Evidence insufficient to show fraud in procuring the execution of a deed. Brown v. Cole, 126 Iowa, 711, 102 N. W. 782. Evidence insufficient to show fraud in the execution of a deed. Leonard v. Fleming [N. D.] 102 N. W. 308. To justify a decree canceling a conveyance. Horn v. Beatty [Miss.] 37 So. 833. To show that a deed drawn by a reputable attorney was procured to be executed by a fraudulent representation that it was a will. Absalon v. Sickinger, 102 App. Div. 383, 92 N. Y. S. 601. To show that the execution of a deed of trust was procured by fraud, though based on no consideration. Dayton v. Stewart, 99 Md. 643, 59 A. 281. That the release of a judgment was procured by fraud and collusion. Naretti v. Scully [C. C. A.] 139 F. 118. Facts relative to organization of a corporation held not to show actual fraud sufficient to avoid a deed to it. Minneapolis Threshing Mach. Co. v. Jones [Minn.] 103 N. W. 1017. To rescind a contract of sale. Schmitz v. Roberts, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 472. To show fraud in a transaction between a person and his grandmother. Cornish v. Johns [Ark.] 85 S. W. 764. To show fraud where a deed was procured from a grantor whose mind was so weakened by the use of drugs that she was incapable of discerning fraud. Oxford v. Hopson [Ark.] 83 S. W. 942. Evidence insufficient to show fraud or undue influence in procuring the execution of a deed. Winn v. Itzel [Wis.] 103 N. W. 220.

30. American Hoist & Derrick Co. v. Hall, 110 Ill. App. 463. When one not a party to it asserts that it was executed with a design to defraud him. Meyers v. Meyers, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 603. The fact of one's complicity in fraud must be established by a preponderance of evidence. Smith v. McDonald [Mich.] 102 N. W. 738. The proof must induce a reasonable belief that the execution of a release was procured by fraud. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Jennings, 114 Ill. App. 622. Instructions relative to fraudulent representations approved. McKibbin v. Day [Neb.] 104 N. W. 752. Where a complaint charges two distinct acts of fraud, proof of either entitles plaintiff to recover. Edward Malley Co. v. Button [Conn.] 60 A. 125.

Evidence sufficient to show fraud in procuring a release of damages for personal injuries. New Omaha Thomson-Houston Elec. L. Co. v. Rombold [Neb.] 102 N. W. 475; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Cain [Tex. Civ. App] 84 S. W. 682. Proof that defendant had a facial blemish removed by a physician two years before making a contract to teach plaintiff how to cure disease by Christian Science held insufficient to show that at time of contract she was not an orthodox believer and hence was guilty of fraud in holding herself out as a teacher thereof. Meyer v. Knott [Mich.] 100 N. W. 907. To show fraud in the sale of a grave stone. Pioneer Granite Co. v. Reidy, 26 Ky. L. R. 1196, 83 S. W. 571. In the purchase of a shooting gallery outfit. Parker v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 856. Proof that false representations were made to an agent is not a variance from an allegation that they were made to the principal. Sudworth v. Morton [Mich.] 100 N. W. 769.

Evidence insufficient to show fraud on the part of an agent in obtaining an option. Hughes v. Antill, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 290. Defense of fraud in procuring contract for furnishing ties not sufficiently supported by evidence to require instruction in regard to it. American Surety Co. v. Choctaw Const. Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 487. False representations of the financial condition and prospects of a manufacturing corporation made to induce a purchase of corporate stock. Smith v. Bank of Lewisport [Ky.] 85 S. W. 219. That a sale of oil stock was induced by fraudulent representations. Spinks v. Clark [Cal.] 82 P. 45. Evidence held to show that false representations were made. Sudworth v. Morton [Mich.] 100 N. W. 769. As to the flow of oil wells, which was mostly hearsay, held insufficient to go to the jury. Jack v. Hixon, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 453. That proof.[31] Fraud may be proven by direct or circumstantial evidence,[32] and a liberal range of investigation is permitted.[33] Gross inadequacy of consideration in a transaction is evidence of fraud,[34] and delay in seeking relief is evidence that the transaction was not fraudulent.[35] Fraud cannot be established by evidence of similar acts of fraud in connection with other transactions,[36] unless such acts show a general scheme to defraud.[37] Evidence of the circumstances surrounding the transaction,[38] evidence tending to show the materiality of the misrepresentations,[39] and that they were false,[40] is admissible.

FRAUDS, STATUTE OF.

a written guaranty was procured by false representations as to its nature. First Nat. Bank v. Buetow, 123 Wis. 285, 101 N. W. 927.

Evidence held for the jury in an action to recover the value of stock alleged to have been fraudulently sold. McNaughton v. Smith [Mich.] 99 N. W. 382. Whether a release of damages for personal injuries was obtained by fraud. Spring Valley Coal Co. v. Buzis, 115 Ill. App. 196; Chicago, etc. R. Co. v. Cain [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 682. Where a beneficial association induced a release of his claim by a member. Fraternal Army of America v. Evans, 215 Ill. 629, 74 N. E. 689. In procuring a conveyance. Flanigan v. Skelly, 89 App. Div. 108, 85 N. Y. S. 4. The question to be submitted to a jury is whether the specific acts constitute fraud and not whether a contract was procured by fraud. Pace v. Paducah R. & L. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 105.

31. Instructions as to the degree of proof required held erroneous as requiring too high a degree of proof. McNaughton v. Smith [Mich.] 99 N. W. 382. Proof is sufficient if the facts and circumstances, taken together, concerning the transaction, satisfy the mind that fraud was perpetrated. Id. Repetition of false representations need not be proved, though alleged. Kehl v. Abram, 112 Ill. App. 77. Evidence held to show that false representations were made. I. L. Corse & Co. v. Minnesota Grain Co. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 728.

32. Tyler v. Davis [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 3.

33. McKibbin v. Day [Neb.] 104 N. W. 752; Troxler v. New Era Bldg. Co., 137 N. C. 51, 49 S. E. 58.

34. Property worth $2,000 procured for $500. Vollenweider v. Vollenweider, 216 Ill. 197, 74 N. E. 795. Four hundred and fifty dollars for land worth $800 is not so disproportionate that the deed will be set aside for fraud. Storthz v. Arnold [Ark.] 84 S. W. 1036. Evidence merely tending to show inadequacy of consideration for a release of damages is insufficient to show fraud. Mattoon G. & C. Co. v. Dolan, 111 Ill. App. 333.

35. Raises a presumption that the transaction was not fraudulent. Attorney General v. Central R. Co. of New Jersey [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 348.

36. Proof that the person charged has been guilty on other occasions is insufficient. Price v. Winnebago Nat. Bank, 14 Okl. 268, 79 P. 105. Like acts of fraud perpetrated on another and not connected with the transaction in controversy are inadmissible. Buckley v. Acme Food Co., 113 Ill. App. 210. Evidence of similar representations made to other persons in procuring a sale of goods to her is not evidence that a married woman procured a particular sale on false representations of her husband's financial condition. Edward Malley Co. v. Button [Conn.] 60 A. 125. It is no answer to a charge of fraud in one transaction to show similar deceit in another. Sylvester v. Ammons, 126 Iowa, 140, 101 N. W. 782. Fraud cannot be established by evidence that the defrauded party had also been defrauded in another transaction by a different person. Obst v. Unnerstall, 184 Mo. 383, 83 S. W. 450.

37. Yakima Valley Bank v. McAllister, 37 Wash. 566, 79 P. 1119.

38. Pioneer Granite Co. v. Reidy, 26 Ky. L. R. 1196, 83 S. W. 571.

39. Where an exchange of property is induced by false representations as to value, it is proper to show the value of the respective properties, though there was no allegations of such values. Thompson v. Hardy [S. D.] 102 N. W. 299. Evidence of the financial condition of a corporation immediately after a sale of stock alleged to have been procured by false representations as to its value. Campbell v. Park [Iowa] 101 N. W. 861.

40. Evidence that after a sale of stock alleged to have been procured by false statements as to its value, property in the company's plant represented to constitute part

§ 1. Agreements not to be performed within one year.[41]—No action may be maintained on any contract which is by its terms not to be performed within a year,[42] but if it can be so performed, it is immaterial that it may not be,[43] nor does the statute apply to contracts arising by implication of law.[44]

§ 2. Promise to answer for debt or default of another.[45]—A collateral agreement to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another must be in writing,[46] unless it is based on a new and substantial consideration.[47] To be within the statute, the promise must be collateral to the debt of another,[48] must be to a third person and not to the debtor,[49] nor does the statute apply to a mere novation.[50] Where the promisor has property or money in his hands to pay the debt,[51] or where the debt to be paid is his own,[52] or where the contract has been fully executed,[53] the stat-of its assets was taken away by persons who claimed to be its owners, is admissible. Campbell v. Park [Iowa] 101 N. W. 861. Evidence of what pipe line statements showed is admissible on an issue of fraud based on representations as to production of oil lands, which pipe line statements show to be correct. Barnsdall v. O'Day [C. C. A.] 134 F. 828. In an action for damages for breach of defendant's agreement to teach plaintiff to cure disease by Christian Science, where defendant claimed that plaintiff was not a true and conscientious believer in that she had received material treatment from a physician, evidence of such physician as to what disease defendant had and for what he treated her held inadmissible. Meyer v. Knott [Mich.] 100 N. W. 907. On the issue as to whether cost marks on goods had been fraudulently raised, held proper to allow witness to testify as to the difference between the cost at wholesale on the entire stock as inventoried by them and the amount of the invoice furnished the seller. Sylvester v. Annons, 126 Iowa, 140, 101 N. W. 782.

41. See 3 C. L. 1527.

42. Graham v. Hiesel [Neb.] 102 N. W. 1010; Co-operative Tel. Co. v. Katus [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 187, 103 N. W. 814.

43. Osgood v. Skinner, 111 Ill. App. 606; Mail & Express Co. v. Wood [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 244, 103 N. W. 864. Time of performance indefinite. Ayotte v. Nadeau [Mont.] 81 P. 145; Anderson v. Mt. Sterling Tel. Co. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 1119; Booher v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 956. Agreement to pay all doctor bills may be terminated by death of promisee. American Quarries Co. v. Lay [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 608. A parol contract covering real property which is for less than one year must none the less conform with other clause of the statute. Richards v. Redelsheimer, 36 Wash. 325, 78 P. 934.

44. Higgins v. Evans [Mo.] 87 S. W. 973.

45. See 3 C. L. 1528.

46. Halsted v. Pelletreau, 101 App. Div. 125, 91 N. Y. S. 927; Reelman v. Grosfend [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 335, 104 N. W. 331; Netterstrom v. Gallistel, 110 Ill. App. 352; Caesar v. Kulla, 92 N. Y. S. 798; Halsted v. Pelletreau, 101 App. Div. 125, 91 N. Y. S. 927; Hunt v. Taylor [Ky.] 87 S. W. 290; Wray v. Cox [Miss.] 38 So. 344; Miller v. State [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 260. The statute of frauds does not require that the consideration for the sureties undertaking be expressed in the bond. Gein v. Little, 43 Misc. 421, 89 N. Y. S. 488; Taylor v. Folz, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 1.

47. Pizzi v. Nardello, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 535; Scherzer v. Muirhead, 84 N. Y. S. 159; Bates v. Birmingham Paint & Glass Co. [Ala.] 38 So. 845; Peterson v. Creason [Or.] 81 P. 574; Adlam v. McKnight [Mont.] 80 P. 613. Forbearance insufficient. Consideration must move to guarantor. Gilman v. Ferguson, 116 Ill. App. 347. The promise of a contractor to pay one who has furnished material to a subcontractor is within the statute of frauds. Wilson v. Dietrich [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 251; Nichols v. Dixon [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1051; Smith v. Burdett, 95 N. Y. S. 188. But see effect of statute requiring consideration to be expressed. Snyder v. Monroe Eckstein Brewing Co., 95 N. Y. S. 144.

48. Dryden v. Barnes [Md.] 61 A. 342; Swenson v. Stoltz, 36 Wash. 318, 78 P. 999; In re Dresser [C. C. A.] 135 F. 495; Runkle v. Kettering [Iowa] 102 N. W. 142.

49. Peters v. George [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1117.

50. Potter v. Greenberg, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 505; Conly v. Hampton [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 425, 87 S. W. 1171; Palmetto Mfg. Co. v. Parker [Ga.] 51 S. E. 714; Wattenbarger v. Hodges [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1013.

51. City of Tyler v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 173, 87 S. W. 238. Where a landlord and his tenant have a claim against the United States which they prosecute in the name of the landlord with a parol promise of division if successful, on collection, the landlord cannot set up that the promise was to pay the debt of another. Bomgardner v. Swartz, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 263.

52. McCord v. Edward Hines Lumber Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 334; Bomgardner v. Swartz, 26 Pa. Super. Ct 263; Potter v. Greenberg, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 502; Stromberg v. Loiacono, 45 Misc. 651, 91 N. Y. S. 46; Groesbeck v. Thompson Milling Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 346; Bates v. Birmingham Paint & Glass Co. [Ala.] 38 So. 845; Paul v. Wilbur [Mass.] 75 N. E. 63. Credit given to alleged guarantor. Long v. McDaniel [Ark.] 88 S. W. 964. A person using a corporation as a cloak for his own dealings is bound by his oral promise to pay its debt for it is in fact his own. Donovan v. Purtell [Ill.] 75 N. E. 334. As where the complaint alleged that defendant was indebted to plaintiff in a certain sum for goods sold and delivered to defendant's employes at its request and on contract between plaintiff and defendant.

ute has no application. A promise to make a collateral promise is within the statute.[54]

§ 3. Agreements in consideration of marriage.[55]—A parol promise to liquidate an indebtedness,[56] or other parol contract in consideration of marriage except mutual agreements to marry, is void.[57]

§ 4. Representations as to character or credit of another.[58]

§ 5. Agreements with executors and administrators.[59]—Agreements made by executors or administrators charging themselves personally with the debts of another must be in writing.[60]

§ 6. Agreements with real estate brokers.[61]—In New York, Pennsylvania, and some other states, a real estate agent has no right to recover a commission for his services unless authorized in writing.[62] But the statute has no application to agreements for the division of profits in joint ventures in realty transactions,[63] and such parol promises are good in the absence of a statute.[64]

§ 7. Agreements respecting real property or an estate or interest therein.[65]—Other than leases for not more than one year, no estate or interest in the land or any way relating thereto may be created, granted, assigned, surrendered or declared, unless by act or operation of law,[66] or by deed or conveyance in writing subscribed by the parties thereto,[67] or their duly authorized agent in writing.[68] To be within the statute, the contract must be one which transfers or creates some interest in land.[69] Thus an agreement to divide profits derived from land[70] or to erect a house,[71] or to enter into a partnership to deal in land, is not within the statute,[72] and so an oral agreement establishing a boundary line is enforceable.[73] An easement must be Cauthron Lumber Co. v. Hall [Ark.] 88 S. W. 594.

53. Lasley v. Delano [Mich.] 102 N. W. 1063.

54. Rowell v. Smith, 123 Wis. 510, 102 N. W. 1.

55. See 3 C. L. 1528.

56. Weld v. Weld [Kan.] 81 P. 183; Austin v. Kuehn, 111 Ill. App. 506.

57. Antenuptial agreement. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Warren [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 1122. Marriage not such part performance as to take out of statute. Weld v. Weld [Kan.] 81 P. 183.

58. See 3 C. L. 1528.

59. See 3 C. L. 1529.

60. A promise by an executor to pay a real estate broker a commission for sale of lands is not within the statute, since it is not a contract chargeable against the estate but one for which he would be personally liable. Reynolds-McGinness Co. v. Green [Vt.] 61 A. 556.

61. See 3 C. L. 1528.

62. Can recover on parol contract of purchaser but not owner. Friedman v. Bittker, 45 Misc. 178, 91 N. Y. S. 896. The statute being penal in its nature must be strictly construed. Levy v. Timble, 94 N. Y. S. 3. Does not include commissions for purchase of a land contract. Id. Nor options. Hughes v. Antill, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 290.

63. See infra, § 7.

64. Hancock v. Dodge [Miss.] 37 So. 711.

65. See 3 C. L. 1529.

66. See resulting trusts, infra, § 9. Where a lease must be in writing, a contract for a lease must be written. Ballinger's Ann. Codes, § 4568. Richards v. Redelsheimer, 36 Wash. 325, 78 P. 934.

67. Sale of real estate. Keith v. Keith [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 126, 87 S. W. 384.

68. This clause does not exist in some states. Gleadall v. Kenney, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 576. Parol authority subsequently ratified by principal in writing. Butman v. Butman, 213 Ill. 104, 72 N. E. 821.

69. The following seem to be within the statute: A parol agreement by the beneficiary of a resulting trust, that the trustee should take the property absolutely on certain conditions, is void under the statute of frauds. Brennaman v. Schell, 212 Ill. 356, 72 N. E. 412. Lease must be in writing, though not under seal. Richards v. Redelsheimer, 36 Wash. 325, 78 P. 934. A contract to move a building to a new location and lease the same must be in writing. Id. A contract to redeem from unpaid taxes is within the statute. Henry v. Knod [Ark.] 85 S. W. 1130; Ball v. Harpham [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 303, 104 N. W. 353. Parol agreement to bequeath and devise. Dixon v. Sheridan [Wis.] 103 N. W. 239. Contract to purchase real estate. Schultz v. Kosbab [Wis.] 103 N. W. 237. A lien must be created by a written instrument. Tucker v. S. Ottenheimer Estate [Or.] 81 P. 360. Agreement to maintain a telephone in consideration of use of land is an easement within statute. Anderson v. Mt. Sterling Tel. Co. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 1119.

70. Location of mining claims and division of stores. Mack v. Mack [Wash.] 81 P. 707.

71. Ayotte v. Nadeau [Mont.] 81 P. 145.

72. Larkin v. Martin, 46 Misc. 179, 93 N. Y. S. 198; Garth v. Davis [Ky.] 85 S. W. 692.

73. Berry v. Evans [Ky.] 89 S. W. 12; acquired by an express grant in writing,[74] and when given by parol such right amounts but to a mere license which may be revoked at any time;[75] but acts done under such a license are not illegal as to the executed part, and suit may be brought for the agreed consideration.[76]

§ 8. Sale of goods.[77]—All sales of goods, wares, and merchandise, above the value of fifty dollars,[78] are void unless part of the goods be delivered or earnest money be paid.[79] The statute has nothing to do with contracts for manufacture,[80] or contracts between partners for the dissolution of partnerships,[81] or the formation of joint ventures to deal in goods.[82]

§ 9. Trusts.[83]—An expressed trust is generally uninforceable unless it is in writing;[84] but the statute does not apply to constructive or resulting trusts which are created by operation of law,[85] or where a parol trust is fully executed.[86]

§ 10. What will satisfy the statute. A. Writing.[87]—A written agreement which will satisfy the statute may be gathered from letters, telegrams and writings concerning the subject-matter, so connected as to fairly constitute one paper,[88] but

Cheatham v. Hicks [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1093. There must be a dispute as to the true line. Mays v. Hinchman [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 823. But see Frazier v. Mineral Development Co. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 983.

74. Belser v. Moore [Ark.] 84 S. W. 219. Right to use a ferry landing. Parsons v. Hunt [Tex.] 84 S. W. 644. But not a substituted way for one previously existing. Thompson v. Madsen [Utah] 81 P. 160. Sale of standing timber. Ward v. Gay, 137 N. C. 397, 49 S. E. 884; Anderson v. Hilton & D. Lumber Co., 121 Ga. 688, 49 S. E. 725; Antrim Iron Co. v. Anderson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 314, 104 N. W. 319. Right to cut growing grass. Ross v. Cook [Kan.] 80 P. 38. Right to dig ore. Entwhistle v. Henke, 113 Ill. App. 572. Right to remove dirt. Cox v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 989.

75. Howes v. Barmon [Idaho] 81 P. 48; Cox v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 989; Entwhistle v. Henke, 113 Ill. App. 572. Parol licensee a mere tenant at will. Sheehan v. Fall River, 187 Mass. 356, 73 N. E. 544. To be a good license, agent giving permission need not have authority in writing. Antrim Iron Co. v. Anderson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 314, 104 N. W. 319.

76. A parol sale of standing timber is good as to the part already cut. Antrim Iron Co. v. Anderson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 314, 104 N. W. 319. An executed parol agreement may alter the terms of a written contract. Benesh v. Travelers' Ins. Co. [N. D.] 103 N. W. 405. Parol lease partially performed. Recovery can be had for consideration less value of premises while occupied thereunder. De Montague v. Bacharach, 187 Mass. 128, 72 N. E. 938. Parol sale of land not illegal and void. Bringhurst v. Texas Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 893. Where contract is not severable, the whole is unenforceable. Schultz v. Kosbab [Wis.] 103 N. W. 237.

77. See 3 C. L. 1530.

78. See 3 C. L. 1530, n. 97, 98, for variations in different states.

79. Taylor v. Godbold [Ark.] 88 S. W. 959; Hatch v. Gluck, 93 N. Y. S. 508.

80. Contract for purchase of shoes which were to be made as required. Held, a contract of sale and not of manufacture. Helmers, Bettman & Co. v. Nagel & Co. [Mo App.] 87 S. W. 61.

81. Division of assets. Mason v. Spiller, 186 Mass. 346, 71 N. E. 779.

82. Bogigian v. Hassanoff, 186 Mass. 380, 71 N. E. 789.

83. See 3 C. L. 1530.

84. Gallagher v. Northrup, 114 Ill. App. 368; McIntosh v. Green, 25 App. D. C. 456; Mellerio v. Freeman, 211 Pa. 202, 60 A. 735. Parol trust of personal property enforceable. In re Fisher's Estate [Iowa] 102 N. W. 797. The performance of an unenforceable trust cannot be objected to by creditors. Gallagher v. Northrup, 114 Ill. App. 368.

85. Constructive trust. Stahl v. Stahl, 214 Ill. 131, 73 N. E. 319; Parker v. Catron [Ky.] 85 S. W. 740; Shea v. Nilima [C. C. A.] 133 F. 209; Bomgardner v. Swartz, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 263. A constructive trust arises where an agent appointed by parol takes property in his own name. Morris v. Reigel [S. D.] 101 N. W. 1086. Actual fraud must be shown to create a trust by implication of law so as to take it out of statute. Ammonette v. Black [Ark.] 83 S. W. 910. Parol trust in fraud of creditors may be set aside. Andrews v. Scott, 113 Ill. App. 581. Resulting trust. Lynch v. Herrig [Mont.] 80 P. 240.

86. Lasley v. Delano [Mich.] 102 N. W. 1063.

87. See 3 C. L. 1531.

88. Welsh v. Brainerd [Minn.] 103 N. W. 1031. Telegram and subsequent letter referring to it. Bonds v. Lipton Co. [Miss.] 37 So. 805. Unsigned deed and letter taken together. Collyer v. Davis [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1001. A signed but undelivered lease and a memorandum as to its contents will be construed as a lease. Charlton v. Columbia Real Estate Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 192. Separate papers must relate to each other. Cobb v. Glenn Boom & Lumber Co. [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 1005; Ferguson v. Trovaten [Minn.] 102 N. W. 373. An unsigned lease, with letter saying "enclosed we hand you lease," etc., held insufficient. Jewett v. Greisheimer, 100 App. Div. 210, 91 N. Y. S. 654. An option accepted by an agent of the vendee in a letter is a sufficient memorandum. Sutter v. Isabella Furnace Co., 210 Pa. 79, 59 A. 476.

the memorandum must describe the party and subject-matter so that it can be identified with reasonable certainty,[89] and be signed by the party to be charged or the parties thereto or their duly authorized agent,[90] and in many states, by statute or decision, the authority of an agent to execute an unsealed instrument must be in writing;[91] but subsequent written ratification may be made by the principal;[92] but the contract is binding where the agent so executes it as to bind himself.[93] In some states the consideration must be expressed in the instrument.[94] Where the entire contract must be in writing, the acceptance as well as the offer must be written.[95]

(§ 10) B. Delivery and acceptance.[96]—By its terms the statute does not apply where there is a delivery and acceptance of goods sold.[97]

89. Description held insufficient: Sale of realty described as "estate of G. Lawrence." Morrison v. Hazzard [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 310, 88 S. W. 385. "Rec'd from K. $190 on land, § 25, Ts. 32, R. 2E, 160 acres" is insufficient for identification. Kurdy v. Rogers [Idaho] 79 P. 195. A telegram ordering "assorted goods," saying specifications will follow, is not, in absence of such specifications a sufficient memorandum. Fait Co. v. Anderson [Ark.] 88 S. W. 905.

Description held sufficient: Card of promisor endorsed "$7,500" does not satisfy the statutory requirements as to a writing as evidence of a promise of marriage. Austin v. Kuehn, 111 Ill. App. 506. "Received of X. $225 for locust at Oakwood" sufficiently describes sale of locust timber on an estate. Bayles v. Strong, 93 N. Y. S. 346. Contract for sale of cattle, giving price per pound, is good, though it did not give time or place of delivery. Darnell v. Lafferty [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 784. "In consideration of $1,000, A. sold one-sixth interest in a saloon and half the fixtures. Lamb v. Hall [Cal.] 81 P. 288. Contract for sale of realty, giving description, sufficient for identification, conditions of sale, name of vendor and signatures. Ullsperger v. Meyer [Ill.] 75 N. E. 482. Receipt for sale of standing timber which gives neither time for cutting nor removal. Kidder v. Flanders [N. H.] 61 A. 675. Reference to real property by house and street number. Engler v. Garrett [Md.] 59 A. 649. "Hotel Duquesne property." Henry v. Block, 210 Pa. 245, 59 A. 1070. Receipt for purchase money of real estate, describing it. Id.

90. Undelivered deed is an insufficient memorandum. Collyer v. Davis [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1001. Delivery of a deed to a common agent with instructions not to deliver till signed, is a sufficient memorandum. Wisconsin & M. R. Co. v. McKenna [Mich.] 102 N. W. 281. Since an auctioneer acts at the instance of both parties, his memorandum is sufficient to satisfy the statute in case of a sale of real estate. Garth v. Davis [Ky.] 85 S. W. 692.

91. "I hereby authorize H. to bargain for sale of 47 acres known as the Abbey ranch . . . valued at $7,000, for which I agree to pay 5 per cent. . . . or the above-mentioned sum on any amount I may accept" a sufficient authorization. Hill v. McCoy [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1015. "I am glad you sold the 88 acres; now sell the 40" is not a sufficient authorization. Johnson v. Fecht, 185 Mo. 335, 83 S. W. 1077. A memorandum signed by one member of a firm binds the firm. Garth v. Davis [Ky.] 85 S. W. 692. Printed signature of agent is insufficient when not meant to be part of contract. Ferguson v. Trovaten [Minn.] 102 N. W. 373.

92. Memorandum of agent and letter from his employer canceling order, satisfy statute. Nebraska Bridge Supply & Lumber Co. v. Owen Conway & Sons [Iowa] 103 N. W. 122, withdrawing former opinion (98 N. W. 1024) cited in 3 C. L. 1530, n. 99; Id. 1531, n. 9. But see, Nebraska Bridge Supply & Lumber Co. v. Conway [Iowa] 98 N. W. 1024.

93. Where agent executes a contract for sale of goods for his principal whose name did not appear. Usher v. Daniels [N. H.] 60 A. 746. A lease made by an officer of a corporation for the latter where he was personally bound. Clement v. Young-McShea Amusement Co. [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 419. A written contract for the sale of real estate, made and signed by an agent in his own name and without disclosing his agency or the name of his principal, satisfies the requirements of the statute of frauds, and is binding on and may be enforced by the principal. Egle v. Morrison, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 609. A mining lease signed by the agent so as to bind him alone is "signed by party to be charged." Brooks v. Cook [Ala.] 38 So. 641; Fordyce Round Bale Cotton Press Co. v. Seaver [Ark.] 85 S. W. 1126.

94. "Value received" is sufficient. White Sew. Mach. Co. v. Fowler [Nev.] 78 P. 1034. Though principal contract is dated one day before written guaranty, its execution will be regarded as a sufficient consideration of latter contract to satisfy the statute. De Reszke v. Duss, 99 App. Div. 353, 91 N. Y. S. 221. Need not appear in a guaranty contract which would be enforceable if in parol. Dryden v. Barnes [Md.] 61 A. 342.

95. Co-operative Tel. Co. v. Katus [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 187, 103 N. W. 814. Need not be in same instrument. Ferguson v. Trovaten [Minn.] 102 N. W. 373. A contract required by the statute of frauds to be in writing is sufficient if signed by one of the parties to be charged and accepted by the other. The bringing of a suit for specific performance by the party whose name has not been appended to the contract establishes its acceptance by him. Egle v. Morrison, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 609. But see contra. Cowan v. Curran [Ill.] 75 N. E. 322. A written offer if accepted is sufficient memorandum of sale of goods to satisfy statute. In re Pettingill & Co., 137 F. 143.

96. See 3 C. L. 1532.

97. Acceptance of part of goods sufficient. MacEvoy v. Aronson, 92 N. Y. S. 724. The sale of three cases of canned tomatoes is not taken out of the statute by the delivery of three cans as samples, the bulk of the cases not being broken. Richardson v. Smith [Md.] 60 A. 612. Mere delivery for purposes of inspection does not take a sale out of the statute where the goods are returned as unsatisfactory. Hatch v. Gluck, 93 N. Y. S. 508. Where goods sent "f. o. b. Aberdeen, sight draft, Bill of Lading attached," there can be no delivery till payment, and statute not satisfied. Richardson v. Smith [Md.] 60 A. 612.

(§ 10) C. Part payment and earnest money.[98]—Part payment for goods sold takes the sale out of the statute.[99]

§ 11. Operation and effect of statute.[1]—The English statute of frauds is entirely superseded by the later local legislative enactments,[2] and in case of conflicts between the statutes of different states, the statute of the state where the contract was made prevails.[3] Noncompliance with the statute of frauds save in the case of sales of goods and actions for commissions by real estate agents does not make the transaction void but merely unenforceable,[4] and where the contract is fully executed, it will not be set aside.[5] A court of equity will not permit the statute to be used as an instrument for fraud, and in extreme cases where the parties have so altered their position that damages will not give an adequate remedy, a constructive trust[6] or an equitable mortgage[7] or specific performance[8] will be decreed. To obtain this, it must be shown that there exists a fair contract,[9] followed by possession,[10] and that the vendee has so altered his position that damages will not be an adequate remedy.[11]

98. See 3 C. L. 1532.

99. Where there is a running account with a balance in favor of the purchaser, the sale of goods and crediting the same on the account is not within the statute. Lilly v. Lilly, Bogardus & Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 852.

1. See 3 C. L. 1532.

2. Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. §§ 4517, 4518, 4568, 4567. Richards v. Redelsheimer, 36 Wash. 325, 78 P. 934.

3. Sale of goods in Illinois for delivery in Missouri. Missouri court holds the Illinois statute governs. Brockman Commission Co. v. Kilbourne [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 275. And see Conflict of Laws, 5 C. L. 610.

4. Barnett v. Block [Minn.] 102 N. W. 390; Cannon v. Castleman [Ind.] 73 N. E. 689. An action lies for the recovery of the consideration. De Montague v. Bacharach, 187 Mass. 128, 72 N. E. 938; Schultz v. Kosbab [Wis.] 103 N. W. 237; Bringhurst v. Texas Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 893; Gallagher v. Northrup, 114 Ill. App. 368. A tenant on a partially executed farm lease may recover for work and labor. Brashear v. Rabenstein [Kan.] 80 P. 950. Vendee of a parol contract for the sale of land may recover back payments already made. Durham v. Wick, 210 Pa. 128, 59 A. 824. Where a contract for the sale of lands is fully executed, suit may be brought for recovery of the consideration. Tucker v. Dolan [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 1126.

5. Lasley v. Delano [Mich.] 102 N. W. 1063; Antrim Iron Co. v. Anderson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 314, 104 N. W. 319; Benesh v. Travelers' Ins. Co. [N. D.] 103 N. W. 405. Marriage is not such performance as to enable one party of a contract made in consideration of marriage sue for the consideration for its performance. Weld v. Weld [Kan.] 81 P. 183. Where a father made an oral contract with his son that if he pay all his father's debts, buy in other property, and care for father for life, he could have his property, and the son fulfilled these conditions, on his death, the contract being fully executed, the statute of frauds does not apply. Hasenbeck v. Hasenbeck [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 916. And see Waters v. Cline [Ky.] 85 S. W. 209. A parol modification of a written agreement fully executed is good. Denison v. Sawyer [Minn.] 104 N. W. 305. Where a person surrenders a child in consideration of a promise to care for the same, it is fully executed on her part and will be enforced. Jones v. Comer, 25 Ky. L. R. 773, 76 S. W. 392.

6. Where one party uses the statute of frauds to unjustly enrich himself at the expense of another, specific performance will be decreed. Rowell v. Smith, 123 Iowa, 510, 102 N. W. 1. See cases cited under § 10, Trusts.

7. Foster Lumber Co. v. Harlan County Bank [Kan.] 80 P. 49.

8. Applies as well where contract is unenforceable because not to be performed within a year, as where one concerning real estate. Stitt v. Rat Portage Lumber Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 561. Specific performance granted only to prevent fraud. Hartman v. Powell [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 628; Rowell v. Smith, 123 Wis. 510, 102 N. W. 1. On the theory of equitable estoppel where an oral party wall agreement was in consideration of use of a stairway there is such execution as makes the statute inapplicable. Hardcastle v. Holmes [Kan.] 80 P. 962. Courts will enforce a parol contract where its avoidance would work fraud. Foster Lumber Co. v. Harlan County Bank [Kan.] 80 P. 49. Where the identity of the principal is shielded by agent, specific performance will not be denied. Cowan v. Curran [Ill.] 75 N. E. 322.

9. Ruff Brewing Co. v. Schanz, 114 Ill. App. 508. The minds of the parties must meet in a contract. Bringhurst v. Texas Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 893. An undisputed parol contract must be shown. Lay v. Lay [Ark.] 87 S. W. 1026.

10. Possession is necessary. Browder v. Phinney, 37 Wash. 70, 79 P. 598. Possession of which the owner had no knowledge insufficient. Wiley v. Whaley [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1165. The continued possession of a tenant as vendee is sufficient. Cross v. Johnston [Ark.] 88 S. W. 945; Veum v. Sheeran [Minn.] 104 N. W. 135. Where one in possession as co-tenant alleges a parol sale of the remaining undivided interest. Roberts v. Templeton [Or.] 80 P. 481; McKay v. Calderwood, 37 Wash. 194, 79 P. 629. Pier erected under mistake of fact on adjacent land. Evidence must be "demonstrative of plaintiff's right." Hartman v. Powell [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 628.

§ 12. Pleading and proof.[12]—A complaint need not set up that the contract is in writing,[13] but when it affirmatively shows the contract is oral when required to be in writing by the statute, demurrer will lie;[14] but advantage of this defect may be taken by motion for nonsuit.[15] Generally, to take advantage of the statute of frauds, it must be pleaded.[16] The defense of the statute being personal, cannot be raised by third parties.[17]

FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES.

11. Repairs of a sewer is not a sufficient consideration to found an action for specific performance of an easemment. Kommer v. Daly, 93 N. Y. S. 1021. Parol easement of use of stairway. Unless the plaintiff has parted with a valuable consideration, no specific performance. Howes v. Barmon [Idaho] 81 P. 48. Surrender of an option not sufficient consideration on which to found an action. Gates Land Co. v. Ostrander [Wis.] 102 N. W. 558. Where valuable improvements are made, it is generally held that damages will be inadequate. The cutting of grass insufficient to show possession or improvements. Ross v. Cook [Kan.] 80 P. 38. Excavation of a small quantity of dirt by vendee in possession does not constitute valuable improvements. Wisconsin & M. R. Co. v. McKenna [Mich.] 102 N. W. 281. Good faith in addition to payment of consideration and possession is insufficient. Valuable improvements must be shown. Terry v. Craft [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 396, 87 S. W. 844. Minor improvements are insufficient. Wiley v. Whaley [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1165. Possession and valuable improvements are both necessary. Keith v. Keith [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 126, 87 S. W. 384.

Held to be a sufficient ground for specific performance: Where plaintiff had paid purchase price and had possession and paid debts and bought an outfit, specific performance decreed. Lee v. Wrixon, 37 Wash. 47, 79 P. 489. Where defendant is insolvent, and there is a fair oral contract accompanied by possession and improvements, specific performance decreed. McKay v. Calderwood, 37 Wash. 194, 79 P. 629. Possession, caring for aged persons, and valuable improvements. Caldwell v. Drummond [Iowa] 102 N. W. 842; Hand v. Nix [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 305, 87 S. W. 204; Cherry v. Whalen, 25 App. D. C. 537. Possession, part payment and a subsequent title bond are sufficient to give right to specific performance. Hubbard v. Kansas City Stained Glass Works & Sign Co. [Mo.] 86 S. W. 82. Possession and payment of portion of purchase money. Butterfield v. Nogales Copper Co. [Ariz.] 80 P. 345. To give a foundation for specific performance, the contract must be executed in all its terms except as to the written memorandum. Gates Land Co. v. Ostrander [Wis.] 102 N. W. 558.

Facts held to be insufficient: Where a tenant continues in possession as vendee, pays taxes and pays $465 upon the $3,200 purchase price. Veum v. Sheeran [Minn.] 104 N. W. 135. Five years' case of parents and receipt of the net profits of a farm, coupled with residence thereon, does not show any damage to plaintiff to enable him to bring action for specific performance on a parol contract. Johnson v. Upper [Wash.] 80 P. 801.

12. See 3 C. L. 1534.

13. Anderson v. Hilton & D. Lumber Co., 121 Ga. 688, 49 S. E. 725; Carson Bros. v. McCord-Collins Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 391. But see, Hunt v. Taylor [Ky.] 87 S. W. 290.

14. Banta v. Banta, 103 App. Div. 172, 93 N. Y. S. 393; Hunt v. Taylor [Ky.] 87 S. W. 290.

15. Barr v. Satcher [S. C.] 51 S. E. 530. Judgment on the pleadings. Seamans v. Barentsen, 180 N. Y. 333, 73 N. E. 42.

16. Livingstone v. Murphy, 187 Mass. 315, 72 N. E. 1012; Levin v. Dietz, 94 N. Y. S. 419; New York Fire Proof Tenement Ass'n v. Stanley, 94 N. Y. S. 160. Though the statute of frauds was not pleaded at the first trial, it may be set up as a defense in the second. De Montague v. Bacharach, 187 Mass. 128, 72 N. E. 938.

17. Barnett v. Block [Minn.] 102 N. W. 390; Cannon v. Castleman [Ind.] 73 N. E. 689.

§ 1. The fraud and its elements.[1]—A conveyance, the object, tendency or effect of which is to avoid some debt or duty due by or incumbent on the party making it, is fraudulent.[2] To avoid a deed for fraud, there must have been a design on the part of the grantor to prevent the application of the property conveyed to the satisfaction of his debts.[3] There must be a conveyance or transfer,[4] and creditors whose rights will be prejudiced[5] by the transfer.[6] The intent with which the conveyance is made is to be deduced from the circumstances surrounding the transaction.[7] If the property conveyed is of such a character as to have been exempt in the hands

1. See 3 C. L. 1535.

2. Purchase of its own stock by corporation: The purchase by a corporation, while insolvent, of shares of its own stock, is a fraud on its creditors and they can recover from the seller the amount paid by the corporation. Hall v. Alabama Terminal & Imp. Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 285.

Conveyance in contemplation of marriage: A conveyance by a father to a child by a former marriage, just before his second marriage, is not fraudulent as to the prospective bride if he retains a reasonable proportion of his assets, unless made for the purpose of defrauding the bride and accepted by the grantee with such understanding. Jones v. Jones, 213 Ill. 228, 72 N. E. 695.

Appropriation of firm assets to payment of individual debts of member is fraudulent per se and void as to creditors of the firm. Reynolds v. Radke, 112 Ill. App. 575; First Nat. Bank v. Follett [Colo. App.] 80 P. 147. A transaction by which one as receiver takes charge of property of his debtor until the debt is paid is fraudulent as to other creditors of such debtor. Davis v. Atkinson [Ark.] 87 S. W. 432. Any device by which stock passes to a stockholder as fully paid, without payment in full, constitutes the transaction fraudulent as to creditors of the corporation. As where property taken in payment is intentionally overvalued on the understanding that a portion of the stock shall be returned for distribution among the directors voting the purchase of the property, without payment by them. Easton Nat. Bank v. American Brick & Tile Co. [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 54.

3. Scott v. Thomas [Va.] 51 S. E. 829.

4. Where a vendor in a conditional contract of sale, on default by the purchaser in the terms of the contract, takes possession of the personal property and sells it to another, such sale cannot be fraudulent as to the creditors of the first vendee if the second purchaser did not induce the default of the first purchaser. No title passed at first sale. Kidder v. Wittler-Corbin Mach. Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 301.

5. A conveyance is not fraudulent as to one who is not and may never become a creditor of the grantor. Monroe v. Monroe, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 51. A deed of trust by a woman in contemplation of marriage, she having no debts and not contemplating incurring any, is not invalid as to subsequent creditors. Newton v. Jay, 95 N. Y. S. 413.

6. A conveyance is not fraudulent as to a creditor whose debt is secured by a lien on the land conveyed. Barrell v. Adams, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 635. Evidence held not to show an assignment in fraud of creditors. Briggs v. Brown, 23 Pa. Super. Co. 163.

7. Need not be proven by direct evidence. Bailey v. Fransioli, 101 App. Div. 140, 91 N. Y. S. 852. A conveyance for an inadequate consideration in connection with other circumstances held to show that it was made with a fraudulent intent. Bokel, Gwynn, McKeney Co. v. Costello, 22 App. D. C. 81. A conveyance by a husband to his wife pursuant to an oral agreement is not fraudulent as to creditors merely because within the statute of frauds, since executed, and in any event is not void but only precludes the maintenance of an action to enforce it, and such defense is personal to the parties to the contract. Cannon v. Castleman [Ind.] 73 N. E. 689. The intent of a grantor in a fraudulent conveyance as well as that of the grantee is to be deduced from the facts and circumstances and the result accomplished. California Consol. Min. Co. v. Manley [Idaho] 81 P. 50.

Insolvency of grantor: In an action to set aside a conveyance as being fraudulent, the plaintiff must allege and prove that at the time of the conveyance as well as at the time the suit was commenced, the grantor did not have enough property left, subject to execution, to pay his debts. Dinius v. Lahr [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1033; Cannon v. Castleman [Ind.] 73 N. E. 689. As to sufficiency of finding on this point, see Borror v. Carrier, 34 Ind. App. 353, 73 N. E. 123. A member of a partnership may dispose of his individual property, without liability to the firm creditors, if at the time of the conveyance the partnership assets are sufficient to pay the firm debts. Holmes Bros. v. Ferguson-McKinney Dry Goods Co. [Miss.] 39 So. 70. A man is insolvent when he is unable to pay his debts as they mature, in the ordinary course of the business in which he is engaged. California Consol. Min. Co. v. Manley [Idaho] 81 P. 50. If a debtor has not sufficient property within the jurisdiction in which the debt was contracted and in which the property alleged to have been fraudulently conveyed is situate and in which the suit is brought, to pay his debts, he is prima facie insolvent. Id. Under P. L. N. J. 1896, p. 277, providing that every sale or conveyance made by a corporation in contemplation of insolvency shall be void as against creditors, the insolvency referred to denotes a general inability to meet pecuniary liabilities as they mature by means of either available assets or an honest use of credit. Empire State Trust Co. v. Trustees of Fisher & Co. [N. J. Err. & App.]' 60 A. 940. The fact that a grantor is insolvent at the time of the commencement of a suit to set aside a fraudulent conveyance raises no presumption that he was insolvent prior to such time. Dinius v. Lahr [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1033. Where a son was garnished on a judgment against his father and answered that prior to the recovery of the of the grantor, its conveyance cannot be fraudulent;[8] but if the debtor exchanges exempt for nonexempt property and causes the title to the latter to be taken in the name of another, his creditors can subject it to the payment of their debts.[9] Choses in action may be the subject-matter of a fraudulent transfer;[10] but property held in trust cannot,[11] unless the owner of the legal title has obtained credit on the faith of his apparent ownership.[12] That the debtor held the property in trust for the grantee must be shown by clear and convincing proof in order to sustain the conveyance.[13] A strained and unreasonable construction will not be given to the language of a deed for the purpose of holding it fraudulent where there is no such intent apparent from a reasonable construction of such language.[14] judgment the father assigned and transferred to him certain notes as gifts, and nothing was shown in the answer to indicate the father's insolvency at that time, and no issue was joined on the garnishee's answer, held, in effect, to invalidate the gift, that it was error to consider the father's testimony that he was insolvent at the time of making the gift, given in a former proceeding supplemental to the execution, to which the garnishee was not a party. Bolton v. Bailey, 122 Iowa, 729, 98 N. W. 560.

8. Gasser v. Crittenden [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 168, 103 N. W. 601; Smyth v. Hall, 126 Iowa, 627, 102 N. W. 520.

Personal property: There can be no such thing as a fraudulent transfer of exempt personal property; the debtor may sell it and give the proceeds to his wife or invest it in a homestead for his family. Berry v. Ewen [Ky.] 85 S. W. 227.

Homestead: Gibson v. Barrett [Ark.] 87 S. W. 435; Reed Bros. v. Nicholson [Mo.] 88 S. W. 71; Isbell v. Jones [Ark.] 88 S. W. 593; Hinkle v. Broadwater [Ark.] 84 S. W. 510; Jolly v. Diehl [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 965; Pullen v. Simpson [Ark.] 86 S. W. 801; Wilks v. Vaughan [Ark.] 83 S. W. 913. A debtor may use such of his means as his creditors have no lien on to improve a homestead, the title to which is in his wife, provided such improvement does not carry the area or value beyond the maximum exemption given by the constitution. Pullen v. Simpson [Ark.] 86 S. W. 801. Where the homestead is not exempt as to a debt owing for trust funds, an exchange of the homestead for other property, the title to which is conveyed to the debtor's wife, the latter land is subject to the claim of the creditors, since as to him it is fraudulent and without consideration. Godfrey v. Herring [Ark.] 85 S. W. 232.

9. McLeod's Trustee v. McLeod [Ky.] 89 S. W. 199. Where a debtor exchanges his homestead for other land which he does not occupy as a homestead and subsequently exchanges the last acquired land for other land which he has conveyed to his wife, the land, title to which is taken by the wife, is held in trust for the debtor, and his creditors can subject it to the payment of their debts. Osborne & Co. v. Evans, 185 Mo. 509, 84 S. W. 867.

10. Hall v. Alabama Terminal & Imp. Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 285.

11. A conveyance by a debtor, of property which he holds in trustee for another, to such other or a trustee for such other, is not fraudulent. Matador Land & Cattle Co. v. Cooper [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 348, 87 S. W. 235. A voluntary conveyance by the holder of the legal title to the equitable owner is not fraudulent. Gehres v. Wallace [Wash.] 80 P. 273.

12. Where a husband has held the legal title to land for a long time and used and managed it for his own, it is prima facie his property and when just prior to the entry of a judgment against him he conveyed it to his wife under claim that it was her property, the burden is on the wife to show by clear and satisfactory evidence that she was the equitable owner. Torrey v. Dickinson, 213 Ill. 36, 72 N. E. 703. Where a wife allows a husband to use her money as his own for a long period of time and thus to purchase property with it in his own name and to obtain credit on the faith of his being the owner of it. Davis v. Yonge [Ark.] 85 S. W. 90. Where a man purchases real estate in his own name with his wife's money and conveys it to her before his creditors acquire a lien thereon, the conveyance is not fraudulent as to the husband's creditors unless they have extended credit on the faith of his ownership or were misled by the record. Torrey v. Dickinson, 111 Ill. App. 524. A conveyance by a husband to his wife of land which she had previously conveyed to him with the understanding that he was to reconvey it to her when he went out of business is fraudulent as to creditors who had extended credit to him on the faith of his ownership, the contract for reconveyance not being recorded, and she paying no consideration for the reconveyance. Lavender v. Bowen [Iowa] 101 N. W. 760. Where the true owner of property invests another with title thereto and allows him to procure credit on the strength of his apparent ownership, a conveyance thereof by the debtor to the true owner is fraudulent. Gallagher v. Northrup, 114 Ill. App. 368.

13. A secret trust in favor of the wife of a debtor will not be enforced as against the husband's creditors except on the clearest and most convincing proof. The uncorroborated testimony of the husband is alone insufficient to establish an express trust in favor of his wife in land purchased by him in his own name against his creditors seeking to subject such land to the payment of the debts. Pickens v. Wood [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 818. Evidence held sufficient to support a finding that money conveyed was the property of the debtor and not held in trust by him. Fox v. Erbe, 100 App. Div. 343, 91 N. Y. S. 832.

14. Bartles v. Dodd, 56 W. Va. 383, 49

Mortgages.[15]—The same principles of law govern in an action to set aside a mortgage as being fraudulent as obtain in actions to set aside fraudulent conveyances.[16] To impeach a chattel mortgage, it must be shown that both parties thereto designed to hinder, delay or defraud creditors.[17] If by any arrangement, express or implied, the mortgagee permits the mortgagor to continue in the sale of the mortgaged goods for his benefit, the mortgage will be invalid as against an attachment or execution creditor.[18] But it is valid as between the parties, and after the mortgagee has taken possession thereunder, as to third persons having no prior lien.[19]

Sales by a retailer of his entire stock at a single transaction.[20]—In some jurisdictions the statutes declare sales in bulk of stocks of merchandise to be fraudulent as to the sellers' creditors unless certain conditions are complied with.[21] The Wash-

S. E. 414. The placing of the title to property in the name of another under acts whose recitals do not correctly state the facts of the case, does not render such acts void or voidable, if no law has been violated and the cause of so doing was legitimate. Griffith v. Alcocke, 113 La. 514, 37 So. 47.

15. See 3 C. L. 1536.

16. Dinius v. Lahr [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1033. A provision in a deed of trust to secure the payment of bonds, that same should not be foreclosed until a designated number of the bondholders had so requested does not render the trust deed fraudulent as to the mortgagor's creditors. Hasbrouck v. Rich [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 131.

Effect of mortgagee's fraud: Where a grantee takes a conveyance absolute on its face and attempts to set it up as a purchase when in truth it is a mere security for a debt, such conduct will, under most circumstances, be regarded as a fraud, and the grantee cannot even hold the property as security. Clark v. Harper, 215 Ill. 24, 74 N. E. 61.

17. Eickstaedt v. Moses, 105 Ill. App. 634. See, also, title Chattel Mortgages, 3 C. L. 682.

Mortgage for amount in excess of amount owing: No matter how small the excessive or spurious consideration may be in a mortgage, if the object of the parties in reciting more than the true consideration is fraudulent, it avoids the mortgage. Adams v. Pease, 113 Ill. App. 356.

18. Adams v. Pease, 113 Ill. App. 356. A mortgage which by its terms authorized a sale of a part of the mortgaged property in case it ceased to be useful in the business of the mortgagor, provided the proceeds of such sale were to be paid to the mortgagee or reinvested in new machinery or property which should be subject to the lien of the mortgage, is not fraudulent as to the creditors of the mortgagor. Hasbrouck v. Rich [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 131. The fact that a chattel mortgage gave the mortgagor the right to retain possession of the mortgaged property and sell it at retail, the mortgagor agreeing by a contemporaneous oral agreement "to keep the stock up," is not invalid as to the mortgagor's creditors, though there was no agreement that the proceeds of sales should be applied to the mortgage indebtedness. Ward v. Parker [Iowa] 103 N. W. 104. The inclusion in a chattel mortgage of perishable property or eatables which would be consumed by the mortgagor, the mortgage by its terms requiring the mortgagor to replace the things so consumed and they bearing a slight proportion in value to the articles not perishable included in the mortgage, does not render it fraudulent as to creditors of the mortgagor. Bartles & Dillon v. Dodd, 56 W. Va. 383, 49 S. E. 414. See, also, title Chattel Mortgages, 3 C. L. 682.

19. Martin v. Sexton, 112 Ill. App. 199. The presumption of fraud which the statute raises against a mortgagee who fails to take immediate possession of the mortgaged property is not available to one who does not attach the property until after the mortgagee has taken actual possession of it. Fred Krug Brew. Co. v. Healey [Neb.] 101 N. W. 329.

20. See 3 C. L. 1537.

Note: Contrary to the conclusion reached in Block v. Schwartz, 27 Utah, 387, 76 P. 22, 101 Am. St. Rep. 971, cited 3 C. L. 1537, n. 19, these statutes have been held valid in John P. Squire & Co. v. Fellier, 185 Mass. 18, 69 N. E. 312, 102 Am. St. Rep. 322; Neas v. Borches, 109 Tenn. 309, 71 S. W. 50; McDaniels v. Connelly Shoe Co., 30 Wash. 549, 71 P. 37, 94 Am. St. Rep. 889, 60 L. R. A. 947. In Hart v. Roney, 93 Md. 432, 49 A. 661, such a statute was enforced, though its constitutionality was not passed upon, and in Fisher v. Herrman, 118 Wis. 424, 95 N. W. 392, the court assumed the validity of such a statute, but refused to pass on its constitutionality because the question was not before the court. These cases were commented on by the Utah court, but distinguished from Block v. Schwartz, supra, because the Utah statute, unlike those of Massachusetts or Washington, failed to exempt from its provisions persons acting in a fiduciary or official capacity, or under judicial process, and because none of the statutes of the other states, like that of Utah, made it a criminal offense by both the buyer and seller to act in making the sale in disobedience or disregard of the statutory provisions. In Young v. Commonwealth, 101 Va. 853, 45 S. E. 327, it was held in accord with the rule laid down in the Utah case that the only authority the state has to regulate or control private business grows out of its police power, and that these statutes in no wise pertain to the health, morals or safety. See note to Block v. Schwartz [Utah] 101 Am. St. Rep. 986.

21. Under Laws Wash. 1901, c. 109, where the purchaser of a stock of goods does not take or demand a statement of the names of the seller's creditors or the amount of inington statute is for the protection of all creditors and not merely those who have given the seller credit for merchandise.[22] Such statutes apply to sales of the equipment of a boarding house,[23] but not to sales of fixtures.[24] The creditor cannot maintain a personal action against the purchaser, but must reduce his claim to judgment and procure a lien on the property claimed to have been fraudulently transferred.[25] The Indiana statute has been held to be unconstitutional.[26]

Consideration.[27]—Inadequacy of consideration is generally held to be evidence of fraud, but not necessarily conclusive.[28] The law presumes that all voluntary conveyances made by a debtor are fraudulent as to existing creditors,[29] provided the debtedness due them, the sale is fraudulent and void as to the creditors of the seller. Olwell v. B. L. Gordon & Co. [Wash.] 82 P. 180. The New York law (Laws 1902, c. 528) is constitutional. Wright v. Hart, 103 App. Div. 218, 93 N. Y. S. 60.

22. What creditors protected: Laws Wash. 1901, c. 109, declaring fraudulent and void as to creditors sales of merchandise stocks in bulk unless the purchaser obtains a verified statement of the vendor's indebtedness and sees that the purchase price is applied to its discharge is intended for the protection of all creditors of the vendor and not merely creditors holding claims "for or on account of goods, wares and merchandise purchased on credit or on account of money borrowed to carry on the business. Eklund v. Hopkins, 36 Wash. 179, 78 P. 787.

23. Pierce's Wash. Code, § 5346, prohibiting the purchaser of "any stock of goods, wares or merchandise in bulk" from paying the vendor without procuring a verified list of the vendor's creditors and applying the purchase price to the payment of the claims is applicable to a sale in bulk of the goods, wares and merchandise used in conducting a boarding house and restaurant, and such a sale is invalid as to the vendor's creditors. Plass v. Morgan, 36 Wash. 160, 78 P. 784.

24. Fixtures: Laws Minn. 1899, c. 291, declaring that certain sales of any portion of a stock of merchandise not made in the usual course of business shall be deemed fraudulent as to the seller's creditors, unless an inventory is made and certain notice given to the seller's creditors, has no application to fixtures. Kolander v. Dunn [Minn.] 104 N. W. 371.

A cash register used in a saloon for the the purpose of making up and keeping the cash received from sales and not itself for sale, is not a part of the "stock of goods, wares, and merchandise" subject to attachment of the creditors of a vendor who sells his stock in bulk in violation of Law 1901, c. 109, requiring the vendor to give the purchaser a list of his creditors and requiring the purchaser to see that the purchase price is applied to the vendor's debts. Albrecht v. Cudihee, 37 Wash. 206, 79 P. 628.

25. Rothchild Bros. v. Trewella, 36 Wash. 679, 79 P. 480.

26. McKinster v. Sager, 163 Ind. 671, 72 N. E. 854, reversing Sellers v. Hayes, 163 Ind. 422, 72 N. E. 119, cited 3 C. L. 1537, n. 21.

27. See 3 C. L. 1537.

28. F. & M. Schaefer Brew. Co. v. Moebs [Mass.] 73 N. E. 858; Wahlheimer v. Truslow, 94 N. Y. S. 137. A finding that a conveyance was fraudulent held authorized by evidence that it was made the day before judgment was entered against the grantor, that it was for a grossly inadequate consideration and made to the grantor's sons. Morgan v. Boulton [Ky.] 85 S. W. 747. A sale of city warrants at a discount of 15 per cent. of their value, when it appears that the payment was to be made at the convenience of the purchaser, held fraudulent. Case v. McGill [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 569. The action in rescission for lesion beyond moiety can be exercised by the creditor if the debtor has sold his property for a vile price. The law then permits the creditor to act where the debtor does not, even though his debt was contracted after the sale sought to be rescinded was entered into. Belcher & Creswell v. Johnson [La.] 38 So. 481. An assignment of a stock of merchandise to a corporation in consideration of the issuance to the seller of shares of the stock of the corporation is not fraudulent if the exchange is made for a fair value, since the stock is liable to the seller's creditors. Gardner v. Haines [S. D.] 104 N. W. 244.

29. See, also, post, Relation of Parties to Transaction. Bainbridge v. Allen [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 706; Wilks v. Vaughn [Ark.] 83 S. W. 913; McKee v. West [Ala.] 37 So. 740.

North Dakota rule: Under the provisions of the North Dakota statutes regarding fraudulent conveyances, a fraudulent intent will not be conclusively presumed as a matter of law merely because the grantor was insolvent and the conveyance was made without consideration, since the question of fraudulent intent is one of fact. Such circumstances are evidence of the intent. Stevens v. Myers [S. D.] 104 N. W. 529.

Existing liabilities: A debt reduced to judgment subsequent to a voluntary conveyance executed by the debtor, if the debt merged in the judgment was contracted prior to the conveyance, is an existing liability within the purview of Ky. St. 1903, § 1907, which declares voluntary conveyances void as to "existing liabilities." Frazer v. Frisbie Furniture Co. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 539.

Burden of proving good faith: Where on a partition by agreement of the heirs of an estate, the share of a bankrupt is conveyed to his son, without any consideration, the burden is on the son to show that the transaction was free from fraud when attacked by the trustee of the bankrupt for the purpose of subjecting it to the bankrupt's debts. Wick v. Hickey [Iowa] 103 N. W. 469. Where one who is the real owner of land has it conveyed to another, without any consideration moving from such other therefor, creditors of the real owner may maintain a suit in the nature of a creditors' bill to subject it debtor has not enough property remaining to satisfy his debts.[30] As to claims arising subsequent to the conveyance, it is incumbent on the creditor to show that it was made pursuant to an actual intention to defeat and hinder him.[31] A deed may be fraudulent in fact, although it is executed upon a valuable consideration.[32] If both parties participate in the fraudulent intent, the conveyance is void, though made for a valuable consideration.[33] A conveyance for a mere nominal consideration should be subjected to the same rules as are applicable to voluntary transfers.[34]

Retention of possession or apparent title.[35]—In many jurisdictions the statutes provide that mortgages [36] and sales of personal property shall be void as to subsequent purchasers and creditors, unless the mortgagee or purchaser takes immediate and continued possession of the property sold or mortgaged,[37] or the instrument is to the payment of outstanding executions, though no return of nulla bona had been made. Andrews v. Scott, 113 Ill. App. 581.

30. Torrey v. Dickinson, 213 Ill. 36, 72 N. E. 703. The mere fact that a debtor makes a voluntary conveyance of his property even if with an actual fraudulent intent, does not authorize the maintenance of a suit by his creditor to set aside the conveyance, unless after the transfer he did not retain sufficient property to meet his obligations. Ritchey v. McKay [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 161.

Burden of showing continued solvency: As to existing creditors, a voluntary conveyance without actual fraud is not per se fraudulent. But when it shown to be voluntary, the burden is cast on the person seeking to sustain it to show that the grantor had ample means left to meet all his indebtedness. The fact that the grantor subsequently becomes insolvent, not produced by causes existing at the time of the conveyance will not affect the conveyance. American Nat. Bank v. Thornburrow [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 771. If there is no actual fraud as to present or future creditors and no indebtedness on the part of the grantor at the time of the conveyance, it is valid between the parties and as to all the world. McKee v. West [Ala.] 37 So. 740.

31. Bainbridge v. Allen [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 706; Frazer v. Frisbie Furniture Co. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 539. See post, § 3, Who May Attack.—Subsequent Creditors. An assignment of a chose in action even without consideration is not presumptively fraudulent as to a creditor who becomes such subsequent to the conveyance. Weckerly v. Taylor [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1065. The rule which makes a voluntary conveyance constructively fraudulent as to an existing indebtedness cannot be stretched so as to make it apply to debts which are the successors of earlier debts contracted in the same course of business. A voluntary conveyance, in the absence of a fraudulent intent, is not void as to persons subsequently becoming creditors. Vreeland v. Rogers [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 486. A voluntary conveyance by a man to his wife is not void as to subsequent creditors, if at the time of making it he was not indebted to the person seeking to have it set aside and he was under a moral obligation to convey it to her and there was no actual fraud. Farr v. Hauenstein [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 147.

32. Zumbiel v. Zumbiel, 26 Ky. L. R. 1193, 83 S. W. 598. A conveyance which deprives a creditor of a right which would be legally effective had not the conveyance been made is fraudulent as to him and void, whether made with or without a valuable consideration. Conveyance hindered creditors though value was afterwards paid. Salzenstein v. Herrick, 105 Ill. App. 99. Under Bankruptcy Act, § 67e, in a suit by a trustee of a bankrupt to set aside a sale as being fraudulent, the purchase to be sustained must not only have been made in good faith, but for a present fair consideration. Piedmont Sav. Bank v. Levy, 138 N. C. 274, 50 S. E. 657.

33. Salemonson v. Thompson [N. D.] 101 N. W. 320. Where a grantor makes a conveyance for the purpose of defeating the claims of his creditors and the grantee, even though some consideration passed between the grantor and grantee knowingly assists in affectuating the fraudulent intent, or even has notice of such fraudulent intent, such grantee will be regarded as a participator in the fraud. "The law never allows a man to assist in cheating another." Clark v. Harper, 215 Ill. 24, 74 N. E. 61.

34. California Consol. Min. Co. v. Manley [Idaho] 81 P. 50.

35. See 3 C. L. 1538.

36. See title Chattel Mortgages, 3 C. L. 682.

37. State v. Stone [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 950. Code Iowa 1897, § 2906. So held where purchaser under conditional sale resold goods to original vendor. In re Tweed [C. C. A.] 131 F. 355.

Conditional sales: In Pennsylvania the delivery of goods to another, under an agreement providing that the title shall not pass until the same are paid for, is void as to creditors of the vendor. If, however, the delivery is pursuant to a bailment and not a conditional sale, the title does not pass as to creditors. The essential character of the transaction will be regarded rather than the form. In re Tice, 139 F. 52. Under Statute of Frauds, Ill. § 7, providing that where the goods of a person shall by such person be left in the possession of another for a period of more than five years without demand therefor and suit brought to recover possession or the recording of the deed containing the contract of bailment or limitation of use of the property shall be void as to creditors and subsequent purchasers, one who has purchased from the person in possession, though all the purchase price has not been paid, is protected. Klinger v. Joseph Schlitz Brew. Co., 115 Ill. App. 358. Under Personal Property Law (Laws 1897, p. 511, c. 417, § 25), declaring a sale without change of possession conclusive evidence of fraud, unrecorded.[38] In others the retention of possession merely raises a presumption of fraud which may be rebutted.[39] What constitutes an immediate change of possession must be determined by the situation [40] and nature of the property sold,[41] and the question is ordinarily one for the jury.[42] An assumption of such control over the property by the vendee as ought reasonably to indicate a change of ownership is sufficient.[43] If not susceptible of actual manual delivery, a symbolic delivery will suffice.[44] Retention of possession of real estate by the vendor is not prima facie fraudulent, but it is one of the badges of fraud.[45]

Reservation of benefits and resulting trusts.[46]—The reservation by a vendor of some right or benefit in the property sold or conveyed may or may not, in connection with all the facts and circumstances of the transaction, be sufficient to show that it was made with intent to hinder and delay the vendor's creditors.[47] Where the consideration for land is paid by one person and title taken in the name of another, the less made in good faith, and making the question of intent one of fact, a verdict of the jury is conclusive. Hill v. Page, 95 N. Y. S. 465.

38. Retention of possession by the mortgagor does not make the mortgage fraudulent provided the mortgage is recorded pursuant to Code W. Va. c. 74, § 5. Bartles v. Dodd, 56 W. Va. 383, 49 S. E. 414. A contract whereby parts of a dredge, to be constructed by the vendor and sold to the United States, was, on payment by the government therefor, to become the property of the government, is not a conditional sale requiring the contract to be recorded in accordance with Virginia Code 1904, § 462, so as to vest the property in the government as against the creditors of the vendor. William R. Trigg Co. v. Bucyrus Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 174. See, also, Sales, 4 C. L. 1318.

39. Piedmont Sav. Bank v. Levy, 138 N. C. 274, 50 S. E. 657. The mere withholding of a chattel mortgage from record without any agreement between the parties does not of itself make it fraudulent. Ward v. Parker [Iowa] 103 N. W. 104.

40. Where a bill of sale is made in one state and delivered to an attorney of the vendee, who at once proceeds to the state where the goods are situate and on his arrival takes possession, there is an immediate delivery and an actual and continued change of possession of the goods sold. First Nat. Bank v. Follett [Colo. App.] 80 P. 147. Evidence that purchaser put a former clerk of vendor in possession to act for him with other circumstances held to show a change of possession. Martin v. Sexton, 112 Ill. App. 199.

41. Merely measuring lumber in a lumber yard, but not marking it any way is not the taking of such possession as is contemplated by the statute. State v. Stone [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 950.

42, 43. Schwab v. Woods, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 433.

44. Where goods sold or mortgaged are incapable of actual manual delivery, a symbolic delivery is sufficient to transfer possession, when such is the intention of the parties. Springer v. Lipsis, 110 Ill. App. 109. The transfer by endorsement of a receipt of a warehouseman for goods stored with him, the receipt reciting that the goods should be delivered to the bailor or his endorsee, is a sufficient delivery of the goods to the endorsee to constitute a valid pledge of the goods as against the trustee in bankruptcy of the pledgor. Union Trust Co. v. Wilson, 198 U. S. 530, 49 Law. Ed. 1154.

45. Godfrey v. Herring [Ark.] 85 S. W. 232. Where one to whom another has conveyed property purposely withholds it from record for the purpose of allowing the grantor to procure credit on the strength of his apparent ownership, the conveyance will be deemed fraudulent as to person who subsequently extends credit to the grantor on the faith of his apparent ownership. Mere neglect to record would not, however, subject the land to the payment of the grantor's debts unless they became a lien before the recording of the conveyance. Robertson & Co. v. Columbus Ins. & Banking Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 100.

46. See 3 C. L. 1539.

47. A sale of goods with intent to hinder and delay the vendor's creditors, for a simulated consideration, the vendor reserving to himself benefits in the property sold, the vendee participating in the fraudulent intent is void as to the creditor. Schwarz, Rosenbaum & Co. v. Barley [Ala.] 38 So. 119. A conveyance made in good faith, pursuant to a contract entered into at the time when the grantor was solvent, is not void as to creditors unless made with intent to defraud them, though the grantor was insolvent at the time the deed was executed and it reserves a benefit to the grantor, where it also appears that the reservation is merely incidental and partial. Hunt v. Ahnemann [Minn.] 102 N. W. 376. A stipulation in an agreement for the transfer of property to secure payment of a debt due the transferee that any balance remaining after the payment of the debt shall be paid as the transferror may direct, does not render the agreement void as against creditors of the transferror, nor does an agreement between debtor and creditor, made after the assignment, that, if the debtor could sell the property for more than a certain sum, the debtor could have the difference. Nor will an agreement made at the time of assignment, that the residue of the proceeds after payment of the debt shall be returned to the assignor, of itself render the transfer fraudulent, so long as the property transferred bears a reasonable proportion to the debt provided for. In re A. L. Robertshaw Mfg. Co., 133 F. 556.

creditors of the person paying the consideration can subject it to the payment of their claims,[48] unless it appears that the debtor retains enough property in his own name to pay his debts.[49]

Intent.[50]—A conveyance must have been made with intent to defraud.[51] Fraud can never be presumed.[52] It may be shown by circumstantial evidence,[53] but need not be proven beyond a reasonable doubt.[54] If the suit is in equity, the verified answer will prevail unless overcome by the testimony of two witnesses, or one witness sufficiently corroborated.[55] The question of fraudulent intent is one of fact to be determined by the jury.[56] As to whether a sale is fraudulent, the buyer and seller may testify directly as to their intent.[57]

Fraud in the grantee and notice to him of fraud.[58]—A sale or conveyance is not fraudulent as to the seller's or grantor's creditors, so as to authorize a court of equity to set it aside, unless it appears that the grantee had notice,[59] or knowledge[60] of the 48. Watt v. Morrow [S. D.] 103 N. W. 45; Ansell v. Cox [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 806.

Personal property: A man cannot protect his chattels from execution by refraining from having them conveyed to himself when he buys them and causing them to be conveyed to some other person in trust for him while he takes possession. Such goods and chattels are leviable on a judgment of a court of law against the actual owner who is in possession. Kronson v. Lipschitz [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 819.

49. Where a husband purchases land and has the title conveyed to his wife, the land as to the husband's creditors will be regarded as his unless the wife shows that he was solvent and able to make the gift. The burden is on her to prove such facts. Davis v. Yonge [Ark.] 85 S. W. 90.

50. See 3 C. L. 1539.

51. Evidence held to support a finding that a conveyance was a mere subterfuge made with intent to hinder, delay, and defraud the grantor's creditors. Smith v. Goodrich [Ark.] 87 S. W. 125; Durack v. Wilson, 94 N. Y. S. 232. Evidence held not to show that a transfer of personal property was made with intent to hinder, delay, and defraud creditor. Atlas Nat. Bank v. Abram French Sons Co., 134 F. 746; Bailey v. Fransioli, 101 App. Div. 140, 91 N. Y. S. 852; Blakemore v. Eagle [Ark.] 84 S. W. 637. Evidence held to require the submission to the jury of the question of whether or not an assignment of money due on a contract was fraudulent as to the assignor's creditors. White v. Gibson [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 120. Evidence held sufficient to support a finding that a conveyance was not made with an intent to hinder and defraud creditors. Burton v. Mullenary [Cal.] 81 P. 544.

52. Wiggington v. Minter [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1082; Faulkner v. Cody, 45 Misc. 64, 91 N. Y. S. 633. While fraud can never be presumed yet it may be inferred from facts and circumstances shown and inferences deducible therefrom, based on the probabilities of human conduct. A reasonable degree of latitude is allowed in the admission of evidence to establish fraud, not only in the direct examination of witnesses but in their cross-examination. Fabian v. Traeger, 215 Ill. 220, 74 N. E. 131.

53. Wiggington v. Minter [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1082. In an action by a trustee in bankruptcy to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent, evidence of another conveyance made at about the same time for an inadequate consideration is admissible on the question of fraud. Horstman v. Little [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 286.

54. Wiggington v. Minter [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1082.

55. Evans v. Evans [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 564.

56. Tanner v. Eckhardt, 94 N. Y. S. 1013; Tyler v. Davis [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 3. Where the evidence is not conflicting on the question of whether or not there has been actual and continued change of possession of a chattel sold, so as to comply with the statute declaring fraudulent and void sales not followed by such actual and continued change, the question is for the court. If, however, the evidence is conflicting, the question is one for the jury. Reynolds v. Beck, 108 Mo. App. 188, 83 S. W. 292.

57. Hill v. Page, 95 N. Y. S. 465.

58. See 3 C. L. 1540.

59. White v. Glover, 23 App. D. C. 389. To impeach a conveyance for fraud, the fraudulent intent of both vendor and vendee must be shown. Edwards v. Story, 105 Ill. App. 433. A sale made by a debtor with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors is not void unless the purchaser had notice of the vendor's fraudulent intent. Jennings v. Frazier [Or.] 80 P. 1011.

What constitutes notice: A sale of goods made for their fair market value but with intent to hinder, delay or defraud the vendor's creditors, is fraudulent and void if the vendee had knowledge of such fraudulent intent on the part of the vendor or of such facts and circumstances as would have induced an ordinarily prudent man to make inquiry, which if prosecuted with reasonable diligence would have led to the discovery of the fraudulent intent. Williams v. Finlayson [Fla.] 38 So. 50. Evidence held to justify a finding that the grantee had notice of the grantor's fraudulent intent. Brite v. Guy [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1069. One purchasing property from an insolvent, who may be adjudged a bankrupt within four months, must exercise ordinary prudence and diligence to ascertain whether or not such insolvent can make a transfer of his property to him that will not be in violation of the bankruptcy law; if he fail to exercise such diligence, he cannot be held to be a good faith purchaser. In re Moody, 134 F. 628. Under Laws N. Y.

grantor's insolvency and purpose to defraud his creditors, unless otherwise provided by statute.[61] Where a conveyance is assailed as being fraudulent, the burden of proving the grantor's fraud [62] as well as the fact that the grantee took with notice of the grantor's intent, is on the party assailing the conveyance.[63] Where the purchaser pays a valuable consideration, the burden of proving knowledge or notice by the grantee of the grantor's fraudulent intent rests on the person attacking the sale or conveyance,[64] though if the conveyance is voluntary, such knowledge will be presumed;[65] but where a conveyance is shown to be fraudulent, the grantee has the burden of showing that he paid the consideration recited.[66]

1897 (Personal Property Law), § 29, the transfer is not void if taken by the purchaser for a valuable consideration and without notice of the grantor's fraudulent intent. Bailey v. Fransioli, 101 App. Div. 140, 91 N. Y. S. 852.

60. Knowledge and notice distinguished: In Massachusetts a purchaser is not liable for the fraud of the seller, if he be a purchaser for a valuable consideration, unless it be shown that at the time of the purchase he had knowledge of the fraud. Pierce v. O'Brien [Mass.] 75 N. E. 61. Where real estate has been sold for a fair consideration, a creditor attacking the transaction as fraudulent, must prove the insolvency of the vendor at the time, knowledge of such insolvency by the purchaser and the intent of the latter in buying to assist the former in defrauding his creditors. Rownd v. Davidson, 113 La. 1047, 37 So. 965.

Knowledge of trustee imputed to cestui que trust: Where one to whom a mortgage or trust deed is given, for the benefit of others, takes with knowledge of the mortgagor's fraudulent intent to hinder, delay or defraud his creditors, the knowledge is imputable to the principal or beneficiary of the mortgagee. Adams v. Pease, 113 Ill. App. 356.

61. Under Ball. Code Wash. § 4265, a sale by an insolvent corporation of all its assets and business to another corporation for shares of the capital stock of the purchasing corporation is fraudulent as to the creditors of the selling corporation and the creditors can subject the assets so conveyed to the payment of their claims, though the purchasing corporation had no knowledge of the indebtedness; no provision being made for payment thereof. Tacoma Ledger Co. v. Western Home Bldg. Ass'n, 37 Wash. 467, 79 P. 992.

62. Vreeland v. Rogers [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 486; Clark Bros. v. Ford, 126 Iowa, 460, 102 N. W. 421; Thompson v. Williams [Md.] 60 A. 26. When there is nothing on the face of a deed indicating fraud, or some illegal or improper intent condemned by the law, the burden is on those attacking it to show either that it was not made upon a good consideration or that it was made with a frudulent intent on the part of the grantor to hinder, delay or defraud his creditors, and that this intent was known to or participated in by the grantee. Commonwealth Bank v. Kearns [Md.] 59 A. 1010. The burden is on the party attacking the conveyance to show the insolvency and fraud. Holmes Bros. v. Ferguson-McKinney Dry Goods Co. [Miss.] 39 So. 70. Where goods are taken by a sheriff under execution against the vendor of the person from whose possession they are taken and such person replevies them from the sheriff who defends on the ground that the sale by the debtor to the plaintiff in replevin was fraudulent, and it appears that the plaintiff paid a fair value for the goods and the circumstances are such as to preclude a presumption of fraud, the burden is on the sheriff to prove that the sale was fraudulent. Williams v. Finlayson [Fla.] 38 So. 50. Where a client in a suit assigned, by a writing regular on its face, "any verdict that may be recovered" in the suit to his attorneys, and a judgment creditor subsequently attaches the money in the hands of the defendant against whom the verdict was rendered, plaintiff averred in his petition that the assignment was not made in good faith. Under such circumstances the burden was on the petitioner to show fraud. Briggs v. Brown, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 163. When the circumstances surrounding the transfer of property to the detriment of creditors are such as to lead to the inference that there has been a fraudulent intent, the onus of disproving fraud rests on the parties maintaining the validity of the transaction. Commonwealth Bank v. Kearns [Md.] 59 A. 1010.

63. Notice by grantee of grantor's intent. Smyth v. Hall, 126 Iowa, 627, 102 N. W. 520.

64. The creditors then have the burden. Morimura v. Samaha, 25 App. D. C. 189. Where the payment of a valuable consideration is shown, the burden is on the complaining creditor to prove the existence of a fraudulent intent, and that such intent was known to the grantee of the conveyance assailed. Fraud is never presumed, but must be proven by the party asserting it, and it will not be imputed when the facts and circumstances from which it is supposed to arise may reasonably consist with honest intentions. Allen v. Riddle [Ala.] 37 So. 680. In order to set aside a conveyance as being fraudulent as to creditors of the grantor, the burden is on the complainant to show that the grantee participated in or had knowledge of the grantor's fraudulent intent. Biggins v. Lambert, 213 Ill. 625, 73 N. E. 371. A creditor of the vendor, attempting to attach personal property on the ground that it had been sold in fraud of the vendor's creditors, cannot successfully attack the sale unless he can connect the vendee with the fraudulent intent. The burden of proving participation of the vendee in the fraudulent intent is on the person seeking to set aside the sale. First Nat. Bank v. Follett [Colo. App.] 80 P. 147.

65. A fraudulent conveyance, as between husband and wife, where no consideration is

Relationship of the parties.[67] —Sales and conveyances to near relatives and members of his household made by a debtor are looked on with suspicion and closely scrutinized,[68] and if voluntary, are prima facie fraudulent as to existing creditors.[69] The relationship of the parties is to be taken into consideration in connection with all the other circumstances of the transaction alleged to be fraudulent.[70] A conveyance, on full consideration, by a debtor to his wife, taken by the latter in good faith is not fraudulent as to the creditors of the husband.[71] A debtor cannot use his own funds for the improvement of his wife's land,[72] or the payment of incumbrances thereon, and if he does so, his creditors are entitled to a charge on such land to the extent of the funds so used.[73] paid, will be set aside, although the wife had no notice of the fraudulent intent of the husband. Borror v. Carrier, 34 Ind. App. 353, 73 N. E. 123. See, also, infra this section, subdivision "Consideration." A voluntary conveyance is invalid as to creditors without reference as to whether the grantee had notice of the grantor's fraudulent intent. Clark v. Bell [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 767, 89 S. W. 38.

66. Morimura v. Samaha, 25 App. D. C. 189.

67. See 3 C. L. 1541.

68. Wilks v. Vaughan [Ark.] 83 S. W. 913. Where a husband conveys to his wife in payment of an indebtedness owing her, property worth an amount greatly in excess of the indebtedness and retains no property with which to satisfy his other creditors, the wife will be presumed to have known that the husband made the conveyance with intent to defraud his creditors. Clark v. Bell [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 767, 89 S. W. 38. Where a transaction between husband and wife is sought to be impeached as fraudulent, it requires less proof to show fraud, and on the other hand, where a prima facie case of fraud is made, much stronger proof to show fair dealing than would be required if the transaction was between strangers. Pickens v. Wood [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 818. The fact that the grantor and grantee in a conveyance alleged to be fraudulent are relations is not of itself proof of fraud, yet it is a circumstance to excite suspicion and clearer and more convincing proof of good faith will be required than when the parties are strangers. Clark v. Harper, 215 Ill. 24, 74 N. E. 61. A conveyance by a husband to his wife, or between near relatives, the grantor being in failing circumstances, places the burden upon such grantee to prove the bona fides of the transaction, including proof that the consideration that passed between them was adequate. Wiggington v. Minter [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1082. Independent of statutory regulation, such as bankruptcy or insolvency proceedings, the law does not prohibit near relatives from giving preference to each other, when done bona fide, without fraudulent intent and upon proper consideration. Transactions between relatives will, however, be closely scrutinized. Commonwealth Bank v. Kearns [Md.] 59 A. 1010. A bare statement by a wife that a conveyance to her from her husband was in consideration of money she loaned him many years before is not sufficient to show that the conveyance was not fraudulent. Waters v. Merrit Pants Co. [Ark.] 88 S. W. 879.

69. See, also, supra, this section, Consideration. The burden is on the grantee to prove that a voluntary conveyance to near relative made shortly before entry of judgment was made in good faith. Wilks v. Vaughan [Ark.] 83 S. W. 913. A married woman may make her husband her agent for the management of her property, and he may perform ordinary and reasonable services for her without compensation, without subjecting her property to the claim of his creditors; on the other hand, if the agency is not bona fide, she cannot, under the guise of an agency, appropriate to herself the results of the time, labor and skill of her husband to the exclusion of his creditors. Property acquired by the husband, not clearly shown to have been the increase of the wife's property conveyed by him to her without consideration, is fraudulent and void as to his creditors, and will be set aside. Torrey v. Dickinson, 213 Ill. 36, 72 N. E. 703.

70. An instruction reciting the single fact of the relationship of father and son, parties to a transfer, disconnected with the other facts in the case, and saying that no presumption arose therefrom, is erroneous. Merrill v. Merrill, 105 Ill. App. 5.

71. Osborn v. McCallum [Miss.] 38 So. 609. A wife may purchase at foreclosure sale property mortgaged by her husband, and such purchase is not void as to creditors of the husband, if she did not act fraudulently in the matter. Hesseltine v. Hodges [Mass.] 74 N. E. 319. Under Code Miss. 1892, § 2294, an unrecorded conveyance from a husband to his wife, which was made for full value and in good faith, is not fraudulent as to a creditor of the grantor who had become such subsequent to the conveyance and prior to its record, where such creditor did not acquire a lien on the property before the recording of the conveyance. Green & Sons v. Weems [Miss.] 38 So. 551. See, also, Notice and Record of Title, 4 C. L. 829. A conveyance by an insolvent to his wife in satisfaction of a debt owing to her will be sustained if no fraudulent purpose is shown. Clark Bros. v. Ford, 126 Iowa, 460, 102 N. W. 421.

72. An insolvent husband cannot use his means to improve his wife's property at the expense of his creditors, and when he does so the creditors have a charge on the wife's property to the extent of the husband's investment therein. Pullen v. Simpson [Ark.] 86 S. W. 801.

73. Where a husband uses his own money for the purposes of paying mortgage encumbrances on his wife's lands, the husband's Preference to creditors.[74]—In the absence of statute, a debtor,[75] though he is insolvent,[76] has a right to prefer one creditor to the exclusion of others. The acceptance of payment of a debt from an insolvent debtor is not in itself a fraud on other creditors,[77] unless made with an intent to hinder and delay them.[78] Under the National Bankruptcy Act, preferences made by an insolvent, under certain circumcreditor can subject the land to the payment of their claims to the extent of the payments so made by the husband. Delo v. Johnson, 110 Mo. App. 642, 85 S. W. 109. Where a husband after conveying land to his wife under circumstances which do not make it fraudulent, pays taxes and interest on a mortgage thereon, the creditors of the husband are entitled to a lien on the land so conveyed to the extent of the money so expended by the husband. Farr v. Hauenstein [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 147.

Payment of life insurance premiums: Creditors of a decedent cannot recover from his widow premiums on life insurance in her favor paid by the husband where it is not alleged and proved that the premiums were paid in fraud of creditors or with any intent to injure or affect their rights in any respect. Citizens' Sav. Bank v. Landrum [Ky.] 86 S. W. 516.

74. See 3 C. L. 1524.

75. Bartles v. Dodd, 56 W. Va. 383, 49 S. E. 414; Thompson v. Williams [Md.] 60 A. 26; F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Co. v. Moebs [Mass.] 73 N. E. 858.

Preference to debtor's wife: The fact that the creditor is the debtor's wife does not change the rule. Schreeder v. Werry [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 832; Tanner v. Eckhardt, 94 N. Y. S. 1013.

South Dakota statute: The common-law right of a debtor to prefer one creditor to another is expressly affirmed by statute in South Dakota, provided the preference is not made with an actual intent to defraud other creditors. Gardner v. Haines [S. D.] 104 N. W. 244.

Louisiana statute: Under La. Code Prac. art. 240, subd. 4, an unfair preference arises when a creditor receives an advantage over other creditors, knowing or having good reasons for knowing that the debtor was insolvent and such a preference is a constructive fraud. Bank of Patterson v. Urban Co. [La.] 38 So. 561.

76. Preferences by an insolvent debtor are not necessarily fraudulent. Wood v. Porter, 179 Mo. 56, 77 S. W. 762.

77. Pieter v. Bales, 126 Iowa, 170, 101 N. W. 865. The fact that the owner of property is in debt does not prevent his making a bona fide sale of any portion of it, and he may convey his property to his creditors in payment of their debts, provided it is done for a proper consideration and not with an intent to delay, hinder or defraud his other creditors or any of them. Commonwealth Bank v. Kearns [Md.] 59 A. 1010. The satisfaction of a debt due one creditor is not in itself a fraud on others. There must be a showing of some benefit beyond the discharge of the debt or some injury to other creditors besides the mere postponement of the debt preferred. Meyers v. Meyers, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 603.

78. A debtor has a right to prefer a creditor, and a creditor to obtain a preference over other creditors, so long as it is not done to aid a debtor in hindering and delaying his creditors. Eickstaedt v. Moses, 105 Ill. App. 634.

In Pennsylvania an insolvent debtor may prefer one or more creditors, either by judgment, deed, or in any mode, except by assignment in trust, if his motive be an honest intent to pay the preferred debts, though the unpreferred creditors be delayed or wholly prevented from obtaining payment, and where the proceeds of the property were intended by both parties to be applied to the payment of particular debts of the transferror or vendor, there could be no inference from such sale or transfer that it was intended to delay or defraud unpreferred creditors. Though they were excluded by the preference of those particular creditors, so long as it is done without fraudulent design, and is a present application of the transferror's property to the payment of his debts, it is lawful. In re A. L. Robertshaw Mfg. Co., 133 F. 556.

79. See Bankruptcy, 5 C. L. 367. A mortgage executed pursuant to an oral agreement, entered into at the time the mortgagee made the loan, whereby the mortgagor agreed to give the mortgagee a lien on the property to be purchased with the money borrowed, made within four months of an adjudication and while the mortgagor was insolvent, is a preference within the meaning of Bankruptcy Act, § 60a. In re Dismal Swamp Contracting Co., 135 F. 415. Where more than four months prior to an adjudication of bankruptcy a debtor executed a transfer of certain personal property to his creditor, which was good as between the parties though not valid as to creditors, and subsequently and within four months of the adjudication the debtor executed a transfer which was valid as to third persons, the last transfer having merely perfected the creditor's pre-existing legal right, was not a preference within four months of the bankruptcy as contemplated by the Bankruptcy Act of 1898. Stewart v. Hoffman [Mont.] 81 P. 3.

Knowledge of luterest by person receiving payment: Under the Bankruptcy Act 1898, one who receives a payment by a debtor within four months of bankruptcy, does not receive a preference merely because he has some reason to suspect that payment to him was intended as a preference; he is bound only by the information he has at the time he receives payment and is not bound to trace up any suspicious circumstance. Blankenbaker v. Charleston State Bank, 111 Ill. App. 393.

Purchase for cash by creditor of debtor's assets: A creditor of an insolvent debtor gains no advantage over other creditors by buying the debtor's property at a fair valuation, paid in cash, and there is no fraud in such a transaction unless its purpose is to enable the insolvent to conceal or misapprostances, are recoverable by the trustee.[79] Sureties are creditors of their principal within the meaning of the bankruptcy act.[80]

§ 2. Validity and effect.[81]—As between parties, a conveyance made with intent to defraud creditors is valid,[82] and equity will not aid the grantor to recover the property so conveyed.[83] The rule has no application, however, where the grantor was induced to make the conveyance by the fraud and undue influence of the grantee and fear incited by him,[84] or the parties sustained confidential relations and were not in pari delicto.[85] It is valid as to all persons, other than creditors, claiming through the grantor.[86] It is void as to creditors,[87] and the grantee holds the title in trust for them.[88] A conveyance which is void under the state laws will be taken to be void within the purview of the bankruptcy act.[89]

§ 3. Who may attack.[90]—A trustee in bankruptcy is vested with title to property transferred by the bankrupt in fraud of creditors and may avoid any such transfer that a creditor might avoid, and may properly intervene in any creditor's suit for the recovery of such property.[91] Except as otherwise provided by statute,[92] only priate or abscond with the proceeds. Lamb v. Hall [Cal.] 81 P. 286. In an action by a trustee in bankruptcy to recover the amount of an alleged preference, evidence held to require submission to jury of question of whether the person to whom made had "reasonable cause to believe that it was intended thereby to give a preference to him." Wetstein v. Franciscus [C. C. A.] 133 F. 900.

80. Horstman v. Little [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 286.

81. See 3 C. L. 1543.

82. A. Baldwin & Co. v. Williams [Ark.] 86 S. W. 423; Moore v. Mobley [Ga.] 51 S. E. 351.

83. Sanford v. Reed [Ky.] 85 S. W. 213. One who has conveyed his land to another for the purpose of removing it beyond his creditors cannot compel a reconveyance. Carson v. Beliles [Ky.] 89 S. W. 208. Equity will not enforce a reconveyance of land fraudulently conveyed for the purpose of placing it beyond the complainant's creditors though the grantee agreed to reconvey on repayment of money advanced by him to protect the grantor's interest in the property. McBrerty v. Hyde, 211 Pa. 123, 60 A. 507.

Heirs of grantor cannot recover. Bainbridge v. Allen [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 706.

NOTE. Reconveyance of property conveyed to defraud creditors: The grantor, having conveyed property to escape a possible liability as surety on a bond sought a conveyance. Held, equity would not aid him. Massi v. Lavine [Mich.] 102 N. W. 665. The statute 13 Eliz. c. 5, against fraudulent conveyances, applies to contingent liability (Gannard v. Eslava, 20 Ala. 732, 741); hence to sureties (Bay v. Cook, 31 Ill. 337, 347). Such a conveyance is valid as between the parties (Proseus v. McIntyre, 5 Barb. [N. Y.] 424), but the courts generally will not entertain a suit to put the grantee in possession (Southern Ev. Co. v. Duffey, 48 Ga. 358; Kirkpatrick v. Clark, 132 Ill. 342, 22 Am. St. Rep. 53, 18 L. R. A. 511), for that would be executing the illegality (Mediaris v. Granberry [Tex.] 84 S. W. 1070; Harrison v. Thatcher, 44 Ga. 638). However, a conveyance may be had if (1) the grantor asks it in the interest of his creditors (Carll v. Emery, 148 Mass. 32, 12 Am. St. Rep. 515, 1 L. R. A. 618), or if (2) he conveyed under duress (Anderson's Adm'rs v. Merideth, 82 Ky. 565; Austin v. Winston [Va.] 1 H. & M. 32, 3 Am. Dec. 583; Bump, Fraudulent Conveyances [2d Ed.] 442), the parties not being in pari delicto (Sanford v. Reed [Ky.] 85 S. W. 213; 2 Pomeroy's Equity, 916. See, also, Hinsdill v. White, 34 Vt. 558).—5 Columbia L. R. 473.

84. Sanford v. Reed [Ky.] 85 S. W. 213.

85. Ingersoll v. Weld, 93 N. Y. S. 291.

86. See, also, § 3, Who May Attack. Fraudulent grantees may defend a suit to resist a claim for a mechanic's lien on the premises conveyed. Toop v. Smith, 181 N. Y. 283, 73 N. E. 1113. Where a debtor fraudulently conveyed his personal assets to a corporation and a receiver in bankruptcy had taken possession of the assets of the corporation and no reconveyance thereof had been made to the debtor, but the circumstances are such that the creditors of the corporation and the individual creditors of the debtor are entitled to the distribution of all of the same in payment of their claims, the debtor's wife is not entitled to the allowance of a homestead therein. Lazarus v. Steinhardt [C. C. A.] 133 F. 522. Such a deed conveys title as against persons not affected by the fraud, and persons other than creditors cannot set up the fact that the person pleading adverse possession is in under a fraudulent conveyance so as to prevent the statute running in his favor. Moore v. Mobley [Ga.] 51 S. E. 351.

87. See supra, § 1. Under Rev. Codes N. D. 1899, § 5052, a conveyance made with intent to hinder, delay or defraud the grantor's creditors, is valid as between the parties, but as to creditors is void, and the latter can attack it as though no conveyance had been executed. Salemonson v. Thompson [N. D.] 101 N. W. 320.

88. A. Baldwin & Co. v. Williams [Ark.] 86 S. W. 423.

89. Lavender v. Bowen [Iowa] 101 N. W. 760. See note on What Law Governs in Conflict of Laws, 5 C. L. 610.

90. See 3 C. L. 1543.

91. Shreck v. Hanlon [Neb.] 104 N. W. 193. Even though the transfer be made more than four months before filing the petition in bankruptcy. Friedman v. Ver-such persons as are creditors at the time of an alleged sale can attack it as being fraudulent.[93] If, however, it is made with an actual intent to defraud prospective creditors, it may be avoided by them if they subsequently extend credit to the grantor.[94] A creditor who assents to the making of a transfer [95] or conveyance, cannot thereafter successfully attack it as being fraudulent as to creditors.[96] It cannot be impeached by the personal representative of the grantor.[97] In Massachusetts the holder of an unliquidated demand arising out of a contract is a creditor who may sue chofsky, 105 Ill. App. 414. Under clause E of section 70 of the Bankruptcy Act, trustees in bankruptcy may avoid a mortgage made by a New Jersey corporation which the creditor of the corporation might avoid under section 64 of the New Jersey corporation act. Empire State Trust Co. v. Trustees of Wm. F. Fisher & Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 940. The discharge of a bankrupt cannot be pleaded in bar of a creditor's bill to secure property fraudulently conveyed by the bankrupt, even though the facts in the bill were in issue in the bankruptcy court. Friedman v. Verchofsky, 105 Ill. App. 414.

92. Laws 1895, p. 165, authorizing the personal representatives of a deceased grantor in a fraudulent conveyance to set aside the fraudulent conveyance for the benefit of the creditors of the decedent and his heirs at law, is remedial and applicable to conveyances made before its enactment. Moore v. Waldstein [Ark.] 85 S. W. 416. Under Laws 1895, p. 165, heirs of a grantor in a conveyance fraudulent as to creditors of the grantor, may maintain an action to set aside such fraudulent conveyance where the grantee is also the executor of the deceased grantor and refuses to bring the suit or resign as executor. Id.

93. Riske v. Rotan Grocery Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 243. Where money voluntarily placed on deposit as bail under a charge in the police court is attached for debt, the petition is defective if it does not allege that the deposit was made in fraud of creditors and that the defendant was a debtor to plaintiff at the time the deposit was made. Bergin & Brady Co. v. Fraas, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 206. One not injured by a fraudulent conveyance cannot assail it. Gibson v. Honnett [Ark.] 82 S. W. 838. In an action by an assignee of a mortgage to foreclose, the mortgagor cannot set up that the assignment was fraudulent as to creditors of the mortgagee. American Guild of Virginia v. Damon, 94 N. Y. S. 985. Where a conveyance is alleged to be made in fraud of the rights of creditors, the creditors injured are those whose claims exist at the time of the conveyance. Only creditors having claims at the time the fraudulent conveyance is made can avoid it. Chicago Daily News Co. v. Siegel, 212 Ill. 617, 72 N. E. 810. An assignment of personal property though made with intent to defraud existing creditors is not voidable by one who subsequently became a creditor of the assignor with knowledge of the assignment. Donoghue v. Shull [Miss.] 37 So. 817.

94. A conveyance with an actual intent to put the property so that it could not be reached by creditors for debts which at the time he intended to contract and which he had reasonable ground to believe that he might not be able to pay, even if he did not then have that intention as to any particular debt or debts, is fraudulent and void, as to subsequent creditors. But such an intent would not be warranted by proof that the transfer was made with a design to settle property on his wife so as not to expose it to the hazard of future ventures. Mowry v. Reed, 187 Mass. 174, 72 N. E. 936. A conveyance fraudulent as against existing creditors at the time of its delivery may be avoided by subsequent creditors, under Rev. Laws Mass. c. 159, § 3, cl. 8. Woodbury v. Sparrell Print [Mass.] 73 N. E. 547. See, also, § 1, subd. "Consideration."

New York: If a conveyance is fraudulent as to existing creditors, it may also be attacked by a subsequent creditor. Wahlheimer v. Truslow, 94 N. Y. S. 137.

95. A creditor for whose benefit an assignment for the benefit of creditors was made and who acquiesced therein and consented thereto cannot subsequently claim that it was fraudulent as to him, though such might be the case as to other creditors. McAvoy v. Harkins [Wash.] 81 P. 77.

96. A creditor who knows of and assents to the conveyance of land by the debtor to the latter's wife cannot subsequently subject such land to the payment of his judgment on the ground that the conveyance was fraudulent. Mitchell v. Mitchell [Pa.] 61 A. 570.

97. NOTE. Right of personal representative to impeach: An administrator sued on a debt as due decedent's estate in which suit the defendant pleaded a written release by the decedent. Held, the administrator cannot impeach the release by showing that it was given in fraud of creditors. Hayes v. Frey [Nev.] 83 S. W. 772. At common law a conveyance in fraud of creditors was binding between the parties, and the representative was estopped from denying the validity of the decedent's acts. Burton v. Farinholt, 86 N. C. 260. But the creditors could proceed against the grantee as executor de son tort. Osbourne v. Moss [N. Y.] 7 Johns. 161, 5 Am. Dec. 252. By such a statute as exists in the jurisdiction of the principal case in many of the United States the representative has been declared a trustee for creditors and can recover property fraudulently conveyed as assets. Richardson v. Cole, 160 Mo. 372, 83 Am. St. Rep. 479; Keller v. Schaeffer, 29 Ohio St. 264, 23 Am. Rep. 741; Parker v. Flagg, 127 Mass. 28; Rozelle v. Harmon, 103 Mo. 339, 12 L. R. A. 187. There seems no good reason why he should not be allowed to impeach the transactions of intestate by showing fraud without the necessity of having the creditors first proceed in chancery.—5 Columbia L. R. 251.

to set aside a fraudulent conveyance.[98] Ordinarily the creditors must acquire a lien[99] on the property alleged to have been fraudulently transferred or conveyed, by attachment[1] or judgment,[2] as a prerequisite to the maintenance of a suit in equity to set aside the transfer. A trustee in bankruptcy, acting for the creditors of the bankrupt, may maintain an action in the nature of a creditor's suit to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance, without reducing the claims of creditors to judgment.[3]

§ 4. Rights and liabilities of persons claiming under a fraudulent grantee.[4]—A bona fide vendee can convey his title to one with notice of the fraudulent character of the original conveyance,[5] and a bona fide purchaser from the fraudulent grantee takes a good title,[6] but the property is subject to the claims of the creditors in the hands of a subsequent purchaser who is chargeable with notice of the fraud.[7]

§ 5. Extent of grantee's liability.[8]—If taken by the grantee with notice of the

98. A claim for loss of rent under a lease providing that in case the lease is terminated by reason of the default of the lessee, he shall be liable for loss of rent by reason of vacancy of premises or reletting at a reduced rental. Woodbury v. Sparrell Print Co. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 547.

99. See 3 C. L. 1544, n. 16. Bainbridge v. Allen [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 706.

1. Attachment: The levying of an attachment affords to the plaintiff in attachment the footing requisite to enable him to maintain a bill in equity to set aside a fraudulent deed which impedes the operation of the writ. Where there was no appearance in the attachment suit and hence no personal judgment against the debtor, the fraudulent conveyance will be vacated only as to property attached. Bainbridge v. Allen [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 706.

Marshaling of property attached: Where creditors attach property of a debtor which has been fraudulently conveyed and it appears that another has a valid lien on the property attached as well as other property on which the creditors have not secured an attachment, the lienholder will be required to apply the property not attached to satisfaction of his claim before resorting to the attached property. Jones v. Dulaney [Ky.] 86 S. W. 547. Where a creditor makes a general attachment of all of a debtor's property more than four months prior to bankruptcy proceedings against him, he is entitled to a special judgment against property claimed to have been fraudulently conveyed, as to creditors. After judgment and levy against such property, the question of whether or not it was fraudulently conveyed must be decided in a suit to which all necessary persons are joined as parties. American Agricultural Chemimcal Co. v. Huntington, 99 Me. 361, 59 A. 515.

2. Before he can attack a conveyance as fraudulent, the creditor must have reduced his claim to judgment so as to constitute a lien on the premises the conveyance of which is sought to be set aside. Chicago Bldg. & Mfg. Co. v. I. A. Taylor Banking Co. [Kan.] 78 P. 808. A judgment debtor fraudulently transferring his property, his judgment creditors may maintain a suit in equity to remove the obstruction without waiving their rights under the original judgment. Hillyer v. Le Roy, 179 N. Y. 369, 72 N. E. 237.

Statutory modification of rule: In the absence of a statute, a creditor without a lien, under ordinary circumstances, cannot maintain an action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance before recovering a judgment which would be a lien, but under Civ. Code, 1895, § 4937, a creditor may sue to set aside a conveyance and recover his judgment in one action. R. J. Booth & Co. v. L. Mohr & Sons [Ga.] 50 S. E. 173.

3. Shreck v. Hanlon [Neb.] 104 N. W. 193.

4. See 3 C. L. 1545. One not in pari delicto with parties to a fraudulent conveyance may fortify his own title by purchasing an outstanding lien which had been executed to defraud him. Hayward v. Smith, 187 Mo. 464, 86 S. W. 183.

5. Livingstone v. Murphy, 187 Mass. 315, 72 N. E. 1012.

6. A purchaser from a fraudulent grantee, who is himself a bona fide purchaser without notice, takes a good title as against the creditors of his grantor's grantor. The fact that the first grantor was insolvent and that the deed executed by such debtor was voluntary does not render the land subject to the first grantor's debts in the hands of a bona fide purchaser who did not know of the fact of the debtor being indebted nor of any facts which would put him on inquiry. McKee v. West [Ala.] 37 So. 740. The fact that a deed in a chain of title recites that it is given in consideration of the grantor's love and affection for the grantee, does not charge a subsequent purchaser with notice that the grantor in such a deed was indebted at the time of the execution of the deed so as to preclude his being a bona fide purchaser. Id. See, also, "Notice and Record of Title." An answer held to sufficiently allege that defendant was a bona fide purchaser from one whom it is claimed by complainant was a fraudulent grantee of complainant's debtor. Id. Where property which has been fraudulently transferred has been pledged by the transferee with a bona fide pledgee, a creditor who has successfully attacked the transfer is entitled to redeem from the pledgee, but not to a personal judgment in the first instance. Ingersoll v. Cunningham, 95 App. Div. 571, 88 N. Y. S. 711.

7. A subsequent purchaser from the grantor, who takes with notice acquires no title. New v. Young [Ala.] 39 So. 201; Maddox v. Reynolds [Ark.] 81 S. W. 603.

8. See 3 C. L. 1545.

grantor's fraudulent intent, the former cannot recover whatever he may have paid the grantor, nor hold the property as security therefor.[9]

§ 6. Remedies of creditors.[10]—A suit in equity may be maintained to subject any species of property, which is subject to execution and which has been fraudulently transferred or conveyed, to the payment of the grantor's debts.[11] Ordinarily equitable relief will not be awarded when the creditor has an adequate remedy at law.[12] In some jurisdictions where land has been fraudulently conveyed a creditor can levy on it and sell as though no conveyance had been made and bring suit to cancel the void deed after the sale.[13]

A suit to set aside a fraudulent conveyance cannot be maintained in a jurisdiction other than that in which the land is situate.[14] An action seeking relief from a fraudulent conveyance must be brought within the limitation period.[15] The run-

9. Where a conveyance is fraudulent as to creditors, the grantee cannot hold the property even to the extent of the consideration paid. Though good as between the parties it is void as to creditors. Biggins v. Lambert, 213 Ill. 625, 73 N. E. 371. A conveyance of property by a debtor not made in good faith, but executed by the grantor and received by the grantee with intent to defraud creditors, is not relieved from the condemnation of the statute by the fact that it was given for a valuable consideration or to pay an honest debt and in such case the grantee cannot recover what he has paid the grantor. Salemonson v. Thompson [N. D.] 101 N. W. 320.

10. See 3 C. L. 1545.

11. Such a suit may be maintained as to a chose in action, though the creditor could also proceed by garnishment at law. Hall v. Alabama Terminal & Improvement Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 285. A judgment creditor, with the aid of equity, may reach any interest of his debtor, not exempt, which the debtor, with such aid, might himself reach. Weckerly v. Taylor [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1065. Under Gen. Laws R. I. 1896, c. 202, § 1, where a debtor causes property for which he pays the consideration to be conveyed to another, with intent to hinder, delay and defraud his creditors, it is to be treated as his own so far as his creditors are concerned from the time such conveyance is found to obstruct the creditor in the prosecution of his claim. Tucker v. Denico, 26 R. I. 560, 59 A. 920.

12. Where a judgment is a lien on land, the judgment creditor cannot maintain a suit in equity to subject the proceeds of a sale of such land to the execution, since he has an adequate remedy at law by an execution sale of the land. Davis v. Yonge [Ark.] 85 S. W. 90. Ordinarily in actions to set aside a conveyance, and subject the land to the payment of the grantor's debts, the court will not appoint a receiver or enjoin the transfer by the fraudulent grantee where it appears that the complainant has an adequate remedy at law as by attachment. R. J. Booth & Co. v. L. Mohr & Sons [Ga.] 50 S. E. 173.

13. Rutherford v. Carr [Tex.] 87 S. W. 815, overruling Id. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 659. The sale under execution cannot be set aside because of the inadequacy of the amount bid by the execution creditor. Clark v. Bell [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 767, 89 S. W. 38. A creditor of one who has fraudulently conveyed his property under such circumstances as to render the conveyance void as to the creditor and who has sold under execution the property of the debtor standing in the name of the fraudulent grantee can maintain a suit in equity to set aside the conveyance, to put the complainant in possession and for an accounting. Tucker v. Denico, 26 R. I. 560, 59 A. 920.

Personal property: In Alabama a creditor can levy on goods and chattels in the hands of a fraudulent transferee thereof and a purchaser at execution sale takes a good title. Hall v. Alabama Terminal & Improvement Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 285.

14. West Point Min. & Mfg. Co. v. Allen [Ala.] 39 So. 351.

15. Statute of limitations: Under Batts' Ann. St. Tex. art. 3358, an action by creditors to set aside a deed as fraudulent as to the grantor's creditors must be brought within four years. Rutherford v. Carr [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 659. If the grantee takes possession of the property and holds it adversely to all claimants for the full period of limitations, the creditors are barred of their right to subject it to the payment of their debts, but so long as he allows the debtor to hold possession or so long as he holds possession for the benefit of his grantor, and not adversely, the statute does not run against creditors. A. Baldwin & Co. v. Williams [Ark.] 86 S. W. 423. Must be brought within four years from the time the plaintiff learns of the same, or had the means of learning of the fraud. Weckerly v. Taylor [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1065. The statute of limitations on a cause of action in the nature of a creditor's bill to set aside a fraudulent transfer, does not begin to run until the return of an execution unsatisfied against the fraudulent grantor. It runs from such time and not from the time of the alleged fraudulent transfer. Watt v. Morrow [S. D.] 103 N. W. 45. Where the creditor sells under execution, before suit, the period within which the purchaser at execution sale can bring an action of trespass to try title against the fraudulent grantee is that fixed by the statute of limitations within which an action for the recovery of land may be brought since such is the effect of the action of trespass to try title and not the period within which an action to set aside the conveyance might be instituted. Rutherford v. Carr [Tex.] 87 S. W. 815.

ning of the statute is not tolled by the death of the alleged fraudulent grantor.[16] Decisions as to who are necessary or proper parties to a creditor's suit are referred to in the notes.[17] In pleading fraud the facts and circumstances from which the fraud may be inferred must be pleaded.[18] An allegation of the issuance of an execution and its return unsatisfied sufficiently charges the insolvency of the grantor.[19]

Evidence.—Where a conveyance is attacked as being fraudulent, the recitals of the deed are prima facie evidence of what the consideration was, upon which it was executed.[20] The assessed value of the land is not a controlling standard by which to ascertain its actual value.[21] Where the seller of goods retains possession after the time of an alleged sale to another, statements by the seller after such time that he was the owner of the goods are admissible in an action by a creditor to set aside the sale, to prove that the sale was fraudulent.[22] A judgment against the grantor is admissible against the grantee to show that the complainant is or was a creditor.[23] Where the conveyance alleged to have been fraudulent was to the debtor's wife, she can be compelled to testify in regard to it.[24]

Judgment.—Where several transfers are attacked as fraudulent and the setting aside of one will afford sufficient property to satisfy the plaintiff's claim, a court of equity may properly refuse to vacate them all.[25] Where the property consists of money, the court may render a personal judgment against the fraudulent transferee.[26]

FREEMASONS; FRIENDLY SUITS; FRIEND OF THE COURT; FUNDS AND DEPOSITS IN COURT; FUTURE ESTATE, see latest topical index.

GAMBLING CONTRACTS.

§ 1. What constitutes a wagering contract.[27]—A wagering contract is one which in effect stipulates that the parties shall gain or lose by the happening of an

16. Lesieur v. Simon [Neb.] 103 N. W. 302.

17. The right of a creditor to set aside a fraudulent conveyance descends to his personal representatives and not to his heirs and the creditor's executor may maintain an action to compel the grantee to apply the property to the payment of the grantor's debt. Coffinberry v. McClellan [Ind.] 73 N. E. 97. Where a debtor assigned a one-half interest in the assets of a firm of which he was the owner, the co-partner is not a necessary party to an action to set aside the assignment as being a preference, brought by the trustee in bankruptcy. Lamb v. Hall [Cal.] 81 P. 286. In an action to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent, the grantee being a non-resident, the grantee as well as the grantor are necessary parties and the controversy between the complaining creditor and the alleged fraudulent grantee is not separable so as to authorize the removal of the action to the United States circuit court. Palmer v. Inman [Ga.] 50 S. E. 86.

18. Weckerly v. Taylor [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1065. A bill charging an assignment by a debtor, failure of the assignee to qualify and discharge the trust and that assignment was made with intent to hinder and delay complainant, a creditor, held to state a cause of action. Pine Cone Lumber Co. v. White Sand Lumber Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 188.

19. Breitkreutz v. National Bank of Holton [Kan.] 79 P. 686.

20, 21. Thompson v. Williams [Md.] 60 A. 26.

22. Piedmont Sav. Bank v. Levy, 138 N. C. 274, 50 S. E. 657.

23. A judgment regularly rendered and entered by a court of competent jurisdiction is, in the absence of allegation and proof of fraud or collusion, conclusive evidence of the debt and its amount, in an action by a creditor against an alleged fraudulent grantee of the judgment debtor to subject the property conveyed to the satisfaction of the judgment. Salemonson v. Thompson [N. D.] 101 N. W. 320.

24. Witnesses: In an action by creditors of a man to set aside gifts made to his wife as being fraudulent as to his creditors, the wife may be compelled to testify in regard thereto. She is not exempt on the ground that such transaction is a privileged communication. Wiley v. McBride [Ark.] 85 S. W. 84.

25, 26. Fox v. Erbe, 100 App. Div. 343, 91 N. Y. S. 832.

27. See 3 C. L. 1546.

event in which they have no interest except the prospect of such gain or loss.[28] Such contracts are void at common law,[29] and are expressly declared so by the statutes of several states,[30] which define the elements of such contracts [31] and provide for a recovery of the consideration.[32] Speculative contracts are not necessarily gambling ones,[33] and are not rendered such by pledging the subject-matter of the contract for the purchase price,[34] and a contract for future delivery at a certain price of that which the seller does not own is not illegal.[35] A transaction, though a gambling one at its inception, may become valid if fully consummated by payment in full of the price and a delivery of the goods.[36] A contract of sale for delivery at a future date is valid only when the parties intend an actual delivery at the contract price.[37] The intention and purpose of the parties to the transaction determines its character.[38] If the intent is not to deliver but to settle upon the difference in market quotations, the contract is a wagering one.[39] The intent must be mutual.[40] The Note: As to gambling contracts for purchase or sale of stock of corporations, see Clark & M. Corp. § 611; and as to validity of "futures," see Hammon, Cont. § 217.

28. Gambling contract: A transaction by which one assigns a policy on his own life in consideration of payment of a past due premium, the assignor to have the privilege of redeeming within ninety days or if he died within such period, the assignee to pay a small portion of the face of the policy to the heirs of the assignor, is a gambling contract. Quillian v. Johnson [Ga.] 49 S. E. 801.

Valid contracts: Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, p. 640, § 130, prohibiting options to buy or sell at a future time, stock in any company, applies only to contracts for options in the nature of gambling contracts and not to an agreement to pay a certain price for a certain number of shares five years from date of the contract. Kantzler v. Benzinger, 214 Ill. 589, 73 N. E. 874. A transaction whereby one party takes stock as temporary payment for property transferred, with the privilege of determining in the future whether he will retain the stock or require payment in cash, is not an option contract. Osgood v. Skinner, 111 Ill. App. 606. A sale by a broker at a price agreed upon between him and a manufacturer with whom he had a contract to take orders for goods is not a contract for an option to sell or buy at a future time. Tuthill Spring Co. v. Holliday [Ind.] 72 N. E. 872.

29. At common law, in order to render a contract a wagering one, both parties must have understood and agreed to the things which constituted it a wagering contract as a matter of law. Farnum v. Whitman [Mass.] 73 N. E. 473.

30. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 38, § 131, where the holder of a certificate of deposit indorses it to another in furtherance of a gambling transaction, the indorsement is void, and title remains in the holder. Thomas v. First Nat. Bank, 213 Ill. 261, 72 N. E. 801. Const. art. 4, § 26, declaring void, contracts for the sale of shares of stock on margin to be delivered at a future day, applies to a contract whereby a broker purchases for another, stock, not intended to be delivered, a portion of the purchase price being paid, and the broker retaining the stock as security for the balance, the customer being credited with the stock and amount paid and debited with commissions, interest and balance of the purchase price. Stilwell v. Cutter, 146 Cal. 657, 80 P. 1071. A contract for the sale of cotton at a specified price to be delivered at a particular place on demand is void under Civ. Code 1902, § 2310, declaring void contracts for the sale of cotton for future delivery unless the seller is the owner or authorized by the owner, and a delivery is intended. Barr v. Satcher [S. C.] 51 S. E. 530.

31. A transfer of a certificate of deposit to aid in a gambling transaction is a gambling contract under Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 38, § 131, and is void. Thomas v. First Nat. Bank, 213 Ill. 261, 72 N. E. 801.

32. See Betting and Gaming, 5 C. L. 417.

33. Wiggin v. Federal Stock & Grain Co., 77 Conn. 507, 59 A. 607. Contracts for the purchase and sale of stocks on margin are not illegal when there is a bona fide employment of a broker to make the purchase to be held for delivery on payment of the price. Ling v. Malcom, 77 Conn. 517, 59 A. 698.

34. A purchase of goods for sale on speculation is not rendered illegal by pledging the goods for the purchase price. Jennings v. Morris [Pa.] 61 A. 115.

35. Option to a purchaser to call for stock at a future date. Wiggin v. Federal Stock & Grain Co., 77 Conn. 507, 59 A. 607.

36. Stock purchased on margin but the buyer subsequently paid the full price and received the stock. Not within the prohibition of Cal. Const. art. 4, § 26. Conradt v. Lepper [Wyo.] 81 P. 307.

37. Beidler & R. Lumber Co. v. Coe Commission Co. [N. D.] 102 N. W. 880.

38. Dunbar v. Armstrong, 115 Ill. App. 549. Where, in an action to recover losses sustained in margin contracts, the defense of gaming contract is set up, the plaintiff must establish a prima facie real contract. Jacobs v. Cohn, 91 N. Y. S. 339.

39. Beidler & R. Lumber Co. v. Coe Commission Co. [N. D.] 102 N. W. 880; Hurd v. Taylor, 181 N. Y. 231, 73 N. E. 977. Contracts in which there is no intention of delivering the goods sold but the purpose of which is to settle on differences that may exist in the market price at the time of settling and of contracting, are gambling contracts. Dunbar v. Armstrong, 115 Ill. App. 549. A transaction in futures, if it is the intent of the parties only to pay or receive the difference between the contract and market price, without delivery of the subject of sale, is illegal. Jennings v. Morris [Pa.] 61 existence or nonexistence of an intention to deliver and receive the goods which are the subject of the contract is a question of fact,[41] to be determined from the circumstances attending the transaction,[42] the course of dealing between the parties,[43] the general nature of the business of the broker,[44] and the declarations of the parties.[45]

§ 2. Rights and remedies of parties and their privies.[46]—Criminal prosecutions for gambling, forfeitures and statutory recovery of losings are elsewhere treated.[47] Money advanced with the intention that it shall be used in a gaming venture ordinarily cannot be recovered back,[48] except such portion of it as has not been used.[49] A remedy for the recovery of money lost or advanced in gambling transactions has been prescribed by statute in several states.[50] Courts will not enforce a gambling contract,[51] and the courts of one state will not enforce a gambling contract made in another, though valid where made if it is in violation of the laws of the state where enforcement is sought.[52] But when a gambling contract has been executed and the money deposited to the credit of the winner, the depositary cannot, in an action against him to recover it, plead the illegality of the transaction through

A. 115. Evidence sufficient to show an intent that settlement should be made without actual delivery of the grain, in an action to recover money deposited as margins. Bartlett v. Slusher, 215 Ill. 348, 74 N. E. 370.

40. Where one through an agent procures a broker to purchase goods for future delivery, the fact that he intends a gambling transaction does not make it such as to the broker who contemplated a bona fide transaction. Hocomb v. Kempner, 214 Ill. 458, 73 N. E. 740. Question as to whether both parties to stock transactions understood that no delivery of articles bought and sold was intended, held properly submitted by the instructions. Paducah Commission Co. v. Boswell, 26 Ky. L. R. 1062, 83 S. W. 144.

41. Dunbar v. Armstrong, 115 Ill. App. 549.

42. It is not necessary to prove statements or declarations of the parties. Bartlett v. Slusher, 215 Ill. 348, 74 N. E. 370.

43. If it appears that numerous other contracts between the parties were mere wagers, the party relying on the validity of a particular contract has the burden to show that it was made with a view to actual delivery. Beidler & R. Lumber Co. v. Coe Commission Co. [N. D.] 102 N. W. 880. If the evidence is conflicting, the intent may be determined from the course of dealing. Jennings v. Morris [Pa.] 61 A. 115.

44. In an action to recover money deposited as margins in stock transactions, it is permissible to show the general nature of business of the brokers and that all orders were executed on the floor of the stock exchange. Allwright v. Skillings [Mass.] 74 N. E. 944. Evidence of the method of making delivery in the board of trade where a contract is consummated is competent on the nature of a contract which a broker asserts to be a bona fide transaction and the principal asserts a gambling transaction. Warehouse receipts tendered by the broker to the principal. Farnum v. Whitman [Mass.] 73 N. E. 473.

45. A broker may testify that there was no agreement between him and his principal that a contract should be settled by the payment of differences. Farnum v. Whitman [Mass.] 73 N. E. 473. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 38, § 132, providing that an action to recover money deposited as margins on option contracts must be brought within six months, does not render inadmissible evidence of statements made by a broker as to the manner in which business was conducted without actual delivery, though made more than six months prior to the action. Bartlett v. Slusher, 215 Ill. 348, 74 N. E. 370.

46. See 3 C. L. 1549.

47. See Betting and Gaming, 5 C. L. 417.

48. In re Arnold & Co., 133 F. 789. Under Code 1892, § 2117, declaring that contracts for futures shall not be enforced where no delivery was intended, one buying futures may not recover margins paid. Code, §§ 2114, 2116, providing for the recovery of money lost at gaming, does not apply. Isaacs v. Silverberg, Parry & Co. [Miss.] 39 So. 420.

49. In re Arnold & Co., 133 F. 789.

50. See Betting and Gaming, 5 C. L. 417. By express terms of the statute, money paid or property delivered pursuant to a gaming contract may be recovered if action is brought within six months. Quillian v. Johnson [Ga.] 49 S. E. 801. The action provided for by the California constitution for the recovery of margins lies against the broker, though he does not himself sell it to the customer, but purchases it from another on the customer's account. Stilwell v. Cutter, 146 Cal. 657, 80 P. 1071. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 38, § 132, an action to recover moneys paid for options to buy or sell grain must be brought within six months. Bartlett v. Slusher, 215 Ill. 348, 74 N. E. 370.

51. One to whom a certificate of deposit is transferred for the purpose of enabling him to enter into a gambling transaction cannot recover from the bank which issued the certificate. Thomas v. First Nat. Bank, 213 Ill. 261, 72 N. E. 801. Bucket shop transactions. Overholt v. Burbridge, 28 Utah, 408, 79 P. 561.

52. Thomas v. First Nat. Bank, 213 Ill. 261, 72 N. E. 801.

See note in Conflict of Laws, 5 C. L. 610, on the question what law governs.

which it was obtained,[53] nor can an agent of the winner hold the proceeds of a gambling transaction as against his principal.[54] A party seeking affirmative relief on gambling contract cannot be denied recovery because of the illegality if he establishes his case independently of the unlawful element.[55]

§ 3. Effect of illegality on substituted or collateral contracts or securities.[56]

Game and Game Laws; Gaming; Gaming Houses, see latest topical

GARNISHMENT.[57]

§ 1. Definition and nature of remedy in general.[58]—Garnishment is purely a statutory remedy,[59] and is always ancillary to a principal suit which is either pending or determined,[60] and hence falls with such suit.[61] Where the principal defendant is not a resident of the state, service on him by publication is sufficient to support garnishment proceedings.[62] The remedy is purely legal and every case must

53. A bucket shop which acts as the agent of the buyer and seller in receiving the margins deposited. Overholt v. Burbridge, 28 Utah, 408, 79 P. 561.

54. Brokers who draw a draft for the winnings in a gambling transaction consummated through them cannot defeat liability on the draft because it is the proceeds of an illegal contract. Russell v. Kidd [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 273.

55. The winner of share of stock may compel a transfer on the books of the corporation, though such stock might have been recovered by the loser, especially where the illegality is not set up as a defense. Crenshaw v. Columbian Min. Co., 110 Mo. App. 355, 86 S. W. 260.

56. See 3 C. L. 1550.

57. Includes not only garnishment, so-called, but equivalent proceedings locally designated as "trustee process," "factorizing process," etc.

Distinctions: While garnishment is a proceeding in the nature of an attachment (3 C. L. 1551, n. 24), it is to be distinguished from attachment as commonly used, and from the topic so entitled, in that it deals with the procedure at law to reach property or effects of a debtor in the hands of a third person. Garnishment after judgment must be distinguished from supplementary proceedings, the latter being essentially a process of discovery substituted by the codes for the equitable creditors' suit, and in no sense a levying or subjecting remedy. See Supplementary Proceedings, 4 C. L. 1591; Creditors' Suits, 5 C. L. 880.

58. See 3 C. L. 1550.

59. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. McDonald, 112 Ill. App. 391.

60. Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Carstens [Fla.] 37 So. 566; Adams v. Osborne [Mich.] 101 N. W. 220. A justice being without jurisdiction in the principal action, judgment in the garnishment proceedings is void. Roberts v. Hickory Camp Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 182. He cannot acquire jurisdiction by garnishment of a debtor of the defendant in his county. Id. Under Rev. St. 1898, §§ 3712, 3713, 3716, 3718, 3723, a justice has no jurisdiction to try the issue of the garnishee's indebtedness on the latter's answer before completing service on the principal defendant who never appeared nor answered. State v. Pauli [Wis.] 104 N. W. 1007. Under Comp. Laws, §§ 716, 717, where officer is unable to serve summons, plaintiff is entitled to sustain the garnishment by suing out and serving an alias summons or an attachment. Adams v. Osborne [Mich.] 101 N. W. 220.

61. Where summons, alias summons and attachment, were returned not found, held, both action and garnishment proceeding fell. Adams v. Osborne [Mich.] 101 N. W. 220. By dismissing the main suit before judgment in the garnishment proceeding, both are finally determined. State Bank v. Thweatt, 111 Ill. App. 599. The power to vacate the dismissal or adjudge against the garnishee is wholly extinguished as soon as the statutory time (90 days) after judgment is elapsed. Id.

62. Holford v. Trewella, 36 Wash. 654, 79 P. 308.

be brought within the scope of the statutes on the subject,[63] and, while the statutory procedure must be strictly followed,[64] statutes giving the right are liberally construed for the advancement of the remedy.[65]

§ 2. Grounds for garnishment and choses and properties subject.[66]—The remedy being purely statutory, the question as to what property or indebtedness can be reached by garnishment is entirely a matter of statutory construction.[67] As a general rule only demands resting in contract and enforceable at law are garnishable.[68] The indebtedness should be presently owing [69] the defendant in the principal action [70] at the time the garnishee answers, though, as a general rule, a debt not payable or matured at such time may be reached by garnishment if the future liability is absolute.[71] Liabilities contingent at the time of the service of the writ,[72] such as money due on uncompleted building contracts,[73] are not garnishable. A debt due jointly to the principal defendant and another or others cannot be reached by garnishment in an action against such defendant alone,[74] and, under the extended rights given to married women in most states, the same rule applies to an indebtedness owing by the garnishee to a husband and wife.[75] The remainder interest of a pledgor in property pledged may be garnished in the hands of the pledgee.[76] In most states a garnishee cannot be charged on account of an indebtedness evidenced by outstanding, unmatured negotiable paper, unless such paper is delivered to him

63. Wheeler v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 455.

64. State v. Pauli [Wis.] 104 N. W. 1007.

65. Wheeler v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 455.

66. See 3 C. L. 1551.

67. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. McDonald, 112 Ill. App. 391.

68. Klipstein & Co. v. Allen-Miles Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 385. The phrase "subject to garnishment" as used in Civ. Code Ga. 1895, § 4719, providing that if the court shall decide that the fund in the hands of a garnishee was subject to garnishment had the garnishment not been dissolved, the court shall then render judgment against the defendant and his securities, held to refer to such demands. Id.

69. Wheeler v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 455. Under Code, § 364, judgment held not erroneous in that it included a part of the debt which was not earned and due at the time the garnishee was summoned to answer, if it was due when he actually answered and the judgment was rendered. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 49 S. E. 173.

70. Where the court found that a garnishee had admitted possession of money and property belonging to an intervener, but there was no finding or evidence that the garnishee had any money or effects of the debtor, a judgment in favor of the creditor, held erroneous. Groesbeck v. Thompson Milling Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 33. Money paid indemnitee to indemnify him against a claim held not garnishable in suit against claimant. Collins, Grayson & Co. v. Savannah, etc., R. Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 477. Where an agent of a foreign corporation was arrested and convicted and the foreign corporation procured a bond covering judgment and costs pending appeal, and sent money to the bondsmen to indemnify them, the corporation intending to continue the defense of its liability on the bond and not that the money should be applied as that of the agent, held, such funds were not subject to garnishment on behalf of the state for the payment of the judgment and costs assessed against the corporation's agent. Miller v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 844.

71. Wheeler v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 455.

72. Simmons Hardware Co. v. Baker [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 132, 103 N. W. 529.

73. Where, under contract, nothing further was due until work was completed, held until work was completed sum due could not be garnished in a suit against the contractor. Simmons Hardware Co. v. Baker [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 132, 103 N. W. 529. Where contractor failed to complete building but promised to do so, agreeing with the owner that the price was not payable until it was completed, held, in the absence of an intent to defraud creditors, the owner could not be rendered liable as a garnishee in a suit against the contractor. Corsiglia v. Burnham [Mass.] 75 N. E. 253. Where a contract provided for payment when the work was done, the fact that defendant estimated the work done and made two payments therefor during the progress of the work, and had made a third estimate when the contractor abandoned the job, held, defendant was not indebted to the contractor. Gen. St. 1902, § 880, considered. Cunningham Lumber Co. v. New York, etc., R. Co., 77 Conn. 628, 60 A. 107.

74. Badger Lumber Co. v. Stern, 123 Wis. 618, 101 N. W. 1093.

75. Under Rev. St. 1898, §§ 2341, 2345, such indebtedness cannot be garnished in a suit against the husband alone. Badger Lumber Co. v. Stern, 123 Wis. 618, 101 N. W. 1093.

76. So held where corporate stock was pledged, and corporation quit business and distributed its property. Cooley v. Jones [Kan.] 80 P. 596. Where tenant placed crop in possession of his landlord as security for indebtedness due the latter. Groesbeck v. Evans [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 659, 88 S. W. 889, modifying 83 S. W. 430.

or he is completely exonerated or indemnified from all liability thereon.[77] In West Virginia, choses in action, including shares of corporate stock, may be garnished.[78] In Massachusetts, the interest of a mortgagor in mortgaged personal property cannot be attached by trusteeing a bailee of that property who holds for the mortgagor.[79] Property exempt from execution is exempt from garnishment.[80] Statutes generally provide that wages shall, to a limited extent, be exempt from garnishment,[81] and the great weight of authority at this time is in favor of the proposition that the courts of one state will not deprive a nonresident wage earner of another state of the benefit of his exemptions.[82] In Illinois an assignment by a legatee of his legacy while the same is in the hands of an administrator or executor does not defeat the garnishment thereof until the assignment is reduced to writing and filed in the office of the clerk of the county court.[83]

§ 3. Persons liable to garnishment.[84]—The garnishee must have possession of property belonging to the debtor or be indebted to him,[85] and the latter, as a general rule, must have a right to maintain an action for the recovery of such property,[86] though this general rule is modified in favor of creditors when the money or property is held upon such trusts as constitute a fraud on creditors or to be void as against them.[87] A common carrier is not required to answer as garnishee as to property in its possession for transportation only, and which at the time the action is brought is in actual transit.[88] As a general rule, in the absence of statutory pro-

77. Where it is sought under Shannon's Code, §§ 5255, 5260, to garnishee the maker of a negotiable note, an answer by the latter that he did not know who held the note which had not yet matured, held sufficient to prevent judgment being rendered against him. Kimbrough v. Hornsby, 113 Tenn. 605, 84 S. W. 613.

78. Code 1899, c. 106, § 9. Lipscomb's Adm'r v. Condon, 56 W. Va. 416, 49 S. E. 392. See Helliwell, Stock & Stockholders, §§ 396-402.

79. Jenness v. Shrieves [Mass.] 74 N. E. 312.

Note: The only way in which the mortgagor's interest in such property so situated can be attacked is by attaching it as if it were unincumbered on a writ of summons and attachment under Rev. Laws, c. 167, § 69. Jenness v. Shrieves [Mass.] 74 N. E. 312.

80. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 49 S. E. 173. Consult Exemptions, 5 C. L. 1400.

81. Under Acts 1898-99, p. 37, amending Code 1896, § 2038, the garnishment must be dismissed where the answer of the garnishee discloses an amount not exceeding $25 to be due defendant as wages for the preceding month, although more than that amount has been earned by defendant during such month, and although the garnishment is issued on a claim in which the right of exemption has been waived. Ralls v. Alabama Steel & Wire Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 369.

82. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. McDonald, 112 Ill. App. 391.

83. Act of 1897. Rhodes v. Rhodes, 115 Ill. App. 335. In this case executor took an equitable assignment of legacy before he had received letters testamentary, and paid for the same out of his own property. Id.

84. See 3 C. L. 1551.

85. Contract construed and held to constitute the principal debtor a cropper, hence he did not have a garnishable interest. Taylor v. Donahoe [Wis.] 103 N. W. 1099. Distinction between "cropper" and "tenant," see Agriculture, 5 C. L. 94.

86. Gilbert Paper Co. v. Whiting Paper Co., 123 Wis. 472, 102 N. W. 20. An insolvent corporation gave its secretary its check accompanied by a communication stating that the money was assigned in trust for the benefit of certain creditors. The secretary cashed the check and deposited the proceeds to his own credit; one of the creditors who had not received his dividend sued the corporation and garnished the secretary, held, garnishment would not lie. Id.

87. Gilbert Paper Co. v. Whiting Paper Co., 123 Wis. 472, 102 N. W. 20. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 2768, a bank with which a note and mortgage, fraudulently conveyed by a husband to his wife, is placed for collection and which receives a check therefor payable to its order is subject to garnishment by a creditor of the husband. Eau Claire Nat. Bank v. Chippewa Valley Bank [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1068.

88. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Cox [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 120.

NOTE. Liability of carriers to garnishment: As a general rule carriers and corporations in general are held liable to garnishment with relation to debts and ordinary bailments under general statutes conferring the right to garnish persons indebted to the principal debtor. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Galhahue, 12 Grat. [Vt.] 655, 65 Am. Dec. 254; Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 1 Ill. App. 399; Bates v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 60 Wis. 296, 50 Am. Rep. 369; Adams v. Scott, 104 Mass. 164. The liability of a carrier to garnishment on account of debts owing to or property held belonging to another depends, as in ordinary cases, upon its direct and immediate accountability to the creditor or owner. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Wheeler, 18 Md. 372. There is a conflict of authority as to whether property in the hands of a carrier in actual transit is visions,[89] property or money held by the executor or administrator in his representative capacity cannot be reached by garnishment in an action against the heir or legatee before an order of distribution has been made.[90] A creditor cannot garnish property in the hands of an assignee for the benefit of creditors, he having assented to the assignment, even though it be fraudulent as to other creditors.[91] In a proceeding by a creditor of a corporate shareholder to subject his shares to the payment of his debt, the corporation in which the shares are held should be made garnishee.[92] In Minnesota a public corporation is subject to garnishment when it owes an ordinary debt to a third person.[93]

§ 4. Rights, defenses and liabilities between plaintiff and garnishee.[94]—A garnishment is, in effect, a suit by the principal debtor, the defendant in the action, in the name of the plaintiff, and for his use and benefit, against the garnishee, to recover the debt due to plaintiff's debtor and apply it to the satisfaction of the plaintiff's demand.[95] Hence, the plaintiff is, as to the garnishee, substituted merely to the rights of his own debtor, and can enforce no claim against the garnishee which the debtor himself, if suing, would not be entitled to recover.[96] It is the duty of a garnishee who has money or other property subject to garnishment in his hands or within his control at the time of the service of the writ upon him, to exercise reasonable diligence to prevent the payment of such money or the delivery of such prop-

subject to garnishment; the weight of authority, however, denies the right. Bates v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 60 Wis. 296, 50 Am. Rep. 369; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Cobb, 48 Ill. 402; Western R. Co. v. Thornton, 66 Ga. 300; Contra. Adams v. Scott, 104 Mass. 164, dist'g Clark v. Brewer, 6 Gray [Mass.] 320; Edwards v. White Line Transit Co., 104 Mass. 159, 6 Am. Rep. 213, and Bottom v. Clarke, 7 Cush. [Mass.] 487. Garnishment does not lie against personal property in the custody and possession of a common carrier, though his residence is within the state, if the transit of such property has commenced, and it has been carried outside of the county or state in which the writ is served (Illinois, etc., R. Co. v. Cobb, 48 Ill. 402; Montrose Pickle Co. v. Dodson, etc., Mfg. Co., 76 Iowa, 172, 14 Am. St. Rep. 213, 2 L. R. A. 417; Bates v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 60 Wis. 296, 50 Am. Rep. 369; Michigan etc., R. Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 1 Ill. App. 399; Western R Co. v. Thornton, 60 Ga. 300), and the same rule has been held to apply, though the property is within the state at the time of the service of the writ (Stevenot v. Eastern R. Co., 61 Minn. 104, 28 L. R. A. 600). The right of stoppage in transitu is not impaired or extinguished by service of process of garnishment on the carrier. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Painter, 15 Neb. 394. Where property is in the possession of a common carrier, and its transportation is not yet begun, it is subject to garnishment if within the jurisdiction of the court issuing the writ. Landa v. Holck, 129 Mo. 663, 50 Am. St. Rep. 459; Stiles v. Davis, 1 Black [U. S.] 17 Law. Ed. 384. Similarly, it is held that a railway company, after the termination of the transportation of property, and while it is holding the same only as a warehouseman, is liable to garnishment in respect to such property. Cooley v. Minnesota, etc., R. Co. 53 Minn. 327, 39 Am. St. Rep. 609.—From notes to Stevenot v. Koch, 61 Minn. 104, 28 L. R. A. 600; Landa v. Holck, 129 Mo. 663, 50 Am. St. Rep. 459, 465, and National Bank v. Furtick [Del.] 69 Am. St. Rep. 99, 125.

89. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, p. 836, c. 63, pp. 104, 105, c. 3, p. 1746, c. 148, executors or administrators are not subject to garnishment until the will is probated and letters testamentary are issued. It is immaterial that debt is owing absolutely and the garnishee has legally qualified as executor at the time of filing the answer. Wheeler v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 455. Divorced wife may garnish administrator of former husband to secure payment of alimony. Clifford v. Gridley, 113 Ill. App. 164.

90. Orlopp v. Schueller [Ohio] 73 N. E. 1012. Rev. St. 1892, § 5531, do not alter this rule. Id.

Note: The case of Stratton v. Ham (decided in 1856) 8 Ind. 84, 65 Am. Dec. 754, seems to be the only case in conflict with the above rule. This case has been much criticized, and its doctrine almost universally repudiated in other jurisdictions. See Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Miracle, 54 Wis. 299, 11 N. W. 580.—From Orlopp v. Schueller [Ohio] 73 N. E. 1012.

91. McAvoy v. Harkins [Wash.] 81 P. 77.

92. Lipscomb's Adm'r v. Condon, 56 W. Va. 416, 49 S. E. 392. Garnishment against corporations, see Clark & M. Corp. § 772.

93. Laws 1901, c. 96. Mitchell v. Miller [Minn.] 103 N. W. 716. This act (Laws 1901, c. 96) changes the rule announced in McDougal v. Board of Supervisors, 4 Minn. 184 (Gil. 130) which case is consequently overruled. Id.

94. See 3 C. L. 1552.

95. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 49 S. E. 173.

96. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 49 S. E. 173; Allen v. Gilman, McNeil & Co., 137 F. 136.

erty to such debtor by any agent of his,[97] and possession thereof by one for him is his possession.[98]

§ 5. Rights, defenses and liabilities between defendant and garnishee.[99]—It is the recognized duty of the garnishee to give notice to his own creditor, if he would protect himself, so that the creditor may have the opportunity to defend himself against the claim of the person suing out the garnishment;[1] but this duty is discharged by pleading the judgment in the garnishment proceedings in bar to an action on the debt while there remains ample time in which the principal debtor may litigate the question of his liability in the court which rendered the judgment.[2] As a general rule, a garnishee is discharged from liability for credits paid by force of a valid [3] judgment in the proceedings, and such payment is a defense to a suit by the creditor or his representative.[4] The consent of a garnishee to a judgment impounding his debt to the principal debtor does not make the payment under the judgment voluntary, where he is absolutely without defense.[5] Statutes in some states provide for the delivery of exempt property to the principal defendant.[6]

§ 6. Duties of a garnisheed agent to his principal.—It is the duty of a branch bank, when served with garnishee process, to make the fact known within the shortest time reasonably practicable to the main bank, and to its branches, where it is known that the depositor whose funds have been garnisheed has an account with the other bank.[7]

§ 7. Conflicting and hostile claims and liens.[8]—The service of a process of garnishment does not create a specific lien in favor of the plaintiff upon the money or property in the garnishee's hands, but only creates such a lien as gives the plaintiff the right to hold the garnishee personally liable for it or its value.[9] The lien dates from the service of the writ of garnishment [10] and is subject to prior assignments,[11] unless the assignee files a disclaimer of interest.[12] The lien arises as a matter of law, and it is immaterial whether it is mentioned in the verdict or not.[13]

97. Binkley v. Clay, 112 Ill. App. 332. Where garnishee had time to stop delivery of draft, held liable. Id.

98. That the trustee's attorney has taken possession of the property does not relieve the trustee from liability therefor. Thompson v. Dyer [Me.] 62 A. 76.

99. See 3 C. L. 1553.

1, 2. Harris v. Balk, 198 U. S. 215, 49 Law. Ed. 1023.

3. Payment under a void judgment affords the garnishee no protection. Roberts v. Hickory Camp Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 182.

§ 4. Where an attaching creditor permitted property levied on to be sold on the purchaser agreeing to pay him the purchase price, and the purchaser was garnished as trustee of the attachment defendant, and, having been adjudged trustee on default, paid the judgment, held, in an action by the attachment creditor against the purchaser for the purchase money, that, the attachment having been satisfied out of other property, the plaintiff was a representative of the attachment defendant and under V. S. 1374, the trustee was discharged. Lamb v. Zundell [Vt.] 62 A. 33.

5. Does not prevent him from pleading such payment in bar to an action on the debt. Harris v. Balk, 198 U. S. 215, 49 Law. Ed. 1023.

6. Act May 11, 1901 makes it the duty of the employer upon the delivery to him of the affidavit provided thereby to pay at once to the employe all exempt wages then due, notwithstanding a writ of garnishment may have been served upon him; as a result, therefore, where the employe makes and delivers such affidavit, the whole burden of claiming and establishing the exemption of the employe is cast upon the employer. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. McDonald, 112 Ill. App. 391. If he does not pay to such employe the exempt wages due him, and does not set up and prove such act and all other necessary facts, he cannot plead the judgment in the garnishment suit as a bar to a subsequent action by the employe brought to recover such exempt wages. Id.

7. Bank of Montreal v. Clark, 108 Ill. App. 163.

8. See 3 C. L. 1554.

9. Rev. St. 1899, § 3436. Dodge v. Knapp [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 47.

10. See 3 C. L. 1554, n. 60.

11. Equitable assignee takes priority over subsequent garnishing creditors. Lutter v. Grosse, 26 Ky. L. R. 585, 82 S. W. 278; Kuhnes v. Cahill [Iowa] 104 N. W. 1025.

12. Chott v. Tivoli Amusement Co., 114 Ill. App. 178.

13. Where a verdict was rendered against a garnishee in a consolidated action to recover the debt by the garnishee's creditor and the garnishee. Kothman v. Faseler [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 390.

A garnishee voluntarily delivering the property to the sheriff, a judgment against him is not necessary to perfect the lien.[14] Though defendant be a nonresident and be served by publication, plaintiff does not lose his lien by taking a judgment against the defendant and the garnishee.[15] Garnishing creditors are entitled to priority in the order in which their garnishments are sued out,[16] and being sued out in different states, the question of priority will generally be left with the courts of the state in which garnishment papers were first issued.[17] Bankruptcy of the defendant renders all garnishment liens [18] on nonexempt property,[19] within four months prior to the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, void.

§ 8. Jurisdiction and venue.[20]—Jurisdiction to fasten choses of action by garnishee process depends upon the ability to serve the process of garnishment upon the debtor within the territorial jurisdiction of the court.[21] A foreign corporation is subject to the process of garnishment in any state in which it exercises its franchises and in which it holds property or credits of the debtor, which the latter might recover in a suit in such state.[22] Where the defendant in an attachment suit has not been served except by publication, has not appeared, and no property has been attached, a res in the hands or control of the garnishee is absolutely essential to the court's jurisdiction.[23]

§ 9. Procedure to obtain writ; bond.[24]—The proceedings by garnishment are special and in derogation of the common law, and must be strictly pursued in order to confer jurisdiction.[25] Defects in the affidavit may be waived by proceeding to trial.[26] In Wisconsin any number of garnishees may be embraced in the same affidavit and summons.[27] By appearing and interpleading, the garnishee may waive all requirements as to notice.[28]

14. Hatcher v. Hendrie & B. Mfg. & Supply Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 267.

15. Judgment against defendant is void as a personal judgment entered without jurisdiction. Code, § 364, construed. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 49 S. E. 173.

16. Lutter v. Grosse, 26 Ky. L. R. 585, 82 S. W. 278.

17. Where, in actions against the same defendant by different plaintiffs, garnishment papers are issued in Pennsylvania and placed in the hands of a sheriff, but, before served, garnishment papers are procured in West Virginia by the other plaintiff and served before the papers issued in Pennsylvania, held, as the question of priority involved the construction of a Pennsylvania statute, the matter would be left with the Pennsylvania courts. Prichard & Co. v. Critchlow, 56 W. Va. 547, 49 S. E. 453.

18. Klipstein & Co. v. Allen-Miles Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 385; Cavanaugh v. Fenley [Minn.] 103 N. W. 711. See Bankruptcy, 5 C. L. 367.

19. Does not affect exempt property. Sharp v. Woolslore, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 251.

20. See 3 C. L. 1554.

21. Not on supposed situs of debt. Orient Ins. Co. v. Rudolph [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 26. Where tangible property belonging to a resident or corporation of the state of the forum is garnished in a foreign state by proceedings taken in that state, the title of a receiver based on those proceedings can be asserted in the state of the forum. Id. If a debtor while temporarily within the state might be there sued on the debt by his creditor, he is liable to process of garnishment, no matter where the situs of the debt was originally. Harris v. Balk, 198 U. S. 215, 49 Law. Ed. 1023.

22. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 49 S. E. 173. Under Code, § 194, held, courts of North Carolina had jurisdiction to proceed against a foreign corporation in garnishment proceedings in an action brought within the state. Id.

23. State Bank of Chicago v. Thweatt, 111 Ill. App. 599.

24. See 3 C. L. 1555.

25. State v. Pauli [Wis.] 104 N. W. 1007.

26. Personal service was had on the garnishee and he made disclosure without questioning the jurisdiction of the court, later when the garnishee was examined under the statute, defendant's attorney appeared specially for an intervener, and objected to the garnishee being sworn, because it had been shown by the disclosure that the intervener was interested and had had no notice of the proceedings. This objection was overruled. On trial the same counsel appeared for defendant and for the garnishee, and agreed that the intervener might become a party. Objection was thereafter made that the affidavit was defective; the defects were cured by amendment over objection, held, defects were not cause for direction of a verdict for the defendant. Sachs v. Norn [Mich.] 102 N. W. 983.

27. Rev. St. 1898, § 2853. Eau Claire Nat. Bank v. Chippewa Valley Bank [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1068.

28. Failure of a judgment creditor to institute supplementary proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 717, 721, 542, subd. 5, held

Bond.—The garnishee cannot recover on a bond running to the defendant alone.[29] Where a garnishment bond is given to two defendants, recovery may be had on the bond, though only one obligee sustains damage,[30] and under the code provision that actions must be prosecuted by the real party in interest, only those obligees who have an interest in the damages sought to be recovered must be joined as plaintiffs or be made parties to the suit.[31] It follows that in such an action it is not necessary to aver or prove that the garnishment has been discharged as against other obligees who have no interests in, and are not necessary parties to, the action.[32]

§ 10. The writ and service thereof; return; notice to defendant.[33]—The time for issuing the writ [34] and its issuance to another county [35] are regulated by statutes. In Pennsylvania, where corporate stock is in another name than that of the defendant in the judgment, no writ of "attachment" will issue for its seizure without being preceded by an affidavit and recognizance.[36] When a garnishee named in the original writ in foreign attachment has not been served, an alias writ may be issued for the purpose of carrying on the proceedings against the property which has already been indicated as its object; [37] but the plaintiff cannot by virtue of the alias writ take any property of the defendant which was not bound by the original writ.[38] An alias writ of foreign attachment which names as garnishees persons other than those mentioned in the original writ will be quashed, where it appears that the original writ has been served upon the garnishees therein named.[39] An appearance of the defendant for the sole purpose of having the alias writ quashed and of setting aside the judgment thereon will not have the effect of an appearance before judgment.[40] A court cannot quash a writ of foreign attachment on a motion based on the garnishee's affidavit that the defendant does not owe the debt demanded.[41] For the purpose of garnishing debts, a foreign corporation lawfully doing business in more than one state may be served with process under the laws of any of the states wherein it does business.[42] Service upon an agent of a corporation is sufficient.[43] By a general appearance the garnishee waives any irregularity in the process.[44] In Missouri the insufficiency of the service can only be raised by a plea in abatement or by a motion to quash the officer's return.[45] The rights of the parties under the process not to preclude a bill of interpleader by a garnishee to determine to whom the debt should be paid. Water Supply Co. v. Sarnow [Cal. App.] 82 P. 689.

29. Plaintiff having given a bond under Civ. Code 1895, § 4708, and being defeated, the garnishee is not entitled to judgment on the bond against the plaintiff and his sureties, for costs incurred in answering the garnishment. Brunswick Bank & Trust Co. v. Delegal [Ga.] 50 S. E. 44.

30, 31, 32. Harrington v. Gordon [Wash.] 80 P. 187.

33. See 3 C. L. 1555.

34. Michigan: Where garnishment was begun by issuing a short summons, issuance of garnishment may precede the issuance of writs of attachment. Comp. Laws, §§ 731 and 745, are inapplicable. Adams v. Osborne [Mich.] 101 N. W. 220.

35. Arkansas: Under Kirby's Dig. §§ 4631-4634, 3705, a writ of garnishment may issue to another county from a circuit court on a justice's judgment filed therein. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Bowman [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1033. Laws 1866-67, p. 157; Kirby's Dig. § 3707, is repealed by Acts 1889, p. 168. Id.

36. Corporate stocks standing in the name of a decedent and bequeathed by him to a person for life, and at her death to a defendant in a judgment, contingent upon his survival of the life beneficiary, cannot be attached during the interest of the life beneficiary, and prior to distribution, by summoning the executor as garnishee in an ordinary writ of attachment execution without the precedent affidavit and recognizance prescribed by § 32, Act June 16, 1836 (P. L. 755. First Nat. Bank v. Trainer, 209 Pa. 387, 58 A. 816.

37, 38, 39, 40. Glenny v. Boyd, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 380.

41. Dempsey v. Petersburg Sav. & Ins. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 633.

42. Orient Ins. Co. v. Rudolph [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 26.

43. Service upon special agent and adjuster of foreign fire insurance company held sufficient. Orient Ins. Co. v. Rudolph [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 26.

44. Answering. Dodge v. Knapp [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 47. This is especially true where answer states "that having been summoned as a garnishee in the above entitled cause, makes answer to the interrogatories of said plaintiffs as follows." Id. Plea of nulla bona. First Nat. Bank v. Trainer, 209 Pa. 387, 58 A. 816.

45. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 3451, providing that where the denial of a garnishee's an-are fixed by the sheriff's return; if it be false he may ordinarily correct it,[46] but in any event he is liable for the truthfulness of his return and the consequences of a false return.[47] Where the garnishee voluntarily delivers the property to the sheriff, the lien on the property is not defeated because the sheriff fails to make return of such delivery, where he retains custody of the property under the writ.[48]

Notice [49] to the defendant in the principal case is generally required.[50]

§ 11. Answer or disclosure and later pleadings or traverse.[51]—No formal pleadings are required in garnishment proceedings.[52] The time for filing the answer is largely statutory.[53] The garnishee need not answer pending the determination of a motion to set aside a default;[54] if he answers immediately after the vacation of such default, it is sufficient.[55] By answering to the merits the garnishee appears generally,[56] and waives any objection to the fact that the interrogatories were not filed in time.[57] It is proper to set up in the answer facts showing that the suit is premature.[58] An averment by way of conclusion may be superseded by subsequent allegations.[59]

The usual formulary statement, even if under oath, that at the time of the service of the writ upon him, the person summoned as trustee did not have in his hands any goods, effects or credits of the principal defendant, is in the nature of a plea, to be sustained or overruled according to the evidence adduced in the disclosure or otherwise.[60]

The disclosure must be complete and explicit, containing statements of facts and not conclusions of law.[61] Every statement that the trustee desires to have considered as evidence must be direct, and, under the sanction of his oath, at least that he believes it to be true.[62] In making his disclosure, the trustee may refer to books, papers, etc., and thus make their contents part of his disclosure; but the reference must be so definite and specific that the court may know from the disclosure alone what is referred to.[63] He may refer to and adopt the statements of others made to him or in their testimony, but in such case he must make oath that such statements are true, or that he believes them to be true.[64] The disclosure is taken to be true,[65]

swer is replied to, the issues raised by the denial and reply are the sole issues to be tried; the sufficiency of the service of the garnishment cannot be raised by the garnishee's answer. Dodge v. Knapp [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 47.

48, 47. Kemp v. Northern Trust Co., 108 Ill. App. 242.

48. Hatcher v. Hendrie & B. Mfg. & Supply Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 267.

49. That it is the duty of the garnishee to notify the defendant, see ante, § 5.

50. Quigley v. Welter [Minn.] 104 N. W. 236.

51. See 3 C. L. 1555.

52. Wheeler v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 455.

53. One summoned as trustee of the principal defendant in an action should file his answer and submit to examination at the return term. Thompson v. Dyer [Me.] 62 A. 76. Under Civ. Code 1895, §§ 4551, 4709, in the superior court, the garnishee in all cases has until the first day of the second term after the service of the summons of garnishment in which to answer. Averback v. Spivey [Ga.] 49 S. E. 748. The same rule applies to the city court of Moultrie. Id. Default judgment should not be entered for failure to appear at the first term thereafter. Id.

54, 55. Averback v. Spivey [Ga.] 49 S. E. 748.

56. Dodge v. Knapp [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 47.

57. May v. Disconto Gesellschaft, 113 Ill. App. 415.

58. Wheeler v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 455.

59. A statement in an answer that the garnishee is indebted to defendant upon a written contract whereby he agreed to pay a sum of money to defendant and another, held to supersede a prior averment by way of conclusion that the garnishee was indebted to defendant. Badger Lumber Co. v. Stern, 123 Wis. 618, 101 N. W. 1093.

60. Is not the disclosure. Thompson v. Dyer [Me.] 62 A. 76.

61. Thompson v. Dyer [Me.] 62 A. 76. Trustee's disclosure held insufficient. Id.

62, 63. Thompson v. Dyer [Me.] 62 A. 76.

64. Thompson v. Dyer [Me.] 62 A. 76. A sworn account by the trustee's agent is inadmissible unless the trustee makes such statement a part of his disclosure under his oath that he believes it to be true, or unless an issue has been formed by some appropriate allegation. Id.

65. With respect to the amount with which he should be charged. Schwartz v. Flaherty, 99 Me. 463, 59 A. 737. Under Rev.

and judgment upon it is conclusive upon the plaintiff and the defendant.[66] If either of the parties desires to contest the truth of the disclosure, he should do so at the proper time by alleging and proving facts to the contrary.[67] In Maine a statement in a trustee disclosure is evidence and not an allegation under the statute.[68] The allegation which must be made to let in evidence other than the disclosure must be additional to, outside of, the disclosure proper.[69] When it is made to appear that before the service of the writ upon him the trustee had in his hands goods, effects and credits belonging to the principal defendant, he must fully and particularly account for all such if he would avoid being charged generally.[70] Failing to so do, he must be charged generally, the amount to be determined on scire facias, when he may make further disclosure and perhaps be relieved except from costs.[71] In most states a verified account being required, the affidavit must be made by the trustee,[72] and it is not in his power to confer authority upon any other person to make it.[73] A trustee cannot file a verified account after the statutory time.[74] The testimony of the garnishee, leaving it doubtful whether he had or had not moneys of the defendant in his hands at the date of the service of the writ, the case must be submitted to the jury.[75] Prohibition will not lie to restrain the court from proceeding further after entry of an order declaring a garnishee in default for want of disclosure, directing interlocutory judgment against him and referring it to determine the amount of the judgment,[76] nor will mandamus lie to compel the court to set aside such an order.[77]

Notice of the filing of the traverse must be given within the statutory time.[78] A mere suggestion of a possible claim of ownership need not be traversed.[79] An answer not traversed is taken to be true.[80]

§ 12. Claims or interventions.[81]—A claimant is entitled to notice of the proceedings,[82] and the garnishee is entitled to this protection.[83] Being notified, the claimant is bound to appear and interplead;[84] not being notified, he is not bound by the proceeding;[85] hence, in neither case is he entitled to an injunction restraining the collection of a judgment against the garnishee.[86] In some states the claim-

Laws c. 189, § 15, in the absence of a fraudulent purpose to defeat creditors, statements by the trustee being made under oath and responsive to the interrogatories are conclusive on the plaintiff. Corsiglia v. Burnham [Mass.] 75 N. E. 253.

66, 67. Schwartz v. Flaherty, 99 Me. 463, 59 A. 737.

68. Rev. St. c. 88, §§ 30, 31, considered. Thompson v. Dyer [Me.] 62 A. 76.

69. Thompson v. Dyer [Me.] 62 A. 76. Held, that sworn statement of attorney in the form of a deposition was inadmissible in evidence for want of the statutory allegation by either party. Id.

70, 71. Thompson v. Dyer [Me.] 62 A. 76.

72. So held under Gen. Laws 1896, c. 254, §§ 10, 12, 13, 18-20, 22, 23, 25 and 29. Marshall v. Gray, 26 R. I. 517, 59 A. 744.

73. Marshall v. Gray, 26 R I. 517, 59 A. 744. Where affidavit was made by trustee's clerk, held, an affidavit by the trustee, subsequently filed, to the effect that the clerk was authorized to make the affidavit, did not validate the latter. Id.

74. Account required by Gen. Laws 1896, c. 254, § 10. Marshall v. Gray, 26 R. I. 517, 59 A. 744.

75. Klein v. Cohen, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 621.

76, 77. Gorman v. Calhoun [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 139, 103 N. W. 567.

78. Under Acts 1897, p. 54 (Van Epp's Code Supp. § 6223), notice of the filing of a traverse to the answer must be given 10 days before the trial of the garnishment issue, held that, even if the court had power to postpone the trial to enable notice to be given, it would not do so where five months had elapsed between the filing of the traverse and the calling of the case for trial, no excuse for failing to give notice being offered. Sims v. Price [Ga.] 50 S. E. 960.

79. A statement in the garnishee's answer that it was "informed" that the property, which it admitted having received from the defendant, belonged to a third person, does not need to be traversed by plaintiff, where the property has been surrendered by the garnishee to the officer holding the attachment. Hatcher v. Hendrie Mfg. & Supply Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 267.

80. Bartlett v. Willis Mfg. Co., 106 Ill. App. 248.

81. See 3 C. L. 1556.

Evidence held to sustain a judgment in favor of an intervening claimant. Peterson v. Knuutila [Minn.] 102 N. W. 368.

82. Unless notified is unaffected by proceedings. Radzinski v. Fry, 111 Ill. App. 645.

83. Rev. St. c. 62, §§ 11, 12. Bartlett v. Willis Mfg. Co., 106 Ill. App. 248.

84, 85, 86. Radzinski v. Fry, 111 Ill. App. 645.

ant is entitled to take advantage of any defect in the pleadings of his adversary.[87] Garnishment and claim proceedings being collateral to the main suit,[88] a finding in favor of the claimant merely ascertains that his rights in the property are superior to those of the plaintiff under his garnishment, and does not authorize a judgment for the claimant against the garnishee for the property.[89] All claimants to the property being parties to the proceedings no interpleader is necessary.[90]

§ 13. Dissolution of writ.[91]—After the dissolution of the garnishment by the giving of a bond, the garnishee must respond to the defendant and cannot relieve himself of liability by paying the money into court.[92] The condition of the bond being for the payment of the judgment that shall be rendered in the garnishment proceedings, a judgment against the garnishee is a condition precedent to a judgment on the bond,[93] and such a condition refers to such a judgment as could have been rendered against the garnishee if the bond had not been given.[94] Where a fund obtained by void garnishment proceedings is in the hands of the clerk of the court, the court should direct such funds to be returned to the garnishee.[95]

§ 14. Effect of pendency of other proceedings; stay, etc.[96]—The fact that prior garnishment proceedings are pending against the garnishee, while ground for staying subsequent garnishment proceedings,[97] is not ground for discharging the garnishee in the subsequent proceedings.[98] A party sued for the same debt in two jurisdictions should generally, though not always, plead the pendency of a subordinate action like garnishment in the forum where the main action is pending or was first instituted.[99] The plaintiff and garnishee being the same party, he is not entitled to a stay of execution of a judgment entered against him in a counter suit brought by the defendant unless he pay the money into court.[1]

§ 15. Trial, verdict and judgments, costs and execution.[2]—A garnishee in an attachment suit may attack the proceedings had therein upon the ground that they are void.[3] Where plaintiff has a garnishment lien on a debt due defendant by the garnishee, it is not error in a consolidated action by plaintiff and the garnishee to recover such debt, to recite in the judgment against defendant that it was subject to the garnishment lien.[4] A garnishee moving to arrest judgment cannot take advantage of defects appearing on the face of the record in the case against the main defendant.[5]

The plaintiff recovering more than the garnishee admits by his answer to be due, he is generally entitled to costs.[6] Where a suit against a garnishee is consoli-

87. So held where, in accordance with Civ. Code 1895, § 4720, a claim was filed and a bond given to dissolve the garnishment. Civ. Code 1895, § 4723, construed. Gallaway v. Maxwell [Ga.] 51 S. E. 320.

88. Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Carstens [Fla.] 37 So. 566.

89. Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Carstens [Fla.] 37 So. 566. A judgment that the claimant do have and recover of and from the garnishee the property mentioned in both the garnishment and claim proceedings, held erroneous. Id.

90. Eau Claire Nat. Bank v. Chippewa Valley Bank [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1068.

91. See 3 C. L. 1556.

92. Turner's Chapel African M. E. Church v. Lord Lumber Co., 121 Ga. 376, 49 S. E. 272.

93, 94. Klipstein & Co. v. Allen-Miles Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 385.

95. Yeiser v. Cathers [Neb.] 102 N. W. 612.

96. See 3 C. L. 1556.

97, 98. Prichard & Co. v. Critchlow, 56 W. Va. 547, 49 S. E. 453.

99. Grimm v. Barrington [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 357. Where garnishee sued in Missouri to have an express contract with defendant canceled for fraud and prevailed, it being adjudged that she was under no liability to defendant, held, she was under no duty to plead the garnishment proceedings in a suit brought by defendant in New Jersey upon an alleged implied contract. Id.

1. Hanscom v. Chapin, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 546.

2. See 3 C. L. 1556.

3. State Bank of Chicago v. Thweatt, 111 Ill. App. 599.

4. Kothman v. Faseler [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 390.

5. Union Compress Co. v. Leffler [Ga.] 50 S. E. 483.

6. Rev. St. 1898, § 2772. Eau Claire Nat. Bank v. Chippewa Valley Bank [Wis.] 102 N. Y. 1068.

dated with an action by the garnishee's creditors to recover the debt, and the garnishee fails to establish his denial of indebtedness in both suits, he is liable for the costs of both.[7] A trustee failing, without reasonable excuse, to file his answer and submit to examination within the required time, he is liable to the plaintiff for all costs afterwards arising in the suit, if the judgment in the action be for the plaintiff.[8] The allowance of costs is largely statutory.[9] In New York on discharge of the "attachment," the sheriff has no cause of action for poundage against the garnishee,[10] nor can he maintain an action or special proceeding to obtain possession of the property after the "attachment" is discharged;[11] but the "attaching" creditor's attorney is personally liable to the sheriff for his poundage.[12]

As a general rule interest does not begin to run against the garnishee until the entry of judgment in the original action.[13]

§ 16. Appellate review.—An order quashing a writ of garnishment and releasing the garnishee from further liability, with costs to defendant, is in effect a final judgment against plaintiff in the garnishment proceeding.[14] An appeal does not lie from a judgment charging a trustee, unless the case discloses that an issue was joined upon the disclosure of the trustee.[15] In Wisconsin it is competent for the principal defendant to appeal from a judgment against the garnishee.[16] General rules as to parties apply.[17]

GAS.

§ 1. Gas franchises; powers and duties of corporations exercising them.[18]—As against the state, a natural gas company, which is given power to exercise the right of eminent domain, and is a quasi-public corporation, may bury its pipe line in the public highway, where such use does not inconvenience, endanger, or obstruct public travel.[19] A statute providing that a corporation organized to supply gas to

7. Kothman v. Faseler [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 390.

8. Thompson v. Dyer [Me.] 62 A. 76.

9. Acts of April 22, 1863 (P. L. 527); June 11, 1885 (P. L. 107); and April 29, 1891 (P. L. 35), allowing costs to garnishees in attachment executions "issued out of any court of record in this state," do not apply to an alderman's court. Julius King Optical Co. v. Royal Ins. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 527. Where plaintiff appeals from an alderman's court and the court permits the garnishee to pay the fund into court less certain fees and costs taxed by the court at an amount stated, the plaintiff may after judgment and verdict in his favor object to the taxation of costs. Id.

10. Laws 1890, p. 940, c. 523, § 17, subd. 2, as amended by Laws 1892, p. 868, c. 418, construed. O'Brien v. Manhattan R. Co., 45 Misc. 643, 91 N. Y. S. 69. The service of the notice on the garnishee of the existence of the attachment under Laws 1892, p. 868, c. 418, and the giving of a certificate to the sheriff, reciting an indebtedness equal to the amount claimed in the attachment and its subsequent payment, does not change the rule. Id.

11. Code Civ. Proc. § 655, construed. O'Brien v. Manhattan R. Co., 45 Misc. 643, 91 N. Y. S. 69.

12. Gadski-Tauscher v. Graff, 44 Misc. 418, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 25, 89 N. Y. S. 1019.

13. Rev. St. 1898, § 2768, construed. Eau Claire Nat. Bank v Chippewa Valley Bank [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1068.

14. Recor v. St. Clair Circuit Judge [Mich.] 102 N. W. 643. Under Comp. Laws 1897, § 10,642 is reviewable by the supreme court on error, and hence mandamus does not lie to review such order and vacate the same. Id.

15. Schwartz v. Flaherty, 99 Me. 463, 59 A. 737.

16. Rev. St. 1898, § 2765, considered. Badger Lumber Co. v. Stern, 123 Wis. 618, 101 N. W. 1093.

17. On appeal from a judgment rendered against plaintiff and in favor of an intervening claimant, neither the defendant nor the garnishee taking any part in the action, held, they were not necessary or material parties to the appeal. Peterson v. Knuutila [Minn.] 102 N. W. 368.

18. See 3 C. L. 1556. See, also, Franchises, 5 C. L. 1518.

19. Corporation organized under Gen. St. 1901, § 1366, to pipe and distribute gas for several municipalities, and authorized to bury its mains in the streets of each of such municipalities for that purpose, may also occupy the streets of any of such municipalities with mains designed to carry gas from one to another, is valid, and authorizes the laying of mains of the size necessary for such purpose.[20] Where the act incorporating a gas company gave it the right to lay mains and conduct a lighting business in a certain township, its rights were not affected by a subsequent subdivision of the township.[21] A gas company is not entitled to maintain a suit to restrain a rival company from laying its mains in the streets in a manner other than that prescribed by the statute authorizing its incorporation, unless the plaintiff company can show special injury done or threatened.[22] Where plaintiff company has stood by while mains were being laid by defendant and has refused to disclose the location of its pipes when requested to do so, it will be estopped to object to slight deviations from the letter of the law.[23]

Obligation to supply consumers.[24]—A natural gas company occupying the streets of a city or town with its mains owes the duty of supplying to the owners or occupants of houses abutting on such streets, who have made the necessary arrangements and complied with the reasonable regulations of the company, such gas as they may require,[25] and the performance of that duty may be enforced by mandamus.[26] But a petition for a writ of mandamus for such purpose must directly allege compliance with the reasonable regulations of the company at the time of its refusal to furnish gas.[27] A petition for an injunction to restrain a company from shutting off the supply of gas to a consumer must show a contract to supply gas.[28] A gas company authorized to furnish gas for heating purposes only will not be enjoined from shutting off the supply of a consumer who uses the gas supplied for lighting purposes.[29] Where, in consideration of a grant of a right of way for a pipe line, a gas company agrees to supply gas to the grantor so long as the line is in operation, a removal of the pipe line from the grantor's premises will not be enjoined.[30] A gas company, under the New York statutes, may cut off a consumer's supply for failure to pay charges, though the consumer's deposit has not been used up by charges for gas supplied.[31]

§ 2. Public regulation.[32]—When a municipality, by ordinance, grants a gas company the right to use its streets, without prescribing a maximum charge or reserving power to thereafter regulate charges, and the company accepts such ordinance and expends large sums in reliance thereon, a contract between the municipality and company results, which cannot be impaired by subsequent ordinances limiting rates, not accepted by the company.[33] In California municipal corporations are authorized by the constitution to regulate charges for gas supplied through pipes laid in the street.[34] Cities of the fifth class may exercise this right though the legis-light, fuel and power, has such right. State v. Kansas Natural Gas, Oil, Pipe Line & Improvement Co. [Kan.] 80 P. 962.

20. Act April 8, 1903 (P. L. 1903, p. 359), Public Service Corp. of New Jersey v. De Grote [N. J. Eq.] 62 A. 65.

21. Though none of original township remained. Public Service Corp. of New Jersey v. De Grote [N. J. Eq.] 62 A. 65.

22. Evidence held to show compliance with P. L. 1876, p. 316, § 21, by company laying mains, except at one point, and this single exception held not to constitute such irreparable injury as to warrant injunction. Atlantic City Gas & Water Co. v. Consumers' Gas & Fuel Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 750.

23. Atlantic City Gas & Water Co. v. Consumers' Gas & Fuel Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 750.

24. See 3 C. L. 1557.

25, 26. Greenfield Gas Co. v. Trees [Ind.] 75 N. E. 2.

27. Petition held demurrable. Greenfield Gas Co. v. Trees [Ind.] 75 N. E. 2.

28, 29. Nairin v. Kentucky Heating Co. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 676.

30. Connersville Natural Gas Co. v. Moffett [Ind.] 73 N. E. 894.

31. Laws 1890, pp. 1148, 1149, c. 866, §§ 66, 68. Hewsey v. Queens Borough Gas & Elec. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 1114.

32. See 3 C. L. 1558.

33. City of Rushville v. Rushville Natural Gas Co. [Ind.] 73 N. E. 87.

34. Const. art. 11, § 11. Denninger v. Re-lature has not acted,[35] and having by ordinance fixed a maximum rate, they have power to make a violation thereof a misdemeanor.[36]

§ 3. Torts and crimes.[37]—Natural gas companies are held to a degree of care commensurate with the dangerous character of the agency handled.[38] They are liable for damages or injuries caused by gas negligently allowed to escape from mains.[39] An abutting owner has a right of action against a gas company for the destruction of shade trees in front of his premises caused by gas escaping from the company's pipes in the street, after notice to the company.[40] His right to protect his special rights in such trees is not affected by the right of the city to protect its general rights.[41] A gas company required by law to place a street opened by it in as good repair as when opened is not under the duty of keeping the street permanently in repair.[42] Hence the notice of the time, place and cause of injury, required in actions for injury based on a violation of a duty to keep streets in repair, need not be given when the injury is caused by a trench left unfilled by a gas company.[43] Under a contract permitting the company's agent free access to the meter at reasonable hours, and providing that it might be removed, the company is not liable in trespass where its agent enters and removes the meter, without disturbance and without unnecessary force.[44]

Municipal corporations, authorized to fix maximum rates for gas, may make a violation of a regulating ordinance a misdemeanor, unless prohibited by general law.[45]

GENERAL AVERAGE; GENERAL ISSUE, see latest topical index.

corder's Court of Pomona, 145 Cal. 629, 79 P. 360.

35. Construing Const. art. 4, § 33, and St. 1883, p. 250, c. 49. Denninger v. Recorder's Court of Pomona, 145 Cal. 629, 79 P. 360.

36. Ordinance fixing maximum of $1.50 per 1,000 feet and making it a misdemeanor to collect or receive a greater charge, held valid. Denninger v. Recorder's Court of Pomona, 145 Cal. 629, 79 P. 360.

37. See 3 C. L. 1559. See, also, Explosives and Inflammables, 5 C. L. 1405.

38. Hartman v. Citizens' Natural Gas Co., 210 Pa. 19, 59 A. 315.

39. Sufficiency of evidence: Evidence as to odor of escaping gas previous to explosion, as to defects in mains, etc., held sufficient to show negligence and responsibility of company for explosion which wrecked house. Hartman v. Citizens' Nat. Gas Co., 210 Pa. 19, 59 A. 315. Evidence held sufficient to take case to jury in action for destruction of building and machinery caused by explosion of natural gas. Olive Stove Works v. Ft. Pitt Gas Co., 210 Pa. 141, 59 A. 819. Evidence that gas company knowingly allowed gas to escape from a defective main into an adjoining house where it caused an explosion is sufficient to take a case to the jury on the issue of negligence. Bandler v. People's Gaslight & Coke Co., 108 Ill. App. 187. Manager of natural gas company, who turned on street valve to let gas into house pipes, and then on discovering a leak, turned off the house valve but not the street valve, held negligent, and company held liable for explosion, though agency whereby gas was ignited did not appear. Huntington Light & Fuel Co. v. Beaver [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 1002.

Declaration in action against city for wrongful death by gas escaping from city main, held sufficient, though defective main was not shown particularly. City of Richmond v. Gay's Adm'x, 103 Va. 320, 49 S. E. 482.

Defenses: In action for death caused by gas escaping from main, it is no defense that gas escaped from main into abandoned sewer, and thence into decedent's house through a private pipe, instead of through a leak in the main to the house as alleged. City of Richmond v. Gay's Adm'x, 103 Va. 320, 49 S. E. 482. Whether decedent, killed by escaping gas, was guilty of contributory negligence, held for jury, there being evidence that gas had previously been noticed and decedent had made some effort to remedy defect. Id.

40, 41. Donahue v. Keystone Gas Co., 181 N. Y. 313, 73 N. E. 1108.

42. Construing Rev. Laws, c. 110, § 76. Seltzer v. Amesbury & S. Gas Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 339.

43. Rev. Laws, c. 51, § 20, does not apply to actions against gas companies. Seltzer v. Amesbury & S. Gas Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 339.

44. Hitchcock v. Essex & H. Gas Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 397.

45. Denninger v. Recorder's Court of Pomona, 145 Cal. 629, 79 P. 360. A gas corporation agent who collects more than the maximum charge for gas violates the ordinance of Pomona fixing the maximum and making it a misdemeanor to receive or collect a charge greater than such maximum. Id.

GIFTS.

§ 1. Definitions and distinctions.[46]—A gift is a voluntary transfer of property without consideration.[47] A gift causa mortis [48] must be made on apprehension of death, which must occur before revoking the gift,[49] and on condition that the gift is void in case of the donor's recovery.

§ 2. Validity and requisites.[50]—In order to constitute a valid gift either causa mortis or inter vivos, the gift must be absolute [51] with a clear intent on the part of the donor [52] to divest himself of title and dominion over the property.[53] There

46. See 3 C. L. 1560.

47. A gift of land which covers a part indebtedness is more than a gift in that it fulfills a legal obligation. Lee v. Wrixon, 37 Wash. 47, 79 P. 489.

48. Elements of gift causa mortis. Winslow v. McHenry, 93 Minn. 507, 101 N. W. 799; O'Brien v. Elmira Sav. Bank, 99 App. Div. 76, 91 N. Y. S. 364. A gift causa mortis is in the nature of a testamentary disposition and is governed by the same rules of law which govern wills, and declarations made by the donor at about the same time as the gift are admitted as a part of the res gestae to prove the gift. Dawson v. Waggaman, 23 App. D. C. 428. Distinction between a gift causa mortis and a legacy. Noble v. Gardner, 146 Cal. 225, 79 P. 883. Declarations made by a donor, near enough to the time of the execution of a gift causa mortis to be regarded as part of the res gestae of its execution are admissible in evidence to show his state of mind and his intention in the disposal of his property. Dawson v. Waggaman, 23 App. D. C. 428.

49. Where a son purchases land with money given by his mother, no trust results. Kennedy v. McCann [Md.] 61 A. 625. A promise to give the use of certain real estate during the lifetime of the donor and at his death to give the fee and which promise can be revoked at any time by the donor can be revoked by the guardian of the donor, the donor becoming non compos mentis. Buhler v. Trombly [Mich.] 102 N. W. 647.

50. See 3 C. L. 1560.

51. Carskaddon v. Miller, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 47. A proimse to give is not equivalent to an actual gift and even in case of a gift of a parent to his minor children there must be some word or act to transfer the title from the donor to the donee. Donaldson v. Everett [Ga.] 50 S. E. 94.

52. Belknap v. Belknap [Iowa] 100 N. W. 115.

Presumption between husband and wife: Where a husband advances money to pay for real estate and the title is taken in the wife's name, it will be presumed that a gift to the wife was intended and not a trust in her husband's favor. O'Hair v. O'Hair [Ark.] 88 S. W. 945; Deuter v. Deuter, 214 Ill. 113, 73 N. E. 453. Where a husband deposits with his wife's earnings some of his own money and the wife subsequently makes additional deposits, a presumption arises, the husband never having claimed the money, that it was a gift to the wife. In re Klenke's Estate [Pa.] 60 A. 166.

53. Delivery by a father of a deed to a third person in favor of his son with the instruction to keep the deed until the grantor's death and then have it recorded disclosed the intent of the grantor to irrevocably divest himself of all dominion over the deed. Thompson v. Calhoun, 216 Ill. 161, 74 N. E. 775. Husband deposits money in a bank and takes certificate of deposit in the name of himself and wife. The husband dies never having given up possession of the certificate. In an action by an executor to recover the amount of the certificate of the wife, who had indorsed and obtained the money, held, that the evidence did not show a gift inasmuch as at no time before his death did the deceased release the dominion or control of the deposit. Winslow v. McHenry, 93 Minn. 507, 101 N. W. 799. Where shares of stock were assigned, but did not pass out of the control of the assignor and remained in the possession of her agent, held, that such assignment did not constitute a gift even though it was the evident intention of the assignor to make him a gift "causa mortis." Noble v. Garden, 146 Cal. 225, 79 P. 883. A mere savings bank deposit by the intestate in her own name as trustee for another who was a mere friend and over which deposit intestate exercised complete control during her life was not sufficient to establish a gift inter vivos. Nicklas v. Parker [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 267. Where husband purchases chattel property as a gift to his wife and the title passes directly from the vendor to her, it is not necessary to have a writing acknowledged and recorded, pass between them to make such a gift valid. Interpretation of sec. 9, ch. 68, Ill. Statutes, in reference to such a gift. Groundenberg v. Groundenberg, 112 Ill. App. 615. Handwriting of a deceased wife on the back of securities "My property given into the hands of my husband and sold by him," did not show a gift of the securities by the wife to her husband. Gittings v. Winter [Md.] 60 A. 630. In an action by an executor to recover shares of stock standing in the name of the defendant where it appeared that they were in the possession of the testatrix at the time of her death and had been purchased by the defendant as her agent, evidence held not to establish a valid gift. Bowron v. De Selding, 94 N. Y. S. 292. Where the payee of a note retains possession of the note, but promises to give the amount to the maker at his death provided the maker keeps up the interest held not to be a valid gift as there was not the requisite delivery.

must be a delivery [54] with intent to immediately vest title [55] as near actual as the subject of the gift will permit; [56] conditional in a gift causa mortis and absolute in a gift inter vivos. Where the property is found in donor's possession on his death, clear and positive evidence of gift is necessary.[57] After delivery, it does not impair the validity of the gift that the property is returned to donor to keep it for donee.[58] The questions of intent and delivery are questions of fact and must be proved by a fair preponderance of testimony [59] and are invariably questions for the jury.[60] A

Trombly v. Klersy [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 349, 104 N. W. 419.

54. First Nat. Bank v. Taylor [Ala.] 37 So. 695. Where a depositor executed an instrument directing the bank treasurer to add the name of his niece as owner and creditor with the depositor of all the moneys deposited in the bank "with full authority for each or either of us or the survivor of us to draw out the whole or any part of such moneys or interest," held the form of account gave the niece a prima facie title which could not be destroyed in absence of evidence that the charge of account was made for some other purpose than to pass title. Hallenbeck v. Hallenbeck, 103 App. Div. 197, 93 N. Y. S. 73. Making the deed of land to purchaser's daughter and delivery to her at his direction is a sufficient execution of a gift to her of the land. Hulet v. Gates [N. D.] 103 N. W. 628. The presumption of delivery is stronger in case of deeds of voluntary settlement than in deeds of bargain and sale. Baker v. Hall, 214 Ill. 364, 73 N. E. 351; Thompson v. Calhoun, 216 Ill. 161, 74 N. E. 775. A gift of a check covering a deposit in a savings bank accompanied by the pass book constitutes a valid gift. Hill v. Escort [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 367. Delivery with words of gift of pass book which was subsequently kept in a place to which donor and donee both had access held sufficient gift of savings account. O'Brien v. Elmira Sav. Bank, 99 App. Div. 76, 91 N. Y. S. 364.

55. Deposit to a wife's credit, delivery of a bank book to her, and recognition of her ownership of the fund constitutes a gift to her. Wipficr v. Detroit Pattern Works [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 309, 104 N. W. 545.

Deposit in joint nomes of donor and donee, donor retaining pass pook, is not sufficient. Taylor v. Coriell, 66 N. J. Eq. 262, 57 A. 810. Agreement by husband and wife to merge their bank accounts into an account to them jointly or the survivor of them is executory and hence is not a gift inter vivos to the survivor. Augsbury v. Shurtliff, 180 N. Y. S. 138, 72 N. E. 927. A gift of a present joint interest in a money deposit, with absolute title if donee survived donor is valid. Kelly v. Home Sav. Bank, 92 N. Y. S. 578. Gift of deposit in name of donor. Bowron v. De Selding, 94 N. Y. S. 292. A gift inter vivos cannot be made to take effect in the future. Harris Banking Co. v. Miller [Mo.] 89 S. W. 629.

56. There is sufficient delivery to sustain a gift of a savings bank deposit where the depositor delivers the pass book accompanied by an order on the bank for payment of the amount of the deposit on production of the pass book, even though the depositor dies before presentation of the pass book and order. McGuire v. Murphy, 94 N. Y. S. 1005; Hill v. Escort [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 367. A delivery of a check to the donee is sufficient though it was not cashed until after donor's death. Phinney v. State, 36 Wash. 236, 78 P. 927, cites In Gurnan's Appeal [Conn.] 39 A. 482; Polley v. Hicks [Ohio] 56 N. E. 809; Kimball v. Leland, 110 Mass. 325. A son holding a note against his mother secured by a mortgage directed a friend by letter to return the note to his mother and have the mortgage withdrawn, whereupon the son committed suicide. Upon the face of the note the word "paid" appeared above the son's signature. Held that actual delivery of the note and mortgage was not made and consequently no gift resulted. Wittman v. Pickens [Colo.] 81 P. 299. In order to constitute a valid gift of an insurance policy inter vivos from a wife to her husband, the change of beneficiary must be made before death. Littlefield v. Perkins [Me.] 60 A. 707. Where a boarder gave his landlady a note on going away saying if he did not come back it would be hers, the landlady could not retain it against the administrator of the donor. Hafer v. McKelvey, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 202. Where a father brands cattle and records the brand for his infant children who are too young to be capable of accepting actual delivery of the same, it was held to satisfy the Texas statute which makes actual delivery essential to constitute a valid parol gift. Coke & Reardon v. Ikard [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 232, 87 S. W. 869.

57, 58. Bowron v. De Selding, 94 N. Y. S. 292.

59. Strong v. Bridzer, 124 Iowa, 401, 100 N. W. 113[Schmitt v. Schmitt [Minn.] 103 N. W. 214; Cox v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 150; Robinson v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 465; Houston v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 468; Littlejohn v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 463; Petty v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 465; Turner v. Com. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 482; Martinez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 89 S. W. 642; Stanley v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 89 S. W. 643; Garcia v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 89 S. W. 647; State v. Bell [Del.] 62 A. 147; State v. Edmunds [S. D.] 104 N. W. 1115; State v. Gardner [Minn.] 104 N. W. 971. Where gift is proved by admissions of donor, the meaning of the language used is for the jury. Parke v. Nixon [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 413, 104 N. W. 597. To establish a parol gift of land, there must be positive proof. Schmitt v. Schmitt [Minn.] 103 N. W. 214. Advancements made during the lifetime of the decedent will not be presumed to be intended as gifts. In re Robinson, 45 Misc. 551, 92 N. Y. S. 967. A plural wife may accept a gift of her husband's property or may acquire a title by adverse possession, but where such adverse possession is founded upon a parol gift the gift must be established by clear and convincing evidence. Raleigh v. Wells [Utah] 81 P. 908. A hus-gift may be by parol except in case of gifts by a married woman [61] and gifts of real estate. But where the donee of real property enters into possession under a parol gift holding an open, continuous, and adverse possession, and makes valuable improvements, his position will not be disturbed.[62] In the absence of any express agreement to the contrary, the donee takes a gift of real property with the incumbrances free from any obligation on the part of the donor to remove the same.[63]

§ 3. Fraud, undue influence, mistake, and incapacity.[64]—A gift by an insolvent is usually deemed in fraud of his creditors.[65] Children as well as creditors may have a right to complain if property is disposed of to the prejudice of their legal rights by gratuitous disposition,[66] and as between the parties every valid gift must

band deposited money in bank in the name of his wife and also a signature card for the purpose of facilitating business in reference to the account. The signature in question read "Mrs. D. E. Taylor per C. E. Taylor." In an action by the widow to gain control of the fund, held, evidence insufficient to show delivery essential to a valid gift. First Nat. Bank v. Taylor [Ala.] 37 So. 695. Evidence considered on question as to whether a not was left with another for collection or a gift was intended. Wedding v. Wedding [Ky.] 87 S. W. 313. A gift of a bank deposit during the plaintiff's lifetime made by her father may be proved by parol. Hill v. Escort [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 367. Evidence showed rather an attempted testamentary disposition of shares of stock than a valid gift either inter vivos or causa mortis. In re Bayley [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 215. Where plaintiff's father was indebted to him at the time he placed a certain sum of money in the bank to the plaintiff's credit, it will be presumed in the absence of clear convincing evidence that the deposit was intended as a payment on the debt and not as a gift. Watts v. Watts' Ex'x [Va.] 51 S. E. 359.

60. Evidence held to show an advancement, not a gift. In re Reinoehl's Estate [Pa.] 61 A. 943. Delivery to donor's niece held to be a gift and not merely a bailment for safekeeping. Walker v. Hargear, 36 Wash. 672, 79 P. 472. Where defendant's mother by endorsement and delivery of a note executed by the defendant to her made a gift of it to him, the fact that the defendant's father had possession of the note at the time of his death would not of itself defeat the defendant's title acquired by the gift and whether indorsement and delivery by the defendant's mother constituted a valid gift was a question of fact for the jury. Vann v. Edwards, 135 N. C. 661, 47 S. E. 784. In an ejectment suit, where the fact appears that the deed was of the wife's separate property and made in the husband's name, the burden is on the defendant to show that a gift was intended and not a trust. Intention is a question of fact for the jury. Carter v. Becker, 69 Kan. 524, 77 P. 264. Whether a mother in having her account in a savings bank made out in the names of herself and daughter "or the survivor of them" intended to and did give her daughter a joint interest with her with absolute ownership over the entire fund in case of survivorship is a question of fact for the jury. Kelly v. Home Sav. Bank, 92 N. Y. S. 578.

