Mich.] 100 N. W. 440.

22. Note: Plaintiff brought this action as administratrix under a code provision twenty months after decedent's death, but within five months of the issuance of letters of administration. A statute provides that actions of this nature must be brought within one year after the cause of action has accrued. Laws N. Y. 1886, p. 801. Held, that such cause of action accrued not on the issuing of letters of administration, but upon decedent's death, and was therefore barred. Crapo v. Syracuse, 90 N. Y. S. 553.

This precise question involved has not, as yet, been adjudicated by the court of appeals. A different department of the supreme court held in an earlier case that such a cause of action did not accrue until the issuing of letters of administration. Barnes v. City of Brooklyn, 22 App. Div. 320. There are dicta supporting the principal case. Meekin v. B. H. R. R. Co., 164 N. Y. 145, 79 Am. St. Rep. 635; Cavenagh v. Ocean Steam Nav. Co., 13 N. Y. S. 540. The principal case seems the better interpretation of the legislative intent. The contrary view would make it possible to defeat the purpose of the statute by delay in taking out the letters of administration. 5 Columbia L. R. 166.

23. B. & C. Comp. § 387, staying an action against an administrator until six months after the granting of letters of administration, and § 388 until a claim has been disallowed by him. In re Morgan's cause of action does not,[24] nor does the transfer of a cause of action[25] or the transfer of money from an open account to a savings account.[26] The filing of an action in partition wherein rights may be litigated tolls the statute as to all parties interested respecting such rights.[27]

A new promise to pay after the cause has accrued tolls the statute and starts it running anew.[28] There must be a promise,[29] but it may be implied from an acknowledgment.[30] An administrator may by a promise toll the statute as to a debt of the decedent so as to bind personalty;[31] but a promise by an heir is necessary to bind the realty.[32]

A partial payment tolls the statute,[33] but it must have been made by the debtor or under his authority,[34] and on account of the debt in controversy.[35] The burden of proving such payment is on the creditor.[36]

§ 6. Commencement of action. A. In general.[37]—The commencement of an action tolls the statute.[38] Presenting a claim to an administrator is an action.[39]

Action is begun by service of process[40] or by voluntary appearance[41] or issuance of process[42] and filing complaint,[43] or by filing complaint[44] and issuance of summons followed by legal service.[45]

Estate [Or.] 77 P. 608. The setting of a homestead tolls the statute as to a judgment creditor until the property ceases to be a homestead. Anderson v. Baughman [S. C.] 48 S. E. 38.

24. A parent's cause of action for the seduction of his child accrues at the time of seduction, not when he discovers the fact. Davis v. Boyett, 120 Ga. 649, 48 S. E. 185.

25. A widow standing in the shoes of her deceased husband is bound by the same limitation. Page v. Page, 143 Cal. 602, 77 P. 452. The consolidation of Greater New York did not toll the statute as to the liabilities of constituent municipalities [Laws 1897, p. 3, c. 378]. Kahrs v. New York, 90 N. Y. S. 793.

26. Jones v. Goldtree Bros. Co., 142 Cal. 383, 77 P. 939.

27. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 382, providing that where questions are of common interest and the parties are numerous, one may sue for all, and § 759, providing that in partition the rights of all parties may be ascertained. Adams v. Hopkins, 144 Cal. 19, 77 P. 712.

28. Letter stating that debtor could not pay the obligation when due but was willing to make a due bill as an acknowledgment which he would feel as much bound to pay when he was able, held a new promise under Code Civ. Proc. § 395, requiring an acknowledgment or new promise in writing signed by the party charged. Benedict v. Slocum, 95 App. Div. 602, 88 N. Y. S. 1052.

29. The expression that "An honest man's note never goes out of date" is insufficient. No promise. Alexander v. Muse [Tenn.] 79 S. W. 117. A mortgagee offered to cancel the mortgage if a certain amount less than the face was paid. Held, an acceptance of the offer was not such a recognition of the debt as would toll the statute. Carr v. Carr [Mich.] 101 N. W. 550.

30. A payment made to the agent of the creditor accompanied by a statement by the person making the payment that he is liable for one-half the debt is a sufficient acknowledgment to toll the statute as to him, although he is neither maker or indorser. Miller v. McDowell [Kan.] 77 P. 101.

31, 32. Divine v. Miller [S. C.] 49 S. E. 479.

33. It need not be indorsed on instrument. Hastie v. Urrage [Kan.] 77 P. 268. The crediting on a note, with the consent of the parties of an indebtedness of the payee to a partnership of which the maker is a member, with entries thereof on the books of the payee and of the partnership, is a partial payment, such as will toll the statute. Vinson v. Palmer [Fla.] 34 So. 276.

34. Evidence held insufficient to show agency or special authority to make payment. Schofield v. Twining, 127 F. 488. Where a creditor collects proceeds of collateral after the death of the debtor and applies it to a payment of the obligation, the statute is not tolled. Divine v. Miller [S. C.] 49 S. E. 479.

35. Payment of rent by a subtenant cannot be regarded a payment of rent previously due from the tenant. Boughton v. Boughton [Conn.] 58 A. 226.

36. Evidence held insufficient. Gregory v. Filbeck's Estate [Colo. App.] 77 P. 369.

37. See 2 Curr. L. 755.

38. Filing of petition and issuance of process in an action to recover for the board and maintenance of an alleged lunatic. Norman v. Central Kentucky Asylum, 25 Ky. L. R. 1846, 79 S. W. 189.

39. In Washington the presentation of a claim to the administrators of an estate is equivalent to the commencement of an action. Frew v. Clark, 34 Wash. 561, 76 P. 85.

40. In Michigan, in actions commenced by declaration, where the defendant has been personally served with a copy. Wilton v. Detroit [Mich.] 100 N. W. 1020. Express provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 398. Metz v. Metz, 90 N. Y. S. 340.

41. When so, it dates from appearance and not from issuance of process not served. Reliance Trust Co. v. Atherton [Neb.] 93 N W. 150.

42. For all purposes but limitations an

If a complaint is good as against general demurrer, it is sufficient to toll the statute.[46]

(§ 6) B. Amendment of pleading.[47]—An amendment which does not state a new cause of action, but is filed after the bar of the statute is complete, relates back to the date of filing the original complaint.[48] Whether a new cause of action is stated is to be determined by the rule against departures in pleading.[49] Thus it is held that an amendment which merely amplifies the allegations of the original complaint,[50] so as to state the cause with more certainty,[51] or corrects a statement therein,[52] or restates the same cause,[53] or which works a substitution of parties,[54] or which adds a material allegation,[55] does not state a different cause of action in personam is not commenced until process is served; but for that purpose issuance with intent to have it served begins it [V. S. § 1214]. Tracy v. Grand Trunk R. Co. [Vt.] 57 A. 104.

43. In Washington the service of summons must be followed by a filing of the complaint within the time prescribed. Under 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4807, providing an action is commenced when the complaint is filed, the service of summons is not sufficient. Cresswell v. Spokane County, 30 Wash. 620, 71 P. 195.

44. In Georgia, when the petition is filed, irregularities of the process or service is waived by appearance. Bentley v. Reid [C. C. A.] 133 F. 698.

45. Service on several joint defendants was delayed six months. Cox v. Strickland, 120 Ga. 104, 47 S. E. 912. In Nebraska an action is not commenced when summons is issued unless it is actually served. The mere issue of summons without return of service is insufficient. Reliance Trust Co. v. Atherton [Neb.] 93 N. W. 150.

46. Though it might be open to attack through special demurrer. Schmidt v. Brittain [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 677.

47. See 2 Curr. L. 756.

48. Cogswell v. Hall, 185 Mass. 455, 70 N. E. 461; Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Bergschicker, 162 Ind. 108, 69 N. E. 1000.

NOTE: An amendment to a complaint which sets up no new cause of action or claim and makes no new demand but simply varies or expands the allegations in support of the cause already propounded, relates back to the commencement of the action, and the running of the statute against the claim so pleaded is arrested at that point. But an amendment which introduces a new or different demand not before introduced or made in the pending suit does not relate back to the beginning of the action so as to stop the running of the statute until the amendment is filed. Whalen v. Gorden, 95 F. 305; Railway Co. v. Wyler, 158 U. S. 285, 289, 298, 39 Law. Ed. 938; Railway Co. v. Cox, 145 U. S. 593, 601, 606, 36 Law. Ed. 829; Sicard v. Davis, 6 Pet. [U. S.] 124, 8 Law. Ed. 342; Van De Haar v. Van Domseler, 56 Iowa, 671; Jacobs v. Insurance Co., 86 Iowa, 145; Buel v. Transfer Co., 45 Mo. 563; Scovill v. Glasner, 79 Mo. 449; Crofford v. Cothran, 2 Sneed [Tenn.] 492; Railway Co. v. Jones, 149 Ill. 361, 37 N. E. 247, 41 Am. St. Rep. 278, 24 L. R. A. 141; Eylenfeldt v. Steel Co., 165 Ill. 185; Railroad Co. v. Campbell, 170 Ill. 163; Christy v. Farlin, 49 Mich. 319, 13 N. W. 607; Flatley v. Railroad Co., 9 Heisk. [Tenn.] 230; Buntin v. Railroad Co., 41 F. 744; Newton v. Allis, 12 Wis. 378; Railroad Co. v. Smith, 81 Ala. 229. See Patillo v. Allen-West Commission Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 681.

49. A count declaring for money had and received cannot be amended by adding a count on a special contract and for goods sold and delivered, even though the amendment avers that the additional counts are for the same cause of action. Nelson v. First Nat. Bank, 139 Ala. 578, 36 So. 707.

50. A complaint stated facts from which the law raises a presumption of a promise to pay the balance of an account stated. An amendment added an averment of a promise to pay. Patillo v. Allen-West Commission Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 680. A new count filed to correct a cause not stated with certainty does not set up a new cause of action. Hinchliff v. Rudnik, 212 Ill. 569, 72 N. E. 691.

51. Filed merely for the purpose of supplying omissions in the original complaint, and to state the cause with more certainty. Marshalltown Stone Co. v. Louis Drach Const. Co., 123 F. 746. An amendment setting up that a railroad company "carelessly" permitted litter to accumulate on the right of way does not set up a new cause of action. Southern R. Co. v. Horine [Ga.] 49 S. E. 285. Where the allegations in a complaint on a note and on an account for rent were so general that the defendant could have shown that he had possession with or without consent of the owner and had or had not agreed to pay rent, an amendment whether declaring on an implied or express promise to pay rent did not state a new cause of action. Schmidt v. Brittain [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 677. Omitting the count on the note and praying for a larger sum on the remaining cause of action does not constitute a new cause of action. Id. In partition an amendment including lands omitted from the original complaint, but forming a part of the same grant did not introduce a new cause of action. Adams v. Hopkins, 144 Cal. 19, 77 P. 712.

52. Amendment asking that an inheritance be computed at different specified rates does not set up a new cause of action. Connell v. Crosby, 210 Ill. 380, 71 N. E. 350.

53. Original declaration alleged negligence in allowing a sidewalk to be in an unsafe condition; the additional count that the sidewalk was broken and full of holes. Town of Cicero v. Bartelme, 212 Ill. 256, 72 N. E. 437.

54. Defendant in the original action had leased his property to another who assumed all obligations. McLaughlin v. West End action. But if an amendment states a new cause of action, it does not relate back;[56] so if the original complaint does not state a cause of action,[57] or the amendment sets up a new and different cause,[58] the action is deemed commenced as of the date of filing the amendment.[59]

(§ 6) C. After nonsuit or dismissal.[60]—In most states it is provided that if an action fail otherwise than on the merits, a new action may be commenced within a prescribed period.[61] Such statutes being remedial are liberally construed[62] and apply where a suit is dismissed for want of jurisdiction,[63] or because a plaintiff mistook his form of remedy;[64] but not where a complaint is dismissed

St. R. Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 317. Complaint against a partnership may be amended so as to declare against one individually. Padden v. Clark [Iowa] 99 N. W. 152. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 723, providing that an amendment correcting or adding or striking out the name of a party may be allowed, a complaint against one as trustee may be amended so as to be against him personally. Boyd v. United States Mortg. & Trust Co., 94 App. Div. 413, 88 N. Y. S. 289. A wrong party was named as defendant. The real party answered by general denial and on the merits. The pleadings were signed "Attorney for defendant." After the period of limitations had elapsed, the plaintiff by amendment corrected the misnomer. Held, that the circumstances warranted a finding that the real defendant had appeared in the case prior to the bar of limitations. McCord-Collins Co. v. Prichard [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 388.

55. Under Code, §§ 243, 273, an amendment may insert in a complaint for wrongful death that in the state in which the death occurred a statute was in force allowing an action, though at the time of the amendment the cause of action under such statute was barred. Lassiter v. Norfolk & C. R. Co., 136 N. C. 89, 48 S. E. 642. A bill by beneficiaries to set aside a sale of trust property sold under a judgment against the trustee may be amended to allege that the property was held in trust. Ferguson v. Morrison [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 1240. An amendment setting forth essential statutory allegations in a bill to redeem an estate from a mortgage will be allowed where it appears that without such amendment a second bill could not be commenced before the mortgagor would be forever foreclosed. Doe v. Littlefield [Me.] 59 A. 438. Original petition in conversion against a bailee for sale was defective for lack of an allegation that a reasonable time had elapsed within which he might sell, before demand for return of the property. Gourley v. Prokop [Neb.] 100 N. W. 949, afg. 99 N. W. 243.

56. Bentley v. Crummey, 119 Ga. 94, 47 S. E. 209.

57. Mackey v. Northern Mill. Co., 210 Ill. 115, 71 N. E. 448. Original complaint in a statutory action against a railroad where a recovery could be had for injuries to stock regardless of negligence contained no allegation of demand as required by the statute. Held, such action did not toll the statute. Becker v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. [Kan.] 78 P. 408.

58. A petition under the act of March 3, 1891 [26 Stat. at L. 851, U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 758], for Indian depredations, alleging that the depredations were committed by a particular tribe, cannot be amended after the period of limitations prescribed by that act to bring in a different tribe as the sole wrongdoer. United States v. Martinez, 25 S. Ct. 80. An amendment changing a statutory to a common-law cause states a new cause. Despeaux v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 133 F. 1009. The original petition stated a cause of action by a going partnership for a conversion; the amendment sought to state a cause in favor of one member for an accounting. Thompson v. Beeler [Kan.] 77 P. 100.

59. Cause of action was barred at this date. Bentley v. Crummey, 119 Ga. 94, 47 S. E. 209.

60. See 2 Curr. L. 756.

61. 2 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, pp. 2642, 2643, provides that if a plaintiff be nonsuited, and the statute has run during pendency of the action, he may bring a new action within one year after judgment reversed. Held, that when a demurrer to the original complaint was sustained on the ground that it failed to state a cause of action with certainty, and plaintiff suffered an involuntary nonsuit, he was entitled to bring a new action within one year. Hinchliff v. Rudnik, 212 Ill. 569, 72 N. E. 691. Rev. St. 1898, § 2893, providing that if a plaintiff fail otherwise than on the merits he may bring a new action within one year for the same cause is applicable where judgment of nonsuit was entered. Guthiel v. Gilmer, 27 Utah, 496, 76 P. 628. After verdict objection to the complaint was sustained and plaintiff given an election to amend or submit to an arrest of judgment. Held, his election to submit to an arrest of judgment did not bar a new action authorized by V. S. 1214, providing that if after verdict for plaintiff the judgment is arrested, he may commence a new action for the same cause within one year. Baker v. Sherman [Vt.] 59 A. 167. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 542, 543, where judgment is set aside on the ground that the summons was void and the alias summons was not issued within one year from that date, the cause was barred. Bank of Topeka v. Clark [Kan.] 77 P. 92.

62. Civ. Code 1895, § 3786. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. v. Wilson, 119 Ga. 781, 47 S. E. 366.

63. The court had jurisdiction of the subject-matter but not of the person. Atlanta, etc., Ry. Co. v. Wilson, 119 Ga. 781, 47 S. E. 366. Such an action is notice of the plaintiff's intent to enforce his cause of action and warns the defendant to preserve his evidence. Id.

64. Comp. Laws, § 9738, provides that if an action be defeated for any matter of form or if after verdict for plaintiff judgment be reversed, he may commence a new

because it does not state a cause of action,[65] or the original action was barred for want of service of process,[66] nor to a distinct action commenced while the prior action is pending.[67] While the second suit must be for substantially the same cause,[68] it does not have to be a literal copy.[69] It must be by the same plaintiff or his legal representatives,[70] and against all defendants who were necessary parties to the first action.[71] Such statutes have no reference to the law of venue.[72]

§ 7. Revival of obligation.[73]—A debt barred by limitations may be revived by a new promise to pay.[74] The new promise need not be express.[75] It may be implied from an acknowledgment of the existence of a debt,[76] providing it is of such a character that a new promise can be fairly inferred.[77] The "unconditional promise in writing" required by statute must be clear and explicit.[78] It must be to the creditor or his agent, over the signature of the debtor.[79] A promise is action for the same cause within one year. Held, where suit was dismissed because of mistake in the form of remedy, a new action could be instituted within a year. McMillan v. Reaume [Mich.] 100 N. W. 166.

65. A statute allowed a recovery for animals killed by a railroad company regardless of negligence, but there must have been a demand within 30 days. The original complaint did not allege a demand and plaintiff dismissed his action without prejudice. Held, another could not be maintained after the statute had run. Becker v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. [Kan.] 78 P. 408.

66. This statute does not apply where the action was barred for want of service of process. Comp. Laws, § 9985, including in the things constituting commencement of suit the service of a copy of the declaration on the defendant personally. Wilton v. Detroit [Mich.] 100 N. W. 1020.

67. Sand. & H. Dig. § 4841, providing that if plaintiff suffer a nonsuit or judgment is arrested after verdict or is reversed on appeal, a new action may be commenced within one year, does not apply where defendant died while the action was pending and there was no nonsuit, arrest of judgment or reversal and after the bar was complete, another action was commenced in the probate court. Hill v. Pipkins [Ark.] 81 S. W. 1216.

68. A copy of the record of the prior action should be attached so that it may be determined that the prior action was for the same cause and between the same parties, especially where the point is raised by special demurrer. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. v. Wilson, 119 Ga. 781, 47 S. E. 366.

69, 70. Cox v. Strickland, 120 Ga. 104, 47 S. E. 912.

71. Cox v. Strickland, 120 Ga. 104, 47 S. E. 912. Where the liability of the defendants is joint and several, with no right of contribution, a second action against all defendants to the first action served upon some of those jointly suable is within Civ. Code 1895, § 3786. Id.

72. Under Civ. Code 1895, § 3786, the new action may be brought in any court in the state. Cox v. Strickland, 120 Ga. 104, 47 S. E. 912.

73. See 2 Curr. L. 757.

74. Where a debtor at one interview acknowledged the debt and promised to pay it, and at a subsequent interview made several propositions of settlement, none of which were accepted, held, that the acknowledgment and new promise were unconnected with the unaccepted propositions. Miller v. Kinsel [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1075. A letter by the maker of a note to the surety who had paid it stating that he, the principal, would make settlement next month, held a sufficient new promise. O'Neill v. Ellis [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 1083. The written contract evidencing the original obligation is admissible in evidence. Trustees of St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church v. Miller [Md.] 57 A. 644. Evidence held to show an express promise. Id. Under a statute providing that after a specialty is barred it shall not be admissible, it becomes admissible when the cause of action is revived by an express promise. Id. The recital in a conveyance executed to the holder of a vendor's lien note that the note was unpaid, due and owing the grantee, was sufficient to revive the debt to the extent of the holder's right to payment out of the land as against the lien of a subsequent judgment against the maker of the note. Austin v. Lauderdale [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 413. One who gives security for barred obligations must, in order to redeem, pay interest from the time the security was given. Clark v. Seagraves [Mass.] 71 N. E. 813.

75. If the debt is admitted and language indicating intention to pay is used, it will be considered an implied promise. Walker v. Freeman, 209 Ill. 17, 70 N. E. 595.

76. A second mortgage recited that it was given subject to a prior mortgage. Held sufficient to revive the debt the prior mortgage was given to secure, though there was no express promise made to the prior mortgagee. Hahl v. Ellwood [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 829. "We owe it, and I will have to pay it" is sufficient. Miller v. Kinsel [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1075. A letter by the maker of a note, stating lack of means to pay it at the time, but that he intended to pay it when he could and offering a horse in part payment, is a sufficient acknowledgment. Vogelsang v. Taylor [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 637.

77. In Indiana there must be a signed acknowledgment in writing of such a character that a new promise sufficient to revive the debt can be fairly inferred [Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 302]. Park v. Park, 32 Ind. App. 642, 70 N. E. 493.

78. "Due 'A' Jan. 12, 1892, 5000, May 15, 1893, 3000, June 11, 1894, 2500. Value received. 'B,'" held insufficient under Code Ala. 1896, § 2811. In re McGuire & Hanlein, 132 F. 394.

79. Under Rev. Code Civ. Proc. 1903, § 79, not rendered conditional by stating the reasons why the obligation could not be liquidated presently.[80] If a new promise may be made by parol, it is provable by parol regardless of changes made in the rules of evidence.[81] Whether certain evidence constitutes a new promise sufficient to raise the bar is a question of law.[82]

A partial payment revives a barred obligation of its own vigor, not as evidence of an express promise.[83] Such payment must have been authorized by the debtor.[84] A payment by the maker of an overdue negotiable instrument will not remove the bar as to an indorser.[85]

An action of tort once barred cannot be revived.[86]

§ 8. Operation and effect of bar. A. Bar of debt as affecting security.[87]—That the action on the principal obligation is barred does not affect a creditor's right against the security,[88] unless otherwise provided by statute,[89] nor does the fact that a personal judgment against the debtor becomes barred render dormant that part of a decree declaring that the creditor has a valid title to the security to the extent specified.[90] A power of sale contained in a trust deed may be exercised, though an action on the debt it was given to secure is barred,[91] and an action for possession by the purchaser is not such an effort to enforce the collec-

a letter from one joint maker to another enclosing the amount of the note is insufficient. Dorsey v. Gunkle [S. D.] 101 N. W. 36. An acknowledgment of a barred debt at the trial is not sufficient. Kahrs v. New York, 90 N. Y. S. 793. At the trial the defendant's counsel admitted the allegations of the complaint but maintained that the claim was barred. The answer had denied all the material allegations. Held not an admission of absolute liability despite the statute. Id.

80. That the debtor had other indebtedness; that he expected a raise of salary. Walker v. Freeman, 209 Ill. 17, 70 N. E. 595.

81. Shelley v. Wescott, 23 App. D. C. 135. If a statute professing only to affect procedure does in fact impair the right, it is void. Id. A provision that an oral promise is deemed insufficient evidence of a new or continuing contract does not render evidence of an oral promise inadmissible. Id.

82. Letters. Walker v. Freeman, 209 Ill. 17, 70 N. E. 595. All letters written by a debtor relative to the payment of a barred obligation may be considered in determining whether there was a new promise. Id.

83. Creditor held justified in applying a payment in part on a barred obligation [Code Civ. Proc. § 22]. Ebersole v. Omaha Nat. Bank [Neb.] 99 N. W. 664. Payment of interest on a note tolls the statute. Mac Millan v. Clements [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 997. Where money is delivered by way of payment without directing its application, the creditor may apply it on any due claim whether barred or not. McDowell v. McDowell's Estate, 75 Vt. 401, 56 A. 98. Notwithstanding Vermont statute requiring handwriting of payor as proof of payment to avoid limitations, an indorsement not written by payor is admissible in evidence, whether made before or after the statute has run. Id.

84. An unauthorized payment by a widow on a mortgage on property in which she has but a homestead interest will not remove the bar of the statute as against an heir, the owner of the fee. Nickell v. Tracy, 91 N. Y. S. 287. See, also, Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. McNeely, 166 Ill. 540, 46 N. E. 1130.

85. Mason v. Kilcourse [N. J. Law] 59 A. 21.

86. Neither by express or implied agreement. Holtham v. Detroit [Mich.] 98 N. W. 754.

87. See 2 Curr. L. 759.

88. A note given as security was never barred. The note which it was given to secure was. German-American Sav. Bank v. Hanna [Iowa] 100 N. W. 57. Civ. Code 1895, § 2735. Conway v. Caswell [Ga.] 48 S. E. 956.

89. Under Civ. Code, § 2911, providing that if the principal obligation is barred, the lien on security is extinguished where a debt for which life policies had been pledged as security was barred before the policies matured, the lien on the policies was extinguished. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Pacific Fruit Co., 142 Cal. 477, 76 P. 67. A debt resting in parol is barred in two years. A mortgage given to secure it is also barred [Code Civ. Proc. § 2911]. San Jose Safe Deposit Bank v. Bank of Madera, 144 Cal. 574, 78 P. 5.

Note: Where by virtue of statute the lien on security in possession of the creditor becomes barred where an action on the principal debt is barred, the creditor no longer has a right to possession of the property, and an action to recover it accrues to the debtor and limitations against such action commence to run. See dissenting opinion Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Pacific Fruit Co., 142 Cal. 477, 76 P. 67.

90. Conway v. Caswell [Ga.] 48 S. E. 956.

91. Brinkerhoff v. Goree [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 592; Peacock v. Cummings [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 1002. As to whether a right to foreclose a mortgage by advertisement under a power of sale continues after the action to foreclose is barred is not decided. Teigen v. Drake [N. D.] 101 N. W. 893.

tion of the debt secured as to be barred by the limitations which have run against the debt.[92] A right to foreclose the security may be barred, though the principal debt is not,[93] though in Iowa and Indiana it is held that so long as the principal debt remains enforceable, the lien of the security continues unimpaired.[94] A limitation contained in a bond to secure performance of a contract is not applicable to an action based on the contract.[95] The death of a mortgagor does not toll the statute as to a co-mortgagor.[96]

(§ 8) B. Against whom available.[97]—The statute runs against a prior lienor in favor of a subsequent lienor.[98] It does not run against the state.[99] The fact that a defendant is permitted by statute to interplead an indemnitor does not make the limitation application to the plaintiff's cause of action applicable to his action over against the indemnitor.[1]

(§ 8) C. To whom available.[2]—As a general rule, the right to plead the statute is a personal privilege,[3] but is available to one who stands in the place of the party in whose favor it runs.[4] There is conflict as to whether a foreign corporation may plead it.[5] Persons interested in an estate may in certain cases plead it, though the personal representative fails to do so.[6]

§ 9. Pleading and evidence.[7]—As a general rule, the statute as a defense must be pleaded by plea or answer,[8] but may be raised by demurrer[9] or by motion

92. Brinkerhoff v. Goree [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 592.

93. Under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4810 the lien of a mortgage can be enforced even after the death of the mortgagor, and is not within the exception that an action may be maintained against personal representatives within one year after death of a debtor. Frew v. Clark, 34 Wash. 561, 76 P. 85. Code Civ. Proc. § 1475, providing that secured claims against the estate of a decedent must be presented as other claims, does not forbid the foreclosure of a mortgage on the homestead so as to suspend the operation of the statute as to foreclosure. Vandall v. Teague, 142 Cal. 471, 76 P. 35. Under Act 1885, p. 49, c. 9, providing that a mortgage shall be barred unless suit is brought within 10 years from maturity of the debt. Alexander v. Muse [Tenn.] 79 S. W. 117.

94. A payment of interest upon a note secured by a mortgage revives the mortgage. MacMillan v. Clements [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 997. Action to foreclose a mortgage is not barred so long as the debt secured may be enforced. Freeburg v. Eksell, 123 Iowa, 464, 99 N. W. 118.

95. Marshalltown Stone Co. v. Louis Drach Const. Co., 123 F. 746.

96. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc. v. Boland [Cal.] 79 P. 365.

97. See 2 Curr. L. 760.

98. Where the first mortgagee foreclosed without making a second mortgagee a party, and at the time action was brought to foreclose the second mortgage limitations had run against the right to sue on the first mortgage, the second mortgagee could set up the statute as against any rights acquired under the first mortgage. Frates v. Sears, 144 Cal. 246, 77 P. 905.

99. State v. Paxson, 119 Ga. 730, 46 S. E. 872. Action by the state to recover costs taken out of her funds. State v. New Orleans Debenture Redemption Co., 112 La. 1, 36 So. 205.

1. One injured by a defect in the sidewalk for which the property owner was primarily liable sued the city. Held, the fact that the city did not interplead the property owner until two years after the injury did not bar its action. City of San Antonio v. Talerico [Tex.] 81 S. W. 518.

2. See 2 Curr. L. 760.

3. A first mortgagee foreclosing made a second mortgagee a party. The latter did not contest the former's claim nor priority, but filed a cross complaint for the foreclosure of his mortgage. Held, the second mortgagee could not set up the statute as against the first mortgagee's right to foreclose. Tinsley v. Lombard [Or.] 78 P. 895.

4. One who, by either private or judicial sale has become owner of interests in real estate belonging to one or more heirs of a mortgagor, may plead the statute in bar of an action to foreclose the mortgage, although such heirs are parties and refuse to interpose the plea. Hopkins v. Clyde [Ohio] 72 N. E. 846.

5. See ante, § 3.

6. See Estates of Decedents, 3 Curr. L. 1267 et seq.

7. See 2 Curr. L. 760.

8. By express provisions of Rev. Code Civ. Proc. § 39 must be taken by answer. State v. Patterson [S. D.] 100 N. W. 162. Under the express provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 558, the statute must be pleaded. Grogan v. Valley Trading Co. [Mont.] 76 P. 211; Shirey v. Clark [Ark.] 81 S. W. 1057. By omitting to do so, the defense is deemed waived. Borghart v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 101 N. W. 1120. The question cannot be raised by demurrer. First Nat. Bank v. Steel [Mich.] 99 N. W. 786.

9. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc. v. Boland [Cal.] 79 P. 365; Chemung Min. Co. v. Hanley [Idaho] 77 P. 226. Under Pub. Acts 1903, p. 114, c. 149, requiring actions for wrongful death to be brought within one year. Radezky v. Sargent & Co. [Conn.] 58 A. 709.

to dismiss if the complaint shows that the cause stated is barred.[10] Objection that an amendment sets up a barred cause of action may be raised by plea.[11] In some states a general demurrer is sufficient.[12] In others the defense must be raised by special demurrer.[13] The defense cannot be raised by a motion to quash process.[14] If a complaint does not affirmatively show the cause stated to be barred,[15] or if it indicates some circumstance which may have suspended the operation of the statute,[16] it is good against demurrer. A bare averment to the contrary will not make good a complaint otherwise barred.[17]

The facts constituting the bar should be set out;[18] but where a statute creating a cause of action prescribes the period within which it must be brought, the defense is available under a general denial, the complaint having alleged that cause accrued within the period.[19]

If the insufficiency of the plea is apparent, it is demurrable.[20] A general plea to a complaint containing several counts is bad unless all are barred.[21] Generally, matter avoiding the operation of the statute may be set up by reply.[22] Under a practice where new matter set up is deemed controverted, a reply is not neces-

10. Davis v. Boyett, 120 Ga. 649, 48 S. E. 185.

11. Right not lost by failing to except to the amendment. Mackey v. Northern Mill. Co., 210 Ill 115, 71 N. E. 448.

12. Objection may be raised by demurrer on the general ground that a cause of action is not stated. Columbia Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Clause [Wyo.] 78 P. 708; Arkins v. Arkins [Colo. App.] 77 P. 256.

13. Must be specially pleaded [Rev. St. 1887, § 4213]. Chemung Min. Co. v. Hanley [Idaho] 77 P. 226.

14. Lane Bros. & Co. v. Bauserman [Va.] 48 S. E. 857. A motion to quash the process on such ground is a waiver of all other defects. Id.

15. To sustain a demurrer the facts to warrant the defense must distinctly appear. Bragg v. Wiseman [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 90. Action was on a claim incurred 16 years prior to filing the bill, but there was nothing to show when it became due. Sinclair v. Auxiliary Realty Co. [Md.] 57 A. 664. Where a petition shows the date of accrual but not when the action was commenced, the objection cannot be raised by demurrer on the general ground that a cause of action is not stated. Columbia Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Clause [Wyo.] 78 P. 708. Where an amended complaint shows that the bar of the statute was complete at the time it was filed, a demurrer does not raise the question whether the summons issued on filing the original petition was a sufficient commencement of the action to entitle plaintiff to a new action within one year under Rev St. 1899, § 3465. Id.

16. A complaint which shows on its face that the period of limitations has elapsed, but which alleges that defendant has continuously resided out of the state since the cause of action accrued, is good against demurrer. Reed v. Humphrey [Kan.] 76 P. 390. A plea of prescription liberandi causa, filed as an exception in limine but which contains no averments to break the force of the plaintiff's allegations, but relies on admissions in his petition, should not be sustained if the pleadings present matters of fact which affect the question. Rhodes v. Cooper [La.] 37 So. 527. A complaint in an action on a note against joint makers, alleging "that there has been nothing paid on said note except as follows," setting forth payments and date thereof, such action being barred unless the payments arrested the operation of the statute, is not demurrable. Gehres v. Orlowski [Wash.] 78 P. 792. Where a statute provides that an acknowledgment must be in writing, a complaint alleging acknowledgment will be construed as alleging that it is in writing [Code Civ. Proc. § 360]. Higgins v. Graham, 143 Cal. 131, 76 P. 898.

17. Griffith v. Seattle Consol. St R. Co. [Wash.] 79 P. 314.

18. Where the plea of limitations depends on adverse possession and other facts, they should be set forth. Rhodes v. Cooper [La.] 37 So. 527. A motion to direct a verdict on the ground of limitations is not sufficient under Code, § 3557, which enumerates a motion as a pleading. Borghart v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 101 N. W. 1120. An answer in an action to foreclose a mortgage, alleging that "no payment has been made since [a certain date], more than 20 years have elapsed since the last payment and said mortgage is no longer a legal claim under the statutes made and provided," sufficiently pleads the statute. Nickell v. Tracy, 91 N. Y. S. 287.

19. Rev. St. § 4921, amended by Act March 3, 1897, giving an action at law for damages and profits for infringement of a patent. Peters v. Hanger [C. C. A.] 127 F. 820.

20. Gray Lithograph Co. v. American Watchman's Time Detector Co., 44 Misc. 206, 88 N. Y. S. 857. Where the complaint shows that the cause is not barred, a plea of the statute of limitations is frivolous. Moore v. First Nat. Bank, 139 Ala. 595, 36 So 777.

21. Meyers v. Meyers [Ala.] 37 So. 451. A plea of limitations interposed as to all the counts of a declaration, and which does not constitute a defense as to all of them, is demurrable. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Swift, 213 Ill. 307, 72 N. E. 737

22. One sued on a note, on its face barred. Before the bar was complete, the debtor had made a new promise. Vinson v. Palmer [Fla.] 34 So. 276.

sary;[23] but where a reply is not allowed, intervening causes to take the case out of the statute must be set up in the original complaint.[24]

One setting up limitations has the burden of showing that the action is barred,[25] his opponent the burden of showing that his cause falls within an exception.[26] In an action to vacate a judgment obtained by fraud, it is not necessary to show that the defense to the original action is not barred.[27]

LIMITED PARTNERSHIP, LIQUIDATED DAMAGES, see latest topical index.

LIS PENDENS.

General rule.[28]—A "purchaser pendente lite" acquires only those rights which his grantor had,[29] and takes the same subject to any order[30] or judgment[31] that may thereafter be rendered in the case. The purchaser is not a necessary party to the proceeding,[32] though he may, on motion, be made a party,[33] and, the recovery being by virtue of the rights of one of the original parties, the fact that judgment is for one who became a party after the purchase does not change the rule.[34] Such purchaser is also bound by agreements made by his vendor in the course of the litigation,[35] and, in the absence of statutory provisions, is not entitled to notice of the pendency of the action.[36] The rule has no application to one acquiring rights prior to the bringing of the suit.[37]

23. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 522, providing that new matter set up in the answer not requiring a reply is deemed controverted, a plaintiff may prove that his case comes within an exception of the statute. Metz v. Metz, 90 N. Y. S. 340. Where a cause of action is stated and the answer pleads the bar of the statute, judgment cannot be entered for defendant on the pleadings, though from the face of the complaint the cause appears to be barred. Chemung Min. Co. v. Hanley [Idaho] 77 P. 226.

24. In Tennessee, chancery evidence of nonresidence, disability, new promise, partial payment, etc., is inadmissible where not alleged. Jenkins v. Dewar [Tenn.] 82 S. W. 470. Facts relied on to remove the bar must be specially pleaded. Shirey v. Clark [Ark.] 81 S. W. 1057. The pendency of another action must be pleaded, otherwise it cannot be relied on. Citizens' Bank v. Spencer [Iowa] 101 N. W. 643.

25. White v. Century Gold Min. & Mill. Co. [Utah] 78 P. 868. In trespass for cutting trees, limitations being pleaded, the defendant must show the date of the trespass, and where part of the cutting was barred and part was not, must show what part is barred. Buck v. Newberry [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 889.

26. The assignee must show that his assignor had not discovered the fraud within the period of limitations. Hooker v. Worthington, 134 N. C. 283, 46 S. E. 726.

27. People v. Perris Irr. Dist., 142 Cal. 601, 76 P. 381.

28. See 2 Curr. L. 762.

29. Steger v. Traveling Men's Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 208 Ill. 236, 70 N. E. 236; Martin v. Abbott [Neb.] 100 N. W. 142. Takes subject to rights of other party. Di Nola v. Allison, 143 Cal. 106, 76 P. 976. Mortgagee pendente lite is not, on eviction of his mortgagor, entitled to an equitable lien on the property on the ground that the money was spent in improvements, the mortgage was recorded, and no notice of the pendency of the action was given him by the successful party. Armstrong v. Ashley, 22 App. D. C. 368.

30. A purchaser of mining property pendente lite is bound by a subsequent order of the court permitting the adverse party to inspect and survey the mine. Heinze v. Butte & B. Consol. Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 274.

31. Hargrove v. Cherokee Nation [C. C. A.] 129 F. 186; Steger v. Traveling Men's Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 208 Ill. 236, 70 N. E. 236; Martin v. Abbott [Neb.] 100 N. W. 142; Di Nola v. Allison, 143 Cal. 106, 76 P. 976. A purchaser pendente lite is equally bound with the parties by the estoppel of the judgment. Lockhart v. Leeds [N. M.] 76 P. 312.

32. Sinclair v. Auxiliary Realty Co. [Md.] 67 A. 664. Rule applies whether he is made a party or not. Hargrove v. Cherokee Nation [C. C. A.] 129 F. 186.

33. A purchaser pendente lite being made a party on his own motion is not in a position to complain on the ground that he was not made a party on the motion of plaintiff. Sinclair v. Auxiliary Realty Co. [Md.] 57 A. 664. Where the pending suit was to set aside a fraudulent conveyance, the purchaser is not prejudiced by joining with him as co-defendant the heir of the deceased fraudulent vendee. Id.

34. Jones v. Robb [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 395.

35. Change of venue by agreement held not to destroy the force of the suit in the county where originally brought. Jones v. Robb [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 395.

36. See Armstrong v. Ashley, 22 App. D. C. 368 [supra, n. 29]. See 2 Curr. L. 762, n. 7. As to statutory provisions, see post, n. 49-58. Johnson v. McKay [Ga.] 49 S. E. 757.

37. Such person is not affected unless he be made a party. See Wilkins v. McCorkle [Tenn.] 80 S. W. 834; 2 Curr. L. 762, n. 9;

One purchasing pending an appeal[38] and a grantee in a trust deed[39] are purchasers pendente lite. Recording deed is equivalent to purchasing.[40]

A party asserting lis pendens must prosecute the suit with reasonable diligence,[41] and as to what constitutes such diligence is a question to be determined with reference to the circumstances of each particular case.[42]

Essential elements.[43]—It is essential to the rule of lis pendens that the property be of a character subject to the rule, that the court have jurisdiction, that the property be sufficiently described,[44] be then in litigation,[45] and that title be claimed under a party to the suit.[46]

[This rule is materially narrowed in its application by the registration laws; see above case for an example.]

38. In this case the appellate court tried the case upon the merits de novo Martin v. Abbott [Neb.] 100 N. W. 142, modifying Parker v. Courtnay, 28 Neb. 605, 44 N. W. 863, 26 Am. St. Rep. 360. Where no supersedeas bond was filed and the purchaser had constructive notice of the pendency of the appeal. Construing Code Civ. Proc. § 1049. Di Nola v. Allison, 143 Cal. 106, 76 P. 976.

NOTE: Appellate proceedings: Though a final judgment or decree has been entered, the losing party has the right to seek relief therefrom by an appeal or writ of error or other appellate proceeding, and sometimes by a bill of review. Where the law gives a right of review in an appellate court, it would seem that the cause ought to be deemed pending until the right has been lost. Hence it has been held that if an appeal be prosecuted within the time allowed by law, all persons acquiring an interest in the subject of the litigation after the commencement of the action must be bound by such judgment as shall ultimately be rendered therein, and that this rule is applicable to persons purchasing before an appeal has, in fact, been taken, though after the entry of the judgment subsequently appealed from. Smith v. Brittenham, 109 Ill. 540; Dunnington v. Elson, 101 Ind. 373; Real Estate, etc., Inst. v. Collonius, 63 Mo. 290; Carr v. Cates, 96 Mo. 271; Macklen v. Allenberg, 100 Mo. 337. A writ of error is in form an independent suit or proceeding. It has, therefore, been held to be subject to the rule that lis pendens does not begin until the service of the writ, and therefore it has been thought that a purchaser after entry of judgment sought to be reviewed but before the service of the writ of error was not barred by the result of the proceedings in error. Cheever v. Minton, 12 Colo. 559, 13 Am. St. Rep. 258; Eldridge v. Walker, 80 Ill. 270; McCormick v. McClure, 6 Blackf. [Ind.] 466, 39 Am. Dec. 441; Macklin v. Allenberg, 100 Mo. 337; Taylor v. Boyd, 3 Ohio, 337, 17 Am. Dec. 603; Ludlow v. Kidd, 3 Ohio, 541; Woolridge v Boyd, 13 Lea [Tenn.] 151; and there have been cases extending this rule to appeals. Cheever v. Minton, 12 Colo. 559, 13 Am. St. Rep. 258. While there may be a distinction in form, the object of the pleadings is the same and the distinction does not seem meritorious. See Smith v. Brittenham, 109 Ill. 553; Debell v. Foxworthy, 9 B. Mon. [Ky.] 228; Clarey v. Marshall, 4 Dana [Ky.] 95; Sarle v. Crouch, 3 Metc. [Ky.] 450; Clark v. Farrow, 10 B. Mon. [Ky.] 446, 52 Am. Dec. 552; Ludlow v. Kidd, 3 Ohio 541; Harle v. Langdon. 60 Tex. 555; Bishop of Winchester v. Beaver, 3 Ves. Jr. 314. Among the decisions affirming that purchasers before a bill of review is filed are nevertheless bound by the result thereof are Debell v. Foxworthy, 9 B. Mon. [Ky.] 228; Clarey v. Marshall, 4 Dana [Ky.] 95; Sarle v. Crouch, 3 Metc. [Ky.] 450; Clark v. Farrow, 10 B. Mon. [Ky.] 446, 52 Am. Dec. 552; Gore v. Stackpoole, 1 Dow. 31. And among the decisions affirming a contrary doctrine are Ludlow v. Kidd, 3 Ohio, 541; Rector v. Fitzgerald, 59 F. 808; Lee County v. Rogers, 7 Wall. [U. S.] 181, 19 Law. Ed. 160.—From note to Stout v. Phillippi Mfg. & Mercantile Co. [W. Va.] 56 Am. St. Rep. 843, 876.

39. A grantee in a trust deed, to secure a debt executed after the entry of a decree of a sale of the land under mortgage foreclosure and before the sale, is in the position of a purchaser pendente lite, and whatever interest he acquires is subject to the lien of the foreclosure decree. Senft v. Vanek, 209 Ill. 361, 70 N. E. 720.

40. Where deed was recorded after entry of decree foreclosing mortgage, held grantee was a purchaser pendente lite. Jones v. Standiferd [Kan.] 77 P. 271. One who withholds his deed from record until proceedings to foreclose a lien for taxes under Laws 1901, p. 705, ch. 392 result in a decree and sale of the land is subject to the rules governing a purchaser pendente lite. Commissioners of Atchison County v. Lips [Kan.] 76 P. 851.

41, 42. Jones v. Robb [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 395. Failure to press a suit between the years 1866 and 1870 held, in view of the disturbed condition existing in Texas at that time, not such negligence as to destroy its force as a pending suit. Id. See 2 Curr. L. 762, n. 10.

43. See 2 Curr. L. 762.

44. Petition describing a tract of a designated number of acres by naming co-terminus owners and alleging manner in which plaintiff acquired title held sufficient to operate as a lis pendens. Johnson v. McKay [Ga.] 49 S. E. 757. A petition giving the outside boundaries of a tract of a designated number of acres is sufficient to operate as lis pendens as against a subsequent mortgagee of a portion of the tract. Id. See 2 Curr. L. 762, n. 13.

45. The holder of notes given a mortgagor for the price of one of three tracts of land embraced in the mortgage by filing a notice that in an action by such purchaser against the mortgagor he had filed a cross action affecting the other two tracts, held not to give him a lien on such tracts as against subsequent purchasers. Griffin v. Gingell, 25 Ky. L. R. 2031, 79 S. W. 284. See 2 Curr. L. 762, n. 14.

Property within the rule.[47]—The doctrine has no application to negotiable instruments.[48]

Statutory lis pendens.[49]—In some states the common-law rule of notice arising from the action itself is abrogated and the filing of a notice is required;[50] but a case not coming within the statute, the common-law rule obtains.[51] A lis pendens filed in a purely personal action is a nullity.[52] This filing is only required in the absence of actual[53] or constructive[54] notice of the pendency of the action. The right to file a statutory lis pendens is an absolute one,[55] the notice being effective only from the time of filing,[56] and the judgment in the action has no retroactive power in favor of such notice.[57]

A notice of lis pendens in a divorce suit is not effective as against a judgment lien obtained on community property pending the determination of the divorce suit.[58]

Continuity of lis pendens.[59]—Where the death of a party does not abate the action, its force as a pending suit continues until lost by the laches of the litigants in failing to make new parties.[60]

A statutory notice cannot be canceled other than in the manner prescribed by statute,[61] the court having no discretion in the matter,[62] and on a motion to cancel, the court cannot consider whether the action can be maintained.[63]

Rights of purchaser and parties.—A purchaser pending a suit to foreclose an alleged judgment lien is entitled to have such judgment lien annulled, it being

46. An intervener, by consent of all parties, withdrawing his intervention before hearing, a subsequent purchaser from him is not a purchaser pendente lite. Rogers v. Winds Lumber Co. [Ark.] 80 S. W. 584. The doctrine that an entry by a stranger to the suit, pendente lite, affects him by the judgment as if he were a party to the record applies only when the stranger enters on the land under some person who is a party to the suit. Graham's Heirs v. Kitchen, 25 Ky. L. R. 2224, 80 S. W. 464. See 2 Curr. L. 762, n. 15.

47. See 2 Curr. L. 763.

48. Shannon's Code, §§ 5260, 5267 as to attachments considered as a statutory lis pendens. Kimbrough v. Hornsby [Tenn.] 84 S. W. 613. See 2 Curr. L. 763, n. 19.

49. See 2 Curr. L. 763.

50. California: Page v. Chase Co. [Cal.] 79 P. 278.

Mississippi: The provisions of the Mississippi statutes regarding lis pendens do not apply to a suit to set aside a fraudulent conveyance under Code 1892, § 503. Fernwood Lumber Co. v. Meehan-Rounds Lumber Co. [Miss.] 37 So. 502. See 2 Curr. L. 763, n. 20, 21.

51. Indiana: In a suit to reform a deed executed by one having the legal title and the record title being in defendant, complainant is not required to file a notice under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 328. Rothschild v. Leonhard [Ind. App.] 71 N E. 673. See 2 Curr. L. 763, n. 24.

52. Bayley v. Bayley [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 271.

53. Martin v. Abbott [Neb.] 100 N. W. 142, modifying Parker v. Courtnay, 28 Neb. 605, 44 N. W. 863, 26 Am. St. Rep. 360. Purchaser for value without notice held not affected by levy of attachment, the statutory notice not being given. White v. Manning [Ky.] 82 S. W. 607.

54. The pendency of the action appearing in the record of one's title, he is presumed to have notice thereof. Di Nola v. Allison, 143 Cal. 106, 76 P. 976.

55. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1670. Shandley v. Levine, 44 Misc. 23, 89 N. Y. S. 717.

56. Code Civ. Proc. § 153. Greenwood Loan & Guarantee Ass'n v. Childs [S. C.] 45 S. E. 167. Under Gen. St. 1894, § 4180, such notice does not affect the rights of a prior unrecorded conveyance. West Missabe Land Co. v. Berg [Minn.] 99 N. W. 209 [see case for brief history of lis pendens statutes in Minnesota]. Code Civ. Proc. § 409. Page v. Chase Co. [Cal.] 79 P. 278. Such section applies to suits to foreclose the lien of street assessments. Id. See 2 Curr. L. 763, n. 22.

57. Cannot affect the rights of the holder of a conveyance acquired prior to, but recorded after, the filing of the notice. Construing Gen. St. 1894, § 4180. West Missabe Land Co. v. Berg [Minn.] 99 N. W. 209.

58. Mayberry v. Whitter, 144 Cal. 322, 78 P. 16.

59. See 2 Curr. L. 763.

60. Jones v. Robb [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 395.

61. Cannot be canceled except pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1674. Shandley v. Levine, 44 Misc. 23, 89 N. Y. S. 717. See 2 Curr. L. 764, n. 30.

62. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1674, the court has no discretion to refuse the cancellation of the notice after final judgment has been rendered. Jarvis v. American Forcite Powder Mfg. Co., 93 App. Div. 234, 87 N. Y. S. 742. A judgment in an action of ejectment dismissing the complaint upon the merits is such a final judgment, though it may be subsequently vacated. Id. See 2 Curr. L. 764, n. 29.

63. Shandley v. Levine, 44 Misc. 23, 89 N. Y. S. 717.

invalid.[64] The purchaser acquiring possession of the property may be dispossessed precisely as the person from whom he acquired possession might have been dispossessed,[65] and, he having purchased the property from the purchaser at execution pending an appeal, the appellant on securing a reversal does not need a writ of restitution to enable him to assert his rights.[66]

LITERARY PROPERTY; LIVERY STABLE KEEPERS; LIVE STOCK INSURANCE; LLOYD'S; LOAN AND TRUST COMPANIES; LOANS; LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS AND ASSESSMENTS; LOCAL OPTION; LOGS AND LOGGING; LOST INSTRUMENTS; LOST PROPERTY, see latest topical index.

LOTTERIES.

What constitutes.[67]—A lottery is a scheme for the distribution of property by chance among persons who have paid, or agreed to pay, a valuable consideration for the chance.[68] It does not cease to be such and become a mere contest because its result may be affected to some slight extent by the exercise of judgment.[69] An event presents the elements of chance in so far as, after the exercise of research, investigation, skill and judgment, it is impossible to foresee its occurrence or non-occurrence, or the forms and conditions of its occurrence.[70] One purchasing commodities entitling him to compete for prizes pays a valuable consideration for the chance.[71]

Advertising a lottery,[72] contriving or assisting to contrive a lottery scheme or gift enterprise,[73] or offering for distribution property, the title to which is to

64. Austin v. Lauderdale [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 413.

65. Hargrove v. Cherokee Nation [C. C. A.] 129 F. 186.

66. Di Nola v. Allison, 143 Cal. 106, 76 P. 976. A purchaser from the prevailing party pending an appeal is not entitled on reversal to claim protection from the restitution which plaintiff would have been required to make under Code Civ. Proc. § 957, if the sale had been ordered by the judgment or under process issued upon the judgment. Id.

67. See 2 Curr. L. 764. See, also, titles Betting and Gaming, 3 Curr. L. 499; Gambling Contracts, 3 Curr. L. 1546.

68. Whether called lottery, raffle, gift enterprise, or by some other name [N. Y. Pen. Code, § 323]. People v. Lavin [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 753, rvg. 93 App. Div. 614, 87 N. Y. S. 776. A scheme for the distribution of prizes by lot or chance, especially a gaming scheme in which one or more tickets bearing particular numbers draw prizes and the rest do not. McRea v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 741. In order to constitute a lottery or gift enterprise, there must be a purchase of a right, contingent to receive something greater than that purchased, the contingency depending upon lot or chance. City of Winston v. Beeson, 135 N. C. 271, 47 S. E. 457.

Schemes constituting lotteries: Distribution of money and cigars among persons sending in bands from certain cigars who estimate most closely the number of cigars of all brands on which the government will collect taxes during a certain month. People v. Lavin [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 753, rvg. 93 App. Div. 614, 87 N. Y. S. 776. Suit club whose members pay tailor certain sum per week, and which holds weekly drawings, the member holding the lucky number receiving a suit of clothes and ceasing to be a member, is lottery, though unlucky members paying $1 per week for 30 weeks receive $30 suit regardless of result of drawings. De Florin v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 699. A scheme whereby an investment company issued bonds numbered as the applications were received, the time of payment, and consequently their value depending on the numbers they happened to receive. Siver v. Guarantee Inv. Co. [Mo.] 81 S. W. 1098. Notes given in payment of part of the amount due under matured bonds invalid. Did not constitute loan. Id.

Schemes not lotteries: Operating knife rack consisting of inclined table with knives stuck therein, over which persons endeavored to throw rings sold by the operator, they being entitled to the knives when they did so. McRea v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 741. The giving of trading stamps is not a "gift enterprise" or lottery within the meaning of charter authorizing license tax. City of Winston v. Beeson, 135 N. C. 271, 47 S. E. 457. For note as to whether the giving of trading stamps is a lottery, see Betting and Gaming, § 1, 3 Curr. L. 500, n. 99.

69, 70. People v. Lavin [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 753, rvg. 93 App. Div. 614, 87 N. Y. S. 776.

71. Purchase of cigars, the bands on which entitle him to estimate number of cigars to be sold. People v. Lavin [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 753, rvg. 93 App. Div. 614, 87 N. Y. S. 776.

72. Made a misdemeanor by N. Y. Penal Code, § 327. People v. Lavin [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 753, rvg. 93 App. Div. 614, 87 N. Y. S. 776.

73. No evidence to show violation. Error to permit jury to find defendant guilty under count charging its violation on evidence showing violation of another section, which had been taken from their consideration because court had no jurisdiction to try it [N. Y. Pen. Code, § 325]. People v. Pickert, 96 App. Div. 637, 89 N. Y. S. 183.

be determined by lot or chance, upon the drawing of a lottery, are generally forbidden.[74]

Lottery is a gaming device,[75] and a city council having power to prevent and suppress gaming and gambling houses may pass an ordinance prohibiting the setting up or keeping of a house for the purpose of selling lottery tickets.[76]

Policy.—Statutes generally forbid the operation of policy lotteries,[77] or the having in one's possession of any tickets or slips pertaining thereto.[78] It is proper to permit an expert to testify that the papers in question are such as pertain to policy, where they are not, on their face, sufficient to give information of their true character to the members of the jury as men of common understanding.[79]

MAIMING; MAYHEM.

No cases have been found for this subject since the last article.[80]

MALICE; MALICIOUS ABUSE OF PROCESS, see latest topical index.

MALICIOUS MISCHIEF. [81]

The act must be malicious, and accident[82] or claim of right[83] is a defense. A street railroad is not within a statute relating to injury to "railroad" rolling stock.[84] A charge of injury to property of four persons is not sustained by proof that one had an easement therein and the others no interest.[85] On a prosecution for injury to real property, a defendant out of possession may show title in himself.[86] A provision for increased punishment where the value of the property exceeds $50 refers to the value of the property injured.[87]

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION AND ABUSE OF PROCESS.

[SPECIAL ARTICLE* BY GEO. F. LONGSDORF.]

§ 1. Nature and Elements of the Wrongs (471).
A. Malicious Criminal Prosecutions (471).
B. Malicious Civil Proceedings and Abuse of Process (472). Ordinary Civil Actions (472). Actions or Proceedings Involving Injury to Reputation or Credit (475). Malicious Arrest in a Civil Action (476). Malicious Proceedings to Have One Declared Insane (476).

74. N. Y. Pen. Code, § 328, makes it misdemeanor. Evidence held to show violation of this section. People v. Pickert, 96 App. Div. 637, 89 N. Y. S. 183. Supreme court has no jurisdiction of prosecutions for violations of section 328. Id.

75. City of Portland v. Yick, 44 Or. 439, 75 P. 706.

76. Ordinance valid. City of Portland v. Yick, 44 Or. 439, 75 P. 706.

77. Evidence sufficient to sustain conviction for operating policy lottery. O'Dell v. State, 120 Ga. 152, 47 S. E. 577. Instructions as to reasonable doubt and impeachment approved. Id.

78. In order to constitute the offense of knowingly having in possession "any paper, document, slip, or memorandum that shall pertain in any way to the business of lottery policy, so called," it is not essential that there be in truth such a game or business conducted. N. J. Crimes Act 1898, § 58, as amended in 1899 (P. L. 1898, p. 810; P. L. 1899, p. 215). The pretended or "so called" business is equally prohibited. State v. Arthur [N. J. Law] 57 A. 156. Evidence sufficient to show that defendant knew the character of the tickets, and to sustain conviction. Id.

79. Officer qualified as expert. State v. Arthur [N. J. Law] 57 A. 156.

80. See 2 Curr. L. 765.

81. See 2 Curr. L. 766. See, also, Animals, 3 Curr. L. 159 (injury to animals); Highways and Streets, 3 Curr. L. 1593 (injury to highways).

82. Stone flung at person struck house. Niblo v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 79 S. W. 31.

83. Destruction of fence under claim of right. Giddings v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 694; Shrouder v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 702. Digging of ditch on land which defendant believed he owned. Adams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 963.

84. State v. Caln [Kan.] 76 P. 443.

85. Grant v. State, 120 Ga. 199, 47 S. E. 524.

86. Adams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 963.

87. Injury to small corner of tract of land not within statute. Adams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 N. W. 963.

*All late cases are included and marked by a dagger (†).

Actions or Proceedings Involving Interference With the Possession, Use, or Enjoyment of Personal Property (476). Attachment (477). Garnishment (477). Execution (177). Replevin (477). Bankruptcy and Insolvency Proceedings (477). Action to Wind up a Partnership (478). Actions or Proceedings Involving Interference With the Possession, Use, or Enjoyment of Real Property (478). Malicious Use of Injunction (479). Other Cases of Malicious Abuse of Process (479).

C. Search Warrants (480).

§ 2. Responsibility of Defendant for the Prosecution or Suit and His Participation Therein (480).

§ 3. The Prosecution of the Plaintiff (483). Want of Jurisdiction and Defects or Irregularities in Proceedings (484). Effect of Want of Jurisdiction or Irregularities in Civil Actions (485).

§ 4. Termination of Prosecution in Plaintiff's Favor (485). Favorable Termination or Innocence of the Plaintiff (487). Rule in Respect to Civil Prosecutions and Abuse of Process (488).

§ 5. Want of Reasonable and Probable Cause (489).

A. In Malicious Criminal Prosecution (489). Effect of Malice (490). "Probable Cause" Defined (491). Evidence (492). Province of Court and Jury (495).

B. In Malicious Civil Prosecution (496).

C. In Case of Abuse of Process (498).

§ 6. Malice (498).

§ 7. Advice of Private Counsel, Prosecuting Attorney, or Magistrate (500). In Civil Suits (502).

§ 8. Advice of a Physician on Insanity (503).

§ 9. Damages (503).

§ 10. General Matters of Practice and Pleading (505).

§ 11. Malicious Prosecution as a Crime (506).

§ 1. Nature and elements of the wrongs. A. Malicious criminal prosecutions.[88]—For a person to prosecute another, or cause him to be prosecuted, for an offense of which he is innocent, when he acts maliciously and without reasonable and probable cause, is a tort, for which the person so prosecuted may maintain an action on the case, known as an action for malicious prosecution.[89] As we shall hereafter see, an action may also be maintained, subject to some limitations, for the malicious prosecution of a civil suit without probable cause, and for malicious abuse of criminal or civil process not amounting to a prosecution at all. Malicious criminal prosecution often co-exists with false imprisonment which is distinct in being grounded on an unlawful detention or restraint of one's person.[90]

To sustain such an action, it may be said generally, and subject to explanations hereafter given, that the plaintiff must show the following facts, and that the failure of proof as to any one of them will be fatal:

(1) That the plaintiff has been prosecuted.
(2) That the defendant was the prosecutor, or instigated the prosecution.
(3) That the defendant had no probable cause to do so.
(4) That defendant acted with malice.
(5) That the prosecution has terminated in favor of the now plaintiff.[91]

The expression that "malice and want of probable cause must concur" means simply that they must both be present, and it is usually said in reference to the possibility that the inference of malice from want of probable cause may be overthrown.[92] Wrongfulness is not imparted to a prosecution on probable cause by making averments needlessly harsh.[93] It is said by the Illinois courts that such suits tend to discourage criminal prosecutions and should not be favored.[94]

88. See 2 Curr. L. 767.

89. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 392; Delegal v. Highley, 3 Bing. N. C. 950; Carl v. Ayers, 53 N. Y. 14, Chase's Cas. 94; Vinal v. Core, 18 W. Va. 1; Merriam v. Mitchell, 13 Me. 439, 29 Am. Dec. 514; Pullen v. Glidden, 66 Me. 202, Chase's Cas. 99, Erwin's Cas. 462; Stewart v. Thompson, 51 Pa. 158.

90. See False Imprisonment, 3 Curr. L. 1417; Cyc. Law Dict. "False Imprisonment."

91. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 392-396; Abrath v. North Eastern R. Co., 11 Q. B. Div. 440, 11 App. Cas. 247; Grant v. Devel, 3 Rob. [La.] 17, 38 Am. Dec. 228; Miller v. Milligan, 48 Barb. [N. Y.] 30, Chase's Cas. 98; Vinal v. Core, 18 W. Va. 1. For a valuable note on "Malicious Prosecution of Criminal Charges," see 26 Am. St. Rep. 127-164.

92. See post, § 5.

93. Bartlett v. Brown, 6 R. I. 37, 75 Am. Dec. 675.

94. Hurd v. Shaw, 20 Ill. 354; Ames v. Snider, 69 Ill. 376; Thomas v. Muehlmann, 92 Ill. App. 571; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Pierce, 98 Ill. App. 368.

(§ 1) B. Malicious civil proceedings and abuse of process.[95]—For convenience the rules in respect to ordinary civil actions and those entailing special injury to the person or seizure of his property will be considered separately without attempting any generalization further than to say that the tortiousness of such acts is well recognized within the limits hereafter stated.[96]

Ordinary civil actions.—It is an established doctrine in England that, since the statutes giving costs to the defendant,[97] an action for malicious prosecution will not lie for the prosecution of a civil action, although it be shown that there was not reasonable and probable cause, and that the action was instituted and prosecuted maliciously, unless there is some special injury to reputation, or by reason of a seizure of property or arrest of the person. "In the present day, and according to our present law," said Bowen, L. J., in an English case, "the bringing of an ordinary action, however maliciously, and however great the want of reasonable and probable cause, will not support a subsequent action for malicious prosecution."[98] The reason given for this doctrine is that "in contemplation of law the defendant if unreasonably sued is sufficiently indemnified by a judgment in his favor, which gives him his costs against the plaintiff. And special damage beyond the expense to which he has been put cannot well be so connected with the suit as a natural and probable consequence that the unrighteous plaintiff, on the ordinary principles of liability for indirect consequences, will be answerable for them."[99]

This doctrine has also been recognized by many of the courts in the United States, following the English decisions. These courts hold that, while an action may be maintained for the malicious prosecution without probable cause of a civil action or proceeding causing special damage to reputation or credit, or to the person, or to property, such an action cannot be maintained when there is no such special damage, but merely the expenses of a defense.[1] "If the person be not arrested, or his property seized," said the Pennsylvania court, "it is unimportant how futile and unfounded the action may be, as the plaintiff, in consideration of law, is punished by the payment of costs."[2] And in a New Jersey case it was said: "Merely for the expenses of a civil suit, however malicious

95. See 2 Curr. L. 767, and as to abuse of process, see 2 Curr. L. 1277.

96. See the following portions of this section, and see McCormick H. M. Co. v. Willan [63 Neb. 391, 88 N. W. 497], 93 Am. St. Rep. 449, with extensive monographic note 454.

97. See infra, this section, notes 98, 99, 5.

98. Quartz Hill Gold Min. Co. v. Eyre, 11 Q. B. Div. 674, 690. See, also, Savil v. Roberts, Salk. 15.

99. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 398-400.

1. McNamee v. Minke, 49 Md. 122 (and see Clements v. Odorless Excavating Apparatus Co., 67 Md. 461, 1 Am. St. Rep. 409; Bartlett v. Christhilf, 69 Md. 219); Potts v. Imlay, 4 N. J. Law, 330, 7 Am. Dec. 603; Bitz v. Meyer, 40 N. J. Law, 252, 29 Am. Rep. 233; Mayer v. Walter, 64 Pa. 285; Muldoon v. Rickey, 103 Pa. 110, 49 Am. Rep. 117; Norcross v. Otis Bros. & Co., 152 Pa. 481, 34 Am. St. Rep. 669; Mitchell v. Southwestern R. Co., 75 Ga. 398 (but see the Georgia cases in note 4, infra); Wetmore v. Mellinger, 64 Iowa, 741, 52 Am. Rep. 465; Smith v. Michigan Buggy Co., 175 Ill. 619, 67 Am. St. Rep. 242; Dooley v. Meisenbach, 83 Ill. App. 75; Willard v. Holmes Booth & Hayden, 142 N. Y. 492; Cincinnati Daily Tribune Co. v. Bruck, 61 Ohio St. 489, 76 Am. St. Rep. 433 (seemingly a clear departure from the earlier case of Pope v. Pollock, 46 Ohio St. 367, 15 Am. St. Rep. 608, 4 L. R. A. 255, Chase's Cas. 104, although an attempt to distinguish it was made); McCord-Collins Commerce Co. v. Levi, 21 Tex. Civ. App. 109; Ely v. Davis, 111 N. C. 24; Terry v. Davis, 114 N. C. 31. See, also, Luby v. Bennett, 111 Wis. 613, 87 Am. St. Rep. 897, 56 L. R. A. 261 (where, however, the question, although discussed at length, was not decided); Eslava v. Jones, 83 Ala. 139, 3 Am. St. Rep. 699.

See a valuable monographic note, "Liability for Malicious Prosecution of Civil Actions," 93 Am. St. Rep. 454. See, also, note 10 L. R. A. 621.

There must be arrest of person or seizure of property or a special injury beyond that incident to every suit of like kind. †Abbott v. Thorne, 34 Wash. 692, 76 P. 302. For a malicious abuse of injunction whereby sale of goods was restrained, there can be no recovery if no proof of purpose or desire to sell while enjoined and in the face of proof of salability afterwards at higher price. †Williams v. Ainsworth [Wis.] 99 N. W. 327.

2. Mayer v. Walter, 64 Pa. 285. Accord. Norcross v. Otis, 152 Pa. 481, 34 Am. St. Rep. 669.

and however groundless, this action does not lie, nor ever did, so far as I can find, at any period in our judicial history. It must be attended, besides ordinary expenses, with other special grievance or damage, not necessarily incident to a defense, but superadded to it by the malice and contrivance of the plaintiff; and of these an arrest seems to be the only one spoken of in our books,"—and in another place: "Formerly the amercement, now the costs, are the only penalty the law has given against the plaintiff for prosecuting a suit in a court of justice in the regular and ordinary way, even though he fail in such prosecution. The courts of law are open to every citizen, and he may sue, toties quoties, upon the penalty of lawful costs only. These are considered as a sufficient compensation for the mere expenses of the defendant in his defense."[3]

In other states, however, this doctrine is repudiated as not based upon any sound reason, for the recovery of costs by the defendant in an action, as is clear, does not in fact indemnify him, and also as being contrary to the general principles upon which the right of action for malicious abuse of process is based; and in these states it is held that an action for malicious prosecution will lie for the prosecution, maliciously and without probable cause, of an ordinary civil action, although commenced by summons only, where the defendant therein has in fact sustained damage by being put to expense, etc., although there may have been no arrest of his person or seizure of his property, and his only damages may be the expense to which he has been put by the groundless suit.[4] "Whatever," said the Connecticut court, "might have been true when the several statutes giving costs were enacted,[5] we cannot, at this day, shut our eyes to the truth known to everybody, that taxable costs afford a very partial and inadequate remuneration for the necessary expenses of defending an unfounded suit; and of course this remedy is not adequate to repair the injury thus received; and the common law declares, that for every injury there is a remedy. Before the statutes entitling defendants to costs existed, they had a remedy at common law for injuries sustained by reason of suits which were malicious and without probable cause.[6] And this principle is, and ought to be, operative still, in all cases where the taxation of costs is not an ample remedy."[7]

All of the courts,—both in England and in the United States,—probably agree that an action for malicious prosecution or abuse of process will lie where

3. Potts v. Imlay, 4 N. J. Law, 330, 7 Am. Dec. 603.

4. Woods v. Finnell, 13 Bush [Ky.] 628; Closson v. Staples, 42 Vt. 209, 1 Am. Rep. 316; Whipple v. Fuller, 11 Conn. 582, 29 Am. Dec. 330; Smith v. Smith, 26 Hun [N. Y.] 573; Pangburn v. Bull, 1 Wend. [N. Y.] 345; Marbourg v. Smith, 11 Kan. 554; McCardle v. McGinley, 86 Ind. 538, 44 Am. Rep. 343; Lockenour v. Sides, 57 Ind. 360, 26 Am. Rep. 58; Smith v. Burrus, 106 Mo. 94, 27 Am. St. Rep. 329; Eastin v. Bank of Stockton, 66 Cal. 123, 56 Am. Rep. 77; O'Neill v. Johnson, 53 Minn. 439, 39 Am. St. Rep. 615; McPherson v. Runyon, 41 Minn. 524, 16 Am. St. Rep. 727; Lipscomb v. Shafner, 96 Tenn. 112; Kolka v. Jones, 6 N. D. 461, 66 Am. St. Rep. 615; Slater v. Kimbro, 91 Ga. 217, 44 Am. St. Rep. 19; Roberts v. Keeler, 111 Ga. 181; Brand v. Hinchman, 68 Mich. 590, 13 Am. St. Rep. 362; McCormick Harvester Mach. Co. v. Willan, 63 Neb. 391, 88 N. W. 497, 93 Am. St. Rep. 449, 56 L. R. A. 338 (explaining dictum apparently to the contrary in Rice v. Day, 34 Neb. 100). See also. Antcliff v. June, 81 Mich. 477, 21 Am. St. Rep. 533, 10 L. R. A. 621; Wade v. Nat. Bank of Commerce, 114 F. 377. That the malicious assertion of a counterclaim known to be groundless might be made the ground of an action to recover damages sustained was intimated in Kolka v. Jones, 6 N. D. 461, 470, 66 Am. St. Rep. 615, 621. Suing out a money rule against a levying officer is in effect the bringing of an action within this doctrine. Roberts v. Keeler, 111 Ga. 181.

5. Statute of Marlbridge, 52 Hen. III; Stat. 4 Jac. I, c. 3.

6. Citing Co. Litt. 161a; 3 Lev. 210; 2 Wils. 305, 379; Hob. 266; 4 Mod. 13; 3 Chit. Bl. 125. See, also, Waterer v. Freeman, Hob. 205.

7. Whipple v. Fuller, 11 Conn. 582, 29 Am. Dec. 330. "While it may perhaps be said that the weight of authority denies the action in such cases, the weight of reason certainly approves it. And latterly the American authorities are tending strongly and increasing rapidly in favor of the maintenance of the suit." Morse, J., in Brand v. Hinchman, 68 Mich. 590, 13 Am. St. Rep. 362.

a civil action, prosecuted maliciously and without probable cause, results in special damage to the defendant in addition to the expenses of his defense, whether in reputation or credit,[8] as in the case of bankruptcy proceedings, or to the person, as in the case of an arrest in a civil action, or to property, as in the case of attachment, replevin, etc.[9] "The action lies," it was said in a New York case, "against any person who maliciously and without probable cause prosecutes another, whereby the party prosecuted sustains an injury either in person, property, or reputation."[10]

If a person maliciously and without probable cause prosecutes a civil action in the name of a third person, the defendant therein may maintain an action against him if he has sustained actual damage, but not otherwise;[11] but one not a party is not injured.[12] In so far as the elements of malicious civil prosecution differ from those of criminal prosecutions,[13] they will be discussed hereafter.[14]

Abuse of process[15] is the malicious or unfounded use of some regular legal proceeding to obtain an advantage over an opponent[16] which it is not the purpose of the law to effect thereby.[17] Neither actual malice, except possibly under statutory definitions,[18] want of probable cause, nor a determination of the action,[19] is essential; but probable cause makes innocuous the issuance of unfounded process,[20] and the abuse implies malice,[21] that is, an ulterior purpose,[22] whilst advice of counsel may show good faith and disprove an ulterior purpose.[23] As in other torts there must be damage, i. e., arrest or seizure of property.[24] Some authorities regard malice as essential,[25] but it would be more accurate speech to say that only an ulterior purpose must exist.[26] The improper use of process made after issuance and not the mere fact of an improper motive in causing issuance or in using it for a proper purpose affords the test.[27] The use of it for a proper purpose howsoever maliciously is not a wrong.[28] A direct action lies for the wrong.[29]

8. Compare, however, Cincinnati Daily Tribune Co. v. Bruck, 61 Ohio St. 489, 76 Am. St. Rep. 433, referred to in note 31, infra.

9. Co. Litt. 161a; Savil v. Roberts, 1 Salk. 14; Austin v. Dibnam, 3 Barn. & C. 139; Gyfford v. Woodgate, 11 East, 297; Quartz Hill Gold Min. Co. v. Eyre, 11 Q. B. Div. 674; Wells v. Noyes, 12 Pick. [Mass.] 324; Savage v. Brewer, 16 Pick. [Mass.] 453, 28 Am. Dec. 255; Turner v. Walker, 3 Gill & J. [Md.] 377, 22 Am. Dec. 329; Morton v. Young, 55 Me. 24, 92 Am. Dec. 565. And see post, § 1B, where these cases are specifically treated.

10. Nelson, C. J., in Bump v. Betts, 19 Wend. [N. Y.] 421, Chase's Cas. 107, Erwin's Cas. 452.

11. Cotterell v. Jones, 11 C. B. 713.

12. Duncan v. Griswold, 92 Ky. 546, 18 S. W. 354.

13. See ante, this section.

14. See post, § 2 et seq.

15. See Process, § 9, 2 Curr. L. 1277.

16. Cyc. Law Dict. "Abuse of Process" citing Wharton.

17. Mayer v. Walter, 64 Pa. 283, cited 1 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law [2d Ed.] 222; Johnson v. Reed, 136 Mass. 421; Bartlett v. Christhilf, 69 Md. 219; Doctor v. Riedel, 96 Wis. 158, 71 N. W. 119, 65 Am. St. Rep. 40. The "perversion" of process. Nix v. Goodhill, 95 Iowa, 282, 58 Am. St. Rep. 434. "Two elements are necessary * * * (1) the exististence of an ulterior purpose, (2) an act in the use of process not proper in the regular prosecution of the proceeding." Bonney v. King, 201 Ill. 47, 66 N. E. 377; Jeffrey v. Robbins, 73 Ill. App. 353. A valuable and exhaustive monographic note "Abuse of Process" will be found in 86 Am. St. Rep. 398.

18. Jeffery v. Robbins, 73 Ill. App. 353; Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Arbuckle, 52 Ill. App. 33; Wicker v. Hotchkiss, 62 Ill. 107, 14 Am. Rep. 75.

19. Hazard v. Harding, 63 How. Pr. [N. Y.] 326; Wicker v. Hotchkiss, 62 Ill. 107, 14 Am. Rep. 75; Emery v. Ginnan, 24 Ill. App. 65; Mark v. Merz, 53 Ill. App. 458; Page v. Cushing, 38 Me. 523, and many cases cited in note 86 Am. St. Rep. 398. Termination need not be pleaded. Sneeden v. Harriss, 109 N. C. 349, 14 L. R. A. 389.

20. Distress warrant. Hammond v. Will, 60 Ill. 404. Attachment. Humphreys v. Sutcliffe, 192 Pa. 336, 73 Am. St. Rep. 819.

21. Schaper v. Sutter, 63 Ill. App. 257; Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Arbuckle, 52 Ill. App. 33; Wicker v. Hotchkiss, 62 Ill. 107, 14 Am. Rep. 75.

22. Jeffrey v. Robbins, 73 Ill. App. 353; Barrett v. White, 3 N. H. 210, 14 Am. Dec. 352.

23. Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Arbuckle, 52 Ill. App. 33.

24. See ante, this section.

25. Humphreys v. Sutcliffe, 192 Pa. 336, 73 Am. St. Rep. 819; 19 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law [2d Ed.] 632, citing numerous cases.

26. Stewart v. Cole, 46 Ala. 646; Page v. Cushing, 38 Me. 523, cited in note 86 Am. St. Rep. 398.

27. Bonney v. King, 201 Ill. 47, 66 N. E.

Actions or proceedings involving injury to reputation or credit.—Even in England and other jurisdictions where the general rule that an action will not lie for the malicious prosecution of an ordinary civil action is settled, it is held that an action will lie for prosecuting, maliciously and without probable cause, a civil action or proceeding which directly and naturally involves injury to the reputation or credit.[30] Thus, the prosecution, maliciously and without probable cause, of bankruptcy proceedings against a trader, or the analogous proceedings against a corporation to wind it up for insolvency, since it "is in itself a blow struck at the credit of the person or company whose affairs are thus brought in question," is an actionable wrong.[31] There was a somewhat similar decision in a late Wisconsin case, where it was held that an action would lie for the malicious prosecution of a civil action brought ostensibly for the purpose of winding up a partnership, but in reality for the purpose of obtaining possession and control of the partnership property.[32] An action for suing out an attachment maliciously and without probable cause, and levying on property, may be sustained on this ground, in so far as the defendant's reputation, credit, and business are injured thereby.[33] Ordinarily, however, the action is based on the injury to property.[34] Merely tak-

377; Rogers v. O'Barr [Tex. Civ. App.] 76 S. W. 593; Foy v. Barry, 87 App. Div. 291, 84 N. Y. S. 335; Jeffrey v. Robbins, 73 Ill. App. 353; Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Arbuckle, 52 Ill. App. 33; Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co. v. Ryan, 46 Ill. App. 313.

Held an abuse: Serving summons on sick person by entering locked house. Foley v. Martin [Cal.] 71 P. 165. Bail process abused. Woodley v. Coker, 119 Ga. 226, 46 S. E. 89. Service on one lured into state by trick and deception. Wanzer v. Bright, 52 Ill. 35. Subpoena for defendant as witness and attachment for nonattendance designed to coerce payment of a small demand. Dishaw v. Wadleigh, 15 App. Div. [N. Y.] 205. Issuing execution and levying after satisfaction of judgment. Buffalo Lubr. Oil Co. v. Everest, 30 Hun [N. Y.] 586. Coercing execution of mortgage by threat of arrest under warrant. Bane v. Detrick, 52 Ill. 19. Arrest solely to collect debt. Mayer v. Oldham, 32 Ill. App. 233. Arresting one to coerce settlement by his father. Foy v. Barry, 87 App. Div. 291, 84 N. Y. S. 335. Causing garnishment of exempt wages to coerce payment through fear of discharge from employment. †Cooper v. Scyoc, 104 Mo. App. 414, 79 S. W. 751. Not an abuse of garnishment process to honestly assign claim (if not prohibited) in order to evade exemption laws of one's own state. Leeman v. McGrath, 116 Wis. 49, 92 N. W. 425. Suing for more than is due after promise to forbear but without malice. Hendricks v. Middlebrooks Co., 118 Ga. 131, 44 S. E. 835. Going out of state to sue by foreign attachment. Mitchell v. Shook, 72 Ill. 492.

28. Doctor v. Riedel, 96 Wis. 158, 65 Am. St. Rep. 40, 37 L. R. A. 580.

29. Cantine v. Clark, 41 Barb. [N. Y.] 629; Antcliff v. June, 81 Mich. 477, 21 Am. St. Rep. 533, 10 L. R. A. 621; Nix v. Goodhill, 95 Iowa, 282, 58 Am. St. Rep. 434; Johnson v. Reed, 136 Mass. 421. And see Rosenthal v. Circuit Judge, 98 Mich. 208, 39 Am. St. Rep. 535, 22 L. R. A. 693.

30. Bowen, L. J., in Quartz Hill Gold Min. Co. v. Eyre, 11 Q. B. Div. 674, 691. And see Wade v. National Bank of Commerce, 114 F. 377.

31. Pollock, Torts [Webb's Ed.] 400; Quartz Hill Gold Min. Co. v. Eyre, 11 Q. B. Div. 674; Brown v. Chapman, 1 W. Bl. 427; Chapman v. Pickersgill, 2 Wils. 145; Stewart v. Sonneborn, 98 U. S. 187, Burdick's Cas. 253. But see Liquid, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Convert, 82 Ill. App. 39, wherein a suit for receivership was the basis of the action. In a late Ohio case it was held that a corporation has no cause of action for the malicious prosecution of a suit against it by one of its stockholders, on a false averment of its insolvency, for its dissolution and the appointment of a receiver, to the great injury of its credit and business. Cincinnati Daily Tribune Co. v. Bruck, 61 Ohio St. 489, 76 Am. St. Rep. 433. In this case, however, the court based its decision on the ground that "no recovery can be had by a defendant against a plaintiff for the malicious prosecution of a civil action where there has been no arrest of the person or seizure of property," apparently ignoring the fact that injury to reputation or credit is such special damage as will sustain an action. The case is directly opposed by the English case of Quartz Hill Gold Min. Co. v. Eyre, 11 Q. B. Div. 674, in which it was held that an action for malicious prosecution will lie for falsely and maliciously, and without reasonable and probable cause, presenting (by a stockholder) a petition under a statute to wind up a trading company on the ground of insolvency, although no pecuniary loss or special damage to the company can be proved, since the presentation of the petition is, from its very nature, calculated to injure the credit of the company.

32. Luby v. Bennett, 111 Wis. 613, 87 Am. St. Rep. 897, 56 L. R. A. 261.

33. Lawrence v. Hagerman, 56 Ill. 68, 8 Am. Rep. 674; Kyd v. Cook, 56 Neb. 71, 71 Am. St. Rep. 661. Garnishing exempt wages to harass plaintiff's relations with employer. Nix v. Goodhill, 95 Iowa, 282, 63 N. W. 701, 58 Am. St. Rep. 434; †Cooper v. Scyoc, 104 Mo. App. 414, 79 S. W. 751.

34. See post, this section, notes 43-45.

ing out execution for an excessive amount but not willfully or maliciously is not a wrong,[35] nor is merely suing for an excessive sum.[36]

In a late Federal case it was held that an action will lie for prosecuting, maliciously and without probable cause, a civil action in which the pleadings contain defamatory allegations injurious to the defendant's reputation and business.[37]

Malicious arrest in a civil action.—It is well settled in all jurisdictions that an action for malicious prosecution will lie, or an action for malicious abuse of process in the nature of an action for malicious prosecution, if a civil action is brought maliciously and without probable cause, and the defendant is arrested therein or held to bail, or if a defendant is maliciously arrested or held to bail, when there is no probable cause therefor, or held to bail in a larger sum than is due, in an action for which there is good cause, or where he is maliciously arrested on an execution against the person which is not void but which is wrongfully issued.[38] The action will lie for thus procuring ne exeat.[39]

Malicious proceedings to have one declared insane.—An action for malicious prosecution, or for abuse of process, will lie in favor of one against whom another has instituted or instigated, maliciously and without probable cause, proceedings under a statute to have him declared insane, after such proceedings have been determined in his favor and he has been discharged.[40]

Actions or proceedings involving interference with the possession, use, or enjoyment of personal property.—All of the courts agree that an action for malicious prosecution or malicious abuse of process will lie for the prosecution, maliciously and without probable cause, of a civil action or proceeding, or the suing out of civil process, where the defendant sustains special damage by reason of a seizure of or levy upon his property, or other interference with his use and enjoyment thereof. The particular means by which such damage is effected are not material, so long as it is accomplished by a malicious abuse of process. "Any particular method of interfering with property rights," said the Wisconsin court in a late case, "as by attachment, is not material. An equitable levy upon property, as in garnishee proceedings, or the deprivation of the defendant of his property by means of the appointment of a receiver, or any other means whereby his property is taken into the custody of the court or taken out of the custody of the owner and out of his free control, * * * which, in the ordinary course of things, causes damage not reached by a mere judgment of vindication or for costs, is sufficient."[41] It is no defense that one has a legal right to process if he uses it to knowingly levy on exempt property for an ulterior purpose.[42]

35. Hall v. Leaming, 31 N. J. Law, 321, 86 Am. Dec. 213.

36. Grant v. Moore, 29 Cal. 644.

37. Wade v. Nat. Bank of Commerce, 114 F. 377.

38. Goslin v. Wilcock, 2 Wils. 302; Smith v. Cattel, 2 Wils. 376; Pierce v. Street, 3 Barn. & Ad. 397; Grainger v. Hill, 4 Bing. N. C. 212, Chase's Cas. 107; Morton v. Young, 55 Me. 24, 92 Am. Dec. 565; Turner v. Walker, 3 Gill & J. [Md.] 377, 22 Am. Dec. 329; Herman v. Brookerhoff, 8 Watts [Pa.] 240; Adams v. Lisher, 3 Blackf. [Ind.] 241, 25 Am. Dec. 102; Wells v. Noyes, 12 Pick. [Mass.] 324; Lauzon v. Charroux, 18 R. I. 467; Cardival v. Smith, 109 Mass. 158, 12 Am. Rep. 682, Chase's Cas. 102, Erwin's Cas. 453; Block v. Buckingham, 174 Mass. 102; Dishaw v. Wadleigh, 15 App. Div. [N. Y.] 205; Burt v. Place, 4 Wend. [N. Y.] 591; Besson v. Southard, 10 N. Y. 236. See Breck v. Blanchard, 20 N. H. 323, 51 Am. Dec. 222.

39. Burnap v. Wight, 14 Ill. 301.

40. Lockenour v. Sides, 57 Ind. 360, 26 Am. Rep. 58; †Griswold v. Griswold, 143 Cal. 617, 77 P. 672. As to probable cause, malice, and effect of advice of physician, see post, §§ 5-9.

41. Luby v. Bennett, 111 Wis. 613, 627, 87 Am. St. Rep. 897, 908, 56 L. R. A. 261, and see Noonan v. Orton, 30 Wis. 356; Nix v. Goodhill, 95 Iowa, 282, 58 Am. St. Rep. 434.

The liability for wrongful levy on property not the debtor's or exempt or otherwise not within the writ is a trespass (see 2 Curr. L. 1892) or conversion (see 3 Curr. L. 866) and is not germane to this title. But see Attachment, 3 Curr. L. 374; Execution, 3 Curr. L. 1402; Sheriffs and Constables, 2 Curr. L. 1645.

Attachment.—Thus it is well settled that such an action will lie for attaching property maliciously and without probable cause, whether there is want of probable cause for the action in which the attachment is sued out, or want of probable cause for suing out the attachment in an action for which there is good cause.[43] The fact that an attachment bond was given as required by the statute, and that the plaintiff might maintain an action thereon, does not prevent him from maintaining his action on the case at common law for maliciously suing out the attachment.[44] The action may be maintained even though there may have been no actual seizure of the property, if it was levied on and thus put in custodia legis, for the defendant is thereby virtually dispossessed during the time the levy is in force.[45]

Garnishment.—Malicious abuse of the process of garnishment is actionable. Thus, it has been held that an action will lie against one who maliciously and without probable cause garnishes wages which are due to his debtor, but which are exempt,[46] or one who brings successive garnishment proceedings against exempt wages hoping to coerce a settlement through fear of discharge from employment.[47]

Execution.—An action on the case for malicious abuse of process will lie for maliciously and wrongfully causing the issue and levy of an execution on a judgment, if the judgment and execution are not void, as where an execution is issued on a judgment for a debt known to have been paid before entry of the judgment,[48] or for a greater amount than is due on the judgment at the time the execution is issued,[49] or on a judgment procured by fraud.[50]

Replevin.—In all jurisdictions, no doubt, an action for malicious prosecution or malicious abuse of process will lie for prosecuting, maliciously and without probable cause, an action for the possession of personal property and suing out a writ of replevin therein, where the property is taken under the writ from the defendant's possession.[51] In some jurisdictions the action will lie even though the defendant's possession of the property is not disturbed,[52] but as to this, as we have seen, the decisions are conflicting.[53]

Bankruptcy and insolvency proceedings.—An action will lie for maliciously and 42. †Cooper v. Scyoc, 104 Mo. App. 414, 79 S. W. 751.

43. Savage v. Brewer, 16 Pick. [Mass.] 453, 28 Am. Dec. 255; Bump v. Betts, 19 Wend. [N. Y.] 421, Chase's Cas. 107, Erwin's Cas. 452; Boon v. Maul, 3 N. J. Law, 863; Lawrence v. Hagerman, 56 Ill. 68, 8 Am. Rep. 674; Spaids v. Barrett, 57 Ill. 289, 11 Am. Rep. 10; Donnell v. Jones, 13 Ala. 490, 48 Am. Dec. 59; Id., 17 Ala. 689, 52 Am. Dec. 194; Stewart v. Cole, 46 Ala. 646; Spengler v. Davy, 15 Grat. [Va.] 381; Burkhart v. Jennings, 2 W. Va. 242; Tomlinson v. Warner, 9 Ohio, 104; Fortman v. Rottier, 8 Ohio St. 548, 72 Am. Dec. 606; Alexander v. Harrison, 38 Mo. 258, 90 Am. Dec. 431; Brand v. Hinchman, 68 Mich. 590, 13 Am. St. Rep. 362; Foster v. Pitts, 63 Ark. 387; Humphreys v. Sutcliffe, 192 Pa. 336, 73 Am. St. Rep. 819; Friel v. Plumer, 69 N. H. 498, 76 Am. St. Rep. 190. As to the liability of an attorney, see Higgins v. Russo, 72 Conn. 238, 77 Am. St. Rep. 307.

44. Donnell v. Jones, 13 Ala. 490, 48 Am. Dec. 59; Alexander v. Harrison, 38 Mo. 258, 90 Am. Dec. 431; Lawrence v. Hagerman, 56 Ill. 68, 8 Am. Rep. 674; Spaids v. Barrett, 57 Ill. 289, 11 Am. Rep. 10. Contra, Veiths v. Hagge, 8 Iowa, 163; Abbott v. Whipple, 4 G. Greene [Iowa] 320.

45. Rice v. Miller, 70 Tex. 613, 8 Am. St. Rep. 630; Brand v. Hinchman, 68 Mich. 590, 13 Am. St. Rep. 362.

46. Nix v. Goodhill, 95 Iowa, 282, 58 Am. St. Rep. 434. See, also, Noonan v. Orton, 30 Wis. 356.

47. †Cooper v. Scyoc, 104 Mo. App. 414, 79 S. W. 751.

48. Barnett v. Reed, 51 Pa. 190, 88 Am. Dec. 574. And see Gyfford v. Woodgate, 11 East, 297, 2 Camp. 117. If the judgment or execution is void, the remedy is an action of trespass, and an execution on a void judgment, or, according to some of the decisions, an execution issued on a judgment after it has been satisfied, is void. But an execution on a judgment entered after payment of the debt is not void. Barnett v. Reed, 51 Pa. 190, 88 Am. Dec. 574.

49. Hall v. Leaming, 31 N. J. Law, 321, 86 Am. Dec. 213.

50. Antcliff v. June, 81 Mich. 477, 21 Am. St. Rep. 533, 10 L. R. A. 621.

51. Co. Litt. 161a; O'Brien v. Barry, 106 Mass. 300, 8 Am. Rep. 329; McPherson v. Runyon, 41 Minn. 524, 16 Am. St. Rep. 727.

52. McPherson v. Runyon, 41 Minn. 524, 16 Am. St. Rep. 727.

53. Ante, this section, notes 1-10, and cases there cited.

without probable cause suing out a commission in bankruptcy, or prosecuting insolvency proceedings, against a person or corporation, where the possession or enjoyment of his property is thereby interfered with, for "wherever there is an injury done to a man's property by a false and malicious prosecution, it is most reasonable he should have an action to repair himself."[54] Such an action may also be maintained, as we have seen, because of the injury to reputation and credit, and the resulting injury to business.[55]

Action to wind up a partnership.—In a late Wisconsin case, while it was strongly intimated that the court would follow the English doctrine against the right to maintain an action for malicious prosecution of an ordinary civil action, it was held that an action could be maintained for the malicious prosecution of a civil action brought ostensibly for the purpose of winding up a partnership, but the real purpose and the effect of which were to take the possession of the property from the defendant therein for the benefit of the plaintiff, and to enable the latter, through the forms of law, to control such property and thereby obtain title thereto.[56]

Actions or proceedings involving interference with the possession, use, or enjoyment of real property.—An action for malicious prosecution or malicious abuse of process will lie against one who, maliciously and without probable cause, prosecutes a civil action, or causes the issue and execution of civil process, whereby another's possession, use, or enjoyment of real property is interfered with to his damage.[57] Thus, there would seem to be no doubt that an action will lie to recover any special damages resulting as a proximate consequence from the malicious and wrongful issue and levy of valid attachment or execution upon real property,[58] as for instance, where it was done with no reason to believe defendant indebted but to extort money from him.[59]

An action lies for maliciously and without probable cause prosecuting an action for forcible entry and detainer, where the defendant therein is ousted from possession,[60] or even though his actual possession is not disturbed.[61]

It has also been held that an action will lie for prosecuting a bastardy proceeding maliciously and without probable cause, where by statute the proceeding operates as a lien on the defendant's land from its commencement;[62] for prosecut-

54. Chapman v. Pickersgill, 2 Wils. 145.

55. Ante, this section.

56. Luby v. Bennett, 111 Wis. 613, 87 Am. St. Rep. 897, 56 L. R. A. 261.

57. Newark Coal Co. v. Upson, 40 Ohio St. 17; Green v. Cochran, 43 Iowa, 544; Slater v. Kimbro, 91 Ga. 217, 44 Am. St. Rep. 19.

58. See Wetsell v. Tillman, 3 Tex. Civ. App. 559. And see supra, notes 43-50. It was held, however, in an Iowa case, that an action would not lie for the levy of an attachment on real estate, where the possession and use of the property was not interfered with, and the only special damages alleged were for depreciation in value while the attachment was in force, and mental suffering. Tisdale v. Major, 106 Iowa, 1, 68 Am. St. Rep. 263. See, also, Trawick v. Martin-Brown Co., 79 Tex. 461. Compare, however, Wetsell v. Tillman, 3 Tex. Civ. App. 559. It has also been held that inability to sell or mortgage land is not the proximate cause of the wrongful levy of an attachment thereon, so as to entitle the debtor to recover damages therefor in an action for wrongful attachment. Elder v. Kutner, 97 Cal. 490. And it was held in an Alabama case, that an action would not lie for wrongfully issuing an execution commanding the sheriff to sell certain lands in the plaintiff's possession previously levied on under an execution against another, as the issue of the writ and sale thereunder did not affect the right, title, or possession of the plaintiff, and the costs, expenses, and attorney's fees in defending a suit brought by the purchaser to recover possession of the land, alleged as special damages, were not the natural and proximate consequence of issuing the writ. Eslava v. Jones, 83 Ala. 139, 3 Am. St. Rep. 699.

59. †Harr v. Ward [Ark.] 84 S. W. 496.

60. Moffatt v. Fisher, 47 Iowa, 473.

61. It was so held in Ohio (Pope v. Pollock, 46 Ohio St. 367, 15 Am. St. Rep. 608, Chase's Cas. 104), although in that state the English doctrine is recognized, that an action will not lie for the malicious prosecution of an ordinary civil action in which the only damage is the expense of defense. Cincinnati Daily Tribune Co. v. Bruck, 61 Ohio St. 489, 76 Am. St. Rep. 433.

62. Green v. Cochran, 43 Iowa, 544. It

ing maliciously and without probable cause a summary statutory process against a tenant, whereby special damages are sustained, although there may have been no actual eviction;[63] or for prosecuting maliciously and without probable cause a suit for an injunction, whereby the defendant therein is temporarily deprived of the use and enjoyment of his land,[64] or for prosecuting an action affecting title and serving notices on tenants to withhold rent.[65]

It has been held that an action will not lie for the malicious prosecution of an action of ejectment, where the only damages are the expenses of defense, and alleged inability to borrow money on the premises.[66] In some states, however, such an action will lie.[67]

Malicious use of injunction.—To sue out an injunction is actionable, if it is sued out maliciously and without probable cause,[68] and if it results in special damage in addition to the expenses of the suit,[69] as in cases where it interferes directly with the possession, use, or enjoyment of real or personal property, or naturally and approximately injures the defendant in his credit and business, etc.[70] And it would seem that the right to maintain an action for suing out an injunction maliciously and without probable cause is not affected by the fact that there is a remedy on a bond given to procure the injunction.[71]

Other cases of malicious abuse of process.—The cases above mentioned are not to be taken as covering all the circumstances under which an action will lie for the malicious abuse of process. For every malicious wrong there is a remedy by an action of trespass on the case, when other remedies are not applicable; and the rule is general that every malicious abuse of legal process, criminal or civil, is a wrong for which an action will lie, where there is damage.[72] "If process is willfully made use of for a purpose not justified by the law, this is an abuse for which an action will lie."[73] was so held in this case, although the Iowa court holds the English doctrine against the right to maintain an action for the malicious prosecution of an ordinary civil action. Wetmore v. Mellinger, 64 Iowa, 741, 52 Am. Rep. 465.

63. Slater v. Kimbro, 91 Ga. 217, 44 Am. St. Rep. 19 (where special damages were sustained by a tenant occupying premises as a boarding house). See, also, Porter v. Johnson, 99 Ga. 275. Compare Vinson v. Flynn, 64 Ark. 453.

64. Newark Coal Co. v. Upson, 40 Ohio St. 17; Hubbell v. Cole, 88 Va. 236, 29 Am. St. Rep. 716.

See, also, post this section Malicious abuse of injunction.

65. Gore v. Condon, 87 Md. 368, 67 Am. St. Rep. 352, 40 L. R. A. 382.

66. Muldoon v. Rickey, 103 Pa. 110, 49 Am. Rep. 117; McNamee v. Minke, 49 Md. 122. But see Johnson v. Meyer, 36 La. Ann. 333, cited note 93 Am. St. Rep. 457.

67. See ante, this section, note 4.

68. Post, § 5B, note 46; Short v. Spragins, 104 Ga. 628.

69. Compare ante, this section, notes 1-10, and conflicting cases there cited. The suing out of injunction to harass and coerce the plaintiff must have wrought injury to him. Restraining sale of produce which on dissolution of order was salable at higher price and where there was no proof of purpose or desire to sell during restraint, shows no damage. †Williams v. Ainsworth [Wis.] 99 N. W. 327.

70. Newark Coal Co. v. Upson, 40 Ohio St. 17; Crate v. Kohlsaat, 44 Ill. App. 460; Hubbell v. Cole, 88 Va. 236, 29 Am. St. Rep. 716, 13 L. R. A. 311; Mitchell v. Southwestern R. Co., 75 Ga. 398; Cox v. Taylor, 10 B. Mon. [Ky.] 17; Beach v. Williams [Iowa] 79 N. W. 393; Robinson v. Kellum, 6 Cal. 399; Lambert v. Haskell, 80 Cal. 611.

71. See the cases in respect to malicious attachment, ante, note 44. It was so held in Hubbell v. Cole, 88 Va. 236, 29 Am. St. Rep. 716. Contra, Gorton v. Brown, 27 Ill. 489, 81 Am. Dec. 245.

72. Grainger v. Hill, 4 Bing. N. C. 212. Chase's Cas. 107, Bigelow's Cas. 67; Barnett v. Reed, 51 Pa. 190, 88 Am. Dec. 574; Eberly v. Rupp, 90 Pa. 259; Antcliff v. June, 81 Mich. 477, 21 Am. St. Rep. 533, 10 L. R. A. 621; White v. Apsley Rubber Co. [Mass.] 63 N. E. 885; Wood v. Graves, 144 Mass. 365, 59 Am. Rep. 95, Burdick's Cas. 192; Bartlett v. Christhilf, 69 Md. 219; Nix v. Goodhill, 95 Iowa, 282, 58 Am. St. Rep. 434; Dishaw v. Wadleigh, 15 App. Div. [N. Y.] 205; Bradshaw v. Frazier [Iowa] 85 N. W. 752. One is not liable for abuse of process by an officer to which he is not privy. Teel v. Miles, 51 Neb. 542; People's Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. McElroy, 79 Ill. App. 266.

73. Antcliff v. June, 81 Mich. 477, 21 Am. St. Rep. 533, 10 L. R. A. 621. "Whoever makes use of the process of the court for some private purpose of his own, not warranted by the exigency of the writ or the order of the court, is answerable to an ac-

Where sheriff's officers, having a writ for the arrest of a defendant in an action, came to him while he was sick in bed and told him that, unless he would deliver up a certain document or find bail, they must either take him or leave a man with him, and he delivered the document, it was held that there was a malicious abuse of process for which an action would lie.[74]

An action for malicious abuse of process may lie even where the defendant has recovered a judgment against the plaintiff and obtained satisfaction thereof by execution. Thus in a late Michigan case a complaint setting out a conspiracy between the defendants to defraud the plaintiff, and the fact that he was defrauded out of his money by the means of a void judgment obtained by them through fraud, and an execution thereon, was held to state a good cause of action for malicious abuse of process.[75] If in executing a writ of removal a sick child be injuriously exposed, there is an abuse[76] to which neither the advice of a physician[77] nor contributory negligence of parents[78] affords a complete defense. Successive malicious vexatious suits not prosecuted to trial constitute actionable wrong.[79]

(§ 1) C. Search warrants.—Search warrants for goods alleged to have been stolen or criminally concealed generally also direct the arrest of the person named therein, and in such a case if sued out maliciously and without probable cause, an action for malicious prosecution will lie.[80] But a search warrant merely directing a search, and under which the person named is not arrested or prosecuted, cannot support an action for malicious prosecution, for there is no prosecution.[81] In that case the issuance and execution of the warrant is an abuse of process for which an action will lie, although the party is not charged with any crime and is not arrested,[82] or if arrested, is not prosecuted.[83]

§ 2. Responsibility of defendant for the prosecution or suit and his participation therein.—To sustain an action for malicious prosecution, it is necessary for the plaintiff to show, not only that there has been a prosecution, but also that the defendant was the prosecutor,—that he instituted the prosecution himself,—or else that he caused it to be instituted.[84] One who merely assents passively is not charged.[85] One is not liable who merely states facts to the prosecuting attorney, or a police officer, who then acts on his own motion in instituting a prosecution,[86]

tion for damages for an abuse of the process of the court." 2 Addison, Torts, 868.

74. Grainger v. Hill, 4 Bing. N. C. 212, Chase's Cas. 107, Bigelow's Cas. 67.

75. Antcliff v. June, 81 Mich. 477, 21 Am. St. Rep. 533, 10 L. R. A. 621.

76, 77, 78. Bradshaw v. Frazier, 113 Iowa, 579, 86 Am. St. Rep. 394.

79. Payne v. Donegan, 9 Ill. App. 566.

80. Miller v. Brown, 3 Mo. 127, 23 Am. Dec. 693; Stone v. Stevens, 12 Conn. 219, 30 Am. Dec. 611; Boeger v. Langenberg, 97 Mo. 390, 10 Am. St. Rep. 322; Page v. Citizens' Banking Co., 111 Ga. 73, 78 Am. St. Rep. 144. And see Carey v. Sheets, 67 Ind. 375; Elsee v. Smith, 16 Eng. Com. Law Rep. 19; Cooper v. Booth, 3 Esp. 135.

81, 82. Carey v. Sheets, 67 Ind. 375; Witson v. May, 71 Ind. 269; Flora v. Russell, 138 Ind. 153; Harlan v. Jones, 16 Ind. App. 398; Bell v. Clapp, 10 Johns. [N. Y.] 263, 6 Am. Dec. 339; Elsee v. Smith, 16 Eng. Com. Law Rep. 212; Boot v. Cooper, 3 Esp. 144; Term R. 535. "This action is to redress any damages * * * sustained in his reputation by the scandal, in his person by the imprisonment, or in his property by the expense incurred." Miller v. Brown, 3 Mo. 127, 23 Am. Dec. 693; Olson v. Tvete, 46 Minn. 225, so holding where no goods were found.

83. In this case there was an arrest but no prosecution was instituted. †Spangler v. Booze [Va.] 49 S. E. 42, collecting and commenting on numerous authorities to the same effect.

84. Yocum v. Polly, 1 B. Mon. [Ky.] 358, 36 Am. Dec. 583; Miller v. Milligan, 48 Barb. [N. Y.] 30, Chase's Cas. 98; Babcock v. Merchants' Exchange, 159 Mo. 381; Smith v. Austin, 49 Mich. 286; Breneman v. West, 21 Tex. Civ. App. 19; †Sundmaker v. Gaudet [La.] 37 So. 865. Suing in another's name. Bond v. Chapin, 8 Metc. [Mass.] 31. Merely appearing before the grand jury in obedience to a subpoena, and testifying, is not sufficient connection with a prosecution to render one liable. Richter v. Koster, 45 Ind. 440. It is not necessary that joint actors both sign the complaint. Conroy v. Townsend, 69 Ill. App. 61. But contributing nonparticipating members of an association to prosecute crime were absolved. Johnson v. Miller, 63 Iowa, 535, 50 Am. Rep. 758; Id., 69 Iowa, 562, 58 Am. Rep. 231.

85. Search warrant. Mark v. Merz, 53 Ill. App. 458.

or who acts, although maliciously, in subordination to the prosecuting attorney in a prosecution instituted by the latter's direction, on information derived from others.[87] The prosecution, though instigated by defendant, must be specifically directed by him at plaintiff or there is no liability.[88] A mere surety is not liable for malicious civil prosecution.[89] In the case of abuse of process, defendant must have been the author of the abuse or a participator, not merely the procurer of the process; nor is an attorney liable who prosecutes for a contingent fee, where that is legal, unless he acts maliciously and without probable cause.[90] It will not lie against one who acts in a privileged official capacity[91] or against a municipal corporation.[92] A private corporation may be liable,[93] and its agent who advises it is also liable.[94] The imputation to the corporation of its agent's act in instituting a prosecution is governed by rules more pertinent to the law of agency and corporations than to this topic. Suffice it to say that it must be done pursuant to express or apparent special authority, or by one whose general duties include such an authority, such as a general manager, law officer, custodian of property affected by crime, or officer generally charged to detect and apprehend criminals.[95] If complainant acted under particular direction of a corporate officer and not in pursuance of general authority, it must be shown that the officer had authority to give such directions.[96] Neither is the corporation bound by an attorney who had no authority to institute or direct institution of a prosecution and who did not direct it but did advise and attend the preliminary hearing of plaintiff.[97]

In accordance with the usual rules,[98] the superior is liable for a prosecution emanating from performance of delegated service or action.[99] The liability of one who acts in person on information rendered by agent presents a question of probable cause.[1]

86. Smith v. Austin, 49 Mich. 286; Burnham v. Collateral Loan Co. [Mass.] 60 N. E. 617. Evidence held to show that prosecution was instituted by advice of county attorney. †Mundal v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 363. One is not privy to a prosecution merely for having called an officer and testified at the hearing. †Boden v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 181.

87. Yocum v. Polly, 1 B. Mon. [Ky.] 358, 36 Am. Dec. 583.

88. Warrant procured for keeper of a disorderly house and "all vile and improper persons found" there does not render informant liable to person not named. Briggs v. Berls, 2 City Ct. R. [N. Y.] 171.

89. Surety on attachment bond. Harr v. Ward [Ark.] 84 S. W. 496; †Smits v. Hogan, 35 Wash. 290, 77 P. 390.

90. Foy v. Barry, 87 App. Div. 291, 84 N. Y. S. 335; Snydacker v. Brosse, 51 Ill. 357; Bradshaw v. Frazier, 113 Iowa, 579, 86 Am. St. Rep. 394, 55 L. R. A. 258.

91. Member of grand jury. Sidener v. Russell, 34 Ill. App. 446. Mayor of a city not acting ministerially. Goodwin v. Guild, 94 Tenn. 486, 45 Am. St. Rep. 743, 27 L. R. A. 660.

92. Brown v. Cape Girardeau, 90 Mo. 377, 59 Am. Rep. 28.

93. Boogher v. Life Ass'n. 75 Mo. 319, 42 Am. Rep. 413; Springfield Engine & T. Co. v. Green, 25 Ill. App. 106; Jordan v. Alabama, etc., R. Co., 74 Ala. 85, 49 Am. Rep 800; Reed v. Home Sav. Bank, 130 Mass. 443, 39 Am. Rep. 468. See other cases cited note 26 Am. St. Rep. 131, and see note 34 Am. Rep. 495-499.

94. Whitney v. New York Cas. Ins. Ass'n, 27 App. Div. 320, 50 N. Y. S. 227.

95. See note 26 Am. St. Rep. 132; Clark & M. Private Corp. Cf. Corporations, 3 Curr. L. 880; Clark & Skyles, Agency. Cf. Agency, 3 Curr. L. 68.

96. †Beiswanger v. American Bonding & Trust Co., 98 Md. 287, 57 A. 202; Gillett v. Missouri Valley R. Co., 55 Mo. 315, 17 Am. Rep. 653.

97. †Beiswanger v. American Bonding & Trust Co., 98 Md. 287, 57 A. 202.

98. See Agency, 3 Curr. L. 68; Master and Servant, 4 Curr. L. 533. See, also, Clark & Skyles' Agency.

99. The mere fact of agency does not charge the principal. Dally v. Young, 3 Ill. App. 39; Oberne v. O'Donnell, 35 Ill. App. 180; Cleveland, etc., Store Co. v. Koch, 37 Ill. App. 595. Mere selling agent has no authority to prosecute for malicious mischief. Hancock v. Singer Mfg. Co., 174 Ill. 503. Collecting agent cannot prosecute for forgery. Springfield Engine & T. Co. v. Green, 25 Ill. App. 106. Arresting passenger for refusal to pay fare held within conductor's employment. †Dwyer v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 303. In Missouri, conductor may call on policeman to arrest as well as to himself eject passenger. Id. The company being liable, improper evidence of ratification is harmless. Id.

1. See post, § 5.

A partner who does not consent is not liable[2] if the prosecution be not for the purpose of furthering the firm business[3] or within its scope.[4]

A creditor and levying officer are jointly and severally liable for abusing garnishment process by successive issues to induce payment of exempt wages or cause discharge from employment.[5]

Infancy and coverture are not an absolute defense but as in case of other torts may in combination with circumstances afford one.[6]

A person is sufficiently a prosecutor, however, or connected with a prosecution, to be liable in such an action, if the prosecution was instituted on his affidavit or complaint before a magistrate, or if it was instituted at his instance or request by the attorney for the state.[7] And a person who maliciously and without probable cause induces another person to make a complaint and institute a criminal prosecution is liable.[8]

One who merely makes a true statement of facts to a magistrate is not liable in an action for malicious prosecution because of the error of the magistrate in deciding that the facts stated constitute a crime, and issuing a warrant of arrest on his own motion.[9] But this does not apply where a person maliciously makes a false statement of facts to a magistrate for the purpose of causing the institution of a criminal prosecution.[10] And even the making of a true statement of the facts

2. Gilbert v. Emmons, 42 Ill. 143, 89 Am. Dec. 412; Rosenkrans v. Barker, 115 Ill. 331, 56 Am. Rep. 169. And see generally Partnership, 2 Curr. L. 1106.

3. Page v. Citizens' Bank, 111 Ga. 73, 78 Am. St. Rep. 144, 51 L. R. A. 463.

4. Prosecution for larceny is not within the scope of a mercantile firm. Noblett v. Bartsch, 31 Wash. 24, 96 Am. St. Rep. 886.

5. †Cooper v. Scyoc, 104 Mo. App. 414, 79 S. W. 751.

6. Compare Infants, 4 Curr. L. 92; Husband and Wife, 3 Curr. L. 1669, and see note 26 Am. St. Rep. 133.

7. Grant v. Deuel, 3 Rob. [La.] 17, 38 Am. Dec. 228; Kline v. Shuler, 8 Ired. L. [N. C.] 484, 49 Am. Dec. 402; Weil v. Israel, 42 La. Ann. 955; Dennis v. Ryan, 65 N. Y. 385, 22 Am. Rep. 635; Cole v. Andrews, 70 Minn. 230; Ward v. Sutor, 70 Tex. 343, 8 Am. St. Rep. 606; McLeod v. McLeod, 75 Ala. 483; Walser v. Thies, 56 Mo. 89; Reisterer v. Lee Sum [C. C. A.] 94 F. 343; Peck v. Chouteau, 91 Mo. 140, 60 Am. Rep. 236; Burnap v. Marsh, 13 Ill. 538; Bicknell v. Dorion, 16 Pick. [Mass.] 478. Liability of public officer. Reisterer v. Lee Sum [C. C. A.] 94 F. 343. Liability of an attorney swearing to information. Whitney v. New York Casualty Ins. Ass'n, 27 App. Div. [N. Y.] 320. That the defendant's name was not indorsed on the indictment, as required by law, as prosecutor, and the absence of proof that defendant gave evidence at the trial, are not conclusive that he was not the prosecutor. Kline v. Shuler, 8 Ired. L. [N. C.] 484, 49 Am. Dec. 402. Complainant not exempt from liability because arrest was under an alias writ. McLeod v. McLeod, 75 Ala. 483.

The fact that the prosecution was instituted by the defendant under the order of a court is no defense, if the court was moved to make the order by the defendant's false evidence, and the prosecution involved the repetition of the same falsehood, "for otherwise the defendant would be allowed to take advantage of his own fraud upon the court which ordered the prosecution." Pollock, Torts [Webb's Ed.] 397; Fitzjohn v. Mackinder, 9 C. B. (N. S.) 505.

A judge or justice of the peace may be liable to an action for maliciously conspiring with others to institute in his court a malicious prosecution. Stewart v. Cooley, 23 Minn. 347, 23 Am. Rep. 690.

8. Mowry v. Miller, 3 Leigh [Va.] 561, 24 Am. Dec. 680; Stansbury v. Fogle, 37 Md. 369; Coffey v. Myers, 84 Ind. 105; Mauldin v. Ball, 104 Tenn. 597; Holden v. Merritt, 92 Iowa, 707; Southern Express Co. v. Couch [Ala.] 32 So. 167. In such case both may be liable. Conroy v. Townsend, 69 Ill. App. 61. A person may be thus liable because he instigated or procured the prosecution to be instituted by an officer. Holden v. Merritt, 92 Iowa, 707; Dann v. Wormser, 38 App. Div. [N. Y.] 460. As to the competency and the sufficiency of evidence to show defendant's connection with the prosecution, see Bitting v. Ten Eyck, 82 Ind. 421, 42 Am. Rep. 505; Gettinger v. McRae, 89 Md. 513.

9. Leigh v. Webb, 3 Esp. 165; Cohen v. Morgan, 6 D. & R. 8; Carratt v. Morley, 1 Q. B. 18; Teal v. Fissel, 28 F. 351; Bennett v. Black, 1 Stew. (Ala.) 495; Hahn v. Schmidt, 64 Cal. 284; McNeely v. Driskill, 2 Blackf. [Ind.] 259; Newman v. Davis, 58 Iowa, 447; Boeger v. Langenberg, 97 Mo. 390, 10 Am. St. Rep. 322; Oakley v. Tate, 118 N. C. 361; Finn v. Frink, 84 Me. 261, 30 Am. St. Rep. 348; Chambliss v. Blau [Ala.] 28 So. 602. But see Barton v. Kavanaugh, 12 La. Ann. 332. As to the effect of want of jurisdiction, see post, § 3. One who applies for a search warrant only, stating facts which do not show larceny, is not liable for malicious prosecution because the magistrate of his own motion, and without authority to do so, also issues a warrant of arrest for larceny. McNeely v. Driscoll, 2 Blackf. [Ind.] 259.

10. Dennis v. Ryan, 65 N. Y. 385, 22 Am. Rep. 635; Navarino v. Dudrap [N. J. Law] 50 A. 353.

to a magistrate will not exonerate the prosecutor from liability, if he afterwards signs and swears to a complaint or affidavit erroneously charging such facts as a crime, or otherwise actively participates in the issuance of the warrant.[11]

A prosecutor is not liable for an indictment brought in by the grand jury in disregard of his evidence, as where they find an indictment for one offense, when his evidence before them was of the commission of another.[12] The rule is otherwise where he, though testifying to a different offense from that presented, was nevertheless instrumental in procuring the indictment.[13]

§ 3. The prosecution of the plaintiff. In general.—To support an action for malicious prosecution, as distinguished from mere abuse of process, the first essential is that the plaintiff shall have been subjected to what the law regards as a prosecution. If for any reason the alleged prosecution had no existence, the plaintiff must pursue some other remedy for the injury done him,—as an action of trespass for false imprisonment, action on the case for malicious abuse of process, etc., according to the circumstances. He cannot sue for malicious prosecution.[14]

To constitute a "prosecution" the proceedings need not go to a trial on the charge. There is a sufficient prosecution where a person is arrested on a complaint made before a magistrate, although he may be discharged by the magistrate for want of sufficient evidence to hold him, or for failure of the complainant to appear, etc.[15] And there is a prosecution where a person is arrested and held or committed for the grand jury, and afterwards discharged because of a failure of the grand jury to find an indictment.[16] But, as a general rule, there is no such prosecution as will sustain an action for malicious prosecution, where a person is arrested without a warrant, and brought before a magistrate and discharged, without the filing of any complaint,[17] or where a complaint is made, but is not followed by an arrest or the issue of any process.[18] The mere calling of a policeman and appearing as a witness is not a prosecution by defendant.[19]

11. Anderson v. Buchanan, Wright [Ohio] 725; Finn v. Frink, 84 Me. 261, 30 Am. St. Rep. 348; Lunsford v. Dietrich, 93 Ala. 565, 30 Am. St. Rep. 79; Boeger v. Langenberg, 97 Mo. 390, 10 Am. St. Rep. 322. It has been held, however, that one who truly states to a magistrate facts showing a particular crime, and signs and swears to an affidavit or complaint drawn up by the magistrate, supposing it to charge the crime intended by him, is not liable because the magistrate by mistake drew up the affidavit or complaint so as to charge a different crime. O'Brien v. Frazier, 47 N. J. Law, 349, 54 Am. Rep. 170.

12. Leidig v. Rawson, 1 Scam. [Ill.] 272, 29 Am. Dec. 354.

13. The indictment was for perjury not pursuant to defendant's testimony, but on an affidavit made by one since deceased to a different perjury. Candler v. Petit, 2 N. Y. Super. Ct. 315.

14. Cockfield v. Braveboy, 2 McMull. [S. C.] 270, 39 Am. Dec. 123; Bixby v. Brundage, 2 Gray [Mass.] 129, 61 Am. Dec. 443; Kramer v. Lott, 50 Pa. 495, 88 Am. Dec. 556; Turnin v. Remy, 3 Blackf. [Ind.] 210; Barry v. Third Ave. R. Co., 51 App. Div. [N. Y.] 385; Swift v. Witchard, 103 Ga. 193; Satilla Mfg. Co. v. Cason, 98 Ga. 14, 58 Am. St. Rep. 287; Whaley v. Lawton, 57 S. C. 256; Cooper v. Armour, 42 F. 215, 8 L. R. A. 47.

15. Venafra v. Johnson, 10 Bing. 301; Page v. Citizens' Banking Co., 111 Ga. 73, 78 Am. St. Rep. 144, 51 L. R. A. 463; Sayles v. Briggs, 4 Metc. [Mass.] 421; Brown v. Randall, 36 Conn. 56, 4 Am. Rep. 35, and other cases cited post, § 4, note 41.

16. Morgan v. Hughes, 2 Term R. 225; Graves v. Dawson, 130 Mass. 78, 39 Am. Rep. 429, Bigelow's Cas. 62; Shock v. McChesney, 4 Yeates [Pa.] 507, 2 Am. Dec. 415; Apgar v. Woolston, 43 N. J. Law, 22, and cases cited post, § 4, note 40.

17. Barry v. Third Ave. R. Co., 51 App. Div. [N. Y.] 385.

18. Cooper v. Armour, 42 F. 215, 8 L. R. A. 47; Cockfield v. Braveboy, 2 McMullen [S. C.] 270, 39 Am. Dec. 123; Bartlett v. Christhilf, 69 Md. 219; Swift v. Witchard, 103 Ga. 193, under a statute requiring that the prosecution shall have been instituted and "carried on." In Page v. Citizens' Bank, 111 Ga. 73, 78 Am. St. Rep. 144, an arrest under a search warrant arraignment and discharge on the prosecutor's announcement of inability to make a case is held to be a prosecution "carried on." That an arrest is generally essential, see note 26 Am. St. Rep. 130 and cases cited. But it has been held that no arrest is necessary to support an action for the malicious institution of bastardy proceedings. Coffey v. Myers, 84 Ind. 105. And in the case of an ordinary criminal prosecution, an actual arrest of the plaintiff is not necessary to give him a right of action, if he was informed by an officer that there was a warrant for his ar-

Want of jurisdiction and defects or irregularities in proceedings.—An attempted prosecution before a person or tribunal having no existence as a judge or court, either de jure or de facto, is clearly a mere nullity, and cannot give rise to an action for malicious prosecution, the remedy being an action of trespass for false arrest and imprisonment, or an action on the case for libel or slander, and all concerned therein being liable. But difficulty arises in determining the effect of mere want of jurisdiction or irregularities where the prosecution was instituted or carried on before a regularly constituted magistrate or court, and to some extent the decisions are conflicting. If an affidavit or complaint is made, for the purpose of instituting a criminal prosecution, before a magistrate having no jurisdiction of the offense, or if an affidavit or complaint so made does not state any offense, and the magistrate nevertheless issues a warrant at the request of the complainant, and the accused is arrested, the proceeding is coram non judice and void, and both the complainant and the magistrate are liable in trespass for false imprisonment.[20] Some of the courts, therefore, hold that if there is nothing further in the way of a prosecution than an arrest and discharge by a magistrate, the person accused must sue in trespass, and cannot maintain an action for malicious prosecution.[21] Other courts hold, however, that he may sue either in trespass or case.[22] Some courts go even further, and apply the same rule, where there is no jurisdiction, although the plaintiff may not only have been arrested, but afterwards prosecuted for the alleged offense, on the ground that the proceedings are a nullity, and there is therefore no prosecution in contemplation of law.[23] Most courts, however, hold that if the plaintiff has been in fact prosecuted, and not merely arrested and discharged, and the malicious and false prosecution is alleged as the ground of action, and not the arrest, an action for malicious prosecution may be maintained, notwithstanding the fact that the magistrate or court had no jurisdiction at all to entertain the prosecution, or the fact that the complaint or indictment on which the prosecution was based did not charge any crime.[24] If the court had jurisdiction of the offense charged, an action for malicious prosecution cannot be defeated by showing that the complaint or indictment was so defective, or the proceedings otherwise so irregular, that, if there had been a conviction, the judgment would have been erroneous, or even a nullity.[25] rest, and to appear, and he did appear and submit to the jurisdiction of the magistrate. Strehlow v. Pettit, 96 Wis. 22.

19. Police preferred charges. †Boden v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 181.

See ante, § 2.

20. Ante, § 2, notes 9, 10.

21. Krause v. Spiegel, 94 Cal. 370, 28 Am. St. Rep. 137; Maher v. Ashmead, 30 Pa. 344. 72 Am. Dec. 708; Baird v. Householder, 32 Pa. 168; Kramer v. Lott, 50 Pa. 495, 88 Am. Dec. 556; Lewin v. Uzuber, 65 Md. 341; Satilla Mfg. Co. v. Cason, 98 Ga. 14, 58 Am. St. Rep. 287; Collum v. Turner, 102 Ga. 534. A mere arrest under a warrant which is void on its face is nothing but a trespass, and will not support an action for malicious prosecution. Lewin v. Uzuber, 65 Md. 341; Collum v. Turner, 102 Ga. 534.

22. Hays v. Youngiove, 7 B. Mon. [Ky.] 545; Parli v. Reed, 30 Kan. 534; Bell v. Keepers, 37 Kan. 64; Streight v. Bell, 37 Ind. 550; Stocking v. Howard, 73 Mo. 25; Barton v. Kavanaugh, 12 La. Ann. 332.

23. Bixby v. Brundage, 2 Gray [Mass.] 129, 61 Am. Dec. 443; Whiting v. Johnson, 6 Gray [Mass.] 247; Kramer v. Lott, 50 Pa. 495, 88 Am. Dec. 556 (but see Stewart v. Thompson, 51 Pa. 158); Whaley v. Lawton, 57 Cal. 256; Collum v. Turner, 102 Ga. 534.

24. Goslin v. Wilcock, 2 Wils. 302; Stone v. Stevens, 12 Conn. 219, 30 Am. Dec. 611; Morris v. Scott, 21 Wend. [N. Y.] 281, 34 Am. Dec. 236; Dennis v. Ryan, 63 Barb. [N. Y.] 149; Id., 65 N. Y. 389, 22 Am. Rep. 635; Finn v. Frink, 84 Me. 261, 30 Am. St. Rep. 348; Shaul v. Brown, 28 Iowa, 37, 4 Am. Rep. 151; Stancliff v. Palmeter, 18 Ind. 321; Hays v. Youngiove, 7 B. Mon. [Ky.] 545; Apgar v. Woolston, 43 N. J. Law, 57; Navarino v. Dudrap [N. J. Law] 50 A. 353; Strehlow v. Pettit, 96 Wis. 22; Schattgen v. Holnback, 149 Ill. 646; Minneapolis Threshing Mach. Co. v. Regier, 51 Neb. 934 (compare Painter v. Ives, 4 Neb. 122); Stubbs v. Mulholland [Mo.] 67 S. W. 650; Stewart v. Thompson, 51 Pa. 158. See, also, Sweet v. Negus, 30 Mich. 406; Ward v. Sutor, 70 Tex. 343, 8 Am. St. Rep. 606. As to liability for error of magistrate on facts stated to him, see ante, § 2, notes 9-11.

25. Ward v. Sutor, 70 Tex. 343, 8 Am. St. Rep. 606; Sweet v. Negus, 30 Mich. 406; Gibbs

An action for malicious prosecution cannot be maintained where the only thing done was to arrest the defendant under a warrant, and afterwards discharge him, and the warrant was so defective that the alleged prosecution had no existence.[26] The remedy is trespass for false imprisonment.[27] But fatal defects in a warrant of arrest will not prevent an action for malicious prosecution under an indictment afterwards presented.[28] And where a complaint on which the plaintiff was tried before a magistrate was sufficient, defects in the warrant issued thereon, and under which the plaintiff was arrested, are immaterial.[29]

A search warrant without an arrest would seem not to be a prosecution but otherwise if there is an arrest and consequent proceedings.[30] It is important chiefly as a matter of pleading for in either event the malicious issuance and execution of it is actionable.[31]

Effect of want of jurisdiction or irregularities in civil actions.—According to the weight of authority, if a person prosecutes a civil action maliciously and without probable cause, or maliciously and without probable cause procures the arrest of the defendant or an attachment of his property, he cannot defeat an action on the case for malicious prosecution or abuse of process by setting up that the court had no jurisdiction of the action, or that the capias or attachment issued therein was void for want of jurisdiction or otherwise.[32] Some of the cases, however, hold that the remedy in such a case, if there is any, is by an action of trespass.[33] One who falsely and maliciously sues out an attachment, which is executed, cannot escape liability on the ground that the affidavits on which it was issued were insufficient.[34] And the same is true of a search warrant.[35]

§ 4. Termination of prosecution in plaintiff's favor.[36]—Since an action for malicious prosecution cannot be maintained if the plaintiff was in fact guilty of the offense with which he was charged, and since there is a possibility of a conviction so long as the prosecution is pending, it necessarily follows that an action cannot be maintained for malicious prosecution until the prosecution has terminated, and in the plaintiff's favor; and this fact must be alleged in the declaration or complaint to make it state a cause of action.[37] It has been said that the plaintiff

v. Ames, 119 Mass. 66, 20 Am. Rep. 315; Stewart v. Thompson, 51 Pa. 158; Malone v. Huston, 17 Neb. 107; Minneapolis Threshing Mach. Co. v. Rigier, 51 Neb. 402; Schattgen v. Holnback, 149 Ill. 646. False pretenses as to future facts. †Harrington v. Tibbet, 143 Cal. 78, 76 P. 816. Technical defects in the complaint are no defense where it was treated as sufficient. †Kerstetter v. Thomas [Wash.] 79 P. 290. A complaint that one "failed, neglected, and refused" to pay over money, is not false though there was no demand and actual refusal. Construed as averring omission to pay over. †Bankell v. Weinacht, 99 App. Div. 316, 91 N. Y. S. 107.

26. Cockfield v. Braveboy, 2 McMullen [S. C.] 270, 39 Am. Dec. 123; Maher v. Ashmead, 30 Pa. 344, 72 Am. Dec. 708; Baird v. Householder, 32 Pa. 168; Kramer v. Lott, 50 Pa. 495, 88 Am. Dec. 556.

27. Ante, note 14.

28. Kline v. Shuler, 8 Ired. L. [N. C.] 484, 49 Am. Dec. 402.

29. Williams v. Vanmeter, 8 Mo. 339, 41 Am. Dec. 644.

30. See 4 Minor Inst. part 1, p. 393, cited Spangler v. Booze [Va.] 49 S. E. 43.

31. See ante, § 1 C.

32. Goslin v. Wilcock, 2 Wils. 302; Boon v. Maul, 3 N. J. Law, 863; Turner v. Walker, 3 Gill & J. [Md.] 377, 22 Am. Dec. 329; Antcliff v. June, 81 Mich. 477, 21 Am. St. Rep. 533, 10 L. R. A. 621. Compare, however, Montgomery v. Houston, 4 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 488, 20 Am. Dec. 223, wherein it was held that damages are given on the dissolution of an injunction, only where it was granted by competent authority.

33. Marshall v. Betner, 17 Ala. 832; Vinson v. Flynn, 64 Ark. 453; Berger v. Saul, 113 Ga. 869. See ante, this section, note 14.

34. Forrest v. Collier, 20 Ala. 175, 56 Am. Dec. 190.

35. Harlan v. Jones, 16 Ind. App. 398.

36. See 2 Curr. L. 769.

37. Buller N. P. 12; Fisher v. Bristow, 1 Doug. 215; Morgan v. Hughes, 2 Term R. 225; Bacon v. Towne, 4 Cush. [Mass.] 217; Cardival v. Smith, 109 Mass. 158, 12 Am. Rep. 682, Chase's Cas. 102, Erwin's Cas. 453; Knott v. Sargent, 125 Mass. 95; White v. Apsley Rubber Co. [Mass.] 63 N. E. 885; Whaley v. Lawton, 57 S. C. 256; Apgar v. Woolston, 43 N. J. Law, 57; Lowe v. Wartman, 47 N. J. Law, 413; Vinal v. Core, 18 W. Va. 1; Blalock v. Randall, 76 Ill. 224; Haglen v. Apple, 65 Ark. 274; Forster v. Orr, 17 Or. 447; Steel v. Williams, 18 Ind. 161; Stark v. Bindley, 152 Ind. 182; Hartshorn v. Smith, 104 Ga. 235; Schippel v. Norton, 38 must show "that his innocence was pronounced by the tribunal before which the accusation was made;"[38] but this is not strictly true. "Any proceeding," said the New Jersey court, by which the particular prosecution is disposed of in such a manner that it cannot be revived, or that the prosecutor, if he intends to proceed further, must institute proceedings de novo, is a sufficient termination of the prosecution to enable the plaintiff to bring his action."[39]

Thus a sufficient termination of the prosecution in favor of the plaintiff is established, when it is shown that, after being committed or bound over by a magistrate, he was discharged, or the prosecution abandoned, because of refusal or failure of the grand jury to find an indictment against him;[40] that he was discharged by a magistrate, either because of insufficiency of the evidence against him, or because the defendant withdrew the prosecution or failed to make any complaint or to appear;[41] or by the court in which the indictment was pending, for want of prosecution;[42] that he was discharged on a writ of habeas corpus if the circumstances are such that the prosecution is thereby ended,[43] but not otherwise;[44] or that he was acquitted by direction of the court because of a defect in the indictment,[45] or because the facts stated in the indictment, and which were the same as were stated by the defendant to the prosecuting attorney and before the grand jury, did not constitute a crime.[46]

Kan. 567; Von Koehring v. Witte, 15 Tex. Civ. App. 646; Hinds v. Parker, 11 App. Div. [N. Y.] 327; Carpenter v. Nutter, 127 Cal. 61. Merely to allege that the plaintiff was discharged from his imprisonment is not enough, for this does not necessarily imply that the prosecution is at an end. Morgan v. Hughes, 2 Term R. 225.

This rule does not apply in an action for maliciously and without probable cause suing out a peace warrant, under which the plaintiff was committed or bound over to keep the peace, the proceedings having been wholly ex parte, and the magistrate having been required by law to act upon the facts stated to him, without the plaintiff having any opportunity or right to contest the proceeding. Stewart v. Gromett, 7 C. B. (N. S.) 191; Hyde v. Greuch, 62 Md. 577. And the rule does not require that a criminal prosecution shall be terminated before the defendant may maintain an action for abuse of process therein, as for use of criminal process to compel him to abandon a claim to property or pay a disputed claim, etc. White v. Apsley Rubber Co. [Mass.] 63 N. E. 885.

38. Abrath v. North Eastern R. Co., 11 Q. B. Div. 440, 11 App. Cas. 247.

39. Apgar v. Woolston, 43 N. J. Law, 57.

40. Morgan v. Hughes, 2 Term R. 225; Mitchell v. Williams, 11 Mees. & W. 205; Bacon v. Waters, 2 Allen [Mass.] 400; Graves v. Dawson, 130 Mass. 78, 39 Am. Rep. 429, Bigelow's Cas. 62; Murray v. Lackey, 2 Murph. [N. C.] 368; Rice v. Ponder, 7 Ired. L. [N. C.] 390; Shock v. McChesney, 4 Yeates [Pa.] 507, 2 Am. Dec. 415; Gilbert v. Emmons, 42 Ill. 143, 89 Am. Dec. 412; Potter v. Casterline, 41 N. J. Law, 22; Apgar v. Woolston, 43 N. J. Law, 57; Proctor Coal Co. v. Moses [Ky.] 40 S. W. 681. A formal order of the court discharging him is not necessary. Potter v. Casterline, 41 N. J. Law, 22. But failure or refusal of the grand jury to find an indictment is not such a termination of the prosecution as will support an action, where it appears that the particular grand jury had no jurisdiction or authority to pass on the indictment (Stark v. Bindley, 152 Ind. 182), or that the prosecution was not in fact discontinued, but an indictment was found at a subsequent term (Von Koehring v. Witte, 15 Tex. Civ. App. 646); or that the case has been merely continued before the grand jury because of the absence of a witness (Knott v. Sargent, 125 Mass. 95).

41. Venafra v. Johnson, 10 Bing. 301; McDonald v. Rooke, 2 Bing. N. C. 217; Sayles v. Briggs, 4 Metc. [Mass.] 421; Moyle v. Drake, 141 Mass. 238; Brown v. Randall, 36 Conn. 56, 4 Am. Rep. 35; Page v. Citizens' Banking Co., 111 Ga. 73, 78 Am. St. Rep. 144, 51 L. R. A. 463; Rider v. Kite, 61 N. J. Law, 8; Fay v. O'Neill, 56 N. Y. 11; Secor v. Babcock, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 203; Jones v. Finch, 84 Va. 204; Strehlow v. Pettit, 96 Wis. 22; Coffey v. Myers, 84 Ind. 105. Compare, however, Ward v. Reasor [Va.] 36 S. E. 470. The rule applies to a discharge by a United States commissioner. Jones v. Finch, 84 Va. 204. But a prosecution is not terminated by discharge by a magistrate, so as to permit an action for malicious prosecution, if the prosecutor with due diligence follows up and continues the prosecution in a court having jurisdiction to try the case on its merits. Hartshorn v. Smith, 104 Ga. 235; Schippel v. Norton, 38 Kan. 567.

42. But this does not apply to a discharge of one from imprisonment, or recognizance for failure to bring on an indictment for trial at the term at which issue is joined or the next term, where under the statute the accused is not thereby discharged from the indictment or liability to prosecution under it. Apgar v. Woolston, 43 N. J. Law, 57.

43. McMahan v. Armstrong, 2 Stew. & P. [Ala.] 151, 23 Am. Dec. 304; Zebley v. Storey, 117 Pa. 478; Holliday v. Holliday, 123 Cal. 26.

44. Walker v. Martin, 43 Ill. 508; Merriman v. Morgan, 7 Or. 68; Hinds v. Parker, 11 App. Div. [N. Y.] 327.

45. Wicks v. Fentham, 4 Term R. 247; Pippet v. Hearn, 5 B. & A. 634.

In some of the cases it has been held that when a complaint has been made before a magistrate for an offense which he has jurisdiction to try, or an indictment has been found, and presented to a court having jurisdiction to try the offense, there must be a trial and acquittal, at least unless the complainant consents to a dismissal, and that a dismissal or nolle prosequi entered on motion of the prosecuting attorney is not a sufficient termination of the prosecution to permit an action for malicious prosecution, as this does not tend to show the innocence of the accused, and another complaint may be made, or another indictment found, on the same complaint.[47] Other courts hold that a dismissal without trial or entry of a nolle prosequi, if not by the procurement or consent of the accused, while it does not determine the innocence of the accused, and may not prevent another indictment or complaint, is nevertheless a sufficient termination of the particular prosecution in favor of the accused to entitle him to maintain an action. This view is undoubtedly supported by the weight of authority.[48] This does not apply, however, where a complaint charging an offense is dismissed without a trial, or a nolle prosequi entered on a good indictment, because of a settlement or compromise between the accused and the complainant, or otherwise by the procurement or with the consent of the accused.[49]

A search warrant is ended when it proves ineffective and the proceeding is discontinued.[50] There need be no trial on merits and acquittal.[51]

Favorable termination or innocence of the plaintiff.—To enable one to maintain an action for the malicious prosecution of a criminal charge against him, he must so far as the prosecution is concerned stand innocent of the offense charged, that is it must have terminated in his favor.[52] While unnecessary to prove innocence, it may be proved in rebuttal,[53] and a judgment of conviction is conclusive as to his guilt until it is set aside or reversed.[54] If he was in fact guilty of the 46. Dennis v. Ryan, 65 N. Y. 385, 22 Am. Rep. 635. As to the effect of want of jurisdiction, and the conflict of authority on the question, see ante, § 3.

47. Buller N. P. 14; Bacon v. Towne, 4 Cush. [Mass.] 217; Parker v. Farley, 10 Cush. [Mass.] 279; Coupal v. Ward, 106 Mass. 289; Cardival v. Smith, 109 Mass. 158, 12 Am. Rep. 682, Chase's Cas. 102, Erwin's Cas. 453; Garing v. Fraser, 76 Me. 37; Ward v. Reasor [Va.] 36 S. E. 470. The Massachusetts cases above cited, however, were limited in Graves v. Dawson, 130 Mass. 78, 39 Am. Rep. 429, Bigelow's Cas. 62; Id., 133 Mass. 419, and it was held that while a nolle prosequi is not necessarily such a termination of a prosecution as will permit an action for malicious prosecution,—as where it was procured by the plaintiff,—yet it may be under some circumstances.

48. Moulton v. Beecher, 1 Abb. N. C. [N. Y.] 193, Chase's Cas. 103; Yocum v. Polly, 1 B. Mon. [Ky.] 358, 36 Am. Dec. 583; Hatch v. Cohen, 84 N. C. 602, 37 Am. Rep. 630; Apgar v. Woolston, 43 N. J. Law, 57; Lowe v. Wartman, 47 N. J. Law, 413; Richter v. Koster, 45 Ind. 440; Holliday v. Holliday, 123 Cal. 26; Douglas v. Allen, 56 Ohio St. 156; Driggs v. Burton, 44 Vt. 124; Woodworth v. Mills, 61 Wis. 44, 50 Am. Rep. 135; †Hurgren v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co., 141 Cal. 585, 75 P. 168. And see Brown v. Randall, 36 Conn. 56, 4 Am. Rep. 35; Page v. Citizens' Banking Co., 111 Ga. 73, 85, 78 Am. St. Rep. 144, 155. 51 L. R. A. 463; Stanton v. Hart, 27 Mich. 539, and dictum in cases cited in the note following. But striking of a criminal case from the docket on motion of the state's attorney, with leave to reinstate the same, is not a sufficient termination. Blalock v. Randall, 76 Ill. 224.

49. Langford v. Boston & A. R. Co., 144 Mass. 431; Coupal v. Ward, 106 Mass. 289; Craig v. Ginn [Del.] 45 A. 842, afd. 48 A. 192; Welch v. Cheek, 125 N. C. 353; Russell v. Morgan [R. I.] 52 A. 809, and dictum in the cases cited in the note preceding. Compare Driggs v. Burton, 44 Vt. 124.

50, 51. Trial and acquittal need not be pleaded. †Spangler v. Booze [Va.] 49 S. E. 42.

52. Abrath v. North Eastern R. Co., 11 Q. B. Div. 440; afd. 11 App. Cas. 247; Basebe v. Matthews, L. R. 2 C. P. 684; Bartlett v. Brown, 6 R. I. 37, 75 Am. Dec. 675; Whitehurst v. Ward, 12 Ala. 264; Bigelow v. Sickles, 80 Wis. 98, 27 Am. St. Rep. 25; Johnson v. Chambers, 10 Ired. L. [N. C.] 287; Parkhurst v. Masteller, 57 Iowa, 474; Threefoot v. Nuckols, 68 Miss. 116. And see Newton v. Weaver, 13 R. I. 616. But where a person is maliciously prosecuted on several charges, the fact that he was guilty of some of them will not prevent him from recovering as to others, of which he was innocent. Reed v. Taylor, 4 Taunt. 616; Ellis v. Abrahams, 8 Q. B. 709.

53. Arrest for drunkenness. †Kerstetter v. Thomas [Wash.] 79 P. 290.

54. Mellor v. Baddeley, 6 Car. & P. 374; Basebe v. Matthews, L. R. 2 C. P. 684; Griffis v. Sellars, 2 Dev. & B. (N. C.) 492, 31 crime for which he was prosecuted, he cannot recover, although the defendant did not know of his guilt when he instituted the prosecution, or of facts establishing probable cause for the prosecution.[55] The fact that the plaintiff was acquitted on the prosecution or discharged by a magistrate, or because of the failure of the grand jury to find an indictment, is not conclusive evidence of his innocence, and does not preclude the defendant from showing that he was in fact guilty.[56] A very recent opinion in dissent favors allowing recovery despite a conviction which was merely technical and procured by false facts for an ulterior purpose.[57]

Rule in respect to civil prosecutions and abuse of process.—It is the general rule, in order that an action may be maintained for malicious prosecution of a civil action or proceeding, that the action or proceeding must have terminated, and in favor of the present plaintiff, for until its determination it cannot be known that it was unfounded; and this fact must be alleged in the declaration or complaint.[58] But this rule does not require that all proceedings that may be had or are required in an action to finally work out or enforce the rights of the parties shall occur before a cause of action will accrue to the defendant therein for maliciously prosecuting such action. "It requires only that the issues material to the question of the bona fides of such action shall be tried and closed by final judgment."[59] The general rule that determination of the action or proceeding complained of is necessary certainly applies where it is sought to recover for the prosecution of an ordinary civil action as having been brought maliciously and without probable cause;[60] or for the prosecution of an action of replevin,[61] or of bankruptcy or insolvency proceedings,[62] or of a suit for a receiver,[63] or of statutory proceedings to dispossess a tenant,[64] etc. The rule also applies to an action for malicious prosecution of a suit in which a capias or attachment was issued, if it is based on the ground that there was no cause of action at all, or no cause of action for the whole amount sued for.[65] But if the action is based on the ground that there was no cause for the issue of the capias or attachment, it may be maintained as

Am. Dec. 422; Severance v. Judkins, 73 Me. 376. The fact that there is no appeal from the conviction is immaterial. Basebe v. Matthews, L. R. 2 C. P. 684.

55. Adams v. Lisher, 3 Blackf. [Ind.] 241, 25 Am. Dec. 102; Parkhurst v. Masteller, 57 Iowa, 474; Johnson v. Chambers, 10 Ired. L. [N. C.] 287; Plummer v. Gheen, 3 Hawks [N. C.] 66, 14 Am. Dec. 572; Threefoot v. Nuckols, 68 Miss. 116; Bigelow v. Sickles, 80 Wis. 98, 27 Am. St. Rep. 25. But the defendant cannot establish probable cause merely, by proof of facts which were not known to him. See post, § 5, note 85.

56. Plummer v. Gheen, 3 Hawks [N. C.] 66, 14 Am. Dec. 572; Bigelow v. Sickles, 80 Wis. 98, 27 Am. St. Rep. 25, and other cases above cited. †Mack v. Sharp [Mich.] 101 N. W. 631.

57. †In Lipowicz v. Jervis, 209 Pa. 315, 58 A. 619, Mitchell, J., dissenting, says there is no probable cause even in case of conviction where the offense was a wholly technical one found on facts which the prosecutor had caused to appear and the prosecution for an ulterior purpose.

58. Metropolitan Bank v. Pooley, 10 App. Cas. 210; Wood v. Laycock, 3 Metc. [Ky.] 192, Paige's Cas. 355; Turner v. Walker, 3 Gill & J. [Md.] 377, 22 Am. Dec. 329; Jones v. Kirksey, 10 Ala. 839; Burt v. Place, 4 Wend. [N. Y.] 591; O'Brien v. Barry, 106 Mass. 300, 8 Am. Rep. 329; Wilson v. Hale [Mass.] 59 N. E. 632; Luby v. Bennett, 111 Wis. 613, 87 Am. St. Rep. 897, 56 L. R. A. 261; Dowdell v. Carpy, 129 Cal. 168. And see Fulton Grocery Co. v. Maddox, 111 Ga. 260, also, the valuable note 93 Am. St. Rep. 470.

59. Luby v. Bennett, 111 Wis. 613, 87 Am. St. Rep. 897, 56 L. R. A. 261.

60. Wood v. Laycock, 3 Metc. [Ky.] 192, Paige's Cas. 355, and other cases above cited.

61. O'Brien v. Barry, 106 Mass. 300, 8 Am. Rep. 329.

62. One who has been adjudicated a bankrupt cannot maintain an action for instituting the proceedings maliciously and without probable cause, until the adjudication has been set aside. Metropolitan Bank v. Pooley, 10 App. Cas. 210.

63. Liquid Carbonic Acid Mfg. Co. v. Convert, 82 Ill. App. 39.

64. But dismissal of the dispossessory warrant in such proceedings after it has coerced the defendant therein to give bond to avoid eviction terminates the proceeding sufficiently to entitle him to maintain an action. Slater v. Kimbro, 91 Ga. 217, 44 Am. St. Rep. 19.

65. Turner v. Walker, 3 Gill & J. [Md.] 377, 22 Am. Dec. 329; Jones v. Kirksey, 10 Ala. 839; Cardival v. Smith, 109 Mass. 158, 12 Am. Rep. 682, Chase's Cas. 102, Erwin's Cas. 453; Wilson v. Hale [Mass.] 59 N. E. 632.

soon as the capias or attachment has been vacated, or according to several decisions, even before it has been vacated.[66] In case of injunction the action must first be finally determined.[67]

The action complained of need not necessarily have been determined in the plaintiff's favor by a judgment of the court. There is a sufficient termination where it was voluntarily dismissed or withdrawn by the defendant, or discontinued by his failure to appear and prosecute it.[68] A verdict or final determination on the merits is not necessary.[69] An action is not determined in favor of the defendant therein by a judgment in his favor, so as to entitle him to maintain an action for malicious prosecution, if the plaintiff has appealed, and the appeal is still pending and undetermined,[70] or if the judgment has been reversed and the case remanded for a new trial, which has not been had;[71] but the fact that he has a right to appeal or to move for a new trial does not render an action premature, if it does not appear that any appeal has been taken or motion for a new trial made.[72] If there was a judgment against the defendant (the present plaintiff) in the suit complained of, and it has not been reversed or set aside, it is conclusive against him in an action for malicious prosecution,[73] unless it appears that there was no opportunity to defend.[74] And a judgment against him is conclusive, even though reversed or set aside, unless it is shown, as it may be, that it was procured by fraud or other unfair means.[75]

Termination of a civil action or criminal prosecution is not necessary to entitle the defendant therein to maintain an action, not for malicious prosecution, but for abuse of process[76] in the action or prosecution,—as for illegally making use of a writ of arrest in a civil action to compel the defendant to surrender property,[77] or for illegally using criminal process to compel the defendant to pay a disputed claim or surrender property.[78] An action for malicious abuse of process will lie even where the defendant recovered a judgment in the suit complained of, and has obtained satisfaction thereof by the issue of an execution, where the judgment was recovered by fraud in a court having no jurisdiction of the plaintiff.[79]

§ 5. Want of reasonable and probable cause. A. In malicious criminal prosecution.[80]—A person cannot maintain an action for malicious prosecution unless he shows "that there was a want of reasonable and probable cause for the prosecution, or, as it may be otherwise stated, that the circumstances of the case were such as to be, in the eyes of the judge, inconsistent with the existence of reasonable and probable cause."[81] It is not enough for the plaintiff to allege and prove that

66. Fortman v. Rottler, 8 Ohio St. 548, 72 Am. Dec. 606; Brand v. Hinchman, 68 Mich. 590, 13 Am. St. Rep. 362; Alsop v. Lidden [Ala.] 30 So. 401. See, also, Bump v. Betts, 19 Wend. [N. Y.] 421, Chase's Cas. 107, Erwin's Cas. 452; but see Kelley v. Osborn, 86 Mo. App. 239. If the capias or attachment is void, the action may be maintained before it is vacated. Turner v. Walker, 3 Gill & J. [Md.] 377, 22 Am. Dec. 329.

67. †Williams v. Ainsworth [Wis.] 99 N. W. 327.

68. Pierce v. Street, 3 Barn. & Ad. 397; Arundell v. White, 14 East, 216; Cardinal v. Smith, 109 Mass. 158, 12 Am. Rep. 682, Chase's Cas. 682, Erwin's Cas. 453. A dismissal suffices. †Hurgren v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co., 141 Cal. 585, 75 P. 168.

69. †Hurgren v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co., 141 Cal. 585, 75 P. 168.

70. Reynolds v. De Geer, 13 Ill. App. 113; Nebenzahl v. Townsend, 61 How. Pr. [N. Y.] 353.

71. Dowdall v. Carpy, 129 Cal. 168.

72. Luby v. Bennett, 111 Wis. 613, 87 Am. St. Rep. 897, 56 L. R. A. 261; Marks v. Townsend, 97 N. Y. 590 (compare Ingram v. Root), 51 Hun [N. Y.] 238).

73. Jones v. Kirksey, 10 Ala. 839.

74. Bump v. Betts, 19 Wend. [N. Y.] 421, Chase's Cas. 107, Erwin's Cas. 452.

75. Burt v. Place, 4 Wend. [N. Y.] 591; Welch v. Boston & P. R. Co., 14 R. I. 609.

76. As stated in a previous section, no termination of the action or suit is necessary to support a right to recover for abuse of process. See ante, § 1B "Abuse of Process."

77. Grainger v. Hill, 4 Bing. N. C. 212, Chase's Cas. 107, Bigelow's Cas. 67.

78. White v. Apsley [Mass.] 63 N. E. 885.

79. Antcliff v. June, 81 Mich. 477, 21 Am. St. Rep. 533.

80. See 2 Curr. L. 767.

81. Abrath v. Northeastern R. Co., 11 Q. B. Div. 440, afd. 11 App. Cas. 247.

he was innocent, and the charge false, and that the defendant instituted the prosecution with actual malice, but he must go further, and both allege[82] and prove that the defendant did not believe him to be guilty, or, if he did, that he had no reasonable and probable grounds for his belief. In other words, as it is generally expressed, malice and want of probable cause must concur.[83] And the burden of proving that the prosecution was without probable cause is primarily on the plaintiff.[84] It is no defense that there was probable cause for supposing the plaintiff guilty, if the defendant did not, at the time, know of the facts constituting the probable cause.[85] And even if he did know all the facts, yet if he did not believe the plaintiff guilty, the defense of probable cause cannot avail.[86]

Effect of malice.—As stated above, the fact that the defendant acted maliciously in causing the prosecution does not render him liable, unless he also acted without probable cause, both of these elements being essential;[87] and it has repeatedly been held that want of probable cause cannot be inferred from any degree of malice that may be shown.[88] "From the want of probable cause, malice may be

82. Box v. Taylor, 2 Shower, 154; Muriell v. Tracy, 6 Mod. 169; Kirtley v. Deck, 2 Munf. [Va.] 10, 5 Am. Dec. 445; Young v. Gregorie, 3 Call [Va.] 446, 2 Am. Dec. 556; Dennehey v. Woodsum, 100 Mass. 195; Turner v. Turner, 85 Tenn. 387; Palmer v. Palmer, 8 App. Div. [N. Y.] 331; Cousins v. Swords, 14 App. Div. [N. Y.] 338, 162 N. Y. 625; Haglen v. Apple, 65 Ark. 274; †Lipowicz v. Jervis, 209 Pa. 315, 58 A. 619. Compare Wall v. Toomey, 52 Conn. 35.

83. Box v. Taylor, 2 Shower, 154; Abrath v. Northeastern R. Co., 11 Q. B. Div. 440, afd. 11 App. Cas. 247; Hicks v. Falkner, 8 Q. B. Div. 167; Turner v. Ambler, 10 Q. B. Div. 252; Kirtley v. Deck, 2 Munf. [Va.] 10, 5 Am. Dec. 445; Foshay v. Ferguson, 2 Denio [N. Y.] 617, Chase's Cas. 100; Miller v. Milligan, 48 Barb. [N. Y.] 30, Chase's Cas. 98; Walter v. Sample, 25 Pa. 275, Chase's Cas. 101, Paige's Cas. 358; Stone v. Stevens, 12 Conn. 219, 30 Am. Dec. 611; Grant v. Deuel, 3 Rob. [La.] 17, 38 Am. Dec. 228; Medcalfe v. Brooklyn Life Ins. Co., 45 Md. 198, Paige's Cas. 349; Cockfield v. Braveboy, 2 McMullen [S. C.] 270, 39 Am. Dec. 123; Stewart v. Sonneborn, 98 U. S. 187, Burdick's Cas. 253; Boeger v. Langenberg, 97 Mo. 390, 10 Am. St. Rep. 322; Vinal v. Core, 18 W. Va. 1; Apgar v. Woolston, 43 N. J. Law, 57; Williams v. Vanmeter, 8 Mo. 339, 41 Am. Dec. 644; Ross v. Innis, 35 Ill. 487, 85 Am. Dec. 373; Smith v. Austin, 49 Mich. 286; Wilson v. Bowen, 64 Mich. 133; Lunsford v. Dietrich, 86 Ala. 250, 11 Am. St. Rep. 37; Id., 93 Ala. 565, 30 Am. St. Rep. 79; Foster v. Pitts, 63 Ark. 387; Haglen v. Apple, 65 Ark. 274; Goldstein v. Foulkes, 19 R. I. 291; †Jordan v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 105 Mo. App. 446, 79 S. W. 1155; †Lipowicz v. Jervis, 209 Pa. 315, 58 A. 619. Charge construed as holding defendant only if malice concurred with want of probable cause and not as permitting recovery in the face of probable cause. †Adkin v. Pillen [Mich.] 100 N. W. 176.

The fact that the defendant had probable cause for some of several charges on which the prosecution was based does not prevent the plaintiff from recovering with respect to others, as to which there was not probable cause. Reed v. Taylor, 4 Taunt. 616; Ellis v. Abrahams, 8 Q. B. 709.

84. Miller v. Milligan, 48 Barb. [N. Y.] 30, Chase's Cas. 98; Kutner v. Fargo, 34 App. Div. [N. Y.] 317; Ross v. Innis, 35 Ill. 487, 85 Am. Dec. 373; Walter v. Sample, 25 Pa. 275, Chase's Cas. 101, Paige's Cas. 358; Foster v. Pitts, 63 Ark. 387; Apgar v. Woolston, 43 N. J. Law, 57; Lunsford v. Dietrich, 93 Ala. 565, 30 Am. St. Rep. 79; Monroe v. Weston Lumber Co., 50 La. Ann. 158; †Sundmaker v. Gaudet [La.] 37 So. 865, and other cases above cited. In some jurisdictions proof by the plaintiff that he was acquitted by a jury, or discharged or acquitted by a magistrate, etc., is held to make out a prima facie case of want of probable cause, so as to shift the burden of proof to the defendant. See infra, this section.

85. Turner v. Ambler, 10 Q. B. 252; Delegal v. Highley, 3 Bing. N. C. 959; Galloway v. Stewart, 49 Ind. 156, 19 Am. Rep. 677; Josselyn v. McAllister, 25 Mich. 45; McIntyre v. Levering, 148 Mass. 546, 12 Am. St. Rep. 594; Harkrader v. Moore, 44 Cal. 144, Erwin's Cas. 456; Ball v. Rawles, 93 Cal. 222, 27 Am. St. Rep. 174; Threefoot v. Nuckols, 68 Miss. 116.

86. Broad v. Ham, 5 Bing. N. C. 722; Ball v. Rawles, 93 Cal. 222, 27 Am. St. Rep. 174; Harkrader v. Moore, 44 Cal. 144, Erwin's Cas. 456; Jackson v. Linnington, 47 Kan. 396, 27 Am. St. Rep. 300; Johnson v. Miller, 82 Iowa, 693, 31 Am. St. Rep. 514; Burk v. Howley, 179 Pa. 539, 57 Am. St. Rep. 607. And see post, § 7, note 24.

87. Foshay v. Ferguson, 2 Denio [N. Y.] 617, Chase's Cas. 100; Miller v. Milligan, 48 Barb. [N. Y.] 30, Chase's Cas. 98; Travis v. Smith, 1 Pa. 234, 44 Am. Dec. 125; Bartlett v. Brown, 6 R. I. 37, 75 Am. Dec. 675; Staunton v. Goshorn [C. C. A.] 94 F. 52; Grant v. Deuel, 3 Rob. [La.] 17, 38 Am. Dec. 228; Williams v. Vanmeter, 8 Mo. 339, 41 Am. Dec. 644; Adams v. Lisher, 3 Blackf. [Ind.] 241, 25 Am. Dec. 102; Yocum v. Polly, 1 B. Mon. [Ky.] 358, 36 Am. Dec. 583; Smith v. Austin, 49 Mich. 286; Coleman v. Allen, 79 Ga. 637, 11 Am. St. Rep. 449; Seamans v. Hoge, 105 Ga. 159; Hicks v. Brantley, 102 Ga. 264; Jackson v. Linnington, 47 Kan. 396, 27 Am. St. Rep. 300; Strehlow v. Pettit, 96 Wis. 22; †Burks v. Ferriell [Ky.] 80 S. W. 809.

88. Miller v. Milligan, 48 Barb. [N. Y.] 30, Chase's Cas. 98; Murray v. Long, 1 Wend. [N. Y.] 140; Williams v. Vanmeter, 8 Mo. 339, 41 Am. Dec. 644; Sharpe v. Johnston, 76 Mo.

implied;[89] but the want of probable cause can never be implied from the proof of malice. The direct proof of the most intense malice is not sufficient; there must be proof also of the want of probable cause, or the suit must fail. The want of probable cause is never implied."[90] Its absence cannot be inferred from evidence of a motive generating malice.[91]

"Probable cause" defined.—Reasonable and probable cause, or "probable cause," as it is generally expressed, means "a reasonable ground of suspicion, supported by circumstances sufficiently strong in themselves to warrant a cautious man in the belief that the person accused is guilty of the offense with which he is charged."[92] It follows that mere suspicion, or even a bona fide belief, as to the plaintiff's guilt, is no defense, unless there were reasonable grounds for such belief and the defendant acted with due caution in entertaining it,[93] but the prosecutor may rely on 660; Ulmer v. Leland, 1 Greenl. [Me.] 135, 10 Am. Dec. 48; Yocum v. Polly, 1 B. Mon. [Ky.] 358, 36 Am. Dec. 583; Adams v. Lisher, 3 Blackf. [Ind.] 241, 25 Am. Dec. 102; Griffin v. Chubb, 7 Tex. 603, 58 Am. Dec. 85; Medcalfe v. Brooklyn Life Ins. Co., 45 Md. 198, Paige's Cas. 349; Stewart v. Sanneborn, 98 U. S. 187, Burdick's Cas. 253; Ross v. Innis, 35 Ill. 487, 85 Am. Dec. 373; Plummer v. Gheen, 3 Hawks [N. C.] 66, 14 Am. Dec. 572; Bitting v. Ten Eyck, 82 Ind. 421, 42 Am. Rep. 505; Hicks v. Brantley, 102 Ga. 264, and other cases cited in the note preceding. Compare, however, Wenger v. Phillips, 195 Pa. 214, 78 Am. St. Rep. 810.

But proof of express malice may be taken into consideration on the question and may render slight evidence in addition sufficient to establish want of probable cause. Grant v. Deuel, 3 Rob. [La.] 17, 38 Am. Dec. 228.

89. See post, § 6, note 81 et seq.

90. Adams v. Lisher, 3 Blackf. [Ind.] 241, 25 Am. Dec. 102. Clear proof is required. †Fox v. Smith [R. I.] 57 A. 932.

91. Competition in business. †Bankell v. Weinacht, 99 App. Div. 316, 91 N. Y. S. 107.

92. Foshay v. Ferguson, 2 Denio [N. Y.] 617, Chase's Cas. 100. See, also, Munns v. Dupont, 3 Wash. C. C. [U. S.] 37; Carl v. Ayers, 53 N. Y. 14, Chase's Cas. 94; Stone v. Stevens, 12 Conn. 219, 30 Am. Dec. 611; Cockfield v. Braveboy, 2 McMull. [S. C.] 270, 39 Am. Dec. 123; Ritchie v. McBean, 17 Ill. 63; Ross v. Innis, 35 Ill. 487, 85 Am. Dec. 373; Ash v. Marlow, 20 Ohio, 119; Wilson v. Bowen, 64 Mich. 133; Vinal v. Core, 18 W. Va. 1; Lunsford v. Dietrich, 93 Ala. 565, 30 Am. St. Rep. 79; Id., 86 Ala. 250, 11 Am. St. Rep. 37; Thompson v. Beacon Valley, etc., Co., 56 Conn. 493; Hays v. Blizzard, 30 Ind. 457; Bitting v. Ten Eyck, 82 Ind. 421, 42 Am. Rep. 505; Paddock v. Watts, 116 Ind. 146, 9 Am. St. Rep. 832. "Probable cause consists of a belief in the charge or facts alleged, based on sufficient circumstances to reasonably induce such belief in a person of ordinary prudence in the same situation." Boeger v. Langenberg, 97 Mo. 390, 10 Am. St. Rep. 322. Probable cause "is constituted by such facts and circumstances as, when communicated to the generality of men of ordinary and impartial minds, are sufficient to raise in them a belief, or real grave suspicion of the guilt of the person." Griffis v. Sellars, 2 Dev. & B. [N. C.] 492, 31 Am. Dec. 422.

The question is to be considered, according to the better opinion, from the standpoint of the defendant, and he should not be held liable because of natural partiality and prejudice. As was said in a Wisconsin case, "some allowance may be made when the prosecutor is so injured by the offense that he could not likely draw his conclusions with the same impartiality and absence of prejudice that a person entirely disinterested would deliberately do. All that can be required of him is that he shall act as a reasonable and prudent man would be likely to do in like circumstances." Spear v. Hiles, 67 Wis. 350. And see Carter v. Sutherland, 52 Mich. 597. Complaint for slander of female lodged after taking other witnesses before magistrate and there presumptively hearing them on oath. †Shafer v. Hertzig [Minn.] 99 N. W. 796. Three examinations disclosing apparent deficit followed by consultation with counsel and prosecution for embezzlement and acquittal does not show want of probable cause. †Berger v. Wild [C. C. A.] 130 F. 882. Larceny from corporation and prosecution begun by agent after investigation and consultation with prosecuting attorney. †Jordan v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 105 Mo. App. 446, 79 S. W. 1155.

Facts submitted to jury. Prosecution for attempted train wrecking by placing ties near which plaintiff had been seen moving ties. †Mundal v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. [Minn.] 99 N. W. 273. Plaintiff arrested for larceny had collected money of one and examination and inquiry at defendant's office showed no indication of its payment over; and there had been previous misappropriation by plaintiff from same source. †Bankell v. Weinacht, 99 App. Div. 316, 91 N. Y. S. 107. Probable cause properly left to jury though plaintiff was seemingly the only person who had opportunity to be accomplice to an embezzler and though he was so charged in a confession by the principal and resigned to engage in business with him. †Rawson v. Leggett, 97 App. Div. 416, 90 N. Y. S. 5. Arrest for cutting timber from public lands. †Charlton v. Markland [Wash.] 78 P. 132.

93. Merriam v. Mitchell, 13 Me. 439, 29 Am. Dec. 514; Carl v. Ayers, 53 N. Y. 14, Chase's Cas. 94; Lunsford v. Dietrich, 93 Ala. 565, 30 Am. St. Rep. 79; Shaul v. Brown, 28 Iowa, 37, 4 Am. Rep. 151; Billingslea v. Maas, 93 Wis. 176, and other cases above cited. Proof that property, for the larceny of which the plaintiff was prosecuted by the defendant, was all the time in the defendant's own possession, and was overlooked by him by the testimony of others and need not be an eye or ear witness.[94] The fact that the defendant might have ascertained facts showing that the plaintiff was not guilty, or that on the facts known to him a person of extreme or unusual caution would not have proceeded, does not render him liable. All that can be required is that he shall have exercised reasonable care under the circumstances, and shall have acted as an ordinarily cautious and prudent man would act under like circumstances.[95] On the other hand, innocence is not the test of want of probable cause.[96] Facts which manifestly fall short of criminality afford no probable cause,[97] and the presumption favors legality rather than criminality of an act.[98] It suffices that there was probable cause for that crime informed of though the officer misnamed it in the warrant and the arrest was for one without cause.[99] There is not only probable cause but a duty to prosecute one whom an officer knows has violated the law[1] and his connivance at the offense makes no difference.[2]

Evidence.—All the circumstances bearing on probable cause may be received; for example a dispute between parties,[3] threats,[4] the substance, completeness and manner of the disclosure to counsel,[5] good faith in acting on advice.[6]

For the purpose of establishing reasonable and probable cause, where the plaintiff's evidence tends to show want of such cause, the defendant may introduce evidence of the testimony, including his own, given on the trial or other proceedings against the plaintiff, even though such testimony may have been incompetent.[7] And he may prove the general bad character of the plaintiff, known to him,[8] but not specific acts of misconduct not connected with the charge complained of.[9] On the other hand the good character of the plaintiff, and the defendant's knowledge thereof, may be shown and considered with other evidence as tending to show want of probable cause.[10] The defendant may also prove statements reason of carelessness in his search, shows want of reasonable and probable cause. Merriam v. Mitchell, 13 Me. 439, 29 Am. Dec. 514.

94. Not necessary that he should have heard utterances of criminal slander of wife. †Shafer v. Hertzig [Minn.] 99 N. W. 796.

95. Eggett v. Allen, 106 Wis. 633; Ellis v. Simonds, 168 Mass. 316; Spitzer v. Friedlander, 14 App. D. C. 556. It has been held erroneous, therefore, to define probable cause as a reasonable ground of suspicion supported by circumstances sufficiently strong in themselves to warrant a "really cautious" man in the belief that the person accused is guilty, as this requires more than ordinary caution and prudence. Eggett v. Allen, 106 Wis. 633. But to charge that probable cause is such a state of facts as would induce in the mind of an ordinarily prudent person a "strong" suspicion of guilt, is not erroneous by reason of the use of the word "strong." George v. Johnson, 25 App. Div. [N. Y.] 125.

96. †Mundal v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 363. And see post, notes 19-32.

97. Withholding a deposition long enough to consult an attorney held not larceny. †Parr v. Loder, 97 App. Div. 218, 89 N. Y. S. 823. There is no probable cause to prosecute for larceny one who took up and sold estrays pursuant to a statute later declared to be unconstitutional. †Kueney v. Uhl [Iowa] 98 N. W. 602. One who circulates a libel may falsely charge another with crime [Comp. Laws, § 11,762]. †Mack v. Sharp [Mich.] 101 N. W. 631.

98. Detaching fixtures from house belonging to wife presumed to have been with her consent. †Adkin v. Pillen [Mich.] 100 N. W. 176.

99. Information for obstructing a highway and arrest for obstructing passway. †Burks v. Ferriell [Ky.] 80 S. W. 809.

1, 2. Prosecution of restaurant keeper for selling impure milk sold to him by dairy commissioner's connivance. †McKenzie v. Royal Dairy, 35 Wash. 390, 77 P. 680. Semble that a cause of action exists for his wrong. Id.

3, 4. Threats by plaintiff against all agents of a claimant and not specifically against defendant. †Thurkettle v. Frost [Mich.] 100 N. W. 283.

5, 6. †Thurkettle v. Frost [Mich.] 100 N. W. 283.

7. Buller, N. P. 14; McMahan v. Armstrong, 2 Stew. & P. [Ala.] 151, 23 Am. Dec. 304; Goodrich v. Warner, 21 Conn. 432.

8. Miller v. Brown, 3 Mo. 127, 23 Am. Dec. 693; Peck v. Chouteau, 91 Mo. 138, 60 Am. Rep. 236; Martin v. Hardesty, 27 Ala. 458, 62 Am. Dec. 773; Israel v. Brooks, 23 Ill. 575; Rosenkrans v. Barker, 115 Ill. 331, 56 Am. Rep. 169; McIntyre v. Levering, 148 Mass. 546, 12 Am. St. Rep. 594; O'Brien v. Frasier, 47 N. J. Law, 349, 54 Am. Rep. 170.

9. Gregory v. Thomas, 2 Bibb [Ky.] 286, 5 Am. Dec. 608; Miller v. Brown, 3 Mo. 127, 23 Am. Dec. 693; McIntyre v. Levering, 148 Mass. 546, 12 Am. St. Rep. 594; Chrisman v. Carney, 33 Ark. 316; Carson v. Edgeworth, 43 Mich. 241; Williams v. Casebeer, 126 Cal. 77; Anderson v. Cowles, 72 Conn. 335, 77 Am. St. Rep. 310. Hearsay and opinion evidence based on specific acts is not admissible. Hart v. McLaughlin, 51 App. Div. [N. Y.] 411.

made to him by third persons tending to induce belief in the plaintiff's guilt,[11] but not statements which were not communicated to him;[12] and the plaintiff may show that the defendant knew of the bad character of the person on whose information he relies as tending to show probable cause.[13] Mere failure to inquire of one who would have furnished more cause is not evidence of want of probable cause.[14] Delay while investigating does not raise an inference of want of probable cause,[15] likewise forbearance to claim embezzled money does not show its absence.[16] It has been held that proof that the defendant instituted the prosecution for the purpose of coercing payment of a debt is prima facie evidence of want of probable cause, although not conclusive.[17] On the question whether one prosecuted for forcibly defending certain alleged rights of occupancy was entitled to such rights, former transfers of that to which the right pertained but containing no reference to it may be received.[18]

All of the courts agree that want of probable cause is not conclusively shown by the fact that the prosecution was abandoned, or that the grand jury failed to find an indictment, or that the plaintiff was acquitted or discharged by a magistrate, or by the verdict of a jury.[19] Most of the courts have gone further than this, and have held that no implication of want of probable cause is raised, even prima facie, so as to warrant a recovery without other evidence on the question, by proof that the prosecution was abandoned,[20] or that the plaintiff was acquitted by a petit jury on a trial of the charge,[21] or by a magistrate on a trial before him.[22]

10. McIntyre v. Levering, 148 Mass. 546, 12 Am. St. Rep. 594; Bacon v. Towne, 4 Cush. [Mass.] 217, 240; Ross v. Innis, 35 Ill. 487, 85 Am. Dec. 373; Israel v. Brooks, 23 Ill. 575; Blizzard v. Hays, 46 Ind. 166, 15 Am. Rep. 291; Woodworth v. Mills, 61 Wis. 44, 50 Am. Rep. 135; Jones v. Morris, 97 Va. 43; †Thurkettle v. Frost [Mich.] 100 N. W. 283. Contra, Kennedy v. Holladay, 25 Mo. App. 503. And see Skidmore v. Bricker, 77 Ill. 164.

11. French v. Smith, 4 Vt. 363, 24 Am. Dec. 616; Lamb v. Galland, 44 Cal. 609; Widmeyer v. Felton, 95 F. 926. The fact that the prosecution was instituted on evidence or statements of an alleged accomplice does not establish want of probable cause. Widmeyer v. Felton, 95 F. 926.

12. McIntyre v. Levering, 148 Mass. 546, 12 Am. St. Rep. 594.

13. McIntyre v. Levering, 148 Mass. 546, 12 Am. St. Rep. 594; Anderson v. Friend, 71 Ill. 475; Chapman v. Dunn, 56 Mich. 31.

14. †Bankell v. Weinacht, 99 App. Div. 316, 91 N. Y. S. 107.

15. Eight months' delay. †Bankell v. Weinacht, 99 App. Div. 316, 91 N. Y. S. 107.

16. †Bankell v. Weinacht, 99 App. Div. 316, 91 N. Y. S. 107.

17. Wenger v. Phillips, 195 Pa. 214, 78 Am. St. Rep. 810. See, also, Paddock v. Watts, 116 Ind. 146, 9 Am. St. Rep. 832; Strehlow v. Pettit, 96 Wis. 22. But while this is evidence of malice (post, § 7, notes 86, 87), to hold that it is prima facie evidence of want of probable cause would seem to be in conflict with the rule that want of probable cause cannot be inferred from malice. See supra, this section, and cases in notes 88-91.

18. Bill of sale of ferry admitted because it was silent as to right to occupy land on which ferry house stood. †Thurkettle v. Frost [Mich.] 100 N. W. 283.

19. Abandonment of prosecution, Cockfield v. Braveboy, 2 McMullen [S. C.] 270, 39 Am. Dec. 123; McLeod v. McLeod, 75 Ala. 483. Discharge by magistrate. Ritchie v. McBean, 17 Ill. 63; Boeger v. Langenberg, 97 Mo. 390, 10 Am. St. Rep. 322; Bigelow v. Sickles, 80 Wis. 98, 27 Am. St. Rep. 25; Vinal v. Core, 18 W. Va. 1; Smith v. Ege, 52 Pa. 419; Heldt v. Webster, 60 Tex. 207; Barhight v. Tammany, 158 Pa. 545, 38 Am. St. Rep. 853; Hidy v. Murray, 101 Iowa, 65. Failure of grand jury to find indictment. Magowan v. Rickey [N. J. Law] 45 A. 804; Apgar v. Woolston, 43 N. J. Law, 57. Acquittal by magistrate. Sherwood v. Reed, 35 Conn. 450, 95 Am. Dec. 284. Acquittal by a petit jury. Grant v. Deuel, 3 Rob. [La.] 17, 38 Am. Dec. 228; Adams v. Lisher, 3 Blackf. [Ind.] 241, 25 Am. Dec. 102; Bitting v. Ten Eyck, 82 Ind. 421, 42 Am. Rep. 505; Paddock v. Watts, 116 Ind. 146, 9 Am. St. Rep. 832; Stone v. Stevens, 12 Conn. 219, 30 Am. Dec. 611; Griffin v. Chubb, 7 Tex. 603, 58 Am. Dec. 85.

20. Cockfield v. Braveboy, 2 McMullen [S. C.] 270, 39 Am. Dec. 123; Wallis v. Alpine, 1 Camp. 204, note. But such evidence may be considered with other evidence. McLeod v. McLeod, 75 Ala. 483.

21. Grant v. Deuel, 3 Rob. [La.] 17, 38 Am. Dec. 228; Bitting v. Ten Eyck, 82 Ind. 421, 42 Am. Rep. 505; Paddock v. Watts, 116 Ind. 146, 9 Am. St. Rep. 832; Apgar v. Woolston, 43 N. J. Law, 57; Williams v. Vanmeter, 8 Mo. 339, 41 Am. Dec. 644; Boeger v. Langenberg, 97 Mo. 390, 10 Am. St. Rep. 322; Eastman v. Monastes, 32 Or. 291, 67 Am. St. Rep. 531; Sweeney v. Perney, 40 Kan. 102. And see Thompson v. Beacon Rubber Co., 56 Conn. 493; Griffin v. Chubb, 7 Tex. 603, 58 Am. Dec. 85; †Bekkeland v. Lyons, 96 Tex. 255, 64 L. R. A. 474, with exhaustive note "Acquittal or discharge as evidence of want of probable cause;" †Tandy v. Riley [Ky.] 80 S. W. 776; †Sundmaker v. Gaudet [La.] 37 So. 865; †Burks v. Ferriell [Ky.] 80 S. W. 809. The jury may be told not to consider the fact

And some courts have held that there is no implication of want of probable cause even from proof that a magistrate discharged the plaintiff on preliminary hearing because of insufficiency of the evidence to show probable cause for holding him, or from proof of failure of a grand jury to find an indictment against him.[23] Other courts, however, have taken a different view, on the latter proposition, and have held that, since the very question of probable cause, and not that of innocence or guilt, is before a committing magistrate and a grand jury, the plaintiff makes out a prima facie showing of want of probable cause, and shifts the burden of proof to the defendant, by proof that he was discharged by the magistrate sitting as a committing magistrate, or that the grand jury failed to find an indictment against him.[24]

By the weight of authority, reasonable and probable cause, is conclusively shown, at least in the absence of proof of fraud and perjury or other unfair means,[25] by proof that the plaintiff was convicted of the offense charged, by a jury, or on a trial before a magistrate or other tribunal having jurisdiction, although the verdict was afterwards set aside and a new trial granted,[26] or the judgment of conviction was vacated or reversed on appeal, and the plaintiff was acquitted on another trial, or discharged without a trial.[27] In some jurisdictions, however, this of acquittal but to deal with the case as though it were new before them. †Laing v. Mitten, 185 Mass. 233, 70 N. E. 128.

But see Cockfield v. Braveboy, 2 McMullen [S. C.] 270, 39 Am. Dec. 123; Lunsford v. Dietrich, 93 Ala. 565, 30 Am. St. Rep. 79. A verdict and judgment of the court finding that the prosecution was malicious and without probable cause is not admissible to show want of probable cause. Sweeney v. Perney, 40 Kan. 102.

22. Philpot v. Lucas, 101 Iowa, 478; Eastman v. Monastes, 32 Or. 291, 67 Am. St. Rep. 531. Discharge by magistrate who had jurisdiction to try and not merely to commit for trial. †Fox v. Smith [R. I.] 57 A. 932. But see Sherwood v. Reed, 35 Conn. 450, 95 Am. Dec. 284.

23. Israel v. Brooks, 23 Ill. 575; Thompson v. Beacon Rubber Co., 56 Conn. 493; Ganea v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 51 Cal. 140; Farwell v. Laird, 58 Kan. 402; Apgar v. Woolston, 43 N. J. Law, 57 (disapproving the dictum to the contrary in Potter v. Casterline, 41 N. J. Law, 22). A finding by the magistrate that the prosecution was malicious and without probable cause is not admissible to show want of probable cause. Farwell v. Laird, 58 Kan. 402.

24. Ambs v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 114 F. 317; Bostick v. Rutherford, 4 Hawks [N. C.] 83; Vinal v. Core, 18 W. Va. 1; Smith v. Ege, 52 Pa. 419; Madison v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 147 Pa. 509, 30 Am. St. Rep. 756; Barhight v. Tammany, 158 Pa. St. 545, 38 Am. St. Rep. 853; Straus v. Young, 36 Md. 246; Williams v. Norwood, 2 Yerg. [Tenn.] 329; Frost v. Holland, 75 Me. 108; Barnholdt v. Souillard, 36 La. Ann. 103; Bigelow v. Sickles, 80 Wis. 98, 27 Am. St. Rep. 25; Hidy v. Murray, 101 Iowa, 65 (without introduction of any evidence on plaintiff's behalf); Stubbs v. Mulholland [Mo.] 67 S. W. 650 (compare Boeger v. Langenberg, 97 Mo. 390, 10 Am. St. Rep. 322). And see Cockfield v. Braveboy, 2 McMullen [S. C.] 270, 39 Am. Dec. 123, as to failure to find indictment. Dismissal for failure of the prosecuting attorney to appear is not sufficient to show want of probable cause. Wakely v. Johnson, 115 Mich. 285.