61. A married woman cannot give away her separate estate in land by a parol gift. Tannery v. McMinn [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 640. Improvements made on the land by a donee of a married woman do not estop such married woman or her grantees from setting up the defense that her parol gift of the land was invalid on the ground of her coverture. Id.

62. In an action of ejectment by the heirs at law against a son of the decedent who claimed the land under a parol gift and had for a number of years held open and independent possession and had made improvements to greater value than the cost of the land. Held, under such conditions, that there was a valid gift notwithstanding the statute of frauds and perjuries and even though the gift was between parent and child. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 230. Possession of property by a son under an alleged parol gift must be definite and conclusive and not concurrent with the father, and the fact that the son has made valuable improvements will not be treated as sufficient evidence to support a gift because the relation between the parties prevents the inference which might otherwise arise from the fact. Holsberry v. Harris, 56 W. Va. 320, 49 S. E. 404. Where a son accepted a parol gift of eighty acres of land from his father and entered on the premises, expended money on it, and built a dwelling house, held that, even though such a parol gift was void under the statute of frauds, the entry and occupation after the promise with knowledge of the father was such a part performance as to take it out of the statute and constitute a valid gift. Schmitt v. Schmitt [Minn.] 103 N. W. 214. Evidence necessary to establish a parol gift of land: "If a parol gift is established by a preponderance of the evidence, coupled with acts of possession and improvements, that would be sufficient to establish the right in the appellees." Field v. Field [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 726. After a deed of gift was signed and acknowledged, the grantor made a manual delivery of the deed to the grantee who gave it to her brother to keep for her. The delivery was held to be complete, but it did not free the donee from the obligation of incumbrances. The donor gives only what he has to give. Fischer v. Union Trust Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 852.

63. Cribbs v. Walker [Ark.] 85 S. W. 244.

64. See 3 C. L. 1652.

65. See Fraudulent Conveyances, 3 C. L. 1535.

66. When rights of children are purely future, contingent and possible, and those of be free from undue influence, fraud,[67] mistake,[68] and duress.[69] In Louisiana a statute limits the amount which may be given to one with whom donor lived in immoral relations.[70] A gift reducing the donor to penury has been held void.[71]

GOOD WILL.[72]

Good will is the well-founded expectation of continued public patronage.[73] It is the result of the employment of capital in some established line of business.[74] It augments the value and is an incident to the conduct of the enterprise.[75] It includes confidential information which in the natural course of events would divert business to the establishment to which it attaches.[76] It does not necessarily attach to the place where the business is carried on.[77] Good will as a commercial commodity does not exist except in business of a commercial nature.[78] Personal good will cannot be bought or sold.[79] A trading [80] or a banking corporation may have a good will.[81] A stockholder has no vendible interest in the good will of the corporation.[82] The good will of a business does not pass with a sale of it unless expressly mentioned,[83] or unless it passes as an appurtenant.[84] A sale of the good will of a firm forced upon a surviving partner by the administrator of a deceased partner does not preclude the survivor from competing with the purchaser or soliciting business from old customers.[85] Hence a sale of the good will by a surviving partner who had for some time since the dissolution of the firm carried on the business alone is not a sale of the creditors are actually existing and the property of the parent was a pledge of the creditors at the time of the gift, the rights of the creditors will prevail. Griffith v. Alcocke, 113 La. 514, 37 So. 47. That a gift by a parent disables him to make equally large gifts to his other children gives them no ground to attack the gift. Kennedy v. McCann [Md.] 61 A. 625.

67. See Fraud and Undue Influence, 3 C. L. 1520.

68. See Mistake and Accident, 4 C. L. 674.

69. See Duress, 5 C. L. 1047.

70. A beneficiary of an insurance policy held to be entitled to only one-tenth of the amount of the policy, she having no insurable interest in the life of the deceased. The one-tenth being a gift which the assured was entitled to under the code which limits the donation of movables. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Neal [La.] 38 So. 485. A donation causa mortis in favor of one with whom the testator is living in open concubinage must at the instance of the heirs at law be reduced to one-tenth part of the value of the estate payable from the movables. Succession of Landry [La.] 38 So. 575.

71. Harris v. Wafer, 113 La. 822, 37 So. 768.

72. As to contracts not to engage in competing business, which are frequently incident to a sale of good will, see Contracts, 5 C. L. 664.

73. As defined by Civ. Code, § 992. Dodge Stationery Co. v. Dodge, 145 Cal. 380, 78 P. 879.

74, 75. Lindemann v. Rusk [Wis.] 104 N. W. 119.

76. The servants of the seller will not be permitted to divert, by means of information acquired while so employed, business which in the natural course of events would have gone to the purchaser. International Register Co. v. Recording Fare Register Co., 139 F. 785.

77. The good will of a banking corporation may follow it wherever it sets up offices in the city. Lindemann v. Rusk [Wis.] 104 N. W. 119.

78. Acme Harvester Co. v. Craver, 110 Ill. App. 413.

79. Acme Harvester Co. v. Craver, 110 Ill. App. 413. In business of a professional nature it attaches to the person. Such part of it as does not is so small that equity will not regard it as a matter of sale. Id.

80. Dodge Stationery Co. v. Dodge, 145 Cal. 380, 78 P. 879.

81. Lindemann v. Rusk [Wis.] 104 N. W. 119.

82. Dodge Stationery Co. v. Dodge, 145 Cal. 380, 78 P. 879. A sale by him does not preclude him from the enjoyment of any rights he might have enjoyed regardless of such sale. Id.

83. MacMartin v. Stevens, 37 Wash. 616, 79 P. 1099. The sale of the right to use one's own name in connection with one's business must be expressly stipulated and clearly shown. Blanchard Co. v. Simon [Va.] 51 S. E. 222. Evidence insufficient to show a sale of the good will of a business. Craver v. Acme Harvester Co., 209 Ill. 483, 70 N. E. 1047. A sale of good will and an agreement not to engage in the same line of business in the town so long as the purchaser conducts the business purchased is not violative of the common law or anti-trust statutes. Crump v. Ligon [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 250.

84. Good will is an appurtenant and passes with a sale of a business and everything thereunto appertaining. Acme Harvester Co. v. Craver, 110 Ill. App. 413.

85. Hutchinson v. Nay, 187 Mass. 262, 72 N. E. 974.

partnership good will, but of his own.[86] The good will of a corporation whose charter has expired may be transferred within the period its directors are authorized to continue business to wind up its affairs,[87] and a misappropriation of it by them will be treated as a sale, voidable at the option of those beneficially interested, who may require an accounting.[88]

GOVERNOR, see latest topical index.

GRAND JURY.[89]

Constitution of juries; qualifications of jurors.[90]—Statutes requiring a certain number of persons to constitute a grand jury are mandatory;[91] but if the required number are impaneled and sworn, the fact that one is subsequently excused for incompetency does not invalidate the jury.[92] A statute requiring a jury list to be made from names on the assessment roll does not prescribe a property qualification for jurors but a mode of selecting them.[93] The qualifications of jurors in the Federal courts in each state are the same as the qualifications of jurors in the highest court of such state.[94] An opinion as to guilt which would disqualify a petit juror would disqualify a grand juror.[95] Stockholders in a corporation which defendant is accused of defrauding are not disqualified by interest to act as grand jurors in the consideration of the case.[96] Service as a grand juror at the previous term disqualifies in Georgia.[97]

Jury lists; summoning and impaneling of jury.[98]—Where statutes regulating the selection and organization of grand juries are specific and mandatory, they must be followed.[99] If statutes are merely directory, substantial compliance is sufficient,[1]

86. He is not obliged to account to the representatives of the deceased partner. Hutchinson v. Nay, 187 Mass. 262, 72 N. E. 974.

87. Lindemann v. Rusk [Wis.] 104 N. W. 119.

88. Lindemann v. Rusk [Wis.] 104 N. W. 119. The misappropriation of the good will of a defunct corporation by a director whose duty it is to wind up the corporate affairs is not a tort, but gives rise to an action for an accounting or for injury to the personal estate. Survives the death of the director. Id.

89. The qualifications of grand jurors are ordinarily the same as those of petit jurors, as to which, see Jury, 4 C. L. 358.

90. See 3 C. L. 1562.

91. Twenty-three in Maryland. State v. McNay [Md.] 60 A. 273.

92. State v. McNay [Md.] 60 A. 273.

93. Construing Oregon statutes. United States v. Mitchell, 136 F. 896.

94. Rev. St. U. S. § 800. United States v Mitchell, 136 F. 896.

95. Where on resubmission of an accusation, six jurors were the same as those who returned the first indictment and all said that they would vote to find defendant guilty on the evidence before presented, they were disqualified, though they said they could give a verdict on the evidence alone. State v. Bullard [Iowa] 102 N. W. 1120.

96. Foreman and another member stockholders, but no malice or other motive than sense of public duty was shown. State v. Turner [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1112.

97. Acts 1903, p. 83. McFarlin v. State, 121 Ga. 329, 49 S. E. 267.

98. See 3 C. L. 1563.

99. Where clerk failed to send to judges of election, with number of jurors to be drawn from ballot boxes, the form of oath to be taken by such judges, as required by St. 1893, § 3098 (6); and also made, prior to general election at which jurors were drawn, only a partial apportionment of jurors to different precincts, and directed jurors in certain precincts not to return jury lists, a grand jury drawn from lists so made was illegal. Sharp v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 878. Where statute provided that names first drawn from jury box should constitute grand jury, and latter names petit jury for the term, and two grand jurors were improperly excused and their places filled by names thereafter drawn, the grand jury was illegal. Id.

1. Statutory requirements as to the time of issuing writs of venire facias for grand juries and the summoning of grand jurors are directory and substantial compliance and mere irregularities, no matter how glaring, if untainted by fraud and corruption, do not vitiate the indictment.[2] Where the law requires the names of grand jurors to be placed in a box, and a certified list of the names placed therein made, court minutes showing a grand juror's name to have been drawn from the box are conclusive as to his competency, though his name does not appear on the certified list.[3] A law requiring jurors to be selected by commissioners appointed by the governor is not an unconstitutional infringement of the power of the judiciary.[4] Where the law provides that jury commissioners shall select from the tax lists and pollbooks the names to be submitted to the judges, from which the latter are to select jurors, the commissioners may select the preliminary names either from the tax lists or pollbooks,[5] and it is not improper for them to select names from lists furnished at their request from persons in the different election districts.[6] In Louisiana, the presence of two or more competent witnesses at a meeting of jury commissioners to select grand jurors and draw petit jurors is essential to the validity of the proceeding.[7]

The time at which a jury may be organized depends upon the statute.[8] A jury organized at a time when court could not be legally held is illegal, and an indictment by such a jury is void.[9]

The fact that more jurors are summoned than can be legally impaneled is immaterial and does not affect the legality of the grand jury.[10] The trial court is clothed with reasonable judicial discretion to excuse jurors,[11] and is not deprived of this authority by the enumeration in the statute of certain grounds for relieving jurors.[12] A grand juror who reports after the jury have been sworn and charged may or may not be sworn, in the discretion of the court, if there are enough jurors without him.[13] Temporary absence of a juror does not reduce the number of jurors so as to authorize the court to add new members.[14]

The district courts of Oklahoma possess common-law jurisdiction, and have power and authority to invoke the common-law method of summoning a grand jury, when no other provision is made by statute, or when the statutory provision is inadequate.[15]

Powers and procedure.[16]—It is generally held that a grand jury is not confined to the investigation of an alleged offense to which their attention has been called by the court, or which has been laid before them in an indictment, or an information by the prosecuting attorney of the court, or which is within the personal knowledge therewith is sufficient. State v. Taylor [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 247.

2. Posey v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 324.

3. Washington v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 920.

4. Acts 1904, p. 954, c. 560, is valid. State v. McNay [Md.] 60 A. 273.

5. State v. McNay [Md.] 60 A. 273.

6. Plea in abatement bad for uncertainty which failed to allege that such lists were voluntarily furnished, and that the commissioners did not request the lists or make an examination of those submitted, and that the names of the two hundred persons selected were not on the tax lists or pollbooks. State v. McNay [Md.] 60 A. 273.

7. Act No. 135 of 1898, p. 218, § 4. State v. Feazell [La.] 38 So. 444.

8. Ky. St. 1903, § 2244, providing for summoning of jurors before the opening of a special term, is not mandatory, and a judge may summon a grand or petit jury after the opening of the term. White v. Com. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 753. In Indiana a circuit judge is authorized to impanel a grand jury at an adjourned term. Donahue v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 996.

9. Skinner v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 242.

10. United States v. Mitchell, 136 F. 896.

11. Excusing juror, who said he could not be impartial, proper, though his discharge was not asked for by anyone else. State v. Strait [Minn.] 102 N. W. 913. A juror may be discharged for cause by the court, and the possible or probable effect of the absence of such juror is not open to inquiry. Record showing discharge for cause is conclusive as to sufficiency of cause. United States v. Mitchell, 136 F. 896.

12. State v. Strait [Minn.] 102 N. W. 913.

13. United States v. Mitchell, 136 F. 896.

14. Indictment void where one of thirteen jurors was absent to attend a funeral, and court added three new members to the grand jury. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406.

15. Smith v. Territory, 14 Okl. 518, 79 P. 214.

16. See 3 C. L. 1563.

of some of its members.[17] It is not only the privilege but the duty of the grand jury to present all offenders, where the offense comes to their knowledge during the time of their service, and it is immaterial in what way the information is received.[18] In New York, it is held that a grand jury may, in the exercise of its inquisitorial powers, make a presentment or report, although an indictment cannot or does not follow it;[19] and such a report need not be stricken though a public official be designated as responsible for the matters criticised in the report.[20] A grand jury which has taken up a case but failed to indict has no power to continue it to the next term.[21] But a motion in arrest of judgment by one whose case has been thus continued is properly denied where he does not show that he has been prejudiced thereby.[22] A charge of murder may be referred to a grand jury after the accused has been indicted for manslaughter.[23] An objection that such reference was in the absence of accused is unavailing, when it does not appear that any juror of those that returned the indictment was disqualified, or that accused was prejudiced.[24] A grand jury organized from the list of a certain year may present a valid indictment, though the jury list for the succeeding year has been made and filed.[25]

When a state's attorney, though in attendance upon court, refuses to discharge his duties, the court has implied power to appoint another member of the bar to appear before the grand jury to advise them as to the law and to frame indictments.[26] In Missouri, the attorney general may properly perform such services when directed by the governor to assist a prosecuting attorney.[27]

The presence of a stenographer in the jury room during the deliberations of the jury is improper,[28] unless the employment of such outside stenographer is authorized by law.[29]

While a judge, in charging a grand jury, has authority to direct their investigations in special directions, he has no power to call attention to a particular individual.[30]

A witness before a grand jury may refuse to answer questions which would

17. In re Hale, 139 F. 496. Where a witness refused to answer and a presentment charging contempt was made to the court, and the court, after a hearing, ordered him to answer, the court's action was held equivalent to an express instruction to the jury to investigate the matter referred to in the presentment, and hence original lack of authority to investigate the matter was cured, and could not be availed of by the witness. Investigation under anti-trust act. Id.

18. Proper to present an offense disclosed incidentally in course of investigation of another wholly disconnected offense. Oglesby v. State, 121 Ga. 602, 49 S. E. 706.

19. Code Cr. Proc. § 260. Jones v. People, 101 App. Div. 55, 92 N. Y. S. 275.

20. Jones v. People, 101 App. Div. 55, 92 N. Y. S. 275.

21, 22. State v. Brown [Iowa] 102 N. W. 799.

23, 24. Nash v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 497.

25. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 245. State v. Second Judicial Dist. Ct. [Mont.] 78 P. 769.

26. Taylor v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 380. Hence a plea in abatement alleging that one not the state attorney performed such duties, though the state attorney was in attendance on court, but not alleging that the state attorney was ready and willing or offered to perform such duties, is subject to demurrer. Id.

27. It is the right and duty of the attorney general of the state, when directed by the governor to assist a prosecuting attorney under Rev. St. 1899, § 4940, to appear before the grand jury when required by them to examine witnesses and give advice, in accordance with § 2496. State v. Sullivan, 110 Mo. App. 75, 84 S. W. 105.

28. In Missouri, a grand juror acts as clerk; hence it is improper to allow a stenographer not a member of the grand jury to be present during their deliberations. State v. Sullivan, 110 Mo. App. 75, 84 S. W. 105.

29. The presence of a stenographer in the grand jury room during the deliberations does not invalidate its indictments, since the employment of such stenographer is authorized by Acts 1900-01, p. 308. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329. In Washington, county commissioners have no power to appoint one not a member of the grand jury as a stenographer for that body, nor to employ the clerk appointed by that body from its own number as stenographer. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. §§ 342, 6810. Mather v. King County [Wash.] 82 P. 121.

30. Error for judge, charging relative to violation of liquor laws, to ask jury if they had never heard of a certain named person. Fuller v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 749.

tend to incriminate him, or may waive his privilege and testify; in the latter case, he is liable to prosecution for perjury if he testifies falsely.[31]

Effect of illegality in constitution or proceedings of juries.[32]—Absolute incompetency of any of the jurors who found an indictment renders it null and void,[33] unless it appears that a sufficient number concurred in presenting the indictment without the incompetent juror.[34] The illiteracy of one juror does not, in Maryland, invalidate an indictment.[35] Mere irregularities of procedure, not shown to have resulted in prejudice to the accused, are not sufficient ground for setting aside an indictment.[36] In the absence of contrary proof, the proceedings will be presumed to have been regular.[37]

Objections and waiver thereof; estoppel to urge.[38]—As to the manner of raising objections to the illegality of a jury or the proceedings, the practice varies. Incompetency or disqualification of jurors is usually raised by challenge [39] or plea in abatement.[40] A plea [41] or challenge [42] should be based upon a statutory ground. A plea in abatement setting up several claims, any one of which, if proved, would show that the grand jury was unlawfully constituted, is bad for duplicity.[43] A plea relating to irregularity in the constitution or organization of the grand jury must

31. State v. Faulkner, 185 Mo. 673, 84 S. W. 967.

32. See 3 C. L. 1562, 1563.

33. State v. Mercer [Md.] 61 A. 220.

34. That a juror was deaf and could not hear proceedings does not invalidate indictment under Code 1896, § 5039, requiring concurrence of twelve jurors, where it appeared there were seventeen jurors in all present. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329.

35. Acts 1904, p. 954, c. 560, § 1, requiring jurors in Prince George's county to be able to read and write English, is not mandatory, and disqualification of a single juror is not fatal. State v. McNay [Md.] 60 A. 273.

36. Presence of unauthorized stenographer held not to invalidate indictment, no prejudice to defendant being shown. State v. Sullivan, 110 Mo. App. 75, 84 S. W. 105. Absence of a juror is no objection available to a defendant if the absence was not during consideration of defendant's case. Id. Where the court, having excused certain jurors, selected certain bystanders to take their places, and increased the original number of jurors by two, such procedure was held not such error as to warrant reversal of conviction, no prejudice being shown, and the statutes regulating formation of grand juries being directory only. Posey v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 324. Where only one of the names of two eligible jurors was drawn from the box, and while such juror was absent from the county, the other, having a similar name, was summoned, though his name had not been drawn, the proceedings of the jury were not invalidated, there being no fraud or false personation by the juror so summoned. Taylor v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 380. Mere general objections that a Federal district attorney was prejudiced and bitter against defendant, worked up feeling against him, and was present in the jury room during the deliberations preceding the indictment, are insufficient to authorize setting the Indictment aside. United States v. Mitchell, 136 F. 896.

37. Where record shows a grand jury organized in the oyer presented indictments at the quarter sessions, it will be assumed in the absence of contrary proof that there was no justice of the supreme court then present at the court house. State v. Turner [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1112.

38. See 3 C. L. 1562.

39. Under Acts 1903, p. 83, a grand juror who has served at one term is ineligible to serve at the next succeeding term; such disqualification may be taken advantage of by challenge made or plea in abatement filed, in due time. McFarlin v. State, 121 Ga. 329, 49 S. E. 267.

40. Incompetency of a juror may be raised by a plea in abatement. State v. Mercer [Md.] 61 A. 220.

41. Under art. 36 of the Declaration of Rights, providing that religious belief shall not disqualify as a witness or juror a person otherwise competent, "provided he believes in the existence of God" and accountability to him, a plea to an indictment alleging that a juror was an atheist and infidel and did not believe in the existence of God "nor in the truths of the Holy Scriptures" is bad, presenting a false issue; belief in the Scriptures not being required. State v. Mercer [Md.] 61 A. 220.

42. The right of peremptory challenge either to the array or poll does not exist at common law, and hence such challenge obtains only for causes specified by statute, to be exercised by the persons therein named. Exclusion of two jurors held improper because at suggestion of prosecutor for territory, and not on statutory grounds. Sharp v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 878. Rev. Code Cr. Proc. § 166, does not include ground that names properly placed on list were stricken by county commissioners and others substituted. State v. Shanley [S. D.] 104 N. W. 522.

43. Plea alleging that grand jury did not consist of twenty-three lawful jurors; that the two hundred persons from whom they were drawn were not legally selected; and that the law requiring jurors to be drawn by commissioners appointed by the governor is unconstitutional, is bad for duplicity. State v. McNay [Md.] 60 A. 272.

show in what the irregularity consists.[44] Objections which may be raised by challenge are usually held unavailable after the jury has been impaneled,[45] or an indictment found,[46] or a verdict by a trial jury rendered,[47] though a plea in abatement may be a proper mode of objecting if a sufficient reason for failure to act at the proper time is shown.[48] In some states, when defendant has not been held to answer before the finding of the indictment, the indictment will be set aside on motion on any ground which would have been a ground of challenge, to the panel, or to any juror.[49] Objections not going to the qualifications of jurors, but merely to the regularity of proceedings by which the grand jury is organized, cannot be raised by pleas in abatement.[50] Federal courts will be guided by state laws and the common law in ruling upon objections to the validity of a jury.[51]

A jury commissioner who by his own misconduct in office has rendered the making of a jury list irregular cannot assert the illegality thereof when called to answer a charge made against him by a grand jury selected from such list.[52]

Disclosure of secrets.[53]—Under statutes protecting grand jury deliberations from publicity, and prohibiting disclosure of the votes of jurors on indictments, a grand juror cannot testify as to the number of votes for an indictment,[54] nor whether an indictment was based on any evidence.[55] But the record of the proceedings before

44. Plea charging generally that no writ of venire facias was issued and served within the time and in the manner prescribed by the statutes (naming them) and that the body of men presenting the indictment did not constitute a legal grand jury, held insufficient. State v. Taylor [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 247.

45. Objections arising from mere matters of procedure must be presented before impanelment. Posey v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 324. A denial of a challenge to a grand jury panel will be sustained where it does not affirmatively appear that the challenge was made before the grand jury was sworn. Rev. Code Cr. Proc. § 173. State v. Shanley [S. D.] 104 N. W. 522. In Mississippi, a challenge for disqualification, whether from bias or personal incompetency, must be made before the jury is impaneled (Cain v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 227); the objection cannot be raised by motion to quash the indictment, even though defendant did not know that his case was to be investigated (Id.).

46. An accused, arrested on preliminary information and held to answer, waives objections to the selection and drawing of the grand jury, and cannot urge them after the return of the indictment. Under Iowa statutes. State v. McPherson, 126 Iowa, 77, 101 N. W. 738. Plea to indictment on ground that a grand juror had not resided in county six months properly overruled when it did not appear that accused did not have notice and opportunity to raise the question by challenge before the finding of the indictment. Edwards v. State, 121 Ga. 590, 49 S. E. 674. The objection that a grand juror was an alien cannot be raised by an objection to the indictment in a Federal court sitting in Oregon. Construing B. & C. Comp. §§ 1269, 1268, 965. United States v. Mitchell, 136 F. 896. As against an indictment purporting to have been returned by a legal grand jury, a motion to quash does not present any question concerning the qualifications of the grand jurors, or as to their having been regularly charged and sworn. Donahue v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 996.

47. Though a defendant is given no opportunity to challenge a grand jury, if he does not appear and request it, and makes no objection to the proceedings until after his conviction by the trial jury, he cannot raise the objection by a motion in arrest of judgment. State v. Brown [Iowa] 102 N. W. 799. An objection that certain members of the grand jury which presented an indictment were disqualified because of service at the previous term is ground for challenge propter defectum and must be made at the trial; it is too late when made after verdict. Phillips v. Brown [Ga.] 50 S. E. 361. Thus, objection is no ground for release by habeas corpus of the one convicted and sentenced. Id.

48. Where a plea avers that defendant had no knowledge or reason to believe an indictment would be presented, and excused nonaction, it was held to be sufficient and to have been filed in time. McFarlin v. State, 121 Ga. 329, 49 S. E. 267.

49. State v. Lamphere [S. D.] 104 N. W. 1038. Under Rev. Code Cr. Prac. S. D. §§ 263, 166, objections that the grand jury was illegally drawn, organized and impaneled; that there were not in the jury box the names of two hundred qualified jurors when the jury was drawn; and that, when six men failed to appear, the court gave the sheriff six names, and the persons so named served,—were not available on motion to set aside the indictment. Id.

50, 51. United States v. Mitchell, 136 F. 896.

52. The doctrine of estoppel is applicable to criminal proceedings. State v. Second Judicial Dist. Ct. [Mont.] 78 P. 769.

Note: See Criminal Law, 5 C. L. 884, for an extensive note on the application of the doctrine of estoppel to criminal cases.

53. See 3 C. L. 1563.

54. Nash v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 497.

55. State v. Faulkner, 185 Mo. 673, 84 S. W. 967.

a grand jury, and testimony of grand jurors and prosecuting attorney, are admissible as competent original evidence upon a trial in court to show immunity of accused from prosecution by virtue of his testimony before the grand jury.[56] A statute authorizing the employment of a stenographic reporter to take a record of grand jury proceedings, and requiring such reporter to take an oath to maintain secrecy regarding the grand jury proceedings, does not change the rule as to secrecy concerning such proceedings, nor authorize inspection of the record by any member of the public; nor does a person accused have a right to inspect such record in order to prepare for trial.[57] The record is not itself evidence of the facts reported, but is competent only as a memorandum to refresh the memory of witnesses who knew of the facts recorded at the time.[58]

GROUND RENTS, see latest topical index.

GUARANTY.

§ 1. What constitutes guaranty.[59]—A guaranty may be defined as a collateral promise to answer for the debt of another.[60] The promise must be collateral and the promisor must be liable only on default of the principal debtor, for otherwise if both principal and guarantor are liable, it ceases to be a contract of true guaranty and is one of suretyship.[61] There must be a subsisting and contemplated debt,[62] otherwise it is a contract of indemnity [63] or a novation,[64] or a primary debt on part

56. Held admissible in behalf of a defendant to show immunity from prosecution on account of his having testified before the grand jury, such exemption being claimed under Rev. St. 1898, § 4078, as amended by Laws 1901, p. 106, c. 85. Construing also Rev. St. 1898, §§ 2553-2555. Murphy v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1087. Minutes of proceedings before grand jury admissible. Havenor v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 116.

57. Construing Laws 1903, p. 136, c. 90. Havenor v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 116.

58. Havenor v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 116.

59. See 3 C. L. 1564.

60. Contract construed to be collateral rather than original. Halsted v. Pelletreau, 101 App. Div. 125, 91 N. Y. S. 927. The parties may vary the relation of guaranty by the tenure of a special contract. Jackson v. Swart [N. Y.] 75 N. E. 226. A contract whereby if A would invest less than $500 in a certain corporation he would have the return of the money invested and twenty per cent. profit in a contract of guaranty within the statute of frauds. Hunt v. Taylor [Ky.] 87 S. W. 290. A contract of guaranty cannot be a renewal of a contract wherein the parties in the second instance were primarily liable. Lowry Nat. Bank v. Fickett [Ga.] 50 S. E. 396.

61. Sometimes termed an absolute guaranty. A guaranty of payment and collection by the assignor of a mortgage is an original promise. Loos v. McCormack, 46 Misc. 144, 93 N. Y. S. 1088. Contract for sale of cattle and liquidated damages followed by clause reading "We the undersigned guarantee the fulfillment of the above contract." Held since the obligation rests on no independent consideration it is a contract of suretyship rather than guaranty. Fields v. Willis [Ga.] 51 S. E. 280. An agreement to guaranty the payment of any balance due on a contract is an absolute guaranty. Ruberg v. Brown [S. C.] 51 S. E. 96. "If P fails to make payments aforesaid when due the undersign agree to make payment * * * as though primarily liable" is a contract of sureyship. American Radiator Co. v. Hoffman, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 177. Where the promise of the guarantor is that "I will see you paid" it is a contract of guaranty and not absolute. Wray v. Cox [Miss.] 38 So. 344.

62. Agreement, if any, to be responsible for debts of subcontractors not an original promise, where persons furnishing materials, etc., treated subcontracor as their debtor until after he absconded. Miller v. State [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 260. Where a married woman promised to pay for materials used in the improvement of her own property it is a guaranty if the creditor still gave the credit to her husband. Reelman v. Grosfend [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 335, 104 N. W. 331.

63. Wattenbarger v. Hodges [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1013.

64. Palmetto Mfg. Co. v. Parker [Ga.] 51 S. E. 714. To make a novation there must be mutual assent between the debtor, the credof the alleged guarantor often termed "an original promise."[65] The promise must be to the creditor and not to the debtor,[66] and the debt must be of another,[67] and not founded on a consideration which subserved some purpose of the guarantor.[68] And where the guarantor obtains some substantial consideration or benefit for his promise on a quasi contractual theory, he is held to be absolutely liable and his promise original.[69]

§ 2. Form and requisites of the contract.[70]—In cases of guaranty, there must be a contract between the guarantor and the creditor[71] which must be accepted,[72] and notice thereof must be communicated to the promisee,[73] except when the giving of such notice is waived[74] or where the guaranty is absolute.[75] The consideration itor, and the new promisor. Netterstrom v. Gallistel, 110 Ill. App. 352.

65. Where credit is given to the alleged guarantor and not to the debtor it is evidence that the contract is regarded as original. Cauthron Lumber Co. v. Hall [Ark.] 88 S. W. 594; Long v. McDaniel [Ark.] 88 S. W. 964.

66. Peters v. George [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1117.

67. A promise to pay one's own debt though it incidentally involves the payment of that of another is not a contract of guaranty. Runkle v. Kettering [Iowa] 102 N. W. 142; Potter v. Greenberg, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 502. Where a person uses a corporation to cloak his own transaction, a guaranty of a debt of the corporation is in fact no more than a promise to pay his own debt. Donovan v. Purtell [Ill.] 75 N. E. 334.

68. McCord v. Edward Hines Lumber Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 334. A warranty of payment of a chose in action by the assignor is not a guaranty. Peterson v. Creason [Or.] 81 P. 574; Tyler v. St. Louis S. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 173, 87 S. W. 238; Swenson v. Stoltz, 36 Wash. 318, 78 P. 999. Where real estate agent to insure a sale and thereby earn commissions, promises the seller of real estate that he will see all the personal property thereon sold and accounted for is not a contract of guaranty. Dryden v. Barnes [Md.] 61 A. 342. Where the surety of a building contract who is a participant in the profits therefrom promises a payment to a subcontractor if he will continue with the work it is not a contract of guaranty. Pizzi v. Nardello, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 535. Where a landlord and his tenant have a claim against the United States which they prosecute in the name of the landlord, his parol promise to pay a portion of the amount due if collected is not a promise to answer for the debt of another. Bomgardner v. Swartz, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 263.

69. Where a creditor promises to withhold money in his hand to pay the debt of his debtor to another. Adlam v. McKnight [Mont.] 80 P. 613. Where an order by a contractor on the owner in favor of a subcontractor was accepted by the owner on condition that the contractor complete the work, and the latter subsequently abandoned the contract and was released therefrom, a subsequent oral agreement by the owner to pay the subcontractor the full value of his work if he will complete the same is an original undertaking and not within the statute of frauds. Reisler v. Sibermintz, 99 App. Div. 131, 90 N. Y. S. 967. Where the material man is given an order on the owner who promises to pay the same, it amounts to a novation and is not a contract of guaranty. Potter v. Greenberg, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 505.

A promise by the owner to retain a sufficient amount from the contract price to pay a third person for materials furnished the contractor and used in the work, and to pay it to him when the work is completed, is an original promise not within the statute of frauds. Bates v. Birmingham Paint & Glass Co. [Ala.] 38 So. 845. Where a city pays a material man for materials furnished and to be furnished out of money to be paid its contractor, it is not a contract of suretyship or guaranty made ultra vlves for a city within the meaning of the state constitution. Albany v. Cameron & Barkley Co., 121 Ga. 794, 49 S. E. 798. Assumption of liability of a partner by remaining members of a partner by remaining members of a firm. In re Dresser [C. C. A.] 135 F. 495. A promise to pay an attorney for legal papers drawn for his use at the request of another. Paul v. Wilbur [Mass.] 75 N. E. 63. A promise by an owner to see the debt of a material man who has furnished materials paid is a contract of guaranty and not an original promise. Nichols v. Dixon [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1051; Wilson v. Dietrich [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 251.

70. See 3 C. L. 1564.

71. A letter of recommendation considered and construed not to be a guaranty. Hughes & Co. v. Peper Tobacco Warehouuse Co. [N. C.] 51 S. E. 793.

72. Callender, McAuslan & Troup Co. v. Flint, 187 Mass. 104, 72 N. E. 345.

73. Where guarantor knows the promise has been accepted, notice thereof is unnecessary. Frost v. Standard Metal Co., 215 Ill. 240, 74 N. E. 139. Complaint must either allege notice of acceptance or waiver thereof. Goff v. Janeway, 26 Ky. L. R. 1266, 83 S. W. 1038.

74. Where a guarantor has knowledge of the acceptance by the creditor and that goods are delivered on the faith thereof and encourages the delivery of such goods, he is estopped to deny that he has received notice of such acceptance. American Radiator Co. v. Hoffman, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 177.

75. An absolute guaranty becomes affective as soon as acted upon and notice to guarantor is unnecessary. Frost v. Standard Metal Co., 215 Ill. 240, 74 N. E. 139. An absolute guaranty requires neither notice of acceptance or default. Ruberg v. Brown 51 S. E. 96.

of the original contract is sufficient to bind the guarantor where the guaranty is prior or contemporaneous therewith,[76] but a new consideration is necessary when it is subsequent thereto.[77]

By the statute of frauds, no action may be maintained on a contract of guaranty unless it be in writing.[78]

§ 3. Operation and effect of guaranty.[79]—A contract of guaranty is assignable only after breach,[80] except where the contract is general.[81]

Interpretation in general.[82]—A contract of guaranty will be strictly construed.[83]

Fixing default and liability of the guarantor.[84]—There must be a demand of payment on default of the principal debtor,[85] unless the liability is primary,[86] and in cases of a guaranty of collectibility, judgment and execution must first be had against the principal before liability of the guarantor.[87] Where he is given an op-

76. Delivery of goods held for payment in sufficient consideration for support of a contract of guaranty. Callender, McAuslan & Troup Co. v. Flint, 187 Mass. 104, 72 N. E. 345. Where a guarantor is on the same paper and referred expressly to the original contract, it is regarded as part thereof and for the same consideration, though in fact signed after the principal contract. Klosterman v. United States Elec. Light & Power Co. [Md.] 60 A. 251. The contract and guaranty are substantially contemporaneous if executed only a day apart. De Reszke v. Duss, 99 App. Div. 353, 91 N. Y. S. 221.

77. Caesar v. Kulla, 92 N. Y. S. 798. A subsequent contract of guaranty is void in the absence of consideration moving to the promisor. Lagomarsino v. Giannini, 146 Cal. 545, 80 P. 698. Where one executes a guaranty supposing that it will subserve some interest of her own, it is a sufficient consideration, and whether it in fact will do so, is immaterial. Peck v. Peck [Wis.] 103 N. W. 5. In the absence of knowledge that a lien is filed, the promise of payment by the owner to a subcontractor of the debt of the contractor is without consideration. Snyder v. Monroe Eckstein Brewing Co., 95 N. R. S. 144. A contract of guaranty for payment of water rents in which no new consideration is given can only include rents accruing in the future. Moss v. Blyth, 92 N. Y. S. 294. Forebearance where no real claim exists. Stromberg v. Loiacono, 45 Misc. 651, 91 N. Y. S. 46. The subcontractor not being bound by the owner's acceptance of the order to complete the work at all hazards, his agreement to do so is a sufficient consideration for the owner's promise. Reisler v. Sibermintz, 99 App. Div. 131, 90 N. Y. S. 967. The interest of a real estate broker having a building for sale is ample consideration for his promise to pay for materials. Halsted v. Pelletreau, 101 App. Div. 125, 91 N. Y. S. 927. The promise of the owner to a subcontractor to pay the contractor's debt is without consideration. Smith v. Burditt, 95 N. Y. S. 188. A stipulation, in an attachment suit, between a mortgagee who had seized property and an attaching creditor of the mortgagor, whereby it was agreed that the property was to be delivered to the mortgagee, to be sold by him or the attaching creditor, the mortgage debt satisfied, and the surplus paid to the attaching creditor, is not a promise to answer for the debt of another, so as to be void because without consideration. Scherzer v. Muirhead, 84 N. Y. S. 159.

78. See 3 C. L. 1528; 5 C. L. 1552.

79. See 3 C. L. 1566.

80. Levy v. Cohen, 45 Misc. 95, 91 N. Y. S. 594.

81. Where the principal contract of A., to build a synagogue is assignable and general, the contract of guaranty thereof is general, and hence assignable. Levy v. Cohen, 92 N. Y. S. 1074. Under the statute providing in case of merger of banking corporations the assignee shall have all rights of the previously existing ones, a right exists to enforce a guaranty contingent at the time of the merger. Bank of Long Island v. Young, 101 App. Div. 88, 91 N. Y. S. 849.

82. See 3 C. L. 1566. See, also, 2 C. L. 146.

83. Jewett v. Griesheimer, 100 App. Div. 210, 91 N. Y. S. 654. While a contract of guaranty is to be narrowly construed and cannot be enlarged, the spirit as well as the letter is to be considered. American Bonding Co. v. Ottumwa [C. C. A.] 137 F. 572. Where the contract is special, it will be interpreted according to the terms thereof, rather than by the general rules of contracts of guaranty. Jackson v. Swart [N. Y.] 75 N. E. 226.

84. See 3 C. L. 1566.

85. There can be no recovery from the guarantor of a void school warrant till it is presented to the town treasurer and payment refused. Rochford v. School Dist. No. 6 [S. D.] 103 N. W. 763. Where a contract for paving of streets provides that notice of default shall be given by the committee on streets, a notice given pursuant to a resolution of the common council by the city solicitor is sufficient where such notice has heretofore been accepted by the guarantor as sufficient. American Bonding Co. v. Ottumwa [C. C. A.] 137 F. 572.

86. McCambridge & Co. v. O'Callaghan, 27 Pa. Super Ct. 199; Yeazel v. Harber Bros. Co., 106 Ill. App. 408. A guaranty of payment and collection by the assignor of a mortgage debt being an original promise on part of the latter, the assignee may proceed against either. Loos v. McCormack, 46 Misc. 144, 93 N. Y. S. 1088.

87. Blanding v. Cohen, 101 App. Div. 442, 92 N. Y. S. 93. Where there is an unrestricted guaranty, the creditor is not obliged to proceed against security given on the principal debt before suing the guarantor. Knickerbocker Trust Co. v. Coyle. 139 F.

portunity to defend, the guarantor is conclusively bound by a judgment against the principal debtor,[88] and is also liable for the costs of the suit.[89] A guaranty may be construed as "continuing" and not be limited to one act or default.[90]

Defenses and discharge of guaranty.[91]—A guarantor may offer as a defense to suit upon the collateral contract any personal or real defense he may have thereto,[92] and he may set up as a defense, that the principal contract has been altered since his guaranty thereof,[93] or that his remedy against the principal debtor has been impaired,[94] as by the extension of time [95] or release of the principal debtor,[96] though not where the promise of the alleged guarantor was that a modification of the original contract could be obtained.[97] Taking of notes from the debtor does not dis-

792. Where one is guarantor of payment of debt he cannot set up as a defense that foreclosure has not been had on the secured portion. Miller v. McLaughlin [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 501, 104 N. W. 777. A contract whereby it is recited that A. conveyed to B. certain property for $15,000 and guarantees that B. will realize thereon that amount with interest within two years after a bona fide sale for less, renders the guarantor liable for the difference. McCague Bros. v. Irey [Neb.] 103 N. W. 281.

88. Blanding v. Cohen, 101 App. Div. 442, 92 N. Y. S. 93; Rowell v. Smith, 123 Wis. 510, 102 N. W. 1.

89. Where one guarantees the collectability of amounts that may become due, he is also liable for costs in the suit to collect from principal. Blanding v. Cohen, 101 App. Div. 442, 92 N. Y. S. 93.

90. A. writes B. if he would guaranty payment of any goods C. might purchase. B. refused and later he offered in consideration of release of an order of goods to guaranty payment on goods C. might buy up to $300. Held, not a continuing guaranty. Callender, McAuslin & Troup Co. v. Flint, 187 Mass. 104, 72 N. E. 345. A contract stating "I hereby guarantee the purchase account of M. for $1,500," is a guaranty not limited as to time, but merely as to amount. Frost v. Standard Metal Co., 116 Ill. App. 642. Where a guarantor guarantees the amount of a firm to a certain amount, the guaranty is a continuing one. Frost v. Standard Metal Co., 215 Ill. 240, 74 N. E. 139.

91. See 3 C. L. 1566.

92. A partnership may set up lack of authority of the member making a contract of guaranty. Powell Hardware Co. v. Mayer, 110 Mo. App. 14, 83 S. W. 1008. In the absence of the showing of a usage, a factor is not bound by a guarantee of his agent. Mahler-Wolf-Produce Co. v. Meyers, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 264. Alteration of the collateral written contract of guaranty. The insertion of the words "for value received" subsequent to execution is an alteration which will discharge the guarantor unless ratified. Peck v. Peck [Wis.] 103 N. W. 5. Fraudulent insertion of a clause in contract of guaranty before signature. Machin v. Prudential Trust Co., 210 Pa. 253, 59 A. 1073. Where the execution of a guaranty is alleged to have been procured by fraud, the evidence must be clear and conclusive to render it a valid defense. First Nat. Bank v. Buetow, 123 Wis. 285, 101 N. W. 927.

93. Where a contract of guaranty is changed without consent of the guarantor, the latter is discharged irrespective of the fact that the alteration was made after the liability became absolute, for the alteration makes a new contract other than that signed by the guarantors. Tolman Co. v. Hunter [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 636. Where a party guarantees the payment of a contract for the purchase of one lot of land, he cannot be held liable for default of any part of a contract for the purchase of that piece and another for a lump sum. White Castle Lumber & Shingle Co. v. Le Blanc [La.] 38 So. 407. A guarantor of a lease for five years cannot be held for default in payment of a lease for year to year. Jewett v. Griesheimer, 190 App. Div. 210, 91 N. Y. S. 654. The question of whether a material alteration has been made is a question for the jury. Providence Mach. Co. v. Browning, 70 S. C. 148, 49 S. E. 325. Where a paving contract called for a two-inch layer of asphalt and repairs were made with a one-twelfth inch bedding and one inch binder, it is not such an alteration as to discharge the guaranty. American Bonding Co. v. Ottumwa [C. C. A.] 137 F. 572.

94. A collateral agreement between the creditor and debtor whereby the former receives additional security will not discharge the guarantor. Providence Mach. Co. v. Browning, 70 S. C. 148, 49 S. E. 325.

95. American Iron & Steel Mfg. Co. v. Beall [Md.] 61 A. 629. To make an agreement between the creditor and debtor extending the time of payment of note on a discharge of the guarantor, there must be a valid consideration therefor; indulgence is insufficient. Providence Mach. Co. v. Browning, 70 S. C. 148, 49 S. E. 325.

96. Release of one surety discharges the other pro tanto. Wanamaker v. Powers, 102 App. Div. 485, 93 N. Y. S. 19. Where a surety and guarantor are each joint judgment debtor with the principal, the creditor under the code can release either of them. Symmes v. Cauble [S. C.] 51 S. E. 862.

97. On contract to pay the defendant for advertising by delivery of two automobiles and the balance in machinery, the defendant believing the advertiser would pay the entire contract in machinery, assigned same to the plaintiff with a written guaranty of payment in cash of all not paid in machinery. The advertiser insisted on performance of the contract as to the delivery of the automobiles. Held, that the contract between the plaintiff and the defendant was to cover this contingency and irrespective of the knowledge of the plaintiff of the rights of the advertiser, he was entitled to recover charge the guarantor when such action was contemplated by the contract of guaranty,[98] or where the notes are mere evidence of the indebtedness.[99] In the absence of some stipulation, he cannot object that the creditor did not apply payments made by the debtor to his debt.[1] He may also offer as a defense that the creditor neglected to inform him of present or prior defaults of the principal debtor,[2] and that due diligence was not used on the part of the creditors in pursuing the debtor,[3] or in realizing on the security collateral to the debt,[4] and may set up also any real or equitable defense there may be to the primary contract.[5] When the guaranty is contingent, the promisor is liable only on the happening of the contingency and on default of principal debtor,[6] as where additional guarantors are to be obtained.[7]

§ 4. Rights and remedies between guarantor and principal debtor.[8]—When a guarantor pays the principal debt he becomes subrogated thereto.[9]

§ 5. Actions on guaranty.[10]—In many states in pleading a contract of guaranty it is necessary to allege in the complaint that it is in writing [11] and to set up the giving of notice of acceptance or waiver thereof.[12] The contract is governed by the law of the place of acceptance,[13] and in one action suit may be brought on the guaranty and for foreclosure on security given by the guarantor.[14]

the balance money. Bassford v. Fitzgerald, 138 F. 958.

98. Providence Mach. Co. v. Browning [S. C.] 52 S. E. 117.

99. Where as part of the consideration of a sale of property defendant was induced to assume the liability of the seller to plaintiff under an indemnity contract, held defendant was not discharged from liability by reason of plaintiff's act in accepting notes of the seller, who was insolvent, as mere evidence of his indebtedness, nor by plaintiff's failure to pursue his remedy against the seller. Wass v. Anderson [Conn.] 61 A. 433.

1. In the absence of any stipulation in the contract of guaranty, the debtor may apply payments made by the debtor to the guaranteed or unguaranteed portion of the debt. Wanamaker v. Powers, 102 App. Div. 485, 93 N. Y. S. 19. Where a guarantor gives a check to the husband and agent of the debtor who delivers it to the creditor who has actual knowledge of the transaction, the latter is obliged to apply such payment to the guaranteed contract. Bayer v. Lugar, 94 N. Y. S. 802.

2. That a debtor was already indebted to his creditor is no defense to an action on a contract of guaranty in the absence of inquiry on part of the guarantor. Wanamaker v. Powers, 102 App. Div. 485, 93 N. Y. S. 19.

3. A guarantor is not released by mere delay in performance if the contract rights are unchanged. American Radiator Co. v. Hoffman, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 177.

4. A guaranty for payment of a deficiency due to sale of stock collateral to a loan is not binding if sale of stock is delayed two years after default, even where a request by guarantor had been made and refused. Chelsea Sav. Bank v. Slater [Conn.] 61 A. 65. Where land is conveyed to a trustee to secure a debt of the guarantor's husband, and later their joint property is released, the land is released. First Nat. Bank v. Waddell [Ark.] 85 S. W. 417.

5. The question of fraudulent misrepresentations by the creditor to the principal debtor is a good defense to an action on a guaranty and one for a jury. Foote v. Leary, 93 N. Y. S. 169. The guaranty of a note given for an illegal purpose is void where the note is void. Tandy v. Elmore-Cooper Live Stock Commission Co. [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 614.

6. Where guaranty is of payment on failure of principal debtor to pay, suit is not a condition precedent to liability of the guarantor. Levy v. Cohen, 92 N. Y. S. 1074.

7. Where a guaranty is contingent upon securing co-guarantors, it cannot become fixed till the condition is complied with. Iowa Nat. Bank v. Cooper [Iowa] 101 N. W. 459. The defendant guaranteed a contract of employment made between his son and the plaintiff wherein it was provided that the employee should obtain a fidelity bond in some surety company approved by the plaintiff. This was not done. Held, to release the guarantor. Swift & Co. v. Jones, 135 F. 437.

8. See 3 C. L. 1567.

9. A guaranty of payment of a note with a stipulation of a right to take up the same on payment of the principal at the option of the guarantor gives no right over the note itself. Cunningham v. McDonald [Tex.] 83 S. W. 372.

10. See 3 C. L. 1567.

11. Hunt v. Taylor [Ky.] 87 S. W. 290. See Frauds, Statute of, 5 C. L. 1550. (Pleading and Proof).

12. Goff v. Janeway, 26 Ky. L. R. 1266, 83 S. W. 1038.

13. Since a contract of guaranty takes effect only on acceptance it will be construed according to the law of place of acceptance. Callender, McAuslan & Troup Co. v. Flint, 187 Mass. 104, 72 N. E. 345.

14. Where a contract of guaranty is secured by the assignment of a mortgage, action can be brought to foreclose the mortgage and recover on the contract. Ruberg v. Brown [S. C.] 51 S. E. 96.

GUARDIANS AD LITEM AND NEXT FRIENDS.

§ 1. Necessity or occasion for a guardian ad litem or next friend[15] exists whenever an infant is a party litigant;[16] but where a decree is clearly in favor of an infant, failure to appoint a guardian ad litem is not reversible error,[17] otherwise, however, if the decree is not clearly favorable to him.[18] No guardian ad litem need be appointed for an infant who has no interests to protect in an action.[19]

§ 2. Qualification and appointment.[20]—It is the duty of one suing an infant to have a guardian ad litem appointed for him.[21] A person who will properly safeguard the rights of the infant should be appointed.[22] The wishes of the infant, if he has reached the age of discretion, should be considered.[23] There is no legal objection to the mother of an infant on acccount of her sex.[24] The appointment should be by formal order.[25] The absence of such order, however, is not fatal where the fact of appointment appears by recitals or reference in the record.[26] In the appointment of a guardian ad litem, the procedure prescribed by law must be complied with.[27] An application made by a person other than the infant must show notice to his general or testamentary guardian or the person with whom the infant resides,[28] and he is not presumed to be living with his parent who makes the application from the mere fact that he is of tender age.[29] An irregularity in the proceedings does not render the appointment void,[30] nor is it ground for setting aside a decree

15. See 3 C. L. 1567.

Note: As to the right of insane persons to institute proceedings by next friend, see note to Isle v. Cranby [Ill.] 64 L. R. A. 513. A next friend is one who without being appointed guardian acts for the benefit of one not sui juris. Mackey v. Peters, 22 App. D. C. 341.

16. As an infant can only appear and defend by guardian ad litem, proceedings against him are usually fatally defective unless the record shows that a guardian ad litem was assigned him. Langston v. Bassette [Va.] 51 S. E. 218. A judgment against an infant defendant for whom no guardian ad litem has been appointed is void. Weaver v. Glenn [Va.] 51 S. E. 835. Independently of Clark's Code, § 181, the superior court has power to appoint a guardian ad litem for an infant devisee in proceedings for the sale of property to pay the testator's debts. Carraway v. Lassiter [N. C.] 51 S. E. 968.

17. Langston v. Bassette [Va.] 51 S. E. 218.

18. A decree finding a will valid is not favorable to an infant who would be sole heir if the will was decreed void. Langston v. Bassette [Va.] 51 S. E. 218.

19. A guardian ad litem for an infant husband of a devisee need not be appointed in proceedings to sell lands of the decedent. His wife had only a life estate and was represented. He had no interest. Carraway v. Lassiter [N. C.] 51 S. E. 968.

20. See 3 C. L. 1568.

21. A plaintiff in such case cannot object on appeal that no guardian ad litem was appointed. Coulson v. Coulson, 180 Mo. 709, 79 S. W. 473.

22. A near relative or close friend of the person for whom a guardian ad litem is appointed should be selected rather than a person nominated by the adverse party. Frieseke v. Frieseke [Mich.] 101 N. W. 632.

23. Where an infant 20 years of age objects to a certain person because he is likely to involve the estate in extensive litigation. In re White, 91 N. Y. S. 513.

24. Where the father is dead, the mother may be appointed tutrix ad hoc of infant defendants in a partition proceeding. Chevalley v. Pettit [La.] 39 So. 113.

25, 26. Crane v. Stafford [Ill.] 75 N. E. 424.

27. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 471, providing that the appointment must be made on the application of the infant if he is 14 years old, and applies within 20 days after personal service of summons, an appointment for an infant under 14, not served with summons, cannot be sustained under such section. Van Williams v. Elias, 94 N. Y. S. 611. Code Civ. Proc. § 452, authorizing application by one who has an interest in the subject of the action, does not authorize an appointment where the infant has a mere possibility of an interest. Id. Under County Court Rule 3, § 1, providing that persons under disability shall appear by general guardian or next friend, it is proper to appoint a guardian ad litem on a hearing of an application to appoint a general guardian for an incompetent. Ziegler v. Bark, 121 Wis. 533, 99 N. W. 224.

28, 29. Van Williams v. Elias, 94 N. Y. S. 611.

30. Affidavit omitted to state that the infant had no statutory guardian. Mullins v. Mullins [Ky.] 87 S. W. 764. Mere irregularity in the appointment will not invalidate a decree against an infant in a case heard at chambers, though the consent of the guard-against an infant where he suffered no substantial injustice, especially where the rights of third parties have intervened.[31] A premature appointment may be cured.[32]

§ 3. Powers and duties, rights and liabilities.[33]—A guardian ad litem must take proper measures to safeguard the interests of the person for whom he is appointed.[34] It is his duty to be present when testimony is taken before a master in support of the cause of the adverse party,[35] and he is entitled to notice that such evidence is to be taken.[36] He has power to compromise a claim,[37] but he cannot bind the infant by submission to arbitration, though the submission be made by rule of court,[38] nor can he consent to the entry of judgment on the award.[39] He may interpose an affirmative defense.[40] His duties continue until final determination of the cause or termination of the minority of his ward, unless he is removed by the court.[41] In order to set aside a judgment against an infant in a cause where he was represented by guardian ad litem, fraud, collusion or error must be shown.[42]

In many states allowance of compensation is made by the court where the services are rendered; but in Kentucky, his allowance for the entire case must be ian ad litem to a hearing at chambers was essential, the infant not having been prejudiced. Middleton v. Stokes [S. C.] 50 S. E. 539.

31. Middleton v. Stokes [S. C.] 50 S. E. 539.

32. Irregularity in appointing a guardian ad litem before summons issued is cured by issuance of summons the same day which was duly served on the infant and guardian ad litem. Carraway v. Lassiter [N. C.] 51 S. E. 968.

33. See 3 C. L. 1568.

NOTE. Power to contract for legal services: Where it is for the infant's benefit that counsel be employed, the guardian ad litem or next friend may do so. Glass v. Glass, 76 Ala. 368; Baltimore, etc., Co. v. Fitzpatrick, 36 Md. 619; Colgate v. Colgate, 23 N. J. Eq. 372. But see In re Johnstone, 6 Dem. [N. Y.] 355, holding that a guardian ad litem in a surrogate's court will employ counsel at his own expense. There is a conflict as to whether such guardian may contract for the services of an attorney. In Yourie v. Nelson, 1 Tenn. Ch. 614, it is held to be his duty to do so, but in Cole v. Superior Ct., 63 Cal. 86, 49 Am. Rep. 78; Houck v. Birdwell, 28 Mo. App. 644, an opposite view was entertained. —See note to Fletcher v. Parker [W. Va.] 97 Am. St. Rep. 1002.

34. Where alimony allowed was wholly inadequate because of failure of a guardian ad litem to make proper proof of the amount of the adverse party's property, a rehearing should be granted. Frieseke v. Frieseke [Mich.] 101 N. W. 632. Where the only evidence to sustain a divorce decree against an incompetent was introduced by improper leading questions not objected to by a guardian ad litem who was appointed on the nomination of the adverse party, a rehearing should be granted Id. A judgment against an infant in a cause in which his guardian ad litem made no attempt to protect his interests will not be allowed to stand. Millsaps v. Estes, 137 N. C. 535, 50 S. E. 227.

35, 36. Crane v. Stafford [Ill.] 75 N. E. 424.

37. A judgment or compromise will not be set aside unless it is unfair and inequitable to the minor. Johnson v. Johnson [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1023.

38. Millsaps v. Estes, 137 N. C. 535, 50 S. E. 227.

39. Purchasers at a judicial sale made pursuant to such an award and judgment are charged with notice that it is voidable. Millsaps v. Estes, 137 N. C. 535, 50 S. E. 227.

40. On an application by a guardian for authority to sell land of his ward to pay debts, a guardian ad litem may set up that there is no necessity for the sale, that the guardian had mismanaged the estate and should account. In re Kimble [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1009.

41. He may appeal from the judgment of the trial court. Staggenborg v. Bailey, 26 Ky. L. R. 188, 80 S. W. 1109.

NOTE. When power begins and terminates: The powers of a next friend commences with the suit; and he can therefore maintain a suit for such causes of action only as may be prosecuted without a previous special demand, unless the defendant has waived a necessity therefor. Miles v. Boyden, 20 Mass. [3 Pick.] 213. His authority terminates with the judgment in the case (Davis v. Gist, Dud. Eq. [S. C.] 1), or with the minority of the infant (Lang v. Belloff, 53 N. J. Eq. 298, 31 A. 604).—From note to Fletcher v. Parker [W. Va.] 97 Am. St. Rep. 996.

NOTE. Right to appeal: A guardian ad litem may and should appeal whenever in his opinion it is necessary to protect his ward's interest (Sprague v. Beamer, 45 Ill. App. 17; Loftis v. Loftis, 94 Tenn. 232, 28 S. W. 1091; Tyson v. Tyson, 94 Wis. 225, 68 N. W. 1015), and leave of court is not necessary (Jones v. Roberts, 96 Wis. 427, 70 N. E. 685). Under a statute restricting the right of appeal to parties to a suit a guardian ad litem may be a party. Thomas v. Safe Deposit, etc., Co., 73 Md. 451, 21 A. 367. In Harlan v. Watson, 39 Ind. 393, it is held that such a guardian cannot appeal in his own name.—From note to Fletcher v. Parker [W. Va.] 97 Am. St. Rep. 1004.

42. The mere fact that the guardian ad litem did not introduce all the evidence is insufficient. Johnson v. Johnson [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1023.

made by the court wherein he was appointed,[43] and should be arrived at by a consideration of the character of the litigation, amount involved, labor performed and results achieved,[44] whether the services were rendered in the trial or appellate court.[45]

§ 4. Procedure by or against next friend or guardian ad litem.[46]—A proceeding in equity to annul a marriage contracted by a lunatic during his lunacy is properly instituted by his next friend, making his committee a party.[47] An infant should not be prejudiced by any act, default or admission on the part of his guardian ad litem.[48] A defect in a petition by an infant suing by his next friend because of failure to allege the due appointment of the next friend may be raised by answer.[49] An objection to a complaint by a next friend for an adjudged insane person which fails to allege that no guardian has been appointed or that if one has been appointed, why the action is not brought by him, must be made by special demurrer or plea in abatement,[50] but if the objection is raised by special demurrer and is not met by appropriate amendment, the action may be dismissed.[51] Where the father of a minor sues as his guardian ad litem and demands recovery for which he alone is entitled to maintain an action, he will be deemed to have emancipated his child in so far as the right to the recovery included in his child's action is concerned.[52]

GUARDIANSHIP.

The rights and liabilities of infants[53] and insane persons,[54] and of parents as natural guardians,[55] are elsewhere treated.

§ 1. The occasion for guardianship[56] exists whenever the state deems one necessary to the material or moral welfare of a person non sui juris,[57] notwithstand-

43. Staggenborg v. Bailey, 26 Ky. L. R. 188, 80 S. W. 1109; Cochran v. Lee's Alm'r [Ky.] 87 S. W. 769.

44. Staggenborg v. Bailey, 26 Ky. L. R. 188, 80 S. W. 1109.

45. Civ. Code Proc. §§ 38, 59, providing that a guardian shall be allowed a reasonable fee for his services, applies to services rendered either in the circuit or supreme court. Cochran v. Lee's Adm'r [Ky.] 87 S. W. 769. Where a guardian ad litem has taken an appeal, the lower court upon the filing of a mandate of affirmance may entertain a motion for an additional allowance for services rendered in the appellate court. Staggenborg v. Bailey, 26 Ky. L. R. 188, 80 S. W. 1109.

46. See 3 C. L. 1569.

47. Mackey v. Peters, 22 App. D. C. 341.

48. The court is bound to protect his rights, notwithstanding the failure of his guardian ad litem to do so. Parken v. Safford [Fla.] 37 So. 567. The fact that the guardian ad litem of minor proponents presents a claim for services in the contest to the court, and that the same is settled by the executors of a former will admitted to probate, does not estop the wards from appealing from the judgment denying probate of the will in contest. Stutsman v. Sharpless, 125 Iowa, 335, 101 N. W. 105.

49. Cohn v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 182 Mo. 577, 81 S. W. 846.

50. Is not raised by general demurrer. La Grange Mills v. Kener, 121 Ga. 429, 49 S. E. 300.

51. Stanley v. Stanley [Ga.] 51 S. E. 287.

52. An item for medical attendance, medicine and nursing included in the demand for damages in an action for personal injuries. Donald v. Ballard, 34 Wash. 576, 76 P. 80.

53. See Infants, post.

54. See Insane Persons, post.

55. See Parent and Child, 4 C. L. 873.

56. See 3 C. L. 1569.

57. A statute authorizing the appointment of guardians for the persons and estates of minors having no guardian by will or deed

ing the fact that the ward has a natural guardian living;[58] but in order that a natural guardian may be deprived of the custody of his child, it must appear that he is unworthy of the trust.[59] The determination of whether occasion for a guardian exists resides in the appointing court,[60] and its decision is conclusive.[61] An adjudication of insanity by a court of competent jursdiction is a sufficient basis upon which to rest the appointment of a guardian by the court of his residence.[62] That a child may be given superior advantages is no occasion for the appointment of a guardian,[63] and though there is no occasion for the appointment of a guardian if one of his own motion is appointed, he and his sureties are estopped to deny the validity of the appointment.[64]

The jurisdiction [65] to appoint guardians is generally vested in probate courts [66] of the county in which the ward is domiciled.[67] For the purposes of guardianship, is not a deprivation of the parents of such children of the rights, privileges or immunities secured by the Federal constitution. Wadleigh v. Newhall, 136 F. 941.

58. Parents have no right to the custody of their infant children, except subject to the paramount right of the state. Wadleigh v. Newhall, 136 F. 941. The superior court has jurisdiction to appoint guardians for minors after the death of the mother, though the father be alive. Russner v. McMillan, 37 Wash. 416, 79 P. 988.

59. The mere fact that he smokes cigarettes and drinks beer occasionally is insufficient, he being kind and indulgent and financially able to properly care for the child. Gilmore v. Kitson [Ind.] 74 N. E. 1083.

60. The determination of this question is, in the first instance, submitted to the probate court, and ultimately, if appeal is taken, to the justice of the supreme judicial court sitting as a judge of the supreme court of probate. In re Dunlap [Me.] 61 A. 704. It is the duty of such justice to hear and determine whether the welfare of the child requires such guardianship. Id. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 3976; providing for the appointment of a guardian for one who is mentally incompetent to have charge of his own property, the circuit court on appeal from the county court from an order appointing a guardian may pass only on the necessity of a guardian. Ziegler v. Bark, 121 Wis. 533, 99 N. W. 224.

61. The decision of such justice is not a ruling of law, but is his judgment of the facts and of the necessity and propriety of his conclusions, and is not subject to exception. In re Dunlap [Me.] 61 A. 704.

62. Where a person has been adjudged insane in one county the court of another county in which he has acquired a residence may appoint a guardian without a sworn information showing him to be insane. Schwartz v. West [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 282.

63. That one who has no natural rights to the custody of a child is able to give it superior advantages is not ground for depriving a parent of its custody. Gilmore v. Kitson [Ind.] 74 N. E. 1083.

64. Griffin v. Collins [Ga.] 49 S. E. 827.

65. See 3 C. L. 1570, n. 11 et seq.

66. In Idaho. In re Brady [Idaho] 79 P. 75.

67. Where a minor is without authority removed from his domicile to another county, the ordinary of the county to which he is removed has no jurisdiction to appoint a guardian in the absence of any choice by the minor making such county his domicile. Hayslip v. Gillis [Ga.] 51 S. E. 325. The court of the county of the husband's residence has jurisdiction to appoint a guardian for his wife on his death. Where the wife was confined in an asylum, the change of residence of the husband during such confinement changes hers. Schwartz v. West [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 282.

Note: The probate court of the county in which a minor's lands were located, the minor being domiciled in an adjoining county, issued letters of guardianship of the person and estate of the minor, and, upon application, made its order directing the sale of the minor's interest in the real estate situated in said county, under which the interest of the minor was sold. A guardian subsequently appointed by the probate court of the county in which the minor was domiciled brought an action of partition. Held, that the proceedings in the probate court in the county which was not the domicile of the minor were void, and that the guardian's deed was void as against the purchaser at such guardian's sale, and also void as against his grantee. Connell v. Moore [Kan.] 78 P. 164. The statutes of most of the states provide that the court having jurisdiction to appoint a guardian is that of the county of the ward's residence. Appointments made in disregard of this provision are usually held void. Estate of Taylor, 131 Cal. 181; The Modern Woodmen of America v. Heston as Guardian, etc., 66 Kan. 129. This, however, has not always been the case. Judge of Probate v. Hinds, 4 N. H. 464. The Kansas statute did not contain a special provision designating what probate court would acquire jurisdiction of the person and estate of minors. The decision of the court was based on the clear and reasonable inference drawn from the statute that the probate court having jurisdiction was that of the county in which the minor was domiciled, citing De Jarnett v. Harper, 45 Mo. App. 415; also that the legislature would not be presumed to act against the interests of minors.—3 Mich. L. R. 162. In New York the power to appoint different individuals as guardians of the estate and of the person resides only in the court. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2822, 2827, such an appointment by a parent is void. In re Burdick's Estate, 95 N. Y. S. 206.

such courts are courts of general jurisdiction.[68] Jurisdiction once acquired is retained during the pendency of the guardianship,[69] and is not ousted by another appointment by a court of foreign jurisdiction,[70] nor by the assumption of jurisdiction by equity to correct fraud in the account of a guardian.[71]

§ 2. The person of the guardian; his appointment, qualification and tenure.[72]—In the selection of a legal guardian, the welfare of the ward is the controlling consideration,[73] but other circumstances should not be ignored.[74] The rights of the natural guardians [75] must be considered,[76] and if they are suitable persons,[77] they are entitled to be preferred,[78] and the mere fact that one entitled to a preference intends to remove the ward to a distant state is not ground for denying him the rights accorded by law.[79] Who is the more suitable person may be a question of fact.[80] The right of a natural guardian to the custody of his child is superior to that of an official guardian [81] or testamentary guardian appointed by his maternal parent.[82]

The statutory requirements essential to give jurisdiction to make an order of appointment must be complied with.[83] There must be a petition [84] in conformity to

68. See 3 C. L. 1570, n. 15 et seq. In a petition for the allowance and settlement of a guardian's account, it is not necessary to allege the steps taken in his appointment. In re Brady [Idaho] 79 P. 75, following and approving Clark v. Rossier [Idaho] 78 P. 358.

69. They retain jurisdiction for all purposes in connection therewith until the guardian's accounts are rendered and he is discharged. In re Brady [Idaho] 79 P. 75.

70. The unauthorized removal of the ward to another state or the appointment of a guardian by a court of foreign jurisdiction cannot oust the courts of the state of appointment of their jurisdiction. In re Brady [Idaho] 79 P. 75.

71. Wallace v. Swepston [Ark.] 86 S. W. 398.

72. See 3 C. L. 1569.

73. In re Dellow's Estate [Cal. App.] 82 P. 558. When the appointment of a guardian for a minor is asked. In re Dunlap [Me.] 61 A. 704.

74. In the selection of the committee of an incompetent, the welfare of the incompetent is the chief consideration; but if the committee must maintain intimate relations with the relatives of the incompetent, their interests and wishes should not be ignored. In re Cooper, 94 N. Y. S. 270.

75. On death of parents the grandparents, when next of kin, succeed to the infant's natural guardianship. Holmes v. Derrig [Iowa] 103 N. W. 973.

76. The fact that the natural guardian (grandparent), respectable and competent to care for a child, is not as financially able to care for it as a paternal uncle, is not ground for awarding its custody to the uncle. Holmes v. Derrig [Iowa] 103 N. W. 973.

77. It was proper to refuse to appoint a father as guardian who drank to excess, was engaged as a waiter in a saloon, and had furnished the children with liquor to such an extent that they had acquired a taste for it. Russner v. McMillan, 37 Wash. 416, 79 P. 988.

78. The natural parents are entitled to the custody of their minor children if they are suitable persons to be entrusted with their care, control and education. Gilmore v. Kitson [Ind.] 74 N. E. 1083.

79. A father will not be refused custody of his child because he intends to take it to a distant state. Ex parte Davidge [S. C.] 51 S. E. 269. Where the paternal grandfather and maternal grandmother are each claiming the tutorship and the former lives in another state to which he proposes to remove the infant orphan. Succession of Oliver, 113 La. 877, 37 So. 862.

80. Where there is a conflict in the wishes of persons interested, a referee should be appointed to take testimony as to the proper person. In re Cooper, 94 N. Y. S. 270. On an issue as to the propriety of appointing a certain person guardian, evidence that one of his daughters had once been arrested for vagrancy is inadmissible, it appearing that such daughter had not been reared by him. Russner v. McMillan, 37 Wash. 416, 79 P. 988. Appointment of stranger in blood in preference to collateral relative sustained. In re Dellow's Estate [Cal. App.] 82 P. 558.

81. The claim of the father as natural guardian, to the custody of his child, is superior to that of an official guardian. Ex parte Davidge [S. C.] 51 S. E. 269. The appointment of a legal guardian does not deprive a father of his right to the custody of his child. Gilmore v. Kitson [Ind.] 74 N. E. 1083.

82. A mother cannot by testamentary disposition deprive the father of his right to the custody of their minor child. Gilmore v. Kitson [Ind.] 74 N. E. 1083.

83. Under Comp. Laws, § 8710, authorizing the appointment of a special guardian by the probate judge upon such notice as he shall direct, an order of appointment showing that it was made without notice is void. Devereaux v. Janes [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 411, 104 N. W. 579. Rev. St. 1898, § 3976, requiring that an incompetent for whom a guardian is to be appointed be given notice of the hearing and be caused to attend if able, held to have been sufficiently complied with. Ziegler v. Bark, 121 Wis. 533, 99 N. W. 224.

84. A temporary guardian cannot be appointed where there is no petition for his appointment nor necessity for it. In re Barnes, 36 Wash. 130, 78 P. 783.

statutory requirements.[85] If the statute provides for but one guardian, the appointment of more is void.[86] Whether an order appointing a guardian is appealable,[87] and who may appeal from it, depends on the terms of the statute.[88]

A power in a surviving parent to appoint a testamentary guardian does not give such power to a parent who has been awarded custody of a child in divorce proceedings, the other parent being alive;[89] and though a married woman is by statute the joint guardian of her children with her husband, a mother who is the surviving parent is not their general guardian.[90]

One may be an equitable guardian, though the formalities essential to make him a legal guardian have not been complied with,[91] and one not legally appointed may become a de facto guardian.[92]

The authority of the guardian is terminated,[93] but he is not discharged [94] by the majority or death of the ward. The authority of a guardian of an incompetent terminated ipso facto by an adjudication of restoration to capacity.[95] In Indiana the marriage of a female ward to a man of full age terminates the authority of the guardian.[96]

Removal.[97]—A guardian may be removed at the instance of the infant or one representing him, or on the court's own motion.[98] The district judge, on removal of a curator of an interdict, has power to appoint some one to take care, temporarily of the person of the interdict and protect his property.[99] But he must at the instance of the undercurator convoke a family meeting to recommend a fit person as a permanent curator.[1] Where letters of guardianship are revoked, they cannot be

85. The fact that a petition for the appointment of a guardian for an insane person did not state the names of persons who would be affected by the appointment, with whom he resided or who had control of his property, as required by Rev. St. 1898, § 3976, does not affect the jurisdiction of the county court where these facts were disclosed by the record. Ziegler v. Bark, 121 Wis. 533, 99 N. W. 224. Proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 2323a, for the appointment of a committee of an insane person, held not void for want of personal service on the alleged lunatic. In re Maginn, 100 App. Div. 230, 91 N. Y. S. 814.

86. Under Rev. St. 1895, § 2589, providing that "only one guardian can be appointed for the person or estate," a sale by a guardian appointed while the minor had another lawful guardian of his estate is void. St. Paul Sanitarium v. Crim [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1114.

87. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 3535, an order of the probate court appointing a curator for the estate of an infant is not appealable. Looney v. Browning [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 564. Notice of appeal from an order appointing a guardian for an incompetent held sufficient to give the appellate court jurisdiction. Ziegler v. Bark, 121 Wis. 533, 99 N. W. 224. Right to appeal from an order appointing a committee for an insane person held not precluded by partial compliance with such order. In re Maginn, 100 App. Div. 230, 91 N. Y. S. 814.

88. One who claims property of an incompetent by virtue of contract with him is a party aggrieved by the appointment of a guardian, and under Rev. St. 1898, § 4031, may appeal from the order. Ziegler v. Bark, 121 Wis. 533, 99 N. W. 224.

89. In re Waring's Will, 94 N. Y. S. 82.

90. So as to be authorized under Code Civ. Proc. § 2746, to receive their distributive share on an accounting of their father's estate. In re Schuler's Estate, 94 N. Y. S. 1063.

91. An elder brother who was appointed guardian of minor members of the family and who assumed control of the family and supported them but never qualified as guardian. Alexander v. Hillebrand [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 238, 103 N. W. 849.

92. As where a mother dies leaving property to her child and his father and a stepmother assumes control of such property. Watts v. Watts' Ex'x [Va.] 51 S. E. 359.

93. His duty thereafter is limited to the making of a proper settlement of his trust. State Fair Ass'n v. Terry [Ark.] 85 S. W. 87. Notice to him of a petition for leave to file a bill to review a decree, an appeal from which was dismissed when the ward died pending such appeal, is unavailing. Id.

94. He is subject to the orders of the court appointing until his final accounting and discharge. Logan v. Robertson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 395.

95. Statutes construed. In re Scheuer's Estate [Mont.] 79 P. 244.

96. He stands in the simple relation of debtor towards her for the balance of her funds remaining in his hands, and an action to recover such funds is governed by the ordinary statute of limitations. Roberts v. Smith [Ind.] 74 N. E. 894.

97. See 3 C. L. 1571. Failure to file inventory, disregard of rules to do so and extravagant expenditures held ground for removal. Clay's Guardian v. Clay [Ky.] 89 S. W. 500.

98. Clay's Guardian v. Clay [Ky.] 89 S. W. 500.

99, 1. State v. King, 113 La. 905, 37 So. 871.

reinstated at a succeeding term as against the sureties.[2] In Ohio an order removing a guardian is not appealable.[3]

§ 3. General powers, duties and liabilities.[4]—The guardian is a mere protector of his ward's interests,[5] but he is a trustee and as such he is entitled to possession of the ward's property,[6] and is accountable for the administration thereof.[7] He is responsible for all property in his possession until his final discharge,[8] and in him alone is the right to defend such possession.[9] He may do any act relative to the property of the ward which a prudent man would do in the management of his own business.[10] He may with the approval of the chancellor waive a legal right which he might waive as an individual.[11] He may execute a discharge and satisfaction of a mortgage to him as such,[12] but he cannot without authority from the court release or compound demands due the ward,[13] nor surrender funds lawfully possessed,[14] nor can he make admissions to the prejudice of his ward.[15] The power to make contracts binding on the estate is strictly limited.[16]

2. Wallace v. Swepston [Ark.] 86 S. W. 398.

3. Does not affect a substantial right. North v. Smith, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 495.

4. See 3 C. L. 1571. See, also, § 5, post.

5. The question of jurisdiction of a Federal court where a minor is suing by his guardian is to be determined by the citizenship of the infant and not that of his guardian. Toledo Traction Co. v. Cameron [C. C. A.] 137 F. 48.

6. An action for the recovery of possession of land and for compensation for use is properly brought in his name. Cole v. Jerman, 77 Conn. 374, 59 A. 425. Under Indiana statutes the guardian may enforce by suit collection of debts due the ward. Bryson v. Collmer, 33 Ind. App. 494, 71 N. E. 229.

7. In re Estate of Toman, 110 Ill. App. 135.

8. Logan v. Robertson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 395.

9. Neither the ward during his life time nor his heirs after his death are necessary parties. Logan v. Robertson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 395.

10. Werber v. Cain [S. C.] 51 S. E. 123. A general guardian is justified in incurring expense in resisting the contest of a will appointing a testamentary guardian where there is reasonable ground to believe the will is valid. In re Brady [Idaho] 79 P. 75. Guardian of an Indian allottee who paid $2,000 in compromise of a claim of a right to enforce specific performance of a contract for a sale of the ward's allotment, held for the best interests of the estate and properly allowed. Terry v. Sicade, 37 Wash. 249, 79 P. 789. Repairs made by the curator on the buildings of an interdict, insurance and taxes paid, are allowed. Succession of Sangfried [La.] 38 So. 593.

11. Where publication of notice of judicial sales may be waived by the parties, a ward, by her guardian, may make such waiver, with the chancellor's approval, relative to a sale of realty in which he has an interest. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 14a. Hieatt v. Schmidt [Ky.] 84 S. W. 740.

12. Werber v. Cain [S. C.] 51 S. E. 123.

13. Knights Templars' & Masons' Life Indemnity Co. v. Crayton, 110 Ill. App. 648.

14. He cannot surrender money of his ward received from an insurance company without obtaining an order of court. Loyal Americans v. Edwards, 106 Ill. App. 399.

15. In an action in which minors appear by their guardian, his admissions are not binding on them. Kidwell v. Ketler, 146 Cal. 12, 79 P. 514; Hayden v. Collins [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1120; Knights Templars' & Masons' Life Indemnity Co. v. Crayton, 110 Ill. App. 648.

16. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Rich & Bros. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 338. The contracts specially allowed by law do not include a contract for the purchase and sale of goods on credit, even though they be for the use of the ward and properly classed as necessaries. Id. In Texas he may make a contract for the location of a land certificate. Logan v. Robertson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 395. A covenant by a guardian to renew a lease for a second term is in excess of the power granted by section 6295, to lease for not more than three years, and is void; and to bring the lease within the provisions of section 6296, allowing longer leases by order of court, the petition should contain averments showing requisite conditions and the authority of the court. Globe Soap Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 496.

NOTE. Liability of estate of infant for attorney's fees: The plaintiff, an attorney, rendered services under a contract with a guardian of an infant's estate, being appointed attorney by an order of a court of record at the request of the guardian. The infant died before becoming of age and the plaintiff brought suit against the infant's estate for the reasonable worth of his services. Held, that he could not recover. McKee v. Hunt, 142 Cal. 526. A guardian cannot by his general contracts bind the estate of his infant ward, and even in equity the estate of the infant is not bound by a contract for necessaries made by the guardian. Reading v. Wilson, 38 N. J. Eq. 446. Where services have been rendered to an executor in the interests of his estate, a recovery cannot be had against the estate, but must be sought against the executor personally. Kowing v. Moran, 5 Dem. [N. Y.] 56. The liability of contracts made by guardians or executors is of such a personal character, that even though the contract be signed "as guardian," the guardian is not relieved of personal liability. Rollins v. Marsh, 128 Mass.

§ 4. Custody, support, and education of the ward.[17]—It is the duty of the guardian to see that his ward is properly supported even though it is necessary to use the principal of the estate.[18] The amount expended for the support of the ward should not exceed his revenues,[19] unless the best interests of the ward require it.[20] In Texas no payments by guardian for the support of his ward, out of the corpus of the estate, will be sustained unless an order directing the payment be first entered on the minutes of the court,[21] and failure to make such entry cannot be remedied by an entry nunc pro tunc.[22] In order to entitle him to credit for paying, on his own motion, from the income of the estate, the expenses of maintaining his ward, the income and expenses must run concurrently.[23] In Kentucky, however, if he makes advancements beyond the income, he is entitled to reimbursement from the surplus income for subsequent years.[24]

§ 5. The ward's property, and administration thereof.[25]—Contracts relative to the estate must be made under authority from the court,[26] and a nonjudicial opinion is no justification for a prejudicial act.[27] He must not surrender to the ward, property in his hands bound by a judgment against the ward.[28] In New Hampshire he may agree to a divison in kind of an estate in which his ward has an interest,[29] but if he does so without an order from the court he must show that he acted in good faith and with reasonable prudence and discretion.[30] A guardian must not permit the estate of his ward to be frittered away.[31] It is his duty to keep the funds of the estate invested in the securities prescribed by law.[32] When he is given discretionary

116. The rule holding the guardian personally liable and not allowing his contracts to hind the estate of his ward is based upon a sound rule of public policy. To allow a recovery in quasi-contract would impair the effect of this salutary rule.—5 Columbia L. R. 62.

17. See 3 C. L. 1571.

18. An account will not be disallowed where it was properly expended though another had contracted to care for the ward. In re Hayden's Estate, 146 Cal. 73, 79 P. 588. An order allowing a ward twenty years of age with an estate of $40,000, $400 for vacation expenses, held proper. In re White, 101 App. Div. 172, 91 N. Y. S. 513. Charge of an equitable guardian for the support of his wards held not excessive. Alexander v. Hillebrand [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 238, 103 N. W. 849. Allowance of $900 out of a ward's estate for her support held reasonable. Barnett's Adm'r v. Adams, 26 Ky. L. R. 622, 82 S. W. 406.

19. A family meeting should be held and the approval of the court obtained in order that an amount in excess of the revenues of his estate may be expended in support of an interdict. Succession of Sangfried [La.] 38 So. 593.

20. If the ward is of tender years and it is for his best interest the principal of his estate may be expended for his support. Commonwealth v. Lee [Ky.] 86 S. W. 990.

21. Under Sayles' Civ. Ann. St. 1897, art. 2630. Logan v. Gay [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 361, 87 S. W. 852.

22, 23. Logan v. Gay [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 361, 87 S. W. 852.

24. The advancements were such as the chancellor would have ordered made out of the corpus of the estate, if he had been applied to. Fidelity Trust Co. v. Rudtloff [Ky.] 89 S. W. 119.

25. See 3 C. L. 1572. See, also, § 3, ante.

26. Mere knowledge on the part of guardian that one from whom his ward derives title consented to the building of a street railway does not bind the ward. Day v. Forest City R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 393. Where a ward whose land was subject to assessment for construction of a drainage ditch had no notice of the proceeding, but her guardian appeared, procured an assessment of damages and had the matter approved by the court it is presumed in a collateral proceeding that the ward was given notice of the proceeding to obtain approval of the guardian's action. Ross v. Wright County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 506.

27. The advice of a judge in vacation not given in the exercise of his judicial functions is no justification for a guardian's action which is prejudicial to his ward's estate. In re Kimble [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1009.

28. Where property of the ward in the guardian's hands is bound by a judgment against the ward, the guardian is liable if he surrenders the property to the ward without paying such judgment. Probate Court of Exeter v. Carr [R. I.] 61 A. 171.

29. Under Rev. St. 1842, c. 150, §§ 3, 17, a guardian who is present at the settlement of an estate in which his ward has an interest may bind the ward by an agreement for a division of the property in kind. Stevens v. Meserve [N. H.] 61 A. 420.

30. Stevens v. Meserve [N. H.] 61 A. 420.

31. A guardian who advances money to his ward without knowledge of the purpose for which it is to be used is not entitled to credit therefor in the judicial settlement of his account. In re Holscher's Heirs [Iowa] 101 N. W. 759.

32. See post, § 10.

powers relative to investments, only the care that would be exercised by a prudent man is required of him.[33] Authority to accept securities in settlement of claims due the ward is not authority to make investments in securities other than those prescribed.[34] A limitation on what he may invest in does not apply to securities taken in settlement of doubtful claims.[35]

The mere fact that on the death of a nonresident alien lunatic his property will escheat does not preclude his conservator from removing such property from the state,[36] and where such ward is a bona fide resident of a foreign state the conservator is not required to show that his best interests would be subserved by such removal.[37] Nor is the right precluded by the fact that such property is in the hands of a conservator appointed by the state in which the property is located whose management has been beyond criticism.[38]

§ 6. Presentment and allowance of claims.[39]

§ 7. Judicial proceedings to sell property of ward.[40]—An unauthorized sale of the ward's property passes no title,[41] and renders the purchaser liable in conversion [42] regardless of his good faith in the transaction.[43] A sale of the ward's property partly for the benefit of the guardian will be set aside.[44] That proceeds of a void sale are used for the support of the ward does not estop him from asserting the invalidity of the sale.[45] A purchase by the guardian is void, even though the proceeds of the sale are used for the support of the ward.[46] A right in the ward to set aside a sale [47] may be barred by limitations.[48] A sale of the ward's real estate can be ordered only when the personal property is insufficient for the education and maintenance of the ward, 33. Under Pub. St. 1901, c. 178, § 9, requiring that funds shall be invested in notes secured by mortgage or real estate to double their value only requires that the guardian in good faith determine that the land is of double the value of the notes at the time the loan is made. Stevens v. Meserve [N. H.] 61 A. 420.

34. A statute authorizing a guardian to accept securities in lieu of cash in the settlement of an estate in which his ward has an interest. Stevens v. Meserve [N. H.] 61 A. 420.

35. A statute requiring funds to be invested in notes secured by mortgages on real estate of twice their value does not apply to notes taken in settlement of doubtful claims in favor of the ward. Stevens v. Meserve [N. H.] 61 A. 420.

36, 37, 38. Langmuir v. Landes, 113 Ill. App. 134.

39, 40. See 2 C. L. 1573.

41. Letter by probate judge that guardian had removed with his wards into another state and had there been appointed guardian, held not to amount to a ratification of an unauthorized sale of promissory notes belonging to estate of ward, though it stated that it would so operate. Merchants' & Clerks' Sav. Bank v. Schirk, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 569. A ward who does not receive the proceeds of a sale of his land by a guardian unlawfully appointed may recover the land without making a tender of the price paid. St. Paul Sanitarium v. Crim [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1114.

42. Purchaser of securities from guardian. Merchants' & Clerks' Sav. Bank v. Schirk, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 569.

43. Good faith on the part of one purchasing securities from a guardian, the proceeds from which were misappropriated, is not material in an action against such party for recovery of the amount so lost, where it appears that the guardian was without authority to make the sale. Merchants' & Clerks' Sav. Bank v. Schirk, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 569.

44. Where a part of the proceeds were to be appropriated by the guardian members of whose family the ward's were. Parker v. Bowers [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 380. A purchaser with notice will be allowed for improvements, taxes paid, and the portion of the purchase price used for support of the ward, but not for the portion appropriated by the guardian nor anything for attorney's fees in procuring the sale. Id.

45. Cooper v. Burns, 133 F. 398.

46. Under Nebraska Comp. St. 1903, c. 23, § 85, the fact that the proceeds are used for the support of the ward does not make the purchase for his benefit. Cooper v. Burns, 133 F. 398. A mortgagee under the guardian with notice of his source of title is not protected as an innocent purchaser. Id.

47. A license of the probate court, a sale evidenced by confirmation of the probate forum, and a conveyance resting thereon though irregular in form, is a sale within the statute. Brown v. Pinkerton [Minn.] 103 N. W. 897.

48. Gen. St. 1894, § 4611, limiting the time to five years for the heir or person claiming under him to bring suit to set aside a guardian's sale is retrospective. Brown v. Pinkerton [Minn.] 103 N. W. 897. This statute is one of repose and protects the purchaser where five years have elapsed since the guardianship terminated and the sale was made. Id. Where a conveyance was made by a guardian and its recitals attempt to give or to pay debts against his estate.[49] The proceeds of such sales are not to be paid to the ward but should be paid out by the guardian under orders of the court, for the purposes for which the sale was made.[50] That a court has jurisdiction to order a sale in regular guardianship does not give it power to order such sale in a different proceeding.[51] The guardian of a minor co-tenant cannot sell the entire property because the interests of all are chargeable with common debts.[52] An authorized sale of a minor ward's interest in common does not operate as a partition of the property.[53] An order directing a sale may constitute an adjudication of the issue of the guardian's mismanagement where such issue is tendered in the proceeding.[54]

§ 8. Actions and legal proceedings by and against guardians.[55]—Actions against the guardian in his representative capacity are properly brought in the jurisdiction where the guardianship is pending.[56]

Where a ward is damaged personally the action should be brought in his name by his guardian.[57] The committee of an insane person should be made a party defendant in a proceeding by the lunatic's next friend to set aside a marriage contracted by him during his lunacy.[58]

The guardian's motives, beliefs, or desires in instituting an action are immaterial.[59]

An authorized action by the guardian relative to the ward's estate binds the ward as to everything that can be validly adjudicated therein.[60] Issues foreign to the cause of action cannot be adjudicated,[61] but where a guardian sues for possession of his ward's land and damages for the use of it, he may be entitled to enjoin a conveyance of it by the defendant to a third person.[62]

A guardian is not liable for costs in an action against him as guardian unless the action is a result of his negligence.[63]

§ 9. Accounting and settlement.[64]—The probate and chancery courts have concurrent jurisdiction in matters of guardianship and the ward has the unqualified right of electing the forum in which he will seek a settlement.[65] A final settlement effect to the probate proceedings, it is a deed sufficient to put the statute in operation. Id.

49. Rev. St. 1895, arts. 2653, 2654. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Schelper [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 871.

50. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Schelper [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 871. Hence, in an action on a guardian's bond, a cause of action is not established by merely showing that none of the proceeds of a sale of land ever came into the hands of the ward. Id.

51. By a guardian not lawfully appointed. St. Paul Sanitarium v. Crim [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1114.

52. Broom v. Pearson [Tex.] 85 S. W. 790.

53. Long acquiescence in such sale by the other co-tenants does not give it such effect. Broom v. Pearson [Tex.] 85 S. W. 790.

54. Where on application by a guardian to sell his ward's land to pay debts, the ward sets up by his guardian ad litem and relatives, that the guardian is indebted to his ward's estate for mismanagement, an order directing the sale, and allowing the guardian reimbursement and compensation is an abdication of the issues of mismanagement. Final until appealed from. In re Kimble [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1009.

55. See 3 C. L. 1574.

56. Though the parties do not reside there nor is the land relative to which the action is brought located there. Logan v. Robertson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 395.

57. The infant sustained damage by reason of a carrier's failure to furnish him a ticket in time to reach home to attend his father's funeral. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Head [Ky.] 84 S. W. 751.

58. Mackey v. Peters, 22 App. D. C. 341.

59. In ejectment to recover the premises of his ward. Hayden v. Collins [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1120.

60. In partition, that partition cannot be had without great prejudice. Cowling v. Nelson [Ark.] 88 S. W. 913.

61. In an action by a ward against his guardian to partition land purchased by the guardian with the ward's money, a further sum owing the ward by the guardian cannot be adjudged a lien on his homestead. May v. May [Mo.] 88 S. W. 75.

62. Cole v. Jerman, 77 Conn. 374, 59 A. 425.

63. Where he took stock as collateral and shortly before suit against him to enforce payment of a balance of the subscription price he took the stock over individually, he is not liable for costs of defense unless he was negligent in taking the stock originally or in allowing it to stand in his name as guardian after taking it individually. In re Kimble [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1009.

64. See 3 C. L. 1574.

65. Hence, a final settlement made in the stands upon the same footing as a judgment and is conclusive as to all proper subjects of the account included,[66] if made in accordance with statutory requirements,[67] but an intermediate accounting is only prima facie correct as to persons not necessary parties.[68] A decree of a probate court discharging a guardian may be set aside in equity if procured by fraud,[69] if assailed within the limitation period,[70] and the ward is not guilty of laches.[71] A final settlement may be vacated for failure of the guardian to turn over all the estate of his ward remaining in his hands.[72]

A guardian is not relieved of his duty to account because he stands in the relation of co-tenant to his ward.[73] Substantial compliance with statutes requiring the filing of intermediate accounts is sufficient.[74] A private settlement between guardian and ward will not be approved by the court unless clearly fair.[75] It is void if made prior to the termination of the guardianship,[76] and if made soon after is viewed with suspicion [77] and will not be permitted to stand unless the ward acted with full knowledge of all his rights.[78] probate court by a guardian before his resignation or removal and during the minority of the ward is void for want of jurisdiction. Matthews v. Mauldin [Ala.] 38 So. 849.

The statement of account [79] should be properly itemized [80] and challenged items proved,[81] but vouchers are not absolutely essential.[82]

66. May v. May [Mo.] 88 S. W. 75. An order settling a final account is impervious to collateral attack as to all matters included in the report, but is not an adjudication of any matter not included in the settlement. State v. Petersen [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 602. Where an order confirming a guardian's account is appealable and is not appealed, questions respecting it cannot be reviewed on an appeal from an order for a sale of the ward's land. In re Scheuer's Estate [Mont.] 79 P. 244. Decree striking off a surcharge after an examination of a restated account and the original evidence affirmed. Hortz's Estate, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 489.

67. A settlement made without complying with a statutory requirement relative to the exhibit of his account is only prima facie evidence of the facts contained therein. May v. May [Mo.] 88 S. W. 75.

68. The approval of an intermediate report of a guardian, at an accounting to which heirs of the ward are cited to appear, is only prima facie evidence of its correctness as against them. In re Kimble [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1009. Facts held to show no ground for a surcharge of a guardian's account. Savage's Estate, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 292.

69. On a prayer for general relief. Willis v. Rice [Ala.] 37 So. 507. A bill for an accounting alleging that the guardian had procured his discharge by fraud perpetrated on his ward is not demurrable because showing a settlement and discharge not sought to be vacated. Id. A bill for an accounting alleging that the guardian had obtained his discharge by fraud perpetrated on his ward is not demurrable because not showing that the ward was injured by the discharge. Id.

70. A bill to impeach for fraud, a decree discharging a guardian, is by analogy governed by the same limitations as bars a bill of review. Willis v. Rice [Ala.] 37 So. 507. A direct attack of a final account for fraud or mistake of fact may be made on the final settlement or within three years after such settlement has been acted upon. State v. Petersen [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 602.

71. Where a ward's signature is by fraud procured to a paper consenting to the guardian's discharge, and thereafter within a reasonable time she repeatedly sought to have an accounting which he refused, and thereafter within the limitation period she filed a bill to set the discharge aside and for an accounting, she was not barred by limitations or laches. Willis v. Rice [Ala.] 37 So. 507.

72. Complaint held to state facts justifying the vacation of a final settlement, under Burn's Ann. St. 1901, § 2685. State v. Petersen [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 602.

73. Watts v. Watts' Ex'x [Va.] 51 S. E. 359.

74. A statute requiring a guardian to file his account upon the expiration of a year from his appointment does not prohibit him from filing it sooner. In re Hayden's Estate, 146 Cal. 73, 79 P. 588.

75. Where in a private settlement the ward allowed his credit for advancements made without any knowledge of the purpose for which they were to be used. In re Holscher's Heirs [Iowa] 101 N. W. 759.

76. A receipt by a ward acquitting the guardian in full of all claims against him is not valid if signed before the termination of the guardianship though the ward be at the time of sound mind. Griffin v. Collins [Ga.] 49 S. E. 827.

77. A contract of settlement between a guardian and ward, made soon after the ward's majority and before a settlement of the guardian's accounts, is presumed void. Hall v. Turner's Estate [Vt.] 61 A. 763.

78. Where a ward soon after attaining majority accepts from his guardian and receipts for certain corporate stock in lieu of a legacy which he was entitled to receive in money, he is not precluded from recovering from the estate of his guardian the amount of the legacy where it does not appear that he knew the source of the stock. Hall v. Turner's Estate [Vt.] 61 A. 763.

79. A statement of account by a guardian held sufficient. In re Estate of Toman, 110 Ill. App. 135. An order allowing the accounts of a guardian of the estate held not

The ward is entitled to the income of his own estate.[83] A de facto guardian with whom the ward lives is entitled to credit for support and maintenance furnished him [84] unless such guardian be the parent of the ward.[85] A ward may have a review of his guardian's accounts after he attains majority.[86] A petition for an accounting must be filed within the period allowed by law.[87]

The estate of the ward cannot be amerced for the costs of a reference of a complicated account which it objects to.[88] A guardian who files an incorrect account may be liable for the costs of the audit.[89] objectionable on behalf of the guardian of the person on the ground that the objector had little or no opportunity to present his side of the controversy at the hearing. In re White, 101 App. Div. 172, 91 N. Y. S. 513.

§ 10. Rights and liabilities between guardian and ward.[90]—A guardian cannot acquire for his own benefit the property of his ward irrespective of the question of actual fraud.[91] A fortiori, where the transaction is fraudulent.[92] He is chargeable with interest on funds which he negligently fails to invest [93] after he has had a reasonable opportunity to invest them,[94] but not after the termination of his guardianship.[95] A guardian who invests funds of his ward in his own name must account for the amount of such investment if it is unprofitable,[96] and if he uses his ward's funds in his own business without authority from the court, is chargeable with compound interest.[97]

80. Bills for medical services are sufficiently itemized where the amount, the person to whom paid, nature of services rendered, and date of payment, are given. In re Hayden's Estate, 146 Cal. 73, 79 P. 588.

81. He must sustain challenged items of his account with evidence or they will be rejected. Merritt v. Wallace [Ark.] 88 S. W. 876.

82. In stating the account of a guardian or other person acting in a similar capacity, it is error to exclude any item for the sole reason that there is no voucher in support of it, if the claimant of the credit has sworn to the disbursement, and the item is in itself not improper to be allowed. Corcoran v. Renehan, 24 App. D. C. 411.

83. Where in partition between a ward and his de facto guardian he was awarded a certain number of acres, on accounting, he is entitled to the rental value of such tract and not to a fractional portion of the rental of the entire property. Watts v. Watts' Ex'x [Va.] 51 S. E. 359.

84, 85. Watts v. Watts' Ex'x [Va.] 51 S. E. 359.

86. After a ward attains his majority he may have a review of his guardian's accounts and join the sureties on the guardian's bond. Engelcke v. Engelcke, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 88. The successor or wards of a guardian, who has become a nonresident after the approval of his account, may go into the common pleas for an accounting, and if anything is found due, may proceed upon the bond in the same action. Id.

87. A petition for an accounting by a tutrix is barred by the four-year statute. Civ. Code art. 362. Rhodes v. Cooper, 113 La. 600, 37 So. 527.

88. In re Gorman, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 667.

89. One who has acted as guardian for a long period of years without giving much attention to the estate of the ward and has not complied with the law relative to filing his accounts is, when he files an incorrect account upon citation after the ward's majority, liable for the costs of the audit. Miller's Estate, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 32. Guardian held not chargeable with fees of witnesses called to contest his account. Savage's Estate, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 292.

90. See 3 C. L. 1574.

91. Wester v. Flygare [Minn.] 103 N. W. 1020.

92. A fraudulent sale of the ward's realty to the daughter of the guardian will be set aside. Coley v. Tallman, 43 Misc. 280, 88 N. Y. S. 896; Coley v. Tallman, 95 N. Y. S. 339.

93. Where he was authorized to loan on real estate security and rejected the only application because of insufficiency of the security, but made no report until cited by the court 10 years later. Merritt v. Wallace [Ark.] 88 S. W. 876. Sayles' Civ. Ann. St. 1897, art. 2648, expressly provides that a guardian who neglects to loan or invest money when he may do so by the exercise of reasonable diligence, is liable for the highest legal rate of interest. Logan v. Gay [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 361, 87 S. W. 852. By the express provisions of Ky. St. 1903, § 2035, a guardian who does not invest funds of the ward within a reasonable time is chargeable with interest. Commonwealth v. Lee [Ky.] 86 S. W. 990.

94. A guardian should not be charged interest on funds in his hands until he has had a reasonable opportunity to invest them. Corcoran v. Renehan, 24 App. D. C. 411.

95. A guardian is not chargeable with interest on money which he negligently fails to invest, after the termination of his guardianship. Logan v. Gay [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 361, 87 S. W. 852.

96. A guardian who receives a legacy in money for his ward and mingles it with his own funds and invests it in his own name, is bound to account for it in money. Hall v. Turner's Estate [Vt.] 61 A. 763.

97. Glassell v. Glassell [Cal.] 82 P. 42.

A de facto guardian is subject to the same liabilities as one legally appointed.[98]

§ 11. Compensation of guardian.[99]—The measure of compensation for improvement of the ward's property with his own funds is the increased value imparted to the property.[1] He is not entitled to compensation for increase in value of the property of his ward owing to ordinary good husbandry,[2] but may be allowed therefor when caused by unusual development of the land.[3] A guardian who converts his ward's funds and is guilty of malfeasance is not entitled to compensation.[4]

§ 12. Guardianship bonds.[5]—A bond not executed as required by law may be good as a common-law bond.[6] Failure to discharge his trust and return an inventory as required by law [7] or to respond in an action to review his account,[8] constitute breaches of his bond, but failure to satisfy a judgment based on a contract not binding on the estate is not.[9] In Texas a conversion of the proceeds of a sale of realty is a breach of the general bond,[10] but in Pennsylvania it is not.[11] The surety cannot be held liable for loss of funds remaining in the hands of the guardian as trustee after a settlement and turning over to the wards of their property.[12] No liability on the bond attaches until a breach thereof has been judicially determined.[13]

Any material alteration [14] or transaction increasing the liability of the surety discharges him,[15] but the mere giving of a second bond will not discharge the sureties on the original.[16]

The sureties may be liable without an accounting,[17] and a citation to a guardian to settle an account of his guardianship is not indispensable to a right of action on his bond when circumstances make the citation impossible.[18] In Minnesota consent

98. Liable for compound interest on rents and profits of the ward received by him. Watts v. Watt's Ex'x [Va.] 51 S. E. 359.

99. See 3 C. L. 1575. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2338, 2730, a committee of an insane person who receives principal of the estate which is not converted into cash is entitled to one-half commissions on the value of such principal. In re Notman, 93 N. Y. S. 82.

1. Not the amount actually expended. Bramlett v. Mathis [S. C.] 50 S. E. 644.

2. Bramlett v. Mathis [S. C.] 50 S. E. 644.

3. As by drainage. Bramlett v. Mathis [S. C.] 50 S. E. 644.

4. Glassell v. Glassell [Cal.] 82 P. 42. A guardian who accepts rebates from tradesmen is properly denied commissions. Savage's Estate, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 292.

5. See 3 C. L. 1575.

6. A bond not good as a statutory bond because not signed by the principal. Code 1896, § 2282. Matthews v. Mauldin [Ala.] 38 So. 849.

7. Miller v. Kelsey [Me.] 60 A. 717. Failing to make a true inventory, conversion of the ward's property, etc., is a breach of the bond required by Rev. St. 1898, § 3981. Brehm v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 36.

8. Engelcke v. Engelcke, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 88.

9. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Rich & Bros. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 338.

10. The surety is liable for a portion of the proceeds of a sale of realty, converted by the guardian. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Schelper [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 871.

11. A surety on a general guardianship bond who has no notice that it was intended for any other purpose than that shown on its face is not liable for the misappropriation of the proceeds of a sale of the ward's lands. Commonwealth v. American Bonding Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 939, afg. 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 145.

12. Broomall's Estate, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 475.

13. Failure of a guardian to make a proper settlement does not fix a liability upon either him or his sureties. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Schelper [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 871.

14. Under a statute requiring a bond in double the sum of the personal property, the amount of the penalty must be filled in at the time it is executed. If filled in thereafter the bond is not binding on the obligors. Rollins v. Ebbs, 137 N. C. 355, 49 S. E. 341.

15. A receipt signed by the ward acquitting the guardian of all claims against him does not "increase the risk" of the sureties on the guardian's bond so as to release them. Griffin v. Collins [Ga.] 49 S. E. 827.

16. A second bond given by a guardian to entitle him to receive funds in another state will not supersede the original bond in the absence of statutory proceedings for discharge of the sureties. Miller v. Kelsey [Me.] 60 A. 717. Where a guardian gives a statutory bond and after a devastavit and prior to release of the sureties gives a common-law bond, the sureties on both bonds are liable. Matthews v. Mauldin [Ala.] 38 So. 849.

17. Where a guardian appointed in one state dies insolvent in another leaving no assets in the state of his appointment. Parker v. Dominick, 94 N. Y. S. 249.

18. Miller v. Kelsey [Me.] 60 A. 717. Where a guardian has absconded and converted the entire property of his ward. Id.

of the probate court is a necessary prerequisite to maintain an action against the surety on a guardian's bond.[19] The liability of the sureties is no greater than that of the principal.[20] A guardian may lawfully agree with his sureties to indemnify them against liability by keeping up a life policy payable to the ward.[21] In Kentucky if a county judge negligently accepts an insolvent surety, he is liable for loss sustained by reason of such insolvency.[22] The measure of his liability is whatever the ward would have been entitled to recover from the surety.[23]

A suit on a guardian's bond is an action at law.[24] A guardian and several sets of sureties may be joined.[25] An action may be maintained in the name of the party aggrieved, though the state is the obligee of the bond.[26] Circumstances may render joinder of the principal unnecessary.[27] A defense of laches [28] must be specially pleaded [29] if it does not appear that the sureties were prejudiced.[30] Where the guardianship relation is closed and the accounts adjusted by the probate court, a cause of action against the sureties for an amount due from the guardian accrues at once if there be some person capable of suing.[31] If there be no person capable of suing, the action is postponed.[32] An action by a ward against her former guardian and one surety, to falsify and surcharge the guardian's account does not toll the statute of limitations as against the heirs and administrator of a deceased surety.[33] An order of the ordinary revoking the guardianship made conditional on the guardian's making full settlement with the ward is not a bar to an action by the ward's administrator on the guardian's bond,[34] especially where statutory requirements were not complied with in obtaining the discharge.[35] County courts have no power except as provided by law to discharge sureties for misconduct of the guardian.[36]

19. Eaton v. Gale [Minn.] 104 N. W. 833.

20. They are entitled to a credit for payment of incumbrances on the ward's property, or for maintenance of the ward. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Schelper [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 871. The surety is only prima facie bound by a judgment against the estate of the ward rendered in an action to which he was not a party. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Rich & Bros. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 338.

21. If upon the death of the guardian the ward receives from the proceeds of such policy a sum equal to that for which the guardian or his sureties would otherwise be liable, it is a satisfaction of the liability of the guardian's estate or of his surety. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Schelper [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 871.

22. Under Ky. St. 1903, §§ 2017, 2018. Commonwealth v. Lee [Ky.] 86 S. W. 990.

23. Commonwealth v. Lee [Ky.] 86 S. W. 990.

24. Where questions of law and fact are submitted to an auditor and exceptions of fact are filed to his report, such exceptions should be submitted to a jury for determination. Griffin v. Collins [Ga.] 49 S. E. 827.

25. A bill by a ward against his guardian and several sets of sureties on his official bonds is not bad for misjoinder, multifariousness, and want of equity. Matthews v. Mauldin [Ala.] 38 So. 849.

26. See, also, as bearing on this, Shannon's Code, §§ 4494, 4486. Brannon v. Wright, 113 Tenn. 692, 84 S. W. 612.

27. Where the amount is liquidated, the guardian dead, and his estate insolvent, an action may be maintained against the sureties without joining the principal or exhausting his estate. Under Shannon's Code, §§ 4484, 4486, 4494. Brannon v. Wright, 113 Tenn. 692, 84 S. W. 612.

28. In Georgia, the period of limitations within which suit on a bond may be brought is 20 years. The effect of Civ. Code 1895, § 2565, is to provide that, in the absence of a full exhibit of the guardian's accounts and full knowledge by the ward of his rights, receipts by the ward in final settlement are prima facie binding on him only after the lapse of four years. Griffin v. Collins [Ga.] 49 S. E. 827. Claim for relief against the estate of a deceased surety held barred by laches. Surety had been dead 20 years and limitations had nearly run against the cause of action. Wallace v. Swepston [Ark.] 86 S. W. 398.

29. In an action on a guardian's bond, a defense of laches in compelling an accounting by the guardian must be pleaded where it does not appear that defendants were prejudiced by the delay. Cook v. Ceas [Cal.] 82 P. 370.

30. Three years and 2 months' delay in compelling a guardian to account does not raise a presumption that sureties on the guardian's bond were prejudiced thereby, limitations being 4 years. Cook v. Ceas [Cal.] 82 P. 370.

31. Under Mansf. Dig. §§ 4484, 4489, where the ward is a minor at the time his guardian was removed, he may sue on the bond within 10 years after attaining majority. Wallace v. Swepston [Ark.] 86 S. W. 398.

32. Limitations do not commence. Wallace v. Swepston [Ark.] 86 S. W. 398.

33. Wallace v. Swepston [Ark.] 86 S. W. 398.

34. Griffin v. Collins [Ga.] 49 S. E. 827.

35. Civ. Code 1895, § 2567, requiring pub-

In Massachusetts judgment may be entered after the death of the ward.[37] Technical error in the entry may be corrected in the supreme court by an entry nunc pro tunc.[38]

HABEAS CORPUS (AND REPLEGIANDO).

§ 1. Nature of the remedy and occasion and propriety of it.[39]—Habeas corpus is a civil proceeding [40] of common-law origin, having for its purpose the enlargement of persons under illegal restraint.[41] Under this writ the custody of minors [42] and insane persons [43] may be determined. The remedy is also variously used to review the trial and sentence of courts martial,[44] extradition,[45] and contempt proceedings,[46] proceedings under the Chinese exclusion act,[47] and frequently to let to bail.[48] lication of four weeks' notice of the application of a guardian for letters of dismission was not complied with. Griffin v. Collins [Ga.] 49 S. E. 827.

36. Where statutory requirements are not complied with, an order discharging sureties is void and a new bond taken on such discharge is merely cumulative. Brehm v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 36.

37. Under Rev. Laws, c. 149, §§ 20, 21, 29, 31, 33, a judgment of a guardian's bond in favor of a judge of probate is not void because of the death of the ward, at date of judgment, and failure to appoint an administrator. Donaher v. Flint [Mass.] 74 N. E. 927.

38. In an action on a guardian's bond, judgment for the penalty should be entered before reference to the assessor to ascertain the amount for which execution shall issue. Donaher v. Flint [Mass.] 74 N. E. 927.

39. See 3 C. L. 1576.

40. 3 C. L. 1576, n. 19. Garfinkle v. Sullivan, 37 Wash. 650, 80 P. 188.

41. One who after conviction is illegally hired out by the constable to work out his fine and costs pending an appeal by him in habeas corpus proceedings is illegally restrained of his liberty. Ex parte Winford [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1146. One confined as an escaped convict is entitled to habeas corpus to try the question of identity unless there has been an adjudication thereon. In re Moebus [N. H.] 62 A. 170.

42. See 3 C. L. 1576, n. 24. Kirkland v. Canty [Ga.] 50 S. E. 90; Dawson v. Dawson [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 613. Paramount question is welfare of child (People v. Elder, 98 App. Div. 244, 90 N. Y. S. 703; Plahn v. Dribred [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 867; State v. Martin [Minn.] 103 N. W. 888), but not as against parent in absence of affirmative showing of unfitness (Terry v. Johnson [Neb.] 103 N. W. 319). Children in public institutions. New York Foundling Hospital v. Gatti [Ariz.] 79 P. 231; Rule v. Geddes, 23 App. D. C. 31. Commitment of minor to wrong institution may be corrected by committing judge. and, therefore, no ground for discharge. People v. Superintendent of House of Refuge on Randall's Island, 46 Misc. 131, 93 N. Y. S. 218.

43. See 3 C. L. 1576, n. 20. In re Boyett. 136 N. C. 415, 48 S. E. 789; In re Palmer, 26 R. I. 486, 59 A. 746.

44. Courts martial being courts of inferior and limited jurisdiction, it must be made to clearly and affirmatively appear, in order to give effect to their judgments. that the court was legally constituted, that it had jurisdiction of the person and offense charged, and that the judgment imposed was conformable to law. Hamilton v. McClaughry, 136 F. 445; Ex parte Townsend, 133 F. 74; In re Lessard, 134 F. 305.

45. Munsey v. Clough, 196 U. S. 364, 49 Law. Ed. 515; Gillis v. Leekley [Wash.] 80 P. 300; Ex parte Dennison [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1045; Farrell v. Hawley [Conn.] 61 A. 502; Barriere v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 55; Hayes v. Palmer, 21 App. D. C. 450. Bail refused. Ex parte Wall [Miss.] 38 So. 628. The regularity of the proceedings had before the extradition are not reviewable on habeas corpus. In re Letcher, 145 Cal. 563, 79 P. 65. It appearing that the prisoner is not a fugitive from justice he was discharged. Poor v. Cudihee, 37 Wash. 609, 79 P. 1105. Petition held not to state a case for Federal interference on the ground of irregularity in extradition proceedings. Ex parte Moebus, 137 F. 154. Under U. S. Rev. St. § 5270, vesting United States judges and commissioners with jurisdiction in extradition proceedings, judgment of commissioner cannot be reviewed on habeas corpus. In re Herskovitz, 136 F. 713.

46. In re Hale, 139 F. 496; Elliott v. U. S., 23 App. D. C. 456. Sufficiency of judgment. Ex parte Kruegel [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 1020. Writ denied because error of court was appealable. In re Downey [Mont.] 78 P. 772. Failure of record to show jurisdiction. Ex parte Hoar, 146 Cal. 132, 79 P. 853. One attached for contempt in refusing to produce books and papers required by a committee of a municipal assembly is not entitled to release on habeas corpus on the

Where the petitioner is detained by virtue of some process of law, the only office of the writ is to try questions of jurisdiction;[49] hence, the remedy cannot be employed as a substitute for the writ of error, certiorari, or an appeal.[50] Wherefore mere irregularity cannot avail;[51] but where an order or judgment is absolutely void the writ may be invoked.[52] The remedy of one in custody under a void statute is habeas corpus.[53]

The suspension of the writ of habeas corpus prohibited by the Alabama Bill of Rights only gives him the right to demand that his case be investigated according to the usual mode of procedure in courts of justice.[54]

§ 2. Jurisdiction.[55]—The power of Federal courts to release by habeas corpus a person held in state custody contrary to the federal constitution or laws is unquestioned,[56] but the exercise of the power is accompanied with very great embarrass-ground that the papers would criminate him, where no such claim was made at the time he refused to produce them. Ex parte Conrades [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 150.

47. United States v. Ju Toy, 198 U. S. 253, 49 Law. Ed. 1040.

48. Farrell v. Hawley [Conn.] 61 A. 502; Ex parte Parker [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 230; State v. Zummo [La.] 39 So. 442; In re Moss, 23 App. D. C. 474; Packenham v. Reed, 37 Wash. 258, 79 P. 786. Ex parte Wall [Miss.] 38 So. 628. There being sufficient evidence that the proof of guilt was evident and the presumption great, the refusal of a circuit court to grant bail will not be disturbed on habeas corpus. In re Tubbs [Mich.] 102 N. W. 626.

49. Errors not going to the jurisdiction of the court cannot be reviewed on habeas corpus. Smith v. Territory, 4 Ariz. 95, 78 P. 1035. Commitment for contempt. Ex parte McCown [N. C.] 51 S. E. 957. Habeas corpus is the proper remedy when the process upon which a convict is held was issued by a court having no jurisdiction of the case or person at the time of its issue (Tuttle v. Lang [Me] 60 A. 892), but an arrest without a warrant held not a jurisdictional defect (Hollibaugh v. Hehn [Wyo.] 79 P. 1044). If the indictment does not charge an offense known to the law, there is want of jurisdiction (Hyde v. Shine, 25 S. Ct. 760; Ex parte Harris [Miss.] 37 So. 505; State v. Johns [Ala.] 38 So. 755), but a prisoner will not be set at liberty because the complaint states an alleged offense so defectively that it is or may be subject to successful attack by demurrer or motion to quash, if it contains enough substantially to accuse him of an act justifying his arrest and detention (State v. Shrader [Neb.] 103 N. W. 276). Whether the indictment states the offense with sufficient particularity cannot be tried on habeas corpus. Ex parte Bunkers [Cal. App.] 81 P. 748. Sentence to imprisonment wholly void for lack of authority to sentence to the institution in question. Ex parte Allen [Mich.] 103 N. W. 209.

50. Gillespie v. Rump, 163 Ind. 457, 72 N. E. 138; People v. Murphy, 215 Ill. 584, 72 N. E. 902; Welty v. Ward [Ind.] 73 N. E. 889. Habeas corpus to review judgment of conviction. In re Clark, 28 Utah, 268, 78 P. 475; Ex parte Bettis [Ala.] 37 So. 640; Ex parte Russell [Wash.] 82 P. 290. Uncertainty in a complaint as to the time charged cannot be raised on habeas corpus. Ex parte Childs [Cal. App.] 81 P. 667. That the offense was committed in a county other than the one named in the charge will not be considered on habeas corpus (Ex parte Terry [Kan.] 80 P. 586), nor will the writ lie to inquire into the legality of a warrant or commitment issued from a court of competent jurisdiction (Id.).

51. See 3 C. L. 1576, n. 27. Not mere irregularity but only illegality is open to question in habeas corpus. Towery v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 310. Where the conviction was proper but the sentence irregular, the sentence could not be reviewed. In re Butler [Mich.] 101 N. W. 630. Stay orders granted on defendants' motion after trial and sentence are not such an irregularity as to justify discharge on habeas corpus. People v. Murphy, 212 Ill. 549, 72 N. E. 905. Where a juror became ill and trial by consent proceeded with eleven jurors, habeas corpus is ineffectual to procure release of respondent. In re Shinski [Wis.] 104 N. W. 86. Former jeopardy or proceedings equivalent to an acquittal are matters for defense to a subsequent trial, and not ground for a discharge on habeas corpus. Gillespie v. Rump, 163 Ind. 457, 72 N. E. 138. Errors committed by the court in contempt proceedings cannot be reviewed on habeas corpus proceedings. Perry v. Pernet [Ind.] 74 N. E. 609. Not to raise sufficiency of indictment where defendant pleaded guilty. People v. Hayes, 95 N. Y. S. 471.

52. Where certain members of grand jury who returned bill of indictment under which petitioner was convicted had served at a previous term of court, the conviction was illegal and petitioner was entitled to discharge. Phillips v. Brown [Ga.] 50 S. E. 361; Michaelson v. Beemer [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1007.

53. See 3 C. L. 1577, n. 30. Ex parte Kair [Nev.] 80 P. 463. But it is held that the constitutionality of a statute will not be determined in habeas corpus when the accused can test the statute on appeal. People v. District Ct. of Second Judicial Dist. [Colo.] 80 P. 888.

54. State v. Towery [Ala.] 39 So. 309.

55. See 3 C. L. 1578.

56. Ex parte Moebus, 137 F. 154. The decision of a state supreme court that a prisoner is not held in violation of the rights secured him by the U. S. Constitution is not binding on the Federal supreme court. Brown v. Urquhart, 139 F. 846. Officer of United States held in custody for an act done ment, and should be so exercised with sound discretion and great caution,[57] and only where the judgment of the state court is not reviewable by appeal or writ of error.[58] Where a Federal court has before it a habeas corpus proceeding a state court will not entertain a like proceeding to change the custodian of the accused.[59] A writ of habeas corpus may be issued out of the Federal courts to inquire into the cause of a commitment under a civil as well as a criminal process.[60] A district court is without jurisdiction to review by habeas corpus proceedings the decision of a collector denying the right of a Chinese person to enter the United States, against his claim of citizenship, where he has taken no appeal from such decision to the secretary of commerce and labor.[61] And where an application after affirmance on appeal sets up only alleged citizenship, the writ should be denied, the finding of the commissioner being final.[62] Application should be made to the district rather than the supreme court in the absence of special circumstances.[63]

The writ will not issue to one outside the court's territorial jurisdiction.[64]

§ 3. Petition.[65]—A defect in a petition in that it was not attested and subscribed by two witnesses who were present at the delivery of the same, as provided by statute, may be cured by amendment.[66] A motion to quash admits the averments of the petition.[67]

§ 4. Hearing on petition and issuance of writ.[68]—Under a statute authorizing an application for habeas corpus to be made in term or vacation, a judge in vacation has authority to issue the writ and pass upon the application.[69]

§ 5. The writ; service thereof; effect of writ.[70]

§ 6. Certiorari in aid of habeas corpus.[71]—Petitions for habeas corpus are frequently accompanied by applications for certiorari as ancillary thereto, and both are awarded or denied together.[72]

§ 7. Hearing and determination on return; judgment; costs.[73]—The correctness of court records cannot be questioned on habeas corpus.[74] If the petitioner is legally in custody it is immaterial when the officer got his authority, even though after the writ issued, if the authority existed when the officer made his return to the writ.[75] Where the respondent claims to hold the petitioner under a judgment of conor omitted under authority vested in him by the laws of the United States. In re Deaken, 137 F. 680. Federal marshal committing homicide in performance of duty. State of W. Va. v. Laing [C. C. A.] 133 F. 887.

57. Ex parte Caldwell, 138 F. 487; Ex parte Rogers, 138 F. 961. Will not issue from Federal courts to interfere with administration of state laws unless rights secured by Federal constitution are infringed. Rogers v. Peck, 26 S. Ct. 87.

58. In re Dowd, 133 F. 747.

59. In re Lee Look, 146 Cal. 567, 80 P. 858.

60. Ex parte Caldwell, 138 F. 487.

61. Mok Chung v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 166; Ex parte Fong Yim, 134 F. 938.

62. United States v. Ju Toy, 198 U. S. 253, 49 Law. Ed. 1040.

63. State v. McColley [La.] 39 So. 81.

64. See 3 C. L. 1578, n. 47. The supreme court of the District of Columbia has no jurisdiction in a habeas corpus proceeding against the secretary of the navy to inquire into the grounds of the detention of a person, not an inhabitant of the district, who it is claimed is unlawfully restrained of his liberty in a distant possession of the United States by or under the authority of a navy officer because such navy officer in the discharge of his duties resides in the district. McGowan v. Moody, 22 App. D. C. 148. Whether the writ will lie in such district against a person who having custody of another has removed the latter from the district before the issuance of the writ for the purpose of evading the process of the court but who may still have the power to produce him, quaere. Id. See discussion of this question by Justices Campbell and Cooley in In re Jackson, 15 Mich. 417.

65. See 3 C. L. 1578.

66. Commonwealth v. Keeper of County Prison, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 191.

67. Willis v. Willis [Ind.] 75 N. E. 653.

68. See 3 C. L. 1578. See, also, 2 C. L. 158.

69. State v. Simmons [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 35.

70. See 3 C. L. 1578. See, also, 2 C. L. 158.

71. See 3 C. L. 1578.

72. Hyde v. Shine, 25 S. Ct. 760.

73. See 3 C. L. 1578.

74. Remedy is to make application to lower court for correction of record. Hanley v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 149.

75. Ex parte Dye [Mont.] 79 P. 689. The fact that a foreign seaman was arrested by viction by a military court martial, the burden rests on him to show that the judgment is based on some provision of positive law.[76] In the District of Columbia the return is required to be made not to the court simply but before the court or justice by whose order the writ was issued.[77]

Whether a court on habeas corpus may examine the evidence adduced before a committing magistrate for the purpose of reviewing the decision of the magistrate that probable cause for binding over existed has been questioned.[78] In the Federal courts it is settled that the court will not weigh the evidence, although if there is an entire lack of evidence to support the accusation the court will order a discharge,[79] and this seems to be the rule that obtains in the state courts.[80] After conviction, however, the rule is universal, that the evidence, either that submitted before the an unauthorized person does not entitle him to his discharge; he should, on its appearing that he should be held, be remanded to the proper custody. Dallemagne v. Moisan, 197 U. S. 169, 49 Law. Ed. 709.

76. Hamilton v. McClaughry, 136 F. 445.

77. D. C. Code, § 1143. Elliott v. U. S., 23 App. D. C. 456.

78. The use of the writ of habeas corpus to test the sufficiency of the evidence upon which an information may have been based is disapproved in State v. Vasquez [Fla.] 38 So. 830.

79. Hyde v. Shine, 25 S. Ct. 760; Dimond v. Shine, 25 S. Ct. 766. Additional evidence of a Chinese person's citizenship cannot be taken on habeas corpus after decision of the immigration officers. United States v. Ju Toy, 198 U. S, 253, 49 Law. Ed. 1040. Mere contradictory evidence as to whether an extradited person was in the demanding state at the time of the commission of the crime will not entitle him to discharge, habeas corpus not being the proper proceeding in which to try disputed questions of alibi or guilt. Munsey v. Clough, 196 U. S. 364, 49 Law. Ed. 515.

80. Note: From time immemorial it has been declared that the proper function of habeas corpus is to test only questions of jurisdiction. Accordingly the rule is stated to be that the court or judge granting the writ may not and will not go behind the commitment, if that instrument be fair upon its face, to inquire into the proceedings leading up to the commitment. But while it is true that the court, where the petitioner is committed in process of execution, after trial, conviction and sentence, may not go behind the commitment to inquire into the regularity of the various proceedings, or the sufficiency of the evidence (Young v. Fain, 121 Ga. 737; Seller's Case, 186 Mass. 301; In re Smith, 4 Ariz. 95; People v. House of Mercy, 128 N. Y. 180; State v. Glenn, 54 Md. 572), or even where one has been committed for trial by a grand jury, the indictment by the grand jury being treated as the final action of a judicial body (In re Kennedy, 144 Cal. 634, 103 Am. St. Rep. 117, 67 L. R. A. 406); yet where one accused of crime is committed for trial by an examining magistrate, empowered as in most jurisdictions to commit only when it shall appear that an offense has been committed, and that there is probable cause to believe the accused guilty, in such case the determination of the magistrate is jurisdictional, and if made upon no evidence whatever, or even upon evidence insufficient to warrant the determination that probable cause exists, the magistrate's action will be reviewed, upon the matter being brought to the attention of the proper tribunal, and in the appropriate form (Ex parte Jones, 96 F. 200; Commonwealth v. Shortall, 206 Pa. 165, 98 Am. St. Rep. 759, 65 L. R. A. 193; In re Eberle, 44 Kan. 472; Ex parte Sternes, 82 Cal. 245; State v. Baeverstad, 12 N. D. 527, 97 N. W. 548; Ex parte West, 100 Ala. 65; In re Levy, 8 Idaho, 53, 66 P. 806; In re Snell, 31 Minn. 110; Cowell v. Patterson, 49 Iowa, 514; People v. Stanley, 18 How. Pr. [N. Y.] 179; In re Henry, 35 N. Y. S. 210, cited with approval in People v. Wells, 57 App. Div. [N. Y.] 140, 68 N. Y. S. 59; People v. Crane, 94 App. Div. [N. Y.] 397, 88 N. Y. S. 343; State v. Huegin, 110 Wis. 189, 85 N. W. 1046, 62 L. R. A. 700). An examination of cases which apparently hold the contrary will disclose that they are cases where the court has been asked to weigh the evidence submitted before the magistrate. This as stated in the text is a misuse of the writ, since error on the part of the examining magistrate—where there is some competent legal evidence on which to exercise his judgment—in determining that the accused shall be put upon trial is not jurisdictional error (State v. Hayden, 35 Minn. 283; In re Balcom, 12 Neb. 316; Ex parte Willoughby, 14 Nev. 451). In State v. Scott, 43 La. Ann. 857, the question was not raised before the proper tribunal, the judge before whom the preliminary examination was had being at the same time the judge before whom the trial must be had and having jurisdiction of habeas corpus concurrent with the supreme court. In Appeal of Bion, 59 Conn. 372, 11 L. R. A. 694, the court refused to examine the evidence because the matter was not before the court in the proper form, namely, the ancillary writ of certiorari had not been sued out and the evidence, therefore, was not properly before the court. In Indiana no person may be discharged from an order of commitment for alleged want of probable cause. Davis v. Bible, 134 Ind. 108.

Ex parte Perdue, 58 Ark. 285, is sometimes cited to the proposition that the sufficiency of evidence is not open to review. But here the question upon which the evidence before the magistrate was given was whether a deed of trust by which a lien was alleged to have been created upon the property alleged to have been unlawfully removed, contained the name of the grantee, and the evidence the court on habeas corpus properly refused to review.

committing magistrate or at the trial, will not be examined on habeas corpus, the remedy being by writ of error or appeal.[81]

A habeas corpus proceeding to obtain the custody of a child being in the nature of a private suit, in which the public is not concerned, the judgment of a court having competent jurisdiction is a final order and when unappealed from is res adjudicata between the parties.[82] A return to a writ of habeas corpus for the possession of a child that the mother held the child by virtue of an alleged agreement between the parents is insufficient to overcome the force of a decree subsequently rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction awarding the custody of the child to the father.[83] No other relief can be granted than the release of complainant from unlawful custody.[84] Where, however, a prisoner is held under a void commitment, but is properly informed against by information or indictment charging a crime before a court of competent jurisdiction, on a habeas corpus proceeding, he should be discharged from his confinement on the illegal commitment, and remanded to the custody of the court having jurisdiction of the information or indictment pending against him,[85] and where an illegal sentence was imposed, direction was given on habeas corpus that the applicant be taken from the chain gang and carried before the trial court for resentence.[86] Where one conditionally pardoned is arrested because of an alleged violation of the condition, the question of violation may be tried on habeas corpus brought by him for relief from arrest.[87] A question of fact which petitioner waives will be so assumed as to support the confinement.[88]

To assess the costs of habeas corpus proceedings, against a sheriff who has lawfully performed his duty when an order of discharge is entered thereon, is erroneous.[89]

§ 8. Review.[90]—A final order awarding custody of a child is appealable,[91] and it is held that since habeas corpus is a civil proceeding an order for discharge of a prisoner is appealable.[92] The erroneous discharge of a prisoner by a court of competent jurisdiction is not reviewable on certiorari.[93] Under the act of Congress, March 3, 1891, an appeal lies from the order of a Federal district judge denying a writ,[94] but ordinarily an appeal will not lie from an order dismissing a petition, the remedy in such case being by application to another judge.[95] The refusal of the lower court

81. Probable cause to bind over. Ex parte Knudtson [Idaho] 79 P. 641.
Sufficiency of the evidence to support a conviction. Smith v. Territory, 4 Ariz. 95, 78 P. 1035; Young v. Fain, 121 Ga. 737, 49 S. E. 731. On habeas corpus to review a commitment to an industrial school it will be conclusively presumed that all necessary facts were found, though no findings are indicated by the commitment. In re Phillips [Del. Super.] 59 A. 47.

82. Cormack v. Marshall, 211 Ill. 519, 71 N. E. 1077; In re Clifford, 37 Wash. 460, 79 P. 1001; Kirkland v. Canty [Ga.] 50 S. E. 90; Dawson v. Dawson [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 613.

83. Maddox v Barr [Fla.] 38 So. 766.

84. The action of the committing court in applying a deposit in lieu of bail to the payment of a fine cannot be reviewed. State v. District Ct. of Second Judicial Dist. [Mont.] 79 P. 409.

85. Michaelson v. Beemer [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1007.

86. Littlejohn v. Stells [Ga.] 51 S. E. 390.

87. Ex parte Alvarez [Fla.] 39 So. 481.

88. Identity of one imprisoned as an escaped convict. In re Moebus [N. H.] 62 A. 170.

89. Magerstadt v. People, 105 Ill. App. 316.

90. See 3 C L. 1579.

91. Mahon v. People [Ill.] 75 N. E. 768. Circuit court commissioner. State v. Martin, 93 Minn. 294, 101 N. W. 303. Under the Alabama Code (Code 1896, § 457), a judgment awarding petitioner custody of a minor child and adjudging costs against defendant, is appealable. Stewart v. Paul [Ala.] 37 So. 691.

92. Garfinkle v. Sullivan, 37 Wash. 650, 80 P. 188. An order of discharge upon a writ of habeas corpus is not a final order in the sense that an appeal or writ of error may be prosecuted thereon. Magerstadt v. People, 105 Ill. App. 316. But it is also held that in the absence of statutory provisions a judgment on habeas corpus proceedings either discharging or remanding the prisoner, cannot be reviewed on appeal. State v. Towery [Ala.] 39 So. 309.

93. State v. Simmons [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 35.

94. Chapter 17, § 5, 26 Stat. 827. In re Marmo, 138 F. 201.

95. See 3 C. L. 1579, n. 83. Ex parte Billups [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 347.

to quash a writ of habeas corpus is not a final judgment and cannot be reviewed on appeal or error.[96] An appeal by the United States marshal from an order of a lower court in habeas corpus proceedings discharging petitioner from custody may be prosecuted without an appeal bond.[97] Affidavits as to matters occurring at the trial of a writ of habeas corpus will not be considered by an appellate court in the absence of a bill of exceptions.[98] A prisoner set at liberty by habeas corpus may, upon reversal of the order by an appellate court, be remanded to the custody from which he was freed.[99]

HANDWRITING, PROOF OF; HARBOR MASTERS, see latest topical index.

HARMLESS AND PREJUDICIAL ERROR.

§ 1. The general doctrine.[1]—Generally speaking, a judgment will not be reversed or a verdict set aside or other proceeding overthrown because of error of which it can be said that no harm resulted to the complaining party,[2] even though he has

96. Rigor v. State [Md.] 61 A. 631.
97. Palmer v. Thompson, 20 App. D. C. 273.
98. Maddox v Barr [Fla.] 38 So. 766.
99. State v. Shrader [Neb.] 103 N. W. 276.
1. See 3 C L. 1579.
2. Commonwealth v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 235; Jackson v. Gunton, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 203; Vanderslice v. Donner, 26 Pa. Super. Ct 319; Simonds v. Georgia Iron & Coal Co., 133 F. 776; Earel v. Kickhofel, 114 Ill. App. 658; Little v. Southern R. Co., 120 Ga. 347, 47 S. E. 953. There must be such prejudice to appellant as cannot be remedied without a new trial. New Orleans Terminal Co. v. Teller, 113 La. 733, 37 So. 624. Must appear that substantial justice has not been done. Indianapolis, etc., R. Co. v. Hubbard [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 535. If it appears from the entire record that the judgment is correct, it will not be reversed for technical errors. Boyce v. Augusta Camp, No. 7, 429 M. W. A., 14 Okl. 642, 78 P. 322. Whenever there is such a violation of established practice or principles in regard to the exercise of judicial authority as to seriously interfere with the efficiency of judicial instrumentalities to administer justice, the error is jurisdictional. Harrigan v. Gilchrist, 121 Wis. 127, 99 N. W. 909. Decree awarding homestead is not prejudicial to a defendant who makes no claim as against the homestead. Miller v. Stuck, 69 Kan. 657, 77 P. 552. Plaintiff suing for change of grade held not prejudiced by ruling that in changing grade defendant was not taking, but merely damaging plaintiff's property. Swope v. Seattle, 36 Wash. 113, 78 P. 607. Defendant appellant technically entitled to judgment on pleadings. Keizer v. Remington Paper Co. [Kan.] 80 P. 570. Inclusion of attorney's fees in lieu of mortgage on foreclosure against executor. Bell v. Thompson [Cal.] 82 P. 327. Where the verdict is in favor of the plaintiff as to one defendant and against him as to the other, plaintiff cannot complain of errors affecting only the case against the defendant against whom he had judgment. Heidt v. Southern Tel. & T. Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 361. Instructions. Reuss v. Monroe, 115 Ill. App. 10; Beck v. People, 115 Ill. App. 19. Errors in evidence are immaterial where substantial justice has been done. Schrodt v. St. Joseph [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 543. Where the holders of bonds illegally issued by a municipality follow the fund, the municipality is not harmed by a judgment giving them title to a building erected with the funds instead of ordering it sold for their benefit where the property is not more valuable than the fund. Board of Trustees of Fordsville v. Postel [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1065.

So provided by statute: Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 401, 670. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Clark, 32 Ind. App. 644, 70 N. E. 828. Erroneous instruction will not reverse where judgment is right on merits. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Schomberg [Ind.] 72 N. E. 1041; Terre Haute & L. R. Co. v. Salmon, 34 Ind. App. 564, 73 N. E. 268. Instructions regarded as a whole. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. James [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 536. Statute does not extend to prejudicial errors in instructions and admitting evidence. Thuis v. Vincennes [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 141. Rev. St. 1898, §§ 2829, 2830, 3068. Milwaukee Trust Co. v. Sherwin, 121 Wis. 468, 98 N. W. 223, 99 N. W. 229. Municipal Court Act (Laws 1902, p. 1583, c. 580), § 326. Lesser v. Adolph, 91 N. Y. S. 705. Rev. St. 1887, § 4231. White v. Johnson [Idaho] 79 P. 455. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 6535. State v. Everett Water Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 794. Const. § 147. Personal judgment against members of firm in suit to set aside fraudulent conveyance to them. Holmes Bros. v. Ferguson-McKinney Dry Goods Co. [Miss.] 39 So. 70. Civ. Code, § 134. Errors in refusing continuance and concerning disqualification of judge are immaterial where judgment follows directions given on prior appeal. Tye v. Tye, 26 Ky. L. R. 939, 82 S. W. 1005. No error in pleading can be considered on appeal unless it affects the substantial rights of the parties. Ignored where judgment for right parties and not questioned, only issues presented were tried. Miller v. McConnell, 26 Ky. L. R. 181, 80 S. W. 1103. Error in failing to transfer action on note and to foreclose mortgage securing same to common-law docket because answer presented common-law defense, not cause for reversal, where evidence was insufficient to entitle defendant to go to jury thereon. Davis v. Case Threshing Mach. Co., 26 Ky. L. R. 235, 80 S. W. 1145. Refusal to compel election. Gregory v. New Home Sew. Mach. Co. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 529. Failure to file exhibit. Cabell v. Henderson [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1095. Overruling motion to make complaint more specific. Craft v. Barron [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1099. Rev. St. 1899, §§ 655, 659, 672, 865. Variance and defects in pleadings. Railroad killing stock. Litton v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 978. Rev. St. 1899, § 672. No judgment reversed for defect of process or mistake in name of party. Brassfield v. Quincy, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 1032. Rev. St 1899, § 865. Refusal of requested instruction. Brown v. St. Louis Transit Co., 108 Mo. App. 310, 83 S. W. 310. Evidence in ejectment. Swope v. Ward, 185 Mo. 316, 84 S. W. 895. Statute cannot be invoked to aid harmful instruction on evidence in close case. Chambers v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 501. Variance. Rev. St. §§ 655, 798. Nelson v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 1119.

Right decision on wrong ground. Buster v. Wright [C. C. A.] 135 F. 947; Samberg v. American Exp. Co. [Mich.] 99 N. W. 879; Reynolds v. Smith [Fla.] 38 So. 903. Order granting new trial. Davis v. Dinnie [N. D.] 101 N. W. 314. New trial based on wrong ground. Ross v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 679; Morelock v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 5 The opinion of the trial court, as distinguished from its findings and decision, is not a proper subject for an assignment of errors. Eureka County Bank v. Clarke [C. C. A.] 130 F. 325. A correct ruling striking out testimony cannot be complained of, though the reasons for asking for such ruling are not given. Sterling v. Detroit, 134 Mich. 22, 10 Det. Leg. N. 399, 95 N. W. 986. An order, general in its terms, sustaining a demurrer, will be affirmed if the plea was properly stricken for any of the reasons specified in the demurrer, though the bill of exceptions recites that it was stricken for a particular reason. Huggins v. Southeastern Lime & Cement Co., 121 Ga. 311, 48 S. E. 933. Refusal to set aside a default judgment will not be reversed, though based on an erroneous ground, if the ruling in itself is correct. Scott v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n, 137 N. C. 515, 50 S. E. 221. Sustaining demurrer to plea on wrong ground. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Honea [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 267.

Result reached was the only one sustainable. David v. Whitehead [Wyo.] 79 P. 19; Bowman v. Little [Md.] 61 A. 223; French v. French [C. C. A.] 133 F. 491; McDowell v. Jones, 116 Ill. App. 13; Hawke v. Kerr [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1023; First Nat. Bank v. Dye [Neb.] 102 N. W. 614; In re Owen's Estate [Neb.] 103 N. W. 675; Nickell v. Tracy, 100 App. Div. 80, 91 N. Y. S. 287; Johnston v. Coney, 120 Ga. 767, 48 S. E. 373; White v. Southern R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 411. Direction of verdict for defendant is harmless, though his plea is bad where plaintiff has made no case. Lucente v. Davis [Md.] 61 A. 622. Errors in instructions will not justify reversal where the verdict of the jury was one that the court might have directed them to find (Taylor v. McCumber, 105 Ill. App. 87; Greene v. Murdock [Cal. App.] 81 P. 993; Sanger v. Travis County Farmers' Alliance [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 856), or if they could not have reasonably found otherwise (O'Donnell v. Armour Curled Hair Works, 111 Ill. App. 516; Hitt v. Kansas City, 110 Mo. App. 713, 85 S. W. 669). Incompetent evidence will not vitiate a verdict such that any other would have to be set aside. Feitl v. Chicago City R. Co., 113 Ill. App. 381. Where there can be no recovery, errors cannot prejudice. Supreme Court of Honor v. Buxton, 116 Ill. App. 447. Error in a charge of the court in a will contest not ground for reversal where it clearly appears that the will was a forgery. Gurley v. Armentraut, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 156. Errors are not available to plaintiff when upon the whole evidence he cannot recover. Muench v. The Standard Brewery, 113 Ill. App. 512. Decree for right party on merits. Strayer v. Dickerson, 213 Ill. 414, 72 N. E. 1085. Error in withdrawing case from jury is harmless where same result must have been reached on proper submission. Bennett v. Mutual Fire Ins. Co. [Md.] 60 A. 99. Errors in instructions. Moore v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 103 Va. 189, 48 S. E. 887; State v. Stone [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 950; Richmond, P. & P. Co. v. Allen, 103 Va. 532, 49 S. E. 656. Plaintiff not entitled to recover in any event, instruction placing burden on him of proving case beyond reasonable doubt is harmless. Wood v. Wyeth, 94 N. Y. S. 360. The admission in evidence of the record of a case which controls the one at bar is not prejudicial, though the judgment is not technically effective as an estoppel. Dunham v. Angus, 145 Cal. 165, 78 P. 557. Error in instructions on issue which court might have withdrawn. First Nat. Bank v. Follett [Colo. App.] 80 P. 147. Plea in recoupment not sustainable in any event; errors relating thereto are immaterial. Swindell & Co. v. First Nat. Bank, 121 Ga. 714, 49 S. E. 673. Where, on the whole case, no other verdict than that rendered could have been rightfully found, judgment will not be reversed on objections to instructions given and refused. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Harris, 103 Va. 635, 49 S. E. 997; Markowitz v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 186 Mo. 350, 85 S. W. 351. Where the correct rejection of a transcript of a will and its probate from another state necessitates a nonsuit, errors in ruling on other evidence are immaterial. Conrad v. Kennedy [Ga.] 51 S. E. 299. Where nonsuit was properly granted, the admission of evidence that could not have changed the result is harmless. Steele v. Central of Ga. R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 438. To give the jury a form of verdict for plaintiff in whose favor it must be under the evidence and instruction is harmless. Seidel v. Quincy, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 77. Error in instructions and argument for plaintiff immaterial. Beatty v. Clarkson, 110 Mo. App. 1, 83 S. W. 1033. Errors in refusing declarations of law. Sedalia Nat. Bank v. Cassidy Bros. Live Stock Commission Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 142. Denial of jury trial properly saved his objection and excepted to the ruling,[3] and has regularly preserved it in the "record." [4] The policy of courts is against so doing.

The party must affirmatively show error apparent on the "record." [5] It must harm him rather than a co-party,[6] and must be one which he has not invited,[7] and which he can assail without inconsistency to his contentions made on the trial.

is immaterial where the evidence is such that the court would have been required to direct a verdict. Combs v. Burt & B. Lumber Co. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 227. Exclusion of evidence for defendant on measure of damages held harmless where verdict for plaintiff could not have been for less. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Sherrod [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 363. Error in submitting an issue on which the evidence was insufficient to require submission is unavailable to the party having the burden of maintaining it. Franklin v. Boone [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 93, 88 S. W. 262. Error in treating investment as a loan where recovery is for no more than the proof would warrant under the correct theory. Hanks v. Hanks [Ill.] 75 N. E. 352.

Held prejudicial: Errors at the trial will not generally prejudice a plaintiff whose petition was subject to general demurrer; but they may if the petition was amendable and objection is first made to it on appeal. Moore v. Boothe [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 882. A judgment in favor of plaintiff in trespass to try title cannot be affirmed, notwithstanding other errors, on the ground that the evidence shows such prior possession in plaintiff as would entitle her to recover against defendant, who failed to show any title, where the evidence on such question was conflicting, and that issue was not submitted to the jury. Cobb v. Bryan [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 887.

3. See Saving Questions for Review, 4 C. L. 1368, as to necessity for so doing.

4. See Appeal and Review, § 9, 5 C. L. 161 (perpetuation of proceedings for reviewing count).

5. The "record" must show the error; hence the party objecting must preserve therein enough to show it. See Appeal and Review, § 9, 5 C. L. 161 et seq.; § 13E, 5 C. L. 218 et seq. Gairdner v. Tate, 121 Ga. 253, 48 S. E. 907. Record must show that erroneous order was complied with or otherwise prejudiced appellant. Jenner v. Brooks, 77 Conn. 384, 59 A. 508. Must appear that something happened while juror was asleep that prejudiced appellant. Kozlowski v. Chicago, 113 Ill. App. 513. Where excessiveness of verdict is claimed, record must show it. Coy v. Druckamiller [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 195. Sustaining objection to question cannot be said to be prejudicial where proposed answer is not shown. Bachant v. Boston & M. R. Co. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 642. Must appear that objectionable question was answered. Perrin v. Carbone [Cal. App.] 82 P. 222. In the absence of any showing that a person who was not the owner of land sold for taxes was in actual occupancy of it, alleged defects in the redemption notice served on him are immaterial. Barcroft v. Mann, 125 Iowa, 530, 101 N. W. 276. No showing that witness made prejudicial answer to erroneous question. Warren v. City Elec. R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 415, 104 N. W. 613. Connection of evidence must be shown. Dawson v. Proctor [Colo. App.] 79 P. 303. Appeal on judgment roll alone. Miller v. Enterprise Canal & Land Co., 145 Cal. 652, 79 P. 439. In order to obtain a reversal, plaintiff in error must show both error and injury. No injury because claim of creditor not ranked above that of others where assets are sufficient to pay him. First Nat. Bank v. American Sugar Refining Co., 120 Ga. 717, 48 S. E. 326. Ruling allowing introduction of certain evidence is harmless where none such was introduced. City Elec. R. Co. v. Smith, 121 Ga. 663, 49 S. E. 724. A premature entry of an order of reference was harmless where no account was taken thereunder. Reager's Adm'r v. Chappelear [Va.] 51 S. E. 170.

6. Ottawa v. Hayne, 114 Ill. App. 21; Halloran v. Holmes [N. D.] 101 N. W. 310. Evidence affecting only coparty. Davenport v. Lines, 77 Conn. 473, 59 A. 603; Frazer v. Frisbie Furniture Co. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 539. Refusal to quash service on codefendant. Tyler v. Davis [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 3. Others may not complain of a decree affecting only a receiver. Failure to provide for payment of his fees. Welsh v. Kelsey [Kan.] 79 P. 1081. Judgment creditor held not prejudiced by finding of interest of debtor which passed to another creditor. Lockhaven Trust & Safe Deposit Co. v. United States Mortg. & Trust Co. [Colo.] 81 P. 804. Not prejudicial to defendant in ejectment to charge that the verdict could not affect the rights of persons not parties. Lassiter v. Okeetee Club, 70 S. C. 102, 49 S. E. 224. Joint tort feasor against whom verdict and judgment were rendered cannot complain that verdict did not include the other defendant. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Clark [Miss.] 38 So. 97. Restriction of evidence to special purpose cannot harm a defendant to whose case the evidence is not applicable. Horstman v. Little [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 286. Joint defendant objects that suit was not dismissed as to his codefendant. Grand Pac. Hotel Co. v. Pinkerton [Ill.] 75 N. E. 427. Judgment against principal being correct, errors affecting only the sureties is immaterial. Thompson v. Chaffee [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 167, 89 S. W. 285.

7. Refusal to direct to ignore immaterial evidence is not reversible where such evidence was admitted without objection or motion to strike. Chicago City R. Co. v. Fetzer, 113 Ill. App. 280. Party cannot complain of evidence similar to that introduced by him. Ott v. Press Pub. Co. [Mash.] 82 P. 403; Policemen's Benevolent Ass'n v. Ryce, 115 Ill. App. 95; Merchants' Loan & Trust Co. v. Boucher, 115 Ill. App. 101. Further development of matter brought out by appellant's cross-examination. Philadelphia v. Neill, 211 Pa. 353, 60 A. 1033; Stowe v. La Conner T. & T. Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 856. Where plaintiff invites a verdict for defendant if the jury regard him as entitled only to nominal damages, a verdict for defendant cannot be set aside if one for nominal damages could have been sustained. Langdon v. Clarke [Neb.] 103 N. W. 62. A judgment resulting from submission on a wrong theory will be reversed, though it might have been sustained on the correct theory and appellant invited the error. McManus v. St. Regis Paper Co., 94 N. Y. S. 932. Evidence brought out at suggestion of appellant's counsel. Hyland v. Southern Bell Tel. & T. Co., 70 S. C. 315, 49 S. E. 879. Matters brought out by defendant's own counsel. Bastardy case. Johnson v. Walker [Miss.] 39 So. 49. Issue submitted at appellant's request. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Williams [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 248. Defendant held not prejudiced by admission under limitations of pleading offered by it, for improper purpose. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Slaughter [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1085. Reply to defendant's argument. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Colly [Ky.] 86 S. W. 536. Incompetent testimony contradictory of other incompetent testimony. Fields v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 134; O'Neal v. Weisman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 503, 88 S. W. 290. A party cannot object to the range taken in cross-examining a witness on an immaterial matter where he first offered the witness and examined him on the same matter. Minzey v. Marcy Mfg. Co., 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 593. Appellant cannot complain that pleadings went to the jury containing a stricken count where his counsel declined appellee's offer to remove the objectionable count. Elgin, A. & S. Traction Co. v. Wilson [Ill.] 75 N. E. 436.

The majority of courts presume prejudice from error once it is shown to exist,[8] and require the party defending against errors to show that no harm resulted.[9]

Errors which favor the party objecting are of course not ground for reversal,[10] nor are such as may be corrected without resort to a new trial.[11]

Instructions similar to those asked by appellant. Price v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 858; Haxton v. Kansas City [Mo.] 88 S. W. 714; Farmers' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Cole, 4 Neb. Unoff. 130, 93 N. W. 730; Chicago & M. Elec. R. Co. v. Diver, 213 Ill. 26, 72 N. E. 758; Central R. Co. v. Sehnert, 115 Ill. App. 560; Town of Frostburg v. Hitchins, 99 Md. 617, 59 A. 49; Franks v. Matson, 211 Ill. 338, 71 N. E. 1011; Bryce v. Burlington, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 483; Dodge v. Knapp [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 47; O'Neal v. Weisman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 503, 88 S. W. 290. Instruction submitting mixed question of law and fact similar to one requested by appellant. People v. Griesbach, 112 Ill. App. 192. Parol lease for more than a year. Houck v. Williams [Colo.] 81 P. 800. Submission of issues requested by appellant. Pearlstine v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co., 70 S. C. 75, 49 S. E. 4. A party cannot claim on appeal that legal propositions charged at his own request were erroneous. Gulf & S. I. R. Co. v. Boswell [Miss.] 38 So. 43. Inconsistencies and contradictions in instructions caused by giving erroneous ones for appellant. Deckerd v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 982. Appellant cannot complain that court selected least favorable of two theories presented by him. Cane Belt R. Co. v. Crosson [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 867. Instructions on issue first presented by appellant. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Hays [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 762, 89 S. W. 29.

8. This is a form of invited error. See 4 C. L. 1368. Appellant cannot contend that proof should have been made in a manner attempted and rejected because of his objection. Drainage Com'rs Dist. No. 2 v. Drainage Com'rs Dist. No. 3, 113 Ill. App. 114. Appellant who prevented introduction of evidence to prove certain fact cannot object that it was not proved. Hahl v. Brooks, 213 Ill. 134, 72 N. E. 727; Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Lundahl, 215 Ill. 289, 74 N. E. 155; Knudson v. Parker [Neb.] 96 N. W. 1010. Party cannot complain of rejection of evidence opposed to the theory he announces. Franks v. Matson, 211 Ill. 338, 71 N. E. 1011. Reversal will not be granted for misconduct of counsel where counsel for both parties are guilty. Culver v. South Haven & E. R. Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 663. Verdict for amount admitted by defendant to be due cannot be claimed to be excessive. Charlton v. Markland, 36 Wash. 40, 78 P. 132. Where a case has been tried on the theory that a certain issue was before the court, the point that the issue was not properly presented by the pleadings will not be considered. Parke & Lacy Co. v. San Francisco Bridge Co., 145 Cal. 534, 78 P. 1065, 79 P. 71. Defendant procuring rejection of proper rule of damages cannot complain of adoption of next best. Stowe v. La Conner Trading & Transp. Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 856. Refusal of evidence material to issue eliminated at appellant's request. Trotter v. Angel, 137 N. C. 274, 49 S. E. 329. Similar errors in evidence committed by both parties. Schrodt v. St. Joseph [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 543. Appellants cannot complain of the exercise of additional challenges by a third party made necessary by a situation brought about by appellant's attitude towards such third party. Will contest. Flowers v. Flowers [Ark.] 85 S. W. 242. The case must be tried on appeal on the issues raised below. Newton v. Russian [Ark.] 85 S. W. 407; Sack v. St. Louis Car Co. [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 79.

9. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Field [C. C. A.] 137 F. 14; Weller v. Hilderbrandt [S. D.] 101 N. W. 1108; Lucas v. Stonewall Ins. Co., 139 Ala. 487, 36 So. 40; Callaway v. Gay [Ala.] 39 So. 277. Improper evidence which might have had a tendency to influence the jury. National Biscuit Co. v. Nolan [C. C. A.] 138 F. 6; Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 37; McVey v. Barker, 92 Mo App. 498. The judgment will be reversed where illegal evidence has been admitted; and it cannot be said what effect it had on the jury. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Briggs, 103 Va. 105, 48 S. E. 521. Instruction. Robinson v. Lowe, 56 W. Va. 308, 49 S. E. 250. An appellee invoking the statute must show by the record that substantial error did not prejudice appellant's rights. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Clark, 32 Ind. App. 644, 70 N. E. 828.

10. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Tracy [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 833; Esler v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 73; Rooncy v. Woolworth [Conn.] 61 A. 366; Mason v. Gibson [N. H.]

60 A. 96; Osborne & Co. v. Waterloo [Mich.] 101 N. W. 801; Strickland v. Hutchinson [Ga.] 51 S. E. 348; Southwest Mo. Elec. R. Co. v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 110 Mo. App. 300, 85 S. W. 966; Schenck v. Griffith [Ark.] 86 S. W. 850; Darnell v. Lafferty [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 784. An involuntary bankrupt is not prejudiced by a ruling that his liquor license is an asset of his estate. In re McGowan, 134 F. 498. Where a demurrer to an answer is overruled, defendant cannot successfully assign on appeal that the court erred in failing to carry back the demurrer and sustain it to the complaint. Minnich v. Swing [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 271. Overruling of demurrer to complaint cannot be reviewed on an appeal by plaintiff. Rauh v. Oliver [Idaho] 77 P. 20. Only the questions decided adversely to a party are reviewable on his appeal. State Agricultural College v. Hutchinson [Or.] 78 P. 1028. Failure to apply statutory rule in measuring fish trap. Gile v. Baseel [Wash.] 80 P. 437. Where, in a suit to set aside a deed, the deed is held valid, any insufficiency in the pleadings to warrant a decree reforming the deed so as to vest a life estate in the plaintiff is harmless as to her. Powers v. Powers [Or.] 80 P. 1058. Dismissal where defendants were entitled to judgment is not prejudicial to plaintiff. Welch v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 894.

Evidence prejudicial to appellee. Murdock v. Murdock, 111 Ill. App. 375; Bickerdike v. State, 144 Cal. 698, 78 P. 277; State Board of Education v. Makely [N. C.] 51 S. E. 784. Favorable answer over objection. Currie v. Raleigh & A. Air Line R. Co., 135 N. C. 535, 47 S. E. 654.

Submission of issues: Defendant is not harmed by submission of issue which the court should have affirmed as matter of law. Mace v. Boedker & Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 475; Bryce v. Burlington, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 483. Defendant cannot complain of failure to submit a branch of plaintiff's case. Mitchell v. Pinckney [Iowa] 104 N. W. 286. Submission of issues unauthorized by the pleadings is harmless where the findings as made render the findings on the unauthorized issues immaterial. Spencer v. Spencer [Mont.] 79 P. 320.

Instructions favorable to party complaining. West v. St. Louis, S. W. R. Co., 187 Mo. 351, 86 S. W. 140; Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Reid [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 363; Gray v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 293; Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Fry [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 664; Howard v. Terminal R. Ass'n, 110 Mo. App. 574, 85 S. W. 608; Easton v. Wostenholm [C. C. A.] 137 F. 524; Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Van Elderen [C. C. A.] 137 F. 557; Airikainen v. Houghton County St. R. Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 264; Commonwealth Elec. Co. v. Rose, 214 Ill. 545, 73 N. E. 780; Tyler v. Bowen, 124 Iowa, 452, 100 N. W. 505; Darr v. Donovan [Neb.] 102 N. W. 1012; Woolf v. Nauman [Iowa] 103 N. W. 785; Warn v. Flint [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 294, 104 N. W. 37; McAfee v. Dix, 101 App. Div. 69, 91 N. Y. S. 464; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Berry [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 258; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Roberts [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 479; State v. Stone [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 950; Town of Carton v. McDaniel [Mo.] 86 S. W. 1092. Instruction requiring that witnesses should have equal opportunities for observation is harmless to party whose witnesses had superior opportunities. Delaware, etc., R. Co. v. Devore [C. C. A.] 122 F. 791. Inconsistency between instructions will not reverse where one is correct and the other too favorable to appellant. Rogers v. Daniels, 116 Ill. App. 515; Wood v. Rio Grande Western R. Co., 28 Utah, 351, 79 P. 182; Tham v. Steeb Shipping Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 711; McHugh v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 853. Refusal to give a requested instruction less favorable than he was entitled to does not harm appellant. Bond v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 110 Mo. App. 131, 84 S. W. 124.

Verdicts and findings: Plaintiff is not prejudiced by finding in his favor on counterclaim. Harwood v. Breese [Neb.] 103 N. W. 55. Defendant cannot complain that verdict for plaintiff is too small. Heyman v. Heyman, 110 Ill. App. 87; Brazell v. Cohn [Mont.] 81 P. 339; Fourth Nat. Bank v. Frost [Kan.] 78 P. 825. Recovery on theory imposing lesser liability than the correct one is of no injury to defendant. Drainage Com'rs v. Drainage Com'rs, 113 Ill. App. 114. Finding that conveyance was mortgage cannot be complained of by grantor who claims it was in trust. Clemens v. Kaiser, 211 Ill. 460, 71 N. E. 1055. Where a mortgagee seeking foreclosure appeals from a decree granting it for an insufficient amount, the court's finding that limitations have not run against the mortgage is reviewable, though the mortgagor has not appealed since the tolling of the statute is an essential part of the mortgagee's case. Carr v. Carr [Mich.] 101 N. W. 550. Failure, in suit to prorate taxes, to find amount due city is harmless to plaintiff. Morrill v. Bosley [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 529, 88 S. W. 519.

New trial: Reducing recovery without giving plaintiff the alternative of accepting new trial is not prejudicial to defendant. Shockley v. Tucker [Iowa] 103 N. W. 360. Plaintiff cannot complain of grant of new trial instead of judgment absolute for defendant. Sutherland v. St. Lawrence County, 93 N. Y. S. 958.

Judgment for less than contract liability cannot harm defendant. Galvano Type Engraving Co. v. Jackson, 77 Conn. 564, 60 A. 127. Judgment against appellant for too small a sum. Morrow v. Pike County [Mo.] 88 S. W. 99. On plaintiff's appeal from a decree granting him insufficient relief, the decree will not be disturbed in so far as it is favorable to him. Decree for specific performance on conditions. King v. Raab, 123 Iowa, 632, 99 N. W. 306. Defendant's appeal from decree for specific performance. Ruzicka v. Hotovy [Neb.] 101 N. W. 328. Review extends only to so much of a decree or judgment as is unfavorable to the party appealing. City of Waverly v. Bremer County, 126 Iowa, 98, 101 N. W. 874. Direction that each pay his own costs does not prejudice defendant when plaintiff has judgment for part of his demand. Freed Furniture & Carpet Co. v. Sorensen, 28 Utah, 419, 79 P. 564. Defendant cannot object to a decree following the prayer of his cross-complaint. Gumaer v. Draper [Colo.] 79 P. 1040. Entry of judgment against an attorney for money collected less compensation instead of for the whole amount cannot be complained of by him. McDonald v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 257. One erroneously adjudged to have title to

§ 2. Triviality constituting harmlessness.[12] An error is harmless if too trivial in its nature or consequences to have substantially influenced the result.[13]—The weight or strength of the evidence may affect the importance of error.[14] land cannot complain that person who had title was adjudged to have lien on it. Miller v. Wireman, 25 Ky. L. R. 2300, 80 S. W. 517. Garnishee defendant cannot complain that plaintiff's judgment is not large enough. Consolidated suits. Kothman v. Faseler [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 390. Defendant cannot complain of a modification by the court of its own motion without notice of a judgment for contempt by remitting the fine. Davies v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 633.

11. See Appeal and Review, § 15, 5 C. L. 236 et seq. Remittitur of excessive damages, see Damages, § 6, 5 C. L. 904; post, § 3.

12. See 3 C. L. 1581.

13. Brauer v. Macbeth [C. C. A.] 138 F. 977. Error preventing recovery of nominal damages. Thomas China Co. v. C. W. Raymond Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 25; Langdon v. Clarke [Neb.] 103 N. W. 63; Fulghum v. Beck Duplicator Co., 121 Ga. 273, 48 S. E. 901; White v. Sun Pub. Co. [Ind.] 73 N. E. 890; Commercial Inv. Co. v. National Bank of Commerce, 36 Wash. 287, 78 P. 910; Blackburn v. Alabama G. S. R. Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 345. Rule does not apply to libel. Von Schroeder v. Spreckels [Cal.] 81 P. 515. May be reversed where judgment for nominal damages would establish valuable right. Arkley v. Union Sugar Co. [Cal.] 81 P. 509. Error to direct verdict against plaintiff entitled only to nominal damages where costs of prior appeal depend on result. Goldzier v. Central R. Co., 90 N. Y. S. 435. Error involving amount less than necessary court costs in prosecuting action. Village of Morgan Park v. Knopf, 111 Ill. App. 571. Finding excessive in a trifling sum. Roesch v. Young, 111 Ill. App. 34. Error of $2.94. Underwood v. Whiteside County Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 115 Ill. App. 387. Error of $3.25. Village of Morgan Park v. Knopf, 210 Ill. 453, 71 N. E. 340. A defendant not aggrieved by the judgment as to its subject-matter, and appealing alone from the entire judgment for the evident purpose of having it reversed as an entirety is not entitled to a review as to costs awarded against himself. State v. Boyden [S. D.] 100 N. W. 761. Instruction on measure of damages involving slight error. Nebraska Bridge Supply & Lumber Co. v. Conway [Iowa] 103 N. W. 122. Allowing mother in child's action to state that she had spent $7 for medicine held immaterial under rule of De minimis. Norfolk R. & L. Co. v. Spratley, 103 Va. 379, 49 S. E. 502. An excess in the judgment, over the damages laid in the declaration, too small to give the appellate court jurisdiction, does not warrant reversal. Giboney v. Cooper [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 939. Error in allowing hypothetical question to plaintiff's witness where defendant's experts testified to practically the same matter. Difference of only five feet in estimating distance neither car might have been stopped. Impkamp v. St. Louis Transit Co., 108 Mo. App. 655, 84 S. W. 119. Any error in allowing recovery on a contract, where the evidence shows the damage to have been coincidently caused by breach of it and another contract between the same parties is harmless. Southwestern Tel. & T. Co. v. Tarvin [Ark.] 84 S. W. 504.

Fifteen dollars damages, both parties having taken proof thereon, though pleadings did not claim damages. Smoot v. Wainscott [Ky.] 89 S. W. 176.

Held prejudicial: The reversal of a verdict for one cent in an action for personal injuries resulting in loss of time worth $800 is not prevented by Code Civ. Prac. § 341, providing that a new trial shall not be granted on account of the smallness of the damage in an action for an injury to the person or the reputation, nor in any other action in which the damages equal the actual pecuniary injury sustained. Baries v. Louisville Elec. Light Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 2303, 80 S. W. 814.

14. In cases of conflict of evidence, the instruction must be correct, or the judgment cannot stand. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Grommes, 110 Ill. App. 113; Bloomington & N. R. v. Gabbert, 111 Ill. App. 147; Chicago House Wrecking Co. v. Durand, 105 Ill. App. 175; West Chicago St. R. Co. v. Moras, 111 Ill. App. 531. Where the evidence is unsatisfactory, the instructions must be correct. George Doyle & Co. v. Hawkins, 34 Ind. App. 514, 73 N. E. 200. Judgment cannot be upheld notwithstanding erroneous instructions where the court cannot say from the evidence and instructions that the verdict is right on the evidence. Nickey v. Dougan, 34 Ind. App. 601, 73 N. E. 288. Rulings on evidence will be closely scrutinized in close cases. West Chicago St. R. Co. v. Moras, 111 Ill. App. 531; Weinhandler v. Eastern Brew. Co., 92 N. Y. S. 792. Rulings will be closely scrutinized where the conflict of evidence is serious. National Council of the Knights & Ladies of Security v. O'Brien, 112 Ill. App. 40; Faulkner v. Snead [Ga.] 49 S. E. 747; Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Brundige [Tenn.] 84 S. W. 805; St. Louis S. W. R. Co. of Texas v. Boyd [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 233, 88 S. W. 509. Error in refusing amendment of creditor's bill is not available where complainant made no case entitling him to relief. Wilson v. Henry [Mich.] 100 N. W. 890. The strength of the evidence may diminish the importance of error. Spring Valley Coal Co. v. Robizas, 111 Ill. App. 49. After three trials all resulting the same way, the court will be slow to reverse for slight inaccuracies or technical objections. Dady v. Condit, 209 Ill. 488, 70 N. E. 1088. Erroneous charge held harmless by reason of unanimity of evidence. Michigan Sanitarium & Benevolent Ass'n v. Battle Creek [Mich.] 101 N. W. 855. Admission of merely irrelevant evidence is not available to defendant who offers no proof and the judgment is amply sustained by competent evidence. Waldner v. Bowdon State Bank [N. D.] 102 N. W. 169. Charge stating under what circumstances plaintiff can recover cannot prejudice where undisputed facts entitle him to recover. Parrott v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 352. Error in charging that it was defendant's duty to equip its engines with the "best approved" spark ar-

Cases applying these principles to errors or irregularities in process or appearance,[15] parties,[16] pleadings and formation of issues,[17] provisional and interlocutory resters is not cured by uncontradicted evidence that they were so equipped, the fact not being expressly admitted. Bottoms v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [N. C.] 49 S. E. 348. Instructions on care between passenger and carrier held prejudicial to plaintiff notwithstanding undisputed evidence of negligence of carrier. Lewis v. Houston Elec. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 378, 88 S. W. 489.

15. Defendants sued in wrong county not entitled to judgment for costs where a codefendant resides in county. Prewitt v. Wilson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 365. Affidavit for replevin failing to state value of each article. Boyce v. Augusta Camp, No. 7,429, M. W. A., 14 Okl. 642, 78 P. 322. General appearance to contest suit waives error in refusing to quash service. Eddleman v. Union County Traction & Power Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 510.

16. Nunc pro tunc order authorizing intervention by party. Bradley v. Bond [Md.] 61 A. 504. Where plaintiff on arriving at full age took charge of the suit himself, but no order was entered striking out the name of his next friend, and plaintiff had judgment for damages and costs, defendant was not prejudiced. Bernard v. Pittsburg Coal Co. [Mich.] 100 N. W. 396. Permitting additional party to be joined after commencement of suit. Jordan v. Greig [Colo.] 80 P. 1045. Where it appears that all parties in interest are not before the court in a bill of interpleader, reversal must follow. Chartiers Oil Co. v. Moore's Devisees, 56 W. Va. 540, 49 S. E. 449. If a decree is in favor of an infant defendant, failure to appoint a guardian ad litem for him is not error, but a decree finding a will valid does not favor him where, under the intestate laws, he would take the whole estate. Langston v. Bassette [Va.] 51 S. E. 218. Allowing assignee of execution to intervene on motion to retax costs and restrain collection by the sheriff of the execution is harmless as the sheriff would have been obliged to pay over to assignee on presentation of assignment. Ross v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 498. Overruling of exceptions to petition for intervention is harmless where the only defense set up was one set up as well by the original defendant. Runge v. Jumbo Cattle Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 388. Noncompliance with statutory directions in taking judgment against nonresident is fatal. Garvey v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 646, 88 S. W. 873.

17. Error not affecting merits. Ray v. Baker [Ind.] 74 N. E. 619; Penn v. Trompen [Neb.] 100 N. W. 312; Hawkins v. Merchants' & Mechanics' Loan & Bldg. Ass'n [Ky.] 89 S. W. 197. Reversal will not be granted for multifariousness of the bill where the causes of action joined are not repugnant or inconsistent and the only loss or inconvenience to a defendant arises from the payment of costs which can be remedied by the decree on appeal. Hosmer v. Wyoming R. & Iron Co. [C. C. A.] 129 F. 883. An erroneous judgment on the pleadings cannot be said to be on trial of the merits. Bowen v. Woodfield, 33 Ind. App. 687, 72 N. E. 162. Misnaming demurrers by calling them "motions to strike." Wisconsin Lumber Co. v. Greene & W. Tel. Co. [Iowa] 101 N. W. 742. Failure of answer to join issue is immaterial in view of amendments and trial as though all material averments were denied. American Shawl Co. v. Waldman, 92 N. Y. S. 367. Unnecessary averments in petition are not prejudicial where no evidence of them is offered. City of Eureka v. Neville [Kan.] 79 P. 162. Improper joinder of cause of action is not error where verdict was for defendant as to that cause. Lavanway v. Cannon, 37 Wash. 593, 79 P. 1117. Decision on question of departure in reply. Baldridge v. Leon Lake Ditch & Reservoir Co. [Colo. App.] 80 P. 477. Irregular proceeding in filing motion to strike and demurrer simultaneously. Enright v. Midland Sampling & Ore Co. [Colo.] 80 P. 1041. Omission to rule on unmeritorious demurrer. Langley v. Andrews [Ala.] 38 So. 238. Allowing filing of unnecessary pleas after testimony was concluded. King v. Battaglia [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 839. Correction of clerical mistake of clerk of court from which record came on change of venue. Haxton v. Kansas City [Mo.] 88 S. W. 714.

Variance: Huey Co. v. Johnston [Ind.] 73 N. E. 996; Nelson v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 1119; Halloran v. Holmes [N. D.] 101 N. W. 310; Woodford v. Kelley [S. D.] 101 N. W. 1069.

Sustaining demurrer to pleading stating facts provable under general denial. Adams v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 74 N. E. 991; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Bowman [Ala.] 37 So. 493; Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Larkins [Ala.] 37 So. 660; Western R. of Ala. v. Russell [Ala.] 39 So. 311; Shafer v. Fry [Ind.] 73 N. E. 698; Beasey v. High, 33 Ind. App. 689, 72 N. E. 181. Error in sustaining demurrer to answer setting up facts sufficiently pleaded in another answer. Hillyer v. Winsted, 77 Conn. 304, 59 A. 40; Oppenheimer v. Greencastle School Tp. [Ind.] 72 N. E. 1100; Matthews v. Farrell, 140 Ala. 298, 37 So. 325. Sustaining demurrer to special paragraph of answer where complaint and general denial formed complete issue supporting verdict. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Norcross, 163 Ind. 379, 72 N. E. 132. A ruling improperly sustaining a demurrer to a special plea being harmless when made for that the matter pleaded is provable under the general denial, cannot be converted into available error by defendant by afterwards withdrawing the general denial and refusing to plead further. Beasey v. High, 33 Ind. App. 689, 72 N. E. 181. Sustaining informal demurrer to insufficient answer. McDaniel v. Osborn [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 601. Sustaining demurrer to counts alleging matters sufficiently averred in others. Going v. Alabama Steel & Wire Co. [Ala.] 37 So. 784. Error in sustaining general assignments of demurrers to pleas that could not be made good by amendment is harmless. Ryall v. Allen [Ala.] 38 So. 851.

Overruling demurrer. Rooney v. Gray, 145 Cal. 753, 79 P. 523; Butler v. Delafield [Cal. App.] 82 P. 260. Demurrer to plea of contributory negligence. Chambers v. Milner proceedings,[18] continuances, adjournments, dismissal before trial, and the like,[19]

Coal & R. Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 170. To answer setting up facts shown by verdict or findings to be immaterial. Steeley v. Seward, 34 Ind. App. 398, 73 N. E. 139; Adams v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 74 N. E. 991. Failure to specify reasons is harmless. British American Ins. Co. v. Wilson, 77 Conn. 559, 60 A. 293. Failure to fix time for answer on overruling demurrer is harmless where defendant stood on his demurrer. Ullery v. Brohm [Colo. App.] 79 P. 180. Findings fully sustaining judgment regardless of affirmative defense to which demurrer was overruled. McNeilly v. McNeilly [Wash.] 80 P. 541. Overruling demurrers to affirmative defenses is harmless where action was properly dismissed. Soder v. Adams Hardware Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 775. Error in overruling exceptions to allegations not recovered on is harmless. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Siddall [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 343.

Held prejudicial, where evidence is admitted in support of objectionable pleading and influenced the verdict. Edwards v. Kellogg, 121 Ga. 373, 49 S. E. 279; Provident Sav. Life Assur. Soc. v. Pruett [Ala.] 37 So. 700. Where certain replications to certain pleas were not proven beyond adverse inference, the error in overruling a demurrer to another replication to the same pleas was prejudicial, since it could not be known to which issues of fact presented by the replications the verdict was responsive. Continental Ins. Co. v. Parkes [Ala.] 39 So. 204.

Denial of plea: Rejecting special defense is not prejudicial where the evidence on which it was based is admitted under the general issue. Worrell v. Kinnear Mfg. Co., 103 Va. 719, 49 S. E. 988; Davis v. Hughes [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1161. Or under other pleas received. Merriman v. Cover [Va.] 51 S. E. 817.

Ruling on motion to strike: Overruling motion to strike out parts of an alternative writ of mandamus. Cheney v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 892. Striking paragraph setting up facts provable under others. Schnull v. Cuddy [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1030; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Smith [Ala.] 37 So. 490. The retention of surplusage in a petition as against a motion to strike it is not ground for reversal. Bankers' Union of the World v. Pickens [Kan.] 79 P. 148. Overruling of motion to strike special replication on ground that facts alleged were provable under the general replication is harmless. Shea v. Manning [Ala.] 37 So. 632. Refusal to strike improper averments of damages is harmless as defendant may protect himself by objections to evidence and requests for instructions. Vandiver & Co. v. Waller [Ala.] 39 So. 136; Woodstock Iron Works v. Stockdale [Ala.] 39 So. 335. Error in striking valid plea rendered immaterial by verdict. San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Dolan [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 302. Refusal to strike part of replication to answer which had been abandoned. Strother v. McMullen Lumber Co., 110 Mo. App. 552, 85 S. W. 650.

Amendment: Denial of amendment of complaint. Carstens v. Hine [Wash.] 81 P. 1004. Denial of application to amend plea is harmless where defendants were permitted to make full defense, and failed because defenses were not available on merits. Central Sav. Bank v. O'Connor [Mich.] 102 N. W. 280. New matter pleaded in a reply is constructively denied by the statute, and leave to amend an answer so as to put such matter formally in issue, although erroneous, is error without prejudice. Lininger & Metcalf Co v. Clark [Neb.] 103 N. W. 663. Amendment resulting in submission of case on unsustainable theory held reversible. Conversion of live stock by carrier. Olds v. New York, etc., R. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 924. Allowance after stating that it would be allowed unless prejudice shown. Cummings v. Weir, 37 Wash. 42, 79 P. 487. Refusal of immaterial amendment. Mahoney v. Crockett, 37 Wash. 252, 79 P. 933. Failure to amend as to substituted parties. Ellsworth v. Layton, 37 Wash. 340, 79 P. 947. Refusal to permit amendment of petition before answer. Stewart v. Winner [Kan.] 80 P. 934. Erroneously disallowing an amendment which if made would have left pleading fatally defective. Gould v. Glass, 120 Ga. 50, 47 S. E. 505. Will not inquire to propriety of proffered amendment where plaintiff has been properly nonsuited and the facts set up could not have changed the result. Bale v. Todd [Ga.] 50 S. E. 990. Allowance of amended petition setting up unnecessary fact. Freedom from contributory negligence. Board of Councilmen of Frankfort v. Chinn [Ky.] 89 S. W. 188.

Ruling on motion for more specific allegation. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Miller [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 827. Not prejudicial where recovery is not based on any objectionable part of the pleading. Helbig v. Gray's Harbor Elec. Co., 37 Wash. 130, 79 P. 612. Where defendant's motion is sustained in part and overruled in part, and thereafter an amended complaint is filed to which the motion was not renewed, no question as to the motion arises on defendant's appeal. Vincennes v. Spees [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 277. Refusal to require defendant to file statement of grounds of defense. Driver's Adm'r v. Southern R. Co., 103 Va. 650, 49 S. E. 1000.

Election: Delay in compelling election between counts claiming single and treble damages on same state of facts. Hathaway v. Goslant [Vt.] 59 A. 835.

18. Failure to require bond where receiver was properly appointed. Walker v. Kersten, 115 Ill. App. 130. Granting injunction without notice. Pfeiffer v. McCullough, 115 Ill. App. 251. Appointment of receiver without notice. Wilkie v. Reynolds, 34 Ind. App. 527, 72 N. E. 179. Irregularity in transferring case from district to district. Finlen v. Heinze [Mont.] 80 P. 918. Overruling defendant's motion for order for physical examination of plaintiff. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 943.

19. Refusal to dismiss for prematurity is not prejudicial after filing of amended complaint. Binder v. National Masonic Acc. Ass'n [Iowa] 102 N. W. 190. Refusal to dismiss suit against feme defendants in homestead case against whom no personal judgment was rendered. Fontaine v. Nuse [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 852. Refusal of continuance cannot prejudice where adversary admits facts to which absent witness would the trial and course and conduct of the same,[20] formation and selection of the jury,[21] and rulings on demurrers to evidence and motions for directed verdicts,[22] are cited below.

The admission [23] or exclusion [24] of evidence which cannot have been efficient to have testified. Kellyville Coal Co. v. Strine [Ill.] 75 N. E. 375.

20. If there be one good count, error in refusing to exclude others from jury is unavailable. Feldman v. Sellig, 110 Ill. App. 130; Masonic Fraternity Temple Ass'n v. Collins, 110 Ill. App. 504. Refusal to mark instructions as required by statute. Chicago Union Tract. Co. v. Olsen, 113 Ill. App. 303; Chicago Union Tract. Co. v. Hanthorn, 211 Ill. 367, 71 N. E. 1022. Limiting time for argument. Hansell-Elcock Foundry Co. v. Clark, 115 Ill. App. 209. Limiting number of instructions. Chicago Union Tract. Co. v. Olsen, 211 Ill. 255, 71 N. E. 985. Submission before party had all his evidence in and without argument. In re Hayden's Estate, 146 Cal. 73, 79 P. 588. To make an order without a hearing is harmless where the only fact examinable on a hearing is admitted by the pleadings. San Luis Obispo County v. Simas [Cal. App.] 81 P. 972. In a suit upon an account defendant being allowed credit for everything claimed in his answer, and having no defense to the balance of the claim, held immaterial to him that suit was prosecuted on the equity instead of the lost docket. Gregory v. New Home Sew. Mach. Co. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 529.

21. Chicago City R. Co. v. Fetzer, 113 Ill. App. 280; Hartshorn v. Illinois Valley R. Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 122; Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Ferguson [Ala.] 39 So. 348. The improper sustaining of a challenge to a juror for cause is harmless where an impartial jury was secured. Wells v. O'Hare, 110 Ill. App. 7; Decker v. Laws [Ark.] 85 S. W. 425; Felsch v. Babb [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1011. Overruling challenge for cause is harmless to one who did not use all his peremptories. Stowell v. Standard Oil Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 227. In equity cases jury findings are merely advisory and an assignment of error predicated on the calling of a jury and submitting questions of fact to them is without merit.. Lauman v. Hoofer, 37 Wash. 382, 79 P. 953. Showing of bias of juror held not sufficient to show prejudice from ruling. Graybill v. De Young, 146 Cal. 421, 80 P. 618. Insertion of irregularity in manner of summoning and constituting special jury not reviewable on error unless it appears that complaining party was injured thereby. Code 1887, § 3156, as amended by Act Feb. 27, 1894. City of Charlottesville v. Failes, 103 Va. 53, 48 S. E. 511. Unless the record shows that an objectionable juror was forced on the challenging party after his peremptory challenges were exhausted an assignment of error in this regard is not reversible error. National Bank of Boyertown v. Schufelt [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 927; Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Manns [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 254.

22. Refusal to direct verdict on paragraph which the findings show was not the basis of the verdict. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Taylor [Ind.] 72 N. E. 1045. Verdict held not to render ruling on motion for directed verdict erroneous. Sargent Co. v Baublis, 215 Ill. 428, 74 N. E. 455. Overruling a motion to direct a verdict for defendant for insufficiency of the petition is not error where leave is granted to amend. Petition failed to allege notice to city of claim. Jones v. Shelby County, 124 Iowa, 551, 100 N. W. 520.

23. City of South Omaha v. Sutliffe [Neb.] 101 N. W. 997; Bennett v. Donovan, 83 App. Div. 95, 82 N. Y. S. 506; Chicago Bldg. & Mfg. Co. v. Taylor Banking Co. [Kan.] 78 P. 808. The admission in evidence of an ordinance prohibiting the act resulting in the negligence complained of is not prejudicial. Garibaldi v. O'Connor, 112 Ill. App. 53. Privileged communications made to wife. Western Travelers' Acc. Acc. Ass'n v. Munson [Neb.] 103 N. W. 688. A ruling merely admitting records not afterwards read to the jury is not prejudicial. Michigan Paper Co. v. Kalamazoo Valley Elec. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 342, 104 N. W. 387. Introduction of further evidence of immaterial fact already proved without objection. Ramson v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 78 App. Div. 101, 79 N. Y. S. 588. Failure to limit bearing of evidence admissible for particular purpose. Jackson v. Jackson, 100 App. Div. 385, 91 N. Y. S. 844. Written evidence not inducing construction of contract different from its provisions. Wilson v. Alcatraz Asphalt Co., 142 Cal. 182, 75 P. 787. Photograph taken after change of circumstances. Macdonald v. O'Reilly, 45 Or. 589, 78 P. 753. Laws of another state made immaterial by conclusions of law. In re Dunphy's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 315. Case completely made out by other evidence. Norfolk R. & L. Co. v. Spratley, 103 Va. 379, 49 S. E. 502. Evidence rendered irrelevant by failure of party offering it to file it as ordered. Boston Mercantile Co. v. Ould-Carter Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 466.

Immaterial evidence. Hunter v. Davis [Iowa] 103 N. W. 373; Gulbertson v. Hanson [Minn.] 104 N. W. 2; Knapp v. Order of Pendo, 36 Wash. 601, 79 P. 209; Kiley v. Lee Canning Co., 93 N. Y. S. 986; Madden & Co. v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 70 S. C. 295, 49 S. E. 855; Atchison v. Wills, 21 App. D. C. 548; Davis v. Alexander, 99 Me. 40, 58 A. 55; Parsons v. Wentworth [N. H.] 59 A. 623; Misner v. Strong, 181 N. Y. 163, 73 N. E. 965; Pichon v. Martin [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 1009; Provident Sav. Life Assur. Soc. v. King [Ill.] 75 N. E. 166; Limberg v. Glenwood Lumber Co., 145 Cal. 255, 78 P. 728; Carolina Plumbing & Heating Co. v. Hall, 136 N. C. 530, 48 S. E. 810; Willims v. Mangum [Ga.] 50 S. E. 110; Tucker v. Colonial Fire Ins. Co. [W. Va.] 51 S. E. 86; Ragsdale v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 540; Barstow Irr. Co. v. Black [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1036; Pecos River R. Co. v. Latham [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 392; Freeman v. Slay [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 664, 88 S. W. 404; Tinsley v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 913. Not error for plaintiff to show demand and refusal of insurance company to pay loss though no waiver in case. Fire Ass'n of Phila. v.

the result is harmless.[25] For example, evidence which tended to prove a fact not necessary to the party's case,[26] or one conclusively disproved by other evidence,[27] or evidence erroneously admitted, tending to prove a fact admitted or sufficiently proved by other competent evidence.[28] Likewise the rejection of evidence of facts

Yeagley, 34 Ind. App. 387, 72 N. E. 1035. Expert evidence as to how a crack might come in a monument, there being none in the monument sued for. Peden v. Scott [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 1099. Plaintiff against whom verdict was properly directed cannot complain of rejection of immaterial evidence which cannot be said to have prevented his proving facts necessary to his case. McGlothlin v. Meaux [Miss.] 38 So. 317. Where a mining company defends on the ground that an independent contractor was operating the mine and was liable for the injury, proof of a statement by one of its officers that a mine could be so operated and relieve the owner of liability is harmless. Mt. Nebo Anthracite Coal Co. v. Williamson [Ark.] 84 S. W. 779.

24. Storms & Co. v. Horton, 77 Conn. 334, 59 A. 421; Miller v. Boston & M. R. Co. [N. H.] 61 A. 360; Triggs v. McIntyre, 115 Ill. App. 257; Gerbrich v. Freitag, 213 Ill. 552, 73 N. E. 338; McCay Engineering Co. v. Crocker-Wheeler Elec. Co. [Md.] 60 A. 443; Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Crose, 214 Ill. 602, 73 N. E. 865; Wilcox v. Wilcox [Mich.] 102 N. W. 954; Reisler v. Silbermintz, 99 App. Div. 131, 90 N. Y. S. 967; Rountree & Co. v. Goulden [Ga.] 51 S. E. 346; Senf v. St. Louis & S. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 887. Whether any other reason for act for which reason had already been given. Brownlee v. Reiner [Cal.] 82 P. 324. Fact sought to be proven by nonprivileged communications only remotely relevant. McKenzie v. Banks [Minn.] 103 N. W. 497. Exclusion of impeaching evidence is harmless where the finding is amply supported disregarding the evidence of the witness sought to be impeached. Finlen v. Heinze [Mont.] 80 P. 918. Rejection of X-ray photograph showing extent of plaintiff's injuries is harmless where jury found him negligent. Fraser v. California St. Cable R. Co. [Cal.] 81 P. 29. Appellant not entitled to recover in any event. De Galindo v. De Galindo [Cal.] 81 P. 279; Wilson v. Wilson [Wash.] 82 P. 154. Error in excluding impeaching evidence is harmless where no weight was attached to the evidence of the witness. Bringgold v. Bringgold [Wash.] 82 P. 179. Exclusion of evidence of denial of pregnancy and unchastity of plaintiff in bastardy, held unprejudicial. Johnson v. Walker [Miss.] 39 So. 49.