25. Ross v. Hixon, 46 Kan. 550, 26 Am. St. Rep. 123; Burt v. Place, 4 Wend. [N. Y.] 591; Holliday v. Holliday, 123 Cal. 26; Payson v. Caswell, 22 Me. 212; Adams v. Bicknell, 126 Ind. 210, 22 Am. St. Rep. 576; Phillips v. Village of Kalamazoo, 53 Mich. 33; Welch v. Boston & P. R. Corp., 14 R. I. 609. Conviction become final is conclusive. It was affirmed on appeal. †Kruegel v. Stewart [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 365. Some courts hold that a conviction is conclusive evidence of probable cause even where it was procured by perjured testimony. Parker v. Huntington, 7 Gray [Mass.] 36, 66 Am. Dec. 455. But see Cloon v. Gerry, 13 Gray [Mass.] 201.

26. Parker v. Huntington, 7 Gray [Mass.] 36, 66 Am. Dec. 455. A reversed conviction is conclusive of probable cause unless procured on false testimony or unlawfully. Conviction suffered to test validity of ordinance. †Thick v. Washer [Mich.] 100 N. W. 394. The contrary was held in Indiana where the court in which the plaintiff was tried granted a new trial. Richter v. Koster, 45 Ind. 440.

27. Reynolds v. Kennedy, 1 Wils. 232; Whitney v. Peckham, 15 Mass. 243; Parker v. Huntington, 7 Gray [Mass.] 36, 66 Am. Dec. 455; Cloon v. Gerry, 13 Gray [Mass.] 201; Griffis v. Sellars, 2 Dev. & B. [N. C.] 492, 31 Am. Dec. 422; Payson v. Caswell, 22 Me. 212; Adams v. Bicknell, 126 Ind. 210, 22 Am. St. Rep. 576; Blucher v. Zonker, 19 Ind. App. 615; Kaye v. Kean, 18 B. Mon. [Ky.] 839; Ross v. Hixon, 46 Kan. 550, 26 Am. St. Rep. 123; Root v. Rose, 6 N. D. 575 (proceeding to punish for contempt of court); Hartshorne v. Smith, 104 Ga. 235; Hollilday v. Holliday, 123 Cal. 26; Phillips v. Village of Kalamazoo, 53 Mich. 33. The leading case is Reynolds v. Kennedy, 1 Wils. 232, wherein it was held that a conviction on an information before sub-commissioners of excise, was conclusive on the question of probable cause, doctrine is not recognized, but it is held that when a conviction has been vacated or reversed, and the plaintiff afterwards acquitted, it is prima facie evidence of probable cause, but not conclusive.[28]

Probable cause is prima facie established, but not conclusively, by proof that the plaintiff was committed or bound over by a magistrate for trial, although he may have been afterwards tried and acquitted, or discharged without a trial,[29] or that an indictment was found against him by the grand jury, although he was afterwards acquitted.[30] Disgreement of a jury on a trial of the plaintiff is prima facie evidence of probable cause, although he was again tried and acquitted.[31] And proof that a verdict of acquittal was rendered only after deliberation, and that the jury entertained a doubt on the evidence, is evidence in favor of the existence of probable cause.[32]

Province of court and jury.—Although there are some decisions to the contrary, or apparently so, the overwhelming weight of authority is to the effect that the question of probable cause is a question of law for the court. If there is any dispute as to the facts going to show probable cause or the want of probable cause, those facts must be left to be found by the jury, either in a special verdict, or by finding a general verdict under instructions for the court, according to the practice in the particular jurisdiction; but whether particular facts show probable cause or want of probable cause is a question of law to be determined by the court after a special verdict on the facts, or by giving instructions on the subject to the jury, when they are to find a general verdict only; instructions that if they find certain facts to have existed or not to have existed, then there was or was not probable cause.[33] Thus where the defendant claims that he acted on the advice of counsel, it is for the court to instruct the jury as a matter of law, that if although reversed on appeal to higher commissioners. But where a prosecution for felony is withdrawn, and the defendant is convicted of a misdemeanor included in it, and afterwards acquitted on appeal, the conviction is not such evidence of probable cause as will defeat an action for malicious prosecution of the charge of felony. Labar v. Crane, 49 Mich. 561.

28. Goodrich v. Warner, 21 Conn. 432; Maffatt v. Fisher, 47 Iowa, 473; Bowman v. Brown, 52 Iowa, 437; Olson v. Neal, 63 Iowa, 214; Johnson v. Miller, 63 Iowa, 529, 50 Am. Rep. 758; Maynard v. Sigman [Neb.] 91 N. W. 576; and see Burt v. Place, 4 Wend. [N. Y.] 591. In Womack v. Circle, 29 Grat. [Va.] 192, the court was evenly divided on this question.

29. Maddox v. Jackson, 4 Munf. [Va.] 462; Ash v. Marlow, 20 Ohio, 119; Ross v. Hixon, 44 Kan. 550, 26 Am. St. Rep. 123; Ewing v. Sanford, 19 Ala. 605; Spalding v. Lowe, 56 Mich. 366; Hale v. Boylen, 22 W. Va. 234; Ganea v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 51 Cal. 140; Diemer v. Herber, 75 Cal. 287; Holliday v. Holliday, 123 Cal. 26; Wholing v. Wells, 50 La. Ann. 562; Hess v. Oregon German Banking Co., 31 Or. 503; Sharpe v. Johnston, 76 Mo. 660; Raleigh v. Cook, 60 Tex. 438. Waiver by the plaintiff of preliminary examination, for the purpose of giving bail for his appearance, has been held an admission of probable cause. Jones v. Wilmington & W. R. Co., 125 N. C. 227.

30. Grant v. Deuel, 3 Rob. [La.] 17, 38 Am. Dec. 228; Garrard v. Willet, 4 J. J. Marsh. [Ky.] 628; Ricord v. Central Pac. R. Co., 15 Nev. 167; Sharpe v. Johnston, 76 Mo. 660; Peck v. Chouteau, 91 Mo. 138, 60 Am. Rep. 236; Raleigh v. Cook, 60 Tex. 438. Contra, Motes v. Bates, 80 Ala. 382.

31. Johnson v. Miller, 63 Iowa, 529, 50 Am. Rep. 758.

32. Smith v. McDonald, 3 Esp. 7; Grant v. Deuel, 3 Rob. [La.] 17, 38 Am. Dec. 228.

33. Panton v. Williams, 2 Q. B. 193; Johnstone v. Sutton, 1 Term R. 545; Stone v. Crocker, 24 Pick. [Mass.] 84; Bulkeley v. Ketcltas, 6 N. Y. 387; Id., 2 Duer [N. Y.] 261; Miller v. Brown, 3 Mo. 127, 23 Am. Dec. 693; Vinal v. Core, 18 W. Va. 1; Nash v. Orr, 3 Brev. [S. C.] 94, 5 Am. Dec. 547; Travis v. Smith, 1 Pa. 234, 44 Am. Dec. 125; Crabtree v. Horton, 4 Munf. [Va.] 59; Leggett v. Blount, N. C. Term R. 123, 7 Am. Dec. 702; Ulmer v. Leland, 1 Greenl. [Me.] 135, 10 Am. Dec. 48; Bell v. Keepers, 37 Kan. 64; Drum v. Cessmun, 58 Kan. 331; Plummer v. Gheen, 3 Hawks [N. C.] 66, 14 Am. Dec. 572; Schofield v. Ferrers, 47 Pa. 194, 86 Am. Dec. 532; Ball v. Rawles, 93 Cal. 222, 27 Am. St. Rep. 174; Gulf, Colorado, etc., R. Co. v. James, 73 Tex. 12, 15 Am. St. Rep. 743; Barhight v. Tammany, 158 Pa. 545, 38 Am. St. Rep. 853; Burk v. Howley, 179 Pa. 539, 57 Am. St. Rep. 607; Rogers v. Olds, 117 Mich. 368; Hess v. Oregon German Banking Co., 31 Or. 503; Stricker v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 60 N. J. Law, 230; Palmer v. Palmer, 8 App. Div. [N. Y.] 331; †Krause v. Bishop [S. D.] 100 N. W. 434. Compare, however, Hamilton v. Davey, 28 App. Div. [N. Y.] 457; Heldt v. Webster, 60 Tex. 207.

they find as facts that the defendant acted in good faith on the advice of counsel, after submitting a full and fair statement of the facts known to him, there was probable cause, and it is for the jury to say whether the defendant did act in good faith on the advice of counsel after such a submission of facts.[34] What are the facts bearing on probable cause is for the jury[35] and what they constitute in law is for the court.[36] Whether the defendant believed the plaintiff guilty is a question of fact for the jury.[37] Whether one who instituted proceedings to keep the peace was really in fear is for jury.[38]

(§ 5) B. In malicious civil prosecution.—To sustain an action on the case for the prosecution of a civil action, it is generally necessary for the plaintiff to show, as in an action for a malicious criminal prosecution,[39] that the action was prosecuted, or the process caused to be issued or used, both maliciously and without reasonable and probable cause. "These two ingredients," it has been said, "are invariably held to be indispensable."[40] And the burden of showing both malice and want of probable cause is on the plaintiff.[41] This rule certainly applies in all jurisdictions where it is sought to recover damages for the prosecution of an ordinary civil action.[42] And by the weight of authority it also applies, in the absence of a statute to the contrary, where it is sought to recover damages sustained by reason of a wrongful attachment,[43] execution,[44] arrest of the person,[45] injunction,[46] garnishment,[47] distress warrant,[48] writ of estrepement,[49] or bankruptcy

34. See the cases cited post, § 7. As to the proper mode of submitting the facts to the jury and instructing them as to the existence of probable cause, see, particularly, Ball v. Rawles, 93 Cal. 222, 27 Am. St. Rep. 174.

35, 36. All reasonable inferences favorable to the prosecutor are also for the jury. †Shafer v. Hertzig [Minn.] 99 N. W. 796.

37. Ball v. Rawles, 93 Cal. 222, 27 Am. St. Rep. 174.

38. †Thurkettle v. Frost [Mich.] 100 N. W. 283.

39. Ante, § 5a.

40. Hall v. Leaming, 31 N. J. Law, 321, 86 Am. Dec. 213. See, also, Stewart v. Sonneborn, 98 U. S. 187, Burdick's Cas. 253; Vanduzor v. Linderman, 10 Johns. [N. Y.] 106; Mathews v. Baldwin, 101 Ga. 318; Sledge v. McLaven, 29 Ga. 64; Shell v. Moody, 103 Ga. 248; O'Grady v. Julian, 34 Ala. 88; Eslava v. Jones, 83 Ala. 139, 3 Am. St. Rep. 699; Morton v. Young, 55 Me. 24, 92 Am. Dec. 565; Ferguson v. Arnow, 142 N. Y. 580, Erwin's Cas. 467; Humphreys v. Sutcliffe, 192 Pa. 336, 73 Am. St. Rep. 819; Porter v. Mack, 50 W. Va. 581; Doctor v. Riedsl [Wis.] 71 N. W. 119; King v. Henderson [1898] App. Cas. 720, and other cases cited in the notes following. Sec, also, a valuable note 93 Am. St. Rep. 458. Neither want of probable cause without malice, nor malice without want of probable cause, is enough. Vanduzor v. Linderman, 10 Johns. [N. Y.] 106; Lindsay v. Larned, 17 Mass. 190; McKellar v. Couch, 34 Ala. 336; Stewart v. Sonneborn, 98 U. S. 187, Burdick's Cas. 253, and other cases above cited.

41. Morton v. Young, 55 Me. 24, 92 Am. Dec. 565, and other cases above cited.

42. Vanduzor v. Linderman, 10 Johns. [N. Y.] 106; Stone v. Swift, 4 Pick. [Mass.] 389, 16 Am. Dec. 349; O'Neill v. Johnson, 53 Minn. 439, 39 Am. St. Rep. 615; Smith v. Burrus, 106 Mo. 94, 27 Am. St. Rep. 329, 13 L. R. A. 59; Clements v. Odorless Excavating Apparatus Co., 67 Md. 461, 1 Am. St. Rep. 409; Kolka v. Jones, 6 N. D. 461, 66 Am. St. Rep. 615; Eikhoff v. Fidelity & Casualty Co., 74 Minn. 139.

43. Williams v. Hunter, 3 Hawks [N. C.] 545, 14 Am. Dec. 597; Alexander v. Harrison, 38 Mo. 258, 90 Am. Dec. 431; Dickinson v. Maynard, 20 La. Ann. 66, 96 Am. Dec. 379; Lindsay v. Larned, 17 Mass. 190; Beyersdorf v. Sump, 39 Minn. 495, 12 Am. St. Rep. 678; McKellar v. Couch, 34 Ala. 336; Spengler v. Davy, 15 Grat. (Va.) 381; Burkhart v. Jennings, 2 W. Va. 242; Brand v. Hinchman, 68 Mich. 590, 13 Am. St. Rep. 362; McFadden v. Whitney, 51 N. J. Law, 391; Humphreys v. Sutcliffe, 192 Pa. 336, 73 Am. St. Rep. 819; Collins v. Shannon, 67 Wis. 441. Compare, however, Kirkham v. Coe, 1 Jones L. [N. C.] 423; Donnell v. Jones, 13 Ala. 490, 48 Am. Dec. 59.

44. Hall v. Learning, 31 N. J. Law, 321, 86 Am. Dec. 213; Eslava v. Jones, 83 Ala. 139, 3 Am. St. Rep. 699; Docter v. Riedel [Wis.] 71 N. W. 119.

45. Goslin v. Wilcock, 2 Wils. 302, 305; Snow v. Allen, 1 Stark. 502; Besson v. Southard, 10 N. Y. 236; Ferguson v. Arnow, 142 N. Y. 580, Erwin's Cas. 467; Adams v. Lisher, 3 Blackf. [Ind.] 241, 25 Am. Dec. 102; Turner v. Walker, 3 Gill & J. [Md.] 377, 22 Am. Dec. 329; Morton v. Young, 55 Me. 24, 92 Am. Dec. 565; Davis v. McLaulin [Mich.] 81 N. W. 257; Forbes v. Hagman, 75 Va. 168. Evidence held sufficient. †Bank of Miller v. Richmon [Neb.] 94 N. W. 998.

46. Lexington & O. R. Co. v. Applegate, 8 Dana [Ky.] 289, 33 Am. Dec. 497; Clements v. Odorless Excavating Apparatus Co., 67 Md. 461, 1 Am. St. Rep. 409; Short v. Spragins, 104 Ga. 628.

47. Under the facts a debtor held entitled to his wages as exempt under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 3435, 3162. †Cooper v. Scyoc, 104 Mo. App. 414, 79 S. W. 751.

48. Hamilton v. Dupre, 111 Ga. 819.

49. Eberly v. Rupp, 90 Pa. 259.

proceedings.[50] "Probable cause" to arrest seems to be included in "reasonable ground" to apprehend departure of a debtor from the state.[51] It is not justified by his mere intention to depart where the statute warrants arrest only if he departs to avoid citation.[52]

According to the weight of authority a voluntary dismissal by the plaintiff is prima facie evidence of want of probable cause;[53] but not conclusive.[54] The fact that there was a verdict for the defendant (the present plaintiff) in the action complained of is not prima facie evidence that the action was without probable cause, nor is it such evidence of want of probable cause as to render slight additional evidence on that point sufficient.[55] The suit having been prosecuted by an assignee for collection, he may be asked if the dismissal was at request of the assignor now defendant.[56] An offer to compromise is not evidence of want of probable cause.[57] In malicious prosecution of attachment, want of probable cause is not a necessary inference from payment of the debt,[58] but it does follow where a satisfaction by conveyance has been agreed on and a conveyance made and delivered lacking only a stamp.[59] Admitting the nonexistence of insanity does not amount to proof of want of probable cause for an inquest of sanity.[60] The finding of the arresting court that an alleged absconding debtor had no intention to depart is admissible,[61] but what were the debtor's real intentions is immaterial if not known to an arresting creditor,[62] and is prejudicially admitted if of sympathetic tendency.[63] Where damages are counterclaimed for wrongful attachment, evidence why the plaintiff's demand was refused will be admitted if bearing on the propriety of suing out attachment.[64] If there was a judgment for the plaintiff (the present defendant) in the action complained of, it is conclusive evidence of probable cause until reversed or set aside,[65] or even though reversed on appeal,[66] unless it appears that it was procured by fraud or perjury, or other unfair means,[67] or that there was no opportunity to defend.[68]

A defendant who settles a suit voluntarily, instead of allowing it to proceed to a determination by the court, cannot maintain an action for the institution of the suit as malicious and without probable cause; he is estopped from claiming that it was without probable cause.[69] But this does not apply where the settlement is made under duress. The payment of money under protest to procure release from arrest in a civil action is paid under duress, and not voluntarily, and does not estop the defendant from afterwards bringing an action for malicious prosecution and arrest, and recovering the money so paid in such action.[70] The 50. Stewart v. Sonneborn, 98 U. S. 187, Burdick's Cas. 253.

51, 52. †Bank of Miller v. Richmon [Neb.] 94 N. W. 998.

53. Nicholson v. Coghill, 4 Barn. & C. 21; Burhans v. Sanford, 19 Wend. [N. Y.] 417; Green v. Cochran, 43 Iowa, 544; Kolka v. Jones, 6 N. D. 461, 66 Am. St. Rep. 615. Contra, Smith v. Burrus, 106 Mo. 94, 27 Am. St. Rep. 329, 13 L. R. A. 59.

54. Asevado v. Orr, 100 Cal. 293; Kolka v. Jones, 6 N. D. 461, 66 Am. St. Rep. 615.

55. Brant v. Higgins, 10 Mo. 728; Stewart v. Sonneborn, 98 U. S. 187, Burdick's Cas. 253.

56. Defendant being in control of the suit his procurement of a dismissal is relevant. †Hurgren v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co., 141 Cal. 585, 75 P. 168.

57. Emerson v. Cochran, 111 Pa. 619.

58, 59. †Dorr Cattle Co. v. Des Moines Nat. Bank [Iowa] 98 N. W. 918.

60. †Griswold v. Griswold, 143 Cal. 617, 77 P. 672.

61, 62, 63. †Bank of Miller v. Richmon [Neb.] 94 N. W. 998.

64. †Kleinsmith v. Kempner [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 409.

65. Jones v. Kirksey, 10 Ala. 839.

66. Burt v. Place, 4 Wend. [N. Y.] 591. See Dowdell v. Carpy, 129 Cal. 168. And see ante, § 4.

67. Burt v. Place, 4 Wend. [N. Y.] 591; Welch v. Boston & Prov. R. Corp., 14 R. I. 609.

68. Bump v. Betts, 19 Wend. [N. Y.] 421, Chase's Cas. 107, Erwin's Cas. 452.

69. Morton v. Young, 55 Me. 24, 92 Am. Dec. 565; Sartwell v. Parker, 141 Mass. 405.

70. Morton v. Young, 55 Me. 24, 92 Am. Dec. 565.

same is true where a settlement or payment is made under duress of goods, to procure the release of goods from an unwarranted attachment.[71]

Whether or not there was probable cause, the facts being undisputed, is purely a question of law for the court;[72] but he who procures special interrogatories going to this question cannot complain of its submission.[73]

(§ 5) C. In case of abuse of process probable cause is not in the same sense material.[74] Hence the fact that there was probable cause for a civil action, as where it was brought for a debt really due, does not prevent the defendant therein from maintaining an action for malicious abuse of process in such action.[75]

§ 6. Malice.[76]—It is also necessary, in order to maintain an action for malicious prosecution, that the plaintiff shall show that the defendant instituted the prosecution, or caused it to be instituted, maliciously,—"that the proceedings of which he complains were initiated in a malicious spirit, that is, from an indirect and improper motive, and not in furtherance of justice."[77] The action cannot be maintained, although it may appear that there was no probable cause for the prosecution, unless it also appears that it was instituted maliciously;[78] and the burden of proving malice, or of proving facts from which malice may be inferred, is on the plaintiff.[79] If there are several defendants, malice must be brought to each.[80]

Malice may be inferred, and according to the better opinion it is to be presumed, in the absence of proof to the contrary, from want of reasonable and probable cause;[81] but the want of probable cause does not raise a conclusive implication of malice as a matter of law. The inference is one of fact which may be rebutted by circumstances showing that there was in fact no malice.[82] "If prob-

71. Spaids v. Barrett, 57 Ill. 289, 11 Am. Rep. 10; Fortman v. Rottler, 8 Ohio St. 548, 72 Am. Dec. 606; Brand v. Hinchman, 68 Mich. 590, 13 Am. St. Rep. 362.

72. Stewart v. Sonneborn, 98 U. S. 187, Burdick's Cas. 253; Kolka v. Jones, 6 N. D. 461, 66 Am. St. Rep. 615; Davis v. McLaulin [Mich.] 81 N. W. 257; †Bank of Miller v. Richmon [Neb.] 94 N. W. 998, and see ante, § 5a

73. †Bank of Miller v. Richmon [Neb.] 94 N. W. 998.

74. See ante, § 1B.

75. Herman v. Brookerhoff, 8 Watts [Pa.] 240.

76. See 2 Curr. L. 769.

77. Abrath v. North Eastern R. Co., 11 Q. B. Div. 440, 11 App. Cas. 247.

78. Abrath v. North Eastern R. Co., 11 Q. B. Div. 440, 11 App. Cas. 247; Vanderbilt v. Mathis, 5 Duer [N. Y.] 304, Bigelow's Cas. 58, Erwin's Cas. 448; Vinal v. Core, 18 W. Va. 1; Bell v. Graham, 1 Nott & McC. [S. C.] 278, 9 Am. Dec. 687; Carson v. Edgeworth, 43 Mich. 241; Stone v. Stevens, 12 Conn. 219, 30 Am. Dec. 611; Harkrader v. Moore, 44 Cal. 144, Erwin's Cas. 456; Ball v. Rawles, 93 Cal. 222, 27 Am. St. Rep. 174; Dietz v. Langfitt, 63 Pa. 234; Madison v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 147 Pa. 509, 30 Am. St. Rep. 756; Lunsford v. Dietrich, 93 Ala. 565, 30 Am. St. Rep. 79; Coleman v. Allen, 79 Ga. 637, 11 Am. St. Rep. 449; Leldig v. Rawson, 1 Scam. [Ill.] 272, 29 Am. Dec. 354; Sandoz v. Veazie, 106 La. 212; Griffin v. Chubb, 7 Tex. 603, 58 Am. Dec. 85.

79. Lunsford v. Dietrich, 93 Ala. 565, 30 Am. St. Rep. 79; Foster v. Pitts, 63 Ark. 387; †Judy v. Gifford [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 504, and other cases above cited. The termination of the prosecution in favor of the plaintiff is not prima facie evidence that it was maliciously instituted by the defendant. Helwig v. Beckner, 149 Ind. 131.

80. Principles impleaded with an agent are not liable unless malice may be imputed to them personally. There was no probable cause but malice was proven against the agent only. †Judy v. Gifford [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 504.

81. Torsch v. Dell, 88 Md. 459; Toth v. Greisen [N. J. Law] 51 A. 927; Pullen v. Glidden, 66 Me. 202; Chase's Cas. 99, Erwin's Cas. 462; Merriam v. Mitchell, 13 Me. 439, 29 Am. Dec. 514; Williams v. Vanmeter, 8 Mo. 339, 41 Am. Dec. 644; Grant v. Deuel, 3 Rob. [La.] 17, 38 Am. Dec. 228; †Lunsford v. Dietrich, 93 Ala. 565, 30 Am. St. Rep. 79; Roy v. Goings, 112 Ill. 656; Griffin v. Chubb, 7 Tex. 603, 58 Am. Dec. 85; Cole v. Andrews, 70 Minn. 230; Smith v. Walter, 125 Pa. 453; Madison v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 147 Pa. 509, 30 Am. St. Rep. 756; McNamee v. Nesbitt, 24 Nev. 400; †Jordan v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 105 Mo. App. 446, 79 S. W. 1155; †Sundmaker v. Gaudet [La.] 37 So. 865.

82. Mitchell v. Jenkins, 5 Barn. & Ad. 588; Bell v. Graham, 1 Nott & McC. [S. C.] 278, 9 Am. Dec. 687; Stone v. Stevens, 12 Conn. 219, 30 Am. Dec. 611; Madison v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 147 Pa. 509, 30 Am. St. Rep. 756; Coleman v. Allen, 79 Ga. 637, 11 Am. St. Rep. 449; Vanderbilt v. Mathis, 5 Duer [N. Y.] 304, Bigelow's Cas. 58, Erwin's Cas. 448; Griffin v. Chubb, 7 Tex. 603, 58 Am. Dec. 85; Lunsford v. Dietrich, 86 Ala. 250, 11 Am. St. Rep. 37; Id., 93 Ala. 565, 30 Am. St. Rep. 79; O'Neal v. McKinna, 116 Ala. 606; Sharpe v. Johnston, 76 Mo. 660; McGowan v. McGowan, 122 N. C. 145; Vinal v. Core, able cause and malice are both present, there can be no recovery; if they are both absent, there can be none. In this class of actions, it is only where malice is present and probable cause is absent that there can be a recovery."[83] It is not so readily found as between parties unacquainted,[84] or where due investigation was first made.[85] It is presumed[86] by some courts conclusively[87] to be malicious if done to coerce compliance with a civil demand. The relations between the parties may be shown if not too remote.[88] Motive may appear from the fact that defendants were also offenders in the same kind of crimes whereof plaintiff was accused;[89] and there being a conspiracy the letters and declarations of co-conspirators with defendant may be admitted as in other cases,[90] though the particular one of the authors be not identified[91] or it was uttered before the conspiracy was formed.[92] Business disagreements[93] or plaintiff's engagement in a competitive business may bear on malice.[94] Conversations with the now plaintiff at or before prosecution are admissible on good faith.[95] Mere delay in lodging complaint is not conclusive of malice.[96] Where plaintiff was arrested for forcibly defending possession of another's land it does not tend to prove malice that the owner had other land more suitable to his purpose.[97]

The malice necessary to support an action for malicious prosecution is malice in fact, as distinguished from the malice in law which is established by mere legal presumption from proof of certain facts,[98] as the malice presumed as a matter of law from the publication of a libel,[99] but it is not necessary to prove "express malice," in the popular signification of the term, as that the defendant was prompted by malevolence, or acted from ill-will, resentment, or hatred towards the defendant. It is sufficient to prove malice in fact in its enlarged legal sense, by which is meant the state of mind of a person who willfully and purposely does 18 W. Va. 1; Baker v. Hornick, 57 S. C. 213; Harkrader v. Moore, 44 Cal. 144, Erwin's Cas. 456.

83. Coleman v. Allen, 79 Ga. 637, 11 Am. St. Rep. 449. Since malice is not a necessary inference from want of probable cause, it has been held that a special verdict finding want of probable cause only will not authorize a judgment for the plaintiff. Helwig v. Beckner, 149 Ind. 131.

84. Prosecution by agent of corporation not acquainted with accused. †Jordan v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 105 Mo. App. 446, 79 S. W. 1155. Prosecution on advice of county attorney by an agent of defendant who was unacquainted with plaintiff. †Mundal v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. [Minn.] 99 N. W. 273.

85. Several examinations and advice of counsel before arrest for embezzlement. †Berger v. Wild [C. C. A.] 130 F. 882.

86. Proof that a criminal prosecution was commenced for the purpose of coercing payment of a claim, or of recovering possession of property, shows malice, in the absence of rebutting evidence. Prough v. Entriken, 11 Pa. 81; Schofield v. Ferrers, 47 Pa. 194, 86 Am. Dec. 532; Paddock v. Watts, 116 Ind. 146, 9 Am. St. Rep. 832; Jackson v. Linnington, 47 Kan. 396, 27 Am. St. Rep. 300; Ross v. Langworthy, 13 Neb. 422; Krug v. Ward, 77 Ill. 603; Reed v. Morris Western Beef Co., 197 Pa. 261; Peterson v. Reisdorph, 49 Neb. 529. Prosecuting for selling without license in order to force a settlement. †Lasher v. Littell, 202 Ill. 551, 67 N. E. 372.

87. Prosecuting in order to gain possession of property without intending punishment for crime is an abuse of process conclusive of malice and advice of counsel is no protection. †Rulison v. Collins [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 748. Such proof is not conclusive evidence of malice. Williams v. Kyes, 9 Colo. App. 220.

88. Certain letters which passed between the parties as members of the militia held too remote on the question of bias. †Laing v. Mitten, 185 Mass. 233, 70 N. E. 128.

89. Illicit distilling. †Ramsey v. Flowers [Ark.] 80 S. W. 147.

90, 91, 92. See Evidence, 3 Curr. L. 1334; cf. Indictment & Prosecution, 4 Curr. L. 1. Ramsey v. Flowers [Ark.] 80 S. W. 147. One said that plaintiff was an objectionable man in the community. Id.

93. Prosecution held malicious where a shipper unable to agree with consignee on commission sold the goods and was arrested and tried at consignee's instance for selling without license. †Lasher v. Littell, 202 Ill. 551, 67 N. E. 372.

94. †Bankell v. Weinacht, 99 App. Div. 316, 91 N. Y. S. 107.

95. †Mundal v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. [Minn.] 99 N. W. 273.

96. It is for the jury. †Shafer v. Hertzig [Minn.] 99 N. W. 796.

97. †Thurkettle v. Frost [Mich.] 100 N. W. 283.

98. Mitchell v. Jenkins, 5 Barn. & Ad. 588; Pullen v. Glidden, 66 Me. 202, Chase's Cas. 99, Erwin's Cas. 462; Carson v. Edgeworth, 43 Mich. 241.

99. Ante, Libel and Slander, 4 Curr. L. 421.

an act to the injury of another, knowing at the time that it is unlawful.[1] Good faith is such freedom from partiality and prejudice as can fairly be expected from an ordinarily prudent man acting without malice.[2]

Whether the defendant acted maliciously is a question of fact for the jury,[3] but it is for the court to instruct the jury as to the kind of malice which is necessary and sufficient.[4] Malice is for the court where there is no evidence but an acquittal;[5] good faith being there presumed.[6]

In case of civil suits the malice necessary to sustain an action for malicious prosecution need not necessarily be ill-will; but it may be any other unjustifiable or wrongful motive.[7] There is malice, as well as want of probable cause, where an action is brought or process caused to be issued with knowledge that there is no sufficient cause, or without an honest belief that there is sufficient cause.[8]

Malice may be inferred from the want of probable cause,[9] but it does not necessarily follow as a matter of law. The inference is one of fact, which may be rebutted by other evidence showing good faith, and the question, therefore, is for the jury under all the circumstances.[10] An offer of compromise does not show malice.[11] Anything showing knowledge of baselessness of a demand is admissible to show malice in suing thereon.[12] An admission that insanity did not exist in fact is not an admission that probable cause for insanity proceedings did not exist or prima facie evidence that it did not exist and that there was malice.[13] Whether there was malice is a question of fact for the jury.[14]

§ 7. Advice of private counsel, prosecuting attorney, or magistrate.—It is well settled in most jurisdictions that, in an action for malicious prosecution, the defendant may show, not only for the purpose of rebutting evidence of malice,[15]

1. Pullen v. Glidden, 66 Me. 202, Chase's Cas. 99, Erwin's Cas. 462; Wills v. Noyes, 12 Pick. [Mass.] 324; Johnson v. Ebberts, 6 Sawy. 538, 11 F. 129; Coleman v. Allen, 79 Ga. 637, 11 Am. St. Rep. 449; Lunsford v. Dietrich, 93 Ala. 565, 30 Am. St. Rep. 79; Vinal v. Core, 18 W. Va. 1; Paddock v. Watts, 116 Ind. 146, 9 Am. St. Rep. 832; Spear v. Hiles, 67 Wis. 350; Shannon v. Jones, 76 Tex. 141; Johns v. Marsh, 52 Md. 323; Gee v. Culver, 13 Or. 598; Stubbs v. Mulholland [Mo.] 67 S. W. 650. An instruction defining the malice necessary to support an action for malicious prosecution as "such a state of mind as leads to the doing of some act, knowing it to be without just cause or legal excuse,"—is correct. Noble v. White, 103 Iowa, 352.

2. †Shafer v. Hertzig [Minn.] 99 N. W. 796.

3. Mitchell v. Jenkins, 5 Barn. & Ad. 588; Stone v. Stevens, 12 Conn. 219, 30 Am. Dec. 611; Ellis v. Simonds, 168 Mass. 316; Bartlett v. Hawley, 38 Minn. 308; Reisan v. Mott, 42 Minn. 49, 18 Am. St. Rep. 489; Barhight v. Tammany, 158 Pa. 545, 38 Am. St. Rep. 853; Turner v. Walker, 3 Gill & J. [Md.] 377, 22 Am. Dec. 329; Torsch v. Dell, 88 Md. 459; Strickler v. Greer, 95 Ind. 596; Indiana Bicycle Co. v. Willis, 18 Ind. App. 525.

4. Pullen v. Glidden, 66 Me. 202, Chase's Cas. 99, Erwin's Cas. 462.

5, 6. †Krause v. Bishop [S. D.] 100 N. W. 434.

7. Wills v. Noyes, 12 Pick. [Mass.] 328; Kolka v. Jones, 6 N. D. 461, 66 Am. St. Rep. 615; Forbes v. Hagman, 75 Va. 168. And see ante, notes 98, 99, 1, 2.

8. Austin v. Debnam, 3 Barn. & C. 143; Alexander v. Harrison, 38 Mo. 258, 90 Am. Dec. 431; Nix v. Goodhill, 95 Iowa, 282, 58 Am. St. Rep. 434; Brand v. Hinchman, 68 Mich. 590, 13 Am. St. Rep. 362; Kolka v. Jones, 6 N. D. 461, 66 Am. St. Rep. 615; Foster v. Pitts, 63 Ark. 387.

9. Savage v. Brewer, 16 Pick. [Mass.] 453, 28 Am. Dec. 255; Turner v. Walker, 3 Gill & J. [Md.] 377, 22 Am. Dec. 329; Brand v. Hinchman, 68 Mich. 590, 13 Am. St. Rep. 362; Kolka v. Jones, 6 N. D. 461, 66 Am. St. Rep. 615.

10. Turner v. Walker, 3 Gill & J. [Md.] 377, 22 Am. Dec. 329; Smith v. Burrus, 106 Mo. 94, 27 Am. St. Rep. 329. Malice is not a necessary but a permissible inference from want of probable cause. †Griswold v. Griswold, 143 Cal. 617, 77 P. 672.

11. Emerson v. Cochran, 111 Pa. 619.

12. The plaintiff's letter to defendant asserting fraud in the claim out of which the prosecution grew is admissible to show knowledge of its baselessness, the facts communicated being such as to prompt inquiry. †Hurgren v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co., 141 Cal. 585, 75 P. 168.

13. †Griswold v. Griswold, 143 Cal. 617, 77 P. 672.

14. Stewart v. Sonneborn, 98 U. S. 187; Turner v. Walker, 3 Gill & J. [Md.] 377, 22 Am. Dec. 329. And see ante, notes 3-6. Whether the defendant believed that there was sufficient cause goes to the question of malice, and is for the jury. Brand v. Hinchman, 68 Mich. 590, 13 Am. St. Rep. 362.

15. As to this the courts no doubt agree. See 2 Curr. L. 769.

but also for the purpose of showing probable cause,[16] that he submitted to disinterested[17] private counsel, being a regularly admitted attorney or counsellor at law,[18] of good standing,[19] a full and fair statement of all the facts which he knew were capable of proof, or believed to be so, and acted in good faith on his advice in instituting the prosecution; and if he shows this, he is not liable, although it may appear that the facts did not warrant the advice and the prosecution.[20] And for the same purpose, and with like effect, he may show that he acted in good faith on the advice of the prosecuting attorney, after submitting to him a full and fair statement of the facts.[21] Where probable cause involves no question of fact, advice of counsel is immaterial except on the question of malice.[22]

But proof that the defendant acted on the advice of counsel is not conclusive. On the contrary, it is no defense at all if it appears that he did not seek and act upon the advice in good faith, but merely as a cover for the prosecution, or that his statement of the facts to the counsel, upon which the advice was based, was unfair and partial, and inconsistent with an honest purpose.[23] Advice of counsel is no

16. But see Vinal v. Core, 18 W. Va. 1; Hazzard v. Flurry, 120 N. Y. 223. See, also, 2 Curr. L. 769.

17. White v. Carr, 71 Me. 555, 36 Am. Rep. 353. See, also, Watt v. Corey, 76 Me. 87.

18. Olmstead v. Partridge, 16 Gray [Mass.] 381; Stanton v. Hart, 27 Mich. 539; Murphy v. Larson, 77 Ill. 172; Burgett v. Burgett, 43 Ind. 78.

19. This qualification is made in some states. Murphy v. Larson, 77 Ill. 172; Roy v. Goings, 112 Ill. 656; Schattgen v. Holnback, 149 Ill. 646; Stubbs v. Mulholland [Mo.] 67 S. W. 650. Compare Horne v. Sullivan, 83 Ill. 30.

20. Ravegna v. Mackintosh, 2 Barn. & Cr. 693; Walter v. Sample, 25 Pa. 275, Chase's Cas. 101, Paige's Cas. 358; Barhight v. Tammany, 158 Pa. 545, 38 Am. St. Rep. 853; Blunt v. Little, 3 Mason [U. S.] 102; Stanton v. Goshorn [C. C. A.] 94 F. 52; Wills v. Noyes, 12 Pick. [Mass.] 327; Bartlett v. Brown, 6 R. I. 37, 75 Am. Dec. 675; Goldstein v. Foulkes, 19 R. I. 291; Ross v. Innis, 35 Ill. 487, 85 Am. Dec. 373; Wicker v. Hotchkiss, 62 Ill. 107, 14 Am. Rep. 75; Griffin v. Chubb, 7 Tex. 603, 58 Am. Dec. 85; Paddock v. Watts, 116 Ind. 146, 9 Am. St. Rep. 832; Adams v. Bicknell, 126 Ind. 210, 22 Am. St. Rep. 576; Johnson v. Miller, 69 Iowa, 562, 58 Am. Rep. 231; Jackson v. Linington, 47 Kan. 396, 27 Am. St. Rep. 300; O'Neal v. McKinna, 116 Ala. 606; Huntington v. Gault, 87 Mich. 144; Tryon v. Pingree, 112 Mich. 338, 67 Am. St. Rep. 398, 37 L. R. A. 222; Wakely v. Johnson, 115 Mich. 285; †Lipowicz v. Jervis, 209 Pa. 315, 58 A. 619. Advised by counsel and county attorney. †Krause v. Bishop [S. D.] 100 N. W. 434. Evidence held to show that complaint was signed at instance of county attorney after disclosure and investigation by him. †Mundal v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 363. The fact that counsel did not act in good faith is immaterial, if the defendant did not know this. Seabridge v. McAdam, 119 Cal. 460. The defendant, being himself a lawyer, cannot set up his own advice as counsel. Epstein v. Berkowsky, 64 Ill. App. 498. But the fact that the defendant was himself an able lawyer does not prevent him from setting up the defense that he acted on the advice of counsel. Terre Haute & I. R. Co. v. Mason, 148 Ind. 578. In Kentucky advice and good faith in acting thereon are a complete defense. †Tandy v. Riley [Ky.] 80 S. W. 776.

21. Wenger v. Phillips, 195 Pa. 214, 78 Am. St. Rep. 810; Paddock v. Watts, 116 Ind. 146, 9 Am. St. Rep. 832; Wicker v. Hotchkiss, 62 Ill. 107, 14 Am. Rep. 75; Ambs v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 114 F. 317; Gilbertson v. Fuller, 40 Minn. 413; Johnson v. Miller, 69 Iowa, 562, 58 Am. Rep. 231; Sandoz v. Veazie, 106 La. 202; Hicks v. Brantley, 102 Ga. 264; Magowan v. Rickey [N. J. Law] 45 A. 804; Smith v. Austin, 49 Mich. 286; Wakely v. Johnson, 115 Mich. 285; Hess v. Oregon German Banking Co., 31 Or. 503; Schippel v. Norton, 38 Kan. 567. And see Yocum v. Polly, 1 B. Mon. [Ky.] 358, 36 Am. Dec. 583. In Illinois he must be an attorney in good standing; and this does not necessarily follow from the fact that he is state's attorney. Roy v. Goings, 112 Ill. 656.

22. †Parr v. Loder, 97 App. Div. 218, 89 N. Y. S. 823.

23. Hewlett v. Crutchley, 5 Taunt. 277; Walter v. Sample, 25 Pa. 275, Chase's Cas. 101, Paige's Cas. 358; Barhight v. Tammany, 158 Pa. 545, 38 Am. St. Rep. 853; Smith v. Walter, 125 Pa. 453; Wills v. Noyes, 12 Pick. [Mass.] 327; Ash v. Marlow, 20 Ohio, 119; Blunt v. Little, 3 Mason [U. S.] 102; O'Neal v. McKinna, 116 Ala. 606; Glasgow v. Owen, 69 Tex. 167; Gulf, Colorado, etc., Ry. Co. v. James, 73 Tex. 12, 15 Am. St. Rep. 743; Torsch v. Dell, 88 Md. 459; Roy v. Goings, 112 Ill. 656; Mesher v. Iddings, 72 Iowa, 553; Peterson v. Reisdorph, 49 Neb. 529; Sharpe v. Johnston, 76 Mo. 660; Maulfin v. Ball, 104 Tenn. 597; Thurston v. Wright, 77 Mich. 96; Kehl v. Hope Oil-Mill, etc., Co., 77 Miss. 762. And see Forbes v. Hagman, 75 Va. 168. Failure of the defendant to disclose to counsel that he had found the plaintiff's character to be good was held to render his statement unfair. Strube-Estabrooke Merc. Co. v. Kyes, 9 Colo. App. 190. It has been held that the defendant may avail himself of the defense that he acted on advice of counsel if he submitted all the facts known to him, although he might have ascertained other facts by the exercise of reasonable diligence. John-defense if it appears that the defendant did not believe the plaintiff to be guilty.[24] It is no protection against the abuse of criminal process to coerce civil demands without desire to vindicate law.[25] Gratuitous advice may be a protection.[26] It is not necessary to show that the counsel was honest in giving the advice[27] but if the prosecutor knew that such was not the fact the advice would avail nothing,[28] and if an interested attorney advises contrary to what other reputable disinterested ones have advised it is no protection.[29]

According to the weight of authority, advice of a magistrate as to the existence of probable cause, at least if he is not also a regularly admitted attorney or counsellor at law, is not on the same footing as advice of private counsel and of the prosecuting attorney, for magistrates are not supposed to be learned in the law, and it is no part of their duty to give such advice; and such advice, therefore, is not admissible as showing or tending to show probable cause for the prosecution,[30] although it would seem to be admissible as tending to show absence of malice.[31] It has been held, however, that this rule does not apply where the magistrate is also a regularly admitted attorney at law.[32]

Truthfulness of disclosure to attorney,[33] and whether advice was honestly relied on by prosecutor is for the jury.[34]

In civil suits.—In an action for malicious prosecution of a civil action or abuse of civil process, the defendant may show, as in an action for a malicious criminal prosecution,[35] that he acted upon the advice of disinterested counsel, and thus rebut evidence of malice and want of probable cause, provided he acted in good faith and after a full disclosure of all the facts,[36] but not otherwise.[37] Advice of counsel who was known to be personally interested is not within this rule.[38] Advice of counsel son v. Miller, 69 Iowa, 562, 58 Am. Rep. 231; Holliday v. Holliday, 123 Cal. 26; Hess v. Oregon German Banking Co., 31 Or. 503. But since the law does not exempt a prosecutor from liability where he does not act with reasonable caution and prudence, other courts have held the contrary. Sappington v. Watson, 50 Mo. 83; Hill v. Palm, 38 Mo. 13; Cooper v. Utterbach, 37 Md. 282; Ahrens & Ott Mfg. Co. v. Hoeher [Ky.] 51 S. W. 194; Stubbs v. Mulholland [Mo.] 67 S. W. 650.

The burden of showing that the statement of facts submitted to counsel was full and fair is on the defendant. Williams v. Casebeer, 126 Cal. 77. Whether there was a full and fair disclosure of facts, and whether the advice of counsel was obtained and acted on in good faith, are questions for the jury. Anderson v. Friend, 71 Ill. 475; Connery v. Manning, 163 Mass. 44; Smith v. Walter, 125 Pa. 453; Thompson v. Price, 100 Mich. 558; Seabridge v. McAdam, 108 Cal. 345.

24. Hewlett v. Crutchley, 5 Taunt. 277; Wills v. Noyes, 12 Pick. [Mass.] 327; Vann v. McCreary, 77 Cal. 434; Johnson v. Miller, 82 Iowa, 693, 31 Am. St. Rep. 514, and other cases in the note preceding.

25. †Rulison v. Collins [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 748.

26. †Mack v. Sharp [Mich.] 101 N. W. 631.

27, 28. †Shea v. Cloquet Lumber Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 111.

29. †Adkin v. Pillen [Mich.] 100 N. W. 176.

30. Brobst v. Ruff, 100 Pa. 91, 45 Am. Rep. 358; Williams v. Vanmeter, 8 Mo. 339, 41 Am. Dec. 644; Mauldin v. Ball, 104 Tenn. 597; Finn v. Frink, 84 Me. 261, 30 Am. St. Rep. 348; Straus v. Young, 36 Md. 246; Olmstead v. Partridge, 16 Gray [Mass.] 381; Sutton v. McConnell, 46 Wis. 269; Dolbe v. Norton, 22 Kan. 101; Gee v. Culver, 12 Or. 228; Potter v. Casterline, 41 N. J. Law, 22. Contra, Ball v. Rawles, 93 Cal. 222, 27 Am. St. Rep. 174; Sisk v. Hurst, 1 W. Va. 53.

31. See, however, Williams v. Vanmeter, 8 Mo. 339, 41 Am. Dec. 644.

32. Monaghan v. Cox, 155 Mass. 487, 31 Am. St. Rep. 555; Turner v. Dinnegar, 20 Hun [N. Y.] 465. Compare, however, Mauldin v. Ball, 104 Tenn. 597.

33. †Thurkettle v. Frost [Mich.] 100 N. W. 283.

34. †Shea v. Cloquet Lumber Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 111.

35. Ante, this section.

36. Snow v. Allen, 1 Stark. 502; Ravegna v. Mackintosh, 2 Barn. & Cr. 693; Stewart v. Sonneborn, 98 U. S. 187, Burdick's Cas. 253; Stone v. Swift, 4 Pick. [Mass.] 389, 16 Am. Dec. 349; Block v. Buckingham, 174 Mass. 102; Turner v. Walker, 3 Gill & J. [Md.] 377, 22 Am. Dec. 329; Newton v. Weaver, 13 R. I. 616; Collins v. Hayte, 50 Ill. 337, 99 Am. Dec. 521; Pawlowski v. Jenks [Mich.] 73 N. W. 238; Emerson v. Cochran, 111 Pa. 619; Eikhoff v. Fidelity & Casualty Co., 74 Minn. 139; †Harr v. Ward [Ark.] 84 S. W. 496. It suffices to state all one knows or might by reasonable diligence have known. †Dorr Cattle Co. v. Des Moines Nat. Bank [Iowa] 98 N. W. 918.

37. Ravegna v. Mackintosh, 2 Barn. & Cr. 693; Forbes v. Hagman, 75 Va. 168.

38. White v. Carr, 71 Me. 555, 36 Am. Rep. 353.

may be considered as bearing on probable cause to sue out attachment if the liability is doubtful or is a question of law,[39] but it is immaterial where on incomplete disclosure counsel advised correctly.[40] Disclosure fully and fairly to counsel[41] and good faith in acting thereon are for the jury.[42]

§ 8. Advice of a physician on insanity is admissible in disproof of malice and want of probable cause in instituting insanity proceedings[43] and it need not amount in law to probable cause to be admissible on malice.[44]

§ 9. Damages.[45]—The liability is for the natural consequences only,[46] and if there be no actual or express malice[47] by way of compensation only,[48] which includes attorneys' fees and expenses,[49] loss of time,[50] loss of liberty and society of family,[51] mental anguish, pain and suffering of mind,[52] loss of social standing and good repute,[53] loss of employment[54] or injury to business[55] or credit.[56] Suffering and bad conditions while in custody are according to the better supported opinion recoverable;[57] but in some states it is said that bad jail conditions ought not to be attributed to the defendant's act.[58] While the mental suffering caused by knowledge of the helplessness or suffering of plaintiff's family is admissible as a consequential injury to him,[59] the injurious consequences to his family are not recoverable.[60] The injury to reputation will be lessened by the fact that before the prosecution plaintiff's repute was not good.[61] If there be a battery or personal injury, damages are recoverable for it in a different cause of action if at all.[62]

39, 40. †Dorr Cattle Co. v. Des Moines Nat. Bank [Iowa] 98 N. W. 918.

41, 42. †Harr v. Ward [Ark.] 84 S. W. 496.

43, 44. After describing plaintiff's actions to physician, the physician advised that plaintiff was insane. †Griswold v. Griswold, 143 Cal. 617, 77 P. 672.

45. See 2 Curr. L. 770.

46. Not for all the results "no matter what happened." †Laing v. Mitten, 185 Mass. 233, 70 N. E. 128. But error was cured by stating correct rule in another paragraph. Id. General consequences enumerated. Hamilton v. Smith, 39 Mich. 222; Savill v. Roberts, 1 Ld. Raym. 374; Lavender v. Hudgens, 32 Ark. 763.

47. See post, this section, Exemplary damages.

48. Goodbar v. Lindsley, 51 Ark. 380, 14 Am. St. Rep. 54; Barnett v. Reed, 51 Pa. 190, 88 Am. Dec. 574, and other cases cited note 93 Am. St. Rep. 465.

49. Kolka v. Jones, 6 N. D. 461, 66 Am. St. Rep. 615; Hamilton v. Smith, 39 Mich. 222; Marshall v. Betner, 17 Ala. 832; Ziegler v. Powell, 54 Ind. 173; Krug v. Ward, 77 Ill. 603; Landa v. Obert, 45 Tex. 539; Gregory v. Chambers, 78 Mo. 294; Magner v. Renk, 65 Wis. 364. Also money paid sureties on bond. Wheeler v. Hanson, 161 Mass. 370, 42 Am. St. Rep. 408.

Not including taxable costs. Closson v. Staples, 42 Vt. 209, 1 Am. Rep. 316; Whiting v. Johnson, 6 Gray [Mass.] 246. Not unnecessary expense. Eastin v. Bank of Stockton, 66 Cal. 123, 56 Am. Rep. 77.

50. Hamilton v. Smith, 39 Mich. 222.

51. Peath v. Braunsdorff, 40 Wis. 107; Hamilton v. Smith, 39 Mich. 222.

52. Lunsford v. Dietrich, 86 Ala. 250, 11 Am. St. Rep. 37; Wheeler v. Hanson, 161 Mass. 370, 42 Am. St. Rep. 408; Hamilton v. Smith, 39 Mich. 222; Parkhurst v. Masteller, 57 Iowa, 474; McWilliams v. Hoban, 42 Md. 56; †Dwyer v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 303; Ruth v. St. Louis Transit Co., 98 Mo. App. 1, 71 S. W. 1055.

53. Flam v. Lee, 116 Iowa, 289, 93 Am. St. Rep. 242; Sheldon v. Carpenter, 4 N. Y. 579, 55 Am. Dec. 301; Rockwell v. Brown, 36 N. Y. 207. Injury to his fame. Hamilton v. Smith, 39 Mich. 222.

54. †Stoecker v. Nathanson [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1061.

55. Wheeler v. Hanson, 161 Mass. 370, 42 Am. St. Rep. 408. In civil suits. Goldsmith v. Picard, 27 Ala. 142; Gunderman v. Buschner, 73 Ill. App. 180; State v. Thomas, 19 Mo. 613, 61 Am. Dec. 580; Wade v. National Bank, 114 F. 377, and other cases cited note 93 Am. St. Rep. 465. If a partnership be sued it is only injury to the firm business that can be recovered. Donnell v. Jones, 13 Ala. 490, 48 Am. Dec. 59.

56. Wheeler v. Hanson, 161 Mass. 370, 42 Am. St. Rep. 408.

57. Stoecker v. Nathanson [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1061; Flam v. Lee, 116 Iowa, 289, 93 Am. St. Rep. 242; Spear v. Hiles, 67 Wis. 350; Abrahams v. Cooper, 81 Pa. 232. Bad jail conditions may in Alabama be shown in case of false imprisonment. Fuqua v. Gambill [Ala.] 37 So. 235.

58. Zebley v. Storey, 117 Pa. 478. It does not in Massachusetts cover those damages arising from untimely arrest or unsanitary jails or repulsive surroundings while arrested, or the condition of plaintiff or his family. Arrested in nighttime, put with drunken people and in cold cell. Laing v. Mitten, 185 Mass. 233, 70 N. E. 128.

59. Davis v. Seeley, 91 Iowa, 583, 51 Am. St. Rep. 356, where plaintiff when arrested was obliged to leave a sick and dependent family. Flam v. Lee, 116 Iowa, 289, 93 Am. St. Rep. 242, where the shock to the plaintiff's mother distressed him.

60. Reisan v. Mott, 42 Minn. 49, 18 Am. St. Rep. 489; Hampton v. Jones, 58 Iowa, 317, where wife's health was impaired.

61. Rosekrans v. Barker, 115 Ill. 331, 56

In the case of civil suits maliciously prosecuted or process abused, the rule that natural consequences measure the damages will be varied according to the nature and action of the suit or writ.[63] Certain consequences follow in any case.[64] From malicious and unwarranted attachment the law will presume some damage at least nominal.[65] Says the Iowa court in a late case, the rule is that injuries to credit, character and business are too remote[66] and the rule is the same whether suit be brought on the bond or for malicious abuse of the writ.[67] This, however, would be entirely inconsistent with those precedents which hold that attachment may be an injury to credit or reputation as well as to property.[68] Attorneys' fees and expenses of attending court are proper elements.[69] In case of abusive garnishment, losses due to want of the garnished money[70] and loss of time while unable to find employment after a discharge,[71] are not natural consequences. Every injury to credit, business or feelings may be recovered for malicious ne exeat.[72]

Loss from inability to sell property or the value of the use of it during the time possession was withheld is a proper element.[73] In the absence of malice or oppression, the difference in value of property when taken and at any subsequent time which plaintiff may elect before action brought is the measure.[74]

Exemplary damages may be recovered as in other cases.[75] Pecuniary circumstances of defendant may be considered where the statute permits recovery beyond actual damages.[76] There should be actual personal malice or reckless disregard of plaintiff's rights.[77] And of course there must be actual damages,[78] but no special plea is necessary if malice be charged and proved.[79] Express malice appears from arrest without cause.[80] The general rule that the measure of exemplary damages varies with the tort feasor's wealth applies.[81] To mitigate or defeat exemplary damages anything disproving express malice is proper.[82] A charge on exemplary damages must not include punitive damages in those states that recognize a distinction.[83]

Am. Rep. 169; O'Brien v. Frazier, 47 N. J. Law, 349, 54 Am. Rep. 170; Fitzgibbon v. Brown, 43 Me. 169; Bacon v. Towne, 4 Cush. [Mass.] 217.

62. Charge held not to include recovery for physical pain. †Dwyer v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 303.

63. See the text and notes following.

64. See ante, this section. See, also, note 93 Am. St. Rep. 465.

65. †Dorr Cattle Co. v. Des Moines Nat. Bank [Iowa] 98 N. W. 918.

66, 67. †Dorr Cattle Co. v. Des Moines Nat. Bank [Iowa] 98 N. W. 918. But see ante this section note 56.

68. See ante, § 1B, and ante, this section notes 55, 56, post notes 68, 72.

69. Malicious attachment. †Harr v. Ward [Ark.] 84 S. W. 496.

70. O'Neill v. Johnson, 53 Minn. 439, 39 Am. St. Rep. 615.

71. A debtor whose discharge was caused by abusive garnishment cannot recover for loss of time because of inability to find other employment. †Cooper v. Scyoc, 104 Mo. App. 414, 79 S. W. 751.

72. Burnap v. Wight, 14 Ill. 301.

73. Lord v. Guyot [Colo.] 70 P. 683; Moffatt v. Fisher, 47 Iowa, 473; Newark Coal Co. v. Upson, 40 Ohio St. 17.

74. Fish v. Nethercutt, 14 Wash. 582, 53 Am. St. Rep. 892.

75. Hamilton v. Smith, 39 Mich. 222; Coleman v. Allen, 79 Ga. 637, 11 Am. St. Rep. 449 (under a statute); McWilliams v. Hoban, 12 Md. 56; Parkhurst v. Mastetter, 57 Iowa, 474; Davis v. Seeley, 91 Iowa, 583, 51 Am. St. Rep. 356; Spaids v. Barrett, 57 Ill. 289, 11 Am. Rep. 10; Barnett v. Reed, 51 Pa. 190, 88 Am. Dec. 574, and cases cited note 93 Am. St. Rep. 465.

Contra, Wilson v. Bowen, 64 Mich. 133.

76. Coleman v. Allen, 79 Ga. 637, 11 Am. St. Rep. 499.

77. †Dwyer v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 303; Rosenkrans v. Barker, 115 Ill. 331, 56 Am. Rep. 169; Burnett v. Reed, 51 Pa. 191, and other cases cited in note 26 Am. St. Rep. 164.

78. Schippel v. Norton, 38 Kan. 567, and see Damages, 3 Curr. L. 997.

79. Davis v. Seeley, 91 Iowa, 583, 51 Am. St. Rep. 356.

80. †Dwyer v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 303.

81. See the rule stated in Damages, 3 Curr. L. 997, and see note 26 Am. St. Rep. 164.

82. Bradner v. Faulkner, 93 N. Y. 515; Carter v. Sutherland, 52 Mich. 597.

83. Charge in addition to compensation that exemplary damages to a certain sum to punish defendant might be awarded held not to admit of punitive damages. †Cooper v. Scyoc, 104 Mo. App. 414, 79 S. W. 751.

A few illustrative cases on adequate and excessive damages have been collected.[84]

§ 10. General matters of practice and pleading.[85]—The venue of such an action is transitory unless there be a statute localizing it in the county where it arose.[86] Where the distinction in forms of action is preserved, the proper remedy is case and not trespass.[87] Under the codes, the pleadings must exhibit the real nature of the action and not incorporate in the same count allegations which introduce some other cause such as false imprisonment.[88] In most states it is now proper to join counts for malicious prosecution and false imprisonment, slander and other causes resting in the one transaction.[89] If two or more persons have a cause of action, they should bring separate actions and not joint.[90] Defendants should be impleaded as in other torts.[91] Allegations of conspiracy do not prevent dismissal as to all but one defendant.[92] All the material elements of the cause of action must be well pleaded,[93] and issue joined thereon or on properly pleaded matter of defense.[94] If defendant tenders issue that he made a full disclosure to counsel and acted on advice and in good faith, it must be traversed by reply.[95] The preliminary practice on the pleadings,[96] trial and adduction and reception of evidence,[97] rules of evidence,[98] argument of counsel,[99] instructions,[100] verdicts and findings,[101] are

84. $5,000 not excessive to woman prosecuted for adultery as culmination of continued persecution. Bigelow v. Sickles, 80 Wis. 98, 27 Am. St. Rep. 25. $25,000 not excessive where plaintiff 55 years old and earning $4,500 a year paid $5,000 to counsel to procure acquittal of embezzlement. †Rawson v. Leggett, 97 App. Div. 416, 90 N. Y. S. 5. $600 not excessive where old man was arrested and greatly humiliated, grieved and disturbed in mind, though confined but a few hours. †Charlton v. Markland [Wash.] 78 P. 132. $4,000 criticised as excessive. †Shea v. Cloquet Lumber Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 111. Consult generally Damages, 3 Curr. L. 997.

85. See 2 Curr. L. 770.

86. 13 Enc. Pl. & Pr. 420.

87. See note 93 Am. St. Rep. 469, and cases cited.

88. Pleading the fact of an arrest with the other facts does not introduce a cause of action for false imprisonment. †Jones v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 416. And see 13 Enc. Pl. & Pr. 422.

89. In Kentucky malicious prosecution cannot be joined with slander. †Tandy v. Riley [Ky.] 80 S. W. 776. Can be joined with false imprisonment. Haskins v. Ralston, 69 Mich. 63, 13 Am. St. Rep. 376.

See 13 Enc. Pl. & Pr. 424.

See generally Pleading, 2 Curr. L. 1178.

90. See cases cited note 93 Am. St. Rep. 469.

91. Page v. Citizens' Bank Co., 111 Ga. 73, 78 Am. St. Rep. 144.

92. †Lasher v. Littell, 202 Ill. 551, 67 N. E. 372.

93. See preceding sections.

It is no objection that the complaint alleges what would have been the outcome of a successful prosecution. †Ramsey v. Flowers [Ark.] 80 S. W. 147.

94. An allegation that the former action was terminated by a nolle prosequi and a denial thereof for want of knowledge raises the issue as to its termination. †Lieblang v. Cleveland El. R. Co., 4 Ohio C. C. [N. S.] 516. In an action for malicious prosecution, the plaintiff is put upon proof of a nolle prosequi when the defendant denies it for want of knowledge. †Lieblang v. Cleveland El. R. Co., 4 Ohio C. C. [N. S.] 516.

A peremptory charge for defendant is proper if there is neither traverse nor disproof of his pleadings and proof of advice and good faith. †Tandy v. Riley [Ky.] 80 S. W. 776.

That an appeal is pending is defensive. Luby v. Bennett, 111 Wis. 613, 87 Am. St. Rep. 897.

95. †Tandy v. Riley [Ky.] 80 S. W. 776.

96. See Pleading, 2 Curr. L. 1178.

97. See Trial, 2 Curr. L. 1907. If evidence tends to negative malice and mitigate damage, it should be offered for both purposes. †Adkin v. Pillen [Mich.] 100 N. W. 176.

98. See Evidence, 3 Curr. L. 1334.

If the prosecution was done by conspiracy, the acts of all conspirators are admissible. †Lasher v. Littell, 202 Ill. 551, 67 N. E. 352.

Mode of proving proceedings in prosecuting court: A transcript of the docket of the justice setting forth proceedings generally is admissible. †Kerstetter v. Thomas [Wash.] 79 P. 290. It is harmless to exclude the decision discharging plaintiff where the whole record showing a regular and proper decision was introduced. †Parr v. Loder, 97 App. Div. 218, 89 N. Y. S. 823. A United States court commissioner is an officer, quasi judicial, whose record of the prosecution is provable by certified copy. †Ramsey v. Flowers [Ark.] 80 S. W. 147.

99. See Argument of Counsel, 3 Curr. L. 306. Argument as to burden of proof held improper and erroneous. †Rulison v. Collins [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 748.

100. See Instructions, 4 Curr. L. 133. A charge on respondeat superior is proper if the prosecution was by agent. †Mundal v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 99 N. W. 273. If probable cause be generally defined, a more specific charge must be sought by request. †Stoecker v. Nathanson [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1061. A charge on the right of plaintiff prosecuted for larceny to take up abandoned animals is error where they were not subject to general rules which are pertinent to other topics. Only a few illustrative late cases have been cited.[102] The conclusiveness of a judgment affirmed adverse to plaintiff precludes him from suing the clerk of court as a conspirator to withhold papers necessary to appeal successfully.[103]

§ 11. Malicious prosecution as a crime is recognized in Texas[104] and perhaps other states.

MANDAMUS.

§ 1. Nature and Office of Remedy in General (506). Other Adequate Remedy (509). "Laches" or Delay (509).
§ 2. Duties and Rights Enforceable by Mandamus (509).
A. Judicial Procedure and Process (509).
B. Administrative and Legislative Functions of Public Officers (512). Duties Relating to Allowance and Payment of Claims Against Municipalities (516). Duties of Election Officers and Boards (517). Enforcement of Rights to Public Office (518).
C. Quasi Public and Private Duties (518).
§ 3. Jurisdiction (520). Federal Courts (520).
§ 4. Parties (521).
A. Parties Plaintiff (521).
B. Parties Defendant (522).
§ 5. Pleading and Procedure in General (523).
§ 6. Petition or Affidavit (523)
§ 7. Alternative Writ (523).
§ 8. Demurrer to Petition or Writ; Answer or Return; Subsequent Pleadings (524).
§ 9. Trial, Hearing and Judgment (526).
A. Trial and Hearing (526).
B. Judgment (527).
§ 10. Peremptory Writ (527).
§ 11. Performance (527).
§ 12. Review (527).

§ 1. Nature and office of remedy in general.[1]—Mandamus is an extraordinary[2] remedy in the nature of a civil action at law,[3] to compel performance of a duty imposed by law.[4] The writ may issue to enforce a continuing duty, as well as to direct performance of specific acts.[5] But it merely directs performance; the court which issues it does not acquire the custody or care of property involved.[6]

Mandamus is the common-law remedy to compel action; injunction is the equitable remedy to prevent action.[7] But the remedies of mandamus and mandatory injunction are closely analogous.[8] abandoned or taken up as such. †Kueney v. Uhl [Iowa] 98 N. W. 602. More specific charge that there must be want of probable cause besides malice held needless. †Rulison v. Collins [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 748. Charge on inference of malice, etc., held not contradictory of other charges defining elements of liability. Id.

101. See Verdicts and Findings, 2 Curr. L. 2009.

Interpretation of special findings: See Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. James, 73 Tex. 12, 15 Am. St. Rep. 743; Johnson v. Miller, 82 Iowa, 693, 31 Am. St. Rep. 514.

102. See preceding notes.

103. †Kruegel v. Stewart [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 365.

104. See Dempsey v. State, 27 Tex. App. 269, 11 Am. St. Rep. 193.

1. See 2 Curr. L. 771.

2. "The remedy by mandamus is extraordinary, and if the right is doubtful, or the duty discretionary, or the power to enforce the duty wanting or inadequate, or if there be any other specific and legal remedy, the writ will not, in general, be allowed." Bay State Gas Co. v. State [Del.] 56 A. 1120.

3. Seymour Water Co. v. Seymour [Ind.] 70 N. E. 514.

4. "The function of mandamus is to compel performance of a legal duty, to command action, not to review action, to complete the unfinished. It is the remedy for nonfeasance, not for misfeasance. It does not lie to correct mistakes that have been made or to remedy wrongs that have been done, or to undo that which is done." Corbett v. Naylor [R. I.] 57 A. 303.

5. State v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [Fla.] 37 So. 652.

6. Where mandamus was granted compelling payment of unpaid taxes for prior years, the court did not acquire custody or care of property, so that it could authorize payment of attorney's fees out of it. Milster v. City Council of Spartanburg [S. C.] 47 S. E. 141.

7. The proper remedy, if any, to prevent a gas company from taking up a pipe line, is injunction, not mandamus. State v. Connersville Natural Gas Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 483, citing 19 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law [2nd Ed.] 721; High on Extra. Leg. Rem. § 6; Merrill on Mandamus, § 43.

8. Illustrations: Mandamus is not the remedy by which to compel a telephone company to install a telephone at the instance of a citizen at the same rate as that given other subscribers since that writ issues only to "executive and ministerial officers;" if there is a right to relief, it must be by mandatory injunction. Williams v. Maysville Tel. Co. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 995. The principle is well established that a mandatory

Mandamus was originally a prerogative writ, and it does not issue now as a matter of legal right, but at the discretion of the court, though this discretion is to be exercised in accordance with the rules that have been established concerning the remedy.[9] The writ will not issue when it would work injustice,[10] or introduce confusion or disorder,[11] or aid illegal acts or business,[12] or compel a respondent to violate the law.[13] Nor will a court ordinarily command the doing of an act which another court of competent jurisdiction has enjoined, and thereby subject the defendant to punishment for contempt.[14] But the mere fact that the act, performance of which is sought to be compelled, has been enjoined by another court is no defense to an application for mandamus, if it appears conclusively from the record, or from the conceded facts of the case, that the court which issued the injunction order had no power to enjoin the act in question.[15]

The writ will not be issued unless it appears that the relator has a clear legal right thereto,[16] and that the act sought to be enforced is one of absolute obligation injunction will not lie against an officer to compel the performance of a duty which is in its nature judicial, but only when the duty is ministerial. Bennett v. Richards [Ky.] 83 S. W. 154. Under the Kentucky Code, mandamus will not lie to compel a private corporation engaged in the business of supplying water to the public, to furnish water to a person. Wiemer v. Louisville Water Co., 130 F. 251.

9. State v. Board of Com'rs, 162 Ind. 580, 70 N. E. 373. See, also, as to "discretion," Gay v. Tarrance [Cal.] 78 P. 540, 541, 542.

A ruling on an application for the writ will be reversed on appeal only when a clear abuse of discretion is shown. Granting of mandamus to compel mayor and chief of police to use their summary powers to prevent open violation of gambling law by maintenance of a "poolroom," held a proper exercise of the power. Moores v. State [Neb.] 99 N W. 249. Where election officers failed to adopt the statutory procedure in canvassing the vote, and proof was not clear that the count was honest and correct, the discretion of the court in issuing mandamus to compel a recanvass will not be reversed on appeal. People v. Way, 92 App. Div. 82, 86 N. Y. S. 892.

NOTE. Mandamus under statutes: The statutory remedy in some states differs from the common-law remedy. Thus under the Washington statute "mandamus is nothing more than one of the forms of procedure provided for the enforcement of rights and the redress of wrongs. The procedure has in it all the elements of a civil action." The writ cannot be said to be "in any sense a prerogative writ, or a writ to be issued at the discretion of the court." "The statute has been so framed as to afford complete relief in all cases falling within its scope and purport, whether these be cases of willful violations of recognized rights, or denials, made in good faith, that the rights contended for exist. The right to sue out the writ is not made to depend on the character of the dispute, but on what answer is given to the question, can the ordinary course of law afford a plain, speedy and adequate remedy?" See State v. McQuade [Wash.] 79 P. 207; State v. Cranney, 30 Wash. 594, 71 P. 50.

10. Fletcher & Sons v. Alpena Circuit Judge [Mich.] 99 N. W. 748.

11. State v. Board of Com'rs, 162 Ind. 580, 70 N. E. 373.

12. Mandamus will not lie to compel installation of a telephone in a house admitted to be used as a bawdy house. Godwin v. Carolina Tel. & T. Co., 136 N. C. 258, 48 S. E. 636.

13. Mandamus to compel a township committee to put a road and causeway in repair denied when there were no funds available, and to exceed their appropriation was made a crime. Justice v. Gloucester County [N. J. Law] 58 A. 74.

14. A board of county commissioners will not be compelled by mandamus to order the collection of a railroad aid tax when another court has enjoined such action, especially where the personnel of the board has changed since the injunction suit. State v. Board of Com'rs, 162 Ind. 580, 70 N. E. 373. Afd. and petition for rehearing denied [Ind.] 70 N. E. 984. For former opinion see 68 N. E. 295.

15. State v. Carlson [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1004.

16. A de facto police patrolman cannot compel restoration of his name to the pay roll by mandamus without showing that he was also an officer de jure at the time his name was dropped. Held, this did not appear. McNeill v. Chicago, 212 Ill. 481, 72 N. E. 450. Mandamus to compel secretary of state to certify name of relator as political nominee denied, no legal authority for the calling of the convention being shown. People v. Rose, 211 Ill. 252, 71 N. E. 1124. The commissioner of the general land office cannot be compelled by mandamus to make a sale of lands, when there is a dispute between the state and another party as to the title thereto. Juencke v. Terrell [Tex.] 82 S. W. 1025. Where a claim for a refund for an excess paid to redeem land sold for taxes was not filed within six months after it accrued, the board of supervisors had no power to allow it (St. 1897, p. 470, § 40); hence mandamus would not lie to compel the auditor to issue a warrant for the sum, even though it had been allowed. Perrin v. Honeycutt, 144 Cal. 87, 77 P. 776. An ordinary action and not mandamus was the proper remedy to enforce payment of county warrants, where liability was denied on the ground that part of the warrants were paid, and on the further ground that they were on the part of the person or officer sought to be coerced.[17] Conditions precedent to the vesting of relator's legal right must have been performed,[18] and there must have been some actual default in respect to the duty of the respondent.[19] But an objection that mandamus proceedings were prematurely brought is waived by the parties appearing and participating in the proceedings.[20] The right to the remedy rests upon the legal rights of the relator and the legal duties of the respondent; equities between the parties are not to be considered.[21]

It is ordinarily held that the writ will not be granted unless its issuance will serve some useful legal purpose,[22] and be of some benefit to the relator;[23] but when it appears that a legal duty has not been performed, there is no abuse of illegal and void. Custer County Bank v. Custer County [S. D.] 100 N. W. 424. Mandamus to compel an appropriation of money for a school building by common councils was denied where the requisition was made in ambiguous form by the board of education, and was misunderstood by the common councils. Commonwealth v. Pittsburg, 209 Pa. 333, 58 A. 669. Where there was a bona fide question raised as to a teacher's right to unpaid wages, and no authority by the board to issue a warrant on the treasurer was shown, mandamus would not lie to compel a director to sign such warrant. Davis v. Jewett [Kan.] 77 P. 704. To entitle a relator to a mandamus he must show himself legally entitled to some right properly the subject of the writ, that it is legally demandable from the respondent, and that respondent has power to perform the required duty. People v. Greene, 95 App. Div. 397, 88 N. Y. S. 601.

17. Writ will not lie to compel a county auditor to bring up and enter on a current delinquent tax duplicate delinquent personal taxes omitted by his predecessors, such duty not being one especially enjoined on him by law. State v. Smith [Ohio] 72 N. E. 300. An act created a special provisional fund and ordered the treasurer to transfer to it sums credited to certain other funds. Held, mandamus would not lie to compel the treasurer to transfer to the provisional fund any other moneys than those in the funds designated in the act. Regents of Agricultural College v. Vaughn [N. M.] 78 P. 51. Mandamus will not issue to compel one to arrest, or cause the arrest of, one charged with violation of gambling laws, without a complaint or warrant, unless the violation of law was in the presence of the person to be coerced; since arrest for a misdemeanor without a warrant is not authorized by law. State v. Williams [Or.] 77 P. 965. Where a petition for mandamus to compel the state treasurer to transmit to the clerk of the circuit court funds for payment of jurors and witnesses fails to show that the comptroller's endorsement of the requisition has been countersigned by the governor, the alternative writ of mandamus will be denied. State v. Knott [Fla.] 37 So. 307.

18. A petition seeking two kinds of relief one of which must be obtained before there can be a clear legal right to the other is demurrable. A discharged police officer cannot collect salary by mandamus until he has been reinstated. City of Chicago v. People, 210 Ill. 84, 71 N. E. 816. City bonds need not be reduced to judgment before mandamus will lie to compel a tax levy to pay the same, the validity of the bonds not being in issue. Territory v. Socarro [N. M.] 76 P. 283. A civil service clerk who has been taken off the suspended list, and has become entitled to reinstatement, a vacancy having occurred, need not demand reinstatement before bringing mandamus therefor. People v. Grout, 45 Misc. 47, 90 N. Y. S. 861. A petition for mandamus to compel collection of taxes from a corporation illegally exempted will not be dismissed for lack of a demand and refusal, since the obligation to collect such taxes existed without a demand. Milster v. Spartanburg [S. C.] 46 S. E. 539.

19. Mandamus would not lie to compel the secretary of state of Wisconsin to certify the names of the nominees of one of the two state Republican conventions; a suit in equity for a mandatory injunction was held the proper remedy. State v. Houser [Wis.] 100 N. W. 964.

20. State v. Weston [Mont.] 78 P. 487.

21. Thus an equitable defense cannot be set up as against a plain legal right. Davis v. Miller Signal Co., 105 Ill. App. 657. Mandamus will not lie to compel a circuit judge to continue an injunction restraining a corporation from making a contract unless it appear that the relator has a clear legal right to the relief asked, regardless of equitable considerations. Fletcher & Sons v. Alpena Circuit Judge [Mich.] 99 N. W. 748.

22. Enforcement of abstract right to inspect poll books refused where relator's purpose in asking it could not thereby be served. Hall v. Staunton [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 265. A literal compliance with a writ of mandamus commanding the issuance of bench warrants for persons whose bail had been forfeited would not reach persons who had deposited money in lieu of bail, since a distinction is made in the statutes; hence, writ not granted. State v. Williams [Or.] 77 P. 965. Mandamus will not be granted where it would prove unavailing or where the act sought to be enforced is legally impossible at the time. Thus the writ was not granted to compel a board of elections to grant a petition of a majority of voters for the providing of a voting machine, where it did not appear that there were funds on hand for such purpose. State v. Board of Elections, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 398.

23. State v. Sommerville [La.] 36 So. 104. Mandamus will not issue to compel a judge to punish for contempt for violation of a preliminary injunction restraining criminal prosecutions, where the bill for an injunction has been dismissed for want of equity, and the injunction dissolved; since petitioner no longer has any interest in the contempt proceedings. Old Dominion Tel. Co. v. Powers [Ala.] 37 So. 195.

discretion in issuing the writ, though it is doubtful if it will result in any substantial benefit.[24]

Other adequate remedy.[25]—Mandamus will not lie when there is any other plain, speedy, specific and adequate remedy at law.[26] But the fact that the party applying for the writ might have redress in a court of equity does not affect the right to mandamus.[27]

"Laches" or delay.[28]—Mandamus, like other remedies, may be barred by delay, but mere lapse of time, without resulting prejudice to the defendants, is not sufficient to bar the remedy,[29] if the right or claim sought to be enforced is not barred by limitations.[30]

§ 2. Duties and rights enforceable by mandamus. A. Judicial procedure and process.[31]—While mandamus will not issue to control discretion or revise judicial action,[32] it is the proper remedy to compel a court to proceed and try a

24. State v. Boyden [S. D.] 100 N. W. 763. The fact that colored children had been excluded from a certain public school so long that a writ to compel their admission would do them no good is no excuse for denying it, they having a legal right to attend such school. People v. Alton, 209 Ill. 461, 70 N. E. 640.

25. See 2 Curr. L. 773.

26. Bay State Gas Co. v. State [Del.] 56 A. 1120; State v. Sommerville [La.] 36 So. 104. A clerk of the circuit court has a plain, adequate and complete remedy, under Code 1896, § 13, by which to recover on a claim against the county, disallowed by the commissioners, and mandamus will not lie to compel payment. Scarbrough v. Watson [Ala.] 37 So. 281. Mandamus will not lie to compel a board of education to admit a pupil to a school as a free pupil, where the law provides a speedy and adequate remedy by appeal to the county superintendent of schools. Preston v. Board of Education of Independent School Dist. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 54. A school teacher having a right of action on contract to collect salary may not have mandamus to compel a director to sign a warrant on the treasurer. Davis v. Jewett [Kan.] 77 P. 704. Before an officer dismissed from the police force by judgment of the police board can obtain a mandamus to compel the board to reinstate him, he must show he exhausted his legal remedies before the board by applying for a new trial. State v. Board of Police Com'rs [La.] 37 So. 16.

Remedy at law held inadequate: A law student, wrongfully expelled without notice, and asking mandamus to compel reinstatement, has no other adequate legal remedy. Baltimore University v. Colton, 98 Md. 623, 57 A. 14. A school teacher may compel a school board to draw a warrant for his salary, the action on contract not affording an adequate remedy, since after getting judgment he might still be compelled to have mandamus to get the warrant signed. State v. McQuade [Wash.] 79 P. 207. Where the county auditor, after executing a warrant for a claim, procured the money thereon by a forged indorsement, the fact that an action on the official bond of the county treasurer was available, did not bar the claimant's right to mandamus to compel issuance of a warrant to it. American Bridge Co. v. Wheeler, 35 Wash. 40, 76 P. 534. Where several prosecutions had failed to result in the closing of a "poolroom" maintained in violation of the gambling laws, the existence of the remedy of arrest of the offenders, on warrant, was held not to preclude the right of a mandamus to compel the mayor and chief of police to arrest all persons detected in violating the law at the designated place. Moores v. State [Neb.] 99 N. W. 249.

27. Baltimore University v. Colton, 98 Md. 623, 57 A. 14.

28. See 2 Curr. L. 773.

29. A right to mandamus was held not barred by laches where the parties, having attempted to appeal, the appeal being dismissed, and having asked for a rehearing, which was denied, thereupon at once brought mandamus. Cahill v. Superior Court of San Francisco [Cal.] 78 P. 467. A policeman, transferred to a "headquarters squad," demanded recognition as a detective sergeant under the New York charter. Having brought mandamus to enforce his demand 10 days after refusal of the police commissioner to grant it, he was not guilty of laches. People v. Greene, 95 App. Div. 397, 88 N. Y. S. 601.

30. Mandamus to compel issuance of county orders on claims legally allowed by county supervisors will not be denied on the ground of laches, the claim not being barred by limitations. Hanna v. Chalker [Mich.] 98 N. W. 732. Where mandamus was sought to enforce collection of taxes for 13 years past, the analogy of the statute of limitations was adopted in fixing the line of unreasonable delay amounting to laches, and collection was enforced for a period of six years prior to the bringing of the action. Milster v. Spartanburg [S. C.] 46 S. E. 539.

31. See 2 Curr. L. 774.

32. A court has no power by writ of mandamus to compel a subordinate judicial officer to reverse a conclusion already reached, to correct an erroneous decision, or to direct him in what particular way he shall proceed or shall decide a specified question. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Morris [C. C. A.] 132 F. 945. Mandamus does not lie to compel a court of common pleas to vacate an order discharging a rule to show cause why an auditor should not be dismissed, and to order a trial in open court. In re Powel's Estate, 209 Pa. 76, 57 A. 1111. Where a railroad company having begun appropriation proceedings in probate court appealed to the court of common pleas from the judgment cause when it refuses to do so upon the erroneous decision that it has no jurisdiction,[33] or to set aside a wholly void order.[34] Purely ministerial duties[35] of courts or judges imposed by law[36] may be controlled by mandamus. The duty of the court must be clearly apparent,[37] and the occasion fully mature.[38] rendered on the verdict, the probate judge cannot be required to order the railroad company to pay the amount of the verdict into court or to landowners pending proceedings in error. State v. Waite, 70 Ohio St. 149, 71 N. E. 286. Court having denied a motion that plaintiff should not be allowed to prosecute an action because he had not paid the costs of other actions, mandamus would not lie to compel the court to reverse its judgment and grant the motion. Ex parte Colley [Ala.] 37 So. 232. An action to remove a sheriff was prosecuted on the relation of the attorney general and motion was made to suspend the sheriff pending the action. The district court dismissed the action and motion. Held, a judicial determination of a matter properly before it, not reviewable by mandamus. State v. District Ct. of Fourth Judicial Dist. [N. D.] 100 N. W. 248. Mandamus will not lie to compel vacation of an order striking a stipulation of discontinuance from the files, since plaintiff was in such case merely required to proceed with the cause or pay costs. Thompson v. Bay Circuit Judge [Mich.] 101 N. W. 61. Mandamus will not lie to compel a judge to transfer a cause from the law to the equity docket; the remedy for refusal to do so is by appeal. Horton v. Gill [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 718.

Note. Says a writer in the Columbia Law Review, commenting on the case last cited: "Where a court improperly refuses to act or unreasonably delays its action, mandamus will lie to force it to proceed. High, Extr. Legal Remedies, § 147. Mandamus is, however, never employed to determine what the judgment of a court should be, nor to make it take a particular action. Ex parte Loring, 94 U. S. 418, 24 Law. Ed. 165; Sprague v. Fawcett, 53 Cal. 408. The sole purpose of the writ is to force the doing of a ministerial, not a judicial act. Hence a court may be forced to take jurisdiction, where such is its duty (Temple v. Superior Court, 70 Cal. 211); or having jurisdiction it will be compelled to proceed; but having done this, its proceedings cannot be reviewed, nor its rulings revised by mandamus. Under these generally recognized doctrines the principal case was correctly decided. The court heard the motion to transfer the case to the equity side of the court, and overruled it. Here was an exercise of discretion which cannot be reviewed by mandamus, nor does the wording of the statute on which the dissenting opinion relies seem to justify the conclusion that the determination of the question was ministerial rather than judicial." 5 Columbia L. R. p. 160.

33. State v. District Court of Fourth Judicial Dist. [N. D.] 100 N. W. 248. As where refusal to act was based on belief that service of summons was insufficient. Hill v. Morgan [Idaho] 76 P. 323. Where the refusal of a superior court to vacate an order in probate was based solely on the ground of want of jurisdiction as a matter of law, mandamus proceedings will lie in the supreme court to compel him to entertain a motion to vacate the order. Cahill v. Superior Court [Cal.] 78 P. 467. The writ was issued where the Federal court stayed proceedings until the controversy had been determined by the state court in which also action had been brought. The Federal judge was directed to proceed, since the party was entitled to maintain actions in both Federal and state courts. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Morris [C. C. A.] 132 F. 945. Mandamus to compel a judge to proceed with trial of a case will not lie at the instance of a plaintiff, when it would be the court's duty upon such trial to direct verdict for defendants. Hatch v. Frazer [Mich.] 101 N. W. 228.

34. A purchaser of land, after a decree quieting title thereto, may have mandamus to compel vacation of an order setting aside such decree, granted without notice to or knowledge of such purchaser. Vincent v. Benzie Circuit Judge [Mich.] 102 N. W. 369.

35. The remedy for an erroneous refusal of an appeal or supersedeas is by mandamus and not by writ of error. Gutierrez v. Territory [N. M.] 79 P. 299. The duty to fix a supersedeas to stay operation of a decree pending an appeal is a merely ministerial duty, and the remedy for refusal to fix it is by mandamus. McBride v. Whitaker [Neb.] 98 N. W. 847. Where an administrator appealed from an order of a probate judge removing him, and the judge required an appeal bond in an unwarranted sum, the administrator was entitled to mandamus to compel the judge to accept a proper bond, though such bond has not been presented for approval. Fleming v. Kirby [Mich.] 100 N. W. 272. A judicial determination of a controversy having been made by a justice of the peace, necessitating a judgment of nonsuit and return of property, mandamus lies to compel the entry of such judgment. Barlow v. Riker [Mich.] 101 N. W. 820. Mandamus lies to compel a court to sign a bill of exceptions, if refusal to do so is improper. But an equity court will not be required to sign a bill of exceptions omitting the evidence, though the court has found the facts and stated conclusions of law thereon. State v. Jarrott [Mo.] 81 S. W. 876. Mandamus will lie to compel a judge to sign a bill of exceptions containing an application for change of venue and the evidence and proceedings thereon, where the remedy by Rev. St. 1899, §§ 727-736 is not applicable, there being no question as to the truth of the bill. State v. Gibson [Mo.] 83 S. W. 472. Where a conditional order refusing a new trial was made absolute by the defendant's refusing to perform the condition, thus leaving the judgment rendered in force, mandamus was held a proper remedy to compel issuance of execution by the judge, but not by the clerk. Holtum v. Greif, 144 Cal. 521, 78 P. 11. The duty of issuing execution for costs allowed by the supreme court in affirming a judgment is not a merely ministerial duty of the clerk so as to preclude direction of a writ to the judge to compel issuance of execution. State v. Hatch [Wash.] 78 P. 796.

Mandamus will not lie where there is another adequate remedy,[39] as by certiorari,[40] appeal or writ of error;[41] nor will the writ issue where the court from which it is sought is given no revisory control over that against which it is asked;[42] but the writ will issue to compel a trial court to obey the mandate of an appellate court.[43]

36. It is the duty of the clerk of the Portland municipal court to issue bench warrants (city charter, § 331); mandamus will not issue to compel the judge to issue such warrants. State v. Williams [Or.] 77 P. 965. Mandamus lies to compel a judge and clerk of court to deliver a venire facias for the summoning of jurors to the county sheriff, under a law making it the duty of the sheriff to summon jurors for the court in question, said judge having directed his clerk to deliver such venire to the city superintendent of police. Dickson v. Phelan [Mich.] 99 N. W. 405. Mandamus will not lie to compel a trial judge to include in a bill of exceptions an affidavit made on information and belief, since an affidavit so made cannot be considered. Gay v. Torrance [Cal.] 78 P. 540. Mandamus will not lie to compel a district judge to make an order staying execution pending an appeal, where the record has not been filed in the supreme court within 90 days as required by law. Youngberg v. Smart [Kan.] 78 P. 422. On application to a judge to certify his disqualification to preside in a given case, his determination of his qualifications is not discretionary; his action, if erroneous, may be controlled by mandamus. Application held not to show disqualification, and writ denied. State v. Pitts, 139 Ala. 152, 36 So. 20.

37. An information for uttering a forged check being quashed, the prosecuting attorney swore out a complaint for obtaining money by false pretenses, and had accused bound over for trial on that charge. Held, prosecuting attorney was not entitled to mandamus to compel the judge to vacate the order quashing the first information, after acquiescing in such order, the motion for the order to vacate being made orally in the absence of accused. Louisell v. Benzie Circuit Judge [Mich.] 102 N. W. 371. Mandamus to compel a judge to dissolve an injunction restraining the building of a drain which would result in injury to plaintiff's land denied, though it appeared that plaintiff was not the owner in fee but held a contract only. Emery v. Ionia Circuit Judge [Mich.] 101 N. W. 801.

38. A writ of mandamus or certiorari will not be granted to review a motion to quash contempt proceedings before a final determination therein. Toepel v. Donovan [Mich.] 102 N. W. 369.

39. Mandamus will not lie to compel the circuit court of appeals to file conclusions of fact, since there is a remedy by motion to have the record returned with instructions to include such conclusions. Nowlin v. Hall [Tex.] 79 S. W. 806.

40. Where a district judge exceeded his jurisdiction in quashing a panel and discharging a jury, on motion of a prosecuting attorney, certiorari and not mandamus is the proper remedy to correct such improper action. Heitman v. Morgan [Idaho] 79 P. 225.

41. Supreme court of Texas will not issue the writ to a court of appeals in cases where an appeal or writ of error lies. Smith v. Conner [Tex.] 84 S. W. 815. An order of the probate court denying a petition to require a guardian to account is an appealable order and hence not reviewable on mandamus. Hopper v. Stowe [Mich.] 100 N. W. 266. Mandamus to compel vacation of an order denied, when such order was reviewable on writ of error. Skutt v. Wolcott [Mich.] 99 N. W. 405. Writ denied to review action of circuit judge in quashing a writ of capias ad respondendum, a writ of error affording an adequate remedy. Cattermole v. Ionia Circuit Judge [Mich.] 99 N. W. 1. Mandamus to compel a circuit judge to strike an amended declaration from the files denied, the ruling of the trial court being reviewable on writ of error. Blackburn v. Alpena Circuit Judge [Mich.] 98 N. W. 754. Former Michigan practice was to review such questions in mandamus proceedings, but a different practice was settled in St. Clair Tunnel Co. v. St. Clair Circuit Judge, 114 Mich. 417, 72 N. W. 249, which has since been followed. Id. The right to appeal from an order denying a motion for execution on a judgment is not such a plain, speedy and adequate remedy as will bar issuance of a writ of mandamus to compel the granting of execution. Holtum v. Greif, 144 Cal. 521, 78 P. 11. Where judgment of the superior court has been affirmed with costs in the supreme court and execution directed to issue therefor, issuance of such execution may be compelled by mandamus, since the right to appeal from an order quashing execution issued by the clerk is not such a plain, speedy and adequate remedy as to bar mandamus. State v. Hatch [Wash.] 78 P. 796. Mandamus, and not error is the proper remedy to review a retaxation of costs by a circuit court on appeal from the clerk. This rule differs from that in other states, but is followed in deference to precedent. Schmidt v. Donovan [Mich.] 99 N. W. 877. It was urged that error would not reach costs. Id.

42. Thus where the decision of a court of appeals is final, the supreme court has no general power to issue mandamus to the lower court in cases where mandamus would ordinarily lie. Smith v. Conner [Tex.] 84 S. W. 815. The supreme court of Illinois cannot by mandamus review the action of county judges to whom objections to certificates of nomination have been referred, under the Illinois statute (Laws 1891, p. 110), nor can such action be ignored, so that the supreme court may take original jurisdiction on mandamus; under the statute the action of the county judges is final. People v. Rose, 211 Ill. 249, 71 N. E. 1123.

43. State v. Douglass [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 87. On appeal from judgment of dismissal at close of plaintiff's evidence, it was held that such evidence made a prima facie case and the cause was remanded. The trial court, at the close of the opening remarks

Under the Texas statute requiring a court of civil appeals to certify to the supreme court a question in the decision of which it fails to concur with the opinion of another court of appeals,[44] it is held that mandamus to compel such certification will not be granted where the decisions alleged to be in conflict are easily distinguishable,[45] or where the conflict is between a court of appeals and the supreme court, and not another court of appeals.[46]

A writ of supervisory control will not issue to review and annul an order holding a defendant guilty of contempt and directing his punishment, where it does not appear that the court acted in an arbitrary or unlawful manner.[47]

(§ 2) B. Administrative and legislative functions of public officers.[48]—The writ of mandamus lies only to enforce a purely ministerial duty and to protect a plain, admitted and unquestioned legal right which has been arbitrarily or without due warrant of law denied.[49] It never lies to interfere with a legitimate exercise of discretion by executive or administrative officers.[50] Illustrative holdings applying the general rule to the acts or duties of various municipal[51] and state[52]

by counsel for plaintiffs, again dismissed the case. Held, mandamus issued to compel the trial court to proceed and try the case. Kroetch v. Morgan [Idaho] 77 P. 19. Judgment for defendant in a circuit court being reversed on a writ of error and the cause remanded with directions to award a new trial and to issue execution against defendant for costs in appellate court, the circuit court erroneously granted a stay of execution and sustained a plea in the nature of a plea in abatement, without entering a final order or judgment from which a writ of error would lie. Held, mandamus would lie to compel obedience to the mandate for execution. Bucki & Son Lumber Co. v. Atlantic Lumber Co. [C. C. A.] 128 F. 332.

44. Acts 26th Leg. p. 170, c. 98.

45. Shirley v. Connor [Tex.] 80 S. W. 984. See, also, opinion filed on rehearing, Id., 81 S. W. 284.

46. Smith v. Conner [Tex.] 84 S. W. 815.

47. As where defendant failed to show a bona fide attempt to comply with an order to pay alimony and counsel fees. State v. District Court of Eighth Judicial Dist. [Mont.] 79 P. 401.

48. See 2 Curr. L. 775.

49. Riverside Oil Co. v. Hitchcock, 21 App. D. C. 252. When the law requires a public officer to do a specified act in a specified way upon a conceded state of facts, without regard to his own judgment as to the propriety of the act, and with no power to exercise discretion, the duty is ministerial in character, and performance may be compelled by mandamus if there is no other remedy. In re Troy Press Co., 94 App. Div. 514, 88 N. Y. S. 115.

50. Federal officers: As to compel the postmaster general, who had prohibited circulation of a newspaper through the mails, to permit its circulation. In re Coleman, 131 F. 151. Refusal of the secretary of the interior to issue a patent to land, protests having been filed, was not reviewable by mandamus. Riverside Oil Co. v. Hitchcock, 21 App. D. C. 252. Mandamus will not lie to compel the secretary of the interior and the Indian commissioner to require a subordinate Indian agent to perform a purely ministerial duty, such as countersigning a check. If the duty be purely ministerial no order of his superiors would protect him in refusing to perform it. Hitchcock v. U. S., 22 App. D. C. 275. Where the meaning of a regulation of the Bureau of Indian Affairs requiring the local Indian agent to countersign checks of Indians on money obtained from sale of land allotted to them by the government was in dispute, the act of countersigning a check could not be considered a purely ministerial act such that mandamus would lie to compel its performance. Id. Denial by the commissioner of patents of an application for registration of a label on the ground that it is not descriptive of the article for which it used is a decision requiring the exercise of discretion, and is not reviewable by mandamus. Allen v. U. S., 22 App. D. C. 271. Mandamus lies to compel the commissioner of patents to require the primary examiner to forward to the examiners-in-chief the appeal to which an inventor is by law entitled, where the primary examiner has twice rejected his claims. United States v. Allen, 192 U. S. 543, 48 Law. Ed. 555, reversing court of appeals of the District of Columbia. See Id., 22 App. D. C. 56. From a refusal of the commissioner to require such action by the examiner, no appeal lies to the court of appeals of the District of Columbia. Hence mandamus is the proper remedy. Ex parte Frasch, 192 U. S. 566, 48 Law. Ed. 564.

51. CITY OFFICERS. Duties held enforceable: The duty of a mayor of a city to sign and seal bonds fixed by ordinance and charter is purely ministerial. Halsey v. Nowrey [N. J. Law] 59 A. 449. Under 1 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 1012, mayors of cities of the fourth class have no veto power, and mandamus lies to compel a mayor to sign an ordinance, this being a mere ministerial duty. State v. Taylor [Wash.] 79 P. 286. Where telephone companies are authorized to construct lines on public roads, and to erect poles thereon, mandamus is the proper remedy to compel a city council to designate the location of poles in the streets of the city, where the council requires the use of conduits for wires. State v. Red Lodge [Mont.] 76 P. 758. Mandamus will lie to compel a park commissioner to issue a proper permit to a railroad to cross a parkway, where he refuses to issue such permit except upon conditions which he has no power to impose. People v. Kennedy, 97 App. Div. 103, 89 N. Y. S. 603. Since the statutes require a mayor and chief of police of a city to actively interfere to prevent open violation of law, mandamus lies to compel them to exercise their summary powers to prevent violation of the gambling law by maintenance of a public "poolroom," prosecutions of individual offenders having failed to close the place. Moores v. State [Neb.] 99 N. W. 249. Under a statute (Acts 1903, p. 365), making it unlawful to permit certain animals to run at large in cities of a certain size, and requiring such cities to adopt ordinances to prevent such animals so running at large, mandamus lies to compel the proper city authorities to adopt the required ordinances on their refusal to do so. Huey v. Waldrop [Ala.] 37 So. 380. Mere inconvenience in complying with a duty imposed by statute on a municipality is not a sufficient reason for refusing to enforce obedience by mandamus. Commonwealth v. Pittsburg, 209 Pa. 333, 58 A. 669. The official paper of a city may by mandamus compel publication of a notice of tax sale, as required by law. Register Newspaper Co. v. Yeizer, 25 Ky. L. R. 2186, 80 S. W. 478. Mandamus to compel a chief of police to arrest and prosecute gamblers will not be denied on the ground that such action was prohibited by his superiors, if such prohibition was the result of an unlawful combination or conspiracy to license public gambling. State v. Williams [Or.] 77 P. 965.

officers, of court officers,[53] of licensing boards,[54] and of civil service commissioners,[55] are given in the notes.

Duties held not enforceable: The power of the police commissioner of New York to grant a pension to a member of the force who has served twenty years is discretionary. Friel v. McAdoo, 91 N. Y. S. 454. The duties of the inspector of buildings and board of public works, under the ordinances of Seattle, are quasi judicial, and mandamus will not lie to review a decision made by them. Hester v. Thomson, 35 Wash. 119, 76 P. 734. Where there was evidence before a city council tending to support charges against the mayor, the removal of the mayor was a discretionary act. Riggins v. Richards [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 84. A court will enforce by mandamus performance of a mandatory ministerial act, but has no authority to compel a municipal corporation to execute an agreement which is a discretionary act, or to take any steps towards the consummation of such an agreement. Held, mandamus would not lie to compel publication of an ordinance embodying a contract between a borough and private parties, such publication being necessary to render the contract operative. Carpenter v. Yeadon Borough, 208 Pa. 396, 57 A. 837. Mandamus will not issue to compel collection by a city of omitted taxes for past years for which an assessment of property would be necessary, since a city has no power to assess for past years in the absence of express legislative authority; but collection may be compelled for years in which the state and county assessment was the basis for city taxes; that is since the constitution of 1895 in the case of Spartanburg. Milster v. Spartanburg [S. C.] 46 S. E. 539.

COUNTY OFFICERS. Duties held enforceable: Mandamus will lie to compel a county treasurer to deposit funds in different depositary banks of the county in the proportionate amounts required by law. State v. Cronin [Neb.] 101 N. W. 325, approved and followed in 101 N. W. 327. Mandamus lies to compel a clerk of a board of supervisors to certify to the secretary of state a certain paper designated by the supervisors as the one in which session laws are to be published. In re Troy Press Co., 94 App. Div. 514, 88 N. Y. S. 115. If the refusal of a commissioners' court to accept a bond tendered be arbitrary, mandamus lies to compel the commissioners to exercise their discretion and consider the sufficiency of such bond. Gouhenour v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 104. Under Rev. Code Civ. Proc. § 764, providing that mandamus lies to compel performance by any board or person of an official duty enjoined by law, a county board of supervisors may be compelled to amend its records by including therein the fact that a petition for removal of a county seat, presented to it, was signed by a majority of the legal voters of the county. State v. Boyden [S. D.] 100 N. W. 763. A county treasurer's duties being wholly ministerial, he may be compelled by mandamus to accept and receipt for an instalment of the purchase price of school lands on presentation of a proper transcript of a judgment of the probate court allowing the purchase of such lands, even though he has already accepted an instalment from another person for the same land, a proper transcript having been presented. Scott v. Schwab [Kan.] 78 P. 443. Mandamus lies to compel a county clerk to extend levies and make an assessment for a school district. The existence of the right to certiorari does not preclude a resort to mandamus. State v. Patton [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 537.

Duties held not enforceable: Mandamus will not lie to control the exercise of discretion by a commissioners' court in approving or rejecting the official bond of a county judge. Gouhenour v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 104. Mandamus will not lie to compel inspection of the county clerk's records by a private individual for the sole purpose of obtaining evidence for the institution of criminal prosecution. Payne v. Staunton [W. Va.] 46 S. E. 927. A general demand for permission to inspect the county treasurer's public records will not be enforced by mandamus when it appears that relator may have all the information he may require "as owner, agent or otherwise," for which he specifically asks. State v. Reed [Wash.] 79 P. 306. A demand by a private citizen for permission to examine "any and all books of public records in said treasurer's office that he might desire to examine, or which relator's business, duty or interest might require," is too general to be made the basis of a writ of mandamus to a county treasurer; to warrant such writ, the demand must be for specific records, to be examined at such times and in such manner as not to interfere with public business. Id. It is not the plain ministerial duty of the board of assessors to assess a tract of land as be-

As to whether a ministerial officer may, in a mandamus proceeding, urge as a defense the unconstitutionality of the statute imposing the duty sought to be longing to an individual and as having a certain measurement and boundary, when the title exhibited by him fails to show that he owns any property answering such description. State v. Board of Assessors [La.] 37 So. 878.

School officers: The duty of a county superintendent to record the description of the boundaries of a school district, and to prepare a map of the same, under Mills' Ann. St. §§ 3988, 3992, is purely ministerial and enforceable by mandamus. People v. Vanhorn [Colo. App.] 77 P. 978. The character of such duty is not changed by an appeal to and a decision by the state board of education. Id. The selection of text books for schools, entrusted to a board of education, is a purely legislative function requiring the exercise of discretion and judgment, and the action of such board cannot be controlled by mandamus. State v. Wilson [Iowa] 99 N. W. 336. The determination of the question of residence of a pupil being one of fact, which involves the discretionary power of a board of education, its action will not be reviewed by mandamus proceedings to compel it to accept a pupil as a free pupil. Preston v. Board of Education [Iowa] 100 N. W. 54.

Duties relative to public highways: The power of a county commissioners' court to open and establish public roads is discretionary, and its exercise is not subject to control by mandamus. Howe v. Rose [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1019. The act of a highway commissioner, under Highway Law, § 99, in certifying as abandoned a highway which has not been used as such for six years, is not a discretionary act, hut is reviewable by mandamus. People v. Marlette, 94 App. Div. 592, 88 N. Y. S. 379. Hence the filing of such certificate in regard to a highway which has in fact been used continuously for the six years preceding is not a defense to an action of mandamus to compel him to attach such highway to a certain road district, or make a separate district of it, and open it for public travel [under Highway Law, § 4]. Id. Mandamus is the appropriate remedy to compel the performance of statutory duties of township trustees with respect to the opening of established highways. Allegations of alternative writ held, on demurrer, sufficient to require a trustee to open a road. Welch v. State [Ind.] 72 N. E. 1043. Township officers cannot be compelled by mandamus to repair a bridge, when they are of the honest opinion that such repairs cannot be made for a sum such as they have the power to expend. Kingsley v. Nylan [Mich.] 99 N. W. 744. The statutory duty of a county court in the matter of building bridges with adjoining counties is discretionary, and mandamus will not lie to compel the court to join with another county in the building of a particular bridge. State v. Thomas, 183 Mo. 220, 82 S. W. 106. Where one of two counties charged jointly with the maintenance of a bridge across the stream dividing such counties notifies the other to join in a contract for repairs, the county so notified may be compelled by mandamus to comply with the notice by joining in the contract or refusing so to do. Iske v. State [Neb.] 100 N. W. 315.

52. Where the right to purchase school lands depends on a question of fact, the supreme court will not, by mandamus, compel the commissioner of the general land office to accept an application for a purchase. Clark v. Terrell [Tex.] 81 S. W. 4. Mandamus will not lie to compel the land office commissioner to issue a certificate showing a homestead entry, since the commissioner is vested with discretionary power to determine whether an application to homestead land is in good faith, and his judgment is not reviewable on mandamus. Beebe v. Commissioner of State Land Office [Mich.] 100 N. W. 128. A petition for mandamus to compel a district attorney to institute quo warranto proceedings for usurpation of a franchise must show an arbitrary refusal to act, and not merely a mistake of judgment. Buggeln v. Doe [Ariz.] 78 P. 367; Id., [Ariz.] 76 P. 458. The attorney general of New York is vested with discretion in approving contracts between receivers and attorneys under Laws 1902, p. 114, c. 60, § 4, and hence cannot be compelled by mandamus to approve a contract wherein compensation is provided for without any amount being fixed. Candee v. Cunneen, 92 App. Div. 71, 86 N. Y. S. 723.

53. Mandamus lies to compel a clerk of the district court to search the records in his custody, upon tender of the fees prescribed by law, at the request of persons engaged in the business of abstracting, and certify and deliver to such persons transcripts of judgments entered upon his docket. The fact that the information so obtained is to be used in private business indiscriminately is immaterial. State v. Scow [Minn.] 100 N. W. 382. Under Laws Fla. 1901, c. 4914, p. 48, an officer who has in his hands an unsatisfied execution, and who refuses to levy it upon property liable thereto, may be compelled by mandamus to do so. But he cannot be compelled to sell the property on which he has levied; for refusal so to do, he is liahle to a party injured, and this being an adequate remedy, mandamus will not lie. The doctrine of State v. Cone, 40 Fla. 409, 25 So. 279, 74 Am. St. Rep. 150, to this extent remains unchanged by the Laws of 1901. Armstrong v. Stansel [Fla.] 36 So. 762. Where an order granting a new trial was made on the condition that defendant pay plaintiff the costs, the fact that defendant refused to make payment, thus making the refusal to grant a new trial absolute and leaving the judgment in force, did not make the duty of the clerk of the court to issue execution on the judgment so plain that mandamus would issue to enforce it. Holtum v. Greif, 144 Cal. 521, 78 P. 11.

54. Where a board of dental examiners has examined an applicant and refused a certificate on account of incompetency, mandamus will not lie to compel issuance of a certificate. Ewbank v. Turner, 134 N. C. 77, 46 S. E. 508. The granting of a liquor license under the liquor laws of North Carolina is a discretionary act not controllable by mandamus. Barnes v. Wilson County Com'rs, 135 N C. 27, 47 S. E. 737. Where the people in a precinct of a city of the fourth class have voted that the local option law should become inoperative in that precinct, mandamus will lie to compel the council to issue a license, if it arbitarily refuses so to do. George & Bro. v. Winchester [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1158. The issuance of a certificate to a graduate of a "regular" veterinary school is not discretionary with the Michigan State Veterinary Board, under Pub. Acts 1899, No. 191, and Comp. Laws 1897, c. 218. Wise v. State Veterinary Board [Mich.] 101 N. W. 562.

enforced, before the validity of the act has been judicially determined, the authorities are apparently in hopeless conflict.[56]

55. Acts held discretionary: Reclassification of a position in a fire department would involve a quasi judicial act by the civil service commission; hence it was not compellable by mandamus. Dill v. Wheeler, 91 N. Y. S. 686. State civil service commission of New York acted in a quasi judicial character in changing the rules so as to make it possible to relieve relator from the office of comparison clerk in county clerk's office, and that act cannot be reviewed on mandamus. People v. Hamilton, 44 Misc. 577, 90 N. Y. S. 97. See, also, Id., 90 N. Y. S. 547. In the absence of charges of bad faith or illegal action, the determination of civil service commissioners in rating candidates in competitive examinations cannot be reviewed either by mandamus or certiorari. People v. McCooey, 91 N. Y. S. 436. Under the civil service provisions of the New York charter, an employe whose position was regularly abolished, his name duly certified to the commission, and who received an appointment to the first vacancy, is not entitled to mandamus to compel reinstatement to his original position by reason of a notice stating he was removed from service, instead of stating merely that he was suspended. People v. Monroe, 90 N. Y. S. 907.

Acts held reviewable by mandamus: Where a board of fire commissioners abolished an office in the department and at the same time created a new office with the same duties for the purpose of removing relator, he was entitled to mandamus to compel reinstatement. People v. Coleman, 99 App. Div. 88, 91 N. Y. S. 432. A disbursing clerk in the finance department was put on the suspended list and an accountant, without examination, was given the duties of disbursing clerk. Held, mandamus would lie to compel reinstatement of the suspended clerk. People v. Grout, 45 Misc. 47, 90 N. Y. S. 861. A public officer in the civil service cannot by mandamus try title to the office from which he has been removed while another occupies it under color of title and is in receipt of the salary. People v. Hamilton, 44 Misc. 577, 90 N. Y. S. 97. But one who merely holds a position and is not a public officer may have his right to reinstatement tested by mandamus. Id., 90 N. Y. S. 547. Complaint clerk in the police department is not a public officer, and when removed without a hearing, mandamus and not an action to try title is his remedy. People v. McAdoo, 90 N. Y. S. 689. The comparison clerk in the county clerk's office is not a public officer. People v. Hamilton, 90 N. Y. S. 547, rvg. 44 Misc. 577, 90 N. Y. S. 97. A demand for recognition as a detective sergeant by a member of a "headquarters squad" is enforceable by mandamus, the right to the office not being in issue, the only question being the salary and the title and grade which it was the police commissioner's duty to accord to him. People v. Greene, 95 App. Div. 397, 88 N. Y. S. 601.

56. Note: "State v. Heard, 47 La. Ann. 1679 [47 L. R. A. 512], and Van Horn v. State, 46 Neb. 62, 64 N. W. 365, fairly represent the opposite views which the courts have taken on this question. In the former case the court holds that laws are presumed to be, and must be, treated and acted upon by subordinate executive functionaries as constitutional and legal until their unconstitutionality or illegality has been judicially established.

"In the latter case it is held that ministerial officers upon whom the legislature has sought to impose a duty by statute may assert the unconstitutionality of the statute as a defense to an application for mandamus to require him to perform the supposed duty," since the constitution is the fundamental law of the land, and a statute repugnant thereto is not law for any purpose.

If a law has been judicially declared unconstitutional, an officer is not, of course, bound to follow it. State v. Comptroller General, 4 S. C. 185; State v. Jumel, 32 La. Ann. 60. So the adoption of a constitution may change the law so that mandamus will not lie to compel its enforcement. People v. Brooks, 57 Ill. 142.

A subordinate officer, whose rights are not affected and who has no interest in defeating the enforcement of a law, cannot raise its unconstitutionality as a defense. Franklin County Com'rs v. State, 24 Fla. 55, 3 So. 471, 12 Am. St. Rep. 183; Commonwealth v. James, 135 Pa. 480, 19 A. 950.

The editor of the note to State v. Heard, 47 La. Ann. 1679, in 47 L. R. A. 512, remarks that while the conflict in the authorities is irreconcilable, there is a thread running through the decisions "which would furnish a logical and satisfactory rule * * * if finally adopted. That is that statutes are generally presumed valid, and ministerial officers must treat them as such until their invalidity is established; but that if the nature of the office is such as to require the officer to raise the question, or if his personal interest is such as to entitle him to do so, he may contest the validity of the statute in a mandamus proceeding brought to enforce it. In other cases he must perform his duty as the statute requires, and leave those whose rights are affected by it to take steps to annul it." See this note for other cases.

An interesting discussion of the question will also be found in Payne v. Staunton [W. Va.] 46 S. E. 927. It is there said that the prevailing rule is that if direct enforcement of a law, claimed to be invalid, is sought, mandamus will not issue. The following cases are there given as recognizing this rule: A mandamus was sought to compel a town clerk to assess a tax; but the court holding that the statute commanding it was unconstitutional, it was refused. State v. Tappan, 29 Wis. 664, 9 Am. Rep. 622. A statute required supervisors to divide counties into districts. Mandamus refused to

Duties relating to allowance and payment of claims against municipalities.[57] —The act of auditing and passing upon claims against a municipality is a quasi judicial proceeding, not reviewable by mandamus.[58] But after a claim has been duly established and allowed,[59] mandamus lies to compel the proper officer or officers to take the necessary steps preliminary to payment,[60] if there is a refusal to do so.[61]

Mandamus lies to compel distribution of a fund for the purpose for which it was created,[62] but not for some other purpose.[63] That no appropriation for the fund has been made, or if made has been lawfully exhausted, is a good defense to compel them. Van Horn v. State, 46 Neb. 62, 64 N. W. 365. Mandamus refused to compel canvassing board to count ballots as directed by the statute. Maynard v. Board, 84 Mich. 228, 47 N. W. 756, 11 L. R. A. 332. Mandamus refused to compel controller to draw warrant to pay a demand allowed by a statute. Patty v. Colgan, 97 Cal. 251, 31 P. 1133, 18 L. R. A. 744. Mandamus refused to pay bond. Brandenstein v. Hoke, 101 Cal. 131, 35 P. 562. Mandamus refused to compel payment of judge's salary. McDermont v. Dinnie, 6 N. D. 278, 69 N. W. 294. So to compel issue of town bonds to build a railroad. People v. Bachellor, 53 N. Y. 128, 13 Am. Rep. 480.

But in State v. Commissioners, 18 Neb. 506, 26 N. W. 315, the court refused to pass on the validity of a statute, and compelled an act going straight to its enforcement.

See, also, 19 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law [2nd Ed.] 764.

57. See 2 Curr. L. 778.

58. Auditing and disallowance of a claim by a town board of auditors is a quasi judicial proceeding; mandamus does not lie to compel a re-examination of a claim rejected as illegal. People v. Matthies [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 103; People v. Matthies, 92 App. Div. 16, 87 N. Y. S. 196.

59. Mandamus will not issue pending an appeal: Mandamus will not lie to compel delivery of a warrant by a city comptroller during the pendency of an appeal by a taxpayer from the order of a city council approving and allowing the claim. Lobeck v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 247. A peremptory writ of mandamus will not issue to compel a city to levy a tax for the payment of a judgment at the first opportunity after the rendition of such judgment, where proceedings in error were brought in good faith, though no stay bond was given. Pherson v. Young [Kan.] 77 P. 693.

60. The duty of a county auditor to issue warrants for claims allowed by county commissioners is purely ministerial and enforceable by mandamus. American Bridge Co. v. Wheeler, 35 Wash. 40, 76 P. 534. Mandamus will lie to compel county commissioners to take the necessary steps to provide for payment of negotiable county orders issued for construction of a public highway. State v. Gunn [Minn.] 100 N. W. 97. After a claim against the state has been litigated and final judgment against the state rendered, and it is admitted that there are available funds, the act of the state auditor in drawing a warrant for the amount of the judgment is a ministerial act, compellable by mandamus. State v. Weston [Neb.] 99 N. W. 520. A contractor who has constructed and delivered to the city of New York certain scows, which the city has accepted without objection, may compel payment of the amount due him by mandamus. The fact that he did not comply with the eight-hour law as applied to public works is immaterial, that law being unconstitutional. People v. Grout [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 464. Mandamus will lie to compel the mayor and city council of a city to set aside a sufficient amount of the surplus revenue to pay a judgment (for personal injuries) recovered against the city. Such writ is in the nature of an execution without which the fund could not be reached, since ordinary execution would not issue. City of Anniston v. Hurt [Ala.] 37 So. 220. In mandamus proceedings against a county treasurer to compel payment of warrants it was held that he was precluded from setting up that mandamus was not the proper remedy, where a previous suit against the county on the warrants had been dismissed on the ground that mandamus against the treasurer was the proper remedy. Neal Loan & Banking Co. v. Chastain [Ga.] 49 S. E. 618.

61. The duty of drawing a warrant for payment of a claim against a city which has been properly established and allowed is one the discharge of which may be compelled by mandamus. But where there is no refusal to draw a warrant, but it appears only that relator's claim has not been reached in due course, and that a warrant will be drawn when the claim is reached, mandamus will not issue. Altgelt v. Campbell [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 967.

62. A ministerial officer who has in his hands a specific fund may be compelled by mandamus to make lawful distribution of the fund. County commissioners may be compelled to bring about payment of the contract price for the construction of a county road. King v. Board of Com'rs [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 616. The fact that interest coupons on municipal bonds are merged in a judgment does not affect the character of the indebtedness, and the holder of such judgment may by mandamus compel application of funds raised by taxation to pay interest on bonds on the judgment. Ward v. Piper [Kan.] 77 P. 699.

63. Mandamus will not lie to compel payment of money raised by township officers for current expenses, upon bonded indebtedness, or judgments based on such indebtedness, where it does not appear that the indebtedness arose out of the ordinary expenses of the township, nor that the fund raised for current expenses is more than sufficient for that purpose. Ward v. Piper [Kan.] 77 P. 699.

such a proceeding.[64] That there are other creditors entitled to share in a fund is no defense.[65]

Duties of election officers and boards.[66]—Since political conventions have exclusive jurisdiction over their own proceedings,[67] the regular nominee for a political office may by mandamus compel the proper officials to place his name on the ballots as such nominee.[68] The relator must in such case show his nomination[69] by a legal convention.[70] In so far as election officers or boards, charged with the duty of canvassing returns, act judicially, their action is not subject to control by mandamus;[71] but they may be compelled to perform duties clearly imposed by law.[72] While there is a conflict on the question,[73] the weight of authority seems to be that an election board which has ceased to exist as such by reason of the expira-

64. Discharged police officer could not collect salary by mandamus when no appropriation for his salary had been made, or when that appropriated had been paid to others who had performed his duties. City of Chicago v. People, 210 Ill. 84, 71 N. E. 816. Mandamus will not issue to compel a comptroller to issue a warrant for, and the treasurer to pay, a salary in an amount not fixed by the constitution or a permanent statute, and for which no appropriation has been made. In such case, the legislature having acted, the action for a sum greater than that appropriated is against the state; and of such action the court has no jurisdiction. State v. Jennings [S. C.] 47 S. E. 683.

65. Ward v. Piper [Kan.] 77 P. 699.

66. See 2 Curr. L. 779. Upon a mandamus from the supreme court of appeals in West Virginia, in election cases, the action of election officers may be reviewed and controlled to the same extent as upon the statutory writ of certiorari in the circuit courts. Goff v. Board of Canvassers [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 588.

67. Jennings v. Board of Election Com'rs [Mich.] 100 N. W. 995.

68. Where the action of a state central committee in deciding which of two county conventions was regular has been affirmed by the state convention, it is the legal duty of the county auditor to certify the names of the nominees so declared to be the regular nominees of the party, and mandamus will lie to compel the performance of such duty. State v. Larson [N. D.] 101 N. W. 315. The supreme court of South Dakota issued a writ of mandamus directing a county auditor which of two sets of nominees to place on the ballots as the regular nominees of a political party, on the ground that the law required him to place thereon such names as have been certified "in the manner provided by law;" and the time being too short for application to the county court to correct errors of the auditor, and a subsequent appeal. State v. Metcalf [S. D.] 100 N. W. 923.

69. Mandamus will not lie to compel an election board to place upon the ballots as a nominee the name of one not declared nominated by the convention. Jennings v. Board of Election Com'rs [Mich.] 100 N. W. 995; Stephenson v. Election Com'rs, 118 Mich. 396, 76 N. W. 914, 74 Am. St. Rep. 402, 42 L. R. A. 214, followed.

70. People v. Rose, 211 Ill. 252, 71 N. E. 1124. A petition for mandamus to compel election commissioners to place relator's name on a ballot as nominee is fatally defective if it does not show proper publication of the notice of the primary election (Acts 1901, p. 153, § 12) and that the delegates in the convention which nominated him were entitled to participate in its acts. State v. McCaffery [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 1104.

71. Election inspectors, in determining what ballots shall be counted for or against any candidate, or any question voted on, or what ballots shall be rejected, act judicially; and common-law mandamus will not lie to compel them to act in a particular manner. People v. Hanes, 44 Misc. 475, 90 N. Y. S. 61. Mandamus will not lie to compel a canvassing board which has performed its duties, to reassemble and restore a certificate which it had changed. People v. Mattinger, 212 Ill. 530, 72 N. E. 906. Under Rhode Island laws governing election and qualification of members of the legislature, mandamus will not lie to compel the moderator, after the ballots have been counted and the result announced, to open the ballots and count as legal one that he has marked "defective." The moderator has exercised his discretion and done what the law requires. There is nothing left to be done on which a writ of mandamus could operate. Corbett v. Naylor [R. I.] 57 A. 303.

72. Under the election law it is the imperative duty of election judges to place on the registration lists the names of persons vouched for by one judge, and the performance of that duty may be compelled by mandamus proceedings in the district court. People v. District Court of Third Judicial Dist. [Colo.] 78 P. 679. A mandamus may issue to compel an election canvassing board to count a plainly marked ballot in a particular way for a particular candidate [Election law (Code 1887, c. 3, § 13) and Code 1899, c. 3, § 89]. Stanton v. O'Kane [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 245. Where a board of election canvassers refused to consolidate the votes cast for a sole candidate for an office the remedy was by mandamus to compel them to consolidate the returns and declare the result, and not a proceeding to contest the election, though the defense was that the office had been abolished by law. Morris v. Glover [Ga.] 49 S. E. 786.

73. For discussion, see Holdermann v. Schane [W. Va.] 48 S. E. 512; State v. Board of State Canvassers [Mont.] 79 P. 402.

tion of the terms of office of its members,[74] or which has acted and dissolved[75] cannot by mandamus be compelled to reassemble and recanvass returns.

Enforcement of rights to public office.[76]—Mandamus lies to compel admission or restoration to office of one having a clear prima facie right thereto, shown by a commission, certificate, or other legal evidence thereof;[77] and in such case the writ may be invoked directly against the person holding the office, requiring him to admit his successor thereto, and to turn over the records, property and insignia of the office.[78] But if relator's title is not clear, his remedy is not mandamus, but quo warranto.[79]

(§ 2) C. Quasi public and private duties.[80]—Corporations may be compelled by mandamus to perform quasi public duties growing out of the acceptance of municipal grants[81] or expressly imposed by law,[82] unless the situation is so complicated as to make relief in a court of law impracticable.[83]

74. Mandamus will not lie to compel a mayor and councilmen of a city who constituted an election canvassing board, to reconvene and recanvass an election for city recorder, after their terms of office have expired. Holdermann v. Schane [W. Va.] 48 S. E. 512. Nor can an alternative writ directed to such former officers, by name, be converted into a suit against their successors, so as to compel them to convene as a canvassing board for the purpose desired. Id. When the terms of office of election inspectors have expired, they cannot, independently of the election law, be compelled by mandamus to reconvene and recanvass the ballots. People v. Hanes, 44 Misc. 475, 90 N. Y. S. 61. Where prior to the hearing in a mandamus proceeding against the state board of canvassers (state treasurer and attorney general) their terms of office expired, the proceeding was dismissed on the ground that they could no longer perform official duties; and a judgment, if rendered, would be void as to their successors in office, who had no notice of any proceeding against them. State v. Board of State Canvassers [Mont.] 79 P. 402.

75. A canvassing board which has acted and dissolved cannot be compelled to reassemble and restore a certificate which it had changed. People v. Mattinger, 212 Ill. 530, 72 N. E. 906. A board of election canvassers which has dissolved before properly performing its functions may be compelled to reconvene and recanvass the vote. (Conflict in authorities noted.) Morris v. Glover [Ga.] 49 S. E. 786.

76. See 2 Curr. L. 777.

77. Kline v. McKelvey [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 896.

78. Writ awarded against one holding over after expiration of term for which he was elected or appointed, until his successor should be elected or appointed (Code 1889, c. 7, § 2), relator being an appointee. Kline v. McKelvey [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 896. A clerk of the circuit court died before the expiration of his term, and the judge appointed a clerk ad interim, and later the governor filled the vacancy by regular appointment. Held, mandamus would lie to compel the judge's appointee to deliver the office, with its records, to the governor's appointee. State v. Givens [Fla.] 37 So. 308.

Note: See, also, Walter v. Belding, 24 Vt. 658; Burr v. Norton, 25 Conn. 103; Warner v. Myers, 4 Or. 72; People v. Head, 25 Ill. 325. And authority is not wanting for the proposition that the writ will go, not only against one holding over, but also against an intruder under color of authority. Banton v. Wilson, 4 Tex. 400; Lindsey v. Luckett, 20 Tex. 516; People v. Kilduff, 15 Ill. 492, 60 Am. Dec. 769; Kimball v. Lamprey, 19 N. H. 215; Schmulbach v. Speidel, 50 W. Va. 553, 40 S. E. 424, 55 L. R. A. 922.

79. Clear legal title to an office is necessary to entitle a person claiming it to mandamus to compel a city clerk to receive and file his official oath. Thus it was held that where the eligibility of a mayor-elect turned on the construction of a statute, his remedy to try title to the office was by quo warranto and not by mandamus. People v. Hinsdale, 43 Misc. 182, 88 N. Y. S. 206. Mandamus will not issue to compel a duly elected city marshal to surrender the property and paraphernalia of his office on a mere showing that the city council had removed him, said council having no power to remove him, of which fact the court would take judicial notice. Christy v. Kingfisher [Okl.] 76 P. 135.

Note: "It has often been judicially declared that mandamus is a proper remedy for the trial of title to office, and will lie where there is another appropriate remedy, because it is a more speedy, and therefore a more adequate remedy. Banton v. Wilson, 4 Tex. 400; Lindsey v. Luckett, 20 Tex. 516; Harwood v. Marshall, 9 Md. 83; Strong's Case, 20 Pick. [Mass.] 484; Conlin v. Aldrich, 98 Mass. 557; Dew v. Judges, 3 Hen. & M. [Va.] 1, 3 Am. Dec. 639. On the contrary, it is more generally declared that mandamus is not the remedy for trial of title to office. People v. Olds, 3 Cal. 167, 58 Am. Dec. 398; Meredith v. Supervisors, 50 Cal. 433; Warner v. Myers, 4 Or. 72; People v. New York, 3 Johns. Cas. [N. Y.] 79; People v. Stevens, 5 Hill [N. Y.] 616; Matter of Gardner, 68 N. Y. 467; Denver v. Hobart, 10 Nev. 28; Brown v. Turner, 70 N. C. 93; Fitch v. McDiarmid, 26 Ark. 482; Underwood v. White, 27 Ark. 382; People v. Treasurer, 36 Mich. 416; State v. Auditor, 34 Mo. 375; People v. Detroit, 18 Mich. 338; People v. Head, 25 Ill. 325; State v. Dunn, 12 Am. Dec. 25."—See Kline v. McKelvey [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 896.

80. See 2 Curr. L. 781.

81. A water company owning a franchise

Mandamus has also been held the proper remedy to enforce the duties which corporations owe to stockholders.[84] Thus the right to inspect the books,[85] by-laws,[86] and membership list[87] of the corporation, has been so enforced. As to the right to compel registration of a transfer of stock, there is a conflict in the authorities.[88] The right to mandamus to compel officers to make calls upon unpaid subscriptions is doubtful.[89] If the right to an office is clear, or has been adjudicated, mandamus will lie to seat the person entitled, but not if there is a question as to the right to the office.[90] Mandamus lies to compel delivery of books and records of the corporation to officers entitled to them.[91] The remedy has been held may be compelled to supply water of such quality and in such quantity as its contract requires. Mandamus, and not an action for rescission of the contract is the proper remedy. Seymour Water Co. v. Seymour [Ind.] 70 N. E. 514. A gas company possessing a franchise and virtual monopoly may be compelled by mandamus to furnish light to a city at a reasonable price. Public Service Corp. v. American Lighting Co. [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 482.

For full treatment of the duties of private corporations enforceable by mandamus, see note to City of Potwin Place v. Topeka R. Co. [51 Kan. 609] in 37 Am. St. Rep. 317.

82. The duty of a railroad company to construct and maintain such farm crossings as the court shall determine to be suitable (under Rev. St. 1898, § 1810) is a clear legal duty enforceable by mandamus. State v. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 16. Mandamus is an appropriate remedy to compel observance of a valid rate regulation of the railroad commissioners imposing specific public duties on railroad companies. State v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [Fla.] 37 So. 652.

83. Where it was sought to compel railroad companies to build viaducts across and along the streets of a city, and it appeared that the location of tracks was such that in some places such viaducts must be built jointly and in others by separate roads, it was held that a court of law could not, by mandamus, give the relief demanded; only a court of equity, with all the parties before it, could properly adjust their rights and duties. Burlington & C. R. Co. v. People [Colo. App.] 77 P. 1026.

84. The fact that officers of a corporation are by law made personally liable for its debts when they fail to file the certificate showing payments on capital stock, does not afford such a remedy as to preclude the right to mandamus to compel filing of the certificate. Bay State Gas Co. v. State [Del.] 56 A. 1120.

Note: As to enforcement of by-laws of corporations by mandamus, see note in 32 L. R. A. 575. The principal case there given, Bassett v. Atwater, 65 Conn. 353, holds that mandamus lies to compel the officers to call a special meeting of stockholders, when requested so to do in accordance with the by-laws, if a statute prescribes the mode of calling such meetings.

85. See 2 Curr. L. 781, n. 8.

Note: And that mandamus is the proper remedy of a stockholder who is denied the right to inspect the books of a corporation is held in State v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 29 Mo. App. 301; Cockburn v. Union Bank, 13 La. Ann. 289; State v. Swift, 7 Houst. [Del.] 137; Stettauer v. New York & S. Const. Co., 42 N. J. Eq. 46; People v. Pac. Mail S. S. Co., 50 Barb. [N. Y.] 280; People v. Throop, 12 Wend. [N. Y.] 183; Weihenmayer v. Bitner [Md.] 45 L. R. A. 446.—See note to case last cited in 45 L. R. A. 457, from which cases here cited are taken.

86. See 2 Curr. L. 782, n. 9.

87. A member of a political club—a private corporation—may maintain mandamus to compel the proper officers to permit him to inspect the list of members, for the purpose of carrying out the objects of the organization, when such inspection is refused him after a proper demand. McClintock v. Young Republicans [Pa.] 59 A. 691.

88. Note: In some jurisdictions, it has been held that mandamus will lie to compel a corporation to register a transfer of stock, and issue a new certificate to the transferee. People v. Crockett, 9 Cal. 112; Green Mount & State Line Turnpike Co. v. Bulla, 45 Ind. 1; State v. McIver, 2 Rich. [S. C.] 25; In re Klaus, 67 Wis. 401. The better opinion and the weight of authority is to the contrary, on the ground that a transferee has an action at law for damages or a suit in equity to enforce his rights. Rex v. Bank of England, 2 Doug. 526; Kimball v. Union Water Co., 44 Cal. 173, 13 Am. Rep. 157; American Asylum v. Phoenix Bank, 4 Conn. 172, 10 Am. Dec. 112; Tobey v. Hokes, 54 Conn. 274; Lamphere v. Grand Lodge, 47 Mich. 429; Baker v. Marshal, 15 Minn. 177; State v. Rombauer, 46 Mo. 155; Shipley v. Mechanics' Bank, 10 Johns. [N. Y.] 484; People v. Miller, 39 Hun [N. Y.] 557; Stackpole v. Seymour, 127 Mass. 104; Durham v. Mon. Silver Min. Co., 9 Or. 41; State v. Guerrero, 12 Nev. 105; Wilkinson v. Providence Bank, 3 R. I. 22.—From Clark & M. Private Corp. § 606.

89. There are dicta in some cases to the effect that the remedy is available. Clark & M. Private Corp. § 798d, citing Patterson v. Lynde, 112 Ill. 196, 206; Hatch v. Dana, 101 U. S. 205, 215, 25 Law. Ed. 885, 2 Keener's Cas. 1880, 1886.

90. Clark & M. Private Corp. § 668b, citing American R. Frog Co. v. Haven, 101 Mass. 398, 3 Am. Rep. 377; Cross v. West Virginia, etc., R. Co., 35 W. Va. 174.

91. Mandamus is the proper remedy to compel delivery of the property and records of an incorporated academy, and surrender of the offices of trustees, to trustees-elect. Ward v. Sasscer, 98 Md. 281, 57 A. 208. See Clark & M. Private Corp. § 668b, and State v. Riedy, 50 La. Ann. 258; In re Journal Pub. Club, 30 Misc. [N. Y.] 326, there cited.

available to compel reinstatement of persons wrongfully expelled,[92] and deprived of rights and privileges.[93]

Mandamus will not issue against individuals as such, but only against a person or persons clothed with authority to do the act sought to be compelled.[94] The writ will not be granted to enforce contract obligations,[95] or to afford relief for fraud or mistake.[96]

§ 3. Jurisdiction.[97]—In some states a mandamus proceeding cannot be heard by a judge in vacation at chambers;[98] in others the contrary rule prevails.[99] Statutory provisions authorizing proceedings by mandamus in election cases do not divest the court of its common-law jurisdiction to issue the writ.[1] Jurisdiction of an appellate court[2] may be determined by the amount in controversy.[3] A peremptory writ of mandamus will not be issued except with the view of the enforcement of its mandates, if necessary, by the court issuing it.[4] Where different courts have concurrent jurisdiction, application should be made to that court which can most conveniently and best enforce the decree rendered.[5]

Federal courts.—In the federal courts mandamus is not allowed as original 92. Nelson v. Board of Trade, 58 Ill. App. 399.

93. A law student, deprived of the rights and privileges of membership of the school without notice and wrongfully, has a right to mandamus to compel restoration to such rights and privileges, whether the school is organized for profit or not. Baltimore University v. Colton, 98 Md. 623, 57 A. 14.

94. A canvassing board which had performed its duties ceased to exist as a board; mandamus would not lie to compel the board to reassemble and restore a certificate it had changed. People v. Mattinger, 212 Ill. 530, 72 N. E. 906. An adjudicatee at a tax sale may be compelled to allow redemption on tender of the amount fixed by law, and mandamus will issue to cause him and the register of conveyances to erase from the records the inscription of the tax deed. State v. Register of Conveyances [La.] 36 So. 900.

95. Thus where judgment did not call for interest, mandamus to perform the judgment cannot compel payment of interest. Howe v. Southrey, 144 Cal. 767, 78 P. 259.

96. As to recover excess paid to redeem land sold for taxes, such payment being under mistake. Perrin v. Honeycutt, 144 Cal. 87, 77 P. 776.

97. See 2 Curr. L. 782, and see generally Jurisdiction, 4 Curr. L. 324.

98. Mandamus can only issue by a court, not by a judge in vacation. Sand. & H. Dig. § 4891. A circuit judge may, during vacation, make temporary orders to prevent damage or injury to a petitioner pending a hearing of mandamus by the court. Reese v. Steele [Ark.] 83 S. W. 335. Under Mills' Ann. Code § 408, a judge in vacation at chambers has no jurisdiction to deny, on the merits, a petition for mandamus. People v. Hebel [Colo. App.] 76 P. 550. The issuance by a judge at chambers of an alternative writ, with an order to respondent to show cause at the next regular term why a peremptory writ should not issue is not prejudicial to respondent. Thus where county treasurer was sought to be compelled to pay a warrant out of a special fund, the issuance of the alternative writ gave him an opportunity to show why a peremptory writ should not issue. Martin v. Clark, 135 N. C. 178, 47 S. E. 397.

99. Summons in mandamus proceedings to compel a county treasurer to pay a warrant out of a special fund may be returnable before the judge at chambers, the action not being one to enforce a money demand. Martin v. Clark, 135 N. C. 178, 47 S. E. 397. Where an action was solely for a writ of mandamus, plaintiff making no claim for damages, the judge's jurisdiction at chambers was not affected by the incidental averment that plaintiff had been damaged in a certain sum. Ewbank v. Turner, 134 N. C. 77, 46 S. E. 508.

1. So mandamus may issue to compel election inspectors to convene and perform duties prescribed by law. People v. Way, 92 App. Div. 82, 86 N. Y. S. 892.

2. For extended treatment of original jurisdiction of courts of last resort in mandamus cases, see note to People v. Chicago [193 Ill. 507] 58 L. R. A. 833.

3. Supreme court of Missouri has no jurisdiction of proceedings to compel appointment of an administrator where the latter's commissions—his only pecuniary interest in the proceeding, though he was also a legatee—amounted to less than $4,500. State v. Guinotte, 180 Mo. 115, 79 S. W. 166.

4. State v. Moores [Neb.] 99 N. W. 842. The courts of one state have no jurisdiction to grant a writ of mandamus on application by a stockholder of a foreign corporation to compel an inspection of the books and records of such corporation, such right being enforceable only by the courts of the state in which the corporation has its legal existence. Mitchell v. Northern Security Oil & Transp. Co., 44 Misc. 514, 90 N. Y. S. 60.

5. Where an original application was made to the supreme court of Nebraska for a writ of mandamus to compel the mayor and other officers of Omaha to prevent violations of the liquor laws, it was held that the district court had concurrent jurisdiction of the matter; that it was not the duty of the supreme court to undertake to compel performance of the acts contemplated; and hence application should have been made to the district court. State v. Moores [Neb.] 99 N. W. 842.

process but is employed only in aid of jurisdiction already acquired, and is a species of execution for enforcing the judgment in the principal case.[6] They cannot take jurisdiction of such suits by removal from the state courts under the removal acts.[7] Each federal court has jurisdiction to issue the writ to a subordinate court or judge in the exercise of and in aid of its appellate jurisdiction, and this power may be exercised though its appellate jurisdiction has not been actually invoked by appeal or writ of error.[8] It is without power to issue it in a case not reviewable in that court by appeal or writ of error,[9] or to issue it to create a case for the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction.[10]

Venue in mandamus cases is determined by the statutes fixing the venue of other civil actions.[11]

§ 4. Parties. A. Parties plaintiff.[12]—The writ of mandamus will issue only at the instance of one "beneficially,"[13] or pecuniarily interested in the action sought to be coerced.[14] Where several persons are interested they may unite in bringing the action.[15] Where their rights are several and relief must be separately granted, one may maintain the action and obtain individual relief without joining the others;[16] but he cannot in such action obtain relief for the others, not joined as relators.[17] A private individual cannot maintain mandamus to compel the performance of a purely public duty,[18] unless he can show some peculiar interest greater than that which he has with the general public.[19] If one relator has a

6. City of Cleveland v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 127 F. 667; In re Coleman, 131 F. 151; Mystic Mill. Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 132 F. 289.

7. An action for mandamus under the Iowa statutes held not removable to the Federal court, though damages may be recovered in the same action. Mystic Mill. Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 132 F. 289.

8, 9, 10. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Morris [C. C. A.] 132 F. 945.

11. An issue in mandamus proceedings cannot be tried in any other county than the one in which the respondent resides [Gen. St. 1882, § 2344]. State v. Scarborough [S. C.] 49 S. E. 860.

12. See 2 Curr. L. 783.

13. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1086, application must be by a party "beneficially interested." Ellis v. Workman, 144 Cal. 113, 77 P. 822. Hence where plaintiff's land was sold for failure to pay instalments of a street improvement bond, the writ would not issue to compel the city treasurer to cancel the bond, since the bond could not affect the right to redeem from the sale, and could not injure the owner prior to redemption. Id.

14. Purchasers of municipal bonds are parties in interest, and, though nonresidents, may maintain mandamus to compel a mayor to sign and seal the bonds. Halsey v. Nowrey [N. J. Law] 59 A. 449. An individual cannot maintain mandamus to compel performance of an act unless he has a pecuniary interest in the act to be compelled. Payne v. Staunton [W. Va.] 46 S. E. 927. Where, pending an appeal from an order denying an application for mandamus by a stockholder to compel the corporation to permit him to inspect its books, relator sold his stock and the corporation dissolved, the case could not be further prosecuted. State v. New Orleans Maritime & Merchants' Exch., 112 La. 868, 36 So. 760.

15. Several persons who make common application to a clerk of a county court for inspection of public records, and are refused it, if entitled to such inspection, may unite in mandamus to compel such inspection. Payne v. Staunton [W. Va.] 46 S. E. 927.

16. It is no defense to an action of mandamus to compel a city to levy a tax to pay bonds that relator owns only a portion of the bonds; since other bondholders may, in a proper proceeding, assert their right to share in the fruits of the mandamus. Territory v. Socorro [N. M.] 76 P. 283.

17. Where awards for damages sustained by the laying out of a road are several, one property owner cannot maintain mandamus to compel the auditing of the claims of all the property owners to whom awards were made. People v. Morgan, 89 N. Y. S. 832.

18. Private citizen could not bring mandamus to compel town wardens to certify to the district court complaints for alleged illegal voting, on the ground that the wardens were disqualified to hear the case, being members of the board of canvassers of elections. Williams v. Champlin [R. I.] 59 A. 75.

19. Unless a private individual has some peculiar interest independent of that which he holds with the public at large, he is not a party beneficially interested within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1086, entitled to maintain mandamus to compel a justice of the peace to issue a warrant for the arrest of one for unlawfully running a slot machine. Fritts v. Charles [Cal.] 78 P. 1057. Mandamus to compel the removal of a dam across a navigable stream will not lie at the instance of individual relators who cannot show any special or peculiar damage not common to the general public. State v. Charleston Light & Water Co. [S. C.] 47 S. E. 979.

Contra: One or more individuals may maintain mandamus to compel the doing of an act in which the public at large, including them, have a common interest. Payne sufficient interest to enable him to maintain the action, the motive of a co-relator will not be cause for dismissal.[20]

(§ 4) B. Parties defendant.[21]—The only necessary parties defendant in a mandamus proceeding are those whose duty it is to perform the act demanded,[22] or without whom the relief demanded cannot be granted.[23] Other interested persons may be properly joined, though not necessary.[24] The state is not a necessary party to a petition for mandamus presented by a citizen to enforce a right in which the state in its sovereign capacity is not concerned.[25]

v. Staunton [W. Va.] 46 S. E. 927. A male inhabitant of the state, over 21 years of age and a qualified voter, may bring mandamus to compel election officers to perform their duties under the law, the purpose being to test the validity of such law [action to test Acts 1897, p. 65, c. 51, fixing the number and apportionment of state senators and representatives]. Brooks v. State, 162 Ind. 568, 70 N. E. 980. A clerk of the circuit court is a proper party, as relator, in a mandamus proceeding to require the comptroller to honor a requisition by the clerk for money to pay jurors and witnesses payable by the state. State v. Croom [Fla.] 37 So. 303.

20. The mere fact that one of two relators in mandamus proceedings, instituted to close a public "poolroom," was actuated by a belief that a certain citizen was interested in its profits, and by the desire to drive him out of business, was held no reason for dismissal of the proceedings. Moores v. State [Neb.] 99 N. W. 249.

21. Sec 2 Curr. L. 784.

22. Since a relator is entitled to an effective writ, it is proper to include in its commands all those whose co-operation is by law required, even though it be by separate and successive steps, in the performance of the official duties which is necessary to secure to him his legal right. State v. Williams [Or.] 77 P. 965. But if the law requires a single officer to perform such duties, there is no necessity for joining other officers. Thus a mayor and executive board ought not to be joined in mandamus to compel arrest and prosecution of gamblers, where, under the law, the chief of police is a prosecuting officer. Id. The only necessary defendants in a mandamus proceeding to test the constitutionality of a law fixing the number and apportionment of state senators and representatives are the clerk, sheriff and auditor of the county where the proceeding is brought. Brooks v. State, 162 Ind. 568, 70 N. E. 980. The officers of a corporation are not necessary parties to mandamus proceedings to compel the corporation to file a certificate showing payments on capital stock as required by Gen. Corp. Law 1901, § 23, even though § 24 makes them personally liable for debts if they fail to file such certificate. Bay State Gas Co. v. State [Del.] 56 A. 1120. Where there were two vacancies, either of which a suspended civil service clerk was entitled to occupy, and one vacancy was by death of the occupant, it was not necessary to make the clerk illegally holding the other position a party to mandamus proceedings by the suspended clerk to compel reinstatement. People v. Grout, 45 Misc. 47, 90 N. Y. S. 861. The mayor of Buffalo and the state civil service commission were necessary parties to a mandamus proceeding to compel a reclassification of the position of battalion chief in the fire department. Dill v. Wheeler, 91 N. Y. S. 686. A proceeding in mandamus against an official body like a commissioners' court is not defeated by resignation of any or all the members. The authorities are not agreed as to the necessity to cite the succeeding members and make them formal parties, but in Texas this is necessary. But the resigning members are not thereby relieved from liability, but must remain before the court to abide judgment for costs. Gauhenour v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 104.

23. Where a judge directed the clerk of the court to deliver a venire for the summoning of jurors to the city superintendent of police, the law requiring the sheriff to summon jurors for that court, the clerk is a proper party in mandamus proceedings by the sheriff to compel delivery of the venire to him, since relator could obtain relief only if both the judge and clerk were respondents. Dickson v. Phelan [Mich.] 99 N. W. 405. Under Kentucky law (Laws 1868, p. 622, c. 548), authorizing counties to issue bonds in aid of railroads, and requiring the county judge to levy, and the sheriff to collect (having given bond) taxes to meet the principal and interest of such bonds, the sheriff is a proper party to mandamus proceedings to compel levy of a tax, though no duty devolved on him until the levy had been made; it being alleged that he had pledged himself not to give bond or collect the taxes. Guthrie v. Sparks [C. C. A.] 131 F. 443. Where a commissioner's court refused to approve the official bond of a county judge, declared a vacancy and appointed another judge, and resigned, the new judge appointing their successors, the new judge and commissioners were necessary parties to an action of mandamus by the former judge to compel the former commissioners to approve his bond. Gouhenour v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 104.

24. The president of a corporation is properly joined as defendant in mandamus proceedings to compel the corporation to open its books for the inspection of stockholders. State v. Bay State Gas Co. [Del. Super.] 57 A. 291. Though not a necessary party, joining him does not vitiate the proceedings. Bay State Gas Co. v. State [Del.] 56 A. 1114. In mandamus proceedings to compel county auditor to issue a warrant for a claim allowed by the county commissioners, it is not improper to join the commissioners as parties, on the ground that the county would be ultimately affected by the result. American Bridge Co. v. Wheeler, 35 Wash. 40, 76 P. 534.

§ 5. Pleading and procedure in general.[26]—The proceeding for mandamus being an action at law, the rules of pleading are the same as in other actions at law.[27] The rule that a demurrer reaches back to the first fault committed by either party applies with special force to cases of mandamus.[28]

The procedure varies. The action is sometimes instituted by petition, sometimes by motion, supported by affidavit, while in some states the alternative writ is regarded as the first pleading.[29] The various steps in the proceeding are treated in chronological order in the succeeding sections.

§ 6. Petition or affidavit.[30]—The petition must be verified.[31] All the facts properly set forth in the petition[32] or affidavit[33] and not expressly denied are taken as true. The petition or affidavit must show that the act sought to be compelled is the duty and within the power of the person sought to be commanded.[34] A petition to compel reinstatement to a public office must show the creation or existence of the office, and relator's legal right to hold it.[35] The action required must be definitely stated.[36] The performance of conditions precedent to the right demanded need not be alleged if the law presumes their performance.[37] Objections to a petition reachable by demurrer are waived by answering after the demurrer has been overruled.[38]

§ 7. Alternative writ. Issuance in first instance.[39]—Where a peremptory writ is asked in the first instance, notice of application therefor must be given.[40]

25. As to enforce collection of illegally omitted taxes. Milster v. Spartanburg [S. C.] 46 S. E. 539.

26. See 2 Curr. L. 782, § 4, Procedure in general; contents of alternative writ.

27. Cleary v. Hoobler, 207 Ill. 97, 69 N. E. 967.

28. State v. Sams [Neb.] 99 N. W. 544.

29. See 2 Curr. L. 782; Enc. Pl. & Pr. 13, pp. 671-673. Under the Illinois statute it is held that the petition performs the office of the alternative writ, the answer that of the return; and the succeeding pleading should be a common-law replication and designated as a replication. City of Chicago v. People, 210 Ill. 84, 71 N. E. 816; McNeill v. Chicago, 212 Ill. 481, 72 N. E. 450.

Indiana: If no alternative writ has been issued, the verified petition or affidavit and motion for the writ is treated as the complaint; but when an alternative writ is issued, it is treated as in the nature of a complaint. Welch v. State [Ind.] 72 N. E. 1043.

Missouri: The alternative writ is regarded as the first pleading and must set forth by recital the allegations of the petition. State v. Board of Police Com'rs [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 960.

30. See 2 Curr. L. 784.

31. Shirley v. Conner [Tex.] 81 S. W. 284.

32. Averments in the answer that defendants have no knowledge of, and neither admit nor deny allegations of the petition are unavailing. Cleary v. Hoobler, 207 Ill. 97, 69 N. E. 967.

33. Statements in an affidavit for mandamus will be taken as true if no issue is joined thereon. Barlow v. Riker [Mich.] 101 N. W. 820.

34. Town of Cicero v. People, 105 Ill. App. 406. A petition for mandamus to compel payment of a discharged policeman's salary merely states conclusions in averring that the action of the city officials was unauthorized, etc., and in disregard of his legal rights; facts should have been alleged from which his legal rights could be determined. City of Chicago v. People, 210 Ill. 84, 71 N. E. 816. An affidavit for mandamus to the governor to issue a certificate of election to relator as district judge alleged that the law provided for three judges in the district, that there were six candidates, and that relator received the third largest number of votes. Held insufficient to show ground for relief asked, since the governor's proclamation called for the election of only two judges, and there was nothing to show that the voters intended to fill more than two judgeships. State v. Toole [Mont.] 79 P. 403.

35. Petition for mandamus to compel reinstatement of police sergeant in Chicago held demurrable in these respects. People v. Chicago, 210 Ill. 479, 71 N. E. 400.

36. A petition for mandamus to compel reduction of railroad crossings to the street level, which states the height of the embankment at each crossing, and demands that the crossing be made level, is a sufficiently definite statement of the action required. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Dallas [Tex.] 84 S. W. 648.

37. A petition for mandamus to compel a county treasurer to pay warrants need not allege the performance by officers concerned in the drawing of the warrants of duties imposed on them by law. Such duties are presumed to have been performed, and the defense that they have not been performed must be raised by answer, and cannot be taken advantage of by a demurrer. Neal Loan & Banking Co. v. Chastain [Ga.] 49 S. E. 618.

38. As an objection that a petition showed the right barred by laches. City of Chicago v. People, 210 Ill. 84, 71 N. E. 816.

39. See 2 Curr. L. 786.

40. Where petition was for peremptory writ under Code 1899, c. 3, § 89, and no previous notice given, an "answer and return"

Where issues of fact are raised by denials of allegations of the petition, an alternative, not a peremptory writ, should issue.[41] But if the return is not in such form that it can be considered, the peremptory writ may issue.[42]

Contents; manner of pleading.[43]—An alternative writ should purport on its face to have been issued on order of the court.[44] But an objection that a writ is defective in this respect is waived by an appearance to the proceedings and a demurrer to the writ on the ground that the facts stated do not constitute a cause of action.[45] It must show a clear right to the relief demanded, by alleging distinctly the material facts on which the relator relies.[46] The including in the mandatory clause of an alternative writ of a command for greater relief than relator is entitled to under the allegations of his petition and writ renders it insufficient as against a demurrer for want of facts or a motion to quash.[47] Allegations of the alternative writ which are well pleaded and not denied by the answer are to be taken as true.[48]

Service[49] of the writ must be in accordance with the statutes governing service of process.[50]

§ 8. Demurrer to petition or writ; answer or return; subsequent pleadings.[51] —A demurrer to an alternative writ of mandamus is treated as a demurrer in other actions at law.[52] A demurrer to a petition, though it admits facts alleged, does not necessarily grant relator's right to maintain mandamus proceedings:[53]

filed was treated as an answer to the petition, and defendant given a right to defend. Stanton v. O'Kane [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 245.

41. People v. Cullinan, 95 App. Div. 598, 88 N. Y. S. 1022; People v. Hamilton, 90 N. Y. S. 547; People v. Coleman, 99 App. Div. 88, 91 N. Y. S. 432; People v. McAdoo, 91 N. Y. S. 553. A petition for a peremptory writ of mandamus will be denied where the return to the petition raises an issue of fact, entitling respondent to a jury trial. Territory v. Brown [Okl.] 78 P. 319.

42. Where the return of a circuit court to a rule nisi commanding him to hear and determine a motion for a new trial was on ordinary legal cap instead of the transcript paper required by the rules, the return was not considered, and the petition making a prima facie case, a peremptory writ was issued. Ex parte Geter [Ala.] 37 So. 341.

43. See 2 Curr. L. 782.

44, 45. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. State, 162 Ind. 690, 71 N. E. 133.

46. An alternative writ to a judge commanding him to issue bench warrants, which alleges that he neglects to issue warrants "as required by law" states a mere legal conclusion; no duty to issue warrants is shown. State v. Williams [Or.] 77 P. 965. A mere allegation "on information and belief" that a payment of an instalment or call of capital stock has been made, is not sufficiently certain to warrant a writ of mandamus to compel the corporation to file the certificate regarding such payments required by law. Bay State Gas Co. v. State [Del.] 56 A. 1120. The alternative writ is regarded as the first pleading in a mandamus proceeding and must set forth by way of recital the allegations of the petition. State v. Board of Police Com'rs [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 960. Alternative writ of mandamus to compel corporation to permit inspection of books by stockholders held to contain all essential allegations of fact, including proper demand and refusal. Bay State Gas Co. v. State [Del.] 56 A. 1114. In mandamus certainty of allegation is required, but if the alternative writ states the facts on which the demand is based with sufficient precision to express the right of the relator and the duties of the respondent in such manner that the ordinary mind may easily apprehend them, this is all the certainty required to defeat a demurrer. State v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [Fla.] 37 So. 652. When recitals and allegations of an alternative writ of mandamus construed together charge a general violation of the duty of respondent railroad company to put into operation a rate regulation of the railroad commissioners, the writ is not demurrable because it does not allege a specific instance of the violation of the regulation. Specific instances are matter of evidence rather than pleading. Id. Where the demand and refusal pleaded in a writ was for one-half a certain sum, the fact that the answer admitted that respondent had such sum and was willing to pay it was no reason for awarding a mandamus for a different sum as to which no demand and refusal was alleged. State v. Sams [Neb.] 99 N. W. 544.

47. State v. Connersville Natural Gas Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 483.

48. State v. Jennings [Fla.] 35 So. 986.

49. See 2 Curr. L. 786.

50. Service of an alternative writ of mandamus on a corporation by leaving a copy at the president's dwelling, in the presence of a white adult person, and also by making service on the president in the same manner, six days before the return, was sufficient, under Corporation Act 1901, § 48. State v. Bay State Gas Co. [Del. Super.] 57 A. 291. Such service held sufficient as to the corporation, though the president was not in fact in the state. Bay State Gas Co. v. State [Del.] 56 A. 1114.

51. See 2 Curr. L. 786, § 8.

The answer or return must tender well defined issues.[54] If the return be regarded as insufficient in law, the proper practice is to demur;[55] or if regarded as untrue in respect of its allegations of fact, to join issue upon it.[56] Allegations of the answer or return which are not put in issue by a reply are deemed admitted,[57] unless the statute provides to the contrary.[58] On demurrer to the answer, the facts alleged are to be taken as true.[59] Such demurrer reaches back to faults in the writ or petition.[60]

There must be no departure from the petition in relator's subsequent pleadings.[61] Where after a demurrer to a petition has been overruled, respondents an-

52. State v. Jennings [Fla.] 35 So. 986. A demurrer to an alternative writ, stating that "the matter of law intended to be argued is that the facts stated in such writ do not show the relator is entitled to relief by mandamus" is so general that the court need only determine whether there are such essential and vital defects in the writ that no cause of action is stated, and that it cannot be cured by amendment. Id. When a demurrer to an alternative writ of mandamus is sustained on the ground that the acts sought to be enforced are improperly joined, relator can proceed only by an amended writ showing the particular cause of action which relator elects to pursue. State v. Williams [Or.] 77 P. 965. It is proper to enter judgment of dismissal where, after a motion to quash the alternative writ has been sustained, plaintiff elects to stand on his amended petition and refuses to plead further. Hester v. Thomson, 35 Wash. 119, 76 P. 734.

53. Thus where a demurrer admitted facts which showed an erroneous judgment by a board of education on the question of a pupil's residence, it did not admit the right to maintain the action, since that judgment was within the power of the board and was not reviewable by mandamus, though erroneous. Preston v. Board of Education [Iowa] 100 N. W. 54.

54. Where in mandamus to compel a corporation to clear out ditches, the answer and counter answer presented several points of controversy, but the issues were not well defined, an alternative writ was allowed. Lock v. Repaupo Meadow Co. [N. J. Law] 57 A. 423. The return to an alternative writ of mandamus, seeking to compel a railroad company to put into operation a schedule of tariffs prescribed by the railroad commissioners, which alleges positively that the prescribed rates are unreasonable and do not afford fair compensation, is sufficient to tender the issue of the reasonableness of the rates without supporting such allegation by the averment of particular facts. State v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [Fla.] 37 So. 314. A return to an alternative writ should, for the purpose of making an issue, set up a positive denial of the facts stated, or should state facts in confession and avoidance with such precision and certainty that the court may be fully advised of all the particulars necessary to enable it to pass judgment upon the sufficiency of the return, and the return should not be evasive. State v. Jennings [Fla.] 35 So. 986. A return to an alternative writ of mandamus to compel a corporation and its president to permit stockholders to inspect its books, which denies that the specified books were at any time in the possession of the president, is insufficient. State v. Bay State Gas Co. [Del. Super.] 57 A. 291.

55. City of Cleveland v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 127 F. 667. A motion to strike from the answer all matter not shown to be within the personal knowledge of respondent, or based on the records and files in the case will be denied. The better practice is to call the attention of the court, on the hearing, to such parts of the answer as are not entitled to consideration. Erickson v. Alpena Circuit Judge [Mich.] 101 N. W. 63.

56. City of Cleveland v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 127 F. 667.

57. Material parts of a petition for mandamus which were the basis of the prayer for relief, being denied by the answer and no replication being filed to that part of the answer, the relief sought could not be granted. City of Chicago v. People, 210 Ill. 84, 71 N. E. 816. No issue being joined in mandamus to a circuit judge, his answer is taken as conclusive on the facts. Fletcher & Sons v. Alpena Circuit Judge [Mich.] 99 N. W. 748.

58. Under the Washington code provision that an applicant is not precluded by the answer from any valid objection to its sufficiency, nor from countervailing it by proofs on the trial, either by direct denial or by way of avoidance, it is held that the return is deemed denied without a reply. State v. McQuade [Wash.] 79 P. 207.

59. An answer should not be stricken out on demurrer if its allegations, taken as true, state a good defense and entitle defendant to a hearing on the evidence. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Dallas [Tex.] 84 S. W. 648. A motion for mandamus on the pleadings and admissions of defendant is in the nature of a demurrer ore tenus to the answer and involves the admission of facts set out in the answer. Barnes v. Wilson County Com'rs, 135 N. C. 27, 47 S. E. 737.

60. Thus a demurrer to the answer to a writ will be overruled if the writ fails to show refusal or neglect to perform an official duty, the act demanded not appearing, either by the writ or answer, to be a duty of respondent. State v. Sams [Neb.] 99 N. W. 544. In such case the trial court may dismiss the action and render judgment against relator for costs upon overruling such demurrer, no offer or request for leave to amend the writ being made. Id.

61. Where a petition for mandamus to compel payment of salary alleged that relator was a police officer after a certain date, and the answer sets up his discharge swer, relator replies, and respondents demur to the replication, the last demurrer cannot be carried back beyond the answer.[62]

§ 9. Trial, hearing and judgment. A. Trial and hearing.[63]—Issues of fact, to be tried at the hearing,[64] must be tried by jury, unless a jury is waived.[65] The proceeding being at law, a reference to a master to report on the facts and law involved is improper.[66] If the respondent on trial fails to meet the burden of proof on the issues raised by the pleadings, a peremptory writ will issue.[67]

Where mandamus was brought to enforce the mandate of the circuit court of appeals, the entire record being before the court, the circuit court having entered no order from which a writ of error would lie, it was held proper to deal with the case as though properly before it on writ of error, in order to expedite justice.[68]

On original application for mandamus in the supreme court of Washington, if the sufficiency of the petition is challenged by demurrer, and respondents also desire to raise issues of fact, both demurrer and answer are filed at the same time, and final disposition of the case made at one hearing.[69]

Abatement and dismissal.[70]—Mandamus proceedings against continuing boards are not abated by the expiration of the term of office of one member, and the appointment of his successor.[71] Relator may dismiss without prejudice before trial, if respondent makes no counterclaim.[72] Dismissal is proper if the controversy has ceased to exist.[73] on that date, and the reply admits his discharge but alleges that the discharge was wrongful, the reply is not a departure from the petition. City of Chicago v. People, 210 Ill. 84, 71 N. E. 816.

62. City of Chicago v. People, 210 Ill. 84, 71 N. E. 816.

63. See 2 Curr. L. 788.

64. Where on mandamus to compel a county superintendent to record a description of boundaries of a school district, and make a map of the same, a decision by the state board of education is pleaded as a defense, and the jurisdiction of that body, and the correctness of its decision are questioned by the reply, the issues so raised are to be determined on the hearing for mandamus. People v. Vanhorn [Colo. App.] 77 P. 978.

65. Since under Code Civ. Proc. § 2082, proceedings are the same as in an action. Hence where the trial was by the court, and it was impossible to tell whether a reversal of judgment was for an error of law or because the facts found were not supported by evidence, owing to the confused state of the record, a new trial was granted. People v. Wells, 178 N. Y. 411, 70 N. E. 926. Jury trial being waived, the court should determine the facts only, and at special term the parties should move for such final order as the law applied to the facts found will warrant [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2082-2084]. People v. Grout, 45 Misc. 181, 91 N. Y. S. 900. Where in mandamus proceedings commenced in the supreme court and referred to a circuit court for trial of issues of fact, no motion was there made to set aside the verdict rendered, the relator is not entitled to a peremptory writ, though the averments of the petition were clearly proven and the verdict contrary to the evidence, requiring the supreme court to set it aside. The issues must be submitted to another jury. People v. Alton, 209 Ill. 461, 70 N. E. 640.

66. City of Cleveland v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 127 F. 667.

67. Railroad did not show rate fixed by commissioners unreasonable; mandamus issued to enforce observance of the rate. State v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [Fla.] 37 So. 658. Where on trial of an issue of the reasonableness of a rate fixed by the railroad commissioners, in mandamus proceedings, the respondent fails to show such rate materially less than the one voluntarily charged, or any fact from which it can be said that the rate fixed is unreasonable, mandamus will issue to enforce it. State v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [Fla.] 37 So. 657. Peremptory writ issued also against the Jacksonville & S. W. R. Co., its line having been acquired by the Atlantic Coast Line Co., and no evidence especially applicable to it having been introduced, and counsel having agreed to same action regarding both lines. State v. Jacksonville & S. W. R. Co. [Fla.] 37 So. 658.

68. The circuit court of appeals had jurisdiction, since, under the circumstances, mandamus to enforce its order for execution would have been proper. Bucki & Son Lumber Co v. Atlantic Co. [C. C. A.] 128 F. 332.

69. State v. Hatch [Wash.] 78 P. 796.

70. See 2 Curr. L. 788.

71. Mandamus against board of fire commissioners of Elmira to compel reinstatement of a member of the fire department. People v. Coleman, 99 App. Div. 88, 91 N. Y. S. 432.

72. Comp. Laws 1900, § 3246. The case is the same, though a counterclaim is filed which counsel admitted could not be set up in such proceeding. State v. Wedge [Nev.] 78 P. 760.

73. Mandamus proceeding to compel a

(§ 9) B. Judgment. Scope of relief.[74]—The petitioner is entitled to all that he seeks, or nothing.[75] Being concluded by the terms of the alternative writ, where such writ is awarded for a purpose partly proper and partly improper, the court will not enforce it by peremptory mandamus as to that which is proper, but will give judgment for the respondent.[76] That alternative relief is asked is not fatal to a petitioner's right to the writ.[77]

Costs.[78]—The prevailing party is entitled to costs.[79] Costs cannot be awarded against one not a party.[80]

§ 10. Peremptory writ.[81]—The writ should be directed to the officers who have the power and whose duty it is to do the act required.[82] A writ which peremptorily requires the execution of an enterprise involving a complication and variety of detail, without any plan upon which to work, will not be sustained.[83]

§ 11. Performance.[84]—A writ commanding a chief of police to arrest and prosecute gamblers will not be construed as a command to make such formal charges against such persons as will make their arrest for misdemeanor lawful.[85] After service of an alternative writ of mandamus ordering a city council to levy a tax for a certain purpose, the mandamus proceeding cannot be defeated by making the annual tax levy and omitting the levy ordered by the writ.[86] In such case it is competent for the court to compel the council to reconvene and correct the levy.[87]

§ 12. Review.[88]—Appeals and writs of error are taken in mandamus proceedings in the same manner and to the same court as in other civil actions at law.[89] judge to proceed with a case, he having refused to do so pending an appeal from an order granting a temporary injunction, dismissed, where such appeal was determined before the hearing on the application for mandamus. State v. Superior Court of Spokane County [Wash.] 79 P. 483.

74. See 2 Curr. L. 789.

75. Where the relief demanded was broader than the duty fixed by statute the writ will not issue. Bay State Gas Co. v. State [Del.] 56 A. 1120.

76. Gay v. Torrance [Cal.] 78 P. 540.

77. Where no alternative writ was issued, but a peremptory writ issued grants improper relief, if petitioner or relator is entitled to some kind of relief which was included in his prayer, he should receive it, and the necessary amendments in pleadings and processes may be made to conform thereto. School Dist. No. 1 in Denver v. School Dist. No. 7 in Arapahoe County [Colo.] 78 P. 690.

78. See 2 Curr. L. 789.

79. A mandamus proceeding is an action within the Wisconsin Code definition (§ 2595), and the prevailing party is entitled to costs. State v. Board of Trustees of Policemen's Pension Fund [Wis.] 98 N. W. 954. Code Civ. Proc. § 2086, providing that where application for mandamus is granted or denied without a previous alternative writ, costs may be allowed either party as upon motion, does not contemplate awarding costs to an unsuccessful party. People v. Common Council, 95 App. Div. 75, 88 N. Y. S. 493. Relator himself being without fault, the costs of mandamus proceedings must be adjudged against public officers compelled by the writ to perform statutory duties, although such officers were acting in obedience to an injunction believed by them to be valid, but which was in fact void. State v. Carlson [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1004.

80. Where judgment against a city was vacated pending mandamus proceedings to compel city officers to issue a warrant for payment of the judgment, whereupon the mandamus proceedings were dismissed, it was error to award costs against the city, which was not a party. People v. Common Council, 95 App. Div. 75, 88 N. Y. S. 493.

81. See 2 Curr. L. 790.

82. Peremptory writ to compel permission to inspect list of members of a political club held properly directed to the corporation and corresponding secretary [P. L. 347, 349]. McClintock v. Young Republicans [Pa.] 59 A. 691. A writ of mandamus to compel a tax levy to pay city bonds is properly directed to the mayor and city council. Territory v. Socorro [N. M.] 76 P. 283.

83. A writ commanding railroad companies to construct viaducts over tracks across and along city streets, specifying only the width and height above the tracks of such viaducts is not sufficiently definite. Burlington & C. R. Co. v. People [Colo. App.] 77 P. 1026.

84. See 2 Curr. L. 790.

85. State v. Williams [Or.] 77 P. 965.

86, 87. City Council of Denver v. Board of Com'rs [Colo.] 77 P. 858.

88. See 2 Curr. L. 790.

89. Jurisdiction of appellate court: No constitutional question being involved, and the validity of no statute being questioned, the appeal is to the appellate, not the supreme court, in Illinois. Watts v. Sangamon County, 212 Ill. 86, 72 N. E. 11. Supreme court of Louisiana has no jurisdiction of an appeal in mandamus unless the amount in controversy exceeds $2,000. State

Mandamus proceedings in the Federal courts being strictly legal in nature, final orders made thereon are reviewable only by writ of error.[90] None lies until a final order has been made.[91] An appeal will not lie from an order granting an alternative writ,[92] or from an order denying a motion for a peremptory writ.[93] The approved and correct procedure in Minnesota to obtain a review of a decision in mandamus cases is to appeal from the judgment or an order denying a motion for a new trial.[94] In Wisconsin an order is not appealable unless it affects a substantial right.[95] Questions must be properly saved for review.[96]

MANDATE; MARINE INSURANCE; MARITIME LIENS; MARKETS; MARKS, see latest topical index.

MARRIAGE.[97]

§ 1. Nature of Marriage; Capacity of Parties, Fraud, and Duress (528).
§ 2. Licenses and Ceremonial or Formal Essentials of a Valid Contract of Marriage (529). Burden of Proof (529).
§ 3. Validity and Effect (530).
§ 4. Proceedings for Annulment (531).
§ 5. Criminal Offenses (531).

§ 1. Nature of marriage; capacity of parties, fraud, and duress.[98]—Marriage is a civil status resulting from contract whereby the parties sustain to each other and to society the relation of husband and wife.[99] There is no duress avoiding it where a man marries to escape prosecution for seduction,[1] or to avoid bastardy proceedings,[2] and no presumption of fraud is indulged thereupon.[3] It is fraudulent to fail to disclose a fact that there is a duty to disclose.[4] The fact that the

v. Board of Assessors [La.] 37 So. 878. An alleged claim against the German government for $500,000 for false imprisonment is not an actionable claim of any ascertainable value, so as to give the supreme court of the United States jurisdiction of an appeal from a judgment of the court of appeals of the District of Columbia, denying a writ of mandamus to compel the secretary of state to press the claim against the German Empire. The matter in dispute must have a money value exceeding $5,000. United States v. Hay, 194 U. S. 373, 48 Law. Ed. 1025.

90. City of Cleveland v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 127 F. 667.

91. In a hearing on plaintiff's demurrer to defendant's return in mandamus proceedings, the court made an order to which plaintiffs excepted in part. Thereafter plaintiffs put in a reply to the return, and the court required defendant to file a rejoinder within a certain time. Held, since plaintiffs had elected to stand by their demurrer, and the court had allowed further pleading, there had been no final order from which a writ of error would lie. Writ dismissed as premature. Jabine v. Sparks [C. C. A.] 131 F. 440.

92. The granting of such writ is a matter of discretion and the remedy of a person aggrieved thereby is by appeal from the final order in the proceeding. People v. O'Donnell, 90 N. Y. S. 961.

93. State v. McKellar [Minn.] 99 N. W. 807.

94. An appeal from an order directing the peremptory writ to issue is irregular practice and should not be encouraged. State v. McKellar [Minn.] 99 N. W. 807. (The opinion collects all the Minnesota mandamus cases since State v. Copeland, 74 Minn. 371, 77 N. W. 221, and classifies them according to the manner in which the appeal was taken. The correct rule is then laid down as above.)

95. An order denying relator's application for an order "prescribing what particular questions arising in said action shall be tried by a jury" was not an order "affecting a substantial right" within Rev. St. 1898, § 3069, and not appealable. Flannigan v. Lindgren [Wis.] 100 N. W. 818.

96. An objection that a finding in mandamus proceedings was erroneous because contrary to an averment in respondent's answer on which no issue was taken was held not reviewable on certiorari, when the point was not raised by an assignment of error in the affidavit for the writ. City of Monroe v. Board of Sup'rs [Mich.] 100 N. W. 896. Where one of several landowners awarded damages for laying out of a road brought mandamus proceedings to compel the auditing of all of such claims on the ground that it was a public duty, and, on appeal, did not offer to amend so as to require the auditing of his claim alone, his right to such individual relief was not considered on appeal. People v. Morgan, 89 N. Y. S. 832.

97. This topic relates strictly to the law of marriage, the law of Alimony (3 Curr. L. 146); Divorce (3 Curr. L. 1127); Husband and Wife (3 Curr. L. 1669), which includes coverture being the subject of specific topics.

98. See 2 Curr. L. 794.

99. Cyc. Law Dict. "Marriage."

1. Blankenmiester v. Blankenmiester [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 706.

2, 3. Hall v. Gabbert, 213 Ill. 208, 72 N. E. 806.

4. Chronic venereal disease. Svenson v. Svenson, 178 N. Y. 54, 70 N. E. 120.

parties were of different color raises the presumption that the relation between them was not marriage,[5] and in some states prevents the existence of that relation at all,[6] for in many states a marriage between a white person and a negro is void.[7]

§ 2. Licenses and ceremonial or formal essentials of a valid contract of marriage.[8]—A marriage may be valid though the consent of a guardian of one of the parties is not obtained as required by statute.[9]

A common-law marriage[10] is formed by cohabitation with intention to assume the relation of marriage,[11] as no particular form is necessary, but it is enough if what was said and done shows that a contract was made.[12] Marriage per verba de futuro cum copula is not consummated, unless the copula is had in fulfillment of the future agreement.[13] The question of the existence of the marriage is for the jury.[14] A ceremonial marriage which is invalid because of the disability of one of the parties may be validated by the continued cohabitation of the parties after the removal of the disability,[15] unless neither of the parties contracted the marriage in good faith.[16] But where there was a meretricious commencement of the cohabitation, there will be no presumption of marriage from its mere continuance.[17] In Kentucky there is no common law marriage.[18]

Burden of proof.[19]—Marriage is presumed from cohabitation in the apparent

5. Rutledge v. Tunno [S. C.] 48 S. E. 297.

6. Not valid between a white person and a negress though they continued to live together after her emancipation in 1865. Keen v. Keen [Mo.] 83 S. W. 526.

7. Evidence that the reputed husband of a white woman was a negro, and that she married him believing him to be a white man. Locklayer v. Locklayer, 139 Ala. 354, 35 So. 1008. Common-law marriage not valid between a white person and a negro, though they continued to live together after her emancipation in 1865. Keen v. Keen [Mo.] 83 S. W. 526.

8. See 2 Curr. L. 795.

9. Pub. Laws 1898-99, p. 49, c. 549, § 11, merely provides certain formalities, but nowhere declares that the marriage will be void if they are not observed; and Gen. Laws 1896, c. 196, § 16, providing that all contracts made by a ward shall be void, does not refer to a contract of marriage. Ex parte Chace [R. I.] 58 A. 978.

10. See 2 Curr. L. 795.

11. Where parties merely agreed to "go to housekeeping," though the woman went by his name, lived with him, and he supported her, there was no marriage. Makel v. Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co., 95 App. Div. 241, 88 N. Y. S. 757.

12. Cohabitation, recognition of the parties and their friends as husband and wife and holding themselves out as such for 20 years was not sufficient to show marriage and overcome the presumption of innocence in a prosecution for bigamy. State v. Hansbrough, 181 Mo. 348, 80 S. W. 900. Evidence of cohabitation, declarations, and reputation among friends sufficient to show marriage. Klenke v. Noonan [Ky.] 81 S. W. 241. Evidence held insufficient to overcome the presumption of marriage. Tracy v. Frey, 95 App. Div. 579, 88 N. Y. S. 874.

13. The parties had sexual intercourse, but did not live together, and still expected to be married at some future date. Sorensen v. Sorensen [Neb.] 100 N. W. 930.

14. Evidence that parties had sexual intercourse after they were engaged, and that after the woman was with child they registered as man and wife under an assumed name, was sufficient to take the case to the jury. Burnett v. Burnett [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 238.

15. The parties were married in the belief that the wife's husband was dead, and before a suit for her divorce, which she had instructed counsel to bring, had been started, a decree was obtained a year later, and the parties lived together for over twenty years, the first husband all the while being alive. Chamberlain v. Chamberlain [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 813. The woman married a man in good faith, not knowing that he had a wife living in a foreign country, and they lived together as husband and wife for thirteen years after the death of the first wife, and their child could inherit. In re Schmidt, 42 Misc. 463, 87 N. Y. S. 423.

16. But where a woman was divorced from her husband and within two years in defiance of the statute married again, the marriage was not validated though the parties continued to live together after the two years expired [Rev. Laws, c. 151, § 6]. Tozier v. Haverhill & A. St. R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 953.

17. Evidence insufficient to show that the cohabitation between a white and a negress was marital, so that their child could inherit property. Rutledge v. Tunno [S. C.] 48 S. E. 297. After the parties had cohabited together, the wife secured a divorce from her husband, and the subsequent continued holding of themselves as husband and wife was held not to establish a marriage. Edelstein v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1027.

18. All marriages must be contracted in the presence of authorized persons. Klenke v. Noonan [Ky.] 81 S. W. 241.

19. See 2 Curr. L. 795.

relation of husband and wife,[20] and once shown to exist it is presumed to continue.[21] Marriage may be shown by the certificate of marriage,[22] the testimony of an eyewitness of the ceremony,[23] entries in a parish register,[24] evidence of general repute, or the declarations of the parties,[25] and may be inferred,[26] but not conclusively, from the grant of letters of administration.[27] In a suit for divorce, defendant may show in defense to an application for temporary alimony, that there was no marriage.[28]

§ 3. Validity and effect.[29]—The validity of a marriage is determined by the law of the state where the ceremony was performed,[30] and the contract made,[31] at least in the absence of affirmative proof of fraudulent evasion of the laws of the domicile.[32] A foreign marriage though invalid while a decree divorcing one of the parties from a former marriage remains interlocutory[33] is thereafter valid despite a prohibition in the decree to remarry.[34] The presumption in favor of innocence raises a presumption against a former marriage,[35] but a marriage will not be presumed to have been dissolved merely because the parties are living apart.[36]

20. The common law presumes marriage as it presumes every man innocent; it is one of the strongest presumptions known to the law. Tracy v. Frey, 95 App. Div. 579, 88 N. Y. S. 874.

21. State v. Eggleston [Or.] 77 P. 738.

22. The certificate of the marriage of Shaw might in connection with other evidence be admissible to identify the parties, though plaintiff's father's name was Sharpe. Dailey v. Frey, 206 Pa. 227, 55 A. 962.

23. Prosecution for adultery. State v. Eggleston [Or.] 77 P. 738.

24. The laws of the state where kept did not authorize their admission; they were not admissible without proof of the clergyman's handwriting. Murphy v. People, 213 Ill. 154, 72 N. E. 779.

25. Prosecution for adultery. State v. Still [S. C.] 46 S. E. 524. In a prosecution for bigamy, evidence that 3 weeks before his second marriage defendant had declared that he wished he could hear that his first wife was dead and that he was a free man, was admissible. State v. Goulden, 134 N. C. 743, 47 S. E. 450.

26, 27. Phillips v. Heraty [Mich.] 100 N. W. 186.

28. Evidence that at time of alleged marriage plaintiff was the undivorced wife of another. Reed v. Reed [Miss.] 37 So. 642.

29. See 2 Curr. L. 796.

30. Divorce from previous husband valid. McHenry v. Brackin [Minn.] 101 N. W. 960. Incestuous marriage of uncle and niece. Stapleberg v. Stapleberg [Conn.] 58 A. 233.

Capacity of parties decided by law of place of celebration: The statutes of Rhode Island made a guardian's written consent requisite for obtaining a marriage license and also provided that all contracts made by a ward should be void. A Rhode Island man, under guardianship, married a Rhode Island woman in Massachusetts, without the consent of his guardian. Held, that whether a marriage so celebrated in the state would be valid or not, this one as it was lawfully celebrated in Massachusetts, must be regarded as valid. Ex parte Chace [R. I.] 58 A. 978.

Note. This is a decision of a new jurisdiction on a question on which there is a square conflict of authority. The general rule in this country is that a marriage, valid where celebrated, is valid everywhere even if it would have been invalid if performed in the domicile of the parties. Commonwealth v. Lane, 113 Mass. 458. In England the law formerly was the same. Dalrymple v. Dalrymple, 2 Hag. Con. 54. But it is now settled in England that the law of the domicile of the parties determines the capacity to marry. Sottomayor v. De Barros, 3 P. D. 1. The English view has some support here, but most of the cases can be brought within the admitted exception that such foreign marriages will not be recognized if against the policy of the law or contrary to good morals. See Commonwealth v. Lane, 113 Mass. 458. The doctrine of the principal case seems preferable to the English view, which is apt frequently to result in marriages being held good in some countries and void in others. Brook v. Brook, 9 H. L. Cas. 193. The American view accords with the earlier cases, and greatly lessens the probability of such disastrous conflicts.—18 Harvard L. R. 226.

See note on the validity of foreign marriages, 2 Curr. L. 796.

31. Klenke v. Noonan [Ky.] 81 S. W. 241.

32. The adult man, who had been placed under guardianship in R. I. as likely to bring himself to want, and woman, both residents of R. I., went to Mass. and were married without the consent of the guardian which the laws of R. I. required, and then returned and lived in R. I. The woman was allowed a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of her husband, against his guardian. Ex parte Chace [R. I.] 58 A. 978.

33, 34. Petit v. Petit, 45 Misc. 155, 91 N. Y. S. 979.

35. Opposed to the evidence of a marriage certificate was the fact that the husband of the alleged latter marriage treated his child as legitimate, that the husband of the alleged previous marriage never made any objection, and that there was a possible confusion of names in the first marriage certificate. Dailey v. Frey, 206 Pa. 227, 55 A. 962. The will referred to the child of the first union as illegitimate and the mother never made any claim, while the second union was celebrated with the lawful forms. Murphy v. People, 213 Ill. 154, 72 N. E. 779.

36. Evidence sufficient to show petitioner

The marriage contract of an infant is voidable only at his election.[37] Evidence of mental weakness alone is not enough to show that a marriage was void.[38] The marriage of the parents renders the offspring legitimate.[39]

§ 4. Proceedings for annulment.[40]—Marriage may be annulled, where entered into through duress[41] or fraud, and the action will not be dismissed for collusion where no such issue was determined by the trial court.[42] Though invalid because formed while a divorce decree against a party was not yet final it will not be annulled if the parties have for a long time recognized it.[43] In an action for divorce or separation, defendant cannot, by way of counterclaim, demand the annulment of the marriage.[44] A suit may be brought in behalf of a lunatic to annul the marriage,[45] but a father cannot bring suit for the annulment of the marriage of his infant daughter without making her a party to the action.[46] In a suit to annul the marriage, the court will allow the woman counsel fees, expenses,[47] or alimony.[48] But a judgment in favor of the wife for separation is a bar to any action to annul the marriage.[49]

§ 5. Criminal offenses.[50]—An indictment for falsely swearing to a marriage license affidavit made before a deputy clerk is sustainable.[51]

MARRIAGE SETTLEMENTS, see latest topical index.

MARSHALING ASSETS AND SECURITIES.[52]

The doctrine of marshaling assets and securities is that, where there are two funds, one creditor having security in both and another in one of them, equity will compel the former to first exhaust the security in which his interest is exclusive.[53] It is the duty of the junior incumbrancer to demand that resort be was the husband of deceased, though they had lived apart for many years. In re Cote's Estate, 98 Me. 415, 57 A. 584.

37. Not voidable because of nonconsent of parent. Wood v. Baker, 43 Misc. 310, 88 N. Y. S. 854.

38. Aldrich v. Steen [Neb.] 98 N. W. 445.

39. The right of the bastard to inherit depends on the law of the place where the property is. Hall v. Gabbert, 213 Ill. 208, 72 N. E. 806.

40. See 2 Curr. L. 798.

41. No duress where married to escape prosecution for seduction. Blankenmiester v. Blankenmiester [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 706.

42. Chronic venereal disease from which the party had practically recovered, but there had been no cohabitation. Svenson v. Svenson, 178 N. Y. 54, 70 N. E. 120.

43. Petit v. Petit, 45 Misc. 155, 91 N. Y. S. 979.

44. Code Civ. Proc. § 1770, provides that a cause of action against the plaintiff for divorce or separation may be interposed. Durham v. Durham, 99 App. Div. 450, 91 N. Y. S. 295.

45. It is properly instituted by a "next friend," but the committee or guardian should be made a party defendant and it is not necessary that the party should have been declared insane at the time of the marriage. Mackey v. Peters, 22 App. D. C. 341. Evidence insufficient to show defendant insane at the time of the marriage. Smith v. Smith [Ala.] 37 So. 638.

46. The right to maintain the action is in behalf of the infant, the marriage contract being only voidable at her election, and cannot be annulled merely for the nonconsent of the parent. Wood v. Baker, 43 Misc. 310, 88 N. Y. S. 854.

47. Suit to annul for defendant's physical incapacity. Gore v. Gore, 44 Misc. 323, 89 N. Y. S. 902. Must be allowed by the trial court. Blankenmiester v. Blankenmiester [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 706.

48. Incestuous marriage of uncle and niece, and the latter though not without fault was allowed $1,100, the defendant being worth $10,000. Stapleberg v. Stapleberg [Conn.] 58 A. 233.

49. The validity of the marriage is res judicata. Durham v. Durham, 99 App. Div. 450, 91 N. Y. S. 295.

50. See 2 Curr. L. 798.

51. Charge that it was made before A. L. K. deputy clerk, while it was sworn to before A. K. clerk by A. L. K. deputy; but conviction reversed because erroneous evidence admitted as to identity of defendant. Mahon v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 79 S. W. 28.

52. See 2 Curr. L. 798. As to marshaling liens, see topic Liens, 4 Curr. L. 433.

53. See Griffin v. Gingell, 25 Ky. L. R. 2031, 79 S. W. 284; Harrigan v. Gilchrist [Wis.] 99 N. W. 909. Vendor reserving lien on land sold and taking mortgage on other property of the vendee as security for purchase price will be compelled, as against junior lienor on mortgaged premises, to first resort to the land sold. Id. An agent drawing a check on a trust fund to pay charter hire on a vessel, and, before the check was paid, depositing in the same account money received as freight from such vessel, held such deposit should be first applied to the irst had to property upon which the paramount lien is exclusive,[54] and the burlen is upon him to show that he will receive a benefit from the proceeding, and hat the senior lienors will not be materially prejudiced thereby.[55] The doctrine ias been invoked in bankruptcy cases,[56] and in proceedings to wind up insolvent :orporations.[57]

Limitations of doctrine.[58]—The rule cannot be applied to the prejudice of the :enior lienor[59] or third parties,[60] nor can it be enforced against others than the :ommon debtor.[61] A suit to marshal assets will not lie where there is a pending :quity suit in which the right to relief must be necessarily determined.[62]

Liability of paramount creditor.[63]—Unless the remaining security is sufficient :o satisfy all claims,[64] a senior lienor by releasing his right to the singly charged)roperty with notice of a junior lienor's right will be deemed to have waived his 'ight to the doubly charged property to the extent of the amount so released.[65] )ayment of the check as far as it would go. Bank of British North America v. Freights, etc., of The Ansgar, 127 F. 859. See 2 Curr. L. 798, n. 13.

54. In absence of such a demand junior nortgagee cannot object to first mortgagee)roceeding against property covered by both. Rev. Civ. Code, § 2033 [which is merely declaratory of the equity rule] considered. Blanchette v. Farsch [S. D.] 99 N. W. 79.

55. Gibson v. Honnett [Ark.] 82 S. W. 38. Bill by purchaser showing mortgages amounting to $8,000, and that the value of he property was only $7,700, and failing o show that plaintiff could attack any of the nortgages for fraud held demurrable. Id.

56. Secured creditors will be required to exhaust collateral before receiving dividends, ind are entitled to dividends only on the)alance due after they have credited the proceeds of the collateral on their claim. In re Matthews, 132 F. 274. See 2 Curr. L. 799, n. 15.

57. In equity a creditor of an insolvent whose estate is in process of administration under judicial supervision, having a secured claim against such insolvent, may)rove it to the full amount, and in such case he is entitled to share with general creditors upon that basis in every general distribution of trust funds till the dividends, ogether with the receipts, if any, from the ecurity, are sufficient to fully pay such laim, the residue of the security remaining to belong to the trust fund or to the)wner of the equity. Harrigan v. Gilchrist Wis.] 99 N. W. 909. The plaintiff having lent to the defendant's assignor ten housand dollars, and received as collateral security notes held by the debtor, petitioned for its share of the dividends declared after the general assignment. Held, hat the plaintiff may surrender the collatrals and share in the distribution upon its ntire claim or deduct the face value of the ecurity from the debt and receive dividends pon the balance. Union & Planters' Bank v. Duncan [Miss.] 36 So. 690.

Note: The decision is opposed to the esult in a majority of jurisdictions, though he cases are in conflict. See Merrill v. National Bank of Jacksonville, 173 U. S. 131; Wurtz v. Hart, 13 Iowa, 515. The holder of collateral security does not by accepting it surrender his primary right against the debtor personally. When the debtor makes a general assignment, the personal right is converted into an equitable claim against the assets in the hands of the assignee, which remains equally distinct from the right against the security. Paddock v. Bates, 19 Ill. App. 470. Hence the creditor should be permitted to collect dividends upon his entire claim and to supply any deficiency out of the proceeds of the collaterals. Should the dividends plus the proceeds exceed the amount of the debt, the creditor will hold the balance in trust for the assignee. See Graeff's Appeal, 79 Pa. 146. If in consequence the secured creditor recovers his entire claim while other creditors do not, this is but the natural result of foresight in obtaining security. Statutes, however, in some jurisdictions require the surrender of collaterals as a condition to receiving dividends upon the whole claim. See Swedish-American Nat. Bank v. Davis, 64 Minn. 250.—18 Harvard L. R. 144.

58. See 2 Curr. L. 799.

59. Harrigan v. Gilchrist [Wis.] 99 N. W. 909.

60. Where a mortgage covers three tracts of land, the holder of purchase-money notes for one of the tracts cannot compel the mortgagee to first resort to the other two tracts, the latter having both been sold to third parties. Griffin v. Gingell, 25 Ky. L. R. 2031, 79 S. W. 284.

61. A senior lienor cannot be required to look first to indorsers, guarantors or sureties before resorting to the property on which he is secured in common with junior lienors. Bennett v. First Nat. Bank [Iowa] 102 N. W. 129. That bonds are indorsed does not make the rule applicable. Weed v. Gainesville, etc., R. Co., 119 Ga. 576, 46 S. E. 885. See 2 Curr. L. 799, n. 19. Wife's property being mortgaged to secure debt of husband, the latter's curtesy, after death of wife, should be applied to the payment of the debt to the exoneration of the wife's interest. Harrington v. Rawls, 136 N. C. 65, 48 S. E. 571.

62. Suit to make prior mortgagee look to land for compensation before resorting to condemnation award. Bates v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 1017.

63. See 2 Curr. L. 800.

64. Where first mortgagee released premises exclusively covered by his mortgage. Blanchette v. Farsch [S. D.] 99 N. W. 79.

65. Where senior chattel mortgagee with knowledge of junior mortgagee's rights sur-

MARSHALING ESTATE; MARTIAL LAW, see latest topical index.

MASTER AND SERVANT.

§ 1. The Relation of Statutory Regulations (533). Termination of the Relation (534). Notice of Termination (534). Actions for Wrongful Discharge (534). Actions for Breach by Employer (536). Labor Laws (536).

§ 2. The Right of Master in Services of Employe and Compensation Therefor; Assignments of Wages; Trade Secrets; Statutory Provisions (537).

§ 3. Master's Liability for Injuries to Servants (540).

A. Nature and Extent in General (540). Statutes (541). The Relation of Master and Servant Must Exist (542). The Master's Negligence Must Have Been the Proximate Cause of the Servant's Injuries (544). Contractual Exemption from Liability (545).

B. Tools, Machinery, Appliances, and Places for Work (546). Temporary Appliances; Scaffolds (548). Statutes (549). Places for Work (551).

C. Methods of Work, Rules and Regulations (553). Operation of Trains (554).

D. Warning and Instructing Servant (555).

E. Fellow-Servants (557). Determination of Relation (559). Employers' Liability Acts (566).

F. Risks Assumed by Servant (568). Dangers Incidental to Business (570). Known or Obvious Dangers (571). Reliance on Care of Master (574). Reliance on Orders or Assurances of Safety (576). Reliance on Promise to Repair, After Complaint (577). Risks Created by Servant (578).

G. Contributory Negligence (578). Degree of Care Required of Servant (579). Choice of Methods (581). Reliance on Master's Care (582). Emergencies (583). Discovery of Servant's Peril; Intervening Negligence (584).

H. Actions (584).

1. In General (584).
2. Parties (585).
3. Pleading and Issues (585). The Answer (588). Proof, and Variance (588). Pleading Statutory Causes of Action (589).
4. Evidence (590). Admissibility in General (592). Expert and Opinion Evidence (597). Sufficiency of Evidence; Question for Jury (598).
5. Instructions (606).
6. Verdicts and Findings (608).

§ 4. Liability for Injuries to Third Persons (608).

A. In General (608).

B. Actions; Pleading (611).

§ 5. Interference with Relation by Third Person (612).

§ 6. Crimes and Penalties (612).

§ 1. The relation and statutory regulations.[1]—The relation of master and servant rests upon contract, express or implied, and the existence of the relation is to be determined by reference to the principles applicable to other contracts.[2] Whether the relation established is that of master and servant, or employer and independent contractor, depends upon the terms of the contract, the test being, in general, the degree of control exercised by the one over the other, in the performance of the particular service or work contracted for.[3] Where services originally rendered under an express contract are continued after expiration of the term, without objection by the employer, an implied contract of service is created;[4] the law presuming a renewal of the original agreement.[5] But this presumption does not apply unless it appears that there was, in fact, a prior contract and that the servant rendered services thereunder for a full term;[6] nor does the presumption arise from the fact that a servant's immediate predecessor had a definite contract.[7] The parties are bound by the construction which they have themselves placed rendered proceeds of singly charged property, held to have waived his right to a paramount lien. First Nat. Bank v. Taylor [Kan.] 76 P. 425. See 2 Curr. L. 800, n. 34.

1. See 2 Curr. L. 801.

2. See Contracts, 3 Curr. L. 805; Implied Contracts, 3 Curr. L. 1690. To create the relation of master and servant there must be some contract or some act by one person recognizing the other as a servant. Atlanta & W. P. R. Co. v. West [Ga.] 49 S. E. 711.

3. The relation of employer and independent contractor is separately treated. See Independent Contractors, 3 Curr. L. 1702.

4. Professor in agricultural college. State Board of Agriculture v. Meyers [Colo. App.] 77 P. 372. That an employe had a contract with a corporation the previous year, and had continued to work and receive the same wages until discharged, was evidence of a contract express or implied, sufficient to go to the jury on that issue. Dunton v. Derby Desk Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 91.

5. Civ. Code Cal. § 2012. Gabriel v. Bank of Suisun [Cal.] 78 P. 736.

6. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 88 N. Y. S. 970.

7. Higgins v. Shepard [Mass.] 70 N. E. 1014.

upon their contract.[8] A labor organization cannot, as an organization, make contracts of employment for its members;[9] and an agreement to work under the rules of an organization as to compensation and time of payment cannot be inferred from the mere fact of membership and knowledge of the rules.[10]

Termination of the relation.[11]—If the contract of employment is for an indefinite time, the employer may discharge the employe at any time;[12] but if the contract is for a definite term, the employe has a right of action for his discharge before the end of such term,[13] unless the right of discharge is reserved by the employer by the terms of the contract,[14] or the discharge is for sufficient cause, such as disobedience of lawful and reasonable orders connected with his employment.[15] The right to discharge does not include the right to destroy the employe's property, if not promptly removed.[16] Any form of words which conveys to the servant the idea that his services are no longer required is sufficient to constitute a discharge.[17] An employe who has been discharged either in accord with or in violation of the terms of the contract of service, and has accepted or acquiesced in such discharge, is not required to return to the service at the request or importunity of the master.[18]

Notice of termination.[19]—A rule of a company requiring employes to work a six days' notice before leaving the service is reasonable.[20] Where a contract for a term provided for a continuance of the relation, if services proved satisfactory, the employer was held not bound to give the employe notice of his dissatisfaction with the services rendered, when such dissatisfaction ought reasonably to have been inferred from the employer's conduct.[21]

Actions for wrongful discharge.[22]—A servant wrongfully discharged may treat the contract as terminated and sue as upon a quantum meruit,[23] or may stand upon his contract, and recover under its terms, and for damages for its breach.[24]

8. Where parties had agreed upon higher wages for services as engineer, the agreement was a construction of the original contract as not including services as engineer, but only general services around sawmill. Wilson v. Godkin [Mich.] 98 N. W. 985.

9. Burnetta v. Marceline Coal Co., 180 Mo. 241, 79 S. W. 136.

10. Rules of Miners' Union held not binding on a miner. Burnetta v. Marceline Coal Co., 180 Mo. 241, 79 S. W. 136.

11. See 2 Curr. L. 803.

12. Contract with local agent of commission company held to be for an indefinite time. Harrington v. Brockman Commission Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 629. A contract of employment is not enforceable unless the term is definitely fixed at the time the contract is made. Held, contract not for a definite term. Hickey v. Kiam [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 716. Evidence held not to show hiring for any definite term. Lertora v. Central Fruit Co., 87 N. Y. S. 425. Evidence in action for breach of contract of employment held insufficient to prove that plaintiff was employed as a milliner for a season. Walker v. McCormick, 88 N. Y. S. 106. An agreement to pay for future services at a certain rate per month is not as a matter of law a hiring for a month. Kososki v. Kelly [Wis.] 100 N. W. 1037.

13. Evidence sufficient to show a contract of employment for a definite term. Johnson v. Crookston Lumber Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 225.

14. Evidence held to show contract subject to right of master to discharge for incompetency. McKeithan v. American Tel. & T. Co., 136 N. C. 213, 48 S. E. 646.

15. Kenner v. Southwestern Oil Co. [La.] 36 So. 895.

16. Landlord had right at any time to dismiss janitress or servant, but had no right to destroy her belongings though she did not remove them; he had the right only to put them out. Behm v. Damm, 91 N. Y. S. 735.

17. Johnson v. Crookston Lumber Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 225.

18. Youngberg v. Lamberton, 91 Minn. 100, 97 N. W. 571.

19. See 2 Curr. L. 803, n. 58.

20. Willis v. Muscogee Mfg. Co., 120 Ga. 597, 48 S. E. 177.

21. As where employer neither obtained nor sought any benefit from the contract. Carter & Co. v. Weber [Mich.] 101 N. W. 818. Nor was defendant estopped, by silence and failure to answer letters, to set up such dissatisfaction. Id.

22. See 2 Curr. L. 804.

23. James v. Parsons, Rich & Co. [Kan.] 78 P. 438. An action for damages for breach of contract because of wrongful discharge is entirely distinct from an action for wages. Allen v. Glen Creamery Co., 91 N. Y. S. 935.

24. James v. Parsons, Rich & Co. [Kan.] 78 P. 438. A professor in a college is an employe entitled to damages for breach of his contract of service if wrongfully dis-

But he cannot pursue both remedies; an election of one bars the other.[25] Whether a discharge was wrongful, in a given instance, is usually a question of fact,[26] and the burden is upon the master to prove a justification.[27] The motive, or the reason assigned, for a discharge, is wholly immaterial if at the time there existed a sufficient ground for the discharge.[28] An employe wrongfully discharged before the expiration of his term may recover the contract price for the remainder of the term, less what he has earned or might earn by reasonable diligence.[29] It is the duty of a wrongfully discharged employe to endeavor in good faith to find other work of a like kind to that he agreed to perform,[30] and if he fails to procure it, having made reasonable efforts to do so, he may recover the contract price of his services for the period of his employment, or up to the time of trial.[31] But if he fails to use such reasonable diligence to procure other employment, his damages should be mitigated to the extent of compensation which he might have received by proper effort.[32] An employer, in order to show himself entitled to a reduction of the agreed compensation, must allege and prove that the employe could have earned wages at similar work;[33] he need not show that the employe actually charged. State Board of Agriculture v. Meyers [Colo. App.] 77 P. 372.

25. Discharged salesman recovered, immediately after his discharge, the amount due him, and for three days' work for which his compensation was not due. Held, this recovery barred subsequent action on the contract, and for damages for breach. James v. Parsons, Rich & Co. [Kan.] 78 P. 438. Plaintiff, by suing for damages for breach of contract to employ him as manager of an opera house, leased by defendant for five years, plaintiff to receive half the profits, elected to accept the repudiation of the contract; hence the measure of his damages was half the prospective profits, and not half the value of the lease. Greenwall Theatrical Circuit Co. v. Markowitz [Tex.] 79 S. W. 1069.

26. Whether contract was terminated by mutual consent, or whether discharge was wrongful, held for jury. Webb v. Whitesell, 87 N. Y. S. 454. Where an employe was injured and incapacitated, and procured a substitute who remained until the regular employe returned, the mere fact that the latter did not return as soon as he promised, would not absolutely justify his discharge. Johnson v. Crookston Lumber Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 225. Discharge of creamery employe justified where he allowed cream to sour in cans, his duty being to separate it from the milk and deliver it sweet. Allen v. Glen Creamery Co., 91 N. Y. S. 935.

Evidence: Held sufficient to support verdict that employe was wrongfully discharged, under terms of contract. Turnbull v. Frey [Neb.] 99 N. W. 648. Evidence of a loss in defendant's business generally is irrelevant on the issue of a superintendent's misconduct, and to show he was rightfully discharged. Dunton v. Derby Desk Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 91.

27. As to prove incompetency when that is relied on as a defense. McKeithan v. American Tel. & T. Co., 136 N. C. 213, 48 S. E. 646.

28. So where servant was incompetent, master was not obliged to show that this was the cause or reason for the servant's discharge. McKeithan v. American Tel. & T. Co., 136 N. C. 213, 48 S. E. 646.

29. Forked Deer Pants Co. v. Shipley, 25 Ky. L. R. 2299, 80 S. W. 476; Jones v. Oppenheim, 91 N. Y. S. 343. The measure of damages for breach of a contract of service is what the plaintiff would actually have earned under the contract; and to ascertain the amount the acts of both parties before and after the breach may be considered. Dunham v. Hastings Pavement Co., 95 App. Div. 360, 88 N. Y. S. 835. Evidence insufficient to prove right to commissions on profits in action to recover damages for wrongful discharge. Brightson v. Claflin Co. [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 920.

30. Weber Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Bradford [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 46. Must use reasonable diligence to find other employment of a similar nature. Alaska Fish & Lumber Co. v. Chase [C. C. A.] 128 F. 886; Forked Deer Pants Co. v. Shipley, 25 Ky. L. R. 2299, 80 S. W. 476. Evidence that a director of defendant company was also connected with other salt plants was admissible on issue whether discharged employe was able to secure other employment as superintendent of such plants Lone Star Salt Co. v. Wilderspin [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 327.

31. Weber Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Bradford [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 46. One employed for a term to perform such services, in regard to mining claims in Alaska, as his employer should require, was not obliged to remain in Alaska, after his discharge, after having used reasonable diligence in procuring other employment, in order to recover damages; especially since his employer consented to his leaving and paid his expenses home. Gillespie v. Ashford [Iowa] 101 N. W. 649.

32. Since the measure of his damages is the actual damage suffered—not the amount contracted to be paid, the action being solely for breach of the contract. Alaska Fish & Lumber Co. v. Chase [C. C. A.] 128 F. 886. The deduction must not exceed the amount the employe could and should have earned. Weber Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Bradford [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 46.

33, 34, 35. Weber Gas & Gasoline Engine worked at other employment.[34] A claim for damages up to the time of trial is a relinquishment of any claim for the remainder of the term.[35] The value of plaintiff's services is immaterial on the question of damages for breach of the contract, if no cause for the discharge is alleged or proven.[36] To recover for breach of the contract, the employe must prove performance by himself.[37] In an action for damages for wrongful discharge, plaintiff need not allege and show affirmatively that he sought and could not obtain other employment, or that he stood in readiness to perform after the contract had been terminated.[38] The burden rests upon defendant to show that other employment might have been found, or that it had been offered and declined.[39] That a complaint in an action for wrongful discharge demands money as due rather than as damages does not render it defective.[40]

Actions for breach by employer.—An employer cannot recover damages from an employe for failure to perform, if he himself has not fully performed,[41] or if the contract was broken by fault of both parties.[42] Contract provisions for liquidated damages for breach by the servant are enforceable.[43]

Labor laws.[44]—The New York eight-hour law;[45] the Kansas act providing for the recovery of damages by a servant discharged because he belongs to a labor

Co. v. Bradford [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 46.

36. Gillespie v. Ashford [Iowa] 101 N. W. 649. Where there is no evidence tending to show the servant's incompetency or unfaithfulness, the fact that his services may not have been profitable is immaterial on the question of damages. Weber Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Bradford [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 46.

37. Jones v. Oppenheim, 91 N. Y. S. 343.

38, 39, 40. Allen v. Glen Creamery Co., 91 N. Y. S. 935.

41. Plaintiff employed defendant as insurance solicitor, agreeing, as a part of the contract between them to make certain advancements to defendant. Held, plaintiff's failure to make the promised advancements was a breach of the contract, so that plaintiff could not recover from defendant thereafter, for failure to perform. Arbaugh v. Shockney [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 232.

42. Where employer sought damages for breach of contract, and it appeared the employment ceased through fault of both parties, the employe was allowed what he had actually earned, and neither party was allowed damages. Braun v. Weill [La.] 36 So. 87.

43. A provision in a contract for a definite term that the employer is to retain six days' pay until the contract is fully performed is a valid provision for liquidated damages for a breach, and not a penalty. Wilson v. Godkin [Mich.] 98 N. W. 985. An agreement that a fixed sum is to be deducted from wages each week as a guaranty for the observance of an agreement by the servant not to strike or leave the employment without the master's consent, is not invalid for want of mutuality or consideration. Silberman v. Schwarcz, 90 N. Y. S. 382.

44. See 2 Curr L. 802.

NOTE. Validity of statutes limiting hours of labor: The Federal supreme court has held that state laws are not invalid as in violation of the 14th amendment, since that amendment was not designed to interfere with the police power of the states. Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 28 Law. Ed. 923. But the decision of the supreme court of the United States that a statute does not conflict with the 14th amendment is not binding on the courts of other states in favor of the constitutionality of the statute under the state constitutions. In re Morgan, 26 Colo. 415, 58 P. 1071, 77 Am. St. Rep. 269, 47 L. R. A. 52. Eight-hour laws were held invalid because infringing freedom of contract in Seattle v. Smyth, 22 Wash. 327, 60 P. 1120, 79 Am. St. Rep. 939; Fiske v. People, 188 Ill. 206, 58 N. E. 985, 52 L. R. A. 291. Elsewhere such laws are held not to infringe freedom of contract. Atkin v. Kansas, 191 U. S. 207, 48 Law. Ed. 148. Statutes limiting the hours of labor of females are held not an unlawful interference with life, liberty, or property in State v. Buchanan, 29 Wash. 602, 70 P. 52, 92 Am. St. Rep. 930, 59 L. R. A. 342; and Wenham v. State, 65 Neb. 394, 91 N. W. 421, 58 L. R. A. 825.

The Kansas statute limiting hours of labor on public works is constitutional, being a direction of the state to its agents. In re Dalton, 61 Kan. 257, 59 P. 336, 47 L. R. A. 380. Eight-hour laws were held unconstitutional in Law v. Rees Printing Co., 41 Neb. 127, 59 N. W. 362, 43 Am. St. Rep. 670, 24 L. R. A. 702; In re Eight Hour Law, 21 Colo. 29, 39 P. 328; Ritchie v. People, 155 Ill. 98, 40 N. E. 457, 46 Am. St. Rep. 315, 29 L. R. A. 79. Such statutes were held valid as an exercise of the police power of the state in Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 42 Law. Ed. 780 (affirming Utah decisions); Short v. Bullion-Beck & C. Min. Co., 20 Utah, 20, 57 P. 720, 45 L. R. A. 603; Commonwealth v. Beatty, 15 Pa. Super. Ct. 5; In re Ten-Hour Law, 24 R. I. 603, 54 A. 602, 61 L. R. A. 612; State v. Cantwell [Mo.] 78 S. W. 569.—See note to People v. Orange County Road Const. Co., 175 N. Y. 84, 67 N. E. 129, 65 L. R. A. 33. And see decision of Federal supreme court on New York statute limiting hours of labor of bakers. People v. Lochner, (not yet reported). See, also, 2 Curr. L. 802.

45. Laws 1897, p. 462, c. 415, § 3, as amended by Laws 1899, p. 1172, c. 567, which limits hours of work of employes of indeorganization;[46] part of the Indiana act directed against blacklisting;[47] the Alabama act relative to the abandonment of contracts by employes and renters of lands;[48] and the California act limiting the compensation to be received by employment agents,[49]—have been held unconstitutional. Decisions construing the California and New York eight-hour laws are treated in the note.[50]

§ 2. The right of master in services of employe and compensation therefor; assignments of wages; trade secrets; statutory provisions.[51]—Where there is a contract,[52] the amount of the servant's compensation[53] and the time of payment[54] dependent contractors for public works to eight hours per day, except in emergencies, is unconstitutional because in conflict with the rights of municipal corporations conferred by the state constitution. People v. Grout [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 464.

Note: See, also, People v. Coler, 166 N. Y. 1, 59 N. E. 716, 82 Am. St. Rep. 605, 52 L. R. A. 814; People v. Orange County Road Construction Co., 175 N. Y. 84, 67 N. E. 129, 65 L. R. A. 33; Atkin v. Kansas, 191 U. S. 207, 48 Law. Ed. 148; and Ryan v. New York, 177 N. Y. 271, 69 N. E. 599, discussed and distinguished. See, also, 2 Curr. L. 802.

46. The right to terminate a contract of service is within the protection of constitutional provisions which guaranty to every citizen protection of life, liberty, and property [Laws 1897, c. 120, is void]. Coffeyville Vitrified Brick & Tile Co. v. Perry [Kan.] 76 P. 848.

47. Burns' Rev. St. 1894, § 7077 (Act March 9, 1889) providing for the recovery of damages by a servant who has been blacklisted by a corporation, is unconstitutional in so far as it includes employes who have voluntarily left their employment, since the title only includes discharged employes. Wabash R. Co. v. Young, 162 Ind. 102, 69 N. E. 1003.

48. Act March 1, 1901, making it a penal offense for an employe or renter of lands, already under contract, to abandon such contract and make another of a similar nature with a third person, without the consent of the other party, or without sufficient excuse, or without giving notice of the prior contract, is repugnant to the state constitution and the 14th amendment of the federal constitution. Toney v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 332.

49. St. 1903, p. 14, c. 11, § 4, makes it unlawful for an employment agent to receive as compensation more than 10 per cent of the first month's wages in the employment furnished. Held, that the statute is not within the police power, and contravenes the constitutional guarantee of protection to property. Ex parte Dickey, 144 Cal. 234, 77 P. 924.

Note. A writer in the Harvard Law Review, commenting on the last cited California case, says: "The constitutional right to make contracts is not unlimited, and interference by the police power seems increasing. Limitations may be imposed where public health or safety is concerned, and in business affected with a public interest so as to be virtually a monopoly, charges may be fixed. Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 24 Law. Ed. 77. A conflict, however, exists as to the state's right to interfere to prevent oppression where people only nominally on an equality are contracting. Thus weekly payment acts and 'truck acts' have been sustained. Knoxville Iron Co. v. Harbison, 183 U. S. 13, 46 Law. Ed. 55. See Opinion of the Justices, 163 Mass. 589, 28 L. R. A. 344. Other courts have denounced them as destroying the constitutional liberty of contract. Republic, etc., Co. v. State, 160 Ind. 379. See Vogel v. Pekoc, 157 Ill. 339, 30 L. R. A. 491. Usury laws, the validity of which is unquestioned, look toward the prevention of oppression doctrine, but the argument is weakened by the fact that historically they are restrictions on a privilege, and that they existed before the Constitution. Employment agencies do not seem within the doctrine of Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 24 Law. Ed. 77. It is true they may be regulated to prevent fraud. Price v. People, 193 Ill. 114, 86 Am. St. Rep. 306, 55 L. R. A. 588. But as to fixing rates the present decision seems correct; the doctrine of protection from oppression, if valid at all, seems one to be strictly confined if everybody is not to be put under legislative tutelage."—18 Harv. L. R. 151.

50. Under St. 1899, p. 149, c. 114, prohibiting public contractors from requiring more than eight hours of work per day from their workmen, and providing for penalties for nonobservance of the law, such penalties can only be withheld by the person or officer whose duty it is to pay the money due under the contract; and the amount stipulated in the contract is all that can be withheld. Worthington v. Breed, 142 Cal. 102, 75 P. 675. A national guard armory is a state institution within the meaning of the labor law exempting employes of state institutions from the provision that eight hours shall constitute a day's work. Burns v. Fox, 90 N. Y. S. 254.

51. See 2 Curr. L. 805.

52. An offer of service at a certain price may be accepted by action of the employer, allowing the employe to render services without objection to the offer. Pettis v. Green River Asphalt Co. [Neb.] 99 N. W. 235.

53. Contract of employment of advertising solicitor construed as providing for a minimum compensation of $50 per week. Weik v. Williamson-Gunning Advertising Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 144. Whether compensation received from third parties, who furnished peas to a canning factory, was to be applied on compensation to plaintiff for work for defendants, held a question of fact. Genco v. Remington, 91 N. Y. S. 898.

54. Salesman's contract construed as calling for payment of commissions as sales were made during the year, and not an entire contract under which nothing became due until the end of the year. Bair v. Hilbert, 84 App. Div. 621, 82 N. Y. S. 1010. Under a contract of service whereby a salesman was to be allowed to draw $50 per pend upon its terms. Where the contract does not specify the rate of compensation, the law implies a promise to pay what the services are reasonably worth.[55] The right to compensation ceases at the expiration of the term.[56] A promise to pay for services rendered under an abandoned contract must be supported by a sufficient consideration.[57] A servant may become personally liable for advances in excess of his commissions, though his contract does not provide for such liability, where he quits the employment.[58]

To recover the agreed compensation, the servant must prove full performance of the contract by himself; a breach of his contract by engaging in other employment, when his master is entitled to his exclusive services,[59] or by quitting the service, without excuse, before the end of his term,[60] will defeat a recovery and give the master a cause of action for damages for the breach.[61] Wrongful conversion of his master's property will defeat a recovery,[62] unless the right to insist on a forfeiture of wages on this ground has been waived by the master's retaining the servant in his employ.[63] Holdings as to the sufficiency of pleadings,[64] the sufficiency[65] and admissibility[66] of evidence in actions to recover compensation, are given in the notes.

week for his personal use, such withdrawals to be charged to his commission account, the salesman was entitled to be paid $50 each week regardless of the amount of accrued commissions then due him, and his commissions were payable to him only at the end of his term of employment. Schwerin v. Rosen, 90 N. Y. S. 407.

55. Elwell v. Roper, 72 N. H. 585, 58 A. 507. Findings construed to mean that contract of employment was continued during a certain month, and that services thereafter were to be paid for on quantum meruit. De La Cuesta v. Montgomery, 144 Cal. 115, 77 P. 887.

56. An employe by the month is not entitled to pay after his discharge at the end of the month. Whitmore v. Werner, 88 N. Y. S. 373.

57. A baker, hired for a month, left without excuse after 18 days; was rehired at a weekly rate, but quit after 2 days. Held, he could not recover for the 18 days' work, even though a promise be implied to pay therefor. Natalizzio v. Valentino [N. J. Law] 59 A. 8.

58. Kupfer v. Holtzmann, 88 N. Y. S. 362.

59. Under a contract for a term of six months, whereby a salesman agreed to sell a certain amount of goods at a salary payable in weekly instalments, the employer was entitled to the salesman's exclusive services during that time, and engaging in other additional employment would amount to a breach by the salesman. Seaburn v. Zachmann, 90 N. Y. S. 1005.

60. Natalizzio v. Valentino [N. J. Law] 59 A. 8. Where salesman, payable in weekly instalments, left his employment without cause, he could not recover for the week during which the breach occurred, nor for any future week. Seaburn v. Zachmann, 90 N. Y. S. 1005. An employe by the month, not paid the first month, who leaves in the middle of the second month, can recover only for the actual wages earned; nonpayment for the first month was not a discharge. Wheaton v. Higgins, 90 N. Y. S. 1041.

61. Where employe, after breach of his contract, sued for prior weekly instalments, his employer could counterclaim for damages for the breach. Seaburn v. Zachmann, 90 N. Y. S. 1005.

62. Lahr v. Kraemer, 91 Minn. 26, 97 N. W. 418. Where failure to account for funds is not willful, he is entitled to recover wages, less amount of shortage. Id. A servant who has stolen his master's property may be discharged at once, without his wages. Person v. McCargar [Minn.] 99 N. W. 885.

63. Farm laborer stole wrench and saw, but was retained to end of term; right to insist on forfeiture lost. Person v. McCargar [Minn.] 99 N. W. 885.

64. An allegation of performance of services held sufficient without specific allegation of allowing name to be used as promised, the contract being presumed to be entire. Gillespie v. Montgomery, 93 App. Div. 403, 87 N. Y. S. 701. Where in an action for a share of profits as compensation for services, an accounting was asked, the fact that the complaint was insufficient to warrant equitable relief did not make it insufficient as stating a cause of action at law. Id. Complaint held to state cause of action for salary earned by traveling salesman during year and not for damages for wrongful discharge. Dibble v. Roberts [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 1136.

65. Sufficient evidence to go to jury on issue of employment and value of services. Martin v. Milwaukee, etc., R. Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 219. Evidence held to show express contract and that defendants had paid what was due thereunder. Broaker v. Morrill, 88 N. Y. S. 937.

66. Evidence of a custom is inadmissible simply for the purpose of making one party's testimony as to what the contract was more probable. Kosloski v. Kelly [Wis.] 100 N. W. 1037. Evidence as to manner and amount of compensation under an alleged contract being conflicting, plaintiff could show his relation to defendants in prior years and on what his compensation was based. Rosenberg v. Heldelberg, 98 App. Div. 17, 90 N. Y. S. 684. Where parties both claim a spe-

Where extra services are performed with the expectation and on the promise that the servant should receive a certain sum at the death of the employer, such promise is enforceable, though the services would have been performed without it.[67] The presumption that a deceased master has regularly paid the wages of a servant according to the custom of the locality applies only where the relation between deceased and claimant was that of master and servant only.[68]

Extra compensation.[69]—The right to extra compensation for work in excess of eight hours per day, given by the New York statute, may be waived by receiving regular wages without objection.[70]

Medical treatment.[71]—A conductor of a railroad train has no implied authority to contract for medical services, shelter and food for an injured employe, except in case of an emergency.[72]

Assignments of wages.[73]—One in the actual employment of another, receiving wages under a subsisting contract, may make a valid assignment of future earnings, though the time of employment is uncertain,[74] and the consideration is not fixed in amount. Thus an extension of credit is a valuable consideration sufficient to support such an assignment.[75] The burden is upon a creditor of an employe, attacking an assignment, to prove that it lacked consideration.[76] No formality is necessary to the acceptance by the employer of an assignment of wages; paying wages to the assignee is a sufficient acknowledgment of liability.[77] Knowledge or want of knowledge of the assignees cannot affect the employer's liability, nor is their knowledge a matter of discovery by the employer.[78] Where a person makes two assignments of wages to different assignees, and the assignments are recorded at the same place, at the same hour and minute of the same day, the employer is not liable to either assignee.[79]

Trade secrets and inventions.[80]—Information acquired by a servant in the course of his employment relative to the master's property belongs exclusively to the employer and cannot rightfully be imparted to others.[81] The duty of the employe, arising by contract or confidence reposed in him, to preserve a trade cial contract of service, but differ as to compensation to be paid thereunder, evidence of the value of plaintiff's services is admissible as affecting the probability of the respective claims of the parties. Id. Under a complaint alleging a five-year contract, and a continuance of the same for another term of five years, proof of breach of a contract from year to year was inadmissible. Brightson v. Claflin Co. [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 920.

67. Graham v. Rapp's Estate, 105 Mo. App. 590, 80 S. W. 42. Evidence sufficient to sustain finding that extra services were rendered with expectation on part of both master and servant that they would be paid for, and that payment had not been made. Elwell v. Roper, 72 N. H. 254, 56 A. 342.

68. It has no application where decedent, by his conduct, showed an intention to marry the claimant, his housekeeper. Schrader v. Beatty, 206 Pa. 184, 55 A. 958.

69. See 2 Curr. L. 806.

70. Burns v. Fox, 90 N. Y. S. 254.

71. See 2 Curr. L. 806.

72. When a brakeman was injured at a town where company was ready and willing to supply adequate treatment, but was moved elsewhere at his own request, it was held that conductor had no implied authority to contract for services and lodging at the latter place. Hunt v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 195.

73. See 2 Curr. L. 805.

74. Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. v. Kidwell [Colo. App.] 76 P. 922. Such assignment is not void as against public policy, nor is it rendered invalid by the statute exempting wages from execution. Mallin v. Wenham, 209 Ill. 252, 70 N. E. 564.

75. Assignment for wages to be earned from month to month in consideration of supplies to be furnished on credit each month as required. Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. v. Kidwell [Colo. App.] 76 P. 922.

76, 77. Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. v. Kidwell [Colo. App.] 76 P. 922.

78. Whitcomb v. Waterville [Me.] 58 A. 68.

79. Under Rev. St. 1903, c. 113, § 6, requiring such assignments to be recorded. Whitcomb v. Waterville [Me.] 58 A. 68.

80. See 2 Curr. L. 805. Property rights in trade secrets generally, see Property, 2 Curr. L. 1279.

81. Court of equity refused to set aside a conveyance for fraud of grantees, when part of consideration was imparting of information to which complainants were not entitled. Clark v. Buffalo Hump Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 122 F. 243.

secret, is owed primarily to his employer;[82] but when the trade secret is assigned, the assignee acquires the right to protect his property by restraining the former employes of the assignor from revealing the secret.[83] The obligation of an employe to assign to his employer an invention made in the course of his employment does not arise from the existence of the relation of employe and employer alone; there must be a contract to assign.[84]

Statutory regulations.—The Kentucky statute requiring mine operators to pay employes on the fifteenth and thirtieth of each month, to within fifteen days of those dates,[85] and that giving manufacturing employes liens for wages superior to prior mortgage liens,[86] are held constitutional. The special lien given by statute in Georgia to laborers, on the product of their labor, attaches to property of their employers only.[87] Labor claims are entitled to stand as preferred debts against insolvent estates, under the Indiana statute, only when the labor was performed in connection with the business in which the insolvent debtor was engaged.[88] The South Carolina act prohibiting payment of wages in checks redeemable only in merchandise is constitutional.[89] The act does not apply to such a check issued as a credit only and not as payment.[90] Under the Indiana act requiring corporations to settle in full with employes once a month, and providing a penalty for failure to do so, such penalty, and attorney's fees, can be recovered only where there is no written contract of employment.[91]

§ 3. Master's liability for injuries to servants.[92] A. Nature and extent in general.[93]—It is the duty of the master to exercise ordinary care for the safety of his servants by providing a reasonably safe place to work,[94] and reasonably safe and suitable tools and appliances,[95] and by maintaining all these in a reasonably suitable condition and state of repair.[96] It is also his duty to exercise ordinary care in supplying reasonably safe materials,[97] and a reasonably sufficient number[98]

82, 83. Vulcan Detinning Co. v. American Can Co. [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 290.

84. Evidence held not to show a contract to assign patent rights in an invention. Pressed Steel Car Co. v. Hansen, 128 F. 444.

85. The statute (Ky. St. 1903, § 2739a) is not an improper exercise of the police power, nor does its enforcement interfere with vested rights or contract obligations, nor does it impose a penalty for nonpayment of debt. Commonwealth v. Reinecke Coal Min. Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 2027, 79 S. W. 287. Subsec. 1 of this statute, being an amendment to the original act of 1899, is not unconstitutional on the ground that it was improperly enacted. Id.

86. Ky. St. 1903, §§ 2487, 2488. Graham v. Magann, Fawke Lumber Co. [Ky.] 80 S. W. 799.

87. Under Civ. Code 1895, § 2793, an employe in a machine shop acquired no lien on a locomotive, which he had practically made over, which belonged to a third person, and not the owner of the shop. Lanier v. Bailey [Ga.] 48 S. E. 324. Where in proceeding to foreclose a special lien on the locomotive, an execution in favor of the employe against his employer was issued, an ordinary claim by the owner of the locomotive is a proper remedy. Lanier v. Bailey [Ga.] 48 S. E. 324.

88. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 7051, 7058. McDaniel v. Osborne [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 601. A receiver appointed in a foreclosure action is not an assignee or receiver within the meaning of §§ 7051, 7058 of this statute, so that labor claims may be made preferred debts against the property in his hands. Id.

89. Code 1902, §§ 2719, 2720, does not deny equal protection of law. Johnson, Lytle & Co. v. Spartan Mills [S. C.] 47 S. E. 695.

90. Hence an action cannot be maintained on such check for a money judgment. Johnson, Lytle & Co. v. Spartan Mills [S. C.] 47 S. E. 695.

91. In an action based on Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 7056, the complaint must allege the absence of a written contract. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Harmon, 161 Ind. 358, 68 N. E. 589.

92. For extended note on the right of a servant to recover damages from persons other than his master for injuries received in the performance of his duties, see 46 L. R. A. 33.

93. See 2 Curr. L. 808.

94. Neeley v. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co., 13 Okl. 356, 75 P. 537; Kirk v. Sturdy [Mass.] 72 N. E. 349; Wallace v. Boston & M. R. Co., 72 N. H. 504, 57 A. 913. See subsection B.

95. Wallace v. Boston & M. R. Co., 72 N. H. 504, 57 A. 913; Neeley v. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co., 13 Okl. 356, 75 P. 537; Kirk v. Sturdy [Mass.] 72 N. E. 349. See subsection B herein.

96. Wallace v. Boston & M. R. Co., 72 N. H. 504, 57 A. 913.

97. Neeley v. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co., 13 Okl. 356, 75 P. 537; Kirk v. Sturdy [Mass.] 72 N. E. 349.

of reasonably competent and safe fellow-workmen.[99] It is, further, the duty of the employer to warn and instruct his servants as to latent or unknown dangers of the employment,[1] especially if such servants are young, ignorant or inexperienced.[2] Where a business is sufficiently extended and complicated to require it, the master owes his servants the duty of framing and promulgating reasonable rules and regulations, looking to their safety.[3]

The master is not an insurer of the safety of his employes;[4] all that the law requires is the exercise of reasonable or ordinary care, to provide for their safety.[5] Reasonable or ordinary care is that used by reasonable and prudent men under like circumstances.[6] It cannot be determined abstractly, but only by the facts of each particular case.[7] Thus, what is due care in a particular instance may be determined by the age[8] or experience[9] of the employe, or the dangers inherent in or incident to the employment.[10]

The duties of the master above enumerated are personal to him, and he cannot relieve himself from liability for negligence in their performance by delegating them to others.[11]

Statutes.—The degree of care required of masters in performing duties imposed by statute must be determined on common-law principles, when not fixed by

98. Such a number that the servants' task may be performed with reasonable safety. Bonn v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 808; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Miller [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 535; Hilton v. Fitchburg R. Co. [N. H.] 59 A. 625; Dell v. McGrath [Minn.] 99 N. W. 629.

99. Elliott v. Canadian Pac. R. Co., 129 F. 163; Neeley v. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co., 13 Okl. 356, 75 P. 537; Wells v. O'Hare, 209 Ill. 627, 70 N. E. 1056. See subsection E herein.

1. Shickle-Harrison & H. Iron Co. v. Beck, 212 Ill. 268, 72 N. E. 423; Giebell v. Collins Co., 54 W. Va. 518, 46 S. E. 569.

2. Lynchburg Cotton Mills v. Stanley, 102 Va. 590, 46 S. E. 908; Jancko v. West Coast Mfg. & Inv. Co., 34 Wash. 556, 76 P. 78. See subsection D herein.

3. Wallace v. Boston & M. R. Co., 72 N. H. 504, 57 A. 913. See subsection C herein.

4. McCabe v. Montana Cent. R. Co. [Mont.] 76 P. 701; Neeley v. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co., 13 Okl. 356, 75 P. 537.

5. Glasscock v. Swofford Eros. Dry Goods Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 364; Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 787; Ryan v. Third Ave. R. Co., 92 App. Div. 306, 86 N. Y. S 1070. Thus, only ordinary care is required of railway companies in furnishing reasonably safe cars and appliances and a reasonably safe track. Culver v. South Haven, etc., R. Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 663; McCabe v. Montana Cent. R. Co. [Mont.] 76 P. 701; St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Corrigan [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 554; San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Hahl [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 27.

Contra: A charge that it was the absolute duty of a railway company to provide an engineer with safe appliances and a safe place to work, upheld. Richey v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 48 S. E. 285.

6. Johnson v. Union Pac. Coal Co. [Utah] 76 P. 1089. The test of negligence in methods, machinery and appliances is the ordinary usage of the business. Weed v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Neb.] 99 N. W. 827. If conditions are shown to be similar. Johnson v. Union Pac. Coal Co. [Utah] 76 P. 1089. Testimony that tracks used only to carry molten metal to a slag pile were not like tracks of well-regulated railroads was irrelevant, since the two roads were not similar. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Mobley, 139 Ala. 425, 36 So. 181. An order by a conductor to a brakeman to catch and mount a moving car is not negligence imputable to the company, since such an order is customary and incidental to the employment. Weed v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Neb.] 99 N. W. 827. Failure to place lights at a curve in a street railway track cannot be held negligence without proof that it was the usage of well-managed companies to take such precautions. Godfrey v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 1230.

7. Johnson v. Union Pac. Coal Co. [Utah] 76 P. 1089; Kirk v. Sturdy [Mass.] 72 N. E. 349. "Reasonable" care and "ordinary" care are synonymous terms. What is such care depends upon the circumstances. Coven v. Bodwell Granite Co. [Me.] 59 A. 285.

8. Thus the degree of care due by the master to an infant employe is much greater than is due to an adult. Lynchburg Cotton Mills v. Stanley, 102 Va. 590, 46 S. E. 908.

9. Greater care is required of a master where the servant is working outside the line of his regular employment under the master's direction. Virginia Portland Cement Co. v. Luck's Adm'r [Va.] 49 S. E. 577.

10. Richards v. Riverside Ironworks [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 437. The degree of care required of one whose business requires the use of explosives is greater than that required of one who does not employ such dangerous instrumentalities. Lonza v. La Grand Quarry Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 488.

11. Wallace v. Boston & M. R. Co., 72 N. H. 504, 57 A. 913; Rogers v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 211 Ill. 126, 71 N. E. 850; Franck v. American Tartar Co., 91 App. Div. 571, 87 N. Y. S. 219; Burns v. Delaware & A. Tel. & T. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 59 A. 220. See subsection E herein.

statute.[12] But the legislature may, in its discretion, set up definite standards of duty to be observed by employers, which are uncontrolled by common-law rules.[13] Failure to perform a positive duty fixed by statute is negligence per se, for which an injured employe may recover,[14] if such failure was the proximate cause of the injury.[15] Decisions construing statutes are referred to in the note.[16]

The relation of master and servant must exist.[17]—To warrant a recovery for personal injuries caused by a breach of the master's duties, as master, it must appear that the person injured was at the time his servant,[18] and was engaged in the performance of the duties for which he was employed.[19] The employe must con-

12. Applied Rev. St. Ohio 1892, § 6871, requiring mine owners to keep supply of timber on hand and to deliver it where needed by miners. Cecil v. American Sheet Steel Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 542.

13. Green v. American Car & Foundry Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 268.

14. Violation of ordinance relative to method of moving cars. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 71 N. E. 218. Failure to guard a machine as required by law, or a removal of the guard except for repairs, prohibited by law. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Cavanaugh [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 239. Failure to cover set screws after an order by the factory inspector to guard them, as required by Comp. Laws, § 5349. Sipes v. Michigan Starch Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 447. Failure to comply with a statutory building regulation. Holzman v. Katzman, 87 N. Y. S. 478. Failure to give statutory signal at crossings is negligence as to a section man on a hand car rightfully on the track. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. McIntosh [Ky.] 80 S. W. 496. The act requiring "telltales" at a distance of 150 feet from the approaches of an overhead railroad bridge places on railroad companies the duty of so warning unequivocally the employes. Hailey v. Texas & P. R. Co. [La.] 37 So. 131.

15. Failure to maintain ambulance at mine not shown to be cause of miner's death, when evidence showed immediate and proper treatment, and physician testified he might have saved miner's life if called sooner. Davis v. Pennsylvania Coal Co., 209 Pa. 153, 58 A. 271.

16. Any knowing and intentional violation of the Illinois coal mine act is a "willful" violation, and proof of a wrongful intent is not essential to render a mine owner liable [Ill. Laws 1899, p. 325, §§ 33, 19]. Fulton v. Wilmington Star Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 193. The provision of this act requiring mine owners to employ as managers only such persons as hold certificates from a state board of examiners does not exempt the owners from liability for negligence of managers (Id.); and the statute, thus construed, is constitutional (Id.). A belt line railroad, maintained in a city as a connecting line between various roads, and for convenience in receiving and transferring freight, is a steam railroad within the terms of Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 5173a et seq. requiring switch stands to be equipped with signal lights, and giving employes a right of action for injuries caused by failure to observe the statute. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Bond [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 647. The fact that the parent or guardian of a minor knows of the latter's employment will not excuse the employer from obtaining the affidavit regarding such minor required by Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7087b. La Porte Carriage Co. v. Sullender [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 922. The sections of the labor law prohibiting employment of children under 15 to operate elevators in factories, and of children under 16 to operate or assist in operating dangerous machinery (Laws 1899, p. 353, c. 192, §§ 81, 89), apply only to factories, not to mercantile establishments. Distinction made in Laws 1897, p. 462, c. 415, § 2. Lowry v. Anderson Co., 96 App. Div. 465, 89 N. Y. S. 107. Laws Miss. 1898, p. 84, c. 66, amending Laws 1896, p. 97, c. 87, relating to actions by employes against corporations, being unconstitutional, no action is maintainable thereunder. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Schraag [Miss.] 36 So. 193.

17. See 2 Curr. L. 808. See 37 L. R. A. 33, for an exhaustive note on the question which of two or more persons is the master of another who is conceded to be the servant of one of them.

18. Where two railway companies were sued and the evidence showed exclusive ownership of the road in the employer of plaintiff's intestate, the variance was fatal to any recovery. Northern Ala. R. Co. v. Mansell [Ala.] 36 So. 459. One who assisted in repairing a coupling at the unauthorized request of an employe is a mere volunteer. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. v. West [Ga.] 49 S. E. 711.

19. Mitchell v. Chicago & A. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 289. A servant injured while voluntarily performing work outside the scope of his employment cannot recover. Ehmett v. Mitchell-Tranter Co. [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1148. Boy 14 years old, employed to take bobbins off a spinning machine, was injured while putting on weights, the latter duty belonging to others. Master held not liable. Michael v. Henry, 209 Pa. 213, 58 A. 125. A scourer in a carpet mill voluntarily assisted other employes after hours, and was killed by falling into a vat of boiling caustic soda. Held, no recovery against the master for his death. Durst v. Bromley Bros. Carpet Co., 208 Pa. 573, 57 A. 986. One sent by superior to repair steam reservoir in brewery is not a volunteer, though his usual employment did not include such a task. Krueger v. Bartholomay Brew. Co., 94 App. Div. 58, 87 N. Y. S. 1054.

A master owes a servant, not at the time engaged in the performance of his duty, only the duty to avoid injuring him after discovering him in a perilous position. Freight brakeman, killed in a collision while on engine of another train to get a drink of water, was not in performance of his duties, fine himself to the scope of his employment.[20] To entitle one to the protection due a servant, an actual contract of employment is not necessary; it is sufficient if the workman performs services for the employer, with the latter's consent.[21] A master owes a volunteer only the duty not to willfully injure him, and to use care not to injure him after notice of his position of peril; youth and inexperience of the volunteer do not change the relation or rights and duties of the parties.[22] A railway company owes the same duty to an express messenger as it owes to its own employes.[23]

One for whom work is being done by an independent contractor is not liable to the contractor's servants for negligence of the contractor;[24] nor is a contractor liable to a servant of a subcontractor for injuries, unless he has been guilty of some act of personal negligence, which caused such injuries, independently of all other causes.[25]

The test commonly applied in determining whether the relation exists is the degree of control exercised over the workman.[26] A servant loaned to a third person for the performance of special services becomes the servant of that person, though in the general employ of the one who loaned him,[27] if he becomes subject to the control and direction of such third person.[28] and there could be no recovery for his death. Shadoan's Adm'r v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 567.

20. Engine hostler who voluntarily exchanged work with a switchman could not recover for injuries received while performing switchman's duties. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Doty [C. C. A.] 133 F. 866. Section hand on street railway attempting to replace a trolley wheel on the wire held not acting as a volunteer, though it is the conductor's duty to replace such wheel. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Pfisterer, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 359.

21. Boy assisting father in mine with knowledge and consent of employer of father, entitled to protection and safe place to work, though no actual contract was made with him. Ringue v. Oregon Coal & Navigation Co., 44 Or. 407, 75 P. 703. Evidence sufficient to warrant finding that plaintiff was employed with knowledge and consent of defendant or one who had authority to act for him. Palmer v. Coyle [Mass.] 72 N. E. 844. Where a minor was put to work on trains, contrary to his father's instructions, it was held that the company would be liable for the minor's death, if caused solely by negligence of the company, though the relation of master and servant did not exist. Coleman v. Himmelberger-Harrison Land & Lumber Co., 105 Mo. App. 254, 79 S. W. 981. A boy, assisting his father in a mine is deemed to be on the premises by invitation of the owner, who owes him the duty to keep the premises reasonably safe. Williams v. Belmont Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 46 S. E. 802. A custom, observed by a mine operator, of requiring a father, desiring his son to assist him in the mine, to obtain from the bookkeeper an order on the blacksmith for tools, is a regulation which may be waived; and the operator cannot deny that a duty was owed to a minor furnished with tools without such an order. Ringue v. Oregon Coal & Navigation Co., 44 Or. 407, 75 P. 703.

22. Atlanta & W. P. R. Co. v. West [Ga.] 49 S. E. 711.

23. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. O'Brien, 132 F. 593. This relation and duty was not affected by a statute making invalid contracts releasing railway companies from liability for negligence of employes resulting in injuries to other employes (Id.), nor did such statute change the rules of evidence in actions for negligence based on the relation (Id.).

Note: The various reasons for the holding that an expressman carried on a passenger train by contract between the express and railroad companies is a passenger are arrayed in a note in 4 Columbia Law Rev. 592, commenting on Long v. Lehigh Valley R. Co. [C. C. A.] 130 F. 870. In that case releases of liability had been exchanged so as to look wholly to the express company. See Carriers, 3 Curr. L. 591.

24. Bridge company not liable to independent contractor's servant for injury caused by defective tool furnished him by the contractor. Omaha Bridge & Terminal Co. v. Hargadine [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1071. Where one who employs an independent contractor retains the right to inspect and oversee the work so far as is necessary to see that it conforms to the specifications, the relation of master and servant is not created between the one for whom the work is being done and servants of the independent contractor. Id.

25. Nelson v. Young, 91 App. Div. 457, 87 N. Y. S. 69. It is the duty of a contractor to attend to shoring a building in course of reconstruction, though the actual work is sublet. Id. See title Independent Contractors, 3 Curr. L. 1702.

26. The relation of master and servant exists where the employer selects the workman, may remove or discharge him for misconduct and may order what work shall be done and the mode and manner of its performance. Walsh v. Reisenberg, 89 N. Y. S. 58.

27. Delory v. Blodgett, 185 Mass. 126, 69 N. E. 1078; Grace & H. Co. v. Probst, 208 Ill. 147, 70 N. E. 12. A driver in the general employ of third persons, but engaged in

While the owner of a railroad owes the servants of another company, operating trains on the road, the duty of ordinary care to keep the roadbed reasonably safe,[29] such owning corporation will not be liable if the injury arose solely from negligence in operating trains, and not from defects in the roadbed.[30] A servant in the employ of a lessee railroad company, and injured solely through negligence of his employer, has no cause of action against the lessor company.[31] But the contrary is held in Missouri.[32] A railway corporation operating a road jointly with another corporation is liable for injuries to employes as a member of a partnership.[33]

The master's negligence must have been the proximate cause[34] of the servant's injuries.[35]—Illustrative holdings are grouped in the notes.[36] If negligence of the loading a vessel under control of defendants, was the servant of the latter during that special service. Breslin v. Sparks, 97 App. Div. 69, 89 N. Y. S. 627.

28. The test being whether he remains subject to the control of his general master, or becomes subject to the control of the third party, the issue presented is one of fact for the jury if the evidence is in dispute. Grace & Hyde Co. v. Probst, 208 Ill. 147, 70 N. E. 12. Held that elevator operator did not become the servant of a company putting fire extinguisher system in the building and using the elevator in its work. Walsh v. Reisenberg, 89 N. Y. S. 58.

29. This is true whether or not the injured employe was also an employe of the owning corporation. Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Sage [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1038.

30. Ederle v. Vicksburg, etc., R. Co., 112 La. 728, 36 So. 664. Where servant of a grain company was killed on a switch track, owned and operated by the grain company, the railway company which constructed the track was not liable for the death. Sauls v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 89.

31. Lewis v. Maysville, etc., R. Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 948, 76 S. W. 526.

32. Under the Missouri statute relative to the leasing of roads by railroad corporations of the state, a lessor company is liable for injuries to a servant of the lessee, caused by the lessee's negligence. Markey v. Louisiana, etc., R. Co. [Mo.] 84 S. W. 61.

33. Harrill v. South Carolina & G. Extension R. Co., 135 N. C. 601, 47 S. E. 730. That the partnership agreement of the corporations is ultra vires does not relieve them of such liability. Id.

34. For doctrine of proximate cause see Negligence, 2 Curr. L. 996.

35. Bailey v. Cascade Timber Co., 35 Wash. 295, 77 P. 377; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 253; Godfrey v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 1230.

36. In the following cases, negligence of the master, or of one for whose negligence the master was responsible, was held the proximate cause of the injuries complained of. Rotten condition of wooden tank, and not the turning on of steam, held proximate cause of injury from escaping steam. Franck v. American Tartar Co., 91 App. Div. 571, 87 N. Y. S. 219. Proximate cause of injury held to be swinging of scale board and not ordering employe to go under the scale board. Simonds v. Georgia Iron & Coal Co., 133 F. 776. Finding that defective break on car was cause of its derailment and death of motorman held justified by evidence. Terre Haute Elec. Co. v. Kieley [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 658. Failure to properly light mine and cars held proximate cause of a collision, and not the act of fellow-servants in leaving a car on the track. Central Coal & Iron Co. v. Pierce, 25 Ky. L. R. 2269, 80 S. W. 449. Proximate cause of injury from cogs held to be failure to instruct plaintiff as to danger, and not the act of a fellow-servant in moving the crane. Shickle-Harrison & H. Iron Co. v. Beck, 212 Ill. 268, 72 N. E. 423. Failure of company to sand rails of street railway tracks held proximate cause of injury to motorman, the car becoming unmanageable and colliding with another on a grade. Union Traction Co. v. Buckland [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 158. Defendant's negligence in permitting running board on engine to become defective was proximate cause of fireman's death. Ellington v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 218. Defect in top rung of ladder on car, which gave way under brakeman's weight, was proximate cause of his fall and injury, and not the absence of the bottom rung which caused him to use the top one. El Paso N. E. R. Co. v. Ryan [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 563. Evidence sufficient to warrant finding that brake bar on steam hoist was defective, which defect caused the injury. Bernard v. Pittsburg Coal Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 396. Evidence sufficient to support finding that footboard and handhold on tender of engine were defective and that these defects were proximate cause of servant's death. Leduc v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 108. Engineer's negligence in failing to keep a lookout, or to stop passenger train after notice of section foreman's position, the latter being in the act of attempting to remove a push car to prevent a collision, held proximate cause of foreman's death. International, etc., R. Co. v. McVey [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 991. Negligence of a section foreman in running a hand car on the schedule time of, and close to, a passenger train, held proximate cause of injury to a hand assisting to remove the hand car. San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Stevens [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 235. Proximate cause of injury by falling of wall of kiln held to be defective state of wall and not negligent order of foreman. Browning v. Kasten [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 354. Negligence of foreman of section crew in delaying unloading of rails from hand car, so that when ordered, it had to be done hastily to avoid a collision, held contributing cause of master be shown as a proximate or efficient cause, the existence of contributing negligence of a fellow servant[37] or other causes, operating with the master's negligence, will not relieve him from liability,[38] the injured employe being himself in the exercise of due care.[39] Where the master has been guilty of negligence liable to cause injury, the fact that an injury occurred in an unusual or unexpected manner will not preclude a recovery;[40] but there can be no recovery for the consequences of an act or omission, which the master did not anticipate, and ought not, in reason, to have anticipated, would result in injury.[41]

Contractual exemption from liability.—Contracts relieving masters from their common-law liability for negligence[42] or from statutory duties[43] are contrary to plaintiff's injury from being struck by a rail. Hicks v. Southern Pac. Co., 27 Utah, 526, 76 P. 625. Section foreman's negligence in running a hand car on the time of a regular train, and not failure to give statutory signal at crossings held the proximate cause of injury to section hand while lifting car off track to avoid collision. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. McIntosh [Ky.] 80 S. W. 496. Negligence of a switchman in attempting to uncouple cars while in motion, at a time when cars were slippery with snow, was not the proximate cause of his being knocked from the car by a switch handle. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Howell, 208 Ill. 155, 70 N. E. 15.

In the following cases the master's negligence was held not the proximate cause of injury. Defect in appliance. Hoehn v. Lautz, 94 App. Div. 14, 87 N. Y. S. 921. Defective clutch which would not stop a machine when loaded. Desosiers v. Bourn [R. I.] 57 A. 935. Noncompliance with a city ordinance respecting elevators. Middendorf v. Schulze, 105 Ill. App. 221. Failure to keep blast furnace in repair not proximate cause of plaintiff's being overcome by gas. Stenger v. Buffalo Union Furnace Co., 90 N. Y. S. 222. Failure to block guard rails in railroad yard not proximate cause of switchman's death. Ray v. Vicksburg, etc., R. Co. [La.] 37 So. 43. Failure to furnish extra man not proximate cause of injury to bridge repairer. McKenna v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 373. Alleged defect in a cant hook not the cause of fall and death of plaintiff's husband. Laudeman v. Ryan, 209 Pa. 3, 57 A. 1118. Where seaman was killed by being struck by mast broken by a loaded bucket in unloading vessel, the rotten condition of the mast was held not the proximate cause of the injury, especially since it was strong enough for its ordinary uses. Robinson v. Pittsburg Coal Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 324. Where a workman was injured while attempting to mend a belt, the causes which produced the break in the belt are not the proximate cause of the injury. Schoultz v. Eckardt Mfg. Co., 112 La. 568, 36 So. 593.

In these cases there was no recovery because the sole proximate cause was shown to have been negligence of fellow-servants. Negligence of brakeman, and not failure to provide signals, held proximate cause of injury of an inspector of air brakes. Hence no recovery. Fullmer v. New York, etc., R. Co., 208 Pa. 598, 57 A. 1062. Death in collision not caused by defective track but by negligent occupation of it by switch engine crew. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Schraag [Miss.] 36 So. 193. Proximate cause of falling of staging built on a wheel of a vessel was use of unsafe rope in fastening the wheel and not failure to detach the pitmans. Herbert v. Wiggins Ferry Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 978. Fellow-servant's negligence in reversing hoisting machinery, and not failure of company to supply a brake, held proximate cause of injury to miner struck by falling bucket. Luman v. Golden Ancient Channel Min. Co. [Cal.] 74 P. 307. Sole proximate cause of street car conductor's injury held to be mistake of his fellow-servant, the motorman, in mistaking position of lights and striking a curve at too high a rate of speed. Godfrey v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 1230.

37. Unguarded cogs caused injury. Buehner v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 345. See subsection E herein.

38. Where plaintiff slipped on the floor and, losing his balance, struck an unguarded saw, the negligence in leaving the saw unguarded, in violation of the statute, and not plaintiff's slipping, was the efficient and proximate cause. Espenlaub v. Ellis [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 527.

39. See subsection G herein.

40. El Paso & N. W. R. Co. v. McComas [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 760; Jensen v. Commodore Min. Co. [Minn.] 101 N. W. 944. Where an employe was injured by drinking water in which potash had been placed, to clean the cooler, by order of the foreman, no precautions being taken to prevent such injury, the injury was not an unexpected accident, but an event to be anticipated. Geller v. Briscoe Mfg. Co. [Mich.] 99 N. W. 281.

41. No liability for injury to boy caused by explosion of bottle of carbonated water. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Dullnig [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 889. Leaving a wornout wrench on floor of roundhouse was not negligence, where tool box was provided, containing proper tools, and it could not reasonably be anticipated that plaintiff would use the defective tool and be injured thereby. O'Brien v. Missouri, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 319.

42. Contract whereby servant assumed all risks of accidents or injuries he would sustain in course of employment, however caused, and agreed to execute and deliver a release at once, in case of injury, is void. Johnson v. Fargo, 90 N. Y. S. 725.

43. A contract, if made, whereby a train hand exempted a railway company from the duty of having a flagman on the leading car of a train being pushed by the engine, would be void [Priv. Laws 1897, p. 83, c. 56]. Lassiter v. Raleigh & G. R. Co. [N. C.] 49 S.

public policy and void. Contracts between railway and express companies, releasing the former from liability for negligence resulting in injury to employes of the latter, are not enforceable in states where such contracts are contrary to public policy.[44]

(§ 3) B. Tools, machinery, appliances, and places for work.[45]—The master is not required to furnish the safest machines and appliances, of the newest and best kind,[46] but only such as are reasonably safe,[47] and of a kind in general use for the same purpose.[48] An employer may, when necessary, use agencies and appliances which are particularly dangerous, providing such precautions can be and

E. 93. Employe cannot excuse noncompliance by the master with a statutory duty of guarding machines. La Porte Carriage Co. v. Sullender [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 922. A "lintner" in an oil mill is not engaged in a profession or trade, within the meaning of Civ. Code 1895, § 3650, so as to be bound by his contract in regard thereto, as a release for damages, the same as an adult. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Dukes [Ga.] 49 S. E. 788.

44. Iowa Code, § 2071, makes contracts restricting liability of railroads for negligence of employes resulting in injury to other employes invalid. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. O'Brien, 132 F. 593.

45. See 2 Curr. L. 810.

46. Marks v. Harriet Cotton Mills, 135 N. C. 287, 47 S. E. 432; Wamble v. Merchants' Grocery Co., 135 N. C. 474, 47 S. E. 493; Koon v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 48 S. E. 86.

47. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Klauss [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 58; Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Perry [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 343; Metzler v. McKenzie, 34 Wash. 470, 76 P. 114; Twombly v. Consolidated Elec. Light Co. [Me.] 57 A. 85; Marks v. Harriet Cotton Mills, 135 N. C. 287, 47 S. E. 432; Babcock Bros. Lumber Co. v. Johnson, 120 Ga. 1039, 48 S. E. 438; Rock Island Sash & Door Works v. Pohlman, 210 Ill. 133, 71 N. E. 428; Cudahy Packing Co. v. Roy [Neb.] 99 N. W. 231.

Note: The rule as to the duty of the master relative to providing machinery and appliances is variously stated. The statement sometimes is that it is the master's duty to "exercise reasonable care to furnish safe machinery and appliances;" and sometimes courts say it is the duty of the master to furnish "reasonably safe machinery and appliances." The distinction between the two statements, when practically applied, is discussed, and cases, in which the rule has been stated in the two ways, are cited, in Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Tackett [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 524.

Illustrative applications of general rule: An employer is bound to use due care to see that a water cooler furnished to employes is a reasonably safe receptacle for drinking water. Geller v. Briscoe Mfg. Co. [Mich.] 99 N. W. 281. A shipowner owes seamen the duty of ordinary care to see that the ship is not rendered a dangerous place by the manner in which repairs are made by the employes of a contractor. In re Michigan S. S. Co., 133 F. 577. Employer liable when belt, the breaking of which injured employe, was shown to have been negligently joined. McCaughey v. Jenckes Spinning Co. [R. I.] 59 A. 110. Cooking retort not furnished with waste pipe of sufficient capacity whereby plaintiff was scalded. Cudahy Packing Co. v. Sedlack [Kan.] 77 P. 102. Finding that air brake was a necessary appliance on a heavy car, heavily loaded, justified. Terre Haute Elec. Co. v. Kiely [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 658. Company guilty of negligence in not furnishing a suitable and safe appliance for reversing rollers on machine in saw mill. Hendricks v. Lesure Lumber Co. [Minn.] 99 N. W. 1125. An injury, caused by unguarded cogs, to a boy who was required to pick up boards near them, was one which ought reasonably to have been anticipated. Buehner v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 345. Where a building was maintained close to a switch track, giving barely enough room for the passing of tenders of the ordinary size, the use of a tender so large that one riding thereon in the usual way was crushed between the building and the tender, was negligence. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Cheatwood's Adm'x [Va.] 49 S. E. 489.

There is no duty to hood or guard the inner and inaccessible parts of machinery, such as portion of a circular saw under a table. Schoultz v. Eckardt Mfg. Co., 112 La. 568, 36 So. 593. Held not negligence to fail to guard a small circular saw which protruded only half its diameter through the table. Chicago Veneer Co. v. Walden [Ky.] 82 S. W. 294. Use of handhold fastened on cars by lag screws is not negligence since handholds so fastened are safe if attached to sound wood. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Perry [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 343.

48. Tompkins v. Marine Engine & Mach. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 330, 58 A. 393; Giebell v. Collins Co., 54 W. Va. 518, 46 S. E. 569. The test of reasonable safety of a machine or appliance is whether it is such as is ordinarily used for the same purpose. Desosiers v. Bourn [R. I.] 57 A. 935. A master performs his duty if he furnishes such devices as are used at the time by ordinarily prudent and careful people under like circumstances. Carr v. American Locomotive Co. [R. I.] 58 A. 678. An employer who uses a freight elevator in his business discharges his duty by furnishing one reasonably safe for the purposes intended, of a kind ordinarily used for such purposes. Young v. Mason Stable Co., 96 App. Div. 305, 89 N. Y. S. 349. Use of step on caboose which projected 15 inches, in common use on various roads, held not negligence. Turner v. Detroit Southern R. Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 268.

But general usage of a machine of the same kind does not justify the master in furnishing a machine that is defective. Dean v. St. Louis Woodenware Works [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 292.

are taken as to reduce the necessary dangers to a condition of reasonable safety.[49] Under such circumstances, the degree of care required of the master is correspondingly great.[50] The master, having provided reasonably safe and suitable machines or appliances, is not liable for injuries resulting from their negligent use by an employe,[51] or from their use for a purpose for which they were not intended,[52] or from the selection by an employe of such as are defective, others, reasonably safe, being available.[53] It is the duty of the master to use ordinary care to maintain the tools, machinery, and appliances provided by him in a reasonably safe condition by proper repairs[54] and reasonable inspection.[55] What is a reasonable inspection is to be determined from surrounding facts and circumstances.[56] The master is under no duty to inspect simple or common tools,[57] or to discover and remedy

49, 50. Welch v. Bath Ironworks, 98 Me. 361, 57 A. 88.

51. Kasadarian v. James Hill Mfg. Co., 130 F. 62.

52. Where servants in the master's absence rigged up a stiff-leg derrick with a guy line, to give it a longer reach than it was intended to have, the master was not liable for an injury resulting from such use of the derrick. Maxfield v. Graveson [C. C. A.] 131 F. 841. Where a hoist rope in mine was used for a purpose other than that for which it was provided, without the employer's knowledge, whereby it became weakened and unsafe, the employer was not liable for an injury resulting from such improper use. Gribben v. Yellow Aster Mln. & Mill. Co., 142 Cal. 248, 75 P. 839. Complaint held not to state actionable negligence where it showed use of a brace, intended to support a roof, as a handhold. Babcock Bros. Lumber Co. v. Johnson, 120 Ga. 1030, 48 S. E. 438. But if a master requires a servant to use, or knows that he will necessarily use, for one purpose, an appliance intended for another purpose, he will be responsible for its defective condition. Id.

53. Needham v. Stone, 186 Mass. 565, 72 N. E. 80. Where plaintiff was injured by reason of old spikes being used in laying steel, the company was not liable, having furnished plenty of good spikes, and the use of old ones was negligence of its foreman. Gauges v. Fitchburg R. Co., 185 Mass. 76, 69 N. E. 1063. Where mine operator furnished a sufficient number of linch-pins for cars, he was not liable for an accident caused by failure of deceased's fellow-servant to put one in, whereby a wheel fell from a car, striking deceased. Jackson v. Lincoln Min. Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 727. Plaintiff, assistant to driver of delivery wagon, could not recover if injury was caused by driver's failure to select a safe harness. Palmer v. Coyle [Mass.] 72 N. E. 844. The rule that the master's duty to provide safe tools and appliances extends only to such as are in fact furnished by the master has no application to safeguards against dangers arising out of the work. Burns v. Delaware & A. Tel. & T. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 59 A. 220.

54. Twombly v. Consolidated Elec. Light Co., 98 Me. 353; 57 A. 85; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 253; Meehan v. Great Northern R. Co. [N. D.] 101 N. W. 183; Foster v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 331. Tongs for handling hot ingots of iron defective. Mulligan v. Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. [Colo. App.] 77 P. 977.

55. Newton v. New York, etc., R. Co., 96 App. Div. 81, 89 N. Y. S. 23. Failure to use ordinary care to inspect all cars is negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Reeves [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 1099. Ship's crew held guilty of negligence in permitting cable used in unloading to become defective, and in not making periodical inspections of it. Ship liable for resulting injury to stevedore. The King Gruffydd [C. C. A.] 131 F. 189.

56. Womble v. Merchants' Grocery Co., 135 N. C. 474, 47 S. E. 493. If a railway company adopts the ordinary, customary, and approved means and tests for the discovery of defects in its appliances, it discharges its duty in this regard, and an employe who is injured notwithstanding must bear the loss as one of the risks of his occupation. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Coughlin [C. C. A.] 132 F. 801. Evidence held to show sufficient inspection of cable supporting elevator. Young v. Mason Stable Co., 96 App. Div. 305, 89 N. Y. S. 349. Evidence justified finding that master was negligent in not discovering that a timber used in safe-moving apparatus was defective by reason of dry rot. Meehan v. Atlas Safe Moving & Mach. Truckage Co., 94 App. Div. 306, 87 N. Y. S. 1031. Where water containing chlorides was used in boiler, which was corroded and weakened thereby, the master owed the servants in charge the duty of warning them, inspecting the boiler to see that it was kept reasonably safe, or otherwise protecting them. Nelson v. New York, 91 N. Y. S. 763. Company not bound to inspect a worn-out wrench, left on roundhouse floor, and given plaintiff by a helper, where a toolhouse was provided, where good tools were kept when not in use. O'Brien v. Missouri, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 319. Inspection of elevator by skilled engineer held not called for, when employer had had it examined and put in order by two experts a short time before the accident. Young v. Mason Stable Co., 96 App. Div. 305, 89 N. Y. S. 349. A master is not required to make such an inspection as to discover whether an appliance intended for a given use is reasonably safe for another unintended use to which it is unexpectedly put by an employe. Babcock Bros. Lumber Co. v. Johnson, 120 Ga. 1030, 48 S. E. 438.

57. Master may assume that a workman will discover that a simple tool is defective by reason of being worn out. O'Brien v. Missouri, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 319. Company under no duty to inspect engine lantern globe, especially when it defects arising necessarily from the ordinary use of the servant's instrumentalities;[58] the servant is presumed to be the first to discover such defects, and it is a part of his duty to remedy them.[59] Nor does the duty of inspection always rest upon the master, even in regard to appliances and premises under his sole control.[60] One who is a mere tenant has a right to assume that the owner has used due care in rendering the premises reasonably safe for his tenant's purposes.[61] The master may discharge his duty of keeping himself informed of the condition of machinery, so as to keep it in repair, by requiring the servant in charge to report defects discoverable by him in its use to the master or the master's representative.[62] The master is not liable for defects of which he had no notice, and which the exercise of ordinary care would not have disclosed.[63] Actual notice will not render him liable unless he could thereafter have warned the servant or made repairs.[64] Notice of a defect in the original construction of an appliance is presumed.[65] The duty of the master to furnish reasonably safe instrumentalities, and to maintain them in such condition, applies to instrumentalities used and controlled by him, though owned by others.[66]

Temporary appliances; scaffolds.[67]—In regard to temporary structures, such was under exclusive control and care of the fireman, who was injured while cleaning it. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Larkin [Tex.] 82 S. W. 1026, rvg. 80 S. W. 94. A forty-foot extension ladder is not a common tool or appliance within the meaning of the rule. Twombly v. Consolidated Elec. Light Co., 98 Me. 353, 57 A. 85. A hand car cannot be said as a matter of law to be a "tool" of the sectionmen, in the sense that a railway company is relieved from the duty of inspecting it. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Tackett [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 524.

58. The master is not liable for a defect in appliances resulting solely from use unless he has, or is charged with, notice of the defect. Meehan v. Great Northern R. Co. [N. D.] 101 N. W. 183.

59. As where knives of a buzz planer become dull and the belt loose. Helling v. Schindeler [Cal.] 78 P. 710. The replacing of a dozy or rotten round in a ladder is not an "ordinary repair" which the servant is expected to make. Twombly v. Consolidated Elec. Light Co., 98 Me. 353, 57 A. 85. A telephone pole used by a lineman in removing wires is only an appliance, not a place to work; hence, the lineman could not rely on the assumption that it had been inspected for him. Britton v. Central Union Tel. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 844.

60. Kirk v. Sturdy [Mass.] 72 N. E. 349.

61. Manufacturer of jewelry leased building and furnished only tools and chairs. Employe was injured by bucket falling from steam pipe, placed there to prevent dripping. Held, no duty rested on master to inspect, though the bucket had hung there several weeks. Kirk v. Sturdy [Mass.] 72 N. E. 349.

62. Buey's Adm'x v. Chess & Wymond Co. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 563.

63. Stackpole v. Wray, 90 N. Y. S. 1045; Hirsch Bros. v. Ashe [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 650; Cudahy Packing Co. v. Roy [Neb.] 99 N. W. 231. Knowledge of a defect by an employer may be proved by circumstantial as well as direct evidence. That an elevator had been working improperly for some time warrants an inference that the employer knew of the defect which caused the trouble. Glasscock v. Swofford Bros. Dry Goods Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 364. Failure of a railroad company to remedy a defect in a coupling pin, of which it either knew or in the exercise of ordinary care ought to have known, held negligence. San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Hahl [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 27. In a suit by a servant who, in the course of his employment, was kicked by a horse, it is not necessary to show knowledge on the part of the master that the horse would kick under the particular circumstances in which the injury was received. Hagen v. Ice Delivery Co., 2 Ohio, N. P. (N. S.) 592.

64. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Smith, 208 Ill. 608, 70 N. E. 628.

65. Structural defect in coupling apparatus. Brinkmeier v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Kan.] 77 P. 586. Master liable for risks arising from original defects. Foster v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 331.

66. Defective gate and fence across railway track, owned by third person, but under control of company and constantly used by employes. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. McClifford, 120 Ga. 90, 47 S. E. 590. A common carrier, receiving and transferring cars of another company as required by law, is under the duty to inspect such cars and to guard its employes against defects or want of repairs and unusual and hidden dangers. Woods v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Wash.] 79 P. 309; Wood v. Rio Grande Western R. Co. [Utah] 79 P. 182; Strauss v. New York, etc., R. Co., 91 App. Div. 583, 87 N. Y. S. 67. A freight car belonging to another company used, as was the custom, as a way or platform in unloading freight from another car, was a part of the equipment of the company which it was in duty bound to use reasonable care to keep in a safe condition. Foster v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 331. For an injury resulting from a defect in it, the company would be liable both under the common law and St. 1887, p. 899, c. 270, § 1, cl. 1, and the amendment thereto by St. 1893, p. 993, c. 359, relating to ways, works, and machinery. Id.

67. See 2 Curr. L. 815, n. 18.

as scaffolds, built and used by the employes in the course of their ordinary duties, the master fully performs his duty by supplying a sufficient quantity of suitable materials, and he is not liable for injuries caused by negligent construction[68] or failure to use the suitable materials supplied.[69] As to scaffolds, this rule has been changed by statute in New York.[70] If the master, instead of leaving the details of construction to the servants who are to use it, undertakes to furnish them with a completed structure, he owes them the same degree of care as in furnishing other appliances, and is liable for injuries resulting from negligence of those selected to construct it.[71] It has also been held that though the construction of staging is left to employes, the master will be liable if he furnishes palpably unsafe materials therefor;[72] and the fact that a fellow-servant was negligent in selecting defective materials for use will not relieve the master from liability.[73]

Statutes.—Holdings under the Indiana,[74] Minnesota,[75] New York,[76] Maine,[77]

68. McCarthy v. Claflin [Me.] 59 A. 293. Employe used single boards, when he might have used more; master not liable for not furnishing planks. Lockwood v. Tennant [Mich.] 100 N. W. 562. Where painters constructed the scaffolding on which they worked, their failure to add a safety rail, as required by statute, was not negligence imputable to the master. Rotondo v. Smyth, 92 App. Div. 153, 86 N. Y. S. 1103. Workmen used unsafe rope to fasten wheel on which staging was built to dismantle it; no recovery. Herbert v. Wiggins Ferry Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 978.

69. Lockwood v. Tennant [Mich.] 100 N. W. 562; Landowski v. Chapoton [Mich.] 100 N. W. 564. Where such an appliance is unsafe through failure to use materials, or to use them properly, the master is not liable. Phoenix Bridge Co. v. Castleberry [C. C. A.] 131 F. 175. As where freight truckman failed to use materials furnished for cleats for skids, by reason of which a skid slipped and plaintiff was injured. Hayes v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 841. No recovery where two workmen built scaffold, and one picked out a plank, half sawed through, which broke, injuring plaintiff. Metzler v. McKenzie, 34 Wash. 470, 76 P. 114.

70. Labor law (Laws 1897, p. 461, c. 415). Holloway v. McWilliams, 97 App. Div. 360, 89 N. Y. S. 1074. Laws 1897, p. 467, c. 415 (Labor Law, § 18), prohibiting furnishing of unsafe scaffolds, etc., applies only to scaffolds used in the erection, repairing, altering, or painting of a house, building, or structure. Platform used to reach a pipe of a boiler, to disconnect it with another boiler, held not within the statute. Conley v. Lackawanna Iron & Steel Co., 94 App. Div. 149, 88 N. Y. S. 123. Evidence held sufficient to show it a completed structure, intended to be used as a scaffold, and that it was not properly constructed for that purpose; hence, master was liable to servant injured by a fall from it. Id. A timber lashed by ropes to upright columns to be used by steel workers in construction of a building held a scaffold within Labor Law, § 18. Welk v. Jackson Architectural Ironworks, 90 N. Y. S. 541. Defendants' foreman directed two workmen to build a scaffold for independent contractors, whom they were ordered to assist, without giving them instructions as to how to build it. Held, defendants were not thereby liable for an injury to a workman caused by a defect in the scaffold, under Labor Law, § 18. Wingert v. Krakauer, 92 App. Div. 223, 87 N. Y. S. 261. Defendants, employing independent contractors to install machinery in a piano factory, were not bound to erect scaffold for their use, under Labor Law, § 18. Wingert v. Krakauer, 92 App. Div. 223, 87 N. Y. S. 261.

71. Richards v. Riverside Iron Works [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 437. Evidence sufficient to show that a superintendent in charge of construction of a staging was negligent in permitting men to use it before an inspection which would have disclosed its insecurity. Solari v. Clark [Mass.] 72 N. E. 958. Evidence held to show that defendants undertook to furnish a staging complete to masons, and that such staging was unsafe, and that its unsafe condition was discoverable by use of ordinary care. McCarthy v. Claflin [Me.] 59 A. 293. Master employed a boss carpenter and men to build scaffold for use of bricklayers, and a bricklayer was injured because of the negligent construction of the scaffold. Chambers v. American Tin Plate Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 561. Where defendants knew of and acquiesced in the use of a staging by employes as a means of going from a vessel to the dock, it was their duty to exercise ordinary care and diligence for the safety of the employes using it. Hunting & Co. v. Quarterman, 120 Ga. 344, 47 S. E. 928.

72. Among the planks set aside for staging were some obviously defective by reason of knots. Held, master liable for injuries caused by breaking of a plank. Farrell v. Eastern Machinery Co. [Conn.] 59 A. 611. Master furnished rotten ropes to support a platform put up by servants. Held, liable to one who used it, injured by reason of the poor materials. Beal v. Bryant [Me.] 58 A. 428.

73. Plaintiff's fellow-servant put a knotty plank in staging. Farrell v. Eastern Machinery Co. [Conn.] 59 A. 611. Nor did the fact that permission had been obtained to use lumber of another relieve the master. Id.

74. A steel drop hammer, weighing 1,500 pounds, used to crush iron (Green v. American Car & Foundry Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 268), and an emery belt (La Porte Carriage Co. v. Sullender [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 922), held to be machines within meaning of Burns' Ann.

and Alabama[78] factory acts, and the Iowa mines law,[79] are given in the notes. The act of congress requiring cars engaged in interstate commerce to be equipped with automatic couplers[80] applies not only to cars actually being used in interstate commerce, but also to cars being made up into trains for the purpose of moving interstate traffic,[81] and a locomotive is a "car" within the statute.[82] A car is engaged in interstate traffic, within the meaning of the act, until its actual transit ceases.[83] The act prohibits the use of couplers which require the employe to place himself between the ends of the cars either to prepare the coupler for the impact, or to make the actual coupling;[84] and this prohibition applies to the act of uncoupling, as well as the act of coupling, cars.[85] The act is not complied with by providing couplers of dissimilar types, which will not work together so as to remove the necessity of going between the cars.[86] Failure to equip cars

St. 1901, § 7087i, requiring machines to be properly guarded. The Indiana factory act of 1899 (Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 70,871), applies to a machine shop maintained by a railway company to make repairs and manufacture materials for its own use. Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. Cavanaugh [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 239. Failure to provide a chute by which to convey slabs and refuse from one floor to another in a sawmill is not a violation of the statute requiring machinery to be safeguarded [Acts 1899, p. 234, c. 142]. Crum v. North Vernon Pump & Lumber Co. [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 193. Where a fellow-servant disobeyed orders to keep a saw guarded, and his employers knew of his disobedience yet retained him, they acquiesced in the violation of the statute requiring the saw to be properly guarded, and became liable for an injury caused thereby. Espenlaub v. Ellis [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 527. Where a statute fixes the duty to properly guard machinery, such duty is not dependent upon a request of the workman to have a particular machine guarded, or to have a guard which has been furnished properly adjusted. Blanchard-Hamilton Furniture Co. v. Colvin, 32 Ind. 398, 69 N. E. 1032.

75. The statute requiring machines in factories and shops to be properly guarded (Gen. St. 1894, § 2248) requires the master, not only to furnish, but to maintain, guards or shields over the machines mentioned. McGinty v. Waterman [Minn.] 101 N. W. 300.

76. A direction not to change guards on a planer, when changing from one kind of work to another, is a violation of the statute [Laws 1897, p. 480, c. 415, § 81], requiring machines to be properly guarded. Klein v. Garvey, 94 App. Div. 183, 87 N. Y. S. 998.

77. The statute requiring hotels and buildings where any "trade, manufacture or business is carried on requiring the presence of workmen above the first story" to be equipped with suitable fire escapes (Rev. St. c. 28, § 38), held not to apply to a building in which a restaurant was carried on on the first floor, the kitchen being on the third floor, where there were three employes. Carrigan v. Stillwell [Me.] 59 A. 683. The statute applies only where workmen are employed above the first story in such numbers as to render escape difficult in case of fire. Id.

78. Where locomotive and switch engines were operated in connection with a blast furnace, a defective headlight in an engine was a defect in the "ways, works, machinery or plant," for which the master would be liable under Code 1896, § 1749, subsec. 1. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Mobley, 139 Ala. 425, 36 So. 181. And timbers used to scotch or chock hot pots and hold them on tracks on slag piles while cooling off are a part of "the plant." Id.

79. Under Iowa Code, § 2849, requiring experienced engineers to be placed in charge of engines used in operating mines, the mine owner was liable for the act of a superintendent who, knowing his own incompetency, attempted to operate the cage engine in the absence of the regular engineer, as a result of which an accident occurred, killing a miner. Beresford v. American Coal Co. [Iowa] 98 N. W. 902. Iowa Code, § 2489, requiring safety gates at mine shafts does not require a covering over the shaft, since cages are required to have safe coverings. Jacobson v. Smith, 123 Iowa, 263, 98 N. W. 773.

80. For rule of construction of automatic coupler act, and scope of act as determined by contemporary public documents and surrounding circumstances, see Johnson v. Southern P. Co., 25 S. Ct. 158.

81. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Bromberg [Ala.] 37 So. 395.

82. Johnson v. Southern Pac. Co., 25 S. Ct. 158.

83. A car loaded with coal, temporarily sidetracked, held within the act. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Voelker [C. C. A.] 129 F. 522. A dining car in constant use, but dropped at a station to await a later train, which was to pick it up, was "engaged in interstate traffic" within the meaning of the act, and should have been equipped with an automatic coupler. Johnson v. Southern Pac. Co., 25 S. Ct. 158.

84. The entire process of making a coupling is included within the meaning of this prohibition. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Voelker [C. C. A.] 129 F. 522. The words used in the act, "without the necessity of men going between the ends of the cars," the test of compliance with the act, apply not only to the act of uncoupling, but also to the act of coupling. Johnson v. Southern Pac. Co., 25 S. Ct. 158.

85. The same is held as to the similar Iowa statute, Code 1897, §§ 2097, 2080. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Voelker [C. C. A.] 129 F. 522.

86. Johnson v. Southern Pac. Co., 25 S. Ct. 158.

with automatic couplers[87] or to keep such couplers in proper repair[88] is actionable negligence.

Places for work.[89]—The rule that it is the duty of the master to use ordinary care to provide and maintain a reasonably safe place to work[90] applies to the track,[91] yards,[92] and right of way[93] of railroads, to street railway tracks,[94] to mines,[95] and entries thereto and passageways therein.[96] Other illustrative applications are given in the note.[97]

87. Carson v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 46 S. E. 525.

88. Carson v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 46 S. E. 525. Permitting an automatic coupler to become so defective as to require the employe to go between the cars to make it work, is actionable negligence. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Voelker [C. C. A.] 129 F. 522.

89. See 2 Curr. L. 814.

90. Sachau v. Milner & Co., 123 Iowa, 387, 98 N. W. 900; Libby v. Banks, 209 Ill. 109, 70 N. E. 599. Floor over which heavy machinery was being moved unsafe. Thompson v. American Writing Paper Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 343. Master liable if he sends servant into place of known danger. Babcock Bros. Lumber Co. v. Johnson, 120 Ga. 1030, 48 S. E. 438. It is the absolute, nondelegable duty of the master to provide a reasonably safe place in which the servant shall work, having regard to the kind of work and the conditions under which it must necessarily be performed. Thus, mine chambers must be properly timbered. Bunker Hill & Sullivan Min. & Concentrating Co. v. Jones [C. C. A.] 130 F. 813.

91. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Benton [C. C. A.] 132 F. 460; Rogers v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 211 Ill. 126, 71 N. E. 850. It is the duty of those operating engines to exercise reasonable care in keeping a lookout to discover employes on or near the track, and when employes are discovered in such position, to use every means in their power to prevent injury to them. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 852. A railway company must use ordinary care to see that cars on the track are not moved down upon a workman in a pit, who is so situated that he cannot see the track ahead. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Roe, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 284. In action for death of bridge watchman, company held negligent, through engineer, in running train over bridge at excessive rate, and in not keeping proper lookout. San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Brock [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 422. Backing cars down on brakeman engaged in adjusting coupler, held negligence. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Caskey [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 264. To start a train suddenly and without warning, thus injuring a brakeman, attempting to uncouple cars, is actionable negligence. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Jones' Adm'r [Ky.] 80 S. W. 484. Failure of hostler to keep a lookout while running an engine in yards where 200 men were employed was negligence. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Lowe, 25 Ky. L. R. 2317, 80 S. W. 768. Railway company is liable for negligent operation of engine on its road, though the engine was owned and operated by another company permitted to use the road. Ray v. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 112.

92. Railway company negligent in leaving a stone in yards near a track, and leaving a frog unblocked. Texarkana & Ft. S. R. Co. v. Toliver [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 375. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 1123, requiring railroad companies to block switches and frogs at all yards, divisional and terminal stations and where trains are made up, and § 1125, excluding the defense of contributory negligence where an injury is caused by failure to comply with the statute, there can be no recovery unless the accident is shown to have occurred at a place where such precautions are required by the statute. Coleman v. Himmelberger-Harrison Land & Lumber Co., 105 Mo. App. 254, 79 S. W. 981. It must also appear that the act causing the injury or death was done in the discharge of the servant's duty. Id.

93. Railway company was negligent in permitting a telegraph pole to be placed and to remain, with notice of its position, in dangerous proximity to passing cars, so that a brakeman was struck by it. Illinois Terminal R. Co. v. Thompson, 210 Ill. 226, 71 N. E. 328. The company was liable for the injury resulting regardless of whether or not it owned the premises, since it controlled them and permitted the pole to be placed and to remain in the dangerous place. Id. Railroad company must use reasonable care in locating stock gaps, so as not to endanger employes by proximity to track. Northern Ala. R. Co. v. Mansell [Ala.] 36 So. 459.

94. Where street car track remained in defective condition a month, company was negligent either in not knowing of it, or in not repairing the track if it knew of its condition. Houts v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 161. Street railway company's failure to sand rails on a grade where sanding was necessary to make running of cars safe, was negligence. Union Traction Co. v. Buckland [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 158.

95. Falling of coal and rock from roof of mine showed want of proper inspection and care to keep it reasonably safe. Wilson v. Alpine Coal Co. [Ky.] 81 S. W. 278. Plaintiff, to recover for injury caused by defective mine roof, not required to prove timbering necessary to support the roof and that timbers had been requested by the miners. Weston v. Lackawanna Min. Co. [Mo. App.] 78 S. W. 1044.

96. Garity v. Bullion-Beck & Champion Min. Co., 27 Utah, 534, 76 P. 556; East Jellico Coal Co. v. Golden, 25 Ky. L. R. 2056, 79 S. W. 291; Williams v. Belmont Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 46 S. E. 802; Henrietta Coal Co. v. Campbell, 211 Ill. 216, 71 N. E. 863. 4 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1902, p. 845, c. 93, § 2b, requiring a passageway to be maintained at landing place of cage in mines, held to be violated, where after a cave-in, the passage was blocked and remained in that condition for six weeks, though it could have been cleared in two or three days. Chicago-Coul-

The rule does not require the master to guard against dangers inherent in the business,[98] and has no application where the employment consists in making a dangerous place safe,[99] or where the place of work is being created,[1] or is being constantly changed in character by the labor of men working upon it.[2] Dangers in the place of work are not necessary or inherent within the meaning of the exception to the rule if they could have been avoided by a slight increase in the cost of the work.[3] While the master cannot delegate the duty of furnishing a reasonably safe place,[4] he is not responsible if the suitable place provided by him is rendered unsafe solely by negligence of fellow-workmen,[5] or by the manner in which the work is performed.[6] The responsibility of the master, under this rule, does not extend to temporary appliances, the construction, maintenance, and adjustment of which is a part of the general work of the employes themselves;[7] nor does the rule apply to buildings in course of construction, in the same way as to completed buildings, ready for permanent use.[8]

The master is required to make a reasonable inspection of the place of work,[9] terville Coal Co. v. Fidelity & Casualty Co., 130 F. 957.

97. Defendant negligent in not furnishing sufficient light for crew engaged in clearing debris from trestle. Stewart v. Texas & P. R. Co., 113 La. 525, 37 So. 129. Failure to properly light bottom of elevator shaft where plaintiff was sent to remove obstructions, held negligence. Nash v. Kansas City Hydraulic Press Brick Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 90. Where a ship watchman was charged with duty of lighting the hold of the ship while it was being unloaded, and there was no special contract governing the manner of unloading, the ship was liable for injuries to a stevedore resulting proximately from failure to light the ship so as to make it a safe place of work. The Santiago, 131 F. 383. Shipowners liable for negligence of master of vessel which resulted in making unsafe the place where a seaman was working. The Westport, 131 F. 815. A telephone company which allowed an electric light company to use its poles, was under the duty to use reasonable care to see that such use of the poles did not expose its employes to unusual risks. Barto v. Iowa Tel. Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 876.

A street railway company is not chargeable with negligence in permitting a telephone company to place poles on land, not owned or controlled by the railway company, so close to the track as to make performance of the duties of the employes dangerous. Chattanooga Elec. R. Co. v. Moore [Tenn.] 82 S. W. 478.

98. Such as in rock quarrying. Kentucky Freestone Co. v. McGee, 25 Ky. L. R. 2211, 80 S. W. 1113. Or where a section man is employed in clearing away a wreck on a railroad. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Hunsucker [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 556. There was no duty to give warning signals as to location of a burning bridge to employes on a train sent there to make repairs, the engineer and fireman knowing its location and the danger. Kath v. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co. [Wis.] 99 N. W. 217.

99. Indiana & C. Coal Co. v. Batey [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 191.

1. Driving tunnel in mine. Shaw v. New Year Gold Mines Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 515.

2. Shaw v. New Year Gold Mines Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 515. Gravel pit of railway. Cully v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 35 Wash. 241, 77 P. 202.

3. Barnett & Record Co. v. Schlapka, 208 Ill. 426. 70 N. E. 343.

4. Employe left unexploded dynamite in an excavation without informing plaintiff, who was ordered to complete the digging of the hole; master liable. Harp v. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 2133, 80 S. W. 510. See subsection E.

5. Shaw v. New Year Gold Mines Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 515. The master is not responsible when the place becomes dangerous only by reason of the carelessness of a fellow-servant. Koszlowski v. American Locomotive Co., 96 App. Div. 40, 89 N. Y. S. 55.

6. Belt v. Henry Du Bois' Sons Co., 97 App. Div. 392, 89 N. Y. S. 1072. No duty to so light premises that any and all repair work could be done without extra light, when repairman could obtain additional light if required. Schoultz v. Eckardt Mfg. Co., 112 La. 568, 36 So. 593. Where a miner, informed of the danger of his work, was engaged in removing pillars or "stumps," his employer was under no duty to protect him from dangers arising from his manner of doing the work. East Jellico Coal Co. v. Golden, 25 Ky. L. R. 2056, 79 S. W. 291.

7. Master not liable for falling of planks from a partition put up and kept in condition by the workmen as a part of their work. Galow v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 242.

8. The character of temporary floorings and supports depends upon the use to which they are put and the judgment of mechanics engaged on the premises must govern their construction. Fournier v. Pike, 128 F. 991.

9. The master is required to use ordinary care and prudence to acquaint himself with the condition of premises where he sets his employe to work. Kentucky Freestone Co. v. McGee, 25 Ky. L. R. 2211, 80 S. W. 1113. A master is liable for an injury caused by a defective place, after discovery of the defect; he is not entitled to a period of immunity, after such notice, in which to make repairs. Franck v. American Tartar Co., 91 App. Div. 571, 87 N. Y. S. 219.

and is chargeable with knowledge of defects or dangers which such an inspection would disclose.[10] The servant has a right to assume that his place of work is safe and free from all dangers which are not obvious and necessary.[11]

Neither the duty to provide reasonably safe instrumentalities,[12] nor the duty to provide a reasonably safe place to work,[13] can be delegated.[14]

(§ 3) C. Methods of work, rules and regulations.[15]—The master is under the duty to provide a reasonably safe method of doing the work.[16] He will be liable for injuries caused by the method employed, if he knew of the danger involved,[17] or in the exercise of ordinary care, ought to have known of it.[18] The master, having provided a plan, will not be liable for the consequences of an unauthorized departure from it by his servants.[19] Where work is not such as to require special skill, and the master fails to devise a plan for doing it, the servants may adopt any plan which is usual and customary under similar circumstances.[20] But if the plan adopted unnecessarily requires the services of one specially skilled, the

10. Master charged with knowledge that there was unexploded dynamite in an excavation which plaintiff was ordered to finish digging, its presence being concealed and unknown to plaintiff. Harp v. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 2133, 80 S. W. 510.

11. Lanza v. Le Grand Quarry Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 488; Bunker Hill & S. Min. & Concentrating Co. v. Jones [C. C. A.] 130 F. 813. He is under no duty to make an examination to discover latent or hidden dangers. Barnett & Record Co. v. Schlapka, 208 Ill. 426, 70 N. E. 343. See subsections F and G.

12. Meehan v. Great Northern R. Co. [N. D.] 101 N. W. 183; Chisholm v. New England Tel. & T. Co., 185 Mass. 82, 69 N. E. 1042; Wood v. Rio Grande Western R. Co. [Utah] 79 P. 182; Bailey v. Cascade Timber Co., 35 Wash. 295, 77 P. 377. Procuring an independent contractor to repair a boiler held not to relieve master from liability for injuries caused by its explosion. Shea v. Pacific Power Co. [Cal.] 79 P. 373. A master cannot escape responsibility for an injury caused by the breaking of a rotten round in a ladder on which his servant was working by showing that he had a foreman who had general oversight of appliances and necessary repairs. Twombly v. Consolidated Elec. Light Co., 98 Me. 353, 57 A. 85. The master cannot relieve himself of his duty to maintain appliances in a reasonably safe condition by promulgating rules requiring employes to inspect appliances and report defects; when such rules will bar a recovery by a servant depends upon the character of the employment, the specific duties required, and the means and opportunity afforded to make the required inspection. Recovery not barred by inspection rule, where switchman fell under engine, owing to defective footboard and handhold. Leduc v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 108.

13. The duty to provide a safe place to work and to maintain it in a reasonably safe condition by inspection and repair cannot be delegated so as to relieve the master. One to whom the duty is delegated is a vice-principal. Lillie v. American Car & Foundry Co., 209 Pa. 161, 58 A. 272.

14. See subsection E.

15. See 2 Curr. L. 816.

16. Burns v. Delaware & A. Tel. & T. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 59 A. 220. Where it was necessary in mining shale to throw down masses of it into a pit where men were at work, at irregular intervals, it was the duty of the master to provide a permanent and efficient system of warning employes. Coffeyville Vitrified Brick & Tile Co. v. Shanks [Kan.] 76 P. 856.

17. Evidence that fewer men than usual were used in moving timbers, and that men complained among themselves but not to superintendent, was not sufficient to show that superintendent was charged with knowledge that the strain on the men was beyond their strength. Bertholet v. Bishop Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 342.

18. Employes may recover for injuries resulting from shock of electricity caused by contact of wires they were stringing with feed wire, the injury being preventable by use of safe method of handling the wires. Burns v. Delaware & A. Tel. & T. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 59 A. 220.

19. Plaintiff, injured by engine in cinder pit, could not recover for lack of a warning, when proper signals and safeguards were provided by master but disregarded by fellow-servants. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Bell, 209 Ill. 25, 70 N. E. 754. Where servants engaged in tearing down building departed from the master's plan and orders for the work, during his absence, and battered down a pier, thus causing the building to collapse, injuring plaintiff, the negligence which caused the injury was that of fellow-servants, not of the master. Beatty v. Weed [Mass.] 70 N. E. 1008. A car manufacturing and repair company, having provided a system of warning car repairers at work, was not liable for an injury caused by the yardmaster's failure to give a warning. State v. South Baltimore Carworks [Md.] 58 A. 447.

20. Riverside Mills v. Jones [Ga.] 48 S. E. 700. To show a custom, substituted for a regulation or rule of the employer, it must appear that the practice of the employes was habitual, not occasional, and was known or ought to have been known by the employer, and assented to by him. Evidence insufficient to show a custom whereby switchmen and engine hostlers exchanged work. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Doty [C. C. A.] 133 F. 866.

master will not be liable for failure to provide a skilled servant.[21] A specific direction to do certain work in a dangerous manner is actionable negligence, unless the danger was so obvious that the servant must be held to have assumed the risk,[22] or to have been guilty of negligence in incurring it.[23]

If the nature of the business is such as to require it,[24] it is the duty of the master to adopt, promulgate and enforce such rules as will afford reasonable protection to servants while in the discharge of their duties.[25] He is under no duty to promulgate rules to govern servants acting outside the scope of their employment,[26] or to avoid open and apparent dangers,[27] or such dangers as could not have been anticipated by the exercise of ordinary care.[28] Failure to promulgate a particular rule does not constitute negligence unless it appears that the master should have foreseen the necessity for it,[29] and that such rule would have been practicable,[30] and, if observed, would have afforded reasonable protection.[31] If rules are so promulgated that servants have a reasonable opportunity to ascertain their terms, the method of promulgation is immaterial.[32]

Operation of trains.—The necessity of promulgating and enforcing rules of work is well illustrated in the case of railways.[33] A failure to observe rules for the operation of trains, which results in injury to an employe, is usually held actionable negligence.[34] The rules of a railroad company for the government of its

21. In building a bridge between two buildings, the men selected a method of raising timbers by ropes, requiring an expert "rigger." Master held not liable for injury from falling timber caused by improper tying by a carpenter. Riverside Mills v. Jones [Ga.] 48 S. E. 700.

22. Jones v. American Warehouse Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 355. See subsection F.

23. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Swift, 213 Ill. 307, 72 N. E. 737. See subsection G.

24. Johnson v. Union Pac. Coal Co. [Utah] 76 P. 1089. As where it is dangerous and complex, such as operation of a street railway. Moran v. Rockland, etc., R. Co. [Me.] 58 A. 676. An employer engaged in a hazardous business has the right, and it is his duty, to formulate reasonable rules regarding its conduct to secure protection of property and the public and reduce the risks assumed by the employes. Smith v. Centennial Eureka Min. Co., 27 Utah, 307, 75 P. 749. The duty to prescribe rules for the protection of employes is to be determined by the conduct of men in general engaged in like occupations. Hill v. Boston & M. R. Co., 72 N. H. 518, 57 A. 924. A master need not make rules to govern his workmen if his business is such that personal supervision by him is practicable. Punkowski v. New Castle Leather Co., 4 Pen. [Del.] 544, 57 A. 559. Where the practice followed in cleaning out engines was such that the employes engaged in that work and knowing the practice were in no danger so long as they were not careless, no rules were necessary as a matter of law. Lane v. New York, etc., R. Co., 93 App. Div. 40, 86 N. Y. S. 947.

25. Moran v. Rockland, etc., R. Co. [Me.] 58 A. 676; Johnson v. Union Pac. Coal Co. [Utah] 76 P. 1089. The New York Employers' Liability Act creates no liability for failure to make proper rules and regulations; hence an action based on such failure is based on common law. Ward v. Manhattan R. Co., 95 App. Div. 437, 88 N. Y. S. 758.

26. Moran v. Rockland, etc., R. Co. [Me.] 58 A. 676.

27. Danger of repairing electrical fleshing machine obvious. Austin v. Fisher Tanning Co., 96 App. Div. 550, 89 N. Y. S. 137.

28. Shaw v. New Year Gold Mines Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 515; Dooling v. Deutcher Verein, 97 App. Div. 39, 89 N. Y. S. 580.

29. Koszlowski v. American Locomotive Co., 96 App. Div. 40, 89 N. Y. S. 55.

30. A given rule may not be said to be practicable, though it may appear desirable, unless it appears that it has been adopted and used by others, or has been proven efficient by experience and use. Koszlowski v. American Locomotive Co., 96 App. Div. 40, 89 N. Y. S. 55.

31. Koszlowski v. American Locomotive Co., 96 App. Div. 40, 89 N. Y. S. 55.

32. Moran v. Rockland, etc., R. Co. [Me.] 58 A. 676.

33. Construction of particular rules: The meaning of a rule in force at the time of an accident may not be shown by an amendment adopted after the accident. Quinn v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 395. A railroad rule requiring cars on grade sidings to be coupled together when practicable required only the coupling of cars in contact, and did not prohibit leaving spaces between sets of cars. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Pope [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 360. A rule providing that engine men must not leave their engines on sidings, with steam on, except in charge of an employe, and providing what precautions must be taken when an engine is in such situation, has no application to an engine at a coaling station, in charge of the engineer. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Bergshicker, 162 Ind. 108, 69 N. E. 1000.

34. The violation of a rule prohibiting placing of torpedoes on the track at or near stations is negligence per se, for which an employe, injured thereby, may recover. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Burton, 25 Ky. L. R.

employes are obligatory upon those who know them, and to whom they have been promulgated.[35] In providing for the safety of employes, a railway company may assume that its rules are being observed.[36] Rules may be abrogated by disregard of them with knowledge of the company's officers.[37] An express contract whereby an employe agrees to be bound by the rules of the company and waives liability for injuries caused by disregard of such rules, can be rescinded only by mutual disregard of the rules subsequent to the date of the contract.[38]

(§ 3) D. Warning and instructing servant.[39]—It is the master's duty to properly warn and instruct young and inexperienced employes as to the dangers of the employment,[40] if the work required of such servants is such that either

1916, 79 S. W. 231. Sudden increase in speed of train, at a point where it was expected to stop to let workmen off, was negligence. Whisenhant v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 559. Company chargeable with negligence where employes ran a freight train at an excessive rate and engineer failed to sound whistle at a curve, though he had been ordered to look out for hand car, a collision with the hand car resulting and causing death of employe. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Jacobs [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 288. Defendant was negligent where cars on a sidetrack not clear of another track were "cornered," instead of being "shoved" down the track, rules of the company being thereby violated, and switchman thereby injured while making a coupling with defective coupler could recover. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Gearheart [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 325. Failure of one section, when delayed and standing, to send back a flagman or put out lights to warn the rear section of a train, would be negligence rendering the company liable for injuries proximately caused thereby. San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Lester [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 401. Where under the terms of a contract between a lumber company and a railroad, permitting the former to use the railway tracks for its logging trains, the operatives of such trains were to be under the direct orders of the railroad superintendent, and were to display flags to protect themselves from extra trains, running trains without orders or flags was negligence. Roganville Lumber Co. v. Gulf, etc., C. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 816.

35. Little v. Southern R. Co., 120 Ga. 347, 47 S. E. 953.

36. Failure to inform employes in charge of rear section of a train running in two sections that the forward section had been delayed was not negligence, when the collision would have been avoided had the crew of the first section observed the rules (Quinn v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 395), nor would the company be liable for having a freight box car caboose on the rear of the first section, when observance of its rules would have avoided the accident (Id.).

37. A rule requiring great care in the use of hand cars, and the placing of flagmen for their protection where risk of collisions was great, was held to have been abrogated where it had been disregarded for years with the knowledge and acquiescence of roadmasters. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Jacobs [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 288.

38. Disregard of rule requiring use of coupling stick prior to date of plaintiff's employment could not be shown. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Goodwin, 120 Ga. 83, 47 S. E. 641.

39. See 2 Curr. L. 819.

40. Operator of dangerous machine. Creachen v. Bromley Bros. Carpet Co., 209 Pa. 6, 57 A. 1101. Inexperienced operator of knee bolter in shingle mill. Jancko v. West Coast Mfg. & Inv. Co., 34 Wash. 556, 76 P. 78. Employe set to work near dangerous machine. Sachau v. Milner & Co., 123 Iowa, 387, 98 N. W. 900. Failure to instruct ignorant foreigner how to clean out and start a clogged cotton picking machine held negligence. Kasjeta v. Nashua Mfg. Co. [N. H.] 58 A. 874. Failure to instruct young and inexperienced girl employed to operate a wire-cutting machine held negligence. Bowden v. Marlborough Elec. Mach. & Lamp Co., 185 Mass. 549, 70 N. E. 1016. Failing to instruct young and inexperienced girl set to work cleaning machine held negligence. Dolan v. Boott Cotton Mills, 185 Mass. 576, 70 N. E. 1025. Boy of 12, injured while playing with belts in factory where employed, should have been instructed. Lynchburg Cotton Mills v. Stanley, 102 Va. 590, 46 S. E. 908. Petition alleging failure to warn employe—a child of 10—and lack of knowledge of the child held not demurrable. Canton Cotton Mills v. Edwards, 120 Ga. 447, 47 S. E. 937. Failure to instruct inexperienced boy of 10 known by foreman to be working near dangerous machinery, held negligence. Vanesler v. Moser Cigar & Paper Box Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 201. Defendant negligent in failing to explain danger and warn employe engaged in clearing debris in stream from trestle. Stewart v. Texas & P. R. Co., 113 La. 525, 37 So. 129. Boy 14½ years old, employed as office boy, whose duty it was to operate a freight elevator when taking books from office to vault, should have been instructed as to operation of elevator. Lowry v. Anderson Co., 96 App. Div. 465, 89 N. Y. S. 107. Inexperienced operator recovered when he was injured by reason of failure to readjust or instruct him how to readjust his machine after knives in it had been changed without his knowledge. James v. Ames & Co. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 229. Ordering a young and inexperienced boy to remove a hopper of a planing machine, immediately after the power was turned off but before the knives had stopped revolving, with no reason to suppose the boy had knowledge of the danger, was negligence in the general manager. Horne v. La Crosse Box Co. [Wis.] 101 N. W. 935.

experience or instruction is necessary to enable them to do it with safety.[41] Thus the duty exists where the servant is sent to perform dangerous duties outside the scope of his usual service.[42] The sufficiency of such instruction is to be determined by the age, intelligence and experience of the employe.[43] The master must also warn and instruct his servants as to special risks arising from peculiar conditions,[44] and as to those hidden or latent dangers, known or which ought to be known, to the master,[45] but unknown to the servant[46] and not discoverable by him by the use of ordinary care.[47] Failure of a vice-principal to warn a servant of an impending danger is negligence[48] unless the vice-principal was not aware of the danger.[49]

No instruction is necessary as to obvious dangers[50] fully known to the employe[51] or which ought to have been known to him by reason of his experience,[52]

41. Ford v. Bodcow Lumber Co. [Ark.] 83 S. W. 346.

42. Bonnin v. Crowley, 112 La. 1025, 36 So. 842. Telephone employe, inexperienced as lineman, injured by falling of a pole which he was working on, which he had not been instructed to test. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. v. Bills [C. C. A.] 128 F. 272. Common laborer in iron works ordered to assist carpenters in replacing pillars supporting a track. Tennessee Coal, Iron & R. Co. v. Jarrett [Tenn.] 82 S. W. 224.

43. Creachen v. Bromley Bros. Carpet Co., 209 Pa. 6, 57 A. 1101; Giebell v. Collins Co., 54 W. Va. 518, 46 S. E. 569; Lynchburg Cotton Mills v. Stanley, 102 Va. 590, 46 S. E. 908. A young and inexperienced employe must be instructed even as to apparent and incidental dangers, if he does not know of and appreciate them. Ford v. Bodcaw Lumber Co. [Ark.] 83 S. W. 346.

44. Work of piling logs in high tiers by horse power is specially dangerous to man on the pile. Dell v. McGrath [Minn.] 99 N. W. 629. A master who, from necessity, uses dangerous agencies or appliances, must give his servants full information regarding the danger, and full instructions as to the manner of avoiding it. Day laborer excavating for foundation injured by explosion of dynamite which had been used in blasting to loosen frozen soil. Welch v. Bath Ironworks, 98 Me. 361, 57 A. 88.

45. Giebell v. Collins Co., 54 W. Va. 518, 46 S. E. 569. Either actual or imputed knowledge of a dangerous condition of materials furnished a workman is sufficient to render the master liable. Currelli v. Jackson [Conn.] 58 A. 762.

46. Carter v Duvach Lumber Co. [La.] 36 So. 952. Hidden or special dangers involved in the use of appliances. Crane v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 99 N. W. 169. Employer negligent in not warning employe, putting new punches on hydraulic machine, of liability of machine to start up suddenly. Klaffke v. Bettendorf Axle Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 1116. Danger from cogs in machinery connected with crane, the place where they were being dark. Shickle-Harrison & H. Iron Co. v. Beck, 212 Ill. 268, 72 N. E. 423. Mine foreman told driver of dangerous grade, and said he would accompany driver and show him where to sprag the wheels of the car. Failure to make good the assurance was held negligence. Collingwood v. Illinois & I. Fuel Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 283. Where dangers incident to an employment are not apparent, the servant may presume that it is reasonably safe, and that he will be notified of special danger not open to ordinary observation but known to the master. Lebeau v. Dyerville Mfg. Co. [R. I.] 57 A. 1092. Foreman's order to put potash in the water cooler, without precautionary directions to prevent employes drinking the poisoned water, was negligence. Geller v. Briscoe Mfg. Co. [Mich.] 99 N. W. 281.

47. Standard Oil Co. v. Fordeck [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 163.

48. Failure of a foreman standing near to warn a car inspector of danger would be negligence if it was customary to give such warning or the foreman's duty to do so. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Rea [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 428. Where it was customary to shut down a mill for repairs daily, and to give warning to employes before starting it, it was gross negligence for a superintendent to order it to start without a warning, having previously shut it down and directed plaintiff to make repairs. Mathews v. Daly West Min. Co., 27 Utah, 193, 75 P. 722.

49. The conductor of a gravel train was under no duty to warn the servant in charge of the steam shovel of the approach of the engine, when he did not see the latter's position of danger, and the latter servant knew of the method of doing the work. Campbell v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 30.

50. Harrison v. Detroit, etc., R. Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 451. Dangers patent to persons of ordinary intelligence. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Bell, 209 Ill. 25, 70 N. E. 754. As danger incident to taking a derrick apart. Mayer v. Ramsay-Brisbane Stone Co., 119 Ga. 734, 46 S. E. 844. Danger to lineman engaged in stringing cables on street railway poles. Meehan v. Holyoke St. R. Co., 186 Mass. 511, 72 N. E. 61. Danger to telephone lineman stringing wires on building. Fremont Tel. Co. v. Keeler [Neb.] 101 N. W. 245.

51. Wendler v. Red Wing Gas & Elec. Co. [Minn.] 99 N. W. 625. Risk of chest falling from inclined shelf obvious and necessarily known to clerk. Hofnauer v. White Co. [Mass.] 70 N. E. 1038. Servant held to have had such knowledge of a machine that failure to instruct him regarding it was not negligence. McMamus v. Davitt, 94 App. Div. 481, 88 N. Y. S. 55. An allegation of a duty to warn insufficient without allegation of facts showing the duty to warn existed, as want of knowledge, and inexperience.

or by the exercise of ordinary care.[53] There is no duty to instruct as to dangers incident to the employment, and which the servant assumes by his contract.[54] The master will not be liable for failure to instruct unless he himself is chargeable with notice of the danger[55] and of the servant's ignorance of the danger;[56] and a servant who has the same knowledge of the danger as the master cannot recover.[57] In the absence of notice to the contrary, the master may assume that a servant understands the ordinary risks of his employment[58] and that he has the capacity of the average servant of the same age and experience.[59]

The duty to warn and instruct cannot be delegated.[60]

(§ 3) E. Fellow-servants.[61]—The master is charged with the duty of exercising ordinary care to employ and retain only such servants as are reasonably competent to perform their intended duties.[62] He is accordingly liable for injuries to a servant resulting proximately from the incompetency of a fellow-servant,[63] if he had either actual or implied knowledge of such incompetency.[64]

Fortin v. Manville Co., 128 F. 642. Railway employe held to have either actual or imputed knowledge of location of a culvert in a freight yard, so that a warning to him was not necessary. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Price [Ga.] 49 S. E. 683.

52. Conductor under no duty to instruct experienced brakeman as to how to mount a moving car. Weed v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Neb.] 99 N. W. 827. Handhold on top of circus car was placed nearer the end than usual. Held, its position was obvious to a brakeman of experience. Woods v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Wash.] 79 P. 309. Held that decedent, by experience and observation, had adequate knowledge of danger of standing in front of a circular saw when in operation. St. Jean v. Tolles & Co., 72 N. H. 587, 58 A. 506. No necessity for warning a miner of several years' experience in blasting of the danger in charging holes with dynamite. Northern Alabama Coal, Iron & R. Co. v. Beacham, 140 Ala. 422, 37 So. 227.

53. No duty to instruct a minor of intelligence and experience as to dangers readily ascertainable by him. Tucker v. National Loan & Investment Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 879.

54. Shickle-Harrison & H. Iron Co. v. Beck, 212 Ill. 268, 72 N. E. 423.

55. Diehl v. Standard Oil Co., 70 N. J. Law, 424, 57 A. 131. No duty to warn against use of dull chisel in cutting iron, when foreman had no reason to suppose, from workman's conduct, that he would use one. San Antonio Sewer Pipe Co. v. Noll [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 900.

56. Tompkins v. Marine Engine & Mach. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 330, 58 A. 393.

57. Tennessee C., I. & R. Co. v. Jarrett [Tenn.] 82 S. W. 224. Nonsuit proper where no defects were shown, and plaintiff had equal opportunity with defendant to know of dangers. Cartledge v. Pierpont Mfg. Co., 120 Ga. 221, 47 S. E. 586. Employer held not liable for death of servant caused by explosion of varnish when deceased had as much knowledge as employer of the danger and of the proper manner of handling the varnish. Vallie v. Hall, 184 Mass. 358, 68 N. E. 829.

58. Murphy v. Rockwell Engineering Co., 70 N. J. Law, 374, 57 A. 444. A conductor may assume that his brakeman understands his ordinary and customary duties and need not instruct him in regard thereto. Virginia & S. W. R. Co. v. Bailey [Va.] 49 S. E. 33.

59. Punkowski v. New Castle Leather Co., 4 Pen. [Del.] 57 A. 559.

60. Rogers v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 211 Ill. 126, 71 N. E. 850; Coffeyville Vitrified Brick & Tile Co. v. Shanks [Kan.] 76 P. 856; Welch v. Bath Ironworks, 98 Me. 361, 57 A. 88. Where the master has negligently caused a servant to do work outside his regular employment, without instructing him as to the danger, he cannot escape liability on the ground that a fellow-servant failed to warn him. Grace & Hyde Co. v. Probst, 208 Ill. 147, 70 N. E. 12.

61. See 2 Curr. L. 820.

62. But he does not warrant their competency to fellow-servants. Hilton v. Fitchburg R. Co. [N. H.] 59 A. 625. The master is not always responsible for the conduct of an incompetent servant; he has performed his duty if he has exercised proper care in selecting his servants and in ascertaining their fitness and competency. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 847. A negligent person in a position requiring care and caution is incompetent; thus a ship was liable for injuries occasioned by negligence of a winchman. The Elton, 131 F. 562. It is not against public policy to permit a railroad company to employ persons who have been injured in its service at such labor as they may be able to perform. Bowers v. Detroit S. R. Co., 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 479.

63. Declaration alleging employment of incompetent die setter of power press held good against demurrer. Kasadarian v. James Hill Mfg. Co., 130 F. 62. Master liable for death of employe caused by incompetent boss ordering employe into pit full of hot ashes and then turning water on them. Hunt v. Desloge Consol. Lead Co., 104 Mo. App. 377, 79 S. W. 710. Evidence regarding incompetency of servant held insufficient to show defendant negligent in employing him. Delory v. Blodgett, 185 Mass. 126, 69 N. E. 1078.

64. Havens v. Rhode Island S. R. Co. [R. I.] 58 A. 247. Evidence held to show a general manager of a coal yard had power to hire and discharge servants, so that his knowledge of a servant's incompetency was imputable to the master. Kamp v. Coxe Bros. & Co. [Wis.] 99 N. W. 366. No negli-

The master is entitled to a reasonable time in which to investigate the alleged incompetency of a servant;[65] but actual or implied knowledge of incompetency renders him at once liable.[66] It has been held that where the master has furnished a sufficient number of competent workmen, he will not be liable for the selection of a servant incompetent to perform a particular duty,[67] such selection being the act of a fellow-servant.[68] It is elsewhere held that where the act of selecting servants for particular duties is necessarily delegated, the act is nevertheless that of the master,[69] and if an incompetent servant is selected, and the master or his authorized agent knew, or ought to have known, of such incompetency, the master is liable.[70] But he will not be liable if the selection was made by one who was in fact a mere fellow-servant, and had no authority to make it.[71]

A master who has used due care in the selection of servants is not, at common law,[72] liable for the negligence of fellow-servants,[73] such negligence being gence of section boss proved, where fellow-laborer, ordered to assist in pulling out a tie, struck plaintiff with his pick, when fact that negligent employe was drunk was not known to the boss. Rose v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ky.] 81 S. W. 248.

65. Kamp v. Coxe Bros. & Co. [Wis.] 99 N. W. 366.

66. Where a master has knowledge of a servant's incompetency, he is liable for the death of a servant proximately caused by such incompetency, regardless of whether ordinarily prudent men would have retained such a servant, knowing his incompetency, under the same circumstances. Kamp v. Coxe Bros. & Co. [Wis.] 99 N. W. 366.

NOTE. Negligence in retention of incompetent servants: While the conditions of the master's liability to a servant for negligence of an incompetent fellow-servant have generally been stated as the negligent employment or retention of such servant, most cases have sustained liability solely upon the ground that the incompetent was known to be such before the injury, without a consideration of the question whether the retention of the servant after such knowledge, constituted negligence. But the distinction between negligent employment and negligent retention was carefully considered in L. S., etc., R. Co. v. Stupak, 123 Ind. 210, 23 N. E. 246, where it was held that the mere fact of knowledge by the master was not sufficient to charge him for results of a servant's incompetency without a further finding or conclusive proof that the retention after knowledge was inconsistent with due care. It was said that after information of a servant's incompetency was received by a master, it might well be consistent with reasonable care and diligence to postpone his summary discharge long enough to investigate as to the truth of such information, and, even after being convinced of the incompetency, some reasonable time might be imperatively necessary before the discharge; hence that some delay might be consistent with ordinary care. It was also said, however, that if it appeared that unnecessary delay intervened, the court could declare the negligence as a matter of law. This case is followed by L. S., etc., R. Co. v. Breedlove, 10 Ind. App. 657, 38 N. E. 357, and Schreiber v. U. T. Co., 153 Ind. 609, 613, 55 N. E. 742.

This "Indiana doctrine" is repudiated by the Wisconsin court in Kamp v. Coxe Bros. & Co. [Wis.] 99 N. W. 370, 371, where the true rule is said to be that the master who negligently or knowingly employs or retains an incompetent servant is liable for injuries thereby resulting to fellow-servants who are not themselves negligent, and have not assumed the risk. If he is not negligent in ascertaining the fitness of such an employe when selected, nor in discovering his unfitness afterwards, he is excused; but when he has, or in the exercise of ordinary care ought to have, knowledge of incompetency, he is liable. After such actual or implied knowledge, the question of due care cannot arise. Baulic v. Railroad, 59 N. Y. 356, 359, 17 Am. Rep. 325; Maitland v. Gilbert Co., 97 Wis. 476, 490, 72 N. W. 1124, 65 Am. St. Rep. 137; Whittaker v. Canal Co., 126 N. Y. 544, 549, 27 N. E. 1042; Hilts v. C., etc., R. Co., 55 Mich. 437, 21 N. W. 878, are cited as supporting the Wisconsin view.

67. Where plaintiff, a blacksmith, applied for a helper, and foreman furnished a righthanded striker, who attempted to strike lefthanded blows and injured plaintiff, the master was not liable. Hilton v. Fitchburg R. Co. [N. H.] 59 A. 625.

68. Hilton v. Fitchburg R. Co. [N. H.] 59 A. 625.

69, 70. Hilton & D. Lumber Co. v. Ingram, 119 Ga. 652, 46 S. E. 895.

71. Where the master has furnished competent servants he is not responsible for the act of a fellow-servant, who without authority transfers a servant from work he is competent to do, to work for which he is unfitted. Hilton & D. Lumber Co. v. Ingram, 119 Ga. 652, 46 S. E. 895.

72. Common-law fellow-servant rule is in force in Indian Territory, under Mansf. Dig. § 566 and Act Cong. May 2, 1890, c. 182, of which the court will take judicial notice. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Arnett [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 599; Overton v. McCabe [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 861; Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Keefe [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 679. Driver of a wagon carrying rock and a foreman in charge of unloading, who ran the hoisting engine in the engineer's absence, were fellow-servants; hence for the latter's negligence, the former could recover only under the statute [Laws 1902, p. 1748, c. 600]. Randall v. Holbrook, C. & D. Contracting Co., 95 App. Div. 336, 88 N. Y. S. 681.

73. Peterson v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Conn.] 59 A. 502; Wells v. O'Hare, 209 Ill. 627, 70 N. E. 1056; Gillen v. McAllister, 97 an assumed risk.[74] But if negligence of a fellow-servant is not the sole cause of injury, but merely concurs with negligence of the master to produce it, the master is liable.[75]

Determination of relation. Common-law rules.[76]—What constitutes the relation of fellow-servants is a question of general law,[77] and state courts need not apply the rule adopted by Federal courts,[78] nor will a state statute create a right of action in a Federal court,[79] though the construction placed on an employers' liability act by the state court will be followed by the Federal courts sitting in the state.[80] After the adoption of the English employers' liability act of 1880, English common law had no relation to a master's liability for injuries to a servant; hence, the decisions of English courts prior to 1880 have no binding force, in determin-

App. Div. 310, 89 N. Y. S. 953. Inspector of air brakes, injured through a brakeman's negligence in opening and closing switches could not recover. Fullmer v. New York, etc., R. Co., 208 Pa. 598, 57 A. 1062. Where section man was injured by a tie which was struck by projecting step on caboose, the only negligence was of a fellow-servant in placing the tie too near the track. Turner v. Detroit S. R. Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 268. No recovery where injury was caused by slippery floor resulting from the spilling of rubber cement by a fellow-workman. McRea v. Hood Rubber Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 1015. Death of servant occasioned by breaking of eyebolt of staging held to be proximately caused by negligence of a fellow-servant, and not by defective appliances. Ennis v. Little & Co. [R. I.] 55 A. 884.

74. Collingwood v. Illinois & I. Fuel Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 283; Murphy v. Grand Trunk R. Co. [N. H.] 58 A. 835; Wells v. O'Hare, 209 Ill. 627, 70 N. E. 1056; Breslin v. Sparks, 97 App. Div. 69, 89 N. Y. S. 627; Sartin v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 27 Utah, 447, 76 P. 219; Evans v. Josephine Mills, 119 Ga. 448, 46 S. E. 674. See subsection F.

75. Klaffke v. Bettendorf Axle Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 1116; Lockwood v. Tennant [Mich.] 100 N. W. 562; Swanson v. Oakes [Minn.] 101 N. W. 949; Strauss v. New York, etc., R. Co., 91 App. Div. 583, 87 N. Y. S. 67; Hicks v. Southern Pac. Co., 27 Utah, 526, 76 P. 625; Virginia & S. W. R. Co. v. Bailey [Va.] 49 S. E. 33; Ray v. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 112; Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 847; Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Pelfrey [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1036; Cole v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 1138; Bonn v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 808. Where a palpably defective plank was furnished, its use by a fellow-servant in construction of a staging did not relieve the master from liability. Farrell v. Eastern Machinery Co. [Conn.] 59 A. 611. If railway track was defective at curve, negligence of the engineer contributing to cause derailment and death of fireman, would be no defense. Shugart v. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 505. Where passageway in factory was allowed to become unsafe, concurring negligence of a fellow-servant did not relieve the master. Colley v. Southern Cotton Oil Co., 120 Ga. 258, 47 S. E. 932. Injury to miner being caused by negligence in leaving the roof in an entry in an unsafe condition, the negligence of a fellow-servant which caused him to be in the entry, could not defeat a recovery by him. Chicago, W. & V. Coal Co. v. Moran, 210 Ill. 9, 71 N. E. 38. Where an injury resulted from the omission of a necessary protective attachment and the act of a foreman in starting it, such act of the foreman was not that of a fellow-servant so as to relieve the master. Bradford v. Taylor [Miss.] 37 So. 812. Where an injury was caused by a negligent act of a foreman, together with an order given by him, there was a recovery against the master, though the negligent act was the act of a fellow-servant. Illinois Southern R. Co. v. Marshall, 210 Ill. 562, 71 N. E. 597. Though fellow servants were negligent in leaving hatchway open, the concurring negligence of the master in not properly lighting the hallway where the hatchway was situated made the latter liable. Schwarzschild v. Drysdale [Kan.] 76 P. 441. If the order of a mine superintendent to carry planks down a stairway in a shaft was negligent, concurring negligence of fellow-servants in executing the order would be no defense to an action by an employe injured. Jensen v. Commodore Min. Co. [Minn.] 101 N. W. 944. That a fellow-servant put up a car door would not defeat a recovery, if the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury was not the improper manner of handling it, but the defective fastening and want of inspection. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Hutchens [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 415. Plaintiff engaged in attaching logs to a cable to be hauled to a logging camp by an engine 60 rods away, was injured by negligence of the engineer in starting the engine. Held, negligence of the engineer concurred with negligence of defendant in not providing a means by which the engineer could signal the plaintiff, and defendant was liable. Conine v. Olympia Logging Co. [Wash.] 78 P. 932.

76. See 2 Curr. L. 823.

77. Kane v. Erie R. Co., 128 F. 474.

78. Even though such Federal rule has been applied to the same facts. Spring Valley Coal Co. v. Patting, 210 Ill. 342, 71 N. E. 371.

79. Rev. St. Ohio, § 3365-22, nonenforceable in Federal court. Kane v. Erie R. Co., 128 F. 474.

80. Statutory notice required in New York is condition precedent to maintenance of action. Crosby v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 128 F. 193.

ing the relation of fellow-servants, upon courts of a state which adopted the common law after 1880.[81]

Courts differ not only as to the rules by which the relation is to be determined, but also in the application of those rules where there is a similarity of facts.[82] It is commonly held that persons intrusted with the management of work,[83] and who have power to control or direct subordinates,[84] are vice-principals, for whose negligent acts, while exercising their authority, the master is respon-

81. Common law was adopted in Wyoming in 1899 (Rev. St. 1899, § 2695), hence English decisions, though entitled to respect, have no binding force in that state. Johnson v. Union Pac. Coal Co. [Utah] 76 P. 1089. (The opinion treats of English cases and the English act of 1880 at some length.)

82. Note: "Judicial efforts to find a criterion of general application in determining when one employe so far represents the employer that he is a vice-principal, and the employer responsible for his negligence resulting in injury to a co-employe, have yielded one of the conspicuous failures of latter-day jurisprudence. * * * The fundamental principle, and one generally accepted, is that, for an employe to be held a vice principal, he must have represented the master in performing the act relied on as a cause of action against the master." Bien v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 986.

"The question as to when a servant or agent may be considered the vice-principal or direct representative of the employer has been variously answered. In some cases it has been held that a superior servant is, by virtue of his rank, a vice-principal as to an inferior servant of the same employer; in others his representative character is made to depend on his authority to employ and discharge his subordinates; according to others, to be a vice-principal, the superior servant must have the entire charge and control of a distinct department of the master's business; and in still others, that relation is made to turn upon the character of the act or service concerning which negligence is charged, rather than upon the rank of the employe by whom such act is done or such service is performed." Beresford v. American Coal Co. [Iowa] 98 N. W. 904.

83. This is the rule in Wyoming. Johnson v. Union Pac. Coal Co. [Utah] 76 P. 1089. Where foreman and assistant foreman of mine were present, the latter assisting, when rails were loaded on a car to be sent into the mine, negligence in the manner of loading the rails was chargeable to the master. Id. A "green hand" was ordered by employe in charge to enter an ash pit, and did so believing it safe, when water was turned on ashes causing his death by scalding from steam. Hunt v. Desloge Consol. Lead Co., 104 Mo. App. 377, 79 S. W. 710.

84. Freight train conductor is a vice-principal. Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Baldwin [Tenn.] 82 S. W. 487. Employe in electric plant not fellow-servant of manager. Bonnin v. Crowley, 112 La. 1025, 36 So. 842. Conductor of train and employes under his direction are not fellow-servants. Rhodes v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 47 S. E. 689. Foreman at brickyard, who had authority to direct employes in proprietor's absence, was not deprived of his authority when proprietor was in the yard but 100 yards away and not in sight. Browning v. Kasten [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 354. A street car conductor, who directs another conductor, off duty, to ride on the front platform, is not a "superintendent" within the meaning of the Employer's Liability Act. McLaughlin v. Interurban St. R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 883. Girl employed in woolen mill to empty baskets of the weavers, directed in her work wholly by the weavers and not by a boss or floor walker, was not a fellow-servant of the weavers. Mayfield Woolen Mills v. Frazier, 25 Ky. L. R. 2263, 80 S. W. 456. Conductor and brakeman on construction train are not fellow-servants. Grant v. Tacoma E. R. Co., 33 Wash. 524, 74 P. 665. One who has authority to control another is not the fellow-servant of the latter, though he himself is subject to the orders of a third person. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Elliott [Ky.] 82 S. W. 374. Street car barn foreman who controlled the running out of cars, and had authority to lay off men, was a vice-principal. Bien v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 986. Head sawyer, who directed operations of tail sawyer—plaintiff—and others in saw mill, held not fellow-servant of plaintiff. Hendricks v. Lesure Lumber Co. [Minn.] 99 N. W. 1125. A contractor who furnished labor and materials to his men and directed them in work of grading and ballasting bed of railway was not a fellow-servant of the men under him, though his work was subject to the direction and acceptance of the engineer. Hooe v. Boston & N. St. R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 341. If foreman in brewery negligently ordered plaintiff into a tub, to clean it, plaintiff could recover from master. Baier v. Selke, 211 Ill. 512, 71 N. E. 1074. Master liable where one with authority to direct servants and conduct the business in the absence of his superiors knowingly furnished a servant a vicious horse. Wysocki v. Wisconsin Lakes Ice & Cartage Co. [Wis.] 98 N. W. 950.

Street railway conductor, not shown to have delegated authority over the motorman, was not a vice-principal, for whose negligence in signaling motorman at railway crossing, the company would be liable. McLeod v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 77. Prior to the fellow-servant statute of Texas, it was held in that state, construing the common law, that an employe in charge of a special department, with power to employ and discharge in his department, was a vice-principal. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Arnett [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 599; Bering Mfg. Co. v. Femelat [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 869. But where a foreman ordered a workman to remove sawdust near a moving circular saw, the act rendered the master liable, though the foreman had no power to employ or discharge. Id.

sible. The mere fact that one intrusted with the exercise of discretionary authority sometimes, or habitually, works as a common hand, does not alone change his relation from that of vice-principal to that of fellow-servant.[85] Whether, in doing a particular act, of which complaint is made, such servant represented the master, depends upon the nature of the act.[86] If the negligence complained of arises out of and is the direct result of the authority conferred on him by the master, the master is liable;[87] but if the negligence charged is an act done by the servant in his capacity as a co-laborer, and not as foreman, the master is not liable.[88] If the act be one which such servant could do in either capacity, it will be held to have been done in the capacity in which it was his special duty to act.[89] An employe can recover from the master for negligence of a superior, with whom he was working at the time, only on proof of gross negligence.[90]

The rule adopted by many courts is that the relation is to be determined by the nature of the service in which the servant was engaged at the time, without reference to rank or title.[91] Since the master's duty to exercise ordinary care

85. Illinois Southern R. Co. v. Marshall, 210 Ill. 562, 71 N. E. 597. As where mine boss drove mule hauling cars of coal at time of an accident, but gave orders to the workman killed. Consolidated Coal Co. v. Fleischbein, 207 Ill. 593, 69 N. E. 963. Superintendent of underground work in mine who directed the work of the men was a vice-principal, though he worked with his men at the same kind and grade of work. Carter v. Baldwin [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 204.

86. Fogarty v. St. Louis Transfer Co., 180 Mo. 490, 79 S. W. 664; Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Baldwin [Tenn.] 82 S. W. 487.

87. Fogarty v. St. Louis Transfer Co., 180 Mo. 490, 79 S. W. 664. The act of a bridge building foreman in selecting an unsafe method of shortening piles, kept in alignment by the use of caps, was in his capacity as foreman. Depuy v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 103. Street car barn foreman negligently ran a car out, crushing the motorman against a sand box; he might have ordered the car run out by an employe. Held, he was a vice-principal while running out the car. Bien v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 986. The fact that a general manager was feeding a planer when he ordered a boy to remove the hopper from the machine, did not change his character from that of vice-principal since it was not the duty of the feeder to give such orders. Horne v. La Crosse Box Co. [Wis.] 101 N. W. 935. Where a superintendent in charge of operations at a mine shaft, attempted to operate the cage in the absence of the engineer, knowing his own incompetency, the mine owner was liable for the resulting death of a miner, thrown from the cage. Beresford v. American Coal Co. [Iowa] 98 N. W. 902.

88. "Dual capacity doctrine" discussed and authorities recognizing it cited and classified, in Fogarty v. St. Louis Transfer Co., 180 Mo. 490, 79 S. W. 664; Baier v. Selke, 211 Ill. 512, 71 N. E. 1074. If superior servant undertakes the duties of a mere operator, the master is not responsible for his acts while so employed. Collingwood v. Illinois & I. Fuel Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 283. Plaintiff and his foreman, engaged in oiling and resetting cable wheels, took turns standing guard to watch for cars. Held, foreman while so watching, was fellow-servant of plaintiff, engaged in oiling. Ryan v. Third Ave. R. Co., 92 App. Div. 306, 86 N. Y. S. 1070. Where several servants in a brewery were accustomed to stop and start machinery, the negligent act of the foreman in throwing off a clutch and starting a tub, thereby injuring plaintiff, was the act of a fellow-servant. Baier v. Selke, 211 Ill. 512, 71 N. E. 1074. A foreman in charge of workmen represents the master only so far as he directs their acts and gives them orders. When the foreman and his men are engaged in a common employment, the master is not liable for the foreman's acts of negligence. Thus, where a foreman, in charge of construction, permitted men to do work in a manner more dangerous than the one in which he had directed it to be done, the master was not liable for the resulting injury. Since the act was not directed to be so done by the foreman, he was a fellow-servant for the time being, and even if negligent, did not represent the master. Fournier v. Pike, 128 F. 991.

89. Freight conductor was vice-principal in signaling engineer to join cars, by which a brakeman, preparing to couple cars, was injured. Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Baldwin [Tenn.] 82 S. W. 487.

90. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Elliott [Ky.] 82 S. W. 374.

91. Kane v. Erie R. Co., 128 F. 474; Wallace v. Boston & M. R. Co., 72 N. H. 504, 57 A. 913; Coffeyville Vitrified Brick & Tile Co. v. Shanks [Kan.] 76 P. 856. So far as shift boss in mine had charge of the safety of miners he was a vice-principal, not their fellow-servant. Bunker Hill & Sullivan Min. & Concentrating Co. v. Jones [C. C. A.] 130 F. 813. Boss driver in mine was vice-principal in calling attention of a driver to a dangerous grade, promising to accompany the driver and show him where to sprag the wheels of the car, and in failing to carry out such promise. Collingwood v. Illinois & I. Fuel Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 283. Workmen, in constructing a platform, are the fellow-servants of one who afterwards uses it; but in the selection of materials for it, they represent the master. Beal v. Bryant [Me.] 58 A. 428.

to provide for the safety of his servants cannot be delegated,[92] any person engaged in the performance of any part of that duty is a vice-principal for whose negligence the master is liable.[93]

92. Dill v. Marmon [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 669; Collingwood v. Illinois & I. Fuel Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 283. The common-law rule of Arkansas, which is in force in Indian Territory, is that the character of the act performed, and not the grade or rank of a servant, determines whether he is a fellow-servant or vice-principal. Where an employé under an engine, preparing it for use, was struck and injured by reason of another employe engaged in similar work, running another engine against the one under which he was working, the two employes were fellow-servants. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Arnett [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 599. Negligence in performance of master's duties renders him liable regardless of the rank or authority of the negligent employe. One who had considerable control of men and at times had charge of a department, was yet a fellow-servant of an employe while holding a ladder for him while working on it. Ruemmeli-Braun Co. v. Cahill [Okl.] 79 P. 260. Failure of a road-master to keep track clear of clinkers is negligence imputed to master, and not that of a fellow-servant of a brakeman injured thereby. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Keefe [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 679.

NOTE. Nondelegable duties: "The duties for which the master cannot escape liability by delegating their performance to an officer, agent, or servant, may be said to include the obligation to furnish the servant a reasonably safe place to work; to exercise reasonable care to avoid injury to the servant while engaged in his service; to exercise like care to furnish and maintain suitable and safe machinery, tools, and appliances with and about which the servant is required to work; to give the servant timely warning of dangers which are known or ought to be known to the master, but are neither known nor patent to the servant; to supply a sufficient number of competent workmen for the safe conduct of the particular labor in which the servant is engaged, and to exercise such direction, control, and supervision over the work as may be required to carry on the same with reasonable safety to all employed therein. Any failure in respect to these duties, whether by the master in person or by any employe to whom their performance is committed, is negligence for which the master may be held liable. This negligence may consist in matters of omission or commission, which latter will include the giving of an improper order. Hankins v. R. R., 142 N. Y. 416, 37 N. E. 466, 40 Am. St. Rep. 616, 25 L. R. A. 396; Dowling v. Allen, 74 Mo. 13, 41 Am. Rep. 298; Con. Coal Co. v. Wambacher, 134 Ill. 57, 24 N. E. 627; Newbury v. Mfg. Co., 100 Iowa, 441, 69 N. W. 743, 62 Am. St. Rep. 582."—Beresford v. American Coal Co. [Iowa] 98 N. W. 902.

93. Burns v. Delaware & A. Tel. & T. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 59 A. 220; Dill v. Marmon [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 669; Baler v. Selke, 211 Ill. 512, 71 N. E. 1074. In Indiana a foreman is held to be a fellow-servant unless the master's duties are delegated to him. Ft. Wayne Gas Co. v. Nieman [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 59. Though there is a conflict, the weight of authority and reason support the proposition that a train dispatcher in issuing orders for the movement of trains, represents the master, and the master is responsible for his acts and negligence. Wallace v. Boston & M. R. Co., 72 N. H. 504, 57 A. 913. But a local telegraph operator and station agent, through whose negligence in reporting a train to the dispatcher a fireman was killed, was held the fireman's fellow-servant, and there was no recovery for the fireman's death, no negligence of the dispatcher being shown. Northern P. R. Co. v. Dixon, 194 U. S. 338, 48 Law. Ed. 1006.

Note: In Beresford v. American Coal Co. [Iowa] 98 N. W. 904, the court remarks that the rule last given in the text is supported by the preponderance of cases, and cites Newbury v. Mfg. Co., 100 Iowa, 441, 69 N. W. 743, 62 Am. St. Rep. 582; McQueeny v. R. R. [Iowa] 94 N. W. 1124, as showing that it is the Iowa rule. The opinion continues: "The substance of the doctrine thus approved is that any employe who is intrusted with the performance of a duty which the law enjoins as a personal duty upon the master is, as to such service, the vice-principal of the master, and in such service his negligence is the master's negligence. This conception of the rule has the advantage over some others, in that while, under some circumstances, more difficult of application, it is less artificial and arbitrary. For other statements of the same rule, see Curley v. Hoff, 62 N. J. Law, 758, 42 A. 731; Ross v. Walker, 139 Pa. 42, 21 A. 157, 159, 23 Am. St. Rep. 160; Lafayette B. Co. v. Olsen [C. C. A.] 108 F. 335, 54 L. R. A. 33. But in applying this rule the word 'rank' is not used as the equivalent of 'authority'; for while it is true that mere rank of a superior servant will not make him a vice-principal, the authority of such servant in respect to the act alleged to be negligent is at all times a matter of prime importance. If he has no authority from the master, then in the very nature of things he cannot be a vice-principal. If he has authority, whether express or implied, his vice-principalship depends upon whether the scope of such authority includes attention to or performance of any of the nondelegable duties of the master; and, if so, then whether the alleged negligent act is referable to any of those duties. Illustrative of the fundamental inquiry into the scope of authority vested in the foreman, boss, superintendent, or superior servant charged as a vice-principal, see Hathaway v. Des Moines, 97 Iowa, 333, 66 N. W. 188; Foley v. Railway, 64 Iowa, 644, 21 N. W. 124; Baldwin v. R. R., 68 Iowa, 41, 25 N. W. 918; Wilson v. Dunreath, 77 Iowa, 429, 42 N. W. 360, 14 Am. St. Rep. 304; Newbury v. Mfg. Co., 100 Iowa, 441, 69 N. W. 743, 62 Am. St. Rep. 582; Swift v. Bleise [Neb.] 89 N. W. 310, 57 L. R. A. 147; Island Coal Co. v. Swaggerty [Ind.] 65 N. E. 1026.

ILLUSTRATIONS. Duty to provide safe

A rule frequently applied is that persons in the service of a common mas-place: Millwright who put up permanent shafting in a negligent manner was the master's agent, and not the fellow-servant of an oiler injured because of such negligence. Lininger v. Westinghouse Air Brake Co. [Pa.] 59 A. 430. Where plaintiff was directed by a coal yard foreman to clear out a clogged coal chute, the foreman promising to attend to the gate of the chute while it was being cleared, the master was liable for an injury caused by the foreman's failure to attend to the gate. Fleming v. Tuttle, 90 N. Y. S. 661. A rear brakeman in charge of signals on rear of train, such signals being required by statute, is not a fellow-servant of one killed in a collision caused by absence of the signals through the brakeman's negligence. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Wicker [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 223. The duty to use due care not to locate stock gaps too near the track cannot be delegated by a railway company and notice of such a defect need not be brought home to the company's executive officers to make it liable. Northern Alabama R. Co. v. Mansell [Ala.] 36 So. 459. An employe who is engaged in assisting a foreman in inspecting blast holes for unexploded dynamite is performing part of the master's duty and is not a fellow-servant of employes who drill the holes or remove the rock after the explosion. Hooe v. Boston & N. St. R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 341. Whether neglect to keep a blast furnace in repair was that of a superintendent, foreman or common workman, was immaterial, since the duty to keep it in a safe condition devolved on the master. National Steel Co. v. Lowe [C. C. A.] 127 F. 311. Held, by divided court, that a brakeman setting a switch is performing the master's duty to provide a safe track, and hence is not, while so engaged, the fellow-servant of the engineer. Richey v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 48 S. E. 285.

Note: This last decision is criticized by the Columbia Law Review as "bad law." The writer says (4 Columbia L. R. 602): "The operation of a switch is not a personal, nonassignable duty of a master, rendering the person operating it his representative instead of a fellow-servant of one injured through its misuse. Daves v. So. Pac. Co., 98 Cal. 19; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Needham, 63 F. 107. Notes 54 L. R. A. 129. The court in the principal case fails to distinguish between the furnishing of safe instrumentalities, and the use of safe instrumentalities. The same court relieved the master from liability where notice of an obstructing train was not given by an employe, the latter being held to act as a fellow-servant in such case. Jenkins v. R. R., 39 S. C. 507. The master's duty of providing a safe place to work was performed by furnishing a good track with safe appliances, and it seems bad law to hold him responsible for the negligent operation of such appliances by a fellow-employe."

Duty to provide and maintain safe appliances: Mulligan v. Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. [Colo. App.] 77 P. 977; Neeley v. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co., 13 Okl. 356, 75 P. 537. Duty to keep 40-foot extension ladder in repair by replacing a rotten round could not be delegated. Twombly v. Consolidated Elec. Light Co., 98 Me. 353, 57 A. 85. A machinist who furnished his helper a defective punch was a vice-principal, though he himself used the punch at times and did the same kind of work with it. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Whisenhunt [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 332. In arranging and adjusting a pile driver for the use of employes, a foreman represented the master, who would be liable for death of an employe caused by negligent omission of a safety device. Swanson v. Oakes [Minn.] 101 N. W. 949. Car starter, who ordered a motorman to start out a defective car, whereby a repairer was injured, was a vice-principal. Quinn v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 91 App. Div. 489, 86 N. Y. S. 883. A station agent who selected an unsafe, open-rack car for transportation of mill refuse, was not the fellow-servant of an employe who was injured by the derailment of a handcar by striking a block which fell from the car so selected. McLean v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 748. Failure of a sealer, whose duty it was to fasten and inspect car doors when cars were being unloaded, to use ordinary care in fastening a door, is negligence of the company for which a truckman may recover. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Hutchens [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 415. If the door was negligently fastened by a breaker, who assisted plaintiff in unloading, the breaker's act in fastening the door, was not the act of a fellow-servant of plaintiff. Id.

Duty to inspect: Failure to inspect cars is negligence of the railway company, though the duty to inspect is delegated. Newton v. New York, etc., R. Co., 96 App. Div. 81, 89 N. Y. S. 23. Negligence of engineer in failing to test boiler after repairs was negligence of the master. Shea v. Pacific Power Co. [Cal.] 79 P. 373. A rule requiring brakemen to inspect trains at division points does not make the brakemen fellow-servants of the regular car inspectors. Newton v. New York, etc., R. Co., 96 App. Div. 81, 89 N. Y. S. 23. If duty of inspecting telephone poles belonged to foreman, he was a vice-principal, and lineman, injured by breaking of pole, could recover from master. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. v. Bills [C. C. A.] 128 F. 272.

Duty to warn: Coffeyville Vitrified Brick & Tile Co. v. Shanks [Kan.] 76 P. 856. Where negligence charged was that of a superintendent of a quarry in failing to give a warning of danger, the defense of fellow-servant was not available. Turrentine v. Wellington, 136 N. C. 308, 48 S. E. 739.

Negligence held that of fellow-servant: The absolute duty imposed upon the master does not require him to oversee and supervise the executive details of the mechanical work carried on by his employes. For negligence of a fellow-servant in the doing of such details, the master is not liable. Dill v. Marmon [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 669. Foreman of section crew is fellow-servant of section hands, and there can be no recovery for his negligence in failing to send signal ahead of hand car, that act not being an act of delegated authority. Whittlesey v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Conn.] 58 A. 459.

ter,[94] engaged in common service, directed to the same general end, are fellow-servants,[95] and for their negligence in the performance of a mere detail of their common employment,[96] the master is not answerable. This test is applied in some courts without reference to the grade of service, or power or authority of the servants,[97] or the fact that they may be employed in different departments;[98] but

Failure of foreman to light lamps, provided by master, in hold of a vessel, was the negligent act of a fellow-servant, for which a stevedore, injured through it, could not recover. Madigan v. Oceanic Steam Nav. Co., 178 N. Y. 242, 70 N. E. 785. Where company furnished safe and suitable materials, and foreman did not cause a safe temporary support for girders in bridge building to be constructed, foreman was held fellow-servant, not a vice-principal. Phoenix Bridge Co. v. Castleberry [C. C. A.] 131 F. 175. Engineer, moving cars on turntable, was not performing a duty of the master, and an employe loading cars on the turntable, could not recover for negligence of the engineer. Peterson v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Conn.] 59 A. 502. The act of a street railway car starter, putting a defective car, marked for repairs, into service, is the act of a fellow-servant, for which a conductor cannot recover from the company. Shaw v. Manchester St. R. Co. [N. H.] 58 A. 1073.

94. Bell boy and elevator boy in hotel are fellow-servants. Kitchen Bros. Hotel Co. v. Dixon [Neb.] 98 N. W. 816.

95. Plaintiff, employed in loading ashes on a car on a turntable, and the engineer and his assistant, in charge of the engine which turned the table, both under same master mechanic, were fellow-servants. Peterson v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Conn.] 59 A. 502. Longshoreman on lighter and driver on dock, both under same control and engaged in loading vessel, were fellow-servants, though latter was in general employ of third parties. Breslin v. Sparks, 97 App. Div. 69, 89 N. Y. S. 627. Blacksmith helpers in machine shop, engaged in common employment at adjoining forges, are fellow-servants. Duff v. Willamette I. & S. Works [Or.] 78 P. 363. Employes charging holes and exploding dynamite in blasting operations are fellow-servants of employes who drilled the holes for the charges. Hooe v. Boston & N. St. R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 341. A roadmaster in charge of work of wrecking train, and conductor of the train, engaged in removing a wreck, are fellow-servants; and where train was divided by agreement between them, and roadmaster was injured by reason of the train in charge of the conductor striking the detached car on which he was standing, he could not recover from the company. McDaniel v. Charleston, etc., R. Co. [S. C.] 49 S. E. 2. Engine wiper and round-house hostler, engaged together in cleaning an engine were while so engaged fellow-servants. Cloyd v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 408. Millwright employed to make repairs in mill, and a hand employed to discharge bales of cotton from second to first floor were fellow-servants, and former could not recover for injury caused by being struck by cotton thrown by latter. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 847. Workman unloading ties from front car of construction train is fellow-servant of the engineer. Overton v. McCabe [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 861. Crew of locomotive engine and employes moving a boiler across a switch track are not engaged in a common employment, and hence not fellow-servants. Ray v. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 112.

96. Where a machine is used in common by several employes and one of them is charged with the duty of keeping it in running order, the negligence of such servant in failing to remedy defects arising in the operation of the machine is negligence of a fellow-servant for which one of the other of such employes could not recover. Helling v. Schindeler [Cal.] 78 P. 710. Failure of a railroad yard foreman to keep promise to watch for trains, whereby an employe clearing a switch was struck, was negligence of a fellow-servant engaged in performing a mere detail of their common employment. Riola v. New York, etc., R. Co., 97 App. Div. 242, 89 N. Y. S. 945. Plaintiff engaged in placing a fender between a pile driver and a dredge was the fellow-servant of the captain of a tug, which caused plaintiff to be crushed, both plaintiff and the tug captain being engaged in the same general enterprise. Belt v. Henry Du Bois' Sons Co., 97 App. Div. 392, 89 N. Y. S. 1072. The act of a laundrywoman in turning an electric switch connected with fans, instead of the one connected with the laundry, thereby injuring one inspecting a fan, was the act of a fellow-servant. Dooling v. Deutscher Verein, 97 App. Div. 39, 89 N. Y. S. 580. One engaged in locomotive shops in repairing a crane, not to make it safe, but in order to carry on the ordinary work of the shop, is a fellow-servant of a common laborer in the shop. Koszlowski v. American Locomotive Co., 96 App. Div. 40, 89 N. Y. S. 55. Failure of an employe to stop a saw when he saw another attempting to remove sawdust from near it would be the act of a fellow-servant for which there could be no recovery unless the injured man was acting under orders of a superior. Bering Mfg. Co. v. Femelat [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 869. Where several men were engaged in limestone quarrying, and blasting, the failure of a servant engaged in blasting to warn another servant who was struck by a rock thrown by the explosion, was negligence of a fellow-servant for which there could be no recovery. Kelly Island Lime & Transport Co. v. Pachuta, 69 Ohio St. 462, 69 N. E. 988.

97. Shift boss in mine, with authority to suspend but not to discharge, did not represent the master, so that notice to him of a servant's incompetency would be notice to the master. Weeks v. Scharer [C. C. A.] 129 F. 333. Under this rule, as applied in Idaho, a foreman of a fence gang, riding on a hand car, was held the fellow-servant of in Texas, it seems that such servants must be of the same grade;[99] and in Kentucky, employes engaged in distinct departments, are not fellow-servants.[1] Servants under the control of separate masters are not fellow-servants.[2]

Other courts hold that to constitute the relation of fellow-servants, employes must so directly co-operate in the particular business in hand,[3] or their usual duties must be so related,[4] or must bring them into such habitual association, that they may exercise upon each other an influence promotive of caution.[5]

Employes going to or from work,[6] or prospective employes on trains to learn their duties,[7] are fellow-servants of the operatives of trains. But express mesa member of the gang on a hand car a short distance ahead. Sartin v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 27 Utah, 447, 76 P. 219.

98. Colley v. Southern Cotton Oil Co., 120 Ga. 258, 47 S. E. 932.

99. Fireman of engine operating steam shovel, being under engineer's orders, was not in the same grade of employment as the engineer. El Paso, etc., R. Co. v. Kelly [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 855.

1. Hostler of engines, and assistant inspector of cars in the yard, not fellow-servants, and latter may recover for negligence of former. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Lowe, 25 Ky. L. R. 2317, 80 S. W. 768. Railway engineer and his fireman are fellow-servants. Shugart v. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 505. Servants of elevator company engaged in moving cars on its switch track, fellow-servants. Sauls v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 39.

2. A winchman employed by a ship is not the fellow-servant of a gangwayman employed by stevedores, though both are engaged in unloading a vessel. The Gladestry [C. C. A.] 128 F. 591. A sailor placed at a winch by officers of a vessel is not a fellow-servant of a stevedore's employes. The Elton, 131 F. 562. Seaman not fellow-servant of a derrick engineer employed by coal company in unloading vessel. Robinson v. Pittsburg Coal Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 324. Employe of contractor not fellow-servant of subcontractor. Dale v. Hill-O'Meara Construction Co. [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 1092. An engineer furnished by defendant to run an engine and operate a hod elevator for a contractor was not the fellow-servant of an employe of the contracter. Moran v. Carlsen, 95 App. Div. 116, 88 N. Y. S. 520.

3. Chicago City R. Co. v. Leach, 208 Ill. 298, 70 N. E. 222; Indiana, etc., R. Co. v. Otstot, 212 Ill. 429, 72 N. E. 387. Men runing engine to cinder pit and man in the pit, fellow-servants, engaged in common employment of cleaning out engines. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Bell, 209 Ill. 25, 70 N. E. 754. "Tub hustlers" in mine, one at surface and one at bottem of shaft, both engaged in raising material from mine and transperting it to mill are fellow-servants. Jackson v. Lincoln Min. Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 727.

4. Conductor and motorman on same car are fellow-servants. Houts v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 161; Godfrey v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 1230. Conductor of one street car and motorman of another are fellow-servants. Stocks v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 79 S. W. 1176. Conductor of a street car is the fellow-servant of the gripman on the train following. Chicago City R. Co. v. Leach, 208 Ill. 198, 70 N. E. 222. Engineer in charge of engine by which cage in mine was raised and lowered is not the fellow-servant of a coal miner, who uses the cage in getting to his work. Spring Valley Coal Co. v. Patting, 210 Ill. 342, 71 N. E. 371. Engineer, operating engine 60 rods from plaintiff, who was attaching cable to logs to haul them in, was not plaintiff's fellow-servant. Conine v. Olympia Legging Co. [Wash.] 78 P. 932. Whenever co-employes under the control of one master are engaged in the discharge of duties directed to one common end, such duties being so closely related that each employe must know he is exposed to the risk of being injured by the negligence of another, they are fellow-servants, and each assumes the risk to which he has thus exposed himself. Donnelly v. Cudahy Packing Co., 68 Kan. 653, 75 P. 1017.

5. Such servants are fellow-servants, theugh net engaged in the same department. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. White, 209 Ill. 124, 70 N. E. 588. Personal acquaintance or the length of time during which the men have worked together is immaterial; when the conditions resulting in habitual association begin, the relation is established. Id. One employed to take engines from depots to roundhouse is net as a matter of law a fellow-servant of a section hand though they were accidentally associated at some times. Indiana, etc., R. Co. v. Otstat, 212 Ill. 429, 72 N. E. 387.

6. An employe of a street railway company is net a passenger while being carried to his work on a "work car," but is the fellow-servant of the operators of the car and cannot recover from the master fer their negligence. Indianapolis & G. Rapid Transit Co. v. Andis [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 145. A railroad flagman, employed at crossings, is fellow-servant of employes running trains there, and remains such until he has left the tracks after his heurs of work are over, hence, he could not recover when struck by train as he was leaving his work. O'Neil v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 130 F. 204. An employe of a common carrier, riding free because of his employment, but not at the time engaged in service, cannot recover for injuries sustained by reason of the negligence of a fellow-servant. McLaughlin v. Interurban St. R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 883. A conductor, off duty, riding free on the platform of a street car, cannot recover for negligence of the driver, the two being fellow-servants. Id.

7. Huntzicker v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 548.

sengers,[8] mail agents, and other persons, carried on trains under special contracts between the company and their employers, are held not fellow-servants of the train crews.[9]

Employers' Liability Acts.[10]—The operation of the common law rule that there can be no recovery for negligence of a fellow-servant has been limited by statute in many states, the limitation being frequently confined to employes of railroad corporations. Decisions under these statutes are grouped, by states, in the notes.[11] Statutes excepting railroad risks from the operation of the fellow-serv-

8. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. O'Brien, 132 F. 593.

9. Plaintiff, being conveyed to stock houses of his employer to clean out defendant's cars in which stock belonging to plaintiff's employer had been hauled, was a passenger, and not a fellow-servant of defendant's servants. Holmes v. Birmingham Southern R. Co., 140 Ala. 208, 37 So. 338.

10. See 2 Curr. L. 821.

11. Alabama: Where recovery is sought on ground of negligence of one in charge of a locomotive on the track (under employers' liability act), proof of an intent to injure plaintiff is not necessary, even though plaintiff is guilty of contributory negligence. Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Williams, 140 Ala. 230, 37 So. 255. An action by an administrator to recover for the wrongful death of his intestate, in which no negligence or other wrongful act is imputed to a fellow-servant of the intestate is not brought under the employers' liability act, but under the statute giving a right of action to a personal representative for death of his intestate, if the intestate could have himself maintained the action if the wrong had not resulted in his death. Northern Alabama R. Co. v. Mansell [Ala.] 36 So. 459. Hence the right of recovery in such action is controlled by common-law principles, including the doctrine that no recovery can be had for negligence of a fellow-servant. Id.

Indiana: Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 7083. The act applies only when the party charged with negligence is a corporation. Ft. Wayne Gas Co. v. Nieman [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 59. Subd. 2 gives a cause of action for negligence of a superior servant who has authority to give an order, in the execution of which the servant claiming damages was injured. Muncie Pulp Co. v. Davis, 162 Ind. 558, 70 N. E. 875. Thus there was a recovery where an unskilled workman was injured while attempting to move an iron bar between jaws of shears, to cut it at a different point, in obedience to foreman's order, negligently given at a time when to do the act was dangerous. Republic I. & S. Co. v. Berkes, 162 Ind. 517, 70 N. E. 815. And where an inexperienced trackman was struck and injured by a buckled rail which he loosened under orders from the foreman, the company was held liable. Southern R. Co. v. Blevins [C. C. A.] 130 F. 688. A railway company is liable for an injury to a fireman resulting from negligence of the engineer in charge, while taking on coal, though the fireman has power to direct the point at which the engine is to be stopped. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Bergschicker, 162 Ind. 108, 69 N. E. 1000. The act creates no liability for negligence of persons in charge of switches. Indianapolis & G. Rapid Transit Co. v. Andis [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 145. Under subd. 4, a conductor may recover from a railway company for injuries caused by negligence of the engineer in charge of the engine on the same train. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Collins [Ind.] 71 N. E. 661. An electric street car is not a "locomotive engine or train upon a railway" within the meaning of subd. 4; and a street railway company is not liable for injuries to employes caused by negligence of servants operating electric cars. Indianapolis & G. Rapid Transit Co. v. Andis [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 145.

Iowa: Street railways are not railroads within the meaning of Code § 2071 exempting employes of railroad corporations from operation of the fellow-servant rule. McLeod v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 77. Under the Missouri construction of the Iowa fellow-servant law as applied to railroads, one employe cannot recover for the negligence of another, unless such negligence was connected with the moving of a train. Hence a member of a bridge gang, injured by negligence of other members while loading a standing train has no right of recovery. Williams v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 79 S. W. 1167. Nor could he recover under the Iowa construction of the law, viz., that the negligence must be in the actual movement of trains, or in some manner directly connected therewith. (See Akeson v. R. Co., 106 Iowa, 54, 75 N. W. 676.) Williams v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 79 S. W. 1167. Iowa statute does not apply to bridge building operations. Depuy v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 103.

Massachusetts: St. 1887, p. 899, c. 270, makes the master liable for negligence of a superintendent. Evidence held to support finding that person in charge of work of loading machine into a wagon was a superintendent within the meaning of the act. Cunningham v. Atlas Tack Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 325. Evidence sufficient to support finding that person in charge of work of unloading freight cars was a superintendent. Murphy v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 330. A superintendent who puts a servant to work in a place dangerous if machinery therein is started owes the servant the duty of reasonable care to see that the machinery does not start. Greenstein v. Chick [Mass.] 72 N. E. 955. Where a servant in charge of a job of painting, who also worked with the other painters, let go of a ladder which he was holding for another workman, whereby the latter fell and was injured, such act was held not an act of superintendence, for which the master was ant rule are constitutional,[12] if they afford equal protection to the employes to liable. Hoffman v. Holt, 186 Mass. 572, 72 N. E. 87.

Minnesota: Gen. St. 1894, § 2701, excepting railroad risks from the operation of the fellow-servant rule is not unconstitutional as class legislation, since it makes no distinction between the liability of railroad corporations, as such, and that of other employers; it applies to a peculiar class of risks, namely, hazards incidental to the operation of railroads. Kline v. Minnesota Iron Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 681. (Discussing former Minnesota decisions on the point.) The proviso in this statute, limiting its operation to completed roads, does not exclude private railroads, such as logging and mining roads, from its operation. Thus a narrow gauge private road used in stripping an iron mine, is a railroad within the meaning of the act, and an employe, injured by a fellow-servant's negligence, in the operation of the road, may recover. Id. The danger to a section man of being struck by waste matter thrown by the fireman while sorting coal is a hazard peculiar to the operation of the railroad, within the meaning of the statute. Section man, so struck and injured may recover, though the fireman is his fellow-servant. Swartz v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 101 N. W. 504.

Mississippi: Under Const. 1890, § 193, providing for recovery for injuries to railroad employes caused by the negligent act of one having a right to direct their services, an employe's right of recovery is not limited to cases where the injury results while he is excuting a special command of his superior; but such right exists wherever the injury results from the negligence of a superior, though he is at the time discharging his ordinary duties, and not the duties of the master, the employe being at the time engaged in his ordinary duties. Southern R. Co. v. Cheaves [Miss.] 36 So. 691.

Missouri: Rev. St. 1899, § 2873, making railway corporations liable to employes for injuries caused by negligence of fellow-servants in the operation of the railway does not apply to street railways. Stocks v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 79 S. W. 1176.

North Carolina: Priv. Laws 1897, c. 56, p. 83. The statute does not make an independent contractor, employed by a railroad company, liable to his employe for injuries caused by a fellow-servant's negligence. Avery v. Oliver [N. C.] 49 S. E. 91. A railway employe, injured by negligence of a fellow-servant while repairing a railway bridge is within the terms of the statute exempting railway employes injured in the course of their employment from the operation of the fellow-servant rule. Sigman v. Southern R. Co., 135 N. C. 181, 47 S. E. 420.

New York: Laws 1902, p. 1748, c. 600. One who gave orders to men unloading stone, and was understood by them to be a foreman in charge of the work, was held a superintendent under the act. Randall v. Holbrook, C. & D. Contracting Co., 95 App. Div. 336, 88 N. Y. S. 681. The failure of a person who had been, and was at the time, acting as a train dispatcher, to see that a servant who was making a coupling had finished and was out from between the cars, before he started the train, was negligence of a superintendent, and not in a mere detail of the work, and the master is liable for the death of the servant so caused, under § 1 of the statute. McHugh v. Manhattan R. Co. [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 312.

Ohio: Bates' Ann. St. § 3365-22. Engineer and brakeman on same train, which is in charge of a conductor, are not in separate branches or departments within the meaning of the statute, and are fellow-servants. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Shanower, 70 Ohio St. 166, 71 N. E. 279. They remain fellow-servants though the train parts, leaving them on one section and the conductor on another, since the conductor is still the superior, and in charge of the train. Id. Engineer of coal tipple and hooker of hoisting apparatus are not fellow-servants. Froelich v. Toledo & O. Cent. R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 6. 87 Ohio Laws, p. 150, § 3, providing that every employe of a railroad company having authority to direct any other employe is not a fellow-servant, but the superior, of such other employe, and also the superior of subordinate servants in other branches or departments is constitutional. Kane v. Erie R. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 681, rvg. 128 F. 474, the court below having held the act unconstitutional because its benefits were restricted to such servants as have no power to control. The law could not be evaded by a sham classification by a road; the court would look to the real grade of service of employes. Id.

Pennsylvania: Under Act 1868 (P. L. 58) one employed by a coke company to shift cars on side tracks in front of its ovens, and a railroad crew engaged in switching empties on those tracks, are co-employes, and the former cannot recover from the railway company for an injury caused by the crew's negligence in leaving a switch open. Laporte v. Pittsburg & L. E. R. Co., 209 Pa. 469, 58 A. 860.

Texas: The fellow-servant law of Texas does not protect employes of street railways. Godfrey v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 1230. The act giving a right of action for wrongful death caused by negligence of employes applies only to common carriers, and not to telephone companies. Fisher v. Texas Tel. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 50. Under Batt's Ann. St., art. 4560ea, one railroad employe may recover for negligence of a co-employe only when both were engaged in operating trains, etc., at the time of the negligence. Hence a hostler, struck by engine in charge of his assistants, while he was walking to the engine, could not recover, he not being engaged in the operation of the engine at the time. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Howard [Tex.] 80 S. W. 229. Crew of men loading flat cars with steam shovel and hauling gravel to a fill were operating a train within the meaning of the statute. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Pelfrey [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1036. Section crew, placing a hand car on the track is engaged in operation of a car. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Jennings [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 822. Section foreman did not assume risk of negligence of engineer and fireman in charge of engine hauling a passenger whom they apply.[13] Such laws are usually held not applicable to street railways[14] or private railroads.[15] Constitutional provisions relaxing the stringency of the common-law fellow-servant doctrine in the interest of railway employes are to be reasonably, not strictly, construed.[16]

(§ 3) F. Risks assumed by servant. Nature of defense.[17]—Assumption of risk is a matter of contract; contributory negligence is a question of conduct.[18] This distinction, carefully observed and pointed out by some courts,[19] is ignored

train. International, etc., R. Co. v. McVey [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 991. Negligence of a foreman in running a hand car on the schedule time of a train is negligence of an employe engaged in operating a car, for which a section hand injured while assisting to remove the car from the track, may recover [Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4560h]. San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Stevens [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 235. Under Sayles' Civ. St. 1889, art. 4560f making a railroad company liable for injuries to an employe caused by negligence of another employe operating an engine, a fireman may recover for failure of the engineer to use ordinary care to keep a lookout. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Keaveney [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 387. Under the same section, a company is liable to a switchman for an injury caused by a defective handhold, notwithstanding ordinary care to discover the defect, providing the defect was due to negligence of the company's servants engaged with the switchman at the time in the operation of the train. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Corrigan [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 554. Under Batt's Ann. St. art. 4560f, making railroad employes entrusted with superintendence of other servants vice-principals, a roundhouse hostler was held a vice-principal as to his two assistants. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Howard [Tex.] 80 S. W. 229. But under art. 4560g, they were his fellow-servants, while engaged in moving engines, since all three were working together in a common work at the same time and place. Hence he could not recover for their negligence. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Howard [Tex.] 80 S. W. 229. A car sealer, whose duty it was to fasten doors of cars being unloaded, was not a fellow-servant of a truckman employed in unloading, under Rev. St. 1895, art. 4560g, defining as fellow-servants all employes of railroads in the same grade of employment, etc. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Hutchens [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 415. Under Gen. Laws 1897, Sp. Sess. p. 14, c. 6, amending laws of 1891 and 1893, the test is whether the railway employes were in the same grade or department of employment. Hence a station porter, under control of station master, and brakeman, under conductor's orders, are not fellow-servants, though both are engaged in unloading freight. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Elmore [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 891. Plaintiff, engaged in changing link bills on cars, held not fellow-servant of other employes engaged in operating cars in switching. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. McAdams [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1076. Fellow-servant rule held no defense if plaintiff was engaged with other servants in operating the train. Id.

Virginia: Under Const. § 162, providing for recovery by a railway employe for the negligence of any servant charged with dispatching trains or transmitting telegraphic or telephonic orders therefor, a locomotive engineer may recover for injuries caused by failure of a telegraph operator to transmit an order sent from the dispatcher's office. Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. Clower's Adm'x, 102 Va. 867, 47 S. E. 1003.

Wisconsin: Complaint by fireman charging engineer with negligence in not stopping engine before reaching a burning bridge held to state a cause of action under Rev. St. 1898, § 1816, making railroads liable for injuries to employes on engine caused by negligence of co-employe. Kath v. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co. [Wis.] 99 N. W. 217.

12. Gen. St. Minn. 1894, § 2701, held not class legislation. Kline v. Minnesota Iron Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 681. The Ohio statute is not invalid for lack of uniform operation because it applies to railroads only and to a particular class of employes. Froelich v. Toledo & O. Cent. R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 6.

13. Kane v. Erie R. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 681, rvg. 128 F. 474. See decisions under Ohio statute, supra.

14. Indianapolis & G. Rapid Transit Co. v. Andis [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 145; McLeod v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 77; Stocks v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 79 S. W. 1176. The Texas statute is held by Missouri court not applicable to street railways. Godfrey v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 1230. See decisions in notes under various states, supra.

15. Rev. St. 1898, § 1816, making railroad corporations liable for injuries to employes caused by the negligence of other employes has no application to a private railroad operated in connection with a logging and lumber business. McKivergan v. Alexander & E. Lumber Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 332.