25. Collins v. Citizens' Bank & Trust Co., 121 Ga. 513, 49 S. E. 594. Award of damages may show that error was not prejudicial. Gasink v. New Ulm, 92 Minn. 52, 99 N. W. 624.

26. Evidence admitted. Justice v. Davis [N. J. Law] 59 A. 6; Loomis v. Connecticut R. & L. Co. [Conn.] 61 A. 539; Kelly v. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 601; Thompson v. Chaffee [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 794, 89 S. W. 285; Ogle v. Hubbel [Cal. App.] 82 P. 217. Evidence to prove contract established by prior judgment. Blanding v. Cohen, 101 App. Div. 442, 92 N. Y. S. 93. A reviewing court will not reverse a judgment because of the incompetency of a question and answer, where the question and answer added nothing to the facts of the case. Green v. New York, etc., R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 497. Secondary evidence of immaterial fact. Notice to surety. Hohn v. Shideler [Ind.] 72 N. E. 575. Where in a suit by the state a proper demand by the attorney general is shown, evidence of a demand by a tax commissioner is harmless. McDonald v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 257. Error in admitting evidence of ratification of servant's act is harmless where master was liable without it. Dwyer v. St. Louis Transit Co., 108 Mo. App. 152, 83 S. W. 303.

Evidence rejected. Independent Coal Co. v. First Nat. Bank, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 225. Point not of substantial importance. Norman Printer's Supply Co. v. Ford, 77 Conn. 461, 59 A. 499. Evidence of efforts of an agent to carry through a sale of land is competent in a suit for recovery of a commission on the sale, yet the refusal of the court to hear such evidence does not constitute reversible error where the only duty of the agent under his contract was to produce a purchaser. Bowman v. Hartman, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 264. Exclusion of testimony offered to impeach testimony of witness to immaterial matter. Madler v. Pozorski [Wis.] 102 N. W. 892. Value of attorney's services where express contract and payment in full are found. Cunningham v. Springer [N. M.] 82 P. 232. Exclusion of evidence that broken engagemment of parties to bastardy suit had never been renewed, held not prejudicial. Johnson v. Walker [Miss.] 39 So. 49.

27. Shields v. Mongollon Exploration Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 539; City of San Juan v. St. John's Gas Co., 195 U. S. 510, 49 Law. Ed. 299. Evidence supporting defense already litigated and decided adversely. Bond v. Chapman, 34 Wash. 606, 76 P. 97.

28. Finch v. Mishler [Md.] 59 A. 1009; Lawnsdale v. Gray's Harbor Boom Co., 36 Wash. 198, 78 P. 904; Knapp v. Order of Pendo, 36 Wash. 601, 79 P. 209; Norwich Ins. Co. v. Oregon R. Co. [Or.] 78 P. 1025; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Willard, 111 Ill. App. 225; Policemen's Benev. Ass'n v. Ryce, 213 Ill. 9, 72 N. E. 764; McPhelemy v. McPhelemy [Conn.] 61 A. 477; Aetna Indemnity Co. v. Ladd [C. C. A.] 135 F. 636; United States v. Brendel [C. C. A.] 136 F. 737; Schneider v. Sulzer, 212 Ill. 87, 72 N. E. 19; Chicago City R. Co. v. McCaughna, 216 Ill. 202, 74 N. E. 819; Cairncross v. Omlie [N. D.] 101 N. W. 897; Reupke v. Stubr & Son Grain Co., 126 Iowa, 632, 102 N. W. 509; Peck v. Peck [Wis.] 103 N. W. 5; Lansky v. Prettyman [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 120, 103 N. W. 538; Seitz v. People's Sav. Bank [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 96, 103 N. W. 545; Boehm v. Detroit [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 397, 104 N. W. 626; Radin v. Paul, 90 N. Y. S. 1072; Chamberlain v. Cuming, 99 App. Div. 561, 91 N. Y. S. 105; Dibble v. Cole, 102 App. Div. 229, 92 N. Y. S. 938; Beyer v. Isaacs, 93

otherwise established,[20] unless prejudice plainly appears.[30] Error in evidence is in-

N. Y. S. 312; Idol v. San Francisco Const. Co. [Cal. App.] 81 P. 665; Bacon v. Kearney Vineyard Syndicate [Cal. App.] 82 P. 84; Hedrick v. Southern R. Co., 136 N. C. 510, 48 S. E. 830; Georgia R. & Elec. Co. v. Knight [Ga.] 50 S. E. 124; Machen v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 697; Board of Levee Com'rs of Yazoo-Mississippi Delta v. Lee [Miss.] 37 So. 747; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Cain [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 682; Gray v. Freeman [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1105; San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Dolan [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 302; Field v. Field [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 726; Allen v. Halsted [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 754; Texas Cent. R. Co. West [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 426; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. House [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 752, 88 S. W. 1110; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Hays [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 762, 89 S. W. 29. Error in admitting evidence is harmless where the same fact is proved by other witnesses without objection. Norfolk R. & L. Co. v. Spratley, 103 Va. 379, 49 S. E. 502. Expert evidence tending to prove a fact conclusively proved by ordinary witnesses. Baltimore Belt R. Co. v. Sattler [Md.] 59 A. 654. Rebuttal testimony of facts developed by appellant as a witness on cross-examination. Dryden v. Barnes [Md.] 61 A. 342. Agency of certain person for a corporation. Anglo-Wyoming Oil Fields v. Miller, 216 Ill. 272, 74 N. E. 821. The alleged bankrupt not denying certain claims alleged as tending to show insolvency, and not cross-examining creditors with reference to books produced he is not prejudiced by the court's allowing such creditors to testify from memoranda taken from such books. In re McGowan, 134 F. 498; but see 137 F. 453, where case is reversed on other grounds. The evidence being already before the jury without objection, held immaterial whether or not objection was well taken when evidence was offered in rebuttal. Schmidt v. Turner, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 492. Competency of witness is unimportant where all facts he testifies to are established by other competent evidence. Jones v. Jones, 213 Ill. 228, 72 N. E. 695. Evidence that statute of another state is still in force is unprejudicial where appellant's evidence was insufficient to show its repeal. Hanrahan v. Knickerbocker [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 1137. Incompetent evidence of uncontroverted fact. Nathan v. Dierssen, 146 Cal. 63, 79 P. 739. Wife may testify to receiving letter from husband stating that he had left her, there being no dispute about the fact of desertion. Burton v. Mullenary [Cal.] 81 P. 544. Title and good faith in forcible entry. Highland Park Oil Co. v. Western Minerals Co. [Cal. App.] 82 P. 228. Nonpayment of judgment. Butler v. Delafield [Cal. App.] 82 P. 260. Hearsay evidence of fact sufficiently proved otherwise. Hyland v. Southern Bell Tel. & T. Co., 70 S. C. 315, 49 S. E. 879; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Crowley [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 342. Both competent and incompetent evidence of declarations in travail of plaintiff in bastardy. Johnson v. Walker [Miss.] 39 So. 49. Question calling for opinion where facts are shown. Owen v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 92. Evidence additional to that sufficient to make prima facie case not controverted. City of St. Joseph v. Pitt [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 544. Fact elicited by leading question. Northern Tex. Traction Co. v. Lewis [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 894. Admission of handbill advertising sale and describing mules as two years old instead of three years old held harmless defendant admitting that he represented the mules to be two years old. Doyle v. Parish, 110 Mo. App. 470, 85 S. W. 646. Admission of plat to prove facts otherwise established. Pace v. Crandall [Ark.] 86 S. W. 812. Objectionable language held ineffective to strengthen previous testimony of same witness. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Boyce [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 395. Demonstrative evidence of fact otherwise established. Id. Opinion evidence of value is harmless where there is competent evidence of much greater value than that found by jury. Sydney Webb & Co. v. Daggett [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 743. Admission of defendant's servant of fact otherwise established. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Russell [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. R. 591, 88 S. W. 379. Opinion as to fact conclusively shown by physical facts. Sluder v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 648.

Error not cured: Where incompetent evidence is received over objection and exception, the error is not cured by allowing other like evidence to go in without objection. Merchants' Loan & Trust Co. v. Boucher, 115 Ill. App. 101. Not cured by certificate of judge that he would have excluded it on motion and that he had it not in mind when he directed the verdict. Rapson v. Leighton [Mass.] 73 N. E. 540. Permitting plaintiff in a personal injury suit to testify as to the number of his children and their ages is not rendered harmless by reason of the fact that he has previously, without objection, testified to the fact that he has children. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Ringle [Kan.] 80 P. 43.

29. Benning v. Horkan, 120 Ga. 734, 48 S. E. 123; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Hays [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 762, 89 S. W. 29; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Walters [Ill.] 75 N. E. 441; Franks v. Matson, 211 Ill. 338, 71 N. E. 1011; Dickinson v. Boston [Mass.] 75 N. E. 68; Consolidated Traction Co. v. Jordan [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 301; Jacobs v. Queen Ins. Co., 123 Wis. 608, 101 N. W. 1090; Jackson v. Prior Hill Min. Co. [S. D.] 104 N. W. 207. Feldman v. Senft, 92 N. Y. S. 231; Lilly v. Eklund, 37 Wash. 532, 79 P. 1107; Dundon v. McDonald, 146 Cal. 585, 80 P. 1034; Meyer v. Foster [Cal.] 81 P. 402; Palatine Ins. Co. v. Santa Fe Mercantile Co. [N. M.] 82 P. 363; Beaudrot v. Southern R. Co., 69 S. C. 160, 48 S. E. 106; Sparks v. Taylor [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 740; Alexander v. McGaffey [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 462; Brewster v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 685, 88 S. W. 858. Written impeaching statement is harmless where verbal evidence offered for a like purpose is admitted. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Crose, 113 Ill. App. 547. Presumption supplying proof. Nagle v. Hake, 123 Wis. 256, 101 N. W. 409. Jury found against claim notwithstanding clear proof on issue on which evidence was rejected. Lush v. Incorporated Town of Parkersburg [Iowa] 104 N. W. 336. Hostility of witness. Fischer v. Brady, 94 N. Y. S. 25. Ruling out of question already nocuous in a trial of facts by the court, as in equitable actions, where it may be supposed he founded his decision solely on proper proofs.[31] Likewise where, as in equity, the verdict of the jury is merely advisory.[32] An improper mode of questioning or an erroneous ruling on a proper question may be harmless because of the answer given,[33] answered. Marshall v. Marshall [Kan.] 80 P. 629. Exclusion of evidence the substance of which has already gone to jury. Busch v. Robinson [Or.] 81 P. 237. Refusal to admit evidence of conceded claim of title by ancestor. Dorlan v. Westervitch, 140 Ala. 283, 37 So. 382. Historical treatise. Allen v. Halsted [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 754. Fact testified to by opposite party. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. St. John [Tex. Civ. App.] 12 Tex. Ct. Rep. 979, 88 S. W. 297.

30. Fact otherwise proven held not as broad as erroneously rejected question. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Miller, 212 Ill. 49, 72 N. E. 25. Erroneous rejection of evidence to prove fact found against appellant is not cured by presence of other evidence. Perkins v. Rice, 187 Mass. 28, 72 N. E. 323. Opposing evidence impeached. In re Blair, 99 App. Div. 81, 91 N. Y. S. 378.

31. Winn v. Itzel [Wis.] 103 N. W. 220; Gilmer v. Holland Inv. Co., 37 Wash. 589, 79 P. 1103; Carstens v. Hine [Wash.] 81 P. 1004; Grand Pac. Hotel Co. v. Pinkerton [Ill.] 75 N. E. 427; Humphreys v. Minnesota Clay Co. [Minn.] 103 N. W. 338; Pinkstaff v. Steffy [Ill.] 75 N. E. 163; Mead v. Mellette [S. D.] 101 N. W. 355; Currie v. Michie, 123 Wis. 120, 101 N. W. 370; Haish v. Dreyfus, 111 Ill. App. 44; Broderick v. O'Leary, 112 Ill. App. 658; Kittler v. Studabaker, 113 Ill. App. 342; Andrews v. Scott, 113 Ill. App. 581; Ranson v. Ranson, 115 Ill. App. 1; Peterson v. Manhattan Life Ins. Co., 115 Ill. App. 421; Rogers Grain Co. v. Shepherd, 116 Ill. App. 532; Kreiling v. Northrup, 215 Ill. 195, 74 N. E. 123; Godfrey v. Faust [S. D.] 101 N. W. 718; Mankato Mills Co. v. Willard [Minn.] 102 N. W. 202; Easton v. Cranmer [S. D.] 102 N. W. 944; Merager v. Madson [S. D.] 103 N. W. 650; Way v. Sherman [Mont.] 76 P. 942; German Sav. & Loan Soc. v. Collins, 145 Cal. 192, 78 P. 637; Lampkin v. Garwood [Ga.] 50 S. E. 171; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Halsell [Tex.] 83 S. W. 15; Parker v. Catron [Ky.] 85 S. W. 740; Jones v. Day [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 308, 88 S. W. 424; Waters v. Merrit Pants Co. [Ark.] 88 S. W. 879. Unless it be of such kind and so forcible that it should work a different result from that reached by the trial court. Streeter v. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago [C. C. A.] 133 F. 124. Bill to remove cloud. Heintz v. Dennis [Ill.] 75 N. E. 192. The admission of improper evidence is to be deemed immaterial on appeal unless it clearly appears that but for such evidence the finding of the trial court would probably have been different. Harrigan v. Gilchrist, 121 Wis. 127, 99 N. W. 909. In considering findings of the trial court, on appeal, it will be presumed, unless the contrary clearly appears, that evidence taken under objection was given no weight. Id. Refusal to strike. Reed v. Whipple [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 77, 103 N. W. 548. Errors in introduction of testimony ignored by referee. New York Floating Dry Dock Co. v. New York, 97 App. Div. 522, 90 N. Y. S. 166. Appeal from surrogate. In re Bradbury, 93 N. Y. S. 418. In Washington on appeal from judgment quieting title to and awarding possession of land, the supreme court tries the case de novo in so far as the findings have been excepted to. Will disregard any evidence it finds inadmissible so that error in the admission of evidence is not available to appellant. City of Port Townsend v. Lewis, 34 Wash. 413, 75 P. 982. Where review of questions of fact and law is authorized, findings will not be disturbed because of erroneous admission of evidence if the remainder of the evidence preponderates in favor of the findings. Hayes v. Buzard [Mont.] 77 P. 423; Van Behren v. Rettkowski, 37 Wash. 247, 79 P. 787; Law v. Seeley, 37 Wash. 166, 79 P. 606. Where the cause is tried de novo, the entire evidence will be looked to and the judgment sustained if supported by sufficient evidence notwithstanding error in admitting evidence or in refusing to grant a nonsuit. Hodges v. Price [Wash.] 80 P. 202. Evidence admitted for particular purpose. Rowe v. Johnson [Colo.] 81 P. 268.

32. California Elec. Light Co. v. California Safe Deposit & Trust Co., 145 Cal. 124, 78 P. 372.

33. Jones v. Shelby County, 124 Iowa, 551, 100 N. W. 520; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Honea [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 267; Grotjan v. Rice [Wis.] 102 N. W. 551; Joseph Joseph Bros. Co. v. Schonthal Iron & Steel Co., 99 Md. 382, 58 A. 205; Coolidge v. Ayers [Vt.] 61 A. 40; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Allen, 212 Ill. 134, 72 N. E. 200; Coruth v. Jones [Vt.] 60 A. 814; Osborne & Co. v. Ringland & Co., 122 Iowa, 329, 98 N. W. 116; Wingate v. Johnson, 126 Iowa, 154, 101 N. W. 751; McCormick v. Johnson [Mont.] 78 P. 500. Error in requiring experts to detail all facts on which their evidence is based is harmless where all qualified and did it. Morrow v. National Masonic Acc. Ass'n, 125 Iowa, 633, 101 N. W. 468. Question as to matter outside the issues is harmless where the answer refers to matter within the issues. Jewell City v. Van Meter [Kan.] 79 P. 149. Witness declined to answer unless required because of confidential relations. Brazell v. Cohn [Mont.] 81 P. 339. Answer to question to expert matter of common knowledge. Lane Bros. & Co. v. Bauserman, 103 Va. 146, 48 S. E. 857; Jones v. American Warehouse Co., 137 N. C. 337, 49 S. E. 355. Nonresponsive answer to irrelevant question which might have been stricken on motion. Snedecor v. Pope [Ala.] 39 So. 318. Answer to leading question disclosing nothing not shown before. San Antonio Foundry Co. v. Drish [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 440. The fact that the defendant was examined on a matter not at issue is not ground for a reversal of the judgment, where his answers did not prejudice him before the jury. Minzey v. Marcy Mfg. Co., 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 593. A question which was incompetent for the reason that it called for a conclusion is rendered harmless where the answer put the jury in possession of the facts upon which the witness based his opinor the lack of an answer.[34] Application of these doctrines to direct[35] and cross-examination,[36] and to the order of taking proof,[37] all of which are largely controlled by the discretion of the court,[38] and the reception of affidavits and depositions,[39] and to the admission of secondary evidence,[40] and to the rulings on motions to strike evidence,[41] are cited below. A few illustrative cases wherein errors respecting evidence have been held prejudicial are collected.[42]

ion. Duhme Jewelry Co. v. Hazen, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 606. Question asking for conclusion is harmless where answer did not give one. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Walters [Ill.] 75 N. E. 441.

34. Farmers' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Cole, 4 Neb. Unoff. 130, 93 N. W. 730. Witness did not remember. Mitchiner v. Western Union Tel. Co., 70 S. C. 522, 50 S. E. 190.

35. In re Morey's Estate [Cal.] 82 P. 57. Directing defendant to appear again for examination on refusal to answer questions is harmless to plaintiff. Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Alexander, 34 Ind. App. 596, 73 N. E. 279. Not prejudicial to overrule objection to question not necessarily calling for incompetent answer. "What took place?" Mollineaux v. Clapp, 99 App. Div. 543, 90 N. Y. S. 880. Question to physician as to general effect of shock to woman. Edwards v. Burke, 36 Wash. 107, 78 P. 610. Short method of stating damages held not prejudicial. Red River, etc., R. Co. v. Eastin [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 660, 88 S. W. 530. Permitting counsel to examine witness as to contents of written instrument without first producing it and allowing witness to examine it. McDonald Bros. v. Campbell [Minn.] 104 N. W. 760.

36. Illinois Steel Co. v. Jeka, 123 Wis. 419, 101 N. W. 399; Backes v. Erickson [S. D.] 103 N. W. 21; Harrison v. Lakenan [Mo.] 88 S. W. 53. Not error to allow cross-examination of hostile witness. Jackman v. Eau Claire Nat. Bank [Wis.] 104 N. W. 98. Exclusion of question on cross-examination on matter subsequently fully developed. Maurer v. Gould [N. J. Law] 59 A. 28. Undue latitude of cross-examination is harmless where facts developed might have been brought out by party making witness his own. Westfall v. Wait [Ind.] 73 N. E. 1089. Asking about defendant's accident insurance not material where the issue is merely the character and extent of plaintiff's injuries. Somers v. Jacobs, 91 N. Y. S. 332.

37. Knapp v. Order of Pendo, 36 Wash. 601, 79 P. 209; Lambert v. La Conner Trading & Transp. Co., 37 Wash. 113, 79 P. 608. An exception to the admission of evidence will not avail on review, where it relates to the mode or order of proof rather than to the substance, and the plaintiff in error was not prejudiced thereby. Schoch v. Schoch, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 110. Introduction of rebuttal testimony during examination in chief. Alquist v. Eagle Iron Works, 126 Iowa, 67, 101 N. W. 520. Error in placing burden of proof. Winn v. Itzel [Wis.] 103 N. W. 220. Witnesses giving difference in values without stating values. Parrott v. Chicago Great Western R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 352. Allowing evidence of bias of witness before defendant brings out his material evidence by cross-examination. Fine v. Interurban St. R. Co., 45 Misc. 587, 91 N. Y. S. 43. Court allowed defendant to examine one of his witnesses before plaintiff opened his case. Such ought not to be allowed except by consent, but no harm was done here. Conant v. Jones, 120 Ga. 568, 48 S. E. 234. Allowing evidence on promise to show relevancy which was not done. El Paso Elec. R. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 718. Refusal to require plaintiff to offer all of a record is not prejudicial where defendant might have had it admitted had he offered it. Knapp v. Patterson [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 391.

38. McAllin v. McAllin, 77 Conn. 398, 59 A. 413.

39. Not reversible error to refuse to strike out a deposition merely because deponent has appeared in court after its introduction. Flannery v. Central Brewing Co., 70 N. J. Law, 715, 59 A. 157.

40. Admission of photograph of injuries already exhibited to jury. Toledo Traction Co. v. Cameron [C. C. A.] 137 F. 48. Secondary evidence of deed proved by objecting party in another case, the record of which is introduced. Benton v. Beakey [Kan.] 81 P. 196.

41. Refusal to strike answer to hypothetical question where facts assumed therein were subsequently fully proved. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Nicholas [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 195. Denial of motion to strike matter previously going in without objection. Hart v. Cascade Timber Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 738.

42. Held prejudicial. Wheeling Mold & Foundry Co. v. Wheeling Steel & Iron Co. [W. Va.] 51 S. E. 129. Incompetent evidence as to changes in machinery ordered by factory inspector and as to composition of certain "trust," damages being excessive. McDonald v. Champion Iron & Steel Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 208, 103 N. W. 829. Incompetent evidence of incompetency to make will, issue being competency to make gift subsequent to will. Downey v. Owen, 98 App. Div. 411, 90 N. Y. S. 280. Where the loan sued for is denied, evidence of another not sued for is prejudicial. Davis v. Reflex Camera Co., 93 N. Y. S. 844. Hearsay as to value. Jaeger v. German-American Ins. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 310. Rejection of evidence as not proper rebuttal where it was admissible in defense of counterclaim. Blaut v. Gross, 94 N. Y. S. 324. Erroneous admission of affidavit of defendant's counsel containing statement that defendant objected to placing cause on short cause calendar held reversible as tending to prejudice jury. Platzer v. North British & Mercantile Ins. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 488. Evidence in personal injury case of number and ages of plaintiff's children. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Ringle [Kan.] 80 P. 43. Testimony in action under civil damage act that plaintiff has children. Manzer v. Phillips [Mich.] 102 N. W. 292. Subsequent precautions to prevent similar injury. Titus v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 343. Though stated to be offered for another pur-

Improper argument,[43] or conduct of counsel [44] or party,[45] or interference with the right to open and close,[46] may be disregarded if without material effect on the result. The same is true of remarks by the court.[47]

Error in instructing the jury or refusing to do so is ground for reversal when the jury has been misled or it was efficient to the result declared in the verdict,[48] and pose. Russell v. New York, etc., R. Co., 96 App. Div. 151, 89 N. Y. S. 429. Admissions of defendant's servant that would justify finding for plaintiff if competent. Dorry v. Union R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 637; Wieland v. Southern Pac. Co. [Cal. App.] 82 P. 226; Redmon v. Metropolitan St R. Co., 185 Mo. 1, 84 S. W. 26; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Winslow [Ky.] 84 S. W. 1175. Offer to compromise. Georgia R. & Elec. Co. v. Wallace & Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 478. Expert evidence on capacity of plaintiff to make contract held prejudicial. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Brundige [Tenn.] 84 S. W. 805. Leading question. Ft. Worth, etc., R. Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 37. Incompetent evidence which if competent would be conclusive is fatal. Chapman v. Greene [S. D.] 101 N. W. 351. Hearsay evidence appearing to have influenced the court. Gaither v. Lindsey [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 225.

43. Seely v. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. [N. H.] 61 A. 585; Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Lawrence, 211 Ill. 373, 71 N. E. 1024; Texas Cent. R. Co. v. O'Loughlin [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1104; West v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co., 187 Mo. 351, 86 S. W. 140. Reference to expenses of litigation. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Vipond, 212 Ill. 199, 72 N. E. 22. A witness being accessible and not shown to be ill, the error in arguing that he is well, instead of not shown to be ill, is not prejudicial. Lambert v. Hamlin [N. H.] 59 A. 941. Sustaining objection to improper argument heals error. Chicago & J. Elec. R. Co. v. Herbert, 115 Ill. App. 248; Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Zapp, 209 Ill. 339, 70 N. E. 623; Schwartz v. McQuaid, 214 Ill. 357, 73 N. E. 582; City of Lexington v. Kreitz [Neb.] 103 N. W. 444; Ft. Smith Lumber Co. v. Cathey [Ark.] 86 S. W. 806; American Cotton Co. v. Simmons [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 842. Amount of verdict held to show nonprejudice. Orscheln v. Scott, 106 Mo. App. 583, 80 S. W. 982.

Held prejudicial: Impropriety attempted to be cured by instruction and reduction of verdict. Wabash R. Co. v. Billings, 212 Ill. 37, 72 N. E. 2; Remey v. Detroit United R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 368, 104 N. W. 420. Statements respecting special interrogatories. Himrod Coal Co. v. Beckwith, 111 Ill. App. 379. Prejudicial to allow plaintiff to close after defendant had waived. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Vanzego [Kan.] 80 P. 944. Public interest in personal injury cases. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Boyd [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 233, 88 S. W. 509. Erroneous value of discovered peril. Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. McGinty [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1001.

44. Asking question imputing want of chastity held not prejudicial. Knickerbocker v. Worthing [Mich.] 101 N. W. 540. Attorney going to view with jury after stipulating not to. O'Connor v. Hogan [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 272, 104 N. W. 29. Prejudicial opening statement held cured. Warn v. Flint [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 294, 104 N. W. 37. Improper mode of questioning held not prejudicial. Morrow v. Gaffney Mfg. Co., 70 S. C. 242, 49 S. E. 573. A judgment will not be reversed because of a proposition made in the presence of the jury to submit the case without argument, when agreed to by counsel without objection. Sullivan v. Padrosa [Ga.] 50 S. E. 142. Bringing in inadmissible demonstration evidence not calculated to excite sympathy. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Flood [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 1106. Persistent attempts by attorney to show compromise held harmless, the evidence having been excluded. Brockman Commission Co. v. Kilbourne [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 275.

Held prejudicial: Bringing out insurance of defendant in casualty company. Stratton v. Nichols Lumber Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 831. Prejudicial conduct in opening and in attempting to get collateral matters before jury in evidence held not cured by sustaining objections. Pioneer Reserve Ass'n v. Jones, 111 Ill. App. 156; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Seitz, 111 Ill. App. 242; Mattoon Gas Light & Coke Co. v. Dolan, 111 Ill. App. 333. To ask in personal injury case whether defendant or some one else is defending the suit is prejudicial in a close case. Harry Bros. Co. v. Brady [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 615.

45. Trembling in presence of jury. Chicago & J. Elec. R. Co. v. Spence, 115 Ill. App. 465.

46. Seely v. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. [N. H.] 61 A. 585.

47. Ray v. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 582, 88 S. W. 466; City of Guthrie v. Carey [Okl.] 81 P. 431; Lightfoot v. Winnebago Traction Co., 123 Wis. 479, 102 N. W. 30. No prejudice can result from court's reading from a decision of the supreme court to sustain its refusal of defendant's point. Thomas v. Butler, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 305. Disparaging remark concerning medical works. Foss v. Portsmouth, etc., R. Co. [N. H.] 60 A. 747. Criticism of both counsel. Feldman v. Senft, 92 N. Y. S. 231. Statement that evidence was improperly excluded. Richmond Ice Co. v. Crystal Ice Co., 103 Va. 465, 49 S. E. 650.

48. Robinson v. Lowe, 56 W. Va. 308, 49 S. E. 250; Southern Pine Co. v. Powell [Fla.] 37 So. 570. Instruction including elements of damage not proved. Gilmore v. Kane [N. J. Law] 60 A. 181. Erroneous instruction on element of damages held not rendered innocuous by lack of evidence to establish it. Cullen v. Higgins, 216 Ill. 78, 74 N. E. 698. Instruction withdrawing issue as to which evidence conflicts. Hensel v. Hoffman [Neb.] 104 N. W. 603. Held prejudicial and misleading as authorizing inferences contrary to party's contentions. Netherlands Fire Ins. Co. v. Barry, 93 N. Y. S. 164. Instruction requiring finding on excluded evidence. Foley v. Zavier, 93 N. Y. S. 289. Charge on punitive damages is prejudicial where not warranted and the injury was aggravated. Macon R. & Light Co. v. Mason [Ga.] 51 S. E.

not otherwise.[49] The verdict and findings may indicate whether an erroneous in-569. The presentation of two inconsistent theories one of which plaintiff cannot recover on without disregarding all of his evidence is error. Behen v. St. Louis Transit Co., 186 Mo. 430, 85 S. W. 346. Measure of damages for delay in shipping cattle. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Nelson [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 616. Loose instruction on damages held prejudicial where verdict perforce rests on opinion. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Garrett [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 172. Instruction predicating defense on claim not set up by defendant. Unlawful detainer. McElvaney v. Smith [Ark.] 88 S. W. 981.

49. Elkins v. Metcalf, 116 Ill. App. 29; Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Hanthorn, 211 Ill. 367, 71 N. E. 1022; Town of Bethel v. Pruett, 215 Ill. 162, 74 N. E. 111; Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Leach, 215 Ill. 184, 74 N. E. 119; Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Miller [Ind.] 74 N. E. 509; Kerr v. Atwood [Mass.] 74 N. E. 917; McGinty v. Waterman, 93 Minn. 242, 101 N. W. 300; Gillespie v. Ashford, 125 Iowa, 729, 101 N. W. 649; Sylvester v. Ammons, 126 Iowa, 140, 101 N. W. 782; Hunt v. Ahnemann [Minn.] 102 N. W. 376; Patterson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 103 N. W. 621; Gulbertson v. Hanson [Minn.] 104 N. W. 2; Jackman v. Eau Claire Nat. Bank [Wis.] 104 N. W. 98; Wilder v. Great Western Cereal Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 434; Lake Superior Produce & Cold Storage Co. v. Concordia Fire Ins. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 560; McAfee v. Dix, 101 App. Div. 69, 91 N. Y. S. 464; Hackler v. Evans [Kan.] 79 P. 669; Peterson v. Seattle [Wash.] 82 P. 141; Heard v. Tappan, 121 Ga. 437, 49 S. E. 292; Macon & B. R. Co. v. Anderson, 121 Ga. 666, 49 S. E. 791; Brown v. St. Louis Transit Co., 108 Mo. App. 310, 83 S. W. 310; Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Kellerman [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 401; Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Penny [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 718; Odin Coal Co. v. Tadlock [Ill.] 75 N. E. 332; Burns v. Goddard [S. C.] 51 S. E. 915; Walter Pratt & Co. v. Frasier & Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 983; Jackson v. American Telep. & Tel. Co. [N. C.] 51 S. E. 1015; Thompson v. Chaffee [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. R. 794, 89 S. W. 285. Inconsistency. James v. Lyons Co. [Cal.] 81 P. 275. Inconsistency between charge and answers to points. Rondinella v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 293. Ignoring some issues. Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Vallowe, 214 Ill. 124, 73 N. E. 416. Instruction not pertinent. Foster v. Seattle Elec. Co., 35 Wash. 177, 76 P. 995; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Walters [Ill.] 75 N. E. 441; Story v. St. Louis Transit Co., 108 Mo. App. 424, 83 S. W. 992; Lackland v. Lexington Coal Min. Co., 110 Mo. App. 634, 85 S. W. 397. Slight inaccuracy in quoting testimony. Abington Dairy Co. v. Reynolds, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 632; Field v. Schuster, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 82; Pryor v. Walkerville [Mont.] 79 P. 240. Error in not submitting the issue of negligence is harmless where contributory negligence is conclusively shown. Heying v. United R. & Elec. Co. [Md.] 59 A. 667. Refusal of instruction stating mere truism. Mack v. Starr [Conn.] 61 A. 472. A judgment should not be reversed for inadvertent expressions in the charge to which the attention of the trial court was not called and which evidently did not affect the verdict. Mountain Copper Co. v. Van Buren [C. C. A.] 133 F. 1. The giving of an instruction correctly defining certain terms "as used in these instructions" is harmless though there are no instructions using such terms. "Ordinary risks of employment." Wells v. O'Hare, 110 Ill. App. 7. A charge as to facts excusing contributory negligence, although in the opinion of the court unnecessary, is not to the prejudice of the defendant if no contributory negligence existed. Smith v. Johnson, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 8. Modification of charge on plaintiff's negligence held not prejudicial. Espenlaub v. Ellis, 34 Ind. App. 163, 72 N. E. 527. Failure to instruct as to improper argument. Southern Ind. R. Co. v. Fine, 163 Ind. 617, 72 N. E. 589. Inadvertent assumption that paragraph of complaint to which demurrer had been sustained was still in case. Id. An erroneous charge on contributory negligence is harmless to defendant where there is no evidence of it. Indianapolis v. Cauley [Ind.] 73 N. E. 691. Instruction authorizing verdict for plaintiff if evidence only slightly preponderates in his favor. Chicago City R. Co. v. Nelson, 215 Ill. 436, 74 N. E. 458. Failure to instruct as promised concerning evidence admitted for a particular purpose. Considine v. Dubuque, 126 Iowa, 283, 102 N. W. 102. Inadvertent use of "plaintiff" for "defendant," error being apparent. Reupke v. Stuhr & Son Grain Co., 126 Iowa, 632, 102 N. W. 509. Where judge used the word "plaintiff" instead of "plaintiff's intestate" but the jury could not have been misled. Blackshear v. Dekle, 120 Ga. 766, 48 S. E. 311. Definition of fraud substantially correct. McDonald v. Smith [Mich.] 102 N. W. 668. Where the charge is a complete and direct statement of the applicable rules of law, errors assigned on rejected instructions will not be considered. Pumorlo v. Merrill [Wis.] 103 N. W. 464. Verbal inaccuracy in instructions correct as a whole. Young v. People's Gas & Elec. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 788. Instruction on ratification is harmless where authority is undisputed. Antrim Iron Co. v. Anderson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 314, 104 N. W. 319. Reading pleadings instead of otherwise stating issues. German Ins. Co. v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 361. Measure of damages for personal injury. Stowe v. La Conner Trading & Transp. Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 856; Prior v. Eggert [Wash.] 81 P. 929. One instruction argumentative. McCormick v. Parriott [Colo.] 80 P. 1044. Charge to find for defendant if settlement was "full and fair" is not prejudicial in absence of evidence questioning fairness of settlement. Irwin v. Buffalo Pitts Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 849. Ruling as to kind of money in which contract obligation must be discharged. City of San Juan v. St. John's Gas Co., 195 U. S. 510, 49 Law. Ed. 299. The refusal to give special instructions on the question of contributory negligence will not be reviewed where, on plaintiff's own evidence, the court properly held as a matter of law that such negligence existed. Stewart v. North Carolina R. Co., 136 N. C. 385, 48 S. E. 793. Judgment will not be reversed because the judge fails to instruct the jury on an essential point, if the proof on that point is so clear and conclusive that struction was effective.[50] If, as in equitable issues, the verdict is merely advisory,

there can be no question that it was established. Parrish v. Huntington [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 416. Defendant cannot complain that the law of unavoidable accident was not correctly given to the jury where it was not entitled to any charge presenting that issue. Georgia, F. & A. R. Co. v. Lasseter [Ga.] 51 S. E. 15. Error in instructions on contributory negligence where there is no evidence of any. City of Macon v. Humphries [Ga.] 50 S. E. 986; Pressly v. Dover Yarn Mills [N. C.] 51 S. E. 69. Instruction inadvertently stating instead of twenty years as period of limitation, where correct time was elsewhere given. Love v. Turner [S. C.] 51 S. E. 101. Irrelevant charge. Richardson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 261; Latour v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 265; Sharpton v. Augusta & A. R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 553. Objectionable use of words "If you believe from the evidence." Merrell v. Dudley [N. C.] 51 S. E. 777. Charge slightly misleading. Vandiver & Co. v. Waller [Ala.] 39 So. 136. Failure to instruct that plaintiff must show a certain fact is not error where the fact was shown and undisputed. Thomson Bros. v. Lynn [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 330. Instruction that a particular amount was reasonable is harmless where it is admitted that it was reasonable. Santa Fe St. R. Co. v. Schutz [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 39. Charge on city's actual knowledge of defect in street is harmless where evidence of constructive notice is sufficient. City of Dallas v. Muncton [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 431. Instruction more likely to be construed in appellant's favor than otherwise. Gerhart v. Wabash R. Co., 110 Mo. App. 105, 84 S. W. 100. Where the instructions submit defendant's liability solely on the theory that it specially contracted to carry plaintiff's goods safely, an instruction in which it is assumed that defendant is a common carrier is harmless. Jaminet v. American Storage & Storage & Moving Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 128. Superfluous words. Reference to testimony of experts "and others" as to values. Restetsky v. Delmar Ave. & C. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 665. Instruction that plaintiff must prove fact not disputed and assumed to be true all through trial. Strahorn-Hutton-Evans Commission Co. v. Heffner [Ark.] 85 S. W. 784. Inaccurate instruction on care required of carrier of live stock. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Gray [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 838. Reference to contributory negligence "as defined in other instructions," no definition being given, is harmless, that defense having been abandoned. Schroeder v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 968. Charge giving incorrect definition of negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Everett [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 17. Abstract definition of ordinary care. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Scott [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 18. Charge giving amount to find for plaintiff if jury find for him is not error where amount is undisputed. Comer v. Thornton [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 19. Where there was an express contract, and the jury so find, there is no harm in errors in charging what would be the rights of the parties under the contract to be implied in the absence of an express one. Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Reid [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 363. Failure to charge on a fact established by uncontroverted testimony is not prejudicial to the party against whom such fact is properly found. Evans v. Gray [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 375. Inaccuracy in charge given on the hypothesis that the reinsurer issued the policy sued on is harmless. Wall v. Continental Casualty Co. [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 491. Recital in instruction of immaterial uncontroverted fact. Spencer v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 593. Slight modification. Id. The court in Texas does not judicially know that dead horses are less valuable than live ones so as to render harmless an instruction on the measure of damages for injuries to horses in transportation. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Snyder [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1041. Error in instructions on contributory negligence is harmless to defendant where there was no evidence of any. Sack v. St. Louis Car Co. [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 79. Charge requiring carrier to dispatch goods "promptly" held harmless where negligent delay was undisputed. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Sheared [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 363. General statement as to duty of common carriers held not error where the issue was properly submitted. Citizens' Elec. Co. v. Thomas [Ark.] 87 S. W. 427. Error in submitting a hypothesis unsupported by any evidence is harmless where the verdict is correct and based on a correct construction of the contract sued on. Woods v. Carl [Ark.] 87 S. W. 621. Broader instruction on negligence than facts required. Reynolds v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 50. Variance between instructions and petition held not prejudicial. Personal injuries. Williams v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 59. Refusal to instruct as to purpose of receiving evidence. Bartley v. Comer [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 816, 89 S. W. 82. A special charge, to the effect that the jury are not to consider the statement of plaintiff's claim in his petition as evidence in the case, might well have been given, but its omission could not have misled the jury or prejudiced the rights of the defendant. Duhme Jewelry Co. v. Hazen, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 606.

50. Edward Malley Co. v. Button [Conn.] 60 A. 125; Kurstelska v. Jackson, 93 Minn. 385, 101 N. W. 606; Calbeck v. Ford [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 82, 103 N. W. 516; Modern Match Co. v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 269, 104 N. W. 19; Lownsdale v. Gray's Harbor Boom Co., 36 Wash. 198, 78 P. 904; San Miguel Consol. Gold Min. Co. v. Bonner [Colo.] 79 P. 1025. Special finding may show that erroneous instruction was disregarded. Adams v. Pease, 113 Ill. App. 356; Southern I. R. Co. v. Norman [Ind.] 74 N. E. 896; Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. O'Donnell [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 163; Dunn v. Crichfield, 214 Ill. 292, 73 N. E. 386. Smallness of verdict may show that instruction on measure of damages was harmless. Freeman v. Wright, 113 Ill. App. 159; Cheney v. Field, 114 Ill. App. 597; Pierce v. O'Brien [Mass.] 75 N. E. 61. Instruction erroneously allowing punitive damages. Bradford v. Taylor [Miss.] 37 So. 812. Assuming fact found by special verdict. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Osgood [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 285. Refusal to instruct.

such error is presumptively harmless.[51] The fact that improper papers were before the jury while deliberating,[52] or that it was improperly recalled,[53] or that other irregularities occurred during the trial,[54] are not reversible if no harm resulted; nor are defects and irregularities in the verdict, findings, and conclusions of law,[55] or in Huntington Light & Fuel Co. v. Beaver [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 1002; City Elec. R. Co. v. Smith, 121 Ga. 663, 49 S. E. 724. Instruction as to nominal damages held harmless where jury allowed substantial recovery. Cummings v. Holt [Mass.] 74 N. E. 297. Refusal to give instructions on first count is cured by recovery on second. Madison Coal Co. v. Hayes, 215 Ill. 625, 74 N. E. 755. Finding of incapacity held to render harmless submission of issue of undue influence, where two issues were kept separate. In re Selleck's Will, 125 Iowa, 678, 101 N. W. 453. Instruction to find exemplary damages in such sum as would be just against defendant least culpable is harmless as to plaintiff where the jury found for one defendant. Love v. Halladay [Mich.] 102 N. W. 1027. Instructions dispersing with unanimimty are harmless when followed by a unanimous verdict. Shilling Mercantile Co. v. Elliott [Colo. App.] 79 P. 179. Erroneous instruction on contributory negligence is harmless where the jury find no negligence. Cannady v. Durham, 137 N. C. 72, 49 S. E. 50. Error in instruction on punitive damages is harmless where compensatory damages only are awarded. Spengler v. St. Louis Transit Co., 108 Mo. App. 329, 83 S. W. 312. Error in failing to limit the recovery to the amount claimed in the petition is harmless where the verdict is less. Edger v. Kupper, 110 Mo. App. 280, 85 S. W. 949.

Held prejudicial: Instruction authorizing punitive damages held not cured by size of verdict. Two thousand five hundred dollars for broken leg. Covington Saw Mill & Mfg. Co. v. Drexilius [Ky.] 87 S. W. 266. Error cannot be harmless where recovery greatly exceeds amount erroneous charge authorizes. Nelson v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 781. Where appellate court cannot determine on what issue verdict was rendered, erroneous instructions cannot be disregarded. Jennings v. White [N. C.] 51 S. E. 799.

51. 3 C. L. 1587, n. 37.

52. Pleadings. Powley v. Swensen, 146 Cal. 471, 80 P. 722; Elgin, A. & S. Traction Co. v. Wilson [Ill.] 75 N. E. 436. Deposition containing only one fact and that one not likely to have been forgotten. Fottori v. Vesella [R. I.] 61 A. 143. Photographs. Toledo Traction Co. v. Cameron [C. C. A.] 137 F. 48.

Held prejudicial to give interrogatories to jury. Shedden v. Stiles, 121 Ga. 637, 49 S. E. 719.

53. See 3 C. L. 1587, n. 39.

54. Where the court refuses an instruction as offered, it being clearly erroneous, his statement that he desires to modify it is not reversible error, though modification is prohibited by the statute. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Zapp, 209 Ill. 339, 70 N. E. 623. Failure to submit correct special interrogatories to counsel before submitting to jury. Chicago City R. Co. v. Nelson, 215 Ill. 436, 74 N. E. 458. Party held not prejudiced by vigorous cross-examination by judge in case tried to court. Stelpflug v. Wolfe [Iowa] 102 N. W. 1130. Allowing plaintiff to walk before jury after submission of case. Harvey v. Fargo, 99 App. Div. 599, 91 N. Y. S. 84. Irregular conduct on view. Wood v. Moulton, 146 Cal. 317, 80 P. 92. Conduct of jury on view held not prejudicial. Louisville, A. & P. V. Elec. R. Co. v. Whipps [Ky.] 87 S. W. 298. Leaving question of law to jury who find properly. Bedgood-Howell Co. v. Moore [Ga.] 51 S. E. 420. Failure of judge to sign charge. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lucas [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1082. Order of opening case not strictly following statute. Rust v. Rust [Ky.] 84 S. W. 1152.

55. Krauskopf v. Pennypack Yarn Finishing Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 506; Bill v. Fuller, 146 Cal. 50, 79 P. 592. Failure to mark each paragraph of draft finding "Proven" or "Not Proven." Hazard Powder Co. v. Somersville Mfg. Co. [Conn.] 61 A. 519. Refusal to require more specific answer to interrogatory is harmless where defendant was not entitled to judgment. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. McFall [Ind.] 72 N. E. 552. Failure to find as to immaterial fact. Hohn v. Shideler [Ind.] 72 N. E. 575; Borror v. Carrier, 34 Ind. App. 353, 73 N. E. 123. Refusal of findings not efficient to the result if made. Carstens v. Hine [Wash.] 81 P. 1004. Failure to find fact not requested and not necessary to support judgment. State v. Coughran [S. D.] 103 N. W. 31. Order awarding counsel fees to be paid to "plaintiff or her counsel." Kowalsky v. Kowalsky, 145 Cal. 394, 78 P. 877. Failure to find as to count as to which there was no evidence. Ropes v. John Rosenfeld's Sons, 145 Cal. 671, 79 P. 354. Defendant is not prejudiced by treatment of findings answered "Doubtful" as favorable to him. Norman v. Hopper [Wash.] 80 P. 551. Conflict of findings. Butler v. Delafield [Cal. App.] 82 P. 260. Failure to find on special issue where general verdict was for defendant. Vaughn v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 345. Failure to find that answers in application for life insurance were warranties is harmless where court so treated them in disposing of the case. Endowment Rank Supreme Lodge K. P. v. Townsend [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 220. An equity case will not be reversed because of an erroneous declaration of law by the chancellor, where the facts developed on the hearing support the finding and decree. Schibel v. Merrill, 185 Mo. 534, 83 S. W. 1069. Erroneous finding on immaterial fact. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Provo [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 275. Failure to make specific findings covered by those made. Vestal v. Young [Cal.] 82 P. 381.

Held prejudicial: Finding against undisputed evidence. Boice v. McCormick, 94 N. Y. S. 892. Refusal in an action tried before the court without a jury to give a declaration of law stating the correct theory on which the cause should be determined. Edwards v. Carondelet Mill. Co., 103 Mo. App. 275, 83 S. W. 764.

the judgment and record,[56] of which the like is true. Thus, a wrong decision when no substantial right exists,[57] or when substantially equivalent to a right decision,[58] or error respecting matters immaterial to the cause of action,[59] is harmless.

Erroneous proceedings after judgment[60] or verdict,[61] or on proceedings for new trial,[62] or preparatory to review,[63] or on an intermediate review,[64] are discussed in the notes, all being governed by the rule that there will be no reversal if no prejudice.

§ 3. Errors cured or made harmless by other matters.[65]—Error is also harmless if some subsequent condition has rectified it or has averted its prejudicial effect.[66]—This may be done by the admission of evidence,[67] by striking out or exclud-

56. A judgment in replevin in terms awarding plaintiff the property and its value is harmless where no property was found and none seized under the writ. Greenberg v. Stevens, 212 Ill. 606, 72 N. E. 722. Decree following bill not objected to as multifarious. Glos v. Stern, 213 Ill. 325, 72 N. E. 1057. Conclusions of law stating liability for greater sum than judgment rendered do not prejudice appellant. Leedy v. Capital Nat. Bank [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 1000. Rendering judgment as of term which had expired. Smith v. King of Arizona Min. & Mill. Co. [Ariz.] 80 P. 357. Alternative judgment in claim and delivery case following remittitur of unauthorized damages. Osmers v. Furey [Mont.] 81 P. 345. That the verdict and judgment in a suit to enjoin the use of land for a certain purpose following the prayer erroneously includes land not intended to be so used cannot be availed of by defendant where the answer does not describe the land. Elliott v. Ferguson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 56.

57. Error in decreeing cancellation of notes and mortgage on defendant's cross bill is harmless where the judgment that plaintiff take nothing by his action is unassailable. Ray v. Baker [Ind.] 74 N. E. 619.

58. A reviewing court is not the place to raise for the first time a point for the technical purpose of securing a reversal of a judgment substantially just and correct. Newport & C. Bridge Co. v. Jutte, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 189.

59. New trial will not be granted in ejectment because of inaccurate ruling as to mesne profits where defendant prevailed. Benning v. Horkan, 120 Ga. 734, 48 S. E. 123. In Mississippi a decree in chancery will not be reversed on the ground merely that there was an adequate remedy at law. Under § 147 of the state constitution. Hancock v. Dodge [Miss.] 37 So. 711.

60. Entry of judgment in favor of true plaintiff by wrong christian name. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Surrells, 115 Ill. App. 615.

61. Direction of verdict in all respects similar to one returned on same issue is harmless. Barber v. Dewes, 101 App. Div. 432, 91 N. Y. S. 1059.

62. A denial of a new trial on legal grounds ignoring a conscious duty to set the verdict aside as a matter of discretion is reversible unless the evidence demanded the verdict given. McIntyre v. McIntyre, 120 Ga. 67, 47 S. E. 501.

63. See 3 C. L. 1588, n. 48.

64. That one of the three judges of the appellate court had been previously objected to as prejudiced is harmless. Biggins v. Lambert, 213 Ill. 625, 73 N. E. 371. On appeal from a decree of interpleader by one of two defendants, the fact that the court below in its opinion referred to the answer of the defendant not appealing is not reversible error, where there is sufficient in the bill and the answer of the defendant appealing to warrant the decree. Kellogg v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 25 App. D. C. 36. Refusal to dismiss a writ of error as to certain of the defendants is not prejudicial to them, where plaintiff in error could have prosecuted the writ after such dismissal, and a reversal of the judgment as to him would have reversed it as to all the parties. Summerville v. King [Tex.] 83 S. W. 680.

65. See 3 C. L. 1588.

66. Admission of secondary evidence of contract offered by plaintiff if error is cured where defendant subsequently introduces the writing. Mulhearn v. Roach, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 483. Erroneous exclusion of impeaching evidence is harmless where party offering it is a witness and does not deny the testimony of the witness sought to be impeached. Deck v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. [Md.] 59 A. 650. Technical defects in a summons are immaterial after a party has submitted to the jurisdiction of the court. Stryker v. Pendergast, 105 Ill. App. 413. Where the answer supplies an omitted and necessary allegation of the petition, the error in overruling a demurrer to the petition ceases to be reversible. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Hare, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 348. The correctness of a ruling will not be inquired into if it is apparent that any error therein was cured by a subsequent ruling. Frey v. Vignier, 145 Cal. 251, 78 P. 733. Failure of cross complaint to allege material fact held cured by answer, failure to object to evidence and findings. Abner Doble Co. v. McDonald, 145 Cal. 641, 79 P. 369. Opening case after amendment. Jordan v. Greig [Colo.] 80 P. 1045. Erroneously sustaining a demurrer to part of a plea becomes harmless by making the part overruled a part of an amended plea. Muller v. Ocala Foundry & Mach. Works [Fla.] 38 So. 64.

Not cured: Overruling demurrer because of limitations held not cured where no evidence was offered to toll statute. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc. v. Boland, 145 Cal. 626, 79 P. 365.

67. Cure of rulings on pleadings: Sustaining demurrer to proper pleading is harmless where the evidence admissible under it is admitted at the trial. New Kanawha

ing evidence,[68] by reinstating it,[69] by withdrawal of objections,[70] by proceeding with trial, of issues of fact after overruling of demurrer to evidence,[71] by instructions,[72]

Coal & Min. Co. v. Wright, 163 Ind. 529, 72 N. E. 550; Harle v. Texas Southern R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1048; Ray v. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 582, 88 S. W. 466. Averment of waiver of proof of loss on fire policy. Ohio Farmers' Ins. Co. v. Vogel [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 612. Proof of strikers allegations admitted. Patterson v. First Nat. Bank [Neb.] 102 N. W. 765.

Excluded evidence afterward admitted. Stowell v. Standard Oil Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 227; In re Morey's Estate [Cal.] 82 P. 57; O'Connor v. Hogan [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 272, 104 N. W. 29; Hurd v. Fleck [Colo.] 82 P. 485; Worrell v. Kinnear Mfg. Co., 103 Va. 719, 49 S. E. 988; Hofacre v. Monticello [Iowa] 103 N. W. 488; Airikainen v. Houghton County St. R. Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 264; Deck v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. [Md.] 59 A. 650; Bycyznski v. Illinois Steel Co., 115 Ill. App. 326; Howe v. Morey [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 450, 104 N. W. 643; Strauss v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 85 App. Div. 613, 82 N. Y. S. 767; Hill v. McCoy [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1015; Anglo-Californian Bank v. Cerf [Cal.] 81 P. 1077; Spinks v. Clark [Cal.] 82 P. 45; City Elec. R. Co. v. Smith, 121 Ga. 663, 49 S. E. 724; Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Jarrell [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 632; McFarland v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 525, 88 S. W. 450. Excluded evidence in chief admitted on cross. Kellam v. Brode [Cal. App.] 82 P. 213. Pleading. West v. Messick Grocery Co., 138 N. C. 166, 50 S. E. 565. Refusal to allow cross-examination of witness is harmless to party who afterwards calls him and examines him as to the matter. Hicks v. Harbison-Walker Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 958.

Not cured: Where ruling was never withdrawn or modified, the error is not cured by the fact that a part of the excluded evidence indirectly found its way into the record. Greenlee v. Mosnat, 126 Iowa, 330, 101 N. W. 1122. Court not having receded from position. Powers v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 184.

Admitted evidence cured by later evidence: Competency of expert. Rice v. Wallowa County [Or.] 81 P. 358. Admitting deposition of witness who was in court is harmless where he was called to the stand and gave full explanation of it. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Watson, 190 U. S. 287, 47 Law. Ed. 1057. Witness afterwards allowed to testify to objectionable fact without exception. Virginia & S. W. R. Co. v. Bailey, 103 Va. 205, 49 S. E. 33. Admission without objection of later testimony of same fact. Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Sage [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 1038. Question calling for opinion of nonexpert held cured by drawing from same witness all facts. Dutro v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 915. Error in admission of evidence is not available where the same evidence is admitted elsewhere without objection. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Boyce [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 395.

68. Hart v. Cascade Timber Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 738; Lee v. Dow [N. H.] 59 A. 374; Gray v. Central Minnesota Immigration Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 792; Blalock v. Clark, 137 N. C. 140, 49 S. E. 88; McKibbin v. Day [Neb.] 104 N. W. 752. Striking out incompetent evidence received over objection on a jury trial does not cure the error unless it appears that the jury was not affected by it. Chicago City R. Co. v. White, 110 Ill. App. 23.

69. Improper striking out held cured by subsequuent introduction of testimony to same effect. Chicago City R. Co. v. Matthieson, 212 Ill. 292, 72 N. E. 443.

70. See 3 C. L. 1589, n. 54.

71. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. State [Md.] 61 A. 189; Gilmer v. Holland Inv. Co., 37 Wash. 589, 79 P. 1103. Refusal of nonsuit may be cured by supplying evidence. Carey v. Hamburg-American Packet Co. [N. J. Law] 60 A. 179; Farnsworth v. Miller [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1100; Elmendorf v. Golden, 37 Wash. 664, 80 P. 264. The mere refusal to direct a nonsuit is not ground for reversal, if testimony coming in after the refusal presents a case for the verdict of the jury. Bostwick v. Willett [N. J. Law] 60 A. 398.

72. Curing erroneous evidence. Osborne & Co. v. Ringland & Co., 122 Iowa, 329, 98 N. W. 116; Manzer v. Phillips [Mich.] 102 N. W. 292; Harrison v. Lakenan [Mo.] 88 S. W. 53; Lee v. Dow [N. H.] 59 A. 374; Muncie Pulp Co. v. Martin [Ind.] 72 N. E. 882; Lazier Gas Engine Co. v. Du Bois [C. C. A.] 130 F. 834; Chicago City R. Co. v. Hyndshaw, 116 Ill. App. 367; Devencenzi v. Cassinelli [Nev.] 81 P. 449; Dayvis v. Western Union Tel. Co. [N. C.] 51 S. E. 898. Admission of evidence that plaintiff in a personal injury case has a family is harmless if the court instruct that no damages are to be allowed on that account. Cleveland & S. W. Traction Co. v. Ward, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 385. Where a court distinctly instructs as to the elements to be considered in assessing damages for wrongful death, the introduction of evidence tending to prejudice the jury is harmless. Coney Island Co. v. Mitsch, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 81. Refusal to strike ordinance. Winkler v. Hawkes, 126 Iowa, 474, 102 N. W. 418. Striking out and instructions to disregard held curative, notwithstanding expression of opinion by court that evidence was admissible. Harkins v. Queen Ins. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 140. Curing refusal to strike. Negligence and incompetency of vice-principal. Dossett v. St. Paul & Tacoma Lumber Co. [Wash.] 82 P. 273. Where the charge restricts recovery to a sum less than he is entitled to under the law, errors in allowing proof of improper items of damage is harmless. Claudius v. West End Heights Amusement Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 354. Admission of prior oral contract merged in written one. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Hadley [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 932.

Not cured. Elliott v. Ferguson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 56; Henne v. Steeb Shipping Co., 37 Wash. 331, 79 P. 938. Action for damages for operation of railroad near school house. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Trustees of Schools of Tp. 9 S., R. 2 W. 3d P. M., 212 Ill. 406, 72 N. E. 39. Condemnation by railroad. Simons v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 129. Evidence on will contest. Weston v. Teufel, 213 Ill. 291, 72 N.

by taking the case or question from the jury,[73] by other corrective rulings or proceedings,[74] by verdict or findings,[75] by judgment,[76] or by remittitur of damages.[77]

E. 908. Contents of attempted codicil of will as showing value of services. Luizzi v. Brady's Estate [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 59, 103, N. W. 574. Subsequent precautions to prevent similar injury. Russell v. New York, etc., R. Co., 96 App. Div. 151, 89 N. Y. S. 429. Evidence that deceased did not understand constitution of mutual benefit society. Sterling v. Head Camp. Pac. Jur. 28 Utah, 505, 80 P. 375. Unrecoverable elements of damage. Profits on cattle. Berg v. Humptulips Boom & River Imp. Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 528. Failure to instruct to disregard stricken testimony and submission of issue is prejudicial. Walsh v. Jackson [Colo.] 81 P. 258. Where the testimony legally before the jury did not warrant the verdict, error in admitting improper testimony is not cured by ignoring it in the charge. Dallas Homestead & Loan Ass'n v. Thomas [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 1041. Error in admitting evidence on an immaterial issue cannot be held harmless where the court refuses to instruct that the question should not be considered. Perry v. Rutherford [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 228, 87 S. W. 1054.

Rejection of evidence. Virginia & S. W. R. Co. v. Bailey, 103 Va. 205, 49 S. E. 33; Jones v. Oppenheim, 91 N. Y. S. 343.

Curing other parts of charge. Thomas v. Butler, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 305; Central R. Co. v. Sehnert, 115 Ill. App. 560; Deckerd v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 982; Patch Mfg. Co. v. Protection Lodge No. 215, I. A. M. [Vt.] 60 A. 74; Hollingsworth v. Ft. Dodge, 125 Iowa, 627, 101 N. W. 455; Spring Valley Coal Co. v. Robizas, 111 Ill. App. 49; Serio v. Murphy, 99 Md. 545, 58 A. 435; American Bonding Co. v. Ottumwa [C. C. A.] 137 F. 572; West Muncie Strawboard Co. v. Slack [Ind.] 72 N. E. 879. Measure of damages. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Miller, 212 Ill. 49, 72 N. E. 25. Instructions must be considered as a whole. Masonic Fraternity Temple Ass'n v. Collins, 110 Ill. App. 504; Chicago City R. Co. v. Hyndshaw, 116 Ill. App. 367; McAfee v. Dix, 101 App. Div. 69, 91 N. Y. S. 464; Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Hanthorn, 211 Ill. 367, 71 N. E. 1022; Senf v. St. Louis & S. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 887; Commonwealth Elec. Co. v. Rose, 214 Ill. 545, 73 N. E. 780; Coal Belt Elec. R. Co. v. Kays [Ill.] 75 N. E. 498; McDonald v. Smith [Mich.] 102 N. W. 668; El Paso Elec. R. Co. v. Harry [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 735; Arkadelphia Lumber Co. v. Posey [Ark.] 85 S. W. 1127; Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Powell [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 21; City of Gibson v. Murray [Ill.] 75 N. E. 319. Instructions submitting plaintiff's theories without mentioning defendant's held not erroneous, defendant's theories having been previously submitted. Jones-Pope Produce Co. v. Breedlove [Ark.] 83 S. W. 924. Charge correct as a whole. Killing intoxicated person on street car track. Taylor v. Houston Elec. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1019. Burden of proof in negligence case. Rice v. New York City R. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 326. In suit for alienation of affections. Humphrey v. Pope [Cal. App.] 82 P. 223. Defendant held not harmed by reference to amount of damages claimed in declaration. Triggs v. McIntyre, 215 Ill. 369, 74 N. E. 400. Positive instruction to dismiss certain other portion of charge from minds. Rudberg v. Bowden Felting Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 590. Instruction assuming fact held cured. Baker v. Independence, 106 Mo. App. 507, 81 S. W. 501.

Not cured by subsequent charge in conflict therewith. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Snow [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 908; Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Grommes, 110 Ill. App. 113; Rosenstein v. Fair Haven & W. R. Co. [Conn.] 60 A. 1061; Continental Casualty Co. v. Peltier [Va.] 51 S. E. 209; Mengis v. Fitzgerald, 95 N. Y. S. 436; Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Sage [Tex.] 84 S. W. 814; Heard v. Ewan [Ark.] 85 S. W. 240; Shepherd v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 87 S. W. 1007; Sands v. Marquardt [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 1011; City of Cleburne v. Gutta Percha & R. Mfg. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 108, 88 S. W. 300; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hitt [Ark.] 88 S. W. 911. Rule will not avail where charge as a whole does not correctly state the law. Nickey v. Dougan, 34 Ind. App. 601, 73 N. E. 288; Fletcher v. Eagle [Ark.] 86 S. W. 810. Measure of damages in condemnation by railroad. Illinois, etc., R. Co. v. Easterbrook, 211 Ill. 624, 71 N. E. 1116. Omission to include effect of contributory negligence in instruction stating elements of recovery not cured by subsequent charge on subject. Nickey v. Steuder [Ind.] 73 N. E. 117.

Curing refusal to charge: Refusal of instruction covered by others. Chicago City R. Co. v. Fetzer, 113 Ill. App. 280; Chicago City R. Co. v. Matthieson, 212 Ill. 292, 72 N. E. 443; Chicago City R. Co. v. Schmidt [Ill.] 75 N. E. 383; Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Matthews [Ala.] 39 So. 207; Cameron v. Roth Tool Co., 108 Mo. App. 265, 83 S. W. 279; Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Olsen, 113 Ill. App. 303; Sweet v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 850; Cutten v. Pearsall [Cal.] 81 P. 25; Birmingham R., Light & Power Co. v. Rutledge [Ala.] 39 So. 338; Birmingham, R., Light & Power Co. v. Livingston [Ala.] 39 So. 374; Yarborough v. Hughes [N. C.] 51 S. E. 904. The refusal to submit a certain issue is rendered harmless by an instruction prescribing the effect of the existence of the affirmative of such issue. National Cash Rgister Co. v. Hill, 136 N. C. 272, 48 S. E. 637.

Not cured. Dambmann v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 180 N. Y. 384, 73 N. E. 59. Right of way of street car at intersection with street which at that point is a cul-de-sac. Rutz v. New York City R. Co., 95 N. Y. S. 345. Accord and satisfaction by payment in more valuable currency. City of San Juan v. St. John's Gas Co., 195 U. S. 510, 49 Law. Ed. 299.

Curing erroneous remarks of counsel. Lee v. Dow [N. H.] 59 A. 374; West Muncie Strawboard Co. v. Slack [Ind.] 72 N. E. 879; Day v. Ferguson [Ark.] 85 S. W. 771. Of court. Neumeister v. Goddard [Wis.] 103 N. W. 241; Cummings v. Weir, 37 Wash. 42, 79 P. 487.

Not cured: Reading previous decision of supreme court in same case held not cured by charge. Olney v. Boston & M. R. Co. [N.

H.] 59 A. 387. Prejudicial argument as to purpose of physical examination conducted by defendant. Remey v. Detroit United R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 368, 104 N. W. 420.

73. Yakima Valley Bank v. McAllister, 37 Wash. 566, 79 P. 1119. Curing admission of evidence on issue withdrawn. Hart v. Maloney, 101 App. Div. 37, 91 N. Y. S. 922. Ignoring of prior verdict setting part of the issues is cured by direction to find in accordance. Meloon v. Read [N. H.] 59 A. 946. Where the sole issue submitted was whether the landlord had waived his lien for rent, error in admitting evidence that a trustee in a trust deed of the crops had been paid becomes immaterial. Goodwin v. Mitchell [Miss.] 38 So. 657. Improper evidence held cured by submission. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Ellerd [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 362. Incompetent evidence of fact not submitted to jury. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. St. John [Tex. Civ. App.] 12 Tex. Ct. Rep. 979, 88 S. W. 297; McCabe v. San Antonio Traction Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 576, 88 S. W. 387. Erroneous ruling on pleading held cured by submission. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Glover [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 263, 88 S. W. 515.

74. Reconsidering ruling on question put to witness. Caven v. Bodwell Granite Co., 99 Me. 278, 59 A. 285. Court refused to allow defendant's counsel to argue the question of want of consideration, but reconsidered and allowed the other counsel of defendant to argue the question. Farnsworth v. Fraser [Mich.] 100 N. W. 400. Disclaimer of recovery under erroneous evidence. Oliver v. Houghton County St. R. Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 530. Overruling demurrer for want of parties is cured by their being brought in. Harrison CoCunty v. State Sav. Bank [Iowa] 103 N. W. 121. Refusal of continuance held cured by subsequent continuance, giving defendant full opportunity to produce witnesses and counsel. People v. Greene, 94 N. Y. S. 477. Error in striking amended answer from files as filed without permission is cured by permission and filing subsequently had and trial on merits. Risdon v. Yates, 145 Cal. 210, 78 P. 641. Stipulation avoiding error in refusing amendment to pleading. South Side Imp. Co. v. Burson [Cal.] 81 P. 1107. Allowing amendment afterward withdrawn. Georgia R. & Elec. Co. v. Reeves [Ga.] 51 S. E. 610. Improper amendment of account held cured by disallowance of added items. Hardy v. Pecot [La.] 36 So. 992. Court refused to compel plaintiff to elect on which count he would proceed to trial, but it confined the proof to one count. Barton v. Odessa [Mo. App.] 82 S. W. 1119. One is not prejudiced by insufficient notice of contempt proceedings, where the judgment for the fine assessed against him is set aside. Davies v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 633. Withdrawal of objectionable remarks. Cane Belt R. Co. v. Crosson [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 867.

Not cured: An oral statement by the judge during progress of the trial is not the equivalent of an instruction and will not cure the error of refusing a proper instruction on that point. Bloomington & N. R. Co. v. Gabbert, 111 Ill. App. 147. View by two jurors not cured by directing view by whole jury over objection of party. Buffalo Structural Steel Co. v. Dickinson, 98 App. Div. 355, 90 N. Y. S. 268. Sending jury and parties out to make a physical examination of plaintiff is not cured by the court's offer on exception after return to retire with them. Fordyce v. Key [Ark.] 84 S. W. 797. The approval of a report in partition signed by only two commissioners and a third person not appointed does not cure the error in failing to appoint three. Crane v. Stafford [Ill.] 75 N. E. 424.

75. Assignments affecting a count on which appellant had judgment will not be considered. McAllin v. McAllin, 77 Conn. 398, 59 A. 413. Errors going to the cause of action are cured by a verdict for a less sum than claimed. United States v. Coughanour [C. C. A.] 133 F. 224. Error in admission of evidence and instructions thereon is harmless where the findings dispose of the case on other issues. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Blasingame [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 819.

Cure of rulings on pleadiugs: The overruling of a demurrer to a replication becomes immaterial where defendant rejoins and the issues are found for plaintiff. Des Moines Life Ass'n v. Crim [C. C. A.] 134 F. 348. Error in ruling as to punitive damages is cured by verdict for defendant. Sellers v. Savannah, etc., R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 398. Refusal to compel election is harmless where recovery is had on only one cause of action. Douthitt v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 190.

Curing exclusion of evidence: Where the jury must have found either that the goods conformed to the contract or that defendant accepted them, the latter is not prejudiced by the exclusion of evidence to prove damages for failure of the goods to conform to the contract. Brown v. Harris [Mich.] 102 N. W. 960. Rejection of evidence and instructions as to set-off held harmless. Hunter v. Davis [Iowa] 103 N. W. 373. Where the jury find that defendant was not negligent, the exclusion of evidence that plaintiff had no notice of defects is harmless. Price v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 858.

Admitted evidence cured: Verdict against improperly admitted evidence. Fudge v. Marquell [Ind.] 72 N. E. 565; Scaling v. First Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 715. Amount of verdict held to show that defendant was not prejudiced by erroneous evidence affecting measure of damages. Lynch v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 535. Appellants' exceptions to evidence will be overruled, the trial court having found for them. Boston, etc., R. Co. v. Berry [N. H.] 60 A. 686. Note not recovered on. McDonald v. Smith [Mich.] 102 N. W. 668. Where the jury found against an alleged payment of a note sued on, the erroneous admission of certain evidence on such issue was harmless to plaintiff. Eastham v. Patty [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 885.

Curing errors in charge: Leaving question of law to jury is harmless where they decided it right. Nickelson v. Cameron Lumber Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 1059. Where nominal damages only are awarded, error in evidence and instructions on actual damages is harmless. Crump v. Ligon [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 250. Where the jury could not have found for defendant except on finding no negligence, error in charging on assumption of risk becomes harmless. Price v. St. Louis

HAWKERS AND PEDDLERS, see latest topical index.

HEALTH.[78]

§ 1. Validity and construction of health regulations.[79]—Reasonable regulations for the purpose of promoting the health of citizens are within the police power of the state,[80] and authority to make such regulations may properly be delegated to local bodies.[81] Thus, ordinances providing for the removal of garbage by a public contractor only,[82] smoke ordinances,[83] laws requiring compulsory vaccination,[84]

S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 858. A finding in terms of damages based on market value heals error in submitting reasonable value. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Prude [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1046. Erroneous instruction on damages for mental suffering in libel is harmless to plaintiff where the jury under proper instructions as to the effect of justification find a verdict for defendant. Ott v. Press Pub. Co. [Wash.] 82 P. 403.

Not cured: Smith v. Bayer [Or.] 79 P. 497.

Curing refusal to charge: Answer to special interrogatory may show immateriality of refused instructions. Wabash R. Co. v. Bhymer, 112 Ill. App. 225. The refusal of instructions relating to an issue found in appellant's favor will not be considered. Stewart v. North Carolina R. Co., 136 N. C. 385, 48 S. E. 793.

76. Refusal of propositions of law correct in principle is hamless where a case is correctly decided on theory making the propositions immaterial. Saffer v. Lambert, 111 Ill. App. 410. Error in finding that plaintiff was entitled to costs is harmless where none were included in the judgment. Boland v. Ashurst Oil, Land & Development Co., 145 Cal. 405, 78 P. 871.

77. See Damages, § 6, 5 C. L. 929. Chicago City R. Co. v. Hyndshaw, 116 Ill. App. 367; Great Northern R. Co. v. Herron [C. C. A.] 136 F. 49; Town of Knightstown v. Homer [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 13; Wright v. Fleischmann, 99 App. Div. 547, 91 N. Y. S. 116; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Martin, 113 Tenn. 266, 87 S. W. 418. Error in admission of evidence which could merely have effected the amount of the verdict may be so cured. Chicago City R. Co. v. Miller, 111 Ill. App. 446. Judgment for amount in excess of that laid in declaration. Finch v. Mishler [Md.] 59 A. 1009. Remittitur of amount claimed in cause of action not proved. Blum v. Edelstein [Colo. App.] 79 P. 301. Where no plea is filed by defendant and the judgment rendered for plaintiff is without objection except as to attorney's fees, such judgment will not be reversed if the amount of such fees is written off by plaintiff. Notice of intention to sue for attorney's fees not given as required by statute. Miller v. Georgia R. Bank, 120 Ga. 17, 47 S. E. 525. Charge that plaintiff could recover for what he had paid for medical attendance, when there was no evidence that he had paid out anything. Howard v. Terminal R. Ass'n, 110 Mo. App. 574, 85 S. W. 608.

Not cured: Error in authorizing jury to allow exemplary damages cannot be cured by remittitur where the amount so allowed cannot be determined. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Lauth, 216 Ill. 176, 74 N. E. 738. Evidence too indefinite to form basis for remittitur necessitates reversal. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Frank [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 236, 88 S. W. 383.

78. Compare titles, Adulteration, 5 C. L. 43; Food, 5 C. L. 1436; Cemeteries, 5 C. L. 557; Medicine and Surgery, 4 C .L. 636; Nuisances, 4 C. L. 839.

79. See 3 C. L. 1590. Public health as one of the foundations of the police power, see, also, Constitutional Law, 5 C. L. 619.

80. State v. Robb [Me.] 60 A. 874. Police power of state includes at least such reasonable regulations established directly by legislative enactment as will protect public health and safety. Jacobson v. Com., 197 U. S. 11, 49 Law. Ed. 643.

81. Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U. S. 11, 49 Law. Ed. 643.

82. State v. Robb [Me.] 60 A. 874. It is not void as creating a monopoly, and being in restraint of trade, nor as providing for the taking of private property without due process, or without compensation. Id. Ordinance of city of Oakland, giving city exclusive charge of removal of garbage, exacting a fee therefor, the amount of which differs according to the kind of building from which garbage is removed—whether private dwelling or store, shop, or place of business—is within police powers conferred on cities by Const. art. 11, § 11. Ex parte Zhizhuzza [Cal.] 81 P. 955. The ordinance is not invalid for nonuniformity, and Const. art. 1, § 11, requiring laws of general application to be uniform in operation, has no application. Id. The exacting of a fee is not taking private property without compensation. Id.

83. Chicago smoke ordinance, applying to all chimneys and smoke stacks in the city alike, held not unconstitutional, though different chimneys serve a different number of fire boxes. Glucose Refining Co. v. Chicago, 138 F. 209.

84. Mass. Rev. Laws, c. 75, § 137, authorizing compulsory vaccination by local health boards when deemed necessary for public health, construed by highest state court to authorize compulsory vaccination of all inhabitants of a city where smallpox is prevalent and increasing, does not deprive citi-

laws excluding children not vaccinated from the public schools,[85] and eight-hour laws [86] are held valid as health regulations. In passing upon the validity of a compulsory vaccination law, courts will take judicial notice that vaccination is commonly believed to be a safe and valuable means of preventing the spread of smallpox, and that this belief is supported by high medical authority.[87] Municipalities have power to enact and enforce such reasonable ordinances as may be necessary with respect to the speedy and orderly removal of dead animals, either by the owners, or on their default, by some other agency;[88] but an ordinance which, immediately upon the death of a domestic animal, and before it becomes a nuisance or dangerous to public health, deprives the owner of his property therein, and invests it in the public contractor, is a taking of private property without due process.[89] Health regulations of the legislature may properly be made applicable to cities of a certain class.[90]

The construction and operation of statutes and ordinances relating to the public health is discussed in the cases below.[91]

zens of personal liberty within the meaning of U. S. Const. 14th Amend. Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U. S. 11, 49 Law. Ed. 643. The statute does not deny equal protection of laws by exception from its operation of children certified to be unfit for vaccination, though there is no such exception in favor of adults. Id. An adult cannot claim he is deprived of liberty by the law when he does not show with reasonable certainty that he is not a fit subject for vaccination. Id.

NOTE. Vaccination (From Jacobson v. Massachusetts, supra): "Whatever may be thought of the expediency of this statute, it cannot be affirmed to be, beyond question, in palpable conflict with the constitution. Nor, in view of the methods employed to stamp out the disease of smallpox, can any one confidently assert that the means prescribed by the state to that end has no real or substantial relation to the protection of the public health and the public safety. Such an assertion would not be consistent with the experience of this and other countries whose authorities have dealt with the disease of smallpox. And the principle of vaccination as a means to prevent the spread of smallpox has been enforced in many states by statutes making the vaccination of children a condition of their right to enter or remain in public schools. Blue v. Beach, 155 Ind. 121, 56 N. E. 89, 80 Am. St. Rep. 175, 50 L. R. A. 64; Morris v. Columbus, 102 Ga. 792, 30 S. E. 850, 66 Am. St. Rep. 243, 42 L. R. A. 175; State v. Kay, 126 N. C. 999, 35 S. E. 459, 78 Am. St. Rep. 691, 49 L. R. A. 588; Abeel v. Clark, 84 Cal. 226, 24 P. 383; Bissell v. Davison, 65 Conn. 183, 32 A. 348, 29 L. R. A. 251; Hazen v. Strong, 2 Vt. 427; Duffield v. Williamsport School Dist., 162 Pa. 476, 29 A. 742, 25 L. R. A. 152." See, also, note, 2 C. L. 176.

85. Laws 1893, c. 661, as amended by Laws 1900, c. 667, § 2, does not violate Const. art. 9, § 1, providing for free schools, nor Const. art. 1, §§ 1, 6, guarantying protection of rights, privileges and liberties. Viemeister v. White, 179 N. Y. 235, 72 N. E. 97.

86. Ex parte Kair [Nev.] 80 P. 463. Such laws are more fully treated in Constitutional Law, 5 C. L. 619; and Master and Servant, 4 C. L. 536.

87. The legislature is entitled to choose between the two theories regarding the value of vaccination and its choice will not be reviewed. Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U. S. 11, 49 Law. Ed. 643; Viemeister v. White, 179 N. Y. 235, 72 N. E. 97.

88. City of Richmond v. Caruthers, 103 Va. 774, 50 S. E. 265.

89. Ordinance providing for contractor to remove dead animals, and imposing on any other person removing such animals, held void. City of Richmond v. Caruthers, 103 Va. 774, 50 S. E. 265. Death of domestic animal does not terminate owner's property therein, and though he may be required to dispose of it so that it shall not become a nuisance, he cannot arbitrarily be deprived of his property therein; he is entitled to a reasonable time in which to remove it, and may remove it himself or by the agency of others, or his vendee may remove it. Mann v. District of Columbia, 22 App. D. C. 139.

90. P. L. 1901, 493, relating to examination and licensing of plumbers and regulating plumbing and drainage in cities of the second class, is valid. Beltz v. Pittsburg [Pa.] 61 A. 78, afg. 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 66.

91. Flue or chimney of apartment building, three feet by three feet, used only for private residences, held within operation of District of Columbia "smoke law," 30 St. at L. 812, c. 79. Duehay v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 434. That part of art. 14, § 9, of the police regulations of the District of Columbia, regulating the time and manner of removal of dead animals, has no extraterritorial force and does not apply where a carcass is carried outside the district, except when the removal is by the public contractor. Mann v. District of Columbia, 22 App. D. C. 138. Within the meaning of an ordinance restricting right to removal of "house offal" to the public contractor, "house offal" includes refuse food from the table, discarded victuals and swill consisting of such refuse, though undecayed; hence, an unlicensed person removing such refuse violates the ordinance. State v. Robb [Me.] 60 A. 874. Where a defendant was charged only with removing offal from the premises of others, the validity of that portion of the ordinance prohibiting persons from removing offal from their own premises was not in issue, and he could be held under the concededly valid portion of the ordinance. Id. Section 82 of the sanitary code of New York, prohibiting

Power to declare a nuisance per se what was not a nuisance at common law and may or may not be a nuisance in fact, can exist in a municipality only by virtue of a statute.[92] The creation of a nuisance, dangerous to the public health, may be enjoined.[93]

§ 2. Health boards and officers.[94]—The constitution,[95] appointment,[96] powers and duties,[97] and compensation[98] of local health boards and officers, are wholly statutory. Powers given by statute to a board of health cannot be delegated to a single health officer.[99]

§ 3. Care and control of contagious or infectious diseases. Liability for expense.[1]—Which local subdivision of the government is liable for such expense is fixed by statute.[2] One who has rendered services, or furnished supplies or the use of the killing or dressing of any animal or meat in any market, is sufficient ground for enjoining a lease of lands deeded to Brooklyn for "market purposes," on which slaughter houses are to be built. Bird v. Grout, 94 N. Y. S. 127. Pen. Code 1895, art. 425, makes it unlawful for one to leave the carcass of a horse which died in his possession within fifty yards of a public road or highway. Held, the statute does not apply to a case where a horse died while turned loose in a pasture, not being in actual manual possession of owner at the time. Ogg v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 348. Violation of resolution of health board of town of Milwaukee prohibiting the bringing of refuse, garbage, etc., into the town, is a misdemeanor, and a justice has no jurisdiction to try a person charged therewith. Stoltman v. Lake [Wis.] 102 N. W. 920.

92. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, p. 294, gives cities power to declare nuisances, and Chicago ordinance declaring issuance of dense smoke more than three minutes—six minutes in case of starting fires or cleaning boxes—a nuisance per se is valid. Glucose Refining Co. v. Chicago, 138 F. 209.

93. A smallpox hospital, established under 72 O. L., 77, as long ago as 1878, by a municipality, within the township but outside of its own corporate limits, at a distance of two hundred and fifty feet back from a public highway, will not be abated as a nuisance, although a large township schoolhouse has since been erected on the highway opposite hospital lot, and dwellings have also been built adjacent thereto. But the erection of an additional building directly opposite the schoolhouse, and within fifty feet of the highway upon which the hospital lot abuts, will be enjoined as a public nuisance where the purpose is to use said building for hospital purposes. Trustees of Youngstown Township v. Youngstown, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 498.

94. See 3 C. L. 1591.

95. Under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 6718, the mayor and common council of a city constitute the health board, where a city has no such board. City of Frankfort v. Irvin, 34 Ind. App. 281, 72 N. E. 652.

96. City of Little Falls, N. Y., had power on Feb. 9, 1904, to appoint a health officer to succeed one whose term expired the last day of that month. Construing city charter, and Laws 1903, p. 877, c. 383, § 20, and Laws 1904, p. 1234, c. 484, amending Public Health Law. People v. Ingham, 94 N. Y. S. 733. Since members of the board of health of the city of Oswego are city officers within Const. art. 10, § 2, they must be appointed in the manner prescribed by charter, and Laws 1893, p. 1501, c. 661, § 20, providing for filling of vacancies in city health boards by the county judge after thirty days is unconstitutional so far as it relates to Oswego. People v. Houghton [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 830, afg. 102 App. Div. 209, 92 N. Y. S. 661. Whether St. 1897, p. 464, c. 277, § 25, subd. 20, which confers such power expressly, is valid or not, county supervisors have power, under constitution and statutes of California, to appoint a health officer, and provide for his payment. Valle v. Shaffer [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1028.

97. Power of purchasing land and erecting and furnishing buildings for a new hospital in Jersey City held, under the facts, to have been vested in board of trustees appointed in accordance with P. L. 1902, p. 549, and not in board of health appointed under P. L. 1904, p. 343. Lamspon v. Jersey City [N. J. Law] 61 A. 513. Under Act March 30, 1903 (P. L. 115), a city of the third class may take title to land outside city limits and erect a hospital thereon for the care of contagious and infectious diseases, though manner of maintaining same and of taking patients to and from hospital is subject to reasonable regulations of township. City of Allentown v. Wagner, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 485. Where council also constituted health board, chairman or council committee had power to employ nurse to care for patients in pesthouse, though such pesthouse was situated outside city limits. City of Frankfort v. Irvin, 34 Ind. App. 281, 72 N. E. 652.

98. Ky. St. 1903, § 2060, provides that health officers shall receive reasonable compensation. Hence fiscal court of county cannot fix a salary for such officer in advance and so limit the amount which he can recover from the county to $40 per year. Taylor v. Adair County [Ky.] 84 S. W. 299. Health commissioner whose duties and compensation are fixed by law cannot recover for alleged extra services which fall within the scope of his duties; nor can he hire himself to perform services not included in his duties. Sloan v. Peoria, 106 Ill. App. 151.

99. Under Ky. St. 1903, §§ 2055, 2057, county boards cannot delegate powers and duties to a single officer. Taylor v. Adair County [Ky.] 84 S. W. 290.

1. See 3 C. L. 1592.

2. City which has caused medical attention to be given a poor person who should have been cared for by county may recover property, may recover the value thereof from the municipality liable for such expense,[3] provided such services were rendered or supplies or property furnished at the request of or under contract with one authorized to represent the municipality.[4] In the presentation and allowance of claims by individuals or municipalities, the statutory procedure must be observed.[5] expense from county, one of the county commissioners having been notified of the action being taken by the city. City of Chester v. Randolph County, 112 Ill. App. 510. In Massachusetts, a municipality which has incurred expense in caring for an insolvent non-resident suffering from a contagious disease may recover therefor from the municipality where the patient has a legal residence, even though no isolation hospital was maintained. Haverhill v. Marlborough, 187 Mass. 150, 72 N. E. 943. Bill for medical services held reasonable and properly inclusive of services rendered during quarantine. Id. Expenses of policemen and cost of supplies for quarantined persons who were not ill not recoverable. Id.

3. City liable for expense of burying one who died of smallpox, though it was duty of overseer of poor to provide for poor persons. Frankfort v. Irvin, 34 Ind. App. 281, 72 N. E. 652. Though a city is not liable in tort for the unauthorized act of its health officer in taking possession of private premises for use as a pesthouse, such possession being obtained by a trick or trespass (Bodewig v. Port Huron [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 567, 104 N. W. 769), yet, where it is authorized to maintain a pesthouse, it is liable to the owner for the reasonable value of the use of the premises. Id. Where person sick with smallpox was sent to plaintiff's house, and he and plaintiff and her son and a physician were quarantined in the house, the secretary of the town board of health was authorized to direct plaintiff to care for the patient and physician, and the town became liable for her services rendered. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 6718. Town of Knightstown v. Homer [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 13. Complaint for services held sufficient, after verdict. Id. But plaintiff could not recover for services rendered in caring for her son, who was thereafter taken sick and quarantined, it not appearing that she was indigent. Id. Where smallpox patient was not sent to plaintiff's house by board of health, but after going there, was quarantined, and thereafter plaintiff's furniture was destroyed to prevent the spread of the disease, the measure of plaintiff's recovery was the value of such furniture at the time it was taken and destroyed. Id. Under How. Ann. St. § 1647, as amended by Pub. Acts 1903, p. 6, No. 7, a claim for services of one employed as a quarantine watch is a proper claim against the county. Bishop v. Ottawa County Sup'rs [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 91, 103 N. W. 585.

4. Petition pleading oral contract with board of health, for necessaries to be provided for a family quarantined on account of smallpox, held good against general demurrer. Meiley v. Columbus, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 398. Rev. St. 1898, §§ 1412, 1416, do not authorize health officer of town to employ physician to care for quarantined family afflicted with smallpox, at town's expense, without the approval of the board of health. Collier v. Scott [Wis.] 102 N. W. 909. In view of powers given county superintendent of health by Pub. Laws 1893, p. 172, c. 214, § 9, where he directed insolvent smallpox patient to be placed in a private pesthouse and requested plaintiff, a physician, to care for him, plaintiff could recover from county for services so rendered. Copple v. Davie County Com'rs, 138 N. C. 127, 50 S. E. 574. Under Code, § 1026, the board of health of a city under a special charter may employ its health officer to perform extra medical services in caring for smallpox cases. Dewitt v. Mills County, 126 Iowa, 169, 101 N. W. 766. That the person employed is a member of the city council does not make the employment illegal, since, under Code, § 1026, contracts by health boards do not have to be approved by the council. Id. Nor does section 943, prohibiting council members from becoming interested in contracts for "the corporation," apply, where the services rendered were at the expense of the county. Id. Sheriff, who has custody of jails and prisoners in county (Laws 1892, c. 686), since it is a misdemeanor to willfully expose a person suffering from a contagious disease (Pen. Code, § 434), is under the duty of removing a prisoner suffering from smallpox from a county jail to a suitable place until he has served his sentence. In re Boyce, 43 Misc. 297, 88 N. Y. S. 841. The rent of the place selected by the sheriff and the damages to the owner, the sheriff's act having been ratified by purchasing committee of county under Laws 1900, p. 685, c. 324, § 8, are proper claims against the county. Id. Town is not rendered liable because president and health board chairman of village assisted in removal of prisoner. Id. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 6718, a town is liable for expenses incurred only when acts done to prevent spread of disease are within the scope of the authority of the health board; hence an instruction authoriing a recovery for destruction of property by "officers" was erroneous. Town of Knightstown v. Homer [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 13.

5. In Massachusetts expenses incurred previous to St. 1902, p. 156, c. 213, § 1, requiring approval of bill by health board of municipality of which demand is made, may be recovered, though there has been no such approval, the statute being wholly prospective. Haverhill v. Marlborough, 187 Mass. 150, 72 N. E. 943. Under How. Ann. St. § 1647, as amended by Pub. Acts 1903, p. 6, No. 7, an individual who has furnished supplies or rendered services in caring for an indigent patient may present his claim to the county, and it is not necessary that his claim be allowed and paid by the local health board, and presented by it to the county. Bishop v. Ottawa County Sup'rs [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 91, 103 N. W. 585. The person presenting such a claim is entitled to a hearing before the county board. Id. How. Ann. St. § 1647, as amended by Pub. Acts 1903, p. 6, No. 7, requiring local boards to keep itemized and separate accounts of expenses for each pa-

Negligence.[6]—A city is not liable in tort for negligent acts of its officers in caring for persons suffering from a contagious disease.[7]

HEARING; HEARSAY; HEIRS, DEVISEES, NEXT OF KIN AND LEGATEES; HERD LAWS, see latest topical index.

HIGHWAYS AND STREETS.[8]

§ 1. Definitions and classifications.[9]—A highway in the broad sense is a thoroughfare, either rural or urban,[10] but a statutory public highway is such only as comes within the express provisions of the statute,[11] as a way leading from town to town and not wholly within one town.[12] Not every strip of land over which certain tient cared for and to render an account to county supervisors, held complied with where local board had an itemized account before it, and certified to it. Id. Under Code 1897, § 2570, where a local health board cares for smallpox patients who are unable to pay, the county being liable for the expense, the power to fix fees or charges is in the local board, and when it has approved a bill, it is the duty of the county board to order it paid as approved by such local board. Resner v. Carroll County, 126 Iowa, 423, 102 N. W. 148.

6. See 3 C. L. 1593.

7. No civil liability for death from smallpox brought on by exposure in pesthouse and by want of proper care while confined. Lexington v. Batson's Adm'r, 26 Ky. L. R. 363, 81 S. W. 264.

8. The scope of this topic, while broadly including all questions pertinent to the law of highways, excludes that of Dedication (5 C. L. 959); Easements (5 C. L. 1048); Eminent Domain (5 C. L. 1097); Public Works and Improvements (4 C. L. 1124), and Taxes (4 C. L. 1605).

9. See 3 C. L. 1594.

10. Public highways are arteries of communication and of intertraffic in the commodities of the county. State v. Kansas Natural Gas, Oil, Pipe Line & Improvement Co. [Kan.] 80 P. 962. A railroad company's right-of-way is not a highway within the Federal statute giving telegraph companies the power to construct their lines along post roads, etc. Act July 24, 1866 (14 Stat. 221). Western Union Tel. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 195 U. S. 540, 49 Law. Ed. 312. The question as to the existence of a highway on the shore of navigable water prior to a grant of the locus in quo by the riparian commissioners is properly triable in a pending action at law rather than in equity. Attorney General v. Central R. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 348.

11. By virtue of Laws 1895, p. 550, c. 178, § 54, an avenue on tide lands platted by the appraiser is a public highway. Town of West Seattle v. West Seattle Land & Improvement Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 549. Chapter 215, p. 308, of Laws 1887, declared all section lines in certain counties public highways, but did not declare them open for travel. Hanselman v. Born [Kan.] 81 P. 192.

A private railroad is not a cartway as that term is used in the North Carolina statutes. Cozad v. Kanawha Hardwood Co. [N. C.] 51 S. E. 932.

A county boulevard may be within a statutory regulation respecting a "street in a city." Gen. St. p. 2882. Board of Chosen Freeholders of Hudson County v. Central R. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 303.

Evidence held to show a public highway. Highbarger v. Milford [Kan.] 80 P. 633.

12. Guideposts on highways. State v. Swanville [Me.] 61 A. 833.

individuals and the public have a right to travel, even though the strip is laid out and kept in repair by the public authorities and serves as a means of communication between public highways, is therefore a street.[13] A sidewalk constructed on a highway is a separable part thereof intended especially for the use of pedestrians,[14] and its character as a sidewalk is not lost by the fact that there is no dividing line between it and the residue of the highway or that wagons are driven upon it in case of necessity.[15]

§ 2. Establishment by dedication, prescription, or user.[16]—Dedication[17] and acceptance by the public,[18] before withdrawal of the offer,[19] and the actual opening of the street upon the ground within the statutory period,[20] are requisite, unless dispensed with by statute.[21] Dedication may be express,[22] or may be implied from any acts which clearly manifest the intention to dedicate.[23] Acceptance may be in the statutory method,[24] or may be shown by the circumstances of public user,[25] or by the public authorities assuming control thereof.[26] Ordinarily it will be presumed

13. Hancock Avenue, Boston, is not legally a street. Perry v. Com. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 661. Evidence held to justify an assumption by the court that a certain way was a public street. Knight v. Kansas City [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 1192.

14. Hillyer v. Winsted, 77 Conn. 304, 59 A. 40. The sidewalks of the city of Washington extend from the curb line bounding the carriageway of the street, to the building line of the houses, even though a portion of this space be devoted to parking. Dotey v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 232. So, also, in Missouri. Coffey v. Carthage, 186 Mo. 573, 85 S. W. 532.

15. Hillyer v. Winsted, 77 Conn. 304, 59 A. 40.

16. See 3 C. L. 1594. See more detailed treatment in Dedication, 5 C. L. 959.

17. Reichert Milling Co. v. Freeburg [Ill.] 75 N. E. 544. The evidence must show an intention to dedicate. Town of Bethel v. Pruett, 215 Ill. 162, 74 N. E. 111; Oakley v. Luzerne Borough, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 425.

18. Town of Bethel v. Pruett, 215 Ill. 162, 74 N. E. 111; Oakley v. Luzerne Borough, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 425; Reichert Milling Co. v. Freeburg [Ill.] 75 N. E. 544. City may accept so much of the street as is within the corporation limits. Backman v. Oskaloosa [Iowa] 104 N. W. 347. Facts held to present a question for the jury whether the acts of the city officers were intended as and amounted to a repudiation of a dedication. Ft. Worth v. Cetti [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 826.

19. Reichert Milling Co. v. Freeburg [Ill.] 75 N. E. 544; McKenzie v. Haines, 123 Wis. 557, 102 N. W. 33. Acceptance ten years subsequent to filing of plat not too late. Backman v. Oskaloosa [Iowa] 104 N. W. 347. Dedication may be revoked any time before acceptance. Houston v. Finnigan [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 470.

20. Act of May 9, 1889 (P. L. 173) applies only to a town plat or plan of lots. Barnes v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 84. A dedicated street becomes a public highway only to the extent to which it is actually opened and used. If opened after a delay of twenty-one years, the owner is entitled to damages. Oakley v. Luzerne Borough, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 425.

21. Chap. 101, Rev. St. 1898. McKenzie v. Haines, 123 Wis. 557, 102 N. W. 33.

22. Under Code 1873, § 561, the acknowledgment and recording of a plat is equivalent to a deed in fee simple for the public use of a street indicated thereon. Backman v. Oskaloosa [Iowa] 104 N. W. 347.

23. McKenzie v. Haines, 123 Wis. 557, 102 N. W. 33; Jeppson v. Almquist [Minn.] 103 N. W. 10; Heard v. Connor [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 605; Florida East Coast R. Co. v. Worley [Fla.] 38 So. 618; McClaskey v. McDaniel [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1023; Houston v. Finnigan [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 470; St. Louis & S. R. Co. v. Lindell R. Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 634. Implied dedication by plat. Indianola, Light, Ice & Coal Co. v. Montgomery [Miss.] 37 So. 958. The designation of a street as a boundary in a conveyance of land, whether opened or not, is a dedication of the street to a public use. Barnes v. Philadelphia, Newtown, etc., R. Co., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 84. A provision in a deed for the maintaining of a roadway across the land, and then actually in use by the public, will be considered as for the benefit of the public. Lawson v. Shreveport Waterworks Co., 111 La. 73, 35 So. 390. When lots are sold with reference to a recorded plat, a dedication of the streets and alleys, as laid out in such plat, is perfected. Facts showed dedication of alley. Weiss v. Taylor [Ala.] 39 So. 519.

24. Code 1897, § 751. Backman v. Oskaloosa [Iowa] 104 N. W. 347.

25. Rev. St. U. S. § 2477. Laws 1903, p. 155, c. 103. Okanogan County v. Cheetham, 37 Wash. 682, 80 P. 262; Houston v. Finnigan [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 470; McKenzie v. Haines, 123 Wis. 557, 102 N. W. 33; Jeppson v. Almquist [Minn.] 103 N. W. 10; Neal v. Gilmore [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 540, 104 N. W. 609.

26. McKenzie v. Haines, 123 Wis. 557, 102 N. W. 33. Road work by the city. People v. Wolverine Mfg. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 491, 104 N. W. 725; Reichert Milling Co. v. Freeburg [Ill.] 75 N. E. 544; Connor v. Nevada [Mo.] 86 S. W. 256; Raymond v. Wichita [Kan.] 79 P. 323. Repairs. Paulsen v. Wilton [Conn.] 61 A. 61; Jeppson v. Almquist [Minn.] 103 N. W. 10. Question for the jury. Neal v. Gilmore [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 540, 104 N. W. 609. When a city council, on rec-that land dedicated for use as a street is accepted in its entirety;[27] but a municipality does not by accepting a part of the street shown upon a statutory plat, accept the entire street, nor by accepting the entire street accept other streets.[28] When a dedication to the public use and the opening of a street to public travel by the owner are followed by its actual use by the public highway, the right in the public may become complete and absolute within a much shorter period than that required for title by adverse possession.[29]

To establish a highway by prescription,[30] there must be notorious,[31] continuous,[32] adverse,[33] user by the general public,[34] under a claim of right,[35] of some defined way or track,[36] without substantial change,[37] for the full statutory period.[38] Except as provided by statute, the mere use of land as a road creates no presumption ommendation of a board of public works, directs the improvement of a thoroughfare, there is a sufficient acceptance of dedicated land under Ky. St. 1903, § 2832. Steinacker v. Gast [Ky.] 89 S. W. 481.

27. Vorhes v. Ackley [Iowa] 103 N. W. 998. After an implied dedication of a street, it is not imperative that the city should immediately enter upon actual use of the street throughout its whole length and width. Lapse of ten years before full use of street does not deprive the public of its rights. Indianola Light, Ice & Coal Co. v. Montgomery [Miss.] 37 So. 958.

28. Reichert Milling Co. v. Freeburg [Ill.] 75 N. E. 544.

29. Washington Borough v. Steiner, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 392.

30. See 3 C. L. 1595.

31. Use must be such as to convey to an absent owner reasonable notice that a claim is made hostile to his title. Watson v. Adams County Com'rs [Wash.] 80 P. 201.

32. Evans v. Scott [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 874; Commonwealth v. Terry [Ky.] 86 S. W. 519; Town of Bethel v. Pruett, 215 Ill. 162, 74 N. E. 111; Bleck v. Keller [Neb.] 103 N. W. 674; Washington Borough v. Steiner, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 392. The use of land as a cattle lot, without obstructing it as a roadway is insufficient to break the continuity of adverse user. Power v. Dean [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 1100. The placing by a railroad of gates across a crossing interrupted any right of way by prescription then accruing. Aiken's Adm'x v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 929. A mere judgment for land does not, as a matter of law, interrupt the statute of limitations in favor of one whose adverse claim began before the judgment. Ft. Worth v. Cetti [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 826.

33. Washington Borough v. Steiner, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 392; Bleck v. Keller [Neb.] 103 N. W. 674; Town of Bethel v. Pruett, 215 Ill. 162, 74 N. E. 111; Commonwealth v. Terry [Ky.] 86 S. W. 519. Admissibility of evidence to show adverse user. Evans v. Scott [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 874. User by the public held not to have been adverse. Burnley v. Mullins [Miss.] 38 So. 635; Wills v. Reid [Miss.] 38 So. 793. Evidence held to show adverse user known to the fee owner. Raymond v. Wichita [Kan.] 79 P. 323. Prescription may run against one having a vendor's lien on the land. Ft. Worth v. Cetti [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 826. Maintenance of fence, though with gates, held to be sufficient assertion of owner's rights to prevent them being barred by the statute of limitation. State v. Cipra [Kan.] 81 P. 488. The report of the jury of viewers attempting to lay off the road across plaintiff's land held admissible to show a claim to the land, in connection with a plea of limitations. Wright v. Fanning [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 786.

34. Bleck v. Keller [Neb.] 103 N. W. 674; Washington Borough v. Steiner, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 392. User insufficient. Aikens' Adm'x v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 929.

35. Evans v. Scott [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 874; Town of Bethel v. Pruett, 215 Ill. 162, 74 N. E. 111; Bleck v. Keller [Neb.] 103 N. W. 674; Washington Borough v. Steiner, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 392; Wills v. Reid [Miss.] 38 So. 793; Lieber v. People [Colo.] 81 P. 270. Use must be such as to convey to an absent owner reasonable notice that a claim is made in hostility to his own. Watson v. Adams County Com'rs [Wash.] 80 P. 201. A finding that the use was adverse, continuous and uninterrupted necessarily excludes the idea that it was permissive. City of Seattle v. Smithers, 37 Wash. 119, 79 P. 615. User by the public held not to have been under claim of right. Burnly v. Mullins [Miss.] 38 So. 635. User for 30 years raises the presumption of a grant, and the burden shifts to the party denying the right to prove that the use was permissive. Smoot v. Wainscott [Ky.] 89 S. W. 176.

36. Lieber v. People [Colo.] 81 P. 270; Bleck v. Keller [Neb.] 103 N. W. 674; Town of Bethel v. Pruett, 215 Ill. 162, 74 N. E. 111. Fences and monuments are important in determining the width of the way acquired by prescription. Washington Borough v. Steiner, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 392.

37. Bleck v. Keller [Neb.] 103 N. W. 674; Town of Bethel v. Pruett, 215 Ill. 162, 74 N. E. 111; Gayle v. Rigg [Ky.] 86 S. W. 978.

38. Washington Borough v. Steiner, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 392; Bleck v. Keller [Neb.] 103 N. W. 674; Southern Ind. R. Co. v. Norman [Ind.] 74 N. E. 896; Power v. Dean [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 1100. Where the prescriptive period to establish the public right to a road is not fixed by statute, the longest period of limitations in actions for land will control. Evans v. Scott [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 874. Under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 3846, a road used adversely for the period of limitation for quieting title to land is a public road, though never worked at public expense. City of Seattle v. Smithers, 37 Wash. 119, 79 P. 615. A highway existing for seven years over government lands reserved for school purposes is a public highway under of public claim adverse to the owner. In some states twenty years use makes a road a public highway, regardless of its origin or the objection of landowners.[39] Mere proof of the use of unimproved prairie land for a long period of time but without evidence from which an intention to dedicate may be inferred is not sufficient to give a route so taken the character of a public highway.[40] The burden of proof is on those asserting a way by prescription, to establish that the owners were free from legal disability.[41] Statutory provisions as to public convenience and approval by the proper officials have no application to highways established by prescription.[42] A private way may by prescription become a public highway.[43]

§ 3. Establishment by statutory proceedings.[44]—Public officers have no other powers relative to the establishment of new roads than are granted by statute,[45] the directions of which must be strictly pursued,[46] but such provisions as pertain to private individuals alone may be waived by the parties interested.[47] The New York statute expressly provides the only conditions under which a highway of less than three rods in width may be laid out.[48]

Occasion or necessity for road.[49]—It must appear that the proposed road will be a public utility,[50] though not an absolute necessity.[51] Legislation authorizing the laying out of private roads is usually sustained against an attack on the ground that it involves a taking of private property for private use;[52] but the Maryland private road act has been declared unconstitutional.[53]

Application or petition[54] in the statutory form is necessary,[55] but failure to in-the statutes of Washington. Ball. Ann. Codes St. § 3846. Peterson v. Baker [Wash.] 81 P. 681.

39. Denial by county commissioners to record such a way does not bar interested parties from an action to quiet title. McClaskey v. McDaniel [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1023. Under Burn's Ann. St. 1901, § 6762, an unexplained user of a highway by the public for 20 years or more will be presumed to have been under a claim of right. Southern Ind. R. Co. v. Norman [Ind.] 74 N. E. 896. In the absence of proof of intention to dedicate property to public use, the mere use of a passage by the public cannot supply a title or serve as the basis of prescription. Lawson v. Shreveport Waterworks Co., 111 La. 73, 35 So. 390.

40. Lieber v. People [Colo.] 81 P. 270.

41. Evans v. Scott [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 874; Wright & Vaughn v. Fanning [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 786.

42. Paulsen v. Wilton [Conn.] 61 A. 61.

43. Township of Bolo v. Liszewski, 116 Ill. App. 135.

44. See 3 C. L. 1596.

45. The North Carolina highway commission created by Pub. Laws 1895, p. 223, c. 210, has no larger power in regard to opening cartways than is exercised by the boards having jurisdiction over such matters under the general laws. Cozad v. Kanawha Hardwood Co. [N. C.] 51 S. E. 932. There is no provision in the charter of Greater New York authorizing a proceeding to acquire and open as a street in the borough of Brooklyn, a pre-existing town highway. In re City of New York, 45 Misc. 162, 91 N. Y. S. 894.

As to the scope of jurors' or viewers' powers, see post, this section.

46. Cumberland Valley R. Co. v. Martin [Md.] 59 A. 714; Sewickley Tp. Road, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 572; Grossman v. Patton, 186 Mo. 661, 85 S. W. 548. As to petition and amendments. Dickinson Tp. Road, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 34. As to notice. Troxell v. Dick, 216 Ill. 98, 74 N. E. 694; City of Tarkio v. Clark, 186 Mo. 285, 85 S. W. 329; Commissioners of Highways of McKee v. Smith [Ill.] 75 N. E. 396; Cornplanter Tp. Road, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 29. As to jurors or viewers. City of Tarkio v. Clark, 186 Mo. 285, 85 S. W. 329. As to report or return of jury or viewers. Sewickley Tp. Road, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 572. As to payment. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Brossia, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 505. A property owner is entitled to an injunction to restrain the opening of a contemplated road over his land where there has been no valid condemnation of such land. Plowman v. Dallas County [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 487, 88 S. W. 252.

47. Notice served on agent of property owner and representation by agent. Kothe v. Berlin Tp. Sup'rs [S. D.] 103 N. W. 657.

48. Laws 1890, p. 1191, c. 568, and Laws 1895, p. 296, c. 508, construed. In re Adolph, 102 App. Div. 371, 92 N. Y. S. 841.

49. See 3 C. L. 1596.

50. Evidence held to fairly sustain the verdict of the jury as to necessity and propriety of laying out highway. Krenik v. Cordova Sup'rs [Minn.] 104 N. W. 130.

51. Speck v. Kenoyer [Ind.] 73 N. E. 896. Sufficient that it be a public convenience, although especially conducive to the convenience of one or more persons over that of others. Heath v. Sheetz [Ind.] 74 N. E. 505.

52. Neal v. Neal [Ga.] 50 S. E. 929. Act of April 4, 1901, sustained. Dickinson Tp. Road, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 34. See Eminent Domain, 5 C. L. 1104, n. 10.

53. Arnsperger v. Crawford [Md.] 61 A. 413.

54. See 1597, n. 53.

55. In Maryland the length and location

clude in the petition the name of one owner is not a jurisdictional defect where her agent in control was named in her stead,[56] and a petition is not fatally defective because it contains a prayer for relief beyond the power of the board to grant,[57] or because it asks for the establishment of more than one road.[58] Reasonable certainty in the description of the termini in the petition is requisite,[59] and it must show the statutory facts of necessity [60] but need not, unless the statute requires, state that the route described is the best.[61] In a proceeding to take the lands, the mode of construction need not be specified in the petition if the statute prescribing what it shall allege omits that.[62] Matters required by rule of court to facilitate practice may be supplied nunc pro tunc.[63]

Jurisdiction and notice.—Proceedings without jurisdiction cannot be validated by the judgment of a court,[64] but when jurisdiction has been clearly established, subsequent proceedings will be liberally construed,[65] and when proceedings are instituted in court which try the whole matter anew, previous proceedings may become immaterial.[66] In Iowa a popular vote is required only where roads and bridges are to be built in portions of the county apart from the swamp land district.[67] All interested parties are entitled to a hearing.[68] of the proposed road need be stated only "as may be." Jenkins v. Riggs [Md.] 59 A. 758.

Qualifications of petitioners: Only two of the ten petitioners for a road in California need be taxpayers in the road district. Pol. Code, § 2681. San Luis Obispo County v. Simas [Cal. App.] 81 P. 972. The signature of the owner of an undivided share of land, or the signature by a husband of his own name when the land belongs to his wife, though subsequently ratified by her, cannot be counted under the New Jersey statute. P. L. 1903, p. 145. Arnold v. Freeholders of Cumberland [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1132.

To whom presented: In Massachusetts, where the premises to be taken for a statutory private road are entirely within one town, the petition may be made to the county commissioners or the selectmen. Rev. Laws, p. 195, § 18. Eldredge v. Norfolk County Com'rs, 185 Mass. 186, 70 N. E. 36.

56. Kothe v. Berlin Tp. Sup'rs [S. D.] 103 N. W. 657.

57. Burn's Ann. St. 1901, § 6742. Harris v. Curtis, 34 Ind. App. 438, 72 N. E. 1102.

58. Chelan County v. Navarre [Wash.] 80 P. 845.

59. Cornplanter Tp. Road, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 20; Sisson v. Carithers [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 924. Description in a general way, of the terminal points and the course of the proposed road is sufficient. Chelan County v. Navarre [Wash.] 80 P. 845. A petition under the Indiana statutes for the change of route of an existing highway must describe both the existing road and the route of the proposed road. Burn's Ann. St. 1901, § 6742. Scherer v. Bailey, 34 Ind. App. 172, 72 N. E. 472. Description held sufficient. In re Lee, 4 Pen. [Del.] 576, 60 A. 262; Quemahoning Tp. Road, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 150. Description insufficient. City of Tarkio v. Clark, 186 Mo. 285, 85 S. W. 329.

60, 61. Petition held sufficient to show necessity and propriety of route. Kemp v. Polk County [Or.] 81 P. 240.

62. Code Civ. Proc. § 1244. San Luis Obispo County v. Simas [Cal. App.] 81 P. 972.

63. Where a rule of court provides that a petition for the appointment of viewers shall be accompanied by a certificate of counsel, to the effect that the petition is in proper form and the prayer thereof is lawful, and that in the absence of such certificate viewers shall not be appointed, and the court appoints viewers on a petition unaccompanied by certificate of counsel, the court may subsequently permit the record to be amended by adding the certificate nunc pro tunc. Dickinson Tp. Road, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 34.

64. Chelan County v. Navarre [Wash.] 80 P. 845; Troxell v. Dick, 216 Ill. 98, 74 N. E. 694; Cumberland Valley R. Co. v. Martin [Md.] 59 A. 714; Bickford v. Franconia [N. H.] 60 A. 98. The records of the proceedings of the county commissioners should show all facts essential to the validity of a proceeding to lay out and open a public highway. Heacock v. Sullivan [Kan.] 79 P. 659.

65. Jenkins v. Riggs [Md.] 59 A. 758. Notice to supervisors. Cornplanter Tp. Road, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 29; Quemahoning Tp. Road, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 150. Where two of the viewers signed the report, the fact that the third viewer does not sign till the return day does not vitiate the report. Act of May 8, 1889 (P. L. 129). Greenwood Tp. Road, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 549. Proceedings of county court not open to collateral attack. State v. Miller, 110 Mo. App. 542, 85 S. W. 912. Reference in proceedings to road as "private" disregarded. Howard v. Schmidt [Kan.] 79 P. 142.

66. Proceeding under Pol. Code, § 2690. San Luis Obispo County v. Simas [Cal. App.] 81 P. 972.

67. Laws 1852-3, p. 29, c. 13; Laws 1858, p. 256, c. 132. Nelson v. Harrison County, 126 Iowa, 436, 102 N. W. 197.

68. In Georgia an interested landowner may urge any legal objection to the establishment of a proposed new road. Atlanta & W. P. R. Co. v. Redwine [Ga.] 51 S. E. 724. The limitation required by Act of May 23, 1891 (P. L. 109) begins to run from the date of the notice contemplated by the Act of

Notice [69] to or service on [70] persons interested or entitled thereto [71] at some stage and in some form [72] is essential. It is the fact of service of a petition and not the proof thereof which is jurisdictional,[73] and proceedings are commenced so as to fix private rights from service and not from a public decision to institute the proceeding.[74] Notice is waived when all parties appear,[75] unless appearance is special.[76]

Viewing, locating, and assessing or recovery of damages [77] are often done by a body called "jurors," "viewers," "commissioners," etc. Their functions being purely statutory, vary in different states and proceedings.[78] Having acted, they must report within the time specified.[79] The report of viewers must contain a specification of matters committed to them such as width of the proposed road,[80] but need not in Pennsylvania show that the viewers met at the time and place designated,[81] or in Oregon that a road connecting one with a public road as located is on the most accessible or desirable route; but only that it is so laid as to do the least damage.[82] A material departure from the route designated in the petition is unauthorized.[83] It must appear that the viewers were qualified under the statute.[84] All should sign on or before return day.[85] The procedure authorized by statute for the assessment of damages must be followed.[86] In Oregon the county court cannot refuse to confirm the viewer's report on a private road of "public easement" on the ground that the

April 21, 1855 (P. L. 264). In re Whitby Ave., 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 526.

69. See 1598, n. 62.

70. Failure to post notices for hearing of objections. Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, p. 1475, c. 121, §§ 33, 34. Troxell v. Dick, 216 Ill. 98, 74 N. E. 694. Rev. St. 1899, § 5993. City of Tarkio v. Clark, 186 Mo. 285, 85 S. W. 329. Notice of adjourned meeting is essential. Commissioners of Highways of McKee v. Smith [Ill.] 75 N. E. 396.

71. Act of May 2, 1899 (P. L. 176) does not require notice of a proposed opening and construction of a new road to be given to borough officers. Cornplanter Tp. Road, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 29.

72. See Eminent Domain, 5 C. L. 1124.

73. Affidavit not being jurisdictional may be disregarded when showing defect of service which in fact did not exist. Krenik v. Cordova Sup'rs [Minn.] 104 N. W. 130.

74. That the board of public improvements authorized the city of New York to open a street prior to the taking effect of the 1897 charter had no effect on proceedings for such opening begun by service of application for appointment of commissioners, after the taking effect of the charter, so as to make the consolidation act, in force prior to the charter, applicable. In re Opening of 178th St., City of New York, 94 N. Y. S. 838.

75. San Luis Obispo County v. Simas [Cal. App.] 81 P. 972.

76. Failure to post notices of adjourned meeting, held not to have been waived by objecting landowner's special appearance. Commissioners of Highways of McKee v. Smith [Ill.] 75 N. E. 396.

77. See 3 C. L. 1597.

78. In proceedings for laying out a highway, the jury are only authorized to consider benefits and damages as specially applied to the specific real estate over which the road is laid out. Pichon v. Martin [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 1009. Road viewers have no power to fix the width of a road. Act of Feb. 17, 1822 (P. L. 35). Mans v. Mahoning Tp., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 624. Under the road laws applicable to Lyconing County, one and the same set of jurors may vacate a portion of a township road, supply its place, widen the road throughout its length and assess the damages. Loyalsock Tp. Road, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 219.

79. A failure of road viewers to report at the next term after their appointmment renders their proceedings void and those interested may consider the road opening as abandoned. Act of June 13, 1836 (P. L. 551). Sewickley Tp. Road, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 572.

80. Contra: Sisson v. Carithers [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 924. In Delaware the commissioner's return need not show what portion of the cost should be paid by persons who inclose the vacated portion of a road. In re Lee, 4 Pen. [Del.] 576, 60 A. 862.

81. Greenwood Tp. Road, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 549.

82. Laws 1903, p. 269, § 20. Kemp v. Polk County [Or.] 81 P. 240.

83. An order describing a course as running "thence in a general westerly direction" is not a material variance from the petition showing the course to be in a southwest direction and partially in a southeast direction. Kothe v. Berlin Tp. Sup'rs [S. D.] 103 N. W. 657. Departure not a material one. Jenkins v. Riggs [Md.] 59 A. 758; Riggs v. Winterode [Md.] 59 A. 762.

84. Cumberland Valley R. Co. v. Martin [Md.] 59 A. 714. Jurors. Rev. St. 1899, § 5993. City of Tarkio v. Clark, 186 Mo. 285, 85 S. W. 329. In Delaware a road juror need not be a freeholder. In re Lee, 4 Pen. [Del.] 576, 60 A. 862.

85. Greenwood Tp. Road, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 549.

86. In Pennsylvania viewers may be appointed to assess damages and benefits for the opening of a street before the actual physical opening at the established grade. Act of May 16, 1891 (P. L. 75). Winter Avenue, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 353.

assessment of damages is inadequate where that fact does not appear on the face of the report but must be shown by evidence aliunde.[87]

In Massachusetts, an owner whose land has been taken for a highway cannot bring a petition for the recovery of damages until an entry has been made upon the land taken for the purpose of constructing the way.[88] A petition may be brought for the recovery of such damages at any time before the expiration of one year after such entry.[89]

The order locating a road should define it with certainty.[90] The record must show every fact material to the jurisdiction and not mere conclusions thereof.[91] Where the record does not show when the order appointing commissioners was made, it will be presumed to have been only after compliance with the statutory provision as to notice.[92]

Discontinuance and dismissal.—In the absence of statutory provisions to the contrary, a municipal corporation may discontinue condemnation proceedings at any time before the making of a final award in the nature of a judgment in favor of the property owners to be compensated.[93] Motions for involuntary dismissal must be proved if grounded on fact.[94]

Taking and compensation.[95]—The general principles of eminent domain and the cases illustrating them are discussed in a separate topic.[96] Statutes may provide that the damages shall not be paid until the land has been entered upon and possession thereof taken.[97] In general, one may withdraw his waiver of compensation for damages arising from the establishment of a public road by filing a claim for compensation before the establishment of the road,[98] but in Washington, the rights acquired by the public through a waiver of claim for damages stand upon the same footing as a right of way acquired by purchase or condemnation and can only be lost in the same manner.[99] A city may lay out, establish or acquire a street to cross a railroad right of way;[1] but an occupied right of way cannot be longitudinally taken,[2] though an abandoned right of way or roadbed is not so exempt,[3] and land belonging

87. Kemp v. Polk County [Or.] 81 P. 240, following Fanning v. Gilliland, 37 Or. 369, 61 P. 636, 62 P. 209, 82 Am. St. Rep. 758.

88. Rev. Laws, c. 48, § 13. Evidence held insufficient to show such entry, and petition held to have been prematurely brought. Everett v. Fall River [Mass.] 75 N. E. 946.

89. Rev. Laws, c. 48, § 28. Everett v. Fall River [Mass.] 75 N. E. 946.

90. Correction may be made by the court. Burn's Ann. St. 1901, § 6755. Sisson v. Carithers [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 924; Sewickley Tp. Road, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 170. That a proposed public highway was referred to as a "private road" in some parts of the proceedings is not fatal in a state where there could be no legal private road proceedings. Howard v. Schmidt [Kan.] 79 P. 142.

91. Commissioners of Highways of McKee v. Smith [Ill.] 75 N. E. 396.

92. In re Wood, 95 N. Y. S. 260.

93. In re Seventeenth St. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 45.

94. A motion to dismiss a petition to locate and change a highway which is not supported by any evidence will be overruled. Harris v. Curtis, 34 Ind. App. 438, 72 N. E. 1102.

95. See 3 C. L. 1599.

96. See Eminent Domain, 5 C. L. 1097.

Private property cannot be taken for a public road without just compensation: Interest to be included. In re Opening of 178th St. City of New York, 94 N. Y. S. 838. Where the mortgage security is impaired, the mortgagee is entitled to the award of damages so far as required to repair the impairment. Bolton v. Seamen's Bank for Savings, 99 App. Div. 581, 91 N. Y. S. 122. Benefits may be offset. Galbraith v. Prentice [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 997; Heath v. Sheetz [Ind.] 74 N. E. 505; Speck v. Kenoyer [Ind.] 73 N. E. 896; Pichon v. Martin [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 1009.

Setting off benefits: One who is actually benefited by the improvement is not entitled to damages when nothing is actually taken. Removing of building restriction is a benefit. In re City of New York, 94 N. Y. S. 146. Under Price's Code, § 5071, benefits may be assessed against a tract of land only when a part thereof has been taken for the highway. Quirk v. Seattle [Wash.] 80 P. 207.

97. Pub. St. 1882, c. 49, §§ 14, 69. Webb Granite & Construction Co. v. Worcester [Mass.] 73 N. E. 639.

98. Ashley v. Burt County [Neb.] 102 N. W. 272.

99. Carlson v. Spokane County Com'rs [Wash.] 80 P. 795.

1. St. Louis & S. R. Co. v. Lindell R. Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 634.

2. Crescent Tp. v. Pittsburg & L. E. R. Co., 210 Pa. 334, 59 A. 1103.

3. Where the railroad company had notice of an application to lay out a highway to a railroad outside of the line of its road may be taken for a statutory private road, the new use not being necessarily inconsistent with the old one.[4] Under power to acquire land to protect a view oceanward from a beach sidewalk, a city may acquire land under the water and may open more than one street.[5] The county board may proceed against and make compensation to the party having possession and record title.[6] A purchaser of lands pending proceedings to appropriate the same for public use may prosecute a claim for damages for such appropriation in his own name when such compensation has been wholly denied his grantor.[7]

The measure of damages is the difference in value of the land with and without the highway.[8] Where commissioners act within their authority, their determination as to damages will not be overthrown unless it clearly appears that they have adopted an erroneous principle or have improperly moved in reaching their decision.[9] There is a taking when streets are projected across a railroad track and right of way.[10] Merely requiring of them observance of public regulations is none.[11]

Payment should be made in the manner prescribed.[12]

Property acquired.[13]

An appeal or other review [14] provided by law may be taken by any person interested,[15] under the conditions prescribed,[16] but the establishment of a highway by a board of county commissioners cannot be attacked collaterally,[17] nor can a proceeding become final be reached by appeal from refusal to reopen it.[18] A disqualification over its abandoned roadbed, and made no objection at the time, it could not attack the adjudication in a collateral proceeding. Crescent Tp. v. Pittsburg & L. E. R. Co., 210 Pa. 334, 59 A. 1103.

4. Eldredge v. Norfolk County Com'rs, 185 Mass. 186, 70 N. E. 36.

5. Pub. Laws 1903, p. 318, § 53; Pub Laws 1904, pp. 347, 349, §§ 4, 8. Murphy v. Long Branch [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 593.

6. Cedar County v. Lammers [Neb.] 103 N. W. 433.

7. Ashley v. Burt County [Neb.] 102 N. W. 272.

8. See Eminent Domain, 5 C. L. 1113. Pichon v. Martin [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 1009.

9. In re City of New York, 94 N. Y. S. 146.

10. A railroad company is entitled to compensation for the construction of a street crossing and extension of a street over its right of way and track. Town of Poulan v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 657. In the condemnation of a right of way across a railroad, the company is entitled to compensation for structural changes required and for the direct expense of maintaining a flagman, gates or cattle guards. Village of Plymouth v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 947. City may show right of way by user. Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. Chicago [Ill.] 75 N. E. 499.

11. Village of Plymouth v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 947.

12. Payment of costs and damages arising from the establishment of a county road should be made to the county treasurer, and not directly to the claimants. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Brossia. 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 505.

13. See 3 C. L. 1599.

14. See 3 C. L. 1600. The judgment of the ordinary or county commissioners on objection to the establishment of a new road is reviewable by certiorari in Georgia. Atlanta & W. P. R. Co. v. Redwine [Ga.] 51 S. E. 724. The court of quarter sessions has the power to quash all proceedings in a road case down to and including an order to open, and an appeal from an order overruling that motion is in the nature of a certiorari and brings up the record for consideration of the superior court. Sewickley Tp. Road, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 170. The court of quarter sessions has authority to review the findings of a road jury upon questions of fact, and therefore may receive testimony in support of exceptions filed to the report of the jury. Walnut St., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 114.

15. One whose property is neither taken, damaged nor assessed is not a person affected by the proceeding who is entitled to an appeal under the Kansas City charter. In re Seventeenth St. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 45. Failure to appear after notice before the county commissioners in proceedings to vacate a road does not preclude appellant's from contesting the proceedings on appeal. Scherer v. Bailey, 34 Ind. App. 172, 72 N. E. 472.

16. The statutes of Maryland do not permit an appeal to the court of appeals from a judgment of the circuit court on an order granting a private road. Code Pub. Gen. Laws, art. 25, § 121. Arnsperger v. Crawford [Md.] 61 A. 413. Order establishing a county road requiring the payment of costs and damages forthwith as a condition precedent, in order to constitute error it must affirmatively appear that they were not so paid. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Brossia, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 505. Payment immediately prior to the time the order was made for the establishment and opening of such road is in substantial conformity with such an order. Id.

17. Phillips v. Hutchinson, 34 Ind. App. 486, 73 N. E. 159; State v. Miller, 110 Mo. App. 542, 85 S. W. 912.

18. One having notice of the proceedings of one selectman to act does not wholly destroy jurisdiction and defeat appeal.[19] Where the use is public in its nature, the question as to the necessity for taking private property is in its essence legislative.[20] Such proceedings are appealable to the court having cognizance of actions involving title to land.[21] In some states, if properly requested, a review is a matter of right but re-review is discretionary.[22] In California if the award in proceedings before the supervisors is refused, they may direct the county attorney to bring suit and litigate the rights independent of their proceedings,[23] and in such suit their orders are conclusive and not reviewable.[24] In New Hampshire the judgment below is vacated by appeal.[25] The burden on appeal de novo remains on petitioners to show necessity and rests on remonstrants to prove each his individual damage.[26] Questions presented must have been properly challenged and excepted to below.[27] The point cannot be raised by appellees to avert error that a highway established by condemnation was in existence by grant.[28] Mandamus is proper in Texas to require the making and transmission of a transcript.[29] In Ohio a view anew does not put the county board to proceedings anew.[30]

Injunction.—A bill to restrain the proceeding must plead facts and not conclusions that it is void, and in the absence of the entire record, it cannot be said that there was lack of notice.[31]

To prove a statutory road, a completion of the proceedings must be shown.[32] The confirmation of a commissioner's report on the taking of land may be shown by circumstantial evidence.[33]

§ 4. Boundaries and extent of way, ascertainment and resurvey.[34]—A street from the beginning, who has allowed the time for appeal to expire cannot secure a review by moving to strike off the order of confirmation and the appealing from the refusal of the court to grant his motion. Winter Ave., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 353; Cornplanter Tp. Road, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 20.

19. That one of the selectmen who originally decided the matter was disqualified is not a jurisdictional defect so as to preclude the court from taking cognizance of an appeal. Bickford v. Franconia [N. H.] 60 A. 98.

20. Speck v. Kenoyer [Ind.] 73 N. E. 896. The decision of a municipal corporation, that a street at a given point is necessary for the welfare of its inhabitants, will not be interfered with by the courts unless there is a palpable abuse of discretion or manifest injustice or oppression is shown. Town of Poulan v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 657. Where a municipal board is vested with absolute discretion in the acquiring of land for highway purposes, its action will not be reviewed on certiorari. People v. McClellan, 94 N. Y. S. 1107.

21. The title to real estate is involved in proceedings to condemn land for a street, and hence the supreme court of Missouri has jurisdiction of an appeal in such proceedings. City of Tarkio v. Clark, 186 Mo. 285, 85 S. W. 329.

22. Road law of 1836 does not make the right to review dependent upon the filing of exceptions to the report of viewers. Overfield Tp. Road, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 5.

23, 24. Pol. Code, § 2690. San Luis Obispo County v. Simas [Cal. App.] 81 P. 972.

25. Appeal vacates the judgment in the court below and the judgment in the appellate court is a distinct and original judgment. Bickford v. Franconia [N. H.] 60 A. 98.

26. An appeal to the circuit court from the order of the board of commissioners establishing a highway. Heath v. Sheetz [Ind.] 74 N. E. 505.

27. Failure to set out exceptions. Wabash Ave., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 305; Quemahoning Tp. Road, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 150. Objections held insufficient for indefiniteness. Sisson v. Carithers [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 924. Qualifications of petitioners cannot be questioned on appeal. Krenik v. Cordova Sup'rs [Minn.] 104 N. W. 130.

28. Where a highway has been established by ordinary condemnation proceedings, the county commissioners cannot, on appeal from the award, defeat recovery by showing a previous congressional grant of a highway over the same route and an acceptance of such a grant by the state legislature. Howard v. Hooker [Kan.] 78 P. 847.

29. Certiorari will not lie to compel a county clerk to transmit to the district court a transcript of proceedings in connection with the opening of a road. McKinley v. Frio County [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 447.

30. County commissioners are not required to proceed de novo after report of reviewers with reference to a proposed county road. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Brossia, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 505.

31. Carlson v. Spokane County Com'rs [Wash.] 80 P. 795.

32. Evidence held not to show existence of a street or other public use, expropriation never having been complete. Calhoun v. Faraldo [La.] 38 So. 551.

33. Mott v. Eno, 181 N. Y. 346, 74 N. E. 229.

34. See 3 C. L. 1600.

includes the whole of the land laid out for public use as a highway,[35] and hence comprehends both the roadway for vehicles and the sidewalk for pedestrians.[36]

The sole object of a resurvey is to ascertain the location of the road and its boundaries, precisely as these were established by the original survey,[37] and the statutory procedure must be followed.[38] The true public road is the one actually laid out on the ground.[39] Continued use of a highway for many years, recognition of monuments and acquiescence in boundaries cannot be overcome by indefinite and uncertain evidence.[40]

§ 5. Alterations and extensions.[41]—Vacating a portion of a street so as to narrow it is an alteration.[42] An alteration properly adopted after the new way is laid out, opened and made practicable,[43] operates to discontinue the old road.[44] A general authority to a municipality to lay out, widen, straighten or change streets includes power to construct a street crossing across a railroad track.[45] All facts essential to the conferring of jurisdiction to widen a road must affirmatively appear.[46] In New York the statutory notice to a highway commissioner of proceedings to alter a highway may be waived by that officer.[47] An owner of land abutting on a highway, the course of which it is proposed to change in order to avoid a dangerous railway crossing, may enjoin such change, where the injury which he will thereby suffer is different from or in excess of that which is suffered by the general public.[48] The damages resulting to abutting owners may be assessed by commissioners in charge of the widening of a street, though a change of grade be included in such alteration.[49] Whether county commissioners in making changes in streets acted under a statute providing for alteration or one providing for relocation of streets is to be determined from the petition, which measures their powers, and not alone from their intention.[50] An order of county commissioners accepting a relocated street does not

35. Bucher v. Northumberland County, 209 Pa. 618, 59 A. 69. In determining the width of an improved street to determine the proportion thereof chargeable against a street railroad, where the curb on each side thereof was constructed at the same time of said improvement, the curb is a part of the improved roadway, and should be computed. Urbana, M. & C. R. Co. v. Columbus, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 438. Land under a city bridge, which is owned by the city, and is used as a support for the bridge, and is not adapted to use as a street or highway, and has never been so used, cannot be regarded as a public street, and the city may lease it for any purpose not inconsistent with its use as a support for the bridge. Ricard Boiler & Engine Co. v. Toledo, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 501. Evidence held to show that a street alongside a river was the width of other streets not as wide as the space between the abutting lots and the river bank. Calhoun v. Faraldo [La.] 38 So. 551.

36. Hillyer v. Winsted, 77 Conn. 304, 59 A. 40. Evidence held insufficient to show the land in question to be a street. Heck v. Greenwood Tel. Co. [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 760. The term "street" in San Francisco City charter, art. 6, c. 2, § 16, includes sidewalk. Heath v. Manson [Cal.] 82 P. 331.

37. Caulkins v. Ward [Iowa] 103 N. W. 956.

38. Code, § 1520. Caulkins v. Ward [Iowa] 103 N. W. 956.

39. See 3 C. L. 1600. n. 90.

40. Town of Vernon v. Nicolal [Wis.] 103 N. W. 1111.

41. See 3 C. L. 1601. See, also, post, §§ 8, 9.

42. Lambert v. Paterson [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1131.

43. Where the route of a road is changed, the old road continues to be the public highway until the new is laid out, opened and made practicable. Lawson v. Shreveport Waterworks Co., 111 La. 73, 35 So. 390.

44. Jenkins v. Riggs [Md.] 59 A. 758.

45. Town of Poulan v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 657.

46. A mere resolution of a borough, upon which streets are represented, will not have the effect of widening or narrowing a street where the existing lines do not conform to those laid down on the plat. Washington Borough v. Steiner, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 392. Borough ordinance held too indefinite to determine whether the center line of a street was changed or not. Bieber v. Kutztown Borough, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 436.

47. Laws 1890, p. 1193, c. 568, § 83. In re Wood, 95 N. Y. S. 260.

48. Grinnell v. Portage County Com'rs, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 180.

49. Special proceedings for change of grade held not necessary. Laws 1901, p. 405, c. 466, tit. 4. In re White Plains Road of New York, 94 N. Y. S. 110. Plaintiff having made out a prima facie case for damages from alteration, a nonsuit is improper. Westbrook v. Baldwin County, 121 Ga. 442, 49 S. E. 286.

50. Petition held to show action under Rev. Laws, c. 48, § 12, relative to relocation, and not under §§ 1 and 52, relative to alteration. Bennett v. Wellesley [Mass.] 75 N. E.

affect the rights of a town in which the work is done to insist on the work being done to the satisfaction of its selectmen. The Massachusetts statute requiring the public authorities to erect permanent bounds at the termini and angles of all ways laid out by them, and providing a penalty for failure to do so, recoverable by the landowner, applies only to the laying out of ways and not the relocations or alterations.[51]

§ 6. Change of grade.[52]—The mere leveling of a rough road by making slight cuts and fills without making any general change in the height of the highway is not a change of grade.[53] Proceedings for a change of grade must be in strict compliance with the statute,[54] but one who is not in the assessing district cannot complain.[55] The actual grading can be done only by the municipal authorities in the manner prescribed by law.[56] In the absence of a statute giving a right of recovery therefor, damages suffered by an adjacent owner by reason of a change of grade cannot be recovered,[57] unless the damages were unnecessary,[58] nor will recovery be allowed if no injury would have resulted, had the abutter made his property conform to the grade.[59] However, statutes generally provide that on change of grade,[60] from that deliberately established by competent municipal authority in the prescribed manner,[61] or in New York by use alone, without formal adoption,[62] the abutter is

717. Town not affected by order under Rev. Laws, c. 48, §§ 54, 56. Livermore v. Norfolk County [Mass.] 75 N. E. 724. Liability of town to county for expense. Id. And see Towns, Townships, 4 C. L. 1685.

51. No recovery of penalty under Rev. Laws, c. 48, § 104, where old way was altered and widened. Harvey v. Inhabitants of Easton [Mass.] 75 N. E. 948.

52. See 3 C. L. 1601.

53. Laws 1892, p. 355, c. 182. Stenson v. Mt. Vernon, 93 N. Y. S. 309.

54. One who undertakes to change the grade of a street without the passage of the necessary ordinance becomes a trespasser. United N. J. R. & Canal Co. v. Lewis [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 227. Failure of a city to follow the prescribed course of procedure constitutes legal ground for recovery of resulting damages. Damkoehler v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 101 N. W. 706. The New York railroad commissioners have no authority to determine the liability of a town for change of grade. Smith v. Boston & A. R. Co., 99 App. Div. 94, 91 N. Y. S. 412. Under the Pennsylvania statutes a city cannot require a landowner to cut down an embankment so as to make the grade of the footwalk in front of his premises conform to a change resulting from the city cutting down or filling up the cartway. Act of April 2, 1867 (P. L. 677). Chester City v. Lane, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 359. Under Act of May 16, 1891, it is not necessary that the order of the court for the appointment of viewers should contain a direction in detail to comply with the requirements of the statute. Nicholson Borough, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 570. Laws 1903, p. 1396, c. 610, is not unconstitutional. In re Borup [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 838.

55. Damkoehler v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 101 N. W. 706.

56. Kittanning Borough v. Thompson, 211 Pa. 169, 60 A. 584. The establishment of a paper grade by a borough confers no right on a property owner to enter on a highway and change the natural grade thereof. Id.

57. Cummings v. Dixon [Mich.] 102 N. W. 751; Smith v. Boston & A. R. Co., 99 App. Div. 94, 91 N. Y. S. 412. Railroad Law 1897, p. 797, c. 754, § 63, providing that a municipal corporation may acquire or condemn land necessary to abolish grade crossings, does not impose on a town a liability to pay an abutter damages resulting from a change of grade of a highway. Smith v. Boston & A. R. Co., 181 N. Y. 132, 73 N. E. 679. In Massachusetts a slight change of grade by a street railway company, duly authorized, does not entitle the abutter to compensation. Rev. Laws, c. 51, § 15. Laroe v. Northampton St. R. Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 255.

58. Monarch Mfg. Co. v. Omaha C. B. & S. R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 493; Stillman v. Pendleton, 26 R. I. 585, 60 A. 234; Damkoehler v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 101 N. W. 706.

59. Monarch Mfg. Co. v. Omaha, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 493.

60. Comp. L. 1897, § 2784. Cummings v. Dixon [Mich.] 102 N. W. 751; Garvey v. Revere [Mass.] 73 N. E. 664. Laws 1892, p. 355, c. 182. Stenson v. Mt. Vernon, 93 N. Y. S. 309. Act of May 16, 1891 (P. L. 75) is constitutional. Nicholson Borough, Main St., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 570. Code, § 785. Stevens v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 103 N. W. 363. P. L 1869, p. 673, § 3; P. L. 1889, p. 378. Newark v. Weeks [N. J. Law] 59 A. 901. St. 1890, c. 428, § 5; St. 1891, c. 123, § 1. Sheehan v. Fall River, 187 Mass. 356, 73 N. E. 544.

61. Code, § 785. York v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 103 N. W. 790. A grade is established when corporate action is had to that end, and this usually—if not necessarily—is a matter of definite record. Cummings v. Dixon [Mich.] 102 N. W. 751. Under a statute allowing compensation when improvements have been made "according to the grade," it is not necessary that the building be exactly at grade or at any invariable elevation above or below it, construction with reference to the grade being sufficient. Code, § 785. Stevens v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 103 N. W. 363.

62. Stenson v. Mt. Vernon, 93 N. Y. S. 309.

entitled to compensation,[63] to the extent of the damage to his real property [64] and loss of rental,[65] for which the change of grade is the proximate cause,[66] with the benefits received offset in the computation of the award,[67] and an action under such a statute will lie, though the abutting owner voluntarily improves his property in accordance with the newly ordained grade before the city conforms the street thereto.[68] The mere joining in a request to have a street graded does not estop one from claiming compensation for injury to his property.[69] Abutting petitioning owners cannot be charged with the damages arising from a change of grade, under the Pennsylvania statute, unless it affirmatively appears that the change was in accordance with the plans specified in the ordinance regarding such change of grade.[70] Such rights do not run with the land.[71] The validity of an order allowing an appeal from the award of damages for change of grade, made by the commissioners of assessment, can be tried only on certiorari or other direct proceedings.[72]

§ 7. Improvement and repair.[73]—A municipality has the right to improve and grade its streets,[74] and under power to "otherwise improve any street," a city may condemn and order the removal of a sidewalk.[75] Except in case of fraud or a manifest abuse of discretion,[76] there is no remedy to control official discretion in the

63. Under St. 1890, c. 428, § 5, and St. 1891, c. 123, § 1, a tenant at will is entitled to the damages suffered by him irrespective of the rights of the landlord. Sheehan v. Fall River, 187 Mass. 356, 73 N. E. 544. An excessive award of damages may be set aside. Murray v. Newark [N. J. Law] 60 A. 38. Owner held to have waived his rights by deed and contract with the city. Tabor St., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 175.

64. Code, § 785. York v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 103 N. W. 790. Measure of damages is the difference between value of property immediately before change of grade and immediately thereafter, less special benefits resulting. Garvey v. Revere [Mass.] 73 N. E. 664. May include compensation to plaintiff for delay in securing redress. Peabody v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 649. Admissibility of evidence and measure of damages. Seattle v. Home Missions of Methodist Protestant Church [C. C. A.] 138 F. 307; Village of Grant Park v. Trah, 115 Ill. App. 291. A change of grade of seventy-seven feet with slope banks on abutting property is a damaging of such property but is not a "taking" thereof. Compton v. Seattle [Wash.] 80 P. 757. Under Rev. Laws 1902, c. 111, § 153, providing the rule for assessment of damages in case of abolition of grade crossings, one whose land is not taken, but in front of whose house and only forty feet away a street is built fifteen feet high may recover damages. Hyde v. Fall River [Mass.] 75 N. E. 953.

65. P. L. 1869, p. 673, § 3; P. L. 1889, p. 378. Newark v. Weeks [N. J. Law] 59 A. 901; Peabody v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 649.

66. Nicholson Borough, Main St., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 570; Whitehead v. Manor Borough, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 314. After accepting an award of damages one cannot maintain an action of trespass for an additional flow of water upon his land which was an unavoidable result of the change of grade. Beach v. Scranton, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 430.

67. Laws 1903, p. 1396, c. 610; Laws 1890, p. 1193, c. 568, §§ 83, 84. Smith v. Boston & A. R. Co., 99 App. Div. 94, 91 N. Y. S. 412. Method of assessing benefits. Nicholson Borough, Main St., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 570; In re Borup [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 838. Under Laws Wash. 1893, p. 194, c. 84, § 15, for a change of grade, only the excess of damages over benefits should be allowed the owner. Seattle v. Board of Home Missions of Methodist Protestant Church [C. C. A.] 138 F. 307. Improvements made possible by a change of grade and which may be paid for by special assessment against the property are not included as benefits. Garvey v. Revere [Mass.] 73 N. E. 664.

68. York v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 103 N. W. 790.

69, 70. Dunn v. Tarentum Borough, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 332.

71. Grantee could not recover. Moore v. Lancaster [Pa.] 62 A. 100.

72. Murray v. Newark [N. J. Law] 60 A. 38.

73. See 3 C. L. 1603. Scope of this section is limited to the most general questions. See detailed treatment Public Contracts, 4 C. L. 1089; Public Works and Improvements, 4 C. L. 1124.

74. Monarch Mfg. Co. v. Omaha, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 493; Damkoehler v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 101 N. W. 706.

75. Rev. St. 1899, § 5989. Scott v. Marshall, 110 Mo. App. 178, 85 S. W. 98.

76. Wabash Avenue, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 305. Laws 1890, p. 1179, c. 568, § 10; Laws 1895, p. 408, c. 606, confer on the highway commissioner authority to repair or rebuild a bridge only in case of an emergency. Livingston v. Stafford, 99 App. Div. 108, 91 N. Y. S. 172. Taking up brick walk in good repair and ordering cement walk relaid, though allowing other neighboring abutters to retain brick walk, the only object being to correct the grade and slope of the walk, held an abuse of discretion, and injunction would issue. Detmers v. Columbus, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 657. Sufficiency of complaint in an action based on collusion between contractors and public officials. Board of Com'rs of Laporte County v. Wolff [Ind.] 72 N. E. 860.

ordering or completion[77] of such improvements as are authorized by law.[78] Plans and specifications referred to in a resolution for street improvement do not become a part of the resolution so that they must be published,[79] and a resolution ordering the improvement of an alley which sets forth the locality of the improvement, and how it is to be made, is sufficient without stating the width of the alley.[80] That a resolution of intention to improve a street includes work of various kinds upon other streets does not render it invalid.[81] A city is not liable for injury resulting to abutting property which is directly and necessarily incident to a proper and skillful construction of a street improvement,[82] but otherwise of negligence or willful trespass upon the abutting property,[83] or a failure to follow the statutory procedure,[84] and such an improvement as destroys one's right of access to his property entitles him to compensation.[85] A street improvement implies that the abutting property has received special benefits after the improvement is made.[86] By encroaching on private property in the improving of a street, the city acquires no title to such property.[87] In the making of improvements, it is for the highway commissioners to determine whether a road is or is not a public highway.[88] For the purpose of improving a highway, public authorities have a right to divert the natural course of surface water so as to impose upon the land of one person the servitude which naturally belongs upon the land of another,[89] and no liability arises from such an improvement in the ordinary manner without negligence,[90] but where water of considerable quantity is wrongfully diverted, the authorities may be restrained from continuing such diversion,[91] or damages may be recovered therefor by the owner of the property at the time the injuries were sustained.[92] Any act that is reasonably necessary to put or keep a street in "good repair suitable for the travel thereon" is "repairing" or "maintaining" the street.[93] A street may be repaired in sections or parts, and the property owners assessed to pay the cost thereof.[94]

77. Robinson v. Norwood Borough, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 481; Jones v. Chicago, 213 Ill. 92, 72 N. E. 798. Discretion of municipal authorities as to manner, time, improvement or repair of sidewalk is not subject to judicial control in the absence of manifest abuse. Detmers v. Columbus, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 657. An officer acting in good faith cannot be held liable for an erroneous judgment in a matter submitted to his determination. Summers v. People, 109 Ill. App. 430.

78. Robinson v. Norwood Borough, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 481. A city cannot be restrained from building a sidewalk at the expense of the abutting property owner on his failure to build it, though the board of public works had recommended that action be deferred for a year. Cuming v. Gleason [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 127, 103 N. W. 537.

79. St. 1885, p. 147, c. 153. Chase v. Trout, 146 Cal. 350, 80 P. 81.

80. Jones v. Chicago, 213 Ill. 92, 72 N. E. 798.

81. San Francisco Pav. Co. v. Egan, 146 Cal. 635, 80 P. 1076.

82. City of Valparaiso v. Spaeth [Ind.] 74 N. E. 518. A city exercising care and skill in improving a street is not liable for the damages resulting therefrom. Davis v. Silverton [Or.] 82 P. 16. No damages are to be recovered when an original grading is lawfully performed. Haubner v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 102 N. W. 578.

83. Davis v. Silverton [Or.] 82 P. 16.

84. Haubner v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 102 N. W. 578.

85. Walsh v. Scranton, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 276; Haggerty v. Scranton, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 279.

86. Andrix v. Columbus, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 368. There can be no doubt that the improvement of a street with the Hallwood block confers a special benefit on the abutting property. Borger v. Columbus, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 401.

Contra: The improvement of a street does not ipso facto confer a special benefit upon the abutting property. Method of assessing damages and benefits considered. Borger v. Columbus, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 401.

87. Davis v. Silverton [Or.] 82 P. 16.

88. Sumners v. People, 109 Ill. App. 430.

89. Smith v. Eaton Tp. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 661; City of Valparaiso v. Spaeth [Ind.] 74 N. E. 518.

Contra: Schofield v. Cooper, 126 Iowa, 334, 102 N. W. 110.

90. Parsons Bros. v. New York, 95 N. Y. S. 131; Carroll v. Rye Tp. [N. D.] 101 N. W. 894; Beach v. Scranton, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 430. Negligence. Monarch Mfg. Co. v. Omaha, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 493; Stillman v. Pendleton, 26 R. I. 585, 60 A. 234; City of Valparaiso v. Spaeth [Ind.] 74 N. E. 517.

91. Smith v. Eaton Tp. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 661.

92. Robinson v. Norwood Borough, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 481.

93. Removal of dirt, rubbish and ashes.

§ 8. Abandonment and diminution.[95]—A municipality holds the streets, alleys and highways in trust for the public,[96] and cannot surrender the grant except as provided by statute;[97] nor can the rights of the public be lost by nonuser[98] or adverse possession,[99] but an easement of right of way may be lost by failure to comply with the express conditions of the grant.[1] A public street is a public franchise and is not such property as a corporation may take for its own use under the general power of eminent domain.[2]

§ 9. Vacation.[3]—In the absence of constitutional restrictions, the law-making power of a state may vacate a street or highway,[4] in the interests of the public welfare,[5] and this power may be delegated to a municipal corporation;[6] but the exercise of this delegated authority must be strictly within the statute.[7] By statute the proprietor of a platted town may vacate the town plat.[8] Where the vacation of a

Pub. St. c. 75, § 1; Laws 1893, p. 47, c. 59, §§ 1, 2. Connor v. Manchester [N. H.] 60 A. 436. The resurfacing of an asphalt pavement is a "repair" regardless of the cost. American Bonding Co. v. Ottumwa [C. C. A.] 137 F. 572. Authority to provide for "improving and maintaining" roads refers to work upon roads already constructed, which might be called either repairs, improvements or maintenance. Middle Valley Trap Rock Min. Co. v. Morris County Chosen Freeholders [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 358. Mere maintenance of a highway by repairs is not a paving of it that will relieve the abutting property from the cost of subsequent improvements changing an ordinary road to a city street. In re East St. [Pa.] 60 A. 154.

94. Andrix v. Columbus, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 368.

95. See 3 C. L. 1605. See, also, post, §§ 9, 16.

96. City of Chicago v. Pooley, 112 Ill. App. 343.

97. City cannot abandon its streets nor convey them in whole or in part to private persons for private use. Pew v. Litchfield, 115 Ill. App. 13. A municipal corporation has no rights in the streets which can be sold to a gas company, and exactions from such a company whether for revenue or for other purposes are void. City of Columbus v. Columbus Gas Co., 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 293. Landowner entitled to be heard on the question of reducing the width of a proposed road. Okanogan County v. Cheetham, 37 Wash. 682, 80 P. 262.

98. Town of West Seattle v. West Seattle Land & Imp. Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 549; People v. Rock Island, 215 Ill. 488, 74 N. E. 437. The statute of limitations does not run against a municipal corporation in respect to property held by it for public use. City of Chicago v. Pooley, 112 Ill. App. 343.

99. Contra in Minnesota prior to adoption of chap. 65, p. 65, Laws 1899. Haramon v. Krause, 93 Minn. 455, 101 N. W. 791; Town of West Seattle v. West Seattle Land & Imp. Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 549. Ordinarily the rule of adverse possession does not apply to a public corporation in the exercise of its governmental functions. Encroaching upon the street by planting trees and construction of fences and sidewalks. Vorhes v. Ackley [Iowa] 103 N. W. 998. In Illinois to estop a city from removing one's business stand from the street, it must appear that the city long withheld assertion of control over the street and the individual was thereby induced in good faith to believe that the street or sidewalk had been abandoned and also that on the faith of that belief and with the acquiescence of the public authorities he erected structures on the street of such lasting and valuable character that to permit the public to assert its title would entail upon him great pecuniary loss and sacrifice. City of Chicago v. Pooley, 112 Ill. App. 343.

1. Ellis v. Pelham, 94 N. Y. S. 103. But where a city has long refrained from opening an alley originally dedicated to the public, and it is in the peaceful possession of the fee owner, a stranger to the title is not authorized to destroy the inclosing fence. Haramon v. Krause, 93 Minn. 455, 101 N. W. 791.

2. South Western State Normal School, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 99.

3. See 3 C. L. 1605. See, also, ante, §§ 5, 8.

4. Marietta Chair Co. v. Henderson, 121 Ga. 399, 49 S. E. 312. The release of the public right in a highway, involved in its discontinuance, is in its nature a legislative function which may be directly performed by the legislative agents of the state. Town of New London v. Davis [N. H.] 59 A. 369.

5. Highbarger v. Milford [Kan.] 80 P. 633. Chap. 188, p. 281, of Laws 1889, vacated all section-line roads not previously opened under the act of 1887. Hanselman v. Born [Kan.] 81 P. 192. Commissioners had authority to enter into an agreement to close and reconvey an old road upon the dedication of a new one. Riggs v. Winterode [Md.] 59 A. 762. Commissioner had authority to enter into an agreement to close and reconvey an old road upon the dedication of a new one. Id.

6. Marietta Chair Co. v. Henderson, 121 Ga. 399, 49 S. E. 312. By statute a city may pass an ordinance vacating certain streets to a railroad company on specified conditions. Gen. St. Neb. 1873, c. 9, and c. 11, § 83. Columbus v. Union Pac. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F 869.

7. Hurds' Rev. St. 1903, p. 1897, c. 145, § 1. People v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 573; Sewickley Tp. Road, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 170. City cannot vacate street except as provided by law. Pew v. Litchfield, 115 Ill. App. 13. Authority "to open, lay out, to widen, straighten, or otherwise change" streets within a city does not comprehend power to abandon a thoroughfare and open another. Coker v. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 481.

8. Chapter 84, P. 474, Laws 1862, Nichols & street is discretionary with a city council, the courts will not interfere unless there be an abuse of discretion.[9] The legal vacation of a street is complete when the new plan from which it is omitted is confirmed.[10] A statute which in express terms vacates certain streets of an addition to a city, with a proviso that certain other streets shall not be affected by the act, does not vacate the entire addition nor detach the same from the city.[11] Where the power to vacate streets or public grounds is expressly granted by statute, only those who suffer a peculiar injury different from that of the general public may complain of the exercise of such power,[12] or recover damages,[13] and the right to recover may be barred by the statute of limitations.[14] The vacation of a public road is not an injury to the abutting landowner for which compensation must be made,[15] unless otherwise provided by statute;[16] but in Pennsylvania one purchasing with an implied covenant that a street shall remain open cannot, by the vacation of the street by municipal authorities, be divested of his right to have the space left open as a street.[17] An act of the legislature closing a street need not provide for compensation to the abutting owners where a general law covers all such cases.[18] The legislature on discontinuing a highway may transfer the public rights and title to the roadbed to the abutting owner in satisfaction or modification of his damages,[19] but can vest in abutting owners only such title to the roadbed as is owned by the public.[20] When a street is vacated the presumption is that the fee is in the adjacent owners and that the right of each extends to the middle of the way.[21] If the fee in the street was in the state or the city, the vacation of the street leaves the state or municipality, as the case may be, in possession of the property, to use it for any purpose they see proper,[22] but if the fee is in the adjacent landowner, then the street becomes again subject to use by such abutting owners without reference to the former rights of the public.[23] Changing the lines of a street by vacating a portion so as to narrow the street is an alteration, and the statutory notice of intention to vacate is necessary.[24] That individual voters may have a personal

Shepard Co. v. Cunningham, 16 S. D. 475, 94 N. W. 389.

9. Kakeldy v. Columbia & P. S. R. Co., 37 Wash. 675, 80 P. 205.

10. Tabor St., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 355; Butler St., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 357.

11. Construing Laws 1877, p. 255, c. 196, relating to city of Emporia, Kansas. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Lyon County Com'rs [Kan.] 82 P. 519.

12. Certiorari not the proper remedy. Borghart v. Cedar Rapids, 126 Iowa, 313, 101 N. W. 1120; Highbarger v. Milford [Kan.] 80 P. 633. One who would suffer a special injury by the unauthorized closing of a street may maintain an action to enjoin such abandonment. Plaintiff held not estopped by his conduct. Coker v. Atlanta, K. & N. R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 481. The inconvenience suffered by neighboring property owners from the discontinuance of a street is not special and peculiar damage, but similar in kind to that suffered by the general public, though greater in degree. Hyde v. Fall River [Mass.] 75 N. E. 953.

13. Marietta Chair Co. v. Henderson, 121 Ga. 399, 49 S. E. 312.

14. Tabor St., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 355; Butler St., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 357.

15. P. L. 1891, § 75, does not confer rights to the contrary. Howell v. Morrisville Borough [Pa.] 61 A. 932.

Contra: Peace v. McAdoo, 92 N. Y. S. 368. Where a city instituted proceedings to determine the amount of damages due a claimant for closing a street, the order overruling objections to the petition was appealable. Petition held sufficient. In re City of Rochester, 102 App. Div. 99, 92 N. Y. S. 478.

16. Laws 1867, p. 1749, c. 697, § 3. Mitchell v. Einstein, 94 N. Y. S. 210. Under section 6 of local act of April 21, 1858 (P. L. 385), the jury may assess the damages to property injured against the city without assessing any benefits to other property owners. Penrose Ferry Avenue, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 341.

17. Wickham v. Twaddell, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 188.

18. Marietta Chair Co. v. Henderson, 121 Ga. 399, 49 S. E. 312.

19. Laws 1867, p. 1749, c. 697, § 3. Mitchell v. Einstein, 94 N. Y. S. 210.

20. Mitchell v. Einstein, 94 N. Y. S. 210.

21. Marietta Chair Co. v. Henderson, 121 Ga. 399, 49 S. E. 312.

22. Marietta Chair Co. v. Henderson, 121 Ga. 399, 49 S. E. 312; Mott v. Eno, 181 N. Y. 346, 74 N. E. 229. A vacation of street authorized by statute does not revest the title of land formerly occupied by the street in the abutting owner, and the property may be disposed of by the city for other purposes. Harrington v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 126 Iowa, 388, 102 N. W. 139.

23. Marietta Chair Co. v. Henderson, 121 Ga. 399, 49 S. E. 313; Barns v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 84.

24. P. L. 1871, p. 848. Lambert v. Paterson [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1131.

interest in having one highway rather than another does not debar them from voting on the question of discontinuance.[25] That an application for discontinuance of a portion of a highway describes a larger part of the highway than the applicant on the hearing seeks to have discontinued does not render the application invalid.[26] A statute authorizing the discontinuance of a highway as "useless" means "practically useless" and not "absolutely useless." [27]

§ 10. Street and highway officers and districts.[28]—The legislature has power to regulate and delegate control of local road matters,[29] but the statutes conferring such authority on highway officials are to be strictly construed.[30] Mandamus is the appropriate remedy to compel the performance of the statutory duties of township officers relative to the opening of highways,[31] unless they are vested with discretion therein.[32] A highway commissioner cannot be compelled to incur expenses in repairing a bridge where there are no funds available for such purpose.[33] Whether persons are road officers or merely public employes in respect to road matters varies with the nature of their duties.[34] The careless and negligent discharge of a corporate duty by a city's officials and agents renders it liable for the proximate damages resulting therefrom;[35] but highway officers are not personally liable for damages arising to individuals from errors in discharge of their duties,[36] except in case of willful wrong.[37]

25. Town of New London v. Davis [N. H.] 59 A. 369.

26, 27. Laws 1890, p. 1193, c. 568, § 84. In re Trask, 45 Misc. 244, 92 N. Y. S. 156.

28. See 3 C. L. 1607. See, generally, Officers and Public Employes, 4 C. L. 854; Counties, 5 C. L. 857; Towns, Townships, 4 C. L. 1685.

29. The township commissioners have authority to legislate concerning the safe keeping of the highway. Act of April 28, 1899. Lower Merion Tp. v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 306. In New Hampshire, when the city council legally vote an appropriation for repaving streets, the duty of carrying the vote into practical effect devolves upon the mayor and board of aldermen. Pub. St. 1901, c. 46, § 2; Id. c. 48, § 14; Laws 1899, p. 264, c. 29, § 3. Hett v. Portsmouth [N. H.] 61 A. 596. Upon the taking effect of chap. 215, p. 308, Laws 1887, it was the duty of the road overseer to open section line roads as provided by the general statutes. Hanselman v. Born [Kan.] 81 P. 192. By statute one person may hold both the office of chief of police and overseer of the streets. Mead v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 433. In California the county treasurer may receive money deposited with him as damages for laying out a road, though such deposit be not accompanied by a certificate of the auditor. Pol. Code, §§ 2689, 4145. Mariposa County v. Knowles, 146 Cal. 1, 79 P. 525. A Kentucky road overseer is entitled to financial compensation for his services only in those cases specified by statute. Ky. St. 1903, §§ 1840, 4310, 4315, 4344, 4346. Vaughn v. Hulett [Ky.] 84 S. W. 309.

30. In New York a town board is not called upon to act in case of repairs in an emergency until requested by the highway commissioner. Laws 1890, p. 1179, c. 568. People v. Early, 94 N. Y. S. 640. A township trustee is not justified in refusing to cause a road which has been adjudged to be a public utility to be opened, because he has not sufficient funds on hand at any one time to make all the necessary or desirable improvements. Welch v. State [Ind.] 72 N. E. 1043.

31. Welch v. State [Ind.] 72 N. E. 1043.

32. In Missouri the county road commissioner is vested with full discretion in relocating on permanent land a road on the bank of a watercourse rendered unsafe by the action of the water. Rev. St. 1899, § 9422. Filing of a plat of the road with the county court is not a prerequisite to valid proceedings. State v. Moniteau County Court [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 1193. Under authority to keep public roads and highways clear of all impediments to easy and convenient passing and traveling, road commissioners are vested with a discretion to make reasonable regulations. American Tel. & T. Co. v. Harborcreek Tp., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 437. Highway commissioners have the right to remove obstructions in a highway, and a court of equity is not justified in restraining them in behalf of a trespasser, merely because they do not appear in the suit in their official capacity. Coudert v. Underhill, 95 N. Y. S. 134. When the county commissioners sit for the purpose of finally determining whether or not they will grant a proposed new road, they exercise judicial functions. Atlanta & W. P. R. Co. v. Redwine [Ga.] 51 S. E. 724. The powers conferred on the county commissioners of Reno county by Sess. Laws 1901, § 2, c. 297, p. 549, are directory and not mandatory. State v. Myers [Kan.] 80 P. 638.

33. People v. Early, 94 N. Y. S. 640.

34. See generally Officers and Puhlic Employes, 4 C. L. 854. In Washington the road supervisors are not county officers but are employes of the county commissioners. Laws 1903, p. 225, c. 119, § 12; Pierce's Code, §§ 7870, 7873. State v. Newland, 37 Wash. 428, 79 P. 983. In New Hampshire a highway agent is a public officer of the state and not a private agent of the town. Laws 1893, p. 25, c. 29, § 3; Laws 1897, p. 59, c. 67, § 1. O'Brien v. Derry [N. H.] 60 A. 843.

35. Damkoehler v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 101 N. W. 706.

36. Repairing a bridge being discretionary

§ 11. Fiscal affairs.[38]—As in other tax proceedings, assessments for highway and street purposes must conform strictly to the statute authorizing them,[39] and the general rules in regard to taxation will apply.[40] Statutes frequently authorize municipalities to assess street railroad companies for the expense of paving between the tracks,[41] though a city may waive the right to make such assessment.[42] Where license with the city officers, no liability attaches to them for injuries from failure to repair. Gray v. Batesville [Ark.] S. W. 295. A street commissioner is responsible only for reasonable care in the selection of men and materials which he supplies. Bowden v. Derby, 99 Me. 208, 58 A. 993. In Illinois highway commissioners are not liable in an action for injuries resulting to an individual from the manner in which they discharged their official duties to the public. Neville v. Viner, 115 Ill. App. 364.

37. Members of a highway board, who do not participate in or have knowledge of and do not ratify a trespass committed by the president and other members of such board are not liable for such trespass. Bright v. Bell, 113 La. 1077, 37 So. 976. In Massachusetts a superintendent of town streets is liable for injuries caused by the blasting of a rock only if he was personally negligent. Moynihan v. Todd [Mass.] 74 N. E. 367.

38. See 3 C. L. 1607.

39. Haag v. Ward, 186 Mo. 325, 85 S. W. 391. Certificate of contingency necessary to justify levy of sixty cents on each $100. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 121. People v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 213 Ill. 503, 72 N. E. 1119. Where the commissioners levied a road tax and made the list, but there was no overseer of highways and no affidavit as required by statute, the levy was invalid. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 121. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. People, 213 Ill. 558, 73 N. E. 310. Sufficiency of levy and proceedings under Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, chaps. 120, 121, considered. People v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 214 Ill. 190, 73 N. E. 315. Fallure of notice to specify on what streets sidewalks must be constructed. Denver v. Dunning [Colo.] 81 P. 259. Under Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, p. 3597, c. 121, § 119, the certificate of tax levy need not state the amount required for road purposes. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. People, 213 Ill. 174, 72 N. E. 1006. In Michigan a township board may impose a tax for a highway fund only when the electors have failed to do so after the matter has been brought to their attention. F. & F. Lumber Co. v. Thompson Tp. [Mich.] 103 N. W. 188. Under the Detroit city charter a tax deed is prima facie evidence of the regularity of the proceedings. Charter section 173. Lever v. Grant [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 224, 103 N. W. 843.

40. See generally Taxes, 4 C. L. 1605. That a city in improving a street unintentionally encroached upon private property does not so invalidate the proceedings as to constitute a bar to the collection of the assessment therefor against such owner. Davis v. Silverton [Or.] 82 P. 16. A provision in a paving contract requiring the contractor to keep the pavement in repair for a period of years does not render the contract absolutely void. Erie City v. Grant, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 109. Irregularities in the levy of an assessment for street paving, of which no complaint was made before the city council, cannot be questioned in the courts of Iowa. Marshalltown Light, Power & R. Co. v. Marshalltown [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1005. An appropriation of money for "permanent street improvements" may be sufficiently definite in view of all the circumstances. Hett v. Portsmouth [N. H.] 61 A. 596. The fact that abutting owners asked for an improvement and that the contract be awarded to a certain company may be taken as evidence of knowledge of the cost of the improvement and acquiescence therein, although it does not stop them from challenging the legality of the assessment. Borger v. Columbus, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 401. Contracts for road work, under which a supervisor is personally financially interested, contrary to the statute, are void as to the work done by the supervisor. Nelson v. Harrison County, 126 Iowa, 436, 102 N. W. 197. An abutting owner is not liable to a city for the cost of laying a sidewalk and curb in front of his property, unless he had previous notice to make such improvements. Pittsburg v. Biggert, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 540; Chester City v. Lane, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 359. Facts held to show that certain road work was "original construction" for which the abutters were liable. Heim v. Figg [Ky.] 89 S. W. 301. Under the New York statutes a county may issue bonds for the construction of a highway, to the amount of the county indebtedness thereon. Laws 1898, p. 218, c. 115, § 9; Laws 1892, p. 1746, c. 686. Ontario County v. Shepard, 100 App. Div. 200, 91 N. Y. S. 611. Under the New York charter one may after application of the city to open a street, at least before appointment of commissioners, make a voluntary conveyance to the city of his land in the street and become exempt from charges for opening of the residue of the street. Laws 1897, p. 355, c. 378, § 992; Laws 1901, p. 1184, c. 466. Westminster Heights Co. v. Delany, 95 N. Y. S. 247. In Indiana, contractors who have completed the construction of a road may mandamus the commissioners to bring about the payment of a balance due. Acts 1893, pp. 198, 199, c. 112, §§ 5, 6; Acts 1895, p. 147, c. 63. King v. Martin County Com'rs, 34 Ind. App. 231, 72 N. E. 616. In Missouri a judgment of damages arising from opening a road cannot be rendered against those petitioning for the road. Rev. St. 1899, § 9416. Galbraith v. Prentice [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 997. In Pennsylvania, a borough may grade, pave and curb a street, or may ordain that a fund be raised by assessment upon the abutting properties of the costs and damages according to benefits. Act of May 16, 1891 (P. L. 71). Dunn v. Tarentum Borough, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 332. In Arkansas four-fifths of the tax collected in cities of the first class can be expendeed on roads or streets in the city. Kirby's Dig. §§ 7351, 7358. City of Texarkana v. Edwards [Ark.] 88 S. W. 862.

41. Laws 1890, p. 1112, c. 565; Laws 1892, money is appropriated for street improvements, it is not neeessary that the identical money be kept on hand or that the contractor see that such money is not used for other purposes.[43] The Maryland statute authorizing the furnishing of state aid for the construction of roads by counties and appropriating a certain sum annually therefor is not unconstitutional.[44] A special property road tax and a general tax levy for road purposes is not double taxation within the Idaho constitution.[45] Where a city works its streets from funds made up of commutation taxes collected under ordinance and street fines, the city is not working its street at the expense of the municipal treasury under the Mississippi statutes.[46] In Ohio the owner of street improvement bonds has no recourse against the individual lot owners.[47] A lien for street improvement assessments is paramount to a mortgage existing at the time the proceedings leading up to the construction of the improvements were in progress.[48] One may maintain against a town, an action upon a contract for a road machine, legally entered into by the highway commissioner,[49] but in Michigan a township is not primarily liable in assumpsit for a road machine purchased by highway commissioners pursuant to statute, the proper remedy being by mandamus to compel the levy and collection of a tax therefor.[50] In Illinois a town may at its option proceed under the cash or the labor system.[51] In Michigan the highway commissioner ascertains and apportions the labor tax.[52] The "alternative road law" of Georgia regulating road duty has been sustained.[53] Whether one convicted of failure to do road work was physically incapable of performing such duty is for the jury.[54] In Washington, a refund of a road tax may be recovered by the county if the work certified to by the supervisor has not in fact been done.[55] In an action for that purpose, the supervisor through whose fraud the refundship was made is not a necessary party defendant.[56] Limitations will not begin to run against such right of action until detection of the fraud by the county.[57] The action is one for money had and received and not one to recover a tax due.[58] The taxpayer cannot in such an action

p. 1404, c. 676, § 98. City of Rochester v. Rochester R. Co., 98 App. Div. 521, 91 N. Y. S. 87. A statute requiring street car companies to pave between the tracks is not unconstitutional as impairing the obligation of contract, though a city had granted a company a franchise exempting it from street paving. Marshalltown Light, Power & R. Co. v. Marshalltown [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1005.

42. City of Rochester v. Rochester R. Co., 98 App. Div. 521, 91 N. Y. S. 87.

43. Hett v. Portsmouth [N. H.] 61 A. 596.

44. Acts 1904, p. 388, c. 225; Const. art. 3, § 34. Bonsal v. Yellott [Md.] 60 A. 593.

45. Sess. Laws 1901, p. 78; Const. § 5, art. 7. Humbird Lumber Co. v. Kootenai County [Idaho] 79 P. 396.

46. Acts 1900, p. 153, c. 119. McComb City v. Pike County [Miss.] 38 So. 721.

47. Borger v. Columbus, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 401.

48. Chase v. Trout, 146 Cal. 350, 80 P. 81.

49. Laws 1890, p. 1179, c. 568; Laws 1896, p. 1120, c. 987. Acme Road Machinery Co. v. Bridgewater, 93 N. Y. S. 494.

50. Comp. Laws 1897, § 4194. Pape v. Benton Tp. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 116, 103 N. W. 591.

51. The Act of 1883 established two systems (cash and labor) and gave each town an option under which plan it would act. Section 16, c. 121, Rev. St. and §§ 13, 14, of Act 1883, apply solely to towns under the cash system, and § 119 of Act of 1883, applies solely to towns under the labor system. Wilson v. Cedarville, 109 Ill. App. 316. A provision expressly limited to one system of levying and enforcing a tax under the road and bridge Act of 1883, may not by implication be extended to the other system. Id.; Kuntz v. Cedarville, 109 Ill. App. 330; Reed v. Chatsworth, 109 Ill. App. 332.

52. Perrizo v. Stephenson Tp. [Mich.] 12 Det Leg. N. 373, 104 N. W. 417. But such a tax cannot be assessed upon territory occupied by incorporated villages, yet the money tax to supply an insufficiency in the amount raised by the labor tax must be levied upon all property of the township, including that in any incorporated village within its boundaries. Comp. Laws 1897, §§ 4072-4. Id.

53. But Acts 1903, p. 106 is not applicable to Decatur County. Maxwell v. Willis [Ga.] 51 S. E. 416.

54. Moss v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 198.

55. Where a railroad company paid a road tax, and thereafter employed a road supervisor to work out the tax, and on receiving his certificate that the work was done, presented the same and was repaid by the county, the county could recover the refund on discovering that the work had not in fact been done, though the railroad company had no notice of the supervisor's fraud. Walla Walla County v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. [Wash.] 82 P. 716.

56, 57, 58, 59, 60. Walla Walla County v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. [Wash.] 82 P. 716.

attack the validity of the tax.[59] The county is not estopped to bring such suit by the fact that the supervisor was guilty of fraud, since he acts in such case as the agent of the taxpayer and not of the county.[60]

§ 12. Control by public, and public regulations.[61]—The state has sole control of the highways,[62] and is therefore charged with the duty of providing avenues for public travel.[63] A state can give no power to invade private property rights even for a public purpose without the payment of compensation.[64] Though state control may be delegated,[65] municipalities possess only such power over streets as is granted by the legislature.[66] A city holds the streets in trust for the benefit of the public,[67] and may not by ordinance or otherwise abridge the right of the public to the free and unobstructed use of the streets,[68] or, in the absence of specific legislation for that purpose, authorize any individual to appropriate any part of the public thoroughfare permanently to his own use.[69] A city may properly make use of its streets for

61. See 3 C. L. 1608.

62. City of Texarkana v. Edwards [Ark.] 88 S. W. 862; Marietta Chair Co. v. Henderson, 121 Ga. 399, 49 S. E. 312; Farmer v. Columbiana County Tel. Co. [Ohio] 74 N. E. 1078; Peace v. McAdoo, 92 N. Y. S. 368; Paulsen v. Wilton [Conn.] 61 A. 61. Legislature held to have been authorized to pass Act Jan. 25, 1866, respecting streets previously taken for railroad purposes. City of Columbus v. Union Pac. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 869. Streets of Memphis are public property over which the state of Tennessee has absolute control. City of Memphis v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 139 F. 707. Except as limited by the state constitution the general assembly of Missouri has jurisdiction to grant franchises to be exercised in the streets of the cities or other public highways of the state. State v. Missouri & K. Tel. Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 41. Legislature may authorize the building of a railroad across or lengthwise of streets or alleys in an incorporated city. Tennessee Brewing Co. v. Union R. Co., 113 Tenn. 53, 85 S. W. 864.

63. Paulsen v. Wilton [Conn.] 61 A. 61.

64. Muhlker v. New York & H. R. Co., 197 U. S. 544, 49 Law. Ed. 872.

65. The legislature can authorize structures in streets for business purposes, that without such authority, would, under the common law, be obstructions, and may delegate such authority to the board of rapid transit commissioners of New York. Turl v. New York Contracting Co., 46 Misc. 164, 93 N. Y. S. 1103.

66. Marietta Chair Co. v. Henderson, 121 Ga. 399, 49 S. E. 312; Taylor v. Dist. of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 392. City of Memphis cannot tax telegraph lines erected under authority from the state. City of Memphis v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 139 F. 707. The District of Columbia police regulation requiring the removal by individual citizens of snow and ice from certain sidewalks is void as unauthorized by congress. Coughlin v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 251. Kansas City cannot delegate to the city engineer certain powers relative to the building of sidewalks. Haag v. Ward, 186 Mo. 325, 85 S. W. 391. The Missouri county court has no authority to grant to a railroad the right to grade a private way in the construction of its line. Restetsky v. Delmar Ave. & C. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 665. In Kentucky the county court has no authority to grant the use of the streets to a telephone company. Ky. St. 1903, §§ 4306, 4679A. Bevis v. Vanceburg Tel. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 126. Powers of park commissioners construed. Commonwealth v. Crowinshield, 187 Mass. 221, 72 N. E. 963. City has no power to legislate regarding telephones, rates, etc. Farmer v. Columbiana County Tel. Co. [Ohio] 74 N. E. 1078. The common council of the cities in Indiana have absolute dominion over the streets and other highways of the cities. Burn's Ann. St. 1901, § 3623. City of Valparaiso v. Spaeth [Ind.] 74 N. E. 518.

67. City of Valparaiso v. Spaeth [Ind.] 74 N. E. 518; Turner v. Degnon McLean Con. Co., 99 App. Div. 135, 90 N. Y. S. 948; Gilcrest Co. v. Des Moines [Iowa] 102 N. W. 831; In re City of New York, 45 Misc. 162, 91 N. Y. S. 894; City of Chicago v. Pooley, 112 Ill. App. 343. Public streets are dedicated for public use. Hontros v. Chicago, 113 Ill. App. 318.

68. Ordinance permitting trains to obstruct a crossing for thirty minutes held unreasonable. Gilcrest Co. v. Des Moines [Iowa] 102 N. W. 831; Farmer v. Columbiana County Tel. Co. [Ohio] 74 N. E. 1078. An ordinance authorizing the conducting of a business upon the streets which constitutes a substantial and permanent obstruction to public travel is void. Pagames v. Chicago, 111 Ill. App. 590. A city has no power to create or even permit an obstruction to the highway. Pew v. Litchfield, 115 Ill. App. 13; People v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 573; City of Chicago v. Pooley, 112 Ill. App. 343. A city has no authority to grant the use of its streets to a "street fair." City Council of Augusta v. Reynolds [Ga.] 50 S. E. 998.

69. City of Chicago v. Pooley, 112 Ill. App. 343; Domer v. District of Columbia, 21 App. D. C. 284; Tennessee Brewing Co. v. Union R. Co., 113 Tenn. 53, 85 S. W. 864; Farmer v. Columbiana County Tel. Co. [Ohio] 74 N. E. 1078. Pile of lumber. Smith v. Davis, 22 App. D. C. 298. A lease by the city to an individual of the streets or public ways of the city confers no authority upon the lessee to appropriate them to his own use. Labry v. Gilmour [Ky.] 89 S. W. 231. Under the Alabama constitution a municipal corporation cannot grant any exclusive privilege in its streets to any corporation so as to deprive itself of the right to revoke some other purposes than for travel,[70] and may permit the use of the streets for public purposes or for public improvements;[71] but the grant of such a privilege must be in the manner prescribed by law.[72] The state may grant public franchises through streets of a city for it and other cities.[73] Inanimate objects occupying a street by permission of the municipal authority have as much right there as an individual lawfully using it.[74] Assent by a town to a use of its streets by a railroad company is merely an easement;[75] but where tracks are maintained in a highway under claim of legislative authority, municipal action directing their removal must be upon notice to the party asserting such claim.[76] Municipalities have power to enact and enforce reasonable police regulations with respect to streets,[77] such as limiting the speed of the same and grant like privileges to another. Montgomery Light & Water Power Co. v. Citizens' Light, Heat & Power Co. [Ala.] 38 So. 1026. Estoppel does not lie against a gas company defending against an exaction in the form of payment to a municipality for the privilege of using its streets, to which it has submitted for a period of years. City of Columbus v. Columbus Gas Co., 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 293.

70. Pew v. Litchfield, 115 Ill. App. 13.

71. Turner v. Degnon-McLean Contracting Co., 99 App. Div. 135, 90 N. Y. S. 948. In Missouri a city may authorize a street railway company to construct and operate its line on a public highway, though it crosses the tracks of another railway company. Const. art. 12, § 20. St. Louis & S. R. Co. v. Lindell R. Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 634. The moving of a building along a highway, after obtaining the statutory permit, is a use of the highway authorizing the cutting of electric wires in the necessary use of the street. Pub. St. 1882, c. 109, § 17. Richardson Bldg. Moving Co. v. Boston Elec. Light Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 350. "Street fair" is a nuisance. City Council of Augusta v. Reynolds [Ga.] 50 S. E. 998.

72. Highway regulation that should have been by municipal ordinance set aside because made by mere resolution. Essen v. Cape May [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1131. An individual may be entitled to erect telephone poles and wire in the street under a statute granting such rights to companies. Sowther v. Bridgeman [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 410. Presumption of agency in giving consent for an abutter to the building of a street railway arises after council has acted upon the consents. Day v. Forest City R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 393. In Ohio the statutes require the consent of abutting owners to the construction or extension of a street railway in front of their premises. Id.

73. Where a gas company has the right to occupy the streets of a municipality with its mains to supply gas therein, the legislature may authorize occupancy with mains of a size necessary for distribution of gas to other municipalities whose streets it is also authorized to use. P. L. 1903, p. 359, is constitutional. Public Service Corp. v. De Grote [N. J. Eq.] 62 A. 65.

74. Pole in street. Powell v. New Omaha Thomson-Houston Elec. Light Co. [Neb.] 104 N. W. 162.

75. City held estopped from objecting to a continued use of the street by the railroad company. People v. Rock Island, 215 Ill. 488, 74 N. E. 437.

76. United New Jersey R. & Canal Co. v. Jersey City [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 460.

77. Stowe v. Kearney [N. J. Law] 59 A. 1058; Cook v. North Bergen Tp. [N. J. Law] 59 A. 1035; State v. Wightman [Conn.] 61 A. 56. No more of the police power of the state is presumed to be conferred upon a municipality than is expressly stated in the words of the grant. Taylor v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 392. An ordinance regulating the running of trains through cities must be reasonable, fair, impartial, and not arbitrary or oppressive. Burn's Ann. St. 1901, § 3541, cl. 42. Southern Ind. R. Co. v. Bedford [Ind.] 75 N. E. 268. May require safety appliances at street crossings. Pennsylvania Railroad Co.'s Case, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 113. An ordinance requiring lot owners to lay sidewalks is a police regulation. Pittsburg v. Biggert, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 540. Laws 1901, p. 136, c. 466, § 315, does not empower the police commissioner to prohibit the use of certain parts of streets to vehicles. Peace v. McAdoo, 92 N. Y. S. 368. The ordinance of the City of Atlanta declaring it to be unlawful to hold public meetings in the city streets without consent of the municipal authorities is not unconstitutional. Fitts v. Atlanta, 121 Ga. 567, 49 S. E. 793. The Chicago ordinance regulating the handling of kerosene and similar liquids upon the public streets has been sustained under Hurd's Rev. St. 1893, p. 291. Spiegler v. Chicago, 216 Ill. 114, 74 N. E. 718. Designation of stand for drivers of public vehicles. Barnes v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 458. Insecure overhead signs. Ordinance held to be reasonable. State v. Wightman [Conn.] 61 A. 56. Municipal building restrictions must not be arbitrary and unreasonable in their application. Storck v. Baltimore [Md.] 61 A. 330. Ordinance requiring all drivers passing over bridges within municipal limits to keep on the right hand side, and forbidding passing around a vehicle going in the same direction while on the bridge, is a valid exercise of the power conferred upon council of section 2640. Platt v. Toledo, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 403.

Bill boards: An ordinance prohibiting signs or billboards on any street, boulevard or pleasure drive where three-fourths of the buildings are devoted to residence purposes, without the written consent of at least three-fourths of the residents and property owners on both sides of the street in the block where it is desired to erect such board, is unreasonable. City of Chicago v. Gunning System, 214 Ill. 628, 73 N. E. 1025. An ordinance forbidding the erection of bill travel,[78] and regulating the use of vehicles to which the general public are unaccustomed,[79] and may require persons desiring to excavate in the street to obtain a permit,[80] and give security for the restoration of the highway to its natural condition.[81] A municipality may not tear down a structure built over an alley, in which the public has a mere right of way, unless such structure so far obstructs customary public travel as to be a nuisance,[82] which is for the courts to determine and not the municipal council.[83] The act of congress authorizing the erection of telegraph lines over post roads, and the statutes of most states granting the right to construct telegraph or telephone lines along the public highway, give the privilege of occupying city streets and alleys as well as rural roads,[84] but do not put such companies beyond municipal control with respect to the use of the highways,[85] and only those who are specially interested can complain that no provision was made for compensating the abutting owners.[86]

§ 13. Rights of public use.[87]—The ordinary traveler upon the highway has the right to use every portion of the highway, including the space between street car tracks, until it becomes necessary to yield the track to the cars.[88] A street railway company possesses a paramount,[89] but not an exclusive, right to that portion of the highway covered by their tracks.[90] Foot passengers and those driving wagons boards on private property, merely because such boards are unsightly, is invalid. Bryan v. Chester [Pa.] 61 A. 894.

78. An ordinance providing a speed limit for any cart, wagon or other vehicle used to carry passengers, does not apply to street surface cars operated by electricity. Robinson v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 92 N. Y. S. 1010. It is competent for a council to prescribe different rates of speed for different localities within its jurisdiction. St. 1902, p. 235, c. 315, regulating speed of automobiles throughout the state, does not abrogate city park regulations. Commonwealth v. Crowninshield, 181 Mass. 221, 72 N. E. 963. Where fast driving was not an offense at common law, and when made an offense by ordinance, the accused is not entitled to a jury trial under any provision of the Federal constitution. Bowles v. District of Columbia, 22 App. D. C. 321. 1 Stan. & C. Ann. St. 1896 (2d Ed.) p. 696, art. 5, § 63, cl. 21, authorizes that passage of an ordinance making it unlawful to drive at a greater speed than six miles an hour. United States Brewing Co. v. Stoltenberg, 211 Ill. 531, 71 N. E. 1081. One who controls the motive power of an automobile may be convicted of "driving" at an excessive speed. Commonwealth v. Crowninshield, 187 Mass. 221, 71 N. E. 963.

79. A county ordinance prohibiting the running of automobiles on country roads between sunset and sunrise is not so unreasonable as to be void in California. Ex parte Berry [Cal.] 82 P. 44. Chicago may regulate the speed of automobiles and require safety appliances, but cannot compel the taking out of a license for such vehicles for private use. City of Chicago v. Banker, 112 Ill. App. 94. Laws 1903, p. 163, § 4, does not require an automobile owner to procure a license in every county over the roads of which he desires to travel in his automobile. State v. Cobb [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 551.

80. Stowe v. Kearney [N. J. Law] 59 A. 1058.

81. Ordinance held to apply to electric lighting company which was previously authorized to erect poles in the street. Cook v. North Bergen Tp. [N. J. Law] 59 A. 1035.

82, 83. Town of Frostburg v. Hitchins, 99 Md. 617, 59 A. 49.

84. Code 1873, § 1324; Laws of 19th Gen. Assem. c. 104, p. 100. State v. Nebraska Tel. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 120.

85. American Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Harborcreek Tp., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 437. City may determine and designate the streets and alleys to be used for poles and wires of telephone and telegraph companies. City of Wichita v. Missouri & K. Tel. Co. [Kan.] 78 P. 886.

86. State v. Nebraska Tel. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 120.

87. See 3 C. L. 1610.

88. Davis v. Media, etc., R. Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 444; Hellriegel v. Southern T. Co., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 392; Ablard v. Detroit United R. Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 741; Beers v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 278; Strode v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 87 S. W. 976. See, also, Street Railways, 4 C. L. 1556. The duty one owes a car approaching from the rear is to get off the track when informed of its approach. It is not negligence to drive a vehicle, with curtains down on sides and rear, upon the tracks of a street railway in a public street. Richmond Passenger & Power Co. v. Allen, 103 Va. 532, 49 S. E. 656.

89. Barringer v. Union Traction Co., 101 App. Div. 330, 91 N. Y. S. 386; Macon R. & Light Co. v. Barnes, 121 Ga. 443, 49 S. E. 282.

90. Demarest v. Forty-Second St., etc., R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 663; Ablard v. Detroit United R. Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 741; Foulk v. Wilmington City R. Co. [Del. Super.] 60 A. 973; Kroder v. Interurban St. R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 341; Camden & T. R. Co. v. United States Cast Iron Pipe & Foundry Co. [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 523; Macon R. & Light Co. v. Barnes, 121 Ga. 443, 49 S. E. 282; Hellriegel v. Southern Trac. Co., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 392. The rights of the public to use the street and a street railroad company's to use their tracks are reciprocal. Riley v. Shreveport Traction Co.

have equal rights on the streets of a city.[91] A traveler has the same rights upon a street upon which a railroad company has been authorized to construct its tracks as the railroad company.[92] It is the duty of persons using a highway [93] for railroad purposes,[94] or a portion thereof as a railroad crossing,[95] or operating a street railroad,[96] or driving a team,[97] or an unbroken horse,[98] or propelling an automobile,[99]

[La.] 38 So. 83. Rights of a cab driver and a street car company at a street crossing are the same. Fisher v. Chicago City R. Co., 114 Ill. App. 217.

91. Richardson v. Davis & Co. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 868. Pedestrian struck by an automobile is not guilty of contributory negligence because he was standing in the roadway conversing with one who had there stopped his team to talk with him. Kathmeyer v. Mehl [N. J. Law] 60 A. 40.

92. Rio Grande, etc., R. Co. v. Martinez [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 853; Illinois Terminal R. Co. v. Mitchell, 214 Ill. 151, 73 N. E. 449.

93. Kennedy v. Consolidated Traction Co., 210 Pa. 215, 59 A. 1005.

94. Track laid in street. Rio Grande, etc., R. Co. v. Martinez [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 853. An agreement between a city and a railroad, requiring the city to keep in repair that portion of a street occupied by the railroad does not release the railroad from its statutory duty to keep such streets in condition that the public could pass in safety. Laws 1850, p. 223, c. 140, § 28. Butin v. New York, etc., R. Co., 100 App. Div. 42, 90 N. Y. S. 909.

95. Wolf v. Washington R. & Nav. Co., 37 Wash. 491, 79 P. 997; Central Tex. & N. W. R. Co. v. Gibson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 862; New Orleans & N. E. R. Co. v. Brooks [Miss.] 38 So. 40. Evidence held to show the place to be a "street" crossing within the statute. Ray v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 413. Under § 5153, Rev. St. 1894, railroad companies must maintain the crossings in good condition for public travel and restore the whole width of the highway so as not to interfere with a free use thereof. Evansville & I. R. Co. v. Allen, 34 Ind. App. 636, 73 N. E. 630.

96. El Paso Elec. R. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 718; Knoxville Traction Co. v. Brown [Tenn.] 89 S. W. 319; Kennedy v. Consolidated Traction Co., 210 Pa. 215, 59 A. 1005; Camden & T. R. Co. v. United States Cast Iron Pipe & Foundry Co. [N. J. Eq.] 39 A. 523; Ahlard v. Detroit United R. Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 741; Oehmler v. Pittsburg R. Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 617; Murray v. St Louis Transit Co., 108 Mo. App. 501, 83 S. W. 995; Fellers v. Warren St. R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 31; Davis v. Media, etc., R. Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 444; Demarest v. Forty-Second St., etc., R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 663; Greene v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 100 App. Div. 303, 91 N. Y. S. 426; Hellriegel v. Southern Trac. Co., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 392. Car must not be operated with unnecessary noise likely to frighten horses. Georgia R. & Elec. Co. v. Blacknall [Ga.] 50 S. E. 92. Failure to sound warning of approaching car. Beers v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 278; Barringer v. United Traction Co., 101 App. Div. 330, 91 N. Y. S. 386. Street railway must anticipate lawful presence of persons on track. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Schmidt [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 478. A motorman is bound to use a greater degree of care in approaching a street crossing. Fisher v. Chicago City R. Co., 114 Ill. App. 217. Until it becomes reasonably apparent that a person crossing the track will not clear the cars those in control of a train may assume that he had the ordinary faculties of sight and would leave the track before encountering danger. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Lewis [Ala.] 37 So. 587. A motorman may presume that the driver of a wagon will use his senses in looking for cars. Markowitz v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 186 Mo. 350, 85 S. W. 351. Evidence held to justify a finding of negligence by motorman. Cicero & P. St. R. Co. v. Reiser, 115 Ill. App. 146. Care required on steep down grade or where tracks are wet and slippery. Foulk v. Wilmington City R. Co. [Del. Super.] 60 A. 973. Admissibility of evidence to show negligence in operation of car considered. Columbus R. v. Connor, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 361. The proper construction of an ordinance limiting the speed of cars to fourteen miles, including stops, is that at the end of the run the average speed should not exceed that rate. Id. An instruction that greater care in operating cars is required in populous cities and crowded streets than in sparsely settled districts and streets having few travelers is erroneous as invading the province of the jury. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Taylor [Ind.] 72 N. E. 1045. Evidence tending to show that the accident occurred in a populous city or crowded street is admissible. Id. A street railway company without being charged with a breach of duty or an unlawful obstruction of the highway, to allow its cars to stand upon its tracks for a reasonable length of time. Poland v. United Traction Co., 95 N. Y. S. 498. Highly charged electric wire down on the highway. Cleary v. St. Louis Transit Co., 108 Mo. App. 433, 83 S. W. 1029.

97. Question for the jury whether defendant so drove as to endanger the lives of others. Kleinhauer v. Shedd [Iowa] 102 N. W. 497; Foulk v. Wilmington City R. Co. [Del. Super.] 60 A. 973; Hershinger v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 147; Harvey v. Fargo, 99 App. Div. 599, 91 N. Y. S. 84; Wright v. Fleischmann, 99 App. Div. 547, 91 N. Y. S. 116; May v. Hahn [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 262; Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Gunn [Colo.] 79 P. 1029. Liability arises for carelessly driving against a mare running at large in the streets contrary to ordinance. Ensley Mercantile Co. v. Otwell [Ala.] 38 So. 839. Negligence of truck driver for jury where plaintiff was struck by truck on crowded street just as plaintiff got off a street car. Schoeller v. Metropolitan Express Co., 95 N. Y. S. 744.

98. Conway v. Rheims, 95 N. Y. S. 119. A greater degree of care is required of one driving on the highway with a team of horses having a reputation for running or other lawful purpose,[1] to act with due regard for the safety of others traveling,[2] in view of all the circumstances;[3] as in other cases, negligence of the person injured will bar recovery,[4] but he may take such chances as a person of ordinary care and away than is required of the driver of horses known to be gentle and reliable. Lynch v. Kineth, 36 Wash. 368, 78 P. 923.

99. Murphy v. Wait, 102 App. Div. 121, 92 N. Y. S. 253; Trout Brook Ice & Feed Co. v. Hartford Elec. Light Co., 77 Conn. 338, 59 A. 405; Kathmeyer v. Mehl [N. J. Law] 60 A. 40; Indiana Springs Co. v. Brown [Ind.] 74 N. E. 615; Radnor Tp. v. Bell, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 1; Banks v. Braman [Mass.] 74 N. E. 594; Christy v. Elliott, 216 Ill. 31, 74 N. E. 1035.

1. It is not negligence per se to lead a bear along a public street for a lawful purpose. Bostock-Ferari Amusement Co. v. Brocksmith, 34 Ind. App. 566, 73 N. E. 281. The use of automobiles as means of conveyance on a public highway is not, as a matter of law, negligence. Indiana Springs Co. v. Brown [Ind.] 74 N. E. 615; City of Chicago v. Banker, 112 Ill. App. 94. Cycles of every kind are vehicles and subject to the law of vehicles as far as reasonably applicable. Fahrney v. O'Donnell, 107 Ill. App. 608. One riding a bicycle has a legal right upon the road. Hershinger v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 147; Maus v. Mahoning Tp., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 624.

2. Negligence for the jury. Wood v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 298; New York Bread Co. v. New York City R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 421; Blakelee's Express & Van Co. v. Ford, 215 Ill. 230, 74 N. E. 135; May v. Hahn [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 262; Knoxville Traction Co. v. Brown [Tenn.] 89 S. W. 319. Hellriegel v. Southern Trac. Co., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 392. The violation of a speed ordinance is prima facie evidence of negligence. United States Brewing Co. v. Stoltenberg, 211 Ill. 531, 71 N. E. 1081. In Massachusetts an employer is liable for his servant's negligence causing death only in case the servant's conduct amounted to gross negligence. Brennan v. Standard Oil Co. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 472. Recovery will be allowed only where the negligence complained of was the proximate cause of injury. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Lewis [Ala.] 37 So. 587.

3. Davis v. Media, etc., R. Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 444.

4. Negligence for the jury. Ablard v. Detroit United R. Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 741; Richardson v. Davis & Co. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 868; Nadeau v. Sawyer [N. H.] 19 A. 369; Green v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 100 App. Div. 303, 91 N. Y. S. 426; New York Bread Co. v. New York City R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 421; Schleicher v. Interurban St. R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 356; Heuber v. Consolidated Traction Co., 210 Pa. 70, 59 A 430; Foulk v. Wilmington City R. Co. [Del. Super.] 60 A. 973; McCartney v. Union Traction Co., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 222; Fellers v. Warren St. R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 31; Macon R. & Light Co. v. Barnes, 121 Ga. 443, 49 S. E. 282; Hellriegel v. Southern Traction Co., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 392; Murphy v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 87 S. W. 945; Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Gunn [Colo.] 79 P. 1029; Dorr v. Schenck [Mass.] 73 N. E. 532; New Orleans & N. E. R. Co. v. Brooks [Miss.] 38 So. 40; Knoxville Traction Co. v. Brown [Tenn.] 89 S. W. 319; O'Neill v. St. Louis Transit Co., 108 Mo. App. 453, 83 S. W. 990; Lee v. Foley, 113 La. 663, 37 So. 594; Murray v. St. Louis Transit Co., 108 Mo. App. 501, 83 S. W. 995; Blakeslie's Express & Van Co. v. Ford, 215 Ill. 230, 74 N. E. 135; Wood v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 298; Columbus R. v. Connor, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 361; Reid v. United Trac. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 55; Buscher v. New York Transp. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 798; Orchard Stables v. Interurban St. R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 330; Martin v. Vare [Pa.] 61 A. 615; Kennedy v. Consolidated Traction Co., 210 Pa. 215, 59 A. 1005; West v. New York Transp. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 426; Beers v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 278; Furlong v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 92 N. Y. S. 1008; Woolf v. Washington R. & Nav. Co., 37 Wash. 491, 79 P. 997. In approaching and crossing street car tracks, one must use reasonable care to avoid a collision. Fisher v. Chicago City R. Co., 114 Ill. App. 217. Contributory negligence for jury where plaintiff was run over by truck on crowded street, just after getting off street car. Schoeller v. Metropolitan Exp. Co., 95 N. Y. S. 744. A person is not guilty of contributory negligence in walking along a railroad track where the track is situated in a street. Rio Grande, etc., R. Co. v. Martinez [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 853. A person rightfully using a railroad track as a thoroughfare may presume that trains will approach at a speed permitted by city ordinance and that the statutory meaning will be given. Illinois Terminal R. Co. v. Mitchell, 214 Ill. 151, 73 N. E. 449. Instructions on contributory negligence at railroad crossing. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Hall [Tex.] 85 S. W. 786. The negligence of a servant driving his master's wagon is chargeable to the master who is riding therein and is injured. Markowitz v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 186 Mo. 350, 85 S. W. 351. A child must exercise such a degree of care as is reasonably to be expected of one of her years. Young v. Small [Mass.] 73 N. E. 1019. One attempting to cross a street, and seeing a sleigh approaching, is not negligent in failing to watch the sleigh and keep out of its way, the street being otherwise unoccupied. McCrohan v. Davison [Mass.] 73 N. E. 553. Evidence held to fail to show plaintiff free from negligence. Perez v. Sanddrowitz, 180 N. Y. 397, 73 N. E. 228. It is the duty of the driver of a wagon when he sees that a car approaching a street crossing is likely to come into collision with his wagon to use reasonable diligence to stop or check his wagon. Ford v. Hine Brothers Co., 115 Ill. App. 153. Plaintiff negligent in attempting at night to cross street car tracks in an unimproved portion of the highway. Kalberg v. Seattle Elec. Co., 37 Wash. 612, 79 P. 1101. Attempt to drive from one side of a street to the other in front of a rapidly approaching car. Riley v. Shreveport Traction Co. [La.] 38 So. 83. It is not contributory negligence per se for a passenger on a crowded street cart to ride on the running board. Koontz v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 59. Plaintiff negliprudence, in the exercise thereof, would have taken under all the circumstances.[5] The common-law rule is that a person may travel the highway with a conveyance or loaded vehicle liable to frighten horses, yet he must while doing so exercise reasonable care to avoid accident and injury to others traveling along such highway.[6] To leave a horse in the street unhitched, or unattended contrary to ordinance is negligence per se,[7] and may also be so in fact.[8] The right of a merchant to leave his team standing in the street while merchandise is being unloaded therefrom must be exercised with due regard to the rights of others lawfully using the street.[9] One operating a gasoline engine near a highway must not be negligent in the muffling of the exhaust.[10] The Illinois statute regulating the speed and operation of automobiles on the highway is not unconstitutional.[11] One maintaining a coal hole in the sidewalk must exercise reasonable care in view of all the circumstances to protect the public,[12] and may be responsible for the negligence of a coal company making use of the opening.[13]

Law of the road.[14]—A city may by ordinance provide that vehicles going in a certain directions shall have the right of way.[15] A street car is not required to stop at street intersections for a funeral procession to pass, nor to give a funeral procession the right of way.[16] The custom of the road in America is for vehicles to gent in driving onto street car track when his sight and hearing were temporarily impaired. Saltman v. Boston El. R. Co., 187 Mass. 243, 72 N. E. 950. Crossing in front of rapidly approaching car when not required to do so by emergency. Hornstein v. Rhode Island Co., 26 R. I. 387, 59 A. 71. Failure to get clear of car track. Randall v. Union R. Co. [R. I.] 59 A. 165. Collision with street car. Dages v. New York City R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 29. Driving in front of a car without looking. Seele v. Boston & N. St. R. Co., 187 Mass. 238, 72 N. E. 971. To leave a horse and wagon in the stret in front of the store from which goods are being loaded into the wagon is not contributory negligence as a matter of law preventing a recovery for injury to the horse, caused by the reckless driving of another. Rohde v. Mantell, 992 N. Y. S. 5. Walking on tracks while intoxicated. Bugbee v. Union R. Co. [R. I.] 59 A. 165. Carelessly driving upon street car track without looking. Clcardi v. St. Louis Transit Co., 108 Mo. App. 462, 83 S. W. 980. A person about to cross a street railroad track in an incorporated city is not bound as a matter of law to stop, look and listen (Los Angeles Traction Co. v. Conneally [C. C. A.] 136 F. 104), though the rule may be otherwise in sparsely settled districts (Id.). In Pennsylvania one must stop, look and listen before crossing a street car track. McCartney v. Union Traction Co., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 222. A teamster who needlessly drives upon the track must at reasonable intervals look back for approaching cars. Not sufficient to look back only after driving two hundred feet upon the track. Schleicher v. Interurban St. R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 356.

5. Doherty v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 19; Greene v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 100 App. Div. 303, 91 N. Y. S. 426; Strode v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 87 S. W. 976; Oehmler v. Pittsburg R. Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 617; Fellers v. Warren St. R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 31. Where obstacles prevent observation, it is the duty of the pedestrian to delay crossing the track until proper observation can be made. Knoxville Traction Co. v. Brown [Tenn.] 89 S. W. 319. Attempting to cross the track of a street railway ahead of an approaching car is not negligence per se. Fisher v. Chicago City R. Co., 114 Ill. App. 217. It is not negligence to attempt to reach the sidewalk from the street at a place other than a street crossing. Rea v. Sioux City [Iowa] 103 N. W. 949.

6. Murphy v. Wait, 102 App. Div. 121, 92 N. Y. S. 253.

7. Healy v. Johnson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 92. Negligence for the jury. McCormack v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 599. He who leaves a horse unsecured in the street must be presumed to have contemplated the possibility of its being frightened. Master liable for negligence of servant. Healy v. Johnson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 92.

8. Driver held negligent and his employer liable where he left the vehicle and team standing unhitched and unguarded in a frequented place and the team ran away inflicting injury on a third person. Zambelli v. Johnson & Son Co. [La.] 39 So. 501.

9. McCormack v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 599.

10. Wolf v. Des Moines Elevator Co., 126 Iowa, 659, 102 N. W. 517.

11. Laws 1903, pp. 301, 302. Christy v. Elliott, 216 Ill. 31, 74 N. E. 1035.

12. Berger v. Content, 94 N. Y. S. 12; Ray v. Manhattan, Light, Heat & Power Co. [Minn.] 99 N. W. 782.

13. Ray v. Manhattan, Light, Heat & Power Co. [Minn.] 99 N. W. 782.

14. See 3 C. L. 1610.

15. Heuber v. Consolidated Traction Co., 210 Pa. 70, 59 A. 430; Demarest v. Forty-Second St., etc., R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 663. When such an ordinance exists, the jury should be clearly charged thereon. Kroder v. Interurban St. R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 341; May v. Hahn [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 262.

16. Foulk v. Wilmington City R. Co. [Del. Super.] 60 A. 973.

seasonably turn to the right on meeting,[17] or to the left on overtaking and passing, or that one should turn to the right when informed that another traveling in the same direction desires to pass him,[18] and this rule applies as well to bicycles as to other vehicles.[19] A pedestrian or light vehicles should give way, where it is possible, to floats and wagons.[20] There is no law of the road in Louisiana, but the courts take judicial notice of the custom there prevailing for vehicles to drive to the right.[21] That one traveler is violating the law of the road does not give to another the right to neglect the required precautions.[22] As in other cases, contributory negligence will bar recovery.[23] In taking the wrong side of the street, one assumes the risk of consequences which may arise from inability to get out of the way of a vehicle on the right side of the street,[24] but one may rightfully travel on the left hand side of the road if the opposite side is unsafe for travel.[25] The driver of a vehicle is presumptively at fault if he fails to turn to the right of the center of the wrought highway in meeting another,[26] but if the presumption be overcome, the fact that he may in a sense have been out of place does not place him beyond the protection of the law.[27] In an action for injuries received in a collision between a street car and a vehicle approaching each other at right angles, it was proper to charge that the question of the right or wrong side of the street did not enter into the case.[28]

§ 14. Rights of abutters.[29]—The dedication of a street must be presumed to have been for all public purposes,[30] present and prospective,[31] consistent with its use as a highway and not actually detrimental to the abutting real property;[32] but

17. Wright v. Fleischmann, 99 App. Div. 547, 91 N. Y. S. 116; May v. Hahn [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 262; Hershinger v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 147; Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Slifer [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 1055.

18. Pub. St. 1901, c. 76, § 18. Nadeau v. Sawyer [N. H.] 59 A. 369.

19. Wright v. Fleischmann, 99 App. Div. 547, 91 N. Y. S. 116.

20, 21, 22. Lee v. Foley, 113 La. 663, 37 So. 594.

23. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Slifer [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 1055.

24. Fahrney v. O'Donnell, 107 Ill. App. 608.

25. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Slifer [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 1055. One is not negligent as a matter of law in driving on the left hand side of the street. Wood v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 298.

26. Buxton v. Ainsworth [Mich.] 101 N. W. 817; Hershinger v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 147.

27. Buxton v. Ainsworth [Mich.] 101 N. W. 817.

28. Iaquinto v. Bauer, 93 N. Y. S. 388.

29. See 3 C. L. 1613.

30. Morris v. Montgomery Traction Co. [Ala.] 38 So. 834. A water company has a right to lay its pipes through a public street without paying compensation to any one. Jayne v. Cortland Waterworks Co., 95 N. Y. S. 227. A railroad company's right of way across a street is subject to the lawful uses of the highway and amongst them its use by a street railway. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Inland Traction Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 115. An owner of land who without protest sees a railroad constructed thereon is estopped thereafter to maintain ejectment or a suit to enjoin the operation of the railroad. Kakeldy v. Columbia & P. S. R. Co., 37 Wash. 675, 80 P. 205.

31. The use of the streets must be extended to meet modern means of locomotion. City of Chicago v. Banker, 112 Ill. App. 94. The mere imposition of more railway tracks or the increased use of tracks beyond what may originally have been thought probable, resulting from the location of a depot on land acquired by it adjoining a street occupied by its track, does not constitute a nuisance. Oklahoma City & T. R. Co. v. Dunham [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 644, 88 S. W. 849.

32. The movement of street cars on their tracks in a highway is only a modification of the public use to which the highway was originally devoted. Camden & T. R. Co. v. United States Cast Iron Pipe & Foundry Co. [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 523. There is no limit to the use of a public street for the purposes of public travel thereon so long as such use does not interfere unnecessarily with the ordinary modes of travel and is not substantial impairment of private rights of property. Morris v. Montgomery Traction Co. [Ala.] 38 So. 834. In Kansas a gas company may, as against the state, bury its pipe line in the public highway, where such use does not inconvenience, endanger or obstruct public travel. State v. Kansas Natural Gas, Oil, Pipe Line & Imp. Co. [Kan.] 80 P. 962. Mere delay in travel suffered by a property owner by the laying of a railway track in the street is damnum absque injuria, where there is an outlet from his property along the street without crossing the track. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 109. The right of action for damages to a landowner because of the construction of a railroad over his land belongs to him personally. Kakeldy v. Columbia & P. S. R. Co., 37 Wash. 675, 80 P. 205. A fire escape may be such an obstruction to an alley and interference with the rights of others as to entitle an abutting in Iowa, a vacated street may be appropriated by the city to other purposes inconsistent with its further use for public travel.[33] Every abutting owner has a property right in the maintenance of the highway in full use,[34] of which he can be divested only on due compensation,[35] though his rights are simply that the street, including the roadway and the sidewalk, shall not be obstructed so as to impair ingress or egress to his lot.[36] The right of abutters to use streets for other purposes is permissive only[37] though they may temporarily make reasonable use.[38] Some states hold that an abutting owner has a property right in the street opposite his premises,[39] and may use the land for any lawful purpose compatible with the full enjoyment of the public easement.[40] The maintenance of trees in a street for the purpose of ornament and shade is a proper street use,[41] but a city may remove trees when necessary to improve the street according to a general plan.[42] The public owes the same duty of lateral support to abutters as adjoiners do to each other.[43] The abutter's character owner to an injunction restraining its continuance. Schmoele v. Betz [Pa.] 61 A. 525. Diamond switch for street cars. Rosenbaum v. Meridian Light & R. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 321. Construction of double track street railway on northerly half of road and placing of poles close to street line does not constitute an additional servitude. Budd v. Camden Horse R. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 782, 59 A. 229. A reasonable use of the highway for the erection of telephone poles and wire under legislative authority is not an additional servitude. Lowther v. Bridgeman [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 410. Street railway not an additional servitude, though the city has but an easement. Hester v. Durham Traction Co., 138 N. C. 288, 50 S. E. 711. That a railroad track was changed from narrow to standard guage and the trains became heavier is not an increase of servitude. Kakeldy v. Columbia & P. S. R. Co., 37 Wash. 675, 80 P. 205. Where a street car track constitutes an additional servitude, unless waived, the assessment and payment or tender of damages is a condition precedent to the right of the company to occupy the street (Strickford v. Boston & M. R. Co. [N. H.] 59 A. 367); but such a waiver does not preclude one from subsequently applying for an assessment of damages (Id.). The raising of a railroad track from a surface line on a street to an elevated structure is an increase of servitude. Muhlker v. New York & H. R. Co., 197 U. S. 544, 49 Law. Ed. 872.

33. Harrington v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 126 Iowa, 388, 102 N. W. 139.

34. Peace v. McAdoo, 92 N. Y. S. 368. A street having been dedicated to the public, a purchaser of property abutting thereon acquired a vested right to have it kept open and no acceptance of the dedication by the corporation was necessary. Heard v. Connor [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 605. When a city negligently obstructs a street, it is liable to the abutting owner for the damages proximately resulting therefrom; but an action to recover such damages must be timely brought. Schleicher v. Mt. Vernon, 95 N. Y. S. 326.

35. Highbarger v. Milford [Kan.] 80 P. 633.

36. Hester v. Durham Traction Co., 138 N. C. 288, 50 S. E. 711. A city sidewalk being a part of the street which the city has set aside for the use of pedestrians, an abutting proprietor has no more right therein than in the roadway. Id. For the condemnation of a walk, by a city in the exercise of power expressly conferred by statute, the owner of the walk is not entitled to compensation. Scott v. Marshall, 110 Mo. App. 178, 85 S. W. 98.

37. Vorhes v. Ackley [Iowa] 103 N. W. 998.

38. White v. Roydhouse, 211 Pa. 13, 60 A. 316; Friedman v. Snare & Triest Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 401. Depositing building materials in the street. Friedman v. Snare & Triest Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 401.

39. Donahue v. Keystone Gas Co., 181 N. Y. 313, 73 N. E. 1008. Where a steam railroad track is constructed in a street upon which property abuts, but not in that part of the street opposite the lot lines of the property produced, and it can nevertheless be shown that such track is an interference with the access to said property—whether such facts are sufficient to maintain an action. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 109. An abutting owner may recover from one who drove his cattle to drink from the highway ditch in front of such owner's property and there trampled the outlet of a private ditch. Van Roy v. Watermolen [Wis.] 104 N. W. 97. Removing sandstone from quarry within the limits of the highway. Town of Clarendon v. Medina Quarry Co., 102 App. Div. 217, 92 N. Y. S. 530.

40. Removing gravel from within limits of a county highway. Town of Glencoe v. Reed, 93 Minn. 518, 101 N. W. 956.

41. Donahue v. Keystone Gas Co., 181 N. Y. 313, 73 N. E. 1108; Dotey v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 232; Harlow v. Standard Imp. Co., 145 Cal. 477, 78 P. 1045. The illegal entry upon land and destruction of trees thereon renders the perpetrators guilty of trespass. Bright v. Bell, 113 La. 1078, 37 So. 976.

42. Rev. St. 1899, § 5960. Scott v. Marshall, 110 Mo. App. 178, 85 S. W. 98. A city may cut down or remove shade trees when the public officials deem it expedient or necessary. Ward v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 524. A property owner who plants trees upon a public highway does so subject to the right of the legislature to make such regulations as to improvement of the highway as will render it more convenient for public use. Sherman v. Butcher [N. J. Law] 60 A. 336.

43. Gerst v. St. Louis, 185 Mo. 191, 84 S. W. 34.

as such ceases when his land is taken by right of eminent domain;[44] but rights accrued previously to his alienation are his and do not run with the land.[45] Only the heirs of the grantor can exercise the right of re-entry given by a breach by the grantee of a condition that the land granted shall be used as a public road.[46] The sale of lots according to a recorded plan, showing streets and avenues, is constructive notice to subsequent purchasers of the existence of such streets and avenues.[47] An abutter may by mandamus compel the construction of a street within a reasonable time after it has been laid out.[48] A hotel keeper's rights in the adjacent street extend no further than to a reasonable occupation of the street by carriages of his own brought there for the use of his guests.[49]

Ownership of fee.[50]—It is the general rule that the dedication of land for a public highway confers a mere easement for public use as a highway,[51] and in the absence of anything to show the contrary, the title and legal possession of the owner or occupant of lands abutting upon a street presumably extend to the middle of the street.[52] At common law the conveyance of a lot bounded upon a street[53] or sold to a plat showing a street adjoining the lot,[54] in the absence of reservation,[55] gives title to the center of the street,[56] but a conveyance of lots bounded by the westerly line of a road leaves the fee of the road in the grantor.[57] In Colorado, unless the record of roads is such as to notify an intending purchaser of the existence of a road, the purchaser of land without actual notice of a road thereon takes his land free from the easement of the right of way.[58]

§ 15. Defective or unsafe streets or highways. A. Liability of municipalities in general.[59]—The liability of towns for injuries caused by defective ways is created

44. One who has ceased to be an owner of property abutting on a street, his land having been condemned for a railroad right of way, has no standing in court to raise the question of the extension of the street across the railroad right of way. Johnson v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. [Del.] 62 A. 86.

45. If the mistake of a city surveyor in giving a wrong grade line to a property owner, causing him to build at a greater elevation than he otherwise would have built, gave such owner a right of action against the city, such right would not run with the land so as to authorize a recovery by his vendee. Moore v. Lancaster [Pa.] 62 A. 100.

46. Mitchell v. Einstein, 94 N. Y. S. 210.

47. Wickham v. Twaddell, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 188.

48. Rev. Laws, c. 48, § 92, does not require the completion of the street in two years after the right to possession accrues. McCarthy v. Boston [Mass.] 74 N. E. 659.

49. Barnes v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 458.

50. See 3 C. L. 1614.

51. Town of Glencoe v. Reed, 93 Minn. 518, 101 N. W. 956. Deed held to convey the fee. Mitchell v. Einstein, 94 N. Y. S. 210. Under a deed conveying "a perpetual easement for the purpose of a public levee or street only," the fee title remains in the grantor. Security Trust Co. v. Joesting [Minn.] 104 N. W. 830.

Contra: Acceptance by the public of a dedicated street gives the municipality the fee. Reichert Milling Co. v. Freeburg [Ill.] 75 N. E. 544.

52. Friedman v. Snare & Triest Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 401; City of Houston v. Finnigan [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 470. Laws 1847, p. 196, c. 203, vested the fee of the street in question, in the city of New York. Mott v. Eno, 181 N. Y. 346, 74 N. E. 229. Where there is nothing to control a deed describing land as situated on the side of a contemplated street, the grantee therein takes to the middle of the street. Everett v. Fall River [Mass.] 75 N. E. 946.

53. Barnes v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 84; Mitchell v. Einstein, 94 N. Y. S. 210; Neely v. Philadelphia [Pa.] 61 A. 1096; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Krueger [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 25.

54. In re South Western State Normal School, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 99; Reichert Milling Co. v. Freeburg [Ill.] 75 N. E. 544; Restetsky v. Delmar Ave. & C. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 665; Florida East Coast R. Co v. Worley [Fla.] 38 So. 618. Rule applies, though plat be unrecorded. Nagel v. Dean [Minn.] 101 N. W. 954. Dedication of street by vendor is binding on those purchasing on instalment plan, though made after all amounts are paid but before deeds are executed. Tabor St., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 167.

55. Plat held to show reservation of fee. Lever v. Grant [Mich.] 102 N. W. 848; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Krueger [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 25. Where one who platted land reserved title to the fee of a strip along one avenue designated on the plat and afterward conveyed a portion of such strip to another, subsequent purchasers of lots abutting on the avenue acquired no easement over the portion so conveyed. Lever v. Grant [Mich.] 102 N. W. 848.

56. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Krueger [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 25.

57. Mitchell v. Einstein, 94 N. Y. S. 210.

58. Lieber v. People [Colo.] 81 P. 270.

59. See 3 C. L. 1615.

by statute and is not to be extended by construction beyond the limits which a reasonable interpretation of the statute establishes.[60] Towns are required only to provide wrought ways of reasonable width and smoothness,[61] and country roads need not be kept in a condition suitable for travel for their entire width,[62] but a liability arises from leaving an unguarded danger in such close proximity to the traveled and prepared track that passengers using such track are in danger of falling therein while exercising ordinary care.[63] When a municipality is empowered to control and keep its streets in order, it is charged with a positive duty to do so,[64] which duty is a primary[65] and continuing one,[66] as to all actually existing highways,[67] of which the city cannot relieve itself by any act of its own,[68] and a county is not required to keep in repair a street within the limits of a city or borough and abutting the county building.[69] Where, pursuant to an ordinance, a street railway company agrees to pay a certain sum for use of streets, and to indemnify a city from any loss or damage resulting from any act or omission of the company, and to defend at its own cost any proceeding against the city growing out of any such act or omission, the rights of the city against the company, on the happening of a contingency contemplated by the agreement, are limited to those given by the contract;[70] thus, the city cannot maintain trespass on the case against the company to recover the amount of a judg-

60. Temby v. Ishpeming [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 128, 103 N. W. 588. Under a statute rendering a town liable for injuries from a "dangerous embankment and defective railing," one cannot recover for injuries received in a cut in the road. Miner v. Hopkinton [N. H.] 60 A. 433. A commissioner of highways owes no duty to an adjoining owner to provide for drainage of surface water; hence no action lies against a town under Laws 1809, p. 1177, c. 568, for his failure to keep the sluice under highway free from rubbish; the statute refers only to defects interfering with travel. Winchell v. Town of Camillus, 95 N. Y. S. 688. Under Laws 1890, p. 1177, c. 568, an action will lie against a town for damage resulting from a defective highway only when same neglect of the highway commissioner is shown. Id. In New Yor towns have no duties to perform relative to highways, such duties being imposed by law on commissioner of highways. Id.

61. Hammacher v. New Berlin [Wis.] 102 N. W. 489; King v. Ft. Ann, 180 N. Y. 496, 73 N. E. 481. No liability arises from injuries received in an unimproved portion of the highway. It is a matter of delegated legislative capacity as to how much of a highway shall be improved. Ruppenthal v. St. Louis [Mo.] 88 S. W. 612. When the city has exercised its discretion and determined to devote less than the full located width of the street to travel, the border line should be so indicated as to be apparent to a person using the street. Birch v. Charleston Light, Heat & Power Co., 113 Ill. App. 229.

62. Hammacher v. New Berlin [Wis.] 102 N. W. 489.

63. Temby v. Ispheming [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. n. 114, 103 N. W. 588; Hammacher v. New Berlin [Wis.] 102 N. W. 489. Peg in the walk. Rea v. Sioux City [Iowa] 103 N. W. 949.

64. Duty to repair is commensurate with right of control. Hillyer v. Winsted, 77 Conn. 304, 59 A. 40; Gillard v. Chester [Pa.] 61 A. 929; City of Muncie v. Hey [Ind.] 74 N. E. 250. District of Columbia has exclusive control of the Washington streets and sidewalks and is charged with the duty of keeping them reasonably safe. Coughlin v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 251; Ward v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 524; Dotey v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 232.

65. Brown v. Towanda Borough, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 378.

66. City of Muncie v. Hey [Ind.] 74 N. E. 250.

67. Immaterial that title to some of the highway is not in the town. Paulsen v. Wilton [Conn.] 61 A. 61. A city is responsible for the condition of a highway which it has accepted and assumed control of. City of Newport News v. Scott's Adm'x, 103 Va. 794, 50 S. E. 266. Where a road is not a city street or highway and the city is under no obligation to repair it, the city is not liable for injuries resulting from its defective condition, notwithstanding a city official may have exercised some authority in respect thereto, unless it appeared that such action was by authority of the city. City of Chicago v. Hannon, 115 Ill. App. 183.

68. Coughlin v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 251; Torphy v. Fall River [Mass.] 74 N. E. 465; Hillyer v. Winsted, 77 Conn. 304, 59 A. 40; Lindstrom v. Pennsylvania Co. for Ins. on Lives & Granting Annuities [Pa.] 61 A. 940; City of Chicago v. McDonald, 111 Ill. App. 436; Miller v. Canton [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 96. In Montana a city may by ordinance lawfully impose on the occupants of premises the duty of keeping the sidewalk free from ice and snow. City of Helena v. Kent [Mont.] 80 P. 258. A city cannot escape liability to see that a walk is repaired by serving an insufficient notice on the abutting owners to make such repairs. Heath v. Manson [Cal.] 82 P. 331.

69. P. L. 1895, p. 336; P. L. 1834, p. 537. Bucher v. Northumberland County, 209 Pa. 618, 59 A. 69.

70, 71. City of Pawtucket v. Pawtucket Elec. Co. [R. I.] 61 A. 48.

ment against the city.[71] A municipality is not an insurer of the safety of travelers upon the highway,[72] and is not bound to anticipate extraordinary emergencies,[73] but is required to exercise ordinary or reasonable care and diligence[74] to keep its streets and sidewalks in a reasonably safe condition[75] for the entire width,[76] for ordi-

72. City of Vincennes v. Spees [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 277; City of Nokomis v. Farley, 113 Ill. App. 161; King v. Ft. Ann, 180 N. Y. 496, 73 N. E. 481; Parrish v. Huntington [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 416; City of New Castle v. Kurtz, 210 Pa. 183, 59 A. 989; Village of Wilmette v. Brachle, 110 Ill. App. 350.

73. But must use such means as are available at the time to keep the street safe. Coolidge v. New York, 99 App. Div. 175, 90 N. Y. S. 1078; Rhine v. Philadelphia, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 564; Ibbeken v. New York, 94 N. Y. S. 568.

74. Haxton v. Kansas City [Mo.] 88 S. W. 714; City of Chicago v. McDonald, 111 Ill. App. 436; Deland v. Cameron [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 597; City of Nakomis v. Farley, 113 Ill. App. 161; Village of Wilmette v. Brachle, 110 Ill. App. 356; Wilson v. Ulysses Tp. [Neb.] 101 N. W. 986. Leaving abandoned car tracks in street held to be negligence. Cutcher v. Detroit [Mich.] 102 N. W. 629; Morris v. Interurban St. R. Co., 100 App. Div. 295, 91 N. Y. S. 479; Hornee v. District of Columbia, 21 App. D. C. 284; Pumorlo v. Merrill [Wis.] 103 N. W. 464. A distinction is to be made between the care required on a county road and that of a populous city. Foley v. Ray [R. I.] 61 A. 50; City of Muncie v. Hey [Ind.] 74 N. E. 250; City of Rock Island v. Gingles [Ill.] 75 N. E. 468; City of Mattoon v. Faller [Ill.] 75 N. E. 387; Ward v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 524; Farrell v. Plymouth Borough, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 183; Ball v. Neosho [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 777. Such care involves due regard not only to the size and depth of the depression complained of, but also to its form, as affecting the peril to which it exposes persons lawfully using the highway. Sumner v. Northfield [Minn.] 104 N. W. 686; Gillard v. Chester [Pa.] 61 A. 929. County liable for injuries from leaving its wagon in the road for several weeks. Duncan v. Greenville County [S. C.] 50 S. E. 776. City negligent in leaving an uncovered opening in the street, overgrown with grass, for six or eight months. Board of Councilmen of Frankfort v. Chinn [Ky.] 89 S. W. 188. "Water box" projecting above sidewalk not negligence on part of the city. North v. New Britain [Conn.] 61 A. 68; Dougherty v. Philadelphia [Pa.] 60 A. 261. For the jury to determine whether a city was negligent in failing to inspect a banner pole after its erection. Durfield v. New York, 101 App. Div. 581, 92 N. Y. S. 204. For the jury to determine whether a city was negligent in permitting a stone step leading to private premises and projecting under the street to remain in the sidewalk. Fischer v. St. Louis [Mo.] 88 S. W. 82. City held negligent in allowing large quantities of mud to accumulate and freeze on a sidewalk running close to an embankment. Strange v. St. Joseph [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 2. The New York charter does not impose on the city the obligation to keep an unimproved street open for public travel from the instant the report of the opening was confirmed by the supreme court. Laws 1901, p. 406, c. 466, § 971. Parsons Bros. v. New York, 95 N. Y. S. 131. In Missouri it is the duty of a city and its officers to look for defects. Drake v. Kansas City [Mo.] 88 S. W. 689; Miller v. Canton [Mo. App.[87 S. W. 96.

75. City of Chicago v. McDonald, 111 Ill. App. 436; Miller v. Canton [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 96; City of Nokomis v. Farley, 113 Ill. App. 161; Hopkins v. Williamsport, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 498; City of Rock Island v. Gingles [Ill.] 75 N. E. 468; Wilson v. Ulysses Tp. [Neb.] 101 N. W. 986; O'Brien v. Derry [N. H.] 60 A. 843; Idlett v. Atlanta [Ga.] 51 S. E. 709. Water box in the sidewalk. Parrish v. Huntington [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 416; Wright v. Kansas City, 187 Mo. 678, 86 S. W. 452; City of Paseagoula v. Kirkwood [Miss.] 38 So. 547; St. Louis v. Kansas City, 110 Mo. App. 653, 85 S. W. 630; Haxton v. Kansas City [Mo.] 88 S. W. 714; Drake v. Kansas City [Mo.] 88 S. W. 689; McCabe v. Whitman [Mass.] 73 N. E. 535; City of Muncie v. Hey [Ind.] 74 N. E. 250; City of Vincennes v. Spees [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 277; Nocks v. Whiting, 126 Iowa, 405, 102 N. W. 109; Maus v. Mahoning Tp., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 624; McCarthy v. Dedham [Mass.] 74 N. E. 319; Village of Wilmette v. Brachle, 110 Ill. App. 356; Walker v. Philadelphia, 211 Pa. 33, 60 A. 318. Temporary bridge. Coolidge v. New York, 99 App. Div. 175, 90 N. Y. S. 1078; City of Mattoon v. Faller [Ill.] 75 N. E. 387; City of Gibson v. Murray [Ill.] 75 N. E. 319; O'Dwyer v. Northern Market Co., 24 App. D. C. 81; Brassington v. Mt. Carmel Borough, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 318; Torphy v. Fall River [Mass.] 74 N. E. 465; Coughlin v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 251; Ward v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 524; Dotey v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 232; Curry v. Luzerne Borough, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 514; Coffey v. Carthage, 186 Mo. 573, 85 S. W. 532. The duty of a municipality is to keep the streets free from all obstructions of every kind, there being no difference in principal between a dangerous obstruction resulting from a hole or excavation and an equally dangerous obstruction resulting from matter thereon which is liable to cause one to slip and be injured. O'Dwyer v. Northern Market Co., 24 App. D. C. 81. Wright v. Kansas City, 187 Mo. 678, 86 S. W. 452. That one of two adjoining flagstones in sidewalk is 2 1-2 or 3 inches lower than the other does not render the city liable for resulting personal injures. City of Chicago v. Norton, 116 Ill. App. 570. City not liable for injuries resulting from the maintenance of a billboard by a property owner on a space between the sidewalk and the building. Temly v. Ishpeming [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. n. 114, 103 N. W. 588. Circular hole 2 to 2 5-8 inches in diameter is a defect in a sidewalk. Upham v. Boston, 187 Mass. 220, 72 N. E. 946. Water plug in the packing legally within the limits of the sidewalk. Dotey v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 232. Steep slope from sidewalk to roadway at crossing. City of Muncie v. Spence, 33 Ind.

nary travel,[77] by day or night,[78] by those using reasonable care,[79] or any use to which the street may be subjected, not in itself improper and illegal;[80] but in Nebraska, townships organized under the township act are not "municipalities" liable by statute, nor is a county liable except under the statutory conditions.[81] Unless there be an unlawful obstruction in the street,[82] a city is under no obligation to maintain street lights.[83] A city must use greater care in looking after a street much traveled and in use by pedestrians than if the street be little used.[84] That a city by special license permits an act unlawful under the ordinance does not relieve the city from resulting injuries.[85] Because of its failure to exercise its governmental power to prohibit the riding of bicycles on sidewalks, a city is not liable to one injured by being run into by a bicycle ridden thereon.[86] A municipality cannot escape liability from an obligation arising ex delicto on the ground that its indebtedness has reached the constitutional limit.[87]

(§ 15) B. Notice of defect.[88]—It is a general rule that the liability of a municipality for damages occasioned by defective street or sidewalks arises only upon notice to the proper officials,[89] express[90] or implied from the existence of such de-

App. 599, 71 N. E. 907. Sloping cross grade. Kaiser v. St. Louis, 185 Mo. 366, 84 S. W. 19. Uncovered catch basin in the highway. Veach v. Champaign, 113 Ill. App. 151.

76. Duty to keep street in safe condition is not limited to the traveled portion. Thuis v. Vincennes [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 141. Sidewalk should be reasonably safe for entire width. Village of Wilmette v. Brachle, 110 Ill. App. 356. Including grass plot between constructed sidewalk and curb. Coffey v. Carthage, 186 Mo. 573, 85 S. W. 532. That a small portion of the surface of a public sidewalk extends on private property does not affect the city's obligation to maintain such portion, its responsibility covering the construction in its entirety. Deland v. Cameron [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 597. But in Illinois a city is not bound to maintain in a reasonably safe condition the full located width of a street. Birch v. Charleston Light, Heat & Power Co., 113 Ill. App. 229.

77. Miller v. Canton [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 96; Idlett v. Atlanta [Ga.] 51 S. E. 709; Parrish v. Huntington [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 416. A city owes no private duty of care to a laborer upon the highway between whom and it no contract of employment exists. O'Brien v. Derry [N. H.] 60 A. 843. Rev. Laws, c. 51, § 18, authorizing a recovery for injures resulting from defects in highways, is inapplicable where the person injured was at the time of injury on his own premises. Dickinson v. Boston [Mass.] 75 N. E. 68.

78. City of Pascagoula v. Kirkwood [Miss.] 38 So. 547; Miller v. Canton [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 96.

79. City of Vincennes v. Spees [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 277; City of Chicago v. McDonald, 111 Ill. App. 436; Johnson v. Highland [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1085. A city's duty is performed by keeping streets in reasonably safe condition for those who themselves exercise due care. City of Covington v. Lee [Ky.] 89 S. W. 493.

80. Runaway horse. Nocks v. Whiting, 126 Iowa, 405, 102 N. W. 109. Traction engine. Johnson v. Highland [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1085; Sumner v. Northfield [Minn.] 104 N. W. 686.

81. Wilson v. Ulysses Tp. [Neb.] 101 N. W. 986.

82. Stepping stone. Wolff v. District of Columbia, 198 U. S. 152, 49 Law Ed. 426.

83. Negligence cannot be imputed to a city for failure to light its streets, for that is a governmental function. City of Vincennes v. Spees [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 277. A city engaging in street lighting for the purpose of lessening its liability for defective streets is engaged in a private enterprise and liable for negligence in the management thereof. Dickinson v. Boston [Mass.] 75 N. E. 68.

84. Miller v. Canton [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 96.

85. Discharge of fireworks. Walker v. New York, 95 N. Y. S. 121.

86. Ordinance held to neither affirmatively permit or prohibit bicycle riding on sidewalks. Rogers v. Binghamton, 101 App. Div. 352, 92 N. Y. S. 179. In South Carolina a city is not liable for injuries to a pedestrian on a sidewalk run over by a bicycle, though there is no ordinance prohibiting the use of sidewalks by bicycle riders. Civ. Code 1902, § 2023. Bryant v. City Council of Orangeburg, 70 S. C. 137, 49 S. E. 229.

87. Conner v. Nevada [Mo.] 86 S. W. 256.

88. See 3 C. L. 1618.

89. Lindstrom v. Pennsylvania Co. for Ins. on Lifes and Granting Annuities [Pa.] 61 A. 940; Hopkins v. Williamsport, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 498; Drake v. Kansas City [Mo.] 88 S. W. 689; Ball v. Neosho [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 777.

90. Warning to abutting owners by street commissioner to remove ice from walk held to show knowledge by the city. Hofacre v. Monticello [Iowa] 103 N. W. 488; Small v. Kansas City, 110 Mo. App. 721, 85 S. W. 627; City of Newport News v. Scott's Adm'x, 103 Va. 794, 50 S. E. 266. Knowledge of a defect in a walk by the sidewalk inspector may be notice to the city. Small v. Kansas City, 185 Mo. 291, 84 S. W. 901. Notice to police officer, who by custom is agent of city, of defect in street is notice to city. Kittredge v. Cincinnati, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 6. In the absence of statute or ordinance in support thereof, a rule requiring policemen to note and when practicable remove defects in the streets, is irrelevant and immaterial to prove notice by the city of a defect known by its fect so long or of such a nature that its officers are presumed to have notice thereof,[91] and have had a reasonable time to make the repairs.[92] That an officer whose duty it was to report to the proper authorities all defects in sidewalks did not regard a particular defect as requiring such notice does not relieve the municipality.[93] Notice is not requisite where the construction is improper or unsafe,[94] and notice of the particular defect causing the injury is not essential.[95]

(§ 15) C. Sidewalks.[96]—If the portion intended for foot passengers becomes unsuitable for that purpose and the public makes constant use of another part of the street between the curb and the lot line, the portion thus used is a sidewalk within the usual meaning of the term.[97] Towns need not construct sidewalks upon country roads,[98] and a municipality is not required to build sidewalks on all of its streets,[99] but where it has constructed a walk, or assumed control of a walk built by private enterprise,[1] a liability arises from failure to use ordinary care [2] to keep it in a policeman. City of Cleveland v. Payne [Ohio] 74 N. E. 177. Five days actual notice to the trustee is requisite in Kansas, but actual knowledge is equivalent to the statutory actual notice. Erie Tp. v. Beamer [Kan.] 79 P. 1070. A charter provision that before an action may be maintained it must be shown that a written notice of the defective condition had been given to the common council is unconstitutional. MacMullen v. Middletown, 92 N. Y. S. 410.

91. Wright v. Kansas City, 187 Mo. 678, 86 S. W. 452; Miller v. Canton [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 96; Deland v. Cameron [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 597; Birch v. Charleston Light, Heat & Power Co., 113 Ill. App. 229; Campbell v. Boston [Mass.] 75 N. E. 96; City of Muncie v. Hey [Ind.] 74 N. E. 250; City of Ottawa v. Hayne, 214 Ill. 45, 73 N. E. 385; Miller v. New York, 93 N. Y. S. 227; Idlett v. Atlanta [Ga.] 51 S. E. 709; Ladrick v. Green Island, 92 N. Y. S. 622; Gillard v. Chester [Pa.] 61 A. 929; Small v. Kansas City, 185 Mo. 291, 84 S. W. 901; Ritschdorf v. St. Paul [Minn.] 104 N. W. 129; Walker v. Philadelphia, 211 Pa. 33, 60 A. 318. The law fixes no limit as to what is sufficient time for an obstruction or defect to exist in order to charge a muicipality with notice, and each case must be determined from its own facts. City of Ottawa v. Hayne, 114 Ill. App. 21. The period of time required to charge a municipality with notice of the existence of a defect in the street depends upon the location of the defect, whether in a densely populated part of the city, or upon a street infrequently used, and must, therefore, be determined from the circumstances of each particular case. Kittredge v. Cincinnati, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 646. Defect existing for two years. Hitt v. Kansas City, 110 Mo. App. 713, 85 S. W. 669. City presumed to have notice of car tracks left in street two and a half years after discontinuance of their use. Cutcher v. Detroit [Mich.] 102 N. W. 629. Negligent ignorance of a defect in a walk is equivalent to actual knowledge. Lorenz v. New Orleans [La.] 38 So. 566; City of Nokomis v. Farley, 113 Ill. App. 161. Notice will not be imputed to a city where the defect was such as to escape the observation of plaintiff who passed over it almost daily for 14 months. Byrne v. Philadelphia [Pa.] 61 A. 80. City presumed to have notice of a hole existing in a sidewalk for several months. City of Chicago v. Davies, 110 Ill. App. 427. Swinging gate. Dorner v. District of Columbia, 21 App. D. C. 284. Stones piled upon the highway insufficient length of time to charge defendant with notice. Hanney v. Wren, 93 N. Y. S. 827. Time insufficient to charge notice. Ibbeken v. New York, 94 N. Y. S. 568. For the jury to decide whether city should have known of defect. McCarthy v. Dedham [Mass.] 74 N. E. 319; Ladrick v. Green Island, 92 N. Y. S. 622; Allen v. West Bay City [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 70, 103 N. W. 514; Ritschdorf v. St. Paul [Minn.] 104 N. Y. 129; Nestle v. Flint [Mich.] 104 N. W. 406; City of Mattoon v. Faller [Ill.] 75 N. E. 387; Comerford v. Boston [Mass.] 73 N. E. 661; Campbell v. Boston [Mass.] 75 N. E. 96.

92. Drake v. Kansas City [Mo.] 88 S. W. 689; City of Mattoon v. Faller [Ill.] 75 N. E. 387; Wright v. Kansas City, 187 Mo. 678, 86 S. W. 452; Ball v. Neosho [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 777; Strange v. St. Joseph [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 2. Where a defect has existed for two years, it will be presumed that the city had sufficient time to repair. Hitt v. Kansas City, 110 Mo. App. 713, 85 S. W. 669. Six months held a reasonable time in which to repair. Knight v. Kansas City [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 1192.

93. Village of Upper Alton v Green, 112 Ill. App. 439.

94. Cover to coal hole. Drake v. Kansas City [Mo.] 88 S. W. 689.

95. Where a walk was generally defective, a city with knowledge thereof may be liable for injuries resulting therefrom, though it did not have notice of the particular defect causing injury. Heath v. Manson [Cal.] 82 P. 331.

96. See 3 C. L. 1619.

97. Rea v. Sioux City [Iowa] 103 N. W. 949.

98. Hammacher v. New Berlin [Wis.] 102 N. W. 489.

99. Hester v. Durham Traction Co., 138 N. C. 288, 50 S. E. 711.

1. McKnight v. Seattle [Wash.] 81 P. 998; Hillyer v. Winsted, 77 Conn. 304, 59 A. 40. Admissibility of evidence to show that city assumed control. Brown v. Towanda Borough, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 378. Where a city constructs a crossing of stepping stones or permits them to be so laid with its acquiescence and invites the public to use the same as a crossing, the city becomes responsible for the condition thereof. Haxton v.

reasonably safe condition.[3] Regulation of the width of sidewalks is within the discretion of the town authorities.[4] An abutting owner who voluntarily constructs a walk from his premises to the street, a distance of a few feet, and invites the public to use it as a thoroughfare, must use ordinary care to keep the walk in proper condition.[5]

(15) D. Barriers, railings, and signals.[6]—A city must use ordinary or reasonable prudence to protect persons lawfully using the street and exercising reasonable care,[8] from falling into dangerous places,[9] and this liability exists, whether the city caused the defect or whether it was caused by a third person, provided the city had notice thereof either actual or constructive.[10] Where a city undertakes to alter, repair or improve its streets, it must use reasonable precautions to guard the public from injury, and if necessary may temporarily close the street to travel;[11] but a city is not liable for personal injuries caused by the neglect of a contractor employed by the county to place proper barriers about a walk in the process of construction.[12] Where a public street is in a dangerous condition, a failure to provide barricades therefor does not confer a right of action in favor of one who voluntarily goes into the danger, knowing its exact character and condition.[13] To relieve itself of statutory liability, a city must give proper notice that a public way is closed to travel,[14] and from a removal of the barriers, the public may infer that it is at liberty to enter

Kansas City [Mo.] 88 S. W. 714. A city is not liable for injuries received on a street sidewalk constructed without the consent or authority of a city and the condition of which was such as to plainly indicate that the sidewalk portion of the street had not been improved. Ruppenthal v. St. Louis [Mo.] 88 S. W. 612. Mere use by the public as for a footpath of a portion of a street that has never been thrown open to public use, cannot cast a responsibility upon a city. Id.

2. Bartley v. New York, 102 App. Div. 23, 92 N. Y. S. 82. Negligence of the city a question for the jury. Olin v. Bradford, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 7. Duty to keep in a reasonably safe condition extends to a sidewalk which a municipality permits an abutting market house to use for market purposes and in such case more than usual care should be exercised. O'Dwyer v. Northern Market Co., 24 App. D. C. 81. The construction of an approach from a street to a sidewalk at a slope of one foot in seven is not negligence per se. Lush v. Parkersburg [Iowa] 104 N. W. 336. Nor is the laying of plank lengthwise instead of crosswise. Id. Where evidence showed injury caused by flagstone in walk one end of which was raised sufficiently to allow plaintiff's foot to go under it, that the condition had existed a month, that there were no guards or lights, and that one prior accident had occurred, the question of the city's negligence was for the jury. Dickerman v. Weeks, 95 N. Y. S. 714. Such defect cannot be held as a matter of law so slight as to relieve the city of responsibility for its continuance. Id.

3. Miller v. Canton [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 96.

4. Hester v. Durham Traction Co., 138 N. C. 288, 50 S. E. 711.

5. Marsh v. Minneapolis Brewing Co., 92 Minn. 182, 99 N. W. 630.

6. See 3 C. L. 1620.

7. Curry v. Luzerne Borough, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 514; City of Vincennes v. Spees [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 277; Seeton v. Dunbarton [N. H.] 59 A. 944; Earl v. Cedar Rapids, 126 Iowa, 361, 102 N. W. 140. In the absence of actual notice, a city is not liable for the removal of an efficient danger signal shown to have been in place 153 minutes before the accident. McFeeters v. New York, 102 App. Div. 32, 92 N. Y. S. 79; Jones v. Boston [Mass.] 74 N. E. 295. Danger signal not necessary in day time for plainly visible excavation. City of Rock Island v. Gingles [Ill.] 75 N. E. 468. In addition to an electric light near a dangerous excavation in a street, there should be danger signals or barriers. City of La Salle v. Evans, 111 Ill. App. 69.

8. City not bound to anticipate extraordinary emergencies. Rhine v. Philadelphia, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 564; Earl v. Cedar Rapids, 126 Iowa, 361, 102 N. W. 140. Approach of a man on a bicycle not an extraordinary emergency. Maus v. Mahoning Tp., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 624. City held to have performed its duty in protecting all the usual and ordinary approaches to the place where the walk was torn up. City of Chicago v. McKenna, 114 Ill. App. 270.

9. Temly v. Ishpeming [Mich.] 103 N. W. 588; Hammacher v. New Berlin [Wis.] 102 N. W. 489; Seeton v. Dunbarton [N. H.] 59 A. 944; Birch v. Charleston Light, Heat & Power Co., 113 Ill. App. 229.

10. City of Vincennes v. Spees [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 277.

11. Peterson v. Seattle [Wash.] 82 P. 141.

12. Wright v. Muskegon [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 122, 103 N. W. 558.

13. Village of Lockport v. Licht, 113 Ill. App. 613.

14. Jones v. Boston [Mass.] 74 N. E. 295; Torphy v. Fall River [Mass.] 74 N. E. 465. In Arkansas a city is not liable for injuries resulting from a failure of its servants to display a danger signal at night where a street was barricaded. Collier v. Ft. Smith [Ark.] 84 S. W. 480.

upon the street.[15] Signal lights must be sufficient to warn persons using the street of the existence of the obstruction;[16] but having provided them, the city will not unless it had notice, be liable for the consequences of their removal;[17] and where the law requires barriers, they must be sufficient to withstand any pressure to be reasonably anticipated.[18]

(§ 15) E. Snow and ice.[19]—In general a municipality is not liable for injuries arising from ice or snow on its walks or highway by reason of natural causes,[20] and not the proximate cause of injury,[21] but where by reason of travel or the action of the elements, it becomes worn or rounded into ridges uneven and irregular, due care on the part of the city may demand its removal;[22] or where ice is produced by artificial causes, and becomes dangerous to pedestrians, a city is liable for injuries resulting from a failure to remove the ice within a reasonable time after notice express or constructive;[23] and a liability may follow, though another irresponsible condition concur with the city's fault.[24] The diligence required in the removing

15. Torphy v. Fall River [Mass.] 74 N. E. 465.

16. Sufficiency of light for the jury to determine. Godfrey v. New York, 93 N. Y. S. 899; Jones v. Boston [Mass.] 74 N. E. 295. Agents of a city placed a barricade across a public street, which the city was repairing, and allowed the obstruction to remain over night without warning to the public by danger signal or otherwise. By reason of such obstruction and the failure to display a danger signal, the plaintiff was thrown from his horse and injured. Held, that the city was not liable. Collier v. Ft. Smith [Ark.] 84 S. W. 480.

Note: This decision is sustained by the courts of several states, which hold that the duty of a municipal corporation to keep its streets in repair and free from obstructions is of a governmental and public nature and that, in the absence of express statute, the corporation is not liable to an individual who suffers injury by reason of a negligent act or omission as to such duty. Arnold v. San Joss, 81 Cal. 618; Hewison v. New Haven, 37 Conn. 475, 9 Am. Rep. 342; Mitchell v. Rockland, 52 Me. 118; Detroit v. Blackely, 21 Mich. 84; Baxter v. Winooski Turnpike Co., 22 Vt. 114, 52 Am. Dec. 84. The weight of authority, however, is, that by voluntarily accepting a special charter or by organizing under a general law, such charter or law giving the municipal corporation power to control the streets, the corporation impliedly contracts with the state to faithfully perform all the duties connected therewith; and that this contract enures to the benefit of every individual who is interested in its performance. Williams, Municipal Liability for Tort, § 71; Barnes v. District of Columbia, 91 U. S. 540, 23 Law Ed. 440; King v. Cleveland, 28 F. 835; City of Aurora v. Rockabrand, 140 Ill. 399; Senhenn v. Evansville, 140 Ind. 675; Stafford v. City Oskaloosa, 64 Iowa, 251; West Kentucky Tel. Co. v. Pharis, 25 Ky. L. R. 1838, 78 S. W. 917; Pettengill v. Yonkers, 116 N. Y. 558; Van Vranken v. Clifton Springs, 86 Hun. [N. Y.] 67; Arthur v. Charleston, 51 W. Va. 132; Weightman v. Corporation of Washington, 1 Black [U. S.] 39, 17 Law. Ed. 521.—3 Mich. L. R. 490.

17. Where lantern was placed over projecting manhole in street which was being regraded, and notice of the removal of the lantern was not shown, the city was not liable for injuries resulting from a collision of a vehicle with such projection. Gedroice v. New York, 95 N. Y. S. 645.

18. The sufficiency of a railing or barrier is ordinarily a question of fact for the jury. Koontz v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 59.

19. See 3 C. L. 1620.

20. Warn v. Flint [Mich.] 104 N. W. 37; Templin v. Boone [Iowa] 102 N. W. 789; McCabe v. Whitman [Mass.] 73 N. E. 535. A city is not liable for injuries resulting from a mere slippery condition of the walk. City of Chicago v. McDonald, 111 Ill. App. 436; Garland v. Wilkes-Barre [Pa.] 61 A. 820. Pub. St. 1891, c. 76, § 2, making a town liable for damages happening from snow incumbering highways, was expressly repealed by Laws 1893, p. 49, c. 59, § 5. Miner v. Kopkinton [N. H.] 60 A. 433. The failure of a city to keep its sidewalks clear of ice and snow does not always render it liable to persons who may fall by reason thereof. City of Chicago v. McDonald, 111 Ill. App. 436.

21. Watters v. Waterloo, 126 Iowa, 199, 101 N. W. 871.

22. Templin v. Boone [Iowa] 102 N. W. 789. Peg in walk, surrounded by ice. Rea v. Sioux City [Iowa] 103 N. W. 949. Evidence held sufficient to justify submission to the jury. City of Omaha v. Lewis [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1041; Warn v. Flint [Mich.] 104 N. W. 37. City not presumed to have notice of ice discovered by only one in a thousand persons. Garland v. Wilkes-Barre [Pa.] 61 A. 820.

23. Hofacre v. Monticello [Iowa] 103 N. W. 488; City of Muncie v. Hey [Ind.] 74 N. E. 250. A municipality is liable for injury or loss resulting from an accumulation of ice in the street, where the nuisance thus created has existed for ten days and was caused by water escaping from a water pipe belonging to the city. City of Cincinnati v. Grebner, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 11. A municipality is liable for injuries resulting from slipping upon a bed of ice on a sidewalk caused by a flow of water in freezing weather, provided the city had notice thereof, actual or constructive. District of Columbia v. Frazer, 21 App. D. C. 154.

24. Templin v. Boone [Iowa] 102 N. W. 789.

of ice is the same, no matter how often the need of removal.[25] In general the duty of a municipality to remove ice and snow from the sidewalks cannot be shifted to individual citizens,[26] though in some states ordinances may require the abutting owner to remove ice and snow;[27] but an owner out of possession, whose sidewalks are in good repair, is not required to watch the walks to prevent the formation of ice thereon so as to make him liable for an injury caused by the sudden accumulation of ice.[28]

(§ 15) F. Defects created or permitted by abutting owners and others. Joint and several liability.[29]—No obligation to repair streets or sidewalks rests upon the lot owners at common law.[30] A city is liable for obstructions caused by others only when the city has had actual or constructive notice thereof.[31] That a defect was created in the highway without legislative authority does not relieve the town from liability for injuries resulting therefrom, where the town failed to repair within a reasonable time after notice.[32] If a city knowingly or through the culpable negligence of its officers employs incompetent persons, it is liable for the special damages occasioned thereby.[33] Where a municipal corporation gives a permit to obstruct a street, an absolute duty is imposed upon the corporation to see that the obstruction protects and guards those using the street.[34] A city is not liable for injuries resulting from the acts of an independent contractor except where the work necessarily constitutes an obstruction or defect in the street of such a nature as to render it unsafe or dangerous for the purpose of public travel unless properly guarded,[35] or

25. Hofacre v. Monticello [Iowa] 103 N. W. 488.

26. Coughlin v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 251. In Illinois a city cannot compel the owner or occupant of property to remove the snow from in front of such property. City of Chicago v. McDonald, 111 Ill. App. 436.

27. City of New Castle v. Kurtz, 210 Pa. 183, 59 A. 989. In Montana a city may by ordinance lawfully impose on the occupants of premises the duty of keeping the sidewalk free from ice and snow. City of Helena v. Kent [Mont.] 80 P. 258.

28. City of New Castle v. Kurtz, 210 Pa. 183, 59 A. 989.

29. See 3 C. L. 1621.

30. Krebs v. Heitmann, 93 N. Y. S. 542.

31. O'Dwyer v. Northern Market Co., 24 App. D. C. 81. A city is not liable for injuries resulting from an unlawful excavation in an alley made without knowledge of the city and the city not being negligent therein. Covington Saw Mill & Mfg. Co. v. Drexilius [Ky.] 87 S. W. 266. No liability rests upon a city for injuries from an excavation in a street made under charter rights by a railroad contractor who had not abandoned the work. Long v. Philadelphia [Pa.] 61 A. 810. The negligence of an abutting owner does not relieve a city of the duty to keep its sidewalks in repair. Campbell v. Boston [Mass.] 75 N. E. 96.

32. Foley v. Ray [R. I.] 61 A. 50.

33. City of Indianapolis v. Cauley [Ind.] 73 N. E. 691.

34. Godfrey v. New York, 93 N. Y. S. 899. A city authorized an excavation under a public sidewalk, and the construction of a temporary bridge over the opening. Under the weight of a crowd, the bridge gave way. Held, in an action for the death of a person injured thereby, that there is no evidence to support a verdict against the city, but that it is a question for the jury whether the contractors who built the bridge were negligent in its construction. Coolidge v. New York, 99 App. Div. 175, 90 N. C. S. 1078.

Note: A city is under a duty to keep its streets in reasonably safe condition. While not an insurer, it must use due care, and this duty of care cannot be delegated. Village of Jefferson v. Chapman, 127 Ill. 438. Hence the city is liable for injuries due to the dangerous condition of highways obstructed by city works, though the danger is caused by the negligence of independent contractors. Storrs v. Utica, 17 N. Y. 104; City Council v. Cone, 91 Ga. 714. It is not liable for their negligence when it does not affect the condition of the way. Herrington v. Lansingburgh, 110 N. Y. 145. This duty being the basis of liability, the same reasoning applies where work is done in a street, for private persons under the city's license. Hayes v. West Bay City, 91 Mich. 418. In the principal case, since the city had notice that a dangerous opening had been made, a finding that the opening was negligently protected, no matter who was charged with the immediate duty of making the bridge safe, seems as conclusive against the city as against the contractor.—18 Harv. L. R. 470.

35. La Groue v. New Orleans [La.] 38 So. 160; Chicago Bridge & Iron Co. v. La Mantia, 112 Ill. App. 43. A city is liable for damages inflicted by its independent contractor when the work is performed in a manner inherently dangerous or when the work is done pursuant to a special franchise or charter power. Dynamite used in tunnel construction. City of Chicago v. Murdoch, 113 Ill. App. 656. A city is jointly liable with a contractor for any injury resulting to a traveler on the street from the

where the municipal authorities have the right and power to interfere so as to prevent what is being negligently done.[36] That at the time of accident a city contractor was under obligations to keep the street in repair is no defense in an action against the city for personal injuries.[37] An abutting owner is liable for any negligent act creating a dangerous defect or obstruction in a street or highway,[38] or a way which to his knowledge the public is rightfully accustomed to use;[39] but not for damages arising from unknown ordinary want of repair[40] arising after the lease of the property,[41] for then the tenant in general becomes responsible;[42] but the abutting owner is not liable for the negligence of an independent contractor.[43] Highways are for the convenience of the public; and persons using them for other purposes must use a reasonable care proportionate to the danger to travelers;[44] and where such use was in pursuance of municipal permission, no liability arises from injuries accidentally resulting therefrom;[45] but the user is not relieved from the exercise of care commensurate with the dangers apparent and to be presumed.[46] One who is injured by the negligence of two or more persons, he himself being free from negligence, may maintain an action against them jointly or severally,[47] and when such action is brought, a defendant cannot successfully defend on the ground that the negligence of another contributed to the injury.[48] To entitle a city to recover from the abutting owner a judgment rendered against the city for injuries from a defective walk, notice must have been given such owner of the pendency of the suit against the city.[49] The owner of a city lot occupied by a tenant is not liable to a city upon a verdict recovered against it for personal injuries by a fall on the ice in front of the failure of the contractor to properly guard an obstruction left in the street by him. Godfrey v. New York, 93 N. Y. S. 899. The construction of a sidewalk being under a contract with county supervisors, and a city having no supervision or control over the work, such city was not liable for injuries resulting from negligence of the contractor in course of construction. Wright v. Muskegon [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 122, 103 N. W. 558.

36. Koontz v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 59.

37. Harvey v. Chester [Pa.] 61 A. 118.

38. Krebs v. Heitmann, 93 N. Y. S. 542; Hart v. McKenna, 94 N. Y. S. 216. A cellar door which is a part of the sidewalk must be maintained in a reasonably safe condition. Carson v. Mackin, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 50. Cellar door and its casing projecting above level of sidewalk in which it was set. Perrigo v. St. Louis, 185 Mo. 274, 84 S. W. 30. In action against the abutting owner for injuries or sustained from slipping on the icy sidewalk, evidence held insufficient to prove that icy condition was caused by water artificially conducted upon the walk, and not by water flowing there naturally or by melted snow on the walk. Hence plaintiff could not recover. Greenlaw v. Milliken [Me.] 62 A. 145.

39. Rooney v. Woolworth [Conn.] 61 A. 366 One who knowingly leaves his property open impliedly licenses its use by the public and assumes an obligation to keep it in reasonably safe condition Lawson v. Shreveport Waterworks Co., 111 La. 73, 35 So. 390.

40. Lindstrom v. Pennsylvania Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 940.

41. Lindstrom v. Pennsylvania Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 940. Though the lessee covenants to keep in repair, the owner of a building is liable to a traveler injured by the falling of an eavestrough so defective at the time of the lease as to be a nuisance. Keeler v. Lederer Realty Corp., 26 R. I. 524, 59 A. 855.

42. Lindstrom v. Pennsylvania Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 940. Negligent act of the tenant in allowing ice to accumulate on a sidewalk contrary to a covenant in the lease. Wixon v. Bruce, 187 Mass. 232, 72 N. E. 978.

43. Massey v. Oates [Ala.] 39 So. 142.

44. Coolidge v. New York, 99 App. Div. 175, 90 N. Y. S. 1078; Godfrey v. New York, 93 N. Y. S. 899. One using a sidewalk for business purposes must keep the walk reasonably safe for persons passing thereon while in the exercise of ordinary care. Garibaldi v. O'Connor, 112 Ill. App. 53. Unguarded excavation in the street. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. James [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 536. Unauthorized construction of a blind ditch in an alley. Covington Saw Mill & Mfg. Co. v. Drexilius [Ky.] 87 S. W. 266. Defendant may call expert and other witnesses to show that a temporary passageway was erected with reasonable regard to the rights of the public. McDonald v. Holbrook, C. & D. Contracting Co., 93 N. Y. S. 920. An abutting owner is not under ordinary circumstances charged with the duty to render building materials in the street safe for persons who attempt to use it for their own purposes. Friedman v. Snare & Triest Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 401.

45. White v. Roydhouse, 211 Pa. 13, 60 A. 316.

46. Durfield v. New York, 101 App. Div. 581, 92 N. Y. S 204.

47, 48. Demarest v. Forty-Second St., etc., R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 663.

49. Chester v. Schaffer, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 162.

premises, where the sidewalk was in good repair and the owner had no notice of its condition, of which the city had actual notice.[50] Where negligence is charged against the District of Columbia, a recovery will be allowed only where there is a plain and obvious neglect of duty on the part of the municipal agents.[51]

(§ 15) G. Persons entitled to protection.[52]—It will be presumed that all persons have a right to the reasonable use of the public highway.[53] One using a way in the exercise of her lawful right is entitled to the protection regardless of whether she is a licensee,[54] though a recent case holds against the majority that a child playing about building materials in a street is a trespasser.[55] A special policeman duly commissioned but in the pay of private persons for the sole purpose of guarding their property is entitled to protection as a traveler.[56] The use of a sidewalk by the owner of a lot for the purpose of communication with the street is equally legitimate and equally an ordinary use, as that of passing longitudinally along it.[57] When one reaches the street or what from the nature of the construction appears to be part of the street, he is entitled to the protecting care of the city.[58]

(§ 15) H. Remote and proximate cause of injury.[59]—The principle of proximate cause applies as well to injuries from defective highways as to other negligence cases,[60] and upon conflicting evidence the cause of an injury alleged to have resulted from a fall upon a defective sidewalk is for the jury.[61] To recover from a city, under the Massachusetts statute, the city's negligence must have been the sole culpable cause of injury.[62]

50. City of New Castle v. Kurtz, 210 Pa. 183, 59 A. 989.

51. Smith v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 370.

52. See 3 C. L. 1622.

53. Yates v. Big Sandy R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 108.

54. Rooney v. Woolworth [Conn.] 61 A. 366.

55. Plaintiff's infant child, between four and five years of age, was injured while playing on some iron girders piled on the street by the defendants in front of a factory which they were engaged in repairing. The girders were piled in a negligent manner. Held, that the defendants owed no duty to the child who was a mere trespasser. Friedman v. Snare & Triest Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 401.

Note: Two judges dissented and the decided weight of authority seems to be against the holding of the majority. In order to arrive at its conclusion, the court found it necessary to repudiate Lynch v. Nurdin, 1 Q. B. (Ad. & El. N. C.) 29, 41 E. C. L. 422, the leading English case in point. The Massachusetts court and the New Jersey court, in the present case, are the only tribunals in this country which have not confirmed Lynch v. Nurdin. Beach, Con. Neg. § 141; Edgington v. Burlington, etc., R. Co., 116 Iowa, 410. The case of Hughes v. Macfie, 2 H. & C. 744, 33 L. J. Exch. 177, much relied upon by the court is not in point, the opinion of Pollock (C. B.) being based on the contributory negligence of the plaintiff. In the principal case, the doctrine of contributory negligence is not invoked. Mangan v. Atterton, L. R. 1 Exch. 259, 4 H. & C. 388, 35 L. J. Exch. 161, which supports the present case, was virtually overruled by Clark v. Chambers, 3 Q. B. Div. 327. "Nothing worse than this (Mangan v. Atterton) as a specimen of judicial reasoning can be found in the reports." Beach, Con. Neg. § 139. The doctrine of the turntable cases would seem to be applicable: Where a child of tender years is injured, while playing on a turntable, through the negligence of the owners, by the great weight of authority the company is liable, even though the child was a trespasser. Sioux City, etc., R. Co. v. Stout, 17 Wall. [U. S.] 657, 21 Law. Ed. 745; Edgington v. Burlington, etc., R. Co. (above). See, also, 29 Am. & Eng. Enc. of Law [2d Ed.] p. 32, for other cases. An abutting owner placing materials upon the public highway in front of his premises is bound to exercise reasonable care to prevent injury therefrom to children of tender years. Rachmel v. Clark, 205 Pa. 314, 54 A. 1027; Powers v. Harlow, 53 Mich. 507, 19 N. W. 257, 51 Am. Rep. 154; Birge v. Gardiner, 19 Conn. 507, 50 Am. Dec. 261; Price v. Water Co., 58 Kan. 551, 50 P. 450, 62 Am. St. Rep. 625; Bramson's Adm'r v. Lobert, 81 Ky. 638, 50 Am. Rep. 193.—From 4 Mich. L. R. 78.

56. Klopfer v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 41.

57. Schindler v. Schroth, 146 Cal. 433, 80 P. 624.

58. Open cellar way extending a foot into the sidewalk. Earl v. Cedar Rapids, 126 Iowa, 361, 102 N. W. 140.

59. See 3 C. L. 1623.

60. Vander Velde v. Leroy [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 183, 103 N. W. 812; Watters v. Waterloo, 126 Iowa, 199, 101 N. W. 871; Rhine v. Philadelphia, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 564; Marsh v. Giles, 211 Pa. 17, 60 A. 315; Menzies v. Interstate Pav. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 492; Curry v. Luzerne Borough, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 514; Hopkins v. Williamsport, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 498.

61. City of Chicago v. Bush, 111 Ill. App. 638.

62. Block v. Worcester, 186 Mass. 526, 72 N. E. 77.

(§ 15) I. Contributory negligence of person injured.[63]—As in negligence cases generally, the negligence of the plaintiff contributing to the injury will bar recovery,[64] except as to infants of tender years,[65] the question being on a conflict of the evidence one of fact for the jury,[66] but for the court if the evidence be undisputed.[67] The existence of a walk is an invitation to passers-by to use it,[68] and in the absence of knowledge or warning to the contrary, one may assume that a walk or street is safe or reasonably so,[69] and need not be on the lookout for hidden dangers;[70] they

63. See 3 C. L. 1623.

64. Bussell v. Ft. Dodge, 126 Iowa, 308, 101 N. W. 1126; City of Beatrice v. Forbes [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1069; Morris v. Interurban St. R. Co., 100 App. Div. 295, 91 N. Y. S. 479. Mere carelessness does not prevent recovery, unless it be negligence. Lynch v. Waldwick, 123 Wis. 351, 101 N. W. 925; Bartley v. New York, 102 App. Div. 23, 92 N. Y. S. 82.

65. Parrish v. Huntington [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 416. Contributory negligence held not to be imputable of child of nine years, though having knowledge of defect in the walk. Lorenz v. New Orleans [La.] 38 So. 566.

66. Oehmler v. Pittsburg R. Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 617; Keyes v. Second Baptist Church, 99 Me. 308, 59 A. 446; Lynch v. Waldwick, 123 Wis. 351, 101 N. W. 925; Earl v. Cedar Rapids, 126 Iowa, 361, 102 N. W. 140; Coffey v. Carthage, 186 Mo. 573, 85 S. W. 532; Hitt v. Kansas City, 110 Mo. App. 713, 85 S. W. 669; Warn v. Flint [Mich.] 104 N. W. 37; Haxton v. Kansas City [Mo.] 88 S. W. 714; Deland v. Cameron [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 597; Vander Velde v. Leroy [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 183, 103 N. W. 812; City of Lexington v. Kreitz [Neb.] 103 N. W. 444; Torphy v. Fall River [Mass.] 74 N. E. 465; Bussell v. Ft. Dodge, 126 Iowa, 308, 101 N. W. 1126; Templin v. Boone [Iowa] 102 N. W. 789; Godfrey v. New York, 93 N. Y. S. 899; Shane v. National Biscuit Co., 102 App. Div. 188, 92 N. Y. S. 637; Dougherty v. Philadelphia [Pa.] 60 A. 261; Block v. Worcester, 186 Mass. 526, 72 N. E. 77; Considine v. Dubuque, 126 Iowa, 283, 102 N. W. 102; Thuis v. Vincennes [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 141; Nichols v. New Rochelle, 93 N. Y. S. 796; Campbell v. Boston [Mass.] 75 N. E. 96; Hensley v. Davidson Bros. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 975; Ward v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 524; Lemman v. Spokane [Wash.] 80 P. 280; Morse v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 102 App. Div. 495, 92 N. Y. S. 657; Town of Winamac v. Stout [Ind.] 75 N. E. 158; District of Columbia v. Dietrich, 23 App. D. C. 577; City of Pontiac v. Grandy, 108 Ill. App. 466; Chicago Union Traction Co. v. O'Donnell, 211 Ill. 349, 71 N. E. 1015; Olin v. Bradford, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 7; Farrell v. Plymouth Borough, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 183. Where one goes upon a public stairway in the nighttime, which he knows to be out of repair, but is lighted by an electric lamp, and which he could not avoid without going three squares out of his way over partially improved streets, and when half way up, the lamp goes out, and while groping in the darkness he is injured, there is in his suit against the municipality for damages a question of fact for the jury as to contributory negligence, and to take the case from the jury is error. Puccini v. Cincinnati, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 362. Contributory negligence for jury where plaintiff caught foot in raised flagstone, on a dark street, opposite a building in course of construction. Dickerman v. Weeks, 95 N. Y. S. 714.

67. Ward v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 524; Powell v. New Omaha Thomson-Houston Elec. Light Co. [Neb.] 104 N. W. 162; Walker v. Philadelphia, 211 Pa. 33, 60 A. 318; Easton v. Philadelphia, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 517; Conner v. Nevada [Mo.] 86 S. W. 256; Harvey v. Malden [Mass.] 74 N. E. 327. Mother not guilty of contributory negligence in death of child due to defective walk. City of Newport News v. Scott's Adm'x, 103 Va. 794, 50 S. E. 266. Driver's negligence, if any, held not imputable to a passenger in the same vehicle. Bevis v. Vanceburg Tel. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 126. A presumption of negligence does not arise under a petition which alleges that the plaintiff was injured while walking on a sidewalk which was out of repair. Peat v. Norwalk, 3 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 614.

68. City of Chicago v. Harris, 113 Ill. App. 633.

69. Bartley v. New York, 102 App. Div. 23, 92 N. Y. S. 82; Kaiser v. Hahn Bros., 126 Iowa, 561, 102 N. W. 504; Tiborsky v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 549; Coffey v. Carthage, 186 Mo. 573, 85 S. W. 532; Conner v. Nevada [Mo.] 86 S. W. 256; Campbell v. Boston [Mass.] 75 N. E. 96; Hitt v. Kansas City, 110 Mo. App. 713, 85 S. W. 669; Nichols v. New Rochelle, 93 N. Y. S. 796; Ward v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 524; Gillard v. Chester [Pa.] 61 A. 929; Templin v. Boone [Iowa] 102 N. W. 789; City of Pascagoula v. Kirkwood [Miss.] 38 So. 547; Considine v. Dubuque, 126 Iowa, 283, 102 N. W. 102; Godfrey v. New York, 93 N. Y. S. 899; Haxton v. Kansas City [Mo.] 88 S. W. 714; Birch v. Charleston Light, Heat & Power Co., 113 Ill. App. 229; Village of Wilmette v. Brachle, 110 Ill. App. 356; Lemman v. Spokane [Wash.] 80 P. 280. Temporary bridge. Coolidge v. New York, 99 App. Div. 175, 90 N. Y. S. 1078. Not negligence for one upon a walk composed of three longitudinal planks to step on one of the outer planks or to step on a board covering a hole, not knowing it to be such. Pecor v. Oconto [Wis.] 104 N. W. 88.

70. Ward v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 524; Campbell v. Boston [Mass.] 75 N. E. 96; City of Beatrice v. Forbes [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1069; Earl v. Cedar Rapids, 126 Iowa, 361, 102 N. W. 140; Drake v. Kansas City [Mo.] 88 S. W. 689. Pedestrian need not keep a constant watch of the sidewalk. Village of Upper Alton v. Green, 112 Ill. App. 439. The exercise of due care and caution does not require one walking at night on an ordinary city sidewalk to examine every step of the way, where there is no reason to suppose the walk is not in sound condition. City of Chicago v. Harris, 113 Ill. App. 633.

may rightfully cross the traveled roadway of a street at any point.[71] Knowledge of a defect may constitute contributory negligence,[72] and is presumptive evidence thereof;[73] but it is not negligence per se,[74] and a traveler is not precluded from following a way he knows to be defective;[75] or an alley instead of a street,[76] where he is justified in believing and does believe that by ordinary care he may pass in safety,[77] and he in fact does use such care.[78] Travelers must use reasonable[79] or ordinary care,[80] in view of all circumstances,[81] which is generally a question for the jury.[82]

71. Gillard v. Chester [Pa.] 61 A. 929.

72. Perrigo v. St. Louis, 185 Mo. 274, 84 S. W. 30; Campbell v. Boston [Mass.] 75 N. E. 96; City of Muncie v. Hey [Ind.] 74 N. E. 250; City of Mattoon v. Faller [Ill.] 75 N. E. 387; Missouri & K. Tel. Co. v. Vandervort [Kan.] 79 P. 1068; Village of Wilmette v. Brachle, 110 Ill. App. 356. Evidence held not to justify a finding that plaintiff knew of the defect. Rainey v. Lawrence [Kan.] 79 P. 116.

73. Village of Lockport v Licht, 113 Ill. App. 613.

74. Lorenz v. New Orleans [La] 38 So. 566; City of Pascagoula v. Kirkwood [Miss.] 38 So. 547; Missouri & K. Tel. Co. v. Vandervoort [Kan.] 79 P. 1068; Erie Tp. v. Beamer [Kan.] 79 P. 1070; City of Beatrice v. Forbes [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1069; Considine v. Dubuque, 126 Iowa, 283, 102 N. W. 102; Templin v. Boone [Iowa] 102 N. W. 789; Rea v. Sioux City [Iowa] 103 N. W. 949; Arnold v. Waterloo [Iowa] 104 N. W. 442; City of Mattoon v. Faller [Ill.] 75 N. E. 387; City of Muncie v. Hey [Ind.] 74 N. E. 250; Bradley v. Spickardsville, 90 Mo. App. 416; City of Muncie v. Spence, 33 Ind. App. 599, 71 N. E. 907. A pedestrian's observance of a defect in a walk some days before the accident does not of itself raise a presumption of contributory negligence. Deland v. Cameron [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 597. Previous knowledge of uncovered catchbasin in the highway held not negligence per se, where night was dark and plaintiff was attempting to board a street car. Veach v. Champaign, 113 Ill. App. 151.

75. Missouri & K. Tel. Co. v. Vandervort [Kan.] 79 P. 1068; Thuis v. Vincennes [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 141; Bradley v. Spickardsville, 90 Mo. App. 416. A traveler is not required to go into the street when there is danger from passing cars and vehicles, to avoid passing over a defective walk. City of Pascagoula v. Kirkwood [Miss.] 38 So. 547.

76. The fact that a pedestrian might have used a safe street instead of a defectively paved alley does not excuse a city, since it is under the duty of keeping all streets and alleys used by the public in a reasonably safe condition. City of Covington v. Lee [Ky.] 89 S. W. 493.

77. Templin v. Boone [Iowa] 102 N. W. 789; Tuttle v. Clear Lake [Iowa] 102 N. W. 136; City of Beatrice v. Forbes [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1069; Arnold v. Waterloo [Iowa] 104 N. W. 442. People u sing public sidewalks may to some extent rely on the implied assurance that after the lapse of a sufficient time in which to make repairs, defects previously noticed have been remedied. Deland v. Cameron [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 597. One who knows of the existence of a dangerous obstruction must exercise unusual care in approaching it. McDonald v. Holbrook, C. & D. Contracting Co., 93 N. Y. S. 920.

78. City of Mattoon v. Faller [Ill.] 75 N. E. 387; Rea v. Sioux City [Iowa] 103 N. W. 949; Thuis v. Vincennes [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 141; City of Muncie v. Hey [Ind.] 74 N. E. 250; Coffey v. Carthage, 186 Mo. 573, 85 S. W. 532; Missouri & K. Tel. Co. v. Vandervort [Kan.] 79 P. 1068; Erie Tp. v. Beamer [Kan.] 79 P. 1070; Lemman v. Spokane [Wash.] 80 P. 280.

79. Must use their eyes and watch where they are going. Iseminger v. York Haven Water & Power Co., 209 Pa. 615, 59 A. 64; Byrne v. Philadelphia [Pa.] 61 A. 80; Ladrick v. Green Island, 92 N. Y. S. 622; Parrish v. Huntington [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 416; Dougherty v. Philadelphia [Pa.] 60 A. 261; Idlett v. Atlanta [Ga.] 51 S. E. 709. Not negligent. Bartley v. New York, 102 App. Div. 23, 92 N. Y. S. 82. Where a jury return special findings to the effect that the street crossing where the plaintiff was injured, while not manifestly unsafe, was nevertheless not safe, and the plaintiff knew of its condition, and could have avoided it but not easily, and the testimony supported these findings, a judgment in favor of the plaintiff will be reversed. City of Akron v. Keister, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 603.

80. Jewell City v. Van Meter [Kan.] 79 P. 149; Deland v. Cameron [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 597; Board of Councilmen of Frankfort v. Chinn [Ky.] 89 S. W. 188. One injured on a defective sidewalk must show ordinary care was exercised to avoid the injury. Peat v. Norwalk, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 614.

81. Lemman v. Spokane [Wash.] 80 P. 280; Keyes v. Second Baptist Church, 99 Me. 308, 59 A. 446; Idlett v. Atlanta [Ga.] 51 S. E. 709; City of Pascagoula v. Kirkwood [Miss.] 38 So. 547; Persons with defective vision must use greater care than would be required of an ordinary person. Kaiser v. Hahn Bros., 126 Iowa, 561, 102 N. W. 504. Not necessarily negligent for a traveler to run along a sidewalk, upon a rainy night, with his head down and close to the building line. City of Ottawa v. Hayne, 114 Ill. App. 21. A man who rides a gentle horse with a halter only, and without saddle or bridle, is not as a matter of law guilty of such contributory negligence as will preclude a recovery for injuries caused by defects in a public street. Helbig v. Grays Harbor Elec. Co., 37 Wash. 130, 79 P. 612. Pedestrian stepping into a hole just as she emerged from a crowd. Becker v. Philadelphia [Pa.] 61 A. 942.

82. Lemman v. Spokane [Wash.] 80 P. 280; Tuttle v. Clear Lake [Iowa] 102 N. W. 136; Becker v. Philadelphia [Pa.] 61 A. 942; Arnold v. Waterloo [Iowa] 104 N. W. 442; Iseminger v. York Haven Water & Power Co., 209 Pa. 615, 59 A. 64; Patterson

Voluntary drunkenness, as a result of which a person is unable to use due care to protect himself, bars a recovery for injury caused by defective paving.[83]

(§ 15) J. Notice of claim for injury and intent to sue.[84]—It is frequently provided by statute or charter that no action shall be brought to recover for injuries unless notice thereof shall have been seasonably served [85] upon the proper officer; [86] but such statutes are not generally given a strict construction,[87] though substantial compliance is necessary.[88] A notice giving such information as enables the city to investigate the injury is generally sufficient,[89] if given in good faith and without intent to mislead and in fact not misleading.[90] A claim having once become barred by such a statute of limitations cannot be revived, even by consent of the municipal officers.[91] A city clerk is competent to testify that plaintiff's claim was presented to the city council and disallowed before the commencement of the action.[92] A charter provision prohibiting the payment of claims unless presented to and passed upon

v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 210 Pa. 47, 59 A. 318. For the jury to determine whether plaintiff attempted to cross a street at an irregular place which the city had not put in use for pedestrians. Haxton v. Kansas City [Mo.] 88 S. W. 714. Ordinary care on the part of one injured by reason of a defective sidewalk may be shown by the circumstances of the occurrence and the conduct of the person injured. Village of Upper Alton v. Green, 112 Ill. App. 439.

83. City of Covington v. Lee [Ky.] 89 S. W. 493.

84. See 3 C. L. 1625.

85. Van Auken v. Adrian [Mich.] 98 N. W. 15. Code, §§ 3531, 3447. McCartney v. Washington, 124 Iowa, 382, 100 N. W. 80. Rev. St. 1898, § 1339. Garske v. Ridgeville, 123 Wis. 503, 102 N. W. 22. Laws 1895, p. 733, c. 394, § 345. Forseyth v. Oswego, 95 N. Y. S. 33. Plaintiff held not to have been so physically incapacitated as to excuse a failure to file notice of claim. Attempted service of notice after office hours of proper official held insufficient. Ehrhardt v. Seattle [Wash.] 82 P. 296. Such statutes have no application to an employe of the city injured in the discharge of his duties (Kelly v. Faribault [Minn.] 104 N. W. 231), or to a claim against a gas company for leaving a street in a defective condition (Seltzer v. Amesbury & S. Gas Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 339), or for the maintaining of a nuisance [Laws 1897, p. 453, c. 414.] (Gerow v. Liberty, 94 N. Y. S. 949), or for the negligent delay in constructing a sewer (Fagere v. Cook [R. I.] 60 A. 1067).

86. Acknowledgment of service by mayor held sufficient. McCartney v. Washington, 124 Iowa, 382, 100 N. W. 80. Written notice left at the home of a selectman and presumably handed to him, held sufficient. McCarthy v. Dedham [Mass.] 74 N. E. 319.

87. Service on the proper clerk, though not at the meeting of the board, as specified by statute, and though the clerk failed to present the claim to the board, held sufficient. Dobson v. Oneida, 94 N. Y. S. 958.

88. Lyons v. St. Joseph [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 588.

89. In Iowa notice need not state causes which produced injury. McCartney v. Washington, 124 Iowa, 382, 100 N. W. 80; Pecor v. Oconto [Wis.] 104 N. W. 88; Nestle v. Flint [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 376, 104 N. W. 406; Strange v. St. Joseph [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 2; Ritschdorf v. St. Paul [Minn.] 104 N. W. 129. In an action for the recovery of money for injuries from falling on a defective sidewalk, the description in the petition of the place where the accident occurred will not be construed as strictly as a description in an indictment. City of Toledo v. Willinger, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 641. A notice couched in such terms as to enable an ordinarily intelligent man to find the place and understand how and when the accident happened is sufficiently specific. Elson v. Waterford, 138 F. 1004. Alleged indefinite description of defect is not open to review unless attacked before verdict. Ball v. Neosho [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 777. Notice not insufficient because it contained an offer to accept a certain sum of money "by way of compromise or settlement in order to avoid litigation." Bland v. Mobile [Ala.] 37 So. 843. Notice held sufficient under Rev. St. 1899, § 5724. Burnette v. St. Joseph [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 589. Notice merely reciting that the injury was received "while walking on the sidewalk of the city at the intersection of" certain streets is insufficient under Rev. St. 1899, § 5724. Lyons v. St. Joseph [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 588. Notice insufficient. Forseyth v. Oswego, 95 N. Y. S. 33.

90. Garske v. Ridgeville, 123 Wis. 503, 102 N. W. 22; McCarthy v. Dedham [Mass.] 74 N. E. 319. Where different portions of the same street are known by different names, and the petition of one seeking damages on account of a fall on a defective sidewalk alleges that the accident occurred on this street, giving the name of one section thereof, whereas the accident is shown by the testimony to have occurred a few feet beyond the dividing line between the portion of the street named and that bearing another name, the variance is not such as will defeat recovery, where there is no claim that the municipality was misled thereby to its prejudice. City of Toledo v. Willinger, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 641.

91. Van Auken v. Adrian [Mich.] 98 N. W. 15. Facts held not to constitute a waiver of defects in plaintiff's claim. Forseyth v. Oswego, 95 N. Y. S. 33.

92. Jewell City v. Van Meter [Kan.] 79 P. 149.

by certain officials does not make such presentation a condition precedent to bringing suit for personal injuries.[93]

(§ 15) K. Actions.[94]—The general rule as to variance,[95] sufficiency of allegations,[96] and amendments, apply.[97]

Evidence.[98]—In an action for injuries from a defective walk, it is proper to admit evidence as to the character and time of repairs,[99] or photographs of a defective walk, exhibiting its exact condition except ice and snow,[1] or photographs showing the condition of a walk at the time of accident, though taken subsequently.[2] The general bad condition of the walk in the immediate vicinity of the place of accident,[3] and the condition of a walk at other times than that of the accident, may be shown as indicating knowledge by the city,[4] but that others had fallen at the same place is not admissible where barriers were placed after such preceding fall and the barriers remained at the time of plaintiff's injury.[5] Where the exact place of the accident is uncertain, evidence of the long continued defective condition of the sidewalk in question is admissible.[6] Evidence that other persons drove their teams safely over the place of accident about the same time should be excluded.[7] Where by stipulation a city admits that the alleged place of accident was under municipal control, the admission of evidence that after the injury the city notified the abutting owner to repair the defect is prejudicial.[8] A jury is not bound by the testimony of 93. 12 Sp. Laws 869. Hillyer v. Winsted, 77 Conn. 304, 59 A. 40.

94. See 3 C. L. 1626.

95. Curry v. Luzerne Borough, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 514; Oehmler v. Pittsburg R. Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 613; O'Hey v. Commonwealth Title Ins. Trust Co., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 137; Town of Cicero v. Bartelme, 212 Ill. 256, 72 N. E. 437; McKnight v. Seattle [Wash.] 81 P. 998; Town of Cicero v. Bartelme, 114 Ill. App. 9. Under the Alabama statute a claim in court for $1,000.00 is a fatal variance when the claim filed with the city of Mobile as a condition precedent of bringing suit was for $500.00. Acts 1901, p. 2363, § 22. Bland v Mobile [Ala.] 37 So. 843.

96. In an action for injuries from a defective sidewalk, an allegation that the walk was condemned by ordinance is not prejudicial to the defendant, no proof being offered to sustain the averment. City of Eureka v. Neville [Kan.] 79 P. 162. Where an action is based only on the defective condition of walks, it is not necessary to plead ordinances which are desired to be used for evidential purposes. Bailey v. Kansas City [Mo.] 87 S. W. 1182. Declaration based on failure to keep the streets in a reasonably safe condition held not demurrable for want of facts. McCauley v. Greenville [Mass.] 37 So. 818. In an action to recover for personal injuries sustained by reason of an obstruction in a sidewalk, it is essential to allege that the place of accident was treated and controlled by the municipality as a public thoroughfare. Parrish v. Huntington [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 416. Plaintiff need not aver freedom from contributory negligence, it being a matter of proof for defendant. Board of Councilmen of Frankfort v. Chinn [Ky.] 89 S. W. 188. It is not error in a suit for damages for an injury from falling on a defective sidewalk to charge that the jury must find from a preponderance of the evidence that the plaintiff was without fault where there is evidence tending to show contributory negligence. Peat v. Norwalk, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 614. Allegations of negligence as to unsafe bridge held sufficient. City of Indianapolis v. Cauley [Ind.] 73 N. E. 691. Declaration for personal injury from a defective sidewalk held to subject to dismissal on demurrer. Idlett v. Atlanta [Ga.] 51 S. E. 709. Complaint based on failure to erect barriers held insufficient. City of Vincennes v. Spees [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 277.

97. Town of Cicero v. Bartelme, 212 Ill. 256, 72 N. E. 437; District of Columbia v. Frazer, 21 App. D. C. 154. Where there is no claim of a surprise, a complaint for personal injuries may be amended as to the date of th eaccident. Ladrick v. Green Island, 92 N. Y. S. 622. A complaint is not fatally defective for failure to set forth that the defect in a sidewalk relied on as a cause of action was the same defect as set out in a previous notice to the town, such a fault being subject to amendment. Elson v. Waterford 138 F. 1004.

98. See 3 C. L. 1627.

99. McCartney v. Washington, 124 Iowa, 382, 100 N. W. 80.

1. Considine v. Dubuque, 126 Iowa, 283, 102 N. W. 102.

2. Miller v. New York, 93 N. Y. S. 227.

3. Pumorlo v. Merrill [Wis.], 103 N. W. 464; Miller v. Canton [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 96. As also is evidence concerning the condition of the walk near the point of accident. McCartney v. Washington, 124 Iowa, 382, 100 N. W. 80.

4. Hofacre v. Monticello [Iowa] 103 N. W. 488.

5. Vander Velde v. Leroy [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 183, 103 N. W. 812.

6. Nestle v. Flint [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 376, 104 N. W. 406; Perry v. Potsdam, 94 N. Y. S. 683.

7. Garske v. Ridgeville, 123 Wis. 503, 102 N. W. 22.

8. Bailey v. Kansas City [Mo.] 87 S. W. 1182.

sidewalk experts.[9] Declarations by one made immediately after the receipt of painful injuries are admissible as part of the res gestae;[10] but statements of deceased made over a mile from the accident and an hour afterward in response to questions, he not having been unconscious, are not res gestae.[11] Witnesses may testify to the depth of a hole in a street, although they estimated the depth by mere visual observation.[12] A city ordinance prescribing the duty of street officers is admissible to show that complaint of a street's defective condition was made to the proper person.[13] The original notice of intention to sue having been lost, secondary evidence thereof is admissible.[14] The admission of proof of filing of notice when not required is not reversible error.[15]

§ 16. Injury to, obstructions of, or encroachment on, street or highway.[16]—There can be no rightful permanent use of a highway by individuals for private purposes, and such may be restrained,[17] though a temporary and reasonable use of the streets and walks for construction purposes is lawful,[18] in which case the city must require the work to be properly conducted,[19] and permissions to excavate in the street does not authorize the leaving of a dangerous obstruction in the highway.[20] An object which subserves the use of streets need not necessarily be considered an obstruction, though it may occupy some part of the space of the street.[21] The public

9. St. Louis v. Kansas City, 110 Mo. App. 653, 85 S. W. 630.

10. District of Columbia v. Dietrich, 23 App. D. C. 577. Declarations by one injured by falling on a defective sidewalk, made immediately upon her arrival at home and within half an hour of the accident, are res gestae. Rothrock v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 103 N. W. 475.

11. White v. Marquette [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 141, 103 N. W. 698.

12. Miller v. New York, 93 N. Y. S. 227.

13. City of Gibson v. Murray [Ill.] 75 N E. 319.

14. Considine v. Dubuque, 126 Iowa, 283, 102 N. W. 102.

15. City of Lexington v. Kreitz [Neb.] 103 N. W. 444.

16. See 3 C. L. 1628.

17. Show cases and bay windows constructed with permission of city. Forbes v. Detroit [Mich.] 102 N. W. 740; Dormer v. District of Columbia, 21 App. D. C. 284; Tennessee Brewing Co. v. Union R. Co., 113 Tenn. 53, 85 S. W. 864; People v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 573; Hayden v. Stewart [Kan.] 80 P. 43; City Council of Augusta v. Reynolds [Ga.] 50 S. E. 998. A petition to restrain an interference with a road, describing the road with such certainty that its location was well understood and defendant was not misled, is sufficient. Smoot v. Wainscott [Ky.] 89 S. W. 176. Evidence held to show a railroad company's right to use a street for railway purposes restricted only by the right of the public to the reasonable use the street and the right of all persons not to have a nuisance imposed. Oklahoma City & T. R. Co. v. Dunham [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 644, 88 S. W. 849. A town owning the fee of a highway may determine that it shall not be used for any purpose other than of a highway and may order the removal of obstructions. Coudert v. Underhill, 95 N. Y. S. 134. There can be no prescription against the United States relative to the maintaining of a market upon a street in the District of Columbia. Taylor v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 392. Trees and shrubbery in the highway. Wickham v. Twaddell, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 188. Cornice extending over the highway. Wakeling v. Cocker, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 196. Excavations into street for purpose of widening a river for private purposes. Wilkinson v. Dunkley-Williams Co. [Mich.] 103 N. W. 170. Ky. St. 1903, § 4297, does not authorize the abolition of gates which were erected across a road by the landowner at the time of dedication. Clarke v. Booth [Ky.] 87 S. W. 273.

18. People v. Atchison, T. & F. R. Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E 573; City Council of Augusta v Reynolds [La.] 50 S. E. 998. Abutting owner may encroach upon the right of the public to a limited extent and for a temporary purpose. Gassenheimer v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 179. What is a reasonable encroachment is a question of fact depending on all the circumstances. Id. Diamond switch of a street car track leaving 10.5 feet between a passing car and the curb on one side and 9.7 feet on the other side is not a material obstruction of a street or interference with the abutting owner's rights. Rosenbaum v. Meridian Light & R. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 321. A hotel keeper may to a reasonable extent and in a reasonable manner use the street adjoining his premises to there station his carriages for the use of his guests only without being required to procure a license. Willard Hotel Co. v. District of Columbia, 23 App. D. C. 272. A temporary obstruction of a highway with the consent of the proper public authorities is not a nuisance. Malkan v. Carlin, 93 N. Y. S. 378.

19. Legislative authority to a municipality to construct a sewer in a public street does not exempt the municipality from the duty of exercising due care in performing the work. Koontz v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 59.

20. Foley v. Ray [R. I.] 61 A. 50.

21. Stepping Stone: Wolff v. District of Columbia, 196 U S. 152, 49 Law. Ed. 426.

has the right to the exclusive use of a street for public purposes, free from any permanent obstruction thereof for private purposes of any person,[22] and an encroachment or obstruction on a public street[23] or alley,[24] or the occupying of a considerable portion of the sidewalk, without authority, is a nuisance.[25] Abutting property owners cannot grant to private individuals the right to so occupy the street or sidewalk as to substantially and permanently obstruct travel thereon.[26] Where the damage or injury is common to the public, redress is properly sought by a proceeding in behalf of the public;[27] but one who is specially injured in a way not common to himself and the public at large may maintain an action for the obstruction of a public highway.[28] Heirs of owner of burial lot in cemetery adjoining a public thoroughfare, members of the family being buried in the lot, have a sufficient interest to maintain a bill for the removal of obstructions in the thoroughfare.[29] An adjacent owner sustaining special damage thereby may maintain a suit for damages or file a bill for an injunction to restrain the obstruction of the sidewalk,[30] and may re-

22. Garibaldi v. O'Connor, 112 Ill. App. 53. A violator of the law has no legal right to have a public road leading to his ferry kept open. Parsons v. Hunt [Tex.] 84 S. W. 644.

23. Town of West Seattle v. West Seattle Land and Imp. Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 549; Forbes v. Detroit [Mich.] 102 N. W. 740; Coker v. Atlanta K. & U. R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 481. Guy rope for a hanging banner fastened so as to endanger pedestrians. City of Ottawa v. Hayne, 214 Ill. 45, 73 N. E. 385. Defective coal hole in the sidewalk. Berger v. Content, 94 N. Y. S. 12. Street fair. City Council of Augusta v. Reynolds [Ga.] 50 S. E. 998. A building or other structure, or the placing of materials, such as lumber or coal for an unreasonable time or in an unreasonable manner upon a street or highway without the sanction of the legislature, is a public nuisance. Smith v. Davis, 22 App. D. C. 298. A hedge encroaching upon the highway is a nuisance and may be abated. Bright v. Bell, 113 La. 1078, 37 So. 976. The occupation of the middle of a street by a standing market wagon, obstructing the free passage of the street, is a nuisance. Sanford v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 404. Under pretext of removing obstructions from an alley, a municipality cannot remove a fence situated on private property not subject to a public easement. Riley v. Greenwood [S. C.] 51 S. E. 532. A fence may be maintained across land acquired under the New York charter for street purposes, but not yet opened to the public. Laws 1901, p. 406, c. 466, § 971. Parsons Bros. v. New York, 95 N. Y. S. 131. Obstruction of a street is a statutory nuisance in Illinois. Hurd's Rev. St. ch. 38, § 221, par. 5. Garibaldi v. O'Connor, 112 Ill. App. 53. Permanent obstruction of a public street is a public nuisance. Weiss v. Taylor [Ala.] 39 So. 519.

24. Harniss v. Bulpitt [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1022.

25. City of New York v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 93 N. Y. S. 937; Dormer v. District of Columbia, 21 App. D. C. 284. The court will assume that a coal hole, existing in the sidewalk for 20 years, was constructed and maintained by permission of the proper authorities. Hart v. McKenna, 94 N. Y. S. 216. Ordinary carriage blocks or steps, shade trees, lamp posts, water hydrants, awning posts, telegraph and telephone poles, placed under proper regulations, are not obstructions within §§ 226, 229, Rev. St. D. C. Wolf v. District of Columbia, 21 App. D. C. 464.

26. Pagarnes v. Chicago, 111 Ill. App. 590; City of Chicago v. Pooley, 112 Ill. App. 343. Abutting owner cannot confer on a private citizen the right to use any portion of a public street to the exclusion of the public. Hontros v. Chicago, 113 Ill. App. 318.

27. City of New York v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 93 N. Y. S. 937. In Washington a county or a road supervisor may sue to enjoin the obstruction of a highway. Lincoln County v. Fish [Wash.] 80 P. 435.

28. Forbes v. Detroit [Mich.] 102 N. W. 740; Guilford v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 365; Harniss v. Bulpitt [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1022; Downing v. Corcoran [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 114; Hayden v. Stewart [Kan.] 80 P. 43. Only those who suffer injury not common to the general public can maintain an action to either enjoin the permanent obstruction of a highway or recover damages therefor. Coker v. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 481. No one can maintain an action for the removal of a public nuisance, but the the public or some one who suffers special damage therefrom. Labry v. Gilmore [Ky.] 89 S. W. 231. Action to restrain erection of tramway denied where no damage shown. Turl v. New York Contracting Co., 46 Misc. 164, 93 N. Y. S. 1103. Holder of mortgage interest in the lots affected may sue. Wilkinson v. Dunkley-Williams Co. [Mich.] 103 N. W. 170; Tennessee Brewing Co. v. Union R. Co., 113 Tenn. 53, 85 S. W. 864. One may sue for damages to real estate resulting from an obstruction of a highway, though the legal title is held by another in trust for him. Yates v. Big Sandy R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 108. Petition held to state a cause of action. Heard v. Connor [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 605. Sufficiency of petition considered. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Miller [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 827. Plaintiffs held to have shown sufficient title to maintain an action for excavating in the street. Restetsky v. Delmar Ave. & C. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 665.

29. Weiss v. Taylor [Ala.] 39 So. 519.

30. Construction of platform in front of adjoining premises to load wagons. Brauer v. Baltimore Refrigerating & Heating Co., 99 Md. 367, 58 A. 21.

strain such acts without waiting until their actual commission.[31] One cannot legally carry on any part of his business in the public streets to the annoyance of the public.[32] Whether the use is reasonable or not is a question of fact, depending on circumstances. The Michigan statute authorizing the commissioner of highways to order the removal of fences encroaching upon the highway does not abrogate the common-law right of abatement of a nuisance by an individual,[33] and if special grievance be necessary, such grievance exists in the highway commissioner by virtue of his office.[34]

Civil liability.—Persons unlawfully obstructing a street or highway are liable for the proximate damages resulting therefrom,[35] but not where the use of the sidewalk was momentary and reasonable,[36] and contributory negligence will bar recovery.[37] The willful obstruction of a highway so as to show culpable indifference to the rights of travelers justifies the recovery of punitive damages.[38] It is the duty of those whose work necessarily makes dangerous a public street to give notice by means of proper signals, warnings or barriers.[39] One who undertakes to change the grade of a street without the passage of the necessary ordinance becomes a trespasser.[40] Contractors employed by a county are not liable for the removal of trees planted within a highway, when such removal is in the proper execution of the con-

31. Mere permission of board of estimates does not justify permanent obstructioin, under Baltimore City charter, §§ 7-11. Brauer v. Baltimore Refrigerating & Heating Co., 99 Md. 367, 58 A. 21.

32. Brauer v. Baltimore Refrigerating & Heating Co., 99 Ind. 367, 58 A. 21.

33. Laws 1881, p. 306, art. 243. Neal v. Gilmore [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 540, 104 N. W. 609.

34. Neal v. Gilmore [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 540, 104 N. W. 609.

35. Defendant not shown to have created the proximate cause of injury. Ferracane v. Brooklyn Alcatraz Asphalt Co., 101 App. Div. 605, 91 N. Y. S. 866. Railroad street crossing. Evansville & I. R. Co. v. Allen, 34 Ind. App. 636, 73 N. E. 630. The placing of a dangerous obstruction on a sidewalk creates a liability for damages resulting therefor. White v. Keystone Tel. Co., 211 Pa. 455, 60 A. 998. One wrongfully placing obstructions in the highway must be responsible for accidents resulting therefrom. Telephone pole. Bevis v. Vanceburg Tel. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 126. Authority to construct and operate a railroad track on a way within the city limits does not permit an interference with the adjacent owner's right of ingress and egress without compensation. Cincinnati, R. & M. R. Co. v. Miller [Ind App.] 72 N. E. 827. Horse frightened by refuse left in street by the defendant. McClure v. Feldmann, 184 Mo. 710, 84 S. W. 16; Perrigo v. St. Louis, 185 Mo. 274, 84 S. W. 30. Negligence for the jury. Shane v. National Biscuit Co., 102 App. Div. 188, 92 N. Y. S. 637. Defendant not liable for injuries received from cart left in street. Lopes v. Sahuque [La.] 38 So. 810. Upon conflicting evidence, it is for the jury to say whether the piling of lumber in the street was negligently done or was the proximate cause of injury. Romano v. Seidel Furniture Mfg. Co. [La.] 38 So. 409. A railroad crossing gate, lawfully constructed within a highway, is not such an obstruction as renders the owner liable for injuries resulting from a collision therewith. Klein v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 75. It is prima facie unlawful for a railroad to place a handcar on a public highway. Southern Ind. R. Co. v. Norman [Ind.] 74 N. E. 896. A railroad company is responsible for injuries from negligently leaving a truck upon the sidewalk. Tiborsky v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 549. Where a railroad embankment obstructs a street affording access to business property, the owner may recover the resulting damages. Harrington v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 126 Iowa, 388, 102 N. W. 139. A four foot embankment placed in a highway by a street railway company is such an obstruction as entitles the abutting owner to resulting damages. Yates v. Big Sandy R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 108.

36. Nail in plank beneath defendant's station. Hedenberg v. Manhattan R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 68.

37. Attempting to drive over newly made road not yet open to the public. Shepard v. Bellew & Merritt Co., 101 App. Div. 257, 91 N. Y. S. 999. But a contractor is not required to anticipate that a sewer inspector would walk on the bracing beams of a subway tunnel. Dooley v. Degnon-McLean Contracting Co., 45 Misc. 593, 91 N. Y. S. 30.

38. Tutwiler Coal, Coke & Iron Co. v. Nail [Ala.] 37 So. 634.

39. Keyes v. Second Baptist Church, 99 Me. 308, 59 A. 446; MacDonald v. St. Louis Transit Co., 108 Mo. App. 374, 83 S. W. 1001. A contractor who injures a pedestrian lawfully using the street is liable as a trespasses therefor. Turner v. Degnon-McLean Contracting Co., 99 App. Div. 135, 90 N. Y. S. 948. Upon the removal of a light pole, it becomes the duty of the owner thereof to fill the hole so occasioned and to see that thereafter it remained filled so as not to render the street unsafe. Birch v. Charleston Light, Heat & Power Co., 113 Ill. App. 229. Under Rev. Laws, c. 110, § 76, gas companies are required only to leave the street in the same condition in which they found it. Seltzer v. Amesbury & S. Gas Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 339.

40. United New Jersey R. & Canal Co. v. Lewis [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 227.

tract.[41] A market company occupying a sidewalk without authority must keep the walk clean and safely passable at all times so far as obstructions might be occasioned by the purpose to which it sought to devote the street.[42]

Crimes.—An indictment will lie in most states for obstructing a public highway,[43] but the owners of lots on both sides of a street which is not used by the public, but only for such owners' private purposes, may obstruct such street without liability to prosecution.[44] A person acting on the warrant of the county court in closing a road is protected by the warrant from a prosecution for obstructing the road.[45] The common-law remedy for the obstruction of public roads is still in force in Kentucky.[46] Where the penalty is claimed as the damages, an action for penalties for excavating in a street and a suit for damages resulting from the same cause are inconsistent.[47] In a prosecution for obstructing a highway established by statutory proceedings, the state must show that the owner had personal notice of the meeting of the viewers or that such notice was unnecessary;[48] but damages may be recovered for the obstruction of a highway used for the statutory period, without showing its establishment by statutory proceedings or judgment of the county court.[49] The inability of a defendant, because of backwater from a river, to remove an obstruction from a highway, is a matter of defense and must be pleaded to be available.[50] An action for injury to the bridges and highways of a town is properly brought in the name of the town.[51]

HOLIDAYS.[1]

Legal holidays are not dies non juridicus unless so expressly declared.[2] The prohibition of judicial business on a holiday does not prohibit the holding of an election.[3] In Minnesota public business may be transacted on a legal holiday if a necessity exists.[4] A holiday "for all purposes" is dies non juridicus,[5] and a half 41. Sherman v. Butcher [N. J. Law] 60 A. 336.

42. O'Dwyer v. Northern Market Co., 24 App. D. C. 81.

43. An animal tied to a stake in a public street for the purpose of grazing therein is an obstruction of such street, and the owner thereof is subject to punishment in Georgia. Williams v. Sewell, 121 Ga. 665, 49 S. E. 732. Whether a fence is an obstruction of a public highway is a question for the jury. Township of Bolo v. Liszewski, 116 Ill. App. 135. Felling a large tree and allowing it to remain in the highway for three months. Commonwealth v. American Tel. & Tel. Co. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 519. Constructing a dam which caused water to obstruct the highway. Richardson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 282. The occasional placing and using of a skid across a sidewalk is not within an ordinance declaring a penalty for constructing or placing any portico, porch, door, window, step, fence or any other projection, which shall project into the street. Gates & Son Co. v. Richmond, 103 Va. 702, 49 S. E. 965. Proof that an automobile licensed as a public vehicle stood in front of a hotel for two hours is not sufficient to sustain a conviction of the owner of the vehicle and proprietor of the hotel of unnecessarily obstructing the street. Gossenheimer v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 179. Evidence held sufficient to justify a refusual to grant a new trial. State v. Knotts, 70 S. C. 400, 50 S. E. 9. A material variance between the notice to remove an obstruction and the nature of the obstruction as proved on the trial is fatal. Town of Bethel v. Pruett, 215 Ill. 162, 74 N. E. 111.

44. People v. Wolverine Mfg. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 491, 104 N. W. 725.

45. State v. Miller, 110 Mo. App. 542, 85 S. W. 912.

46. Not supplanted by Ky. St. c. 110. Commonwealth v. American Tel. & T. Co. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 519.

47. Hughes v. Arkansas & O. R. Co. [Ark.] 85 S. W. 773.

48. State v. Cipra [Kan.] 81 P. 488.

49. Leslie County v. Southern Lumber Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 242.

50. Commonwealth v. American Tel. & T. Co. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 519.

51. Town of Southeast v. New York, 96 App. Div. 598, 89 N. Y. S. 630.

1. See, also, Sunday, 4 C. L. 1589.

2. A trial and conviction on Good Friday is valid. Calhoun v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 378. Under Act June 23, 1897 (P. L. 188) labor day is not a nonjudicial day. Patterson v. Gallitzin Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 54.

3. Transactions not within the statutory prohibition may be carried on. People v. Loyalton [Cal.] 82 P. 620.

4. Under Gen. St. 1894, § 7987, where parties to a cause stipulate to try it on a legal holiday, a decision of the justice based on convenience of the parties and saving of expense justified a holding that a necessity ex-holiday for all purposes will be taken notice of in the computation of time within which judicial proceedings must be taken.[6]

HOMESTEADS.[7]

§ 1. The right to homestead in general.[8]—In its inception a homestead is a parcel of land on which the family resides and which is to them a home[9] and includes rights appurtenant thereto.[10] The exemption of the homestead from seizure and sale for the owner's debts is purely statutory[11] and statutes allowing the privilege are liberally construed in favor thereof,[12] the reason and spirit of such laws, rather than the letter thereof, being conserved.[13] Title to the homestead being in the husband, so long as he is alive the wife's interest is not an estate, but is simply a disability of the husband.[14]

§ 2. Persons entitled.[15]—In most states the head of a family or a householder with a family[16] is entitled to claim a homestead. In order that one may have a "family" he must be under legal or moral obligation to support the persons constituting the "family" and they must be dependent upon him for support.[17] To be a isted. Fureseth v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 103 N. W. 499.

5, 6. Ocumpaugh v. Norton, 24 App. D. C. 296.

7. The doctrine of exemptions has already been treated; see Exemptions, 5 C. L. 1400. The present title has no relation to devises of the homestead (see Wills, 4 C. L. 1863), nor to the widow's quarantine (see Descent and Distribution, 5 C. L. 995; Estate of Decedents, 5 C. L. 1183). The effect of the bankruptcy of the homesteader on his homestead rights is treated in Bankruptcy, 5 C. L. 367.

8. See 3 C. L. 1631.

9. Palmer v. Sawyer [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1088.

10. Water rights, ditches, etc., held part of the homestead and exempt. Payne v. Cummings, 146 Cal. 426, 80 P. 620.

11. Osborne & Co. v. Evans, 185 Mo. 509 84 S. W. 867.

12. Fox v. Waterloo Nat. Bank, 126 Iowa, 481, 102 N. W. 424; Elliott v. Parlin & Orendorff Co. [Kan.] 81 P. 500.

13. Fox v. Waterloo Nat. Bank, 126 Iowa, 481, 102 N. W. 424.

14. Hunt v. McDonald [Wis.] 102 N. W. 318.

15. See 3 C. L. 1631.

16. In order to establish an estate of homestead under § 1 of the Homestead Act, three things must concur: (1) The person claiming the estate must be a householder; (2) he or she must have a family; (3) the premises claimed must be occupied as a residence. Stodgell v. Jackson, 111 Ill. App. 256.

17. Fox v. Waterloo Nat. Bank, 126 Iowa, 481, 102 N. W. 424; Stodgell v. Jackson, 111 Ill. App. 256; Sheeby v. Scott [Iowa] 104 N. W. 1139. Where an adult son, who was a drunkard and a gambler, lived with his mother who gave him $10 a week and board and allowed a third person a part of his board for caring for the son when disabled by the use of liquors or drugs, held, that a finding that the son was maintained by the mother, because of the natural obligation to her child, was justified, and the home was exempt as a homestead. Id. The homestead of a man residing thereon with his adult daughter held the homestead of a family in the absence of any showing that the father was under any obligation to pay for the daughter's services. Fox v. Waterloo Nat. Bank, 126 Iowa, 481, 102 N. W. 424. The fact that daughter after father's death filed a claim for services held not binding on a grantee of her brother. Id. Granddaughter living with and supported by grandfather held a member of the latter's family, though her father was living and able to support her. Adams v. Clark [Fla.] 37 So. 734. A minor nephew whom a householder has voluntarily assumed the obligation to support, and has supported, may constitute the fammember of a family, one must be such in good faith,[18] though it is immaterial that infant members thereof have parents living who are able to support them.[19] A wife is entitled to hold her lands as a homestead when they are occupied by her and her husband as such.[20]

An abandoned wife [21] or family [22] are entitled to claim a homestead.

§ 3. Properties and estates in which homestead may be claimed. As dependent on nature of claimant's title.[23]—The claimant or the one through whom he claims must have some title or interest sufficient to support a homestead in the property.[24] The right to a homestead may be based upon an equitable [25] or undivided [26] interest in land; but a tenancy at will is insufficient to support it.[27] In Virginia a homestead cannot be claimed in property a conveyance of which by the homestead claimant has been set aside as fraudulent.[28]

As dependent on use of premises.[29]—The use made of the land may determine its character as a homestead. The fact that part of the premises is rented [30] or used ily, notwithstanding such nephew has a father living, physically able and legally responsible for his support. Stodgell v. Jackson, 111 Ill. App. 256. A widower, who is living with his own mother, cannot be said to be a man of family, because he contributes something toward the support of a stepchild, who has never been formally declared to be his own child, and who lives with her maternal grandmother. Kraft v. Wolf, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 105. A stepchild is not the child of her stepfather within the meaning of the act providing for exemption in lieu of homestead, unless so declared to be by the probate court under sections 3137a and 3139. Id.

18. Adams v. Clark [Fla.] 37 So. 734.

19. So held where householder voluntarily assumed the obligation to support a minor nephew. Stodgell v. Jackson, 111 Ill. App. 256. Grandfather supporting granddaughter. Adams v. Clark [Fla.] 37 So. 734.

20. Gibson v. Barrett [Ark.] 87 S. W. 435; Pullen v. Simpson [Ark.] 86 S. W. 801.

21. See 2 C. L. 212; also, 3 C. L. 1631. Where wife has been wrongfully deserted. Bartlow v. Bartlow, 114 Ill. App. 604.

22. Under Acts 1870-71, p. 97, c. 71, where a husband or father either absconds or leaves his family, the homestead is exempt in the hands of the latter. Ryther v. Blackwell, 113 Tenn. 182, 87 S. W. 260.

23. See 3 C. L. 1631. See 2 Tiffany, Real Prop. p. 1127, § 499.

24. Assignor of unearned wages cannot assert an exemption in lieu of homestead in the wages as they come due. Has no title thereto. Brooks Co. v. Tolman, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 137. Where a debtor fraudulently conveyed certain of his assets to a corporation, and such assets were seized by a a receiver of the corporation, held, debtor's wife was not entitled to the deduction of a homestead exemption from the proceeds thereof, which were insufficient to pay the debts. Lazarus v. Steinhardt [C. C. A.] 133 F. 522. Widow held to acquire no homestead rights in land occupied by her husband as a tenant at will. Jones v. Jones, 213 Ill. 228, 72 N. E. 695. The claim of a homestead through a decedent because he had acquired title by adverse possession is not supported where the evidence fails to show that he occupied the land, or any part of it, for 20 years after his conveyance of it. Id.

25. May be claimed by a mortgagor in the value of the land less the amount of the mortgage. Reed Bros v. Nicholson [Mo.] 88 S. W. 71. May be claimed in mortgaged property after foreclosure but before expiration of right to redeem. Foster v. Rice, 126 Iowa, 190, 101 N. W. 771.

26. A tenant in common is entitled to a homestead in land, owned jointly by himself and others, to the extent of his interest, not to exceed 200 acres. Griffin v. Harris [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 538, 88 S. W. 493. The head of a family is entitled to a full 200 acre homestead with improvements out of a 400 acre tract in which he has an undivided one-half interest. Carroll v. Jeffries [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 1050.

27. Jones v. Jones, 213 Ill. 228, 72 N. E. 695.

28. Under Const. Va. 1902, § 191, where there has been a fraudulent conveyance by the head of a family, a reconveyance and claim of homestead made prior to a decree setting aside the fraudulent conveyance is sufficient to make the claim a valid one as against general creditors, even though they have obtained an inchoate lien prior to the reconveyance and claim of homestead. In re Allen & Co., 134 F. 620.

29. See 3 C. L. 1632.

30. Where a husband and his wife occupied a block of land without reference to lot divisions, and used the entire block in connection with their home, as a garden and horse lot, the entire property held to constitute their homestead, though a small house on one of the lots was sometimes rented to a tenant. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Lewis [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 817. Where the debtor 26 years before the trial of the cause established his homestead on a 40 acre tract, and during such time resided thereon with his family, the fact that the entire tract was brought within the limits of an incorporated town and a street run through it and on each parcel two or three houses were built, which houses, with rare exceptions, when rented, were rented in connection with the renting of the premises as farm land and occupied by the tenants, does not deprive the property of its homestead character. Mansur v. T. Implement Co. v. Graham [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 308.

for business purposes [31] does not necessarily destroy its character as a homestead, there being no appropriation to the production of revenue as distinguished from the common uses, purposes and necessities of a home. It is not necessary that the claimant reside on the premises if they are used in connection with his residence,[32] even though the latter is rented.[33] It is immaterial that the use be for mere convenience and produce little or no revenue.[34]

As dependent on whether lands are rural or urban.[35]—The character of property as rural or urban often fixes the extent of the homestead right.[36] The question whether land is rural or urban is one of fact.[37] Whether land is located in a city, town or village does not depend upon the fact of incorporation.[38] It may come to be within the corporate limits of a town without losing its rural character, or it may be located within the limits of a town or village, and thus have the legal character of an urban homestead, although the town or village is not incorporated.[39] In some states the extent of the homestead right depends upon whether the property is within the platted portion of a city or not.[40]

As dependent on whether property is realty or personalty.[41]

Amount exempt.[42]—In some states the homestead right is measured by the value of the property.[43] If, at the death of the owner of a homestead, the allotment does not exceed the full limit of value allowed, a subsequent appreciation does not give creditors of the deceased a right to subject the excess to their claims.[44]

§ 4. Claiming, selecting and setting apart of homesteads.[45]—A homestead is constituted by the two acts of selection and residence in compliance with the terms of the law conferring it.[46] When these things exist bona fide, the essential elements

31. A 40 acre tract on which is situated a mill and gin used in support of the owner's family, and which is contiguous to a 160 acre tract comprising the owner's farm and home, is, as against creditors, part of the homestead. Carroll v. Jeffries [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 1050.

32. The fact that the head of a family owns and resides on lots in an addition to a city beyond the corporate limits does not deprive other land owned by him and situated several miles distant, but used in connection with the lots for the purpose of a home, of its homestead character, in the absence of evidence that the lots on which the claimant resided were so surrounded by other residences as to have become a part of the town. Jolly v. Diehl [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 965.

33. Where husband and wife lived on rented property which adjoined certain land inherited by the wife, and which she and her husband cultivated and used for pasture, the land was held to constitute a homestead. Holder's Adm'r v. Holder [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1100.

34. Pickett v. Gleed [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 946.

35. See 3 C. L. 1632.

36. Michigan: Two platted lots within the corporate limits of a city may be claimed as a homestead exemption, where such lots aggregate but 60 feet in width and are occupied by a dwelling house built in the center of the lots, a part being on each lot. Barkume v. Phelps, Brace & Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 547, 104 N. W. 980.

37. Dignowity v. Baumlott [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 834.

38. Burow v. Grand Lodge of Sons of Hermann [C. C. A.] 133 F. 708.

39. Burow v. Grand Lodge of Sons of Hermann [C. C. A.] 133 F. 708. Where a bankrupt resided in an unincorporated town of 275 inhabitants, certain lots called "Farm Lots" on a map kept in the county assessor's office, held rural property. Id.

40. Code, § 2978, as amended by Act 28th Gen. Assem. p. 89, c. 119, defining the extent of a homestead when the property is within a city or town plat, does not apply where the homestead is within the corporate limits of a city, but not within the platted portion thereof. Foster v. Rice, 126 Iowa, 190, 101 N. W. 771. Where the land was once platted for partition and as thus partitioned was platted by the county auditor for taxation, the plat made by the auditor does not constitute a city plat. Id.

41, 42. See 3 C. L. 1633.

43. California: Under Civ. Code, §§ 1237, 1260, there is no limit to a homestead except as to value, and a tract of 524 acres of contiguous land is, if properly selected and of less value than $5,000, exempt, though part of it was acquired by pre-emption and part as a desert claim, and though it was unfenced. Payne v. Cummings, 146 Cal. 426, 80 P. 620.

Illinois: Under the Act of 1857, the homestead right of a householder was the lot and building occupied as a residence, to the value of $1,000. Bechdoldt v. Bechdoldt [Ill.] 75 N. E. 557.

44. Moody v. Moody [Miss.] 38 So. 322.

45. See 3 C. L. 1633. The law relative to the claiming of exemptions in bankruptcy proceedings is treated in Bankruptcy, 5 C. L. 367.

of the homestead right exist.[47] Mere intention to make a certain tract of land a home at some future time is insufficient to impress it with a homestead character,[48] unless it be accompanied by physical acts manifesting such intention [49] and followed by occupancy within a reasonable time.[50] A person cannot at the same time have two homesteads nor can he have two places either of which at his election he may claim as his homestead.[51] In the absence of statutes requiring a written declaration the actual occupancy of the land as a dwelling place is a sufficient declaration of homestead,[52] and the effect of such occupancy cannot be changed by intention.[53] It is for the head of the family to designate and set apart the homestead,[54] and his homestead is that of the family.[55]

In some states in order to claim property as a homestead, a declaration describing the property so that it can be identified [56] must be filed. In Texas, the husband being the head of the family, it is not essential to the validity of such designation that it be signed by the wife, or, in the absence of fraud, that it be assented to or concurred in by her.[57] The fact that the designation is planned, prepared and executed at the instance of a mortgagee at the time the mortgage is given does not, in the absence of fraud, affect the validity of the mortgage, where all the land embraced in the designation was used at the time for homestead purposes.[58] A homestead may be established by a judicial decree.[59] Where a decree awarding a homestead provides for the fixing of the metes and bounds thereof, there is no legal segre-

46. Palmer v. Sawyer [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1088.

47. Palmer v. Sawyer [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1088. Where homestead claimant was the head of a family and lived on the land, 20 acres of which he had cultivated for nearly two years, and kept thereon his household furniture and farming tools and implements, held to constitute his homestead, he having no other land. Griffen v. Harris [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 538, 88 S. W. 493. Where husband actually resided on land and his wife and children came each year to assist in its cultivaton, with the intention on her part to permanently occupy the land as a home as soon as she had earned sufficient money to pay off the purchase money, held to constitute a homestead. Holland v. Zilliox [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 36. Under § 1 of the Homestead Act, the premises claimed must be occupied as a residence. Stodgell v. Jackson, 111 Ill. App. 256.

An allegation in a bill to redeem land from a mortgage sale that plaintiff was "living on said land with his family," held insufficient as an allegation that he was occupying the land as a homestead. Gentry v. Lawley [Ala.] 37 So. 829.

48. Hair v. Davenport [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1042; Johnson v. Burton [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 317, 87 S. W. 181.

49. Hair v. Davenport [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1042; Home Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. McKay [Ill.] 75 N. E. 569. Is insufficient in the absence of acts of preparation looking to its actual occupancy as a homestead. Johnson v. Burton [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 317, 87 S. W. 181. Declaration of intention to a third person is not binding on a mortgagee having no knowledge thereof. Home Bildg. & Loan Ass'n v. McKay [Ill.] 75 N. E. 569. Fact that claimant spoke of redeeming a portion of the land on which his home was located, held insufficient to warrant a finding that the land was his homestead. James v. Mallory [Ark.] 89 S. W. 472.

50. Hair v. Davenport [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1042.

51. Hair v. Davenport [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1042. The head of a family, who has a homestead, cannot acquire a second homestead until the first has been abandoned or conveyed, or contracted to be conveyed, by a legal and valid instrument. Id. One cannot hold a rural and urban homestead at the same time. Johnson v. Calloway [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 178.

52, 53. Hostetler v. Eddy [Iowa] 104 N. W. 485.

54. Pickett v. Gleed [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 946; Holland v. Zilliox [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 36. The fact that at the time of marriage a woman was occupying her separate property as the homestead of herself and minor children does not prevent the husband, if he acts in good faith, from removing the family therefrom and acquiring another homestead. Duncan v. Hand [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 233.

55. Homestead of husband is that of the wife. Canning v. Andrews [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 22. Instruction that a man's place of residence is where his family resides held properly refused. Id.; Holland v. Zilliox [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 36.

56. Where property was known as "G.'s ranch" and was so described in the declaration, an erroneous description of the legal boundaries held not to render the declaration insufficient. In re Geary's Estate, 146 Cal. 105, 79 P. 855.

57, 58. Pickett v. Gleed [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 946.

59. Decree stating that one had succeeded to homestead rights of grantor held to establish in the purchaser a homestead of his own. Bechdoldt v. Bechdoldt [Ill.] 75 N. E. 557.

gation of the homestead until it is so set out.[60] In Arkansas, claim and selection need not be made before sale on execution,[61] and the same applies to an additional selection increasing the homestead to the statutory limit.[62]

Where property claimed as a homestead exceeds the maximum area or amount, the person entitled to the homestead may make a selection of the proper amount, provided the same does not violate the rule against unreasonable or capricious selection.[63] Where the extent of the homestead is measured by acreage, it cannot be set apart out of an undivided interest in land.[64] In Nebraska, upon an application for the appointment of appraisers to set aside a homestead exemption, the homestead claimant may contest the question whether the value of the homestead exceeds the amount of the homestead exemption;[65] and if the court in such case finds that the value does not exceed the exemption, it should refuse to appoint appraisers.[66] As a general rule, it being possible, the homestead should be set out in the land,[67] and courts of equity are powerless to change this rule and order the homestead interest paid in cash.[68] Statutes generally provide the method for determining the value of premises claimed as a homestead.[69] In California appraisers being appointed and a vacancy occurring the court may fill the same without further notice [70] and either party may, in case the appointee is unfit, incompetent or disqualified, move the court to vacate the appointment or set aside the report of the appraisers.[71]

§ 5. Liabilities superior or inferior to homestead.[72]—In no state is the homestead exemption absolute, antecedent debts [73] and purchase money indebtedness [74] be-

60. Bringhurst v. Texas Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 128, 87 S. W. 893.

61. Under Kirby's Dig. § 3902, a debtor need not file a schedule in order to protect the homestead against a judgment or execution, but he may select and claim it after or before a sale on execution. Isbell v. Jones [Ark.] 88 S. W. 593.

62. May be done after conveyance and in a suit attacking such conveyance as a fraud on creditors. Wilks v. Vaughan [Ark.] 83 S. W. 913.

63. Grimes v. Luster [Ark.] 84 S. W. 223. A debtor may, though not residing upon an agricultural homestead, increase it to the maximum area, in order to protect a conveyance thereof from being fraudulent as to creditors. Wilks v. Vaughan [Ark.] 83 S. W. 913. Where a person is possessed of several parcels of land aggregating over 200 acres, all of which are used for the purpose of a home, he may designate any 200 acres thereof as his home. Pickett v. Gleed [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 946. Under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 3616, 3617, a wife is entitled to select the particular part of land conveyed to her by her husband, to avoid levy of execution, to the value of the amount of exemption which she will retain as a homestead. Reed Bros. v. Nicholson [Mo.] 88 S. W. 71.

64. Before the owner of an undivided interest in land can claim a "pony homestead" out of the same he must have the land partitioned. Sims v. Sims [Ga.] 50 S. E. 937.

65, 66. France v. Hohnbaum [Neb.] 102 N. W. 75.

67. Where mortgaged land consisted of 160 acres and house was located on one of the 40's, held possible to set out homestead in kind. Reed Bros. v. Nicholson [Mo.] 88 S. W. 71.

68. Reed Bros. v. Nicholson [Mo.] 88 S. W. 71.

69. California: Under Code Civ. Proc. art. 2, c. 5, §§ 1474-1486, providing for the appraisement of a homestead in probate proceedings, it is error for the court after ordering a reappraisement, to confirm the report on the reappraisement, and to set aside the premises as a homestead without notice to the objecting creditor, or affording him an opportunity to be heard, and to further refuse to hear a direct application by him to be heard. In re McCarthy's Estate [Cal. App.] 82 P. 635. Under such statutes an ex parte report of the appraisers is not evidence of the value of the homestead in the hearing of the objections. Id.

Missouri: Under Rev. St. 1899, § 3617, where the land exceeds the homestead exemption, failure of the sheriff to appoint three disinterested appraisers to value and set apart the homestead and then levy execution on the remainder renders the sale void. Reed Bros. v. Nicholson [Mo.] 88 S. W. 71. Whether property exceeds exemption can only be determined by commissioners appointed to value the land, and a court of equity has no power to determine the question. Id.

70. Civ. Code, §§ 1248, 1249. Harrier v. Bassford, 145 Cal. 529, 78 P. 1038.

71. Harrier v. Bassford, 145 Cal. 529, 78 P. 1038.

72. See 3 C. L. 1635.

73. Liability for breach of warranty. Anderson v. Kyle, 126 Iowa, 666, 102 N. W. 527. Under Code, § 2976, is liable for debts created at any time prior to its occupancy as a homestead. Whinery v. McLeod [Iowa] 102 N. W. 132.

74. Equitable purchase-money mortgage is superior to homestead rights. Foster Lumber Co. v. Harlan County Bank [Kan.] 80 P. 49. A purchaser's wife is not entitled to a homestead in property as against a vendor's lien. Matney v. Williams [Ky.] 89 S. W. 678. Secret intention of mortgagor to ing generally, though not always,[75] superior to the right, while debts contracted subsequent to the homestead are not a lien thereon,[76] even in the hands of a grantee of the homestead claimant,[77] unless incurred in improving the premises.[78] In some states, in order to create a lien, the contract for such improvement must be signed by the wife.[79] In Kentucky land owned at the time the debt was created is exempt if occupied by the claimant as a homestead at the time it is sought to levy execution.[80] Land of a lunatic being sold under order of court, the question whether it is his homestead is to be determined by the status of the property at the time the order is made and the sale confirmed.[81] In some states the liability of a trustee for trust funds is superior to his homestead exemption.[82] Where the homestead claimant seeks equitable relief, the equitable maxim "he who seeks equity must do equity" applies.[83] In Iowa the homestead of a pensioner purchased and paid for with pension money is exempt.[84] An insolvent husband can use his means to improve his wife's homestead provided the value and area of the homestead is not thereby carried beyond the value and area permitted by law.[85] Liabilities discharged in bankruptcy cannot be proved against the homestead.[86] All rents and profits arising out of the homestead land, except those consumed while the homestead estate is in existence, belong to the owner of the realty out of which the homestead is carved.[87] In Texas provisions for attorney's fees are not enforceable against the homestead.[88] In California a operate premises as a homestead does not affect the rights of a purchase-money mortgagee. Home Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. McKay [Ill.] 75 N. E. 569. Trust deed given to secure a mechanic's lien note, the consideration of which was used to purchase a lot and erect a house thereon, held superior to a claim of homestead exemption. Const. art. 16, § 50, construed. Bayless v. Standard Sav. & Loan Ass'n [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 225, 87 S. W. 872.

75. An insolvent debtor may successfully assert a claim of exemption as to a homestead purchased with the proceeds of nonexempt property, where there are no peculiar equities in favor of existing creditors. McConnell v. Wolcott [Kan.] 78 P. 848. The fact that a homestead has been sold and the proceeds used does not prevent the homestead claimant from acquiring another homestead with other funds, and such homestead will be superior to antecedent judgments. Id.

76. Sweet v. Lyon [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 384.

77. The purchaser of a homestead takes unaffected by the lien of a judgment against the grantor. Howard v. Mayher [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 49, 88 S. W. 409.

78. Robards v. Robards [Ky.] 85 S. W. 718. Under Const. art. 16, § 37, a mechanic's lien is superior to the homestead claim of minor children. Summerville v. King [Tex.] 83 S. W. 680.

79. Where it was not so signed, neither contractor nor those claiming under him could acquire a lien on the homestead. Muller v. McLaughlin [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 687.

80. Creditors of deceased who became such while she was unmarried and owned certain land, which thereafter became the homestead of herself and her husband, held not entitled to claim that land was not a homestead as against them. Holder's Adm'r v. Holder [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1100, following Nichols v. Sennitt, 78 Ky. 632 and Hensey v. Hensey's Adm'r, 92 Ky. 164, 17 S. W. 333, and overruling Park v. Wright, 25 Ky. L. R. 128, 74 S. W. 712.

81. Is not controlled by the fact that the records in the guardianship proceedings failed to show that property was adjudged a homestead. Triffen v. Harris [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 538, 88 S. W. 493.

82. Under Const. 1874, art. 9, § 3, a judgment in favor of a beneficiary against a trustee for trust funds left with the latter is enforceable against the homestead. Godfrey v. Herring [Ark.] 85 S. W. 232.

83. In an action for the possession of land, defendant seeking to have the deed declared a mortgage, held, he could not claim a homestead exemption as against unsecured debts due the mortgagee. Hallman v. George, 70 S. C. 403, 50 S. E. 24.

84. Code, § 4010 does not apply where a pensioner purchased, with pension money, land which he had conveyed to his wife before it was occupied as a homestead. Whinery v. McLeod [Iowa] 102 N. W. 132.

85. Pullen v. Simpson [Ark.] 86 S. W. 801.

86. Groves v. Osburn [Or.] 79 P. 500. See Bankruptcy, 5 C. L. 367.

87. Rowan v. Combs, 121 Ga. 469, 49 S. E. 275, following Moore v. Peacock, 94 Ga. 523, 21 S. E. 144. After an imbecile, adult sole beneficiary of a homestead estate, dies, her guardian cannot maintain an action against one who retains the rents and profits of the homestead estate. Id. Where the legal title to the homestead is in the wife, she is entitled to the rents and profits thereof and to property purchased with such rents and profits and may hold the same against the creditors of the husband. Sharp v. Fitzhugh [Ark.] 88 S. W. 929.

88. Provision in a note secured by a mechanic's lien for improvements on a homestead. Cooper v. Brazelton [C. C. A.] 135 F. 476 Contract for erection of house on homestead giving an attorney's fee in case of the mortgage upon a homestead cannot be enforced as against a surviving spouse unless a claim therefor has been duly presented to the administrator of the deceased homestead claimant;[89] but this rule applies exclusively to the property described in the mortgage, which is impressed with the character of the homestead.[90] In Kentucky an abandoned wife may appeal from a judgment disallowing her claim.[91]

The homestead being exempt from execution, no right is acquired therein by the levy of a writ of attachment and the foreclosure of the alleged attachment lien.[92]

Judicial and execution sales.[93]—The institution of supplementary proceedings does not prevent defendant from withdrawing his funds from the reach of his creditors by investing them in a homestead.[94] In Texas a forced sale is void.[95] In Missouri execution being levied on property in which a homestead is claimed, the sheriff must give the homesteader a fair opportunity to make his selection or a sale thereunder is void,[96] and the proceedings in respect thereto must be set out in the sheriff's return,[97] though they need not be contained in his deed.[98]

§ 6. Alienation and incumbrance.[99]—A homestead is not the subject of fraudulent alienation.[1] The conveyance may precede the claim and selection [2] so long as the statutory time of claiming and selecting yet runs.[3] Where the recited consideration in a deed by a husband and wife of their homestead is greater than that agreed to be and actually paid, the vendee is put upon inquiry and is guilty of constructive fraud rendering the deed a nullity, unless it be shown that the wife knew of and assented to the lesser sum as the consideration for the conveyance.[4] A wife being entitled to the homestead absolutely in case she survives her husband, a deed to the property executed to her by the husband alone, in consideration of her promise to preserve the property for the husband's brother after her death, conveys nothing.[5] In Texas a mortgage on a homestead is void [6] and subsequent abandonment of the premises as a homestead cannot give the instrument validity,[7] though covering both homestead and other property, it may be valid as to the latter.[8] Defective deeds may be rendered effective by curative acts.[9] foreclosure of a mechanic's lien. Summerville v. King [Tex.] 84 S. W. 643, modifying 83 S. W. 680.

89. Bank of Woodland v. Stephens [Cal.] 79 P. 379.

90. The fact that the mortgagee failed to prove his claim held not to deprive him of his right to foreclose the same, as against the property found in such probate proceedings not subject to homestead. Bank of Woodland v. Stephens [Cal.] 79 P. 379.

91. Under Civ. Code Proc. § 34, subsec. 4, providing that an abandoned wife may bring or defend any action which her husband might have brought or defended, where she intervenes in a suit claiming land as a homestead she may appeal from a judgment disallowing her claim. Stephens v. Stephens [Ky.] 85 S. W. 1093.

92. Holland v. Zilliox [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 36.

93. See 3 C. L. 1637.

94. Does not give plaintiff a lien on the funds. McConnell v. Wolcott [Kan.] 78 P. 848. Supplementary Proceedings 4 C. L. 1591.

95. Art. 16, § 50, of the Const. protects the homestead from forced sale for the payment of all debts, hence the county court has no jurisdiction or power to order a sale of the homestead to pay the ordinary debts of the estate and a purchaser under such order acquires no title. Griffen v. Harris [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 538, 88 S. W. 493.

96, 97. Rev. St. 1899, § 3617. Kessner v. Phillips [Mo.] 88 S. W. 66.

98. Kessner v. Phillips [Mo.] 88 S. W. 66.

99. See 3 C. L. 1637. See 2 Tiffany, Real Prop. p. 1132, § 499.

1. Wilks v. Vaughan [Ark.] 83 S. W. 913; Hinkle v. Broadwater [Ark.] 84 S. W. 510; Gibson v. Barrett [Ark.] 87 S. W. 435; Isbell v. Jones [Ark.] 88 S. W. 593; Sharp v Fitzhugh [Ark.] 88 S. W. 929; Jolly v. Diehl [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 965; Reed Bros. v. Nicholson [Mo.] 88 S. W. 71. See, also, Osborne & Co. v. Evans, 185 Mo. 509, 84 S. W. 867. Where a debtor, immediately upon purchasing property, occupied the same with his children as a home, the fact that he was insolvent when he purchased the same, and on that account had the title conveyed to his children, with a life estate only in himself, does not affect his right of homestead as against a levy of execution subsequently made. Brown v. Rash [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 783, 89 S. W. 438.

2, 3. Where conveyance was attacked as fraudulent held debtor could increase his homestead claim to the full statutory amount. Wilks v. Vaughan [Ark.] 83 S. W. 913.

4. Johnson v. Callaway [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 178. Deed set aside. Id.

5. Loomis v. Loomis [Cal.] 82 P. 679.

6, 7, 8. Dignowity v. Baumblatt [Tex Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 834.

Necessity of consent of wife to conveyance or joinder therein.[10]—It is an almost universal rule that both the husband and wife must join in a deed or incumbrance of the homestead [11] and, if she does not, the vendor may maintain ejectment.[12] This rule does not prevail in the absence of some constitutional or statutory provision establishing it.[13] It is not necessary for a wife who has abandoned her husband to join in the deed,[14] and it has been held that an abandoned husband conveying the property is estopped from setting up title in himself on the ground that his wife did not join in the deed.[15] In some states the deed is valid as to any excess over and above the homestead exemption [16] and the invalidity of a mortgage given by the husband alone does not render the debt, which the mortgage is given to secure, illegal or unenforceable.[17] This protection given the wife must not be used for the purpose of perpetrating a fraud.[18] What she is unable to do directly, she will not be permitted to do indirectly by sale on partition.[19]

Acknowledgment of conveyance.[20]—In some states the wife's acknowledgment must be separate.[21]

Contracts to convey.[22]—As a general rule the wife must join in a contract to convey; [23] but, even when statutes so require, the principles of equitable estoppel have been held to render an oral contract to convey enforceable.[24] In an action to enforce specific performance of a contract to convey defendant alleging that the land was his homestead has the burden of proving such fact.[25]

§ 7. Loss or relinquishment.[26]—Abandonment is a question of fact for the

9. A trust deed on a homestead, though defective in that it does not conform to Kirby's Dig. § 3901, is valid under the curative act (§ 784) when signed by the wife and not in litigation when § 785 became effective. McDaniels v. Sammons [Ark.] 86 S. W. 997.

10. See 3 C. L. 1638.

11. Wife must join. Deeds. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Lewis [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 817; In re Geary's Estate, 146 Cal. 105, 79 P. 855. Deed by husband to wife held void. Civ. Code, §§ 1242, 1243. Loomis v. Loomis [Cal.] 82 P. 679; Bollen v. Lilly [Miss.] 37 So. 811. Warranty clause creates no estoppel against vendor, even after wife's death. Id.; Moseley v. Larson [Miss.] 38 So. 234. Where a husband who was non compos mentis conveyed his homestead worth $4,000 for $500, his wife not joining in the deed, held, the conveyance was a fraud on the wife and void and that equity had jurisdiction to enjoin ejectment against her and to cancel the deed. Id. Mortgage. Bates v. Frazier [Ky.] 85 S. W. 757. Contract for improvements. Muller v. McLaughlin [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 687. Neither husband nor wife can dispose by sale or conveyance of a homestead right without the express consent of the other. Grace v. Grace [Minn.] 104 N. W. 969.

12. Bollen v. Lilly [Miss.] 37 So. 811.

13. A wife need not join in the conveyance of a homestead acquired before the enactment of Laws 1895, p. 185, rendering a husband incapable of conveying the homestead without joining his wife. Elliott v. Bristow, 185 Mo. 15, 84 S. W. 48.

14, 15. Mann v. Wilson [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1061.

16. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, p. 944, c. 52, an attempt by a husband to convey the homestead without his wife joining in the execution of the deed conveys only the excess over and above the homestead of $1,000. Jespersen v. Mech, 213 Ill. 488, 72 N. E. 1114.

17. Dever v. Selz [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 113, 87 S. W. 891.

18. Rev. St. 1887, §§ 2921, 2922, 3040, 3041, construed. Grice v. Woodworth [Idaho] 80 P. 912. Where purchaser under oral contract took possession, paid the purchase price and made valuable improvements, held contract would be enforced. Id.

19. Grace v. Grace [Minn.] 104 N. W. 969. A wife cannot, by leaving her husband, acquire the right to compel partition of her husband's homestead, in which she has an undivided half interest and which she occupied with him as a homestead. Id.

20. See 3 C. L. 1639.

21. Where there was no examination of the wife and no acknowledgment by her before the officer making the certificate of examination and acknowledgment such certificate is void. Chattanooga Nat. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Vaught [Ala.] 39 So. 215.

22. See 3 C. L. 1639.

23. Under Code, § 2974, providing that the wife must join in contract to convey, held, where an unmarried man decided to divide small tract and sell portions but before doing so married, and took up his residence thereon and thereafter, his wife not joining, leased it with privilege of purchasing, held, such privilege was unenforceable. Hostetler v. Eddy [Iowa] 104 N. W. 485.

24. Where purchaser under oral contract took possession, paid the purchase price and made valuable improvements, held, contract would be enforced. Grice v. Woodworth [Idaho] 80 P. 912.

25. Steele v. Robertson [Ark.] 87 S. W. 117.

26. See 3 C. L. 1639. See 2 Tiffany, Real Prop. p. 1134, § 499.

jury [27] and must be proved by clear and convincing evidence [28] by the party alleging it.[29] Discontinuance of the use being coupled with an intention to return,[30] existing throughout the interval of absence,[31] does not work an abandonment; hence, an enforced temporary absence on account of the destruction of the dwelling house on the premises will not work an abandonment [32] unless continued for such length of time as to negative any intention to return.[33] The only inference that can be drawn from an attempt to trade one homestead for another is that of an intention not to abandon the homestead.[34] A void deed does not affect the claimant's rights.[35] Occupancy by a tenant at sufferance is the occupancy of the owner.[36] A wife, abandoning her husband, has no further interest in the homestead.[37] A statutory method of abandonment or waiver is generally exclusive.[38] The homestead right being acquired, the persons entitled to it cannot be divested by acts or influences beyond their volition.[39] In Georgia a homestead for the benefit of a family of dependent females

27. Macavenny v. Ralph, 107 Ill. App. 542. Where because of trouble with children by a former marriage, a homestead claimant moved from her homestead without filing a declaration of homestead, and before she returned she conveyed it to her husband to defraud creditors, held, there was an abandonment. New v. Young [Ala.] 39 So. 201. Where claimant had moved away, evidence examined and held insufficient to show that he retained his homestead rights. Steele v. Robertson [Ark.] 87 S. W. 117.

28. Elliott v. Parlin & Orendorff Co. [Kan.] 81 P. 500.

29. Canning v. Andrews [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 22; Elliott v. Parlin & Orendorff Co. [Kan.] 81 P. 500.

30. Debtor held not to lose right by a temporary absence for the purposes of trade. Wilks v. Vaughan [Ark.] 83 S. W. 913. Where one left homestead and took his family to another place where he hoped to make enough money to be able to return and set up a shop in the place where the homestead was located, held no abandonment. In re Schulz, 135 F. 228. The fact that a husband on marrying left his homestead and lived with his wife on premises that constituted her homestead before marriage, held not to show an abandonment where he intended and had made preparations to return, but had not done so merely because he could not induce his wife to go with him. Canning v. Andrews [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 22. Where debtor had left state with his family but apparently contemplated returning and using homestead, held, evidence was insufficient to show abandonment. Elliott v. Parlin & Orendorff Co. [Kan.] 81 P. 500.

31. Instruction that there was no abandonment if claimant intended to return at time of removal held erroneous. Lynch v. McGown [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 543, 88 S. W. 894.

32. Newton v. Russian [Ark.] 85 S. W. 407.

33. Newton v. Russian [Ark.] 85 S. W. 407. Desertion of wife by husband within a few months after the enforced removal held not to constitute an abandonment. Id.

34. In re Schulz, 135 F. 228.

35. In re Geary's Estate, 146 Cal. 105, 79 P. 855.

36. Macavenny v. Ralph, 107 Ill. App. 542.

37. Mann v. Wilson [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1061.

38. Charleston State Bank v. Brooks, 109 Ill. App. 51. Under Civ. Code, § 1243, declaring that a homestead can be abandoned only by a declaration of abandonment or a deed by both husband and wife, a deed of part of a homestead by a husband to his wife is no abandonment. Payne v. Cummings, 146 Cal. 426, 80 P. 620. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1474, providing that if the homestead is selected from community property it vests absolutely in the survivor on the death of the husband or wife, a conveyance of an undivided interest in a homestead made by a husband after the wife's death does not destroy the exemption as to a debt contracted before the conveyance and before the death of the wife. Id.

39. Palmer v. Sawyer [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1088. A debtor does not lose his right to the exemption where he continues to occupy the property as a home, though, by reason of death and removal of his family, he has no one living with him. Id. Failure of probate court to set aside homestead of lunatic is not a waiver of the exemption. Griffen v. Harris [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 538, 88 S. W. 493.

NOTE. Is the continued existence of the homestead dependent upon there being a "family" dependent upon the claimant? Upon this point there is an irreconcilable conflict. This conflict in some instances is traceable to the different provisions of the statutes construed, and in other instances to the conception taken by the court of the intention of the legislature in the enactment of the statute. Those courts which look upon the statute as a statute of nurture, intended solely for the protection of the dependent members of the family from the improvidence of the head of the family, without any division, arrive at the conclusion that when the homestead has been selected, and the dependent members of the family for whose benefit it was created have ceased to occupy, the protection of the homestead ceases, because the reason for the protection has ceased. The leading cases supporting this theory of construction are Revalk v. Kraemer, 8 Cal. 66, 68 Am. Dec. 304; Bank v. Cooper, 56 Cal. 539; Johnson v. Little, 90 Ga. 781, 17 S. E. 294; Cooper v. Cooper, 24 Ohio St. 488; Galligar v. Payne, 34 La. Ann. 1057; Hill v. Franklin, 54 Miss. 632; Fullerton v. Sherrill, 114 Iowa, 511, 87 N. W. 419. In opposition to this view is another line of decisions ceases upon the death of the homestead applicant.[40] There being a constitutional inhibition against the fixing on the homestead of liens not thereby expressly permitted, declarations made while the property is in the actual use and occupancy of the family as a homestead cannot estop the homestead claimant from claiming his exemption,[41] though declarations made while the property is not so used may work an estoppel.[42] In South Carolina it seems that removal from the state may work an abandonment.[43] The execution of a new mortgage for the purpose of paying an old mortgage on the property does not divest the mortgagor of his homestead rights.[44] Where a homestead is sold on foreclosure and the deed is executed under an agreement by the grantee to hold the legal title as mortgagee, subject to redemption by the mortgagor, the equitable title acquired by the latter is a continuation of the previous homestead right.[45] A waiver of the exemption in a mortgage operates in favor of the mortgage creditor alone and does not inure to the benefit of others.[46] If the mortgage is valid, the exemption, as against the mortgage creditor, is restricted to the equity of redemption and the rights of other creditors are subordinate to the mortgage lien.[47] Pending bankruptcy proceedings, the holder of a based on the hypothesis that the intention of the legislature in enacting the various homestead statutes was to protect the home and all its inmates from any business misfortune and financial adversity that might befall them; that the protection extends to the head of the family as well as to the dependent members. This theory leads to the conclusion that when a homestead has been selected by the head of a family he becomes invested with a right or estate in such homestead which cannot be defeated by the death or abandonment of the home by the other members of the family who occupied it at the time of its selection. The following are some of the leading cases supporting this view: Silloway v. Brown, 12 Allen [Mass.] 30; Kimbrel v. Willis, 97 Ill. 494; Stanley v. Snyder, 43 Ark. 429; Beckmann v. Meyer, 75 Mo. 333; Webb v. Cowley, 5 Lea [Tenn.] 722; Blum v. Gaines, 57 Tex. 119; Gallagher v. Smiley, 28 Neb. 189, 44 N. W. 187, 26 Am. St. Rep. 319; Stults v. Sale, 92 Ky. 5, 17 S. W. 148, 36 Am. St. Rep. 575, 13 L. R. A. 743.—From Palmer v. Sawyer [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1089.

40. Jones v. McCrary [Ga.] 51 S. E. 349.

Note: In this case the court considers all the Georgia cases bearing on this question, shows the conflicts that exist and reconciles them by classifying the beneficiaries. The court also states that it would seem more logical and consistent with former rulings that the dependence should be upon the property rather than the applicant, but holds that they are bound by the case of Towns v. Mathews. 91 Ga. 549, 17 S. E. 955.

41. Under Const. Tex. art. 16, § 50, a purported mechanic's lien on a homestead, given simply to secure a usurious loan of money, is void, notwithstanding recitals therein stating that it was given for labor and material advanced to the lender for improvements on the borrower's homestead. Cooper v. Brazelton [C. C. A.] 135 F. 476.

42. One filing a designation of homestead and occupying such land as a homestead and mortgaging other land cannot defeat the mortgage by subsequently claiming the mortgaged premises as a homestead. Pickett v. Gleed [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 946.

43. Bailey v. Wood [S. C.] 50 S. E. 631.

NOTE. Removal to another state: The mere fact that a homestead owner has removed to another state does not seem to be regarded as of any special weight in determining whether he intended to abandon his homestead. The question whether the removal was intended to be permanent or temporary is determined in such case in the same manner as if the removal was to a place within the state. Willbanks v. Untriner, 98 Ga. 801, 25 S. E. 841; Benbow v. Boyer, 89 Iowa, 494, 56 N. W. 544. It was, however, held in an early Iowa case that such a removal to another state was prima facie evidence of abandonment. Orman v. Orman, 26 Iowa, 361. In most of the cases, in which the fact of removal from the state appears, the question of abandonment is treated in the same manner as if the removal were to some place within the state, the character of the removal being made to depend upon whether there was at the time an intent to return. In some states the right to a homestead exemption being dependent upon the owner being a resident of the state, the right may be lost by residence in another state (see Baker v. Leggett, 98 N. C. 304, 4 S. E. 37; Finley v. Saunders, 98 N. C. 462, 4 S. E. 516), but even in such cases it would be necessary to show intent in order to determine where the residence really is intended to be. The fact of the owner having removed to another state appears in the following cases: Caheen v. Mulligan, 37 Ill. 230, 87 Am. Dec. 247; Smith v. Kneer, 203 Ill. 264, 67 N. E. 780; Leonard v. Ingraham, 58 Iowa, 406, 10 N. W. 804; Perry v. Dillrance, 86 Iowa, 424, 53 N. W. 280; Kulmert v. Conrad, 6 N. D. 215, 69 N. W. 185; Roach v. Hackner, 2 Lea [Tenn.] 633; McClellan v. Carroll [Tenn. Ch.] 42 S. W. 185; Moore v. Smead, 89 Wis. 558, 62 N. W. 426.—From note to Burkhardt v. Walker [Mich.] 102 Am. St. Rep. 386, 410.

44. Such mortgage lien is superior to the rights of a judgment creditor of the mortgagor. France v. Hohnbaum [Neb.] 102 N. W. 75, rehearing overruled [Neb.] 104 N. W. 865.

45. Foster v. Rice, 126 Iowa, 190, 101 N. W. 771.

46, 47. In re Nye [C. C. A.] 133 F. 33.

note containing a waiver of the homestead right must enforce his rights in a court of equity [48] and, not proving his claim in the bankruptcy proceedings, he may have a special judgment against such exempt property.[49]

§ 8. Rights of surviving spouse, children, heirs or dependents of homestead tenant.[50]—The rights of the surviving spouse, children or dependents of the homestead claimant, are almost wholly statutory.[51] The widow of a head of a family

48. Has no remedy at law. Bell v. Dawson Grocery Co., 120 Ga. 628, 48 S. E. 150; Hudson v. Lamar, T. & R. Drug Co., 121 Ga. 835, 49 S. E. 735.

49. Amendment to pleading allowed. Wright v. Horne [Ga.] 51 S. E. 30. See Bankruptcy, 5 C. L. 367.

50. See 3 C. L. 1640. As to widow's quarantine, see Descent and Distribution, 5 C. L. 995; Estates of Decedents, 5 C. L. 1183.

51. Alabama: Under Code 1896, §§ 2069, 2071, where a decedent is survived by a wife and two minor children and his estate consits of other realty besides the homestead and is not declared insolvent, the widow and one child dying, the homestead rights inure solely to the surviving child during his minority. No interest therein can be sold to pay the debts of the deceased child. Hosea v. Davis [Ala.] 39 S. 315.

Arkansas [See 3 C. L. 1641, n. 54]: Under Const. 1874, art. 9, §§ 3-6, widow is entitled to the homestead of her deceased husband, if he was a resident of the state at the time of his death, for and during her natural life. His minor children are entitled to share it with her. Gates v. Solomon [Ark.] 83 S. W. 348. In an action of ejectment against a widow, an answer that defendant's husband at the time of his death was occupying the land as a homestead and that subsequent thereto defendant continued to occupy the same as a homestead, held to set up a good defense. Id. In such a case an answer by a child held demurrable for failing to show that she was a minor at the commencement of their action, or had a right to hold it as a homestead. Id. Under Const. art. 9, §§ 6, 10, and Sand. & H. Dig. § 3588, where a father dies leaving a widow and minor children and a homestead and thereafter the widow marries and acquires another homestead, on her death a minor child of the first marriage is entitled to a homestead in either the homestead of his father or his mother, to be selected by his guardian. Grimes v. Luster [Ark.] 84 S. W. 223.

California [See 3 C. L. 1641, n. 54]: The homestead being selected by the husband and wife during coverture and recorded it vests, on the death of either, absolutely in the survivor. This right is not waived by the filing of a petition to have the property set out to the surviving spouse as a homestead, nor does an order so doing effect the title of such spouse. Code Civ. Proc. § 1474. Saddlemire v. Stockton Sav. & Loan Soc., 144 Cal. 650, 79 P. 381. Complaint by children and heirs at law of deceased owner that they had been induced to sign a deed of trust on such property through fraud, held not maintainable, the widow not being made a party. Id. Where premises, selected by deceased in his lifetime from community property as a homestead do not exceed $5,000 in value at the time of their appraisal in probate proceedings, it is the imperative duty of the court to set them off to the widow on her petition. In re McCarthy's Estate [Cal. App.] 82 P. 635.

Georgia: A homestead for the benefit of a family of dependent females ceases upon the death of the homestead applicant. Jones v. McCrary [Ga.] 51 S. E. 349.

Illinois: [See 3 C. L. 1641]:Under the act of 1857, the homestead exemption continued for the benefit of the widow and family of the householder, some of them continuing to occupy such homestead until the youngest child should become twenty-one years of age and until the death of the widow. Bechdoldt v. Bechdoldt [Ill.] 75 N. E. 557.

Kentucky: The homestead of the wife continues after her death for the benefit of the surviving husband so long as he continues to occupy the land, although he has neither family nor children living with him. Holder's Adm'r v. Holder [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1100. In partition the fee-simple interest of infants should be laid off with respect to their rights, given by Ky. St. 1903, § 1707, to occupy the homestead of their deceased father during minority; that is to say, if the homestead is less than their fee-simple interest, the latter should be made to include the former, or if the homestead is of greater value than the fee-simple interest the latter should be included in the former. Campbell v. Asher [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1067.

Louisiana: A widow left in necessitous circumstances is entitled to the $1,000 homestead, though she does not live and has never lived in the state where her husband was domiciled and died. Succession of Duplin, 113 La. 786, 37 So. 755.

Minnesota: Where a widow, with children, remarries and the homestead is placed in her name, such homestead, in the absence of children or surviving issue of any deceased child by the second marriage, descends on her death to her husband for life with remainder to her children by the prior marriage. In re Poseng's Estate [Minn.] 104 N. W. 137.

Mississippi [See 3 C. L. 1641, n. 54]: Under Code 1892, § 1553, a surviving widow is entitled to continue to occupy the homestead as it existed in the lifetime of the husband irrespective of its value. Moody v. Moody [Miss.] 38 So. 322.

Missouri [See 3 C. L. 1641, n. 54]: There being no minor children, the widow is entitled to the exclusive possession of the homestead. Mahoney v. Nevins [Mo.] 88 S. W. 731. The fee of the homestead is liable to sale subject to the rights of the widow therein for the payment of debts of the deceased husband. Robbins v. Boulware [Mo.] 88 S. W. 674.

Montana: In the absence of children, the surviving spouse takes a fee to the homestead which he or she may convey giving the grantee a fee and the right to the use of water appurtenant thereto and the means may prosecute any appropriate remedy to prevent interference with her homestead interest,[52] and, being under no legal disability, she must assert her cause of action within the period of limitation.[53] Being entitled to the exclusive possession of the homestead, she is entitled to all the rents, issues and products during the existence of her homestead estate,[54] including crops growing at the time of her husband's death.[55] A secret wife of a deceased mortgagor is not entitled to claim the mortgaged property as a homestead as against the mortgagee, the latter having been ignorant of the mortgage.[56] Where a creditor of an insolvent estate holding a vendor's lien on real estate refuses to file a claim but forecloses his lien, the widow is entitled to be subrogated to such creditor's rights as against the personal estate, and to the allowance of a homestead from the surplus arising on the sale of the real estate and from the pro rata share of the personal estate to which the lien creditor would have been entitled had he filed a claim against the estate.[57] The right of the survivor of a community to occupy the community homestead is a personal right, and not an estate in land which can be assigned or conveyed so as to vest the right to such use and occupancy in the assignee.[58] It follows that when the surviving wife sells her interest in a community homestead the homestead right terminates and the heirs of the deceased husband are entitled to possession of their interest in the property.[59] As an infant by marrying becomes a member of another family, he or she is generally deemed divested of his or her rights in the homestead of a decedent.[60] The manner of setting aside the homestead is largely statutory,[61] but, being exempt from forced sale to satisfy decedent's debts, no administration is necessary to render the exemption effectual in favor of his children.[62] Minor child-of using the same. Bullerdick v. Hermsmeyer [Mont.] 81 P. 334.

Nebraska [See 3 C. L. 1641, n. 54]: A homestead of less value than $2,000 cannot be disposed of at an administrator's sale either for the discharge of incumbrances thereon or for the payment of debts against the estate of the decedent and a license granted by the district court purporting to authorize such a sale is absolutely void. Bixby v. Jewell [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1026; Brandon v. Jensen [Neb.] 104 N. W. 1054, following Tindall v. Peterson [Neb.] 98 N. W. 688. See 1 C. L. 1641, n. 54.

Texas: A surviving husband may sell the community homestead for the purpose of paying community debts. Dever v. Selz [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 113, 87 S. W. 891. Under Const. art. 16, § 37, a mechanic's lien is superior to the homestead claim of minor children. Summerville v. King [Tex.] 83 S. W. 680. The business homestead, upon the death of the husband, may be set aside to the wife to the exclusion of the minor children, and the latter cannot force partition and recover their interest until such homestead is abandoned or the widow dies. White v. Yates [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 46. Under Rev. St. Tex. 1895, art. 2046, on the death of a person leaving unmarried daughters surviving and living with him at the time as part of his family, the homestead which he then occupied descended to and vested in such daughters and other surviving children free from the father's debts. Randolph v. White, 135 F. 875. Such art. 2046 is not repugnant to Const. Tex. art. 16, § 52. Id.

Wisconsin: Rev. St. 1898, § 2271, providing that the homestead shall descend free from all judgments and claims against the deceased owner, with certain exceptions, abrogates the right to a vendor's lien thereon. Schmidt v. Schmidt's Estate, 123 Wis. 295, 101 N. W. 678.

52. McWhorter v. Cheney, 121 Ga. 541, 49 S. E. 603.

Note: Same rule seems to apply to the wife of the head of a family. Connally v. Hardwick, 61 Ga. 501; Eve v. Cross, 76 Ga. 693; Pritchett v. Davis, 101 Ga. 236, 28 S. E. 666, 65 Am. St. Rep. 298.—From McWhorter v. Cheney, 121 Ga. 541, 49 S. E. 603.

53. McWhorter v. Cheney, 121 Ga. 541, 49 S. E. 603. Delay of eighteen years held to bar action based on fraud. Id. See Limitation of Actions, 4 C. L. 445.

54. Mahoney v. Nevins [Mo.] 88 S. W. 731.

55. So held where there were no minor children. Mahoney v. Nevins [Mo.] 88 S. W. 731.

56. Wife had never resided on premises. Hale v. Marshall [Mich.] 102 N. W. 658.

57. Whitmore v. Roscoe, 112 Tenn. 621, 85 S. W. 860.

58, 59. York v. Hutcheson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 895.

60. So held under Ky. St. 1903, § 1707, providing that unmarried infant children of a decedent shall be entitled to a joint occupancy of the homestead until the youngest arrives at majority. Jones v. Crawford [Ky.] 84 S. W. 568.

61. Under Comp. St. 1887, div. 2, § 134, the probate court could set aside a homestead to a surviving spouse either on petition or upon the court's or judge's own motion. Bullerdick v. Hermsmeyyer [Mont.] 81 P. 334.

62. Randolph v. White, 135 F. 875. County court has no jurisdiction of proceedings to ren have no homestead right in any particular portion of the property of their deceased father until it is set aside to them by an order of court.[63] Upon abandonment of the property as a homestead by the widow and children the property generally descends to decedent's heirs at law.[64]

Election.[65]—Owing to the interest of minor children, statutes do not generally allow the homestead to be merged in dower.[66] A surviving spouse, having an undivided one-half interest in land, by electing to take a homestead in a designated part of the tract waives all right to the remainder thereof up to the value of the homestead.[67]

Rights of divorced parties.[68]—In divorce proceedings a homestead, which is community property, being set apart for the use of the wife and minor children it is not subject to sale on execution against the divorced husband,[69] and it is proper for the court in the decree of divorce to protect the wife and minor children in its use.[70] Where the homestead has been occupied by the husband and the wife intended to occupy it as soon as able, the homestead rights of the family are not affected by a decree of divorce, the homestead being community property and the custody of minor children being awarded the wife.[71]

Claim to reimbursement for expenditures.[72]

§ 9. Exemption of proceeds of homestead or of substituted properties.[73]—Land paid for in full with the proceeds of a homestead is homestead property and stands, as to exemption from sale, on the same footing as the original homestead,[74] though the conveyance of the new property be to the wrong person.[75] In the absence of notice, actual or constructive, of the homestead character of the substituted property creditors dealing therewith will be protected.[76] In some states the exemption follows the fund.[77] In Missouri the exemption of the proceeds of a sale of the homestead is confined to another homestead acquired therewith.[78]

§ 10. Remedies and procedure. Remedies by suit or action.[79]—In Wisconsin, sell the homestead for the payment of the debts of the deceased owner's estate. Dignowity v. Baumblatt [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 834.

63. White v. Yates [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 46.

64. Jespersen v. Mech, 213 Ill. 488, 72 N. E. 1114.

65. See 3 C. L. 1641.

66. Rev. St. 1899, § 3621, providing that if the homestead equals the dower right no dower shall be awarded the widow, has no effect to deprive her of her homestead interest under any circumstances, where she elects to take a child's part in lieu of dower. McFadin v. Board [Mo.] 87 S. W. 948.

67. Carroll v. Jefferies [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 1050.

68. See 3 C. L. 1642.

69, 70, 71. Holland v. Zilliox [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 36.

72, 73. See 3 C. L. 1642.

74. Johnson v. Thomason, 120 Ga. 531, 48 S. E. 137. Under Rev. St. ch. 52, § 6, exemption extends to lots purchased with proceeds of sale of homestead. Macavenny v. Ralph, 107 Ill. App. 542. The homestead being exempt its value in exchanged property is exempt. Godfrey v. Herring [Ark.] 85 S. W. 232.

75. Johnson v. Thomason, 120 Ga. 531, 48 S. E. 137. Where a judgment creditor, to whose lien a homestead was subject, acted as a receiver in selling the homestead and reinvesting the proceeds, taking a deed to himself as "trustee and receiver" to be held as a homestead for the use of the beneficiaries of the original homestead, with reversion to the estate of him from whose property the homestead had been set apart, held, creditor was not estopped from enforcing his judgment against the last mentioned land. Id.

76. Mortgagor of property received in exchange for a homestead will be protected, he having had no notice of its status. Ford v. Fargason, 120 Ga. 606, 48 S. E. 180. Where personalty was duly exempted and was used in raising a crop, the proceeds of which were invested in land, held mortgagee of latter, in the absence of notice, had a valid lien. Reed v. Holbrook [Ga.] 51 S. E. 720.

77. Where a wife parted with her interest in the homestead, on agreement that she should receive the proceeds in payment of a debt from the husband, a judgment lien creditor of the husband could not subject to his lien the vendor's lien notes given the wife. Howard v. Mayher [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 49, 88 S. W. 409.

78. Where homestead was exchanged for wild land and this land exchanged for the land in controversy and neither the claimant nor his family ever occupied the wild land or the land in controversy as a homestead, the latter land is not exempt as a homestead. Rev. St. 1899, § 3623, construed. Osborne & Co. v. Evans, 185 Mo. 509, 84 S. W. 867.

79. See 3 C. L. 1643. Remedies in bank-title to the homestead being in the husband, in a suit to enforce a mechanic's lien for work done under a contract entered into with the husband alone, the wife is not a necessary party.[80] An "appeal" from a clerk's grant of a supersedeas to the debtor in Arkansas will be regarded by chancery as a motion to quash the supersedeas and to proceed with sale [81] and should be heard.[82]

Remedies of creditors against excess.[83]—The homestead exceeding the statutory amount, the creditors are entitled to the excess,[84] and a levy of an execution on the property creates a lien on such excess.[85] In Colorado the fact that the value of the homestead exceeds the statutory amount does not entitle the creditor to possession, but the property must be sold and the amount of the exemption paid to the owner.[86] Statutes generally provide a method for determining the necessity of a sale.[87] Execution being levied on the premises, delay in having the excess determined may work an abandonment.[88]

HOMICIDE.

§ 1. Elements of crime in general and parties thereto.[89]—Responsibility for homicide exists, though the injury inflicted be not the sole cause of death, if it proximately contributes thereto,[90] and in like manner proximate causal connection between defendant's act and the infliction of the fatal wound is all that is required; [91] ruptcy proceedings, see Bankruptcy, 5 C. L. 367.

80. If she fails to make application to intervene before judgment, she should not be permitted to have the latter vacated and be allowed to defend on the same grounds as those urged by her husband. Hunt v. McDonald [Wis.] 102 N. W. 318.

81, 82. An execution debtor filed a schedule of exemptions, and the clerk of the court, over the creditor's exceptions, issued a supersedeas, and from the clerk's decision the creditor "appealed" to the court. It was error for the court to dismiss the "appeal." Harris v. Henry [Ark.] 86 S. W. 666.

83. See 3 C. L. 1643.

84. In a proceeding to set aside a conveyance from a husband to his wife as fraudulent, the court is limited to a finding what part of the property belonged to the husband, and, it being used as a homestead, to directing that the land be valued, the homesteader be allowed to select his exemption, and the excess after paying the wife the amount due her, be subject to plaintiff's claim. Reed Bros. v. Nicholson [Mo.] 88 S. W. 71.

85. Lean v. Givens [Cal] 81 P. 128. The levy creates a conditional lien to become absolute in the event it is determined in proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1245-1261, that an excess exists, and a purchaser after the levy takes subject to the lien. Id.

86. In re Nye [C. C. A.] 133 F. 33.

87. Under Civ. Code, §§ 1245-1261, providing a plan whereby the excess of value over the exemption may be subject to sale on execution, the appraisers reporting that the property cannot be divided, there is no necessity for a notice of the hearing of the report. Lean v. Givens [Cal.] 81 P. 128.

88. The fact that there was sixteen months delay after the levy of an execution on a homestead before proceedings were taken under Civ. Code, §§ 1245-1258, providing a method for subjecting to execution the excess of value over the exemption, held not to show an abandonment; a part of the delay being explained by the pendency of a suit to enjoin the execution sale. Lean v. Givens [Cal.] 81 P. 128.

89. See 3 C. L. 1643.

90. Where the wound caused pneumonia, which caused death. State v. Wilson [La.] 38 So. 397. Where it was claimed that the immediate cause of the death was a disease resulting from a germ entering the wound. Bishop v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 707.

91. Where a party freed a lunatic's hand from an officer's grasp, thereby enabling the but if the unlawful act or omission of defendant was merely a condition and not a cause of the death, he is not responsible.[92] That the injury was intended for another is immaterial.[93] General rules governing principals and accessories,[94] and the responsibility of conspirators, apply.[95] One who aids, abets or encourages another in the commission of a homicide is not relieved from criminal responsibility by fleeing from the scene of the difficulty before the fatal shot is fired.[96]

§ 2. Murder[97] is the unlawful killing of a human being with malice aforethought,[98] express or implied.[99] An actual intent to take life is not a necessary in-lunatic to shoot the officer, he was held criminally responsible for the lunatic's act. Johnson v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 182.

92. Persons who assault another, for the purpose of robbing them, are not guilty of homicide, if he, in defending himself, kills a third person. Commonwealth v. Moore [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1085. See Clark & M. Crimes [2d Ed.] § 236, p. 317.

93. Where one shoots with intent to kill another, it is immaterial whether he sees or not the third person whom he kills. Gater v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 692; State v. Briggs [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 218.

94. Cortez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 812; Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1. To constitute a person guilty of voluntary manslaughter as an aider or abettor, the killing must have been willfully and feloniously committed by his co-defendants or some of them, in a sudden affray or sudden heat or passion, without previous malice, and not in self-defense, and defendant must have been present aiding or abetting. Wheeler v. Com. [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1106. Accessories punished as principals in Pennsylvania, under Act of March 31, 1860 [P. L. 440] (Commonwealth v. Johnson [Pa.] 61 A. 246), in New York, under Pen. Code, § 29 (People v. Patrick [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 843), and in Colorado (Tuttle v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1035). Where two defendants engaged in a difficulty with two others, one of whom is killed, the one who brought on the difficulty is guilty, although he did not shoot. State v. Gaylord, 70 S. C. 415, 50 S. E. 20.

95. Humphrey v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 431. Conviction of defendant of murder of prison guard, by a co-conspirator in an attempt to escape. People v. Eldridge [Cal.] 82 P. 442. Conviction of murder of one of thirteen prisoners who conspired to escape and during whose resistance to recapture an officer was killed. People v. Wood, 145 Cal. 659, 79 P. 367. Conspirator in a robbery resulting in a homicide, held to be a principal. Dean v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 501. Where several conspire to rob and one commits murder in the perpetration of the robbery, all are responsible. Andrews v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1031. For the general principles relating to parties to crimes, see Criminal Law, 5 C. L. 883.

96. State v. Forsha [Mo.] 88 S. W. 746.

97. See 3 C. L. 1644.

98. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601. Definition of murder given in § 798, Dist. of Columbia Code, is simply the common-law definition. Hill v. U. S., 22 App. D. C. 395. Where one provokes a quarrel with another for the purpose of killing him and does kill him, he is guilty of murder. Kyle v. People, 215 Ill. 250, 74 N. E. 146. Malice is an essential ingredient of murder of the first and second degrees. State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866; State v. Brown [Del.] 61 A. 1077. Under Mills' Ann. St. § 1176, malice does not enter into the crime of murder when committed in the perpetration of robbery. Andrews v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1031. Malice is the expression of a wicked and depraved heart and mind and of a cruel disposition (State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866; State v. Brown [Del.] 61 A. 1077), and is not restricted to spite or malevolence towards the particular person slain (State v. Powell [Del.] 61 A. 966; State v. Brown [Del.] 61 A. 1077). Where defendant, though sincerely believing deceased had a few dollars of his money, shot him for refusing to surrender it, it showed he had an "abandoned and malignant heart." People v. Hill [Cal. App.] 82 P. 398.

99. Malice is implied when one seeks the difficulty in which provocation for passion was given. Noble v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 120. Where the killing is admitted and no circumstances of justification, excuse or mitigation appear, the law presumes that it was done with malice aforethought. State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866; State v. Powell [Del.] 61 A. 966. Robbery of deceased by use of a pistol and a subsequent killing of him to destroy evidence of robbery is cogent evidence of express malice. Martin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 390. Malice is not a presumption of law but a question of fact for the jury. Zipperian v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1018. The use of a deadly weapon raises a presumption of malice. State v. Byrd [S. C.] 51 S. E. 542; Brown v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 268. Especially the use of a deadly weapon against a vital part of the body. Commonwealth v. Gibson, 211 Pa. 546, 60 A. 1086. It is not presumed alone from the use of a deadly weapon, but its use is a circumstance from which the jury may imply malice. Territory v. Gutierez [N. M.] 79 P. 716. In Delaware all homicides with a deadly weapon are presumed malicious, and the burden of proof is on the accused to show the contrary. State v. Brown [Del.] 61 A. 1077. Pocket knives are not per se deadly weapons. Craiger v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 736, 88 S. W. 208. The mere fact that a wound inflicted by a weapon caused death is not conclusive that it was a deadly weapon. Id. Where malice or the want of malice is clearly shown, a presumption of malice does not arise from the killing. State v. Rochester [S. C.] 51 S. E. 685. The word "maliciously," as used in Mills' Ann. St. Rev. Supp. § 1209, is not applicable to the crime of murder by abortion, as therein defined. Johnson v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 133.

gredient in murder any more than it is in manslaughter.[1] But to justify a conviction of murder in the second degree under the Ohio statute, it must be affirmatively proved that the accused "purposely" killed the deceased,[2] while the existence of a specific intent to take life is in Arkansas the distinguishing characteristic of murder in the first degree.[3]

Degrees.[4]—In nearly all the states murder is now divided by statute into two or more [5] degrees, including in the first or more heinous degree all forms of premeditated or deliberate murder in general and specifically such murders as, from their nature, show deliberation and premeditation,[6] and all murder committed in the commission or attempt to commit certain felonies.[7]

Murder in the second degree is variously defined in different states, the intention being to include therein all murder not denounced as of the first degree.[8]

In those forms of murder which are specifically denounced as murder in the first degree, no actual intent to take life is necessary,[9] but ordinarily there must be deliberation and premeditation, though there need be no appreciable time between the formation of the intent to kill and the killing.[10] If a design to kill is formed in a mind excited by passion or disturbed by any inadequate cause, and cooling time has not elapsed, the homicide is not greater than murder in the second degree.[11] No motive is necessary if the fact of deliberate murder otherwise appears,[12] nor need a motive be shown, in a prosecution for murder, where the evidence is circumstantial.[13]

Attempts [14] are usually prosecuted as assaults with intent to murder.[15]

§ 3. Manslaughter.[16]—Manslaughter embraces all forms of criminal homicide from which malice or an intent to kill is absent.[17] Thus, it is manslaughter if the

1. State v. Brown [Del.] 61 A. 1077. Intent is immaterial in murder committed in the perpetration of robbery, under Mills' Ann. St. § 1176. Andrews v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1031.

2. To show that he purposely inflicted the wound that caused the death, or that he purposely struck the deceased, from which stroke the deceased died, is insufficient. Munday v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 656, 25 Circ. R. 712.

3. Petty v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 465.

4. See 3 C. L. 1644.

5. Third degree: Miera v. Territory [N. M.] 81 P. 586.

6. State v. Williams, 186 Mo. 128, 84 S. W. 924; Andrews v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1031; Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601; State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866; People v. Woods [Cal.] 81 P. 652; Commonwealth v. Johnson [Pa.] 61 A. 246. With express malice aforethought, that is, where the killing is done with a sedate, deliberate mind and formed design. State v. Brown [Del.] 61 A. 1077. Premeditation and deliberation must be shown. State v. Teachey, 138 N. C. 587, 50 S. E. 232. Where prisoners armed themselves with pieces of iron and beat the turnkey on the head. Commonwealth v. Dillen [Pa.] 60 A. 263. Where accused ran up to deceased and stabbed him. Commonwealth v. Dardaia, 210 Pa. 61, 59 A. 432. By poisoning. Commonwealth v. Danz, 211 Pa. 507, 60 A. 1070. In Pennsylvania, under Act March 31, 1860 (P. L. 382), the jury determines the degree. Commonwealth v. Fellows [Pa.] 61 A. 922.

7. State v. Brown [Del.] 61 A. 1077. Burglary. People v. Woods [Cal.] 81 P. 652. Where the homicide occurred within two minutes after a robbery and apparently to prevent detection. State v. Williams [Nev.] 82 P. 353.

8. Where the killing was done with implied malice, without any deliberate or formed design. State v. Brown [Del.] 61 A. 1077. Defined in § 1064, Comp. Laws 1897. Territory v. Gutierez [N. M.] 79 P. 716. Where the homicide was committed under the influence of a wicked and depraved heart and with a cruel and reckless indifference to human life. State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866. Where one intentionally and premeditatedly kills another, while smarting under passion aroused by vile and insulting epithets spoken by deceased, he is guilty of murder in the second degree. State v. Williams, 186 Mo. 128, 84 S. W. 924.

9. See 3 C. L. 1645.

10. State v. Powell [Del.] 61 A. 966; State v. Daniel [N. C.] 51 S. E. 858; State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866; State v. Teachey, 138 N. C. 587, 50 S. E. 232.