16. Const. Va. § 162, construed. Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. Clower's Adm'x, 102 Va. 867, 47 S. E. 1003. See same case in notes above.

17. See 2 Curr. L. 827.

18. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Clark, 32 Ind. App. 644, 70 N. E. 828.

19. Note: "Assumption of risk rests upon contract. Negligence rests on tort. Assumption of risk is the voluntary act of an ordinarily prudent man, who, for hire, takes the chance of a known or obvious danger incident to his employment. Contributory negligence is the casual action of a servant without ordinary care, or the omission to do something for his self-protection that an ordinarily prudent person would have done." Dale v. Hill O'Meara Const. Co. [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 1092. See, also, Blanchard-Hamilton Furniture Co. v. Colvin, 32 Ind. App. 398, 69 N. E. 1035; Davis Coal Co. v. Polland, 158 Ind. 607, 62 N. E. 495; Buehner Chair Co. v.

by others.[20] Whether a given risk is assumed is to be determined by reference to the contract between master and servant: the servant, by entering the master's service, impliedly contracts to assume such risks as are obviously incidental and necessary to the particular employment; he also impliedly contracts to assume dangers of which he learns while engaged in his employment, by continuing therein after acquiring such knowledge.[21]

Since a master cannot, by contract, relieve himself from liability for breach of a positive statutory duty,[22] and a servant cannot contract to assume the risk of such breach,[23] it is commonly held that the defense of assumption of risk is not available where the negligence complained of is a violation of a positive statute.[24] But under some statutes, the defense is admissible.[25]

That a risk was assumed will not defeat a recovery unless such risk was the sole proximate cause of the injury.[26]

Fuelnor, 28 Ind. App. 479, 63 N. E. 239; Smith v. Armour & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 675, 676.

20. Thus in Beymer v. Hammond Packing Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 685, the court refused to discuss the "distinction sometimes made between what is known as 'assuming the risk' and ordinary contributory negligence," saying that it could make no difference whether plaintiff's conduct amounted to one or the other, since either would defeat a recovery, and plaintiff was certainly guilty of such conduct as would defeat a recovery. In this case plaintiff was injured by a ham conveyor in a packing house running off the track. He had been similarly injured before, and did not ascertain positively whether the switch had been closed, though he knew the danger of leaving it open.

21. Avery v. Nordyke & M. Co. [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 888. Acceptance of employment shows willingness to assume ordinary risks. Dunkerley v. Webendorfer Mach. Co. [N. J. Law] 58 A. 94.

22. Under Comp. Laws, § 5349, requiring set screws to be guarded when factory inspector so orders, defense of assumption of risk is not available. Sipes v. Michigan Starch Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 447.

23. As breach of a statute requiring machinery to be guarded. La Porte Carriage Co. v. Sullender [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 922.

24. Green v. American Car & Foundry Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 268. So held under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7087. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Clark, 32 Ind. App. 644, 70 N. E. 828. A servant does not assume the risk of negligence of a superintendent, where the statute provides for recovery for negligence of a superintendent. Murphy v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 330. That miner knew there was no light at the bottom of a shaft would be no defense to an action based on negligence in having no light there, in violation of the statute. Spring Valley Coal Co. v. Patting, 210 Ill. 342, 71 N. E. 371. Defense not available where Illinois mining statute, requiring passageway to be maintained at landing place of cage, was violated. Chicago-Coulterville Coal Co. v. Fidelity & Casualty Co., 130 F. 957. Defense of assumption of risk not open to defendant railway company, under Priv. Laws 1897, p. 83, c. 56, in action for injuries due to defective sand drier. Walker v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 135 N. C. 738, 47 S. E. 675. Knowledge by the servant of defects in machinery, alleged as the cause of injury, is no defense under Const. S. C. 1895, art. 9, § 15. Carson v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 46 S. E. 525. Defense is not available in an action based on a violation of automatic coupler act. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Bromberg [Ala.] 37 So. 395. Under the act of Congress employes of carriers engaged in interstate traffic do not assume the risk of handling cars not equipped with automatic couplers, even after the unlawful use of such car has been brought to his knowledge. Switchman held not to have assumed risk of coupling car with a defective automatic coupler, when the car was on a sidetrack commonly used for trains, though sometimes used for cars to be repaired. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Voelker [C. C. A.] 129 F. 522.

25. Minnesota Gen. St. 1894, § 2248, making it the duty of employers to guard dangerous machinery, does not change the common law as to assumption of risk. Swenson v. Osgood-Blodgett Mfg. Co., 91 Minn. 509, 98 N. W. 645. Defense admissible, though Gen. Laws 1896, c. 68, § 6, requiring gearing and belting to be guarded, has been violated. Langlois v. Dunn Worsted Mills [R. I.] 57 A. 910. Employers' Liability Act, § 3, defining the necessary risks which the act provides a servant shall be held to have assumed, is applicable to all actions by servants based on master's negligence, whether based on liability created by statute or not. Ward v. Manhattan R. Co., 95 App. Div. 437, 88 N. Y. S. 758. Risks incident to the operation of machinery, arising from or augmented by, failure to comply with the labor law, may be assumed, so as to discharge the employer from liability. Plaintiff, though an infant, held to have capacity to assume risk of operating mangle. Sitts v. Waiontha Knitting Co., 94 App. Div. 38, 87 N. Y. S. 911.

26. Though risk of insufficient light in roundhouse was assumed, this would not defeat recovery for injury caused by negligently leaving a shovel in the gangway. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Manns [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 254. Knowledge that hand car had no brake would not defeat recovery when a collision would not have occurred but for an obstruction on the track of which plaintiff had no knowledge. Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Kelly [Tex.] 80 S. W. 79. Though

The defense is available against minors as well as adults;[27] but some courts hold that children under fourteen do not assume the risk of negligence of fellow-servants.[28] Convicts, leased out by the state to employers, do not assume the ordinary risks of the employment, with the assumption of which free men would be charged.[29]

Dangers incidental to business.[30]—The servant assumes the ordinary risks of his employment,[31] of which he either knows or would have known if he had used ordinary care,[32] including those arising from the customary manner of conducting it, when he knows of such custom;[33] and this is so though the employment is necessarily dangerous.[34] The negligence of fellow-servants is an ordinary risk, within the meaning of the rule.[35] an engineer assumed risk of using a headlight known to him to be defective, he did not assume the risk of negligence of an incompetent flagman in giving a signal to proceed with a train, even though the resulting derailment in a washout could have been avoided, had he had a perfect headlight. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Fitzpatrick [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 406. Switchman did not assume risk of injury while making a coupling, caused by defendant's negligently "cornering" cars down a track, instead of "shoving" them down, even though he knew the coupler was defective and was trying to fix it. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Gearheart [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 325.

27. Langlois v. Dunn Worsted Mills [R. I.] 57 A. 910; Williams v. Belmont Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 46 S. E. 802.

28. Conflict in authoritles on this point noted and cases cited pro and con. Evans v. Josephine Mills, 119 Ga. 448, 46 S. E. 674.

29. Simonds v. Georgia Iron & Coal Co., 133 F. 776.

30. See 2 Curr. L. 828.

31. Marks v. Harriet Cotton Mills, 135 N. C. 287, 47 S. E. 432; Neeley v. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co., 13 Okl. 356, 75 P. 537. Locomotive engineer. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Prickett, 210 Ill. 140, 71 N. E. 435; Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Sage [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1038. Brakeman assumes risks of mounting moving cars. Weed v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Neb.] 99 N. W. 827. Motorman. Union Traction Co. v. Buckland [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 158; Garity v. Bullion-Beck & Champion Min. Co., 27 Utah, 534, 76 P. 556. Motorman assumed danger of electric shock when fixing trolley pole. Harrison v. Detroit, etc., R. Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 451. Mine boss assumed risk of being struck by missile falling from above when engaged in making repairs in shaft of mine. Jacobson v. Smith, 123 Iowa, 263, 98 N. W. 773.

32. Murphy v. Grand Trunk R. Co. [N. H.] 58 A. 835; Hightower v. Gray [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 254. Servant of ordinary intelligence hired to do whatever he was directed to do, assumed risk of being struck by derrick boom, swung around by a high wind, the effect of the wind being obvious. Frangiose v. Horton [R. I.] 58 A. 949. Miner 19 years old, with experience, assumed ordinary risks of mining and also risks obvious to one of his experience. Carter v. Baldwin [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 204.

33. Gravel pit foreman, familiar with manner and time of moving cars, assumed risk of being crushed when going between them. Campbell v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 30. Plaintiff employed running extra cars on single line extension of trolley system, operated without danger signals, assumed risk of being struck by a car when putting trolley of his own car on wire. Simmons v. Southern Traction Co., 207 Pa. 589, 57 A. 45. Oiler of cable wheels in excavations along cable road, consenting to employment with knowledge of danger, assumed risks of being struck by cars. Ryan v. Third Ave. R. Co., 92 App. Div. 306, 86 N. Y. S. 1070. If a car inspector knew that it was customary not to set the brake shoes on cars he was inspecting, or in the exercise of ordinary care ought to have known it, he assumed the risk of inspecting cars without the brakes being set. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Rea [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 428. Employe who knew the custom of using a ratchet jack in bridge work assumed the risk incident to the use of such a jack. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Robinson [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 410. Experienced railroad yard employe assumed risk from well known custom of handling cars when switching. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Voelker [C. C. A.] 129 F. 522. Servant of grain company who knew method used by employes in moving cars on company's switch track, without guards or barriers, assumed risk of stepping between cars on the track. Sauls v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 89. Lineman, familiar with method of putting street railway electric cables on poles, assumed the risk of injury from use of that method. Meehan v. Holyoke St. R. Co., 186 Mass. 511, 72 N. E. 61. When telephone company had not assumed the duty of inspecting poles, but it was customary for linemen to inspect them before climbing them, linemen assumed the risks incident to climbing poles after examining them, in the course of their employment. Britton v. Cent. Union Tel. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 844. A car repairer who had worked two years in yard where employes were warned personally by yardmaster and were not protected by blue flag signal system, assumed the risk of working under that system. State v. South Baltimore Carworks [Md.] 58 A. 447.

34. Richards v. Riverside Ironworks [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 437. Servant assumes risk of dangers inherent in rock quarrying which the master cannot reasonably be expected to guard against. Kentucky Freestone Co. v. McGee, 25 Ky. L. R. 2211, 80 S. W. 1113.

The servant does not assume risks which exceed those ordinarily connected with his usual work, such as sudden and unexpected danger,[36] arising from unusual conditions,[37] or dangers encountered in work outside the line of his usual[38] or expected[39] employment. Extraordinary hazards are assumed only when thoroughly comprehended and freely accepted.[40] A servant does not assume the risk of extraordinary and unexpected danger encountered in a voluntary effort to save life.[41]

Known or obvious dangers.[42]—Besides the ordinary risks incident to his employment, the servant assumes such as are plain and obvious;[43] or actually

Child of 14, operating stamping machine, who understood the machine, and was warned to look out for his fingers, assumed the risk of getting them caught, the machine being neither defective nor out of repair. Cohen v. Hamblin-Russell Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 948. Employes on train sent to repair burning bridge assumed incidental risks; hence no duty to warn them of bridge's location. Kath v. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co. [Wis.] 99 N. W. 217. Servant assumed risks of employment while engaged in rebuilding a railway bridge, the use of which was continued during such work. McKenna v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 373. Dangers incident to the employment of making a place of known danger safe are assumed; hence a miner, ordered to fix part of roof in mine, assumed risk of such work. Indiana & C. Coal Co. v. Batey [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 191.

Note: If a servant chooses to enter into an employment involving danger, he assumes the risk, even though the master might have avoided the danger. This being true of an unskilled laborer, the rule is even more strictly enforced against a skilled laborer. Foley v. Jersey City Elec. Light Co., 54 N. J. Law, 411, 24 A. 487; Chandler v. Coast City Elec. R. Co., 61 N. J. Law, 380, 39 A. 674; Johnson v. Devoe Snuff Co., 62 N. J. Law, 417, 41 Am. Rep. 936; McDonald v. Standard Oil Co., 69 N. J. Law, 445, 55 A. 289; Coyle v. Griffing Iron Co., 63 N. J. Law, 609, 44 A. 665, 47 L. R. A. 147. See, also, Beal v. Bryant [Me.] 58 A. 428; Dill v. Marmon [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 669.—3 Mich. L. R. 164.

35. See supra, subsection E.

36. Brakeman did not assume risk of injury by the shifting of the platform on a car of peculiar construction. Hewitt v. East Jordan Lumber Co. [Mich.] 98 N. W. 992. Operator of steam ironing machine did not as matter of law assume risk of injury by sudden swaying of machine due to its instability as shown by the evidence. Thomas v. Exeter, etc., R. Co. [N. H.] 58 A. 838. Sectionman does not assume risk of being struck by refuse slate thrown by fireman while sorting coal. Swartz v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 101 N. W. 504. Inexperienced railroad laborer did not assume risk of getting off a moving flat car. Mitchell v. Chicago & A. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 289.

37. Brakeman did not assume risk of defective crossing gates which projected into his path along the track when he was engaged in his duties. Fearns v. New York, etc., R. Co., 186 Mass. 529, 72 N. E. 68.

38. Grace & H. Co. v. Probst, 208 Ill. 147, 70 N. E. 12. An employe does not assume the risk of doing work outside the line of his employment, when ordered to do it by his superior. Bonnin v. Crowley, 112 La. 1025, 36 So. 842. Operator of planing mill, ordered to run woodworker, did not assume risks of latter employment. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Clark, 32 Ind. App. 644, 70 N. E. 828. Where common laborer in a quartz mill was put to work near dangerous machinery, it could not be said as a matter of law that all the risks he could see and guard against were incident to his employment, so that he assumed them. Merrifield v. Maryland Gold Quartz Min. Co., 143 Cal. 54, 76 P. 710.

39. Consent to employment of a minor at shoveling sand in molding flasks is not a consent to accept risks attending work of wheeling sand to pits in barrows. Dimmick Pipe Works v. Wood, 139 Ala. 282, 35 So. 885.

40. Dean v. St. Louis Woodenware Works [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 292. A servant is not presumed to understand and assume every character of peril or danger that may possibly arise in the performance of his duty; he assumes only known or obvious dangers, knowledge of which is to be fairly presumed. Cobb Chocolate Co. v. Knudson, 207 Ill. 452, 69 N. E. 816. Brakeman does not assume extraordinary hazards, unless he had knowledge of them when he entered the employment, or continued in the employment after learning of them. McCabe v. Montana Cent. R. Co. [Mont.] 76 P. 701.

41. As where section foreman attempted to prevent collision of a passenger train and push car and was killed. International, etc., R. Co. v. McVey [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 991.

42. See 2 Curr. L. 832.

43. Schickle-Harrison & H. Iron Co. v. Beck, 212 Ill. 268, 72 N. E. 423; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Bell, 209 Ill. 25, 70 N. E. 754; Jones v. American Warehouse Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 355; Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 787.

ILLUSTRATIONS. Risks held obvious: Danger from revolving set screw. Archibald v. Cygolf Shoe Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 315. Walking behind car with defective wabbling wheel, which caused lumber loaded on car to become disarranged, so that it struck a post and was knocked off, injuring plaintiff. Truly v. North Lumber Co., 83 Miss. 430, 36 So. 4. Clerk held to have assumed risk of chests falling from inclined shelf, the defect being obvious and necessarily known to her. Hofnauer v. White Co. [Mass.] 70 N. E. 1038. Operator of circular saw, of simple construction, protruding half its diameter through the table, assumed known to him,[44] or which he ought to know, in the exercise of ordinary care,[45] risk of using such saw without a guard. Chicago Veneer Co. v. Walden [Ky.] 82 S. W. 294. Experienced farm hand, between 19 and 20 years old, assumed risk of bundles of oats slipping off loaded wagon, causing him to fall. Tucker v. National Loan & Investment Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 879. Inexperienced employe digging under rock assumed risk of pieces of it falling on him when he struck it with his sledge. Hightower v. Gray [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 254. Experienced brakeman assumed risk of working on foreign car on which handhold was nearer the end of the top of the car than on ordinary cars, such difference in construction being obvious. Woods v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Wash.] 79 P. 309. Experienced switchman, who had worked some months in the yard where injured, assumed the risk of injury from a switch, the construction of which was obvious. Loushay v. Erie R. Co., 88 N. Y. S. 446. Petition did not show that danger of working around an ironer not provided with a fender was not so open and obvious that plaintiff, a woman of mature age, assumed the risk. Klutts v. Gibson Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 404.

Risk held not obvious: Danger in cleaning wool carding machine held not so obvious that plaintiff assumed it as a matter of law. Sauvageau v. River Spinning Co., 129 F. 961. Defect in ladder on car held not so obvious that brakeman assumed risk of its use, as a matter of law. El Paso N. E. R. Co. v. Ryan [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 563. A foreigner, of less than average intelligence, did not, as matter of law, assume the risk attending the cleaning of a cotton picker, when he had not been instructed, had never seen the inside of the machine, and the danger was not obvious. Kasjeta v. Nashua Mfg. Co. [N. H.] 58 A. 874.

44. Kentucky Freestone Co. v. McGee, 25 Ky. L. R. 2211, 80 S. W. 1113. The servant assumes risks which he actually knows, though such risks may not be obvious or discoverable by ordinary care. Southern Ind. R. Co. v. Moore [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 479. Mere familiarity with surroundings and circumstances may be sufficient to create assumption of risk, although there might not be entire familiarity with all circumstances and conditions surrounding the place of accident. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 847. Where a servant was injured by the falling of a pile of iron near the track where he was working, it was held that the fact that his duties did not relate to the department of his master's work which embraced the piling of the iron, would not prevent the application of the doctrine of assumed risk; since whether he was charged with or had actual knowledge of a defect in the pile depended on surrounding circumstances. Avery v. Nordyke & M. Co. [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 888.

Illustrations: Engineer assumed risk of using a headlight which he knew to be defective. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Fitzpatrick [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 406. Clerk, familiar with slippery condition of marble steps to the building where she worked, assumed risk of that condition. Kline v. Abraham, 178 N. Y. 377, 70 N. E. 923. Street car conductor assumes risk of working with a motorman whom he knows to be incompetent by reason of intemperance. White v. Lewiston & Y. F. R. Co., 94 App. Div. 4, 87 N. Y. S. 901. A cranesman on a derrick car who knew the danger of not properly anchoring the car assumed the risk of working on it without so anchoring it. Wagner v. New York, etc., R. Co., 93 App. Div. 14, 86 N. Y. S. 921. Plaintiff held to have assumed risk in use of wheelbarrow runway which he had used and was familiar with. Daily v. Fiberloid Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 554. Plaintiff knew that an elevator could be moved by some one outside the same while he was in it, and therefore assumed that risk. Middendorf v. Schulze, 105 Ill. App. 221. One who attempted to repair a fleshing machine, and directed an assistant not to start the machine, assumed the danger arising from the character of the machine and the assistant's inability to understand English. Austin v. Fisher Tanning Co., 96 App. Div. 550, 89 N. Y. S. 137. Where workmen knew of and consented to use of unsafe rope in fastening a wheel on which staging was built to dismantle it, they assumed the risk. Herbert v. Wiggins Ferry Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 978. Evidence insufficient to prove knowledge of condition of steam reservoir by servant, so that he assumed risk in making repairs on it. Krueger v. Bartholomay Brew. Co., 94 App. Div. 58, 87 N. Y. S. 1054. Brakeman held not to have assumed risk of being struck by pole too near track. Illinois Terminal R. Co. v. Thompson, 210 Ill. 226, 71 N. E. 328.

45. Punkowski v. New Castle Leather Co., 4 Pen. [Del.] 544, 57 A. 559; Standard Oil Co. v. Fordeck [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 163; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Tackett [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 524; Babb v. Oxford Paper Co. [Me.] 59 A. 290; Dowd v. Erie R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 451, 57 A. 248.

Illustrations: Servant whose duty it was to watch descending buckets of an endless chain of a coal conveyor assumed risk of clinkers and ashes falling from a bucket and striking him. Babb v. Oxford Paper Co. [Me.] 59 A. 290. A servant familiar with a machine but who did not know that it could not be stopped by a clutch when loaded, assumed the risk of injuries resulting from placing his fingers between its rollers. Desosiers v. Bourn [R. I.] 57 A. 935. Plaintiff assumed risk of a chisel bar, used in lining rails, slipping, causing him to fall. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 719. Mature employe, who, though inexperienced, showed that he knew the difference in the use of dull or sharp chisels in cutting iron, assumed the risk of using a dull one. San Antonio Sewer Pipe Co. v. Noll [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 900.

Where the servant has the same opportunity as the master to ascertain and avoid danger, he has no recourse against the master for an injury caused by such danger, and he accepts employment upon this implied condition. Engineer could not recover for injury caused by gases from fuses carried in a box in the cab and ignited by friction, since he knew and appreciated the danger. Crane v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa], 99 N.

and in view of his experience.[46] He also assumes the risk of dangers of which he becomes aware in the course of his employment, if he continues to work[47]

W. 169. No recovery for an injury alleged to have been caused by a defective condition of an appliance where it appeared that the servant had equal means with the master of ascertaining such condition. Hobbs v. Bowie [Ga.] 49 S. E. 285. A locomotive fireman, whose duty it was to inspect the locomotive's lights was injured by their leaking. It was not shown that the defects were known to the company, or were such that they ought to have been known. Held, he assumed the risk. Kelley v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 105 Mo. App. 365, 79 S. W. 973.

A servant cannot be said as a matter of law to have assumed a risk unless it is clear that he knew, or by the exercise of ordinary care ought to have known, of the danger. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Howell, 208 Ill. 155, 70 N. E. 15. One who did not know and had no occasion to know of a defect did not assume risks arising therefrom. Bernard v. Pittsburg Coal Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 396. Lowering by hand a heavy circular piece of cast iron not so inherently dangerous as to create assumption of risk by laborer assisting. Harris v. Williams Cocperage Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 924. The fact that an employe hooked a guy into an eyebolt did not charge him with the assumption of the risk of using the tackle, it not appearing that he knew or by reasonable care ought to have known of its defective condition. Caven v. Bodwell Granite Co. [Me.] 59 A. 285. Evidence did not show that plaintiff had, or should have had, such knowledge of the danger of using a brass punch that he assumed the risk of its splitting and putting out his eye. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Whisenhunt [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 332. Employe did not assume risk arising from shovel lying in gangway between engine and tank, unless it was habitually placed there by employes, so that he was charged with knowledge of its position, or unless he had actual knowledge of its position. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Manns [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 254. Mere knowledge of a defect in a chain, not such as to indicate that its use would be dangerous, does not make its use an assumed risk. International, etc., R. Co. v. Jourdan [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 266. Conductor, struck by pole while collecting fares from the running board, held not to have assumed the risk as a matter of law, it not being conclusively shown that he had actual knowledge of the danger, or that it was so obvious that he was charged with such knowledge. Hoffmeier v. Kansas City-Leavenworth R. Co., 68 Kan. 831, 75 P. 1117. Where a scaffold of simple construction, with which plaintiff was familiar, fell because of hammering on support by plaintiff and fellow-servants, plaintiff assumed the risk. Hughes v. Schnavel [Colo. App.] 78 P. 623. Employe not bound to know danger from flying particles of steel when holding a rail that was being cut. Vohs v. Shorthill Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 495. A railway company held liable for an injury to an inexperienced brakeman, on ground that he could not be charged with notice of danger incurred or location of a switch staff which caused the injury. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Fisher, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 593.

46. Experienced workman assumed risk of getting caught in cogs of machine he was operating. Swenson v. Osgood & B. Mfg. Co., 91 Minn. 509, 98 N. W. 645. Operator of mangler in laundry, thoroughly familiar with machine, assumed risk of removing cloth from it without stopping it. Jensen v. Regan [Minn.] 99 N. W. 1126. Experienced employe, with knowledge of such matters, assumed the risk of attempting to move a heavy oak tie with only one helper. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Miller [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 535. Woman of 25, who had worked at mangle for three months, assumed risk of injury by reason of its having no guard. Bier v. Hosford [Wash.] 77 P. 867. Where a train was broken up by a defective coupler, and a conductor was injured while assisting to reassemble it, it was held he assumed the risk incident thereto. Murphy v. Grand Trunk R. Co. [N. H.] 58 A. 835. Mature, experienced mechanic assumed risk of standing on a plank placed on steam chests in engine room, and of such plank tipping up and causing him to fall. Mathias v. Kansas City Stockyards Co. [Mo.] 84 S. W. 66.

47. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Smith, 208 Ill. 608, 70 N. E. 623; Neeley v. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co., 13 Okl. 356, 75 P. 537. Where a servant has equal knowledge with the master of danger incident to his work, and appreciates the danger, he assumes the risk if he continues in the employment. Giebell v. Collins Co., 54 W. Va. 518, 46 S. E. 569. The risk of a new, obvious, danger, arising in the course of employment, discoverable by the use of ordinary care, is assumed by the servant's continuing in the employment without complaint. Dunkerley v. Webendorfer Mach. Co. [N. J. Law] 58 A. 94. It is immaterial when a servant learned of danger, or how the danger arose, whether from natural causes or through the master's negligence, if he remains after learning of it, he assumes the risk incident to remaining. Murphy v. Grand Trunk R. Co. [N. H.] 58 A. 835. That master was negligent in furnishing a teamster with too short lines and a wagon without a seat was immaterial where the teamster continued to work with them and assumed the risk of their use. Limberg v. Glenwood Lumber Co. [Cal.] 78 P. 728. Servant who ran a circular wood saw, complained of defect, had it repaired, expressing satisfaction with repairs, and continued to use it, assumed the risk incident thereto. Masterson v. Eldridge, 208 Pa. 242, 57 A. 515. Brakeman who continued in employment after knowing that an insufficient number of brakemen were employed assumed the risk arising therefrom. Grout v. Tacoma E. R. Co., 33 Wash. 524, 74 P. 665. Street railway conductor who, knowing of company's failure to furnish a sufficient number of cars, continues in the employment, assumes the risks incident to the service under those conditions. Shaw v. Manchester St. R. Co. [N. H.] 58 A. 1073. Platform used by plaintiff became unsafe by reason of cotton bales being without complaint.[48] Mere knowledge of a defective condition will not charge a servant with the assumption of a risk; it must also appear that he appreciated the danger arising from the defect,[49] unless the defect is so apparent and the danger so glaring as to permit no other inference than that the servant, knowing of the defect, knew and appreciated the danger also.[50] Appreciation of the whole extent of the danger is not necessary.[51] The rule that known and appreciated risks are assumed applies to minors.[52]

Reliance on care of master.[53]—In the absence of actual or implied knowledge to the contrary,[54] the servant has a right to rely on the presumption that the master has performed his duties, and supplied a reasonably safe place,[55] reason-thrown on it from third story; held, he assumed the risk. Fortin v. Manville Co., 128 F. 642. Plaintiff, who knew that laundry-women themselves switched on electric current for the laundry, and had expressed dissatisfaction with the custom, assumed risk of injury while inspecting fan, caused by mistake in switching on wrong current. Dooling v. Deutscher Verein, 97 App. Div. 39, 89 N. Y. S. 580. Employe, working under bridge deck which had been raised by jacks assumed the risk of remaining there after being warned that it was to be let down. Ft. Worth, etc., R. Co. v. Robinson [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 410.

48. Iowa Gold Min. Co. v. Diefenthaler [Colo.] 76 P. 981; Crooker v. Pacific Lounge & Mattress Co., 34 Wash. 191, 75 P. 632. A switchman who continues to work, after knowledge of a defect in the track, of which he does not give notice, assumed the risk of danger therefrom. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Mobley, 139 Ala. 425, 36 So. 181. Experienced employe using emery belts, who knew they frequently broke, and could discover and report defects as they became apparent to the repairer, assumed the risk of such belts breaking, when he had not reported a defect and asked for repairs. Taylor v. Withington & Cooley Mfg. Co. [Mich.] 99 N. W. 873.

49. Avery v. Nordyke & Marmon Co. [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 888; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Tackett [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 524; Coles v. Union Terminal R. Co. [Iowa] 99 N. W. 108; Depuy v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 103. Thus mere knowledge of a lack of precautionary measures, without knowledge of a latent danger, will not charge the employe with liability. Burns v. Delaware & A. Tel. & T. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 59 A. 220. Brakeman did not as a matter of law assume risk of using a coupler structurally defective, not being shown to have actual or imputed knowledge of the danger in using it as he did. Brinkmeier v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Kan.] 77 P. 586. That plaintiff knew there were live wires near him did not preclude recovery for injury caused by them when he thought they were insulated and had been told they were safe. Haworth v. Mineral Belt Tel. Co., 105 Mo. App. 161, 79 S. W. 727. Employe, whose usual duties were different, ordered to set bricks on wall of kiln, held not to have assumed risk of its falling, though there were visible defects in it. Browning v. Kasten [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 354. Engineer and fireman not shown to have knowledge of danger of using water containing chlorides in the boiler, so as to have assumed the risk. Nelson v. New York, 91 N. Y. S. 763. Knowledge that a boiler plug leaked did not work an assumption of the risk of its blowing out. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Crum [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 72. Plaintiff did not assume risk of attempting to carry a rail with an insufficient number of men when he was inexperienced, did not know number required, and acted under a foreman's orders. Bonn v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 808. A brakeman injured by falling from cars on a grade siding by reason of the disregard of a rule requiring cars in contact to be coupled together, could not be held to have assumed the risk because he knew of occasional violations of the rule. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Pope [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 360.

50. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Tackett [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 524. Proof that an ordinarily prudent and reasonable man would have appreciated the danger under the same circumstances is sufficient. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Benton [C. C. A.] 132 F. 460; Babb v. Oxford Paper Co. [Me.] 59 A. 290; Young v. O'Brien [Wash.] 79 P. 211. But the age, intelligence, and experience of the servant concerned must be considered. Avery v. Nordyke & Marmon Co. [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 888.

51. Morrow v. Gaffney Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 49 S. E. 573.

52. Youth and immaturity of a servant are insufficient to rebut the presumption that a risk was assumed, raised by knowledge of a danger. Langlois v. Dunn Worsted Mills [R. I.] 57 A. 910. Boy 15½ years old, of ordinary intelligence, assumed risk of going through dark tunnel from coal mine, where motors were run, having passed through several times before. Williams v. Belmont Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 46 S. E. 802. Children under 14 assume risk of dangers which they know and appreciate only. Evans v. Josephine Mills, 119 Ga. 448, 46 S. E. 674.

53. See 2 Curr. L. 829.

54. He is, however, bound by such knowledge of defects as he has acquired, or ought to have acquired, in the ordinarily careful performance of his usual duties, and to that extent may not rely on the presumption that the master has performed his duty. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Tackett [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 524; Kentucky Freestone Co. v. McGee, 25 Ky. L. R. 2211, 80 S. W. 1113; Coven v. Bodwell Granite Co. [Me.] 59 A. 285.

55. Servant going through poorly lighted hallway to his work for the first time did ably safe appliances,[56] and a sufficient number[57] of competent fellow-workmen,[58] and need not make an inspection to discover latent defects.[59] In other words, negligence of the master, or of his representatives, is not one of the ordinary risks of the employment, which the servant assumes.[60] But this rule is frequently not assume risk of falling through open hatchway. Schwarzschild v. Drysdale [Kan.] 76 P. 441. Employe had right to assume that floor over which he was moving heavy machinery was safe. Thompson v. American Writing Paper Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 343. A servant, sent into a place where discovery of a dangerous defect would be difficult, has a right to rely on the presumption that his safety has been reasonably provided for. Clark v. Wolverine Portland Cement Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 845. One employed to assist engineer in locating entry in mine was entitled to assume that master had properly inspected the roof and made it reasonably safe. Wilson v. Alpine Coal Co. [Ky.] 81 S. W. 278. Inexperienced mucker in mine may assume that mine is properly timbered. Mountain Copper Co. v. Van Buren [C. C. A.] 133 F. 1. Where it had been the custom to sand the rails on a certain grade to make it safe, a motorman had the right to assume that this duty was being continuously performed. Union Traction Co. v. Buckland [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 158. Car inspector sent between tender and baggage car to inspect chains had the right to assume that the company had furnished a reasonably safe place to work. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Rea [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 428. Brakeman may assume that his place of work is safe; does not assume risk from low cattle chute over track. Coles v. Union Terminal R. Co. [Iowa] 99 N. W. 108. Bridge foreman did not assume risk of injury from obstructions on track while riding on hand car to and from work. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Keily [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1073. Plaintiff did not assume risk of derailment of a hand car by striking a block which fell from a train ahead, though he saw the car on which the block was loaded in the alleged negligent manner. McLean v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 748. Engineer may assume that company has used ordinary care in inspecting track and keeping it in a reasonably safe condition. Jackson Lumber Co. v. Cunningham [Ala.] 37 So. 445; Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Sage [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1038.

56. Rock Island Sash & Door Works v. Pohlman, 210 Ill. 133, 71 N. E. 428; Klaffke v. Bettendorf Axle Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 1116; Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 787. Roundhouse helper did not assume risk of using defective truck. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 253. Brakeman under no duty to inspect handhold on caboose. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Hoskins [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 369; San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Klauss [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 58. Locomotive fireman under no duty to inspect a lantern globe furnished him to discover defects. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Larkin [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 94. Fireman held not to have assumed risk of going out on defective running board of engine. Ellington v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 218. Operator of freight elevator did not assume risk of its falling, having no knowledge of any defect, and being under no duty to inspect it. Womble v. Merchants' Grocery Co., 135 N. C. 474, 47 S. E. 493. Telephone lineman did not assume risk of coming in contact with live electric light wires, strung on the telephone poles, being under no duty to inspect, and having no knowledge of their condition. Barto v. Iowa Tel. Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 876.

57. Bonn v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 808.

58. And that such servants will obey instructions given them. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Ionte [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 847. Workmen in shale pit instructed to rely wholly on foreman for warnings as to when masses of shale were to be thrown down from above had a right to rely on the observance of the rule. Coffeyville Vitrified Brick & Tile Co. v. Shanks [Kan.] 76 P. 856. A miner may assume that the cage by which he is carried to the surface is being operated by a competent engineer, and does not assume the risk arising from its operation by an incompetent person in the absence of the regular engineer. Beresford v. American Coal Co. [Iowa] 98 N. W. 902.

59. Belt R. Co. v. Confrey, 209 Ill. 344, 70 N. E. 773; Caven v. Bodwell Granite Co. [Me.] 59 A. 285; Standard Oil Co. v. Fordeck [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 163; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Tackett [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 524; Carter v. Duvach Lumber Co. [La.] 36 So. 952.

60. National Steel Co. v. Lowe [C. C. A.] 127 F. 311; Bunker Hill & Sullivan Min. & C. Co. v. Jones [C. C. A.] 130 F. 813; Dean v. St. Louis Woodenware Works [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 292; Depuy v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 103; Neeley v. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co., 13 Okl. 356, 75 P. 537; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Reeves [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 1099; International & G. N. R. Co. v. McVey [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 991. The servant assumes only those risks of his employment which arise after the employer has performed all the duties placed upon him by law. Jenks v. Thompson [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 266. Brakemen assume risk from existence of necessary permanent structures, such as crossing gates, near the track, but do not assume risks arising from their defective construction or lack of repair. Fearns v. New York, etc., R. Co., 186 Mass. 529, 72 N. E. 68. Danger from defective break on street car not assumed by gripman. Cole v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 1138. Switchman does not assume a risk arising from the company's negligence in not keeping its track in a reasonably safe condition. Montgomery v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 66. Evidence of South Carolina law held to sustain instruction that if a trestle was unsafe to the knowledge of the railway company, knowledge of its dangerous condition by deceased would not prevent recovery. Harrill v. South Carolina & G. Extension R. Co., 135 N. C. 601, 47 S. E. 730. A railway employe limited in its application to negligence unknown to the servant,[61] or which was not discoverable by the use of ordinary care in the performance of his duties.[62] It is held in Missouri that knowledge of a neglect of duty by the master does not convert the danger arising therefrom into an assumed risk, if the servant believes, and is justified in believing, that danger may be avoided by the use of due care.[63]

Reliance on orders or assurances of safety.[64]—A servant does not assume a risk involved in executing a direct order of his superior, unless in so doing he acts as no ordinarily prudent person would act,[65] as where the danger is perfectly obvious.[66] So also a servant may rely upon a positive assurance of safety by his does not assume risks of defective appliances. Carson v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 46 S. E. 525. Risk of injury caused by defective fastening of car door and failure to properly inspect it not assumed. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Hutchens [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 415. A risk arising from negligence of a railroad company or its servants is not a risk "ordinarily incident to the employment." Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Kelly [Tex.] 80 S. W. 79. It is the doctrine in Illinois that a servant does not assume risks incident to his employment, if the master, by the exercise of reasonable care, could have prevented or removed or lessened the risk. Wells v. O'Hare, 209 Ill. 627, 70 N. E. 1056. Brakeman did not assume risk of switching crew handling cars in a negligent manner, such manner not being customary, and the members of the switching crew not being his fellow-servants. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. White, 209 Ill. 124, 70 N. E. 588. A section hand does not assume the risk of gross negligence of his foreman in running the hand car on the time of a regular train. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. McIntosh [Ky.] 80 S. W. 496. Bridge watchman did not assume risk of engineer failing to observe usual custom of running train on bridge and failing to keep lookout. San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Brock [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 422. Member of crew engaged in operating train of flat cars and loading them with steam shovel did not assume risk of foreman's negligence in ordering machinery moved when employe was in a place of danger. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Pelfrey [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1036. The fact that work was not unusually dangerous would not defeat recovery if plaintiff's foreman was negligent in the performance of the work. Vicars v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 286.

61. Meehan v. Great Northern R. Co. [N. D.] 101 N. W. 183; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 253; Quinn v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 395. Ordinances limiting rate of speed of trains within the city limits are for the benefit of employes as well as others, and hence the risk of violating such an ordinance is not assumed unless the employe continues in the employment with knowledge that the ordinance is habitually violated. Camp v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 99 N. W. 735. The servant does not assume unusual and extraordinary risks caused by the master's negligence, unless the dangers so created are open and visible, or the servant has knowledge of them. Garity v. Bullion-Beck & Champion Min. Co., 27 Utah, 534, 76 P. 556. A servant assumes risks and dangers of his employment which he knows, appreciates and takes without objection, although they result from the master's negligence. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Benton [C. C. A.] 132 F. 460. One who knows of a risk, which is obvious, and continues to work, assumes the risk, and cannot recover though the defect arises through the master's negligence. Langlois v. Dunn Worsted Mills [R. I.] 57 A. 910.

62. International, etc., R. Co. v. Shaughnessy [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 1026; San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Klauss [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 58.

63. Knowledge of defect in mine roof considered on the issue of contributory negligence; it did not of itself defeat a recovery. Weston v. Lackawanna Min. Co. [Mo. App.] 78 S. W. 1044. A workman does not assume the risk of an appliance, suitable in itself, getting out of order, if he is justified in believing it can be used safely in the exercise of due care. Studenroth v. Hammond Packing Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 487. Mere knowledge of defective condition of track would not defeat recovery unless it was such as to threaten immediate danger, or conductor was not justified in assuming that he could use it safely, in the exercise of due care. Hauts v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 161.

64. See 2 Curr. L. 833.

65. Evidence held sufficient to show plaintiff did not assume risk of driving a vicious mule over dangerous roadway in mine, under a special command. Henrietta Coal Co. v. Campbell, 211 Ill. 216, 71 N. E. 863. Where a servant places himself in a position of danger in obedience to a command of his superior, his knowledge of the danger will not defeat his right of recovery for an injury if he acted with ordinary prudence. Barnett & Record Co. v. Schlapka, 208 Ill. 426, 70 N. E. 343. Unless danger from use of unsafe hydraulic jack was so glaring that no prudent man would encounter it, plaintiff, ordered to use it, did not assume the risk. Wurtenburger v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 68 Kan. 642, 75 P. 1049. Plaintiff struck by train while attempting to remove hand car under foreman's orders did not assume the risk. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Thornhill [Ala.] 37 So. 412. An inexperienced lineman doing particular work under the immediate supervision of a superior did not assume a risk, not obvious, in doing the work. Lord v. Inhabitants of Wakefield, 185 Mass. 214, 70 N. E. 123. An employe who obeys his foreman cannot be charged with having assumed the peril when nothing shows that he knew of the danger to which he was exposing himself. Stewart v. Texas & P. R. Co. [La.] 37 So. 129.

66. An experienced sawyer stood at the side, instead of the end, of a saw while superior, even though he knows there is some danger;[67] but he cannot rely upon such assurances absolutely, so as to avoid the consequences of incurring obvious and special dangers,[68] or such as are ordinarily incident to the employment.[69]

Reliance on promise to repair, after complaint.[70]—Where the servant has complained of a defective condition, and the master has promised to render it safe by repairs, the servant may continue in the employment, without assuming the risk,[71] for such length of time as is reasonably necessary for the making of the required repairs,[72] unless the appreciated danger is so imminent that a man of ordinary prudence would refuse to encounter it,[73] as where the machine or ap-shifting a belt, an obviously dangerous position, while the other would have been safe. The fact that the employer told him to stand at the side was held no excuse. Luckey v. Sofield [N. J. Law] 57 A. 870. Employe, under orders of foreman, assumed risk of going under derailed car supported by jacks, if the situation was such that the danger of so doing was apparent. International, etc., R. Co. v. Royal [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 713.

67. Servants injured, while removing tamping for blasting holes, the superintendent having told them there was no danger, though the charges had not been exploded by the battery. Master held liable. Allen v. Gilman, McNeil & Co., 127 F. 609. Miner who observed a crevice in the mine and called attention of superintendent to it did not as a matter of law assume risk of a boulder falling, his superior assuring him it was safe. Carter v. Baldwin [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 204. Brakeman did not assume risk from defect in coupler, though it was so apparent as to cause discussion, where the conductor assured him it was safe. Grout v. Tacoma E. R. Co., 33 Wash. 524, 74 P. 665.

68. Allen v. Gilman, McNeil & Co., 127 F. 609.

69. Experienced quarryman, sent to remove tamping from drill holes and injured by an explosion, could not shift responsibility on master by showing he relied on foreman's statement that charges had all been exploded. McKane v. Marr [Vt.] 58 A. 721.

70. See 2 Curr. L. 834.

71. Dunkerley v. Webendorfer Mach. Co. [N. J. Law] 58 A. 94; Neeley v. S. W. Cotton Seed Oil Co., 13 Okl. 356, 75 P. 537. Where mine boss had promised to prop up a dangerous roof on being notified of its condition, miner, injured by fall of rock, did not assume the risk. Chicago, W. & V. Coal Co. v. Moran, 210 Ill. 9, 71 N. E. 38. Where servant complained of unguarded cogs, and foreman promised to have them fixed, and servant relied on the promise, and guards could have been furnished, the master was liable for an injury resulting from failure to guard them. Buehner v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 345. Where plaintiff had complained of a careless servant and refused to work with him, evidence held to show he did not assume risk of continuing to work near him, because he had no knowledge of his proximity at the time of his injury, and the master had assured him that he need not work near the careless servant. Allcot v. Kirkham, 91 N. Y. S. 775.

72. Anderson v. Fielding [Minn.] 99 N. W. 357; Studenroth v. Hammond Packing Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 487; Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Baker [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 67; Crooker v. Pacific Lounge & Mattress Co., 34 Wash. 191, 75 P. 632. Held, that a motorman who had returned a car and complained of a defective brake, and received an assurance that it would be repaired next day, continued to use the car in reliance on the promise to repair. Terre Haute Elec. Co. v. Kiely [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 658.

NOTE. Risk assumed after reasonable time to repair: "If the promise is to repair by a fixed time, then after the expiration of the time fixed, the servant assumes the risk from the defects complained of. If the promise to repair is without fixing the time within which the repairs shall be made, the servant may continue the work for a reasonable time, taking the character of the defects into consideration, within which the repairs could or ought to be made, and at and after the expiration of such reasonable time within which to make the repairs, if they are not made, and if the defects are open and known to the servant, and no new promise to repair is made, and the servant continues the work, he assumes the risks incident to the defects of which he complained. Illinois Steel Co. v. Mann, 170 Ill. 200, 48 N. E. 417, 62 Am. St. Rep. 370, 40 L. R. A. 781; Swift v. Madden, 165 Ill. 41, 45 N. E. 979; Counsell v. Hall, 145 Mass. 468, 14 N. E. 530; Missouri Furnace Co. v. Abend, 107 Ill. 44, 47 Am. Rep. 425; Stephenson v. Duncan, 73 Wis. 404, 41 N. W. 337, 9 Am. St. Rep. 806; Gowan v. Hardy, 56 F. 974; Corcoran v. Milwaukee Gaslight Co., 81 Wis. 191, 51 N. W. 328."—Gunning System v. Lapointe, 212 Ill. 274, 72 N. E. 393. In this case a servant complained of a defect in a scaffold and after a promise to repair, continued to use it three days, though the repairs could have been made in two or three hours. Held, he assumed the risk. See, also, Dowd v. Erie R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 451, 57 A. 248, where the same rule is followed.

73. Anderson v. Fielding [Minn.] 99 N. W. 357. Employe in sawmill assumed risk of being struck by slabs thrown from floor above, where the master promised to build a chute and servant continued to work, knowing the danger. Crum v. North Vernon Pump & Lumber Co. [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 193. Danger of walking on slippery cement floor of laundry not so imminent and apparent that none but a reckless person would encounter it. Louisville Hotel Co. v. Kaltenbrun [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1163. Rule adhered to on rehearing, 82 S. W. 378. Continuing to operate a machine on which gear-

pliance complained of as defective is simple, and the defect and danger obvious.[74] The promise to repair must have been relied on by the servant.[75] To entitle a servant to rely upon it, the promise must be positive,[76] and made by one having authority to make it;[77] and must remain unrevoked.[78] The promise need not fix any definite time within which the repairs are to be made;[79] a general promise is construed to mean that the repairs will be made within such time as is reasonably necessary for the purpose.[80] If a definite time is named, the servant may continue in the service until the expiration of the time named.[81]

Where, in an action for injuries, the complaint sets out a promise to repair the defect which caused the injury, the action is in tort, and not in contract.[82]

Risks created by servant.[83]—A servant assumes the risk of a dangerous condition which he himself creates, without authority,[84] or in performing his work in a dangerous manner when a reasonably safe way has been provided for him.[85]

(§ 3) G. Contributory negligence. Nature of defense.[86]—Negligence of a servant which is a contributing[87] or the sole[88] cause of his injury defeats a re-

ing was not guarded held not negligence per se so as to require the case to be taken from the jury. Dowd v. Erie R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 451, 57 A. 248.

74. Danger from defect in axle pin of wagon used to wheel coal was assumed, notwithstanding promise to repair. Baumwald v. Trenkman, 88 N. Y. S. 182.

NOTE. Nature of defective instrument: "It is not in all cases that the servant may relieve himself from the assumption of the risk incident to defects and dangers of which he has full knowledge by exacting from the master a promise to repair. The cases where the rule of assumed risk is suspended and the servant exempted from its application under a promise from the master to repair or cure the defect complained of, are those in which particular skill and experience are necessary to know and appreciate the defect and the danger incident thereto, or where machinery and materials are used of which the servant can have little knowledge, and not those cases where the servant is engaged in ordinary labor, or the tools used are only those of simple construction, with which the servant is as familiar and as fully understands as the master. Webster Mfg. Co. v. Nisbett, 205 Ill. 273, 68 N. E. 936; Illinois Steel Co. v. Mann, 170 Ill. 200, 48 N. E. 417, 62 Am. St. Rep. 370, 40 L. R. A. 781; Meador v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co., 138 Ind. 290, 37 N. E. 721, 46 Am. St. Rep. 384; Marsh v. Chickering, 101 N. Y. 396, 5 N. E. 56; Power Co. v. Murphy, 115 Ind. 570, 18 N. E. 30; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Kelton [Ark.] 18 S. W. 933; Bailey on Master and Servant, § 3103; Barrows on Negligence, pp. 121, 122."—From Gunning System v. Lapointe, 212 Ill. 274, 72 N. E. 393. See, also, Crum v. North Vernon Pump & Lumber Co. [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 193, where the same distinction is made.

But it is held in Kentucky that an employe may rely on the promise to repair, even though the defective instrument is simple in construction; thus the master was held liable after promising to repair a box used in a laundry, which leaked, making the cement floor slippery, so that the plaintiff fell and was injured. Louisville Hotel Co. v. Kaltenbrun [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1163.

75. Daily v. Fiberloid Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 554.

76. Foreman, on complaint being made as to light, said it would soon be light enough Held, not a promise to supply more light. Buehner v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 345.

77. Foreman of gang of carpenters had no authority to promise the foreman of gang of riveters to fix a defect in a scaffold so as to bind their common master. Hempstock v. Lackawanna I. & S. Co., 90 N. Y. S. 663.

78. Neeley v. S. W. Cotton Seed Oil Co., 13 Okl. 356, 75 P. 537.

79. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Baker [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 67. A promise by a foreman to put a guard on gearing "as soon as he could" was sufficiently definite to warrant reliance on it. Dowd v. Erie R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 451, 57 A. 248.

80. Louisville Hotel Co. v. Kaltenbrun [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1163. Rule adhered to on rehearing, 82 S. W. 378.

81. As where promise was to have carpenter make repairs as soon as certain other repairs were finished. Louisville Hotel Co. v. Kaltenbrun [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1163.

82. Louisville Hotel Co. v. Kaltenbrun [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1163.

83. See 2 Curr. L. 835.

84. One who cut a hole in the floor to get quicker access to basement, by ladder, assumed risk of attendant dangers, though the master, on discovering it, took no steps to safeguard it. Sharp v. Durand [N. J. Law] 59 A. 7.

85. Plaintiff could not recover for injury received in running jointer in woodworking shop without the guard which was provided for it. McGinty v. Waterman [Minn.] 101 N. W. 300. Employe was directed to use a stick to clean a corn-shredder in operation, but used his hand instead. Frink v. Potts, 105 Ill. App. 92.

86. See 2 Curr. L. 835. For distinction between contributory negligence and assumption of risk see ante, § 3F and note. Though convicts, leased out, do not assume ordinary risks, they cannot recover if they voluntarily and negligently place themselves in a position of danger. Simonds v. Georgia Iron & Coal Co., 133 F. 776.

87. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Hunsucker [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 556; McIntire v. Pittsburg Steel Foundry Co., 208 Pa. 34, 57 A.

covery. It will not be presumed that a statute, charging a master with positive duties, intended to change this rule of the common law, unless the statute expressly so provides.[89] Accordingly it is usually held that contributory negligence is available as a defense though the action be based on a violation of a statutory duty.[90] But a contrary doctrine is applied where mining regulations are violated, owing to the great danger in that occupation.[91]

Degree of care required of servant.[92]—Only ordinary care is required;[93] that 61; International, etc., R. Co. v. Walters [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 668. If a servant's negligence contributed in any degree or to any extent to bring about his injury, he cannot recover. Camp v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 99 N. W. 735; Little v. Southern R. Co., 120 Ga. 347, 47 S. E. 953.

Where the proximate cause of an injury is a negligent act of the employe, the fact that an act of the master was concurrent with that of the servant, will not render the master liable. Tomaczewski v. Dobson, 208 Pa. 324, 57 A. 718; Meily v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 639; Bering Mfg. Co. v. Femelat [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 869. Brakeman who went between cars instead of using safety coupler appliance could not recover though the more proximate cause of his injury was getting caught in an unblocked guard rail. Gilbert v. Burlington C. R. & N. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 128 F. 529. If plaintiff is guilty of contributory negligence, the mere fact that negligence of the defendant was gross will not render him liable; nothing but a willful act or willful or intentional neglect of duty will authorize a recovery. Chicago, W. & V. Coal Co. v. Moran, 210 Ill. 9, 71 N. E. 38.

On the other hand, negligence not shown to have contributed to produce the injury will not defeat recovery. Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Kelly [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1073; Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Gentry [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 394. Where the act of using the foot in making a coupling while standing on engine footboard was customary and ordinarily safe, such act is not causally connected with the crushing of the switchman's foot, while so making a coupling. Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. Prunty [C. C. A.] 133 F. 13. Knowledge that bottom rung of a ladder was gone would not defeat recovery for injury caused by defect in top rung, of which plaintiff had no knowledge, if he otherwise acted with due care. El Paso Northeastern R. Co. v. Ryan [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 563. Instruction held to properly charge that intoxication alone would not preclude a recovery unless it caused or contributed to cause the accident. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 852. Failure of a workman to obtain a statutory permit for use of dynamite will not defeat his action against his master for injuries received through its use, the servant not having been properly warned or instructed; since the failure to procure the permit in no way contributed to the injury [Gen. St. 1902, § 2618]. Currelli v. Jackson [Conn.] 58 A. 762.

88. Plaintiff's own negligence and not defendant's failure to instruct him held the proximate cause of injury. O'Donnell v. American Mfg. Co., 112 La. 720, 36 So. 661.

89. Langlois v. Dunn Worsted Mills [R. I.] 57 A. 910.

90. So held under Minnesota Gen. St. 1894, § 2248, making it the duty of employers to guard dangerous machinery. Swenson v. Osgood & Blodgett Mfg. Co., 91 Minn. 509, 98 N. W. 645. Also under Indiana employers' liability act. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Cavanaugh [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 239; Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 71 N. E. 218. Violation of Gen. Laws 1896, c. 68, § 6, requiring belting and gearing to be properly guarded did not give right of action, where plaintiff knew gearing to be unguarded. Langlois v. Dunn Worsted Mills [R. I.] 57 A. 910. Const. § 162 and Acts 1901-02, p. 335, c. 322, providing that knowledge of defects shall not bar recovery by a railroad employe for injuries caused by the defects, does not take away the defense of contributory negligence, nor render such knowledge unimportant in determining the question; but under it, mere knowledge does not bar recovery, without other circumstances indicating negligence. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Cheatwood's Adm'x [Va.] 49 S. E. 489. Contributory negligence will defeat a recovery under the automatic coupler act of Congress, though assumption of risk is not an available defense. An experienced brakeman, making a coupling with the link and pin, who used his hand and negligently left it too long between the drawheads, and was so injured, could not recover on the ground that the cars were not equipped with automatic couplers. Denver, etc., R. Co. v. Arrighi [C. C. A.] 129 F. 347.

91. Distinction pointed out and authorities on both propositions cited in Langlois v. Dunn Worsted Mills [R. I.] 57 A. 910. See Riverton Coal Co. v. Shepard, 207 Ill. 395, 69 N. E. 921. See, also, 2 Curr. L. 836, n. 83. The defense of contributory negligence does not lie to an action founded on the willful failure of a mine operator to comply with the Illinois mine statute requiring a passageway to be maintained around landing place of cage. Chicago-Coulterville Coal Co. v. Fidelity & Casualty Co., 130 F. 957. Construction placed on Laws 1899, p. 325, § 33, by Illinois supreme court, is bindir g on federal court. Fulton v. Wilmington Star Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 193.

92. See 2 Curr. L. 836.

93. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. McClifford, 120 Ga. 90, 47 S. E. 590. The fact that a motorman, employed by a carrier, impliedly contracts to exercise a very high degree of care for the safety of passengers, does not impose on him the duty of more than ordinary care for his own safety. Cole v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 81 S. W. 1138. A section hand, working on the track, is under the duty of using ordinary care to discover the approach of trains, but need not keep a constant lookout, the track being clear for some distance. International, etc., R. Co. v. Villareal [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 is, such care as ordinarily prudent persons would exercise under the same circumstances.[94] In determining whether due care was used in a given instance, not only the surrounding circumstances,[95] but the age,[96] experience,[97] and capacity[98] of the servant, must be considered. Mere knowledge of a defective condition which caused the injury is not conclusive on the question of contributory negligence;[99] it must appear that the danger arising from it was appreciated,[1]

S. W. 1063. Negligence is not imputable to a person for failing to look for a danger when, under the circumstances, he had no reason to apprehend danger. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Johnson [Kan.] 77 P. 576.

94. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Hunsucker [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 556; Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Cavanaugh [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 239; Espenlaub v. Ellis [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 527; Bernard v. Pittsburg Coal Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 396; Quinn v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 91 App. Div. 489, 86 N. Y. S. 883; Creech v. Wilmington Cotton Mills, 135 N. C. 680, 47 S. E. 671; Hedrick v. Southern R. Co., 136 N. C. 510, 48 S. E. 830; Turrentine v. Wellington, 136 N. C. 308, 48 S. E. 739; Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Sage [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1038; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Manns [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 254; San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Lester [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 401. That it was customary to run passenger trains on the main line did not excuse the station agent from exercise of ordinary care when walking on sidetrack. Morehead v. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. [Miss.] 36 So. 151. Whether it was a section hand's duty to use reasonable care to discover the approach of a train should not have been submitted to the jury, since that was his duty as a matter of law. International, etc., R. Co. v. Villareal [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 1063.

95. Board placed over hole by truckman slipped, and his foot was injured in a screw. The fact that a hammer and nails lay beside the board, so that it could have been nailed, could be considered on contributory negligence issue. Virginia Portland Cement Co. v. Luck's Adm'r [Va.] 49 S. E. 577. Held not negligence to use a certain bucket, used to hoist excavated materials in railroad work, to hoist a rock, plaintiff being injured when unloading the bucket. Parotte v. Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins, 127 F. 1013.

96. [It will be seen from the following cases that the courts are not in entire harmony as to the degree of care required of children.—Ed.] A child of very tender years is not chargeable with contributory negligence under any circumstances. Coleman v. Himmelberger-Harrison Land & Lumber Co., 105 Mo. App. 254, 79 S. W. 981. The law presumes that an infant between seven and fourteen years of age cannot be guilty of contributory negligence, and in an action by such a plaintiff, the burden is on defendant to overcome this presumption by proof of intelligence and capacity. Lynchburg Cotton Mills v. Stanley, 102 Va. 590, 46 S. E. 908. All children, even though under fourteen, are chargeable with the result of failing to exercise the due care which their physical and mental capacity fits them to exercise. Evans v. Josephine Mills, 119 Ga. 448, 46 S. E. 674. Due care in a child of tender years is such care as its mental and physical capacity fits it to exercise in the particular circumstances [Civ. Code 1895, § 2901]. Canton Cotton Mills v. Edwards, 120 Ga. 447, 47 S. E. 937. Average capacity of others of the same age is the standard. Applied to boy of 13, caught in dangerous machine. Dynes v. Bromley, 208 Pa. 633, 57 A. 1123. Minority of servant does not excuse want of that degree of care to prevent injury to himself which one of his age and intelligence would ordinarily use under similar circumstances. Bering Mfg. Co. v. Femelat [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 869. Error, in instructions, to make no distinction between "ordinarily prudent persons" and plaintiff, a minor 18½ years old. Merrifield v. Maryland Gold Quartz Min. Co., 143 Cal. 54, 76 P. 710. Error to instruct that boy of 18 was not required to use same care as required of an adult. Coleman v. Himmelberger-Harrison Land & Lumber Co., 105 Mo. App. 254, 79 S. W. 981.

97. Where the work of a servant required him to place his hand within 13 or 14 inches of an unguarded saw, the jury could properly consider his youth and inexperience on the issue of contributory negligence, though he did not operate the machine. Sachau v. J. H. Milner & Co., 123 Iowa, 387, 98 N. W. 900.

98. A foreigner of less than average intelligence cannot be held to the same degree of care as that required of men of average intelligence. Kasjeta v. Nashua Mfg. Co. [N. H.] 58 A. 874. An immature, inexperienced employe, incapable of appreciating the danger incident to working around machinery, is not chargeable with contributory negligence. La Porte Carriage Co. v. Sullender [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 922.

99. The mere fact that a servant works at a defective machine is not conclusive on the question of contributory negligence. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Clark, 32 Ind. App. 644, 70 N. E. 828; Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Cavanaugh [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 239. Const. § 162 and acts 1901-02, p. 335, c. 322, provides that mere knowledge of defects by a railroad employe shall not bar a recovery for injuries caused by such defects. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Cheatwood's Adm'x [Va.] 49 S. E. 489. An employe will not be held guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law though it appears that he knew that the defective appliance he used had failed to stop the machine on prior occasions. Going v. Alabama Steel & Wire Co. [Ala.] 37 So. 784. So mere knowledge of existence of an overhead bridge by brakeman did not defeat a recovery for his death caused by his coming in contact with the bridge while on the cars. Hedrick v. Southern R. Co., 136 N. C. 510, 48 S. E. 830.

1. Lebeau v. Dyerville Mfg. Co. [R. I.] 57 A. 1092. The fact that an employe hooked a guy into an eyebolt did not charge him with contributory negligence, unless it appeared that he saw, or by reasonable care ought to have seen, that the tackle was deor was so obvious that no prudent man would have encountered it.[2] Failure to discover a latent defect is not negligence.[3] But failure to remedy a known defect, or give notice of it to the master, is.[4]

Choice of methods.[5]—Needless exposure to danger is negligence.[6] Hence, a voluntary choice of an obviously dangerous way of doing work, when a reasonably safe way is provided, is negligence,[7] if the work could have been as well fective. Caven v. Bodwell Granite Co. [Me.] 59 A. 285, Where a hostler had ridden on ordinary engine tenders past a building in the yards without injury, he was not necessarily negligent in riding on a larger tender, unless he knew it was of unusual size. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Cheatwood's Adm'x [Va.] 49 S. E. 489.

2. Weston v. Lackawanna Min. Co. [Mo. App.] 78 S. W. 1044; Cole v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 81 S. W. 1138; Ahrens & Ott Mfg. Co. v. Rellihan [Ky.] 82 S. W. 993. That employe knew that a hammer used in crushing ore was defective from long use, did not as a matter of law, charge him with negligence in using it. Robbins v. Big Circle Min. Co., 105 Mo. App. 78, 79 S. W. 480. Mere knowledge of a structural defect in a coupler held not to bar recovery. Brinkmeier v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Kan.] 77 P. 586. Use of a defective chain is not contributory negligence merely because the employe knew of the defect, when the defect was not such as of itself to indicate danger. International, etc., R. Co. v. Jourdan [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 266. One may be guilty of contributory negligence though not entirely familiar with all the circumstances and conditions surrounding the place of accident. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 847.

3. A timber, part of apparatus used in moving safes, defective from dry rot, broke, killing servant. Meehan v. Atlas Safe Moving & Machinery Truckage Co., 94 App. Div. 306, 87 N. Y. S. 1031.

4. Defect in rope and appliance by which elevator door was managed. Glasscock v. Swofford Bros. Dry Goods Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 364.

5. See 2 Curr. L. 837, 838.

6. Conductor stepped on track in front of moving train. Libbey v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. [Kan.] 77 P. 541. Railroad watchman who went to sleep lying on ends of ties, held guilty of gross negligence. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Mencer, 25 Ky. L. R. 2250, 80 S. W. 816. Elevator operator held to have deliberately exposed himself to danger. Droney v. Doherty [Mass.] 71 N. E. 547. Operator of mangler attempted to remove cloth from machine without stopping it. Jensen v. Regan [Minn.] 99 N. W. 1126. Servant unnecessarily walked over platform of wagon elevator while another servant was starting it upward. Karch v. Kipp, 90 N. Y. S. 404. Brakeman, running along side of roofs of cars, instead of on running board, and falling by reason of hole cut in roof of car of special make, could not recover. Benson v. New York, etc., R. Co. [R. I.] 59 A. 79. Car repairer stepped in front of a switch engine. Bennett v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 333. Employe working under bridge deck which had been jacked up was negligent in remaining there after a warning that it was to be let down, though he did not fully realize his danger. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Robinson [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 410. The fact that when plaintiff was caught in unboxed cogs, she was after filling for her loom, which she was permitted, but not required to get, held not to defeat recovery. Creech v. Wilmington Cotton Mills, 135 N. C. 680, 47 S. E. 671.

7. Avery v. Oliver [N. C.] 49 S. E. 91; Illinois Steel Co. v. McNulty, 105 Ill. App. 594. Employe used hoist rope to descend into mine shaft, though ladders were supplied, and the rope broke. Gribben v. Yellow Aster Min. & Mill. Co., 142 Cal. 248, 75 P. 839. Brakeman went between cars to couple them, instead of using lever on side of car provided for the purpose. Gilbert v. Burlington, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 128 F. 529. Plaintiff removed some of the guy ropes from a pile driver, before taking off a piece of tackle and pulley, and was injured by its falling. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Swift, 213 Ill. 307, 72 N. E. 737. In repairing a belt, workman did not stop machinery, and went under table on dangerous side, unnecessarily. Schoultz v. Eckhardt Mfg. Co., 112 La. 568, 36 So. 593. Workman passed under suspended lumber instead of going up by ladder provided for him. Slade v. Beattie [Mass.] 71 N. E. 540. Plaintiff, instead of going round by safe path, stepped on a brace in a pit—not made or intended for a bridge—and so fell into the pit, the brace giving way. Gillette v. General Electric Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 255. Engineer caught by set screw in revolving shaft and injured guilty of negligence, since danger was apparent and he could have done the act in a safer way. Kennedy v. Merrimack Pav. Co., 185 Mass. 442, 70 N. E. 437. Station agent could not recover for injuries caused by train striking him when he walked on the bed of the sidetrack, though he might have used space between the tracks, and did not watch for train. Morehead v. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. [Miss.] 36 So. 151. Switchman rode on brake beam of car instead of using stirrup and handhold provided at other end of car. Montgomery v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 66. Brakeman stood between the drawheads in attempting to make a coupling, when he might easily have stood at either side. Caldwell v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 181 Mo. 455, 80 S. W. 897. Brakeman had five ways to mount a moving car and chose the most dangerous. Weed v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Neb.] 99 N. W. 827. Brakeman went between cars, though automatic coupler was provided. Filbert v. New York, etc., R. Co., 95 App. Div. 199, 88 N. Y. S. 438. Employe chose unsafe way of going to and from boiler room. Patterson v. V. J. Hedden & Sons Co., 90 N. Y. S. 1069. Failure to use safe passage way in going to mill negligence, if there was such passage convenient. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 847. Failing to and efficiently performed in one way as in the other.[8] But if more than one reasonably safe method is open, choice of one rather than the other is not negligence,[9] especially if the one chosen is customary, and ordinarily safe.[10]

Reliance on master's care.[11]—Ordinarily, failure of a servant to inspect does not charge him with negligence, since he may assume that the master's duties relative to his tools, appliances, and place of work have been performed,[12] and that the rules of his employer will be observed.[13] A servant is not chargeable with negligence as a matter of law, when he acts in reliance on an assurance of safety by a superior,[14] or when he is executing orders given him by a superior;[15] but stop printing press before attempting to fix it. Newport News Pub. Co. v. Beaumeister, 102 Va. 677, 47 S. E. 821. Choice of dangerous way to operate machinery. Crooker v. Pacific Lounge & Mattress Co., 34 Wash. 191, 75 P. 632.

8. Brakeman not chargeable with negligence in making a coupling on the inside of a curve instead of on the outside, when he could not make the coupling as well on the outside. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Bromberg [Ala.] 37 So. 395.

9. The mere fact that plaintiff might have traveled by different paths, and was injured in passing over the one chosen, does not make him guilty of negligence. Aetna Powder Co. v. Earlandson [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 185. Evidence that plaintiff, injured by falling into trench on way to work, might have come by another path, is not of itself conclusive on issue of contributory negligence. Norris v. Cudahy Packing Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 853. Not necessary for brakeman to choose absolutely safe method of making a coupling, if the method chosen was one which a reasonably prudent person would have selected. Brinkmeier v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Kan.] 77 P. 586. Brakeman was not negligent in making a coupling on the inside and not on the outside of a curve in the track, if such a coupling could have been safely made, had the car not been defective. Hewitt v. East Jordan Lumber Co. [Mich.] 98 N. W. 992. Switchman not negligent in adjusting coupler at one spot rather than another, where there was danger from a rock and an unblocked frog, of which he had no knowledge. Texarkana, etc., R. Co. v. Toliver [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 375.

10. As where switchman attempted to make a coupling with his foot while standing on the footboard of the engine, this being the customary way. Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. Prunty [C. C. A.] 133 F. 13. Motorman in mine not negligent in riding on front of car backwards, when his helper had the only other seat and could keep a lookout, and this was the customary way of riding. Central Coal & Iron Co. v. Pierce, 25 Ky. L. R. 2269, 80 S. W. 449.

But the fact that an act was customary will not alone excuse negligence. That other employes used a hoist rope instead of ladders provided to descend into shaft of mine did not excuse plaintiff's negligence in so doing. Gribben v. Yellow Aster Min. & Mill. Co., 142 Cal. 248, 75 P. 839.

11. See 2 Curr. L. 840.

12. Ahrens & Ott Mfg. Co. v. Rellihan [Ky.] 82 S. W. 993. Servant may rely on presumption that railroad company would not furnish defective car to be used in unloading freight. Foster v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 331. Truckman, employed in unloading cars, under no duty to inspect fastening of car door, when such inspection was the duty of the car sealer. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Hutchens [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 415. Knowledge that a shovel was lying in a gangway would not make an employe guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law, if the master was chargeable with negligence in leaving it there. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Manns [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 254. Miner not negligent as a matter of law in attempting to walk across a lagging in a passageway, put in since he last passed the place. Garity v. Bullion-Beck & Champion Min. Co., 27 Utah, 534, 76 P. 556. A miner, thrown from a cage in which he was being carried to the surface, and killed, was not guilty of contributory negligence, since he was in a place where he had a right to be and had a right to assume the cage was being operated by a competent engineer. Beresford v. American Coal Co. [Iowa] 98 N. W. 902. Brakeman riding on unusually high furniture car was not necessarily negligent in failing to stoop, to avoid an overhead bridge, when the statutory warning by "tell-tales" was not given. Hailey v. Texas & P. R. Co., 112 La. 533, 37 So. 131. Where plaintiff was injured by explosion of dynamite left in an excavation which he was ordered to finish digging, he having no knowledge of the presence of the dynamite which was concealed by mud and water, he was not negligent, and an instruction on contributory negligence was error. Harp v. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 2133, 80 S. W. 510.

13. Bridge watchman justified in assuming that train would be run at usual rate, that usual signals would be given, and reasonable lookout kept. San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Brock [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 422. A brakeman had the right to assume that a rule of the company requiring cars on side tracks to be coupled would be observed, unless a violation of the rule was discoverable by the use of ordinary care; he was under no duty to inspect, to see if it was observed. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Pope [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 360.

14. A mill repairman had a right to rely on the superintendent's statement that he was going to shut down for repairs. Mathews v. Daly West Min. Co., 27 Utah, 193, 75 P. 722. Use of street car with a defective brake was not necessarily negligence, when the motorman was assured by those who selected the cars that it was fit for use. Cole v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 81 S. W. 1138. Inexperienced and ignorant employe in distillery relied on assurance of miller that he such assurance'[16] or order[17] of a superior does not excuse the lack of due care on the part of the servant. If the danger incurred in executing an order is so great and apparent that no prudent man would have encountered it, the fact that the order was given will not relieve the servant from the consequences of his negligence.[18] The question is usually one for the jury,[19] and the fact that an act was done in obedience to orders is pertinent on the issue of the servant's care.[20]

Disobedience of orders,[21] or instructions of a superior,[22] or failure to observe the rules of the employer,[23] or a penal statute or municipal ordinance,[24] will defeat a recovery for injuries proximately caused thereby.

Emergencies.[25]—Unwise or incautious conduct of a servant in attempting to extricate himself from a dangerous position in which he has been placed by negligence chargeable to the master is not negligence;[26] nor will negligence be imputed to a servant who attempts to save life, unless his conduct is rash and reckless.[27] could safely do certain work without a light. He could recover for the resulting injury. Dryden v. H. E. Pogue Distillery Co. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 262.

15. Plaintiff held not guilty of negligence in obeying engineer's directions as to manner of doing work. Bernard v. Pittsburg Coal Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 396. That a brakeman took part in making a flying switch in violation of the company's rules held not to prevent a recovery by him, when the act was ordered by his superiors. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Jones' Adm'r [Ky.] 80 S. W. 484. Evidence held to show plaintiff attempted to make a coupling by direction of a superior; hence there was no choice of methods in which to do the act. Fenn v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 120 Ga. 664, 48 S. E. 141. Brakeman, under instructions from conductor, went between cars to couple them; held not negligence though rules were violated. Carson v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 46 S. E. 525. Railroad laborer, with only a few days' experience, had a right to presume that getting off a flat car in motion was not dangerous, when ordered to do so by his foreman. Mitchell v. Chicago & A. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 289. The servant may assume that the master, in ordering him to do particular work will not expose him to unnecessary danger, and if he acts with ordinary care under the circumstances, and is nevertheless injured, he may recover though he had some knowledge of the danger. Jancko v. West Coast Mfg. & Inv. Co., 34 Wash. 556, 76 P. 78.

16. One who continues to operate an unguarded saw, relying upon a promise to guard it, must use reasonable care to protect himself. Crooker v. Pacific Lounge & Mattress Co., 34 Wash. 191, 75 P. 632.

17. Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Kelly [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1073.

18. Bering Mfg. Co. v. Femelat [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 869; Truly v. North Lumber Co., 83 Miss. 430, 36 So. 4. Danger of being struck by pieces of rock under which employe was tunneling. Hightower v. Gray [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 254. Where plaintiff was injured by a collision between a train and a push car, if his conduct in remaining in a position of danger was not that of an ordinarily prudent person he could not recover, though he claimed he relied on a command of his superior. International, etc., R. Co. v. Tisdale [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 347.

19. Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Kelly [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1073. Servant ordered to use unsafe hydraulic jack. Wurtenberger v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 68 Kan. 642, 75 P. 1049. Where foreman directed employe to set bricks at a kiln, he was not negligent in obeying the direction unless the danger of a wall of the kiln falling was so palpable that no person of ordinary prudence would have encountered it. Browning v. Kasten [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 354. Contributory negligence is not chargeable to an employe who used a dangerous trestle, if its defective condition was known to the company, and he was required to use it in the way he did; but if he was culpably negligent, and acted contrary to his duty, in going on the trestle, he could not recover. Harrill v. South Carolina, etc., R. Co., 135 N. C. 601, 47 S. E. 730.

20. Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Kelly [Tex.] 80 S. W. 79.

21. See 2 Curr. L. 839. Western Mattress Co. v. Ostergaard [Neb.] 99 N. W. 229.

22. Where boy learning duties as railroad employe disobeyed engineer's instructions and was killed, the company was not liable. McMillan v. Grand Trunk R. Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 827.

23. Morrow v. Gaffney Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 49 S. E. 573. Disregard of reasonable rules and regulations and of special instructions regarding handling of cars on a grade. Smith v. Centennial Eureka Min. Co., 27 Utah, 307, 75 P. 749. Brakeman violated rules by retiring to caboose instead of guarding switch, and was killed in consequence. Holland v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 359.

24. Even though such violation was directed or sanctioned by the master. Collision with switch engine; violation of railroad crossing law. Little v. Southern R. Co., 120 Ga. 347, 47 S. E. 953.

25. See 2 Curr. L. 840.

26. San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Stevens [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 235. Plaintiff, engaged in making repairs in mill, was placed in sudden danger by the superintendent's ordering the mill to start up, without a warning. Held, plaintiff not negligent in selecting the mode of making the repairs, nor in giving the wrong order when machinery started. Mathews v. Daly West. Min. Co., 27 Utah, 193, 75 P. 722.

27. Section foreman held not negligent in attempting to get a push car off the track

Discovery of servant's peril; intervening negligence.[28]—Though a servant has been guilty of negligence in placing himself in a position of peril, the master owes him the duty of ordinary care for his safety, after discovering his peril;[29] and the master will be liable if negligence chargeable to him intervenes and proximately causes an injury:[30]

The sufficiency and admissibility of evidence on the issue of contributory negligence is treated in a succeeding section.[31]

(§ 3) H. Actions. 1. In general.[32]—The law of the place where the injury occurred governs the right of recovery.[33] Venue is statutory.[34] to avoid a collision with a passenger train. International, etc., R. Co. v. McVey [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 991. Recovery permitted for death of telephone lineman killed while attempting to cut a live wire which had come in contact with a fellow-employe. Whitworth v. Shreveport Belt R. Co., 112 La. 363, 36 So. 414.

28. See 2 Curr. L. 840.

29. Engineer owed a switchman the duty of trying to save him after discovering him in a position of peril in front of his engine. Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Williams, 140 Ala. 230, 37 So. 255. Where station agent was on the level roadbed of a sidetrack, there being a space between tracks, which he could use, the engineer of a train coming down sidetrack owed him only the duty of ordinary care, even after discovering him. Morehead v. Yazoo, etc., R. Co. [Miss.] 36 So. 151. Failure to escape from under a derailed car after knowledge of negligence of a foreman, liable to result in injury, would be negligence; but an employe in such a situation may rely on the foreman's exercising due care and failure to look out for and discover his negligence would not be contributory negligence. International, etc., R. Co. v. Royal [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 713.

30. Brakeman, negligently walking in front of an engine, stumbled and fell; engineer could have discovered his peril and stopped his engine in time to prevent an accident. Davenport v. F. B. Dubach Lumber Co., 112 La. 943, 36 So. 812. Company liable if engineer could have avoided striking section hand on the track by the exercise of ordinary care after discovering his dangerous position. Hinzeman v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 182 Mo. 611, 81 S. W. 1134. Engineer owed section hand the duty not only of trying to stop the train, but also of sounding the whistle. Id. Complaint alleging that engineer carelessly moved a train after a brakeman had placed himself in a perilous position between cars held to state a cause of action. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Lindsay [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 283. Defense of contributory negligence held not available when conductor's negligence in signaling to start an engine by which gravel train was unloaded was the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury by sudden flying up of cable, the conductor having notice at the time of plaintiff's position of danger. Southern Indiana R. Co. v. Fine [Ind.] 72 N. E. 589.

This rule regarding discovered peril is of course not applicable where the perilous position of the servant was not in fact known, and there was no reason to suppose the servant would put himself in such position. Thus the "last chance" doctrine was held not applicable where a brakeman placed himself in a dangerous position by violating rules and going to the caboose, instead of guarding the switch, since the engineer was not obliged to foresee such violation. Holland v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 359. Railroad watchman left lantern on track and went to sleep on ends of ties; engineer and firemen testified to seeing lantern, and whistling, and that they could not see watchman until within 50 or 60 feet of him, too late to stop. Held, defendant not liable. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Mencer, 25 Ky. L. R. 2250, 80 S. W. 816. Trainmen who saw a section hand near the track, but not in a position of peril, were under no duty to check or stop a train on the assumption that he might place himself in a dangerous position. Helm v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Mo.] 84 S. W. 5.

31. See post, subd. H, 4.

32. See 2 Curr. L. 841. The action given by the employers' liability act is merely cumulative of the common-law remedy and the allegations in support of each are the same except the allegation of notice necessary under the statute. Monigan v. Erie R. Co., 99 App. Div. 603, 91 N. Y. S. 657.

33. Johnson v. Union Pac. Coal Co. [Utah] 76 P. 1089. Common-law fellow-servant rule, as applied in Idaho, where injury occurred, followed in Utah. Sartin v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 27 Utah, 447, 76 P. 219. Texas law governs right to recover for injury occurring in Texas, caused by negligent loading of lumber on a car, though the car was loaded in New Mexico. El Paso, etc., R. Co. v. McComas [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 760. Where contract of employment was made in Illinois, to be, and in fact, there performed, and the accident occurred there, defendant's liability was to be determined by Illinois law. Fogarty v. St. Louis Transfer Co., 180 Mo. 490, 79 S. W. 664. A right of action in Missouri for an injury inflicted in Iowa is governed by Iowa law. Williams v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 79 S. W. 1167. But the court of appeals of Missouri will follow the construction placed on the Iowa fellow-servant statute by the supreme court of Missouri, and not that placed upon it by the highest court of Iowa. Id. In an action brought in Vermont against a Canadian corporation for injuries received in Canada, proof of the law of Quebec as to contributory negligence was admissible because it related to the right of action, not the remedy. Morrisette v. Canadian Pac. R. Co., 76 Vt. 267, 56 A. 1102. The law of Quebec that contributory negligence of the servant will not bar a recovery against the master but will only reduce damages is not

Notice of the action must be given if required by statute;[35] but such notice is unnecessary if the action is based on the common law[36] or on a statute under which a notice is not required.[37]

(§ 3H) 2. Parties.[38]—The law as to parties to the action is the same as that applicable to other actions, and need not be here stated.[39]

(§ 3H) 3. Pleading and issues.[40]—The complaint or petition must show the existence of the relation of master and servant,[41] and the existence of a duty owed by the master to the servant at the time of the injury alleged.[42] Knowledge of a defect by the master[43] and want of knowledge by the person injured[44] must be contrary to pure morals or abstract justice, nor so inconsistent with the public policy of Vermont that it will not be enforced in that state. Id.

34. Under Acts 27th Leg. p. 31, c. 27, § 1, making the venue of an action against a railroad corporation for personal injuries the county in which the injury occurred or in which plaintiff resided at the time of the injury, an employe for an indefinite term must sue in the county where he boarded and was injured though his domicile was outside the state. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Rogers [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 822.

35. Statutory notice of injury to master held sufficient when given by one retained for the purpose, who dictated the same to a stenographer, the latter signing his name by his authority. Greenstein v. Chick [Mass.] 72 N. E. 955. Under the employers' liability act (Laws 1902, p. 1749, c. 600), requiring notice of the injury by the servant within 120 days, or in case of his death, by his executor within 60 days, notice by the latter within 120 days after the accident is in time, though not within 60 days after his appointment. Hoehn v. Lautz, 94 App. Div. 14, 87 N. Y. S. 921.

Contra: Deceased having given no notice, and administrator not having given notice within 60 days after his appointment, a notice within 120 days after the accident was unavailing. Randall v. Holbrook, Cabot & Daly Contracting Co., 95 App. Div. 336, 88 N. Y. S. 681.

36. Gmaehle v. Rosenberg, 178 N. Y. 147, 70 N. E. 411. Notice required by Laws 1902, p. 1749, c. 600, § 2, is not applicable to an action for failure to provide a safe place to work. Schermerhorn v. Glens Falls Portland Cement Co., 94 App. Div. 600, 88 N. Y. S. 407.

37. An action based on Laws 1897, p. 467, c. 415, § 18, making an employer liable for injuries caused by unsafe scaffolding provided by him, is maintainable without the notice required under the employers' act [Laws 1902, p. 1748, c. 600]. Williams v. Roblin, 94 App. Div. 177, 87 N. Y. S. 1006.

38. See 2 Curr. L. 841.

39. See Parties, 2 Curr. L. 1092; Death by Wrongful Act, 3 Curr. L. 1034.

40. See 2 Curr. L. 842.

41. Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Williams [Ala.] 37 So. 255. A count of a complaint in an action for wrongful death of a servant, which fails to show that intestate was at the time a servant of defendant, or that defendant owed him any duty, is demurrable. Logan v. Central Iron & Coal Co., 139 Ala. 548, 36 So. 729.

42. Facts must be alleged from which the law will imply a duty of the master to exercise care toward the servant; a direct allegation of the existence of a duty, without such facts, is a mere conclusion of law. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 71 N. E. 218, afd. on petition for rehearing, 71 N. E. 660; Kasadarian v. James Hill Mfg. Co., 130 F. 62. Characterization of an act, in a pleading, as "negligent" will not supply averments of facts showing the existence of a duty to exercise care. Muncie Pulp Co. v. Davis, 162 Ind. 558, 70 N. E. 875. Where facts pleaded sufficiently disclosed the duty to warn plaintiff owed by a conductor, a specific allegation of the duty was unnecessary. Southern Indiana R. Co. v. Fine [Ind.] 72 N. E. 589. Under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 7083, subd. 2, the existence of a duty of a superior to protect the servant while executing a command must be alleged. Muncie Pulp Co. v. Davis, 162 Ind. 558, 70 N. E. 875. A complaint alleging a duty to use a certain appliance must allege that it is one practicable to operate in the manner suggested. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 71 N. E. 218. Complaint held not to state a cause of action at common law on theory that foreman was negligent in not warning employe, when it was not alleged that it was the foreman's duty to warn, or that a warning could have been given which would have avoided the injury. Ft. Wayne Gas Co. v. Nieman [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 59. Where negligent acts of servants are relied on, it must be alleged that such servants at the time were acting in the line of their duty. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Pierce [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 604. Complaint not showing plaintiff to be rightfully on a sidetrack, performing duties owed to the master, and that master had reason to know his dangerous position, is demurrable. Mackey v. Northern Milling Co., 210 Ill. 115, 71 N. E. 448.

43. Consolidated Stone Co. v. Staggs [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 161. Knowledge of defect in coupler. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Lindsay [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 283. Knowledge of a defect by the master being alleged the exact length of time the master has had such knowledge is immaterial, and need not be alleged. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Tackett [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 524. An allegation that a railroad yard had been so carelessly and negligently left as to be broken and rotted by time is not open to the objection that it does not allege that defendant had, or was charged with, knowledge of the defective condition of the yard. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Lindsay [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 283. An allegation that the master knew or ought to have known of a defect will be construed as an allegation of implied notice. Babcock Bros. Lumber Co. v. Johnson, 120 alleged. A complaint is demurrable if it shows on its face that the servant assumed the risk[45] or was guilty of contributory negligence,[46] or that the negligence complained of was that of a fellow-servant for which the master was not liable,[47] though these defenses need not be anticipated by specific allegations.[48]

Though a general allegation of negligence may be sufficient as against a general demurrer,[49] or after verdict,[50] it is usually necessary to allege specific acts

Ga. 1030, 48 S. E. 438. Allegation that foreman "knew" of danger in loosening a buckled rail, construed to include the allegation that he ought to have known. Southern R. Co. v. Blevins [C. C. A.] 130 F. 688. Where mine roof was alleged to be unsafe by reason of defendant's negligence, an averment that defendant knew of its unsafe condition was unnecessary. Wilson v. Alpine Coal Co. [Ky.] 81 S. W. 278.

44. Want of knowledge of defect in coupler. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Lindsay [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 283. Averments of want of knowledge of the servant must be as broad as the averments of knowledge on the part of the master. Consolidated Stone Co. v. Staggs [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 161. A complaint on the theory that the injury was caused by the incompetency and inexperience of a boy in charge of a switch, and that the master had been negligent in employing the boy for that purpose, must allege that plaintiff had no knowledge of the boy's incompetency before the injury. Indianapolis & G. Rapid Transit Co. v. Andis [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 145. A general allegation of want of knowledge of dangers will not avail, as against a demurrer, when other allegations show that the servant must have known of the dangers or defects complained of, or had an equal opportunity with the master of knowing of them. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Hunsucker [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 556. A petition showing on its face that plaintiff knew or ought to have known of defects alleged, and hence that he assumed the risk, is demurrable notwithstanding an allegation "that said defects and dangers * * * were not so apparent and imminent as to justify a reasonably prudent man" in refusing to obey a peremptory order of his foreman. Smith v. Armour & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 675. Failure to allege want of knowledge by plaintiff of dangerous condition of mine roof cured by allegations of notice in the answer. Wilson v. Alpine Coal Co. [Ky.] 81 S. W. 278. In Rhode Island a declaration for injuries from a dangerous condition must negative assumption of risk by setting up want of knowledge of the danger or an excuse for continuing to work after acquiring such knowledge. Dalton v. Rhode Island Co. [R. I.] 57 A. 383.

Contra: In an action for injuries caused by defects in appliances, plaintiff need not allege want of knowledge of the defects. Cole v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 81 S. W. 1138.

45. Declaration showing that plaintiff must have known of defective car wheel and disarrangement of lumber on car, demurrable, because showing that he assumed risk of being struck by lumber falling on the car when struck by a post. Truly v. North Lumber Co., 83 Miss. 430, 36 So. 4. An allegation of want of knowledge of danger was unavailing when complaint showed on its face that deceased was ordered to render safe a dangerous roof in a mine, and hence knew of, and assumed the danger incidental thereto. Indiana & C. Coal Co. v. Batey [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 191. A petition in action for death by falling into an improperly guarded cistern held to state a cause of action, when amended by allegations of want of knowledge by deceased of cause of defective light. Steele v. Georgia Iron & Coal Co. [Ga.] 49 S. E. 291. Declaration alleging that there was a loose stone on a ledge where plaintiff was working, liable to fall, and which did fall, injuring plaintiff, and that plaintiff did not know and could not have known by the exercise of ordinary care, of the danger, and that defendant knew of it, not demurrable. Gince v. Beland [R. I.] 57 A. 300.

46. Complaint held good where it appeared plaintiff was struck by train while attempting to remove hand car under foreman's orders. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Thornhill [Ala.] 37 So. 412. Complaint in action for injury from alleged defective machinery held not to show contributory negligence. Skipper v. Southern Cotton Oil Co., 120 Ga. 940, 48 S. E. 359. Complaint held not to disclose contributory negligence, though lacking in definiteness. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Cavanaugh [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 239.

47. An allegation that defendants caused and permitted cotton bales to be thrown, etc., construed as an allegation that the act was done by a fellow-servant; hence no cause of action stated. Fortin v. Manville Co., 128 F. 642. Where the facts pleaded showed that plaintiff, an employe, was being carried to his work, on a "work car" of the street railway company, when injured through negligence of servants in charge of cars, the allegation that plaintiff's work was not incident to, or connected with, or a part of, the motorman's work, was a mere conclusion and unavailing. Indianapolis & G. Rapid Transit Co. v. Andis [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 145.

48. Contributory negligence is matter of defense, and no allegation of proper conduct or lack of knowledge by plaintiff need be made in the complaint. Elliott v. Canadian Pac. R. Co., 129 F. 163. Want of contributory negligence need not be alleged by plaintiff. See Indiana cases under "Pleading statutory causes of action," post.

49. In action for death of engineer, an allegation that the killing was "negligent, wrongful, and inexcusable" was good as against a general demurrer; but special demurrer sustained, no specific acts being alleged. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Pierce, 120 Ga. 230, 47 S. E. 581.

50. Where complaint charged negligence, generally, in employing incompetent servants, it was held sufficient after verdict, no of negligence.[51] A general allegation of negligence which directly indicates the act or omission complained of is sufficient to withstand a demurrer for want of facts.[52] A court cannot infer that appliances were unsafe,[53] or that the master was at fault.[54] Less certainty and particularity are required where the facts, from their nature, are peculiarly within the knowledge of the other party.[55] The negligent acts relied on must be pleaded directly and not by way of recital.[56] Merely pleading facts showing a violation of a rule does not necessarily constitute a showing of negligence.[57] Wrongful negligence, and wantonness and willfulness, cannot be joined in the same count.[58] It must appear from the pleading that the negligence alleged was the proximate cause of the injury.[59] proper objection having been raised on the trial, and contributory negligence having been then relied on as the sole defense. Yazoo, etc., R. Co. v. Schraag [Miss.] 36 So. 193.

51. Palmer Brick Co. v. Chenall, 119 Ga. 837, 47 S. E. 329. Petition demurrable because it did not sufficiently allege either that plaintiff was not furnished with a suitable tool with which to put a belt on a pulley, or that he was furnished with one that was unsuitable. Ballew v. Broach & McCurry [Ga.] 49 S. E. 297. Petition in action for injuries to engine hostler held to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Doty [C. C. A.] 133 F. 866. Allegations that the injured employe knew the defective condition of the machine and continued to work an unreasonable length of time is a sufficient plea of assumed risk. Going v. Alabama Steel & Wire Co. [Ala.] 37 So. 784. In action for injuries caused by derailment, an allegation that the engineer was running the train at a reckless and dangerous rate of speed is a sufficient allegation of negligence. Northern Alabama R. Co. v. Shea [Ala.] 37 So. 796. An allegation that a defect in the track "arose from, or had not been discovered or remedied owing to, defendant's negligence, or the negligence of some person in the service of defendant, and intrusted with the duty of seeing that said track was in proper condition," is a necessary averment under the statute, is sufficient when it follows the language of the statute, and need not allege the name of the person intrusted with the duty. Id. A count alleging negligence of an engineer, giving his surname and alleging that his Christian name is unknown to plaintiff, is sufficient without an allegation that diligent effort had been made, without success, to learn his full name. Id.

52. Allegation that engineer "negligently ran said engine and train into, and causing them to collide with," etc., held sufficient. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Collins [Ind.] 71 N. E. 661. A complaint showing the existence of the relation of master and servant, of a defective appliance rendering the servant's work unnecessarily hazardous, a promise to repair the defect, and an injury caused by the defect states a cause of action as against a demurrer for want of facts. Terre Haute Elec. Co. v. Kiely [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 658. A complaint alleging that defendant street railway company failed to adopt the customary means of making a certain grade safe by sanding the rails, whereby plaintiff's car slipped and collided with another car, injuring plaintiff (the motorman) is sufficient without alleging other means by which the track could have been rendered safe. Union Traction Co. v. Buckland [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 158. Complaint held to sufficiently allege that a window, which plaintiff was engaged in cleaning under defendant's orders, was defective. Hix v. Belton Mills [S. C.] 48 S. E. 96. Where alleged cause of injuries was defective machinery and appliances, an amendment to the complaint stating particulars in which machinery was defective was held unnecessary. Moore v. Catawba Power Co. [S. C.] 46 S. E. 1004. Declaration charging, in substance, as the cause of the injury, the running of several cars in charge of an incompetent brakeman, held sufficient as against a motion in arrest of judgment. Elliott v. Canadian Pac. R. Co., 129 F. 163.

53. Defect must be distinctly and definitely alleged. Egan v. New York, etc., R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 482.

54. The respect in which a method of work was unsafe must be alleged with clearness. Egan v. New York, etc., R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 482.

55. Allegations to the effect that an iron or steel driftpin was of defective material and construction held to charge negligence with sufficient particularity and definiteness. Rickaly v. John O'Brien Boiler Works Co. [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 963.

56. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Lindsay [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 283.

57. Violation of the rule would be negligence only where one was injured who relied on the assumption that it would be observed. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 71 N. E. 218.

58. Allegations of negligence construed. Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Williams [Ala.] 37 So. 255.

59. Egan v. New York, etc., R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 482; Consolidated Stone Co. v. Staggs [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 161; Langlois v. Dunn Worsted Mills [R. I.] 57 A. 910. Complaint held sufficient in this respect where defect in track alleged. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Mobley, 139 Ala. 425, 36 So. 181. Defective condition of street car not shown to be proximate cause of collision on a switch track. Indianapolis & G. Rapid Transit Co. v. Andis [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 145. A complaint alleging that plaintiff's intestate was killed by reason of defendant's negligence in failing to have signals out on a train, need not show by special averment that the collision causing the death would not have occurred had the signals in question been out. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v.

A complaint alleging negligence of the master in furnishing appliances and negligence of his servants in using them states a cause of action for joint and several negligence.[60]

The answer.—It is usually held that the defense of assumption of risk,[61] contributory negligence,[62] or that the negligence was that of a fellow-servant[63] must be specially pleaded. If both assumption of risk and contributory negligence are relied on they must be separately pleaded.[64] Where due care is alleged in the complaint, a denial of the allegation is sufficient to raise the issue;[65] and if the complaint alleges that the person charged with negligence was a foreman or vice-principal, the defendant may prove that he was a fellow-servant under a general denial.[66] If plaintiff's own evidence shows assumption of risk, the defense is available though not specially pleaded.[67]

Issues, proof, and variance.[68]—Recovery, if at all, must be for the negligence alleged[69] and proof of negligence not alleged is inadmissible.[70] An allegation of Wicker [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 223. Where complaint alleged that negligent acts of an engineer, which constituted a violation of an ordinance, were the sole cause of the injury, it was not necessary to allege that the injury would not have resulted if the ordinance had been obeyed. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 71 N. E. 218.

60. Carson v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 46 S. E. 525.

61. A plea that the dangers which resulted in injuries to the deceased were incident to his occupation and services as a brakeman is sufficient to raise the issue of assumption of risk. Adams v. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 79.

62. Womble v. Merchants' Grocery Co., 135 N. C. 474, 47 S. E. 493. Answer held to contain general averment of contributory negligence in use of benches or trestles in unloading car under which any fact showing negligence in such use could be shown. Bell v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 134.

Under Code 1896, § 3295, in all personal injury actions, the general issue "not guilty" puts in issue all material allegations of the complaint. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Mobley, 139 Ala. 425, 36 So. 181. Sustaining a demurrer to a special plea of contributory negligence is harmless error where there is a general plea under which any phase of contributory negligence may be proven. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Bromberg [Ala.] 37 So. 395.

63. Bonnin v. Crowley, 112 La. 1025, 36 So. 842. Conflict of authority on the point recognized. Duff v. Willamette Iron & Steel Works [Or.] 78 P. 363.

64. A plea setting up both is duplicitous. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Thornhill [Ala.] 37 So. 412.

65. Hutchings v. Mills Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 47 S. E. 710.

66. Johnson v. Heath [Neb.] 98 N. W. 832.

67. Iowa Gold Min. Co. v. Diefenthaler [Colo.] 76 P. 981; White v. Lewiston & Y. F. R. Co., 94 App. Div. 4, 87 N. Y. S. 901.

68. See 2 Curr. L. 847.

69. Recovery, if at all, must be upon the case made by the pleadings and evidence introduced thereunder. Allen v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 863. Negligence alleged being defect in track, an instruction authorizing recovery for defective coupler was erroneous. Culver v. South Haven & E. R. Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 663. Where cause of injury alleged was negligence of a section foreman while hand car was running, there could not be recovery on ground of company's failure to provide rules as to when cars should be run. Whittlesey v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Conn.] 58 A. 459. On a count based on negligence of the superintendent there can be no recovery for defective machinery. Davis v. Kornman [Ala.] 37 So. 789. Where the cause of injury alleged was the mode in which a furnace itself worked, it was error to submit to the jury the owner's negligence in the manner of operating it, such as a failure to make rules. O'Leary v. Buffalo Union Furnace Co., 91 N. Y. S. 579. Where there are general allegations of negligence, followed by allegations of specific acts of negligence, there can be no recovery unless one or more of the specific acts alleged are established, though other acts are proved as a part of the res gestae. Palmer Brick Co. v. Chenall, 119 Ga. 837, 47 S. E. 329. Where it was alleged that a servant was ordered to go into a dangerous place, which he did without knowledge of the danger, and the answer admitted that the place was dangerous and alleged that the servant knew of the danger and was an experienced and skilled workman, mere proof that the place was dangerous, without proof that the servant was unskillful, inexperienced, or ignorant, and had not been properly instructed was insufficient to warrant a recovery. Turner v. Southern Pac. Co., 142 Cal. 580, 76 P. 384.

Variance held not fatal: Where the negligence alleged as the cause of injury from the explosion of a tube in a furnace was the placing of the tube, containing dangerous materials therein, and the evidence showed the materials were not in themselves dangerous but that the explosion was caused by the absence of vents in the tube, the variance was not material. Cameron v. B. Roth Tool Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 279. Where a complaint stated a cause of action upon the theory that defendant failed to provide a proper guard for machines, and this theory was the one adopted on the trial, the complaint is sufficient as against a demurrer, though the facts pleaded may be construed as proceeding upon the theory that no guard whatever was furnished.

negligence of the master will admit proof of the negligence or incompetency of a vice-principal, that he was a vice-principal, and that his incompetency was known to the master, and these facts need not be specially alleged.[71]

Pleading statutory causes of action.[72]—A statutory cause of action may be joined with one based on the common law,[73] but not in one count.[74] In New York, a complaint stating a cause of action at common law may be amended by allega-

Blanchard-Hamilton Furniture Co. v. Colvin, 32 Ind. App. 398, 69 N. E. 1032. A declaration alleging injury of a brakeman by coming in contact with a telegraph pole negligently permitted to stand near a switch track is sufficient without referring to the party who placed the pole there. Illinois Terminal R. Co. v. Thompson, 210 Ill. 226, 71 N. E. 328. And proof that the pole was originally erected by a party other than the railway company which owned the premises is not a variance, when it is alleged that the railway company permitted the erection of the pole. Id. An allegation that rails were "insecurely fastened to the cross-ties" is supported by proof that the ties were rotten. Northern Ala. R. Co. v. Shea [Ala.] 37 So. 796.

Amendment of complaint: A complaint which sets up failure to instruct as the actionable negligence may not be amended by adding allegations of a failure to provide suitable and safe machinery and appliances. Moyer v. Ramsay-Brisbane Stone Co., 119 Ga. 734, 46 S. E. 844. Where negligence charged was unsafe fastening of a particular door, which fell on plaintiff, a longshoreman, it was error to allow an amendment, over objection, charging a general dilapidated condition of the dock. New trial granted though no application for a postponement was made. Oats v. New York Dock Co., 90 N. Y. S. 878.

70. Where negligence complained of in an action by a teamster was that the lines were too short and the wagon had no seat, evidence of the lack of a brake was inadmissible. Limberg v. Glenwood Lumber Co. [Cal.] 78 P. 728. In an action based solely on negligence of a servant in operating a grain dump at an elevator, evidence regarding the condition of the dump was irrelevant. Healy v. Patterson, 123 Iowa, 81, 98 N. W. 576. Evidence that defendant acted in good faith in putting a servant to work with frozen dynamite and believed him capable of using it inadmissible, when plaintiff did not allege or claim willful or wanton conduct or punitive damages. Currelli v. Jackson [Conn.] 58 A. 762. Where the negligence alleged as the cause of a cave-in in a mine was improper timbering, evidence of other particular causes of a cave-in was inadmissible, when there was no evidence of the existence of such causes in the mine in question. Mountain Copper Co. v. Van Buren [C. C. A.] 133 F. 1. Under an allegation that it was a conductor's duty to have such a reasonable knowledge of the location of cars as to make a coupling safely, a question whether it was not his duty to know the exact spot where certain cars were when a coupling was being made, was improper. Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. Bailey [Va.] 49 S. E. 33.

Evidence held admissible: Facts showing imputed knowledge of dangerous condition of materials furnished a workman, under an allegation of knowledge. Currelli v. Jackson [Conn.] 58 A. 762. An allegation that "appliances and devices necessary and used for and in aid of coupling were in a dangerous, defective, and unsafe condition," was sufficiently broad to admit evidence that the car in question had no grabiron. Belt R. Co. v. Confrey, 209 Ill. 344, 70 N. E. 773. Under an allegation that plaintiff was exercising due care, he may prove that he was doing his work in the manner in which he had been directed to do it, though he has not alleged that he was acting under a special order. Henrietta Coal Co. v. Campbell, 211 Ill. 216, 71 N. E. 863. Under an allegation that plaintiff, as the result of a plug in the boiler of the engine being blown out, was blown from the cab by the escaping steam, evidence that he jumped or fell out was admissible. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Crum [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 72.

71. This is intimated to be the rule though the court refused to squarely overrule a contrary holding on a former appeal, the question not being properly raised. Harris v. Balfour Quarry Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 95. Where a complaint alleges negligence of a conductor and of the railroad company, a recovery may be had upon proof of negligence of servants other than the conductor. Richey v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 48 S. E. 285. An allegation in a common-law action that the negligence complained of was that of the defendant master is sufficient as against demurrer, though the negligence was in fact that of a servant for whom the master is responsible (Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 71 N. E. 660); but it will not suffice to show facts which merely suggest that a fellow-servant may have owed a duty which he neglected (Id.).

72. See 2 Curr. L. 843, n. 60; Id. 844, n. 66, 74, 75.

73. Common-law count based on duty owed to one on premises by invitation of owner joined with counts under the employers' liability act [Code 1896, § 1749]. Sloss Iron & Steel Co. v. Tilson [Ala.] 37 So. 427. A cause of action for negligence in failing to provide a safe place to work, may be joined with a cause of action based on the same facts for willful violation of a statute prohibiting employment of minors in mines [Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, c. 93]. Marquette Third Vein Coal Co. v. Dielie, 208 Ill. 116, 70 N. E. 17.

74. A declaration charging negligence in failing to provide a safe place to work and attempting, in the same count, to state a cause of action for negligence of a fellow-servant under the employers' liability law, is insufficient to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. Causes inconsistent. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Abrams [Miss.] 36 So. 542.

tions bringing the cause within the employers' liability act.[75] Where the facts alleged bring the action under an employers' liability act, due service of the statutory notice must be alleged.[76] Other decisions as to pleadings in actions based on statutes are treated in the notes.[77]

(§ 3H) 4. Evidence. Burden of proof and presumptions.[78]—The burden

75. Laws 1902, p. 1748, c. 600, merely extends the master's common-law liability; it does not give a new remedy. Mulligan v. Erie R. Co., 99 App. Div. 499, 91 N. Y. S. 60.

76. Under New York act (Laws 1902, p. 1748, c. 600), notice of the time, place, and cause of the injury must be given within 120 days. Crosby v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 128 F. 193. But if the action is at common law, and is not based on the statute, no allegation of notice is necessary. Gmaehle v. Rosenberg, 178 N. Y. 147, 70 N. E. 411.

77. Alabama: In an action based on a violation of the automatic coupler act, the complaint need not allege the manner in which such violation caused the injury. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Bromberg [Ala.] 37 So. 395. In an action under Code 1896, § 1749, subsec. 5, to recover from the company for negligence of an engineer resulting in the fireman's death, the complaint was held insufficient for not alleging the engine was on the railway; but held to sufficiently specify negligence of the engineer. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Mobley, 139 Ala. 425, 36 So. 181. A count under Code 1896, § 1749, subd. 5, alleging that plaintiff's injuries were caused by the negligence of one at the time operating a locomotive on the track of defendant's road, is insufficient if it does not allege that such person was at the time an employe of the defendant. Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Williams [Ala.] 37 So. 255. In an action under Code 1896, §§ 1749, 1751, for death of an engineer, caused by a defective track, an allegation that the railway was defective at or near the point where the engine was derailed was sufficient. E. E. Jackson Lumber Co. v. Cunningham [Ala.] 37 So. 445.

Illinois: An averment that defendant "wrongfully and unlawfully" employed plaintiff, a minor under 14 years of age, who had not produced an affidavit that he was 14, in a mine, is a sufficient allegation of a willful or conscious violation of a statute prohibiting such employment of minors and giving a right of action to such a person, if injured [Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, c. 93]. Marquette Third Vein Coal Co. v. Dielie, 208 Ill. 116, 70 N. E. 17.

Indiana: Under the Indiana employers' liability act, the plaintiff need not allege or prove want of contributory negligence. Acts 1899, p. 58 (Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 359a), providing that plaintiff in actions for personal injuries need not allege he was in the exercise of due care, applies to actions based on employers' liability act. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 71 N. E. 218; Chicago & E. R. Co. v. Lain [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 539; Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Collins [Ind.] 71 N. E. 661. A complaint alleging negligence of defendant as the proximate cause of the injury is sufficient, unless contributory negligence is disclosed on its face. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Goddard [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 514. Nor need the complaint negative assumption of risk. Espenlaub v. Ellis [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 527. It is also held to be unnecessary for the defendant to set up that the risk alleged as the cause of the injury was assumed in order to take advantage of that fact. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Clark, 32 Ind. App. 644, 70 N. E. 828. A complaint alleging failure to guard machinery as required by Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 7087 [Horner's Rev. St. 1901, § 5169k) is sufficient if it follows the language of the statute. Blanchard-Hamilton Furniture Co. v. Colvin, 32 Ind. App. 398, 69 N. E. 1032. In an action based on failure to guard an emery belt, a complaint stating the purpose for which the belt was used is sufficient, though it does not describe it, or allege that it was dangerous, or that it was such a machine that it could have been guarded. La Porte Carriage Co. v. Sullender [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 922.

Under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 7083, the complaint must allege that the superior servant had authority to give orders, and that plaintiff was bound to conform to the orders given. Ft. Wayne Gas Co. v. Nieman [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 59. Complaint based on § 7083, held sufficient. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Hunsucker [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 556. Complaint alleging in substance that plaintiff was bound to conform to the order and direction of a foreman, who had knowledge of a defect in a brake while plaintiff had not, and that the foreman carelessly and negligently ordered plaintiff to apply the defective brake, held sufficient. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Tackett [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 524. A complaint alleging that the negligence charged was that of defendant's superintendent, "having full charge and control of defendant's work in and about said quarry," does not disclose that the negligence was that of a fellow-servant. Southern Indiana R. Co. v. Moore [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 516. A complaint is not demurrable if, stating a cause of action under subdivision 2 of § 7083, Burns' Ann. St. 1901, it also incidentally states a cause of action under subdivision 4. Chicago & E. R. Co. v. Lain [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 539. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7083, subd. 4, making railway companies liable for negligence of a coemploye in charge of a locomotive, a complaint is not defective for alleging negligence of more than one employe in charge of the locomotive. Id.

Where a complaint alleged, as the sole cause of injury, failure to provide a switch stand with a signal light, the action was held to be based on Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 5173 A et seq. and not on the common law. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Bond [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 647. A complaint designating defendant as the "Ft. Wayne Gas Co." sufficiently alleges that defendant was a corporation, since the name so imports, and no specific averment is necessary. Ft. Wayne Gas Co. v. Nieman [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 59.

78. See 2 Curr. L. 847.

is upon a servant, seeking to recover for injuries, to prove negligence of the master,[79] the presumption being that the latter's duties have been duly performed.[80] It is usually held that mere proof of the occurrence of an accident does not warrant an inference of negligence on the part of the master,[81] but some courts hold that the doctrine res ipsa loquitur applies in some cases,[82] as where the appliance from which the injury results is one required by law to be furnished by the master,[83] and the circumstances attending the injury are such as to warrant the inference that the accident would not have occurred if the master had used due care.[84] The burden is also on the plaintiff to prove that the negligence alleged was the proximate cause of the injury.[85]

79. Nord v. Boston & M. Consol. Copper & Silver Min. Co. [Mont.] 75 P. 681; Neeley v. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co., 13 Okl. 356, 75 P. 537; Cully v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 35 Wash. 241, 77 P. 202; Moore Lime Co. v. Johnston's Adm'r [Va.] 48 S. E. 557. Burden is upon plaintiff to prove he was directed to work on a machine other than the one he was employed to operate. McManus v. Davitt, 94 App. Div. 481, 88 N. Y. S. 55. The employe must show that a defect was known to the employer, or that he could have known of it by the exercise of ordinary care. Glasscock v. Swofford Bros. Dry Goods Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 364. Plaintiff, alleging the vicious and unruly disposition of a horse furnished him, and defendant's knowledge thereof, had the burden of proof thereon. Palmer v. Coyle [Mass.] 72 N. E. 844.

80. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. O'Brien [C. C. A.] 132 F. 593; Glasscock v. Swofford Bros. Dry Goods Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 364. As that a sufficient number of competent servants has been provided. Hilton v. Fitchburg R. R. [N. H.] 59 A. 625. The presumption is that such rules as were necessary were prescribed. Hill v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 72 N. H. 518, 57 A. 924.

81. Egan v. New York, etc., R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 482; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. O'Brien [C. C. A.] 132 F. 593; Droney v. Doherty [Mass.] 71 N. E. 547; Glasscock v. Swofford Bros. Dry Goods Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 364; Rickaly v. John O'Brien Boiler Works Co. [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 963; Neeley v. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co., 13 Okl. 356, 75 P. 537; Moore Lime Co. v. Johnston's Adm'r [Va.] 48 S. E. 557; Young v. O'Brien [Wash.] 79 P. 211. The res ipsa loquitur doctrine is rarely applied in master and servant cases. G. A. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Dullnig [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 889. Proof merely of breaking apart of pipe, without any evidence as to the cause, does not warrant an inference of negligence. Edgens v. Gaffney Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 48 S. E. 538. The fact of an accident, injuring a brakeman, occasioned by the operation and stopping of a train does not give rise to a presumption of negligence. Allen v. Chicago, etc., P. R. Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 863.

82. It is said that while there is a conflict, the trend of American authority is toward the support of the text. Palmer Brick Co. v. Chenall, 119 Ga. 837, 47 S. E. 329.

83. Breaking of ladder under hod carrier is presumptive evidence of negligence, under Labor Law § 18, warranting recovery if unexplained. Cummings v. Kenny, 97 App. Div. 114, 89 N. Y. S. 579. Evidence that a plank was split and broke when employe stepped on it, makes prima facie case of negligence in furnishing scaffold under Labor Law, §§ 18, 19. Tierney v. Vunck, 97 App. Div. 1, 89 N. Y. S. 612. Proof of the fall of a derrick furnished by the master is prima facie evidence of negligence of the master. Gorman v. Milliken, 42 Misc. 336, 86 N. Y. S. 699.

84. Stackpole v. Uray, 90 N. Y. S. 1045. The rule that the mere happening of an accident is not of itself evidence of negligence is applicable to facts which admit only one probable theory of the cause of the accident. McLean v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 748. Thus it was held not applicable where an injury caused by the falling of a pile driver did not result from the condition in which it was when the servant began his task, but from changes in its condition made by the servant himself. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Swift [Ill.] 72 N. E. 737. Whether such an inference shall be drawn is a question exclusively for the jury. It cannot be drawn unless the circumstances overcome the presumption that the master has performed his duties. The inference is slight and overcome by the slightest evidence supporting an explanation of the occurrence on any theory other than that of the negligence of the master. Palmer Brick Co. v. Chenall, 119 Ga. 837, 47 S. E. 329. The happening of an accident through negligence of a servant does not give rise to any presumption of negligence of the master in selecting the servant. Hilton & Dodge Lumber Co. v. Ingram, 119 Ga. 652, 46 S. E. 895. While negligence of the defendant is not to be inferred from the mere fact that an accident occurred, in consequence of which plaintiff was injured, proof of an accident, and of the surrounding circumstances may make a prima facie case sufficient to carry to the jury the issue of defendant's negligence. Thus proof of the fall of a freight elevator and the surrounding circumstances was held evidence of defective construction. Womble v. Merchants' Grocery Co., 135 N. C. 474, 47 S. E. 493. The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur does not apply where death of a brakeman was caused by a collision on a sidetrack, the brakeman's duties being connected with the management of the train. In such case, the mere happening of the accident does not tend to show whether master or servant was negligent. Holland v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 359. Rev. St. 1899, § 2873, making railroad corporations liable for injuries to employes caused by other agents or employes does not raise a presumption of neg-

Most courts hold that the burden of proof of assumption of risk[88] and contributory negligence[87] is on the defendant, but there are contrary holdings.[88] The defendant is entitled to the benefit of evidence on these issues, though introduced by plaintiff.[89] Where the defendant denies the existence of the relation of master and servant, the burden is upon the plaintiff to prove such relation,[90] and if the injury is alleged to have been caused by negligence of other servants, the burden is upon plaintiff to allege and prove that the relation of fellow-servants did not exist.[91]

Admissibility in general.[92]—On the issue of the master's negligence, evidence

ligence of the company, where a brakeman was killed while attempting to couple cars, and there was no proof of negligence of any other servant. Caldwell v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 181 Mo. 455, 80 S. W. 897.

85. Nord v. Boston & M. Consol. Copper & Silver Min. Co. [Mont.] 75 P. 681; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Coughlin [C. C. A.] 132 F. 801; G. A. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Dullnig [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 889. Plaintiff failed to prove that a defect in an engine indicated by a pounding in the cross head was the cause of the breaking of the eccentric rod, which caused his injury. Kirstead v. Bryant, 98 Me. 523, 57 A. 788. Where assistant engineer was found dead after an accident to engine, but there was no evidence to show how he was killed, an alleged defect in the engine was not proven to have been the proximate cause of his death. Reynolds v. Burgess Sulphite Fibre Co. [N. H.] 59 A. 615. Where the evidence shows that an accident could have resulted from either of two causes, for only one of which defendant would be responsible, plaintiff cannot recover where it is just as probable that the damage was done by one cause as by the other. Nelson v. New York, 91 N. Y. S. 763. Where plaintiff's injury resulted from the parting of the train, the burden was upon him to show that such parting was due to the automatic coupler being out of repair, and not to other causes, for which defendant would not be responsible. Meehan v. Great Northern R. Co. [N. D.] 101 N. W. 183. Burden on plaintiff to show that machine was not stopped as quickly by method actually employed as it could have been had it been equipped with a proper clutch. Desrosiers v. Bourn [R. I.] 58 A. 627.

86. E. E. Jackson Lumber Co. v. Cunningham [Ala.] 37 So. 445; Jenks v. Thompson [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 266; Hunt v. Dexter Sulphite Pulp & Paper Co., 91 N. Y. S. 279; Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 852; Bonn v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 808.

87. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Bromberg [Ala.] 37 So. 395; Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 71 N. E. 218; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Wicker [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 223; Nord v. Boston & M. Consol. Copper & Silver Min. Co. [Mont.] 75 P. 681; Peoples v. North Carolina R. Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 87; International, etc., R. Co. v. Pina [Tex. Civ. App.] 77 S. W. 979; Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 847; Bonn v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 808; Currans v. Seattle, etc., R. & Nav. Co., 34 Wash. 512, 76 P. 87.

88. Contributory negligence. Hunt v. Dexter Sulphite Pulp & Paper Co., 91 N. Y. S. 279; Carley v. Gair, 93 App. Div. 614, 87 N. Y. S. 709; Goodhines v. Chase, 91 N. Y. S. 313; Glasscock v. Swofford Bros. Dry Goods Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 364. Plaintiff must show want of contributory negligence under act creating liability for injury caused by defects in ways, works, and machinery [Laws 1902, p. 1748, c. 600]. Hoehn v. Lautz, 94 App. Div. 14, 87 N. Y. S. 921. Substantial compliance with the statute prohibiting employment of children under sixteen unless the certificate required by the act is filed is sufficient to place upon an injured employe the burden of proving want of negligence. Lowry v. Anderson Co., 96 App. Div. 465, 89 N. Y. S. 107. No recovery for death of boy in elevator shaft, when no one saw the accident, and there was no evidence of want of contributory negligence. Lowry v. Anderson Co., 96 App. Div. 465, 89 N. Y. S. 107. The rule in 49 O. S. 598 as to the burden of proving contributory negligence in case of defective appliances or unsafe places of work, is an exception to the general rule, and should not be extended to other cases. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Tehan, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 145. A presumption of negligence arises which it is the duty of the administrator to rebut, when it appears that the decedent might, by the exercise of ordinary care, have seen the train by which he was struck, or by listening would have heard it, in time to have stepped from his place of danger. Green v. New York, etc., R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 497.

Assumption of risk: Employe must show that the alleged defect was not obvious and was not one of the ordinary risks of his employment. Glasscock v. Swofford Bros. Dry Goods Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 364. Burden is upon an infant plaintiff, seeking to show non-assumption of risk by reason of illegality of employment, to show she had not filed certificate required by Laws 1897, p. 477, c. 415, § 70. Sitts v. Waiontha Knitting Co., 94 App. Div. 38, 87 N. Y. S. 911.

89. Nord v. Boston & M. Consol. Copper & Silver Min. Co. [Mont.] 75 P. 681; Bier v. Hosford [Wash.] 77 P. 867. Where a minor plaintiff on cross-examination proved herself of such mental capacity and experience as to show she was guilty of contributory negligence, in placing herself in danger, she could not recover. Evans v. Josephine Mills, 119 Ga. 448, 46 S. E. 674.

90. This does not require proof of an actual contract of employment. Ringue v. Oregon Coal & Nav. Co., 44 Or. 407, 75 P. 703.

91. Chicago City R. Co. v. Leach, 208 Ill. 198, 70 N. E. 222.

92. See 2 Curr. L. 849.

of other similar accidents[93] and of subsequent repairs[94] is usually excluded; but the condition of the place of work or appliances prior[95] or subsequent to[96] the accident is admissible, provided such condition is shown to have remained unchanged. Condition of other places or appliances cannot be shown.[97] The customary method of doing work,[98] common and general use of an appliance[99] or of safeguards[1] may

93. Evidence of other similar accidents to children like plaintiff, attempting to operate same machine. Cohen v. Hamblin-Russell Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 948. It is sometimes permissible to prove prior similar accidents; such evidence cannot be excluded when it is brought out as a part of a proper cross-examination. Schwarzschild v. Drysdale [Kan.] 76 P. 441. Evidence tending to show other accidents and manner in which machine worked admissible as descriptive of the machine. Davis v. Kornman [Ala.] 37 So. 789.

94. Going v. Alabama Steel & Wire Co. [Ala.] 37 So. 784. Evidence that knives of a planer were sharpened and a belt tightened after an accident, inadmissible. Helling v. Schindeler [Cal.] 78 P. 710. Evidence of the manner in which an emery wheel was safeguarded after an injury held admissible to show that safeguards were possible, though evidence of subsequent repairs or precautions is usually inadmissible to prove negligence. La Porte Carriage Co. v. Sullender [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 922. Precautionary measures taken after an accident to prevent injury to other employes inadmissible. Davis v. Kornman [Ala.] 37 So. 789.

95. Evidence by quarry superintendent as to condition of quarry on day of accident admissible. Lane Bros. & Co. v. Bauserman [Va.] 48 S. E. 857. Evidence of condition of circular saw several months before accident admissible when there was other evidence that its condition had remained unchanged during the interval. Dunekake v. Beyer, 25 Ky. L. R. 2001, 79 S. W. 209. Condition of packing rings and their efficiency in keeping oil out of a boiler two years before an accident could be shown, when plaintiff agreed to prove such condition had remained unchanged. Shea v. Pacific Power Co. [Cal.] 79 P. 373. Evidence that a brake, the alleged defective condition of which was alleged as the cause of accident, was defective three or four days before it was used by decedent, admissible. Terre Haute Elec. Co. v. Kiely [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 658. Condition of building six weeks before may be shown to prove its condition at time it collapsed; at least its admission in this case was not reversible error. Nelson v. Young, 91 App. Div. 457, 87 N. Y. S. 69. In action for death of car driver by material falling on him in mine entry, evidence of condition of entry and how its unsafe condition could have been ascertained was admissible. McFarland's Adm'r v. Harbison & Walker Co. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 430. Exclusion of evidence that an alleged defective machine had been repaired eleven weeks before the accident held proper, in the discretion of the court, on the ground of remoteness. Gregory v. American Thread Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 962. In an action for wrongful death of engineer caused by explosion of engine boiler, proof of when the engine was built, the number of miles it had run, and that it had collided with another engine in a certain year, was admissible to show its condition at the time of the accident. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Prickett, 210 Ill. 140, 71 N. E. 435.

96. Evidence of the condition of rails and timbers of a railway shortly after a derailment, admissible; also evidence of changes, to identify decayed timbers taken from the roadbed. Jackson Lumber Co. v. Cunningham [Ala.] 37 So. 445. Witness permitted to give observations and measurements of railway crossing, made after accident, when it appeared no change had been made subsequent to accident. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. McAdams [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1076. Evidence regarding position of plank on coal bin three hours after accident admissible when no change of conditions meanwhile was shown. Meyers v. Highland Bay Gold Min. Co. [Utah] 77 P. 347. Evidence that several years after accident cable was fastened to elevator with two clamps, while at the time of the accident only one was used, erroneously admitted, without limiting its force and effect. Young v. Mason Stable Co., 96 App. Div. 305, 89 N. Y. S. 349. Evidence of the condition of safety clutches on elevator the day after the elevator fell, injuring plaintiff, admissible, as tending to show condition at time of accident when defendant did not suggest there had been any change in their condition. Droney v. Doherty [Mass.] 71 N. E. 547. Evidence of manner in which brake worked a year after accident inadmissible, when it was shown that a new catch plate had been attached. Bernard v. Pittsburg Coal Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 396.

97. Where no causal connection was shown between an accident caused by breaking of a belt and the removal of a "tightener" on the machine, the latter fact could not be shown. Davis v. Kornman [Ala.] 37 So. 789.

98. Customary method of cleaning out ash pits and danger in entering them without first turning on water. Hunt v. Desloge Consol. Lead Co., 104 Mo. App. 377, 79 S. W. 710. Evidence of a custom in the mines of Utah and in defendant's mines of putting an inexperienced man to work with an experienced miner is admissible on the question of due care of defendant, without a showing that such custom was a technical common-law custom. Pence v. California Min. Co., 27 Utah, 378, 75 P. 934. As method of uncoupling cars when the coupling appliance is defective. Pierson v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 102 N. W. 149. In an action for death caused by falling of a bridge timber, evidence of the customary manner of lowering braces was admissible. Alabama & V. R. Co. v. Overstreet [Miss.] 37 So. 819. Evidence of number of men commonly employed in piling logs and of number necessary to do the work with safety is competent. Dell v. McGrath [Minn.] 99 N. W. 629. In an action for injuries to fireman, while coaling, alleged to be caused by the usually be shown. Other holdings as to the admissibility of evidence on the issue of the master's negligence,[2] contributory negligence of the servant,[3] and assump-negligence of the engineer in allowing the engine to move, it was competent to show what the custom of firemen running with this particular engineer had been. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Bergschicker, 162 Ind. 108, 69 N. E. 1000. Proof of a general method of letting rails into a mine is inadmissible without proof of a similarity of conditions at the time and place of the accident to conditions generally. Johnson v. Union Pac. Coal Co. [Utah] 76 P. 1089. Proof of general custom as to the time and manner of inspecting locomotive engines and boilers is admissible, if confined to the custom of well regulated and prudently managed companies. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Prickett, 210 Ill. 140, 71 N. E. 435.

99. Custom and usage of well regulated shops to have no set screws on the handles of shifters attached to drill presses is admissible, but not conclusive on negligence in omitting such screws. Going v. Alabama Steel & Wire Co. [Ala.] 37 So. 784. The fact that the appliance used was similar to that used by many other prudent persons in the same business may be shown, but does not exempt the employer from liability. Davis v. Kornman [Ala.] 37 So. 789. While a negligent act will not be excused by the fact that it is customary, proof of common and general use of an appliance is admissible on the issue of negligence in selecting and furnishing such appliance. Evidence that a block and hook of a certain construction was in common and general use admitted. Anderson v. Fielding [Minn.] 99 N. W. 357. After testimony that switch stands of a certain kind had been in use for 20 years, it was proper to show on cross-examination that they were being replaced by others of a later pattern. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Howell, 208 Ill. 155, 70 N. E. 15.

1. Evidence that it was customary to place guards or spreaders on rip saws to protect the operator admissible. Crooker v. Pacific Lounge & Mattress Co., 34 Wash. 191, 75 P. 632. Where evidence as to the custom of using guards on rip saws was in conflict, testimony of one who had visited mills that 24 out of 27 such saws examined were guarded was admissible. Id. Under a general averment of negligence of the master in not placing guards on a rip saw, evidence of a custom of using such guards was admissible. Id. Evidence of the usage of well regulated railroads as to the maintenance of stock gaps by them is relevant in an action for wrongful death of a brakeman struck by such a structure, but is not conclusive on issue of defendant's negligence in maintaining it. Northern Ala. R. Co. v. Mansell [Ala.] 36 So. 459. On the question whether the use of a machine without a guard is negligence, the admission of evidence regarding the practice in other mills in regard to similar machines is discretionary with the court. Such evidence is relevant, but may be excluded because introducing collateral issues. Dolan v. Boott Cotton Mills, 185 Mass. 576, 70 N. E. 1025. Evidence that a guard rail had been erected at a culvert near a coal chute irrelevant on issue whether that was a necessary precaution at other points. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Price [Ga.] 49 S. E. 683.

2. Where the negligence charged is failure to provide a reasonably safe place and reasonably safe appliances, the actual condition of the place and appliances, the absence of safeguards, and every fact relevant to the question of the reasonable safety of the place and appliances may be shown. Diamond v. Planet Mills Mfg. Co., 97 App. Div. 43, 89 N. Y. S. 635. Proof that an accident might have been prevented by a different course of conduct is not of itself evidence of a master's negligence. Hill v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 72 N. H. 518, 57 A. 924. Record entry of inspection of a car by an inspector of the company owning it, showing such inspection to have been made three days after the accident, inadmissible. Wood v. Rio Grande Western R. Co. [Utah] 79 P. 182. In an action for injuries from the explosion of a tube in a furnace in the course of an experiment, where it appeared that similar experiments had never been made on the premises, a question how often the tube and its materials had been used was properly excluded as irrelevant. Cameron v. Roth Tool Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 279. Evidence that the one conducting the experiment had never given previous warnings to plaintiff or others as to danger of his work was relevant. Id. Evidence that employes consulted a person regarding their duties, and looked after and furnished instruments used by them is admissible on the authority of such person to represent the master. Wysocki v. Wisconsin Lakes Ice & Cartage Co. [Wis.] 98 N. W. 950. In an action for injuries caused by removing a plank from a staging on which plaintiff was required to work, leaving the remaining plank unsafe, evidence that the staging might have been made safe by nailing the plank to posts was admissible. Gratz v. Worden [Ky.] 82 S. W. 395. Evidence that defendant's manager ordered plaintiff, a minor under 14, out of the mine a month before the minor was injured, was irrelevant in an action for the injury, based on violation of statute prohibiting such employment of minors. Marquette Third Vein Coal Co. v. Dielie, 208 Ill. 116, 70 N. E. 17. In a suit for negligence for allowing inexperienced minor to operate machinery, the admission of questions as to the length of time it would require one of ordinary intelligence to acquire sufficient experience to operate such machinery is error. Such questions are not only indefinite in meaning, but are too broad in application; they should have been directed to the particular act, which might in fact have required little or no experience. Bowe v. Bowe, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 233. In a suit for negligence for allowing inexperienced minor to operate machinery, evidence as to whether defendant employed "child labor," concerning his financial responsibility, as to subsequent promises of employment made to plaintiff, and as to his conduct toward plaintiff, is inadmissible. Id. Portion of answer which admitted that death of a brakeman was caused by his coming in contact with overhead bridge held properly admitted in evidence, without the latter part of the sentence which alleged proper construction of the bridge and proper warning; but the evidence was not admissible to prove negligence, but only as an admission of the manner in which death was caused. Hedrick v. Southern R. Co., 136 N. C. 510, 48 S. E. 830. On an issue of the safety of a burner valve, another valve of different construction is inadmissible as an exhibit, since its construction would not necessarily prove the burner valve in question defective. Carr v. American Locomotive Co. [R. I.] 58 A. 678. Torn pants worn by deceased admissible to show how accident occurred. Northern Alabama R. Co. v. Mansell [Ala.] 36 So. 459. Disposition of a horse may be shown by single instances when such disposition has been exhibited. Palmer v. Coyle [Mass.] 72 N. E. 844. And after such evidence, proof of the reputation of the horse was admissible to prove knowledge of the owner. Id. For the same purpose, the fact that the horse was usually driven with another could be shown. Id. Also that the horse had been referred to as a "runaway" in defendant's presence. Id.

tion of risk,[4] and the admissibility of declarations as res gestae,[5] are treated in the notes.

Knowledge of master: Knowledge by engineer of switchman's danger may be shown by circumstantial evidence. Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Williams [Ala.] 37 So. 255. Letter from factory inspector held admissible to show notice that machines were not properly guarded under the statute, though the corporation changed its name before receipt of the letter, which was addressed to it by its former name, and though the letter did not convey the technical notice required by statute. Blanchard-Hamilton Furniture Co. v. Colvin, 32 Ind. App. 398, 69 N. E. 1032. Where subcontractor's servant was injured, evidence of notice by the building superintendent to the contractor that the building was unsafe is admissible to prove notice of the defect by such contractor. Nelson v. Young, 91 App. Div. 457, 87 N. Y. S. 69. Evidence admissible that plaintiff's father informed foreman that plaintiff was inexperienced and requested that he be not put to work on dangerous machines. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. v. Monfort [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 1029. In an action by an engineer for injuries caused by derailment in a washout, evidence that he had asked the train dispatcher to sidetrack his train, informing him of the condition of the track, was admissible to show knowledge regarding such condition by the dispatcher and hence by the company. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Fitzpatrick [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 406. In action for injuries from explosion while cleaning out a blast hole, evidence tending to show foreman's knowledge of the danger from a load which had failed to explode, including what was said by him in plaintiff's presence, was admissible. Lane Bros. & Co. v. Bauserman [Va.] 48 S. E. 857.

Failure to instruct: Where negligence charged was failure to instruct plaintiff, evidence that a superintendent and a fellow-servant had been instructed was irrelevant. Klaffke v. Bettendorf Axle Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 1116. Where failure to instruct was the alleged negligence, evidence regarding the instructions given and plaintiff's action thereon was competent. Kasjeta v. Nashua Mfg. Co. [N. H.] 58 A. 874. Evidence of instructions by defendant's son to superintendent in mine held inadmissible as self-serving and immaterial. Weeks v. Scharer [C. C. A.] 129 F. 333. Evidence regarding instructions to superior servants as to making inquiries of applicants for work was irrelevant when it appeared that defendant had not obtained an affidavit regarding plaintiff, as required by statute. La Porte Carriage Co. v. Sullender [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 922. In action for injuries to plaintiff struck by cars while changing link bills in couplers, evidence as to the yard foreman's orders regarding switching operations, and the situation of cars, was admissible on plaintiff's contributory negligence. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. McAdams [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1076. On issue of brakeman's contributory negligence, evidence that when he entered upon the employment he was sent out to observe the methods employed and had seen men use the method he employed in uncoupling cars was admissible. Pierson v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 102 N. W. 149. Rule of company requiring a man on cars being backed over crossings is admissible on issue of contributory negligence, plaintiff having knowledge of the rule, and having testified that he looked and saw no man on the cars. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. McAdams [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1076. Parts of a brakeman's application for employment, tending to show his appreciation of the generally dangerous nature of his employment, and the necessity to exercise care, and his agreement to familiarize himself with the location of structures along the line, held inadmissible on the question of the assumption of risk arising from location of a scale box close to the the rails, when he was later employed as a switchman. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Swearingen, 25 S. Ct. 164. A railway employe cannot, in a personal injury suit, compel the company to disclose, in answer to interrogatories filed by plaintiff, confidential reports by agents regarding the accident [2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 6009 construed]. Cully v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 35 Wash. 241, 77 P. 202. Evidence of a settlement with an engineer is inadmissible in a suit by the fireman, injured at the same time. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Keaveney [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 387.

Incompetency of servants: Testimony of foreman that he regarded man charged with negligence as reliable man admissible. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 847. Where incompetency of alleged negligent servants was averred, a question to the foreman whether he assigned any but experienced men to a certain gang concerned was proper. Lane Bros. & Co. v. Bauserman [Va.] 48 S. E. 857. In action for injuries to miner based on alleged defects in hoisting apparatus, evidence regarding experience of superintendent is inadmissible, though offered to account for the defects.

Luman v. Golden Ancient Channel Min. Co. [Cal.] 74 P. 307.

Evidence descriptive of machinery: A diagram of an alleged defective pile driver and appliances is admissible, if shown to be correct, though not made by the witness using it. Koon v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 48 S. E. 86. Evidence as to whether it was possible for one's hand to come in contact with cog wheels of a spinning frame when the cover was on was admissible to describe the machine. Gomes v. New Bedford Cordage Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 840. After evidence that a particular car on which plaintiff was injured was one of a series, evidence regarding the measurements of cars of that series was admissible. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Howell, 208 Ill. 155, 70 N. E. 15. Evidence that drawbar in coupler had too much lateral play, and showing the reasons for the defect to be a lack of retaining bolts, admissible as tending to show coupler defective. Belt R. Co. v. Confrey, 209 Ill. 344, 70 N. E. 773.

Rules: In an action for injuries to an engineer caused by derailment in a washout, the company's rules relative to the placing of watchmen at dangerous points in stormy weather were admissible. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Fitzpatrick [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 406. A book of alleged rules, admitted to contain rules adopted since an accident, is inadmissible as a whole to prove rules alleged to have been in force at the time of the accident. Quinn v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 91 App. Div. 489, 86 N. Y. S. 883. In an action by fireman for injuries received through backing of engine while taking on coal, the court should have construed and passed on the relevancy of a rule relative to the care of engines on sidetracks, etc. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Bergschicker, 162 Ind. 108, 69 N. E. 1000.

Experiments: Permission to perform experiments before the jury is discretionary with the court. Carr v. American Locomotive Co. [R. I.] 58 A. 678. Evidence of experiments with an emery belt inadmissible when no effort was made to prove conditions were the same as those attending the accident. La Porte Carriage Co. v. Sullender [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 922.

3. An employe may testify that he relied on a superintendent's statement that a mill in which he was making repairs was to be shut down. Mathews v. Daly-West Min. Co., 27 Utah, 193, 75 P. 722. Where negligence alleged was defective condition of track, evidence of brakeman's (plaintiff's) knowledge of such condition at the place of the accident and at other points was admissible. International, etc., R. Co. v. Penn [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 624. Evidence as to location of nearest turntable admissible to show why engine was run backward on a certain part of the road. Southern Kansas R. Co. of Texas, v. Sage [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1038. Evidence that no notice was posted at a blast hole, which plaintiff was cleaning out, that it was loaded, was admissible. Lane Bros. & Co. v. Bauserman [Va.] 48 S. E. 857. Evidence of schedule time of trains at a certain point admissible to show section foreman not negligent in using the track with his push car at a certain time. International, etc., R. Co. v. McVey [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 991. A rule requiring brakemen to be out on trains when they are approaching stations admissible on issue whether plaintiff was acting in line of duty when injured. Morrisette v. Canadian Pac. R. Co., 76 Vt. 267, 56 A. 1102. Trainmen's interpretation of dispatcher's orders admissible as res gestae as showing why they moved their trains as they did; but not to aid in their interpretation or to show that the orders were ambiguous. Wallace v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 72 N. H. 504, 57 A. 913. The general reputation of a servant as a careful and competent engineer and sober man is admissible as tending to show he exercised ordinary care on a particular occasion, when only circumstantial evidence is available. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Prickett, 210 Ill. 140, 71 N. E. 435.

Customary conduct of other servants: Custom of brakemen in making couplings under certain conditions. International, etc., R. Co. v. Penn [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 624. Evidence that another brakeman coupled cars on the inside of a curve admissible on issue of contributory negligence. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Bromberg [Ala.] 37 So. 395. Customary use of passway by plaintiff and other employes was admissible on issue of contributory negligence and also due care of servant charged with negligence. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 847. Where plaintiff was injured by falling into a trench on her way to work before daylight, evidence of what others did when they came to the obstruction the same morning was admissible on issue of plaintiff's care. Norris v. Cudahy Packing Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 853.

4. Testimony by plaintiff that "he took chances" in going along a passageway was admissible as tending to show a knowledge of danger. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 847. Evidence of a custom in defendant's shop for employes to sign rules promulgated by the foreman is inadmissible to prove such signing by plaintiff, where the existence of rules is in dispute. Quinn v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 91 App. Div. 489, 86 N. Y. S. 883. That a servant exposed himself to an abnormal risk because he feared he would be discharged if he did not do so is not evidence of legal constraint. Bonn v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 808. Evidence describing the stirrup and grabiron on a box car admissible as descriptive of a brakeman's place to work, and on the issue whether he assumed the risk of being struck by a switch when riding on the side of the car. Morrisette v. Canadian Pac. R. Co., 76 Vt. 267, 56 A. 1102.

5. Conversation between other employes and injured man five minutes after accident and three hours before he died, as to how accident occurred, admissible. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 852. Admission of defendant's superintendent, a few minutes after the accident, that he had not instructed the servant charged with negligence, who was a new man, admissible. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 847. Statements by mining superintendent, and by fellow-servant, after an injury, as to its cause, inadmissible. Luman v. Golden Ancient Channel Min. Co. [Cal.] 74 P. 307. Admission of manager to plaintiff's wife, after accident, that accident did not occur through fault of plaintiff, inadmissible. Alquist v. Eagle

Expert and opinion evidence.[6]—If witnesses are shown to be properly qualified,[7] they may testify as experts in regard to matters requiring special skill and knowledge,[8] such as the danger attending particular methods of doing work,[9] or the use of certain instrumentalities[10] or machines,[11] and whether such danger could be avoided.[12] But mere conclusions of fact[13] or opinions are inadmissible

Ironworks [Iowa] 101 N. W. 520. An admission of a general sales agent, after an accident causing a servant's death, was a mere narration of a past event, inadmissible to prove the servant charged with negligence was incompetent, and that the master knew of his incompetency. Kamp v. Coxe Bros. & Co. [Wis.] 99 N. W. 366. Admissions of a superintendent, after an accident, incompetent to prove notice of motorman's incompetency. White v. Lewiston, etc., R. Co., 94 App. Div. 4, 87 N. Y. S. 901. Statement of bank boss of mine, some time after accident, regarding efforts to pull down material which fell and killed an employe, inadmissible. McFarland's Adm'r v. Harbison & Walker Co. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 430.

6. See 2 Curr. L. 851.

7. Qualification of experts is a question of fact for the trial court. Burns v. Delaware & A. Tel. & T. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 59 A. 220. Experienced engineer and section boss qualified to give opinion on weight of locomotive engine. Jackson Lumber Co. v. Cunningham [Ala.] 37 So. 445. Foreman of railroad bridge building competent to testify as to safety of appliances used on pile drivers. Koon v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 48 S. E. 86. One experienced in track construction is competent to testify that a track at a certain place was in a defective and unsafe condition. Northern Ala. R. Co. v. Shea [Ala.] 37 So. 796. An experienced brakeman may give an opinion as to a train's rate of speed at a particular place and time and whether or not it was dangerous. Id. Practical railroad man with experience as a yardman and brakeman and in operating switches competent to testify that a switch could have been placed on the other side of the track at a certain point, claimed to be a safer place. Morrisette v. Canadian Pac. R. Co., 76 Vt. 267, 56 A. 1102. A witness, otherwise qualified, may testify as an expert regarding burner valves, though he had never used one with crude oil, as the valve in question was used. Carr v. American Locomotive Co. [R. I.] 58 A. 678. Engineer with 14 months' experience could testify how far ahead of his engine he could see an object on the track, when going at a certain rate. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 852. One who had used dynamite in blasting for twenty years but had only used frozen dynamite once is not qualified to testify as to whether frozen dynamite is more liable than plastic to explode under pressure. Currelli v. Jackson [Conn.] 58 A. 762.

8. Condition of roadway in a mine as to safety. Henrietta Coal Co. v. Campbell, 211 Ill. 216, 71 N. E. 863. Proper manner of putting in a switch point. Buckalew v. Quincy, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 1176. Whether 27 feet is an unusually long building span. Nelson v. Young, 91 App. Div. 457, 87 N. Y. S. 69. Usual methods of constructing oil mill plants and way in which cotton should be discharged from second to first floors. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 847. The method employed in stringing cables on street railway poles is a matter of common knowledge on which expert testimony is not proper. Meehan v. Holyoke St. R. Co., 186 Mass. 511, 72 N. E. 61.

9. Expert testimony competent on danger of coupling hot pots to engine on incline track used in connection with blast furnace. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Mobley, 139 Ala. 425, 36 So. 181. Evidence of experienced, practical machinist admissible on danger from flying particles of steel when rails are being cut, and customary methods of avoiding danger. Vohs v. Shorthill Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 495.

10. Expert testimony that forcing frozen dynamite into a hole with a stick was a dangerous operation admissible on dangerous condition of dynamite when frozen, as alleged in complaint. Currelli v. Jackson [Conn.] 58 A. 762. Expert evidence as to the usual method of building scaffolds and whether a particular scaffold was safe is competent and relevant on the issue of negligence in furnishing the scaffold. Jenks v. Thompson [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 266. Whether a block and hook of certain construction, used to support a painter at work on a high bridge, was reasonably safe. Anderson v. Fielding [Minn.] 99 N. W. 357.

11. Expert testimony regarding danger from particles flying from emery belt. La Porte Carriage Co. v. Sullender [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 922. Expert testimony admissible on danger connected with operation of a certain machine and whether it was customary to put any but experienced men to operate them. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. v. Monfort [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 1029. The opinion of a person with many years' experience working a machine admissible on question of its danger for a boy of sixteen, and the proper course to pursue in running it. Punkowski v. New Castle Leather Co., 4 Pen. [Del.] 544, 57 A. 559.

12. Expert testimony that an emery belt could have been guarded so as to protect persons from flying particles proper. La Porte Carriage Co. v. Sullender [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 922.

13. Witness who has examined a building may only describe it; he cannot give conclusions regarding what he saw. Nelson v. Young, 91 App. Div. 457, 87 N. Y. S. 69. Question to plaintiff whether he "just assumed the risk" called for mere conclusion. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 847. Opinion on an issue of fact, based on the occurrence of the accident, inadmissible. Ennis v. Little & Co. [R. I.] 55 A. 884. Whether workman could have worked in railroad yards for 30 days without seeing lumber piled on cars in a certain way called for conclusion. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Goodwin, 120 Ga. 83, 47 S. E. 641. Testimony that one could not acquire knowledge of the handling of iron on issues which, under the evidence, are exclusively for the jury,[14] such as proximate cause,[15] negligence,[16] and contributory negligence.[17]

Sufficiency of evidence; question for jury.[18]—Unless the evidence is so conclusive that only one inference can be reasonably drawn therefrom,[19] it is for the jury to determine the existence of the relation of master and servant;[20] the issue of the master's negligence, in all its various phases,[21] such as the competency[22] rails by working in and around railroad shops and yards was a mere conclusion. Bonn v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 808. On an issue as to the distance between a switch handle and passing cars, a hypothetical question not based on actual measurement, but assuming certain measurements, was improper. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Howell, 208 Ill. 155, 70 N. E. 15.

Evidence that an approaching train was making less noise than usual held not objectionable as stating a mere conclusion. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Villareal [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 1063. Testimony by plaintiff that his duties did not include taking care of horse and wagon and inspecting harness not a conclusion. Robert Portner Brew. Co. v. Cooper, 120 Ga. 20, 47 S. E. 631. Testimony that it was switchmen's duty to couple cars together and set air brakes when train was to be inspected was not objectionable as a conclusion. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Rea [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 428. Whether cracks and breaks in staybolts of a boiler which exploded were old or new could be testified to by nonexperts. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Prickett, 210 Ill. 140, 71 N. E. 435.

14. Proper to refuse to permit witness to testify to what one's duty was in operating a machine, when all the facts relating to the operation of it were before the jury. Blanchard-Hamilton Furniture Co. v. Colvin, 32 Ind. App. 398, 69 N. E. 1032. An expert cannot give his opinion on the judgment of other competent workmen as to the practicability of guarding a saw. Espenlaub v. Ellis [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 527. Which of two methods of letting rails into a mine was the safer is not the subject of expert testimony, but is for the jury. Johnson v. Union Pac. Coal Co. [Utah] 76 P. 1089.

15. As whether parting of train was due to worn condition of automatic coupler. Meehan v. Great Northern R. Co. [N. D.] 101 N. W. 183. Whether an accident would have occurred if servant had reported defect in coupler. Carson v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 46 S. E. 525. Improper for physicians to testify whether plaintiff's foot was caught between even or uneven surfaces, since this went directly to the issue, how the injury was caused. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Smith, 208 Ill. 608, 70 N. E. 628. But where there was proof of two accidents to plaintiff and a conflict as to which caused the injuries complained of, the opinion of a physician was held admissible as to which was the probable cause. Jones v. American Warehouse Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 355.

16. Sufficiency of light in coal bin. Meyers v. Highland Boy Gold Min. Co. [Utah] 77 P. 347. Whether an appliance was safe at the time of an accident. Luman v. Golden Ancient Channel Min. Co. [Cal.] 74 P. 307. Whether cogwheels should have been covered. Marks v. Harriet Cotton Mills, 135 N. C. 287, 47 S. E. 432. Necessity of rules governing work of employes engaged in cleaning out engines. Lane v. New York, etc., R. Co., 93 App. Div. 40, 86 N. Y. S. 947.

17. Necessity for plaintiff to use a path over a pit into which he fell. Aetna Powder Co. v. Earlandson [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 185. Testimony of engineer that he would have avoided accident under the same circumstances incompetent. Quinn v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 395.

18. See 2 Curr. L. 853, 854.

19. Foster v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 331; Maurer v. Gould [N. J. Law] 59 A. 28; Neeley v. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co., 13 Okl. 356, 75 P. 537; Bonn v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 808; Pence v. California Min. Co., 27 Utah, 378, 75 P. 934. Not error to refuse to submit question of foreman's knowledge of plaintiff's position when foreman's testimony showed he had such knowledge. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Pelfrey [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1036. Where defendant, on court's refusal to nonsuit plaintiff, offered no evidence, and plaintiff submitted the case on charge of the court, defendant's negligence became a question for the jury. Kepler v. Lackawanna Lumber Co., 209 Pa. 244, 58 A. 284. And see, Discontinuance, Dismissal and Nonsuit, 3 Curr. L. 1097; Directing Verdict and Demurrer to Evidence, 3 Curr. L. 1093.

20. Evidence sufficient to show that plaintiff's intestate was defendant's servant at time of accident. Vallie v. Hall, 184 Mass. 358, 68 N. E. 829.

21. Cobb Chocolate Co. v. Knudson, 207 Ill. 452, 69 N. E. 816; Belt R. Co. v. Confrey, 209 Ill. 344, 70 N. E. 773; Fremont Brew. Co. v. Schulz [Neb.] 101 N. W. 234; Bering Mfg. Co. v. Femelat [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 869. Issues on which that of negligence depends, together with the ultimate fact of negligence, are for jury. Merrifeld v. Maryland Gold Quartz Min. Co., 143 Cal. 54, 76 P. 710. Where joint and several negligence of the master and a servant is charged, a nonsuit cannot be granted if there is evidence as to negligence of one defendant. Carson v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 46 S. E. 525.

Evidence of negligence sufficient: Plaintiff injured while driving vicious horse to mower. Roberti v. Anderson [Nev.] 76 P. 30. Evidence sufficient to warrant finding that defendant was negligent, that plaintiff was injured while in the discharge of his duties and that he was free from fault. Atlanta & B. Air Line R. Co. v. Weaver [Ga.] 49 S. E. 291. Injury by explosion of digester in paper mill. Hunt v. Dexter Sulphite Pulp & Paper Co., 91 N. Y. S. 279. Miner injured by falling of cage. Spring Valley Coal Co. v. Buzis, 213 Ill. 341, 72 N. E. 1060. Brakeman injured by breaking of air hose, which caused the train to stop and following train to collide with it. Newton and conduct of other employes of defendant;[23] the reasonable safety of the place of work[24] or appliances,[25] or methods of work adopted;[26] the necessity and rea-

v. New York, etc., R. Co., 96 App. Div. 81, 89 N. Y. S. 23. In leaving signal bell exposed so that signal was accidentally given; and in failing to instruct as to how to clean machine. Moyes v. Ogden Sewer-Pipe & Clay Co. [Utah] 77 P. 610. Where evidence showed an injury caused by starting of machine owing to shifting of belt kept in place by defective appliance there was a prima facie showing of negligence to go to jury. Going v. Alabama Steel & Wire Co. [Ala.] 37 So. 784. Coal packets collapsed, injuring plaintiff, directed to work under them, after defendant had been twice warned that structure was unsafe. O'Donnell v. Welz, 97 App. Div. 286, 89 N. Y. S. 959. Planks ordered to be carried down stairway in mine shaft; one slipped down and struck plaintiff. Jensen v. Commodore Min. Co. [Minn.] 101 N. W. 944. Where defendant set plaintiff to work, requiring him to keep his arms in fur dye all day, assuring him it was harmless, plaintiff being thereby injured. Segal v. Padlasky [Wis.] 101 N. W. 381. Evidence held to justify submission to jury of issue whether defendant and another corporation were operating as partners the portion of the railroad on which plaintiff was killed. Harrill v. South Carolina & G. Extension R. Co., 135 N. C. 601, 47 S. E. 730. In an action based on a violation of the automatic coupler act, proof that deceased was coupling cars when killed, that the cars were not provided with automatic couplers, and that the accident was the result of old-fashioned couplers slipping by one another, makes a prima facie case. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Bromberg [Ala.] 37 So. 395.

Evidence of negligence insufficient. Baumwald v. Trenkman, 88 N. Y. S. 182; Williams v. Belmont Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 46 S. E. 802. Brakeman killed between drawheads while making a coupling. Caldwell v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 181 Mo. 455, 80 S. W. 897. Injury from explosion of blasting powder in mine. Shaw v. New Year Gold Mines Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 515. Injury to shoveler in gravel pit. Cully v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 35 Wash. 241, 77 P. 202. Whether mining company was negligent in failing to keep mine properly timbered so as to prevent a cave-in. Mountain Copper Co. v. Van Buren [C. C. A.] 133 F. 1. Boy's eye destroyed by explosion of bottle of carbonated water. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Dullnig [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 889. Boy of 17 taken to railroad yard to be "broken in" and instructed, by experienced man, killed between cars, making a coupling. McMillian v. Grand Trunk R. Co. of Canada [C. C. A.] 130 F. 827. Where mine boss was struck by a missile, the nature of which was unknown, from above, while working on top of a cage in a mine shaft. Jacobson v. Smith, 123 Iowa, 263, 98 N. W. 773. Trainmen not negligent in running train at too great a rate of speed, or in failing to stop, where section hand fell on pilot of engine from position near the track. Helm v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Mo.] 84 S. W. 5. Switching crew had no knowledge of inspector's position between cars, and were not negligent in shunting cars down the track. Whitley v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 68.

22. Whether defendant exercised proper care in employing experienced and competent servants, and in instructing them as to their duties. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 847. Servant charged with negligence was careless and incompetent, to the knowledge of the employer. Kamp v. Coxe Bros. & Co. [Wis.] 99 N. W. 366.

23. Where injury was caused by sudden whipping of cable caused by starting of engine by conductor without notice to plaintiff. Southern Ind. R. Co. v. Fine [Ind.] 72 N. E. 589. Brakeman injured by moving of cars when he was fixing a defective uncoupling rod. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Cook's Adm'r [Ky.] 83 S. W. 580. Plaintiff, in hold of vessel, struck by heavy object thrown through open and unguarded hatchway, hatch tender having been called away. Merchants' & Miners' Transp. Co. v. Jackson, 120 Ga. 211, 47 S. E. 522. Recovery for death of employe who was struck by engine at coal sheds. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 852. Brakeman fell between cars, owing to sudden stop. Holland v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 101 N. W. 608. Engineer negligent in lowering a steam hoist too soon. Moran v. Carlson, 95 App. Div. 116, 88 N. Y. S. 520. Plaintiff, car inspector, struck by switch engine in yards. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Pierce [Va.] 48 S. E. 534. Injuries caused by release of heavy iron casting by order of foreman of men handling it. Harris v. Williams Cooperage Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 924. Section foreman's negligence in running hand car on regular train's time. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. McIntosh [Ky.] 80 S. W. 496. Whether railroad employes discovered or should have discovered plaintiff's perilous situation. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Williams [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 248. Plaintiff injured in machine which should have been stopped while he was instructing new man in its use. Hutchings v. Mills Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 47 S. E. 710. Evidence sufficient to warrant finding that engineer was negligent in running train at an excessive rate of speed at a certain point. Northern Ala. R. Co. v. Shea [Ala.] 37 So. 796. Section hand struck by engine while at work. Indiana, etc., R. Co. v. Otstot, 212 Ill. 429, 72 N. E. 387. Whether negligence of a superior servant was gross so as to permit a recovery from the master by the inferior servant injured. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Elliott [Ky.] 82 S. W. 374. Where train hand about to mount engine was struck by cars kicked down track behind him. Peoples v. North Carolina R. Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 87. Whether engineer and fireman saw section man on track in time to have stopped the train by the exercise of ordinary care. Hinzeman v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 182 Mo. 611, 81 S. W. 1134. Employe struck by cars being pushed by engine when train was being made up. Lassiter v. Raleigh & G. R. Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 93.

24. Evidence held for jury: Libby v. Banks, 209 Ill. 109, 70 N. E. 599. Whether roadway in mine, on which miner was ordered to drive vicious mule, reasonably safe. Henrietta Coal Co. v. Campbell, 211 Ill. 216, 71 sonableness of rules,[27] warnings and instruction,[28] and whether rules were made[29]

N. E. 863. Maintaining unguarded a ditch and pile of earth across path on premises by which employes came to work. Norris v. Cudahy Packing Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 853. Whether condition of blocking between main and guard rail was defective through company's negligence. Pierson v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 102 N. W. 149. Whether railway company was negligent in maintaining a scale box within 2 feet of rails, where tracks were standard distance apart, held for the jury. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Swearingen, 25 S. Ct. 164. Failure of master to provide a reasonably safe crucible in foundry. Ahrens & O. Mfg. Co. v. Rellihan [Ky.] 82 S. W. 993. Hatchway of ship insufficiently lighted. Earle v. Clyde S. S. Co., 43 Misc. 535, 89 N. Y. S. 500. Steam pipes improperly fastened to boilers. Bonnin v. Crowley, 112 La. 1025, 36 So. 842. Leaving cog wheels unboxed. Gomes v. New Bedford Cordage Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 840. Cog wheel of machine uncovered. Rock Island Sash & Door Works v. Pohlman, 210 Ill. 133, 71 N. E. 428. Failure to inspect blast holes to discover unexploded pieces of dynamite. Hooe v. Boston & N. St. R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 341. Injury caused by stepping on scrap of sheet iron in pathway leading to factory. Finn v. Ironclad Mfg Co., 90 N. Y. S. 887. Construction, repairs and inspection of a steam reservoir in brewery. Krueger v. Bartholomay Brew. Co., 94 App. Div. 58, 87 N. Y. S. 1054. Minor servant fell down elevator shaft. Brager v. Austin [Md.] 58 A. 432. Plaintiff injured by falling through trap door. Bateman v. New York, etc., R. Co., 178 N. Y. 84, 70 N. E. 109. Miner struck by rock falling from roof. Tennessee Coal, Iron & R. Co. v. Garrett [Ala.] 37 So. 355. Condition of railway track. Jackson Lumber Co. v. Cunningham [Ala.] 37 So. 445. Car driver in mine killed by material falling from roof. McFarland's Adm'r v. Harbison & Walker Co. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 430. Death of servant caused by loose plank in walk along a coal conveyor he was required to oil. Clark v. Wolverine Portland Cement Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 845. Telephone company sued for injuries to lineman caused by live electric light wire strung on defendant's poles. Barto v. Iowa Telephone Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 876. Where vice-principal ordered plaintiff to clean out blast hole, without examination, and an explosion resulted. Harris v. Balfour Quarry Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 95. Whether inspection of railroad track was sufficient in the exercise of due care. Jackson Lumber Co. v. Cunningham [Ala.] 37 So. 445.

Evidence insufficient to prove negligence of railway company in maintaining railroad frog with excavation underneath. Riley v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 904.

25. Diamond v. Planet Mills Mfg. Co., 97 App. Div. 43, 89 N. Y. S. 635. Whether a machine was properly guarded. Green v. American Car & Foundry Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 268; Dowd v. Erie R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 451, 57 A. 248. Evidence held to support finding that defendant was negligent in failing to furnish suitable materials for construction of sewer, and that such negligence was the proximate cause of a servant's death. Kurstelska v. Jackson [Minn.] 101 N. W. 606. Negligence in original construction of freight elevator. Womble v. Merchants' Grocery Co., 135 N. C. 474, 47 S. E. 493. Whether master could have discovered defect in a lever by exercise of ordinary care. Cudahy Packing Co. v. Roy [Neb.] 99 N. W. 231. Defendant negligent in that tackle supporting staging was defective; and plaintiff did not know and was not bound to know of its defective condition. Caven v. Bodwell Granite Co. [Me.] 59 A. 285. Evidence sufficient to support finding of negligence in furnishing defective scaffold. Louisville & E. R. Co. v. Poulter's Adm'r [Ky.] 84 S. W. 576. Brakes on engine and cars defective. Robertson v. Cayard [Tenn.] 77 S. W. 1056. Railway company had knowledge of defective condition of locomotive boiler. Markey v. Louisiana & M. R. Co. [Mo.] 84 S. W. 61. Finding that a winding machine had not been repaired, or had been improperly repaired, was justified by the fact that it had started up of itself. Gregory v. American Thread Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 962. Safety clutches on elevator defective. Droney v. Doherty [Mass.] 71 N. E. 547. Tire-bending machine defective, the clutch by which it was thrown into and out of gear being worn. Fries v. Bettendorf Axle Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 859. Failure to test boiler after repairs. Shea v. Pacific Power Co. [Cal.] 79 P. 373. Whether a saw was properly guarded. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Cavanaugh [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 239. Evidence sufficient to warrant finding that derailment was caused by defective track. Northern Ala. R. Co. v. Shea [Ala.] 37 So. 796. Whether set screw was properly guarded. Walker v. Newton Falls Paper Co., 90 N. Y. S. 630. Whether a particular machine was of such construction that it could be guarded. La Porte Carriage Co. v. Sullender [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 922. Whether harness was defective. Palmer v. Coyle [Mass.] 72 N. E. 844. Whether a saw was reasonably safe for use. Dean v. St. Louis Woodenware Works [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 292. Whether it was negligence to furnish a certain kind of fuse for blasting in coal mines. Currans v. Seattle & S. F. R. & Nav. Co., 34 Wash. 512, 76 P. 87. Whether defendant was negligent in furnishing defective sand drier. Walker v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 135 N. C. 738, 47 S. E. 675. Furnishing defective sling for hoisting pump on deck of lighter. Carter v. Boston Towboat Co., 185 Mass. 496, 70 N. E. 933. Superintendent's negligence in adjusting movable platform used by men in unloading freight. Murphy v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 330. Whether defendants were negligent in furnishing a block and hook of certain construction. Anderson v. Fielding [Minn.] 99 N. W. 357. Whether scaffold used by employe in sawing off piles was a reasonably safe place. Depuy v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 103. Furnishing defective coal bucket. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 787. Whether there was a sufficient inspection of freight elevator. Womble v. Merchants' Grocery Co., 135 N. C. 474, 47 S. E. 493. Whether substitution of other appliances for a chock usually used on pile drivers to prevent falling of a "follower" made it unsafe. Swanson v. Oakes [Minn.] 101 N. W. 949.

or warning or instruction given;[30] and what was the proximate cause of the injury alleged.[31] The same rule applies as to the issues of the existence of the re-

Evidence held insufficient: To prove a valve and stem used in oil burning rivet heater unsafe. Carr v. American Locomotive Co. [R. I.] 58 A. 678. Brakeman fell from car owing, as alleged, to a defective ladder thereon. Carleton v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 101 N. W. 501. To support finding that defendant had not furnished proper appliances for anchoring a derrick car. Wagner v. New York, etc., R. Co., 93 App. Div. 14, 86 N. Y. S. 921. To show hammer and spikes used in laying steel were defective and unsafe. Gauges v. Fitchburg R. Co., 185 Mass. 76, 69 N. E. 1063. Injury from electric shock not caused by any negligence of master in furnishing unsafe appliances. Wendler v. Red Wing Gas & Elec. Co. [Minn.] 99 N. W. 625.

26. Whether method of lowering caps by which piles were held in alignment, adopted by foreman, was reasonably safe. Depuy v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 103. Whether a system of protecting car repairers by blue flag signals is more efficient in protecting workmen than a system of personal warning by the yardmaster. State v. South Baltimore Carworks [Md.] 58 A. 447.

27. Whether a business is such as to require promulgation of rules, and whether rules adopted are proper, for the purpose for which they were intended. Johnson v. Union Pac. Coal Co. [Utah] 76 P. 1089. The reasonableness of rules promulgated by the master is for the court; but where there is doubt as to the applicability of rules to particular duties, a question of fact is presented. Rules requiring inspection of appliances, and reports on defects discovered, held not applicable to an engine, on which the footboard and handhold were defective, so as to bar recovery by a switchman obliged to use them without opportunity for inspection. Leduc v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 708.

28. The necessity and adequacy of instructions to servants in a particular instance. Creachen v. Bromley Bros. Carpet Co., 209 Pa. 6, 57 A. 1101. Necessity of instructing employe, engaged to hold rails while being cut, as to danger from flying particles of steel, and how to avoid it. Vohs v. Shorthill Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 495. Whether railway company was negligent in failing to put out signal or giving other warning regarding an obstruction on track. Rogers v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 211 Ill. 126, 71 N. E. 850. Whether master was negligent in failing to instruct and warn inexperienced operator of kneebolter in shingle factory. Jancko v. West Coast Mfg. & Inv. Co., 34 Wash. 556, 76 P. 78. Whether the lack of experience of a telephone employe was such as to make it the master's duty to warn and instruct him before putting him to work as a lineman. Britton v. Cent. Union Tel. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 844. Where a boy of 13 years was injured by a dangerous machine which had not been explained to him, defendant's negligence was for the jury. Dynes v. Bromley, 208 Pa. 633, 57 A. 1123.

29. Evidence being in conflict as to whether rules governing work of car repairing had been made and promulgated, plaintiff was entitled to go to jury on the issue whether a safe place to work had been provided. Quinn v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 91 App. Div. 489, 86 N. Y. S. 883. Submission to the jury of the issue whether rules of a railway company governing employes and dispatchers were reasonably sufficient and clear was error, when there was no evidence to show they were not so. Landon v. Boston & M. R. Co., 72 N. H. 600, 57 A. 920. The question of the sufficiency of rules governing the movement and management of cars was erroneously submitted to the jury when there was no evidence to show other rules in use by other companies, or that other rules would be more practicable or render the movement of trains safer. Ward v. Manhattan R. Co., 95 App. Div. 437, 88 N. Y. S. 758.

30. Whether instructions were given young and inexperienced employe regarding danger from saw near which he worked. Lachau v. Milner & Co., 123 Iowa, 387, 98 N. W. 900. Whether brige over railway track was properly constructed and proper warnings provided by "tell-tales" to avoid injuries to brakemen on trains. Hedrick v. Southern R. Co., 136 N. C. 510, 48 S. E. 830.

31. The question of proximate cause is for the court if the facts are not disputed. Defective pipe on engine held not proximate cause of engineer's injury. Douglass v. New York, etc., R. Co., 209 Pa. 128, 58 A. 160. Plaintiff need not prove the cause alleged to be the proximate cause of his injury by demonstrative evidence; proof of its probability is sufficient to warrant submission to the jury. Cecil v. American Sheet Steel Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 542. Whether the negligence alleged caused the accident is for the jury unless the proof thereof is no stronger than that plaintiff's own negligence, or other causes, produced it. Whether death of brakeman was caused by his being knocked off his car by projecting arm of telegraph pole held for jury. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mulfinger's Adm'x [Ky.] 80 S. W. 499. Evidence held to support finding that superintendent's negligence in failing to secure wheel of machine before loading it into a wagon was proximate cause of plaintiff's injury. Cunningham v. Atlas Tack Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 325. That boiler explosion was caused by action of chlorides in water, and not by negligent acts of engineer or fireman. Nelson v. New York, 91 N. Y. S. 763. Evidence insufficient to prove that defect in blow-off, attached to boiler, was the cause of an explosion. Goodhines v. Chase, 91 N. Y. S. 313. Where plaintiff was injured by falling of a chest from a shelf, shown to be inclined and hence defective, proof that a chest had fallen from the shelf three months before, and that on the day in question, it fell of itself, was held insufficient to establish negligence of the defendant without showing that the falling of the chest could not have been caused otherwise. Hofnauer v. White Co. [Mass.] 70 N. E. 1038. Where a complaint alleges several causes of injury, it is for the jury to say whether any or all of them constituted the proximate cause of the injury, and it is error to grant lation of fellow-servants,[32] contributory negligence,[33] particularly where the servant is a minor,[34] and assumption of risk.[35]

a nonsuit for failure to prove one as the proximate cause. Carson v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 46 S. E. 525.

In the following cases the evidence was held to require submission of the issue to the jury. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Mobley, 139 Ala. 425, 36 So. 181. Whether defective track at curve or negligence of engineer in operating engine caused derailment and fireman's death. Shugart v. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 505. Whether falling of stone was caused by defective pillar cap in mine. Cecil v. American Sheet Steel Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 542. Whether failure to furnish reasonably safe appliances caused an injury. Anderson v. Fielding [Minn.] 99 N. W. 357. Whether straightened condition of hook used in unloading vessel was sole cause of injury. Martin v. Merchants' & Miners' Transp. Co., 185 Mass. 487, 70 N. E. 934. Whether unprotected cogwheel in mill was proximate cause. Rock Island Sash & Door Works v. Pohlman, 210 Ill. 133, 71 N. E. 428. Whether erratic motion of loaded bucket or negligence of derrick engineer in swinging it to dock at the time caused the accident. Robinson v. Pittsburg Coal Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 324. Whether plaintiff's condition was due to disease or a fall caused by use of an alleged defective wrench. O'Brien v. Missouri, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 319. Whether section foreman's negligence in running hand car on a train's time was cause of injury to a hand while lifting car off to avoid collision. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. McIntosh [Ky.] 80 S. W. 496. Whether defective condition of automatic stop on elevator was proximate cause of injury to operator. Central Union Bldg. Co. v. Kolander, 212 Ill. 27, 72 N. E. 50. Whether particle which struck plaintiff's eye came from unguarded emery belt. La Porte Carriage Co. v. Sullender [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 922. Whether the cause of injury was the furnishing of a defective appliance, or improper use of a proper appliance. Koon v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 48 S. E. 86. Where a servant was last seen going between cars to make a coupling, and his body was found near the place, the time and manner of his death were for the jury. McHugh v. Manhattan R. Co. [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 312. Whether injury to quarry employe driving a load of stone was caused by a defective brake. Allison v. Long Clove Trap Rock Co., 92 App. Div. 611, 86 N. Y. S. 833. Whether injury was caused by defective sand drier. Walker v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 135 N. C. 738, 47 S. E. 675. Whether requiring employe to work near live wire without informing him that it was uninsulated was proximate cause of his injury. Haworth v. Mineral Belt Tel. Co., 105 Mo. App. 161, 79 S. W. 727. Whether negligence of fellow-servants solely caused the accident, or was combined with actionable negligence of the master. Swanson v. Oakes [Minn.] 101 N. W. 949. Whether train hand's failure to keep a sharp lookout for cars was proximate cause of his death. Peoples v. North Carolina R. Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 87. Whether sudden jerking of train, or contributory negligence of workman in being on step of caboose, was proximate cause of his fall and injury. Whisenhant v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 559. Whether failure of first section of train running in two sections to send back a flagman was proximate cause of injury to engineer who jumped from engine of second section when sections collided. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co v. Lester [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 401. Where a statute prohibiting employment in mines of minors under 14, and giving a right of action to a minor injured while so employed, is violated, the questions of willful violation of the statute and the proximate cause of the injury are questions of fact for the jury. Marquette Third Vein Coal Co. v. Dielie, 208 Ill. 116, 70 N. E. 17. A verdict will be directed for defendant where the procuring cause of the servant's injury is uncertain. Where evidence failed to establish that the lifting of a piece of timber was the cause of another piece rolling down and injuring plaintiff, held verdict will be directed. Weliver v. Williams, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 407.

32. What facts will constitute the relation of fellow-servants is a question of law, and if the facts are undisputed the existence of the relation in a particular case is a question solely for the court. Chicago City R. Co. v. Leach, 208 Ill. 198, 70 N. E. 222; Spring Valley Coal Co. v. Patting, 210 Ill. 342, 71 N. E. 371; Illinois Southern R. Co. v. Marshall, 210 Ill. 562, 71 N. E. 597; Consolidated Coal Co. v. Fleischbein, 207 Ill. 593, 69 N. E. 963. But if the facts are in dispute, the question may be one for jury, under proper instructions. Consolidated Coal Co. v. Fleischbein, 207 Ill. 593, 69 N. E. 963; Spring Valley Coal Co. v. Patting, 210 Ill. 342, 71 N. E. 371.

Evidence held to require submission of issue to jury. Johnson v. Heath [Neb.] 98 N. W. 832. Whether a brakeman, a member of a yard switching crew, were at the time of an accident co-operating in common work, or were so habitually associated as to be fellow-servants. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. White, 209 Ill. 124, 70 N. E. 588. Whether the act of a foreman of a transfer company, in backing horses hitched to loaded wagon, was done in his capacity as foreman or as common laborer. Fogarty v. St. Louis Transfer Co., 180 Mo. 490, 79 S. W. 664. Whether an employe whose duties were to take engines to roundhouse was the fellow-servant of a section hand who did considerable work in the yards, the two being accidentally associated part of the time, was a question for the jury [under Illinois association rule]. Indiana, etc., R. Co. v. Otstot, 212 Ill. 429, 72 N. E. 387. A boss of the shipping department of a mill, who had complete charge of the movement of cars, ordered plaintiff to go behind a car and assist in moving it, and while so doing plaintiff was struck by another car, being moved by orders from the boss. Held, facts required submission to jury on issue whether boss and plaintiff were fellow-servants. Dill v. Marmon [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 669.

33. Evidence held for jury: Texas & P. R. Co. v. Dashiell [C. C. A.] 128 F. 23; Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. v. Bills [C. C. A.] 128

F. 272; Cobb Chocolate Co. v. Knudson, 207 Ill. 452, 69 N. E. 816; Belt R. Co. v. Confrey, 209 Ill. 344, 70 N. E. 773; Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Cavanaugh [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 239; Carter v. Boston Towboat Co., 185 Mass. 496, 70 N. E. 933; Martin v. Merchants' & Miners' Transp. Co., 185 Mass. 485, 70 N. E. 934; McKinnon v. Riter-Conley Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 296; Droney v. Doherty [Mass.] 71 N. E. 547; Sipes v. Michigan Starch Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 447; Maurer v. Gould [N. J. Law] 59 A. 28; Franck v. American Tartar Co., 91 App. Div. 571, 87 N. Y. S. 219; Krueger v. Bartholomay Brew. Co., 94 App. Div. 58, 87 N. Y. S. 1054; Kamp v. Coxe Bros. & Co. [Wis.] 99 N. W. 366. The question of contributory negligence is for the jury unless the evidence so conclusively discloses it that reasonable men in the exercise of impartial judgment could draw no other conclusion. Gilbert v. Burlington, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 128 F. 529; Fremont Brew. Co. v. Schulz [Neb.] 101 N. W. 234; Lebeau v. Dyerville Mfg. Co. [R. I.] 57 A. 1092; Jancko v. West Coast Mfg. & Inv. Co., 34 Wash. 556, 76 P. 78. Where an employe continues in the employment after a promise to remedy a defective appliance, and the promise is then revoked, expressly or impliedly. Neeley v. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co., 13 Okl. 356, 75 P. 537. Whether a situation into which a servant is ordered to go is so dangerous that no prudent man would have risked it, even under orders, is for the jury. Wurtenberger v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 68 Kan. 642, 75 P. 1049. Where plaintiff was injured by caving of walls of trench in which he was at work. Shea v. Manning [Ala.] 37 So. 632. Employe fell into empty coal bin. Nord v. Boston & M. Consol. Copper & Silver Min. Co. [Mont.] 75 P. 681. Plaintiff fell into unguarded pit. Aetna Powder Co. v. Earlandson [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 185. Where truckman got foot caught in screw in trough, in the floor, a board which he placed over it slipping. Virginia Portland Cement Co. v. Luck's Adm'r [Va.] 49 S. E. 577. Experienced ironworker went upon timber lashed to uprights and used as scaffold, and fell on account of the beam turning. Welk v. Jackson Architectural Ironworks, 90 N. Y. S. 541. Employe fell into ditch dug across path on premises used by employes to get to their work. Norris v. Cudahy Packing Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 853. Whether motorman was negligent in leaving his controller handle where the foreman could get it and run a car out. Bien v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 986. Telephone lineman injured by live electric light wire strung on telephone company's poles. Barto v. Iowa Telephone Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 876. Where the defense is disobedience of orders, which if obeyed would have avoided the injury, the giving of such orders is for the jury. Western Mattress Co. v. Ostergaard [Neb.] 99 N. W. 229. Whether use of structure as a scaffold was negligence, or whether it was negligence not to prevent workmen going upon it. Conger v. Wiggins, 208 Pa. 122, 57 A. 341. Whether miner was negligent in use of certain fuse, and in examining it to discover cause of failure to explode a charge. Currans v. Seattle & S. F. R. & Nav. Co., 34 Wash. 512, 76 P. 87. Negligence of miner in going to an entry, not intended for work, to saw props. Chicago, W. & V. Coal Co. v. Moran, 210 Ill. 9, 71 N. E. 38. Quarry employe injured by explosion of charge of dynamite left, without his knowledge, in blast hole. Lanza v. Le Grand Quarry Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 488. Plaintiff injured by stroke of foreman's maul when assisting him to put in a switch point, under the foreman's orders. Buckalew v. Quincy, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 1176. Whether sawyer was negligent in attempting to operate defective reversing appliance on machine, when directed to do so. Hendricks v. Lesure Lumber Co. [Minn.] 99 N. W. 1125. Cleaning wool carding machine. Sauvageau v. River Spinning Co., 129 F. 961. Cleaning machine. Moyes v. Ogden Sewer Pipe & Clay Co. [Utah] 77 P. 610. Whether steel hammer had been rendered so defective from long use in crushing ore that plaintiff was negligent in continuing to use it. Robbins v. Big Circle Min. Co., 105 Mo. App. 78, 79 S. W. 480. Where injury was caused by defective laundry machine and it appeared superintendent had promised to repair it. Calhoun v. Holland Laundry, 208 Pa. 139, 57 A. 350. Where plaintiff slipped on floor and came in contact with saw. Aspenlaub v. Ellis [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 527. Inexperienced boy employed to empty hoppers injured by revolving knives of planer, issue being whether he had knowledge of the danger. Horne v. La Crosse Box Co. [Wis.] 101 N. W. 935. Servant's hand caught in unguarded cogs. Buehner v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 345. Use of defective tongs in handling iron ingots. Mulligan v. Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. [Colo. App.] 77 P. 977. Whether use of saw in certain way was negligence. Dean v. St. Louis Woodenware Works [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 292. Contributory negligence of servant who used an unsafe block and hook. Anderson v. Fielding [Minn.] 99 N. W. 357. Whether plaintiff was in charge of moving machine and was negligent in manner of doing it. Thompson v. American Writing Paper Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 343. Use of ripsaw without a guard—whether safer method was adopted by operator. Crooker v. Pacific Lounge & Mattress Co., 34 Wash. 191, 75 P. 632. Whether workman chose a reasonably safe place to stand on flat car on which machinery operating steam shovel was placed. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Pelfrey [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 102. Whether plaintiff was negligent in not discovering absence of guard from cogwheels of spinning frames. Gomes v. New Bedford Cordage Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 840. Whether employe was negligent in operation of winding machine, which started up of itself and injured her, the superintendent having told her the machine had been repaired. Gregory v. American Thread Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 962.

Injuries to railway employes: Brakeman struck by overhead cattle chute. Coles v. Union Terminal R. Co. [Iowa] 99 N. W. 108; Chicago G. W. R. Co. v. Roddy [C. C. A.] 131 F. 712. Manner of using wrench. O'Brien v. Missouri, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 319. Plaintiff, injured by hole in car used in unloading freight. Foster v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 331. Whether failure to observe a rule was negligence. Quinn v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 395. Manner of uncoupling cars when coupling appliance was defective. Pierson v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 102 N. W. 149. Condition of railway track, causing derailment and fireman's death. Shugart v. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 505. Section hand lifting car off track to avoid collision where handcar was running on train's time by foreman's orders. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. McIntosh [Ky.] 80 S. W. 496. Employe was thrown off step of caboose by sudden jerk of train due to increase in speed at a point where train was expected to stop. Whisenhant v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 559. Whether brakeman should have known of proximity of switch stand to track and was negligent in attempting to mount an engine passing it. McCabe v. Montana Cent. R. Co. [Mont.] 76 P. 701. Whether an engine "hostler" crushed between a tender and a building in the yards was at his post of duty when killed. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Cheatwood's Adm'x [Va.] 49 S. E. 489. Whether brakeman had notice of, and appreciated danger from, a pole near the track, so that, under the circumstances, he exercised due care. Illinois Terminal R. Co. v. Thompson, 210 Ill. 226, 71 N. E. 328. Section man struck by train while attempting to remove handcar under foreman's orders. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Thornhill [Ala.] 37 So. 412. Contributory negligence of engineer killed in collision. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Schraag [Miss.] 36 So. 193. Engineer of switch engine got out to look for hot box on engine, and was killed by collision with cars which had been kicked up a grade, in charge of a brakeman, who failed to set brakes. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Johnson [Kan.] 77 P. 576. Fireman injured by engine going through bridge which train was sent with crew to repair. Kath v. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co. [Wis.] 99 N. W. 217. Brakeman injured by running into defective crossing gates which projected in his path as he ran along beside the cars. Fearns v. New York, etc., R. Co., 186 Mass. 529, 72 N. E. 68. Unloading freight with use of movable "brow" or platform. Murphy v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 330. Evidence sufficient to show deceased negligent in attempting to uncouple cars without cutting off the air or giving a stop signal. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Powell [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 670. Section hand struck by engine while at work. Indiana, etc., R. Co. v. Otstot, 212 Ill. 429, 72 N. E. 387. Whether brakeman was negligent in using his foot in making a coupling, the coupler being structurally defective. Brinkmeier v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Kan.] 77 P. 586. Brakeman's use of defective handhold on old caboose. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Hoskins [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 369. Whether brakeman was negligent in making a coupling in a certain manner. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Penn [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 624. Whether danger in obeying order of section foreman and assisting to remove a hand car from before a passenger train was so glaring that no prudent man would have encountered it. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Stevens [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 235. Brakeman killed while adjusting coupler, other cars being backed against him without warning. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Caskey [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 264. Where evidence was conflicting as to switchman's movements, whether his own negligence contributed to cause his injury by being struck by a projecting roof of a freighthouse. Hawley v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 150. Train hand killed by being struck by cars kicked down a track while he was mounting a switch engine. Peoples v. North Carolina R. Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 87. Whether employe's act in stepping across a track in front of an approaching loaded car contributed proximately to his falling through a hole in the track. Texas Portland Cement & Lime Co. v. Lee [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 306. Elevator operator free from negligence. Central Union Bldg. Co. v. Kolander, 212 Ill. 27, 72 N. E. 50. Plaintiff not guilty of negligence in driving a vicious mule over an alleged dangerous roadway in mine. Henrietta Coal Co. v. Campbell, 211 Ill. 216, 71 N. E. 863. Where trackman looked for a train and then started for a toolhouse, and would have arrived there before a train could have reached him, if running within the speed limit, he was not negligent in not looking again or in walking on the ends of the ties. Camp v. Chicago Great Western R. Co. [Iowa] 99 N. W. 735. Plaintiff had no knowledge that hydraulic machine was liable to start suddenly and hence was not negligent. Klaffke v. Bettendorf Axle Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 1116. Hand car derailed by striking block fallen from train ahead; plaintiff not negligent though he had seen the car loaded with mill refuse, and had followed on the hand car. McLean v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 748. Fireman not negligent in going on running board of engine. Ellington v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 218 Switchman free from negligence in riding on footboard on tender. Leduc v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 108. Sectionman, back 18 feet from engine, not negligent, when struck by slate thrown by fireman sorting coal. Swartz v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 101 N. W. 504. Where fireman, injured in collision caused by engineer's being asleep, was at the time busy firing in response to engineer's previous order to keep the engine "red-hot." Southern R. Co. v. Cheaves [Miss.] 36 So. 691. Injury by explosion of digester in paper mill. Hunt v. Dexter Sulphite Pulp & Paper Co., 91 N. Y. S. 279. Fireman stepped on drum of stationary engine, having no notice that it would be moved. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Kelly [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 855. Bridge watchman struck by train while crossing bridge on velocipede. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Brock [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 422. Switchman stumbled over rock and caught foot in frog, and was struck by car, having no notice of presence of the rock or that frog was unblocked. Texarkana & Ft. S. R. Co. v. Toliver [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 375. Plaintiff struck by rail being unloaded in haste from hand car under direction of section foreman. Hicks v. Southern Pac. Co., 27 Utah, 526, 76 P. 625. Car inspector struck by switch engine in yards. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Pierce [Va.] 48 S. E. 534.