11. Manning v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1149.

12. Commonwealth v. Danz, 211 Pa. 507, 60 A. 1070.

13. State v. Adams, 138 N. C. 688, 50 S. E. 765.

14. See 2 C. L. 224.

15. See post, § 4.

16. See 3 C. L. 1645.

17. State v. Brown [Del.] 61 A. 1077; State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866; People v. Waysman [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1087. See definition in Pen. Code, § 64. Rentfrow v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 596. A homicide is committed unintentionally in the commission of an unlawful act,[18] or in sudden combat,[19] or in the heat of passion[20] produced by reasonable provocation,[21] and before the lapse of reasonable cooling time.[22] Where one engaged in an unlawful act not in itself dangerous, without negligence, commits an unintentional homicide, it is a criminal offense only when the act is malum in se.[23] Voluntary manslaughter is the unlawful, intentional killing of another without malice,[24] and involuntary manslaughter is the killing of another in doing some unlawful act, but without intention to kill.[25] Where one, laboring under excitement because of slanderous remarks concerning female relatives, went to the slanderer and, in an attempt to kill him, killed his wife, he was guilty of manslaughter.[26] An essential element of voluntary manslaughter is passion on the part of the slayer.[27] An honest, though unjustified belief that the killing is necessary for self-protection may reduce the homicide to manslaughter.[28] Where an assault, neither intended or calculated to kill, is returned by violence disproportionate to the aggression, the killing in a combat which engenders hot blood is not murder in the second degree, unless the elements of purpose and malice concur in the act, nor in the first degree, in the absence of premeditation. Osburn v. State [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 601. Where, after a difficulty with deceased, defendant retires, but returns, if he does so for the purpose of provoking a difficulty with intent to kill, he is guilty of murder; otherwise, of manslaughter. Brownlee v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 621, 87 S. W. 1153.

18. Resistance to arrest. McDuffie v. State, 121 Ga. 580, 49 S. E. 708. In an attempt to tar and feather deceased. People v. Cowan [Cal. App.] 82 P. 339. By refusal of medical care and attendance to one entitled to receive it from accused. State v. Sandford, 99 Me. 441, 59 A. 597. Criminal negligence of a medical practitioner. Hampton v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 421. Where defendant wantonly and recklessly drove his team on a highway and killed a bicyclist, it is no defense that he attempted to avoid the accident when it was too late. State v. Stentz, 33 Wash. 444, 74 P. 588. Rev. St. 1899, § 1825, declaring an attempt to cause an abortion, where death of neither child nor mother resulted, manslaughter, is to that extent invalid. State v. Hartley, 185 Mo. 669, 84 S. W. 910. One who, without intent to injure any one, fires carelessly in the direction of a crowd and thereby kills one, is guilty of involuntary manslaughter. Nolly v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 19.

19. Sullivan v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 1006. Altercation and mutual intent to fight will constitute "mutual combat" without exchange of blows. Pollard v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 149.

20. Passion caused by an insult to wife. Melton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 822; Venters v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 832. A man has the right to resist an attempt by his father-in-law to get possession of his wife, and if, in the excitement caused by such attempt, he kills his father-in-law, the offense is only manslaughter. Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 730, 88 S. W. 341.

21. Chambers v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 752; Peel v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 251. The statute of Texas requires both passion and adequate cause. Hatchell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 234. No slight assault can excuse the killing of an assailant, with a deadly weapon, so as to reduce the offense from murder to manslaughter. State v. Powell [Del.] 61 A. 966. Mere words, however abusive, opprobious or insulting, are not sufficient provocation. State v. Buffing-[Kan.] 81 P. 465; Petty v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 465; Scott v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 1004. The failure of a railroad official to give an employe a recommendation, and the putting of the employe's name on the black list, affords no sufficient provocation for killing him. Warner v. Com. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 742. The provocation must be great as to produce such a transport of passion as to render the person, for the time being, deaf to the voice of reason. State v. Brown [Del.] 61 A. 1077. Where a deadly weapon was used, the provocation must be great to reduce the homicide from murder to manslaughter. State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866.

22. The provocation must arise at the time of the killing, but the jury may consider all the circumstances to make out the provocation at the time. Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 730, 88 S. W. 341; State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866. Where defendant renewed the difficulty and killed deceased after sufficient cooling time, the killing was not manslaughter. Franks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 740, 88 S. W. 923.

23. Hunting on another's land without permission is merely malum prohibitum, under Laws 1901, p. 557, c. 410, and an accidental homicide, committed while so hunting, is not therefore criminal. State v. Horton [N. C.] 51 S. E. 945.

24. One who fires a shot in a careless, reckless manner, knowing that he cannot do so without hitting an innocent person, is guilty of voluntary manslaughter. Ringer v. State [Ark.] 85 S. W. 410; Scott v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 1004.

25. Ringer v. State [Ark.] 85 S. W. 410. Where the injuries were inflicted with the hands and feet, which are not deadly weapons. Thomas v. Com. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 694.

26. Nelson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 339, 87 S. W. 143.

27. Rentfrow v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 596.

28. Allison v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 409.

character of the combat changes and if, without time to cool, the assailant kills the other, he commits only manslaughter.[29] Degrees of manslaughter in several states are referred to in the notes.[30]

§ 4. Assault with intent to kill or do great bodily harm.[31]—To constitute an assault with intent to murder, the circumstances must have been such that, had the one assaulted died from the injuries, the assailant would have been of murder.[32] In some jurisdictions the offense is defined as assault with a "dangerous" or "deadly" weapon.[33] In Louisiana "shooting at" another is a complete crime in itself.[34]

§ 5. Justification and excuse.[35]—Homicide is justifiable as committed in self-defense, where the accused, without having provoked the difficulty,[36] and without justification,[37] is assaulted in such manner that he in good faith believes,[38] and has reasonable ground to believe,[39] that he is in imminent danger [40] of death or great bodily harm,[41] and that no safe means of avoiding the same is open to him, except the kill-

29. Noble v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 120.

30. First degree: Defined in Crimes Act. § 12 (Gen. St. 1901, § 1997). State v. McAnarney [Kan.] 79 P. 137.

Third degree: Defined in §§ 4354, 4355, Rev. St. 1898. Kenney v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 907.

Fourth degree: Defined in §§ 4362, 4363, Rev. St. 1898. Schmidt v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1071.

31. See 3 C. L. 1646.

32. Napper v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 592. There must have been a specific intent to kill. Reyes v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 245. The existence or nonexistence of an intent to kill may be inferred from the character of the assault, the want or use of a deadly weapon and the presence or absence of excusing or palliating circumstances. Brown v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 268. The specific intent must also be attended by malice aforethought. Carr v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 346. Under Rev. Pen. Code, § 285, one who shoots at, or actually shoots one person, with intent to kill another, is guilty of assault with intent to kill. State v. Shanley [S. D.] 104 N. W. 522. Under § 215, Criminal Code, an aggravated assault is committed when a serious bodily injury is inflicted. Mapula v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 389. To reduce assault with intent to murder to aggravated assault, because of an insult to defendant's sister, the insult must not only have been the actuating cause, but defendant's mind must have been excited and incapable of cool reflection. Jones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 5. Shooting at another with no intent to kill, but to frighten him, is merely assault and battery. Pastrana v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 347; Ivory v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 699.

33. Club held dangerous weapon. State v. Edmunds [S. D.] 104 N. W. 1115.

34. Under § 792, Revised Statutes. State v. Fairbanks [La.] 39 So. 443, afg. State v. Brady, 39 La. Ann. 687, 2 So. 556.

35. See 3 C. L. 1647.

36. Wheeler v. Com. [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1106; Mackin v. People, 214 Ill. 73 N. E. 344; State v. Thrailkill [S. C.] 50 S. E. 551. One of the indispensable elements of self-defense is freedom from fault, and the law admits of no qualification of the requirement. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329. But the burden is upon the state to show that the accused was not free from fault, after he has shown that, at the time of the killing, the necessary ingredients of the right of self-defense existed. Garza v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 720, 88 S. W. 231. It must be a wrongful, and not merely an innocent and accidental, provocation to bar the right of self-defense. Green v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 362; State v. Taylor [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 247. To render one guilty of provoking a difficulty, he must be shown to have used some language or done some act with that intent. State v. Garland, 138 N. C. 675, 50 S. E. 853; Pedro v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 721, 88 S W. 233. One who provoked a difficulty may defend himself against violence not justified by the provocation. Sams v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 18.

37. Mere words, however abusive and insulting, will not justify. State v. Buffington [Kan.] 81 P. 465. An affray does not justify one in shooting his antagonist after they have entirely separated and are moving apart. Holmes v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 321.

38. Holmes v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 321; Wray v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 437; State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866.

39. Allison v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 409; O'Neal v. Com. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 745; Green v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 362; Holmes v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 321; State v. Thrailkill [S. C.] 50 S. E. 551; Miller v. People, 216 Ill. 309, 74 N. E. 743; Mackin v. People, 214 Ill. 232, 73 N. E. 344; Wray v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 437. Must act with reasonable courage. Turner v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 650.

40. Holmes v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 321; Miller v. People, 216 Ill. 309, 74 N. E. 743; Wray v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 437. The criterion of apparent danger is as the situation is viewed from the standpoint of the defendant. Adams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 231; Brownlee v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 621, 87 S W. 1153; Coleman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 718, 88 S. W. 238. Where one assails another with a butcher knife, it is presumed that he intends to kill, and the person assailed is justified in shooting the assailant. Ivory v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 699.

41. O'Neal v. Com. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 745; Holmes v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 321; Kipley v. People, 215 Ill. 358, 74 N. E. 379; Miller v. People, 216 Ill. 309, 74 N. E. 743; State v. Thrailkill [S. C.] 50 S. E. 551; Mackin v. People, 214 Ill. 232, 73 N. E. 344; State v. Wray, ing of his assailant.[42] One assailed, however, with felonious intent is not bound to retreat, but may stand his ground and if necessary kill his assailant,[43] although in

5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 437; State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866.

42. Green v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 362; Mackin v. People, 214 Ill. 232, 73 N. E. 344; Wray v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 437. One attacked must retreat, if he can safely do so, or use other reasonable means in his power to avoid killing his assailant. State v. Powell [Del.] 61 A. 966. A person on his own premises, attacked by one on a highway, must retreat if possible before killing his adversary. State v. Rochester [S. C.] 51 S. E. 685. Where defendant was a trespasser on the lands of deceased, it was his duty to retire from an assault by deceased. Turley v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 934.

43. Under Sand. & H. Dig. § 1649, defining the right of self-defense, although a man may stand his ground and refuse to retreat, he must do all he can to avoid the necessity of killing. Thomas v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 404. Where a man is without fault and an assault with intent to kill is made upon him, he is not required to retreat, but may stand his ground and kill his assailant, if necessary to save his life or avoid great bodily harm. State v. Blevins, 138 N. C. 668, 50 S. E. 763. But in case of an ordinary assault, even with a deadly weapon, he must retreat, if possible and safe, before killing his assailant. Id.

NOTE. Duty to retreat from felonious assault: Considerable currency has been given to a view contrary to that stated in the text by an eminent authority on criminal law (Prof. J. H. Beale in 16 Harvard L. R. 574). The position of Mr. Beale does not, however, seem to be sustained by either reason or authority. The question is admirably discussed in the latest judicial utterance on the subject (State v. Gardner [Minn.] 104 N. W. 971). Mr. Justice Jaggard says:

"The common-law doctrine of 'retreat to the wall' is thus referred to in a frequently quoted paragraph from Coke (3 Inst. 55): 'Some be voluntary, yet being done upon inevitable cause are no felony; as if A. be assaulted by B, and they fight together, and before any mortal blow is given, A. giveth back until he cometh to a hedge, wall, or other strait, beyond which he cannot pass, and then, in his own defense and for safeguard of his own life, killeth the other; this is voluntary, and yet no felony.' The rule on this subject has tended in some American jurisdictions to be enforced with strictness, in others to be largely modified, in accordance with changed conditions, and indeed to be positively relaxed. See State v. Matthews, 148 Mo. 185, 49 S. W. 1085, 71 Am. St. Rep. 598; Runyan v. State, 57 Ind. 80, 84, 26 Am. Rep. 52. In a leading case (Erwin v. State, 29 Ohio St. 186, 23 Am. Rep. 733) after a review of the common-law authorities in consequence of this confusion in the later cases, the court, inter alia, said: 'The question, then, is simply this: Does the law hold a man who is violently and feloniously assaulted responsible for having brought such necessity upon himself, on the sole ground that he failed to fly from his assailant when he might have safely done so? The law, out of tenderness for human life and the frailties of human nature, will not permit the taking of it to repel a mere trespass, or even to save life where the assault is provoked; but a true man, who is without fault, is not obliged to fly from an assailant, who by violence or surprise maliciously seeks to take his life or do him enormous bodily harm.' The supreme court of the United States approved of this rule and of Runyan v. State, supra, in 1894, in Beard v. U. S., 158 U. S. 550, 39 Law. Ed. 1086. In that case an angry dispute arose between Beard and three brothers, one of whom took a shotgun, and went with the others upon the premises of the accused for the purpose of taking away a cow in dispute. Beard returned to his home, taking with him a gun he was in the habit of carrying when absent from home, and finding the brothers on his premises ordered them to leave. This they refused to do. When the deceased got within a few steps of the accused, the latter warned him to stop, but he approached nearer, saying: 'Damn you, I will show you,' at the same time making a movement with his left hand as if to draw a pistol from his pocket. The accused struck him on the head with the butt end of his gun, and knocked him down, as a result of which he died. Mr. Justice Harlan said: 'The defendant was where he had a right to be when the deceased advanced upon him in a threatening manner and with a deadly weapon; and if the accused did not provoke the assault, and had at the time reasonable grounds to believe, and in good faith believed, that the deceased intended to take his life or do him great bodily harm, he was not obliged to retreat nor to consider whether he could safely retreat, but was entitled to stand his ground and meet any attack made upon him with a deadly weapon in such a way and with such force as under all the circumstances he at the moment honestly believed, and had reasonable grounds to believe, was necessary to save his own life, or to protect himself from great bodily injury.' In Rowe v. U. S., 164 U. S. 546, 41 Law. Ed. 547, the defendant, a Cherokee Indian, had an altercation with the deceased at a hotel. After a quarrel at the supper table, the accused swore at the deceased and kicked him. The accused then leaned up against the counter, as if, according to his own testimony, he had abandoned the controversy. Immediately the deceased sprang at him, striking him with a knife, cutting him. Thereupon the accused shot and killed his assailant. The trial court charged in a carefully qualified way as to the duty of retreat. Mr. Justice Harlan, inter alia, said: 'The accused was entitled, so far as his right to resist the attack was concerned, to remain where he was, and to do whatever was necessary, or what he had reasonable grounds to believe at the time was necessary, to save his life or to protect himself from great bodily harm; and, under the circumstances, it was error to make the case depend, in whole or in part, upon the inquiry whether the accused could, by stepping aside, have avoided the attack, or could have so carefully aimed his pistol as to paralyze the arm of his assailant, without more seriously wounding him." This accords with the general law on the subject. Harbour v. State, 140 Ala. 103, 37 So. 330. People v. Newcomer, 118 Cal. 263, 50 P. 405; State v. Chushing, 14 Wash. 527, 45 P. 145, 53 Am. St. Rep. 883; Babcock v. People, 13 Colo. 515, 22 P. 817; Brown v. Commonwealth, 86 Va. 466, 10 S. E. 745; Cains' Case, 20 W. Va. 679; State v. Evans, 33 W. Va. 417, 10 S. E. 792; Commonwealth v. Selfridge (Mass. 1806) reported in volume 1, Horrigan & Thomp. Self-Def. 1; Pond v. People, 8 Mich. 150; People v. Macard, 75 Mich. 15, 40 N. W. 784; State v. Bartlett, 170 Mo. 658, 71 S. W. 148, 59 L. R. A. 756; Willis v. State [Neb.] 61 N. W. 258, 25 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law [2d Ed.] 272, note 2.

fact he is mistaken as to the existence or imminence of the danger.[44] Under the

"The rule of law in this state is not inconsistant with this conception of the duty to retreat so far as is involved in the case at bar. In State v. Shippey, 10 Minn. 223 (Gil. 178), 88 Am. Dec. 70, Wilson, C. J., said, inter alia: 'It clearly appears that the defendant deliberately and intentionally shot the deceased, and from this the presumption is that it was an act of murder, * * * Where the party has not retreated from or attempted to shun the combat, but has, as in this case, unnecessarily entered into it, his act is not one of self-defense. The defendant by taking his gun and following after the deceased, without any previous provocation, such as the law will recognize as provocation for the use of a deadly weapon, showed conclusively that the homicide was not committed in self-defense, real or imaginary.' In approving this case in State v. Sorenson, 32 Minn. 118, 19 N. W. 738, in which the deceased rushed at the defendant with a club, Gilfillan, C. J., said: 'The law concedes the right to kill in self-defense, but only in extremity, and when no other practicable means to avoid the threatened harm are apparent to the person resorting to the right. If it was practicable, and so apparent to him, to repel the attempt by other means than by killing his assailant, he is bound to do so. And all the authorities are agreed that ordinarily, as an element of legal self-defense in cases of personal conflict, the party killing must escape by retreat, unless prevented by some impediment or by the fierceness of the assault.' The last-named case was approved in State v. Rheams, 34 Minn. 18, 24 N. W. 302, in which the deceased was unarmed and the defendant had a loaded revolver. In State v. Scott, 41 Minn. 365, 373, 43 N. W. 62, the evidence was such that no charge that the homicide was justified by self-defense, ignoring the circumstances of provocation by the defendant, would have been correct.

"The doctrine of 'retreat to the wall' had its origin before the general introduction of guns. Justice demands that its application have due regard to the present general use and to the type of firearms. It would be good sense for the law to require, in many cases, an attempt to escape from a hand to hand encounter with fists, clubs, and even knives, as a condition of justification for killing in self-defense; while it would be rank folly to so require when experienced men, armed with repeating rifles, face each other in an open space, removed from shelter, with intent to kill or to do great bodily harm. What might be a reasonable chance for escape in the one situation might in the other be certain death. Self-defense has not, by statute nor by judicial opinion, been distorted, by an unreasonable requirement of the duty to retreat, into self-destruction."

From an examination of the cases it would appear that the duty to retreat from murderous assault is maintained in Alabama (Gordon v. State, 129 Ala. 113); Delaware (State v. Talley, 9 Houst. 467); Iowa (State v. Donnelly, 69 Iowa, 369); New York (People v. Sullivan, 7 N. Y. 396; People v. Johnson, 139 N. Y. 358); Pennsylvania (Commonwealth v. Drum, 58 Pa. 9); and Vermont (State v. Roberts, 63 Vt. 139). The doctrine as stated in the text is upheld in the Federal Courts (Beard v. U. S., 158 U. S. 550, 39 Law. Ed. 1086; Rowe v. U. S., 164 U. S. 546, 41 Law. Ed. 547); Arkansas (La Rue v. State, 64 Ark. 144); California (People v. Lewis, 117 Cal. 186, 59 Am. St. Rep. 167); Colorado (Babcock v. People, 13 Colo. 515); Indiana (Runyan v. State, 57 Ind. 80, 26 Am. Rep. 52); Kansas (State v. Hatch, 57 Kan. 420, 57 Am. St. Rep. 337); Kentucky (Buckles v. Commonwealth, 24 Ky. L. R. 571, 68 S. W. 1084); Louisiana (State v. Robertson, 50 La. Ann. 92, 69 Am. St. Rep. 393); Michigan (Pond v. People, 8 Mich. 150); Minnesota (State v. Gardner, 104 N. W. 971); Mississippi (McCall v. State, 29 So. 4003); Missouri (State v. Hudspeth, 150 Mo. 12; State v. Bartlett, 170 Mo. 658); Montana (State v. Rolla, 21 Mont. 582); Nebraska (Willis v. State, 43 Neb. 102); Nevada (State v. Kenned, 7 Neb. 374); North Carolina (State v. Blevins, 50 S. E. 763); Ohio (Erwin v. State, 29 Ohio St. 186, 23 Am. Rep. 733); Oklahoma (Kirk v. Territory, 10 Okl. 46); Rhode Island (State v. Sherman, 16 R. I. 631); Washington (State v. McCann, 16 Wash. 249); West Virginia (State v. Clark, 51 W. Va. 457); Wisconsin (Perkins v. State, 78 Wis. 551). By statute in Texas the same rule obtains and has been declared by numerous decisions.

44. Wray v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 437; Miller v. People, 216 Ill. 309, 74 N. E. 743. And whether the danger is real or apparent (Mackin v. People, 214 Ill. 232, 73 N. E. 344; Kipley v. People, 215 Ill. 358, 74 N. E. 379); nor is a person under such circumstances required to exercise "due care" or "circumspection" as to the manner of killing. Pen. Code, § 192, making death caused by the doing of a lawful act, without due caution or circumspection, involuntary manslaughter, is not a limitation on the right of self-defense. People v. Thomson, 145 Cal. 717, 79 P. 435. But the state may show in rebuttal that the defendant was too intoxicated to form such reasonable and well-grounded belief of danger. Miller v. People, 216 Ill. 309, 74 N. E. 743. Defendant's right of self-defense cannot be impaired by evidence that the pistol used by the assailant was unloaded, which fact was unknown to defendant. Roberts v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 692, 88 S. W. 221.

same limitations the right is extended to the defense of others,[45] and to the defense of one's habitation.[46] A father may protect his minor daughter from seduction and debauchery, even to the extent of homicide, where the criminal act is in progress or about to take place.[47] A blow inflicted accidentally on a bystander in repelling a felonious attack is in self-defense.[48] In repelling or resisting an assault, no more force may be used than is necessary for the purpose, or the person assailed becomes the aggressor.[49] Under the statutes of Texas a husband is justified in slaying a man caught in the act of adultery with his wife; and if he slays the adulterer on their first meeting after he learns of the offense, he can be convicted of manslaughter only.[50] One who seeks another to provoke a difficulty does not lose the right of self-defense, unless he does or says something which is calculated to, and does, arouse anger and provoke resentment;[51] and one who has voluntarily engaged in combat, or who has provoked a difficulty, may regain his right of self-defense by withdrawing from the fight in good faith,[52] either at his own instance or at the instance of a third party,[53] and notifying his adversary of his abandonment of his criminal design, in such a way as to manifest his good faith;[54] and if his adversary then follows him and kills him, not in necessary self-defense, the offense is at least manslaughter.[55] But one who retreats, shooting as he goes, cannot claim an abandonment of the fight merely because he retreated.[56] If one giving provocation is attacked with force disproportionate thereto, he is justified in resistance.[57] If the right of self-defense is once operative, it continues until all danger to life or the infliction of serious bodily injury has passed;[58] but where danger to life or serious intent to injure has passed, the right of self-defense ceases.[59] An officer cannot use a deadly weapon or take human life in enforcing the arrest of a misdemeanant, though without such force the wrongdoer may escape.[60] But an officer who meets with forcible resistance in making a lawful arrest, is not obliged to retreat, though he is not justified in taking life, unless the resistance is so violent as to put him in danger of death or great bodily harm.[61] An officer may, to prevent a felony, use a deadly weapon, if that is the only reasonably apparent method of doing so.[62] Homi-

45. Defense of a nephew. Carroll v. Com., 26 Ky. L. R. 1083, 83 S. W. 552. One may do for a person, against whom a felonious assault is about to be made, what such person could do for himself. Fletcher v. Com., 26 Ky. L. R. 1157, 83 S. W. 588. The right of self-defense of one acting in defense of another is not personal to him, but is the same as the right of the person in whose defense he was acting. Martinez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 462, 88 S. W. 234.

46. Young v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 867. In Illinois it is justifiable in the defense of habitation, property or person, against an attempt to commit a felony or violent entrance for the purpose of assault. Under Cr. Code, div. 1, § 148 (Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, c. 38). Hayner v. People, 213 Ill. 142, 72 N. E. 792.

47. Gossett v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 394.

48. State v. Mount [N. J. Law] 61 A. 259.

49. State v. Brown [Del.] 61 A. 1077. Excessive force resisting simple assault. Turley v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 934.

50. Orange v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 385.

51. Smith v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 297, 87 S. W. 151; Barstado v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 344. The mere pursuit of a person with intent to bring on a difficulty does not deprive the pursuer of the right of self-defense, where the pursuer, after coming up to the pursued, does no act calculated to provoke the difficulty. Franks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 740, 88 S. W. 923.

52. Eby v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 890; Noble v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 120; State v. Gray [Or.] 79 P. 53.

53. Chambers v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 752.

54, 55. State v. Shockley [Utah] 80 P. 865.

56. Hellard v. Com. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 329.

57. Turley v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 934.

58. Where defendant shot deceased a third time, while he was arising from his fall caused by the second shot, he is not guilty of manslaughter merely because the last shot may have been unnecessary. Crow v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 632, 88 S. W. 814.

59. Crow v. State [Tex. Cr App.] 13 Tex. Cr. Rep. 632, 88 S. W. 814.

60. State v. Smith [Iowa] 103 N. W. 944. In such case it is no justification that the officer had been told that the deceased was a desperate character. Commonwealth v. Rhoads, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 512.

61. Commonwealth v. Rhoads, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 512; Commonwealth v. Crowley, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 124.

62. The aiding of a prisoner to escape, cide in attempting to make an unlawful arrest is governed by the law applicable to assault culminating in homicide by the original assailant.[63] In Georgia, the distinction between justifiable and excusable homicide has been abolished, and every homicide without guilt is classed as justifiable.[64]

Accidental homicide.[65]

§ 6. Indictment or information.[66]—Except in those states where statutory forms are prescribed,[67] indictments for homicide and murderous assault must be direct and certain [68] as regards the offense charged,[69] the time and place,[70] the weapon or means used,[71] the manner of its use,[72] the intent,[73] malice,[74] the assault, the person killed or assaulted,[75] and death as the result of defendant's act.[76] Defendant cannot complain of the failure of an indictment to set forth the offense in different forms, under different counts,[77] unless he is misled in making his defense, or is exposed to the jeopardy of another prosecution for the same transaction.[78] The sufficiency of several indictments or informations is noted below.[79] Variance to be fatal must be material.[80] being a felony under Code, § 4896. State v. Smith [Iowa] 103 N. W. 944.

63. Coleman v. State, 121 Ga. 594, 49 S. E. 716.

64. Mixon v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 580.

65, 66. See 3 C. L. 1649.

67. For general rules see Indictment and Prosecution, 4 C. L. 1. If an indictment substantially follows the statute, it is sufficient. Schley v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 518. Indictment for murder in first degree sufficient under Mills' Ann. St. § 143. Andrews v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1031. Form of indictment for murder held sufficient under form prescribed in Rev. Laws, c. 218, § 67, although not following that form. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75. Const. of Mass. Declaration of Rights, art. 12, requires only such particularity as may be of service to defendant in understanding the charge and preparing for defense; Rev. Laws, c. 218, § 67, prescribing form of indictment for murder, held constitutional. Id. Under Cr. Code 1902, §§ 130, 131, 132, an indictment for an assault with intent to kill and for carrying a concealed weapon must charge the carrying of such weapon in a special count. State v. Johnson, 70 S. C. 384, 50 S. E. 8. Code 1896, §§ 4906, 4911, expressly permits alternative allegations in indictments. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329.

68, 69. State v. Shanley [S. D.] 104 N. W. 522.

70. Held that the indictment alleged that the murder was committed before the finding of the indictment and within the jurisdiction of the court. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75.

71. Allegations in the alternative, as to the means by which the homicide was committed must be construed as separate counts. Code 1896, §§ 4906, 4911. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329. An indictment for homicide alleging the killing "by means and ways unknown to this grand jury" was not fatally defective. Donahue v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 996.

72. An allegation that defendant with a blunt instrument, the name and particular description of which were unknown, assaulted decedent and inflicted a mortal wound on the head, is sufficient. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75. An indictment against several joint participants in homicide need not allege which actually slew the deceased. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1.

73. Under Code, § 4728, relative to killing by poison, indictment for homicide not objectionable for failure to allege a specific intent to kill. State v. Robinson, 126 Iowa, 69, 101 N. W. 634.

74. An indictment for murder by procuring a miscarriage, under Mills' Ann. St. Rev. Supp. § 1209, is sufficient without charging malice. Johnson v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 133.

75. That deceased was a human being is sufficiently implied from setting out the name of the deceased in the indictment. Sutherland v. State, 121 Ga. 591, 49 S. E. 781.

76. Indictment alleging that deceased "then and there instantly died" not defective, though evidence showed that he died the next day. State v. Reeder [S. C.] 51 S. E. 702.

77. As authorized by Rev. Code Cr. Proc., § 224. State v. Shanley [S. D.] 104 N. W. 522.

78. State v. Shanley [S. D.] 104 N. W. 522.

79. General principles: Sufficient averment of instrument and manner of death. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329. Of death and means. State v. Sly [Idaho] 80 P. 1125. Of infliction of wound causing death. State v. Bailey [Mo.] 88 S. W. 733. Of killing before the finding of the indictment. Sutherland v. State, 121 Ga. 591, 49 S. E. 781. Information held sufficient. Barker v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 71. Where the first count of an indictment recited that it was presented by the grand jury of the proper county, a second count reciting that it was presented by "said jury" was not objectionable for failing to allege the county. Donahue v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 996. Indictment for causing death by procuring a miscarriage, under Mills' Ann. St. Rev. Supp. § 1209, is sufficient without negativing the justifications for miscarriage. Johnson v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 133. An information charging one as "F. T. Appleton" sustained. State v. Appleton [Kan.] 78 P. 445. Information insufficient for not alleging that the striking or wounding was done feloniously. State v. Williams, 184 Mo. 261, 83 S. W. 756.

Assault with intent to murder, etc: Suffi-

Included offenses[81] are sufficiently charged by an indictment for murder in the first degree,[82] or for assault with intent to murder,[83] and such an indictment will support a conviction of any degree of unlawful homicide or assault.[84]

§ 7. Evidence. A. Presumptions and burden of proof.[85]—Guilt must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt,[86] as to every essential ingredient of the crime;[87] but it is not necessary that all incidental or subsidiary facts be proved beyond reasonable doubt.[88] Homicide, when proved, is presumptively murder,[89] but only of the second degree,[90] the burden being on the state to prove premeditation and deliberation, and on the defendant to prove facts in extenuation, justification or excient allegation of time of commission of assault with intent to murder, and identification of person assaulted. Pearson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 325. An indictment for an assault with intent to kill, in the words of the statute, need not set forth the means or instrument used, unless the killing was attempted by poisoning, drowning, etc., in violation of the statute. D. C. Code, § 803. Coratola v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 229. An indictment charging an assault and the infliction of "certain mortal injuries," held sufficient to charge an aggravated assault under Cr. Code, § 215. Mapula v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 389.

Manslaughter: An indictment of a physician for the death of a patient caused by gross negligence, carelessness or ignorance may be predicated on the general statute defining manslaughter. Rev. St. Fla. 1892, § 2384, as § 2392, relative to death caused by the intoxication of a physician not being intended to make the general law inapplicable. Hampton v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 421. Indictment held sufficient to support a conviction of murder. Chelsey v. State, 121 Ga. 340, 49 S. E. 258; State v. Voorhies [La.] 38 So. 964. Sufficient charge of willful murder under Ky. St. 1903, § 1149. Metcalfe v. Com. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 534. Sufficient charge of murder in first degree. State v. Niehaus [Mo.] 87 S. W. 473; Vasser v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 635. Indictment for murder by poisoning held sufficient. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406; State v. Robinson, 126 Iowa, 69, 101 N. W. 634. Indictment held sufficient, though slightly inaccurate. Newman v. Com. [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1089. Indictment not objectionable because "willingly" was used instead of "willfully." Daniels v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 844. Indictment, stating in language of Pen. Code 1895, art. 711, that the murder was committed with express malice, in the perpetration of robbery, held sufficient without setting forth the robbery. Oates v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 769. Sufficient allegation of premeditated design in indictment for murder in first degree. Webster v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 514. Indictment held sufficient to charge murder in first degree, under Pen. Code, § 352, although it failed to use the word "deliberately." State v. Hliboka [Mont.] 78 P. 965. It is not necessary that an indictment for murder charge that the accused was of sound memory and discretion at the time of the homicide. Hill v. U. S., 22 App. D. C. 395.

80. Immaterial variance in name in indictment. State v. Williams, 184 Mo. 261, 83 S. W. 756; State v. Niebekier, 184 Mo. 211, 83 S. W. 523. No material variance between affidavit charging offense and information. State v. Nave, 185 Mo. 125, 84 S. W. 1. Proof that deceased being terrified by defendant's burglarious entrance to her house fell into a well is fatally variant from an averment that defendant forcibly threw deceased into the well. Gipe v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 881.

81. See 3 C. L. 1650.

82. Ringer v. State [Ark.] 85 S. W. 410. An indictment for murder in first degree includes voluntary manslaughter. Allison v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 409. Under an indictment charging killing unlawfully and with malice aforethought, defendant may be convicted of manslaughter. Smith v. State [Ala] 39 So. 329.

83. Defendant may be convicted of assault. Pastrana v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 347.

84. One charged with murder may be convicted of aggravated assault, if the indictment sets forth circumstances which constitute such an assault. Under Pen. Code, § 974, and § 215, defining aggravated assault. Mapula v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 389.

85. See 3 C. L. 1651.

86. Some cases of homicide illustrating general principles are here stated, but for a full discussion see Indictment & Prosecution, 4 C. L. 1. Thomas v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 404; State v. Reeder [S. C.] 51 S. E. 702; State v. Teachey, 138 Ga. 587, 50 S. E. 232; State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 530, 60 A. 866. Reasonable doubt defined. State v. Powell [Del.] 61 A. 966. A reasonable doubt of guilt may exist, though there may not be a probability of innocence. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406. Where it appeared that the defendants went armed to deceased's home, a reasonable doubt as to which fired the fatal shot could not entitle both to acquittal. State v. White [N. C.] 51 S. E. 44.

87. Cook v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 110. Death of the person alleged to have been killed. State v. Williams [Or.] 80 P. 655. Malice must be so proved, but it may be proved by circumstantial evidence. State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 530, 60 A. 866. State not bound to prove that either the first or second mortal wound produced death, or where death results from the combined effects of both wounds, to prove that both shots were fired unlawfully. Wray v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 437.

88. Osburn v. State, [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601.

89. State v. Powell [Del.] 61 A. 966; State v. Brown [Del.] 61 A. 1077. The law presumes that the killing was done with malice aforethought. State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866.

90. See 3 C. L. 1651.

cuse.[91] No presumption of murder arises, however, from an admission of the killing where it is accompanied by declarations which if true show justification.[92] Where two persons are jointly indicted for assault with intent to murder, the conviction of one raises no presumption of guilt as to the other.[93] The auhorities are in conflict as to the burden of proof when insanity or other irresponsibility is pleaded, some holding that defendant has the burden of establishing his defense by a preponderance of evidence,[94] while others hold that the presumption of innocence, attending the accused throughout the trial, overthrows the presumption of sanity and puts on the state the burden of proving responsibility as an element of the offense, beyond a reasonable doubt.[95]

(§ 7) B. Admissibility in general.[96]—Proffered testimony must have a legitimate tendency to prove some material fact in issue.[97] Where it has such tendency, it is not to be rejected because remote or unconvincing,[98] except as to matters which are part of the res gestæ,[99] except where circumstantial evidence is resorted to, in

91. State v. Powell [Del.] 61 A. 966; State v. Brown [Del.] 61 A. 1077; Anderson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 51; State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866. Under § 155, c. 38, Hurd's Rev. St. 1903. Kipley v. People, 215 Ill. 358, 74 N. E. 379. So provided by Kirby's Dig. § 1765, unless justification is made apparent by the proof on the part of the prosecution. Cogburn v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 822. Justifiable homicide in defense of another, held not to have been established under Pen. Code, § 205. People v. Regan, 94 N. Y. S. 841. It is sufficient if defendant shows facts which raise in the minds of the jury a reasonable doubt as to his guilt. Tignor v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 96. Where the defendant pleads self-defense, the absence of any other probable means of escape must be shown by preponderance of evidence. State v. Thrailkill [S. C.] 50 S. E. 551; State v. Powell [Del.] 61 A. 966; State v. Reeder [S. C.] 51 S. E. 702.

92. Perkins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 17.

93. Mixon v. State [Ga] 51 S. E. 580.

94. State v. Lyons, 113 La. 959, 37 So. 890. The rule is well settled in Kentucky that one charged with crime is presumed to be sane, until proved insane. Mathley v. Com. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 988; Allams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 506. But where defendant has been shown to have been insane prior to the homicide, the burden is upon the state to show him sane at the time of the homicide. State v. Austin, 71 Ohio St. 317, 73 N. E. 218. Where it appears that the killing was with a deadly weapon and without excuse, it will be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that defendant was capable of forming and entertaining the intent to kill. Gater v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 692.

95. State v. Usher, 126 Iowa, 281, 102 N. W. 101.

96. See 3 C. L. 1651.

97. Identification of defendants by deceased, as the men who shot him. State v. Roberts [Nev.] 82 P. 100. Evidence of physiân that he was so confident as to cause of death that he believed are autopsy would have confirmed his opinion, held admissible. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75. Fact of indictment returned against deceased held inadmissible to show his state of mind when approached by a police officer. Kipley v. People, 215 Ill. 358, 74 N. E. 379. Defendant may introduce evidence of the height and weight of his adversary to show disparity of physical strength. Commonwealth v. Crowley, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 124. The manner of the commission of the crime, as by blows on the head with a stake from a hay-rack. State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807.

98. In the prosecution of a colored man, testimony of witness that she sold the revolver, with which the shooting was done, to a colored man, just prior to the killing, was material, though she failed to identify defendant as the purchaser. Smith v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 983. Evidence of threats made by deceased against "one of the defendants" excluded. Stafford v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 106. Where defendant testified that owing to his great love for his wife, the shock of learning of her infidelity caused epilepsy resulting in insanity, evidence was admissible that he married her out of a house of prostitution to prevent her testifying against him years before. Schissler v. State, 122 Wis. 365, 99 N. W. 593. Evidence that defendant had a dominating influence over members of a religious sect and so caused the treatment resulting in deceased's death. State v. Sandford, 99 Me. 441, 59 A. 597. Whether relevant testimony is too remote is a preliminary question for the court and will not ordinarily be revised. State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807.

99. Held admissible: Evidence of facts preceding and leading up to the fatal encounter. State v. Thrailkill [S. C.] 50 S. E. 551. Testimony as to a game of craps, which was the starting point of the difficulty and which defendant broke up 10 or 15 minutes before the killing. Hardison v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1071. Evidence of related offenses on trial for homicide. State v. Bailey [Mo.] 88 S. W. 733. Facts and circumstances connected with the commission of the murder, though relating to another crime. State v. Adams, 138 N. C. 688, 50 S. E. 765. Testimony as to another robbery than that at which the homicide was committed. State v. Roberts [Nev.] 82 P. 100. Statements of the woman prior to her death from criminal abortion, as to the agreement between her and the accused. Johnson v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 133. Evidence that, when defendant fired on the assaulted party, defendant's half brother also fired and hit him. Fielding v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 618, 87 S. W. 1041. Where defendants killed two persons in the same continuous transaction, evidence of the shooting of the second, after the killing of the one mentioned in the indictment, was competent. Vasser v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 635. On trial of a wife for poisoning her husband, evidence of the soiled condition of his bedding during his last illness is admissible to rebut testimony that she was kind and attentive to him. People v. Bowers [Cal. App.] 82 P. 553.

which ease a wide range is allowed,[1] and as to acts tending to show intent,[2] malice,[3]

Held inadmissible: Evidence of an assault by accused on another person previous to the homicide, at another time and place than that of the affray resulting in the death of deceased. Brom v. People, 216 Ill. 148, 74 N. E. 790. In a prosecution for homicide resulting from whipping defendant's own child, evidence of a previous similar killing and of cruel punishments inflicted on his children. Ackers v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 999. In a prosecution for felonious assault, evidence of previous difficulty between prosecutrix and defendant's brother, in which defendant took no part. State v. Ethridge [Mo.] 87 S. W. 495. Testimony that decedent said she had taken dyspepsia medicine and had been taken sick shortly thereafter was a mere narration of a past event and an opinion as to the cause of her pain. Boyd v. State, 84 Miss. 414, 36 So. 525.

Part of res gestae: Statement made by deceased as he fell from the shot. Marlow v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 653; Goodman v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 922. Circumstances following the homicide. Lyles v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 763. Evidence that, while deceased was lying on the ground where he fell when shot, he told witness that defendant shot him. Franklin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 357. What the child of defendant said in delivering him a note, which the evidence tended to show came from deceased. Upton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 687, 88 S. W. 212. Where defendant killed a sheriff in pursuit of him and two days later another sheriff, on prosecution for the second killing, evidence of the first was admitted. Cortez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 812. On a trial for murder by poison, statement of decedent that she had taken medicine given her by her husband, the defendant, and it was killing her. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406. Testimony that defendant, at the commencement of the affair resulting in homicide, ordered deceased to throw up his hands. People v. Lee [Cal. App.] 81 P. 969.

Not part of res gestae: Statements of deceased made within a few minutes after the shooting. Vickery v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 907; State v. Stallings [Ala.] 38 So. 261. Statements made by accused, four or five hours after the assault, as to how she received certain wounds. Brittain v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 278. Conversation between deceased and his brother shortly after the shooting. Regnier v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 509.

1. Evidence that defendant had stated that he intended to kill another person in a manner corresponding to that of decedent's death was admissible. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75. Evidence of attempted suicide by accomplice held admissible. People v. Patrick [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 843. Not erroneous to admit evidence that accused was not, on the night in question, at one of a series of meetings he usually attended; to permit the physician of the jail to testify to wounds on the back of accused's hands; to permit evidence of coincidence between the hand of accused and a bloody hand-print on the wall; and to permit evidence of resemblance between spots on accused's clothing and others cut therefrom and tested by experts in determining whether they were blood spots. State v. Miller [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 202.

2. Prior statements of defendant admissible to show intent and motive. State v. Bailey [Mo.] 88 S. W. 733. Evidence as to prior abortions produced by defendant admissible to show intent, in a prosecution for manslaughter in procuring an abortion. People v. Hodge [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 407, 104 N. W. 599. Evidence of prior threats of violence admissible to show intent. State v. Thompson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 377.

3. Threats by defendant to make deceased suffer for things he had done. State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706. Where there was evidence that defendant harbored ill will against all the employes where his victim worked, evidence of prior threats to injure other employes besides the one assaulted was admissible. Holmes v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 321. Prior acts by defendant, exhibition of revolver and declaration that no one could run a bluff over him, held to indicate a frame of mind or disposition to commit crime. State v. Brown [Mo.] 87 S. W. 519. Self-defense being claimed, evidence that defendant had committed a bank robbery a few weeks before the killing, was admissible to account for the desperation of defendant when the officers appeared, one of whom was deceased. State v. Rudolph, 187 Mo. 67, 85 S. W. 584. Evidence of threats made by defendant to kill deceased are not rendered incompetent by nearness or remoteness to the time of the homicide. State v. Coleman, 186 Mo. 151, 84 S. W. 978. Long course of ill-treatment of wife, to show malice and motive. Roberts v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 374. Also similar treatment of the husband by the wife. Campbell v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 644. A letter written by defendant, showing ill will toward deceased. State v. Exum, 138 N. C. 599, 50 S. E. 283. Where, on trial for murder in an affray between two defendants and two others, one insisted that the difficulty was brought on by one of the others, he should be allowed to show the threats of such other, to show his animus. State v. Gaylord, 70 S. C. 415, 50 S. E. 20. A prior assault by defendant upon deceased could be shown. Miera v. Territory [N. M.] 81 P. 586. A witness to a conversation between defendant and deceased could testify as to the fact of threats. State v. Allen, 111 La. 154, 35 So. 495. Evidence of bystanders, at a previous fight with deceased, not admissible against defendant. Gray v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 705. Threat by defendant to kill any officer who attempted to arrest him or motive,[4] premeditation,[5] or admissions or confessions of guilt,[6] evidence of prior[7] or subsequent acts or declarations, is generally inadmissible.[8] Self-serving declaraheld inadmissible to show malignancy, it having no connection with the case. Earles v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1. Where the homicide was in pursuance of a conspiracy to kill the entire family to which deceased belonged, and an effort was made to do so, threats by defendant against the father of deceased, who was not killed, are admissible. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1. Bad feeling generally between the families of defendant and deceased may be shown, and the evidence need not he confined to bad feeling between defendant and deceased personally. Id.

4. On a prosecution of a husband for murdering his wife, the conditions under which he had recently married her and his declarations as to how long the marriage relation might last, were admissible to show motive. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406. Love letters found in defendant's possession held admissible, when jealousy was claimed to have been motive for killing. Mothley v. Com. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 988. On a trial for killing a certain person, everything done at the time and every part of the affair, including defendant's killing another person and shooting a third, is admissible to explain nature and motive of the act. Helton v. Com. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 574. Prior threats by deceased against defendant admissible as tending to show motive. Lee v. State [Ark.] 81 S. W. 385. Indictment presented by the grand jury prior to the homicide, charging defendant with larceny of cattle, held admissible to establish motive. Smith v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 573. Evidence that defendant had burglars' tools in his possession when pursued by the policeman who was killed, admissible to show defendant's motives. People v. Woods [Cal.] 81 P. 652. Evidence showing that defendant's mind was brooding on the motive for the crime admissible. State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807. To show motive for the killing, evidence that deceased had caused an information for burglary to be filed against defendant is admissible. Zipperian v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1018. Where, to show a motive for the homicide, the fact of deceased's life being insured in favor of defendant was proved, it was error to exclude proof of the trifling value of such insurance, known to defendant. Jahnke v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 154. On trial of a wife for murder of her husband, evidence of undue intimacy between defendant with a certain man before and after the homicide is admissible. People v. Bowers [Cal. App.] 82 P. 553. Evidence of improper relations between defendant's stepdaughter and the person assailed admissible to show motive. Littlejohn v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 463.

5. Evidence that shortly before the homicide, defendant impressed on the mind of a woman living with him the peril of her making any disclosures against him, held to show premeditation of the killing. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75.

6. Statement by defendant that he would assume the blame and prove self-defense held competent as an admission. State v. White [Mo.] 87 S. W. 1188. The mere fact that the statements of accused were made while he was under arrest does not necessitate their exclusion. State v. Lyons, 113 La. 959, 37 So. 890; State v. Exum, 138 N. C. 599, 50 S. E. 283. Parts of defendant's testimony on a former trial are admissible as admissions. Miller v. People, 216 Ill. 309, 74 N. E. 743. But statements made by him as a witness before the coroner's jury, without being warned that he need not answer incriminating questions, are inadmissible. State v. Wescott [Iowa] 104 N. W. 341; Tuttle v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1035. Testimony by accomplice as to conversations between him and defendant, in presence of defendant's counsel, admitted, the relation of counsel not being shown to exist. People v. Patrick [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 843.

Confessions are admissible when voluntary. Hintz v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 110; Van Dalsen v. Com. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 255. But not if made under the influence of threats. Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 694, 88 S. W. 223. The voluntary character of confessions sought to be introduced in evidence is for the court to determine. Hintz v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 110. But may be left to the jury where there is conflict in the evidence and the court is in doubt. State v. Westcott [Iowa] 104 N. W. 341; Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 694, 88 S. W. 223. The fact that accused was under an unlawful arrest when he confessed did not render the confession involuntary. State v. Westcott [Iowa] 104 N. W. 341. The suggestion of a theory of self-defense by an officer in eliciting a confession does not of itself exclude the confession. Id. All confessions are prima facie inadmissible, and a predicate must first be laid for their introduction. State v. Stallings [Ala.] 38 So. 261. Question of sufficient predicate for introduction of confession in evidence properly submitted to jury. Cortez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 812. Sufficient predicate for introduction of evidence of confession. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329; Green v. Com., 26 Ky. L. R. 1221, 83 S. W. 638; Reeves v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 803; Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 824. Statements of defendant that she had done what she did because she did not want to be made a laughing stock of, held admissible as a confession. Fonseca v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1069.

7. Hall v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 707, 88 S. W. 244; Campbell v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 644. Declarations showing animosity towards deceased, as well as threats to take his life. State v. Exum, 138 N. C. 599, 50 S. E. 283. Evidence of prior declaration of defendant that he would kill "any man who came around his woman's house," admissible. State v. Teachey, 138 N. C. 587, 50 S. E. 232. Declaration of defendant, before the homicide, that if deceased did not keep his stock out of defendant's pasture, lead was going to fly, was admissible. Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W. 203. Where the declarations of a party are given in evidence against him, all

tions, whether made before [9] or after the homicide, are inadmissible.[10] The acts and declarations of defendant on being charged with the murder are always a pertinent subject of inquiry, but statements of deceased, which are neither res gestæ nor dying declarations, are inadmissible.[11] Acts, declarations or threats on the part of deceased, evidencing a purpose to commit suicide, are admissible, the defense being suicide;[12] but, in a prosecution for killing an alleged prostitute, expert testimony as to a tendency among prostitutes to homicide and suicide, is inadmissible to show such tendencies on the part of deceased.[13] The physician who made the autopsy may testify to the character of the wounds;[14] and medical experts may express their opinions as to the time when wounds were inflicted upon a person living at the time wounds were inflicted.[15] Photographs showing the nature and location of deceased's wounds before their appearance had been altered by surgical operations are admissible.[16] X-ray photographs, or sciagraphs, or radiographs, as they are variously termed, are admissible on the same basis as photographs.[17] One who is not a medical expert, but who assisted at the autopsy, may testify that the bullet passed through the heart and liver.[18] The length of time the victim is confined as a result of the wound is material to the issue as to whether or not there was an attempt to kill;[19] and on the question of the intent to take the life of the person shot, proof that, had the bullet spent its force in the direction it was discharged, the result would probably have been death, is competent.[20] On a trial for homicide by poisoning, the physician who attended decedent during her last illness may describe her condition and the nature and character of her suffering;[21] and may testify that an autopsy was held and a portion of decedent's stomach was sealed up in a jar and sent to a chemist,[22] and the

that he said upon the subject must be received and weighed. State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807. Evidence showing that defendant was not present at the time and place, where the state contended he bought the poison administered to deceased, is admissible. Williams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 322.

8. Evidence as to actions within a few minutes after the homicide admissible. Gray v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 705. On trial for murder, evidence of conduct of defendant and that he intended to resist arrest is competent. State v. Marks, 70 S. C. 448, 50 S. E. 14. Boasts of the deed, made by defendant shortly after the killing, admissible. Cook v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 110. Statements of defendant during search for wife whom he was charged with killing. Reeves v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 803. Declaration of defendant, while in custody, that the killing was an accident, admitted, not as a confession, but as explanatory. Carwile v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 220. On the trial of persons jointly indicted for murder, the statements of one in his own defense, not under oath, cannot be taken against the others. Berry v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 345.

9. State v. Dean [S. C.] 51 S. E. 524. As to whether defendant said anything about whether or not he prayed for the recovery of deceased. State v. Sandford, 99 Me. 441, 59 A. 597. Certain statements, made by defendant prior to the homicide, about family troubles and decedent's endeavoring to keep his wife away from him, held not to be self-serving, but admissible to show defendant's state of mind. Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 341.

10. A letter written by accused after the homicide, favorable to himself. Williams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 322. Defendant's silence when accused of killing deceased. Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 824. Exculpatory statement by accused to lay foundation for an alibi may be shown, to show sense of guilt, and it may also be shown to be false. State v. Aspara, 113 La. 940, 37 So. 883.

11. Smith v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 573. Statement after the shooting as to which shot struck him and as to who was to blame. Moore v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 504. Evidence of declaration of decedent relative to his assaulting a third person. Sanford v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 370.

12. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406.

13. Van Dalsen v. Com. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 255.

14. Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 341. That, in his opinion, the wounds could not have been self-inflicted, and that the victim was sitting when the shot was fired. Miera v. Territory [N. M.] 81 P. 586. Or that the wounds must have been given with some blunt instrument. People v. Olsen [Cal. App.] 81 P. 676. Or by scissors, penknife, or something similar. Fletcher v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 360. As to the kind of weapon used and the distance from which the shot was fired. State v. Voorhies [La.] 38 So. 964.

15. Hampton v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 421.

16. State v. Roberts [Nev.] 82 P. 100; State v. Powell [Del.] 61 A. 966.

17. Admitted to show location of bullet in the body of the person alleged to have been shot by defendant. State v. Matheson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 137.

18. State v. Lyons, 113 La. 959, 37 So. 890.

19. Brown v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 268.

20. Ullman v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 6.

21, 22, 23. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406.

chemist who analyzed the contents, can identify the jar as the one sent him by the physician.[23] Where the facts proved disclosed willful and premeditated murder, evidence as to defendant's reputation for industry, his being intoxicated, the character of the frequenters of the saloon where the deed was done, and other incidents occurring months before, was immaterial.[24] Where the defendant, in a prosecution for murder, does not place his character in issue, the state cannot attack it.[25] Deceased's clothes,[26] when they serve to illustrate some point, solve some question or throw light upon the case,[27] and defendant's clothes,[28] diagrams of premises,[29] and the weapon used, may be introduced,[30] and testimony as to blood stains is competent;[31] also evidence as to blood found on the ground where the homicide occurred, where the same is pertinent to issues in the case.[32] On the trial of a convict for murder in resisting recapture, evidence of a conspiracy among the convicts, including defendant, is admissible to connect him with the homicide;[33] and articles found in the camp of the escaped convicts, belonging to defendant, were admissible to show that he was present at the killing of a officer.[34] In a prosecution for murder, where there is evidence of premeditation and deliberation, evidence that the killing was in the perpetration of robbery is admissible, though not alleged in the indictment.[35] In homicide, the verdict of the coroner's jury is inadmissible for any purpose.[36]

Only the acts and declarations of a co-conspirator can be used against another conspirator; and not until a predicate has been laid.[37] It is the province of the jury to determine whether the conspiracy has been proved.[38]

Justification.[39]—Previous altercations between defendant and deceased,[40] and their threats and statements of intentions in regard to each other, are admissible, the plea being self-defense;[41] but declarations of peaceful intent, made by deceased and 24. State v. Niehaus [Mo.] 87 S. W. 473.

25. Newman v. Com. [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1089. In a prosecution for assault with intent to murder, it was error to admit evidence of defendant's "bumming around town," associating with loafers, etc. State v. Thompson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 377.

26. Carroll v. Com., 26 Ky. L. R. 1083, 83 S. W. 552; Venters v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 832. Testimony as to certain holes in deceased's clothing was not incompetent on the ground that the clothing was the best evidence. Underwood v. Com. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 310.

27. Melton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 822; Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W. 203; Crenshaw v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1147.

28. State v. Aspara, 113 La. 940, 37 So. 883. The fact that deceased bled freely, but no blood stains were found on defendant's clothes, creates no presumption that he did not commit the assault. People v. Jackson [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 565.

29. People v. Antony, 146 Cal. 124, 79 P. 858; State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706.

30. A rifle. Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W. 203. A stick. Taylor v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 380. A pistol found near the scene of the killing. State v. Aspara, 113 La. 940, 37 So. 883. A pole identified as found on the scene of the homicide. Roberts v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 374. Where the question is whether the fatal wounds were inflicted with the fist or a knife, it was proper to exhibit to the jury a knife taken from defendant. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601.

31. But where the garment of defendant on which blood was alleged to have been found had been put into a sack with deceased's bloody clothing, the result of the blood test was inadmissible. State v. McAnarney [Kan.] 79 P. 137. On defendant's garments found in wife's trunk. People v. Antony, 146 Cal. 124, 79 P. 858.

32. Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 341.

33, 34. People v. Wood, 145 Cal. 659, 79 P. 367.

35. Powell v. State [Ark.] 85 S. W. 781.

36. State v. Coleman, 186 Mo. 151, 84 S. W. 978.

37. Wallace v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 612, 87 S. W. 1041. Where there is evidence of conspiracy, evidence of acts and declarations of co-conspirators in furtherance of the common design is admissible against others. Nelson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 339, 87 S. W. 143. Foundation held sufficient to admit proof of purchase of poison by defendant's sister. People v. Bowers [Cal. App.] 82 P. 553. Where there is a prima facie case of conspiracy to murder, acts and declarations of each conspirator in pursuance of the common object are admissible against all. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1.

38. Wallace v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 618, 87 S. W. 1041. The fact that, after a homicide, one defendant said to another, "Don't run," and that he attempted to escape with him, does not establish a conspiracy. State v. Marks, 70 S. C. 448, 50 S. E. 14.

39. See 3 C. L. 1656.

40. Hughes v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 33.

41. McKinney v. Carmack, 119 Ga. 467, 46 S. E. 719; Hughes v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 33; Dunn v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 147.

communicated to defendant, are admissible in rebuttal,[42] and evidence of a warning given defendant that it would be dangerous for him to go to the house of deceased is admissible.[43] But the particulars of a previous difficulty between accused and deceased are not admissible.[44] Evidence of the unchaste and immoral habits of deceased was held admissible, where defendant sought to reduce the homicide to manslaughter by showing that deceased committed adultery with defendant's wife;[45] but evidence of adulterous intercourse between defendant's husband and deceased was held inadmissible in extenuation or justification of the killing,[46] and evidence of attempts by deceased to obtain carnal intercourse with his daughter, though she was afterward married to defendant, is inadmissible to reduce the homicide to manslaughter.[47]

The general reputation of deceased for violence may be shown, where defendant had knowledge of it;[48] where there was doubt whether homicide was necessary in self-defense, to show that defendant may have reasonably believed himself in danger,[49] but not where defendant was the aggressor;[50] and the evidence as to defendant's reputation should be duly restricted;[51] and particular acts of violence[52] with which defendant was not connected[53] cannot be shown. But defendant can avail himself of some special act or communication by deceased to him, which indicated his dangerous character.[54] Deceased's habit of carrying weapons cannot be shown when there is no evidence of self-defense in the case;[55] but, the plea being self-defense, defendant has the right to show any fact tending to prove the good faith of his belief that he was in danger;[56] and, in rebuttal, testimony that, at the time of the difficulty, deceased was not armed, is competent.[57] The gentlemanly conduct of deceased on the night of the killing, however, especially if not known to defendant, should not be admitted in evidence.[58] That deceased was in rightful possession of the premises where the homicide occurred may be shown.[59] Unless the 42. Taylor v. State, 121 Ga. 348, 49 S. E. 303.

43. State v. Rochester [S. C.] 51 S. E. 685.

44. Dunn v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 147; Sanford v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 370; Hughes v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 33.

45. Orange v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 385.

46. State v. Powell [Del.] 61 A. 966.

47. Coleman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 718, 88 S. W. 238.

48. Crow v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 814; Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 341; State v. Thrailkill [S. C.] 50 S. E. 551; Commonwealth v. Tircinski [Mass.] 75 N. E. 261; State v. Hough, 138 N. C. 663, 50 S. E. 709. Evidence of uncommunicated threats made by deceased against defendant admissible to show that deceased may have been the aggressor. State v. Powell [Del.] 61 A. 966. Testimony as to whether from his reputation, deceased was a person likely to carry into execution a threat seriously made, was a mere opinion of the witness and incompetent. Long v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 93. But where deceased's bad character for violence and his enmity toward defendant and others who participated in the killing was notorious, evidence of threats made by deceased was admissible, though not shown to have been communicated to defendant before the killing. Wheeler v. Com. [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1106. Where the plea was self-defense, evidence that defendant shortly before the homicide went to a justice and, in the absence of deceased, asked to have him put under bonds to keep the peace, was inadmissible. State v. Atchley, 186 Mo. 174, 84 S. W. 984. Evidence that a year before the homicide defendant had said he wanted to make a reputation like his cousin's, who had killed two or three men, held inadmissible. Casteel v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 853.

49. Kipley v. People, 215 Ill. 358, 74 N. E. 379; Green v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 362. Where immediately before the shooting defendant was complaining of the violent character of deceased, evidence that he was delicate and sickly and as to the relative sizes of the two is admissible. Bearden v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 808.

50. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601.

51. To the community where deceased lived and to some reasonable time previous to and connected with the homicide. Lynch v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1015.

52. State v. Thrailkill [S. C.] 50 S. E. 551.

53. State v. Dean [S. C.] 51 S. E. 524.

54. Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 341.

55. State v. Exum, 138 N. C. 599, 50 S. E. 283.

56. Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 341.

57. Moore v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 504. Evidence that after the homicide deceased had a closed knife in his pocket is admissible to rebut evidence that at the time of the shooting he had an open knife in his hand. Baysinger v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 728.

58. Brownlee v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 621, 87 S. W. 1153.

plea is self-defense, evidence as to whether deceased drank a good deal is not admissible.[60] Where an officer shot a misdemeanant fleeing from arrest, evidence in justification that he was a desperate character was inadmissible.[61] The character of deceased cannot be supported by the state until it has been attacked by defendant.[62]

Insanity and intoxication. Where the defense is insanity, a non-expert witness may testify as to facts bearing on the question of sanity, and characterize the acts which he testifies to as rational or irrational, but his opinion on the general question of sanity is inadmissible.[63] An expert in insanity may testify that certain symptoms could not all be present in the same person at the same time.[64] In Texas, evidence of temporary insanity from the recent use of intoxicating liquor is authorized.[65] Evidence of insanity caused by blows on the head, received some time before the homicide, may be rebutted by evidence as to the extent and nature of the injuries received.[66] Where insanity was not pleaded as a defense, and the evidence of deliberation and premeditation was undisputed, evidence as to defendant's feelings and condition on the day of the homicide was inadmissible.[67] The doctrine of moral insanity, which consists of irresistible impulse co-existent with mental sanity, has no support either in psychology or law.[68]

Harmless error[69] in the admission and exclusion of evidence is discussed below.[70]

59. And to that end a lease is admissible. Turley v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 934.

60. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329.

61. Commonwealth v. Rhoads, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 512.

62. Melton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 822.

63. People v. Spencer, 179 N. Y. 408 72 N. E. 461. Admissibility of evidence to prove insanity considered. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. Testimony as to the conduct of the accused before, after and at the time of, the act charged is competent on the issue of insanity. State v. Lyons, 113 La. 959, 37 So. 890.

64. People v. Sowell, 145 Cal. 292, 78 P. 717.

65. By art. 41, Pen. Code 1895. Hierholzer v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 836.

66. State v. McPhail [Wash.] 81 P. 683.

67. Handy v. State [Md.] 60 A. 452.

68. State v. Lyons, 113 La. 959, 37 So. 890.

69. See 3 C. L. 1658.

70. Error in admitting testimony to show malice is harmless when the conviction is of manslaughter. Moore v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 504. Statement by court to an expert that he could base his opinion, as to insanity, only on what evidence he deemed true was harmless where it was based on the hypothesis that it was all true. People v. Sowell, 145 Cal. 292, 78 P. 717. Admission of expert testimony that symptoms indicated strychnine poisoning. State v. Robinson, 126 Iowa, 69, 101 N. W. 634. Where a state's witness testified that she and deceased were good friends, error, if any, in refusing to permit defendant to ask witness if she was not a friend of deceased was harmless. Smith v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 983. The admission of testimony void of significance is harmless. State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807. Admission, on cross-examination, of declarations of defendant, when not prejudicial. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601. The refusal to allow the affidavit of an absent witness to be read was harmless, where the averments therein were general and could not have had any substantial effect on the jury. McQueen v. Com. [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1047. Certain evidence as to defendant's visiting certain women, though erroneously admitted, was not prejudicial, because immaterial. Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 341.

Error cured by other evidence or striking out: Exclusion of expert's testimony held harmless, where a large amount of such evidence was admitted on the subject. People v. Patrick [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 843. Admission as part of dying declaration, of what deceased thought defendant thought about having shot him, harmless in view of defendant's testimony as to the same. People v. Sowell, 145 Cal. 292, 78 P. 717. The admission of an inadmissible confession, where subsequently an admissible confession is made substantially agreeing with the first. Andrews v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1031. Where a witness finally did testify to facts which the court refused when leading questions were asked him. Hellard v. Com. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 329. Error in permitting a question to be asked may be cured by the answer. State v. Manderville, 37 Wash. 365, 79 P. 977; Gallegos v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1150; Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. Permitting witness to state the appearance of defendant's wife after the killing, it being the theory of the prosecution that she participated, the answer being "she looked all right." People v. Antony, 146 Cal. 124, 79 P. 858. Exclusion of question covering facts already admitted in evidence is harmless. Hellard v. Com. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 329; State v. Coleman, 186 Mo. 151, 84 S. W. 978. Where the court, after excluding questions, recalls the witness and gives permission to examine him, error is cured. People v. Spencer, 179 N. Y. 408, 72 N. E. 461. Where the widow of the murdered man, in answer to a question, said she had one child, which she afterward brought into court, and it was received in evidence, held harmless. People v. Rimieri, 180 N. Y. 163, 72 N. E. 1002. Error in

(§ 7) C. Dying declarations[71] are admissible on the trial of one charged with the killing of declarant, on a proper foundation being laid[72] as to such facts relative to the cause and extent of the injury received, as deceased would have been permitted to testify to, had he lived,[73] with so much of the statements of other persons present at the time as is necessary to make the declaration intelligible,[74] if made under a sense of impending dissolution,[75] though deceased did not at the time state that they were so made.[76] Whether one was rational at the time of making a dying declaration is not a subject for expert testimony.[77] The fact of there being eyewitnesses to a homicide does not preclude the reception of a dying declaration in evidence.[78] The wife of deceased is a competent witness to prove dying declarations made by him.[79] Where dying declarations have been reduced to writing and signed admitting testimony may be cured by defendant's being allowed to explain. Helton v. Com. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 574. Cured by court ruling it out and instructing jury to disregard it. Rentfrow v. State [Ga.] 51 S. 7. 596; Allen v. Com. [Ky.] 82 S. W. 589; White v. Com. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 753. Error in admission not cured by subsequent exclusion. Flowers v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 814.

Held prejudicial: Secondary evidence of physical characteristics of deceased. Commonwealth v. Crowley, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 124. It is error to permit the reading of extracts from a medical work on insanity to a witness on cross-examination and so get it indirectly before the jury. State v. Thompson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 377. Exclusion of evidence in rebuttal of dying declaration. Flowers v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 814. Refusal to permit defendant to show that his shirt was cut in front, where the evidence showed deceased had a knife in his hand and the plea was self-defense. Ellzey v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 837. Evidence of other crimes of defendant improperly admitted on trial for homicide. Shepherd v. Com. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 191.

71. See 3 C. L. 1658.

72. Smith v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 573; Ashley v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 960.

73. When only a general objection is made, it is admissible, although it contains statements as to prior threats. Commonwealth v. Spahr, 211 Pa. 542, 60 A. 1084. Soon after he fell, in the presence of respondent, deceased said: "Boys, I give you good-by—I am going to die—this man shot me and I must die, and I will die like a man." Commonwealth v. Rhoads, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 512.

74. A doctor's statement to a person dying from poison that her husband was under suspicion, was inadmissible in connection with the dying declaration of the decedent. Boyd v. State, 84 Miss. 414, 36 So. 525.

75. Lyles v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 763; State v. Teachey, 138 N. C. 587, 50 S. E. 232; State v. Roberts [Nev.] 82 P. 100; People v. Thomson, 145 Cal. 717, 79 P. 435; People v. Sowell, 145 Cal. 282, 78 P. 717; Commonwealth v. Spahr, 211 Pa. 542, 60 A. 1084. The state must show this to have been the case. State v. Daniels [La.] 38 So. 894. A prima facie case is all that is necessary to carry dying declarations to the jury. Anderson v. State [Ga.] 5 S. E. 46. Statement by deceased, the morning after the shooting, that his injuries were "mighty bad," admissible as part of predicate. Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W. 203. Statements by deceased that he had accidentally shot himself are not admissible in the absence of a showing that they were made under apprehension of impending death. Scott v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 1004. Whether the person was conscious and realized that death was impending are issues of fact. Anderson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 46. Finding of trial court that declarations were made under conviction of impending death will not be readily disturbed. Gipe v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 881.

Predicate held sufficient: State v. Roberts [Nev.] 82 P. 100; State v. Craig [Mo.] 88 S. W. 641; State v. Bordelon, 113 La. 690, 37 So. 603. Ante-mortem statement properly admitted as a dying declaration. State v. Bonar [Kan.] 81 P. 484. Where, before it was sworn to, deceased was informed by two surgeons that he could not live. Commonwealth v. Rhoads, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 512. Where deceased expressed belief in afternoon that he would not get well, grew steadily worse through the day, made declarations at midnight and died following morning, held, that declarations were properly admitted. Gipe v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 881. Declarant said she was going to die, being informed she was very sick, and her statement, when asked if she had taken anything herself (she having died from poisoning), "The Lord is my witness, I have taken nothing except what you gave me," was admissible as a dying declaration. Boyd v. State, 84 Miss. 414, 36 So. 525. Where he said the physicians said he could not live, and sent for his betrothed and told her he could not live, releasing her from the engagement, although he was delirious at times and under influence of opiates. Roberts v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 692, 88 S. W. 221. Evidence that defendant's wound was necessarily fatal and that just before death he stated he was nigh unto death and fully aware that it was approaching. State v. Brown [Mo.] 87 S. W. 519.

Predicate held insufficient: Ashley v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 960; Brown v. Com., 26 Ky. L. R. 1269, 83 S. W. 645; State v. Daniels [La.] 38 So. 894. Statement of deceased held inadmissible, it not appearing that he entertained a fixed belief of death impending and certain to follow immediately. Brom v. People, 216 Ill. 148, 74 N. E. 790.

76. Zipperian v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1018.

77, 78. Lyles v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 763.

79. Bright v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 527.

by the declarant, it is the best evidence and usually excludes verbal evidence, unless the absence of the written declaration is properly accounted for.[80] A written dying statement was not objectionable because in narrative form and not including the questions asked;[81] and the fact that the justice taking the declaration treated it as a criminal complaint is no reason for disregarding it as a dying declaration.[82] Dying declarations stand on no higher plane as evidence than does testimony of an ordinary witness, and their weight as evidence is solely a question for the jury;[83] and they may be impeached or contradicted by showing that deceased made contradictory statements.[84]

(§ 7) D. Sufficiency.[85]—In the footnotes are grouped cases on the sufficiency of the evidence to support conviction of murder generally,[86] murder in the first degree,[87] second degree,[88] manslaughter,[89] assault with intent to kill or murder,[90] to

80. Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W. 203. Though an affidavit may not be admissible in evidence, it may be used by witnesses to his dying declarations to refresh their memory. State v. Teachey, 138 N. C. 587, 50 S. E. 232.

81. State v. Williams [Nev.] 82 P. 353.

82. Zipperian v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1018.

83. People v. Thomson, 145 Cal. 717, 79 P. 435; Zipperian v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1018.

84. Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W. 203.

85. See 3 C. L. 1659.

86. Chelsey v. State, 121 Ga. 340, 49 S. E. 258; Sims v. State, 121 Ga. 337, 49 S. E. 260; West v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 266; Taylor v. State, 121 Ga. 348, 49 S. E. 303; Anderson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 51; Williams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 322; Roberts v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 374; Allams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 506; Clements v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 595; Everett v. People [Ill.] 75 N. E. 188; Schley v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 501; Flowers v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 814; Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850; Johnson v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 926; State v. Atchley, 186 Mo. 174, 84 S. W. 984; Newman v. Com. [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1089; State v. Roberts [Nev.] 82 P. 100. Sufficient to support a charge of infanticide. Fletcher v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 360. Where defendant's account for his possession of property of deceased was shown to be false, the jury was justified in discrediting all his testimony and finding him guilty of murder. People v. Jackson [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 565. Evidence insufficient as not excluding every reasonable hypothesis save of guilt. Young v. State, 121 Ga. 334, 49 S. E. 256. Evidence of wife poisoning held sufficient. State v. Blydenburgh [Iowa] 104 N. W. 1015. Circumstantial evidence held sufficient. Houston v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 468. Evidence of identity held sufficient. Cox v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 150. Evidence held to sustain conviction of principals and accessory before the fact of murder pursuant to conspiracy to kill an entire family. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1. Evidence that defendant advised, aided and abetted the homicide held sufficient. Patterson v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 77.

87. Commonwealth v. Dardaia, 210 Pa. 61, 59 A. 432; Commonwealth v. Gibson, 211 Pa. 546, 60 A. 1086; Commonwealth v. Danz, 211 Pa. 507, 60 A. 1070; State v. Daniel [N. C.] 51 S. E. 858; People v. Smith, 180 N. Y. 125, 72 N. E. 931; People v. Koenig, 180 N. Y. 155, 72 N. E. 993; People v. Rimieri, 180 N. E. 1002; People v. Totterman, 181 N. Y. 385, 74 N. E. 222; People v. Breen, 181 N. Y. 493, 74 N. E. 483; Green v. Com., 26 Ky. L. R. 1221, 83 S. W. 638; Young v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 822; Moore v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 946; Goley v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 952; Reyes v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 257; State v. Exum, 138 N. C. 599, 50 S. E. 283; Ubillos v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 363; People v. Woods [Cal.] 81 P. 652; Barker v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 71. By poisoning. State v. Robinson, 126 Iowa, 69, 101 N. W. 634. Committed in an assault for the purpose of robbery. People v. Jackson [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 565; Vann v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1064. Confession of defendant in the presence of three witnesses held sufficient to support verdict. Commonwealth v. Johnson [Pa.] 61 A. 246. Evidence not sufficient to warrant verdict of murder in first degree. People v. Raffo, 180 N. Y. 434, 73 N. E. 225; Dill v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 37.

88. Scott v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1060; Hancock v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 696; Reeves v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 803; Frame v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 711; Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 824; White v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 296; Yancy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 693; Charba v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 829; Thurman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 147, 86 S. W. 1014; State v. White [Mo.] 87 S. W. 1188; State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706; Daniels v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 844; Thomas v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 516; State v. Manderville, 37 Wash. 365, 79 P. 977; People v. Heart [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1018; People v. Fucarino, 93 N. Y. S. 689. Evidence of killing after apparently friendly altercation held to sustain conviction of murder in second degree. People v. Fitgerald [Cal. App.] 82 P. 555.

89. Kipley v. People, 215 Ill. 358, 74 N. E. 379; Goodman v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 922; Nelms v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 588; Grimes v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 721; State v. Rollins, 186 Mo. 501, 85 S. W. 516; Scott v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 1004; Bell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 558, 87 S. W. 1160; Tetterton v. Com. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 8; Clemons v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 647; State v. Clayton, 113 La. 782, 37 So. 754. Voluntary manslaughter. Ward v. Com., 26 Ky. L. R. 1256, 83 S. W. 649; Perrymore v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 909; Underwood v. Com. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 310; Moseley v. Com. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 748. Evidence held sufficient to sustain conviction of prove the corpus delicti,[91] cause of death[92] defendant's participation,[93] intent,[94] identity,[95] self-defense,[96] and insanity.[97]

Proof of the corpus delicti is always necessary,[98] but it may be proved by circumstantial, as well as direct, evidence.[99]

The sufficiency of evidence to identify defendant as the assailant of deceased is a question for the jury.[1]

A homicide having been proved, a confession is sufficient to support a conviction.[2] The weight of a confession as evidence is for the jury; all parts of it are not necessarily entitled to the same credit, but the jury can believe such parts as are deemed worthy of belief and reject the rest.[3] Corroboratory evidence is required, in case of confession, in Iowa.[4]

In most of the states corroboration of the testimony of an accomplice is required to convict.[5] manslaughter. Robinson v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 465.

Third degree, under §§ 4354, 4355, Rev. St. 1898. Kenney v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 907.

Fourth degree, under Rev. St. 1898, §§ 4362, 4363. Schmidt v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1071. Sufficient to show defendant guilty of manslaugter by aiding and abetting. State v. Cobley [Iowa] 103 N. W. 99.

90. Holmes v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 321; Mixon v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 580; Napper v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 592; Sanders v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 712; State v. Naves, 185 Mo. 125, 84 S. W. 1; Martinus v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 827; Watson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 89 S. W. 270; Taylor v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 380. Evidence of shooting with intent to kill officer attempting to arrest defendant for gambling held sufficient. Earl v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 78. Evidence of beating of old woman with club held to show intent to kill. Garcia v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 937, 89 S. W. 647. Circumstantial evidence of assault with intent to kill held sufficient against evidence of alibi. Stanley v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 5, 89 S. W. 643. Evidence held not sufficient. Reyes v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 245. Evidence sufficient to present questions for jury. State v. Shanley [S. D.] 104 N. W. 522. Evidence in a prosecution for assault with intent to kill held sufficient to show that defendants were guilty of aggravated assault. Hinson v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 947.

91. Evidence sufficient to establish the corpus delicti. State v. Heusack [Mo.] 88 S. W. 21; State v. Williams [Or.] 80 P. 655; People v. Wood, 145 Cal. 659, 79 P. 367; State v. White [Mo.] 87 S. W. 1188; State v. Henderson, 186 Mo. 473, 85 S. W. 576; State v. Westcott [Iowa] 104 N. W. 341.

92. Sufficient to support charge that deceased was killed by being beaten with a stick. Collins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 806. Evidence held to show that decedent's death resulted from defendant's act. Casteel v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1004.

93. Evidence held not to show that defendant, after provoking the quarrel, declined to participate further in the struggle. Kyle v. People, 215 Ill. 250, 74 N. E. 146.

94. Proof of assault with deadly weapon in such a way that, had it not been turned aside, it would have caused death, is sufficient evidence of intent. Ullman v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 6.

95. Evidence sufficient to establish identity of murderer. State v. Heusack [Mo.] 88 S. W. 21. Evidence held to require submission to jury of question of identity of defendant with assailant. State v. Williams, 36 Wash. 143, 78 P. 780; People v. Silverman 181 N. Y. 235, 73 N. E. 980.

96. Insufficient to establish right of killing in self-defense. State v. White [N. C.] 51 S. E. 44; Kipley v. People, 215 Ill. 358, 74 N. E. 379. Issue of self-defense not presented by evidence, under Rev. St. 1901, pars. 181, 182. Hicklin v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 340. Evidence of killing of officer to avoid arrest held not to show self-defense. State v. Horner [N. C.] 52 S. E. 136. Evidence held sufficient against claim of self-defense. State v. Briggs [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 218.

97. Sufficient where the defense was insanity. People v. Ebelt, 180 N. Y. 470, 73 N. E. 235. Facts shown did not establish defense. State v. Lauth [Or.] 80 P. 660. Evidence sufficient to justify verdict of guilty, however eccentric defendant's conduct may have been. People v. Silverman, 181 N. Y. 235, 73 N. E. 980. Evidence sufficient to support finding of sanity. Schissler v. State, 122 Wis. 365, 99 N. W. 593.

98. The death of the person alleged to have been killed is a distinct ingredient and must be established. State v. Williams [Or.] 80 P. 655. An admission of defendant's counsel that deceased was murdered does not take the place of evidence. State v. Marx [Conn.] 60 A. 690.

99. State v. Westcott [Iowa] 104 N. W. 341. It must be established by direct testimony or presumptive evidence of the most cogent and irresistible kind. State v. Williams [Or.] 80 P. 655. Evidence that deceased was shot through body and died in a few moments is sufficient. People v. Wood, 145 Cal. 659, 79 P. 367. Finding of fragments of a human body, positively identified, and articles worn by the supposed victim, similarly identified, is sufficient proof. State v. Williams [Or.] 80 P. 655.

1. People v. Jackson [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 565.
2. Gallegos v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1150.
3. State v. Powell [Del.] 61 A. 966.
4. Under Code, § 5491. State v. Westcott [Iowa] 104 N. W. 341.
5. The evidence of an accomplice should

In Connecticut, the requirement that no person shall be convicted of any crime punishable by death without the testimony of at least two witnesses is satisfied, if there are two or more witnesses to different parts of the same transaction.[6]

It is enough to sustain the plea of self-defense, if, by any evidence a reasonable doubt is raised of the truth of any essential element of the charge.[7]

Evidence which, in any reasonable view thereof which the jury is entitled to take, justifies the verdict, is sufficient.[8]

§ 8. Trial and punishment. A. Conduct of trial in general.[9]—In New Jersey, a plea of not guilty on an indictment for murder is not inconsistent with a statement that defendant, upon arraignment, confessed the crime.[10] In Wisconsin, the trial of the special issue of insanity [11] and the general issue on the plea of not guilty, are but one trial of the action; [12] and under the statute providing for a summary inquisition in case of probable insanity,[13] it is not too late to demand such inquisition after trial on a special issue of insanty.[14]

Defendant's counsel cannot, as a matter of right, cross-examine a juror to determine the propriety of a peremptory challenge, after he has been declared qualified on examination by the court on his voir dire.[15] It is within the discretion of the court to send the jury out while accused's counsel argues questions of law to the court, the object being to enable the court to determine what issues should be presented to the jury; [16] also, to refuse to exclude the jury during a preliminary inquiry into the voluntary character of a confession.[17] In capital cases the jurors should not be permitted to separate, after being sworn, or associate with persons other than officers of the court.[18]

While it is the duty of the prosecution in a homicide case to present all the testimony of the material facts, whether adverse to the defendant or favorable to him,[19] the court in its discretion may limit the witnesses to be called.[20] It was not error for the court to receive certain evidence explaining the situation, while he and the jury were viewing the scene of the crime.[21] Comments of the court on evidence, favorable to defendant, are harmless.[22]

Where at least voluntary manslaughter was established, and some evidence tended to show murder, an improper argument, as to the burden of proof on defendant, was not prejudicial in view of a verdict of voluntary manslaughter only.[23] be closely scrutinized; and if he appears to have willfully sworn falsely as to any material matter, his uncorroborated testimony cannot be sufficient to support a verdict of guilty in a murder case. Jahnke v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 154. Sufficient corroboration. Chancellor v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 880. Testimony of accomplice held sufficiently corrohorated under Code Cr. Proc. § 399. People v. Patrick [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 843.

6. Revision 1902, § 1508. State v. Marx [Conn.] 60 A. 690.

7. Zipperian v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1018.

8. Holmes v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 321.

9. See 3 C. L. 1661. Only a few illustrative cases are retained, trial procedure in general being treated under the topics Indictment and Prosecution, 4 C. L. 1; Examination of Witnesses, 5 C. L. 1371; Jury, 4 C. L. 358.

10. P. L. 1898, p. 824, § 107, requires a plea of guilty to a charge of murder to be disregarded and a plea of not guilty entered. State v. Valentine [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 177.

11. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 4699.

12. Schissler v. State, 122 Wis. 365, 99 N. W. 593.

13. Rev. St. 1898, § 4700.

14. Steward v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1079.

15. Handy v. State [Md.] 60 A. 452.

16. Upton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 687, 88 S. W. 212.

17. Hintz v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 110.

18. State v. Craighead [La.] 38 So. 28.

19. The fact that the state did not call as a witness, in a poisoning case, a physician who examined the body, is not prejudicial where the defendant had timely notice that he would not be called and she might call him if desired. Commonwealth v. Danz, 211 Pa. 507, 60 A. 1070.

20. Where all the facts have been disclosed, the court may reserve the testimony of another witness for the defense. Commonwealth v. Rhoads, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 512.

21. Underwood v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 311.

22. People v. Cowan [Cal. App.] 82 P. 339.

23. White v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 284.

Where an indictment contains two counts, one charging murder with express malice and the other murder in perpetration of a robbery, the failure to submit the second count to the jury is an election by the state to stand upon the first.[24] It was not error for the court to refrain from contradicting a statement by defendant's counsel, in his opening to the jury, that, on his arraignment, defendant confessed the commission of the crime, when such contradiction was not requested.[25]

(§ 8) B. Instructions.[26]—Where the charge deals only with the facts in evidence, the narration of them in defendant's own words is not erroneous, because his story seems unreasonable or incredible.[27] The trial court may properly make a part of its charge extracts from the opinions of the courts of final resort on the questions of premeditation, deliberation and criminal intent.[28] The terms "self-defense" and "bring on difficulty," as used in the law of homicide, are self-explanatory and need not be specifically defined in instructions.[29] An instruction that, if the accused fled after the prosecutor was shot, such fact was a circumstance prima facie indicative of guilt, was proper.[30] Where there is evidence of guilt, a peremptory instruction for defendant is improper.[31] Instructions must not be argumentative,[32] and should tend to aid, not confuse[33] or mislead the jury,[34] and should cover the whole law governing the case.[35] Defendant's theory must be presented, when supported by the evidence,[36] and every degree of homicide of which a conviction might be had under the indictment and evidence should be submitted.[37] Where there is evidence

24. Martin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 390.

25. State v. Valentine [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 177.

26. See 3 C. L. 1661.

27. People v. Smith, 180 N. Y. 125, 72 N. E. 931.

28. People v. Breen, 181 N. Y. 493, 74 N. E. 483.

29. State v. Bailey [Mo.] 88 S. W. 733.

30. State v. Matheson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 137. Such an instruction held not erroneous as assuming flight of defendant. State v. Stentz, 33 Wash. 444, 74 P. 588.

31. Bright v. Com. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 527.

32. Instruction as to value of good character to defendant properly refused as argumentative. State v. Stentz, 33 Wash. 444, 74 P. 588. Instruction properly refused as argumentative. Carwile v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 220; Peel v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 251.

33. Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850. Requested charge as to self-defense properly refused because of omission of ingredients of self-defense. Peel v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 251; Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329.

34. State v. Lyons, 113 La. 959, 37 So. 890; Hampton v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 421. Charge as to reasonable douht properly refused as misleading. Bardin v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 833; Carwile v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 220. Where there was no evidence of criminal negligence, a charge that such negligence would supply the place of intent was calculated to mislead. Wolfe v. State, 121 Ga. 587, 49 S. E. 688.

35. French v. Com. [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1070. Instruction held erroneous because excluding a verdict of manslaughter. State v. Taylor [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 247.

36. Pedro v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 721, 88 S. W. 233; Greer v. Com. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 166; State v. Davis [W. Va.] 51 S. E. 230. An instruction which excluded from the consideration of the jury any other cause of death than arsenical poisoning, when the evidence showed defendant had given him antimony to cure him of drinking, as claimed, was erroneous. Commonwealth v. Danz, 211 Pa. 507, 60 A. 1070. Defendant entitled to charge that jury might consider fact of defendant's not killing his adversary when he could do so, in prosecution for assault and battery with intent to murder. McCaa v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 228. Where the evidence more cogently showed that the difficulty was brought on by deceased, defendant was entitled to a charge accordingly; Craiger v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 736, 88 S. W. 208. Instruction as to whether the gun, as used, was a deadly weapon was not required under the evidence. Yzaguirre v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 14. Where the evidence showed that deceased lived six months after the shooting and was able to visit his neighbors within two months, defendant entitled to have Pen. Code, 1895, arts. 651, 652 charged to the effect that the destruction of life must be complete by the act of another. Armsworthy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 697, 88 S. W. 215. Defendant entitled to have Pen. Code, art. 717 given in the charge, to the effect that the instrument or means used in a homicide is to be considered by the jury. Craiger v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 736, 88 S. W. 208. Instructions on deceased's having been a trespasser and defendant having undertaken to eject him properly refused. State v. Hargraves [Mo.] 87 S. W. 491.

37. State v. Hubbard [S. D.] 104 N. W. 1120. Where there is slight evidence of a lower degree of homicide than charged, defendant is entitled to an instruction thereon. State v. McAnarney [Kan.] 79 P. 137; State v. McPhail [Wash.] 81 P. 683; Allison v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 409; Ringer v. State [Ark.] 85 S. W. 410. Defendant not entitled to charge on negligent homicide in of a mutual intent to fight, it is proper to submit the theory of mutual combat, though no blows were exchanged.[38] Where the charge as a whole substantially in-the first and second degrees. Scott v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1060.

Murder in second degree: No error in refusing to charge on murder in second degree, where the evidence demanded an acquittal or conviction of murder in first degree. State v. Henderson, 186 Mo. 473, 85 S. W. 576. Or where the evidence showed deliberate murder. State v. Niehaus [Mo.] 87 S. W. 473. Evidence in a prosecution for murder held to require the submission of the question of murder in second degree. Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 694, 88 S. W. 223. Defendant entitled to instruction that, if they believed the evidence of defendant, the homicide could not be greater than murder in the second degree. Manning v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1149.

Manslaughter: Defendant entitled to an instruction on manslaughter under the evidence. State v. White [N. C.] 51 S. E. 44; Gray v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 705. Where the evidence raises the theory of manslaughter, defendant is entitled to an instruction on the law of manslaughter as a defense to the charge of murder. Harrison v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 699; Hieronymus v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 708; Ackers v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 909; Venters v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 432; Nash v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 497; Thomas v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1154; Stacy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 327; Swain v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 335; Lundy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 352; Green v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 646.

38. Pollard v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 149. Evidence of killing during altercation, proof of the circumstances not being clear, held to require charge on manslaughter. Martinez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1029, 89 S. W. 642. Evidence of killing of child by excessive correction by parent held to require submission of manslaughter. Ackers v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 909. Whenever a conviction of manslaughter is possible, both degrees thereof must be submitted. State v. Hubbard [S. D.] 104 N. W. 1120. Instruction on law of manslaughter properly refused under the evidence. Anderson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 51; State v. Teachey, 138 N. C. 587, 50 S. E. 232; Lentz v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1068; Franklin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 641, 88 S. W. 357; Charba v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 829; Warner v. Com. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 742; Davis v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 1112; Dean v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 816. The issue of manslaughter held not presented under the facts of the case. Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 1036. One carelessly handling a loaded pistol while intoxicated, which is exploded and kills a third person in an attempt to disarm him, not entitled to charge on involuntary manslaughter. Selby v. Com. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 296. An instruction on manslaughter should not be given where the evidence demands a verdict of murder or acquittal. Berry v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 345; McBeth v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 931; James v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 577. Or where the defendant, under the evidence, is either guilty of murder or not guilty by reason of insanity. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919.

Aggravated assault: Defendant entitled to instruction that he was not guilty of an aggravated assault, unless the pistol, as used, was a deadly weapon. Hardin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 591. On a prosecution for assault with intent to murder, defendant held entitled to charge on aggravated assault. Jackson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 710, 88 S. W. 239. Defendant under the evidence was entitled to instructions on aggravated assault. Cooper v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1059. Where the state's evidence showed assault with intent to murder and defendant's self-defense, a charge on aggravated assault was properly refused. Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 812. Where defendant shot only to scare away one about to attack him, the court should have charged on aggravated and simple assault. Pastrana v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 347; Ivory v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 699.

Cooling time: Defendant entitled to instruction on cooling time. Cooper v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1059. A charge on cooling time is not required, in a prosecution for assault with intent to kill, where the transaction is shown to have been a continuous one. Ivory v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 699.

Accidental killing: Defendant entitled to instruction on accidental homicide. French v. Com. [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1070; Casteel v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 953; Messer v. Com. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 722.

Insanity: Where the evidence justifies it, defendant, without request, is entitled to charge on the subject of temporary insanity from recent use of liquor, under Pen. Code 1895, art. 41. Hierholzer v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 836. Whether the fact that deceased had estranged the affections of defendant's wife, debauched her person and threatened defendant's life, if he interfered, created in defendant an emotional insanity so as to dethrone his reason, or whether it merely reduced the homicide to manslaughter, were question that should have been submitted to the jury. Shepherd v. Com. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 191.

Self-defense: When defendant seeks to justify his homicide on the plea of self-defense, he is entitled to have an instruction on the law of such defense. Young v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 867; Territory v. Gutierez [N. M.] 79 P. 716. But it is not error to refuse a charge on self-defense when there is nothing showing that defendant acted in self-defense, but contended that the killing was accidental. People v. Manning [Cal.] 79 P. 856. An instruction excluding self-defense erroneous, where an inference of self-defense may be drawn. State v. Hough, 138 N. C. 663, 50 S. E. 709. Defendant entitled, under the evidence, to a charge on the law of self-defense. Franklin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 357; Armsworthy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 697, 88 S.

cludes requests, refusal to give them is not error.[39] In the footnotes are grouped holdings as to the correctness and propriety of instructions relating to the burden and degree of proof, [40] participation of defendant in the crime,[41] good reputation of defendant,[42] weight and effect of evidence,[43] presumption of innocence,[44] reasonable doubt,[45] malice and premeditation,[46] intent to kill,[47] degree and included offenses,[48]

W. 215; Fielding v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 618, 87 S. W. 1044; Gray v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 705; Boykin v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 725. Defendants theory of self-defense sufficiently presented. Brittain v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 278. Defendant entitled to charge on self-defense unconnected with one on provoking the difficulty. Carr v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 346. Defendant entitled to charge, that if he fired the first of three shots in self-defense, he was entitled to acquittal. Simpson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 826. Defendant entitled to an instruction as to self-defense, that the burden is on the state to show that he was not acting in self-defense. State v. Usher, 126 Iowa, 281, 102 N. W. 101. Defendant not entitled under the evidence to an instruction on law of self-defense. Askew v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 706; Sanders v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 712; Underwood v. Com. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 310; Thurman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 147, 86 S. W. 1014. Requested instruction as to self-defense properly refused as not adjusted to facts of the case. Jenkins v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 386; Jenkins v. State Id., 51 S. E. 598. Defendant held not entitled to instruction on the law of abandonment and right of self-defense. State v. Shockley [Utah] 80 P. 865.

Defense of another: Evidence held not to warrant an instruction on defendant's right and duty to prevent deceased from making violent assault on another. People v. Lee [Cal. App.] 81 P. 969.

Defense of property: Defendant not entitled to charge as to Pen. Code 1895, art. 680, authorizing defense of property. Dean v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 816.

39. State v. Dean [S. C.] 51 S. E. 524; People v. Eldridge [Cal.] 82 P. 442; Snelling v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 917; Napper v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 592; Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850; Jordan v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 155. Special requests properly refused, when covered by the general charge. State v. Aspara, 113 La. 940, 37 So. 883; Stafford v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 106; Bearden v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 808; Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 824; State v. Atcheley, 186 Mo. 174, 84 S. W. 984. Where the question of reasonable doubt is covered in the general instructions, it need not be repeated in other instructions. State v. Coleman, 186 Mo. 151, 84 S. W. 978.

40. Erroneous instruction as to burden proof on defendant in mitigation of offense or justification, under Kirby's Dig. § 1765. Cogburn v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 822. Instruction that the killing being proved, the burden of showing mitigation is on defendant, is proper. Petty v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 465.

41. An instruction as to the duty of one who believes in the efficacy of prayer to heal the sick, to apply the same in the case of one under his care, disapproved. State v. Sandford, 99 Me. 441, 59 A. 597.

42. Instructions that good reputation for peace and quietness might be sufficient to generate a reasonable doubt of guilt properly refused. State v. Stentz, 33 Wash. 444, 74 Pac. 588. Instruction on the question of good reputation of defendant approved. Id.

43. Not error to instruct jury that they may accept or reject expert testimony as they may any other. State v. Lyons, 113 La. 959, 37 So. 890. Instruction not objectionable as an invasion of the province of the jury. People v. Waysman [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1087. Instruction as to faith and credit to be given defendant's testimony unobjectionable. State v. Buffington [Kan.] 81 P. 465; People v. Hill [Cal. App.] 82 P. 398. Error to refuse a charge applying the same rules as to weight of evidence to dying declarations as to other testimony. People v. Thomson, 145 Cal. 717, 79 P. 435. Instruction as to weight of evidence of defendant's flight, after the homicide, approved. State v. Stentz, 33 Wash. 444, 74 P. 588. In a prosecution for assault with intent to murder, it was error to charge that circumstantial evidence "is to be regarded as direct and positive evidence of eyewitnesses." State v. Thompson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 377. In New Jersey a judge may give his own views to the jury with respect to the value of the testimony or the merits of the case. State v. Valentina [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 177.

44. Statement that all the presumptions of law, independent of the evidence, are in favor of innocence, and that every person is presumed innocent until proved guilty, held sufficient. Everett v. People [Ill.] 75 N. E. 188.

45. Instructions on reasonable doubt approved. People v. Olsen [Cal. App.] 81 P. 676. Instruction on reasonable doubt, in language of Cr. Code Prac. § 238, approved. Tetterton v. Com. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 8. Instruction on reasonable doubt held misleading and erroneous. Hampton v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 421. If once fully covered it need not be repeated in every instruction. People v. McRoberts [Cal. App.] 81 P. 734; People v. Waysman [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1087. Not error, in charging at defendant's request that evidence of good character may create a reasonable doubt, to add that the weight of such testimony was for the jury to determine. People v. Jackson [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 565. A requested instruction as to reasonable doubt rendered unnecessary by another instruction. Everett v. People [Ill.] 75 N. E. 188.

46. Proper instruction on premeditation and deliberation. State v. Exum, 138 N. C. 599, 50 S. E. 283. Instruction as to space of time necessary for premeditation and deliberation held not erroneous. People v. Koenig, 180 N. Y. 155, 72 N. E. 993.

47. In a trial for malicious wounding with intent to maim, disfigure, disable or kill, under § 9, c. 144, Code 1899, an instruction which eliminates the intent is erroneous. State v. Davis [W. Va.] 51 S. E. 230. The presumption that one intends the nat-murder,[49] manslaughter,[50] assault with intent to kill or murder,[51] self-defense,[52] de-ural consequences of his acts does not justify the instruction in a second degree murder case, that the defendant intended to kill the deceased because he purposely inflicted the fatal blow. Munday v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 656, 25 Ohio Circ. R. 712. Instructions on the question of intent to kill held erroneous. State v. Williams, 36 Wash. 143, 78 P. 780; Lynch v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1015. Instruction on the necessity of union of act and intent held unobjectionable. People v. McRobert [Cal. App.] 81 P. 734. To charge the jury that, where the evidence shows that defendant purposely inflicted the fatal blow, evidence tending to show that he did not in fact intend to kill the deceased is material, is erroneous. Munday v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 656, 25 Ohio Circ. R. 712.

48. Under Act Mar. 31, 1860 (P. L. 382), Penn., giving the jury a right to determine the degrees, it is error for the court to give a binding charge that the crime was murder in the first degree. Commonwealth v. Fellows [Pa.] 61 A. 922. Instruction as to degrees approved. State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del] 60 A. 866. In a prosecution for murder, instructions held erroneous because of failure to inform jury as to all the degrees of homicide. State v. McAnarney [Kan.] 79 P. 137; State v. McPhail [Wash.] 81 P. 683. Instruction as to included offenses sustained. Held erroneous. Delaney v. State [Wyo.] 81 P. 792. In a prosecution for assault with intent to murder, the court in charging what offenses were included in the indictment should have defined them, or applied the law to the facts so that the jury might have understood the different offenses. State v. Thompson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 377.

49. Where the evidence clearly establishes murder, it is not error to confine instructions to that view of the case. Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850. Proper instruction as to murder. State v. Thrailkill [S. C.] 50 S. E. 551; State v. Adams, 138 N. C. 688, 50 S. E. 765; Marlow v. State [La.] 38 So. 653; Dunn v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 147; Martin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 390; State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866; People v. McRoberts [Cal. App.] 81 P. 734; State v. Byrd [S. C.] 51 S. E. 542. Instructions held to state the law correctly. State v. Appleton [Kan.] 78 P. 445. Where the fact of murder was unquestionably established, it was not error to refer to the crime as murder, in the instructions. Dean v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 501. Not error to instruct the jury to find defendant guilty of murder if they find the elements of murder proved beyond reasonable doubt, although defendant may be found guilty of manslaughter under an indictment for murder. Kyle v. People, 215 Ill. 250, 74 N. E. 146. Charge including murder in both degrees, manslaughter and justifiable homicide, approved. Yancy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 693. An instruction that, if defendant willfully prepared for the use of the scissor's blade with which he stabbed deceased, he was guilty of murder in the first degree, approved. State v. Jones [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 396. Where the charge was full on the different degrees, but gave a form of verdict for the first only, it was not erroneous, under the evidence. People v. Woods [Cal.] 81 P. 652. Instruction that if the jury can satisfactorily and reasonably infer deliberation and premeditation, they are warranted finding defendant guilty of murder in first degree, is proper. State v. Brown [Mo.] 87 S. W. 519. A charge on murder in the first degree held proper under the facts in evidence. Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 1036. Where there is evidence to support both degrees, it is proper to submit both to the jury. State v. Williams, 186 Mo. 128, 84 S. W. 924. Where the indictment charged only murder in second degree, it was not error not to charge on murder in first degree. State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706. Though murder in first degree is not to be submitted, it is not error to define express malice, it being necessary in order to define implied malice so as to submit question of murder in second degree. Chambers v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 752. Erroneous, as authorizing conviction of murder in case of assault with intent to inflict serious injury, without regard to essential element of death. Beaver v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 151, 86 S. W. 1020. In a prosecution for murder, an instruction on conspiracy held improper where there was no evidence of a common design. Humphrey v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 431. Charge too indefinite in its application of the law to the facts. Alareon v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 1115. Instruction as to murder by administering strychnine approved. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406. Proper instruction as to meaning of "deliberate" and "premeditated" in statute defining murder. Dunn v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 147. Charge not erroneous because of recognizing two names by which deceased was known. Thomas v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 516. Erroneous instruction as to conviction of one or both parties charged with murder. Sullivan v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 1006. Charge failed to clearly place before the jury the issues involved as to whether the homicide was murder, voluntary manslaughter or justifiable. Gossett v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 394. Charge held erroneous as depriving defendant of benefit of provocation or mitigating circumstances. Darden v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 507. Not error to give entire statute definition of murder in third degree, though some parts were irrelevant under the evidence. Miera v. Territory [N. M.] 81 P. 586. Or in first degree, as defined in Pen. Code, § 189. People v. Woods [Cal.] 81 P. 652. It is error to instruct the jury that the killing with a dangerous weapon is murder in the second degree, unless the jury believe the killing was without malice. Territory v. Gutierez [N. M.] 79 P. 716. Instructions in case of murder committed in resistance to recapture by convicts approved. People v. Wood, 145 Cal. 659, 79 P. 367. Not error to charge that the jury might inquire whether or not the accused had an opportunity to kill deceased. Anderson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 46. Erroneous charges on law of murder. Vickery v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 907; State v. Rochester [S. C.] 51 S. E. 685; Cook v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 110. Defective charge as to murder in second degree. Harrison v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 699. Erroneous charge as to murder in second degree. Swaln v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 335.

50. Instructions on the law of manslaughter approved. Moore v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 504; State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866; McDuffie v. State, 121 Ga. 580, 49 S. E. 708; State v. Kinder, 184 Mo. 276, 83 S. W. 964; Ray v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1151; State v. Reeder [S. C.] 51 S. E. 702; Bell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 558, 87 S. W. 1160. Proper instruction on law of voluntary manslaughter. Jenkins v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 386; Id. 51 S. E. 598. Charge as to assault as adequate cause to reduce homicide to manslaughter, in language of statute, is proper. Hatchell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 234. Charge not objectionable as assuming that "metallic knucks" were deadly weapons. Clemons v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 647. Charge on manslaughter in fourth degree held substantially correct. State v. Brown [Mo.] 87 S. W. 519. Court did not err as to doctrine of reasonable fears, under Pen. Code 1895, § 71. Grimes v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 721. An instruction that accused was guilty of manslaughter, at least, justified by testimony. State v. Garland, 138 N. C. 675, 50 S. E. 853. Where there was evidence of accidental shooting, it was error to charge that upon the evidence, if believed, defendant was guilty of manslaughter at least. State v. Turnage, 138 N. C. 596, 49 S. E. 913. Not error to refuse to instruct the jury as to manslaughter on a prosecution under Mills' Ann. St. Rev. Supp. § 1209, defining murder by procuring miscarriage. Johnson v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 133. Where the evidence shows murder and no defense is attempted but an alibi, it is error to submit the question of manslaughter included in the indictment. Regnier v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 509. Sufficient definition of manslaughter as applied to facts in case. State v. Exum, 138 N. C. 599, 50 S. E. 283. Instruction on law of voluntary manslaughter justified by the evidence. Goodman v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 922. Not error to strike out of a requested instruction defining manslaughter, a paragraph including malice as an element. People v. Waysman [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1087. An instruction that if defendant was present aiding and abetting he was guilty of manslaughter, if the principal was justified by the evidence. State v. Cobley [Iowa] 103 N. W. 99. Where murder is clearly established, it is not error to charge that self-defeuse and manslaughter are not open for consideration. State v. Valentina [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 177. And the court need not charge as to manslaughter. Commonwealth v. Gibson, 211 Pa. 546, 60 A. 1086. Under the evidence held improper to give the charge of manslaughter. Coleman v. State, 121 Ga. 594, 49 S. E. 716. Correct instruction as to heat of passion under sufficient provocation. Metcalfe v. Com. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 534. Instructions as to manslaughter committed in sudden passion not erroneous. Hancock v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 696. Proper charge as to cooling time after assault. Jones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 5. Erroneous instruction on adequacy of cause for passion, so as to reduce the homicide to manslaughter. Earles v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1. Erroneous charge on the question of manslaughter, where defendant killed deceased for an insult to defendant's wife. Melton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 822.

51. Charges approved. Jordan v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 155; Holmes v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 321; Brown v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 268. Question of assault with a deadly weapon properly submitted to jury. State v. Archbell [N. C.] 51 S. E. 801. Erroneous instruction. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 1242. Greer v. Com. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 166. Charge held erroneous as referring a question of law to the jury. Brown v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 268. Erroneous instruction as to assault and battery with intent to kill. Montgomery v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 835; McCaa v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 228.

52. Where no aspect of the case required a consideration of the law of excusable homicide, it was not error to charge that the jury need not consider it. State v. Marx [Conn.] 60 A. 690; State v. Valentina [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 177. It is proper to charge that the burden is on defendant to show circumstances justifying a resort to killing in self-defense, provided it is also charged that accused is entitled to the benefit of a reasonable doubt. State v. Jones [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 396. A charge that self-defense is not justified unless the necessity is apparent as the only means of escaping destruction or grievous bodily harm, is not erroneous under the crimes act of New Jersey (§ 110, Rev. 1898, P. L. p. 825). Id. Where, if defendant's testimony was true, the right of self-defense was clearly established, an instruction that the necessity of taking life must be apparent, was not prejudicial on the theory that "apparent" was equivalent to "actual" or "real." Id. An instruction that, if defendant prepared for or provoked the assault, he could not set up the plea of self-defense, approved. Id. Instructions on self-defense held pertinent and correct. State v. Buffington [Kan.] 81 P. 465. Instructions on self-defense as a whole approved. State v. Manderville, 37 Wash. 365, 79 P. 977; State v. Gray [Or.] 76 P. 53. Instruction on self-defense approved. State v. Tooker [Mo.] 87 S. W. 487; State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866; McKinney v. Carmack, 119 Ga. 467, 46 S. E. 719; Taylor v. State, 121 Ga. 348, 49 S. E. 303; Jenkins v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 598; Id., 51 S. E. 386; Snelling v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 917; Marlow v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 653; Yancy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 693; Lee v. State [Ark.] 81 S. W. 385; O'Neal v. Com. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 745; State v. Price, 186 Mo. 140, 84 S. W. 920; Bishop v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 707; Kinman v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 344; Lentz v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1068; Coleman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 718, 88 S. W. 238. Instructions on the law of self-defense as defined in Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 38, §§ 148, 149, approved. Mackin v. People, 214 Ill. 232, 73 N. E. 344; Kipley v. People, 215 Ill. 358, 74 N. E. 379. But it is error to instruct, under said statute, that it must appear that the killing was "absolutely" necessary. Id. Error to refuse to charge that if defendant withdrew and his assailant advanced and gave him grounds for reasonable apprehension of great bodily injury, he had the right of self-defense. Eby v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 890. Instruction on resistance of assault made in the course of fense of another,[53] provocation of difficulty,[54] resistance of arrest,[55] apprehension of danger,[56] imminence of danger,[57] duty to retreat, or avoid danger,[58] insanity,[59] intoxication,[60] accident,[61] punishment.[62]

a brawl justified by evidence. Kinman v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 344. Instruction on self-defense held not misleading. Taylor v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 922. Form of charge as to self-defense held proper under the circumstances of the case. Morris v. Com. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 560. Charge approved as sufficiently covering the subject of appearance of danger. Simpson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 826. Charge on self-defense held to sufficiently submit the issue of apparent danger. Hardison v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1071. Under the evidence a charge on the right of self-defense was warranted. Williams v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 88 S. W. 334. Instruction to consider relative strength and activity of parties properly refused where no evidence. People v. Fitzgerald [Cal. App.] 82 P. 555. Instruction as to self-defense by one bringing on the difficulty held proper under the evidence. Turner v. Com. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 482. Evidence of killing of officer to avoid arrest held to justify refusal to submit self-defense. State v. Horner [N. C.] 52 S. E. 136. Instructions as to whether defendant was justified in killing decedent held proper. McKinney v. Carmack, 119 Ga. 467, 46 S. E. 719. Charges on the law of self-defense held erroneous. State v. Castle, 133 N. C. 769, 46 S. E. 1; Zipperian v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1018; Swain v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 335; Surrency v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 575; Nash v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 497; Boykin v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 725; Bardin v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 833; Barstado v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 344; Smith v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 297, 87 S. W. 151; Crenshaw v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1147; Wheeler v. Com. [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1106. Requested charge on self-defense properly refused. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329. Requested instruction on the law of self-defense properly refused, on account of omission of "great" before "bodily injury" and "imminent" before "danger." Lynch v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1015. Requested instruction on self-defense held incorrect, as omitting element of necessity; instruction as given approved. People v. Fucarino, 93 N. Y. S. 689. Instruction erroneously qualifying right of self-defense. Greer v. Com. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 166. Erroneous limitation of right of self-defense by a charge on provoking the attack. Roberts v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 692, 88 S. W. 221. Charge on self-defense held erroneous as being on the weight of evidence. Craiger v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 736, 88 S. W. 208. Error to instruct that self-defense can be availed of, only under certain circumstances which were not shown in the evidence, when defense is not predicated on self-defense. Sullivan v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 1006. Instruction that the jury should look at the facts from the defendant's standpoint as nearly as they were able is erroneous. Brownlee v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 621, 87 S. W. 1153. Charge in a case where defendant was justified in firing at one person and by accident shooting another, held defective in omitting requirement of due care. Ringer v. State [Ark.] 85 S. W. 410. Error to charge that defendant could not take life, unless apparently necessary to prevent the commission of a felony or to defend against loss of life or great bodily harm, in view of Cr. Code, div. 1, § 148 (Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, c. 38), permitting homicide in defense of habitation, etc. Hayner v. People, 213 Ill. 142, 72 N. E. 792. Charge denying the right of self-defense, in case defendant first assaulted deceased, held erroneous and prejudicial under the evidence. Carnes v. Com. [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1123. Where there was evidence that defendant was assaulted by two parties, in defining his right of self-defense, it was error to limit it to danger from one. Helton v. Com. [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1073.

53. Where defendant entered the difficulty, as shown by the evidence, merely to protect a friend, the court should have confined itself to a charge on his right to do so, and not have introduced the right of self-defense. Garza v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 720, 88 S. W. 231. Instruction as to defendant's right to defend his father properly given. Pratt v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 651. Erroneous charge as to right of defense of another. Stacy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 327. Charge approved as according to defendant the same right to defend his brother as himself. McQueen v. Com. [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1047.

54. Evidence not sufficient to justify a charge on provoking the difficulty. Crow v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 814. Correct statement of law as to provoking difficulty. State v. Bailey [Mo.] 88 S. W. 733. Evidence sufficient to justify a charge on provoking the difficulty. Garza v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 720, 88 S. W. 231. In a prosecution for assault with intent to murder, evidence held sufficient to show that defendant was at fault in creating the situation of danger and to authorize an instruction on that phase of the case. Holmes v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 321. Held, that there was evidence to support an instruction that if defendant provoked a quarrel for the purpose of killing deceased and killed him maliciously, he should be found guilty of murder. Kyle v. People, 215 Ill. 250, 74 N. E. 146. Abstract instruction as to assault by "one" on "another" held misleading. Hayner v. People, 213 Ill. 142, 72 N. E. 792.

55. Error to charge jury so as to leave the impression that deceased's attitude was one of resistance to arrest. Commonwealth v. Crowley, 26 Pa. Super. 124.

56, 57. Charge approved. State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866.

58. Charge approved. State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866. Instruction as to an attack by deceased on defendant, a subsequent retreat in which defendant pursued and killed deceased held without support in the evidence. Hayner v. People, 213 Ill. 142, 72 N. E. 792. A charge that it was defendant's duty to "retire," if possible, was not equivalent to a charge that it was his duty to "retreat," and was prejudicial to that extent. Delaney v. State [Wyo.] 81 P. 792.

59. Instructions on defense of insanity ap-

Harmless error.[63]—An instruction more favorable to defendant than the law warrants cannot be complained of,[64] nor errors embraced in instructions requested by himself;[65] and erroneous instructions on the law of degrees greater than that of which defendant was convicted are harmless.[66] Erroneous instructions relative to malice in a prosecution for murder committed in the perpetration of robbery are harmless.[67] Where the court otherwise correctly charged as to manslaughter, defendant was not prejudiced by abstract propositions as to sufficiency of provocation for taking human life.[68] A refusal to give a misleading charge is not prejudicial.[69] An instruction that mere words or menaces do not of themselves constitute provocation for murder was not prejudicial on the theory that menaces implies an overt act.[70] Erroneous instructions on a defense as to which no issue is raised are harmless.[71] No prejudice results from an erroneous charge on a lower degree than the evidence suggests,[72] nor error in instructions as to a defense not proven.[73] An instruction submitting murder on a trial for an assault which did not produce death is so palpably wrong as to be harmless.[74] The charge is to be construed as a whole;[75] error in one instruction may be corrected by another instruction;[76] and defects therein are not prejudicial, if the instructions as a whole proved. Roberts v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 374. No error in charge of which defendant could complain. State v. Lauth [Or.] 80 P. 660. Different instructions on defense of insanity held not erroneous, and inaccurate. Allams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 506. Rev. St. 1898, § 4697, relative to the special issue of insanity, requires only that the question of insanity or reasonable doubt of sanity be submitted to the jury in some form. Steward v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1079. Charge that defendant must have been without sufficient reason to know what he was doing, or not have had sufficient will power to govern his action, approved. Mathley v. Com. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 988. Requested instruction as to acquittal if defendant was of unsound mind properly refused. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601. Requested instruction, that proof of prior insanity throws upon state burden of showing that the crime was perpetrated during a lucid interval, properly refused. State v. Austin, 71 Ohio St. 317, 73 N. E. 218. Instruction on the question of insanity held erroneous. Steward v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1079.

60. Instruction that if defendant's lack of reason arose alone from voluntary drunkenness and not from unsoundness of mind, the jury should not acquit, approved. Mathley v. Com. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 988. Instruction defining the instances in which drunkenness does, and does not, excuse crime justified by the evidence. White v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 296. Charge requested, as to time for sobering up, properly refused. Gater v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 692.

61. Instruction on defense that deceased met his death accidentally, approved. State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807. Erroneous instruction on defense of accidental shooting. State v. Matheson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 137.

62. Erroneous instruction to jury as to fixing the punishment. Hayner v. People, 213 Ill. 142, 72 N. E. 792.

63. See 3 C. L. 1668.

64. Chambers v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 752; Green v. Com., 26 Ky. L. R. 1221, 83 S. W. 638; Jordan v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 155. As to elements of self-defense. State v. Byrd [S. C.] 51 S. E. 542. An instruction on the subject of excusable homicide cannot be complained of by defendant, as outside of the evidence, when it is favorable to him. State v. Gray [Or.] 79 P. 53.

65. Clemons v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 647.

66. Vickery v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 907; Rawls v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 72. Instruction authorizing conviction on facts fatally variant from the indictment held not rendered harmless by conviction of a lower degree than that charged. Gipe v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 881.

67. Under Mills' Ann. St. § 1176, malice does not enter into that crime. Andrews v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1031. But where the facts in the case are such that no presumption of malice arises from the killing, a charge to that effect is prejudicial. State v. Rochester [S. C.] 51 S. E. 685.

68. Hicklin v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 340.

69. Allison v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 409.

70. Lynch v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1015.

71. Cortez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 812. Where defendant's counsel admitted that deceased was murdered, an intimation by the court, in his charge, that the admission was justified by the evidence, was harmless. State v. Marx [Conn.] 60 A. 690. Where insanity was the only real question, defendant was not prejudiced by the court's failure to charge expressly as to the presumption of innocence. Mathley v. Com. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 988.

72. An abstract instruction on self-defense and manslaughter. Vasser v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 635.

73. Rawls v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 72.

74. Pollard v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 149.

75. Part of a charge unduly restricting the test of insanity will not be held prejudicial, where the charge as a whole gives the jury the broadest latitude. Schissler v. State [Wis.] 99 N. W. 593.

76. Surrency v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 575; Clemons v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 647. An instruction which correctly defines manslaughter in the abstract, cannot be complained of fairly and freely give the law on the subject.[77] Error in an instruction may be cured by the admission of evidence;[78] and errors may be cured by verdict.[79]

(§ 8) C. Verdict.[80]—The verdict must determine of what degree of unlawful homicide defendant is guilty.[81] In South Carolina, where it apears that an assault with intent to kill was committed with a deadly weapon concealed about the person, the jury must find a special verdict accordingly before defendant can be sentenced therefor.[82] A verdict of voluntary manslaughter where the evidence demands one of either murder or acquittal, is contrary to law.[83] A mere clerical error in the verdict, which does not render it unintelligible, will not vitiate it.[84] A verdict of guilty of murder includes a finding of guilt of manslaughter and a judgment thereunder may be so modified, under the facts, as to sustain a conviction of manslaughter only.[85] Where the verdict found defendant guilty of murder on the first count, and of carrying concealed weapons on the second count, judgment was properly rendered on the first only.[86] The verdict in a homicide case, which was brought in and read on Sunday in presence of the court, jury and defendant, the jury then being discharged, and which was entered by the court the next day in presence of the defendant, was proper, as he had an opportunity to poll the jury.[87]

(§ 8) D. Punishment.[88]—Where one pleaded guilty to an indictment for murder in the first degree, the presumption of innocence and reasonable doubt did not apply in proceedings before a jury to assess the punishment.[89] Where the court instructed the jury to fix the verdict and leave the punishment to the court, they being unable to agree on the punishment, the defendant was not prejudiced by a sentence for a shorter time than fixed by statute for the offense of which he was convicted.[90] Cases discussing excessiveness of punishment are mentioned below.[91]

as not applying the facts, where it is followed by another plainly applying them. State v. Brown [Mo.] 87 S. W. 519.

77. State v. Manderville, 37 Wash. 365, 79 P. 977; Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850; People v. Olsen [Cal. App.] 81 P. 676; People v. Waysman [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1087; State v. Kinder, 184 Mo. 276, 83 S. W. 964; State v. Exum, 138 N. C. 599, 50 S. E. 283.

78. Where the court instructed the jury to convict of murder, if defendant "counseled, procured or commanded the killing," without stating that such killing must of itself be murder, the error was rendered harmless by the admission of the record of the conviction of the person who did the killing, wherein he pleaded guilty of "murder." Johnson v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 926.

79. Where there was an acquittal of first-degree murder, the question whether a charge on express malice was too general is immaterial. Venters v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 832. Where defendant was convicted of manslaughter, he could not complain of instruction on murder. Tardy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 1128. Nor of instruction on negligent homicide. Clifton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 237. Nor of an instruction as to murder, when convicted of any lesser degree of homicide. State v. Craig [Mo.] 88 S. W. 641. Nor of an instruction on conspiracy, where defendant is not found guilty of conspiracy, but only of manslaughter. Moseley v. Com. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 748. Definition of express malice harmless, defendant having been convicted of manslaughter. Chambers v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 752. Where accused was convicted of murder, failure to instruct on manslaughter was not prejudicial. Nash v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 497. Where defendant was convicted of murder in the second degree only, he was not prejudiced by an instruction in the first. Thomas v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 404; Thurman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 147, 86 S. W. 1014; Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 555, 87 S. W. 1036.

80. See 3 C. L. 1669.

81. Reyes v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 257; State v. Hubbard [S. D.] 104 N. W. 1120. Where the jury is required to find the degree and fail to do so, judgment will be reversed. Lyles v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 763.

82. Under Cr. Code 1902, §§ 130, 131, 132. State v. Johnson, 70 S. C. 384, 50 S. E. 8.

83. Berry v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 345; McBeth v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 931; James v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 577.

84. The assessment by the jury of the "punish," instead of "punishment." Upton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 687, 88 S. W. 212.

85. Noble v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 120.

86. State v. Reeder [S. C.] 51 S. E. 702.

87. Sanford v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 370.

88. See 3 C. L. 1669.

89. Sullivan v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 810.

90. Taylor v. State [Ark.] 83 S. W. 922.

91. Under the statute of Vermont (U. S. §§ 4886, 2007), prescribing solitary confinement three months before execution, such confinement after the time fixed for execution, in case of reprieve, is a separate severe punishment to which defendant was never sentenced. Ex parte Rogers, 138 F. 961. The statute of North Dakota (§ 8246, Rev. Codes

HORSE RACING; HORSES; HOSPITALS; HOUSES OF REFUGE AND REFORMATORIES, see latest topical index.

HUSBAND AND WIFE.[92]

§ 1. Disabilities of coverture in general; statutory relaxations.[93]—The common-law disabilities of married women, arising from the doctrine of the unity of husband and wife, have been largely removed by statute.[94]

§ 2. Mutual duties, obligations and privileges. A. Inherent in the relationship.[95]—The obligations of the marriage relation are fixed by law and cannot be changed or avoided by contract between the parties.[96] The husband is entitled to custody of his wife.[97] The common-law liability of a husband to support his wife does not extend to supporting her outside the matrimonial home, reasonably chosen by him, unless he refuses to do so there, or she resides away therefrom by his con-

1899), relative to verdicts fixing punishment in excess of the law, being mandatory, it was error for the court to impose life imprisonment, where, upon a former conviction, the jury had fixed seven years' imprisonment. State v. Barry [N. D.] 103 N. W. 637. Code, § 4728, prescribing the punishment for murder in the first degree as death or life imprisonment, vests a large discretion in the court which will not be interfered with unless shown to have been abused. State v. Smith [Iowa] 103 N. W. 769. Sentence for murder in second degree committed in sudden quarrel under considerable provocation by deceased reduced from fifteen years to five years. Petty v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 465. Where the punishment is fixed at "not less than" a stated number of years' imprisonment, a sentence for any greater number is authorized. Baysinger v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 728.

92. Scope of title: The relationship created by marriage, and the rights and liabilities arising therefrom, are here treated The formation of the relation (Marriage, 4 C. L. 528), its dissolution (Divorce, 5 C. L. 1026), annulment (Marriage, 4 C. L. 528) and suit money in such proceedings or support by way of alimony (Alimony, 5 C. L. 101), are specifically treated in other articles. See, also, Parent and Child, 4 C. L. 873 (custody of children).

93. See 3 C. L. 1669.

94. See 3 C. L. 1670; also following sections, particularly § 2B, § 3E, § 7.

95. See 3 C. L. 1670.

96. Patterson v. Patterson, 111 Ill. App. 342.

97. He has right to resist with necessary force an attempt of her father to gain possession of her. Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 730, 88 S. W. 341.

sent.[98] Thus a husband is not liable for the support of his wife in an asylum for the insane to which she has been removed by due process of law, even though he himself initiated proceedings for her removal.[99]

(§ 2) B. Contracts or other dealings.[1]—At common law husband and wife cannot contract directly with each other, and this is still the rule except where changed by statute.[2] Where husband and wife may lawfully transact business as copartners, they may constitute a subpartnership as to a business in which the husband is a partner.[3] Where such a subpartnership exists, the wife may make a valid gift to her husband of her interest in profits derived from the first partnership by her husband;[4] and the use of profits so given to discharge a debt of the husband to his partner does not render the latter liable to the wife for the amount.[5]

Gifts.[6]—Whether a transaction between the parties amounts to a gift depends upon the facts.[7] Where the husband deposits money in a bank in his wife's name, a gift to her is presumed[8] in the absence of evidence showing a contrary intention.[9] Where the husband advances money to pay for land deeded to the wife, the advancement will be presumed to be a gift to the wife.[10] Where there is no evidence to

98. Richardson v. Stuesser [Wis.] 103 N. W. 261.

99. Richardson v. Stuesser [Wis.] 103 N W. 261.

NOTE. Liability of husband for the support of his insane wife while in asylum: The Iowa, Indiana and Nebraska decisions are to the effect that there is no common-law liability in cases of this kind. The County of Deleware v. McDonald, 46 Iowa, 170; The Board of Commissioners of Noble County v. Schmoke, 151 Ind. 416; Board of Commissioners of Marshall County v. Burkey, 1 Ind. App. 565; Baldwin v. Douglas County, 37 Neb. 283, 55 N. W. 875, 20 L. R. A. 850. In the New England states and a few others it is well settled that there is a common-law liability and such an action can be maintained. Rumney v. Keyes, 7 N. H. 571; Alna v. Plummer, 4 Greenl. [Me.] 258; Bangor v. Wiscasset, 71 Me. 535; Brookfield v. Allen, 6 Allen [Mass.] 585; Senft v. Carpenter, 18 R. I. 545, 28 A. 963; Wray v. Wray, 33 Ala. 187; Schelling v. County of Kankakee, 96 Ill. App. 432; Davis v. St. Vincent's Inst. for Insane [C. C. A.] 61 F. 277; Goodale v. Lawrence, 88 N. Y. 513, 42 Am. Rep. 259, overruling former decisions of the New York courts in Goodale v Brockner, 25 Hun. [N. Y.] 621; Norton v. Rhodes, 18 Barb. [N. Y.] 100. In California there is a statutory liability in such a case. Watt v. Smith, 89 Cal. 602, 26 P. 1071. In Nebraska such a statute placing a liability upon the husband for support of the wife while in a state asylum has been held unconstitutional as being a special tax. Baldwin v. Douglas County, 37 Neb. 283, 55 N. W. 875, 20 L. R. A. 850.—4 Mich. L. R. 74.

1. See 3 C. L. 1670.

2. In District of Columbia, a married woman cannot enter into co-partnership with her husband. Norwood v. Francis, 25 App. D. C. 463.

3. As where wife owns the business which is conducted by her husband, and he takes in a partner, who does not know of the wife's ownership. Morrison v. Dickey [Ga.] 50 S. E. 175.

4. Morrison v. Dickey [Ga.] 50 S. E. 175.

5. This would not constitute a use of her money to pay her husband's debt. Morrison v. Dickey [Ga.] 50 S. E. 175.

6. See 3 C. L. 1671.

7. Evidence held sufficient to sustain finding that personalty on farm was a gift to the husband from his wife. Carter v. Reeves [Ark.] 88 S. W. 976.

8. Where money of the husband was deposited in the wife's name and placed with her money there on deposit, she adding other sums, and the husband failed to object or claim the money, the presumption is that he intended to give the money to his wife. In re Klenke's Estate [Pa.] 60 A. 166. Money deposited in the name of the wife is prima facie hers, and where claimed by her husband after her death, the burden is on him to prove it is his property. In re Crosetti's Estate, 211 Pa. 490, 60 A. 1081. Where husband places deposit in bank to wife's credit, and she has bankbook and signs all checks, the transaction is a gift of the money to her and he cannot avoid it, even though his purpose was to defraud his creditors. Wipfler v. Detroit Pattern Works [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 309, 104 N. W. 545.

9. The presumption that a bank deposit in the wife's name was a gift to her is not rebutted by the husband's leaving a cash legacy to another without other money to pay it. In re Klenke's Estate [Pa.] 60 A. 166. Where husband deposited money in wife's name but gave the bank a signature card which in effect was a direction to pay out money only on checks signed by him in her name, the transaction did not constitute a gift to the wife. First Nat. Bank v. Taylor [Ala.] 37 So. 695.

10. No promise by the wife to repay will be implied, nor will the land be impressed by law with a trust in the husband's favor. O'Hair v. O'Hair [Ark.] 88 S. W. 945. Where property is purchased by the husband in the name of his wife, the presumption is that the purchase money was intended as a gift or advancement, unless the contrary is shown. Hayes v. Horton [Or.] 81 P. 386. Where husband buys property and puts title in wife's name, there is a presumption (which is not conclusive) that it was intended as rebut this presumption, there is no resulting trust in his favor.[11] To constitute a valid gift inter vivos of an insurance policy from a wife to her husband, the necessary change of beneficiary must be made during her lifetime.[12] A plural wife may accept a gift from her husband, and may acquire a title by adverse possession based on the gift, the same as though she were a stranger.[13] In Illinois, a gift of a chattel by a husband to his wife, title passing to the wife directly from the husband's vendor, is valid, without any writing.[14]

Antenuptial contracts.[15]—The rights and liabilities of the parties to such a contract depend upon its terms.[16] Marriage is a sufficient consideration to support an antenuptial contract[17] to convey land.[18] An antenuptial contract is not invalid by reason of the existence of a prior marriage of the husband, where the woman was ignorant of such marriage and of the fact that the wife was still living.[19] A marriage contract between the prospective husband and the parents of the parties whereby his parents agreed to make no distinction between their children in disposing of their estate is enforceable by the son in equity.[20] If the provision made for the wife in an antenuptial contract is unreasonably disproportionate to the husband's means, there is a presumption of a fraudulent concealment of facts which must be overcome by the husband or his representatives.[21] In Georgia, a marriage contract between a resident woman and a nonresident man, whereby the latter agrees that the wife's separate property shall remain such, is not within the statute requiring recordation of marriage contracts and settlements.[22]

Agreements for separation and separate support.[23]—Contracts for separation[24] or looking to a separation, and tending to promote it,[25] are contrary to public policy. But contracts for division of property and release of marital rights, made after a permanent separation, are not contrary to public policy, and will be sustained, if an advancement to the wife. Hanks v. Hanks, 114 Ill. App. 526.

11. No resulting trust where title was placed in husband and wife. Hayes v. Horton [Or.] 81 P. 386.

12. Littlefield v. Perkins [Me.] 60 A. 707.

13. Elements of adverse possession did not exist in this case. Raleigh v. Wells [Utah] 81 P. 908.

14. Rev. St. c. 68, § 9, relative to chattel mortgages, where title remains in mortgagor, does not apply. Grondenberg v. Grondenberg, 112 Ill. App. 615.

15. See 3 C. L. 1671.

16. Antenuptial contract held merely a recognition of wife's rights in her separate property as they then existed, and not a transfer or conveyance of any interest to remaindermen. Bearden v. Benner, 136 F. 258. Antenuptial contract provided for conveyance of wife's separate property by husband and wife when deemed necessary. Wife conveyed to an innocent purchaser with husband's consent, but without his joining. Held, husband could be compelled in equity to join in deed to purchaser to protect his rights against the children. Id.

17. Broadrick v. Broadrick, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 225.

18. Agreement to marry constitutes valuable consideration for agreement to convey land. Pierce v. Vansell [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 554.

19. Broadrick v. Broadrick, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 225.

20. Codicil found inconsistent with contract and contract enforced. Phalen v. United States Trust Co., 44 Misc. 57, 89 N. Y. S. 699.

21. Yost's Estate, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 183. Agreement set aside and widow given one-third interest in husband's estate, where provision for her in agreement was grossly disproportionate to the value of his estate. In re Warner's Estate, 210 Pa. 431, 59 A. 1113.

22. Ga. Code 1895, § 2483. Bearden v. Benner, 136 F. 258.

23. See 3 C. L. 1672.

24. Contract for separate living is unenforceable. Patterson v. Patterson, 111 Ill. App. 342. Bond given in bastardy proceedings for payment of certain sum "unless prosecutrix and defendant shall live together as husband and wife" is not void as an agreement for separation. Meyer v. Meyer, 123 Wis. 538, 102 N. W. 52.

25. Courts of equity will not enforce marriage contracts tainted with an understanding, contemporaneous with the marriage, looking to a possible or probable separation in the future, and in the nature of things, tending to bring about such separation. Sawyer v. Churchill [Vt.] 59 A. 1014. Contracts for support of a kind to stimulate divorces, or discourage defenses in divorce suits, are against public policy. Silberschmidt v. Silberschmidt, 112 Ill. App. 58. A contract releasing claims for alimony in consideration of an agreement to pay allowances to support a child is not against public policy, though made pending a divorce action, where it is provided that the rights of the parties to a divorce shall not be fair and free from fraud or duress,[26] and if based on a sufficient consideration.[27] But such contracts will be closely scrutinized by the courts.[28] There is no reason why a separation agreement, adjusting property rights of the parties should not be enforced after the husband's death.[29] While such an agreement is usually held enforceable only in equity,[30] it may properly be used in a probate court as a defense to an application by the widow for an allowance out of the husband's estate.[31]

The duty of the husband to support the wife is a sufficient consideration for his agreement to furnish her with separate support.[32] Such a contract is not a bar to a suit for separate maintenance, even though the wife expressly agrees not to bring such suit; and the bringing of suit is not a waiver of instalments due under the contract.[33] A change in the financial condition of the husband does not relieve him from liability under a separation agreement.[34]

A contract for jointure before marriage, or a contract in the nature of jointure after marriage, will not bar dower unless the wife expressly renounces her dower interest;[35] but this rule does not apply to a contract of separation.[36]

Conveyances; mortgages; contracts to convey.[37]—Conveyances from one spouse to the other directly are authorized in some states.[38] In others, where a husband conveys land directly to his wife, not in fraud of his creditors, she takes only the equitable title, the legal title remaining in the husband in trust for the wife.[39] In such case the husband cannot convey the legal title to another, or encumber it by deed of trust or otherwise.[40] On her death, the trusteeship of the husband ceases and legal and equitable title pass, by operation of law, to her heirs.[41] A subsequent deed by the husband, therefore, passes no title.[42] By operation of the Alabama Law of 1887, providing that property to which the wife becomes entitled after marriage is her separate property, where the husband conveys to the wife, prior to the adoption of the act, legal title to the property vests in her after the act, though prior thereto she had only the equitable title.[43] In West Virginia, a deed for realty by a married woman to her husband, while they are living together, in which the husband affected by such contract. Ward v. Goodrich [Colo.] 82 P. 701.

A contract contemplating an immediate separation of a husband and wife, by which her future support is provided for, is valid, though made directly with each other. Patterson v. Patterson, 111 Ill. App. 342.

26. Hiett v. Hiett [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1051. Contract settling property rights, though not void, parties having already separated, set aside because induced by fraud, misrepresentation and intimidation practiced on the wife and because she did not know her legal rights. Richardson v. Richardson, 36 Wash. 272, 78 P. 920.

27. Where contract recited that wife released marital claims on payment of $300, a further provision that for "the same consideration" she assigned and released rights as widow in the husband's estate to his children by another wife, was held invalid as without consideration. Sawyer v. Churchill [Vt.] 59 A. 1014. An agreement whereby a wife relieves the husband from obligation under an order of the court for alimony pending a divorce action, and releases all claims for alimony, in consideration of his agreement to pay a certain weekly sum for support of her child until it arrives at a certain age, is supported by a sufficient consideration and is enforceable by the wife after the decree of divorce has been rendered. Ward v. Goodrich [Colo.] 82 P. 701.

28. Contract sustained where wife was represented by sons and sons-in-law in negotiations with husband, and there was no evidence of fraud, concealment or imposition. Hiett v. Hiett [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1051.

29, 30. Fisher v. Clopton, 110 Mo. App. 663, 85 S. W. 623.

31. Separation agreement held a bar to an allowance. Fisher v. Clopton, 110 Mo. App. 663, 85 S. W. 623.

32, 33. Patterson v. Patterson, 111 Ill. App. 342.

34. Chamberlain v. Cuming, 99 App. Div. 561, 91 N. Y. S. 105.

35, 36. Fisher v. Clopton, 110 Mo. App. 663, 85 S. W. 623.

37. See 3 C. L. 1672.

38. Under Laws 1887, p. 667, c. 537, a husband may convey directly to his wife his interest in lands held by them as tenants by the entirety. Hardwick v. Salzi, 46 Misc. 1, 93 N. Y. S. 265.

39. Swiger v. Swiger [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 23. A deed by a husband direct to the wife creates a separate equitable estate in the wife, legal title remaining in the husband in trust for the wife. Stark v. Kirchgraber, 186 Mo. 633, 85 S. W. 868.

40. Swiger v. Swiger [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 23.

41, 42. Stark v. Kirchgraber, 186 Mo. 633, 85 S. W. 868.

43. Code 1896, § 2520. Milam v. Coley [Ala.] 39 So. 511.

does not join, passes no interest, legal or equitable, to the husband.[44] Conveyances and transfers from the wife to the husband will be closely scrutinized,[45] and will be set aside if based on an illegal consideration.[46] A wife may legally convey her realty to her husband through a third person, and the validity of the transaction is not affected by the fact that it was intended to give the third person security for a debt of the husband.[47]

§ 3. Property rights inter se. A. In general.[48]—Mere possession of personalty by one spouse is not conclusive as to ownership.[49] The presumption that personalty in the joint possession of husband and wife belongs to the husband is rebuttable, even as between them, by proof that the wife's funds paid for it.[50] The husband may be estopped to deny the wife's ownership of property acquired by joint effort.[51] The mere fact that the wife assists the husband in his business does not give her either a joint or separate interest in the business or compensation.[52] Where the wife takes the husband's earnings and pays family expenses, she does not become the owner of the surplus remaining after such expenses are paid.[53] When husband and wife, living together, have community of possession of property, legal title to which is in the wife, possession of the property will be referred to the title.[54] Hence possession of the husband is not adverse to the title of the wife, or evidence against such title.[55] Where a life tenant suffers land to be sold for nonpayment of taxes, his wife cannot, by becoming purchaser at the sale, acquire possession adverse to her husband so as to acquire title by limitation.[56] A married woman is not, by reason of her relation to her husband, prohibited from purchasing tax titles upon property which he holds as tenant of another.[57]

(§ 3) B. Of husband in wife's property.[58]—At common law, during the existence of a marriage, the husband had the legal control of all the property without regard to ownership.[59] The wife's personalty became the husband's property, if he elected to treat it as such,[60] by reducing it to his possession;[61] if he elected to treat it as belonging to the wife, he became a trustee only.[62] Earnings of the wife belonged to the husband, unless he had divested himself of them by some clear and distinct act, by which he held or engaged to hold them as trustee for the wife's separate use.[63] In the absence of a statute providing otherwise, the husband must first have

44. Smith v. Vineyard [W. Va.] 51 S. E. 871.

45. Owing to influence husband is supposed to exercise over wife. Womack v. Womack [Ark.] 83 S. W. 937.

46. Conveyance of property owned by the wife to the husband set aside when evidence showed only consideration was withdrawal of divorce suit by husband. Womack v. Womack [Ark.] 83 S. W. 937.

47. Third person retained a vendor's lien, to secure an existing debt. Hannaford v. Dowdle [Ark.] 86 S. W. 818.

48. See 3 C. L. 1673.

49. To determine the ownership of money, as between husband and wife, the source of the money and the circumstances attending the transfer of possession from one to the other must be considered. Fretz v. Roth [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 676.

50. Greenberg v. Stevens, 114 Ill. App. 483.

51. As where husband treated property as belonging to wife, in bankruptcy proceeding. Womack v. Womack [Ark.] 83 S. W. 937.

52. Overbeck v. Ahlmeier, 106 Ill. App. 606.

53. Where such surplus was invested in land, and it was understood that the husband was eventually to take title, he could have his deed to her through another set aside; and her will did not operate on the land. Fretz v. Roth [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 676.

54, 55. Anglin v. Thomas [Ala.] 37 So. 784.

56. Blair v. Johnson, 215 Ill. 552, 74 N. E. 747.

57. Kampfer v. East Side Syndicate [Minn.] 104 N. W. 290.

58. See 3 C. L. 1673.

59. Fretz v. Roth [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 676.

60. Personalty inherited by wife. Leslie v. Bell [Ark.] 84 S. W. 491.

61. Evidence held not to show reduction to possession of wife's money invested in land. Reed Bros. v. Nicholson [Mo.] 88 S. W. 71.

62. As where he invested wife's money in land and recognized land as hers. Leslie v. Bell [Ark.] 84 S. W. 491.

63. Law in New Jersey prior to Gen. St. p. 2031, § 4, giving married women their earnings as separate property. Small v. Pryor [N. J. Eq.] 91 A. 564. Money acquired by a wife from keeping boarders, and not in a business carried on by her alone sepa-reduced his wife's lands to his possession before he might claim a life estate therein by right of marriage.[64] Consequently he could take no estate where her estate was subject to an outstanding one which postponed her legal right to possession.[65]

The subject of curtesy is elsewhere discussed.[66]

(§ 3) C. Of wife in husband's property.[67]—The widow's dower and homestead rights are fully treated elsewhere.[68]

(§ 3) D. Estates in common, jointly, and as an entirety.[69]—At common law, a tenancy by the entirety arises whenever an estate vests in two persons who are at the time when the estate vests husband and wife.[70] A conveyance to the husband and wife makes them tenants by the entirety, regardless of the source of the consideration;[71] but where it is shown by competent evidence that each spouse furnished rate from her husband, used as part payment of an incumbrance on realty owned by them in common, inures to the husband's benefit. Mayer v. Kane [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 374.

64. In Georgia, prior to the Code of 1863, marital rights of the husband did not attach to realty owned by the wife at the time of the marriage or acquired by her during coverture, unless she was in possession at the time or it was reduced to possession by him during coverture. Arnold v. Limeburger [Ga.] 49 S. E. 812. Under that Code, the law remained the same as to property acquired by the wife during coverture. Id. The right of a man, married prior to the married woman's act of 1866, to reduce to possession property of his wife, was not changed by that statute. Id.

65. The wife's possession during coverture was possession of the husband. Arnold v. Limeburger [Ga.] 49 S. E. 812. But where a wife, who owned a reversionary interest, subject to a dower right, lived on the land with the dowress, before and after her marriage, her possession was not such that marital rights of her husband attached before or after the death of the dowress, he never having reduced the reversionary interest to possession. Id.

66. See Curtesy, 5 C. L. 893.

67. See 3 C. L. 1674.

68. See Dower, 5 C. L. 1043; Homesteads, 5 C. L. 1689.

NOTE. Antenuptial conveyance by husband in fraud of wife's marital rights: The general rule is that a voluntary conveyance of real estate by a man on the eve of his marriage, unknown to his intended wife, and for the purpose of defeating the interest which she would acquire in his estate by the marriage, is fraudulent and void as to her. Collins v. Collins, 98 Md. 473, 57 A. 597, 103 Am. St. Rep. 408 (see, also, 3 C. L. 1673); Leach v. Duvall, 8 Bush [Ky.] 201; Beere v. Beere, 79 Iowa, 555, 44 N. W. 809; Pomeroy v. Pomeroy, 54 How. Pr. [N. Y.] 228. The conveyance must have been without the intended wife's knowledge and with intent to defeat her marital rights, and these facts must be shown by her when she attempts to avoid the deed. Beere v. Beere, 79 Iowa, 555, 44 N. W. 809; Smith v. Smith, 6 N. J. Eq. 515; Youngs v. Carter, 50 How. Pr. [N. Y.] 410; Murray v. Murray, 90 Ky. 1, 13 S. W. 244, 8 L. R. A. 95. It has been held that a man who has contracted to marry a woman cannot, on the eve of his marriage, give away his property without the consent of his intended wife. Poston v. Gillespie, 5 Jones Eq. [N. C.] 258, 75 Am. Dec. 437. But the better rule is said to be that stated in Dudley v. Dudley (76 Wis. 567, 45 N. W. 602, 8 L. R. A. 814), where it is held that an antenuptial deed is not necessarily fraudulent because not disclosed to the intended wife. Where the man represents himself as the owner of certain land as an inducememnt to marriage, his secret antenuptial conveyance is fraudulent as to the wife's rights. Dearmond v. Dearmond, 10 Ind. 191. A voluntary conveyance or settlement will not be held fraudulent unless made with intent to defraud the intended wife, and in contemplation of marriage, and pending an engagement. Gainor v. Gainor, 26 Iowa, 337. A conveyance is not a fraud upon a woman with whom the grantor was not acquainted at the time, though he afterwards marries her. Bliss v. West, 58 Hun, 71, 11 N. Y. S. 374. Deed prior to engagement valid. Estate of Coleman, 193 Pa. 605, 44 A. 1085.

If a deed is fraudulent as to the wife, her rights in the land are not affected by the deed. Hoch v. Rollins, 158 Mo. 182, 59 S. W. 232. She may have it set aside after marriage in a suit for maintenance of herself and child, the husband having deserted her. Murray v. Murray, 115 Cal. 266, 47 P. 37, 56 Am. St. Rep. 97, 37 L. R. A. 626.—See note to Collins v. Collins [Md.] 103 Am. St. Rep. 418, from which cases above are taken.

69. See 3 C. L. 1674.

70. In re Klenke's Estate [Pa.] 60 A. 166. In the absence of qualifying words in a devise or conveyance to a husband and wife, the presumption is that they take title by entirety. Booth v. Fordham, 100 App. Div. 115, 91 N. Y. S. 406. Conveyance to husband and wife makes them tenants by the entirety. Saxon v. Saxon, 46 Misc. 202, 83 N. Y. S. 191. Under Gen. St. 1895, c. 108, § 12, a grant to a husband and wife, not expressly declared to be in joint tenancy, creates an estate by the entirety. Wilson v. Frost, 186 Mo. 311, 85 S. W. 375. Where deed recited grant to husband and wife, the estate created was one by the entirety, though it was specified in the premises that husband and wife were each to have an undivided half interest. Id. Estates by the entirety existed in Kansas prior to Laws 1891, p. 349, c. 203, which abolished such estates. Hence, where husband and wife took title prior to 1891, the husband's vested estate was not divested by the statute, and on death of his wife, he took the whole. Holmes v. Holmes [Kan.] 79 P. 163.

71. Conveyance to husband and wife vests estate in entirety, nothing else appearing, a part of the consideration and that the intention was to make them tenants in common, they will take as tenants in common, though the deed, through a mistake, makes them tenants by the entirety.[72] A tenancy by the entirety may exist in personalty as well as realty,[73] in choses in action as well as choses in possession.[74] At the death of either of such tenants, the survivor takes the whole,[75] and the rights of the survivor cannot be defeated by a testamentary disposition of the other.[76] A husband and wife who are tenants by the entirety occupy as tenants in common during their joint lives.[77] The weight of authority is that a divorce severs an estate by entirety and makes the former husband and wife tenants in common.[78] The husband cannot alone transfer title to land held by him and his wife jointly.[79]

In states where the common-law rule has been modified a conveyance to husband and wife makes them tenants in common, and not joint tenants.[80] Under statutes providing that husband and wife may convey or transfer real or personal property directly, the one to the other, without the intervention of a third person, a conveyance by the husband to himself and wife does not make them tenants by the entirety.[81]

(§ 3) E. Wife's separate property.[82]—Property inherited by or conveyed or given to the wife becomes her separate property.[83] The wife is entitled to rents and profits from property to which she holds legal title.[84] In Kentucky, an infant daughter loses a vested right in a homestead upon her marriage.[85]

Trusteeship of husband.—Where the husband invests the wife's money and takes title to the purchased property in his own name, a trust immediately arises in favor of the wife,[86] unless a gift by the wife to the husband was intended.[87] Such regardless of whether one or both furnished consideration. Stalcup v. Stalcup, 137 N. C. 305, 49 S. E. 210. Deed to husband and wife makes them tenants by the entirety, though husband purchased. Hayes v. Horton [Or.] 81 P. 386.

72. Stalcup v. Stalcup, 137 N. C. 305, 49 S. E. 210.

73. Deposits in name of "Henry and Kate Klenke" and "Henry or Catherine Klenke" held by entireties. In re Klenke's Estate [Pa.] 60 A. 166.

74. In re Klenke's Estate [Pa.] 60 A. 166.

75. In re Klenke's Estate [Pa.] 60 A. 166. Where land is held by husband and wife as tenants by entireties, upon death of one, the survivor takes the whole. Chaplin v. Leapley [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 546; Saxon v. Saxon, 46 Misc. 202, 93 N. Y. S. 191.

76. A husband has no power to devise land held by himself and wife as tenants by the entireties. Chaplin v. Leapley [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 546.

77. Steenberge v. Low, 92 N. Y. S. 518.

78. Since divorce destroys unity of husband and wife. Hayes v. Horton [Or.] 81 P. 386.

79. Where husband and wife owned farm jointly, the husband could not by sale contract and will transfer the property to another at his death, but upon that event the wife acquired title free from any rights in the obligee and devisee of the husband. Hubert v. Traeder [Mich.] 102 N. W. 283.

80. In Kentucky, a deed to husband and wife makes them tenants in common and wife's heirs take an undivided half. Campbell v. Asher [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1067. In New Jersey a chose in action made to the husband and wife jointly during coverture is held by them as tenants in common, and not as joint tenants. Mortgage to husband and wife jointly. Aubry v. Schneider [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 929.

81. Even where deed conveyed to parties of the second part for their joint lives, "the survivor to become absolute owner," and the words of conveyance were to such parties and "their heirs and assigns forever." Saxon v. Saxon, 46 Misc. 202, 93 N. Y. S. 191.

82. See 3 C. L. 1675.

83. Inherited personalty recognized as wife's separate property. Leslie v. Bell [Ark.] 84 S. W. 491. A married woman may acquire a right of property by gift, and is, as to such property, its owner. Battle v. Columbia, etc., R. Co., 70 S. C. 329, 49 S. E. 849. Land conveyed to wife by her father is her separate property under Va. Code 1904, p. 1139. King v. Davis, 137 F. 222.

84. So held of homestead in wife's name. Sharp v. Fitzhugh [Ark.] 88 S. W. 929.

85. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 1707. Jones v. Crawford [Ky.] 84 S. W. 568.

86. Matador Land & Cattle Co. v. Cooper [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 348, 87 S. W. 235. Where the wife raised funds by mortgaging her separate property, and husband bought land with such funds under agreement that the land purchased was to be hers, and then takes title in himself, the wife has equitable title to the land as her separate estate. Sparks v. Taylor [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 290, 87 S. W. 740. Where husband, in public records, described land bought with wife's inherited personalty as hers, and always treated it as hers, there was a resulting trust in her favor, and at her death, the land went to her son. Leslie v. Bell [Ark.] 84 S. W. 491.

87. If property is purchased with money belonging to the wife as her separate estate, a trust does not arise where the wife is paid in notes of the husband,[88] nor where both spouses contribute to the purchasing fund, and the property purchased is taken for their joint use, the wife having full knowledge of, and approving, the transaction.[89] An agreement between husband and wife that land purchased with the wife's funds should be her separate estate in valid as between themselves and as against all others except bona fide purchasers.[90] An instrument attempting to convey a life estate to a married woman, when, under the law, she could not take legal title to realty, and making her husband her agent to manage the property conveyed, creates a trust in the husband for the benefit of the wife.[91] If the husband accepts the trust, as he may do by taking charge of the property, he waives his marital rights.[92]

§ 4. Property rights under the community system. A. What law governs.[93] (§ 4) B. What property is community and what separate.[94]—The presumption is that property acquired during the marriage is community property;[95] but this presumption may be overcome by proof that such property was paid for out of the separate funds of one of the spouses.[96] The interest acquired by a husband and wife under a contract for the purchase of land in which the husband is vendee is community property.[97] Property conveyed to the wife[98] and paid for with her funds[99] and property devised to her[1] during coverture becomes her separate property. In Louisania, permanent improvements made on land belonging to one of the spouses belongs to the owner of the land.[2] As relates to the right of the community, only the enhanced value of the property is taken into account, if due to the imand there is no satisfactory proof that a gift to the husband was intended, the husband or his estate must account to the wife for the principal at least. Small v. Pryor [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 564. Evidence insufficient to show price was wife's separate property, or that husband took as trustee. Id.

88. Where husband took and used wife's money, she taking notes therefor, in the absence of an agreement by him to hold it in trust for her, such a trust would not be implied. In re Deaner's Estate, 126 Iowa, 701, 102 N. W. 825.

89. In such case, husband is not mere trustee, and wife's money cannot be recovered from him after her death. In re Kreider's Estate [Pa.] 61 A. 1115.

90. Purchasers held to have had notice of wife's rights. Sparks v. Taylor [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 290, 87 S. W. 740.

91, 92. Johnson v. Cook [Ga.] 50 S. E. 367.

93, 94. See 3 C. L. 1676.

95. Hoopes v. Mathis [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 463, 89 S. W. 36. Where land is conveyed to the husband during the marriage, the presumption is that it was paid for with community property. York v. Hilger [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1117.

Note: "Property acquired after marriage by either the husband or wife is presumed to be community property until it is shown to be separate property. Ballinger, Commun. Prop. §§ 17, 46, 67, 159-166; Althof v. Conheim, 38 Cal. 230, 99 Am. Dec. 363; Meyer v. Kinzer, 12 Cal. 247, 73 Am. Dec. 538; Shaw v. Hill, 20 La. Ann. 531, 96 Am. Dec. 420; Labbe's Heirs v. Abat, 2 La. 553, 22 Am. Dec. 151; Cooke v. Bremond, 27 Tex. 457, 86 Am. Dec. 626, and cases cited in note p. 636; Morris v. Hastings, 70 Tex. 26, 8 Am. St. Rep. 570; Castor v. Peterson, 2 Wash. 204, 26 Am. St. Rep. 854. Except in California, in the case of a conveyance in writing to the wife. Act March 3, 1893 (St. 1893, p. 71); Svetinich v. Sheean, 124 Cal. 216, 71 Am. St. Rep. 50.—Tiffany, Real Property, § 166.

96. Evidence held insufficient to prove that stock levied on as husband's property was bought with funds belonging to the wife. Hoopes v. Mathis [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 463, 89 S. W. 36. Evidence insufficient to prove payment from husband's separate funds for property conveyed to him during marriage. York v. Hilger [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1117.

97. Zeimantz v. Blake [Wash.] 80 P. 822.

98. A deed from the husband to the wife makes the property conveyed the wife's separate estate, though the deed does not expressly so provide. Jones v. Iumphreys [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 684, 88 S. W. 403. Realty bought by the husband, partly with the wife's own funds, and conveyed to her, in consideration of her agreement to join him in a conveyance of other land which he desired to sell, becomes the wife's separate property. McKinney v. McKinney [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 217.

99. Evidence held to show lot in wife's name was not paid for with community funds and was not community property; hence her deed not subject to cancellation. Guye v. Plimpton [Wash.] 82 P. 596.

1. Evidence sufficient to show married woman acquired title by devise during coverture. Hence property was her separate property under Civ. Code, § 162, and was not a part of the community. Bell v. Wyman [Cal.] 82 P. 39.

2. Succession of Meteye, 113 La. 1012, 37 So. 909.

provement.[3] In Texas, improvements on land which is the separate property of the wife, made by the husband out of community funds, will not be presumed to be a gift.[4] Rents and revenues derived from the wife's separate property become community property.[5] A cause of action for personal injuries sustained by the husband, after the parties have separated with the intention of remaining permanently apart, is community property.[6] The Louisiana statute making a cause of action for injuries to the wife her separate property is not retroactive.[7]

(§ 4) C. Rights and powers as to, and liability of, community property.[8]—Property, title to which is in the community, is under the absolute control and management of the husband.[9] Neither spouse can by will dispose of the community interest of the other.[10] A release of the husband's interest as vendee in a contract of sale is invalid unless the wife joins.[11] A statute providing that a husband cannot make a gift of community property unless the wife consent thereto in writing has no application to a gift of such property directly to the wife.[12] Declarations of the wife made in the absence and without the knowledge of her husband cannot raise an estoppel where his title to community property is involved.[13] When a married woman engages in trade, it is presumed to be with funds of the community.[14]

The Texas statute, providing that where one spouse becomes insane, and there are no children, the community property passes to the other, no administration or guardianship of the estate of the insane spouse being necessary, does not operate to transfer title to the community property where one spouse becomes insane,[15] but simply gives the sane spouse the same powers over the community property as are possessed by husbands generally during the marriage.[16]

A community debt or obligation, past or present, is a sufficient consideration for a joint note of the husband and wife.[17] On such a note judgment can be recovered against both, and the community property and separate property of both is liable to execution upon the judgment so recovered.[18] The wife is a necessary party to an action to foreclose a lien on community property,[19] and where she is not brought in until the statutory period for bringing the foreclosure action has expired, the court is without jurisdiction to give judgment against her.[20]

(§ 4) D. Rights and powers as to, and liability of, separate property.[21]—The wife and her paraphernal property are not liable for debts contracted by her husband as head of the community while managing its business as his own.[22] A

3. Proof held not to show enhancement in value by an improvement. Succession of Meteye, 113 La. 1012, 37 So. 909.

4. Collins v. Bryan [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 237, 88 S. W. 432.

5. De Barrera v. Frost [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 593, 88 S. W. 476.

6. One-half the cause of action should go to the wife on her obtaining a divorce. Ligon v. Ligon [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 365, 87 S. W. 838.

7. Act No. 68, p. 95, Laws La. 1902, amending Rev. Civ. Code 1870, § 2402, did not affect previously vested right of husband to sue for injury to wife. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Purcell [C. C. A.] 135 F. 499.

8. See 3 C. L. 1677.

9. Newman v. Newman [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 635.

10. Schwartz v. West [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 282.

11. Such interest being community property. Zeimantz v. Blake [Wash.] 80 P. 822.

12. Civ. Code, § 172. Kaltschmidt v. Weber, 145 Cal. 596, 79 P. 272.

13, 14. Bashore v. Parker, 146 Cal. 525, 80 P. 707.

15. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 2220, husband does not acquire title on insanity of wife so that he could dispose of it by will, he dying before the wife. Schwartz v. West [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 282. The statute does not affect the descent and distribution of the community property on the death of one of the parties. Rev. St. 1895, art. 2220 does not repeal art. 1696. Id.

16. Schwartz v. West [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 282.

17, 18. Lumbermen's Nat. Bank v. Gross, 37 Wash. 18, 79 P. 470.

19. Mechanic's lien. Northwest Bridge Co. v. Tacoma Shipbuilding Co., 36 Wash. 333, 78 P. 996.

20. Northwest Bridge Co. v. Tacoma Shipbuilding Co., 36 Wash. 333, 78 P. 996.

21. See 3 C. L. 1678.

22. Succession of Sangpiel [La.] 38 So. 554.

wife has a tacit lien or mortgage on property of her husband to the amount of her dotal property and her separate property acquired by lucrative title, which came into his possession and was used by him during coverture.[23] Hence, if the property is sold to satisfy claims of creditors, she is entitled to be paid the amount of her lien before the claims of creditors are satisfied.[24] Land which is the separate property of the wife cannot be sold to reimburse the community estate for improvements made thereon out of community funds.[25] But the husband's trustee in bankruptcy may recover judgment for the amount of the community funds so expended to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of the improvements.[26] In order to charge the separate estate of the wife for taxes, insurance, and similar expenses, or for betterments, it must be made to appear with reasonable certainty that the amounts so expended were paid by the husband with funds of the community.[27]

(§ 4) E. Succession to and administration of the community.[28]—Where the equitable title to a homestead is vested in the community, but legal title is not acquired until after the death of one of the spouses, legal title then vests in the community and the heirs of the deceased spouse are entitled to one-half thereof.[29] In California, on death of the husband, one-half of the community property goes to the wife absolutely; the other half is subject to his testamentary disposition, and in the absence of a will, goes to his descendants.[30] In Louisiana, the surviving partner of the community is entitled to one-half the community, and is a usufructuary of the other half.[31] A widow in community is not obliged to give bond as usufructuary of community property inherited by her children, unless so required by the husband's will.[32] Where a widow claims and occupies certain property as her separate estate for the period of limitations after the husband's death, his heirs cannot recover it from her.[33]

Rights and powers of survivor.—The survivor may sell the community property to pay community debts.[34] The survivor of the community, qualified as such under 23, 24. Ilfeld v. De Baca [N. M.] 79 P. 723.

25, 26. Collins v. Bryan [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 237, 88 S. W. 432.

27. Succession of Meteye, 113 La. 1012, 37 So. 909.

28. See 3 C. L. 1678.

NOTE. Descent of community property: "Upon the death of the wife, the husband has, in Louisiana and Texas, control of all the community property for the purpose of settling the community affairs (Stewart, Husb. & Wife, § 318; Verrer v. Lors, 43 La. Ann. 717; Brewer v. Wall, 23 Tex. 585, 76 Am. Dec. 76), and in California, Nevada and Idaho he takes all the community property as absolute owner (1 Stimson's Am. St. Law, § 3401; 6 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 345; In re Ingram, 78 Cal. 586, 12 Am. St. Rep. 90, note). With these exceptions, the half belonging to either the husband or wife descends to his or her heirs or descendants, subject to the payment of debts (1 Stimson's Am. St. Law, §§ 3402-3404; Ballinger, Commun. Prop. c. 8; Johnston v. San Francisco Sav. Union, 75 Cal. 134, 7 Am. St. Rep. 129; Bennett v. Fuller, 29 La. Ann. 663; Robinson v. McDonald, 11 Tex. 385, 62 Am. Dec. 480), except when it has been disposed of by the will of the deceased (Ballinger, Commun. Prop. §§ 234, 240; Brown v. Pridgen, 56 Tex. 124; Hill's Estate, 6 Wash. 285). If there are no descendants and no will, the survivor, in some states, takes the half belonging to the deceased (See 1 Stimson's Am. St. Law, § 3403; Rev. St. Ariz. 1887, § 1467; Sayles' Civ. St. Tex. art. 2165; Hill's Gen. St. Wash. § 1481). The rights of dower and curtesy are incompatible with the theory of the community system, and have no recognition in the states where that system prevails, there being in some states a statute expressly so providing (Ballinger, Commun. Prop. §§ 10, 253).—Tiffany, Real Property, § 166.

29. Husband made homestead entry during wife's life but obtained patent after her death. Children took mother's share. Cox v. Tompkinson [Wash.] 80 P. 1005.

30. Under Civ. Code, § 1402, a contention that where a will was invalid, the wife took one-half absolutely, and one-third the remainder as heir, was held erroneous. In re Angle's Estate [Cal.] 82 P. 668.

31. Succession of Meteye, 113 La. 1012, 37 So. 909.

32. Succession of Glancey [La.] 38 So. 826.

33. Heidelberg v. Behrens [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1029.

34. Wife, after husband's death, has power to sell community property in consideration of payment of community debts by the grantee, and her contract binds herself and her children. Hughes v. Landrum [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 787, 89 S. W. 85. A deed of trust by the husband on the community homestead after the death of his wife, to secure a community debt creates a valid lien on the homestead. Echols v. Jacobs Mercantile Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1082.

the statute, cannot legally appropriate or dispose of property subject to a valid chattel mortgage without discharging the lien.[35] The right of the survivor of the community to occupy the community homestead is a personal right, and not an assignable estate in land.[36] Hence when a widow sells her homestead interest, her right thereto terminates and the heirs of her deceased husband are entitled to possession of their interest therein.[37] In Texas, upon death of the wife, the husband has the right to administer the community property for the payment of the community debts, without any supervision of the probate court.[38]

Accountability to heirs and creditors.[39]—On dissolution of the community by death of the wife, its creditors may proceed directly against the community property in the possession of the husband, contradictorily with him alone,[40] though administration upon the wife's estate be then pending, and even though the husband has himself voluntarily taken out letters upon his wife's estate.[41] Where the community is insolvent, neither the wife nor her heirs have any valuable interest therein.[42] Hence the heirs cannot complain that they were not made parties in a foreclosure suit wherein sale of property to pay the purchase price due from the community was decreed.[43]

Where a wife has paid a daughter during her lifetime for services rendered in the home, without objection by and with the tacit approval of the husband, the money paid being the earnings of the wife, the fund so created belongs absolutely to the daughter.[44] Where the surviving spouse has funds deposited in the name of an heir inventoried as funds of the community, he is not entitled to have the bank made a party to his action to liquidate the community, in order to have it withhold the funds deposited with it, without notice to the heirs and without a conservatory writ issued on bond.[45]

Community debts and claims.[46]—A debt incurred by the husband during the marriage is presumptively a debt of the community,[47] though he manages a community business as his own.[48]

(§ 4) F. Dissolution of community.[49]—A voluntary dissolution of the community is void, in Louisiana.[50] Though an agreement for such dissolution takes the form of a judgment rendered at the suit of his wife, and is followed by a notarial act of Husband may sell community homestead, after wife's death, to pay community debts. Dever v. Selz [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 113, 87 S. W. 891. Surviving husband may settle community debt by assuming debt of his creditor, and by thereafter transferring the community homestead in settlement of the assumed debt. Id. The validity of this transaction was not affected by the fact that the husband and wife did not recognize validity of their marriage, and both repudiated its obligations. Id.

35. Embree-McLean Carriage Co. v. Johnson [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1021.

36, 37. York v. Hutcheson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 895.

38. If an administrator be appointed, he cannot interfere with husband's control and disposition of such property for such purpose. Levy v. Moody & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 205.

39. See 3 C. L. 1679.

40. Luria v. Cote Blanche Co. [La.] 38 So. 279. A creditor of the community, after the wife's death may sue the husband, and upon establishing the debt, may subject community property to its payment. Levy v. Moody & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 205.

41. Levy v. Moody & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 205.

42. Luria v. Cote Blanche Co. [La.] 38 So. 279.

43. Decree rendered on bill and answer admitting facts alleged, which were true as shown by authentic act of sale and mortgage, held not void as consent decree. Luria v. Cote Blanche Co. [La.] 38 So. 279.

44. Husband cannot claim it is a part of the community after the wife's death. Succession of Meteye, 113 La. 1012, 37 So. 909.

45. The inventory was not binding on the heir. Succession of Meteye, 113 La. 1012, 37 So. 909.

46. See 3 C. L. 1679.

47. Dever v. Selz [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 113, 87 S. W. 891.

48. The husband is regarded as head and master of the community rather than as the wife's agent, where he manages a community business as his own; and under such circummstances his debts are presumptively community debts. Succession of Sangpiel [La.] 38 So. 554.

49. See 3 C. L. 1679.

50. Code, art. 2427. Driscoll v. Pierce [La.] 38 So. 949.

settlement between the parties and renunciation by his wife, the wife may sue to have it set aside.[51] Prescription does not apply to such a suit.[52] Where the wife obtains a judgment of separation from bed and board and subsequently sues for partition of the community property and settlement of accounts, the burden is upon the husband to account for community property shown by his books to have been in his possession shortly before the dissolution of the community.[53] Community property having been in possession and enjoyment of the husband after dissolution of the community, he should account for revenues or be charged with interest on the wife's share from the date of his possession after the filing of a bill for separation.[54]

§ 5. Liability for necessaries.[55]—Where the parties are living apart, through no fault of the wife, the husband is liable for necessaries[56] furnished the wife[57] when he has not made other adequate provision for her.[58] He is not liable when the wife lives separately from him without cause and refuses to return at his request.[59] A general notice of unwillingness to furnish credit for necessaries bought by the wife cannot affect the husband's liability to one to whose attention such notice was not brought.[60] In Iowa, the property of both spouses is liable for necessaries.[61] In Georgia, it is held that where a married woman dies, leaving a husband surviving her, the husband, and not the separate estate of the deceased, is liable for the payment of the funeral expenses.[62]

51, 52. Driscoll v. Pierce [La.] 38 So. 949.

53. Burden on husband to explain $100,000 discrepancy between inventory and books. Hill v. Hill [La.] 39 So. 503.

54. Hill v. Hill [La.] 39 So. 503.

55. See 3 C. L. 1680.

56. Groceries furnished wife are necessaries for which husband is liable. Fischer v. Brady, 94 N. Y. S. 25. Domestic service, with proper attire for servants, may be necessaries, according to the station in life of the parties. Davidov v. Bail, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 579. It is ordinarily a question of fact for the jury whether goods purchased by the wife and charged to the husband are necessaries. Expensive clothing. Levison v. Davis [Pa.] 61 A. 819. That husband and wife lived in house where she remained after his desertion is presumptive proof that the residence was suitable for her according to the husband's means. Sultan v. Misrahi, 94 N. Y. S. 519.

57. Evidence sufficient to sustain judgment for necessaries furnished defendant's wife and children. Marshall v. Curry, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 143.

58. Husband held liable for meats supplied for his family, evidence not showing that he supported them adequately. Wentz v. McCann, 95 N. Y. S. 462. Where the wife remains in the husband's house after he has left it, and she has not forfeited her right to support and he has made no arrangement for such support, a seller of necessaries to her may recover from the husband. Sloane v. Boyer, 95 N. Y. S. 531. Husband who deserts wife and fails to provide home or support for her is liable for reasonable value of her board. Sultan v. Misrahi, 94 N. Y. S. 519. In case of a separation by mutual consent, the husband is liable for necessaries furnished the wife unless he can show that he has made other sufficient provision for her, or has placed himself in a situation which relieves him from liability. Bensyl v. Hughs, 109 Ill. App. 86.

59. Bensyl v. Hughs, 109 Ill. App. 86. Wife who, without cause, leaves husband and continues to live apart from him, cannot bind him for medical services for which she contracts. Morgenroth v. Spencer [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1086.

60. Sloane v. Boyer, 95 N. Y. S. 531.

61. On notes given by the husband for necessaries, judgment may be rendered against both husband and wife, since Code, § 3165 charges the property of both with liability for necessaries. Whinery v. McLeod [Iowa] 102 N. W. 132.

62. Kenyon v. Brightwell, 120 Ga. 606, 48 S. E. 124.

Note: "It was the duty of the surviving husband at common law to provide a funeral for his deceased wife in keeping with his social position, and he was liable to third persons incurring expenses for this purpose. Jenkins v. Tucker, 1 H. Bl. 90; Bradshaw v. Beard, 12 C. B. (N. S.) 344; Ambrose v. Kerrison, 10 C. B. 776. An interesting question has been raised in several of the states as to the effect of the legislation creating separate property rights in married women upon the liability of the surviving husband for the funeral expenses of his deceased wife. The decisions are not altogether in harmony on this point, but the weight of authority seems to be that the surviving husband remains primarily liable as at common law, the liability being based upon the duty of the husband to furnish necessaries for the wife. Brand's Exr's v. Brand, 109 Ky. 326; Smyley v. Reese, 15 Ala. 90; Staple's Appeal, 52 Conn. 425. This liability is made in a few states to depend upon the solvency of the surviving husband. Galloway v. McPherson, 67 Mich. 546, 11 Am. St. Rep. 596; Scott's Estate, 15 Pa. Co. Ct. 67. In other jurisdictions the statutory provisions for the payment of decedent's debts, specifying funeral expenses, have been construed to apply to the estates of deceased married women. Buxton v. Barrett, 14 R. I. 40; McClellan v.

A plaintiff seeking to recover from the husband for necessaries supplied the wife while living apart has the burden of proving her separation justifiable.[63] In an action against the husband for necessaries furnished the wife, the wife is a competent witness.[64]

§ 6. Contract rights and liabilities of husband as to third persons.[65]—A deed by a husband alone conveys his interest subject to his wife's contingent dower right.[66] But nonjoinder of the wife in an option to sell land will not relieve the husband from the duty of performing, if performance by him is demanded, even though his wife refuses to join.[67] The husband cannot alone convey [68] or mortgage [69] the homestead. A deed of the homestead by the husband, for a grossly inadequate consideration, and at a time when he is insane concerning the wife's conduct and his duties toward her, is a fraud on the wife,[70] and equity has jurisdiction of a suit to enjoin ejectment by the fraudulent grantee, and to cancel the deed.[71]

Agency of wife for husband.[72]—The wife may be made the husband's agent and as such may bind him by her authorized acts.[73] Such agency will not be implied from the marriage relation,[74] but must be proved by other evidence.[75] The wife's unauthorized acts do not bind the husband.[76]

§ 7. Contract and property rights and liabilities of wife as to third persons. A. Agency of husband for wife.[77]—Agency of the husband for the wife will not be presumed, but must be proved.[78] Where such agency exists, the wife is bound by the husband's acts;[79] she is not bound by his unauthorized acts,[80] unless he has Filson, 44 Ohio St. 184; 58 Am. Rep. 814; Constantindess v. Walsh, 146 Mass. 281, 4 Am. St. Rep. 311. This case [Kenyon v. Brightwell, supra] is of special interest from the fact that it raises the question for the first time in the state of Georgia and also from the fact that while the statutory provisions for the payment of decedent's debts in Georgia are very similar to those in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Ohio, they are construed differently."—3 Mich. L. R. 238.

63. Buxbaum v. Mason, 95 N. Y. S. 539.

64. As in action for medical services to wife. Morgenroth v. Spencer [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1086.

65. See 3 C. L. 1680; see, also, special article, Agency Implied from Relation of Parties, 3 C. L. 101.

66. Furnish's Adm'r v. Lilly [Ky.] 84 S. W. 734.

67. Hughes v. Antill, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 290.

68. Deed of homestead by husband, wife not joining, is void. Moseley v. Larson [Miss.] 38 So. 234.

69. Mortgage on homestead by debtor alone, wife not joining, creates no lien on the homestead. Bates v. Frazier [Ky.] 85 S. W. 757.

70. $4,000 property sold for $500. Moseley v. Larson [Miss.] 38 So. 234.

71. Moseley v. Larson [Miss.] 38 So. 234.

72. See 3 C. L. 1681. See special article, Agency Implied from Relation of Parties, 3 C. L. 101.

73. Where wife signed receipt and he ratified her act, he was responsible for natural and probable consequences. Steffens v. Nelson [Minn.] 102 N. W. 871.

74. Fact of marriage relation does not alone show agency. McNemar v. Cohn, 115 Ill. App. 31. Wife has no authority to appear for husband to contest judgment in personam against him. Lawrence Co. Nat. Bank v. Gray, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 62.

75. Evidence sufficient to go to jury on issue whether defendant's wife acted as his agent in employing plaintiff to care for defendant's mother. French v. Spencer, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 428. Evidence held to show that wife acted as husband's agent in consenting to plaintiff's abandonment of an entire contract, and that the husband failed to repudiate the wife's act. Trawick v. Trussel [Ga.] 50 S. E. 86.

76. Where a wife contracts in her own name for the improvement of her husband's realty, the husband is not liable, if it does not appear that she was his authorized agent, or that he knew of the work being done, or adopted the contract. Thompson v. Brown, 121 Ga. 814, 49 S. E. 740. Payment by him for part of the work will not render him liable by ratification, the wife having acted in her own behalf, and not as agent. Id.

77. See 3 C. L. 1631. Also special article, Agency implied from relations, 3 C. L. 101.

78. Francis v. Reeves, 137 N. C. 269, 49 S. E. 213. Agency of husband to contract for removal of gravel from wife's land will not be presumed. Cox v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 989. Evidence sufficient to show plaintiff's husband acted as her agent in contracting for removal of gravel from her premises. Douglas v. New York, etc., R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 723. Whether husband and wife both agreed to be liable for lumber put into house or whether husband acted as wife's agent, held a question for jury. Reelman v. Grosfend [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 335, 104 N. W. 331.

79. Blind woman who entrusted correspondence relating to sale of land to her husband, and made the sale in his name, made him her agent and was bound by his

been guilty of fraud, which she has ratified.[81] Where the consideration of a debt reaches the wife as an accession to her separate estate, and she retains and enjoys it, only slight evidence of the husband's agency in contracting the debt is required to charge her.[82]

(§ 7) B. Contracts in general.[83]—Where, by statute, married women are given power to own and control separate property as though unmarried,[84] their contracts with reference to such property are valid and enforceable by [85] and against [86] them. A married woman may recover under an express or implied contract for services rendered third persons, where such services are not performed as a part of duties owed the husband.[87] In Pennsylvania, a married woman may contract for representations regarding boundaries. Lainhart v. Habbard [Ky.] 89 S. W. 10.

80. Husband, without express authority from wife, cannot bind her to apply her share of an estate to payment for land conveyed to him. Berkemeier v. Peters [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 598. An action by a wife to recover damages for constructing a ditch on her land cannot be defeated by a parol license given by her husband four years before and two months before she acquired title. Neumeister v. Goddard [Wis.] 103 N. W. 241. In action against husband and wife for money judgment and to enforce a lien on lands inherited by the wife, a judgment entered by an agreement between the plaintiff and the husband, to which the wife was not a party and of which she had no knowledge, was not binding on her. Bates v. Burt & B. Lumber Co. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 550. Where prior to act Cong. June 1, 1896, § 3, giving married women in District of Columbia separate contractual rights, husband signed wife's name to articles of association in which he was a member, without her knowledge, she did not become liable on the stock, even though a dividend was placed to her credit, after the act, without her knowledge. Norwood v. Francis, 25 App. D. C. 463. Married woman is not estopped by acts or representations of her husband. Harle v. Texas Southern R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1048. The fact that the wife does not deny statements by her husband in her presence adverse to her property rights will not estop her from thereafter asserting title to the property referred to by his statements. Thomas v. Butler, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 305.

81. A wife is not bound by unauthorized acts of her husband in relation to her real estate, unless he is guilty of fraud of which she reaps and retains the benefit after notice thereof and thereby ratifies the fraud. Caton v. Raber, 56 W. Va. 244, 49 S. E. 147.

82. Where husband was general manager of wife's farm, and bought fruit trees, and placed them on her farm, though she was not known in the transaction, the evidence was held sufficient to charge her as undisclosed principal. Pinkston v. Cedar Hills Nursery & Orchard Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 387.

83. See 3 C. L. 1681.

84. Under Rev. St. c. 68, a married woman may own and control her separate property as a feme sole. Gibson v. Kimmit, 113 Ill. App. 611.

85. Wife may loan her money to her husband and take and enforce his notes therefor. In re Deaner's Estate, 126 Iowa, 701, 102 N. W. 825.

86. Under Burn's Ann. St. 1901, § 6960, a married woman may bind herself by contract to pay a broker for services rendered in connection with sale of her separate realty. Her liability for such services is not affected by her inability to convey without joining her husband in the conveyance. Isphording v. Wolf [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 598. Statement in justice court for services rendered in procuring a purchaser for married woman's separate property held sufficient to show charge reasonable and that debt was incurred for her separate property. Evans v. Gray [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 375. In Florida, married women may own in their own right national bank stock, and may incur statutory liability for an assessment thereon. Christopher v. Norvell [C. C. A.] 134 F. 842. Under Act of Cong. June 1, 1896, § 3, married women in the District of Columbia may enter into contracts of co-partnership, and may become liable on stock owned by them in joint-stock associations. Norwood v. Francis, 25 App. D. C. 463. In an action on account against a married woman where defendant pleads coverture and plaintiff, in making his case, shows that fact to exist, he cannot recover without proof that the transaction upon which his action is based was had with reference to or with intent to bind, her separate property, estate or business. Bentley v. Bentley's Estate [Neb.] 101 N. W. 976.

87. Under Laws 1884, p. 465, c. 381, § 1, authorizing married women to contract and carry on separate businesses, and making her earnings for services, not done in pursuance of her duty owed her husband, her sole and separate property the wife may recover for services rendered a third person under an express or implied contract. Stevens v. Cunningham, 181 N. Y. 454, 74 N. E. 434. By Laws 1902, p. 844, c. 289, § 30, amending the domestic relations law, where a married woman or her husband seeks to recover for wages or compensation for work or services rendered by the wife, the presumption is that the wife alone is entitled thereto unless the contrary expressly appears. Id. Wife rendered services for another tenant in the house for six years, without interference by her husband, and not as a part of her own ordinary household duties. Held, she was entitled to recover therefor for her own benefit. Id. Since married women may contract (Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 6960) and are entitled to their own separate earnings (§ 6975), a contract by a husband to furnish and care for a room in the house for the landlord is not necessaries.[88] In Wisconsin, a married woman, living with her husband, has no power to contract to pay for family expenses not concerning her separate estate, even though the parties contemplated that payment was to be made out of her own property.[89] To constitute an abandonment by the husband, under the North Carolina statute authorizing an abandoned wife to bind her separate estate by her contracts, the husband need not have left the state;[90] nor is it necessary that the abandonment should have continued for the period sufficient to make it a ground of divorce, to give the wife the right to make such contracts.[91] In a suit to enforce a married woman's contract, the burden is on defendant to prove that her contract was one prohibited by law.[92]

(§ 7) C. Contracts of suretyship.[93]—In many jurisdictions married women cannot make binding contracts of suretyship;[94] in others, such contracts are valid.[95] The wife may in some states mortgage her separate property to secure her husband's debts.[96] It is held in Georgia that while a wife cannot bind her separate estate by any contract of suretyship, nor by any assumption of the debts of her husband, nor sell her property in extinguishment of his indebtedness,[97] yet her vol-

inconsistent with an independent contract between the wife and the landlord for special services to be rendered by her for him. Kennedy v. Swisher, 34 Ind. App. 676, 73 N. E. 724. Whether the wife in fact rendered certain services to the landlord in his illness under such an independent contract, or as part of her services as housekeeper for her husband, held, a question of fact for the jury. Id. Where a son contracts with his father to care for him in return for use of his farm, the son's wife cannot recover from the father's estate for services rendered as a part of household duties owed to her husband, but may recover for extra services performed during the father's illness, and rendered necessary by his weakness (wife being entitled to her separate earnings). Durr v. Durr, 26 Ky. L. R. 855, 82 S. W. 581. Wife of lessee of farm on shares cannot recover from owner for manual labor done on the farm for her husband, while the family relation existed, especially where she did not at the time expect compensation. Rathbone v. Rathbone, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 297.

88. Proof that proceeds of married woman's note were used to send sick son to warmer climate does not rebut presumption of validity of note, as such use might be use for necessaries. Children's Aid Soc. v. Benford, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 555.

89. Contract by wife with another to care for herself and husband unenforceable against wife's separate estate. In re Breed's Estate [Wis.] 103 N. W. 271.

90. Evidence sufficient to show abandonment under Code, § 1832. Vandiford v. Humphrey [N. C.] 51 S. E. 893.

91. Deed of land by wife alone, given for her support, held valid, though made before abandonment had become ground of divorce. Vandiford v. Humphrey [N. C.] 51 S. E. 893.

92. In action on promissory note of married woman, burden is on defendant to prove the contract was one prohibited by the Act of 1887. Children's Aid Soc. v. Benford, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 555.

93. See 3 C. L. 1682.

94. By Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 6964, a married woman's contract of suretyship is void as to her. Davis v. Neighbors, 34 Ind. App. 441, 73 N. E. 151. A mortgage executed by husband and wife upon realty owned by them as tenants by the entireties, to secure the individual indebtedness of the husband, is voidable not only as to the wife but as to the husband as well. Id. Under Act June 8, 1893, wife's contract of suretyship for husband would be void. Algeo v. Fries, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 427. Wife cannot become surety; but burden is on one attacking a prima facie valid judgment against her to show she was a surety. Wilson v. Fitzgerald, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 633. A married woman cannot bind herself for the debt or default of another except by deed or mortgage. Hazelton Nat. Bank v. Kintz, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 456. Under Act June 8, 1893 (P. L. 344), a married woman may not become a guarantor or surety for another, and where the real object of a contract or transaction is to make her a surety for her husband, her liability is not enforceable, no matter what form the obligation takes, it being a mere device to evade the statute. Sibley v. Robertson [Pa.] 61 A. 426. Hence evidence tending to show an attempt to evade the statute is admissible in an action to enforce the wife's liability. Id.

95. A note executed in Illinois by a married woman as surety, she being domiciled in that state, and married women being permitted to make contracts of suretyship in that state, is enforceable in Indiana, where payable, though the statute of Indiana prohibits contracts of suretyship by married women. Garrigue v. Keller [Ind.] 74 N. E. 523.

96. In Texas, a married woman may, if joined by her husband, mortgage her property for any purpose, even to secure his personal debts. De Barrera v. Frost [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 593, 88 S. W. 476. In Arkansas a married woman may mortgage her separate property to secure her husband's debts, and if called upon to pay such debts, her husband being declared a bankrupt, she is entitled under the bankruptcy act to be subrogated to the rights of the creditor against the estate. In re Carter, 138 F. 846.

untary contract, by which she borrows money and gives her note and a mortgage on her property to secure payment, is enforceable against her, though the person with whom she contracts may know that she intends to use the borrowed money for her husband's benefit.[98] But this rule does not make her liable on a contract based on a mere colorable transaction, to which the lender is a party, the purpose of which is to make the wife her husband's surety.[99] In Kentucky, the statute expressly provides how a married woman may charge her estate as the surety of another, and unless the statutory method is followed, she is not bound.[1]

Whether a married woman is to be considered a principal or surety depends upon whether or not she or her estate receives the consideration on which the contract rests, and not on the form of the contract.[2] When husband and wife join in the execution of an obligation, they are prima facie joint debtors; there is no presumption that one is a surety for the other.[3] Where a trust deed of the wife's separate property is given to secure the husband's notes, the property becomes a surety for so much of the sum advanced as represents the individual or separate debt of the husband, but becomes primarily liable for such sums as are expended for the benefit of the wife's separate property.[4] An extension of the indebtedness by the husband alone discharges the wife's land to the extent that it stands as surety;[5] but does not discharge it as to the portion of the debt for which it is primarily liable.[6] Insolvency of the husband does not change the rule that an extension of an indebtedness by him alone discharges her property which stands as surety for the debt.[7]

(§ 7) D. Conveyances, mortgages, contracts to convey, powers.[8]—Under the modern married women's acts, a wife may convey[9] or contract to sell her separate property,[10] or give a trust deed thereof to secure her debts.[11] She may also, by contract, subject her property to an equitable lien.[12] Where the statute requires the

97, 98, 99. Johnson v. Leffler Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 488.

1. Wife's separate estate not bound where she merely signed her husband's note as surety. Bowron v. Curd [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1106.

2. Wife held surety where husband received all the consideration. Davis v. Neighbors, 34 Ind. App. 441, 73 N. E. 151. Where a wife, in order to obtain a loan on land legal title to which is in her husband, obligates herself to pay a judgment against him to which his apparent interest is subject, and thereby secures a release of the apparent incumbrance on the land, her obligation, even though the husband had no real interest in the land, was not invalid because an agreement to pay the debt of her husband nor was it without consideration. Atlanta Suburban Land Corp. v. Austin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 124. Where legal title to property is in the husband, and husband and wife join in a mortgage to secure a note given by him, and the wife claims ownership of the property under an antenuptial contract, and that she is a surety and has been released by an extension of the time of payment without her consent, she must show that the mortgagee had notice of her ownership and suretyship, in order to have the property treated as surety. Creighton v. Crane [Neb.] 103 N. W. 284.

3. Algeo v. Fries, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 427.

4, 5. De Barrera v. Frost [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 593, 88 S. W. 476.

6. As for sums paid for taxes on the land, and the debt subject to which the wife originally acquired the land. De Barrera v. Frost [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 593, 88 S. W. 476.

7. De Barrera v. Frost [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 593, 88 S. W. 476.

8. See 3 C. L. 1684.

9. In South Carolina, since the constitution of 1868, a married woman has power to convey her realty, though the consideration be payment—not security—of her husband's debts. Bowen v. Day [S. C.] 51 S. E. 274.

10. A married woman may make a valid contract for the sale of her separate land, enforceable against her in equity, notwithstanding Code 1887, § 2502, providing that contracts of married women and their husbands may convey all the wife's interest, but that she shall not be bound by warranties therein, except those referring to her separate property. Dunn v. Stowers [Va.] 51 S. E. 366.

11. Act of 1887, giving married women power to alienate their lands with the assent and concurrence of their husbands, as evidenced by their joining in the conveyance, gave them power to give deeds of trust to secure their debts. Collier v. Doe [Ala.] 38 So. 244.