Evidence held to show contributory negligence: Hoehn v. Lautz, 94 App. Div. 14, 87 N. Y. S. 921. Plaintiff's hand injured in winding machine in woolen factory. Debro v. James Lee's Sons Co., 130 F. 385. Flagman, struck by train when leaving work, did not stop, look, and listen. O'Neil v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 130 F. 204. Injury by falling of ram of hydraulic press. Palato v. International Silver Co., 129 F. 652. Telephone lineman, killed by contact with live electric light wire on telephone company's pole, knew, or with ordinary care should have known, that the insulation was worn off the wire at that point. Columbus R. Co. v. Dorsey, 119 Ga. 363, 46 S. E. 635. Plaintiff removed certain guy ropes before climbing a pile driver to take down a piece of tackle, so that the driver fell and injured him. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Swift, 213 Ill. 307, 72 N. E. 737. Brakeman killed by train which struck him as a result of his having turned a switch which was already turned. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Goddard [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 514. Gravel pit foreman negligent in going between cars, knowing the manner and time of moving the cars. Campbell v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Iowa] 100 N. W. 30. Engineer, injured by gases from fuses carried in the cab, which were ignited by friction, negligent in not having them packed in good order, ready for use, and so that they could not be so ignited. Crane v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 99 N. W. 169. Switchman fell from moving car, which was kicked down a side track. Ederle v. Vicksburg, etc., R. Co., 112 La. 728, 36 So. 664. Flagman and switchman struck by engine while throwing a switch. Gilgan v, New York, etc., R. Co., 185 Mass. 139, 69 N. E. 1062. Plaintiff allowed hand to be drawn into snatch block. Gavin v. Fall River Automatic Tel. Co., 185 Mass. 78, 69 N. E. 1055. Servant whose duty it was to watch buckets on an endless chain of a coal and ashes conveyor negligent in standing where material falling from a bucket would strike him. Babb v. Oxford Paper Co. [Me.] 59 A. 290. Car inspector, caught between cars, negligent in failing to inform switching crew of his position, and in going between cars when switching was going on. Whitley v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 68. Employe tried to board a train moving "pretty fast." Southern R. Co. v. Williams [Miss.] 36 So. 394. Section hand, injured by getting foot caught between wheel of push car and loose tie, while propelling car by "kicking ties," guilty of contributory negligence, having himself left the ties too close to track. Fielding v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1022. Plaintiff allowed fingers to be caught in meat-cutting machine. Voegele v. Bardusch, 90 N. Y. S. 735. Cranesman on derrick car, who had been employed a week, and had assisted in anchoring the car each day, negligent in not anchoring it on the day of his injury. Wagner v. New York, etc., R. Co., 93 App. Div. 14, 86 N. Y. S. 921. No emergency or impending peril such as to excuse forgetfulness of a defect which was known. Langlois v. Dunn Worsted Mills [R. I.] 67 A. 910. Plaintiff negligent in using certain three-legged benches or trestles in moving heavy sill from car. Bell v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 134. Evidence insufficient to warrant recovery on ground that leg of a horse supporting a plank broke, thereby causing a loaded wheelbarrow to fall on plaintiff; evidence tended rather to show uneven loading of barrow by plaintiff. Browning v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 591. Section hand went between cars without looking for engine. Dishon v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 471.

34. Girl of 14 injured by getting hair caught in machinery. Mayfield Woolen Mills v. Frazier, 25 Ky. L. R. 2263, 80 S. W. 456. The capacity of a child of tender years and the care required of it is for the jury. Canton Cotton Mills v. Edwards, 120 Ga. 447, 47 S. E. 937. Whether a servant was of sufficient mental capacity to be guilty of contributory negligence was for the jury, the evidence being conflicting. Marrow v. Gaffney Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 49 S. E. 573.

35. Where there is no dispute as to the facts, the question of assumption of risk is one of law; but if there is a conflict in the evidence, it is one of fact. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Howell, 208 Ill. 155, 70 N. E. 15; Avery v. Nordyke & M. Co. [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 888. What is a reasonable time for a workman to continue the use of an unsafe appliance after a promise of the master to make it safe, is usually a question of fact. Anderson v. Fielding [Minn.] 99 N. W. 357; Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Baker [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 67. Whether sixteen days was a reasonable time for fulfillment of a promise to put a guard on gearing on a machine, so that servant assumed risk after that time. Dowd v. Erie R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 431, 57 A. 248.

In the following cases the evidence was held to require submission of the issue to the jury. Indiana, etc., R. Co. v. Otstot, 212 Ill. 429, 72 N. E. 387; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Benton [C. C. A.] 132 F. 460. Whether brakeman assumed risk of being struck by telegraph pole too near track. Illinois Terminal R. Co. v. Thompson, 210 Ill. 226, 71 N. E. 328. Whether deceased had notice of defect in tongs. Mulligan v. Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. [Colo. App.] 77 P. 977. Whether a risk is an obvious one so that continuing to work, after a promise to repair, will relieve the master. Schermerhorn v. Glens Falls Portland Cement Co., 94 App. Div. 600, 88 N. Y. S. 407. Evidence not such as to charge plaintiff with knowledge of danger from empty coal bin as matter of law. Nord v. Boston & M. Consol. Copper & Silver Min. Co. [Mont.] 75 P. 681. Whether plaintiff knew or ought to have known of a defect in a scaffold, so that he assumed the risk of going upon it. Hempstock v. Lackawanna Iron & Steel Co., 90 N. Y. S. 663. Whether miner assumed risk in using a certain fuse and in examining it when it failed to explode a charge. Currans v. Seattle & S. F. R. & Nav. Co., 34 Wash. 512, 76 P. 87. Whether telephone lineman assumed risk of defect in step on pole. Chisholm v. New England Tel. & T. Co., 185 Mass. 82, 69 N. E. 1042. Whether brakeman had such notice of proximity of switch stand to track that he assumed risk of being struck by switch when attempting to mount a moving engine. McCabe v. Montana Cent. R. Co. [Mont.] 76 P. 701. Whether a brakeman assumed the risk from a cattle chute built over the track, low enough to strike him when on a box car. Coles v. Union Terminal R. Co. [Iowa] 99 N. W. 108. Whether comparatively inexperienced operator of a planer, directed to run it without readjusting the guard, assumed the risk of so operating it. Klein v. Garvey, 94 App. Div. 183, 87 N. Y. S. 998. Whether employe had actual or implied knowledge of the fact that a shovel was lying in a gangway between an engine tender and tank,

(§ 3H) 5. Instructions.[36]—Only a few illustrative holdings are here given, the general principles governing the giving of instructions being treated fully elsewhere.[37]

Instructions must be confined to the issues raised by the pleadings,[38] and the evidence.[39] They should include all acts of negligence relied on by the plaintiff, and supported by evidence,[40] and where more than one ground is relied on, error in instructing on either aspect of the case is reversible.[41] The defendant is en-so that he assumed the risk of falling by stepping on it. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Manns [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 254. Whether plaintiff assumed risk by going back to work after complaining to superintendent of danger and a promise by the latter to look after it. McKinnon v. Riter-Conley Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 296. Whether a defect in a crucible was known to or should have been known to plaintiff. Ahrens & O. Mfg. Co. v. Rellihan [Ky.] 82 S. W. 993. Whether operator of saw assumed risk of being struck by piece of timber, and of putting his hand on the saw in consequence. Dean v. St. Louis Woodenware Works [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 292. Whether girl of 14 assumed risk of working in woolen factory, and getting caught in machinery. Mayfield Woolen Mills v. Frazier, 25 Ky. L. R. 2263, 80 S. W. 456. Whether miner assumed risk of a boulder falling, having seen a crevice in it, but having been assured by his superintendent that it was safe. Carter v. Baldwin [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 204. Whether workman was justified in assuming that promised repairs had been made in a valve, when they could have been in 15 minutes and he did not resume work for three hours, was for jury. Studenroth v. Hammond Packing Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 487. Whether defect in street car track was open and obvious and threatened immediate danger, or was such that conductor was justified in assuming he could use it safely in the exercise of due care. Houts v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 161. Where switchman had worked in two yards, but only 20 or 25 days in one of them, whether he had such knowledge of a freight house roof which projected over a switch track in such yard that he assumed the risk of being struck by it while on a car. Hawley v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 150. Whether young and inexperienced employe had a right to assume that his employer expected him to clean a machine with his hands, in which case he could not be held to have assumed the risk of so doing. Mayes v. Ogden Sewer Pipe & Clay Co. [Utah] 77 P. 610. Where a workman, in performing his services, places himself in a position of probable danger, so that he has a right to be warned of an approach of danger, the question whether he has assumed the risk of working without such warning, cannot be decided by the court, but is for the jury. Albanese v. Central R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 241, 57 A. 447. Evidence sufficient to show that servant assumed risk of using certain three-legged benches and trestles in moving heavy sill from car. Bell v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 134. Evidence sufficient to show that switchman had no knowledge of presence of rock in yards, and that frog was unblocked, and did not assume risk of stumbling and getting caught in frog. Texarkana, etc., R. Co. v. Toliver [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 375. Where employe testified that he had told superintendent of the defect in appliance and that a promise to repair had been made. Going v. Alabama Steel & Wire Co. [Ala.] 37 So. 784.

36. See 2 Curr. L. 859.

37. See Instructions, 4 Curr. L. 133.

38. Error to instruct on duty of railroad company to make rules and regulations when no negligence in failing to do so was alleged. Texas Short Line R. Co. v. Patton [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 881. In an action for damages for alleged premature discharge from a hospital, where an employe was being treated for an injury, as required by his contract, instructions should be confined to the issue of defendant's liability for such premature discharge; instructions permitting recovery for the original injury, or on the degree of care required in giving medical treatment are improper. International, etc., R. Co. v. Logan [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 812. Where negligence of the master in furnishing a superintendent or foreman is not alleged, the court should not give a general charge as to the duty of the master in that regard. But such instruction was harmless in view of special findings of the jury. Kurstelska v. Jackson [Minn.] 101 N. W. 606. Requested charge on assumed risk properly refused when the defense was not pleaded. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 852.

39. Where only issue was safety of a burner valve, an instruction covering the valve and "pipe and connections" was erroneous. Carr v. American Locomotive Co. [R. I.] 58 A. 678. Failure to charge on contributory negligence is not error when the defense is not pleaded and the evidence does not disclose it as a matter of law. Hirsch Bros. v. Ashe [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 650. Where a claim as to defective rollers in a packing plant was abandoned on the trial and defect in a steadying board relied on, instructions which might be construed as including both grounds were erroneous. Rendlich v. Hammond Packing Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 683.

40. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Rea [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 428; Vicars v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 286. If plaintiff rests his right of recovery on two concurring acts of negligence as the proximate causes of his injury, he is entitled to instructions as to each as though recovery was based on that alone. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Voelker [C. C. A.] 129 F. 522. It is not error to separate the grounds of negligence relied on by plaintiff in charging the jury. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. McAdams [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1076.

41. Wamble v. Merchants' Grocery Co., 135 N. C. 474, 47 S. E. 493.

titled to proper instructions on assumption of risk,[42] contributory negligence,[43] and fellow-servants,[44] if these defenses are relied on.[45] An instruction which may lead the jury to believe that the issue of contributory negligence can only be raised by affirmative evidence introduced for the defendant is erroneous, since it takes from the jury the consideration of plaintiff's evidence in chief on this issue.[46]

Instructions should be given upon the theories adopted at the trial.[47] The instructions given must be warranted by the evidence;[48] they should not be on

42. Where there is evidence tending to show a known risk, ordinarily incident to the employment, defendant is entitled to a charge on the doctrine of assumed risks. McKane v. Marr & Gordon [Vt.] 58 A. 721. Where it was in issue whether a defective headlight or negligent act of a flagman in giving a signal to proceed was the proximate cause of the injury, it was error to refuse to instruct as to the assumption of the risk of using the defective headlight. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Fitzpatrick [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 406. Instructions regarding assumption of risks are erroneous if they do not include the rule as to assumption of actually known, as well as obvious, risks. Southern Indiana R. Co. v. Moore [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 479. Instructions as to the assumption of particular risks must include the necessary causal relation between such danger or hazard and the accident causing the injury. Cobb Chocolate Co. v. Knudson, 207 Ill. 452, 69 N. E. 816. Entitled to instruction on defense that plaintiff had actual or implied knowledge of the location and condition of culvert in yards which caused his injury. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Price [Ga.] 49 S. E. 683. Certain instructions held not prejudicial to defendant because not including assumption of open and obvious risks, though unknown. Texas Portland Cement & Lime Co. v. Lee [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 306.

43. Instructions on contributory negligence held not to improperly limit the jury as to the circumstances to be considered. Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Kelly [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1073. Charge on contributory negligence held broad enough to cover all circumstances attending the wrecking of a train by which engineer was injured. Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Sage [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1038. Where the evidence did not show just how an employe got caught in a cotton seed conveyor, defendant was entitled to a specific charge on his theory of contributory negligence. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Gentry [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 394. Error to instruct that contributory negligence will not be presumed where there was evidence of negligence of plaintiff. Newport News Pub. Co. v. Beaumeister, 102 Va. 677, 47 S. E. 821.

44. Where it appeared that a wire on a stock gap by which a brakeman was struck and killed might have been placed there voluntarily by a bridge foreman, the company was entitled to a charge on the fellow-servant rule. Northern Alabama R. Co. v. Mansell [Ala.] 36 So. 459.

45. Where it appeared without dispute that neither master nor servant knew of the alleged defect or the resulting danger, failure to instruct as to assumption of risk was harmless. Southern Indiana R. Co. v. Moore [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 516.

46. An instruction said, in substance, that contributory negligence being matter of defense, plaintiff need not offer any evidence in chief as to his own negligence, but was required to meet that issue only after defendant had introduced some proof regarding it; and that thereafter it was plaintiff's right to offer evidence on that proposition. Held reversible error. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Collins [Ind.] 71 N. E. 661. Substantially same instruction held erroneous in Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Leightheiser [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 218.

47. Instructions given upon a theory adopted at the trial will not be held erroneous on appeal, though the facts pleaded admit another theory. Blanchard-Hamilton Furniture Co. v. Colvin, 32 Ind. App. 395, 69 N. E. 1032. Where defendant denies liability and offers evidence that the injury alleged was the result of an accident, he is entitled to an instruction on that theory, even without a request therefor. Hilton & Dodge Lumber Co. v. Ingram, 119 Ga. 652, 46 S. E. 895. It is proper to insert in a requested instruction that plaintiff cannot recover if his injury was the result of an accident, a definition of the word "accident." Barnett & Record Co. v. Schlapka, 208 Ill. 426, 70 N. E. 343. Where the evidence was such that the jury was warranted in finding that the place where plaintiff was at work was unsafe, and that its unsafe condition was known or ought to have been known to the employe, and was unknown to plaintiff, and could not have been known to him by the exercise of ordinary care, an instruction should have been given covering the law governing such a case. Logsden v. Western Brick Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 2060, 79 S. W. 290. Where there was no evidence that defendant had knowledge of an alleged defect in a machine, the court should have so charged when requested so to do. Jones v. John Kroeder & Henry Reubel Co., 88 N. Y. S. 870.

48. Fisher v. Texas Tel. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 50. If there is no evidence to show that one guilty of negligence was anything but a co-employe, it is error to so instruct the jury that they may find he was not a co-employe. Koszlowski v. American Locomotive Co., 96 App. Div. 40, 89 N. Y. S. 55. Instructions to find for plaintiff if not enough men were furnished to load car wheels, or if skids furnished were not safe, erroneously given, there being no evidence to support corresponding allegations Meily v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 639. Where there was no evidence that any effort had been made to discover dangerous condition of mine roof, an instruction that defendant would not be liable if the danger could not have been discovered by exercise of reasonable care was properly refused. Tennessee Coal, Iron &

the weight of evidence,[49] and should not assume facts in issue.[50] They are sufficient if, construed as a whole, they properly present the law.[51] In actions based on statutes,[52] instructions may properly follow the statutory language.[53]

(§ 3H) 6. Verdicts and findings.[54]—In an action against a master and servant for joint and concurring negligence, there may be a recovery against the master alone,[55] and a verdict for the servant but against the master will not be set aside.[56]

§ 4. Liability for injuries to third persons. A. In general.[57]—A master is liable for the acts of his servant within the general scope of his employment, while about his master's business, though the act be negligent,[58] wanton, willful,[59]

R. Co. v. Garrett [Ala.] 37 So. 355. An instruction that contributory negligence would be no defense if plaintiff's position of peril was known, or by the exercise of ordinary care might have been known to the defendants, was error, when there was no evidence tending to show actual of implied knowledge by defendant's servants of plaintiff's peril. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Jones' Adm'r [Ky.] 80 S. W. 484. Held sufficient basis in evidence for instruction that if a railroad yard conductor, knowing a brakeman sent to flag a train had not done so, could have had it flagged in time to prevent injury to plaintiff, defendant would be liable. Southern R. Co. v. Oliver, 102 Va. 710, 47 S. E. 862.

49. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Stinson [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 986.

50. Real question being whether a structure through which plaintiff's decedent fell was a scaffold or simply a covering for a skylight, it was error for the court to assume that it was a scaffold. Couger v. Wiggins, 208 Pa. 122, 57 A. 341. In an action for injuries resulting from the explosion of a tube during an experiment conducted on the defendant's premises by one neither an officer nor employe, an instruction assuming that such person was on the premises by invitation was proper. Cameron v. B. Roth Tool Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 279.

51. Instructions as a whole held to properly present law regarding master's duty. Merchants' & Miners' Transp. Co. v. Jackson, 120 Ga. 211, 47 S. E. 522. An instruction that it was the duty of the master to provide reasonably safe appliances is not erroneous on the ground that it is the master's duty only to exercise reasonable care to provide safe appliances, since though the rule be stated in either form, "the duty of the master in one case is not different from his duty in the other." Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Tackett [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 524. Instructions construed and held to require jury to find plaintiff free from contributory negligence, and not to assume that he was free from negligence. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 852. Instructions considered and held to present as the law that plaintiff's negligence would necessitate verdict for defendant. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Wicker [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 223.

52. Where a common-law count for negligence is joined with a count based on liability under a statute, instructions as to negligence should be confined to the first count. Marquette Third Vein Coal Co. v. Dielie, 208 Ill. 116, 70 N. E. 17. Where an attempt was made to combine in a single count of a declaration a cause of action at common law for failure to provide a safe place to work, with a cause under an employer's liability law, it was error for the court, after instructing on the common-law ground of liability, to give a peremptory instruction for plaintiff on the statutory ground. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Abrams [Miss.] 36 So. 542. An instruction which may lead the jury to believe that the factory act has made no change in the common-law right of recovery for personal injuries is properly refused. Espenlaub v. Ellis [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 527.

53. A charge in the language of the statute relative to properly guarding saws is proper. Espenlaub v. Ellis [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 527.

54. See 2 Curr. L. 862.

55. Southern R. Co. v. Carson, 194 U. S. 136, 48 Law. Ed. 907.

56. Carson v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 46 S. E. 526.

57. See 2 Curr. L. 863.

58. When the servant has authority to do a given thing and in attempting to do it he does a wrong, the master is liable. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Bowen [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 80. Employe going from work on railroad tricycle was struck by engine being run to the water tank without orders, and at an unusual time. Held, company liable, since engineer's act, though without special authority, or in violation of orders, was in the line of his employment. Payne v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 105 Mo. App. 155, 79 S. W. 719. Defendants liable for automobile accident, when machine was proved to have been under their control at the time, and their servant was sent with the operator to assist and instruct him in its operation. Parker v. Homan, 88 N. Y. S. 137.

59. Kessler v. Deutsch, 44 Misc. 209, 88 N. Y. S. 846. Gas company liable for trespass of its servant in breaking into a house to remove a meter. Reed v. New York & R. Gas Co., 93 App. Div. 453, 87 N. Y. S. 810. Defendant liable for acts of its watchmen, authorized to watch its property and search for and recover stolen property, in entering and going through plaintiff's house, acting brutally and frightening plaintiff, causing her to become sick. Lesch v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 101 N. W. 965. A landowner is liable to a trespasser for a reckless and wanton injury committed by a watchman of the property while engaged in protecting it. Magar v. Hammond, 95 App. Div. 249, 88 N. Y. S. 796. Owner of dray liable for injury to ten-year old boy who caught on and was made to fall off by be-or malicious,[60] and this is so though the act complained of has been expressly forbidden by the master.[61] If an act be within the scope of the servant's employment, proof of antecedent authority or subsequent ratification is unnecessary.[62] He is not liable for unauthorized[63] acts outside the course or scope of the servant's employment,[64] even though the act be done with the intent to benefit and serve the master.[65]

ing struck at by driver, who was owner's servant. Hyman v. Tilton, 208 Pa. 641, 57 A. 1124. An engineer in care of railway torpedoes put one on the track and exploded it with his engine, solely for his own amusement, thus injuring a boy standing near. Held, company liable, the engineer being at the time in the conduct of the railroad's business. Euting v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 98 N. W. 944.

60. Street railway company liable for malicious prosecution where its conductor wrongfully caused the arrest of a passenger. Dwyer v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 303.

61. The mode in which a servant performs the duty for which he is employed, if wrongful and willful and injurious to another, renders the master liable, though he has expressly forbidden the particular act. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Mayfield [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 365. Defendant company liable for injuries caused to boy of 13 by negligence of its servant, placed in exclusive control and management of its pump house, the boy being on the dangerous premises by invitation or permission of the servant; and it was immaterial that the servant had been instructed to keep persons off the premises. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Bulger [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 557. Authority from the master to servants to eject trespassers from the former's premises charges the master with liability for the act of the servant using excessive or inappropriate force, even though the use of such force is expressly prohibited. A declaration alleging an assault with a pistol (as a result of which the person assaulted died), in the execution of servant's duty, states a cause of action. Letts v. Hoboken R., Warehouse & S. S. Connecting Co., 70 N. J. Law, 358, 57 A. 392.

62. As where railroad special policeman shot a trespasser on a freight train. Deck v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. [Md.] 59 A. 650.

63. A master is liable for the assault committed by his servant only if the servant was expressly or impliedly authorized to commit it. Collins v. Butler [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 746.

64. Healy v. Patterson, 123 Iowa, 73, 98 N. W. 576; Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Bowen [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 80. Hotel servant accidentally or willfully discharged pistol, injuring boy who was guest, the servant being off duty at the time. Innkeeper not liable. Clancy v. Barker [C. C. A.] 131 F. 161. Assault by hotel waiter on guest is not within the scope or course of waiter's employment or duties. Rahmel v. Lehndorff, 142 Cal. 681, 76 P. 659. An assault by railway employes, sent to build a fence, on the servant of the owner of the premises sent to remonstrate, is an act outside the scope of their employment. Waaler v. Great Northern R. Co. [S. D.] 100 N. W. 1097. A janitor of a tenement house while driving away boys creating a disturbance in front of the building threw a stick at plaintiff's son, a mere onlooker, standing across the street, and injured him. Held, the act was not in the course of his employment. Kennedy v. White, 91 App. Div. 475, 86 N. Y. S. 852. Company not liable where teamster, unloading coal under purchaser's directions, injured purchaser's hand by negligently throwing coal upon it. Atherton v. Kansas City Coal & Coke Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 223. Defendant not liable for act of his collecting agent in assaulting plaintiff without provocation, when plaintiff came to amicably settle an account. Collette v. Rebori [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 552. Company not liable for act of employes in charge of freight train carrying one injured in attempting to get off, to another station and leaving him there. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Mayfield [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 365. Railroad company not liable for an assault and battery committed by its trainmaster on a person on the company's premises, the trainmaster's act being wholly outside the scope of his general authority. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Morris [Ga.] 49 S. E. 606. Defendant's servant caused plaintiff to jump from a gangway to deck of barge, by mischievously giving a warning cry of danger. Master not liable. Mace v. Ashland Coal & Iron R. Co. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 612. Street railway company not liable for false arrest and imprisonment of a person by a conductor, though he was a special company officer, when the arrest was not on the company's premises. Cordner v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 72 N. H. 413, 57 A. 234. Where servant, employed for other purposes, voluntarily and without knowledge of the master or servant whose duty it was, undertook to operate a grain dump at an elevator, the master was not liable for an injury caused by his negligence. Healy v. Patterson, 123 Iowa, 73, 98 N. W. 576. Where truckmen sent to get a piano committed an assault, an instruction that defendants would be liable only if the acts of the truckmen were necessary in getting the piano was proper. Canton v. Grinnell [Mich.] 101 N. W. 811. Plaintiff, a trespasser, was struck by missile thrown by defendant's servant. Master not liable. Benton v. James Hill Mfg. Co. [R. I.] 58 A. 664. A master is liable for willful and deliberate wrongs committed by his servant only when they are done on his account or for his purpose. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Mayfield [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 365. Even though a servant's act be done while he is engaged in the master's work, the master is not liable therefor, if the act is done solely for the independent, malicious or mischievous purpose of the servant, and is entirely disconnected from the accomplishment of the work of the master. Boy sprinkling lawn turned hose on

To render the master liable, the relation of master and servant must have existed at the time,[66] and in respect to the very transaction out of which the injury arose.[67] Authority at the time to control is the test by which the existence of the relation is to be determined.[68] If control is in the master and another jointly, the master is liable.[69]

Knowledge of a servant may[70] or may not[71] be imputable to the master so as to render him liable. Contributory negligence is no defense to a count in case for the willful and wanton acts of agents or servants of a corporation.[72] A master owes no duty to a trespasser to provide careful, competent and prudent servants.[73]

Damages.—For the willful tort of its servant a corporation may be liable in punitive damages.[74]

Joint liability.[75]—Master and servant are jointly liable for negligence of the servant while engaged in the master's business.[76] But such joint liability is sometimes limited to cases in which there was actual, not merely imputed, negligence of the master, concurring with negligence of the servant.[77] horse which ran away. Father held not liable for resulting damage. Evers v. Krouse, 70 N. J. Law, 653, 58 A. 181. Flagman and brakeman who threw torpedo back and forth, and then left it on planking of a crossing where it was found by a boy, were acting outside the scope of their employment. Obertoni v. Boston, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 980.

65. Railway company not liable for act of cashier in local office in causing the arrest of and instituting prosecution against a person suspected of stealing money. Daniel v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 136 N. C. 517, 48 S. E. 816.

66. Evidence held not to show driver of coach by which plaintiff was struck and injured to be servant of defendant at the time. De Grazia v. Rudden, 88 N. Y. S. 397. One who used his own wagons and horses to haul beer bought by him from defendant to his customers, and to return to defendant empty boxes and bottles, was not defendant's servant. Bryson v. Philadelphia Brewing Co., 209 Pa. 40, 57 A. 1105. One employed by the Standard Oil Co. to sell and distribute oil to customers and paid by a commission according to the amount of his sales, is a servant or agent for whose negligence, in the course of his employment, the company is liable. Riggs v. Standard Oil Co., 130 F. 199. Under contract whereby a safe was to be moved up three floors in building by use of elevator at risk of owners of building, the janitor operating the elevator was the agent of the owners of the building and not of the contractor; hence the owners were liable for injury to contractor's servant caused by janitor's negligence. Thayer v. Checkley [C. C. A.] 127 F. 556.

An employer is not liable to third persons for the negligent acts of an independent contractor. One employed to paint a house for a lump sum, under no directions as to the manner of doing the work, was an independent contractor. Francis v. Johnson [Iowa] 101 N. W. 878. Contractor building a house left pile of sand in street unguarded. Owner of lot not liable to person injured by driving over it. Hoff v. Shockley, 122 Iowa, 720, 98 N. W. 573. Where employes of lumber company operated trains on sidetracks of a railway company, under general orders of the railway superintendent, the railway company was held not liable for negligent operation causing a collision, the operatives being the servants of the lumber company. Roganville Lumber Co. v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 816.

Note: An able monograph on "Master's Liability for Acts of a Third Person Assisting a Servant" by Prof. Floyd R. Mechem in 3 Mich. L. Rev. 198 analyzes the doctrine and points out how the cases may be referred either to a class wherein the master owes a duty and has himself been in default, or to a class wherein the default is that of one either directly made a servant or made so by sub-appointment expressly or impliedly authorized.

67. Where servant borrowed master's horse and wagon and was driving on his own account, master not liable for collision. Thurn v. Williams, 84 N. Y. S. 296.

68, 69. Garven v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 100 Mo. App. 617, 75 S. W. 193.

70. Knowledge of a servant employed to drive a team of horses of the propensity of the horses to run away is imputable to the owner of the team. Lynch v. Kineth [Wash.] 78 P. 923.

71. Knowledge of an employe as to a dangerous condition is not knowledge of his employer, so as to make the latter liable for an injury resulting from such condition. Greeley Bros. Co. v. Zeithaml, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 25.

72. Southern R. Co. v. Yancy [Ala.] 37 So. 341.

73. Benton v. James Hill Mfg. Co. [R. I.] 58 A. 664.

74. Alleged willful disregard by engineer of signal to stop a train. Reeves v. Southern Ry. [S. C.] 46 S. E. 543.

75. See 2 Curr. L. 865.

76. Indiana Nitroglycerin & Torpedo Co. v. Lippincott Glass Co. [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 183.

77. Shaffer v. Union Brick Co., 128 F. 97; Gustafson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 128 F. 85; McIntyre v. Southern R. Co., 131 F. 985.

(§ 4) B. Actions; pleading.[78]—The complaint must show that the servant's act was authorized or was within the general scope of his employment.[79] A direct allegation that the servant was acting within the scope of his employment is unnecessary if the facts alleged are sufficient to show that he was so acting.[80] On the other hand such an allegation is unavailing if not supported by the facts alleged.[81] The defendant may be entitled to a bill of particulars.[82]

Evidence.[83]—The burden is upon a plaintiff to prove by a preponderance of evidence that the servant was acting within the general scope of his employment.[84] A count in trespass on the willful and wanton act of a corporation is not supported by evidence that the injury complained of was inflicted by servants, even though the acts were willful or wanton.[85]

Questions of law and fact.[86]—Whether the act alleged was within the scope of the servant's employment is a question of fact.[87]

Actions against master and servant jointly.—Under the Indiana statute an action to enforce the joint liability of master and servant may be brought in the county where either resides; and service may be made on the other in the county of his residence.[88] In an action against a master and servant jointly, the fact that no verdict was rendered for or against the servant,[89] or that a verdict was rendered for the servant,[90] will not invalidate a verdict against the master.

78. See 2 Curr. L. 865.

79. Action for assault by servant. Sekator v. Lannon [R. I.] 58 A. 456. Plaintiff struck by piece of iron thrown by defendant's servant; complaint held demurrable. Benton v. James Hill Mfg. Co. [R. I.] 58 A. 664.

80. Indianapolis & G. Rapid Transit Co. v. Derry [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 912.

81. Allegation that servant of defendant attacked plaintiff in a public street. Letts v. Hoboken R. Warehouse & S. S. Connecting Co., 70 N. J. Law, 358, 57 A. 392. Action for assault. Waaler v. Great Northern R. Co. [S. D.] 100 N. W. 1097.

82. In an action for injuries caused by being struck by wagon, defendants were entitled to a bill of particulars, specifying which of its wagons and drivers was concerned, and describing the wagon and horse, and telling what injuries were permanent; but the rate of speed of the wagon, being matter of evidence, need not be pleaded. Lachenbruch v. Cushman, 87 N. Y. S. 476.

83. See 2 Curr. L. 865.

In an action against a railroad by one shot by its special police officer, after testimony that he was employed and paid by defendant company, his testimony that he held a commission from the state, and his commission, were admissible in evidence. Deck v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. [Md.] 59 A. 650.

84. Defendant's servants charged with assault and battery while removing property bought on installment plan. Kessler v. Deutsch, 44 Misc. 209, 88 N. Y. S. 846. The burden is upon one seeking to hold a master liable for an alleged wrongful act of his servant to prove the act alleged was within the scope of the agent's authority. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Mayfield [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 365. The mere fact that a signal torpedo was found on a railway crossing is not evidence that it came there through negligence of the company's servants, acting in the scope of their employment. Obertoni v. Boston & M. R. Co. [Mass.] 71 N. E. 980. The burden is upon plaintiff injured by the torpedo, to prove it came there through negligence of the defendant company or its servants while in the course of the company's business. Id.

85. Southern R. Co. v. Yancy [Ala.] 37 So. 341.

86. See 2 Curr. L. 865.

87. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Mayfield [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 365. Whether an invitation to come upon premises was within scope of a servant's authority so that master would be liable for an injury to plaintiff while there. Foley v. Y. M. C. A., 90 N. Y. S. 406. Whether brakeman who shot a trespasser on a train was attempting to do his duty, and whether he had authority to eject trespassers. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Bowen [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 80. Where a special policeman who was employed and paid by a railroad company shot a trespasser on a train, and there was evidence that he also held a commission from the state, whether he was at the time of the shooting acting in his capacity as private or as public police officer was for the jury. Deck v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. [Md.] 59 A. 650. There is a distinction between agents of corporations, such as conductors, who are vested with a discretion, and servants not so vested, as clerks. Collins v. Butler [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 746.

88. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 314, an action against a corporation and its employe may be maintained in the county where the employe resides, though the corporation has no agent in the county on whom service could be made. Indiana Nitroglycerin & Torpedo Co. v. Lippincott Glass Co. [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 183.

89. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 579, providing that judgment may be against defendants severally, if plaintiff would have been entitled to several judgments in several actions. Indiana Nitroglycerin & Tor-

§ 5. Interference with relation by third person.[91]—A civil action cannot, in general, be maintained for inducing a third person to break his contract.[92] A person is not liable for an act which he had a legal right to do, though it results in a servant's discharge.[93] But maliciously and willfully procuring the discharge of a servant gives a cause of action to the injured party for damages.[94] To constitute malice in such a case, actual ill will or hatred need not be shown; it is sufficient if the act was without legal justification.[95] Under a complaint charging a conspiracy to procure plaintiff's discharge, proof of the conspiracy was essential.[96]

One who knowingly and willfully entices away the servant of another, inducing him to violate his contract with his master, thereby depriving the master of the services of a person actually in his service, or bound by contract to render him service, is liable to the master for the actual loss which he sustains therefrom.[97]

§ 6. Crimes and penalties.[98]—The act of Congress abolishing and prohibit-pedo Co. v. Lippineott Glass Co. [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 183.

90. Where, in an action against a railroad company and its engineer for injuries, a verdict is rendered against the master and for the engineer, such verdict will not be set aside on the ground that since it found the engineer not guilty of negligenee, the master eannot be held liable. Bedenbaugh v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 48 S. E. 53. See, also, Carson v. So. R. Co. [S. C.] 46 S. E. 525, under Verdict and findings, supra, where the action was by a servant.

91. See 2 Curr. L. 865.

92. Where the employe stated to defendants that he would not return to the service of plaintiffs, defendants were not liable for not releasing him, though they had been notified of his contract with plaintiffs. B. J. Wolf & Sons v. New Orleans Tailor-Made Pants Co., 113 La. 388, 37 So. 2.

93. A patron of a street railway company ineurs no liability to a eonduetor by reporting misconduct of the latter, while on duty, to the superintendent, as a result of which the conductor is diseharged, regardless of the patron's motive in making the report. Lancaster v. Hamburger, 70 Ohio St. 156, 71 N. E. 289.

94. Holder v. Cannon Mfg. Co., 135 N. C. 392, 47 S. E. 481. An agreement among employers to adopt a rule requiring employes to work a six days' notice before leaving the service, and to report to each other, and refuse to hire employes who had violated the rule is not an unlawful combination if not entered into malieiously; and the act of properly reporting an employe in accordance with the agreement would not constitute a tort. Willis v. Muscogee Mfg. Co., 120 Ga. 597, 48 S. E. 177. But a party to such agreement will be liable for falsely and wrongfully reporting an employe. Id. Whether a company was justified in reporting an employe to other employers for violation of a eommon rule requiring six days' notiee before leaving the service, and whether the report caused plaintiff's failure to secure other employment, was for the jury. Id. General averments that defendant prevented plaintiff from obtaining employment, and caused his discharge from employment obtained, do not state a eause of aetion, because too indefinite and uneertain. Wabash R. Co. v. Young, 162 Ind. 102, 69 N. E. 1003. Allegations that defendant aeeused plaintiff of being a labor agitator, and that it blacklisted him, do not state a eause of action without allegations showing sueh conduct to be actionable as libelous, or that the charge was not true or was made maliciously. Id. To eharge one with being a labor agitator is not libelous per se. Id. Nor would a complaint eontaining such allegations ereate a common-law liability for malicious interferenee with plaintiff's oecupation. Id.

95. Where the aet was alleged to have been done "maliciously, willfully and unlawfully," allegations that it was done by eonspiracy and by false and fraudulent representations were unnecessary. Holder v. Cannon Mfg. Co., 135 N. C. 392, 47 S. E. 481. The fact that plaintiff went on a strike and refused to make up time when in defendant's employ did not justify defendant in procuring plaintiff's diseharge from a subsequent employment by another employer. Id.

96. Instructions covering the several liability of defendants for false and malicious statements were not alone sufficient; instructions submitting the issue of a conspiracy were essential, though not requested. Hines v. Whitehead [Iowa] 99 N. W. 1064.

97. Note: Wood's Law of Master and Servant, 450; Jones v. Blocker, 43 Ga. 331; Hightower v. State, 72 Ga. 482; Dickson v. Dickson, 33 La. Ann. 1261; Walker v. Cronin, 107 Mass. 567; Bixby v. Dunlap, 56 N. H. 456, 22 Am. Rep. 475; Noice v. Brown, 39 N. J. Law, 569; Haskins v. Royster, 70 N. C. 601, 16 Am. Rep. 780; Daniel v. Swearengen, 6 S. C. 297, 24 Am. Rep. 471.

The action for enticing away a servant cannot be maintained unless it be shown that at the time of the enticement there existed an obligation on the part of the servant enticed to render service to the plaintiff. Peters v. Lord, 18 Conn. 337; Caughey v. Smith, 47 N. Y. 244; Butterfield v. Ashley, 2 Gray [Mass.] 256. It must also appear that the defendant knew of this obligation of the person enticed. Lee v. West, 47 Ga. 311; Morgan v. Smith, 77 N. C. 37; Butterfield v. Ashley, 2 Gray [Mass.] 254.—See note to Webber v. Barry [66 Mich. 127] 11 Am. St. Rep. 466.

98. See 2 Curr. L. 866.

ing peonage, and providing a punishment for violation of its provisions, is a valid exercise of the power conferred by the thirteenth amendment to the constitution.[99] The "condition of peonage" prohibited by the act of Congress is not a system of peonage only; but the condition of a citizen held by illegal means to involuntary servitude in order to extinguish a real or alleged debt to the person holding him.[1] Federal courts have jurisdiction of the crime of peonage as defined by the act of Congress, though state courts may have jurisdiction of the same crime under the name of kidnapping or false imprisonment.[2]

The Georgia statute providing that one who contracts for services with intent to obtain money or something of value, and not to perform the services, to the loss of the hirer, shall be deemed a common cheat and guilty of a misdemeanor, is constitutional.[3] The punishment provided is not imprisonment for debt, since it is not the failure to comply with the obligation, but the fraudulent intent with which it is undertaken, that is punished.[4] Besides alleging the procuring of advances with the fraudulent intent not to perform the services contracted for, an accusation under this statute must specifically allege what the advances consisted of.[5] That defendant was prevented by serious physical injuries from performing the services contracted for is a good defense.[6]

The North Carolina act, imposing a license tax upon persons engaged in the business of procuring laborers for employment outside the state and making it an indictable offense to engage in the business without paying the tax,[7] is a valid exercise of the taxing power, and is not a police regulation.[8] Since the tax imposed is annual, a conviction for engaging in the business without paying it is a bar to another prosecution in the current year.[9] The North Carolina act prohibiting the enticing or retaining from the service of another one who has contracted with him applies only where the servant has actually entered the service of the other, and not where he is only preparing to do so.[10]

An affidavit for breach of a service contract with a surety for a fine,[11] reciting a confessed judgment for a fine and costs, is not supported by a contract showing confession of judgment for costs alone.[12] Statutes prohibiting the employment of minors by "any person" apply to corporations as well as natural persons.[13] Hence where the acts of a corporation agent, within the scope of his general authority, amount to a violation of such a statute, the corporation is guilty of the offense, though the agent was acting contrary to specific instructions.[14] The

99. Act March 2, 1867, c. 187, § 1; 14 Stat. 546. United States v. McClellan, 127 F. 971.

1, 2. United States v. McClellan, 127 F. 971.

3. Acts 1903, p. 90. Lamar v. State, 120 Ga. 312, 47 S. E. 958.

4. Lamar v. State, 120 Ga. 312, 47 S. E. 958.

5. Campbell v. State [Ga.] 48 S. E. 920.

6. Hart v. State [Ga.] 48 S. E. 925.

7. An indictment charging that defendant "engaged in procuring" laborers sufficiently charges the offense [Pub. Laws 1903, p. 347, c. 247, § 74]. State v. Roberson, 136 N. C. 591, 48 S. E. 596; State v. Roberson, 136 N. C. 587, 48 S. E. 595.

8. Annual tax of $100 imposed by Pub. Laws 1903, p. 347, c. 247, § 74 is not excessive or prohibitive, in the absence of evidence as to the extent of the business or its profits. State v. Roberson, 136 N. C. 587, 48 S. E. 595. Hence the courts have no power to review the amount of the tax so imposed. Id.

9. State v. Roberson, 136 N. C. 591, 48 S. E. 596.

10. Code, §§ 3119, 3120. Sears v. Whitaker, 136 N. C. 37, 48 S. E. 517.

11. Affidavit held sufficient on general demurrer. McQueen v. State, 138 Ala. 63, 35 So. 39.

12. McQueen v. State, 138 Ala. 63, 35 So. 39.

13. So held under Mills' Ann. St. § 413, making the employment of children under 14 a misdemeanor punishable by a fine, or imprisonment if the fine be not paid. Overland Cotton Mill Co. v. People [Colo.] 75 P. 924.

14. Officer with power to employ hired child under 14 to work in mill, contrary to Mills' Ann. St. § 413. Overland Cotton Mill Co. v. People [Colo.] 75 P. 924.

agent by whose acts the offense is committed is himself guilty of the same offense.[15]

Decisions construing the Texas statute penalizing the act of a surety company causing an employe to lose a position by canceling his bond,[16] and the Kentucky act requiring payment of miners on certain days of the month,[17] are treated in the notes.

MASTERS AND COMMISSIONERS.[18]

§ 1. Office, Eligibility, Appointment, and Compensation (614).
§ 2. Proceedings for Reference (614).
§ 3. Proceedings on Reference and Hearing by Master (615).
§ 4. Report of Master, Exceptions, and Objections (615).
§ 5. Powers of Court and Proceedings on Review (615).
§ 6. Re-reference (615).

§ 1. Office, eligibility, appointment, and compensation.[19]—The report of the master should give an itemized statement of the services rendered and the statutory fees allowed therefor,[20] or, no statutory fees being allowed, if the chancellor fixes the compensation,[21] it should state the services rendered, the action of the court, whether such costs have been paid, and, if so, by whom.[22]

In Kentucky a court commissioner is not entitled to compensation unless he file a statement under oath showing the number of days he was employed,[23] and such affidavit, if not rebutted, is sufficient evidence to establish the time of employment.[24] A statute providing the compensation due commissioners in certain cases is exclusive.[25]

The fee must be proportionate to the services rendered.[26]

§ 2. Proceedings for reference.[27]—The master is a ministerial officer and the exercise of judicial power cannot be delegated to him,[28] hence, without the

15. Overland Cotton Mill Co. v. People [Colo.] 75 P. 924.

16. Under Acts 1897, p. 247, c. 165, §§ 8-10, an employer, through whom an employe is bonded by a surety company is not liable for the penalty unless he has done an act which, if done by the surety company, would have rendered it liable. Davis v. Pullman Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 635. Evidence held insufficient to show any act by the defendant car company which would render it liable under the law. Id.

17. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 2739a, subsec. 1, requiring mine operators to pay employes on the 15th and 30th of each month to within 15 days of those dates, and making failure or refusal to do so a misdemeanor, an indictment charging a violation of the statute on the 15th and 30th of a certain month does not charge two offenses. Commonwealth v. Reinecke Coal Min. Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 2027, 79 S. W. 287. An indictment under this act need not allege that the employe was present at the time his wages were payable, or that, if absent, he demanded them on his return. Id. Indictment held sufficiently specific. Id.

18. This article includes all matter relating to masters in chancery and court commissioners. Analogous matter may be found in titles Reference, 2 Curr. L. 1484; Restoring Instruments and Records (examiners of title under burnt record act), 2 Curr. L. 1520; Notice and Record of Title, 2 Curr. L. 1053 (referees under Torrens act).

19. See 2 Curr. L. 867.

20. A charge in a lump sum is improper. Healy v. Protection Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 213 Ill. 99, 72 N. E. 678; Karsten v. Winkelman, 209 Ill. 547, 71 N. E. 45. See 2 Curr. L. 867, n. 4.

21. In counties of the third class for examining questions of law and making reports. Karsten v. Winkelman, 209 Ill. 547, 71 N. E. 45.

22. Healy v. Protection Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 213 Ill. 99, 72 N. E. 678.

23. Ky. St. 1903, § 396. Fidelity Nat. Bank's Receiver v. Youtsey [Ky.] 81 S. W. 263.

24. Hely v. Fred Hoertz & Co. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 985.

25. Construing Ky. St. 1903, § 1740. Fidelity Nat. Bank's Receiver v. Youtsey [Ky.] 81 S. W. 263.

26. A charge of $125.20 by a master for taking testimony and reaching a conclusion in the case, held excessive, the amount in dispute being only $200. Healy v. Protection Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 213 Ill. 99, 72 N. E. 678. Court commissioner. $2,200 held ample compensation for taking care of $100,000 and taking testimony for 15 days. Fidelity Nat. Bank's Receiver v. Youtsey [Ky.] 81 S. W. 263.

27. See 2 Curr. L. 867.

28. In a suit for specific performance of a contract to convey, the determination of the amount to be deducted from the purchase price because of a defect in the title cannot be referred to a master. Cowan v. Kane, 211 Ill. 572, 71 N. E. 1097. See 2 Curr. L. 867, n. 7.

consent of the parties, the court cannot refer the entire decision of the case to him.[20] There being no assignee, a master commissioner may be appointed to take charge of books and uncollected claims and to attend to the collection of the latter.[30]

§ 3. Proceedings on reference and hearing by master.[31]—In Minnesota, court commissioners have and exercise the judicial power of a district court at chambers.[32] There being a doubt as to the relevancy or propriety of a question asked on cross-examination, the witness should be required to answer.[33]

§ 4. Report of master, exceptions, and objections.[34]—It is the duty of the master to find facts,[35] and his report should clearly and concisely state his conclusions of law and fact,[36] but he is not required to decide what decree shall be rendered thereon.[37] He not being required to report the evidence,[38] it is open to either party during the hearing before him to move in court that he be required to report the whole testimony, or any part of it,[39] but an application made subsequent to that time is never looked upon with favor.[40] In the absence of an exception the ruling[41] or finding[42] cannot be reviewed. Exceptions to the opinion of the master upon questions of law are unnecessary.[43] To be available the objection and exception must be specific.[44] Exceptions are to be confined to objections disallowed or overruled.[45] A master who, in disregard of court rules, files his report without giving a party an opportunity to file objections to it, the latter's remedy is to move to recommit.[46]

§ 5. Powers of court and proceedings on review.[47]—The conclusion of a master in chancery will not be disturbed unless clearly against the weight of the evidence.[48]

§ 6. Re-reference.[49]—Upon the reversal and remanding of a cause, the trial court has power to re-refer the cause to a master to take further testimony.[50]

MASTERS OF VESSELS, see latest topical index.

MECHANICS' LIENS.

§ 1. Nature of Lien and Right to It in General (616).

§ 2. Services, Materials, and Claims for Which Lien may be Had (617).

29. Garinger v. Palmer [C. C. A.] 126 F. 906. See 2 Curr. L. 867, n. 7.

30. He should not be appointed if a competent person will accept the position of receiver. Andrews v. Wilson's Assignees [Ky.] 82 S. W. 391.

31. See 2 Curr. L. 867.

32. They still retain the authority conferred upon them by Gen. St. 1894, § 5288, to authorize the issuance of writs of attachment, notwithstanding the enactment of Laws 1897, p. 576, c. 311, § 2. Clements v. Utley, 91 Minn. 352, 98 N. W. 188.

33. Whitehead & Hoag Co. v. O'Callahan, 130 F. 243.

34. See 2 Curr. L. 868.

35. Clark v. Seagraves [Mass.] 71 N. E. 813.

36. It is not proper practice for the master to present a treatise on the law, with citations of cases and quotations from reports. Steger v. Traveling Men's B. & L. Ass'n, 208 Ill. 236, 70 N. E. 236.

37. Clark v. Seagraves [Mass.] 71 N. E. 813.

38. Under a rule directing the master "to hear the parties and their evidence, and report his findings of fact and law to the court" he need not report the evidence. Moore v. Dick [Mass.] 72 N. E. 967.

39. Moore v. Dick [Mass.] 72 N. E. 967.

40. Where the losing party came in for the first time after the hearing was closed and the draft report was known. Moore v. Dick [Mass.] 72 N. E. 967.

41. Moore v. Rawson, 185 Mass. 264, 70 N. E. 64. Though party objected to evidence when admitted. In Massachusetts exception must be written. Hillier v. Farrell, 185 Mass. 434, 70 N. E. 424.

42. Hillier v. Farrell, 185 Mass. 434, 70 N. E. 424.

43. Williams v. Spitzer, 203 Ill. 505, 68 N. E. 49.

44. Holdroff v. Remlee, 105 Ill. App. 671.

45, 46. Hillier v. Farrell, 185 Mass. 434, 70 N. E. 424. Master's objection does not entitle the party to a consideration of unfiled objections. Id.

47. See 2 Curr. L. 868.

48. Assets Realization Co. v. Wightman, 105 Ill. App. 618.

49. See 2 Curr. L. 868.

50. Assets Realization Co. v. Wightman, 105 Ill. App. 618.

§ 3. Properties and Estates Therein Which may be Subjected to the Lien (618). Sale of Property (619). Homestead (620). Public Buildings (620).
§ 4. The Contract Supporting the Lien and the Privity of the Landowner Thereto (620).
A. In General (620).
B. Contracts by Vendors, Purchasers, Lessors, and Lessees (621).
C. Subcontractors and Materialmen (622).
§ 5. Acts and Proceedings Necessary to Acquire Lien (623).
A. Notice and Demand, Statement of Claim and Affidavit (623). Service of Notice on Owner (624).
B. Filing and Recording Claim and Statement Thereof (626).
§ 6. Amount of Lien and Priority Thereof (628).
§ 7. Assignment or Transfer of Lien (629).
§ 8. Waiver, Loss, or Forfeiture of Lien or Right to Acquire It (629).
§ 9. Discharge and Satisfaction (630).
§ 10. Remedies and Procedure to Enforce Lien (630).
A. Remedies (630). By Attachment (631). Time of Bringing Action (631). Concurrent Remedies (631).
B. Parties (632).
C. Pleading, Practice, and Evidence (633).
D. Judgment, Costs, and Attorney's Fees (634).
E. Sale (634).
§ 11. Indemnification Against Liens (635).

Scope of title.—This article treats only of statutory mechanics' liens. The general principles governing liens in general are treated under the title Liens.[51] Specific liens are treated under the topics to which they relate.[52]

§ 1. Nature of lien and right to it in general.[53]—Lien proceedings are suits in rem against the land.[54]

A mechanic's lien is purely of statutory creation, and the statutory provisions in relation thereto must be substantially complied with.[55] It is generally held that such statutes are remedial in character and should be liberally construed,[56] at least in so far as they grant liens;[57] but persons claiming the benefit of the statute must bring themselves clearly within its purview as belonging to some class in whose favor the remedy is allowed.[58] Some courts require a strict compliance,[59] at least in so far as concerns the method by which such liens are claimed and enforced.[60]

Mechanic's lien laws are not unconstitutional as unreasonably interfering with liberty of contract or taking property without due process of law.[61]

51. See 2 Curr. L. 736; 4 Curr. L. 433.

52. See Attachment, 3 Curr. L. 353; Agency, 3 Curr. L. 68; Attorneys and Counselors, 3 Curr. L. 376; Auctions and Auctioneers, 3 Curr. L. 394; Brokers, 3 Curr. L. 535; Carriers, 3 Curr. L. 591; Chattel Mortgages, 3 Curr. L. 682; Executions, 3 Curr. L. 1397; Factors, 3 Curr. L. 1415; Inns, Restaurants and Lodging Houses, 4 Curr. L. 123; Judgments, 4 Curr. L. 287; Landlord and Tenant, 4 Curr. L. 389; Mortgages, 2 Curr. L. 905; Railroads, 2 Curr. L. 1382; Taxes, 2 Curr. L. 1786; Vendors and Purchasers, 2 Curr. L. 1976; Agisters' Liens (see Animals), 3 Curr. L. 159; Logging Liens (see Forestry and Timber), 3 Curr. L. 1468; Crop Liens (see Agriculture, 3 Curr. L. 137, and Landlord and Tenant, 4 Curr. L. 389); Maritime Liens (see Shipping and Water Traffic), 2 Curr. L. 1648.

53. See 2 Curr. L. 869.

54. Hunt v. Darling [R. I.] 59 A. 398.

55. Russell v. Hayner [C. C. A.] 130 F. 90; Campbell v. Wm. Cameron & Co. [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 762; Knelly v. Horwath, 208 Pa. 487, 57 A. 957. There is no intendment in its favor, and it must show on its face that it is such a lien as the statute authorizes the claimant to file. Knelly v. Howarth, 208 Pa. 487, 57 A. 957.

56. Campbell v. Wm. Cameron & Co. [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 762; Russell v. Hayner [C. C. A.] 130 F. 90. Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 4. Notice filed. Continental B. & L. Ass'n v. Hutton, 144 Cal. 609, 78 P. 21. Lien statutes will be liberally construed to further their equity and efficacy, when it is clear that the lien has been honestly earned, and that the claimant is within their provisions. A. L. & E. F. Goss Co. v. Greenleaf, 98 Me. 436, 57 A. 581. When a lien has been lawfully acquired, the statute will be liberally construed for the purpose of its enforcement. Pitschke v. Pope [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1077.

57. Description in claim sufficient. Western Iron Works v. Montana Pulp & Paper Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 413.

58. Pitschke v. Pope [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1077.

59. Must show time for performance and if contract was oral that it was to be performed within a year. Richardson v. Central Lumber Co., 105 Ill. App. 358.

60. Western Iron Works v. Mont. Pulp & Paper Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 413.

61. Statutes giving a lien on the property as against the owner to subcontractors, laborers, and those furnishing materials to be used by the contractor in the execution of his contract with the owner [Ohio Rev. St. §§ 3184-3185a]. Great Southern Fireproof Hotel Co. v. Jones, 193 U. S. 532, 48 Law. Ed.

Liens are sometimes given to the contractor by the contract itself.[62] They would ordinarily be equitable liens,[63] or possibly, in some cases, mortgages.[64] The description of the property in a contract giving a lien is sufficient if it can be identified therefrom.[65] Equity will correct a mutual mistake in the description,[66] notwithstanding the fact that the lien has been foreclosed and the property sold.[67] One purchasing the original judgment may maintain the suit.[68] The amount of the indebtedness[69] and the fact that costs and attorney's fees are secured by the lien, having been determined in the foreclosure suit, cannot be inquired into.[70] A provision in a contract for the erection of a house on a homestead providing for an attorney's fee in case of the foreclosure of a mechanic's lien given thereby is invalid.[71]

§ 2. Services, materials, and claims for which liens may be had.[72]—Material for which the lien is claimed must have actually been used in the construction of the building.[73]

A materialman is not entitled to a lien for money advanced to the contractor to purchase certain material in which the materialman did not deal,[74] nor for tools furnished the contractor with which to work on the building.[75] There can be no lien for materials furnished for sidewalks.[76] In Pennsylvania a lien is given for materials furnished for the construction of a substantial addition to a building.[77] Machinery for manufacturing purposes is covered by the New Jersey law.[78] To authorize a mechanic's lien for repairs to machinery, the repairs must be in the nature of fixtures and not small parts of a machine which are constantly wearing out and have to be replaced.[79] Under a statute giving a lien to anyone

778. The Federal court may exercise an independent judgment as to the validity of such laws under a state constitution, notwithstanding state courts have declared them unconstitutional in judgments rendered before the commencement of the suit in the federal court, but after the rights of the parties have been fixed by their contracts. Id.

62. Where a lien on a homestead is given by a contract purporting to be signed by the wife, the burden is on defendant to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that she did not sign it. Instruction erroneous. Moreno v. R. B. Spencer & Bro. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 1054. Contract for lien held not to give lien for attorney's fees. June & Co. v. Doke [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 402.

63. See Liens, 4 Curr. L. 433; 2 Curr. L. 736.

64. See Mortgages, 2 Curr. L. 905; Foreclosure of Mortgages, 3 Curr. L. 1438.

65. June & Co. v. Doke [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 402.

66. Silliman v. Taylor [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 651.

67. Foreclosure will be set aside and new one ordered. Silliman v. Taylor [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 651.

68, 69, 70. Silliman v. Taylor [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 651.

71. Summerville v. King [Tex.] 84 S. W. 643. On rehearing. For former opinion see 83 S. W. 680.

72. See 2 Curr. L. 869.

73. Evidence sufficient to show that lumber went into house. Darlington Lumber Co. v. Harris [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 688. Evidence sufficient to sustain finding that materials furnished went into defendant's building. Ferguson v. Stephenson-Brown Lumber Co. [Okl.] 77 P. 184.

74, 75. Evans v. Lower [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 294.

76. Bradley Co. v. Gaghan, 208 Pa. 511, 57 A. 985.

77. Act June 4, 1901 (P. L. 433) § 3. Dunbar v. Washington Foundry & Mach. Co. [Pa.] 59 A. 434. What is such an addition is a question of fact. Structure held "substantial addition" to foundry. Id.

78. Production and control of electric power by mechanical means and its adaptation for use on trolley system is "manufacturing purpose" within N. J. P. L. 1898, p. 538, § 8. Bates Mach. Co. v. Trenton, etc., R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 684, 58 A. 935.

Note: Possibly from a purely technical point of view the generating of electricity is not a manufacturing process, it is, to be more exact, a making available a form of energy which already exists. Yet it is the common expression, the sense of legislatures and the universal thought, that electricity is manufactured and it has been so held by most of the courts. Beggs v. Edison Elec. Illuminating Co., 96 Ala. 295, 38 Am. St. Rep. 94; Brush Elec. Mfg. Co. v. Wemple, 129 N. Y. 543, 14 L. R. A. 708. There are, however, decisions in two states where exemptions from taxation have been denied to electric light companies upon the ground that they were not included under the term "Corporations carrying on manufacturing within the state." Commonwealth v. Edison Elec. Co., 170 Pa. 231; Frederick Elec. Light Co. v. Frederick City, 84 Md. 599, 36 L. R. 130.

79. Under N. M. Comp. Laws 1897, § 2217. Not for roll shells, chucks, and arm bolts for use in mills, when they are attached by improving a lot at the request of the owner, a contractor building a sewer under a contract with property owners along the street has a lien therefor.[80]

The expense of hauling certain machinery from the freight station is properly included in a claim for labor in erecting it at a power house.[81]

A superintendent is entitled to a lien for services rendered as such,[82] but not for services in traveling about to hasten deliveries of material ordered by the contractors.[83]

In some states persons doing work for or furnishing material to railroads are given a lien therefor.[84]

§ 3. Properties and estates therein which may be subjected to the lien.[85]—A mechanic's lien cannot ordinarily be imposed upon a building unless in connection with some estate or interest in the land on which it was erected.[86] By statutes in some states, however, the lien may be foreclosed upon the house alone, and the purchaser at the sale may remove it.[87] In such case a lien claimant has a right of action against one preventing the removal of improvements to which the lien attaches, by destroying the same.[88] The measure of damages is their reasonable value before their destruction, where it would not have been necessary to tear them down in order to remove them.[89]

Leasehold estates may be subject to mechanic's liens, since they are interests in lands.[90] Hence, any structure becoming a part of such estate is also subject to the liens, though it may be treated for other purposes as personalty.[91] The leasehold may be sold in the usual way, unless the lease forbids involuntary assignments.[92] The purchaser acquires only such estate as was held by the lessee, subject to the terms and conditions of the lease.[93]

The interest of a tenant in common is subject to a lien for repairs necessary to the preservation of the common property, where he knows that they are being buyers, particularly where evidence does not show that they were to be used in any particular mill. Ripley v. Cochiti Gold Min. Co. [N. M.] 76 P. 285.

80. Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 1191. Lien extends to construction of branch sewers. Williams, Belser & Co. v. Rowell [Cal.] 78 P. 725.

81. Bates Mach. Co. v. Trenton, etc., R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 684, 58 A. 935.

82. Colo. Sess. Laws 1899, p. 261, c. 118 (Mills' Ann. St. Rev. Supp. p. 769). Pitschke v. Pope [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1077.

83. Pitschke v. Pope [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1077. The burden is on one claiming a lien for work as superintendent to establish the amount earned by him in that capacity. Not entitled to lien where he cannot separate amount of time spent in superintendence from that spent at other work for which he was not entitled to lien. Id.

84. See Railroads, § 6, 2 Curr. L. 1407. See, also, Bagnell Timber Co. v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 180 Mo. 420, 79 S. W. 1130; Eastern Tex. R. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 883. Washington Laws 1893, p. 32, c. 24, § 1, giving a lien for provisions furnished to any contractor on any railroad is void under Const. art. 2, § 19, because embracing more than one subject, not expressed in its title. Armour & Co. v. Western Const. Co. [Wash.] 78 P. 1106.

85. See 2 Curr. L. 871.

86. Leaver v. Kilmer [N. J. Err. & App.] 59 A. 643.

87. Texas Rev. St. 1895, arts. 3294, 3301, 3302. Summerville v. King [Tex.] 83 S. W. 680. Such improvements do not become a part of the realty as against the lienholder, but are treated as though made under a contract for removal. Husband and wife contracted for erection of house on community property, to be paid for out of community funds, and gave notes and mechanic's lien in payment. After his death contractor foreclosed and third person, by agreement with wife, paid notes and received conveyance of property. Held purchaser entitled to benefits of improvements, since they were personalty. Id.

88. Hammond v. Darlington [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 446.

89. Tearing down and removing buildings from leased premises, for constructing which, under contract with the lessee, the plaintiff has acquired a lien. Instruction approved. Hammond v. Darlington [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 446.

90. Subject to lien in so far as any structure erected thereon by lessee enhances its value or otherwise benefits estate [W. Va. Code 1899, c. 75, § 3]. Showalter v. Lowndes [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 448. For improvements made thereon by the lessee. Reed v. Estes [Tenn.] 80 S. W. 1086.

91. Oil-well derrick. Showalter v. Lowndes [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 448.

92. Stipulation that premises shall be used as saloon and that lessee will not underlet does not prevent sale. Reed v. Estes [Tenn.] 80 S. W. 1086.

93. Reed v. Estes [Tenn.] 80 S. W. 1086.

made, assents to and approves of them, and induces the contractor to enter into the contract with his co-tenant therefor, even though he is not in terms a party to such contract.[94]

Whether mechanics' liens attach to the separate property of married women depends upon the married women's acts of the various states.[95]

The amount of land on which a lien may be claimed is regulated by statute.[96] Parties contracting for a builder's lien will be deemed to have used the words in their statutory sense as including the land.[97]

The lien can be preserved only as to the particular house or houses to which the material delivered within the statutory period goes, and not to the entire property embraced within the contract.[98] Among several lots, parts of one block, a claimant may apportion without having made his deliveries separately to each lot,[99] but between separate blocks, separated by public streets, no apportionment can be good except that which is made in fact at the time of delivery.[1] A subcontractor for the erection of two houses, who has fully performed his contract, is entitled to a lien for the amount remaining due thereunder as against the owners, without regard to the fact that subcontractors under him did work and furnished material for both houses under joint contract indiscriminately, without keeping a separate account as to each.[2] A single lien may cover no more than a single building, except where two or more buildings are joined together and owned by the same person.[3]

Sale of property.—A sale of the property pending the performance of the 94. Tom Sweeney Hardware Co. v. Gardner [S. D.] 99 N. W. 1105.

95. In Florida lien statutes are not applicable. MacFarlane v. Southern Lumber & Supply Co. [Fla.] 36 So. 1029. Equity will not charge her estate for materials used in constructing buildings on her separate property, where they were not furnished to her or her agent, but to a contractor, who was fully paid under his contract before a claim was asserted against her or her property, and neither she nor her husband, who made the contract for the erection of the building ordered the material, or in any way made her liable therefor. Id.

In Kentucky a married woman has the same power to create liens on her property for the improvement thereof as though she were unmarried. Ky. St. 1903, § 2128 repealed that part of § 2479 requiring written contract signed by her before lien would attach. Jefferson v. Hopson Bros. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 540. Hence, where the husband transfers the property to the wife after making a contract for improvements, the question of his fraudulent intent is immaterial. Id.

New York. Knowledge on the part of a wife that materials furnished her husband were used in the construction of buildings on land owned by her makes them subject to a mechanic's lien therefor. Evidence held to show knowledge. Hurd v. Wing, 86 N. Y. S. 907. A materialman's right to file a lien against property owned by wife for materials furnished her husband for use in buildings erected thereon is a liability of the wife, giving her an interest in having the indebtedness paid, so as to support an agreement on the part of her grantee under a warranty deed to pay it. Husband conveyed to wife while supplies were being furnished, and both afterwards conveyed to grantee. Id. Materialman may enforce such agreement though the period for filing a lien has expired without his doing so. Id. Plaintiffs held entitled under pleadings to show that, while lumber was sold and delivered under contract with husband, some of it was used after wife became owner of property. Id.

96. In Idaho the land upon which the building is situated, with a convenient space about the same, or so much as may be necessary for its convenient use and occupation [Idaho Sess. Laws 1899, p. 148, § 4]. Robertson v. Moore [Idaho] 77 P. 218. The amount so necessary must be determined by the trial court. Error not to do so. Id.

97. June & Co. v. Doke [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 402.

98, 99, 1. Bradley Co. v. Gaghan, 208 Pa. 511, 57 A. 985. Claimant may not apportion among a number of blocks the amount of his charge against a whole operation, but the charge against each block must be in exact accord with the materials furnished to it. Id.

2. Smith v. Wilcox, 44 Or. 323, 75 P. 710. Being within the scope and authority of the original contract, the consideration agreed upon between the original contractor and the subcontractor will be deemed to have been reasonable, and the latter has his lien to the extent of such agreed consideration. Id. The subcontractor may make application of payments made by the original contractor to his subcontractors, materialmen, and employes to the contract for each house as he sees fit, where the original contractor makes no such application. Id.

3. Dist. Col. Code §§ 1237-1264, construed. Alfred Richards Brick Co. v. Trott, 23 App. D. C. 284.

work will not deprive the contractor of his lien for work and material already furnished, whether he completes the contract or not, if failure in that regard is without fault on his part.[4] An offer to perform is equivalent to performance as regards the preservation of his lien.[5] A conveyance before the completion of the building, made for the purpose of defrauding the grantor's creditors, does not defeat liens, unless the vendee is a bona fide purchaser, without knowledge of the fraud.[6] A subsisting right of lien is not rendered unenforceable by the conveyance of the property to a corporation for railroad purposes, even though no lien is given on buildings belonging to railroads which are essential to the operation of the road.[7]

Homestead.—In Texas where the owner of a homestead is the head of a family, neither the contractor nor those claiming under him can acquire a lien thereon, unless the contract for the improvements is signed by the wife and privately acknowledged by her.[8]

Public buildings.[9]—Mechanic's lien statutes do not extend to public buildings in the absence of an express provision to that effect.[10]

Liens given laborers and materialmen on contracts for public works and improvements are treated elsewhere.[11]

§ 4. The contract supporting the lien and the privity of the landowner thereto. A. In general.[12]—The basis of a materialman's or laborer's lien for improvements on land is the contract between the contractor and the landowner.[13] Where the written contract is void, the contractor may establish a lien by showing a new contract,[14] or, in its absence, by showing the reasonable value of the labor and materials which went into the house.[15]

No lien will be allowed where the contract provides for certain payments as the work progresses and the balance upon completion, but fixes no time for such completion.[16] Neither the contract price, nor the precise details of the work, need be fixed in advance,[17] but it is sufficient as to work and material alleged to have been furnished under one contract to show that it was in fact so furnished.[18] Where one accepts material furnished for making improvements in property belonging to him, the law implies a promise to pay for it so as to entitle the materialman to a lien therefor.[19]

4, 5. Hutchins v. Bautch [Wis.] 101 N. W. 671.

6. Evidence held to show that conveyance was fraudulent and that vendee was not bona fide purchaser. Gilmour v. Colcord, 96 App. Div. 358, 89 N. Y. S. 689.

7. Bates Mach. Co. v. Trenton, etc., R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 684, 58 A. 935.

8. Tex. Rev. St. 1895, art. 3304. Muller v. McLaughlin [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 687.

9. See 2 Curr. L. 871.

10. Me. Rev. St. 1883, c. 91, § 30 et seq., giving liens in certain cases on "a house, building or appurtenances," does not apply to a Carnegie library. A. L. & E. F. Goss Co. v. Greenleaf, 98 Me. 436, 57 A. 581. Lien does not attach to buildings held by trustees of academy for educational purposes. Neal-Millard Co. v. Trustees of Chatham Academy [Ga.] 48 S. E. 978. No lien for boring well for city. Albany v. Lynch, 119 Ga. 491, 46 S. E. 622.

11. See Public Contracts, § 6E, 2 Curr. L. 1295; Public Works and Improvements, § 5, 2 Curr. L. 1339.

12. See 2 Curr. L. 872.

13. Mo. Rev. St. 1899, § 4203. Hengstenberg v. Hoyt [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 539.

14. Made on Sunday. Sherry v. Madler [Wis.] 101 N. W. 1095.

15. Sherry v. Madler [Wis.] 101 N. W. 1095.

16. Blanks for time of completion in printed form not filled in. Bolter v. Kozlowski, 211 Ill. 79, 71 N. E. 858. Conversation between owner and contractor held not to constitute contract to complete work at certain time. Id. Defendant held not precluded on hearing of exceptions to master's report from objecting to contract because of fraudulent alterations made after it left master's hands, because made no objection thereto before the master. Id.

17. Hutchins v. Bautch [Wis.] 101 N. W. 671. In Wisconsin it is not essential that the terms of the contract be so precise that the amount agreed to be paid for work and material furnished thereunder can be definitely determined therefrom [Rev. St. 1898, c. 143]. Id.

18. Hutchins v. Bautch [Wis.] 101 N. W. 671.

19. Jefferson v. Hopson Bros. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 540.

The contract must be substantially complied with.[20]

The fact that an individual executes a contract under a firm name contrary to law does not deprive him of his lien.[21] Contractors completing a building after the death of the owner, for the construction of which no enforceable contract existed, are not entitled to a lien.[22]

In New Jersey, a building is not subject to lien for a debt owing for work or materials used in repairing or altering it, unless the owner contracted the debt, or consented in writing to its being contracted by some other person.[23]

(§ 4) B. Contracts by vendors, purchasers, lessors, and lessees.[24]—The title of the owner of land cannot be encumbered with a lien unless he expressly or implicdly consents thereto.[25] Thus, land cannot be subjected to a lien for materials furnished to be used in altering and repairing a building under a contract with the lessee, where the owner did not consent to the improvements.[26] As a general rule his consent thereto must be affirmative,[27] mere knowledge and acquiescence being insufficient.[28] This rule has been changed by statute in some states.[29] In some states the lien is confined to cases where the contractor has a special contract with the owner or his agent.[30]

A vendee in possession of real estate under a conditional contract of sale cannot defeat or cloud the vendor's title by suffering a mechanic's lien to be filed against the property for repairs to buildings situate upon it,[31] particularly where the contract is of record.[32] The person making the repairs cannot enforce his lien, as against the holder of the legal title, after forfeiture of the contract.[33]

20. A substantial compliance is sufficient, especially where the amount required to complete the building is trifling, and the contractor offers to complete any incomplete work and to make slight repairs or corrections. Windham v. Independent Tel. Co., 35 Wash. 166, 76 P. 936. Failure to substantially comply with the terms of the contract prevents recovery. Sherry v. Madler [Wis.] 101 N. W. 1095. Evidence held to sustain finding of damages due to poor material and workmanship in excess of amount due on contract. Fletcher v. Sandusky [Ky.] 83 S. W. 644. Evidence in action by one furnishing materials to subcontractor held insufficient to support finding as to value of work remaining uncompleted when work was abandoned by subcontractor. Miller v. Norcross, 92 App. Div. 352, 87 N. Y. S. 56. Evidence sufficient to sustain finding that the owner forcibly ejected plaintiffs from the work before the completion of the contract. Cochran v. Yoho, 34 Wash. 238, 75 P. 815.

21. Individual cannot take contract under firm name [N. Y. Pen. Code, § 363]. Vandegrift v. Bertron, 83 App. Div. 548, 82 N. Y. S. 153.

22. Probate court has no authority to direct administrator to borrow money to complete building, and to execute trust deed therefor. Person furnishing money subrogated only to rights of contractors, and as they had no right to lien, he acquired none. Waldermeyer v. Loebig [Mo.] 81 S. W. 904.

23. N. J. P. L. 1898, p. 541, c. 226, § 10. No lien where owner contracted verbally with builder, who contracted in writing with plaintiff. Murphy v. Hussa, 70 N. J. Law, 381, 57 A. 388.

24. See 2 Curr. L. 873.

25, 26. Reppard, Snedeker & Co. v. Morrison, 120 Ga. 28, 47 S. E. 554.

27, 28. Eichler v. Warner, 91 N. Y. S. 793.

29. In New Mexico where the owner of property acquires knowledge that materials are being furnished and repairs made on a house situated thereon, under contract with the lessee, he must, within three days, post a notice on the property stating that he will not be responsible for the same [Comp. Laws 1897, § 2226]. Pearce v. Albright [N. M.] 76 P. 286. Where the materials and labor are furnished at the instance of the lessee, it is error to order that execution issue against the owner for any deficiency in the absence of a showing of personal liability on his part. Id.

30. Tennessee [Shannon's Code, § 3531]. Reed v. Estes [Tenn.] 80 S. W. 1086.

31. Contract of purchase and title bond. Rusche v. Pittman [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 473, rvg. former opinion, Rusche v. Pittman [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 382. Under the Alaska statute it must be alleged and proved that the work or labor was done at the instance of the owner of the building or his agent [Civ. Code Alaska, § 262 (31 Stat. at L. 534, c. 786] (Russell v. Hayner [C. C. A.] 130 F. 90), or that the owner had knowledge of its construction (Id.). § 265 provides that when constructed with owner's knowledge it shall be held to have been constructed at his instance. Id. It is not sufficient to allege that it was done at the instance of one in possession of the land under a contract of purchase with the owner, in the absence of an allegation that the owner had knowledge of the contract. Id.

32. One furnishing labor and materials to a vendee in possession under a conditional contract of sale theretofore recorded is not entitled to enforce his lien against the vendor

A lien for work performed in making improvements on property, which a vendee or tenant agrees to make, becomes superior to the vendor's or landlord's rights only when the contract contemplates that such improvements are to be ultimately for the benefit of the landlord or will enhance and benefit the security of the vendor,[34] or when the vendor or landlord, by affirmatively engaging in or encouraging the improvement, has misled the mechanic so that it would be inequitable to allow him to change his position.[35] There must be an affirmative consent on the part of the vendor, mere acquiescence being insufficient.[36]

A purchaser who, with knowledge of all the facts, consents to performance of work upon a building, thereby subjects himself to liability therefor.[37] An assignee of a leasehold interest in realty upon which a building is being completed is put upon inquiry and bound to take notice that statutory liens may be asserted and enforced thereon for materials and labor furnished in its construction.[38]

(§ 4) C. Subcontractors and materialmen.[39]—A subcontract is one made under a previous contract,[40] and a subcontractor is one who takes a portion of the contract from the principal contractor.[41] Where the principal contractor is released from his contract by the owner, who assumes liability for all labor and materials furnished and proceeds to complete the building, a materialman furnishing material used therein, under a contract with the original contractor, is entitled to a lien as principal contractor with the owner.[42]

In the absence of conflicting claims between the person performing the labor and the person causing it to be performed, the latter has a lien for the labor so furnished.[43] No privity or knowledge on the part of the owner is necessary to give a subcontractor a lien for materials furnished to the principal contractor.[44]

When a subcontractor knows that a building contract contains a provision that no subcontractor shall file any lien, the mere acceptance of such employment will bar him from asserting a lien in opposition thereto.[45] on forfeiture of the contract for failure to comply with its terms [2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. Wash. § 5901, construed]. Northwest Bridge Co. v. Tacoma Shipbuilding Co. [Wash.] 78 P. 996.

33. Does not come within Burns' Ann. St. Ind. 1901, § 7256, whereby lien subsists against buildings in case of forfeiture of lease or foreclosure of mortgage. Rusche v. Pittman [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 473, rvg. former opinion, 70 N. E. 382.

34. Bernard v. Adjoran, 43 Misc. 276, 88 N. Y. S. 859.

35. Contract held not to show intent that work on hotel should begin at once. Bernard v. Adjoran, 43 Misc. 276, 88 N. Y. S. 859.

36. Where owner contracted for sale and payment within 60 days, giving immediate possession, and contract provided that vendee should erect a hotel thereon, held contract was not consent on part of vendor that work should begin at once, so as to give contractor commencing foundation on lot a lien as against him on default of vendees. Bernard v. Adjoran, 43 Misc. 276, 88 N. Y. S. 859.

37. Evidence held to show knowledge. Gilmour v. Colcord, 96 App. Div. 358, 89 N. Y. S. 689.

38. Lessee can convey no interest superior to his own. Hammond v. Darlington [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 446.

39. See 2 Curr. L. 874.

40, 41. Ryndak v. Seawell, 13 Okl. 737, 76 P. 170. A materialman entering into a contract with a contractor to furnish materials for a building which the latter has agreed to build, having knowledge of the principal contract and contracting with relation thereto, on the understanding that the material is to be used in such building, thereby becomes a subcontractor within the meaning of the lien law, and is entitled to a lien for materials actually used in such building. Id. In Indian Territory all persons furnishing the materials or doing the work provided for by the lien statutes are deemed subcontractors, unless they have contracts therefor directly with the owner or proprietor, or his agent or trustee [Mansf. Dig. § 4422; Ind. T. Ann. St. 1899, § 2889]. Materialman furnishing lumber to contractor without arrangement with other person held subcontractor. Campbell & Williams v. William Cameron & Co. [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 762.

42. Okl. Civ. Code 1903, § 620. Ryndak v. Seawell, 13 Okl. 737, 76 P. 170.

43. Under N. J. P. L. 1898, p. 538, subcontractor may have lien for labor furnished by its agents or employes. Bates Mach. Co. v. Trenton & N. B. R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 684, 58 A. 935.

44. Wilson's Okl. St. 1903, c. 66, § 4819. Complaint need not allege it. Ferguson v. Stephenson-Brown Lumber Co. [Okl.] 77 P. 184.

45. Bates Mach. Co. v. Trenton N. B. R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 684, 58 A. 935.

§ 5. Acts and proceedings necessary to acquire lien. A. Notice and demand, statement of claim and affidavit.[46]—A notice, statement of claim or affidavit is usually required to be filed.[47] It must substantially comply with all the requirements of the statute,[48] and must be sufficient in itself without reference to extrinsic proof.[49]

Its contents are prescribed by statute, but it must generally contain some statement of the contract,[50] the amount claimed, the names of the owner, contractor and claimant,[51] and a correct description of the property,[52] and must be verified.[53] Any description of the property which will enable one acquainted with the locality to identify it is sufficient.[54] The fact that the land described exceeds the amount on which the statute allows a lien is immaterial.[55] In the absence of fraud the fact that the statement claims larger amount than is found by the court to be due does not invalidate the lien,[56] nor does the inclusion in the account of some items which did not go into the building affect the validity of the lien for the other items, where they are small and easily separated.[57] Where a subcontractor claiming a lien for work, labor and materials is only entitled to a lien for materials, not the subject of a separate book account, the fact that the lien claimed was for the full contract price does not prevent its amendment so as to set up the reasonable value of such materials.[58] A claim good in part will be held wholly bad if it cannot be determined, or is not shown, what part is valid.[59]

46. See 2 Curr. L. 875.

47. Armstrong v. Chisholm, 99 App. Div. 465, 91 N. Y. S. 693.

48. Russell v. Hayner [C. C. A.] 130 F. 90; Armstrong v. Chisholm, 99 App. Div. 465, 91 N. Y. S. 693. Notices held sufficient. Windham v. Independent Tel. Co., 35 Wash. 166, 76 P. 936. Statement. Ferguson v. Stephenson-Brown Lumber Co. [Okl.] 77 P. 184.

49. Armstrong v. Chisholm, 99 App. Div. 465, 91 N. Y. S. 693.

50. Wis. Rev. 1898, §§ 3320-3322. Sherry v. Madler [Wis.] 101 N. W. 1095. Notice must contain a statement of the terms, time given, and conditions of plaintiff's contract. Notice sufficient. Pearce v. Albright [N. M.] 76 P. 286.

51. Statement sufficient [Wilson's St. Okl. 1903, c. 66, § 4819]. Ferguson v. Stephenson-Brown Lumber Co. [Okl.] 77 P. 184. Notice sufficient [Idaho Sess. Laws 1899, p. 148, § 6]. Robertson v. Moore [Idaho] 77 P. 218. Civ. Code Alaska, § 266 (31 St. 534, c. 786) requires notice to state name of owner, or reputed owner if known. Russell v. Hayner [C. C. A.] 130 F. 90. If unknown, that fact must be stated and the name of the reputed owner given. Id. These facts should be stated in a direct, clear and positive manner, independently of the description of the property. Id.

52. Robertson v. Moore [Idaho] 77 P. 218; Ferguson v. Stephenson-Brown Lumber Co. [Okl.] 77 P. 184. Mont. Code Civ. Proc. § 2131. Western Iron Works v. Montana Pulp & Paper Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 413. Affidavit under 2 Sayles' Civ. St. 1897, art. 3339b. Merchants' & Planters' Bank v. Hollis [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 269.

53. Robertson v. Moore [Idaho] 77 P. 218; Ferguson v. Stephenson-Brown Lumber Co. [Okl.] 77 P. 184. The failure of the deputy clerk of court, before whom the statement was verified, to attach thereto an impression of his seal, does not invalidate it. Wheelock v. Hull [Iowa] 100 N. W. 863. In Texas, affidavit must be made on affiant's knowledge. 2 Sayles' Civ. St. 1897, art. 3339b. Insufficient where made to best of his knowledge and belief. Merchants' & Planters' Bank v. Hollis [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 269.

54. Description sufficient [Mont. Code Civ. Proc. § 2131]. Western Iron Works v. Montana Pulp & Paper Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 413; Ferguson v. Stephenson-Brown Lumber Co. [Okl.] 77 P. 184. The property to be identified is the building or structure upon which the lien is given. Mont. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2130, 2131, 2133, construed. Western Iron Works v. Montana Pulp & Paper Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 413.

55. Western Iron Works v. Montana Pulp & Paper Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 413. Where the lien is asked on a platted lot in an incorporated city, which is definitely described, and contains slightly more than such amount. Darlington Lumber Co. v. Harris [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 688. The amount and specific description of the property against which the lien should be adjudged is a matter to be tried and determined by the court. Western Iron Works v. Montana Pulp & Paper Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 413.

56. Alabama & G. Lumber Co. v. Tisdale, 139 Ala. 250, 36 So. 618. Notice of lien filed, which correctly states whole amount due but is inaccurate in stating that whole amount was due on original contract where some of materials were furnished under later orders, is valid as to amount of materials actually furnished under original contract. Continental Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Hutton, 144 Cal. 609, 78 P. 21.

57. Ulrich v. Osborn [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 228.

58. Murphy v. Guisti [R. I.] 58 A. 952.

59. As where claimant fails to show what part of the materials went for sidewalks and what part for other purposes. Bradley v. Gaghan, 208 Pa. 511, 57 A. 985.

Items beyond the dates included in the notice cannot be proved as part of the plaintiff's lien claim.[60] A notice is not defective because claimant's Christian name is designated by initials instead of being written out in full.[61]

The wording of the statute need not be followed where it does not purport to prescribe a form of statement.[62] A notice which follows the full language of the statute, and thereby renders it impossible to determine whether the claim is for labor or material already performed or furnished or to be performed or furnished,[63] whether performed or furnished as a contractor or otherwise,[64] or whether the amount claimed was the agreed price or the value, is insufficient.[65]

Two separate and distinct buildings or groups of buildings cannot be treated as one and the same building for the purpose of the statutory notice of lien, where rights other than those of the principal contractor are affected.[66] Where the claim states that the materials were furnished and the work done at the request of an agent, it must show his authority.[67] In Pennsylvania the claimant must set forth a copy of his contract, if in writing, or a statement of the terms and conditions thereof, if any of them are verbal.[68] Where the specifications are expressly made a part of the contract, or are referred to as a part of it, they must be filed with it, in so far as they apply to the work for which the lien is claimed.[69] Building plans need not be filed.[70]

An account is required to be attached to the notice in some states.[71]

Service of notice on owner.[72]—Persons claiming a lien are in many states required to give a notice to that effect to the owner,[73] within a certain time after

60. Foss v. Desjardins, 98 Me. 539, 57 A. 881.

61. Pearce v. Albright [N. M.] 76 P. 286.

62. Under Alabama Code, § 2727, requiring filing of statement containing a just and true account of the demand, the omission of the words "after all the just credits have been given," contained in such section, does not render the lien invalid. Alabama & G. Lumber Co. v. Tisdale, 139 Ala. 250, 36 So. 618.

63. Notice stating "the labor performed or to be performed, and the materials furnished or to be furnished" etc., is insufficient. Armstrong v. Chisholm, 99 App. Div. 465, 91 N. Y. S. 693. Defect not cured by subsequent statement that amount unpaid "for labor and materials" is a fixed sum. Armstrong v. Chisholm, 99 App. Div. 465, 91 N. Y. S. 693; Ryan v. Train, 95 App. Div. 73, 88 N. Y. S. 441; Gilmour v. Colcord, 96 App. Div. 358, 89 N. Y. S. 689.

64. Ryan v. Train, 95 App. Div. 73, 88 N. Y. S. 441; Gilmour v. Colcord, 96 App. Div. 358, 89 N. Y. S. 689.

65. Ryan v. Train, 95 App. Div. 73, 88 N. Y. S. 441; Gilmour v. Colcord, 96 App. Div. 358, 89 N. Y. S. 689.

66. Dist. Col. Code, §§ 1237-1264 construed. Richards Brick Co. v. Trott, 23 App. D. C. 284.

67. 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. Wash. § 5900 construed. Northwest Bridge Co. v. Tacoma Shipbuilding Co. [Wash.] 78 P. 996.

68. Act June 4, 1901 (P. L. 436). Knelly v. Horwath, 208 Pa. 487, 57 A. 957.

69. Lien could not be sustained where specifications not filed, though he filed bill for materials sold and work done in order to support claim for extra work, and annexed it to lien, there being no statement of the terms and conditions under which they were furnished, and only a few items being subject to the lien. Knelly v. Horwath, 208 Pa. 487, 57 A. 957.

70. Knelly v. Horwath, 208 Pa. 487, 57 A. 957.

71. Maroni v. Junty [R. I.] 58 A. 450. Where account has no heading and nothing to show from whom it is due, the notice is insufficient. Id. Second notice held not to relate to same delivery of materials as first one. Id. Account for sand furnished held sufficient. Jose v. Hoyt [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 468.

72. See 2 Curr. L. 875, n. 98 et seq.

73. Oklahoma: Evidence sufficient to sustain finding that notice of filing lien was given to owner as required by Civ. Code 1903, § 621. Ryndak v. Seawell, 13 Okl. 737, 76 P. 170.

In Indian Territory a materialman must, at or before the time he furnishes the material, give notice to the owner of his intention to claim a lien [Mansf. Dig. § 4403; Ind. T. Ann. St. 1899, § 2870]. Campbell v. Cameron & Co. [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 762. After serving such notice he must procure a written settlement of his account certified by the contractor, serve the same on the owner, and file a copy thereof with the clerk of court [Mansf. Dig. § 4403]. Id. In case the contractor refuses to make and sign the settlement, the subcontractor may make it himself. Cannot do so unless attempt to procure contractor to do so is shown [Mansf. Dig. § 4404]. Id. In case he does not serve the notice but complies with the provisions in regard to the account, he acquires a lien only to the extent that the owner can safely withhold any amount owing the subcontractor [Mansf. Dig. § 4421; Ind. T. Ann. St. 1899, § 2888]. Id.

In Wisconsin the notice must be served on the performance of the labor, or the furnishing of the material.[74] In some states no notice is necessary where the lien is claimed by the principal contractor.[75]

In New Jersey no liens can be filed against a building if a copy of the contract between the owner and the contractor is filed with the city clerk, but materialmen and laborers may obtain a lien on funds in the owner's hands belonging to the contractor by serving him with a stop notice.[76] In order to entitle one to a lien for work under this statute he must be a laborer or journeyman employed by the contractor.[77] A materialman is one who simply furnishes to the building, or for use therein, material which some one else is to incorporate into it by his labor.[78] A demand must be made upon the contractor prior to the serving of notice on the owner.[79] It may be made by the claimant in person, or by his duly authorized agent or attorney.[80] In the case of a materialman the notice must show that the claimant has furnished materials which have been used in the building,[81] that an amount of money is due him on account thereof,[82] and that payment has been refused.[83] The cases do not appear to be in harmony on the question whether it must specifically state that a demand has been made.[84] The signature of the noticing party is not essential to its validity.[85] A notice stating that a certain amount is due for work done and materials furnished is fatally defective if it does not differentiate the amount due for each.[86] The notice is not defective because items which are not lienable claims are, by mistake and in good faith, included therein.[87] Actual service on the owner must be proved.[88] Service may be made in any form, or by any method which in effect the owner or his agent, if to be found in the county in which the property is situated, and if neither can be found therein, by filing it in the office of the clerk of the circuit court of such county [Rev. St. 1898, § 3315]. Laev Lumber Co. v. Auer [Wis.] 101 N. W. 425. Service on one in the employ of an owner, who is out of the state, who has full authority to represent him in his business affairs, is sufficient. Id. A notice setting forth that plaintiff was employed by the principal contractor to furnish, and did furnish, material as specified for the erection and construction of the building is sufficient [Wis. Rev. St. 1898, § 3315]. Id. The terms and conditions under which it was furnished need not be specified. Id.

74. A laborer must give notice within thirty days after the beginning of the work. Laborer working by the day who began work more than 30 days before serving notice and afterwards left but returned less than 30 days before giving notice, held entitled to lien only for work done after commencing second time. Aubin v. Darling [R. I.] 59 A. 390.

75. Notice of filing lien under Okl. Civ. Code 1903, § 620. Ryndak v. Seawell, 13 Okl. 737, 76 P. 170. The Florida statute requiring one contracting with any person other than the owner to give notice to such owner that he is about to perform labor upon the property and intends to claim a lien thereon applies only to contracts with lessees, operators and the like, and not to those made with the owner of the property, or to contracts for labor and material made with one who contracts with the owner to erect or repair the building [Act May 30, 1901, p. 97, c. 4955, § 2 construed]. Futch v. Adams [Fla.] 36 So. 575.

76. Laws 1898, p. 538, c. 226. Beckhard v. Rudolph [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 253. N. J. Mechanic's Lien Act, § 3 (P. L. 1898, p. 538, c. 226). Fehling v. Goings [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 642.

77. Beckhard v. Rudolph [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 253. The remedy applies only to creditors of the contractor named in the filed contract, and not to subcontractors. Fehling v. Goings [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 642.

78. Beckhard v. Rudolph [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 253. One making a contract to supply material and himself incorporate it into the building is not a materialman. Subcontractors, such as painters, plumbers and plasterers cannot. Id.

79. Sufficient evidence of a demand to support notice. Evans v. Lower [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 294.

80. Fehling v. Goings [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 642. May be appointed in writing or by parol. Id.

81, 82, 83. Beckhard v. Rudolph [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 253.

84. Notice defective where it merely states a refusal to pay, and not a refusal upon demand. Beckhard v. Rudolph [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 253. The notice need not recite that a demand for payment has been made. Act requires only written notice that contractor refuses to pay. Fehling v. Goings [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 642.

85. Signature "B. & Co., W. I. G., their attorney" sufficient. Fehling v. Goings [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 642.

86. Beckhard v. Rudolph [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 253.

87. Of claim for tools furnished contractor with which to work on building. Evans v. Lower [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 294. Of claim for money advanced to contractor to purchase millwork in which materialman did not deal. Id.

88. Fehling v. Goings [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 642.

gives the written notice prescribed by statute.[89] The rights acquired by the claimant are not invalidated by the bankruptcy of the contractor within four months thereafter.[90] If the owner makes a payment on the building contract in advance of its terms, and the amount remaining due is insufficient to satisfy notices served according to law, he is liable as though such payment had not been made.[91]

In New York, payments made by an owner before they become due by the terms of the contract, for the purpose of avoiding the provisions of the lien law, are ineffectual as against the lien of a subcontractor.[92] Only collusive payments are forbidden, the statute not applying to those made before the owner knew, or had reason to know, that any one had a claim against, or had furnished materials to, the contractor.[93] Payments made after notification of a claim will be regarded as made for the purpose of avoiding the lien law.[94]

In Alabama, liens of persons furnishing material to the contractor extend only to the amount of any unpaid balance due him from the owner when notice of an intention to claim a lien is served on the latter, or which shall thereafter become due.[95] An owner making payments to the contractor after such notice is not relieved from the effects of the lien, though the contractor abandons the work and he is compelled to pay more than the contract price for the completion of the building.[96]

(§ 5) B. Filing and recording claim and statement thereof.[97]—The statutory requirements for preserving the lien must be complied with.[98] The claim or statement must be filed within the prescribed time.[99] In Texas the lien is

89. Fehling v. Goings [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 642. May be given by the claimant's agent. Id.

90. Not assignments or transfers by bankrupt to defraud his creditors within Bankruptcy Act of 1898, c. 541, § 67f, 30 Stat. 565 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3450]. Fehling v. Goings [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 642.

91. N. J. Gen. St. p. 2074, § 5. Veitch v. Clark [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 272. Held no advance payment, though instalment was paid before all the doors and trim were on, it appearing that words "when the trim is on and the doors hung," as used in the contract, were ordinarily not construed strictly, but indicated a certain stage of the work, which had been reached. Id.

92. Laws 1897, p. 517, c. 418, § 7. Wolf v. Mendelsohn, 87 N. Y. S. 465.

93, 94. Wolf v. Mendelsohn, 87 N. Y. S. 465.

95. Code 1896, § 2723 construed. Alabama & G. Lumber Co. v. Tisdale, 139 Ala. 250, 36 So. 618.

96. Alabama & G. Lumber Co. v. Tisdale, 139 Ala. 250, 36 So. 618.

97. See 2 Curr. L. 878.

98. Foss v. Desjardins, 98 Me. 539, 57 A. 881.

99. Maine: Notice of the lien claim must be filed within forty days after the lienor ceases to furnish materials [Rev. St. 1883, c. 91, § 32]. Foss v. Desjardins, 98 Me. 539, 57 A. 881.

Missouri: Subcontractors have four months under Mo. Rev. St. 1899, § 4207. R. J. Schwab & Sons Co. v. Frieze [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 1174; Lecoutour Bros. Stair Mfg. Co. v. Maddox [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 99. Where it was not disputed that the last item was furnished within the time required, and evidence was conflicting as to whether the material was made necessary to completion of building, which had not been tendered or accepted, owing to change in plans, held error to give declaration of law in favor of defendant without finding whether the extras were necessary to complete the building. Lecoutour Bros. Stair Mfg. Co. v. Maddox [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 99. Evidence held to show that account was filed within statutory period after furnishing last item which went into house. Ulrich v. Osborn [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 228. The time begins to run from the time when the goods sold were delivered and accepted and the indebtedness accrued. From time furnaces furnished by subcontractor were delivered and accepted. Furnishing of new part to replace one broken in transit, without charge, held not to extend time. Schwab & Sons Co. v. Frieze [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 1174.

In Nevada original contractors must file their claims with the county recorder within sixty days after the completion of the contract [Cutting's Comp. Laws, § 3885]. Salt Lake Hardware Co. v. Chainman Min. & Elec. Co., 128 F. 509. And all others claiming liens, within thirty days after the completion of the work. Id. One contracting to furnish machinery, materials, and appliances, and install the same in a mill erected by defendant without any other contractor, is an original contractor within the meaning of this statute. Id.

New Jersey: Evidence held to show filing of claim within four months after materials were furnished. Bates Mach. Co. v. Trenton, etc., R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 684, 58 A. 935.

In Oklahoma the lien statement must be given by the constitution, and no registration of claim is necessary in cases arising between the original contractor and the owner.[1]

Where there are separate contracts between the contractor and the owner for different jobs, the lien account must be filed within the statutory period after the completion of the work under each contract, in order to be good for the entire work.[2] The question whether the materials were furnished and the labor performed under one general contract or under separate contracts is one of fact.[3] When materials are furnished for the same improvement, in instalments and at intervals, but the parties intend them to be included in one account and settlement, the entire account will be treated as a continuous and connected transaction, and the lien limitation begins to run from the last item of it.[4] When the building is substantially completed, and is tendered to and accepted by the owner as complete, the contractor cannot thereafter, at his own instance, and against the will of the owner, perform some part that was called for by the contract, and thereby extend the time for filing the lien.[5] When extra work is done or material furnished by a contractor during the preformance of his agreement, as a part of or in furtherance of the same general object, it will be deemed, for lien purposes, a part of the same general contract, and the time for filing the lien for the amount due on the contract and the extra work will commence to run on completion of the work as a whole.[6] But the performance of other or additional work after the completion of the contract cannot operate to extend such time.[7]

Contract liens.[8]—Statutory provisions as to filing and registration do not apply to liens provided for by contract between the parties, but they are binding on them and persons having knowledge of them, whether filed or not.[9] The rule is not changed because they are called builders' liens.[10] filed within sixty days after the material is furnished. Wilson's St. 1903, c. 66, § 4819. Evidence held to show filing within time. Ferguson v. Stephenson-Brown Lumber Co. [Okl.] 77 P. 184.

In Pennsylvania no lien for materials furnished can endure longer than six months after the time at which the materials were furnished to the property against which it is claimed, unless a claim be filed within such time. As there was no proof that material delivered on certain date went to any particular house, there was no proof that any material was furnished to any particular houses within the legal period, and claim could not be supported as to any portion of the property. Bradley v. Gaghan, 208 Pa. 511, 57 A. 985.

In Utah an original contractor has sixty days after the completion of his contract in which to file for record a claim in writing containing a notice of his intention to hold and claim a lien for any balance that may be due him for materials furnished or work done by him in the construction of a building [Rev. St. 1898, § 1386]. Elwell v. Morrow [Utah] 78 P. 605. No lien is in fact created until he does so. Id.

1. Const. art. 16, § 37. Statutory provisions for registration are only for the protection of the lien against subsequent purchasers and incumbrancers without notice. D. June & Co. v. Doke [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 402.

2. E. R. Darlington Lumber Co. v. Harris [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 688.

3. Evidence held to sustain finding that they were furnished under single contract on open, continuous account. Western Iron Works v. Montana Pulp & Paper Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 413.

4. Evidence held to show that all lumber was furnished pursuant to the original contract. E. R. Darlington Lumber Co. v. Harris [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 688. Forty-five days between the date of furnishing the last item for the completion of the building as originally planned, and the time of furnishing lumber for extras is not such an interval as to affect a materialman with constructive notice that the extras were furnished under a new contract between the owner and the contractor, or to raise a presumption that the materialman sold it under a separate agreement. Id.

5. No evidence to show tender and acceptance. Lecoutour Bros. Stair Mfg. Co. v. Maddox [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 99.

6. Hobkirk v. Portland Nat. Baseball Club, 44 Or. 605, 76 P. 776.

7. Time not extended. Hobkirk v. Portland Nat. Baseball Club, 44 Or. 605, 76 P. 776.

8. See Notice and Record of Title, 2 Curr. L. 1053.

9. D. June & Co. v. Doke [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 402. A contract creating a lien need not be registered or recorded as between the original parties thereto. Lien on homestead. Moreno v. R. B. Spencer & Bro. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 1054. Notes called for in the contract need not be acknowledged or recorded. Id.

10. D. June & Co. v. Doke [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 402.

§ 6. Amount of lien and priority thereof.[11]—Where the erection of a building is one continuous undertaking without abandonment, a mortgage originating subsequent to the commencement of its construction is subordinate to the lien claims of all who have contributed to the completion of the structure.[12] In such case a mortgagee purchasing on foreclosure sale does not become a bona fide purchaser, but is substituted only to the rights of the mortgagor, and takes subject to the liens.[13] A mortgage executed prior to the commencement of the work must be recorded in order to render it superior to lien claims for labor and materials.[14]

Mechanics' liens are superior to the homestead claims of the owner's minor children.[15]

Where machinery was sold on condition that a building be erected to put it in, notice to an agent of the seller, engaged in promoting a contract for erecting the building, of the building contractor's lien, was notice to the seller.[16] Knowledge of the agent that the building is being built on credit and that the statute gives a lien to the contractor and materialmen under such circumstances is sufficient to charge the seller with notice of the contractor's lien.[17]

An assignee for the benefit of creditors of a general contractor takes the property subject to the right of laborers and materialmen to subsequently file mechanics' liens for work performed prior to the assignment.[18]

The rights of a subcontractor are not limited to the balance due the contractor, but by filing his claim and serving the required notice he becomes entitled to a lien for the full amount due him,[19] of which he cannot be deprived by any adjustment between the owner and the principal contractor.[20] This is particularly true where the owner has actual notice of his employment, and fails to protect himself by withholding from the contract price a sufficient sum to pay his claim, as he has a right to do under the contract.[21]

In some states laborers, materialmen, and subcontractors are entitled to liens as against the owner only to the extent to which the latter is liable to the contractor under the contract.[22] In Kentucky the aggregate amount of liens allowed cannot exceed the contract price, and if those claimed are in excess of such price it will be distributed pro rata among the claimants.[23] Where the cost of the

11. See 2 Curr. L. 879.

12. Minn. Laws 1895, p. 224, c. 101, does not change this rule. City of Ortonville v. Geer [Minn.] 101 N. W. 963. Liens take precedence of mortgages given subsequent to the commencement of the work [Mont. Code Civ. Proc. § 2133]. Western Iron Works v. Montana Pulp & Paper Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 413.

13. Mortgage executed after a part of the material was furnished. Western Iron Works v. Montana Pulp & Paper Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 413.

14. Laws 1895, p. 224, c. 101. City of Ortonville v. Geer [Minn.] 101 N. W. 963.

15. Tex. Const. art. 16, §§ 37, 50. Summerville v. King [Tex.] 83 S. W. 680.

16, 17. D. June & Co. v. Doke [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 402.

18. In such case laborers have inchoate right to lien which becomes perfected when notice is filed. Armstrong v. Chisolm, 99 App. Div. 465, 91 N. Y. S. 299.

19, 20. Wheelock v. Hull [Iowa] 100 N. W. 863. Record held to contain sufficient proof of the fact that a statement for lien was made and filed as alleged. Id.

21. Wheelock v. Hull [Iowa] 100 N. W. 863.

22. Not entitled to lien where contractor indebted to owner because of breach of contract. Rowell v. Harris [Ga.] 48 S. E. 948. Contractor agreed to erect building for actual cost and 5 per cent. additional, payments to be made from time to time in sums not to exceed ninety per cent of the value of work and materials and half of his commission, and the balance after completion. Held that, where contractor abandoned work and owner completed it, liens could only attach to 90 per cent and commissions due until work was completed, and then only to additional amount found due, after deducting cost of completion from contract price. New Jersey Steel & Iron Co. v. Robinson, 92 App. Div. 436, 87 N. Y. S. 151.

23. Ky. St. 1903, § 2463. Canady, Gillum & Key v. Webb, 25 Ky. L. R. 2107, 80 S. W. 172.

building exceeds the contract price, the fact that others have not filed claims for liens does not entitle one who has done so to more than his pro rata share.[24]

A subcontractor relying on an unaccepted order given him by the principal contractor and neglecting to take advantage of the mechanics' lien law stands in the position of an ordinary creditor with no specific rights as against the owner or the property except under the order.[25] Serving notice of such order on the owner works an equitable assignment of so much of the amount to become due the contractor.[26] It is the duty of an owner, who has, under his contract, the right to retain from the contract price a sum sufficient to indemnify himself against any claims for which he may be liable, when he has notice that parties furnishing necessary materials and labor are unpaid, to withhold all further payments until such bills are settled.[27] The right of the contractor is to the balance remaining after all such claims have been satisfied, and the subcontractor taking an unaccepted order from him has no rights except as to such balance, and takes his chances as to there being any balance.[28]

The New York lien law provides that no assignment of the contractor of the money due or to become due thereunder, nor any order drawn by the contractor on the owner shall be valid until the contract, or a statement containing its substance and the assignment, or a copy of each, or a copy of such order, shall be filed with the county clerk.[29] This act does not affect payments made by the owner on account of labor performed or materials furnished under the contract.[30] An assignee for the benefit of creditors of a general contractor takes the property subject to the right of subcontractors having orders drawn on the owner in their favor, and payable out of a particular fund due on the contract, to file the same.[31] Thus orders given before such assignment and filed thereafter give the subcontractor priority over the assignee.[32]

§ 7. Assignment or transfer of lien.[33]—In Indian Territory liens are transferable and assignable by statute.[34]

§ 8. Waiver, loss, or forfeiture of lien or right to acquire it.[35]—A builder may waive his right to a statutory lien,[36] and does so by agreeing not to exercise it,[37] and such a contract binds a subcontractor with notice.[38] Where the terms of the contract are ambiguous, the doubt should be resolved against the waiver.[39] A stipulation agreeing to deliver the building free from all claims, liens, and charges is not a waiver of the contractor's right to a statutory lien.[40] Nor does

24. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 2468, all have liens, which are dissolved unless claims are filed within six months. Canady, Gillum & Key v. Webb, 25 Ky. L. R. 2107, 80 S. W. 172.

25, 26. Wheelock v. Hull [Iowa] 100 N. W. 863.

27. Iowa Code, § 3093. Wheelock v. Hull [Iowa] 100 N. W. 863.

28. Cannot assert personal claim against owner superior to claims of those holding liens. Wheelock v. Hull [Iowa] 100 N. W. 863.

29. Laws 1897, p. 521, c. 418, § 15. Harvey v. Brewer, 178 N. Y. 5, 70 N. E. 73; Armstrong v. Chisolm, 99 App. Div. 465, 91 N. Y. S. 299. Acceptance by owner of order drawn by contractor in favor of subcontractor who had filed a lien, and acceptance by subcontractor of owner's written promise to pay it in satisfaction of lien, which was thereupon discharged, held to constitute payment, so that filing of order not necessary to make it valid as against subsequent lienors. Harvey v. Brewer, 178 N. Y. 5, 70 N. E. 73.

30. Harvey v. Brewer, 178 N. Y. 5, 70 N. E. 73.

31. Analogous to rule allowing laborers and materialmen to file liens for work and material furnished before assignment. Armstrong v. Chisolm, 99 App. Div. 465, 91 N. Y. S. 299.

32. Armstrong v. Chisolm, 99 App. Div. 465, 91 N. Y. S. 299.

33. See 2 Curr. L. 881.

34. Mansf. Dig. § 4423; Ind. T. Ann. St. 1899, § 2890. Campbell v. Wm. Cameron & Co. [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 762.

35. See 2 Curr. L. 881.

36, 37. Davis v. La Crosse Hospital Ass'n [Wis.] 99 N. W. 351.

38. Bates Mach. Co. v. Trenton, etc., R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 684, 58 A. 935, citing 20 Enc. Law, 361, where the authorities pro and con are collated.

39, 40. Davis v. La Crosse Hospital Ass'n [Wis.] 99 N. W. 351.

one furnishing and installing machinery waive his right to a lien by stipulating in the contract that title thereto shall not pass to the purchaser until all payments shall be fully made in cash.[41] The acceptance of the owner's notes is not a waiver of the lien unless they are taken as a payment.[42]

The fact that the materialman becomes surety on a bond of the contractor, conditioned to save the owner harmless from liens, does not estop him from suing the owner to enforce his lien, in the absence of a showing that the latter would be injured thereby.[43]

No representations of defendants can operate to estop them to deny that claimants may file claims against any of the property until a specified time.[44]

§ 9. Discharge and satisfaction.[45]—In some states one having an interest in property upon which a mechanic's lien is claimed may give bond to dissolve such lien upon his interest.[46] The mere fact that the property was conveyed to him with a view to his giving such bond does not affect his right to do so.[47] Where the sureties falsely impersonate others and give false answers in regard to their property when examined before the master in chancery, the bond is void and does not work a dissolution, though signed and approved by the master.[48] The bond may, of course, be canceled if obtained through fraud.[49]

In an action on an undertaking given to procure the discharge of a lien filed by plaintiff's assignor, and running to the county clerk, plaintiff must allege that he has obtained leave to sue.[50]

§ 10. Remedies and procedure to enforce lien. A. Remedies. Form of action.[51]—In Utah at the time of filing a complaint for a lien and issuing the summons, plaintiff is required to publish a notice to all persons claiming liens on the premises to appear on a specified day and prove them.[52] All liens not then exhibited are waived.[53] Failure of a contractor whose time for filing a lien has not expired, and who is neither made a party, nor served with process, and has no knowledge of the proceedings, to appear and prove his claim, is not a waiver.[54] The statute is remedial, and should be liberally construed.[55]

41. Salt Lake Hardware Co. v. Chalnman Min. & Elec. Co., 128 F. 509.

42. Notes held not to have been given and accepted in payment of account pro tanto, and plaintiff had a right to apply amounts received by him subsequently to their payment rather than to the payment of his general account. Hence, he did not thereby release his lien on the building. Bryant v. Grady, 98 Me. 389, 57 A. 92. Payment by owner directly to plaintiff on assignment to him of architect's order held in effect a payment by defendant, and plaintiff could apply the amount so received on the notes, defendant having consented thereto. Id. Right not waived by the acceptance of a note on the owner's indebtedness, with the understanding that the materialman shall hold it until the owner can make a payment on account and then surrender it, no payment having been made, and the note being produced for cancellation at the trial. E. R. Darlington Lumber Co. v. Harris [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 688.

43. Badger Lumber Co. v. Muehlebach [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 546.

44. Estoppel inapplicable where property and not persons are to be charged. Bradley v. Gaghan, 208 Pa. 511, 57 A. 985.

45. See 2 Curr. L. 882.

46. Mass. Rev. Laws, c. 197, § 28. Breed v. Gardner [Mass.] 72 N. E. 983.

47, 48. Breed v. Gardner [Mass.] 72 N. E. 983.

49. Where the owner fraudulently conveys the property to an irresponsible person, and procures him, as principal, and two other irresponsible persons, who fraudulently justified as sureties, to execute such a bond, equity will, on petition of the lienor, cancel the bond, enjoin the grantor and grantee from claiming any rights by reason thereof, and compel them to execute a release of such rights. Keyes v. Brackett [Mass.] 72 N. E. 986.

50. Necessary under N. Y. Code Civ. Proc. § 814. Goldstein v. Michelson, 91 N. Y. S. 33. Averment that undertaking ran to plaintiff's assignor rendered nugatory by annexation of instrument showing contrary. Id.

51. See 2 Curr. L. 882.

52, 53. Rev. St. 1898, § 1391. Elwell v. Morrow [Utah] 78 P. 605.

54. No lien created until contractor files claim for record [Rev. St. 1898, § 1386]. Evidence held to show that failure was without prejudice to plaintiff's rights. Elwell v. Morrow [Utah] 78 P. 605.

55. Elwell v. Morrow [Utah] 78 P. 605.

In Georgia the execution issued on the foreclosure of a laborer's lien operates as final process until arrested by a valid counter-affidavit.[56] The counter-affidavit converts this final process into mesne process, and raises an issue which must then be passed upon by the proper court.[57] Until a valid counter-affidavit is filed there is no case and no issue to be tried, and hence when it is void, defendant cannot have a ruling as to the validity of the foreclosure or levy.[58]

By attachment.[59]—In Maine, in an action to enforce a lien on land and buildings for materials furnished in the construction of the buildings, the attachment must be made within ninety days after the last materials are furnished.[60] Sundays are included in the computation of such time,[61] and when the last day falls on Sunday an attachment on the following Monday is not seasonably made.[62]

Time of bringing action.[63]—Statutes generally limit the time within which actions to enforce the lien may be brought.[64] There need not be visible continuity of work from first to last in order that the last item may relate back to its commencement.[65] Delay in completing the work sufficient to so clearly indicate completion or abandonment as to excuse third parties dealing with the property from making inquiries in regard to the matter may affect the right of lien upon principles of estoppel in pais.[66] An action to enforce a lien, filed on the day on which the lien was filed, but thereafter, is not premature.[67]

Concurrent remedies.[68]—The fact that the statute provides a summary method for enforcing liens does not, in the absence of a provision to the contrary, prevent their enforcement by a bill in equity.[69]

The remedy upon a mechanics' lien and that upon the debt are distinct and concurrent and may be pursued at the same time,[70] or separately.[71] In states where the distinction between proceedings at law and in equity have been abolished, both remedies may be pursued in the same action,[72] including all provisional and 56. Civ. Code 1895, § 2816. Moultrie Lumber Co. v. Jenkins [Ga.] 49 S. E. 678.

57. Moultrie Lumber Co. v. Jenkins [Ga.] 49 S. E. 678.

58. Where affidavit invalid because taken before defendant's attorney, there is nothing to amend, and proceedings are properly dismissed. Moultrie Lumber Co. v. Jenkins [Ga.] 49 S. E. 678.

59. See 2 Curr. L. 883, n. 95.

60. Pub. Laws 1897, p. 251, c. 232, § 1. Oakland Mfg. Co. v. Lemieux, 98 Me. 488, 57 A. 795. Suit must be commenced within ninety days after the last materials are furnished [Rev. St. 1883, c. 91, § 34]. Foss v. Desjardins, 98 Me. 539, 57 A. 881.

61, 62. Oakland Mfg. Co. v. Lemieux, 98 Me. 488, 57 A. 795.

63. See 2 Curr. L. 878, § 5 B.

64. In Wisconsin the lien petition must be filed within six months after the last charge for furnishing material or work [Rev. St. 1898, § 3318]. Hutchins v. Bautch [Wis.] 101 N. W. 671. Evidence held to show commencement of suit within four months after materials were furnished. Bates Mach. Co. v. Trenton, etc., R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 684, 58 A. 935.

65. Allowed for deepening well and repairing pump and equipping it with frostproof cock. Hutchins v. Bautch [Wis.] 101 N. W. 671.

66. Hutchins v. Bautch [Wis.] 101 N. W. 671.

67. Mo. Rev. St. 1899, § 4160, providing that the time within which an act shall be done shall be computed by excluding the first day and including the last does not apply to Id., § 4218, requiring actions for foreclosure of liens to be brought within 90 days of the filing of the lien. Phoenix Planing Mill Co. v. Harrison [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 174.

68. See 2 Curr. L. 883, n. 1, 2.

69. Fla. Act May 30, 1901, p. 96, c. 4955, § 1, does not prevent bill in equity under Rev. St. 1902, §§ 1510, 1744. Futch v. Adams [Fla.] 36 So. 575.

70. By express provisions of Mills' Ann. St. Colo. § 2897. Hatcher v. Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. & Supply Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 267. A petition for a mechanic's lien may be prosecuted simultaneously with a suit at common law to recover the same debt from the contractor. Suit by subcontractor. Part of contract price still in hands of owner for satisfaction of liens attached. Hunt v. Darling [R. I.] 59 A. 398. Both remedies may be necessary to procure a full payment of the debt. Right to lien does not abrogate other remedies, since it is proceeding in rem, while others in personam. Id.

71. Hatcher v. Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. & Supply Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 267; Silliman v. Taylor [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 651.

72. Hatcher v. Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. & Supply Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 267. In Nebraska plaintiff may in the same action pray for and receive a personal judgment against a defendant for any amount found due under the contract and may also have a decree, adjudicating the existence and validity of auxiliary remedies obtainable in an action on the debt.[73] In the Federal courts proceedings to foreclose mechanics' liens are suits in equity, even though the state statutes creating the liens designate such proceedings as actions at law,[74] and where the case is removed, the pleadings should be recast so as to separate the two causes of action.[75]

Except in jurisdictions where the distinction between actions at law and suits in equity is preserved,[76] the fact that plaintiff is unable to establish his right to a lien does not prevent him from recovering a personal judgment.[77]

(§ 10) B. Parties.[78]—The original contractor is a necessary party to a suit by a subcontractor, laborer, or materialman.[79]

The wife is a necessary party to the foreclosure of a lien on community real estate,[80] and where she is not made a party until after the statutory time for commencing suit has expired, the court has no jurisdiction to foreclose.[81] She is also a proper but not a necessary party to a suit to foreclose a lien on a homestead, title to which was in the husband alone, for work done under a contract made with him.[82] Where she does not apply to intervene before judgment, it is not an abuse of discretion to refuse her subsequent application to vacate the judgment and permit her to defend on the same ground as that urged by her husband.[83]

There is a conflict of authority as to the necessity or propriety of joining sureties on the contractor's bond.[84]

a mechanic's lien, and an order of sale of the property on which it exists to satisfy the amount due upon the contract. In such an action an appeal bond in the form prescribed in case of appeal from judgment for the payment of money held sufficient. Maloney v. Johnson McLean Co. [Neb.] 100 N. W. 423. The sale does not extinguish the judgment or debt unless the proceeds are sufficient to pay it in full. Id.

73. As attachment and garnishment. Hatcher v. Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. & Supply Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 267.

74. Hatcher v. Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. & Supply Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 267.

75. Where suit was proceeded with on original pleadings as suit in equity, without objection, a money judgment against defendant is not void, even if erroneous, and cannot be collaterally attacked. Hatcher v. Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. & Supply Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 267.

76. In the federal courts where the complaint in a suit to foreclose a mechanic's lien is insufficient for that purpose, it cannot be sustained for the purpose of allowing plaintiffs to recover a personal judgment against the person liable on the contract. Distinctions between law and equity preserved. Russell v. Hayner [C. C. A.] 130 F. 90.

77. In New York if the lienor fails for any reason to establish a valid lien in an action brought under the provisions of the lien law, he may recover judgment therein for such sums as are due him, or which he might recover on an action on a contract against any party to the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 3412]. Koeppel v. Macbeth, 97 App. Div. 299, 89 N. Y. S. 969. The statute is not mandatory and plaintiff may, if he so desires, enforce contract claims not covered by a valid lien in a subsequent suit. Judgment in foreclosure suit held not res adjudicata as to right to recover for breach of contract, and for work and materials for which plaintiff was not entitled to lien. Id. Though notice insufficient, may recover under claim for deficiency. Prayer demanding that plaintiffs "may have judgment against the defendant for any deficiency that may remain due them after such sale," held sufficient. Ryan v. Train, 95 App. Div. 73, 88 N. Y. S. 441; Gilmour v. Colcord, 96 App. Div. 358, 89 N. Y. S. 689.

78. See 2 Curr. L. 884.

79. Mo. Rev. St. 1899, § 4211, requires all parties to the contract to be made parties and provides that all interested may be made parties. Id., § 4223, requires contractor to defend such actions. Rumsey & Sikimeier Co. v. Pieffer [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 1027. In proceedings to adjust the rights of parties claiming liens and the right of a subcontractor under an unaccepted order on the owner for the amount of his claim. Wheelock v. Hull [Iowa] 100 N. W. 863.

80. Northwest Bridge Co. v. Tacoma Shipbuilding Co. [Wash.] 78 P. 996.

81. Action must be commenced against both spouses within time limited. Northwest Bridge Co. v. Tacoma Shipbuilding Co. [Wash.] 78 P. 996.

82. Lien for drilling well, defended on ground of nonperformance. Hunt v. McDonald [Wis.] 102 N. W. 318.

83. Hunt v. McDonald [Wis.] 102 N. W. 318.

84. In Texas: Sureties on a bond against liens are proper, though not necessary, parties and their rights may be adjusted therein. Haberzettie v. Dearing [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 539.

In Oklahoma are not proper parties to an action by a materialman. Ferguson v. Stephenson-Brown Lumber Co. [Okl.] 77 P. 184.

The proceedings are not binding on one not a party thereto,[85] but are prima facie proof, and admissible in evidence against him.[86]

The petition cannot be amended so as to include a necessary omitted party after the time for commencing suit to enforce the lien has expired.[87]

(§ 10) C. Pleading, practice, and evidence. Pleading.[88]—Applications of the general rules of pleading will be found elsewhere.[89]

The complaint must set forth the substance of the contract under which the work was done,[90] must allege that defendant owned the land when the contract was executed,[91] and must directly allege that the material was used in the construction of the building.[92] A complaint sufficiently describing the property, fixing the time and manner of the labor, the amount due, and that the lien was filed within the statutory time, and complying with the requirement of ordinary suits in equity, is sufficient.[93] The description of the property is sufficient if it points out and indicates the premises so that they can be identified.[94]

Liquidated damages provided for in the contract for delay in completing the work, defects in the work, and damages caused by its abandonment, may be set off against the builder's claim.[95]

In Alabama any defendant may put in issue the existence of a lien.[96] It is error to enter judgment establishing the existence of the lien claimed when the jury does not respond to such issue, but renders a verdict for plaintiff on the issue of indebtedness only.[97]

Practice.[98]—In an action to enforce a lien, where it is shown by counterclaim or cross-complaint that there is a demand for affirmative relief, either party is entitled to a trial by jury on that issue, if in the nature of an action at law.[99] A suit to enjoin a foreclosure suit need not be brought in the county where the decree was rendered, where it is merely ancillary to proceedings to have plaintiff's lien declared superior, and the validity of the decree is not attacked.[1]

85. Hammond v. Darlington [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 446.

86. In action for damages for destruction of buildings to which lien attached. Hammond v. Darlington [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 446.

87. Rumsey & Sikimeier Co. v. Pieffer [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 1027.

88. See 2 Curr. L. 882, 883, §§ 10a, 10b.

89. See Pleading, 2 Curr. L. 1178. Where the right of the owner to recoup damages is permissive an amendment operating to compel an election should be refused (See Comp. Laws, § 10710). Likewise where it will compel splitting a cause. Kilby Mfg. Co. v. Menominee Circuit Judge [Mich.] 101 N. W. 522. Complaint held to sufficiently show that plaintiffs furnished labor and materials in building houses which defendants accepted, and that defendants knew that plaintiffs were the parties with whom they were dealing, so that they were liable therefor, notwithstanding the withdrawal of one of the parties to the contract. Cochran v. Yoho, 34 Wash. 238, 75 P. 815. General denial held to put in issue question whether house had been completed according to contract, and to allow proof of nonperformance. Sherry v. Madler [Wis.] 101 N. W. 1095. In any event amendment should have been allowed if necessary. Id.

90. Rev. St. 1898, §§ 3320-3322. Where neither complaint or claim set forth new contract on which plaintiff finally recovered, but evidence of new contract was not disputed or objected to, both will be considered amended to conform to proofs as effectually as though formal amendments had been offered. Sherry v. Madler [Wis.] 101 N. W. 1095.

91. Petition sufficient. Badger Lumber Co. v. Muehlebach [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 546.

92. Ryndak v. Seawell, 13 Okl. 737, 76 P. 170. Since the foreclosure of the lien is only ancillary to the main cause of action, a general demurrer will not challenge a defect in this particular. No proper objection being taken either before or after pleading, it will be deemed to have been waived, and petition will be treated as amended on appeal. Id.

93. Robertson v. Moore [Idaho] 77 P. 218.

94. Description sufficient. Hammond v. Darlington [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 446.

95. Amendments properly allowed. Tenney v. Anderson Water, Light & Power Co. [S. C.] 48 S. E. 457.

96. Code 1896, § 2739. Goldstein v. Leake [Ala.] 36 So. 458.

97. Goldstein v. Leake [Ala.] 36 So. 458.

98. See 2 Curr. L. 882, 883, §§ 10A, 10B.

99. As on question of damages for unskillful construction. Not error to refuse it where it is demanded on ground that no facts were shown creating a lien. Robertson v. Moore [Idaho] 77 P. 218.

1. D. June & Co. v. Doke [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 402.

Evidence.[2]—The burden is on plaintiff to make good his lien against any or all of the properties against which he seeks to enforce it.[3] He must prove the existence of the contract between defendant and the owner,[4] that defendant owned the land when the contract was executed,[5] and that the materials were used and actually went into the land.[6]

An allegation that plaintiff executed a bond conditioned to save defendant harmless from liens and is thereby estopped to maintain the action amounts to an admission of the existence and validity of his lien.[7]

(§ 10) D. Judgment, costs, and attorney's fees.[8]—A judgment in an action to foreclose a lien for labor and materials furnished under a written contract that plaintiff is not, upon the merits, entitled to foreclosure, or to a personal judgment for a balance claimed to be due him, is a bar to an action to recover for the same work and materials upon the theory of an implied contract.[9] Where the petition to enforce a lien for materials furnished a contractor fails to allege that the owner is personally liable therefor, or that the owner was indebted to the contractor in any sum when notified of plaintiff's claim, a judgment against the owner by default is void.[10]

In Indiana a suit to foreclose a mechanic's lien may be appealed notwithstanding the fact that the amount claimed does not equal the amount necessary to give jurisdiction to the appellate court.[11]

Personal judgments against the owner of property on which a lien exists are, in the absence of privity of contract, allowed only when authorized by statute.[12] In the absence of privity of contract, the right to a personal judgment under the statute depends upon the existence of a right to a lien.[13]

Costs and attorney's fees.[14]—In some states, attorney's fees may be allowed in the foreclosure of mechanic's and laborer's liens.[15] Where a junior lienor makes no objection to the erroneous inclusion of attorney's fees in the amount of the prior lien, he is not entitled to costs on appeal on modification of the judgment so as to exclude them.[16]

(§ 10) E. Sale.—Where one person has a prior lien on a building and lot

2. See 2 Curr. L. 882, 883, §§ 10A, 10B.

3. Bradley v. Gaghan, 208 Pa. 511, 57 A. 985.

4. Evidence sufficient. Badger Lumber Co. v. Muehlebach [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 546. Demurrer to evidence should be sustained where it is not. Hengstenberg v. Hoyt [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 539. Evidence insufficient to show contract. Jose v. Hoyt [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 468. Statement of counsel in making objection held not an admission that there was an original contractor. Id. The lien paper itself is not evidence of such a contract. Does not prove itself. Id.

5, 6. Evidence sufficient. Badger Lumber Co. v. Muehlebach [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 546. Evidence held to justify peremptory instruction for plaintiff. Id. Evidence sufficient to support finding that material furnished by subcontractor was sold and delivered to be used by the contractor for the several buildings of the defendant owner. Laev Lumber Co. v. Auer [Wis.] 101 N. W. 425.

7. Badger Lumber Co. v. Muehlebach [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 546.

8. See 2 Curr. L. 882, 883, §§ 10A, 10B.

9. Maeder v. Wexler, 90 N. Y. S. 598.

10. Proceedings before justice under Miss. Code 1892, c. 77. Smith v. Frank Gardener Hardware Co., 83 Miss, 654, 36 So. 9.

11. Acts 1901, p. 566, c. 247 (Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 1337f), as amended by Acts 1903, p. 280, c. 156, applies only to civil cases in which the essential object is the recovery of a money judgment. Knowlton v. Smith [Ind.] 71 N. E. 895. Suit is not within jurisdiction of justice of the peace, and hence Acts 1901, p. 566, c. 247 (Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 1337f), prohibiting appeals to supreme and appellate courts in suits within justice's jurisdiction does not apply. Id.

12. Muller v. McLaughlin [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 687.

13. Provisions of Tex. Rev. St. 1895, arts. 3305, 3307, authorizing retention of amount due contractor on notice of claim, and its payment to claimant in certain cases, do not authorize personal judgment against owner unless right to lien exists. Muller v. McLaughlin [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 687.

14. See 2 Curr. L. 883, § 10B.

15. Robertson v. Moore [Idaho] 77 P. 218. May be fixed by court in absence of evidence as to their value. Pearce v. Albright [N. M.] 76 P. 286.

16, 17. D. June & Co. v. Doke [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 402.

and another has a prior lien on machinery therein, it is proper to order the building and the machinery to be sold separately.[17]

§ 11. Indemnification against liens.[18]—Laborers and materialmen may maintain an action on a bond given to secure the performance of a contract, wherein the contractor agrees to pay their claims, when the parties evidently intended to secure them as well as the owner, even though they are not specifically named, and no consideration passes directly from them to the surety.[19] A subcontractor injured by a breach of the contract cannot be deprived of his right to recover on the bond by any act of the owner.[20]

The surety is not released because the owner withholds a part of the contract price in accordance with the terms of his contract, or a sum due him as damages for delay in completing the contract,[21] nor because of mere irregularities in the manner of making payments.[22] Where the obligation runs to the owner and all persons who may be injured by the breach of the contract, the only limit to the surety's liability is the penalty named in the bond.[23] Interest may be recovered on the claims though the amount of recovery is thereby made to exceed the penalty.[24]

Where the contractor gives bond to secure the performance of the conditions of the contract, which requires him to furnish all materials and labor, the owner may sue thereon without having first paid, or suffered judgment for, the claims of materialmen asserting liens against the property for failure of the contractor to pay them.[25] A compensated surety company cannot escape liability for the failure of the owner to pay the contractor in full where he receives due credit for the balance due, which inures to the benefit of the surety.[26] A judgment obtained, in good faith and without fraud or collusion, by the owner against the contractor for breach of contract, estops his sureties in an action on the bond.[27]

Sureties on a contractor's bond furnishing him materials and becoming responsible for labor to be used by him in completing the contract have no prior lien on the amount due him, but stand in the same position as any other person furnishing labor and material.[28]

The filing of a mechanic's lien does not injure a landowner who is indebted to the contractor on the contract price in an amount equal to or greater than the lien, since he has it in his power to protect himself.[29] The law will not presume that the owner is injured and so given a right to resort to the indemnity from the mere fact that a lien has been filed,[30] but he must allege and show that he does not owe the contractor an amount equal to, or greater than, the amount of the lien.[31]

One furnishing provisions to a railroad contractor cannot recover on a bond given to the railroad to pay persons supplying such provisions, there being no privity.[32]

18. See 2 Curr. L. 886.

19. As where bond runs to owner and all persons who may be injured by any breach of its conditions. Getchell & Martin Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Peterson [Iowa] 100 N. W. 550.

20, 21. Getchell & Martin Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Peterson [Iowa] 100 N. W. 550.

22. Irregularities in manner of making payments held not to have released surety. Getchell & Martin Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Peterson [Iowa] 100 N. W. 550.

23, 24. Getchell & Martin Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Peterson [Iowa] 100 N. W. 550.

25. May regard the allowing claims to become charge on property as a breach. Friend v. Ralston, 35 Wash. 422, 77 P. 794.

26. Credited in action between owner and contractor. Friend v. Ralston, 35 Wash. 422, 77 P. 794.

27. Friend v. Ralston, 35 Wash. 422, 77 P. 794.

28. Contract not abandoned to owner. Evans v. Lower [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 294.

29, 30, 31. Badger Lumber Co. v. Muehlebach [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 546.

32. Armour & Co. v. Western Const. Co. [Wash.] 78 P. 1106.

MEDICINE AND SURGERY.[33]

§ 1. Public Regulation of the Business of Treating Disease (636).
§ 2. Regulation of the Keeping and Sale of Drugs and Medicines (638).
§ 3. Recovery of Compensation (638).
§ 4. Malpractice (638).
§ 5. Negligent Homicide by Physician (639).

§ 1. Public regulation of the business of treating disease.[34]—It is within the power of the state to prescribe such restrictions and regulations for the practice of dentistry[35] or medicine and surgery[36] as shall protect the people from the consequences of ignorance or incapacity, deception or fraud. This includes the power to determine what acts shall constitute the practice of the healing art, and to impose conditions on the exercise of the privilege.[37] Certificates or license

33. See 2 Curr. L. 887. See, also, Health, 3 Curr. L. 666; Census and Statistics, 3 Curr. L. 1590 (reporting births and deaths).

34. See 2 Curr. L. 887.

NOTE. What constitutes "practice of medicine" under regulating statutes: The solution of the question depends in part upon the particular statute involved, especially if such statute includes a definition of the term. Statutes requiring a license or certificate have been held to apply to magnetic healers (State v. Heath [Iowa] 101 N. W. 429; State v. Parks, 159 Ind. 211, 59 L. R. A. 190); empirics (Musser v. Chace, 29 Ohio St. 577; Nelson v. State, 22 Ky. L. R. 438, 57 S. W. 501, 50 L. R. A. 383); obstetricians (State v. Welch, 129 N. C. 579, 40 S. E. 120); midwives (People v. Arendt, 60 Ill. App. 89). As to Christian scientists and osteopaths, there is a conflict. The Nebraska statute is held to apply to Christian scientists (State v. Buswell, 40 Neb. 158, 58 N. W. 728, 24 L. R. A. 68); the contrary is held under the Rhode Island statute (State v. Myloid, 20 R. I. 632, 40 A. 753, 41 L. R. A. 428).

The following cases hold that osteopaths must comply with statutory requirements as to the practice of medicine: Little v. State, 60 Neb. 749, 84 N. W. 248, 51 L. R. A. 717; State v. Gravett, 65 Ohio St. 289, 87 Am. St. Rep. 605, 55 L. R. A. 791; Bragg v. State [Ala.] 58 L. R. A. 925; Jones v. People, 84 Ill. App. 453; People v. Jones, 92 Ill. App. 445; People v. Gordan, 194 Ill. 560, 62 N. E. 858, 88 Am. St. Rep. 165. The following hold that such statutes do not apply to osteopaths: State v. Biggs, 133 N. C. 729, 46 S. E. 401, 98 Am. St. Rep. 731, 64 L. R. A. 139; State v. Liffring [Ohio] 46 L. R. A. 334; Nelson v. State Bd. of Health, 22 Ky. L. R. 438, 57 S. W. 501, 50 L. R. A. 383; Hayden v. State, 81 Miss. 291, 33 So. 653, 95 Am. St. Rep. 471; State v. McKnight, 131 N. C. 717, 42 S. E. 850, 59 L. R. A. 187.

As to state regulation of the practice of osteopathy and Christian science as such, see note to State v. Biggs [N. C.] 98 Am. St. Rep. 751, 753.

A traveling optician who fitted and sold spectacles did not "treat, operate on or prescribe for any physical ailment" or injury or deformity, within the meaning of § 7 of Laws of 1899, p. 275, nor did his advertisements profess to cure or treat disease or injury by any drug or appliance, within the meaning of § 8 of the law, so as to subject him to the penalty of practicing thereunder without a license. People v. Smith, 208 Ill. 31, 69 N. E. 810.

35. California: Legislative regulations under which persons possessing proper qualifications shall be admitted to the practice of dentistry are a valid exercise of the police power to protect the public against incompetent persons. Ex parte Whitley, 144 Cal. 167, 77 P. 879. California dentistry law (St. 1901, p. 564, c. 175) is not unconstitutional because it exempts from the operation of its requirements those engaged in the practice of dentistry at the time of the passage of the act. Id. Nor does the act make an arbitrary or unconstitutional classification of persons permitted to practice after examination; the classification into graduates of reputable dental colleges, graduates of high schools who have served apprenticeships of four years, and licensed dentists who have practiced five years in other states, is within the power of the legislature to fix a reasonable standard of competency. Id. Judicial power is not conferred on the board of dental examiners by the provision that graduates of reputable dental colleges shall be admitted to examination on furnishing satisfactory evidence of graduation; nor is the board by this provision given arbitrary power to determine what colleges are "reputable." Id.

Kentucky: The provision of the laws creating the State Dental Association and regulating the practice of dentistry, which requires dentists then practicing to register and obtain certificates, and penalizes a violation thereof, is constitutional. Wilson v. Com. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 427.

Washington: The act regulating the practice of dentistry does not confer legislative power on the state board of dental examiners. [Sess. Laws 1893, c. 55, p. 90]. In re Thompson [Wash.] 78 P. 899. The requirement of this act that applicants for examination must have diplomas from some dental college in good standing is reasonable and valid. Id.

36. Iowa: State v. Heath [Iowa] 101 N. W. 429; State v. Edmunds [Iowa] 101 N. W. 431.

The California act (Feb. 27, 1901), establishing a State Board of Medical Examiners, is not unconstitutional, though it authorizes the appointment of members by various medical societies of the state; no special or exclusive right, privilege or immunity, within the meaning of Const. art. 1, § 21, or art. 4, § 25, subd. 19, is granted by the act. Ex parte Gerino, 143 Cal. 412, 77 P. 166.

37. Code, §§ 2579, 2580, 2581, defining "physicians," "practice of medicine," and fees may be required.[38] Statutory provisions fixing standards of proficiency of applicants for certificates, which do not discriminate between different schools of medicine, are valid.[39] Constructions of various regulatory acts are given in the note.[40]

Prosecutions for violations of regulatory acts.[41]—The offense of practicing without a certificate is of a continuing nature, and a conviction for a particular act of practice bars prosecutions for previous acts.[42] Under an indictment for practicing medicine without a license, the crime is proven by proving special acts of practice of the defendant, and the state need not elect a particular act on which to base the prosecution.[43] If a statute regulating the practice of medicine does not declare the acts which shall constitute "practicing medicine" or "publicly professing to do so," it is for the courts to say what facts or proof bring a particular case within the statute.[44] Under statutes which denounce the public profession of skill in the art of healing by persons who do not hold the required certificate, proof of actual treatment is not in all cases necessary.[45] Holdings on the sufficiency[46] and relevancy[47] of evidence and on the sufficiency of the indictment[48] are given in the notes.

"itinerant physicians," and requiring a certificate or license, construed and upheld. State v. Edmunds [Iowa] 101 N. W. 431.

38. State v. Edmunds [Iowa] 101 N. W. 431. The annual license fee of $250, imposed on itinerant physicians by § 2581, is not unreasonable. Id. The title of the act, "Of the practice of medicine," is broad enough to include the license provision. Id. If the license be treated as a tax, the declaration that it is to be paid to the state treasurer for the use of the state sufficiently states its object and purpose, within Const. art. 7, § 7. Id.

39. Section 2576 of the Iowa Code, prescribing examinations, is valid. Under this section magnetic healers who do not use medicines are not required to show proficiency in materia medica and therapeutics. State v. Heath [Iowa] 101 N. W. 429. Act Feb. 27, 1901, § 5, requiring for a certificate to practice medicine, a diploma from a college requiring the same standard of scholarship as that required by the Association of American Medical Colleges for that year, does not require that college to have the same course of study or other requirements as the colleges of the association; there is no discrimination against other schools. Ex parte Gerino, 143 Cal. 412, 77 P. 166. The standard thus fixed is sufficiently definite and certain. Id.

40. The Michigan State Veterinary Board has no power, under Pub. Acts 1899, No. 191, to determine whether a veterinary school or college is "regular," since any institution organized in compliance with Comp. Laws 1897, c. 218, is regular. The issuance of certificates to graduates of such schools is not discretionary with the board. Wise v. State Veterinary Board [Mich.] 101 N. W. 562. One who prior to 1902 had not obtained the required certificate for the practice of dentistry is not of the excepted class, but is included in the express terms of the act of that year, raising the standard for the granting of a certificate. Ohio v. Board of Dental Examiners, 5 Ohio C. C. [N. S.] 55. Sayles' Rev. Civ. St. art. 5049, imposing an occupation tax on traveling medical specialists held not to apply to a physician who had his home and headquarters at a certain place and maintained offices and clerks at three other towns which he visited periodically. Adams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 78 S. W. 935.

41. See 2 Curr. L. 888, n. 76.

42. The offense denounced by the Kentucky act regulating dentistry, which requires dentists practicing at the time of the enactment of the law to register and obtain a certificate, is of a continuing nature. Wilson v. Com. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 427.

43. Evidence sufficient to show that accused "practiced" without a license, contrary to Acts 1901, p. 115, c. 78. Payne v. State [Tenn.] 79 S. W. 1025.

44. 29 Stat. at L. 198, c. 313. Springer v. District of Columbia, 23 App. D. C. 59.

45. Where a "magnetic" healer was accused of practicing without a certificate, under Code, § 2580, and there was proof that he professed to treat a great number of diseases, the question of his guilt should have gone to the jury, though there was no evidence of actual treatment of any patient in the county. State v. Heath [Iowa] 101 N. W. 429.

46. Evidence insufficient to prove defendant a traveling specialist and not an ordinary practicing physician. Howe v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 78 S. W. 1064. A prosecution for violating 29 Stat. at L. 198, c. 313, regulating the practice of medicine in the District of Columbia, is supported by evidence that defendant held himself out as an expert in the treatment of alcoholism, maintained a sanitarium, and employed physicians who attended the patients under his direction. Springer v. District of Columbia, 23 App. D. C. 59.

47. Where defendant was charged with following the occupation of traveling specialist in 1903 without having paid the required license tax, the record of the commissioners' court showing the levy of such tax for 1902 was inadmissible. Howe v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 78 S. W. 1064. An advertising circular of a sanitarium for the treatment of alcoholism, referring to the

§ 2. Regulation of the keeping and sale of drugs and medicines.[49]—Statutes must be fully complied with.[50]

§ 3. Recovery of compensation.[51]—There can be no recovery for professional services by one who has not complied with statutory requirements.[52] Qualification of the physician under the statute will be presumed and the burden is upon him who denies license to practice.[53] In order to recover back money paid for treatment by one alleged to have been practicing in violation of law, the person treated must prove that he was induced to employ such person by the false representation that he was a practicing physician.[54] Evidence points are given in the note.[55]

§ 4. Malpractice.[56] Degree of care required.—The implied contract of a physician or surgeon is not to cure, but to treat the case with that degree of diligence and skill ordinarily used by the average physician in good standing, having regard to the state of the medical profession at the time.[57] Whether proper skill and care were used in the treatment of a particular case is to be determined by the testimony of medical experts,[58] and by reference to the doctrines of the particular school of practice to which the defendant belongs.[59] Failure to effect a cure is not necessarily evidence of negligence.[60] Failure to use reasonable care or skill in ascertaining the real cause of a patient's suffering, or the real nature of an injury, renders a physician liable.[61] Frequency or infrequency of visits is not alone conclusive on the question of negligence.[62] Custom or practice in the locality in the treatment of similar cases is the test.[63] A physician whose employment has terminated is under no further obligation to the patient.[64]

manager as an "M. D.," and the fact that he registered at a hotel as a "doctor," while not conclusive, are evidence on the issue whether he held himself out as a practitioner. Springer v. District of Columbia, 23 App. D. C. 59.

48. Indictment following the language of Code, § 2581, prohibiting itinerant physicians from practicing without a license, held not duplicitous, and to state an offense under the statute. State v. Edmunds [Iowa] 101 N. W. 431.

49. See 2 Curr. L. 888.

50. Under Laws 1900, p. 1479, c. 667, § 196, requiring druggists, among other things, to make statements to the State Board of Pharmacy showing their employes' registration and qualifications, and to pay a fee for a certificate, payment of the fee without filing the required statement is no defense to an action for the statutory penalty. Bigelow v. Drummond, 90 N. Y. S. 913.

51. See 2 Curr. L. 888.

52. Physician who has failed to register according to Pol. Code 1895, §§ 1479, 1480 cannot recover. Murray v. Williams [Ga.] 48 S. E. 686.

53. Allegation, in action to recover for services, that plaintiff was a "regular, practicing physician," held sufficient without alleging compliance with statutory provisions. Cather v. Damerell [Neb.] 99 N. W. 35.

54. Gaither v. Lindsey [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 225.

55. Evidence insufficient to warrant verdict for plaintiff in action to recover for services rendered as physician. Abrahams v. Koch, 88 N. Y. S. 148. Evidence in action against county for medical services held to sustain verdict for $750, the amount claimed reasonable by the county. Rutherford v. Bath County [Ky.] 80 S. W. 815. In an action for services, evidence of services to another patient at the same house during the same period is irrelevant. Kwiecinski v. Newman's Estate [Mich.] 100 N. W. 391. A physician is competent to testify as to the reasonable value of services and medicines for a person since deceased, the items being proven by an account book. Id.

56. See 2 Curr. L. 889.

57. Evidence held not to show improper treatment of fractured limb. Bigney v. Fisher [R. I.] 59 A. 72. In an action for malpractice by a dentist, the aggravation of plaintiff's injury by delay in consulting a physician, the delay being advised by the defendant, may be considered. Mernin v. Cory [Cal.] 79 P. 174.

58. Bigney v. Fisher [R. I.] 59 A. 72. If a method of treatment is shown to be as suitable and proper for a dislocation of the clavicle as for a fracture, it cannot be said to be negligent, though there was an erroneous diagnosis. Tomer v. Aiken [Iowa] 101 N. W. 769.

59. Spead v. Tomlinson [N. H.] 59 A. 376.

60. As where it is shown that reduction of a dislocation of the clavicle is difficult and the results not always satisfactory under any kind of treatment. Tomer v. Aiken [Iowa] 101 N. W. 769.

61. Failure to discover a fracture of elbow and dislocation of shoulder. Manser v. Collins [Kan.] 76 P. 851.

62, 63, 64. Tomer v. Aiken [Iowa] 101 N. W. 769.

Malpractice by nonmedical treatment.—Any person who holds himself out as a healer of disease and accepts employment as such is held to the duty of reasonable skill in the exercise of his vocation.[65] Thus one holding himself out as a magnetic healer is liable for damages resulting from a want of ordinary care or skill in treating a patient,[66] and in such case plaintiff need not prove that the method of treatment used was not proper or usual in magnetic healing.[67] An ordinary physician who does not claim or pretend to know anything of the practice of magnetic healing is competent to testify as to whether the treatment given by a magnetic healer was proper in any case.[68] But it is held that the standard of care to be applied to a Christian science healer is the care, skill and knowledge of the ordinary Christian scientist, not that of the ordinary physician.[69] There can be no recovery for injuries resulting from treatment by Christian science methods, on the ground that such treatment is contrary to public policy, if it appears that the giving of such treatment was not illegal, and that plaintiff voluntarily and intelligently consented to the use of such methods.[70]

A few holdings as to pleading,[71] evidence,[72] damages,[73] and questions of law and fact[74] peculiarly applicable to actions for malpractice, are given in the notes. See appropriate title for full treatment.

§ 5. Negligent homicide by physician.[75]—Negligence resulting in the death of the patient may render the practitioner criminally liable.[76]

65, 66, 67, 68. Longan v. Weltmer, 180 Mo. 322, 79 S. W. 655.

69. Evidence held not to show a departure from Christian science methods in treatment of appendicitis. Spead v. Tomlinson [N. H.] 59 A. 376. Held, also, that an action for deceit based on defendant's statement that he could and would cure plaintiff could be successfully maintained only on allegation and proof of a false representation made with a fraudulent intent. Id.

Note: In Spead v. Tomlinson, supra, the court seems to extend to Christian scientists the rule that, in cases involving the liability of medical practitioners, where there are distinct and differing schools of practice, treatment given by a physician in a given case is to be tested by the general doctrines of his school, and not by those of other schools. See Patten v. Wiggin, 51 Me. 594, 81 Am. Dec. 593; Carpenter v. Blake, 60 Barb. 488, 513, 514.

In Longan v. Weltmer, supra, the court apparently refuses to extend this rule to magnetic healers, and holds that an ordinary physician may testify whether the treatment by a magnetic healer was proper in any case. A general rule of negligence is applied and it is said that if defendants "undertook to cure plaintiff of her maladies, and by negligent and unskillful treatment * * * she sustained the injuries sued for, she was entitled to recover just as she would be entitled to recover damages for the negligent or unskillful performance of any other kind of contract."

70. Spead v. Tomlinson [N. H.] 59 A. 376.

71. A petition alleging that defendant "is a physician and surgeon engaged in the practice of medicine and surgery * * * and has been so engaged for several years last past" is sufficient without alleging that he was a physician at the time he treated the plaintiff. Bower v. Self, 68 Kan. 825, 75 P. 1021. A complaint in an action against a dentist which charges negligence in (1) removing two teeth unnecessarily, (2) allowing portions to remain in gum, and (3) putting in defective and improperly fitted bridgework, and alleges that these acts caused abscesses on the gum and necrosis of the jawbone, states but one cause of action and the various acts are properly set forth in one count. Brown v. Cady, 91 App. Div. 415, 86 N. Y. S. 959. The complaint is sufficiently definite and certain. Id.

72. In malpractice the treatment given plaintiff after defendant gave up the case may be shown. Bower v. Self, 68 Kan. 825, 75 P. 1021. Photographs by the X-ray process are admissible to describe injuries, though admitted not to be infallible. Miller v. Minturn [Ark.] 83 S. W. 918. Where plaintiff claimed a "clicking" jaw was caused by dentist's malpractice, evidence by defendant showing other persons similarly afflicted was irrelevant. Mernin v. Cory [Cal.] 79 P. 174. Where it appeared that defendant did not immerse his instruments in boiling water, a hypothetical question as to the effect of a puncture by an instrument not properly sterilized was not without foundation in the evidence. Bower v. Self, 68 Kan. 825, 75 P. 1021.

73. Damages may be recovered for mental suffering which is an element or consequence of physical pain caused by a negligent failure to ascertain the cause of suffering and to alleviate it. Manser v. Collins [Kan.] 76 P. 851. But mental suffering arising wholly in the mind and not a part of the pain naturally attendant on an injury is not an element of damage. Id.

74. Whether a diagnosis was correct, and the treatment given proper, are questions to be determined by the jury, from the expert testimony; as whether an injury was a dislocation or fracture of the clavicle. Tomer v. Aiken [Iowa] 101 N. W. 769.

75. Only a few illustrative cases are here

MERCANTILE AGENCIES.[77]

MERGER IN JUDGMENT; MERGER OF CONTRACTS; MERGER OF ESTATES, see latest topical index.

MILITARY AND NAVAL LAW.[78]

§ 1. Military and Naval Organization, Maintenance and Enlistment (640).
A. Regular Army and Navy (640). Pay and Subsistence (640). Commutation for Quarters (642). Sea Rations (643). Expenses and Mileage (643). Retirement (644).
B. Militia (645).
§ 2. Regulations and Discipline; Promotion and Discharge (645).
§ 3. Military and Naval Tribunals (647).
§ 4. Civil Status, Rights and Liabilities of the Military and Navy (649).
§ 5. Martial Law (649).
§ 6. Soldiers' Homes, and Indigent Soldiers (649).

§ 1. Military and naval organization, maintenance and enlistment. A. Regular army and navy.[79] Enlistment.[80]—A minor cannot lawfully be enlisted in any branch of the military or naval service without the consent of his parents,[81] and one who has so enlisted by misrepresenting his age will be discharged by writ of habeas corpus at their suit.[82]

Pay and subsistence.[83]—The act of March 3, 1899, provides that naval officers shall receive the same rate of pay as army officers of corresponding rank,[84] but this does not operate to reduce the pay which, but for its passage, would have been received by any such officer at the time of its passage or thereafter.[85] The latter provision applies only to officers in the navy at the time of its passage,[86] given; for full treatment, see Homicide, 3 Curr. L. 1643.

NOTE. Ordinary physicians: It is held by some courts that a person who prescribes for or gives medicine to another with the honest intention and expectation of curing him is not guilty of manslaughter, though death, unexpected by him, results. State v. Schulz, 55 Iowa, 628, 8 N. W. 469, 39 Am. Rep. 187; Com. v. Thompson, 6 Mass. 134; Rice v. State, 8 Mo. 561; Robbins v. State, 8 Ohio St. 138; Coywood v. Com., 7 Ky. L. Rep. 224; State v. Reynolds, 42 Kan. 320, 22 P. 410, 16 Am. St. Rep. 483. But if the physician was guilty of gross negligence, or foolhardy presumption, and death results, he is guilty of manslaughter. Com. v. Pierce, 138 Mass. 165, 52 Am. Rep. 264. See, also, State v. Power, 24 Wash. 34, 63 P. 1112; Dresbach v. State, 38 Ohio St. 365; State v. Wagner, 78 Mo. 644, 47 Am. Rep. 131; State v. Gile, 8 Wash. 12, 35 P. 417.—See note in 61 L. R. A. 289, from which cases here cited are taken.

76. "Prayer of faith" healers, and Christian scientists: Where the leader of a community was indicted for manslaughter for causing the death of a member by neglecting to give him proper attention and care, and it appeared that prayer was relied on exclusively to cure the disease, diphtheria, from which he was suffering, an instruction which permitted the jury to act upon their own beliefs as to the efficacy of prayer to cure disease, in determining whether or not the accused was negligent, either in relying exclusively upon such prayers, or in omitting to use them, was held erroneous. "If a person charged with crime were to be convicted or acquitted according to the belief of a jury upon such questions, it would be in direct opposition to our theory that government is one of law, not of men." State v. Sandford [Me.] 59 A. 597.

In Spead v. Tomlinson [N. H.] 59 A. 376, which was an action for negligence against a Christian science healer, it was held that an intelligent and voluntary consent to treatment by Christian science methods would preclude recovery of damages, but would not prevent conviction of manslaughter, if the patient had died from the negligent treatment.

77. No cases have been found for this subject since the last article. See 2 Curr. L. 890.

78. See 2 Curr. L. 890. See, also, War, 2 Curr. L. 2025; Pensions, 2 Curr. L. 1170.

79. See 2 Curr. L. 890, 891.

80. See 2 Curr. L. 890.

81. Rev. St. U. S. § 1117 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 813). Ex parte Houghton, 129 F. 239.

82. Ex parte Houghton, 129 F. 239.

83. See 2 Curr. L. 890.

84. 30 Stat. at L. 1007, c. 413 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1072). United States v. Thomas, 25 S. Ct. 102; rvg. 38 Ct. Cl. 113, 719; Irwin's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 87. The aid to a rear-admiral is entitled to the additional pay allowed aids to major-generals in the army. Rev. St. § 1261 gives aids to major-generals $200 per year in addition to the pay of their rank. United States v. Crosley, 25 S. Ct. 261, afg. 38 Ct. Cl. 82.

85. Act March 3, 1899, as amended by Act June 7, 1900, 30 St. L. 697. Richardson's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 182.

86. "Thereafter" does not mean persons who thereafter become officers, but refers to pay which might thereafter accrue to persons in the navy under any law then in existence. Richardson's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 182; Taylor's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 155.

[To be concluded.]

and was intended to preserve intact the right of such officers to navy pay where it is more than army pay.[87]

Army officers serving in the insular possessions of the United States and in Alaska, or serving beyond the limits of the United States, are entitled to ten per cent increased pay, over and above the rates of pay proper as fixed by law in times of peace,[88] and naval officers detailed for shore duty beyond seas are entitled to the same pay as army officers of equal rank detailed for duty in similar places.[89] Naval officers discharging their ordinary sea duties in such places are not, however, entitled to the increase.[90] Beyond the seas means beyond the continental limits of the United States.[91] Officers appointed to the navy from civil life are entitled to be credited with five years' constructive service on the date of their appointment for the purpose of determining their pay.[92]

Naval officers on shore duty receive fifteen per cent less pay than when on sea duty.[93] No service is to be regarded as sea service unless performed at sea under the orders of a department, and in vessels employed by authority of law.[94] Such vessels are only those owned or chartered by the government, or otherwise engaged in the service of the United States.[95] Whether an officer is on sea or shore duty must be determined by the order of assignment by the navy department in so far as it does not change the character of the service as defined by statute.[96] Hence an officer is not entitled to sea pay while occupied in traveling on duty partly on land and partly on a merchant vessel, for the purpose of reporting to the navy department, nor while traveling to join the ship to which he has been assigned for duty.[97] Where the duty partakes of sea service and shore

87. Colhoun's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 198. Hence a naval officer in service when the act was passed is entitled to navy pay when on leave if it exceeds army pay. Commander entitled to pay under Rev. St. § 1556. Act of 1899 and amendment did not affect right under this section. Id. An assistant surgeon in the temporary service of the navy when the act was passed and who is thereafter given a permanent commission is not entitled to the benefits of the act. Appointed under Act May 4, 1898 (30 Stat. L. 369, 380). Permanent commission under Act June 7, 1900 (31 Stat. L. 697). Taylor's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 155.

88. Act May 26, 1900, 31 Stat. L. 211, c. 586; 31 Stat. L. 903, c. 803 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 896). United States v. Thomas, 25 S. Ct. 102, rvg. 38 Ct. Cl. 113, 719. Pay proper means the fixed amount given to officers as distinguished from pay and emoluments, and the ten per cent should be computed on the officer's longevity pay, if any. Irwin's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 87.

89. 30 Stat. L. 1007, c. 413, § 13 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1072). United States v. Thomas, 25 S. Ct. 102, rvg. 38 Ct. Cl. 113, 719.

90. United States v. Thomas, 25 S. Ct. 102, rvg. Thomas's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 113, on rehearing 38 Ct. Cl. 719. Naval officers who served in Chinese waters during the Boxer troubles were not. Ryan's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 143.

91. Act March 3, 1901 (30 Stat. at L. 1108). Relates back to original act. Irwin's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 87. Term must receive the interpretation usually given to it in this country and England, and means outside the United States. Thus an officer on shore duty in the Philippine Islands is beyond seas within the meaning of the act. Must be interpreted as of the time it was enacted. Id.

92. Surgeon in temporary service of navy not entitled to such credit nor to mounted pay [Act March 3, 1899, § 13]. Taylor's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 155.

93. 30 Stat. at L. 1007, c. 413; U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1072. United States v. Thomas, 25 S. Ct. 102, rvg. 38 Ct. Cl. 113, 719.

94. U. S. Rev. St. § 1571; U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1079. United States v. Thomas, 25 S. Ct. 102, rvg. 38 Ct. Cl. 113, 719. Act of 1899 does not repeal or in any way modify this section. Ryan's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 143.

95. United States v. Thomas, 25 S. Ct. 102, rvg. 38 Ct. Cl. 113, 719, on other grounds.

96. United States v. Engard, 25 S. Ct. 322, in which the shore duty was referred to in the order of assignment as temporary and in addition to present duties. Ryan's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 143. The secretary of the navy has no authority to declare sea service to be shore service or vice versa. General order of July 23, 1849, relating to coast survey service. Taussig's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 104.

97. United States v. Thomas, 25 S. Ct. 102, rvg. 38 Ct. Cl. 113, 719, on other grounds. Officer detached from one vessel and assigned to duty on another is on shore duty while traveling from one to the other. Ryan's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 143. When an officer is detached from duty on a vessel in which he has performed sea service, his sea pay ceases and his shore pay begins, though he may thereafter travel by sea on duty, the facts of each particular case must be considered, and if from the whole case there is a preponderance in favor of either service, it must constitute the basis for fixing the rate of pay.[98] An officer temporarily absent from a ship in commission, to which he is attached, is entitled to sea pay.[99]

The classification of mounted and unmounted pay was intended in a general way to mark a distinction between the pay of cavalry and infantry officers.[1] Mounted pay is not an allowance, but pay proper, and the officer to whom it is assigned receives it whether he is actually mounted or not.[2] A naval officer is not entitled to it, though an army officer of corresponding rank would be.[3]

In time of war every army officer serving with troops operating against an enemy who exercises, under assignment in orders issued by competent authority, a command above that pertaining to his grade, is entitled to receive the pay and allowances of the grade appropriate to the command exercised.[4] The statute applies only to cases where such an order is necessary to impose the burden of the higher command upon the officer,[5] and not to those where the command temporarily devolves upon an officer without an order of assignment.[6]

By the Act of April 26, 1898, the pay proper of enlisted men is increased twenty per cent in time of war.[7]

By Act May 26, 1899, officers and enlisted men in the army who served during the war with Spain and were honorably discharged without furlough, are given extra pay at the rate of two months to those who served beyond the limits of the United States, and one month to those who did not.[8] The extra pay given to volunteers on muster out extends only to those who actually sever their connection with the military service, and not to one discharged for the purpose of enabling him to accept an appointment in the regular army.[9]

Commutation for quarters.—At all places where there are not public quarters, commutation therefor may be allowed.[10] Commutation for quarters is a form of reimbursement, and not a part of an officer's compensation.[11] Hence where he a merchant vessel from one post of duty at sea to another. Traveling to San Francisco and thence to Manila. Id. An officer in 1867 was not entitled to sea pay after being detached from his vessel on a foreign station and ordered to report to the secretary of the navy. Bishop's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 473.

98. Taussig's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 104; Ryan's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 143. The test of his right to sea pay is, was he deprived of the ease, comfort and economies of shore duty? Engard's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 712, afd. United States v. Engard, 25 S. Ct. 322. A naval officer on shore duty assigned to the temporary command of a vessel in the coast survey service, who continues on shore duty, does not live continuously on board, and is not subject to the restrictions, requirements and regulations of sea service, is not entitled to sea pay. Taussig's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 104.

99. Chief engineer of vessel in navy yard ordered to report for "temporary duty in connection with the inspection of steel tubes for boilers," in addition to his other duties, is entitled to sea pay while so engaged. Engard's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 712, afd. United States v. Engard, 25 S. Ct. 322.

1. Richardson's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 182.

2. Richardson's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 182; Crosley's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 82.

3. United States v. Crosley, 25 S. Ct. 261, rvg. 38 Ct. Cl. 82, and overruling Richardson's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 182.

4. Act April 26, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. p. 364, § 7). Humphrey's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 689. The term command refers not to the commander but to the commanded, i. e., the body of troops constituting the command. Id.

5. Humphrey's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 689. Assignment must be necessary and for the good of the service, and not merely for the purpose of increasing the officer's pay. Major in command assigned to command regiment not entitled. Id.

6. Humphrey's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 689.

7. 2 Sup. Rev. St. 746. Does not apply to those on retired list. Murphy's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 511.

8. 31 Stat. at L. 217. Hunt's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 704. Colonel of volunteers to whom no furlough was granted, and who remained at place of regimental enrollment in command of officers and men detailed for guard, and in charge of regimental property while rest of regiment was on furlough, is entitled to such extra pay. Id.

9. Acts Jan. 12, 1899 (30 Stat. at L. 784) and May 26, 1900 (31 Stat. at L. 217). Hull's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 407.

10. Acts June 18, 1878 (20 Stat. at L. p. 145, § 9) and June 23, 1879 (21 Stat. at L. 30). Hunt's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 704. By the army regulations it will be allowed only where an officer is detailed for duty without troops [Army Reg. 1336]. Id.

11. Odell's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 194; Irwin's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 87.

occupies government quarters, no commutation can be allowed him, even though they were not regularly assigned to him,[12] or the number of rooms assigned is less than the number to which he is entitled under the regulations.[13]

Sea rations.—Naval officers are not entitled to an allowance for sea rations.[14]

To fix liability upon the government for additional pay to officers appointed to staff duty under the Act of April 22, 1898, the president must appoint them, or assign them thereto in his discretion.[15] The secretary of war may act for him as his constitutional organ in making such assignments, but cannot delegate such authority to a subordinate.[16]

An act appropriating money for payment of arrears of pay of volunteers in the Civil War that may be certified to be due by the accounting officers of the treasury is a promise to pay such claims, and removes the bar of the statute of limitations.[17] The court of claims has jurisdiction to adjust such claims by judicial investigation.[18]

An act referring a claim of a naval officer for pay during the period of his dismissal to the court of claims, and waiving the statute of limitations, leaves the cause of action precisely as it would have been had suit been brought within six years after the cause of action accrued.[19]

Expenses and mileage.[20]—By the Act of March 3, 1899, army and naval officers traveling under orders are entitled to mileage at the rate of seven cents a mile, to be computed over the shortest usually traveled routes,[21] except that they are only entitled to their actual expenses when traveling to and from our island possessions in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.[22] From our island possessions to the United States means to the officer's destination.[23] By the Act of March 3, 1901, only actual expenses are allowed for travel outside the limits of the United States in North America.[24]

12. Not allowed where occupies room in marine barracks as guest, with understanding that he will vacate when required. O'Dell's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 194.

13. Irwin's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 87.

14. Allowance provided for by U. S. Rev. St. §§ 1578, 1585 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 1083, 1085), impliedly repealed by navy personnel act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. at L. 1007, c. 413, § 13; U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1072), providing that naval officers shall receive same pay and allowances, except forage, as received by army officers of corresponding rank. Gibson v. U. S., 194 U. S. 182, 48 Law. Ed. 926; Lowe v. U. S., 194 U. S. 193, 48 Law. Ed. 931, afg. 38 Ct. Cl. 170. Provision in last act and in act June 7, 1900 (31 Stat. at L. 684, 697), that it shall not operate to reduce pay, do not extend to allowances. Thomas's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 113, 719, rvd. 25 S. Ct. 102, on other grounds; Id., 38 Ct. Cl. 70; Richardson's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 182; Taylor's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 155; Ryan's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 143.

15. 30 Stat. at L. p. 362, § 10. Truitt's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 398.

16. Officer appointed to staff duty as adjutant general under order issued "by command" of the major-general of the army, but "by direction of the secretary of war," not assigned by president, and not entitled to staff rank and pay of major, though order recites it was made under the provisions of the statute. Truitt's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 398.

17. Act June 11, 1896 (30 Stat. L. 448). Sowle's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 525.

18. Sowle's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 525. The fact that act directs payment of such claims as "may be certified to be due by the accounting officers" does not give them exclusive jurisdiction. Simply act in usual capacity as auditing officers, leaving claimant his judicial remedy. Id.

19. Bishop's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 473. The fact that the act refers to claimant as a lieutenant-commander is not an admission that he was such officer in law or in fact during the period of his dismissal. Merely descriptive of the service claimed to have been rendered. Id.

20. See 2 Curr. L. 891, n. 9, 10.

21. 30 Stat. at L. 1068. Made applicable to naval officers by 30 Stat. at L. 1007. Thomas's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 70; Id., 38 Ct. Cl. 113, 719, rvd. 25 S. Ct. 102, on other grounds.

22. 30 Stat. at L. 1068. Thomas's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 70. Proviso became effective immediately on its approval, though contained in appropriation act. Chance's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 75. An officer ordered from Manila to Shanghai for duty there, and when such duty is performed to proceed to San Francisco, is not traveling from our island possessions, and is entitled to mileage. Thomas's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 70.

23. Officer traveling from Manila to his home in Illinois for discharge not entitled to mileage for land journey after reaching United States. Chance's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 75.

24. 2 Supp. R. S. 1533. Thomas's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 70.

An officer otherwise entitled thereto is not deprived of his right to mileage because he is ordered to proceed on transportation to be furnished him,[25] nor because he accepts such transportation and his expenses.[26] The secretary of the navy may direct that actual and necessary expenses only be allowed in cases where orders are given for travel to be performed repeatedly between places in the same vicinity.[27] It is within his discretion to determine what places are in the same vicinity, and his decision cannot be reviewed by the court.[28]

An officer honorably discharged from the service is entitled to transportation and subsistence from the place of his discharge to the place of his residence,[29] but this does not apply to one who immediately re-enters the service under a new appointment.[30]

It is the duty of the commanding officer of a fleet, squadron or vessel to send enlisted men to an Atlantic or Pacific port of the United States as their terms of enlistment expire, unless their detention for a longer period is, in his opinion, essential to the public interest.[31] This is not equivalent to a statutory salary and may be voluntarily waived by the enlisted man.[32]

Retirement. Officers.—Naval officers who served during the Civil War are entitled, on retirement, to the rank and three-fourths of the sea pay of the next higher grade.[33] The act applies only to actual officers who actually served during the war, or who at least voluntarily offered and obligated themselves to encounter its hardships and dangers.[34] The decision of a naval retiring board that claimant is not entitled to the benefits of the act on an agreed state of facts is subject to review by the courts.[35]

An officer on the retired list owes no duty to the government and his pay is not compensation for discharging the duties of that office, but is in the nature of an honorary pension.[36] Hence he may hold the office of chief clerk of the Department of Agriculture and draw the salaries of both offices.[37]

Enlisted men are entitled to be retired after thirty years of service with the rank which they then hold, and to receive three-quarters of the pay and allowances of such rank.[38] After retirement they are not a part of the army,[39] and are 25, 26. Thomas's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 70.

27. Act June 7, 1900 (30 Stat. at L. 685). Willitts's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 534.

28. Willits's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 534. When the travel between two places is not repeated, the officer is entitled to mileage. Id.

29. Rev. St. § 1289. Hull's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 407.

30. Volunteer officer discharged for purpose of, and who does, accept commission under Act March 2, 1899 (30 Stat. at L. p. 980, § 4), not entitled to commutation for constructive travel. Hull's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 407.

31. Rev. St. § 1422. Hunt's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 135.

32. Enlisted man who, in consideration of his being allowed to remain on vessel then about to sail for Asiatic waters, gives a waiver of all claim to transportation home should he refuse to re-enlist and be discharged in a foreign port, cannot maintain an action for cost of such transportation on being so discharged. Hunt's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 135.

33. 30 Stat. L. 1007, c. 413, § 11 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1025). Gibson v. U. S., 194 U. S. 182, 48 Law. Ed. 926, afg. 38 Ct. Cl. 170. A captain who so served is entitled, on retirement, to three-fourths of the sea pay of rear-admirals of the nine lower numbers of that grade, and not of the pay of those of the higher numbers. Rear-admirals of nine lower numbers entitled to same pay as brigadier-general in army [30 Stat. at L. 1005, c. 413 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 982)]. Gibson v. U. S., 194 U. S. 182, 613, 48 Law. Ed. 926; Lowe v. U. S., 194 U. S. 193, 48 Law. Ed. 931, afg. 38 Ct. Cl. 170.

34. Jasper's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 202. Not to one who was undergraduate at the Naval Academy. Id.

35. Jasper's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 202.

36. Geddes's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 428.

37. Not prevented by proviso in appropriation for department that no part of the money shall be paid to any one as additional salary. Geddes's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 428. Not forbidden by Act July 31, 1894 (28 Stat. at L. pp. 162, 205, § 2) and duties not incompatible. Id. A renunciation of his pay as a retired officer exacted by the accounting officers as a condition of his receiving the pay of the other office is no defense. Officers cannot increase, diminish or take away his salary. Officer also expressly retained right to test question. Id.

38. Act Feb. 14, 1885 (23 Stat. at L. 305), as amended by Act Sept. 30, 1890 (26 Stat. at L. 504). Murphy's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 511.

not entitled to the additional pay for length of service,[40] nor to the increase given enlisted men in time of war.[41]

. (§ 1) B. Militia.[42]—In Kentucky the militia can be ordered into active service only by the governor in the exercise of his discretion.[43] His determination in this regard is conclusive and the necessity for such action cannot be inquired into.[44] When they have been so called out they are in active service and entitled to pay, and also to subsistence,[45] which must come out of the general fund in the state treasury.[46] Expenses are properly paid on warrant of the auditor of public accounts, on vouchers signed by the adjutant general and the governor.[47] The auditor is not liable on his official bond for payments made on vouchers signed by persons purporting to be the governor and adjutant general, though they were wrongfully so acting, if the amount paid was in fact a just claim against the state.[48] Such expenses incurred while the militia remains in active service, and until regularly discharged from duty by order of their superior officer, are valid and just claims against the state.[49]

The soldiers must receive orders from their superiors.[50] They cannot be required to leave their posts, and take the risk of becoming deserters, until orders are issued to them through the regular channels of which they may take notice and properly obey.[51] In cases of doubt they are justified in remaining on duty.[52]

§ 2. Regulations and discipline; promotion and discharge.[53]—Subject to the constitution and the laws of congress, the president may establish such rules and regulations for the government of the army as he may deem essential to the maintenance of efficiency, discipline and honor.[54] The power to establish such rules necessarily implies a power to modify or repeal them.[55] A modification is effected and shown by the promulgation of a new or different rule or regulation upon the same subject.[56] The secretary of war is the regular constitutional organ of the president for the administration of the army,[57] and rules and orders publicly promulgated through him must be received as the acts of the executive, and as such be binding upon all within the sphere of his legal and constitutional authority.[58] He need not state that they emanate from the president, since he will be presumed to be acting with his approbation and under his direction.[59] Such

39. Murphy's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 511.

40. Given by Rev. St. § 1284. Does not remain continuously in army. Murphy's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 511.

41. By Act April 26, 1898, 2 Supp. Rev. St. 746. Murphy's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 511.

42. See 2 Curr. L. 891.

43. Ky. St. 1903, § 2672. Sweeney v. Com. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 639.

44. Sweeney v. Com. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 639.

45. Ky. St. 1903, § 2705. Sweeney v. Com. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 639.

46. Expenditures not limited to amount of military fund provided for by St. 1903, § 2704. Sweeney v. Com. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 639.

47. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 2707, adopting acts of Congress for government of the army in so far as they are applicable to the militia, and § 2705, payments of expenses are properly made on requisitions certified by adjutant general, and approved by governor, on warrant of auditor of public accounts. Sweeney v. Com. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 639.

48, 49. Sweeney v. Com. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 639.

50. Through adjutant general. Sweeney v. Com. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 639.

51. Sweeney v. Com. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 639.

52. Justified in remaining on duty in spite of proclamation of contestant for office of governor, who was thereafter declared elected, where they received no regular orders discharging them from active service, and state liable for their pay and expenses. Sweeney v. Com. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 639.

53. See 2 Curr. L. 892.

54, 55. In re Brodie [C. C. A.] 128 F. 665.

56. Par. 490, army regulations, requiring court to designate whether prisoner shall be confined at post or in penitentiary held qualified by footnote in court-martial manual of 1895, directing court to order confinement in such place as reviewing officer may direct in certain cases. In re Brodie [C. C. A.] 128 F. 665.

57, 58. In re Brodie [C. C. A.] 128 F. 665.

59. Where order promulgating army regulations stated that they were published by order of president for government of all concerned, and that promulgating manual for courts-martial made no reference to president, but stated that it was published for information and guidance of all con-regulations cannot be questioned because they may be thought unwise or mistaken.[60] A footnote to a rule or regulation is not less authoritative than the principal text, where the language and character of the two point to a single authorship and an intention to that effect.[61]

The mere designation of lineal or relative rank in the official army register does not fix and determine an officer's rank in the army and his right to promotion.[62] Hence an officer who does not claim to be entitled to any higher rank for the present cannot be held to have been deprived of any legal or vested right because he is deprived of a lineal or relative rank or position in such register that might be of benefit to him in a future claim to promotion.[63]

The president may summarily dismiss a cadet at West Point without a previous trial and conviction by court martial.[64]

Desertion.—One deserting from the army in time of peace and not in the face of the enemy cannot be tried or punished therefor after the expiration of two years from the time when the offense was committed.[65] One deserting in time of war deserts in the face of the enemy, even though not in the immediate presence of the opposing force.[66] cerned, both orders will be deemed to speak by same authority and to be of equal dignity. In re Brodie [C. C. A.] 128 F. 665.

60. In re Brodie [C. C. A.] 128 F. 665. The courts cannot substitute their own discretion and judgment for that of the executive department in matters properly confided to it. United States v. Root, 22 App. D. C. 419. Thus they will not interfere by mandamus to control and reverse the action of the president and war department in their work of reorganizing the army under the army reorganization act, in the absence of a plain and unmistakable departure from its provisions. Though there may be some question as to construction adopted by them, yet court will not reverse their action as against construction adopted by secretary of war, and by which rights of others may be affected. Duties discretionary [31 Stat. at L. 748, c. 192; U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 748]. Id.

61. Footnote in court-martial manual 1895, requiring court to order imprisonment in such place as reviewing authority may direct. In re Brodie [C. C. A.] 128 F. 665.

62. United States v. Root, 22 App. D. C. 419.

63. Petition for mandamus in which it was claimed that, by violation of army reorganization act, relative rank of petitioner had been reduced, denied because acts were discretionary and petitioner had been deprived of no vested legal right. United States v. Root, 22 App. D. C. 419. Such right is of a prospective nature only. Id.

64. Hartigan v. U. S., 25 S. Ct. 204, afg. 38 Ct. Cl. 346. Cadets are not army officers within the meaning of a statute prohibiting dismissals in time of peace except after trial and conviction by court-martial. U. S. Rev. St. § 1229 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 868). Word "officer" means commissioned officer [Rev. St. § 1342, art. 99 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 944)]. Id.

65. Limitation does not begin to run until expiration of term of enlistment and time during which he was absent from United States after desertion is to be deducted [26 Stat. at L. 54, c. 78 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 968)]. In re Cadwallader, 127 F. 881; Ex parte Townsend, 133 F. 74.

66. In re Cadwallader, 127 F. 881. A soldier deserting after the signing of the protocol between the United States and Spain but before the signing of the treaty deserted in time of peace. State of peace actually existed. Id. But see Ex parte Townsend, 133 F. 74.

NOTE. Habeas corpus—Jurisdiction of courts over deserter from army: A deserter was arrested more than two years after the expiration of the term of his enlistment. A statute prescribed that there should be no punishment after two years. Held, although the statute of limitations would probably be a good defense before the court-martial, yet a civil court could not grant a writ of habeas corpus, since the deserter had never been discharged from the army and was therefore still subject to the jurisdiction of a military tribunal. In re Cadwallader, 127 F. 881. By the early English statutes, desertion was a felony punishable in the civil courts. King v. Beal, 3 Mod. 124; see, also, Tyler v. Pomeroy, 8 Allen [Mass.] 480. But after the Revolution of 1688, the old statutes were superseded by the Mutiny Act, St. 1 W. & M. 5, § 2, which made desertion a purely military crime, punishable, even in time of peace, by a court-martial. In the United States the line between civil and military jurisdiction has always been maintained. Kurtz v. Moffitt, 115 U. S. 487, 29 Law. Ed. 458. The fifth amendment to the constitution of the United States expressly excepts "cases arising in the land and naval forces" from the general provision requiring the indictment of a grand jury before a person can be convicted of a capital or infamous crime. Thus these cases are to be dealt with by the Federal government. Art. 1, § 8, U. S. Const. An act of Congress (Rev. St. § 1342, art. 47) provides that deserters from the army are to be tried by court-martial. Courts-martial form no part of the judicial system of the United States and their proceedings within the limits of their jurisdiction can-

§ 3. Military and naval tribunals.[67]—The law governing courts-martial is found in the statutory enactments of congress, particularly in the articles of war, in regulations prescribed by executive authority, and in military usage and procedure.[68] Where charges have been issued and a court-martial having jurisdiction has been ordered, and the person charged has been held to answer, the jurisdiction attaching in favor of the court-martial will exclude that of a civil tribunal in which proceedings for a writ of habeas corpus may afterwards be commenced.[69] Where the petition for a writ of habeas corpus for the discharge of a minor, enlisting without his parent's consent, has been served, the court is not deprived of jurisdiction by his subsequent arrest by the military authorities on the charge of fraudulent enlistment.[70]

One becoming part of the naval service thereby subjects himself to the lawfully constituted courts-martial of such service, and clothes them with jurisdiction over his person and conduct.[71] A deserter who has never been discharged from the service is subject to the jurisdiction of a military tribunal,[72] and the civil court will not interfere before such tribunal has acted upon and decided the case.[73] The rule is not changed by the fact that the deserter pleads the statute of limitations.[74]

The supreme court of the District of Columbia has no jurisdiction in a habeas corpus proceeding to inquire into the grounds of the detention of a person unlawfully restrained of his liberty by officers of the navy or army outside of such district merely because the respective heads of the navy and war departments may be found and personally served with process therein.[75]

Statutory regulations governing the proceedings of courts-martial must be complied with.[76] In the navy a man may be arrested and confined for a period not exceeding ten days without an assigned reason being given.[77] A longer confinement can be imposed only by sentence of a court-martial, unless further confinement is necessary in the case of a prisoner to be tried by court-martial.[78] The accused is entitled to be furnished with a true copy of the charges, with specifications, at the time of his arrest, and no other charges than those so furnished can be urged against him at the trial.[79] When the commander of a not be controlled or revised by the civil courts. Dynes v. Hoover, 20 How. [U. S.] 65, 15 Law. Ed. 278; Ex parte Mason, 105 U. S. 696, 26 Law. Ed. 1213; Wales v. Whitney, 114 U. S. 564, 29 Law. Ed. 277. When the court-martial has no jurisdiction, its sentence is absolutely void, and the civil courts may by a writ of habeas corpus discharge the prisoner detained under such sentence. Ex parte Mason, supra. But that writ cannot be made to perform the functions of a writ of error. To warrant the discharge of the prisoner the sentence must not only be erroneous but absolutely void. Barrett v. Crane, 16 Vt. 246; Ex parte Reed, 100 U. S. 13, 25 Law. Ed. 538; Wales v. Whitney, 114 U. S. 564, 29 Law. Ed. 277. It would seem, therefore, that the court properly refused to interfere, for the petitioner, not having been discharged from the army, was still subject to the military jurisdiction.—4 Columbia L. R. 601.

67. See 2 Curr. L. 892.

68. In re Brodie [C. C. A.] 128 F. 665.

69. Ex parte Houghton, 129 F. 239. The civil tribunal must wait until the court-martial has concluded its proceedings and until the sentence imposed by it has been worked out. Id.

70. Ex parte Houghton, 129 F. 239.

71. Bishop's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 473.

72, 73, 74. In re Cadwallader, 127 F. 881.

75. Enlisted man in marine corps alleged to be unlawfully imprisoned by naval officer acting as governor of Guam. McGowan v. Moody, 22 App. D. C. 148. The officers of the navy are not the agents of the secretary of the navy, but both he and they are the agents and representatives of the president. Any authority exercised by secretary is solely as his representative. Allegation that prisoner is detained by his agents and in his control, though in custody of person unknown, who exercises his authority under secretary's orders is conclusion of law. Id. The court will take judicial notice of the powers and duties of the secretary of the navy under the constitution and laws. Id.

76. Smith's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 257.

77. Rev. St. p. 281, art. 24. Smith's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 257.

78. Smith's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 257.

79. Rev. St. p. 283, art. 43. Statute is mandatory, and unless furnished at time of arrest, sentence forfeiting prisoner's pay is void [Rev. St. p. 283, art. 43]. Smith's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 257.

squadron on a foreign station convenes a court to try an officer, it will be presumed on collateral attack, and nothing to the contrary appearing on the face of the order, that he properly exercised his discretion and that such trial could not be avoided without inconvenience to the service.[80]

One convicted by a court-martial cannot be confined in a penitentiary unless he could be so confined if convicted in a civil court for the same offense.[81] When the sentence prescribes imprisonment, the court is required to state whether the prisoner is to be confined in a penitentiary or at a post,[82] except that, where it is impossible to determine which form of imprisonment should be imposed under the articles of war, because of the absence of the statutes of the state or territory where the court is sitting, the court may, in case of doubt, order that the imprisonment be in such place as the reviewing authority may direct.[83] Whether the local law is impossible of ascertainment is a matter for the court itself to decide in each instance,[84] and its determination in this particular is conclusive and not open to collateral attack.[85]

The trial and acquittal of a soldier by the civil authorities on a charge of murder for killing a fellow soldier is no bar to his subsequent arrest and trial by court-martial for conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, though based on the same act.[86] The suspension of an officer for a few hours and his restoration to duty does not relieve him from arrest and conviction for the same offense at a subsequent period.[87]

A court-martial has jurisdiction of the case of a provost-marshal charged with embezzling money received from drafted men to be turned over to their substitutes, though he had no express authority to receive it and assumed to act in his individual capacity in that regard.[88] Such courts also have jurisdiction to sentence a prisoner to imprisonment for a term extending beyond the period of his enlistment.[89]

Courts-martial are lawful tribunals with power to finally determine any case over which they have jurisdicton.[90] They act only in response to the call of a superior authority, and their judgments are inoperative until approved by it.[91] When so approved they are not open to review by civil tribunals, except for the purpose of ascertaining whether the military court had jurisdiction of the person and subject-matter,[92] or whether it has exceeded its powers in the sentence pro-

80. Bishop's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 473.

81. 97th article of war (Rev. St. p. 239). In re Brodie [C. C. A.] 128 F. 665.

82. Army Reg. 1895, par. 940 (Regulations 1901, par. 1040). To be guided in its determination by 97th article of war. In re Brodie [C. C. A.] 128 F. 665.

83. Army Reg. 1895, par. 940, note (Reg. 1901, par. 1040). In re Brodie [C. C. A.] 128 F. 665. Nothing in character of court to prevent such regulation. Id.

84, 85. In re Brodie [C. C. A.] 128 F. 665.

86. Trial under 62nd article of war [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 957]. In re Stubbs, 133 F. 1012. Charge of assault with rifle and infliction of mortal wound on fellow soldier held to sufficiently allege an offense within such article. Id.

87. Suspension not a punishment but an arrest. Bishop's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 473.

88. Sentence of court that money be turned over to military authorities valid. Colman's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 315. Where only a part of the money seized by the military authorities was found by the court-martial to have been embezzled, government has no right to retain the balance. Id.

89. Where president has fixed 10 years as maximum imprisonment pursuant to Act Sept. 27, 1890, c. 998, 26 Stat. at L. 991 (Comp. St. 1901, p. 969). In re Stubbs, 133 F. 1012.

90. Ex parte Townsend, 133 F. 74; Bishop's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 473.

91. Until then are interlocutory and inchoate only. In re Brodie [C. C. A.] 128 F. 665.

92. Ex parte Townsend, 133 F. 74; Bishop's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 473. Its judgments are not open to review by habeas corpus on the ground that prosecution for the offense of which the prisoner was convicted was barred by limitations. Defense is one to the merits, not affecting jurisdiction. Limitation on prosecutions for desertion prescribed by 103rd article of war. Ex parte Townsend, 133 F. 74. The limitation is not absolute, and whether it applies is a matter to be determined by the court-martial. Id.

nounced.[93] Neither are they open to collateral attack, where the court has cognizance of the charges and jurisdiction of the person of the accused.[94]

The judicial power of the president in passing on the sentence of a court-martial cannot be delegated, but he may avail himself of the services of a subordinate officer to aid him in the consideration of the proceedings and sentence.[95] His personal knowledge of the facts disclosed by the record will be presumed from his approval.[96] The officer convening the court-martial need not approve or disapprove the sentence, where the action of the president is required by law.[97]

§ 4. Civil status, rights and liabilities of the military and navy.[98]—Civil courts of a state have, in time of peace, general jurisdiction over persons in the military service of the United States who are accused of a capital crime or of any offense against the person of a citizen committed within such state.[99] On a habeas corpus hearing a Federal court will not, on conflicting evidence, determine the guilt or innocence of the accused.[100]

One enlisting in the navy does not thereby lose his actual or legal residence.[101]

§ 5. Martial law.[102]

§ 6. Soldiers' homes, and indigent soldiers.[103]

MILITIA; MILLS AND DAMS, see latest topical index.

MINES AND MINERALS.

§ 1. General Common Law Principles (650).
A. Public Ownership (650).
B. Private Ownership; Right of Freehold Tenants of Less than Fee (650).
§ 2. Acquisition of Mining Rights in Public Lands (650).
A. What Lands May be Located (650).
B. Who May Locate (651).
§ 3. Mode of Locating and Acquiring Patent (651).
A. Making and Perfecting Location (651). Lode Claims (652). Oil Land (653).
B. Maintaining Location; Forfeiture, Loss or Abandonment (653).
C. Relocation (655).
D. Proceedings to Obtain Patent; Adverse Claims (655). Suits to Determine Adverse Claims (656).
§ 4. Ownership or Estate Obtained by Claim, Location and Patent; Apex Rights (657). Joint Tenants (658). Extralateral Rights (659). Boundary Lines and Monuments (661). Duty to Protect Owner of Surface (662).
§ 5. Right to Mine on Private Land Thrown Open to Public (662).

---

93. Ex parte Townsend, 133 F. 74; Bishop's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 473.

94. In re Brodie [C. C. A.] 128 F. 665. Not for alleged errors and irregularities in its proceedings. Colman's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 316. Judgment as to whether statute of limitations applies. Ex parte Townsend, 133 F. 74.

95. Bishop's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 473.

96. Where he wrote on abstract of case "Approved," with his signature, and secretary of the navy notified officer that sentence had been approved by the president, his personal action will be inferred. Bishop's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 473.

97. Under Act July 17, 1862 (12 Stat. at L. 605). Bishop's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 473.

98. See 2 Curr. L. 892.

99. Rev. St. U. S. § 1342, art. 59 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 955). United States v. Lewis, 129 F. 823.

100. United States v. Lewis, 129 F. 823. Soldiers under indictment for murder in a state court for shooting a civilian, who had been stealing from a military post, will not be discharged where the evidence as to their guilt is conflicting. Id.

A Federal court or judge has authority to grant a writ of habeas corpus for the purpose of inquiring into the cause of the restraint of the liberty of any prisoner held in custody under the authority of a state, under an indictment or otherwise, whenever it is alleged that he is in custody for an act done or omitted in pursuance of a law of the United States, or is in custody in violation of the constitution, or a law or treaty of the United States, and to proceed in a summary way to determine the facts, and thereupon to dispose of the party as law and justice requires. United States v. Lewis, 129 F. 823. The prisoner should not, however, be discharged in advance of his trial in the state court except in cases of peculiar urgency, or where the state court has no jurisdiction (Id.), and even after final determination of his case in the state court should be left to his remedy by writ of error from the supreme court of the United States (Id.).

101. For purpose of suing for divorce. Radford v. Radford [Ky.] 82 S. W. 391.

102. See 2 Curr. L. 892. See note to Commonwealth v. Shortall, 65 L. R. A. 193, and see 2 Curr. L. 800.

103. See 2 Curr. L. 892.

§ 6. Private Conveyances or Grants of Mineral Rights in Lands (663).
§ 7. Leases (665).
§ 8. Working Contracts (671). Drainage (672).
§ 9. Public Mining Regulations (672).
§ 10. Statutory Liens and Charges (672).
§ 11. Remedies and Procedure Peculiar to Mining Rights (673).

§ 1. General common law principles. A. Public ownership.[1]

(§ 1) B. Private ownership; right of freehold tenants of less than fee.[2]—Petroleum and natural gas are minerals, and are a part of the realty so long as they remain in the ground.[3] Hence they belong to the owner of the tract from which they are taken.[4] But when they escape and go into other lands, or come under another's control, the title of the former owner is gone.[5]

Injuries to a coal mine caused by the issuance of an injunction restraining its working are injuries to the realty for which the equitable owner thereof may recover.[6]

§ 2. Acquisition of mining rights in public lands. A. What lands may be located.[7]—A location under the Federal statutes can only be made upon unappropriated mineral land[8] belonging to the United States.[9]

Two locations cannot legally occupy the same space at the same time.[10] However regular in form a junior location may be, it is of no effect as against the rights conferred by a prior subsisting location,[11] or against one who has previously otherwise acquired title to the land.[12]

Statutory license to locate mining claims thereon does not prevent the disposition or reservation of the public lands prior to the acquisition of vested rights.[13]

1, 2. See 2 Curr. L. 893.

3. Belong to the owner of the land so long as they are on it, or in it, or subject to the owner's control. Lanyon Zinc Co. v. Freeman, 68 Kan. 691, 75 P. 995. While in place. Rymer v. South Penn. Oil Co., 54 W. Va. 530, 46 S. E. 559.

See, also, Tiffany on Real Property, p. 516, § 219.

4. Even though contract under which well was drilled included other tracts. Rymer v. South Penn. Oil Co., 54 W. Va. 530, 46 S. E. 559.

5. Lanyon Zinc Co. v. Freeman, 68 Kan. 691, 75 P. 995.

See, also, Tiffany on Real Property, p. 516, § 219.

6. Grantee in deed becomes equitable owner of property intended to be conveyed, though it is misdescribed. Quinn v. Baldwin Star Coal Co. [Colo. App.] 76 P. 552. Instruction in action on injunction bond authorizing recovery of damages for falling in of mine pending writ held supported by evidence of condition of mine before and after its issuance. Id.

7. See 2 Curr. L. 894.

8. Gwiney v. Brown [Colo.] 77 P. 357.

9. Valid location cannot be made on land claimed by one under conveyance from Northern Pacific Railroad Co., which held it as part of its land grant, even though patent to company and its conveyance exempted minerals in the soil. Traphaagen v. Kirk [Mont.] 77 P. 58.

10. Porter v. Tonopah North Star Tunnel & Development Co., 133 F. 756. A valid location in full force is a bar to a subsequent location. Clipper M. Co. v. Eli M. & L. Co., 194 U. S. 220, 48 Law. Ed. 944. An entry and location on a claim which is in the possession of others actually engaged in doing assessment work thereon is a mere trespass and no rights are acquired thereby. Willitt v. Baker, 133 F. 937.

11. Porter v. Tonopah North Star T. & D. Co., 133 F. 756. The rights acquired by a valid location are wholly unaffected by subsequent conflicting locations, the first in time being the first in right. Last Chance Min. Co. v. Bunker Hill & S. Min. & C. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 579. Where defendant took steps to appropriate land as a lode claim before plaintiff's grantor staked it out as a placer claim, and there is evidence of mineral bearing rock on the surface and no proof of an entire absence of a vein of metallic ore, his right to possession is superior to plaintiff's. Bevis v. Markland, 130 F. 226.

12. Evidence sufficient to sustain verdict for defendant in action of ejectment to recover part of claim used by defendant city for public streets. Murray v. Butte [Mont.] 77 P. 527. Stipulation held admission that ground was occupied as public highway prior to location of claim. Id.

13. U. S. Rev. St. § 2319 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1424), declaring mineral deposits in public lands and lands containing same open to exploration, and purchase does not deprive the president of the right to reserve a portion of the unoccupied public lands for an Indian reservation. Gibson v. Anderson [C. C. A.] 131 F. 39. Where location was made on Indian reservation on day statute was passed subjecting land in reservation to entry (Act May 27, 1902, c. 888, 32 Stat. at L. 245), but operation of act was postponed by joint resolutions passed on same day (32 Stat. at L. pt. 1, 742, 744), complainant acquired no rights. Id. Record showing that resolutions were approved on such date could not be impeached by showing that they were not approved until later date. Id.

All mineral land, whether known or unknown, was excluded from the grants to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company.[14] The statute provides for an examination and classification of the land as nonmineral before any patent therefor shall issue to the company.[15] The determination of the interior department as to the character of such land is conclusive, in the absence of fraud, imposition or mistake.[16]

(§ 2) B. Who may locate.[17]—Mining locations may only be made by citizens of the United States and those who have declared their intention to become such.[18] Locations made by aliens are not illegal or void, but are voidable only,[19] and the fact that the locator is an alien can be taken advantage of only by the government.[20] A subsequent declaration of intention by the locator, or one having an interest in the claim prior to the inception of any adverse rights, relates back to the date of the location or acquisition of the alien's interests therein, and validates the transaction.[21]

§ 3. Mode of locating and acquiring patent. A. Making and perfecting location.[22]—State legislatures may enact laws supplemental to the acts of congress relative to the location, possession and working of claims, and may prescribe requirements in addition to those fixed by such acts, so long as they are not inconsistent therewith,[23] and a substantial compliance with both the Federal and state statutes in regard to location and recording is necessary;[24] but a location fully complying with the Federal statute, and defective only because not complying with the state statutes, becomes a valid location upon repeal of the latter before the accrual of an adverse claim.[25]

When every act necessary to the completion of a location has been done before an adverse claim accrues, the order of their performance is immaterial.[26] The fact that many years have elapsed since the original location of a placer claim, without any patent having been issued therefor, does not affect its validity.[27]

14. Act July 2, 1864, c. 217 (13 Stat. at L. 365). Traphaagen v. Kirk [Mont.] 77 P. 58.

15. Act Feb. 26, 1895, c. 136 (28 Stat. at L. 683). Traphaagen v. Kirk [Mont.] 77 P. 58.

16. Traphaagen v. Kirk [Mont.] 77 P. 58.

17. See 2 Curr. L. 894.

18. U. S. Rev. St. § 2319 (Comp. St. 1901, p. 1424). Shea v. Nilima [C. C. A.] 133 F. 209.

19, 20. Shea v. Nilima [C. C. A.] 133 F. 209.

21. Agreement by two aliens to locate claims in Alaska. One subsequently declaring his intention of becoming citizen may enforce contract and recover his interest in claim located by other. Shea v. Nilima [C. C. A.] 133 F. 209.

22. See 2 Curr. L. 894.

23. Mont. Pol. Code, § 3610 et seq. not in violation of U. S. Const. art. 4, § 3, giving congress power to dispose of public lands. Mares v. Dillon [Mont.] 75 P. 963. Such regulations are not invalid on theory that they were enacted in the exercise of an unlawful delegation by congress of legislative power. Butte City Water Co. v. Baker, 25 S. Ct. 211. Requirement of the Montana Statute (Ann. Codes, § 3612) that declaratory statement filed with clerk must contain the dimensions and location of the discovery shaft, and the location and description of each corner with the markings thereon, is not invalid as conflicting with Federal statutes. Id. B. & C. Comp. Or. §§ 3975-3977, prescribing manner of marking and recording claim and amount of development work, not in conflict with U. S. Rev. St. §§ 2319, 2322, 2324 (Comp. St. 1901, pp. 1424, 1426). Wright v. Lyons [Or.] 77 P. 81.

24. Failure to comply with B. & C. Comp. Or. §§ 3975-3977, relating to marking and recording notice of claim, and to development work held to render location invalid. Wright v. Lyons [Or.] 77 P. 81. Statutes are mandatory and must be strictly complied with. U. S. Rev. St. § 2324, relating to marking boundaries. Worthen v. Sidway [Ark.] 79 S. W. 777.

25. Location failing to comply with Cal. St. 1897, p. 214, c. 159, became valid on its repeal (St. 1899, p. 148, c. 113; St. 1900, p. 9, c. 6), locators having remained in possession. Dwinnell v. Dyer [Cal.] 78 P. 247. Evidence sufficient to sustain finding that defendant was in possession of claim at time of plaintiff's location. Id. New trial granted for failure to make finding as to whether defendant had good olaim at time of plaintiff's location. Findings not sufficient to dispose of this issue. Id.

26. Defendant performed all acts necessary under Federal statute, but omitted those required by state statute, which were still performable without infringement of intervening claims when state statute was repealed. Dwinnell v. Dyer [Cal.] 78 P. 247.

27. Clipper Min. Co. v. Eli Min. & Land Co., 194 U. S. 220, 48 Law. Ed. 944.

The Federal statute authorizing the location and acquisition of mining claims on the public lands does not dispose of any estate in such lands, or create any burden thereon or right therein, until the actual inception and assertion of mining rights thereunder.[28]

Lode claims.[29]—In order to make a location, surface ground, including the vein or lode, must be appropriated,[30] and a vein or lode must be discovered within the limits of the claim.[31] A discovery means the finding of mineralized rock in place, as distinguished from float rock.[32] Whether or not it has been made is a question of fact.[33] Claims may not exceed fifteen hundred feet in length along the vein or lode, nor extend more than three hundred feet on each side of the middle of the vein at the surface. The end lines must be parallel.[34] The right of location in no respect depends upon the course of the vein beyond the limits of the claim.[35] The location must be distinctly marked on the ground so that its boundaries may be readily traced.[36] Any marking which will enable the boundaries to be so traced is sufficient.[37]

Statutes in some states require the filing of certificates of location,[38] or a copy of the notice of location.[39]

In some states amended location certificates may be filed within a specified time.[40] No amended certificate is necessary where the original notice is clear, definite and certain, and the boundaries of the claim so marked and monumented that the same can readily be traced and determined.[41] In such case the original

28. Gibson v. Anderson [C. C. A.] 131 F. 39.

29. See 2 Curr. L. 894, § 3A.

30. Rev. St. § 2319 (Comp. St. 1901, p. 1424). Traphaagen v. Kirk [Mont.] 77 P. 58.

31. U. S. Rev. St. § 2320 (Comp. St. 1901, p. 1424). Columbia Copper Min. Co. v. Duchess M., M. & S. Co. [Wyo.] 79 P. 385.

32. Location may be made whenever prospector has discovered such indications of mineral that he is willing to spend time and money in following with the expectation of finding ore. Columbia Copper Min. Co. v. Duchess M., M. & S. Co. [Wyo.] 79 P. 385.

33. Evidence sufficient to sustain finding of discovery by plaintiff's grantors. Columbia Copper Min. Co. v. Duchess M., M. & S. Co. [Wyo.] 79 P. 385.

34. U. S. Rev. St. § 2320 (Comp. St. 1901, p. 1424). Empire M. & M. Co. v. Tombstone M. & M. Co., 131 F. 339; Last Chance Min. Co. v. Bunker Hill & S. M. & C. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 579.

35. U. S. Rev. St. § 2320 (Comp. St. 1901, p. 1424). Last Chance Min. Co. v. Bunker Hill & S. Min. & C. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 579. A bill to establish extralateral rights and quiet title need not allege the general course of the vein beyond the limits of the claim. Id.

36. Rev. St. § 2324 (Comp. St. 1901, p. 1426). Kern Oil Co. v. Crawford, 143 Cal. 298, 76 P. 1111.

37. Stakes placed at supposed section corners and marked held sufficient to locate quarter section as placer claim, if marking boundaries was necessary, even though they were not on true line. Kern Oil Co. v. Crawford, 143 Cal. 298, 76 P. 1111; Worthen v. Sidway [Ark.] 79 S. W. 777.

38. In Wyoming must be filed within sixty days from the date of discovery. Rev. St. 1899, § 3423. Where last day is Sunday, may be filed on next day. Columbia C. M. Co. v. Duchess M., M. & S. Co. [Wyo.] 79 P. 385. Notices held to substantially comply with Rev. St. Wyo. 1899, § 2546. Id. The fact that the certificate was not filed within the required time does not defeat an action for trespass where defendant acquired no rights between the expiration of such time and the date on which the certificate was filed. Id.

In Montana the declaratory statement for a claim must be verified by the oath of the locator [Pol. Code, § 3612]. Mares v. Dillon [Mont.] 75 P. 963. The fact that the oath is absolute in form while in fact it was made on information and belief does not invalidate it. Id.

39. A statute requiring the recording of the notice of location within a specified time does not work a forfeiture of the claim for failure to do so in the absence of a provision to that effect. Idaho Rev. St. 1887, § 3103, requires filing within 15 days. Last Chance Min. Co. v. Bunker Hill & S. Min. & C. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 579. A substantial compliance with the statute is sufficient. Cal. St. 1875-76, p. 853, c. 562, relating to recording of locations in Calaveres county. Mitchell v. Hutchinson, 142 Cal. 404, 76 P. 55. Description of the property sufficient if complete enough to enable one examining it to ascertain therefrom that the land actually claimed was included therein. Description held sufficient though last course and distance omitted. Id.

40. Nevada statute was enacted for the benefit of locators, and gives them ninety days to perfect their location and to cure any defects in the original notice or the marking of the boundaries, mistakes in the directions and courses, and the like [Cutting's Comp. Ann. Laws, §§ 210, 213]. Porter v. Tonopah North Star T. & D. Co., 133 F. 756.

41, 42. Porter v. Tonopah North Star T. & D. Co., 133 F. 756.

notice may be filed within the prescribed time as the certificate of location.[42] The filing of amended certificates in no way changes or enlarges a claimant's rights as against persons making locations after the filing of his first certificate.[43]

Placer claims[44] are subject to entry under like circumstances and conditions as lode claims and upon similar proceedings.[45] If on surveyed lands they should conform to the lines of such survey,[46] if it is reasonably practicable to do so.[47] Where the notice states that a legal subdivision has been located as a placer claim, it need not further state its boundaries.[48] There is a conflict of authority as to the necessity of marking the boundaries of such claims located on surveyed lands.[49]

Oil land.[50]—Under the Federal statutes the location and sale of oil land is governed by the laws applicable to the location and sale of placer mining claims.[51] Discovery need not precede or coexist with the posting of the notice and the marking of the claim,[52] and a subsequent discovery perfects the title except in so far as the rights of others may have intervened.[53]

(§ 3) B. Maintaining location; forfeiture, loss or abandonment.[54]—Under the Federal statute an unpatented lode mining claim becomes liable to forfeiture and relocation on failure of the original locators to do the required assessment work in any one year, provided the latter have not resumed work upon the claim after failure and before such relocation.[55] The work must be resumed in good faith and be prosecuted with reasonable diligence until the requirement for annual labor is satisfied.[56]

Assessment work may be done by one having a contract with the locator for

43. Not as against person locating premises when they were open to location. Gwiney v. Brown [Colo.] 77 P. 357. Defects in the location certificates of defendants, who relocated plaintiff's claim on the ground that he had forfeited his rights, cannot be cured, as against plaintiff, by filing amended certificates after he has re-entered. Field v. Tanner [Colo.] 75 P. 916.

44. See 2 Curr. L. 894, § 3A.

45. U. S. Rev. St. § 2329. Kern Oil Co. v. Crawford, 143 Cal. 298, 76 P. 1111. The purpose of this section is to place the location of placer claims on an equality both in procedure and rights with lode claims. Clipper M. Co. v. Eli Min. & Land Co., 194 U. S. 220, 48 Law. Ed. 944.

46. Rev. St. §§ 2329-2331 (Comp. St. 1901, p. 1432). Mitchell v. Hutchinson, 142 Cal. 404, 76 P. 55; Kern Oil Co. v. Crawford, 143 Cal. 298, 76 P. 1111.

47. When not practical, conformity as near as is reasonably practical is sufficient. Mitchell v. Hutchinson, 142 Cal. 404, 76 P. 55. Findings held to sufficiently establish valid location in so far as conformity to survey lines was concerned, and not to be inconsistent. Id. In an action to quiet title it is not necessary to allege such conformity. Complaint held to sufficiently tender issue as to making location in conformity to statute. Id.

48. Kern Oil Co. v. Crawford, 143 Cal. 298, 76 P. 1111.

49. In California it is held not to be necessary. Kern Oil Co. v. Crawford, 143 Cal. 298, 76 P. 1111.

In Arkansas it is held to be necessary. § 2324 applies to placer claims by virtue of § 2329. Posting notice on tree claiming exclusive right to prospect on certain quarter section, without effort to mark location on ground, insufficient. Worthen v. Sidway [Ark.] 79 S. W. 777. § 2321 does not dispense with requirements of § 2324. Id.

50. See 2 Curr. L. 894, § 2A.

51. Act Feb. 11, 1897, c. 216 (29 Stat. at L. 526); Comp. St. 1901, p. 1434. Weed v. Snook, 144 Cal. 439, 77 P. 1023.

52, 53. Weed v. Snook, 144 Cal. 439, 77 P. 1023.

54. See 2 Curr. L. 895.

55. U. S. Rev. St. § 2324, as amended by Act Jan. 22, 1880, c. 9, § 2 (21 Stat. at L. 61) U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1426. Where locators worked on Dec. 31st, and left their tools in cut that night, and intended to and did resume work next morning, their possession and work were continuous, and one making relocation during the night was a mere trespasser. Willitt v. Baker, 133 F. 937. Evidence held to show that defendants had not made a valid location before plaintiff, whose rights under a prior location were alleged to have been forfeited, resumed and did required assessment work. Field v. Tanner [Colo.] 75 P. 916. Such failure does not ipso facto work a forfeiture, but it does not take place until the rights of third persons accrue, and the forfeiture is avoided if the original locator resumes work before such rights attach. Id. No complete forfeiture until third person acquires title, and until acts necessary to a valid relocation are performed, locator may resume work and prevent forfeiture. Evidence held to show such resumption. Worthen v. Sidway [Ark.] 79 S. W. 777.

56. Worthen v. Sidway [Ark.] 79 S. W. 777.

the purchase of the claim.[57] The burden of proving a forfeiture for failure to do such work is on the person alleging it,[58] and it must be established by clear and convincing evidence.[59] Evidence of the amount of money paid for work done, though not conclusive, is admissible.[60] Persons wrongfully holding possession of another's claim and preventing him from doing the required work thereon cannot set up his failure to support their title as against him.[61]

One tenant in common does not lose his interest in the claim by not contributing to the assessment work of his co-tenant.[62] Under the Federal statute where a co-owner fails or refuses to contribute his proportion of the cost of the required work after a personal notice or notice by publication to do so, his interest in the claim becomes the property of his co-owners who have made the required expenditures.[63] A notice addressed to a deceased co-owner by name, and "his heirs, administrators, and to all whom it may concern," is sufficient without specifically naming the heirs.[64] The fact that there is no administrator does not render the notice invalid where, under the local law, title vests in the heirs, and the administrator has only a lien for administrative purposes.[65] Claims for expenditures for several years may be grouped in the same notice.[66]

By Act July 2, 1898, volunteers in the army and navy during the war with Spain were relieved from the performance of assessment work on filing a notice of their enlistment, and their desire to hold the claim in the clerk's office where their location certificate was recorded, and their claims were not forfeitable for nonperformance of the required work until six months after they were mustered out of the service, or six months after their death in the service.[67] The filing of such notice by the owner of an unpatented claim which has been regularly located and recorded is equivalent in all respects to, and is attended with the same consequences that result from, the actual performance of the work.[68] Thus, where no work has been done for the year prior to that for which the notice is filed, its filing operates as a resumption and full performance of the required work, and avoids a forfeiture.[69]

Abandonment.[70]—Abandonment is a matter of intention, and operates instanter.[71] It takes place when the locator gives up the claim and goes away from it, without any intention of repossessing it, and regardless of what may become

57. Godfrey v. Faust [S. D.] 101 N. W. 718. Work done by a company, the superintendent of which has a contract with the locator of the claim for its purchase, inures to the benefit of the locator, though the superintendent is not shown to have assigned the contract to the company which furnished the money, since it will be considered as holding the contract in trust for it. Id. Sufficient competent evidence to support finding that annual representation work was done. Id.

58. Work required by U. S. Rev. St. § 2324 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1426). Whalen Consol. Copper Min. Co. v. Whalen, 127 F. 611; Willitt v. Baker, 133 F. 937.

59. Willitt v. Baker, 133 F. 937; Field v. Tanner [Colo.] 75 P. 916.

60. Whalen Consol. Copper Min. Co. v. Whalen, 127 F. 611. Proof that receiver borrowed money to do assessment work, and reported that it had been done, and that report was approved by court, held sufficient to establish prima facie that work was performed. Id. Evidence insufficient to show that work, labor and expenses incurred were not reasonably worth the amount required by the statute. Id.

61. Field v. Tanner [Colo.] 75 P. 916.

62. Faubel v. McFarland, 144 Cal. 717, 78 P. 261.

63. Rev. St. § 2324, Comp. St. 1901, p. 1426. Elder v. Horseshoe M. & M. Co., 194 U. S. 248, 48 Law. Ed. 960. Publication every day except Sunday, beginning Monday, Jan. 7, and concluding Tuesday, April 2, complies with provision requiring publication "for at least once a week for ninety days." Id. The law does not recognize the acquisition from the government of fractional parts of a claim. Worthen v. Sidway [Ark.] 79 S. W. 777. Where one co-tenant abandons his interest, it does not revert to the government, but the others acquire the entire claim on compliance with the statutes. Evidence held to show such abandonment. Id.

64, 65, 66. Elder v. Horseshoe Min. & Mill. Co., 194 U. S. 248, 48 Law. Ed. 960.

67. C. 563, 30 Stat. at L. 651 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1428). Field v. Tanner [Colo.] 75 P. 916.

68, 69. Field v. Tanner [Colo.] 75 P. 916.

70. See 2 Curr. L. 896, n. 79.

71. Conn v. Oberto [Colo.] 76 P. 369.

of it or who may appropriate it.[72] On abandonment the claim reverts to its original status as a part of the unoccupied public domain, and is open to location by the first comer.[73] An abandonment by two of three tenants in common does not affect the interest of the other.[74] A statute providing that no interest in lands shall be created except by operation of law or by deed has no application to an abandonment of a claim by locators and the giving of permission to another to locate thereon.[75]

An amended location of a lode claim does not operate as an abandonment of all rights under the original location, where the new location notice expressly states that no abandonment is intended.[76]

(§ 3) C. Relocation.[77]—Mining claims are not open to relocation until the rights of a former locator have come to an end.[78]

(§ 3) D. Proceedings to obtain patent; adverse claims.[79]—A patent of a placer claim will not convey the title to a known vein or lode within its area, unless such vein or lode is specifically applied and paid for;[80] but if no vein or lode is known to exist within the placer claim at the time the patent is issued, then the patentee takes title to any which may be subsequently discovered.[81]

The judgment of the land department respecting matters which it must determine in ascertaining whether or not an applicant is entitled to a patent can only be assailed by direct proceedings, and is not open to collateral attack.[82] The issuance of a patent is conclusive evidence of the sufficiency of the steps taken by the locator.[83] A patent issued to a named company establishes the fact that it is a corporation.[84]

72. Action of two of the owners in granting permission to third person to enter into possession of and relocate claim held an abandonment of their interest. Statement of other owner that he did not care to have anything more to do with claim held abandonment of his interest and ratification of acts of others. Conn v. Oberto [Colo.] 76 P. 369. Where lode claim crossed placer claim theretofore patented, the filing of a declaration electing to take a patent for that part on north side of placer claim in pursuance of decree refusing to patent whole and requiring election, operated as abandonment of south tract and took effect immediately on its filing. Gurney v. Brown [Colo.] 77 P. 357.

73, 74, 75. Conn v. Oberto [Colo.] 76 P. 369.

76. Where end lines of amended location did not coincide with those of original held proper, in determining extralateral rights, to draw vertical planes through original lines and amended lines, extending both in the direction of the dip of the vein, and to award to the claim extralateral rights to so much of the vein on its dip as lay within both of such extensions, treating as abandoned only so much of the original claim, with its planes so extended, as lay without the extended end line planes of the amended claim. Empire State-Idaho M. & D. Co. v. Bunker Hill & S. M. & C. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 591.

77. See 2 Curr. L. 896.

78. Porter v. Tonopah North Star T. & D. Co., 133 F. 756. Not until the discoverer has in law abandoned his claim and left the property open for another to take up. Willitt v. Baker, 133 F. 937. Land in possession of one who has made a valid discovery and location is not subject to location by another until after abandonment or forfeiture. Conn v. Oberto [Colo.] 76 P. 369.

79. See 2 Curr. L. 896.

80. U. S. Rev. St. § 2333 (Comp. St. 1901, p. 1433). Clipper M. Co. v. Eli M. & L. Co., 194 U. S. 220, 48 Law. Ed. 944.

81. U. S. Rev. St. § 2333. Clipper M. Co. v. Eli M. & L. Co., 194 U. S. 220, 48 Law. Ed. 944.

82. A judgment that a lode vein had not been shown to exist and pass through a conflicting patented placer claim when the latter patent was applied for is not a judgment that such vein does not pass through such placer claim. Gurney v. Brown [Colo.] 77 P. 357. The decision of the Interior Department in annulling an entry on coal land, permitting the amendment of another entry and issuing a patent in pursuance of the latter entry. Judgment is that of a special tribunal and unassailable except in direct proceedings for its annulment or limitation. Quinn v. Baldwin Star Coal Co. [Colo. App.] 76 P. 552.

83. Last Chance Min. Co. v. Bunker Hill & S. Min. & C. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 579. Conclusive as to fact that claim was located and boundaries marked on ground, that notice was recorded and that discovery of mineral was actually made. Galbraith v. Shasta Iron Co., 143 Cal. 94, 76 P. 901. Where defendant, over plaintiff's objection, is permitted to go behind the patents to show the dates of the location of the respective claims, which the patents do not disclose, it cannot complain of oral testimony introduced by plaintiff in rebuttal showing that its claim was in fact senior. New trial on ground of surprise properly refused. Jefferson M. Co. v. Anchoria-Leland M. & M. Co. [Colo.] 75 P. 1070.

An erroneous description of the land does not render the patent void where it can be easily located by reference to the monuments therein referred to.[85] Where an entry is permitted to be amended, to take effect as of the date of the original entry, the patent issued in pursuance thereof relates back to such date.[86] The mere suspension of a mineral entry for the purpose of requiring compliance with departmental regulations does not destroy the force of the certificate evidencing such entry, or enable third parties to attack its validity.[87]

Suits to determine adverse claims.[88]—The Federal statute provides for the giving of notice of the filing of an application for a patent, which is equivalent to a summons in a judicial proceeding.[89] Where an adverse claim is filed during the publication, the adverse claimant must within thirty days commence proceedings in a court of competent jurisdiction to determine the question of his right to possession, and a failure to do so is a waiver of his claim.[90] The statute applies only to adverse claims arising from independent and conflicting locations of the same ground, and not to a controversy between co-owners or others claiming under the same location.[91]

The owner of a prior placer location may maintain an adverse suit against an application for a patent for a subsequent lode location within its boundaries, made by persons entering against his will for the purpose of prospecting for unknown veins or lodes.[92] The burden is on adverse claimants to show that any part of the ground sought to be patented by defendant is within the boundaries of a claim as previously located by them.[93]

The mere fact that the suit is brought pursuant to the requirements of this statute to determine the right to the possession of a mining claim does not confer jurisdiction on a Federal court.[94] The character of the action is not provided for and depends upon the practice in the state in which it is brought.[95] Where a state statute authorizes a suit to quiet title regardless of possession, a Federal court of equity in such state is a court of competent jurisdiction, though

84. Galbraith v. Shasta Iron Co., 143 Cal. 94, 76 P. 901.

85. Not subject to relocation because erroneous length given to calculated tying line. Galbraith v. Shasta Iron Co., 143 Cal. 94, 76 P. 901.

86. Quinn v. Baldwin Star Coal Co. [Colo. App.] 76 P. 552.

87. Gurney v. Brown [Colo.] 77 P. 357. Lode claim crossed previously patented placer claim, and judgment of interior department required claimant to elect within sixty days whether he would take patent for tract on north or south side of placer claim, and provided that on default of election or appeal within such time the department would cancel entry as to south tract. Claimant did not appeal but instituted proceedings against conflicting claimant which were decided in favor of latter. Complainant then, and after expiration of sixty days, filed election to take north tract. Held that, department having taken no steps to enforce provision requiring election within 60 days, south tract did not revert to government and become subject to relocation until election was filed. Id.

88. See 2 Curr. L. 896, § 3D.

89. Rev. St. § 2326. Jefferson M. Co. v. Anchoria-Leland M. & M. Co. [Colo.] 75 P. 1070.

90. U. S. Rev. St. § 2326 (Comp. St. 1901, p. 1430). Willitt v. Baker, 133 F. 937. One having conflicting claim who does not protest or adverse the application for a patent is concluded on the question of seniority by the issuance of a patent. Applies where senior location has portion of apex of same vein as junior, and there is a conflict on the surface between the two locations. Jefferson M. Co. v. Anchoria-Leland M. & M. Co. [Colo.] 75 P. 1070.

91. U. S. Rev. St. § 2325 (Comp. St. 1901, p. 1429). Does not apply to suit by one coowner against other to establish constructive trust. Stevens v. Grand Central M. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 28.

92. Clipper M. Co. v. Eli M. & L. Co., 194 U. S. 220, 48 Law. Ed. 944.

93. Evidence insufficient. Porter v. Tonopah North Star T. & D. Co., 133 F. 756.

94. Jurisdiction depends on citizenship. Willitt v. Baker, 133 F. 937. Where sale of claim is real and not simulated, fact that it was made to give Federal court jurisdiction is immaterial. Id.

95. May be in equity, at law or special statutory proceeding. Mares v. Dillon [Mont.] 75 P. 963. The act of March 3, 1881, providing that if title to the property is not established by either party the jury shall so find, does not change the method of trial, or require an action at law or trial by jury [Act March 3, 1881, c. 140 (21 Stat. at L. 505); Comp. St. 1901, p. 1430]. Id.

neither claimant is in possession.[96] A part owner, joining with the others in filing an adverse claim, who afterwards acquires their interests, may maintain the suit in his own name.[97]

In such action the title of each party is brought in question, and, even where plaintiff's case fails, defendant is not entitled to a judgment or decree unless he establishes his title.[98]

In Montana it is immaterial which party is in possession, and it is sufficient to confer jurisdiction on the court if it appears from the pleadings that an application for a patent has been made and that an adverse claim has been filed and allowed in the proper land office.[99] It is not necessary, no matter in what form the action is brought, for plaintiff to particularly set forth the nature of defendant's claim.[1] If the action is brought in time, it proceeds to effective judgment in the same manner as other actions, and the court has the same power to allow amendments as in other cases.[2] The verdict or decision must find which party is entitled to the property in dispute.[3] Where plaintiff has two claims, both of which conflict with defendant's claim, but which do not conflict with each other, he may maintain a separate action to determine adverse claims based on each location, and the pendency of one such action is no bar to the other.[4] The court only has jurisdiction to determine the right to the possession of the particular portion of the tract in controversy.[5] Disbursements necessary to the filing of the adverse claim in the land office, but not for the procurement of anything necessary to the maintenance of the suit, cannot be taxed as costs.[6]

The judgment of the court as to which of the adverse claimants is entitled to the possession of the claim does not settle the right of the successful claimant to a patent.[7]

§ 4. Ownership or estate obtained by claim, location and patent; apex

96. Sand. & H. Ark. Dig. § 6120, authorizes suits to quiet title regardless of possession. Willitt v. Baker, 133 F. 937.

97. Willitt v. Baker, 133 F. 937.

98. Must prove that he did assessment work for each year as required by statute. Willitt v. Baker, 133 F. 937. Action is in the nature of a suit to quiet title, and plaintiff can recover, if at all, only on the strength of his own title. If he does not show title, condition of defendant's title is immaterial. Schroder v. Aden Gold Min. Co., 144 Cal. 628, 78 P. 20. Evidence sufficient to support finding that mine extended in direction indicated by lead as far as it could be traced upon the surface, and that its location corresponded with written notice rather than with evidence of location of monuments. Id.

99. Pleadings held to show that action was equitable in its nature. Also case was tried on that theory and hence parties cannot object in oral argument on appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1322]. Mares v. Dillon [Mont.] 75 P. 963. Party who is estopped to question that suit is equitable cannot object to instructions to jury. Verdict merely advisory. Id.

1. Duty to do so rests on defendant. Woody v. Hinds [Mont.] 76 P. 1. Complaint showing possession of plaintiff under claim of title, application of defendant for patent, filing of adverse claim in land office and its allowance, and commencement of suit within 30 days thereafter, is sufficient whether suit is one to quiet title under Mont. Code Civ. Proc. § 1310, or a special statutory proceeding under Id. § 1322. Id. A complaint is not bad for uncertainty or ambiguity, though it is alleged that a "protest" was filed with the statement of adverse claim in the land office. Immaterial whether this was done or not. Id. The complaint need only allege that plaintiff is the owner of the premises, and that defendant claims some right adverse to him, without specifying of what such adverse claim consists. Complaint held sufficient as action to remove cloud from plaintiff's title and to cancel certain contracts, and also to warrant decree quieting title. Merk v. Bowery M. Co. [Mont.] 78 P. 519. Bill to remove cloud held not bill to enforce forfeiture of lease, but merely to require court to ascertain whether a completed forfeiture existed, and if so, to remove cloud caused thereby. Id.

2. May do so after expiration of 30 days. Woody v. Hinds [Mont.] 76 P. 1.

3. Code Civ. Proc. § 1322. Mares v. Dillon [Mont.] 75 P. 963.

4. Mares v. Dillon [Mont.] 75 P. 963.

5. Cannot determine extent of surface location outside of area in conflict. Mares v. Dillon [Mont.] 75 P. 969.

6. For surveying, making plat, and for abstract of title [Mont. Code Civ. Proc. § 1866]. Mares v. Dillon [Mont.] 75 P. 969.

7. Remains for interior department to determine whether he is entitled to one. Clipper M. Co. v. Eli M. & L. Co., 194 U. S. 220, 48 Law. Ed. 944.

rights.[8]—A valid location has the effect of a grant from the government of the right to the exclusive possession to the lands located,[9] and no rights can be initiated by a trespass thereon.[10]

Until the patent is issued, the actual title to the fee remains in the government, but the locator has a qualified title which may be conveyed or inherited.[11] His exclusive right of possession is as much his property as the vein or lode located.[12] A conveyance from the original locator of a part of claim and possession thereunder does not ripen into a perfect title until such locator secures title from the government.[13] The right to possession remains in the grantees only while the locator or his vendees with notice remain in possession and terminates as soon as he abandons the claim.[14]

Joint tenants.[15]—The general rule that co-tenants stand in a relation to one another of mutual trust and confidence, that one will not be permitted to act in hostility to the others in respect of the joint estate, and that a distinct title acquired by one will inure to the benefit of all applies with full force to the joint owners of a mining claim.[16] Hence a co-owner who amends the location notice, relocates the claim, or procures the issuance of a patent in his name, will be declared to hold the right or title thereby acquired in trust for all.[17] The fact that a stranger to the original claim joins him in acquiring such title is immaterial.[18] A co-tenant who excludes the other and takes out mineral will be liable without deduction for the cost of mining.[19]

One tenant in common may recover possession of the entire claim as against all persons except his co-tenants.[20]

8. See 2 Curr. L. 897.

9. Worthen v. Sidway [Ark.] 79 S. W. 777; Clipper M. Co. v. Eli M. & L. Co., 194 U. S. 220, 48 Law. Ed. 944. Rule applies to placer claims. Id. Error, if any, in a ruling that possession of plaintiff by occupancy merely was insufficient to show right of possession was harmless and waived by his proving valid statutory locations. Field v. Tanner [Colo.] 75 P. 916. Evidence sufficient to show valid locations by plaintiff. Id.

10. Dwinnell v. Dyer [Cal.] 78 P. 247. Not by location on land acquired by Northern Pacific Railroad Company under land grant and by it conveyed to defendant, though conveyance and patent exempted minerals in soil. Traphaagen v. Kirk [Mont.] 77 P. 58. Not by entry on land previously appropriated as placer claim. Clipper M. Co. v. Eli M. & L. Co., 194 U. S. 220, 48 Law. Ed. 944. One who in good faith makes a location, remains in possession, and with due diligence prosecutes his work towards a discovery is protected against all forms of forcible, fraudulent, surreptitious or clandestine entries and intrusions upon his possession. Another party cannot locate on land in peaceable possession of defendant on which he is preparing to drill well. Weed v. Snook, 144 Cal. 439, 77 P. 1023. Plaintiff's location of 80 acres is not, after making a discovery of oil thereon, available for the purpose of perfecting a consolidated claim to 160 acres, including the original 80 and an adjoining 80 in possession of defendants. Id. One may not go upon a prior valid placer location to prospect for unknown lodes, and get title to lode claims thereafter so discovered and located within the placer boundaries, unless the placer owner has abandoned his claim, waives the trespass, or is, by his conduct, estopped to complain of it. Clipper M. Co. v. Eli M. & L. Co., 194 U. S. 220, 48 Law. Ed. 944. An entry under such circumstances is a mere trespass under which no rights can be acquired. Id.

11. Worthen v. Sidway [Ark.] 79 S. W. 777; Elder v. Horseshoe M. & M. Co., 194 U. S. 248, 48 Law. Ed. 960. May sell or lease interest in oil claim. Weed v. Snook, 144 Cal. 439, 77 P. 1023.

12. Placer. Clipper M. Co. v. Eli M. & L. Co., 194 U. S. 220, 48 Law. Ed. 944.

13. Conn v. Oberto [Colo.] 76 P. 369.

14. Claimed only under conveyance and not by virtue of compliance with mining laws. Conn v. Oberto [Colo.] 76 P. 369.

15. See 2 Curr. L. 896, n. 84.

16. Stevens v. Grand Cent. M. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 28. Co-tenant cannot acquire exclusive possession by adverse possession without notice to co-tenant that such possession is hostile or adverse. Faubel v. McFarland, 144 Cal. 717, 78 P. 261. Tenant in common not estopped to assert his interest against plaintiff to whom co-tenant sold property where he did not know that deed purported to convey entire property. Id.

17. Stevens v. Grand Cent. M. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 28, and cases cited. Under circumstances co-owner held not guilty of laches regardless of state statute of limitations. Id.

18. Stevens v. Grand Cent. M. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 28.

19. Sweeney v. Hanley [C. C. A.] 126 F. 97.

20. Field v. Tanner [Colo.] 75 P. 916.

Extralateral rights.[21]—A lode location confers on the locator both intraliminal and extraliminal or extralateral rights.[22] The intraliminal right embraces a right to all the ore within the boundaries of the claim down to the center of the earth.[23] Extralateral rights do not attach until after, in pursuit of his vein on its dip, the locator crosses the side lines of his location.[24]

The locator has the exclusive right to the possession and enjoyment of all the surface included within the lines of his location, and of all veins, lodes and ledges throughout their entire depth, the top or apex of which lies inside of such surface lines extended downward vertically, although such veins, lodes, or ledges may so far depart from a perpendicular in their course downward as to extend outside the vertical side-lines of such surface location.[25] But his right of possession to such outside parts of such veins or ledges is confined to such portions thereof as lie between vertical planes drawn downward as above described, through the end-lines of his location, so continued in their own direction that such planes will intersect such exterior parts of such veins or ledges.[26]

Where there are surface outcroppings of the same vein within the boundaries of two lode mining claims which conflict on the surface, the claim first located carries the right to work the vein.[27] Where the vein does not, on its dip, pass beyond the side lines of the junior location, but the disputed ore body is wholly within the surface lines of both the junior and senior locations, it belongs to the senior location.[28]

Though small pieces of quartz, narrow seams, and little pockets of ore embedded in prophyry be deemed sufficient to sustain a location, they do not give the owner any greater rights against veins apexing on other claims dipping under this ground than he would have if his location were based upon a substantial and well defined ledge.[29]

The end lines alone define the extralateral rights,[30] and they must be straight lines.[31] The end lines of a claim for the purpose of its extralateral rights are those laid upon the ground when it is located,[32] and the legal end lines of the

21. See 2 Curr. L. 897, § 4.

22, 23, 24. Jefferson M. Co. v. Anchoria-Leland M. & M. Co. [Colo.] 75 P. 1070.

25. U. S. Rev. St. § 2322 (Comp. St. 1901, p. 1425). Empire M. & M. Co. v. Tombstone M. & M. Co., 131 F. 339; Clipper M. Co. v. Eli M. & L. Co., 194 U. S. 220, 48 Law. Ed. 944. An owner of a claim is entitled to all veins apexing within its boundaries, but not to those apexing in the locations of other claimants, on the theory applied to blanket ledges, and prevailing in regard to others under the civil law. Golden v. Murphy [Nev.] 75 P. 625.

26. U. S. Rev. St. § 2322 (Comp. St. 1901, p. 1425). Empire M. & M. Co. v. Tombstone M. & M. Co., 131 F. 339; Last Chance Min. Co. v. Bunker Hill & S. M. & C. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 579. The doctrine of extralateral rights refers to that part of a vein which, on the dip, lies outside of the side lines of the location within whose surface lines the apex of the vein appears, and not to any part of such vein, either the outcrop or segments on the dip thereof, which lies wholly within planes drawn downward coincident with its surface boundaries. Jefferson M. Co. v. Anchoria-Leland M. & M. Co. [Colo.] 75 P. 1070.

This section confers no rights whatever if the land has been previously patented to another. Jefferson M. Co. v. Anchoria-Leland M. & M. Co. [Colo.] 75 P. 1070.

27. Ore in dispute on dip of vein within extended vertical planes of the end lines of one claim and also within side lines of other claim and on dip of vein as it passes through that claim. Jefferson M. Co. v. Anchoria-Leland M. & M. Co. [Colo.] 75 P. 1070.

28. Doctrine of extralateral rights does not apply, but case is governed by that of intraliminal rights. Jefferson M. Co. v. Anchoria-Leland M. & M. Co. [Colo.] 75 P. 1070. Where there are two conflicting lode locations, each having a portion of the apex of the same vein, and there is a conflict with respect to the dip rights within the surface lines of the two locations, the senior location must prevail. Id.

29. Held not error for lower court to grant new trial on ground that verdict was not sustained by evidence. Golden v. Murphy [Nev.] 75 P. 625.

30. Not lines drawn parallel to them at point where vein crosses side line. Jefferson M. Co. v. Anchoria-Leland M. & M. Co. [Colo.] 75 P. 1070.

31. Jefferson M. Co. v. Anchoria-Leland M. & M. Co. [Colo.] 75 P. 1070.

32. Big Hatchet C. M. Co. v. Colvin [Colo. App.] 75 P. 605.

original or discovery vein are the end lines of all veins within the surface boundaries with respect to extralateral rights.[33]

If the locators mistake the direction of the vein, lode, or ledge manifested by the outcrops of ore upon the surface, and lay out their claim crosswise instead of lengthwise of the vein, lode, or ledge, then the original side-lines become the legal end-lines, and the original end-lines the legal side-lines.[34]

The owner of a lode claim laying an end-line on the surface of a prior claim of course acquires no rights as against the owner of the latter,[35] but he may extend his lines over the latter's claim in the absence of any objection on his part, and by so doing acquires, as against the government and subsequent locators, the same rights, both surface and extralateral, as if all his lines were on unappropriated ground.[36] Though one end-line crosses land belonging to other older valid locations, it is nevertheless its end-line for the purpose of securing to it underground extralateral rights not in conflict with the senior locations.[37]

The extralateral right to a vein or lode outcropping on the surface is fixed by the course of such vein or lode at the surface, and not by its course on a level.[38] Such rights exist without regard to the angle at which the end-lines cross the general course of the vein,[39] and it is immaterial that the locator follows the vein underground more upon its strike than upon its dip.[40]

The fact that a vein or lode is of such width on the surface as to extend beyond the side-lines of the claim does not affect the extralateral rights of the claim as against a junior locator.[41]

The ownership and possession of a vein at the surface carries with it the ownership and possession of all that pertains to the location.[42] The mining right is an integral one, and is secured by a single location, and the title thereto is conveyed by a single patent.[43] This includes the extralateral rights and no adverse rights can be acquired as to them that could not be acquired as to the rest of the right.[44] The fact that the same person, company, or corporation acquires other claims is immaterial.[45]

A patent conveys the subsurface as well as the surface of a claim, subject only to the extralateral rights of adjoining owners.[46] Hence, the right to pursue a vein on its dip outside the lines of a claim does not include a right to run a horizontal tunnel from it into an adjoining patented lode claim for the purpose of reaching the vein in its descent through such adjoining claim.[47]

There is a presumption that one owns all ores found beneath the surface of his claim.[48] Such presumption cannot be overcome by speculative conjecture, or even intelligent guess.[49]

33. Jefferson M. Co. v. Anchoria-Leland M. & M. Co. [Colo.] 75 P. 1070.

34. Empire M. & M. Co. v. Tombstone M. & M. Co., 131 F. 339. Where the lines originally located as the side lines of the claim are parallel, and it appears that the apex of the vein or lode in question crosses them. Last Chance Min. Co. v. Bunker Hill & S. M. & C. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 579; Jefferson M. Co. v. Anchoria-Leland M. & M. Co. [Colo.] 75 P. 1070. Locators have the right to follow the vein lode or ledge, outcropping within the surface lines of their claim, upon its downward course, if it so far departs from the perpendicular as to carry it underground beyond the legal side lines to a point where it will be cut off by its legal end lines vertically extended in their own direction perpendicularly. Empire M. & M. Co. v. Tombstone M. & M. Co., 131 F. 339.

35, 36. Empire State-Idaho M. & D. Co. v. Bunker Hill & S. M. & C. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 591.

37. Big Hatchet C. M. Co. v. Colvin [Colo. App.] 75 P. 605. Instruction that end lines must be parallel erroneous as submitting question not in case, and hence tending to mislead jury. Id.

38, 39. Last Chance Min. Co. v. Bunker Hill & S. M. & C. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 579.

40, 41. Last Chance Min. Co. v. Bunker Hill & S. M. & C. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 579; Empire State-Idaho M. & D. Co. v. Bunker Hill & S. M. & C. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 591.

42, 43, 44, 45. Last Chance Min. Co. v. Bunker Hill & S. M. & C. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 579.

46, 47. St. Louis M. & M. Co. v. Montana M. Co., 194 U. S. 235, 48 Law. Ed. 953.

48. Heinze v. Boston & M. C. C. & S. M.

Boundary lines and monuments.[50]—In cases of conflicts between monuments called in a conveyance or patent and the courses and distances there noted, the former, if standing in their original positions, prevail.[51] If removed, the places where they originally stood may be shown by parol or documentary evidence, and, if proved to the jury by a fair preponderance of the evidence, they prevail over courses and distances.[52] If their location is not proved the courses and distances control the description, and must be followed in its application to the land.[53] Parol evidence is incompetent to substitute a call for another monument in place of the call for the original monument contained in the conveyance.[54]

The mere fixing of one monument is insufficient to indicate a boundary line so as to charge subsequent purchasers or locators with notice thereof.[55]

The wrongful taking of ore from the claim of another, in the absence of all other evidence, raises a disputable presumption that the taking was intentional and willful.[56] The measure of damages for the intentional, willful, or reckless taking of ore from the land of another without right is the enhanced value of the ore where it is finally converted to the use of the trespasser.[57] In case the taking is through inadvertence or mistake, or in the honest belief that one is acting within his legal rights, the measure of damages is the value of the ore in the mine.[58]

Lessees of a mine continuing to work it after notice of forfeiture under the mistaken belief that there has been no valid forfeiture are not willful tres-

Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 421. The owner of the surface is prima facie entitled to everything beneath the surface and may prevent the intrusion of anyone not showing a paramount right to enter within the vertical planes of his boundaries. Maloney v. King [Mont.] 76 P. 4. Where plaintiffs prove their ownership of the surface and that defendants have taken ore from beneath it, the burden is on the latter to prove that they were the owners of the vein from which it was taken. Hence have right to rebut any new matter set up by plaintiffs. Id. In action for removal of ore from plaintiffs' claim, where issue was the point where a certain vein departed from side line of defendants' location, and defendants introduced evidence that it departed at the point claimed by them, and plaintiffs in rebuttal introduced evidence that it departed at different place as shown by fact that vein was exposed in certain cellar, held error not to permit defendants to show in rebuttal that vein in cellar was along course or strike which would bring it out at point other than claimed by plaintiffs. Id. Held no error in refusing to admit glass model. Id. Instructions as to admissions in answer held not misleading. Id. Allowing the jury to view the premises is a matter in the discretion of the trial court. Mont. Code Civ. Proc. § 1081. Action for removing ore. Id.

49. Not by opinion of engineer that if vein having apex in adjoining ground continues to dip at same angle it will reach point where defendant is conducting its operations. Heinze v. Boston & M. C. C. & S. M. Co. [Mont.] 77 P. 421.

50. See 2 Curr. L. 898, n. 23.

51. Resurrection G. M. Co. v. Fortune G. M. Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 668. Monuments control courses and distances. When permanent and visible or ascertained boundaries or monuments are inconsistent with the measurement of lines, angles, or surfaces, the boundaries or monuments are paramount. Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 2077, subd. 2. Particularly where line is calculated one. Galbraith v. Shasta Iron Co., 143 Cal. 94, 76 P. 901.

52, 53. Resurrection G. M. Co. v. Fortune G. M. Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 668.

54. Resurrection G. M. Co. v. Fortune G. M. Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 668. Round stake inscribed with lead pencil held not to fit description of post in patent. Id.

55. Fixed by agreement. Empire State-Idaho M. & D. Co. v. Bunker Hill & S. M. & C. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 591. An oral agreement between the owners of two overlapping lode claims, whereby a monument was fixed as a point on the line between them, does not affect the extralateral rights of one of the claims which has passed into the hands of third parties having no notice thereof, as against third parties owning junior claims and having no interest in the other claim or privity with the agreement. Id.

56. See 2 Curr. L. 903, n. 90, 91. Resurrection G. M. Co. v. Fortune G. M. Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 668. Where plaintiff takes the ground that defendant was a naked trespasser, it cannot thereafter contend that defendant was estopped to claim the right to remove the ore under a contract between the parties for the development of the mine. Empire M. & M. Co. v. Tombstone M. & M. Co., 131 F. 339.

57. Resurrection G. M. Co. v. Fortune G. M. Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 668.

58. Resurrection G. M. Co. v. Fortune G. M. Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 668. The value of the ore is the amount received from the smelter or ore buyer after deducting the cost of mining treatment, sampling, hauling, railroad freight, and concentrating. Taken by one under claim of right. Montrozona G. M. Co. v. Thatcher [Colo. App.] 75 P. 595.

passers.[59] Upon the question whether the taking was intentional, evidence of the knowledge and information which defendant's managing officers had relative to the location of the disputed boundary lines and corners of such claim before and during the removal of the ore,[60] evidence of their relevant acts and omissions during such time,[61] and testimony of their intent and purpose in taking the ore,[62] is competent. Negligence in ascertaining the limits of the land or the rights of the owner is competent evidence on the question,[63] but negligence amounting to mere inadvertence, without evil intent or recklessness, is not in itself sufficient proof to sustain a finding of fraud, bad faith, willfulness, or evil intent in committing the trespass.[64] An intentional or reckless omission to exercise care to ascertain the boundaries of another's land or rights for the purpose of maintaining ignorance in regard to them, or a reckless disregard of them, is equivalent to a willful trespass in so far as the measure of damages is concerned.[65]

In an action for damages for the removal of ore, plaintiffs must in the first instance make a prima facie showing of the amount of ore extracted.[66] They can, of course, recover no more than the value of such an amount.[67] If defendants claim that the ore was taken from some other place they must prove that fact.[68] Defendant has the means of showing the amount taken, and if he does not do so he cannot complain that the verdict against him is too large.[69]

Duty to protect owner of surface.—One who, by the removal of minerals, causes the surface of the ground to subside, is liable to the owner for the resulting damages, even though he uses the most approved system of mining.[70] An injunction will not issue to prevent the removal of coal under complainant's land, nor will the court assume charge of the operation of the mine, and direct the manner in which the work may be done, where it cannot be determined from the evidence whether the land will further subside, or whether complainant will be injured, and no rule appears by which the court can specify the manner in which the work shall be done.[71] Each subsidence is a trespass giving rise to a new and distinct cause of action, and hence injunction will not issue to restrain the removal to prevent a multiplicity of suits.[72]

§ 5. Right to mine on private land thrown open to public.—By statute in Missouri the owners or lessees of mining land may post rules and regulations for mining the lots platted thereon.[73] Persons thereafter mining on such lands will be deemed to have assented to and accepted such rules and will be bound thereby. Upon their failure or refusal to comply therewith they forfeit all rights, and the owner may re-enter and take possession.[74] The receipt of any ore or mineral by the owner after a forfeiture is not a waiver thereof.[75]

59. Montrozona G. M. Co. v. Thatcher [Colo. App.] 75 P. 595.

60, 61, 62, 63, 64. Resurrection G. M. Co. v. Fortune G. M. Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 668.

65. Resurrection G. M. Co. v. Fortune G. M. Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 668. One may be so far negligent as to warrant an inference that he acted knowingly and intentionally, and to warrant the jury in finding his trespass to be willful. Id.

66. Maloney v. King [Mont.] 76 P. 4.

67. Instruction as to recovery in case ore commingled with other ore erroneous. Maloney v. King [Mont.] 76 P. 4.

68, 69. Maloney v. King [Mont.] 76 P. 4.

70. Land acquired subject to right to mine. Lloyd v. Catlin Coal Co., 210 Ill. 460, 71 N. E. 335.

71. Land acquired subject to right to operate mine. Lloyd v. Catlin Coal Co., 210 Ill. 460, 71 N. E. 335.

72. Lloyd v. Catlin Coal Co., 210 Ill. 460, 71 N. E. 335. Injunction refused because complainant's damages will be less than defendant's would be if it were granted. Id. Injunction will not issue on ground of irreparable injury where nothing to show that complainant cannot be adequately compensated for subsidence of farm by recovery of damages. Id.

73. Rev. St. 1899, § 8766. Ashcraft v. Englewood Min. Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 469; Jack Harvard Zinc M. Co. v. Continental Zinc & Lead M. & S. Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 12.

74, 75. Currey v. Harden [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 770.

The act does not itself require the licensee to sign the register or rules of the company, but it may make a rule requiring him to do so.[76] If the owner knowingly permits him to enter without requiring him to sign, he cannot forfeit the miner's rights without giving him an opportunity to do so.[77]

The rules may specify the time during which the right acquired shall continue.[78] In case no time is specified, it continues for three years.[79]

The owner must not unnecessarily interfere with the licensee's use of the property.[80]

§ 6. Private conveyances or grants of mineral rights in lands.[81]—Mineral underlying the surface of the ground is subject to absolute conveyance,[82] and one person may own the mineral and another the surface.[83] Title thereto may be acquired by adverse possession,[84] but after a severanee has taken place possession of the surface is not possession and occupancy of the underlying minerals.[85]

One owning underlying minerals who stands by and sees another sell them, and says nothing when it is his duty to speak, will be estopped from thereafter claiming the property, especially when he receives a part or all of the purchase price.[86]

A conveyance of all the minerals in or under a tract of land passes an estate in fee, having all the incidents of other like estates.[87] It is a legal estate of freehold and is subject to partition.[88]

The right to open and work a mine is property in which an estate in fee may be granted.[89]

76. Currey v. Harden [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 770. Any one desiring to mine must sign the register kept for that purpose, and thereby has the privilege of beginning mining as a licensee for the time, and under the restrictions and conditions of the rules. Ashcraft v. Englewood M. Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 469.

77. Currey v. Harden [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 770. In action on note, part of the consideration of which was the transfer of a license acquired under this statute, the defense was a false representation on the part of the payee that he had signed the register of the mine owner in accordance with rule adopted by him. It appeared that owner never objected to mining because register was not signed, and that defendants carried on operations without objection until mine became unprofitable. Held, that as defendants would themselves have had right to sign, the fact that plaintiff had not done so was immaterial and no defense. Id.

78. Rev. St. 1899, § 8766. Ashcraft v. Englewood Min. Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 469.

79. Rev. St. 1899, § 8767. Ashcraft v. Englewood M. Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 469. Where lessee failed to fix in rules the time during which right should continue, and plaintiff registered and then assigned his rights to defendant, in consideration of a royalty so long as the latter should operate, and defendant, after expiration of three years, mined under registration and agreement with owner, held that plaintiff's right to royalties ceased on expiration of three years from date of his registration. Id.

80. Injunction issued to prevent draining of pond across licensee's lot. Jack Harvard Zinc M. Co. v. Continental Zinc & Lead M. & S. Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 12.

81. See 2 Curr. L. 898.

82, 83. Moore v. Price [Iowa] 101 N. W. 91.

See also Tiffany on Real Property, p. 516, § 219.

84. One secretly mining coal under another's land through an opening on land other than that on which the coal is situated cannot obtain title to it by adverse possession, even by continuous mining. Not open, notorious, continuous and exclusive manner. Pierce v. Barney, 209 Pa. 132, 58 A. 152.

85. Acts of ownership exercised over underlying coal must be distinct from those exercised over surface. Manning v. Kansas & T. Coal Co., 181 Mo. 359, 81 S. W. 140.

86. Manning v. Kansas & T. Coal Co., 181 Mo. 359, 81 S. W. 140.

87. McConnell v. Pierce, 210 Ill. 627, 71 N. E. 622.

88. Where owner conveyed minerals to one in fee and later gave new deed to same person and another, the latter took no interest, though deed recited that it was given to correct former one. Hence he could not have partition. Nor could he have partition of alleged equitable interest under bill alleging legal title only. McConnell v. Pierce, 210 Ill. 627, 71 N. E. 622. Bill could not be regarded as one to remove cloud on title because plaintiff was not in possession and land was not vacant and unoccupied, nor could it be regarded as seeking such relief as incidental to partition because right to partition does not exist. Id.

89. New Haven v. Hotchkiss [Conn.] 58 A. 753. An estate of inheritance may be created therein, by reservation in a deed, without the use of the word "heirs." Id. Whether it is so created is to be determined from the language employed, in the light of the surrounding circumstances. Reservation

A right, reserved in a deed, to work a mine may be lost by abandonment,[90] but not the title to underlying minerals.[91]

Where the grantee under a deed conveying mineral rights executes a mortgage thereon, which is foreclosed, the purchaser at the foreclosure sale acquires only the grantee's interest in the property, and cannot exercise any right which is determined by the decree not to have been conveyed by the deed.[92]

By statute in California it is unlawful for the directors of any mining corporation to in any way dispose of any mining ground owned by it, or to obtain any additional ground, unless such act is ratified by the holders of two-thirds of the capital stock.[93] A previous consent or direction by the required number of stockholders, although purporting to have been made in their capacity as directors, is, at least as against creditors, equivalent to a subsequent ratification.[94]

The ordinary rules in regard to the execution and validity,[95] interpretation,[96] avoidance,[97] and enforcement of deeds and contracts of sale apply to those affecting mineral rights.[98] for five years of right to open supposed paint mine on land conveyed to city for park, and to work the same thereafter to its full extent, unless the right to do so was purchased within six years from the date of the deed held to create state of inheritance. Id.

90. The question whether a right reserved in a deed to work a mine has been abandoned is mainly one of fact. Fact that no work was done by grantor's son for eight years after grantor's death held not to show abandonment as matter of law. New Haven v. Hotchkiss [Conn.] 58 A. 753. Limitation of five years in deed reserving mine held to apply to right to open mine and not to right to work it after it had been opened. Id. Deed held not to require continuous working of mine after it was opened. Id. Where tenant in common conveyed his interest in land for park purposes, reserving right to open and operate mine thereon, and his cotenant conveyed his interest to same grantee without reservation, held that former had sole and exclusive right to work mine. Id.

91. Coal. Barrett v. Kansas & T. Coal Co. [Kan.] 79 P. 150.

92. Duncan v. American Standard Asphalt Co. [Ky.] 83 S. W. 124.

93. St. 1880, p. 131, c. 118, § 1 is constitutional. Lacy v. Gunn, 144 Cal. 511, 78 P. 30. Assignment for creditors lacking such ratification is void as to mining ground as against corporation, and hence assenting creditors not estopped to contest its validity. Id. The consent of the actual owners of the stock, and not of those who appear to be so, is required. Id. Only stockholders can raise question that corporation's deed was unauthorized. Galbraith v. Shasta Iron Co., 143 Cal. 94, 76 P. 901.

94. Statute for benefit of stockholders. Lacy v. Gunn, 144 Cal. 511, 78 P. 30.

95. Contract whereby plaintiff agreed to transfer to defendant undivided interest in lode on land claimed by former in consideration of defendant's transfer to him of balance held not supported by adequate consideration so as to entitle him to specific performance, where complainant's entry was wholly ineffectual. Traphaagen v. Kirk [Mont.] 77 P. 58.

96. Under contract whereby defendant having oil and gas leases conveyed gas rights to plaintiff, held that on discovery of gas while drilling for oil defendant was bound to deliver possession to plaintiff at its election upon its payment of cost of drilling well, and could not continue operations in effort to find oil in lower stratum. Carnegie Natural Gas Co. v. South Penn Oil Co. [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 548. Contract will be enforced, and injunction will issue to prevent waste of gas pending suit and to enforce final decree. Id. Provision in deed held to constitute exception and not reservation, and that title to coal underlying land remained in grantor and not mere easement to go upon land and mine it. Barrett v. Kansas & T. Coal Co. [Kan.] 79 P. 150. Deed held not ambiguous. Id. Under a contract providing that a deed to a certain mine, which had been placed in escrow, was to be delivered to defendants on payment of certain sums at specified times, that all payments were to be forfeited if the purchase was not completed and requiring defendants to pay a royalty on smelter returns from ores removed by them, to be applied on the purchase price, a failure to make the payments merely terminates defendants' right to purchase, but does not work a rescission of the contract or prevent a recovery of the royalties. Frank v. Bauer [Colo. App.] 75 P. 930. In the absence of any evidence as to the meaning of the words "smelter returns," it will be construed as meaning the returns from the ore less the smelting charges, without deducting hauling, freight and switching charges. Construction of parties adopted. Id.

Under a deed conveying mineral rights, authorizing the grantee to use any timber on the land conveyed for the purpose of constructing works which might be desired in the development of the property, the grantee is entitled to use timber in the construction of a necessary tramway and chute and in building a platform for a crusher and a mill house. Duncan v. American Standard Asphalt Co. [Ky.] 83 S. W. 124. Under a provision giving the grantee a right of way for a railroad, and authorizing him to cut timber for cross-ties, with the exception of chestnut oak, he is not authorized to use wood cut from the right of way, or chestnut trees for fuel. Id.

97. Contract for sale of an oil well in-

In its ordinary commercial sense a mineral is any inorganic substance found in nature, having sufficient value, separated from its situs as part of the earth, to be mined, quarried, or dug for its own sake, or its own specific uses.[99] The word will be presumed to have been used in this sense in deeds reserving all minerals in, under, and upon the land conveyed.[1]

Under a contract for the sale of coal providing that the agreement or option shall be binding for a specified period only, the purchaser may acquire an equitable title by the acceptance of the coal within such time without a tender of the purchase price.[2] A delay of two years on the part of the vendee in seeking to enforce the contract is not such laches as will deprive him of the right to specific performance.[3]

Time is of the essence of an option to purchase mining property.[4] Persons having claims to mining locations are bound to the utmost diligence in enforcing them.[5] The refusal of a trustee to deed an interest in a mining location in compliance with the trust agreement is a repudiation of the trust which entitles complainants to immediate relief, and, if known to them, opens the door to the defense of laches to a suit to enforce the trust.[6]

§ 7. Leases.[7]—The question whether an instrument is a conveyance of the minerals in the land described or a mining lease is one of intention, to be gathered from the whole instrument.[8] A lessor who conveys the land by a deed reciting that it is made subject to the lease thereby recognizes its existence and validity at that time.[9]

An oil mining corporation may lease its lands to others for the purpose of mining for oil, reserving to itself a royalty on the product.[10] duced by false representations as to its production, made by one who was agent of both parties to the transaction, decreed void, and money restored with interest, and lien given for improvements made. Jones v. Draper, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 105.

98. Complaint in action for specific performance held to insufficiently describe property. Traphaagen v. Kirk [Mont.] 77 P. 58. In action to recover portion of mining claim, evidence held not to show contents of lost deed by such direct and positive evidence as to enable court to say that there was in fact a conveyance. Capell v. Fagan [Mont.] 77 P. 55. Evidence held to establish complainant's right to an undivided interest in certain claims held in trust by one of the defendants under an agreement that the property should be divided on repayment of advances made by him, and to entitle complainant to an accounting for the value of claims which he had sold. Fox v. Gunn [C. C. A.] 133 F. 131.

99. Hendler v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 209 Pa. 256, 58 A. 486; Hendler v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 209 Pa. 263, 58 A. 488.

1. Ordinary sand merely worth removing as material for grading not within deed reserving "coal and other minerals." Hendler v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 209 Pa. 256, 58 A. 486. Nor is sand a mineral within Pa. Act May 8, 1876 (P. L. 142) making anyone digging minerals on the land of another without his consent liable for double their value. Hendler v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 209 Pa. 263, 58 A. 488.

2. Pennsylvania M. Co. v. Smith [Pa.] 59 A. 316. Contract held a nine months' option to purchase coal on specified terms. Pennsylvania M. Co. v. Martin [Pa.] 59 A. 436. Where vendor tenders deed and demands payment on last day, delay of vendee in paying price because of defects in title will not enable the vendor to rescind. Penalty not a forfeiture but payment of interest. Pennsylvania M. Co. v. Smith [Pa.] 59 A. 316.

3. Pennsylvania M. Co. v. Martin [Pa.] 59 A. 436.

4. Merk v. Bowery Min. Co. [Mont.] 78 P. 519. Extension of time of payment of purchase price under option held not to extend duration of lease. Id. Plaintiffs held not required to return instalments paid on forfeiture of option to purchase claim on failure to pay price as required by contract. Id. Supplemental agreement held to modify original one and to make failure to pay instalments at time stated a cause of forfeiture of both contracts. Id.

5. Laches may defeat suit in equity to enforce rights in location, though statute of limitations has not run. Patterson v. Hewitt, 25 S. Ct. 35. Delay of eight years after right to a deed to interest in claim has accrued by reason of contribution to work and expense necessary to secure patent will defeat suit to enforce right, where complainants have contributed nothing further to subsequent development resulting in discovery of rich ore deposit. Id.

6. Patterson v. Hewitt, 25 S. Ct. 35.

7. See 2 Curr. L. 899.

8. Agreement held a mining lease and not a conveyance. Tenn. Oil, Gas & Mineral Co. v. Brown [C. C. A.] 131 F. 696.

9. Cannot claim that he has theretofore forfeited it. McConnell v. Pierce, 210 Ill. 627, 71 N. E. 622.

10. Under Tex. Rev. St. 1895, art. 651, giving corporations power to lease lands

In Minnesota the duties of the state auditor, ex officio commissioner of lands, in issuing mining leases of state lands are purely ministerial, and hence his action in refusing a lease cannot be reviewed by certiorari.[11]

An oil and gas lease is, in effect, a sale of the portion of the land.[12] It is not, strictly speaking, a lease in the ordinary sense of the word, but rather in the nature of a written license with a conditional grant conveying the grantor's interest in the gas or oil well on condition that it is found in paying quantities.[13] When gas or oil is found the right to produce it becomes a vested right, and the lessee will be protected in exercising it according to the terms and conditions of his contract.[14]

The lease is not void for uncertainty because its duration extends so long as gas or oil may be found in paying quantities.[15] A lease requiring the lessee to sink a well within a certain time, or to pay a stipulated rental during the time drilling is delayed, and to pay a certain royalty on all gas and oil, is not void for want of mutuality.[16]

There is a conflict of authority as to whether a mining lease terminable at the will of the lessee is terminable at the will of the lessor.[17] It has been held that a provision that if the lessee shall at any time become satisfied that wells put in operation are not paying he may surrender the lease and remove the machinery and be released from all further obligations does not give him an arbitrary right to terminate the lease at pleasure, or make him a tenant at will.[18] If the well is actually paying, he cannot terminate the lease by merely asserting that it is not.[19] Under such a clause the lease is terminated as to unprofitable wells only.[20]

when not inconsistent with the corporate purpose. Not ultra vires as rendering it impossible to further prosecute corporate business. Stark v. Guffey Petroleum Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1080.

11. Lease under Laws 1895, c. 105, p. 227, as amended by Laws 1903, c. 225, p. 330. Refusal to grant application for mineral lease of land under bed of meandered lake, constituting public waters. State v. Iverson [Minn.] 100 N. W. 91.

12. Held, in view of circumstances and surroundings at time will was made, that it was not testator's intention to authorize executor to make such a lease. Where, prior to its execution, he had acquired interest of some legatees, he was estopped to deny validity of lease in so far as his interest was concerned. Lanyon Zinc Co. v. Freeman, 68 Kan. 691, 75 P. 995.

13. Dickey v. Coffeyville Vitrified Brick & Tile Co. [Kan.] 76 P. 398.

14. Carr v. Huntington Light & Fuel Co. [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 552; Dickey v. Coffeyville Vitrified Brick & Tile Co. [Kan.] 76 P. 398.

15. Dickey v. Coffeyville Vitrified Brick & Tile Co. [Kan.] 76 P. 398. Defendant held not estopped to claim ownership of lease assigned to it by original lessee, where plaintiff took deed to land subject to lease, which was recorded, and had notice of assignment. Id.

16. Armitage v. Mt. Sterling Oil & Gas Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 2262, 80 S. W. 177.

17. A mining lease terminable at the will of the lessee is terminable at the will of either party. Tenn. Oil, Gas & Mineral Co. v. Brown [C. C. A.] 131 F. 696.

Texas: Terminable at will of either applies where terminable by lessee on payment of nominal consideration. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Oliver [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 884. The lessor in such case must pay or tender to the lessee the value of all labor done and services rendered by him. Id.

Ohio: Oil and gas lease for indefinite period providing for reconveyance by lessee held terminable at will of lessee only. Central Ohio Nat. Gas & Fuel Co. v. Eckert, 70 Ohio St. 127, 71 N. E. 281. A grant of all the oil and gas under and in a certain tract of land to a corporation, its successors and assigns, without limitation as to time, the latter agreeing to drill a well within a specified time, or to pay an annual rental until it does so or reconveys the property, and providing that the corporation may reconvey the property at any time is, after the expiration of such period, and until a well is drilled, a lease at the specified annual rental, at the will of the lessee only. Lessor cannot terminate for failure to drill well within time specified. Id. One dollar and an agreement to pay an annual rental is a good consideration for an option on the part of the lessee to terminate the lease or keep it in force indefinitely by payment of the stipulated rental. Id.

In Indiana a contract giving one the right to explore for and remove natural gas and oil for an indefinite period does not create a tenancy at will within Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 7089. Hancock v. Diamond Plate Glass Co., 162 Ind. 146, 70 N. E. 149.

18. Hence not terminable at will of lessor. Dickey v. Coffeyville Vitrified Brick & Tile Co. [Kan.] 76 P. 398.

19. Can be determined by deducting cost of production from market value of product. Dickey v. Coffeyville Vitrified Brick & Tile Co. [Kan.] 76 P. 398.

As in the case of other contracts, the court in construing a mineral,[21] or oil and gas lease, will, if possible, give effect to all its parts, and its meaning will be determined from a consideration of all its provisions taken together as a whole.[22] The construction placed upon it by the parties will, if possible, be followed.[23] One purchasing land with knowledge of the existence of a contract for the sale of the oil and gas therein, and the construction which the parties have placed thereon, is not an innocent purchaser, and is bound by such construction.[24]

Under a lease providing that the rent, when due, shall be deposited in the bank, a deposit therein is a payment of the rent.[25] The lessee, knowing nothing of the conveyance of the premises, is not in default where he pays rent to the original lessor, where the deed has not been recorded.[26]

The intention of the parties governs as to whether time is of the essence of the contract.[27] It will be considered to be so where the contract provides that it shall be void if its conditions are not fulfilled within the prescribed time.[28]

Applications of the ordinary rules in regard to covenants for title will be found elsewhere.[29]

Oil and gas leases are construed most strongly against the lessee and in favor of the lessor.[30] Under a lease providing that it is to be void unless the lessee sinks a test well within a certain time, or pays a stipulated rental during the time drilling is delayed, the rights of the lessee will not be extended, on failure

20. Declaration that one well is unprofitable does not avoid entire lease. Dickey v. Coffeyville Vitrified Brick & Tile Co. [Kan.] 76 P. 398.

21. Evidence in action by administrator to recover royalty on ore mined under lease held to show that no royalty was due. Defendant not liable for royalty on tailings. Steer v. Dwyer, 104 Mo. App. 523, 79 S. W. 738. Mining lease held not to give lessee right to use timber to build houses for employes. Lewis v. Virginia Carolina Chemical Co. [S. C.] 48 S. E. 280.

22. Under lease for 12 years and so long thereafter as petroleum "can be produced in paying quantities," or certain annual payments, provided for in case of delay in commencing operations, are made, and providing for payment of royalties on oil and gas, held that actual consideration contemplated was the development of the property, and lessee could not, by making annual payments, hold property for more than 12 years without commencing to drill well. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. Granger [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 395. Under lease giving lessees right to remove machinery and fixtures at any time, they do not become part of realty but may be removed within reasonable time after forfeiture of lease for nonpayment of rental. Gartlan v. Hickman [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 14. What is reasonable time to be determined from all the facts and circumstances. Id. Oil lease construed and lessor held chargeable with half cost of drilling unproductive well, including preliminary work of preparing ground, erecting derrick, etc. (Far West Oil Co. v. Witmer Bros. Co., 143 Cal. 306, 77 P. 61), and half actual cost reasonably incurred in pumping productive wells, though it might have been possible to have had work done for less money (Id.). Evidence held not to show account stated. Id. A provision in a gas lease whereby the lessee is to equip the house of the lessor for the use of natural gas and to furnish natural gas free does not require the furnishing of free gas for lights outside of the house. Gillespie v. Iseman [Pa.] 59 A. 266.

23. Gillespie v. Iseman [Pa.] 59 A. 266. The construction adopted by the lessor and his successor cannot be changed by one purchasing the property more than six years after it was made. Id.

24. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. Leer [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 283.

25. Averment that rent was not paid includes by implication an averment that it was not deposited. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. Lee [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 492. Complaint in action for damages for failure to furnish gas under gas lease held to aver sufficient facts from which measure of damages could be determined. Id.

26. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. Lee [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 492. An averment that no rents have been paid since a certain date will be construed as an averment that none have been paid to plaintiff, and not as negativing payments to his grantor, who was the original lessor. Id. In suit to quiet title against gas lease, complaint held insufficient in failing to properly set out provisions in lease requiring payment of rent and furnishing of gas, so as to show right of forfeiture. Lease not being basis of suit, a copy of it made an exhibit could not be considered in aid of complaint. Id.

27. Montrozona Gold M. Co. v. Thatcher [Colo. App.] 75 P. 595.

28. Time of essence of covenant in lease to sink shaft 100 feet by day named. Montrozona Gold M. Co. v. Thatcher [Colo. App.] 75 P. 595.

29. See Covenants for Title, 3 Curr. L. 973; Landlord and Tenant, § 5, 4 Curr. L. 394. Jennings-Heywood Oil Syndicate v. Home Oil & Devel. Co., 113 La. 383, 37 So. 1.

30, 31. Armitage v. Mt. Sterling Oil & Gas Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 2262, 80 S. W. 177.

to drill the well within the stipulated time, by a mere offer to pay such rental, if the lessor elects to treat the lease as terminated.[31]

Where contiguous tracts are leased by their owners as one tract and the lease is silent as to the division of the royalty between the lessors, parol evidence is admissible to show an agreement in regard to such division.[32]

A provision that the lease shall continue until a certain date and as much longer thereafter as oil or gas shall be found in paying quantities requires that the oil or gas shall be actually discovered and produced in paying quantities within the term.[33] A finding of indications of oil, or the existence of conditions rendering it probable that oil in paying quantities will be found if the well is operated in a certain way, is not sufficient, of itself, to extend the term.[34] An agreement to pay rental or royalty until, in the judgment of the lessee, oil or gas cannot be found on the premises, or, having been found, has ceased to exist, does not contemplate an arbitrary judgment as to its existence,[35] but there must be an honest judgment justifiable by the results of a bona fide investigation.[36]

The duty of exploring for minerals requires a search for all those named in the lease which may reasonably be expected to be found, considering the known geological conditions.[37] The testing must be so thoroughly done as to determine, not only their presence, but their commercial value, considering their abundance and accessibility.[38] Where the lessee contracts to operate the mine in a workmanlike manner and to pay the lessor a royalty, there is an implied covenant to work the mine with reasonable diligence.[39] So too under a lease requiring the lessee to search for minerals he must do so within a reasonable time or he will be deemed to have abandoned his rights.[40]

An agreement giving one the right to explore for and mine oil and gas under certain property implies a duty on his part to make the exploration within a reasonable time, and a failure to do so entitles the owner to a forfeiture,[41] notwithstanding the expenditure of money and labor by the lessee.[42] It is proper in such case to show the amount of oil land under lease by defendant, and its efforts to acquire other tracts.[43]

32. To show that it should be paid to owner of particular tract from which oil is produced. Rymer v. South Penn Oil Co., 54 W. Va. 530, 46 S. E. 559.

33. Murdock-West Co. v. Logan, 69 Ohio St. 514, 69 N. E. 984.

34. Murdock-West Co. v. Logan, 69 Ohio St. 514, 69 N. E. 984. Even if certain payments were payments of rent and operated to extend the time within which oil might be sought for, the failure to thereafter make payments operated to terminate lease. Id.

35. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Littler, 162 Ind. 320, 70 N. E. 363. The court, in construing such a contract, will take judicial notice of the fact that gas or oil does not exist in paying quantities under all the lands within a recognized district, and that the only generally acknowledged way to determine whether it exists or not is by putting down a well. Id.

36. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Littler, 162 Ind. 320, 70 N. E. 363.

37. Tenn. Oil, Gas & Mineral Co. v. Brown [C. C. A.] 131 F. 696.

38. Information resulting should be such as prudent and experienced investor would require before developing mine. Superficial exploration held insufficient. Tenn. Oil, Gas & Mineral Co. v. Brown [C. C. A.] 131 F. 696.

39. Price v. Black [Iowa] 101 N. W. 1056.

40. Failure to make more than superficial search for over fifteen years held abandonment. Tenn. Oil, Gas & Mineral Co. v. Brown [C. C. A.] 131 F. 696.

41. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Littler, 162 Ind. 320, 70 N. E. 363; Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. Leer [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 283; Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Worth [Ind.] 71 N. E. 489. The mere fact that defendant has broken the implied covenant to develop and operate the land for oil does not give the owner the right to have the contract forfeited and canceled. Carr v. Huntington Light & Fuel Co. [Ind. App.] 70 N. E. 552. Complaint praying that plaintiff's title to the land be quieted "except a one-half acre tract surrounding each of said three wells" insufficiently describes the property. Id. The law implies a condition in an oil and gas lease, executed in consideration of royalties reserved to the lessor, for diligence, good faith, and reasonable development, and lease is subject to forfeiture for breach thereof. Instructions approved. Petition held to state good cause of action. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Oliver [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 884.

42, 43. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Oliver [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 884.

A contract giving one the exclusive right to put down a gas well, and providing that it shall terminate when natural gas shall cease to be used for manufacturing purposes, or when the rental shall not be paid for a certain period, is not terminated by the mere failure to pay such rental.[44] The owner of the property in such case may either elect to put an end to the contract and recover what is due him, or may waive the forfeiture and enforce payments as provided for in the contract.[45]

Forfeitures are not favored and contracts looking to them will be strictly construed.[46] If the causes for a forfeiture of a lease are distinctly specified and recited therein, courts will not decree a forfeiture for breaches of other provisions for which the parties themselves have not prescribed that penalty.[47] The owner must give a reasonable notice of his intention to declare a forfeiture.[48] A demand for a forfeiture at a time when he is not entitled to it is without legal significance.[49] It is equivalent to a denial of the company's right to enter on the land for the purpose of making explorations and hence cannot operate as a notice to it to do so.[50] The failure of the lessee to commence operations after the owner declares the lease forfeited cannot be regarded as a lack of diligence resulting in a forfeiture.[51] In the absence of a provision to that effect, the mere abandonment of an unproductive well will not work a forfeiture of an oil and gas lease.[52] The fact that the owner takes possession after such abandonment is not inconsistent with continuing the contract in force.[53]

A mere refusal to accept a sum which the contract requires to be paid annually until gas or oil is found does not work an immediate termination of the contract, but is an objection to further delay and requires the operator to proceed to drill for gas or oil within a reasonable time.[54] What is a reasonable time depends upon the circumstances of the particular case.[55] An agreement for de-

44. Hancock v. Diamond Plate Glass Co., 162 Ind. 146, 70 N. E. 149.

45. Mere naked default or nonperformance of agreement to pay certain sum for delay does not discharge operator. Hancock v. Diamond Plate Glass Co., 162 Ind. 146, 70 N. E. 149. Complaint in action for damages for breach of contract whereby defendant, in consideration of exclusive right to put down gas well, agreed to pay certain sum yearly until well was bored, and to furnish plaintiff with free gas, held sufficient. Id.

46. McConnell v. Pierce, 210 Ill. 627, 71 N. E. 622; Price v. Black [Iowa] 101 N. W. 1056. Will not be decreed in favor of one who has assented to or induced the condition of which he complains. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Ink [Ind.] 71 N. E. 477; Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Littler, 162 Ind. 320, 70 N. E. 363; Logansport & Wabash Valley Gas Co. v. Ross, 32 Ind. App. 638, 70 N. E. 544; Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Crystal Window Glass Co. [Ind.] 70 N. E. 366.

47. Where company was to commence operations in county within six months, but only provision for forfeiture was in case well was not completed in three years, a suit brought before expiration of three years was premature, where there was no averment that company could not have performed latter condition within time specified. Armitage v. Mt. Sterling Oil & Gas Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 2262, 80 S. W. 177.

48. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Littler, 162 Ind. 320, 70 N. E. 363; Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Howard [Ind.] 71 N. E. 493; Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Crystal Window Glass Co. [Ind.] 70 N. E. 366. Complaint in suit to cancel contract insufficient because not showing any breach by defendant. Logansport & Wabash Valley Gas Co. v. Ross, 32 Ind. App. 638, 70 N. E. 544. Must show that conduct was not such as to mislead company to reasonable belief that further postponement would be granted. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Ink [Ind.] 71 N. E. 477.

49. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Ink [Ind.] 71 N. E. 477.

50. Oil and gas lease. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Ink [Ind.] 71 N. E. 477.

51. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Worth [Ind.] 71 N. E. 489.

52, 53. Logansport & Wabash Valley Gas Co. v. Ross, 32 Ind. App. 638, 70 N. E. 544.

54. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Littler, 162 Ind. 320, 70 N. E. 363; Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Howard [Ind.] 71 N. E. 493; Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Crystal Window Glass Co. [Ind.] 70 N. E. 366. On failure to do so forfeiture may be declared. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Worth [Ind.] 71 N. E. 489. Cannot commence suit to cancel contract within 15 days after refusal to accept annual payment for delay provided for in contract. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Littler, 162 Ind. 320, 70 N. E. 363.

55. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Worth [Ind.] 71 N. E. 489.

lay procured through fraud does not prevent a forfeiture.[56] Equity will not relieve a party from a forfeiture unless he can show good and sufficient reasons for noncompliance with the terms of the contract.[57]

The owner may waive his right to a forfeiture.[58] The right to forfeit an oil and gas lease is waived by accepting in advance an annual payment required by the contract to be made until oil or gas is found.[59] Where the lessor has done acts amounting to a waiver, his assignee acquires no right to declare a forfeiture for the same cause.[60]

Abandonment of a lease is a question of intent, to be arrived at from all the evidence.[61] Lapse of time is evidence of abandonment, but is not conclusive.[62]

The death of the owner does not terminate the lease, though possession has not been taken thereunder.[63] A tenant, under an oil lease from a life tenant, who continues to take oil after the latter's death, is liable to the remainderman in trespass.[64]

Injunction will lie to prevent the invasion by a stranger of a tract on which plaintiff has the exclusive right to bore oil and gas wells, under an unexpired lease, and the threatened boring of a well by him for the purpose of extracting oil and gas without plaintiff's consent, whether he has actually made the entry or not, since the damages resulting therefrom would be difficult of ascertainment.[65]

The measure of damages for taking oil from the land of another unlawfully but under claim of right is the difference between what it sold for in the market and the cost of production.[66] The measure of damages for the use of timber by

56. By concealing fact that oil had been found in paying quantities. Instructions approved. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Oliver [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 884. Held question for jury whether there was an obligation on part of defendant to prosecute development and fraudulent purpose to delay, notwithstanding agreement between plaintiff and defendant as to settlement of title. Id.

57. Equity will not relieve from forfeiture were work was not commenced until 11 months after lease was made, or though it was sunk 100 feet 9 days after time expired. Montrozona G. M. Co. v. Thatcher [Colo. App.] 75 P. 595.

58. Evidence held to sustain finding that there was no waiver of covenant to sink shaft by certain date. Montrozona G. M. Co. v. Thatcher [Colo. App.] 75 P. 595. Lessor of asphalt land held to have assented to assignment and thereby waived breach of lease. Warner v. Cochrane [C. C. A.] 128 F. 553. Where lease of asphalt land provided that if on certain date lessees had not paid royalty on certain number of tons, they should then pay difference between amount paid and amount equal to royalty on such number, and if lessees had then performed all conditions, lessor covenanted to renew at lessees' option, held that conditions for renewal and payment were concurrent, and lessor refusing to renew could not recover such differential payment. Id. On such refusal lessees could either tender such payment and insist on renewal, or refuse payment and treat contract as at an end. Id.

59. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Littler, 162 Ind. 320, 70 N. E. 363. Acceptance of payment for year is waiver of performance for that year. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Worth [Ind.] 71 N. E. 489; Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Howard [Ind.] 71 N. E. 493. Where contract provides for furnishing free gas in lieu of rental, its acceptance prevents forfeiture, though gas was not furnished from wells developed on premises and no other rent was paid. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. Leer [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 283. The acceptance of such sum annually in advance for several years precludes the owner from claiming a forfeiture before the expiration of the year for which the last payment has been made. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Ink [Ind.] 71 N. E. 477.

60. Waived right to forfeit mineral lease by recognizing its validity in conveyance of the property. McConnell v. Pierce, 210 Ill. 627, 71 N. E. 622.

61. Price v. Black [Iowa] 101 N. W. 1056. Question of fact. Evidence sufficient to sustain finding that there was no abandonment of oil and gas lease. Dickey v. Coffeyville Vitrified Brick & Tile Co. [Kan.] 76 P. 398. There may be such conduct on the part of the lessee as amounts to an abandonment which will work a forfeiture of the lease. Evidence held not to show abandonment of coal lease. Price v. Black [Iowa] 101 N. W. 1056.

62. Price v. Black [Iowa] 101 N. W. 1056.

63. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. Leer [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 283.

64. Crawford v. Forest Oil Co., 208 Pa. 5, 57 A. 47.

65. Complaint held to show that lease had not been terminated and to be sufficient on demurrer. American Steel & Wire Co. v. Taté [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 189.

66. Crawford v. Forest Oil Co., 208 Pa. 5, 57 A. 47.

a lessee under a mining lease for unauthorized purposes, but under a mistaken belief that he had a right to use it, is its value on the stump with interest from the date of the conversion.[67]

§ 8. Working contracts.[68]—The right to enter upon real estate and dig for and remove ore is an interest in land, and hence the statute of frauds requires contracts concerning it to be in writing.[69]

The terms of a contract giving one the right to sink a shaft on and mine coal under the lands of another control the extent of such right.[70]

An agreement giving one an option to purchase certain property with the privilege of prospecting and mining thereon for a certain period is a license coupled with an interest.[71] Where the licensees go into possession, perform labor, and make expenditures in pursuance thereof, it becomes irrevocable, and they are entitled to exclusive possession while the agreement remains in force.[72] A parol license to mine on the land of another is revocable at the option of the licensor, notwithstanding the fact that an express promise was made at the time it was granted that it would not be revoked, and that expense has been incurred and improvements made on the strength thereof.[73] The fact that a custom or usage exists allowing the licensee to remain and work out his prospect against the will of the owner does not change the rule.[74]

Under an agreement giving one an option to purchase certain property with a license to prospect and mine thereon, for a certain period, all ore susceptible of milling to be sold by the owner and the net proceeds to be applied on the purchase price, the net proceeds are to be computed by deducting the cost of mining from the gross sum produced, and, in case it is shipped and reduced, also deducting the expense of freighting, sacking, and milling.[75] The rule is the same whether the action is on the contract for damages for failure to turn over the ore to the owner, or for the recovery of ore sold by the licensees to another.[76]

An agreement between two or more persons to explore the public domain and discover and locate a mining claim or claims, for the joint benefit of all, is not within the statute of frauds, and need not be in writing.[77] In determining whether it constitutes a partnership, the intention of the parties as disclosed by the nature and effect of the whole contract and acts done thereunder must control.[78] If, in pursuance of the agreement, one of the parties locates a claim in his own name, he holds the legal title to the interests of the others in trust for them.[79]

The existence of a grub-stake agreement need not be proved beyond a reasonable doubt.[80] The ordinary rules of construction apply to such contracts.[81]

67. Lewis v. Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. [S. C.] 48 S. E. 280.

68. See 2 Curr. L. 902.

69. See Frauds, Statute of, § 7, 3 Curr. L. 1529. Entwhistle v. Henke, 211 Ill. 273, 71 N. E. 990.

70. Contract held to give no right to remove coal mined on other land through shaft on plaintiff's land. Moore v. Price [Iowa] 101 N. W. 91. Evidence insufficient to authorize reformation of contract in that regard. Id.

71, 72. Hall v. Abraham, 44 Or. 477, 75 P. 882.

73. Entwhistle v. Henke, 211 Ill. 273, 71 N. E. 990.

74. Evidence conflicting as to existence of custom. Entwhistle v. Henke, 211 Ill. 273, 71 N. E. 990.

75, 76. Hall v. Abraham, 44 Or. 477, 75 P. 882.

77, 78. Shea v. Nilima [C. C. A.] 133 F. 209.

79. Agreement between aliens not void, and one subsequently declaring his intention of becoming citizen may recover his interest in claim located in name of other. Shea v. Nilima [C. C. A.] 133 F. 209. Complaint sufficient. Id. Delay of between one and two years held not such laches as to bar recovery, where defendants not prejudiced thereby. Id.

80. Action to establish trust in claim. Rule requiring one seeking to establish trust contrary to express terms of deed to make out case clearly and satisfactorily beyond a reasonable doubt does not apply. Location notice not of dignity and solemnity of sealed

Money paid under a contract to develop a mine may be recovered if it is not used for the purposes specified.[82]

Drainage.—Where mines have a common drainage, and the draining of one necessarily drains the other, the cost of such drainage should be divided in proportion to the benefits derived therefrom.[83]

§ 9. Public mining regulations.[84]—The statutes of Pennsylvania authorize the summary removal of an inspector of mines for neglect of duty, incompetency, or malfeasance in office, on petition of fifty reputable coal miners, after a hearing by the court.[85] The proceedings must show clear statutory authority and follow the statutory provisions strictly.[86] The statute does not authorize a petition for removal because of ineligibility for the appointment, or want of confidence in the inspector by the miners.[87] The remedy for ineligibility or want of jurisdiction to appoint is by quo warranto.[88]

The statutes of Indiana provide both a criminal and a civil liability for the failure of owners of land or persons in control of wells to plug abandoned wells sunk for natural gas or oil.[89] In so far as the statute provides for criminal liability it must be strictly construed.[90] The act does not apply to one having a mere right to explore and operate on such land for oil and gas, and no duty rests on him to plug abandoned wells which he finds there.[91]

Matters relating to the liability of mine owners for injuries to their employes are treated elsewhere.[92]

§ 10. Statutory liens and charges.[93]—The statutes of California give a lien on mining claims to any person performing work thereon,[94] and make anyone having charge of any mining or of the erection or alteration of any building thereon, the agent of the owner for the purposes of such act.[95] The labor must be performed instrument. Morrow v. Mathew [Idaho] 79 P. 196. Evidence sufficient to sustain findings that contract was entered into, and was performed by plaintiff on his part, and that defendant was seeking to avoid its terms. Id. Plaintiff held not guilty of such laches as to bar recovery. Id. Where one of the defendants had disposed of his interest held proper to take plaintiff's interest out of holdings of other, both being guilty of fraud and conspiracy. Id.

81. Contract between plaintiff and defendant held not to entitle former to interest in mining lease purchased by latter in company with others, where he had notice of facts but failed to claim interest until claim had been developed. McKenzie v. Coslett [Nev.] 78 P. 976.

82. Money expended in cutting inclines, drifts and winzes, which either helped defendant directly in getting at its own ore, or developed workings which might have shown ore belonging to defendant if they had not proved barren. Empire Mill. & Min. Co. v. Tombstone Mill. & Min. Co., 131 F. 339.

83. Cost equally divided. Fisk M. & M. Co. v. Reed [Colo.] 77 P. 240. A contract by defendant to pay "its just and proper proportion" of draining contiguous mines held sufficiently definite. Complaint held to sufficiently state amount for which defendant was liable. Id. Averment that pumping was at defendant's request held unnecessary. Id. Contract having been executed held not void for want of mutuality. Id. Evidence held to support findings that mines had common drainage and that plaintiff, by draining its own mine, drained that of defendant. Id. Evidence sufficient to establish contract sued on, and defendant liable for half cost incurred both before and after it was made. Id. Fact that defendant had no control over plaintiff's pumping operations held not to prevent its entering into binding agreement to have them carried on for its benefit. Id. Defendant estopped to deny authority of agent to make contract. Id.

84. See 2 Curr. L. 902.

85. Act June 8, 1901, § 19 (P. L. 545). In re Martin, 209 Pa. 266, 58 A. 478.

86, 87, 88. In re Martin, 209 Pa. 266, 58 A. 478.

89. Acts 1893, pp. 300, 301, c. 36, §§ 2-5, as amended by Acts 1899, p. 82, c. 61; Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 7511-7514. McDonald v. Carlin [Ind.] 71 N. E. 961.

90. McDonald v. Carlin [Ind.] 71 N. E. 961.

91. McDonald v. Carlin [Ind.] 71 N. E. 961. Where a lessee plugged an abandoned well and firm which had sunk it agreed that, if he would furnish them with work in sinking other wells, he could deduct from the amount due therefor the cost of such plugging, held that the furnishing of such work was a sufficient consideration for such agreement, whether or not the plugging was done in the manner prescribed by law. Nothing to show that agreement required it to be so plugged. Id.

92. See Master and Servant, 4 Curr. L. 533.

93. See 2 Curr. L. 902. See, also, Mechanics' Liens, 4 Curr. L. 615.

94, 95. Code Civ. Proc. § 1183. Williams v Hawley, 144 Cal. 97, 77 P. 762.

in the actual work of mining or developing the claim.[96] One not expressly authorized by the owner cannot be held to be his agent under this act unless he is engaged in doing some work upon the mine itself for the purpose of extracting ores therefrom.[97]

§ 11. Remedies and procedure peculiar to mining rights.[98]—In an action to recover possession of a mining claim, plaintiff cannot prevail against a defendant having prior possession under color of title, who did not by actual force oust him of actual possession.[99]

Where neither party has a perfected right to have a conveyance of title from the government, and the requirements of the statute providing for suits to determine questions respecting conflicting mining claims have not been complied with, the court can only adjudicate plaintiff's right to the exclusive possession of the land.[1] The struggle is for possession only, and the parties cannot have a judicial determination as to which shall ultimately prevail in a contest for title.[2]

One suing to recover legal and actual possession of a claim which his grantor located as a placer claim assumes the burden of establishing a right of possession superior to the rights of defendants evidenced by their prior actual possession.[3] He must prove affirmatively that his grantor complied technically with all of the requirements of the law in locating it, and that the land embraced in the claim was in fact public land of the United States which the law authorized him to locate and take into his exclusive possession as a placer claim.[4] Where defendant has not molested plaintiff or interfered with his possession otherwise than by continuing to hold possession in the same manner as before plaintiff attempted to lay out his claim, the burden is on the latter to show that defendant was a mere intruder, having no color of title or right to possession.[5]

Where one of two joint tenants of a mining claim fraudulently surrenders possession to third parties, his co-tenant cannot maintain ejectment against them, but his remedy is in equity.[6] A bill averring that defendants' title was acquired under a relocation made in pursuance of a fraudulent conspiracy with plaintiff's partner, whereby the latter was to fail in his duty to perfect the original location, is sufficient to entitle plaintiff to treat defendants as trustees ex maleficio, and to recover from them as such trustees the materials taken from the mine.[7] An injunction restraining further mining during the pendency of the suit will issue where it appears that some of the defendants are insolvent.[8]

Under a statute providing that ejectment may be maintained by pleading and proving that plaintiff is entitled to possession and that defendant dispossessed him before the commencement of the action, one in possession of a mining claim under a lease, and claiming possession to the boundary lines may maintain ejectment against one entering on a part of the claim not actually occupied because the lessee did not know where the lines were.[9]

96. No lien for services of watchman caring for mine while it is idle. Williams v. Hawley, 144 Cal. 97, 77 P. 762.

97. Not sufficient to show that he was in possession under contract with owner under which he was empowered to make improvements and prosecute development work. Contracts inadmissible. Williams v. Hawley, 144 Cal. 97, 77 P. 762.

98. See 2 Curr. L. 903.

99. Under Rev. St. U. S. § 910 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 697), the case is to be determined by the law of possession. Bevis v. Markland, 130 F. 226.

1. Bevis v. Markland, 130 F. 226.

2. Bevis v. Markland, 130 F. 226; Columbia C. M. Co. v. Duchess M., M. & S. Co. [Wyo.] 79 P. 385. Award of damages held supported by evidence. Columbia C. M. Co. v. Duchess M., M. & S. Co. [Wyo.] 79 P. 385.

3, 4, 5. Bevis v. Markland, 130 F. 226.

6. Lockhart v. Leeds, 25 S. Ct. 76. Bill held to sufficiently aver time of discovery of fraudulent conspiracy, and that it was not discovered until after expiration of time within which complainant could file location notice. Id.

7, 8. Lockhart v. Leeds, 25 S. Ct. 76.

9. Under Ariz. Rev. St. 1887, pars. 3135, 3137, 3139. Such entry is an ouster. Com-

In an action to quiet title to an oil claim, plaintiffs must recover, if at all, on the strength of their own title.[10]

An order granting the right to inspect the underground workings of a mine should determine and fix the means of access thereto,[11] and should limit the examination to the workings of which it is necessary for the plaintiffs to have knowledge and to make surveys and maps.[12] Requiring the owner to lower and hoist the inspectors into the mine by means of its own appliances is not objectionable as a taking or damaging of its property without first making just compensation therefor.[13] The person seeking it must pay the cost of such inspection.[14] It is improper for the court to fix the cost of lowering the inspectors into and hoisting them from the mine without hearing evidence in regard to it.[15]

MINISTERS OF STATE; MINUTES; MISJOINDER, see latest topical index.

MISTAKE AND ACCIDENT.[16]

§ 1. Definitions; Elements (674).
§ 2. Relief Against (675).
§ 3. Procedure to Obtain Relief (676).

§ 1. Definitions; elements.[17]—A mistake of fact is always a mental condition or conception.[18] A mutual mistake is one reciprocal and common to both parties, where each alike labored under the same misconception in respect to the terms of the written instrument.[19] Mistake, to be ground for equitable relief, must be of a material nature, and must be the determining ground of the transaction.[20] A mistake arising from an erroneous view of the legal effect of a deed in the chain of title is a mistake of fact against which equity will grant relief.[21]

plaint and evidence sufficient to support judgment for plaintiff. Molina v. Luce [Ariz.] 76 P. 602. Evidence sufficient to sustain finding that part of claim located by defendants was within boundaries of previously located claim owned by plaintiffs. Id.

10. Weed v. Snook, 144 Cal. 439, 77 P. 1023.

11, 12, 13. State v. District Court [Mont.] 76 P. 206.

14. Mont. Code Civ. Proc. § 1317. State v. District Court [Mont.] 76 P. 206.

15. State v. District Court [Mont.] 76 P. 206.

16. This article treats only of mistake or accident as ground for equitable relief, affirmative or defensive. As ground for new trial, see New Trial and Arrest of Judgment, 2 Curr. L. 1037. See, also, the topics Equity, 3 Curr. L. 1210; Cancellation of Instruments, 3 Curr. L. 584; Reformation of Instruments, 2 Curr. L. 1492; Specific Performance, 2 Curr. L. 1678; also such titles as Contracts, 3 Curr. L. 805; Deeds of Conveyance, 3 Curr. L. 1056; Gifts, 3 Curr. L. 1560.

17. See 2 Curr. L. 903.

18. It may be either active or passive. When active, the mental condition or belief may be that a certain matter or thing exists which really does not exist, or that a subject-matter or thing existed at some past time which did not really exist. Barker v. Fitzgerald, 204 Ill. 525, 68 N. E. 430.

19. Coleman v. Illinois Life Ins. Co., 82 S. W. 616.

20. Where a mistaken belief that an adopted daughter would inherit from her adopted parents, under a legislative act which was in fact never passed, did not determine the adopted mother's action in giving property to the daughter, the property could not be recovered after the daughter's death. White v. Dotter [Ark.] 83 S. W. 1052. A party is entitled to relief on the ground of mistake, only if such mistake was material to the transaction affecting its substance, and so important that it determined the conduct of the mistaken party or parties. Relief granted where a lease was made under the mistaken belief that the walls of the building were strong enough to support contemplated additional stories. Barker v. Fitzgerald, 204 Ill. 525, 68 N. E. 430. A mutual mistake of 23 feet in the depth of a city lot would be sufficiently substantial to warrant the intervention of equity, if established by the required proof. Albro v. Gowland, 90 N. Y. S. 796. An alien may not have a contract for the exchange of lands rescinded on the ground that he was mistaken as to his legal right to acquire and hold realty and the other party's mistake as to his alienage, since such contract was not void, but could have been perfected by his naturalization. Pembroke v. Huston, 180 Mo. 627, 79 S. W. 470. A sale of growing timber was at a stipulated price per acre, and a certain sum was paid in advance. Upon the survey it was found that the total acreage amounted to less than the sum already paid. Held, Civ. Code 1895, §§ 3974, 3983, 3984, as to when equity will grant relief for mistake, do not apply; and that vendee may recover the excess paid vendor. Martin v. Peddy, 120 Ga. 1079, 48 S. E. 420.

21. As where the parties to a mortgage intended to cover husband's interest in land,

While reasonable diligence is required, relief on the ground of a mutual mistake will not be denied where it appears only that complainant might, had he done all in his power, have ascertained the truth.[22]

§ 2. Relief against.[23]—Reformation of a written instrument will be decreed by a court of equity only where the mistake is mutual;[24] or where there is a mistake on one side, and either fraud, surprise, undue influence, misapprehension, imposition, or like cause on the other;[25] or where the contract, as written, does not express the intended agreement of both.[26] Rescission or cancellation of the contract may be decreed either for a mutual[27] or unilateral mistake,[28] provided the situation is such that the parties may be placed in statu quo.[29] Equity will not grant relief for mistake of one party resulting from his own negligence.[30] Thus failure to read a written instrument executed by a party precludes relief,[31] unless he was unable to read,[32] or the other party was guilty of fraud.[33] erroneously supposed a deed to the wife, pursuant to an execution sale against the husband, was valid. Livingstone v. Murphy [Mass.] 72 N. E. 1012.

22. Barker v. Fitzgerald, 204 Ill. 525, 68 N. E. 430.

23. See 2 Curr. L. 904.

24. Coleman v. Illinois Life Ins. Co., 82 S. W. 616; Jones v. Warren, 134 N. C. 390, 46 S. E. 740. Where by mutual mistake of parties, certain lands included in a contract were expressly reserved and excepted in the deed, equity gave the appropriate relief. Pinchback v. Bessemer Min. & Mfg. Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 106.

25. Jones v. Warren, 134 N. C. 390, 46 S. E. 740. Neither law nor equity will relieve against mistakes unless they are mutual, or unless the mistake of one party was brought about by the conduct of the other. Finks v. Hollis [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 463.

26. Equity has jurisdiction to reform a deed which by mistake of the draftsman does not convey the estate intended. Nutall v. Nutall [Ky.] 82 S. W. 377. Where parties through ignorance, inadvertence or lack of appreciation of their acts, have executed a writing which when legally construed does not contain the intended contract, the instrument may be reformed by equity so as to embody the intended agreement. Deed reformed so as not to release a covenant against use of the property for saloon purposes. Uihlein v. Matthews, 93 App. Div. 57, 86 N. Y. S. 924.

27. A mutual mistake as to the extent, to a material degree, of the interest to be conveyed, is ground for relief. Castleman v. Castleman [Mo.] 83 S. W. 757. Where both parties to a conveyance executed it under the mistaken belief that their grandmother had made an election to take a child's part of an estate, and not a half interest for life given her by will, there was a mutual mistake of fact, for which equity would set aside the deed. Id.

28. Coleman v. Illinois Life Ins. Co., 82 S. W. 616. A bidder on a public building who, by excusable mistake, omitted an estimate on a part of the work and made a bid several thousand dollars lower than he intended, is entitled to have his bid rescinded, and to recover his deposit, having notified the board receiving bids promptly and that board having awarded the contract to the next lowest bidder. Board of School Com'rs of Indianapolis v. Bender [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 154.

29. To entitle a party to rescission of a contract on the ground of a mutual mistake, the situation must be such that the parties can be placed in statu quo. Barker v. Fitzgerald, 204 Ill. 525, 68 N. E. 430.

30. One who fails through culpable inertness to make inquiry when it is his duty to inquire, and through such failure loses a valuable right is not entitled to relief in equity on the ground of mistake. Plaintiff failed to examine records before releasing mortgage. Farrell v. Bouck [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1018.

Note: Equity will not relieve against mistake, by way of reformation, when the party complaining had within his reach the means of ascertaining the true state of facts, and, without being induced thereto by the other party, neglected to avail himself of his opportunities for information. Roundy v. Kent, 75 Iowa, 662; Marshall v. Westrope, 98 Iowa, 324; New York Life Ins. Co. v. McMaster, 87 F. 63, 67; Quimby v. Shearer, 56 Minn. 534; Persinger v. Chapman, 93 Va. 349, 352; Brown v. Fagan, 71 Mo. 563; Voorhis v. Murphy, 26 N. J. Eq. 434; Bishop v. Allen, 55 Vt. 423; Pearce v. Suggs, 85 Tenn. 724; Massey v. Cotton States Life Ins. Co., 70 Ga. 794; Bonney v. Stoughton, 122 Ill. 536.—From note in 65 Am. St. Rep. 500.

31. Where a party without fraud practiced on him signs a contract, he is conclusively presumed to know its contents, and to accept its terms, and the fact that he did not read it does not change the rule. Mortgagor could not defend against a note on the ground that he did not read it or know its contents, when he could have read it. Catterlin v. Lusk, 98 Mo. App. 182, 71 S. W. 1109. One who signed a written compromise agreement without reading it could have no relief. Rutherford v. Rutherford [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 240. That some of the parties to a family settlement signed the document embodying it without reading it is no ground for setting it aside. Burnes v. Burnes, 132 F. 485. One able to read who signs an instrument without knowing its contents cannot avoid liability thereon unless his failure to learn the contents was induced by some action or representation of the other party amounting to fraud. Georgia Medicine Co. v. Hyman & Co., 117 Ga. 851,

A mistake of only one party, whereby the written contract does not express his intention, is unavailing to him in an action thereon.[34] A mistake as to a separable portion of a contract does not affect its validity as a whole.[35]

As to relief for mistake of law, see note.[36]

§ 3. Procedure to obtain relief.[37]—Evidence of a mutual mistake, such as to warrant reformation, must be clear, satisfactory, and convincing.[38] A mere preponderance of evidence is not enough,[39] and a direct conflict of testimony is conclusive against reformation.[40] Where it appears that through mistake the intended contract is not expressed by the writing, parol evidence is admissible to show what the real agreement was.[41] But when the contract pursuant to which a deed is executed is inserted therein as an essential recital, and the description of the property is inconsistent with such recital, equity will make the correction upon inspection of the deed.[42]

There is a conflict as to whether a pleading setting up fraud may be amended so as to allege mistake.[43] A merely defective allegation of a mutual mistake, if there be not a total failure to allege such mistake, is cured by verdict.[44]

45 S. E. 238. Failure to read lumber contract; party bound. Harrison v. Wilson Lumber Co., 119 Ga. 6, 45 S. E. 730.

32. One who does not know what he signs, because unable to read, is not bound by the contract. Melle v. Candelora, 88 N. Y. S. 385.

33. The doctrine that the carelessness or negligence of a party in signing a writing estops him from afterwards disputing its contents is not applicable in a suit between the original parties thereto, or where the defense is that, by reason of fraud, it does not embrace the contract actually made. Spelts v. Ward, 2 Neb. Unoff. 177, 96 N. W. 56.

34. Contract for sale of land. Harmon v. Thompson [Ky.] 84 S. W. 569.

35. Including one item, not owned by the policy holder, among the items insured, by mistake, does not affect the validity of the contract of insurance as to the other items. Herzog v. Palatine Ins. Co. [Wash.] 79 P. 287.

36. Note: For a mistake of law, pure and simple, there is generally no remedy. Lane v. Holmes, 55 Minn. 379, 43 Am. St. Rep. 508; McDaniels v. Bank of Rutland, 29 Vt. 230, 70 Am. Dec. 406. But if the mistake is caused by fraud, imposition or misrepresentation, etc., relief may be had in a court of equity. Kyle v. Fehley, 81 Wis. 67, 29 Am. St. Rep. 866; Haviland v. Willetts, 141 N. Y. 35, 50; Jordan v. Stevens, 51 Me. 78, 81 Am. Dec. 556; Benson v. Markoe, 37 Minn. 30, 5 Am. St. Rep. 816; Hardigree v. Mitchum, 51 Ala. 151; Moreland v. Atchison, 19 Tex. 303; Dile v. Shahan, 25 Ala. 694, 60 Am. Dec. 540.

Mistake of law and fact combined is a good ground for equitable relief, especially if it does not result in injury to the opposite party. Lane v. Holmes, 55 Minn. 379, 43 Am. St. Rep. 508; Estate of Woodburn, 138 Pa. 606, 21 Am. St. Rep. 932; Freeman v. Curtis, 51 Me. 140, 81 Am. Dec. 564; Haviland v. Willetts, 141 N. Y. 35.—From note to Alabama, etc., R. Co. v. Jones [Miss.] 55 A. S. R. 503, 517.

37. See 2 Curr. L. 905.

38. Evidence that agents who made contract of insurance understood the agreement to be different from that embodied in the writing did not show mutual mistake on part of principals who signed the contract. Barker v. Pullman [C. C. A.] 134 F. 70. Evidence insufficient to prove mistake or misunderstanding in executing a trust deed omitting power of revocation. Dayton v. Stewart [Md.] 59 A. 281. Evidence insufficient to warrant reformation of a description in a contract of sale so as to cure an alleged shortage in quantity to be conveyed. Albro v. Gowland, 90 N. Y. S. 796. Evidence sufficient to show mutual mistake of parties to lease in regard to strength of walls of leased building. Barker v. Fitzgerald, 204 Ill. 525, 68 N. E. 430. Evidence sufficient to show a mutual mistake whereby a policy of insurance described a stock of goods as located in a building other than that in which they really were, so as to require reformation of the policy. Warner, Moore & Co. v. Western Assur. Co. [Va.] 49 S. E. 499. Evidence of mutual mistake of parties who executed a duebill, held in action thereon, sufficient to take case to jury. Wheeler v. Seamans [Wis.] 102 N. W. 28.

39, 40. Coleman v. Illinois Life Ins. Co., 82 S. W. 616.

41. Pinchback v. Bessemer Min. & Mfg. Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 106. Parol evidence is competent to show a mistake of a draftsman by reason of which a deed does not convey the intended estate. Nutall v. Nutall [Ky.] 82 S. W. 377. Parol evidence admissible to show what the real contract was, and that a portion of it was omitted from the writing by mistake of the scrivener and the parties. Evidence sufficient to support verdict for plaintiff. Kitchens v. Usry [Ga.] 48 S. E. 945. Parol evidence is admissible to show the real contract, when a party signs an instrument the contents of which he does not know, being unable to read. Melle v. Candelora, 88 N. Y. S. 385.

42. Pinchback v. Bessemer Min. & Mfg. Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 106.

43. A petition to have a deed canceled, on the ground that it was procured by fraud, may be amended by allegations that it was executed under a mutual mistake of fact, such amendment not introducing a new and

MONEY COUNTS; MONEY LENT; MONEY PAID; MONEY RECEIVED; MONOPOLIES; MORTALITY TABLES, see latest topical index.

MORTGAGES.

§ 1. Nature and Elements of Mortgages (678).
§ 2. General Requisites and Validity (679). Description (679). The Signature (680). Recordation (680). Fraud, Illegality and Duress (681).
§ 3. Absolute Deed as Mortgage (682). Defeasance (683). Once a Mortgage, Always a Mortgage (683). Mortgage or Conditional Sale (683). Mortgage or Assignment (684). Evidence (684). Relief Granted (685). Costs (685).
§ 4. Equitable Mortgages (685).
§ 5. Nature and Incidents of Trust Deeds as Mortgages (686). Powers and Duties of the Trustee (686). Sale of the Premises (687).
§ 6. Construction and Effect of Mortgages in General (688). Conflict of Laws (688). Property and Interests Conveyed (688). Debts Secured (689). Reformation (689).
§ 7. Title and Rights of Parties (690). Estoppel as to Title (690). Assumption of Possession by Mortgagee (690). Right to Possession (691). Payment of Taxes (691). Insurance (691). Waste (691). Right to the Compensation in Condemnation Proceedings (692). Rights of Successive Mortgagees (692).
§ 8. Lien and Priorities (693).
§ 9. Assignments of Mortgages (695).
§ 10. Transfer of Title of Mortgagor and Assumption of Debt (696). Assumption of the Mortgage (697). Status of Mortgagor as Surety (698).
§ 11. Transfer of Premises to Mortgagee and Merger (698).
§ 12. Payment, Release or Satisfaction (699). Sufficiency of Payment (699). Discharge of Record (701). Release by Bar of Limitations (701).
§ 13. Redemption (701). Procedure to Redeem (702). Damages for Refusal to Reconvey (703). Penalties for Failure to Release (703).
§ 14. Subrogation (703).

Scope of topic. This article is devoted to the mortgage as an instrument and the substantive rights growing from it. An earlier topic[45] has fully treated the procedure by which mortgages are foreclosed. The doctrine of notice and the operation of the recording acts,[46] the application of the statute of frauds,[47] the effect of the mortgage as an incumbrance,[48] and the purchase of lands subject to mortgage,[49] are treated elsewhere.[50] Mortgage within this topic means only those of land or interests therein.[51] A mortgage may be regarded as one on land which having been given as money has been "mortgaged" by the heirs.[52] A mortgage of a leasehold of more than three years is a "real estate" mortgage in New York[53] and when recorded as such need not be refiled as a chattel mortgage.[54]

Judicial mortgage in Louisiana signifies the lien which a judgment creditor has.[55] A judicial mortgage does not result from the registry of an unsigned judgment.[56] inconsistent cause of action. Castleman v. Castleman [Mo.] 83 S. W. 757. Where the cause of action pleaded and relied upon at the trial was for fraudulent misrepresentations, an erroneous judgment rendered on that ground cannot be sustained on appeal on the ground of mutual mistake. An amendment to the pleading, setting up mutual mistake could not have been made over defendant's objection. Connell v. El Paso Gold Min. & Mill. Co. [Colo.] 78 P. 677.

44. Where the inclusion of 11 acres in a deed was alleged to be due to "some mistake, inadvertence, accident or miscalculation," the averment was held good after verdict. Lewis v. Batten [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 389.

45. See Foreclosure of Mortgages on Land, 3 Curr. L. 1438.

46. See Notice and Record of Title, 2 Curr. L. 1053.

47. See Frauds, Statute of, 3 Curr. L. 1527.

48. See Covenants for Title, 3 Curr. L. 973; Vendors and Purchasers, 2 Curr. L. 1976.

49. See Vendors and Purchasers, 2 Curr. L. 1976.

50. Rights and liabilities between life tenant and remainderman. See Life Estates, etc., 4 Curr. L. 438. Between heirs and personal representatives, see Estates of Decedents, 3 Curr. L. 1238. Rights of mortgagee in eminent domain proceedings, see Eminent Domain, 3 Curr. L. 1189.

51. Chattel Mortgages, see 3 Curr. L. 682; Railroad Mortgages, see Railroads, 2 Curr. L. 1382.

52. By suing to foreclose, the property may be regarded as equitably reconverted from personalty. Bank of Ukiah v. Rice, 143 Cal. 265, 76 P. 1020.

53, 54. Westchester Trust Co. v. Kelly, 92 N. Y. S. 482.

55. See generally Judgments, § 10 (lien) 4 Curr. L. 314. See Hardy v. Pecot [La.] 36 So. 992.

56. In re Immanuel Presbyterian Church, 112 La. 348, 36 So. 408.

§ 1. Nature and elements of mortgages.[57]—A mortgage is a conveyance by way of pledge defeasible by the payment of the debt or obligation.[58] It does not in most states create or alienate an estate in the land.[59] Under a statute declaring it to be a conveyance, it is a conveyance of a mere chattel interest.[60] The debt is the principal obligation,[61] the mortgage merely an incident,[62] and when the debt secured is declared void, the mortgage ceases to be a lien.[63] The relation of debtor and creditor must exist.[64] Any transfer of property as security regardless of the form by which it is characterized creates the relation.[65] No particular form of words is necessary to create a mortgage.[66]

Property subject to mortgage.[67]—A bare possession may be mortgaged.[68] In Texas the homestead cannot be mortgaged.[69]

57. See 2 Curr. L. 906.

Note: See Tiffany, Real Property, p. 1165, History and evolution of mortgage.

58. Fabrique v. Cherokee & P. Coal & Min. Co. [Kan.] 77 P. 584. And see Cyc. Law Dict. "Mortgage."

59. Civ. Code, § 3810, declaring it to be a contract whereby specific property is hypothecated for the performance of an act without necessity for a change of possession. Mueller v. Renkes [Mont.] 77 P. 512. The mortgagor continues the real owner, and may grant a light and air easement over the property so long as mortgagees are not prejudiced. Wood v. Grayson, 22 App. D. C. 432. The execution of a mortgage upon insured property is not a violation of the covenant against change of title. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Jacobson, 105 Ill. App. 283. Where a prospective vendee refuses to complete the sale, the vendor can maintain an action for damages, pending which he may mortgage the premises. Such act will not constitute an abandonment of the contract. Harmon v. Thompson [Ky.] 84 S. W. 569. See statement of the varying doctrines and alignment of states adhering to each. Cyc. Law Dict. "Mortgage."

60. Mueller v. Renkes [Mont.] 77 P. 512.

61. A deed of trust executed to secure the repayment of money to be advanced at a future date on condition that if the money was not advanced the deed should be canceled would not create a llen if the money was never advanced. Schneider v. Sellers [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 126. Where the execution of the secured note is denied, it is not admissible in an action to foreclose without proof of execution. Stoddard v. Lyon [S. D.] 99 N. W. 1116. Where the maker denies the genuineness of notes secured by a mortgage, the burden is on the mortgagee to prove the notes are in existence and that they were in fact executed by the mortgagor. Bruce v. Wanzer [S. D.] 99 N. W. 1102. Recital in the mortgage of execution and delivery of such notes is insufficient where the notes are not produced. Id. In an action to foreclose where no judgment against the makers of the mortgage note is desired, it is necessary that the note be produced in evidence if its execution is denied. Stoddard v. Lyon [S. D.] 99 N. W. 1116.

62. An outstanding mortgage or deed of trust before foreclosure is not a bar to recovery in ejectment as between persons not claiming under such deed or mortgage, though the conditions have been broken. Benton Land Co. v. Zeitler, 182 Mo. 251, 81 S. W. 193. So long as the debt is enforceable, the mortgagee has an equity in the land. Goddard v. Clarke, 1 Neb. Unoff. 769, 96 N. W. 350.

63. Note given by a married woman secured by a mortgage on her property given to secure the debts of her husband. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 6964, a contract of suretyship by a married woman is void. Held, the note and mortgage were void. Ft. Wayne Trust Co. v. Sihler [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 494.

64. Fabrique v. Cherokee & P. Coal & Min. Co. [Kan.] 77 P. 584; Beebe v. Wisconsin Mortg. Loan Co., 117 Wis. 328, 93 N. W. 1103. Evidence held to show that a lease was not intended as a mortgage. No enforceable debt. Stockton v. Dillon [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 487. A perpetual lease with privilege of purchase at lessee's option being unlimited in time and not predicated upon a loan is not a mortgage. Kraay v. Gibson, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 537. Evidence held to show that a mortgage was executed to secure the mortgagee from loss under an agreement that the mortgagor would be responsible for certain of her funds loaned by him as her agent. Conlon v. Minor, 89 N. Y. S. 860. The fact that no legal proceedings have been had to collect a debt secured by a mortgage is insufficient to warrant a finding that the mortgage is void. Goddard v. Clarke, 1 Neb. Unoff. 769, 96 N. W. 350.

65. Beebe v. Wisconsin Mortg. Loan Co., 117 Wis. 328, 93 N. W. 1103. Where pursuant to an agreement a party acquires legal title to property at a sheriff's sale under a parol agreement that he is to hold title for the judgment debtor as security for the amount paid, the relation of debtor and creditor is created. Dickson v. Stewart [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1085.

66. Beebe v. Wisconsin Mortgage Loan Co., 117 Wis. 328, 93 N. W. 1103. It may be established by parol that the purpose of a writing or several writings was intended as a mortgage, though they bear on their face no semblance thereof. Providence, F. R. & N. Steamboat Co. v. Fall River [Mass.] 72 N. E. 338. An assignment of a lease as security for a loan is a mortgage. Id.

67. See 2 Curr. L. 906, n. 26 et seq.

68. A conveyance as security by a person having no interest except bare possession is a mortgage. Schneider v. Reed [Wis.] 101 N. W. 682. See, also, Schriber v. LeClair, 66 Wis. 579, 29 N. W. 570.

69. Even though the mortgagors had

In proceedings to establish a mortgage, all persons having an interest in the property must be made parties.[70] Evidence of the circumstances surrounding the transaction is admissible.[71]

§ 2. General requisites and validity.[72]—The mortgagor must have some interest in the property mortgaged,[73] and authority to execute the mortgage.[74] If a probable interest is apparent, the mortgage is not void on its face.[75]

Description.[76]—As a general rule any description by which the premises may be identified[77] or ascertained by investigation aliunde is sufficient.[78]

The consideration[79] need not be furnished by the mortgagee.[80] An equitable mortgage is a good consideration and justification for the giving of a formal mortgage, where in the absence of the equitable right, a valid security could not be given because of the rights of creditors.[81] formed an intention to and were preparing to abandon it. Delaney v. Walker [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 601.

Homestead can be mortgaged in most states, but the wife must join else the mortgage is junior to it. See post, § 2 and Homesteads, 3 Curr. L. 1630.

70. Contingent remaindermen. New York Security & Trust Co. v. Schoenberg, 87 App. Div. 262, 84 N. Y. S. 359.

71. Vizard v. Moody, 119 Ga. 918, 47 S. E. 348.

72. See 2 Curr. L. 906.

73. A trust deed by one who has no title is void. Whitlock v. Cohn [Ark.] 80 S. W. 141. Where one executes a deed as security and takes a bond for a reconveyance which is transferred to another who pays the debt and takes a conveyance from the trustee, the right of a mortgagee in a mortgage executed by the original owner after the execution of the security deed depends upon the mortgage antedating the transfer of the bond for a reconveyance. Rountree v. Finch, 120 Ga. 743, 48 S. E. 132. In the absence of special authority, a grantor has no power to mortgage the property conveyed after delivery of the deed. Ewers v. Smith, 90 N. Y. S. 575. A. conveyed land to B. As part of the consideration C. deeded land to A. upon which A. held a mortgage for its full value. It was agreed that if C. should pay A. a certain part of the purchase price of the land conveyed by A. to B. that B. would convey the land to C. Held the deed from A. to B. did not constitute a mortgage from C. to B. Conkey v. Rex, 212 Ill. 444, 72 N. E. 370. Evidence held to show that a mortgagee knew or should have known that the mortgagor had no title. Whitlock v. Cohn [Ark.] 80 S. W. 141. A mortgagee from one who has no title acquires no rights. Jefferson Loan & Bldg. Ass'n v. McHugh, 208 Pa. 246, 57 A. 577.

74. Act March 11, 1893, amending Act March 7, 1887, gives the board of directors of an irrigation district power to execute a mortgage foreclosable in the ordinary way, so as to convey to the purchaser the legal and equitable title. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Escondido Irr. Dist., 144 Cal. 329, 77 P. 937.

75. A mortgage executed by a widow who had been in possession since the death of her husband and who might have a dower interest in the land or might have inherited it from her husband in the absence of other surviving heirs of the husband. Penny v. Weems, 139 Ala. 270, 35 So. 883.

76. See 2 Curr. L. 914, n. 55 et seq.

77. Description by government subdivision is sufficient. Huber v. Jennings-Heywood Oil Syndicate, 111 La. 747, 35 So. 889. "A certain tract or parcel of land known as 'D' farm on the left hand fork of Troublesome Creek" is sufficient where the farm can be identified. Watts v. Parks, 25 Ky. L. R. 1908, 78 S. W. 1125. A description by governmental subdivisions in the proper township and range is sufficient notwithstanding the fact that it was further designated as situated in the wrong county. Risch v. Jensen, 92 Minn. 107, 99 N. W. 628. Mortgage on machinery and on land on which it will be located, describing the land, held sufficient to cover a tract subsequently purchased by the mortgagor and upon which the machinery was placed. Ferguson v. Walter Connally & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 76 S. W. 609.

78. "My entire undivided one-tenth interest in about 265 acres of land and my entire undivided one-tenth interest in the personalty of R., deceased, of H. county, Kentucky," is not void for indefiniteness. Fields v. Fish & Co. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 376. "Our interest in the land held in trust" by a certain trustee, is sufficient where the property can be identified. Edmonston v. Carter, 180 Mo. 515, 79 S. W. 459.

79. See 2 Curr. L. 906, n. 33.

80. The mortgagee can enforce the mortgage in equity notwithstanding. Palmer v. Bray [Mich.] 98 N. W. 849.

Note: If given for an illegal purpose, as the price of future sexual intercourse (W—— v. B——, 32 Beav. 574, Kirchwey's Cas. 219), or to obtain the suppression of a criminal prosecution (Atwood v. Fisk, 101 Mass. 363; Pearce v. Wilson, 111 Pa. 14, 56 Am. Rep. 243; Hyatt v. James' Adm'r, 2 Bush [Ky.] 463, 92 Am. Dec. 505), neither party can obtain relief; the mortgagee cannot enforce (McQuade v. Rosecrans, 36 Ohio St. 442; Gilbert v. Holmes, 64 Ill. 548), nor can the mortgagor have it canceled (Atwood v. Fisk, 101 Mass. 363). If given to secure a debt incurred for liquors sold in violation of law (Baker v. Collins, 9 Allen [Mass.] 253), or a gambling debt (International Bank of Chicago v. Vankirk, 39 Ill. App. 23; Barnard v. Backhaus, 52 Wis. 593), it will not be enforced.—See Tiffany, Real Property, p. 1190.

81. Harrigan v. Gilchrist [Wis.] 99 N. W. 905.

A stipulation[82] that maturity may be accelerated for default in payment of interest is valid,[83] but is deemed waived by acts tending to mislead the mortgagor.[84] A mortgagor who leaves his usual place of abode without giving the mortgagee notice of his future whereabouts waives his right to notice of the mortgagee's election to declare the entire debt due.[85] A stipulation that a power of sale may be executed in another state is valid.[86] A void stipulation does not affect the validity of the mortgage.[87]

Recitals which constitute mere surplusage may be disregarded.[88]

The signature.[89]—If the signature is denied,[90] the burden of proving it to be genuine is on the party claiming it to be valid.[91] A mortgage of the homestead must be signed by the wife,[92] but an acknowledgment of a mark as her signature is sufficient.[93]

A seal is not necessary.[94]

Acknowledgment[95] as a general rule is not necessary to the validity of a mortgage,[96] except to make it recordable against subsequent takers.[97] But when required it must be taken by a disinterested officer[98] in the manner prescribed by law.[99]

There must be an acceptance,[1] but if beneficial an acceptance will be presumed.[2]

Recordation.—A statute requiring a mortgage to be recorded does not apply to an agreement extending the time of payment of the mortgage debt.[3] Where

82. See 2 Curr. L. 907, n. 43.

83. First Nat. Bank v. Citizens' State Bank, 11 Wyo. 32, 70 P. 726.

84. The mortgage note provided that on default in payment of interest, all principal and interest should become due at the option of the holder. An assignee requested the mortgagor not to pay the interest at the appointed place, stating that he would call for it. Lawrence v. Ward [Utah] 77 P. 229.

85. Julien v. Model Bldg., Loan & Investment Ass'n, 116 Wis. 79, 92 N. W. 561.

86. Express provision in a deed of trust. Vizard v. Moody, 119 Ga. 918, 47 S. E. 348. A sale in such place is valid, notwithstanding it is of a quasi judicial character. Id.

87. A void stipulation for the payment of taxes on the mortgage debt does not render the mortgage void for usury. First Nat. Bank v. Glenn [Idaho] 77 P. 623.

88. "This mortgage is just to include a sufficient amount of said farm to secure the debt" does not render the mortgage void. Watts v. Parks, 25 Ky. L. R. 1908, 78 S. W. 1125.

89. See 2 Curr. L. 906, n. 29 et seq.

90. Where a mortgagor disputed his signature for the reason that it was blurred, evidence held insufficient to show that it was forged. Colbert v. Moore, 185 Mass. 227, 70 N. E. 42.

91. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 4192, that such a signature is presumed valid until denied under oath. Ellis v. Hof [Wis.] 101 N. W. 368. Evidence held insufficient to prove the genuineness of a signature. Id. Possession by the mortgagee of a mortgage note is insufficient proof of its execution where such execution is denied. Stoddard v. Lyon [S. D.] 99 N. W. 1116.

92. If not, it is void. Lester v. Johnston, 137 Ala. 194, 33 So. 880.

93. First Nat. Bank v. Glenn [Idaho] 77 P. 623.

94. Where the execution of a mortgage is admitted, the fact that it is not under seal is not ground to exclude it from evidence. Vizard v. Moody, 119 Ga. 918, 47 S. E. 348.

95. See 2 Curr. L. 906, n. 30, 46.

96. See Acknowledgments, 3 Curr. L. 31.

97. See Notice and Record of Title, 2 Curr. L. 1053.

98. Acknowledgment taken by a director and stockholder of a building and loan association mortgagee is void. The instrument creates no lien. Fugman v. Jiri Washington Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 209 Ill. 176, 70 N. E. 644. A mortgage on a homestead must be acknowledged. An acknowledgment taken by an officer and stockholder of a building and loan association mortgagor is void and the mortgage created no lien. Steger v. Traveling Men's Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 208 Ill. 236, 70 N. E. 236. This acknowledgment was made valid by the curative act (Laws 1903, p. 120). Id.

99. Under Rev. St. § 2770, the wife must sign and acknowledge separately and apart from her husband before an officer who shall appraise her of her right. First Nat. Bank v. Citizens' State Bank, 11 Wyo. 32, 70 P. 726.

1. Evidence held to show that a mortgage was accepted. Holders of the debt secured had caused it to be foreclosed. Huber v. Jennings-Heywood Oil Syndicate, 111 La. 747, 35 So. 889. A grantee in a deed containing a mortgage assumption clause who never accepts the deed is not bound by it. Merriman v. Schmitt, 211 Ill. 263, 71 N. E. 986.

2. An absent person has the benefit of a mortgage in his favor executed and recorded by the mortgagor, though not accepted by the mortgagee. In re Immanuel Presbyterian Church, 112 La. 348, 36 So. 408.

3. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1901, p. 427, providing that until filed for record mortgages a separate book is provided for the recordation of mortgages, the instrument entitled to record must be a mortgage in form.[4] A written assignment is a conveyance within the recording act of New York.[5] So is an agreement for an extension and reduction of interest rate.[6]

Fraud, illegality and duress.[7]—A mortgage may be set aside for fraud,[8] if established,[9] illegality of consideration,[10] or duress,[11] and the fact that in executing the mortgage the mortgagor was guilty of compounding a felony, will not preclude him from seeking this relief.[12] The right to cancellation for duress passes to a purchaser of the land.[13]

The law of pledges is distinct from that of mortgages and receives separate treatment.[14] In Kansas the lien of a pledgee is subject to strict foreclosure; that of a mortgagee is not.[15]

In mortgages by married women,[16] the husband must join.[17] Her mortgage may be valid, though the bond it is given to secure is void.[18] A mortgage charging her separate estate with a debt due from herself and husband is valid in equity,[19] unless by statute she is forbidden to enter into contracts of suretyship.[20] Under such a statute, a mortgage of property held by husband and wife as tenants by entirety is void.[21] And where a conveyance to the husband was resorted to as a subterfuge to evade this law, the mortgage will not be allowed to stand.[22] The fact that she made false representations and is bound by an estoppel in pais does shall be void as against subsequent purchasers and creditors. Kraft v. Holzman, 206 Ill. 548, 69 N. E. 574.

4. Civ. Code, § 1171 provides that absolute deeds shall be recorded in one book and mortgages in another. Held that the fact that an absolute deed can be shown to be a mortgage does not authorize its recordation in the mortgage book. Kent v. Williams [Cal.] 79 P. 527.

5. Weideman v. Pech, 92 N. Y. S. 493.

6. Void if not recorded. Weideman v. Pech, 92 N. Y. S. 493.

7. See 2 Curr. L. 906, n. 32 et seq.

8. Where necessities of the mortgagors known to the mortgagee were taken advantage of by him and the instrument executed without due consideration. Lappin v. Crawford [Mo.] 85 S. W. 535. A deed of trust from a client to his attorney may be canceled for fraud and return of the money advanced is not a condition precedent. Jinks v. Moppin [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 390.

9. Evidence held to show that a mortgage was not procured by fraud. Simmons v. Reinhardt, 25 Ky. L. R. 1804, 78 S. W. 890.

10. Evidence held to show that a mortgage was not a part of an illegal lobbying contract. Reynolds v. Britton, 92 N. Y. S. 2. Where partaking of the nature of a scheme of chance, the purchase of debentures, as a condition for obtaining a loan, renders the mortgage securing the loan not enforceable. Heintz v. Sawyer, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 249. The mortgage, the enforcement of which would amount to a penalty, will not be entertained in equity. Greenville Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Wholey [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 341.

11. Threats to send the mortgagor's son to the penitentiary unless the father secured a debt of the son by a mortgage. Gray v. Freeman [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1105. Evidence held to show that a mortgage was executed under duress. Id.

12. Gray v. Freeman [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1105.

13. Gray v. Freeman [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1105. The deed from the mortgagor is admissible. Id. The original petition by the mortgagor for the same relief is admissible. Id.

14. See Pledges, 2 Curr. L. 1243. Where a chose in action secured by mortgage is pledged, the mortgage foreclosed and title taken by the pledgee under the sheriff's deed and possession taken by him, the title is vested in him and is substituted for the pledged choses in action and is governed by the law of pledges, not of mortgages. Blood v. Shepard [Kan.] 77 P. 565.

15. Blood v. Shepard [Kan.] 77 P. 565.

16. See 2 Curr. L. 907.

17. Under § 2208, Rev. St. 1892, the bond given by a married woman and mortgage on her separate estate to secure a loan must be joined in by the husband in order to render it valid. Equitable Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. King [Fla.] 37 So. 181.

18. The amount of the loan could be established without reference to the bond. Equitable Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. King [Fla.] 37 So. 181.

19. Being voidable, not void. Pape v. Ludeman [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 9.

20. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 6964, forbidding them to make contracts of suretyship. Webb v. Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co. [Ind.] 69 N. E. 1006.

21. Webb v. Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co. [Ind.] 69 N. E. 1006.

22. Conveyance through a trustee to the husband. Webb v. Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co. [Ind.] 69 N. E. 1006. Where the mortgagee knew of this transaction, he was charged with knowledge that it was resorted to for the purpose of evading the law. Id.

not preclude her from asserting the invalidity of such a mortgage where the mortgagee was not deceived.[23] A mortgagee having notice of facts sufficient to put him on inquiry is chargeable with this as with all facts his investigation would have disclosed.[24]

The burden is on the mortgagor to prove her coverture, that the mortgage was executed as security for the debt of another and notice thereof by the mortgagee.[25]

§ 3. Absolute deed as mortgage.[26]—An absolute deed intended by both parties as security for a debt or the performance of a duty is a mortgage.[27] In some states this doctrine is affirmed by statute.[28] A deed absolute can be declared a mortgage only when intended by the parties[29] at its inception to have such effect.[30] It must have been made to secure the payment of a debt or the performance of a duty.[31] In determining the intention of the parties, each case depends upon its own circumstances.[32] The surrounding conditions,[33] amount of consideration,[34]

23. Though the mortgage recites that the debt is hers and she makes affidavit that the consideration is for her sole use [Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 6964]. Ft. Wayne Trust Co. v. Sihler [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 494.

24. See, generally, Notice and Record of Title, 2 Curr. L. 1053. Webb v. Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co. [Ind.] 69 N. E. 1006. A mortgagee knowing that mortgagors were husband and wife and that the premises had been held by them as tenants by entirety is charged with notice of the protection afforded by the wife's tenancy. Id. He is chargeable with such notice when he takes a second mortgage. Id.

25. Notice to the mortgagee that the mortgagor was married when he acquired title to the premises is not notice that such conjugal relations existed four years later. Webb v. Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co. [Ind.] 69 N. E. 1006.

26. See 2 Curr. L. 908.

27. Evidence held to show that deed was really a mortgage. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Jacobson, 105 Ill. App. 283; Falkner v. Powell [Neb.] 100 N. W. 937; Faulkner v. Cody, 45 Misc. 64, 91 N. Y. S. 633; Dillon v. Dillon, 24 Ky. L. R. 781, 69 S. W. 1099. Intended as a mortgage to secure the amount named therein as consideration. Dean v. Radford [Mich.] 101 N. W. 598. A deed to secure the grantee as surety for the grantor. Meeker v. Warren [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 421. An absolute deed and a written agreement to reconvey on payment of the debt secured. Wells v. Scanlan [Wis.] 102 N. W. 571. An instrument in form a common-law deed of mortgage, reciting a loan on a sale of real estate to secure the sum duly recorded in the mortgage office, is a mortgage as against third persons. In re Immanuel Presbyterian Church, 112 La. 348, 36 So. 408, but see Thibodaux v. Anderson, 34 La. Ann. 797. An act of sale in form held to be a mere security. In re Schmidt [La.] 38 So. 26.

28. An absolute deed made for the purpose of securing a debt is a mortgage [Rev. St. 1892, § 1981]. Equitable Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. King [Fla.] 37 So. 181.

29. A deed containing full covenants of warranty was executed and delivered. The grantee took possession and it was agreed that she could retain title by paying the balance of the purchase price, the amount paid to be treated as a loan in case she decided not to purchase. Held, the deed was not intended as a mortgage. Reich v. Dyer [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 922.

30. If it was intended as a mortgage, it continues as such until the equity of redemption is extinguished. Hursey v. Hursey [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 367.

31. The relation of debtor and creditor did not exist. Morrison v. Jones [Mont.] 77 P. 507. The test is, was there a subsisting debt after the execution of the deed. Holmes v. Warren [Cal.] 78 P. 954.

32. Where a grantee in an absolute deed and a subsequent release of all claims by the grantor has been in possession, made improvements, paid taxes, etc., so that he cannot be placed in statu quo, the grantor cannot assert that the conveyance was a mortgage and the subsequent release insufficient to transfer the title. Luesenhop v. Einsfeld, 93 App. Div. 68, 87 N. Y. S. 268.

33. Deed taken under an agreement that amount due on the debt should be ascertained in the future; grantor remains in possession and is given further credit. McGill v. Thorne [S. C.] 48 S. E. 994. Given as security and the grantee gives a bond for reconveyance on payment of the debt. Grogan v. Valley Trading Co. [Mont.] 76 P. 211. At the time of the execution of a deed, the grantee paid a debt for the grantor and the parties intended that the sum so paid should continue a debt and be secured by the deed. Hursey v. Hursey [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 367. At the time of the conveyance the grantee admitted his willingness to receive back at any time within five years the amount advanced, the retention of possession and payment of taxes by the grantor and the conduct of the parties of such a nature as to indicate a recognition of an interest in the grantor. Id. Explanation of the retention of possession by the grantor is insufficient to overcome the other circumstances. Id. At the time the deed was executed to the grantee he executed a deed to the grantor of the same premises which stated that it was made pursuant to an agreement to pay the grantors a sum of money. Held, both deeds were to be construed as one; the first as a deed, the second as a mortgage. Adams v. Hopkins, 144 Cal. 19, 77 P. 712.

34. Where a mortgagee uses the power and relationship of the parties, are to be considered.[35] It is not essential that the grantor be the mortgagor,[36] nor that the grantee be the creditor.[37] An agreement by the purchaser at a judicial sale to hold the property subject to the debtor's right to redeem, if entered into after the sale, must be in writing.[38]

Defeasance.[39]—Where the transfer is in fact one for security, a promise to return is not essential.[40]

Once a mortgage always a mortgage.[41]—A deed intended as a mortgage[42] will remain a mortgage until the equity of redemption is cut off,[43] and the parties cannot by stipulation, however express or positive, render it anything else.[44]

Mortgage or conditional sale.—If the nature of the conveyance is doubtful, it will be considered a mortgage rather than a conditional sale.[45] Whether an absolute deed and an agreement to reconvey constitutes a mortgage[46] or a conditional sale[47] depends upon the intention of the parties,[48] the nature of the transaction,[49] and the mutuality of the contract.[50] If time is of the essence of the contract, it is usually regarded as a conditional sale.[51] The test of the mortgage is the relation of debtor and creditor and the subsistence of a debt to be secured.[52] his mortgage has given him to obtain the equity of redemption at less than its value. Noble v. Graham, 140 Ala. 413, 37 So. 230. Executed by illiterate persons to the wife of the attorney for the grantors for a consideration less than the value of the property. Burch v. Nicholas [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1132.

35. Deed absolute executed under duress. Bryan v. Hobbs [Ark.] 83 S. W. 341.

36. A sheriff's deed may be declared a mortgage. Dickson v. Stewart [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1085. Parol agreement between purchaser at sheriff's sale and judgment debtor, that former is to hold title as security for a loan. Id. Where one borrows money to pay for land and causes the deed to be made to the lender and gives his note reciting that it is secured by such deed. Fleming v. Georgia R. R. Bank, 120 Ga. 1023, 48 S. E. 420; Borrow v. Borrow, 34 Wash. 684, 76 P. 305.

37. Debt due a stranger. Clark v. Seagraves [Mass.] 71 N. E. 813.

38. First Nat. Bank v. Moor [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 53.

39. See 2 Curr. L. 909.

40. Evidence held to show that an assignment of a contract for the purchase of land was not absolute but intended as security. Fifer v. Fifer [N. D.] 99 N. W. 763.

41. See 2 Curr. L. 910, n. 97 et seq.

42. Mortgagee cannot maintain ejectment until after foreclosure. Faulkner v. Cody, 45 Misc. 64, 91 N. Y. S. 633.

43. A subsequent agreement by the parties canceling the evidence of indebtedness and orally stipulating that it shall operate to pass title is ineffective. Keller v. Kirby [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 82. In an action to redeem a defense that the deed was made for the purpose of delaying the grantor's creditors will not be sustained unless the intent to do so is established. Faulkner v. Cody, 45 Misc. 64, 91 N. Y. S. 633. Where a creditor agreed to bid in the property at foreclosure of a trust deed and hold it subject to the debtor's right of redemption, he cannot avoid his agreement on the ground that it was void as to other creditors, the debtor having retained sufficient property to satisfy other claims. First Nat. Bank v. Moor [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 53.

44. Once a mortgage always a mortgage. Faulkner v. Cody, 45 Misc. 64, 91 N. Y. S. 633.

45. A purchaser at a judicial sale assigned his bid under a contract that on payment by him within a specified time of a certain sum together with taxes, etc., his assignee should reconvey to him. Held a mortgage. Fulwiler v. Roberts [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1148.

46. Where a purchaser at a judicial sale obtained money from another to whom the deed was made under an agreement that such person would convey to the purchaser or at his order on repayment of the amount advanced, the transaction constituted a mortgage. Guenther v. Wisdom [Ky.] 84 S. W. 771.

47. One having an option on land about to expire applied to another for a loan. The party refused to take a mortgage but agreed to advance money, take title in his own name and convey upon the terms and conditions set forth in a bond for a deed. Held, the transaction constituted a conditional sale. Conner v. Clapp [Wash.] 79 P. 929.

48. That the instruments of conveyance do not sufficiently convey the legal title is not sufficient to defeat an intention that they should effect such a conveyance. Luesenhop v. Einsfeld, 93 App. Div. 68, 87 N. Y. S. 268.

49. Where a deed shows on its face that it is to secure an indebtedness, it is a mortgage, not a conditional sale. Land v. May [Ark.] 84 S. W. 489.

50. Where there is no continuing debt, the execution of a deed with a simultaneous contract to reconvey upon the payment of a certain sum within a specified time, the payment being optional with the grantor, is a conditional sale. Fabrique v. Cherokee & P. Coal & Min. Co. [Kan.] 77 P. 584.

51. The parties may intend that the conveyance shall be absolute on default after the expiration of the period for payment. Luesenhop v. Einsfeld, 93 App. Div. 68, 87 N. Y. S. 268. Agreement to reconvey within a specified period. Time was of the essence

Mortgage or assignment.—The test is, was it intended to divest the debtor of his title. If not, it is a mortgage.[53] The validity of the transaction is to be determined by the law of preferences.[54]

The proceeding to establish a mortgage[55] is equitable, and cannot be maintained unless the grantor shows a willingness and ability to redeem[56] and do equity.[57] A bill to have a deed absolute in form declared a mortgage may be entertained, though the land is outside the state.[58]

Evidence.[59]—The burden is on the party claiming it to be a mortgage to establish that fact.[60] It may be established by parol evidence.[61] The evidence must be clear and specific,[62] satisfactory as to credibility, unequivocal,[63] and reasonably conclusive.[64] A preponderance of evidence is sufficient.[65] Evidence of concurrent circumstances,[66] and acts of the parties relative to the transaction, are admissible.[67] Where the instrument is not ambiguous, the interpretation placed upon it by one of the parties is immaterial,[68] but if the nature of the transaction is doubtful, such interpretation may be looked to.[69] The fact that an absolute deed was of the contract. On default the agreement was to be void. Smyth v. Reed [Utah] 78 P. 473. If the right to repurchase is not exercised within the time specified, it is foreclosed. McElmurray v. Blodgett, 120 Ga. 9, 47 S. E. 531. Conveyance is absolute, notwithstanding a separate written contract to reconvey within a certain time upon certain terms. Bates v. Sherwood, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 63.

52. Fabrique v. Cherokee & P. Coal & Min. Co. [Kan.] 77 P. 584. See, also, ante, §§ 1, 2.

53. A corporation while insolvent but in control of its property executed an instrument conveying its property to secure certain debts on the condition that when the debts were paid the instrument should be void. The trustee to take possession, sell and hold the proceeds until the debt became due, pay them and return the surplus to the grantor. Held a mortgage. Smead v. Chandler, 71 Ark. 505, 76 S. W. 1066. Such an instrument executed in Missouri is a mortgage within Sand. & H. Dig. §§ 5090, 5091, relating to execution and recording of mortgages. Id.

54. In Missouri a corporation in control of its property may secure a creditor by a deed of trust, and a general assignment immediately thereafter will not invalidate the preference. Smead v. Chandler, 71 Ark. 505, 76 S. W. 1066. Such a deed is not void in Arkansas, notwithstanding a statute providing that none except certain preferences shall be allowed. Id.

55. See 2 Curr. L. 911. On motion for a nonsuit the court may decree an instrument to be a deed, though there is no technical nonsuit in equity. Morrison v. Jones [Mont.] 77 P. 507. A probate court has no jurisdiction to declare a deed absolute to be a mortgage. Rook v. Rook, 111 Ill. App. 398.

56. Gerhardt v. Tucker [Mo.] 85 S. W. 552.

57. One seeking to have a contract to convey and a deed to be declared a mortgage cannot complain that the contract is void for usury. Malone v. Danforth [Mich.] 100 N. W. 445.

58. It being an action for relief from fraud, not an action dealing with title. Clark v. Seagraves [Mass.] 71 N. E. 813.

59. See 2 Curr. L. 912, n. 16 et seq.

60. Evidence insufficient. Holmes v. Warren [Cal.] 78 P. 954.

61. Welborn v. Dixon [S. C.] 49 S. E. 232; Borrow v. Borrow, 34 Wash. 684, 76 P. 305. That a deed in which a grantee assumed a mortgage on the land was itself a mortgage. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 95, providing that every absolute deed intended as a mortgage shall be so considered. Merriman v. Schmitt, 211 Ill. 263, 71 N. E. 986. That a purchaser at a sheriff's sale agreed to reconvey. Dickson v. Stewart [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1085; Foster v. Rice [Iowa] 101 N. W. 771. That party advancing money for another and taking title in his own name agreed to reconvey. Borrow v. Borrow, 34 Wash. 684, 76 P. 305.

62. Absolute deed held to be what its face purported. Northwestern Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Lough [N. D.] 102 N. W. 160.

63. Testimony of one witness that the grantee promised to reconvey on repayment of a sum paid by him on notes which he assumed, held insufficient after the grantee's death. Gerhardt v. Tucker [Mo.] 85 S. W. 552.

64. Evidence held insufficient. Dwyer Pine Land Co. v. Whiteman, 92 Minn. 55, 99 N. W. 362.

65. First Nat. Bank v. Moor [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 53.

66. An agreement to reconvey on certain conditions, executed concurrently with a deed is properly admitted in an action to have an absolute deed declared a mortgage. Morrison v. Jones [Mont.] 77 P. 507.

67. A contract whereby the grantor agreed to sell the land to the grantee is admissible. Holmes v. Warren [Cal.] 78 P. 954. A receipt given the grantor by the grantee stating that it was for the final payment of the purchase price as per the deed in question is admissible. Id. Evidence that a purchaser at a foreclosure sale agreed with the mortgagor that he could hold the land and that it was not to be affected by the sale is admissible. Stovall v. Haynes, 25 Ky. L. R. 1789, 78 S. W. 895.

68. McElmurray v. Blodgett, 120 Ga. 9, 47 S. E. 531.

69. A reference to it as a mortgage by intended as a mortgage cannot be shown in an action for breach of warranty of title unless specially pleaded.[70]

Relief granted.—The land may be ordered sold if the mortgagor fail to reimburse the mortgagee.[71] The court will determine the right to possession.[72]

Costs.—The mortgagor is entitled to recover costs,[73] but if the mortgagee must enforce a sale of the property for the amount due him, the mortgagor must pay costs resulting therefrom.[74]

§ 4. Equitable mortgages.[75]—An equitable mortgage is a transaction to which equity attaches the character of a mortgage.[76] It may arise from any writing,[77] act,[78] contract,[79] or transaction[80] from which can be read an intention to charge property with the payment of a debt; for example, where pursuant to contract one acquires title to property for the purpose of holding it as security.[81] The fact that title is acquired through legal proceedings does not divest the transaction of its character.[82] A contract to execute a mortgage upon the happening of a certain contingency is not an equitable mortgage,[83] nor will an equitable mortgage be read into several instruments having a distinct legal significance.[84]

the mortgagee. Adams v. Hopkins, 144 Cal. 19, 77 P. 712.

70. Cates v. Field [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 52.

71. Guenther v. Wisdom [Ky.] 84 S. W. 771.

72. Where the mortgagee's possession was based on the deed only. Grogan v. Valley Trading Co. [Mont.] 76 P. 211.

73. 74. Guenther v. Wisdom [Ky.] 84 S. W. 771.

75. See 2 Curr. L. 908.

76. The owner of an equity of redemption contracted with another for an advancement sufficient to redeem, and agreed that such person might within two years sell the land, pay the amount advanced, and account for the balance in case the owner did not repay the amount within that time. He thereafter without other consideration executed a deed to the wife of the person making the advancements. Held the transaction amounted to an equitable mortgage. Malone v. Danforth [Mich.] 100 N. W. 445. A written agreement by the owner of the equity of redemption that if the mortgagee would discontinue foreclosure proceedings he would execute a bond and mortgage to secure the debt. Matthews v. Damainville, 43 Misc. 546, 89 N. Y. S. 493. After the foreclosure of a first mortgage and expiration of the period of redemption, an accounting was had and it was found that the mortgagor still owed $705, $175 of which was due under a second mortgage. It was agreed that if the mortgagor would pay this indebtedness the mortgagee would deed the land back to him. Wenzel v. Weigand, 92 Minn. 152, 99 N. W. 633. Creditors who reduce their claim to judgment between the time their debtor executes a security deed and the time he transfers the bond to reconvey acquire a lien superior to the transferee of the bond. O'Connor v. Georgia R. Bank [Ga.] 48 S. E. 716.

77. Not constituting a formal mortgage. Feely v. Bryan [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 307.

78. Such as an imperfect attempt to give a mortgage, sufficient being done to enable a court of equity to deal with the matter. Harrigan v. Gilchrist [Wis.] 99 N. W. 909.

79. Where one contracts to execute a mortgage to secure a debt long overdue and then refuses to do so, he cannot complain of a decree charging the indebtedness on the land and ordering a sale thereof. Hamilton v. Hamilton, 162 Ind. 430, 70 N. E. 535. A loan was made for the purpose of enabling the borrower to purchase a home. It was agreed that the premises purchased should be held by the lender as security for the debt. Held that when the borrower refused to furnish the security the lender was entitled to have his claim decreed a lien on the premises. Hughes v. Mullaney, 92 Minn. 485, 100 N. W. 217.

80. A purchaser at judicial sale and contemporaneous resale by executory contract to the debtor whereby he is charged with a sum in addition to the amount for which it was sold, all pursuant to a prior verbal agreement, is a mortgage. Liskey v. Snyder [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 515.

81. Potter v. Kimball [Mass.] 71 N. E 308. Where one agrees to advance money for the purchase of land, take title in his own name and convey to the real purchaser upon repayment of the sum advanced, the transaction creates an express trust. Lucia v. Adams [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 335. That no time is fixed for repayment does not render the transaction void. Id.

82. By writ of summons and attachment and then by writ of entry, the fact that in the summons and attachment suit the execution was returned satisfied by levy on the property and in the writ of entry, execution for possession was issued, served and returned. Potter v. Kimball [Mass.] 71 N. E. 308.

83. Agreement to execute a mortgage if foreclosure proceedings were discontinued. Mathews v. Damainville, 91 N. Y. S. 524.

84. Where a person in feeble health contracted with a brother to care for her during life; that she would will him all her property, and in case she desired to be released from the contract she would pay him a reasonable compensation. The contract, will, and a power of attorney to manage her property was executed. Spence v. Huckins, 208 Ill. 304, 70 N. E. 289.

Limitations do not run against the right to redeem from an equitable mortgage until it is repudiated,[85] especially where the real nature of the transaction has been recognized by the parties and no prejudice has resulted.[86]

The statute of frauds is no defense to an action to enforce a mortgagor's rights under an equitable mortgage.[87]

§ 5. Nature and incidents of trust deeds as mortgages.[88]—A deed of trust to secure a debt though sometimes called a mortgage is essentially different.[89] Statutes applicable to mortgages may be inapplicable to trust deeds.[90] The doctrine that the cessation of the duties and powers of a trustee operates to carry title to the beneficiary has no application to a deed of trust to secure a debt.[91] The trustee holds the legal title as security only, and when the debt is paid it reverts without a reconveyance,[92] and while a satisfaction of the debt determines his power to sell, his deed thereafter will convey the apparent legal title;[93] but his grantee with notice of the trust is liable to the beneficiaries for the value of the land.[94] A trust deed can pass no greater interest than the grantor has.[95] The deed will be construed according to the import of its terms.[96] A pre-existing debt is a sufficient consideration.[97] The grantor cannot defeat the operative effect of the instrument.[98]

Powers and duties of the trustee.[99]—A trustee is the agent for both debtor and creditor,[1] and should not be a contesting litigant in the matter of which he is trustee.[2] Under a mortgage securing bonds he represents the bondholders.[3] His rights, powers and duties are defined and limited by the instrument,[4] and cannot 85, 86. Potter v. Kimball [Mass.] 71 N. E. 308.

87. Potter v. Kimball [Mass.] 71 N. E. 308. But see 2 Curr. L. 907, n. 44.

88. See 2 Curr. L. 913.

89. A conveyance by the debtor to the creditor in payment of the debt will not operate to divest the trustee of his legal title. Leech v. Karthaus [Ala.] 37 So. 696.

90. A statute providing that payment of the mortgage debt divests the title under the mortgage. Leech v. Karthaus [Ala.] 37 So. 696.

91. Since the payment of the debt operates to divest the cestui que trust, the creditor, of any interest. Leech v. Karthaus [Ala.] 37 So. 696.

92. Benton Land Co. v. Zeitler, 182 Mo. 251, 81 S. W. 193.

93. His grantee can convey good title to a bona fide purchaser. Schneider v. Sellers [Tex.] 84 S. W. 417.

94. Schneider v. Sellers [Tex.] 84 S. W. 417.

95. Executed by one who had but a one-fourth interest. Berner v. German State Bank [Iowa] 101 N. W. 156.

96. A conveyance to trustees to sell and pay certain parties "the amounts they were bound for on certain notes" does not secure the notes. Taylor v. Skiles [Tenn.] 81 S. W. 1258. A conveyance containing full covenants of warranty and purporting to convey all the interest of the grantor, but subject to the condition that the land be held in trust, to be sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of the grantor's debts, the balance, if any, returned to the grantor, passed the fee. Thompson v. Price [Wash.] 79 P. 951. The grantor was not a necessary party to an action to foreclose a mortgage executed prior to the trust deed. Id. A provision in a trust deed that in case of the absence of the trustee "the then sheriff of the county" should succeed to his powers and sell the property in case of default in payment of interest means the person who was sheriff at the time of the default. McNutt v. Mutual Ben. Life Ins. Co., 181 Mo. 94, 79 S. W. 703.

97. Such a deed if not executed with fraudulent intent known to the trustee is valid as against all secret prior liens and subsequent alienations or incumbrances. Gilbert Bros. & Co. v. Lawrence Bros. [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 155.

98. Evidence of want of consideration is inadmissible, though Rev. St. 1899, § 645 provides that want or failure of consideration may be shown in an action on a written contract for the payment of money. Wishart v. Gerhart, 105 Mo. App. 112, 78 S. W. 1094.

99. See 2 Curr. L. 913, n. 41 et seq.

1. If the trustee obtains possession before foreclosure, he is bound to collect and apply the rents and profits to the payment of the debt. Benton Land Co. v. Zeitler, 182 Mo. 251, 81 S. W. 193.

2. Contest with the creditor the amount or validity of the trust debt. Bryan v. McCann [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 143.

3. Where holders of bonds secured by a mortgage are allowed to intervene in foreclosure proceedings and one of the class dies before the decree, the case does not abate nor is it necessary to have the deceased bondholder's representative made a party before the litigation can proceed. Weed v. Gainesville, etc., R. Co., 119 Ga. 576, 46 S. E. 885.

4. If the deed contains a power of sale he cannot resort to a court of equity to have a sale made under its decree unless he be delegated unless under express authority.[5] He does not control the debt and cannot assert the rights and equities of the beneficiary to any extent beyond the powers expressly conferred.[6] Powers conferred by a deed of trust are strictly construed. Substitute trustees must be appointed,[7] the powers executed,[8] and the proceeds of a sale applied in the manner prescribed.[9] If he is the beneficiary he may extend the time for payment of the debt.[10] Under a provision that on failure of the trustee to act the owner of the debt may appoint a substitute trustee, an administrator of the owner of the debt may appoint a substitute trustee to execute the power in another state.[11]

Sale of the premises.[12]—It is the duty of the trustee when requested to execute the power of sale contained in the deed.[13] When a postponement of an accrued right to exercise the power of sale would prejudice the beneficiaries, it may be refused.[14] Where there is an agreement for an extension of time between the owner of the debt and the grantor, an action for damages may be maintained against the creditor for a breach of such agreement,[15] or an action may be maintained against a purchaser with notice to set aside the sale.[16] In Maryland he cannot exercise the power of sale before giving a bond.[17] He is personally responsible for breach of his duty.[18]

The security deed peculiar to Georgia[19] has had its status fixed by the judicial decisions of that state.[20] It conveys the absolute legal title,[21] which the grantee holds for the owner of the debt.[22] The interest of the grantor is not affected by shows such an impediment to the exercise of his power as renders it inequitable for him to proceed without the authority of the court. George v. Zinn [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 904. The existence of prior or subsequent liens on the property is not such an impediment where there is no such dispute as to the amount as would deter bidders from offering a full and fair price. Id. Nor is the possibility of a right of subrogation and marshaling of assets in the trust creditor desiring the sale. Id.

5. Polliham v. Reveley, 181 Mo. 622, 81 S. W. 182.

6. George v. Zinn [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 904.

7. A provision that on failure or refusal of the trustee to act the beneficiaries or their legal representatives might appoint another trustee gives the attorney in fact of a beneficiary no power to appoint a substitute trustee. Allen v. Alliance Trust Co. [Miss.] 36 So. 285.

8. The personal representative of a deceased trustee authorized by statute to execute the powers contained in the deed upon request of a cestui que trust cannot do so unless he is so requested. Eason v. Dortch, 136 N. C. 291, 48 S. E. 741.

9. Where land is conveyed under an agreement that it may be sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of a debt, the proceeds cannot be applied to the payment of any other debt. Berner v. German State Bank [Iowa] 101 N. W. 156. Evidence held to show that the grantee in a deed of trust agreed to pay the grantor the proceeds of a sale of the premises in excess of the debt without regard to when a sale was effected. Id.

10. Dunnaway v. O'Reilly, 102 Mo. App. 718, 79 S. W. 1004.

11. Owner of the debt died in Kentucky. His administrator can appoint a substitute trustee in Texas without taking out letters of administration in that state. Peacock v. Cummings [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 1002.

12. See fuller treatment in Foreclosure of Mortgages on Land, 3 Curr. L. 1438.

13, 14. Weir v. Jones [Miss.] 36 So. 533.

15. The power of sale was executed before the expiration of the period of extension. Missouri Real Estate Syndicate v. Sims, 179 Mo. 679, 78 S. W. 1006.

16. Owner of the debt was the purchaser. Missouri Real Estate Syndicate v. Sims, 179 Mo. 679, 78 S. W. 1006.

17. Under Code Pub. Gen. Laws, art. 16, § 205a, re-enacted by Act 1900, p. 128, c. 114, a filing at any time before ratification is not sufficient. Union Trust Co. v. Ward [Md.] 59 A. 192.

18. A partnership of which a trustee is a member is not liable for his wrongful acts as trustee. Tennent Shoe Co. v. Birdseye, 105 Mo. App. 696, 78 S. W. 1036.

19. See 2 Curr. L. 913, n. 40.

20. Shumate v. McLendon, 120 Ga. 396, 48 S. E. 10.

21. Leaves the grantor no interest which is subject to levy and sale on execution. Shumate v. McLendon, 120 Ga. 396, 48 S. E. 10. A security deed to a guardian vests title in him, and a reconveyance under Code 1895, § 2771, for the purpose of levy and sale put title in the grantor in the security deed as completely as it had been prior to the execution of such deed. Arrowwood v. McKee, 119 Ga. 623, 46 S. E. 871. A purchaser at the execution sale would acquire title as against both the guardian and his ward, and the ward, in case his money was lost, would look to the guardian on his bond. Id.

22. If he own the debt he holds for his own benefit, if he transfers the debt he holds for the benefit of the transferee. Shumate v. McLendon, 120 Ga. 396, 48 S. E. 10.

the transfer of the debt or title.[23] Where the maker and holder of a security deed agree on a sale of the land partly for cash and partly on time and for a division of the purchase money, and the prospective grantee fails to complete the purchase, the creditor is not liable to the maker of the deed for breach of such contract.[24] The debtor or his subsequent judgment creditor may redeem.[25] If a creditor redeem he can compel a reconveyance to the debtor and make the land subject to sale under his judgment.[26] Redemption can be accomplished only by payment of the secured debt in full.[27]

§ 6. Construction and effect of mortgages in general.[28]—The intention of the parties may be looked to in determining the meaning of terms employed.[29] A word importing a singular number may extend to and be applied to several.[30] If executed to secure overdue debts, it will be deemed payable presently.[31] Reasonable expenses incurred in the making of the loan will not render the transaction usurious.[32] A mortgage given to secure one against loss as a surety is not usurious because for a sum in excess of the liability secured.[33] A purchase money mortgage is not made contingent because it is to be paid in part by proceeds of a resale.[34]

Conflict of laws.—A mortgage is governed by the law in force at the date of execution, and a law which affects rights acquired thereunder impairs the obligation of a contract.[35] The law of the place of execution governs the construction.[36] The law of the place where the property is situated governs its effect,[37] but the courts of a state where a note secured by mortgage on property in another state is executed have jurisdiction on declaring the note to be void to enjoin foreclosure in the state where the property is located.[38]

Property and interests conveyed.[39]—A mortgage executed pursuant to a prior agreement relates back to the date of such agreement.[40] It creates a lien on all

23. He acquires no leviable interest until the debt is paid. Shumate v. McLendon, 120 Ga. 396, 48 S. E. 10.

24. Hudson v. Hudson, 119 Ga. 637, 46 S. E. 874. The owner of the equity does not lose his interest in the land until he has been paid the purchase price of his equity. Id.

25, 26. Shumate v. McLendon, 120 Ga. 396, 48 S. E. 10.

27. A partial payment does not give the grantor a leviable interest. Shumate v. McLendon, 120 Ga. 396, 48 S. E. 10.

28. See 2 Curr. L. 914.

29. "I doth hereby agree to give unto A a mortgage lien to have and to hold said property as security, to be void on condition that the note be paid" is a mortgage and not an agreement to give a mortgage. Bray v. Ellison [Ky.] 83 S. W. 96. A patent ambiguity in a trust deed which is corrected by other expressions therein will be construed according to the manifest intent of the parties. Noe v. Witbeck, 105 Ill. App. 502.

30. A mortgage reciting "I" and "my," being signed by both husband and wife, included the wife, though she was not named in the body of the instrument and was sufficient as a mortgage of the homestead. Bray v. Ellison [Ky.] 83 S. W. 96.

31. Hamilton v. Hamilton, 162 Ind. 430, 70 N. E. 535.

32. The mortgagee may be allowed reasonable expenses incurred in negotiating the loan, examination of the title, and inspection of the premises. Liskey v. Snyder [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 515.

33. A mortgage was given to secure a loan of the mortgagee's credit. Held, the fact that the mortgage was for a sum in excess of the note indorsed did not show the mortgage to be usurious, it being accepted as a mere indemnity against loss. Bouker v. Galligan [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 1010.

34. Iberia Cypress Co. v. Christen, 112 La. 451, 36 So. 491.

35. Law requiring a master's deed to be taken out within a specified time after the equity of redemption expires and on failure to do so, allowing the mortgagor to recover possession, applied to a mortgage executed when there was no statutory limitation and no loss of right by reason of failure to do so. Bradley v. Lightcap, 195 U. S. 1, 24, 25, 49 Law. Ed.

36. Smead v. Chandler, 71 Ark. 505, 76 S. W. 1066. A mortgage executed and recorded in the state where the premises are located to secure bonds issued and payable in another state is governed by the law of the state where executed. Bramblet v. Commonwealth Land & Lumber Co. [Ky.] 83 S. W. 599.

37. Bowdle v. Jencks [S. D.] 99 N. W. 98.

38. Mortgage executed in Indiana on property in Missouri. Ft. Wayne Trust Co. v. Sihler [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 494.