12. A court of equity may establish a lien on a married woman's separate estate, though based on a defective instrument. Adams v. Schmidtt [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 345. Contract to establish married woman's title to certain property was not executed by husband to join the wife in contracts relating to her realty, such joinder is essential to the validity of the contract,[13] in the absence of special circumstances.[14] Statutory requirements relating to the execution of married women's deeds must be complied with.[15] A woman who innocently contracts a marriage with a man who is already married has, so long as she acts innocently, all the property rights of a lawful wife, and hence may transfer her separate property, her husband joining, even though she is an infant at the time of such transfer.[16]

(§ 7) E. Rights of creditors. Of wife.[17]—The wife's separate property may be reached by her creditors under contracts respecting it authorized by law.[18] In some states her separate property is subject to a judgment for tort rendered against her.[19] In Maryland, a deed of trust by a husband and wife to pay all creditors of both conveys the separate property of each as well as their joint estates.[20] In Tennessee, a married woman's general estate may be subjected to payment of a judgment against her.[21]

Of husband.[22]—Liability of the wife for a debt of the husband is determined by the law of the place where the indebtedness was created.[23] But the only exemptions to which a married woman is entitled, if she be a debtor, are those given by the statutes of the state where she resides and is sued.[24] The wife's separate property is not subject to the husband's debts.[25] But if she allows the husband to use her husband, nor was wife at the time living separate and apart. Contract assigned an interest in recovery to attorney. Held, attorney had an equity, in connection with establishment of legal title, and a court of equity would give him a lien. Id. A married woman who employs attorneys to procure a divorce has power to agree to execute a trust deed on certain realty, provided the title thereto is vested in her by the divorce decree, to secure a note given by her as compensation for their services. Patrick v. Morrow [Colo.] 81 P. 242. Such contract creates an equitable lien on the property, which attaches when title vests in her (Id.), and which is not defeated by a subsequent homestead claim. Id. Under Mill's Ann. St. § 2137, permitting the owner of a homestead to voluntarily mortgage it, entry of word "homestead" on divorce decree in clerk and recorder's office did not affect lien. Id.

13. Under Ky. St. 1903, §§ 506, 2128, husband must join, or must have first conveyed by separate instrument, otherwise wife's deed is void. Furnish's Adm'r v. Lilly [Ky.] 84 S. W. 734. Where the statute requires the husband to join in a duly acknowledged deed of the wife's separate realty, she has no power to make a parol gift thereof. Tannery v. McMinn [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 640. A married woman's assignment of a certificate of purchase from the receiver of the land office, in 1858, was of no force, since at that time a married woman could not contract with reference to her property without joining her husband. Bland v. Windsor, 187 Mo. 108, 86 S. W. 162.

14. Where the husband is a nonresident, a deed of trust by the wife to secure her debts is valid, under the act of 1887, though he does not join therein. Collier v. Doe [Ala.] 38 So. 244. Since under Gen. St. 1902, § 591, an action may be maintained against a married woman for breach of her covenants in a lease of her own land, in which her husband does not join, such a lease will not be treated as void, especially where the husband by joining in a subsequent deed in which the lease is excepted from the covenants, evidences his election to treat the lease as valid. Winestine v. Ziglatzki-Marks Co., 77 Conn. 404, 59 A. 496. Under Gen. St. 1902, § 4042, declaring void conveyances by one ousted of possession, unless to the disseisor, where a married woman who has issue gives a lease of her land without joining her husband, and the lessee takes possession, and thereafter the husband and wife join in a deed of the land to another, the deed will be construed as conveying the reversion, but not the right of entry. Id.

15. In South Dakota, a married woman must acknowledge an instrument on a private examination, apart from her husband. Certificate reciting acknowledgment of deed on "a separate examination apart from" the husband, held to show sufficient compliance with Laws 1865-66, p. 95, § 521. Timber v. Desparois [S. D.] 101 N. W. 879.

16. Since marriage removes disability of minority. Barkley v. Dumke [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 242, 87 S. W. 1147.

17. See 3 C. L. 1681.

18. See ante, § 7 B.

19. Magerstadt v. Lambert [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 410, 87 S. W. 1068. See post, § 8.

20. Wife's separate property conveyed. Roberts v. Roberts [Md.] 62 A. 161.

21. Plaintiff obtained judgments against a husband and wife and executions were returned unsatisfied. Meantime the husband and wife gave a deed of trust of the wife's general estate to secure other debts. Held, that plaintiff could maintain suit to have the property sold to satisfy the lien of the trust deed and to have the surplus applied to payment of his executions. Piano Mfg. Co. v. Schell [Tenn.] 84 S. W. 807.

22. See 3 C. L. 1685.

23, 24. Clark v. Eltinge [Wash.] 80 P. 556.

25. Property in husband's hands belonging to wife cannot be taken for his debts. Magerstadt v. Schaefer, 110 Ill. App. 166.

property as his own, she cannot claim it as against creditors who have dealt with him as apparent owner, without notice of her rights.[26] This rule does not prevent her from claiming property paid for with her funds, title to which is placed in the husband without her knowledge or consent.[27] A married woman may make her husband her agent for the management of her property without thereby subjecting it to claims of his creditors,[28] and she is entitled, as against such creditors, to any increase in rents and profits or enhancement of the value of her property due to any reasonable contribution of his time, labor, or skill, in the course of his management;[29] but she cannot, under the guise of an agency, appropriate to herself, the results of the time, labor and skill of her husband to the exclusion of his creditors.[30] Property acquired by the wife subsequent to the extension of credit to her husband is not in any case liable for his debt.[31] The burden is upon a wife, claiming property against her husband's creditors, to prove that property claimed was in fact paid for out of her separate estate.[32]

In Montana, an inventory of the wife's separate property, filed in the county clerk's office, is prima facie evidence of her title and notice thereof to the world.[33] But the filing of such inventory is necessary to protect her property against her husband's debts only when it is in his exclusive possession, and his creditors deal with him on the credit of such property and without notice of her rights.[34] In Mississippi, business done by a husband with his wife's means is deemed to be on her account and for her use in the absence of a special contract to the contrary.[35] Hence

26. Wife who permits property belonging to her to pass under control of her husband cannot assert her ownership as against a trustee in bankruptcy. In re Hemstreet, 139 F. 958. When a wife allows her husband to use her money as his own, and to purchase property with it in his own name, and to obtain credit on the faith of his ownership, she will not be allowed to claim the property as against his creditors. Davis v. Yonge [Ark.] 85 S. W. 90. If a creditor receives money from the husband in payment of a pre-existing debt, without notice of the wife's ownership of the money paid over, the wife cannot compel the creditor to account. Tanner v. Lee, 121 Ga. 524, 49 S. E. 592. If a wife vests her property in her husband and permits him to appear to the world to be the owner thereof, and he contracts debts in the course of business while apparently such owner, she is estopped to deny as against his creditors, that he was the owner. Mertens v. Schlemme [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 808. Hence husband's creditors may reach personalty bought by the wife with proceeds of realty apparently owned by the husband. Id.

27. As between a wife and her husband's creditors, she is entitled to a resulting trust in property taken in his name without her knowledge to the extent of her contribution from her separate property to the purchase price, and her expenditures for repairs, etc., in excess of her proportionate share thereof. Mayer v. Kane [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 374.

28. Torrey v. Dickinson, 213 Ill. 36, 72 N. E. 703; Magerstadt v. Schaefer, 110 Ill, App. 166; Id., 213 Ill. 351, 72 N. E. 1063; Gibson v. Kimmit, 113 Ill. App. 611. Whether husband carried on business as his own or as wife's manager held a question of fact. Magerstadt v. Schaefer, 110 Ill. App. 166. Stock owned by wife but registered in husband's name, not subject to his debts, judgments against him having been rendered before organization of corporations in which wife owned such stock. Id., 213 Ill. 351, 72 N. E. 1063.

29. Sharp v. Fitzhugh [Ark.] 88 S. W. 929. Husband may perform ordinary and reasonable services for wife without compensation, and creditors cannot complain. Torrey v. Dickinson, 213 Ill. 36, 72 N. E. 703. Legitimate increase and growth of an investment of wife's property belongs to her, though investment is managed by her husband. Magerstadt v. Schaefer, 110 Ill. App. 166. Where husband and wife reside on land held by the wife under an executory contract of sale, which requires the wife to farm the land, the fact that the husband devotes his time and labor to the cultivation of the land does not prove that he has any interest in the crop so that mortgage thereon by him will create a lien. Thurston v. Osborne-McMillan Elevator Co. [N. D.] 101 N. W. 892.

30. Torrey v. Dickinson, 213 Ill. 36, 72 N. E. 703.

31. Chan v. Slater [Mont.] 82 P. 657.

32. Such claim must be established by clear and full proof. Rhinesmith's Case, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 300. Where the husband manages his own and his wife's lands, and mingles the products, the burden is upon the wife, as between her and her husband's creditors, to show the amount of profits from her own land, and the manner in which it was expended. Sharp v. Fitzhugh [Ark.] 88 S. W. 929.

33. Civ. Code, div. 1, pt. 3, tit. 1, c. 3, §§ 221, 222. Chan v. Slater [Mont.] 82 P. 657.

34. Chan v. Slater [Mont.] 82 P. 657.

35. Code 1892, § 2293. Dean v. Boyd [Miss.] 38 So. 297.

the husband may subject crops raised on the wife's land to the payment of supplies used thereon.[36] A creditor who furnishes supplies to a husband for use on the wife's plantation does not, by taking security on property of the husband, waive his statutory right to proceed against the cotton raised on the plantation,[37] nor rights under a trust deed covering such cotton.[38]

The claim of a married woman against the estate of her insolvent husband stands on the same footing as the claim of any other creditor, and unless fraud is alleged, she need not prove absence thereof.[39] A wife does not become a preferred creditor of her husband by transferring to him property to hold as trustee and account to her for the proceeds, such agreement being private.[40] As against creditors, the wife of a bankrupt cannot prove against the estate a claim for wages earned by her while employed by him in his business.[41] Where a married woman, without request by her husband, but solely to protect her homestead interest, pays off an incumbrance on property given to secure the husband's debt, legal title to the property being in him, she is subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee.[42] But this does not give her the right to enforce a claim for the money advanced by her against general assets of her husband's estate.[43] A widow cannot be subrogated to the lien of a mortgage discharged in part with her separate means, in the absence of evidence showing a loan or gift to her husband intended or expected to be paid on the mortgage debt.[44]

Fraudulent conveyances.[45]—A conveyance to the wife of property used by the husband as his own, legal title standing in his name, is prima facie fraudulent as to his creditors,[46] and the burden is upon the husband and wife to show a consideration and want of fraud.[47] The relinquishment of dower and homestead rights on the part of the wife, on a sale of land by her husband, is a sufficient consideration to support a reasonable settlement upon her out of the proceeds of the sale.[48] Where land is purchased with the wife's funds, title being taken by the husband, a conveyance by husband and wife to a third person to prevent seizure of the property for the husband's debts is not a conveyance in fraud of creditors.[49] Creditors of the husband cannot complain of the conveyance of the homestead to the wife, even if it was bought with the husband's own funds.[50]

36. Cotton liable for supplies. Dean v. Boyd [Miss.] 38 So. 297.

37. Right given by Code 1892, § 2293 not waived. Dean v. Boyd [Miss.] 38 So. 297.

38. Dean v. Boyd [Miss.] 38 So. 297.

39. First Nat. Bank v. Harris, 56 W. Va. 345, 49 S. E. 252.

40. Mertens v. Schlemme [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 808.

41. Neither the common law nor Wis. Rev. St. 1898, § 2343, giving wife her separate earnings, authorizes such claim. In re Winkels, 132 F. 590.

42. She has right to foreclose or trace proceeds of property and enforce equitable lien thereon. Charmley v. Charmley [Wis.] 103 N. W. 1106.

43. Charmley v. Charmley [Wis.] 103 N. W. 1106.

44. Hickey v. Conine, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 321, afg. 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 209.

45. See 3 C. L. 1685.

46. Tarrey v. Dickinson, 213 Ill. 36, 72 N. E. 703.

47. Where a conveyance from a husband to a wife is attacked, the burden is upon them to show that there was an adequate consideration out of her separate property. Ilfeld v. De Bacca [N. M.] 79 P. 723. Where husband held legal title and managed property, and his skill and experience caused its increase, conveyances of it to his wife would be set aside at the suit of creditors, though the wife claimed that her property was used, where, except as to a few tracts clearly proved to belong to her, the evidence of her ownership and share in the business was unsatisfactory. Torrey v. Dickinson, 213 Ill. 36, 72 N. E. 703; rvg. 111 Ill. App. 524. Evidence held sufficient to show a promise by the husband to reimburse wife for advances from her parents for family use, hence wife had good claim against husband and conveyance to her was not voluntary; nor did evidence show fraud, as against creditors, though husband was insolvent at the time. Clark Bros. v. Ford, 126 Iowa, 460, 102 N. W. 421.

48. Sale brought $5,000 and $400 was invested for the wife. Held reasonable, and, husband not being insolvent, conveyance was not in fraud of creditors. Davis v. Yonge [Ark.] 85 S. W. 90.

49. Matador Land & Cattle Co. v. Cooper [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 348, 87 S. W. 235.

50. Sharp v. Fitzhugh [Ark.] 88 S. W. 929. A homestead, being exempt from attachment

(§ 7) F. Estoppel.[51]—Some courts hold that a married woman cannot be estopped by her conduct, unless she has been guilty of some act of fraud.[52] It is generally held that she cannot be estopped to deny liabilities which she cannot legally incur by voluntary contract.[53] But the doctrine of estoppel is frequently applied to married women,[54] especially in regard to matters wherein they are by law given full contractual rights.[55]

§ 8. Torts by husband or wife or both.[56]—The husband is liable for a tort committed by his wife while acting as his agent.[57] Statements by the wife in her husband's absence are inadmissible in a libel suit against him to show his alleged malice.[58] The wife is jointly liable with her husband for torts committed by her,[59] and her separate property may be subjected to a judgment rendered against her for her tort.[60]

§ 9. Torts against husband or wife or both. A. Wrongs to the person.[61]—For injuries to a married woman, two actions may lie: one by her to recover for damages resulting to her;[62] and one by the husband for loss of her services or society, and for expense resulting from her injury.[63] In some states, in an action by a wife to recover damages for personal injuries sustained by her, she may or may not, at her election, join her husband as co-plaintiff.[64] In an action by the husband, the or execution, a conveyance thereof by the husband to the wife is not fraudulent as to creditors of the husband. Homestead of 160 acres, subject to mortgage, held not over $1,500 in value and hence exempt under Rev. St. 1899, § 3616. Reed Bros. v. Nicholson [Mo.] 88 S. W. 71.

51. Estoppel as against creditors, see ante § 7 E. See, also, title Estoppel, 5 C. L. 1285.

52. Harle v. Texas Southern R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1048. To estop a married woman from asserting rights to land, she must have been guilty of some positive act of fraud, or of an act of concealment or suppression which in law would be equivalent thereto, which act, representation or concealment was intended to cause another to alter his position or condition, and has actually had that effect. Matador Land & Cattle Co. v. Cooper [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 348, 87 S. W. 235. A married woman cannot lose her land, whether her separate estate or not, by estoppel in pais without actual fraud, if even by it. Yock v. Mann [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 1019.

53. Married woman cannot be estopped by parol agreement to an encroachment on her land. Gilbert v. White, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 187. A married woman who employed an attorney to procure title to land before the act of 1889, giving married women the right to contract, did not become liable on her contract by retaining title to the land procured after the passage of the act. Dempsey v. Wells [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 1015. A married woman cannot be estopped to claim the benefit of the Indiana statute prohibiting contracts of suretyship by married women, by her affidavit that a debt for which she gave security was a joint debt of herself and husband. Davis v. Neighbors, 34 Ind. App. 441, 73 N. E. 151. Where, under statute, married woman can transfer land only by duly acknowledged deed in which her husband joins, she cannot be estopped to assert invalidity of a parol gift, even though her donee had placed valuable improvements on the land on the faith of the gift. Tannery v. McMinn [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 640.

54. Where husband took title to land in his own name and gave a judgment note therefor, and afterwards gave two mortgages thereon, all with wife's knowledge, she was estopped to claim in foreclosure proceedings 16 years later that she paid for the land, title being taken in her husband's name by mistake. Duncansville Bldg. & Loan Assn. v. Ginter, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 42.

55. Under Comp. St. Neb. 1903, c. 53, § 2, giving married women the same rights as to their separate property as married men have, a married woman who joins her husband in a mortgage of realty in which she has a vested life estate is estopped by covenants of warranty in the mortgage to deny that an after-acquired title inures to the mortgagee's benefit. Cooper v. Burns, 133 F. 398.

56. See 3 C. L. 1686.

57. McNemar v. Cohn, 115 Ill. App. 31.

58. Konkle v. Haven [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 234, 103 N. W. 850.

59, 60. Magerstadt v. Lambert [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 410, 87 S. W. 1068.

61. See 3 C. L. 1686.

62. Chicago & M. Elec. R. Co. v. Krempel, 116 Ill. App. 253. Within the meaning of Act La. No. 68, p. 95 of 1902, amending Rev. Civ. Code 1870, art. 2402, providing that damages for personal injuries to the wife shall be her separate property and not a part of the community, injuries to character and mental suffering resulting from a libel are personal injuries for which the wife may sue. Times-Democrat Pub. Co. v. Mozee [C. C. A.] 136 F. 761.

63. Declaration held to state cause of action for husband. Chicago & M. Elec. R. Co. v. Krempel, 116 Ill. App. 253. Code 1896, § 2521 does not prevent recovery for loss of consortium. Birmingham So. R. Co. v. Lintner [Ala.] 38 So. 363. Evidence is admissible to show that wife was still suffering from injuries at time of trial. Id.

64. This is West Virginia rule. Normile marriage must be proved as a fact.[65] He may recover for loss of services and consortium without proof of their pecuniary value.[66] There can be no recovery for loss of services subsequent to the time of the trial, when there is no evidence as to future consequences of her injury.[67] A husband may properly join in one complaint, and in one count thereof, claims for damages resulting from injuries to his wife, and for damages to his property, all resulting from the single wrongful act of defendant.[68] A settlement by the wife, approved by the husband, bars recovery by him.[69]

The wife, in a suit by her, may recover the cost of medical attendance contracted for by her,[70] and for loss resulting from inability to attend to her own business affairs;[71] she cannot recover for time lost from her household duties and inability to perform them.[72]

Presentation by the wife alone of a claim for damages against a municipality for personal injuries sustained by her is sufficient to enable husband and wife to prosecute an action on such claim.[73]

(§ 9) B. Criminal conversation and alienation of affections.[74]—The right of a wife to the conjugal society and affection of her husband is a valuable property, for an injury to which she may maintain an action for damages in her own name.[75] Where, in a suit by the wife for alienation of her husband's affections, the husband intervenes and sets up a contract whereby the wife agrees to release all claims against others for alienating his affections, such contract being valid on its face, the wife will not be permitted to show that the contract was void as against public

v. Wheeling Traction Co. [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 1030.

Note: "At common law the action to recover damages for personal injuries to the wife must be brought in the names of the husband and wife jointly, the cause of action being in the wife, and surviving to her in case of the death of the husband; but this common-law rule has in a large measure been abrogated by the various married woman's acts. A married woman is allowed to sue in her own name to recover damages for personal injuries to herself, where the ground of the action is her injury and suffering; and also the same rule applies in actions concerning her separate property; but in a few of the states the common-law rule in this respect has not been altered, and the wife is still required to join her husband as co-plaintiff. And, in most of the states where the common-law rule has been abrogated by permitting the wife to sue alone for personal injuries, it is held to be imperative, depriving the husband of any interest in the suit, and forbidding his joining therein; but in many of the states the statute is deemed permissive, and merely allows the wife to either sue alone or join her husband, at her election. Palmer v. Davis, 28 N. Y. 242; Draper v. Stouvenel, 35 N. Y. 507; Whidden v. Coleman, 47 N. H. 297; Cooper v. Alger, 51 N. H. 172; Corcoran v. Doll, 32 Cal. 82; Reinheimer v. Carter, 31 Ohio St. 579; Kennedy v. Williams, 11 Minn. 314 (Gil. 219); Gee v. Lewis, 20 Ind. 149; Kramer v. Conger, 16 Iowa, 434; Norval v. Rice, 2 Wis. 22; Barr v. White, 22 Md. 259."—From opinion in Normile v. Wheeling Traction Co. [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 1031.

65. Tozier v. Haverhill & A. St. R. Co., 187 Mass. 179, 72 N. E. 953.

66. Value of wife's services need not be alleged or proved. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Jackson [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 445. A husband may recover compensation for the loss of the aid, society and comfort of his wife, injured by another's negligence, without proof of the pecuniary value of her aid, comfort and society. Reagan v. Harlan, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 27.

67. Birmingham So. R. Co. v. Lintner [Ala.] 38 So. 363.

68. Wife being injured in collision between engine and buggy, claims for damages to horse, buggy and harness were properly joined with claims for loss of wife's services and society, and medical expense. Birmingham So. R. Co. v. Lintner [Ala.] 38 So. 363.

69. Where wife settled claim for personal injuries and secured payment of doctor's and nurse's bill, and husband approved settlement, he could not thereafter sue for loss of wife's services, not having returned payments made. Savory v. North East Borough, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 1.

70. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4335, giving married women power to contract on their own behalf. Ashby v. Elsberry & N. H. Gravel Road Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 957.

71. Normile v. Wheeling Traction Co. [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 1030.

72. Newell v. St. Louis Transit Co., 108 Mo. App. 530, 84 S. W. 195.

73. Under Seattle City charter, art. 4, § 29. Davis v. Seattle, 37 Wash. 223, 79 P. 784.

74. See 3 C. L. 1686.

75. Noxon v. Remington [Conn.] 61 A. 963. Where a married woman has a right to sue alone, she may maintain an action for the alienation of her husband's affections. Gregg v. Gregg [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 674. Divorced wife may sue former mother-in-law for alienation of husband's affections. Id.

policy, and thus enabled to take advantage of her own wrong.[76] In a suit by the husband for alienation of his wife's affections, proof that plaintiff's wife was a prostitute both before and after her marriage is no defense unless knowledge of and consent to the wife's misconduct by the husband is shown.[77] That the husband watched his wife and left opportunities for misconduct in order to test her does not show consent to her misconduct.[78]

Pleading and proof.[79]—Where the action is against the parent of the alienated spouse, the complaint should allege that the acts charged were done maliciously, since the presumption is that a parent acts for the best interest of the child.[80] Circumstances in mitigation of damages must be specially pleaded.[81] When a conspiracy to alienate the affections of one of the spouses is charged, a conspiracy, cooperation or concert of action between the defendants must be proved.[82]

Evidence.[83]—Evidence tending to show that separation or alienation of affections was due to causes other than that alleged is admissible.[84] Evidence tending to show unhappy relations and want of affection between the spouses prior to defendant's interference is admissible in mitigation of damages.[85]

Damages.[86]—An action by a husband for alienation of his wife's affections is based on the loss of the consortium; loss of services is only one element of damage and is not essential to maintenance of the action.[87] In a suit by the wife for alienation of the husband's affections, she may recover for any losses which are of such a character that damages therefor are assessable by a jury.[88] Exemplary damages are also recoverable in a proper case.[89]

§ 10. Remedies and procedure generally as affected by coverture.[90]—The effect of the marriage relation on the competency of the parties thereto as witnesses is fully treated elsewhere.[91]

Right of action; parties.[92]—The right of action for injuries to the wife has been already treated.[93] In many states married women may now sue alone to enforce rights relating to their separate property.[94] A married woman may sue alone

76. Wife wished to show contract was pursuant to an agreement to withdraw certain charges in a divorce suit and substitute the charge of cruelty, the husband agreeing to make no defense. McAllen v. Hodge [Minn.] 102 N .W. 707.

77, 78. Frank v. Berry [Iowa] 103 N. W. 358.

79. See 3 C. L. 1687.

80. Gregg v. Gregg [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 674.

81. Defendant could not show that character of plaintiff's wife was bad before marriage, not having pleaded that issue. Frank v. Berry [Iowa] 103 N. W. 358.

82. Leavell v. Leavell [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 55.

83. See 3 C. L. 1687.

84. Humphrey v. Pope [Cal. App.] 82 P. 223. Evidence that plaintiff had $600 when married and had expended all but $40 in 2 1-2 years to support the wife, was admissible to show proper support, or to show that wife left because husband's money was gone and not on account of defendant. Frank v. Berry [Iowa] 103 N. W. 358.

85. Humphrey v. Pope [Cal. App.] 82 P. 223.

86. See 3 C. L. 1687.

87. Gregg v. Gregg [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 674.

88. Gregg v. Gregg [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 674. In fixing the amount of damages, the jury may consider loss of her husband's society and affection and of his support and protection, and the injury to her feelings caused by defendant's acts. Noxon v. Remington [Conn.] 61 A. 963. Instruction proper which confined damages to "what shall fairly seem pecuniary loss of plaintiff." Humphrey v. Pope [Cal. App.] 82 P. 223.

89. Gregg v. Gregg [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 674; Leavell v. Leavell [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 55.

90. See 3 C. L. 1688.

91. See Witnesses, 4 C. L. 1956.

92. See 3 C. L. 1688.

93. See preceding section and note thereunder.

94. Since under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 255, a married woman may sue alone where the action concerns her separate property, where a wife owned land on which her husband operated a quarry, she could join with him in an action to restrain flooding of the quarry. American Plate Glass Co. v. Nicoson, 34 Ind. App. 643, 73 N. E. 625. Prosecutrix in bastardy proceedings may sue in her own name, though married, on a bond given by defendant, the beneficial right therein being her sole and separate property within the meaning of Rev. St. 1898, § 2345. Meyer v. Meyer, 123 Wis. 538, 102 N. W. 52. A married woman made beneficiary in a in equity to establish a resulting trust in land, though her interest was acquired before the married women's act.[95] In Texas, a married woman cannot sue alone without alleging that her husband has failed or refused to sue for her or to join her in the suit.[96] In Kentucky, a deserted wife may bring or defend any action which her husband might bring or defend, with the same powers he would have.[97] In Washington, the wife may defend in all cases in which she is interested, whether sued with her husband or not.[98] In Louisiana, a married woman, though a minor, can, when aided and assisted by her husband, sue for the partition of property in which she is interested, without being authorized so to do by the judge, on the advice of a family meeting.[99]

A husband cannot sue to recover damages to his wife's separate property,[1] unless under a contract relating thereto made with him.[2] Where the husband, in the presence and with the consent of his wife, contracts for the construction of buildings on her land, he is entitled to sue in his own name for breach of the contract.[3]

Suits by one spouse against the other may be maintained on contracts between them,[4] or where their interests are adverse.[5] Thus, a husband may maintain a suit against his wife to settle property rights, and in such suit she has the same rights as any litigant would have.[6]

A valid judgment may be rendered against a married woman, though her husband is not made a party to the suit.[7]

Limitations.[8]—Where the disabilities of coverture have not been removed by policy of insurance on the husband's life may maintain an action for damages for wrongful forfeiture of the policy by the insurer without joining her husband since, under Rev. St. 1899, § 2347, the policy is her separate property. Merrick v. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 593. Nor are husband and wife so united in interest in such case as to necessitate such joinder under Rev. St. 1898, § 2604.

95. Prewitt v. Prewitt [Mo.] 87 S. W. 1000.

96. Trespass to try title cannot be maintained by married woman without such allegation. Parks v. Worthington [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 204, 87 S. W. 720.

97. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 34, subsec, 4, a deserted wife who intervenes in a suit, claiming homestead, may appeal from a judgment disallowing her claim. Stephens v. Stephens [Ky.] 85 S. W. 1093.

98. Where, in a replevin suit against a husband and wife, defendants answer jointly, alleging ownership, the wife, who has answered plaintiff's interrogatories, may defend, though a default judgment has been entered against the husband (construing 1 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4490; 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4827). Glass v. Buttner [Wash.] 81 P. 699. Hence judgment is properly entered against plaintiff where he fails to prove his case when called. Id.

99. Tobin v. United States Safe Deposit & Sav. Bank [La.] 39 So. 33.

1. Husband cannot, in action for injuries to personal property caused by explosion of gas meter in apartments, recover value of wife's wearing apparel, she being proper party to sue therefor. Gilligan v. Consolidated Gas Co., 94 N. Y. S. 273.

2. A husband may recover from a carrier for loss of and damage to his wife's separate property which was carried as a part of their common baggage. Withey v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 511, 104 N. W. 773.

3. As trustee of an express trust, or as agent for an undisclosed principal. Rev. St. 1899, § 541. Simons v. Wittmann [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 791.

4. In Nebraska the common-law disability of husbands and wives to maintain suits at law against each other upon contracts between them has been removed by statute. Trayer v. Setzer [Neb.] 101 N. W. 989.

5. In an action on a bond given in a bastardy proceeding, the defendant, husband of the prosecutrix, is an adverse party, and suit by the wife would be authorized by Rev. St. 1898, § 2608. Meyer v. Meyer, 123 Wis. 538, 102 N. W. 52.

6. Newman v. Newman [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 635.

7. Execution on such a judgment will not be enjoined. Church v. Gallic [Ark.] 88 S. W. 307.

8. See 3 C. L. 1688.

NOTE. Limitations as between husband and wife: "The statute of limitations does not apply as between a husband and wife as a general rule. Collins v. Babbitt [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 481; Burnham v. McMichael, 6 Tex. Civ. App. 496, 26 S. W. 887. In Gudden v. Gudden's Estate, 113 Wis. 297, 89 N. W. 111, it was said that limitations do not run against a wife as between herself and husband so as to bar her claim against his estate for money loaned to him. But limitations run from the death of one of the spouses. Gracie's Estate, 158 Pa. 521, 27 A. 1083."—From note to Hopkins v. Clyde [Ohio] 104 Am. St. Rep. 749.

statute, limitations do not run against married women;[9] but where they are given the right to sue as though unmarried, limitations run against them the same as in other cases,[10] in the absence of an express exception in the limitation statute.[11] Where adverse possession commences against a woman during her minority, limitation begins to run against her upon her marriage.[12] Though the statute of limitations does not, in Wisconsin, run against a wife as to a cause of action arising from a transaction between the husband and wife,[13] it does run against her on a cause of action not so arising, and upon which the limitation statute commenced to operate before the parties became adversaries in repect thereto.[14]

§ 11. Proceedings to compel support of wife.[15]—A suit by the wife to compel the husband to furnish separate support and maintenance,[16] or for alimony, without divorce,[17] are authorized by statute in most jurisdictions. To warrant a recovery in such a proceeding it must appear that the husband has deserted the wife[18] or that the wife is justified in living apart.[19] The spouse first repudiating marital obligations must show justification and freedom from fault.[20] That the parties have been divorced is, of course, a good defense to the action.[21] A judgment for de-

9. Title by adverse possession for seven years cannot be built up against a married woman. Land. & H. Dig. § 4815. Harvey v. Douglass [Ark.] 83 S. W. 946. Limitation did not run against married women in favor of a grantee claiming under deeds void because of non-joinder of husbands. Furnish's Adm'r v. Lilly [Ky.] 84 S. W. 734. Under Acts 1899, p. 209, c. 78, in an action commenced before ratification of that act by a married woman formerly protected against the limitation statute by Code, §§ 148, 163, where adverse possession is the defense, the time relied on to constitute such possession does not include possession against a married woman prior to the act. Gaskins v. Allen, 137 N. C. 426, 49 S. E. 919. Limitations can be established against married women only by proof that the statute commenced to run before their respective marriages, or that the bar has operated since the passage of the statute abolishing the disability of coverture. Broom v. Pearson [Tex.] 85 S. W. 790.

10. By Code, § 3155, a wife may maintain an action against her husband during coverture on a note given by him for a loan of money from her separate estate; hence limitations commenced to run on the note from the time the note was payable, and during his lifetime. In re Deaner's Estate, 126 Iowa, 701, 102 N. W. 825.

11. No exception in Code, § 3447. In re Deaner's Estate, 126 Iowa, 701, 102 N. W. 825.

12. Disabilities cannot be tacked. York v. Hutcheson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 895.

13. Charmley v. Charmley [Wis.] 103 N. W. 1106.

14. Where statute commenced to run against mortgagee's right to foreclose before wife paid off the mortgage to protect her homestead right, thus becoming subrogated to mortgagee's right, it was not suspended as to her rights, by her coverture; but such rights were barred 20 years after the mortgagee's right to foreclose accrued under Rev. St. 1898, § 4220. Charmley v. Charmley [Wis.] 103 N. W. 1106.

15. See 3 C. L. 1688.

16. Illinois. Harris v. Harris, 109 Ill. App. 148. Act March 13, 1903 (P. L. 26), making desertion by husband a misdemeanor, does not supersede Act April 13, 1867 (P. L. 78) to compel contribution by husband to support of wife and children. Commonwealth v. Mills, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 549.

17. Walker v. Walker[Iowa] 102 N. W. 435.

18. Evidence sufficient to show willful desertion by defendant in suit by wife for alimony. Walker v. Walker [Iowa] 102 N. W. 435.

19. Separate living of husband and wife will not be encouraged. Ross v. Ross, 109 Ill. App. 157. Wife justified in leaving husband where he called her vile names, accused her of unchastity, and abused her. Schoop v. Schoop, 115 Ill. App. 343. Mere incompatibility of temper, occasional outbreaks of temper, trivial differences, or slight moral obliquities do not justify separation. Ross v. Ross, 109 Ill. App. 157; Harris v. Harris, 109 Ill. App. 148. If husband's conduct is such as to endanger the wife's life, person or health, or such as will inevitably make her life miserable and life with him unbearable, and she herself is without fault, she is justified in living separate from him. Ross v. Ross, 109 Ill. App. 157. Statutory ground of divorce need not be shown by wife; course of conduct by husband necessarily rendering her life miserable is sufficient. Mellanson v. Mellanson, 113 Ill. App. 81. Wife having shown reasonable performance of her duty, the burden is on husband to show he left for reasonable cause. Bartlow v. Bartlow, 114 Ill. App. 604. The fact that the husband against his wife's wishes suffers the mother of his former wife to control the household affairs absolutely does not justify her living apart so that she can maintain a bill for separate support. Giese v. Giese, 107 Ill. App. 659. A wife may bar her right to a decree for separate maintenance by failure to perform her duties to her husband, or by misconduct on her part which contributes materially to the cause of separation. Harris v. Harris, 109 Ill. App. 148.

20. Chapman v. Chapman [Neb.] 104 N. W. 880.

21. No relief for wife, when it appeared parties were divorced, and she did not prove fendant in a suit by the wife for divorce on the ground of cruelty and habitual drunkenness is not res judicata of the issues in a suit by the wife for separate maintenance on the ground of desertion and neglect to support because of drunkenness.[22]

Procedure is largely statutory.[23] The usual rules as to pleadings apply.[24]

Relief obtainable.—It is usually held that a periodical allowance, and not a lump sum, should be awarded.[25] In determining the amount of an allowance the condition of the parties at the place of residence of the husband, and the circumstances of each case, are to be considered.[26] In Indiana, the court may authorize the wife to lease or mortgage the husband's realty and apply the proceeds to the payment of her allowance.[27] In an action under the Iowa statute for alimony, plaintiff may have a sale of land in fraud of her rights set aside, and a decree for separate maintenance made a lien on her husband's interest in such land.[28] Under the Indiana statute providing for the recovery of a penalty from one who fraudulently marries a woman he has wronged to escape a criminal prosecution, and thereafter abandons her, the determination of the amount of the penalty is solely for the trial judge, though the trial is by jury.[29]

Effect of decree.—Where a wife, in an action for maintenance, secures a decree for periodical payments by the husband, and thereafter the husband obtains a divorce and a decree terminating his payments at a certain date, but the wife is granted a new trial, in the divorce proceeding, the decree requiring payments for her maintenance remains in force.[30] In Massachusetts, an order of a probate court on a petition for separate maintenance is conclusive in a subsequent action for divorce on all issues actually heard and determined.[31]

§ 12. Crimes and criminal responsibility.[32]—Desertion or abandonment of the wife is a crime in some states.[33] An information which fails to charge that ac-the divorce granted was void. Bidwell v. Bidwell [N. C.] 52 S. E. 55.

22. Suit for maintenance under Burn's Ann. St. 1901, §§ 6977, 6978, not barred. Smith v. Smith [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1008.

23. Chancery court of New Jersey has no jurisdiction of a suit for support, by the wife, where neither party was a resident of the state when the bill was filed, and the matrimonial domicile was not in the state at the time of the neglect complained of. Divorce Act (P. L. 1902, p. 508, § 20, subd. 6. Dithmar v. Dithmar [N. J. Eq.) 59 A. 644. Under Divorce Act (P. L. 1902, p. 509) § 21, chancellor may in suit for support, on application before answer filed, order complainant to give a bond for costs. Id. In Illinois the right to a jury trial in a suit for separate maintenance is not absolute, but such trial may be granted or refused in the discretion of the court. Pike v. Pike, 112 Ill. App. 243. An allowance to enable the wife to prosecute the suit may be granted under some statutes. Illinois. Harris v. Harris, 109 Ill. App. 148. See, also, Alimony, 5 C. L. 101. All motions for allowances must, under the Illinois statute, be made in the wife's name, and must be made to her and not to parties whom she has employed. Harris v. Harris, 109 Ill. App. 148.

24. General allegation of desertion admits proof that desertion was without cause. Smith v. Smith [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1008. In suit for separate support by wife on ground of desertion and neglect because of drunkenness, a general denial by defendant will admit proof in denial of drunkenness, desertion and mistreatment and that plaintiff was living apart from defendant of her own will and without cause. Id.

25. Award of single sum, with execution thereon, improper. Chapman v. Chapman [Neb.] 104 N. W. 880. In absence of peculiar circumstances, award of lump sum is improper, under Civ. Code, §§ 137, 140. Kusel v. Kusel [Cal.] 8 P. 295. In suit for support under Burns' Ann. St. 1991, § 6979, court may properly order payment of a weekly allowance instead of a sum in gross. Smith v. Smith [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1008.

26. Harris v. Harris, 109 Ill. App. 148.

27. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 6980. Smith v. Smith [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1008.

28. Walker v. Walker [Iowa] 102 N. W. 435.

29. Construing Burn's Ann. St. 1901, §§ 7298a, 7298b, 7298c. State v. Richeson [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 846. The action of the trial court in giving judgment for a certain amount cannot be reviewed on a motion for a new trial. Id.

30. Smith v. Smith [Cal.] 81 P. 411.

31. Where bill for separation alleged lewd conduct of husband, but not adultery, and court found that wife was justified in living apart, but that there was no cause for permanent separation, the order granting separate maintenance did not bar wife's suit for divorce for adultery. Harrington v. Harrington [Mass.] 75 N. E. 632.

32. See 3 C. L. 1689. Criminal responsibility of husband for neglect of wife, see note, 3 C. L. 1689.

33. Act Mar. 13, 1903 (P. L. 26), making cused has willfully and without cause neglected and refused to maintain or provide for his wife is insufficient to charge wife desertion, under the Nebraska statute.[34] An information charging desertion of wife and child is not bad for duplicity, and a motion to require the state to elect on which charge it will prosecute will not lie.[35] The prosecution must be in the county where the parties resided at the time of their separation, and where the wife was still residing when the unlawful neglect or refusal of the husband to maintain and provide for her occurred, though the first act of separation occurred while the parties were temporarily in another county.[36] The state must prove that accused has means to support the wife and that he refuses without good cause to do so.[37] Whether the husband in fact neglected or refused to maintain or provide for the wife is for the jury, if the evidence is conflicting.[38] Evidence tending to show improprieties by the husband prior to the alleged desertion, and not connected therewith, is inadmissible.[39] The wife is a competent witness against the husband in a criminal proceeding against him for abandoning his family.[40]

In Illinois, a husband and wife cannot, between themselves only, be guilty of or indicted for conspiracy.[41]

A husband is competent to make an information charging his wife's paramour with adultery.[42]

Ice; Illegal Contracts; Immigration; Impairing Obligation of Contract; Impeachment, see latest topical index.

IMPLIED CONTRACTS.

This article treats only of the so-called quasi contracts implied in law. Contracts implied in fact, which are real contracts, are treated elsewhere.[43]

§ 1. Definitions and distinctions.[44]—Contracts may be implied in fact or in law. A quasi contract, or contract implied in law, exists independently of the intention of the parties and is founded upon the doctrine of unjust enrichment,[45] or desertion a misdemeanor, does not supersede proceeding to compel support under Act April 13, 1867 (P. L. 78). Commonwealth v. Mills, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 549.

34. Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 2375a. Goddard v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 443. Information must clearly state that both the abandonment and defendant's neglect or refusal to maintain and provide for his wife were without good cause. Cuthbertson v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1031.

35. Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 2375a. Goddard v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 443.

36. Cuthbertson v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1031.

37. Must prove he has property or earning capacity. Goddard v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 443.

38, 39. Cuthbertson v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1031.

40. Under Acts 1903, p. 32. Wester v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 1010.

41. Being in law one. Merrill v. Marshall, 113 Ill. App. 447.

42. Commonwealth v. Barr, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 609.

43. See contracts, 5 C. L. 664.

44. See 3 C. L. 1690.

45. Dame v. Woods [N. H.] 60 A. 744. A quasi contract, or contract implied by law as distinguished from one implied in fact, is an obligation imposed by law on a person notwithstanding the absence of an intention on his part to assume it, and, in many cases, in spite of his actual dissent. Story v. McCormick [Kan.] 78 P. 819. An implied promise is not, in fact, a contract, but is a disputable legal presumption, raised on consideration of equity and custom. Fitzpatrick v. Dooley [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 719. In the case of services it may exist, even though the benefitted party had no intention to pay for them. (Id.); but when the relationship between the parties is such as to negative upon an obligation of record,[46] or one imposed by custom or statute.[47] A contract implied in fact exists where an intention to contract is inferred from the acts and conduct of the parties.[48] any presumption of an intent to pay, the right to remuneration depends on whether or not there was an understanding that the services were to be rewarded, which may be established by direct testimony or gleaned from the facts, the question being one of intention, and the promise not being one implied in law in the strict sense. (Id.). Implied contracts are such as reason and justice dictate, and which the law therefore presumes that every man undertakes to perform. Thalman v. Capron Knitting Co., 100 App. Div. 247, 91 N. Y. S. 520. An implied contract may arise from the wrongful taking and use of the property of another, in which case the owner may waive the tort and sue in assumpsit, and there is no meeting of the minds. Harley's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 105.

§ 2. Work and labor or services and material furnished.[49]—An express contract ordinarily excludes an implied one covering the same subject-matter, and hence one cannot recover on a quantum meruit for services rendered thereunder.[50] One suing on an express contract cannot recover on an implied one,[51] nor on a quantum meruit on proof of partial performance, though the proof may otherwise warrant it.[52]

46. See Recognizance, 4 C. L. 1253; Judgments, 4 C. L. 287.

47. See Penalties and Forfeitures, 4 C. L. 963, and topics dealing with the subject matter of the obligation.

48. Arises from a meeting of the parties resulting in a wordless agreement. Harley's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 105. Ordinarily there can be no implied contract without some agreement between the parties as to the subject-matter. To pay for good will of business. Acme Harvester Co. v. Craver, 110 Ill. App. 413. If such agreement is not formally expressed, may be presumed from facts and circumstances showing an intention. Id. Where plaintiff moved into a residence which had been connected with a water main, and annually paid the water company the required rental, held, that a contract would be implied between him and the company by virtue of which the latter undertakes to supply him with water sufficient for the ordinary purposes for which he has used it. Whitehouse v. Staten Island Water Supply Co., 101 App. Div. 112, 91 N. Y. S. 544. Contract was not to supply water at junction of service pipe with the main but to supply it at his house and to continue service as it had been rendered, and company was not excused because house was on an eminence so that the pressure was insufficient to cause the water to flow thereto. Id.

49. See 3 C. L. 1690.

50. Evidence as to the value of extra work not covered by the contract sued on inadmissible. Merriner v. Jeppson, 19 Colo. App. 218, 74 P. 341. A contract to pay a director or officer of a corporation will not be implied as against the corporation in favor of one who continues to serve it after expiration of a term of employment. Alston Mfg. Co. v. Squair, 105 Ill. App. 238. Where substantial performance of a building contract is not found, the general rule that an express contract excludes an implied one covering the same subject controls. Burke v. Coyne [Mass.] 74 N. E. 942. One for whom services are rendered under an express contract is not liable therefor on an implied one. Grimm v. Barrington [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 357. Held that there was no implied contract to pay municipal employe extra compensation for overtime, but that, under the circumstances, he would be deemed to have rendered his services under an implied contract that his wages should cover any services in excess of a legal day's work. Grady v. New York [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 488, rvg. 100 App. Div. 515, 91 N. Y. S. 1096. One who has received and receipted for fixed wages for her services as domestic and nurse in the home of a decedent cannot, in an action against the latter's estate, recover compensation for alleged extra services in the absence of an express contract to that effect, or an agreement to provide for such compensation by a legacy. Grossman v. Thunder [Pa.] 61 A. 904. Services for nursing and otherwise caring for decedent during his lifetime held to have been rendered by plaintiff in pursuance of a contract entered into by her husband with him, so that she was not entitled to recover for them on a quantum meruit. Normile v. Osborne, 207 Pa. 367, 56 A. 937. One employed by a decedent at fixed wages as housekeeper cannot recover against his estate additional compensation for nursing in the absence of an express contract to that effect, or an agreement to provide for such compensation by a legacy. Piersol's Estate, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 204. Where an express contract as to the price to be paid for services is shown, there can be no implied contract to pay what they are reasonably worth. Express contract controls. O'Connell v. King, 26 R. I. 544, 59 A. 926. For services as broker rendered under valid contract. Shropshire v. Adams [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 448. Where jury found that work, labor and materials used in the construction of an electric railroad were furnished under a general authority to build the road, the recovery was not under a quantum meruit, and it was not error to admit evidence showing the amount actually expended for labor and materials. Radel v. Lesher, 137 F. 719. Issue as to whether construction of electric railroad was under express contract, or under general authority given by defendant which virtually made plaintiffs his agents, held properly submitted to the jury, where evidence as to conversation in which the arrangement was made was in direct conflict. Id.

51. See Contracts, 5 C. L. 664. For transportation of livestock. Evansville & T. H. R.

A quasi contract may have its origin in the part performance of a contract, the benefit conferred upon the defendant by the part performance and not the detriment incurred by the plaintiff being the basis of the recovery.[53] Thus one who has fallen short of full performance may nevertheless recover on a quantum meruit for any substantial benefit resulting to the other party,[54] and this rule has been applied in the case of improvements to the other party's property,[55] the sale of goods to him,[56] or work done for him.[57] So the innocent party may recover the reasonable value of his services where the other party repudiates the contract,[58] or prevents further performance,[59] or performance becomes impossible, where there is no guaranty of

Co. v. McKinney, 34 Ind. App. 402, 73 N. E. 148.

52. For services. Hunt v. Tuttle, 125 Iowa, 676, 101 N. W. 509. Suit by broker to recover commissions under contract by defendant to pay certain price if he obtained purchaser for entire tract of timber. Veatch v. Norman [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 350. Not without an amendment. Manning v. School Dist. No. 6 [Wis.] 102 N. W. 356.

53. Any liability to pay for partial performance not beneficial to defendant rests solely on the special contract between the parties. Dame v. Woods [N. H.] 60 A. 744. Where services are from their very nature accepted from day to day as the work progresses, person to whom they are rendered will be liable to pay the fair price and value of the benefits resulting from partial performance, over and above the amount of damage sustained by the breach. Id. Held, that plaintiff could not recover on theory of quasi contract, where building in which he had contracted to install heating plant was burned before he completed the work, it not appearing that materials could not have been reasonably removed for a reasonable sum had they not been destroyed. Id.

54. Cann v. Rector, etc., of Church of Redeemer [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 994.

55. Where a special contract is made for the erection of a building or other structure, and the contractor unintentionally fails to fully perform it by reason of unimportant variations, while he cannot recover on the contract itself, he may recover on an account annexed, for the value of the labor and materials, less any deductions necessary to complete the work, but not to exceed the stipulated price. Founded on doctrine that landowner should not be permited to avail himself of the added value to the property thus furnished without making just compensation. Burke v. Coyne [Mass.] 74 N. E. 942. Principle applies to petitions to enforce mechanics' liens where similar conditions are shown. Id. See, also, Building and Construction Contracts, 5 C. L. 455.

56. Complaint in action to recover purchase price of goods showing that plaintiffs had a lien on the goods before they were sold to defendant by the manufacturer, and that they abandoned such lien by allowing the goods to be delivered to defendants, who accepted them with knowledge of plaintiffs' relation to them and that they were entitled to the money to be paid therefor, held sufficient to raise the question of an implied promise by defendants to pay plaintiffs and was not demurrable for want of facts. Thalmann v. Capron Knitting Co., 100 App. Div. 247, 91 N. Y. S. 520.

57. Where defendant has breached contract for architects' services, fact that petition, alleging waiver of damages and asking only for reasonable value of what plaintiff has done, states the terms of the contract, does not make action one on the contract rather than on quantum meruit. Cann v. Rector, etc., of Church of Redeemer [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 994. Petition in action by architects could not be construed as one on quantum meruit. Id. Though plaintiff has not performed his contract in strict accordance with its terms, yet if defendant accepts and uses what he has done he is answerable for the benefit received under an implied promise to pay therefor. Woodford v. Kelley [S. D.] 101 N. W. 1069. Where plaintiffs contracted to cut, bail and deliver hay owned by defendant, but failed to dellver all of it through no fault of either party, plaintiff was entitled to the reasonable value of the benefits resulting to defendant, less any payments for their labor and less any damages for their failure to fully perform. Id. There being no evidence as to reasonable value of hauling part of the hay to a certain station, held error to allow contract price therefor. Id. An action on quantum meruit may be maintained to recover for labor and materials furnished under a contract not completed on time. Building contract. Plaintiff need not introduce contract. Stephens v. Phoenix Bridge Co. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 248.

58. See, also, Contracts, 5 C. L. 664. The refusal of an employer to pay an employe a share of the net profits of the business in accordance with the terms of the contract between them authorizes the employe to leave the service before the expiration of the contract period, and to collect the amount due him under the contract for the period of his actual employment. Evidence showed that employer did not object to his leaving. Dunn v. Crichfield, 214 Ill. 292, 73 N. E. 386. On repudiation of contract of agency. Agent also has right to sue for damages for breach. Richardson Machinery Co. v. Swartzel [Kan.] 79 P. 660. Guilty party will not be permitted to set up the contract to defeat his recovery. Id. Acts and conduct of defendant, and denial of plaintiff's right to any remuneration for digging well unless water was struck, held repudiation of contract authorizing suit. Poland v. Thomaston Face & Ornamental Brick Co. [Me.] 60 A. 795.

59. Cann v. Rector, etc., of Church of Redeemer [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 994. Where full performance is prevented by the act or default of the other party. Poland v. Thomaston Face & Ornamental Brick Co. [Me.] 60 A. 795. Contract price is the reasonable meas-performance.[60] One may also recover the reasonable value of services rendered, or materials furnished under an ultra vires contract,[61] or a contract void under the statute of frauds.[62] The law will not, however, imply a promise to pay for services which are in derogation of public policy,[63] and there can be no recovery on a quantum meruit for services rendered under an illegal contract which are themselves illegal.[64]

Persons incapable of contracting are liable under an implied promise to pay for necessaries.[65] A parent deprived of the custody, control, and services of his child is not liable to third persons for necessaries furnished to it with knowledge of that fact.[65a]

From an account stated the law implies a promise to pay whatever balance is thus acknowledged to be due.[66]

ure of value, in the absence of evidence showing any loss or damage to the defendant. Id. A subcontractor who has been stopped in the performance of the work by disputes between the contractor and the owner may recover from the owner on a quantum meruit, where he has substantially performed. First Nat. Bank v. Mitchell, 46 Misc. 30, 93 N. Y. S. 231.

60. Where father employs one to care for his invalid child until latter's death, promising to give him a portion of his estate in payment, but father dies before the son, the employe has a claim on a quantum meruit against the father's estate for the value of the services performed before father's death. Moore v. Smith, 121 Ga. 479, 49 S. E. 601. Contract to bore well held subject to implied condition that both parties should be excused from their obligations in case its actual completion became impossible, there being no guaranty that water would be obtained. Poland v. Thomaston Face & Ornamental Brick Co. [Me.] 60 A. 795. Performance prevented by act of God. Where lessor was to furnish seed and implements, and lessee the labor, and crop was to be divided, and lessee died after crop was grown, but before it was gathered, his representative could recover on a quantum meruit his interest in crop, less the loss or damage caused by his death. Parker v. Brown, 136 N. C. 280, 48 S. E. 657.

61. See, also, Corporations, 5 C. L. 764; Municipal Corporations, 4 C. L. 720. Though contract by village for improvements was void because made when there were insufficient funds to pay for them on hand (Laws 1897, p. 411, c. 414, § 128), it is liable under an implied contract to pay for materials furnished and accepted thereunder from time to time, to the extent of the money on hand. Lines v. Otego, 91 N. Y. S. 785. Village accepting and using materials furnished under contract therefor made by its president is liable under implied contract to pay for them, though contract is void because not authorized by board of trustees. Id. Though an agreement by directors of a corporation to pay themselves for services rendered for its benefit is void, they may recover on a quantum meruit (Porch v. Agnew Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 721); but to support such a recovery there must be proof showing that claimant was employed by the company to do certain work, that he did it, and that he deserves to be paid therefor the sum which in the judgment should be awarded him (Id.) Evidence insufficient to support claim against insolvent hotel company. Id.

62. See, also, Frauds, Statute of, 5 C. L. 1550. See note, 2 C. L. 287, n. 11. One who has performed an agreement void under the statute of frauds will, where he cannot be restored to the situation in which he was before the contract was made, and it is impossible to estimate by any pecuniary standard the value of what the other has received, be adjudged compensation for what has been received by the other party under the contract, measured by the consideration which, by the contract, he agreed to as the value of what he received. Waters v. Cline [Ky.] 85 S. W. 209. Where plaintiff went to live with her uncle under parol agreement that, in return for her services, he would devise her a certain farm, erect buildings thereon, and give her a sum of money, she was entitled on his death without doing so, to recover value of land with sums agreed to be expended thereon, and to be paid to her. Id.

63. See, also, Contracts, 5 C. L. 664. Barngrover v. Pettigrew [Iowa] 104 N. W. 904.

64. Attorney and detective cannot recover for services rendered under a contract having for its object the procuring of a divorce for defendant. Barngrover v. Pettigrew [Iowa] 104 N. W. 904. In action to recover for work and labor, pleadings held not to conclusively show that it was performed in pursuance of an agreement in violation of the act of congress prohibiting the importation of foreign labor, and hence it was error to order judgment for defendant. Simon v. Haut [Minn.] 104 N. W. 129.

65. See Infants, 4 C. L. 92; Incompetency, 3 C. L. 1696; Insane Persons, 4 C. L. 126. Dance's Adm'r v. Magruder, 26 Ky. L. R. 220, 80 S. W. 1120. In an action for nursing and washing done for deceased by his sister during his last illness while he was incapable of contracting, the burden is on the estate to show that they were rendered gratuitously. Id. Evidence that services were performed held to justify recovery. Id. A lunatic asylum is entitled to recover on a quantum meruit for the keep of a lunatic, though the judgment of the county court committing the lunatic was void. Necessaries. Hopper v. Eastern Kentucky Lunatic Asylum [Ky.] 85 S. W. 1187.

65a. Father not liable for medical services furnished to child which a decree of divorce had awarded to the mother. Selfridge v. Paxton, 145 Cal. 713, 79 P 425.

As a general rule where one under no legal or moral obligation to do so renders services for another at his request or with his knowledge or acquiescence, the law raises an implied promise on the part of the latter to pay what they are reasonably worth.[67] There can, however, be no recovery for services rendered voluntarily

66. Action may be maintained thereon. Noyes v. Young [Mont.] 79 P. 1063. Account for services. Mattingly v. Shortell [Ky.] 85 S. W. 215. See, also, Accounts Stated and Open Accounts, 5 C. L. 25.

67. In the majority of cases contracts of this sort are implied in fact rather than in law, but they have all been treated here together for convenience. [Editor.]

Unless evidence shows that such was not consideration on which they were rendered. Blowers v. Southern R. Co., 70 S. C. 377, 50 S. E. 19. There are presumptions both of law and fact that services rendered during the last illness of a decedent and board and room rent furnished her are to be paid for, and no proof of an express contract to do so is necessary. Luizzi v. Brady's Estate [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 59, 103 N. W. 574. There being no such relationship as to raise a presumption that services are rendered gratuitously, the implication of law that the parties contemplated compensation therefor, in the absence of affirmative evidence to the contrary, warranted the finding of an implied promise. Page v. Page [N. H.] 61 A. 356. If a person labors for another with the latter's knowledge and consent, no rate of compensation being fixed, and no express contract being made, or request to do the work being shown, the law presumes, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the one expected to receive and the other to pay compensation based on the reasonable value of the services. Grotjan v. Rice [Wis.] 102 N. W. 551. In such case the law also presumes that such services were rendered upon request, and if the services were accepted with knowledge that they were rendered in expectation that they would be paid for, the person accepting them is liable for their reasonable value. Held error to refuse requested instruction. Id. A special verdict finding that defendant by his conduct requested the services rendered and that plaintiff at the time expected pay therefor, and that defendant intended to so pay, sufficiently shows a contract. Brown v. Ricketts, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 215. The law usually implies a promise to pay on the rendition of meritorious services. In re Dailey's Estate, 43 Misc. 552, 89 N. Y. S. 538; Stallings v. Ellis, 136 N. C. 69, 48 S. E. 548. If services are not gratuitous. Birch v. Birch [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 1106. Unless relationship of parties forbids presumption. Fitzpatrick v. Dooley [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 719. To pay for board, nursing, care, etc., where parties are in no manner related. Rogers v. Daniels, 116 Ill. App. 515. Evidence in action for services in effecting a compromise held to sustain finding that they were rendered under circumstances which gave defendant good reason to suppose that they were rendered as agent for the other party to the negotiations, and hence there was no implied contract to pay for them. Merrill v. Gunnison, 146 Cal. 544, 79 P. 67. Finding that services were not rendered at defendant's request means that there was neither an express or implied request, and sufficient without finding the person to whom they were rendered, or that they were rendered without expectation of remuneration. Id. Where agents exceed their powers by attempting to bind their principal by a contract for certain work at an unreasonable price in excess of the amount they are authorized to agree to pay, the party contracted with may recover a reasonable price for services and materials furnished by him and used by the principal. Galvano Type Engraving Co. v. Jackson, 77 Conn. 564, 60 A. 127. Services as overseer of farm by one distantly related to deceased held to raise implied promise to pay for them, and direction of verdict for defendant held error. Smith v. Park's Adm'r [Ky.] 84 S. W. 304. Evidence in action for extra work performed in laying rock foundation for intake pipe for waterworks, held to show that work was done under conditions justifying plaintiff in relying upon directions approved by the engineer, and to sustain verdict for plaintiff. Steele v. Ely [Minn.] 104 N. W. 566. Evidence on claim against estate of decedent for architect's services held to sustain finding that they were rendered under the individual employment of defendant and not under an employment by a corporation of which he was the president. Barnett v. Peper [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 345. Evidence held to make out prima facie case for plaintiff in action for services rendered decedent. Larkins v. McGinley, 88 N. Y. S. 153. President of corporation who agrees to equip a college laboratory and in so doing receives material and labor from the corporation is personally liable to the latter on an implied promise to pay therefore. Worthington v. Worthington, 100 App. Div. 332, 91 N. Y. S. 443. Evidence held to show that plaintiff furnished three carriages for use at a funeral instead of six, as he claimed. Hummel v. Ackermann, 93 N. Y. S. 555. Fact that defendant received from relief committee money enough to pay for six carriages held not to defeat his defense that only three were furnished, where he offered to return excess to the committee. Id. In action for work, labor and services performed in manufacturing certain articles, evidence held insufficient to warrant the direction of a verdict for plaintiff on one count and sufficient to warrant it on another. Ullman v. Rothschild, 94 N. Y. S. 726. Where, on expiration of term of office of treasurer of corporation, he notifies directors that he cannot again serve for the same compensation and is re-elected without any settlement as to the terms of his salary and continues his services, he can recover their reasonable value. Stacy v. Cherokee Foundry & Mach. Works, 70 S. C. 178, 49 S. E. 223.

Note: In an action for money had and received, the law will not imply a promise to repay unless, ex aequo et bono, the defendant ought to refund. Moses v. Macferlen, 2 Burr. 1005; Bize v. Dickason, 1 T. R.

and with no expectation at the time they are rendered that they will be paid for, whether they are beneficial to the other party or not,[68] and a subsequent change of intention by the party rendering them does not alter the rule.[69] Hence it must not only appear that the services were valuable but also that they were rendered under such circumstances as to raise the fair presumption that the parties intended and understood that they were to be paid for, or, at least, that the circumstances were such that a reasonable man, in the same situation with him who receives and is benefited by them, would and ought to understand that compensation was to be paid for them.[70]

There is also an implied contract on the part of one using plans prepared for him by another,[71] or using an invention belonging to someone else, to pay for them.[72] So, too, a corporation receiving property under contracts made by its promoters is liable for its value.[73]

One impliedly agreeing to do a piece of work impliedly agrees to do it in a 285; Brisbane v. Dacres, 5 Taunt. 143; Badeau v. U. S., 130 U. S. 439, 32 Law Ed. 997; Lemans v. Wiley, 92 Ind. 436; McFadden v. Wilson, 96 Ind. 253; Lockwood v. Kelsea, 41 N. H. 185; Franklin Bank v. Raymond, 3 Wend [N. H.] 69; Buel v. Boughton, 2 Denio [N. Y.] 91; Mayer v. Mayor, 63 N. Y. 455; Carson v. McFarland, 2 Rayle [Pa.] 118, 19 Am. Dec. 627; Falconer v. Smith, 18 Pa. 130. 55 Am. Dec. 611; Glenn v. Shannon, 12 S. C. 570; Goddard v. Town of Seymour, 30 Conn. 394; Foster v. Kirby, 31 Mo. 496; Orman v. North Alabama, etc., Co., 53 F. 470; Beach, Modern Law of Contracts, § 660; Pom. Eq. Jur. §§ 182, 1047; 1 Chitty on Pl. (16th Am. Ed. from 7th Eng. Ed.) p. 362, note.—From Daily v. Daviess County Com'rs [Ind.] 74 N. E. 977.

68. Sidway v. Missouri Land & Live Stock Co., 187 Mo. 649, 86 S. W. 150. Plaintiff held not entitled to recover from estate of her deceased brother for his board where no contract to pay it was shown and there was no evidence of an intention on his part to pay or on hers to receive it. Dance's Adm'r v. Magruder, 26 Ky. L. R. 220, 80 S. W. 1120. One cannot recover for labor voluntarily performed for another in the absence of an express or implied contract to pay therefor. De Montague v. Bacharach, 187 Mass. 128, 72 N. E. 938. The mere fact that one renders services to another which are greatly to his advantage does not entitle him to compensation therefor in the absence of an employment. Held that even if contract employing attorney did not contemplate an appeal, and refusal to furnish appeal bond amounted to his discharge, he was not entitled to recover on quantum meruit for prosecuting appeal, he having no authority to take such appeal at the charge of defendants. Cavanaugh v. Robinson [Mich.] 101 N. W. 824. An implied contract does not arise from merely voluntary service. An employe of the government who allows his invention to be used by it for several years without saying anything in regard to compensation, and allows government officers to suppose that none will be demanded, cannot thereafter recover on an implied contract for its use. Harley's case, 39 Ct. Cl. 105.

69. Stockholder held not entitled to recover for services which were beneficial to corporation in view of his disclaimers of any intention to charge for them. Sidway v. Missouri Land & Live Stock Co., 187 Mo. 649, 86 S. W. 150.

70. Attorney held entitled to recover from defendant for services in drawing up papers in reference to purchase of certain property, which he furnished to defendant at the request of a third person and which defendant used, plaintiff having no notice that the third person had agreed to furnish such papers. Paul v. Wilbur [Mass.] 75 N. E. 63. The law will imply a promise of payment for services rendered under circumstances warranting reasonable expectation on plaintiff's part that defendant would pay for them. Services in bringing about transfer of electric light plant. Hart v. Maloney, 101 App. Div. 37, 91 N. Y. S. 922. The law implies a contract to pay for services of such a nature as to lead to a reasonable belief that it was the understanding of the parties that pecuniary compensation should be made therefor. Evidence sufficient to show an implied contract on the part of decedent to pay for nursing rendered him by his nephew during his last illness. Lewis v. Lewis' Estate [Ark.] 87 S. W. 134.

71. Right to recover for use of plans for warships which were not adopted held to depend upon whether they contained novel designs, since, if there was nothing novel in them, there was nothing which defendant was not free to use. Lundborg's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 23. Where, on transmission of plans for warships to navy department, claimant requested that, if rejected, they be returned as soon as possible, officers of that department had no right to retain them, but no recovery can be had for such retention in the absence of proof that damages were actually sustained by claimant. Id.

72. Where the government, by its proper officer, uses a patented article, acknowledging the right of the patentee thereto, an implied obligation will arise to pay for it. Government liable for use of patented method of calking vessels which it required contractors to use. Brook's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 494.

73. See, also, Corporations, 5 C. L. 764. A telephone company which, after it is fully incorporated, receives a telephone exchange, additional lines, materials and tools. Streator Independent Tel. Co. v. Continental Tel. Const. Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 546.

good and workmanlike manner.[74] An implied contract upon a quantum meruit may be made to depend upon a contingency.[75]

In the absence of an agreement or understanding to the contrary, services rendered under an implied contract are entitled to compensation immediately upon their conclusion.[76]

Services by member of family.[77]—The ordinary legal presumption of a promise to pay for valuable services does not arise where the relationship of the parties affords evidence that payment was not contemplated, or that the labor was gratuitously performed.[78] In such case the law presumes that no compensation was intended or expected.[79] Thus, there is a presumption that services rendered by a child to his parent, or to one standing in loco parentis, while a member of his family, are gratuitous,[80] and this is true, even though the child has arrived at his majority,[81] though there seems to be a conflict of authority as to whether the rule applies where the child no longer resides with the parent as a member of his household.[82] A presumption of gratuity may also arise from a family relationship other than that of parent and child.[83] So, too, though the parties are related neither by blood or marriage, the circumstances may be such as to prevent the presumption of a promise to pay, as where one is taken into a family by adoption, or from motives of benevolence or charity,[84] or where it is shown that the services

74. Failure to comply with implied agreement to line water tank with copper in good and workmanlike manner, held to defeat plaintiff's right to recover for his services, and to give defendant right of action for damages. Schery v. Welstead, 93 N. Y. S. 466.

75, 76. Boogher v. Roach, 25 App. D. C. 324.

77. See 3 C. L. 1691.

78. Page v. Page [N. H.] 61 A. 356. Where plaintiffs were not members of decedent's family, and he did not stand in loco parentis with them, the presumption of an implied promise to pay them for services rendered him in his last sickness is not rebutted by the mere fact that he was their grandfather. Whitaker v. Whitaker, 138 N. C. 205, 50 S. E. 630.

79. In re Dailey's Estate, 43 Misc. 552, 89 N. Y. S. 538.

80. Evidence of the family relationship is evidence that both parties understood that the benefit was gratuitously rendered, and, if not rebutted, gives rise to a conclusive presumption against a promise of payment, and prevents recovery in absence of showing of a contract in fact. Page v. Page [N. H.] 61 A. 356. Services of a son in caring for his father and mother and in looking after their business. Haberman v. Kaufer [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 976.

81. Einolf v. Thompson [Minn.] 103 N. W. 1026. Conclusively presumed that services rendered by married daughter in caring for father during the last years of his life, are gratuitous, where there was no suggestion in complaint or in her evidence that she expected compensation. Stallings v. Ellis, 136 N. C. 69, 48 S. E. 548.

82. New Hampshire: No presumption that services rendered by son to his mother during her last illness were gratuitous, where they lived in the same house but as separate families, the son having a family of his own. Page v. Page [N. H.] 61 A. 356.

South Carolina: The mere fact that a mother and daughter are not living in the same household is not sufficient to overcome the presumption that services rendered by the latter to the former are gratuitous, though it may be considered in connection with other evidence tending to establish an implied contract to pay for them. Wessinger v. Robert, 67 S. C. 240, 45 S. E. 169. Services by daughter in caring for mother in last sickness held gratuitous, their nature not being such as to raise an inference that compensation therefor was contemplated. Id.

83. Though the parental relationship is absent, there may yet be a family relationship which creates the presumption of gratuity. Fitzpatrick v. Dooley [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 719. Services rendered by one member of a family to another are presumed to be gratuitous, and in order to overcome such presumption, an agreement express or implied to pay for them must be shown. Birch v. Birch [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 1106. Family is a collective body of persons living in one home, under one head or management. Id. Where decedent did not reside with plaintiff until he became so feeble as to require a nurse and then was removed to plaintiff's house not as a member of the family but for the purpose of being cared for and nursed, and was not dependent on her, and she was not under any obligation to support him, held that he was not a member of her family. Id. Services of sister of decedent in nursing her. Mayer v. Schneider, 112 Ill. App. 628. Where services are rendered by one member of a family to another, evidently prompted by affection, or in consequence of reciprocal and mutual obligations. In re Dailey's Estate, 43 Misc. 552, 89 N. Y. S. 538.

84. Fitzpatrick v. Dooley [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 719. Whether or not such a relation exists as interferes with the usual presumption of a promise to pay depends upon the were merely such offices as one friend would perform for another in time of sickness or distress, either by the way of physical aid or in the comfort of personal companionship.[85]

The presumption of gratuitous services growing out of the relationship of the parties is not conclusive, but may be rebutted.[86] In some states there must, in such case, be proof of an express agreement,[87] while in others the agreement may be deduced from circumstances.[88] If the relationship begins while the claimant is a minor, and, after attaining his majority, he remains in the household and continues his work as before, there is no presumption that he is to receive wages for the subsequent work, unless the evidence warrants an inference that compensation was thereafter intended and expected;[89] but the burden devolves on claimant to prove an agreement to pay him.[90]

Right to recover for improvements made on lands of another.[91]—In equity an innocent purchaser of lands for a valuable consideration, without notice of any infirmity in his title is, on being ejected, entitled to full remuneration for his permanent improvements that add value to the lands, for taxes paid thereon, and the purchase price therefor, when such purchase price has gone to extinguish any lien or charge against the land created by law or by the owner, and the amount thereof is a lien on the land which the owner is bound to discharge before being circumstances of each case. Id. One who takes a child into his home as a member of his family, not intending to charge the child therefor, cannot afterwards demand compensation for what was intended as a gratuity. Barnett's Adm'r v. Adams, 26 Ky. L. R. 622, 82 S. W. 406. Claimant held entitled to allowance for services rendered to decedent, who lived with himself and his wife after the death of her parents, in preserving the estate which she inherited from her father, the evidence showing that it was not the intention that they should be gratuitous. Id.

85. Evidence held to support finding that services rendered decedent in her last illness were gratuitous and without expectation of reward. Dallman v. Frank [Cal. App.] 82 P. 564.

86. Mayer v. Schneider, 112 Ill. App. 628; Stallings v. Ellis, 136 N. C. 69, 48 S. E. 548. Evidence in action by adult occupying position of daughter held to justify finding that presumption was rebutted. Einolf v. Thompson [Minn.] 103 N. W. 1026. Verdict held not so excessive as to require new trial. Id. Offer by defendant to prove that, after he destroyed his will, he still intended to make provision for plaintiff by his last testament and to treat her in all respects as his daughter, held inadmissible. Id. If evidence is of such a character as to overcome the presumption, then claimant is in same position as if services had been rendered to a stranger. In re Dailey's Estate, 43 Misc. 552, 89 N. Y. S. 538. Declarations of testatrix held to show that it was the expectation of both parties that services rendered by claimant who, though never adopted, lived with deceased as a member of her family, should be paid for. Id.

87. No recovery for services of son in caring for his parents can be had in the absence of proof of an express contract sufficient to overcome presumption of gratuity. Haberman v. Kaufer [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 976.

88. Fitzpatrick v. Dooley [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 719; Einolf v. Thompson [Minn.] 103 N. W. 1026; Stallings v. Ellis, 136 N. C. 69, 48 S. E. 548. Evidence held to authorize finding that both parties contemplated that services rendered by adult daughter to her father during his last illness should be paid for out of his estate after his death. Phinazee v. Bunn [Ga.] 51 S. E. 300. Though promise to pay is not implied from mere fact that children render services in nursing and caring for their infirm parents, it may be implied where the surrounding circumstances indicate that it was the intention of both parties that compensation should be made, and it is not necessary to show an express contract in all cases. Id. May be overcome by proof of either an express or implied agreement to pay, and implied contract may be proven by circumstances showing that both parties intended pecuniary recompense when services were rendered. Mayer v. Schneider, 112 Ill. App. 628. Both express and implied contract to pay for services of decedent's sister as nurse held to have been shown. Id.

89. Fitzpatrick v. Dooley [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 719. Where plaintff was placed in defendant's family while a minor and continued to render domestic services after reaching majority, held, that her right to recover for services rendered after majority depended upon whether she was a member of the family before that time. If she was she could not recover, but if she was a servant, she could. Id. If a servant, clothing furnished her by defendant after her majority should be deducted in assessing her damages. Id.

90. Fitzpatrick v. Dooley [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 719.

91. See 3 C L. 1694, n. 63. See, also, Estates of Decedents, 5 C. L. 1183; Ejectment, 5 C L. 1056; Judicial Sales, 4 C. L. 321; Vendors and Purchasers, 4 C. L. 1769; Taxes, 4 C. L. 1605.

restored to his original rights in the land.[92] So, too, one who in good faith has made improvements under a parol purchase may be allowed in equity for their value with offset for rents and profits,[93] and interest may run on the judgment until a time for payment[94] with no offset for rents accruing after judgment.[95] But no recovery can be had by one who is not a bona fide purchaser,[96] except under such circumstances as would make it a fraud on his rights to allow the owner to take them without compensation.[97]

§ 3. Moneys had and received and money paid.[98]—The law implies a promise on the part of one having in his hands money which in equity and good conscience belongs to another to pay it.[99] So, too, whenever one person requests or allows

92. Purchaser at administrator's sale. Patillo v. Martin, 107 Mo. App. 653, 83 S. W. 1010. Plaintiff is not estopped by failing to plead his equity in the ejectment suit, to assert it in an independent proceeding while he is yet in possession of the land. Id. Since action included claim for taxes, held that it was not one under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 3075, 3076, relating to the recovery for improvements by an unsuccessful defendant in ejectment. Id.

93, 94, 95. Schneider v. Reed, 123 Wis. 488, 101 N. W. 682.

96. Not by one having notice of facts rendering his title inferior to another's, who by mistake of law regards his title as good. Yock v. Mann [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 1019. Tenant in common cannot recover as against his cotenants, where he acquires title through a purchase by which he supposedly acquired the entire title, and has full knowledge in respect to the conveyances purporting to divest them of their interest but which are fraudulent and void in law, merely because he relied on their sufficiency through mistake of law. German Sav. & Loan Soc. v. Tull [C. C. A.] 136 F. 1. A railroad company cannot recover compensation for improvements made by it on property upon which it has entered, pending its proceeding to condemn the same, upon the reversal of the final judgment in its favor, subsequently obtained in the action, and an adjudication against its right to condemn the land. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Deepwater R. Co. [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 890. Son held not entitled to value of improvements put upon realty of father which he held by sufferance, the most of which were made after notice that the father would not give him the land. Holsberry v. Harris, 56 W. Va. 320, 49 S. E. 404.

97. Owner must have allowed work to go on with knowledge of it, or have induced occupant to make improvements by some inequitable conduct, or have been guilty of laches in asserting his claim. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v Deepwater R. Co. [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 890.

98. See 3 C. L. 1692.

99. Donovan v. Purtell [Ill.] 75 N. E. 334; Scott v. Ford, 45 Or. 531, 78 P. 742. Where plaintiff employed defendant as insurance solicitor and made certain weekly advances to him under a contract making them a first lien on commissions and renewals due or to become due him, and authorizing plaintiff to deduct them from any moneys received by him on premiums due defendant, held, that such advances did not create a debt on the part of defendant, and, on failure of the venture to prove successful, there was no implied promise to pay them. Arbaugh v. Shockney, 34 Ind. App. 268, 72 N. E. 668. County may recover from the county assessor the sum paid him for services rendered in excess of the per diem for the maximum number of days fixed by the statute for which he is entitled to compensation. Daily v. Board of Com'rs [Ind.] 74 N. E. 977. Implied contract on part of payee of note who receives money in payment of note, which in part belongs to another and was misappropriated by the maker to meet the note, to repay it. Porter v. Roseman [Ind.] 74 N. E. 1105. In action to recover rents and profits of land descended to plaintiff from his mother subject to his father's life interest, plaintiff held entitled to two-thirds of the difference between the rents collected by defendant and the sums reasonably expended by the latter for taxes, insurance, repairs, and commissions for collecting rents, with interest from the date of the final adjudication of title to the property. Smith's Guardian v. Holtheide [Ky.] 84 S. W. 346. An action upon the common counts for moneys paid is properly brought by the executor of a sister who, at her brother's request, took an assignmment of notes and a mortgage given by him to a third person, delivered the canceled notes to the brother, and satisfied the mortgage at his request, action on the notes being barred by limitations. Foster v. Gordon [Minn.] 104 N. W. 765. Held within the discretion of the court to allow informal pleading for money had and received to be amended into a count for moneys paid. Id. Plaintiff may recover money paid to defendant's employe to apply on rent of defendant's apartment, which employe then assumed, without authority, to rent to plaintiff, defendant not having ratified the agreement or made any other. McIntosh v. Kilpatrick, 94 N. Y. S. 1095. That a bank received the proceeds of a loan by plaintiffs to its debtor, made on the security of invalid bonds which it had delivered to the latter, does not render it liable to plaintiffs, in the absence of evidence that it or any of its officers knew that the amount received was a part of such loan, or that the bonds were deposited as security therefor, or that the bank had delivered the bonds for the purpose of enabling its debtor to borrow money on them. Thalman v. Importers' & Traders' Nat. Bank, 95 N. Y. S. 634. Plaintiff may recover money deposited by third person with defendant to pay for bricks to be delivered by plaintiff another to assume such a position that the latter may be compelled by law to discharge the former's legal liabilities, the law imports a request by the former to make the payment and a promise to repay, and the obligation thus created may be enforced by assumpsit.[1] Where a landlord is so lulled into securtity by a third person that he allows him to take possession of his tenant's crop without any effort to enforce his lien thereon, there is an implied promise on the part of such third person to pay the rent.[2]

One may recover money paid under a contract void under the statute of frauds,[3] or which the other party refuses to perform,[4] or which is subsequently abandoned by mutual consent,[5] or money not applied to the purpose for which it is paid,[6] or payments in excess of the amount due.[7] to such third person, where defendant notified plaintiff before the bricks were delivered that he had the money for that purpose, though there was no privity of contract between them. McAvoy v. Com. Title Ins. Trust Co., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 271. Action for money had and received will lie therefor. Id. Plaintiff may recover from defendant, in an action for money had and received to his use, a sum of money received by the latter, in settlement of account, to be returned to plaintiff for tickets which he had bought and did not use. Fottori v. Vesella [R. I.] 61 A. 143. Where the original amount paid by plaintiff had been reduced by deductions for commissions, plaintiff was only entitled to the amount actually refunded to defendant, with interest thereon to the date of trial. Id.

1. Defendant was jointly and severally liable on a note with plaintiff's intestate and a third person. On death of intestate and insolvency of third person before note was fully paid, defendant induced plaintiff, in his individual capacity, to sign with him a new note for the balance, which plaintiff was required to pay. Held, that plaintiff could recover half the amount paid. Bartlett v. Armstrong, 56 W. Va. 293, 49 S. E. 140.

2. Shealy & Bro. v. Clark, 117 Ga. 794, 45 S. E. 70.

3. See, also, Frauds, Statute of, 5 C. L. 1550. Tenant may recover on implied contract for improvements made on land under agreement that he should have it as long as it was for rent, where owner later notifies him that he cannot remain longer. Brashear v. Rabenstein [Kan.] 80 P. 950.

4. See, also, Contracts, 5 C. L. 664. On refusal of defendant to be bound by contract whereby it agreed to pay certain coupons attached thereto in accordance with a certain table, during the time in which plaintiff was making certain monthly payments, and its statement that it was going out of business, held, that plaintiff was entitled to recover the amounts previously paid by him thereon (Civ Code, § 1689, subd. 2), a return or offer to return the contract not being a condition precedent to commencing suit (Civ. Code 1691, subd. 2). McDonald v. Pacific Debenture Co., 146 Cal. 667, 80 P. 1090. Defendants contracted with plaintiff to allow him to conduct a saloon in connection with their restaurant business, plaintiff to make certain fixed payments and turn over a portion of his receipts, and defendants to pay him a percentage on liquor sold in the restaurant. Held, that where defendants repudiated the contract after plaintiffs had made several payments, and in an action on the contract set up the statute of frauds, plaintiff was entitled to recover the amounts paid by him, less the value of any benefit received from his use of the premises, the defendants, having avoided the contract by pleading the statute, not being entitled to set it up as a bar to such an accounting. De Montague v. Bacharach, 187 Mass. 128, 72 N. E. 938. Pleadings in former action held competent to show that statute had been set up. Id. Evidence that the privilege of conducting the restaurant was worthless unless defendants paid the percentage on liquor sold, held admissible on the question of the value of defendant's partial performance. Id. Where the contract is subsequently repudiated by the party to whom the advances are made. Murphy v. Dalton [Mich.] 102 N. W. 277. On breach of an executory contract for the sale of land, the vendee may recover the value of a stock of merchandise turned over to the vendor to apply on the purchase price, as for money had and received. Evidence held to sustain finding of breach. Proctor v. Stevens Land Co. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 395. Complaint held sufficient to permit recovery, though ground of rescission alleged was fraudulent representations as to title. Id. Plaintiffs may recover, in an action for money had and received, money paid to defendant on his statement that the flour purchased by them from him had been shipped, where the flour actually delivered was not in compliance with the contract, and plaintiffs refused to accept it, tendered it back, and demanded the flour called for, and it appears that defendant refused to return the money or deliver the flour contracted for. Bier v. Bash, 95 N. Y. S. 281. Where a town lays out a highway and agrees to construct it on condition that plaintiffs advance certain moneys toward payment for the work, which they do, they may recover it back, where the work is commenced, but abandoned before a passable way is constructed, regardless of whether the council had power to bind the town in the premises or not. If council had no power, the money was paid without consideration and hence may be recovered, and if it did have power, town broke contract and amount paid was a fair measure of damages. Valley Falls Co. v. Taft [R. I.] 61 A. 41.

5. See, also, Contracts, 5 C. L. 664. May be recovered under the common counts in assumpsit. Murphy v. Dalton [Mich.] 102 N. W. 277. Evidence held to sustain recovery. Williams v. Peterson [Minn.] 103 N. W. 722.

6. Defendant liable for money given him

Money paid or property delivered under an illegal executed contract cannot be recovered, where the parties are in pari delicto;[8] but money deposited with a third person to be used for an illegal purpose, but not actually so used, may be recovered.[9]

Money paid through the fraud or misrepresentation of the payee,[10] or of a third person, may be recovered,[11] even though it was to be used for an unlawful purpose,[12] and creditors in bankruptcy proceedings may invoke this principle by proving a demand for money had and received by the bankrupts to their use.[13] So, too, improper profits made by a contractor by substituting cheaper material than that specified may be recovered.[14] The fact that a creditor obtains payment from

by plaintiff with which to pay rent of premises occupied by her. Clark v. Jenness [Mass.] 74 N. E. 343. Where defendant agreed to settle suit for rent, which had been brought against plaintiff by a third person, for $50, and plaintiff surrendered to him receipts for that amount for money which she had previously paid him on account of a mortgage, it being agreed that receipts should be treated as money, and the amount represented by them should not be applied on the mortgage, held that, on his failure to settle the suit, she could recover the $50 in an action for money had and received. Id. Money paid under a contract and not used in accordance with its terms. Where defendant represented that mine could be bought for $60,000 and received $1,000 from plaintiff on the understanding that defendant should raise the additional sum necessary, but purchased the mine for $10,000 and kept $50,000 himself, held, that plaintiff, who had received his interest in the mine by reason of his interest in the corporation to which it was conveyed, could, on the theory of an affirmance of the purchase at the price actually paid, recover his proportion of the money not used in accordance with the contract. Barbour v. Hurlbut [Mich.] 100 N. W. 781.

7. Every payment presupposes a debt, and what has been paid without having been due, is subject to be reclaimed. La. Civ. Code, art. 2133 (2129). Drainage Commission v. National Contracting Co., 136 F. 780. Where dispute as to construction of contract for supplying electric power was submitted to arbitration under an agreement that plaintiff should continue to pay monthly bills pending the award, and award showed overpayment, held that, in action to recover such overpayment, the award and decree thereon were admissible to show what the contract was. Southern Iron Co. v. Laclede Power Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 450.

8. Contract intended to facilitate the procuring of a divorce, it being one affecting the general public. Davis v .Hinman [Neb.] 103 N. W. 668. Money lost in betting on horse races cannot be recovered. In re Arnold & Co., 133 F. 789. See, also, Contracts, 5 C. L. 664. See, also, note, 2 C. L. 292, n. 54.

9. Claim therefor may be established in bankruptcy. In re Arnold & Co., 133 F. 789.

10. Where defendant obtained bankbooks from an incompetent by fraud and undue influence, and drew out the money and held it as cash, the incompetent's administrator might sue him for money had and received. (Hagar v. Norton [Mass.] 73 N. E. 1073); but an action for money had and received would not lie to recover the value of stocks obtained in the same manner which defendant caused to be transferred to him on the books of the company. Such action amounts to a conversion, but not a conversion into money (Id.). Where bank agreed with defendant to pay a third person's "checks for cattle," and the latter drew a sight draft payable to defendant which he knew included a sum which was not for cattle, and bank paid draft believing that whole amount was for cattle, held, that it could recover the amount in excess of that paid for cattle from defendant as for money had and received. First State Bank v. McGaughey [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 55. May be recovered back under the common count for money had and received. Johnson v. Cate [Vt.] 59 A. 830. In action for money paid for property purchased by plaintiff of defendant for a firm for whom plaintiff acted as agent, where plaintiff's evidence tended to show that defendant falsely informed him that the firm had never paid for such property and that he having no knowledge to the contrary, and relying on such representations, paid defendant the amount claimed to be due, the question of voluntary payment was not involved. Id. It was immaterial, under such circumstances, that plaintiff had guarantied payment for the property. Id. Money deposited through false and fraudulent representations of material facts. In re Arnold & Co., 133 F. 789.

11. Amount of check made by plaintiffs to defendant at instance of third person, who secured check on the delivery to plaintiffs of a note made by him, and bearing the forged indorsement of defendant. Mulligan v. Harlam, 92 N. Y. S. 765. It is no defense in such case that defendant cannot be restored to his original position. Id. Evidence of defendant's good faith is inadmissible where there has been a demand before suit. Evidence as to conversations inadmissible. Id.

12. In re Arnold & Co., 133 F. 789. Persons advancing money to bankrupts on strength of false representations that they were earning sufficient profits to pay a stipulated weekly interest, that they were solvent and responsible, and had on hand sufficient money to pay all depositors the amount of their deposits, and that they did not pay dividends out of receipts, may prove their claims, though they knew that money was to be used in gambling. Id.

13. In re Arnold & Co., 133 F. 789.

14. Drainage Commission v. National Con-

a co-surety of his share of the debt by false representations that no part of the debt has been paid, where in fact the whole amount thereof has been paid by the other surety, does not entitle such co-surety to recover back his payment.[15]

Money paid under mistake of fact may be recovered,[16] provided it appears that the payor has not received the equivalent contemplated, and that it is against conscience for the payee to retain it,[17] and this is true, even though the former is guilty of negligence in making the payment,[18] unless the position of the payee has been changed to his prejudice toward the debtor in consequence of the payment.[19]

tracting Co., 136 F. 780. A public commission in charge of an improvement may recover improper profits made by a contractor, through substituting a cheaper material for that specified, in an action conditio indebiti, and is not confined to an action quanti minoris. Id. It is no defense to an action therefore that the contract has been executed (Id.), nor that the contractor lost money (Id.), nor that the contract was ultra vires (Id.), and the defendant is estopped to set up that the material furnished was as good as that specified (Id.).

15. Wash v. Sullvan & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 368. Where plaintiff gave his note to defendant to secure the release of one of two co-sureties on a note due the latter, held, that he could not recover the amount thereof on learning, after he had paid his note, that the co-surety on defendant's note had paid it, since he had only performed his agreement, and it was defendant's duty to account to the co-surety for half the amount plaintiff had paid rather than to plaintiff. Id.

16. An executor who, as such, pays for repairs and improvements to property belonging to a third person at the request or with the knowledge of the latter, under the mistaken belief that it belongs to the estate, is entitled to be reimbursed therefor out of such property, but he cannot reimburse himself if he makes the payments as advances upon her share of the estate and recognizing her title to the property. Neil v. Harris, 121 Ga. 647, 49 S. E. 773. Plaintiff gave defendant money believing that he owed him a store account, and, the books not being accessible, defendant agreed to credit him with the amount due and return the balance, if any. It subsequently appeared that the debt which plaintiff sought to pay was owed by his mother, and defendant sued her and compelled her to pay it. Held, that plaintiff could recover the amount paid by him, no demand being necessary before suit. Sheppard v. Lang [Ga.] 50 S. E. 371. Evidence held to show that plaintiff received money in his individual capacity and not as officer of corporation. Id. Plaintiff held to have made out prima facie case, and court erred in granting nonsuit. Id. He who has paid through mistake, believing himself a debtor, may reclaim what he has paid. La. Civ. Code, art. 2302 (2280). Drainage Commission v. National Contracting Co., 136 F. 780. He who receives what is not due him, either through error or knowingly, obliges himself to restore it to him from whom he has unduly received it. La. Civ. Code, art. 2301 (2279). Word "knowingly" in this article means only with knowledge, and does not necessarily imply bad faith or wrongdoing, they being merely important as affecting the quantum of recovery. Id. Payments in excess of amount due. Truax v. Bliss [Mich.] 102 N. W. 635. Though dealings out of which transactions grew were gambling contracts, and defendant's account had been charged with commissions claimed by plaintiff for negotiating defendant's gambling contracts, aggregating more than the amount involved in the suit. Adler v. Searles & Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 209. Interest paid on a note and mortgage by defendant under the mistaken belief that he had acquired the legal title to the property on which the mortgage was a lien, may be recovered back as a counterclaim in an action on the note. Defendant assumed note and mortgage. Iowa Loan & Trust Co. v. Schnose [S. D.] 103 N. W. 22.

17. Both these facts must appear. Dickey County v. Hicks [N. D.] 103 N. W. 423. County held not entitled to recover money paid defendant for clerk hire, the amounts of which were erroneously included in defendant's monthly salary warrant instead of being paid directly to the clerks, it being stipulated and found that defendant paid the clerks sums in excess of the amounts received from the county, that the sums paid were the reasonable value of their services, that the services were necessary, and that the payments were accepted by the clerks as a complete discharge and satisfaction. Id. Award to county for overpayments on defendant's salary held proper. Id. Money paid under a mistake of fact, made in good faith and not arising from intentional neglect to inquire as to the real condition, may be recovered in indebitatus assumpsit, even though accompanied with a mistake or ignorance of law. Scott v. Ford, 45 Or. 531, 78 P. 742.

18. German Security Bank v. Columbia Finance & Trust Co. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 761. Even though the party paying it inadvertantly overlooks the means of knowledge which he has at hand, if the party receiving the same is not entitled to it. Girard Trust Co. v. Harrington, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 615. Money paid by officer of trust company, which was trustee of an estate, to an attorney of a distributee upon his representation that he was still acting as such, where company had previously settled with the distributee under a decree of the orphans' court, at which settlement the attorney was present, made no objection to the order, and no demand for a fee from the fund paid, thereby waiving his right to one. Id.

19. Assignee for creditors of maker of note, which had been discounted by bank, paid the latter in full believing that estate

So, too, one may recover an item omitted by mistake from a settled account;[20] but money paid under mistake of law with knowledge of all the facts and in the absence of fraud, deceit or undue importunity cannot be recovered.[21]

Payments coerced under duress or unlawful compulsion may be recovered back,[22] but not money voluntarily paid under a claim of right and with full knowledge of the facts, even though such payment is made under protest,[23] nor money voluntarily paid in variation or change of a contract.[24]

Money paid to another for defendant's use cannot be recovered unless an express or implied request to make such payment is shown,[25] a mere voluntary payment being insufficient.[26] was solvent. Later, in a settlement suit to which the bank was not a party, it was determined that estate was insolvent, and creditors who had been paid in full were ordered to refund. Held, that the assignee, not having notified the bank of these facts until limitations had run against the indorsers of the note, must bear the loss. German Security Bank v. Columbia Finance & Trust Co. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 761.

20. Sale of cattle. Harman v. Maddy Bros. [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 1009.

21. Scott v. Ford, 45 Or. 531, 78 P. 742. Findings in action to recover money paid by executors held insufficient to show that it was paid under mistake of fact rather than of law, and hence not to support judgment for plaintiff. Id.

22. See, also, Duress, 5 C. L. 1047. Michel Brewing Co. v. State [S. D.] 103 N. W. 40. Payment under protest of an occupation tax after arrest but before trial in the police court, is involuntary, and may be recovered back if unwarranted, when made to escape the publicity and mortification of a trial, and where penalty might exceed the amount of the tax, and right of appeal from police court was not absolute. District of Columbia v. Chapman, 25 App. D. C. 95. One paying under protest back water rates illegally exacted may recover the same in assumpsit where city refused to furnish water unless payment was made. Chicago v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 803. Threat by officers of musicians' union that, unless member paid illegal fine, he would be expelled, thus causing him to fear that, unless he paid it, he would be deprived of his means of earning a living, amounts to duress, entitling him to recover the fine which he paid under protest. Fuerst v. Musical Mut. Protective Union, 95 N. Y. S. 155. Right to recover illegal taxes paid under protest, see note 3 C. L. 1693, n. 45.

23. A mere threat to begin a criminal prosecution does not amount to legal compulsion so as to render involuntary a payment made to prevent it. Mere threat to prosecute and fine plaintiff for refusal to pay license tax for toll bridge does not render payment of such tax under protest involuntary so as to enable its recovery. Southern R. Co. v. Florence [Ala.] 37 So. 844. Payment made by purchaser of timber to release it from attachment by defendant claiming to be the owner of the land from which it was cut, in order to avoid expense of giving bond and employing counsel to defend the suit, held not paid under compulsion, and could not be recovered back, though defendant's claim was unfounded. Fitzpatrick v. Laconia Levee Dist. [Ark.] 85 S. W. 409. Pol. Code, § 3817, as amended by St. 1895, p. 333, c. 218, providing for redemption of realty sold to the state for delinquent taxes, is but an offer of the state to release its claims to the land on the terms mentioned, and, being accepted, the payment of penalties thereunder is voluntary and cannot be recovered, though the sale was void. Palomares Land Co. v. Los Angeles County, 146 Cal. 530, 80 P. 931. In an action to recover a sum paid under protest to redeem land from a sale on execution, complaint held not to show that sale was a cloud on plaintiff's title, and hence payment was a voluntary one. Maskey v. Lackmann [Cal.] 81 P. 115. Money paid by debtor to creditor to secure postponement of sale under decree of court and extension of time for him to prevent sale by payment of receiver's certificates held not paid under duress. Foster v. Central Nat. Bank, 93 N. Y. S. 603. Trustees of a dissolved charitable corporation which had no creditors, and to the property of which no one claimed title to reversion, could not recover back the proceeds of its property which they had voluntarily paid to the county treasurer in pursuance to the mandate of an alleged constitutional statute. Avila v. New York, 94 N. Y. S. 1132. The mere fact that a payment upon an illegal demand is made unwillingly and under protest, with notice that an action will be commenced to recover it back, does not render it compulsory so as to authorize its recovery. Michel Brewing Co. v. State [S. D.] 103 N. W. 40; Steffen v. State [S. D.] 103 N. W. 44 Payment by nonresident of taxes imposed by unconstitutional statute on nonresident wholesale liquor dealers, made because required by state officers as condition precedent to right of plaintiff to continue sale of liquors without subjecting himself to penalties prescribed by the statute, held voluntary and not made under duress. Michel Brewing Co. v. State [S. D.] 103 N. W. 40. None of the payments being made under honest belief on plaintiff's part that the law was valid, there was no mutual mistake of law by him and the officers of the state. Id.

24. Money paid by plaintiff for taxes which contract for management of property required defendants to pay. Seymour v. Warren, 93 N. Y. S. 651.

25. Hathaway v. Delaware County, 103 App. Div. 179, 93 N. Y. S. 436. Evidence in action for goods sold and work done held

Only the person who pays money through mistake or fraud or his assignee or one having an interest in the money can recover it.[27] A suit in assumpsit for money had and received to the plaintiff's use cannot be maintained against a mere servant or agent after he has paid over the money to his principal.[28]

Where payment of money has been enforced by execution upon a judgment or order of the court which is afterwards reversed or set aside, the law implies a promise to restore it to the party from whom it was exacted.[29]

If, without notice of another's claim thereto, a creditor receives money from his debtor in payment of a pre-existing debt, the true owner cannot thereafter compel him to account therefor.[30]

It has been said that to require proof of a fiduciary relation in establishing a case of money had and received is false in theory.[31]

In order to recover money deposited with another for a certain purpose, plaintiff must show that such purpose has been accomplished.[32] It is a complete defense to an action for money had and received that the money was paid under a contract and that the day for performance by defendant has not yet arrived.[33] to support finding for defendant on the main issue and also on his cross complaint for money paid by him for the use of plaintiff at his request in installing mining machinery. Abner Doble Co. v. McDonald, 145 Cal. 641, 79 P. 369.

26. A mere voluntary payment of the liabilities of another, without his request, will not give an action in favor of the person making the payment. Hathaway v. Delaware County, 103 App. Div. 179, 93 N. Y. S. 436. Evidence held insufficient to show that any part of the money advanced by plaintiff was used to pay a debt of defendant. Id. One who voluntarily pays the debt of another, without his request or promise to repay, cannot recover the amount so paid. McGlew v. McDade, 146 Cal. 553, 80 P. 695.

27. Held, that turf association could not recover purse paid by one of its members to one winning a race through fraud, where claim was not assigned to it and it had no interest in the money under its by-laws. American Trotting Ass'n v. Reynolds [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 410, 104 N. W. 578. A suit for recovery of interest paid to a village treasurer on public deposits can be recovered only by a suit by an officer or officers authorized to care for or protect such funds. Nicholson v. Maile, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 201.

28. Not against tax collector who collects illegal tax and pays the same over to the county treasurer as required by statute. Craig v. Boone [Cal.] 81 P. 22.

29. Payment on execution not a voluntary one, though there has been no seizure of property. Chambliss v. Hass, 125 Iowa, 484, 101 N. W. 153. Restitution required where new trial was granted after appeal to, and affirmance by, supreme court. Id.

30. Evidence as to whether plaintiff had notice that money previously paid him by defendant's husband, and which was applied on the latter's debt, belonged to defendant, and hence should have been applied on note sued on, held to sustain finding for plaintiff. Tanner v. Lee, 121 Ga. 524, 49 S. E. 592.

31. Note: Cole v. Bates, 186 Mass. 584, 72 N. E. 333, cited 3 C. L. 1692, n. 31—affirms the rule.

But "to require a fiduciary relationship in a suit for money had and received does away with recovery under the doctrine of waiver of tort. Hudson v. Silliland, 25 Ark. 100; Knapp v. Hobbs, 50 N. H. 476. Where such fiduciary relationship exists, recovery is upon trust principles. In re Hallet's Estate, L. R. 13 Ch. Div. 696. The principal case is correct, however, in refusing recovery. The plaintff's relatonship with the bank, being that of creditor, he can still collect from it, since the defendant has not the defendant's money, but that of the bank, against whom only has a tort been committed. Moore v. Moore, 127 Mass. 22; Keener on Quasi-Contracts, p. 167. Recovery is allowed on the theory of ratification where one person presumed to act for another, but here the defendant claimed adversely. Vaughan v. Mathews, 13 Q. B. 187."—5 Columbia L. R. 249.

32. One who deposits money with a bank to be held by it to indemnify certain persons from liability as sureties on injunction bonds given by him can recover it back only by showing that such persons have been discharged from liability, or have forfeited their right to the indemnity. Complaint held not to state a cause of action on the fomer ground by alleging that an execution issued on a judgment rendered in the action against the depositor was returned satisfied, where it also shows that the return was subsequently amended to show that the execution was not satisfied, it not being alleged that the judgment was in fact paid (Cambers v. First Nat. Bank, 133 F. 975), nor on the latter ground by alleging that sureties joined in a conspiracy to defeat an appeal by plaintiff from the judgment by causing the withdrawal of the supersedeas bond given or procured by them, where such appeal would only have been effective if taken from a subsequent order denying a motion for a new trial, and it does not appear that he made any attempt to, or intended to, appeal therefrom (Id.).

33. Cannot maintain action where it appears that money was paid on a contract for a deed, and that time for delivery of deed has not yet arrived, on the ground that the

§ 4. Use and occupation.[34]—Since the right to recover for the use and occupation of real property always involves the relation of landlord and tenant, it is treated in that title.[35]

§ 5. Torts which may be waived and sued as implied contracts.[36]—Where one wrongfully takes the goods of another and applies them to his own use, the owner may waive the tort and charge the wrongdoer in assumpsit on the common counts as for goods sold, or money received.[37] So, too, the law raises an implied promise on the part of one selling property belonging to another to pay the proceeds to the owner,[38] and the latter may waive the tort, affirm the act, and sue for money had and received.[39] A commission merchant who, without notice of the mortgage, receives and sells mortgaged cattle sent to him for sale, without the knowledge or consent of the mortgagee, and in violation of the terms of the mortgage, and pays the proceeds, less his commission, to the consignor, does not derive such a benefit from the transaction as to authorize the mortgagee to waive the tort and recover in an action on an implied contract.[40]

§ 6. Remedies and procedure.[41]—The action must of course be brought before the running of limitations against the claim.[42] contract has been altered so as to reduce the size of the house to be conveyed. In such case can require delivery of deed called for at proper time, if alteration was made after she executed it, and if made before, and contract did not therefore express true agreement, she should sue in equity for its rescission. Joseph v. Isaac, 95 N. Y. S. 532.

34. See 3 C. L. 1694.

35. See Landlord and Tenant, 4 C. L. 389.

36. See 3 C. L. 1695.

37. As where defendant received and used plaintiff's money, and transferred to her worthless securities in a corporation organized for the transaction of his own private business and entirely under his control. Donovan v. Purtell [Ill.] 75 N. E. 334. Evidence held to justify refusal to direct verdict for defendant. Id. Defendant who obtained marble which he had not bought, under order on railroad company to deliver to him certain other marble. Teetzel v. Davidson Bros. Marble Co. [Neb.] 104 N. W. 1068. Complaint alleging that plaintiffs intrusted money to defendants to be used in securing bail for a third person, and that they were to return the same when such bail was exonerated, but that they refused to so return it, and converted it to their own use, held to state a cause of action ex contractu, instead of ex delicto, and recovery permitted under theory of money had and received under implied contract to repay it. Logan v. Freerks [N. D.] 103 N. W. 426. Held further, that it must be so treated in view of the answer and the issues thereby tendered. Id. There is an implied promise on the part of one who unlawfully and fraudulently deprives another of his money to repay it (Humbird v. Davis, 210 Pa. 311, 59 A. 1082), and the latter may waive the tort and sue him in assumpsit for money had and received (Id.). An action may be maintained by the injured party for his share of secret profits made by defendants who were jointly interested with them in the purchase of a mine and who acted as their agents in the transaction. Must account for benefits so obtained and share them with plaintiffs. Id. Evidence held sufficient to render defendants jointly liable. Id. Even where money or goods have been wrongfully taken from plaintiff, so that an action of tort will lie, yet, in all cases where defendant has received the benefits of the transaction, either by a sale or retention of the property converted, or in some other manner, plaintiff may waive the tort and sue in assumpsit. Yonkerman v. Fuller's Adv. Ag., 135 F. 613. Benefits paid by plaintiff to the defendant in ignorance of the true situation gives the plaintiff a right of action quasi ex contractu, whether or not defendant is guilty of fraud. Id. In an action to recover overpayments made to defendant under contract employing him as advertising agent, allegations in amended petition alleging that defendants rendered false accounts held immaterial. Id.

38. Jester v. Knotts [Del.] 57 A. 1094.

39. Horse. Jester v. Knotts [Del.] 57 A. 1094; Southern R. Co. v. Born Steel Range Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 488. Where the pleadings do not show that the property has been converted into money, an action to recover the value of the property is ex delicto. In such case justice court has no jurisdiction. Id.

40. Is liable in conversion. Greer v. Newland [Kan.] 78 P. 835.

41. See 3 C. L. 1695.

42. Suit on implied contract for services held barred. Boogher v. Roach, 25 App. D. C. 324. Count upon quantum meruit for services held barred under Civ. Code 1895, § 3768, where it appeared that more than four years elapsed after termination of services before suit was brought, during all of which time plaintiff was sui juris. Cooper v. Clayton [Ga.] 50 S. E. 399. Under Ky. St. 1903, §§ 2515, 2519, limitations on actions for the recovery of money paid by mistake begin to run from the time when the mistake should, by ordinary diligence, have been discovered. German Security Bank v. Columbia Finance & Trust Co. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 761. If action is brought after five years from making the mistake, plaintiff must allege and prove that he discovered it within five years before bringing suit, and could not,

In an action to recover money deposited to indemnify plaintiff's sureties on the ground that they have forfeited their right to indemnity by their acts and conduct, they are necessary parties defendant.[43]

An action on an implied promise follows the nature of the consideration, and as that is joint or several, so will the action be.[44]

The actions of assumpsit and for money had and received will lie where they have not been superseded by the code.[45] A complaint substantially in the form of the common count in assumpsit for goods sold and delivered and labor and work performed for a third person upon defendant's promise to pay therefor is sufficient under the New York code.[46] Under the North Carolina code an exception to a complaint that by its form it is for money had and received and, as such, cannot be maintained unless the money has been actually received by defendant, is untenable.[47] The usual rules of pleading apply.[48] A petition for recovery on an implied contract to pay the reasonable value of the services rendered is not fatally defective because it contains no averment of a promise to pay.[49] In Michigan in assumpsit for labor and materials furnished for the erection of a building, no sworn statement of the amount due laborers and materialmen need be filed where no liens for labor and matrials are pending and the time for filing them has passed.[50] A complaint to recover money paid for goods purchased, on the ground that the seller had no title, must allege that he had no title at the time of the sale.[51] One suing to recover for money paid to another's use must allege that it has not been repaid.[52] A count for money had and received and one on a note given in settlement of such claim are properly joined in the same complaint.[53] A petition on a quantum by reasonable diligence, have discovered it sooner. Id. Claim of decedent's aunt for her care held barred by limitations and laches. Barnett's Adm'r v. Adams, 26 Ky. L. R. 622, 82 S. W. 406. Part of claim for caring for property which decedent inherited from her deceased father held barred by limitations. Id.

43. Cambers v. First Nat. Bank, 133 F. 975.

44. Humbird v. Davis, 210 Pa. 311, 59 A. 1082. Where agent is given money by several persons to purchase a mine, they may jointly sue him in assumpsit for their shares of secret profits made by him in the transaction, though their contributions to the fund were unequal. Id.

45. See Assumpsit, 5 C. L. 297.

46. Worthington v. Worthington, 100 App. Div. 332, 91 N. Y. S. 443.

47. Under Const. 1868, art. 4, § 1, and Code, § 133, abolishing forms of action, Code, § 233, prescribing the contents of the complaint, and § 550, providing that pleadings shall be liberally construed. Staton v. Webb, 137 N. C. 35, 49 S. E. 55.

48. See Pleading, 4 C. L. 980. A complaint for money had and received alleging that defendant was on a certain date indebted to a certain person in a specified sum for money had and received by defendant for his use and benefit with an allegation of an assignment of the claim to plaintiff and that the amount is unpaid is sufficient. Though not strictly in compliance with code provision that complaint shall consist of a statement of facts constituting the cause of action. McDonald v. Pacific Debenture Co., 146 Cal. 667, 80 P. 1090. Defendant need not in the answer deny the allegations in any more specific language than that in which they are set forth in the complaint. Denial that defendant was indebted to person in question in sum alleged or any other sum for money had and received for his use or benefit, or upon any account at all, held sufficient. Id. Petition, when properly construed, held to have set forth but two causes of action, one on quantum meruit for value of services rendered by him to decedent's testator, and the other for breach of contract made by plaintiff's father with testator for plaintiff's benefit. Cooper v. Claxton [Ga.] 50 S. E. 399. Petition in action to recover overpayment on contract for electric power held sufficient. Southern Iron Co. v. Laclede Power Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 450.

49. Brown v. Ricketts, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 215. Not ground for reversal, where from the whole record it appears that substantial justice has been done. Brown v. Ricketts, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 675. An agreement to pay being self evident from the facts found by the jury in a special verdict, judgment may be granted thereon. Id.

50. Morton v. Eaton [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 524, 104 N. W. 726. In assumpsit for labor and materials furnished for a barn, case held properly submitted to the jury. Id.

51. First Nat. Bank v. Columbia Sav. & Trust Co., 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 525.

52. Failure of cross complaint for money paid for the use of plaintiff at his request to allege that the amount demanded had not been paid, held cured by answer denying the original indebtedness, by failure to object to evidence on that ground, and by the findings. Abner Doble Co. v. McDonald, 145 Cal. 641, 79 P. 369.

53. For money paid under void contract. Schultz v. Kosbab [Wis.] 103 N. W. 237.

meruit for services rendered for a decedent cannot be amended so as to recover on an express contract made with decedent's widow after his death to recover a given sum for such services.[54]

If the relation of the parties is such that a presumption of a promise to pay arises from the mere acceptance of beneficial work, the defendant has the burden of overcoming the presumption by proof that the work was done gratuitously, or for support and maintenance merely.[55] If the family or parental relation existed, the burden is on the claimant to show an agreement to compensate him for his work.[56] If the existence of such a relationship does not conclusively appear from closeness of kinship, the party asserting the status must prove it.[57] The burden is on one admitting the receipt of money intrusted to him for a specific purpose, to be repaid when such purpose was fulfilled, to show that he was thereafter authorized to retain it for a different purpose.[58]

In an action to recover land defendant may not give evidence of the value of improvements in the absence of a claim therefor in his answer.[59] In order to recover on an implied contract for materials furnished,[60] or for services, their value and the fact that they have not been paid for must be shown.[61] Plaintiffs cannot recover for the use of plans furnished under an invalid contract or a contract which they failed to perform in the absence of a showing that they were actually used,[62] or in the absence of proof of the fair value of the use.[63] The contract price is no proof of the fair value of the use.[64] A party who, in derogation of the statute of frauds, claims an interest in lands by virtue of a parol agreement, must prove it to the point of demonstration.[65] In an action for services in the operation of a machine, plaintiff is not entitled to the value of his services as a chemist, where it is not shown that only a chemist could operate such machine.[66]

In an action on an implied contract for services, any competent evidence tend-54. Moore v. Smith, 121 Ga. 479, 49 S. E. 601. Petition held to allege cause of action on quantum meruit for services performed and not on contract. Id.

55, 56, 57. Fitzpatrick v. Dooley [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 719.

58. Logan v. Freerks [N. D.] 103 N. W. 426.

59. Caraway v. Moore [Ark.] 86 S. W. 993.

60. Proof as to reasonable value of materials furnished by plaintiff to third person at defendant's request held sufficient to go to the jury. Worthington v. Worthington, 100 App. Div. 332, 91 N .Y. S. 443.

61. Luizzi v. Brady's Estate [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 59, 103 N. W. 574. Evidence as to what decedent said to him on subject of proposed codicil to her will held not to show valuation of services by decedent. Id. In action for work and labor, judgment for plaintiff in excess of plaintiff's estimate, which was the highest given, held erroneous, and judgment reversed on that ground and because against the weight of the evidence. Kassner v. Edsall, 92 N. Y. S. 288. In action for services of plaintiff's son, who was discharged after working under a void contract of apprenticeship, held, that plaintiff could not recover on evidence merely showing what was paid laborers for similar work, there being no proof that son's services were worth that amount. Fahlstedt v. Lake Shore Engine Works [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 152, 103 N. W. 588.

62. If individual members of county board learned anything from plans, held, no evidence that board received and used such information. Kinney v. Manitowoc County [C. C. A.] 135 F. 491.

63. Kinney v. Manitowoc Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 491. Cannot recover for retention of plans sent to navy department with request to return them, in absence of showing of damages. Proof of damages held too remote and speculative. Lundborg's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 23.

64. Even if county board could be charged with use by individual members, contract price no proof of its value. Kinney v. Manitowoc County [C. C. A.] 135 F. 491.

65. Hartman v. Powell [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 628. Evidence in suit to restrain owner of land from removing or interfering with pier and porch column placed on his land under alleged parol permission, held insufficient to support complainant's claim. Id.

66. Klein v. American Cigar Co., 95 N. Y. S. 756. In an action for services, materials, and expenses connected with the operation and construction of a machine, where it appears that plaintiff was to be paid for the materials under a special contract, and was to have his expenses, and the only evidence as to the value of his services was as to their value because of his being a chemist, and it did not appear that the services of a chemist were necessary to operate the machine, a general verdict in his favor will be set aside, where there is nothing to show upon what theory the jury found such verdict. Id.

ing to rebut the presumption that plaintiff expected to receive, and defendant to pay compensation, is admissible.[67] In an action for services rendered decedent during his last illness and for board and room rent, the relations of the parties and the circumstances under which the services were rendered may be shown.[68] Declarations of the decedent are admissible for the purpose of showing that services were rendered under an understanding or agreement that they were to be paid for.[69]

In case the services were rendered under a contract, it is generally held to be admissible to limit the amount of the recovery.[70] In assumpsit for extra work, specifications for the work done under the original contract are inadmissible.[71]

In an action for money had and received it is proper for plaintiff to prove by any competent evidence that the money in question or any part thereof has been paid to defendant, and for defendant to prove that it has not.[72] In an action at law by an executor to recover money retained by his attorney, where defendant shows that plaintiff allowed him to retain the money in payment for his services, plaintiff may show that he was induced to do so by deceit.[73]

67. Evidence as to whether a witness ever heard defendant request plaintiff to do any work. Grotjan v. Rice [Wis.] 102 N. W. 551. In action for services rendered in caring for deceased during his last illness, deed executed by decedent to plaintiff prior to rendition of services, and before it could be inferred that services sued for would be needed, and inferentially shown to have been given for a different consideration, held inadmissible. Birch v. Birch [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 1106. In action for architect's services, survey of part of building for which services were rendered held inadmissible, where it does not appear by whom, or at whose request, or for what purpose it was made. Barnett v. Peper [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 345.

68. Sum usually paid persons rendering service for hire, and ordinary charges for rooms and board held not necessarily controlling where friendship existed between the parties. Luizzi v. Brady's Estate [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 59, 103 N. W. 574. Question as to whether services rendered decedent during period of two years before her death were rendered under a mutual understanding that they were to be paid for held for the jury under the evidence. Id. An implied contract by a parent to pay a child for services can only be proved by showing the circumstances and what the parties said and did in respect to their relations to each other. Wessinger v. Roberts, 67 S. C. 240, 45 S. E. 169.

69. Should be limited to that purpose. Luizzi v. Brady's Estate [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 59, 103 N. W. 574. Declarations of decedent as to her intention to pay her daughter for services. Wessinger v. Roberts, 67 S. C. 240, 45 S. E. 169.

70. Defendant may, in action for labor and materials furnished under contract not completed on time, set up the contract for the purpose of limiting the recovery to the contract price, less the amount of his damages caused by the delay. Stephens v. Phoenix Bridge Co. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 248. Proof showing special agreement to pay same rates for labor and material as was paid for other work, held not a fatal variance from complaint on quantum meruit seeking to recover the reasonable value thereof, in view of defendant's answer, and under 2 Bal. Ann. Codes & St. § 4944, providing that no variance shall be deemed fatal unless it has misled the adverse party to his prejudice. Griffith v. Ridpath [Wash.] 80 P. 820.

71. Streator Independent Tel. Co. v. Continental Tel. Const. Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 546.

72. Evidence as to whether person alleged to have paid money to defendant was indebted to him under a certain contract, or on account of certain logging transactions. Le Clair Co. v. Rogers-Ruger Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 346. Action can be maintained only when defendant has received money which in equity and good conscience he ought to pay to plaintiff. In action by assignee of one of the partners in a joint enterprise to recover a claim belonging to the firm, alleged to have been paid to defendant, evidence held insufficient to show that defendant had collected or received any part of the debt in question. Id. In action to recover money paid under protest and in order to be relieved from certain suits, where plaintiff testified that he did not owe defendant anything, but had compromised his indebtedness, and given a note therefor which he had paid prior to the commencement of the suits against him, held, that plaintiff was entitled to introduce note. Grubbs v. Ferguson, 136 N. C. 60, 48 S. E. 551. Evidence that, after execution of note, defendant sued plaintiff on a debt, and had him arrested, held to have no bearing on issue whether note was final settlement between the parties, and its admission was error. Id. Under an allegation of the advancement of money to defendant for its use and benefit, a bond executed by defendant to plaintiff, reciting defendant's need of money, and its advancement by plaintiff, is admissible to show the nature of the transaction between the parties. Right to use bond in evidence if necessary not waived by election to stand on count for money lent rather than on count on bond given to secure its payment. Aetna Indemnity Co. v. Ladd [C. C. A.] 135 F. 636.

73. Reilly v. Provost, 93 App. Div. 208, 90 N. Y. S. 591.

A suit upon a quantum meruit or implied contract, for services is not supported by proof of an express contract to pay a contingent fee therefor, which is champertous and which has been discarded and abandoned, and under which no compensation is claimed.[74] Recovery cannot be had under a complaint for moneys paid under duress where the proof offered and the judgment finally asked is for moneys paid under a judicial sale of property taken from the purchasers.[75]

The question whether a parental or family relationship existed may be one of fact or law according to the circumstances.[76] The question whether the evidence rebuts the inference that services are rendered with the expectation that they will be paid for is for the jury.[77] The question whether the facts as shown by the undisputed evidence create a liability, under the law, on the theory of an implied contract, is one of law for the court.[78]

A failure to find the value of services which have been held gratuitous is immaterial.[79]

IMPLIED TRUSTS; IMPLIED WARRANTIES; IMPOUNDING; IMPRISONMENT FOR DEBT; IMPROVEMENTS, see latest topical index.

INCEST.

Intercourse by one with the daughter of his deceased wife is incestuous where there is living issue of the marriage to continue the affinity between him and the wife's relations.[80] Though the facts would have justified a conviction of rape, it is none the less incest,[81] though in some jurisdictions a distinction is drawn by the statute between incestuous rape and incestuous adultery.[82] Counts for rape and incest based on the same act may be joined.[83] Knowledge of the relationship when not required by the statute need not be alleged.[84] Where the female did not consent,[85] or it has been said where she was under the paternal influence of defendant,[86] she is not an accomplice, though some courts decline to recognize any middle ground between ravishment and that voluntary assent which will make the woman an accomplice.[87] Testimony of a girl that she "had sexual intercourse" not a mere conclusion.[88] Evidence that the woman became pregnant and went to a distant place where defendant corresponded with her and sent her money is admissible.[89] Declarations of the woman when dying in child birth are not admissible.[90] Evidence of cruel treatment not connected with the sexual act is in-

74. Boogher v. Roach, 25 App. D. C. 324.

75. Foster v. Central Nat. Bank, 93 N. Y. S. 603.

76. Whether one taken into family while a minor was a servant or member of the family held for jury. Fitzpatrick v. Dooley [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 719. Whether decedent was a member of plaintiff's family is a mixed question of law and fact for the jury. Birch v. Birch [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 1106.

77. Question for jury whether services as transfer clerk were rendered under implied understanding that railroad would pay for them, where evidence for plaintiff shows that they were not rendered as a gratuity, but under a mistake on the part of plaintiff as to his rights. Blowers v. Southern R. Co., 70 S. C. 377, 50 S. E. 19.

78. Contract to pay for good will of business. Acme Harvester Co. v. Craver, 110 Ill. App. 413.

79. Dallman v. Frank [Cal. App.] 82 P. 564.

80. Tagert v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 293, collating and distinguishing the cases.

81. State v. Rennick [Iowa] 103 N. W. 159. Under Rev. St. § 7019. In that daughter was under age of consent, or was overcome by force and violence. Straub v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 529.

82. Whidby v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 811.

83. Wiggins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 821.

84. State v. Rennick [Iowa] 103 N. W. 159.

85. State v. Rennick [Iowa] 103 N. W. 159. And see note 3 C. L. 1696.

86. Straub v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 529. See note on this point 3 C. L. 1695 n. 82.

87. Whidby v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 811.

88. Straub v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 529.

89, 90. People v. Stison [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 104, 103 N. W. 542.

admissible where there is no evidence that the woman yielded from fear.[91] Other acts of intercourse are not admissible to rebut evidence that the prosecution was inspired by malice.[92]

INCOMPETENCY.

Scope of topic.—This topic treats only of incompetency to contract. Incompetency to execute a will is elsewhere treated.[93]

§ 1. Mental weakness sufficient to constitute incapacity[94] must be such that the person does not know what he is about and is incapable of appreciating the effect of his acts.[95] Hence one who comprehends the nature and effect of the transaction in which he is engaged is not incompetent.[96] Mere dullness of intellect,[97] weakness,[98] or imbecility of mind, or inability to act wisely or discreetly or to effect a good bargain is not enough.[99] The queston of incompetency is one of fact.[1]

§ 2. Effect of incompetency on contracts.[2]—As a general rule a contract entered into by an incompetent is voidable only,[3] though under certain circumstances it may be totally void.[4] The rule is the same, though the incapacity be the re-

91. Whidby v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 811, and see 3 C. L. 1696, n. 87.

92. Wiggins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 821.

93. See Wills, 4 C. L. 1863.

94. See 3 C. L. 1696.

95. Intoxication to render one incompetent. Effect of intoxication on contract. Cameron-Barkley Co. v. Thornton Light & Power Co., 138 N. C. 365, 50 S. E. 695. In the absence of unfair advantage, the drunkenness which will relieve from a contract must be such as deprives a party of his reason and understanding (Spetz v. Howard, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 420), and so complete that the party was unable to understand the nature and effect of the act in which he was engaged and the business he was transacting (Waldron v. Angleman [N. J. Law] 58 A. 568).

96. Not necessary that he understand the legal effect of the words employed in a deed. Moorhead v. Scovel [Pa.] 60 A. 13. Unreasonable and unjustifiable acts towards one's family does not show incompetency. Griesy v. Veldhouse [Iowa] 101 N. W. 741.

97. That a party is so intoxicated that he does not "fully" realize what he is doing is insufficient. Nance v. Kemper [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 937.

98. To avoid a deed. Kirk v. Kirk [Ga.] 50 S. E. 928. Mere weakness of intellect from sickness or old age is insufficient. Moorhead v. Scovel [Pa.] 60 A. 13.

99. Cameron-Barkley Co. v. Thornton Light & Power Co., 138 N. C. 365, 50 S. E. 695.

Evidence insufficient to show incapacity in a grantor who executed a deed of gift. Moorhead v. Scovel [Pa.] 60 A. 13; Ice v. Ice, 26 Ky. L. R. 1065, 83 S. W. 135; Post v. Hagan [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 566. To show mental incapacity in a grantor 76 years of age and in feeble health. Furnish's Adm'r v. Lilly [Ky.] 84 S. W. 734.

Grantor 80 years of age, infirm and confined to his bed. Brown v. Cole, 126 Iowa, 711, 102 N. W. 782. To show insanity in a grantor. Griesy v. Veldhouse [Iowa] 101 N. W. 741.

Evidence sufficient to sustain a finding of incompetency on an inquisition of lunacy. In re Preston, 46 Misc. 46, 93 N. Y. S. 283. To show mental incapacity in a grantor. Parker v. Ballard [Ga.] 51 S. E. 465. A finding on an inquisition of lunacy that the alleged lunatic "is incompetent to manage his affairs, that incompetency manifests itself in foolish and irrational conduct concerning business affairs, failure to recognize his own handwriting, etc., is equivalent to a finding of imbecility. In re Preston, 46 Misc. 46, 93 N. Y. S. 283.

NOTE. Mental capacity to execute a deed is such a degree as enables the grantor to clearly understand the nature and consequences of the conveyance, and the fact that his mental powers are impaired, or that he is subject to a delusion, if this is not such as to influence him in making the conveyance, does not impair its validity. Burgess v. Pollock, 53 Iowa, 273, 36 Am. Rep. 218; Lindsay v. Lindsey, 50 Ill. 79, 99 Am. Dec. 489; Blakely v. Blakely, 33 N. J. Eq. 502; Stewart v. Flint, 59 Vt. 144; Whittaker v. Southwest Virginia Improvement Co., 34 W. Va. 217; Dennett v. Dennett, 44 N. H. 531, 84 Am. Dec. 97. See Tiffany, Real Prop. 1152 et seq.

1. Whether one was so drunk as to render him incompetent to contract is a question for the jury. Cameron-Barkley Co. v. Thornton Light & Power Co., 138 N. C. 365, 50 S. E. 695.

2. See 3 C. L. 1697.

3. A deed by an incompetent. Logan v. Vanarsdall [Ky.] 86 S. W. 981.

4. A conveyance of the homestead by the husband at a time when he is non compos as to his duty to his wife and mentally incom-

sult of the incompetent's own act.[5] Incompetency is not available as against subsequent bona fide purchasers.[6]

§ 3. Remedies and procedure.[7]—The continuation of normal or rational conditions in the mind of a person may be established by abstract testimony of nonexpert witnesses,[8] and a nonexpert after detailing the extent of his opportunities to deduce a correct opinion may give his judgment as to the sanity of another's mind.[9] Mental incapacity once shown to exist is presumed to continue.[10] This, however, is a rebuttable presumption and may be overcome by parol evidence.[11] An adjudication of incompetency creates no presumption that the condition existed previous to such adjudication.[12]

An incompetent who seeks to avoid his contract must rescind within a reasonable time after regaining his normal condition,[13] and must surrender the consideration received as a condition precedent.[14] On cancellation of a deed, the grantee should be placed in statu quo.[15] Limitations do not run against a right of action accruing to one by virtue of an act done by an incompetent while such condition exists.[16]

INDECENCY, LEWDNESS AND OBSCENITY.[17]

Prostitution.[18]—Evidence that a woman cohabits with one certain man does show her to be a prostitute.[19] Within the statute punishing one who procures or permits his wife to live in a house of prostitution, a house containing several rooms, each occupied by a prostitute as a place of prostitution for herself alone, is a house of prostitution.[20] "Virtuous female" in an indictment is sufficient under a statute relating to inveighing females "reputed virtuous" into houses of prostitution.[21] petent to bind himself is void and equity will cancel it. Moseley v. Larson [Miss.] 38 So. 234.

5. A contract made by one so intoxicated as not to know the consequences is voidable, even though the intoxication is voluntary. Fowler v. Meadow Brook Water Co., 208 Pa. 473, 57 A. 959. Voluntary intoxication producing mental incompetency, invalidates a contract executed while the party was in such condition. Cameron-Barkley Co. v. Thornton Light & Power Co., 138 N. C. 365, 50 S. E. 695.

NOTE. Drunken persons as parties to relation of principal and agent: If a person at the time of entering into a contract, executing a deed, or appointing an agent, is so drunk as to be incapable of understanding the nature and effect of his act, the effect of his act is the same as if he were insane from any other cause, hence the appointment of an agent by a drunken person and acts done by the agent in pursuance of such appointment are no more binding on him than if entered into personally. Bush v. Buinig, 113 Pa. 310, 57 Am. Rep. 469; Carpenter v. Rodgers, 61 Mich. 384, 1 Am. St. Rep. 595. The fact that the principal was intoxicated when he made the contract does not render it void, but only voidable, and he may repudiate or ratify it when he becomes sober (Mansfield v. Watson, 2 Iowa, 111; Reinicker v. Smith, 2 Har. & J. [Md.] 421), or it may be ratified by his guardian, committee or representative (Broadwater v. Darne, 10 Mo. 277).—From Clark & Skyles, Ag., p. 46.

6. Logan v. Vanarsdall [Ky.] 86 S. W. 981.

Note: This is dictum and seems wrong in principle.

7. See 3 C. L. 1697.

8. Lucas v. McDonald, 126 Iowa, 678, 102 N. W. 532.

9, 10. Howard v. Carter [Kan.] 80 P. 61.

11. An adjudication of incompetency two years prior to the transaction in question creates only a rebuttable presumption of incompetency at the time of the transaction, which may be removed by parol. Logan v. Vanarsdall [Ky.] 86 S. W. 981.

12. A finding of incompetency on an inquisition of lunacy under Code Civ. Proc. § 2335, has no retroactive effect, and is not evidence that the person was incompetent some months previous. Swanstrom v. Day, 93 N. Y. S. 192.

13. On the ground of drunkenness. Fowler v. Meadow Brook Water Co., 208 Pa. 473, 57 A. 959. That one does not seek relief for five years is a circumstance to be considered. Griesy v. Veldhouse [Iowa] 101 N. W. 741.

14. Fowler v. Meadow Brook Water Co., 208 Pa. 473, 57 A. 959.

15. Should be given a lien for taxes on other moneys expended because of the conveyance, and charged with the rental value. Lawson v. Davis, 26 Ky. L. R. 1014, 82 S. W. 1010.

16. Howard v. Carter [Kan.] 80 P. 61.

17. See, also, Disorderly Houses, 5 C. L. 1025; Profanity and Blasphemy, 4 C. L. 1084.

18. See 3 C. L. 1697.

19. Van Dalsen v. Com. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 255.

20. People v. Mead, 145 Cal. 500, 78 P. 1047.

21. State v. Dickerhoff [Iowa] 103 N. W. 350.

Obscene words or publications.[22]—A female 21 years of age is not a "youth" within a statute relating to communications designed to corrupt the morals of youth,[23] nor is an ambiguous communication exhibiting no manifest indecency within the statute.[24]

Lascivious conduct.[25]—Under the California statute punishing lascivious acts which do not constitute any other crime and which tend to arouse the sexual desire of any child, the sex of the child is immaterial,[26] nor need it be alleged.[27]

INDEMNITY.

§ 1. Definition and distinctions.[28]—If the contract is to indemnify or save harmless from loss or liability only, it is an indemnity contract as that term is ordinarily used;[29] but if in addition it undertakes that a contract made by another shall be performed, it is in that respect guaranty.[30] Both may exist by terms of the same instrument.[31] From this it follows that, while guaranty is a collateral undertaking, a contract of indemnity is an independent agreement.[32] Where the indemnity is given against a class of casualties or for the protection of specific property it is generally called insurance.[33] The cases treating of the equitable right of indemnity as between co-obligors will be found in their appropriate titles.[34] Forthcoming and other bonds, though closely allied to indemnity, are treated elsewhere.[35] A covenant on the part of a lessee to pay taxes is not one of indemnity.[36]

§ 2. The contract. Requisites and validity.[37]—Like other contracts, the contract of indemnity is vitiated by fraud,[38] and must be based upon a valuable Evidence held to sustain conviction of man and wife for enticing girl into house of prostitution. State v. Dickerhoff [Iowa] 103 N. W. 350.

22. See 3 C. L. 1697.

23. Edwards v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 797.

24. Writing requesting recipient to "stay with" writer after school held not designed to corrupt the morals of youth. Edwards v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 797.

25. See 3 C. L. 1698.

26, 27. People v. Curtis [Cal. App.] 81 P. 674.

28. See 3 C. L. 1698.

Laws regulating casualty and indemnity companies are discussed in the title Insurance, 4 C. L. 157.

29. Where it was necessary to complete buildings in order to make a second mortgagee secure, a bond given the latter to secure the performance of the building contract without unreasonable delay held to constitute a contract of indemnity. Burr v. Union Surety & Guaranty Co., 95 N. Y. S. 114.

30. Trinity Parish v. Aetna Indemnity Co., 37 Wash. 515, 79 P. 1097.

31. Building contractor's bond conditioned for "faithful performance of all conditions," etc. Trinity Parish v. Aetna Indemnity Co., 37 Wash. 515, 79 P. 1097. Defendant purchased certain lots, taking title in a trustee, who executed mortgages to secure deferred payments of purchase money. Defendant then entered into a contract with the trustee, thereby agreeing to pay the mortgages, interest, etc., and to indemnify the trustee for all loss on his part by reason of his having executed such mortgages, held, that the contract was not merely one of indemnity, but also bound defendant to pay the mortgage debt and could be enforced by the trustee's assignee. Hay v. Cudaback [C. C. A.] 139 F. 369.

32. Mortgagee agreed to indemnify a purchaser of a portion of the property mortgaged against judgment liens for a present consideration passing to the mortgagee. Peterson v. Creason [Or.] 81 P. 574. Cyc. Law Dict. "Guaranty."

33. See Insurance, 4 C. L. 157.

34. See Contribution, 5 C. L. 751; Suretyship, 4 C. L. 1595; Torts, 4 C. L. 1682.

35. See Attachment, 5 C. L. 302; Bonds, 5 C. L. 422; Executions, 5 C. L. 1384; Injunction, 4 C. L. 96; Replevin, 4 C. L. 1284, and the like.

36. Broadwell v. Banks, 134 F. 470.

37. See 3 C. L. 1698.

38. Where defendant was a native of Greece and at the time of entering into the contract had been in this country about five years and had "but an imperfect knowledge of the English language," but was "a man of good, shrewd business ability," and contract was fully explained to him by an attorney, consideration.[39] Being an independent agreement, the contract is not within the statute of frauds.[40] The acceptance of the contract is an approval of it.[41] The validity of a bond given an unincorporated association is not affected by the fact that the personnel of the membership of such association is constantly changing;[42] but it may be enforced by those who are members of the association at any given time.[43]

§ 3. Interpretation and effect of contract.[44]—In the construction of the contract the intention of the parties governs.[45] Statements and representations held no fraud. Waas v. Anderson [Conn.] 61 A. 433. And see Waring v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 24 App. D. C. 119.

39. Vendee waiving objections to goods and accepting same held a sufficient consideration. James v. Libby, 92 N. Y. S. 1047, rvg. 44 Misc. 210, 88 N. Y. S. 812, on other grounds. Where, as part consideration for the purchase of certain personal property replevied, defendant agreed to indemnify plaintiff, as surety on a forthcoming bond given in such suit, held, indemnity contract was founded on sufficient consideration. Waas v. Anderson [Conn.] 61 A. 433.

40. Peterson v. Creason [Or.] 81 P. 574.

41. Bond given lodge by one of its officers. Coombs v. Harford, 99 Me. 426, 59 A. 529. One who accepts and acts on an indemnity contract without objection is bound by the limitations in its terms, though it does not cover the risks contemplated by the obligee. Orion Knitting Mills v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 137 N. C. 565, 50 S. E. 304.

42, 43. Coombs v. Harford, 99 Me. 426, 59 A. 529.

44. See 3 C. L. 1699.

45. See 3 C. L. 1699, n. 42.

ILLUSTRATIONS. Contracts construed: A deposit by a tenant to secure the performance of the conditions of lease held not to apply to the tenant's obligation to surrender the premises at the end of the term. Wolf v. Dembosky, 95 N. Y. S. 559. Where defendant owned coal under land, the surface of which was owned by another, and conveyed the coal to plaintiff, giving an obligation to indemnify him for any damage resulting to the surface of the land by reason of "skillful and careful mining," held, such contract did not impose on plaintiff the duty of leaving proper and sufficient supports for the surface. Youghlogheny River Coal Co. v. Allegheny Nat. Bank, 211 Pa. 319, 60 A. 924. Complaint showing application of bank's funds by the cashier in payment of the latter's individual indebtedness held to state a cause of action on cashier's fidelity bond protecting bank from cashier's fraud, dishonest or criminal acts. Rankin v. Bush, 102 App. Div. 510, 92 N. Y. S. 866. Complaint showing misappropriation or embezzlement of bank's funds by cashier held to state a cause of action on latter's bond. Id. Vendor of sausages agreeing to indemnify vendee for any claim of too much fat made by foreign purchaser, held, could recover on such contract, the sausages being denied entrance into the foreign country. James v. Libby, 92 N. Y. S. 1047, rvg. 44 Misc. 210, 88 N. Y. S. 812. See 2 C. L. 1700, n. 51. Where defendant purchased tea of plaintiff to be sold at retail, plaintiff agreeing to give a building lot to every purchaser of a pound of tea who paid $2 extra for a deed, and defendant guarantied that all the lots owned by plaintiff would be sold within three months, held that, on expiration of the three months, plaintiff was entitled to recover of defendant $2 for each lot which it had failed to dispose of. Hathaway v. O'Gorman, 26 R. I. 476, 59 A. 397. A stipulation in a building contract that the last instalment due thereunder is to be paid when the building is surrendered free of all liens, requires an indemnitor, which gives an undertaking conditioned that the principal shall faithfully comply with the terms of the contract, to see that the building is surrendered free from liens. McKinnon v. Higgins [Or.] 81 P. 581. Contract indemnifying county and fiscal court against loss, the indemnitor is not liable for personal injuries resulting from a defective elevator in the county courthouse. Simons v. Gregory [Ky.] 85 S. W. 751. Contract indemnifying employer from loss by larceny or embezzlement of employe held not to cover debts due employer by employe for money borrowed. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Overstreet [Ky.] 84 S. W. 764. One indemnifying an employer against any act of fraud or dishonesty on the part of an employee in connection with the duties of his office or position, held not liable for the price of a bill of goods bought of the indemnitee by the employe as an independent purchaser. Orion Knitting Mills v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 137 N. C. 565, 50 S. E. 304. Where plaintiff corporation sold defendant its business and defendant covenanted to save plaintiff harmless from all claims, etc., on account of debts, contracts or engagements, held, defendant was not liable for the salary of plaintiff's president, who acted as general manager after the sale, in the absence of any showing that plaintiff agreed to continue its business during the president's term or to retain him as manager after it ceased business. Busell Trimmer Co. v. Coburn [Mass.] 74 N. E. 334. Where surety company becomes surety for builder on contract for erection of 21 houses and also becomes surety for owner on contract with third person to complete and sell fifteen of them, the two contracts are separate and distinct, and, where surety company completes the 21 houses on default of the contractor, the fact that the owner has failed to pay the builder the entire contract price does not authorize the company to foreclose a deed of trust on the fifteen houses, given it by the owner to secure performance of the second contract. An attempt to do so will be enjoined, the rights of the surety growing out of the failure of the owner to pay

made for the purpose of securing the contract will not be construed as warranties unless the language used is incapable of any other interpretation;[40] but the contract providing that any willful misstatement or suppression of fact by the indemnitee shall render the contract void, a mere belief on the part of an officer of a corporate indemnitee that it is immaterial whether the questions are answered truly or not does not render such answers immaterial.[47] "Willful misstatement" means any material false statement made voluntarily with knowledge of its falsity.[48] In the absence of mistake, fraud or ambiguity, the legal effect of the terms of the contract cannot be modified by extrinsic evidence of any preliminary negotiations or agreements, or as to how the parties understood the transaction.[49] By reference thereto, another contract may be made a part of the indemnity obligation.[50] A bond of indemnity, not stipulating how long it shall remain in force, but covenanting that so long as it shall so remain the obligor shall be paid an annual premium in advance, does not require the payment of the premium so as to continue the obligation, but leaves the obligee at liberty to decline to make payment, and thus put a period to the contract, so far as the rights of third persons are not affected.[51] The creditor acquires no interest in money[52] or security[53] given by the indemnitor to the indemnitee to protect the latter until the indemnitor becomes insolvent and a claim is made.[54] Where one covenanted not to sue one joint tort feasor the fact that he gave such joint tort feasor an indemnity bond does not change the character of the transaction to a release.[55] The execution of an indemnity bond may constitute an election to sue in assumpsit on prospective torts.[56] One giving a bond to a corporation in its corporate name is estopped to deny its capacity to sue.[57]

§ 4. Actions on contract.[58]—The contract being strictly one of indemnity, the indemnitee cannot recover thereon unless actual loss be shown,[59] though it the contract price being left for the determination of a court of law. Mercantile Trust Co. v. Hensey, 21 App. D. C. 38.

46. Fidelity insurance. Guthrie Nat. Bank v. Fidelity & Deposit Co., 14 Okl. 636, 79 P. 102.

47. Fidelity insurance. Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Bank of Timmonsville [C. C. A.] 139 F. 101.

48. Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Bank of Timmonsville [C. C. A.] 139 F. 101. Instruction that bond was not avoided unless the misstatements were made "with intent to secure renewals of the bond," held erroneous. Id.

49. Orion Knitting Mills v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 137 N. C. 565, 50 S. E. 304.

50. Indemnity contract reciting that the principal had entered into a written agreement bearing a certain date, "in substance practically as follows," held to incorporate the principal's contract so as to render the indemnitor liable for a breach thereof. Ausplund v Aetna Indemnity Co. [Or.] 81 P. 577. Where a bond is conditioned for compliance with certain covenants of a specified lease, such covenants are as much a part of the condition of the bond as if set forth therein. McCullough v. Moore, 111 Ill. App. 545.

51. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Libby [Neb.] 101 N. W. 994.

52. Where the indemnitor pays money to the indemnitee to indemnify it against a claim made, the money belongs to the indemnitee. Cannot be garnished as belonging to the claimant. Collins, Grayson & Co. v. Savannah, F. & W. R. Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 477.

53. Mortgage given by debtor to protect his surety. Dyer v. Jacoway [Ark.] 88 S. W. 901.

54. Where mortgage was given by debtor to protect his surety, the latter may in good faith release the security after the debtor's insolvency and before claim is made. Dyer v. Jacoway [Ark.] 88 S. W. 901.

55. Robertson v. Trammell [Tex.] 83 S. W. 1098.

56. Where a street railway company executed a bond to indemnify a city against all loss, damage, etc., occasioned by the railway company, held, such bond determined the rights and liabilities between the parties and precluded the city from maintaining an action of trespass on the case to recover from the railway company the amount of a judgment rendered against the city for a defect in a street caused by the railway company's negligence. City of Pawtucket v. Pawtucket Elec. Co. [R. I.] 61 A. 48.

57. Thompson v. Commercial Union Assur. Co. [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1073.

58. See 3 C. L. 1700.

59. Burr v. Union Surety & Guaranty Co., 95 N. Y. S. 114. Where parties agreed to a short period of limitations, held, such provision ran from date damage was suffered, though contract provided another date. Id. Indemnitee must prove that he paid a proper amount. Collins, Grayson & Co. v. Savannah, etc., R. Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 477. Where a mortgagee agreed to indemnify a purchaser has been held that proof of the debtor's insolvency is sufficient to show loss,[60] and where the contract is against liability, proof of loss is unnecessary.[61] Limitations do not begin to run until loss is incurred.[62] Contract periods of limitations are generally held valid if reasonable.[63] Such provisions may be waived.[64] The liability of the indemnitor cannot be litigated in an action against the indemnitee,[65] and a bill in equity to compel the indemnitor to make payment direct to the creditor cannot be maintained unless the indemnitee has performed all conditions precedent to liability on the part of the indemnitor.[66] Under most contracts, prompt notice of loss is a condition precedent to recovery,[67] and in such case it is not necessary for the indemnitor to show that earlier notice would have been of material benefit to him.[68] This requirement may be waived.[69] Notice given an indemnitor to appear and defend a suit brought against the indemnitee imposes of a part of the property against judgment liens, the purchaser's right of action on the contract held not to accrue until he was required to pay something in order to protect his title against such liens. Peterson v. Creason [Or.] 81 P. 574. In an action on the bond of a subcontractor to save the principal contractor harmless, a complaint that the subcontractor had incurred indebtedness which the principal contractor had been obliged to pay, and that the subcontractor had on demand refused to make reimbursement held not demurrable. Pacific Bridge Co. v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 33 Wash. 47, 73 P. 772. See 3 C. L. 1700, n. 50.

60. Where one agreed to indemnify another from loss in purchasing shares of a corporation and the corporation after selling its property was indebted to the extent of $8,000 or $10,000 and had worthless judgments for about $9,000, held, an action was maintainable on the indemnity subject to the right of the indemnitor to a credit, if anything was left after payment of the corporate debts, to the extent of his pro rata part. Bonta v. Harvey [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1079.

61. Where one agreed to pay claim and hold another "free and harmless" from the debt, it is not necessary that the indemnitee should have been compelled to pay the debt by a course of legal proceedings. Forster, Waterbury & Co. v. Gregory, 107 Ill. App. 437.

62. Burr v. Union Surety & Guaranty Co., 95 N. Y. S. 114.

63. Where a building contract provided that the indemnitor might on breach of the contract complete the same and it undertook to so do, contract limitation period of six months after breach of contract held unreasonable. Ausplund v. Aetna Indemnity Co. [Or.] 81 P. 577.

64. An indemnitor on a building contract assuming to complete the same held to waive a stipulation in the undertaking limiting the time within which an action might be brought to six months after breach. Ausplund v. Aetna Indemnity Co. [Or.] 81 P. 577. An indemnitor on a building contract by accepting from the owner final payments on the building contract and then permitting liens to be filed against the property, held to waive right to insist that action by owner to recover for damage caused thereby was not instituted within contract time. McKinnon v. Higgins [Or.] 81 P. 581.

65. A landlord's cause of action against an independent contractor for negligently causing damage to tenant's property cannot be litigated in a suit against the landlord by the tenant. Nahm v. Register Newspaper Co. [Ky.] 87 S. W. 296.

66. O'Connell v. New York, etc., R. Co., 187 Mass. 272, 72 N. E. 979.

67. An indemnity bond to secure the performance of a building contract without unreasonable delay, held mere delay did not entitle the surety to notice, but only when it appeared that the principal had violated his contract to complete the buildings without unreasonable delay. Burr v. Union Surety & Guaranty Co., 95 N. Y. S. 114. Where there was a month's delay in carrying out the contract and the surety was given notice within seven days after delay came to knowledge of indemnitee, held sufficient. Id. Under an indemnity bond insuring a corporation against larceny or embezzlement of an employe, and requiring notice immediately after the occurrence of act indemnified against shall come to the employer's knowledge, held, three weeks' delay by secretary and director of corporation, after knowledge of act in sending notice would bar recovery. National Discount Co. v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 94 N. Y. S. 457. Where notice of cashier's defalcation was given to indemnitor by telegraph immediately upon the fact being discovered, followed by a notice by mail about a week later, held, question whether defendant was given "immediate" notice was for the jury. Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Bank of Timmonsville [C. C. A.] 139 F. 101. See 3 C. L. 1701, n. 72.

68. In an action on a bond indemnifying employer for embezzlement by an employe, held defendant need not prove that prompt notice might have helped toward the recovery of some of the loss, or affected its decision as to canceling the bond, or aided in bringing the offending employe to justice. National Discount Co. v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 94 N. Y. S. 457.

69. Where insurer in an employer's indemnity policy made no objection on the ground that notice was not promptly given, but tried to make a settlement with embezzling employe, and then made the indemnitee make a proof of loss and take steps for the criminal prosecution of the employe, held, failure to give prompt notice was waived. Goldman v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. [Wis.] 104 N. W. 80.

upon the former the duty of defending, and renders him liable for the result of the suit;[70] but in the absence of such notice, the indemnitor is not bound by the suit.[71] Notice by the attorney for the plaintiff in such suit to the attorney for the owner in another suit brought by the person injured against the owner is not such notice as will affect the owner.[72] If additional damages accrue, the complaint can be amended.[73]

In action on an employer's indemnity policy, the employe's entries, reports and statements made in the course of his duties in the guarantied employment are admissible against the indemnitor,[74] as are admissions of indebtedness made by the employe in the course of an attempted settlement.[75] Evidence that the employer had applied some of the employe's remittances on an indebtedness due from the employe prior to the giving of the bond is inadmissible unless it is shown what specific sums were so applied.[76] Statements of cashier and representative of indemnitee bank are admissible to show that contract was delivered in escrow.[77] In an action to recover money paid under an indemnity contract, evidence of the worthlessness of the indemnitor's security is inadmissible.[78] Cases dealing with the sufficiency of the evidence are shown in the notes.[79] The burden is on the indemnitor to show the falsity of any statements contained in the indemnitee's application.[80] The indemnitee must prove that the contract covered the act in question,[81] and that he paid a proper amount.[82]

§ 5. Defenses.[83]—Material misrepresentations will avoid the contract.[84] The fact that the employe by disobeying instructions renders the statements false is no defense.[85] That the contract was delivered in violation of an escrow agree-

70. Forster, Waterbury & Co. v. Gregory, 107 Ill. App. 437.

71. Busell Trimmer Co. v. Coburn [Mass.] 74 N. E. 334. Implied contract by property owner to indemnify city for injuries due to defective sidewalks. City of Chester v. Shaffer, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 162.

72. City of Chester v. Shaffer, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 162.

73. Pacific Bridge Co. v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 33 Wash. 47, 73 P. 772.

74. Goldman v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. [Wis.] 104 N. W. 80; Thompson v. Commercial Union Assur. Co. [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1073.

75, 76. Thompson v. Commercial Union Assur. Co. [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1073.

77. Blair v Security Bank, 103 Va 762, 50 S. E. 262.

78. Stone & Co. v. Mulvaine [Ill.] 75 N. E. 421.

79. In an action on an employer's indemnity policy, evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding of the embezzlement of the employe. Goldman v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. [Wis.] 104 N. W. 80. In an action on an indemnity bond to recover the value of personal property, evidence of the amount paid therefor by claimant and as to what the property was worth at the time of its purchase, which was near the time of conversion, held sufficient evidence of value to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. State v. Steele & Co., 108 Mo. App. 363, 83 S. W. 1023. Evidence, in an action on an indemnity bond for the value of property wrongfully taken on execution against claimant's husband, held sufficient to show that her claim to the property was bona fide. Id.

80. Goldman v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. [Wis.] 104 N. W. 80.

81. Where a bank cashier's fidelity bond covered only acts and defaults committed within 12 months next before the date of the discovery of the act or default on which the claim was based, held not to cover an alleged larceny of silver claimed to have been deposited in May, 1900, but not found in the bank's vaults when the cashier absconded in August, 1901, there being no evidence as to when the same was taken. Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Bank of Timmonsville [C. C. A.] 139 F. 101.

82. Collins, Grayson & Co. v. Savannah, F. & W. R. Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 477.

83. See 3 C. L. 1701.

84. Misrepresentations by an employer to a fidelity insurance company as to the state of the accounts of his employe, the amount of cash the latter had on hand, and the amount of cash that would be in the hands of such employe, and as to when accounting would be had with him, are material, and if false, will avoid a policy of insurance issued on the strength thereof, especially where the employer agreed that such statements should be taken as conditions precedent and as a basis of the bond. Waring v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 24 App. D. C. 119. And see Waas v. Anderson [Conn.] 61 A. 433.

85. Where the application for an employer's indemnity policy stated that the largest amount of cash in the custody of the employe at any one time was about $50.00, and there was no evidence, in an action on the policy, that any larger amount had ever been allowed to come into the employe's hands until the time of his embezzlement, which was out of the ordinary course of events, the fact that the sum embezzled exceeded $50.00, ment is a complete defense.[86] In an action on an employer's indemnity policy, defendant cannot rely on the falsity of statements in plaintiff's application unless such defense is pleaded.[87]

§ 6. Measure of recovery.[88]—The indemnitee yielding to an improper demand, the indemnitor is not liable for the amount thus improperly paid.[89] The indemnitee is generally entitled to recover reasonable attorney's fees.[90]

INDEPENDENT CONTRACTORS.[91]

An independent contractor is one who, exercising an independent employment, contracts to do a piece of work according to his own methods, and without being subject to the control of his employer, except as to the result of the work.[92] The independence of the relation is not affected by the fact that no fixed price is agreed upon in advance for the work,[93] nor by a reservation by the employer of the right to supervise or inspect the work for the purpose merely of determining whether it is being done in accordance with the contract.[94]

The doctrine of respondeat superior has no application to the relation;[95] hence, held no defense. Goldman v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. [Wis.] 104 N. W. 80.

86. Blair v. Security Bank, 103 Va. 762, 50 S. E. 262.

87. Goldman v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. [Wis.] 104 N. W. 80.

88. See 3 C. L. 1702.

89. Collins, Grayson & Co. v. Savannah, F. & W. R. Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 477.

90. Surety on indemnity bond held entitled to recover of the principal, under an indemnity contract between the two, a sum paid by it on account of the principal's default with reasonable attorney's fees. City Trust, Safe Deposit & Surety Co. v. Waldhauer, 95 N. Y. S. 222.

91. See 3 C. L. 1702. See special article Independent Contractors Under Employers' Liability Acts, 3 C. L. 1704.

92. Francis v. Johnson [Iowa] 101 N. W. 878; Keyes v. Second Baptist Church, 99 Me. 308, 59 A. 446; Larson v. Centennial Mill Co. [Wash.] 82 P. 294; Arthur v. Texas & P. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 127.

Illustrations: Painter employed to paint a house for a lump sum, no directions being given as to manner of doing work, was an independent contractor, and owner of house was not liable for damage caused by fire started by negligent use of paint burner. Francis v. Johnson [Iowa] 101 N. W. 878. Persons employed by owner of building to furnish materials and do the work in constructing floors and roofing in building, and who did such work according to their own method, not being under the direction or control of the owner, but responsible to him only for the result, were independent contractors. Miller v. Merritt, 211 Pa. 127, 60 A. 508. Teamster paid at a certain rate per foot for hauling timbers was not an independent contractor, and owner was liable for negligent piling of them in the street. Macdonald v. O'Reilly, 45 Or. 589, 78 P. 753. Person who agreed to make certain sewer excavation according to certain specifications, for an agreed sum, was an independent contractor. Kelly v. New York, 94 N. Y. S. 872. When driver of wagon was not subject to discharge by defendant, and was not under its control except that it could instruct him when to haul its product, he was not defendant's servant. Chicago Hydraulic Press Brick Co. v. Campbell, 116 Ill. App. 322. Where compress company received cotton on its own platforms, and gave a receipt which the shipper exchanged for a bill of lading from the carrier, the compress company was not the agent or servant of the carrier, but an independent contractor, and the carrier was not liable for cotton lost by fire through negligence of the compress company in handling or storing it. Arthur v. Texas & P. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 127 One who furnished labor and materials for church, he and his laborers being hired by the day, under a contract containing no specifications as to work, which was done under direction of a building committee, was not an independent contractor. Keyes v. Second Baptist Church, 99 Me. 308, 59 A. 446.

Note: In Linehan v. Rollins, 137 Mass. 123, 50 Am. Rep. 287, the court said: "The absolute test is not the exercise of power of control but the right to exercise the power of control." The contrary has been held in Norwalk Gaslight Co. v. Borough of Norwalk, 63 Conn. 495, 28 A. 32. The court in Goldman v. Mason City, 2 N. Y. Supp. 337, said that when one represents the will of the employer in the result of his work only and not as to the means, he is an independent contractor and not a servant. This would seem to be the better rule. Harris v. McNamara, 97 Ala. 181, 12 So. 103; Bennett v. Truebody, 66 Cal. 509, 6 P. 329, 56 Am. Rep. 117; Forsyth v. Hooper, 11 Allen [Mass.] 419; Knowlton v. Hoit, 67 N. H. 155, 30 A. 346; Hexamer v. Webb, 101 N. Y. 377, 4 N. E. 755, 54 Am. Rep. 703; Harrison v. Collins, 86 Pa. 153, 27 Am. Rep. 699.—3 Mich. L. R. 414.

93. One employed to unload boilers with his own men, under his direction, no orders or directions being received from employer's foreman, was an independent contractor. Galatia Coal Co. v. Harris, 116 Ill. App. 70.

94. Larson v. Centennial Mill Co. [Wash.]

an employer is not liable to third persons for negligent acts of the contractor or his servants.[96] But there are exceptions to this rule. Thus, the employer is liable where the work required to be done under the contract is inherently dangerous,[97] or involves acts which will constitute a nuisance, unless properly guarded against,[98] or involves a duty to the public or a third person,[99] or which will necessarily bring 82 P. 294. Right of general supervision reserved. Miller v. Merritt, 211 Pa. 127, 60 A. 508.

95. The doctrine of respondeat superior does not apply where the one sought to be held as master is without authority to direct the time or manner of doing the work or to select or direct the employes engaged thereln. Arthur v. Texas & P. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 127. Where one contracts with another to do work which may be done in a lawful manner, and has no choice in the selection of the workmen, and no control over the manner of doing the work, except as to the result to be obtained, he will not be liable for acts of the contractor or his servants, as the doctrine of respondeat superior does not apply. Macdonald v. O'Reilly, 45 Or. 589, 78 P. 753.

96. Cameron Mill & Elevator Co. v. Anderson [Tex.] 81 S. W. 282; Galatia Coal Co. v. Harris, 116 Ill. App. 70. City not liable for act of independent contractor in allowing water to stand in street excavation. Kelly v. New York, 94 N. Y. S. 872. A company which was in fact the principal contractor for certain work, which was executed by it through another company, cannot escape liability for damages to a third person by claiming that the company actually doing the work was an independent contractor. American Contracting Co. v. Sammon, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 121. Owner of park not liable to spectator injured by rocket fired by servant of contractor employed to give exhibitions. Deyo v. Kingston, etc., R. Co., 94 App. Div. 578, 88 N. Y. S. 487.

Note: "It is a well-recognized rule of law that an employer is not liable for the acts of an independent contractor. King v. New York, etc., R. Co., 66 N. Y. 181, 23 Am. Rep. 37. On the other hand, one who invites others to come upon his premises must use due care to render them reasonably safe, and cannot avoid this duty by the employment of an independent contractor. Curtis v. Kiley, 153 Mass. 123. Hence, where the work is of a dangerous nature, the landowner must not only use reasonable care in the selection of the contractor, but he must also see that due precautions are taken to prevent harm. The ground of liability is not the negligence of the contractor, but that of the landowner in failing to keep his premises in a reasonably safe condition. Thompson v. Lowell, etc., R. Co., 170 Mass. 577, 64 Am. St. Rep. 323, 40 L. R. A. 345."—From 18 Harv. L. R. 144, commenting on Deyo v. Kingston, etc, R. Co., supra.

97. Cameron Mill & Elevator Co. v. Anderson [Tex.] 81 S. W. 282. As where city contracts for construction of underground tunnel, use of dynamite being necessary. Chicago v. Murdoch, 113 Ill. App. 656.

98. Keyes v. Second Baptist Church, 99 Me. 308, 59 A. 446.

Note: When work is wrongful in itself, or if done in the ordinary manner must result in a nuisance, the employer is liable for injury resulting to third persons, although the work is done by an independent contractor. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. v. Kimberly, 87 Ga. 161, 27 Am. St. Rep. 231; James v. McMinimy, 93 Ky. 471, 40 Am. St. Rep. 200; Davie v. Levy, 39 La. Ann. 551, 4 Am. St. Rep. 225; Boswell v. Laird, 8 Cal. 469, 68 Am. Dec. 345; Tiffin v. McCormack, 34 Ohio St. 638, 32 Am. Rep. 408; Clark v. Fry, 8 Ohio St 358, 72 Am. Dec. 590; Ware v. St. Paul Water Co., 2 Abb. [U. S.] 261; City, etc., R. Co. v. Moores, 80 Md. 348, 45 Am. St. Rep. 345; Overton v. Freeman, 11 C. B. 867; Koch v. Sackman, etc., Inv. Co., 9 Wash. 405; Hay v. Cohoes Co., 2 N. Y. 159, 51 Am. Dec. 279; Congreve v. Smith, 18 N. Y. 79, 83; Cuff v. Newark, etc., R. Co., 35 N. J. Law, 17, 10 Am. Rep. 205; Moore v. Townsend, 76 Minn. 64; Spence v. Schultz, 103 Cal. 208; Darmstaetter v. Moynahan, 27 Mich. 188; Robbins v. Chicago, 4 Wall. [U. S.] 657, 679; 18 Law. Ed. 427; afg. Chicago v. Robbins, 2 Black [U. S.] 418, 17 Law. Ed. 298.—From note, Covington & Cincinnati Bridge Co. v. Steinbrock [Ohio] 76 Am. St. Rep. 399.

99. Keyes v. Second Baptist Church, 99 Me. 308, 59 A. 446. Where because of the nature of the work the employer is under a duty to others to see that it is carefully performed, liability for negligence cannot be shifted to an independent contractor. Pony show operated at public resort. Coney Island Co. v. Mitsch, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 81.

Note: If a party is under a duty to the public to see that work he is about to have done is carefully performed so as to avoid injury to others, he cannot, by letting it to a contractor, avoid liability in case the work is negligently done to the injury of another. Covington, etc., Bridge Co. v. Steinbrock, 61 Ohio St. 215, 76 Am. St. Rep. 375; Jefferson v. Chapman, 127 Ill. 438, 11 Am. St. Rep. 136; Lancaster, etc., Imp. Co. v. Rhoads, 116 Pa. 377, 2 Am. St. Rep. 608; Pickard v. Smith, 10 C. B. [N. S.] 470, 480; Meier v. Morgan, 82 Wis. 289, 33 Am. St. Rep. 39; Benjamin v. Metropolitan St. R. Co, 133 Mo. 274; Cabot v. Kingman, 166 Mass. 403, 406, 33 L. R. A. 45; Colgrove v. Smith, 102 Cal. 220, 27 L. R. A. 590; Spence v. Schultz, 103 Cal. 208; Norton v. St. Louis, 97 Mo. 537; Barrow, etc., Co. v. Kane, 88 F. 197; Barkman v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 89 F. 453. Compare Chicago, etc., Gas Co. v. Myers, 168 Ill. 139. So, if work is being done by contract, the contractee is liable for injury arising from the violation of his duty to third persons in the performance of the work. City, etc., R. Co. v. Moores, 80 Md. 348, 45 Am. St. Rep. 345.—From note, Covington & Cincinnati Bridge Co. v. Steinbrock [Ohio] 76 Am. St. Rep. 405.

See, also, Woodman v. Metropolitan R. Co., 149 Mass. 335, 21 N. E. 482, 4 L. R. A. 213, 14 Am. St. Rep. 427; Wilbur v. White, 98 Me. 191, 56 A. 657; Boomer v. Wilbur, 176 Mass.

wrongful consequences, or that cannot be performed except under the right of the employer, who retains the right of access.[1]

It is the duty of those whose work necessarily makes dangerous a public street to give notice by proper signals, warnings or barriers to passers-by, unless the situation is such as to warn a person in the exercise of ordinary care without such precautions,[2] and this duty cannot be shifted by the employment of an independent contractor.[3] But a city is not liable for acts or negligence of a contractor if work on the streets or walks is done under a contract to which the city is not a party.[4]

A public [5] or quasi public [6] corporation is liable for a wrongful act of a contractor while exercising, with the assent of the corporation, some chartered power or privilege of the corporation which he could not have exercised independently of its charter;[7] it is not liable for a wrongful act of an independent contractor not exercising any special power derived from its charter.[8] A corporation which accepts and operates trains over a track constructed by a contractor is liable to an adjacent landowner for damages resulting from negligent construction of the track.[9]

An independent contractor owes his own servants the duties owed by a master to his employes,[10] and owes others working in the vicinity the duty of ordinary care to avoid injuring them.[11] The master of such other employes may pre-

482, 57 N. E. 1004, 53 L. R. A. 172; Lowell v. B. & L. R. Co., 23 Pick. [Mass.] 24, 34 Am. Dec. 33; Gorham v. Gross, 125 Mass. 232, 28 Am. Rep. 224, cited in 3 Mich. Law Rev. 414.

1. Keyes v. Second Baptist Church, 99 Me. 308, 59 A. 446.

2. Plaintiff recovered for injury resulting from being struck by board whch fell from scaffold over sidewalk. Keyes v. Second Baptist Church, 99 Me. 308, 59 A. 446.

3. Where a contractor fails to properly guard an obstruction placed in the street under a permit from a city, the city and the contractor are jointly liable for resulting injuries. Godfrey v. New York, 93 N. Y. S. 899. "Independent contractor" rule does not apply where the contract necessarily involves obstruction of a highway, rendering it unsafe for travel. Chicago Bridge & Iron Co. v. La Mantia, 112 Ill. App. 43. Where work to be done in a street necessarily obstructs and renders it dangerous, the one for whom the work is done cannot avert liability for negligence in doing it by proving that he let the work to a contractor. Boyd v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 496. One who was authorized to make a street excavation was liable for injuries resulting from failure to properly light and guard it, though work was let to and was in charge of an independent contractor. Cameron Mill & Elevator Co. v. Anderson [Tex.] 81 S. W. 282.

A municipality cannot relieve itself indefinitely of its duty to keep its streets in proper condition, by contract with an independent contractor. City, and not contractor who had done work on streets, liable for injury resulting from a defect therein. Harvey v. Chester [Pa.] 61 A. 118.

4. Where sidewalk was built under contract with county supervisors, city was not liable for contractor's negligence. Wright v. Muskegon [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 122, 103 N. W. 558. Though city paid one-third expense of walk, it was not liable for negligence of contractor employed by property owner in placing an unsafe barrier on the walk. Thompson v. West Bay City [Mich.] 100 N. W. 280. That city supervised work of contractor building walk for property owner did not make it liable for contractor's negligence. Id. See, also, Highways and Streets, 5 C. L. 1645.

5. Independent contractor rule does not apply where an individual or corporation has work done pursuant to a special franchise or charter power. As where city undertakes to construct underground tunnel. Chicago v. Murdoch, 113 Ill. App. 656.

6. Railroad corporation. Boyd v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 496. Railway, street railway and gas companies. Chicago Hydraulic Press Brick Co v. Campbell, 116 Ill. App. 322.

7. Construction of railroad on corporation's right of way is not an exercise of any of its charter powers or privileges. Boyd v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 496.

8. Railway company not liable for injury to employe of subcontractor while shoveling gravel in a cut. Boyd v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 496.

9. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Roberts [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1052.

10. Such as duty of furnishing reasonably safe appliances. Miller v. Moran Bros. Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 1089. The independent contractor—and not his employer—is liable for injuries to his servants caused by his negligence. Contractor liable for injury due to defective material used in roofing, and to improper manner of doing work. Miller v. Merritt, 211 Pa. 127, 60 A. 508. See Master and Servant, 4 C. L. 533.

11. Miller v. Moran Bros. Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 1089. A contractor is not liable for injuries to servants of an independent sub-

sume that the independent contractor will perform these duties,[12] and is not liable for a breach thereof.[13] The general employer owes the servant of an independent contractor only the duty of ordinary care to avoid injuring him.[14] An employer is not ordinarily liable for an injury to his own servant caused by negligence of a servant of an independent contractor;[15] nor is a master liable to his servants for a breach of duty owed by him to an independent contractor.[16]

Statutes imposing upon railway companies liability for injuries to employes caused by negligence of fellow-servants do not impose that liability upon an independent contractor of a railway company.[17]

INDIANS.

§ 1. Who are Indians and what is their legal status.[18]—Indian nations are clothed with the characteristics of a distinct political community and have the right and power to admit to citizenship in their tribe, members of other tribes[19] or to adopt persons of mixed blood,[20] and this right is not precluded by the fact that the share in the national lands and funds of persons previously admitted will be diminished.[21] Aliens so admitted are estopped to question the provisions of the constitution of the nation which was adopted prior to their being made mem-contractor, if he is not shown to have been negligent in the selection of the subcontractor, or in furnishing material or otherwise. Larson v. Centennial Mill Co. [Wash.] 82 P. 294. Contractor employed to do mason work on building is under no duty to guard elevator shafts or clear away refuse from his work, in the absence of any contract stipulation; hence not liable to the servant of another contractor injured because such precautions were not taken. Thaney v. Friederick & Sons Co., 44 Misc. 134, 89 N. Y. S. 787.

12. Miller v. Moran Bros. Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 1089.

13. As where a servant was injured through negligent use of unsafe appliance by employes of independent contractor, who had failed to procure available safe appliances. Miller v. Moran Bros. Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 1089.

14. City held not liable for injury to servant of one employed by it to deliver sand. McMullen v. New York, 93 N. Y. S. 772. The owner of premises on which a contractor is erecting a building owes the contractor's employes the duty of ordinary care to avoid injuring them. Sack v. St. Louis Car Co. [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 79. A general employer owes to the servant of a subcontractor the duty of due care to prevent injury by exposure to unusual dangers, not known to him. Plaintiff, servant of subcontractor of defendant on its elevated road, recovered for injury caused by trolley flying off wire when car was run too fast past the place where plaintiff was at work. Wagner v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 919.

15. Loom operator injured through negligence of a servant of an independent contractor engaged in putting a sprinkler system in the plant. Held, master not liable. Smith v. Naushon Co., 26 R. I. 578, 60 A. 242.

16. Miller v. Moran Bros. Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 1089.

17. Priv. Laws 1897, p. 83, c. 56, construed. Avery v. Oliver, 137 N. C. 130, 49 S. E. 91.

See special article, "Independent Contractors under Employers' Liability Acts," 3 C. L. 1704.

18. See 3 C. L. 1706.

19. Aliens so admitted have an equality in the property and funds of the body politic. Delaware Indians' Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 234.

20. An Indian of half blood may become a member of an Indian tribe by adoption, and one so adopted has all the rights of a tribal Indian and is exempt from state taxation so long as his tribal relations continue. United States v. Heyfron, 138 F. 964. A quarter blood Indian who has most of his life resided with the Indians, married a member of the tribe and has been adopted by the nation, is entitled to the same rights as other members of the tribe. His property is exempt from state taxation. United States v. Heyfron, 138 F. 968.

21. Not as to the Cherokee nation by the fact that the share of the Delawares, admitted to the nation under the agreement of April 8, 1867, in the funds and lands of the nation will be diminished. Delaware Indian's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 234.

bers of the tribe.[22] The 13th Amendment to the Federal Constitution freed slaves within the Indian nations;[23] but the freedmen did not by virtue of their emancipation become members of the trible, entitled to share in the tribal property.[24]

Indians are wards of the nation.[25] It is the public policy of the United States to guard Indian country and reservations against intrusion by white men.[26] The provisions of the United States statutes looking to the protection of Indians from intruders remain in force so long as tribal government exists.[27] Authority to deal with lands set aside for them is vested in congress, and it is not open for the courts to interfere with congressional regulations, though not deemed so beneficial as might be.[28] An Indian is not presumed incapable of making a valid contract,[29] and it is no defense to an action on his contract that he is an Indian and that all his property is exempt from execution.[30]

§ 2. Federal and state government of Indians and their habitat.[31]—When the United States grants to an Indian the privileges of citizenship and requires him to be subject to the civil and criminal laws of the state wherein he resides, it places him outside the reach of police regulations of congress,[32] and a sale of liquor to him cannot be punished by virtue of authority given congress by the commerce clause of the constitution.[33] The emancipation thus created cannot be set aside at the instance of the Federal government without the consent of the individual Indian and the state, and is not affected by the fact that lands granted to the Indian are subject to condition against alienation or the further fact that he is guarantied an interest in tribal or other property.[34] Agreements between a tribe and the United States apply only to Indians who participate in it.[35]

§ 3. Tribal government subject to Federal dominion.[36]—Congress has power to establish citizenship courts in an Indian nation.[37] A restriction upon the power of taxation by an Indian nation must be by express stipulation in the treaty.[38] The laws relating to real property of an Indian nation are to be found in the constitution and laws of the nation.[39] In the interpretation of laws adopted from another state for the government of Indian Territory, the opinions of the

22. Delaware Indians' Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 234.

23. Chickasaws. Choctaw Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 558.

24. Choctaw Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 558.

25. Naganab v. Hitchcock, 25 App. D. C. 200.

26. McCoy's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 163.

27. Morris v. Hitchcock, 21 App. D. C. 565,

28. Naganab v. Hitchcock, 25 App. D C. 200.

29. That the maker of a note is an Indian who does not speak or write the English language and understands it imperfectly does not show that there was no meeting of the minds when he executed the note. Warnock v. Itawis [Wash.] 80 P. 297.

30. Action on his promissory note. Warnock v. Itawis [Wash.] 80 P. 297.

31. See 3 C. L. 1706.

32. In re Heff, 197 U. S. 488, 49 Law. Ed. 848. An Indian allottee under an act conditioning the allotment against alienation for 25 years, but granting the Indian the privileges of citizenship and subjecting him to state laws, is not subject to the police regulations of congress after receiving the first patent. Act Feb. 8, 1887 (24 St. at L. 388, c. 1191). Id.

33, 34. In re Heff, 197 N. S. 488, 49 Law. Ed. 848.

35. The agreement with the Nez Perce Tribe that allottees, whether under the care of an agent or not shall be subject for 25 years to all the Federal laws relative to the sale of liquor to Indians, does not apply to one who had previously received an allotment and had become subject to state laws. Ex parte Viles, 139 F. 68.

36. See 3 C. L. 1706.

37. Act Cong. July 1, 1902, c. 1362, pars. 31, 33, 32 Stat. 646-648, establishing a Choctaw and Chickasaw citizenship court for the purpose of determining citizenship in such tribes and providing the procedure therein, is constitutional. Wallace v. Adams [Ind. T.] 88 S. W. 308. Legislation authorizing the commission to the Five Civilized Tribes to determine citizenship in the five nations is valid. Dick v. Ross [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 664.

38. The treaty of 1855 with the Chickasaws does not restrict the ordinary powers of taxation of such nation. Morris v. Hitchcock, 21 App. D. C. 565. The Act of the Chickasaw legislature imposing a permit tax on live stock within the nation owned by nonresidents, and declaring that nonpayment of such tax is detrimental to the peace and welfare of the nation is within the powers granted by treaty to such nation. Id.

39. Cherokees. Delaware Indians' case, 38 Ct. Cl. 234.

supreme court of the state are entitled to more than ordinary weight.[40] An approval by congress of an act passed by the legislature of an Indian nation, after its repeal by such nation, is not binding.[41] The court of claims has no jurisdiction to investigate an alleged improper use of the national fund by an Indian government,[42] nor to pass upon the rights of individual Indians in such fund.[43] The rights of the Chickasaw nation and Chickasaw freedmen must be determined by the treaty of July 10, 1866.[44] In a controversy between two Indian tribes, parol evidence is not admissible to vary the terms of a written contract between them.[45]

Persons and their property whose presence within a reservation is detrimental to the peace and welfare of the Indians may be removed,[46] and the exercise of discretion by the executive officers of the United States in such case is not subject to judicial review, especially when the removal is because of a refusal to pay a permit tax levied by the Indian nation.[47] An Indian nation is not a necessary party to a suit to restrain United States officers from removing from lands of the nation cattle of owners who refuse to pay a tax levied by the legislature of such tribe.[48]

The decree of the peacemaker's court of the Seneca Indians of New York is conclusive as to the facts determined.[49] The national council cannot award a new trial of a proceeding before such court without notice to one affected by the decree.[50] The decree may be enforced by a party to the proceeding.[51]

§ 4. Indian lands and properties.[52]—The country in which Indian title has not been extinguished is generally regarded as Indian country.[53] The territory derived from Mexico never was Indian country,[54] and was not made so by the extension over the Indians therein, the trade and intercourse laws.[55]

Nature of title.[56]—As a general rule, Indians acquire only a qualified interest in lands patented to them, but their deed constitutes color of title for the purpose of adverse possession.[57] Title to lands allotted under the "General Allotment Act" remains in the United States during the trust period.[58] A reservation, to In-

40. Laws relative to guardianship and protection of Indians adopted from the statutes of Arkansas. Morris v. Hitchcock, 21 App. D. C. 565.

41. Act of the Chickasaw legislatue adopting freedmen into the nation. Choctaw case, 38 Ct. Cl. 558.

42. Under the Act of Cong. June 28, 1898. Delaware Indians' Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 234.

43. Delaware Indians' Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 234.

44. Under this treaty they have no interest in tribal property. Choctaw Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 558.

45. Delaware Indians' Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 234.

46. The laws of the United States relative to intruders on the lands of the Chickasaw Nation and the power of the secretary of the interior to remove them have not been repealed. Morris v. Hitchcock, 21 App. D. C. 565. The unlawful grazing of cattle on the lands of an Indian nation which is detrimental to the peace and welfare of the Indians may be abated by the removal of the cattle if it cannot be abated by the removal of the owners Id.

47. Morris v. Hitchcock, 21 App. D. C. 565.

48. Act Cong. June 28, 1898, even if applicable in this court, applies only where title of property claimed by the tribe is involved. The tax is not the property of the tribe within the meaning of such statute. Morris v. Hitchcock, 21 App. D. C. 565.

49. Under the Indian laws of New York, the supreme court in enforcing a judgment of the peacemakers court cannot inquire into facts determined by the decree Jimeson v. Pierce, 102 App. Div. 618, 92 N. Y. S. 331.

50. One allotted dower by the decree of such court. Jimeson v. Pierce, 102 App. Div. 618, 92 N. Y. S. 331.

51. The widow of a Seneca Indian who was allotted dower by the peacemaker's court in partition proceedings is sufficiently a party to maintain an action to enforce the decree. Jimeson v. Pierce, 102 App. Div. 618, 92 N. Y. S. 331.

52. See 3 C. L. 1707.

53. Hayt's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 455.

54. There was no Indian title to be extinguished. Hayt's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 455.

55. Hayt's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 455.

56. See 3 C. L. 1707. Laws 1889-90, p. 499, to enable Indans to sell lands on the Puyallup Reservation, includes in its title the provision removing the exemption from taxation. Goudy v. Meath [Wash.] 80 P. 295.

57. Murphy v. Nelson [S. D.] 102 N. W. 691.

58. The United States may recover for timber unlawfully cut by third persons from dians, in a treaty, unless qualified, is equivalent to a grant in fee.[59] Rights in land secured by treaty survive the private acquisition of such land by grant from the United States or the state.[60] Such rights are not subordinate to the powers acquired by the state over such land on its admission into the union,[61] and patents to such land, though absolute in form, can grant no exemption from such rights.[62] A restriction against alienation in a deed from the United States to an Indian ward,[63] or to an Indian citizen,[64] is valid, and deprives the grantee of power to dispose of the property by will.[65] Whether a regulation of the executive department removes from the property patented to an Indian, the restrictions placed upon it depends largely on the departmental construction of such regulation.[66] A provision in a treaty that lands allotted shall be exempt from levy, sale and forfeiture is removed by a statute giving the Indians power to lease, incumber, grant or alienate.[67]

Where the United States under the provisions of an Indian treaty sells Indian lands, it occupies a position similar to that of a trustee.[68] If the treaty prescribes that the lands shall be sold in the manner that public lands are, the secretary of the interior has power to prescribe rules regulating such sale and the compensations of officials connected therewith.[69]

Whether the share or interest in that fund belonging to the ancestors of the Oneidas in Canada passed to the Oneidas remaining in New York, or whether it should remain in the treasury is a question.[70] The secretary of the interior has not power to determine who are entitled to share in this fund.[71] The United States should not pay it away until it is determined who is entitled to it.[72]

The Act of March 3, 1901, for the relief of the Sissiton and Wahpeton Indians, requires the court to ascertain the individual members of the bands who remained lands allotted under the Act Feb. 8, 1887, c. 119 (24 Stat. 388). United States v. Gardner [C. C. A.] 133 F. 285.

59. The United States government by treaty reserved to the Indians a certain tract of land, reserving to designated individual Indians a fixed portion of such land, to be located subsequently. Later by a patent which restricted the power of alienation, the government defined these portions. Held, title passed by the treaty, making the restriction in the patent invalid, so that such restriction would not prevent the claiming of title by adverse possession against the individual Indians. Francis v. Francis [Mich.] 99 N. W. 14.

Note: The view that title passes to the Indians by treaty, Jones v Meehan, 175 U. S. 1, 44 Law. Ed. 49, though the portions were undetermined, may be supported on the theory that the Indians took as tenants in common in the proportion which the individual shares bore to the entire tract. Washburn Real Prop. [6th Ed.] § 879; Benn v. Hatcher, 81 Va. 25, 59 Am. Rep. 645, 4 Columbia L. R. 304. The patent by the government would act as a partition of the land. Benn v. Hatcher, 81 Va. 25, 59 Am. Rep. 645; Brown v. Bailey, 1 Met. 254. Coleman v. Doe, 12 Miss. 40. Accordingly, the case seems correct in holding that the Indians' title would be divested by the adverse possession.—25 Columbia L. R. 65.

60. Right secured to the Yakima Indians by the treaty of 1859 of "taking fish at all usual and accustomed places in common with citizens of the territory, and of erecting temporary buildings for curing them." United States v. Winans, 198 U. S. 371, 49 Law. Ed. 1089.

61. United States v. Winans, 198 U. S. 371, 49 Law. Ed. 1089.

62. Patents to lands bordering on the Columbia River. United States v. Winans, 198 U. S. 371, 49 Law. Ed. 1089

63. Jackson v. Thompson [Wash.] 80 P. 454.

64. The right of the United States to restrict the power of alienation of land patented is not affected by the fact that the patentee is an Indian citizen. Hitchcock v. U. S. 22 App. D. C. 275.

65. Jackson v. Thompson [Wash.] 80 P. 454.

66. Hitchcock v. United States, 22 App. D. C. 275.

67. After such statute goes into effect, the lands are subject to taxation. Goudy v. Meath [Wash.] 80 P. 295.

68. Must sell them for as large a sum as is practicable. Treaty 29th September, 1865, with the Osage Indians considered. Stewart's case, 39 Ct. Cl. 321.

69. Regulations as to compensation held authorized by law. Stewart's case, 39 Ct. Cl. 321.

70. Oneida Indians' Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 116.

71. Oneida Indians' Case, 39 Ct. Cl 116. He stands in the position of a trustee and may apply to the court to determine who are entitled to participate in the fund. Id.

72. Oneida Indians' Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 116.

loyal, and not the proportion of those who were loyal.[73] It is intended by the statute that distribution of unpaid annuities shall be only to loyal persons.[74]

Leases.[75]—A sublease by a lessee of an Indian, whose lease contains a condition against subleasing without the consent of the lessor and the approval of the secretary of the interior, is void.[76]

Actions against intruders.[77]—A sale by the sheriff of the improvements of a nonresident, under Act October 80, 1888, must be made for cash.[78] A purchaser at a void sale cannot recover, though the owner against whom the sale was made is an intruder.[79]

§ 5. Rights and liabilities of others in Indian country dealing with Indians.[80] The permit tax of the Creek nation is the annual price fixed by its laws for the privilege of conducting business within its borders by noncitizens. It is a condition to the exercise of the privilege.[81] The authority to enact these laws is one of the inherent and essential attributes of the original sovereignty of the nation.[82] The legal effect of such laws is to prohibit the conduct of business by a nonresident without paying the tax.[83] This tax is valid and has not been repealed,[84] and applies to all persons not members of the tribe,[85] and the secretary of the interior, Indian inspector, and Indian agent have authority to enforce the laws which prescribe it,[86] and to prevent their violation by closing the place of business of one who refuses to pay.[87] The enforcement of such laws without writ or other process than the law itself does not deny due process.[88]

§ 6. Crimes and offenses by and relating to Indians.[89]—The act of congress providing that state courts have no jurisdiction of the person of the accused or of the offense committed by one Indian against another in an Indian reservation applies only to Indians maintaining tribal relations.[90]

§ 7. Indian depredations.—The Indian Depredation Act of March 3, 1891, provides a remedy for depredations committed by Indians outside the Indian country.[91] The intent of the act is to hold responsible a tribe, band, or nation for depre-

73. Sisseton & Wahpeton Indians' Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 172.

74. Sisseton & Wahpeton Indians' Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 172. Indians who at times were loyal and at other times aided and abetted or encouraged depredations and massacres are to be regarded as wholly disloyal. Id.

75. See 3 C. L. 1708.

76. Reeves & Co. v. Sheets [Okl.] 72 P. 487.

77. See 3 C. L. 1709.

78. A sale on credit is void. Walker v. McLoud [C. C. A.] 138 F. 394.

79. Walker v. McLoud, 138 F. 394.

80. See 3 C. L. 1709.

81. Buster v. Wright [C. C. A.] 135 F. 947.

82. Did not have its origin in Act of Congress, treaty or agreement with the United States. Buster v. Wright [C. C. A.] 135 F. 947.

83. Buster v. Wright [C. C. A.] 135 F. 947.

84. Act May 27, 1902 (ch. 888, 32 Stat. 259), prohibiting the deportation of persons in lawful possession of land in any townsite, town or city in the Indian Territory, did not repeal the permit tax laws of the Creek nation, nor withdraw from the secretary of the interior and his subordinates power to close such places of business. Buster v. Wright, [C. C. A.] 135 F. 947.

85. The Creek agreement, ratified by the United States March 1, 1901 (ch. 676, 31 St. 861, §§ 10-16), nor the establishment of town sites within the territory of that nation, nor the sale of lots to noncitizens, nor the organization of towns and cities thereon, does not withdraw such lots, their owners or occupants from the operation of such laws. Nor does it withdraw such lots from the jurisdiction of the secretary of the interior to close the unlawful business. Buster v. Wright [C. C. A.] 135 F. 947.

86. Buster v. Wright [C. C. A.] 135 F. 947. The provisions of such act may be enforced by the secretary of the interior under departmental regulations. Morris v. Hitchcock, 21 App. D. C. 565.

87. By the secretary of the interior, his subordinates, Indian inspector and Indian agent. Buster v. Wright [C. C. A.] 135 F. 947.

88. Buster v. Wright [C. C. A.] 135 F. 947.

89. See 3 C. L. 1709.

90. A state court may punish a homicide committed by one Indian on another on a reservation where such Indians have no tribal organization, and the lands have been allotted to the Indians in severalty except a parcel retained for school purposes upon which the crime was committed. State v. Smokalen, 37 Wash. 91, 79 P. 603.

91. Prior to the treaty of October 7, 1863, with the Tabeguache tribe, it had no habitat, and it is no defense that a depredation was dations of its members,[92] and if depredations were committed by Indians having no connection with a tribe, band or nation, no responsibility attaches to the United States;[93] but it is not necessary that the Indians committing depredation be directly from the Indian country. If they are within the jurisdiction of the United States and in a condition of amity, responsibility attaches.[94] Liability may arise out of a treaty, even though the Indian Intercourse Act of June 30, 1849, has not been extended to the Indian country.[95] The taking and destruction of property by refugee Indians in charge of military officers of the United States is not a depredation within the Act,[96] nor is a depredation committed against one who at the time was not a citizen of the United States,[97] nor is a depredation against an intruder.[98] The claim must be submitted in accordance with the regulations prescribed by the act,[99] and the petition must have been filed within three years after its passage.[100] If the depredation was committed prior to July, 1865, the petition for relief must have been filed at the time of the passage of the Act and evidence introduced in support thereof.[101] The rule that a suit in the name of a dead man is a nullity applies to cases under the act,[102] and such a suit cannot be revived in the name of his administrator after the limitation period prescribed.[103] The Tucker Act does not extend to cases when the cause of action is depredation for which a tribe is primarily liable.[104] committed on territory which subsequently became their reservation. Hayt's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 455.

INDICTMENT AND PROSECUTION.

92. Bell v. The Dieguenos, 39 Ct. Cl. 350. The liability is primarily that of the depredator, the United States being liable merely as guarantors of the judgment recovered against the Indians. Vincent's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 456.

93. Bell v. The Dieguenos, 39 Ct. Cl. 350.

94. Statutes and treaties relating to New Mexico construed. Pino's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 64.

95. After the treaty of September 9, 1849, with the Navajos, they were liable for depredations. Pino's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 64.

96. Wilson's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 6.

97. Gagnon's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 10; Mayer's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 553.

98. Though the Indians committing the depredation were not members of the reservation when committed. McCoy's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 163.

99. Butler's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 167.

100. Gallegos v. Navajos, 39 Ct. Cl. 86. A case prosecuted against the wrong tribe until three years had expired cannot be maintained against Indians sought to be brought in by amendment. United States v. Martinez, 195 U. S. 469, 49 Law. Ed. 282.

101. A verified petition is not evidence of a depredation committed prior to July, 1865. Butler's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 167.