39. See 2 Curr. L. 914.

40. Is antecedent to a homestead claim arising on the date of the agreement and execution of the mortgage. Ferguson v. Walter Connally & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 76 S. W. 609.

property falling fairly within the description,[41] and if it purports to cover more than the mortgagor owns is valid as his interest.[42] Fixtures calculated to be for the permanent use of the realty[43] and appurtenances necessary to its enjoyment pass.[44] Where the extent of the right is not defined, it may be determined by what the parties have recognized as reasonably necessary.[45] In order that the lien may attach to after-acquired property, the terms of the instrument must be clear.[46] If because of mistake a mortgage does not include all the interests in the land intended to be included, the mortgagee has a right as against the mortgagor to have a new mortgage covering the omitted portion;[47] but he is not entitled thereto as against subsequent mortgagees and purchasers without notice.[48]

Debts secured.[49]—A mortgage is not security for any debt other than the one it was executed to secure.[50] A mortgage to secure funds to be advanced at a future date is not one to secure a liability contracted after the execution of the mortgage.[51]

Reformation.[52]—A mortgage will not be reformed to the prejudice of creditors without notice.[53]

41. A married woman who executed with her husband a mortgage conveying all their interest is estopped to assert after his death that it was intended to convey only his life estate and not a life estate in her if she survived him. Simons v. Reinhardt, 25 Ky. L. R. 1804, 78 S. W. 890.

42. Integral fraction owned by the mortgagor. Risch v. Jensen, 92 Minn. 107, 99 N. W. 628.

43. Hot water heating apparatus, copper tank and fixtures. Young v. Hatch [Me.] 59 A. 950.

NOTE: All fixtures whether actually or constructively annexed ordinarily are carried by a mortgage of the freehold unless expressly excepted. Sands v. Pfeiffer, 10 Cal. 259; Cunningham v. Cureton, 96 Ga. 492; Kleoss v. Kath, 40 Ill. App. 99; Arnold v. Crowder, 81 Ill. 56, 25 Am. Rep. 260; Johnson's Ex'r v. Wiseman's Ex'r, 4 Metc. [Ky.] 321; Woodham v. First Nat. Bank, 48 Minn. 67, 50 N. W. 1015, 31 Am. St. Rep. 622; Thomas v. Davis, 76 Mo. 42; Tate v. Blackburne, 48 Miss. 1; Kettredge v. Woods, 3 N. H. 503, 14 Am. Dec. 393; Snedeker v. Warren, 12 N. Y. 170; Foote v. Gooch, 96 N. C. 265, 60 Am. Rep. 411; Preston v. Briggs, 16 Vt. 124; Tillman v. De Lacy, 80 Ala. 103. The common-law rule that whatever is annexed to the freehold becomes a part thereof has been held to apply in all its strictness (Gardner v. Finley, 19 Barb. [N. Y.] 317), although there is at present a tendency in the states where the mortgage is regarded as a mere security to modify the harshness of its application in relation to fixtures annexed subsequent to the execution of the mortgage. See Bronson, Fixtures, § 58 et seq.

Fixtures annexed subsequent to the execution of the mortgage are according to the weight of authority a part of the realty and cannot be removed during the life of the mortgage. Union Water Co. v. Murphy's Flat Fluming Co., 22 Cal. 631; Seedhouse v. Broward, 34 Fla. 509; Wood v. Whelan, 93 Ill. 153; Smith v. Goodwin, 2 Me. 537; Pierce v. George, 108 Mass. 78, 11 Am. Rep. 310; Harlan v. Harlan, 15 Pa. 507, 53 Am. Dec. 612; Frankland v. Moulton, 5 Wis. 1; Gunderson v. Swarthout, 104 Wis. 186, 80 N. W. 465, 76 Am. St. Rep. 860; Langdon v. Buchanan, 62 N. H. 660; Lord v. Detroit Sav. Bank [Mich.] 93 N. W. 1063; Curry v. Schmidt, 54 Mo. 515. See Bronson, Fixtures, § 60 et seq.

44. Easement for light and air over an adjacent lot belonging to the mortgagor. Wood v. Grayson, 22 App. D. C. 432.

45. Wood v. Grayson, 22 App. D. C. 432.

46. Mortgage on a manufacturing plant held not to cover after-acquired merchandise manufactured by the mortgagor. Mallory v. Maryland Glass Co., 131 F. 111.

47. It was supposed the land mortgaged belonged to the mortgagor, and her husband joined merely to release his curtesy. It subsequently appeared that title to a part of the land was in the husband. It was understood that the mortgage was to cover all his interest. Livingstone v. Murphy [Mass.] 72 N. E. 1012.

48. The husband's land was sold under execution against him. Livingstone v. Murphy [Mass.] 72 N. E. 1012. Grantee in a quitclaim deed takes title free from equitable right of the mortgagee. Id. The fact that a husband releases his curtesy in land mortgaged by his wife is not notice that he has agreed to convey his own interest in the fee if it should subsequently appear that he and not she is the owner. Id.

49. See 2 Curr. L. 914.

50. Fleming v. Georgia R. R. Bank, 120 Ga. 1023, 48 S. E. 420. A stipulation in a note given for subsequent indebtedness containing no reference to a mortgage was not secured thereby. Id. Evidence held insufficient to show that a mortgage given to secure the performance of a lease was also given to secure the performance of a collateral contract of the lessee to purchase all his supplies from the lessor. Neumann v. Moretti [Cal.] 79 P. 510.

51. The mortgage takes effect at the time the advancement is made and is not within Pub. St. 1891, c. 139, § 103. Staniels v. Whitcher, 72 N. H. 451, 57 A. 678.

52. See Reformation of Instruments, 2 Curr. L. 1492.

53. German Nat. Bank v. Bode, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 30. Description will not be corrected. Id.

§ 7. Title and rights of parties. Nature of the mortgagor's interest.[54]—The mortgagor is regarded as the owner of the premises, and may as against all except his mortgagee or his assigns impose a servitude upon the premises.[55] He is entitled to possession[56] and to the rents and profits until his equity of redemption is cut off,[57] unless the premises are insufficient security for the debt,[58] or by the terms of the mortgage the mortgagee is entitled to possession.[59]

The mortgagee's interest is an insurable one.[60] He may recover on his policy regardless of any other security he may hold.[61]

Estoppel as to title.[62]—Payment of interest on the loan does not estop the mortgagee to deny the validity of the mortgage.[63]

Assumption of possession by mortgagee.[64]—A mortgagee who purchases and goes into possession under a void foreclosure sale is a mortgagee in possession,[65] whether he takes possession with or without consent of the mortgagor.[66] A mortgagee in possession may maintain an action to have his rights adjudicated.[67] He stands in the place of and represents the mortgagor respecting the care of the property and the obligation of the tenant to make repairs.[68] On accounting,[69] he is liable only for the amount of rent actually received.[70] He cannot charge for repairs not essential to the preservation of the premises.[71] He is not chargeable for

54. See 2 Curr. L. 915.

55. Contract with adjoining owners that intoxicating liquors shall not be manufactured or sold on the premises. Scudder v. Watt, 90 N. Y. S. 605.

56. After sale on foreclosure he may recover rents and profits. Costigan v. Truesdell [Ky.] 83 S. W. 98.

57. One to secure his debt to an estate assigned personal property which was his interest in the estate to the administrator. On redeeming he is entitled to the income of such property. Clark v. Seagraves [Mass.] 71 N. E. 813. The person advancing the money and taking title is liable to the true owner for rents and profits collected. Lucia v. Adams [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 335.

58. After the filing of a bill for the dissolution of a building and loan association which was in possession as mortgagor under a mortgage providing for such right until default, the mortgagee set up the default and prayed foreclosure and other relief. The receivers collected the rent for eight days after the petition for foreclosure was filed. Upon foreclosure, the proceeds were insufficient to satisfy the debt. Held, the mortgagee was entitled to have the rents collected by the receiver after her petition was filed applied to the payment of the deficiency. Baker v. Hill [Md.] 59 A. 275.

59. A tenant in possession under a lease subsequent to a mortgage which authorizes the mortgagee to collect the rents in case of default is liable to the mortgagee for the rental value, though as against the mortgagor he is entitled to a set off. Derby v. Brandt, 90 N. Y. S. 980.

60, 61. Kent v. Aetna Ins. Co., 84 App. Div. 428, 82 N. Y. S. 817.

62. See 2 Curr. L. 915.

63. On the ground that the mortgagor had no title. Whitlock v. Cohn [Ark.] 80 S. W. 141.

64. See 2 Curr. L. 915.

65. Investment Securities Co. v. Adams [Wash.] 79 P. 625. Heirs of the deceased mortgagor who were not made parties to the foreclosure suit could not defeat the mortgage without paying the debt. Id.

66. Investment Securities Co. v. Adams [Wash.] 79 P. 625.

67. To compel the holder of the legal title to redeem or on failure to redeem to have the right of redemption barred. Henthorn v. Security Co. [Kan.] 79 P. 653.

68. He cannot charge the mortgagor for repairs which he was under no obligation to make. The mortgagor's tenant had expressly covenanted to make repairs. Eggensperger v. Lanpher, 92 Minn. 503, 100 N. W. 372. A mortgagee who sues for foreclosure and pending litigation obtains the appointment of a receiver is chargeable as a mortgagee in possession. Land v. May [Ark.] 84 S. W. 489. The grantee of a security deed after having obtained possession may maintain an action to compel an accounting for the rents received, determine the amount due and have the property sold in satisfaction. Ray v. Pitman, 119 Ga. 678, 46 S. E. 849.

69. On accounting between a mortgagor and mortgagee who had assumed a prior mortgage and was in possession, moneys paid by the mortgagee on the prior incumbrance are to be treated as further advances and interest allowed on each payment to the next annual rest. At the time of each rest the mortgagee is to be charged with rentals for the previous year and credited with repairs, taxes, etc., and interest allowed on the new balance until the next rest. Chapman v. Cooney, 25 R. I. 657, 57 A. 928.

70. The fact that he reduced the rent in order to retain a tenant does not render him liable for the difference between the original rate and the rate after reduction. Chapman v. Cooney, 25 R. I. 657, 57 A. 928.

71. Barnard v. Paterson [Mich.] 100 N. W. 893. In an action to procure a reconveyance of lands conveyed as security, the mortgagee can recover for improvements made only during the period he proved he a reduced rental acquiesced in by the mortgagor,[72] nor for an amount of the rents applied to the payment of back taxes and insurance which the mortgagor had failed to pay.[73] He cannot, in the absence of an express stipulation, recover compensation for his services in caring for the premises,[74] nor commissions on rents collected for his own benefit.[75]

Limitations do not run against the mortgage debt while he is in possession.[76]

Right to possession.—A mortgagee in a mortgage given to secure his support is entitled to possession,[77] unless from the terms of the mortgage a contrary intention can be inferred.[78]

Payment of taxes.—The mortgagee is under no legal duty to pay the taxes on the premises,[79] but if he has paid them under the belief that he had a valid lien, he is entitled to recover the amount paid with interest,[80] and where he has the option of paying taxes and adding the sum to the amount of the claim, he may recover all sums necessarily expended,[81] but not sums he is not required to pay.[82]

Insurance.—Insurance procured by the mortgagee for his own benefit does not inure to the benefit of the mortgagor.[83] Fraud of the mortgagor in procuring insurance on mortgaged premises for the benefit of the mortgagee is no defense to the mortgagee's claim under the policy.[84] Conflicting interests between mortgagor and mortgagee in an insurance policy insuring both their interests should be determined by one party suing on the policy and making the other defendant.[85]

Waste.—A mortgagee can recover for waste committed by strangers on the mortgaged premises.[86] The insolvency of the mortgagor is immaterial.[87] A mort-was in possession. Spangenberg v. Schneider, 97 App. Div. 200, 89 N. Y. S. 859.

72. Where the mortgagee was to collect rent and apply it to the payment of taxes, etc., and to the payment of the debt, and the rent was reduced with the consent of the mortgagor, the difference between the original and substituted rental should not be credited on the debt. Wilmarth v. Johnson [Wis.] 102 N. W. 562.

73. Wilmarth v. Johnson [Wis.] 102 N. W. 562.

74. Chapman v. Cooney, 25 R. I. 657, 57 A. 928.

75. No agreement that he should be paid for such services. Barnard v. Paterson [Mich.] 100 N. W. 893.

Note: It is held by some courts (Brown v. South Boston Sav. Bank, 148 Mass. 300, 19 N. E. 382; Bradley v. Merrill, 91 Me. 340, 40 A. 132; Waterman v. Curtis, 26 Conn. 241) that a mortgagee in possession is entitled to such commissions, or as it is sometimes called, charges, for taking care of the estate; but the great weight of authority is against their allowance (French v. Baron, 2 Atk. 120; Elmer v. Loper, 25 N. J. Eq. 475; Turner v. Johnson, 95 Mo. 341, 7 S. W. 570; Allen v. Robbins, 7 R. I. 33; Benham v. Rowe, 2 Cal. 261; Harper v. Ely, 70 Ill. 581; Neptune Ins. Co. v. Dorsey, 3 Md. Ch. 334. See Barnard v. Paterson [Mich.] 100 N. W. 893).

76. He may foreclose as soon as he discovers that the prior foreclosure was void. Investment Securities Co. v. Adams [Wash.] 79 P. 625.

77. He may recover such possession whether there has been a breach of the condition or not. Davis v. Poland [Me.] 59 A. 520.

78. Where it is provided that support shall be furnished upon the mortgaged premises. Possession in the mortgagor in such case being necessary to enable him to perform the condition of the mortgage. Davis v. Poland [Me.] 59 A. 520.

79. The existence of a tax lien does not constitute a breach of a personal covenant suffered by the mortgagee as grantor in the foreclosure deed. Stewart v. Wilson [Ala.] 37 So. 550.

80. Koerner v. Pfaff, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 597.

81. Additional burden resulting in delay, interest, penalties and costs. First Nat. Bank v. McCarthy [S. D.] 100 N. W. 14.

82. Cost of procuring a tax deed and recording it. First Nat. Bank v. McCarthy [S. D.] 100 N. W. 14. A stipulation that the mortgagor should repay all money paid by the mortgagee for taxes or on account of outstanding liens does not apply to expense incurred in litigating unfounded claims adverse to the mortgage. Norris v. Belcher Land Mortg. Co. [Tex.] 83 S. W. 799.

83. Where a creditor secured by a deed of trust procured insurance on the property for his own benefit, the debtor cannot require him to account to him for money received on the policy. Dunbrack v. Neall [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 303.

84. Agner v. Firemen's Ins. Co., 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 254. A mortgagor procuring insurance on mortgaged premises for the mortgagee as his interest may appear, in accordance with an agreement to do so, is not in any sense the agent of the mortgagee. Id.

85. Kent v. Aetna Ins. Co., 84 App. Div. 428, 82 N. Y. S. 817.

86. Removal of steel beams and lintels

gagee in possession cannot be held liable for waste where the mortgagor recovers his property in a somewhat worse condition, but recovers money which might have been used in making repairs.[88]

Right to the compensation in condemnation proceedings.[89]—At law the compensation fund for property taken under the power of eminent domain belongs to the mortgagor; but the mortgagee can recover the award so far as necessary to repair the impairment of the security.[90] This principle applies where the land is not taken, but is damaged.[91] The right to reach the fund is an equitable right distinct from the rights under the mortgage on the remaining land.[92] If the mortgagee waives his right the mortgagor may recover.[93] The mortgagee cannot recover an amount not awarded as compensation.[94] Where a part of the premises are taken, nothing remains subject to the mortgage except the land not taken.[95]

Acquisition of outstanding title by a co-mortgagee inures to the benefit of all.[96] Mortgagees cannot permit the land to be sold for taxes and acquire title as against the mortgagor,[97] unless permitted to do so by statute.[98]

Rights of successive mortgagees.—A junior mortgagee may require property on which a senior mortgagee's lien is exclusive to be first resorted to by him, un-inserted in a building before the execution of the mortgage is waste impairing the security. Ogden Lumber Co. v. Busse, 92 App. Div. 143, 86 N. Y. S. 1098. Evidence held sufficient to prove defendant's knowledge of the mortgage before committing the waste. Id.

87. In an action for waste his insolvency need not be alleged. Ogden Lumber Co. v. Busse, 92 App. Div. 143, 86 N. Y. S. 1098.

88. Chapman v. Cooney, 25 R. I. 657, 57 A. 928.

Note: There are two lines of holding upon the question of waste as applied to a mortgagee in possession; one line of cases holding that he must keep the property in as good condition as when he receives it. Barrett v. Nelson, 54 Iowa, 41, 6 N. W. 49, 37 Am. Rep. 183, and cases cited; Shaeffer v. Chambers, 6 N. J. Eq. 548, 47 Am. Dec. 211. The other that he is liable only for voluntary waste and cannot be charged for deterioration arising in ordinary waste and decay from lapse of time. 4 Kent, Comm. [12th Ed.] p. 167. See, also, Dozier v. Mitchell, 65 Ala. 511.—See Chapman v. Cooney, 25 R. I. 657, 57 A. 928.

89. See Eminent Domain, 3 Curr. L. 1189.

90. Bolton v. Seamen's Bank for Savings, 99 App. Div. 581, 91 N. Y. S. 122. The compensation fund remains land (Bates v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 1017); but in equity the fund may be subjected to a lien for the payment of the mortgage debt (Id.). A third mortgagee is a mortgagee within St. 1894, p. 764, c. 548, § 8, providing for compensation of mortgagees having an estate in premises abutting on a street in which an elevated railroad is constructed. Id.

91. Under St. 1894, p. 764, where an elevated railway is constructed in the street on which the premises abut. Bates v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 1017.

92. The rights of a third mortgagee in the compensation fund are not affected by the fact that his right to redeem from a prior mortgage is cut off. Bates v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 1017.

93. Holder of a trust deed waived his right to be heard on the assessment of damages relative to the abolition of grade crossings. Providence, F. R. & N. Steamboat Co. v. Fall River [Mass.] 72 N. E. 338.

94. An amount guarantied by adjacent owners if the mortgagor would withdraw his opposition to a bill to establish a uniform court yard line and commence the construction of a building on the premises so as not to interfere with such line. Bolton v. Seaman's Bank for Savings, 99 App. Div. 581, 91 N. Y. S. 122.

95. Only that portion is subject to sale on foreclosure. Bates v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 1017.

96. He takes title to such property in trust for co-bondholders on condition that they contribute their share of the price paid. Booker v. Crocker [C. C. A.] 132 F. 7. The proportionate share he is required to pay is measured by the par value of the bonds he holds, not by the amount he paid for them. Id. When the liens or titles purchased cover property not subject to the common mortgage, he acquires a like share in such property. Id.

97. He may pay the taxes and claim reimbursement. Ross v. Frick Co. [Ark.] 83 S. W. 343. Where the mortgagee has merely a lien, so long as the relation of mortgagor and mortgagee exists, the latter cannot as against the former acquire title to the property by means of tax sale where by the terms of his mortgage he is permitted to pay the taxes and add the amount to his claim. First Nat. Bank v. McCarthy [S. D.] 100 N. W. 14.

98. In Massachusetts a mortgagee may redeem from tax sale. Express provisions of St. 1898, c. 390, § 57. Hawks v. Davis, 185 Mass. 119, 69 N. E. 1072. An assignee of the mortgagee is a mortgagee of record within the meaning of this law. Id. An assignee whose assignment was made previously but not recorded at the time of the sale, is entitled to redeem on subsequently recording his assignment. Id.

less the premises subject to both liens are sufficient to satisfy them,[99] or the premises on which the superior lien is exclusive have been transferred[1]; but he must give the senior mortgagee notice that he intends to claim an equity through him,[2] since it is not the duty of the senior mortgagee to ascertain his status.[3] A second mortgagee who does not assume the first mortgage is not precluded from attacking its validity, though it is exempted from the covenants of the second mortgage;[4] but he cannot set up limitations as against a prior mortgagee's right to foreclose where there is no privity between them.[5] Where a senior mortgagee brings action to correct the description in his mortgage, a subsequent mortgagee whose mortgage is subject to the same defect is entitled to be made a party and to the same relief.[6]

The right to foreclose[7] is dependent on maturity of the obligation or its equivalent. No demand for payment is necessary.[8] If the debt is payable on demand he may foreclose at any time.[9] He is entitled to foreclose pro tanto on maturity of one of several notes secured.[10] The mortgagee in foreclosing under a power of sale must exercise extreme good faith.[11]

An extension of time for payment of the debt is a contract affecting an incumbrance on land and applies in whosesoever hands the title goes during such period.[12] It may be oral,[13] but must be based on a consideration.[14] It is binding according to its terms.[15] The mortgagee may be estopped from foreclosing before the expiration of the period of extension.[16]

§ 8. Lien and priorities.[17]—As between the parties the lien attaches at the time the mortgage is delivered;[18] as to third persons, from the date it is recorded.[19] A mortgagee's lien is inferior to all equities of which he has notice,[20] actual[21]

99. Blanchette v. Farsch [S. D.] 99 N. W. 79.

1. Griffin v. Gingell, 25 Ky. L. R. 2031, 79 S. W. 284.

2. Demand that the property on which the paramount lien is exclusive be first resorted to. Blanchette v. Farsch [S. D.] 99 N. W. 79.

3. A first mortgagee is not required before releasing a portion of the premises on which his lien is exclusive to ascertain whether the mortgagor has subsequently incumbered the portion not released. Blanchette v. Farsch [S. D.] 99 N. W. 79.

4. Livingstone v. Murphy [Mass.] 72 N. E. 1012.

5. The subsequent mortgagee did not contest the senior mortgagee's right to priority, but filed a cross bill to foreclose his own mortgage. Tinsley v. Lombard [Or.] 78 P. 895.

6. Scott v. Gordon [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 550.

7. See Foreclosure of Mortgages on Land, 3 Curr. L. 1438.

8, 9. Kebabian v. Shinkle [R. I.] 59 A. 743.

10. Land v. May [Ark.] 84 S. W. 489.

11. If he mislead intending purchasers, employ agents to bid against each other, the sale may be set aside. Kebabian v. Shinkle [R. I.] 59 A. 743.

12. Missouri Real Estate Syndicate v. Sims, 179 Mo. 679, 78 S. W. 1006.

13. Evidence held sufficient to establish such an agreement. Hauser v. Capital City Brew. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 722. An original answer held sufficient evidence of an agreement for an extension of time of payment of the mortgage debt. Briggs v. Weeks, 90 N. Y. S. 853.

14. An extension of time in consideration of another's purchase of stock in the corporation mortgagor, and paying the money into the corporation treasury, is based on a sufficient consideration. Hauser v. Capital City Brew. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 722.

15. When a mortgagee after the maturity of the mortgage induces the mortgagor to remain his debtor in expectation that a reduced rate of interest will be accepted, he is thereafter estopped from exacting a rate provided for by the mortgage. Barnard v. Paterson [Mich.] 100 N. W. 893.

16. Where a third person purchased shares of stock of a corporation mortgagor on the assurance of the mortgagee that the time of payment of the mortgage debt should be extended. Hauser v. Capital City Brew. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 722.

17. See 2 Curr. L. 918.

18. If one loan money to a solvent person with an agreement that a mortgage to secure it is to be executed, and later when the borrower becomes insolvent he executes a mortgage, it is not a good preference as to other debts existing at the date of the mortgage. Code 1899, § 2, c. 74, requiring the loan and mortgage to be made at the same time. Feely v. Bryan [W. Va.] 47 S. E. 307.

19. Mortgages simultaneously executed will take precedence according to the dates of their recording. Kohn v. Warner, 105 Ill. App. 321.

20. A grantee in a trust deed executed after a decree of a sale of the land under mortgage foreclosure but before the sale or constructive,[22] but superior to equities with notice of which he is not charged.[23] One holding an equitable interest in property cannot stand by while the person holding the legal title executes a mortgage and afterwards set up his interest to defeat the mortgage.[24]

Liens for laborer's services[25] in connection with the mortgaged premises take priority over the mortgage.[26] In Minnesota a lien for labor or building materials furnished after the execution of a mortgage may be superior to it.[27] The lien of a subsequent mortgage is inferior to a lien for the purchase price of chattels purchased under conditional sale and annexed to the realty.[28] is a purchaser pendente lite and whatever interest he acquires is subject to the lien of the foreclosure decree. Senft v. Vanet, 209 Ill. 361, 70 N. E. 720; Griffin v. Gingell, 25 Ky. L. R. 2031, 79 S. W. 284. The record of an instrument which does not constitute a mortgage is not notice to subsequent purchasers or mortgagees. Mathews v. Damainville, 91 N. Y. S. 524. The fact that the record shows the source of a mortgagor's title to be a voluntary conveyance from her husband and a judgment against the husband subsequent to the deed is not notice to the mortgagee of any defect in the title. Glassburn v. Wireman [Iowa] 102 N. W. 421.

21. A mortgagee with actual notice that a third person is in possession. Crooks v. Jenkins [Iowa] 100 N. W. 82. Mortgagee of a crop of hemp took with notice of an agreement that certain advances to harvest the crop were to be a first lien. Dickenson v. Columbus State Bank [Neb.] 98 N. W. 813. Assignees of a trust deed are charged with notice of the rights of parties in possession. Heppe v. Szczepanski, 209 Ill. 88, 70 N. E. 737.

22. See Notice and Record of Title, 2 Curr. L. 1053. A mortgagee who is charged with constructive notice that there is a defect in the title of his mortgagor will acquire a lien subject to that of which he has constructive notice. Parker v. Parker [N. J. Eq.] 56 A. 1094. The record of a description so imperfect as to make its correction proper is notice to subsequent lienors. Scott v. Gordon [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 550. Mortgages executed subsequent to the recordation of an instrument constituting an equitable mortgage. Matthews v. Damainville, 43 Misc. 546, 89 N. Y. S. 493. If an examination of the records would disclose that a mortgagor had no title, the mortgagee cannot claim priority over prior mortgages in the record of which there was a misnomer of the mortgagor. Glenovich v. Zurich [S. D.] 101 N. W. 1103. A mortgage given by an incoming to a retiring partner, on the land transferred, with the consent of the co-partners, takes priority over a trust deed given by the new partnership for indebtedness incurred after the recording of the mortgage. Tobias v. Commercial Sav. Bank [Mich.] 98 N. W. 984.

The record of assignment may be notice of the existence of a mortgage. Revision 1898, § 53 (Laws 1898, p. 690) makes the record of an assignment of a mortgage constructive notice of its existence. Higgins v. Jamesburg Mut. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 1078.

23. Walker v. Walker [Iowa] 102 N. W. 435. Where the mortgagor, in whom title was, was in possession with his mother who held a lease of the premises for a term of years, held, the mother's possession was equivocal and consistent with the mortgagor's ownership and not notice of her rights under the lease. Phillips v. Owens, 90 N. Y. S. 947. A bona fide mortgagee from a trustee acquires a lien superior to the beneficiary. Scott v. Isaacsen [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 254. A debtor who gives an extension of time for the payment of a debt and takes a mortgage as security is a bona fide purchaser under Laws 1896, p. 608, c. 547, providing that an unrecorded conveyance is void as to such purchasers. O'Brien v. Fleckenstein [N. Y.] 73 N. E. 30. The lien of a mortgage given to secure future advances is superior to the lien of a subsequent mortgage executed before the advances were made, but of which the prior mortgagee had no notice. Peacock, Hunt & West Co. v. Thaggard, 128 F. 1005.

24. Atlanta Nat. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Gilmer, 128 F. 293. Where the owners of the legal title and one having an equity in the premises are in joint occupancy, a mortgagee is not charged with notice of the rights of the owner of the equity. Id.

25. See 2 Curr. L. 918, n. 23 et seq.

26. To establish a preference over a mortgage under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 7051, 7058, making debts of an insolvent owing to laborers or employes preferred claims against the estate, it must be shown that the labor was connected with the mortgaged property. McDaniel v. Osborn [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 601.

27. Where the erection of a building is one continuous undertaking without anything to suggest during the progress of the work an abandonment, a mortgage executed subsequent to the commencement of the construction is subordinate to the lien claims of all who have contributed to the completion of the structure. City of Ortonville v. Geer [Minn.] 101 N. W. 963. See, also, Glass v. Freeburg, 50 Minn. 386, 52 N. W. 900; Gardner v. Leck, 52 Minn. 522, 54 N. W. 746. Laws 1895, c. 101, p. 224, has not changed this rule further than to require the recording of a mortgage executed prior to the commencement of the work. City of Ortonville v. Geer [Minn.] 101 N. W. 963.

28. Duntz v. Granger Brew. Co., 41 Misc. 177, 83 N. Y. S. 957. Lien Law, § 112, providing that a conditional sale of chattels shall be void as against a subsequent mortgagee unless recorded, does not apply to a conditional sale of chattels to be manufactured. Id.

Nature of the right of priority.—Priority of lien is a vested right and cannot be interfered with by the legislature,[29] nor affected by subsequent transfers or transactions concerning the premises to which the mortgagee is not a party.[30] The fact that a prior judgment lien is postponed in favor of a subsequent one will not operate to postpone his lien.[31]

Waiver.[32]—A mortgagee may waive his right to priority.[33] A waiver will be construed according to the legal effect of its terms,[34] but not to apply to claims not falling fairly within its meaning.[35]

A mortgage to include future acquired property[36] attaches to an equitable title thereafter acquired.[37] It is inferior to a lien for the purchase money, but not to a lien for services rendered the grantee by the grantor after the sale.[38]

§ 9. Assignments of mortgages.[39]—No formal assignment is necessary;[40] a delivery accompanied by an intention to transfer is sufficient.[41]

29. Act May 15, 1903, validating acknowledgments taken by an officer and stockholder of a building and loan association mortgagee, has no retrospective operation as against the holder of a lien acquired before the act was passed. Jugman v. Jiri Washington Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 209 Ill. 176, 70 N. E. 644. A curative act validating the acknowledgment cannot deprive a subsequent mortgagor of his right to priority over the first mortgage. Steger v. Traveling Men's Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 208 Ill. 236, 70 N. E. 236. Act Pa. June 4, 1901, § 2, providing that taxes shall be a first lien, is prospective and does not give priority to taxes over a mortgage which was a lien before the law was passed. In re Prince & Walter, 131 F. 545.

30. A mortgagee in a mortgage subsequent to a deed of trust cannot be prejudiced by any agreement between the grantor and others made subsequent to the execution of the mortgage. Leech v. Karthaus [Ala.] 37 So. 696. The beneficiary in a deed of trust is not affected by an agreement unknown to him between the grantor and the beneficiary of a subsequent trust deed that such beneficiary's interest would be protected by the grantor. New York Store Mercantile Co. v. Thurmond [Mo.] 85 S. W. 333. One who furnishes money to a mortgagor with which to pay taxes does not acquire a lien superior to the mortgagee, though the mortgagor agrees that he shall have. Mersick v. Hartford, etc., R. Co., 76 Conn. 11, 55 A. 664. An agreement that a first mortgage shall stand as security for additional indebtedness incurred after the execution of a second mortgage creates a lien secondary to the second mortgage. Crooks v. Jenkins [Iowa] 100 N. W. 82. The fact that a member of a firm agreed to release a mortgage given by another member of the firm for the benefit of the firm does not affect the rights of a mortgagee not a party. Griffin v. Stone River Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 254.

31. Under a statute giving judgments priority in the order in which executions are issued thereon, the holder of a junior judgment on which execution is issued before issuance of execution on the senior judgment is not entitled to priority over a mortgage recorded before rendition of the junior judgment but after rendition of the senior. Meeker v. Warren [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 421.

32. See 2 Curr. L. 918, n. 25.

33. An indorsement on the margin of a mortgage reciting that it is given to secure the payment of the purchase price is not inconsistent with an agreement that certain judgments should constitute a prior lien. Stover v. Hellyer [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 470. Advances were made by a mortgagee to harvest a crop, under an oral agreement with the owner and another mortgagee that they should be paid out of the proceeds of the crop before the mortgages were paid. Dickenson v. Columbus State Bank [Neb.] 98 N. W. 813. In an action brought after the death of the judgment creditor, evidence held sufficient to establish the priority of this mortgage and to show that the judgment creditor had agreed that his lien should be inferior or to overthrow this written agreement. Stover v. Hellyer [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 470.

34. A first mortgagor executed an instrument reciting "I hereby waive the lien of my mortgage and make it inferior to the lien" of a mortgage to secure a loan with which to build a house on the mortgaged premises." The house to be of a certain cost, free from liens and insured. Held, the waiver was absolute and did not depend for validity on the performance of the conditions recited as a consideration. Claypool v. German Fire Ins. Co., 32 Ind. App. 540, 70 N. E. 281.

35. A waiver of priority in favor of a mortgage given to secure a loan to build a house on the premises will not include expenses incident to the loan nor insurance premiums. Claypool v. German Fire Ins. Co., 32 Ind. App. 540, 70 N. E. 281.

36. See 2 Curr. L. 918.

37. Lot purchased by oral contract. Monmouth County Elec. Co. v. McKenna [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 32.

38. Monmouth County Elec. Co. v. McKenna [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 32.

39. See 2 Curr. L. 919.

40. Where a principal elected to hold his agent who procured the mortgage personally liable and told him he could have the mortgage, it constituted an assignment. Freeburg v. Eksell, 123 Iowa, 464, 99 N. W. 118. Evidence held to show an assignment of a note and mortgage. The note could

An equitable assignment[42] results from the transfer of the debt[43] or a void foreclosure sale.[44] The transfer of a portion of the debt operates as an assignment pro tanto.[45]

Rights and duties of the assignee.—It is the duty of the assignee to inquire of the mortgagor the status of the debt.[46] He acquires no greater interest than his assignor had,[47] but he acquires all his rights.[48] Where a release appears of record, he takes at his peril, though the power of attorney to release is not of record.[49] Where it is optional with the mortgagee to require the mortgagor to take out insurance, the assignee is not required to take the initiative.[50] The fact that he does not will not relieve the assignors from their liability as guarantors of the debt,[51] nor does the fact that he does not recover the amount of a policy taken out by the mortgagors for their own benefit,[52] though he attempted to recover and failed.[53] An agreement by the assignee to indemnify his assignor against liability on account of the mortgage renders him liable for a deficiency judgment.[54]

A tender by the purchaser of the land to an assignee is a recognition of his ownership of the mortgage.[55]

§ 10. Transfer of title of mortgagor and assumption of debt.[56]—A grantee of mortgaged premises acquires only the estate of his grantor;[57] an equity of redemption.[58] Rights of the mortgagee are not affected,[59] unless he has failed not be found. Bloomer v. Burke [Minn.] 101 N. W. 974.

41. Mahnken Co. v. Pelletreau, 93 App. Div. 420, 87 N. Y. S. 737.

42. See 2 Curr. L. 919.

43. Freeburg v. Eksell, 123 Iowa, 464, 99 N. W. 118; Guthrie v. Treat, 66 Neb. 415, 92 N. W. 595. The indorsee of notes is entitled to a mortgage subsequently executed to secure them. Griffin v. Stone River Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 254.

44. A stranger who purchases at a void foreclosure sale takes an equitable assignment of the mortgage. Rodman v. Quick, 211 Ill. 546, 71 N. E. 1087.

45. Transfer of one of several notes secured by the same mortgage. Guthrie v. Treat, 66 Neb. 415, 92 N. W. 595. The detachment of interest coupons from bonds secured by a mortgage does not deprive the coupons of the security of the mortgage. Long Island Loan & Trust Co. v. Long Island City & N. R. Co., 85 App. Div. 26, 82 N. Y. S. 644.

46. Brosseau v. Lowy, 209 Ill. 405, 70 N. E. 901.

47. Where junior mortgagees claimed that a senior mortgage had been fully paid before assignment, the burden is on the assignee to show that a check given for the assignment was not subsequently paid. Conlon v. Minor, 94 App. Div. 458, 88 N. Y. S. 224. Assignee of an assignor's interest as remainderman in a fund held chargeable with notice that the assignment was merely a mortgage. Dixon v. Bentley [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 1036.

48. Failure to fix the liability of indorsers on the mortgage notes does not affect his right to enforce the mortgage. Griffin v. Stone River Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 254.

49. Adams v. Hopkins, 144 Cal. 19, 77 P. 712. A power of attorney to release a mortgage need not be recorded. Id.

50. The fact that an assignee was to approve the amount of the insurance is immaterial. Willard v. Welch, 94 App. Div. 179, 88 N. Y. S. 173.

51, 52, 53. Willard v. Welch, 94 App. Div. 179, 88 N. Y. S. 173.

54. Smith v. Nelson [Or.] 78 P. 740.

55. Juckett v. Fargo Mercantile Co. [S. D.] 102 N. W. 604.

56. See 2 Curr. L. 920.

57. Where the mortgagees took a deed from the mortgagor subsequent to and with notice of a grant of standing timber by the mortgagor. Rothschild v. Bay City Lumber Co., 139 Ala. 571, 36 So. 785. A grantee with notice that his grantor's interest is only a mortgage acquires no greater rights. Dixon v. Bentley [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 1036. Where an heir mortgaged his interest in his ancestor's estate pending settlement thereof and the land was sold in administration to pay debts, the mortgagee had a lien only on the heir's interest in the surplus proceeds in the hands of the administrator. Gutter v. Dallamore [Cal.] 79 P. 383.

58. Takes title subject to a mortgage of record. Griffin v. Stone River Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 254: Freeburg v. Eksell, 123 Iowa, 464, 99 N. W. 118.

59. Execution against a mortgagor will pass his interest in the land, but rights of the mortgagee are unaffected. Carrasco v. Mason, 72 N. H. 158, 54 A. 1101. A judgment creditor of the mortgagor who has levied execution cannot maintain a writ of entry against the mortgagee in possession. Id. Where a first mortgage stipulates that the mortgagor may with the mortgagee's consent sell portions of the property free from the mortgage, and subsequent mortgages, given to other parties, do not contain such a stipulation, a sale under the first mortgage conveys the property subject to the rights of subsequent mortgagees, to record his mortgage.[60] An heir of the mortgagor acquires no greater estate.[61] In order to preserve his rights, the grantee must record his deed.[62]

Assumption of the mortgage.[63]—A purchaser of mortgaged premises does not become personally liable for the mortgage indebtedness,[64] unless he assumes it.[65] The right to enforce the mortgagor's liability for a deficiency may be lost by laches.[66] Precise and formal terms of assumption are not necessary.[67] Where the amount of the mortgage is to be paid by the grantee as a part of the purchase price, it is an assumption of the debt.[68]

The agreement to assume[69] a mortgage must rest on a consideration.[70] A grantee who never accepts a deed is not bound by an assumption clause,[71] but if he does accept, he is bound by its contents;[72] hence an assuming grantee is liable, though he procures the leaving of a blank in the deed, wherein the name of his grantee is inserted,[73] and the latter not having really assumed it is not liable.[74] The mortgagee may enforce the agreement for his own benefit.[75] The assumption creates a charge upon the land.[76] An agreement to assume,[77] and the identity of the mortgage assumed, may be shown by parol.[78]

Where the grantee assumes a mortgage, it is presumed that such payment is a part of the consideration,[79] and he cannot set up as a defense that the mortgage is usurious,[80] unless the amount was not estimated in fixing the price of the land.[81] who cannot be compelled to release their rights in the property sold and look to the fund for protection. Mt. Adams & E. P. I. R. Co. v. Central Trust & Safe Dep. Co., 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 529.

60. Rev. St. 1895, art. 4060, providing that unrecorded conveyances are void as to subsequent bona fide purchasers. Garner v. Boyle [Tex.] 79 S. W. 1066.

61. The heir of a mortgagor to whom mortgaged property descends must be held to have knowledge of the terms of the mortgage. Fleming v. Hager, 121 Iowa, 205, 96 N. W. 752. An heir who accepts partition of property subject to a mortgage executed by the administrator, who was heard when the application to mortgage was made, and assented to the approval of the administrator's final account, is estopped to question the regularity of the proceedings by which such mortgage was authorized. Wisconsin Trust Co. v. Chapman [Wis.] 99 N. W. 341.

62. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 726, if he does not record, a judgment on foreclosure proceedings, is as valid against him as if he were a party. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc. v. Cochran, 141 Cal. 653, 75 P. 315.

63. See 2 Curr. L. 920.

64. Mueller v. Renkes [Mont.] 77 P. 512. Evidence held insufficient to show a grantee orally agreed to assume a mortgage. Mortgagee not entitled to a deficiency judgment against him. Grover v. Bishop [Mich.] 101 N. W. 627. If a grantee purchases only the grantor's equity of redemption, he is not personally liable to pay the mortgage debt unless he expressly assumes and agrees to pay it. Roy v. Lobdell, 213 Ill. 389, 72 N. E. 1076.

65. Where the grantee assumes a mortgage covering other land as well as the land conveyed, the mortgage should be enforced as against the portion conveyed first. Mowry v. Mowry [Mich.] 100 N. W. 388.

A feme covert grantee is personally liable. Vizard v. Moody, 119 Ga. 918, 47 S. E. 348.

66. A mortgagor conveyed the land subject to the mortgage. Subsequent grantees paid interest on the mortgage for 30 years after it came due and for 3 years after the mortgagor died his executors voluntarily paid legacies without taking refunding bonds. No claim was made against the estate by the mortgagee. Held he could not recover from the legatees or executors a deficiency resulting on a subsequent sale. In re Piper's Estate, 208 Pa. 636, 57 A. 1118.

67. Evidence held to show that the grantee of mortgaged property assumed the indebtedness by including it in the purchase price. Brosseau v. Lowy, 209 Ill. 405, 70 N. E. 901.

68. Brosseau v. Lowy, 209 Ill. 405, 70 N. E. 901; Ray v. Lobdell, 213 Ill. 389, 72 N. E. 1076.

69. See 2 Curr. L. 920.

70. Where a deed is made as a mortgage, that fact alone is insufficient consideration for a promise of the grantee to pay a previous mortgage. Merriman v. Schmitt, 211 Ill. 263, 71 N. E. 986.

71. Merriman v. Schmitt, 211 Ill. 263, 71 N. E. 986. A conveyance of the premises by him is not a ratification of such clause. Id.

72. Though the execution took place through an agent of the grantee. Gage v. Cameron, 212 Ill. 146, 72 N. E. 204.

73, 74. Santee v. Keefe [Iowa] 102 N. W. 803.

75. Merriman v. Schmitt, 211 Ill. 263, 71 N. E. 986.

76. Gage v. Cameron, 212 Ill. 146, 72 N. E. 204.

77. Mowry v. Mowry [Mich.] 100 N. W. 388. Though it was not mentioned in the deed which contained full covenants of warranty. Brosseau v. Lowy, 209 Ill. 405, 70 N. E. 901.

78, 79. Gage v. Cameron, 212 Ill. 146, 72 N. E. 204.

80. Frost v. Pacific Sav. Co., 42 Or. 44, 70 P. 814.

Status of mortgagor as surety.[82]—Where the grantee assumes the mortgage, the mortgagor's liability becomes that of a surety.[83] He may compel the grantee to satisfy the debt.[84] An extension of time granted by the mortgagee without his consent,[85] if valid,[86] and if established,[87] operates to discharge him from liability for a deficiency judgment. In Illinois he becomes a joint debtor,[88] but in Missouri he does not; therefore a payment of interest by a grantee does not toll the statute of limitations as to him,[89] nor does a payment of the proceeds of a foreclosure sale indorsed on the mortgage note.[90]

§ 11. Transfer of premises to mortgagee and merger.[91]—An agreement by a mortgagor to regard the title of the mortgagee as absolute on payment by the latter of a consideration is valid.[92] Such an agreement negatives the acquiescence of the mortgagee in the mortgagor's claim of an equity of redemption.[93] The mortgagee can acquire the equity of redemption only by a fair contract,[94] based upon a new consideration,[95] and if it was obtained by artifice and was based on no consideration except the original debt, it will be set aside.[96] The mortgagee has the burden to show that the contract was fair and that he paid what the equity was worth.[97]

Merger[98] is largely a question of intent.[99] To work a merger by operation of law the interests sought to be merged must be of the same nature.[1] A provision in the deed that the mortgage is not to be considered as merged but is to be held as "protection to title" is to be construed as intended to protect the grantee against such liens as intervened between the execution of the mortgage and the deed and not to prevent merger where there are no such liens.[2] A parol agreement that a conveyance by the mortgagor to the mortgagee shall not effect a merger is valid.[3]

81. Lewis v. Farmers' Loan & Bldg. Ass'n [Mo.] 81 S. W. 887.

82. See 2 Curr. L. 921.

83. Germania Life Ins. Co. v. Casey, 90 N. Y. S. 418; Regan v. Williams [Mo.] 84 S. W. 959.

84. The mortgagor being surety, this right is necessary for his protection. Gage v. Cameron, 212 Ill. 146, 72 N. E. 204.

85. Acceptance by the mortgagee of interest one day before it became due operated as an extension. Germania Life Ins. Co. v. Casey, 90 N. Y. S. 418; Brosseau v. Lowy, 209 Ill. 405, 70 N. E. 901.

86. An extension which is not binding does not release the mortgagor. Regan v. Williams [Mo.] 84 S. W. 959.

87. The fact that the grantee of mortgaged premises voluntarily pays an increased rate of interest on the debt is insufficient to show an agreement between the mortgagee and grantee to change the rate without the knowledge of the mortgagor so as to discharge him as surety. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Casey, 178 N. Y. 381, 70 N. E. 916. The fact that a mortgagee receives from the grantee of the mortgaged premises, interest on the debt three days before the debt is due is insufficient to show an extension so as to discharge the mortgagor from his liability as surety. Id.

88. A mortgagee may treat and may have a personal joint and several decree against them. Arneson v. Haldane, 105 Ill. App. 589.

89, 90. Regan v. Williams [Mo.] 84 S. W. 959.

91. See 2 Curr. L. 922.

92. Luesenhop v. Einsfeld, 93 App. Div. 68, 87 N. Y. S. 268. A release discharging the mortgagee from "all claims in law or equity and from all manner of claims upon or by reason of any matter, cause or thing whatsoever from the beginning of the world to the day of the deed of these presents" is broad enough to embrace a release of the equity of redemption. Id.

93. Luesenhop v. Einsfeld, 93 App. Div. 68, 87 N. Y. S. 268.

94. Faulkner v. Cody, 45 Misc. 64, 91 N. Y. S. 633.

95. Hursey v. Hursey [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 367.

96, 97. Liskey v. Snyder [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 515.

98. See 2 Curr. L. 922, n. 83 et seq.

99. Where a mortgage and deed of the same premises were executed contemporaneously to the same party, evidence held to show that there was no intention that they should merge. Bloomer v. Burke [Minn.] 101 N. W. 974.

1. An interest in a mortgage will not merge with an estate in the land. Fenton v. Fenton, 208 Pa. 358, 57 A. 758. Especially where the intent not to merge is plainly apparent. Id.

2. Coon v. Smith, 43 Misc. 112, 88 N. Y. S. 261. The mortgagee and grantee having subsequently devised this property, her executrix could not foreclose this mortgage. Id.

3. Glenn v. Rudd [S. C.] 46 S. E. 555.

§ 12. Payment, release or satisfaction.[4]—Purchasers of separate parcels of land subject to a common mortgage must contribute ratably to the discharge of the incumbrance.[5] The act of executors in paying off a mortgage on the estate of their decedent where funds are appropriated for that purpose cannot be construed otherwise than as a payment.[6] Their duty to pay it off is not affected by the fact that the funds are also applicable to the payment of other debts.[7]

Sufficiency of payment.[8]—A mortgage is discharged by payment of the amount it was given to secure.[9] The fact that a mortgagor acts as agent in procuring an assignment of the mortgage does not operate as a payment.[10] Whether a deed of the mortgaged premises executed contemporaneously with the mortgage operates as a payment depends on the intention of the parties.[11] The transfer to the mortgagee of a property consideration which moved from the assuming grantee to the mortgagor does not, unless intended as a payment and so received, discharge the assumed liability.[12] A gift to the mortgagor of the debt[13] or an agreement that the mortgage should not be binding according to its terms can be established only by clear proof.[14] A provision for payment from the income is not satisfied by a failure of the source of income.[15] The burden of proving payment is on the mortgagor.[16]

The mortgage is extinguished by foreclosure.[17] Where a party has two claims

4. See 2 Curr. L. 923.

5. Purchasers at a judicial sale. Senft v. Vanek, 209 Ill. 361, 70 N. E. 720.

6. Though they intend that the lien shall be preserved. Hetzel v. Easterly, 96 App. Div. 517, 89 N. Y. S. 154. Where they took an assignment of the mortgage and reassigned it, their assignee with notice acquired no greater rights. Id.

Note: On the principle that the security follows the obligation, courts have held that payment of the debt by the debtor discharges the mortgage and leaves the mortgagee nothing which he can assign. Brown v. Lapham, 3 Cush. [Mass.] 551; Androscoggin Savings Bank v. McKenney, 78 Me. 442. It would seem, however, that since a mortgage gives an interest in rem, a merger, destroying the legal interest of the mortgagee, could occur only when the estates of the mortgagor and mortgagee are united in one person. See Mickles v. Townsend, 18 [N. Y.] 231. Again, the extinguishment of chaser of the mortgaged property from an assignee of the mortgage who has fulfilled an obligation to pay the debt for the benefit of the mortgagor's estate is protected. See Real, etc., Co. v. Rader, 53 How. Pr. [N. Y.] 231. Again, the extinguishment of the claim by the statute of limitations does not discharge the mortgage. Norton v. Palmer, 142 Mass. 433. In neither case could the holder of the mortgage be protected if the pledge were released upon the discharge of the obligation. The true doctrine would seem to be that the one bound to pay the debt must, upon getting the security, hold it in trust for the mortgagor. The same result would be reached in the principal case, since the assignee from the executor was not an innocent purchaser. 18 Harv. L. R. 150.

7. Hetzel v. Easterly, 96 App. Div. 517, 89 N. Y. S. 154.

8. See 2 Curr. L. 923.

9. Evidence held to show that a mortgage was given to secure only a part of a debt due and that its cancellation was authorized on payment of such part. Pape v. Ludeman [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 9. A mortgage was given to secure the mortgagee's liability as indorsers on the mortgagor's note. At the maturity of the note the mortgagees paid it, part in cash and part by their individual notes. Held, the mortgage was not thereby satisfied but was security for the amount paid and for the amount for which they were still liable. Bouker v. Galligan [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 1010. Where mortgage notes were given in payment of the land purchased which was represented to contain 160 acres and the tract was 60 acres short, the mortgagor is entitled to an abatement. Harsey v. Busby [S. C.] 48 S. E. 50. Where a senior mortgage was fully paid prior to assignment for the purpose of securing previous indebtedness to the assignee, the lien became inferior to the lien of a junior mortgage. Conlon v. Minor, 94 App. Div. 458, 88 N. Y. S. 224.

10. Stradley v. Cargill Elevator Co. [Mich.] 97 N. W. 775.

11. Bloomer v. Burke [Minn.] 101 N. W. 974.

12. Santee v. Keefe [Iowa] 102 N. W. 803.

13. Collins v. Maude, 144 Cal. 289, 77 P. 945.

14. Trombly v. Klersy [Mich.] 102 N. W. 638.

15. A mortgage was executed to secure the payment of money to be used in developing coal lands. The money was to be repaid at the rate of 15 cents for each ton of coal delivered to the mortgagee, who was to purchase it. The coal was exhausted before the amount of the debt was fully paid from the 15 cents for each ton delivered. Held the mortgagee was entitled to the balance in cash. New York & S. Const. Co. v. Winton, 208 Pa. 467, 57 A. 955.

16. Davis v. Poland [Me.] 59 A. 520.

17. Cannot be reformed thereafter. Hood v. Clark [Ala.] 37 So. 550.

secured by trust deeds of the same land, a foreclosure of one without reservation of the other lien discharges it,[18] even though the purchaser has notice of the other lien and pays less than the actual value of the land.[19] A sale by a trustee in bankruptcy subject to the lien of a first mortgage discharges subsequent mortgages.[20]

The substitution of a new mortgage[21] does not necessarily operate as an extinguishment of the old one,[22] unless so intended,[23] nor does a substitution of debts.[24] The quitclaim deed of a mortgagee discharges a mortgage.[25] It is discharged where a grantor who conveys with full covenants of warranty subsequently acquires the mortgage,[26] or where given as security for the debt of another, there is a material change in the contract without the consent of the mortgagor,[27] or where property of the real debtor included in the mortgage is released,[28] but not by obtaining a judgment on the debt secured,[29] nor by the purchase of a mortgage by a corporation of which the mortgagors were the principal stockholders.[30] Mortgages on a leasehold have no duration beyond the term of the lease.[31] The extinguishment of a mortgage does not extinguish the debt.[32] As against subsequent bona fide creditors without notice,[33] a mortgage largely reduced by payment cannot by mere agreement be left standing to secure a new consideration.[34]

An agreement to release[35] must be based on a consideration.[36] In the absence of evidence, a sufficient consideration will be presumed.[37]

The proper form of release[38] is by conveyance when the mortgage is in the form of an absolute deed,[39] and may be rendered necessary by the terms of the defeasance.[40] It must be recorded as required by law in order to be effectual as against subsequent assignees of the mortgage.[41]

18, 19. Alston v. Piper [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 357.

20. The subsequent mortgagee is entitled to have his claim satisfied out of the proceeds of the sale. In re Prince & Walter, 131 F. 546.

21. See 2 Curr. L. 925, n. 18.

22. See, also, Novation, 2 Curr. L. 1061. Evidence held insufficient to show that a mortgage was taken in satisfaction of a former one. White v. Stevenson, 144 Cal. 104, 77 P. 828. Subsequent incumbrancers cannot because thereof claim priority. First Nat. Bank v. Citizens' State Bank, 11 Wyo. 32, 70 P. 726.

23. A second deed of trust given and accepted in lieu of a prior one discharges the former. Benton Land Co. v. Zeitler, 182 Mo. 251, 81 S. W. 193.

24. The debtor never executed the new mortgage. Freeburg v. Eksell, 123 Iowa, 464, 99 N. W. 118.

25. To the successor in interest of the mortgagor. Nickell v. Tracy, 91 N. Y. S. 287.

26. The lien cannot be revived by a transfer of the mortgage to another. Brosseau v. Lowy, 209 Ill. 405, 70 N. E. 901.

27. Stipulation for a higher rate of interest and increase of the note secured. Casey-Swasey Co. v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 840.

28. Where a wife executed a deed of trust of her land to secure a debt of her husband which deed also covered property belonging to the husband, a release of his property without her consent operated to release hers. Schneider v. Sellers [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 126. Where land of a wife was included in a deed of trust with property of her husband to secure his debt, a release of his property from the lien of the deed released the land of the wife. Id. [Tex.] 84 S. W. 417.

29. Freeburg v. Eksell, 123 Iowa, 464, 99 N. W. 118.

30. Mortgage on land of the wife was purchased by a corporation of which the husband and wife were principal stockholders. Juckett v. Fargo Mercantile Co. [S. D.] 102 N. W. 604.

31. The fact that mortgagees are in possession gives them no greater rights. Miller v. Warren, 94 App. Div. 192, 87 N. Y. S. 1011.

32. Where a second mortgagee becomes owner of the premises through foreclosure sale of the first mortgage and release by the debtor to the prior mortgagee. Sullivan v. Neary [Mass.] 71 N. E. 193.

33. See Notice and Record of Title, 2 Curr. L. 1053.

34. Whitney v. Metallic Window Screen Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 663.

35. See 2 Curr. L. 924.

36. The mortgagor's promise to pay the debt is no consideration for an agreement to release. Watts v. Parks, 25 Ky. L. R. 1908, 78 S. W. 1125. An allegation in an answer in foreclosure proceedings "that there had been a settlement and that the mortgagor is willing that the mortgagee have judgment for the amount, as the mortgage lien was released" is not an allegation that the mortgagee agreed to release. Id.

37. Adams v. Hopkins, 144 Cal. 19, 77 P. 712.

38. See 2 Curr. L. 924.

39. Grogan v. Valley Trading Co. [Mont.] 76 P. 211.

40. An absolute deed was given as security for an indorsement. A contempo-

Discharge of record.[42]—A mortgage may be discharged of record at any time[43] in the manner prescribed.[44] The discharge is not conclusive proof of its satisfaction,[45] nor an acknowledgment by the mortgagee that he has no interest in the premises.[46] A discharge procured by fraud or mistake is unavailing for any purpose.[47] A discharge whether before or after a conveyance,[48] with or without consideration,[49] and with or without the consent of the mortgagor,[50] discharges the premises in the hands of a bona fide purchaser from the lien of the mortgage.[51] One attacking the release of a mortgage executed by himself has the burden of proving the existence of facts sufficient to warrant the court in setting it aside.[52] One who is not a bona fide owner of the debt cannot assert the invalidity of the release as against a subsequent bona fide lienor.[53] A condition precedent to the right of an agent to release will not be read from terms in his power plainly descriptive of the mortgage.[54]

Release by bar of limitations.[55]—A mortgage is not barred so long as the debt secured may be enforced,[56] and in the absence of statute, it is not barred though the debt may be;[57] but if the mortgage is barred, the premises are free from the lien.[58]

§ 13. Redemption.[59] Who may redeem.—As a general rule, any one who has an interest in the mortgaged premises derived through the right of the mort-raneous agreement provided that when the note was paid the grantee would on demand retransfer said land. Knowles v. Knowles [R. I.] 56 A. 775. A cause of action in the mortgagor would arise only after a demand and a refusal to reconvey. Id.

41. A mortgagor conveyed a right of way through the mortgaged premises after having obtained a release of such tract which he gave to the railroad company, but was not recorded. Gibson v. Thomas [N. Y.] 73 N. E. 484.

42. See 2 Curr. L. 925, n. 19 et seq.

43. Mueller v. Renkes [Mont.] 77 P. 512.

44. In Montana by entry in the margin of the record thereof [Civ. Code, § 3845]. Mueller v. Renkes [Mont.] 77 P. 512.

45. It may be shown that the discharge was obtained by fraud or mistake. White v. Stevenson, 144 Cal. 104, 77 P. 828.

46. Under Civ. Code, § 3845, providing that it shall have the same effect as a deed of release, it releases the premises from the lien of the mortgage only and is not inconsistent with his ownership. Swain v. McMillan [Mont.] 76 P. 943.

47. It is not necessary to obtain a decree canceling it prior to foreclosure. White v. Stevenson, 144 Cal. 104, 77 P. 828. The assignee of a mortgage is not estopped to set up its existence where by false representations the mortgagor obtained possession of the mortgage, had it canceled of record and gave another mortgage. Higgins v. Jamesburg Mut. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 1078.

48, 49. Mueller v. Renkes [Mont.] 77 P. 512.

50. Mueller v. Renkes [Mont.] 77 P. 512. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1893, c. 95, providing that mortgages or trust deeds may be released by the mortgagee or trustee, it is immaterial as against the holder of a subsequent trust deed that a release by the trustee of a prior one was without the knowledge of the grantor of the released deed. Havighorst v. Bowen [Ill.] 73 N. E. 402. The fact that the record showed that the debt secured by the released deed had not matured does not charge a subsequent lienholder with notice that it had been improperly discharged. Id.

51. The lien is strictly in rem and when the mortgage is released a bona fide purchaser holds free from the lien, whether the purchase was prior or subsequent to the release. Mueller v. Renkes [Mont.] 77 P. 512.

52. Under Civ. Code, § 2170, providing that one attacking a written instrument has the burden of showing want of consideration. Mueller v. Renkes [Mont.] 77 P. 512.

53. Havighorst v. Bowen [Ill.] 73 N. E. 402.

54. Authorizing release of a mortgage "on the Sabrante Tract for forty thousand dollars" does not condition the release on the payment of such sum. Adams v. Hopkins, 144 Cal. 19, 77 P. 712.

55. See Limitation of Actions, 4 Curr. L. 445.

56. Freeburg v. Eksell, 123 Iowa, 464, 99 N. W. 118; Kraft v. Holzman, 206 Ill. 548, 69 N. E. 574. A payment by the widow of the mortgagor who was not a co-obligor and who had only a dower interest in the premises will not toll the statute of limitations as to the heirs of the mortgagor. Nickell v. Tracy, 91 N. Y. S. 287. A letter accepting a proposition to cancel a mortgage if a certain portion of the indebtedness was paid held not such a recognition of the debt as would toll the statute of limitations. Carr v. Carr [Mich.] 101 N. W. 550.

57. Peacock v. Cummings [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 1002.

58. A tenant in possession who purchases a mortgage after the right to foreclose is barred is not entitled to the rights of a mortgagee in possession. Morford v. Wells, 68 Kan. 122, 74 P. 615. Where one sale is void, a new one cannot be had after the debt secured is barred. Ford v. Nesbitt [Ark.] 79 S. W. 793.

59. See 2 Curr. L. 926.

gagor and subject to foreclosure may redeem, though the interest extend only to part of the equity of the mortgagor.[60]

The right to redeem[61] is not affected by agreements between the mortgagor and other lienors,[62] nor by the fact that strict conditions agreed upon have not been performed,[63] nor by a void foreclosure sale.[64] At common law the right to redeem from an absolute deed intended as a mortgage survives the grantor.[65] The right survives to his heir not to his administrator.[66] If the indebtedness is payable on demand, the mortgage is redeemable at any time before strict foreclosure.[67] An agreement that the mortgagor might redeem by payment within one year of a less sum than the amount of the debt is of no avail if not complied with.[68]

The right to redeem and the right to foreclose are reciprocal and are barred by the same limitations.[69] The right to redeem is barred only by the period necessary to acquire title by adverse possession.[70] Limitations do not run against the right to redeem so long as the relation of mortgagor and mortgagee exists.[71]

In Massachusetts, an administrator may redeem from an absolute deed given as a mortgage without a license to sell to pay debts.[72]

Procedure to redeem.[73]—Payment of the debt[74] or tender of the amount,[75] together with such incidental expenses as are provided for,[76] is a condition precedent to the right to redeem. On payment the grantor is entitled to a reconveyance.[77]

60. Grantees of trees standing on the premises may redeem. Rothschild v. Bay City Lumber Co., 139 Ala. 571, 36 So. 785. Such right to redeem is not prejudiced by the fact that subsequently the mortgagor deeded to the mortgagee. Id.

A tenant for years of a portion may redeem the whole. Kebabian v. Shinkle [R. I.] 59 A. 743.

"Owner of an equity of redemption" in Rev. Laws, c. 187, § 33, providing that if such person dies his administrator may redeem, being substituted for "a person entitled to redeem" in the original act, includes the grantor in an absolute deed intended as a mortgage. Clark v. Seagraves [Mass.] 71 N. E. 813.

Attaching creditors of the mortgagor may redeem. Whitney v. Metallic Window Screen Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 663.

61. See 2 Curr. L. 926, n. 32 et seq.

62. Where mortgagees took a deed with an agreement that the mortgagor might redeem at any time within two years, the right of redemption in a grantee of the mortgagor of standing timber is not dependent on such agreement. Rothschild v. Bay City Lumber Co., 139 Ala. 571, 36 So. 785.

63. Wilson v. Mulloney, 185 Mass. 430, 70 N. E. 448.

64. The mortgagor may redeem at any time before title against him has been acquired by adverse possession. The doctrine of laches has no application. Moore v. Dick [Mass.] 72 N. E. 967. Proceedings to which he was not a party. Rodman v. Quick, 211 Ill. 546, 71 N. E. 1087. Where the power of sale in the mortgage requires publication of notice to be made in a particular paper, a publication in any other paper renders the sale void. Moore v. Dick [Mass.] 72 N. E. 967; Sherman v. Fisher [Mich.] 101 N. W. 572; Adams v. Hopkins, 144 Cal. 19, 77 P. 712. In order for a tenant to set aside a mortgage sale for fraud he must offer to redeem. Kebabian v. Shinkle [R. I.] 59 A. 743.

65. On the ground that the grantee has property in his hands as distinguished from liability to respond in damages. Clark v. Seagraves [Mass.] 71 N. E. 813. A bill against an administratrix to have an absolute deed declared a mortgage and to redeem therefrom may be maintained without a prior trial in the probate court of the issue whether this deed belonged to her individually or as administratrix. Id.

66. Clark v. Seagraves [Mass.] 71 N. E. 813.

67. Kebabian v. Shinkle [R. I.] 59 A. 743.

68. A tender by a purchaser after the expiration of such period is of no effect. Juckett v. Fargo Mercantile Co. [S. D.] 102 N. W. 604.

69. Action to redeem may be brought at any time within 10 years. Dickson v. Stewart [Neb.] 98 N. W. 1085. See 2 Curr. L. 910, n. 97.

70. The question of laches does not enter. Grogan v. Valley Trading Co. [Mont.] 76 P. 211.

71. Catlin v. Murray [Wash.] 79 P. 605.

72. The result inures to the benefit of the widow and heirs [Rev. Laws, c. 187, § 33]. Clark v. Seagraves [Mass.] 71 N. E. 813.

73. See 2 Curr. L. 926.

74. Borrow v. Borrow, 34 Wash. 684, 76 P. 305.

75. A tender made after commencement of a suit to foreclose in order to be effectual must be kept good. Healy v. Protection Mut. Fire Ins. Co. [Ill.] 72 N. E. 678.

76. If a mortgage or trust deed provides for attorneys' fees in case of foreclosure, a tender after commencement of an action to foreclose should include the amount of fees earned up to the time of tender. Healy v. Protection Mut. Fire Ins. Co. [Ill.] 72 N. E. 678.

77. Welborn v. Dixon [S. C.] 49 S. E. 232. In a bill to redeem from a transfer of the mortgagor's equity of redemption, which transaction was held to be a mortgage, a return of the amount paid is not necessary, it appearing that the mortgagee had received

Where each of several conveyances to the same person as security is a separate transaction, the mortgagor may redeem from each on paying the debt it was given to secure.[78] One redeeming is required to pay only the amount of the debt and incidental expenses necessary to preserve the title.[79] Void foreclosure proceedings cannot augment this amount.[80]

Costs are taxed against the mortgagor unless he establishes a prior tender.[81]

Damages for refusal to reconvey.—Punitive as well as compensatory damages may be recovered from a grantee who fraudulently refuses to reconvey.[82] Where the grantee has sold the land the grantor may recover the proceeds but not punitive damages.[83]

Penalties for failure to release.[84]—No particular form of words is necessary to constitute a sufficient request to entitle one to maintain an action for failure to comply therewith.[85] It is sufficient if the language reasonably construed informs the mortgagee that satisfaction is demanded.[86] Separate causes of action to recover penalties for failure to discharge mortgages of record after payment may be joined in different counts in the same complaint.[87]

§ 14. Subrogation.[88]—To entitle one to the right of subrogation, it must appear that the original debt was extinguished,[89] and that there are rights to which the doctrine will apply.[90] A mere transfer of the debt is insufficient.[91] A life tenant compelled, in order to preserve the estate, to pay a mortgage is subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee.[92] A mortgagee in a void mortgage is subrogated to the lien which his money was used to discharge.[93] Where a principal elects to hold an agent, who procures a mortgage, personally liable for the loan, and the agent pays the principal the amount of the loan, he is subrogated to the rights of the principal in a mortgage.[94] The doctrine does not apply to a junior mortgagee who pays interest and makes payments on the principal of the prior incumbrance.[95] A purchaser at foreclosure sale is not subrogated to the rights of a mortgagor against a tenant of the premises for breach of covenant of his lease.[96] other property in excess of the amount paid. Noble v. Graham, 140 Ala. 413, 37 So. 230.

78. Clark v. Seagraves [Mass.] 71 N. E. 813.

79. Taxes, interest on the mortgage and necessary repairs. Rodman v. Quick, 211 Ill. 546, 71 N. E. 1087.

80. The owner of the equity of redemption was not made a party to foreclosure proceedings. On redeeming he is not liable for costs of such foreclosure. Rodman v. Quick, 211 Ill. 546, 71 N. E. 1087.

81. Liskey v. Snyder [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 515.

82, 83. Welborn v. Dixon [S. C.] 49 S. E. 232.

84. See 2 Curr. L. 926.

85. A written demand signed by a mortgagor whose debt had been paid to "please cancel of record all mortgages against me" is sufficient under Code 1896, § 1066. Partridge v. Wilson [Ala.] 37 So. 141.

86. A request, signed by the mortgagor and his wife, to the mortgagee, to go to the "probate office" and mark mortgages held open there, "Satisfied." Henderson v. Wilson, 139 Ala. 327, 36 So. 516.

87. Partridge v. Wilson [Ala.] 37 So. 141.

88. See 2 Curr. L. 927; Subrogation, 2 Curr. L. 1768.

89. A mortgage being paid off by a member of the household of the administrator of the mortgagee, the payor being under the impression that he was obtaining security, the doctrine of subrogation applies. Knox v. Carr, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 81.

90. Rothschild v. Bay City Lumber Co., 139 Ala. 571, 36 So. 785.

91. Where holders of a junior trust deed paid off the debt secured by a senior deed before it was due, without having sufficient ground to believe that they would be compelled to pay it to protect their security. Schneider v. Sellers [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 126.

92. A widow compelled to pay a mortgage on the homestead in order to preserve it and the interests of the heirs has a lien on the interests of the heirs for their share of the debt. Dinsmoor v. Rowse, 211 Ill. 317, 71 N. E. 1003.

93. Where a guardian of minor heirs mortgaged their interest to secure money to pay off a mortgage given by their ancestor. Connor v. Home & Sav. Fund Co. Bldg. Ass'n [Ky.] 80 S. W. 797.

94. Freeburg v. Eksell, 123 Iowa, 464, 99 N. W. 118.

95. Chapman v. Cooney, 25 R. I. 657, 57 A. 928.

96. The lessee convenanted to pay taxes. The lessor thereafter mortgaged the premises. The lessee failed to pay the taxes and the mortgagee paid them and on foreclosure of the mortgage included the amount paid as was agreed in the mortgage. There

A second mortgagee may to protect himself pay defaulted prior liens and charges and add them to his own,[97] but he cannot call on the owner of the equity of redemption who was not personally liable for reimbursement.[98]

MOTIONS AND ORDERS.[1]

The office of a motion[2] is, accurately speaking, to obtain a rule or order incident to a cause or proceeding of which the court has cognizance.[3] It will not lie to present and dispose of that which is part of the main issues in the cause,[4] or which of itself is a cause of action,[5] or which involves difficult and contested issues.[6] But the fact that an action would also lie is not exclusive of motion.[7]

The term "motion" is now much extended and comprehends many proceedings whose closest analogue is a petition in chancery.[8]

Stage of case when proper.—An adversary motion cannot be made until there are adverse parties in court,[9] and a motion for final judgment on the pleadings cannot be made till trial.[10]

The moving papers.[11]—The form of a motion being not technical, a petition sufficient in substance may be so regarded.[12] A rule that the moving party shall state the term when the cause is triable has no application to a motion, e. g. one to declare whether a default exists, which depends on whether the case is at issue.[13] If a motion and brief contain unfounded and disrespectful criticisms of a judge in the case, it will be stricken on the court's motion.[14] The affidavits served are admitted if not denied by counter-affidavits[15] and no further evidence is requisite.[16]

Notice[17] is not required where an order made without notice is to be vacated.[18] It is often required that papers must be served with the motion else they cannot be read on the hearing;[19] but leave to serve additional ones covering newly discovered facts may be given.[20] Unless a proper excuse is shown for not originally serving proofs, they will, however, not be heard.[21] If less than the regular notice be given, proof of necessity for a shorter notice should be made.[22] was no redemption from the foreclosure sale. Stewart v. Parcher, 91 Minn. 517, 98 N. W. 650.

97, 98. Brethauer v. Schorer [Conn.] 60 A. 125.

1. This topic treats only the principles common to all motions. Motions for particular rules or orders are discussed in topics to which the relief specifically pertains, such as Pleadings, 2 Curr. L. 1178; Discontinuance, Dismissal, and Nonsuit, 3 Curr. L. 1097.

2. See 2 Curr. L. 929.

3. Note: See Cyc. Law Dict. "Motion," and see People v. Ah Sam, 41 Cal. 645, 650; Prall v. Hunt, 41 Ill. App. 140; Reilly v. Wilkins, 67 Ill. App. 104.

4. Note: Sands v. A Cargo of 227 Tons of Coal, 3 N. J. Law J. 361; Dietz v. Dietz, 2 Hun [N. Y.] 339.

5. Note: Curtis v. Engle, 4 Edw. Ch. [N. Y.] 117; Timan v. Leland, 6 Hill [N. Y.] 237; Camp v. McCormick, 1 Denio [N. Y.] 641; West v. His Creditors, 8 Rob. [La.] 123; Succession of Mielkee, 8 La. Ann. 11; People v. Judge of Calhoun Circuit, 24 Mich. 408. See, also, Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Balknap, 19 Abb. N. C. [N. Y.] 345.

6. Note: See New York El. R. Co. v. Manhattan R. Co., 63 How. Pr. [N. Y.] 14; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Balknap, 19 Abb. N. C. [N. Y.] 345.

7. Note: See Moore v. Muse, 47 Tex. 210.

8. See 2 Curr. L. 929, and compare Judgments (opening and vacating on motion), 4 Curr. L. 308.

9. A motion to dismiss a suit after filing of a praecipe, but before service of summons, or a general appearance on the part of defendant, is premature. Collier v. Grey, 105 Ill. App. 485.

10. Durham v. Durham, 99 App. Div. 450, 91 N. Y. S. 295.

11. See 2 Curr. L. 929.

12. Hunter v. Porter [Iowa] 100 N. W. 53.

13. Sweeney v. O'Dwyer, 45 Misc. 43, 90 N. Y. S. 806.

14. Fred Krug Brew. Co. v. Healey [Neb.] 101 N. W. 329.

15, 16. In re Van Loan, 142 Cal. 423, 76 P. 37.

17. See 2 Curr. L. 929, n. 81-83.

18. Alpers v. Bliss [Cal.] 79 P. 171.

19. So in New York by Sup. Ct. Gen. Rule 21. Northrop v. Sidney, 97 App. Div. 271, 90 N. Y. S. 23.

20, 21. Northrop v. Sidney, 97 App. Div. 271, 90 N. Y. S. 23.

22. Schiller v. Weinstein, 91 N. Y. S. 76.

Hearing and rehearing[23] and relief.—Motions are addressed to the court and not to a judge.[24] The court may determine how it shall satisfy itself of the facts bearing on a motion.[25] The hearing may be postponed to allow service of additional newly discovered proofs.[26]

The relief granted on an order to show cause must not exceed that prayed.[27]

On a default the court may grant the relief prayed for[28] in so far as it is lawful or proper;[29] but when the relief prayed is excessive or unlawful, the adversary should attend and advise the court,[30] else he will be obliged to excuse his default before he will be relieved from an excessive order.[31]

A motion may be renewed[32] which is interlocutory and not final,[33] and it may be regarded as interlocutory despite a statutory right of appeal.[34] If the grounds of a motion do not appear, the ruling thereon does not bar a renewal.[35] If a motion be denied because not proper procedure, a petition or proper proceeding may then be instituted.[36] Leave to renew is not necessary if reserved in the former ruling[37] or if the motion be made in a different proceeding.[38]

The order[39] should show by what authority, whether court or judge, it is made.[40] It must be evidenced in the records of the court,[41] but a separate signature is not essential.[42] It will be regarded as an order of court rather than of a judge if it internally purports to be so, though lacking a caption,[43] and the addition of a caption to a judge's order does not make it a court order.[44]

An order operates as conclusive only according to the fair import of its terms[45] read with the motion.[46] Recitals of fact in a judicial order should be taken as true if they can reasonably be so held.[47] One who was dismissed by final judgment is not concluded by an interlocutory ruling.[48] A rule to show cause adjudges nothing.[49]

Orders regarded as final for purposes of appeal are discussed in another topic.[50]

23. See 2 Curr. L. 929.

24. Motion to vacate rule to show cause why attachment should not be quashed is not one for a single justice. Garbett v. Mountford, 70 N. J. Law, 577, 57 A. 257.

25. Rule 7, § 4, Circuit Court, E. D. of Pa., providing for taking depositions in motions, is valid and in harmony with the Federal conformity act. Importers' & Traders' Nat. Bank v. Lyons, 134 F. 510.

26. Northrop v. Sidney, 97 App. Div. 271, 90 N. Y. S. 23.

27. Vacation of an order canceling a judgment is not within a prayer to "reargue and resettle" it and for general relief. Schiller v. Weinstein, 91 N. Y. S. 76.

28, 29. Gen. Prac. Rule 37 provides that on default it shall be granted "unless the court otherwise directs." People v. Miller, 92 App. Div. 116, 87 N. Y. S. 341.

30, 31. People v. Miller, 92 App. Div. 116, 87 N. Y. S. 341.

32. See 2 Curr. L. 930.

33. Motion to dissolve attachment is interlocutory. Simmons v. Simmons [W. Va.] 48 S. E. 833; Elkins Nat. Bank v. Simmons [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 893.

34. Simmons v. Simmons [W. Va.] 48 S. E. 833; Elkins Nat. Bank v. Simmons [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 893. Motion to set aside judgment is final and may not be renewed by suit. Appeal is remedy. Stewart v. Snow [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 696.

35. Bethany Hospital Co. v. Hale [Kan.] 77 P. 537.

36. Williams v. Des Moines Loan & Trust Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 277.

37, 38. People v. Paine, 92 App. Div. 303, 86 N. Y. S. 1109.

39. See 2 Curr. L. 930.

40. Roncoroni v. Gross, 92 App. Div. 366, 86 N. Y. S. 1113.

41. Must be at the time or nunc pro tunc. Redhead v. Iowa Nat. Bank, 123 Iowa, 336, 98 N. W. 806.

42. Order to tutor to deposit funds need not be signed. Succession of Wegmann, 110 La. 930, 34 So. 878.

43. Lawson v. Speer, 91 App. Div. 411, 86 N. Y. S. 915. Recital in the body of the order that it was at special term makes it a court order. In re Munson, 95 App. Div. 23, 88 N. Y. S. 509.

44. In re Munson, 95 App. Div. 23, 88 N. Y. S. 509.

45. See 2 Curr. L. 930, and Former Adjudication, 3 Curr. L. 1476.

46. Motion for jury trial held not renewable without leave because not limited to first trial. Tracy v. Falvey, 92 N. Y. S. 625.

47. It must be presumed that the truth of facts so recited were known to or established to the satisfaction of the court making the order. Harrigan v. Gilchrist [Wis.] 99 N. W. 909.

48. Fred Krug Brew. Co. v. Healey [Neb.] 101 N. W. 329.

49. Sims v. Davis [S. C.] 49 S. E. 872.

50. See Appeal and Review, § 4, 3 Curr. L. 177 et seq.

Amendment and vacation.[51]—Courts of law have always had the power to set aside their own orders rendered in a proceeding before them, during the pendency of such proceeding upon showing that such orders were procured by fraud.[52] Equity, if it may change an order to effectuate the intent of the parties,[53] will do so only on clear proof.[54] If a judge is clearly satisfied that an order was granted by his predecessor, without the exercise of judgment, or through mistake or fraud practiced on the court, or manifest indiscretion, or through the fact that adverse parties were not heard, he may set such order aside.[55] Misrecitals of fact may be corrected.[56] A motion to vacate must be made during term,[57] or while the case is pending,[58] or during the prescribed time[59] if any.

"Motion costs"[60] within the New York Code include costs of an appeal from the order.[61]

MULTIFARIOUSNESS; MULTIPLICITY; MUNICIPAL AIDS AND RELIEFS, see latest topical index.

MUNICIPAL BONDS.[62]

§ 1. Power to Issue (706). Refunding Bonds (707). Railroad Aid Bonds (708). Limitation of Indebtedness (708). Curative Acts (709).
§ 2. Conditions Precedent; Submission to Vote; Provision for Payment (709). Assent of Voters or Taxpayers (710). Notice of Election (711). Providing for Payment of Bonds (711).
§ 3. Execution (712).
§ 4. Form and Requisites (712).
§ 5. Issue and Sale (712).
§ 6. Rights and Liabilities Arising Out of Illegal Issue (713).
§ 7. Transfer (714). Subrogation (714). Recitals (714) (with Special Article, p. 717). Estoppel (714).
§ 8. Payment (715). Payment from Special Fund or Tax (716).
§ 9. Scaling Overissue (717).
§ 10. Enforcement of Improvement Bonds Against Abutters (717).

"Municipal bonds" includes bonds issued by every public corporation or department of government and not alone those of cities and villages. There are many collateral questions pertaining to the topics dealing with the particular class of public corporations which issues the bonds. These topics may be consulted.[63] They also treat of warrants for payment of public moneys.[64]

§ 1. Power to issue.[65]—Constitutional[66] or legislative authority is necessary to authorize municipalities to issue bonds; there is no implied power to issue bonds in aid of a work of internal improvement,[67] or to issue bonds payable on demand.[68]

51. See 2 Curr. L. 930, n. 8 et seq.
52. James' Estate v. O'Neill [Neb.] 97 N. W. 22.
53, 54. Houghteling v. Stockbridge [Mich.] 99 N. W. 759.
55. Harrigan v. Gilchrist [Wis.] 99 N. W. 909.
56. Northwestern Life & Sav. Co. v. Gippe, 92 Minn. 36, 99 N. W. 364.
57. Born v. Schneider, 128 F. 179.
58. Interlocutory orders may be vacated at a subsequent term. Huffman v. Rhodes [Neb.] 100 N. W. 159.
59. Six months in case of inadvertence or mistake. State v. District Court of Second Judicial Dist. [Mont.] 79 P. 410.
60. See Costs, 3 Curr. L. 940.
61. Wasserman v. Benjamin, 91 App. Div. 547, 86 N. Y. S. 1022.
62. See 2 Curr. L. 931.
63. See Municipal Corporations, 4 Curr. L. 720; Counties, 3 Curr. L. 959; Sewers and Drains (drainage districts) 2 Curr. L. 1628; Common and Public Schools (school districts) 1 Curr. L. 544; Towns; Townships, 2 Curr. L. 1877; Waters and Water Supply (water and irrigation districts) 2 Curr. L. 2034.
64. See the last note.
65. See 2 Curr. L. 931.
66. Police juries of parishes have no authority to incur a debt for road purposes under Const. 1898, art. 281, as their authority is controlled by art. 291. Favalora v. Police Jury of Parish of St. Bernard, 112 La. 384, 36 So. 467.
67. Session Laws 1887, c. 12, § 69, authorizing the issue of bonds for waterworks, does not authorize the issue of bonds to private parties for the construction of waterworks, and they are utterly void in hands of bona fide holder. Village of Grant v. Sherrill [Neb.] 98 N. W. 681. Statutes of Kansas in regard to the rights of cities to issue bonds for the purpose of purchasing waterworks construed [Laws 1897, c. 82, §§ 8 and 10, pp. 171, 172; Laws 1901, c. 107, p. 210]. State v. Topeka, 68 Kan. 177, 74 P. 647.
68. Mills' Ann. St. § 4403, subd. 6, authorizing the issue of bonds payable in not less than ten nor more than fifteen years, does not authorize the issue of bonds payable on demand, and they are void even in the hands of an innocent holder. Sauer v. Gillett [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1068.

An act authorizing bonds for street work is not inconsistent with an act passed at the same session authorizing bonds for local improvements, and is not repealed by it.[69] A municipality incorporated under a special law may be authorized to issue bonds under a subsequent general law.[70] Authority to municipalities of a certain class to issue bonds is good where a substantial distinction exists between those municipalities within the class and those without.[71] An ordinance does not embrace more than one subject where it proposes the issue of bonds for various purposes.[72] Bonds, which were valid when issued under law of the state as declared by its courts will not be held invalid, though the state courts have subsequently reversed their decisions, as that would impair the obligation of the contract;[73] but the courts of North Carolina reach a different result on the ground that such decisions were not a part of the contract of purchase.[74] Where a city has the power to issue bonds, in the absence of any showing to the contrary, it will be presumed that they were issued in accordance therewith.[75] A county may bond itself for the cost of highways which it is empowered to build, one-half cost to be a county charge and no other means of payment being prescribed,[76] and it being chargeable "in the first instance," it may include in them the amount which it is authorized to charge to the respective towns.[77]

Refunding bonds.[78]—The legislature may empower municipalities to issue refunding bonds[79] and may apply such a law to such only as are indebted in a certain sum.[80] Acts authorizing the refunding of indebtedness will not be construed as mandatory, requiring such refunding.[81] Refunding bonds are a continuation of the former liability and are not a new indebtedness within the constitutional meaning,[82] consequently, bonds which were void for lack of power in municipality to issue them cannot constitute the basis of valid refunding bonds.[83] The

69. St. 1901, p. 27, c. 32, not repealed by St. 1901, p. 34, c. 38, as repeals by implication are not favored, and latter act does not cover all the ground of the earlier one. Town of Mill Valley v. House, 142 Cal. 698, 76 P. 658.

70. Under Village Law (Laws 1897, p. 455, c. 414, § 128), if authorized by an election and not inconsistent with its special charter, a village may issue bonds. Village of Canandaigua v. Hayes, 90 App. Div. 336, 85 N. Y. S. 488.

71. Act authorizing cities of the first class to issue bonds for an armory where they had not issued bonds for the same purpose under a previous act is valid. State v. Rogers [Minn.] 100 N. W. 659.

72. For city hospital; for sewer system; for new school houses and playgrounds; for repair of streets; for construction of a jail; for a public library, and for public parks in various designated localities. Law v. San Francisco, 144 Cal. 384, 77 P. 1014.

73. Board of Com'rs of Henderson County v. Travelers' Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 128 F. 817; State v. Bristol, 109 Tenn. 315, 70 S. W. 1031.

74. Const. art. 2, § 14, required that acts authorizing the incurring of indebtedness must be passed on three separate readings; and bonds issued under an act not so passed were held void, notwithstanding previous decisions that the fact that an act was signed by the officers of both houses was conclusive evidence that it was constitutionally passed. Graves v. Moore County Com'rs, 135 N. C. 49, 47 S. E. 134.

75. A taxpayer sued for taxes cannot set up irregularities in the issue of bonds refunding waterworks bonds. City of Tyler v. Tyler Bldg. & Loan Ass'n [Tex.] 81 S. W. 2.

76, 77. Ontario County v. Shepard, 91 N. Y. S. 611.

78. See 2 Curr. L. 932.

79, 80. It is not class legislation to allow villages indebted in a minimum sum to issue bonds to fund such debt. Laws 1903, p. 659, c. 364. Villages having a floating debt exceeding $3,000 at the time of the passage of the act were authorized to fund the same. Kaiser v. Campbell, 90 Minn. 375, 96 N. W. 916.

81. Mandamus will not issue at the request of a bondholder requiring the county commissioners to issue such bonds; the act merely "authorized and empowered" them to issue the bonds. Jones v. Madison County Com'rs, 135 N. C. 218, 47 S. E. 753.

82. Act authorizing refunding bonds need not be passed as one authorizing the incurring of indebtedness under Const. art. 2, § 14, requiring bills for such acts to be read and voted on three separate times. Board of Com'rs of Henderson County v. Travelers' Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 128 F. 817.

83. City of Tyler v. Tyler Bldg. & Loan Ass'n [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 1066. See 2 Curr. L. 932, n. 26, 29. Where part of the warrants were void and part good, the county will not be restrained from issuing bonds to fund the legitimate indebtedness. Nelson v. Harrison County [Iowa] 102 N. W. 197.

right to issue refunding bonds is usually not dependent on a popular vote.[84] If a debt cannot be refunded in the denominations provided in the refunding act, the bonds cannot be issued for other denominations.[85]

Railroad aid bonds.[86]—Under authority to issue bonds to aid in the construction of railroads, bonds may issue to purchase land for a station,[87] and where there is authority to subscribe to stock, the change of the name of the railway will not deprive the county of the right to subscribe to the same.[88] The beginning[89] or completion[90] of the railroad may be a condition precedent to the issue of bonds.

Limitation of indebtedness.[91]—The debt of a municipality is usually limited to a fixed percentage of its assessed valuation,[92] but sometimes another practical limit is a provision limiting the amount of the tax therefor that may be imposed in any one year.[93] In New York, municipalities may issue water bonds in excess of the ten per cent limit fixed by the constitution provided that the term of the bonds shall not exceed twenty years and an adequate sinking fund shall be provided.[94] A constitutional amendment authorizing an "additional indebtedness not exceeding ten per centum" of the assessed valuation will be construed to mean that much additional to what was previously authorized and not that much additional to what was previously incurred.[95] Where bonds are voted to be issued on the happening of a future event, the last assessed valuation before the bonds are actually issued is the one that limits the amount of the issue.[96] In determining the debt limit of a county, bonds payable from the assessment of a certain district therein need not be considered.[97] Contracts to pay for water or light annually or monthly as furnished if the current revenues are sufficient do not create an in-

84. But where the question is submitted to vote, the method prescribed by the act must be followed. City of Asheville v. Webb, 134 N. C. 72, 46 S. E. 19.

85. Laws 1895, p. 63, c. 7, art. 1, as amended by Laws 1897, p. 47, c. 5, provided that bonds "may be issued in any denomination from $100 to $1,000," and to be in series so that they might be paid in ten equal annual payments; and an issue of ten bonds of $80 to refund an $800 debt could not be made, the debt not being refundable under the act. School Dist. No. 44 of Caddo County v. Baxter [Okl.] 78 P. 386.

86. See 2 Curr. L. 931, n. 21.

87. Jennings Banking & Trust Co. v. Jefferson, 30 Tex. Civ. App. 534, 70 S. W. 1005, afg. 79 S. W. 876.

88. The bonds issued in payment for the stock were valid. Board of Com'rs of Henderson County v. Travelers' Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 128 F. 817.

89. Authority to issue bonds to aid in the completion of a railroad does not authorize the issue of bonds in aid of a railroad not yet begun, nor can township bonds be sustained under an act authorizing county commissioners to issue bonds. Graves v. Moore County Com'rs, 135 N. C. 49, 47 S. E. 134.

90. Where a railroad was to be constructed across the county, the construction of 4½ miles by its successor was not such a substantial compliance as to authorize the issue of bonds. Green County v. Shortell, 25 Ky. L. R. 357, 75 S. W. 251.

91. See 2 Curr. L. 932.

92. Where the debt limit is 15 per cent of the assessed value, and the assessed valuation is $420,000,000, bonds to the amount of $18,000,000 will not exceed the limit. Law v. San Francisco, 144 Cal. 384, 77 P. 1014.

93. Const. 1874, art. 16, § 9, prohibited counties from levying a tax in excess of ½ per cent, except to pay indebtedness then existing for which an additional ½ per cent might be levied, the holder of bonds issued to take up prior indebtedness had the same right to the benefit of this tax as the original holder. Desha County v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 625. Const. 1898, art. 281, limiting the tax to secure the payment of municipal bonds to "not exceeding five mills on the dollar in any one year." Town of Crowley v. Fulton & Co., 112 La. 234, 36 So. 334.

94. Const. art. 8, § 10; Laws 1904, c. 629; act authorizing bonds in excess of ten per cent and running longer than twenty years was void. Cahill v. Hogan, 44 Misc. 360, 89 N. Y. S. 1022.

95. The previous limit was 5 per cent and the City of Sioux Falls was already indebted nearly 15 per cent, and so was not authorized to incur the 10 per cent additional for water purposes, though the state courts had held otherwise. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Sioux Falls, 131 F. 890.

96. At time of vote in 1871 the assessed valuation of county was $3,184,036; and the debt including proposed issue $430,000, the limit being 10 per cent; but the bonds were not issued until after the assessment for 1872 which was for $4,482,117. Colburn v. McDonald [Neb.] 100 N. W. 961.

97. Certain ditch bonds had been issued by the county, but assessments on the district benefited had been made to pay them. Johnson v. Board of Com'rs of Norman County [Minn.] 101 N. W. 180.

debtedness for the aggregate sum of such payments within the meaning of the constitution, but contracts for the construction of a water or light plant,[98] or the issue of warrants on the annual income to pay for a court house,[99] do create a debt. Municipal corporations cannot evade the constitutional limitation of indebtedness by making their bonds payable from the proceeds of a special tax, or from the income of a water or light plant, or by buying property subject to liens, though they do not agree to assume the same, but provide that such liens shall be paid out of the income of the property, or by incurring liabilities through a dummy corporation;[1] but in Kansas it was held that a city may purchase property subject to a lien payable in the future.[2] When a city has reached the limit of indebtedness, it may continue to transact its business on a cash basis, and pay its current expenses.[3]

Curative acts.[4]—If the charter under which bonds were issued is invalid, a subsequent legislative recognition of it will validate the bonds.[5] An act legalizing certain county orders issued under an unconstitutional statute and authorizing the county to provide for their payment is constitutional, as the legislature has the power to require its public agencies to discharge imperfect legal obligations which rest upon value received.[6] A constitutional amendment requiring laws as to municipal indebtedness to be passed in a particular manner does not affect the validity of previous laws or of bonds issued thereunder.[7]

§ 2. Conditions precedent;[8] submission to vote; provision for payment.—Since bonds must rest on a valid debt, it is important in the case of improvement bonds that the procedure to authorize, contract for and make a public work or improvement have at least such validity as that it will support an indebtedness.[9] Where by act a general law is made inapplicable to a special class, the case covered by the special law may be read as an exception to the general law.[10] The estimate of cost by the city engineer,[11] or the fixing of the rate of interest,[12] are sometimes conditions precedent to the issue of special improvement bonds.

98. The first is an ordinary and necessary expense, the latter is an extraordinary one. Voss v. Waterloo Water Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 208.

99. Where issue will be enjoined at the suit of a taxpayer, as it was a mere evasion of the debt limit. Johnson v. Board of Com'rs of Norman County [Minn.] 101 N. W. 180.

1. The town was to be the main stockholder in a water company, which was organized for the purpose, and which was to issue bonds in excess of the town's debt limit, the town pledging to it a certain sum for 25 years for hydrant rentals, and issuing bonds to its debt limit in payment for the stock. Voss v. Waterloo Water Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 208.

2. Though the city cannot directly mortgage its property, it may make the most advantageous contract of purchase of waterworks possible, and it will not be considered an evasion of the debt limit. State v. Topeka, 68 Kan. 177, 74 P. 647.

3. But it cannot provide for the installation of waterworks as a reasonable and necessary current expense, where there was already a private company furnishing an adequate service [Sess. Laws 1903, p. 42]. Helena Waterworks Co. v. Helena [Mont.] 78 P. 220.

4. See 2 Curr. L. 932.

5. The charter of 1889 was illegal, but an act of 1893 authorized the town to issue the bonds, and another act extended its limits, and in 1901 its charter was repealed and another granted with proviso that all claims against the former town should be assumed by the new one. Muse v. Lexington, 110 Tenn. 655, 76 S. W. 481.

6. A highway was built under Laws 1895, c. 302, authorizing the cost to be assessed on neighboring property which was declared unconstitutional, and Laws 1901, c. 181 authorized counties to pay for the orders issued under the prior act. State v. Gunn, 92 Minn. 436, 100 N. W. 97.

7. Const. art. 2, § 14 required all such acts to be read on three several days and the yeas and nays each time to be entered on the journal. Board of Com'rs Henderson County v. Travelers' Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 128 F. 817.

8. See 2 Curr. L. 932.

9. Consult Public Contracts, 2 Curr. L. 1280; Public Works and Improvements, 2 Curr. L. 1328.

10. Construing Burns' Law (Rev. St. § 2702) and 94 Ohio Laws, p. 119. City of Mt. Vernon v. State [Ohio] 73 N. E. 515.

11. Street improvement bonds may be issued by the city council upon the estimates of the city engineer that the cost of the improvement will exceed one dollar a front foot [St. 1893, p. 33, c. 21]. O'Dea v. Mitchell, 144 Cal. 374, 77 P. 1020.

Assent of voters or taxpayers.[13]—It has been held that a municipality may issue bonds without an election when it is for a necessary expense, and there is no limitation in the charter and it can pay interest without exceeding the tax limit;[14] but where a municipality is authorized to issue bonds provided the question is submitted to the voters, such submission is a prerequisite, and such mode is the exclusive way in which the municipality may bind itself;[15] consequently special assessment bonds, issued without an election, are not binding on the municipality, though the land is still liable for the assessment.[16] An existing obligation is not in general a condition precedent to the power to vote on bonds for the purchase or construction of a public utility.[17] Where it is required that the resolution submitted should state the purpose of the issue or the number of instalments in which it is to be paid, it must be followed;[18] if they are to be issued for several purposes, the amount for each purpose must be stated;[19] and if it is required that the resolution submitted shall state the rate of interest, a statement that it is not to exceed a certain rate is not sufficient.[20] Several separate propositions may be submitted to the electors, and the failure of one to carry does not affect the validity of the others which carried.[21] Propositions must not be coupled together so that a voter is given no choice,[22] else the election will be rendered void.[23] The fact that the proposition submitted to the voters contains another and illegal proposition will not render the bonds issued thereunder absolutely void;[24] but an affirmative vote on a proposition to issue railroad aid bonds to an amount in excess of the debt limit does not authorize the issue of bonds to an amount within the limit.[25] The proposition may be submitted at a special election,[26] but a vote taken before the adoption of a constitutional amendment authorizing the bond

12. Where the council fixed the rate of interest in the ordinance directing the issue of improvement bonds that was a sufficient compliance with the statute (Burns' Ann. St. 1894, § 4294), requiring the council to establish the rate on unpaid installments. Scott v. Hayes, 162 Ind. 548, 70 N. E. 879.

13. See 2 Curr. L. 933.

14. Providing a system of electric lighting declared a necessary expense. Davis v. Fremont, 135 N. C. 538, 47 S. E. 671.

15. The issue of bonds authorized only by a vote of the aldermen will be enjoined, though they were to be issued for necessary expenses in providing water and light. Robinson v. Goldsboro, 135 N. C. 382, 47 S. E. 462. Charter of San Francisco, art. 16, § 29. Where the improvements which the public interest requires in addition to other expenses will exceed the income for any year, the council must by ordinance submit a proposition to incur a bonded indebtedness to the electors; and such provision does not conflict with art. 2, c. 2, § 22, as to bonds for sewers. Law v. San Francisco, 144 Cal. 384, 77 P. 1014.

16. The pledge of the city's credit was void, but it acted as trustee for the bondholders in collecting the assessment. Gedge v. Covington [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1160.

17. State v. Topeka, 68 Kan. 177, 74 P. 647.

18. Bonds held invalid in a controversy between the village and the successful bidder for them [Charter, tit. 7, § 2]. Village of Canandaigua v. Hayes, 90 App. Div. 336, 85 N. Y. S. 488.

19. But stating a gross amount for two purposes is sufficient where one of the purposes is that of refunding and so fixed. Hillsborough County v. Henderson [Fla.] 33 So. 997.

20. The issue was enjoined, though the resolution stated that the bonds were to bear "interest at a rate of not more than four per cent per annum—payable semi-annually." Hillsborough County v. Henderson [Fla.] 33 So. 997.

21. Law v. San Francisco, 144 Cal. 384, 77 P. 1014.

22. Under Sess. Laws S. D. 1899, c. 53, §§ 1, 2, the submission of the question of issuing bonds "for the purpose of constructing or purchasing" a system of waterworks was ineffective. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Sioux Falls, 131 F. 890. Proposition for public building bonds and for improvements to water and light plant. State v. Allen [Mo.] 85 S. W. 531.

23. Proposition to issue bonds to purchase waterworks or to construct them. City of Leavenworth v. Wilson [Kan.] 76 P. 400.

24. Proposition to issue $100,000 in bonds to aid in construction of railway and to authorize county to receive $100,000 in railway stock. Colburn v. McDonald [Neb.] 100 N. W. 961.

25. Proposition to issue $10,000 in bonds which was over limit, and $9,000 in fact issue which was supposed to be within the limit; but the bona fide holder was protected. Schmitz v. Zeh, 91 Minn. 290, 97 N. W. 1049.

26. Charter of San Francisco, art. 16, § 29 is mandatory. Law v. San Francisco, 144 Cal. 384, 77 P. 1014.

issue is ineffectual.[27] It is sometimes a condition precedent to the right to call an election on the question of issuing bonds that the municipality shall have a certain population.[28] A majority or two-thirds vote of all the votes cast at the election is usually required to carry the proposition.[29] The ballots found in the ballot box at the close of the polls upon which the voter has intelligently expressed himself control the question.[30] Where it is required that two-thirds of the qualified voters of the municipality must assent, reference must be had to the registration list.[31]

Notice of election.[32]—The statutory procedure for calling an election must be followed,[33] thus if the notice fails to specify all the particulars required by statute, it will not have the effect of calling a valid election;[34] but the notice of an election to be held at the time of the annual election of municipal officers to vote on the question of issuing bonds is valid, though the notice failed to specify the place where the election was to be held.[35] No notice is required where the election is required to be held in the same manner as elections for officers where no notice is given.[36] If the notice of election refers to the statute, it is not necessary that it enumerate all the details of the proposed issue.[37] Irregularities in publishing the notice of election does not always render the election void,[38] and the bonds issued may be valid, though they do not conform exactly to the proposition adopted by the voters.[39] An election is not rendered invalid because the officers who called it were only de facto officers.[40] In some states it is required that the question shall be printed on the official ballot.[41]

Providing for payment of bonds.[42]—Where the statute[43] or the constitution

27. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Sioux Falls, 131 F. 890.

28. Act Cong. March 4, 1898, c. 35, § 1 (30 Stat. at L. 252), requiring a population of not less than 1,000 persons; the requirement that a school census should be taken was sufficiently complied with when a census was taken of the entire district, and an assessor's census had been taken of the town therein. Territory v. Whitehall, 13 Okl. 534, 76 P. 148.

29. Where several propositions were submitted and one received two-thirds of the votes cast on it, but not two-thirds of all the votes cast, it failed. Law v. San Francisco, 144 Cal. 384, 77 P. 1014.

30. Ballots which are illegally cast or which are defective should not be counted. State v. Topeka, 68 Kan. 177, 74 P. 647.

31. Or if there is no system of registration to the tally sheets of the last general election. Wilkins v. Waynesboro, 116 Ga. 359, 42 S. E. 767.

32. See 2 Curr. L. 934.

33. A petition asking the mayor to issue a proclamation for an election need not be submitted to the council [Laws 1897, c. 82, § 10]. State v. Topeka, 68 Kan. 177, 74 P. 647.

34. Amount, purpose, interest, and how much to be paid off annually required to be stated (Pol. Code, §§ 377-381); but stating that the overplus if any will be applied to sinking fund was not sufficiently definite. Wilkins v. Waynesboro, 116 Ga. 359, 42 S. E. 767.

35. The question might be submitted at an annual or special election, and the inference here was that the election was to be held at the same place as the election for officers, and the fact that separate ballot boxes were used did not render it a special election. Fletcher v. Collingswood [N. J. Law] 59 A. 90.

36. When the charter was revised the election of officers was directed to be held under provisions of general election law which required no notice. City of Asheville v. Webb, 134 N. C. 72, 46 S. E. 19.

37. The notice failed to state the denomination, rate of interest, or date of maturity of the bonds, but the statute provided that the denomination should be between $10 and $1,000, that the interest should not exceed 6 per cent, and that they should not run longer than 20 years, and the council had power to fix the terms within the statutory limits. State v. Topeka, 68 Kan. 177, 74 P. 647.

38. A judgment of a court may validate the bonds. Rountree v. Rentz, 119 Ga. 885, 47 S. E. 328.

39. Though the denomination of bonds was subsequently changed by the council from what was stated in the notice for special election, it will not affect their validity. Law v. San Francisco, 144 Cal. 384, 77 P. 1014.

40. Persons living outside the school district but within limits supposed to have been added to the district voted for officers, two of whom lived outside of district. Boesch v. Byrom [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 18.

41. Such provisions are merely directory, and here boroughs were expressly exempted [P. L. 1898, p. 264, § 52]. Fletcher v. Collingswood [N. J. Law] 59 A. 90.

42. See 2 Curr. L. 934.

43. Binding even in the hands of an innocent holder [Mill's Ann. St. § 4402, subd. 6]. Sauer v. Gillett [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1068.

require provision to be made for the payment of the bonds by an annual tax, that is a condition precedent to their issue, and no other plan for raising the necessary revenue can be substituted.[44] The amount of the tax must be specified in the resolution submitted.[45] Debts incurred for current expenditures are valid, though no such provision is made.[46] The power to issue bonds impliedly gives the power to tax therefor,[47] and express provisions that the city have the power to impose a special tax for the payment of the bonds do not make the validity of bonds dependent on the imposition of such a tax.[48]

§ 3. Execution.[49]—Where bonds have been duly authorized and duly sold to the highest bidder by the council, and the mayor without legal reason or having any discretion in the matter, refuses to sign or seal them, mandamus will issue to compel him to sign and seal the same.[50] It is no defense that the seal of the clerk instead of the seal of the city is affixed to bonds, when they are in the hands of an innocent holder.[51]

§ 4. Form and requisites.[52]—A bond is not made a conditional promise to pay by incorporating in its condition an obligation to pay interest according to its terms.[53] The power to issue "bonds" authorizes the issue of negotiable bonds or bonds payable to bearer,[54] and includes the power to make them payable in the gold coin of the United States.[55] The bonds are negotiable, though the name of the payee and the word "bearer" are left in blank,[56] and are valid, though they do not conform exactly to the authority under which they are issued.[57]

§ 5. Issue and sale.[58]—Where separate propositions for the issue of bonds for different purposes have received a majority of votes, separate bonds need not be issued for each purpose, but the total amount may be in one issue together.[59] An act requiring public officers to issue bonds on the certificate of their necessity by other officers gives the former no discretion in the matter.[60] An act authoriz-

44. The levying of an annual tax of $500 to pay bonds to the amount of $30,000 due in 30 years is insufficient, as the municipality has no authority to assume that that sum when compounded will yield the necessary sum. Wilkins v. Waynesboro, 116 Ga. 359, 42 S. E. 767.

45. It is not enough to follow the language of the statute; the provision was designed to enlighten the voters. Village of Canandaigua v. Hayes, 90 App. Div. 336, 85 N. Y. S. 488.

46. Such may be validly refunded, though at the time of their issuance the city had no power to levy a tax sufficient to pay them. City of Tyler v. Tyler Bldg. & Loan Ass'n [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 1066.

47. Where there is no constitutional restriction. State v. Bristol, 109 Tenn. 315, 70 S. W. 1031.

48. Nor does the setting aside of a certain part of the annual revenue for that purpose vitiate the bonds. City of Jefferson v. Jennings Banking & Trust Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 876.

49. See 2 Curr. L. 935.

50. It was no excuse that the relators and purchasers were nonresidents of the state, or that the mayor had vetoed the resolution for the sale of bonds, as the act of March 23, 1892 (P. L. 1892, p. 202), giving the mayors of cities of the second class the right to veto measures was unconstitutional. Halsey v. Nowrey [N. J. Law] 59 A. 449.

51. Equity would order the city to affix the proper seal, or enjoin it from setting up the lack of a seal as a defense. City of Defiance v. Schmidt [C. C. A.] 123 F. 1. See 2 Curr. L. 935, n. 64, 65, 66.

52. See 2 Curr. L. 935.

53. Ontario County v. Shepard, 91 N. Y. S. 611.

54. Jennings Banking & Trust Co. v. Jefferson, 30 Tex. Civ. App. 534, 70 S. W. 1005, afg. 79 S. W. 876. See 2 Curr. L. 935, n. 68. Bonds payable to bearer may be sued on by any one to whom they are delivered, though he is not the equitable owner. Jennings Banking & Trust Co. v. Jefferson, 30 Tex. Civ. App. 534, 70 S. W. 1005.

55. Hillsborough County v. Henderson [Fla.] 33 So. 997. See 2 Curr. L. 935, n. 69.

56. The bonds were payable "to —— or —— at the office of the treasurer." Gamble v. Rural Independent School Dist., 132 F. 514. Negotiability generally, see Negotiable Instruments, 4 Curr. L. 790.

57. The denomination of the bonds issued was not the same as was provided for in the resolution submitted to the voters. Law v. San Francisco, 144 Cal. 384, 77 P. 1014.

58. See 2 Curr. L. 935.

59. Propositions (1) to issue $37,000 for street purposes (2) to issue $2,000 for fire apparatus (3) to issue $7,000 for sewers, and (4) to issue $4,000 for bridges, passed by voters, authorized the issue of $50,000 in one issue of bonds by the municipality. Town of Mill Valley v. House, 142 Cal. 698, 76 P. 658.

60. Laws 1896, p. 1013, c. 769 directed the village trustees to issue bonds for the ing the issue and sale of bonds or their issue in payment of property necessary for an irrigation system did not authorize their exchange for water right certificates or for warrants drawn for salaries of the officers of the district.[61] In Georgia a special proceeding by petition is provided by which a decree of a court may be obtained validating the bonds before they are issued,[62] and such validation is good where there is a substantial compliance with the provisions of the statute.[63] Under the Nebraska refunding law a special proceeding is provided for determining the validity of the proceedings from which an appeal lies to the supreme court.[64] For a purchaser to rescind the contract and recover the consideration paid, he must return or be able to return all of the bonds.[65]

§ 6. Rights and liabilities arising out of illegal issue.[66]—A resident taxpayer may enjoin the issue of bonds when the question of issuing them had not been fairly submitted to the voters,[67] unless they have already been validated by a decree of court.[68] In such an action the burden is on the plaintiff to establish their illegality.[69] A taxpayer may enjoin the levy of a tax to pay interest on bonds issued under an unconstitutional statute, without restoring to bona fide holders the consideration which they gave therefor,[70] or in a suit to collect taxes, he may defend on the ground of the invalidity of the bonds.[71] Where bonds have been delivered to the purchaser, a taxpayer cannot sue the town to have the bonds declared invalid and to restrain the levy of taxes therefor, without joining the purchaser[72] or the holders.[73] An adjudication that part of an issue of bonds was invalid does not annul the rest of the same issue sold to other persons and not parties to the action.[74] Where bonds have been illegally issued, but for a lawful purpose, the city is bound in equity to return the consideration.[75] amounts required by the water commissioners, and mandamus issued on the relation of a water commissioner. People v. Trustees of White Plains, 93 App. Div. 599, 88 N. Y. S. 506.

61. One was not a bona fide purchaser who had knowledge that they were exchanged for warrants, though he did not know for what purpose the warrants were issued. Leeman v. Perris Irr. Dist., 140 Cal. 540, 74 P. 24.

62. Order granting the petition reversed. Wilkins v. Waynesboro, 116 Ga. 359, 42 S. E. 767. Acts 1897, p. 82; Van Epps, Code Supp. § 6074 et seq. Such judgment is res judicata and a taxpayer cannot thereafter enjoin the issue because the notice of election was not properly published. Rountree v. Rentz, 119 Ga. 885, 47 S. E. 328. See 2 Curr. L. 933, n. 38.

63. The misnomer of the municipality "The Town of Louisville" instead of "The City of Louisville" in the petition to validate bonds was not fatal where the city answered under its proper name, the judgment set forth its correct name, and it appeared that a notice in such form fairly notified the citizens of the proceedings. Rhodes v. Louisville [Ga.] 49 S. E. 681.

64. Laws 1899, c. 8 (Cobbey's Ann. St. § 10,780); but the decision relates to the validity of the bonds, and does not affect rights of innocent purchasers who are not parties of record. Colburn v. McDonald [Neb.] 100 N. W. 961.

65. Here bonds which had been declared invalid in another suit were in part pledged to other persons, so purchaser was unable to return them all. City of Ironwood v. Wickes, 93 App. Div. 164, 87 N. Y. S. 554.

66. See 2 Curr. L. 936.

67. Question of issuing for the purpose of purchasing or of constructing water works joined. City of Leavenworth v. Wilson [Kan.] 76 P. 400.

68. Though it was admitted that the notice of election was published only twice instead of four times as required by law. Rountree v. Rentz, 119 Ga. 885, 47 S. E. 328.

69. Nothing in record to prove the allegation that nine illegal votes were cast at the election, which changed the result. Territory v. Whitehall, 13 Okl. 534, 76 P. 148.

70. The burden is on the county commissioners to show that the bonds were valid under some other act. Graves v. Moore County Com'rs, 135 N. C. 49, 47 S. E. 134.

71. Though the bondholders are not parties; but the burden is on the taxpayer to show the falsity of the recitals in the bond. City of Tyler v. Tyler Bldg. & Loan Ass'n [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 1066.

72. Here the city, the mayor, and council alone were made defendants and nothing to show but what the construction of the waterworks for which the bonds were issued was an accomplished fact. Ramsay v. Marble Rock, 123 Iowa, 7, 98 N. W. 134. Suit between county and county treasurer and warrants were already issued. Nelson v. Harrison County [Neb.] 102 N. W. 197.

73. As the judgment would in effect render the school district bonds worthless. Boesch v. Byron [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 18.

74. City of Ironwood v. Wickes, 93 App. Div. 164, 87 N. Y. S. 554.

75. The right to recover passes from the original purchaser to the present holders, and

§ 7. Transfer.[76]—There is no implied warranty on the part of the seller of the validity of bonds,[77] or of the truth of his statement that they will net a certain rate of interest.[78] The fact that the seller guarantees the bonds does not prevent the buyer from being a bona fide purchaser.[79]

Subrogation.[80]—A purchaser in the open market is a volunteer and is not subrogated to any equities existing in favor of the original holders.[81]

Recitals.[82]—Recitals are binding only as to matters of fact, and not as to matters of law,[83] and will not protect a purchaser where he has knowledge that they are in fact untrue.[84] A recital showing a bond was issued for an unlawful purpose will be notice to all purchasers.[85] A recital that bonds were issued in conformity with a designated act is in effect a certification that all provisions of law have been complied with.[86] Where it is the duty of the mayor and clerk to sign and seal bonds, their recital that all requirements of law have been complied with is binding on the city.[87] Bonds will not be void, though they recite that they were issued under an unconstitutional statute, if there was a general law authorizing their issue;[88] but where bonds recited that they were issued under an act where the preliminary steps required to be taken were entirely different from those required by the general law, they could not be sustained under the latter, though the former act was unconstitutional.[89]

Estoppel.[90]—If the debt be under an unconstitutional law but the subject-matter be neither illegal, ultra vires nor prohibited, there may be an estoppel.[91] Where bonds recited that they were issued for a lawful purpose,[92] or in conformity with statutory authority, there is an estoppel, as against an innocent holder, to show that they were illegally issued.[93] A purchaser of bonds will be charged with notice of conditions appearing of record, though not recited in the bonds.[94] An innocent holder[95] of bonds illegally issued has the burden of proving that he ob-they may intervene in a suit brought by the original holder and hold him as a trustee for any judgment which he may recover. Chelsea Sav. Bank v. Ironwood [C. C. A.] 130 F. 410.

76. See 2 Curr. L. 936.

77. School bonds. First Nat. Bank v. Columbus Sav. & Trust Co., 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 525.

78. There is no warranty of fact in the statement that bonds "if purchased at 102 would net 4.65." Such a statement is a mere arithmetical deduction. First Nat. Bank v. Columbus Sav. & Trust Co., 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 525.

79. The guaranty is no evidence that the buyer did not act honestly. Schmid v. Frankfort [Mich.] 96 N. W. 1056.

80. See 2 Curr. L. 937.

81. School bonds. Beardsley v. Lampasas [C. C. A.] 127 F. 819.

82. See 2 Curr. L. 937. See, also, special article, post, p. 717.

83. Recital that a bond was issued in compliance with law will not protect an innocent holder of a bond issued under an act requiring provision to be made for their payment and determining their date of payment, where these requirements were not complied with. Sauer v. Gillett [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1068.

84. Recitals that the bond was duly issued will not protect one who knew that they were exchanged for warrants instead of being sold for cash. Leeman v. Perris Irr. Dist., 140 Cal. 540, 74 P. 24.

85. Recital that bond was issued "to aid in construction of waterworks" when the only statutory authority was to issue bonds to construct waterworks. Village of Grant v. Sherrill [Neb.] 98 N. W. 681.

86. The act authorized refunding bonds, and the district was estopped to set up that they were issued in excess of the constitutional debt limit. Gamble v. Rural Independent School Dist., 132 F. 514.

87. Even though the ordinance directing the issue did not authorize the recitals. City of Defiance v. Schmidt [C. C. A.] 123 F. 1.

88. City of Defiance v. Schmidt [C. C. A.] 123 F. 1.

89. The recitals will not import full compliance with the statute, even in favor of innocent holders. Graves v. Moore County Com'rs, 135 N. C. 49, 47 S. E. 134.

90. See 2 Curr. L. 938.

91. City of Mt. Vernon v. State [Ohio] 73 N. E. 515.

92. Bonds recited that they were issued to build a bridge and were in fact issued to aid a railroad which was illegal, but no taxpayer interposed. City of Defiance v. Schmidt [C. C. A.] 123 F. 1.

93. Board of Com'rs of Henderson County v. Travelers' Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 128 F. 817.

94. The condition of the subscription which appeared of record was that the county should be first exonerated from its subscription to a certain other road. Green County v. Shortell, 25 Ky. L. R. 357, 75 S. W. 251.

95. One who purchases bonds who knows nothing about them except what appears on tained the same for value and without notice.[96] One does not have to rely entirely on the recitals of a bond to constitute one a bona fide holder, for that would be putting a premium on omission to inquire further.[97] One who obtains title by descent, from one who is not a bona fide holder, is not a bona fide holder,[98] but any subsequent transferee under an innocent holder is a bona fide holder,[99] except the purchaser for a nominal consideration of a past due and dishonored municipal bond, which was fraudulently issued;[1] he cannot recover their face value, though the seller, an innocent holder, might have.[2] Payment of interest by itself will not prevent a bond from being held invalid,[3] but where a municipality had compromised a suit on its bonds and paid interest for many years, it will not be allowed to repudiate them unless they were absolutely void when issued.[4] Likewise long delay and laches and continued payment of interest on bonds in the hands of innocent holders will defeat an action of a taxpayer to restrain their payment.[5] Where a purchaser acquires bonds after they have been held valid by a decision of the highest court in the state, his rights are not affected by a subsequent different interpretation of the law.[6]

§ 8. Payment.[7]—The authority to issue bonds by necessary implication confers authority to levy the tax necessary to pay the debt.[8] In Louisiana the tax that may be levied to pay municipal bonds is limited by the constitution.[9] Where a city has no authority to make the interest on bonds a governmental and current expenditure, the fund raised therefor may be secured by a judgment creditor.[10] After a judgment is obtained, no demand is necessary before filing a petition for mandamus to compel the making of an assessment,[11] or the levy of a tax, where their face is an innocent holder, and his right to recover cannot be defeated by any defect in the consideration received from the original purchaser. City of Jefferson v. Jennings Banking & Trust Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 876.

96. Where holder of bonds in excess of limit, which contained no recitals, had them exchanged for bonds containing recitals that they were issued in accordance with the constitution, he was not protected, but a subsequent bona fide transferee was protected. Salmon v. Rural Independent School Dist., 125 F. 235. One who obtained them in payment for legal services rendered to full value of bond and without notice of infirmities is a bona fide holder for value. Gamble v. Rural Independent School Dist., 132 F. 514.

97. Here purchasers examined the proceedings of the council in purporting to issue "park bonds," but which were in fact issued for a private purpose and also the letter of the prosecuting attorney affirming that the proceedings were valid. Schmid v. Frankfort [Mich.] 96 N. W. 1056.

98. Salmon v. Rural Independent School Dist. [C. C. A.] 125 F. 235.

99. City of Jefferson v. Jennings Banking & Trust Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 876.

1, 2. He can only recover the consideration paid as he has notice of the fraud, and in Iowa the statute is express on the point [Code Iowa 1897, § 3070]. Gamble v. Rural Independent School Dist., 132 F. 514.

3. Green County v. Shortell, 25 Ky. L. R. 357, 75 S. W. 251.

4. A suit on the bonds was compromised by the interest being reduced from 10 per cent to 5½ per cent and the interest had been paid thereon for about 15 years before the compromise and for 15 years thereafter. Colburn v. McDonald [Neb.] 100 N. W. 961.

5. Interest had been paid for 13 years and taxpayer had for 6 years resided in the municipality, and there was statutory authority to issue railroad aid bonds, but the "agreement" was for $10,000, while only $9,000 were issued because of the debt limit. Schmitz v. Zeh, 91 Minn. 290, 97 N. W. 1049.

6. Mandamus issued to compel the levy of a tax to pay judgment. State v. Bristol, 109 Tenn. 315, 70 S. W. 1031; Board of Com'rs of Henderson County v. Travelers' Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 128 F. 817. But see, contra, Graves v. Moore County Com'rs, 135 N. C. 49, 47 S. E. 134.

7. See 2 Curr. L. 939.

8. There was no provision in the constitution requiring a grant of power to levy taxes to be in express terms. State v. Bristol, 109 Tenn. 315, 70 S. W. 1031.

See generally on the taxing power, Taxes, 2 Curr. L. 1786.

9. Const. 1898, art. 281, limits the tax to five mills on the dollar in any one year; where a tax of 2½ mills had already been levied for a previous issue, a tax of 5 mills in addition cannot be imposed. Town of Crowley v. Fulton & Co., 112 La. 234, 36 So. 334.

10. The payment of interest was not under its charter a necessary current expense, so a judgment creditor on a personal injury claim could obtain a writ of mandamus that his judgment should be paid out of the interest fund. City of Anniston v. Hurt, 140 Ala. 394, 37 So. 220.

11. Board of supervisors may make a levy to meet interest on bonds of an irrigation district corporation when the directors refuse or neglect to do so [Acts there is a statute authorizing the same.[12] A writ of mandamus is properly directed to the mayor and city council to compel a tax levy,[13] or to a sheriff, where it is his duty to collect the tax,[14] or to county commissioners to compel them to take steps to provide for the payment of county orders.[15] Where no fact is asserted against the validity of bonds, mandamus may be had by the holder of all, or of a part of the bonds, to compel a tax levy to pay the same, without first reducing them to judgment.[16] The fact that a township has been transferred to another county after bonds are issued does not affect its obligation to pay.[17] A state constitutional amendment abolishing the corporate existence of certain townships which had issued bonds impairs the obligation of contracts,[18] but a Federal court cannot adjudge a county liable for the debts of a township included therein which has been dissolved.[19] Where the boundary between counties has been changed, a portion of the debt of the county from which territory was taken may be apportioned by the legislature to that part added to the other county.[20]

Payment from special fund or tax.[21]—Owners of street improvement bonds payable out of assessments may sue to enforce collection by foreclosure or otherwise, and an attorney's fee may be included in the judgment.[22] Though the bonds are only payable out of assessments to be levied and collected by the municipality, the municipality will be liable for the amount lost by its negligence in failing to file and enforce the liens for the same.[23] The bonds are still a valid charge on the special assessments, though there is a void provision that the city's credit was pledged.[24] Mandamus will lie to compel the payment of interest out of a special fund raised for that purpose,[25] but it will not lie to compel payment out of the general fund.[26]

1897, p. 267, c. 189, § 39]. Board of Sup'rs of Riverside County v. Thompson [C. C. A.] 122 F. 860.

12. Ky. Laws 1868, p. 622, c. 548, authorizing the county judge to levy taxes for railroad aid bonds, was not repealed by Constitution of 1891 or Ky. St. 1894, § 1882, which confers the power of levying taxes on the fiscal court except in the case of railroad bond indebtedness. Guthrie v. Sparks [C. C. A.] 131 F. 443.

13. Comp. Laws 1897, § 2529, limiting tax levies to one per cent for all purposes, did not apply to cities organized under prior acts. Territory v. Socorro [N. M.] 76 P. 283.

14. It was proper to join the sheriff where it was his duty to collect the tax, and it was alleged that he had pledged himself not to do so. Guthrie v. Sparks [C. C. A.] 131 F. 443.

15. The fact that the language of the act imposing the duty on the county commissioners was not mandatory but permissive in form is not conclusive, as the rule is that where public or individual rights call for the exercise of a power the language is in effect imperative. State v. Gunn, 92 Minn. 436, 100 N. W. 97.

16. The only denial of their validity consisted of the erroneous conclusion as to the legal requirements of an ordinance directing their issue. Territory v. Socorro [N. M.] 76 P. 283.

17. Mandamus issued against officers of county to which township was transferred. Ex parte Folsom, 131 F. 496; Planters' & Sav. Bank v. Huiett Tp., 132 F. 627.

18. Consequently the county officers who were originally authorized to levy a tax for the bonds were not deprived of that right and duty. Ex parte Folsom, 131 F. 496.

19. Though no provision has been made for the payment of the township debts, the corporate existence of the town having been destroyed by constitutional amendment, after the U. S. supreme court had declared the bonds valid. Folsom v. Greenwood County, 130 F. 730.

20. Where no provision was made in the act changing the boundary, the legislature may by subsequent act apportion the debt and provide by means of legal proceedings for the ascertainment thereof. Desha County v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 625.

21. See 2 Curr. L. 939.

22. A demand on the city to pay or collect the bonds is not necessary, nor is any resolution of council necessary to enable the holders of the bonds to sue to enforce the liens. Scott v. Hayes, 162 Ind. 548, 70 N. E. 879. Charter of Dennison construed as not requiring the payment of bonds issued by the city for school purposes, out of the special tax voted for school purposes. Kennedy v. Birch [Tex. Civ. App.] 74 S. W. 593.

23. The bonds stipulated that it was expressly understood that the city was only liable for the amount collected, but there is implied condition that the city make lawful assessments, file lawful liens, and preserve them by lawful proceedings. Dime Deposit & Discount Bank v. Scranton, 208 Pa. 383, 57 A. 770.

24. Const. § 157, provided that debts could not be incurred without the consent of two-thirds of the voters, which was not obtained. Gedge v. Covington [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1160.

§ 9. Scaling overissue.[27]—Bonds issued by a municipality in excess of the amount prescribed by statute are void only to the extent of the excess.[28]

§ 10. Enforcement of improvement bonds against abutters.—In some states the person contracting to make local improvements or the holder of bonds for same is given a remedy direct or secondary against abutting owners.[29]

RECITALS OF LAW IN MUNICIPAL BONDS.

[Special Article.]*

Constitutional authority.—A recital that bonds are issued "in conformity with," "by virtue of, or under authority of," a constitutional provision, puts the purchaser upon inquiry as to the meaning of all those provisions, and at his peril he must ascertain whether they have been fulfilled. The earlier cases tried to make a distinction between a statutory and a constitutional provision, taking the ground that constitutional provisions were absolute in their nature, and that no recital could work an estoppel.[30] Dillon, in his work on Municipal Corporations (vol. 1, p. 607), makes the statement that there is "no estoppel by recital to set up defense of an overissue contrary to a constitutional limitation." And he cites Buchanan v. Litchfield, 102 U. S. 278, 26 Law. Ed. 138, and Dixon Co. v. Field, 111 U. S. 83, 28 Law. Ed. 360. The first case has no recital on the constitution. The second case contained the recital that the bonds were issued "under and by virtue of the constitution." But here the face of the bonds showed that they did not comply with the constitution. However, nearly all the cases involving constitutional authority have arisen on an issuance of bonds beyond the limit of indebtedness prescribed by the constitution. In all these cases a general recital has worked no estoppel.[31] But in later cases, where the bonds have expressly recited that the limitation of indebtedness prescribed by the constitution has not been exceeded, this recital has been held to work an estoppel to prove the contrary.[32]

Legislative authority.—Recitals on legislative authority refer the purchaser to the statute, and put him upon inquiry as to all the terms and conditions of the

25. Notwithstanding that the claim has been reduced to judgment, and that there are other creditors, who have not intervened, who are interested. Ward v. Piper [Kan.] 77 P. 699. Where the statute requires the officers to make an annual levy sufficient to pay the interest on bonds, and that all such taxes shall be paid in cash only and kept as a special fund, the holder can enforce the payment of interest by mandamus, but cannot have a money judgment therefor. Board of Com'rs of Gunnison County v. Sims, 31 Colo. 483, 74 P. 457.

26. It did not appear that the fund raised for ordinary expenses was more than sufficient for that purpose. Ward v. Piper [Kan.] 77 P. 699.

27. See 2 Curr. L. 940.

28. Railroad aid bonds; and it did not appear that there was an excessive issue. Schmitz v. Zeh, 91 Minn. 290, 97 N. W. 1049.

29. See Public Works and Improvements, 2 Curr. L. 1328. The owner of street improvement bonds issued under the Barrett Law of Indiana may sue thereon without giving notice to the city or securing the consent of the council [Burns' Ann. St. 1894, §§ 4290-4296]. Scott v. Hayes, 162 Ind. 548, 70 N. E. 879.

30. Marsh v. Fulton County, 10 Wall. [U. S.] 676, 19 Law. Ed. 1040; Buchanan v. Litchfield, 102 U. S. 278, 26 Law. Ed. 138; Carroll County v. Smith, 111 U. S. 556, 28 Law. Ed. 517; Merchants' Exch. Nat. Bank v. Bergen County, 115 U. S. 384, 29 Law. Ed. 430; Hooper v. Covington, 118 U. S. 148, 30 Law. Ed. 190; Lake County v. Graham, 130 U. S. 674, 32 Law. Ed. 1065.

31. Buchanan v. Litchfield, 102 U. S. 278, 26 Law. Ed. 138; Harshman v. Bates County, 92 U. S. 569, 23 Law. Ed. 747; Lake County v. Graham, 130 U. S. 674, 32 Law. Ed. 1065; Sutliff v. Board of County Com'rs, 147 U. S. 135, 37 Law. Ed. 112; Hedges v. Dixon County, 150 U. S. 187, 37 Law. Ed. 1047; Francis v. Howard Co., 4 C. C. A. 460; Shaw v. Independent School Dist., 23 C. C. A. 169; Geer v. School Dist. No. 11, 38 C. C. A. 392; Wesson v. Mt. Vernon, 39 C. C. A. 301.

32. Chaffee County v. Potter, 142 U. S. 355, 35 Law. Ed. 1040; Gunnison County v. Rollins, 173 U. S. 260, 43 Law. Ed. 693; Na-same.[33] He is chargeable with and bound to know whether the legislative grant is valid or not.[34] Where the legislative act refers the purchaser to certain records to ascertain the fulfillment of certain prescribed conditions, the purchaser is put upon inquiry as to the contents thereof,[35] and in such cases no recitals will estop the defense of the facts shown by the public record.

*From Bronson Recitals in Municipal Bonds.

Legislative authority through ordinance of city.—Recitals in bonds that they are issued under legislative authority, and in compliance with an ordinance of the city, would, in accordance with the earlier cases, put the purchaser upon inquiry as to the terms of that ordinance, and would not estop any defense of lack of compliance with the same.[36] But the later decisions are to the effect that recitals in a bond that they are issued in pursuance of an act of the legislature and an ordinance of the city council passed in pursuance thereof does not put the purchaser upon inquiry as to the terms of the ordinances under which the bonds are issued.[37]

Legislative authority through order of the county court.—In Post v. Pulaski Co., it is held that a recital in county bonds that they are issued pursuant to an order of the county court puts all persons dealing in the bonds upon inquiry as to the terms of the order.[38] This case was one where the defense was that bonds had been given as donation, and the records showed that fact, and it was held that the recital did not estop the facts of the record. This case, and the doctrine there laid down, will appear to be much modified by later cases, if in fact it is not overruled.[39]

Where the legislature has applied curative legislation.—The curative power of the legislature has been exercised in many cases. It has been held that a legislature has the power to subsequently ratify and give validity to an illegal bond issue, or to cure all irregularities in any issuance of bonds.[40]

Lis pendens.—Bonds being negotiable paper, the lis pendens does not act as constructive notice to the bona fide purchaser.[41] tional Life Ins. Co. v. Board of Education, 10 C. C. A. 637.

33. Ogden v. County of Daviess, 102 U. S. 634, 26 Law. Ed. 263; Anthony v. Jasper County, 101 U. S. 693, 25 Law. Ed. 1006; Northern Bank of Toledo v. Porter Tp., 110 U. S. 608, 28 Law. Ed. 258.

34. German Sav. Bank v. Franklin County, 128 U. S. 526, 32 Law. Ed. 519; Board of Com'rs v. Union Bank, 37 C. C. A. 492.

35. Dixon County v. Field, 111 U. S. 83, 28 Law. Ed. 360; Sutliff v. Lake County Com'rs, 147 U. S. 230, 37 Law. Ed. 145; National Bank of Commerce v. Granada, 4 C. C. A. 212; Nesbit v. Independent Dist., 144 U. S. 610, 36 Law. Ed. 562; Coffin v. Board of Com'rs, 6 C. C. A. 288; Hinkley v. Arkansas City, 16 C. C. A. 395.

36. Dixon County v. Field, 111 U. S. 83, 28 Law. Ed. 360; Bank of Commerce v. Granada, 4 C. C. A. 212; Hinkley v. Arkansas City, 16 C. C. A. 395; Coffin v. Board of Com'rs, 6 C. C. A. 288.

37. Evansville v. Dennett, 161 U. S. 434, 40 Law. Ed. 760; City of South St. Paul v. Lamprecht Bros., 31 C. C. A. 585; City of Lamprosos v. Talcott, 36 C. C. A. 318; Board of Com'rs v. National Life Ins. Co., 32 C. C. A. 591; Hackette v. Ottawa, 99 U. S. 86, 25 Law. Ed. 363; Ottawa v. National Bank, 105 U. S. 342, 26 Law. Ed. 1127; Van Hostrup v. Madison City, 68 U. S. 291, 17 Law. Ed. 538.

38. Post v. Pulaski Co., 1 C. C. A. 405.

39. Board of Com'rs v. National Life Ins. Co., 32 C. C. A. 591; Provident Life & Trust Co. v. Mercer County, 170 U. S. 593, 42 Law. Ed. 1156; Wesson v. Saline Co., 20 C. C. A. 227; Evansville v. Dennett, 161 U. S. 434, 40 Law. Ed. 76; Orleans v. Platt, 99 U. S. 676, 25 Law. Ed. 404.

40. Warren County v. Marcy, 97 U. S. 96, 97 Law. Ed. 977; Carroll County v. Smith, 111 U. S. 556, 28 Law. Ed. 517; Scotland Co. v. Hill, 132 U. S. 107, 33 Law. Ed. 261; Lytle v. Lansing, 147 U. S. 59, 37 Law. Ed. 78; State v. Wichita County Com'rs, 59 Kan. 512.

41. Ritchie v. Franklin County, 89 U. S. 67, 22 Law. Ed. 825; Lee County v. Rogers, 74 U. S. 181, 19 Law. Ed. 160; Campbell v. Kenosha, 72 U. S. 194, 18 Law. Ed. 610; Gelpecke v. Dubuque, 68 U. S. 175, 17 Law. Ed. 520; Otoe County v. Baldwin, 111 U. S. 1, 28 Law. Ed. 331; Quincy v. Cook, 107 U. S. 549, 27 Law. Ed. 549; Thompson v. Perrine, 103 U. S. 806, 26 Law. Ed. 612; Jonesboro v. Cairo, 110 U. S. 192, 28 Law. Ed. 116; Rogers v. Keokuk, 154 U. S. 546, 18 Law. Ed. 74; Thompson v. Lee County, 70 U. S. 327, 18 Law. Ed. 177. State cases under curative legislation: Bass v. Columbus, 30 Ga. 845; Black v. Cohen, 52 Ga. 621; Keithsburg v. Frick, 34 Ill. 405; Gage v. Nichols, 135 Ill. 128; Williams v. People, 132 Ill. 574; Schneck v. Jeffersonville, 152 Ind. 204; State v. Osawkee, 14 Kan. 418; People's Bank v. Pomona, 48 Kan. 351; McConnel v. Hammond, 16 Kan.

General recitals.—Recitals that a bond was issued "by virtue of," "under the authority of," "in compliance with," or "in conformity with," a specific legislative act were held in the earlier cases to import a full compliance with the precedent conditions of the legislative act; the only question then being, "What authority did those issuing the bonds have in making the recitals?"[42] This question being answered that they possessed full authority to determine upon the precedent conditions, then the recitals acted as an estoppel to set up want of compliance with the conditions prescribed, but afterwards, when certain precedent conditions came to be recognized as absolute or nearly absolute, such as the constitutional limitations or statutory limitations in the creation of indebtedness, and when records became more and more of a public nature, the necessity arose of having express recitals on these quasi absolute conditions in order to raise an estoppel, so that a general recital at the present day covers only mere irregularities, and is often treated as a conclusion of law.[43] This has been most apparent in the cases where the issuance exceeded the legal indebtedness. The late cases hold that a general recital does not create an estoppel, to prove by the assessment rolls a contrary fact,[44] but that an express recital does create an estoppel to prove the contrary of the fact recited.[45] But a general recital that bonds are issued "under and pursuant to the laws and constitution" of a state, and referring to no specific authoritative legislative enactment, raises no estoppel whatsoever, and is treated as a mere conclusion of law.[46]

Where bonds are issued for an illegal purpose.—It is clear, where bonds are issued for an illegal purpose, and there is no recital upon the purpose of the issuance, that the defense of a nonpublic purpose is available, and that the bonds are invalid.[47] But where the statute granting the power to issues states the purpose for which bonds may be issued, and there is a recital in the bonds issued of due compliance with the precedent conditions of the statute, this recital acts as an estoppel to set up an issuance for an illegal purpose.[48] Likewise, where there is an express recital in the bonds of the purpose for which they are issued, this acts as an estoppel to set up the contrary.[49]

228; Central Branch U. P. R. Co. v. Smith, 23 Kan. 745; Smith v. Stephen, 66 Md. 381; Bradley v. Franklin Co., 65 Mo. 638; Stiens v. Franklin Co., 48 Mo. 166; Rogers v. Railway Co., 21 Hun [N. Y.] 44; In re Byrnes, 11 N. Y. S. 113; Alexander v. McDowell's Com'rs, 70 N. C. 208; Duke v. Williamsburg Co., 21 S. C. 419; State v. Whitesides, 30 S. C. 579; State v. Harper, 30 S. C. 586; State v. Neely, 30 S. C. 587; Knapp v. Grant, 27 Wis. 147; Kimball v. Rosendale, 42 Wis. 407; Baker v. Seattle, 2 Wash. St. 576; State v. Winter, 15 Wash. 407.

42. Knox Co. v. Aspinwall, 21 How. [U. S.] 539, 16 Law. Ed. 208; Mercer County v. Hacket, 68 U. S. 83, 17 Law. Ed. 548; Humboldt Tp. v. Long, 92 U. S. 642, 23 Law. Ed. 752; Marcy v. Oswego Tp., 92 U. S. 638, 23 Law. Ed. 749; Town of Coloma v. Eaves, 92 U. S. 484, 23 Law. Ed. 579.

43. Francis v. Howard Co., 4 C. C. A. 460.

44. Dixon County v. Field, 111 U. S. 83, 28 Law. Ed. 360; Sutliff v. Board of Com'rs, 147 U. S. 230, 37 Law. Ed. 147; Geer v. School Dist. No. 11, 38 C. C. A. 392.

45. Board of Com'rs v. Sutliff, 38 C. C. A. 167; Gunnison County v. Rollins, 173 U. S. 256, 43 Law. Ed. 691.

46. Hopper v. Covington, 118 U. S. 148, 118 Law. Ed. 190; Katzenberger v. Aberdeen, 121 U. S. 177, 30 Law. Ed. 913.

47. Barnet v. Denison, 145 U. S. 135, 36 Law. Ed. 652. It is certainly a reasonable requirement that the bonds issued shall express upon their face the purpose for which they were issued. In any event it was a requirement of which the purchaser was bound to take notice, and if it appeared upon their face that they were issued for an illegal purpose, they would be void. If they were issued without any purpose appearing at all upon their face, the purchaser took the risk of their being issued for an illegal purpose, and, if that proved to be the case, they are as void in his hands as if he had received them with express notice of their illegality.

48. Hackett v. Ottawa, 99 U. S. 86, 25 Law. Ed. 363; Village of Kent v. Dana, 40 C. C. A. 281; Ottawa v. National Bank, 105 U. S. 342, 26 Law. Ed. 1127; Evansville v. Dennett, 161 U. S. 434, 40 Law. Ed. 760.

49. Hackett v. Ottawa, 99 U. S. 86, 25 Law. Ed. 363; Ottawa v. National Bank, 105 U. S. 342, 26 Law. Ed. 1127; City of Cadillac v. Woonsocket Inst. for Savings [C. C. A.] 58 F. 935; Risley v. Howell [C. C. A.] 64 F. 453.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS.

§ 1. Nature, Attributes and Elements (721).
§ 2. Creation and Corporate Existence (721).
A. Creation and Organization (721).
B. Consolidation, Succession, and Dissolution (722).
C. Classes and Classification (722).
D. Remonstrances; Quo Warranto (723).
§ 3. The Charter; Adoption, Amendment, Repeal and Abrogation (723).
§ 4. The Territory (724). The Procedure (724). Division Into Wards (724). Plats (724).
§ 5. Officers and Employes (725).
A. In General (725).
B. Election or Appointment (725).
C. Term of Office or Employment (725).
D. Vacancies and Hold-overs (726).
E. Transfers on Amendment or Adoption of New Charter (726).
F. Removal, Reductions and Reinstatement (726).
G. Compensation (727).
H. Pensions and Reliefs (727).
§ 6. Municipal Records and Their Custody and Examination (728).
§ 7. Authority and Power of Municipality (728).
A. Legislative Control (728).
B. Express, Implied, Customary and Prescriptive Powers (729).
C. Delegation of Powers (730).
D. Exercise of Powers (730).
E. Mandatory and Directory (731).
F. Judicial Control Over Exercise of Powers (731).
§ 8. Legislative Functions of Municipalities and Their Exercise (731).
A. Nature and Extent of Legislative Power (731).
B. Meetings, Votes, Rules and Procedure (732).
C. Records and Journals (733).
D. Titles and Ordaining Clauses (733).
E. Passage, Adoption, Amendment, and Repeal of Ordinances and Resolutions (734). Publication (734). Amendment, Suspension, and Repeal (734). Suspension Under Referendum (735).
F. Construction and Operation of Ordinances in General (735).
G. Pleading and Proving Ordinances and Proceedings (735).
H. The Remedy Against Invalid Legislation (736).
§ 9. Administrative Functions, Their Scope and Exercise (736).
§ 10. Police Power and Public Regulations (737).
A. In General (737).
B. For Public Protection (738).
C. Health and Sanitation (738).
D. Regulation and Inspection of Business (739).
E. Control of Streets and Public Places (739).
F. Definition of Offenses and Regulation of Criminal Procedure (740).
§ 11. Property and Public Places (741).
§ 12. Contracts (743).
A. Power and Authority in General (743).
B. Mode of Contracting and Proof of Contracts (744).
C. Construction and Effect (745).
D. Ultra Vires and Unauthorized Contracts (745).
E. Effect of Interest of Officers in Municipal Contracts (746).
§ 13. Fiscal Affairs and Management (746). Limitation of Indebtedness (747).
§ 14. Torts and Crimes (747).
§ 15. Claims and Demands (751). Audit and Approval (752). Interest (752). Warrants and Judgments (752).
§ 16. Actions by and Against (753).
A. In General (753).
B. Suits in Equity (753).

Scope of title. This article is designed to treat, as strictly as may be proper, the law of municipalities as distinguished from that of streets and other public ways,[50] parks and public grounds,[51] bridges,[52] public utilities, works and improvements,[53] health and sanitation,[54] buildings and injuries therein and building regulations,[55] the local taxing power,[56] licenses and licensing,[57] the granting of franchises,[58] and the law of public officers generally.[59] The particular applications of the general law of municipalities to these several subjects should be sought in the titles just cited. There also will be discussed cases under laws and regulations peculiar to streets and the like. The body of laws relating to each of these largely involves powers and duties of counties, towns, and of the public generally, as well as powers of municipalities. All this has been brought together into those respective titles relating to the subject-matter of such powers and duties.

50. Highways and Streets, 3 Curr. L. 1593.
51. See Parks and Public Grounds, 4 Curr. L. ——.
52. Bridges, 3 Curr. L. 529.
53. Public Works and Improvements, 2 Curr. L. 1328; Sewers and Drains, 2 Curr. L. 1628; Waters and Water Supply, 2 Curr. L. 2034.
54. Health, 3 Curr. L. 1590.
55. Buildings and Building Restrictions, 3 Curr. L. 572.
56. Taxes, 2 Curr. L. 1786.
57. Licenses, 4 Curr. L. 428.
58. Franchises, 3 Curr. L. 1495. Compare titles treating of various sorts of franchised public service.
59. Officers and Public Employes, 2 Curr. L. 1069.

§ 1. Nature, attributes and elements.[60]—The term municipal is appropriately applied to all corporations exercising governmental functions, either general or special.[61]

A municipal corporation, although a political division of the state, possesses two separate and distinct powers, one of which may be termed governmental or public,[62] and the other private, corporate or ministerial.[63] In the exercise of the first of these powers, the city or village is invested with delegated powers of sovereignty,[64] while in the second instance it occupies the same relation to the individual that any corporate body does.[65]

Name.[66]

§ 2. Creation and corporate existence. A. Creation and organization.[67]—The creation, definition of boundaries and dissolution of municipal corporations, and the powers to be exercised by them are subject to the legislative control of the state creating them.[68] They may be created by special enactment of the legislature;[69] but in most states the power to pass special acts of incorporation has been greatly restricted, or altogether abolished.[70] Under some laws incorporation may also be by an order of court.[71] Such an order having the full force and effect of a judgment,[72] and not being open to collateral attack.[73]

Incorporation is consummated by acceptance, usually signified by election,[74] or petition,[75] by the prescribed number of voters,[76] upon proper notice.[77]

60. See 2 Curr. L. 941.

61. An irrigation district is a municipal corporation. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Escondido Irr. Dist., 144 Cal. 329, 77 P. 937. But delimiting a specified district and creating a board to relieve certain natural streams from pollution detrimental to the health of the neighboring population does not create a municipality. Van Cleve v. Passaic Valley Sewerage Com'rs [N. J. Law] 58 A. 571.

62. Williams v. Port Chester, 97 App. Div. 84, 89 N. Y. S. 671; Veraguth v. Denver [Colo. App.] 76 P. 539; Hourigan v. Norwich [Conn.] 59 A. 487.

Governmental functions: Extinguishment of fires and providing apparatus therefor. Aschoff v. Evansville [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 279. Imposing license taxes. City of Birmingham v. Birmingham Waterworks Co., 139 Ala. 531, 36 So. 614. Determination of street grades. Ely v. St. Louis, 181 Mo. 723, 81 S. W. 168. Control and management of parks. City of Hartford v. Maslen, 76 Conn. 599, 57 A. 740. Lighting of streets, parks and public buildings. City of Vincennes v. Spees [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 531.

63. Private or corporate powers: Management and operation of electric light plant. City of Henderson v. Young [Ky.] 83 S. W. 583. Construction or maintenance of sewers and drains. Aschoff v. Evansville [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 279.

64. Williams v. Port Chester, 97 App. Div. 84, 89 N. Y. S. 671. But as to this see discussion in Van Cleve v. Passaic Valley Sewerage Com'rs [N. J. Law] 58 A. 571. This class of powers must be strictly construed. City of Henderson v. Young [Ky.] 83 S. W. 583.

65. Upon this distinction rests the liability of municipalities in the state of New York for injuries from defective highways. Williams v. Port Chester, 97 App. Div. 84, 89 N. Y. S. 671.

66. See 2 Curr. L. 941, n. 13.

67. See 2 Curr. L. 941.

68. Pepin Tp. v. Sage [C. C. A.] 129 F. 657. Placing in the hands of the governor of the state the power to pass on the right to incorporate cities and towns is not repugnant to the Mississippi constitution as submitting to the discretion of the executive questions which properly belong to the legislative department. City of Jackson v. Whiting [Miss.] 36 So. 611.

69. Van Cleve v. Passaic Valley Sewerage Com'rs [N. J. Law] 58 A. 571. Chapter 366, Acts 1903 of Tennessee, relating to the local government of Memphis, was not repealed by chapter 258, Acts 1903, which is a general act. Goodbar v. Memphis [Tenn.] 81 S. W. 1061.

70. Sheehan v. Scott [Cal.] 79 P. 350. See 2 Curr. L. 941, n. 15. Since constitutions as well as statutes are construed to act prospectively. The Virginia amendment forbidding incorporation by special act held not to apply to cities already incorporated. Arey v. Lindsey [Va.] 43 S. E. 889. City existing by virtue of special law not affected by a constitutional provision thereafter adopted that all cities must operate under general laws. Ex parte Helm, 143 Cal. 553, 77 P. 453.

71. State v. Huff, 105 Mo. App. 354, 79 S. W. 1010.

72. State v. Huff, 105 Mo. App. 354, 79 S. W. 1010. See 2 Curr. L. 942, n. 23.

73. State v. Huff, 105 Mo. App. 354, 79 S. W. 1010.

74. In Tennessee since the passage of the act of 1897, p. 139, c. 16, elections to incorporate towns must be held by the commissioners of registration and not by the sheriff of the county. Gotten v. Gowen [Tenn.] 80 S. W. 1087. Under the California constitution, an order of a board of supervisors defining the boundaries of a proposed town and providing for an election therein

While an appellate court may not take judicial notice of the fact that a city was incorporated under a designated act, yet it may look to the act in order to support a judgment of mandamus against the city.[78]

(§ 2) B. Consolidation, succession, and dissolution.[79]—The legislature has plenary power over the dissolution and consolidation of municipalities,[80] though their subsisting obligations be impaired.[81] Upon the dismemberment, dissolution, or consolidation of municipal corporations, it is for the legislature to apportion their obligations[82] and assets, the proceedings of commissioners appointed for that purpose being subject to review by the courts.[83] The surrender of a city charter and the incorporation under a general law do not destroy the right of a city to collect taxes and other debts due it under the old charter, nor prevent the enforcement of debts due by the city.[84] In the absence of a statute, the courts, on the grounds of public policy, will refuse to annul the charter of a municipal corporation which has stood unchallenged for a period of ten or fifteen years, when the municipality has acquired property and assumed jurisdiction over the streets and alleys of the city.[85] A consolidation does not become effective under a law if some act as a proclamation remains to be done.[86]

(§ 2) C. Classes and classification.[87]—For the purposes of legislation municipalities may be classified, and, if the classification be proper, laws may be passed affecting only a single class.[88] The fact that at the time of a particular enactment may be rescinded by the board at any time before the election has been held. Vernon v. San Bernardino County Sup'rs, 142 Cal. 513, 76 P. 253.

75. State v. Oakland [Kan.] 77 P. 694. See 2 Curr. L. 941, n. 17. Where the petition must state the population "as nearly as may be" an allegation that it states the population "as nearly as the same can be stated by your petitioners" is sufficient. Borchard v. Ventura County Sup'rs, 144 Cal. 10, 77 P. 708.

76. It is essential that there be a sufficient number of signers having the requisite qualifications, else the petition is ineffectual to inaugurate the proceedings, and forms no valid basis for any subsequent step. West End v. State [Ala.] 36 So. 423.

77. See 2 Curr. L. 941, n. 18. A statute providing for the posting of "printed" notices of the presentation of a petition for incorporation is met by posting typewritten notices. State v. Oakland [Kan.] 77 P. 694. And where the notice must be either by publication or by posting, it is sufficient, where the notice is given both ways, if it is properly given either way. Borchard v. Board of Sup'rs of Ventura County Sup'rs, 144 Cal. 10, 77 P. 708.

78. Territory v. Socorre [N. M.] 76 P. 283.

79. See 2 Curr. L. 942.

80. The Arkansas statute permitting the consolidation of municipalities within one mile of each other sustained [Acts 1903, p. 148]. City of Little Rock v. North Little Rock [Ark.] 79 S. W. 785.

81. Note: The dissolution of a municipal corporation by legislative action has been held valid, though contracts be thereby impaired. Merlwether v. Garrett, 102 U. S. 472, 26 Law. Ed. 197. This result has led to question and criticism. Ex parte Folsom, 131 F. 496. But no such criticism of the rule applies where one is changed into another corporate existence. Mobile v. Watson, 116 U. S. 289, 29 Law. Ed. 620. From note to 4 Columbia L. R. 596.

82. Carpenter v. Central Covington [Ky.] 81 S. W. 919; City of Little Rock v. North Little Rock [Ark.] 79 S. W. 785; Pepin Tp. v. Sage [C. C. A.] 129 F. 657; City Council of Denver v. Adams County Com'rs [Colo.] 77 P. 858. But in the absence of such legislation, the municipal corporations receiving the territory of the one dissolved will be severally liable for its then subsisting legal debts in the proportion that the taxable property within it falls within them respectively. Pepin Tp. v. Sage [C. C. A.] 129 F. 657. And the power of taxation to be exercised to pay such debts will extend to all the taxable property within their respective jurisdictions, and will not be restricted to the property and persons within the territory annexed. Id. Under the scheme of the Greater New York charter the liability of that city for debts of constituent municipalities is only the same as the liability of such municipalities would have been but for the consolidation. Kahrs v. New York, 90 N. Y. S. 793.

83. Washington Tp. v. Etna [N. J. Law] 58 A. 1086.

84. Milster v. Spartanburg, 68 S. C. 26, 46 S. E. 539.

85. State v. Huff, 105 Mo. App. 354, 79 S. W. 1010.

86. The town of Argo did not become merged in the city and county of Denver until the first day of December, 1902, the day the proclamation was issued. Boston & C. Smelting Co. v. Elder [Colo. App.] 77 P. 258.

87. See 2 Curr. L. 943.

88. Such laws will be general and uniform in their operation within the meaning of constitutional provisions. Gentsch v. State [Ohio] 72 N. E. 900. Empowering cities and towns within one mile of each other to applicable thereto there is only one member of the class does not militate against the validity of the legislation.[89] But an act which is limited to those cities which were within the class at the time of its passage, and which is not applicable to those which may thereafter come into the class, is unconstitutional.[90]

(§ 2) D. Remonstrances; quo warranto.[91]—The organization and existence of a municipal corporation cannot be challenged except in a direct proceeding at the instance of the state,[92] and for this purpose quo warranto is the appropriate remedy.[93] While the municipality is a necessary party,[94] an information will not lie against it in its corporate name.[95] The inhabitants of the town need not be joined.[96]

§ 3. The charter; adoption, amendment, repeal and abrogation.[97]—The charter of a municipality is its constitution.[98] A general incorporation act is the charter of all municipalities organized under it,[99] and any attempt to amend the organic law can only result successfully by a strict compliance with the law governing the subject.[1] A statute repealing the laws under which the charter of a municipality was obtained does not repeal the charters themselves.[2] The constitutions of some states, notably California and Minnesota, provide that cities of a given class may frame their own charters, subject to the constitution and general laws of the state.[3] Such a provision forbids only the adoption of charter provisions contrary to the public policy of the state as declared by general laws, or to its Penal Code,[4] and does not forbid the adoption of charter provisions as to any subject appropriate to the orderly conduct of municipal affairs, although they may consolidate is proper classification, and does not violate constitutional prohibition against incorporation by special enactment. City of Little Rock v. North Little Rock [Ark.] 79 S. W. 785.

Population is a proper basis of classification. State v. Policemen's Pension Fund Trustees [Wis.] 98 N. W. 954; State v. Tower [Mo.] 84 S. W. 10; L'Hote v. Milford, 212 Ill. 418, 72 N. E. 399. Where cities of over 10,000 inhabitants have power to raise taxes, a taxpayer, in a suit to recover such taxes, cannot raise the question whether the city has 10,000 inhabitants. City of Tyler v. Tyler Bldg. & Loan Ass'n [Tex.] 81 S. W. 2.

The essentials of a constitutional classification are stated to be these: (1) All classification must be based upon substantial distinctions which make one class really different from another; (2) the classification adopted must be germane to the purpose of the law; (3) the classification must not be based upon existing circumstances only; it must not be so constituted as to preclude addition to the numbers included within a class; (4) to whatever class a law may belong it must apply equally to each member thereof. To which may be added a fifth rule, that the characteristics of each class should be so far different from those of other classes as to reasonably suggest at least the propriety, having regard to the public good, of substantially different legislation. State v. Policemen's Pension Fund Trustees [Wis.] 98 N. W. 954. See, also, Van Cleve v. Passaic Valley Sewerage Com'rs [N. J. Law] 58 A. 571.

89. State v. Policemen's Pension Fund Trustees [Wis.] 98 N. W. 954; City of Little Rock v. North Little Rock [Ark.] 79 S. W. 785; Hager v. Gast [Ky.] 84 S. W. 556.

90. In re Fagan, 70 N. J. Law, 341, 57 A. 469.

91. See 2 Curr. L. 943.

92. Agner v. Com. [Va.] 48 S. E. 493; City of Topeka v. Dwyer [Kan.] 78 P. 417.

93. West End v. State [Ala.] 36 So. 423. See 2 Curr. L. 943, n. 45.

94. Where the sole purpose of a quo warranto proceeding to oust from office the mayor and aldermen of a city is to test the validity of the city's incorporation, the city is a necessary party, it being the real party in interest. State v. Huff, 105 Mo. App. 354, 79 S. W. 1010.

95. To sue the city in its name is to admit its existence. The suit must be against the persons who assume to act in a corporate capacity. State v. South Park, 34 Wash. 162, 75 P. 636.

96. West End v. State [Ala.] 36 So. 423.

97. See 2 Curr. L. 943.

98. Dollar Sav. Bank v. Ridge, 183 Mo. 506, 82 S. W. 56.

99. Amendatory acts become a part of such charters. L'Hote v. Milford, 212 Ill. 418, 72 N. E. 399.

1. Dollar Sav. Bank v. Ridge, 183 Mo. 506, 82 S. W. 56.

2. State v. Huff, 105 Mo. App. 354, 79 S. W. 1010.

3. Grant v. Berrisford [Minn.] 101 N. W. 940. Under a constitutional requirement that a freeholder's charter must be submitted to the voters at a general or a special election and receive an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the voters thereat, a two-thirds majority of the voters voting on the charter is not sufficient. City of Santa Rosa v. Bower, 142 Cal. 299, 75 P. 829.

4. Grant v. Berrisford [Minn.] 101 N. W. 940.

differ in details from those of existing general laws.[5] The California constitution provides that a city charter may be amended at intervals of not less than two years by proposals therefor submitted by the legislative authority of the city at a general or special election. Under this provision it is discretionary with the city's legislature to call a special election on petition for submission of amendments, or to wait until the next general election,[6] and charter amendments need not be concurred in by the mayor, or presented to him for approval, as prerequisites to their submission to the electors.[7]

Judicial notice is taken of municipal charters.[8]

§ 4. The territory. Annexations and severances; wards and divisions.[9]—The legislature having power to change the boundaries of a municipal corporation,[10] may impose conditions,[11] and determine the rights and liabilities of the respective jurisdictions,[12] and the power to fix territorial limits may be delegated.[13] Real estate situate in disconnected territory is no longer subject to taxation by the municipality.[14]

The propriety of annexation is often reposed wholly or partly in discretion.[15] Whether a city is entitled to annex unincorporated adjacent territory pursuant to an ordinance passed to that end, or whether the inhabitants of the territory are entitled to incorporate as a town, pursuant to procedure to accomplish incorporation, depends on the priority of the initial step taken by the respective sides.[16]

The procedure.[17]—In Nebraska a judgment of a court in a proceeding to detach territory from a municipal corporation will not be impeached upon appeal in the absence of a showing that the trial judge committed an important mistake of fact or made an erroneous inference of fact or of law.[18]

Division into wards.[19]

Plats.[20]—A regulation that no plat of any addition shall be approved when any part of the land is subject to liens for city taxes is not unreasonable.[21] Where an act creating a village refers to a map thereof, shown to have been the only map in existence, and incorporates the village according to such map, the village agreeing to the same, all owning property in such village are bound thereby.[22] A statute

5. The subject of city contracts for public improvements and bonds to secure performance of them and the payment of laborers and materialmen is such an one. Grant v. Berrisford [Minn.] 101 N. W. 940.

6. Const. art. 12, § 8. Lubliner v. Board of Sup'rs of San Francisco [Cal.] 78 P. 722.

7. Harrison v. Roberts [Cal.] 78 P. 537.

8. City of Poplar Bluff v. Hill, 92 Mo. App. 417.

9. See 2 Curr. L. 944.

10. Laws 1895, p. 1314, c. 617, extending the boundary of Rochester, is valid. In re Hollister, 96 App. Div. 501, 89 N. Y. S. 518.

11. It may make it a condition upon which the law shall take effect that the people or the council representing them shall assent to the proposed change. City of Little Rock v. North Little Rock [Ark.] 79 S. W. 785.

12. Pepin Tp. v. Sage [C. C. A.] 129 F. 657; Kahrs v. New York, 90 N. Y. S. 793; City Council of Denver v. Adams County Com'rs [Colo.] 77 P. 858. Under a statute that a town annexing another shall be bound for all the debts of the annexed town, a town annexing unincorporated territory assumes no obligation. Carpenter v. Central Covington [Ky.] 81 S. W. 919. The fact that a city from which territory has been detached is left to pay all debts previously incurred does not affect the validity of an act detaching a portion of such city. City of Little Rock v. Town of North Little Rock [Ark.] 79 S. W. 785.

13. See 2 Curr. L. 944, n. 71. A city council may by general law be required upon petition of voters to submit a proposition extending or restricting boundaries. City of Little Rock v. North Little Rock [Ark.] 79 S. W. 785. The decision of a common council refusing a petition for the curtailment of the territorial limits is presumptively correct, and should not be overruled by the court unless it is clearly shown that no injustice would be done to remaining portion of city. Qualey v. Brookings [S. D.] 101 N. W. 713.

14. Gillmor v. Dale, 27 Utah, 372, 75 P. 932.

15. See 2 Curr. L. 945.

16. City of Jackson v. Whiting [Miss.] 36 So. 611.

17. See 2 Curr. L. 945.

18. Michaelson v. Tilden [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1026.

19, 20. See 2 Curr. L. 945.

21. Hillman v. Seattle, 33 Wash. 14, 73 P. 791. See 2 Curr. L. 945, n. 93.

22. Wright v. Oberlin, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 509.

imposing a penalty for selling lots without first having a plat of the town or subdivision recorded should be construed to apply only to towns thereafter incorporated.[23]

§ 5. Officers and employes. A. In general.[24]—The municipal officers are those prescribed by charter, statute, or ordinance pursuant to statute, all subject to the constitution.[25] One may, however, be an officer de facto, notwithstanding the unconstitutionality of the statute under which he has been appointed.[26] That a commissioner of public works was without a sufficient engineering force did not justify his assumption of power to employ additional assistants.[27]

Who are city officers.[28]—Local boards having corporate attributes are separate corporations, and not officers of a city.[29] A policeman is an agent of the state for some purposes, but when required to enforce an ordinance of the city, is an agent of the city.[30] A street sweeper is not an officer whose salary is an incident to his office.[31]

(§ 5) B. Election or appointment.[32]—The manner of choosing officers is within the legislative province,[33] unless prescribed by the constitution.[34] The affirmative vote of a majority of a quorum is sufficient to elect.[35] But a blank ballot cannot be considered in summing up a total vote, a majority of which a candidate must receive to be elected.[36] Where the provisions of a city code contain authority for the election of a police captain, the adoption of an ordinance is an unnecessary formality.[37]

Though a bond be required, failure to file his bond within the specified time does not deprive an officer of his right to the office.[38] The bond of a municipal officer is a valid obligation as against the official and his surety, notwithstanding that it is not approved by the mayor or city attorney.[39]

(§ 5) C. Term of office or employment. Abolishment of position.[40]—When not within any constitutional prohibition,[41] the legislature may at will abolish, limit or extend the term of any municipal office created by it.[42] An administrative

23. Welborn v. Muller [Miss.] 36 So. 544.

24. Consult the general law in topic Officers and Public Employes, 2 Curr. L. 1069.

25. See 2 Curr. L. 949.

26. Watson v. McGrath [La.] 36 So. 204.

27. Drumheller v. Mt. Vernon, 93 App. Div. 596, 88 N. Y. S. 536.

28. See 2 Curr. L. 948.

29. The Detroit board of education is of legislative creation, performing state functions, and therefore not liable, in the absence of statute, for the acts of its agents or servants. Whitehead v. Board of Education [Mich.] 11 Det. Leg. N. 923. The trustees of the Carnegie Library of Atlanta, some of whom were selected by the mayor and council of Atlanta, and others by the library association, held not to be authorized agents of the city empowered to contract for a library building. Miles v. Atlanta, 120 Ga. 972, 48 S. E. 355.

30. Kittredge v. Cincinnati, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 6.

31. Downs v. New York, 173 N. Y. 651, 66 N. E. 1107, afg. 75 App. Div. 423, 78 N. Y. S. 442.

32. See 2 Curr. L. 948.

33. See 2 Curr. L. 948, n. 42. A city of the third class in Missouri may appoint a city engineer. Weesner v. Central Nat. Bank, 106 Mo. App. 668, 80 S. W. 319.

34. See 2 Curr. L. 948, n. 43. Under the Texas constitution the governor does not have authority, even though authorized by the legislature, to appoint purely local officers. Ex parte Levine [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 1206. In Nebraska the legislature may, by statute, confer upon the governor the power to appoint the board of fire and police commissioners for cities of the first class. State v. Nolan [Neb.] 98 N. W. 657.

35. In re Brearton, 44 Misc. 247, 89 N. Y. S. 893.

36. Murdoch v. Strange [Md.] 57 A. 628.

37. A resolution is sufficient. Huey v. Jones, 140 Ala. 479, 37 So. 193. See 2 Curr. L. 951, n. 78.

38. Failure to file because of pending judicial decision. Murdoch v. Strange [Md.] 57 A. 628. See 2 Curr. L. 950, n. 66.

39. City of Oakland v. Snow [Cal.] 78 P. 1060.

40. See 2 Curr. L. 951.

41. Under the Texas constitution, limiting the terms of all officers not otherwise fixed to two years, a policeman holds for that term subject to removal for cause. City of Houston v. Estes [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 848.

42. Reduction of term on grant of new charter. Attorney General v. Shekell [Mich.] 101 N. W. 525. See, also, State v. Board of Trustees of Policemen's Pension Fund [Wis.] 98 N. W. 954.

department created by ordinance could not survive as a bureau entrusted with like duties created by an amended charter which abolished the department.[43] The term of office is not limited to the term of the appointing power.[44] The tender and acceptance of an unqualified resignation terminates the term of office.[45]

(§ 5) D. Vacancies and hold-overs.[46]

(§ 5) E. Transfers on amendment or adoption of new charter.[47]—On the adoption of the charter of Greater New York, the office of water registrar of the former city of Brooklyn was abolished;[48] but a teacher in the schools of Brooklyn was continued in the same position when the city in question became a part of the city of New York, until removed for cause.[49] Under a statute changing the composition of common councils of cities of a given class, the council in existence at the passage of the act continued until the election of its succeeding members.[50]

(§ 5) F. Removal, reductions and reinstatement.[51]—The power to remove municipal officers is statutory.[52] As a rule ministerial agents or officers employed durante bene placito are removable at will.[53] But if the removal be for cause the act of removal is judicial,[54] and the person involved is entitled to a hearing.[55] Removal by police commissioner, the proofs having been taken before his deputy, is irregular.[56] Incompetency,[57] neglect of duty,[58] or misconduct,[59] are sufficient grounds for removal. Where a reclassification involves a quasi-judicial determination, mandamus will not lie to compel it.[60] A suspension being made after the term of office expired by limitation, it is immaterial that the suspension was not in accordance with city charter.[61] In Kentucky, peace officers being an arm of the state cannot be suspended a given number of days in each month in order to keep within an appropriation.[62]

Reinstatement.[63]—A relator is not entitled to reinstatement because of error in the notice of his suspension, his rights having been preserved in a communication

43. Inspection of buildings. Cutshaw v. Denver [Colo. App.] 75 P. 22.

44. Supervising architect. Withers v. New York, 92 App. Div. 147, 86 N. Y. S. 1105.

45. A subsequent withdrawal of the resignation, though with consent, does not operate to reinstate the officer. State v. Grace [Tenn.] 82 S. W. 485. And provisions that an officer shall hold until his successor is selected and qualified do not prevent such resignation from becoming effective. Id.

46, 47. See 2 Curr. L. 952.

48. People v. Oakley, 93 App. Div. 535, 87 N. Y. S. 856.

49. By force of Laws 1897, pp. 403, 404, c. 378, §§ 1114, 1117. Bogert v. Board of Education, 44 Misc. 10, 89 N. Y. S. 737.

50. Hilgert v. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. [Mo. App.] 81 S. W. 496.

51. See 2 Curr. L. 952.

52. See 2 Curr. L. 952, n. 2. The legislature may grant to a city council the right to remove any city officer, whether elected or appointed. Christy v. Kingfisher [Okl.] 76 P. 135. Where sewer commissioners have authority in general terms to appoint a supervising engineer, the power of removal exists unless restrained by some provision of law. Mack v. New York, 82 App. Div. 637, 80 N. Y. S. 1139, afg. without opinion 37 Misc. 371, 75 N. Y. S. 809.

53. Carling v. Jersey City [N. J. Law] 58 A. 395. City assessor in cities of the third class in Kentucky may be removed at pleasure. Rogers v. Congleton [Ky.] 84 S. W. 521.

54. It is the manner in which the officer's removal is accomplished, and not the nature of his right, which establishes the character of the act. Christy v. Kingfisher [Okl.] 76 P. 135. The determination of the removing officer or board, when judicial, will not be controlled by mandamus. Riggins v. Richards [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 84.

55. Christy v. Kingfisher [Okl.] 76 P. 135. Discharge from police force without opportunity to be heard. City of Chicago v. People, 210 Ill. 84, 71 N. E. 816.

56. People v. Partridge, 93 App. Div. 473, 87 N. Y. S. 680.

57. See 2 Curr. L. 953, n. 8.

58. See 2 Curr. L. 953, n. 9. A member of New York police force absent without leave for five consecutive days ceases to be such and is not entitled either to trial or notice of dismissal. People v. York, 174 N. Y. 610, 66 N. E. 1114, afg. without written opinion 73 App. Div. 445, 77 N. Y. S. 43.

59. Inexcusable refusal of a mayor to issue or sign check for payment of official's salary is such misconduct as will authorize his removal under a statute providing for removal for misconduct. Riggins v. Richards [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 84.

60. Dill v. Wheeler, 91 N. Y. S. 686.

61. City of Houston v. Albers [Tex. Civ. App.] 73 S. W. 1084.

62. City of Louisville v. Corley, 25 Ky. L. R. 2174, 80 S. W. 203.

63. See 2 Curr. L. 955.

to the civil service commission in pursuance of which he was appointed to the first vacancy thereafter occurring.[64]

(§ 5) G. Compensation.[65]—A municipality being an arm of the state, its officers derive their compensation by virtue of law and not contract.[66] Unless restrained by constitutional provisions,[67] the power authorized to fix the compensation[68] may, even during the term of an incumbent,[69] alter or amend his future compensation.[70] Salaries of mere employes are subject to reductions,[71] but where an officer has been unlawfully discharged and reinstated, he is entitled to his salary during the interim.[72] Where the offices of auditor and assessor were combined, the declaration of the incumbent that he intended to claim commissions on the sums collected as assessor did not confer on him a right thereto,[73] nor did the fact that he previously retained such commissions,[74] nor that some of the city officials had approved of his act or consented thereto,[75] nor the fact that it was a matter of common notoriety.[76] Additional compensation for unanticipated or extraonerous services may be granted.[77] Whether an architect's compensation was fixed at 5 per cent. of the estimated cost of the building was a question for the jury.[78] One who by mandamus has compelled the payment of the principal of his salary cannot thereafter recover the interest thereon.[79] Under the Greater New York charter an action to recover a teacher's salary was properly against the board of education and not against the city.[80] It is against public policy to subject the salaries of public officers and employes to garnishee or trustee process.[81]

(§ 5) H. Pensions and reliefs.[82]—In some municipalities policemen and firemen may, after expiration of their term, or when incapacitated from injuries received in the service, be retired on a pension,[83] or assigned to nonactive duties;[84] in some instances the pension extends to the benefit of the widow.[85] To entitle

64. People v. Monroe, 90 N. Y. S. 907.

65. See 2 Curr. L. 955.

66. City of Louisville v. Gorley, 25 Ky. L. R. 2174, 80 S. W. 203.

67. Laws 1894, p. 1141, c. 543, making the city of New York liable for the unpaid salary of a de jure officer, is unconstitutional. Stemmler v. New York [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 581.

68. Salaries of inspector and assistant inspector of Brooklyn fire department are fixed by board of estimate and not by fire commissioners. Flynn v. New York, 174 N. Y. 521, 66 N. E. 1109, afg. without written opinion 69 App. Div. 433, 75 N. Y. S. 15. Likewise salaries of uniformed members of the department. People v. Scannell, 171 N. Y. 690, 64 N. E. 1124, afg. without opinion 71 App. Div. 491, 75 N. Y. S. 904.

69. Where a city ordinance increasing the salary of an official was passed after the election of the official, but before his qualification, the increase was not during the term of office. Riggins v. Richards [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 84.

70. No vested right to salary. State v. Policemen's Pension Fund Trustees [Wis.] 98 N. W. 954. The compensation of officers or agents employed durante bene placito may, with the consent of such officer, be lawfully altered or changed at any time. Carling v. Jersey City [N. J. Law] 58 A. 395.

71. See 2 Curr. L. 957, n. 58. Where the reduction of a salary rested with a deputy commissioner, the fact that the commissioner directed the reduction is immaterial, the act being that of the deputy. Hartmann v. New York, 44 Misc. 272, 89 N. Y. S. 912.

72. City of Houston v. Estes [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 848; City of Chicago v. People, 210 Ill. 84, 71 N. E. 816. The provision the New York law (Laws 1904, p. 1513, c. 637), that where a veteran has been unlawfully removed and restored his compensation shall date as though no removal had been made, is constitutional. People v. Grout, 44 Misc. 526, 90 N. Y. S. 122.

73, 74, 75, 76. City of Oakland v. Snow [Cal.] 78 P. 1060.

77. Congdon v. Nashua, 72 N. H. 468, 57 A. 686.

78. Withers v. New York, 92 App. Div. 147, 86 N. Y. S. 1105.

79. Gordon v. Omaha [Neb.] 99 N. W. 242.

80. Gunnison v. Board of Education of New York, 80 App. Div. 480, 81 N. Y. S. 181.

81. But the legislature has power to determine its own policy in this regard. Ruperich v. Baeher, 142 Cal. 190, 75 P. 782.

82. See 2 Curr. L. 957.

83. See 2 Curr. L. 957, n. 62. A policeman by reason of the holding of his office after the passage of an act providing for such a pension does not thereby acquire a vested right to such pension which cannot be affected by subsequent legislative enactment. State v. Policemen's Pension Fund Trustees [Wis.] 98 N. W. 954. Nor does the fact that the act provides for the contribution to the pension fund of a certain sum per month from the officer's salary create such a vested right. Id.

84. See 2 Curr. L. 957, n. 63.

85. State v. Policemen's Pension Fund Trustees [Wis.] 98 N. W. 954.

the beneficiary to recover, decedent must at his death have been a member of the force.[86]

§ 6. Municipal records and their custody and examination.[87]—Where it appears that a person claiming office has received a certificate of election or appointment from the proper person, he is entitled to an order for the possession of the books and papers pertaining to that office.[88]

§ 7. Authority and power of municipality. A. Legislative control.[89]—Unless specially restricted, a municipal corporation possesses the general powers of a municipality at common law.[90] But the right to have all matters of local concern intrusted to municipal corporations is not inherent.[91] Within constitutional limits,[92] the people of a state, acting through the general legislature, may delegate to municipalities,[93] or to any particular boards thereof,[94] such portions of political power as they may deem expedient, may withhold other powers,[95] and may withdraw or resume the whole or any part of that which has been delegated.[96] But the legislature, while free to grant such powers and impose such duties as it will, may not relieve the municipality of the liability to be sued for a breach of duty,[97] nor may it compel a municipality or its inhabitants by taxation to establish a work of purely local concern.[98] For the preservation of the public health, however, the state may exercise compulsory authority, and may enforce performance of local duties either by employing local officers or through agents of its own appointment.[99] The legislature is powerless to authorize the expenditure of public funds by a municipal subdivision of the state, except for a public purpose.[1]

86. Price v. St. Louis Police Relief Ass'n, 90 Mo. App. 219.

87. See 2 Curr. L. 964. See, also, post, § 8C.

88. A certificate is not essential in every instance; it is only necessary to establish a prima facie title to office. In re Brearton, 44 Misc. 247, 89 N. Y. S. 893.

89. See 2 Curr. L. 946.

90. Under such common law powers it may authorize and pay for special legal services. City of Moorhead v. Murphy [Minn.] 102 N. W. 219.

91. Van Cleve v. Passaic Valley Sewerage Com'rs [N. J. Law] 58 A. 571. The power to impose license taxes is not inherent in municipal corporations, and will never be held to exist unless it has been conferred by the state either in express terms or by necessary implication. Commissioners of Cambridge v. Cambridge Water Co. [Md.] 58 A. 442.

92. The general assembly has no power to create a city court and provide for a direct writ of error therefrom to the supreme court in any municipality other than an incorporated city. White v. State, 121 Ga. 592, 49 S. E. 715. The constitutional prohibition of special legislation is absolute with respect to that which regulates the internal affairs of municipalities. But the word "internal" here means governmentally, and not territorially, internal. Van Cleve v. Passaic Valley Sewerage Com'rs [N. J. Law] 58 A. 571. The general assembly of Louisiana is without authority to choose officers to administer the affairs of the city of New Orleans or to control the appropriation of its revenues. Act No. 37, of 1902, is unconstitutional. Board of Com'rs of Jackson Square v. New Orleans, 112 La. 957, 36 So. 817. The California provisions prohibiting the legislature from creating municipalities by special laws and giving to certain cities the right to frame charters for their own government, which if approved by the legislature shall become the organic act of such cities, withdrew from the senate and assembly the legislative authority of the state with reference to municipal government for such cities until after the proposed charter was prepared for submission, and then limited such authority to the mere approval or rejection of the charter formulated. Sheehan v. Scott [Cal.] 79 P. 350.

93. See 2 Curr. L. 946, n. 1.

94. Van Cleve v. Passaic Valley Sewerage Com'rs [N. J. Law] 58 A. 571. Administration of banks of Mississippi river in city of New Orleans. Board of Com'rs for Port of New Orleans v. New Orleans & S. F. R. Co., 112 La. 1011, 36 So. 837.

95. Van Cleve v. Passaic Valley Sewerage Com'rs [N. J. Law] 58 A. 571.

96. Van Cleve v. Passaic Valley Sewerage Com'rs [N. J. Law] 58 A. 571. See 2 Curr. L. 946, n. 3.

97. Williams v. Port Chester, 97 App. Div. 84, 89 N. Y. S. 671.

98. Van Cleve v. Passaic Valley Sewerage Com'rs [N. J. Law] 58 A. 571. But it is within the power of the legislature to create special taxing districts and to charge the cost of local improvements in whole or in part upon the property in said districts by special assessments, either according to valuation, superficial area or frontage. Kettle v. Dallas [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 874; Meier v. St. Louis, 180 Mo. 391, 79 S. W. 955.

99. Construction of trunk sewers by state board. Van Cleve v. Passaic Valley Sewerage Com'rs [N. J. Law] 58 A. 571.

1. The reimbursement by the city coun-

Statutes affecting municipal corporations should be general,[2] and when general clauses are followed by special clauses, the latter prevail.[3] One dealing with the officers of a municipality is bound at his peril to take notice of the limitations upon their power and authority.[4]

(§ 7) B. Express, implied, customary and prescriptive powers.[5]—Incorporated cities and towns have only the following powers: Those granted in express words;[6] those necessarily implied or incident to the powers expressly granted;[7] those essential to the declared objects and purposes of the corporation, not simply convenient, but indispensable.[8] Grants of power are strictly construed, so as not to extend them beyond the purpose of the legislature.[9] Yet the construction must not be so strict or technical as to defeat the evident objects and purposes of their creation.[10] While power may be granted to municipal corporations to acquire water[11] or lighting[12] plants for municipal purposes, a city or town has no power to become a stockholder in a waterworks or other corporation, or to borrow money by cil of a defeated candidate for a public office for expenses incurred in conducting an election contest is an expenditure of public funds for a private purpose and therefore illegal. Castner v. Minneapolis, 92 Minn. 84, 99 N. W. 361.

2. To make the law general it is not necessary that it should operate upon all cities and towns of the state. It is sufficient if it applies to all cities and towns within the class named in the statute. City of Little Rock v. North Little Rock [Ark.] 79 S. W. 785.

3. City of St. Louis v. Kaime & Bro. Real Estate Co., 180 Mo. 309, 79 S. W. 140. See 2 Curr. L. 946, n. 10. Removal of city marshal. Christy v. Kingfisher [Okl.] 76 P. 135. Provisions in a charter as to closing saloons not abrogative of similar provisions of the state law. Moore v. Kelley [Mich.] 98 N. W. 989.

4. Bennett v. Mt. Vernon [Iowa] 100 N. W. 349; Citizens' Bank v. Spencer [Iowa] 101 N. W. 643; Lowery v. Pekin, 210 Ill. 575, 71 N. E. 626.

5. See 2 Curr. L. 946.

6. Voss v. Waterloo Water Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 208. Fourth class cities in Washington may grant franchises to erect and maintain electric light and power plants. State v. Taylor [Wash.] 79 P. 286. The power of a municipal corporation to grant license for the sale of spirituous liquors within its incorporate limits must be denied from its charter, and unless such power is therein clearly conferred, it does not exist. Walker v. McNelly, 121 Ga. 114, 48 S. E. 718.