102. Gallegos v. Navajos, 39 Ct. Cl. 86.

103. Though presented within the period by an attorney ignorant of the death. Gallegos v. Navajos, 39 Ct. Cl. 86.

104. Vincent's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 456.

Scope of Topic.—This topic includes general criminal procedure from indictment to final judgment.[1] The substantive law of crimes[2] and procedure before indictment[3] are elsewhere treated, and matters of indictment, evidence and procedure peculiar to particular crimes are treated under titles appropriate to such crimes.

§ 1. Limitation of time to institute.[4]—Statutes of limitation are construed liberally in favor of the accused,[5] but do not run in favor of fugitives from justice.[6]

§ 2. Jurisdiction.[7]—There can be no jurisdiction of offenses committed beyond the boundary of the state,[8] except in case of offenses on boundary streams over which

1. See analytical index at head of topic.
2. See Criminal Law, 5 C. L. 883.
3. See Arrest and Binding Over, 5 C. L. 264.
4. See 4 C. L. 2.
5. The date of a note purporting to be forged does not necessarily show it to have been made at the time it bears date so as to bar prosecution. Commonwealth v. Hall, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 558. In the District of Columbia, an indictment must be found within three years after commission of the offense (U. S. Rev. St. § 1044), and the grand jury must act upon the case of one committed or held to bail within nine months or he must be discharged (D. C. Code, § 939). United States v. Cadarr, 24 App. D. C. 143. Through the repetition of overt acts, conspiracy becomes a continuing offense and the statute of limitations operates accordingly. Lorenz v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 337.
6. Concealment is as effectual as absence from the state. State v. Miller [Mo.] 87 S. W. 484.
7. See 4 C. L. 2.
8. Cattle straying across state line. Beat both states have jurisdiction.[9] Objection to jurisdiction of the person is waived by contesting a criminal case on its merits,[10] and the jurisdiction of the court in which an information or indictment is found is not impaired by the manner in which the accused is brought before it.[11] Felonies are usually triable only in courts of general original jurisdiction, while jurisdiction of misdemeanors is frequently conferred on inferior courts.[12] Municipal and corporation courts are generally restricted in their jurisdiction to offenses committed within the corporate limits of the municipality,[13] and against the ordinances or by-laws thereof,[14] though they are sometimes given jurisdiction concurrent with ordinary justices of the peace.[15] The municipal court of Milwaukee county has exclusive jurisdiction of all misdemeanors in that county.[16] That the county judge of another county held a part of the term does not oust the jurisdiction,[17] and the circuit court of two counties of the same circuit may be in session at the same time.[18] Failure of the courts to sit at the place prescribed by state laws does not depart from due process under the Federal constitution,[19] but may nevertheless render the conviction void.[20] A person of the age of 16 is prop-tie v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 477. An embezzlement takes place where the conversion occurs, and the courts of that state have jurisdiction. State v. Blackley, 138 N. C. 620, 50 S. E. 310. Bribery when begun by the mailing of a letter and completed by its receipt is triable where the letter was received. Benson v. Henkel, 198 U. S. 1, 49 Law. Ed. 919.

9. Mississippi river. State v. Seagraves [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 925. See Clark & M. Crimes [2d Ed.] § 489.

10. State v. Browning, 70 S. C. 466, 50 S. E. 185.

11. Holden v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 318. Where accused appeared in police court, pleaded not guilty, and waived trial by jury, a motion for a discharge was properly overruled which was based on objection that information was only a substitute for a former information for substantially the same offense, to which he had pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial. Id.

12. Justice and county court have concurrent jurisdiction of misdemeanors where the fine is under $200. Gray v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 764. The offense of deterring a witness from giving evidence in a felony case is a misdemeanor and within the jurisdiction of the St. Louis circuit court, though punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary. State v. Foster, 187 Mo. 590, 86 S. W. 245.

13. Justice of the peace of Gloversville cannot issue warrant returnable to himself on complaint for cruelty to animals committed in another town. McCarg v. Burr, 94 N. Y. S. 675. In Alabama, a warrant charging the offense of presenting a pistol, sworn out before a justice of the peace of precinct 37 of Jefferson county, is properly made returnable before the criminal court of Jefferson county, and the latter court has jurisdiction. Acts 1894-95, p. 498, is valid and was not repealed by Acts 1900-01, p. 216, § 8. Lee v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 366. Mayor of town of Clinton held to have power under 20 St. at Large, p. 912, to call town wardens to his aid in trial of person accused of violating ordinance. Town of Clinton v. Leake [S. C.] 50 S. E. 541. Since Acts 1901, p. 1865, § 24, gives city court of Bessemer authority to issue warrants, it has authority to allow an amendment to an affidavit for a complaint made before a justice and returnable to the city court. Witherspoon v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 356. Municipal court held not to have had jurisdiction because record of case did not show a public offense, the charge being merely "drunk and disorderly." State v. Bates [Minn.] 104 N. W. 890. A breach of fish and game regulations is by statute a misdemeanor and any person guilty may be proceeded against before any justice having local jurisdiction. Ex parte Fritz [Miss.] 38 So. 722. A justice who has required accused to give bond for his appearance in the superior court and has bound witnesses to there appear, as prescribed by statute, has no further jurisdiction of the case. Cannot reverse his decision and adjudge the accused guilty of an offense within his jurisdiction. State v. Lucas [N. C.] 51 S. E. 1021. Under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. §§ 2722, 4683, a justice has jurisdiction to try a sane child between eight and sixteen years of age for the offense of disturbing a public school in violation of Laws 1903, p. 328, c. 156, § 12. State v. Packenham [Wash.] 82 P. 597.

14. Justices of the peace of the city and county of Denver have original and exclusive jurisdiction of all causes arising under the charter and ordinances of the city. May determine constitutionality of ordinances. People v. District Court of Second Judicial Dist. [Colo.] 80 P. 888. A provision in a city charter attempting to make its corporation court a state court may be void and the court still have jurisdiction to take cognizance of violations of city ordinances. Ex parte Levine [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 1206.

15. Statutes cannot authorize police and city courts to impose greater penalties than justices of the peace may impose. Stone v. Paducah [Ky.] 86 S. W. 531.

16. Stoltman v. Lake [Wis.] 102 N. W. 920.

17. People v. Cox, 94 N. Y. S. 526.

18. State v. Pope, 110 Mo. App. 520, 85 S. W. 633. See 5 C. L. 872, n. 26, special note.

19. Rogers v. Peck, 26 S. Ct. 87.

20. Where an indictment is found, the defendant arraigned and a day set for trial, at a time not authorized by law, a judgment erly triable by the court of general sessions of the peace in New York, and is not exclusively within the jurisdiction of the children's court.[21] The exclusion from the jurisdiction of the supreme court of the District of Columbia of cases "lawfully triable in any other court" refers only to other courts of the District,[22] and does not exclude cases which might be tried in another district.[23] The fact that defendant, at the time of his arrest, is serving out a part of a sentence, by anticipation, before trial for a misdemeanor, does not deprive another county of jurisdiction to try him for a felony before he has been tried for the misdemeanor and served out his sentence therefor.[24]

Offenses on Federal territory or against Federal laws are within the jurisdiction of the Federal courts, though there may be a concurrent jurisdiction. Likewise offenses by Indians on Indian reservations.[25]

Equity will enjoin criminal proceedings under a void municipal ordinance where property rights will be destroyed by its enforcement.[26] That defendant was called and testified before the grand jury which indicted him does not oust jurisdiction so that a writ of prohibition will lie to restrain the prosecution.[27]

Jurisdiction is not lost by release of defendant before trial on his own recognizance, though such proceeding is unauthorized.[28]

It is the usual practice in the administration of law to waive for the time being the trial of a misdemeanor in order that a felony charge may be investigated and tried.[29]

Transfer [30] to another court or another division of the same court for prejudice of the judge is provided for in some states, and provision is made for transfer of indictments to the county or district in which the proof shows the offense to have been committed;[31] nor is it an objection to such removal that it would prevent a "speedy trial" of the indictment in the district from which defendant removed.[32] In certain cases, indictments returned into the district court of Texas are transferred to the county court for trial.[33] Removal to the Federal court may be had where a Federal officer is prosecuted in a state court for an act done under color of his office, and in cases where the prisoner is denied any civil rights.[34] of conviction is void. Walker v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 242.

21. People v. Superintendent of House of Refuge on Randall's Island, 46 Misc. 131, 93 N. Y. S. 218.

22, 23. Hyde v. Shine, 199 U. S. 62, 50 Law. Ed. —; Dimond v. Shine, 199 U. S. 88, 50 Law. Ed. —.

24. Russell v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 291. One who, having been arrested for a misdemeanor, is serving out a part of his sentence by anticipation in a convict camp, is within Code 1896, § 4521, and hence the president of the board of convict inspectors has the right to order his removal to another county to be there tried for a felony. Id.

25. After abandonment of tribal relations and allotment of lands in severalty, state laws apply. State v. Smokalem, 37 Wash. 91, 79 P. 603.

26. See 4 C. L. 3, n. 22. See Injunction, 4 C. L. 96.

27. People v. Davy, 94 N. Y. S. 1037.

28. People v. Harber, 100 App. Div. 317, 91 N. Y. S. 571.

29. Boone v. Riddle [Ky.] 86 S. W. 978.

30. See 4 C. L. 3.

31. An indictment is prima facie evidence of probable cause to remove to another jurisdiction for trial (Beavers v. Henkel, 194 U. S. 73, 48 Law. Ed. 882), and technical objections thereto will not be considered (Id.), nor can it be impeached by evidence that the grand jury did not have before it evidence sufficient to indict (Id.). The District of Columbia is a district of the United States, and the supreme court thereof a United States court within the statute authorizing removal of persons charged with crime to the district where the trial is to be had. Benson v. Henkel, 198 U. S. 1, 49 Law. Ed. 919; Hyde v. Shine, 199 U. S. 62, 50 Law. Ed. —. Such proceedings may be had, though there are indictments pending in the district from which removal was had, if the court having jurisdiction thereof consents. Beavers v. Haubert, 198 U. S. 77, 49 Law. Ed. 950.

32. Beavers v. Haubert, 198 U. S. 77, 49 Law. Ed. 950.

33. Sufficient if transcript show number of case. Cantwell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 18; Bell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 805. Showing name of defendant also is not a variance. Cantwell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 18. Date on which district court adjourned need not be shown. Id.; Adams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1079.

34. Jurisdiction of Federal court attaches immediately on filing proper petition in state

§ 3. Place of prosecution and change of venue.[35]—Prosecution may be had in the county or state where the offense was consummated,[36] or where it was initiated, if a complete offense was there committed,[37] and the court of the county in which the indictment alleges the offense to have been committed has jurisdiction until it appears that the offense was committed in another court.[38] Statutes regulate the procedure where the fatal blow is struck in one county and death ensues in another.[39] Where statutory larceny, proved by false pretenses, is prosecuted by an indictment charging larceny, the venue must be laid in same county in which the accused had possession of the property.[40] Offenses committed on the high seas are triable in the district in which the offender is found or into which he is first brought,[41] and an offense on a river which is a boundary of a county is committed within the county.[42]

Change of venue.[43]—Statutes usually provide for change of venue upon proper application[44] and showing,[45] alike for the defendant[46] and the state.[47] The motion addresses itself to the sound discretion of the trial court,[48] and a counter showing is properly allowed.[49] Where the affiants on cross-examination are found to be court, and nonpetitioning party may file record and move for remand immediately. Removal cannot be had for causes that may be redressed by the state court and on appeal from it to the supreme court of the United States. State of New Jersey v. Corrigan, 139 F. 758.

35. See 4 C. L. 3.

36. False pretenses. State v. Marshall [Vt.] 59 A. 916; Bates v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 251. A conviction of dealing in margins contrary to the statute may be had in the county where the orders were given and the money paid. Weare Com. Co. v. People, 111 Ill. App. 116. Libel is punishable in any courts into which the newspaper containing it was sent. State v. Huston [S. D.] 104 N. W. 451.

37. Embezzlement. Property being situate in another county. Higbee v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 74. Place of committing theft by hiring horses with intent to steal them. Lewis v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 523, 87 S. W. 831.

38. Prosecution in wrong county is no bar to another in the proper county. Statute authorizing transfer to proper county sustained. Welty v. Ward [Ind.] 73 N. E. 889.

39. First counts to obtain jurisdiction of defendant. Commonwealth v. Jones, 26 Ky. L. R. 867, 82 S. W. 643. Fraudulent proceedings in one county do not oust jurisdiction of other county. Hargis v. Parker [Ky.] 85 S. W. 704.

40. Commonwealth v. Friedman [Mass.] 74 N. E. 464.

41. Kerr v. Shine [C. C. A.] 136 F. 61.

42. Nickols v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 513.

43. See 4 C. L. 4.

44. Must be supported by affidavits of two witnesses besides accused. State v. Swisher, 186 Mo. 1, 84 S. W. 911. Application presented after jurors had been examined on voir dire and trial begun is untimely. State v. Faulkner, 185 Mo. 673, 84 S. W. 967. After refusal of continuance but before plea and swearing of jury is not too late. Minniard v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 187. Where the statute limits the state to one application, a withdrawn application does not count, though not withdrawn until after the decision was announced. White v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 753; Jett v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 1179. Where the application is not timely or conformable to a rule of the court, it may be denied. Maxey v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1009.

45. When not error for a mayor to overrule a motion for a change of venue in a prosecution for keeping a place where intoxicating liquors are sold. Volk v. Westerville, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 241. Denied for prejudice where an equal number of witnesses testify as to prejudice and nonprejudice. State v. Rooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82. That the panel selected to try accused were in part those who had just convicted his codefendant is no ground for change. State v. Swisher, 186 Mo. 1, 84 S. W. 911. Prejudice of part of inhabitants of county not sufficient. Earles v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1; State v. Parmenter [Kan.] 79 P. 123. Prejudice of judge must be towards defendant, not on account of his opinion on a question of law. Id. Change should be allowed because of local bias, it appearing that public and press alike and unitedly believed accused guilty and hated him. Embezzlement and perjury by bank president. People v. Georger, 95 N. Y. S. 790.

46. Change cannot be granted for local prejudice in Wisconsin where the offense is not punishable by imprisonment in the state prison. Hanley v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 57.

47. White v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 753. Removal at suit of state cannot be had in South Dakota. In re Nelson [S. D.] 102 N. W. 885.

48. State v. Parmenter [Kan.] 79 P. 123; State v. Faulkner, 185 [Mo.] 673, 84 S. W. 967; Mount v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 707; Andrews v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1031. The discretion of the trial judge in refusing to grant a change of venue on the ground that accused cannot obtain a fair trial by an impartial jury will be interfered with only in case of manifest abuse of discretion. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1.

49. State v. Parmenter [Kan.] 79 P. 123. Properly denied on equal showing. Jett v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 1179; Mount v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 707.

uninformed, the application is properly denied.[50] Statutory directions as to the order must be observed.[51]

The record and papers must be certified to the court to which the change is made, and timely filed in such court.

§ 4. Indictment and information. A. Necessity of indictment.[52]—At the common law and in the Federal courts, infamous crimes and felonies can be prosecuted only by indictment.[53] Several states have dispensed with the necessity of indictments in all cases,[54] and indictments have never been required in misdemeanors.[55] At the common law the finding of a coroner's jury was a sufficient accusation.[56] If seasonably demanded,[57] accusation by indictment in misdemeanors is allowed by some statutes.

(§ 4) B. Finding and filing and formal requisites. Indictments.[58]—Previous binding over or commitment of accused is not necessary,[59] and where an indictment is regularly found, and defendant pleads thereto and goes to trial on the merits, all defects and irregularities in the information, warrant, and proceedings before the magistrate must be held cured.[60] After indictment found, the charge may be again referred to the grand jury and an indictment for a higher degree returned.[61] It is not indispensable that the informer or prosecutor should have personal knowledge of facts necessary to convict.[62] The indictment must be found by the grand jury of the county or district in which the crime was committed,[63] and be returned in open court by them[64] at a term of the court for that county.[65] The grand jury must have been lawfully convoked.[66] If statutes merely direct the immediate recording of the organization of the grand jury,[67] it may be done at any time in term.[68]

50. Maxey v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1009; Williams v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 88 S. W. 334.

51. The judge in Texas need assign reasons only for the change, not for changing to a distant instead of a near county. Ricks v State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 555, 87 S. W. 1036. Change to the nearest county is not necessary where the same objections exist there as in the county of the vicinage. Wallace v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 612, 87 S. W. 1041.

52. See 4 C. L. 5.

53. State v. Nichols [R. I.] 60 A. 763.

54. State v. Guglielmo [Or.] 79 P. 577; Id. [Or.] 80 P. 103. The provision of the Federal constitution requiring indictment is a limitation on the Federal courts only. State v. Rudolph, 187 Mo. 67, 85 S. W. 584. Acts 1900, p. 144, amending an act creating the city court of Macon and denying to defendants in criminal cases within the jurisdiction of that court the right to demand an indictment by the grand jury, is constitutional. Moore v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 81. U. S. 1867, as amended by Laws 1898, p. 34, No. 46, and Laws 1904, No. 64, providing that state's attorneys may prosecute by information all crimes except those punishable by death or life imprisonment, is constitutional. State v. Stimpson [Vt.] 62 A. 14.

55. Jurisdiction of offense of beating an animal having been conferred on justice of the peace may be prosecuted by complaint. State v. Nichols [R. I.] 60 A. 763.

56. See 4 C. L. 5, n. 55.

57. For one charged under an accusation in the county court with a misdemeanor, to avail himself of the right to demand an indictment, he must make such demand in a writing signed by him. Pen. Code 1895, § 751. Shivers v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 596.

58. See 4 C. L. 5.

59. Record need not show motion in open court and leave granted to prefer indictment. Commonwealth v. Brown, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 470. See Arrest and Binding Over, 5 C. L. 264.

60. Commonwealth v. Schoen, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 211.

61. Nash v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 497.

62. Commonwealth v. Barr, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 609.

63. Concurrence of 12 is necessary. Nash v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 497. Each separate count need not show that it was returned by the grand jury of the particular county. Donahue v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 996.

64. Where it appears by the record that a grand jury organized in the oyer has presented indictments in the quarter sessions, it will be assumed in the absence of proof to the contrary, that there was not any justice of the supreme court then present at the court house. State v. Turner [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1112.

65. Where the indctmet purports to have been found at an adjourned term and there is no showing to the contrary, it will not be presumed to have been found in vacation. Donahue v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 996. Regularity of term presumed. Frame v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 711.

66 De facto judge may do so. Walker v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 241. Court not sitting at a legal time cannot do so. Skinner v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 242.

67, 68. Though Code 1896, § 934, makes it the duty of the clerk to keep a record of each day's minutes and § 2641 requires them to be read each morning in open court, failure of the clerk to record the organization of a grand jury at the time a motion to

The caption is that entry of record showing when and where the court is held, who presided as judge, the venire, and who were summoned and sworn as grand jurors.[69] The indictment must commence and conclude[70] in the constitutional or statutory form, and be signed by the prosecuting officer,[71] and indorsed and signed by the foreman of the grand jury,[72] unless these are dispensed with by statute.[73] A recital of the oath of the grand jurors may be dispensed with.[74] Immaterial variances between preliminary information or complaint and the indictment founded thereon do not prejudice.[75]

The indictment being when filed a public record[76] may be supplied from copies competently proved if return of the original to the proper custodian is impossible.[77] The court may be compelled by mandamus from the court of last resort to do this.[78] The statute providing for supplying lost indictments does not apply to a case where an indictment is not returned by the appellate court on reversal.[79]

Information.[80]—An information must generally be preceded by a sufficient preliminary complaint,[81] examination,[82, 83] and commitment, and must be filed within the statutory period thereafter,[84] though technical exactness is not required in the quash an indictment was made is not ground for quashing an indictment. Carwile v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 270.

69. Overton v. State, 60 Ala. 73, quoted with approval in Gater v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 692. Words "Spring Term, 1903," held not to constitute the caption. Gater v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 692. Words "Spring Term" in caption instead of "Fall Term", held a misprision and not to affect validity of indictment. Id.

70. Statutory conclusion of common-law indictment may be rejected as surplusage. State v. Bacon [R. I.] 61 A. 653.

71. Signature need not be written by district attorney's own hand. Commonwealth v. Brown, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 470. The attorney general may sign whenever required to prosecute criminal proceedings in any courts by the governor. State v. Bowles [Kan.] 79 P. 726. The district court is obliged to take judicial notice of the governor's order, and the attorney general's authority need not appear on the face of the indictment. Id.

72. Printed words "A true bill" signed by foreman are sufficient. State v. Harlan [Kan.] 81 P. 480. Failure to sign may be waived. McFall v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 479. Lack of signature is not fatal in Texas. Kehoe v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 881, 89 S. W. 270.

73. By statute in Texas, it is no objection to an indictment that it is not signed by the foreman of the grand jury. Kehoe v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 881, 89 S. W. 270.

74. State v. Guglielmo [Or.] 799 P. 577.

75. Information charging the setting up and maintenance of "a public or common nuisance in and upon a public highway" and indictment charging it to have been "in a common road or highway, for all citizens of this commonwealth to go, pass or travel at their will. Commonwealth v. Mock, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 51. The accusation and commitment should be made broad enough to cover any possible phase of the case. Commonwealth v. Barr, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 609. Technical accuracy not required in preliminary information. Commonwealth v. Dingman, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 615.

76, 77. State v. Circuit Court [S. D.] 104 N. W. 1048. Carbon copies which both the state's attorney and the clerk testified were in their belief true copies are sufficiently proved. Id.

78. State v. Circuit Court [S. D.] 104 N. W. 1048.

79. Martinez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 462, 87 S. W. 344.

80. See 4 C. L. 6.

81. State v. Wisnewski [N. D.] 102 N. W. 883. Imperfections are cured by examination and commitment. People v. Warner [Cal.] 82 P. 196. Affidavit cannot be taken before city attorney. Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 274. Complaint for malicious mischief need not show that it was made by a creditable person. Steinke v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 753. Variance between complaint and information as to date of offense is fatal. Smith v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 753. An information may be quashed for changing larceny of property in addition to that mentioned in the complaint and warrant. Clute v. Ionia Circuit Judge [Mich.] 102 N. W. 843. Complaint for bribes, held sufficient. Murphy v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1087. "Mount" and "Mounts" held fatal. Harrison v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1058.

82, 83. Loss of the complaint does not necessitate another examination, especially where defendant waived examination. In re Jay [Idaho] 79 P. 202. Whether the evidence was sufficient cannot be raised on habeas corpus after conviction. Ex parte Knudtson [Idaho] 79 P. 641. Warrant charging assault on ———— Bert is not variant from information naming him Joseph Burt. State v. Johnson [Kan.] 79 P. 732. Statutes may authorize the filing of an information without examination within specified time preceding a term of court. Rev. St. 1899, § 5273. Hollibaugh v. Hehn [Wyo.] 79 P. 1044. A statute authorizing judges of city courts to act as committing magistrate is valid in Utah. State v. Shockley [Utah] 80 P. 865.

84. See 4 C. L. n. 67.

complaint,[85] and all preliminary proceedings are presumed regular in the absence of a contrary showing.[86]

Verification or a supporting affidavit is generally necessary,[87] though failure to verify may be waived,[88] and the lack of it is not fatal if no objection is made on that ground,[89] and an information need not show on its face that it is based on the affidavit of a competent and reputable person.[90]

An information should commence and conclude in proper form.[91] It must be signed by the proper prosecuting officer.[92]

(§ 4) C. Requisites and sufficiency of the accusation. General rules.[93]—Indictments and informations must clearly inform the accused of the nature and form of the accusation against him,[94] though it is a general rule and expressly provided by statute in many states that no information or indictment is insufficient for any imperfection in matter of form which does not prejudice substantial rights,[95] and an indictment is always sufficient which states the offense clearly and distinctly, in ordinary and concise language, without repetition and in such manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended.[96] Statutes prescribing forms are unobjectionable where the forms meet these requirements,[97] and statutes providing for bills of particulars safeguard accused's rights in cases where indictments in general form are provided.[98] The words of an indictment should be given their ordinary and commonly accepted meaning.[99] One count may refer to

85. State Wisnewski [N. D.] 102 N. W. 883; State v. Moon [Kan.] 80 P. 597.

86. People v. Warner [Cal.] 82 P. 196.

87. State v. Gutke [Mo.] 87 S. W. 503; State v. Lee [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 527; Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 274; State v. Kelly [Mo.] 87 S. W. 451. Not in Oregon. State v. Guglielmo [Or.] 79 P. 577; Id. 80 P. 103. May be added by amendment before trial. State v. Rollins, 186 Mo. 501, 85 S. W. 516; State v. Emerson [Mo.] 87 S. W. 469. Verification on information and belief is sufficient Hollibaugh v. Hehn [Wyo.] 79 P. 1044. Filing supporting affidavit held sufficient. State v. Coleman, 186 Mo. 151, 84 S. W. 978. Venue need not be repeated in verification when on same sheet with caption. State v. Bailey [Mo.] 88 S. W. 733. The omission of the seal of the court to the jurat of the clerk is immaterial. State v. Forsba [Mo.] 88 S. W. 746. In Louisiana an information by the prosecuting attorney filed of his own motion need not be verified by special oath. State v. Smith [La.] 38 So. 202; State v. Smith [La.] 38 So. 204. See, also, 4 C. L. 6, n. 70 et seq. The official oath of office suffices unless the statute requires more, 10 Enc. Pl. & Pr. 451.

88. Goddard v. State [Neb.] 103 N W. 443; Hollibaugh v. Hehn [Wyo.] 79 P .1044.

89. State v. Tindall [Mo.] 87 S. W. 451.

89. State v. Emerson [Mo.] 87 S. W. 469.

90. State v. Guglielmo [Or.] 80 P. 103.

91. Must conclude "upon the oath" of the prosecuting attorney. State v. Coleman, 186 Mo. 151, 84 S. W. 978; State v. Atchley, 186 Mo. 174, 84 S. W. 984; State v. Dawson, 187 Mo. 60, 85 S. W. 526.

92. Signing with initials of Christian name is enough. State v. Brock, 186 Mo. 457, 85 S. W. 595. Signature of deputy held sufficiently ratified. State v. Guglielmo [Or.] 80 P. 103. Signature by deputy held sufficient. Murrey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 475, 87 S. W. 349.

93. See 4 C. L. 7.

94. Unless the acts charged constitute either a felony or misdemeanor under the statutes, no crime is charged. State v. Dailey [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1008.

95. See 4 C. L. 7, n. 78.

96. Code, § 5280. State v. Finnegean [Iowa] 103 N. R. 155; State v. Dickerhoff [Iowa] 103 N. W. 350; State v. Nelson [Wash.] 8 P. 721; State v. Sly [Idaho] 80 P. 1125. Rev. Codes 1899, § 8047, subd. 7. State v. Erickson [N. D.] 103 N. W. 389. Section 408, div. 11, Cr. Code (Hurd's Rev. St. 1901). O'Donnell v. People, 110 Ill. App. 250. Code Cr. Proc. § 11. Act March 31, 1860. False pretenses. Commonwealth v. White, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 178; Commonwealth v. Hall, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 558. Conspiracy to commit a crime is sufficiently charged where the crime is described in the language of the statute or by its common-law definition. Commonwealth v. Brown, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 470. Deposit of noxious substances in river held sufficiently charged. State v. Providence Gas Co. [R. I.] 61 A. 44. Failure to follow the statutory form in charging murder is immaterial where the indictment sufficiently charge the offense. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75.

97. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75. The form of the indictment prescribed by Laws 1901, p. 58, c. 4930, § 8, for the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, is not defective in that it does not inform the accused of the nature of the accusation made against him. Maesar v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 470.

98. Embezzlement. Commonwealth v. McDonald [Mass.] 73 N. E. 852.

99. Common-law words must be given their common-law meaning. United States v. Green, 136 F. 618.

matter in a previous count for the purpose of avoiding unnecessary repetition;[1] though the count referred to is defective,[2] and the caption and commencement of an indictment may be looked to for the purpose of showing in what court the indictment was found.[3]

Certainty.[4]—An indictment or information must be direct and certain as regards the party charged,[5] the offense charged,[6] the doing of the act,[7] and the particular circumstances of the offense charged, when they are necessary to constitute a completed offense;[8] and no necessary allegation can be aided by intendment or inference,[9] nor will conclusions of the pleader eke out defective allegations of necessary facts.[10] Every essential ingredient of the crime must be set forth,[11] with such particularity that the accused may not only know the particular charge against him, but may be able to plead the judgment in bar of a second prosecution;[12] but it is not necessary to aver that which appears from an instrument set out.[13] The means used to commit the offense should be stated where the degree of the offense depends upon

1. Where an indictment for conspiracy contains several counts, and the first count states the details of the conspiracy as matter of introduction, and the other counts refer to the "same scheme" as detailed in the first count, such reference will be held sufficient to import the introductory statement into each count, especially after verdict, no substantial right of the accused being violated. Lorenz v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 337.

2. See 4 C. L. 7, n. 81, 82.

3. Donahue v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 996. The venue and that the crime was committed before the finding of the indictment. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75. Not for the purpose of making more certain any of the essential averments in the charging part. See 4 C. L. 7, n. 84.

4. See 4 C. L. 7.

5. His name need not be constantly repeated. The "said" or "aforesaid" may be used to designate accused when he has been once correctly described. State v. Eddy [Or.] 81 P. 941. Indictment for robbery held bad for failure to aver that accused used the force and violence charged. Id.

6. Larceny of crops by farm tenant. State v. Ashpole [Iowa] 104 N. W. 281. Indictment for whitecapping held uncertain. Bettis v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1074. An indictment should not be quashed because of any defect in form, unless it is so vague and indefinite as to mislead the accused and embarrass him in the preparation of his defense, or expose him after conviction or acquittal to danger of a new prosecution for the same offense. Dickens v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 909. An indictment which informs the accused of the nature and cause of the accusation and so identifies the offense as to insure against a subsequent prosecution therefor is sufficient. Brister v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 678.

7. Under Rev. St. 1892, § 2893, where the omission of a word from an indictment is plainly a mere clerical misprision, and where the meaning is perfectly clear from the context, and consequently the accused is not misled or embarrassed in making his defense and is not exposed to substantial danger of a new prosecution for the same offense, an appellate court will not reverse a judgment of conviction because of such omission. Caesar v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 470. So held where word "did" was omitted before word "engage" in an indictment for illegally selling intoxicating liquors. Id.

8. The indictment must state directly all the material facts and circumstances embraced in the definition of the crime charged. Tyner v. U. S., 23 App. D. C. 324. False entry by bank officer. State v. Piper [N. H.] 60 A. 742. The means used to cheat and defraud need not be alleged, it being an offense at common law. State v. Bacon [R. I.] 61 A. 653. Requisites of indictment for conspiracy to defraud by use of mails stated. Miller v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 337. An indictment for rape upon a female "under the age of 16 years, to wit, of the age of 14 years and upward," is not confusing. State v. Jones [Mont.] 80 P. 1095. Information for drunkenness in a public place must show that the place was public. Murrey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 475, 87 S. W. 349. Following lottery statute suffices without setting out manner or means or what the lottery was State v. Miller [Mo.] 89 S. W. 377. It is not necessary in an indictment for knowingly renting a house with a view and expectation of the same being used as a gaming house that the name of the tenant should be averred. Bashinski v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 499. It is not essential in an indictment for bigamy to allege the time when and the place at which the prior marriage took place. Murphy v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 48.

9. State v Ashpole [Iowa] 104 N W. 281; State v. Eddy [Or.] 81 P. 941.

10. State v. Piper [N H.] 60 A 742. In an indictment for forging or fraudulently altering a teacher's license, it is necessary to set out the material facts thereof; and it is not sufficient to describe the instrument merely by calling it a license, and stating as a legal conclusion that it authorized the holder to teach in the public schools of the state and receive pay therefor. Taylor v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 326.

11. See 4 C. L. 8, n. 90.

12. Use of mails to defraud. Miller v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 337.

13. Indictment framed under Pen. Code 1895, § 234, making it a felony to utter a forged order for money, goods or any thing of value, held, that the order forged, recited in the indictment, sufficiently showed that fact,[14] but where the statute makes the particular kind of act punishable, that only need be stated. Indictments for attempts to commit a crime must aver both the intent and the overt act constituting the attempt.[15] To authorize cumulative punishment, previous convictions must be clearly alleged.[16] Where the crime can be committed only on certain territory, it must be clearly alleged that defendant's act was committed within the proscribed area.[17]

Bad spelling and ungrammatical construction[18] do not vitiate an indictment[19] where no prejudice results to the accused.[20]

Intent or knowledge.[21]—Where intent, malice,[22] or knowledge is not a statutory element of the offense,[23] or where the facts charged necessarily involve it,[24] it need not be averred. But where of the essence of the offense as defined in the statute, averment is necessary.[25] In charging attempts where the intent is the gist of the offense, it must be directly and certainly charged.[26] "Unlawfully" is not necessary where "knowingly, willfully and feloniously" are averred.[27] The use of "feloniously" in charging a misdemeanor does not vitiate the indictment.[28]

Venue[29] must be alleged, but beyond a mere showing that the offense was committed within the jurisdiction of the court, a specific averment of locality is not generally otherwise required.[30]

Surplusage[31] is a term applied to those nondescriptive averments in a pleading the goods obtained to be of value, as against a motion in arrest of judgment. Battle v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 342.

14. An indictment for conspiracy need not set out the means by which the conspirators intended to accomplish their unlawful purpose. Chicago, W. & V. Coal Co. v. People, 114 Ill. App. 75. An indictment for murder by means unknown is good. Donahue v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 996. Means of committing murder and location of wound held sufficiently alleged. Wound on head with blunt instrument. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75. In Florida, in homicide, the instrument, if known to the grand jury, must be described in the indictment (Houston v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 468), and if unknown it should be stated that the means, instruments and weapons are to the jury unknown (Id.)

15. Hogan v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 464. An indictment charging that the accused "did by force and against her will unlawfully attempt to ravish and carnally know the person of one A. a female person, by then and there unlawfully, by force and against her will, attempting to have sexual intercourse with her, the said A.," is fatally defective in failing to aver an overt act. Id.

16. General allegation not sufficient. Kinney v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 590. Where cumulative punishment is predicated or prior convictions of felony and prior convictions in other states are relied on, facts must be alleged showing such crimes to be felonies in the states where conviction took place Commonwealth v. Finn [Ky.] 86 S. W. 693.

17. See 4 C. L. 8, n. 94, and see Intoxicating Liquors, 4 C. L. 272.

18. See 4 C. L. 8.

19. Newman v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1089. Omission of "of" between words "goods and chattels" and name of prosecutor. Bennett v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 483. Omission of "and" from averment of year, and "said" before name. Pearson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 325. Use of "is" for "his." Lewallen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 554, 87 S. W. 1159. Use of "willingly" for "wilfully" in indictment for murder. Daniels v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 844.

20. See post, § 15.

21. See 4 C. L. 8.

22. Murder by abortion. Johnson v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 133.

23. Knowledge of relationship in incest. State v. Rennick [Iowa] 103 N. W. 159.

24. Forgery. Commonwealth v. Hall, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 558. Conspiracy. Chicago, W. & V. Coal Co. v. People, 114 Ill. App. 75. Conspiracy to defraud. United States v. Stone, 135 F. 392.

25. Bribery. United States v. Green, 136 F. 618. Forgery. State v. Swensen [Idaho] 81 P. 379. Indictment for mayhem in blowing off another's hand with a cannon cracker held sufficiently to aver malice and willfullness. Neblett v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 813. In an indictment under Pen. Code 1895, § 219, par. 3, it is not necessary to allege that the act of trespass was done "willfully." Shrouder v. State, 212 Ga. 615, 49 S. E. 702. In prosecution for keeping dangerous dog, knowledge that dog was fierce and dangerous must be alleged and proved, but knowledge of attacks by the dog need not be. Tubins v. District of Columbia, 21 App. D. C. 267.

26. See 4 C. L. 8, n. 3.

27. State v. Miller [Mo.] 89 S. W. 377.

28. Brister v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 678.

29. See 4 C. L. 8.

30. Venue held sufficiently shown by caption. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75. State, being shown in margin, need not be repeated in body. State v. Hunt [Mo.] 88 S. W. 719.

31. See 4 C. L. 9.

which may be rejected without impairing its validity.[32] Such averments may be treated as merely useless and of no effect and need not be proved.[33]

Time.[34]—Where there is no statute of limitations barring the offense, it is unnecessary to state the day or even the year, but it is sufficient to aver generally that the offense was committed before the finding of the indictment,[35] and it is not necessary in any case to state the day on which the offense was committed, unless the day itself is of the essence of the offense,[36] or unless time is important to bring the offense within the operation of new or amended statutes or the like, and where an impossible date is given, it will be disregarded if the offense be one as to which there is no limitation and as to which the date is not important.[37] A continuing offense is properly charged as between certain dates.[38] It is not essential that an accusation for a misdemeanor charge the commission of the crime on the same day as that alleged in the warrant upon which the accusation is based.[39]

Avoiding statute of limitations.[40]—Where there is a statute of limitations applicable to the offense, there should be a sufficiently definite averment of time to 32. Allegations in an indictment, wholly foreign to any element in the offense charged, may be disregarded as surplusage, and need not be proved. Shrouder v. State, 121 Ga. 615, 49 S. E. 702. The rule is otherwise as to averments which are descriptive of some element in the offense, though more precise and detailed than is absolutely necessary. Id.

Illustrations: Indictment for perjury. State v. Mercer [Md.] 61 A. 220. Charge of assault in count for rape. James v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 320. A conclusion "against the form of the statute" is surplusage in an indictment for an offense at the common law. State v. Bacon [R. I.] 61 A. 653. Want of consent of female under age of consent. State v. Jones [Mont.] 80 P. 1095. An indictment charging that the accused in the nighttime did unlawfully, willfully and maliciously set fire to and attempt to burn a certain building owned by A. and occupied by B. as a dwelling house, sufficiently set forth an attempt to commit arson, even though it alleges more than is necessary. Kinchien v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 467. An averment in an indictment for violation of a statute relative to the carrying on of the business of putting up lightning rods, that defendant "sold" rods was mere surplusage. State v. Sheppard, 138 N. C. 679, 50 S. E. 231.

33. State v. Erickson [N. D.] 103 N. W. 389. Continuando alleging commission of offense on day certain and divers other days. Commonwealth v. Dingman, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 615. "Suffer" and "allow" held surplusage in information alleging that defendant did suffer, allow and permit a minor to remain in his saloon. Botkins v. State [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 298.

34. See 4 C. L. 9.

35. Commonwealth v. Dingman, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 615; State v. Gift [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 593. Commission of offense before finding of indictment held shown by caption. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75. Indictment to replace one lost held bad for conflict of dates and uncertainty of limitations. Combs v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 753. Where a date must be alleged, averment of the year as "one thousand nine hundred four" is sufficient. Pearson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 325.

36. State v. Wissing, 187 Mo. 96, 85 S. W. 557. The exact date of the commission of the crime need not be set forth in the indictment except where time is a material element of the offense. Indictment for rape not demurrable because the day of the month is left blank. Cecil v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 654. On the trial of one indicted for breaking Sunday laws, evidence of any violation of the law prior to the finding of the indict- admissible. Seale v. State, 121 Ga. 741, 49 S. E. 740. Where a special presentment was returned at the November term, 1903, of the superior court of Jefferson county, which begins its sessions November 12, and charged that an offense was committed November 8, 1903, this was sufficient to show that the alleged date of the offense was prior to the return of the presentment. Edwards v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 630. The time of the alleged commission of an offense, as stated in the indictment or information, must not be shown on the face of such pleading to be subsequent to the return of the indictment or the filing of the information, but must appear to be anterior or prior thereto. Terrell v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 884. An indictment found Sept. 12, 1903, charging the commission of the offense on "July 12, 18903," held fatally defective. Id. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 1825, providing that no indictment or information shall be deemed invalid because it omits to state the time at which the offense was committed in any case in which time is not of the essence of the offense, nor for stating the time imperfectly unless time is of the essence of the offense, will not remedy the defect. Id. Date on which an unlawful sale of intoxicating liquor was made. State v. Burton, 138 N. C. 575, 50 S. E. 214.

37. See 4 C. L. 9, n. 18, 19. Where the information charged an offense on the 9th day of September and the state's attorney said in his opening statement that he expected to prove an offense in August, held not to make the date alleged an impossible one, and a motion to quash on such ground was properly overruled. State v. Willett [Vt.] 62 A. 48.

38. Living in adultery. State v. Nelson [Wash.] 81 P. 721. See, also, post, § 4 F.

39. Shivers v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 596.

40. See 4 C. L. 9.

show that the statute has not run.[41] Where it appears on the face of the indictment that limitations have run, facts avoiding the bar must be pleaded.[42]

Repugnancy [43] consists in two inconsistent allegations in the same count which destroy each other.[44] No contradictory or repugnant matters which may be rejected as surplusage will vitiate, nor is an indictment repugnant which conjunctively unites in a single count all the disjunctive elements recited in the statute defining the offense;[45] or the several causes which may operate to toll the statute of limitations.[46] Repugnancy between counts is not demurrable.[47]

Duplicity.[48]—A count that charges two separate and distinct offenses is bad,[49] and where the alternative words of the statute create separate offenses, they cannot both be used in the same count,[50] but a single count may state facts that show that a statutory offense has been committed by all the modes named in the statute,[51] and if two or more offenses arise from a single act or transaction, or are closely related, they may be joined in one count.[52] In some states means may be averred in the alternative,[53] but in Georgia this is held bad pleading.[54] Averments of the several times and places of a crime are not double if the act of offense is single.[55] Acts alleged as incidents or parts of the main offense charged do not render the indictment duplex, though in themselves sufficient to amount to a statutory offense,[56] and an information is not double when one of the offenses is insufficiently charged.[57]

41. See 4 C. L. 10, n. 21.

42. Facts held sufficiently alleged. State v. Miller [Mo.] 87 S. W. 484.

43. See 4 C. L. 10.

44. It is not a valid objection to an indictment charging a conspiracy to defraud persons unknown that it also discloses that defendants defrauded persons known. Miller v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 337.

45. See 4 C. L. 10, n. 27.

46. State v. Miller [Mo.] 87 S. W. 484.

47. See 4 C. L. 10, n. 28

48. See 4 C. L. 17.

49. Commonwealth v. Hall, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 104; Id., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 232; Porter v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 767. Several offenses of disposing of crops by farm tenant. State v. Ashpole [Iowa] 104 N. W. 281. Selling chattel mortgaged property to two persons. Wood v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 1058.

50. See 4 C. L. 17, n. 61.

51. Desertion of wife and [or] children. Goddard v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 443. Where the statute makes two or more distinct acts connected with the same transaction indictable, each of which may be considered as representing a phase of the same offense, the different acts may be coupled in one court. Did make, utter and publish, and cause to be made, uttered and published. Commonwealth v. Hall, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 104, Id., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 232. An indictment charging conjunctively the commission of cognate offenses forbidden disjunctively in a statute is not duplex. State v. Providence Gas Co. [R. I.] 61 A. 44. Did keep and assist in keeping a nuisance. State v. Bush [Kan.] 79 P. 657. Larceny by stealing sheep, latter being a distinct crime. State v. Klein [Wash.] 80 P. 770.

52. Commonwealth v. Hall, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 104, Id., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 232.

53. See 4 C. 8, n. 95. In Alabama, the means by which a homicide was committed may be pleaded in alternative averments. Code 1896, §§ 4906, 4911. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329. Indictment for murder in the second degree held not vague and uncertain because of alternative averments that accused killed deceased "by hitting him or by striking him with a hatchet, or with some blunt instrument to the grand jury unknown." Id.

54. Where an offense can be committed in more than one way, an indictment charging it as having been committed in one way or the other, in the alternative is bad. Indictment charging that accused did "unlawfully play and bet for money or other thing of value at a game of skin or other game played with cards" is bad as against a special demurrer. Haley v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 159.

55. "On" a certain day "and on" divers days between then and a later day and "on the" later day avers only one continuing offense. State v. Brown [N. D.] 104 N. W. 1112. Averring a nuisance in two buildings in the same curtilage is not double. Liquor nuisance. Id.

56. Commonwealth v. Hall, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 104; Id., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 232. An averment in an indictment for murder that accused "did make an assault" is not double. Baysinger v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 728. An indictment charging that the signature of the chairman of the board of public instruction to a school warrant was forged, and also that the name of the payee indorsed thereon, "J. W. B by A. J. W" was a forgery, is not bad for duplicity, the indorsement being made by A. J. W. and hence, even though unauthorized, was not a forgery. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3.

57. Commonwealth v. Hall, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 232. Indictment alleging sale without license and sale in town which had voted no license. People v. Seeley, 93 N. Y. S. 982. Charge of arson is not bad, though it sets up facts amounting to a conspiracy were it not for the fact that defendants are husband

The statutory enumeration of offenses that may be joined in one indictment is exclusive.[58] An indictment is not duplex because it sets out the acts done in furtherance of the conspiracy charged,[59] nor because it charges a single crime against several,[60] nor because of the averment of a disjunctive oath in an assignment of perjury.[61]

Designation and characterization of the offense.[62]—In some states the crime must be designated by name if it has one, otherwise a brief description must be given.[63] In the absence of such a statute, a wrong designation or the absence of any designation in an otherwise sufficient indictment is immaterial.[64]

Statutory crimes.[65]—An indictment in the language of the statute or in terms substantially equivalent thereto is sufficient,[66] subject to the qualification, fundamental in the law of criminal procedure, that the accused is thereby apprised with reasonable certainty of the nature of the accusation against him.[67] If the words of themselves do not fully, directly and expressly without any uncertainty or ambiguity, set forth all the elements necessary to constitute the offense,[68] or if the statute merely designates the offense by its common-law name,[69] an indictment following the statute will not suffice. An information for a statutory offense need not use the language of the statute if the facts stated set forth all the essentials of the offense,[70] but the facts alleged must bring the offense clearly within the statutory terms.[71] In California private statutes are sufficiently pleaded by reference to their titles and the dates of their passage.[72] Ordinances must be specially pleaded.[73] and wife and could not conspire. State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561. Adultery and living in adultery. State v. Nelson [Wash.] 81 P. 721.

58. See 3 C. L. 17, n. 66, 67.

59. Several conspiracies to defraud and receiving money in furtherance of them. McGregor v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 134 F. 187; State v. Loser [Iowa] 104 N. W. 337.

60. Assault. State v. Johnson [Kan.] 79 P. 732. The stealing of articles belonging to two or more persons at one and the same time and place constitutes but one offense and may be so charged. State v. Clark [Or.] 80 P. 101.

61. Trevinio v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 716, 88 S. W. 356.

62. See 4 C. L. 10.

63. Designation of offense by name given in marginal note to statute denouncing it is sufficient. United States v. Green, 136 F. 618.

64. State v. Nelson [Wash.] 81 P. 721.

65. See 4 C. L. 10.

66. Fence breaking. State v. Gift [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 593. False personation of voter. Brennan v. People, 113 Ill. App. 361. Conspiracy. Chicago, W. & V. Coal Co. v. People, 114 Ill. App. 75. Abortion resulting in death. Johnson v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 133. Liquor selling. Commonwealth v. Jarvis [Ky.] 86 S. W. 556. McCalman v. State, 121 Ga. 491, 49 S. E. 609. For robbery, in the language of form 77 Cr. Code 1896, p. 335. Toliver v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 801. Indictment for larceny following the language of Pen. Code 1895, § 155, held to sufficiently allege the stealing and to sufficiently describe the property. Patterson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 489. An indictment for obtaining money under false pretenses being in the form prescribed by Code Ala. 1896, § 4923, form 48, Cr. Code 1896, p. 330, is sufficient. Johnson v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 937. In a prosecution for purchasing seed cotton in violation of law, an indictment following the terms of the statute held not subject to demurrer because of the failure to describe the land on which the seed cotton was grown. Bozemore v. State, 121 Ga. 619, 49 S. E. 701.

67. "Policy" need not be defined. State v. Cronin [Mo.] 88 S. W. 604.

68. An indictment under a statute must state all the circumstances which constitute the definition of the offense in the statute so as to bring the defendant precisely within it. State v. Dolan [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 181. False pretenses. Commonwealth v. White, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 178. False entry by bank officer. State v. Piper [N. H.] 60 A. 742. Conspiracy. O'Donnell v. People, 110 Ill. App. 250. To render an indictment good because in the language of the statute it must state every element necessary to constitute the offense. The offense as stated must be complete in itself. Commonwealth v. Gregory [Ky.] 89 S. W. 477.

69. See 4 C. L. 10, n. 35.

70. Enticing female into house of prostitution. State v. Dickerhoff [Iowa] 108 N. W. 350. Running automobile without license. State v. Cobb [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 551. Need not state circumstances of aggravation subjecting accused to greater punishment. See 4 C. L. 11, n. 37.

71. Allegation of "willful and unlawful" is insufficient under a statute denouncing "rudely" doing the act complained of. Fuller v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 524, 87 S. W. 832. An indictment for a statutory offense need not state the time when the statute took effect. See 4 C. L. 11, n. 37.

72. City ordinances. Ex parte Childs [Cal. App.] 81 P. 667.

73. The charge of "keeping intoxicants

Exceptions and provisos.[74]—Where an exception is so engrafted in the enacting clause of a statute that the offense cannot be described without meeting and negativing the exception, it must be alleged in the indictment that defendant is not within the excepted class if insisted upon,[75] but where the exceptions and provisos appear in distinct or subsequent clauses, negation is not necessary.[76] When a proviso in a statute is in the nature of an exception and withdraws the case provided for from the operation of the act, an indictment founded on such act need not negative the proviso.[77]

Setting forth written or printed matter.[78]—The general rule is that unless there is a special reason therefor a written instrument may be described by its legal effect;[79] but a variance between the purport and tenor clauses in forgery is fatal.[80]

Principals and accessories.[81]—At the common law an accessory must be charged as such. In those states where the distinction between principals and accessories has been abolished, the ancient rule as to the necessity of charging accessories as such no longer prevails, and accessories may be prosecuted as principals.[82] An indictment which charges that one being absent at the time when the crime was committed did "procure, counsel and command" the person alleged as principal in the crime to commit the same, contains a sufficient charge against one indicted as an accessory before the fact.[83]

Designation of accused.[84]—An indictment must identify accused with certainty,[85] but one equally well known by two or more names may be indicted under either.[86] Aliases need not be repeated in subsequent portions of the indictment.[87] The omission of an averment of the residence of the defendant is not ground for quashing the indictment where it conforms in all other particulars with the prescribed statutory form, and the offense is plainly described.[88]

Designation of third persons.[89]—It is of no consequence that the name by which a third person is designated in the indictment is incorrect or is an assumed one, if it is the name by which he is generally known.[90] It is of no moment that he was for sale within the limits of Ft. Valley, Ga.," in violation of an ordinance of that town, does not charge the commission of a crime punishable under the laws of the state. Little v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 501.

74. See 4 C. L. 11.

75. An information charging the sale of intoxicating liquors, without specifying the kind of liquors sold and without negativing the circumstances under which cider and wines, included in the words "intoxicating liquors," could lawfully be sold, is sufficient after a verdict of guilty; for it will be presumed the sale was found illegal. State v. Barr [Vt.] 62 A. 43.

76. Conspiracy to defraud. United States v. Stone, 135 F. 392. Abortion resulting in death. Johnson v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 133. An indictment for a violation of Pen. Code 1895, § 420, need not allege that the train for the running of which accused is charged to be responsible was not within any of the statutory exceptions to that section. Allegations to that effect are mere surplusage and need not be proven to warrant the conviction of the accused. Seale v. State, 121 Ga. 741, 49 S. E. 740; Jackson v. State, 88 Ga. 787; approved and reaffirmed 15 S. E. 905.

77. The defendant may show such fact by way of defense. State v. Burton, 138 N. C. 575, 50 S. E. 214.

78. See 4 C. L. 11.

79. See 4 C. L. 11, n. 45.

80. Mayers v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 802.

81. See 4 C. L. 11.

82. See 4 C. L. 11, n. 48, 49.

83. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1.

84. See 4 C. L. 11.

85. Misspelling of the name is immaterial. See 4 C. L. 11, n. 53.

86. It is proper in the information to describe defendant by known "aliases" or "otherwise," etc., when not prejudicial to him but preferable to state a name with true name as unknown. State v. Howard [Mont.] 77 P. 50.

87. Moore v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 So. 1117.

88. This was necessary only under the statutes requiring the pleading of additions and at the common law, where process of outlawry might lie. Tarver v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 501.

89. See 4 C. L. 11.

90. The indictment charged the accused with the offense of arson for that on a named day he did "set fire to the mill and machinery building in the city of Tifton of the Tifton Knitting Mills, same being a house." There was no demurrer. Held, that it was not error to allow the state to prove that the Tifton Knitting Mills was a corporation. George v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 504.

better known by another name.[91] Third persons incidentally referred to need not be named unless necessary to be proved or to inform accused of the nature of the charge.[92]

Description of money [93] need not be exact, and an averment of "current money" or "currency" is sufficient and is sustained by proof of any current money.[94]

Description and ownership of property.[95]—Description of property must be with sufficient certainty to enable the jury to say whether the chattels proved to have been the subject of the crime are the same as those referred to in the information and to enable the court to know judicially that the articles could have been the subject-matter of the offense charged.[96] Ownership must be correctly laid,[97] and property owned jointly or in common by several may be laid in all or either of them.[98]

(§ 4) D. Issues, proof and variance.[99]—All necessary averments must be proved as laid, including unnecessarily minute descriptions of necessary facts;[1] but an unnecessary description of an unnecessary fact need not.[2] Evidence must be restricted to the matters alleged in the indictment.[3] Immaterial variances will not reverse.[4]

Where it appears that the grand jury knew, or by the exercise of reasonable

91. See 4 C. L. 11, n. 57. In a prosecution for murder where the testimony shows that the person killed was unknown and called by the name alleged in the indictment, a conviction will not be set aside because there was testimony that the deceased was also known and called by another name. Thomas v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 516. Where one is convicted of having unlawfully lived with a woman who is known by two names, by one of which she is described in the indictment, the conviction will not be set aside because the other was in fact her real name. Whittington v. State, 121 Ga. 193, 48 S. E. 948. Misspelling of names is immaterial where they are idem sonans. See 4 C. L. 12, n. 58.

92. State v. Cooney [N. J. Law] 60 A. 60. Names of persons intended to be defrauded by conspiracy need not be stated if unknown to grand jury. Miller v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 337.

93. See 4 C. L. 12.

94. "Lawful money" is satisfied by proof of bank notes. State v. Finnegan [Iowa] 103 N. W. 155.

95. See 4 C. L. 12.

96. State v. Sanders [N. D.] 103 N. W. 419. An indictment for simple larceny which charges the accused with stealing "one black and white male hog, of the personal goods" of a named person, sets forth a legally sufficient description of the stolen property. Harvey v. State, 121 Ga. 590, 49 S. E. 674.

97. "Blonging to" the United States is sufficient. Dimmick v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 257. Mistake is immaterial in Kentucky if the offense is otherwise sufficiently described. Commonwealth v. Napier [Ky.] 84 S. W. 536. By statute in some states the separaae property of a married woman may be alleged to be owned by either her or her husband. See 4 C. L. 12, n. 66.

98. Commonwealth v. McDonald [Mass.] 73 N. E. 852.

99. See 4 C. L. 12.

1. Charge of stealing certain ounces of silver is not supported by proof of stealing certain spoon and fork blanks. State v. Nelson [R. I.] 60 A. 589.

2. See 4 C. L. 12, n. 72.

3. Where, in a trial for embezzlement, the prosecuting attorney has upon request furnished a bill of particulars of the several transactions which the state proposes to prove to maintain its case, the evidence should be restricted to such transactions. Young v. State, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 53. A deed by means of which a swindle was accomplished is admissible, though not set out in the indictment. Brown v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 630, 88 S. W. 811.

4. Criminal libel. Collins v People, 115 Ill. App. 280. Extortion. Hanley v State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 57. Use of force in rape under age of consent. State v. Sheets [Iowa] 102 N. W. 415. Variance in. Description of house burglarized held immaterial. State v. Cox [Wash.] 81 P. 848. That the indictment states that the victim "then and there instantly died," while the proof shows that death followed the day after he was wounded, is not a fatal error. State v. Reeder [S. C.] 51 S. E. 702. Under an indictment charging one with stealing "one double case silver watch," the variance was not fatal where it appeared that accused took from a jeweler's bench the case and works which had been separated. Patterson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 489. In homicide the indictment alleging that the prisoner held the pistol in his right hand when he fired the fatal shot, proof that he held the pistol in his left hand does not constitute a fatal variance. State v. Bell [Del.] 62 A. 147. In arson an allegation of ownership in an indictment is sustained by proof of occupancy by the alleged owner under a claim of right. Harrell v. State, 121 Ga. 607, 49 S. E. 703. An indictment charging the accused with having disturbed divine service at "New Hope Methodist Church (colored)" is substantially supported by proof that the offense was committed at "New Hope African Methodist Episcopal Church," the same being a "colored" church known generally as the "New Hope Church," and not appearing to be incorporated. Edwards v. State, 121 Ga. 590, 49 S. E. 674.

diligence could have known, material facts stated to be unknown to them, there is a fatal variance.[5]

Time,[6] unless an essential ingredient of the offense charged,[7] is not material further than to avoid the statute of limitations,[8] and to prove that the crime was committed prior to the finding of the indictment,[9] and a conviction will not be disturbed because the offense was shown to have been committed on a day prior or subsequent to that alleged where defendant was not prejudiced;[10] but the date may be material in certain cases, as where alibi is relied on as a defense.[11]

Name or other description of accused or third person.[12]—The allegations and proof must correspond as to the owner of property stolen or embezzled,[13] though immaterial variances will not reverse.[14] That only a part of the alleged conspirators are shown to have benefited by the transaction is not a variance.[15]

(§ 4) E. Defects, defenses and objections.[16]—Formal defects, apparent of record,[17] or on the face of the indictment,[18] must be taken advantage of before plea,[19] or before the jury is sworn,[20] such defects being waived by plea[21] and cured by verdict.[22] For matters affecting the real merits, the remedy after trial, is by motion in arrest of judgment,[23] and no question as to the legal sufficiency of an indictment can be properly raised in a motion for a new trial.[24] Failure to move to quash or to arrest judgment does not waive a substantial defect, though apparent on the face of the indictment.[25] An indictment failing to charge a public offense may be first attacked on appeal,[26] but will not then be adjudged insufficient for every

5. If names of third persons intended to be defrauded were unknown and so stated it is enough. Miller v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 337. Where an indictment alleges a sale to persons to the grand jury unknown, a contention that a sale cannot be shown to particular person is untenable. People v. Seeley, 93 N. Y. S. 982. Where a court charges homicide by a blunt instrument unknown to the grand jury, and the proof shows the means was known to the grand jury, there is a fatal variance. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329.

6. See 4 C. L. 13.

7. Unless descriptive of the offense the time need not be proved as laid in the information. State v. Willett [Vt.] 62 A. 48.

8. State v. Brown, 37 Wash. 106, 79 P. 638; Commonwealth v. Powell, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 370.

9. State v. Barnett, 110 Mo. 584, 85 S. W. 615; Commonwealth v. Powell, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 370. Rape. State v. Osborne [Wash.] 81 P. 1096. Evidence held not suffcient to show offense before return of indictment. Wolf v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1145. That offense was committed prior to indictment must be shown. Moore v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 701, 88 S. W. 228.

10. Green v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. R. 332.

11. See 4 C. L. 13, n. 80.

12. See 4 C. L. 13.

13. Burglarized premises may be alleged in tenant or special owner. Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 626, 88 S. W. 813.

14. State v. Rooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82. An allegation that the person injured is a corporation is supported by proof that it is a de facto corporation. Higbee v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 748. Where larceny from a corporation is charged, it is immaterial that the corporation did not in fact own the property. People v. Kellogg, 94 N. Y. S. 617.

15. Olson v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 849. An instruction authorizing a conviction if defendant alone or jointly with others committed the crime is not broader than an indictment charging him alone. State v. Scullin, 185 Mo. 709, 84 S. W. 862.

16. See 4 C. L. 13.

17. State v. Brown [Iowa] 102 N. W. 799.

18. No signature by foreman. McFall v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 479.

19. Demurrer or motion to quash. Commonwealth v. Shoener, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 526. Exceptions which go merely to the form of the indictment should be made before the trial. Scandrett v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 160.

20. Act Mch. 31, 1860, § 11. Commonwealth v. Schoen, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 211.

21. Goddard v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 443; Territory v. Eaton [N. M.] 79 P. 713. Failure of record to affirmatively show that grand jury was directed by the court to investigate the subject. Oligschlager v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 913. A mere formal defect in an indictment is waived where defendant, without objection to the defects, pleads to the merits and goes to trial. Hampton v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 421.

22. Failure to file preliminary complaint. Steinke v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 753. Lack of verification. State v. Lee [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 527. An indictment which alleges the offense as of a day after the finding of the indictment is bad on special demurrer but good after verdict. Spencer v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 294. Not ground for new trial. Scandrett v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 160.

23. Scandrett v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 160.

24. Moses v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 503.

25. See 4 C. L. 13, n. 90.

26. See post, § 14, Saving questions for review.

defect of substance for which a motion to quash will lie, and an objection that the indictment is duplex [27] comes too late on appeal. Where a prisoner has given bail to answer the charge, he cannot after indictment found raise by motion to quash any question touching the legality of his arrest.[28] The indictment is void if there was no legal grand jury.[29]

Motions to quash are addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court,[30] and a statutory enumeration of grounds of quashal has been held exclusive.[31] So where the code prescribes as ground for setting aside "any ground which" would be good cause to challenge the grand jury, statutory restrictions of the grounds of challenge are intended.[32]

Motion to quash an information lies for lack of verification,[33] but failure of the prosecuting attorney to spell out his full name in the body or signature of the information is no ground,[34] and a motion to set aside an information on the ground that it was not found, indorsed or presented as required by law, is not sufficient to draw in question the legality of the appointment of the deputy district attorney filing it.[35]

An indictment not based upon any testimony is subject to a plea in abatement,[36] and the court has inherent power to set aside an indictment found without evidence or upon wholly illegal and incompetent testimony, and where it is based in part on the testimony of defendant compelled to testify in violation of his constitutional rights.[37] The use of accused's wife as a witness before the grand jury is no ground for setting aside the indictment,[38] and the character of the evidence taken by the grand jury is considered only in exceptional cases.[39] Testimony of grand jurors is not competent to show the evidence or want of evidence upon which they based an indictment,[40] or to show that less than the necessary number voted for it;[41] but inspection of the minutes of the grand jury may be allowed for the purpose of moving to set aside the indictment on one of the statutory grounds.[42] A voluntary report by the grand jury will not be considered in determining the validity of an indictment rendered by it.[43] An indictment returned and presented to the court

27. Commonwealth v. Schoen, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 211; Commonwealth v. Shoener, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 526.

28. Commonwealth v. Dingman, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 615.

29. A de facto judge sitting at a time when court could lawfully be held may convoke the grand jury and the indictment will be good (Walker v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 241), but one returned by a grand jury organized at a time when the court could not legally be held is void (Skinner v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 242).

30. Commonwealth v. Brown, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 470; McGregor v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 134 F. 187.

31. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 1824, 1825, 1828. Donahue v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 996; People v. Steinhardt, 93 N. Y. S. 1026.

32. That the grand jury was "illegally drawn, organized and empaneled" that not 200 names were in the box, and that on the non-appearance of six out of eight the court designated certain to serve instead of ordering the sheriff to summon the number necessary, do not state any ground which would sustain a challenge to the panel or to any grand juror within Rev. Code Cr. Proc. § 263. State v. Lamphere [S. D.] 104 N. W. 1038. Supplying deficiency after grand jury is organized is not within Code 1896, § 5269. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406.

33. State v. Gutke [Mo.] 87 S. W. 503; State v. Lee [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 527

34. State v. Brock, 186 Mo. 457, 85 S. W. 595.

35. State v. Guglielmo [Or.] 79 P. 577.

36. State v. Faulkner, 185 Mo. 673, 84 S. W. 967.

37. People v. Steinhardt, 93 N. Y. S. 1026.

38. State v. Brown [Iowa] 102 N. W. 799.

39. McGregor v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 134 F. 187. On the issue raised by a plea in abatement on the ground that no testimony was received on which to found it, the character of the evidence received is not examinable. State v. Faulkner, 185 Mo. 673, 84 S. W. 967. The court will not inquire into the character of the evidence that influenced the grand jury for the purpose of impeaching an indictment. Taylor v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 380. Held not error to refuse to permit a grand juror to be asked, "State whether or not the indictment in this case was ignored," and afterwards, without further testimony, this indictment was found. Id.

40. State v. Faulkner, 185 Mo. 673, 84 S. W. 967. See, also, Grand Jury, 5 C. L. 1591.

41. Nash v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 497.

42. People v. Steinhardt, 93 N. Y. S. 1026; Havenor v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 116; Murphy v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1087.

43. Chicago, W. & V. Coal Co. v. People, 114 Ill. App. 75.

in the usual manner, with the names of witnesses endorsed thereon, is presumed to have been found in the manner indicated by law, and this presumption is sufficient to support its regularity until rebutted by satisfactory evidence.[44]

The presence of unauthorized persons,[45] such as jurors improperly substituted,[46] or irregularity in summoning grand jurors, may be raised by motion to quash, and disqualification of individual jurors is ground in some states,[47] though not in others.[48] A failure to find indictment within the statutory time may be so reached.[49] On a motion to quash, it is, for the purpose of the motion, conceded or admitted by both parties to the cause that the time at which the offense is charged to have been committed is correctly stated.[50]

The joinder of distinct offenses in the same indictment can be reached only by motion to quash addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, and not by demurrer or motion in arrest.[51] A demurrer will not reach objections which lie partly in facts not apparent on the face of the indictment.[52]

One good count to which the verdict and judgment respond is sufficient to sustain conviction,[53] and a demurrer [54] or a general motion to quash is properly overruled where there is one good count.[55]

44. State v. Faulkner, 185 Mo. 673, 84 S. W. 967.

45. Where there is nothing to show that the persons objected to were not witnesses other than the absence of their names from the indictment, a motion to have them indorsed and not a motion to inspect the minutes is the proper remedy. People v. Steinhardt, 93 N. Y. S. 1026. That an assistant district attorney was disqualified and appeared before the grand jury is no objection to the indictment. United States v. Mitchell, 136 F. 896.

46. Temporarily excusing without discharging grand juror gives no right to appoint one in his place, and it having been done, indictment is void where legal number (thirteen) was still present while he was absent. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406.

47. Indictment for attempting to defraud a certain corporation will not be quashed because jurors were stockholders. State v. Turner [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1112. Religious belief of juror. State v. Mercer [Md.] 61 A. 220. Where an indictment is set aside on demurrer and the same grand jury finds another, defendant is not entitled to dismissal for want of opportunity to challenge for bias arising out of the juror's former consideration of his case. DeLeon v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 348. A motion to set aside the indictment for that accused had no opportunity to take advantage of the statute providing challenges to individual grand jurors is of no avail where it is not shown that any incompetent person was on the jury. Nash v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 497.

48. A motion to quash presents no question as to the qualifications of the grand jurors or as to their having been regularly charged and sworn. Donahue v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 996. An indictment will not be quashed because one person summoned as a member of the grand jury was not present when the other members were sworn, but came in while the judge was delivering his charge and was thereupon sworn, and the portion of the charge already read was repeated. Code 1896, § 5269, provides that the only objection that may be taken to the formation of the grand jury is that the jurors were not drawn in the presence of persons designated by law. Dunn v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 147.

49. The objection that an indictment was not found within 9 months after commitment or holding to bail as required by D. C. Code, § 939, is available by motion to quash an indictment before trial. United States v. Codarr, 24 App. D. C. 143; United States v. Hartman, 24 App. D. C. 156.

50. Terrell v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 884.

51. State v. Providence Gas Co. [R. I.] 61 A. 44.

52. A demurrer to an indictment on the ground that it shows "upon its face interlineations, alterations, substitutions, and changes from the form in which it was originally drawn" is not good, there being nothing to indicate that the alterations were made subsequently to the time the indictment was acted upon by the grand jury. Allen v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 506.

53. O'Donnell v. People, 110 Ill. App. 250; Chicago W. & V. Coal Co. v. People, 114 Ill. App. 75; Donahue v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 996; State v. Mount [N. J. Law] 61 A. 259; Pirscher v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 526; Bates v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 251.

54. A general demurrer to an entire indictment containing one good and one bad count is properly overruled. Sutton v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 60.

55. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75. One good assignment in a single count for perjury will sustain refusal to quash. Foreman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 809. Where a section of an ordinance contains several provisions and declares the violation of any one of them an offense, and prescribes the same penalty for all of them, and an information in a single count alleges breaches of all the provisions, it is error to quash the whole case, even if some of the provisions of such section are invalid; certain of them being valid. St. Louis v. Grafeman Dairy Co [Mo.] 89 S. W. 617.

The validity of the indictment in matters of substance may be inquired into in habeas corpus to ascertain the legality of an arrest on proceeding to remove an offender to another district for trial.[56]

(§ 4) F. Joinder, separation and election.—Joinder of parties[57] is entirely distinct from the question of joint or separate trials.[58] It is proper where the criminal act is conjoint.[59] Principals and accessories before the fact may be charged in the same indictment and in one count.[60]

Joinder and separation of counts.[61]—One cannot be indicted in one bill for several distinct and unrelated felonies,[62] and an attempt to commit a felony should not be blended in one count with an attempt to commit a misdemeanor;[63] but an indictment may contain several counts charging several offenses of the same nature [64] or arising out of the same transaction,[65] and it is customary to charge the offense in different forms in different counts to meet possible phases of the proof.[66] Any number of misdemeanors may be charged in one indictment.[67] Under the statutes of Indiana, a prosecution by affidavit and information may be on more than one count.[68] Where the statute allows means to be averred alternatively, each alternative averment must be construed as a separate count.[69]

Election.[70]—The object of an election, whether of counts or offenses, being to save the prisoner from embarrassment in his defense, it should, as a rule, be made before the prisoner is called upon to put in his evidence.[71] The special circumstances of a case may make it proper to defer election till the testimony is all in.[72] But then it should be made before summing up.[73] Where two offenses of the same nature are charged, it is discretionary whether the prosecutor shall be required to elect and at what stage of the proceedings;[74] but where each of several 56. United States v. Green, 136 F. 618.

57. See 4 C. L. 17.

58. See post, § 10a.

59. Participants in the crime of fornication may be indicted either jointly or separately. State v. Sauls, 70 S. C. 393, 50 S. E. 17. Cr. Code 1902, §§ 290, 292, defining "fornication" as intercourse with "each other" does not alter the rule. Id.

60. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1.

61. See 4 C. L. 17.

62. Commonwealth v. Schoen, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 211.

63. Hogan v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 464.

64. Commonwealth v. Schoen, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 211.

65. Commonwealth v. Shoener, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 526. Under Pen. Code 1895, § 398, an indictment containing two counts, one charging the defendant with maintaining a gaming house, and the other with knowingly renting the house with the view and expectation of the same being used for gaming is not open to demurrer on the ground of misjoinder of separate and distinct offenses. Bashinski v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 499.

66. Larceny and embezzlement. People v. Kellogg, 94 N. Y. S. 617. Rape by force and statutory rape of child under age of consent. People v. Jailles, 146 Cal. 301, 79 P. 965. Defendant is not prejudiced by failure to set out the offense in different forms in different counts. State v. Shanley [S. D.] 104 N. W. 522. Rape and incest may be charged together. Wiggins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 821. Burglary, larceny and receiving may be joined. State v. Richmond, 186 Mo. 71, 84 S. W. 880. Same offense committed in different ways. Murder. State v. Hargraves [Mo.] 87 S. W. 491.

67. Commonwealth v. Schoen, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 211.

68. Knox v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 255.

69. Where indictment charged killing by hitting or striking deceased with a hatchet or with some blunt instrument to the grand jury unknown, there were in effect three counts: the first charging a killing by hitting deceased with a hatchet, the second, by striking him with a hatchet; the third, charging a killing effected by some blunt instrument to the grand jury unknown. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329.

70. See 4 C. L. 18.

71. State v. Barr [Vt.] 62 A. 43; State v. Willett [Vt.] 62 A. 48.

72. State v. Barr [Vt.] 62 A. 43, citing Pointer v. United States, 151 U. S. 396, 38 Law. Ed. 208.

73. State v. Barr [Vt.] 62 A. 48, citing Woodford v. People, 62 N. Y., at page 131, 20 Am. Rep. 464.

74. McGregor v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 134 F. 187; Knox v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 255; People v. Kellogg, 94 N. Y. S. 617; State v. Rollins, 186 Mo. 501, 85 S. W. 516; State v. Hargraves [Mo.] 87 S. W. 491; Commonwealth v. Shoener, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 526. Whether the prosecution should be required to elect on which count a defendant should be prosecuted depends upon circumstances and is largely discretionary with the trial court. Lorenz v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 337. The matter of election is ordinarily within the discretion of the court and no exception will lie to the action of the court if an election is compelled before the respondent is called acts proved constitutes a distinct offense, election should be required.[75] Election between causes alleged to toll the statute of limitations cannot be compelled.[76] The motion must be specific,[77] and a motion to elect for duplicity comes too late after the jury is sworn. An election by the judge is sufficient,[78] and failure to submit a count is tantamount to an election to stand on the one submitted.[79]

(§ 4) G. Amendments. Indictments,[80] as a rule, cannot be amended in material matter except by the grand jury finding them.[81] Statutes of jeofails have relaxed the ancient rule as to matters of form,[82] but such statutes as a rule only authorize amendments after and not before the jury has been sworn, and then cannot avail to cure an indictment that fails to charge a public offense.[83] An amendment as to venue is allowed in Indiana.[84] No prejudice results from an unnecessary or immaterial amendment.

Informations,[85] being prepared and filed by the prosecuting attorney, who is always in court, may be amended either in form or substance[86] at any time,[87] saving the rights of the accused as to surprise, the necessity of preliminary examination, and the like.[88] Refiling after amendment is not necessary.[89]

(§ 4) H. Conviction of lesser degrees and included offenses.[90]—A verdict for a less crime may be found under an indictment for a greater of the same generic class,[91] the evidence supporting it[92] and the averments being sufficient to include upon for his defense. So held in a prosecution for statutory rape where evidence of several acts of intercourse was properly in the case. State v. Willett [Vt.] 62 A. 48. The state cannot be compelled to elect upon which item it will rely for conviction, when the indictment charges the embezzlement of the aggregate sum on a particular day. Young v. State, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 53. Charges of larceny and larceny by embezzlement present an election. State v. Finnegean [Iowa] 103 N. W. 155. Several courts charging the same arson in different forms. Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61. Two counts involving same facts. Higbee v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 748. Several counts for murder charging respectively all of defendants as principals and each of them as principal and the others as accessories. Tuttle v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1035.

75. Kehoe v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1107; State v. Osborne [Wash.] 81 P. 1096. Rape. Schuette v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 890; Powell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 82 S. W. 516. The appropriate time to elect is at the close of the state's evidence. State v. Finch [Kan.] 81 P. 494. Election to rely on sale on a particular day is not defective because witnesses who testified to such transaction are not named, there being no evidence of any other transaction on the same day. State v. Durein [Kan.] 78 P. 152. Motion to compel election before evidence is introduced is out of time. State v. Wissing, 187 Mo. 96, 85 S. W. 557. Where evidence in prosecution for adultery showed only two separate and distinct opportunities for commission of the offense, the state should have been compelled to elect on which occasion it would rely. State v. Loftus [Iowa] 104 N. W. 906. Where on a trial under an information containing several counts charging the sale of liquors without a license, the state gave evidence showing the several offenses charged, held error to refuse at the close of the testimony to require the state to elect on which count it would rely for a conviction, though the court ruled that there could be a conviction of no more offenses than there were counts and charged that each offense must be found on the evidence relating to it. State v. Barr [Vt.] 62 A. 43.

76. State v. Miller [Mo.] 87 S. W. 484.

77. Notice for election between "counts" where two assignments of perjury are presented by a single count is properly overruled. Foreman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 809.

78. Cox v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 107, 86 S. W. 1021.

79. Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 466, 87 S. W. 345; Hofland v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 798.

80. See 4 C. L. 18.

81. See 4 C. L. 18, n. 77.

82. See post, § 15.

83. Amendment as to place cannot be had if material. State v. Ham [N. J. Law] 60 A. 41.

84. Welty v. Ward [Ind.] 73 N. E. 889.

85. See 4 C. L. 18.

86. State v. Stevens, 68 Kan. 576, 75 P. 546. Weapons with which assault was made. State v. Johnson [Kan.] 79 P. 732. Verification may be added before trial. State v. Rollins, 186 Mo. 501, 85 S. W. 516; State v. Emerson [Mo.] 87 S. W. 469.

87. Before trial. State v. Coleman, 186 Mo. 151, 84 S. W. 978. Amendments of substance not allowed after plea. State v. Bundy [Kan.] 81 P. 459. Verification cannot be added after verdict. State v. Gutke [Mo.] 87 S. W. 503.

88. Razee v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 438.

89. Verification. State v. Emerson [Mo.] 87 S. W. 469.

90. See 4 C. L. 18.

91. Conviction of breaking with attempt to commit larceny may be had on indictment for statutory breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny. Commonwealth v. Flaherty, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 490. Indictment for robbery will sustain conviction of larceny from person. State v. Wasson, 126

it,[92] though the two crimes are statutory; the test generally applied being that the evidence to establish the greater offense would prove the lesser as a necessary element.[94] If under no theory of the case can defendant be convicted of a lesser offense than that charged in the indictment, a charge that he may be found guilty of a lesser offense is error, and a verdict of guilty of such lesser offense is contrary to law.[95] An indictment failing to charge the offense intended to be charged thereby may be sufficient on which to convict of an included offense.[96] The jury may convict of the lesser crime when authorized to do so by the instruction, though the evidence is amply sufficient to authorize a conviction of the greater.[97]

§ 5. Arraignment and plea. Arraignment.[98]—Arraignment and plea are necessary in most states,[99] though in some formal arraignment is no longer necessary where no prejudice results.

General pleas.[1]—The plea of guilty has the force of a verdict,[2] but amounts merely to an admission of record of the truth of whatever is well charged in the indictment.

Pleas in abatement and special pleas.[3]—After defendant has, upon arraignment, entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment, dilatory pleas cannot, as a matter of right, be filed,[4] and if filed without permission of the court, they may properly be stricken, on motion.[5] But the court may in its discretion permit the plea to the merits to be withdrawn, and dilatory pleas to be filed.[6] Matter of abatement is waived by general plea[7] or by otherwise proceeding on the merits.[8] The competency of individual grand jurors may be raised by plea in abatement,[9] and Iowa, 320, 101 N. W. 1125; State v. Miller [Kan.] 80 P. 947. Where an indictment charges "wrongfully, fraudulently, and privately taking the property from the house and carrying it away with intent to steal the same," it was proper to instruct that defendant might be convicted of simple larceny. Patterson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 489. Aggravated assault on charge of murder. Mapula v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 389. Assault and assault and battery on indictment for assault with intent to rape. Sutton v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 316. On any indictment for murder, conviction of manslaughter may be had. State v. Hicks, 113 La. 779, 37 So. 753. Under an indictment in the Code form embracing all the degrees of homicide, a defendant may be convicted of manslaughter if the jury concludes the evidence warrants conviction for that offense. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329. In a case where, if death had ensued, the defendant would not have been guilty of murder, he could not be convicted of assault with intent to murder; but if a conviction of the offense of stabbing, not in self-defense or under circumstances of justification, is warranted, he may be found guilty of that offense. Napper v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 592.

92. Included offenses need not be submitted where they find no support in the evidence. State v. Clough [Kan.] 79 P. 117.

93. An indictment for the malicious destruction of property of the value of $15 and upwards necessarily includes the misdemeanor of destroying property of less than that value. Dallman v. People, 113 Ill. App. 507.

94. See 4 C. L. 90, 91.

95. Berry v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 345.

96. Aggravated assault may be shown under indictment for assault to rape not showing sex of parties. Kearse v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 628, 88 S. W. 363.

97. People v. Green [Cal. App.] 82 P. 544.

98. See 4 C. L. 19.

99. State v. Cisco, 186 Mo. 49, 84 S. W. 863. Overruling of demurrer does not reinstate withdrawn plea. Territory v. Gonzales [N. M.] 79 P. 705.

1. See 4 C. L. 19.

2. Hollibaugh v. Hehn [Wyo.] 79 P. 1044

3. See 4 C. L. 20.

4, 5. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329.

6. Where record showed that a motion to quash, a plea in abatement and a demurrer were passed on by the court, after a plea of not guilty, an objection that such pleas could not be considered because filed too late was held untenable. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329.

7. A plea of not guilty waives disqualification of the justice. People v. Kuney [Mich.] 100 N. W. 596. The defendant waives his right to plead any matter in abatement by pleading in bar, but the court has discretion to allow the plea in bar to be withdrawn and the dilatory one entered. If in such case the plea of not guilty is withdrawn by leave of court, the plea in abatement must be received if sufficient. State v. Taylor [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 247.

8. Where a warrant charges defendant with forgery and a transfer of the instrument with intent to defraud and he waives preliminary examination thereon, his plea in abatement to an information setting forth more fully the facts on the ground of no preliminary examination is not good. State v. Shaw [Kan.] 82 P. 587.

9. Religious belief. State v. Mercer [Md.] 61 A. 220. Objections held not well taken. United States v. Mitchell, 136 F. 896. There is no error in overruling a plea in abatement delay in prosecution is matter of abatement in Pennsylvania.[10] A plea in abatement must be certain to every intent [11] and should not be duplex,[12] and an objection on that ground may be taken by demurrer.[13] Though a plea in abatement is immaterial because grounded on that which denies any legal existence to the indictment, the state waives that by joining issue thereon.[14] Where a plea of not guilty is withdrawn and the special plea made instead is subsequently overruled, the plea of not guilty is not thereby reinstated but defendant should plead anew.[15] There is no reversible error in permitting a special replication in addition to a general replication to a plea in abatement, when the special replication puts in issue the sole material issue raised by the plea.[16] That a replication filed to a plea in abatement concludes with an offer "to verify" instead of "to the country" is immaterial after verdict.[17] When a plea in abatement and a plea to the merits are tried at the same term of the court, it is proper to present all the exceptions taken on the trial of either plea in a single bill.[18]

A plea of former acquittal or conviction [19] is necessary where that defense is relied on,[20] and must contain a complete record of the former conviction or acquittal,[21] must show that the offenses are identical,[22] and the accused must also prove that he is the same person who stood charged in the record.[23] based on the ground that a member of the grand jury had not resided in the county for the period of six months, when it is not made to appear that the accused did not have full notice and opportunity to make the question by challenge before the finding of the indictment. Edwards v. State, 121 Ga. 590, 49 S. E. 674. That a member of the grand jury is disqualified may be set up by plea in abatement to the indictment, and the issue thus made is to be tried by a jury. McCue v. Commonwealth [Va.] 49 S. E. 623.

10. Skakel v. People, 111 Ill. App. 509.

11. State v. Taylor [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 247. Plea in abatement must be certain to certain intent in every particular. They must leave nothing to be supplied by intendment and no supposable special answer unobviated. Taylor v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 380. A plea in abatement to the effect that a certain attorney, without the procurement or consent and over the objection of the state attorney, was permitted to appear before the grand jury, held demurrable, it not alleging that the state attorney was ready and willing or offered to perform his duties. Id. A plea in abatement to the effect that the names of J. A. B. and J. P. B. were in the jury box, and though J. A. B. was drawn, J. P. B. was summoned and served on the grand jury, held bad on demurrer, in the absence of an allegation that the said J. P. B. falsely impersonated J. A. B., or fraudulently procured himself to be placed upon the grand jury, or that he was not known under the name of those who served as jurors. Id. A plea in abatement charging generally that no writ of venire facias was issued and served within the time and in the manner prescribed by law and that the body of men who professed to be the grand jury and which found the indictment did not constitute a legal grand jury, is insufficient. State v. Taylor [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 247. If the irregularity relied upon as a matter of abatement relate to the constitution or organization of the grand jury, the plea must show in what the irregularity consists, otherwise it will be lacking in an element of certainty. Id.

12. A plea in abatement alleging that the indictment was not found by a legal grand jury (1), because the grand jury did not consist of 23 lawful persons; (2), because the persons from whom it was drawn were not legally selected, and (3), because the act under which it was drawn is unconstitutional, is bad for duplicity. State v. McNay [Md.] 60 A. 273.

13. State v. McNay [Md.] 60 A. 273. A demurrer to a plea in abatement of an indictment on the ground of the illegality of the constitution of the grand jury admits the facts well pleaded in such plea, but not the legal conclusions of the pleader as to the competency of the particular juror or the illegality of the jury as a whole. Id.

14. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406.

15. State v. Brackin, 113 La. 879, 37 So. 863.

16. Taylor v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 380.

17. McCue v. Commonwealth [Va.] 49 S. E. 623.

18. Taylor v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 380.

19. See 4 C. L. 20.

20. Clement v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 1016; Cox v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 1017; Clement v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 1017.

21. Whitman v. State, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 134. This requirement is not met by the mere attaching of the transcript to the plea, and the overruling of the plea under such circumstances is not error. Id. Unless the former jeopardy is claimed to have occurred in a previous trial of the same case and record contains the facts, the plea must be interposed before entering upon a trial on the merits and set up all the facts upon which it is based. State v. White [Kan.] 80 P. 589.

22. Clement v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 1016; Clement v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 1017.

23. Whitman v. State, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 134.

§ 6. Preparation for, and matters preliminary to, trial.[24]—Allowance of bill of particulars is generally discretionary.[25] Service of a copy of the indictment a stated time before arraignment is generally required where defendant is in custody,[26] and in some jurisdictions service of a copy of the venire is required.[27]

§ 7. Postponement of trial.[28]—Postponement should be granted for lack of opportunity for preparation,[29] for absence of counsel,[30] for surprise,[31] and for inability of accused from illness to attend;[32] but not because accused is serving sentence under a prior conviction.[33] When the case is called for trial and a motion for a continuance is made, the judge has a discretion to either continue the case or postpone the same until a later day in the term.[34]

Continuance should also be granted for the absence of a witness,[35] but it must

24. See 4 C. L. 21.

25. Should be demanded before trial. Commonwealth v. Shoener, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 526.

26. No waiver by execution of bail bond where defendant was in custody when the indictment was returned. Brewin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1140. Failure to serve a copy of the indictment the statutory time before arraignment is waived by plea. Powell v. State [Ark.] 85 S. W. 781. Defect in copy served held not material. Allison v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 409.

27. It is not a compliance with Code 1896, § 5273, to serve on the defendant a copy of the venire containing the name of a person as a regular juror, one who had not been summoned. Carwile v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 220. The service on the defendant of a copy of a venire containing the name of a person not summoned is prejudicial error. Id. A defect in the copy of the venire served on the defendant is ground for quashing the venire. The rule that no objection can be taken to the venire except for fraud and that a mistake in the name of any person summoned is not sufficient grounds to quash does not apply. Id. That the initials only of the given name of two jurymen was given on the list served is not fatal. State v. Duperier [La.] 39 So. 455.

28. See 4 C. L. 21.

29. Helton v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1073. Forcing to trial on second day after arrest is error. Baldridge v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1076. No lack shown. State v. McCoy [Kan.] 79 P. 156; State v. Parmenter [Kan.] 79 P. 123. Not to permit search for impeaching witnesses, though the state's witnesses are "spotters" unacquainted in the neighborhood. Marmer v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 830. It is not an abuse of discretion to refuse to postpone a case to a later hour in the day, in order to allow counsel time to prepare a demurrer and plea, when no reason appears why such demurrer and plea were not prepared before the case was called for trial (Oglesby v. State, 121 Ga. 602, 49 S. E. 706), and when it appears that the matters upon which the plea was based could have been ascertained before the case was called, and that the court suspended the trial in order to allow counsel time to prepare the demurrer and plea, such refusal will not be held erroneous (Id.). Where it appeared that the accused violated a municipal ordinance for the previously announced purpose of testing its constitutionality, it was not error to refuse to continue the case made against him merely to give his counsel time to investigate the constitutional questions claimed to be involved therein. Fitts v. Atlanta, 121 Ga. 567, 49 S. E. 793.

30. Jackson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 710, 88 S. W. 239. Postponement cannot be had to await return of counsel defendant has not employed. Magruder v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 587. Illness of counsel three days before trial and unsuccessful efforts to procure other counsel require adjournment. Kuehn v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 793. Denial in face of great local prejudice held error. Jett v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 1179.

31. Defendant surprised at an election must show that he had a defense as to the elected date. Williams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 620, 87 S. W. 1155.

32. No sufficient ground shown. State v. McCoy [Kan.] 79 P. 156. Where a motion is made to continue a criminal case upon the ground that the accused is physically unable to go to trial, and upon such question the testimony of medical experts introduced as witnesses is conflicting, the discretion of the trial judge in overruling the motion will not be controlled. Oglesby v. State, 121 Ga. 602, 49 S. E. 706.

33. Rigor v. State [Md.] 61 A. 631.

34. This is true when the term lasts longer than 30 days or not. Pen. Code 1895, § 961, does not alter the rule. Oglesby v. State, 121 Ga. 602, 49 S. E. 706.

35. Stacy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 327; Porter v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 150, 86 S. W. 1014; Blackburn v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 498, 87 S. W. 692; Kehoe v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1107. Continuence granted for absence of a witness that defendant stated would testify that the state's witness and not defendant committed the crime. Manuel v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 932, 89 S. W. 645. A material witness being within the jurisdiction of the court, but being too sick to attend the trial, the trial should be postponed. Caldwell v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 816. Where one of defendant's important witnesses was absent, and he had just learned of other witnesses, and the attorneys who had been appointed to defend him were able to render but little assistance, and were unable to find the attorney first employed, who had obtained valuable facts pertaining to the defense from persons whom accused had been unable to get into court, held, con-appear that his testimony is competent and material,[36] credible,[37] necessary,[38] not merely cumulative [39] or impeaching,[40] the whereabouts of the witness [41] that diligence was exercised to procure his attendance or deposition,[42] and that there is some probability of procuring his testimony at the postponed trial.[43] Continuance is sometimes avoided by admitting the facts sought to be shown by the absent witness,[44] or that he will testify as averred in the affidavit for continuance,[45] or allowing the affidavit to be read as his deposition,[46] and where this is done, the state may object to the testimony as incompetent; but where the affidavit is admitted in lieu of a continuance, the prosecuting attorney should not attack it as false.[47]

An affidavit [48] must set out the expected testimony,[49] and show generally the facts upon which the court can determine the necessity of the continuance.[50] The application addresses itself in great measure to the discretion of the court,[51] and since the denial of a continuance is never reviewed until after trial, the reviewing court will take into consideration what there appeared.[52] Even if a motion to continue can be properly entertained in the absence of the accused, the judge is not required so to do.[53] If the absence is due to providential cause, this will be a sufficient answer to a rule nisi on a forfeiture of the bond.[54]

§ 8. Dismissal or nolle prosequi before trial.[55]—Dismissal is grantable for tinuance should have been granted. Whit v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 809.

36. State v. Rooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82; Vann v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1064.

37. Scott v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1060. Testimony contradicting accused held not ground, as probably not true. Chapman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 13; Yancy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 478, 87 S. W. 693; Kaylor v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 806.

38. Bearden v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 808. Matters readily provable by others. Pratt v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 651. Where necessity of sending to another state for character witnesses is not shown denial is proper. Allison v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 409.

39. Ray v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1151; Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 555, 87 S. W. 1036; Taylor v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 639, 87 S. W. 1039. Third or fourth application. Bearden v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 808. Testimony of witness to corroborate accused is not cumulative. Gathright v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1076.

40. Cogdell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 74 S. W. 311. Refusal for impeaching evidence held error. Robbins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 690.

41. Allison v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 409.

42. Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 466, 87 S. W. 1036; Taylor v State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 639, 87 S. W. 1039; Williams v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 88 S. W. 334; Kipper v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 77 S. W. 611; Roach v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 586. Facts must be shown on which diligence is predicated. State v. Johnson [Kan.] 79 P. 732. Mere issuance of process and return not found is insufficient. Yancy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 478, 87 S. W. 693; McQueen v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1047.

43. State v. Brooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82; Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 555, 87 S. W. 1036. Not error to refuse where witness is fugitive from justice. Vann v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1064.

44. It is not error to refuse a continuance for want of the testimony of a witness where what such witness would testify to was admitted. Davis v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 507.

45. Where defendant, in a prosecution for an assault, had not been able to obtain compulsory process to secure the attendance of absent witnesses, and the facts sought to be proved by them were material to the issue of self-defense, held error to deny a continuance on the district attorney admitting that, if they were present, they would testify to the facts stated in the affidavits for continuance. Montgomery v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 835. Error in refusing a continuance is not cured by an admission of the district attorney that the witness, if present, would testify to the contents of the application. Caldwell v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 816.

46. State v. McCoy [Kan.] 79 P. 156; Woodring v. Territory [Okl.] 81 P. 631. Refusal held error. Mount v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 707. Refusal to allow it read is harmless where the statements are vague and without substantial effect. McQueen v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1047.

47. Shepherd v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 191. Cannot show that absent witness has been dead over a year. Darrell v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1060.

48. See 4 C. L. 23.

49. State v. Rooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82; State v. McCoy [Kan.] 79 P. 156.

50. State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706.

51. Gardner v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 704; State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706; Mount v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 707.

52. Refusal to grant a continuance because of absence of witnesses is not ground for new trial where it appears that all witnesses were brought into court at a postponed date. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1.

53, 54. Oglesby v. State, 121 Ga. 602, 49 S. E. 706.

55. See 4 C. L. 24.

want of prosecution in the absence of good cause shown for the delay,[56] but the entry of a judgment of not guilty on a statement by the prosecuting attorney that he cannot make a case is unauthorized.[57] After dismissal regular in form, there can be no prosecution without a new indictment.[58] Where the grand jury has found a true bill, and subsequently in their general presentments recommend that the indictment be nol prossed, it is within the discretion of the court whether this recommendation will be followed.[59]

§ 9. Evidence. Judicial notice.[60]—Judicial notice is taken of the statutes,[61] and political subdivisions of the state, and the constitution of its courts,[62] and executive orders,[63] of the result of an election,[64] of the facts of science,[65] and the proceedings of the courts in the cause under investigation.[66] Judicial notice will not be taken of a report of a grand jury which is voluntary on its part and not made pursuant to any law providing therefor.[67]

Presumptions and burden of proofs.[68]—Generally speaking, conclusive presumptions and estoppels have no place in criminal proceedings for the purpose of establishing the body of the crime charged. Estoppels exist in certain cases, however,[69] and the jury may find facts by inference from other facts proven in the case,[70]

56. That the complaint has been lost and information thereof not communicated to prosecutor until a few days before the term and other duties of prosecutor are no ground. In re Jay [Idaho] 79 P. 202. Release on own recognizance after plea of guilty amounts to a dismissal. Grundel v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1022. D. C. Code, § 939, providing that if the grand jury does not act within 9 months after a person is committed or held to bail, the prosecution shall be deemed abandoned, applies to a case where a charge was pending at the time of the passage of the act. United States v. Codarr, 24 App. D. C. 143. The discharge of an accused person on the ground that the grand jury did not act on his case within 9 months after he was held to bail is final, and bars a future indictment and trial. Id. The further prosecution of a criminal offense is not barred by the failure of the grand jury to act within nine months from the date when the accused was held to bail to await such action. D. C. Code, § 939. United States v. Cadarr, 197 U. S. 475, 49 Law. Ed. 842. The Federal general statute of limitations prescribes three years as the limitation for all offenses not capital. U. S. Rev. St., § 1044. Id. Statutes requiring discharge unless trial is brought on at the next term have no application to retrial after disagreement. State v. Lamphere [S. D.] 10 N. W. 1038. Hence a trial is speedy if brought on reasonably soon thereafter. Held reasonable where accused moved for change of judges at next term after disagreement but did not push his motion and was brought to trial at third term thereafter, having been on bail all the time without moving for earlier trial. Id. A discharge under D. C. Code, § 939, is error where an indictment is found within 9 months after the arrest and holding to bail, and a second indictment, merely amending the first and charging the same offense is found more than 9 months thereafter. United States v. Hayman, 24 App. D. C. 158.

57. Will not bar subsequent prosecution. Hall v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 765.

58. Judgment need not state reasons and motion need not be filed. Ex parte Isbell [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 302, 87 S. W. 145.

59. Edwards v State, 121 Ga 590, 49 S. E. 674.

60. See 4 C. L. 24.

61. Notice is taken of a liquor statute applying only to certain counties and to the general operation of the local option law. Crigler v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 87 S. W. 276. The court has no judicial knowledge as to when local option laws are put in operation. Craddick v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 637, 88 S. W. 347.

62. Notice is taken of the judicial circuits and their boundaries and extent, the number of judges and the convening of terms of court. State v. Pope, 110 Mo. App. 520, 85 S. W. 633.

63. Notice is taken of an executive order requiring the attorney general to appear and prosecute indictments in a certain county. State v. Bowles [Kan.] 79 P. 726.

64. The courts will take judicial notice of the result of a prohibition election, whether the same was held under the general local option law or a local act providing for such election. Oglesby v. State, 121 Ga. 602, 49 S. E. 706, following Woodward v. State, 103 Ga. 498, 30 S. E. 522, and cases cited.

65. Judicial cognizance is taken that photography and radiography are proper means of producing correct likenesses. State v. Matheson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 137.

66. Matters which have occurred at a former trial of the same case. Richardson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 282.

67. Chicago, W. & V. Coal Co. v. People, 114 Ill. App. 75.

68. See 4 C. L. 25.

69. See 5 C. L. 884, n. 87. An inspector of elections cannot set up his own neglect to properly number ballots as invalidating them in defense of a prosecution for failing to count them. Commonwealth v. Tucker, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 632.

70. State v. Adams [Idaho] 79 P. 398; People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846.

Any presumption indulged in construing a contract involved in a criminal case will be taken in favor of accused.[71] There is a presumption that a person intends all the natural, probable, and usual consequences of his own acts,[72] that the ordinary course of business has been followed,[73] that things have happened according to the ordinary course of nature and the ordinary habits of life,[74] and that a state of facts once shown to exist existed before and after[75] the time shown.

No presumption can be drawn from defendant's failure to call a witness of adverse interest.[76] Where defendant assists in procuring false testimony, or in concocting any other artifice tending to deceive or mislead, or make the fake appear to be true, the jury may consider such conduct to his disadvantage;[77] but a mere conflict among the suitor's witnesses is insufficient to support an inference of fraudulent methods.[78]

In every criminal prosecution the burden is on the government of proving beyond a reasonable doubt, by competent evidence, every essential ingredient of the crime charged.[79] This burden never shifts, and the defendant is entitled to have evidence tending to prove facts showing that he did not commit the crime considered by the jury with all the other evidence, and though it does not establish innocence, it may raise the reasonable doubt which must be removed before conviction can be had. This rule applies to good character[80] and self defense.[81] The authorities are in conflict as to the burden of proof where insanity or other irresponsibility is relied on as a defense; the rule in England and a majority of the states being that the burden is on defendant of establishing his defense;[82] at least by a preponderance of the evidence,[83] while the supreme court of the United States and the courts of many of the states have adopted the contrary rule, placing the burden on the government of proving defendant's responsibility as an element of 71. Keller v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 264, 87 S. W. 669.

72. State v. Merkel [Mo.] 87 S. W. 1186. Rule held not applicable where president of a corporation is prosecuted for embezzlement for misuse by the corporation of a third person's funds. State v. Carmean, 126 Iowa, 291, 102 N. W. 97. Party making a false affidavit in support of a fraudulent claim against the county will be presumed to have intended to defraud the county. State v. Adams [Idaho] 79 P. 398.

73. Code Civ. Proc. § 1963, subd. 20. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846.

74. Code Civ. Proc. § 1963, subd. 28. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846.

75. Code Civ. Proc., § 1963, subd. 32. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846. If insanity of the accused is shown prior to the date of the homicide, the presumption is that such insanity continued and the burden is then on the state to show that at the time of the homicide the accused was of sound memory and discretion. Allams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 506.

76. President of corporation prosecuting. People v. McGovern, 94 N. Y. S. 662.

77. Brown v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 268.

78. Brown v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 268. Where defendants announced "Not ready" owing to absence of witnesses, and prepared showings, which were admitted by the state, and after the trial had commenced, one of the witnesses for whom a showing had been made appeared, and the state was permitted to introduce the showing in evidence and contradict it by the witness, held, that defendant's conduct did not amount to a fraud upon the court nor authorize the course pursued by the state. Id.

79. State must show that limitations have not run. State v. Newton [Wash.] 81 P. 1002. Defendant presumed innocent until proved guilty. Montgomery v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 835.

80. No evidence of defendant's character being offered upon the trial, there is no presumption that it was either good or bad. Gater v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 692.

81. Zipperian v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1018. Instruction placing burden of proving self-defense on defendant held fatal. State v. Usher, 126 Iowa, 281, 102 Mo. 101.

82. On a prosecution for homicide in the absence of evidence to the contrary, it must be presumed that defendant was capable of forming and entertaining the intent to take life (Gater v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 692), and the burden is upon defendant to at least create a reasonable doubt of his capacity in this respect (Id.). An instruction in a prosecution for homicide that if there was a reasonable doubt as to the sanity of accused, there should be an acquittal because of insanity is properly refused. Defendant must prove insanity. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919.

83. State v. Humbles, 126 Iowa, 462, 102 N. W. 409; State v. Austin, 71 Ohio St. 317, 73 N. E. 218. Not error to charge in murder case, where defense of insanity was relied on, that burden was on accused to show "that at the time of the killing he was not of sound memory and discretion. He must show this not beyond a reasonable doubt, the offense beyond a reasonable doubt. The presumption of innocence and reasonable doubt do not apply to proceedings before the jury to assess punishment on a plea of guilty.[84] Where defendant is under 14 years of age, the burden is on the state to prove capacity to commit crime.[85]

Relevancy and competency in general.[86]—Any fact is relevant which alone or in connection with other facts warrants an inference as to the issue on trial.[87] Hence a wide latitude is allowed as to evidence tending to show malice, motive, intent[88] and identity,[89] its remoteness going rather to its weight than its admissibility.[90] Evidence to support a theory that a person other than defendant was guilty is properly excluded as immaterial where there is nothing in the case to pertinently connect him with it,[91] and generally testimony tending to prove facts but to the reasonable satisfaction of the jury, by a preponderance of the evidence." Allams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 506.

84. Stullivan v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 810.

85. Singleton v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 156.

86. See 4 C. L. 26.

87. That accused was not at a meeting, one of a series, where he usually went and might have attended on the night of the crime, being absent from home, may be shown. State v. Miller [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 202. Where an uncompleted conspiracy between defendant and a witness for the state is shown as a part of the state's case, an alibi for the witness may also be shown to anticipate argument that the witness committed the crime. State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807. In rape, the birth of a child to prosecutrix conclusively establishes the fact of intercourse and is therefore relevant. State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839; Woodruff v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1114. So in adultery. State v. Nelson [Wash.] 81 P. 721. Attempted abortion. Woodruff v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1114. Pregnancy, birth of child and death of defendant's niece and his correspondence with her and furnishing funds, are all admissible on his prosecution for incest with her. People v. Stison [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 104, 103 N. W. 542. Where proof is made that accused was accomplice of another jointly indicted, a witness may testify that immediately after the robbery the joint defendant was in a room in witness's house with a person whose voice he recognized as that of accused. Commonwealth v. Kelly, 186 Mass. 403, 71 N. E. 807. In prosecution of a colored man for murder with a revolver, a witness may testify that he sold the revolver to a colored man the day before the murder, though he is unable to identify accused as the purchaser. Smith v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 983. Witness may state what a person at a distance seemed to be doing. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75. It is competent for prosecution to show the ordinary course of business of the city, where an inference arises therefrom that lights were burning at a certain place at a certain time. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846. Measurements by others at a point stated by prosecutor to be site of crime. Id. That defendants' accomplices went under assumed names may be shown. Id. Existence of grand lodge may be proved to show relation of subordinate lodge in prosecution for embezzlement of funds intended for grand lodge. State v. Wise, 186 Mo. 42, 84 S. W. 954. Where on trial defendant claims that A. furnished the instrument of death, it may be shown that his attorney moved a continuance for the absence of a witness who would swear that B. furnished it. Ellington v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 153.

88. Pirscher v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 526; Brittain v. State [Tex. Cr. App.) 85 S. W. 278. Prior threats are admissible on issue of intent. State v. Atkins [Vt.] 59 A. 826. Conversations of defendant showing brooding over deceased may be shown in support of theory of jealousy. State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807. Debt as showing motive for larceny. Dimmick v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 257. Value of lands may be shown in prosecution for defranding the government of lands. Olson v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 849. Course of business of corporation not of itself unlawful is not admissible to show intent of president to defraud. State v. Carmean, 126 Iowa, 291, 102 N. W. 97. Paternity of child may be admissible where motive for homicide is illicit intercourse. Gallegas v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1150. Letters tending to show jealousy. Mathley v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 988. Religious views of parties to homicide. Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W. 203. Evidence tending to show bad feeling between the father of accused and father of deceased is admissible on the question of motive. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1. In cases of uxorcide, evidence tending to show a long course of ill treatment and cruelty on the part of the husband toward his wife, continung until shortly before the homicide, is admissible. Such evidence tends to show malice and motive, and to rebut the presumed improbability of a husband murdering his wife. Roberts v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 374. Where guilty knowledge is the gist of the offense, anything going to show the existence of such knowledge is admissible, regardless of the date when the same was acquired. Bashinski v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 54; Bashinski v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 499.

89. Opportunity and familiarity of defendant with premises. People v. Davis [Cal. App.] 81 P. 716. Possession of skeleton keys by accused on trial for burglary. McCoy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1072.

90. Shipping away goods several days before fire. State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561.

91. Where there is no evidence that a third person was in the neighborhood in which the crime was committed, or that he was in a position to have committed the

from which no inference relative to any issue in the case can be legitimately drawn,[92] or which depend for their relevance upon other facts not offered or shown, are inadmissible,[93] though evidence of otherwise irrelevant facts may be received to rebut an inference arising indirectly from other facts apparent or in evidence.[94] Where a collateral transaction is relevant, the extent to which the particulars thereof may be inquired into rests largely in discretion.[95]

On the identity of the person who committed the crime, tracks made in the vicinity may be described, and their similarity to accused's shoes shown,[96] and evidence of trailing by bloodhounds is admissible where proper foundation is laid.[97] crime, evidence of statements made by a third person that he was connected with the crime is inadmissible. Stanley v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 932, 89 S. W. 643. Evidence of the guilt of a crime must be derived from the facts and circumstances of such crime. One accused of robbery may not assail the reputation of another whom he asserts is the guilty party. Toliver v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 801. One accused of robbery may show that another person than himself was the guilty party. Id.

92. Wallace v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 612, 87 S. W. 1041. On trial of a prosecution for assault with intent to murder a girl, her father cannot show that defendants' attentions to her were discouraged. State v. Thompson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 377. Defendant on trial for burglary is not prejudiced by refusal to go into the qualifications of a practitioner of medicine who has testified to treating a wounded accomplice at defendants' expense. State v. Richards, 126 Iowa, 497, 102 N. W. 439. Acts and declarations of accused which in no way corroborate prosecutrix or impeach him should not be shown. Hubert v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 276. One who has testified to the age of prosecutrix in rape cannot be asked as to the age of others in the family, it not appearing how it is material. People v. Colbath [Mich.] 104 N. W. 633. Terms of contract out of which grew dispute resulting in homicide. People v. Thomson, 145 Cal. 717, 79 P. 435. Defendant cannot show that he gave an assumed name. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846. A police officer cannot testify that from the description given by the person robbed he set out to find accused as the person who did the deed. State v. Rutledge, 37 Wash. 523, 79 P. 1123. In a prosecution for attempting to bribe, evidence that accused had no money is inadmissible. Lee v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 804. Where the issue in a liquor case is defendant's ownership of the saloon, the state should not be permitted to introduce other indictments in which his ownership is averred. Custer v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 757. The state should not be permitted to show that while defendant was lying in jail awaiting trial he read law to find out how to fabricate a defense. Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 730, 88 S. W. 341.

93. Commonwealth v. Brown, 23 Ua. Super. Ct. 470. Condition of light at place not shown to be the place where robbery occurred, it being immaterial otherwise. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846. Where there is no claim that defendant burned deceased's bed clothing because he was afflicted with a loathsome disease, evidence that he was so afflicted is not admissible to explain the burning. State v. Usher, 126 Iowa, 281, 102 N. W. 101. Where it is claimed that prosecutrix in statutory rape contracted a venereal disease from defendant, evidence that her mother's house bore a bad reputation is inadmissible, defendant not claiming the mother was a prostitute or that she gave her daughter the disease. James v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 320. Testimony as to bullet hole discovered in hub of wagon four or five days after homicide is inadmissible in the absence of evidence to show how it came there. Darden v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 507. Where the state's theory unsupported by evidence is that an attempted arrest grew out of defendant's relations with a girl, such relations are not admissible. Earles v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1.

94. Where it appears that a letter purporting to have been written by deceased directing cremation of his body is a forgery, evidence that he had expressed a preference for cremation is inadmissible. People v. Patrick [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 843. An article claimed to have been taken from deceased by defendant and claimed by him to have been purchased at a 10 cent store may be shown to be worth $1.50. State v. Sherouk [Conn.] 61 A. 897. Where life insurance is shown as a motive for murder, it is error to exclude evidence that the policy was of little, if any, value. Jahnke v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 154. Where the prosecution shows a version of a transaction defendant may show his version of it. Thompson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1059. Where defendant introduced evidence tending to show insanity and that he had not been drinking for over a year, held, the state could prove in rebuttal that defendant had been drinking within the past year, and particularly on the day of the murder and several days before, and that when drunk his actions were similar to those shown to prove his insanity. Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850.

95. The particulars of a previous difficulty are incompetent in a prosecution for murder. Dunn v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 147. In a prosecution for homicide where the state itself introduces the previous difficulty, the defendant should be permitted to show the details and character of such difficulty. Brown v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 957.

96. People v. Wood, 145 Cal. 659, 79 P. 367. Similarity between bloody imprint of hand at scene of crime and accused's hand may be shown. State v. Miller [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 202. Similarity of spots claimed to be blood. Id.

97. Denham v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 538. See 3 C. L. 333, n. 67.

Where direct proof of a person's insanity has been given, it may be shown that there has been insanity in the family.[98] Unless evidence is illegal, it is no ground of objection to it that it is likely to prejudice the jury against defendant.[99]

Tampering with the state's witnesses[1] or the jury,[2] flight of accused,[3] concealment of name and identity,[4] resistance of arrest,[5] and attempts to escape[6] or commit suicide,[7] or to fabricate testimony,[8] and defendants conduct and demeanor while under investigation,[9] or immediately after the commission of the crime,[10] may be shown. Evidence of his voluntary surrender is not admissible except in rebuttal.[11]

Remoteness[12] or uncertainty of evidence, as a rule, affects its weight or credibility, and not its admissibility,[13] though evidence is sometimes rejected on the ground of remoteness or uncertainty.[14] As a general rule any evidence admissible against a principal is admissible against an accessory to show the guilt of the principal.[15]

Other offenses, convictions and acquittal[16] are not generally admissible.[17] Ex-

98. Order of proof not prejudicial. Commonwealth v. Johnson [Mass.] 74 N. E. 939.

99. Ellington v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 153.

1. See 4 C. L. 28. Woodruff v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1114; Maxey v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1009; Corothers v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 585. Threats to witness before crime may be shown. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75

2. Evidence which of itself, or taken in connection with other evidence in the case or offered to be introduced, would warrant a jury in finding that a party has corruptly tampered with jurors, is competent. Commonwealth v. Brown, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 470.

3. See 4 C. L. 28. State v. Matheson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 137; Woodruff v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1114; State v. White [Mo.] 87 S. W. 1188; McDonough v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 594. That one accused of rape left home immediately after the commission of the offense and that search was instituted for him is admissible. Dickey v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 776. No error to prove by witness who, when an officer, had seen accused in a room where gaming was going on, that when accused later saw witness in another city, he fled, though witness was not then an officer. Grant v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 946. An order forfeiting the bail bond is admissible as tending to show flight, but is not conclusive. State v. Kesner [Kan.] 82 P. 720.

4. McDonough v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 594; State v. White [Mo.] 87 S. W. 1188.

5. In homicide, evidence as to the conduct of defendant and that he intended to resist arrest is competent. State v. Marks, 70 S. W. 448, 50 S. E. 14.

6. Defendant taking the stand may be cross-examined as to efforts to break jail. Charba v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 519, 87 S. W. 829.

7. Accomplice. People v. Patrick [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 843.

8. Letter to physician who had examined prosecutrix in rape offering him $200 to swear to a statement therein contained. Dickey v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 776.

9. On the issue of insanity, the attitude and appearance of defendant while under scrutiny by an expert is material. Commonwealth v. Johnson [Mass.] 74 N. E. 939. Admission of evidence of mental perturbation on visiting house where homicide occurred held harmless error. Helton v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 574. A denial by accused that he was in company of others known to be inculpated may show guilty consciousness. People v. Donnolly, 143 Cal. 394, 77 P. 177.

10. Bollen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 148, 86 S. W. 1025.

11. In homicide, where the only evidence as to flight was offered by defendant with his explanation thereof, held not error to exclude evidence of a voluntary surrender, offered by a witness for the defendant before the conclusion of the state's cause in rebuttal of a theory not then advanced. McDuffie v. State, 121 Ga. 580, 49 S. E. 708.

12. See 4 C. L. 28.

13. Admissibility is discretionary. State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807; State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839. Witness not being able to positively identify defendant may state his opinion or belief. State v. Richards, 126 Iowa, 497, 102 N. W. 439. Shipping away goods several days before fire. State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561. Person not understanding foreign language well enough to speak it may state that he understood what was said. People v. Jailles, 146 Cal. 301, 79 P. 965. That a Mexican in the vicinity of the crime looked like defendant, but that all Mexicans looked alike to defendant, is admissible for what it is worth. Trevenio v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 566, 87 S. W. 1162.

14. Intimacy short of adultery of parties four or five years before. French v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 4. Identity of man and horse in dark. Pool v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 616, 88 S. W. 350.

15. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1.

16. See 4 C. L. 29.

17. State v. Shockley [Utah] 80 P. 865; Shepherd v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 191; Wesley v. Stte [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 802; Driver v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1056. Another assault by accused on another person. Brom v. People, 216 Ill. 148, 74 N. E. 790. Claimed forgeries in embezzlement case. People v. Peck [Mich.] 103 N.

ception is made, however, in the case of other offenses committed at the same time with the one on trial, when they are admissible under the familiar rule of res gestae,[18] and when they are so connected with the offense on trial as to illustrate it by way of supplying a motive,[19] or showing the intent with which it was committed, or show a system,[21] or defendant's identity,[22] they may generally be shown, and where unlawful sexual intercourse is under investigation, other acts of the parties may be shown to illustrate their inclination.[23] Evidence fairly admissible upon an issue in the case is not rendered inadmissible because indirectly showing the commission of another offense.[24] Former convictions are ordinarily not admissible except as impeachment.[25]

W. 178. That witness did not like defendant because "he had been getting away with cattle." State v. Lee [Or.] 79 P. 577. Allowing proof of continuance of highway obstruction until time of trial is error. Richardson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 282. One charged with a crime cannot be convicted on suspicion, or by general reputation, or by proof that he is in the habit of committing offenses similar to that for which he is being tried. Hence evidence of distinct transactions within or without the statute of limitations is inadmissible. Bashinski v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 54. In larceny for cattle, held error to admit evidence that one other than prosecutor had claimed certain cattle found on the premises and that defendants had had an examination charged with the theft of such calves. Clampitt v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 666. On the trial of one charged with the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, it was error to admit evidence of such a sale by the accused more than two years prior to the date of the accusation, and to charge the jury that they might "consider these transactions as circumstances in arriving at a proper verdict." Erwin v. State, 121 Ga. 580, 49 S. E. 689.

18. Attempted murder of deceased's companion at same time. State v. Shockley [Utah] 80 P. 865; Helton v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 574; Vasser v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 635. Abandoned plan to burglarize and steps taken before abandonment held admissible on murder trial. People v. Woods [Cal.] 81 P. 652. Robbery with assault with intent to murder. Denham v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 538.

19. Conspiracy to defraud United States of public lands. Other entries. Olson v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 849. It is not proper on trial for forgery to show that accused embezzled money and thereby supply a motive for the crime charged The fraudulent intent must be confined to the forgery and this was not. People v. Gaffey, 98 App. Div. 461, 90 N. Y. S. 706.

20. State v. Shockley [Utah] 80 P. 865. Prior assault. Miera v. Territory [N. M.] 81 P. 586. Other forgeries. Pirscher v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 526. Moulds to make other counterfeit coins than those for counterfeiting which he is on trial. Bryan v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 495. Similar advertising schemes to defraud. State v. Seligman [Iowa] 103 N. W. 357. Other attempts to rape. State v. Sheets [Iowa] 102 N. W. 415. Purchases of other stolen property. State v. Levich [Iowa] 104 N. W. 334. But proof of another offense is competent to show identity, intent, or scienter, or where the facts are all a part of a single chain of circumstantial evidence. Where murder was charged, and robbery was alleged motive, proof of finding two children wounded in the house, and the mother's body some distance away, was competent in a trial for murder of the mother. State v. Adams, 138 N. C. 688, 50 S. E. 765. In a prosecution for renting a room to be used for gaming purposes, it is competent to prove that more than two years before the finding of the indictment the tenant was well known as a gambler and that the apartment had a reputation as a gaming house. Bashinski v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 54.

21. People v. Kellogg, 94 N. Y. S. 617. Wigmore, Evidence, §§ 216, 305, 320. Liquor selling. Roach v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 586. False pretenses. State v. Marshall [Vt.] 59 A. 916. In a prosecution for seduction accomplished in part by hypnosis, evidence of accused's practice of the art on others may be received. State v. Donovan [Iowa] 102 N. W. 791. Union men, defendants, assaulting another nonunion man in the same manner the same night. State v. Bailey [Mo.] 88 S. W. 733. A similar crime, before or after the one under investigation, is admissible. Larceny by swindling. Johnson v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 905.

22. Robbery of another the same night. State v. Roberts [Nev.] 82 P. 100. Prior attempts to kill deceased in a different manner may be shown. State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807. Prosecutrix in rape may testify that conception, pregnancy and birth of a child followed and that defendant was father of the child. State v. Miller [Kan.] 80 P. 51.

23. Rape. State v. Cannon [N. J. Law] 60 A. 177; Schuette v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 890. Subsequent acts. Rape under age of consent. Woodruff v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1114. Adultery and living in adultery. State v. Nelson [Wash.] 81 P. 721; French v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 4. Contra. Wiggins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 821. Evidence of subsequent acts of intercourse is inadmissible in a prosecution for rape. Cecil v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 654.

24. State v. Franklin, 69 Kan. 798, 77 P. 588; State v. Rea [Or.] 81 P. 822. Plans to commit another murder by the same means, the same motive actuating both, may be shown. Commonwealth v. Snell [Mass.] 75 N. E. 75. In rape under age of consent, promises of defendant are not to be rejected because they prove seduction. Woodruff v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1114. Assault on another at same time in prosecution for rape. Harmon v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 765. Where

Character and reputation.[26]—The character of the accused as reflected by his general reputation in the community in which he resides,[27] with reference to the traits relevant to the offense charged,[28] may always be put in issue by him by offering evidence that it is good, whereupon the contrary may be proved in the same manner by the state.[29] The character of third persons,[30] especially of witnesses in the case,[31] may be material.

Hearsay.[32]—Unsworn statements out of court by third persons are, unless within certain well known exceptions, inadmissible.[33] self-defense is claimed, it may be shown that deceased and his party had a warrant for defendant for burglary, and previous crime may also be shown as basis for defendant's desperation. State v. Rudolph, 187 Mo. 67, 85 S. W. 584.

25. On the trial of bastardy proceedings, evidence that defendant had previously been tried under an indictment charging him with the seduction of the mother of the bastard child, and found guilty of the offense of fornication, is irrelevant and inadmissible. McCalman v. State, 121 Ga. 491, 49 S. E. 609. Evidence of a prior conviction of a similar offense, or of the pendency of an indictment charging a like offense, offered by the state, is incompetent to prove the charge made in the indictment under which defendant is being tried. Bashinski v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 499. Such evidence is hurtful, as giving the jury an opportunity to infer that the accused is a persistent violater of the law and is in all likelihood guilty of the specific charge then brought against him. Id.

26. See 4 C. L. 30.

27. Reputation several years before in another state cannot be shown. State v. Shouse [Mo.] 87 S. W. 480. Convict on trial is not entitled to show that he was a good prisoner. Character can be shown only by reputation. People v. Murphy, 146 Cal. 502, 80 P. 709.

28. Evidence of the previous good character of the defendant is always admissible in a criminal prosecution, but it should be confined to the trait of character at issue. State v. Moyer [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 30. Defendant's character for honesty is not in issue in prosecution for murder. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329.

29. Good character cannot be rebutted by evidence of specific acts. Commonwealth v. Brown, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 470. Defendant's character cannot be assailed until he has attempted to sustain it. State v. Thompson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 377; State v. Lee [Or.] 79 P. 577; Newman v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1089. Cross-examination of defendant's character, witnesses as to specific acts of immorality is proper. State v. Richards, 126 Iowa, 497, 102 N. W. 439. Proof of good character as a man of peace is not sufficient to create a reasonable doubt of guilt. Carwile v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 220.

30. Character of defendant's parents irrelevant in murder case. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329.

31. Dimmick v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 257; Dunn v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W 321; Newman v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1089. Character cannot be shown by specific instances. Mount v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 707. Where a witness is shown to have been previously convicted of crime, the party producing him is entitled to show that he was pardoned. O'Donnell v. People, 110 Ill. App. 250. Defendant, when he testifies, is liable to be attacked as any other witness. Identity of person previously convicted held sufficiently shown to authorize receipt of record of conviction. Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61. To discredit him as a witness, the state may show defendant's former conviction of a misdemeanor. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4680. State v. Heusack [Mo.] 88 S. W. 21.

32. See 4 C. L. 31.

33. Examples. Not admissible: Letters written defendant by prosecutor's daughter before commission of offense to show conspiracy to charge defendant. State v. Royce [Wash.] 80 P. 268. Threats of decedent to kill defendant. Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 730, 88 S. W. 341. What someone told prosecutor in a swindling case in defendant's absence about title to property. Brown v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 630, 88 S. W. 811. Testimony that stolen property had been recently taken from witness' house by search warrant and witness told the officers defendant brought it there Pool v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 616, 88 S. W. 350. Who third person said he saw at the time of an assassination. Jett v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 1179. That witness learned from another that defendant was one of the robbers. People v. Turner [Cal. App.] 82 P. 397. What some one else told witness what defendant said. Abrams v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 173. The opinion of one as to his own age based on the statements of others not members of his family is hearsay. People v. Colbath [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 446, 104 N. W. 633. What another's analysis of liquor showed. Uloth v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 521, 87 S. W. 822. Evidence that an alleged eye witness told others that he saw defendant kill deceased is hearsay, where the witness while denying that he saw the homicide admitted stating that he had. Sutherland v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 462. Evidence of negotiations carried on by the father of defendant looking toward a settlement of the offense, the defendant not being connected with such negotiations, is hearsay. Cecil v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 654.

Not hearsay: Where a witness has stated that he saw blood on another's clothes at a certain time, he may also state that the other made a statement in regard to it, the statement not being shown. Ball v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 226. Where defendant relied on an alibi claiming that on the night of the crime he was at his father's house, testimony of a witness that he informed defendant that a third person had

Admissions and declarations.[34]—Incriminating statements and admissions of defendant are admissible where made before or after the commission of the crime;[35] but self-serving declarations[36] are not generally admissible except in some instances, as showing the intent with which the act under investigation was done.[37] Where the intent of a party becomes a material issue, he may be asked what his intent was at the particular time or with respect to the particular act in question.[38] Statements in argument by defendant's attorney in another case cannot bind him.[39] Declarations by third persons with regard to defendant's guilt are not admissible, whether exculpatory or incriminating,[40] except that failure of defendant to deny the statements of others in his presence is sometimes taken as an admission of their truth;[41] but such evidence should be received with caution.[42] Dying declarations are admissible only in cases of homicide.[43] As a general rule, evidence of prior statements of a witness cannot be introduced to support or corroborate his testimony. The rule, however, has its exceptions and one of them is that when a stated to witness that defendant's father had said to the third person that defendant was not at his, the father's, house that night, is not hearsay, though the statement made by the father to the third person and by him to the witness was made in the absence of defendant. Stanley v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 932, 89 S. W. 643.

34. See 4 C. L. 31.

35. State v. Miller [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 202; State v. Swisher, 186 Mo. 1, 84 N. W. 911; State v. Bailey [Mo.] 88 S. W. 733; Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W. 203; Hall v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 707, 88 S. W. 244; Commonwealth v. Bond [Mass.] 74 N. E. 293; Dunn v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 321. Declarations must go to jury entire. State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807. Admission of statements out of court is not repugnant to the maxim that no person shall be compelled to be a witness against himself. State v. Inman [Kan.] 79 P. 162. Need not be voluntary where not in the nature of confessions. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846; Tuttle v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1035; State v. Royce [Wash.] 80 P. 268.

36. Ellington v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 634, 88 S. W. 361; Commonwealth v. Shoener, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 526. Explanations by defendant of his possession of stolen property long before the accusation ought to be admitted. State v. Conroy, 126 Iowa, 472, 102 N. W. 417. Property in possession at time of arrest. Smith v. Territory, 14 Okl. 518, 79 P. 214. That he was afraid deceased would kill him. Taylor v. State, 121 Ga. 348, 49 S. E. 303. Question whether defendant on being asked what he did with amunition procured by him explained where he put it properly excluded as calling for a self-serving declaration. Littlejohn v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 463. A letter written by accused a day or two after the commission of the crime and containing statements favorable to himself is inadmissible in his own behalf. Williams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 322. Self-serving declarations of accused inadmissible, though given by witness being examined by solicitor. Nelms v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 588.

37. State v. White [Vt.] 59 A. 829. Defendant's relation of his family troubles is admissible to show his state of mind. Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 730, 88 S. W. 341.

38. Dunbar v. Armstrong, 115 Ill. App 549.

39. Miller v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 337.

40. In a prosecution for murder by means of abortion, testimony of a physician who treated deceased before her death as to his conclusion as to what ailed her based on her statements to him are inadmissible. Stevens v. People, 215 Ill. 593, 74 N. E. 786. Entries in corporation's books by its clerks and agents without personal knowledge of its president and secretary are not admissible to charge them with embezzlement. State v. Carmean, 126 Iowa, 291, 102 N. W. 97.

41. Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 824. Conversation of others relative to the disposition of money secured by a burglary planned by defendant is admissible, it being in his presence. State v. Richards, 126 Iowa, 497, 102 N. W. 439. That defendant was compelled to remain silent while his co-defendant was probed by police does not render his statement inadmissible where defendant afterward admitted the same facts. Andrews v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1031. Statement of prosecutrix in presence of defendant that "he had done something awful" to her. White v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1140. A statement made by witness to defendant to which he made no answer is not admissible. Newman v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1089. While silence under accusation of crime cannot have the legal effect of the confession of guilt, it is nevertheless a circumstance to go to a jury on the question of his guilt or innocence. State v. Major, 70 S. C. 387, 50 S. E. 13. Declarations of guilt made in the presence of accused are admissible only for the purpose of showing conduct in connection with them evidencing guilt. People v. Turner [Cal. App.] 82 P. 397.

42. Phelan v. State [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 1040; State v. Swisher, 186 Mo. 1, 84 S. W. 911; Bloomer v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 438. Statement of defendant's mother in his presence held not admissible. State v. Ethridge [Mo.] 87 S. W. 495.

43. Not in incest, though the female died as the result of it. People v. Stison [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 104, 103 N. W. 542.

witness has been discredited by showing prior statements contradictory of his evidence, it may be shown that soon after the occurrence he made statements corroborative of his evidence.[44]

Confessions[45] are admissible,[46] though made while defendant is in custody,[47] but only when voluntary,[48] and made understandingly, without threat or inducement.[49] Where defendant is in custody, he must in some states be warned that whatever he says may be used against him,[50] but the warning need not be exactly contemporaneous with the confession.[51] Declaration designed to be self-serving is not subject to the rules relating to confessions.[52] The evidence being in conflict as to whether defendant was warned, or the statement was voluntary, the question is primarily for the judge, and ultimately for the jury.[53] A free and voluntary con-

44. Franklin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 641, 88 S. W. 357. Where a motive or outside influence of the witness is shown to discredit him, it may be shown that he made similar statements before the motive or influence arose. Commonwealth v. Brown, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 470; State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807. Where it is claimed and argued by defendant that the prosecuting witness accused no one, it may be shown that she named accused immediately after the offense. Commonwealth v. Kelley, 186 Mass. 403, 71 N. E. 807.

45. See 4 C. L. 33.

46. State v. Castigno [Kan.] 80 P. 630. A confession of embezzlement, which is so lacking as to time or amount as to render it impossible to determine whether reference is made to sums received before or after a change in the statute covering the crime, is incompetent. Young v. State, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 53. It may be shown that defendant pleaded guilty below and afterward withdrew his plea. State v. Bringgold [Wash.] 82 P. 132. Payment made by defendant or his alleged accomplices to avoid prosecution for the theft under investigation is inadmissible. Armstead v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 824. Voluntary confessions of homicide are competent. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. Statements voluntarily made by accused concerning occurrences leading up to shooting held admissible as a confession, no inducements being offered or threats made. State v. Horner [N. C.] 52 S. E. 136.

47. State v. Miller [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 202; Hooker v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 846; Folds v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 305. The mere fact that accused is in custody of an officer when he makes a statement does not make it inadmissible. State v. Smith, 138 N. C. 700, 50 S. E. 859. That he was in unlawful custody is immaterial. State v. Westcott [Iowa] 104 N. W. 341.

48. Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 694, 88 S. W. 223. Confessions held voluntary. Hintz v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 110; Roszczyniala v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 113; State v. Westcott [Iowa] 104 N. W. 341; State v. Inman [Kan.] 79 P. 162. Statements by witness when called and sworn by coroner without being warned are not admissible. State v. Westcott [Iowa] 104 N. W. 341. Testimony of defendant at coroner's inquest not admissible, though not a confession, where he was not warned, and had no counsel. Tuttle v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1035; People v. Kelley, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846. Contra. State v. Finch [Kan.] 81 P. 494. Burden of showing voluntary character is on state. Confession held admissible where made in jail the day after defendant was whipped by the sheriff. Smith v. State [Ark.] 85 S. W. 1123. Confession held voluntary, though defendant was brought to prosecuting attorney's office and questioned. State v. Stibbens [Mo.] 87 S. W. 460. Before a confession can be considered in evidence, it must appear to have been made voluntarily, without being induced by another by the slightest hope of benefit or remotest fear of injury. Pen. Code 1895, § 1006. Griner v. State, 121 Ga. 614, 49 S. E. 700. If induced by another, by hope of benefit or fear of injury, it is involuntary, although such inducement be held out by one person, and the confession be subsequently made to another who has no knowledge of such inducement, and who offers none himself. Id. Held error to refuse to so instruct. Id. Where there is evidence of a confession before the jury, it is for them to determine from all the evidence whether the confession was voluntary. Id.

49. Hammons v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 718. Advice by officer not to try to settle anything defendant was not guilty of. James v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 320. The suggestion of a defensive theory by the officer is a mere trick and not an inducement. State v. Wescott [Iowa] 104 N. W. 341. Statement of accomplice held not a confession procured by hope of reward. Cage v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 631. Where officer in charge of accused testified that he never made any threats against or promises to defendant, and offered him no inducements to make a statement, and that no one else did in his presence, he was properly allowed, against a general objection, to give defendant's statement that he struck deceased with a hatchet because deceased was beating him with a piece of wood. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329.

50. Watson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 568, 87 S. W. 1158. Warning held sufficient Fonseca v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1069. Warning that statement may be used "for or against" accused is not sufficient. Adams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 334.

51. Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 824.

52. Folds v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 305.

53. State v. Stibbens [Mo] 87 S. W. 460; State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561; State v.

fession is generally deserving of the highest credit.[54] A confession must be considered as a whole, but all of its parts are not necessarily entitled to equal credit; the jury may believe portions and disbelieve others.[55]

Acts and declarations of co-conspirators.[56]—Declarations of co-conspirators made after the conspiracy was formed, and in furtherance of it,[57] but not those before the conspiracy is formed,[58] or after the commission of the crime,[59] are contemplated by the conspiracy,[60] are admissible, though made in the absence of defendant.[61] There must, however, be independent evidence of the conspiracy.[62] Slight evidence is sufficient, its sufficiency in the first instance being a question for the court, and ultimately for the jury.[63] It is not error to admit evidence of the acts of alleged conspirators before the conspiracy is established,[64] on a promise to subsequently make it competent; but where declarations are admitted over objection, on the promise to show a conspiracy, and none is shown, they should be stricken.[65]

Res gestae.[66]—Exclamations or other statements made at the time of the offense, or so soon thereafter as to result from impulse rather than reflection are admissible, whether made by defendant,[67] the person injured,[68] or third persons,[69] and whether the person exclaiming would be a competent witness or not.[70] Like-

Inman [Kan.] 79 P. 162; Hintz v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 110; State v. Westcott [Iowa] 104 N. W. 341.

54, 55. State v. Powell [Del.] 61 A. 966.

56. See 4 C. L. 34.

57. State v. Dickerhoff [Iowa] 103 N. W. 350; Schutz v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 90; People v. Wood, 145 Cal. 659, 79 P. 367; Nelson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 339, 87 S. W. 143. Possession of dynamite by conspirator to escape prison is admissible on trial of another for murder resulting from the attempt to escape. People v. Murphy, 146 Cal. 502, 80 P. 709. The admissions of a wife are admissible against her husband charged with aiding and abetting her, though they tend also to incriminate him. State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561. Acts, sayings and conduct of conspirators while the conspiracy was in progress and prior to the commission of the crime are admissible. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1; Harrell v. State, 121 Ga. 607, 49 S. E. 703.

58. Miller v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 337. Declarations and acts leading up to larceny by the device of inducing one to become stakeholder in a pretended foot race are admissible, though the acts evincing conspiracy occurred two days later State v. Ryan [Or.] 82 P. 703.

59. Watson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 568, 87 S. W. 1158.

60. The act of a conspirator other than accused, after the commission of the crime, is admissible where the act was contemplated by the terms of the conspiracy to be performed after the perpetration of the crime was completed. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1.

61. Knox v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 255; State v. Dickerhoff [Iowa] 103 N. W. 350; State v. Copeman, 186 Mo. 108, 84 S. W. 942.

62, 63. Wallace v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 612, 87 S. W. 1041.

64. Evidence of the acts of an accomplice are inadmissible until the conspiracy is shown, but being introduced prior to such a showing, without objection, it will not be stricken out on motion, evidence tending to show a conspiracy having been subsequently introduced. Harrell v. State, 121 Ga. 607, 49 S. E. 703.

65. Brennan v. People, 113 Ill. App. 361.

66. See 4 C. L. 35.

67. People v. Lee [Cal. App.] 81 P. 969; Lyles v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 763. Defendant may show that before he knew any suspicion attached to him he stated the team he was accused of stealing was not his own but was hired. State v. White [Vt.] 59 A. 829. Explanations respecting stolen property in his possession at the time of his arrest are admissible, but not if the property was not in possession. Smith v. Territory, 14 Okl. 518, 79 P. 214. Question held not to clearly call for res gestae as to be error to overrule it. Misenheimer v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 494. Reply of defendant immediately after the shooting to inquiry why he shot deceased. Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W 203

68. Rape. Thomas v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 823. Murder. Franklin v. State [Tex. Cr. App] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 641, 88 S. W. 357. "Boys, I am shot!" Sheehy v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 356. Pursuit of prisoner by deceased crying "Police! Thief!" immediately before being shot. State v. Laster [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 361. Pursuit of thief. Nelson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 627, 88 S. W. 807. In homicide a declaration of the deceased "Oh Lord! my poor wife and children," made as he fell from the fatal wound, held admissible as part of the res gestae. Goodman v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 922. Statement 20 minutes after deceased took what accused gave as headache powders—"I took the medicine Walter (accused) gave me, and it is killing me. Run for a doctor"—is not dying declaration but is res gestae. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406.

69. A bystander's statement to deceased just before killing, "Keep your eyes open. That man is going to hurt you" is admissible as res gestae. Baysinger v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 728.

wise conversation[71] and contemporaneous acts and circumstances of the parties may be shown where they are part and parcel of the transaction under investigation.[72] The acts and declarations must be such that the events speak through the participants, and where the declarations are in narrative form,[73] or the acts are done, or the declarations made,[74] so far subsequent to the transaction as to permit reflection, they are inadmissible.[75] Where declarations are not precisely concurrent, their admissibility is in the sound discretion of the trial court.[76]

Expert and opinion evidence.[77]—Ordinarily, questions are objectionable which call for conclusions of the witness rather than facts, and testimony in the nature of conclusions and opinions is generally inadmissible.[78] An opinion or conclusion is permissible, however, where the nature of the facts on which it is founded makes it impossible to state them,[79] and exception is made with respect to matters presumably not within the experience of ordinary men but as to which certain learned persons have special knowledge.[80] As to such matters, any person shown to be of sufficient learning and experience[81] may give his opinion, based on facts in evidence;[82] or on his observation of the subject-matter,[83] or on a hypothetical ques-

70. Child incompetent to testify. Thomas v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 823.

71. Knox v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 255.

72. Other killing at same time and everything else done thereat. Helton v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 574. Circumstances surrounding murder. Fonseca v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1069; Lyles v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 763. Provocation for assault. Jones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 5. Other assault at same time. Gray v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 764.

73. Mere narrative is not admissible as res gestae. Conversation of deceased with his brother immediately after the shooting. Deceased: "Do you know who did this?" Witness: "One of them was R." Deceased: "Yes and the other was 'L.'" Regnier v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 509.

74. Statements by accused four or five hous after assault are not res gestae. Brittain v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 278. Statements of accused before he left home on the trip that ended in homicide held inadmissible in his behalf because not a part of the res gestae. State v. Dean [S. C.] 51 S. E. 524. Statements by deceased made four, five or ten minutes after the fatal shooting, as to who shot him, are not res gestae when it is not shown what transpired between the time of the shooting and the time stated, so as to make it clear that the intervening circumstances and statements in question were all a part of the difficulty. Vickery v. State [Fla.] 38 S. 907. Declarations of a person shot, made four or five or ten minutes after the shooting, which do not appear to have been the product of or part of the difficulty, are not res gestae. Id.

75. Kearse v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 628, 88 S. W. 363.

76. State v. Dean [S. C.] 51 S W. 524. The admissibility of testimony as part of the res gestae being doubtful, it should be admitted and its weight and effect determined by the jury. Goodman v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 922.

77. See 4 C. L. 36.

78. Opinion whether deceased would be likely to carry threat into execution. Long v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 93. The mother of one accused of homicide cannot testify that accused went to see his brother because such brother was insane. Not competent on question of sanity of accused. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. Stating how the shoes of a man compared with certain tracks is not stating a belief that he made the tracks. Therefore does not invade province of jury. Turley v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 934.

79. Opinion of surveyor as to distance, and of one used to handling fire arms of the calibre of a revolver, may be taken, though they do not qualify as experts. State v. Laster [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 361. Testimony of a girl that she "had sexual intercourse" not a mere conclusion. Straub v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 529. A witness testifying as to insanity of accused may be asked as to whether he noticed anything "unusual, unnatural or peculiar about him." Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. That on a given occasion a particular person appeared to be excited or did not so appear. Roberts v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 374. A witness may testify whether or not accused appeared to be surprised or angry. Whether defendant, accused of incest with stepdaughter, appeared surprised or angry when told of girl's condition. Tagert v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 293.

80. Whether the person murdered was rational when making a dying declaration is not the subject of expert testimony. Lyles v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 763. On trial for killing an alleged prostitute, expert evidence that prostitutes have a tendency to suicide is too remote. Van Dalsen v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 89 S. W. 255. Medical experts may express opinions as to when wounds were inflicted on a living subject. Hampton v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 421.

81. Physicians who have examined or treated accused or who have sufficient facts before them to make their opinion of value may give opinions as to his sanity. Commonwealth v. Woelfel [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1061. The question as to the competency of a witness to express are opinion on the question of insanity is one for the court. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919.

82. Experts on insanity may be permitted to give opinions on facts in evidence and tion,[84] though he cannot give his opinion as to the ultimate facts in the case.[85] Experts are not bound to state on direct examination the grounds or reasons for their opinions.[86] Nonexpert witnesses having an intimate acquaintance with the person under investigation may give their opinion as to his sanity,[87] though in most states they must give with their opinion on sanity the facts on which it is based.[88] Witnesses, whether expert or not, cannot state their opinion as to physical facts of which ordinary men can judge one as well as another.[89] In some states, only those papers can be used for a comparison of hands which are in the case for some other relevant purpose; but in others any genuine specimen [90] is admissible for comparison by experts.

Best and secondary evidence. Parol evidence to vary writing.[91]—The rule as to best and secondary evidence applies to criminal cases.[92] observed by them instead of answering hypothetical questions. Commonwealth v. Johnson [Mass.] 74 N. E. 939.

83. Insanity. Commonwealth v. Johnson [Mass.] 74 N. E. 939. Experienced stockmen may state that in their opinion a certain colt belonged to a certain mare. Miller v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 321. A physician may testify that deceased was shot sitting down and that the wound could not have been self inflicted. Miera v. Territory [N. M.] 81 P. 586.

84. A hypothetical question must not contravene the evidence, but need not embrace all the facts in evidence if full opportunity is given the adverse party to propound other questions based on the omitted facts. Betts v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 89 S. W. 413.

85. Question held not improper. People v. Griffith, 146 Cal. 339, 80 P. 68.

86. Such wounds may be proper subjects for cross-examination. Commonwealth v. Johnson [Mass.] 74 N. E. 939.

87. A nonexpert who has not had previous acquaintance with the accused and had never seen him prior to an interview after his arrest is not competent to testify as to insanity. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. Where a person accused of homicide sets up insanity, one who has known him since childhood and had talked with him on recent occasions may testify as to his sanity. Id. One who interviews a person accused of homicide who has set up insanity may testify as to whether accused talked disconnectedly and appeared absent-minded. Not an opinion. Id.

88. Byrd v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 974. Nonexpert opinion on sanity should not be allowed without a statement of the facts on which based. Betts v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 89 S. W. 413.

89. On a prosecution for killing a marshal, his stick being before the jury, they can determine, as well as a nonexpert, whether or not it was a deadly weapon. McDuffie v. State, 121 Ga. 580, 49 S. E. 708. The opinion of a witness is not admissible when all the facts and circumstances are capable of being clearly detailed and described so that the jurors may be able readily to form corect conclusions therefrom. Thomas v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E 64. It is not a question for medical experience how a moving body would fall when its momentum was opposed by impact of a fatal bullet. Turley v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 934.

90. The admission of papers irrelevant to the record for the sole purpose of creating a standard of comparison of handwriting should not be allowed except in cases where the papers are conceded to be genuine or are such as the opposing party is estopped to deny. State v. Seymour [Idaho] 79 P. 825. Neither witnesses nor juries may compare the handwriting of papers, not in evidence for other purposes, with a disputed writing or signature. Error to allow expert to compare an inventory with an alleged forged signature, and to admit inventory for that purpose only. Washington v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 388.

91. See 4 C. L. 38.

92. State v. McCoy [Kan.] 79 P. 156. That defendants when arraigned below pleaded guilty may be shown by oral testimony like any other confession. Record held sufficient. State v. Call [Me.] 61 A. 833. An entry in a family bible is not admissible where the person making it is alive and in court. State v. Miller [Kan.] 80 P. 51. Prosecutrix in rape may testify to her age, though her parents are in court, and give testimony in respect to the same matter. Id. Where a letter written by defendant to his wife while in jail, which he knew would be read by the sheriff, is in her hands, she not being compellable to testify or produce it, the sheriff may testify to its contents. De Leon v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 348. Witnesses's memory as to what a paper contained is better evidence than his memorandum of it, though he has to refer to his memorandum to refresh his recollection. [State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561. Secondary evidence may be given of a paper in defendant's possession where he fails to produce it on notice. Id. Secondary evidence of lost pardon may be received. Yzaguirre v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 14. Proceedings on issuance of liquor license as evidence against licensee. State v. Barnett, 110 Mo. App. 592, 85 S. W. 613; Id., 110 Mo. App. 584, 85 S. W. 615; State v. Mulloy [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 569. Where a neighbor at the request of illiterate parents recorded the birth of children from time to time on a piece of paper kept for that purpose and has been absent from the county for several years, the paper is admissible on the issue of age of a child thus recorded. State v. Neasby [Mo.] 87 S. W. 468. A statement written by a witness, or his attorney for him, a day or two before the trial not in presence of court or counsel, is not admissi-

Documentary evidence,[93] including records of judicial proceedings,[94] diagrams [95] and photographs,[96] if accompanied by proper authentication,[97] is admissible under the same rules applied in civil cases. Statutes providing for the use of depositions are common.[98] On a prosecution for violating a section of an ordinance, the entire ordinance may be admitted in evidence.[99] Where a commitment to the Industrial Home, endorsed with the approval of the circuit judge, without which it would be a nullity, is offered in evidence, the endorsement goes in with the commitment, though no special mention is made of it and an objection that it does not is hypercritical.[1]

Accomplice testimony [2] is competent when sufficiently corroborated to connect defendant with the commission of the crime,[3] but defendant should be allowed to probe an accomplice as to his expectation of favor from the prosecution.[4]

Demonstrative evidence and experiments.[5]—It is within the discretion of the trial court to admit evidence of experiments to illustrate transactions that have been testified to.[6] Instrumentalities claimed to have been used in the commission of the crime,[7] articles found in possession of accused,[8] and other articles and materials proper subjects of investigation,[9] are admissible when properly identified,[10] and defendant's [11] and deceased's clothes are admissible [12] if they illustrate or make pertible for any purpose. Vasser v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 635.

93. See 4 C. L. 39.

94. Complaint below. State v. Bringgold [Wash.] 82 P. 132. Record of justice of the peace is not admissible on identification of third person without showing why justice or his successor was not produced. Junior v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 467. A journal entry is of the court's own records which it judicially knows and will receive without identification. State v. Kesner [Kan.] 82 P. 720.

95. State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706.

96. Radiographs or X-ray photographs. State v. Matheson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 137. Photographs of decedent's wounds taken before their character was changed by surgical operation. State v. Roberts [Nev.] 82 P. 100.

97. Identification of complaint below held sufficient. State v. Bringgold [Wash.] 82 P. 132. Telegram held sufficiently identified with defendant. State v. Richards, 126 Iowa, 497, 102 N. W. 439. It is error to admit the signature and address of a letter claimed to have been written by defendant, the body of it having been destroyed, and then to allow the addressee to relate its contents, there being nothing but the signature to connect defendant with it. State v. Conroy, 126 Iowa, 472, 102 N. W. 417. Anonymous letter held sufficiently identified with defendant to justify its reception. Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61.

98. People v. Ballard [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1040. Statute does not include testimony taken at former trial. Smith v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1153. Prosecuting attorney held not entitled to object to deposition taken by stipulation and filed several days before trial. Seamster v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 434.

99. Where it will aid the jury in understanding the particular section. Weinberg v. Augusta, 116 Ill. App. 423.

1. People v. Kuney [Mich.] 100 N. W. 596.

2. See 4 C. L. 39.

3. An accomplice cannot corroborate himself. Wallace v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 612, 87 S. W. 1041.

4. Person responsible for pregnancy of deceased in prosecution for murder by abortion. Stevens v. People, 215 Ill. 593, 74 N. E. 786.

5. See 4 C. L. 40.

6. State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807. Result of chemical and microscopic examination for blood held not admissible for carelessness in preserving material examined. State v. McAnarney [Kan.] 79 P. 137.

7. State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807; Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601. Rifle used in homicide. Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W. 203.

8. Murder case. State v. Miller [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 202; State v. Laster [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 361; People v. Wood, 145 Cal. 659, 79 P. 367.

9. A bottle of "Tanto" may be so received on a prosecution for illegal liquor selling. State v. Olson [Minn.] 103 N. W. 727. Blood on the ground and deceased's wounds. Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 730, 88 S. W. 341. Property seized on premises where liquor was unlawfully sold is admissible in evidence in prosecution for such unlawful sale, though the warrant for its seizure was illegal. State v. Krinski [Vt.] 62 A. 37.

10. Identification of hammer held sufficient from physical facts. State v. Sherouk [Conn.] 61 A. 897. Blood stained garment held not sufficiently authenticated. State v. McAnarney [Kan.] 79 P. 137. Trunk belonging to and used by defendant and wife, containing his garments. People v. Antony [Cal.] 79 P. 858. Money taken from wife admitted by defendant to be his. Id.

11. State v. Sherouk [Conn.] 61 A. 897. Trousers claimed to have been worn by defendant while committing rape held sufficiently identified. Roszczyniala v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 113.

12. Unnecessary admission held harmless. Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W. 203.

nent some phase of the oral testimony.[13] The manner of obtaining such evidence is immaterial.[14] Persons may be exhibited on the issue of resemblance,[15] and the injured person's wounds may be exhibited where such course serves any useful purpose in the case,[16] and photographs of deceased are competent.[17]

Evidence at preliminary examination or at former trial[18] is admissible at a subsequent trial, where the witness is beyond reach of the court,[19] is deceased, is insane, or otherwise unable to testify, or his whereabouts unknown,[20] or there is an issue raised as to whether he did not testify differently at such trial,[21] provided the testimony, if written, has been preserved in the manner prescribed by law and is properly identified, and defendant's testimony on a former trial may be admitted where he refuses to testify on the subsequent trial.[22] The constitutional right of confrontation is satisfied by confrontation at the previous hearing.[23] Testimony taken at the trial of another case against the same defendant,[24] or at the trial of another party,[25] or in a civil case,[26] is not admissible merely because the same facts are involved. The testimony before the grand jury is admissible in a proper case.[27] One who took down the testimony of an absent witness at the examination, and can state from present recollection that his report thereof is correct, may read such report in evidence.[28] Where the justice took down the testimony of a witness on a preliminary examination, the writing, and not the oral testimony, of the justice, was the best evidence on the trial, the witness having left the state.[29]

Quantity required and probative effect.[30]—The proof of guilt must be beyond all reasonable doubt [31] as to every element of the offense,[32] including its degree, de-

13. Admission is error where unnecessary. Crenshaw v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1147.

14. Clothing of defendant. Roszczyniala v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 113. Pawn tickets for property stolen at burglary. State v. Royce [Wash.] 80 P. 268. Bottles of liquor admissible in prosecution for violation of liquor law, though seized without warrant. State v. Schmidt [Kan.] 80 P. 948.

15. A child born to prosecutrix in rape may be shown and its resemblance to defendant commented on. State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839.

16. Held not prejudicial, though unnecessary. Simpson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 499, 87 S. W. 826.

17. Photographs of body of victim competent evidence in murder case. State v. Powell [Del. O. & T.] 61 A. 966.

18. See 4 C. L. 40.

19. Showing of diligence held insufficient. People v. Ballard [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1040. What witness since absented from state testified at preliminary hearing subject to cross-examination is by statute admissible when charge is the same. Code Cr. Proc., § 8, sub. 3, People v. Gilhooley, 95 N. Y. S. 636.

20. Proof that a witness who testified before the committing magistrate on the preliminary examination could not be found in the county of his residence by the sheriff does not authorize the introduction of the testimony taken at such preliminary examination. No sufficient predicate laid. Bardin v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 833.

21. Prior testimony of a witness in conflict with his testimony on the trial can be used only as impeaching evidence and not as substantive evidence of the crime. People v. Miner [Mich.] 101 N. W. 536. Error to read testimony purporting to be given before grand jury where it is not shown that it actually was given, or that it was read to the witness. Nash v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 497.

22. The reporter may testify to his statements at the former trial, but defendant in such case is entitled to draw out on cross as much of his testimony as he desires. Miller v. People, 216 Ill. 309, 74 N. E. 743.

23. Contra. Smith v. State [Tex Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1153.

24. May be admitted by stipulation. State v. Williford [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 570. Testimony of prosecutrix on seduction trial is admissible against same defendant indicted for her murder to prove same issues. Main issues need not be same. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406.

25. Contempt. Hunter v. District Court of Polk County, 126 Iowa, 357, 102 N. W. 156.

26. Libel. State v. Woods [Kan.] 81 P. 184.

27. The minutes of the grand jury if otherwise objectionable are admissible to establish accused's immunity from prosecution on matters about which he has testified. Havenor v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 116; Murphy v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1087; People v. Steinhardt, 93 N. Y. S. 1026.

28. Petty. v State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 465.

29. Sanford v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 370.

30. See 4 C. L. 41.

31. Accused is presumed innocent until his guilt is proved to the satisfaction of the jury beyond a reasonable doubt. Scott v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 49.

32. State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866. Wife desertion. Goddard v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 443. An admission in argument and shaping of the defense on the theory that deceased was murdered and that fendant's identity,[33] the venue,[34] and that limitations have not run.[35] A reasonable doubt, however, that will prevent conviction must be actual and substantial,[36] and must be raised by the evidence and not by argument of counsel, and it is not required that each fact which may aid the jury in reaching a conclusion of guilt be clearly proved;[37] it is sufficient if on the whole evidence that the jury are able to pronounce that quiet is proved to a moral certainty, beyond a reasonable doubt, and the exclusion of all uncertainty is not necessary; but a probability of innocence is the equivalent of a reasonable doubt and requires an acquittal, and a conviction should not be permitted where all the testimony is consistent with innocence.[38]

Circumstantial evidence is usually sufficient to prove even the corpus delicti,[39] though where relied on the facts proved must be such as to exclude every reasonable hypothesis inconsistent with guilt.[40]

An extrajudicial confession must be corroborated by proof aliunde corpus delicti in order to support conviction;[41] but full proof is not required, and it may be proved by circumstantial evidence. Though a confession must be considered in entirety, the jury need not believe such portions thereof as seem unreasonable. Positive testimony is entitled to greater weight than negative.[42]

Proper proof of a prior conviction is by record of judgment, not by commitment.[43]

Though the testimony of an accomplice is viewed with suspicion,[44] it may be sufficient to convict, in the absence of a contrary statute,[45] though statutes requiring corroboration are usual.[46] accused had nothing to do with it does not take the place of proof of the corpus delicti. State v. Marx [Conn.] 60 A. 690. That burglary was in nighttime. Keeler v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 64. The facts that a crime has been committed and that defendant had an opportunity to commit it are not sufficient. Corpus delicti sufficiently proved by the finding of the body lying face downward in a pool of blood, with wounds on the head and a bloody hatchet lying near him. State v. Heusack [Mo.] 88 S. W. 21. On the trial of one charged as an accessory, the guilt of the person charged as principal must be established beyond a reasonable doubt. The record of the conviction of the principal is prima facie evidence of his guilt. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1.

33. Defendant's name held sufficiently proved. Magruder v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 587.

34. Venue held sufficiently shown. Burglary. Keeler v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 64. Homicide. Warner v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 742. Larceny. Cage v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 631 Larceny Range cow. Armstrong v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 319. Homicide near county boundry. State v. Hargraves [Mo.] 87 S. W. 491.

35. State v. Newton [Wash.] 81 P. 1002.

36. State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866.

37. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601. Not necessary to establish each link to "entire satisfaction" of jury. State v. Blydenburgh [Iowa] 104 N. W. 1015.

38. State v. Seymour [Idaho] 79 P. 825.

39. Dimmick v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 257; State v Westcott [Iowa] 104 N. W. 341.

40. Refusal of instruction held erroneous. Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61; State v. Heusack [Mo.] 88 S. W. 21. Reversal where circumstantial evidence leaves doubt of guilt. Park v. State [Ga.] 51 S E. 317.

41. State v. Westcott [Iowa] 104 N. W. 341; People v. Ward, 145 Cal. 736, 79 P. 448. Confession may be considered with other evidence to prove corpus. Misenheimer v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 494.

42. State v. Murray [N. C.] 51 S. E. 775. After charging rule as to positive and negative testimony, not error to instruct that "rule does not apply when two parties having equal facilities for seeing or hearing, if one swears that it did occur and the other that it did not." Civ. Code, § 5165. Nelms v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 588.

43. State v. Howard [Mont.] 77 P. 50.

44. Jahnke v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 154.

45. Conviction may be had in Ohio of a felony upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice. Straub v. Ohio, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 529. Discretionary with court in Wisconsin. Murphy v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1087. Where the testimony of an accomplice has been impeached by an admission of perjury on a former trial, accused cannot be convicted upon his testimony alone unless corroborated by some fact connecting accused with the crime, other than the fact of its commission and the circumstances. State v. Pearson, 37 Wash. 405, 79 P. 985.

46. State v. Rooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82; Hill v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 757; Wright v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W 593; Eddens v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 828; McDaniel v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 1044; State v. Pearson, 37 Wash. 405, 79 P. 985. An inmate of a disorderly house is not an accomplice of one charged with keeping it. Stone v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 808. Corroboration held not sufficient Burglary. Cook v State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 1176. Corroboration held sufficient. Murder. Chancellor

A conspiracy to commit a crime may be shown by circumstances without direct proof of an agreement, and intent or knowledge may, and generally must, be proved by circumstances. Expert testimony is subject to the same tests, and is to be weighed and judged like any other. The absence of a motive may be considered, but where the commission of the crime by defendant is clearly proved, the fact that his motive is not shown is immaterial.[47]

Defendant's good character must be considered,[48] and good character alone may give rise to a reasonable doubt,[49] though in a plain case of quiet, good character cannot avail.[50]

Alibi involves the impossibility of defendant's presence at the scene of the crime at the time it was committed,[51] but evidence thereof raising a reasonable doubt of guilt is sufficient to demand an acquittal.[52]

In Connecticut, conviction involving death must be supported by at least two witnesses.[53]

A local custom cannot operate to suspend a criminal statute nor to overthrow the rules of evidence by which the commission of an offense is proved.[54]

§ 10. Trial. A. Conduct of trial in general.[55]—The trial must be on a lawful term day.[56] The general course and conduct of the trial,[57] including the nature and extent of examination[58] and cross-examination[59] of witnesses, and the order of taking proof,[60] and the exclusion of the jury during proceedings in which they

v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 880. It is not necessary that an accomplice's testimony should be corroborated in every material particular. Harrell v. State, 121 Ga. 607, 49 S. E. 703. The corroboration which the law requires is that the circumstances shall, independently of the testimony of the accomplice, connect the accused with the perpetration of the offense charged. Id. In a case of a felony where the evidence relied on for a conviction is that of an accomplice and circumstances corroborating his testimony, it is not error to charge that the corroborating circumstances, independently of the accomplice's testimony, should be such as lead to the inference of the defendant's guilt, and that grave suspicions raised by the circumstances would not be a sufficient corroboration of the accomplice's testimony to authorize a conviction. Id. An accomplice may be corroborated by the testimony of another whom it is urged is also an accomplice, the credibility of the latter's testimony being for the jury. People v. Gilhooley, 95 N. Y. S. 636.

47. Commonwealth v. Danz, 211 Pa. 507, 60 A. 1070.

48. Phelan v. State [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 1040.

49. Commonwealth v. Dingman, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 615. Contrary instruction held fatal. Schutz v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 90.

50. Commonwealth v. Dingman, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 615. Less persuasive in rape. State v. Jones [Mont.] 80 P. 1095.

51. Evidence held not sufficient. Beck v. People, 115 Ill. App. 19.

52. Instruction so stating held proper. State v. Davs, 186 Mio. 533, 85 S. W. 354.

53. Two need not be to same facts. State v. Marx [Conn.] 60 A. 690.

54. Crockford v. State [Neb.] 102 N. W. 70.

55. See 4 C. L. 43.

56. A trial and conviction had on a day when the court is not legally in session is void. Walker v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 241.

57. Ruling on application for continuance. State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706. Limitation of time to argue held not abuse of discretion. State v. Patchen, 37 Wash. 24, 79 P. 479. Limitation held too arbitrary. State v. Rogoway [Or.] 81 P. 234. Setting case for trial. State v. Sexton, 37 Wash. 110, 79 P. 634; State v. Brown, 37 Wash. 106, 79 P. 638. Not error to refuse to stop trial and investigate reading of newspapers by jurors where no affidavits are presented in support of counsel's application. Johnson v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 133. Rule excluding witnesses. Greer v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 166; State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561. Refusal to allow defendant's counsel to take forged paper from court room is discretionary. Miller v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 821.

58. Expert on handwriting. Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61. Leading questions. Woodruff v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1114; State v. Miller [Kan.] 80 P. 51. The trial judge may question witnesses but it should be done in a spirit of fairness and to elicit the truth. Howard v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 773. Held prejudicial. State v. De Pasquale [Wash.] 81 P. 689. Refusal to remove shackles from defendant's witness while testifying is not prejudicial, he being a desperate character under sentence of death. State v. Rudolph, 187 Mo. 67, 85 S. W. 584.

59. State v. Sherouk [Conn.] 61 A. 817; Woodruff v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1114.

60. Knox v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 255; Commonwealth v. Johnson [Mass.] 7 N. E. 939; State v. Seligman [Iowa] 103 N. W. 357; Steward v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1079; State v. Waln [Idaho] 80 P. 221; Tetterton v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 89 S. W. 8; Trevinio v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. App.] 13 Tex. Ct Rep 716, 88 S. W. 356. The order are not interested,[61] is a matter very generally left to the sound discretion of the trial court. After a criminal case has been closed on both sides and the argument of counsel is being made, it is within the sound judicial discretion of the trial court to permit either the state or the defendant to introduce additional evidence in furtherance of justice;[62] and, unless an abuse of this judicial discretion is clearly made to appear, an appellate count will not disturb the ruling of the trial court either in granting or refusing such permission;[63] but after verdict and discharge of jury, it cannot be done.[64] Direct testimony should not be permitted to be produced in rebuttal unless there is some statement that it came to the knowledge of the party after the conclusion of the testimony.[65] A motion to permit and allow exceptions to all adverse rulings without announcement at the time is properly denied.[66] Proceeding with the trial in the absence of the official stenographer is not error where defendant is given opportunity to employ one, though he is unable to secure one.[67] Surrebuttal should be allowed, though the evidence would also have been admissible in chief.[68] When an answer to a question presents inadmissible evidence, the proper practice is by motion to have it stricken and have the jury directed not to consider it; the movant specifying his objections with the same particularity as if objecting to the questions.[69] The judge may question the witness on the stand in proper cases,[70] but this should not be done in such a manner as in which evidence is allowed to be introduced must rest to a considerable extent in the sound discretion of the presiding justice. Williams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 322. If the corpus delicti and the guilt of the defendant are both proved as the law requires, it will not furnish ground for a new trial that the court did not require the evidence to be introduced so as to divide it into two distinct parts, the first referring to the corpus delicti and the second to the defendant's connection with the crime. Id. Introduction of further evidence after motion for nonsuit. State v. Sexton, 37 Wash. 110, 79 P. 634. Reopening case and allowing reexamination of state's witness after his arrest for perjury. State v. Moon [Kan.] 80 P. 597. The court did not abuse its discretion in recalling a witness and asking him if he was armed on the occasion of the shooting and whether he remained to see the conclusion of the difficulty. Upton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 687, 88 S. W. 212. In homicide, where fatal wounds were caused by some blunt, smooth and round instruments, a curtain pole found in an adjoining room was held admissible after the accused had closed his evidence. Roberts v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 374. If evidence tends to contradict, qualify, limit or explain matters brought out in the testimony produced by the defendant, the state may properly introduce such evidence in rebuttal (Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850), even though a witness for the defendant may have admitted on cross-examination, or may not have denied, the existence of the facts sought to be proved by the evidence so offered in rebuttal (Id.). In homicide it is discretionary with the court to allow evidence otherwise competent but not proper rebuttal testimony to be given in rebuttal. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. Intention to extort money by prosecution must be put to prosecuting witness direct before laying a foundation to prove such, it being admissible only as impeachment. People v. Delbos [Cal.] 81 P. 131. Admission of documents tending to show connection of one defendant with conspiracy, before proof of conspiracy, held not an abuse of discretion. Lorenz v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 337.

61. Defendant cannot complain that a witness was punished for disobedience before the jury. Wright v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 593. Failure to require jury to withdraw during preliminary inquiry as to voluntary character of confessions. State v. Stibbens [Mo.] 87 S. W. 460. The exclusion of the jury during the taking of preliminary evidence is discretionary. Confessions. Hintz v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 110. Exclusion of jury during settlement of issues. Upton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 212.

62, 63. Robinson v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 465.

64. Judgment and sentence vacated and case remanded, where after verdict and after discharge of jury, court admitted in evidence a paper claimed to be in accused's handwriting, which his wife had testified she signed. Raymond v. U. S., 25 App. D. C. 555.

65. Flowers v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 814. In homicide cases the defense being self-defense, dying declarations of the deceased that he was not the aggressor constitute direct testimony. Id.

66. State v. Bailey [Mo.] 88 S. W. 734.

67. Nelson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 627, 88 S. W. 807.

68. Where dying declarations were admitted in rebuttal, held error to refuse to allow defendant to show a state of facts contrary to that testified to by the dying declarations. Flowers v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 814.

69. Dickens v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 909.

70. Grant v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 946, and see Examination of Witnesses, § 1, 5 C. L. 1371.

would tend to discredit the witness.[71] Where questions improper in form are asked by a juryman with the court's permission, failure of the court to interpose objections is not necessarily error.[72]

Conduct and remarks of judge.[73]—Remarks of the court intimating his opinion on the facts may be prejudicial,[74] but merely alluding to the importance of the case is not, provided the jury be properly instructed.[75] The court should not refer to defendant's privilege of testifying,[76] nor make remarks in his rulings that might tend to prejudice accused.[77] Trial judges should not permit private conversations with themselves by the prosecuting attorney or any one else upon an issue arising in the trial.[78]

Order and decorum [79] in the court room should be preserved, but unless breach thereof is shown to be harmful, it is not error.[80] Counsel should ordinarily move the court to act in such cases.[81]

Consolidation [82] in a proper case is provided for in some jurisdictions.[83]

Severance [84] is discretionary, unless a statute makes it of right, but must be asked before trial, and a motion therefor may be defeated by showing an agreement of the accomplice to turn state's evidence.[85] If there is not sufficient evidence to convict the accessory, it should be granted and the accessory tried first, in order that defendant may avail himself of the accessory's testimony.[86] A denial of the motion before change of venue is not res judicata.[87]

Inquisitions are provided in some states to try defendant's sanity.[88]

71. Where witness said he had been convicted of gaming once, it was held error for the judge to ask if he had not been convicted twice, and to then look in his docket and explain to the jury that witness had pleaded guilty once, and a second time had demanded an indictment. Grant v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 946.

72. State v. Crawford [Minn.] 104 N. W. 822.

73. See 4 C. L. 46.

74. O'Donnell v. People, 110 Ill. App. 250.

75. An introductory remark of the court as to the importance of the case because involving a matter of death or imprisonment held not to harm defendant, it appearing that in immediate connection therewith the judge impressed upon the jury the fact that they were as much under obligation to acquit an innocent man as to convict a guilty one. McDuffie v. State, 121 Ga. 580, 49 S. E. 708.

76. Miller v. People, 216 Ill. 209, 74 N. E. 743.

77. Remarks held not prejudicial. Date of burglary. Simon v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 1100. Sarcastic remarks to counsel. Vasser v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 635. Such remarks are not comment on facts. State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561. Refusal to receive plea of guilty of included offense, and entry of plea of not guilty, no statement being made thereof to the jury, is not prejudicial. Yzaguiere v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 14. It is prejudicial error for the trial court in denying a continuance to say in the presence of the jury that there has been much complaint about the failure to convict "these criminals" and that the court feared it was largely due to continuances. Fuller v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 749. Remarks of court during examination of a witness to the effect that a certain question was not in the case held not to express an opinion as to what had or had not been proved. Nelms v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 588. Prejudicial error was committed where the judge upon being asked to allow the accused to supplement his statement to the jury said: "Let him finish his statement. I never knew one of them to get through making his statement." Jenkins v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 386.

78. Such a conversation relating solely to a request for a temporary adjournment is not ground for reversal. Dickens v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 909.

79. See 4 C. L. 46, n. 1.

80. That while counsel for defendant was making his statement a woman in the court room burst out crying and sobbing loudly, but was immediately removed, is not ground for reversal, it not appearing who the woman was or that defendant was prejudiced. Clements v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 595.

81. Failure of the court to interpose of its own motion, in case of disorder by spectators at the trial, is not generally ground for reversal. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1.

82. See 4 C. L. 18.

83. Rev. St. p. 1024 [U. S. Const. St. 1901, p. 720], construed. Dolan v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 440; Olson v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 849.

84. See 4 C. L 43.

85. Oates v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 769.

86. Perez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 453, 87 S. W. 350.

87. Codefendant stipulated for severance. Wallace v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 612, 87 S. W. 1041.

88. Demand at earliest opportunity after learning facts is soon enough. Steward v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1079. A plea of insanity at time of trial or sentence must be

Disqualification of judges. Statutes providing grounds apply to criminal as well as civil cases.[89]

Appointment of counsel.[90]—The public prosecutor has a right to have associated with him an attorney to assist in the prosecution,[91] and the court may generally appoint assistants to the prosecuting attorney in special cases,[92] and special counsel may be employed by prosecutrix in bastardy cases.[93] In Pennsylvania the court has no authority to make an order on the county commissioners to pay a sum of money to defend a prisoner indicted for murder.[94] Successive allowances may be made for successive trials in New York, each being within the limitation.[95]

The witnesses[96] may all be sworn in a body at the beginning of the trial.[97] It is within the discretion of the trial court to refuse to allow all the witnesses to be sworn on voir dire before they are sworn as witnesses, as such course might seriously impede the trial. If the witness is not competent, it may be shown when he is called to testify.[98] In a proper case they may be excluded from the court room except while testifying.[99] When the witnesses have been placed under rule, it rests in the discretion of the court to allow one who did not retire from the court room to be examined;[1] especially is this true where the witness objected to was exempted from the rule by the court.[2] The state need not call all the eye witnesses,[3] nor produce all known evidence.[4] In some states names of witnesses may be endorsed on an information at the beginning of the trial when it satisfactorily appears to the court that the prosecuting officer could not have reasonably asked such permission earlier,[5] and witnesses whose names are not endorsed may be sworn in discretion.[6]

Defendant must be present[7] during the whole of a trial for felony,[8] but one who voluntarily absents himself during the progress of the trial can take no benefit submitted to a jury in Arkansas. Ince v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 818. Scope of inquiry. Commonwealth v. Woelfel [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1061.

89. Judge formerly counsel for accomplice. People v. Haas, 93 N. Y. S, 790.

90. See 4 C. L. 44.

91. McCue v. Commonwealth [Va.] 49 S. E. 623.

92. Manner of entering order. Appointment discretionary. Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61. Attorney for railroad held not disqualified. Id. That appointment was not made until after the jury was empaneled is immaterial where defendant does not show that his challenges would have been different had he known of the appointment before. State v. Cobley [Iowa] 103 N. W. 99. An objection to the appearance of private counsel to assist the county attorney in conducting a criminal prosecution, to be available, should be made at a suitable time and in a proper manner, and must be supported by at least some showing that the county attorney did not request or require any assistance, and the court had not appointed such counsel for that purpose. Blair v. State 101 N. W. 17. Not error for special counsel to open state's case. White v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 753.

93. Harley v. Ionia Circuit Judge [Mich.] 104 N. W. 21.

94. Commonwealth v. Dillen [Pa.] 60 A. 263.

95. People v. Montgomery, 101 App. Div. 338, 91 N. Y. S. 765.

96. See 4 C. L. 44.

97. State v. Rooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82.

98. Vickery v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 907.

99. Request not urged as of right held not reviewable. State v. Armstrong, 37 Wash. 51, 79 P. 490; Greer v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 166; State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561.

1, 2. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919.

3. Homicide. Court may properly hold that testimony of certain witnesses may be re-received for defense, the facts all being show Commonwealth v. Rhoads, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 512. Defendant's motion to call witness for state held properly refused. Yancy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 478, 87 S. W. 693. Where eye witnesses are absent, but case can be made by circumstantial evidence, a continuance is not necessary. Scott v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1060.

4. Refusal to direct prosecutor to produce alleged ex parte statements of witnesses is not error where the court suggested that a subpoena duces tecum be used. People v. Jackson [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 565.

5. State v. Rooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82; State v. Bailey [Mo.] 88 S. W. 733.

6. State v. Sexton, 37 Wash. 110, 79 P. 634; State v. Bundy [Kan.] 81 P. 459; State v. Henderson, 186 Mo. 473, 85 S. W. 576.

7. See 4 C. L. 45.

8. From impaneling of jury to charge, and during arraignment, receipt of verdict and sentence. Rev. Code Cr. Proc. §§ 244, 301, 350, 398, 437, 444. State v. Pearse [S. D.] 102 N. W. 222. Presence on application for continuance need not be shown. State v. Hall [Mo.] 87 S. W. 1181.

9. Darden v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 507; State v. McLain [N. D.] 102 N. W. 407. Presence may be waived during empaneling of jury. In re Shinski [Wis.] 104 N. W. 86.

therefrom,[9] and it being shown that defendant was present on a certain day, his continued presence on that day will be presumed in the absence of a showing in the record to the contrary.[10] Defendant on trial for murder, being a desperate character, may be closely and substantially guarded during the trial.[11] Defendant's personal presence is not necessary on application for a change of venue,[12] or when the names of persons constituting a special venire to try his case are drawn from the jury box and a venire issued therefor.[13] All communications between judge and jury must take place in open court in the presence of defendant.[14] The trial judge may recall the jury and deliver further legal and pertinent instructions if the prisoner is present at the time, or his absence is not brought about by any act of the court.[15]

The judge[16] must be present and in such a situation that he can see and hear all that transpires,[17] though momentary absence will not reverse where no prejudice is shown.[18]

(§ 10) B. Arguments and conduct of counsel.[19]—Counsel should not so conduct the government's case as to unfairly prejudice defendant.[20] The opening statement of counsel is not prejudicial, though he makes claims not substantiated by the testimony,[21] and the opening may properly be by special counsel employed to assist the commonwealth's attorney.[22] Beyond what is fixed of right,[23] the length of time for argument is discretionary. It is not error for the court to interrupt counsel for the purpose of correcting a misstatement.[24] Unwarranted or abusive speech and statements that may tend to influence the minds of the jurors outside and beyond the facts of the case should not be indulged,[25] but counsel has the right

10. O'Donnell v. People, 110 Ill. App. 250; State v. Pearse [S. D.] 102 N. W. 222; State v. Brock, 186 Mo. 457, 85 S. W. 595; Woodring v. Territory [Okl.] 81 P. 631.

11. State v. Rudolph, 187 Mo. 67, 85 S. W. 584.

12. State v. Blackman, 113 La. 768, 37 So. 719.

13. Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850.

14. Havenor v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 116. Procedure where jury disagree as to evidence of a witness. McKinney v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 638, 88 S. W. 1012.

15. Davis v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 376.

16. See 4 C. L. 45.

17. Carney v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 7; McLaughlin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 296, 87 S. W. 158.

18. Scott v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1060.

19. See 4 C. L. 47.

20. Should not ask prejudicial questions in a manner that assumes their truth. State v. Coleman, 186 Mo. 151, 84 S. W. 978; Newman v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1089. Kissing baby born to prosecutrix in rape held not prejudicial. State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839. Persistent questioning prejudicial, by insinuation, the witness denying. O'Donnell v. People, 110 Ill. App. 250. Allowing prosecutrix in seduction to state that she was a cripple. Neary v. People, 115 Ill. App. 157. Contemptuous expressions regarding defendant and his counsel. Harmon v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 765. Defendant discharging some of his witnesses on the strength of the county attorney's statement that he would not introduce any more evidence as to the intoxicating quality of liquors, it is error to allow the state to subsequently introduce evidence on this point. Hendrick v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 711.

21. Failure due to a holding that the evidence alluded to was incompetent. Wray v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 437.

22. White v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 753. Contra. State v. Price [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 922.

23. In Georgia counsel are entitled to 30 minutes for argument as a matter of right on trial for misdemeanor. Jones v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 312.

24. Not error for court to interrupt counsel when arguing that insanity might be inferred from atrocity and publicity of murder, and to tell the jury that such an inference would be unwarranted. Hill v. U. S., 22 App. D. C. 395.

25. Robbins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 690; Pool v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 616, 88 S. W. 350; State v. Lockhart [Mo.] 87 S. W. 457. Charging defendant with unfaithfulness to his mother, being untrue to his religion and having disgraced his profession and citizenship. O'Donnell v. People, 110 Ill. App. 250. Comment on knife held not outside record. People v. McRoberts [Cal. App.] 81 P. 734. For prosecuting attorney to state that he knows defendant and knows he is not insane is prejudicial. Fort v. State [Ark.] 85 S. W. 236. Comments on race question held unprejudicial. Hooker v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 846. Counsel should not state what defendant's wife's testimony would have been had the state been permitted to call her, nor otherwise comment on failure to call her. State v. Shouse [Mo.] 87 S. W. 480. Prosecutor should not state what inadmissible evidence properly excluded on to fully state his views as to what the evidence shows and as to the conclusions fairly to be drawn therefrom,[26] and discuss the credibility of the witnesses,[27] criticize or answer the argument of defendant's counsel,[28] and embellishment by figures of speech [29] or anecdote,[30] and persuasive arguments drawn from independent sources of learning, may be used,[31] and physical objects in evidence may be exhibited and commented upon,[32] the matter being one which in every case must be left to the discretion of the trial judge.[33] Detached portions of the stenographer's transcript should not be read.[34] A misstatement of the evidence by counsel is not fatal where no prejudice appears.[35] Incorrect and misleading statements of law uncorrected objection would have shown. Tally v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 699, 88 S. W. 339. Evidence held to warrant argument objected to. Jenkins v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 598. Reference to defendant as an "incarnate devil" sustained where evidence showed deliberate and cold-blooded killing. State v. Meche [La.] 38 So. 152. Reference to prisoner as an outlaw, and argument to show he was such, held not prejudicial to prisoner, though improper. State v. Horner [N. C.] 52 S. E. 136. Remark of counsel, referring to a letter of defendant in seduction case, signed your "beast" friend, that it properly characterized defendant, held not improper, being a mere opinion as to his offense. Weaver v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 341. Reference to flight of defendant not in evidence is error. Jones v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 312. In larceny for cattle, held prejudicial error for the prosecuting attorney to argue to the jury that defendant should have brought a civil action against the prosecuting witness to have recovered the cattle in controversy, where he made no claim of ownership. Clampitt v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 666. Remarks of counsel as to matters, evidence of which had been excluded, are improper. Sanford v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 370.

26. People v. Wolf, 95 N. Y. S. 264; State v. Armstrong, 37 Wash. 51, 79 P. 490; State v. Smokalem, 37 Wash. 91, 79 P. 603; State v. Harness [Idaho] 80 P. 1129; Vann v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1064; Vasser v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 635; Maxey v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1009; Harris v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 12. May urge that evidence is conclusive of guilt. People v. McRoberts [Cal.] 81 P. 734. That counsel's inference from the evidence was erroneous is not fatal. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601. Statement of prosecuting attorney to the jury of his belief that the defendant had committed similar crimes before held not improper, there being evidence in the case showing the probability of such fact. Straub v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 529. Counsel may explain statements objected to. State v. Rooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82. Incompetent evidence going in without objection may be commented upon. Moore v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 1117; State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706. Counsel may state that he never tried a case where the evidence was so strong. Roberts v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 301, 87 S. W. 147. Counsel may state that for cruelty and barbarity the crime was without parallel. Byrd v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 974. May include such legitimate inferences as may be drawn from the facts proven. Jenkins v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 386. Where state admitted statements by absent witnesses, it was proper for the solicitor to tell the jury that the state did not thereby admit that the statements were true, but only that the witnesses, if present, would so testify. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329.

27. Inmates and habitues of house of ill fame. People v. Davis [Cal. App.] 81 P. 716. That defendants' witnesses were convicts may be emphasized. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846. Allusion to defendant on trial for liquor selling as a "blind tiger man" and stating that such a man would swear to anything. Reese v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 841. Argument based on contradiction as to immaterial matter held error. Hinson v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 947.

28. "Playing to the galleries." Tetterton v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 89 S. W. 8. May state in answer that defendant did not dare put his character in issue. Moore v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 701, 88 S. W. 228. An interrogation in the argument of prosecuting counsel "Why don't you bring witnesses from the grand old county of Butler to impeach him," referring to a witness from such county whom counsel for accused stated in argument was unworthy of belief, was not improper. Involved no statement of fact. Bardin v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 833.

29. No prejudicial facts extrinsic to the record may be introduced in so doing. Taylor v. State, 121 Ga. 348, 49 S. E. 303.

30. Relation of joke by solicitor in illustration of argument, and not as a fact, nor as evidence of any fact held proper. Peel v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 251.

31. Counsel may state that a score of murders have been committed in the county. Ball v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 226.

32. General resemblance to defendant of child born of prosecutrix may be commented on. State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839. Prosecutor may refer to presence of defendant's mother and other relatives. People v. Davis [Cal. App.] 81 P. 716. In homicide, where fatal wounds were caused by some blunt, smooth and round instrument, and a curtain pole found in an adjoining room was admitted in evidence, the solicitor general had the right in his argument to the jury, to contend that this pole was the weapon used by the murderer. Roberts v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 374.

33. State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839.

34. Davis v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 1018.

35. Yancy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 478, 87 S. W. 693. Reference in the argument to testimony not introduced held not reversible error. State v. Williams [Nev.] 82 P. 353.

by proper instructions are prejudicial;[36] but argument otherwise bad may be excused by counsel's having provoked it.[37]

Counsel should not comment on defendant's failure to testify,[38] or to call his wife as a witness,[39] and such comment will require reversal, notwithstanding instructions to disregard it;[40] unless perhaps where evoked by defendant's counsel;[41] but legitimate argument on the failure of defendant who has testified, to explain certain facts, is proper.

Argument by defendant's counsel.[42]—The court may properly interrupt counsel in a statement to the jury of the effect on the evidence of the withdrawal of a count.[43] Refusal to allow defendant's counsel to read from a book during argument is not error where there is no avowal of what is intended to be read.[44] When during his argument counsel for accused started to read to the jury from a supreme court report and on objection being made, it was not error for the court while allowing the extract to be read in the presence of the jury to require that it be read to the court.[45] If an attorney assisting the public prosecutor keeps within proper bounds, he is not open to criticism before the jury.[46]

Improper argument may be cured[47] in most instances by withdrawal of the remark or by a proper charge or both.

Objection[48] should be made at the time.

(§ 10) C. Questions of law and fact.[49]—Questions of law are, theoretically at least, for the court,[50] and questions of fact for the jury.[51]

36. Statement of counsel that an affidavit of the testimony of an absent witness which had been admitted to avoid a continuance was not evidence but merely defendant's declaration is reversible error, the court having failed to charge the contrary. Martin v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 89 S. W. 226. Remarks of counsel as to duty of jury, outside the law and the evidence of the case, held no ground for new trial, in view of action taken by trial court. Ellis v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 147.

37. Where the remarks of the state attorney in addressing the jury appear to have been prompted by the previous conduct and remarks of counsel for the defendant, and the remarks objected to do not appear to have been prejudicial to the defendant, the ruling of the trial court in refusing to stop the state attorney is not erroneous. Reyes v. State [Fla.] 88 So. 257.

38. See 4 C. L. 48. State v. Swisher, 186 Mo. 1, 84 S. W. 911; Williams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1144; Tignor v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 96; Newman v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1089; Martinez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1066; Barnard v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 760. Record held not to show comment. People v. Warner [Cal.] 82 P. 196; Vasser v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 635; State v. Crawford [Minn.] 104 N. W. 295; State v. Smokalem, 37 Wash. 91, 79 P. 603. Conviction for arson in the third degree for burning a house for insurance, reversed because prosecuting attorney commented, after objection, as to what defendant might have, but did not, testify to. State v. Guinn, 174 Mo. 680, 74 S. W. 614.

39. State v. Shouse [Mo.] 87 S. W. 480; State v. Taylor [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 247.

40. Error held prejudicial notwithstanding prompt action by court, and there being three indictments on trial. Commonwealth v. Foley, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 414.

41. That the prosecuting attorney in his argument referred to the failure of accused to take the stand, in reply to an argument of defendant's counsel, held not reversible error where the court instructed that such fact could not be considered against defendant. State v. Williams [Nev.] 82 P. 353.

42. See 4 C. L. 49.

43. Bryan v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 495.

44. Warner v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 742.

45. Godwin v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 598.

46. McCue v. Commonwealth [Va.] 49 S. E. 623.

47. See post, § 15.

48. See post, § 14.

49. See 4 C. L. 49.

50. Whether an offered witness understands the nature and obligation of an oath is a question for the court. Freasier v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 360. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 110, § 42, providing that on a trial to the court either party may submit written proposals to be held as law in the case does not apply to criminal cases tried to the court. Chicago, W. & V. Coal Co. v. People, 214 Ill. 421, 73 N. E. 770.

51. Intent is for the jury. Whether one accused of stealing turpentine, took it under the honest belief that it was within his employer's land line. Dickens v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 14. The intention to defraud in embezzlement is a question for the jury. State v. Blackley, 138 N. C. 620, 50 S. E. 310.

Whether the acts of fornication proven were frequent enough to make the crime habitual is a question for the jury. State v. Sauls, 70 S. C. 393, 50 S. E. 17. Held no error in submitting to jury the question whether defendant's assault on his wife was with a deadly weapon, the weapon being a

The jury should apply the law as given by the court, whether it be for or against the prisoner,[52] and while the jury are the judges of the law to the extent that they have the right to acquit, however plain the case on the law, an instruction that the jury are the sole judges of the law is properly refused.[53] Whether a confession was voluntary is primarily for the court,[54] and ultimately for the jury.[55] The question of the admissibility of evidence on a preliminary inquiry as to the voluntary character of confessions is for the court.[56] Whether or not evidence of experiments is admissible is, under the circumstances of each case, a preliminary question for the court.[57]

(§ 10) D. Taking case from jury.[58]—A peremptory direction to find a verdict of guilty is not allowable, and in some states directions for acquittal are not allowed;[59] but generally the court on proper request [60] should advise acquittal if there is no evidence [61] on which to base a conviction. When the state's evidence, if uncontradicted, would warrant a conviction, a motion to dismiss or direct an acquittal is properly denied,[62] and instructions amounting to an affirmative charge for the accused are properly refused where the evidence supports a verdict of guilty. Dismissal of a count does not operate to withdraw from the jury the evidence offered under it where admissible under the retained count to show intent.[63] A verdict may be directed on a special plea where there is no evidence to support it.[64] That the crime charged, if proved, was not committed in the state where accused was being prosecuted, is a matter of defense, to be shown by defendant, and cannot be raised by demurrer to the state's evidence.[65]

(§ 10) E. Instructions. Necessity and duty of charging. Requests.[66]—Instructions clearly informing the jury of the law on all the material issues in the buggy trace 2 1-2 feet long and defendant being strong, while his wife was weak and sick. State v. Archbell [N. C.] 51 S. E. 801. Whether offense was committed within the period of limitations is a question of fact. State v. Newton [Wash.] 81 P. 1002.