7. Voss v. Waterloo Water Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 208. The power to provide lights for streets, public buildings and places implies the power to erect a plant for the purpose (Fawcett v. Mt. Airy, 134 N. C. 125, 45 S. E. 1029), or to enter into a contract for the purchase of such light. 25-year contract sustained (Davenport Gas & Elec. Co. v. Davenport [Iowa] 98 N. W. 892). Power to establish fire department, and equip and run the same includes power to purchase coal and employ help to transport same. Manske v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 101 N. W. 377. A charter provision that a city may hold and convey real property authorizes the giving a warranty deed. Abbott v. Galveston [Tex.] 79 S. W. 1064.

8. Voss v. Waterloo Water Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 208; City of St. Louis v. Kaime & Bro. Real Estate Co., 180 Mo. 309, 79 S. W. 140. See 2 Curr. L. 946, n. 7. In Smith v. Hightstown [N. J. Law] 57 A. 901, it is said that the power to license inns and taverns is not one of the necessary powers of boroughs, but that it is ordinarily granted to municipalities of the higher grade.

9. State v. Allen, 183 Mo. 283, 82 S. W. 103. See 2 Curr. L. 946, n. 8. Doubtful claims of power, or any doubt or ambiguity in the terms used by the legislature are resolved against the corporation. Voss v. Waterloo Water Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 208; City of St. Louis v. Kaime & Bro. Real Estate Co., 180 Mo. 309, 79 S. W. 140.

10. Ordinance submitting proposition to buy an existing plant and for an addition thereto sustained. State v. Allen, 183 Mo. 283, 82 S. W. 103.

11. See 2 Curr. L. 946, n. 4. Any municipal corporation in the Territory of Oklahoma, having a population of not less than 1,000 persons, is authorized, by act of congress to call an election to issue bonds for waterworks. Territory v. Whitehall, 13 Okl. 534, 76 P. 148. That city has power to contract for a water supply and to include in the contract an option to purchase the plant of the water company. Livermore v. Millville [N. J. Law] 59 A. 217.

NOTE. "Establishment and regulation of municipal water supply:" Extensive note 61 L. R. A. 33, and therein see municipal power, pp. 34, 44, 61; bonding and taxation, pp. 49-52; use of highways, p. 76; control of rates, pp. 99-104; rights and duties of municipality, pp. 116-119.

12. Missouri Rev. St. 1899, § 6275, granting power to cities to purchase or erect and maintain electric lighting plants and authorizing the acquisition of property for the purpose by purchase or exercise of the right of eminent domain, is not violative of a constitutional provision against taking private property for public use. State v. Allen, 178 Mo. 555, 77 S. W. 868. An act allowing a municipality to set up a lighting plant, and providing for a commission to adjudicate upon the value of any existing plant which its owners may elect to sell to the city, is not unconstitutional. Norwich Gas & Elec. Co. v. Norwich, 76 Conn. 565, 57 A. 746.

issuing bonds to pay for such stock, unless expressly authorized.[13] In absence of prohibitive charter provisions, a municipality has power to reimburse a police officer for expenses and attorney's fees incurred in the defense of an action for false imprisonment.[14]

Extraterritorial powers.[15]—A municipal court may not try an offender for offense committed outside of the city.[16]

The power to legislate.[17]—The power to legislate upon local matters must be exercised consistently with general laws and fundamental rights.[18]

(§ 7) C. Delegation of powers.[19]—Functions or powers involving the exercise of judgment or discretion granted to legislative or administrative bodies cannot be delegated to an individual or committee thereof.[20] Absolute, fixed, and purely ministerial functions, however, may be delegated,[21] and the principle that delegated power may not be delegated is not violated where the delegation is expressly authorized.[22] In cases of the delegation of a public authority to a committee, the authority conferred, if ministerial in character, may be exercised and performed by a majority of the whole number.[23] But if the act to be done requires the exercise of discretion and judgment, the duty cannot be discharged by a majority unless upon notice to the minority and opportunity to be present.[24]

(§ 7) D. Exercise of powers.[25]—Where the mode of exercise of an express power is prescribed, it must be followed.[26] If the manner of exercise is not prescribed, the power must be exerted in a manner that will not create a nuisance or cause injury.[27] When a city or village council has acted, the presumption is that it has acted lawfully, and had before it sufficient facts to warrant it in acting.[28]

13. Voss v. Waterloo Water Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 208.

14. City of Moorhead v. Murphy [Minn.] 102 N. W. 219.

15. See 2 Curr. L. 946.

16. Selling liquor within two miles of city. Agner v. Com. [Va.] 48 S. E. 493.

17. See 2 Curr. L. 946.

18. See 2 Curr. L. 947. A city in its corporate capacity, without special charter privileges, is not invested, either by statutory provisions or by the exercise of the authority necessarily incident to the discharge of its corporate rights and the performance of its duties, with the power to lay out and construct drains and sewers in such a manner as to impose any legal liability upon the city for a nuisance created thereby. Atwood v. Biddeford [Me.] 58 A. 417.

19. See 2 Curr. L. 947.

20. See 2 Curr. L. 947. But authority to delegate to a board appointed for the purpose a discretion in granting permits or licenses has been sustained. Fischer v. St. Louis, 194 U. S. 361, 48 Law. Ed. 1018; Schefe v. St. Louis, 194 U. S. 373, 48 Law. Ed. 1024. The board of trustees of a city may not by ordinance or otherwise divest itself for any length of time of legislative and discretionary powers vested in it by the general law. Submission of proposed public works to voters. Thompson v. Board of Trustees of Alameda, 144 Cal. 281, 77 P. 951. The purpose for which any municipal indebtedness is to be increased, whether within or above the constitutional limit, is for the municipal authorities to whom the electors have delegated the power to act for them. Major v. Aldan Borough, 209 Pa. 247, 58 A. 496. That city appointed two commissioners and water company a like number, whose determination as to value the city might accept or reject, in exercising an option to purchase the company's water plant, did not amount to a delegation of power. Livermore v. Millville [N. J. Law] 59 A. 217. Matters requiring exercise of discretion are legislative in character and cannot be delegated to under officers. Draper v. Fall River, 185 Mass. 142, 69 N. E. 1068.

21. See 2 Curr. L. 947. The park department of the city of Buffalo may delegate the actual performance of the work of reenforcing and diverting sewers passing through a public square to the department of public works of said city. Locke v. Buffalo, 97 App. Div. 483, 90 N. Y. S. 550. Directing a city engineer to fix the grade of a sewer does not constitute a delegation of power. Rich v. Woods [Ky.] 82 S. W. 578. The power to vacate streets may be delegated to the municipal corporation. Marietta Chair Co. v. Henderson, 121 Ga. 399, 49 S. E. 312.

22. Statute authorizing common council to call upon a court to appoint excise board. Schwarz v. Dover, 70 N. J. Law, 502, 57 A. 394.

23. Kavanaugh v. Wausau, 120 Wis. 611, 98 N. W. 550.

24. The selection and purchase of a horse is such a duty. Kavanaugh v. Wausau, 120 Wis. 611, 98 N. W. 550.

25. See 2 Curr. L. 947.

26. See 2 Curr. L. 947, n. 18.

27. See 2 Curr. L. 947, n. 19. Construction of sewer. Rand Lumber Co. v. Burlington, 122 Iowa, 203, 97 N. W. 1096. Establishing grades. Gallaher v. Jefferson [Iowa] 101 N. W. 124. The court is not permitted to consider whether the determination to grade

(§ 7) E. Mandatory and directory.[29]—The rules for determination of this question pertain to the title statutes.[30] Several instances of statutory provisions declared to be mandatory are given in the notes.[31]

(§ 7) F. Judicial control over exercise of powers.[32]—The power of the court to restrain city councils depends on the character of the business they are transacting. When they are considering matters of a purely legislative character, the court has no power to restrain them.[33] When their proposed action relates to the ordinary business affairs of the city, they are subject to the control of the court in the same way and to the same extent as other administrative officers or bodies.[34] The general principle that legislative acts within the power of the legislative body to pass are not subject to revision or control by the courts on the ground of inexpediency, injustice or impropriety applies to municipal legislatures as well.[35] But when there is a question of fraud[36] or want of power,[37] or where the power or discretion is being manifestly abused to the injury or oppression of the citizen,[38] the rule has no application.[39] A city council is a unit; it cannot be divided into parts one of which may be restrained as to acts pertaining to it as a whole.[39a] Whether devoting a park to baseball purposes is a reasonable use of the premises, and whether the erection of structures incident to such use would be any reasonable interference with the right of the public to use the park, are questions of fact.[40]

§ 8. Legislative functions of municipalities and their exercise. A. Nature and extent of legislative power.[41]—Ordinances which have for their object the car-any particular street is reasonable or unreasonable, but it does have power to say that the city do the work in a manner to avoid unnecessary injury to private property. Kemp v. Des Moines [Iowa] 101 N. W. 474.

28. This presumption is in the nature of evidence, and until overcome by other evidence it stands as proof of the fact in question. Dalrymple v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 185.

29. See 2 Curr. L. 947.

30. See Statutes, 2 Curr. L. 1707.

31. See 2 Curr. L. 947, n. 20. Statute authorizing ordinances to prevent animals running at large. Huey v. Waldrop [Ala.] 37 So. 380. Requirement of Rochester charter that warrant for the collection of taxes shall be issued under the hand of the mayor and the seal of the city. City of Rochester v. Bloss, 173 N. Y. 646, 66 N. E. 1105, afg. 77 App. Div. 28, 79 N. Y. S. 236. The provision of the San Francisco charter (art. 16, § 29), that when the supervisors shall determine that the public interest requires the acquisition of any land, the cost of which in addition to other expenses will exceed the revenue provided for in any one year, they must by ordinance submit a proposition to incur a bonded indebtedness for such purpose to the electors at a special election to be held for that purpose, is mandatory. Law v. San Francisco, 144 Cal. 384, 77 P. 1014. Act providing for the publication of ordinances before time of taking effect. Carpenter v. Yeadon Borough, 208 Pa. 396, 57 A. 837.

32. See 2 Curr. L. 947.

33. Sherburne v. Portsmouth, 72 N. H. 539, 58 A. 38; Downing v. Des Moines [Iowa] 99 N. W. 1066. The authority of a city to establish the grade of sidewalks is legislative in character, and when exercised within prescribed limits cannot be controlled. Kemp v. Des Moines [Iowa] 101 N. W. 474. Levy of money to meet current expenses. Ward v. Piper [Kan.] 77 P. 699. It is for city authorities to determine to what extent improvements shall be made and the time of making thereof. Destruction of shade trees in construction of grade. Gallaher v. Jefferson [Iowa] 101 N. W. 124. Where the legislature, with the consent of a city, has provided for the erection of a monument in a certain square, the court may not interfere on the ground that the square is not a suitable place. Locke v. Buffalo, 97 App. Div. 483, 90 N. Y. S. 550.

34. The proposed action must be illegal and complainant must bring himself within one of the heads of equitable relief. Sherburne v. Portsmouth, 72 N. H. 539, 58 A. 38.

35. Tilly v. Mitchell & Lewis Co. [Wis.] 98 N. W. 969. Action of a city council in denying petition of residents to curtail boundaries is presumptively correct, and should not be controlled by court in absence of showing of great injustice. Qualey v. Brookings [S. D.] 101 N. W. 713.

36. Fraud found not to exist. Carling v. Jersey City [N. J. Law] 58 A. 395.

37. A city council has no right to authorize a private party to bridge over a portion of a street not vacated, leaving merely a tunnel for the passage of vehicles and pedestrians. Tilly v. Mitchell & Lewis Co. [Wis.] 98 N. W. 969.

38. Change in terms of employment. Carling v. Jersey City [N. J. Law] 58 A. 395.

39. Gallaher v. Jefferson [Iowa] 101 N. W. 124.

39a. Wolf v. Hope, 210 Ill. 50, 70 N. E. 1082.

40. Sherburne v. Portsmouth, 72 N. H. 539, 58 A. 38.

41. See 2 Curr. L. 957.

rying into effect of the charter powers granted to a city are legislative in character.[42]

Power to legislate having been conferred and the method of its exercise not prescribed, ordinances passed in pursuance thereof must be in harmony with state statutes,[43] and they must be reasonable, or courts will set them aside.[44] This is upon the presumption that the legislature did not intend by the general terms of the statute to authorize the making of such an ordinance.[45] Extraneous facts showing the motives for passing an ordinance cannot be inquired into.[46] In respect to all matters legislative in character, a municipality has power to act only through the medium of an ordinance,[47] whereas all acts that are done in a ministerial capacity and for a temporary purpose may be put in the form of resolutions.[48] The necessity for an improvement may be declared and an order therefor made in the same resolution.[49]

(§ 8) B. Meetings, votes, rules and procedure.[50]—When municipal officers or boards are called upon to perform acts requiring discretion or judgment in administering public affairs, they can only act at authorized meetings duly held,[51] and authority to call special sessions does not emanate from ordinance; it springs from charter provision.[52] To convene and transact business a legal quorum must be present,[53] and less than a quorum have no power to adjourn,[54] nor may a presiding officer arbitrarily declare an adjournment.[55] A statutory requirement that

42. Village of London Mills v. White, 208 Ill. 289, 70 N. E. 313. The granting of a franchise to use the streets, alleys and public places of a municipality to erect poles for lighting or lay pipes for gas, water or heat, is the exercise of a legislative power. Meyer v. Boonville, 162 Ind. 165, 70 N. E. 146. But when the municipality enters into a contract with a party having such franchise to furnish it with such utilities, it exercises a business and not a legislative power. Id. The subject of contractors' bonds, to secure the performance of contracts with a city, and the payment of laborers and materialmen, including the contents of the bonds and conditions and limitations as to their enforcement, is germane to the subject of municipal legislation. Grant v. Berrisford [Minn.] 101 N. W. 940.

43. Under the Kentucky constitution, an ordinance which fixes the penalty for violation thereof at less than that imposed by the state statute is invalid. Penalty for unlawful sale of intoxicating liquor. Kehr v. Com. [Ky.] 83 S. W. 633.

44. Paving ordinance. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Chicago, 208 Ill. 187, 70 N. E. 234. See 2 Curr. L. 958, n. 73. An ordinance forbidding public meetings on streets without consent of municipal authorities not void for unreasonableness (Fitts v. Atlanta, 121 Ga. 567, 49 S. E. 793), nor is an ordinance that no plat of any addition to city shall be approved when any part of the land is subject to lien for taxes (Hillman v. Seattle, 33 Wash. 14, 73 P. 791). But an ordinance requiring that signal to be given to an approaching locomotive engine that street crossing is free from danger must be given by a member of the crew operating such engine is unreasonable. Central R. Co. v. Elizabeth, 70 N. J. Law, 578, 57 A. 404.

45. Weigand v. District of Columbia, 22 App. D. C. 559.

46. Tilly v. Mitchell & Lewis Co. [Wis.] 98 N. W. 969. See 2 Curr. L. 958, n. 82.

47. Taking private property for public use. Martin v. Oskaloosa [Iowa] 99 N. W. 557. Where the provisions of a city code contain authority for the election of a captain of police, the enactment of an additional ordinance is unnecessary. Huey v. Jones, 140 Ala. 479, 37 So. 193.

48. Ordering repair of pavement. Shelby v. Burlington [Iowa] 101 N. W. 101. The granting of the right to use streets and alleys by village authorities otherwise than by ordinance is not illegal. Village of London Mills v. Fairview-London Tel. Circuit, 105 Ill. App. 146. Appropriations may be made by resolution under the New Jersey statute relating to cities governed by the Act of 1897, p. 46. Fox v. Clark [N. J. Law] 59 A. 224. It is not necessary to the validity of notes given to evidence an existing indebtedness that they should have been authorized by ordinance (City of Tyler v. Jester & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 74 S. W. 359), and a contract between a city and water company for water supply is valid, though made by resolution instead of ordinance (Ogden City v. Bear Lake & River Waterworks & Irr. Co. [Utah] 76 P. 1069).

49. Pennsylvania Co. v. Cole, 132 F. 668.

50. See 2 Curr. L. 958.

51. Kleimenhagen v. Dixon [Wis.] 100 N. W. 826.

52. Publication of mayor's proclamation calling special session. Dollar Sav. Bank v. Ridge, 183 Mo. 506, 82 S. W. 56. An ordinance unanimously passed at a special meeting of a council is not rendered void by one member being absent and not having been notified of the meeting. Council composed of seven members. State v. Bowers, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 345.

53. See 2 Curr. L. 958, n. 86.

54. Pennsylvania Co. v. Cole, 132 F. 668.

55. Whether the disorder is so great that appointments by a council shall be by a viva voce vote is complied with when a nomination is made and each member announces his vote for or against it by his voice.[56] While a city council is not bound by parliamentary law as recognized and applied in the state legislature or in congress,[57] it is nevertheless a legislative body, and its legislative acts, if valid, must be disclosed in a manner consistent with legislative procedure.[58] Where certain of the councilmen leave the chamber, the remainder may reorganize and proceed to business.[59] The fact that a temporary clerk was not sworn does not render proceedings void.[60]

(§ 8) C. Records and journals.[61]—Judicial acts of boards which may result in taking for public use private property must be done with due formality and entered of record.[62] The record by presumption of law shows the full proceedings,[63] and parol evidence of the proceedings of a municipal body required to be made matters of record is not admissible to supply, extend, modify or contradict the record.[64]

(§ 8) D. Titles and ordaining clauses.[65]—Statutes frequently provide that no ordinance shall contain more than one object which shall be clearly expressed in its title.[66] If a title, when taken by itself, relates to a unified subject or object, it is single in its subject, however much such unified subject is capable of division.[67] Such a provision has been held to be directory merely.[68] An ordinance is not rendered invalid by the fact that an excepting proviso is found in the enact-the assembly ceases to be a deliberative body, and whether the chairman is unable to preserve order, are questions of fact. Attorney General v. Remick [N. H.] 58 A. 871.

56. In re Brearton, 44 Misc. 247, 89 N. Y. S. 893.

57. The nature and extent of the authority of a mayor as the presiding officer of the council in the absence of rules of procedure adopted by the council and of statutory provisions upon the subject can only be determined by such principles of parliamentary usage as have been generally adopted or preserved in deliberative assemblies. Attorney General v. Remick [N. H.] 58 A. 871.

58, 59, 60. Attorney General v. Remick [N. H.] 58 A. 871.

61. See 2 Curr. L. 959.

62. Kidson v. Bangor [Me.] 58 A. 900. Resolutions of a council ordering the widening of a road do not prove acquisition of title in absence of evidence that any proceedings were taken under the resolution. Mott v. Eno, 97 App. Div. 580, 90 N. Y. S. 608.

63. Mott v. Eno, 97 App. Div. 580, 90 N. Y. S. 608. The record of a vote of a city council appointing an incumbent to office does not import a verity, so as to preclude attack in a proceeding by quo warranto on behalf of another candidate for such office to try the incumbent's title thereto. Daniels v. Newbold [Iowa] 100 N. W. 1119.

64. Kidson v. Bangor [Me.] 58 A. 900; Gove v. Tacoma, 34 Wash. 434, 76 P. 73. If the record of such proceedings shows that a meeting was adjourned to a particular day, parol evidence that it in fact was adjourned to a different day and proceedings then had is inadmissible. Chippewa Bridge Co. v. Durand [Wis.] 99 N. W. 603.

65. See 2 Curr. L. 959. All above the ordaining clause in the instant case held to be title and not preamble. Silva v. Newport [Ky.] 84 S. W. 741.

66. See 2 Curr. L. 960. An ordinance which provides for supplying a city with heat, light and power, either by means of gas alone, or by means of gas and hot water, or by means of gas and steam, or by means of gas, hot water and steam, provides for three distinct franchises, and violates such a statutory provision. Silva v. Newport [Ky.] 84 S. W. 741.

67. See 2 Curr. L. 959, n. 8. The title to an ordinance, viz.: "An ordinance regulating and licensing liquor dealers within the village of St. Anthony," is sufficient, where the ordinance provides for the payment of a fixed sum for retail liquor dealers only, and prohibits the business of running a restaurant or lunch counter in connection therewith, or in the same room, and also requires the doors to be closed on Sunday, and also prohibits music, singing and dancing in the room occupied as a saloon. Village of St. Anthony v. Brandon [Idaho] 77 P. 322. The introduction into an ordinance limiting the speed of automobiles within certain municipal limits, of a section providing that automobiles must be provided with lamps and horns, is germane to the subject of the ordinance, and not in contravention of § 1694, Rev. St. Chittenden v. Columbus, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 84. Title of an ordinance being "the extension of a certain street railway" violates Rev. St. § 1964, where provision is made for the repeal of a portion of one ordinance, the renewal of a portion of another, and the amendment of a third. Belle v. Glenville, etc., R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 461.

68. Law v. City and County of San Francisco, 144 Cal. 384, 77 P. 1014. But see to the contrary, 2 Curr. L. 960, n. 12.

ing clause, or in some other clause, or that the offense is defined in one section and the proviso making the exception is found in another.[69]

(§ 8) E. Passage, adoption, amendment, and repeal of ordinances and resolutions.[70]—An ordinance may be taken up on its third reading and passed at a special meeting, though not specially mentioned in the call for the special meeting.[71] The reading of an ordinance by its title, where the title does not express the object, is not a compliance with a statute requiring the ordinance to be read three times before its passage.[72] Two or more ordinances may be voted on at the same time.[73] In the absence of any statutory or charter restriction, a majority of a quorum is sufficient for the adoption or passage of any resolution or order.[74] On an issue as to whether an ordinance was properly passed, parol evidence by a member of the council is admissible to show the actual vote by which it passed.[75] The approval or signature of the mayor is generally essential,[76] but where there is no charter provision granting him any veto or equivalent power, none can be accorded him by the courts.[77] The signing or attesting of an ordinance by the city auditor is not essential to its validity, the charter not requiring it.[78]

Publication.[79]—An act providing for the publication of ordinances before they shall take effect is mandatory.[80] But failure to publish an ordinance providing for an improvement for the required time after it became effective will not invalidate the assessment for the improvement in the absence of a showing that some property owner was thereby prejudiced.[81] Courts will not by mandamus compel a borough to publish an ordinance containing a contract by the borough with an individual so as to complete the contract.[82] Publication is presumed after the lapse of many years.[83]

Amendment, suspension, and repeal.[84]—An ordinance cannot be repealed save through the medium of a subsequent ordinance providing therefor in terms or by necessary implication.[85] One is not rendered amendatory by the fact that it contains a reference to a prior ordinance.[86] A resolution suspending during a 69. Bramley v. Euclid, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 508.

70. See 2 Curr. L. 960.

71. National Life Ins. Co. v. Omaha [Neb.] 102 N. W. 73.

72. Bill Posting Sign Co. v. Atlantic City [N. J. Law] 58 A. 342.

73. City of Louisville v. Gast [Ky.] 81 S. W. 693.

74. Thurston v. Huston, 123 Iowa, 157, 98 N. W. 637. See 2 Curr. L. 960, n. 16. Where a statute requires the "unanimous vote of all the members of the council" to pass an ordinance, it is not satisfied by the unanimous vote of a quorum, or even of all the members present. Crickenberger v. Westfield [N. J. Law] 58 A. 1097.

75. Gove v. Tacoma, 34 Wash. 434, 76 P. 73.

76. See 2 Curr. L. 960, n. 18. Whether the signature of the mayor is indispensable to the validity of a municipal ordinance, and whether such signature may be affixed as well at one time as at another, depend upon the language of the charter under which he exercises his functions. Town of New Iberia v. Moss Hotel Co. [La.] 36 So. 552.

77. Mayor may not refuse to sign ordinances in fourth class cities in Washington. State v. Taylor [Wash.] 79 P. 286.

78. City of Portland v. Yick, 44 Or. 439, 75 P. 706.

79. See 2 Curr. L. 961.

80. An ordinance is wholly inoperative where such provisions have not been complied with. Carpenter v. Yeadon Borough, 208 Pa. 396, 57 A. 837. Under the Indiana statutes an ordinance granting a franchise to establish a lighting plant is void where no publication is made. Meyer v. Boonville, 162 Ind. 165, 70 N. E. 146.

81. Burke v. Wapakoneta, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 482.

82. Carpenter v. Yeadon Borough, 208 Pa. 396, 57 A. 837.

83. Ullman v. District of Columbia, 21 App. D. C. 241.

84. See 2 Curr. L. 961.

85. Gallaher v. Jefferson [Iowa] 101 N. W. 124. A charter provision restraining the city from passing a later ordinance inconsistent with a general one already in force without expressly repealing the latter is valid and must be given effect. Asphalt & Granitoid Const. Co. v. Haeussler [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 5.

86. A second valid ordinance bestowing a franchise by reference to a former invalid one grants all rights intended to be granted by the defective ordinance. Columbus v. Federal Gas Co., 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 277.

political campaign the operation of an ordinance relating to discharge of fireworks is not a repeal of the ordinance.[87]

Suspension under a referendum.[88]

(§ 8) F. Construction and operation of ordinances in general.[89]—Ordinances must be given a reasonable construction,[90] and this is a question for the courts,[91] although the presumption of reasonableness is always indulged.[92] Where a general municipal ordinance, applying to all citizens and property holders, provided for the granting of permits for the erection of buildings, the city council could not, during the life of the ordinance, cancel a permit duly granted in conformity with its provisions.[93] Part of an ordinance may be void without affecting the validity of the remaining portion.[94] An ordinance will not be given effect retrospectively unless the intent is clear.[95] Under a statute forbidding a city to grant any franchise for a longer period than 20 years, an ordinance granting a franchise for 20 years from the date of its taking effect is not rendered invalid by the fact that it was passed several months before that date.[96]

(§ 8) G. Pleading and proving ordinances and proceedings.[97]—An ordinance may be pleaded by merely counting upon it and attaching a copy thereof as an exhibit.[98] Courts will take such judicial notice of ordinances and of such journals and records of the common council as affect their validity, meaning and construction as state courts take of public statutes.[99] The certificate of the clerk of the city council that an ordinance has been adopted affords prima facie proof that the ordinance was regularly adopted.[1] An extract from the minutes of a municipal corporation certified by a person described as "clerk of council" is admissible in evidence over an objection that the extract is not certified by the person holding the office of clerk to the corporate authorities, who are described in the charter as the "mayor and council" of the city.[2]

87. Landau v. New York [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 631.

88, 89. See 2 Curr. L. 962.

90. In an ordinance providing that "vertical curves of grade may be used when necessary to facilitate drainage," etc., the word "may" held to be equivalent to shall. Kelly v. Cedar Falls, 123 Iowa, 660, 99 N. W. 556. Uncertainty as to boundaries to which an ordinance is made to apply will be solved by a court by considering streets mentioned as boundaries, which do not meet, as if extended to the meeting point, and by regarding the first river on the west as intended, where a river in that direction is mentioned without naming it. Chittenden v. Columbus, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 84. An ordinance providing that on petition of a designated per cent of the voters the board of trustees "shall" submit to the voters the subject-matter specified in the petition, is not mandatory, but is a mere rule of procedure for the guidance of the board. Thompson v. Board of Trustees of Alameda, 144 Cal. 281, 77 P. 951.

91. City of Richmond v. Gallego Mills Co., 102 Va. 165, 45 S. E. 877; City of Passaic v. Paterson Bill Posting, Advertising & Sign Painting Co. [N. J. Law] 58 A. 343.

92. City of New York v. Hewitt, 91 App. Div. 445, 86 N. Y. S. 832.

93. Gallagher v. Flury [Md.] 57 A. 672.

94. Hillman v. Seattle, 33 Wash. 14, 73 P. 791; Imes v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 105 Ill. App. 37. See 2 Curr. L. 962, n. 44. Where the parts are not so connected in subject-matter or inseparable in their provisions as to warrant the conclusion that the council would not have passed the ordinance without the invalid portion, the valid part will be upheld and the invalid portion rejected. Sterling v. Bowling Green, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 217. The incorporating of conditions, which may be unlawful in an ordinance granting a franchise does not render the ordinance invalid where it does not appear that the ordinance would not have been passed had the conditions been omitted. Columbus v. Federal Gas Co., 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 277. The introduction of a second subject into the second section of an ordinance will not render the first section invalid, where that section is complete in itself. Chittenden v. Columbus, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 84.

95. Even in the absence of constitutional limitation. Martin v. Oskaloosa [Iowa] 99 N. W. 557. Penal ordinance cannot be made retroactive. Fire shutters. Frontier Steam Laundry Co. v. Connolly [Neb.] 101 N. W. 995.

96. State v. Excelsior Coke & Gas Co. [Kan.] 76 P. 447.

97. See 2 Curr. L. 962.

98. City of Lexington v. Woolfolk, 25 Ky. L. R. 1817, 78 S. W. 910.

99. City of Portland v. Yick, 44 Or. 439, 75 P. 706.

1. Moody & Co. v. Spotorno, 112 La. 1008, 36 So. 836.

2. Anderson v. Blair, 121 Ga. 120, 48 S. E. 951.

(§ 8) H. The remedy against invalid legislation.[3]—The remedy to set aside a franchise irregularly or fraudulently granted, where the party to whom it has been granted is in the exercise of the privileges it confers, is by quo warranto at the suit of the state and not by an equitable action at the suit of private parties.[4] Taxpayers may maintain an action to have an ordinance illegally appropriating money declared invalid, though no levy has yet been made for the tax provided by it.[5] Where a street improvement is being made under a valid resolution adopted by the city, a general taxpayer cannot interfere, whether the work is repairs or reconstruction, though it is provided that the cost of the work shall be paid out of the general fund.[6] A municipal corporation has no power to sue out an injunction to prevent the collection of a tax claimed by the police jury of the parish from one of the residents of the town on property situated within the limits of the town.[7] So far as a writ of certiorari issued for the purpose of reviewing a municipal ordinance is a proceeding in rem, the governmental officers of the town, being custodians of the record, are the only necessary parties.[8]

§ 9. Administrative functions, their scope and exercise.[9]—The mayor,[10] police,[11] clerical and other administrative officers,[12] have such authority as the charter and ordinances confer. If modes of official procedure are prescribed, they must be followed.[13] A rule forbidding the participation of members of the police force in a political caucus or canvass is a reasonable exercise of authority conferred to make rules for government of the police force.[14] The power to license inns and taverns is administrative rather than judicial, and the right in New Jersey to

3. See 2 Curr. L. 963.

4. Clark v. Interstate Independent Telephone Co. [Neb.] 101 N. W. 977.

5. Ramsey v. Shelbyville [Ky.] 83 S. W. 116.

6. Shelby v. Burlington [Iowa] 101 N. W. 101.

7. Town of Donaldsonville v. Police Jury of Ascension Parish [La.] 36 So. 873.

8. Schwarz v. Dover, 70 N. J. Law, 502, 57 A. 394.

9. See 2 Curr. L. 963.

10. Mayor may accept service of notice of claim against city. McCartney v. Washington [Iowa] 100 N. W. 80. A deed of realty signed by the mayor rather than by a special commissioner will not defeat grantee's title. Wright v. Morgan, 191 U. S. 55, 48 Law. Ed. 89. Where money had been willed to the poor of a city, the mayor, on a contest of the will, had no power to compromise for less than the whole amount. Lake v. Hood [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 323. See 2 Curr. L. 963, n. 73.

11. A police captain may station officers in or about hotel premises claimed to be disorderly, but such officers may not interfere with customers by stating to them that the house is likely to be raided at any time. Delaney v. Flood, 45 Misc. 97, 91 N. Y. S. 672. For a case where such espionage was enjoined on the ground of injury to business, see Hale v. Burns, 91 N. Y. S. 929. An ordinance providing that if the keeper of any public resort shall refuse the marshal admittance thereto, the marshal may enter and any person resisting him shall be fined, is valid. People v. Croot [Colo. App.] 78 P. 310. New York police department rule 44, requiring police captains to transmit monthly reports of the location of suspicious places, vests in such captains a discretion in determining what is a suspicious place. People v. Greene, 92 App. Div. 243, 87 N. Y. S. 172. See 2 Curr. L. 963, n. 74.

12. Park commissioners may sign petition for proposed saloon where frontage rule is criterion. Theurer v. People, 211 Ill. 296, 71 N. E. 997. A statute authorizing park commissioners to make rules for government of park confers power to fix maximum rate of speed at which one may drive in such park. Commonwealth v. Crowninshield [Mass.] 72 N. E. 963. Under present New York civil service law, a veteran's fitness is conclusively determined by the civil service commissioners. People v. Stratton, 174 N. Y. 531, 66 N. E. 1114, afg. without written opinion, 79 App. Div. 149, 80 N. Y. S. 269. See 2 Curr. L. 963, n. 75.

13. A board having power to make requisitions must do so in proper form and at proper times. Commonwealth v. Pittsburg, 209 Pa. 333, 58 A. 669. Report of commissioners of estimate and assessment in proceeding to acquire title to lands for street opening purposes held sufficient. In re City of New York, 178 N. Y. 421, 70 N. E. 924. The acts of a de facto government must conform to law. A franchise granted must be approved by a board of public works [Rev. St. § 1545-195]. Columbus v. Federal Gas & Fuel Co., 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 277. See 2 Curr. L. 964, n. 79.

14. Brownell v. Russell, 76 Vt. 326, 57 A. 103. Violation by member of New York fire department by retaining membership in proscribed association justifies dismissal. People v. Scannell, 173 N. Y. 606, 66 N. E. 1114, afg. without written opinion 74 App. Div. 406, 77 N. Y. S. 704.

impose it on the courts rests on long continued usage.[15] A sheriff may be reimbursed for expenses in attempting to recover poundage fees,[16] but a city attorney cannot at the expense of the city defend a policeman for inflicting personal injuries in making an arrest.[17] Ordinary repairs to streets required to keep them in a condition reasonably safe for travel are matters of administrative nature, and may be ordered by the mayor;[18] but specific repairs,[19] and changes of grade in streets, are for the legislative branch.[20]

Constabulary power.[21]—Under the Nebraska statutes the mayor and chief of police are charged with the duty to actively interfere to prevent open violations of the statutes,[22] and mandamus lies to compel the performance of this duty.[23] A de facto marshal of a municipal corporation may make an arrest.[24]

Fire protection.—Municipalities are authorized to expend money and incur expense for fire protection,[25] and may impose reasonable restrictions on property owners to the same end.[26] A city may purchase land for a fire engine house without previously or at the time providing for the erection of the building,[27] and a city empowered to establish a fire department and to purchase material and equip the same may purchase coal necessary for such department and employ men to transport the same from coal docks to the place of use.[28] In the extinguishment of fires and in making arrangements therefor, a municipal corporation acts in a governmental capacity, and is not liable for the negligent construction, maintenance or use of its appliances.[29] But in maintaining a fire station, it performs a ministerial public duty, and is liable for injuries sustained from a neglect to furnish an employe a reasonably safe place to work.[30]

§ 10. Police power and public regulations. A. In general.[31]—In the absence of constitutional limitations, the legislature may invest municipal corporations with the police power of the state in whole or in part;[32] but municipal by-laws and ordinances are subject to investigation in the courts with a view to determining whether the law or ordinance is a lawful exercise of police power.[33] The enactment of an

15. Smith v. Hightstown [N. J. Law] 57 A. 901.

16. Dos Passos v. New York, 90 N. Y. S. 398.

17. Donahue v. Keeshan, 91 App. Div. 602, 87 N. Y. S. 144.
Contra, Briggs v. Lahey, 91 N. Y. S. 576.

18. Draper v. City of Fall River, 185 Mass. 142, 69 N. E. 1068.

19. Putting granite block paving on street macadamized or substituting brick on street paved with cobblestone are specific repairs. Draper v. City of Fall River, 185 Mass. 142, 69 N. E. 1068.

20. Draper v. City of Fall River, 185 Mass. 142, 69 N. E. 1068.

21. See 2 Curr. L. 964, n. 82.

22, 23. Running gambling room. Moores v. State [Neb.] 99 N. W. 249.

24. McDuffie v. State, 121 Ga. 580, 49 S. E. 708.

25. The committee on fire and water of a village may incur expense in making needed repairs to fire apparatus. Clapp v. Titus [Mich.] 100 N. W. 1005. Gen. Laws 1895 of Minn., ch. 257, p. 638, authorizing certain villages to incur an indebtedness in the purchase of fire extinguishing apparatus is not void for uncertainty. A contract entered into under this statute was not ultra vires and void because the village and the town in which it is located constituted one taxing district. Du Toit v. Belview [Minn.] 102 N. W. 216.

26. An ordinance which requires the placing of fireproof shutters upon the windows of brick buildings within a city imposes a duty for the purpose of giving to the public protection against fire which the common law did not provide. Frontier Steam Laundry Co. v. Connolly [Neb.] 101 N. W. 995. Ordinance regulating the construction of fire escapes held valid. Louisville Public Library Co. v. Louisville [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1169.

27. City of Santa Barbara v. Davis, 142 Cal. 669, 76 P. 495.

28. Manske v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 101 N. W. 377.

29. A water plant is such an appliance. Aschoff v. Evansville [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 279.

30. Stumbling of horse on defective floor in fire station at alarm of fire. Bowden v. Kansas City [Kan.] 77 P. 573. The court refers to the line of cases which hold that municipal corporations are only liable for the negligent performance of such ministerial public duties as are imposed upon them by law, and are not liable for the negligent performance of assumed duties which are permissive only, but refuse to subscribe to the doctrine announced by them. Id.

31. See 2 Curr. L. 965.

32. See 2 Curr. L. 965, n. 6.

33. Circumscribing field of operation of gas works. Dobbins v. Los Angeles, 25 S. Ct. 18; Daly v. Elton, 25 S. Ct. 22. An ex-ordinance regulating the erection of poles does not exhaust the police power of the city and prevent it from afterwards prescribing other rules for the same object.[34] An ordinance making eight hours a day's work on any work of municipal construction is constitutional.[35]

(§ 10) B. For public protection.[36]—For public protection a city may regulate the speed of trains,[37] the operation of locomotives,[38] the storage of gasoline,[39] prohibit the carrying of concealed weapons,[40] compel the erection of fire escapes,[41] and provide for the inspection and cleaning of chimneys.[42] It may likewise forbid persons to let animals run at large and provide for impounding such animals.[43]

Buildings and other structures.[44]—The city may also in furtherance of the same purpose regulate the erection and repair of buildings,[45] cause removal or destruction of dangerous buildings,[46] make provision for the safety of theatres[47] and hotels,[48] and may control the erection of sign boards where the public safety requires it.[49]

(§ 10) C. Health and sanitation.[50]—Everything which from its nature and surroundings is, or is liable to become, a menace to the public health, is a proper subject to be dealt with under the police power.[51] The removal of the carcass of a dead animal beyond the limits of the city and its sale does not violate an ordinance against selling it in the city,[52] but if the carcass be deposited so close to the border as to become a nuisance, a prosecution would lie.[53] The granting permission to action of a license fee for water plugs cannot be sustained as an exercise of police power. Cambridge Com'rs v. Cambridge Water Co. [Md.] 58 A. 442.

34. City of Ft. Smith v. Hunt [Ark.] 82 S. W. 163.

35. In re Broad [Wash.] 78 P. 1004.

36. See 2 Curr. L. 966.

37. Imes v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 105 Ill. App. 37. See 2 Curr. L. 966, n. 21. That president of council had no jurisdiction to punish violation of such ordinance. City of Windsor v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 105 Ill. App. 46.

38. State v. Tower [Mo.] 84 S. W. 10; Central R. Co. of New Jersey v. Elizabeth, 70 N. J. Law, 578, 57 A. 404. See 2 Curr. L. 966, n. 22.

39. District of Columbia v. Weston, 23 App. D. C. 363.

40. Town of Orrick v. Akers [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 549.

41. Louisville Public Library Co. v. Louisville [Ky.] 80 S. W. 1169.

42. Cooper v. Lawson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 34.

43. Crum v. Bray, 121 Ga. 709, 49 S. E. 686; Huey v. Waldrop [Ala.] 37 So. 380; Williams v. Sewell, 121 Ga. 665, 49 S. E. 732. See 2 Curr. L. 966, n. 26.

44. See 2 Curr. L. 967. See, also, Buildings and Building Restrictions, 3 Curr. L. 572.

45. Under a statute giving a city power to regulate the construction of buildings, a city has no authority to prohibit the erection of a brick church with slate roof. Boyd v. Board of Councilmen of Frankfort, 25 Ky. L. R. 1311, 77 S. W. 669. See 2 Curr. L. 967, n. 27.

46. City of St. Louis v. Kaime & Bro. Real Estate Co., 180 Mo. 309, 79 S. W. 140. An elevated structure, containing several rooms, joining two houses, and built over an alley, which obstructed to some extent light and air in the alley, and which invited vehicles and persons to gather under it in wet weather, was not a nuisance justifying its destruction with declaration by competent court. Town of Frostburg v. Hitchins [Md.] 59 A. 49.

47. Regulating entrance doors. Mertz v. District of Columbia, 18 App. D. C. 434. See 2 Curr. L. 967, n. 28.

48. A fire commissioner's order directing defendant, a hotel proprietor, to adopt "direct means" for communicating alarms of fire, without specifying the means to be adopted, is insufficient to enable commissioners to recover a penalty for failure to comply. Hays v. Brennan, 90 N. Y. S. 453.

49. But such control must be reasonable, and of this the courts may judge. City of Passaic v. Paterson Bill Posting, Advertising & Sign Painting Co. [N. J. Law] 58 A. 343. See 2 Curr. L. 967, n. 29. An ordinance which forbids the erection of signs upon private property, without regard to whether such signs may be dangerous to public safety, is invalid. Bill Posting Sign Co. v. Atlantic City [N. J. Law] 58 A. 342.

50. See 2 Curr. L. 967. See, also, Health, 3 Curr. L. 1590.

51. Establishment of plant for the purification of sewage is a measure for the public health. Harrington v. Worcester, 186 Mass. 594, 72 N. E. 326. The services of a physician being rendered to a patient may be recovered of a municipality by another municipality, under the Massachusetts statute (Rev. Laws, c. 75, § 57); but the services of policemen to enforce quarantine measures are incurred in the preservation of the public health and are not recoverable. City of Haverhill v. Marlborough [Mass.] 72 N. E. 943.

52. Mann v. District of Columbia, 22 App. D. C. 138. See 2 Curr. L. 969, n. 41.

53. Mann v. District of Columbia, 22 App. D. C. 138.

erect stables where no reasonable objection is made thereto imposes a discretionary function, and mandamus will not lie.[54] Prohibiting the emission of dense smoke is a proper subject of municipal police control.[55]

(§ 10) D. Regulation and inspection of business.[56]—The sale of intoxicating liquors,[57] prescribing saloon limits,[58] the inspection and sale of milk,[59] the location of markets,[60] the regulation of weights,[61] and the licensing and regulation of hackmen,[62] liverymen,[63] hawkers,[64] and junk dealers,[65] requiring that only licensed persons shall enter into certain employments,[66] the fixing of gas rates,[67] are proper subjects of police power. The giving of "trading stamps" may be subjected to license tax,[68] and the sale of lottery tickets be prohibited.[69] Accommodating a neighbor with water does not constitute a business within the meaning of New York laws, giving commissioner of water supply discretion to require meters in all places where water is used "for business consumption."[70] The regulation of the business of supplying light and water to inhabitants and of service rates therefor is fully treated elsewhere.[71]

(§ 10) E. Control of streets and public places.[72]—Municipal corporations have no inherent power to regulate and control streets therein, since streets and highways belong to the state and are under its control.[73] Such power is only

54. Hester v. Thomson, 35 Wash. 119, 76 P. 734.

55. City of St. Paul v. Haugbro [Minn.] 100 N. W. 470, 66 L. R. A. 441. That such an ordinance omits from its operation railroad locomotives does not render it objectionable to the Fourteenth Amendment. State v. Tower [Mo.] 84 S. W. 10. An ordinance that the owner of premises on which an engine or locomotive is used shall not permit any cinders, dust, gas or smoke to escape, is unreasonable and void as to a railroad company. Jersey City v. Abercrombie [N. J. Law] 58 A. 73.

56. See 2 Curr. L. 968. See, also, Licenses, 4 Curr. L. 428, and the topics treating of particular kinds of trades and occupations.

57. Town of New Iberia v. Moss Hotel Co. [La.] 36 So. 552. Not only sale, but the giving away, may be prohibited. Litch v. People [Colo. App.] 75 P. 1079. Ordinance making local agent of common carrier amenable to ordinance prohibiting sales of intoxicating liquors held unreasonable and void. Munsell v. Carthage, 105 Ill. App. 119. A promissory note cannot take place of cash payment in procuring saloon license. Meyer-Marx Co. v. Ensley [Ala.] 37 So. 639. In Georgia, jurisdiction to try violation of such ordinance is vested in mayor and aldermen. Robinson v. Americus, 121 Ga. 180, 48 S. E. 924. While a city ordinance may not forbid a saloonkeeper to permit females to enter his place of business, it may prohibit their entry for immoral purposes. State v. Nelson [Idaho] 79 P. 79; Walker v. McNelly, 121 Ga. 114, 48 S. E. 718. See 2 Curr. L. 968, n. 47.

58. Ex parte Levine [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 1206.

59. Furnishing sample of milk to health department. Weigand v. District of Columbia, 22 App. D. C. 559. An ordinance forbidding the establishment or maintenance of a dairy or cow stable within city limits without a permit is not violative of the Fourteenth Amendment. Fischer v. St. Louis, 194 U. S. 361, 48 Law. Ed. 1018; Schefe v. St. Louis, 194 U. S. 373, 48 Law. Ed. 1024. See 2 Curr. L. 968, n. 48.

60. Selling at a fixed place without payment of license. Ex parte Helm, 143 Cal. 553, 77 P. 453. See 2 Curr. L. 968.

61. City of New York v. Hewitt, 91 App. Div. 445, 86 N. Y. S. 832. See 2 Curr. L. 968, n. 50.

62. Ordinance requiring an omnibus driver to wear in a permanent position on his clothing a number the same as that issued for his omnibus. Atlantic City v. Feretti, 70 N. J. Law, 489, 57 A. 259. Conviction for refusal to pay rate fixed by ordinance sustained. Bray v. State, 140 Ala. 172, 37 So. 250. See 2 Curr. L. 968, n. 51.

63. Ex parte Jackson, 143 Cal. 564, 77 P. 457. An ordinance attempting to require a license for a single act of carrying is void for unreasonableness. Town of Plymouth v. Cooper, 135 N. C. 1, 47 S. E. 129.

64. Use of bells to attract business. Bray v. Damato, 70 N. J. Law, 583, 57 A. 394.

65. Ullman v. District of Columbia, 21 App. D. C. 241; Neifeld v. State, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 246.

66. Steam engineers. Smoot v. District of Columbia, 23 App. D. C. 266.

67. Denninger v. Recorder's Court of Pomona [Cal.] 79 P. 360.

68. Hewin v. Atlanta, 121 Ga. 723, 49 S. E. 765.

69. City of Portland v. Yick, 44 Or. 439, 75 P. 706.

70. Laws 1897, p. 165, c. 378, § 475. Foster v. Monroe, 40 Misc. 449, 82 N. Y. S. 653.

71. Waters and Water Supply, 2 Curr. L. 2034.

72. See 2 Curr. L. 969, and post, § 11.

See, also, Highways and Streets, 3 Curr. L. 1593; Parks and Public Grounds, 4 Curr. L. ——.

73. Nor has a city power to regulate and control the construction and operation of street railways therein merely upon a grant of power to establish, regulate and control streets given at a time when street railways obtained under statutes expressly conferring the power, and then only under the limitations and conditions attached thereto.[74] Municipalities charged with the duty of regulating the use of their streets may impose a reasonable charge in the nature of a rental for the occupation of certain portions of the streets by telephone and telegraph companies,[75] and while they may require lot owners to keep the streets in front of their premises in repair and free from obstructions,[76] an ordinance which requires a mere tenant so to do is invalid.[77] In exercising control over streets and public places, they may also require the registration of automobiles[78] and regulate the speed at which they may be driven;[79] and may regulate public meetings and speaking.[80] A city does not lose control of its streets by consenting or acquiescing in the planting of trees within the limits thereof.[81] An ordinance providing that no person shall play any game of ten pins, ball, wicket, or other games in a street does not prohibit boys from merely running on a street.[82]

(§ 10) F. Definition of offenses and regulation of criminal procedure.[83]—Municipal ordinances and regulations to support prosecution must be as definite and certain as penal statutes;[84] but an ordinance prohibiting an act and prescribing a penalty for violation is not defective for not declaring the prohibited act to be a crime.[85] An ordinance punishing one engaging in the bunco business by a fine of not less than $101 and not more than $500 is repealed by a subsequent ordinance against gambling providing a lesser fine.[86] An offense may be against the state and a municipal corporation at the same time; but before the municipality can prosecute, it must show a valid ordinance.[87] The prosecution of one for violation of a city ordinance is a civil proceeding; therefore jurisdiction can be gained by were not contemplated. Raynolds v. Cleveland, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 215.

74. Raynolds v. Cleveland, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 215. See 2 Curr. L. 969, n. 65.

75. City of Pensacola v. Southern Bell Tel. Co. [Fla.] 37 So. 820; Village of London Mills v. Fairview-London Tel. Circuit, 105 Ill. App. 146. The general police powers of cities of the first class in Kansas may be exercised by such cities over telegraph and telephone companies within their corporate limits. City of Wichita v. Missouri & K. Tel. Co. [Kan.] 78 P. 886. A statute granting to telegraph and telephone companies the right to construct lines in the public highways is not rendered nugatory by charter provision, giving cities the right to prevent the obstruction of streets by poles. State v. Red Lodge [Mont.] 76 P. 758. A contract between a city and an electric company prescribing terms for the erection of poles does not divest the city of its police power nor prevent it from exacting a license to defray the expense of regulating the use of such poles. City of Ft. Smith v. Hunt [Ark.] 82 S. W. 163.

76. Repair of sidewalk. Lentz v. Dallas, 96 Tex. 253, 72 S. W. 59. An animal tied to a stake in a public street for the purpose of grazing is an obstruction of such street, within the meaning of an ordinance authorizing the removal of obstructions. Williams v. Sewell, 121 Ga. 665, 49 S. E. 732. A carriage block is not an obstruction to street. Wolf v. District of Columbia, 21 App. D. C. 464; Wolff v. District of Columbia, 25 S. Ct. 198.

77. Ford v. Kansas City, 181 Mo. 137, 79 S. W. 923.

78. People v. Schneider [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 32.

79. See 2 Curr. L. 970, n. 70. A general statute regulating the speed of automobiles throughout the state does not abrogate a regulation as to speed in a city park. Commonwealth v. Crowninshield [Mass.] 72 N. E. 963. An ordinance limiting speed may also require that lamps and horns be used. Chittenden v. Columbus, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 84.

80. Fitts v. Atlanta, 121 Ga. 567, 49 S. E. 793. See 2 Curr. L. 969, n. 66.

81. Gallaher v. Jefferson [Iowa] 101 N. W. 124.

82. Defective sidewalk. Beaudin v. Bay City [Mich.] 99 N. W. 285.

83. See 2 Curr. L. 970. See, also, Criminal Law, 3 Curr. L. 979; Indictment and Prosecution, 4 Curr. L. 1.

84. Hays v. Brennan, 90 N. Y. S. 453. A park regulation that "no person shall ride or drive" in excess of a given rate of speed is sufficiently definite to support a criminal prosecution for operating an automobile. Commonwealth v. Crowninshield [Mass.] 72 N. E. 963.

85. City of Portland v. Yick, 44 Or. 439, 75 P. 706.

86. Clark v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 722.

87. Whatever the legislature may punish as a misdemeanor it may authorize a municipal corporation to punish as a misdemeanor. Denninger v. Recorder's Court of Pomona [Cal.] 79 P. 360. Municipality cannot maintain prosecution for violation of state law. Town of McMinnville v. Stroud, 109 Tenn. 569, 72 S. W. 949.

voluntary appearance.[88] An information need not be filed,[89] and the city, as well as defendant, may appeal.[90] In South Dakota such a proceeding is said to be quasi criminal in its nature.[91] A municipal charter which imposes upon the mayor the duty of seeing that the ordinances of the town are faithfully executed, and confers upon him jurisdiction to try all persons charged with violating the ordinances, authorizes the mayor to issue a warrant for the arrest of an offender, and this is true, notwithstanding the charter does not in express terms authorize the mayor to issue a warrant for such purpose.[92] But a president pro tem of a village council has no power to hear and determine a misdemeanor, although the mayor in whose stead he is acting has.[93] Under the Indiana law (Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 4346) constituting the town clerk a court and giving that court exclusive jurisdiction of all prosecutions for the violation of town ordinances, the circuit court has no original jurisdiction of such cases.[94] Persons sued under an ordinance will not be heard to assert that the ordinance was not passed by de jure trustees,[95] and want of notice of an ordinance other than that given the general public is no defense to a prosecution for violation thereof.[96]

§ 11. Property and public places.[97]—The authority which a municipal corporation exercises over streets, public parks and places is not derived from the citizens of the municipality within the limits of which the streets and parks are situated, but is derived from the legislature representing the state.[98] Municipalities in controlling and managing such parks act as governmental agencies, exercising an authority delegated by the state, and are always subject to legislative control.[99] Such streets, parks and places are held by the municipality in trust, not for the sole use of the municipality or any individual thereof, but for the benefit of the general public.[1] A distinction is to be observed between cases where a public park has been created and established by a municipality under statutory provisions and cases where the dedication has been by the original owner.[2] And

88. In re Jones, 90 Mo. App. 318.

89. City of Billings v. Brown, 106 Mo. App. 240, 80 S. W. 322. Complaint for violation of ordinance fixing gas rates held sufficient. Denninger v. Recorder's Court of Pomona [Cal.] 79 P. 364.

90. City of Poplar Bluff v. Hill, 92 Mo. App. 17.

91. An oral notice therefore is sufficient to validate an appeal [Comp. Laws 1887, § 6177]. City of Centerville v. Olson, 16 S. D. 626, 94 N. W. 414.

92. Robinson v. Americus, 121 Ga. 180, 48 S. E. 924; Williams v. Sewell, 121 Ga. 665, 49 S. E. 732.

93. Rev. St. § 1536-864 (violation of Beal Law). State v. Hance, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 541. Mayors of cities in Ohio are entitled to retain fees and costs collected in criminal cases tried before them, and a city ordinance requiring such fees and costs to be paid into the city treasury is invalid as in conflict with the statute (Rev. St. § 1309). City of Piqua v. Cron, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 165.

94. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Salem, 162 Ind. 428, 70 N. E. 530.

95. It is enough that they were de facto trustees. Town of Susanville v. Long, 144 Cal. 332, 77 P. 987.

96. Sands v. Trenton [N. J. Law] 57 A. 267.

97. See 2 Curr. L. 970. See, also, Highways and Streets, 3 Curr. L. 1593; Parks and Public Grounds, 4 Curr. L. ——.

98. City of Hartford v. Maslen, 76 Conn. 599, 57 A. 740. Hence statute of limitations does not run against the rights of a city in its streets. Wright v. Oberlin, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 509. The legislature representing the state has paramount authority over its public ways, including those in the cities, and can at any time resume the power previously granted to municipal subdivisions. United R. & Canal Co. v. Jersey City [N. J. Law] 58 A. 71. In the absence of constitutional restrictions, the lawmaking power of a state may vacate a street in a municipality. Marietta Chair Co. v. Henderson, 121 Ga. 399, 49 S. E. 312.

99. Placing of monument by state in public park. City of Hartford v. Maslen, 76 Conn. 599, 57 A. 740. They may not dispose of land dedicated to them, nor restrict use, without express legislative sanction. District of Columbia v. Cropley, 23 App. D. C. 232.

1. Lowery v. Pekin, 210 Ill. 575, 71 N. E. 626; Village of Riverside v. MacLain, 210 Ill. 308, 71 N. E. 408; City of Hartford v. Maslen, 76 Conn. 599, 57 A. 740; Sherburne v. Portsmouth, 72 N. H. 539, 58 A. 38; Van Cleve v. Passaic Valley Sewerage Com'rs [N. J. Law] 58 A. 571. Title to so much of shore and soil under Mobile river as is within boundary of Mobile lies in trust and cannot be conveyed by the city for the benefit of riparian owners. City of Mobile v. Sullivan Timber Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 298.

2. Village of Riverside v. MacLain, 210

again, where the municipality holds by reason of dedication, a distinction is to be taken between cases where the dedication is without restriction, and where the dedication is restricted to a particular purpose.[3] In the former case any reasonable public use may be made of the dedicated land,[4] but in the latter it must be devoted to the particular purpose indicated by the dedicator.[5] An exclusive use of streets cannot be granted in the face of a statute contemplating the continuance of the public use,[6] nor can the public use be impaired for purely private benefit.[7]

Municipalities may acquire lands for legitimate purposes.[8] Having acquired real estate it may hold it by the same tenures, yet in two different capacities (1) for uses strictly public;[9] (2) for uses not strictly public.[10] In the latter instance the municipality has a beneficial interest, for which compensation must be made if it is taken for another public use by the state or nation.[11] Mere informalities in the execution of a deed by a municipal corporation will not invalidate it.[12]

A municipal corporation has power in the first instance to determine how space within the bounds of highway shall be appropriated to various uses of the highway.[13] It may set aside portions of its streets or sidewalks for boulevards, grass plots or other purposes, useful or ornamental only, and protect the same from the encroachment of travel.[14] While the public are entitled to the use of highways for purposes of travel its entire width, there are instances where the occupation of a highway for purposes other than travel has been held lawful.[15]

Ill. 308, 71 N. E. 408. Land may be acquired for park purposes. Children's playgrounds are properly a part of park purposes. Law v. San Francisco, 144 Cal. 384, 77 P. 1014.

3. Law v. San Francisco, 144 Cal. 384, 77 P. 1014. Persons dedicating land to the public are not authorized to rely upon the individual statements of trustees of a village as to the use to which the land should be devoted. Pickett v. Mercer, 106 Mo. App. 689, 80 S. W. 285.

4. Leasing part of a public park for training race horses held not to be an unlawful diversion of such park. Bryant v. Logan [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 21. Devoting park to baseball purposes. Sherburne v. Portsmouth, 72 N. H. 539, 58 A. 38.

5. Where land has been dedicated as a public park and accepted as such by the village, it has no power thereafter to use a portion of the park for a public highway. Village of Riverside v. MacLain, 210 Ill. 308, 71 N. E. 408; New York Contracting & Trucking Co. v. New York, 42 Misc. 425, 87 N. Y. S. 100.

6. See 2 Curr. L. 971, n. 1.

7. See 2 Curr. L. 971, n. 2. Lowery v. Pekin, 210 Ill. 575, 71 N. E. 626. No implied power to grant privileges to use the streets for private purposes. Draining of cellar. Bennett v. Mt. Vernon [Iowa] 100 N. W. 349. The laying of a spur-track in the street, as distinguished from a track for general railroad purposes, is not such a diversion of the street from its ordinary uses as to interfere with the private rights of abutting owners or beyond the power of council to authorize. Gunning v. P. C. C. & St. L. R. Co., 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 411.

8. They may receive property in trust for educational purposes. State v. Toledo, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 327. May buy land for culvert in connection with sewer. City of Richmond v. Gallego Mills Co., 102 Va. 165, 45 S. E. 877. May acquire lands for "children's playgrounds." Law v. San Francisco, 144 Cal. 384, 77 P. 1014. Acquirement of land for public park. In re City of New York, 95 App. Div. 552, 89 N. Y. S. 6. Resolution of council that title to real estate on which was situate a free public library should stand in library trustees illegal; city proper custodian. Keuffel v. Hoboken [N. J. Law] 59 A. 20.

9. For example, streets, parks, schoolhouses. In re Condemnation of Land at Nahant, 128 F. 185.

10. A city hall or cemetery. In re Condemnation of Land of Nahant, 128 F. 185.

11. Easement of aqueduct for water pipes. In re Condemnation of Land at Nahant, 128 F. 185.

12. See 2 Curr. L. 972, n. 4, 5. Deed signed by mayor instead of special commissioner. Wright v. Morgan, 191 U. S. 55, 48 Law. Ed. 89.

13. General ordinance prescribing width of sidewalk modified by subsequent ordinance making different provision for a particular street. Budd v. Camden Horse R. Co., 63 N. J. Eq. 804, 52 A. 1130, afg. without opinion, 61 N. J. Eq. 543, 48 A. 1028. Under a code provision for parking a street or any part thereof, the parking need not be confined to that part of the street between the lot line and the driveway, but the driveway may be divided by a strip of parking along the center line. Downing v. Des Moines [Iowa] 99 N. W. 1066.

14. Use of wire. Martin v. Williamsport, 208 Pa. 590, 57 A. 1063.

15. 24-inch columns of a building. Sautter v. Utica City Nat. Bank, 45 Misc. 15, 90 N. Y. S. 833.

Thus a court,[16] areaway,[17] and a vault under the sidewalk,[18] have been recognized as a legitimate use of street, subject to proper safeguards and restrictions. Permission to lay tracks in a city street may be revoked, the right to do so having been reserved in the resolution of permission.[19] The public authorities may specify such a pavement as the present or prospective traffic of a street may require, and provide varying foundations according to circumstances.[20] An agreement between a city and a railroad under which the city is to keep in repair that portion of a street occupied by the railroad does not relieve the railroad from the duty to repair imposed by the railroad law.[21] A city does not engage in a work of internal improvement by agreeing with a street railway to pave and repair the streets used by the street railway at its own expense, and without requiring any assistance from the company.[22] Where the power to vacate streets and public grounds is given by statute, when all property owners are affected alike by a vacation, though in different degrees, they have no remedy.[23] Title to municipal property cannot be acquired by adverse possession.[24] The opening, maintenance and use of streets, and the improvement of the same, are fully treated in other titles.[25] Where it appears that an abutting owner with the consent or acquiescence of the city has caused shade trees to be set out in the street along or near the line of his property, the municipal authorities will not be permitted to wantonly or without reasonable cause destroy the same. And this is true, notwithstanding the fact that such trees upon being planted inherently become a part of the realty, and title thereto vests in the city as owner in fee of the street. Yet this cannot be extended so as to interfere with the proper exercise of municipal powers in respect of that care, supervision and control of the streets which the statute imposes on cities.[26]

§ 12. Contracts.[27] A. Power and authority in general.[28]—The power to erect or operate public service plants warrants a contract with private persons to furnish such service,[29] and the acceptance of a franchise ordinance conferring rights in a public street or place constitutes a contract.[30] The validity of a con-

16. Gutting v. Brennan, 97 App. Div. 23, 89 N. Y. S. 574.

17. Devine v. National Wall Paper Co., 88 N. Y. S. 704.

18. Wolff v. New York, 92 App. Div. 449, 87 N. Y. S. 214; Lincoln Safe Deposit Co. v. New York, 96 App. Div. 624, 88 N. Y. S. 912. An open space under a stoop is not a vault within the meaning of § 319 of the Revised Ordinances of New York. City of New York v. Beuk, 43 Misc. 663, 88 N. Y. S. 180.

19. Delaware, etc., R. Co. v. Oswego, 92 App. Div. 551, 86 N. Y. S. 1027.

20. City of Detroit v. Detroit United R. Co., 133 Mich. 608, 95 N. W. 736, 10 Det. Leg. N. 320.

21. Butin v. New York, etc., R. Co., 90 N. Y. S. 909.

22. City of Detroit v. Detroit United R. Co., 133 Mich. 608, 95 N. W. 736, 10 Det. Leg. N. 320.

23. But where the injury is peculiar, an abutting owner is entitled to damages. Borghart v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 101 N. W. 1120.

24. But it has been held that the acceptance of a lease from the city does not estop defendant from asserting adverse user. Broad v. Beatty [Ark.] 83 S. W. 339. See 2 Curr. L. 972, n. 6.

25. See Highways and Streets, 3 Curr. L. 1593; Dedication, 3 Curr. L. 1050; Public Works and Improvements, 2 Curr. L. 1328.

26. Gallaher v. Jefferson [Iowa] 101 N. W. 124.

27. See, also, Contracts, 3 Curr. L. 805; Public Contracts, 2 Curr. L. 1280; Public Works and Improvements, 2 Curr. L. 1328.

28. See 2 Curr. L. 972.

29. A city being granted the power to contract for lights for 25 years, a contract for their supply for the whole of such period is valid. Davenport Gas & Elec. Co. v. Davenport [Iowa] 98 N. W. 892. Contract for an exclusive supply of water for 60 years sustained. Incorporated Town of Tahlequah v. Guinn [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 886. See 2 Curr. L. 973, n. 19.

30. Attempt to reduce street railway fares enjoined. City of Cleveland v. Cleveland City R. Co., 194 U. S. 517, 48 Law. Ed. 1102; City of Cleveland v. Cleveland Elec. R Co., 194 U. S. 538, 48 Law. Ed. 1109. Where a municipal corporation, in pursuance of legislative authority, grants a valid franchise, privilege, or right to use or occupy a public street, common or levee, or navigable water, adjacent thereto, for a public purpose, and the grantee, in reliance on such grant, expends money in the prosecution of his enterprise, he thereby acquires a property interest or right, which can only be tract of a municipal corporation which can only be fulfilled by resort to taxation depends on the power to levy a tax for that purpose;[31] but the fact that a village was not a separate district for purposes of taxation and that no separate levy of taxes upon village property to pay the debt could be made does not render a contract for fire apparatus void.[32] An obligation assumed by the owner of property to sell it at a valuation fixed by appraisers, one of them to be chosen by such owner, cannot be made the basis of a subsequent statute requiring a sale to be made at a valuation fixed by appraisers in the selection of whom the owner had no voice.[33] A contract to do a thing committed solely to the public is not specifically enforceable.[34]

(§ 12) B. Mode of contracting and proof of contracts.[35]—The charter mode must be followed if one is prescribed,[36] and a city cannot be held liable for services rendered upon the theory of an implied contract.[37] Under the system of inviting proposals,[38] contracts should ordinarily be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder,[39] after having legally advertised.[40] Grants of franchise do not fall within provisions applying this system to contracts generally.[41]

taken away under the power of eminent domain after proper compensation. Mead v. Portland [Or.] 76 P. 347 In such case the grantee acquires a right or easement different in kind from that enjoyed by the general public, and the building or structure put therein by him is under his control, subject to the paramount authority of the municipality. Rights in wharf held not to have been granted by a certain ordinance. Id. Water works system. Ogden City v. Bear Lake & River Waterworks & Irr. Co. [Utah] 76 P. 1069. As to such ordinances as were passed by the city council of Chicago prior to the counting of the vote at the charter election in 1875 and accepted and acted upon by the street railway companies, there exists between the companies and the city a contract relation terminable by neither party without the consent of the other until the period named in the legislative act expires. Govin v. Chicago, 132 F. 848. Where a municipality has by resolution granted to a public service company the use of its streets and alleys, and where the licensee with the knowledge and tacit consent of the municipal authorities has accepted and acted upon such resolution, the license so granted becomes a contract, not revocable by the city. Telephone lines. Village of London Mills v. White, 208 Ill. 289, 70 N. E. 313. The grant of the right to lay pipes in the streets and to supply inhabitants with water for a term of years, after it has been acted on by the company, creates a contract and the city may not impair the same by entering into competition. Columbia Ave. Sav. Fund, Safe Deposit, Title & Trust Co. v. Dawson, 130 F. 152.

31. Bridge not located on legal highway. Manning v. Devils Lake [N. D.] 99 N. W. 51.

32. Du Toit v. Belview [Minn.] 102 N. W. 216.

33. City of Leavenworth v. Leavenworth City & Ft. L. Water Co. [Kan.] 76 P. 451.

34. By street railway to pave streets Farson v. Fogg, 205 Ill. 326, 68 N. E. 755.

35. See 2 Curr. L. 974. See, also, Public Contracts, 2 Curr. L. 1280.

36. Carpenter v. Yeadon Borough, 208 Pa. 396, 57 A. 837; Becker v. New York, 176 N. Y. 441, 68 N. E. 855. Contract between city and water company for water supply is valid, though made by resolution instead of ordinance. Ogden City v. Bear Lake & River Waterworks & Irr. Co. [Utah] 76 P. 1069. See 2 Curr. L. 974, n. 33.

37. Even though, where a citizen employed an attorney to compel performance of duty by the public officers, such services resulted in bringing funds into city treasury. Park v. Laurens, 68 S. C. 212, 46 S. E. 1012. A city is not liable upon an implied contract to pay the reasonable value of professional services rendered by an attorney other than the city attorney in advising the mayor and aldermen, where his employment has not been authorized or ratified by yea and nay vote of the common council. Bosard v. Grand Forks [N. D.] 102 N. W. 164. Persons at whose suit a large amount of money is covered into the city treasury are not such representatives of the city as would make their contract for attorney's services binding on the city. Milster v. City Council of Spartanburg, 68 S. C. 243, 47 S. E. 141. When a city charter requires public work to be let in a particular way and the city is prohibited from letting the same in any other manner, a violation thereof and the performance of the work involved does not impose any obligation upon the city to pay therefor. Chippewa Bridge Co. v. Durand [Wis.] 99 N. W. 603.

38. See Public Contracts, 2 Curr. L. 1280.

39. The word "work" in a city charter, providing that all work exceeding in cost a specified sum shall be let to the lowest responsible bidder, includes structures such as buildings and bridges. Chippewa Bridge Co. v. Durand [Wis.] 99 N. W. 603. No contract can be let for a patented article unless there was opportunity for competitive bidding. Water meters. Kay v. Monroe, 93 App. Div. 484, 87 N. Y. S. 831. See 2 Curr. L. 975, n. 40.

40. Giving notice of the adoption of a resolution, as a prerequisite for receiving bids, in which resolution date was left blank but was filled in by a city officer confers no jurisdiction and renders contract invalid.

(§ 12) C. Construction and effect.[42]—A contract lawfully made is inviolable, either by the legislature,[43] or by the municipality;[44] but, as in the case of other contracts, if an agreement is invalid in part only, the part which is good may be enforced if it can be separated from the part which is bad.[45] A provision in a paving contract that the contractor shall keep the paving in repair for five years is not void on the ground that the city charter does not permit the charging of abutting owners for repairs,[46] and the contract of one who has done certain work for a municipality is not affected because he failed to observe a provision of his contract limiting the hours of laborers to eight hours.[47] The stipulation in a contract for water that the city shall not for 30 years exact a license tax in excess of a stated sum is void.[48]

(§ 12) D. Ultra vires and unauthorized contracts.[49]—The ultra vires contract of a municipality is unenforceable,[50] and where the city is entirely without authority, recovery cannot be had for material or services rendered it.[51] Otherwise, however, where it had authority but imperfectly exercised it.[52] That a contract is ultra vires in part will not necessarily invalidate the entire contract.[53] The power of the legislature to ratify a contract, entered into by a municipality for a public purpose which is ultra vires, results from its power to have originally authorized the very contract which was made.[54] If a contract, in form, by a municipality, which it is prohibited from making except in a particular manner, is invalid for want of substantial compliance with such manner, it cannot be made valid by acts of ratification short of such as would render a new contract valid.[55] There can be no ratification in the absence of knowledge by the city of the infirmities which invalidate the contract.[56]

Pennsylvania Co. v. Cole, 132 F. 668. See 2 Curr. L. 975, n. 41.

41. The acceptance of a bid already made when the successful bidder defaults is necessitated by the provisions of California Act, March 11, 1901, for the granting of street railway franchise by a municipality to the next highest bidder therefor in case the successful bidder fails to make the requisite deposit. Pacific Elec. R. Co. v. Los Angeles, 194 U. S. 112, 48 Law. Ed. 896. See 2 Curr. L. 975, n. 45.

42. See 2 Curr. L. 976.

43. A contract under which a street railway is to maintain the surface of the street inside of the rails, but that the expense of a permanent improvement of the street is to be borne by the city, cannot be affected by subsequent legislation. City of Rochester v. Rochester R. Co., 98 App. Div. 521, 91 N. Y. S. 87. See 2 Curr. L. 976, n. 66.

44. A city cannot escape payment for lights upon the plea of a prior existing contract under which the council had appropriated all of the taxes laid for lighting purposes, where it appeared that such appropriation was not compulsory by the terms of the former contract. Kennedy v. New York, 99 App. Div. 588, 91 N. Y. S. 252. See 2 Curr. L. 976, n. 67.

45. Ordinance contracting for street lights held indivisible. Meyer v. Boonville, 162 Ind. 165, 70 N. E. 146.

46. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Munn [Mo.] 83 S. W. 1062.

47. People v. Grout [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 464.

48. City of Birmingham v. Birmingham Waterworks Co., 139 Ala. 531, 36 So. 614.

49. See 2 Curr. L. 977.

50. Construction of waterworks. Smith v. Stoughton, 185 Mass. 329, 70 N. E. 195. See 2 Curr. L. 977, n. 70. Damages cannot be recovered for breach of a contract made by a corporation ultra vires. Contract to construct waterworks for use of water to which town had no legal right. Smith v. Stoughton, 185 Mass. 329, 70 N. E. 195.

51. Citizens' Bank v. Spencer [Iowa] 101 N. W. 643. Though a city may have contracted beyond its limit, if there be some funds, plaintiff may recover to that extent. Lines v. Otego, 91 N. Y. S. 785.

52. Lines v. Otego, 91 N. Y. S. 785; City of Tyler v. Lester & Co. [Tex.] 78 S. W. 1058.

53. Where a city in consideration of its agreement to make certain street improvements has obtained a deed of land from plaintiff for a street, and has drawn from such land earth for use on other streets, so that plaintiff cannot be placed in statu quo, the fact that an insignificant part of the contract is ultra vires will not defeat the whole contract. Spier v. Kalamazoo [Mich.] 101 N. W. 846. See 2 Curr. L. 977, n. 82.

54. City of Leavenworth v. Leavenworth City & Ft. L. Water Co. [Kan.] 76 P. 451. See 2 Curr. L. 978, n. 88.

55. Chippewa Bridge Co. v. Durand [Wis.] 99 N. W. 603. Contract void because entered into at an illegally adjourned meeting cannot be validated by subsequently approving minutes of such meeting. Pennsylvania Co. v. Cole, 132 F. 668.

56. Disallowance by council of claim for price of horse. Kavanaugh v. Wausau, 120 Wis. 611, 98 N. W. 550.

Unauthorized contracts.[57]—Unauthorized contracts cannot be supported by an estoppel,[58] but where a lessee had enjoyed the benefit of wharf leases, he was estopped to plead that the premises were locus publicus and the leases ultra vires.[59]

(§ 12) E. Effect of interest of officers in municipal contracts.[60]—A contract in which a member of a city government is interested, directly or indirectly, is void.[61] But this does not prevent a member of a city council being employed to attend small pox patients for whose care the county is liable.[62] A contract entered into between a private corporation and a city is void if at the time of its execution one of the members of the council was also a stockholder in such private corporation.[63] Such a contract does not become valid and legal when subsequently the interested member of council sells the stock which he owned at the execution of the contract.[64]

§ 13. Fiscal affairs and management.[65]—Public funds and public credit can be devoted to public purposes only.[66] Payment out of a particular fund cannot be compelled when there has been no appropriation for that fund or that made has been exhausted.[67] The purchase of a cemetery is not such a debt as a city may incur without complying with a constitutional provision forbidding the creation of a debt unless provision be made at the same time for a sinking fund.[68] A city may for the purpose of paying existing indebtedness levy and collect taxes in excess of the rate limited for general purposes,[69] and an imperative duty as to a levy imposed by an earlier statute may be superseded by discretionary power granted in a later enactment.[70] Under a levy of municipal taxes for general purposes, the fund so obtained cannot in Kentucky be deflected for street sprinkling.[71] Under the present Kentucky constitution more than one proposition to bond a municipality may be voted on at one and the same time.[72] The Maryland statute authorizing the city of Baltimore to create a loan for the purpose of extending the city's water service did not have the effect, together with the provisions of the charter, of causing the amount appropriated by ordinance for the purpose of a reservoir to pass into the city's general sinking fund.[73] Interest on municipal bonds may not be treated as an item of governmental expense, thus enabling a municipality to defeat creditors in an effort to subject excess over necessary current expenditures to satisfaction of demands.[74] The purchase of voting

57. See 2 Curr. L. 977.
58. See 2 Curr. L. 977, n. 84.
59. Town of Morgan City v. Dalton, 112 La. 9, 36 So. 208.
60. See 2 Curr. L. 978.
61. The city is under no liability in such case, and trustee process against it will not lie. O'Neil v. Flannagan, 98 Me. 426, 57 A. 591.
62. Dewitt v. Mills County [Iowa] 101 N. W. 766.
63. 64. Hardy v. Gainesville, 121 Ga. 327, 48 S. E. 921.
65. See 2 Curr. L. 978. See, also, Municipal Bonds, 4 Curr. L. 706; Taxes, 2 Curr. L. 1786.
66. Mt. Sinai Hospital v. Hyman, 92 App. Div. 270, 87 N. Y. S. 276. See 2 Curr. L. 978, n. 98. The borrowing of money by the issuance of bonds to pay a judgment indebtedness is a pledge of the city's credit for corporate purposes. Stone v. Chicago, 207 Ill. 492, 69 N. E. 970. Section 135 of the Municipal Code of 1902, giving the council authority to provide for the deposit of public funds in a bank, is not unconstitutional on the ground that the city loans its credit to the bank. State v. Bowers, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 345.
67. Patrolman's salary. City of Chicago v. People, 210 Ill. 84, 71 N. E. 816. It is competent for the General Assembly to provide that the expenses connected with an election covering a particular locality shall be paid out of the general revenue funds of the municipality. City of Columbus v. Jeffrey, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 85.
68. City of Tyler v. Jester & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 74 S. W. 359.
69. City of St. Joseph v. Pitt [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 544.
70. Trustees of Free Public Library of Atlantic City v. City Council of Atlantic City [N. J. Law] 58 A. 1101.
71. City of Louisville v. Button [Ky.] 82 S. W. 293.
72. Woolfolk v. Paducah, 25 Ky. L. R. 2149, 80 S. W. 186.
73. Acts 1902, p. 445, c. 333. Callaway v. Baltimore [Md.] 57 A. 661.
74. City of Anniston v. Hurt, 140 Ala. 394, 37 So. 220.

machines constitutes an appropriation within a charter prohibition upon the appropriation of money except by affirmative vote of two-thirds of members of council.[75]

Limitation of indebtedness.[76]—Almost without exception the states have constitutional provisions enjoining the incurring of indebtedness in excess of a specified sum.[77] Judgments against a city, unprovided for, should be included in determining a city's indebtedness with reference to the constitutional limitation.[78] But the amount held in a city treasury with which to pay special assessment bonds,[79] the amount of anticipation tax bonds,[80] amount held by a city treasurer as due the sinking fund,[81] are not debts within the sense of a constitutional limitation. Contracts calling for periodical payments do not create an indebtedness for the aggregate sums within the meaning of an inhibition upon indebtedness,[82] but a contract to pay for lighting at a certain amount monthly in "valid warrants" creates an indebtedness within a charter provision that indebtedness "must never exceed" a stated amount.[83] The expense of water and light is an ordinary expense; the construction of a waterworks station or electric light plant is an extraordinary expense.[84] The issue of municipal bonds and the creation of indebtedness so evidenced are treated in a separate article.[85] The manner in which municipal corporations must exercise their taxing power is likewise treated elsewhere.[86]

§ 14. Torts and crimes.[87]—A municipal corporation is not liable for torts committed in the exercise of public or governmental functions,[88] nor in the exer-

75. People v. Geneva, 90 N. Y. S. 275.

76. See 2 Curr. L. 980.

77. The provision of the New Jersey constitution declaring that the legislature shall not create any debt or liability of the state, exceeding $100,000, without the previous approval of the people at a general election, has no application to municipal indebtedness. Van Cleve v. Passaic Valley Sewerage Com'rs [N. J. Law] 58 A. 571. An ordinance accepting a gift for a library building offered on condition that the city guaranty $1,000 annually for maintenance contravenes the Kentucky constitutional provision that no city shall become indebted for an amount exceeding in any year the revenue provided for such year without assent of the voters. Ramsey v. Shelbyville [Ky.] 83 S. W. 116.

78. So also the "water fund debt" is debt of a city. Stone v. Chicago, 207 Ill. 492, 69 N. E. 970.

79, 80, 81. Stone v. Chicago, 207 Ill. 492, 69 N. E. 970.

82. The debt of each month or year does not come into existence until earned. Voss v. Waterloo Water Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 208. The making of a contract by a city for water for a number of years does not create a debt, but the liability thereunder arises only from year to year. City of Tyler v. Jester & Co. [Tex.] 78 S. W. 1058. A contract by a city to pay a stated sum semi-annually as hydrant rentals during a term of years for water to be furnished by a water company for fire purposes does not create a debt within the meaning of a constitutional provision prohibiting the incurring of debts beyond a certain limit. Columbia Ave. Sav. Fund, Safe Deposit, Title & Trust Co. v. Dawson, 130 F. 152.

83. At least where the amount is not made payable out of a fund on hand or provided for. Brockway v. Roseburg [Or.] 79 P. 335.

84. Voss v. Waterloo Water Co. [Ind.] 71 N. E. 208.

85. See Municipal Bonds, 4 Curr. L. 706.

86. Local assessments is treated in Public Works and Improvements, 2 Curr. L. 1328; other taxation in Taxes, 2 Curr. L. 1786.

87. See 2 Curr. L. 982. See, also, Torts, 2 Curr. L. 1875, and topics treating of particular kinds of torts, e. g. Negligence, 4 Curr. L. 996, or of torts in respect of a particular thing, e. g. Highways and Streets, 3 Curr. L. 1593. As to criminal capacity generally see Criminal Law, 3 Curr. L. 979.

88. When the state imposes on an incorporated city the absolute duty of performing some act, which the state may lawfully perform and pertaining to the administration of government, the city in the performance of that duty may be clothed with the immunities of the state; but when the city is merely authorized by way of special privilege to perform such an act in part for its corporate benefit, it is not clothed with these immunities and is liable for negligence. Hourigan v. Norwich [Conn.] 59 A. 487. In determining what part of a street it will improve or grade, a municipality acts in a governmental capacity, and is not liable (Ely v. St. Louis, 181 Mo. 723, 81 S. W. 168), even though shade trees are destroyed (Gallaher v. Jefferson [Iowa] 101 N. W. 124). But after the ordinance for an improvement has been passed and the city undertakes the work of construction required by the ordinance, it acts in a ministerial capacity, and if in that capacity it is guilty of negligence to the injury of an individual, it is liable. Ely v. St. Louis, 181 Mo. 723, 81 S. W. 168. In the laying out of a sewer or drain the city acts under authority from the state and cise of the police power for the protection of health.[89] Neither is it liable for failure to exercise charter powers to abate nuisances,[90] nor for failure to enact or enforce ordinances.[91] A railroad company having a right to elevate its track without liability to adjoining owners, the city cannot be made liable for requiring such elevation for the public safety.[92]

But for torts committed in the performance of private or nongovernmental functions, a municipality is liable.[93] So is it liable for injuries caused by unsafe is not liable; but the maintenance or repair thereof is not a continuance of the same work, and the city is liable. Kidson v. Bangor [Me.] 58 A. 900. The lighting of the streets of a city is a governmental function for the failure to perform which the city is not liable. City of Vincennes v. Spees [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 531. Destruction of private sewer through laying of water mains is damnum absque injuria. Bennett v. Mt. Vernon [Iowa] 100 N. W. 349. Nor is it liable for the negligent construction, maintenance or use of appliances for the extinguishment of fires. A water plant is such an appliance. Aschoff v. Evansville [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 279. In the absence of express contract a water company which contracts only for general fire protection to a municipality is not liable to it for property destroyed by fire for failure to provide a sufficient water supply at the time of the fire. Town of Ukiah City v. Ukiah Water & Improvement Co., 142 Cal. 173, 75 P. 773. See 2 Curr. L. 982, n. 50.

NOTE. Liability for deficient water supply: Where a city establishes or acquires its own system of waterworks, it is not liable to citizens whose property is destroyed by fire for failure to provide an adequate supply. Patch v. Covington, 17 B. Mon. [Ky.] 722, 66 Am. Dec. 186; Van Horne v. Des Moines, 63 Iowa, 447, 19 N. W. 293, 50 Am. Rep. 750; Tainter v. Worcester, 123 Mass. 311, 25 Am. Rep. 90; Insurance Co. v. Keeseville, 148 N. Y. 46, 42 N. E. 405, 51 Am. St. Rep. 667, 30 L. R. A. 660; Mendel v. Wheeling, 28 W. Va. 233, 57 Am. Rep. 665; Wheeler v. Cincinnati, 19 Ohio St. 19, 2 Am. Rep. 368; Brinkmeyer v. Evansville, 29 Ind. 137; Black v. Columbia, 19 S. C. 412, 45 Am. Rep. 785; Foster v. Lookout Water Co., 3 Lea [Tenn.] 42; Sievers v. San Francisco, 115 Cal. 654, 47 P. 687, 56 Am. St. Rep. 153. Nor, where, instead of acquiring its own system and attempting to itself provide the water for such purpose, the city contracts with a water company to furnish such service, is such water company liable, at the suit of a third person for property destroyed under like circumstances. Becker v Water Works, 79 Iowa, 419, 44 N. W. 694, 18 Am. St. Rep. 377; Davis v. Water Works, 5[illegible] Iowa, 59, 6 N. W. 126, 37 Am. Rep. 185; Bri[illegible]on v. Water Co., 81 Wis. 48, 51 N. W. 84, 29 Am. St. Rep. 856; Ferris v. Water Co., 16 Nev. 44, 40 Am. Rep. 485; Beck v. Water Co. [Pa.] 11 A. 300; Nickerson v. B. Ry. Co., 46 Conn. 24, 33 Am. Rep. 1; Fowler v. Water Works, 83 Ga. 219, 9 S. E. 673, 20 Am. St. Rep. 313; Atkinson v. Newcastle, 2 Exch. Div. 441; Foster v. Water Co., 3 Lea [Tenn.] 42; Eaton v. Fairburg Water Works Co., 37 Neb. 546, 56 N. W. 201, 40 Am. St. Rep. 510, 21 L. R. A. 653; Fitch v. Water Co., 139 Ind. 214, 37 N. E. 982, 47 Am. St. Rep. 258; Mott v. Water Co., 48 Kan. 12, 28 P. 989, 30 Am. St. Rep. 267, 15 L. R. A. 375; Howsmon v. Water Co., 119 Mo. 304, 24 S. W. 784, 41 Am. St. Rep. 654, 23 L. R. A. 146.

Contra, Gorrell v. Water Co., 124 N. C. 328, 32 S. E. 720, 70 Am. St. Rep. 598, 46 L. R. A. 513; Paducah Lumber Co. v. Water Co., 89 Ky. 340, 12 S. W. 554, 13 S. W. 249, 25 Am. St. Rep. 536, 7 L. R. A. 77. Nor is such company liable at the suit of the city for the loss of municipal property. Town of Ukiah City v. Ukiah Water & Improvement Co., 142 Cal. 173, 75 P. 773. But a water company may so bind itself by express contract as to render itself liable for failure to furnish a sufficient supply of water under the circumstances indicated. Railroad Co. v. Water Works Co. [C. C. A.] 72 F. 227; Knappman Co. v. Water Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 45 A. 692, 49 L. R. A. 572; Paducah Lumber Co. v. Water Co., 89 Ky. 340, 12 S. W. 554, 13 S. W. 249, 25 Am. St. Rep. 536, 7 L. R. A. 77; Town of Ukiah City v. Ukiah City Water & Improvement Co. [Cal.] 75 P. 773. From opinion Town of Ukiah City v. Ukiah Water & Improvement Co., 142 Cal. 173, 75 P. 773. As to liability of water company for insufficient supply to afford fire protection, see article in 3 Michigan Law Review, 501.

89. In operating and maintaining a contagious disease bospital, a city acts in a governmental capacity and is not liable for the torts of its officers in charge thereof in maltreating patients. City of Lexington v. Batson's Adm'r [Ky.] 81 S. W. 264. A statute providing for the establishment of a plant for the purification of sewage is a measure for the benefit of public, and city is not liable to riparian owner on stream into which sewage was discharged for failure to erect adequate plant. Harrington v. Worcester, 186 Mass. 594, 72 N. E. 326. See 2 Curr. L. 982, n. 52.

90. See 2 Curr. L. 932, n. 53. But where an exhibition of fireworks was authorized and given under circumstances which would permit a jury to find it a public nuisance, the city was held liable for damages caused by premature explosion. Landau v. New York [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 631, rvg. same case 90 App. Div. 50, 85 N. Y. S. 616, represented in 2 Curr. L. 983, n. 55.

91. Failure to enforce removal of ash pit, whereby child fell on hot ashes. Veraguth v. Denver [Colo. App.] 76 P. 539. Failure to prevent bicycle riding on sidewalk. Bryant v. City Council of Orangeburg [S. C.] 49 S. E. 229.

92. Osburn v. Chicago, 105 Ill. App. 217.

93. A municipal corporation is performing a ministerial public duty in maintaining a fire station, and is liable in damages to an employe for personal injuries sustained from a neglect to furnisb him a reasonably safe public structures, although the defect exists in the plan adopted for their construction.[94]

A municipal corporation is liable for the torts of its officers, servants or agents only when the act is within the scope of their authority.[95] But unless the act complained of is expressly authorized or ratified or within the scope of the servant's or agent's authority, the city will not in general be liable.[96] Damages are not recoverable because of delay or neglect of officers in performance of ministerial duty.[97]

A municipality is liable only for its own negligence or for the negligence of some one for whose conduct it is legally responsible.[98] The principle of respondeat superior does not extend to cases of independent contractors where the city for whom the work is done is not the immediate superior of those guilty of the wrongful act, and has no control over the manner of doing the work under the contract.[99] But this doctrine does not apply where the contract directly requires the performance of a work intrinsically dangerous, however skillfully performed,[1] and place to work. Bowden v. Kansas City [Kan.] 77 P. 573. A city is not relieved from liability for negligence in connection with the construction of a dam from which it secures its water supply on the ground that the supplying of water is a governmental function. Town of Southeast v. New York, 96 App. Div. 598, 89 N. Y. S. 630. Where a city operates a ferry for hire it is liable as other carriers. Townsend v. Boston [Mass.] 72 N. E. 991. City owning waterworks liable for bursting of pipes under extra pressure during fire. Aschoff v. Evansville [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 279. Where, in grading a street abutting plaintiff's lot, the work was so done as to bring the surface of the street to grade for its full width, whereby, in the absence of a retaining wall, the foot of the grade extended onto the adjoining premises, the municipality was liable. Bunker v. Hudson [Wis.] 99 N. W. 448. See also for injuries from change of grade, United New Jersey R. & Canal Co. v. Lewis [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 227. Evidence held to sustain a judgment that city had improperly placed curb stones on plaintiff's premises. City of Latonia v. Hall [Ky.] 83 S. W. 556. The fact that a system of sewers by means of which sewage was discharged into a stream, was of permanent construction did not render the nuisance occasioned by such discharge a permanent one. Vogt v. Grinnell, 123 Iowa, 332, 98 N. W. 782.

94. Railing on bridge. McDonald v. Duluth [Minn.] 100 N. W. 1102. Defective plan of street crossing. Carroll's Adm'r v. Louisville, 25 Ky. L. R. 1888, 78 S. W. 1117. Construction of inadequate culverts. Davelaar v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 101 N. W. 361. Where there are obstacles to be overcome in the construction of any public work, and reasonable minds may differ as to whether the plan adopted therefor by the municipality was the best and safest one, the decision of the municipality cannot be reviewed by the courts. McDonald v. Duluth [Minn.] 100 N. W. 1102. Hospital. Deaconess Home & Hospital v. Bontjes, 104 Ill. App. 484.

95. Where an enlargement of a city water reservoir was being carried on under supervision of board of water commissioners, city is liable for negleot of such commissioners. Hourigan v. Norwich [Conn.] 59 A. 487. City liable for negligent act of servant of park commissioners in stretching rope across street to injury of bicycle rider. Kleopfert v. Minneapolis [Minn.] 100 N. W. 669. Negligence of operator of elevator in city building. Fox v. Philadelphia, 208 Pa. 127, 57 A. 356. Error of engineer in locating place to sink crib in the construction of waterworks system. O'Neill v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 98 N. W. 963. Establishment of plant for purification of water system. Harrington v. Worcester, 186 Mass. 594, 72 N. E. 326.

96. City not liable to subsequent purchaser for act of city engineer in giving erroneous grade of street. Moore v. Lancaster [Pa.] 58 A. 890. A contractor grading a street is not entitled to recover from the city for errors of the city surveyor in giving him the grade, his contract expressly stipulating to the contrary, though he doubted the correctness of the grade and only proceeded on positive instructions of the superintendent. Becker v. New York, 176 N. Y. 441, 68 N. E. 855. City not liable for injuries caused by servant throwing snow from roof of city hall (Kelly v. Boston [Mass.] 71 N. E. 299), nor for negligence of its employe engaged in transporting coal to its fire station (Manske v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 101 N. W. 377). The act of a city in laying out and constructing a sewer which creates a nuisance upon plaintiff's land is ultra vires and city not liable. Atwood v. Biddeford [Me.] 58 A. 417.

97. Gordon v. Omaha [Neb.] 99 N. W. 242.

98. It is not legally responsible for a contractor who is not its agent or servant, nor engaged in performing a duty imposed by law upon it. Thompson v. West Bay City [Mich.] 100 N. W. 280.

99. City not liable for negligence of contractor doing work under legislative direction. Morris v. Interurban St. R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 479.

1. Excavating tunnel with dynamite. City of Chicago v. Murdock, 212 Ill. 9, 72 N. E. 46. A city is responsible for damage resulting from the acts of an independent contractor employed by it where the matter involved is one of positive duty owed by the city, or where the work in itself is intrinsically dangerous, or liable, even when properly done, to create a nuisance. Severance where an individual or a corporation does work pursuant to a special franchise or charter power, the doctrine of respondeat superior is applicable.[2]

At the common law, municipalities were not liable for injuries resulting from defective streets. But under statutes they are now responsible for failure, after notice,[3] to remove obstructions produced by other than natural causes,[4] as well as for permitting excavations to remain unguarded.[5] So, a municipal corporation is liable for the consequences of an unlawful use of its streets, sanctioned by its permit,[6] for damage to property caused by collapse of a culvert which it was its duty to maintain,[7] and for personal injuries resulting from telephone wires having fallen into street.[8]

For faults or imperfections in its system of sewers, a city or town is not liable;[9] but it is liable for negligence in the work of construction,[10] or in the maintenance or repair of a sewer,[11] unless such construction is entirely unauthorized.[12] A municipality may not collect surface water in a channel and cast it on land of abutter.[13] But the fact that a city has macadamized the surface of a street and constructed catch basins and conduits whereby the flow of surface water is accelerated will not render it liable for the overflowing of a stream into which the drainage water empties.[14] A city is not liable for the death of a child from typhoid fever contracted from drinking impure water of a well on the ground that the city had deposited the contents of a sewer into an open stream, the same percolating through gravelly soil to the well.[15] The remedy given by the South Carolina Code, 1902, §§ 2008, 2012, to a private person whose property outside of private sewer through laying water mains. Bennett v. Mt. Vernon [Iowa] 100 N. W. 349.

2. City of Chicago v. Murdock, 212 Ill. 9, 72 N. E. 46. Injury from paving blocks left on sidewalk during construction of public improvement. Recovery denied against city because cause of action improperly predicated as against it. Hesselbach v. St. Louis, 179 Mo. 505, 78 S. W. 1009.

3. Knowledge of a policeman of a defect in a sidewalk, which it is his duty to report, is knowledge of the city. Payne v. Cleveland, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 37. Police officers may become agents of a city by reason of a custom to use them that way. Customary to report defects in street. Notice of defect to police officer held notice to city. Kittredge v. Cincinnati, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 6.

4. Such holdings are not in conflict with the line of cases that a municipality is not liable for failure to remove snow and ice. McEvoy v. Sault Ste. Marie [Mich.] 98 N. W. 1006.

5. Defective temporary bridge over excavation. Coolidge v. New York, 90 N. Y. S. 1078. Failure to provide railing or guard at excavation. City of Vincennes v. Spees [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 531. Falling through trap door in sidewalk in course of reconstruction. McClammy v. Spokane [Wash.] 78 P. 912.

6. Discharge of fireworks during political parade under suspension of ordinance. Landau v. New York [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 631, rvg. 90 App. Div. 50, 85 N. Y. S. 616. See 2 Curr. L. 982, n. 55.

7. City of Richmond v. Gallego Mills Co., 102 Va. 165, 45 S. E. 877.

8. West Kentucky Tel. Co. v. Pharis, 25 Ky. L. R. 1838, 78 S. W. 917.

9. Failure of sewer to carry off great accumulation of water due to heavy rainfall. Manning v. Springfield, 184 Mass. 245, 68 N. E. 202. Whether manholes were in working order just prior to a storm which caused the flooding presents a question of fact for the jury. Sundheimer v. New York, 176 N. Y. 495, 68 N. E. 867. A municipality is not responsible for damages caused by unexpected and unusual rainfalls, but only for those which experience has shown are liable to occur. Lakey Co. v. Kalamazoo [Mich.] 101 N. W. 841. Nor is it liable for obstructions in a creek over which it has no control except for purposes of sanitation. Id.

10. Municipality liable for damages from overflow of sewer caused by draining larger area than sewer originally intended for. Ahrens v. Rochester, 97 App. Div. 480, 90 N. Y. S. 744. City liable for diverting water on abutting land through new pavement of street and not providing sufficient outlets. City of Houston v. Hutcheson [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 86.

11. Kidson v. Bangor [Me.] 58 A. 900.

12. The act of a city, in its corporate capacity, in laying out and constructing sewers which creates a nuisance upon plaintiff's land, is ultra vires. Atwood v. Biddeford [Me.] 58 A. 417.

13. Miles v. Brooklyn, 90 N. Y. S. 702 (by changing grade of street); Johnson v. White [R. I.] 58 A. 658, 65 L. R. A. 250, with note "Rights and Duties of Municipalities with Respect to Surface Water."

14. Smith v. Auburn, 88 App. Div. 396, 84 N. Y. S. 725.

Contra: That a city is liable for collection and discharge of sewage in a volume into creek to injury of lower owner. Smith v. Sedalia, 182 Mo. 1, 81 S. W. 165.

15. Wharton v. Bradford City, 209 Pa. 319, 58 A. 621.

of a city is damaged by the sewerage emptied into a stream, is exclusive, and such person cannot sue the city for torts nor to abate the nuisance.[16] A city street commissioner employing laborers paid for by the city is responsible only for reasonable care in the selection of men and materials.[17]

§ 15. Claims and demands.[18]—This section relates to claims and demands but not to the subject-matter thereof nor to those liabilities incurred in particular functions.[19] Where it is provided that claims against municipal corporations shall first be presented,[20] it is generally held that presentment is a condition precedent to suit,[21] that presentment must be in the prescribed form and manner,[22] on the proper officers,[23] by the proper person,[24] and within the prescribed time,[25] unless the failure to do so is excused for good cause,[26] or the city has already made notice or claim useless.[27] In the matter of presentment of claims, however, only substantial compliance is required,[28] and defects in the notice may be waived.[29] Acceptance of service of such a notice may be by the mayor,[30] and the city clerk

16. Matheny v. Aiken, 68 S. C. 163, 47 S. E. 56.

17. Bowden v. Derby [Me.] 58 A. 993.

18. See 2 Curr. L. 984.

19. See Highways and Streets, 3 Curr. L. 1593; Sheriffs and Constables, 2 Curr. L. 1640.

20. The general statute of Washington does not require demands for personal injuries to be filed. Gallamore v. Olympia, 34 Wash. 379, 75 P. 978. Montana Pol. Code, § 4811, requiring all demands against city to be presented to council, itemized and verified, does not apply to a claim for personal injuries. Dawes v. Great Falls [Mont.] 77 P. 309. Claim for damages from overflow of sewer not within provisions for notice in cases affecting cities of second class in New York. Ahrens v. Rochester, 97 App. Div. 480, 90 N. Y. S. 744.

21. That the filing of notice is a condition precedent to maintenance of action and must be pleaded and proved. Biggs v. Geneva, 90 N. Y. S. 858. In Kansas the effect of a failure to file claim is to prevent the recovery of costs. City of Garnett v. Hamilton [Kan.] 77 P. 583. Under the Wisconsin statute, where the council does not act on a claim within 60 days, and an appeal must be taken within 20 days, limitations do not run until notice to claimant. Lyon v. Grand Rapids [Wis.] 99 N. W. 311. And in that state it is not essential to the court's jurisdiction that the complaint allege the making and filing of the clerk's return in response to the appeal from disallowance. Horan v. Eau Claire [Wis.] 100 N. W. 1063. See 2 Curr. L. 984, n. 79.

22. Where notice of claim for damages was given and acted on by the city, the fact that it did not state amount of claim can not be availed of in an action on the claim. Spier v. Kalamazoo [Mich.] 101 N. W. 846. The Iowa statute does not require the causes which produced the injury to be enumerated [Code, § 3447]. McCartney v. Washington [Iowa] 100 N. W. 80. Statement of cause of accident held sufficient. McCarthy v. Syracuse, 96 App. Div. 566, 89 N. Y. S. 89. A requirement of verification may be waived. Hunter v. Durand [Mich.] 100 N. W. 191. Under New Jersey Act of 1904, p. 259, claims must be first presented to mayor for his approval. Fox v. Clark [N. J. Law] 59 A. 224. See 2 Curr. L. 984, n. 80.

23. Presentation to and consideration by the common council of the claim is not a waiver of the notice, none having been served on the proper officer. Wilton v. Detroit [Mich.] 100 N. W. 1020; Holtham v. Detroit [Mich.] 98 N. W. 754. Where, as a condition precedent to action for injuries on defective sidewalk, written notice must be given to the head of the city's legal department, notice to an assistant in such department is not sufficient. Holtham v. Detroit [Mich.] 98 N. W. 754. Where it is required that the notice be filed with the corporation counsel, a complaint which alleges that the notice was filed with the comptroller will not warrant a showing that the notice was transmitted to the corporation counsel and acted on by him. Bedell v. New York, 90 N. Y. S. 936. See 2 Curr. L. 984, n. 81.

24. Where parent and child are both injured, notice on behalf of each must be filed. Seliger v. New York, 88 N. Y. S. 1003. See 2 Curr. L. 984, n. 82.

25. In computing the time of notice, the day of the injury is to be excluded. McEvoy v. Sault Ste. Marie [Mich.] 98 N. W. 1006. But see Biggs v. Geneva, 90 N. Y. S. 858, where a notice given March 11, the injury having occurred February 10, is held insufficient. Time computed from death of decedent and not granting of letters of administration. Crapo v. Syracuse, 90 N. Y. S. 553. See 2 Curr. L. 984, n. 83.

26. See 2 Curr. L. 984, n. 84.

27. See 2 Curr. L. 985, n. 85.

28. Where during the period allowed for filing notice one is disabled from doing so, but does so on recovery, this is sufficient. Williams v. Port Chester, 97 App. Div. 84, 89 N. Y. S. 671. Statute requiring filing of claim said to be in derogation of common law and therefore to be liberally construed. City of Denver v. Bradbury [Colo. App.] 75 P. 1077. In determining the sufficiency of such a notice the court is not bound by its terms alone, but may examine it in the light of extraneous evidence, showing the situation and surroundings, and thus determine whether it sufficiently apprised the municipality of the location and nature of the alleged defect or obstruction which caused the accident. Connor v. Salt Lake City [Utah] 78 P. 479.

29. Verification may be waived. Hunter may testify that a claim was presented to the council.[31] That a cause of action is barred because of want of notice is an affirmative defense, and to be available the facts constituting it must be pleaded.[32] The provision of a city charter prohibiting the payment of a claim pending an appeal from the disallowance thereof does not restrict the jurisdiction of the Federal courts over claims of citizens of other states.[33] After a city assessment for sewering has been judicially declared invalid, and a curative act has been passed purporting to cure such assessment, the city should be given an opportunity to reassess before instituting suit.[34] A partial estimate made by the city engineer on a paving contract, and reported by him to the board of public works and the city council for approval, is a claim against the city.[35] The work of lining up and repairing a curb by replacing rotten stones with new ones where necessary is repair work, which must be paid for by the city under the St. Louis city charter.[36]

Audit and approval.[37]

Interest.[38]—Where under a charter provision that warrants shall be drawn on the treasury presentation is made to one who has none of the funds or access thereto, such warrant will not bear interest, irrespective of whether the one to whom presentment was made had any claim to the office of treasurer.[39] Where both damages and benefits were assessed on real estate in street opening proceedings, and the city was liable for interest on the damages, interest should also be charged against the owner on the unpaid benefits.[40]

Warrants and judgments.[41]—Charter provisions as to the signature of warrants must be observed.[42] An appeal suspends the order of the council, and during its pendency the comptroller is not required to deliver the warrant.[43] A municipal warrant is not negotiable.[44] The acceptance by the treasurer or comptroller of an order drawn on the city operates as not only an equitable but legal assignment.[45] The statute of limitations does not run in favor of a municipal corporation, upon its outstanding obligations evidenced by warrants, until the corporation has provided a fund out of which payment of the same may be made.[46] On the other hand, limitations do not begin to run against an action against a city for wrongful diversion of a special fund until the holder of warrants against

v. Durand [Mich.] 100 N. W. 191. But presentation to and consideration by the city's council is not a waiver in the absence of notice on proper officer. Wilton v. Detroit [Mich.] 100 N. W. 1020. See 2 Curr. L. 985, n. 90.

30. McCartney v. Washington [Iowa] 100 N. W. 80.

31. Jewell City v. Van Meter [Kan.] 79 P. 149.

32. Borghart v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 101 N. W. 1120; Bunker v. Hudson [Wis.] 99 N. W. 448. See 2 Curr. L. 985, n. 89.

33. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Morris [C. C. A.] 132 F. 945.

34. Citizens' Bank v. Spencer [Iowa] 101 N. W. 643.

35. See 33 Omaha charter. Lobeck v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 247.

36. Perkinson v. Schnake [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 301.

37, 38. See 2 Curr. L. 985.

39. Valley Bank v. Brodie [Ariz.] 76 P. 617.

40. In re City of New York, 91 App. Div. 553, 87 N. Y. S. 123.

41. See 2 Curr. L. 985.

42. Where a city charter provided that warrants must be signed by the mayor and auditor, a warrant not signed by the mayor is of no validity. Valley Bank v. Brodie [Ariz.] 76 P. 617. And the fact that formalities were not observed in the presentation of an account to the president of a village does not prevent mandamus in a proper case to compel him to sign warrants therefor, where he did not put his refusal to sign on that ground. Clapp v. Titus [Mich.] 100 N. W. 1005. Where a city charter provides that the vice chairman of the council may act as president where the latter is incapacitated, his signature to a tax warrant will be presumed to have been necessitated. City of New York v. Streeter [N. Y.] 72 N. E. 631.

43. Nor during the pendency of such appeal will mandamus lie to compel a delivery. Lobeck v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 247.

44. Though made so in form. Bona fide holder not protected in purchase from one without authority to sell. First Nat. Bank v. Gates, 66 Kan. 505, 72 P. 207.

45. Third Nat. Bank v. Atlantic City [C. C. A.] 130 F. 751.

46. Barnes v. Turner [Okl.] 78 P. 108. See 2 Curr. L. 985, n. 99.

the fund had notice of the diversion.[47] The fact that the moneys appropriated have been expended is no defense to an action on a warrant.[48] In support of a judgment it will be presumed that an ordinance was introduced the prescribed time before it was passed.[49] Statute passed after the rendition of judgments may be applicable to those judgments if they are still pending in appellate courts on review.[50] Under statute permitting appeal on bill of exceptions from judgment of municipal authorities, the appeal cannot be heard on oral testimony.[51]

§ 16. Actions by and against.[52] A. In general.[53]—A city may maintain ejectment to recover a portion of one of its public streets,[54] and may sue to recover taxes due it irrespective of charter provisions.[55] An action for injury to the bridges and highways of a town is properly brought in the name of the town.[56] A citizen and taxpayer of a municipality is not entitled to maintain a suit to recover funds of the city alleged to have been misappropriated, without first having demanded that the suit should be brought by the public officers, or without alleging and proving facts affirmatively indicating that such demand would be unavailing.[57]

Where the act of incorporation expressly provides that suit against a city shall be brought in its corporate name, a suit against the mayor and council thereof is not maintainable.[58] Property belonging to a municipal corporation and which is in use for the public or held for future use is not subject to levy and sale under an execution.[59] But property held by a city in its proprietary capacity is liable for the city's debt.[60]

(§ 16) B. Suits in equity.[61]—If the closing of a street results in damaging private property, the owner of the property thus damaged, by allowing the street

47. Northwestern Lumber Co. v. Aberdeen, 35 Wash. 636, 77 P. 1063.

48. Griffith v. New York, 173 N. Y. 612, 66 N. E. 1109, afg. without written opinion, 73 App. Div. 549, 77 N. Y. S. 136.

49. Town of Susanville v. Long, 144 Cal. 362, 77 P. 987.

50. Writ of mandamus to compel disconnection of land from a city was granted. While pending on appeal, statute was passed making such proceeding discretionary. Held, that the statute applied to the judgment, the ordinance of disconnection not having been passed. City of Roodhouse v. Briggs, 105 Ill. App. 116.

51. Order adopting map of streets. City of Greenwood v. Henderson [Miss.] 37 So. 745.

52. Practice questions usually involve principles more pertinent to the general practice titles than to this. They should be consulted.

53. See 2 Curr. L. 985.

NOTE. Running of limitations against municipal corporations: "The authorities do not seem to be harmonious on the question whether municipal corporations are affected by statutes of limitations under all circumstances. Of course, the matter is regulated by statute to a large extent. The courts often say, in a general way, that statutes of limitations run against municipal corporations in the same manner as against individuals. City of Alton v. Illinois Transportation Co., 12 Ill. 38, 52 Am. Dec. 479; City of Pella v. Scholte, 24 Iowa, 283, 95 Am. Dec. 729; Clements v. Anderson, 46 Miss. 581; St. Charles Tp. School Directors v. Goerges, 50 Mo. 196; Knight v. Heaton, 22 Vt. 480. Other courts draw a distinction and state that statutes of limitations run against municipal corporations except as to property devoted to a public use or held upon a public trust, and except as to contracts of a public nature. City of Ft. Smith v. McKibben, 41 Ark. 49, 48 Am. Rep. 19; Logan County v. Lincoln, 81 Ill. 158; Bedford v. Willard, 133 Ind. 562, 33 N. E. 368, 36 Am. St. Rep. 563; Ralston v. Weston, 46 W. Va. 544, 33 S. E. 326, 76 Am. St. Rep. 834. But this distinction has also been repudiated as unsound. See City of Cincinnati v. First Presbyterian Church, 8 Ohio, 298, 32 Am. Dec. 718. The rule and reasons for it and the distinction where the litigation involves rights of the whole public, from that where the litigation involves merely municipal rights are considered more fully in a note to 101 Am. St. Rep. 144, entitled "The Maxim, Nullum Tempus Occurrit Regi," from which at page 157 this is quoted.

54. City of Port Townsend v. Lewis, 34 Wash. 413, 75 P. 982.

55. Adoption of new charter and repealing former without saving clause. Bennison v. Galveston [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 1089.

56. Town of Southeast v. New York, 96 App. Div. 598, 89 N. Y. S. 630.

57. Reed v. Cunningham [Iowa] 101 N. W. 1055.

58. Augusta Southern R. Co. v. Tennille, 119 Ga. 804, 47 S. E. 179.

59. Walden v. Whigham, 120 Ga. 646, 48 S. E. 159.

60. Dunham v. Angus [Cal.] 78 P. 557.

61. See 2 Curr. L. 987.

to be closed without instituting proceedings to prevent it, waives his right to demand compensation as a condition precedent to the closing of the street, and is remitted to his action at law for damages.[62] The principle that one who seeks to abate a public nuisance must show a special interest does not apply to a taxpayer who seeks to enjoin an illegal or wrongful act,[63] and owners of land abutting on land dedicated and accepted as a public park may enjoin a village from using a portion of such park for a highway, though they show no damage to their lands.[64] But to entitle one to an injunction to prevent an obstruction to a public way, it must appear that he has sustained a peculiar damage differing, not merely in degree, but in kind, from that of the general public.[65] A taxpayer cannot maintain a suit to prevent city from granting franchise to telephone lines unless franchise constitutes such a wrongful squandering of money or property as to increase taxation.[66]

MUNICIPAL COURTS; MURDER; MUTUAL ACCOUNTS; MUTUAL INSURANCE, see latest topical index.

NAMES, SIGNATURES AND SEALS.

§ 1. Names (754). Business Names (755). Idem Sonans (755).
§ 2. Signatures (756).
§ 3. Seals (757).

§ 1. Names.[1]—One may be particularly described by the initial letter of his given name, as well as by the name in full,[2] especially where he is commonly so designated, answers to that name, and makes a practice of so writing it in ordinary business transactions.[3] A signing by the surname in full and the Christian name by its initial is generally regarded as sufficient in official signatures.[4]

The law recognizes but one given name.[5] Hence it is not essential to give the middle name or initial.[6] There is a conflict of authority as to the effect of a mistake therein, when it is given.[7]

62. Marietta Chair Co. v. Henderson, 121 Ga. 399, 49 S. E. 312.

63. Suit to enjoin carrying out ordinance contracting for street lights. Meyer v. Boonville, 162 Ind. 165, 70 N. E. 146.

64. Village of Riverside v. MacLain, 210 Ill. 308, 71 N. E. 408.

65. A person whose lot fronts upon the block next to one to be obstructed by the closing of the street, and whose lot will be greatly depreciated in value thereby, suffers such a peculiar injury. Tilly v. Mitchell & Lewis Co. [Wis.] 98 N. W. 969. Where a city and certain abutting owners attempted to widen the sidewalk and boulevard of a street within a certain half block, the owners of property further up the street could not maintain an injunction to restrain such action, since their rights in the street were held in common with the public and other residents thereon. Mitchell v. Peru [Ind.] 71 N. E. 132. Obstruction of sidewalk by abutting owner resulting in inconvenience to pedestrians and loss to business of adjoining owner may be enjoined. Brauer v. Baltimore Refrigerating & Heating Co. [Md.] 58 A. 21.

66. Clark v. Interstate Independent Tel. Co. [Neb.] 101 N. W. 977.

1. See 2 Curr. L. 988.

2. Cox v. Durham [C. C. A.] 128 F. 870. Notice of mechanic's lien not invalid because Christian name of signer designated by initials. Pearce v. Albright [N. M.] 76 P. 286.

3. Warrant commanding arrest of J. I. Cox held to protect officer in arrest thereon of James T. Cox, commonly known as J. T. Cox. Cox v. Durham [C. C. A.] 128 F. 870. Fact that replevin affidavit described plaintiff as "Charles Oleson," but was signed "Charley Olson," does not render it insufficient where justice certified that it was subscribed and sworn to before him. Olson v. Peabody [Wis.] 99 N. W. 458. Fact that replevin affidavit gave defendant's first name as "Wimmian" instead of "William," as it appeared in warrant, held immaterial, where he appeared in cause and name appeared in affidavit for removal as given in warrant. Id.

4. Transcript of judgment recovered in another state held admissible in evidence, though only initials of Christian names of clerk and judge are given in signatures of certificates. Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n v. McDonough [Ind.] 73 N. E. 703.

5. Cox v. Durham [C. C. A.] 128 F. 870.

6. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Pierce [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 604; Cox v. Durham [C. C. A.] 128 F. 870. Middle initial not necessary or material part of name. Lucas v. Current River Land & Cattle Co. [Mo.] 85 S. W. 359.

7. Mistake in name or initial constitutes fatal variance. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Pierce [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 604.

Mistake in middle initial of accused's name in warrant immaterial. Cox v. Durham [C. C. A.] 128 F. 870.

A widow using the initials of her deceased husband and known by his name may be so described in an assessment.[8]

By statute in Missouri if one is indicted by the wrong name he may be proceeded against by the name in the indictment unless he declares his true name before pleading.[9]

The fact that the descriptive term "Jr." attached to the name of one summoned as a juror is omitted in the copy of the jury list served on the accused is inconsequential, and does not affect the legality of the service, in the absence of a showing of prejudice.[10]

The omission of the Christian name of the complaining witness from a criminal warrant does not render defendant's preliminary examination nugatory.[11]

The words vice president,[12] trustee and the like are generally regarded as descriptio personae.[13]

Business names.[14]—In New York, carrying on business under an assumed name is forbidden by statute, unless a certificate is filed in conformity with the act.[15] The assumption of a corporate name by individuals for the purpose of soliciting business thereunder is forbidden in Illinois.[16] An individual or a corporation may use his or its name as a trade mark, but may be enjoined from so doing if some other has previously acquired the right to so use it.[17] The adoption of a name by a corporation gives it no greater right to its use than an individual would have.[18]

Certiorari will not lie to review the action of the secretary of state in permitting a certificate of incorporation to be filed by a company having a name so nearly resembling that of an existing corporation as to be calculated to deceive, but the latter has his remedy in equity.[19]

Idem sonans.[20]—Idem sonans means sounding the same or substantially iden-

8. "Mrs. D. J. Doyle." Tieman v. Johnston [La.] 38 So. 75.

9. Where accused misled state at time of his arrest by giving fictitious name, fact that he was proceeded against under that name did not relieve sureties on forfeited recognizance for his appearance, in which he was designated by his true name [Rev. St. 1899, § 2533]. State v. Ballentine [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 317. Evidence of officer making arrest was admissible to show what name accused gave to show his identity with principal in recognizance. Id.

10. Presumption is that it was omitted through clerical error. State v. Cafiero, 112 La. 453, 36 So. 492. Evidence is admissible to show that the juror drawn and summoned was the only person of that name in the ward, and that his father died more than a year before the drawing of the jury. Id.

11. Preliminary examination for having assaulted "—— Bert" will sustain an information and warrant a trial thereon for having assaulted "Joseph Burt." State v. Johnson [Kan.] 79 P. 732.

See Indictment and Prosecution, § 4 C, 4 Curr. L. 11.

12. Warranty deed to "E. H. P., vice president of the National Bank of the Republic," conveys title to him individually, and where such deed recites that it is given to secure a debt, a power of sale therein cannot be exercised by "C. H. S., cashier" of said bank. Greenfield v. Stout [Ga.] 50 S. E. 111.

13. In action on bond running to trustees of incorporated society held that so much of title of complaint as followed their names could be treated as descriptio personarum. Hecker v. Cook [Colo. App.] 78 P. 311.

14. See 2 Curr. L. 988; see, also, Trade-Marks and Trade-Names, 2 Curr. L. 1881.

15. Laws 1900, p. 452, c. 216, § 363b. Devlin v. Peek, 135 F. 167. Law does not forbid the institution of an action by one who has assumed a trade-name. Id.

16. "Imperial Mfg. Co.—I. Schwartz, proprietor" is such a modification of a name such as usually applied to corporations as to deceive no one and is not a violation of the statute. Imperial Mfg. Co. v. Schwartz, 105 Ill. App. 525.

17. The public are entitled to protection from deception by the use of previously appropriated names or symbols. Imperial Mfg. Co. v. Schwartz, 105 Ill. App. 525.

18. Where it is apparent that it was adopted to obtain by fraud and deception the trade and good will of another built up under the same name, its use may be restrained. Imperial Mfg. Co. v. Schwartz, 105 Ill. App. 525.

19. Should refuse to file certificate under N. Y. Laws 1892, c. 687, p. 1802, as amended by Laws 1902, c. 9, p. 12. People v. O'Brien, 91 N. Y. S. 649.

20. See 2 Curr. L. 988.

For comprehensive discussion of this subject, and alphabetical list of names which have been held to be and not to be idem sonans, see 100 Am. St. Rep. 322.

tical in sound.[21] If the names may be sounded alike, without doing violence to the power of the letters found in the variant orthography, then the variance is immaterial.[22]

§ 2. Signatures.[23]—Typewritten signatures[24] and signatures made by mark, when the party cannot write, are valid.[25]

A signature may be made by a duly authorized attorney,[26] and one may adopt a signature made by another as his own.[27] Thus, delivery of a note by the apparent maker as his note is an adoption of the signature by whomsoever made.[28]

The signature of a corporate officer, with the corporate seal attached, is prima facie that of the corporation.[29]

Comparison of signatures.[30]—Comparisons of genuine signatures with an alleged spurious one are ordinarily for the jury,[31] but by statute in some states experts may make them.[32] A genuine lead pencil signature may be used for the purpose.[33] A statute authorizing expert comparison and opinion of genuine and disputed signatures when placed in juxtaposition does not authorize the comparison of simulations thereof.[34] The Florida statute authorizing a comparison of

21. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Pierce [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 604. Rule requires only that there be a practical identity of sound, or even so close a similarity that the attentive ear finds difficulty in distinguishing the names when pronounced. Armstead v. Jones [Kan.] 80 P. 56.

22. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Pierce [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 604.

Names idem sonans: "L. Krowder" and "L. Krower." Alexis v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 60. "Bert" and "Burt." State v. Johnson [Kan.] 79 P. 732. "Shuter" and "Shutter." Person from whom property was stolen. Id. [Wash.] 78 P. 903. "Stirr" and "Stier." Change of name of party in record on appeal. City of New Albany v. Stirr [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 275. "Forshee" and "Foshee." Amendment of transcript, on change of venue in criminal case, by changing name of person killed immaterial. Taylor v. State [Ark.] 82 S. W. 495. A conveyance by the heirs of one "Clark" of property inherited from him is not defeated by the fact that they signed their names as "Clarke." Altschul v. Casey [Or.] 76 P. 1083. Where plaintiff's name was properly spelled "Jarrett" in body of original petition, but was written Jarvitt in backing of petition, in caption of process annexed by clerk and in copy of petition and process served on defendant, and on trial court allowed name to be corrected after answer to merits, it was not necessary to serve amended process on defendant. Jarrett v. City Elec. R. Co., 120 Ga. 472, 47 S. E. 927. In action of ejectment against "Ned Armstead," in which plaintiff claims title through judgment against one designated in summons as "Ned Almstead" on notes purporting to be executed by "Ned Olmstead" by use of a mark, testimony of officer who served summons in former suit held to justify treating "Almstead" and "Olmstead" as different spellings of "Armstead." Armstead v. Jones [Kan.] 80 P. 56.

Not idem sonans: One suing as administratrix of the estate of "Ferdinand N." A. cannot maintain an action for the death of "Fernando W." A. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Pierce [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 604. Question properly raised by demurrer to complaint for want of facts sufficient to constitute cause of action. Id.

23. See 2 Curr. L. 989. For sufficiency of signature to particular instruments see Bonds, 3 Curr. L. 507; Deeds of Conveyance, 3 Curr. L. 1056; Negotiable Instruments, 2 Curr. L. 1013; Wills, 2 Curr. L. 2076.

24. Attorney in fact authorized to sign remonstrance against issuance of liquor license for and in behalf of voters may do so on typewriter. No question as to redelegation of authority is involved. Ardery v. Smith [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 840.

25. In Idaho signature or subscription includes mark when the person cannot write, his name being written near it, and witnessed by a person who writes his own name as witness. Rev. St. 1887, § 16. Notary's certificate that person making mark acknowledged execution of instrument is equivalent to signature of witness. First Nat. Bank v. Glenn [Idaho] 77 P. 623.

26. When he has written authority, may sign names of voters to remonstrance against the issuance of a liquor license. Ardery v. Smith [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 840.

27. Harris v. Tinder [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 94. See Tiffany on Real Property, § 402, p. 919.

28. Evidence that maker delivered it as his note and so adopted the signature is admissible without any plea of ratification or estoppel. Instructions approved. Harris v. Tinder [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 94. Evidence that defendant delivered note as his own in substitution for another note held to make prima facie case for plaintiff. Id.

29. Wilson v. Neu, 1 Neb. Unoff. 42, 95 N. W. 502.

30. See Forgery, 3 Curr. L. 1474.

31. Groff v. Groff, 209 Pa. 603, 59 A. 65.

32. Pa. Act May 15, 1895 (P. L. 69). Groff v. Groff, 209 Pa. 603, 59 A. 65.

33. Groff v. Groff, 209 Pa. 603, 59 A. 65. Where witnesses testify that they can tell a person's signature on sight, it is proper, on cross-examination, to ask their opinions of the genuineness of a signature without showing them the whole document to which it is appended. Id.

34. Cannot compare copies on blackboard. Groff v. Groff, 209 Pa. 603, 59 A. 65. Party calling expert must satisfy court as to his competency. Id.

handwriting applies to both civil and criminal cases, and its provisions cover, for the purpose of comparison, not only the genuine writings of the party whose signature is alleged to be forged, but also the genuine writings of the alleged forger.[35]

§ 3. Seals.[36]—Whether an instrument has been executed under seal or not is a question to be determined by the court upon an inspection.[37] Its character may be determined by the use of a seal in signing it, though the purpose in affixing it is not indicated by any recital or declaration therein.[38] In case of uncertainty stress is ordinarily laid upon the form and character of the paper, and the purpose of its execution.[39]

A seal, to be given effect as such, need not necessarily be in juxtaposition with the signature,[40] but the mere impression of a seal, at some time and upon some unusual part of the instrument, is not to be accepted as necessarily determining its character.[41] Attested does not mean sealed.[42]

The use of the letters "L. S." in the record of a deed is a sufficient representation of the corporate seal of the grantor.[43]

NATURALIZATION, see latest topical index.

NAVIGABLE WATERS.

§ 1. What Are Navigable (757).
§ 2. Relative, Private and Public Rights (758). Tide Waters (758). Nontidal Waters (758). Right of Access (760).
§ 3. Regulation, Control and Use (760). Political Jurisdiction (761). Bridges, etc. (761). Wharves (762). Booms, Dams and Logging Rights (763). Filling Tide Lands (763).
§ 4. Remedies for Injuries Relating to (764).

The rights of riparian owners,[44] consuming uses of the water,[45] and matters relating to navigation, are treated elsewhere.[46]

§ 1. What are navigable.[47]—Salt rivers, or those in which the tide ebbs and flows, and tide waters generally, are navigable as a matter of law.[48]

Fresh water rivers are navigable or non-navigable as a matter of fact.[49] Navigability in fact for commercial purposes makes a stream a navigable one.[50] The test is its capability of being used for purposes of trade and travel in the usual and ordinary modes,[51] and not the extent and manner of such use.[52]

35. Rev. St. 1892, § 1121. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3.

36. See 2 Curr. L. 989.

As to what constitutes a seal, see Tiffany on Real Property, p. 918, § 403.

37, 38, 39, 40. Brown v. Commercial Fire Ins. Co., 21 App. D. C. 325.

41. Impression of alleged corporate seal over figures on top corner of insurance policy, not forming any part thereof, held not to make it sealed instrument. Brown v. Commercial Fire Ins. Co., 21 App. D. C. 325.

42. "In witness whereof this company executed and attested these presents." Brown v. Commercial Fire Ins. Co., 21 App. D. C. 325.

43. Altschul v. Casey [Or.] 76 P. 1083.

44. See Riparian Owners, 2 Curr. L. 1522.

45. See Waters and Water Supply, 2 Curr. L. 2034.

46. Shipping and Water Traffic, 2 Curr. L. 1648.

47. See 2 Curr. L. 989. See, also, Waters and Water Supply, § 1, 2 Curr. L. 2035.

48. Trustees of Town of Brookhaven v. Smith, 90 N. Y. S. 646.

See, also, Waters and Water Supply, § 6, 2 Curr. L. 2042.

49. Trustees of Town of Brookhaven v. Smith, 90 N. Y. S. 646. Is a question of fact for the jury. Depends upon depth of water, etc. Stream used by public for purposes of fishing, as passway, and as harbor in time of storms, held navigable. State v. Twiford, 136 N. C. 603, 48 S. E. 586.

50. Monroe Mill Co. v. Menzel, 35 Wash. 487, 77 P. 813. A stream navigable in fact is navigable in law. State v. Twiford, 136 N. C. 603, 48 S. E. 586. A stream capable in its natural state of being practicably used for the floatage of shingle bolts to market at certain seasons of the year is navigable. Evidence sufficient to sustain finding. Monroe Mill Co. v. Menzel, 35 Wash. 487, 77 P. 813. Complaint held to sufficiently allege that stream was floatable or navigable in its natural condition. Id.

51. Not affected by conditions of adjacent land, as that one riparian owner has monopoly of shore, with no public road to the water, thus cutting off access by land. State v. Twiford, 136 N. C. 603, 48 S. E. 586. Freshwater streams are navigable if they are capable of affording navigation. Trustees of Town of Brookhaven v. Smith, 90 N. Y. S. 646.

§ 2. Relative, private and public rights.[53]—By the common law of England, the fee of all land covered by navigable waters was in the king, subject only to the public rights of fishing and navigation,[54] and no one had a right to erect and maintain a wharf or other structure below high-water mark.[55]

Tide waters.[56]—Absolute property in, and dominion and sovereignty over, the soils under tide water belongs to the state in which the land is situated.[57] It holds the land under the navigable part of tidal waters in trust for the public,[58] but may, in the absence of a statute to the contrary,[59] sell or lease land lying between high and low-water mark to whomsoever it sees fit, without compensation to the riparian proprietors.[60]

A littoral proprietor has a right of access to and from his land to the ocean as against a stranger,[61] and any obstruction thereto is a private nuisance for the abatement of which he may maintain an action.[62] The secretary of war has no authority to authorize such obstructions.[63]

Nontidal waters.[64]—There is a conflict of authority as to the ownership of the soil under nontidal waters lying wholly within a state.[65] In some states it is held to belong to the state, to be controlled by it, in its own discretion, for the benefit of the public.[66] The riparian owners have a fee to low-water mark only, and 52. The fact that a riparian owner makes a charge for fishing in a creek is not proof of its non-navigability. State v. Twiford, 136 N. C. 603, 48 S. E. 586.

53. See 2 Curr. L. 990.

54. In 1693. Trustees of Town of Brookhaven v. Smith, 90 N. Y. S. 646; San Francisco Sav. Union v. R. G. R. Petroleum & Min. Co., 144 Cal. 134, 77 P. 823. Had right to grant land to riparian owners, subject to public easement of navigation. Smith v. Bartlett [N. Y.] 73 N. E. 63. Separate devises, by one to whom king granted land under tidal river, of land on each side thereof, carries title to thread of stream. Id.

55. Trustees of Town of Brookhaven v. Smith, 90 N. Y. S. 646. Rule applies in Illinois to lands under Lake Michigan. Cobb v. Lincoln Park Com'rs, 202 Ill. 427, 67 N. E. 5.

56. See 2 Curr. L. 990, § 2.

57. San Francisco Sav. Union v. R. G. R. Petroleum & Min. Co., 144 Cal. 134, 77 P. 823; Muckle v. Good [Or.] 77 P. 743.

58. Woodcliff Land Imp. Co. v. New Jersey Shore Line R. Co. [N. J. Law] 60 A. 44.

59. Under New Jersey Statute (P. L. 1869, p. 1022, § 8), no grant or license can be made to other than riparian owner until six months after he has been given written notice. Shamberg v. Board of Riparian Com'rs [N. J. Law] 60 A. 43. The right of riparian owners, under Virginia Code 1887, § 2137, to have tracts of land assigned to them for oyster planting grounds, must, if possible, be exercised in the manner least injurious to others, and not capriciously and arbitrarily. Taylor v. Com., 102 Ky. 759, 47 S. E. 875.

60. Shamberg v. Board of Riparian Com'rs [N. J. Law] 60 A. 43. Grantee's title is as absolute as grant imports. Woodcliff Land Imp. Co. v. New Jersey Shore Line R. Co. [N. J. Law] 60 A. 44. Land may be taken by railroad under power of eminent domain. Id. Under N. J. Act March 21, 1871 (Gen. St. p. 2790), riparian commission has power to make deed vesting all rights of state in grantee. Burkhard v. Heinz Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 191. Deed conveying land below high water mark of Atlantic Ocean "with the right and privilege to exclude the tide water from so much of the land as lies under water by filling in or otherwise improving the same, and to appropriate the lands under water to her and their exclusive private uses," held to give assigns of grantee right to maintain ejectment against one occupying pier erected upon the land under water. Id. Where board of school land commissioners found it to be tide land and conveyed it as such, grantees acquired good title as against one claiming by adverse possession. Muckle v. Good [Or.] 77 P. 743.

Right of state to grant tide land so as to destroy wharfage right of shore owner. See note 63 L. R. A. 264.

61. See 2 Curr. L. 991, n. 40, 47. Erection of platforms in Pacific Ocean in front of plaintiff's property for purpose of boring oil wells enjoined. San Francisco Sav. Union v. R. G. R. Petroleum & Min. Co., 144 Cal. 134, 77 P. 823.

62. San Francisco Sav. Union v. R. G. R. Petroleum & Min. Co., 144 Cal. 134, 77 P. 823.

63. Letter held not to give authority. San Francisco Sav. Union v. R. G. R. Petroleum & Min. Co., 144 Cal. 134, 77 P. 823.

See, also, Nuisance, § 2, 4 Curr. L. 839.

64. See 2 Curr. L. 990, § 2.

65. See also Riparian Owners, § 1, 2 Curr. L. 1522; Waters and Water Supply, § 2, 2 Curr. L. 2035.

66. Va. Code 1887, § 1338 is not an arbitrary assumption of title to such lands, but is declaratory of the common law. Taylor v. Com., 102 Va. 759, 47 S. E. 875. Waters under Lake Michigan belong to state. Cobb v. Lincoln Park Com'rs, 202 Ill. 427, 67 N. E. 5, 63 L. R. A. 264 and note. The state of Alabama, when admitted to the Union, became entitled to the soil under the navigable waters below high-water mark within the limits of the state, not previously granted.

merely have certain rights beyond it, such as the right to build wharves, a right of access to the water, and a right of way over it.[67] Such rights are property and cannot be taken or interfered with.[68] The state may grant to a city so much of the shore and such underlying lands as lie within the latter's boundaries, as trustee for the public.[69] Under such a grant the city cannot convey the same for the benefit of riparian owners,[70] nor can it be estopped to assert its rights thereto by a mere failure to exercise them.[71] But where a riparian proprietor has constructed expensive works thereon with the city's knowledge and has paid taxes and fees for the privilege of maintaining them, the city must pay him a reasonable compensation therefor before it can recover the land.[72]

In New York the commissioners of the land office are authorized to make grants of lands under the waters of navigable rivers or lakes to the proprietors of the adjacent lands as they may deem neeessary to promote the commerce of the state, or proper for the beneficial enjoyment of the same by the adjacent owner.[73] A grant of this nature for the purpose of erecting a dock or wharf appropriates it to the use of all who are engaged in promoting the purpose of the grant, which is the commerce of the state, subject only to the owner's right to collect a reasonable compensation for the use.[74]

Lands covered by navigable waters are not subject to entry under the North Carolina code.[75]

In other states the riparian proprietors own the soil to the center of the stream, subject only to the right of the public to the free and undisturbed navigation of the river.[76] Hence a grant of riparian lands, without limitation or reservation as to adjacent islands, vests in the purchaser the title to any unsurveyed island lying between the bank and the thread of the stream.[77] Where a river flowing over government land changes its course, the abandoned bed becomes a part of the surrounding land and passes by a subsequent patent.[78]

In states where the riparian proprietor owns the bed of the stream, he holds it subject to the right of navigation.[79] He is entitled to no compensation for

City of Mobile v. Sullivan Timber Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 298.

67. Taylor v. Com., 102 Ky. 759, 47 S. E. 875. In Illinois it is held that lands under Lake Michigan belong to the state, and that the legislature may grant title to submerged lands along the shore so as to prevent riparian owner from constructing wharves out to line of navigability without consent of grantee. Cobb v. Lincoln Park Com'rs, 202 Ill. 427, 67 N. E. 5, 63 L. R. A. 264.

68. Va. Acts 1899-1900, p. 797, c. 757, leasing tract under York River below low-water mark, including artesian well thereon, not objectionable as interfering with rights of adjacent proprietors. Taylor v. Com., 102 Va. 759, 47 S. E. 875.

69. Act Jan. 31, 1867 (Laws 1866-67, p. 307) constitutional. City of Mobile v. Sullivan Timber Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 298.

70. City of Mobile v. Sullivan Timber Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 298.

71. Custom allowing riparian owners to use them for erection of wharves, etc., not available to support contention that city had thereby been divested of title. City of Mobile v. Sullivan Timber Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 298. Fact that neither city nor river commission objected to construction of expensive bulkheads, etc., does not estop city to deny riparian proprietor's right to occupy same. Id.

72. City of Mobile v. Sullivan Timber Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 298.

73. Laws 1850, c. 283, p. 621. Thousand Island Steamboat Co. v. Visger [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 764.

74. Grant "for the purpose of promoting the commerce of our state and for no other object or purpose whatsoever," does not confer on proprietors exclusive right to use dock erected thereon. Thousand Island Steamboat Co. v. Visger [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 764. The commissioners are not authorized to make an unqualified grant. Unqualified grant held not to have enlarged previous limited grant. Id.

75. Code, § 2751 (1). State v. Twiford, 136 N. C. 603, 48 S. E. 586.

76. Beidler v. Sanitary Dist., 211 Ill. 628, 71 N. E. 1118; Sliter v. Carpenter [Wis.] 102 N. W. 27; West Chicago St. R. Co. v. People [Ill.] 73 N. E. 393.

77. Ownership passes under original government patent, and interest then attaches and becomes appurtenant to bank until separated by deed. Sliter v. Carpenter [Wis.] 102 N. W. 27.

78. Boglino v. Giorgetta [Colo. App.] 78 P. 612.

79. Holds the bed of unmeandered streams subject to the easement of driving timber products over the land. Monroe Mill Co. v. Menzel, 35 Wash. 487, 77 P. 813. The public injuries resulting from either the navigation itself or from work done for the purpose of improving it.[80] This is only true, however, in case the work is done for the purpose of facilitating the navigation of the stream itself, or a stream or body of water naturally emptying into it, or into which it naturally empties.[81] Thus he is entitled to compensation where the waters are taken and their general level is reduced for the purpose of making navigable an artificial channel.[82]

Right of access.[83]—The proprietors of lands upon navigable waters are entitled to the right of access to their navigable parts.[84] Every shore owner, as against other owners, is entitled to his proportion of the line bounding navigable water for contact with navigation, and to a direct course over intervening shallows to construct piers or other structures connecting the shore with such navigable line.[85] When the irregularities or curvature of the shore are such that lines cannot be drawn at right angles to the shore to accomplish this, then the whole cove is to be treated as a unit of the shore line by drawing such vertical lines from its two boundary points or headlands to the line of navigability, and then apportioning the whole intervening boundary line of navigable water to the whole shore line of the cove between such headlands, and by drawing straight lines from the two termini of navigable water line to the respective termini of shore line pertaining to each owner.[86]

§ 3. Regulation, control and use.[87]—Navigable streams are public highways, open to the use of all.[88] They belong to the public, and their use cannot be sold, or monopolized by individuals,[89] nor has anyone a right to obstruct them or to interfere with their navigation.[90] Such interference is a public nuisance.[91] right in a navigable stream is paramount, and one owning the soil under it may only use and enjoy it in so far as is consistent with such right, and in a manner which will leave it free and unobstructed. Tunnel held obstruction. West Chicago St. R. Co. v. People [Ill.] 73 N. E. 393.

80, 81. Beidler v. Sanitary Dist., 211 Ill. 628, 71 N. E. 1118.

82. Lowering water in canals connecting with Chicago River by construction of drainage canal, not constructed principally for purposes of navigation. Beidler v. Sanitary Dist., 211 Ill. 628, 71 N. E. 1118.

83. See 2 Curr. L. 991, n. 40-47.

84. Thousand Island Steamboat Co. v. Visger [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 764. Right of shore owner to accretions is based upon his right of access. Webber v. Axtell [Minn.] 102 N. W. 915.

See, also, Riparian Owners, § 3, 2 Curr. L. 1523.

85. This is the dominant rule, and all rules for apportionment and division are subject to such modification as may be necessary to accomplish substantially this result. Thomas v. Ashland, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 100 N. W. 993.

86. Thomas v. Ashland, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 100 N. W. 993.

87. See 2 Curr. L. 991.

88. State v. Charleston Light & Water Co. [S. C.] 47 S. E. 979; State v. Dundee Water Power & Land Co. [N. J. Law] 58 A. 1094. Freshwater streams are made highways by law for limited purposes. Trustees of Town of Brookhaven v. Smith, 90 N. Y. S. 646. By statute in Louisiana, all navigable rivers are public highways, and the use of the banks is public. Civ. Code, 453, 455. Mississippi River made a public highway, and free for use of all by Acts of Congress under which state was admitted [Act Feb. 20, 1811, c. 21, § 3; Act April 14, c. 57 (2 Stat. at L. 642, 703)]. Board of Com'rs for Port of New Orleans v. New Orleans & S. F. R. Co., 112 La. 1011, 36 So. 837. The state administers such property for the benefit of the public and may confide such administration to municipal corporations in proper cases. Id. The state or such corporation may, by way of, and for the purpose of, such administration, improve the property by the construction of wharves, landings, and other facilities, for the use of which a charge may be made. City of New Orleans has no jurisdiction over wharves and landings on Mississippi, and cannot authorize construction of railroad thereon without the consent of the board of commissioners of the port. Id.

89. Defendant convicted of obstructing stream. State v. Twiford, 136 N. C. 603, 48 S. E. 586.

90. As to right to erect and maintain dams, see Waters and Water Supply, § 12, 2 Curr. L. 2046; Nuisance, § 2, 4 Curr. L. 839; Small v. Harrington [Idaho] 79 P. 461; Trustees of Town of Brookhaven v. Smith, 90 N. Y. S. 646; Monroe Mill Co. v. Menzel, 35 Wash. 487, 77 P. 813. In Idaho it is held that everyone is entitled to the free and reasonable use of navigable streams, and may place such reasonable obstructions therein as serve a useful and beneficial purpose, provided they leave a reasonable use to others interested. Piers held not to unreasonably obstruct navigation. Small v. Harrington [Idaho] 79 P. 461. An individual has no right to insist on the best possible

An owner erecting a structure in the soil under the navigable water does so at his peril, and may be compelled to remove it if it becomes an obstruction to navigation.[92] The fact that there are other obstructions below defendant's is no defense.[93] The right of navigation means the right to pass over waters freely and without obstruction.[94] It does not include the right to construct docks.[95]

No riparian owner can acquire by prescription a right to interfere with navigation,[96] but he may acquire a right to use and divert the water in canals as against other riparian owners.[97] The owner of lots abutting on canals cut from a river for purposes of navigation may acquire by prescription the same rights therein that he could have acquired had they been natural waterways.[98]

A riparian proprietor may use the water provided he does not thereby interfere with the public right of navigation, nor substantially diminish or impair the rights of other riparian owners.[99] The latter right is property and cannot be taken for public use without just compensation.[1]

Political jurisdiction.[2]—The public laws of New Jersey are in force in the littoral waters of Sandy Hook peninsula below low-water mark, whether enacted prior or subsequently to the cession to the United States of jurisdiction over a portion of that peninsula for military purposes.[3]

Bridges, etc.[4]—The power of congress over the navigable waters of the United States is exclusive and paramount;[5] but until it is exercised, full power resides in the states to regulate the erection of bridges and other works in navigable waters wholly within their jurisdiction.[6] Under existing laws, however, the consent of both the state and the Federal government is necessary.[7] The Federal statute accommodation, and hence cannot complain of an obstruction which merely impairs navigation or renders it more difficult without destroying it. Id. A city has no right to permit the obstruction of a navigable river, and cannot bind itself to permit anything which has become an obstruction to be continued. May require lowering of tunnel, though no such right was reserved in granting license to construct it. West Chicago St. R. Co. v. People [Ill.] 73 N. E. 393.

91. See Nuisance, § 2, 4 Curr. L. 839. Unless authorized by the legislature. Indictment for maintaining dam across Passaic river without constructing canal and locks held to show indictable offense. State v. Dundee Water Power & Land Co. [N. J. Law] 58 A. 1094. A temporary obstruction while remodeling a defective lock in a dam is not a public nuisance. State v. Charleston Light & Water Co. [S. C.] 47 S. E. 979. Maintenance of pound nets so as to interfere with access to plaintiff's island under certain conditions of tide and weather. Reyburn v. Sawyer, 135 N. C. 328, 47 S. E. 761.

92. Compelling street railway to lower tunnel under Chicago river not a taking or damaging of its property, whether it was attempting to exercise its rights as private owner, or rights conferred by Hurd's Rev. St. Ill. 1903, p. 1833, c. 131a. West Chicago St. R. Co. v. People [Ill.] 73 N. E. 393.

93. West Chicago St. R. Co. v. People [Ill.] 73 N. E. 393. Failure to deny that there were other tunnels as near surface as defendant's not an admission that it was not an obstruction. Id.

94, 95. Trustees of Town of Brookhaven v. Smith, 90 N. Y. S. 646.

96, 97, 98, 99. Beidler v. Sanitary Dist., 211 Ill. 628, 71 N. E. 1118.

1. Beidler v. Sanitary Dist., 211 Ill. 628, 71 N. E. 1118.

For right of riparian proprietor to use of water, see Waters and Water Supply, § 3, 2 Curr. L. 2035. For right to use it for irrigation purposes, see Id., § 13, 2046.

4. See 2 Curr. L. 992, 994.

3. Ceded by N. J. Act March 12, 1846. Hamburg-American S. S. Co. v. Grube, 25 S. Ct. 352. Whether act vested exclusive legislative jurisdiction over waters within three-mile limit presents Federal question, which will sustain writ of error from Federal supreme court to state court. Id. Contention that Act Cong. June 28, 1834 (4 Stat. at L. 708, c. 126) consenting to agreement of New York and New Jersey fixing their boundary lines vested exclusive jurisdiction over adjoining sea, in Federal government does not. Id.

4. See 2 Curr. L. 992, 994.

5. Cobb v. Lincoln Park Com'rs, 202 Ill. 427, 67 N. E. 5, 63 L. R. A. 264.

6. Maine Water Co. v. Knickerbocker Steam Towage Co. [Me.] 59 A. 953. Secretary of war has authority to authorize laying of water pipe. Special act of congress unnecessary. Id.

A state has plenary powers over navigable waters wholly within its boundaries, subject only to the power of congress to regulate interstate commerce. Montgomery v. Portland, 190 U. S. 89, 47 Law. Ed. 965.

7. Act Cong. March 3, 1899, c. 425, §§ 9, 10 (30 Stat. at L. 1151), Comp. St. 1901, pp. 3540, 3541. Maine Water Co. v. Knickerbocker Steam Towage Co. [Me.] 59 A. 953; Montgomery v. Portland, 190 U. S. 89, 47 Law. Ed. 965. Hurd's Rev. St. Ill. 1903, p. 292, c. 24, giving city of Chicago authority to deepen or change channels of water-prohibiting the construction of any structures in navigable waters without the consent of the secretary of war is a mere regulation for the benefit of commerce and navigation,[8] and his consent does not authorize the construction of wharves and the like on land belonging to others.[9] One who has built a bridge under authority of an act of congress can be deprived of the right to maintain it only by another act of the same body, and upon payment of just compensation.[10] The right to build a bridge includes the right to repair it, when necessary, without substantially changing its structure.[11]

By statute in Oregon the owner of any vessel which has through negligence caused injuries to bridges when within the waters of the state is liable for the resulting damages,[12] recoverable in the circuit court of any county in which such vessel may be found.[13]

Wharves.[14]—The proprietors of lands upon navigable waters may make a landing, wharf, or pier for their own use, or that of the public, subject to such general rules and regulations as the legislature may see proper to impose for the protection of the rights of the public;[15] but a riparian owner has no right to build a dock on lands below high-water mark owned by another.[16] A dock may be private or public, though owned by an individual.[17] The owners of a pier are entitled to its unrestricted use, subject only to the power of the legislature to make reasonable rules and regulations for its use in connection with the commerce of the port.[18] Owners and lessees of piers in New York City may erect and maintain sheds thereon, provided they obtain a license to do so from the department of docks.[19] They then become lawful structures and the license is irrevocable.[20] courses, gives it authority, so far as state is concerned, to require lowering of tunnel in bed of Chicago River. West Chicago St. R. Co. v. People [Ill.] 73 N. E. 393. River & Harbor Bill March 3, 1899, c. 425, 30 St. U. S. 1156, gave city authority to require such lowering. Such action not violation of statute prohibiting alteration of channel without approval of secretary of war. Id.

8. Cobb v. Lincoln Park Com'rs, 202 Ill. 427, 67 N. E. 5, 63 L. R. A. 264. The secretary of war may not interfere with harbor lines established by local authorities where the navigable waters in question are entirely within the limits of a state. Extension of wharves beyond harbor lines cannot be justified by relocation of lines under Act Sept. 19, 1890, § 12 (25 Stat. at L. 400, 425, c. 860). Congress did not intend to wholly ignore rights of states. Montgomery v. Portland, 190 U. S. 89, 47 Law. Ed. 965.

Harbor lines, etc., see 2 Curr. L. 993.

9. On land granted by state to park commissioners. Cobb v. Lincoln Park Com'rs, 202 Ill. 427, 67 N. E. 5, 63 L. R. A. 264.

10. Vested right of which it cannot be deprived by courts on ground that it is obstruction to navigation. United States v. Parkersburg Branch R. Co., 134 F. 969. Right of railroad company to maintain bridge over Ohio River, built under Act July 14, 1862, c. 167 (12 Stat. at L. 569), which contained no reservation of right to alter or amend it, not affected by subsequent acts relating to bridges over same river. Id.

11. Court will not enjoin replacing of superstructure by new one resting on same piers, when obstruction to navigation not increased. United States v. Parkersburg Branch R. Co., 134 F. 969. Act Cong. Aug. 5, 1886 (24 Stat. at L. 324, c. 929), relating to building of certain bridges, and Act April 2, 1888, c. 53 (25 Stat. at L. 74), do not apply to the rebuilding of old bridges. United States v. Cincinnati & M. V. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 134 F. 353.

See, also, Bridges, § 1, 3 Curr. L. 529.

12. State court has jurisdiction of action for damages to trestle constructed on piles driven in bed of navigable river between high and low water mark [B. & C. Comp. § 4627]. Astoria & C. R. R. Co. v. Kern, 44 Or. 538, 76 P. 14.

Contributory negligence in case of injuries by collision with obstruction in stream, see note to Crookston Waterworks, P. & L. Co. v. Sprague [Minn.] 64 L. R. A. 977.

See, also, 2 Curr. L. 994, n. 79, 80.

13. Astoria & C. R. R. Co. v. Kern, 44 Or. 538, 76 P. 14. Testimony of witness 15 miles seaward as to character of storm causing barges to break loose held admissible. Id. Evidence sufficient to sustain finding that barges were not left in charge of watchman, and finding as to stress of weather. Id.

14. See 2 Curr. L. 991, n. 40-47; Id. 994.

For a full discussion of the right to erect, maintain, and use wharves, see title Wharves, 2 Curr. L. 2074.

15. Thousand Island Steamboat Co. v. Visger [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 764.

16. On land under bay granted to town by King of England. Trustees of Town of Brookhaven v. Smith, 90 N. Y. S. 646.

17. Use it has been put to furnishes basis for inference of owner's intention in this regard. Thousand Island Steamboat Co. v. Visger [N. Y.] 71 N. E. 764.

18. In re Pier 15, East River, 95 App. Div. 501, 88 N. Y. S. 906.

19. Laws 1875, c. 249, p. 243, as amended

A provision of the license that it shall not affect any right of the city to the pier or any structure legally erected thereon, including such shed, does not affect the rights acquired by the owners under the statute and license.[21] A city may build a dock at the end of one of its streets.[22] Where it has authority to do so under its charter, it may lease the land and authorize the lessee to build it.[23] Such a dock is not a public highway.[24] A city owning a wharf may use it as other wharves, except as the right is limited by its charter, and may make regulations governing its use by the public.[25]

Booms, dams and logging rights.[26]—One using a stream for floatage purposes has no right to interfere with its navigability or to interfere with the rights of riparian owners by diverting or restraining its waters,[27] nor to trespass upon the lands of riparian owners.[28] One may use the channel of a navigable stream for the purpose of floating logs at all stages of water,[29] and such use when the water is above the line of mean high tide is not a trespass on the adjoining lands.[30]

In many states statutes allow the construction of dams and booms for logging purposes in navigable streams, under prescribed restrictions.[31] The reasonable use of dams and booms necessary to the navigation of streams for logging purposes is permissible, and other navigators can complain of them only when such right is misused or abused.[32] In Washington, the owner of timber lands has no right to condemn the right to float logs in a stream by means of dams at times when it is not naturally navigable for that purpose.[33]

Filling tide lands.—The statutes of Washington authorize the excavation of waterways through public lands, and the filling in of tide lands by private con-by Laws 1883, c. 435, p. 616. In re Pier 15, East River, 95 App. Div. 501, 88 N. Y. S. 906.

20. On condemnation of pier owners entitled to compensation based on its value with sheds upon it. In re Pier 15, East River, 95 App. Div. 501, 88 N. Y. S. 906.

21. In re Pier 15, East River, 95 App. Div. 501, 88 N. Y. S. 906.

22. Kemp v. Stradley [Mich.] 97 N. W. 41.

23. Under Mich. Local Acts 1887, p. 805, Act No. 533, c. 14, § 3. Kemp v. Stradley [Mich.] 97 N. W. 41.

24. Constructed under Mich. Local Acts 1887, p. 805, Act No. 533, c. 14, § 3. Kemp v. Stradley [Mich.] 97 N. W. 41.

25. Kemp v. Stradley [Mich.] 97 N. W. 41.

26. See 2 Curr. L. 994.

27. Injunction issued to restrain maintenance of dam whereby waters were collected and then let loose. Monroe Mill Co. v. Menzel, 35 Wash. 487, 77 P. 813. Fact that riparian owner used water so collected (Id.), and assisted owner in clearing out stream did not estop him from objecting. Id. The right to float logs on a stream does not give one a right to interfere with its use by other navigators or cause damage to riparian proprietors. Liable for damages resulting from allowing them to jam on plaintiff's property, and seeking to remove them by artificial freshets, thereby flooding lands and destroying crops. Ingram v. Wishkah Boom Co., 35 Wash. 191, 77 P. 34. May not float logs at seasons when stream not naturally navigable by creation of artificial freshets, thereby damaging property of others. Matthews v. Belfast Mfg. Co., 35 Wash. 662, 77 P. 1046.

Injuries resulting from collision with logs, etc., see note to Crookston Waterworks, P. & L. Co. v. Sprague [Minn.] 64 L. R. A. 977. Complaint in action for obstructing stream with logs held sufficiently specific to entitle plaintiff to recover for idleness of logging engine and men, and for damages for being compelled to discharge men and employ others at higher pay. Creech v. Humptulips Boom & River Imp. Co. [Wash.] 79 P. 633. Obstruction held natural and proximate cause of such damage. Id. Where defendant claimed stream was not navigable, and that he had absolute right to obstruct it, plaintiff's damages not limited to cost of removing obstructions, and those resulting from delay during period necessary for removal. Id.

28. Cannot go upon land for purpose of breaking jams of shingle bolts. Monroe Mill Co. v. Menzel, 35 Wash. 487, 77 P. 813. Verdict for plaintiff sustained by evidence. Lownsdale v. Gray's Harbor Boom Co. [Wash.] 78 P. 904. Evidence held not to show maintenance of nuisance. Id.

29. Lownsdale v. Gray's Harbor Boom Co. [Wash.] 78 P. 904. A stream navigable for the purpose of floating logs at certain seasons may be used by anyone for that purpose at such times. Matthews v. Belfast Mfg. Co., 35 Wash. 662, 77 P. 1046.

30. Instructions approved. Lownsdale v. Gray's Harbor Boom Co. [Wash.] 78 P. 904.

31. Must provide way for passage of timber [Idaho Rev. St. 1887, § 835]. Small v. Harrington [Idaho] 79 P. 461.

32. Evidence insufficient to show that dam was nuisance. Matthews v. Belfast Mfg. Co., 35 Wash. 662, 77 P. 1046.

33. Matthews v. Belfast Mfg. Co., 35 Wash. 662, 77 P. 1046.

tract,[34] and give the contractor a lien on the tide lands so filled in.[35] The right to such lien in no way depends upon the appraisement of such land.[36]

§ 4. Remedies for injuries relating to.[37]—Injunction will lie at the instance of one specially injured thereby, to prevent the obstruction of a navigable stream.[38] Injunction will also lie to prevent an abuse of the right of navigation.[39]

In order to be entitled to an injunction, plaintiff must establish by a fair preponderance of the evidence that the use made of the stream by defendants is unauthorized, unreasonable, or unnecessary.[40] The trial and acquittal of the defendant under a statute making such acts criminal is not a bar to such suit.[41]

In order to recover for damages resulting from a misuse of the stream or an abuse of the rights of navigation, it is not necessary to allege that the acts were done negligently.[42-86]

NE EXEAT.[87]

Where the court has no jurisdiction of the action in aid of which the writ is sought, ne exeat should not of course issue.[88] Defendant may before answer move on affidavit to discharge the writ as improperly issued.[89]

NEGLIGENCE.[90]

§ 1. Definitions (764).
§ 2. Acts or Omissions Constituting Negligence (766).
A. Personal Conduct in General (766).
B. Use of Property in General (767).
C. Use of Lands, Buildings and Other Structures (768).
§ 3. Proximate Cause (770).
§ 4. Contributory Negligence (773). Due Care by a Plaintiff (773). Children (774). Comparative Negligence (775). Last Clear Chance Doctrine (776). Imputed Negligence (777).
§ 5. Actions (779). Evidence (782). Presumptions and Burden of Proof (783). Questions of Law and Fact (785). Instructions (786). Verdicts (787).

§ 1. Definitions.[91]—Negligence can in law only be predicated upon a failure

34. Sess. Laws 1893, p. 246, c. 99. Hays v. Callvert [Wash.] 78 P. 793.

35. When the lands have been sold by the state, the contractor must look for remuneration to the foreclosure of his lien. Hays v. Callvert [Wash.] 78 P. 793.

36. Hays v. Callvert [Wash.] 78 P. 793.

37. See 2 Curr. L. 995.

38. See, also, Injunction, § 2I, 4 Curr. L. 108; Nuisance, § 4a, 4 Curr. L. 845. Reyburn v. Sawyer, 135 N. C. 328, 47 S. E. 761. A private person specially injured thereby may maintain an action to restrain the construction or maintenance of a nuisance in a navigable stream. Idaho Rev. St. 1887, § 3633, gives right to restrain public nuisance under such circumstances. Small v. Harrington [Idaho] 79 P. 461. Mandamus to compel removal of dam denied where no allegations of special injury. State v. Charleston Light & Water Co. [S. C.] 47 S. E. 979. Fact that plaintiff has built up steamboat business and that bridge prevents navigation does not show special damage. Thomas v. Wade [Fla.] 37 So. 743.

39. Injunction held not too sweeping. Matthews v. Belfast Mfg. Co., 35 Wash. 662, 77 P. 1046.

40, 41. Small v. Harrington [Idaho] 79 P. 461.

42-86. Sufficient to set out acts showing misuse or abuse. Ingram v. Wishkah Boom Co., 35 Wash. 191, 77 P. 34. The plaintiff may testify as to the value of the realty before and after the injury and the value of the personalty at the time it was destroyed. Permitting him to state amount of damages in money held harmless. Id. Evidence sufficient to sustain verdict for plaintiff. Id. Instruction as to necessity of finding that defendant was responsible for damage approved. Id.

87. See Fletcher, Equity Pl. & Pr. §§ 483-492.

88. Court held without jurisdiction of matrimonial action because of nonresidence of both parties. Dithmar v. Dithmar [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 644.

89. Want of equity in the bill, insufficiency of affidavits, or any other thing by reason of which the writ should not have been granted may be so raised. Dithmar v. Dithmar [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 644.

90. Scope.—This article treats the subject of negligence in a general way without attempting a specific application of principles. Such application is reserved for the topics devoted to the particular relation or subject-matter, as Animals, 3 Curr. L. 159; Bridges, 3 Curr. L. 529; Carriers, 3 Curr. L. 591; Corporations, 3 Curr. L. 880; Counties, 3 Curr. L. 959; Electricity, 3 Curr. L. 1181; Explosives and Inflammables, 3 Curr. L. 1412; False Imprisonment, 3 Curr. L. 1417; Fires, 3 Curr. L. 1425; Gas, 3 Curr. L. 1556; Highways and Streets, 3 Curr. L. 1593; Independent Contractors, 3 Curr. L. 1702; Inns, Restaurants and Lodging Houses, 4 Curr. L. 123; Intoxicating Liquors, 4 Curr. L. 252; Landlord and Tenant, 4 Curr. L. 389; Master and Servant, 4 Curr. L. 533;

to use the degree of care required of one by law in the discharge of a duty imposed thereby.[92] A breach of an existent duty must appear.[93]

Some courts do not now recognize any legal distinction between negligence and gross negligence.[94] In some states such distinction is made by statute, and must in such case be observed by the courts,[95] though it is said that the line cannot be drawn with accuracy.[96]

It has been held that the term "negligence" by itself suggests only inadvertence or want of ordinary care;[97] the term "gross negligence" signifies willfulness and involves intent, actual or constructive.[98] Hence gross negligence does not include ordinary negligence, and proof of the former does not prove, but rather disproves, the latter.[99]

Willful or wanton negligence has been defined as a reckless disregard of the safety of the person or property of another by failing, after discovery of the peril, to exercise ordinary care to prevent the impending injury.[1]

The terms "carelessly" and "negligently,"[2] and the terms "reasonable care," "reasonable diligence" and "ordinary care,"[3] are commonly used interchangeably.

Medicine and Surgery, 4 Curr. L. 636; Mines and Minerals, 4 Curr. L. 649; Municipal Corporations, 4 Curr. L. 747; Nuisance, 4 Curr. L. 839; Party Walls, 2 Curr. L. 1134; Railroads, 2 Curr. L. 1382; Shipping and Water Traffic, 2 Curr. L. 1648; Street Railways, 2 Curr. L. 1742; Telegraphs and Telephones, 2 Curr. L. 1843.

91. See 2 Curr. L. 996.

92. Boston & M. R. Co. v. Sargent, 72 N. H. 455, 57 A. 688.

93. A manufacturer who has furnished petroleum to a merchant is under no duty to continue furnishing it and to refrain from supplying gasoline, though it knows that the merchant's customers obtain petroleum from him. Hence a person injured in the store by a gasoline explosion has no cause of action against the manufacturer. Marples v. Standard Oil Co. [N. J. Law] 59 A. 32. A shipper had control of the interior of a car in which he maintained a fire. The car burned, and set fire to a nearby warehouse, and the railway company was mulcted in damages, and sued to recover from the shipper. Held, the railway company owed the shipper no duty as to management of the car, and hence the shipper could not set up contributory negligence in this action as a defense. Boston & M. R. Co. v. Sargent, 72 N. H. 455, 57 A. 688. Railroad company which built a draw bridge with a foot path thereon and turned over control of it to the city owed no duty to pedestrians except to give signals. No liability for death of boy who walked off, the draw being open. Desure v. New York, etc., R. Co., 94 App. Div. 251, 87 N. Y. S. 988. In an action for negligence in handling a scow, it appeared that one defendant had no interest in the scow, and that the other had no control of it at the time, having turned it over to the city. No recovery. Dooley v. Healey, 95 App. Div. 271, 88 N. Y. S. 965. Defendants, operating a temporary elevator, under no obligation to warn plaintiff, employed by others in decorating, as to the danger from operation of elevator, when plaintiff built staging over the shaft. Durell v. Hartwell [R. I.] 58 A. 448.

94. The distinction between negligence and gross negligence is to a great extent merely verbal; legally speaking, there can be no degrees of negligence. Atchison v. Wills, 21 App. D. C. 548. No exact dividing line can be drawn between "ordinary" and "gross" negligence. Each case must be decided according to its peculiar features and the question is one for the jury. Evensen v. Lexington & B. St. R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 355.

95. Under the Georgia Code, "ordinary neglect" and "gross neglect" have a definite meaning, and in case where a defendant was bound to use ordinary diligence, it is error, as against the plaintiff, to charge that defendant is liable for gross negligence only. Brown Store Co. v. Chattahoochee Lumber Co. [Ga.] 49 S. E. 839. In Massachusetts, in actions for wrongful death, if personal negligence of defendant is relied on, proof of ordinary negligence is sufficient; but if negligence relied on is that of a servant, gross negligence must be shown. Brennan v. Standard Oil Co. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 472.

96. Even where the statute recognizes a difference between negligence and gross negligence, the degree of difference cannot be stated with mathematical accuracy. Brennan v. Standard Oil Co. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 472.

97. However great the degree of such want of care, willfulness is excluded so long as the element of inadvertence remains. Rideout v. Winnebago Traction Co. [Wis.] 101 N. W. 672.

98. If one is guilty of inadvertence causing injury to another, his fault is called want of ordinary care; if guilty of willful misconduct, causing actionable injury, his conduct is called "gross negligence." Rideout v. Winnebago Traction Co. [Wis.] 101 N. W. 672.

99. Rideout v. Winnebago Traction Co. [Wis.] 101 N. W. 672.

1. Alger Smith & Co. v. Duluth-Superior Traction Co. [Minn.] 101 N. W. 298. Gross negligence such as to warrant recovery notwithstanding precedent negligence of plaintiff exists only where plaintiff's negligence must have been discovered or the defendant must have neglected the most ordinary precaution in failing to discover it. Buxton v. Ainsworth [Mich.] 101 N. W. 817.

2. Southern R. Co. v. Horine [Ga.] 49 S. E. 285.

§ 2. Acts or omissions constituting negligence. A. Personal conduct in general.[4]—The degree of care required by law is such as an ordinarily prudent person would use under like or similar circumstances,[5] and a failure to use that degree of care constitutes negligence.[6] Whether the required degree of care has been exercised in a particular instance depends upon the circumstances,[7] and the danger to be apprehended.[8]

Failure to obey a public safety regulation may be evidence of negligence,[9] and is sometimes held negligence per se.[10] Private rules of a master governing the action of his servants cannot affect the master's duties to the public.[11] Hence violation of such a rule is not negligence per se but may be evidence of negligence.[12]

3. Greene v. Louisville R. Co. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 1154.

4. See 2 Curr. L. 997.

5. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Wood [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 1187; Hot Springs St. R. Co. v. Hildreth [Ark.] 82 S. W. 245; Ford v. Kansas City, 181 Mo. 137, 79 S. W. 923. In an action for damages for loss by fire caused by sparks from defendant's mill, the measure of defendant's care in the use of appliances to prevent fires is the general conduct or use of people of ordinary care and prudence (or the great majority of people) engaged in the same or similar business under the same or similar circumstances; it is improper to limit the measure to the usage of such persons in a given small locality. Rylander v. Laursen [Wis.] 102 N. W. 341. A street commissioner who employed men who were paid by the city was responsible only for reasonable care in the selection of men and instrumentalities and materials. Bowden v. Derby [Me.] 58 A. 993.

6. Meng v. St. Louis & S. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 213. See collection of definitions of "negligence" by textwriters and courts in Holden v. Missouri R. Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 133. The test of negligence is what a person of ordinary prudence would or would not do, not what ordinarily intelligent and prudent men would or would not do. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 44. Negligence must be determined upon the facts as they appeared at the time, and not by a judgment from actual consequences which then were not to be apprehended by a prudent and competent man. Oceanic Steam Nav. Co. v. Aitken, 25 S. Ct. 317. The standard of conduct takes no account of the personal equation of the man concerned; even an expert, doing what his judgment approves at the time, may be found negligent. Id.

7. The same degree of care is required toward infants as toward adults, but that conduct which comes up to that degree of care when exercised toward adults may fall short of it when exercised toward infants under the same circumstances. Rohloff v. Fair Haven & W. R. Co., 76 Conn. 689, 58 A. 5. In determining whether one acts with reasonable care in a sudden emergency, the fact that he is obliged to act quickly and without an opportunity for deliberation is to be taken into consideration. One is not to be deemed careless merely because he failed to do that which would have been best as shown by subsequent events. Tozier v. Haverhill & A. St. R. Co. [Mass.] 72 N. E. 953. A motorman may assume that a person on the track, apparently of full age and sound mind, is so in fact, and may act accordingly. Simpson v. Rhode Island Co. [R. I.] 58 A. 658. See Street Railroads, 2 Curr. L. 1754. Defendant bound to exercise due care in shifting staging and discovering its condition after moving it. Parsons v. Hecla Iron Works [Mass.] 71 N. E. 572. Crew of steamboat, with lights out, held not negligent, where collision with rowboat occurred on dark night, and occupants of small boat gave no warning. Yarnold v. Bowers [Mass.] 71 N. E. 799. Defendant was not negligent in placing or maintaining a lamp where a trolley pole, slipping from the wire, would strike it, since it was presumably placed there by lawful authority from the city. Nelson v. Narragansett Elec. Lighting Co. [R. I.] 58 A. 802.

8. Where the danger to be apprehended is great, reasonable care requires the exercise of a high degree of diligence. Gilbert v. Duluth General Elec. Co. [Minn.] 100 N. W. 653; Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Fritts [Va.] 49 S. E. 971. Reasonable care requires a higher degree of care in handling electric wires liable to become charged than in handling ordinary substances or things. Nagle v. Hake [Wis.] 101 N. W. 409. The degree of care required in the use of agencies such as electricity and steam is proportionate to the danger. Parsons v. Charleston Consol. R. Gas & Elec. Co. [S. C.] 48 S. E. 284. See topic Electricity, 3 Curr. L. 1182.

9. Failure to ring locomotive bell at crossing as required by Pub. St. 1901, c. 159, § 6. Tucker v. Boston & M. R. Co. [N. H.] 59 A. 943. Violation of valid city ordinance regulating speed of vehicles in streets is prima facie evidence of negligence. United States Brew. Co. v. Stoltenberg, 211 Ill. 531, 71 N. E. 1081.

10. Violation of city ordinance requiring ringing of locomotive bells at street crossings held negligence per se. Reed v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 80 S. W. 919. Violation of statutes prohibiting the sale of poisonous liquors or substances without labeling the same as poisons held negligence per se. Burk v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co. [Iowa] 102 N. W. 793.

11. McKernan v. Detroit Citizens' St. R. Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 812.

12. Violation of a street railway rule re-

Whether a liability arising from breach of a duty prescribed by a statute or ordinance accrues for the benefit of an individual specially injured thereby, or whether such liability is exclusively of a public character must depend upon the nature of the duty enjoined and the benefits to be derived from its performance.[13]

One not a servant cannot maintain an action for violation of a factory act passed to protect employes.[14] The defense of fellow-servant is available only to the master of an injured servant. A stranger to the contract of service is a joint tort feasor with the servant with whom he acts to cause an injury, and both are liable.[15]

An inevitable accident, such as will constitute a defense to an action for negligence, is something that human skill and foresight could not in the exercise of ordinary prudence have provided against.[16] An act of God does not relieve from liability one whose own negligent acts concur in or contribute to the injury.[17]

When the party who was in fault as to the person injured is without fault as to the party whose actual negligence is the cause of injury, recovery over may be had.[18]

(§ 2) B. Use of property in general.[19]—One must employ ordinary care to use his own so as not to unnecessarily injure another.[20]

quiring cars to run only four miles an hour in front of engine houses is not negligence per se, but is evidence on the question whether a faster rate was negligence. McKernan v. Detroit Citizens' St. R. Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 812.

13. Violation of an ordinance by failure to provide fire-proof shutters on a building does not render one liable for goods destroyed by fire communicated through unprotected windows. Frontier Steam Laundry Co. v. Connolly [Neb.] 101 N. W. 995. The violation of a statutory or valid municipal regulation established for the protection of persons or property from injury is such a breach of duty as will sustain a private action for negligence, if the other elements of actionable negligence concur. Lincoln Traction Co. v. Heller [Neb.] 100 N. W. 197. Violation of a statute requiring trains to stop at railroad crossings did not render defendant liable to a trespasser on one of its trains. Wickenburg v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 713.

14. Fireman who fell through unguarded elevator shaft could not recover for violation of factory act [Gen. St. p. 2345, § 5]. Kelly v. Henry Muhs Co. [N. J. Law] 59 A. 23.

15. Kentucky & I. Bridge & R. Co. v. Sydor [Ky.] 82 S. W. 989.

16. Where there was sufficient warning of the approach of a storm so that a master should have moored his vessel more securely, the breaking away of the vessel in the storm and its collision with another moored vessel was not an inevitable accident. The Drumcraig, 133 F. 804. Where in an action for damages caused by blasting, owing to the force of an explosion going obliquely upward through a seam of soft rock, plaintiff did not show by a fair preponderance that the contractor could have discovered the soft rock by the exercise of ordinary care, it was held that the accident was one that could not have been foreseen and guarded against by the use of ordinary care. Necker v. Frank, 43 Misc. 159, 88 N. Y. S. 250. In an action against a vessel for collision to establish the defense of inevitable accident, it must be made to appear that the collision occurred without any fault on the part of the vessel and notwithstanding the exercise of due care and caution and a proper display of nautical skill. The Surf, 132 F. 880.

17. Greely v. State, 94 App. Div. 605, 88 N. Y. S. 468. An unusual freshet did not relieve a municipality from liability for damages caused by overflow of a creek used as a trunk sewer. O'Donnell v. Syracuse, 92 N. Y. S. 555. Where one has negligently failed to perform a duty which he has contracted to do, he will not be allowed to take refuge in an inquiry whether his own negligence or a vis major has been the proximate cause of the injury. Sharp v. Cincinnati, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 19.

18. Boston & M. R. Co. v. Sargent, 72 N. H. 455, 57 A. 688.

19. See 2 Curr. L. 998, 999.

20. The measure of care in respect to animals and other property is the same. Bostock-Ferari Amusement Co. v. Brocksmith [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 281. Though defendant had the right to have a whistle in its car shops, it was bound to use it so as not to injure others, as by frightening horses. Powell v. Nevada C. & O. R. Co. [Nev.] 78 P. 978. One who owns or controls the power which operates machinery is bound to use ordinary care to protect men obliged to work near. Kentucky Stove Co. v. Bryan's Adm'r [Ky.] 84 S. W. 537. Oil company maintained a pipe connecting a tank and building so close to a railway that an employe was killed by it while riding by on the side of a box car. Held, company liable, though there was no contract relation between it and deceased, since it owed the railway employes the duty of not endangering them while in performance of their duties. Young v. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. [Mo.] 84 S. W. 929. One operating a gasoline engine is under no duty to adopt any particular method or device for muffling

Dangerous machinery and substances.[21] Liability of manufacturers.[22]—The manufacturer and seller of an article of commerce ordinarily harmless is not liable to one with whom he has no contractual relation for injuries caused by such article,[23] if he has no knowledge of its dangerous character and did not practice deceit in its sale.[24] But he is liable if the article sold is inherently dangerous,[25] or if he puts a dangerous article on the market under the name of one which is not dangerous, even though no contractual relation exists between the user and manufacturer.[26] He is also liable, though a machine be not inherently dangerous, if it is made so by his neglect, with notice and knowledge that it is to be used by others than the purchaser, and injury results to such a third person from such negligence.[27] The rule last stated applies to one who contracts to repair a machine and put it in perfect order.[28]

(§ 2) C. Use of lands, buildings and other structures.[29]—The owner or occupant of premises is bound to use ordinary care to provide for the safety of persons coming thereon by express or implied invitation.[30] He must also exercise the sound of the exhaust, or any method; whether operation of the machine was negligent is a general question of negligence, on which the method used, if any, and the usage of others, may be considered; the mere fact that a device used was ineffective is not conclusive. Wolf v. Des Moines Elevator Co. [Iowa] 102 N. W. 517. Iceman negligent in allowing team to proceed along street unguided, whereby they ran into street cleaner. Turtenwald v. Wisconsin Lakes Ice & Cartage Co. [Wis.] 98 N. W. 948.

21. See 2 Curr. L. 998.

22. See 2 Curr. L. 998, n. 26.

23. Rule applied to machinery and appliances. Kahner v. Otis Elevator Co., 96 App. Div. 169, 89 N. Y. S. 185.

24. Bartender injured by explosion of bottle of champagne cider could not recover from the manufacturer who sold it to plaintiff's employer, when defendant had no knowledge of any defect in the bottle and believed the cider to be properly charged. O'Neill v. James [Mich.] 101 N. W. 828. Barber could not recover damages for loss of patronage by reason of excess of alkali in soap used by him. Slattery v. Colgate [R. I.] 55 A. 639.

Note: The rule as stated in the text seems to be supported by the weight of authority, but there is considerable conflict. See 2 Curr. L. 993, n. 26.

25. Kahner v. Otis Elevator Co., 96 App. Div. 169, 89 N. Y. S. 185.

26. As mixture of kerosene and gasoline sold as kerosene. Riggs v. Standard Oil Co., 130 F. 199.

27. This is recognized as an extension of the exception to the rule of a manufacturer's nonliability, but is said to be supported by authority. Kohner v. Otis Elevator Co., 96 App. Div. 169, 89 N. Y. S. 185.

28. Elevator company which did not manufacture or put in an elevator originally, but contracted to put it in thorough repair, held liable for injury to third person resulting from negligence in making repairs which rendered the elevator dangerous. Kahner v. Otis Elevator Co., 96 App. Div. 169, 89 N. Y. S. 185.

29. See 2 Curr. L. 999.

30. Sloss Iron & Steel Co. v. Tilson [Ala.] 37 So. 427. One on premises to seek employment by invitation of the owner's foreman is entitled to the exercise of ordinary care for his safety. McDonough v. James Reilly Repair & Supply Co., 90 N. Y. S. 358. Owners of building liable for injuries to a customer brought in by brokers to look the building over, the injury being caused by negligence of the brokers. Boyd v. U. S. Mortg. & Trust Co., 94 App. Div. 413, 88 N. Y. S. 289. The owner and occupant of premises on which there is an open way between a public street and a public saloon owes the duty to any person lawfully coming upon the premises along such open way of ordinary care to prevent injury by a dangerous structure, such as a partly burned wall liable to fall. Haack v. Brooklyn Labor Lyceum Ass'n, 93 App. Div. 491, 87 N. Y. S. 814. Where a merchant invites a customer to place packages containing purchases behind the counter, and thereafter the customer, by implied invitation of the merchant goes behind the counter after the packages and falls through a trap door, left open in the meantime, the merchant is liable for resulting injuries. League v. Stradley [S. C.] 47 S. E. 975. A petition alleging that decedent while on defendant's premises, which were maintained as a public resort, by defendant's invitation, fell into an unguarded and unlighted stairway while going to a room where defendant invited him, stated a cause of action, and did not show plaintiff to be a mere licensee. Robinson v. Howard [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 1031. Defendant liable for injury caused by defective sidewalk used by public and maintained by defendant. Marsh v. Minneapolis Brewing Co., 92 Minn. 182, 99 N. W. 630. See Highways and Streets, 3 Curr. L. 1621, 1622. Owner of a department store owes customers the duty of reasonable care to keep safe stairway which the public is tacitly invited to use. Graham v. Bauland Co., 97 App. Div. 141, 89 N. Y. S. 595. Where it appeared that a servant whose duty it was to clean the stairs left a duster thereon on which a customer stepped and fell, jury was warranted in finding a violation of this duty. Id. Owner of building owed duty of warning one invited therein of danger from unguarded elevator shaft in dark corner. Massey v. Seller [Or.]

reasonable care to prevent children coming upon his premises, if such premises are dangerous,[31] and is liable for injuries caused by traps or attractive nuisances maintained thereon by him.[32] But the tendency of the modern authorities is said to be against the extension of the theory of the "turntable cases" to other situations.[33]

Trespassers[34] and mere licensees[35] take the premises as they find them;[36] the 77 P. 397. The court may judicially notice that ordinary double swinging storm doors are not dangerous appliances. Dolan v. Callender, McAuslan & Troup Co. [R. I.] 58 A. 655. When swinging doors used in a department store were similar to these in use in other like establishments, and there was nothing in their construction or operation to make them dangerous, use of them was net negligence. Pardington v. Abraham, 93 App. Div. 359, 87 N. Y. S. 670. Not negligence per se to maintain a stairway, with proper railings, from main floor to basement of store. Dunn v. Kemp [Wash.] 78 P. 782. Minor employes in defendant's pewer house, who talked to children and asked them to stay and blow the whistle at close ef work, had no autherity to invite strangers on premises, and defendant held not liable for injury to one of the children. Curtis v. Tenino Stone Quarries [Wash.] 79 P. 955. Owner ef apartment house net liable fer injuries caused by accumulation of ice and snow on steps, when weather had not permitted its removal, and ashes had been put on to make them safe, which caused an uneven surface. Laufers-Weiler v. Borchardt, 88 N. Y. S. 985.