Credibility of witnesses is a question for the jury. Jackson v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 599. The credibility of witnesses is a question for the jury subject to the revision of the court upon application for a new trial. Whipple v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 590. The weight and credibility to be accorded the testimony of accomplices is for the jury. State v. Faulkner, 185 Mo. 673, 84 S. W. 967. Whether a witness has been successfully impeached is a question for the jury. Powell v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 369. It is the province of the jury to determine whether or not a witness is mistaken in his evidence where his testimony conflicts with that of another witness. It is not permissible to ask one witness if another was not mistaken in his testimony. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. Whether defendants gave a reasonable and credible explanation of how they came into the possession of recently stolen property is a question for the jury. Jackson v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 599. If the proof of an alibi depends on the credibility of witnesses and weight of evidence, the jury are the sole judges as to whether such evidence raises a reasonable doubt. Caldwell v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 188.

52. State v. Taylor [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 247.

53. People v. Sanders [Mich.] 102 N. W. 959.

54. State v. Stibbens [Mo.] 87 S. W. 460.

55. State v. Stibbens [Mo.] 87 S. W. 460. Question is mixed one of law and fact. State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561. Need not be submitted when there is no conflict. State v. Inman [Kan.] 79 P. 162. The defendant is not prejudiced by submitting the question of voluntary character of confessions to the jury where the evidence conflicts. Hintz v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 110; State v. Westcott [Iowa] 104 N. W. 341.

56. Hintz v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 110.

57. Spires v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 181.

58. See 4 C. L. 49.

59. Discretionary where only evidence is that of an uncorroborated accomplice. Murphy v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1087.

60. That the request used the word "instruct" instead of "advise" is immaterial. People v. Ward, 145 Cal. 736, 79 P. 448.

61. Held proper, in view of evidence, to refuse to direct verdict for one of several defendants on trial for conspiracy to defraud the United States by procuring sale of articles to it at excessive prices. Lorenz v. United States, 24 App. D. C. 337.

62. Several good counts and evidence to support one. State v. Terry [N. J. Law] 61 A. 148. That the testimony of the owner of stolen property is indefinite does not require a direction where other testimony is clear. Green v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 332.

63. Bryan v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 495.

64. Murphy v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1087.

65. State v. Blackley, 138 N. C. 620, 50 S. W. 310.

66. See 4 C. L. 50.

case must be given,[67] whether requested or not.[68] Requests proper to any peculiar feature of the case should be given,[69] and there is a duty to instruct as to the effect of a recommendation of mercy, though failure is not reversible in the absence of a request.[70] In misdemeanor cases it is only necessary to define the offense and state the punishment, unless further instructions are requested.[71] An instruction calling attention to accused's failure to explain suspicious circumstances is fatal,[72] and the authorities conflict as to the propriety of instructing, even on request, that no inference is to be drawn from accused's failure to testify.[73] A defendant is entitled to a charge that the jury cannot convict under an insufficient count.[74] The court need not select a single fact from those testified to and charge that such fact must be established by proof such as to exclude every reasonable hypothesis except defendant's guilt.[75] When the jury report inability to agree, it is error to refuse to charge that certain instructions given at defendant's request with the statement that they were abstract were material to the case.[76] In the absence of a request, an omission to instruct on the subject of weighing the testimony in cases of conflict is not ground for new trial,[77] nor is failure to instruct on impeachment of witnesses,[78] nor to charge upon the effect of evidence of good character.[79] Technical words should be defined.[80]

An instruction should not be given unless there is evidence on which to predicate it,[81] or the matter is in issue,[82] nor should mere abstract principles of law be

67. Failure held error. French v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1070. Rule falsus in uno held called for. State v. Swisher, 186 Mo. 1, 84 S. W. 911. Where there are two accomplices, a charge that one cannot corroborate the other is called for. Eddens v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 828.

68. It is the duty of the trial judge to instruct the jury as to the rules of law governing the disposition of the cause, whether he is requested to do so or not. Young v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 867.

69. Refusal to instruct as to admissibility of confession in evidence held ground for a new trial. Griner v. State, 121 Ga. 614, 49 S. E. 700.

70. Mason v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 647.

71. Clement v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 1016; Porter v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 106, 86 S. W. 1018.

72. Tignor v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 96.

73. Not error. State v. Currie [N. D.] 102 N. W. 875. Not error to read statute to jury. State v. Wisnewski [N. D.] 102 N. W. 883.

74. Shelton v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 377.

75. State v. Adams, 138 N. C. 688, 50 S. E. 765.

76. Burton v. U. S., 196 U. S. 283, 49 Law. Ed. 482.

77. Campbell v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 644.

78. Steed v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 644.

79. Berry v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 345.

80. "Intoxicating liquor." Moth v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 521, 87 S. W. 822. Definition of "beating" held not prejudicial. State v. Manderville, 37 Wash. 365, 79 P. 977. "Pressing necessity" in charge on self-defense need not be defined in the absence of a request. Holmes v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 321. Not necessary to define "premeditation and deliberation" unless requested. State v. Armstrong, 37 Wash. 51, 79 P. 490. Not error to omit definition of "heat of passion" in absence of request. State v. Buffington [Kan.] 81 P. 465. "Feloniously" need not be defined. Metcalf v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 534. "Self-defense" and "bringing on the difficulty" need not be defined. State v. Bailey [Mo.] 88 S. W. 733.

81. People v. Madina, 146 Cal. 142, 79 P. 842; Yzaguirre v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 14; State v. Rudolph, 187 Mo. 67, 85 S. W. 584; Thurman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 147, 86 S. W. 1014; Bird v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 295, 87 S. W. 146; Stone v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 807. Where there is evidence from eye witnesses, no charge on circumstantial evidence is required. Aladin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 327; Yancy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 478, 87 S. W. 693. Instruction on conspiracy in murder case held improper. Humphrey v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 431. Charge on confession alone is not called for where there is abundant corroborating testimony. Ellington v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 153. Charge on confession is not required when there is none in the case. Fox v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 103, 87 S. W. 157. Reference to flight of defendant. Jones v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 312. An appellate court will not reverse a judgment of conviction for a violation of this rule, if it can say affirmatively, from a consideration of the entire record, that the defendant was not and could not have been injured by the error in giving such instruction. Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850. Not error to refuse an instruction correct in principle but inapplicable to facts in evidence. Connelly v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 754. No error in refusing to charge that character of accused is presumed to be good unless shown to be otherwise, when general character of accused was not attacked or put in issue. Mixon v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 580. That a witness is jointly indicted with the defendant does not render necessary instructions on the law with ref-given.[83] Defendant's theory of the case supported by evidence should be given,[84] but the submission of defensive theories finding no support in the evidence is prejudicial.

Generally it is error to fail to charge all the necessary elements of the offense,[85] and all offenses included in the indictment,[86] and supported by the evidence.[87] Included offenses should not be presented where the evidence so excludes them that if the principal crime was not committed defendant is not guilty.[88] erence to the corroboration of the testimony of accomplices, where there is no evidence to show that such witness was an accomplice. Davis v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 376.

82. The whole statutory definition of an offense may be read, though part of it is not in issue. Miera v. Territory [N. M.] 81 P. 586; People v. Woods [Cal.] 81 P. 652. Phase of self-defense held not in issue because of theory adopted by defense. State v. Mount [N. J.] 61 A. 259. Character of defendant need not be charged where the defense is insanity. People v. Griffith, 146 Cal. 339, 80 P. 68. Held not error under facts to fail to define the difference between larceny, false pretenses, confidence game, etc. State v. Copeman, 186 Mo. 108, 84 S. W. 942. Question of force, etc., need not be submitted where only count charging rape under age of consent is submitted. Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 466, 87 S. W. 355. Issue of alibi held not raised by testimony. State v. White [Mo.] 87 S. W. 1188. There is no call to charge on first-degree murder where the indictment only charges second degree. State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706. The giving of an instruction not based on any theory of the case or evidence introduced is reversible error. People v. Roberts [Cal. App.] 82 P. 624. Where right of deceased and accused to be where they were at time of trouble was not in issue, an instruction as to right of public to use streets was properly refused. State v. Thrailkill [S. C.] 50 S. E. 551.

83. Necessity of outcry in rape occurring a quarter of a mile from another house. Misenheimer v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 494. A defendant is entitled to a concrete application of the law to the particular facts of a case, if he presents a timely written request to charge, but he is not entitled to an elaboration of the abstract law upon a single phase of the case to such an extent as will give it undue prominence. Harnell v. State, 121 Ga. 607, 49 S. E. 703.

84. Greer v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 166; Richardson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 282; Driver v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1056; Bollen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 148, 86 S. W. 1025; French v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1070; Messer v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 722; Simpson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 499, 87 S. W. 826; Roberts v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 692, 88 S. W. 221. Charge on accomplice testimony required. Oates v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 769. Rule falsus in uno falsus in omnibus should be given when requested and applicable. State v. Waln [Idaho] 80 P. 221. Defense of character. Phelan v. State [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 1040. Where defendant shows himself to be the consort of prostitutes, an instruction on the effect of good character which assumes that his is fair is properly refused. People v. Davis [Cal. App.] 81 P. 716. Refusal to charge on circumstantial evidence and subsequent formation of intent to appropriate in larceny. Veasly v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 274. Charge on drunkenness required. White v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 296. Charges on manslaughter and self-defense held necessary under the evidence in a murder case. Stacy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 327. Honest mistake in selling liquor believed to be unintoxicating. Moth v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 521, 87 S. W. 822. Charge on circumstantial evidence not required. Lewallen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 554, 87 S. W. 1159. Charge on confessions held required. Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 694, 88 S. W. 223. The theory of voluntary manslaughter being presented by one view of the evidence, it is proper to instruct the jury upon the law bearing upon that grade of homicide. Jenkins v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 386.

85. Ignoring question whether defendant forged the note or knew it was forged, or caused it to be forged, or uttered and published it knowing it to be forged. Commonwealth v. Hall, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 104. Reversible error to authorize conviction of murder without the necessary element of death. Beaver v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 151, 86 S. W. 1020. The necessity for a charge in a prosecution for perjury that a conviction cannot be sustained on the testimony of a single witness is not obviated by the fact that more than one witness testified to the perjury. State v. Rutledge, 57 Wash. 523, 79 P. 1123.

86. State v. Thompson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 377; Allison v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 409. State v. Franklin, 69 Kan. 798, 77 P. 588.

Under an information charging an offense consisting of different degrees, it is the duty of the court, if the evidence warrant, to instruct upon the law of an attempt to commit the crime charged. Charge on manslaughter need not be given in prosecution for statutory murder by abortion. Johnson v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 133. In Louisiana it is error to refuse to charge the jury in terms that the indictment being for murder they may convict of manslaughter. State v. Hicks, 113 La. 779, 37 So. 753.

87. State v. McAnarney [Kan.] 79 P. 137; State v. Williams, 186 Mo. 128, 84 S. W. 924. Notwithstanding plea of guilty. Jackson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 710, 88 S. W. 239.

88. Warner v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 742; State v. Clough [Kan.] 79 P. 117; State v. Henderson, 186 Mo. 473, 85 S W. 576; Brown v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 89, 87 S. W. 159; Ricks v. State

Where testimony is admissible only on a particular issue, but is persuasive as to other matters, it is error to fail to limit it.[89]

Matters once covered by the charge need not be repeated,[90] and where the [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 466, 87 S. W. 345; State v. Niehaus [Mo.] 87 S. W. 473. Where the record is such that the defendant is either guilty as charged or not guilty, the court may properly so charge. State v. McPhail [Wash.] 81 P. 683; State v. Sanders [N. D.] 103 N. W. 419. Where accused was either guilty of murder or not guilty because of insanity, a charge on the law of manslaughter need not be given. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. The law of involuntary manslaughter not being involved in the case, the court properly refused to charge on the subject. Anderson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 51. Failure to instruct on involuntary manslaughter not error where evidence did not authorize charge on that subject. Nelms v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 588.

89. Robbins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 690; Dusek v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Cr. Rep. 882, 89 S W. 271. Impeaching testimony. Whitt v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 340; Newman v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1089; Weaver v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 551; Franklin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 641, 88 S. W. 357. Not eror to fail to limit impeaching testimony. Brittain v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 278. Not error to fail to limit evidence persuasive only to question on which admitted. Warner v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 742. Charge on impeaching testimony is not required where there is no danger that it may have any other effect. Oates v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 769. Brown v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 89, 87 S. W. 159. Effect of statements made in defendant's presence. Phelan v. State [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 1040. Where two persons were jointly indicted as principals for the offense of assault with intent to murder, and were separately tried, and one was convicted, and on trial of the second evidence of conviction of the first was introduced, the court should have charged, on request, that the conviction of one created no presumption of guilt as to the other. Mixon v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 580. Where an indictment charged a killing by hitting or striking with a hatchet or a blunt instrument to the grand jury unknown, and the evidence showed that the means was a hatchet and was known to the grand jury, an instruction that defendant could not be convicted if the grand jury knew that the killing was done with a hatchet was properly refused, since it was applicable only to the last count, and was not limited to such count. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329.

90. Commonwealth v. Danz, 211 Pa. 507, 60 A. 1070; Kyle v. People, 215 Ill. 250, 74 N. E. 146; Donovan v. People, 215 Ill. 520, 74 N. E. 772; Roszczyniala v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 113; State v. Rooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82; People v. Jailles, 146 Cal. 301, 79 P. 965; McCue v. Commonwealth [Va.] 9 S. E. 623; Pike v. State, 121 Ga. 604, 49 S. E. 680; People v. Roberts [Cal. App.] 82 P. 624; Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406; Napper v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 592; Robinson v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 465; Snelling v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 917; Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850; McDuffie v. State, 121 Ga. 580, 49 S. E. 708; Patterson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 489; Jordan v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 155; State v. Stanley [Iowa] 104 N. W. 284; State v. Dean [S. C.] 51 S. E. 524; State v. Armstrong, 37 Wash. 51, 79 P. 490; Sheehy v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 356; Miera v. Territory [N. M.] 81 P. 586; Holland v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 468; People v. Conrad, 102 App. Div. 566, 92 N. Y. S. 606; Wright v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 593; State v. Atchley, 186 Mo. 174, 84 S. W. 984; Sanders v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1147; Jones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 722, 88 S. W. 217; State v. Gray [Or.] 79 P. 53; Goss v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 1035; Williams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1142; State v. Day [Mo.] 87 S. W. 465. Reasonable doubt. State v. Dunn [Wis.] 102 N. W. 935; People v. Clark, 145 Cal. 727, 79 P. 434; People v. McRoberts [Cal. App.] 81 P. 734; People v. Waysman [Cal App.] 81 P. 1087; State v. Coleman, 186 Mo. 151, 84 S. W. 978. Charge that each fact in chain of circumstances must be proved beyond reasonable doubt refused because already covered. State v. Blydenburgh [Iowa] 104 N. W. 1015. The court having given a proper charge on the subject of reasonable doubt, it is not error to refuse a requested charge that "to justify a jury in finding a verdict of unlawful homicide, in any of its degrees, against the defendant, each individual juror must be convinced from the evidence, for himself, that the defendant is so guilty." Snelling v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 917. Where the general charge required specific intent as one of the essentials of the offense, a special charge on the necessity thereof need not be given. Grant v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 881, 89 S. W. 274. It was not eror to refuse to charge as requested by counsel for accused on the subject of the sufficiency of circumstantial evidence to warrant a conviction, it appearing that the statute bearing on this subject was given in haec verba. Seats v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 65. Instructions held to fully cover requests to charge that "proof of the corpus delicti may be, but is not necessarily sufficient corroboration of a confession of guilt," and that "the law does not fix the amount of corroboration—the jury are the judges." Griner v. State, 121 Ga. 614, 49 S. E. 700. Refusal to give instruction on self-defense not error where court had of its own motion properly submitted the question. Connelly v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 754. The trial judge having instructed the jury in reference to the law applicable to the defense of insanity, and the amount of mental capacity necessary to commit the crime charged, held no error in failing to repeat the charge upon the subject of mental capacity, in immediate connection with his instruction that if the jury should find that the accused took the life of the deceased as charged and was at the time of such mental unsoundness as to be incapable of committing a crime, they should acquit him. Roberts v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 374. The judge was not bound to read Pen. Code 1895, § 76, to the jury, where the gen-proper matters in such a request are properly covered by the general charge,[91] or are given after being corrected,[92] or the general charge is full and correct,[93] there is no error.

Requests must usually be in writing,[94] and should be tendered in time for opposing counsel to meet them.[95] Ordinarily, an incorrect request is sufficient to require a correct charge on a subject within the issues not already covered,[96] but an incorrect request need not be given as requested. A charge should not be refused because it ignores a count which is insufficient to support a conviction.[97] It is proper to refuse instructions which do not tend to enlighten the jury and hence are unnecessary.[98] The court may properly modify instructions requested before giving them,[99] but need not give a special request which requires qualification, limitation or explanation,[1] and where instructions are asked in the aggregate, or propositions are presented as one request, the whole may be refused if there be anything objectionable in any one of them.

A charge correct in itself cannot be attacked because it fails to present some other or further proposition, on which a proper request was not presented,[2] and generally, instructions more fully developing issues already presented in sufficient general terms, if desired, must be requested.[3] eral charge presented the defense of justifiable homicide. Taylor v. State, 121 Ga. 348, 49 S. E. 303.

91. Everett v. People [Ill.] 75 N. E. 188; Keeler v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 64; Murphy v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1087; State v. Buffington [Kan.] 81 P. 465; Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 824. Refusal to give a charge in the form presented is not exceptionable. Commonwealth v. Johnson [Mass.] 74 N. E. 939. Where the court charged the jury on the subject of reasonable doubt, a request to charge that a particular fact sought to be shown by the defense could create a reasonable doubt in the mind of the jury is properly rejected. Williams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 322.

92. Rearrangement and separation into substantive points. State v. Buffington [Kan.] 81 P. 465.

93. Where the instructions given are correct and full, defendant is not harmed by the refusal of instructions asked. Tuberville v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 333.

94. Seale v. State, 121 Ga. 741, 49 S. E. 740.

95. Instructions requested by the state during defendant's closing argument which were not submitted to defendant's counsel may be refused. Boykin v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 725. The procuring of an instruction from the court during the argument for defendant, whose counsel had no notice thereof until it was produced for the first time during the closing argument for the state, is error, though on objection the state's attorney offered to permit defendant's counsel then to answer it. Montgomery v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 835.

96. Hendrick v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 711.

97. Shelton v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 377.

98. People v. Hill [Cal. App.] 82 P. 398.

99. Pratt v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 651. A modification of a requested instruction which is merely explanatory and does not materially change the request is not ground for error. State v. Dean [S. C.] 51 S. E. 524. It is not error to give a requested charge subject to an instruction already given. State v. Gadsden, 70 S. C. 430, 50 S. E. 16.

1. Where a request is imperfect, the court may refuse it and need not revise it. State v. Duperier [La.] 39 So. 455. A request to charge two sections of the Penal Code is properly refused when the request refers to the numbers of the sections only, and the two sections are not applicable, standing alone, to the case. Grant v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 946. A request to give an instruction which is a copy of a headnote in another case where a certain instruction was held erroneous as applied to the facts of that case, is properly refused. Mixon v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 580. A request not being adjusted to the facts of the case should not be given. Jenkins v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 386. Requested instruction not adjusted to the facts of the case properly refused. Jenkins v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 598.

2. Holmes v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 321; Roszczyniala v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 113; State v. Coleman, 186 Mo. 151, 84 S. W. 978. It is not error to omit to instruct the jury on a given point of law, where counsel fails to request such an instruction. Wray v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 437. Court need not contradict prosecutor's statement that defendant confessed unless requested. State v. Valentina [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 177. Effect of recommendation to mercy. Mason v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 647. Included offense need not be presented unless requested. People v. Modina, 146 Cal. 142, 79 P. 842. After proper instruction on province of jury, they need not be told they are the sole judges of the facts unless requested. State v. McPhail [Wash.] 81 P. 683.

3. State v. Rennick [Iowa] 103 N. W. 159; State v. Clough [Kan.] 79 P. 117; State v. Price, 186 Mo. 140, 84 S. W. 920; Vasser v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 635. If a charge is not plain, it should be called to the court's attention. Commonwealth v. Middleby [Mass.] 73 N. E. 208. Failure to charge the converse of a proposition already given is not error, no request therefor having been made.

A failure to mark propositions of law, either given or refused, is equivalent to a refusal.[4]

Submission of charge.[5]—Oral instructions are prohibited by statute or constitution in many states,[6] and in others the court on request is required to put his charge in writing.[7] Written instructions are properly sent out with the jury on request.[8] Failure of the judge to sign the charge is fatal in Texas.[9] That the judge in submitting an instruction calls upon the attorney who presented it to pronounce certain words, the judge calling the words after him as he charged the jury, is not equivalent to the attorney charging the jury.[10] The judge may, of his own motion and over the objection of either party, recall the jury and withdraw instructions improperly given, or give additional instructions which through oversight were omitted from the original charge.[11] Accused must be present.[12]

Form of instructions in general.[13]—Argumentative instructions should not be given,[14] and no matter should be given undue prominence,[15] as by repetition or otherwise.[16] Each instruction should embrace a complete proposition of law.[17]

State v. Byrd [S. C.] 51 S. E. 542. A party desiring more specific instructions should submit appropriate written requests therefor. McDuffie v. State, 121 Ga. 580, 49 S. E. 708. If fuller instructions are desired, written requests should be made therefor. Davis v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 501. If a party desires a more elaborate presentation of the case than was made in the instructions given, he should prefer an appropriate request. Taylor v. State, 121 Ga. 348, 49 S. E. 303.

4. Chicago, W. & V. Coal Co. v. People, 114 Ill. App. 75.

5. See 4 C. L. 54.

6. Charge on purpose of impeaching evidence need not be in writing. Metcalfe v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 534. Omission of dollar sign in stating amount of fine is immaterial. Clement v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 1016; Porter v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 106, 86 S. W. 1018. An oral statement cautioning the jury against being swayed by passion or sympathy made preliminary to giving the written instructions is not a violation of the rule requiring instructions to be in writing. State v. Dewey [N. C.] 51 S. E. 937. Mere observations of the court as to the province of the court and jury do not violate the rule requiring instructions to be in writing. To tell the jury that they are the sole triers of the facts and that it is their duty to reconcile conflicting testimony, but that he would aid them as to any points of law. Id.

7. If taken down by stenographer, it is sufficient. Burris v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 723.

8. Green v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 362. If no request, not error to omit. State v. Bundy [Kan.] 81 P. 459.

9. Jones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1075.

10. Seats v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 65.

11. Patterson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 489.

12. See ante, § 10A.

13. See 4 C. L. 54.

14. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. Jury may be instructed that counsel's statements are not evidence. Miera v. Territory [N. M.] 81 P. 586. Requested argumentative charges properly refused. Peel v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 251; Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406. Remarks on intent and its proof held not argumentative, misleading, and suggestive. People v. McRoberts [Cal. App.] 81 P. 734. A charge that under the laws of this country the defendant has a right to carry arms and if the evidence fails to show that he was carrying on the day of the crime for an offensive purpose, he did no wrong in carrying it, is argumentative. Carwile v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 220. Charge as to how to weigh verbal admissions held argumentative. Id. The court charges that the law finds as full and complete vindication in acquittal of a defendant not proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt as it does in a conviction of a man so proven guilty is argumentative. Id. The court charges the jury that their duty is as fully discharged when they request a man whose guilt is not proven beyond a reasonable doubt as it is when they convict a man whose guilt is so proven is argumentative. Id. In burglary an instruction giving illustrations as to what constitutes a breaking held not argumentative. Scott v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 49. A charge that the jury must try the case by the evidence and not by the jokes of counsel, and that the law is as much vindicated by turning loose the doubtfully guilty as by convicting the guilty, held properly refused. Brown v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 268.

15. Undue prominence held not given to defendant's act in inviting prosecutrix to ride with him. Donovan v. People, 215 Ill. 520, 74 N. E. 772. Remark of judge that his attention had been called to a certain matter which he had overlooked, preceding his charge on such matter—flight of accused—held not to have unduly emphasized the matter. Nelms v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 588; Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406.

16. Singling out testimony of one witness. Schutz v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 90; State v. Jones [Mont.] 80 P. 1095. That the judge in submitting an instruction calls upon the attorney who requested it to pronounce certain words, the judge calling the words after him as he charged the jury, does not give undue emphasis to the contentions of such attorney. Seats v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 65.

Portions of the evidence should not be singled out and instructed upon. Braham v.

Instructions should be complete in themselves so far as they go and not adopt others by mere reference.[18] A charge which pretermits reference to material matters is properly refused.[19] Ambiguous,[20] confusing,[21] and misleading instructions should not be given.[22] A request addressed to the jurors individually is properly refused.[23] It is not necessary for the court to apply the law given in the charge to the facts of the case when the application is plainly apparent.[24] It is not error to shape the general charge upon the evidence alone, but at some stage of the charge the court should appropriately instruct the jury with reference to the prisoner's statement.[25] The charge is to be construed as a whole,[26] and deficiencies in one part may be cured by others,[27] but an instruction fundamentally wrong is not cured by another correct one in conflict therewith,[28] and where the instructions are irreconcilable on a material issue, they are erroneous regardless of which is right.[29] An instruction that purports to define the crime and omits necessary elements is not cured by another correct one.[30] An instruction correct in itself is not rendered erroneous by a fail-

State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. A charge that if the state has failed to prove a motive reasonably calculated to prompt accused to commit the crime, this is a circumstance in defendant's favor, singles out and gives undue prominence to one phase of the case. Carwile v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 220. A cautionary instruction against insanity being used as a means to evade the law held not to give undue prominence to one side of the case. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. "Did he have an opportunity to kill him? Look to all these things" [the circumstances] held not error. Anderson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 46.

17. Blair v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 653.

18. State v. Taylor [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 247.

19. A charge in homicide on self-defense omitting reference to the duty to retreat. Bardin v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 833.

20. Requested elliptical charge properly refused. Peel v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 251.

21. State v. Davis [W. Va.] 51 S. E. 230. An instruction the tendency of which is to confuse the jury and which requires them to find as true many minute and immaterial matters specifically in order to reach a certain verdict is properly refused. Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850.

22. Homicide. State v. Coleman, 186 Mo. 151, 84 S. W. 978. Where on a prosecution for selling intoxicating liquor to a minor the defense was that the wine was unfermented and not intoxicating held a charge that the courts will take judicial notice that fermented wines are intoxicating held so misleading as to require the grant of a new trial. Hall v. State [Ga.] 50 S. W. 59. There being nothing in the evidence of the statement of the accused which would authorize a finding that the act charged was brought about by his criminal negligence, a charge to the effect that criminal negligence would supply the place of intent is misleading. Wolfe v. State, 121 Ga. 587, 49 S. E. 688. Instruction considered in connection with the evidence held not misleading as not based on the charge laid in the indictment. Jordan v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 155. Abstract and misleading charge properly refused. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406. A misleading instruction is ground for a new trial. Wolfe v. State, 121 Ga. 587, 49 S. E. 688.

23. State v. Armstrong, 37 Wash. 51, 79 P. 490.

24. Taylor v. State, 121 Ga. 348, 49 S. E. 303.

25. Roberts v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 374.

26. Junod v. State [Neb.] 102 N. W. 462; Roszczyniala v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 113; State v. McCoy [Kan.] 79 P. 156; State v. Manderville, 37 Wash. 365, 79 P. 977; Miera v. Territory [N. M.] 81 P. 586; Napper v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 592. Self-defense. Kipley v. People, 215 Ill. 358, 74 N. E. 379; State v. Gray [Or.] 79 P. 53. If instructions as a whole present the law correctly, the fact that excerpts standing alone would be subject to criticism is not ground for reversal. State v. Exum, 138 N. C. 599, 50 S. E. 283. Charge as to burden of proof though somewhat involved, harmless in view of the entire charge. Skrine v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 315. Instructions as a whole held to properly limit effect of incidental evidence of another crime. Watson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 935, 89 S. W. 270. An instruction stating a generally correct proposition in general terms but which is erroneous in the case on trial may be cured by other correct instructions so specific in their terms that the jury could not be misled by the general instruction. State v. Lackey [Kan.] 82 P. 527.

27. State v. Sheets [Iowa] 102 N. W. 415; State v. Bjeckstrom [S. D.] 104 N. W. 481; Higbee v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 748; People v. Murphy, 146 Cal. 502, 80 P. 709; People v. Davis [Cal. App.] 81 P. 716; People v. Waysman [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1087.

28. State v. Price [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 922.

29. Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61. Erroneous instruction on presumption of intent flowing from act held not cured by instruction on necessity of proving intent. State v. Carmean, 126 Iowa, 291, 102 N. W. 97.

30. Higbee v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 748. Robbery. State v. Graves, 185 Mo. 713, 84 S. W. 904. Omission of uncontroverted point is immaterial. Prosecutor's ownership of property in robbery. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846. Absence of statement that prosecutrix in rape must not be the wife of defendant is cured by another charge stating the correct rule where there is no claim of marriage. People v. Jailles, 146 Cal. 301, 79 P. 965.

Contra: Where the court attempts to set out all the material elements of a crime in ure to charge some other appropriate instruction.[31] Excerpts from previous decisions may be read when applicable,[32] but their refusal is not error.[33] Bad grammar or spelling in written instructions is immaterial.[34] Instructions as to the form of verdict should give the opportunity to convict or acquit on any count.[35]

Invading province of jury, or charging on facts.[36]—Instructions must not invade the province of the jury,[37] or assume the existence of facts not admitted or undisputed,[38] though admitted or conceded facts may be assumed.[39] In many states one instruction but omits one and covers it in another instruction, no error is committed. Blair v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 653.

31. Nelms v. State [Ga.] 51 S E. 588. A portion of the charge that is substantially correct, wherein a complete proposition is stated is not erroneous because it fails to embrace an instruction which would have been appropriate with that proposition. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1.

32. People v. Breen, 181 N. Y. 493, 74 N. E. 483.

33. Philosophical discussion of expert evidence. Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61.

34. Ussleton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 21.

35. State v. Price [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 922.

36. See 4 C. L. 55.

37. Lynch v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1015. Where but one witness has been attacked by impeaching testimony it is not improper to specifically refer to that witness in charging on the effect of impeaching testimony. Stevens v. People, 215 Ill. 593, 74 N. E. 786. Must not charge on credibility of witnesses. State v. Wisnewski [N. D.] 102 N. W. 883. Weight of evidence. State v. Dunn [Wis.] 102 N. W. 935. Charge on credibility of witnesses held not objectionable. People v. Waysman [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1087. A charge on the absence of motive for murder is properly refused. Ince v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 818. If a charge, by failing to instruct on certain points, in effect withdraws from the jury an essential issue of the case, it is erroneous. Failure to instruct on right to defend self and domicile, error in homicide case. Young v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 867. A charge which invades the province of the jury with reference to the facts to be determined and the credibility of witnesses is error which is a ground for a new trial. Singleton v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 156. On a prosecution for homicide a charge that if defendant's intended victim was in a certain place and defendant could not see him, then defendant did not shoot at his alleged intended victim held properly refused as an invasion of the province of the jury. Gater v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 692. In a prosecution for homicide held not error to refuse to charge "that it is a matter of common knowledge that a man who is so drunk that he can scarcely walk cannot become perfectly sober in two hours, or in two hours and a half, without artificial aid of some description. Id. Held proper to refuse to charge that the photograph introduced in evidence in this case is not the picture of defendant where there was evidence from which the jury might have inferred the contrary. Russell v. State [Ala.] 38 So 291. In a prosecution for burglary held proper to refuse a charge "that if the jury believe the evidence, they must find the defendant not guilty." Id. In homicide a charge on self-defense held not to invade the province of the jury by stating what constituted the bringing on of the difficulty, and, taken in connection with other charges given did not constitute reversible error. Marlow v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 653. In a prosecution for statutory rape, where there was evidence tending to prove an alibi, the court properly refused to instruct that if the respondent had established his absence on the date named by the prosecuting witness on cross-examination as the date of the offense he was entitled to an acquittal. State v. Willett [Vt.] 62 A. 48. The alibi was not a special issue to be separately disposed of upon a consideration of the evidence bearing solely upon the dates. The question for the jury was whether, upon a consideration of the whole evidence, they were satisfied of respondent's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. Id.

38. State v. Sheets [Iowa] 102 N. W. 415. Setting of fire in arson it being denied that the fire was set. Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61. Instruction assuming that conviction must rest on circumstantial evidence is properly refused where there is also direct evidence. People v. Clark, 145 Cal. 727, 79 P. 434. In a prosecution for wife murder, an instruction permitting the jury to convict the defendant if they believed that he administered the poison himself or procured it to be done by another was error. Boyd v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 834. It is error to assume a fact prejudicial to the accused, concerning which there was no evidence. Boykin v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 725. Instructions which there is no evidence to sustain are properly refused. State v. Teachey, 138 N. C. 587, 50 S. E. 232. Where in a trial for bigamy the jury were not obliged under the evidence to believe that the first marriage took place in Florida, the court properly refused to instruct them, at the request of the accused, that before they would be authorized to convict them, it must appear that such marriage was in accordance with the law of that state. Murphy v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 48. A charge assuming that deceased picked up a brick or stick to defend himself from an assault by defendant is erroneous, where, at the time deceased picked up the weapon, defendant was being securely held by two men, and was unable to make an attack. Cook v. State [Mich.] 38 So. 110. In homicide, a charge that if deceased cursed defendant, and the latter, while under the heat of passion, aroused by the insult, secured a pistol, and killed deceased, he would be guilty of manslaughter, is not objectionable as being on the weight of the evidence and as assuming that defendant was in the heat of passion aroused by having been cursed by deceased. Moore v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 504. Where there is the court is forbidden to charge on the weight of the evidence,[40] or comment on [41] or intimate its opinion on the facts,[42] but in the Federal courts and under the common law, comments on the evidence are usual.[43] In his charge the judge may define what are the elements going to make up an offense, and instruct the jury that if they find from the evidence that the facts constituting these elements are established, they may find the defendant guilty.[44] But the trial judge may not go from general to the particular, and so charge in reference to the testimony as to intimate whether the facts constituting the elements of the crime have or have not been established.[45] Facts to which a certain rule of law is to be applied may be stated hypothetically where proved beyond a reasonable doubt.[46]

a plea of "not guilty," an instruction that "there is no denial of the unlawful killing, but defendant sets up that he did not do it, that some other person did," is erroneous, as assuming that accused did not deny the unlawful killing. Vickery v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 907.

39. Ragazine v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 832; Bates v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 251. Court may state that "the state claims there is evidence to prove," etc. Holmes v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 321. That local option law was in effect may be assumed. Cantwell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 18; Kehoe v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 881, 89 S. W. 279.

40. Tally v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 699, 88 S. W. 339; Garlas v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 690, 88 S. W. 345. Charge stating purpose of admitting certain evidence is bad. Stull v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 1059. Instruction on recent possession of stolen property held bad. Neblett v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 17; Carson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 147, 86 S. W. 1011; Gilford v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 498, 87 S. W. 698. Charge on poisoning held not on weight of evidence. Ellington v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 153. Instruction on circumstantial evidence held bad. Beaver v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 151, 86 S. W. 1020. Pen. Code, art. 717. Where the judge specifically mentioned certain, but not all the facts relied upon as justification for homicide, it was error. Craiger v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 736, 88 S. W. 208. An abstract charge that in determining the weight of the testimony of a witness, his intelligence, circumstances surrounding him, interest, likes, prejudices, and manner on the stand, may be considered, is not on the weight of evidence, where the jury are charged that they are the sole judges of the weight and credit to be given witnesses. Jordan v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 155. Charges that "if the jury believe the evidence" they must find defendant not guilty, or could not find him guilty of murder in the second degree, are on the weight of the evidence. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329. A charge that a nonexpert's opinion on insanity was to have no weight unless based on facts testified to and unless the jury drew some opinion from such facts, held not erroneous in connection with rest of charge. Shaffer v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 417.

Singling out witnesses: Proper to refuse requested charge that jury were at liberty to accept testimony of accused in preference to that of any other witness. State v. Thrailkill [S. C.] 50 S. E. 551.

A ruling on evidence is not a "charge" within this rule. Const. 1895, art. 5, § 26, providing that judges shall not charge in respect to matters of fact is not violated where a judge refers to evidence already adduced in ruling on the admission or exclusion of evidence. State v. Thrailkill [S. C.] 50 S. E. 551.

41. Charge that there is no evidence to justify verdict of included offense is not bad. State v. McPhail [Wash.] 81 P. 683. In homicide held no error in refusing to charge that the defendant had introduced evidence of his insanity at the time the alleged offense was committed, and that, if the jury believed from a preponderance of the evidence that at the time of the alleged offense the accused was insane they should acquit him. Roberts v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 374.

42. Charge that evidence of motive is of a weak and inconclusive character is an expression of opinion. Carwile v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 220. Instruction that warrant in bastardy proceedings and the entries thereon were in substantial compliance with the statute in such cases provided, held not an opinion. McCalman v. State, 121 Ga. 491, 49 S. E. 608. Charge, "the state contends," etc., held to amount to an intimation or expression as to what had been proved, and error. Nelson v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 20. A charge amounting to an expression or intimation as to what has or has not been proved is ground for a new trial. Id.

43. Largely discretionary in Pennsylvania (Commonwealth v. Wertheimer, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 192), and New Jersey (State v. Valentina [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 177). Larceny, defense of purchase of person believed to be owner. Commonwealth v. Cramer, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 141.

44. Blumenthal v. State, 121 Ga. 477, 49 S. E. 597.

45. Civ. Code 1895, § 4334. Blumenthal v. State, 121 Ga. 477, 49 S. E. 597. Instruction: "In this case the articles pawned were pants, and the parties pawning them were negro girls. You can consider whether negro girls wear pants," held erroneous. Id.

46. Kyle v. People, 215 Ill. 250, 74 N. E. 146. In assault with intent to murder, a charge "Did defendant commit an assault upon [prosecuting witness] with a knife?" and answering it "There is evidence that he did," being the statement to the jury of an undisputed fact, and used as an hypothesis for a discussion of the case is not erroneous.

Submitting questions of law is error.[47]—Charge that if the evidence be equally balanced in the minds of the jury, they should lean to the side of mercy and acquit, is properly refused, as suggesting a duty which the jury do not have.[48]

Form and propriety of particular charges.[49]—Holdings as to the form and sufficiency of instructions as to burden and degree of proof,[50] presumption of innocence,[51] presumption of intent of natural and necessary consequences of act,[52] presumption arising from flight,[53] definitions and descriptions of the crime,[54] degree of crime, included offenses,[55] intent, and malice,[56] responsibility of principals and Brown v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 268. Where the evidence tends to prove facts from which presumptions of guilt arise under established rules of evidence the court may bring such rules to the attention of the jury by instructions. State v. Taylor [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 247. Such instructions if properly framed, neither assume the existence of the facts from which the presumptions arise nor interfere with the province of jury as to the weight of evidence. Id.

47. A charge that, if it would only have been manslaughter in the first degree had the prosecuting witness died, the jury cannot find the defendant guilty of an assault with intent to murder, is erroneous in that it refers a question of law to the jury. Brown v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 268.

48. Russell v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 291.

49. See 4 C. L. 56.

50. State v. Dunn [Wis.] 102 N. W. 935; People v. Murphy, 146 Cal. 502, 80 P. 709; People v. Waysman [Cal. App.] 80 P. 1087; Tetterton v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 89 S. W. 8; Cox v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 1017. Objection to instruction that it was not necessary to prove guilt by the testimony of "the" witnesses, on the ground that it was an implication that eyewitnesses saw defendant commit the homicide, was hypercritical. State v. Heusack [Mo.] 88 S. W. 21.

51. Everett v. People [Ill.] 75 N. E. 188; People v. Jailles, 146 Cal. 301, 79 P. 965. Benefit of doubt as to motive and provocation of homicide held sufficiently charged. Ray v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1151. Proper to refuse to charge that "it is a well-established maxim of law that it is better to let one hundred guilty persons go unpunished than to punish one innocent person. Mixon v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 580. A requested instruction that it is "better that 99 (that is an infinite number of) guilty persons should escape punishment than that one innocent person should be punished; and therefore it is far better that the jury should err in acquittal than err in convicting," held properly refused. McCue v. Commonwealth [Va.] 49 S. E. 623. If the judge charges the jury in substance that the law presumes defendant to be innocent, and the burden is upon the state to show his guilt, and that upon all of the testimony they must be fully satisfied of his guilt, he has done all that the law requires, the manner in which this shall be done being left to his sound discretion, to be exercised in view of the facts and circumstances of the particular case. State v. Adams, 138 N. C. 688, 50 S. E. 765.

52. People v. McRoberts [Cal. App.] 81 P. 734. Presumption affected by plea and evidence of intoxication. State v. O'Malley [N. D.] 103 N. W. 421.

53. State v. Matheson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 137; State v. Richards, 126 Iowa, 497, 102 N. W. 439.

54. An instruction defining manslaughter as applied to the facts of the case is sufficient without giving an abstract definition. State v. Exum, 138 N. C. 599, 50 S. E. 283. Where the indictment charged the murder of Chap Ford and the court instructed to convict if the evidence convinced the jury beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant was guilty, if deceased was sometimes called Chap Ford and sometimes called Chappel White, the charge is not erroneous because the indictment does not give the name of deceased as being Chap Ford alias Chappel White; there being evidence upon which to predicate the charge. Thomas v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 516. In defining a word the court need not use all the synonyms thereof. In a prosecution for the illegal sale of intoxicants a charge defining the word "administer" to mean "to give, supply or dispense," is not erroneous for failing to add the word "furnish." State v. Wilson [Kan.] 80 P. 565. Where in seduction the judge charged "that if defendant by promises of marriage or persuasion," etc., and his attention being called thereto he stated that if he said "or" instead of "and" it was a slip of the tongue and that the jury must find, under the charge in the indictment, that the female yielded because of promises of marriage and persuasion, held error was cured. Pike v. State, 121 Ga. 604, 49 S. E. 680.

55. Where no testimony was produced upon a trial at which the defendant was convicted of murder in the second degree from which the jury could with any reason have rendered a verdict for manslaughter, no reversible error is committed by giving an instruction confining the jury to a consideration of defendant's guilt with respect to the crime of murder. Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850. In a case where the evidence relied on by the state tends to show that the accused committed murder, whereas the statement of the accused and the evidence introduced in his behalf sustain his defense of justifiable homicide, it is error for the court to give in its charge the law relating to voluntary manslaughter, and a verdict finding the accused guilty of that offense cannot be upheld. McBeth v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 931.

56. People v. McRoberts [Cal. App.] 81 P. 734; People v. Waysman [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1087. It is improper to instruct "the law is that a man shall be taken to intend that which he does or which is the necessary consequence of his acts." Such intention is presumed but not imputed absolutely. State v. Taylor [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 247. Charge that accessories,[57] definitions of reasonable doubt,[58] where any are necessary,[59] the issues

the state need not prove that the defendant knew that the goods were stolen held not misleading, the context and succeeding sentence showing that the court meant only that positive and direct evidence of such knowledge need not be adduced, but it might be inferred from circumstances. Blumenthal v. State, 121 Ga. 477, 49 S. E. 597. Omission of "feloniously" is not fatal. State v. Miller [Mo.] 89 S. W. 377.

57. Bollen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 148, 86 S. W. 1025; Armstead v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 824. A charge that there is no evidence of a conspiracy between defendant and his co-indictee is properly refused as calculated to confuse, there being evidence waranting the conclusion that they were confederates in the commission of the crime. Russell v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 291. Where there was evidence of a conspiracy to commit the crime, an instruction for acquittal unless accused fired one or more of the fatal shots, is properly refused. Bardin v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 833. Where there is evidence of a conspiracy, an instruction that it must be proved that defendant "and no one else" committed the crime is erroneous. People v. Roberts [Cal. App.] 82 P. 624.

58. State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866; Keeler v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 64; Junod v. State [Neb.] 102 N. W. 462; People v. Murphy, 146 Cal. 502, 80 P. 709; Darden v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 507; Tetterton v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 89 S. W. 8; State v. Johnson [N. D.] 103 N. W. 565. Charge, "If you have a simple doubt, you are not to acquit, but it must become a reasonable doubt; that is, conformable to reason, which would satisfy a reasonable man, under all the facts and circumstances as testified to in this case," held misleading, confusing, and erroneous. Hampton v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 421. Requested charge that a reasonable doubt is "such a doubt as a juror would hesitate to act on in the most important business affairs of his own," held properly refused. Nelms v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 588. A requested charge that "a reasonable doubt is a doubt for which a reason can be given" is properly refused. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329. Charge that if the jury have a fixed conviction of the truth of the charge, and are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt, they must convict, that the doubt which will justify an acquittal must be actual and substantial and not a mere possible doubt; and that if the jury believe beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant is guilty they must convict, although they also believe it possible that he is not guilty—are correct. Brown v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 268. Defendant is not entitled to a charge that he should be acquitted "if a single mind of a single juror is not abidingly convinced" of his guilt. Russell v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 291. In homicide, a charge to convict if, after considering all the evidence, the jury "conscientiously" believe, beyond a reasonable doubt, that defendant is guilty, does not in its use of the word "conscientiously," prejudicially qualify the doctrine of reasonable doubt. Moore v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 504. A reasonable doubt entitling an accused to an acquittal is not a mere fanciful, vague, or speculative doubt, but a reasonable, substantial doubt, remaining in the minds of the jury after a careful consideration of all the evidence, and such a doubt as reasonable, fair-minded, and conscientious men would entertain under all the circumstances of the case. State v. Bell [Del.] 62 A 147. It is not objectionable as requiring the jury to be able to state the reason or as requiring a reason based on the evidence to tell them that the doubt must be based on a reason arising from the evidence or want of evidence. Turley v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 934. A charge requiring an acquittal upon a failure of any one of the jurors to be convinced of the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, is erroneous. Yeats v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 760. In a prosecution for homicide, an instruction that a reasonable doubt arising out of any part of the evidence will justify an acquittal, is misleading. Doubt must be predicated on all the evidence. Bardin v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 833. In a prosecution for homicide, it is error for the court to refuse to charge that there should be an acquittal if from the evidence there was a probability of innocence. Id. A charge that "before the jury can convict they must be satisfied to a moral certainty, not only that the proof is consistent with defendant's guilt but that it is wholly inconsistent with every other rational conclusion; and unless they are so convinced of defendant's guilt that they would be willing to act upon that decision in matters of the highest concern in their own affairs, they must find defendant not guilty," properly refused. Toliver v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 801. Charge erroneous for making "probability of innocence" equivalent to "reasonable doubt." Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406. It is error to say "a probability * * * of innocence exists only when testimony showing" it is stronger than that showing guilt. Id. To "satisfaction beyond reasonable doubt" is good. "Reasonable" need not precede satisfaction. State v. Miller [Mo.] 89 S. W. 377. A reasonable doubt is not a mere fanciful, vague, or speculative doubt, but a reasonable, substantial doubt remaining after a consideration of all the evidence, and such a doubt as reasonable, fair-minded, and conscientious men would entertain under all the facts and circumstances of the case. State v. Powell [Del.] 61 A. 966; State v. Brown [Del.] 61 A. 1077. A requested instruction that "by reasonable doubt is meant such doubt as would cause a man of average prudence to hesitate about a matter of his own of like importance to himself as the case on trial is to accused," held properly refused. McCue v. Commonwealth [Va.] 49 S. E. 623.

59. The term "reasonable doubt" need not be defined; it is self-explanatory and definitions usually tend only to confuse the jury. Nelms v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 588. Refusal to define "reasonable doubt" held not error where the definition, if given, would not have aided the jury. State v. Costa [Vt.] 62 A. 38.

of insanity,[60] intoxication,[61] self-defense,[62] alibi,[63] the purpose and effect of particular evidence,[64] rules for considering evidence in general,[65] and of particular kinds of evidence such as circumstantial evidence,[66] expert and opinion evidence,[67] evidence of character of defendant,[68] testimony of defendant,[69] admissions, confes-

60. Steward v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1079; People v. Griffith, 146 Cal. 339, 80 P. 68; Mathley v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 988. An instruction that the fact that a party is able to and did intelligently perform the duties required of him by his vocation or the business in which he was employed, is not incompatible with an unsound condition of the mind is erroneous. Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850. "Insanity is a mental disease. It does not mean eccentricity or peculiar action of the brain; it means a departure caused by disease of the brain. Mere temporary mania does not constitute insanity." Approved. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919.

61. Commonwealth v. McDonald [Mass.] 73 N. E. 852; People v. Griffith, 146 Cal. 339, 80 P. 68. In a prosecution for homicide it is not error to refuse to charge that if the jury have a reasonable doubt as to whether, at the time of the killing, the defendant was so drunk that he could not form a willful, premeditated, deliberate and malicious design to take life, threats previously made by the defendant cannot be considered. Gater v. State [Ala] 37 So. 692.

62. It is not objectionable as requiring of defendant some proof of self-defense to charge that when competent evidence of self-defense "is introduced" the state must disprove it beyond a reasonable doubt. Turley v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 934.

63. Roszczyniala v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 113. Alibi, as a defense, involves the impossibility of the prisoner's presence at the scene of the offense at the time of its commission. Williams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 322.

64. Corroborative evidence in rape. Woodruff v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1114.

65. Requested charge that "if the jury cannot reconcile the evidence, and there is one theory of guilt, and the other is the innocence of defendant, and both are reasonable, then the jury cannot convict" held properly refused. Sanford v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 370. Instruction that positive testimony is entitled to greater weight than negative held authorized by evidence, and held not misleading. State v. Murray [N. C.] 51 S. E. 775. Charge that "there is no contradiction" where one "heard" and another "did not hear part" of conversation is misleading for omission of word "necessary" before "contradiction." Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406.

66. Dimmick v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 257; Everett v. People [Ill.] 75 N. E. 188; State v. Thompson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 377; People v. Olsen [Cal. App.] 81 P. 676; Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61; Stockbridge v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 753. After charging that in order to convict upon circumstantial evidence the proof must exclude every reasonable hypothesis except that of guilt, there was no error in refusing to give a request that this rule should never be relaxed in a case involving life or imprisonment for life. Williams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 322. A charge that "defendant cannot be convicted unless the evidence is inconsistent with any reasonable theory of innocence" is proper. Sanford v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 370. Charge that no matter how strong the circumstances, if they can be reconciled with the theory that another than defendant committed the crime, he should be acquitted is properly refused. Russell v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 291. The law of circumstantial evidence is not, without qualification, applicable in a case where the state proves a positive confession of guilt. Griner v. State, 121 Ga. 614, 49 S. E. 700. Held not error to fail "to charge the jury on the law of circumstantial evidence," or that, "to warrant a conviction on circumstantial evidence, the proven facts must not only be consistent with the hypothesis of guilt, but must exclude every other reasonable hypothesis save that of the guilt of the accused. Id. An instruction that where the evidence is entirely circumstantial yet is not only consistent with the guilt of the accused but inconsistent with any other rational conclusion, it is the duty of the jury to convict though such evidence may not be as satisfactory to their minds as direct evidence, is erroneous. People v. Taggart [Cal. App.] 82 P. 396.

67. There was no error in refusing to charge that the jury were to consider the evidence of expert witnesses as they did that which fell from the lips of other witnesses and that the law permitted them to believe it in preference to other evidence, if there was conflict between the two; the request to charge leaving out of view any consideration of the credibility of the witnesses themselves, or their opportunity for knowing the facts to which they testified, or the nature of such facts. Williams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 322.

68. People v. Jackson [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 565; Schutz v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 90; State v. Dunn [Wis.] 102 N. W. 935; Ellington v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 153; Phelan v. State [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 1040. Presumption of character. People v. Lee [Cal. App.] 81 P. 969. Instruction on general character of accused held substantially correct and not such as to mislead the jury into believing that proof of good character would generate a mere doubt of guilt which would not authorize acquittal. Nelms v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 588.

69. A charge that defendant is a competent witness on his own behalf, but the jury may weigh his testimony in the light of the interest he has in the result together with all the evidence in the case, is proper. Brown v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 268. Charge that accused was competent "but" [instead of "and"] the fact that he was testifying for himself might be considered is good. State v. Miller [Mo.] 89 S. W. 377. Instruction that in considering the testimony of the defendant, the jury may consider his manner sions, and declarations,[70] and as to the credibility of witnesses,[71] as to the conduct of the jury's deliberations,[72] and unanimity,[73] as to their duty in arriving at a decision,[74] are collected in the notes.

(§ 10) F. Custody of jury, conduct and deliberations.[75]—While the court may in its discretion permit the jury to separate during the trial, if it decides to keep them together, the statute relating thereto must be complied with, and it is error to put them in charge of one not a proper officer.[76] Those sworn as jurors in a capital case should not be allowed to associate with members of the panel not yet sworn.[77] The jury should not be allowed to separate while deliberating on their verdict, under circumstances such that any harm could possibly come to defendant from the separation,[78] but in the absence of a showing of prejudice, temporary or slight separation will not reverse.[79] Allowing the jury to exercise on the street in charge of the sheriff is not fatal,[80] and casually taking the jury over the ground where the murder occurred is not reversible where no prejudice appears.[81] Communication with jurors during trial is improper,[82] and after retirement, fatal. Evi-and probability of his statements and "if convincing and carrying with it a belief in its truth, act upon it; if not they may reject it" is proper. People v. Hill [Cal. App.] 82 P. 398.

70. Fox v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 103, 87 S. W. 157; State v. Stibbens [Mo.] 87 S. W. 460; McKinney v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 638, 88 S. W. 1012; Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61; Roszczyniala v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 113. Where the court had charged that confessions of guilt should be received with great caution and that a confession alone, uncorroborated by other evidence, will not justify a conviction it is not error to refuse to instruct the jury that "evidence of confession is the weakest and least to be relied on of any evidence known to be competent to the law. Griner v. State, 121 Ga. 614, 49 S. E. 700. Charge on dying declarations is improper when what was received was not such but res gestae. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406. An instruction that evidence of admissions or statements made by accused should be received with caution if erroneous, held not prejudicial. People v. Hill [Cal. App.] 82 P. 398.

71. Schutz v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 90; People v. Jailles, 146 Cal. 301, 79 P. 965. Rule, falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus. Beck v. People, 115 Ill. App. 19; State v. Johnson [N. D.] 103 N. W. 565; Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61; People v. Kelley, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846. Purpose of impeaching evidence. Elkins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 298, 87 S. W. 149. The charge should not refer to the credibility of defendant as a witness in such a manner as to convey the impression to the jury that the judge himself questioned the witness' credibility. Hampton v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 421. A charge that if any witnesses have made contradictory statements as to material facts, it may, in the discretion of the jury, create a reasonable doubt of the truth of the evidence of such witness, is properly overruled. Brown v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 268; overruling Gregg v. State, 106 Ala. 44, 17 So. 321 and Williams v. State, 114 Ala. 19, 21 So. 993. Requested charge that "if the jury do not believe the evidence they must find the defendant not guilty," held properly refused. Sanford v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 370. A charge that the jury are the sole judges of the credibility of witnesses and the weight that should be given their testimony is proper. Brown v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 268. Instruction that the entire testimony of any witness who has willfully testified falsely may be disregarded is erroneous. The false testimony must have been as to a material fact. Boykin v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 725. Charge to consider "feelings" and "relation" of witness to accused is proper on credibility as covering either animosity or good will. State v. Miller [Mo.] 89 S. W. 377.

72. It is proper to tell them they shall reason together to the end a lawful verdict may he reached each, however, holding his own opinion till convinced. People v. Richards [Cal. App.] 82 P. 691.

73. It is proper to refuse to charge for acquittal unless each of the jury was convinced by the evidence of the guilt of the accused. Bardin v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 833.

74. Charge that jury should take the law from the court and not from counsel held correct. Anderson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 51. A statement by the court that the case "must be decided by a jury" was not a threat that he would detain them until they agreed and does not amount to coercion. Patterson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 489.

75. See 4 C. L. 59.

76. Sutherland v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 462.

77. State v. Craighead [La.] 38 So. 28.

78. Separation after submission held fatal. State v. West [Idaho] 81 P. 107. Momentary separation of juror from his fellows, under circumstances showing no improper communication to him, held harmless in homicide case. Van Dalsen v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 89 S. W. 255.

79. Frame v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 711; Hooker v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 846; Ince v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 818; State v. Sly [Idaho] 80 P. 1125. Separation held waived. State v. Shuck [Wash.] 80 P. 444.

80. Young v. State, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 53, 26 Ohio C. C. 747.

81. Vasser v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 635.

82. Conversation between officer and juror held not fatal. State v. Smokalem, 37 Wash. 91, 79 P. 603. Letter given to juror

dence may be received only in court.[83] A copy of the charge may be sent out with the jury,[84] and in case of disagreement, the stenographer may be directed to read his notes of the evidence [85] or depositions; if they contain no excluded matter, they may be given to the jury to read.[86]

The jury should not discuss matters outside the evidence in the case,[87] or consult law books,[88] and discussion of defendant's failure to testify is fatal.[89] Misconduct of the members of the jury and of the officers who have them in charge may be ground for new trial.[90] Trivial misconduct after verdict was agreed on, though before it was reduced to writing, is no ground for new trial.[91] Entertainment or hospitality extended to jurors may be but in the absence of statute is not necessarily error.[92] It depends on the circumstances.[93]

Any conduct of the judge amounting to coercion of a verdict is fatal.[94] It is error when the jury report inability to agree for the court to inquire how they are divided, though the question does not involve an inquiry as to the side of which the majority incline.[95]

In all cases, capital included, the court may in its discretion discharge the during trial held not fatal. State v. Rooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82. Allowing newspapers containing prejudicial matter to get to jury held fatal. People v. Chin Non, 146 Cal. 561, 80 P. 681; State v. Sly [Idaho] 80 P. 1125. For officer to describe to jurors how a verdict by lot was reached in another case is not reversible. Watson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 568, 87 S. W. 1158.

83. Conduct of juror in casually inspecting diagrams during recess held not fatal. People v. Antony, 146 Cal. 124, 79 P. 858. Conduct of prosecuting attorney during noon recess held prejudicial. Hendrick v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 711.

84. When so requested. State v. Bundy [Kan.] 81 P. 459. Where charge in murder case is reduced to writing at defendant's request, it is not error to allow the jury to take out the written charge. Green v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 362.

85. If after retiring the jury disagree as to the testimony of certain witnesses, it is not error for the court, at the request of the jury, and in the presence of the accused and his counsel, to require the official stenographer to read the testimony in dispute and which was taken down by him while the witnesses were on the stand. Green v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 53.

86. Under Code 1896, §§ 1834, 5292, it was proper for the court to refuse to allow depositions, portions of which had been read to the jury, the remaining portions having been excluded upon objection, to be taken out by the jury. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329.

87. Hambright v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 597. Other offenses. Robbins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 690. Discussion after arriving at verdict held not fatal. Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 824. Where something was said in the jury room about how the jury stood on a former trial, but it did not appear that any one stated whether a majority stood for conviction or acquittal, it was not ground for reversal. Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W. 203.

88. That the jury during their deliberations obtain and consult law books bearing on the case is not ground for disturbing the verdict unless prejudice is shown. Brister v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 678.

89. Held not fatal. Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 824. Mere inquiry "why defendant did not testify" is not fatal. Parrish v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 231.

90. Where they engage in music and dancing, separate and make experiments on the testimony introduced. Smith v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 62. Facts of presence of bailiffs in the jury room, separation of one juror from his fellows for a few moments while under the observation of the trial judge and that jury were allowed to sleep in the court room at night held not prejudicial. Dickey v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 776. That a bailiff who was disqualified accompanied the jury to dinner is not ground for reversal where it does not appear that defendant was ignorant thereof and it does appear that the jury were in charge of a deputy sheriff and that the bailiff served only in his presence. Patterson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 489.

91. Sheffield v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 89 S.

92. U. S. 1232, making the treating of a W. 274.
juror by the person in whose favor a verdict is rendered ground for new trial, does not apply to criminal cases. State v. Costa [Vt.] 62 A. 38.

93. Where the jury told the sheriff they should want supper, and then returned a verdict before supper but ate the supper prepared at the expense of the state, there was no corruption or impropriety. State v. Costa [Vt.] 62 A. 38.

94. Bishop v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 707. Not error to ask what prospect there is of an agreement, it not appearing that the jury was urged to agree. Straub v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 529; State v. Finch [Kan.] 81 P. 494. Keeping out 24 hours part of which was Thanksgiving day is not duress. Young v. State, 60 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 53, 26 Ohio C. C. 747. Question of defendant's insanity at time of trial. Ince v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 818.

95. Burton v. U. S., 196 U. S. 283, 49 Law. Ed. 482.

jury and order a mistrial when necessary to attain the ends of justice;[96] but in capital cases the trial judge must find the facts fully and place them upon record, so that upon a plea of former jeopardy the action of the court may be reviewed.[97] An objection to continuing the trial with part of the same jurors after one has been excused because of sickness is one that may be waived by defendant.[98] When one juror is excused because of sickness after part of the evidence is in, a request to excuse the others is addressed to the discretion of the court.[99]

A verdict of the jury cannot be impeached by testimony of a juror.[1]

(§ 10) G. Verdict.[2]—Verdicts should be certain and import a definite meaning, free from ambiguity; if the meaning in the light of the whole record is clear, beyond any reasonable doubt, it is sufficient.[3] Bad spelling or ungrammatical construction will not vitiate a verdict.[4] A general verdict of "guilty as charged" is sufficient as a rule,[5] and will be referred to such counts as were good;[6] but when an indictment contains two counts, one good and the other fatally defective, and a demurrer to the bad count was improperly overruled, a verdict of guilty cannot be sustained.[7] Where the jury attempt to set a description of the offense and it is not responsive to the indictment, it is bad,[8] and in murder the jury must find the degree.[9] Where the degree of crime depends on value, the value must be stated.[10] It is a matter of no importance who prepares the form of the verdict,[11] and irregularity in the form prepared in the jury room, it being moulded into proper form and recorded before the jury are discharged, is immaterial.[12] A verdict may properly find defendants guilty upon certain counts, not guilty upon others, and report

96. State v. Tyson, 138 N. C. 627, 50 S. E. 456. Where during trial one of the jurors became grossly intoxicated so that all efforts to render him fit for duty were unavailing, the court was justified in discharging the jury and ordering a new trial. Id.

97. State v. Tyson, 138 N. C. 627, 50 S. C. 456.

98, 99. Turner v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 650.

1. Brister v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 678.

2. See 4 C. L. 60.

3. Signature by foreman held sufficient. Keeler v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 64. Referring to count by wrong number. State v. Harlan [Kan.] 81 P. 480. A joint verdict against two assessing a fine is uncertain. Hines v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1057. Verdict for larceny from person held good. State v. McGee [Mo.] 87 S. W. 452. "We find" instead of "we, the jury, find" is sufficient, and if the latter phrase be used, it is immaterial that "jury" is misspelled. Kehoe v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 881, 89 S. W. 270. "Assess the punishment at $40" omitting "fine of" is not fatally defective. State v. Jones [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 360. A verdict "guilty, but innocently" is insensible and not the equivalent of a verdict of not guilty. State v. Godwin, 138 N. C. 582, 50 S. E. 277.

4. Denham v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 538; Ellington v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 361. Leaving out "the jury" from "we [ ] find defendant guilty." Kehoe v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 881, 89 S. W. 270. "Punish" for "punishment." Upton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 687, 88 S. W. 212. The fact that the verdict, which intended to designate the place of confinement as the "penitentiary," spelled the word "peniteniary," and such word was copied in the judgment as "peniteniary," does not vitiate the verdict. Garcia v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 937, 89 S. W. 647.

5. Aladin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 327. A general verdict is not rendered indefinite by surplusage in the indictment as where rape and assault are charged in a single count. James v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 320. "Guilty as charged," supplies lack of certain of statutory words elemental in crime. Lottery, "as a business" omitted. State v. Miller [Mo.] 89 S. W. 377.

6. Where count charging forgery was sufficient and count charging uttering of forged note was insufficient, and there was evidence to support the former, a verdict and judgment was referred thereto rather than to the insufficient count. Shelton v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 377.

7. Sutton v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 60.

8. A verdict of guilty of "intent to rape" will not support a judgment of guilty of assault with intent to rape. Donovan v. People, 215 Ill. 520, 74 N. E. 772. Verdict for aiding and assisting in maintaining a policy held bad. State v. Cronin [Mo.] 88 S. W. 604; State v. Miller [Mo.] 88 S. W. 607. "Guilty of embezzlement by bailee" instead of "as bailee" is defective. State v. Jones [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 366.

9. Lyles v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 763; Reyes v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 257.

10. False pretenses. People v. Small [Cal. App.] 82 P. 87. Where the indictment states the value a general verdict is good. Receiving stolen goods. State v. Fink, 186 Mo. 50, 84 S. W. 921.

11. Prepared by clerk. State v. Klein [Wash.] 80 P. 770.

12. Denham v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 538; Commonwealth v. Flaherty, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 490.

a disagreement upon others.[13] A verdict in a conspiracy case is not illogical or unjust because some of the defendants are let off with fines while others are given penitentiary sentences.[14] That the verdict was received by the judge in the absence of the clerk will not reverse, no prejudice being shown.[15] In North Dakota, where the jury return a proper verdict except that they fix punishment at an unauthorized term, the judge is required to receive the verdict and enter judgment for the highest or lowest penalty authorized by law.[16] Where the evidence excludes any other verdict than guilty, or not guilty, it is not error to refuse to submit forms of verdict for included offenses.[17]

Compromise verdicts are valid but not those reached by chance or lot.[18]

Amendment of verdict.—A court may at any time while the jury are before it or under its control require an amendment of a verdict in form so as to meet the requirements of the law.[19] When the jury returns a verdict of "guilty but innocently," the court may direct them to retire and return a verdict of guilty or not guilty.[20] On return of the jury with a general verdict, it is not error to send them out again at the request of counsel for the state with instructions to find as to defendant's plea of former acquittal.[21]

Receiving verdict.[22]—A verdict returned into open court is not complete until accepted by the court for record.[23] It is lawful to receive a verdict in a criminal case on Sunday.[24] That the court receives the verdict in ignorance of the absence of one of the jurors is not ground for declaring a mistrial when the verdict was reread and properly received after the juror took his seat.[25] A request that the jury be polled when they first report that they cannot agree is premature;[26] it should be made when the verdict is returned.[27]

§ 11. New trial, arrest of judgment and writ of error coram nobis.[28]—The harmful effect of error is elsewhere treated.[29]

The grounds.[30]—New trials should be granted only when the substantial rights of the accused have been so violated as to make it reasonably clear that a fair trial was not had.[31] A new trial may be granted upon discovery that a juror was preju-

13. Dolan v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 440.
14. O'Donnell v. People, 110 Ill. App. 250.
15. State v. Patterson [S. D.] 100 N. W. 162.
16. Rev. Codes 1899, § 8246. State v. Barry [N. D.] 103 N. W. 637.
17. State v. Clough [Kan.] 79 P. 117.
18. People v. Richards [Cal. App.] 82 P. 691. Cannot be impeached by juror's testimony that it was compromise between those jurors who favored higher degree and those who favored acquittal. Id.
19. State v. Godwin, 138 N. C. 582, 50 S. E. 277. Where jury returned a verdict of guilty of murder, held no error in judge asking them if they found defendant guilty of murder in the first degree and, upon receiving an affirmative answer, directing such a verdict to be drawn by the clerk and signed by the foreman, the jury being then polled. Reyes v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 257.
20. State v. Godwin, 138 N. C. 582, 50 S. E. 277.
21. Stone v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 808.
22. Presence of accused, see ante, § 10A.
23. State v. Godwin, 138 N. C. 582, 50 S. E. 277.
24. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1. Where the verdict was brought in and read on Sunday in the presence of the associate judge, the sheriff, the jury, and defendant, and the jury was discharged, and judgment was regularly pronounced by the court the next day—Monday—the procedure was legal, since defendant had the same opportunity to poll the jury as he would have had on a juridical day. Sanford v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 370.
25. Patterson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 489.
26, 27. Cable v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 98.
28. See 4 C. L. 61.
29. See post, § 15.
30. See 4 C. L. 61.
31. Violation of technical rules of procedure and evidence is not necessarily ground for new trial. State v. Crawford [Minn.] 104 N. W. 822. Where questions asked by a juryman were improper in form, but no objection was taken, and the same matter had already been brought out without objection, and the evidence clearly showed guilt of the accused, it was not error to refuse a new trial. Id. Where "N. J. White" appeared as the name of a grand juror on the indictment, and "Neal J. White" appeared on the panel furnished the prisoner and no inquiry was made as to the identity of such jurors, the fact that they were the same is not ground for new trial. Massey v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 78.

diced or disqualified,[32] for surprise,[33] for misconduct of counsel for the state,[34] or the jury,[35] for insufficiency of the evidence,[36] and for errors occurring at the trial.[37] That a sentence is excessive is not proper matter for a motion for a new trial,[38] nor is the fact that accused was improperly brought into court under an order of the judge.[39] That defendant's counsel was drunk is no ground where a recess was taken for that reason and defendant advised to procure other counsel.[40]

Newly discovered evidence [41] is one of the well recognized grounds,[42] but applications on this ground are regarded with disfavor,[43] and the applicant must satisfy the court that the proposed evidence is competent and material,[44] credible,[45] not merely cumulative,[46] impeaching or contradictory,[47] such as to probably affect

32. Ineligibility of a juror because of previous service in the same court during the same year is not cause for a new trial, even though the fact of his ineligibility was not known until after verdict and sentence. Hill v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 57.

33. Failure of defendant's counsel to attend. Jackson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 710, 88 S. W. 239. Not because of surprise at the introduction of testimony given at preliminary examination on the witness being absent. Petty v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 465.

34. Where solicitor general, after asking witness if he had not made a certain statement and the witness replied he had not, said to the witness in the hearing of the jury "I say that you did" is not cause for a new trial. Roberts v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 374.

35. State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866. Giving letter to juror. State v. Rooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82. Separation. State v. West [Idaho] 81 P. 107. Conversation between juror and deputy sheriff having no relation to case is not ground. State v. Smokalem, 37 Wash. 91, 79 P. 603. Where juror did not hear statements alleged, there is no ground. State v. Rea [Or.] 81 P. 822. Discussing matters outside of evidence. Hambrigbt v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 597; Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 824. That the foreman of the jury, while the verdict was being received, asked the judge if the jury could find that the defendant be punished for a less term than her life, is not ground for new trial, there being nothing to show that the verdict was not regularly agreed upon. Campbell v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 644. An accused is entitled to a new trial if there is sufficient reason to believe the verdict against him was due to corruption of the jury. State v. Costa [Vt.] 62 A. 38.

36. Evidence being sufficient to support verdict, and no error of law being complained of, discretion of court below in refusing to grant a new trial will not be interfered with. Boaz v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 504; Williams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 577. A motion for a new trial on the ground that the verdict is contrary to the law and the evidence should be sustained where the evidence fails to show in what county the alleged offense was committed. Kolman v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 82.

37. Error in holding that there had been no former conviction for the same offense is reached by motion for a new trial, not by motion to discharge accused from custody. State v. Lucas [N. C.] 51 S. E. 1021.

38. Mixon v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 580; Hill v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 57; Whittington v. State, 121 Ga. 193, 48 S. E. 948. The fact that at the same term of court at which accused was tried the judge imposed light fines upon persons charged with other offenses, and imposed upon accused a heavier fine, but within the limit of the statute, is not cause for new trial. Seats v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 65.

39. Oglesby v. State, 121 Ga. 602, 49 S. E. 706.

40. Territory v. Clark [N. M.] 79 P. 708.

41. See 4 C. L. 62.

42. Adultery. French v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 4.

43. Van Meer v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 264.

44. State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839; Hilscher v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 713, 88 S. W. 227. Evidence held not material on question of insanity. Rogers v. State [Vt.] 61 A. 489. Where the issue of insanity of defendant was not raised at the trial, newly discovered evidence of it is not material. Donohue v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 996.

45. Application founded on retraction of prosecutrix in rape refused. Lucia v. State [Vt.] 59 A. 1016. A motion to suspend an appeal and to take the evidence of a party who declines to make an affidavit, and for leave to move for a new trial on after-discovered evidence, will not be granted where it is shown that a witness has been discovered to whom a witness for the state had made a statement contradictory to his evidence. State v. Marks, 70 S. C. 448, 50 S. E. 14.

46. Smiley v. Territory [Okl.] 81 P. 433; People v. Davis [Cal. App.] 81 P. 716; Taylor v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 639, 87 S. W. 1039; Sexton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 617, 88 S. W. 348. Additional evidence of identity held not sufficient. May v. State [Vt.] 60 A. 1; State v. Stanley [Iowa] 104 N. W. 284; Turley v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 934; Steed v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 627.

47. State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839; People v. Patrick [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 843; Smiley v. Territory [Okl.] 81 P. 433; Hilscher v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 713, 88 S. W. 227; State v. Leuth [Iowa] 103 N. W. 345; Glenny v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 754. Statement of accomplice that he had lied at the trial held not sufficient. Rogers v. State [Vt.] 61 A. 489; Grimes v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 721; Anderson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 46; State v. Lackey [Kan.] 82 P. 527; People v. Fitzgerald [Cal. App.] 82 P. 555; Powell v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 369; McDuffie v. State, 121 Ga. 580, 49 S. E. 708. Newly-discovered the result,[48] that the evidence can be produced on the new trial,[49] and that he could not by the exercise of proper diligence have procured such evidence [50] or other similar evidence [51] at the trial. Laches in applying may defeat the motion. Where the paramour of defendant in adultery has been acquitted, and it appears she will deny the adulterous intercourse, defendant is entitled to a new trial that he may avail himself of her testimony.[52]

A motion in arrest of judgment [53] lies only on account of some intrinsic defect apparent on the face of the record,[54] and the objection must of course be one that is not required to be made at the trial.[55] A motion in arrest on the ground of insanity at the time of trial or sentence is regarded as a motion to stay sentence.[56] The legal effect of a judgment sustaining a motion in arrest of judgment, based upon the ground that the indictment was defective, is that the indictment was void.[57]

A motion to set aside a judgment,[58] like a motion in arrest, must be predicated on some defect apparent on the face of the record, and differs from it only in the time at which it is made.

A writ of error coram nobis.[59]

Practice on motion.[60]—Time to move for new trial is generally regulated by statute,[61] and affidavits and briefs of evidence must be filed within the statutory or allowed time or they will not be considered or the motion will be dismissed.[62] Motions are addressed in great measure to the discretion of the court,[63] and the evidence that two witnesses were present when the difficulty in question occurred and that a witness for the state was not present as he testified merely tends to impeach the credibility of such witness, and is insufficient to justify the granting of a new trial. Tuberville v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 333.

48. Van Meer v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 264; Harris v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 120. Evidence as to cause of death of deceased and evidence bearing on question of defendant's sanity held not sufficient. Rogers v. State [Vt.] 61 A. 489; Scott v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 49.

49. Williams v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 88 S. W. 334.

50. Knight v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1067; Taylor v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 639, 87 S. W. 1039. Evidence to prove insanity in murder. Donahue v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 996. For counsel to state that they used due diligence is a mere conclusion. May v. State [Vt.] 60 A. 1. Where a continuance was refused for absence of witness, diligence not being shown, and the testimony appears to be material, new trial is allowed in Texas. Perez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 453, 87 S. W. 350; Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 631, 88 S. W. 809. Testimony of defendant's wife cannot be said to be newly-discovered. Hanna v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 472, 87 S. W. 702. Evidence of events that happened in defendants presence cannot be newly-discovered. Sexton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 617, 88 S. W. 348. A new trial will not be granted on the ground of newly-discovered evidence where such evidence consists of testimony which might have been discovered by the exercise of ordinary diligence. Davis v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 507. No new trial for alleged newly-discovered evidence known to movent during trial. State v. Stanley [Iowa] 104 N. W. 284.

51. If a party has knowledge of a fact, and the same can be proved at the trial by evidence, a new trial will not be granted on the ground that other evidence of the fact, claimed to be newly-discovered, has been found since the trial, unless the movent satisfactorily explains why he did not use the evidence in his control at the time of the trial. Goodman v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 922.

52. Adultery. French v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 4.

53. See 4 C. L. 63.

54. Motion in arrest is not the proper mode of raising the question of the sufficiency of the evidence to warrant conviction. Commonwealth v. Mock, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 51. Variance between indictment and proof is not a good ground. State v. Nelson [R. I.] 60 A. 589. Under Mansf. Dig. § 2302, providing that the only ground upon which a judgment can be arrested is that the facts stated do not constitute a public offense within the jurisdiction of the court, motion in arrest of judgment on the ground that at the time of trial and verdict there was pending a former indictment charging the same offense was properly overruled. Clampitt v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 666.

55. See post, § 14. Lack of verification cannot be so raised. State v. Lee [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 527.

56. Ince v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 818.

57. Hill v. Nelms [Ga.] 50 S. E. 344.

58, 59, 60. See 4 C. L. 63.

61. Motion interposed when defendant called for sentence held in time. Bird v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 295, 87 S. W. 146.

62. State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706.

63. State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839; State v. Jones [Mont.] 80 P. 1095. Denial for disqualification of juror held proper on conflicting evidence. Fonseca v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1069. The discretion of the trial court in refusing a new trial will not be controlled. Merritt v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E.

whole record as well as the moving affidavits considered.[64] Jurors cannot be allowed by their own testimony or declarations to impeach their verdicts,[65] but affidavits presented by the prosecuting attorney which set forth the misconduct and claim that it had no effect on the verdict are not within the rule.[66] Applications on the ground of newly discovered evidence must be supported by the evidence of the witnesses,[67] and an affidavit of defendant showing diligence.[68] The supreme court can appoint a referee to take the after-discovered evidence of a party who refuses to make an affidavit to be used in a motion to suspend an appeal in a criminal case, and for leave to move for a new trial.[69] Where the applicant relies on matters dehors the record, the application is based on affidavits but the evidence before the court is the testimony of the witnesses themselves.[70] In Georgia the motion is not made upon a settled case or bill of exceptions, but must affirmatively show the facts upon which the alleged error is predicated.[71] Where one convicted

926. No error in refusing new trial. Harris v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 926. Granting or refusing motion for new trial is discretionary with trial court and its action will not be reviewed by appellate court. Hill v. U. S., 22 App. D. C. 395. The ruling of the trial court upon the testimony produced in support and in denial of a ground in a motion for a new trial, alleging that one of the jurors was biased against the accused and had expressed an opinion that he was guilty before the trial will not be disturbed on appeal, the evidence being conflicting and there being nothing to show an abuse of discretion. Such questions are discretionary with trial judge. Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850. The finding of the trial court after passing on evidence submitted on the question presented by a motion for a new trial, that a juror was competent to serve, will not be disturbed, in the absence of a manifest abuse of discretion. Cox v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 150. No complaint being made that any error of law was committed on the trial, and the evidence relied on by the state for a conviction being sufficient to sustain the verdict of guilty, the appellate court will not undertake to control the exercise by the presiding judge of his discretion in refusing to grant a new trial. Turner v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 503. On motion for new trial on conviction for obstructing a neighborhood road, there being evidence tending to show that the obstructed road was a neighborhood road, a refusal of a new trial is not erroneous as a matter of law. State v. Knotts, 70 S. C. 400, 50 S. E. 9.

64. Van Meer v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 264.

65. People v. Murphy, 146 Cal. 502, 80 P. 709; Bearden v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 808. Affidavits are not admissible. Johnson v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 133. On ground that they misunderstood the instructions or to show reasons for agreeing to verdict. State v. Forrester [N. D.] 103 N. W. 625. Proof of statements of a juror, after rendition of the verdict, as to how it was rendered, is inadmissible for the purpose of impeaching the verdict. State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 867. In Texas, misconduct of the jury can be shown by affidavits of the jurors. Code Cr. Proc. art. 817. Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W. 203.

66. People v. Chin Non, 146 Cal. 561, 80 P. 681.

67. State v. Neasby [Mo.] 87 S. W. 468.

68. Affidavits showing diligence, submitted on a motion for a new trial, not signed by one of defendant's attorneys of record, are insufficient. Tuberville v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 333. A new trial will not be granted on the ground of newly-discovered evidence unless the movent files an affidavit of his ignorance, before verdict, of the existence of such evidence. Grimes v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 721. After motion for new trial has been overruled and judgment and sentence pronounced, a motion in arrest of judgment will not be granted on affidavits containing statements of declarations of convict, and conversations with him, unsupported by an affidavit by the convict that he did not know at time of trial by whom such declarations could be proved. Hill v. U. S., 22 App. D. C. 395.

69. State v. Marks, 70 S. C. 468, 50 S. E. 14.

70. State v. Harmon, 4 Pen. [Del.] 580, 60 A. 866.

71. A ground in a motion for a new trial alleging error in allowing the prosecuting attorney to make a statement, in the presence of the jury, in reference to what he wanted to prove by a witness will not be considered, when it does not appear what such statement was. Peters v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 147. A ground in a motion for a new trial, alleging that the court erred in admitting certain evidence, will not be considered when the motion fails to show that any objection was made to such evidence upon the trial of the case, or, if stating that objection was made, fails to show what that objection was. Id. A ground of a motion for a new trial alleging error in the charge because it was confused and inapplicable to the theory of the defense should point out how such confusion would arise and why it was not applicable. Pollard v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 149. A ground of a motion for a new trial, complaining of the admission of evidence, which does not show that any objection thereto was made at the time of its admission, or what such objection was, is without merit. It is not enough to show that ground of objection existed at the time of the making of the motion. Brigman v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 504. A new trial will not be granted on the ground that illegal evidence was admitted, when it does not already appear from the motion that such evi-

of a criminal offense made a motion in arrest of judgment and a motion for a new trial, and insisted upon both motions, it was not error for the judge, over the objection of the movant, to first hear and decide the motion for a new trial, though the filing of the motion in arrest was prior to the filing of the motion for new trial.[72] And where, under such circumstances, a new trial was granted, it was not error to then dismiss the motion in arrest, as the effect of the grant of the new trial was to set aside the judgment.[73] Under a rule that the granting of a new trial places the parties in the same position as if no trial had been had, one convicted of manslaughter under an indictment for murder may be retried for murder.[74]

§ 12. Sentence and judgment.[75]—Sentence must be pursuant to the conviction,[76] must be within the jurisdiction of the court,[77] and must not exceed the penalty authorized by statute.[78] Defendant must be present when sentence is imposed.[79] The sentence must be clear and certain,[80] but may be in the alternative if alternative punishments are fixed by statute.[81] A sentence imposing two penalties in the alternative, one of which is unauthorized, is not void, but may be enforced as to the penalty which is authorized.[82] Unless statutes so require, sentence need not be pronounced during the term.[83] Sentence may be lawfully imposed to begin in the future on the expiration of a prior sentence imposed by another court of the same state.[84] A plea of insanity at the time of sentence demands a trial.[85] To order one confined without further process or trial on acquittal of a charge of crime by reason of insanity pursuant to statute is to deprive him of libdence was in fact admitted. Anderson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 46. When, in a motion for a new trial, error is assigned upon the exclusion of evidence offered to impeach a witness by proof of contradictory statements previously made, it should appear from the motion itself that the proper foundation for the introduction of such evidence was laid. McColman v. State, 121 Ga. 491, 49 S. E. 609. An assignment of error in a motion for a new trial that "the court erred in charging the law of conspiracy in said case, there being no evidence to sustain the same," is too general and indefinite to raise any question for decision. Steed v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 627. For the admission of evidence to be a ground of motion for a new trial, it must appear what ground of objection was urged to it at the time. It is not enough to state what the objection was at the time the new trial was asked. Wynne v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 636.

72, 73. Williams v. State, 121 Ga. 579, 49 S. E. 689.

74. Turner v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 650. An erroneous ruling that one convicted of manslaughter cannot on the granting of a new trial be retried for murder does not entitle the state to a new trial on the ground that he might have been convicted of a higher degree of crime. Id.

75. See 4 C. L. 65.

76. Where, under an indictment charging murder in one count and carrying concealed weapons in another, a verdict of guilty of murder, with a recommendation to mercy, and of guilty of carrying concealed weapons, was brought in, sentence was properly pronounced on the verdict under the first count only. State v. Reeder [S. C.] 51 S. E. 702.

77. The charter of the town of Ft. Valley (Acts 1882-83, p. 480) empowers the mayor to impose a fine not to exceed $50 for a violation of an ordinance of that town. Little v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 501.

78. See Criminal Law, 5 C. L. 883.

79. It is error to render judgment of imprisonment in any case in the absence of the defendant. State v. Dolan [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 181.

80. A sentence of imprisonment for a certain period "or until he shall be discharged according to law" is not uncertain. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Gildersleeve [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 336.

81. A municipal court authorized by the charter to impose two or more kinds of punishment for a violation of the municipal ordinances may impose an alternative sentence (Williams v. Sewell, 121 Ga. 665, 49 S. E. 732), but has no power, in the absence of express legislative authority, to impose a fine, and enforce its collection by labor upon public streets (Id.). A judgment imposing a sentence that the accused pay a fine in a given amount, "and, in default of the payment of the same within ten days," that the accused work at hard labor on the streets, is void. Id.

82. Brown v. Atlanta [Ga.] 51 S. E. 507.

83. Where after conviction of defendant, the court adjourned the term without passing sentence, a succeeding circuit judge, presiding at a succeeding term may sentence the defendant so convicted at the previous term. State v. Knotts, 70 S. C. 400, 50 S. E. 9. It is not error to pass sentence after the judgment has been suspended and a term of court has intervened between the order, making suspension, and the term at which judgment is rendered. Champitt v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 666.

84. Rigor v. State [Md.] 61 A. 631.

85. Ince v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 818.

erty without due process of law.[86] Statutes providing for indeterminate sentences,[87] and for increased punishment on subsequent conviction,[88] are discussed below. Judgment entry affirmatively showing that issue was joined on the plea of not guilty, it excludes any assumption that issue was joined on a plea in abatement.[89] A judgment for costs in which no amount is stated is not void.[90]

§ 13. Record or minutes and commitment.[91]—The record is conclusive,[92] but may be amended by the court,[93] though only on record evidence. The record must show every jurisdictional fact,[94] but the presumption of regularity of proceedings avails to aid a record not showing lack of jurisdiction,[95] and makes it ordinarily unnecessary to set forth matters of mere procedure,[96] though in some states considerable strictness is necessary in setting forth all essential proceedings.[97] Failure of the minutes to show necessary matters may be supplied by the judgment roll.[98] Unnecessary recitals in the commitment do not vitiate.[99]

Commitment[1] cannot issue after the adjournment of the term, or in case of conviction before a magistrate after the end of the session.[2] Commitment to the wrong reformatory does not entitle the prisoner to a discharge on habeas corpus.[3]

86. Brown v. Urquhart, 139 F. 846. Contra. Ex parte Brown [Wash.] 81 P. 552.

87. In the indeterminate sentence law of 1902 (Pen. Code, § 687a) the words "the minimum of which shall not be less than one year" cannot by construction be read to mean "more than one year" irrespective of the arguments that may be made to support such a construction. People v. Deyo, 181 N. Y. 425, 74 N. E. 430. An indeterminate sentence the minimum of which is within the letter of the law is not invalid because the commutation for good behavior may possibly reduce the maximum to less than the minimum. When the convict has earned his commutation and his maximum has been served with respect to it, he should be discharged whether the minimum has expired or not. Id.

88. A statute forfeiting a convict's good time for conviction of a subsequent offense within the term of his original imprisonment is valid. Ex parte Russell, 92 N. Y. S. 68. A law providing for an increase of punishment on subsequent conviction does not punish twice for the same offense. People v. Coleman, 145 Cal. 609, 79 P. 283.

89. Held no room for the application of the principle that the finding of the court was erroneous in failing to respond to the issue presented by the plea in abatement. Jackson v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 920.

90. Williams v. Sewell, 121 Ga. 665, 49 S. E. 732.

91. See 4 C. L. 66.

92. Order of arraignment cannot be contradicted by ex parte affidavits. State v. Nelson [Wash.] 81 P. 721.

93. When judge of city court tries case without a jury and renders and announces judgment of guilty, but such judgment is not entered on the minutes, an order may be passed at the subsequent term, on notice to the accused, requiring the clerk to correct the minutes to show the judgment rendered. Merritt v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 925.

94. Must show a judgment. Plea of guilty is not sufficient. Ex parte Winford [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1146. The record is fatally defective if it omits the final judgment and order, and the omission cannot be supplied by the mittimus. Ryan v. People, 111 Ill. App. 484. Designation of offense as "assault in third degree" held sufficient. Ex parte Bartholomew, 94 N. Y. S. 512. If an accused charged with a crime and several prior convictions admitted the prior convictions the minutes of the plea should show them. People v. Noon [Cal. App.] 81 P. 746. Conviction must be supported by a valid indictment. Skinner v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 242.

95. See post, § 17F, Limitation of review to matters in the record. Ex parte Bartholomew, 94 N. Y. S. 512. Selection of jury. Moseley v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 748. Where the record does not show that the offense was committed in that portion of the county over which the convicting court had not jurisdiction, no lack of jurisdiction is shown. State v. Hall [Mo.] 87 S. W. 1181. Will be presumed that bailiff was duly sworn before taking jury. Williams v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 88 S. W. 334.

96. Requests for special instructions need not be entered in the clerk's minutes. State v. Duperier [La.] 39 So. 455.

97. There can be no legal conviction for a felony unless the record shows that the jury which tried the case were duly sworn according to law. State v. Moore [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 1015. It will not suffice to say that the jury were elected according to law. Id. Where a person is convicted of a felony it must affirmatively appear from the record that the prisoner was present in court and entered his plea in person to the indictment against him; and it is reversible error if the record fails to show this. Id.

98. Order overruling demurrer to indictment. People v. Canepi, 181 N. Y. 398, 74 N. E. 473.

99. Recital of prior conviction and sentence showing reason why sentence is made to begin at future date. Rigor v. State [Md.] 61 A. 631.

1. See 4 C. L. 66. Under Kansas statutes, a justice of the peace has no power to commit a boy to the reform school. The mittimus must be made by a court of record. In re Stokes, 67 Kan. 667, 73 P. 911.

2. Tuttle v. Lang [Me.] 60 A. 892.

3. The committing court will correct the § 14. Saving questions for review. Necessity of objection, motion, or exception.[4]—Aside from objections to the jurisdiction, or the sufficiency of the indictment,[5] prompt objection and exception in the trial court is necessary to preserve the right to a review of the ruling complained of.[6] This rule is applied to allowing day to plead,[7] refusal of severance,[8] errors in selecting and empaneling juries,[9] disqualification of jurors,[10] swearing[11] and examination of witnesses,[12] requiring withdrawal of jury when proper,[13] rulings on the admissibility[14] or sufficiency of the evidence,[15] variance between indictment and proof,[16] remarks,[17] conduct, error on proper application. People v. Superintendent of House of Refuge, 46 Misc. 131, 93 N. Y. S. 218.

4. See 4 C. L. 66.

5. Formal defects cannot be first raised on appeal. Commonwealth v. Schoen, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 211. Sufficiency in homicide case can be raised at any time. State v. Coleman, 186 Mo. 151, 84 S. W. 978. Failure of clerk to file supporting affidavit cannot be first raised on appeal. Id. Joinder of count's erroneously charging burglary in day time and night time not objected to below is no ground of reversal. Harris v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 12. Objection to sufficiency of indictment cannot be first raised on appeal. Baldridge v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1076.

6. An objection after both sides have rested that the prosecuting attorney should have stated his case before the testimony comes too late. State v. Harlan [Kan.] 81 P. 480.

7. State v. Sexton, 37 Wash. 110, 79 P. 634; State v. Brown, 37 Wash. 106, 79 P. 638.

8. Perez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 453, 87 S. W. 350.

9. Misenheimer v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 494; Starr v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 104, 86 S. W. 1023.

10. Incompetency of juror not first available on appeal. Turley v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 934. A new trial will not be granted on the alleged ground of disqualification of the jurors where it does not appear that the alleged facts disqualifying the juror was not known to the accused or his counsel at the time of trial. Rhodes v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 361.

11. If an accused, without objection, allows a witness to take the stand against him without being sworn, he cannot, after conviction, urge the failure to take the oath as ground of a motion for a new trial. Rhodes v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 361.

12. Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61. When questions improper in form are asked and answered and no objection is made or exception taken, no error is saved which is subject to review by an appellate court as a matter of right. State v. Crawford [Minn.] 104 N. W. 822.

13. State v. Stibbens [Mo.] 87 S. W. 460.

14. State v. Rennick [Iowa] 103 N. W. 159; State v. Conroy, 126 Iowa, 472, 102 N. W. 417; People v. Wolf, 95 N. Y. S. 264; State v. Scullin, 185 Mo. 709, 84 S. W. 862; State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706; Maxey v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1009; State v. Lawrence [Nev.] 82 P. 614; Territory v. Eaton [N. M.] 79 P. 713; State v. Hays, 110 Mo. App. 440, 85 S. W. 127; Sanders v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1147. Grounds of objection to the admissibility of evidence not made below will not be considered. Dickens v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 909. The objection that demonstrative evidence was wrongfully obtained cannot be first raised on appeal. Roszczyniala v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 113. An unresponsive statement cannot be objected to where no motion was made to strike it out, though the court previously, at a time when the question was not directly presented, had refused to rule that no evidence on that subject would be received. Booth v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 252. Objection to evidence as secondary is waived by its admission without objection, so that there is no right thereafter to have it excluded. Ragazine v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 832. In order to review testimony on the ground that it was erroneously admitted, the record should show that there was a motion to have it stricken which was overruled and exception taken or that an instruction to disregard was asked, refused, and exception taken. Caldwell v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 188. Where counsel for the defendant began to make objection to certain evidence, but the court interrupted him by saying that he could bring out on cross-examination that the testimony was improper, and it did not appear that the objection was ever completed, or the ground stated, or any subsequent motion to rule out the evidence made, this furnishes no ground for a motion for a new trial. Williams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 322. There being no objection to testimony and no motion to strike it out, an appellate court will not consider errors assigned therein. Reyes v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 257.

15. Kehoe v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 881, 89 S. W. 270. The sufficiency of evidence will be reviewed though there was no motion for peremptory instruction. Clyatt v. U. S., 197 U. S. 207, 49 Law. Ed. 726. Failure to establish the venue may be taken advantage of under a general assignment of error that the verdict is contrary to the law and the evidence, though no question on that subject was raised before the trial court. Brown v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 505.

16. An objection that the verdict found defendant guilty of burning A's barn when the indictment charged the burning of B's barn cannot be made for the first time on appeal. State v. Gadsden, 70 S. C. 430, 50 S. E. 16. One desiring to take advantage of a fatal variance must seasonably interpose objections during the trial and in the event of an adverse ruling assign it as a reason for a new trial. Bradley v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 873.

17. Where improper remarks of counsel for prosecution were objected to, and the trial court then interrupted and the remarks were discontinued, and no motion to discharge the jury was made by the defense.

and argument of counsel,[18] and instructions.[19] It is frequently required that the objection be also presented to the trial court by motion for new trial,[20] but an unsensible verdict need not be called to the attention of the trial court by motion in arrest in order to be available on appeal.[21] Matters first brought to the attention of the trial court by motion for new trial are not generally reviewable on appeal,[22] but statutes in some states authorize a general review of criminal cases, especially where the judgment is of death, irrespective of whether proper objection was made and exception saved at the trial.[23] Where motion for new trial is required, the overruling thereof must be excepted to.[24] Failure to sign the charge may be first raised by motion for new trial in Texas.[25] Failure to move an election, the court requiring it suo motu disentitles defendant on appeal to complain of improper joinder of counts.[26] Where defendant does not move a postponement to obtain evidence to contradict a surprise, he cannot have a new trial to present it as newly discovered.[27] An objection to the refusal to admit testimony upon which the court made no positive ruling, but postponed ruling until a later stage of the case, will not be reviewed where the attention of the court was not thereafter called to it.[28] Anything which is good cause for arresting a judgment is good cause for reversing it, though no motion in arrest is made.[29] and no ruling of the court asked, a judgment of conviction could not be reversed by the appellate court. Lorenz v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 337.

18. State v. Williams, 186 Mo. 128, 84 S. W. 924; State v. Pierce [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 663. Reading of defendant's testimony at former trial. Wheeler v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1106. That denunciation of defendant by the prosecuting attorney may be complained of on appeal attention of the court should be called thereto at the time. State v. Archbell [N. C.] 51 S. E. 801.

19. Glenny v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 754; People v. Woods [Cal.] 81 P. 652; State v. Bringgold [Wash.] 82 P. 132; Yzaguirre v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 14; Williams v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 88 S. W. 334. Error in misquoting testimony in instructions cannot be first complained of after conviction. Commonwealth v. Razmus [Pa.] 60 A. 264. Failure to charge, no request being made or exception taken. Delaney v. State [Wyo.] 81 P. 792. All instructions given upon the same subject should be considered together, and, when read in connection with each other, if no error appears, an exception based upon an isolated one will not avail, although standing alone, the one excepted to may be ambiguous. Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850. A verbal inelegancy in an instruction will not be considered where not excepted to. State v. Dewey [N. C.] 51 S. E. 937. If a ruling refusing to give a requested instruction is not excepted to at the time of the refusal, an assignment of error based on such ruling will not be considered by the appellate court. Thomas v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 516.

20. Refusal to reduce instructions to writing. Burris v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 723. Errors in instructions. State v. Merkel [Mo.] 87 S. W. 1186; Corothers v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 585. Errors in admission of evidence. State v. Atchley, 186 Mo. 174, 84 S. W. 984; Ince v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 818. Where an issue of fact has been tried by the jury and a verdict returned, a motion for a new trial is indispensable to appellate review. A verdict against a special plea in bar is not reviewable by direct exception assigning error that it is contrary to law and the evidence. Bashiniski v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 499. It is the duty of the defendant to bring to the attention of the trial court at the earliest possible moment any newly-discovered evidence which he may desire to introduce; and if he fails to so bring it to the attention of the trial court, an appellate court will not disturb the ruling in refusing a motion for a new trial based upon the grounds of such newly-discovered evidence. Robinson v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 463.

21. State v. Cronin [Mo.] 88 S. W. 604.

22. Error in selecting jury. Mount v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 707. In Kentucky ruling on motion for new trial is not reviewable and accordingly error at the trial first raised by such a motion cannot be reviewed. Van Dalsen v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 89 S. W. 255. The motion for a new trial properly presents no ground other than that the verdict was contrary to law. Owen v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 64. Application for a new trial on the ground that there was not sufficient evidence to warrant a conviction embraces special assignment of error that the evidence showed that defendant simply acted as the agent of the buyer. Burden v. State, 120 Ga. 198, 47 S. E. 562.

23. The rule that the failure to except to the ruling of the trial court prevents the appellant from raising the same question on appeal may be waived when justice requires it. In re Moebus [N. H.] 62 A. 170.

24. Objection to the manner of drawing grand jurors is waived by failure to except to the overruling of a motion in arrest on that ground. Rodriguez v. U. S., 198 U. S. 156, 49 Law. Ed. 994.

25. Jones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1075.

26. State v. Richmond, 186 Mo. 71, 84 S. W. 880.

27. Knight v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1067.

28. Whipple v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 590.

29. State v. Dolan [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 181.

Waiver of objection.[30]—An objection and exception timely made may be waived,[31] and an exception against invited error is unavailing.[32]

Sufficiency of objections.[33]—An objection to a question not improper in itself and which does not call for improper evidence should be overruled,[34] a motion to strike being the remedy when the answer is not responsive,[35] but such a motion is unavailing where the answer is responsive.[36] Objections must be specific,[37] an objection to several matters being insufficient if any of them is unobjectionable.[38] In order to have rulings on questions reviewed, the objector must make an offer on proof, on the trial, to show the relevancy of the questions.[39] An oral motion to strike testimony need not recite it if it clearly identifies it.[40]

Sufficiency of exceptions.[41]—Exceptions must be specific,[42] an exception cover-

30. See 4 C. L. 68.

31. Defendant waives objection to refusal to direct verdict at close of case for prosecution where he introduces testimony in defense. Trometer v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 242. An exception to a denial of a motion for a directed verdict is waived where accused introduces evidence in his own behalf. Green v. U. S., 25 App. D. C. 549. Testimony in his own behalf explanatory of evidence, improperly admitted, of another crime does not waive objection made to it. People v. Gaffey, 98 App. Div. 461, 90 N. Y. S. 706.

32. Invited error, see post, § 15, Harmless Error. Assumption of facts invited by counsel's avowal of them in denying others. That he "sold" lottery tickets. State v. Miller [Mo.] 89 S. W. 377. Invited by tendering same request. Turley v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 934. Failure to charge on a particular theory after stating that he did not desire an instruction on such theory. Steed v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 627.

33. See 4 C. L. 69. Sufficiency of evidence to show that the offense was committed in the state cannot be raised by demurrer to the evidence or request to charge the burden is on the state. Such fact is a matter of defense that may be shown upon a plea of not guilty. State v. Burton, 138 N. C. 575, 50 S. E. 214.

34. Dickens v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 909.

35. Motion to strike is necessary to reach unresponsive part of proper question though the question was objected to. Sheehy v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 356; State v. Castigno [Kan.] 80 P. 630.

36. A motion to exclude evidence given in an answer which was responsive to the question though the evidence is not legal, will be denied when made by the party who propounded the question. Dickens v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 14. Where the record does not show that a statement made by a witness on cross-examination was not made in response to a question, an objection to the statement on appeal is unavailing. Carwile v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 220.

37. Maxey v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1009. Incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, is not specific. State v. Nelson [Wash.] 81 P. 721. Objections to evidence not specified when it was offered will not be considered on appeal. Booth v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 252. An objection to the competency of evidence does not go to the competency of the witness. State v. Brown [Iowa] 102 N. W. 799. An objection that defendant was not present when prosecutrix in rape made complaint urged as a ground for admitting the fact of complaint waives the error of admitting the details of the complaint. Donaldson v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 906. A general objection of incompetency of evidence is unavailing if it is admissible for any purpose. Johnson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 824. Grounds must be stated. State v. Bailey [Mo.] 88 S. W. 733. One who does not state any ground of objection to the method of selecting a new jury after one juror has been excused cannot complain on appeal of the method adopted. Turner v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 650. Overruling a general objection to the admission of evidence and to which ruling no exception is taken is not error. State v. Lawrence [Nev.] 82 P. 614. A general objection to evidence cannot be sustained unless it is so manifestly illegal and irrelevant and apparently incapable of being rendered admissible in connection with other evidence. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919.

38. Several instructions. Darden v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 507; Thomas v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 404. Improper reference in argument to an instruction that had not been given and certain competent evidence is not reached by a general objection to the argument and motion to strike the evidence. Powell v. State [Ark.] 85 S. W. 781. From a bill of exceptions reciting that the court was asked to give the following instructions, setting out a number of requests, it will be assumed that they were requested as a whole, and the court could refuse them all if any one was erroneous. Yeats v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 760. When only a part of an answer is not responsive, a motion to exclude the whole, is not proper. Tagert v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 293.

39. Starke v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 850. An exception to a refusal to admit evidence which does not show what answer was expected to the question objected to cannot be reviewed. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329. Objection that deposition was taken without chance to cross-examine does not reach admissibility of particular answers. People v. Gilhooley, 95 N. Y. S. 636.

40. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601.

41. See 4 C. L. 70.

42. Where the exception does not show whether it is to a refusal to retire the jury or to the evidence it cannot be considered. Hall v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 707, 88 S. W. 244. Where an exception to evidence is that it is irrelevant and immaterial, the exception will be overruled unless the ing several rulings being insufficient if any one is correct.[43] An exception is not well taken where counsel announces that he will except whichever way the court rules on his motion.[44]

§ 15. Harmless or prejudicial error.[45]—Generally speaking, a conviction will not be reversed for technical errors where substantial justice has been done[46] or because of error that resulted in no harm or prejudice to defendant,[47] though he has properly saved his objection and exception to the ruling. Prejudice is generally presumed from error,[48] though the presumption may be rebutted.[49] Errors favorable to defendant,[50] or affecting only his co-defendant,[51] or which he has invited,[52] or acquiesced in, are not reversible.

Trivial or immaterial error.[53]—An error is harmless if too trivial in its nature or consequences to have substantially influenced the result.[54] The weight or evidence is obviously irrelevant and immaterial under any state of the case. Underwood v. State [Tex. Cr. App. 85 S. W. 794; Ellington v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 153.

43. An exception taken to instructions as a whole is insufficient if there be one correct one. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601. An exception to the entire charge will not be considered unless the whole charge is subject to such exception. Powell v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 369.

44. Starr v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 104, 86 S. W. 1023.

45. See 4 C. L. 70.

46. Conviction proper on merits not reversed for incompetent testimony introduced with objection. People v. Du Veau, 94 N. Y. S. 225.

47. Commonwealth v. Philadelphia H. & P. R. Co., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 235; Campbell v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 644. Defendant cannot complain of the striking out of inadmissible testimony, though the motion to strike was not seasonably made. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601.

So provided by statute. Code Cr. Proc. § 542. People v. Patrick [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 843; People v. Silverman, 181 N. Y. 235, 73 N. E. 980; People v. Seeley, 93 N. Y. S. 982. Code Cr. Proc. 1895, art. 723. Bollen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 148, 86 S. W. 1025. Pen. Code, § 1258. People v. Warner [Cal.] 82 P. 196. Defendant convicted of a minor offense sufficiently charged cannot complain of the insufficiency of the indictment to charge greater offense of which he was not convicted. State v. Miller [Kan.] 80 P. 947. A case having been fairly tried, overrefined distinctions or forced application of technicalities will not be indulged to defeat the result of the trial. Shaffer v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 417. Errors which are not substantial do not warrant a reversal. McCue v. Commonwealth [Va.] 49 S. E. 623.

48. There can be no presumption that the missing page of an indictment contained only a charge of prior convictions so as to render conviction on such indictment harmless. People v. Noon [Cal. App.] 81 P. 746.

49. State v. Coleman, 186 Mo. 151, 84 S. W. 978.

50. People v. Clark, 145 Cal. 727, 79 P. 434; Gallegos v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1150; Hilscher v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Reu. 713, 88 S. W. 227. Hearsay evidence. Abrams v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 173. Abstract instructions allowing conviction of less degree of crime than evidence warrants. Vasser v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 635. Instruction that evidence will not support verdict of guilty on certain theory. Commonwealth v. Razmus [Pa.] 60 A. 264. Instruction on self-defense. Holmes v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 320; State v. Gray [Or.] 79 P. 53. Instruction conflicting with one that was in defendant's favor. State v. Jones [Mont.] 80 P. 1095. Instruction limiting prosecution to less time than indictment alleged. Foreman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 809. Defendant cannot be prejudiced by the prosecuting attorney's refusal to prosecute on part of the charges. State v. Miller [Mo.] 87 S. W. 484. An instruction that the jury should convict if the crime was committed within three years prior to the date when the amended information was filed is not prejudicially erroneous. State v. Hunt [Mo.] 88 S. W. 719. In homicide where the sole defense was self-defense, and the jury convicted of manslaughter, a charge directing a conviction of manslaughter on facts which would have warranted a conviction of murder is not ground for reversal. Moore v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 504. Eliciting fact in murder trial that accused once apprehended thieves and delivered them to officers. State v. Gardner [Minn.] 104 N. W. 971.

51. A conspirator given a penitentiary sentence cannot complain that the verdict was illogical and unjust because letting the others off with a fine. O'Donnell v. People, 110 Ill. App. 250.

52. Improper argument invited by defendant. Dimmick v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 257. Defendant cannot object to evidence he calls for on cross-examination. People v. Rimieri, 180 N. Y. 163, 72 N. E. 1002; People v. Astell, 94 N. Y. S. 748. Improper matters in dying declaration ruled out and afterwards read at defendant's request. People v. Thompson, 145 Cal. 717, 79 P. 435. Instruction containing language identical with one requested. State v. Bush [Kan.] 79 P. 657; State v. Barnett, 110 Mo. App. 584, 85 S. W. 615.

53. See 4 C. L. 70.

54. Defect in defendant's copy of indictment. Allison v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 409. To refer in the instructions to prosecutrix in rape as "the little girl" is harmless. People v. Colbath [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 446, 104 N. W. 633.

strength of the evidence may affect the importance of error.[55] The rule that reversal will not follow non-prejudicial error has been applied to arraignment and plea,[56] selection of jury,[57] conduct of trial,[58] examination of witnesses,[59] admission [60] and exclusion [61] of evidence, and motions to strike evidence,[62] variance between indictment and proof,[63] conduct or remarks of court,[64] conduct, [65] remarks,[66]

55. Error in instructions held unimportant in view of the evidence. Murder. verett v. People [Ill.] 75 N. E. 188. Larceny. State v. Bjelkstrom [S. D.] 104 N. W. 481. Where the undisputed evidence shows defendant to be guilty and no other verdict could properly be rendered, the supreme court will not reverse a conviction for errors which did not bring about the result. Wistrand v. People [Ill.] 75 N. E. 891. Impeachment of witness by state held not prejudicial, defendant having admitted sufficient facts to warrant the conviction. Price v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 41.

56. That the accused who was jointly indicted with others was jointly arraigned with them after he had elected to sever upon trial is not ground for a new trial after a separate trial had been accorded him. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1.

57. Ullman v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 6; People v. Warner [Cal.] 82 P. 196. Overruling challenge for cause is immaterial to one who does not use all his peremptories. Commonwealth v. Spahr, 211 Pa. 542, 60 A. 1084. The rule that the solicitor should challenge for the state before the juror is accepted by the defendant, being based entirely upon the practice of the court, a verdict will not be set aside for a technical violation of the rule which does not affect defendant's rights. State v. Harding, 70 S. C. 395, 50 S. E. 11. Statutory method of selecting a new jury after one juror had been excused for sickness not complied with. Turner v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 650.

58. When, after a proper preliminary examination as to their free and voluntary nature, confessions are adjudged competent and received in evidence, there is no room for any question touching the propriety of having conducted the preliminary examination in the presence of the jury. Griner v. State, 121 Ga. 614, 49 S. E. 700.

59. Smith v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 983. Improper admission on cross of declarations of defendant admissible on direct. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601. A new trial will not be granted on the sole ground that the court allowed the prosecuting attorney to ask leading questions. Taylor v. State, 121 Ga. 348, 49 S. E. 303.

60. State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839; People v. Silverman [N. Y.] 73 N. E. 980; People v. Woods [Cal.] 81 P. 652; State v. Copeman [Mo.] 84 S. W. 942; Lyles v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 763; Bollen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 1025; State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706; State v. Bailey [Mo.] 88 S. W. 733; Maxey v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1009; Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 730, 88 S. W. 341. Where the defense is alibi, testimony by deceased's companion as to what he did after deceased was shot is harmless. State v. Roberts [Nev.] 82 P. 100. Evidence immaterial to the only issue not admitted. People v. Wolf, 95 N. Y. S. 264. Insignificant testimony in murder case. Trip of witness and defendant before crime. State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807. Proof that three notches were cut on pistol with which defendant killed three persons. Helton v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 574. Evidence that deceased's widow had a child, and afterward bringing the child into court and offering it in evidence. People v. Rimieri, 180 N. Y. 163, 72 N. E. 1002. Permitting a witness over objection to answer a wholly irrelevant and immaterial question held harmless error. People v. Roberts [Cal. App.] 82 P. 624. Error in permitting a question to be answered over objection is harmless where the same question has been previously answered without objection. State v. Lawrence [Nev.] 82 P. 614. For an expert in medicine to detail correctly how the forces of nature would operate to cause the fall of one on being killed. Turley v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 934. Defendant cannot complain of questions asked a state witness by the state attorney, nor of the answers to such questions, touching matters not in dispute and which are immaterial to the issue. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3. Admission of evidence of other acts of intercourse between prosecutrix and defendant in a prosecution for rape, held harmless. State v. Oswalt [Kan.] 82 P. 586. Error, if any, harmless in admitting statement of accused that if he ever got out of the scrape (prosecution for rape), he would never get in jail again, and that he had served three years for killing a girl and never thought he would be back. State v. Smith, 138 N. C. 700, 50 S. E. 859.

61. Exclusion of immaterial evidence. Upton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 687, 88 S. W. 212. Where the excluded question was immediately reasked and answered before objection made and sustained and the answer was not stricken there is no prejudice. State v. Patchen, 37 Wash. 24, 79 P. 479. Exclusion of evidence contradicting witness as to immaterial matter. Casteel v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1004. Error in excluding evidence which was not such as could reasonably have influenced the verdict is harmless. Turner v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 650. The exclusion of a question asked prosecuting witness whether she brought the case herself or somebody got her to bring it held not prejudicial to defendant, especially where defendant's testimony varied little from that of prosecutrix. State v. Sauls, 70 S. C. 393, 50 S. E. 17.

62. Refusal to strike immaterial but unprejudicial evidence. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846.

63. Variance in name of owner of burglarized building is immaterial where name of occupant is correctly charged in another count. Flanagan v. People, 214 Ill. 170, 73 N. E. 347.

64. People v. Astell, 94 N. Y. S. 748; People v. Modina, 146 Cal. 142, 79 P. 842; Vasser v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 635; State v. Eth-and argument of counsel,[67] instructions,[68] custody, conduct and deliberations of jury.[69]

Cure of error.[70]—Error may be harmless because some subsequent condition has rectified it or has averted its prejudicial effect.[71] Thus the admission of improper evidence may be cured by afterwards excluding it,[72] or withdrawing it from the jury,[73] or permitting proof of other facts rendering it innocuous,[74] or suffi-ridge [Mo.] 87 S. W. 495; Ince v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 818. Observation on circumstantial evidence on voir dire of juror. People v. Olson [Cal. App.] 81 P. 676. Mere inadvertent error by court in reciting evidence is not ground for reversing conviction where accused has counsel. State v. Murray [N. C.] 51 S. E. 775. Remarks made by the trial judge after verdict rendered held not ground for a new trial. Seats v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 65.

65. Reading inadmissible writing and asking question about it. State v. Coleman, 186 Mo. 151, 84 S. W. 978. Kissing baby born to prosecutrix in rape. State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839. Offering incompetent evidence. Dimmick v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 257.

66. Franks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 299, 87 S. W. 148.

67. Whit v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 284; Hooker v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 846; Smith v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 983. Reference to criminal history of county. People v. McRoberts [Cal. App.] 81 P. 734. Remarks concerning lynching of defendant. Id.

68. State v. Marx [Conn.] 60 A. 690; State v. Manderville, 37 Wash. 365, 79 P. 977; Bollen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 148, 86 S. W. 1025; Nelson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 627, 88 S. W. 807. No reversal for slight inaccuracies in instructions fairly correct as a whole. Flanagan v. People, 214 Ill. 170, 73 N. E. 347. Inadvertent use of "him" for "her," the assault being in fact on a woman. Magruder v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 587. Rule for weighing testimony of witness testifying falsely. Beck v. People, 115 Ill. App. 19. It is not prejudicial error to fail to charge the jury in a criminal case as to the effect of a recommendation of mercy, where such an instruction was not requested. Mason v. State, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 647. Instruction correct in abstract but merely irrelevant. People v. Griffith, 146 Cal. 339, 80 P. 68. Mere abstract charge on manslaughter. Bell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 558, 87 S. W. 1160. Failure to give in the charge the statute. Pen. Code, 1895, § 381, informing the jury of the specific offense of which accused was indicted or as to the distinction between fornication and adultery held harmless. Seals v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 65. An inaccurate instruction giving an abstract principle of law is not reversible error where the court subsequently gives full, clear and correct instruction on the law as applicable to accused's contentions. Allams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 506. The fact that the trial judge inaccurately informed the jury that the accused was under indictment for fornication and adultery, when in fact the indictment charged fornication is harmless where the accused was not prejudiced. Seats v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 65. A charge as to the mode of ascertaining the intent while not strictly accurate is not ground for a new trial where the guilt of the accused clearly and unmistakably appears. Ham v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 342. Where, in an assault case, the victim did not die, but was present and testified, a charge to find defendant guilty of murder, if the jury so believed him guilty, was so manifestly inapplicable to the facts as to be harmless error. Pollard v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 149. Where an indictment charges and the evidence conclusively shows the commission of the completed act of concealment of birth, an instruction that a conviction could be had for an "attempt to conceal" is harmless. McLoud v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 145. Charge defining "direct" evidence, there being none and other parts of charge having correctly set forth the elements of the crime and the evidence. State v. Blydenburgh [Iowa] 104 N. W. 1015. Where a statement of the accused made during the trial demands the verdict, a new trial will be refused even though the charge of the court was not entirely correct. Carpenter v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 58.

69. Slight separation in burglary case. Flanagan v. People, 214 Ill. 170, 73 N. E. 347.

70. See 4 C. L. 74.

71. Van Meer v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 264. Error in holding certain counts sufficient is cured by acquittal on those counts. Knox v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 255. Error in denying defendant the privilege of proving the facts he alleges in support of a challenge to the panel is cured by subsequent withdrawal of the ruling, and defendant's declination. People v. Lee [Cal. App.] 81 P. 969. Where the judge instructed the jury, in case of any misconduct, not to make affidavits of the same, but two jurors did make such affidavits as provided by law, the erroneous instruction was harmless. Code Cr. Proc. art. 817, provides for such affidavits. Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W. 203.

72. An unresponsive answer promptly stricken out is not error. Simon v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 1100. The striking out of testimony of the state's attorney fortifying that of a witness does not cure the error in admitting such testimony. Flowers v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 814.

73. Dimmick v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 257; Johnson v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 133; Roberts v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 301, 87 S. W. 147. Previous fire. Arson. People v. Wagner, 180 N. Y. 58, 72 N. E. 577. There are cases where the error is not cured by withdrawal. State v. Finch [Kan.] 81 P. 494.

74. Evidence of fact rendered innocuous by other evidence. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846. Mental perturbation of defendant on visiting house where homicide occurred. Helton v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 574. Refusal to permit a witness to state threats is harmless where he after-ciently establishing or disproving the same fact by other unobjectionable evidence,[75] by instructions rendering it immaterial.[76] The improper exclusion of evidence may be cured by afterwards admitting the same,[77] or other evidence of similar effect. Error in allowing an improper question to be put may be cured by the answer,[78] or by a failure to answer.[79] Refusal to compel an election is cured by submission of a single count.[80] A verdict on an issue to which the error did not rewards states that there were none. Tetterton v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 89 S. W. 8.

75. Woodruff v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1114; People v. Seeley, 93 N. Y. S. 982; State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561; Robbins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 690; Misenheimer v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 494; Cage v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 631; Mathley v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 988; Commonwealth v. Woelfel [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1061; State v. Minck [Minn.] 102 N. W. 207; Tones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 722, 88 S. W. 217. Opinion of witness that described wounds were caused by blunt instrument. People v. Olsen [Cal. App.] 81 P. 676. Allowing parol evidence of a statement that had been reduced to writing is harmless where the writing itself is afterwards introduced. State v. Usher, 126 Iowa, 281, 102 N. W. 101. Involuntary confession is harmless where a subsequent voluntary one shows the same facts. Andrews v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1031. Incompetent proof of issuance of license to dramshop keeper is harmless where he admitted it below and his testimony below is shown. State v. Barnett, 110 Mo. App. 584, 85 S. W. 615. Statement of deceased that he was shot through the stomach is harmless, though not res gestae where it was the fact. State v. Roberts [Nev.] 82 P. 100. Rejection of witness' conclusion is harmless where he states all the facts. Richardson v. Campbell [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 282. Parol proof of a matter which is presumptively true is no error. Burnett v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 956. Other evidence of same fact not objected to. Maxey v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1009. Admission of irrelevant letters harmless error where same facts were proved by competent evidence or by evidence not objected to. Lorenz v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 337. Erroneous cross-examination cured by eliciting same evidence later. People v. Richards [Cal. App.] 82 P. 691. Objections to evidence tending to show flight or concealment will not be considered on defendant subsequently admitting facts showing his flight and concealment. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3. The refusal to permit a witness to testify that five days after the homicide he saw bruises and contusions on the defendant's head, held not harmful, other undisputed evidence as to the bruises on defendant's head immediately after the killing having been admitted. McDuffie v. State, 121 Ga. 580, 49 S. E. 708. Where a witness for the state states a fact in his testimony which accused admits to be true, an appellate court will not determine whether the trial court should have permitted certain questions on cross-examination, the object of which was to test the knowledge of the witness of the fact so admitted Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3.

76. White v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 753. Instruction to disregard stricken testimony. State v. Levick [Iowa] 104 N. W. 334. Withdrawing issue. McKinney v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 638, 88 S. W. 1012. Improper admission of evidence held cured by subsequent instruction to jury to disregard same. State v. Emblem, 56 W. Va. 678, 49 S. E. 554. In a prosecution for murder, error in the admission of hearsay evidence held not cured by a subsequent direction to disregard such testimony. Davis v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 1018. Error in the admission of testimony is cured by ruling it out and instructing the jury to disregard it. Rentfrow v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 596. Errors in the admission of evidence are cured by withdrawing it from the consideration of the jury. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1.

77. Commonwealth v. Danz, 211 Pa. 507, 60 A. 1070; Hellard v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 329; Collins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 585. Assignments of error based on rulings of the court excluding questions propounded to a state witness on cross-examination will not be held erroneous when the witness is afterwards produced by the defendant and testifies fully as to the same matters. Marlow v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 653. Refusal to allow defendants to ask certain questions on cross examination cured, if error, when defendants asked same questions of witness when subsequently called as their own. Lorenz v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 337. Where assignments of error are based on the refusal of the trial judge to allow a witness to answer certain questions, and it appears from the record that all said questions were substantially answered at a subsequent stage of the proceedings, such assignments of error will not be considered by the appellate court. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3.

78. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846; People v. Antony, 146 Cal. 124, 79 P. 858; State v. Manderville, 37 Wash. 365, 79 P. 977; Stull v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 1059; Underwood v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 794; Fonseca v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1069. Exclusion of question harmless where witness said he could not remember. State v. Jones, 125 Iowa, 508, 99 N. W. 179. On a defense of insanity in homicide, error in a hypothetical question allowed is harmless where the answer was that under the conditions stated a man might be either sane or insane. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. If there is error in asking an expert whether insanity can be simulated, an answer "I don't know" is harmless. Id.

79. Where a question is objected to and not answered, an assignment of error based thereon will not be considered. Marlow v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 653.

80. Hofland v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 798.

late cures the error.[81] Improper remarks,[82] conduct,[83] and argument [84] by the prosecuting attorney, may, if not too flagrant, be cured by prompt action of the court and instructions to disregard them,[85] and the same rule has been applied to an improper statement by the sheriff in open court.[86] Errors in the admission of evidence may be of such damaging character as not to be curable by ordinary corrective proceedings.[87] If after verdict it appears that a witness for the state testified without being sworn and that the defendant had no knowledge of such irregularity until after verdict, a new trial must be allowed, though the error was purely accidental.[88]

§ 16. Stay of proceedings after conviction.[89]—Except in capital cases, an appeal does not in some states stay execution unless a certificate of probable cause is obtained.[89a] A reprieve by the governor is not a "proceeding" nullified or suspended by pendency of Federal habeas corpus or appeal therefrom.[89b] A premature

81. Thomas v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 404. Unauthorized instruction on conspiracy is cured by verdict of manslaughter. Moseley v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 748. Instruction submitting an offense not included in indictment. State v. Sheets [Iowa] 102 N. W. 415. Failure to instruct on manslaughter is not prejudicial to one convicted of murder in the first degree. Nash v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 497. Argument on murder not prejudicial to one convicted of manslaughter. Where all the evidence made a case at least of manslaughter. Whit v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 284. Conviction of second degree murder cures error in charging on first degree. Thurman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 147, 86 S. W. 1014; Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 555, 87 S. W. 1036; State v. Craig [Mo.] 88 S. W. 641. The correctness of a charge on a higher grade of offense than that of which the defendant has been convicted becomes immaterial. Vickery v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 907. Instruction relative to assault with intent to ravish where the jury convicted only of simple assault. People v. Green [Cal. App.] 82 P. 544. Where a charge was expressly confined to murder in the third degree, and the evidence did not tend to show a case of murder in such degree, and the verdict was for murder in the second degree, held immaterial whether charge was legally accurate. Marlow v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 653. An erroneous instruction is rendered harmless by a manifestly correct verdict. People v. Taggart [Cal. App.] 82 P. 396. In homicide the jury having returned a verdict of guilty of manslaughter, assignments relating to instructions of the judge on the subject of murder are immaterial. McDuffie v. State, 121 Ga. 580, 49 S. E. 708. Consideration of a refusal to charge that "if the jury believe the evidence, they will find the defendant not guilty" is unnecessary where the jury found defendant guilty. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329. The verdict being for voluntary manslaughter, a charge that if deceased was the aggressor it was not sufficient provocation for the homicide, held not harmful to the accused, even if not authorized by the evidence or his statement. Goodman v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 922. Error in the admission of testimony to show malice in homicide is harmless where the conviction is of manslaughter. Moore v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 504. Where instructions are confined to offenses of a less degree than one found by the verdict, and contain nothing that would lead the jury to misinterpret them or misapply the evidence, and there is evidence to sustain the verdict, that the charges as applied to offenses of a lesser degree were inaccurate is harmless. Jordan v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 155. Where defendant was convicted of murder in the first degree, failure to charge on the question of manslaughter is harmless. State v. Teachey, 138 N. C. 587, 50 S. E. 232.

82. People v. Woods [Cal.] 81 P. 652.

83. Harmon v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 765.

84. Smith v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 983; State v. Rooke [Idaho] 79 P. 82; State v. Dunn [Wis.] 102 N. W. 935. Improper argument may be objected to by motion for mistrial or for an instruction, and where an appropriate instruction is asked and given, a subsequent motion for mistrial should not generally be entertained. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1. Held not error to refuse to grant mistrial on account of an improper remark of the solicitor general in his argument to the jury, he having expressly withdrawn it, and the court having instructed the jury not to consider it. Goodman v. State [Ga.] 49 S. E. 922.

85. Mount v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 707; Pratt v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 651. Offer to charge on subject and declination held to waive prejudicial argument. White v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1140.

86. The action of the sheriff in stating before the jury that the mother of the accused was in court with a revolver was cured by an instruction that the jury should not allow the incident to have any effect upon their minds. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1.

87. Erroneous impeachment of material witness, the evidence being closed. Nash v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 497. Allowing proof of continuance of highway obstruction till time of trial. Richardson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 282.

88. State v. Taylor [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 247.

89. See 4 C. L. 75.

89a. Certificate should be granted unless appeal is clearly frivolous. People v. Gallanar, 144 Cal. 656, 79 P. 378. Supersedeas does not result from a mere certificate of probable cause in North Dakota where accused has neither given bail nor applied to the circuit judge for stay without it. Rev. Codes 1899, §§ 8335, 8340. State v. Sanders [N. D.] 103 N. W. 419.

89b. U. S. Rev. St. § 766. Rogers v. Peck, 26 S. Ct. 87.

appeal from the refusal of a bill of particulars does not disable the trial court from proceeding with the case.[89c]

§ 17. Appeal and review. A. Right of review.[90]—Review is allowable only where expressly authorized by statute.[91] It is no part of the "due process of law."[92] The general rule is that an acquittal, however accomplished, is final, and that appeal or error on behalf of the government does not lie,[93] but in some states an appeal or error proceedings on behalf of the state are provided.[94] Where defendant is discharged on the ground that the proof is insufficient to warrant a conviction, the state has no right of appeal.[95] A sheriff has no right of appeal from the taxation of costs.[96] A person upon whom an alternative sentence has been imposed, and who voluntarily complies with that portion of the sentence which is legal, cannot thereafter have the judgment of conviction reviewed.[97]

(§ 17) B. The remedy for obtaining review.[98]—Statutory modes of review, such as appeal or error, must be pursued where provided and applicable, and not certiorari, prohibition,[99] or habeas corpus.[1] Federal habeas corpus reaches cases only where some fundamental right under the Federal constitution is invaded.[2] A dismissal on the ground of the want of jurisdiction is not such an assumption of jurisdiction as to require its review by appellate proceedings.[3] In such a case mandamus may be had to require the court to hear and determine the cause.[4] Criminal cases are reviewed by error and not by appeal in Illinois,[5] but in the absence of a motion to dismiss, an appealed case will be heard and determined as though pending on writ of error.[6] The circuit court in South Dakota cannot review by man-

89c. State v. Dewey [N. C.] 51 S. E. 937.

90. See 4 C. L. 76.

91. People v. Carroll, 93 N. Y. S. 926. The right of appeal is exclusively of statutory origin. Cain v. State [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1102. The right of the state to prosecute error exists only in cases as to which it is expressly provided. Mick v. State [Ohio] 74 N. E. 284.

92. McCue v. Commonwealth [Va.] 49 S. E. 623.

93. Directed verdict. People v. Hill, 146 Cal. 145, 79 P. 845. Error does not lie on behalf of the state to review the action of the common pleas in reversing a conviction before a justice of the peace. Mick v. State [Ohio] 74 N. E. 284.

94. Commonwealth v. Williams [Ky.] 86 S. W. 553. Where defendant's motion for a new trial is granted after conviction because of objections to the argument of the district attorney, the state has no right of appeal. Rev. Code 1892, § 39, construed. State v. Thompson [Miss.] 38 So. 321.

95. State v. Willingham [Miss.] 38 So. 334. Under D. C. Code, § 935, an appeal lies by the United States from an order of the D. C. supreme court quashing an indictment on the ground that more than 9 months elapsed between the holding of the accused to bail and his indictment by the grand jury. United States v. Cadarr, 24 App. D. C. 143; United States v. Hayman, 24 App. D. C. 158.

96. Beverly v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 589.

97. Certiorari sued by such person should be dismissed, and a judgment overruling the certiorari and dismissing the petition will not be disturbed. Brown v. Atlanta [Ga.] 51 S. E. 507. Even if the recorder could not properly state in his answer to the certiorari that the fine had been paid, a statement therein to this effect could be acted on by the superior court in the absence of a traverse of the answer or a denial of the facts therein stated. Id.

98. See 4 C. L. 76.

99. Writ of prohibition to prevent prosecution for violation of alleged invalid city regulation requiring individuals to keep walks free from snow and ice denied, where petitioner had been prosecuted in only one case and where he could have a review by writ of error if convicted. But held proper to suspend trials until validity of regulation was determined. United States v. Scott, 25 App. D. C. 88.

1. Welty v. Ward [Ind.] 73 N. E. 889; Commonwealth v. Keeper of County Prison, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 191; Ex parte Knudtson [Idaho] 79 P. 641; Ex parte Terry [Kan.] 80 P. 586; Ex parte Russell [Wash.] 82 P. 290. Federal courts will not usually discharge a prisoner held under conviction by a state court where he has a remedy by appeal to the supreme court of the United States. In re Dowd, 133 P. 747. They allow the writ in discretion in such cases. Brown v. Urquhart, 139 F. 846.

2. Rogers v. Peck, 26 S. Ct. 87.

3. Where a circuit court dismisses an appeal from a municipal court on the ground that it had no jurisdiction, as no writ of error had been issued in the cause, it is not merely a determination of a question of final appellate practice in the circuit court, but such dismissal is a refusal to exercise a jurisdiction conferred by law. State v. Wills [Fla.] 38 So. 289.

4. State v. Wills [Fla.] 38 So. 289.

5, 6. Weare Commission Co. v. People, 111 Ill. App. 116.

damus the action of a committing magistrate in refusing to punish a witness for contempt.[7]

(§ 17) C. Adjudications which may be reviewed.[8]—The judgment must be a finality in the trial court.[9] Intermediate orders are not generally appealable,[10] except with final judgment.[11] An appeal from a void judgment of conviction will be dismissed.[12] A judgment of guilty of criminal contempt may be reviewed on error in Massachusetts.[13]

(§ 17) D. Courts of review and their jurisdiction.[14]—Appeals in felony cases lie only to the supreme court in Missouri, but an appeal taken to the wrong court will be transferred.[15] The limitations placed upon appeals to the New York court of appeals by the New York constitution have no application to criminal cases.[16] The supreme court of Florida has not appellate jurisdiction in cases of conviction of misdemeanor in criminal courts of record.[17] The Federal constitution or a treaty must be directly brought in issue to authorize a review in the supreme court of a judgment of the district court of Porto Rico,[18] but a motion in arrest because the grand jury was not selected as required by Federal law is one in which an act of congress is drawn in question.[19] A plea of immunity from arrest as a United States senator involves the Federal constitution and authorizes direct review by error from the district to the supreme court.[20]

(§ 17) E. Procedure to bring up the cause.[21]—Appeals are generally, though not universally,[22] matters of right on compliance with statutes granting them,[23] while writs of error,[24] certiorari, and the like, are grantable within the judicial discretion of the court or judge to whom the application is made, depending on the

7. Farnham v. Coleman [S. D.] 103 N. W. 161.

8. See 4 C. L. 76.

9. Refusal to quash writ of habeas corpus to bring accused from prison for trial is not a final judgment and cannot be reviewed on appeal on error. Rigor v. State [Md.] 61 A. 631. Until there has been a judgment finally disposing of the case in the trial court, the supreme court has no jurisdiction to pass upon an assignment of error complaining of the striking of a plea of former jeopardy filed by accused. McElroy v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 596.

10. Exception lies to the denial of a motion to quash an indictment. Commonwealth v. Hall, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 104. Refusal to transfer a cause for disqualification of the judge affects a substantial right and is appealable. People v. Haas, 93 N. Y. S. 790. No appeal lies from refusal to appoint a referee to take depositions for use on motion to quash. People v. Carroll, 93 N. Y. S. 926. The appellate jurisdiction of the supreme court of Louisiana is confined to final judgments. Order refusing commission to inquire into sanity, made after judgment affirmed, not appealable. State v. Chretien [La.] 38 So. 27. A special appeal from an interlocutory order in a criminal case will not be allowed by the court of appeals of the District of Columbia except in a case of exigency. In re Gassenheimer, 24 App. D. C. 312. Such appeal denied when order was one denying a transfer of the case on the ground of prejudice of the judge as shown by his conduct in a former trial, when the case could have transferred only to a court presided over by a justice who was disqualified because he was prosecuting attorney when the indictment was found. Id.

11. An appeal from refusal of a bill of particulars can be taken only in case final judgment is against defendant. Cannot be taken at once. State v. Dewey [N. C.] 51 S. E. 937.

12. Walker v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 242.

13. Rev. Laws, c. 193, § 9, and c. 156, § 3. Hurley v. Commonwealth [Mass.] 74 N. E. 677.

14. See 4 C. L. 77.

15. State v. Oldenhage, 185 Mo. 618, 84 S. W. 873.

16. People v. Gaffey [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 836.

17. Walden v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 151.

18. Ground of motion in arrest that indictment "did not state an offense under the statutes of the United States" insufficient. Amado v. U. S., 195 U. S. 172, 49 Law. Ed. 145.

19. Criminal case. Rodriguez v. U. S., 198 U. S. 156, 49 Law. Ed. 994.

20. Burton v. U. S., 196 U. S. 283, 49 Law. Ed. 482.

21. See 4 C. L. 78.

22. Federal court will not allow an appeal from its refusal of habeas corpus to release one convicted in state court where the supreme court of the United States has already decided against the existence of a federal question. Ex parte Look, 134 F. 308.

23. A notice of appeal in which the name of the appealing party is inserted in the body thereof is sufficient. Statute requires notice to be signed by party. Laws 1902, p. 580, c. 183, § 16. State Board of Health v. McCue [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1094.

24. In Virginia it is the duty of the supreme court of appeals to deny a writ of error in a criminal case, when of opinion that the judgment is plainly right. Code § 3466 construed. McCue v. Commonwealth showing made in the petition, assignments, or other necessary application.[25] The suing out of a writ of error or review is a new suit,[26] while an appeal is the continuation of the action, which is unaffected by legislation enacted during its pendency.[27] Summons in error may be waived by the prosecuting attorney,[28] but some notice of appeal is jurisdictional,[29] and it should show who appeals and that he has a right so to do,[30] and must be filed with the proper officer.[31] Review must be sought or taken within the time limited by statute,[32] but an appeal within time is not affected by the adjournment of court below before it was taken.[33] A clerical error in calling the judgment appealed from "an order" is immaterial.[34-37]

A recognizance on appeal [38] in the statutory form is necessary,[39] which in Texas must state the crime of which defendant was convicted,[40] the punishment inflicted,[41] except in case of misdemeanors,[42] place of holding court,[43] and the term to which the appeal is taken.[44] A defective recognizance cannot be supplied by a new one nunc pro tunc.[45]

(§ 17) F. Perpetuation of proceedings in the "record." What must appear, and whether by record proper or bill of exceptions.[46]—What must appear to authorize a review of particular errors is elsewhere treated.[47] Those matters which belong to the record proper must appear thereby,[48] and such matters need not be and cannot be otherwise shown;[49] but all matters not part of the record proper [Va.] 49 S. E. 623. [In this case all the authorities on this point decided in Virginia since 1854 are collected].

25. The petition for a writ of error in Maryland must be accompanied by sufficient assignments of of error. Assignments held too vague for consideration. McCaddin v. State [Md.] 60 A. 474.

26. State v. Bringgold [Wash.] 82 P. 132.

27. An appeal filed Sept. 12, 1902, is not affected by the amendment to Acts 1901, p. 506, c. 247, § 78, approved March 9, 1903. Bailey v. State, 163 Ind. 165, 71 N. E. 655.

28. Nichols v. State, 71 Ohio St. 335, 73 N. E. 220.

29. State v. Salyers [Iowa] 103 N. W. 954; Mason v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 699.

30. Notice of appeal averring that "I, George B. McIntyre, Prosecuting Attorney of the 52nd. Judicial Circuit, have appealed," etc., held to sufficiently show that the state appealed. State v. Sutherlin [Ind.] 75 N. E. 642.

31. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 1962, providing that an appeal by the state in a criminal case shall stand for trial after filing the transcript and notices of appeal, requires that the notices be filed with the clerk of the appellate tribunal, and not with the clerk of the court from which the appeal was taken. State v. Sutherlin [Ind.] 75 N. E. 642.

32. Six months in criminal cases. § 1601, Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903. Kock v. State [Neb.] 102 N. W. 768. Judgment of superior court overruling certiorari affirmed when application for certiorari was too late. White v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E 505.

33. State v. Fairbanks [La.] 39 So. 443.

34, 35, 36, 37. People v. Canepi, 181 N. Y. 398, 74 N. E. 473.

38. See 4 C. L. 79.

39. Cain v. State [Ind. App.] 74 N. E 1102. Use of "in this court" for "in this cause" is not fatal. Cassens v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 708, 88 S. W. 229. A statement that defendant has "given notice of appeal to the county court" sufficiently states that he has appealed. Holland v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 640, 88 S. W. 361.

40. A recognizance stating the specific offense instead of merely calling it a misdemeanor is bad. Hart v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 592; Smith v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 333.

41. Hart v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 592; Smith v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 333; Thomas v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 353.

42. An appeal from a conviction of a misdemeanor will be dismissed, where the recognizance does not state the amount of punishment assessed against appellant. Code Cr. Proc. 1895, art. 887, considered. Martin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1029, 89 S. W. 642; Dove v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1028, 80 S. W. 646; Fortenberry v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1028, 89 S. W. 646.

43. Russell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 589.

44. Smith v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 78 S. W. 937.

45. Smith v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 333.

46. See 4 C. L. 78.

47. See post, this section.

48. The form of verdict prepared in the jury room has no significance and is no part of the record. Commonwealth v. Flaherty, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 490. Where a cause is brought up from an alleged conviction and the record contains no copy of the judgment or recital of what it was, the appeal will be dismissed. Brown v. Territory [Okl.] 82 P. 647.

49. Mittimus cannot supply want of recital of final judgment. Ryan v. People, 111 Ill. App. 484. The supreme court of Georgia will not interfere with the order of the judge of the superior court refusing to sanction a writ of certiorari from a judgment must appear by bill of exceptions or its equivalent,[50] and where there is no bill of exceptions,[51] or it is not properly in the record,[52] matters necessary to be presented thereby cannot be reviewed, only the record proper in such case being presented for review.[53] Journal entries control over recitals in the bill of exceptions.[54]

Making, settling and approving.[55]—The bill of exceptions or like memorial of the proceedings must be approved by the trial judge, and filed within the statutory or allowed period,[56] and the bill must show such facts.[57] The bill must be considered with explanations placed thereon by the judge and accepted by defendant.[58] It is no longer the practice in most states to make up the bills of exceptions during the progress of the trial. In some states provision is made for authentication by affidavit of bystanders if the judge refuses to sign.[59]

Under the Georgia practice, the motion for new trial,[60] when approved by the trial court, is used as a substitute for bill of exceptions, all matters set out in the motion being made of record by the approval.[61] The short bill of exceptions is of conviction in a county court where the record fails to show that the petitioner filed the affidavit required by Pen. Code 1895, § 765. King v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 64. The appellant's "statement of the case on appeal" has no place in the record and will not be considered. State v. Dewey [N. C.] 51 S. E. 937.

50. Motion to quash. State v. Tooker [Mo.] 87 S. W. 487. Motion to quash based on facts outside the record proper. Commonwealth v. Mock, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 51. Motion to disqualify judge. State v. Faulkner, 185 Mo. 673, 84 S. W. 967. Affidavits in support of motion for new trial for misconduct of juror. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601. Argument by prosecuting attorney. State v. Williams, 186 Mo. 128, 84 S. W. 924. Instructions. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601; State v. McCoy [Kan.] 79 P. 156. Ruling on challenge to array. Ullman v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 6. Limitation as to time to try case, and failure to compel witness to answer. Ramon v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 611, 87 S. W. 1043. In order that an appeal from county court be heard de novo in circuit, the evidence must be brought up by bill. Holmes v. Robertson County Court [Ky.] 89 S. W. 106. Affidavits and other papers, which are not a part of the record proper, cannot be considered by the appellate court, even though they are copied into the transcript, unless they are incorporated in the bill of exceptions. Reyes v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 257.

51. State v. Oldenhage, 185 Mo. 618, 84 S. W. 873. An unsigned bill of exceptions cannot be considered. Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W. 203, 52. Where the bill of exceptions has been stricken from the transcript, no errors assigned can be considered except those which have basis in the record proper. Lamb v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 906.

53. State v. Oldenhage, 185 Mo. 618, 84 S. W. 873; State v. Emerson [Mo.] 87 S. W. 469.

54. Time of entering plea. State v. Moon [Kan.] 80 P. 597. Entries required to be made in the record proper of the trial cannot be contradicted by the bill of exceptions. Date of trial and verdict rendered. Hanley v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 149. Cannot be questioned on habeas corpus. Id.

55. See 4 C. L. 80.

56. Bill to denial of new trial must be filed during term unless extended. State v. Miller [Mo.] 88 S. W. 607. Where the case comes up by strict bill of exceptions and the exceptions are not signed or sealed by the judge, affirmance must follow. State v. Leschine [N. J. Law] 60 A. 29. There must be an order filing it or making it part of the record. Holmes v. Robertson County Ct. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 106. Where the transcript on appeal shows that the bill of exceptions was not presented to the trial judge for authentication within the time allowed therefor after the expiration of the term of court, such bill of exceptions is a nullity. Lamb v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 906. The time within which a defendant granted "until" January 5th to have his bill of exceptions signed by the trial judge must do so expires midnight, January 4th. Richardson v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 12.

57. Authentication set out held sufficient, though not in language of statute. Case made. Hill v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 757. Papers filed with a so-called "skeleton bill" stricken. Battier v. State [Tenn.] 86 S. W. 711. Where it does not affirmatively appear that service of a bill of exceptions was made or waived after the certificate of the presiding judge was attached, the writ of error must be dismissed upon motion. Cooper v. State, 121 Ga. 578, 49 S. E. 707, following Bush v. Keaton, 65 Ga. 296.

58. Pool v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 616, 88 S. W. 350.

59. The statute permitting this is not available where the judge made a return unsatisfactory to appellant. Johnson v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 133; Moree v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 1117. Affidavit held not sufficient. McLaughlin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 296, 87 S. W. 158. The affidavit of three bystanders is necessary in Texas, one being insufficient. Taylor v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 639, 87 S. W. 1039.

60. See 4 C. L. 81.

61. The only special assignment of error in the motion for a new trial, being upon the admission of evidence and it not appearing from the motion what objection was made thereto, the assignment of error cannot be considered. Harris v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 596. Where an assignment of error depends on a recital of facts shown by a note of the proper only when the judgment decree or verdict has necessarily been controlled by the ruling, order, decision or charge complained of.[62]

Where the marginal notes on the transcript are sufficient to serve the purpose intended, the appeal will not be dismissed because they are not as full as they ought to be.[63]

The statement of facts [64] must be approved and filed [65] within the statutory or allowed period.

Limitation of review to matters in the record.[66]—Except as to those jurisdictional matters which the record in most states is required to show,[67] the record is construed against the party alleging error,[68] and every reasonable presumption is in favor of the correctness of the proceedings below, and unless the record shows error this presumption will prevail,[69] and the certified record is conclusive as to matters contained therein.[70] Accordingly, to entitle appellant to review a ruling, it must presiding judge and by another part of the bill of exceptions to be substantially incorrect, the assignment will be disregarded. Henderson v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 764. Ground of motion for new trial alleging error in admission of evidence but not setting out the evidence objected to will not be considered. Vinson v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 79. A motion for a new trial that is not approved by the trial judge will not be considered on appeal. Green v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 53.

62. Henderson v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 764.

63. State v. Sutherlin [Ind.] 75 N. E. 642.

64. See 4 C. L. 81.

65. Hall v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 707, 88 S. W. 244.

66. See 4 C. L. 82.

67. See ante, this section, The Record.

68. A bill of exceptions is construed most strongly against the party excepting, and if it will admit of two constructions, one of which will reverse and the other sustain the judgment, the latter will be adopted. Dickens v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 14.

69. Van Meer v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 264; Smiley v. Territory [Okl.] 81 P. 433; Mosely v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 748; Johnson v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 906; Burnett v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 956. Where a sentence is imposed to begin in the future on the expiration of prior sentence imposed by another tribunal, it will be presumed in support of the judgment, there being no evidence to the contrary, that the court had before it the record of the prior conviction as a basis for its action. Rigor v. State [Md.] 61 A. 631. On appeal the judgment roll alone instructions will not reverse unless they would be erroneous under any state of the evidence. People v. Wong Fook Sam, 146 Cal. 114, 79 P. 848. Presumed that peremptory challenge was exercised by the state before juror was sworn in chief. Daniels v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 844. Presumed that overruled application for continuance was a second application. Sliger v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 243. On a silent record, allegel erroneous rulings cannot be reviewed. State v. Packenham [Wash.] 82 P. 597. On appeal from an order, regular on its face, committing one to the reform school, it is presumed, on a silent record, that all proceedings prior to the entry of the order were regular. Id. Errors not apparent from the bill of exceptions will not be considered. State v. Lawrence [Nev.] 82 P. 614. On appeal, no presumption of error will be indulged in to invalidate judicial action. It will be presumed that court's action in excusing member of grand jury after latter was impaneled was correct. Posey v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 324. It is presumed on appeal that the trial judge ascertained prior to the organization of the jury that the jurors possessed legal qualifications. Carwile v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 220. Where, on a trial for homicide, the state showed a previous difficulty between defendant and deceased, and the court refused to permit the defendant to show the details thereof, and, although the jury had retired, refused to hear what counsel was going to ask the witnesses, the state could not, on appeal, urge that defendant should not have the benefit of an assignment of error predicated on the refusal of the court to admit the offered evidence because the record did not show what the details thereof were. Brown v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 957. Record held to show no denial of right of counsel on preliminary hearing, accused having been informed of his rights and given opportunity and having proceeded at once to a hearing in order to plead guilty and be released on bail. People v. Gilhooley, 95 N. Y. S. 636. A motion for a new trial for denial of defendant's request to poll the jury is no proof of the denial of such request. Cable v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 98. An appellate court will assume that a question propounded to a witness was proper, until it is made to appear by a statement of the question in the record, objection thereto and exception taken to an unfavorable ruling thereon. Caldwell v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 188. Where the bill of exceptions has been stricken from the transcript of the record, the appellate court cannot consider assignments of error which have a basis only in the bill of exceptions so stricken. Bardwell v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 511. Whether or not a question asked a witness was proper held not ascertainable from the record, hence not open to review. Campbell v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 644. Assignments of error cannot be considered when there is nothing in the transcript upon which they can be predicated. Reyes v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 257.

70. Where the record shows that counsel consented to exhibits going to jury room, he cannot insist on appeal that he objected. People v. Rimieri, 180 N. Y. 163, 72 N. E. 1002.

affirmatively appear that such ruling was made,[71] or the proceeding had,[72] of which complaint is made, and such facts as show that it was error,[73] and the objection or exception must be shown,[74] with the grounds.[75]

Setting out evidence or statement of facts.[76]—A statement of facts or other showing of the evidence is necessary to a review of the sufficiency of the evidence,[77] admission of evidence,[78] examination of witnesses,[79] giving or refusal of instructions,[80] denial of new trial,[81] rulings on motions,[82] argument or conduct of counsel,[83]

Matters not contained in the bill of exceptions cannot be considered. Bill cannot be impeached by affidavit of counsel. Moree v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 1117. Affidavits attacking the statement of facts as incorrect cannot be considered where no jurisdictional fact is raised. Magruder v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 587. On appeal the copy of the indictment as it appears in the record imports absolute verity and the court cannot resort to anything dehors the record for the purpose of contradicting it. Terrell v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 884. If the copy of the indictment in the record does not correspond to the original, the correction should be secured by means of a certiorari. Id.

71. Showing that judge failed to sign instructions held sufficient. Jones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1075.

72. Misconduct of prosecuting attorney in argument must be shown by record to be available. State v. Price [Mo.] 84 S. W. 920. Review on theory that jurors smelled of bottles of liquor siezed from defendant's place refused because fact not shown of record. State v. Schmidt [Kan.] 80 P. 948. Exception to refusal of a new trial will not be reviewed where the record does not show any motion made. State v. Gadsden, 70 S. C. 430, 50 S. E. 16. The ruling of a trial court denying a motion to quash an indictment must be embraced in the record proper, in order that an appellate court may consider an assignment of error based thereon. Houston v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 468.

73. State v. Scholfield [N. D.] 102 N. W. 878; State v. Gearhart [N. D.] 102 N. W. 880. In the absence of statement of facts and bill of exceptions, questions of fact cannot be considered. Lewis v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 80 S. W. 621. Unless the purpose of testimony excluded is obvious, the bill of exceptions should state it, that the court may intelligently pass on the objection to it. Upton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 687, 88 S. W. 212. Evidence not shown to be not res gestae will not be reversed. Steinke v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 753; Gray v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 764.

74. Exceptions to instructions must appear. Ullman v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 6; Barker v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 71. Error in overruling motion for special venire. State v. Price, 186 Mo. 140, 84 S. W. 920.

75. Grounds of objection to evidence must be shown. Bollen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 148, 86 S. W. 1025.

76. See 4 C. L. 84.

77. State v. Scholfield [N. D.] 102 N. W. 878; Red v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1031, 89 S. W. 275; Smith v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1030, 88 S. W. 275; Jones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1030, 89 S. W. 275; Holman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1030, 89 S. W. 275; Price v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1030, 89 S. W. 416; Edwards v. State [Tex. Cr. App] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1030, 89 S. W. 416; Curlin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 89 S. W. 416; Chumley v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 89 S. W. 416; State v. Behan [La.] 38 So. 20; State v. Richardson, 113 La. 678, 37 So. 599; Bailey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 588; Lovett v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 590; Erwin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 590; Tignor v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 591; Hooks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 592; Barre v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 592; Reeves v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 593; Ozee v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 598; Hixon v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 10; Jackson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 10; Goynes v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1073; Lockhart v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 350. Even in a capital case. Tanksley v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 753.

78. Adkins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 17; Langran v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 273. Where the character or relevancy of evidence offered is not shown by the bill of exceptions, its rejection cannot be reviewed, unless it is clearly relevant. Richardson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 282; Starr v. State [Tex Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 104, 86 S. W. 1023; Ellington v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 634, 88 S. W. 361. A bill of exceptions to the exclusion of impeaching evidence must show what the witness whose impeachment is offered testified to. Hanna v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 472, 87 S. W. 702; Reyes v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 245; The refusal to rule out evidence cannot be considered where such evidence is not set out literally or in substance. Whittington v. State, 121 Ga. 193, 48 S. E. 948.

79. Exception to the overruling of a question cannot be considered in the absence of a showing as to what the answer would have been. Morris v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 560.

80. Commonwealth v. Mock, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 51; Jackson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 827; Harris v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1152; Ruiz v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 808. Instructions and evidence must appear. Commonwealth v. Mock, 23 Pa Super Ct. 51; James v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 320. Where the punishment assessed is such as to force the conclusion that the court charged upon the cumulative punishment authorized in case there have been prior convictions, and the indictment fails to sufficiently charge such convictions, review may be had without a statement of facts. Kinney v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 590. Oral charge of court not being set out, the correctness of a charge given at the request and the statement or bill of exceptions must affirmatively show that it contains all that is necessary to review.[84]

(§ 17) G. Practice and procedure in reviewing court. Assignments, abstracts, briefs, etc.[85]—In some states, in criminal cases, all errors apparent on the record must be considered, though there are no assignments.[86] Generally, however, errors must be specifically assigned,[87] and a general assignment to several rulings,[88] or a ruling embodying several matters will be overruled if any of the matters were correctly disposed of. Unless apparent the assignment must show wherein the error consists,[89] and set out the matters complained of and the rule of law claimed to be violated.[90] An assignment of error is not defective because signed by the proper prosecuting attorney instead of the attorney general; though the latter had exclusive charge of the case after reaching the supreme court.[91] In some states neither brief nor argument is necessary; but the general rule is that in the absence of a brief, the court will look only to the jurisdiction of the court, the sufficiency of the indictment, and the regularity of the judgment,[92] and that exceptions and assignments[93] not referred to in the brief or argument will be treated as aban-of the state cannot be reviewed. Weaver v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 341.

81. Commonwealth v. Mock, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 51; Jackson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 827; Day v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 829; Randolph v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 7; Thrash v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 273; Langran v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 803; Shaw v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 150. It should appear from the record that on the hearing of a motion for a new trial on the ground of newly-discovered evidence that the affidavits in support thereof were offered or read. People v. Fitzgerald [Cal. App.] 82 P. 555.

82. Denial of continuance. Parker v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 822; Hall v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 707, 88 S. W. 244; Martinus v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 827; Kuehn v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 793. If the application and affidavits are not abstracted, refusal will not be reviewed. Zipperian v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1018. Action of the court in overruling a motion to quash will not be reversed where the bill of exceptions shows no evidence to support the averments of the motion. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329.

83. Alleged improper statements in argument will not be reviewed unless objected to on the trial, and the statements and objections thereto are embodied in the bill of exceptions. Connelly v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 754.

84. The lack of an affirmative statement that the bill of exceptions contains all the evidence is not fatal if it clearly appears from the recitals that it does. Clyatt v. U. S., 197 U. S. 207, 49 Law. Ed. 726. An assignment based on refusal to find for accused on all the evidence need not be considered when the record does not purport to contain all the evidence. Tubins v. District of Columbia, 21 App. D. C. 267.

85. See 4 C. L. 84.

86. The court considers a case on its merits but warns counsel that it shall not be regarded as a precedent. People v. Peck [Mich.] 103 N. W. 178.

87. Review confined to exceptions and assignments. State v. Miller [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 202. Where the grounds of objection to a charge are specifically pointed out it will be presumed there are no others to urge. Coleman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 718, 88 S. W. 238. No assignments of error being based on exceptions shown by record, such exceptions need not be considered. Tubins v. District of Columbia, 21 App. D. C. 267.

88. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601. An assignment of error upon the admission of specified testimony is not well taken, when part of it is admissible. Murphy v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 98.

89. Territory v. Clark [N. M.] 79 P. 708. Assignment of error to overruling demurrer should indicate the grounds on which the demurrer was based. Commonwealth v. Shoener, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 526.

90. Assignments to rulings on evidence must set out questions or offers the ruling of the court thereon, and the testimony or evidence admitted if any, together with a reference to the page of the paper-book where the matter may be found. Commonwealth v. Powell, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 370; McGregor v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 134 F. 187. Application and ruling on motion for bill of particulars must appear. Commonwealth v. Powell, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 370. Assessments which do not refer to the page of the record will not be considered. People v. Sanders [Mich.] 102 N. W. 959. An assignment of error that "the court erred in giving in charge to the jury, as shown by the general charge of the court, which is of file and made a part of the record in this case, to which reference is prayed, the rules of law governing the rights of parties when engaged in mutual combat," is too general, vague, and indefinite to be considered. The charge excepted to should have been set out in the motion and specific error assigned thereon. Green v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 530.

91. State v. Sutherlin [Ind.] 75 N. E. 642.

92. Picklesiner v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 777. The rule is relaxed only in the interests of justice. State v. Sanders [N. D.] 103 N. W. 419.

93. O'Donnell v. People, 110 Ill. App. 250. An assignment of error not referred to in doned unless the error is so glaring as to need no argument.[94] The assignment or brief should refer to the portion of the record where the error lies,[95] and point out the exact defect. It is improper to raise on oral argument points not discussed in the briefs.[96] Where no abstract of the evidence is filed in Iowa rulings on evidence will not be considered.[97]

Dismissal,[98] if timely moved,[99] will be granted for failure properly bring up the case,[1] or for want of jurisdiction [2] or delay in bringing argument,[3] or filing briefs,[4] and where accused flees from justice.[5] An appeal regularly taken will not be dismissed because no appearance has been entered or brief filed.[6] Appeal from the judgment on habeas corpus to admit to bail will be dismissed where appellant gives bail and is enlarged.[7] Dismissed appeals may be reinstated on proper application and showing.[8]

Hearing on review and rehearing.[9]—It was not error to hear the argument on certiorari, reserving judgment thereon and in the interval between the hearing and judgment, consider and dispose of affidavits submitted in support of the traverse to the answer of the trial judge.[10]

Interlocutory and provisional proceedings.[11]

(§ 17) H. Scope of review.[12]—Review is confined to matters made of record,[13] and properly assigned and argued,[14] and which have been preserved by necessary and proper objection and exception,[15] but some states have relaxed the rule the brief of the plaintiff in error will be treated as abandoned. Tarver v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 501. Ground of motion for new trial alleging existence of newly-discovered evidence, not insisted upon, will be treated as abandoned. Williams v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 577; Lamb v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 906. Where one of the errors assigned is based on the overruling of a motion for a new trial, and said motion consists of a number of grounds, only such grounds as are argued will be considered. Spires v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 181.

94. Questions abandoned in the reply brief will not be considered. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846. Where there are assignments of error in a criminal case which are not argued, but merely insisted upon in the brief of plaintiffs in error, the appellate court is not required to do more than read the record carefully in connection with such assignments of error, and if it discovers no glaring error prejudicial to the plaintiffs in error, under such assignments, the judgment will not be reversed because of such assigned errors. Jackson v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 599.

95. Commonwealth v. Powell, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 370.

96. People v. Modina, 146 Cal. 142, 79 P. 842.

97. State v. Moore [Iowa] 103 N. W. 992.

98. See 4 C. L. 85.

99. Motions to strike parts of the record and to dismiss the appeal come too late after submission of the case. Standard Oil Co. v. Commonwealth, 26 Ky. L. R. 142, 80 S. W. 1150. Motion to dismiss for lack of affidavit of appeal is too late after submission on merits. State v. Miller [Mo.] 88 S. W. 607.

1. Paper book containing neither statement of question involved or assignments of error. Commonwealth v. Kreinbrook, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 511. Assignments in petition for writ of error held too vague for consideration. McCaddin v. State [Md.] 60 A. 474. Failure to file transcript at proper time. State v. Caton [Kan.] 80 P. 938. Alteration of record. State v. Franceschi [Mont.] 81 P. 12. Whenever it appears that the clerk of the trial court has failed to transmit to the supreme court, within the time prescribed by law, the bill of exceptions and transcript, and that the plaintiff in error or his attorney "has been the cause of the delay by consent, direction or procurement of any kind," the writ of error will be dismissed. Civ. Code 1895, §§ 5571, 5572. Wilson v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 81. Plaintiff in error or her counsel, held under the facts, responsible for delay, and writ dismissed. Id.

2. Walden v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 151.

3. People v. Addes, 45 Misc. 314, 92 N. Y. S. 389.

4. Rule requiring dismissal for delay in filing brief not relaxed where excuse is press of other business. State v. Franceschi [Mont.] 81 P. 12 Failure to serve briefs on attorney general as required by statute though service has been made on county prosecutor. Wilhelm v. State [Wyo.] 81 P. 882.

5. State v. Scott [Kan.] 79 P. 126.

6. Figueroa v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 328; Noftz v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 329; Thornquist v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 329.

7. Ex parte Elmore [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 347.

8. An appeal dismissed for imperfect record will not be reinstated where no attempt has been made to perfect it. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. State [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1113.

9. See 4 C. L. 86.

10. Cobb v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 592.

11, 12. See 4 C. L. 86.

13. See ante, § 17F. State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706.

14. See ante, § 17G.

15. See ante, § 14, Saving questions for review.

by requiring review of apparent error.[16] Where there is no bill of exceptions or other memorial of the proceedings required to be shown thereby, nothing is reviewed but the record proper.[17] Generally speaking an appeal from the judgment takes up all intermediate orders and rulings.[18] Review is restricted to the rulings below,[19] and to the theory on which the action below was based, but a correct decision will not be reversed because based on a wrong reason. Gratuitous questions are not decided and assignments involving questions that have been many times decided will not be considered or discussed.[21] After final judgment of conviction, the jurisdiction of the trial court cannot be questioned by an inquiry into the manner in which the accused was brought before it.[22] Whether accused could have had a fair trial is to be determined from the record on appeal from order denying change of place of trial.[23] The decision below is of great weight but not controlling.[24]

Rulings on matters within the discretion of the trial court, such as rulings on applications to change venue [25] or continue the case,[26] rulings on pleadings,[27] the course and conduct of the trial in general,[28] selection and qualifications of jurors,[29] rulings

16. In Pennsylvania, on conviction of murder in the first degree, the court reviews the law and the evidence to determine the justice of the conviction. Comonwealth v. Danz, 211 Pa. 507, 60 A. 1070. Rule relaxed in capital cases. Barker v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 71.

17. See ante, § 17F. Where the evidence taken on the trial is not used on the hearing of a motion for new trial it cannot be incorporated into the case made for consideration by the supreme court on appeal from the denial of the motion. Smiley v. Territory [Okl.] 81 P. 433.

18. The intermediate orders or proceedings forming part of the judgment roll on appeal are reviewable by the appellate division, including an order overruling a demurrer to the indictment and the court of appeals can review the determinations of such court. People v. Canepi, 181 N. Y. 398, 74 N. E. 473. Refusal to advise acquittal goes up and involves sufficiency of evidence. People v. Ward, 145 Cal. 736, 79 P. 448. Proceedings on a writ of review procured to inquire into proceedings before a justice do not go up on an appeal from a judgment entered on appeal from the justice in the same case. State v. Bringgold [Wash.] 82 P. 132

19. Matters not objected to at the trial nor made grounds of motion for new trial will not be considered. Williams v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 88 S. W. 334. Where a request for exclusion of witnesses was not urged as of right, there is no question for review. State v. Armstrong, 37 Wash. 51, 79 P. 490. Additional affidavits first presented on appeal will not be considered in reviewing propriety of denying continuance. State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706. Evidence ruled out on defendant's objection will not be considered. Johnson v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 905.

20. Where defendant has been acquitted a review would be useless. People v. Hill, 146 Cal. 145, 79 P. 845. The jury having found defendant guilty of simple larceny, the question of larceny from the house was out of the case, and assignments relative to rulings on that subject will not be considered. Patterson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 489.

21. Right of state to prosecute by information. Barker v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 71.

22. Rigor v. State [Md.] 61 A. 631.

23, 24. People v. Georger, 95 N. Y. S. 790.

25. State v. Faulkner, 185 Mo. 673, 84 S. W. 967; Andrews v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1031; Mount v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 707.

26. Gardner v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 704; Mount v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 86 S. W. 707; State v. Cummings [Mo.] 88 S. W. 706; Seward v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 342. On appeal the court, in considering the denial of a continuance on the ground of the absence of a witness, cannot consider a copy of the subpoena issued for the witness and an affidavit that the witness was present in court during the trial, where such papers were obtained after the adjournment of the court and were not a part of the record. Whit v. State [Miss.] 37 So. 809. Refusal to grant a continuance on conflicting evidence as to the physical condition of accused will be reviewed only in case of abuse of discretion. Rawlins v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 1. Refusal to grant a continuance because of illness of counsel is discretionary and will be reviewed only for abuse of discretion. Id.

27. Motion to quash indictment. McGregor v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 134 F. 187. Refusal to quash on ground of want of previous binding over before preferment of indictment. Commonwealth v. Brown, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 470. Refusal of bill of particulars. Commonwealth v. Powell, 23 P. Super. Ct. 370; Commonwealth v. Shoener, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 526. Refusal of election. Knox v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 255; Tuttle v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1035. Refusal of a bill of particulars is reviewable only for a gross abuse of discretion. State v. Dewey [N. C.] 51 S. E. 937.

28. Exclusion of witnesses. Greer v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 166; State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561. Sending out papers with jury. Commonwealth v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 235. Unless abuse of discretion is shown, a trial court's refusal to permit experiments relevant to the issue to be made before the jury will not on the primary admissibility of evidence,[30] examination of witnesses,[31] order of proof,[32] argument and conduct of counsel,[33] instructions commenting on the evidence,[34] refusal to direct a verdict,[35] imposition of costs on the prosecutor,[36] rulings on motions for new trial,[37] and the sentence, where within the maximum allowed by law,[38] will be reversed only in clear cases of abuse of discretion to the prisoner's prejudice.

On questions of fact, the findings of the trial judge will be sustained unless clearly erroneous.[39] Likewise, the verdict of the jury is conclusive on all issues of fact properly presented to it where the evidence is sufficient[40] or conflicts,[41] or be interfered with. Spires v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 181.

29. State v. Lauth [Or.] 80 P. 660. Challenge to panel. Mosely v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 748. No exception lies in Montana to the action of the court in sustaining a challenge for individual bias. State v. Jones [Mont.] 80 P. 1095. Excusing, over objection of defendant, a juror not in fact disqualified is not error. People v. Lee [Cal. App.] 81 P. 969. Finding of trial court that juror was not indifferent in the cause is not reviewable when supported by evidence. State v. Byrd [S. C.] 51 S. E. 542. Excusing juror to enable him to protect his property. Nordan v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 406.

30. Relevant evidence objected to as too remote. State v. Bean [Vt.] 60 A. 807; State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839. Whether witness understands nature of an oath. Freasier v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 360 Whether baby's features are sufficiently developed so that its resemblance to defendant is entitled to weight. State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839. Ruling out evidence of bias of witness. Commonwealth v. Ezell [Pa.] 61 A. 930.

31. Smith v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 983; State v. Miller [Kan.] 80 P. 51; Scott v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 1004; Corothers v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 585. Discretion of trial court in permitting leading questions will not be reviewed on writ of error. Reyes v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 257.

32. Knox v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 255; State v. Seligman [Iowa] 103 N. W. 357; State v. Waln [Idaho] 80 P. 221.

33. Argument. Commonwealth v. Ezell [Pa.] 61 A. 930. Act of prosecuting attorney in kissing baby born to prosecution in rape. State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839. One hour on a side for case taking 3 days to try held too short. State v. Rogoway [Or.] 81 P. 234.

34. State v. Valentina [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 177; Commonwealth v. Wertheimer, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 192.

35. State v. Brown [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1117.

36. Commonwealth v. Kocher, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 65.

37. State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839; Ball v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 226; Ince v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 818; Harris v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 596; Whipple v. State [Ga.] 57 S. E. 590; Owen v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 64. Newly-discovered evidence. May v. State [Vt.] 60 A. 1; People v. Patrick [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 843; Van Meer v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 264. Drunkenness of counsel. Territory v. Clark [N. M.] 79 P. 708. Denial of further time to prepare for argument. Commonwealth v. Ezell [Pa.] 61 A. 930. Misconduct of jurors. Johnson v. People [Colo.] 80 P. 133. Qualifications of jurors. State v. Lauth [Or.] 80 P. 660. Separation of jury. Frame v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 711.

38. State v. Bjelkstrom [S. D.] 104 N. W. 481.

39. Competency of witness claimed to be defendant's common-law wife. State v. Hancock [Nev.] 82 P. 95. Finding on preliminary showing of conspiracy to justify introduction of declarations of conspirators. Schutz v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 90. Finding on predicatory showing to admit confession. Roszczyniala v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 113; Hintz v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 110. Finding that money in possession of accused was part of that stolen by him will not be reviewed. Commonwealth v. McDonald [Mass.] 73 N. E. 852. Qualifications of juror raised by motion for new trial. State v. Lauth [Or.] 80 P. 660. The sufficiency of the evidence to justify the giving of an instruction cannot be inquired into on an appeal from a judgment if there is any evidence to support the instruction. People v. Durand [Cal. App.] 81 P. 672. The court's determination of the fact that a witness cannot be reached so as to admit his deposition is conclusive in the absence of abuse of discretion. People v. Ballard [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1040. Where a case is tried by a judge without a jury and the facts are not agreed upon and there is no special finding or request for such finding, the conclusion of the judge as to the facts stands as a verdict of a jury and cannot be revised on appeal. Witherspoon v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 356.

40. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601; Holmes v. State [Wis.] 102 N. W. 321; Mosely v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 748; State v. Williams, 186 Mo. 128, 84 S. W. 924; White v. State [Ark.] 86 S. W. 296; Botkins v. State [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 298; Eckart v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 755; People v. Heart [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1018; Miller v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 84 S. W. 581. Defendant's intent in removing baggage without paying bill. Commonwealth v. Billig, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 477. Intent in larceny. Miller v. Territory [Ariz.] 80 P. 321. To reverse for insufficiency of the evidence the court in Illinois must be satisfied from a consideration of the whole case that there is a reasonable doubt of guilt. Flanagan v. People, 214 Ill. 170, 73 N. E. 347. Where the verdict is sustained by the evidence, it will not be disturbed. Thomas v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 516. If the evidence as given in the record is sufficient to support the verdict, and affords no ground for the opinion that the jury were governed by improper influences in arriving at their verdict, under assignment of the verdict depends on the credibility of the witnesses,[42] even though the evidence be not of the most convincing kind,[43] or preponderates against the verdict,[44] especially where the verdict has been approved by the trial court;[45] though where it is evident that to sustain the verdict will not subserve the ends of justice, the binding force thereof will not avail to prevent reversal.[46] In several states the question of excessiveness of punishment is considered by the appellate court.[47]

(§ 17) I. Decision and judgment of the reviewing court.[48]—An equal division of judges makes an affirmance.[49] In Arizona three judges must concur to reverse a judgment, though only three are sitting.[50] Reversal generally necessitates remand for new trial, but if the error may be corrected by the appellate court, remand is not necessary,[51] and new trial is not necessary if the error is one that requires no retrial of the facts.[52] Where it appears that the sentence imposed is error questioning the sufficiency of the evidence the judgment of the court below will be sustained. Jackson v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 599. Where no errors are made to appear and the appellate court is of the opinion that the evidence supports the verdict, a judgment of conviction will be affirmed. Tatum v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 601. Where there is evidence to support a verdict it will not be disturbed as being against the evidence if its propriety depends entirely upon the credibility of witnesses. Spires v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 181; Caldwell v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 188. Where in a prosecution for rape there was evidence authorizing a verdict of guilty, a conviction will not be reversed on the ground that the verdict should have been "not guilty," under all the competent evidence. Dickey v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 776. Where circumstantial evidence points strongly to the defendant as the guilty agent in causing the violent death of a party and is without any material conflict, an appellate court will not say that the jury were not warranted in concluding that the defendant was guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. Houston v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 468. Where there is evidence tending to show the accused guilty of the crime charged a conviction will not be set aside. State v. Major, 70 S. C. 387, 50 S. E. 13.

41. O'Donnell v. People, 110 Ill. App. 250; Territory v. Clark [N. M.] 79 P. 708; State v. Lortz, 186 Mo. 122, 84 S. W. 906. A conviction based on conflicting evidence will not be disturbed on the ground of insufficiency of evidence after a motion for a new trial has been denied. People v. Bowers [Cal. App.] 82 P. 553. A ruling on a motion for a new trial where the evidence is conflicting will not be disturbed unless the ruling involves an error of law or an abuse of discretion. State v. Lackey [Kan.] 82 P. 527. Though there is a conflict in the evidence, an appellate court will not reverse the case upon the weight of the evidence, nor for the reason that there is a conflict, nor for the reason that all persons might not draw the same inferences from the facts proved. Willlams v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 875.

42. Dimmick v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 257; Howard v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 773; State v. Jones [Mont.] 80 P. 1095; State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561; State v. Bartlett [Iowa] 104 N. W. 285. The question of favor or prejudice of a witness is for the jury. Commonwealth v. Gibson, 211 Pa. 546, 60 A. 1086. A verdict supported by evidence will not be disturbed on appeal as being against the weight of evidence, where its propriety depends wholly upon the credibility of conflicting witnesses. Dickens v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 909.

43. State v. Ryan [Kan.] 80 P. 588. First degree murder. Commonwealth v. Danz, 211 Pa. 507, 60 A. 1070.

44. The Indiana statute (Acts 1903, p. 341, c. 193, § 8) requiring the court to weigh the evidence and award judgment to the right party has no application to criminal cases. Knox v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 255. Number of witnesses is not controlling. Holland v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 468; Simpson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 15; Crow v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 1057.

45. By refusal of new trial. Hill v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 757; Harmon v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 765. A verdict of guilty having been approved by the presiding judge and being supported by the evidence it will not be set aside on appeal. Rahilly v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 503.

46. State v. Newton [Wash.] 81 P. 1002.

47. Where persons equally guilty of the same crime were sentenced to different terms, the longer terms were reduced to equal the shortest. Keeler v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 64.

48. See 4 C. L. 89.

49. The court being equally divided on the question of jurisdiction of an appeal by the state in a misdemeanor case will reject it. State v. Charles [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1107; State v. Hani [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1107.

50. United States v. Peppers [Ariz.] 80 P. 335.

51. Where judgment was sentence to imprisonment in state's prison for eighteen months when it should have been in the county jail, and eleven months of the sentence have been served, defendant will be discharged as eleven months in the state prison is at least the equivalent of eighteen in the county jail. Commonwealth v. Fetterman, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 569.

52. Reversal of conviction of murder in second degree may be accompanied by direction to sentence defendant for manslaughter, where the testimony of himself and his witnesses shows that to be his offense. Darden v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 507. Where an erroneous sentence has been imposed, the appellate court will reverse it and send without authority of law, the accused will be discharged, notwithstanding the time within which the sentence might be corrected has long passed.[53] Where, in a conspiracy trial, there is a separate verdict and judgment as to each of the defendants, there may be an affirmance or reversal as to one, or any number, or all.[54] Formal reversal is sometimes granted where appellant has been deprived of a statement of facts without any fault on his part.[55] In Oregon if a conviction is reversed because the indictment was erroneously sustained on demurrer, a new trial will be ordered with discretion in the trial court to submit anew to the grand jury.[56] It has been said that it is better to dismiss one found guilty than to enforce an unauthorized statute.[57]

(§ 17) J. Proceedings after reversal and remand.[58]—Questions determined on prior appeal are the law of the case,[59] and the court on a subsequent appeal will not review errors reviewable by the former appeal unless raised in the trial court on the second trial.[60] Reversal because conviction was had on an indictment from which a page was missing and improved does not require dismissal of the indictment.[61] Trial of the case after reversal cannot proceed without the indictment, though it has not been returned from the court of appeals.[62] Where a misdirection arises from an erroneous assumption as to the manner in which the question was raised, the direction should be regarded as surplusage and its effect reached by the proper proceeding.[63]

§ 18. Summary prosecutions and review thereof.[64]—Prosecutions under municipal ordinances are generally regarded as civil in their nature rather than criminal, and may be founded on any oral or written accusation reasonably informing accused of the nature of the charge.[65] In some cases it is provided that injured persons must make complaint.[66] Where the affidavit was before a judge without jurisdiction, judgment will be arrested.[67] Affidavits and complaints in prosecutions for misdemeanors may be amended.[68] Trial by jury is not necessary,[69] the the case back for another sentence, but will not reverse the conviction. Commonwealth v. Shoener, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 526. The court may order a modification of the judgment appealed from instead of ordering judgment nunc pro tunc. State v. Barry [N. D.] 103 N. W. 637. Court may modify excessive sentence. State v. Wisnewski [N. D.] 102 N. W. 883; Junod v. State [Neb.] 102 N. W. 462; State v. Norris [Iowa] 104 N. W. 282; State v. Harness [Idaho] 80 P. 1129. Court can strike out imprisonment and affirm fine where imprisonment alone is error. Pressly v. State [Tenn.] 86 S. W. 378.

53. Derby v. State, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 91.

54. O'Donnell v. People, 110 Ill. App. 250.

55. Jackson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 10.

56. Prisoner is not to be discharged as on a reversal without remand for new trial under B. & C. Comp. § 1486. State v. Eddy [Or.] 82 P. 707.

57. Derby v. State, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 91.

58. See 4 C. L. 90.

59. That particular instruction should not have been given. Selby v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 89 S. W. 296.

60. State v. Faulkner, 185 Mo. 673, 84 S. W. 967.

61. People v. Noon [Cal. App.] 81 P. 746.

62. Martinez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 462, 87 S. W. 344.

63. Order to sustain demurrer may be complied with by dismissal of information. People v. Coronado, 144 Cal. 207, 79 P. 418.

64. See 4 C. L. 90.

Includes all prosecutions before inferior courts and not by common law jury on indictment or information.

65. City of Topeka v. Kersch [Kan.] 79 P. 681. Arrest without warrant and lack of complaint prior to arrest may be waived. Borough of North Plainfield v. Goodwin [N. J. Law] 60 A. 571. Information received by mayor and acted upon, held sufficiently filed, though not so marked. Town of Lovilia v. Cobb, 126 Iowa, 557, 102 N. W. 496. It is presumed that the mayor of a town before whom a prosecution was had was within the territorial jurisdiction when the information before him was sworn to. Id. Prosecutions for violations of city ordinances may be prosecuted in the name of the city. City of Helena v. Kent [Mont.] 80 P. 258. The affidavit on which a prosecution is based is sufficient, though affiant's name does not appear in the body, it appearing at the end as the person making the oath. Schnair v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 592.

66. State v. Borham [Ohio] 74 N. E. 220.

67. Edmondson v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 301. The judge of the superior court of Macon has no jurisdiction to attest an affidavit as the basis of a prosecution in the city court. Id.

68. Town of Lovilia v. Cobb, 126 Iowa, 557, 102 N. W. 496.

69. Stone v. Paducah [Ky.] 86 S. W. 531. May be waived. Town of Lovilia v. Cobb, 126 Iowa, 557, 102 N. W. 496.

provision for jury trial on appeal being a sufficient compliance with the constitutional guaranty.[70] In Ohio a mayor of a city having no police judge has final jurisdiction and should not recognize to the court above a misdemeanor case of a kind not triable by jury.[71]

The record[72] must show all the legal requisites of a legal trial, conviction and judgment, including in some states the offense, the venue,[73] the names of the witnesses, the evidence, and the judgment.[74]

Review.[75]—The right to appeal is statutory.[76] Where a city seeks to prosecute for an offense committed outside its borders, prohibition will lie.[77] Where, in a peace warrant proceeding, one has been committed to jail in default of a bond requiring him to keep the peace, a writ of habeas corpus cannot bring into review alleged irregularities or errors of procedure in the trial before the committal court, or questions as to the sufficiency of the evidence upon which the applicant in the writ was committed.[78] Review usually goes from inferior criminal courts to the court of general jurisdiction and not direct to the supreme court;[79] but in Louisiana an appeal from the city court of Shreveport must go to the supreme court by terms of the constitution if there is either a law declared unconstitutional or a fine imposed above $300.[80] The constitutional provision for appeals from the mayor's or recorder's courts to the district courts for appeal de novo does not apply, the city court not being the same.[81] In the District of Columbia the proper time to give notice of an intention to apply for a writ of error in a case in the police court is when the first exception is taken, but the notice need not be repeated with each exception.[82] Undertaking on appeal cannot be exacted unless required by statute,[83] but must fully satisfy such statute.[84] The issuance of a writ of error is not always necessary to give a jurisdiction of an appeal properly taken from a judgment of a

70. City of Topeka v. Kersch [Kan.] 80 P. 29.

71. By force of Rev. St. § 1817, a mayor of a city in which there is no police court has final jurisdiction to hear and determine any prosecution for a misdemeanor where the accused is not entitled to trial by jury, and it is not the mayor's duty in such a case to require accused to enter into a recognizance to appear in a higher court, although the complaint is not by the party injured. State v. Borham [Ohio] 74 N. E. 220.

72. See 4 C. L. 91.

73. It is error to overrule a certiorari where the record fails to show that the venue was proved. Brown v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 505; Edwards v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 505.

74. That the judgment recites the fine in figures is immaterial. City of East Orange v. Richardson [N. J. Law] 59 A. 897.

75. See 4 C. L. 91.

76. Acts 1891, p. 92, ch. 4055, providing for an appeal from a judgment of conviction in any municipal or recorder's court, is not repealed or affected by revised statutes 1892. State v. Wills [Fla.] 38 So. 289. Section 1, of ch. 4021, p. 50, Acts 1891, secures the right to an appeal from a judgment of conviction in any municipal or recorder's court. The expression in § 2 (P. 51) "that such appeals shall be taken * * * in the same manner," etc., has reference to the manner prescribed by law for appeals in civil cases at the time the law took effect, to wit, May 19, 1891. Id. Rev. St. 1892, § 2969, does not take away this right. Id. Acts 1901, p. 1854, establishing Bessemer city court, giving supreme court right to review city court's finding of facts, applies to civil, not to criminal cases. Witherspoon v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 356.

77. City of Bardstown v. Hurst [Ky.] 89 S. W. 147.

78. Young v. Fain, 121 Ga. 737, 49 S. E. 731.

79. No direct writ of error lies to review judgment of city court of Sylvester White v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 505. The circuit court in Arkansas has jurisdiction of an appeal from a conviction before justice of the peace in a misdemeanor case. Maxey v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1009.

80. Act No. 29, p. 34, St. 1900, is unconstitutional in giving appellate jurisdiction to district court. State v. Judge of First Dist. Ct., 113 La. 654, 37 So. 546.

81. State v. Judge of First Dist. Ct., 113 La. 654, 37 So. 546.

82. Tubins v. District of Columbia, 21 App. D. C. 267.

83. No undertaking is necessary on appeal from a justice judgment rendered under Pen. Code, § 2719. State v. District Court of Tenth Judicial Dist. [Mont.] 82 P. 663.

84. Where a person is charged with a crime before a justice of the peace and also sued in tort for the same offense, an appeal bond conditioned as provided in Code 1892, § 82, cannot be made to operate as an appeal bond in the criminal case. Redus v. Gamble [Miss.] 37 So. 1010.

municipal court.[85] To bring an ordinance before a reviewing court, it must be certified up by the mayor with the other evidence.[86] On appeals from summary convictions, the trial is usually de novo,[87] and amendments after appeal are usually allowed.[88] Where the proceedings below are oral, a transcript of the docket is sufficient to give the court jurisdiction on appeal.[89] Where a justice of the peace acts without jurisdiction, the court to which appeal is taken acquires none.[90] By appeal to the district court and trial on the merits, defendant waives any question of the legality of his arrest on view without warrant.[91] Where an offense is charged which the municipality had a right to forbid and there is a finding by the mayor that the defendant did violate an ordinance, a reviewing court is bound to presume that the mayor did not err in finding that an ordinance had been passed covering the offense charged, and cannot reverse the judgment unless error is shown.[92] It is not ground for dismissal of an appeal from a conviction before a justice that notice of such appeal was not served on the county attorney.[93]

Further review.—The judgment of the county court in Texas on appeal from an inferior court is final where the fine does not exceed $100.[94] No review is authorized in Arizona from the judgment of the district court on appeal from a justice.[95]

On certiorari.[96]—Judgment of guilty by confession,[97] and conviction on a complaint which fails to allege facts constituting one of the offenses within the court's jurisdiction may be reviewed by certiorari.[98] Statutory certiorari is allowable only when seasonably applied for [99] with a proper bond.[100] The petition must aver all the evidence necessary to explain error assigned in respect thereto.[101] If the clerk fails to issue the writ of certiorari before the term to which it is returnable, the plaintiff may, if there has been no laches on his part, move the court for an order directing the clerk to issue the writ;[102] without such order, the clerk has no authority to issue the writ subsequently to the term to which it was originally returnable.[103] Review is confined to valid and legally sufficient parts of the record.[104]

85. Acts 1891, p. 50, ch. 4021. State v. Wills [Fla.] 38 So. 289.

86. Esch v. Elyria, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 9.

87. City of Spokane v. Smith, 37 Wash. 583, 79 P. 1125. On setting aside the complaint, defendant may be held for trial on an information. State v. Bringgold [Wash.] 82 P. 132.

88. An information before a mayor charging a violation of a town ordinance may be amended after appeal. Town of Lovilia v. Cobb, 126 Iowa, 557, 102 N. W. 496. Statutes providing for amendment on appeal entitle defendant to demand a written accusation, though the complaint was oral below. City of Topeka v. Kersch [Kan.] 80 P. 29.

89. City of Topeka v. Kersch [Kan.] 79 P. 681.

90. Stoltman v. Lake [Wis.] 102 N. W. 920.

91. City of Topeka v. Kersch [Kan.] 79 P. 681.

92. Esch v. Elyria, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 9.

93. State v. District Ct. of Tenth Judicial Dist. [Mont.] 82 P. 663.

94. Kruegel v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 1064; Thomas v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 353.

95. Territory v. Moore [Ariz.] 80 P. 316.

96. See 4 C. L. 91.

97. City of East Orange v. Richardson [N. J. Law] 59 A. 897.

98. Denninger v. Recorder's Ct. of Pomona, 145 Cal. 629, 79 P. 360.

99. Where writ of error to review judgment of city court was dismissed in the supreme court, such proceeding being illegal, an application to superior court of circuit for a writ of certiorari to review such judgment was too late where more than 30 days passed between date of judgment and application for writ. White v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 505; dist'g Roach v. Sulter, 54 Ga. 458.

100. The bond required by Acts 1902, p. 105, where application is made for a writ of certiorari to a police court, is merely an appearance bond; and upon a judgment of such court being affirmed on certiorari, it is not lawful to enter judgment against the sureties on such bond for the amount of the fine imposed in the police court. Tucker v. Moultrie [Ga.] 50 S. E. 61.

101. Where complaint was made in a petition for certiorari that the trial court overruled objections to the testimony of named witnesses upon designated subjects, without setting forth, either literally or in substance, the testimony to which the objections were made, an assignment of error that the court erred in overruling such objections was not well taken. Fitts v. Atlanta, 121 Ga. 567, 49 S. E. 793.

102. Walea v. State, 121 Ga. 585, 49 S. E. 710.

103. Walea v. State, 121 Ga. 585, 49 S. E. 710. A writ so issued will be dismissed. Id.

Points made in a petition for certiorari not verified by the answer of the trial judge present nothing for determination either by the superior or the supreme court;[105] it is proper practice for the court on suggestion of diminution to rule a further return.[106] The supreme court of Georgia will not consider, in lieu of a brief of the evidence, a transcript of the stenographer's notes of the testimony taken on the trial of the case, consisting of questions asked by counsel and the answers given by the witnesses and not approved by the trial judge.[107]

INDORSING PAPERS; INFAMOUS CRIMES, see latest topical index.

104. There being no approved brief of evidence in the record, other questions made by a motion for a new trial cannot be decided. George v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 504.

105. Little v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 501; Fitts v. Atlanta, 121 Ga. 567, 49 S. E. 793.

106. Showing jurisdictional facts. Borough of North Plainfield v. Goodwin [N. J. Law] 60 A. 571.

107. No agreement of counsel can avail to bring such a document to the attention of this court. Civ. Code 1895, § 5529. George v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 504.